House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. JACKSON of Illinois).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, June 10, 2009.
I hereby appoint the Honorable Jesse L. JACKSON, Jr. to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

God Almighty, send forth Your spirit to guide the Members of the House of Representatives today and every day of this 111th Congress. By Your power, manifest the strength of this democracy.
So direct the course of this body that policies and decisions made here may proclaim Your goodness to all the people. Not in words only but with every action freely accepted, may this Nation show the world that it is an agent of reconciliation and peace for all and give You glory, both now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to 15 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

BRINGING AN END TO THE WARS IN IRAQ AND AFGHANISTAN

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Iraq did not have weapons of mass destruction, had no intention or capability of attacking the United States, and had nothing to do with al Qaeda's role in 9/11. Each and every statement made by the previous administration in support of going to war turned out to be false. Yet here we are, a new administration and the same old war and expansion of the war in Afghanistan. We cannot afford these wars spiritually. They are wars of aggression, and they're based on lies. We cannot afford these wars financially. They add trillions to our national debt and destroy our domestic agenda. We cannot afford the human cost of these wars, the loss of lives of our beloved troops and the deaths of innocent civilians in Iraq, Afghanistan and Pakistan.

So why do we do this? Why do we keep funding wars when they're so obviously against truth and justice and when they undermine our military? These are matters of heart and conscience which must be explored. Our ability to bring an end to these wars will be the real test of our power.

THE INEFFECTIVE BIG GOVERNMENT STIMULUS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics has admitted there is no way to actually substantiate the number of jobs saved in this economy. Yet the White House continues to rely on this talking point to divert attention away from job losses. They should put this political rhetoric to bed and work with Republicans on proven bipartisan solutions to encourage job creation and economic growth.

House Republicans have long advocated that we keep more money in the economy by not taking it out in the first place. Presidents Kennedy and Reagan understood this. They supported relief for American families and small businesses as the engine of job creation and general prosperity. We should learn a lesson from history.

I am confident our economy will recover, but it will do so because of the hard work and perseverance of Americans. Conversely, filtering billions of borrowed dollars through a bureaucratic maze will be, as we have seen, slow and inefficient.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th.

THE NEW WAR IN AFGHANISTAN

(Ms. TSONGAS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. TSONGAS. Mr. Speaker, following September 11, our Armed Forces made tremendous strides in Afghanistan, but our resources were diverted to fight the war in Iraq. The circumstances now present in Afghanistan and the region are markedly different than those that characterized our original entry in 2001. As a result, the President’s request for supplemental funding is not a reallocation of resources. It is support for a new and different war and must be assed as such.

I have repeatedly asked in various venues how the President’s new strategy would bring regional stability, the length of time, and troop levels that such a commitment requires and what our exit strategy would be. The best answer I have received thus far was from General Mullen. He said, “I think it’s going to be a while. At what level of combat, what level of troops, that’s difficult to predict right now.”

A “yes” vote on the supplemental is fundamentally an acceptance of an open-ended military commitment to Afghanistan. That is not something I can support.

WHAT IS THE EXIT STRATEGY FOR GUANTANAMO BAY?

(Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, Americans want to know and they want to know now—what is the exit strategy for Gitmo? In the dark of the night, the first Gitmo terrorist indicted for killing innocent Americans was moved to New York. The White House approved this despite the fact that 65 percent of Americans do not support closing Guantanamo and sending dangerous and deadly detainees to U.S. prisons.

It’s about time this administration started an open and honest dialogue on the future of Gitmo and inform the Congress before ferrying terrorists to America. This sneaky middle-of-the-night move shows that the administration does not want to publicly answer any of their exit strategy questions on Gitmo. Americans want, need and deserve to know exactly where these terrorists will go come next January, and we don’t want them here in the United States. We don’t need al Qaeda recruiting and training hardened criminals in our prisons.

NOTHING ABOUT COAL IS CLEAN

(Mr. QUIGLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, nothing about coal is clean. From extraction, to waste slurry, to stream contamination in Appalachia, nothing—I repeat—nothing about this energy source is clean. In order to extract coal from the ground, mountains are literally blasted apart, killing wildlife and destroying forests, contributing to erosion, flooding and pollution that hits local communities and causes severe health problems. Over 300 miles of streams in Appalachia alone have been buried or completely contaminated because of mountaintop mining.

In order to prepare the coal for burning, an overwhelming amount of water is needed to clean the coal. For every ton of coal cleaned, 20 to 40 gallons of water are used to wash the coal, creating a sludgy pollutant known as slurry. Over 90 million gallons of slurry are created every year while harvesting and preparing coal for burning. Keep in mind, we haven’t even begun to burn the stuff yet.

Green jobs are the key to economic and environmental progress in regions damaged by surface and mountaintop mining and struggling economically due to the destruction of the land. These include jobs in wind, hydroelectric and biofuel power. These jobs will give hard-hit communities a long-term future for their families instead of a short-term paycheck in exchange for the quality of life in the region forever.

BRITISH HOSPITAL PATIENTS DRINK OUT OF FLOWER VASES

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, while our President preaches the virtues of government-run health care, the Prime Minister of Great Britain is apologizing to his country for their socialized system. And no wonder—Bella Bailey went to Staffordshire Hospital for minor surgery. But things were so bad, she got so scared of the poorly trained English staff. Her fears proved correct when a nurse dropped Bailey on the floor. Her daughter said, “Meals were brought to patients who couldn’t feed themselves, but the staff wouldn’t help. Elderly men wandered the halls in a confused state. Vulnerable patients were left hungry and dirty screaming in pain without help.”

“Some patients were so thirsty, they drank from flower vases. It was like a drug addict living in a house of horrors. I was so bad, I fed patients and took them to the lavatory. It was like I was watching my mum die and others too.”

Well, Mrs. Bailey did die in that government-run hospital from injuries sustained while there. Do we really want the government controlling access to health care? Nationalized health care will have the competence of FEMA, the efficiency of the Post Office, and the compassion of the IRS.

And that’s just the way it is.

CLEAN ENERGY JOBS EARN ALBUQUERQUE A RANKING IN KEY JOB GROWTH AREAS

(Mr. HEINRICHS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HEINRICHS. Mr. Speaker, we are at a tipping point in our country’s energy policy debate. Today, Americans are realizing the potential jobs that are at stake in our country’s energy policy.

In New Mexico’s First Congressional District, Schott Solar is on track to employ 1,400 people in Albuquerque; Solar Array Ventures, another 1,000 people; hundreds have already helped build the 100-megawatt High Lonesome Mesa wind energy project; and Sandia National Laboratories continues to partner with multiple clean energy startups.

These clean energy jobs earned Albuquerque a second-place ranking in Kiplinger magazine’s 2009 listing of cities leading the country in key job growth areas, the kind of jobs that are leading America toward economic recovery.

Mr. Speaker, to realize the promise of a clean energy economy, to leave a healthy environment to our children, and to end our dangerous dependency on foreign oil, I urge Congress to take bold, decisive action on America’s energy policy.

WORKING ON BEHALF OF ORLEANS AND JEFFERSON PARISHES

(Mr. CAO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CAO. Mr. Speaker, the issues of crime and hurricane recovery are most important for Orleans and Jefferson Parishes. Yesterday I voted for the Witness Security and Protection Grant Program Act, and it passed. Law enforcement officials in my district must have the Federal resources needed to protect our citizens.

On Monday, I requested a government review of unfunded local public assistance projects that will help Louisiana move forward with delayed disaster recovery efforts. Lastly, I was able to acknowledge the diverse culture of New Orleans by cosponsoring a resolution to honor black music. It has been a productive week.

URGING THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT TO MOVE SLOWLY AND CAUTIOUSLY IN ITS RELATIONS WITH CUBA

(Mr. SIRES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SIRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak for those oppressed in Cuba that cannot speak for themselves. As the administration is moving forward with immigration talks, as the Organization of American States is welcoming Cuba, I rise to remind my colleagues in Washington and my friends abroad that when you deal with Cuba, you are not dealing with a benign regime. You are dealing with a dangerous regime. The regime’s most recent crackdown has surfaced in the oppression of religion.

In May 2008, Pastor Omar Gude Perez was arrested and charged with human trafficking. When no evidence was found to support the charges, the Cuban regime simply changed the charges. He is on trial for “counter-revolutionary conduct.” A man who has been dedicated to his religion now faces years in prison.
Last week, 30 evangelical, non-political pastors were arrested by Cuban authorities. This is a clear attack on religion by the Castro regime.

On top of these atrocities, we hear that two Castro spies may have been working among us in our government for decades. It is crucial that the United States Government move slowly and cautiously in our relationship with Cuba. In light of this, the administration must not make any further decisions regarding Cuba until a comprehensive damage assessment is completed and Congress is fully briefed.

CHINA AND AMERICA’S DEBT
(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, during a speech last week at Beijing University in China, U.S. Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner was laughed at when he attempted to assure students that the Chinese government could continue to safely invest in American debt. The largest holder of our national debt is now openly laughing at our financial situation. At the same time, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke was here on Capitol Hill calling for fiscal restraint. Every dollar spent by the government is taken from the people in taxes or borrowed against future generations.

Our Nation’s fiscal responsibility is so lacking that a developing nation snickers at the mention of sound investment in our debt. Traveling the world, begging creditor nations to allow us to continue our spending binge is not the kind of international engagement we need. Our economy will turn around because of the ingenuity of the American people, not because of out-of-control, irresponsible government spending and borrowing.

HEALTH CARE
(Mr. DeFAZIO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DeFAZIO. Republicans gave us a Medicare prescription drug benefit complete with a donut hole based on subsidies to the prescription drug industry and the prescription drug industry. Now they are at it again. They are absolutely opposed to a public plan option for health insurance, because that would make the health insurance industry compete. Their solution to the 50 million Americans without health insurance and those who are one pink slip away from losing it is tax breaks, so they can go out and buy private insurance.

Well, there is a little secret. Private insurance is exempt from antitrust laws, thanks to the Republicans, so they can and do collude. They won’t let you have a preexisting condition. They can discriminate in any way they want. They can price gouge. They can price fix. And the Republicans say that driving people to that system, not giving them a low-cost, public plan option, and making the health insurance industry more cost effective and truly competitive will help them.

Now, come on, guys. Do you really care about those 50 million people, or not?

LOWERING STANDARDS OF LIVING THROUGH THE WAXMAN-MARKEY BILL
(Mr. LUCAS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LUCAS. The Waxman-Markey bill is one of the most monumental bills that this Congress will consider. It has the potential to permanently damage the standard of living for every man, woman, and child for decades to come. Yet Speaker Pelosi and the administration want to force this bill through Congress.

This bill will tax you. It creates a massive national energy tax that will be devastating to those who live and work in rural America. It promises rural America higher energy costs, lost jobs and higher food prices. This bill will affect all of us. If you like being warm in the winter, if you like being cool in the summer, if you own a farm or a small business, if you like to eat, if you like to go anywhere, this bill will affect you.

Agriculture is squarely in the cross-hairs of this bill because it is energy intensive. That is why 40 agricultural groups, including the American Farm Bureau, have expressed opposition to it. No large farm group has endorsed it. A 1,000-page bill of this magnitude deserves thoughtful consideration and debate. Instead, Speaker Pelosi is rushing it through Congress to the detriment of all of us.

HEALTH CARE REFORM
(Mr. BUTTERFIELD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Mr. Speaker, from the creation of Medicare and Medicaid in 1965 to the reauthorization of SCHIP earlier this year, we have come a long way toward ensuring that every American has access to affordable, quality health care. These programs, Mr. Speaker, ensure that our children and the disabled and the elderly have access to health care. Now it is time to get serious and to help those people in the middle who have been left out.

Family health care costs are increasing. Families cannot afford the rising cost of health premiums, many employer-sponsored plans are providing less coverage and higher deductibles, but there are 50 million Americans with no insurance.

We must seize this opportunity to enact reforms that reduce costs, protect existing plans, preserve our choices in doctors, hospitals and care, and ensure affordable quality health care for all. I support President Obama and the Democratic leadership. We must act now.

WAXMAN-MARKEY BILL IS ALL HAT AND NO CATTLE
(Mr. NEUGEBAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Speaker, in Texas there is an old saying about the cowboy that was all hat and no cattle; in other words, he was all show and no substance.

At a time of economic hardship, Mr. Speaker, this Waxman-Markey energy bill is all tax and no energy. It is going to cost every American family a $3,100 increase in their energy costs. Farm income is expected to decrease $8 billion in the near term and almost $50 billion over the next 20 years. At a time of economic hardship, it is also going to increase the cost of buildings and construction of farm buildings. In a town hall meeting last week, Mr. Speaker, the people in the 19th Congressional District said, Congressman, please stop this cap-and-tax bill. They know that this is a plan not to produce more energy, but it is a plan to increase taxes, to take more money out of American family pockets.

Mr. Speaker, I stand for the American farmers and families and small businesses all across America. I opposed this cap-and-tax plan. The Waxman-Markey bill is all hat and no cattle.

ENERGY
(Ms. TITUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. TITUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of efforts to spur investment in clean-energy and energy-efficiency technology that will create clean-energy jobs back home in Nevada and across our country.

Investments in clean-energy technologies like solar, wind, geothermal, smart grid and advanced batteries will help the United States regain its competitive edge in a global green economy, reduce our reliance on foreign oil and improve our energy security.

Clean-energy jobs, like manufacturing solar panels and windmills and constructing new energy-efficient buildings, are jobs that can stay right here at home in the United States. But the United States is currently losing the clean-energy jobs and marketplace share to countries like China, Germany and Korea.

A thriving clean-energy economy will ensure that the United States creates a sustainable manufacturing base that will compete with the rest of the world. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to make the investments necessary to help create a booming, clean-energy economy right here in the United States.

SOLDIERS OVERSEAS SHOULD HAVE THEIR VOTES COUNTED

(Mr. FLEMING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today out of concern with the recent news that one out of every four ballots requested by military personnel and other Americans living overseas may have gone uncounted in the 2008 election. These findings were released in a recent Senate hearing.

The report claims that of 441,000 absentee ballots requested, 98,000 were claimed to be lost. Over 13,000 were rejected because of missing signatures or failure to notarize. Another 11,000 were returned as undeliverable.

I agree with Senator SCHUMER that this system needs an overhaul. While serving our country overseas, our soldiers deserve to have their votes counted and their voices heard. We need to ensure that sufficient time for ballots to reach them and have them fill them out and return them for inclusion for their vote to count.

The cornerstone of democracy, Mr. Speaker, is the right to vote. Those sacrificing to protect this right should be given every chance to participate in the electoral process.

REMEMBERING THOSE DEVASTATED BY IOWA FLOODS

(Mr. BRALEY of Iowa asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRALEY of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, one year ago today, I got in a plane and flew back home to Waterloo, Iowa, to a district and a State under water. The railroad bridge in downtown Waterloo was torn down by the raging waters of the Cedar River, and my entire State went through the worst natural disaster in our State’s history.

It is hard to believe that that much time has passed, but the work continues and the good, resilient people of Iowa continue to build, which is why Secretary Vilsack is there today announcing the latest rounds of HUD assistance to help people get back on their feet and rebuild their homes.

I will be wearing next week, in the congressional baseball game, the jersey of the Anamosa Blue Raiders. Last year, this baseball team’s entire field was under 10 feet of water, and it is a symbol of what happens when communities all over this country are devastated by natural disasters. That is why the work we do in this body is so important, and I continue to call upon people to keep in mind those who are devastated in a similar way in the years and days ahead.

KEEPING AMERICA COMPETITIVE IN THE GLOBAL ECONOMY

(Mr. REICHERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. REICHERT. Mr. Speaker, American jobs are being threatened by new proposals to tax the earnings of American employers operating in markets around the world. We cannot forget that we are in a global economy. America cannot just be a participant in this global economy, but they have to lead in this global economy. In the middle of a downturn, it makes sense to eliminate a tax like deferral that American employers need to compete in a global marketplace and create American jobs at home.

Eliminating tax incentives like deferral would send U.S. jobs overseas and almost make it impossible for us to compete with China, India and Europe. Raising taxes on the earnings of U.S. companies discourages investments at home and increases the cost of employing U.S. workers. One of the largest employers in my districts, Microsoft, said last week that raising these taxes on their foreign earnings would force them to move thousands of employees out of the United States.

Congress must help to protect, promote and create jobs at home by encouraging American employers to invest and engage in new markets.

PROTECTING AMERICAN WORKING WATERFRONTS

(Ms. PINOOGRE of Maine asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. PINOOGRE of Maine. Mr. Speaker, coastal communities across this Nation are in trouble. In Maine and in other coastal States, working waterfronts and the jobs they provide are quickly disappearing.

Working waterfronts include commercial fishing, boatyards and other businesses who need access to the water. Once these businesses close, once the waterfront stops supporting these businesses, history shows us they do not come back.

Recently, I introduced the Keep America’s Waterfronts Working Act of 2009. This bill will help communities acquire permanent access to the water and develop programs to protect working waterfronts and the jobs they provide, the backbone of our coastal communities.

A report released this week, the “State of the U.S. Ocean and Coastal Economies,” coauthored by Professor Charlie Colgan from the University of Southern Maine, found that coastal counties contributed 42 percent of the national economic output in 2007, and working waterfronts are critical to supporting those communities. We must protect working waterfronts and the jobs they provide. I would like to thank my colleagues for joining together to protect working waterfronts, and I look forward to working together to move this legislation through Congress.

WE MUST REFORM HEALTH CARE

(Mr. PAYNE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, the time has come to take decisive action on health care reform. We simply cannot afford to wait any longer. American families and small businesses have seen the cost of health care coverage steadily rise to the point where many can no longer afford to pay their premiums. We know that our system is broken when we have 46 million Americans, many of them in my home State of New Jersey, who are only one illness or one accident away from being wiped out financially.

As President Obama and the majority in Congress work to take our Nation in a new direction, we are firmly committed to making improvements in our health care system in a way which will reduce costs, give patients a patient’s choice of doctors and plans, and ensure quality, affordable health care for all.

It is important that we promote wellness by investing in prevention and educating about healthy life choices. Health care reform is an issue that we cannot afford to put on the back burner — there’s no good faith for a solution. Just saying “no,” as some in Congress have chosen to do, will only worsen the problem.

RECOGNIZING DR. TERRY BRADLEY ON THE OCCASION OF HIS RETIREMENT

(Mr. NUNES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. NUNES. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to offer my gratulation on behalf of the people of the 21st Congressional District for the lifetime service of Dr. Terry Bradley. He is retiring from his position as superintendent of the Clovis Unified School District.

I have known Terry for many years as his Representative in Congress. His hard work and commitment to the students and faculty of Clovis Unified has always impressed me. Indeed, Terry’s legacy is one that should be celebrated. During his tenure, he presided over faculty investments amounting to over $1 billion. These improvements, as well as his commitment to excellence, have made a real difference in the quality of education for the students.

While the parents and students of Clovis will miss him, Terry can leave his position with full confidence that Clovis Unified School District, a school district that has helped lead the valley into the 21st century, will continue to thrive for future generations.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

June 10, 2009
ADDRESSING GREENHOUSE GAS EMISSIONS
(Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)
Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Energy and Commerce Committee legislation that addresses greenhouse gas emissions. We have heard a lot of fear-mongering here on the floor of the House of Representatives and a lot of misinformation trying to scare voters and consumers into believing that somehow their taxes are going to go up. That is not true.
As a matter of fact, this is a carefully crafted bill that provides lots of exemptions to energy-intensive industries to trade to vulnerable industries that will really make a difference in people's lives. But, frankly, to stand still is to lose, and that is why so many companies, like Johnson & Johnson, ConocoPhillips, have endorsed this legislation.
Energy-intensive industries have endorsed this legislation because they know that if we are going to move forward and stay competitive as a country and if we are going to protect the interests of our consumers and the environment, we need a new platform. This bill provides that.
I support the legislation, urge my colleagues to do so too, and not to listen to fear-mongering.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 522 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 522
Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution, the time be in order to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 1886) to authorize democratic, economic, and social development assistance for Pakistan, to authorize security assistance for Pakistan, and for other purposes. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived except those arising under clause 9 or 10 of rule XXI. The amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Foreign Affairs now printed in the bill, modified by the amendment printed in part C of the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution, shall be considered as adopted. The bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived except those arising under clause 9 or 10 of rule XXI. The amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those arising under clause 10 of rule XXI. Notwithstanding clause 11 of rule XVIII, no amendment to an amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those printed in part C of the report of the Committee on Rules. Each such amendment to an amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those arising under clause 10 of rule XXI.

The rule on H.R. 2410 self-executes as assigned by the Committee on Rules, if offered in the bill. The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be considered as read. All points of order against the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute are waived except those arising under clause 10 of rule XXI. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. Any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion, unless the Speaker shall direct to reconsider with or without instructions.

The rule for H.R. 2410 makes in order 27 amendments listed in the Rules Committee report. Each amendment is debatable for 10 minutes, except the manager's amendment, which is debatable for 20 minutes. The rule includes a manager's amendment to resolve with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, the United States is faced with many challenges on the world stage. It is critical that Congress act forthwith to meet the challenges and provide the necessary funding to help rebuild our diplomatic capabilities abroad and mitigate the damage that was done under the previous administration's leadership.

H. Res. 522 provides for consideration of H.R. 1886, the Pakistan Enduring Assistance and Cooperation Enhancement Act of 2009, and H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011. Both bills are debatable for 1 hour each, equally divided and controlled by the Chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs. All points of order against the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute are waived except those arising under clause 10 of rule XXI. Notwithstanding clause 11 of rule XVIII, no amendment to an amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those printed in part C of the report of the Committee on Rules. Each such amendment to an amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those arising under clause 10 of rule XXI. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. Any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion, unless the Speaker shall direct to reconsider with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The rule for H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011, is the first foreign relations-related authorization bill to reflect essential democratic priorities since 1993. As such, it provides a new direction forward and vital resources to boost our diplomatic capacity. Improving our relations around the world, protect our national security, and make use of America's smart power, rather than rely on the military only solutions of past Congresses and the previous administration.

H. Res. 522 provides for consideration of H.R. 1886, the Pakistan Enduring Assistance and Cooperation Enhancement Act of 2009, and H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011. Both bills are debatable for 1 hour each, equally divided and controlled by the Chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs. It was done under the previous administration's leadership.

fulfill its core diplomatic missions in furthering our global interests and protecting our national security. In ne-eglecting diplomacy, we have missed opportunities to prevent and mitigate conflicts around the world.

Our activities are wo-fully underfunded, undermanned, and underutilized. We must rebuild our dip-loomatic capacity to meet the needs of our increasingly complex global relations. Diplomatic, economic and social assistance is a much wiser and less ex-pen$ive investment than war. Rather than relying on either hard power or soft power, we must, instead, emphasize smart power.

Promoting democracy, human rights, the rule of law and the development of civil society is a matter of leadership requiring us to think beyond unilateral military solutions and to, instead, embace a much more comprehensive approach to our relations with the international community. This rule enables us to consider legislation to do just that.

The first legislation on this rule, the Foreign Relations Act, advances crucial and laudable programs. The Department of State is authorized to hire more Foreign Service officers, ensuring that our overseas posts will be staffed with eager and knowl-dgeable workers committed to promoting American culture, values, and policies.

Critical multilateral assistance is authorized to fund our obligations to international organizations, including the United Nations and global peacekeeping operations. This effort demonstrates the United States’ commitment to working with our friends and allies as a true partner in peace and co-operation.

larly pleased with the increased funding authorization for the Peace Corps, enabling a dramatic expansion of volunteer work in nations and countries served. Peace Corps volunteer$ exemplify our national commitment to improving the world, devoting their lives to helping the world’s poorest people build communities and lift themselves out of poverty. As one of our Nation’s most treasured and effective international programs, we must ensure that it attains top quality volunteers and can reach into the farthest corners of the world.

Improved refugee and migration assistance are a critical part of this legislation. The United States has a long history of commitment to humanitarian issues, and this bill authorizes the funds necessary to improve resources and programs to effectively help families reunite and resettle.

I fully support section 235, relating to Iraqi refugees, whom the United States has a special obligation to help. There are more than 4.7 million Iraqis currently displaced within their own country and in neighboring states. Sadly, however, this situation has not improved much. And yet the principal reason, I believe, that this crisis has not received the attention that it should is because Iraqis are not living in refugee camps. Instead, they are a mobile population scattered throughout the region. This fact alone has made this humanitarian crisis virtually invisible to the international community. The U.S. is the primary host for those Iraqis who remain stranded, jobless, and deprived of essential services, with conditions worsening by the day, this deepening crisis only threatens to further destabilize the entire region. Section

235 of this legislation is an important step towards fulfilling our obligation to assist the Iraqi people recover from years of war and conflict.

If a picture is really worth 1,000 words, then all one must do is look into the face of the Iraqi refugee, as I have, who has had a family member murdered, kidnapped or tortured, and their own life threatened, to know that the United States must respond. I’m, therefore, grateful that my language, introduced in legislation, was included in this bill.

Mr. Speaker, this rule also includes

H.R. 1886, the Pakistan Enduring Assistance and Cooperation Enforcement Act. This legislation takes our Pakistan policy in a new direction, affirming the United States’ commitment to a sustained partnership with Pakistan.

Since 2001, the United States has provided over $12 billion to Pakistan, without specific goals or objectives.

Frankly, the situation has only gotten worse since that time.

By providing over $6 billion in 4 years in democratic, economic and social development assistance, this bill demonstrates our determination to help

Pakistan build a stable, democratic and prosperous future.

This funding will provide critical resources for Pakistan to address the fundamental needs of its citizens.

Through the Pakistan Counterinsur-gency Capabilities Fund, the United States is also committed to helping

Pakistan combat terrorism and the Taliban insurgency. At the same time, mindful of the past history of neglecting oversight, this legislation provides a range of transparency, evaluation, and accountability standards to ensure that our money and efforts are being applied effectively and efficiently.

Mr. Speaker, as I am concerned about the situation of Iraqi refugees, I am also concerned about the situation of Pakistan’s refugees. According to news reports, more than 3 million people in Pakistan’s northwest region have been uprooted due to ongoing fighting. Like the Iraqi refugee crisis, the Pakistan refugee problem, if not handled properly, could become a ticking timebomb with ramifications far beyond what we can conceive today.

It is imperative that the mistakes of the last administration with regard to Iraq are not made again. I am pleased that the United States has recently committed $200 million on top of a previous commitment of $110 million, but we must not think that this is the end of our responsibility. The United States must seize this opportunity and implement a comprehensive plan to address this growing humanitarian crisis.

Mr. Speaker, this is legislation that paves the way to considering essential legislation to put our foreign policy on the right path towards improving our relations around the world. I urge adoption of the rule and passage of the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank my good friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS), for the time, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

First I would like to say a word about the session of the General Assembly of the Organization of American States, OAS, held last week.

It was an embarrassment. Fidel Castro in Cuba wants the U.S. to apologize to him for having kept the U.S. market and billions of dollars in financing from him and for having denied him full diplomatic recnognition for decades.

He also wants the international community to kneel before him and apologize, which is what the OAS did last week. Fidel Castro has been recruiting advocates, spies, defenders, cronies, and servants for years. The ideological and psychological fascination and dependency that Hugo Chavez has on Fidel Castro has allowed him to utilize Chavez’s billions of petro dollars to purchase many important defenders. It is part of the public record that a suitcase of Chavez cash heading to Mrs.

Kirchner in Argentina was recently interdicted by the Argentine government before reaching its intended destination.

Castro also serves as a banker for il-llicit money possessed by those who seek to avoid detection by the anti-laundering mechanisms set up by the international community. It matters not if the money’s source is political corruption or narco-trafficking, the scourge of Latin America.

Through his mastery of the semantic of anti-American Marxism-Leninism, he has alsoconned others into being his spies. No other state sponsor of terrors—no other state, in fact—has been successful in committing so many defector Major Roberto Ortega.

Gregory Fronius. And just last week, Walter and Gwendolyn Myers, a long-term State Department official and his wife with access to classified documents, were arrested for spying for their beloved hero, the Cuban tyrant.

Unfortunately, the Obama administration’s diplomatic incompe- tence and its appeasement of the en- emy, Castro, is unprec- edented. While the Soviet Union used to send Castro billions of dollars and receiv- ers orders from him.

What the world witnessed, first at the April Summit of the Americas and then at last week’s meeting of the OAS, was a culmination of years of preparation in the purchase and cul- tivation of advocates and defenders by Fidel Castro. Castro’s defenders know full well that chapter II, article 3d of the Charter of the Organization of American States requires the existence of representative democracy in all of the countries of our hemisphere and that the Inter-American Democratic Charter of 2001 carefully spells out the collective steps to be taken when an American republic’s democracy is even threatened. They know that under Castro Cuba is a per- sonal landholding or homestead, a to- talitarian fiefdom owned by one man with a brother who enjoys the title of head of State and carefully carries out his brother’s orders.

At the OAS meeting of last week, we wit- nessed an example of the Obama ad- ministration’s diplomatic incompe- tence and its appeasement of the en- emy, Castro. The admin- istration went along and agreed to vo- late the OAS Charter and the OAS Inter-American Democratic Charter in an action that constituted a grotesque and unmerited betrayal of the op- pressed people of Cuba.

The Obama administration says that the OAS resolution was a great victory because even though paragraph 1 of the “resolved” clause unilaterally lifted the exclusion of the Cuban military dic- tatorship from the OAS, the admin- istration was allowed to initiate a proc- ess of dialogue to reenter the OAS in accordance with the practices, pur- poses, and principles of the OAS. In other words, in the first sentence, the OAS ripped up and threw in the gar- bage can the practices, purposes, and principles of the OAS, including its charter and the Inter-American Demo- cratic Charter. And then in the next sentence, it invited the Cuban military dictatorship back in in accordance with their own principles and practices, pur- poses, and principles of the OAS. Some victory. I men- tion this in the context of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act because the American taxpayer should not be paying for almost 60 percent of the pu- trid embarrassment which is the OAS.

I recognize that on funding inter- national organizations, the administra- tion will get its way, just like the Bush administra- tion. But whenever someone in the OAS would propose ending the exclusion of the Cuban military dictatorship and the administration would simply say, That’s a nonstarter. But here is the heart of the U.S.- Cuba policy: The U.S. Congress must continue to condition access by the Cuban regime to the billions of dollars in U.S. tourism and massive invest- ment in trade financing to the libera- tion of all political prisoners, without excep- tions; the legalization of all polit- ical parties, without exceptions; labor unions and the press; and the sched- uling of multiparty elections. That is critical leverage for a democratic tran- sition to take place in Cuba when Fidel Castro dies, for he is the ultimate source of absolute personal totalitarian power in that enslaved island, like a modern day Caligula or Nero, and that moment is approaching.

We must keep in mind the effect of unilateral concessions, such as last week’s shameful OAS action on Fidel Castro. How does he react to such uni- lateral concessions? The repression is more intense than ever; the brutality, more savage than ever. The alliance of the Iranian dictatorship, the Syrian regime, Middle Eastern ter- rorists, and with the North Korean dic- tatorship is closer than ever. That is what must be kept in mind about uni- lateral concessions to the Cuban mili- tary dictatorship.

Now, specifically with regard to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, earlier in the year Secretary Clinton testified before the House Foreign Re- lations Committee that she had chal- lenged the State Department to reform insurance companies to recover com- pense increased spending by 35 percent without increased transparency, ac- countability, and efficiency.

This legislation will also increase U.S. taxpayer-funded activities. The second paragraph 2, the dictator- ship was allowed to initiate a proc- cess of dialogue to reenter the OAS in accordance with the practices, pur- poses, and principles of the OAS. In other words, in the first sentence, the OAS ripped up and threw in the gar- bage can the practices, purposes, and principles of the OAS, including its charter and the Inter-American Demo- cratic Charter. And then in the next sentence, it invited the Cuban military dictatorship back in in accordance with their own principles and practices, pur- poses, and principles of the OAS. Some victory. I men- tion this in the context of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act because colleagues of the challenge to U.S. national security posed by the situation in that country.

We cannot allow al Qaeda and any other terrorist group that threatens our national security interests to operate with impunity in the tribal regions or any other part of Pakistan. Nor can we permit the Pakistani State and its nuclear arsenal to be taken over by the Taliban. H.R. 3886 was designed to address these threats by supporting democracy, enhancing U.S. economic assistance, and providing the Pakistani military with the tools they need to fight the terrorists.

I am pleased we could work out a consensus on this important bill with our colleagues on the Committee on Armed Services as reflected in the amendment made in order by the rule. And I’m also pleased that the rule makes in order a Republican substitute. This way we can discuss the best way forward to ensure that we get the results we need in this ongoing effort to combat those who threaten our Armed Forces, our allies, and even our homeland.

I urge all my colleagues to support the rule.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. I thank my good friend for yielding.

I rise in opposition to the rule.

Let me just say at the outset, Mr. Speaker, in the 1990s, I served as chairman of the International Operations and Human Rights Subcommittee, at first having served as ranking member to Tom Lantos. Then when the House went Republican, we switched and I became the chairman of that committee. And one of the sensibilities of that committee was to write the Foreign Relations Act, the State Department Reauthorization Act, for the country. And we worked very hard, Mr. Lantos and I, very diligently in crafting a bill that was, A, truly bipartisan and, B, open to virtually every amendment that Members wanted to offer.

I remember bringing a bill to the floor. Mr. Speaker, where every day Members just had to file their amendments in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, a preparatory thing. So in the morning we would wake up and find out what amendments might be offered, and then we would deal and dispatch positively or negatively with those amendments. The process was open, transparent, and fair.

Today we have a very much closed rule, except on matters where there is consensus. Sure, there are some Republican amendments. But on areas where there is significant and fundamental disagreement, especially an amendment that has not been offered to offer to authorize the office for Global Women's Issues, I had been precluded that opportunity. And I want to say to my colleagues I didn’t do that when I chaired the subcommittee, and I worked very hard in a bipartisan way with my friends, and I do consider you on the other side of the aisle friends, to ensure that we all got to express our voice and vote on things that mattered, that we all had an opportunity to express ourselves.

In Committee, I offered an amendment to establish a Global Office on Women Foreign Affairs and a bipartisan, forty-one-to-thirty-four vote. Every Democrat voted against it; every Republican voted for it. That legislation would have established a new Office for Global Women's Issues led by an ambassador-at-large, designed to coordinate and advise on activities, policies, programs, and funding related to women's empowerment internationally. The amendment would promote activities designed to expand educational opportunities and job training for women, equal pay for equal work, microfinancing and microenterprise programs for women, property inheritance rights for women, an improvement of maternal mortality, expand programs to combat forced abortions and forced sterilization, to enhance our efforts in the area of sex and labor trafficking particularly of women and other forms of violence against women, seeking an end to genital mutilation, stop child marriage, and promote changes in male attitudes and behavior that are detrimental to women. That was all prescribed in the legislation, and obviously other things could be included as well, consistent with the human rights that all human life, Mr. Speaker, is sacred and precious and worthy of protection regardless of age, sex, race, color, creed, disability, wantedness, or condition of dependency. My amendment sought to hold less-than-unborn children and their mothers from the violence of abortion.

The Smith amendment is abortion neutral and states that the new office shall not engage in activities to author the laws or the policies of foreign countries with regard to how abortion is regulated or permitted. Abortion neutral. I would like it to be a pro-life office that says it time to empower and embrace and enfranchise unborn children.

I say to my colleagues, we live in 2009. We no longer have any doubts about the humanity of an unborn child. Unborn children are just like you and I except they're young, they're immature, and they're dependent. And their human rights are violated with impunity not just in this country but around the world. Sadly, the Obama administration, and I say this with great sadness that we are on our way to becoming the abortion President. Virtually everything he has done through Executive order and through appointments and through other policies promote the killing of unborn children and the wounding of their mothers.

So I rise in opposition to this rule, Mr. Speaker. Whether this body chose to vote up or down on my amendment, we should have had the opportunity. It saddens me greatly because, again, I have great affection for the chairman, Chairman BERMAN, and for his staff, with whom I have worked very closely on human rights issues. This is a human rights issue.

There could be a consensus about the new office that’s being created, that has already been created, and that this gives statutory affirmation to for women's issues. But, unfortunately, we will now have that opportunity.

I will remind my colleagues that Alveda King, Dr. Martin Luther King's niece—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, Dr. Martin Luther King’s niece, Alveda King, who two weeks ago founded an organization called the Silent No More Awareness Campaign, and she speaks out and says that this is the new civil rights movement, protecting the unborn child but equally protecting women from abortion. It is violence against women. It is violence against children.

The new Global Office on Women’s Issues sought to at least neutral, I would say affirm the unborn but at least neutral when it comes to respect unborn human life.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Colorado (Mr. POLIS), my colleague and a good member of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. POLIS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of the rule and H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011. I would like to thank Chairman BERMAN and the Foreign Affairs Committee for their continued insight, leadership, and their focus on diplomacy in the realm of foreign affairs and for bringing this much-needed reform legislation to the House floor.

Mr. Speaker, during the Bush administration, the Department of Defense acted as our primary foreign liaison, much to the detriment of our relationships worldwide. This bill corrects the damage done over the past 8 years by empowering the State Department with much-needed resources that will once again make diplomacy the centerpiece of our outreach effort.

This bill authorizes funding for the State Department and USAID to help prevent, navigate, and peacefully resolve foreign crises. This bill strengthens our own Nation by putting forth the image of America that we want the world to see: a hardworking nation rooted in tolerance and innovation. It reflects our commitment to intellectual diplomacy and unity the United States to lead by example.

For instance, by doubling the amount of volunteers in the Peace Corps, we can double our response to humanitarian and international development needs. By creating the Senator Paul Simon Study Abroad Foundation, we would allow more students, regardless of their economic background, to experience foreign cultures.

This legislation creates 1,500 foreign service jobs at the State Department with another 700 at USAID over the course of fiscal years 2010 and 2011. It funds language training programs, sorely neglected for years due to underfunding.

As the Representative of the Second District of Colorado, we have a large Tibetan and Tibetan Buddhist community, and I'm particularly appreciative that this bill establishes a Tibet section in the American Embassy in Beijing and a United States consulate in Lhasa, Tibet. These offices will follow political, economic, and social developments inside the country and report on human rights. It also establishes a Tibet Council that will enhance cultural exchange possibilities for American students and develop increased understanding of the region as a whole.

Another crucial element of modernizing the State Department is fighting the discrimination against the LGBT community worldwide, including in Iraq. This legislation requires the State Department to monitor and track violence, criminalization, and restrictions on fundamental freedoms, consistent with U.S. law. It requires the State Department to demand foreign governments to change or repeal discriminatory laws that criminalize homosexuality as well as requiring reports on related violence and discrimination. This will ensure that our foreign counterparts heed our rejection of intolerance and ensure that all people are granted the dignity they deserve.

Mr. Speaker, let me applaud H.R. 1886, the Pakistan Enduring Assistance and Cooperation Enhancement, or PEACE, Act. It demonstrates America's commitment to foreign diplomacy and codifies the principle that social and economic development is critical to fighting terrorism and promoting peace.

Both bills bring to mind T.H. White's idea that "might is not right." Military intervention is not as strong a diplomatic tool as fostering understanding.

I urge my colleagues to support and vote "yes" on the rule and the bill.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE).

Mr. ROYCE. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, let me say that Pakistan is at a very critical juncture. We have a large number of students, and we have a weak government with nuclear weapons.

This Pakistan bill is a good attempt to guide our engagement in Pakistan in a way that gives us the best chance to see that our aid is spent in a constructive and responsible fashion, which hasn't been the case. I commend its author, Chairman BERMAN.

As to the rule, I think it is problematic. The State Department authorization bill, quite simply, spends money we don't have, over a third increase at a time when we're borrowing money from China and elsewhere. Amendments to cut this amount were not made in order. I think that was a mistake.

I am very disappointed, let me add, though, at the addition done by the Rules Committee of a flawed trade provision. Don't get me wrong. Trade can do far, far more than aid for Pakistan's economic development and social stability, which is in our interest. The problem is that this provision is far too restrictive and burdensome as to do any good. In fact, it may be harmful to trade. At a time when Pakistan is perhaps the greatest threat facing us, this is no time for window dressing and business as usual. This preferential trade provision as it came out of Rules Committee is simply unacceptable.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee (Mr. BERMAN).

Mr. BERMAN. I again thank my friend from Florida for yielding me some additional time.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to use this time to deal with the points made by my friend from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART) and then more substantially to the issue raised by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMYTH).

Mr. DIAZ-BALART cited a letter signed by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretary of Defense that was sent a number of weeks ago, long before a series of changes were made in this bill. At about the same time, we had a very elaborate resolution of disapproval process for the Presidential determinations. That has been struck. We had a high level of standard vital to national security interests. That has been struck. We had a great dispute that was existing over how the Pakistan Counterinsurgency Cooperation Fund should work. Those issues have all been worked out with the House Armed Services Committee. The House Armed Services Committee has worked through all of these issues with us. They are reflected in the Pakistan bill. This is the committee to whom the Secretary's letter was addressed. A number of changes have been made. My friend's comments relate more to the Pentagon's view of this bill before all those changes were made than they do now.

The first thing was to put together this bill to say we are not going to use this piece of legislation to change the substantive law on the issue that is so controversial for which disagreements are so strong in this House. This is not going to be a vehicle for changing the law. As the President noted, the subject of the groups came with a compelling case—the pro-choice groups—that we should include a provision in this bill that prohibits any President in the future from imposing an executive order, such as the Mexico policy, which I said I would love to. I support that position, but we're not going to use this bill to do it.

The gentleman from New Jersey, in his heart, is not truly driving at the Office of Global Women's Issues. This is an office that, in one form or another, has been around since 1975. Their purpose is to promote education for women and girls around the world and to promote political empowerment, though, at the addition done by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ROYCE).

the pro-choice community regarding this issue, there is no basis for saying that this bill is defective because it doesn't serve either side's agenda on this particular issue.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUTRON).

Mr. BUTRON of Indiana. I thank my colleague for yielding.

I had three amendments that were brought before the Rules Committee yesterday, and for the life of me, I can't figure out why the Rules Committee didn't make these amendments in order. Let me just talk to you about these three amendments. Then I'd like for the Rules Committee to comment on them, if they would.

First of all, there is a man named Benon Sevan, who has been indicted in the Oil-for-Food scandal with Saddam Hussein. Saddam Hussein was kicking millions of dollars to this guy in the Oil-for-Food scandal. This guy has been indicted. He is hiding in Cyprus right now, and the U.N., with our money, is going to pay his legal bills, and they're almost $1 million already.

Why should the American taxpayer be paying the legal bills of Mr. Sevan, who was involved in the Oil-for-Food scandal that we all know about? Why should the United States taxpayer be paying his legal fees, especially when he is hiding out in Cyprus?

None of the amendments, and I hope you'll explain to me why the American taxpayer should be paying for that.

The second amendment deals with liquidated assets that we give to enterprises around the world. We give hundreds of millions of dollars to organizations around the world to help the economies of various countries. When those enterprise funds and organizations are liquidated, they take that money out of the liquidations or into foundations or into other organizations within those countries. Right now, there is $900 million that is sitting out there of American taxpayer money that is going to foundations in other countries, and we don't believe all of that money should go there, because it is not for its intended purpose. So, if they want to do that, we think we should get at least half of our money back, which would be $450 million.

I can't figure out why the Rules Committee wouldn't want to get at least half of our money back that's not being used for its intended purpose. It makes no sense to me, so I hope they'll explain that to me.

Lastly, Jerusalem in Israel is our best ally in the Middle East. Since the 1967 war, Israel has maintained that united Jerusalem is the indivisible, eternal capital of Israel. On November 14 of 2005, Congress mandated that the embassy be moved to Jerusalem. We mandated that our embassy be moved from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem in 2005, but we did give the President waiver authority under certain circumstances. Every single year, there has been a waiver granted that does not allow our embassy to be moved to Jerusalem.

I think that's wrong. It's time to change that. My amendment would have said that we move our embassy and that we start building an embassy in Jerusalem now just as it was proposed and passed by this Congress in 2005.

So I would like for my Democratic colleagues on the Rules Committee to explain to me why these three amendments were not made in order: one dealing with something we've already done, which was to order our embassy in Israel to be moved to Jerusalem. We've already ordered that.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. BUTRON of Indiana. I hope you will explain.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. KLEIN), my colleague and fellow Floridian.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. I thank the Congressman.

Mr. Speaker. I rise to support the rule and the underlying legislation, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act of 2009. This bill will allow us to advance our foreign policy and our national security goals, and I believe very strongly in those goals.

I would also like to briefly speak about one provision in the bill that will help to ensure the safety of many Americans. As many of us know, June 1 is the beginning of the hurricane season, and there are many ways to be prepared. Hurricane hunter planes, used by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and by the Air Force, fly into hurricane areas to more accurately predict where a hurricane is going. However, certain countries are not keeping their planes to fly into their airspace. If one country obstructs our hurricane preparedness efforts, it could be the difference between life and death. This legislation puts in place measures so that the State Department can resolve this issue as soon as possible and can help protect our Americans.

I would like to thank the chairman for allowing us to work on this issue and on all of the others with me and with my colleagues. I urge my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying legislation.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, with regard to the point made by the distinguished chairman as to the strings on the military aid to Pakistan, I hope you'll expect that that will be engaged in during the debate with the ranking member, who very clearly in the Rules Committee pointed out that the strings are still excessive.

I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. LEE).

Mr. LEE of New York. I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the rule and the underlying bill. The legislation we're set to consider today is the latest demonstration of Washington's failure to understand how the middle class lives in these difficult economic times.

Try, for instance, to explain the logic in this bill. Why does the administration send overseas foreign service officers to the workers in my district who are either taking pay cuts or who are losing benefits as their families in my district are doing their best to make ends meet. When Washington spends money, it does not have to fund these salary increases. It is not just the disconnect on spending that is cause for concern.

In the last month alone, gas prices in my district have been up over 41 cents. These are resources coming from individuals who are struggling in my district to make ends meet. Now Democratic leaders are pushing for an ambitious national cap-and-trade tax. This new energy tax will cost between $200 and $300 a month for struggling families. This affects not only families but small businesses, ranchers and farmers.

I can't think of a worse way to deal with our pressing energy needs than to have a tax situation.

We need to be looking at an all-of-the-above strategy, be it nuclear power, wind or solar. We need not be looking at trying to tax right now, which will push businesses further away and which will create a loss of jobs in our communities. Whether it's the excessive spending in the measure we are considering today or whether it's this new national energy tax, Washington continues to grow more and more out of touch with middle-class America and with the families of my district.

I urge my colleagues to vote down the rule and to oppose the underlying bill.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, how much time do both of us have?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) has 6½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART) has 7 minutes remaining.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I would inquire of my friend if he has any additional speakers.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Yes.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Then I would reserve at this time and would allow that you go forward.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Thank you.

I yield 2 minutes again to the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. I thank my good friend for yielding.

I just want to say to my pro-life friends on the Democrat side of the aisle: think consequences.

In late April, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton testified one of our hearings—and this is the question I posed to her—Is the Obama administration
Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to this rule. I am very disappointed that the Rules Committee did not rule my amendment in order. My amendment would have required the State Department to wait for a response from the CIA before issuing a visa to an applicant when a Security Advisory Opinion has been requested.

National security is a primary function of the executive branch, not the Congress. I'm talking, Mr. Speaker, about the relationship with what Colin Powell described as the most important bilateral relationship that we have in the world. And I hope very much that at the end of the day, we will be able to get it right.

I would like to take my time to talk about just one of those very important bilateral relationships that we have, and that is the relationship with what Colin Powell described as the most important relationship that we have in the world, the relationship with Indonesia.

Now, when we look at the changes that have taken place over the past 11 years in Indonesia, it is absolutely remarkable and extraordinarily impressive. The 32-year reign of Suharto came to an end in 1998, and since that time, we have seen democracy take hold and build.

We all know that democracy is a work in progress. We in America know that our democracy continues to be a work in progress and Indonesia’s is as well. The challenge of ensuring that the military comes under civilian rule is one with which they’re still grappling. And if you think about this country, 17,000 different islands and hundreds of languages and cultures, and yet they have been able to cobble together what President Yudhoyono described to us of as the convergence of modernity, Islam, and democracy.

Mr. SMITH, the distinguished ranking member in opposition to this rule because Mr. DIAZ-BALART has pointed out so well, there are some important amendments that some of my colleagues have spoken about that were not made in order. So I’m going to urge my colleagues to join with us in underscoring in the managers’ amendment to develop and implement a comprehensive strategy to address global hunger and food security, issues very close to my heart and also a priority for the Committee.

A wide range of federal departments and agencies have jurisdiction over policies and programs addressing global hunger and food security, often lacking coordination and a coherent vision. A comprehensive strategy will increase the impact of the resources we invest in these programs and ensure that U.S. policies and programs contribute in a more substantial way to reducing global hunger and increasing food security around the world.

Advancing such goals is not just a humanitarian and development priority, it also strengthens our national security. Every child who receives a meal in school, every farmer who can make a decent living from the land, every mother who raises a well-nourished child, every family that has hope for the future creates a more stable country, region and world, less prone to recruitment by those who hate us.

I salute the Chairman and the Committee for including this provision in the managers’ amendment and in the House bill.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida, Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on adoption of House Resolution 522 will be followed by 5-minute votes on suspension of the rules on House Resolution 453 and motion to suspend the rules on House Resolution 454.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were,—yeas 238, nays 183, not voting 12, as follows:

Messrs. POSEY, ROGERS of Alabama,
SCALISE, PETRI, MANZULLO and BARTON of Texas changed their vote from "yea" to "nay." So the resolution was agreed to. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Ms. Cantor, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has agreed to without amendment a bill of the House of the following title:

H.J. Res. 40. Joint resolution to honor the achievements and contributions of Native Americans to the United States, and for other purposes.

RECOGNIZING AMERICORPS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The unfinished business is the vote on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 453, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. TONKO) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 453.

This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 359, nays 60, not voting 14, as follows:

RECOGNIZING 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF NATIONAL CENTER FOR MISSING AND EXPLOITED CHILDREN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The unfinished business is the vote on the motion to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 454, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Tonko) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 454.

The result of the vote was announced as completed, and a record was ordered to be taken.

... (continued text)
protect our security interests around the globe. They and their families deserve our deepest respect and gratitude. But we should not expect the military to shoulder the entire burden.
The State Department and our other civil and foreign affairs agencies have a critical role to play in protecting U.S. national security. Diplomacy, development, and defense are the three key pillars of our U.S. national security policy. By wisely investing resources to strengthen our diplomatic capabilities, we can prevent conflicts before they start and head off conditions that lead to failed states.
For years we have failed to provide the State Department with the resources it desperately needs to pursue its core missions. With the expansion of U.S. diplomatic responsibilities in the 1990s, and the more recent demands of Iraq and Afghanistan, the Foreign Service has been strained to the breaking point. Sixteen percent of all positions are unfilled. One in nine positions overseas is vacant.
As Secretary of Defense Robert Gates recently stated: “It has become clear that America’s civilian institutions of diplomacy and development have been chronically undermanned and underfunded for far too long.”
The legislation before us today, Mr.
Chairman, takes an important first step in correcting that situation. It supports President Obama’s request for funding increases for 1,900 new staff, including at least 750 Foreign Service of-cers; 332 of these positions will be used to immediately expand our diplomatic presence in Afghanistan, Pakitan and other strategic areas. A further 213 positions will be dedicated to improving and expanding training in critical needs languages such as Arabic, Chinese, Hindi, and Urdu.
The bill also provides resources requested by the administration for significant hiring of new public diplomacy officers, arms control experts, counterterrorism specialists.
And the bill has important provisions to promote more strategic thinking in the State Department and help the Foreign Service transition from traditional diplomatic framework to a more expedientive one.
To help ensure the Department can continue to attract the best and brightest and retain these professionals over the long term, H.R. 2410 clears the pay gap that currently results in a 21 percent pay cut when junior Foreign Service officers leave Washington on assignment.
The bill also authorizes funds to pay our full dues and all recognized arrearges to the United Nations.
The legislation supports a significant expansion of the Peace Corps, an increase in international broadcasting activities, a vigorous public diplomacy effort, and a strengthened arms control and nonproliferation bureau at the State Department, which will soon be under the head of our dear colleague,
Mrs. Tauscher.
In addition, the bill creates a new foundation to significantly increase the number of American students studying abroad, enhances U.S. efforts to help Mexico and other Latin American countries reduce drug violence, and addresses a number of key human democracy issues around the world.
H.R. 2410 also reforms our system of export controls for military technology, improves oversight of U.S. security assistance, and requires a report to Congress on actions taken by the United States to maintain Israel’s qualitative military edge.
This legislation is supported by a wide range of organizations, from the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers, on one hand, to Human Rights Watch and Amnesty International on the other. From the Aerospace Industries Association, the Sat-elite Industry Association, on one end, and the Peace Corps Association, Refugees International, and the Genocide Intervention Network on the other, the Save Darfur Council, Church World Service, and the American Council on Education, among others, to public and pri-vatized efforts to support the major foundations to significantly increase interest payments alone, not for the risen to about $560 billion, again, for interest payments alone, not for the riddle of our debt payments that will have to be made.
Our deficit in the coming fiscal year, 2010, is now projected to total an estimated $1.3 trillion. Yet the funding levels proposed by this bill seem oddly detached from the reality that our families are facing today and that our Nation is facing.
Both in committee markup and at the Rules Committee, I offered amendments that would have capped increases for next year at 3.7 percent, a 2008 annual rate of inflation. This amendment would have saved taxpayer dollars, more than $40 billion in authorized funds. That amendment, again, would have saved American taxpayers more than $2.8 billion, with a B, in authorized funds.
Unfortunately, this measured, cali-ibrated approach was rejected twice in favor of the largesse in this spending bill.
In trying to justify the enormous spending increases in this bill, supporters paint a picture of a hollowed-out shell of a State Department suffering from years of neglect. Yet, ac-
Department employees are hard-working patriots, they are the ones who should be upset about absenteeism in others. The bill before us today does not address such questions, nor does it build on earlier inquiries such as the ones I have cited. Instead, supporters of the bill follow arguments that unfilled State Department vacancies. And these arguments, too, Mr. Chairman, do not bare careful scrutiny. Most of the so-called “vacancies” are the result of shifting personnel to high-priority posts rather than cuts in funding.

Furthermore, the State Department always shows unfilled positions on their books because those numbers are the result of our overseas posts’ self-identified needs rather than being a budget-driven number. It is a way of saying that they would like more employees and more funding. What agency wouldn’t? I expect that all Americans would identify very significant un- funded opportunities in our homes and our families and our budgets.

Moreover, at a time when we need to cut the deficit, in just one little-noticed instance, this bill bypasses an opportunity to transfer several hundred million dollars to the U.S. Treasury to help us pay down our national debt. In fact, an amendment offered by my friend from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) was not made in order by the rule.

Mr. BURTON’s amendment would have required half of the funds of U.S.-funded enterprises abroad be turned over to our U.S. Treasury when they close down their operations. By remaining silent on the disposition of such funds, Mr. Chairman, this bill would instead allow loosely overseen so-called “legacy institutions” to take possession of all of those funds. This bill prefers to focus on creating new U.S.-funded foundations and offices that will add hundreds of millions of dollars with no corresponding benefits to the taxpayers over the coming years.

And when it comes to policy issues, Mr. Chairman, this bill does not set the priorities that we believe would best serve our Nation. Not only does this bill provide close to $2 billion in funding for the United Nations—not including peacekeeping—without requiring any reform, but it also authorizes the payment of all claimed U.N. arrears or back payments. Why should American taxpayers be forced to write a blank check to the U.N.? Why not demand specific returns on our investments? Instead, efforts to leverage our contributions to secure concrete, systematic and comprehensive reforms through the U.N. system were rejected by both the Foreign Affairs Committee and in Rules.

This bill provides an inexplicable authorization to pay a higher rate for U.N. peacekeeping than even the U.N. is charging us. The bill’s assessment rate could result in the U.S. paying, in 1 year alone, more than $100 million for U.N. peacekeeping above that which the U.N. requires us to pay.

The bill also fails to take any action to address endemic corruption at the United Nations. In fact, not only does the underlying bill and the manager’s amendment remain silent on the U.N.’s misuse of American taxpayer funds for activities contrary to U.S. interests, but an amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana—again, Mr. BURTON—which sought to prevent U.S. taxpayer dollars from paying for the legal fees of corrupt U.N. officials was rejected. He vetoed the con-sidered because today, Mr. Chairman, the U.N. has decided to pay the legal fees, possibly almost $900,000, of Benon Sevan, who ran the U.N.’s corrupt and disastrous Oil-for-Food program which was supposed to help innocent Iraqis but instead was exploited by Saddam’s regime. U.S. Federal and state prosecutors have charged Sevan with bribery and conspiracy to commit wire fraud. But this bill before us does nothing to protect taxpayer dollars from bankrolling and rewarding corruption at the U.N.

The underlying bill also helps foster the culture of corruption at the United Nations by failing to leverage U.S. contributions to the U.N. Development Program to bring such efforts under the jurisdiction of the U.N. Ethics Office.

The U.NDP, to which the U.S. contributes $100 million or more per year, continues to be the poster child for mismanagement, corruption, and waste, from Zimbabwe to Uganda, to Burma to North Korea. In fact, the United Nations Development Program had to pull out of North Korea after reports emerged that development aid was being diverted to the North Korean dictatorship. Now, unbelievably, UNDP is returning to North Korea with essentially no meaningful protections to prevent U.S. taxpayer dollars from again benefiting Kim Jong II and his corrupt cronies. Our Treasury Department lost no time in collecting an agency to retrieve over $7 million in U.S. taxpayer dollars mismanaged by UNDP in Afghanistan.

We might never know about UNDP’s corruption and mismanagement without the help of brave whistleblowers. Unfortunately, whistleblowers have few protections at the U.N., and the UNDP has reportedly retaliated against a number of them, including the one who exposed their operations in North Korea.

Mr. Chairman, this bill should do more in safeguarding our constituents’ hard-earned dollars. Nowhere are U.N. failures which undermine U.S. interests clearer than with respect to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency, UNRWA. UNRWA has a strictly humanitarian mandate to provide aid to Palestinian refugees, but it continues to compromise its mandate and our U.S. taxpayer dollars. It does so by emitting propaganda against Israel in the hands of Hamas, the regime. UNRWA’s payor, saying, I don’t see that as a crime. No one can guarantee that over hundreds of millions of dollars sent to UNRWA will not end up in the hands of Hamas. Yet, this bill makes a see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil approach, refusing to demand accountability and transparency for our investments.

Supporters of this bill will claim that it strengthens nonproliferation activities at the Department of State. However, the pertinent section of the bill contains contradictory statements regarding the Department’s nonproliferation and arms control infrastructure, for possible dissolution, the bureau at the U.S. State that was instrumental in the dismantlement of Libya’s nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons program.

This also is the one bureau that has consistently pressed for greater disclosure by the North Korean regime on the totality of its nuclear activities.

And on the issue of North Korea, Mr. Chairman, this bill and our Congress have remained largely silent on this, one of the most grave foreign policy crises currently confronting our Nation. North Korea’s leader is preparing to test yet another long-range missile which could reach Alaska, Hawaii, and the west coast possibly as early as next week, yet, an amendment I introduced in Rules to address the escalating crisis in North Korea’s nuclear brinkmanship was rejected.

This amendment would have re-listed North Korea as a state sponsor of terrorism, and nuclear tests, but never fully enforced. It contains consequences as called for by the administration’s North Korean Special Envoy UNRWA’s Commissioner-General says she doesn’t even consider Hamas to be a foreign terrorist organization. And her predecessor admitted that members of Hamas were on UNRWA’s payroll, saying, I don’t see that as a crime. No one can guarantee that over hundreds of millions of dollars sent to UNRWA will not end up in the hands of Hamas. Yet, this bill makes a see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil approach, refusing to demand accountability and transparency for our investments.

Supporters of this bill will claim that it strengthens nonproliferation activities at the Department of State. However, the pertinent section of the bill contains contradictory statements regarding the Department’s nonproliferation and arms control infrastructure, for possible dissolution, the bureau at the U.S. State that was instrumental in the dismantlement of Libya’s nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons program.
Some might ask, what does this have to do with my constituents? Isn’t that why we have a strong military to protect us? Isn’t that their role? The simple answer is that our diplomats and our development professionals are not a luxury, nor a fancy affectation of power. These are our aristocrats sipping tea while wearing striped pants and ascots. These are people who are on the front line of our defense. Not the Army, not the Navy, not the Air Force, the Marines, or the Coast Guard; it is the Service that lives always full time out in the ugly and dangerous parts of the world representing our interests, building alliances, monitoring and reporting on events that may affect our security, and advancing our cause and interests. These are the men and women of our military who are without a doubt our first responders.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, at a time when our country faces a range of threats in our own hemisphere, this bill does not set out a comprehensive approach to those threats. The bill also displays a willingness to put our national security interests in the hands of the vaguely defined “international community.”

Mr. Chairman, because of the fundamental weaknesses and the core problems with this bill that have not been addressed, I will not be able to support this bill. I urge my colleagues to also oppose H.R. 2410 and vote “no” on final passage.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERNARD. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to have 3 minutes to yield to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), the ranking member on the Subcommittee on the Middle East and South Asia, Mr. ACKERMAN.

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act. And I want to commend our chairman, the gentleman from California, for his commitment to this legislation, which I believe is a reflection of the gentleman’s enormous dedication to this institution and its role under the Constitution.

For many years, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act has been held hostage to debates about abortion and family planning, to the inability of the other body to get 60 of their Members to agree to anything, and to a general feeling that it just wasn’t essential to do. The single most insidious decay of the effectiveness of our diplomatic capabilities and our capacity to influence events around the world.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I yield an additional 30 seconds to the gentleman.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

And then, of course, it has a sexual orientation amount of language in it which would require the tracking of discrimination related to sexual orientation for actual or perceived sexual orientation and gender identity violations. And then, finally, it increases the U.N. spending by so much and the contributions we would have to give by 32 percent over the 2009 levels.

This is not a good part of the bill. We would like to support the bill, but unfortunately there is too much junk in it. Mr. Chairman, I wish we didn’t have to say “no” to this.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to yield 1 minute to one of the new members of the committee who has been of tremendous assistance on a variety of issues, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CONNOLLY).

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. I thank the illustrious chairwoman of our committee, who has done so much hard work in moving forward U.S. foreign policy.

Mr. Chairman, I, of course, rise in support of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act.

President Obama has redefined the playbook and raised expectations for America’s engagement in the global stage. As we all know too well, the U.S. is involved in two theaters of war in Iraq and Afghanistan. Defeating extremist militants will require the proper diplomatic resources, and as Secretary Gates has stated in both the Defense Department and H.R. 2410 actually absolving ourselves as a Nation to diplomacy and development, two necessities back home in Staten Island and Brooklyn, New York. As we know, effective diplomacy complements defense strategy and requires a combination of several important efforts, and as my colleague the great gentleman from Virginia, Ger- ald B. Solomon, Secretary of Defense Gates himself has said, “Long-term security challenges require our government to operate with unity, agility, and creativity, and will require devoting considerably more resources to nonmilitary instruments of national power.”

Mr. Chairman, the United States must be more serious about its diplomatic commitments, responsibilities, and presence overseas to ensure a more secure world for our citizens. I hope that all of my colleagues will join with us today in supporting this important legislation and send an important message that will be heard loud and clear around the world.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am now pleased to yield 1 minute to a good friend from California who has been on the committee and has returned, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, as a member of the committee, I thank our chairman for all he has done to make sure that this is a Foreign Relations Authorization Act that we can be truly proud of.

I am pleased that this bill moves our foreign policy away from intimidation and preemption to a policy based on engagement and security. This bill invests in our dedicated Foreign Service officers, increases funding for international student exchanges, doubles the number of Peace Corps volunteers.

We must send a clear message to the world community that we are rededicating ourselves as a Nation to diplomacy, and H.R. 2410 actually absolutely helps. With it, military might will no longer be our sole representa- tive overseas.

So I urge my colleagues to support smart security, which is supporting education, infrastructure, diplomacy, agriculture, and we can do that by voting in favor of this legislation.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MILLER), the chairman of the Science and Technology Subcommittee on Investigations and Oversight and a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Chairman, I also rise in support of this legislation, which takes major steps to rebuild the capacity of our civilian foreign affairs agencies. It will strengthen diplomacy and development, two neglected pillars of our national security. Most important, this bill strengthens the capacity to prevent genocide and meet the needs of peacekeeping missions in the Democratic Republic of Congo and elsewhere in the world. This bill will provide funds to refurbish helicopters needed for peacekeeping mis- sions.

More than 5 million people have died in the conflict in the Democratic Repub- lic of Congo, the deadliest conflict since the Second World War, and vio- lence continues in Darfur and Chad. The people of Darfur are still waiting, as are those of the Democratic Repub- lic of Congo and Chad, where shortages of helicopters are crippling the work of U.N. peacekeepers. If we are to regain our moral authority in the world, we must continue to lead the fight against genocide and champion the protection of innocent civilians. This bill will help.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. JACKSON), a member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. JACKSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2410. I want to thank Chairman BERMAN for including H.R. 2828, a bill that I, Congressman BLUMENTHAL and I c pondsored in the last Congress that passed the House 409-12, in the manager’s amend- ment. H.R. 2828 compensates relatives of U.S. citizens killed in the 1998 emb- assy bombings in Kenya and Tan- zania.

On August 7, 1998, al Qaeda truck bombs exploded simultaneously at the embassies in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, and Nairobi, Kenya. The embassy bombing in Nairobi killed 12 Americans serving the American people. They were: Sergeant Nathan Alianga; Conse- sul General Julian Bartley and his son, Jay Bartley; Jean Rose Dalizu; Molly Huckabee Hardy; Staff Sergeant Ken- neth Hobson II; Prabhi Kavaler; Arlene Kirk; Dr. Louise Martin; Michelle O’Connor; Master Sergeant Sherry Lynn Oids; and Tom Shah.

H.R. 2828, therefore H.R. 2410, remem- bers their sacrifice and provides res- quirement to the loved ones they left be- hind.

Mr. Chairman, this provision is the very least that a grateful nation can do. I urge an “aye” vote on H.R. 2410, and I want to thank Chairman BERMAN, Ranking Member ROS-LEHTINEN, and Mr. BLUNT for their support.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chair, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to my colleague from California (Mr. SCHIFF), a former member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and a member of the Appropriations Committee.
clear weapons development, from serving tyrannical purposes that aim to destroy and to subjugate free people to coercive ideologies.

While not always popular, I believe that it is essential to engage other nations in the world by maintaining a robust and effective diplomatic and assistance framework. This is why I do support some of the more aggressive proposals contained in this measure, such as the augmentation of Foreign Service personnel at the Department of State and at the United States Agency for International Development.

We simply cannot respond to monumental changes in the world with an overextended workforce and with diminished capacities to accomplish complex and difficult assignments. However, it does concern me that many people throughout the world hold a dualistic view toward our country. Given the nature of the system of government, we often present ourselves in a way that is very divisive in our own country and is one that many nations around the world repute. It is not consistent with internationally accepted notions of human rights. Such a policy will undermine the very relationships we are seeking to strengthen through this measure.

While I see great value in strengthening our foreign relations overall, I remain deeply concerned that the bill before us today provides a framework for injecting jarring and discordant notes from divisive and unresolved domestic disputes here in our country into U.S. foreign policy. We should be using this process to find our common ground, to develop the tools that actually bind the human family, that lift weary human hearts around the world, that provide justice for all, especially for vulnerable persons, including the elderly, the mother and her unborn child, the father seeking to provide protection for his family, and the tribe and culture, community, culture, community, and freedom from tyranny and twisted ideologies.

In good conscience I cannot support this legislation as it stands because it risks subordining U.S. foreign policy to highly-charged human rights and domestic social controversies and imposing controversial Western social paradigms on cultures that should have the freedom to preserve their most cherished traditions for the well being of men and women, families and children.

The approach before us risks politicizing our foreign service at a time when a strong, united, bipartisan approach to the myriad security and diplomatic challenges we face is vital. Our foreign policy should reflect our shared values as a nation, and I stand ready to work with my colleagues on that which unites us. With that said, I regret that I must urge my colleagues to vote no on this measure.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 1½ minutes to the very active and distinguished member of the committee, the gentleman from Texas, Ms. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Thank you very much to both the chairman and the ranking member of the full committee, Chairman BERMAN and Ranking Member ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN.

Mr. Chairman, it is too short a time to talk about the catastrophic positive effect that this will have on the American people—on their security and on their position in the world. We have always been on a country that recognizes the importance of minding our own business but, frankly, that also understands the importance of being a good friend.

I rise to support H.R. 2410 because this legislation authorizes the hiring of 1,500 additional Foreign Service officers over the next 2 years. If you have visited these embassies, as I have, you know that they are the positive face of America. They work hard. They engage in negotiations. More importantly, they solve problems. We also put forward the necessary resources for the U.N. peacekeeping missions in Darfur, in the Republic of Congo and in Chad.

Because of the section 1127 Sense of Congress, I am delighted that my legislation on ensuring that we continue to push for the comprehensive peace agreement is in this legislation.

Then I am extremely delighted and pleased that section 104 has placed my statelessness bill into this legislation, which dictates that it is the purpose of this section to increase global stability and security for the United States and for the international community and to decrease trafficking and discrimination by reducing the number of individuals who are de jure or de facto stateless. This will help women and children, those who have been dispossessed and those who have been victims of human tracking. Some of those cases have found themselves into my own community in Texas.

So let me again, Mr. Chairman, say that I rise to support H.R. 2410.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. INGLIS), a member of our Foreign Affairs Committee.

Mr. INGLIS. I thank the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. FORTENBERRY).

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I believe that it is critical for us to provide a clear vision for U.S. foreign policy to represent the best of the United States of America. I want to thank Chairman BERMAN and Ranking Member ROS-LEHTINEN for their efforts to bring this important measure to the floor today.

Mr. Chairman, a Muslim cleric once whispered to me. Do not forget the goodness of America. America is just.

While much has changed in the world in recent years, the core ideals that made the United States a generous, principled and courageous Nation—the commitment to justice for all—remain unchanged. We are now entwined in a more interdependent world, which entails the potential for great good or for great harm. We can innovate to build sustainable capacities to help all persons achieve their full potential, or we can find ourselves in a race against time in seeking to prevent advanced technological capacities, such as nu-
Secretary Clinton. Secretary Clinton said these words to our friend Chris Smith:

So we have a very fundamental disagreement, she said, and it is my strongly held view that you, Chris Smith, are an advocate of abortion and anyone who agrees with you should be free to do so anywhere in the world, and so are we.

So who is the “we”? If that “we” means the Federal Government, the United States of America through its State Department, in the Secretary of State’s speaking “we,” then there is a real concern about whether this would then become the policy of the United States to advocate abortion overseas.

So our friend Chris Smith proposed an amendment that was rejected by the Rules Committee that would have clarified this issue by saying that the U.S. will not lobby countries to legalize, fund or promote abortion except in the cases of forcible rape, incest or to save the life of the mother.

The language that was rejected by the Rules Committee, which means, in the “we” that Secretary Clinton was talking about, it may be that the United States Department of State is going to be doing exactly what she was talking about: advocating the opposite position of what Chris Smith was talking about.

Then the majority has inserted some language that is completely meaningless in this bill that was made in order at the Rules Committee. I hesitate to read it because it really is rather convoluted; but it says that the bill does not affect existing statutory prohibitions on the use of funds to engage in any activity or effort to alter the laws or policies in effect in any foreign country concerning the circumstances under which abortion is permitted, regulated or prohibited.

Well, that sounds sort of interesting, but the problem is it’s a complete sham because the United States Department of State through its Merida Initiative doesn’t exist. Therefore, there is no prohibition, so the language is meaningless. We don’t have the protection that our friend Chris Smith was urging in the Rules Committee and was giving us an opportunity to vote on here on the floor to make it so that the United States Department of State is not actively advocating the overturning of abortion laws in foreign countries.

It is disturbing that the Rules Committee didn’t make that in order but, rather, made a sham amendment in order that does not do anything but, actually, just obfuscates the issue. It was just very disappointing, so I urge my colleagues to oppose this measure.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to yield 2 minutes to the Member from Texas (Mr. PAUL), a member of our Foreign Affairs Committee.

Mr. PAUL. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me these 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this bill. Some are hopeful that this will be a less militaristic approach to our foreign policy. Quite frankly, I don’t see any changes. I wish it were something that would represent a humble foreign policy, but when you put an extra $18 billion into the budget of the military operations of the United Nations, I hardly think this is a change in direction. Actually, it’s $18 billion that is going into more meddling, and we don’t have $18 billion.

The President has now asked us here in the Congress to follow the PAYGO rules. Well, that might be a good idea if we had set aside the idea that we would raise taxes, but we’re not going to cut any domestic spending for this foreign aid spending, so the odds of this following the PAYGO rule are essentially nil.

I want to call attention to one provision in this that is rather disturbing to me, and that is the Civilian Stabilization Initiative. This is new. It was not invented by this administration. It was invented by the last administration. This is to set up a permanent standing, nation-building office with an employment of or with the use of nearly 5,000 in the Peace Corps.

So what is the goal of this new initiative going to be? It will facilitate democratic and political transitions in various countries.

Now, if you want to talk about interfering in the internal affairs of other nations, that is exactly what this is all about. Facilitating democratic and political transitions? Well, of course. We’ve been doing that for a long time, but you never gotten a lot of trouble doing it. We did it in 1953, and we’re still suffering the consequences. This initiative is a little more honest. It’s up front. We’re actually supporting and funding a facility that would be involved in political transitions. The mandate in this is to “reconstruct” societies. That sounds wonderful. There are a lot of societies that need reconstruction, but so many of the societies that we have to reconstruct we helped to destroy or to disintegrate.

Think of what our troops and our money have done in Afghanistan as well as in Iraq. I think this provision, itself, is enough reason to vote against this authorization.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to yield 2 minutes to the very distinguished chairman of the Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere, my friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Engel).

Mr. ENGEL. Well, I thank the chairman, and I especially want to thank him for his great leadership as chairman of our Foreign Affairs Committee.

Mr. Chairman, I certainly support this legislation. This legislation reinvests the Foreign Affairs Committee, and it provides a needed shot in the arm to American diplomacy. For too long, we have not given our diplomats the resources they require, and this bill provides a much-needed boost to those serving on the front lines around the world for our country.

Specifically, H.R. 2410 authorizes 1,500 additional Foreign Service officers, and it doubles the size of the Peace Corps.

As chairman of the Subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere, I would also like to thank Chairman Berman for including several sections I developed to promote good relations with our partners in the Americas.

First, the bill incorporates the countries of the Caribbean into the Merida Initiative, a U.S.-Mexico-Central America security partnership.

The Caribbean leaders told us they wanted this at the Summit of the Americas, and I’m glad we’ve included this provision.

Second, the bill directs the State Department to develop a public diplomacy plan to prepare Haiti if Temporary Protected Status is granted to Haitians in the U.S. We need to grant Temporary Protected Status and we must be ready to inform Haitians in Haiti that they should not leave if TPS is provided.

Third, the bill establishes a coordinating council to better implement Merida-related funding. With multiple government agencies involved, Merida is too important to be lost in the bureaucratic shuffle.
Finally, the bill creates an interagency task force on the prevention of small-arms trafficking in the Western Hemisphere.

While recent media attention has focused on the high number of guns—90 percent from crime scenes in Mexico that are originally from the United States, this is not just a Mexico issue. Jamaican Prime Minister Golding told me that 90 percent of the guns recovered in Jamaica also originate in the U.S., so I’m glad we’re doing something about that in this bill.

So again, Mr. Chairman, thank you again for your excellent work on this bill and for including these important sections that I urged, and I look forward to voting on this bill.

Mr. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, we seek to reserve at this time.

Mr. BERMANN. Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from American Samoa. He’s cochairman of the Subcommittee on Oceania, the Pacific and the Global Environment, my friend, ENI FALEOMAVAEGA.

(Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the bill, H.R. 2410, and thank the gentleman from California, our distinguished chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, for his leadership and for his ability to bring this bill before the floor. Although there are several portions of the bill that my subcommittee had a part in introducing, I am especially appreciative for the inclusion of one of the provisions to rename the South Pacific Scholarship Program in honor of one of our distinguished late Members of this institution, the late Congressman Phil Burton, who was chairman of the Subcommittee on Territories and Insular Affairs, and a voice for Pacific Island populations, and I thank the gentleman for including a portion of my provision to rename the United States-South Pacific Scholarship Program (USSP) in honor of my mentor, the late Congressman Phillip Burton who, as Chairman of the Subcommittee on Territories and Insular Affairs, was a voice for Pacific Island populations, and made it possible for American Samoa’s Governor and Lieutenant Governor to be popularly elected rather than appointed by the Secretary of the Interior.

In 1967, President Harry S. Truman issued Executive Order 10264 which transferred administrative responsibility for the islands of American Samoa from the Secretary of the Navy to the U.S. Secretary of the Interior. The Secretary of the Interior, in turn, appointed our Governors.

In 1966, the people of American Samoa adopted a Constitution. The Constitution was revised in 1966 and was approved by the Secretary of the Interior on June 2, 1967. In 1967, the Revised Constitution of American Samoa provided for an elected Legislature, or Fono, consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives. However, it did not provide our people with the right to elect our own Governor and Lieutenant Governor and, at the time, American Samoa was the only remaining offshore area of the United States which did not have a popularly elected Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

On June 10, 1976, Congressman Phil Burton took notice of American Samoa’s situation and introduced a bill to make it possible for our Governor and Lieutenant Governor to be popularly elected rather than appointed by the Secretary of the Interior. As staff counsel the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, Congressman Burton instructed me to draft this legislation which the U.S. House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed by a landslide vote of 377 to 1.

Instead of sending his bill to the Senate, Congressman Burton decided to consult further with the Secretary of the Interior, Rogers C.B. Morton, about American Samoa’s unique political status as an unincorporated and unorganized territory which was and is unlike the other organized political entities of Guam and the Virgin Islands. As a result of their consultations, the two agreed that Secretary Morton would issue a Secretarial Order (No. 3009) authorizing the American Samoa Government to pass enabling legislation to provide for an elected Governor and the Lieutenant Governor.

Secretary’s Order No. 3009 amended American Samoa’s Constitution to specifically provide for an elected rather than an appointed Governor and Lieutenant Governor. Secretary’s Order’s 3009 was also in keeping with the will of the majority of voters in American Samoa who voted in favor of electing their own Governor and Lieutenant Governor in a plebiscite that was held on August 31, 1976.

More recently, Congress introduced legislation on August 2, 1978 to provide that the Territory of American Samoa be represented by a nonvoting Delegate to the U.S. House of Representatives. I also was tasked with drafting this legislation which became Public Law 95-556 and was made effective October 31, 1978.

Beyond American Samoa, the late Congressman Phillip Burton, who served in the U.S. Congress from 1964 to 1983, worked every day of his life to ensure social justice and human dignity for all people, and the people of the Pacific are especially grateful for what he has done for us. Congressman Burton’s service as Chair of the Subcommittee on Territories and Insular Affairs included the leadership and the people of West Papua, and the extent to which the Government of Indonesia has recognized ‘Free’ Choice, the current political status of West Papua, and the extent to which the Government of Indonesia has implemented and included the leadership and the people of West Papua in the development and administration of Special Autonomy. I also believe it is necessary for the Administration to report to the appropriate Congressional committees the extent to which the Government of Indonesia has certified that it has halted human rights abuses in West Papua. However, in consideration of Indonesia’s presidential elections scheduled for July 8, 2009, I asked Chairman Berman to pull the West Papua language from the bill so as not to influence the outcome of the elections. I thank Chairman Berman for addressing my request to remove this language, and I am hopeful that once elections are finalized that Indonesia will renew its commitment to implementing Special Autonomy.

Again, I thank Chairman Berman for his leadership and support in moving this legislation forward, and I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 2410.

Ms. Rose-Lehtinen. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve our time.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, for purposes of a colloquy, I’m pleased to yield 1 minute to a former member of the committee, a member of the Budget Committee and the Ways and Means Committee, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Blumenauer).

Mr. Blumenauer. I rise, Mr. Chairman, and urge that clean water and sanitation be addressed at the highest level at the State Department and USAID. The lack of safe water and sanitation is an ongoing threat to global security and remains the world’s most preventable health problem, accounting for 2 million deaths a year, a child dying every 15 seconds and half the ill-health in the developing world.

We simply cannot meet our goals to deal with poverty, health and development without addressing this crisis. On Earth day, I introduced the bipartisan Paul Simon Water for the World Act with the goal to provide a hundred billion of the world’s poorest with first-time access to safe drinking water and sanitation.

I would like to work with you, Mr. Chairman, to assure that clean water and sanitation are adequately funded and represented at the highest level of our diplomatic and development efforts.

Mr. Berman. I want to manifest very clearly my intention to take up this critical issue and am looking forward to working with you under your leadership.

Ms. Rose-Lehtinen. I continue to reserve.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to a friend of the committee as well as the Agriculture Committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. Costa).

Mr. Costa. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank Chairman Berman for the hard work that he and the committee staff have done on reauthorization of this bill. A lot of work has been put into it, and I think all of us, as we look upon the challenges we face around the world, understand that there has to be a utilization of all of the tools in our foreign policy toolbox to ensure that we take care of America’s interests and that we gain greater support in our interests abroad.

Smart Power is a part of that effort. Smart Power allows us to reenergize the Department of State’s diplomatic work around the globe. Specifically, the reauthorization of this bill allows the State Department to do work that the Department of Defense is doing, more appropriately under the Department of State: international peacekeeping in Darfur; it employs the Peace Corps, focusing on drug trafficking and violence along our southern borders. There are so many good things that this does.

Mr. Blumenauer. I thank the chairman and his staff for the responsible reauthorization. I urge all of the Members to vote for this bill.

Ms. Rose-Lehtinen. I continue to reserve.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee—she was, then she wasn’t, and now she is—and my friend from Nevada (Ms. Berkley).

Ms. Berkley. I thank the gentleman from California for yielding and for his extraordinary leadership not only for this bill but on our committee.

I rise today in support of this important bill. It contains a number of important elements that all of my colleagues should support. It increases our diplomatic corps dramatically, allowing the hiring of 1,500 additional Foreign Service officers over the next 2 years; it increases our financing of peacekeeping missions in Darfur and Chad; it enables the size of the Peace Corps and sets out a plan for better response to humanitarian needs worldwide.

The bill also contains a sense of Congress calling for the release of captive Israeli soldier Gilad Shalit. He has been held hostage for nearly 3 years, and it’s time that he be brought home to his family and his loved ones. If there is ever to be a Palestinian state, returning Gilad Shalit would be a true demonstration that the Palestinians are capable of self-governance and humanitarian behavior.

With that, I call on my colleagues to support this bill.

Ms. Rose-Lehtinen. I continue to reserve.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to a great member of our committee, also a member of the Science and Technology Committee, the gentlelady from Arizona (Ms. Giffords), Ms. Giffords, Thank you, Chairman Berman, for your leadership, and Ranking Member Rose-Lehtinen as well.

I want to let you know that it’s important that this provision on U.S. export controls that is now going to be entered into the manager’s amendment with support is important to the fundamental job that we have as a Member of Congress, which is our U.S. national security. The National Academy found that U.S. national security and economic prosperity depends on full engagement in science, technology, and commerce. However, some of the unintended consequences of our current export control system have contributed to a situation in which the U.S. is now among leaders in science and technology areas but no longer dominates.

As Chair of the Science and Technology Committee Subcommittee on Space and Aeronautics, I’m especially concerned about our leadership in space, especially as more nations seek to increase their space activities. This provision directs the President to take into account the views of the relevant Federal departments and agencies and to provide a report to Congress on the plans of those agencies to streamline U.S. export controls and processes to better serve the United States. We can’t afford to undercut our scientific and technological competitiveness.

I urge Members to support the legislation.

Ms. Rose-Lehtinen. I continue to reserve.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I am now pleased to yield to another excellent member of the committee, former colleague in the legislature in California, the gentlelady from California (Ms. Watson), 1 minute.

Ms. Watson. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I rise today in support of H.R. 2410, particularly the section that authorizes a way to enhance our public diplomacy efforts worldwide by ensuring that diplomatic and consular libraries and resource centers open to the public to show American-made films that promote American culture, principles, and values.

Also, there is another provision in section 214, public diplomacy resource centers, and it amends the State Department’s Basic Authorities Act of 1956 to direct the Secretary of State to ensure that diplomatic and consular mission libraries and resource centers are open to the general public to the greatest extent practicable and to schedule public showings of American films that showcase American culture, principles, and history.

The Chair. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. Berman. I am pleased to yield an additional 15 seconds.

Ms. Watson. Also, section 215 has grants for international documentary exchange programs and authorizes the Secretary of State to make grants to U.S. nongovernmental organizations that use independently produced documentary films to promote a better understanding of the United States.
abroad and a better understanding of global perspectives of other countries in the United States. I urge your support.

Mr. Chair, I rise today in support of H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act of 2009, and congratulate Chairman Berman for his leadership in support of a new direction in our foreign policy. This bill will authorize the State Department from 2010 thru 2011, build capacity to the Department by adding fifteen hundred (1,500) new Foreign Service Officers, and enhance our Public Diplomacy efforts worldwide.

Section 214, Public Diplomacy Resources Center amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 to direct the Secretary of State to ensure that diplomatic and consular mission libraries and resource centers are open to the general public to the greatest extent practicable to schedule public showings of American films that showcase American culture, principles, values, and history.

Section 1330, Department of State Employment Composition amends the Foreign Relations Authorization Act of 2003 to direct the Secretary of State to report on efforts to develop a uniform definition of diversity that is congruent with core values and vision of the Department, and to evaluate the diversity plans specifically relating to the Foreign Service area. Secretary Clinton has heard this question and is considering further legislation as well as a role in the foreign assistance reform process that we are working on.

Mr. HOLT. I thank the chairman.

Mr. BERMAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I thank him for his suggestion. I agree completely that science constitutes an untapped and undertapped resource in America’s diplomatic tool box, and I can assure the gentleman that I am committed to enhancing our capacity in this area, collaborating like this office, in Service. This section also provides for a GAO Review by the Comptroller General of the United States to assess the employment composition, recruitment, advancement, and retention policies of the State Department for women and minority groups.

As many of my colleagues may know the State Department has some of the worst diversity rates among its Foreign Service Officers. If you look at the top levels of the Foreign Service regarding diversity you will find there is basically none.

Mr. Chair, urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2410, a bill which will enhance our Public Diplomacy efforts worldwide, diversify our Foreign Service, and give the State Department the tools necessary to meet our foreign policy goals.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I continue to reserve my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am now pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) for purposes of a colloquy.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the hard work of Chairman Berman on this bill and I would like to enter into a colloquy with the gentleman on the issue of science and diplomacy.

Mr. Chairman, I’m very pleased to support H.R. 2410. It’s a strong bill that accomplishes many good things. There is one area that it does not address explicitly, and that is the role that science can play in our diplomatic portfolio.

In his recent speech in Cairo, the President reminded us all that the great ideas that have shaped our world have sprung up from every corner of the planet. Science provides a common language through which individuals from different nations and distinct cultures can communicate, cooperate, and work together toward common goals. Scientific research and diplomatic goals and diplomacy can advance science for the public good.

I’m aware that the chairman is working on legislation related to enhancing science as a tool for diplomacy, and I look forward to working with the chairman on this effort.

I yield to the chairman.

Mr. BERMAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I thank him for his suggestion. I agree completely that science constitutes an untapped and undertapped resource in America’s diplomatic toolbox, and I can assure the gentleman that I am committed to enhancing our capacity in this area, collaborating like this office, in Service. This section also provides for a GAO Review by the Comptroller General of the United States to assess the employment composition, recruitment, advancement, and retention policies of the State Department for women and minority groups.

Mr. R. ROHRABACHER. I would like to yield the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE), our Republican Conference Chair and a member of our Committee on Foreign Affairs, (Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Chair, I rise in opposition to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act.

The American people deserve a foreign relations bill that respects our Nation’s budget and our Nation’s values. Sadly, H.R. 2410 does neither. At a time when ordinary Americans are struggling to make ends meet, this legislation would add billions of dollars in new funding to our foreign and State Department operations. Expanding taxpayer funding of Peace Corps and the Department operations. Expanding taxpayer funding of Peace Corps and the U.N. regular budget by one-third in a single year without any U.N. reform is extraordinarily frustrating to many of us who have been fighting to use the power of the purse here in Washington, D.C., to drive fundamental reform in that body.

But beyond these extraordinary increases—a single-year increase of 35 percent in the State Department’s basic salary and operations—this legislation does a disservice to the values of millions of Americans who cherish the sanctity of life and the sanctity of marriage. This legislation creates a new office and ambassador for global women’s issues for women’s empowerment internationally. Secretary Clinton testified before our committee that it would be the policy of this administration to yield 20 percent of the rights of women, including rights to reproductive health. Democrats on the committee actually rejected an amendment to clarify that it would not be U.S. policy to lobby countries to legalize, fund or promote abortion. I even offered an amendment in the committee to change language that would require State Department training, reporting, and overseas advocacy of foreign laws on reproductive health. I sought to change that, to make it clear that State Department employees are not, and to promote universally recognized human rights, those upon which Americans agree; and that was rejected in the committee.

This legislation, in embracing abortion rights overseas, in embracing the advocacy of changes in laws regarding homosexuality around the world, advocates a set of values that are at odds with the majority of the American people. We deserve a foreign relations budget that respects our pocketbooks and our values. This does neither, and I urge its rejection.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida has 30 seconds remaining, and the gentleman from California has 3 minutes remaining.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to give the remainder of my time and any time that the chairman has to his colleague. This committee has to the wonderful gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), who is going to be in a colloquy with our esteemed chairman.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. I would like to thank the chairman and the ranking member very much for this courtesy.

Mr. Chair, section 826 of our bill has been carefully crafted to protect our national security interests. Subsection (b) of that section provides that the President’s authority in paragraph (a) to remove satellites and related components from the United States munitions list may not be exercised with respect to any satellite or related component that may, directly or indirectly, be transferred to, or launched into space by the People’s Republic of China.

Do you agree with me that the intent of paragraph (b) is that, with respect to any transfers to or launches by China, no satellite or related component shall be removed from the United States Munitions List?

Mr. BERMAN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROHRABACHER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. BERMAN. I am very grateful.

The answer is, I certainly do agree. In the case of China, under our legislation, all satellites and related components must remain on the United States munitions list.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. I thank you and the ranking member. This is a vitally important clarification for our aerospace industry. While at the same time opening up better trade and technology with friendly countries, it ensures that we do not send technology to the Chinese.

Mr. BERMAN. Will the gentleman yield further?
Mr. ROHRABACHER. I certainly would. Yes, sir.

Mr. BERNAN. The gentleman’s remarks are worth elaborating on. The whole notion of a domestic commercial satellite industry is very much at stake if we can’t, in appropriate situations, arrange for those kinds of transfers, and I think it is part of what the gentleman pointed out. That is why both the Satellite Industry Association and the Aerospace Industries Association support this legislation.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Thank you very much. Again, thank you to the ranking member as well.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentlewoman from Florida has expired. The gentleman from California has 1½ minutes remaining.

Mr. BERNAN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to include in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD an exchange of letters between the Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT AND GOVERNMENT REFORM.

Washington, DC, June 9, 2009.

Hon. HOWARD L. BERNAN, Chairman, Committee on Foreign Affairs,

Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN BERNAN: I am writing about H.R. 2410, the “Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011.” The Committee on Foreign Affairs reported this legislation to the House on June 4, 2009.

I appreciate your effort to consult with the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform regarding those provisions of H.R. 2410 that fall within the Oversight Committee’s jurisdiction. These provisions address issues related to the federal civil service and government contractors.

In the interest of expediting consideration of H.R. 2410, the Oversight Committee will not request a sequential referral of this bill. I would request your support for the appointment of conferees from the Oversight Committee should H.R. 2410 or a similar measure be included in conference with the Senate. Moreover, this letter should not request a sequential referral of this bill.

Further, as to any House-Senate conference agreement that your Committee reserves the right to seek the appointment of conferees for consideration of portions of the bill that are within the Committee’s jurisdiction, and I agree to support a request by the Committee with respect to serving as conferees on the bill, consistent with the Speaker’s practice in this regard.

I will ensure that our exchange of letters is included in the Congressional Record and I look forward to working with you on this important legislation.

Sincerely,

HOWARD L. BERNAN,
Chairman.

Mr. SIRES. Mr. Chair, today I rise to give my full support for the passage of H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act. I believe defense, diplomacy and development are the three key components of our national security strategy. This bill will give the Department of State and Peace Corps the tools necessary to ensure that diplomacy plays an integral role in furthering U.S. foreign policy goals.

H.R. 2410 supports this important legislation by giving the Department of State the authority to hire over 1,500 new foreign service officers and improve their language capabilities. The bill also seeks to double the number of Peace Corps volunteers in the field. Peace Corps volunteers are vital to U.S. diplomacy because they are often the only American faces in some of the world’s most remote places. Finally, this legislation establishes the Senator Paul Simon Study Abroad Foundation to expand the number of U.S. students studying abroad, learning new languages and fostering cultural understanding.

Mr. Chair, H.R. 2410 puts us one step closer to developing a global security strategy that uses diplomacy as a crucial tool to help ensure our safety at home and abroad. I would urge all of my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Ms. SANCHEZ of California. Mr. Chair, I rise in support of H.R. 2401, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act. This legislation will enhance our national security by providing adequate resources to the State Department, which has been underfunded for the last 8 years. Diplomacy and international development are key components to any national security agenda.

I was also pleased to see that title nine of the bill, which enhances the Merida Initiative, includes provisions to combat gun trafficking and drug cartels. However, I was greatly disappointed that the House Homeland Security Committee was not included in the development of this title or the previous Merida Initiative legislation. The Department of Homeland Security is crucial to our national security and, as the chief law enforcement agency we must ensure our borders are secure.

As Chairwoman of the Homeland Security Subcommittee on Border, Maritime and Global Counter Terrorism, I have held several hearings on issues affecting the Merida initiative. These hearings focused on the ongoing violence along our southern border, drug trafficking, weapon trafficking and cash trafficking. My subcommittee and the full committee on Homeland Security have been at the forefront of addressing the threats posed by drug trafficking organizations and other transnational crime syndicates. Many of the recommendations made during our recent hearings, including southbound border check points for cash and guns going into Mexico, have been implemented along the border.

The hearings also emphasized that many agencies—including the Department of Homeland Security—will need to work together closely to stop these growing transnational crime networks. The Merida Initiative would not be as effective without the constant and tireless work of the brave men and women at the Department of Homeland Security. I hope that in the future more consideration will be given to the role the Department of Homeland Security plays implementing critical security initiatives like the Merida Initiative.

My colleagues on the Committee on Homeland Security look forward to working with our friends on the other relevant committees to continue to develop, implement and improve initiatives such as the Merida Initiative.

I ask my colleagues to support the underlying legislation.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Chair, I thank my colleagues on the Rules Committee, Mr. HASTINGS, for yielding me time. I commend him for his hard work on foreign relations issues.

Mr. Chair, today this Congress takes action to support our country’s interests around the world.

A strong foreign service and a healthy State Department are not luxuries. They are absolute necessities in today’s foreign policy climate.

Our country has historically shouldered great responsibilities on the international stage. From combating nuclear proliferation, to spurring international development, to protecting and advancing human rights around the world, the challenges we face as a country are great.

Two of these challenges particularly hit home for me, Mr. Chair.

As most of us know, two American journalists were sentenced to 12 years of hard labor in North Korea this week after an abrupt and questionable trial.

One of these reporters grew up in my hometown of Sacramento. Her family continues to maintain ties to the Sacramento community.

I know that the State Department is doing everything in its power to secure the release of Laura Ling and Euna Lee. I commend and support our government’s efforts to bring these brave and courageous two women back home.

With today’s bill, Congress is doing its part to ensure that Americans in similar situations around the world know that their country will never abandon them.

Our responsibility as a nation is not only to those fortunate to call themselves “Americans,” though. Another issue of urgent importance is the plight of about 5,000 Hmong refugees in Thailand.

These refugees, including many women and children, have fled persecution in their home country of Laos based on historical grievances dating back to the Vietnam War era. They now live in unspeakably harsh conditions in a refugee camp in the Petchabun province of Thailand, and are under constant threat of being forcibly repatriated back to Laos to face certain persecution.

Our State Department has been working tirelessly to save the Hmong from this near-certain death sentence, and I have supported these efforts in every way that I can. I have written letters to the Thai government and to our own foreign policy leadership, asking them to spare the Hmong from any further suffering.

We have a responsibility to protect innocent people, Mr. Chair, just as we have a responsibility to protect our own in countries like North Korea.

Today’s legislation gives our government the tools it needs to carry out this essential mission. It helps us strengthen our role in influencing world affairs so that we can work toward a future where basic human rights and dignity are respected the world over.

For this reason, I strongly support the bill before the Chair. I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. FARR. Mr. Chair, Chairman Berman and the entire Foreign Affairs committee are to be commended for bringing an excellent bill to the floor.

The much needed reforms reflect Congress’ strong support for strengthening U.S. diplomacy and are consistent with the new vision for global engagement championed by President Obama.

As a former Peace Corps volunteer, I am very pleased that H.R. 2410 authorizes $450 million for Peace Corps.

I’d like to express my appreciation to Chairman Berman and Ranking Member Ileana Ros-Lehtinen for including Peace Corps in the their bill and for supporting a substantial increase that will help send volunteers to the 20 countries that have already requested Peace Corps volunteers.

Recently, the Chicago Council on Global Affairs called for 300 to 600 new volunteers in Sub-Saharan Africa to work on agriculture as a step toward America reasserting global leadership in the fight against hunger and food insecurity.

The Chicago Council notes that “The Peace Corps’ presence goes a long way toward convincing people that America knows about their circumstances, is committed to partnership to lift them out of poverty and is willing to send hard-working Americans, experienced in agriculture, to live and work with them for an extended period.”

Rwanda’s President recently wrote, “We view the Peace Corps as a significant event in Rwanda’s recovery. These young men and women represent what is good about America; I have met former volunteers who have run major aid programs here, invested in our businesses, and I even count them among my friends and close advisors.” Peace Corps volunteers live and work in the poorest communities in countries around the world. The work that they do day in and day out is the finest expression of American generosity and solidarity that our government has to offer.

I enthusiastically support H.R. 2410 and urge my colleagues to vote for the bill.

Mr. POSEY. Mr. Chair, as every Member of the House knows, our country is confronted with an enormous deficit of almost $2 trillion this year alone, which is in addition to the existing mountain of national debt and a projected debt of $1.3 trillion for next year. At some point, this Congress needs to face the reality that you cannot continue to spend as though there is no future.

The evening news is bleak with continuing housing foreclosures and the highest unemployment rate in decades. The Federal Reserve is exercising emergency lending powers. Foreign investors, including the government of China, are concerned about buying more U.S. government debt. But the majority in this body is living in a different world. The correct response would be for the government to live within its means, just as American families must do. For our leadership in Washington insists on going full-speed ahead in its binge spending, adding perks for public employees and billions of dollars in foreign aid spending while Americans continue to lose their jobs. Today’s Foreign Relations Authorization Act is another case-in-point of Washington out of touch.

While American families are cutting back on their spending, this legislation would grant an arbitrary 35 percent increase in the State Department’s base salary and operations account, and at a time when more Americans are unemployed than at any time in the past 25 years this bill provides a 23 percent pay raise for Foreign Service Officers. In committee, Democrats voted down an amendment to cap the increases in the bill at the annualized rate of inflation. The bill also cuts the budget for the Office of the Inspector General—the one who is to keep a watchful eye on where Americans’ tax dollars are spent.

The bill also increases funding for the United Nations (U.N.) by 30 percent over the current year’s funding. In the past, any additional U.S. taxpayer funding has been tied to further reforms. This bill actually asks the U.N. for no reforms and provides it $100 million more for the peacekeeping activities than they asked for. I have cosponsored U.N. reform legislation and believe it is critical that we enact these reforms of an entity that has serious waste, fraud and abuse problems. As one of ninety cosponsors of H.R. 557, the United Nations Reform and Responsibility and Reform Act, I believe Congress should withhold funding to the U.N. unless some serious reforms are undertaken. Instead, today’s bill rewards them with significant increases in funding. The bill also includes language affirming controversial international agreements for which the United States is not even a party, such as the U.N. Convention on the Law of the Sea. This bill funds the Human Rights Council which includes the following nations as members of the council: Saudi Arabia, Nigeria, China and Cuba. This is ludicrous. H.R. 2410 contains worrying language that would create a new office with a vague directive of promoting “women’s empowerment internationally.” While I support ensuring that women are treated equitably, it is important to understand that this will lead to Secretary of State Hillary Clinton testifying before the Foreign Affairs Committee stating that she would use the State Department to “…protect the rights of women, including their right to reproductive freedom….”

This bill also includes language that would authorize all UN arrearages and volunteers the U.S. pay $100 million more for peacekeeping next year beyond what the UN is currently charging us.

The reported bill also embraces a controversial social agenda, including provisions that would allow abortion promotion. At the full committee mark-up to affirm the genuine empowerment and protection of women and girls around the world was soundly rejected.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this legislation and work for the good of those whom we represent by reinining in the spending. Congress should authorize and appropriate funding sufficient for conducting a strong foreign policy, rather than increasing government salaries, expanding the size of government foreign leadership and work on this major legislation.

In the words of President Obama, “America is a friend of each nation and every man, woman and child who seeks a future of peace and dignity,” and this legislation rightfully commits the resources necessary to uphold that promise.

I want to just take a moment to highlight a couple of provisions that we worked to have included in this bill:

First, I want to thank Chairman Berman for including the United States-Caribbean Educational Exchange Program from legislation I introduced which previously passed the House in the 110th Congress, the Shirley A. Chisholm United States-Caribbean Educational Exchange Act.

This valuable initiative will promote better understanding of U.S. values and culture by offering scholarships to Caribbean students to pursue studies in the United States.

Second, I am pleased this legislation includes reporting language I offered regarding the enduring and horrible humanitarian crisis in Gaza. Improving the lives of the Palestinian people in Gaza is essential to fostering conditions necessary for stability, economic and social development, and lasting peace.

Finally, on the heels of President Obama’s brilliant speech in Cairo, I want to take a moment to underscore the importance of supporting the President, Special Envoy Mitchell and Secretary Clinton as they bring renewed focus and energy toward advancing a two-state solution that will bring lasting peace. And that includes supporting Israel’s right to exist and the call for an end of the continued Israeli settlements.

Again, I want to thank the gentleman for the time and encourage support for this important bill.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Chair, while our constituents are losing jobs and homes, H.R. 2410 would use borrowed money to increase funding by one-third in a single year for State Department operations, for the UN regular budget, and for the Peace Corps.

It would increase the State Department’s basic salary and operations account by 35%.

It would add 2,200 new Foreign Service Officers, 20 new government entities, and 48 new reporting requirements.

Without requiring any reform, it would authorize all UN arrearages and volunteers the U.S. pay $100 million more for peacekeeping.

The reported bill also embraces a controversial social agenda, including provisions that would allow abortion promotion.

Attempts at the full committee mark-up to affirm the genuine empowerment and protection of women and girls around the world was soundly rejected.

In addition to problems with what the bill includes, many deserving Republican amendments were excluded from the reported version.

One of those was a funding amendment I have offered which caps any account increases at 3.7 percent over current year levels.

This reasonable 3.7 percent increase is the average rate of inflation for 2008.

By taking this measured, responsible approach, my funding amendment would produce a single-year cost savings of $2.82 billion dollars in 2010, as compared to the Majority's bill.

In short, H.R. 2410 is an irresponsible bill on policy and funding levels.

Mr. BERMAN. I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the bill shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the 5-minute rule and shall be considered read.

The text of the committee amendment is as follows:

Section 4 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2671) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) Under such regulations as the Secretary of State may prescribe, and in such amounts as are appropriated in advance, the Secretary is authorized to waive in whole or part the recovery of a repatriation loan under subsection (d) if it is shown that such recovery would be against equity and good conscience or against the public interest."

Subtitle B—Public Diplomacy at the Department of State

SEC. 211. CONCENTRATION OF PUBLIC DIPLOMACY RESPONSIBILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State shall, subject to the direction of the President, have primary responsibility for the coordination described in subsection (b)(1), and shall make every effort to establish and present to foreign publics unified United States public diplomacy activities.

(b) QUARTERLY MEETINGS AND ONGOING CONSULTATIONS AND COORDINATION.

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall, subject to the direction of the President, establish a working group of the heads of the Federal agencies referred to in subsection (a) to serve as the principal chair of that working group.

(2) QUARTERLY MEETINGS.—The working group shall meet quarterly, or as the Secretary determines to be necessary, to carry out the functions of the group.

(c) INITIAL MEETING.—The initial meeting of the working group shall be held not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.
SEC. 212. ESTABLISHMENT OF PUBLIC DIPLOMACY RESERVE CORPS.

(a) FINDING.—Congress finds that currently a shortage of trained public diplomacy Foreign Service officers at the mid-career level threatens the effectiveness of United States outreach to publics abroad.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the Department of State should recruit individuals with professional experience relevant to public diplomacy, and provide training and mentoring to cultivate their skills in order to build the corps of professionals in the public diplomacy cone;

(2) apart from the public diplomacy cone, training of all Foreign Service officers should include more information on techniques of public diplomacy.

(c) ESTABLISHMENT OF PUBLIC DIPLOMACY RESERVE CORPS.—Section 301 of the Foreign Service Act of 1944 (22 U.S.C. 2651a) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) ESTABLISHMENT OF PUBLIC DIPLOMACY RESERVE CORPS. —

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State is authorized to establish in the Foreign Service a Public Diplomacy Reserve Corps consisting of mid- and senior-level former Foreign Service officers and other individuals with experience in the private or public sector relevant to public diplomacy, to serve for a period of six months to two years in postings abroad.

"(2) CERTAIN ACTIVITIES.—While actively serving with the Reserve Corps, individuals may not engage in activities directly or indirectly intended to influence public opinion within the United States or in the same manner and to the same extent that employees of the Department of State engaged in public diplomacy are so prohibited.

SEC. 213. ENHANCING UNITED STATES PUBLIC DIPLOMACY OUTREACH.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The platform strategy for United States public diplomacy programs has changed dramatically with events of the past decade. The United States Government used to operate hundreds of free-standing facilities around the world, "American Centers" and "American Houses", that offered venues for cultural and educational events as well as access to books, magazines, films, and other selected materials about the United States. The consolidation of the United States Information Agency (USIA) into the Department of State accelerated the post-Cold War process of closing these facilities, and the deadly attacks on United States embassies in Tanzania and Kenya prompted the imposition of security requirements under law that included co-locating United States Government employees in hardened embassy compounds.

(2) Information Resource Centers, which offer library services and space for public events, that are widely located in embassy compounds allow limited access—and in some cases, none whatsoever—by the public, and half of them operate on a "by appointment only" basis. "American Corner" facilities, operated by local contacts in university or public libraries in some countries, are no substitute for a designated venue recognized as a knowledgeable representative of the United States culture and education staffed by a knowledgeable representative of the embassy.

(b) PARTNERSHIP ARRANGEMENTS TO FURTHER PUBLIC DIPLOMACY OUTREACH.—Recognizing the security challenges of maintaining free-standing public diplomacy facilities outside of embassy compounds, the Secretary of State shall consider entering partnership arrangements with local or regional entities in foreign countries that can operate free-standing American Centers in areas well-trafficked by a cross-section of the public, including in downtown storefronts, health care clinics, and other locations that reach beyond library patrons and university students. Where such partnership arrangements currently exist, the Secretary shall evaluate the efficacy of such partnership arrangements and determine whether such partnership arrangements can provide a model for public diplomacy facilities outside of embassy and consulate compounds elsewhere.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall brief the appropriate committees on the evaluation and determinations described in the preceding sentence.

(c) ESTABLISHMENT OF CERTAIN PUBLIC DIPLOMACY FACILITIES.—After taking into account relevant security needs, the Secretary of State shall consider placing United States public diplomacy facilities on a "by appointment only" basis in locations identified by the Secretary as sites suitable for them, to the maximum extent practicable, to be used to carry out the following activities:

(1) In general.—The Secretary of State shall, to the maximum extent practicable, use such facilities to carry out the following functions:

(A) Public Diplomacy and Outreach.

(B) Strengthening United States diplomatic and consular missions and centers in foreign countries.

(C) OPERATIONS OF LIBRARIES.—

(1) In general.—The Secretary of State shall ensure that such libraries and centers staffed by local contacts, which are authorized under this section, are open to the general public to the greatest extent practicable, subject to policies and procedures established by the Secretary to ensure the safety and security of United States diplomatic and consular missions and of United States officers, employees, and personnel posted at such missions.

(2) Availability of United States films.—To the greatest extent practicable, the Secretary of State shall ensure that such libraries and centers staffed by local contacts, which are authorized under this section, are open to the general public to the greatest extent practicable, subject to policies and procedures established by the Secretary to ensure the safety and security of United States diplomatic and consular missions and centers in foreign countries.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated for Educational and Cultural Exchange Programs pursuant to section 1014(a), there is authorized to be appropriated to the Foreign Service Reserve $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to carry out this section.

SEC. 214. PUBLIC DIPLOMACY RESOURCE CENTERS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF LIBRARIES.—Section 1(b)(3) of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2651a(b)(3)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (D), by striking "and" and inserting "; and"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(F) provide for the establishment of new and the maintenance of existing libraries and resource centers at or in connection with United States diplomatic and consular missions.".

(b) OPERATION OF LIBRARIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State shall establish and maintain in accordance with subsection (F) of section 1(b)(3) of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (as added by subsection (A)(3) of this section) a program to provide assistance to United States nongovernmental organizations that produce and distribute independently produced documentary films to promote better understanding of the United States abroad and better understanding of United States perspectives and other countries in the United States.

(c) ACTIVITIES SUPPORTED.—Grants provided under subsection (b) shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be used to carry out the following activities:

(1) Fund, distribute, and promote documentary films that convey a diversity of views about life in the United States to foreign audiences and bring insightful foreign perspectives to United States audiences.

(2) Give preference to nongovernmental organizations that use independently produced documentary films to promote better understanding of the United States abroad and better understanding of United States perspectives and other countries in the United States.

(d) SPECIAL FACTORS.—In making the grants described in subsection (b), the Secretary shall give preference to nongovernmental organizations that—

(1) provide at least 35 percent of the total project cost in matching funds from non-Federal sources; and

(2) have prior experience supporting independently produced documentary films that have been broadcast on public television in the United States.

(e) REPORT.—Not later than two years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report that contains a detailed description of the implementation of this section for the prior year.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts appropriated to be appropriated for Educational and Cultural Exchange Programs pursuant to section 1014(a), there is authorized to be appropriated to the Foreign Service Reserve $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to carry out this section.

SEC. 215. GRANTS FOR INTERNATIONAL DOCUMENTARY EXCHANGE PROGRAMS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Since September 11, 2001, a distorted perception of the United States has grown abroad, even as many Americans struggle to understand the increasingly complex world beyond the borders of the United States.

(2) This public diplomacy crisis poses an ongoing threat to United States security, diplomatic relations, commerce, and citizen-to-citizen relationships between the United States and other countries.

(3) Independently produced documentary films have proven to be an effective means of communicating United States ideas and values to populations of other countries.

It is in the interest of the United States to provide assistance to United States nongovernmental organizations that produce and distribute independently produced documentary films.

(b) ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary of State is authorized to make grants, on such terms and conditions as the Secretary may determine, to United States nongovernmental organizations that—

(1) use independently produced documentary films to promote better understanding of the United States abroad and better understanding of United States perspectives and other countries in the United States.

(c) ACTIVITIES SUPPORTED.—Grants provided under this section shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be used to carry out the following activities:

(1) Fund, distribute, and promote documentary films that convey a diversity of views about life in the United States to foreign audiences and bring insightful foreign perspectives to United States audiences.

(2) Give preference to nongovernmental organizations that use independently produced documentary films to promote better understanding of the United States abroad and better understanding of United States perspectives and other countries in the United States.

(d) SPECIAL FACTORS.—In making the grants described in subsection (b), the Secretary shall give preference to nongovernmental organizations that—

(1) provide at least 35 percent of the total project cost in matching funds from non-Federal sources; and

(2) have prior experience supporting independently produced documentary films that have been broadcast on public television in the United States.

(e) REPORT.—Not later than two years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report that contains a detailed description of the implementation of this section for the prior year.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts appropriated to be appropriated for Educational and Cultural Exchange Programs pursuant to section 1014(a), there is authorized to be appropriated to this section $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to carry out this section.

SEC. 216. UNITED STATES ADVISORY COMMISSION ON PUBLIC DIPLOMACY.—

(a) REAUTHORIZATION OF UNITED STATES ADVISORY COMMISSION ON PUBLIC DIPLOMACY.—

"(3) REPORTS REQUIRED.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (D), each head of a Federal agency referred to in subsection (b)(1) shall annually submit to the Secretary of State a report on the public diplomacy activities of such agency in the preceding year.

"(B) INFORMATION SHARING.—The President shall require the Secretaries of the various Federal agencies to submit pursuant to subparagraph (A).

"(C) INITIAL SUBMISSIONS.—The first annual reports required under subparagraph (A) shall be submitted not later than the date that is one year after the date of the enactment of this subsection.

"(D) LIMITATION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to activities carried out pursuant to section 167 of title 10, United States Code."

"(g) CONSULTATION.—Other than in consultation with the Secretary of State, the Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy shall not have any power or authority.

"(h) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy shall submit a report to the Secretary of State and the Committees on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the House of Representatives not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(i) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated for Educational and Cultural Exchange Programs pursuant to section 1014(a), there is authorized to be appropriated to this section $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to carry out this section.

(b) ADMINISTRATION OF PROGRAM.—Section 604(c)(2) of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (22 U.S.C. 1469(c)(2)) is amended to read as follows:

“(c) Administration and funding.—(1) The Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the Department of State, from the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs targeted to changing attitudes toward people with intellectual disabilities, developing leaders among the intellectual disability population, supporting families of people with these disabilities in their efforts to enhance educational and social outcomes, and enhancing government policies and programs for people with intellectual disabilities.

(2) Special Olympics has documented the challenge of intellectual disabilities as the world leader in providing life-changing sports for people with these disabilities. Special Olympics is recognized for more than four decades as the world’s leading sports organization for and by athletes with intellectual disabilities. Special Olympics is a voluntary federation of more than 150 national organizations in 170 countries, which conduct the Special Olympics Games and related activities for people with intellectual disabilities, from the local club level to the global level. These activities have received financial support from various sources, including the United States government, the private sector, and individual donors, to improve the lives of people with intellectual disabilities.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States-Caribbean Educational Exchange Program (``the Program’’) is an important component of the United States policy toward the Caribbean region.

(2) The Program provides educational opportunities to students from the Caribbean region to study in the United States, thereby enhancing mutual understanding and cooperation between the United States and the Caribbean countries.

(3) The Program is a testament to the commitment of the United States to support education and cultural exchange programs in the Caribbean region.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated pursuant to section 101(4), $759,000 is authorized to be appropriated for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to make available for the United States-Caribbean Scholarship Program.

(2) NAME.—Scholarships awarded under the Program shall be referred to as “Burton Scholarships.” Scholarships shall be referred to as “Burton Scholarships.”

(c) APPLICATION OF FUNDING.—The Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, in making appropriations for the Program, shall ensure that funding for the Program is used for the purposes described in this section.

(d) ADMINISTRATION OF PROGRAM.—The Secretary of State shall have the authority to make such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

(3) S ECRETARY.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, the program established pursuant to subsection (a) shall be carried out under applicable provisions of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (22 U.S.C. 1461 et seq.) and the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2451 et seq.; also referred to as the “ Fulbright-Hays Act’’).

(2) SCHOLARSHIP ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS.—In addition to such other requirements as may be established by the Secretary, students shall be eligible for participation in the Program if they:

(A) are citizens of the United States and are attending a college or university in the United States;

(B) have completed high school and have a minimum grade point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale;

(C) are enrolled as full-time undergraduate or graduate students;

(D) are of high moral character;

(E) are中华人民共和国公民.

(f) FUNDING.—The term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(1) Congress; and

(2) the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

(c) FUNDING.—The term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(1) Congress; and

(2) the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

(2) NAME.—Scholarships awarded under the Program shall be referred to as “Burton Scholarships.” Scholarships shall be referred to as “Burton Scholarships.”

(d) APPLICATION OF FUNDING.—The Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, in making appropriations for the Program, shall ensure that funding for the Program is used for the purposes described in this section.

(e) ADMINISTRATION OF PROGRAM.—The Secretary of State shall have the authority to make such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

(f) FUNDING.—The term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(1) Congress; and

(2) the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

(2) NAME.—Scholarships awarded under the Program shall be referred to as “Burton Scholarships.” Scholarships shall be referred to as “Burton Scholarships.”

(d) APPLICATION OF FUNDING.—The Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, in making appropriations for the Program, shall ensure that funding for the Program is used for the purposes described in this section.

(e) ADMINISTRATION OF PROGRAM.—The Secretary of State shall have the authority to make such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

(f) FUNDING.—The term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(1) Congress; and

(2) the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.
AGENCIES.—The Secretary shall consult with United States cooperating agencies in developing the program authorized under subsection (b). The Secretary is authorized to provide grants to United States cooperating agencies in carrying out the program authorized under subsection (b).

(c) ELEMENTS OF PROGRAM.—The program authorized under subsection (b) shall meet the following requirements:

(1) The program will offer scholarships to students and scholars based on merit and need. It is the sense of Congress that scholarships should be offered to students and scholars who evidence merit, achievement, and strong potential for the studies such students and scholars wish to undertake under the program and 60 percent of scholarships offered under the program should be based on financial need.

(2) The program will seek to achieve gender equality in granting scholarships under the program.

(3) Fields of study under the program will support the labor market and development needs of CARICOM countries, assuring a pool of technical experts to address such needs.

(4) The program will limit participation to:

(A) one year of study for secondary school students;
(B) two years of study for undergraduate students; and
(C) 12 months of study for graduate students, post-graduate students, and scholars.

(5) For purposes of this section, time equal to the period of time of participation in the program, but not to exceed two years, the program will require participants who are students and scholars described in subsection (1), to:

(A) agree to return to live in a CARICOM country and maintain residence in such country, within six months of completion of academic studies; or

(B) agree to obtain employment that directly benefits the growth, progress, and development of one or more CARICOM countries and the people of such countries.

(6) The Secretary may waive, shorten the duration, or otherwise alter the requirements of paragraph (4) in limited circumstances of hardship, humanitarian needs, for specific educational purposes, or in furtherance of the national interests of the United States.

(d) ROLE OF UNITED STATES COOPERATING AGENCIES.—The Secretary shall consult with United States cooperating agencies in developing the program authorized under subsection (b). The Secretary is authorized to provide grants to United States cooperating agencies in carrying out the program authorized under subsection (b).

(e) MONITORING AND EVALUATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall monitor and evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of the program, and the progress of the program under section 502(b) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 1101a(5));

(B) a higher education association;

(C) a nongovernmental organization incorporated in the United States; or

(D) a consortium consisting of two or more such institutions, associations, or nongovernmental organizations.

(2) REQUIREMENTS.—In carrying out paragraph (1), the Secretary shall review on a regular basis—

(A) financial information relating to the program;

(B) budget plans for the program;

(C) adjustments to plans established for the program;

(D) graduation rates of participants in the program;

(E) the percentage of participants who are students described in subsection (b)(1) who pursue higher education;

(F) the percentage of participants who return to their home country or another CARICOM country; and

(G) the types of careers pursued by participants in the program, the extent to which such careers are linked to the political, economic, and social development needs of CARICOM countries; and

(3) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a plan for selecting participants in the program, including an estimate of the number of secondary school students, undergraduate students, graduate students, post-graduate students, and scholars from each country, by educational level, who will be selected as participants in the program during the fiscal year;

(B) a timeline for selecting United States cooperating agencies that will assist in implementing the program;

(C) a financial plan that—

(i) identifies budget plans for each educational level under the program; and

(ii) identifies plans or systems to ensure that the costs to public school, college, and university education under the program and the costs to private school, college, and university education under the program are reasonably allocated; and

(D) a plan to provide outreach to and linkages with schools, colleges and universities, and non-governmental organizations in the United States and CARICOM countries for implementation of the program.

(3) UPDATES OF REPORT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on plans to implement the program authorized under this section.

(B) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED.—Such updates shall include, and be based on, the following:

(i) Information on United States cooperating agencies that are selected to assist in implementing the programs authorized under this section.

(ii) An analysis of the positive and negative impacts the program authorized under this section will have or is having on ‘‘brain drain’’ from the participating CARICOM countries.

(g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated pursuant to section 101(a)(2) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 1061(2)) or a Hispanic-serving institution for which amounts are appropriated pursuant to section 101(a)(2) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 1101a(5)), the Secretary shall consult with:

(A) a financial institution;

(B) a higher education association;

(C) a nongovernmental organization incorporated in the United States; or

(D) a consortium consisting of two or more such institutions, associations, or nongovernmental organizations.

(b) PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of State is authorized to establish an educational exchange program between the United States and CARICOM countries to be known as the "Shirley A. Chisholm United States-Caribbean Educational Exchange Program", under which—

(1) secondary school students from CARICOM countries will—

(A) attend a public or private secondary school in the United States; and

(B) participate in activities designed to promote a greater understanding of the values and culture of the United States; and

(2) undergraduate students, graduate students, scholars, and students from CARICOM countries will—

(A) attend a public or private college or university, including a community college, in the United States; and

(B) participate in activities designed to promote a greater understanding of the values and culture of the United States.

(c) REQUIREMENTS.—In carrying out section (b), the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on plans to implement the program authorized under this section.

(1) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on plans to implement the program authorized under this section.

(2) REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall report to the appropriate congressional committees—

(i) the types of careers pursued by participants in the program, and the extent to which such careers are linked to the political, economic, and social development needs of CARICOM countries; and

(ii) an analysis of the positive and negative impacts the program will require participants to do:

(i) expand the program to include all CARICOM countries;

(ii) include the United States and CARICOM countries in the program; and

(iii) extend the duration of the program

(3) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a plan for selecting participants in the program, including an estimate of the number of secondary school students, undergraduate students, graduate students, post-graduate students, and scholars from each country, by educational level, who will be selected as participants in the program during the fiscal year;

(B) a timeline for selecting United States cooperating agencies that will assist in implementing the program;

(C) a financial plan that—

(i) identifies budget plans for each educational level under the program; and

(ii) identifies plans or systems to ensure that the costs to public school, college, and university education under the program and the costs to private school, college, and university education under the program are reasonably allocated; and

(D) a plan to provide outreach to and linkages with schools, colleges and universities, and non-governmental organizations in the United States and CARICOM countries for implementation of the program.

(3) UPDATES OF REPORT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees updates of the report required by paragraph (1) for each fiscal year for which amounts are appropriated pursuant to section 101(a)(2) of such Act (20 U.S.C. 1101a(5));

SEC. 245. ARMS CONTROL AND NONPROLIFERATION ROTATION PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State (in this section referred to as the “Secretary”), in consultation with the heads of other Federal departments and agencies that are involved in United States arms control and nonproliferation activities, shall establish the Arms Control and Nonproliferation Rotation Program (in this section referred to as the “Rotation Program”) for employees of the Department of State (in this section referred to as the “Department”) and such other Federal departments and agencies. The Rotation Program shall use applicable best practices, including those prescribed by the Chief Human Capital Officers Council. Employees of the Department and any other Federal department or agency participating in the Rotation Program may be detailed among the Department or such department or agency on a non-reimbursable basis.

(2) DUTIES.—The Rotation Program shall—

(A) be established in accordance with the human capital strategic plan of the Department;
(B) provide midlevel Foreign Service officers and employees of the Department, and employees of other Federal departments and agencies concerned with arms control and nonproliferation responsibilities, an opportunity to broaden their knowledge through exposure to other areas of the Department and other Federal departments and agencies;

(C) expand the knowledge base of the Department by providing for rotational assignments of employees to other Federal departments and agencies;

(D) foster professional relationships and contacts among the employees in such other Federal departments and agencies;

(E) enhance the Department’s arms control and nonproliferation workforce with professionally rewarding opportunities; and

(F) incorporate human capital strategic plans and departmental requirements, and address critical human capital deficiencies, professional development, recruitment and retention efforts, and succession planning within the Federal workforce of the Department.

(3) RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Secretary shall—

(A) provide oversight of the establishment and implementation of the Rotation Program;

(B) establish a framework that supports the goals of the Rotation Program and promotes cross disciplinary rotational opportunities;

(C) establish eligibility for employees of other Federal departments and agencies with national security responsibilities to participate in the Rotation Program and select participants from such employees who apply;

(D) establish criteria for such employees to participate in the Rotation Program, including promotions and employment preferences;

(E) ensure that the Rotation Program provides professional education and training;

(F) ensure that the Rotation Program develops qualified employees and future leaders with broad based experience throughout the Department; and

(G) provide for greater interaction among employees in such Federal departments and agencies, including the Agency.

(4) ALLOWANCES, PRIVILEGES, AND BENEFITS.—All allowances, privileges, rights, seniority, and other benefits of employees participating in the Rotation Program shall be preserved.

(5) REPORTING.—Not later than one year after the date of the establishment of the Rotation Program, the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a description of the Rotation Program, the number of individuals participating, and how the Rotation Program is used for succession planning and leadership development.

SEC. 246. ARMS CONTROL AND NONPROLIFERATION SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State (in this section referred to as the “Secretary”) shall establish a scholarship program (to be known as the “Arms Control and Nonproliferation Scholarship Program”) to award scholarships for the purpose of recruiting and preparing students for careers in the fields of critical arms control or nonproliferation positions needed by the Department and for which the individuals are qualified, in exchange for receiving a scholarship.

(ii) ELIGIBILITY.—Except as provided in subsection (f), in order to be eligible to participate in the scholarship program, an individual shall be enrolled full-time in a graduate or professional program at a U.S. institution of higher education.

(iii) APPLICATION.—An individual seeking a scholarship under this section shall submit to the Secretary an application at such time, in such manner, and containing such information, agreements, or assurances as the Secretary may require.

(iv) PROGRAMS AND FIELDS OF STUDY.—The Secretary shall make publicly available a list of eligible programs of study for which scholarships under this section may be awarded.

(v) SCHOLARSHIPS.—The Secretary may award a scholarship under this section for an academic year if the individual applying for the scholarship has submitted to the Secretary, as part of the application required under subsection (c), a proposed academic program leading to a degree in a program or field of study specified on the list made available under subsection (d).

(b) PAYMENT TO INSTITUTION OF HIGHER EDUCATION.—(A) the total amount of the scholarship received by such recipient under this section; and

(b) the interest on such amounts which would be payable if at the time the scholarship was received such scholarship was a loan bearing interest at the maximum legally prevailing rate.

(h) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations necessary to carry out this section.

(i) INSTITUTION OF HIGHER EDUCATION DEFINED.—In this section, the term “institution of higher education” has the meaning given such term under section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

(j) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated under section 101, such sums as may be necessary are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section.

SEC. 247. SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—The President may establish a Scientific Advisory Committee (referred to as the “Committee”) of not to exceed ten members, not fewer than eight of whom shall be scientists.

(ii) APPOINTMENT.—If the Committee is established in accordance with paragraph (1), the members of the Committee shall be appointed by the President, as follows:

(iii) MEETINGS.—If the Committee is established in accordance with paragraph (1), the Committee shall meet not less often than twice per year.

(b) FUNCTION.—If the Committee is established in accordance with paragraph (1), the Committee shall—

(i) make such studies and recommendations as the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, as Chairman of the Committee, may require.

(ii) any advice and consent of the Senate, as Chairman of the Committee.

(b) MEETINGS.—If the Committee is established in accordance with paragraph (1), the Committee shall meet not less often than twice per year.

(c) REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES.—If the Committee is established in accordance with subsection (a)(1), the members of the Committee may receive reimbursement of expenses only in accordance with the provisions applicable to the reimbursement of expenses under section 401(d) of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act (Public Law 87-297; 22 U.S.C. 2581(d)).

(d) SCIENTIST DEFINED.—In this section, the term “scientist” means an individual who has demonstrated knowledge and technical expertise with respect to arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament matters and who has distinguished himself or herself in any of the fields of physics, chemistry, mathematics, biology, or engineering, including weapons engineering.
TITLE III—ORGANIZATION AND PERSONNEL AUTHORITIES

Subtitle A—Towards Modernizing the Department of State

SEC. 301. TOWARDS A MORE MODERN AND EXPERIENCE-DIRECTED FOREIGN SERVICE.

(a) TARGETED EXPANSION OF FOREIGN SERVICE.—The Secretary of State shall expand the Foreign Service to—

(1) vacancies, particularly those vacancies overseas that are critical to key United States foreign policy and national security interests, and, in particular, to prevent crises before they emerge.

(2) increase the capacity of the Department of State to assign and deploy Foreign Service officers and other personnel to prevent, mitigate, and respond to natural and man-made disasters and instability in foreign countries that threaten key United States foreign policy and national security interests; and

(3) ensure that, before being assigned to assignments requiring new or improved skills, members of the Foreign Service, other than foreign national employees and consular agents (as such terms are defined in section 103 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 (22 U.S.C. 3903)), as appropriate, receive language, security, area, and other training that is necessary to successfully execute their responsibilities and to enable such members to obtain advanced and other education that will increase the capacity of the Foreign Service to complete its mission.

(b) AUTHORIZED INCREASES.—

(1) AT THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE.—The Secretary of State is authorized to hire an additional 750 members of the Foreign Service (above attrition) in fiscal year 2010 over the number of such members employed as of September 30, 2009, and an additional 750 members of the Foreign Service (above attrition) in fiscal year 2011 over the number of such members employed as of September 30, 2010.

(a) DEVELOPMENT OF NATIONAL STRATEGY ON DIPLOMACY AND DEVELOPMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 1, 2010, the President shall instruct and transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a national strategy on United States diplomacy and development. The strategy shall include the following:

(A) An identification of key objectives and missions for United States diplomacy and development, including a clear statement on United States objectives for development assistance.

(B) A description of the roles and responsibilities of and strategic mechanisms for cooperation between such departments and agencies and the mechanisms for cooperation between such departments and agencies and offices defining sufficient capacity, resources, overseas infrastructure, budget plan, and other elements of United States diplomacy and development.

(C) The requirements for overseas infrastructure necessary to carry out such strategy.

(D) Plans to change the roles and mechanisms to changing circumstances and the role of international institutions in such strategy.

(E) Budget requirements to carry out such strategy.

(F) Other elements of United States foreign policy and foreign assistance policies and programs with a priority on furthering the strategy of the United States and establishing a diplomacy and development program for the next ten years.

(b) RELATION TO NATIONAL SECURITY STRATEGY.—The strategy described in paragraph (1) shall be consistent with any National Security Strategy prescribed by the President pursuant to section 108 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 404a) that has been issued after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) TRANSFER OF FUNDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Beginning in 2013, the President shall every four years, during a year following the year in which such a Quadrennial Review is conducted, but not later than the date on which the President submits the budget for the next fiscal year to Congress under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code. The report shall include the following:

(A) The results of such a Quadrennial Review, including a comprehensive discussion of the national strategy for United States diplomacy and foreign assistance policies and programs, the roles and responsibilities of and strategic guidance for civilian agencies and mechanisms in implementing such strategy, the requirements for overseas infrastructure necessary to carry out such strategy, plans to adapt such agencies and mechanisms to changing circumstances, and the role of international institutions in such strategy,

(B) The assumed or defined objectives and missions that inform the national strategy for United States foreign policy and foreign assistance policies and programs.

(C) The threats to the assumed or defined objectives and missions of the United States that were examined for the purposes of such a Quadrennial Review.

(D) The assumptions used in such a Quadrennial Review, including assumptions relating to—

(i) the capacity of United States diplomatic and development personnel to respond to such threats.

(ii) the cooperation and capacity of allies, other friendly countries, and international institutions in addressing such threats.

(iii) levels of engagement in operations other than war and smaller-scale contingencies and withdrawal from such operations and contingencies, and

(iv) the intensity, duration, and military and political end-states of conflicts and smaller-scale contingencies that arise in the diplomatic and development context.

(E) The assumed or defined roles and missions of the reserve components available to civilian agencies, including capabilities and resources necessary to such reserve components that can capably discharge such roles and missions.

(F) The extent to which diplomatic and development personnel need to be shifted to different regions to carry out the national strategy under subsection (a).

(G) Any other matter the Secretary considers appropriate.

(2) REPORT ON ASSESSMENT.—Not later than six months before the date on which the report on a Quadrennial Review of Diplomacy and Development is to be transmitted under subsection (d), the President shall direct an independent panel to conduct an assessment of such a Quadrennial Review.

(R) RENEWAL.—Not later than three months after the date on which the report on such a Quadrennial Review is transmitted under subsection (d), the panel established under paragraph (1) shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees an independent report on such a Quadrennial Review, including an assessment of the recommendations of such a Quadrennial Review, the implementation and assumptions incorporated in such a Quadrennial Review, and the vulnerabilities of the strategy underlying such a Quadrennial Review.

(3) ESTABLISHMENT OF THE LESSONS LEARNED CENTER.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of State, in coordination with the Office of the Administrator for Management and the Office of International Development (USAID), is authorized to establish in the Department of State and under the authority of the Undersecretary for Management a Lessons Learned Center (referred to in this section as the “LLC”) which will serve as a central organization for collection, analysis, archiving, and dissemination of observations, best practices, lessons learned by, from, and to Foreign Service officers and support personnel in the Department of State and USAID.

(b) POLICY REVIEW.—The Secretary of State shall direct a policy review to assess the adequacy of locally employed staff compensation. In carrying out such policy review the Secretary shall consult with the relevant committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate, the Chief Financial Officer, the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of State, including the following:

(1) The Bureau of Human Resources, in coordination with the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, should hire an outside contractor with international experience to perform an organizational review of the Compensation Management Division of the Office of Overseas Employment to advise on the organization of the compensation management division and how many analysts it can handle the compensation management responsibilities, and to recommend training and certifiable course requirements.

(2) The Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, in coordination with the Bureau of Human Resources and the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, should ensure that the working group on locally employed staff compensation reviews the connectivity between the activities of the Office of Overseas Employment and the Bureau of Operations and Budget in the Bureau of Resource Management, and makes and distributes written, documented determinations as to what the data used by the two offices to make estimates of locally employed staff compensation adjustments, the timing of these activities, and the responsibility each office has for tracking implementation of locally employed staff compensation adjustments.

(3) The Bureau of Human Resources, in coordination with the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, should implement a locally employed staff compensation review process whereby the Office of Overseas Employment in the Bureau of Human Resources revises, revises, and adjusts each post’s salary schedule every five years based on a recent salary survey. During the intervening years, the Department should authorize cost-of-living (or inflation) adjustments based on relevant data.

(4) The Bureau of Human Resources, in coordination with the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, should implement a systematic process of providing comprehensive information to diplomatic and consular missions, Department of State offices, and agency headquarters on periodic salary survey reviews, including comprehensive salary survey analysis, explanations of salary survey changes, and if appropriate, copies of the off-the-shelf surveys for the host country.

This approach should be documented and made a part of the periodic process.

(5) The Bureau of Human Resources, in coordination with the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, the regional bureaus, and the Bureau of Resource Management, should establish, maintain, and monitor a data base tracking contributions to locally employed staff compensation and adjustments, including budgetary resources, salary level ceilings calculated by the Office of Overseas Employment, salary levels requested by post, salary levels implemented, dates for these activities, and calculations of whether the Department is meeting prevailing practice. This database should replace the current practice of communicating salary review information by cable.

(6) The Bureau of Human Resources, in coordination with the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation, should evaluate the possibility of using different pay setting data establishing different pay scales for blue-collar positions and for professional level positions, and should issue and distribute a written report on the findings and the possibility of implementing the finding.

(7) The Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation should ensure that the working group on locally employed staff compensation and the Bureau of Management and the Office of Management, Policy, Rightsizing and Innovation should document the decision in writing, and distribute the decision widely in the Department of State and to other agencies that employ locally employed staff.

(b) The Office of Management, Policy, Rights, and Innovation should ensure that the working group on locally employed staff compensation considers the possibility of centralizing decision making for locally employed staff increases and, whether such is eventually implemented or not, make a determination as to its value, document the decision in writing, and distribute the decision widely in the Department of State.

(9) The Bureau of Human Resources, in cooperation with Resource Management International Cooperative Administrative Support Services, which is a senior level inter-agency locally employed staff board of governors to set overall locally employed staff policy.

(10) The Bureau of Human Resources should send the cable announcing the proposed salary increases for locally employed staff to the attention of both the chief of mission and the management officer.

(11) The Bureau of Human Resources should request a list of position titles and grades from all positions with exception rate ranges and details on the exception rate range adjustments in the 2010 Locally Employed Staff Compensation Questionnaire.

(c) Report—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate committees a report on the implementation of this section, including a review of efforts to implement the recommendations of the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of State specified in subsection (b).

(a) IN GENERAL.—In addition to other authorities that may be available, the Secretary of State may establish a pilot program (in this section referred to as the “program”) for the purpose of hiring United States citizens or aliens as personal services contractors, for service in the United States, or for service both in the United States and abroad, to respond to new or emerging needs or to augment current services.

(b) CONDITIONS.—The Secretary is authorized to use the authority of subsection (a), subject to the following conditions:

(1) The Secretary determines that existing personal resources are insufficient.

(2) The contract length, including options, may not exceed two years, unless the Secretary makes a finding that exceptional circumstances justify an extension of up to one additional year.

(3) Not more than a total of 200 United States citizens or aliens are employed at any one time as personal services contractors under this section.

(4) This authority may only be used to obtain specialized skills or experience or to respond to urgent needs.

(c) STATUS OF PERSONAL SERVICE CONTRACTORS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—An individual hired as a personal service contractor pursuant to this section shall not, by virtue of such hiring, be considered to be an employee of the United States Government for purposes of any law administered by the Office of Personnel Management.

(2) APPLICABLE LAWS.—An individual hired as a personal service contractor pursuant to this section shall be covered, in the same manner as a similarly-situated employee, by—

(A) the Ethics in Government Act of 1978;

(B) section 27 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act; and

(C) chapter 73 of title 5, sections 201, 203, 205, 207, 208, and 209 of title 18, and section 1346 and chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code.

Determination.—This section shall not affect the determination as to whether an individual hired as a personal service contractor... pursuant to this section is an employee of the United States Government for purposes of any Federal law not specified in paragraphs (1) and (2).

(d) TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY.—The authority to award personal services contracts under the program authorized by this section shall terminate on September 30, 2011. A contract entered into prior to the termination date under this subsection may remain in effect until expiration.

Subtitle B—General Provisions

SEC. 411. ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) multilateral diplomacy in the context of the Americas has suffered considerably in the past decade, to the detriment of the national interest of the United States in the region;

(2) given the recent proliferation of multilateral groupings in the Americas region in which the United States is not a member, it is imperative to focus on and promote United States diplomatic efforts in the Organization of American States (OAS), where the United States is a founding member and whose central tenets include democratic values considered vital for this region;

(3) it is critical for the United States to immediately re-establish its unique leadership voice in this region and specifically in the OAS setting; and

(4) an effective and sustained commitment to achieving this short term objective is critical to promote multilateral interests of the United States in the region.

(b) MULTILATERAL FUND.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There is hereby established in the Department of State a Fund to Promote Multilateralism in the Americas (referred to in this section as the “Fund”).

(2) ACTIVITIES SUPPORTED.—The Fund shall support activities that promote the multilateral interests of the United States in the Americas region, including—

(A) United States diplomatic activities within and related to the OAS;

(B) voluntary contributions to entities and organs of the OAS to carry out programs and activities that support the interests of the United States;

(C) outreach and cultural activities;

(D) conferences; and

(E) general advocacy for United States interests.

(c) ADMINISTRATION.—The Fund shall be administered by the United States Mission to the OAS as directed by the United States Permanent Representative to the OAS, for use on matters that arise in the context of the OAS.

(d) AUTHORIZATION.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated for the administration of Foreign Affairs pursuant to section 101, it is authorized to be appropriated $2,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 only to carry out this section.

SEC. 412. PEACEKEEPING OPERATIONS CONTRIBUTIONS.

SEC. 413. PACIFIC ISLANDS FORUM.

It is the sense of Congress that the Secretary of State should work with the Pacific Islands Forum to find appropriate affiliations for representation of American Samoa and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

SEC. 414. REVIEW OF ACTIVITIES OF INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act and two years thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on the activities of each of the commissions specified in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of subsection (c).

(b) REPORT ELEMENTS.—The reports required under subsection (a) shall include information concerning the following:

1. Amounts obligated and expended during the two previous fiscal years by each of such commissions.

2. A description of the projects carried out during such years by each of such commissions and a description of the management and implementation of such projects, including the use of private contractors.

3. A description of projects anticipated during the next two fiscal years related to the activities of each of such commissions because of obligations that the United States has entered into based on any agreement between the United States and another country.

(c) SUBMISSION OF THE REPORTS.—The reports required by this section shall be submitted by the President in accordance with section 1001(a) of title 31, United States Code.

SEC. 415. ENHANCING NUCLEAR SAFEGUARDS.

FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, done at Washington, London, and Moscow July 1, 1968, came into force March 5, 1970 (commonly known as the “Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty” or “NPT”) and the safeguards system of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) are indispensable to international peace and security.

(2) Congress has long supported efforts aimed at effective and efficient assurances of nuclear fuel supply, the strengthening of IAEA safeguards, and assistance to the developing world for nuclear and non-nuclear uses.

(3) In fiscal year 2007, IAEA published its findings:

(a) “The Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (commonly known as the ‘NPT’ or ‘Treaty’) and the safeguards system of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) are indispensable to international peace and security. Congress that—

(b) the Agency is facing a looming human capital crisis and is facing growing demands from member states for enhanced mission capability, while its ability to meet IAEA requirements as its workforce grows, the strengthening of IAEA safeguards, and assistance to the developing world for nuclear and non-nuclear uses, as mandated in the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act of 1978 (22 U.S.C. 2301 et seq.).

The Government Accountability Office (GAO) stated in testimony before Congress in September 2006 that ‘while IAEA is increasingly relying on the analytical skills of its staff to detect countries’ undeclared nuclear activities, the agency is facing a looming human capital crisis.

The Director General of the IAEA told the Board of Governors of the IAEA in March 2009 that the ‘deteriorating conditions in our laboratories, for example, threaten both our ability to deliver programs of work and as one of the foundation of IAEA’s independent analytical capability’.

(4) Considerable investment is needed for the IAEA’s Safeguards Analytical Laboratory (SAL), to meet future IAEA requirements as its workload is growing, the laboratory’s infrastructure is aging, and IAEA requirements have become more demanding, while initial plans have been made for laboratory enhancement work is growing, the laboratory’s infrastructure is aging, and IAEA requirements have become more demanding, while initial plans have been made for laboratory enhancement, and are currently pending budgetary approval (sometime in 2009), the simple fact is that, as the agency is facing growing demands from member states for enhanced mission capability, the agency is facing a looming human capital crisis.

(5) The Director General of the IAEA told the Board of Governors of the IAEA in March 2009 that the ‘deteriorating conditions in our laboratories, for example, threaten both our ability to deliver programs of work and as one of the foundation of IAEA’s independent analytical capability’.

(6) Considerable investment is needed for the IAEA’s Safeguards Analytical Laboratory (SAL), to meet future IAEA requirements as its workload is growing, the laboratory’s infrastructure is aging, and IAEA requirements have become more demanding, while initial plans have been made for laboratory enhancement, and are currently pending budgetary approval (sometime in 2009), the simple fact is that, as the agency is facing growing demands from member states for enhanced mission capability, the agency is facing a looming human capital crisis.

(7) The existing finding, planning, and execution of IAEA safeguards is not sufficient to deliver our programmed, as well as our independent analytical capability.”.  "The existing finding, planning, and execution of IAEA safeguards is not sufficient to deliver our programmed, as well as our independent analytical capability.”.  "The existing finding, planning, and execution of IAEA safeguards is not sufficient to deliver our programmed, as well as our independent analytical capability.”.  "The existing finding, planning, and execution of IAEA safeguards is not sufficient to deliver our programmed, as well as our independent analytical capability.”.  "The existing finding, planning, and execution of IAEA safeguards is not sufficient to deliver our programmed, as well as our independent analytical capability.”.
civilians nuclear power must be evaluated against the challenges it poses to verification of the assurances of peace and security provided by the IAEA safeguards system.

SEC. 416. IMPLEMENTATION OF RECOMMENDATIONS OF COMMISSION ON THE PREVENTION OF WEAPONS OF mass DESTRUCTION PROLIFERATION AND TERRORISM.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated $10,000,000 for the refurbishment or possible replacement of the IAEA’s Safeguards Analytical Laboratory.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate a report on the refurbishment or possible replacement of the IAEA’s Safeguards Analytical Laboratory.

SEC. 501. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING.

The following amounts are authorized to be appropriated to carry out United States international broadcasting activities under the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948, the Radio Broadcasting to Cuba Act, the Television Broadcasting to Cuba Act, the Information International Broadcasting Act of 1994, and the Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998, and to carry out other authorities in law consistent with such purposes:

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States’ continued engagement in Asia must be a cornerstone of United States foreign policy;

(2) the President must elevate the role of the United States in the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation Forum (APEC) by ensuring that United States Government officials of the appropriate rank attend APEC activities; and

(3) increased participation by United States small businesses in APEC fora and negotiations is necessary for manufacturers, will add substantial benefit to APEC discussions and help strengthen the influence of the United States within APEC.

TITLE VII—PEACE CORPS
SEC. 601. FINDINGS AND POLICY.
(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:
(1) On October 14, 1960, then Senator John F. Kennedy addressed students on the steps of the University of Michigan Union to enlist their effort to make the world a better place by serving their country abroad.
(2) On June 17, 1961, then President John F. Kennedy signed an Executive Order establishing a Peace Corps that was “designed to permit our people to exercise more fully their responsibilities in the great common cause of world development”.
(3) Since its establishment, the Peace Corps has been guided by its mission to promote world peace and friendship and has sought to fulfill the following three goals:
(A) To help the people of interested countries in meeting their needs for trained men and women.
(B) To promote a better understanding of Americans on the part of the peoples served.
(C) To promote a better understanding of other peoples on the part of Americans.
(4) Over the last 48 years, nearly 260,000 Peace Corps volunteers have served in 139 countries.
(5) The Peace Corps is the world’s premier international service organization dedicated to promoting sustainable grassroots development by working with people in countries in the areas of agriculture, business development, education, the environment, health, and HIV/AIDS, and youth.
(6) The Peace Corps remains committed to sending well trained and well supported Peace Corps volunteers overseas to promote peace, friendship, cross-cultural awareness, and mutual understanding between the United States and other countries.
(7) The Peace Corps has an impressive record of engendering good will through the service that American volunteers provide.
(8) Recognizing the Peace Corps’ unique and effective role in promoting volunteer service by American citizens, President Obama and Vice President Biden announced their intent to double the size of Peace Corps in an expeditions and effective manner.
(9) Of the nearly 4 million Americans applied in 2008 to volunteer their service to serve the world’s poorest communities in the Peace Corps, a 16 percent increase over the nearly 11,000 applications received in 2007.
(10) Under current funding levels, the Peace Corps is able to provide new placements for only one-third of the American applicants seeking the opportunity to serve their country and the world. At the end of fiscal year 2008, there were nearly 8,000 Peace Corps volunteers serving in 76 countries around the world.
(b) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to—
(1) double the number of Peace Corps volunteers working abroad and improve the Peace Corps and its programs; and
(2) improve the coordination of Peace Corps programs with development programs of other Federal departments and agencies, without diminishing the independence of the Peace Corps; and
(3) promote all types of volunteerism by Americans in the developing world.
SEC. 602. AMENDMENTS TO THE PEACE CORPS ACT
(a) PEACE CORPS RESPONSE PROGRAM.—The Peace Corps Act (22 U.S.C. 2501 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 5 the following:

The Director of the Peace Corps is authorized to establish a special program that assigns returned Peace Corps volunteers or other volunteers to provide short-term development or other relief assistance or to otherwise be assigned or made available to any entity referred to in subsection (a) of such section that shall be less than the term of service of a volunteer under section 5. Except to the extent determined necessary and appropriate by the Director, the terms of the volunteers assigned under this section may not exceed one year and shall not be counted as part of the term of service of such volunteer.

(b) COORDINATION OF PEACE CORPS PROGRAMS.—(1) Paragraph (2) of section 4(c) of the Peace Corps Act (22 U.S.C. 2503(c)) is amended to read as follows:
“(2) The Director of the Peace Corps shall, as appropriate, and to the maximum extent practicable without diminishing any program or operation, exchange personnel with the heads of Federal departments and agencies to identify synergies and avoid duplication of efforts with Peace Corps programs in the field and at headquarters.”.
(c) REASSIGNMENT ALLOWANCE.—Subsection (c) of section 5 of the Peace Corps Act (22 U.S.C. 2504(c)) is amended, in the first sentence, by striking “$225” and inserting “$250”.
(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 3(b)(1) of the Peace Corps Act (22 U.S.C. 2502(b)(1)) is amended by striking “$270,000,000” and inserting “$250,000,000” and shall be expended at the end and inserting the following: “$450,000,000 for fiscal year 2010 and such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2011”.

SEC. 603. REPORT.
(a) PEACE CORPS RESPONSE PROGRAM REPORT.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of the Peace Corps shall submit to appropriate congressional committees a report on the Peace Corps Response Program or any similar program developed under in accordance with section 5A of the Peace Corps Act (as added by section 602(a) of this Act), including information on the following:
(1) The achievements and challenges of the Peace Corps Response Program or any similar program since its inception as the Peace Corps Crisis Corps in 1996.
(2) The goals, objectives, program areas, and growth projections for the Peace Corps Response Program or any similar program from fiscal year 2010 through fiscal year 2011.
(3) The standards and requirements used to select volunteers for service under the Peace Corps Response Program or any similar program.
(4) The measures used to evaluate projects of the Peace Corps Response Program or any similar program and the effectiveness of volunteers assigned to such Program or similar program at achieving identified objectives.
(b) ANNUAL REPORTS.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act and annually thereafter, the Director of the Peace Corps shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on progress made in carrying out this title, including efforts to strengthen coordination between the Peace Corps and other Federal departments and agencies carrying out development assistance programs (as required under paragraph (2) of section 4(c) of the Peace Corps Act (22 U.S.C. 2503(c)), as amended by section 606(b) of this Act).

TITLE VII—SENATOR PAUL SIMON STUDY ABROAD FOUNDATION ACT OF 2009
SEC. 701. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Senator Paul Simon Study Abroad Foundation Act of 2009”.

SEC. 702. FINDINGS.
Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to former President George W. Bush, “America’s leadership and national security rest on our commitment to educate and prepare our youth for active engagement in the international community.”
(2) According to former President William J. Clinton, “Today, the defense of United States interests, the effective management of global issues, and even an under standing of our Nation’s diversity require ever-greater contact with, and understanding of, people and cultures beyond our borders.”
(3) Congress authorized the establishment of the Commission on the Abraham Lincoln Study Abroad Fellowship Program pursuant to section 104 of the Pell Grant Internationalization Appropriations and offsets Act, 2004 (division h of Public Law 108–199).
(4) According to the Lincoln Commission, “[s]tudy abroad is one of the major means of producing foreign language speakers and enhancing foreign language proficiencies. It is, for that reason, ‘is simply essential to the Nation’s security.’”
(5) Studies consistently show that United States students who study abroad score higher on托福 and other advanced countries on indicators of international knowledge. This lack of global literacy is a national liability in an age of global trade and business, global interdependence, and global terror.
(6) Americans believe that it is important for their children to learn other languages, study abroad, attend a college where they can interact with international students, learn about other countries and cultures, and generally be prepared for the global age.
(7) In today’s world, it is more important than ever for the United States to be a responsible, constructive leader that other countries will willingly follow. Such leadership can be sustained without an informed citizenry with significant knowledge and awareness of the world.
(8) Study abroad has proven to be a very effective means of imparting international and foreign language competency to students.
(9) In any given year, only approximately one percent of all students enrolled in United States institutions of higher education study abroad.
(10) Less than 10 percent of the students who graduate from United States institutions of higher education with bachelor’s degrees have studied abroad.
(11) Far more study abroad must take place in developing countries. Ninety-five percent of the world’s population growth over the next 50 years will occur outside of Europe, yet in the academic year 2004–2005, 60 percent of United States students studying abroad studied in Europe, and 45 percent studied in four countries—the United Kingdom, Japan, France, and China.
(12) The Final Report of the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States (the 9/11 Commission) recommended that the United States increase support for “scholarship, exchange, and library programs”. The 9/11 Public Discourse Project, successor to the 9/11 Commission, noted in its November 14, 2005, status report for “scholarship, exchange and library programs” a grade of “D” for its implementation of this recommendation.
(13) Investing in a national study abroad program would help turn an “A” by equipping United States students to communicate United States values and way of life through the unique dialogue that takes place among citizens from around the world when individuals study abroad.

(14) An enhanced national study abroad program shall be offered by the United States Government initiatives to promote educational, social, and political reform and the status of women in developing and reforming societies around the world, such as the Middle East Partnership Initiative.

(15) To complement such worthwhile Federal programs and initiatives as the Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship Program, the National Security Education Program, and the National Security Language Initiative, a broad-based undergraduate study abroad program is needed to provide many more study abroad opportunities accessible to all undergraduate students, regardless of their field of study, ethnicity, socio-economic status, or gender.

(16) To restore America’s standing in the world, President Barack Obama has said that he will call on our nation’s greatest resource, our people, to reach out to and engage with other nations.

SEC. 703. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this title are to—

(1) to significantly enhance the global competitiveness of the United States, increase the educational, cultural, and professional knowledge base of the United States by ensuring that more United States students have the opportunity to acquire foreign language skills and international knowledge through significantly expanded study abroad;

(2) to enhance the foreign policy capacity of the United States by significantly expanding and diversifying the talent pool of individuals with non-traditional foreign language skills and cultural knowledge in the United States who are available for recruitment by United States foreign policy agencies, legislative branch agencies, and nongovernmental organizations involved in foreign affairs activities;

(3) to ensure that an increasing portion of study abroad opportunities are accessible to nontraditional students; and

(4) to create greater cultural understanding of the United States by exposing foreign students and their families to United States students in communities of welcoming United States host institutions and large numbers of United States students.

(ii) MEMBER OF THE BOARD.—A member of the Board shall not be paid compensation under clause (i) for more than 90 days in any calendar year.

SEC. 706. ESTABLISHMENT AND OPERATION OF PROGRAM

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF THE PROGRAM.—There is hereby established a program, which shall—
(1) be administered by the Foundation; and
(2) award grants to—
(A) United States students for study abroad;
(B) nongovernmental institutions that provide and promote study abroad opportunities for United States students, in consortium with institutions described in subparagraph (C); and
(C) institutions of higher education, individually or in consortium, in order to accomplish the objectives set forth in subsection (b).

(b) OBJECTIVES.—The objectives of the program established under subsection (a) are that, within ten years of the date of the enactment of this Act—
(1) not less than 1,000,000 undergraduate United States students will study abroad annually for credit;
(2) the demographics of study-abroad participation will reflect the demographics of the United States population, including students enrolled in community colleges, minority-serving institutions, and institutions serving large numbers of low-income and first-generation students; and
(3) an increasing portion of study abroad will take place in nontraditional study abroad destinations, with a substantial portion of such increases taking place in developing countries.

(c) MANDATE OF THE PROGRAM.—In order to accomplish the objectives set forth in subsection (b), the Foundation shall, in administering the program established under subsection (a), take fully into account the recommendations of the Commission on the Abraham Lincoln Study Abroad Fellowship Program (established pursuant to the McCormick National Competitiveness Act, 2004 division H of Public Law 108-199).

(d) STRUCTURE OF GRANTS.—In accordance with the recommendations of the Commission on the Abraham Lincoln Study Abroad Fellowship Program, grants awarded under the program established under subsection (a) shall be structured in a manner that is consistent with the recommendations of the Commission.

GRANTS TO INDIVIDUALS AND INSTITUTIONS.

(1) PROMOTING REFORM.—In accordance with the recommendations of the Commission on the Abraham Lincoln Study Abroad Fellowship Program, grants awarded under the program established under subsection (a) shall be structured in a manner that is consistent with the recommendations of the Commission.

(2) GRANTS TO INDIVIDUALS AND INSTITUTIONS.—It is the sense of Congress that—
(A) the Foundation should award not more than 25 percent of the funds awarded as grants to individuals described in subparagraph (A) of subsection (a)(2) and not less than 75 percent of such grants to institutions described in subparagraphs (B) and (C) of such subsection; and
(B) the Foundation should ensure that not less than 85 percent of the amount awarded to such institutions is used to award scholarships to students.

(e) BALANCE OF LONG-TERM AND SHORT-TERM STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS.—In administering the program established under subsection (a), the Foundation shall seek an appropriate balance between—

(1) longer-term study abroad programs, which maximize foreign-language learning and intercultural understanding; and
(2) shorter-term study abroad programs, which may maximize the visibility of study abroad to nontraditional students.

(f) QUALITY AND SAFETY IN STUDY ABROAD.—In administering the program established under subsection (a), the Foundation shall require that institutions receiving grants demonstrate that—
(1) the study abroad programs for which students receive grant funds are for academic credit; and
(2) the programs have established health and safety guidelines and procedures.

SEC. 707. POWERS OF THE FOUNDATION; RELATED PROVISIONS

(a) POWERS.—The Foundation—
(1) shall have perpetual succession unless dissolved by a law enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act;
(2) may adopt, alter, and use a seal, which shall be judicially noticed;
(3) may make and perform such contracts, grants, and other agreements with any person or government however designated and wherever situated, as may be necessary for carrying out the functions of the Foundation;
(4) may determine and prescribe the manner in which its obligations shall be incurred and its expenses allowed and paid, including expenses for reimbursement;
(5) may lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire, improve, and use such real property wherever situated, as may be necessary for carrying out the functions of the Foundation;
(6) may accept cash gifts or donations of services or of property (real, personal, or mixed), tangible or intangible, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this title;
(7) may use the United States mails in the same manner and on the same conditions as the executive departments;
(8) may contract with individuals for personal services, who shall not be considered Federal employees for any provision of law administered by the Office of Personnel Management;
(9) may hire or obtain passenger motor vehicles; and
(10) shall have such other powers as may be necessary or incident to carrying out this title.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF GOVERNMENT CORPORATION CONTROL ACT.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—The Foundation shall be subject to chapter 94 of subtitle VI of title 31, United States Code, except that the Foundation shall not be authorized to issue obligations or offer obligations to the public.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 901(d) of the Government Corporation Control Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(5) The Senator Paul Simon Study Abroad Foundation.".

(d) INSPECTOR GENERAL.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—The Inspector General of the Department of State shall serve as Inspector General of the Foundation, and, in acting in such capacity, may conduct reviews, investigations, and inspections of all aspects of the operations and activities of the Foundation.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL.—In carrying out the responsibilities under this subsection, the Inspector General shall report to and be under the general supervision of the Board.

(3) REIMBURSEMENT AND AUTHORIZATION OF SERVICES.—

(A) REIMBURSEMENT.—The Foundation shall reimburse the Department of State for all expenses incurred by the Inspector General in connection with the Inspector General’s responsibilities under this subsection.

(B) AUTHORIZATION OF SERVICES.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 717(a) for a fiscal year, up to $2,000,000 is authorized to be made available to the Inspector General of the Department of State to conduct reviews, investigations, and inspections of operations and activities of the Foundation.

SEC. 709. GENERAL PERSONNEL AUTHORITIES

(a) DETAIL OF PERSONNEL.—Upon request of the Chief Executive Officer of an agency, and with the consent of the Chief Executive Officer of an agency, any may detail any employee of such agency to the Foundation on a reimbursable basis. Any employee so detailed remains, for the purpose of preserving such employee’s allowances, privileges, rights, seniority, and other benefits, an employee of the agency from which detailed.

(b) REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—An employee of an agency who is serving under a career or career conditional appointment (or the equivalent), and who, with the consent of the head of such agency, transfers to the Foundation, is entitled to be reemployed in such employee’s former position or a position of like seniority, status, and pay in such agency, if such employee—
(A) is separated from the Foundation for any reason, other than misconduct, neglect of duty, or malfeasance; and
(B) applies for reemployment not later than 90 days after the date of separation from the Foundation.

(2) SPECIFIC RIGHTS.—An employee who satisfies paragraph (1) is entitled to be reemployed in a position within 30 days after applying for reemployment and, on reemployment, is entitled to at least the rate of.
basic pay to which such employee would have been entitled had such employee never transferred.

(c) Hiring Authority.—Of persons employed by the Foundation not to exceed 20 persons may be appointed, compensated, or removed without regard to the civil service laws and regulations.

(d) Basic Pay.—The Chief Executive Officer may fix the rate of basic pay of employees of the Foundation without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 of title 5, United States Code (relating to the appointment of principal officers), subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title (relating to General Schedule pay rates), except that no employee of the Foundation may receive a rate of basic pay that is less than the rate for the position of Executive Schedule under section 5315 of such title.

(e) Definitions.—In this section:
(1) the term ‘agency’ means an executive agency, as defined by section 105 of title 5, United States Code; and
(2) the term ‘detail’ means the assignment or loan of an employee, without a change of position, from the agency by which such employee is employed to the Foundation.

SEC. 710. GAO REVIEW.
(a) Authorization of Appropriations.—
(1) whether the Foundation is organized and operating in a manner that will permit it to fulfill the purposes of this section, as set forth in section 603;
(2) whether, and to what degree, the Foundation is operating efficiently and in a manner consistent with the requirements of paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 603(b);
(3) whether grant-making by the Foundation is being undertaken in a manner consistent with subsections (d), (e), and (f) of section 606;
(4) the extent to which the Foundation is using best practices in the implementation of this Act and the administration of the program described in section 606; and
(5) other relevant matters, as determined by the Comptroller General, after consultation with the appropriate congressional committees.

(b) Report Required.—The Comptroller General shall submit a report on the results of the review conducted under subsection (a) to the House of Representatives and the Senate, as the case may be, not later than March 31, 2010, and every 3 years thereafter.

(c) Record Keeping.—The Secretary of State (in the capacity of the Secretary as Chairperson of the Board of the Foundation) and to the appropriate congressional committees.

SEC. 711. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.
(a) Authorization of Appropriations.—
(1) In general.—There are authorized to be appropriated in carry out this title $40,000,000 for fiscal year 2010 and $80,000,000 for fiscal year 2011.

(b) Amounts in Addition to Other Available Amounts.—Amounts authorized to be appropriated by paragraph (1) are in addition to amounts authorized to be appropriated or otherwise made available for educational exchange programs, including the J. William Fulbright Foreign Fellowship Program and the Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship Program, administered by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the Department of State.

SEC. 802. FINDINGS.
(1) In general.—Not later than March 31, 2010, the President shall conduct a comprehensive and systematic review and assessment of the United States arms export control system in the context of the national security interests and strategic foreign policy objectives of the United States.

(2) Elements.—The review and assessment required under paragraph (1) shall:
(A) assess the comprehensiveness of the United States arms export control system in order to, where appropriate, strengthen controls, improve efficiency and minimize unnecessary redundancies across Federal Government agencies, through administrative actions, including regulations, and to formulate legislative proposals for new or revised laws;
(B) develop processes to ensure better coordination of arms export control activities of the Department of State with activities of other departments and agencies of the United States that are responsible for enforcing United States arms export control laws;
(C) ensure that weapons-related nuclear techology, other technology related to weapons of mass destruction, and all items on the Missile Technology Control Regime Annex are subject to stringent control by the United States Government;
(D) determine the overall effect of arms export controls on counterterrorism, law enforcement, and international arms control missions of the Department of Homeland Security;
(E) determine the effects of export controls policies and the practices of the export control agencies on the United States defense industrial base and United States employment in the industries affected by export controls;
(F) contain a detailed summary of known atttempts by unauthorized end-users (such as international terrorists, foreign intelligence agencies, and foreign terrorist organizations) to acquire items on the United States Munitions List and related technical data, including—
(i) data on—
(I) commodities sought, such as M-4 rifles, night vision devices, F-14 spare parts;
(II) parties involved, such as the intended end-users, and sham companies;
(III) attempted acquisition of technology and technical data critical to manufacture items on the United States Munitions List;
(IV) destination countries and transit countries;
(V) modes of transport;
(VI) trafficking methods, such as use of false documentation and front companies registered under false names;
(VII) whether the attempted illicit transfer was successful; and (VIII) any administrative or criminal enforcement actions taken by the United States and any other government in relation to the attemted illicit transfer;
(ii) a thorough evaluation of the Blue Lantern
Program, including the adequacy of current staffing and funding levels;
(iii) a detailed analysis of licensing exemptions and their successful exploitation by unauthorized end-users; and
(iv) an examination of the extent to which the increased tendency toward outsourcing and offshoring of defense production harm United States national security and weaken the defense industrial base, including direct and indirect impact on United States infrastructure projects and their ability to address these trends as well as the policy of some United States trading partners to require offsets for major sales of defense articles; and
(G) assess the extent to which export control policies, and the underlying the Arms Export Control Act promote the protection of basic human rights.

(b) CONGRESSIONAL BRIEFINGS.—The President shall provide periodic briefings to the appropriate congressional committees on the progress of the review and assessment conducted under subsection (a). The requirement to provide congressional briefings under this subsection shall terminate on the date on which the President transmits to the appropriate congressional commitees the report required under subsection (c).

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall transmit to the appropriate congressional commitees and the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate a report that contains the results of the review and assessment conducted under subsection (a). The report required by this subsection shall contain a certification that the requirement of subsection (a)(2)(C) has been met, or if the requirement has not been met, the reasons therefor.
The report required by this subsection shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may contain a classified annex, if necessary.

SEC. 804. PERFORMANCE GOALS FOR PROC-ESSING OF APPLICATIONS FOR LI-CENSES TO EXPORT ITEMS ON UNITED STATES MUNITIONS LIST.

(a) In GENERAL.—The Secretary of State, acting through the head of the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls of the Department of State, shall establish and maintain the following goals:

(1) The processing time for review of each application for a license to export items on the United States Munitions List (other than a Manufacturing License Agreement) shall not be more than 60 days from the date of receipt of the application;

(2) The processing time for review of each application for a commodity jurisdiction determination shall not be more than 60 days from the date of receipt of the application;

(3) The total number of applications described in paragraph (1) that are unprocessed shall be not more than 7 percent of the total number of such applications submitted in the preceding calendar year.

(b) ADDITIONAL REVIEW.—(1) If an application described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) is not processed within the time period described in the respective paragraph of such subsection, then the Managing Director of the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls or the Dep-

TITLE IX—ACTIONS TO ENHANCE THE MERIDA INITIATIVE

Subtitle A—General Provisions

SEC. 901. COORDINATOR OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES TO IMPLEMENT THE MERIDA INITIATIVE.

(a) DECLARATION OF EXCESS.—Congress declares that the Merida Initiative is a Department of State-led initiative which combines the programs of numerous United States Government departments and agencies and therefore requires a single individual to coordinate and track all Merida Initiative-related efforts government-wide to avoid duplication, coordinate messaging, and facilitate accountability and communication with Congress.

(b) DESIGNATION OF HIGH-LEVEL COORDINATOR.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The President shall designate, within the Department of State, a Coordinator of United States Government Activities to Implement the Merida Initiative (hereafter in this section referred to as the “Coordinator”) who shall be responsible for—

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—(1) The head of each department and agency in carrying out the Merida Initiative, including avoiding duplication among programs and ensuring that a consistent message emanates from the Department of State;

(2) by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph:

(c) FORMALIZATION OF THE MERIDA INITIATIVE.

(1) IN GENERAL.—The President shall designate, within the Department of State, a Coordinator of United States Government Activities to Implement the Merida Initiative (hereafter in this section referred to as the “Coordinator”) who shall be responsible for—

(1) A March 2007 joint report by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) and the World Bank noted that murder rates in the small countries of the Caribbean at 30 per 100,000 population are among the highest in the world and have risen in recent years for many of the region’s countries. The report also notes that the stronger and more efficient police and the rise in recent years of drug trafficking.
(3) If the United States does not move quickly to provide Merida Initiative assistance to the CARICOM countries, the positive results of the Merida Initiative in Mexico and Central America would be irreparably damaged into the Caribbean and multiply the already alarming rates of violence.

(b) EVALUATIONS.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State is authorized to consult with the countries of the Caribbean Community (CARICOM) in preparation for their inclusion into the Merida Initiative.

(c) INCORPORATION OF CARICOM COUNTRIES INTO THE MERIDA INITIATIVE.—The President is authorized to incorporate the CARICOM countries into the Merida Initiative.

SEC. 903. MERIDA INITIATIVE MONITORING AND EVALUATION MECHANISM

(a) DEFINITION.—In this section,

(1) IMPACT EVALUATION RESEARCH.—The term "impact evaluation research" means the application of statistical science research methods, strategic analysis, and other scientific methods to judge, compare, and improve policies and program outcomes, from the earliest stages of developing and implementing the objectives of the development and implementation, with the objective of the rapid dissemination of conclusions and concrete impact on programming.

(2) OPERATIONS RESEARCH.—The term "operations research" means the application of social science research methods, statistical analysis, and other scientific methods to judge, compare, and improve policies and program outcomes, from the earliest stages of defining and implementing the objectives of the development and implementation, with the objective of the rapid dissemination of conclusions and concrete impact on programming.

(3) PROGRAM MONITORING.—The term "program monitoring" means the collection, analysis, and use of routine program data to determine how well a program is carried out and how much support is needed.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) to successfully support building the capacity of recipient countries' civilian security institutions, enhance the rule of law in recipient countries, and ensure the protection of human rights abuses committed by the armed forces and other Government security forces of each recipient country; and

(2) long-term solutions to the security problems of Merida recipient countries depend on increasing the effectiveness and responsiveness of their police and military institutions, including their judicial system;

(3) a specific program of impact evaluation research, operations research, and program monitoring should be conducted in the program, is required to permit assessment of the operational effectiveness of the impact of United States assistance towards these goals; and

(4) the President, in developing performance measurement methods under the impact evaluation research, operations research, and program monitoring, should consult with the appropriate congressional committees as well as the governments of Merida recipient countries.

(c) IMPACT EVALUATION RESEARCH, OPERATIONS RESEARCH, AND PROGRAM MONITORING.—The President shall implement and conduct the above programs to assess the effectiveness of assistance provided under the Merida Initiative through impact evaluation research on a selected set of programmatic interventions, operations research in areas to ensure efficiency and effectiveness of program implementation, and monitoring to ensure timely and transparent delivery of assistance.

(d) REQUIREMENTS.—The program required under subsection (c) shall include—

(1) a description of how impact evaluation research and operations research questions for main components of assistance provided under the Merida Initiative were considered when determining the impact of assistance provided to each of the main components of enforcement and investigative agencies;

(2) an identification of measurable performance goals for each of the main components of assistance provided under the Merida Initiative, to be expressed in an objective and quantifiable form at the inception of the program; and

(3) the use of appropriate methods, based on rigorous social science research tools, to measure program impact and operational efficiency; and

(4) adherence to a high standard of evidence in development and implementation of support to such assistance to enhance the impact of such assistance.

(d) CONSULTATION WITH CONGRESS.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall brief and consult with the appropriate congressional committees regarding the progress in establishing and implementing the program required under subsection (c).

(E) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the funds appropriated for the Merida Initiative, up to five percent of such amounts is authorized to be appropriated for the purpose of conducting the above research and development and implementation, with the objective of the rapid dissemination of conclusions and concrete impact on programming.

(f) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this section and not later than December 1 of each year thereafter, the President shall transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a report regarding programs and activities carried out under the Merida Initiative during the preceding fiscal year.

(2) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED.—The reports required under subsection (g) shall include the following:

(i) PHASE OUT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT ACTIVITIES.—A description of the progress of phasing out law enforcement activities of the armed forces of each recipient country.

(j) IMPACT ON BORDER VIOLENCE AND SECURITY.—A description of the impact that activities authorized under the Merida Initiative have had on violence against United States and Merida border personnel and the extent to which these activities have increased the protection and security of the United States-Mexico border.

SEC. 904. MERIDA INITIATIVE DEFINED.

In this subtitle, the term "Merida Initiative" means the program announced by the United States and Mexico on October 22, 2007, to fight illicit narcotics trafficking and criminal organizations throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Subtitle B—Prevention of Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons

SEC. 911. TASK FORCE ON THE PREVENTION OF ILILICT SMALL ARMS TRAFFICKING IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The President shall establish an inter-agency task force to be known as the "Task Force on the Prevention of Illicit Small Arms Trafficking in the Western Hemisphere" (in this section referred to as the "Task Force")

(b) DUTIES.—The Task Force shall develop a strategy for the Federal Government to improve United States export controls on the illicit export of small arms and light weapons throughout the Western Hemisphere, including Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean, and South America. The Task Force shall—

(1) conduct a thorough review and analysis of the current regulation of exports of small arms and light weapons; and

(2) develop integrated Federal policies to better control exports of small arms and light weapons in a manner that furthers the foreign policy and national security interests of the United States within the Western Hemisphere.

(c) MEMBERSHIP.—The Task Force shall be composed of—

(1) the Secretary of State;

(2) the Attorney General;

(3) the Secretary of Homeland Security; and

(4) the heads of other Federal departments and agencies as appropriate.

(d) CHAIRPERSON.—The Secretary of State shall serve as the chairperson of the Task Force.

(e) MEETINGS.—The Task Force shall meet at the call of the chairperson or a majority of its members.

(f) ANNUAL REPORTS.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act and annually thereafter until October 31, 2014, the chairperson of the Task Force shall submit to Congress and make available to the public a report that contains—

(1) a description of the activities of the Task Force during the preceding year; and

(2) the findings, strategies, recommendations, policies, and initiatives developed pursuant to the duties of the Task Force under subsection (b) during the preceding year.

SEC. 912. INCREASE IN PENALTIES FOR ILLICIT TRAFFICKING IN SMALL ARMS AND LIGHT WEAPONS TO COUNTRIES IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 38(c) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2778(c)), any person who willfully exports to a country in the Western Hemisphere any small arm or light weapon without a license in violation of the requirements of section 38 of such Act shall upon conviction be fined for each violation not less than $1,000,000 but not more than $3,000,000 and imprisoned for not more than twenty years.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term "small arm or light weapon" means any item listed in Category I(a), Category III (as it applies to Category I(a)), or grenades under Category IV(a) of the United States Munitions List (as contained in part 121 of title 22, Code of Federal Regulations (or successor regulations)) that requires a license for international export under this section.

SEC. 913. DEPARTMENT OF STATE REWARDS PROGRAM.

Section 30(b) of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2708(b)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraphs (4) through (7) as paragraphs (5) through (8), respectively;

(2) by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph:

"(4) the arrest or conviction in any country of any person engaged in illegally exporting or attempting to export to Mexico any small arm or light weapon (as defined in section 92(b) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2004 and 2005),";

(3) in paragraphs (5) and (6) (as redesignated), by striking "paragraph (1), (2), or (3)" each place it appears and inserting "paragraph (1), (2), or (3)";

Congress supports the ratification by the United States of the Inter-American Convention Against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Ammunition, Explosives, and Other Related Materials.

TITLE X—REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 1001. ASSESSMENT OF SPECIAL COURT FOR SIERRA LEONE.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees an assessment of the ongoing needs of the Special Court for Sierra Leone, including an assessment of the following activities of the Special Court:

(1) Witness protection.

(2) Archival activities, including recordkeeping associated with future legal work by the Special Court.

(3) The residual registrar’s capacity for enrolling Special Court sentences and maintaining related records in an unclassified form, as the Secretary determines.

(4) Transfer or maintenance of Special Court records to a permanent recordkeeping authority in Sierra Leone.

(5) Other programs or initiatives for community outreach, for the purpose of reconciliation and healing, regarding the Special Court’s legal proceedings and decisions.

(6) The resources available to the Special Court in Sierra Leone and plans to use the Special Court, and expertise of its personnel, for further development of the legal profession and an independent judiciary in Sierra Leone.

(7) Unresolved cases, or cases that were not prosecuted.

SEC. 1002. REPORT ON UNITED STATES CAPACITIES TO PREVENT GENOCIDE AND MASS ATROCITIES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The lack of an effective government-wide strategy and adequate capacities for preventing genocide and mass atrocities against civilians counter to the national security interests of the United States to contribute to the maintenance of global peace and security and protect vital United States interests.

(3) Specific training and staffing will enhance the diplomatic capacities of the Department of State to help prevent and respond to threats of genocide and mass atrocities.

(b) REPORT.—

(1) Required.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report outlining specific plans for the Department of State, including any government-wide strategies and the strengthening of United States civilian capacities for preventing genocide and mass atrocities against civilians.

(ii) The report required under paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) An evaluation of current mechanisms for government-wide early warning, including coordination and contingency planning, and coordination of effort to prevent and respond to situations of genocide, mass atrocities, and other mass violence.

(B) An assessment of current capacities within the Department of State, including specific staffing and training, for early warning, preventive diplomacy, and crisis response to help avert genocide and mass atrocities.

(C) An evaluation of United States foreign assistance programs and mechanisms directed toward the prevention of genocide and mass atrocities, including costs, challenges to implementation, and successes of such programs and mechanisms.

(D) An assessment of the feasibility, effectiveness, and potential costs of implementing key recommendations made by the Genocide Prevention Task Force, including the establishment of an Atrocities Prevention Committee within the National Security Staff, and the annual and contingency funding for the prevention of genocide and mass atrocities.

(E) Recommendations to further strengthen United States capacities to help prevent genocide, mass atrocities, and other mass violence, including enhanced early warning mechanisms, strengthened diplomatic capacities of the Department of State, and improved use of United States foreign assistance.

SEC. 1003. REPORTS RELATING TO PROGRAMS TO ENCOURAGE GOOD GOVERNANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 133(d)(2) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2152(d)(2)) is amended by inserting before the period at the end the following: 1, including, with respect to a country that produces or exports large amounts of natural resources such as petroleum or natural resources, the degree to which citizens of the country have access to information about government revenue from the extraction of such resources and credible reports of human rights abuses against individuals from civil society or the media seeking to monitor such activity.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to reports required to be transmitted under section 133(d)(2) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (as so amended, or on or after the date of the enactment of this Act).

SEC. 1004. REPORTS ON HONG KONG.

SEC. 1005. DEMOCRACY IN GEORGIA.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the development and consolidation of effective democratic governance in Georgia, including free and fair elections, respect for human rights and the rule of law, an independent media, an independent judiciary, a vibrant civil society, as well as transparency and accountability of public administration, is critically important to Georgia’s integration into Euro-Atlantic institutions, stability in the Caucasus region, and United States national security.

(b) REPORT ON DEMOCRACY IN GEORGIA.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and not later than December 31 of each of the two fiscal years thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on the prevention of, and activities carried out in Georgia with United States foreign assistance following the August 2008 conflict with Russia.

(ii) The report required under paragraph (1) shall include information concerning the following:

(A) The amount of United States assistance obligations and expenditures for construction activities for the prior fiscal year.

(B) A description of the programs funded by such assistance, including humanitarian aid, reconstruction of critical infrastructure, economic development, political and democratic development, and broadcasting.

(E) An evaluation of the impact of such programs, including their contribution to the consolidation of democracy in Georgia and efforts by the Government of Georgia to improve democratic governance.

(D) An analysis of the implementation of the United States–Georgia Charter on Strategic Partnership.

SEC. 1006. DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH ISRAEL.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should assist Israel in its efforts to establish diplomatic relations with

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and annually thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report that includes the following information:

(i) Actions taken by representatives of the United States to encourage other countries to establish full diplomatic relations with Israel.

(ii) Specific responses solicited and received by the Secretary from countries that do not maintain full diplomatic relations with Israel.

(iii) Other measures being undertaken, and measures that will be undertaken, by the United States to ensure and promote Israel’s full participation in the world diplomatic community.

(c) FORM OF SUBMISSION.—The report required under subsection (b) may be submitted in classified or unclassified form, as the Secretary determines appropriate.

SEC. 1007. POLICE TRAINING REPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall, in coordination with the heads of relevant Federal departments and agencies, conduct a study of current and recent activities of American law enforcement, and submit a report on current overseas civilian police training in countries or regions that are at risk of, in, or are in transition from, conflict or civil strife.

(ii) The report required under subsection (a) shall contain information on the following:
(1) The coordination, communication, program management, and policy implementation among the United States civilian police training programs in countries or regions that are at risk of, in, or are in transition from, conflict or civil strife.

(2) The number of private contractors conducting such training, and the quality and cost of such training.

(3) An assessment of pre-training procedures for verification of police candidates to adequately assess their aptitude, professional skills, integrity, and other qualifications that are essential to law enforcement work.

(4) An analysis of the practice of using existing Federal police entities to provide civilian police training in countries or regions that are at risk of, in, or are in transition from, conflict or civil strife, along with the subject matter expertise that each such entity may provide to meet local needs in lieu of the use of private contractors.

(5) Provide recommendations, including recommendations related to required resources and actions, to maximize the effectiveness and inter-agency coordination and the adequate provision of civilian police training programs in countries or regions that are at risk of, in, or are in transition from conflict or civil strife.

SEC. 1008. REPORTS ON HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE IN GAZA.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and one year thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report detailing the humanitarian conditions and efficacy and obstacles to humanitarian and reconstruction assistance activities in Gaza.

(b) CONTENTS.—The reports required under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An assessment of the level of access to basic necessities in Gaza, including food, fuel, water, sanitation, education, and healthcare.

(2) An assessment of the ability to successfully deliver and distribute humanitarian and reconstruction goods and supplies.

(3) A description of the efforts of the United States and its allies to facilitate the receipt and distribution of humanitarian and reconstruction assistance in Gaza.

(4) An assessment of the obstacles to the delivery of humanitarian and reconstruction assistance, including the activities and policies of Hamas and any organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

(5) Recommendations for actions the United States can take to best improve the level of access to basic necessities as referred to in paragraph (1) and overcome obstacles described in paragraphs (2) through (4).

(6) An assessment of the policy prohibiting personnel of the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development from traveling to Gaza following the tragic roadside bombing in 2003. Such an assessment should include an evaluation of the prospects that such personnel might resume humanitarian assistance operations or commence monitoring functions relating to humanitarian aid distribution in Gaza in order to ascertain that United States foreign assistance is not misused in ways that benefit any organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1189).

SEC. 1090. REPORT ON ACTIVITIES IN HAITI.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on the following:

(1) HURRICANE EMERGENCY RECOVERY.—The status of activities in Haiti funded or authorized, in whole or in part, by the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) through assistance appropriated under the Consolidated Security, Disaster Assistance, and Continuing Appropriations Act, 2009.

(2) GENERAL ACTIVITIES.—A summary of activities to be financed or authorized in whole or in part, by the Department of State and USAID in the previous 12-month period, how such activities supplement the work of the Government of Haiti and the United Nations, the Inter-American Development Bank, and the Organization of American States.

(3) COORDINATION.—A description of how United States assistance is coordinated—

(A) among United States departments and agencies;

(B) with other donor countries, including programs through the United Nations, the Inter-American Development Bank, and the Organization of American States.

(4) BENCHMARKS.—A summary of short-term and long-term objectives for United States assistance to Haiti and metrics that will be used to identify, track, and manage the progress of United States activities in Haiti.

SEC. 1100. REPORT ON RELIGIOUS MINORITY COMMUNITIES IN THE MIDDLE EAST.

(a) INITIATIVE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of State is authorized to undertake a focused initiative to monitor the status and provide specific policy recommendations to protect vulnerable religious minorities throughout the Middle East.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and one year thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on the humanitarian conditions of religious minorities in the Middle East, including their efficacy and obstacles to humanitarian assistance activities to help meet the basic needs of vulnerable persons affiliated with minority religions in the Middle East to mitigate adverse humanitarian circumstances facing such persons.

SEC. 1101. IRAQ'S INFLUENCE IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The 2008 Country Report on Terrorism states that “Iran and Venezuela continued weekly flights connecting Tehran and Damascus with Caracas. Passengers on these flights were reportedly subject to only cursory immigration and customs controls at Simon Bolivar International Airport.”

(2) The Governments of Venezuela and Iran have forged a close relationship.

(3) Iran has sought to strengthen ties with the United States and has increased its presence in the Western Hemisphere in order to undermine United States foreign policy.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report that includes actions taken by the Government of Iran in Venezuela, and whether mutual benefit is being gained through the implementation of such bilateral projects.

(4) REVIEW AND REPORT.—The Secretary of State should review the work of the commission and annually submit to the President and Congress a report on whether progress has been made to meet the goals set forth by the commission and whether bilateral efforts have served the interest of United States and Nigerian bilateral relations.

(5) UNITED STATES CONTRIBUTIONS.—United States contributions to the support of the Commission should be financed through existing resources.

SEC. 1102. AUTHORITIES RELATING TO THE SOUTHERN AFRICA ENTERPRISE DEVELOPMENT FUND.

(1) USE OF PRIVATE VENTURE CAPITAL.—

(a) IN GENERAL.—In order to maximize the effectiveness of the activities of the Southern Africa Enterprise Development Fund, the Fund may conduct public offerings or private placements for the purpose of soliciting and approving private venture capital which may be used, separately or together with funds made available from the United States Government, for any lawful investment purpose that the Board of Directors of the Fund may determine in carrying out the activities of the Fund.

(b) DISTRIBUTION OF FINANCIAL RETURNS.—Financial returns on public and private investments that include a component of private venture capital may be distributed, at such times and in such amounts as the Board of Directors of the Fund may determine, to the investors of such capital.

(c) NONAPPLICABILITY OF OTHER LAWS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Funds made available from the United States Government to the Fund may be used for the purpose of establishing or supporting the Fund notwithstanding any other provision of law.

(2) SUPPORT FROM FEDERAL DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES.—The heads of Federal departments and agencies may conduct programs and activities to provide seed money or matching investments of the Fund notwithstanding any other provision of law.
(c) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term “Southern Africa Enterprise Development Fund” or “Fund” includes—

(1) any successor or related entity to the Southern Africa Enterprise Development Fund that is approved the United States Government; and

(2) any organization, corporation, limited-liability company, or other entity that is authorized by the United States Government to manage, any or all of the remaining funds or assets of the Southern Africa Enterprise Development Fund.

SEC. 1103. DIABETES TREATMENT AND PREVENTION; WATER AND SANITATION FOR PACIFIC ISLAND COUNTRIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There is authorized to be appropriated $39,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to establish a diabetes prevention and treatment program for Pacific Island countries and for safe water and sanitation.

SEC. 1104. STATELESSNESS.

(a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section to increase global stability and security for the United States and the international community and decrease trafficking and discrimination by reducing the number of individuals who are de jure or de facto stateless and as a consequence, are unable to avail themselves of their right to a nationality and its concomitant rights and obligations and are excluded from full participation in civil society.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The right to a nationality is a foundation of human dignity and determinant of human rights. The State is the primary vehicle through which individuals are guaranteed their inalienable rights and are made subject to the rule of law. Regional stability and security are undermined when individuals cannot avail themselves of their right to a nationality and its concomitant rights and obligations and are excluded from full participation in civil society.

(2) The right to a nationality and citizenship is therefore specifically protect in international declarations, including Article 17 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the 1954 Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, Article 24 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and Article 1(2) of the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women.

(c) IN GENERAL.—Given the importance of preventing new instances of de jure or de facto statelessness and dissemination of best practices for remedying de jure and de facto statelessness; and

(d) increase the United States educational and technical assistance for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to augment to the UNICEF’s ability to aid countries with significant de jure or de facto stateless populations to bring about the full rep- resentation of all children born to de jure or de facto stateless parents.

(d) THE UNITED STATES.—

(1) FOREIGN POLICY.—Given the importance of obtaining and preserving nationality and the protection of a government, and of preventing the exploitation or trafficking of de jure or de facto stateless groups or individuals, the President shall make the prevention and reduction of de jure or de facto statelessness an important goal of United States foreign policy and human rights efforts. Such efforts include—

(A) calling upon host countries to protect and assume responsibility for de jure or de facto stateless groups or individuals;

(B) working with countries of origin and host countries to identify, respond to, and resolve problems related to de jure and de facto statelessness.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to augment to the UNICEF’s ability to aid countries with significant de jure or de facto stateless populations to bring about the full rep- resentation of all children born to de jure or de facto stateless parents.

(3) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS TO THE UNHCR.—There is authorized to be appropriated $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to augment to the UNHCR’s ability to aid countries with significant de jure or de facto stateless populations to bring about the full rep- resentation of all children born to de jure or de facto stateless parents.

(4) SEC. 1103. DIABETES TREATMENT AND PREVENTION; WATER AND SANITATION FOR PACIFIC ISLAND COUNTRIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There is authorized to be appropriated $39,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011 to establish a diabetes prevention and treatment program for Pacific Island countries and for safe water and sanitation.

(b) PACIFIC ISLAND COUNTRIES DEFINED.—In this section, the term “Pacific Island countries” means Fiji, Kiribati, the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, Nauru, Niue, Palau, Papua New Guinea, Samoa, Solomon Is- lands, Tonga, Tuvalu, and Vanuatu.
principles and provisions of the 1954 Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons and the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelesslessness to the fullest extent possible and to encourage other States to do so as well.

(C) ACTIONS BY SECRETARY OF STATE.—

(1) INCREASE IN RESOURCES AND STAFF.—The Secretary of State shall permanently increase in the Bureau of Population, Refugees, and Migration in the Department of State the resources dedicated to and staff assigned to work toward the prevention and resolution of de jure and de facto statelessness and the protection of de jure or de facto stateless individuals.

(ii) COORDINATION.—To coordinate United States policy toward combating de jure and de facto statelessness, the Secretary of State shall establish an Interagency Working Group to Combat Statelessness. This working group should include representatives of the Bureau of Population, Refugees and Migration, the Bureau of International Organizations, the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor, the Office of Trafficking in Persons of the Department of State, and the United States Agency for International Development, as well as representatives from relevant offices of the Department of Homeland Security.

(D) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection.

SEC. 1105. STATEMENT OF POLICY REGARDING THE ECUMENICAL PATRIARCHATE.

It shall be the policy of the United States to urge Turkey to—

(1) respect property rights and religious rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate;

(2) provide the Ecumenical Patriarchate appropriate international recognition and ecclesiastical succession; and

(3) grant the Ecumenical Patriarchate the right to train clergy of all nationalities, not just Turkish nationals.

SEC. 1106. LIMITATION ON ASSISTANCE FOR WEATHER COOPERATION ACTIVITIES TO COUNTRIES IN THE AMERICAS.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should facilitate international cooperation on hurricane preparedness because—

(1) hundreds of millions of people in the Americas live in coastal communities and are susceptible to the economic and human losses posed by hurricanes;

(2) the need for hurricane tracking overflights and other weather cooperation activities to track and monitor hurricanes in the Americas is acute;

(3) accurate hurricane forecasts can help prevent the loss of life and injury and reduce property loss and economic disruption.

(b) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on the status of United States cooperation with other countries in the Americas on hurricane preparedness and other weather cooperation activities.

(2) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a list of countries in the Americas that do not cooperate with the United States on hurricane preparedness and other weather cooperation activities; and

(B) the status of any negotiations regarding hurricane preparedness and other weather cooperation activities between the United States and countries listed in subparagraph (A).

(c) LIMITATION ON ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary of State shall provide assistance under this section to countries listed in the report in paragraph (2).

(d) WAIVER.—The Secretary of State may waive the requirements of this section if the Secretary of State determines that it is necessary to deploy and maintain fully capacitated United Nations peacekeeping missions in Darfur and the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

SEC. 1107. STATEMENT OF CONGRESS REGARDING AFGHAN WOMEN.

Congress—

(1) supports the decision by President Hamid Karzai of Afghanistan to submit for revision the Shi’re Personal Status Law and strongly urges the Afghan government to ensure that any such law violates the basic human rights of women and is inconsistent with the Constitution of Afghanistan;

(2) urges President Karzai, the Ministry of Justice, and other parties involved in reviewing the law to formally declare as unconstitutional the provisions of such law regarding marital rape and restrictions on women’s freedom of movement;

(3) reiterates its strong sense that the provisions in such law which restrict the rights of women should be removed, and that an amended draft of the Shi’re Personal Status Law should be submitted for parliamentary review;

(4) encourages the Secretary of State, the Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan, the Ambassador-at-Large for Global Women’s Issues, and the United States Ambassador to Afghanistan to consider and address the status of women’s rights and equality in Afghanistan to ensure that such rights are not being eroded through unjust laws, policies, or institutions; and

(5) encourages the Government of Afghanistan to solicit information and advice from the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry for Women’s Affairs, the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission, and women-led non-governmental organizations to ensure that current and future legislation and official policies protect and uphold the equal rights of women, including through national and public discourse on the importance of women’s status and rights to the overall stability of Afghanistan.

SEC. 1108. GLOBAL PEACE OPERATIONS INITIATIVE PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Over 100,000 military and civilian personnel are engaged in 18 United Nations peacekeeping operations around the world. Peacekeeping operations are critical to maintaining a peaceful and stable environment.

(2) The United States has a vital interest in ensuring that United Nations peacekeeping operations are successful. Countries undergoing conflict often require political and economic security of the United States, risk becoming safe havens for terrorist organizations, and often feature levels of human rights abuses and human deprivation that can affect the values of the American people.

(3) Over the years, United Nations peacekeeping has evolved to meet the demands of different conflicts and a changing political landscape. Today’s peacekeeping mission is most often “multidimensional” and includes a wide variety of complex tasks such as civilian protection, humanitarian relief, reconstruction, and reintegration of former combatants.

(4) United Nations peacekeeping operations allow the United States to respond to global crises within a multifaceted framework with costs not shared among nations. A 2007 Government Accountability Office report found that in general a United Nations peacekeeping operation is likely to be “much more expensive” than a United Nations peacemaking operation, regardless of location.

(5) In many missions due to vast swaths of terrain and limited infrastructure, ongoing logistics support in “peace spoiler,” United Nations peacekeepers cannot carry out the complex tasks with which they are charged without critical enablers, and in particular air assets.

(6) The United Nations Security-General has repeatedly noted the deleterious impact of insufficient helicopters for missions in Darfur and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. History has shown that under-resourced peacekeeping troops are not only unable to protect civilians but also to maintain the credibility of the United Nations and are themselves likely to come under attack.

(7) Senate Resolution 42 and House Resolution 133 of the 110th Congress—

(A) urged members of the international community, including the United States, that posses sufficient resources, to provide air assets to the United Nations-African Union Mission in Darfur (UNAMID) to do so as soon as possible; and

(B) urged the President personelly by contacting other heads of state and asking them to contribute the aircraft and crews to the Darfur mission.

(8) The current framework of relying on member countries to provide air assets on a volunteer basis has not yielded sufficient results. The United Nations still faces a shortfall of over 50 percent of its air assets for UNAMID, the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC), and the Republic of Chad (MINURCAT). A review of trend lines suggests that any new United Nations peacekeeping missions authorization for the next five to seven years would face similar shortfalls.

(9) Numerous studies and reports have determined that there is no global shortage of air assets. It is infeasible for United Nations peacekeeping missions to found on the lack of critical mobility capabilities.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of assistance authorized by this section is to help project civilans by training and equipping peacekeepers worldwide, to include financing the refurbishment of helicopters.

(c) USE OF FUNDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of State is authorized to use amounts authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section to provide funding to carry out and expand Global Peace Operations Initiative programs and activities, such programs and activities shall include—

(A) training and equipping peacekeepers worldwide, with a particular focus on Africa;

(B) enhancing the capacity of regional and sub-regional organizations to plan, train, manage, and deploy peacekeeping missions;

(C) obtaining a comprehensive list of lessons-learned from peace support operations;

(D) carrying out a clearinghouse function to exchange information and coordinate G-8 efforts to enhance peacekeeping; and

(E) providing transportation and logistics support for deploying peacekeepers.

(F) developing a cached equipment program to procure and warehouse equipment for use in peace operations globally;

(G) providing support to the international Center of Excellence for Stability Police Units (COESPU) in Italy to increase the capabilities and interoperability of stability police to participate in peace operations;

(H) financing the refurbishment of helicopters in preparation for their deployment to United Nations peacekeeping operations, or to regional peacekeeping operations which have been approved by the United Nations Security Council.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that failure on the part of the international community to take concrete steps to allow United Nations peacekeeping operations which are necessary to deploy and maintain fully capacitated United Nations peacekeeping operations will result in continued loss of life and human suffering. On the other hand, based on findings in this section, the Secretary of State should prioritize the refurbish- ment of helicopters with a goal of participating in the financing of no fewer than three helicopter refirshement by the end of fiscal year 2011.

(3) SUPPORT FROM OTHER COUNTRIES.—In providing for paragraph (1), the Secretary of State shall to the greatest extent possible seek to leverage such funding with financing from other countries.

RHETORICAL QUESTION—(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and one year thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to Congress a report on the activities of the United States Government to carry out the provisions of this section.

(2) CONTENTS.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a description of the Global Peace Operations Initiative (GPOI) programs and activities undertaken by the Secretary of State to address major gaps in international peace operations support, including—

(i) a description of the status of freedom of the press, including initiatives in favor of freedom of the press and efforts to improve or preserve, as appropriate, the independence of the media, together with an assessment of progress made as a result of those efforts;

(ii) a description of the status of freedom of the press, including initiatives in favor of freedom of the press and efforts to improve or preserve, as appropriate, the independence of the media, together with an assessment of progress made as a result of those efforts;

(iii) a description of the status of freedom of the press, including initiatives in favor of freedom of the press and efforts to improve or preserve, as appropriate, the independence of the media, together with an assessment of progress made as a result of those efforts;

(iv) a description of the status of freedom of the press, including initiatives in favor of freedom of the press and efforts to improve or preserve, as appropriate, the independence of the media, together with an assessment of progress made as a result of those efforts;

SEC. 1110. INFORMATION FOR COUNTRY COMPARISONS.—(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director General of the Foreign Commercial Service, in consultation with the Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Trade Promotion and the Assistant Secretary of State for Economic, Energy and Business Affairs, should ensure that the annual Country Comparisons for United States Businesses include—

(1) detailed assessments concerning each foreign country's terrorism, commercial, and investment practices or other actions that have resulted in poor business and investment climates were, in the opinion of the Director General of the Foreign Commercial Service, of major significance;

(2) all relevant information about such unfair business and investment practices or other actions that harm United States business interests in relevant cases in such country.

(b) ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS TO BE INCLUDED.—The information required under subsection (a) should, to the extent feasible, include—

(1) with respect to paragraph (1) of such subsection—

(A) a review of the efforts undertaken by each foreign country to promote a healthy business and investment climate that is also conducive to the United States business community and United States investors, including, as appropriate, steps taken in international fora;

(B) the response of the judicial and local arbitration systems of each country that is the subject of such detailed assessment with respect to matters relating to the business and investment climate affecting United States citizens and entities, or that have, in the opinion of the Director General of the Foreign Commercial Service, a significant impact on United States business and investment efforts; and

(C) each such country's access to the United States market;

(2) with respect to paragraph (2) of such subsection—

(A) any actions undertaken by the government of each foreign country that prevent United States citizens and businesses from receiving equitable treatment;

(B) actions taken by private businesses and citizens of each such country against members of the United States business community and United States investors;

(C) unfair decisions rendered by the legal systems of each such country that clearly benefit United States business and investment efforts; and

(D) unfair decisions rendered by the legal systems of each such country that clearly benefit United States business and investment efforts.

(c) EXPEDITED PROCEEDINGS.—In determining which information should be included in the comparisons required by paragraph (a)(1), the Director General of the Foreign Commercial Service shall consider the following:

(A) whether unfair business and investment practices of each country, including the capacity for United States investors to address such unfair business and investment practices or other actions that harm United States business interests in relevant cases in such country, including the capacity for United States citizens to operate their businesses without fear of reprisals; and

(2) information on—

(A) the extent to which the government of such country is working to prevent unfair business and investment practices; and

(B) the extent to which the government action to prevent unfair business and investment practices or other actions that harm United States business interests in relevant cases in such country.

(e) AUTHORITIES.—There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014 for the purposes of this section.

(iii) what steps the government of each such country has taken to preserve the safety and independence of the media, and to ensure the protection of those individuals who attack or murder journalists;
subsection (a), and relevant nongovernmental organizations.

(d) BUSINESS AND INVESTMENT CLIMATE WARNINGS.—The Secretary of State, with the assistance of the Assistant Secretary of State for Economic, Energy and Business Affairs, as well as the Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Trade Promotion and the Director General of the Foreign Commercial Service, shall establish a warning system that effectively alerts United States businesses and investors of—

(1) specific developments in the business and investment climate in a foreign country, including discriminatory treatment of United States businesses; or

(2) foreseeable constraint on the ability of the United States Government to assist United States businesses and investors in a foreign country, such as to the closure of a United States diplomatic or consular mission, that is not explained in the most recent Country Commercial Guide for such country.

(e) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) CO-PRODUCTION AGREEMENT.—The term ‘‘co-production agreement’’ means a United States Government or United States business working with a foreign government, foreign company, or an international organization to produce or manufacture an item.

(2) RULE OF LAW.—The term ‘‘rule of law’’ means a legal system in which laws of a foreign country are publicly promulgated, equally enforced, independently adjudicated, and are consistent with international norms and standards.

(3) TRADE AND INVESTMENT PROMOTING PRACTICES.—The term ‘‘unfair business and investment practices’’ includes any of the following:

(A) an under international law or the law of the foreign country taken by the government of such country or by businesses, citizens, or other entities of such country that have led to adverse asset losses, contracts, or otherwise contributed to an inhospitable business or investment climate.

(B) Discriminatory treatment of United States businesses, diplomats or consular officers or partially or fully nationalized United States businesses;

(C) Failure to protect intellectual property rights.

(D) Requiring a co-production agreement in order for goods from the United States to enter a foreign country.

SEC. 1111. INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION OF ARTIFACTS BY PREVENTING CHILD MARRIAGE.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) child marriage is a violation of human rights and the prevention and elimination of child marriage should be a foreign policy goal of the United States;

(2) the practice of child marriage undermines United States investments in foreign assistance to promote education and skills building for girls, reduce maternal and child mortality, reduce maternal illness, halt the transmission of HIV/AIDS, prevent gender-based violence, and reduce poverty; and

(3) expanding educational opportunities for girls, economic opportunities for women, and reducing maternal and child mortality are critical to achieving the Millennium Development Goals and the United Nations development objectives of the United States, including efforts to prevent HIV/AIDS.

(b) STRATEGY TO PREVENT CHILD MARRIAGE IN DEVELOPING COUNTRIES—

(1) STRATEGY REQUIRED.—The President, acting through the Secretary of State, shall establish a multi-year strategy to prevent child marriage in developing countries and promote the empowerment of girls at risk of child marriage in developing countries, including by addressing the underlying vulnerabilities and potential of girls under 18 in developing countries.

(2) CONSULTATION.—In establishing the strategy required by paragraph (1), the President shall consult with relevant Federal departments and agencies, multilateral organizations, and representatives of civil society.

(3) ELEMENTS.—The strategy required by paragraph (1) shall—

(A) focus on areas in developing countries with high prevalence of child marriage; and

(B) encourage diplomatic initiatives between the United States and governments of developing countries, with attention to human rights, legal reforms and the rule of law, and promotion of initiatives in key areas of education, health, income generation, changing social norms, human rights, and democracy building,

(C) Report.—Not later than 100 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall transmit to Congress a report that includes—

(A) the strategy required by paragraph (1);

(B) an assessment, including data disaggregated by age and gender to the extent possible, of current United States-funded efforts to specifically assist girls in developing countries; and

(C) examples of best practices or programs to prevent child marriage in developing countries that could be replicated.

(c) RESEARCH AND DATA COLLECTION.—The Secretary of State shall work with relevant Federal departments and agencies as part of their ongoing research and data collection activities, to—

(1) collect and make available data on the incidence of child marriage in countries that receive foreign assistance or initiatives from the United States where the practice of child marriage is prevalent; and

(2) collect and make available data on the impact of the termination of child marriage and age at marriage on progress in meeting key development goals.

(d) DEPARTMENT OF STATE’S COUNTRY REPORTS ON HUMAN RIGHTS PRACTICES.—The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 is amended—

(1) in section 116 (22 U.S.C. 2151n), by adding at the end the following new subsection—

(a) The report required by subsection (d) shall include for each country in which child marriage is prevalent at rates at or above 40 percent in at least one sub-national region, a description of the status of the practice of child marriage in such country. In this subsection, the term ‘‘child marriage’’ means the marriage of a girl or boy, not yet the minimum age for marriage stipulated in law in the country in which such girl or boy is a resident."

(2) in section 502B (22 U.S.C. 2304), as amended by section 1109(b)(2) of this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following new subsection—

(1) The report required by subsection (b) shall include for each country in which child marriage is prevalent at rates at or above 40 percent in at least one sub-national region, a description of the status of the practice of child marriage in such country. In this subsection, the term ‘‘child marriage’’ means the marriage of a girl or boy, not yet the minimum age for marriage stipulated in law in the country in which such girl or boy is a resident."

(e) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘‘child marriage’’ means the marriage of a girl or boy, not yet the minimum age for marriage stipulated in law in the country in which such girl or boy is a resident.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated pursuant to section 116(b)(2) of this Act, there is authorized to be appropriated as such sums as necessary for fiscal years 2010 through 2011 to carry out this section and the amendments made by this section.

SEC. 1112. STATEMENT OF CONGRESS REGARDING RETURN OF PORTRAITS OF HOLOCATE VICTIMS TO ARTIST DINA BABBITT.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Dina Babbitt (formerly known as Dinah Gottliebova), a United States citizen, has requested the return of watercolor portraits she painted while suffering a 1½-year-long internment at the Auschwitz death camp during World War II.

(2) Dina Babbitt was ordered to paint the portraits by the infamous war criminal Dr. Josef Mengele.

(3) Dina Babbitt’s life, and her mother’s life, were spared only because she painted portraits of doomed inmates of Auschwitz-Birkenau, under orders from Dr. Josef Mengele.

(4) These paintings are currently in the possession of the Auschwitz-Birkenau State Museum.

(b) STATEMENT OF CONGRESS.—Congress—

(1) continues to recognize the moral right of Dina Babbitt to obtain the artwork she created, and recognizes her courage in the face of the evils perpetrated by the Nazi command of the Auschwitz-Birkenau death camp, including the atrocities committed by Dr. Josef Mengele;

(2) urges the President to make it necessary to retrieve the seven watercolor portraits painted Dina Babbitt, while suffering a 1½-year-long internment at the Auschwitz death camp, and return them to Dina Babbitt;

(3) urges the Secretary of State to make immediate diplomatic efforts to facilitate the transfer of the seven original watercolors painted by Dina Babbitt from the Auschwitz-Birkenau State Museum to Dina Babbitt, their rightful owner;

(4) urges the Government of Poland to immediately facilitate the return to Dina Babbitt of the artwork painted by her that is now in the possession of the Auschwitz-Birkenau State Museum;

(5) urges the officials of the Auschwitz-Birkenau State Museum to transfer the seven original paintings to Dina Babbitt as expeditiously as possible.

SEC. 1113. STATEMENT OF POLICY REGARDING SOMALIA.

(a) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It shall be the policy of the United States to—

(1) advance long-term stability and peace in Somalia;

(2) provide assistance to the government of Somalia and nongovernmental organizations, including Somali-led nongovernmental organizations, and particularly women’s groups, as appropriate;

(3) support efforts to establish democratic civil authorities and institutions in Somalia that reflect local and traditional structures, built on the rule of law and respect for human rights, and strengthen the security sector; and

(4) support reconciliation efforts in Somalia in order to ensure lasting peace.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the President, acting through the Secretary of State, should develop a comprehensive policy in coordination with the international community and the government of Somalia that aligns humanitarian, development, economic, political, counterterrorism, anti-piracy, and regional strategies in order to bring about peace and stability in Somalia and the region.

Subtitle B—Sense of Congress Provisions SEC. 1121. PROMOTING DEMOCRACY AND HUMAN RIGHTS IN BELARUS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Despite some modest improvements, notably the release of political prisoners, the Belarusian Government’s human rights and democratic freedoms as governmental authorities continue to commit frequent serious abuses.
(2) Since 1996, President Alexander Lukashenka has consolidated his power over all institutions and undermined the rule of law through authoritarian means.

(3) The government restricts civil liberties, including freedoms of press, speech, assembly, association, and religion. Nongovernmental organizations and political parties are subject to harassment, fines, closure, and不准

(4) More than 1,500,000 people in Kazakhstan have suffered blatant human rights abuses including extrajudicial executions, imprisonment, torture, environmental degradation, natural resource exploitation, and loss of environmental rights. The government of Kazakhstan has confirmed that more than 1,500,000 people have been killed by the clashes that began on November 10, 2009.

(5) The government of Kazakhstan has confirmed that more than 1,500,000 people have been killed by the clashes that began on November 10, 2009.
offering to host an international nuclear fuel bank; and
(2) the Secretary of State should work to establish a joint working group with the Governments of Kenya and Namibia to explore common challenges and opportunities on disarmament and non-proliferation, and to assist in assessing the environmental damage and health effects caused by Soviet nuclear testing in Semipalatinsk.

SEC. 1125. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON HOLOCAUST-ERA PROPERTY RESTITUTION AND COMPENSATION.

It is the sense of Congress that—
(1) countries in Central and Eastern Europe which have already done so may return loot ed and confiscated properties to their rightful owners or, where restitution is not possible, pay equitable compensation, in accordance with principles of justice and in an expeditious manter that is transparent and fair;
(2) countries in Central and Eastern Europe must enact and implement appropriate restitution and compensation legislation to facilitate private, communal, and religious property restitution; and
(3) countries in Central and Eastern Europe must ensure that such restitution and com-ensation legislation establishes a simple, transparent, and timely process, so that such process results in a real benefit to those individuals who suffer from the unjust confiscation of their property.

SEC. 1126. EFFORTS TO SECURE THE FREEDOM OF GILAD SHALIT.

It is the sense of Congress that Israeli soldier Gilad Shalit, who has been held captive continuously since his illegal abduction by Gazan kidnappers in 2006, should be safely released at the earliest possible time and that, pending his release, the International Committee of the Red Cross should be granted full access to him, in accordance with international law and civilized values.

SEC. 1127. SENSE OF CONGRESS RELATING TO SUDAN.

It is the sense of Congress that—
(1) the United States should support efforts to find a stable and lasting peace in Sudan in the wake of a devastating conflict that led to a major humanitarian disaster and caused the deaths of hundreds of thousands, and continues to cause violence in Darfur and throughout Sudan;
(2) the United States should adopt support for the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA); and
(3) international partners should join the United States in support of CPA, Darfur Peace Agreement by all stakeholders;
(4) the United States should support efforts to prepare for the national elections and for the referendum;
(5) the United States should support efforts to develop a coordinated international strategy to support the rebuilding of Sudan, with a particular focus on key CPA benchmarks including policy toward the Three Areas, transitional justice, which would include prosecuting perpetrators of war crimes, oil revenue sharing, the census, the displaced Darfuris and other peoples to their homeland, and management of the armed forces; and
(6) United States policy toward Darfur should be fully integrated with United States policy toward the CPA, as full and lasting resolution to the Darfur crisis hinges on the resolution of a common set of national problems.

SEC. 1128. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON RESTRICTIONS ON RELIGIOUS FREEDOM IN VIETNAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:
(1) The Secretary of State, under the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6401 et seq.) and authority delegated by the President in nations facing history of “particularly severe violations of religious freedom” as “Countries of Particular Concern”.
(2) In November 2006, the Secretary of State announced that the Socialist Republic of Vietnam was no longer designated as a “Country of Particular Concern”.
(3) The Unified Buddhist Church of Vietnam (UBCV), the Hoa Hao Buddhists, and the Cao-
Dai groups continue to face unwarranted abuses because of their attempts to organize and publicize the International Decree of Independence of Vietnamese Buddhism, including the detention and imprisonmen t of individual members of these religious communities.
(4) Over the last year, 18 Hoa Hao Budhists have been arrested for distributing sacred texts or publically protesting the religious restrictions placed on them by the Government of Vietnam, and at least 12 remain in prison, including 4 sentenced in 2007 for staging a peaceful hunger strike.
(5) At least 15 individuals are being detained in long term house arrest for reasons relating to their faith, including the most venerable Thich Quang Do and most of the leadership of the UBCV.
(6) According to Human Rights Watch, “In April 2008 Montagnard Christian Y Ben Hdok was beaten to death while in police custody in Dak Lak after other Montagnards in his district tried to flee to Cambodia to seek political asyuml.”.
(8) The February 2009, as many as 11 Montagnard Protestants were detained for de-refusing to join the officially recognized Southern Evangelical Church of Vietnam, and 2 still remain in prison.
(9) Since August 2008, the Government of Vietnam has arrested and sentenced at least eight individuals and beaten, tear-gassed, harassed, publicly slandered, and threatened Catholics engaged in peaceful activities seeking the return of Catholic Church properties confiscated by the Vietnamese government after 1954 in Hanoi, including in the Thai Ha parish.
(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—
(1) the Secretary of State should place Vietnam on the list of “Countries of Particular Concern” for particularly severe violations of religious freedom; and
(2) the Government of Vietnam should lift restrictions on religious freedom and implement necessary legal and political reforms to protect religious freedom.

The CHAIR. No amendment to the committe amendment is in order except those printed in part C of House Report 111-143. Each amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered read, and shall not be debatable for the time specified in the report, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent of the amendment, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question.

SEC. 1012. RECRUITMENT AND HIRING OF VETERANS AT THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE AND UNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Building a more expeditionary and capable Department of State and United States Agency for International Development requires personnel with experience working in unstable areas.

(2) Veterans of the Armed Forces have specialized experience gained from working under stressful circumstances in hostile, foreign environments or under difficult circumstances.

(3) The Foreign Service Act of 1980 states that “The fact that an applicant for appointment as a Foreign Service officer candidate is a veteran or disabled veteran shall be considered an affirmative factor in making such appointments.”

(4) In 1998, Congress enacted the Veterans Employment Opportunities Act (VEOA), requiring that Federal agencies must allow preference eligibles and certain veterans to apply for positions announced under merit promotion procedures whenever an agency is recruiting from outside its own workforce.

(5) With the help of the Office of Personnel Management on “The Employment of Veterans in the Federal Government” for fiscal year 2007, detailing the efforts by all agencies of the Federal Government to hire veterans, reported that 15.6 percent of all Department of State employees were veterans.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development should intensify their efforts to recruit more veterans, that those applicants who are entitled to five or ten point veterans preference have also served in the Armed Forces in areas of instability with specialties such as civil affairs, law enforcement, and assignments where they regularly performed other nation-building activities, and that this experience should be considered in making appointment offers to serve in the Foreign Service.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State and the Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development shall jointly submit to Congress a report on the efforts of the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development to improve the recruitment of veterans into their respective workforces.

SEC. 1114. MODERNIZATION AND STREAMLINING OF UNITED STATES FOREIGN ASSISTANCE.

(a) AMENDMENTS.—Chapter 1 of part III of title 22, United States Code (chapter 323 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 308 the following new section:

SEC. 609. MONITORING AND EVALUATION OF UNITED STATES FOREIGN ASSISTANCE.

(1) In general.—The Secretary of State should develop and implement a rigorous system to monitor and evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of United States foreign assistance. The Secretary should develop criteria for selecting of programs to be subject to various evaluation methodologies, with particular emphasis on impact evaluation.

(2) Establishes.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should ensure that the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development with the monitoring and evaluation activities of the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development with the monitoring and evaluation activities of all other Federal departments and agencies carrying out United States foreign assistance programs, and when possible with other international bilateral and multilateral agencies and entities.

(3) Establishes.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should establish an organization unit, or strengthens an existing unit, with adequate staff and funding to budget, plan, and conduct appropriate performance monitoring and improvement and evaluation activities with respect to such programs.

(4) Establishes.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should ensure that the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development with the monitoring and evaluation activities of all other Federal departments and agencies carrying out United States foreign assistance programs, and when possible with other international bilateral and multilateral agencies and entities.

(5) Establishes.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should establish an organization unit, or strengthens an existing unit, with adequate staff and funding to budget, plan, and conduct appropriate performance monitoring and improvement and evaluation activities with respect to such programs.

(6) Establishes.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should ensure that the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development with the monitoring and evaluation activities of all other Federal departments and agencies carrying out United States foreign assistance programs, and when possible with other international bilateral and multilateral agencies and entities.

(7) Establishes.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should establish an organization unit, or strengthens an existing unit, with adequate staff and funding to budget, plan, and conduct appropriate performance monitoring and improvement and evaluation activities with respect to such programs.

(8) Annual Evaluation Plan.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President, should ensure that the head of each Federal department or agency carrying out United States foreign assistance programs develops an annual evaluation plan for such programs stating how the department or agency will implement this section.

(9) Consultation.—In preparing the evaluation plan, the head of each Federal department or agency carrying out United States foreign assistance programs should consult with the heads of other appropriate Federal departments and agencies, governments of host countries, International and local non-governmental organizations, and other relevant stakeholders.

(10) Submission to Congress.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this section, the head of each Federal department or agency carrying out United States foreign assistance programs should submit to the appropriate congressional committees an evaluation plan consistent with this subsection.

(11) Budgetary Planning.—

(1) For Federal Departments and Agencies.—The Secretary, under the direction of the President and in consultation with the heads of such Federal department or agency carrying out United States foreign assistance programs, should take concrete steps to enhance the performance monitoring and improvement and evaluation capacity of each such Federal department and agency, subject to the availability of resources for such purposes, including by increasing and improving training for staff and education, and by adopting best practices and up-to-date evaluation methodologies to provide the best evidence available for assessing the outcomes and impacts of such programs.

(2) For Recipient Countries.—The Secretary is authorized to provide assistance to increase the capacity of countries receiving United States foreign assistance to design and conduct performance monitoring and evaluation and improvement activities.

(3) Definitions.—

(1) In general.—In this section—

(C) United States Agency for International Development means an independent agency established by title II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2331 et seq.), as amended; and

(2) TERMS.—Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year, not more than 2 percent may be used for monitoring and evaluation activities.

(3) Other donor assistance.

(a) In general.—The Secretary of State shall take such actions as are necessary to ensure that any assistance that is provided to any foreign country that the Secretary determines will be used to enhance the ability of the Government of that country to provide assistance to populations in the need, whether provoked by natural disaster, conflict, or acute economic difficulties.

(b) Reporting and evaluation mechanisms; and

(c) including an assessment of agency innovations, achievements, and failures to perform, and policy and budget recommendations for changes to agency operations, programs, and funding.

(2) GAO.—Not later than two years after the date of the enactment of this Act and two years thereafter, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to Congress a report evaluating the design, implementation, and Federal Government coordination of a comprehensive strategy regarding food security and food security required under subsection (c).

SEC. 1116. STATEMENT OF CONGRESS ON THE HUMANITARIAN SITUATION IN SRI LANKA.

Congress makes the following statements:

(1) The United States welcomes the end to the 26-year conflict in Sri Lanka between the Government of Sri Lanka and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam; and

(2) durable and lasting peace will only be achieved through a political solution that addresses the legitimate aspirations of all Sri Lankan communities, including the Tamils.

(3) The United States eagerly looks forward to the Government of Sri Lanka’s putting forward a timely and credible proposal to end the conflict, and to make Sri Lanka’s citizens and government partners commit to peace and reconciliation.

(4) The United States respects the legitimate grievances of its Tamil citizens so that peace and reconciliation can be achieved and sustained;

(5) The United States expects the Government of Sri Lanka to abide by its commitments to allow access for representatives of the responsible international organizations that are conducting the screening and registration process for internally displaced persons; and

(6) The United States welcomes the Government of Sri Lanka’s commitment to place the camps under civilian control and ensure that such camps meet international humanitarian standards, including the right to freedom of movement, as well as Sri Lanka’s promise to release camp residents and permit them to return to their homes at the earliest possible opportunity.

My amendment makes a number of changes. Many of these are minor or technical amendments. Others address issues raised by other committees that have a jurisdictional interest in the bill. However, there are a number of other changes in my bill that are more substantive. For example, the amendment takes care of requests by Members that are generally unobjectionable even though substantive.

For example, the bill adds a provision that would allow the State Department’s growing Civilian Response Corps to enhance its capability by drawing on locally employed staff who have significant expertise in unstable environments.

It includes provisions to assist in the compensation for victims of terrorism from the 1998 Nairobi bombing, drawing from a bill that we passed last year on a bipartisan basis and supported by Mr.

our Ranking member, Ileana Ros-

The amendment also updates language currently in the bill, welcoming the end of Sri Lanka’s 26-year civil war between the government and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam. These are provisions pushed particularly by the gentleman from New York (Mr.

the international community, ear-gerly looks forward to the government of Sri Lanka’s putting forward a timely and credible proposal to engage its Tamil community and address the legitimate grievances of its Tamil citizens so that peace and reconciliation can be achieved and sustained. It also includes a provision by Mr. Berman to members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, including an amendment by Mr. Wilson from South Carolina, who I agreed to work with during the markup at the committee. It also increases the amount of funds for the State Department Inspector General and the National Endowment For Democracy, as suggested by the minority in their views on the bill.

This continues my efforts to include sensible Republican ideas into H.R.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 222, the gentleman from Cali-iforni
site, she quoted that she was "in awe of Margaret Sanger." She said that "Margaret Sanger's life and leadership was one of the most transformational in the entire history of the human race and that Sanger's work both here and abroad led to a deterioration in the human stock."

I pointed out that Sanger's legacy was indeed transformational, but not for the better if one happens to be poor, disenfranchised, weak, disabled, a person of color, an unborn child, or among the many so-called undesirables, the disabled and the perpetuation of defectives. And that Sanger would exclude and exterminate from the human race.

Sanger's prolific writings dripped with contempt for those she considered unfit to live. I have actually read many of Sanger's articles and books. She was an unapologetic eugenicist and a racist who said, "The most merciful thing a family does for one of its infant members is to kill it."

She also said on another occasion, "Eugenics is one of the most adequate and thorough avenues to the issue of racial, political and social problems."

She said, and I quote in pertinent part, "Such benevolence is not merely superficial and nearsighted." She said, "It conceals a stupid cruelty and leads to a deterioration in the human stock and the perpetuation of defectives, delinquents and dependents.

So it is to me and many Members who are pro-life extraordinarily difficult to understand how anyone could be in awe of Margaret Sanger, a person who made no secret whatsoever of views that were antithetical to protecting the lives of the weakest and the most vulnerable, and to suggest that her work remains undone around the world, which the Secretary of State has done, is deeply troubling.

So I asked our Secretary of State, is the Obama administration seeking in any way to weaken or overturn pro-life laws and policies in African and Latin American countries, either directly or through multilateral organizations, including and especially the United Nations, the African Union, or the Organization of American States? And I also asked her, does the United States' definition of reproductive health include abortion?

Secretary of State Clinton was very clear, she was not ambiguous, and in a radical departure from President Bush said that the administration, the Obama administration, was entitled to advocate abortion anywhere in the world.

Secretary Clinton went on to unilaterally redefine the term "reproductive health" to include abortion, even though that definition isn't shared by the rest of the world, including and especially in countries in Latin America and in Africa. That is important, because the term "reproductive health" is found in numerous UN consensus documents and action plans and in the laws of countries worldwide.

On March 10, the UN Acting Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Population, Refugee and Migration Bureau, told the UN that the U.S. Government seeks to achieve universal access to reproductive health and the promotion of reproductive rights. In light of the Secretary of State's statement, that clearly means universal access to abortion on demand.

By foisting abortion on the developing world via a new government Office on Global Women's Issues, the Obama administration is squandering America's political capital to enable the purveyors of death to descend upon nation after nation to promote their deadly wares.

Section 334 of the underlying legislation establishes an Office for Global Women's Issues, and I suggested that we limit it, that it not become a war room at the Department of State for the promotion of abortion. If so, the numbers go up.

I would like to ask the distinguished chairman, you know I asked those questions of Secretary of State Clinton. Do you believe that such activity, promotion of abortion, is prohibited under current law as referenced by your amendment? Can this new office promote activities outside of abortion?

Mr. BERMAN. They cannot. If the gentleman is yielding on his time to me, they cannot. You know, Abe Lincoln used to tell this story: If you call a tail a leg, how many legs does a sheep have? And the answer is four, because calling a tail a leg doesn't make it one.

No matter how many times the specter is raised, this office cannot do and has no intention and no plans of doing anything to promote abortions, coerce abortions, lend money or lobby for an abortion policy.

It is an office that is focused generally on the issues of women's political empowerment: should women have the right to vote, should they be able to run for office, are they treated as equal citizens under the law. It serves as a promoter of better education for women and girls and a series of causes that you are known for caring about.

And it does not. It does not.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Reclaiming my time. On the floor of multilateral organizations like the Organization of American States, the African Union and others, the United Nations, what can the role of this new office be vis-à-vis the abortion issue and those multilateral organizations?

Mr. BERMAN. If the gentleman will continue to yield, my view is that that office cannot do through indirection, things by going through agencies, anything that it is not allowed to do on its own. And it is not allowed to do the things that you are concerned about. And the purpose of the manager's amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey's 10 minutes has expired.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Will the gentleman yield 1 minute on his time?

Mr. BERMAN. I will yield more time to discuss this, if you want, but first I am going to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. RUPPERSBERGER), who has been waiting patiently. Then, if you want, we can come back to this.

(Mr. RUPPERSBERGER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RUPPERSBERGER. I rise in support of H.R. 2410 and thank you for your indulgence, Mr. Chairman.

As chairman of the Technical Tactical Subcommittee of the House Intelligence Committee, I support a provision relative to the International Traffic in Arms Regulations.

ITAR is a set of regulations that control the import and export of defense-related technology and services on the U.S. Munitions List. In 1998, all commercial satellite components were added to the list of restricted munitions exports with licensing conditions. Our Intelligence TNT Subcommittee has investigated ITAR's effect on our satellite program, and it has clearly affected it in a negative way.

Before the 1998 restrictions went into effect, 73 percent of the world market for commercial satellites went to U.S. companies. By the year 2000, that figure had dropped to 27 percent. There are technologies on the ITAR list that don't need to be, and foreign companies are actually marketing their products as "ITAR-free." Our companies get weaker as theirs get stronger.

I approached Chairman Berman, who was also working on this issue with his committee. Section 826 of this bill grants the President the flexibility to remove simple, old, and widely available technology from the new Munitions List. Our most militarily-sensitive technology will remain.

I want to thank Chairman Berman and his staff for including this language. Please vote for H.R. 2410.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from California has 3 minutes remaining.

Mr. BERMAN. I yield myself 2 minutes, Mr. Chairman.

Let me just lay out this Office of Global Women's Issues. First of all, by law, by virtue of the Helms amendment and the Siljander amendment and the Leahy amendment, it cannot and, by practice, it does not and has no intention of serving as a vehicle for either abortion policy or coercive abortion.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
H6483

What does it do? It is dedicated to ensuring that women around the world can realize their potential by fully participating in the political, economic and cultural lives of their societies.

Women around the globe, and the gentlewoman from New Jersey knows this, women are bought and sold like commodities and trafficked across international borders for sexual exploitation. Young children are married off to men old enough to be their grandfathers for their education and childhood abruptly ended. Girls have their bodies mutilated in the name of culture or tradition, leading to complications in childbearing and lifelong pain and incontinence. Young women are slain by their own families for perceived and sometimes fictitious infractions, simply because they are viewed less as human beings and as symbols of human honor.

Women who become infected with HIV, often because of the infidelity of their husbands, lose their livelihoods or do not have access to the medicines that could prolong their lives and prevent transmission of the virus to their children.

I say to the gentleman, these causes and consequences that I have mentioned have always been at the forefront of the gentleman’s own concerns, and to hold this entire bill and this office hostage to a desire to change abortion law I think is unfair. I scruplously avoided and the committee Democrats scrupulously avoided any effort to change that law in the other direction, and I think it is wrong to try to hijack this bill to hold it hostage for those purposes.

I yield back the balance of my time.
The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN).

The question was taken; and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey, Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.
The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MS. ROS-LEHTINEN

The CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I have an amendment at the desk.
The CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.
The text of the amendment is as follows:

SEC. 418. WITHHOLDING OF CONTRIBUTIONS EQUAL TO NUCLEAR TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION PROGRAM PROVIDED TO SYRIA, SUDAN AND CUBA IN 2007.

The Secretary of State shall withhold $4,472,100 from the United States contribution to the regularly assessed budget of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.
The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Florida.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The prospect of an Iranian regime brandishing nuclear weapons is a nightmare scenario that we must stop if we are to avoid being forever threatened with destruction. But the problem, Mr. Chairman, is not confined to Iran. Following in its footsteps are countries such as Syria, whose clandestine nuclear weapons program is only now coming to light.

We and our allies must use the means at our disposal to prevent these and other rogue regimes from realizing their deadly ambitions. We have an opportunity today to cut off an important source of assistance to the nuclear proliferation programs of these regimes, the help provided by the International Atomic Energy Agency, the very organization charged with preventing nuclear proliferation.

The Government Accountability Office recently released a scathing report on the State Department’s near total lack of oversight regarding the nuclear assistance that the IAEA provides to member states, especially to Iran, Syria, Cuba and Sudan.

The GAO report noted that from 1997 to the year 2007, the International Atomic Energy Agency’s Technical Cooperation Program provided over $55 million to these state sponsors of terrorism, supposedly for “peaceful purposes.” But as the GAO report notes, nuclear equipment, technology and expertise can be dual use, which means capable of serving a peaceful purpose, but also used contributing to nuclear weapons development.

The GAO report criticizes offices at the State Department for having little or no idea what these programs actually consist of, much less working to stop the most harmful among them.

Unfortunately, the bill before us contains no language that addresses this serious problem, despite its authorization of the administration’s full request for over $100 million to be given to the IAEA.

The bill before us does not mandate that the State Department take immediate action to implement the recommendations of the GAO. It does not require our representatives at this Agency to do anything to prevent additional nuclear assistance from going to Iran, from going to Syria, other enemies of the United States. It does not even mention the problem, Mr. Chairman.

By contrast, an extensive section of H.R. 2475, an alternative Foreign Relations Authorization Act that I introduced earlier this year, was devoted to reform the United Nations, including addressing the specific problems of preventing the International Atomic Energy Agency nuclear assistance goin to state sponsors of terrorism and countries in violation of their IAEA obligations. But none of that language is included in a bill that we are considering today. And that is why, Mr. Chairman, I am offering this amendment.

What would this amendment do? It would apply direct and unambiguous pressure on the International Atomic Energy Agency to halt its assistance to those countries of proliferation concern by withholding from the U.S. contribution almost $4.5 million. Why that amount?

That is equal to the amount that the Agency spent on nuclear assistance to Iran, Syria, Cuba and Sudan in the year 2007, the most recent fiscal year for which figures are available.

Opponents of my amendment may counter that denying funds to the IAEA for any purpose will weaken its nonproliferation efforts. But let me be clear: Mr. Chairman; this amendment does not affect safeguards or inspections.

It is standing to stand here and be forced to say that the International Atomic Energy Agency’s technical nuclear assistance is adding to this threat; but it is, and we cannot let it continue.

Unfortunately, we cannot expect the cooperation of this Agency, the IAEA, in providing this critical leverage because the Agency’s attitude was summed up by a senior official who, when pressed to explain the continuing assistance to Iran and other state sponsors of terrorism, even as they defy the Agency and the U.N. Security Council, stated that “there are no good countries and there are no bad countries.”

Faced with this extraordinary situation, Mr. Chairman, our only option is to use our financial leverage to force the International Atomic Energy Agency to stop helping our enemies’ nuclear weapons programs. The threat that we face from Iran and the multiplying nuclear powers around the world grow every day.

If we are to defend ourselves, we must use every leverage that we possess to stop this menace before it becomes a reality. My amendment is an opportunity to do just that.

I ask my colleagues for their support. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, could I ask if the gentlelady is finished?

Our side has the right to close. Then since I’ll be the only speaker and I have the right to close—

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Absolutely, Mr. Chairman. If I could ask the chairman how much time I have left.

The Acting CHAIR (Mr. CAPUANO). Does the gentleman from California claim the time in opposition?

Mr. BERMAN. I do.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlelady has used all her time allotted. The gentileman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.
Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume, up to 5 minutes.

I rise in opposition to the amendment. I share a lot of the ranking member’s concerns, fundamentally, about the amendment as named in her amendment and about the lack of stated purpose. But there are sort of three different levels on which I think her amendment raises serious doubts and causes me to want to oppose it.

The first is the assumption that withholding assessed contributions produces the actions we want. We’ve had test cases of this.

Wouldn’t it have been great if the money we withheld from the U.N. population planning account had stopped coerced abortions in China?

Wouldn’t it be great if the dues we are assessed to pay to the United Nations had resulted in the kinds of reforms that eliminated the questionable contact that the minority rightfully points to? It’s a real challenge to this assumption that the withholding is what achieves the goal. We can wish it a lot, but it didn’t always happen.

Secondly, there are some specific categories of programs here that are involved, and I want to mention two because, in some cases, they make some sense. The technical assistance provided by IAEA is constructive and supportive of a number of humanitarian needs, such as the eradication of the tsetse fly that is found in the central African countries, the fruit fly in Panama, improving cancer diagnosis and treatment in Tanzania, Niger, Mali, Zambia and the Central African Republic, improvements in agriculture in groundwater tracing. These are the kinds of programs that are involved.

Once in a while there may be a project such as in Iran or Syria that may provide a small amount of useful experience in general nuclear science and technology. But the most important part is to the extent that some of these programs are about enhancing safety.

The U.S. is totally free on the board to vote against those projects at the Board of Governors, and does so. The U.S. already denies extra budgetary funding for technical cooperation projects for state sponsors of terrorism, which the countries the gentleman mentioned are.

However, the proposed amendment mandates the withholding, not of the voluntary contributions, not of the extra budgetary support, but of the U.S. regular dues to the IAEA.

So what does it do?

It hampers the Agency’s primary function, which is the inspecting and safeguarding of nuclear material in foreign countries. This is cutting off your nose to spite your face.

The IAEA’s technical assistance program is funded entirely from voluntary contributions. The program that, understandably, concerns the gentleman is not from the assessed contributions. It’s from the voluntary contributions.

The amendment is not focused on the voluntary contributions. It’s focused on the assessed contributions.

So what will we do? We’ll end up cutting the funds that would otherwise be used by the IAEA to ensure that states are not diverting nuclear material from peaceful to military purposes—pretty serious concern—inspections that are in the direct national security interest of the United States. That’s what we’re cutting.

So that’s why I think the amendment, not by its intention, and even by its focus on these programs, we could live without those programs, but its focus on cutting the assessed dues to the most important functions for the United States of the IAEA makes no sense, and I urge a “no” vote.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN).

The question was taken; and the Acting CHAIR announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Florida will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. POLIS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Mr. POLIS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment made in order by the rule, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 3 offered by Mr. POLIS:
Page 26, line 21, insert “and, if practicable, made available over the internet after “general public”.”
Page 27, line 7, insert before the period the following: “, including making such films available over the internet, if practicable.”

SEC. 3. BROADENING EXPERIENCE WITHIN THE FOREIGN SERVICE.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a detailed plan to increase the career incentives provided to Foreign Service officers to serve in bureaus and offices of the Department of State not primarily focused on regional issues, including the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor, the Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs, and the Bureau of Population, Refugees and Migration. In formulating such plan, the Secretary shall consult with a broad range of active and retired Foreign Service officers and current and former officials of the Department to elicit proposals on how to make the Department not primarily focused on regional issues, and shall consider—

(1) requiring all Foreign Service officers to serve at least two years in an bureau or office of the Department not primarily focused on regional issues prior to joining the Senior Foreign Service; and

(2) changing the composition of Foreign Service selection boards to increase the participation of Department personnel with extensive experience in bureaus and offices of the Department not primarily focused on regional issues.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. POLIS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. POLIS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to offer an amendment to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011.

I applaud and thank Chairman Berman and his staff for their hard work and their dedication to this important issue. This legislation truly represents a renewed emphasis on meaningful dialogue and strong diplomacy as it sets forth to increase our number of Foreign Service officers, grow our Peace Corps mission, develop new educational and cultural exchange programs, and expand our public diplomacy efforts.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment calls on the Department, as part of the public outreach and public diplomacy efforts, to make materials found in libraries, resource centers and film screenings available online to help showcase United States culture, society and values in history to as many individuals as possible. It also adds online outreach as an evaluation criteria for our public outreach efforts.

The Internet has made the world a smaller place, making it easier to share information globally in just a matter of seconds. It’s imperative that we utilize the Internet as a means of public diplomacy and continue to explore the effectiveness of online outreach.

My amendment also tasks the State Department with diversifying the experience of Foreign Service officers. Through creative diplomacy and hard work in often harsh conditions, our Nation’s top diplomatic corps make an enormous contribution to global peace and stability and to the way in which our Nation is viewed overseas. However, many of the best and brightest Foreign Service officers feel forced to focus exclusively on a region or country, frequently avoiding critical assignments in nonregional bureaus, to the detriment of the Nation’s needs.

They aren’t avoiding these assignments because they don’t care about these issues without borders, like human rights, the environment or refugees issues, but rather because the State Department’s promotion system strongly favors those Foreign Service officers who focus on country-specific or regional assignments.

My amendment is designed to correct this inequity and to pave the way for a more balanced and effective diplomatic corps.

I urge my colleagues to vote yes on this amendment.
Department will increase career incentives for Foreign Service officers to serve in bureaus and offices not primarily focused on regional issues.

We further ask that the Department consider requiring all Foreign Service officers to serve at least 2 years in a bureau or office that is not focused exclusively on a regional issue before joining the Senior Foreign Service.

The amendment also recommends that a composition of Foreign Service selection boards include the participation of permanent personnel with extensive experience in nonregional assignments. I believe this amendment will help shake up the current system of promotion in the Foreign Service, and result in a stronger and better diplomatic corps that’s able to apply lessons learned from throughout the globe with deep sector expertise when tackling issues such as human rights, the environment, population and refugees.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim time in opposition, even though I do not oppose the substance of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment by the gentleman from Colorado has three main components, none of which I find inherently objectionable.

Most significantly, it would require the State Department to report to Congress with a plan on providing appropriate career incentives for Foreign Service officers to serve in nonregional bureaus of the Department, such as the human rights and refugee-focused bureaus.

And, secondly, it would clarify that some of the new public diplomacy efforts required by the underlying bill should also make use of the Internet for outreach. And even with the question the fiscal wisdom of the underlying provisions, these changes do not exacerbate those flaws. I do not intend to oppose this amendment.

I yield back.

Mr. POLIS. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Mr. BERMAN of California.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I strongly support it because it basically works to encourage the development of the fundamental skills of the Foreign Service.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. HUNTER

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. HUNTER: In section 91(c), redesignate paragraphs (3) and (4) as paragraphs (4) and (5).

In section 91(c), insert after paragraph (4) the following:

(3) The Secretary of Defense:

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself as much time as I may consume. And I broke the podium.

The amendment I am offering today to H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, states the following: It simply adds the Secretary of Defense to the Task Force on Prevention of Illicit Small Arms Trafficking in the Western Hemisphere that is created under this legislation.

The stated purpose of this task force is to develop a strategy and integrated Federal policies to better control the export of small arms and light weapons in a manner that furthers the foreign policy and national security interests of the United States in the Western Hemisphere.

While this task force is comprised of the Secretaries of Homeland Security and the Attorney General, all of whom should be members of this task force, it does not include perhaps the most important player in global countertrafficking operations, the Secretary of Defense.

The Department of Defense plays an important role in U.S. security cooperation and assistance worldwide, particularly with governments and militaries throughout the Western Hemisphere. The Secretary of Defense is critical to our efforts to promote peace and stability in our region of the world, and intelligence and operational support provided by our military are an integral part of this shared responsibility.

Given the Department of Defense’s role as an interagency partner in countertrafficking and U.S. export control activities, it should not be excluded. I don’t think, in any way from being a primary member of this task force. Whatever this task force puts forward in the way of policy recommendations will be closely evaluated by Congress as we work to address the serious problems of weapons trafficking and U.S. exports are critical to our efforts to promote peace and stability in our region of the world, and intelligence and operational support provided by our military are an integral part of this shared responsibility.

some 90%—recovered from crime scenes in Mexico that are originally from the United States, this is not just a Mexico issue. In February, I led a congressional delegation to Mexico and Jamaica. In Jamaica, Prime Minister Golding told me that 90% of the guns recovered in Jamaica also originate in the U.S.

This provision requires the President to create an inter-agency task force—chaired by the Secretary of State—charged with developing a strategy for the federal government to coordinate efforts to reduce and prevent illegal firearms trafficking from the U.S. throughout the Western Hemisphere. Currently, the U.S. government has no cohesive strategy to combat small arms trafficking in the Western Hemisphere. Since our inability to control firearms leaving the U.S. creates this problem in the first place, we must do more.

This provision helps us to view the illegal firearms trafficking issue holistically, rather than just focusing on one or two countries.

The October 2007 United States-Mexico Joint Merida Initiative said that the U.S. would “intensify its efforts to address all aspects of drug trafficking . . . and continue to combat trafficking of weapons and bulk currency to Mexico.” With this provision, we are not simply living up to our commitment to Mexico, but are also taking responsibility for our unfortunate contributions to drugs and violence throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Mr. Hunter’s amendment adds the Secretary of Defense to the task force which already includes the Secretary of State, the Attorney General and the Secretary of Homeland Security. I believe this is a positive addition to my provision.

The presence of the Secretary of Defense on the task force will help address reports made that some firearms recovered in crime scenes in Mexico and elsewhere come from U.S. military arsenals. We have seen no evidence to support such allegations, if this is in fact true, we must find out what happened to ensure that the practice ends immediately.

Mr. Chair, I thank Mr. Hunter for offering this amendment, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 5 OFFERED BY MR. NADLER OF NEW YORK

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 5 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mr. NADLER of New York. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk made in order by the rule.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 5 offered by Mr. Nadler of New York:

At the end of subtitle B of title XI, add the following:

SEC. 11 . . . . SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING PENSION PAYMENTS OWED BY THE STATES OF THE FORMER SOVIET UNION.

It is the sense of Congress that the United States should continue working with the states of the former Soviet Union to come to an agreement whereby each state of the former Soviet Union would pay the tens of thousands of beneficiaries who have immigrated to the United States the pensions for which they are eligible and entitled.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Nadler) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of my amendment, which, as he explained, expresses the sense of Congress that the United States should continue working with all former states of the Soviet Union to come to an agreement whereby each state of the Soviet Union would pay the tens of thousands of beneficiaries who have emigrated to the United States the pensions for which they are eligible and entitled.

Over the past several decades, many of the tens of thousands of immigrants who had come to the U.S. from these former Soviet Union states had earlier earned pensions working in their former home countries; however, most often they have been unable to collect what is owed to them.

I support Congressman Nadler’s amendment to work with the government of the former Soviet states to come to agreements whereby these states would pay the pensions to those entitled beneficiaries who have emigrated to the United States. It is the right thing to do. Further, Mr. Chairman, it would likely result in a lighter burden for U.S. taxpayers and the programs that their taxes fund to aid the elderly.

Mr. NADLER of New York. Mr. Chairman, I now yield 1 minute to the distinguished chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Mr. Berman.

Mr. BERMAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I thank him for his amendment. I strongly support it.

A number of immigrants to the United States from the former Soviet Union worked for decades in the Soviet-run industries, contributed to the state’s social security system, and expected to receive pensions when they reached the requisite age. For a variety of reasons beyond their control, they haven’t received their pensions. And some of these workers were forced to renounce their citizenship when they moved to the United States.

As many of the former Soviet states refuse to pay pensions to those who are no longer citizens, these elderly individuals face a bureaucratic nightmare in seeking to reclaim their rights. This amendment expresses our sense of Congress that we should work with the former Soviet states to establish a workable system that enables the
Mr. BERMAN, and the ranking member, Chairman, I yield myself the remaining time.

I simply want to thank the distinguished chairman of the committee, Mr. RO-PERTHON, for supporting this amendment. I know of no opposition. I urge everyone to vote for it. It is the right and fair thing to do, so I hope everyone will vote for it.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER). The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 6 OFFERED BY MR. MCCAUL

Mr. MCCAUL. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 6 offered by Mr. MCCAUL: At the end of subtitle A of title XI, add the following:

SEC. 11. COMPREHENSIVE INTERAGENCY STRATEGY AND IMPLEMENTATION PLAN FOR SUDAN.

(a) STRATEGY AND PLAN.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall develop and transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a comprehensive interagency strategy and implementation plan, which may include a classified annex, to address the ongoing and inter-related crises in Sudan and advance United States national security and humanitarian interests in Sudan, which shall include the elements specified in subsection (b).

(b) ELEMENTS.—The comprehensive interagency strategy and implementation plan required under subsection (a) shall contain at least the following elements:

(i) A report with respect to section 1127, a description of a comprehensive policy toward Sudan which balances United States interests in—

(A) resolving the conflict in Darfur;

(B) implementing the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) and promoting peace and stability in Southern Sudan;

(C) resolving long-standing conflicts in Abyei, Blue Nile, and Southern Kordofan;

(D) advancing respect for democracy, human rights, and religious freedom throughout the country;

(E) addressing internal and regional security; and

(F) combating Islamist extremism.

(ii) Progress toward achieving the policy objectives specified in paragraph (1), including—

(A) facilitating the full deployment and freedom of movement of the hybrid United Nations-African Union Mission in Darfur;

(B) ensuring access and security for humanitarian organizations throughout the country including, as appropriate, those organizations that have been expelled by the Sudanese regime;

(C) promoting reconciliation within and among disparate groups;

(D) fomenting national security and cooperation while eliminating cross-border support for armed insurgents;

(E) meeting the CPA benchmarks, including preparations for the conduct of national elections and referendum; and

(F) shutting down safe havens for extremists who pose a threat to the national security of the United States and its allies.

(3) A description of how United States assistance will be used to achieve the objectives in subsection (a), including a financial plan and description of resources, programming, and management of United States foreign assistance to Sudan and the criteria used to determine their prioritization.

(4) An evaluation and description of additional measures that will be taken to advance United States policy, which may range from—

(A) application of multilateral sanctions by the United Nations or regional allies, or expansion of existing United States sanctions;

(B) imposition of a no-fly zone or other coercive measures; or

(C) rapprochement with the Sudanese regime or other diplomatic measures.

(5) A complete description of both the evaluation process for reviewing and adjusting the strategy and implementation as necessary, and measures of effectiveness for the implementation of the strategy.

(c) UPDATES OF STRATEGY.—The President shall transmit in writing to the appropriate congressional committees any updates of the comprehensive interagency strategy and implementation plan required under subsection (b), as necessary.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. MCCAUL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. MCCAUL. Mr. Chairman, as one of the Chairs of the Congressional Sudan Caucus, I am proud to offer this amendment to require the administration to, within 60 days, submit to Congress a comprehensive plan to address the ongoing atrocities in Sudan.

Today, July 22, 2009, will mark the 5-year anniversary of the declaration by the United States Congress that the atrocities occurring in the Darfur region of Sudan constitute genocide. It was an historic resolution because it represented for the first time that Congress had made such a determination while the killings were actually taking place.

Today, innocent civilians in Darfur are still suffering from genocide directed by a callous regime determined to hang on to power at any cost. They are dying at the hands of the Janjaweed, also known as ‘‘the devil on horseback’’.

The United States for years has been seeking to help find ways to ease the suffering in Darfur and find a lasting political solution to each of the inter-related crises in Sudan. We’ve passed resolutions, imposed economic and travel sanctions, frozen assets, and enabled divestment from companies linked to the Sudanese regime. The United States has led efforts at the United Nations and with bilateral partners to create conditions to pressuring for the full deployment of peacekeeping missions to help protect civilians.

In addition to supporting efforts to negotiate and implement the Darfur Peace Agreement, the United States also was at the forefront of efforts to resolve the conflict in southern Sudan, a conflict which has left over 2 million people dead and another 4 million displaced.

Today, there is universal acknowledgement that if the comprehensive peace agreement between the north and south fails, there can be little hope for Darfur. Unfortunately, the terms of this peace agreement have not yet been fully implemented, and observers consistently warn that it could fail at any time.

With the national elections due this year and reports of deadly conflict within and among various armed groups on the rise, the stakes could not be higher. During the presidential campaign, each of the candidates assured voters that Sudan would be a major priority for their administrations and spoke of robust actions that would need to be taken in order to resolve Sudan’s multiple conflicts.

While serving in the United States Senate, President Barack Obama called for oil sanctions and the imposition of a no-fly zone over Darfur. While working for the Brookings Institution, U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. Susan Rice went so far as to call for military action against the Sudanese regime. But then on April 22, 2009, almost exactly 1 year after then-Senator Obama condemned the supposed efforts by the previous administration to normalize relations with Khartoum as a ‘‘reckless and cynical initiative,’’ his Special Envoy for Sudan, Scott Gration, announced, ‘‘The United States and Sudan want to be partners, and so we are looking for opportunities for us to build a stronger bilateral relationship.’’

Obviously, this bold statement sent conflicting messages to observers and caused a great deal of confusion here in the Congress, where Sudan has such a high priority for Democrats and Republicans alike.

Implementing this comprehensive strategy will advance respect for democracy, human rights, and religious freedom throughout Sudan. It will address internal regional security while combating Islamic extremism. And by advancing regional and international cooperation, it will eliminate cross-border support for armed insurgents, and it will shut down safe havens for extremists who pose a threat to the national security of the United States and its allies.

During committee debate on an amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) regarding Sudan, it became clear that there is universal agreement on both sides of the aisle that the United States needs a coordinated, comprehensive strategy for Sudan which balances the United States’ imperatives in Darfur and in southern Sudan.
The amendment simply goes one step further by giving the current administration the opportunity to resolve any outstanding issues with regard to the United States’ policy toward Sudan by formulating such a strategy and supporting that strategy back to the United States Congress.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to claim the time in opposition even though I don’t oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman’s amendment encourages the administration to create a Comprehensive Interagency Strategy and Implementation Plan for Sudan. I have spoken with Mr. McCaul about his proposal and agree that developing a coherent approach to the situation in Sudan is critical. The United States must make every effort to address the ongoing and interrelated crises in Sudan. The U.S. should work towards a stable and lasting peace in a region that has seen so many tragedies in recent years.

I have no objection to this amendment, and I look forward to working with Mr. McCaul on this provision as the bill moves through the process.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McCaul. Mr. Chairman, I urge support for this amendment, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from California (Mr. Farr).

Mr. FARR. Thank you, Chairman Berman, and thank you, Ranking Member Ileana Ros-Lehtinen.

I rise in support of but just to make a comment on the Peace Corps because I was just thinking, as hearing about the amendment, that had we fulfilled John F. Kennedy’s dream in the 1960s to have 100,000 Peace Corps volunteers serving overseas throughout the 1960s, 1970s, 1980s, 1990s, and this decade, we might have avoided the disaster in Sudan. And I want to commend the committee on because on the 50th anniversary of the Peace Corps, which is in 2011, we have now only 6,000 volunteers serving overseas. And we went from 100,000 to 78 countries. So the price tag of that is less than one weapon system. It’s a drop in the bucket; $350 million for that incredible service that we are having from our country.

And what I want to commend the committee on and all of them is the strong support for strengthening U.S. diplomacy with a consistent new vision for a global engagement, and I think that’s the global engagement that President Obama has promised this country and is now seeing delivered. And with that, this bill authorizes an increase in Peace Corps funding and will allow the Peace Corps to build to the point where we have 20 countries that are asking for Peace Corps volunteers.

We have about 12,000 people a year that volunteer to go in the Peace Corps, that sign up, and we can only take about 5,000 of them. So all of these 20 countries have been waiting in line and haven’t been able to get attention adding Peace Corps. And what’s interesting is that, as I have sort of dealt with some other issues that I think could be solved, the food hunger in Sub-Saharan Africa, I just recently read a report by the Chicago Council on Global Affairs. It called for 300 to 600 new volunteers in sub-Saharan Africa to work on agriculture as a critical step toward America’s regional leadership in the fight against hunger and food insecurity. The point was that the way you’re going to really deliver that effort is by getting people who are going to live in the community, who are going to live on the ground and work with people in the fields, and the only organization we have that does that in the Federal Government is the U.S. Peace Corps.

I don’t want to say what 1 percent of 20 by today, but what the committee did in strengthening this provision of the bill, the new Rwanda President, Paul Kagame, who is the President of the Republic of Rwanda, wrote a letter, and I will just paraphrase part of his letter:

“We view the return of the Peace Corps as a significant event in Rwanda’s recovery. These young men and women represent what is good about America. I have met former volunteers who have run major aid programs here, invested in our businesses, and I even count them among my friends and close advisors.”

He goes on to say, “While some corporations develop mostly in terms of infusion of capital, budgets, and head counts, we in Rwanda place equal importance to relationships between people who have a passion to learn from one another, preparing the next generation of leaders who will invite them to our weddings and funerals, and out into the communities to observe, to teach your children of the importance of family and to teach them the importance of family and to teach them the importance of family and to create a prosperous nation.

“We will do this because we see that the only investment with the possibility of infinite returns is in our children, and because after a couple of years in Rwanda, working and learning with our people, these Peace Corps volunteers will be our sons and daughters, too.”

There is no more loved organization in the world than the United States Peace Corps. And at this time when American image abroad has been suffering for the last decade, we need growing in this particular service. So as a return Peace Corps volunteer, I am very thankful and delighted that this committee moved the Peace Corps to the demand out there in the world and among the Americans who want to serve. I want to thank you for that.

I will submit President Kagame’s statement in the RECORD.
Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this amendments will protect intellectual property rights, or IPR, for American businesses by ensuring robust compliance with international legal IPR requirements and the enforcement of those requirements related to energy and environmental technologies.

Congressman KIRK from Illinois and I recently returned from China where we met both with Chinese leadership and American companies doing business in China. Among a number of issues that we heard on the trip, two were consistent during our meetings with the American businesses. First, there is a great deal of enthusiasm regarding the interest in energy and climate change cooperation between the U.S. and China. Second, however, is a concern that the intellectual property rights owned by those companies selling their technologies in China and other parts of the world will not be protected, and the green jobs that could be created here at home will be lost.

According to the International Energy Agency, the world needs to invest $45 trillion in energy in the coming decades to cut in half greenhouse gas emissions by 2050. To meet that goal, clean technology innovation must increase by 100 to 1,000 percent. The global market for environmental products and services is projected to double from $1.37 trillion per year at present to $2.74 trillion by 2020. And according to the American Solar Energy Society, by 2003, industries with green collar jobs could provide up to 40 million American jobs and generate up to $4.53 trillion in annual revenue.

IPR protection gives companies the confidence to invest in critical research and development efforts to meet the growing demand for clean-energy technologies. Congressmen KIRK and I have offered this amendment to H.R. 2410 to protect the IPR of these clean technologies and ensure these green jobs stay right here in the United States. It is critical that the investments that American companies are making in clean technology are protected. Protecting individual property rights will help us reward innovating and researching and advancing the technologies because they know about fair return for the inventors as it is ensuring that people will keep innovating and research and advancing the technologies because they know that ultimately they will be compensated. So it’s a symbiotic relationship. The more we protect intellectual property, the more we will be able to do in achieving our very important goals with respect to the development and deployment of new energy and environmental technologies.

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Berman).

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the sponsor of the amendment for yielding.

It’s really an excellent amendment. If we want to encourage the international cooperation that’s needed in this area, I’m telling you you’ve got to ensure that the entrepreneurs and the innovators know that their cutting-edge breakthroughs and innovations are protected. This isn’t even as much about fair return for the inventors as it is ensuring that people will keep innovating and researching and advancing the technologies because they know that ultimately they will be compensated. So it’s a symbiotic relationship. The more we protect intellectual property, the more we will be able to do in achieving our very important goals with respect to the development and deployment of new energy and environmental technologies.

Last year, the United Nations reported that clean technologies could double to $2.74 trillion by 2020 from the $1.37 trillion today because of areas... like energy-efficient technologies, sustainable transport systems, and water supply and efficiencies markets.

This is a very important amendment. Again, I think it is essential to the development and deployment of these new technologies, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, on May 19, the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change released a draft negotiating text. The text, in part, calls for the removal of “barriers to development and transfer of technologies from developed to developing country Parties arising from the intellectual property rights protection including compulsory licensing for specific patented technologies.”

The American people need to know that those were code words, like “compulsory licensing” and “technology transfer,” that really mean allowing other countries to steal the American patents, copyrights and trademarks for anything related to climate change, efficiencies or energy under the draft climate change treaty.

If the United States agrees to a climate change treaty that allows developing countries to seize U.S. intellectual property in this area, economic consequences for green-collar jobs would be devastating. American inventors now hold 50 percent of the world’s patents on clean energy, 52 percent of the patents on fuel cells, nearly half of the world’s wind patents, 40 percent of the world’s solar patents, and 40 percent of the world’s patents in the hybrid-electric vehicle market.

By 2030, industries with green-collar jobs could provide up to 40 million American jobs, and they could generate up to ten trillion in annual revenue; but none of that would happen if a climate change treaty specifically allowed compulsory licensing so that Chinese competitors, for example, or European opposition could simply steal the intellectual property of a key U.S. green-collar manufacturer.

Now, one leading American innovator told me, if we lose intellectual property rights, capital markets die.

This industry needs all of the innovation we can muster to deliver on what the world and on what the U.S. needs. Shorting that will guarantee no new investments or breakthroughs for green-collar jobs.

Now, this innovator was none other than Gregg Patterson, the CEO of PV Power—PV Power is a leading manufacturer of solar power inverter technology. Many of us remember this photo when then Presidential candidate, Senator Obama, visited Mr. Patterson last year, promising future green jobs and a green economy at his factory. As I recall, these jobs cannot be created if we do not protect the intellectual property of American inventors and manufacturers. So far, the State Department has been very silent on this issue, but countries like China and India now put it at the top of their lists for negotiations in Copenhagen to “relax intellectual property rights.” That means to steal the innovations of Americans in green-collar areas.

This is a red line marker. It says, if Copenhagen produces a treaty that allows the theft of U.S. intellectual property under compulsory licensing or under the weakening of IPR, the U.S. will not sign on.

Now, our Larsen-Kirk amendment is endorsed by the Solar Energy Industries Association, by the National Hydrogen Association, by the National Association of Manufacturers, and by the Chamber of Commerce.

I really want to thank Chairman BERNSTEIN, Chairman WAXMAN, Ranking Member ROS-LEHTINEN, and Chairman RANGEL for supporting this very commonsense piece of legislation.

I yield back.

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Chairman, I just would again ask my colleagues to support this important amendment to H.R. 2410. I appreciate everyone’s support in making it happen and for bringing it to the floor today.

Mr. MARKEY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chair, I rise in strong support of the Larsen-Kirk amendment, which will ensure that the intellectual property rights of American firms working to defeat the scourge of climate change will be protected.

We are now engaged in what could become the most difficult international negotiation in history: the painful and difficult construction of a binding, universal international agreement to reduce emissions of greenhouse gases in order to save the planet from a disastrous alteration of the climate. And here at home, we are racing to break our dependence on foreign oil and to create millions of new jobs all across the new energy economy. These two issues are inextricably linked. We cannot leave our country into the new energy economy unless we ensure that the intellectual property of American innovation is protected.

The technological breakthroughs being created in American laboratories will not only lead our country into the renewable energy future, they will lead the whole world. And it is absolutely necessary that we do everything we can to encourage and enable our high-tech entrepreneurs to innovate. To do this, we must ensure that the intellectual property rights of these innovators are protected. The Larsen-Kirk amendment is a common-sense, straightforward approach to this problem, and I commend both Members for their thoughtful amendment.

The Larsen-Kirk amendment will ensure that in the negotiation of an international climate change treaty, it will be the policy of the United States to prevent any weakening of, and ensure robust compliance with and enforcement of, existing legal protections of intellectual property rights as they relate to energy and environmental technologies. This amendment will help ensure that even as we work diligently to reduce global emissions, we are protecting the innovators who are taking the step up to the plate and deliver the technological breakthroughs which will lead this country in a new direction.

I urge my colleagues to support the amendment, and to support the underlying bill, the State Department Authorization Act.

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. LARSEN).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Washington will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. SESSIONS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 8 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 8 offered by Mr. SESSIONS: At the end of subtitle B of title XI, add the following:

SEC. 11. SENSE OF CONGRESS RELATING TO ISRAEL’S RIGHT TO SELF-DEFENSE.

It is the sense of Congress that Israel has the inalienable right to defend itself in the face of an imminent nuclear or military threat from Iran, terrorist organizations, and the countries that harbor them.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of my amendment to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act. This amendment would affirm the United States’ complete support for Israel’s absolute right to defend itself from an imminent military or nuclear threat from Iran, from terrorist organizations or from nations that harbor them.

Israel is currently being threatened on three fronts—by Hamas in the south, by Hezbollah in the north and by Iran. Iran provides financial and material support to both of these terrorist organizations. This threat culminated on May 20 when Iran successfully test-fired a surface-to-surface missile with a range of 1,500 miles. Iranian leaders continue to express their hatred for Israel, and they refuse to acknowledge its right to exist. Their incendiary words and actions are an existential threat to Israel and to the entire region.

No nation should be subjected to these continued threats. Israel has demonstrated tremendous restraint in the face of these dangers despite being surrounded by those who hate it and are恨不得 it, and the global community regarding its approach to dealing with these threats and terrorist attacks on its citizens.
June 10, 2009

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

H6491

Israel has been and remains one of the United States of America's strongest allies. Israel seeks only peace with its neighbors and a homeland secure for its people; but if an attack from Iran or from a terrorist organization becomes imminent, this Congress should declare that Israel, like the United States, should reserve for itself the inalienable right to defend itself and to protect its people.

I encourage my colleagues to demonstrate their strong support for Israel by supporting this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to claim time in opposition to this amendment, although I am not opposed to this amendment.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I don't know what we needed to say this, but I'm glad we are saying it. It goes almost without saying that any sovereign country has an inalienable right to defend itself in the face of an imminent threat, or threat. Nothing in this amendment prohibits or constrains Israel or the United States from discussing the nature of a threat, the logic of the timing or the nature of the response. So I find this amendment a useful contribution. In a day when we sometimes stating the obvious is worth doing, I plan to support the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman, the chairman of the committee, Mr. Berman, for his words of support.

In fact, this Member sees the need to make sure not only the people of Israel but the people of our country understand it should be the express purpose and policy of the United States of America to yield to other nations—yes, those in the Middle East and the so-called friends members may be sure that they are very clear in understanding our support for them. They should reserve the same right that we do to protect this country. Notwithstanding that, we've had a change of administration. Notwithstanding that, we've had many, many, many people who are supportive of Israel come and speak to me, personally, about just the question as it might occur.

Where does the United States stand in its support of Israel?

Today is a great day. Today is the bill's very appropriate to make sure that we understand that the United States' support of Israel is strong and that we stand behind Israel and that we understand that it is they, Mr. Chairman, who are just miles away from imminent threat through missile attack. I believe it is the right thing to do.

I appreciate the gentleman's feedback. I hope we vote for this. I hope it's accepted.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to reclaim the remainder of my time.

The Acting CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. Berman. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, my friend, the gentleman from California (Ms. Lee).

Ms. Lee of California. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman, for yielding.

Let me just rise to oppose this amendment and just very briefly say why.

Every country has a right under international law and under their own laws to defend their own sovereignty, their own country, to protect their country from attacks. Israel certainly has that right already, and I should believe that we all recognize that, that the security of Israel in terms of its being essential in any foreign policy that we develop as it relates to a peace process that is really so critical to the security of Israel.

I just have to say, with regard to this amendment, however, I am very reluctant to support it, and I'll just say why very briefly.

If you will remember, right after the horrific attacks of 9/11, we passed a resolution that I opposed, and I opposed it for many, many, many reasons, one of which was that the resolution was, in essence, a blank check to use force against any nation that harbored—and this is in this language here—terrorist organizations. I'll tell you that I believe that that casts a blank check once again in terms of allowing for an attack against any country. It could be Pakistan or any country which harbors terrorists, terrorists who may or may not be responsible for any unfortunate attacks. So, frankly, I think this amendment is not necessary. Israel and other countries have a right and should defend themselves from any threat from Iran, from terrorist organizations or from any country. As to any country that harbors terrorists or those who want to do harm to Israel, to me, this provides for an opening, which, unfortunately, I did not believe was correct for our own country nor do I believe we should give that authority, or that rubric, to allow for an attack. It's just a broad blank check. For those reasons, I oppose this.

Mr. SESSIONS. I appreciate the gentleman, the chairman of the committee, Mr. Berman, and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Lee) for speaking.

Mr. Chairman, we live in a dangerous world, and there are some of our friends and allies who live in, perhaps, a more dangerous neighborhood than we do here in the United States. I believe that this amendment is one we should support because it makes sure, unequivocally, that the world understands where the United States of America is in our support of not only a friendly nation but of a democracy, one of the few democracies in the region.

United States policy in the United States and in this House of Representatives should be to support it openly and to make sure hatred and understand, notcrete. Oh, I thought we did that, and I know that's what both of my colleagues are saying. I thought we were there; we don't really need to do this. We need to do it. We need to do it. It's the right thing to do.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.
I am not able to support that type of excessive authority for any other nation.

Mr. BERMAN. I yield back my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 9 OFFERED BY MRS. DAVIS OF CALIFORNIA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 9 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mrs. DAVIS of California, I have an amendment made in order by the rule, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 9 offered by Mrs. Davis of California:
At the end of subtitle A of title XI, add the following:

SEC. 11. AUDIT REQUIREMENTS FOR THE INSPKTORS GENERAL FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF DCFENSE AND THE UNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT, AND THE SPECIAL INSPECTOR GENERAL FOR AFGHANISTAN RECONSTRUCTION.

(a) AUDIT REQUIREMENTS.—The Inspectors General of the Department of State, the Department of Defense, and the United States Agency for International Development, and the Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction should address, as appropriate, in their auditing and assessment protocols for Afghanistan, the impact United States development assistance has on the social, economic, and political empowerment of Afghan women, including the extent to which such assistance helps to carry out the following:

(1) Section 103(a)(7) of the Afghan Freedom Support Act (Public Law 107–327).

(2) The goal expressed in section 102(4) of the Afghan Freedom Support Act (Public Law 107–327) to “help achieve a broad-based, multi-ethnic, gender-sensitive, and fully representative government in Afghanistan that is freely chosen by the people of Afghanistan and that respects the human rights of all Afghans, particularly women.”.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Inspectors General of the Department of State, the Department of Defense, and the United States Agency for International Development, and the Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction shall submit to Congress a report on the implementation of this section.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522 the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Davis) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California.

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I recently returned from a congressional visit to Kabul and Kandahar where we met with women from all walks of Afghan life. Unfortunately, the roles and experiences of women are not always considered in wartime or during stabilization and reconstruction operations.

These women want to contribute to the stabilization and reconstruction of their nation. That is what we heard from not just a few Afghan women who are in political or professional positions but from those who simply want the ability to care for their families, access education and health care, and feel safe and secure in their communities. If we don’t include women, we are ignoring 50 percent of the population, and we are more likely to fail in our goal.

she went on to state, “Investment in women is often a pivotal investment focus for returns on economic growth and economic development in countries.” And I believe that, and I also believe that this is true for political growth, and political development as well.

In education, some say if you don’t test it, you won’t teach it. Well, without these metrics, we can’t know how our aid is impacting our women. We are reshaping our commitment to the Afghan people in a way that fosters trust, justice, and protects human rights. The protection of the rights of women and girls in Afghanistan and their full and equal participation in Afghan civil society is essential to Afghan national security as well as ours. And I urge my colleagues to reach out to the women of Afghanistan when they’re traveling there, because we know that when you include them in your delegation conversations, they, too, can express their concerns to you. Even the most fervent women will have that opportunity with any number of women there.

I want to thank Mr. Berman for his support, and I urge the adoption of this amendment.

I yield back my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Davis).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 10 OFFERED BY MS. GINNY BROWN-WAITE OF FLORIDA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 10 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. I have an amendment at the desk. The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 10 offered by Ms. Ginny Brown-Waite of Florida:

Section 203 of the U.S. Information Agency FY 2009 authorizes an Afghan Student’s Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs and an Afghan students’ group at the University of Virginia.

On the area of cost that my good friend on the other side pointed out, there is no cost. Any additional copies of the film will be made available for purchase, which would cover the cost of copying, however small it may be.

Mr. Chair, on many occasions during this history of USIA and the Broadcasting Board of Governors, Congress has passed legislation to waive the domestic dissemination ban, known colloquially as Smith-Mundt, to make a film available for public viewing in the United States. It is a simple matter with many precedents. This should be one of those occasions. And in reference to not having it done before, on three different occasions, Mr. Chair, three different authorizations, section 208 in FY 99; section 204 in 1988 and ’89; section 205 in FY97, different occasions when this has happened before. So with due respect for the lady from Florida, we certainly respect her, but we oppose the amendment.

Mr. Chair, I now recognize for 2 minutes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Klein).

Mr. Klein of Florida. I thank the gentleman for yielding the time.

Mr. Chair, I rise to oppose the gentlelady’s amendment. I respectfully disagree that the purpose of today’s bill is to do anything other than to improve the quality of the diplomatic efforts that our men and women around the world are doing. I think that this is exactly what the direction of this bill does, and I think it does it in the right, efficient way.

This particular amendment would disallow an important film called A Fateful Harvest, available for public viewing.

Mr. Chair, the Voice of America’s Afghan service has produced this 52-minute documentary examining the narcotics industry in Afghanistan, including poppy growing, opium production, trafficking, law enforcement efforts, and the harmful health effects of drugs. It documents the challenges facing the Afghan Government as well as our own.

Financed by the Department of State’s Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs, the film has aired inside Afghanistan in Dari and Pashto. A low-resolution version of the film has been available on Voice of America’s Web site and in six separate parts on YouTube.

Mr. Chair, Voice of America has received several requests for a clean copy of this film, and the harmful health effects of drugs.

Mr. Chair, Voice of America has received several requests for a clean copy of this film, and the harmful health effects of drugs.
At the end of title X, add the following:

SEC. 10 REPORT ON CHILD ABDUCTION.

Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to Congress a report containing recommendations for changes to the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction and related United States laws and regulations regarding international parental child abduction that would, if enacted, provide the United States additional legal tools to ensure compliance with the Hague Convention and facilitate the swift return of United States children wrongfully removed from the United States as a result of international parental child abduction, such as, in the case of Sean Goldman of Tinton Falls, New Jersey.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Holt) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I thank Mr. Berman for bringing this bill to the floor.

Simply stated, my amendment would require the Secretary of State to report to Congress within 60 days on potential changes in treaty language and related U.S. laws that would improve other countries' compliance with The Hague Convention on International Child Abduction. Let me briefly explain why this amendment is necessary.

In force since 1980, The Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction was created to ensure that if a child is wrongfully removed from his or her country of habitual residence by one parent against the will of the other parent, the aggrieved parent would have an internationally recognized means of recovering the abducted child. Unfortunately, one of my constituents has come face to face with the very real limitations of the current The Hague Convention in his efforts to recover his kidnapped son from Brazil, which, like the United States, is a signatory to The Hague Convention.

Mr. Chairman, 5 years ago this month, Mr. David Goldman from central New Jersey began a long and painful odyssey to rescue his son from an international parental kidnapping. He had driven his wife and their 4-year-old son to the Newark Airport for a scheduled trip to visit their parents in Brazil. Mr. Goldman was to join them a few days later. But when he arrived, he was met with a phone call saying two things: His wife said their marriage was over; and if he ever wanted to see their son, again, he would have to sign over custody. His credit, Mr. Goldman refused to be blackmailed. Instead, he began a long and relentless campaign to secure his son's release.

Despite the clear legitimacy of Mr. Goldman's claim, the case has crawled along in Brazil's courts, bouncing back and forth for years. Mr. Goldman's wife secured a divorce and began a new relationship with a prominent lawyer. Unfortunately, Mr. Goldman's former wife died, a fact that Mr. Goldman learned only some time later because the family had concealed that from the Brazilian courts.

After my intercession and that of Mr. Smith, and with the help of the State Department, Brazilian authorities moved to have the case sent to Brazil's federal courts to secure visitation rights for Mr. Goldman. That effort was successful. David Goldman was able to see his son for the first time in nearly 5 years, earlier this year. Now just this month, the Brazilian federal court ordered Sean returned to Mr. Goldman. But amazingly, a Brazilian political party filed a motion with the Brazilian Supreme Court asserting that Brazil's accession to The Hague Convention was unconstitutional.

I'm pleased that the Obama administration has filed a motion with the Brazilian Supreme Court seeking to have this frivolous motion dismissed, but we should do more. This outrageous delaying tactic, brought by an entity with no genuine standing in the case, has only underscored the need for the United States and other nations to examine potential changes to the convention necessary in order to prevent these kinds of cases from dragging on for years. The Hague Convention on parental child abduction should not be a justification for delay. I ask my colleagues to support my amendment so that we can receive, in a timely fashion, advice and recommendations from the State Department, so that may be taken to help speed the resolution of cases like that of David and Sean Goldman.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Chair, I rise in strong support of this amendment. I thank my friend and colleague for offering it.

Today David Goldman is once again back in Brazil. He is back at the Brazilian Supreme Court, which he and I visited together last February, trying to get the justice that the Brazilian courts keep delaying and denying. Today David Goldman is tenaciously trying to reclaim his son from a child abductor.

Mr. Chair, as many Members know, almost 5 years ago David Goldman's 9-year-old son Sean was abducted by his mother to Brazil. For 5 long years, David has sought relief in the Brazilian courts with the aid of an extraordinarily talented legal team and a local grassroots organization called Bring Sean Home. Mark DeAngeles runs the campaign and encourages everyone to Google it. Go check it out. Look at the information that is contained in that Web site because it is... truly remarkable what this grassroots organization has done to provide support for David, to lift his often discouraged spirits as he's gone through this Byzantine process in Brasilia and Rio de Janeiro.

It is particularly outrageous that since the death of Sean's mother, Sean has been illegally held by her second husband, a man by the name of Lins e Silva, a wealthy and very well-connected lawyer who, by the way, does family law. If ever there was a case of abusing family law, the David Goldman case is it. Lins e Silva refuses to return Sean to his father David, but, heedless of the damage he does to Sean, end-lessly delays, obstructs and abuses the judicial system.

Last Tuesday, after a court had ordered the abductor, Lins e Silva, to turn Sean over for immediate return to the United States, within 48 hours a member of the Brazilian Supreme Court responding to an appeal by a Brazilian political party, suspended that order. I have read Judge Pinto's return order—not all 82-pages, but the parts that were translated into English from Portuguese. It is a remarkable finding by a judge of a Brazilian Court. He has not just been the first kidnapping by the mother, who sadly has passed away, but a second kidnapping, that occurred when a man who was not Sean's father took custody of him was not adopted, and just grabbed him as if he was some kind of commodity. It is outrageous.

That judge recognized that. He also acknowledged the extreme emotional and psychological harm that is being done to Sean Goldman each and every day. Court-appointed psychiatrists did an extensive battery of tests and reviews of Sean Goldman and found that the continued absence of David, the real father, has caused incredible emotional harm, which is compounded each and every day.

Mr. Chair, David, again, is now before the Supreme Court; and this political party is actually questioning the constitutionality of The Hague Convention itself and its applicability to the laws of Brazil. To me, that seems as if—and it is—that Sean is being taken hostage. If they want to review parentally kidnapped children to other countries as a result of a parental abduction?

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is an important step in addressing a problem that will likely get worse in coming years in light of the growing number of international births and marriages. We must continue to use the legal tools at our disposal to prevent or resolve these childhood abduction cases.

I support the gentleman from New Jersey's amendment. The Acting CHAIR. All time has expired. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey.

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 12 OFFERED BY MS. GINNY BROWN-WAITE OF FLORIDA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 12 printed in part C of House Report 111–143. Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida has an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment. The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 12 offered by Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida: Strike section 303.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Florida.

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Chairman, just a few moments ago, I rose to point out what I believe is unnecessary spending. I suppose it is not a coincidence that I rise again to point out what I believe is another unnecessary spending item.

Section 303 of the Foreign Relations Act before us authorizes funding for the establishment of a Lessons Learned Center. If money were no object, I think it may be a fine thing to do. In fact, it is hard to imagine that anything produced by the center would not be used.

However, as you can imagine, many of my colleagues are wondering, why would anyone oppose this center? They might even point out that those who do not learn from history are doomed to repeat it.

Mr. Chairman, in some ways, my colleagues may be right. But what is essential is that we do learn from our mistakes, and that is precisely why the State Department's exam to become a Foreign Service officer is so rigorous. That is why the intelligence agencies seek the best and the brightest. And, frankly, Mr. Chairman, that is why the entire academic community going back thousands of years has produced a center.

Additionally, with 24-hour news events, we all become instantly knowledgeable. It is reviewed and reviewed.
Mr. DELAHUNT, the originator of this amendment, strongly opposes the amendment.

What may be one of the most important issues, in my judgment, is that the American people expect us to be fiscally responsible. We are spending trillions of dollars overseas. It is a remarkable piece of work.

I want to make clear what this provision does. It begins the process of creating a Lessons Learned Center by authorizing its creation and requiring a report from the Department of State on how much it would cost to actually establish such a center. So it is not only call for debate, at this moment, for a report, and that report, itself, will detail the cost.

I would be happy to work with the gentlewoman from Florida as this report is produced so that we can ensure that it details ways.

Please oppose this amendment.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 11⁄2 minutes.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to also oppose the gentlewoman’s effort, but I think this is fundamentally a crucial part of this piece of legislation. I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. I want to make clear what this provision does. It begins the process of creating a Lessons Learned Center by authorizing its creation and requiring a report from the Department of State on how much it would cost to actually establish such a center. So it is not only calling, at this moment, for a report, and that report, itself, will detail the cost.

I would be happy to work with the gentlewoman from Florida as this report is produced so that we can ensure that it details ways.

Please oppose this amendment.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to section 4(a), Mr. BERMAN is recognized for 11⁄2 minutes.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to also oppose the gentlewoman’s amendment. The underlying legislation contains commonsense provisions to ensure we are making the most use of our taxpayer funds in our diplomatic mission. There are a wide variety of opinions about how effective our diplomatic positions have been, and we appreciate the men and women in the diplomatic corps.

But we can do better in terms of, as the gentleman said, getting a better bang for our buck. Creating a Lessons Learned Center will allow the State Department and USAID to be more efficient in their spending and reduce duplicative efforts. We have already identified mountains of duplicative efforts. This provision is part of this broader strategy in the legislation to ensure accountability in our diplomatic efforts and on behalf of our taxpayers. It also includes a quadrennial review of our national plan for U.S. diplomacy and development programs, just like the Defense Department does every 4 years.

This, to me, is exactly what we should be doing in this bill as we are beginning a new way of looking at our diplomatic efforts.

So, again, I appreciate the gentlewoman’s effort, but I think this is fundamentally a crucial part of this piece of legislation. I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

The amendment was rejected.

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 13 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk, Amendment No. 13, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

SEC. 1012. REPORT ON EFFECTS OF BUY AMERICA WAIVERS UNDER THE PEPFAR PROGRAM.

(a) STUDY.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study of the effects of the United States Agency for International Development’s use of waivers under the Buy America Act for HIV test kits purchased under the President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) program on—

(1) United States-based manufacturers; and

(2) availability of and access to HIV testing for at-risk populations in low-income countries.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to Congress a report on the results of the study required under subsection (a).

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BISHOP) and a number of other Members opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. I want to start by thanking Chairman BERMAN for his leadership on this very important legislation.

My amendment is very straightforward. It directs the Government Accountability Office to study the effects of USAID’s Buy America waiver on U.S.-based manufacturers seeking to provide the President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief, PEPFAR, with HIV test kits. The study will also examine the waiver’s impact on the availability of HIV testing for at-risk populations in low-income countries.

To be clear, this amendment does not propose any policy changes.

This study will help us to examine the use of waivers and determine if hardworking American manufacturers of HIV test kits are being undercut by foreign competitors. It is important for the U.S. to lend a hand in fighting this deadly epidemic, but we should do everything possible to preserve American jobs in the process, particularly when spending taxpayer dollars.

When PEPFAR was created in 2003, it was believed that American companies did not have sufficient capacity to manufacture or supply the program with quality HIV test kits. To fill that void, a waiver of the longstanding Buy America policy was extended so that USAID could immediately provide testing, counseling and treatment assistance to countries in most dire need of help. As a result, companies already producing HIV test kits and related products were able to step in and supply PEPFAR with the resources necessary to combat the spread of HIV/AIDS.

However, since 2006, American manufacturers have taken the initiative to play an active role in PEPFAR by developing high-quality HIV test kits that provide accurate results with minimal training. These products continue to be developed here in the U.S. with American hard work and ingenuity.

If more American companies are able to provide USAID products that meet the requirements of PEPFAR without reducing the effectiveness of the program, we should re-consider whether we should rethink Buy America waivers for HIV testing.

When the requested study is complete, we should be able to draw conclusions on two important issues: One, whether or not the waiver puts American companies at a disadvantage when looking to supply their test kits to PEPFAR; and two, if the Buy America waivers have an effect on access to HIV testing for at-risk populations in low-income countries.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment and the underlying bill. I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment, although I do not oppose the substance of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment by the gentleman from New York (Mr. BISHOP) requires a GAO report on the effects that waivers of the Buy America Act for the purchase of HIV test kits under the President’s Emergency Plan for Aids Relief, PEPFAR, have had on American manufacturers.

PEPFAR, as we know, is one of the largest and most successful foreign assistance programs of our country, and it was reauthorized just last year for an astounding $48 billion over the next 5 years.

Expanding access for testing is a vital and core component of PEPFAR, both in terms of prevention and treatment. And in some cases, the purchase of test kits manufactured outside of the United States has been deemed a more cost-effective and efficient means by which to expand testing and access to testing.

Still, some have expressed concern about the impact that those waivers may have on United States-based manufacturers and questioned whether the purchase of these test kits manufactured abroad really has increased access to testing. Thus, an evaluation of this nature could be an appropriate exercise, particularly as the PEPFAR program scales up to transition from an emergency program to a sustainable program. And I, therefore, support the gentleman in his amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. I yield the balance of my time to the chairman.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I simply join the sponsor of the amendment and the ranking member in support of the amendment.

Mr. BISHOP of New York. I thank the chairman for his support. I thank the ranking member for her support, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. BISHOP).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 14 OFFERED BY MS. MOORE OF WISCONSIN

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 14 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Ms. MOORE of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk and I request its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 14 offered by Ms. MOORE of Wisconsin:

In section 1107, redesignate paragraphs (4) and (5) as paragraphs (5) and (6), respectively.

In section 1107, insert after paragraph (3) the following:

(4) recognizes that actions limiting or suppressing the human rights of Afghan women and girls undermines the intent of the significant financial contributions made by the United States and international community to rebuild the country and to help establish institutions that protect and promote respect of basic and fundamental human rights to overcome the devastating damage to those rights from years of Taliban rule.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Ms. MOORE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Wisconsin.

Ms. MOORE of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today to urge a “yes” vote on my amendment to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act. This is a time of unprecedented change in our outreach efforts to our global neighbors; our authorization will help guide that path for the upcoming year and, therefore, I would like to really thank the committee for their hard work. And I would also like to thank my very good friend, Congresswoman MALONEY of New York, for being a leader and steadfast advocate for the women of Afghanistan.

It is just so difficult to express the hurdles that face Afghan women and girls. There are just not enough words to describe the abhorrent conditions that assault these women and girls on a daily basis, and there are few experiences in our own lives that compare to their constant struggle for survival and freedom.

After years of brutal Taliban rule that allowed few rights for women, approximately 90 percent of their female population is illiterate. There are over 50,000 widows in the country, many of whom lack substantive means to support themselves or their female children, who lack access to health care, to education, to employment, to shelter, and on and on.

The United States and international aid organizations have provided billions of dollars to rebuild the country and to promote the basic and fundamental human rights of the Afghan people.

More importantly, though, we have asked our own people to sacrifice our sons and daughters, our citizens, for this cause. Our brave men and women serving in Afghanistan are there to protect the American people, but they are also there to reach out to the people in this war-torn country. And that is why, Mr. Chairman, I have offered this particular amendment.

Earlier this year the Afghan Government moved a measure that would severely suppress the rights of this country’s Shiite women and girls. This measure would further restrict their free mobility and actually legalizes marital rape. It does not condemn the marrying of minors and, instead, it appears to promote it. This legislation ties a woman’s legal financial stability and well-being to a man, and demands that a woman submit sexually to her husband in order to be privy to any sort of protection.

I see proposals like this in-depth reporting on multiple news media outlets highlighting the struggles that single women, girls, widows, married women face in Afghanistan.

Now, I understand that there are cultural differences, and I understand that culture and society in the Middle East will never look like that in the United States.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Ms. MOORE of Wisconsin. I yield myself 30 seconds.

But I also understand what Secretary of State Hillary Clinton speaks of when she says that a woman’s rights are human rights. And I understand that these actions prevent a nation from moving beyond an era still wounded by the scars and the fears of years of repressive Taliban rule.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentlelady from Wisconsin (Ms. MOORE).

Mr. CHAIRMAN, this amendment has a noble purpose, to draw attention to the potential erosion of the social and economic progress that has benefited women throughout Afghanistan since the fall of the Taliban.

Many of us, this Congress have remained focused on key areas addressed in the Afghan National Development Strategy, the basis of the Afghanistan Compact, which are vital for building human capital and creating an enabling environment for promoting equal rights and opportunities for women in that country.

We also have focused on ensuring the development and application of sustainable strategies that invest in Afghanistan’s human capital, equipping both men and women with the skills, the support, and the resources needed to move their country forward into peace and stability.

Furthermore, we have repeatedly expressed our commitment to Afghan political, economic and social development and promoting the participation of women and, indeed, all Afghans in these processes.

I urge my colleagues to support this important amendment. I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. MOORE of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I would now like to yield the balance of our time to the gentlelady from Illinois, who is the co-Chair of the Women’s Caucus, Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by Congresswoman GWEN MOORE and real and pass on remarks on behalf of this amendment.

In 8 years since the overthrow of the Taliban, women in Afghanistan have made major strides forward. Ninety-one of Afghanistan’s 351 parliamentarians are women, and two women have announced their intention to run for President this year.

However, many women in Afghanistan continue to fight for basic human rights. Violence against women, rape and forced marriages continue in the country’s most unstable regions. In April we saw images of stones being thrown at a woman wearing a chador, protesting a law legalizing marital rape.

Afghanistan’s future will depend on its women building more stable and healthy and thriving communities. The women of Afghanistan have borne the brunt of years of warfare, but they will also form the underpinning of a peaceful Afghanistan.

This amendment recognizes that limiting women’s role is counterproductive to all of our efforts to help Afghanistan move forward from the devastating damage of Taliban rule.

I urge all of my colleagues, on both sides of the aisle, to stand up for the women—half of Afghanistan who are suffering, who deserve our help.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlelady from Wisconsin (Ms. MOORE).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

[Amendment No. 15 offered by Mr. ROYCE]{

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, section 40 of the Arms Export Control Act, and section 68A of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 stipulate that a designated state sponsor of terrorism is one “that repeatedly provides support to acts of international terrorism.”

(2) Eritrea repeatedly has provided support for terrorists in Somalia, including the al-Shabaab insurgent group, which maintains links to the al-Qaeda network, and has been designated a Foreign Terrorist Organization by the Secretary of State pursuant to section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA).

(3) The UN Sanctions Monitoring Group on Somalia, established by a committee of the United Nations Security Council pursuant to resolutions 1729 (2006) and 2074 (2006), in its forthcoming report released on July 2007 that “huge quantities of arms have been provided to the Shabaab throughout 2007,” and that on or about January 8, 2008, an arms shipment from Eritrea arrived in Mogadishu containing dismantle RPG-7s, hand grenades, anti-tank mines, detonators, automatic and semi-automatic shrapnel rifles, PKM machine guns, RPG-2s, small mortars, FAL assault rifles, rifle-fired grenades for the PAL, M-16s and explosives.

(b) STRENGTHEN CURRENT SANCTIONS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Eritrea is a principal violator of the UN arms embargo on Somalia and has also continued to ship arms to the Shabaab.

(2) Eritrea repeatedly has provided support for terrorists in Somalia, including the al-Shabaab insurgent group, which maintains links to the al-Qaeda network, and has been designated a Foreign Terrorist Organization by the Secretary of State pursuant to section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA).

(3) The UN Sanctions Monitoring Group on Somalia, established by a committee of the United Nations Security Council pursuant to resolutions 1729 (2006) and 2074 (2006), in its forthcoming report released on July 2007 that “huge quantities of arms have been provided to the Shabaab throughout 2007,” and that on or about January 8, 2008, an arms shipment from Eritrea arrived in Mogadishu containing dismantle RPG-7s, hand grenades, anti-tank mines, detonators, automatic and semi-automatic shrapnel rifles, PKM machine guns, RPG-2s, small mortars, FAL assault rifles, rifle-fired grenades for the PAL, M-16s and explosives.

(4) On August 1, 2007, the UN Security Council Resolution 1718 expanded the list of sanctions against the Shabaab and required the UN sanctions monitoring group to report annually on the efforts of the Shabaab to obtain arms. The UN Sanctions Monitoring Group also found that, “to the best of our knowledge, the arms held by the Shabaab have not been used by the group’s fighters in recent operations.”

(5) On September 17, 2007, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Jendayi Frazer stated, “The US has now imposed even more sanctions on the Shabaab, including a comprehensive arms embargo.”

(6) In April 2008, the UN Sanctions Monitoring Group on Somalia reported, “the Government of Eritrea continues to provide support to groups that oppose the Transitional Federal Government in the form of arms and military training to fighters of the Shabaab.”

(7) The April 2008 report of the UN Sanctions Monitoring Group also found that, “towards the end of 2007, about 120 fighters of the Shabaab travelled to Eritrea for the purpose of attending military training at a military base located near the Ethiopian border.”

(8) In its December 2008 report, the UN Sanctions Monitoring Group on Somalia identified Eritrea as a “principal violator” of the arms embargo on Somalia and asserted that “Eritrea arms embargo violators violations take place with the knowledge and authorization of senior officials within the Eritrean Government and the ruling People’s Front for Democracy and Justice (PFDJ).”.

(9) In testimony before the Senate Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence on February 12, 2009, Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency Lieutenant General Michael McCabe stated, “Eritrea has provided substantial political, diplomatic, financial and military support in their efforts to further the purposes of the overlords of the Eritrean People’s Front for Democracy and Justice (PFDJ).”.

(10) On May 20, 2009, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Johnnie Carson testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that, “al-Qaida has moved from its bases in the Horn of Africa to harbor terrorists, target civilians and humanitarian workers, and attempt to overthrow the TFG through violent means,” and that “a loose coalition of forces under the banner of Hizbul al-Islam, have been attacking TFG forces and other moderates in Mogadishu in an attempt to forcefully overthrow the transitional government. There is clear evidence that Eritrea is supporting these extremist elements, including credible reports that the Government of Eritrea continues to provide support to groups that oppose the transitional government.”

(11) Assistant Secretary Carson also testified, “There is also evidence that al-Qaida in the Horn of Africa has links to the al-Qaeda-based terrorist group al-Shabaab highlighting their shared ideology and support from al-Qaida and the Somalia-based terrorist group al-Shabaab highlighting their shared ideology and support from al-Qaida.”

(12) On May 14, 2009, Ian Kelly, Spokesman for the U.S. Department of State, stated, “The US has imposed even more sanctions on the Shabaab, including a comprehensive arms embargo.”

(13) In a Presidential Statement issued on May 18, 2009, the UN Security Council expressed “concern over reports that Eritrea has provided arms and military training to forces of the Transitional Federal Government of Somalia in breach of the UN arms embargo, and..."
called on the UNSanctions Monitoring Group to investigate'.

(14) On May 21, 2009, the Inter Governmental Authority on Development (IGAD), a regional group within the AU, had issued a call to Eritrea’s ofﬁcers to prevent the ‘criminal elements in and/or to Somalia,’ and called on the Security Council of the United Nations to ‘impose sanctions on the government of Eritrea and its ﬁnanciers continuing to instigate, ﬁnance, recruit, or support any Eritrean military presence in Somalia.’

(15) The Peace and Security Council of the African Union, at its 190th meeting held on May 22, 2009, issued a communique expressing its ‘deep concern at the reports regarding the reports regarding the support provided to these armed groups, through training, provision of weapons and ammunition, and funding, by external actors, including Eritrea, in flagrant violation of the United Nations arms embargo’ and called on the UN Security Council to impose sanctions against Eritrea.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress—

(1) Eritrea’s ongoing and well-documented support for armed insurgents in Somalia, including for designated Foreign Terrorist Organizations and individuals linked to the deadly bombings by al-Qaeda of the United States in Nairobi, Kenya, and Dar es Salaam, Tanzania in 1998, poses a signiﬁcant threat to the national security interests of the United States and East African nations.

(2) The Secretary of State should designate the State of Eritrea as a State Sponsor of Terrorism pursuant to section 6(a) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, section 40 of the Arms Export Control Act, and section 640A of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961; and

(3) The United Nations Security Council should impose sanctions against the State of Eritrea until such time as it ceases its support for armed insurgents, including radical Islamist militants, engaged in destabilizing activities in Somalia.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROYCE. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I currently serve as the ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Terrorism. Previously, for 8 years, I served as the chairman of the Africa Subcommittee, so I long have followed the issues surrounding Eritrea and the Horn of Africa.

And this particular amendment calls on the Secretary of State to designate Eritrea as a ‘state sponsor of terrorism.’ The Horn of Africa is a combustible mix. You have al Qaeda, you have piracy, a failed state in Somalia, border tensions, and a key instigator of this violence has been the government of Eritrea.

As the amendment indicates, U.N. reports have noted that over 100 Shabab terrorists have traveled to Eritrea for their military training at an Eritrean military base and then traveled back. The same U.N. reports have identiﬁed Eritrea as a ‘principal violator’ of the arms embargo on Somalia and have asserted that these violations ‘take place with the knowledge and authorization of senior ofﬁcials within the Eritrean government.’

Plainly, it is state policy of Eritrea to support international terrorism.

The U.N. Security Council has made similar statements citing Eritrea’s destructive role in the horn, and so have many neighboring countries. So it is time that Eritrea should be named a state sponsor of terrorism.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition and rise in strong opposition to the Royce amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, the Royce amendment to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, H.R. 2410, which would designate Eritrea as a state sponsor of terrorism and call on the United Nations Security Council to impose sanctions against Eritrea, I strongly oppose.

I certainly respect my esteemed colleague from California, Ed ROYCE, who served as an excellent chairman on the Subcommittee on Africa for several years, and we worked closely together on many issues, and I have a great deal of respect for him, I must oppose this amendment. This amendment could undermine critical engagements currently going on between the U.S. and Eritrea. I urge my colleagues to vote ‘no.’

The Royce amendment expresses the sense of Congress that the Secretary of State should designate Eritrea a state sponsor of terrorism and that the U.N. Security Council should impose sanctions against Eritrea. I urge you to vote against this amendment for the following reasons.

First, some of the assertions made in the amendment are factually wrong and dated.

Second, the geopolitical dynamics and interstate rivalries in the Horn of Africa cannot be addressed effectively without concerted diplomatic engagement. Declaring Eritrea a state sponsor of terrorism and imposing international sanctions would do nothing to further our diplomatic aims and would injure further the people who are struggling to survive on a daily basis.

Thirdly, while Mr. ROYCE’s amendment lays out a long list of reasons why he feels Eritrea should be placed on a state sponsor of terrorism list, the proposed amendment does not recognize the diplomatic efforts currently underway by the State Department to address the complex issues surrounding the Horn of Africa. Just last month, President Obama sent a letter to President Obama expressing the desire to engage on these issues and is sending a high-level delegation to Washington. Additionally, a senior State Department offiﬁcial is expected to visit Asmara in a few weeks. Moreover, the Somali Government has said they want to engage with Asmara.

Lastly, putting Eritrea on a sanctions list would have limited effect on our effort to try to stabilize the region and build alliances with governments in the border battle against terrorism.

We should urge the administration to take careful note of the issues raised by Representative ROYCE, and I have written a letter to the President to that effect. The administration is engaged in Asmara. We must allow these diplomatic discussions to continue.

In my last trip to Asmara 1 year ago, I met with the President and did indicate changes that would have to be made. The current President of Somalia, Sheik Sharif Sheik Ahmed, was in Asmara and went back, and now is trying to lead a government which is fighting against al Shabaab and al...
Mr. ROYCE. Let me respond that, first, I have a great deal of respect for Chairman PAYNE. We have worked together for years on Africa issues. We worked together on Darfur, Sudan. But this is the very issue of why we disagree here, because all Members should know that it was Eritrea that was the first country to invite Sudan’s President, al-Bashir, to visit Eritrea following an arrest warrant for his crimes against humanity in Darfur.

Now, with respect to the issue, I can think of numerous issues and times when Congress has had to push—and we will take Sudan as an example, since the example I’m giving here is an example in which Eritrea has welcomed al-Bashir at a time when the international community is trying to get him to prevent the crimes that he has committed. We have had to push to take more assertive actions. We did that with genocide in Sudan. And in my view, there is nothing wrong now, especially with respect to a state sponsorship of terrorism. I think that the Assistant Secretary of State for Africa’s words speak for themselves. Again, this is Secretary Carson before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last month, in which he said, We have clear evidence that Eritrea is supporting these extremist elements, including credible reports that they continue to supply weapons and munitions to terrorist elements. I ask for an “aye” vote.

The question is on the amendment of—

Mr. ROYCE. Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. ROYCE) has been posted to request a report on the status of the Joint Action Plan so we can consider amendment No. 17 in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Madam Chair, I rise today with an important amendment to H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011.

We here in the United States understand all too well what it takes more than just passing laws to ensure equal access to prosperity. It took decades of constant pressure and struggle to get the legal right to full participation of African Americans in our American democracy, yet we realize that our work is far from over in our great Nation.

Racial discrimination is a sobering reality, both here in the United States and in the rest of the world. We understand that we cannot throw stones from a glass house, but instead we must work in tandem with our neighbors to ensure that all citizens in our hemisphere are unfettered by discriminatory practices now and the vestiges of those practices of the past.

It is in our interest to work toward a more equal hemisphere. And we are all at risk if our citizens do not have full faith in the strength of democracy to provide upward mobility. The Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., put it best when he said, Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere.

Afro-Latinos face a longstanding struggle against racial discrimination and a lack of opportunities. Afro-Latinos make up approximately 150 million of the region’s 540 million total population and, alone and indigenous populations, are among the poorest, most marginalized groups in the region.

People of African descent comprise a significant portion of the population in several Latin American countries and account for nearly 50 percent of the region’s poor. For many Afro-ancestors, endemic poverty is exacerbated by isolation, exclusion, and racial discrimination.

In Brazil, Afro-Latinos represent 45 percent of the population but constitute 64 percent of the poor and 69 percent of the extremely poor. In Colombia, the plight of Afro-Colombians is perhaps harshest, as they are all too often caught in the crossfire of violent conflict.

Congress previously supported the United States-Brazil Joint Action Plan Against Racial Discrimination in House Resolution 1254 and called for the United States to continue to support the United States-Brazil Joint Action Plan to eliminate racial discrimination. The joint action plan helps to facilitate the exchange of information on the best practices of anti-discrimination measures and development of ideas of how to meaningfully promote racial and ethnic equality.

With this amendment, we request that Congress support the United States-Brazil Joint Action Plan to promote equality and to continue to work toward eliminating racial discrimination. The joint action plan helps to facilitate the exchange of information on the best practices of anti-discrimination measures and development of ideas of how to meaningfully promote racial and ethnic equality.

I ask for an “aye” vote.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2410) to authorize appropriations for the Department of State and the Peace Corps for fiscal years 2010 and 2011, to modernize the Foreign Service, and for other purposes, with Ms. DeGETTE (Acting Chair) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier to request a recorded vote on amendment No. 15 by the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE) had been postponed.

Mr. MEEKS of New York. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 16 offered by Mr. MEEKS of NEW YORK

At the end of title X, insert the following:

SEC. 10. REPORT ON UNITED STATES-BRAZIL JOINT ACTION PLAN TO ELIMINATE RACIAL DISCRIMINATION.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and one year thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report detailing the status, efficacy, and coordination of the United States-Brazil Joint Action Plan to Eliminate Racial Discrimination, and a summary of short and long-term efforts to address the plight of Afro-Latinos and indigenous peoples in the Western Hemisphere through cooperation and bilateral efforts.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEKS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Madam Chair, I rise today with an important amendment to H.R. 2410, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011.

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair declared the House in order.

The motion was agreed to.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
June 10, 2009

H6500
increase our collaboration on similar initiatives.

Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I rise to claim time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. The U.S.-Brazil Joint Action Plan to eliminate racial and ethnic discrimination and promote equality recognizes the commitment of our two countries to promote equality and opportunity.

□ 1615

It also underscores the importance of cooperating in the promotion of human rights in order to maintain an environment of peace, of democracy, and of prosperity in the region.

The United States' commitment to freedom and equality is longstanding. This joint action plan between our two countries helps to further these values throughout the hemisphere.

Mr. MEEKS' amendment requires the Secretary of State to report on the progress of these important bilateral efforts. This joint action plan and report will help to bring accountability and greater oversight to the objectives and to the goals of this important joint effort between the United States and Brazil.

I thank Congressman MEEKS for his introduction of this amendment, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT).

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Madam Chair, first of all, I would like to commend the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEKS) for his long service in this area of bringing attention to bringing equality to the cultures of Central America, South America, and Latin America. He is to be indeed commended.

Madam Chair, the United States and Brazil are strong partners with a common history and ancestry that, unfortunately, includes experiences of slavery, racism, and discrimination against citizens of African heritage. Still, the United States and Brazil, under the joint action plan, are working to learn from each other's experiences in order to combat racism, and increase cooperation in a multitude of fields including education, culture, health, and sports.

Madam Chair, because combating racism and discrimination requires constant vigilance, I support the gentleman from New York's amendment, which will provide Congress with better information moving towards that end.

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Madam Chair, I just want to give some good progress that has been made in Latin America. For example, we see Graciela Dixon become the first black woman to head Panama's Supreme Court in 2005 and Joaquim Barbosa of Brazil rise as a prominent member of the Supreme Court. Paula Moreno stands now as Colombia's first Afro-Colombian to serve as a minister in a presidential cabinet. And in Ecuador, it was reported that a group of more than 100 black women in 2006 sought more government assistance for housing to combat racial discrimination in the rental market.

We are in this together; we can accomplish this together. And I thank the gentlewoman who is the ranking member of the Committee for supporting this bill as well as the Chair of the committee.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEKS).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 18 OFFERED BY MRS. KIRKPATRICK OF ARIZONA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 18 printed in part C of Mr. Jim Moran Report 111-143.

Mrs. KIRKPATRICK of Arizona. I have an amendment at the desk and ask for its consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 18 offered by Mrs. KIRKPATRICK of Arizona:

Page 264, beginning line 1, insert the following:

(K) FLOW OF ILLEGAL FUNDS.—A description and assessment of efforts to reduce the southbound flow of illegal funds.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentlewoman from Arizona (Mrs. KIRKPATRICK) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Arizona.

Mrs. KIRKPATRICK of Arizona. Madam Chair, over the past 1 1/2 years, we have witnessed record levels of violence along the southwest border. Since the beginning of 2008, over 7,500 people have died as drug cartels have fought over trafficking routes between Mexico and the United States. As the fighting has continued in Mexico, those of us who live in border States have seen our communities threatened. Many communities in my home State of Arizona have seen gang violence. And the State now leads the Nation in both kidnapping and identity theft, an increase that is directly linked to illegal activity along the border.

Our local law enforcement is doing a great job combatting crime, but they cannot take on the cartels alone. They need the Federal Government to do its job.

The criminal organizations that smuggle people and drugs into the United States bringing this high level of crime to our homes are fueled by the southbound flow of illegal arms and cash. Arms illegally carried to Mexico are the weapons of choice for cartels, while it is money streaming in from the United States that funds their massive armies.

This bill calls on the President to report to Congress on the activities of the Merida Initiative. Among the matters covered by this report is the assessment of United States efforts to prevent the southbound flow of illegal arms. However, it does not currently include any assessment of our efforts to prevent the movement of cash. The illicit movement of people, drugs, weapons, and money are entirely linked together, and it is impossible to address one of those issues without tackling the rest.

Therefore, I offer this amendment to include an assessment of United States efforts to stem the flow of cash heading south into Mexico. The cartels are continually finding new and innovative ways to transport funds, and our government needs to be at least as creative: some of these organizations are going to be stopped.

Madam Chairwoman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, the Merida Initiative is an historic opportunity to cooperate with our democratic partners in the region against narcotrafficking and organized crime. Requiring comprehensive reporting on U.S. actions and the consequences of such are essential not only to ensuring oversight but also to ensuring our efforts are effective and, indeed, long lasting.

Congresswoman KIRKPATRICK's amendment works to include a review of the illegal southbound flow of cash under Merida reporting. I believe we should also oversee north in addition to southbound flows of cash across our borders. Only through a comprehensive approach and understanding of what we are facing can we truly be successful.

I support the gentleman's amendment, and I congratulate her for offering it.

Mr. BERMAN. Would the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I would be most honored to yield to our distinguished chairman.

Mr. BERMAN. I thank the ranking member for yielding.

I just want to add my support. The fact is I had a chance to go to Mexico City, and the gentlewoman from Arizona is absolutely right. The guns are one issue but the huge amounts of cash that are transported are another. Her amendment makes some good provisions in this legislation on strengthening the Merida Initiative even better, and I urge its adoption.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. KIRKPATRICK of Arizona. Madam Chairwoman, I thank the chairwoman and the ranking member for their help with this amendment.
I ask my colleagues to support this amendment, which addresses a key part of the fight against drug trafficking organizations. Madam Chairwoman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Arizona (Mrs. Kirkpatrick).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 19 OFFERED BY MR. KIRK

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 19 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Chair, I have an amendment on the roll.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 19 offered by Mr. Kirk:

At the end of subtitle A of title II, add the following:

SEC. 205. ELIGIBILITY IN CERTAIN CIRCUMSTANCES FOR AN AGENCY OF A FOREIGN GOVERNMENT TO RECEIVE A REWARD UNDER THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE REWARDS PROGRAM.

(a) Eligibility.—Subsection (f) of section 36 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 270f(f)) is amended—

(1) by striking "(f) INELIGIBILITY.—An officer'' and inserting the following:

"(f) INELIGIBILITY.—"

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), an officer''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(2) EXCEPTION IN CERTAIN CIRCUMSTANCES.—The Secretary may pay a reward to an officer or employee of a foreign government (or any entity thereof) who, while in the performance of his or her official duties, furnishes information described in such subsection, if the Secretary determines that such payment satisfies the following conditions:

(A) Such payment is appropriate in light of the exceptional or high-profile nature of the information furnished pursuant to such subsection.

(B) Such payment may aid in furnishing further information described in such subsection.

(C) Such payment is formally requested by such agency.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subsection (b) of such section (22 U.S.C. 270b(b)) is amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1) by inserting "or to an officer or employee of a foreign government in accordance with subsection (f)(2)" after "individual''.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 322, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kirk) and a Member opposite request control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to thank Chairman Berman and Ranking Member Ros-Lehtinen for their bipartisan work on this, for a good underlying bill, in my view, as well.

This amendment will assist in our fight against terrorism across the globe, especially in Pakistan and Afghanistan.

Currently, the terrorist rewards program run by the State Department as-sists in our hunt for terrorists by promising a cash reward or other type of assistance for information leading to the arrest of some of the world’s most deadly terrorists. The Rewards for Justice Program, established by the 1984 Act of Terrorism, has now paid over $77 million to more than 50 people who have provided credible information to put terrorists behind bars and prevent acts of terrorism.

As a staff member, I helped write the amendments that President Clinton asked for when we wanted to offer rewards for persons indicted for war crimes, for example, in the former Yugoslavia. We also passed legislation under Chairman Hyde that loosened up this program so that we could provide more than cash assistance, more meaningful assistance to farmers and other people who may not be able to read in very rural parts of Central Asia.

The program has been the key to success in apprehending people, including Mir Amal Kansi, a terrorist who murdered two CIA employees and injured three others in his 1993 rampage outside of CIA headquarters in Virginia. The program has also been important in hunting Ramzi Yousef, convicted of the 1993 World Trade Center bombing; Uday and Qusay Hussein, the two murderous Hussein brothers; Khadafy Janjalani and Abu Soleiman, two high-ranking members of Abu Sayyaf in the Philippines; Liban Abd el Bassett Ali el Megrahi, convicted on January 31, 2001, for the murder of 270 people on Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie; Hamsiraji Marusi Salil, the leader of the ASG; Muhsin Khadr al-Khafaji, a member of Saddam Hussein’s top Ba’ath Party leadership; Iraqi Khamis Sirhan al-Muhammad, a former official military commander; and Muhammad Zilman Abd al-Razzaq al-Sadun, number 41 on the Iraqi “top 55” wanted list.

Under current law, though, the United States may not pay an award to an officer or employee of another government. I have traveled to Pakistan in each of the last 4 years where I have met a number of government officials, and at the strong suggestion of the fairly poorly paid, especially IB, intelligence bureaus, I believe the Secretary of State should be allowed to pay such a reward especially if it has to do with nailing the greatest terrorists. If there is anyone among you—anyone who has information related to the whereabouts of Osama bin Laden or Ayman al-Zawahiri, we should be doing everything possible to elicit that information.

As Secretary Clinton, Secretary Gates, General Petraeus, and Ambassador Holbrooke execute the President’s new strategy for Afghanistan and Pakistan, we should do everything we can to develop a complete picture of where the al Qaeda and Taliban leadership is hiding. This amendment provides our key State Department and intelligence officials with every possible tool that they could have to make sure they can offer a reward even if that person, for example, works for the Pakistani IB bureau.

In the last Congress, the House overwhelmingly passed this amendment 419–1, but it did not pass the Senate, which is why I offer it today.

Madam Chair, I request the balance of my time.

Mr. Berman, Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition to this amendment, although I am not opposed. The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Berman, Madam Chair, as the gentleman said, and I agree with every word that he said in support of his amendment—I’m not sure I could have pronounced every word as he did, but this is simply a discretionary authorization to the Secretary of State, usually in extraordinary circumstances, to do something which makes perfect sense, to take advantage of the possibility that a foreign national might under circumstances, and particularly with reward in mind, provide information on targets we are interested in capturing target terrorists that we are pursuing. Whether it’s the ones the gentleman spoke about or others, why not give this authority?

I urge that the amendment be adopted and we change the law to remove this restriction, which, to me, doesn’t make much sense.

Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KIRK. I appreciate the chairwoman’s work. I also appreciate David Fite’s work on this because we were together when we first saw how this restriction could impede the hunt for the two top al Qaeda terrorists—Ayman al-Zawahiri and Osama bin Laden. For a poorly paid official—and there are many who are patriotic, good servants in Afghanistan and in Pakistan especially—we ought to be able to offer this reward. This will significantly incentivize the hunt for some of the people who have killed most of the Americans. I urge adoption of the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Berman, Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition to this amendment, although I am not opposed. The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from Illinois is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Berman, Madam Chair, the question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. KIRK. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 20 OFFERED BY MR. LYNCH

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 20 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mr. Lynch, Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk that has been made in order by the rule. I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 20 offered by Mr. LYNCH:
Page 73, after line 21, insert the following (and amend the table of contents accordingly):

SEC. 239. REPORT ON SPECIAL IMMIGRANT PROGRAMS FOR CERTAIN NATIONALS OF IRAQ AND AFGHANISTAN.
(a) In GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to the Congress a report on the programs authorized under the following provisions:
(1) Section 1244 of division A of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2006 (Public Law 109–163; 8 U.S.C. 1101 note);
(2) Section 1244 of division A of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (Public Law 110–181; 82 Stat. 396 et seq.);
(b) CONTENTS.—The report under subsection (a) shall address at least the following:
(1) Whether the eligibility requirements with respect to the programs are sufficiently clear, and if not, whether legislation is necessary to clarify those requirements.
(2) Whether the programs are being run effectively and expeditiously.
(3) Whether processing delays exist with respect to the programs that place applicants' lives at risk, and if so:
(A) what the cause or causes of the delays are; and
(B) whether legislation is necessary to eliminate the delays.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

Mr. LYNCH. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Before I begin, Madam Chair, I would like to thank Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman BERMAN for considering my amendment. I congratulate the committee for drafting a bill that, I think, will truly strengthen our Foreign Affairs profile overseas as well as strengthen our capabilities.

I rise in support of my amendment, which will direct the State Department to assess and to report to Congress on the Special Immigrant Visa Program for certain Iraqi and Afghan nationals employed by or on behalf of the United States in both Afghanistan and in Iraq.

As a member of the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, and as a member of its National Security and Foreign Affairs Subcommittee, I've been to Iraq and to Afghanistan on numerous occasions. I've had the pleasure of meeting with some of the brave Iraqi and Afghan workers who actually serve right beside our own men and women in uniform as interpreters, as assistants in military operations and also in the civil operations that are going on in both those countries. It is my opinion that it is a very dangerous work, and they do deserve incredible recognition for taking a very difficult position in aiding our troops in their mission. They are deserving of our admiration.

There is a sad truth, however, that, in choosing to support U.S. forces in Iraq and in Afghanistan to rebuild their countries, they are also putting their lives on the line and those of their families. The refugees in Iraq and in Afghanistan have targeted these hardworking patriots and their families in the hopes of terrorizing the local people and in discouraging cooperation.

It is beyond the very real danger that Congress created the Sections 1059 and 1244 Special Immigrant Visa Programs. They allow for certain Iraqis and Afghans who actually serve as translators—these are the folks who are actually protecting our young men and women in uniform as translators or as interpreters or who are otherwise employed by the U.S. or its contractors—to come to the United States to escape the targeting by these terrorists and insurgents.

I am aware that the State Department prepared a study of these programs in July 2008, but I believe it is necessary, actually, to follow up on this previous study in light of the troubling reports that I received earlier this year from the Foreign Service folks in Iraq and in Afghanistan and I was informed by General Ray Odierno, the commander of the United States forces in Iraq, that they are still dealing with unclear eligibility requirements, that they're having difficulty processing these Iraqis with visas and that they're facing long processing times, which has worked to the detriment of the individuals and has also hampered our effort to recruit others to take their places.

With wait times up to a year, these applicants are in constant danger while their applications are sorted out. I think we owe it to these brave men and women, who are doing the right thing, to ensure that they are only as long as is absolutely necessary.

Through this study, we will be able to determine the root causes of these difficulties. Then, based on the findings, Congress can act to ensure that these programs are run smoothly and effectively while protecting the applicants' lives, our national security and our men and women in uniform.

I urge my colleagues to support both this amendment and the underlying bill.

I reserve the balance of our time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I claim time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for his helpful and constructive amendment.

I rise in support of this amendment. I had the opportunity to travel to these areas with the gentleman a few years back. Congress has recognized the debt owed to the Iraqis and Afghans who work at great personal risk in support of our troops. It has responded by creating two Special Immigrant Visa, SIV, programs. One is an SIV program for Iraqi and Afghani translators and interpreters. The second is an SIV program for Iraqi employers and contractors and their families working with providing refugee resettlement benefits.

However, as a 2008 report by the State Department Inspector General stated: the current process resulted in applicants' receiving SIVs who, one, did not meet the program's criteria of working primarily as interpreters or as translators or, two, in the OIG team's opinion, appeared to be outside the legislative intent of the program. As a result, the number of SIVs that could have been allocated to other qualified applicants were not.

This amendment seeks to address a number of those issues by requiring our State Department, among other actions, to develop clear guidance on eligibility requirements, to follow up on this previous study in light of the troubling reports that I received earlier this year from our State Department folks in Iraq and in Afghanistan. I was informed by General Ray Odierno, the commander of the United States forces in Iraq, that they are still dealing with unclear eligibility requirements, that they're having difficulty processing these Iraqis with visas and that they're facing long processing times, which has worked to the detriment of the individuals and has also hampered our effort to recruit others to take their places.

With wait times up to a year, these applicants are in constant danger while their applications are sorted out. I think we owe it to these brave men and women, who are doing the right thing, to ensure that they are only as long as is absolutely necessary.

Through this study, we will be able to determine the root causes of these difficulties. Then, based on the findings, Congress can act to ensure that these programs are run smoothly and effectively while protecting the applicants’ lives, our national security and our men and women in uniform.

I urge my colleagues to support both this amendment and the underlying bill.

I reserve the balance of our time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I claim time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Chair, I rise to join the ranking member in supporting this vital and important amendment.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time, Madam Chair.

Mr. LYNCH. Madam Chair, at this point, I would like to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN).

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Chair, I rise to join the ranking member in supporting this vital and important amendment from the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH).

We have, I think, a general obligation to deal with the issue of the refugees as a consequence of these conflicts both in Iraq and in Afghanistan, but we have an additional particular strong duty to deal with the status of people who are displaced or who are objects of persecution, retribution or retaliation because those individuals helped either our military or our diplomats or our AID people in terms of the conflict in either one of those countries.

This is an issue that I, personally, was very involved with in the last couple of years. The gentleman’s amendment, I think, helps to spur us to deal with some of the parameters of the program now and to do more in this regard. It is certainly an amendment that, if it is passed, I would want to see in the final legislation. I urge its adoption.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH).

The amendment was agreed to.

Amendment No. 21 offered by Mr. BERMAN
The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 21. It is printed in part C of House Report 111–143.
order by the rule, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 21 offered by Mr. BERMAN: At the end of title X, insert the following:

SEC. 10. REPORT ON REDUCING SMUGGLING AND TRAFFICKING IN PERSONS.

The Secretary of State, in consultation with the heads of other relevant Federal departments and agencies, shall conduct a cost-benefit analysis and submit to Congress a report on how best to use United States funds to reduce smuggling and trafficking in persons.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I am offering, as a designee for our colleague BARON HILL, I strongly support the amendment that is before the body now. It requires the State Department, in cooperation with other departments and agencies, to report on how it proposes to use government funds to reduce alien smuggling and trafficking in persons.

The State Department estimates that 800,000 people are trafficked in deplorable conditions and in inhumane conditions to cross borders around the world while millions more are trafficked within their own countries. Of these, approximately 80 percent are women and girls. Half are minors. Human smuggling continues to be a significant law enforcement challenge in the international community, and it remains a particular problem for us on our southern border with Mexico.

The United States became a party to the United Nations' smuggling protocol in 2005. It continues to work with other governments, committing substantial resources to end human smuggling and to protect victims from the perilous journeys involved in this profitable enterprise. Some 112 countries are now party to this smuggling protocol.

Madam Chair, in order to more effectively tackle the growing and worrisome problems of human smuggling and trafficking, I support the gentleman's amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I yield time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, although the amendment urges the executive branch to undertake assessments that, I hope, are already going into the administration's policymaking, I do not oppose this amendment.

All of us are, of course, opposed to alien smuggling, trafficking persons and terrorists entering the United States. We believe that U.S. efforts to fight those grave problems should be cost effective. Thus, I support the amendment's call for a report on this subject.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Chair, I have no further amendments.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN).

The amendment was agreed to.

Amendment No. 22 offered by Mr. PETERS: At the end of title X, insert the following:

SEC. 10. REPORT ON WESTERN HEMISPHERE TRAVEL INITIATIVE.

Not later than January 1, 2010, after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall submit to Congress a report on the effects of the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative (WHTI) and the flow of people, goods, and services across the international borders of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, and the Caribbean region, with particular emphasis on whether WHTI has been effective in meeting its goal of strengthening United States border security and enhancing accountability of individuals entering the United States, and an assessment of the economic impact associated with WHTI and its effects on small businesses.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. PETERS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. PETERS. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, today, we are considering important legislation that will support efforts to strengthen, to modernize and to rebuild the capacity of the Department of State to fulfill its core diplomatic mission. This legislation will also increase the arms control and the nonproliferation capabilities of the State Department; it will reform the system of export controls for military technology; and it will improve the oversight of U.S. security assistance abroad.

As we expand our diplomatic capabilities, we must remember that trade is the driving force of both our economy and of our international diplomacy. In December of 2004, Congress passed the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative Act. As of June 1, 2009, this initiative now requires that travelers have passports for all land and sea crossings, including travel to and from Canada and Mexico.

We need to know exactly how these new passport requirements are affecting our economy. Obviously, prudent security measures must be undertaken to keep Americans safe, but we also need to assess whether these measures are working and how they affect border state businesses. My amendment will require such an assessment. Congress can then determine whether corrective action is needed to change the requirements or to provide relief to border state businesses or both.

The Peters amendment would require the Secretary of State to submit to Congress within 18 months of the passage of this act a report on the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative: on the flow of people, goods and services across the international borders of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, and the Caribbean region.

The amendment stipulates the report should pay specific attention to the effects on small businesses and and the measure’s effectiveness in strengthening border security. Increasing the security of our borders must be a top priority from Congress. We must also ensure that implementation of the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative is carried out in such a manner that increases our national security but does not unnecessarily hinder trade and strain our small businesses.

With our Nation’s fight through a recession, it is particularly important that we assess the effect measures approved by this body have on our economy.

I greatly appreciate the support from my friend and colleague from New Mexico, Congressman TEAGUE, for his office’s assistant on this important amendment and help on issues of importance to both our northern and southern border regions, and I urge my colleagues to support my amendment.

Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to claim time in opposition, even though I do not oppose the substance of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I support this amendment because the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative was fully implemented in June of this year with the goal of strengthening U.S. border security while at the same time enhancing accountability of those entering our country.

By calling on the Secretary of State to provide a report to Congress describing the impact this implementation has had on the flow of people, goods, and services across the international borders shared by the relevant countries, Congressman PETERS’ amendment will help us understand better how effective this initiative has been in making our country safer and what impact these two measures will have on the business sectors of our countries.

The Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative was a significant step toward making America more secure. Congressman Peters’ amendment is important as it would provide greater accountability and oversight of the objectives and consequences of this important initiative and will ultimately help us protect the interests and the safety of the American people.

And with that, I yield back.

Mr. Peters. Madam Chair, my amendment is a commonsense measure that ensures that the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative’s effects on small businesses are known and reported to Congress in a timely manner. The Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative must be implemented in a way that strengthens our national security, maintains robust trade and tourism with our neighbors, and protects our Nation’s small businesses.

I would like to thank Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Berman and Rules Committee Chairwoman Slaughter.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the addition offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Peters).

The amendment was agreed to.

Amendment No. 23 offered by Mr. Berman: The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 23 printed in part II of the Report 111-134.

Mr. Berman. Madam Chair, as the designee of Mr. Teague, I have an amendment made in order by the rule, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 23 offered by Mr. Berman: At the end of subtitle A of title XI, insert the following:

SEC. 11. GLOBAL CLEAN ENERGY EXCHANGE PROGRAM.

(a) PROGRAM ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of State is authorized to establish a program to explore, research, develop, and international cooperation with the aim of promoting the development and deployment of clean and efficient energy technologies, and to reduce global greenhouse gas emissions, address issues of energy poverty in developing countries, and extend the reach of United States technologies and ingenuity that would be beneficial to developing countries. The program authorized under this subsection shall be carried out pursuant to the authorities of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2451 et seq.) and may be referred to as the “Global Clean Energy Exchange Program.”

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) CLEAN AND EFFICIENT ENERGY TECHNOLOGY.—The term “clean and efficient energy technology” means an energy supply or end-use technology—

(A) such as—

(i) solar technology;

(ii) wind technology;

(iii) geothermal technology;

(iv) hydroelectric technology;

(v) alternative fuels; and

(vi) water desalination technology;

(B) that, over its life cycle and compared to a similar technology already in commercial use—

(i) is reliable, affordable, economically viable, socially acceptable, and compatible with the needs and norms of the country involved;

(ii) results in—

(I) reduced emissions of greenhouse gases; or

(II) increased geological sequestration; and

(iii) may—

(I) substantially lower emissions of air pollutants; or

(II) generate substantially smaller or less hazardous waste or liquid pollutants;

(2) GEOLOGICAL SEQUESTRATION.—The term “geological sequestration” means the capture and long-term storage in a geological formation of greenhouse gases from an energy producing facility, which prevents the release of greenhouse gases into the atmosphere.

(3) GREENHOUSE GASES.—The term “greenhouse gas” means—

(A) carbon dioxide;

(B) methane;

(C) nitrous oxide;

(D) hydrofluorocarbons;

(E) perfluorocarbons;

(F) sulfur hexafluoride; or

(G) nitrogen trifluoride.

(c) ELEMENTS.—The program authorized under subsection (a) shall contain the following elements:

(1) The financing of studies, research, instruction, and other educational activities dedicated to developing clean and efficient energy technologies—

(A) by or to United States citizens and nationals in foreign universities, governments, organizations, companies, or other institutions, and

(B) by or to citizens and nationals of foreign countries in United States universities, governments, organizations, companies, or other institutions;

(2) The financing of visits and exchanges between the United States and other countries of students, trainees, teachers, instructors, professors, researchers, entrepreneurs, and other persons who study, teach, and conduct research in subjects such as the physical sciences, environmental science, public policy, economics, urban planning, and other subjects and focus on developing and commercially deploying clean and efficient energy technologies.

(d) ACCESS.—The Secretary of State shall ensure that the program authorized under subsection (a) is available to—

(1) historically Black colleges and universities that provide education and training in clean and efficient energy technologies—

(A) such as—

(i) solar technology;

(ii) wind technology;

(iii) geothermal technology;

(iv) hydroelectric technology;

(v) alternative fuels; and

(vi) water desalination technology; and

(B) that, over its life cycle and compared to a similar technology already in commercial use—

(i) is reliable, affordable, economically viable, socially acceptable, and compatible with the needs and norms of the country involved;

(ii) results in—

(I) reduced emissions of greenhouse gases; or

(II) increased geological sequestration; and

(iii) may—

(I) substantially lower emissions of air pollutants; or

(II) generate substantially smaller or less hazardous waste or liquid pollutants;

(2) GEOLOGICAL SEQUESTRATION.—The term “geological sequestration” means the capture and long-term storage in a geological formation of greenhouse gases from an energy producing facility, which prevents the release of greenhouse gases into the atmosphere.

(3) GREENHOUSE GASES.—The term “greenhouse gas” means—

(A) carbon dioxide;

(B) methane;

(C) nitrous oxide;

(D) hydrofluorocarbons;

(E) perfluorocarbons;

(F) sulfur hexafluoride; or

(G) nitrogen trifluoride.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. Teague).

Mr. Teague. Madam Chairwoman, I yield the balance of my time to the sponsor of the amendment, under my designee status, the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. Teague).

Mr. Teague. Madam Chairwoman, I am an oilman. I always have been, and I always will be. One thing that I learned is that no matter where you go around the world, when you visit oil- and gas-producing areas, you mostly find American companies, American technologies, and innovation that is that would be beneficial to developing countries.

I urge passage.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen. Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to claim time in opposition even though I do not oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen. Madam Chair, while I am concerned by the proliferation of exchange-related authorization earmarks in the underlying bill, which circumscribes the discretion of States’ educational and cultural affairs bureaus in deciding how to allot our fiscal resources, I do not oppose this amendment.

I support efforts to use our educational and exchange resources to help support the development of clean and efficient energy sources, and I appreciate the fact that this amendment does not include a specific authorization amount. Therefore, I support the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Berman. Madam Chair, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Nevada (Ms. Tipton).

Ms. Tipton. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the Teague-Titus-Giffords amendment to establish a global clean energy exchange program. This new program will strengthen research, educational exchange, and international cooperation with the aim of promoting the development and deployment of clean and efficient energy technologies.

The development of next-generation solar, wind, geothermal, carbon capture and storage, and other clean energy technologies will reduce our dependence on foreign oil’s going to take cooperative efforts from every corner of the world.

Our amendment provides much-needed support for exchange programs dedicated to providing developing countries and extend the reach of American clean-energy technologies and innovation that would be beneficial to developing countries.

I urge passage.
basis for America’s leadership in the global economy. But the world is changing. Where before other nations could not compete with our economic might, now they can. And before, where the hydrocarbons were the only solution to the world’s energy needs, it no longer is. America will continue to lead the world in the production of oil and natural gas, but we must also lead the world in the production of renewable energy.

America will be wealthier if we create and produce the technology the world uses to produce energy from the sun. Most Americans will have good-paying jobs if it is American ingenuity behind the production of new biofuels around the world.

The Teague-Titus-Giffords amendment creates the Global Clean Energy Exchange Program to strengthen research, educational exchange, and international cooperation with the aim of promoting the development and deployment of clean and efficient American energy technologies around the world.

Our amendment will mean that professors, researchers, entrepreneurs, and small business owners can travel to other nations to show people there the renewable energy products, technology, and expertise that America has developed. And when those nations decide to make investments in renewable energy, I imagine they will turn to the technologies, products, and expertise that we introduced to them in the first places.

This amendment is about enhancing America’s leadership in the renewable energy field: it’s about creating markets for American goods; it’s about creating profits for American companies; it’s about creating jobs for American workers.

I thank Chairman Berman for his support, and I thank Chairwoman Slaughter for allowing this amendment to be debated on the floor. I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Berman).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 24 OFFERED BY MS. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON OF TEXAS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 24 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 24 offered by Ms. Eddie Bernice Johnson of Texas:

At the end of subtitle B of title II, add the following:

SEC. 227. EXCHANGES BETWEEN AFGHANISTAN AND THE UNITED STATES FOR LEGISLATORS.

(a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section to provide financial assistance to—

1. establish an exchange program for Afghan women legislators of the National Assembly of Afghanistan;
2. expand Afghan women participation in international exchange programs of the Department of State; and
3. promote the advancement of women in the field of politics, with the aim of encouraging active participation in civil society, reducing violence against women, and increasing educational opportunities for women and children.

(b) PROGRAM.—The Secretary of State shall establish an exchange program in cooperation with the women members of parliament in Afghanistan to encourage women legislators to encourage more women to participate in, and continue to be active in, politics and the democratic process in Afghanistan.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Eddie Bernice Johnson) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chairwoman, let me first thank the Chair and ranking member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs for their hard work on this entire document for the privilege of offering this amendment.

I rise to claim the time in support of my amendment that would provide assistance for Afghan women legislators. The amendment would create a program in the State Department to support exchanges between Afghanistan and the United States for women legislators, expand Afghan women’s participation in international exchange programs of the Department of State, and promote the advancement of women in the field of politics with the aim of encouraging more women to participate in the civil society. This program would give female lawmakers of the National Assembly of Afghanistan new opportunities to improve their political and administrative skills and to identify and mentor other future qualified women interested in leadership in the public service.

A new generation of leaders is helping to pave the way to consolidate and secure a stable democracy in Afghanistan. Afghan women legislators are helping to forge this path and already have contributed significantly to the country’s democratic solutions. However, as a group, these women legislators face a unique challenge in navigating their path in the political system because of their agenda.

Additionally, obstacles stand in the way of the advancement of the status of females, including violence against women and restriction on women’s personal freedom of movement. Given the current challenges with the status of women and rising insecurity, the Afghan women legislators can greatly benefit from increased professional and leadership development. The U.S. and the international community must ensure that Afghan women can safely and effectively exercise their rights as citizens.

This amendment would also open additional possibilities to take part in an international visitors program and training through the State Department, which already maintains a similar program to encourage women in leadership in other countries. This would be paid out through the customary means for professional exchanges by the State’s Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs.

Taking part in such programs would not only train current legislators, but encourage more women to participate in Afghan civil society. Exchange programs such as these can help raise the awareness of democratic values. These goals are consistent with the national security objectives for Afghanistan and represent an effective use of our public diplomacy resources.

I urge all of my colleagues to support the benefits of international, cultural, and education exchange and to vote “yes” on this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to claim time in opposition, even though I do not oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, I want to rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentlelady from Texas.

The women of Afghanistan have taken great strides since the fall of the Taliban to fully take part in all aspects of their society. Women have realized significant gains in the last several years. However, much remains to be done.

Laws and regulations passed to safeguard the rights of women must be enforced and respected at the provincial and local levels in order to ensure that women make progress throughout all aspects of Afghan society. It is critical that women legislators of Afghanistan receive the necessary training and support that they need to prevent a return to the intimidation, to the discrimination, to the violence that they faced under the Taliban.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlelady from Texas (Ms. Eddie Bernice Johnson).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 25 OFFERED BY MS. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON OF TEXAS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 25 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.
The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 25 offered by Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas:

At the end of subtitle B of title XI, add the following:

SEC. 11. INTERNATIONAL PREVENTION AND ELIMINATION OF CHILD SOLDIERS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the use of child soldiers is unacceptable;

(2) the use of child soldiers is a violation of human rights and the prevention and elimination of child soldiers should be a foreign policy goal of the United States;

(3) the use of child soldiers promotes killing and maiming, sexual violence, abduction, displacement, and degradation;

(4) health, education, well being, and safety of children, and providing economic opportunity and educational training for at-risk youth, is critical to achieving the goals of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Children; and

(5) countries should raise to 18 years of age the minimum age for the voluntary recruitment of persons into their national armed forces.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas. Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chairwoman, let me begin by thanking Chairman Berman and Congresswoman Ros-Lehtinen for all of their hard work and dedication to improving people’s lives around the world.

My amendment affirms that the use of child soldiers is unacceptable. It is a violation of human rights, and the prevention and elimination of child soldiers should be a foreign policy goal of the United States. Around the world, children are being recruited by armed forces and exploited as soldiers. Amnesty International estimates 250,000 children under the age of 18 are thought to be currently fighting in conflicts around the world, and hundreds of thousands are members of armed forces who could be sent into conflict at any time. The use of children as soldiers has been universally condemned as horrific and unacceptable; yet over the last 10 years, hundreds of thousands of children have fought and died in conflicts around the world. Child soldiers are usually forced to live under cruel conditions with inadequate food and little to no access to health care. They’re almost always treated cruelly, subjected to beatings and shameful treatment. Girl soldiers are particularly at risk of rape, sexual harassment and abuse while in combat. They often become engaged and are at high risk for unwanted pregnancies.

As a psychiatric nurse, I have seen firsthand the effects of war. The mental, social, and emotional abuses endured as a child soldier will last a lifetime. I know how to solve a problem without fighting. I am eager to work with the State Department to ensure that child soldiers around the world are off the frontlines of conflicts and in schools and on playgrounds. Children must have a chance to be children in order to be healthy, happy and productive adults. We must take a stand. Please join me in expressing to the global community that the use of child soldiers is unacceptable. I ask my colleagues to vote “yes.”

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I ask unanimous consent to claim time in opposition, even though I do not oppose the substance of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentlewoman from Florida is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Chair, the Congress put the force of law behind its condemnation of the use of child soldiers through the Child Soldiers Prevention Act, authored by my good friend from Nebraska (Mr. PORTENBERGER). This was incorporated into the William Wilberforce Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act and became public law in December 2008. We further opined on this matter in the Child Soldiers Accountability Act of 2008, which became law in October of last year. However, a sense of Congress reaffirming that the use of child soldiers is unacceptable must be supported. I applaud my good friend from Texas for bringing this important issue to our attention again.

I 100% agree and right to do so. I encourage our colleagues to support this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Chair, I have no further requests for time.

Mr. BERMAN. Will the gentlelady yield?

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. Berman. I just want to express my strong support for this. The issue of child soldiers is a very important one. I appreciate your raising it, as well as some of the other contributions of other Members on this issue. Strongly support the resolution.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Thank you very much.

I yield back the balance of my time. The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the adoption of the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 26 OFFERED BY MR. POE OF TEXAS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 26 printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Mr. POE of Texas. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 26 offered by Mr. Poe of Texas:

At the end of title X, insert the following:

SEC. 10. REPORT ON UNITED STATES CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE UNITED NATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and annually thereafter for the next two years, the President shall submit to Congress a report, with respect to the preceding fiscal year, listing each United States agency, department, or entity that provides asssistance or voluntary contributions to the United Nations and United Nations-related agencies and related bodies through grants, contracts, subcontracts, or subgrants that is consistent with foreign policy and national security, values or our national interests.

(b) AVAILABILITY TO PUBLIC.—The Office of Management and Budget shall post a public version of each report submitted under subsection (a) on a text-based searchable and publicly available Internet website.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Poe) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas. Mr. Poe of Texas. Madam Chair, this amendment would make it a requirement for the President to report annually the total United States cash and in-kind contributions to the United Nations system each fiscal year by every United States agency or department. This amendment only applies for the next 2 fiscal years.

Last year, American taxpayers contributed $5 billion to the United Nations, making the United States the largest member donor to that institution. Seeing the amount of American investment and the influence the United Nations has on world opinion and world events, it’s important that Americans know how their money is being spent and that it is not subsidizing activities which hurt American security, values or our national interests.

The amendment I am sponsoring today would make it a requirement for the President to submit to Congress a report of U.S. cash and in-kind contributions to the United Nations and U.N.-affiliated agencies each fiscal year. The funding would be reported on usaspending.gov, as required by the Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act; and this amendment would expire after 2 years. Without the report, Americans would be in the dark concerning the ways in which their money is being spent in funding the United Nations.

I urge the adoption of this amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Berman. Madam Chair, I ask unanimous consent to claim the time in opposition to the amendment, though I’m not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.
Mr. BERMAN. The gentleman’s amendment is pretty direct. It requires the President to report total cash and in-kind contributions by the United States to the entire United Nations system for the period covered by H.R. 2410, fiscal years 2010 and 2011. The amendment makes sense. It encourages full transparency in detailing the logistical and other support that the U.S. provides to critical peacekeeping operations and other U.N. activities in the support of U.S. interests. The Members of Congress have a right to know, the people of America have a right to know, and I support the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. POE of Texas. I thank the chairman for his response in support of this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 27 OFFERED BY MR. CASTLE

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider Amendment No. 27, printed in part C of House Report 111-143.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairwoman, I rise for the purpose of offering Amendment No. 27.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 27 offered by Mr. CASTLE: At the end of subtitle A of title XI, add the following (and amend the table of contents accordingly):

SEC. 11. ALIEN REPATRIATION.

Section 243(d) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1253(d)) is amended to read as follows:

“(d) Ensuring Return of Removed Aliens.—

“(1) Discontinuing granting visas to nationals denying or delaying accepting alien.—On being notified by the Secretary of Homeland Security that the government of a foreign country denies or unreasonably delays accepting an alien who is a citizen, subject, national, or resident of that country, the Secretary of Homeland Security asks whether the government will accept the alien under this section. The Secretary of Homeland Security will order consular officers in that foreign country to discontinue granting immigrant visas or nonimmigrant visas, or both, to citizens, subjects, nationals, and residents of that country until the Secretary of Homeland Security notifies the Secretary of State that the country has accepted the alien.

“(2) Denying admission to foreign government officials of countries denying alien return.—If the Secretary of Homeland Security determines that the government of a foreign country denies or unreasonably delays accepting an alien who is a citizen, subject, national, or resident of that country after the alien has been determined, by the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, to deny admission to any citizen, subject, national, or resident of that country who is seeking or has received a nonimmigrant visa pursuant to subparagraphs (A) and (G) of section 101(a)(15).

“(3) Quarterly reports.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011, and every 3 months thereafter, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall submit to the Congress a report that—

“(A) lists all the countries which refuse or unreasonably delay repatriation; and “(B) includes the total number of aliens who were refused repatriation, disaggregated by—

“(i) country;

“(ii) detention status; and

“(iii) criminal status.”

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 222, the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairwoman, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

I offer this important amendment before us today for a variety of reasons. When a citizen or a national of a foreign country is convicted of a crime or found to be in the United States illegally, Immigration and Customs Enforcement, or ICE, officials often issue a final order of removal. While most countries in the world repatriate their citizens and nationals in a timely manner, there are a handful of countries that often refuse or unreasonably delay this process. U.S. courts have ruled that our government cannot legally hold criminal aliens in custody for longer than 6 months following their conviction. If the home country refuses or delays in taking them back. As a result, ICE reports that more than 17,000 convicted criminals, many of whom have served time for crimes such as murder, kidnapping, and rape, have been released onto our streets after their home country refuses or delays repatriation. This creates a serious burden on our local law enforcement and wastes millions of dollars in Federal and State resources. Under current law, the government has the option of denying visas to countries that refuse repatriation. However, this tool has rarely been utilized. The amendment I am offering today with Congressman DENT would provide our government with two new tools for compelling countries to act.

First, the amendment empowers the Secretary of Homeland Security to deny admission to a country’s diplomatic visa holders if the Secretary determines that the government is refusing or delaying repatriation. Second, the amendment requires quarterly reports to Congress from the Secretary of Homeland Security publicly listing the countries that refuse or unreasonably delay repatriation. These reports are to include specific information on the status and number of criminal aliens released in the U.S.

Madam Chairwoman, it’s my hope that this reporting requirement, which calls for naming and shaming uncooperative countries, will assist the administration in putting new pressure on those that refuse or delay the repatriation of convicted criminals. This is just a first step toward solving a serious problem, and in the end, our amendment leaves final discretion to the administration to allow for diplomatic flexibility. I urge my colleagues to support this important amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

The gentleman has touched on a real problem. Just as he describes it, the notion of criminal aliens released because of the limitations on the time they can be held, not taken in their home country, creates a very undesirable situation in our own country. The gentleman’s addition to the existing law makes a lot of sense because it’s to retaliate against the officials of that government who seek diplomatic visas to come to the United States.

The existing provision of law is very understandable, although I have a little concern that sometimes we’re visiting on the spouse of a U.S. citizen or worker with particular skills the sins of the government on that individual or on that individual’s American citizen family. But the gentleman has been very flexible in working with us on this amendment, and he is certainly trying to go after a real problem. I wish I had a better alternative than this, but military force isn’t my answer. So I’m going to support the gentleman’s amendment.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairwoman, I would just like to thank the Chair and the Committee for being helpful in forming this amendment. We had to make some changes, which I think were positive. I think that is very helpful.

At this time I will yield to the gentleman from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (Mr. DENT) such time as he may consume.

Mr. DENT. I thank the gentleman from Delaware.

Madam Chair, I rise in support of the Castle-Dent amendment to the Foreign Relations Authorization Act. As of May 2009, just last month, over 147,000 citizens, residents and nationals of foreign countries remain in the United States because the governments of their home nations are delaying or refusing repatriation according to U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement. It’s simply unacceptable. The disconcerting detail regarding the situation is that over 17,000 of these individuals are criminal aliens who have been released into our communities and neighborhoods because U.S. courts have ruled that our system cannot legally hold them in custody for longer than 180 days, or 6 months, following their sentence of imprisonment if their home country refuses or unreasonably delays repatriation. □ 1715

Detainment will only be extended if an individual has been proven to be especially dangerous by a court and a psychiatrist.

This extension has only been exercised a handful of times since being instituted in 2004. Releasing dangerous criminals back on to our streets is just not fair to our citizenry and the families and individuals who have legally immigrated to America.

That said, the Castle-Dent amendment requires quarterly reports, reports every 90 days, to Congress from the Secretary of Homeland Security publicly listing the countries that refuse or unreasonably delay repatriation, including information on the total number of criminal aliens in the United States.

Furthermore, the Secretary of Homeland Security will have the power to facilitate the repatriation process by denying the entrance to the U.S. of those holding diplomatic visas of the offending country. The administration can exercise discretion regarding diplomatic flexibility with an affected nation if necessary.

Under current statute, the Immigration and Nationality Act provides that the U.S. State Department has the authority to discontinue the granting of immigrant or nonimmigrant visas to nationals from foreign countries that unreasonably delay or deny accepting an alien who is a citizen, subject, national or resident of that country. Although State has threatened to deny visas in this capacity, it has never enforced this authority.

Additionally, the Congressional Budget Office has indicated this amendment has no significant impact on PAYGO. On the other hand, drawn-out repatriation negotiations divert scarce Federal and State resources.

As an example, in one case, the U.S. Government paid $197,000 to fly an alien convicted of assault with a knife back to his home country of Somalia, only to be denied and sent back to the U.S. where he was released and fled to Canada. I don’t understand the logic here. We cannot spend taxpayer dollars to remove a dangerous individual from American soil only to discover the nation is refusing the reentry of their citizen.

Congressional action on comprehensive immigration hangs in the future.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman’s time has expired.

Mr. BERMAN. Madam Chair, I yield 1 additional minute to the gentleman.

Mr. DENT. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Just very briefly, I wanted to say about this whole matter, the offending countries are about eight countries, China, India, Vietnam, Laos, Eritrea, and I am probably neglecting one or two. But there are a handful of countries that are responsible for these 147,000 individuals who have valid removal orders against them. They should be removed.

I thank the gentleman, Mr. CASTLE, and I thank the gentleman from California for working with us to provide an amendment. I think sends a very strong message that it is unacceptable that we have to expend our limited resources to hold people who should have been returned.

So, again, I thank you for your courtesy and agree to adoption of the Castle-Dent amendment.

Mr. BERMAN. I have no further speakers. I support the amendment, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 17 OFFERED BY MR. MATHESON

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 17 printed in part C of House Report 111–143.

Mr. MATHESON. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 17 offered by Mr. MATHESON:

At the end of subtitle C of title II, add the following:

SECTION 239. STUDY REGARDING USE OF PASSPORTS FOR OVERSEAS VOTING AND CENSUS.

The Secretary of State, in consultation with the Attorney General and the Director of the Census Bureau, shall conduct a feasibility study and submit to Congress a report assessing methods of facilitating voting in United States elections by United States citizens living overseas using passports or other methods, and for using passports or other methods to count United States citizens living overseas in the United States Census.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 522, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MATHESON. Madam Chairman, I first want to thank the Foreign Affairs, Rules, Judiciary and House Administration Committees for working with me on this amendment. My amendment seeks to ensure that Americans living overseas, all of whom are currently required to pay taxes to the U.S. Government, are counted in U.S. censuses and get to vote in U.S. elections.

This amendment instructs the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Director of the Census Bureau and the U.S. Attorney General, to develop a study using the passports of overseas Americans to determine how they can fully participate in future censuses and elections.

In the 2000 census, the State of Utah narrowly missed getting a fourth congressional seat in the U.S. House of Representatives because LDS missionaries living overseas at the time were not counted. My amendment seeks to help correct this unfair practice by examining effective ways that all Americans living overseas will be counted in future censuses and get to vote in future U.S. elections.

This amendment is straightforward in establishing a study to examine this issue. I encourage my colleagues to support it.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON).

The amendment was agreed to.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. The Acting CHAIR. The Acting CHAIR. The Acting CHAIR. The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in part C of House Report 111–143 on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

The Speaker pro tempore. The bill to which the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union has reported from the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.
(B) regret that developments in recent decades have created impediments to that friendship; and

(C) hold the people of Iran, their culture, and their ancient and rich history in the highest esteem.

(2) Statement of Policy.—It should be the policy of the United States to—

(A) support international diplomatic efforts to end Iran’s uranium enrichment program and its nuclear weapons program;

(B) encourage governments to direct state-owned entities to cease all investment in, and support of, Iran’s energy sector and all exports of refined petroleum products to Iran;

(C) encourage foreign governments to require private entities based in their territories to cease all investment in, and support of, Iran’s energy sector and all exports of refined petroleum products to Iran;

(D) impose sanctions on the Central Bank of Iran and any other Iranian bank or Iranian financial institution engaged in proliferation activities or support of terrorist groups; and

(E) work with the allies of the United States to take appropriate measures to protect the international system from deceptive and illicit practices by Iranian banks and Iranian financial institutions engaged in proliferation activities or support of terrorist groups.

(3) Amendments to the Iran Sanctions Act of 1996.—

(1) Expansion of sanctions.—Section 5(a)(1)(A) of the Iran Sanctions Act of 1996 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended to read as follows:

"(A) DEVELOPMENT OF PETROLEUM RESOURCES OF IRAN.—

(1) INVESTMENT.—Except as provided in subsection (B), a person shall not—

(A) engage in any investment activity in, or a provision of the items described in paragraph (2); or

(B) provide investment advice, consulting services, or training services to the extent that a person has, with actual knowledge, on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, made an investment of $20,000,000 or more in investment of, or assistance in, Iran’s ability to develop its petroleum resources, or to develop its weapons of mass destruction or other military capabilities (as the case may be);

(2) STRENGTHENING OF WAIVER AUTHORITY AND SANCTIONS IMPLEMENTATION.—

(A) INVESTIGATIONS.—Section 4(f) of the Iran Sanctions Act of 1996 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended—

(i) in paragraph (1)—

(I) by striking "should initiate" and inserting "shall immediately initiate";

(II) by inserting "5(b)") after "section 5(a)"; and

(III) by striking "as described in such section and inserting "as described in section 5(a)(1), (2), or 5(b) (as the case may be)";

(ii) in paragraph (2), by striking "being provided or invested in or facilitated such activity, including—

(A)allax petroleum resources; and

(B) sold, leased, or provided to Iran any goods, services, or technology that would allow Iran to maintain or expand its domestic production of refined petroleum resources; or

(C) engaged in any activity that could contribute to the enhancement of Iran’s ability to import refined petroleum resources;

(D) DESCRIPTION.—For each activity set forth in subparagraphs (A) through (C) of paragraph (1), the President shall provide a complete and detailed description of such activity, including—

(1) the date or dates of such activity;

(2) the name of any persons who participated or invested in or facilitated such activity;

(C) the United States domiciliary of the persons referred to in subparagraph (B); and

(E) the steps taken by the United States to respond to such activity.

(3) Form of reports; publication.—The reports required under this subsection shall be—

(A) submitted in unclassified form, but may contain a classified annex; and

(B) published in the Federal Register.

(4) Clarification and expansion of definitions.—Section 14 of the Iran Sanctions Act of 1996 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (13)(B)—

(i) by inserting "insurer, underwriter, guarantor, any other business organization, including any foreign subsidiary, parent, or affiliate of such a business organization," after "trust,"; and

(ii) by inserting "such as an export credit agency," before the semicolon at the end; and

(B) by amending paragraph (14) to read as follows:

(14) PETROLEUM RESOURCES.—

"(A) General.—The term "petroleum resources" includes petroleum, petroleum byproducts, oil or liquefied natural gas, oil or liquefied natural gas tankers, and products used to transport oil or compressed or liquefied natural gas.

(2) Description.—For the purposes of this subsection, the term ‘petroleum resources’ includes petroleum, petroleum by-products, oil or liquefied natural gas, oil or liquefied natural gas tankers, and products used to transport oil or compressed or liquefied natural gas.

(3) Purpose.—It should be the purpose of the United States to—

(A) provide shipping or shipping services to deliver refined petroleum resources to Iran;

(B) underwriting or otherwise providing insurance or reinsurance for such activity; or

(C) financing or brokering such activity.

(2) Description of sanctions.—Section 6 of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking "The sanctions to be imposed on a sanctioned person under section 5 are as follows:"

(3) Presidential waiver.—Section 9(c)(2) of such Act is amended by amending paragraph (C) to read as follows:

"(C) the United States domiciliary of the person referred to in subsection (a)(1), or other activity described in section 5(a)(1) or 5(b) (as the case may be); and

(3) PRESIDENTIAL WAIVER.—Section 9(c)(2) of such Act is amended by amending subparagraph (C) to read as follows:

"(C) the United States domiciliary of the person referred to in subsection (a)(1), or other activity described in section 5(a)(1) or 5(b) (as the case may be); and

(4) DEFINITION OF CREDIBLE INFORMATION.—For the purposes of this subsection, the term ‘credible information’ means—

(A) classified information or reporting supported by other substantiating evidence; and

(B) EXCEPTION FOR PROLIFERATION SECURITY INITIATIVE.—Section 5(f) of the Iran Sanctions Act of 1996 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (6), by striking "or" at the end;

(B) in paragraph (7), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(8) if the President determines in writing that the person to which the sanctions would otherwise be applied is—

(A) a citizen or resident of a country that is a participant in the Proliferation Security Initiative; or

(B) a foreign person that is organized under laws of a country that is a participant in the Proliferation Security Initiative, and is a subsidiary of a United States person.

(5) Rule of construction.—The amendments made by this paragraph shall not be construed to affect the exercise of the authority of section 4(f) or section 9(c) of the Iran Sanctions Act of 1996 as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act.

(6) Reports on United States efforts to curtail certain business transactions relating to Iran.—Section 10 of such Act is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(d) REPORTS ON CERTAIN BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS RELATING TO IRAN.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of the Iran Refined Petroleum Sanctions Act of 2009, and every 6 months thereafter, the President shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees regarding any person who has—

(A) provided Iran with refined petroleum resources;

(B) sold, leased, or provided to Iran any goods, services, or technology that would allow Iran to maintain or expand its domestic production of refined petroleum resources; or

(C) engaged in any activity that could contribute to the enhancement of Iran’s ability to import refined petroleum resources; or “(B) Petroleum by-products.—The term ‘petroleum by-products’ means gasoline, kerosene, distillates, propane or butane gas, diesel fuel, residual fuel oil, and other goods classified in headings 2709 and 2710 of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States.”

(7) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) MULTILATERAL REGIME.—Section 4 of such Act is amended—

(i) in subsection (b)(2), by striking “(in addition to that provided in subsection (d))”;

and

(ii) by striking subsection (d) and redesignating subsections (e) and (f) as subsections (d) and (e), respectively.

(B) DEPARTMENTAL SANCTIONS.—Section 5(b) of such Act is amended by striking “section 6” and inserting “section 6(a)”.

SEC. 2. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for purposes of carrying out this Act.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the motion be considered as read.

Mr. BERMAN. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

The Clerk continued to read.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my objection. I ask unanimous consent to waive the reading.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Indiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, the Iranian regime is one of the most prolific state sponsors of terror in the world. Iran has defied the United States, the U.N. Security Council and the IAEA, and it continues its quest for nuclear technology. A nuclear Iran would pose a grave danger to American citizens at home as well as to our servicemen and women and to our United States citizens abroad.

Focusing on Iran should be a top priority of the United States Congress. Every minute we wait to address this issue the world becomes a more dangerous place. The State Department has not had an authorization bill since fiscal year 2003, and it has continued to operate. While the authorization is important, stopping Iran from attaining a nuclear capability, I don't intend to pursue the policy of seeing if it will work. Iran kept enriching every day while we sat around, railing against them.

We are trying something new because we want this policy to work. We want to stop Iran from having a nuclear weapons capability. I don't know if the diplomatic strategy will work. You guys don't know if it will work.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BERMAN. I don't know if we can get the international community to do the kinds of things that can stop Iran and enforce the regime to change its behavior in this area or on the issue of terrorism or on all of the other issues that we have with Iran; but let's try a policy that is different than the one that has been a total failure for the past 5 years.

We said we won't engage until they suspend. They kept enriching. We said we'll sanction all we can. We caused some annoyances. Most of those sanctions didn't work because no other country was serious about it. Now we're trying a different approach to get the world serious about it. Give it a few months to try and work.

I urge that this eviscerated version of the bill that I am surrendering in this motion to recommit be defeated and that you don't wipe out the whole State Department authorization bill and the committee's work.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BERMAN. I am not going to yield to you and I am going to vote "no" emphatically on this thing. This is an irresponsible motion.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Well, if my chairman would yield for just one question.

Mr. BERMAN. This politicizes a very important bipartisan issue.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California has the time.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. The gentleman won't yield for one question?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit. The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for any electronic vote on the question of passage.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—aye 174, noes 250, not voting 9, as follows:

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be authorized to make technical corrections in the engrossment of H.R. 2410, to include corrections in spelling, punctuation, section numbering and cross-referencing, and the insertion of appropriate headings.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ABLEMAN of New Jersey). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
June 10, 2009

IRAN’S PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION AND ITS NUCLEAR ASPIRATIONS

(Mr. MORAN of Kansas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MORAN of Kansas. This week we are experiencing Iran’s presidential election. While the election is noteworthy, it will probably not have an impact on our nuclear program. Unlike in the United States, the President of Iran has minimal influence over the country’s national security policies. Those decisions are controlled by Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, the elected head of Iran’s theocratic regime.

The supreme leader has vowed to continue Iran’s nuclear program, and unfortunately we see evidence of this. Just last Friday, the International Atomic Energy Agency reported that Iran has sped up production of nuclear fuel and installed more centrifuges in advance of the election. Nuclear weapons experts say Iran now has enough centrifuge capacity to fuel up to two nuclear weapons a year.

Iran is determined to acquire nuclear weapons regardless of who is president. It would be a mistake for the Obama administration and this Congress to wait and see what direction Iran takes if a new president is elected because the course appears to be already determined. If we are going to engage Iran, we must do so right away, immediately, and back engagement with tougher actions.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO SLAIN OFFICER STEPHEN TYRONE JOHNS

(Mr. ENGEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, the horrible events today at the Holocaust Memorial Museum, where Officer Stephen Tyrone Johns was fatally shot and killed, is something that should give us all pause for reflection. First of all, our hearts go out to the officer’s family. He’s truly a first defender and is someone who was protecting all of us.

Mr. Speaker, it reminded me of an incident just a few years ago where Officer Chestnut and Detective Gibson were shot right here at the Capitol by someone who was deranged. But the person who killed Officer Johns today was a hatemonger, hating Jews, hating blacks, hating everybody. And it’s time for us to pause and say that all people of goodwill will not tolerate that kind of hatred.

There’s another thing that we really need to take into account as well. And that is, when deranged people can get hold of guns, we really have a serious problem in this country. We need to do something about guns that are out there in the hands of deranged people, people who are deranged.

This person who fired that fatal shot was a known hatemonger, a white supremacist who served time in jail. How could he get a gun? How could he get it? And it’s truly a concern.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
June 10, 2009

AUTHORIZING THE CLERK TO MAKE CORRECTIONS IN ENGROSSMENT OF H.R. 2410, FOREIGN RELATIONS AUTHORIZATION ACT, FISCAL YEARS 2010 AND 2011

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be authorized to make technical corrections in the engrossment of H.R. 2410, to include corrections in spelling, punctuation, section numbering and cross-referencing, and the insertion of appropriate headings.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ABLEMAN of New Jersey). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.
in God’s name was he ever able to get a gun? We really need to think about this. It has nothing to do with Second Amendment rights. It has to do with sensible Second Amendment rights and sensible feelings and thinking about who should be allowed to have a gun. Certainly not a dangerous person.

I would ask for a moment of silence for Officer Johns and let his family understand that the United States Congress appreciates his great service to our country. There are many, many more officers. We thank God that we have our first defenders and the people who are there to protect all of us.

I would ask for a moment of silence.

The Speaker pro tempore. Members will rise for a moment of silence.

AMERICAN TAX DOLLARS SHOULD NOT BE USED TO FUND ABORTION

(Mrs. BLACKBURN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, there are few issues that divide the American conscience like abortion. There are few topics that are fraught with such conviction and emotion.

Last month the President, speaking at Notre Dame, called “for open hearts, open minds, and fair-minded words” on abortion as he pled with the country for greater understanding. The actions of his administration and this House belie the hope that the President’s words implied. While calling for a constructive dialogue on one hand, on the other, he and many of my colleagues commit tax dollars to fund a practice so many find abhorrent.

This Chamber and the President seem to have forgotten that for many, tax dollars are a deeply personal contribution to our government. They are the product of hard work and often represent dreams and opportunities delayed a year or more as we give the taxman his due. To take those dollars so patriotically sent to Washington and apply them to abortion in our Nation’s Capital and abroad is heartbreaking to many Tennesseans. His administration’s policy is not open minded or open hearted. It is, I believe, a cavalier disregard not only for life minded or open hearted. It is, I believe, His administration’s policy is not open heartbreaking to many Tennesseans.

As is going to cost a whole lot more, because the taxacrats are still proposing is an environmentally sound manner. The American Energy Act is an all-of-the-above solution that offers more affordable energy, good-paying American jobs and American energy independence, and it is safe for the environment.

However, what the administration and the taxacrats are still proposing is a none-of-the-above approach to energy development. They call it the cap-and-trade bill. Their answer is to tax energy consumption, not actually find more energy.

Their new tax will cost the average American family over $3,600 in additional taxes each year. If you use energy, you are going to be taxed. That will mean all sources of energy will cost all consumers more money. Electricity costs will go up. Natural gas, gasoline, and even the cost of food and consumer goods will rise. Everything is going to cost more, because everything Americans buy is produced using the energy the administration is going to tax.

Their plan is to punish Americans who use energy by taxing them, plus there is no real plan for energy that they propose. Their new cap-and-trade national energy tax will financially devastate middle class families across America. It will be especially hard on energy-producing States like Texas that are going to lose thousands of jobs.

The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office issued their analysis of the energy consumption tax this week. The CBO reports say that the administration cap-and-trade tax imposes $346 billion in new national energy taxes that will affect all of us. Not only that, the CBO told the Senate the new energy consumption tax will have little or no impact on the climate. Now, isn’t that lovely?

The none-of-the-above energy plan and tax on business hammers what few manufacturing plants are left in the United States. It will send countless American jobs overseas to places like China and India. You see, both of these countries have said they are not going to participate in any scheme to cap-and-tax carbon like America is going to do, which will make what were American products cheaper in those countries. Also, if all of these factories and plants move overseas, along with the jobs, to so-called polling nations, how is this going to have any positive effect on our climate?

At the same time, the taxacrats are trying to kill off carbon-based fuel supplies; that is, things like oil and its derivatives, as well as natural gas. There is no transition fuel that exists at this time. That is at least 10 years away. Now we are really in a fix; no new energy, and, literally, we are going to be in the dark and we are going to be taxed back to the stone age.

The strange part of all this is that the taxacrats say natural gas could be that transition fuel, but they are trying to kill the drilling of natural gas, especially offshore. I wonder if they understood that natural gas is a carbon-based fossil fuel that requires drilling to unearth? You cannot grow natural gas like corn.

These dinky cars are too small for people like me and too small for even groceries or putting children in these toy cars. There is no room, and they are unsafe at any speed. The Institute for Consumer Safety ran three 40-mile-per-hour, car-to-car, front-to-front crash tests each involving one of these little bitty microcars and a midsize car from the same manufacturer. They didn’t even use large cars or those SUVs. The results weren’t pretty. They found that the weight of just a midsize center was devastating to these micromini toy cars. These green cars simply do not have the weight to protect the passengers, and they are not safe on American highways. So the government is going to force us to drive small, battery-powered, unsafe vehicles, but they will be cute, Mr. Speaker.

And speaking of batteries, if all our vehicles are electric, where are we going to dispose of the millions of larger batteries that will be required to generate these little cars? The other side talks about protecting the environment, but this will create an environmental nightmare when we are trying to dispose of these batteries somewhere in America.
against Israel, public demands put upon Israel to halt settlements while the Arabs or the Palestinians have to give nothing in return, is absolutely wrong.

Palestinian President Abbas said the other day, well, he is going to just sit back and let the Israelis make all the concessions. He doesn’t have to do anything. Well, that is wrong, and if we pressure the Israelis to make unilateral concessions, we are never going to have peace. Concessions have to be made simultaneously.

I know good people, the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY) feels as I do, and I would like to yield to her for some of her comments on this matter.

Ms. BERKLEY. Well, Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to be able to share this time with my very dear friend and colleague, Eliot Engel from New York. I think he made very clear how anxious we are to see peace come to the Middle East and how we support a two-state solution that has been America’s policy in the Middle East for many years.

But there is another component to that, and that component is that the Palestinians have to show good faith too—and by showing good faith, that means recognizing Israel’s right to exist, adhering to prior agreements and doing other things that would demonstrably contribute to the instability and the terror and the violence against Israel—that they are serious partners for peace.

Eliot, when they talk about sitting down at the peace table, you need to have a partner at the peace table, particularly one that recognizes your right to exist. If your peace partner, so-called, doesn’t recognize your right to exist, what are you negotiating for, your right to exist for 10 years, 20 years, 30 years?

When the Palestinians show good faith by ending the terror, recognizing Israel’s right to exist, adhering to prior agreements calling for peace and other measures, then the Israelis can have the security they need to sit down and negotiate a two-state solution.

They have made unilateral withdrawals of land over multiple decades, and, as my dear colleague knows, these have been very, very tough choices for Israel. They have made them with very little in return.

Mr. ENGEL. I thank the gentlewoman. Let me say this: It is time for the Arabs to step up and normalize relations now with Israel.

I will have more to say in a little while.

THE SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, earlier this year Congress passed H.R. 1, better known as the economic stimulus package. Included in this package was a provision which modified the first-time homebuyers tax credit language that Congress passed last year. Under the new provision, a first-time homebuyer who purchased a home on or before December 1, 2009, would get a tax credit of $8,000, which can be fully retained by the homebuyer so long as the homebuyer does not sell the home for 36 months after purchase. If the home is sold prior to 36 months, the credit will have to be repaid.

Mr. Speaker, under this law, it is unlikely that U.S. service personnel who buy their first homes will be able to use the first-time homebuyer tax credit like other Americans.

Because many of our military personnel serve at a duty station for only a few years at a time, those who buy a first home are often transferred and have to sell their first residence before the 36-month holding requirement is met.

I recently introduced legislation that would fix this problem by allowing our military men and women the flexibility they need to benefit from this tax credit. H.R. 2398, the Service Members First-Time Homebuyer Relief Act, would amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a member of the United States Armed Forces to retain the first-time homebuyer tax credit if they must sell their home within 36 months of purchase because the servicemember is, one, transferred to a new duty station; two, deployed overseas; or, three, required to reside in government quarters during that period.

I am very pleased that this legislation has received the support of the National Military Families Association. Their letter of support for this bill states, and I quote: “Thank you for recognizing the mobile lifestyle of servicemembers and their families. H.R. 2398 waives the recapture of the first-time homebuyer’s tax credit for servicemembers who are transferred to a different duty station or deployed overseas. Moves and deployments can be stressful for military families and H.R. 2398 helps alleviate a financial concern of military families.”

Mr. Speaker, at this time, I will submit the text of this letter for the Record.

I hope my colleagues will become co-ing our servicemembers gain the flexibility they need to benefit from the first-time homebuyer’s tax credit.

I have a letter explaining this issue to both Chairman CHARLIE

DEMOCRACY IN THE MIDDLE EAST

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr.
ADLER of New Jersey). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

MS. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, before I yield to my colleague, Mr. ENGEL, to continue our discussion, I want to mention a few things that are very much on my mind.

We can talk for hours about the existential threat of a nuclear Iran to

And in this decade, Israel once again showed her commitment to peace, against all odds. Despite the threat from Hezbollah in the north, Israel pulled back from Lebanon. And Unfortunately, though, we have too often seen Israel’s gestures toward peace met with violence. In Lebanon, we saw Israel’s withdrawal followed by attacks from Hezbollah. In 2006, those became so severe that Israel was forced to retaliate to protect her own citizens.

Even today, Hezbollah continues to re-arm, in contravention of UN Security Council Resolution 1701, which demands their disarmament continues to deny the people of Lebanon can live without the terrorist scourge in their midst.

And just this past winter, Hamas showed they are not interested in building a successful society in Gaza, in building jobs, businesses, schools, infrastructure, or hospitals. Instead, they shelled Israeli communities without any provocation. Dozens of rockets fell on Israelis each day, targeting citizens who were not ‘‘settlers’’ in ‘‘occupied territory’’ but were residents of areas that have never been disputed Israeli territory.

And, all the while, Israel faces a growing threat from Iran, which relentlessly pursues nuclear weapons, in contravention of their own treaties, of international law and of Security Council resolutions. President Ahmadinejad continues to refuse the opportunity to create a forward-looking and flourishing economy there.

And in this decade, Israel once again showed her commitment to peace, against all odds. Despite the threat from Hezbollah in the north, Israel pulled back from Lebanon. And

And I don’t think anybody wants another failed terrorist state. We have to make sure that doesn’t happen.

Mr. Speaker, I join my friend and colleague ELIOT ENGEL here tonight to talk about one of our strongest allies, and the only longest-standing democracy (Lebanon held free and elections on Sunday, June 7, 2009) in the Middle East: Israel. Under attack for its entire existence, Israel has stood up to threats, enemy armies and countless terrorist attacks, and yet has demonstrated throughout that it is committed to peace and stability for all people within its borders.

President Obama and Secretary Clinton have recently renewed America’s efforts to make peace between Israel and the Palestini ans. We applaud those efforts. We all want peace in the Middle East.

In the 1970s, after three straight decades of conflict with Egypt, Israel reached a peace agreement with the Egyptians. The courageous Egyptian president Anwar Sadat traveled to Jerusalem and addressed Israel’s Par-mament, and Israel returned to Egypt the Sinai desert, which had been captured in Israel’s self-defense war in 1967.

In the 1990s, after a long and bloody intifada, after Saddam Hussein rained SCUD missiles on Israel for weeks on end, Israel finally went into the Gaza to end this civil war, and protected their citizens while—at the very same time—extending olive branches, negotiating and sitting down with their adversaries.

So, we stand here together, ready to embrace peace and ready to make peace so that Israelis, Palestinians and all people of the Middle East might finally live in security. But we are also here to say that Israel has not been the problem. They have been ready to make peace at any time and are ready today. But the question is: do they have a partner for peace?

Mr. Speaker, Israel stands ready for peace,
American stands ready for peace, and we welcome President Obama’s efforts to broker an Israel has made many, many concessions for peace and has only gotten war. We hear a lot about what the Israelis must do. Let us hear about what the Palestinians must do. The Palestinians must stop the incitement, stop the violence, uproot the terrorist infrastructure and say that it recognizes Israel’s right to exist. It’s not all right for President Abbas to say he recognizes Israel’s right to exist. Let Hamas say it. Let the Palestinians say it, and let them mean it.

The United States is right in saying that Hamas is a terrorist organization. And by the way, Representative BERKLEY and I do not believe that we should provide aid to Gaza until Hamas meets these conditions.

There are people who also say that the Palestinian-Israeli problem needs to be settled before there can be peace in the region. That is nonsense. The problem with Iran has to be set- tled before there can be peace in the region. We all know that Iran has to be set- tled before there can be peace in the region. We all know that Ahmadinejad has threatened to wipe Israel off the face of the Earth. We all hope he loses in his election this week. But whoever replaces him is not going to be much more of a moderate than he is.

And so Israel has the absolute right to defend its security, and the United States is Israel’s greatest ally, should not be putting pressure on Israel to make unilateral concessions up front. That is very, very important.

When President Obama said the bond between Israel and the United States is unbreakable, then we ought to show it in our actions as well as our words.

So I thank the gentlewoman for sharing this time with me. I know we are going to continue to fight for strong U.S.-Israel ties.

Again, I’m glad there is bipartisan support in this Congress for Israel. And I’m glad that we pointed out that Israel has made many, many concessions in the region. That is nonsense.

The second thing, and it seems a little unrelated except, as I say, when you’re talking about matters that there are significant Federal expenditures on, all these things are somewhat related.

And I’ll give another example from my own life. In the early nineties, I went to a reception in Lebanon, Tennessee, and the doctor who delivered me came and brought my records. And I asked him how much he charged back then, and he said he charged $60 for 9 months of care and the delivery, if they could afford it.

And I told him that he probably didn’t get anything for me then because my parents didn’t hardly have any money at that point.

But we took what was a very minor problem in the mid-sixties and turned it into a major problem for everybody. Nobody but Bill Gates and Warren Buffett and Sheldon Adelson, the casino man, people of that rank, could afford or survive a catastrophic medical expense of some sort.

Took what was a very minor problem for a very few people and turned it into a major problem for everybody. Before the Federal Government got heavily into medical care, medical care was cheap and affordable by almost everyone. I started following politics and government very closely in the mid-sixties, and I remember when they came in with Medicare, and they said that was going to be the saviour of the system. Instead, costs exploded.

Then I remember in the mid- and late seventies when they started talking about Medicaid, and they came in with that, that was going to be the saviour of the system. Instead, costs exploded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

AMERICA’S DEALERSHIPS NEED A MIRACLE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, in less than 48 hours the doors of hundreds of GMC dealers across the Nation and Chevy dealers will be closed. General Motors, now a State-owned enterprise with 60 percent of the stock belonging to the American people and with the directors appointed by the Auto Task Force, capriciously, willfully, unjustly sent out letters to so many of their GM dealers terminating their dealerships at end of this week, dealers who had been asked, in many cases, a few years before to invest millions of dollars of their own in order to promote the GM brand and dealers whose families go back three and four generations, some 85 to 90 years of continuous ownership of service to the community, and their doors will be shut by GM as a result of a letter. And the letter has completely changed the rules as to why they should stay open.

Dealerships that are profitable, dealerships that add to the community, dealerships that pump billions of dollars into State and local sales tax coffers, closed by a letter, without explanation. How outrageous. So outrageous that the majority leader of the House of Representatives, STENY HOYER, whom I joined in a press conference just a few hours ago, made these statements:

"Two Sundays ago, I was on a telephone call with the folks at the White House who are helping to make our policy with respect to this, and I asked them this: 'What money does it save the manufacturer, General Motors or Chrysler, if you shut down the dealership?' The answer: Zero, zero, zero.'

This is the official answer from the Auto Task Force to the majority leader of the United States House of Representatives.

We sent letters to General Motors, we sent letters to the Auto Task Force, and all we get is silence. The destruction of a family business after 90 years does not happen in America. It deserves the outrage of America saying, ‘How dare you close down these dealership when it cost you no money to keep them open?’

We asked General Motors and Chrysler, tell us the reasons why you’re doing it. And do you know what they say? It’s to lessen competition. That means Americans have less choice. That means prices get higher. And isn’t it ironic that the American taxpayer, who has paid $60 billion to keep open these companies, now will see his local dealership closed because the guys at GM want to lessen competition. What’s good for General Motors isn’t good for America today.

A bill introduced by several Marylanders, including CHRIS VAN HOLLEN and FRANK KRATOVL, H.R. 2743, solves the problem. We need that bill to pass by some miracle before Friday.

Mr. BROUN of Georgia addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

PRO-LIFE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. SCHMIDT) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to shine the light on a subject where I do not believe this administration’s actions are living up to its rhetoric. Whether it was said on the campaign trail or in speeches during his time in office, the President has certainly tried to sound reasonable on the issue of life, but his administration’s actions belie its words.

During a campaign appearance at the Saddleback Civil Forum with Pastor Rick Warren on August 17, 2008, then-candidate Barack Obama made clear that his goal was to “reduce the number of abortions.” In fact, he asserted that he had inserted this into the Democratic Party platform: “How do we reduce the number of abortions?”

Now, given the administration’s expressed support for Roe v. Wade, I never expected, nor do not expect it, to suddenly reverse its course. However, one way to reduce the number of abortions in a way that works and one that is a common-ground issue for the American people is not to allow taxpayer-funded abortions. Violating the conscience of millions of pro-life Americans to fund a procedure which they object to based on a deeply held religious belief, a moral belief, by allowing taxpayers to fund abortions actually increases the number of abortions performed. According to the Guttmacher Institute through research on Planned Parenthood.

Honoring the deeply held religious and moral beliefs of millions of taxpayers by restricting taxpayer-funded abortions actually decreases abortions by about 30 percent. So that is one way to reduce the number of abortions, something that the President has said he would like to do. But since taking office, this administration has actually worked to increase taxpayer funding for abortions at both home and abroad.

The first was the Mexico City Policy...

The Mexico City Policy was first promulgated in 1984 and renewed by the Bush administration in 2001. This is a very simple policy that says, as a condition for receipt of U.S. family planning aid, foreign, nongovernmental organizations and international organizations must certify that they neither perform nor actively promote abortion as a method of family planning. Simply put. This policy says that U.S. taxpayers will not pay to promote abortions overseas, yet one of this administration’s first acts in January was to rescind this Mexico City Policy.

Mr. Speaker. I am going to defer here because the gentlelady from Ohio, Congresswoman DAHLKEMPER, who would like to speak about this issue, and I would like to give part of my time, as much time as the gentlelady needs, on this issue.

Thank you very much for joining me tonight.

Mrs. DAHLKEMPER. I thank the gentlelady from Ohio for yielding. And I want to extend a thank you for inviting me to have this opportunity tonight to speak on the floor about the issue of life, an issue that is very important to me.

I believe in the sanctity of life from birth to natural death. In fact, I often like to refer to myself as a person who is “pro-life throughout.”

This issue of abortion is very personal for me. When I was 21 and I was in college, I found myself unmarried and pregnant, and it was obviously a very difficult time of my life. There was a lot of searching that went on, a lot of praying. I had the support of friends and family, but I struggled; I struggled with the thought of telling my parents, and I struggled with the social stigma and the fact that I may have dropped out of school, and also the fact that I would have to be a single parent. But I knew that there was a life inside of me, a living person. And that child was born without myself having any health care coverage. Luckily, I had a very noneventful natural birth, but you still have to go to a doctor and make sure that your child’s needs are taken care of. In my case, I would just like to say that a child is not a preexisting condition; a child is precious, and a life that we need to be taking care of.

So as we go forward here in Congress and we make health care reform, we must address this issue of pre-existing conditions that too often keep mothers, fathers, and children from the care that they need. But the first step is stopping the practice of spending taxpayer dollars to fund abortion.

Once again, I want to thank you so much for the opportunity to speak on the floor tonight about an issue that is very personal for me and for millions of families across this country. And I ask all of my colleagues from both sides to join me in making the whole life of the child a priority, beginning at conception. This begins with steering taxpayers’ hard-earned dollars away from providing abortions and towards health care and the other critical services for our children, as well as our moms and dads.

I want to thank the gentlelady, and I yield back.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Thank you very much. And I would just like to say to the gentlelady, we have a lot in common, even though we represent different sides of the aisle, and one is the fact that we have the joy of being grandparents. I think one of the things that we learn often in life is that, while your children bring you tremendous joy, the joy cannot even be realized until you have that grandchild.

Mrs. DAHLKEMPER. Will the gentlelady yield?

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Absolutely.

Mrs. DAHLKEMPER. I just have to tell another joy. My second grandchild was born just 2 weeks ago today, and I was there for that birth.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Congratulations. Well, the gentlelady has me beat by one, but I only have one child, so——

Mrs. DAHLKEMPER. I yield back and thank the gentlelady.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Well, God bless you and your family. Thank you so much.

While we are on the subject of taxpayer abortions, I would like to recognize another gentlelady from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX). I will extend as much time as you need on this very sensitive and important subject.

Ms. FOXX. Well, I am going to thank the gentlelady from Ohio for being the leader of this Special Order tonight. And I want to thank the gentlelady from Pennsylvania for her pro-life statement and for sharing her experience with us. We are all blessed by her statement, we are all blessed by her being here. She and I and the gentlelady from Ohio are regular attendees at our weekly prayer breakfast, and I can say that it is a blessing to have that opportunity. And it just would make us all so much happier if more people in her caucus felt the way that she does on this issue.

You know, over the past several months, the Obama administration has begun to erode the pro-life protections that make sure that we keep taxpayer dollars from paying for abortions. We know and have known for a long time that the majority of the American people do not want to see taxpayer money used for abortions, but we even know now that the majority of the American people are opposed to abortion.

I think the Obama administration is going in absolutely the wrong direction on this issue, as it is on many other issues. But they began with the repeal of the Mexico City Policy, which restricted taxpayer money from funding groups providing abortions overseas. This is something that had been in effect for many, many years.

Now, what they want to do is bring taxpayer-funded abortions back to Washington, D.C., by changing the so-called Dorman amendment, which restricts publicly funded abortions in the District of Columbia.

The District of Columbia has one of the most troubling track records in the Nation when it comes to its abortion policies. Not only is the District of Columbia part of a notorious group that allows minors to receive abortions, only the District of Columbia and three States have such laws, but it also has one of the highest abortion rates in the country. It is no secret that the District of Columbia’s lax abortion policies are drawing women to abortion clinics from other States. Repealing the Dorman amendment would mean allowing D.C. to use tax dollars to foot the bill for abortions for minors and potentially for minors from other States.

If you recall, there is so much of our children can get a kind of treatment from a physician. They can’t get a shot. They can’t get a preventative shot. They can’t get any treatment.
They couldn’t be sewn up in a hospital if they are hurt or at school without permission from their parents. However, the District of Columbia allows these minors to get an abortion, to kill a human life. And, again, polls have shown that a majority of Americans do not support pro-choice anywhere.

We must preserve the Dornan amendment and keep hardworking Americans’ tax dollars from paying for abortions, a practice that violates the conscience of millions of pro-life Americans.

We also know that taxpayer-funded abortions increase the number of abortions done because the research has been done on that.

But I, again, applaud my colleague from Ohio for leading this Special Order tonight. And I want to say that I share Congresswoman DALLKEMPER’s philosophy, that I support life from conception to natural death, and I think that a society that devalues the unborn will soon devalue those who are born, and I do not want to see our country going down that slippery slope because it would not be good for us.

Ms. SCHMIDT: I want to thank the gentleman for his kind words on this very important issue. Before I turn this over to another gentleperson regarding this issue, I would like to explain to the Speaker one of the situations that we’re talking about is the potential funding for abortions for the District of Columbia. And one of the things that I think we might forget is that article I of the U.S. Constitution says that Congress holds complete legislative authority over the District of Columbia, exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever. That is why the entire budget for the District of Columbia, including revenue generated by local sources, must be appropriated by Congress through an annual appropriations bill.

For many years, the annual D.C. appropriations bill contained a provision to prevent the use of any congressionally appropriated funds for the abortions except to save the life of a mother or in the case of rape or incest. This was the so-called Dornan amendment, named after Congressman Dornan, for the fiscal year 1989 appropriations bill that he talked about in 1988. This bill has been in place pretty much consistently over that time. The White House budget released on March 7, appendix page 1209, asks Congress to repeal the ban on congressionally appropriated funds and replace it with a bookkeeping requirement that would apply only to funds specifically contributed for Federal program purposes.

Now, what I want to point out is this: that while the Dornan amendment was officially put in place in 1989 and was there until 1993, for a few years under the Clinton administration it was relaxed, and what happened during that time was that the funding for abortion in the District of Columbia continued and those funds for abortions actually increased the number of abortions in the District of Columbia. And the way they did it was, according to then Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly, they authorized the use of a million dollars from the Medical Charities Fund, which was originally set up to help indigent AIDS patients to pay for those services. But when the Clinton administration when the Dornan amendment was relaxed, specifically prohibiting any money both directly and indirectly into the District of Columbia that was Federal money for the funding for abortion, when that was relaxed, not only did the number of abortions go up, but they used an alternate funding to actually pay for those abortions. And that’s really the focus of what we’re talking about tonight.

And before I go back through my history of this new administration since taking office in January, I do want to turn it over to my good colleague from Minnesota, Congresswoman BACHMANN.

Mrs. BACHMANN: I want to thank the gentleman for his kind words. It is an honor to be here tonight with my colleagues this evening to discuss this issue. And whether that’s a memory that someone holds or in the case of rape or incest, this is a difficult time for all involved parties, that has radically altered their life.

And these are centers who people give money to from severe pressure, and often a lot of times they are not just being pressured by peers but from their family as well. And these centers are centers that are pro-life women here in the United States Congress, and Jean has done a wonderful job taking that effort forward.

Thank you, Jean, for hosting the hour this evening, and I appreciate the honor of being with you and Ms. FOXX and with my colleagues in Congress. And we are making an effort to be able to address this important issue.

I come here tonight as a female Member of Congress, as a strong pro-life Member of Congress, and also as a mother. I have been gifted to be able to bear five children, and I am grateful for that honor. I am grateful for the respect of those who have chosen life.

And for women who are abortion-minded, who have that decision to make, I want to be able to hold a little baby and be able to know what it’s like to carry a little baby to full term. It is a thrill. It is a blessing.

And I want women across America, they’ve made decisions in their lives regarding abortion that have affected them, that have affected them for good and for not so good. And for women who are abortion-minded, who are choosing and my colleagues this evening to discuss this issue.

And after I go back through my history of this new administration since taking office in January, I do want to turn it over to my good colleague from Minnesota, Congresswoman BACHMANN.

And for women who are abortion-minded, who have that decision to make, I want to be able to hold a little baby and be able to know what it’s like to carry a little baby to full term. It is a thrill. It is a blessing.
And for women who find themselves in a situation where they’re torn, trying to figure out what they should do about this unplanned pregnancy, Mrs. SCHMIDT is exactly right, because they offer not only just the sonogram and just a pregnancy test, but they offer clothing, supplies, diapers, and anything else a mother needs. They offer baby clothes. They offer a little bassinet. They might offer a stroller, a little baby carrier, free diapers. They are there to help women at their most vulnerable time.

And that brings us to a Planned Parenthood that a woman walks in and they say that they’re full service, but there is actually only one option usually when you go into Planned Parenthood, and that’s to end the life of that little baby. And what the pro-life centers try to do is offer women life-giving choices and to let them know they can keep their dignity. Whether they choose to keep their baby or not, they can keep their dignity, but they can also give the gift of life to the next generation. It’s one of the most beautiful decisions than can ever be made.

You’ve had the pleasure of being a mother, and it is truly one of the greatest treasures anyone can ever have, to be entrusted with giving life to the next generation. So I think as we start this discussion on abortion, on what it means, and there are a lot of opinions on either side, but one thing we have seen that has occurred recently, the American people, for the first time, the public opinions show that over 51 percent of Americans claim they are pro-life. This is one of the highest ratings we’ve ever seen. Part of that, I think, is because of science, because science shows us the human development of the unborn child. And the more that we learn about the child, the more we see the invitation, the intricacy, the beauty of the unborn child, the more we embrace giving life to this beautiful treasure and to this beautiful gift.

And that brings us to our subject this evening, dealing with D.C., and there are a few things I wanted to mention in my remarks. The taxpayer funding of abortion also increases the number of abortions. So when we put tax money into the equation, we’ll get more abortions. So when we put tax money into Planned Parenthood, they don’t have accurate numbers on abortions in D.C. due to women from other States coming to D.C. for abortions. They also when you go into Planned Parenthood, they don’t have the American taxpayers right here in Washington, D.C. to avoid the parental notification. They are there to help women at any time, not just for Medicaid recipients.

The Obama budget changes this, this Dornan amendment, as my colleague Mrs. SCHMIDT has said, to the Financial Services’ appropriations bill, so the publicly funded abortions will, once again, be available in the District of Columbia. Right here where we stand this evening, this is the District of Columbia. So now, once again, President Obama is expanding abortion. Instead of making it rare, instead of making it safer, this is making more abortions, particularly for pre-born babies of color.

The District of Columbia has a record of abusing taxpayer funds for abortion. It’s bad news, but it’s true news. In the 80s when the District had the most permissive abortion funding policy in this country, abortions were funded for anyone, not just for Medicaid recipients.

Elizabeth Reveal was the D.C. budget director at the time. She confirmed that the District’s government has a policy of funding abortion on demand and does not attempt to determine the circumstances of the pregnancy. D.C. allows minors—that’s children—to receive abortion services without the consent of their parents.

So imagine that. Here in D.C., children can receive abortions without parental notification. This means that the American taxpayer will be funding abortions, paying for them for children, and minors could easily be brought in from other States. Remember, D.C. is only about 10 miles square, so minors could be transported across State lines and brought to D.C. from other States to have abortions paid for by the American taxpayer right here in Washington, D.C. to avoid the parental notification. That’s according to the Alan Guttmacher Institute. According to Planned Parenthood, they don’t have immediate notification for abortion for the American taxpayer.

There are problems here with this, deep problems with this measure. That’s why we had the Dornan amendment, it made sense. It was only reasonable. So, unfortunately, under the Obama administration, we are taking the Band-Aid off this problem and are exposing it to even more infection. The infection is more money, and we know that more money will lead to more abortions and particularly to more abortions for babies of color.

This is a really sad story. We don’t want to just talk about sad stories, because life is such a wonderful story. We would love to just be here this evening and talk about the positive story of life—and it’s a beautiful story—but this is a really ugly story because it’s about expanding more abortion; it’s about more misery for women who are forced into abortions often against their will, who are given incomplete and inadequate information and who may be headed for a lifetime of addiction, depression or of a sense of loss and grief that they may have to deal with for 10, 15, 20 years. We don’t want this to happen. We want women to be dignified. We don’t want women to be brutalized. That’s why we’re here this evening, because we really believe in women, and we believe in women’s choices and in empowering women. This doesn’t empower women to put them in a situation where they’re forced to do something that may be damaging for a lifetime, or pressured by boyfriends who are care- less or from parents who don’t want to be bothered.

I just want to, again, thank Representative JEAN SCHMIDT. She has a heart of love. She has a heart of love on this issue. With her courage and with her dignity, she has brought together this group of men and women here on the House floor this evening who believe very strongly that American women will be hurt by this bill. Certainly, American children will be hurt by this bill.

I thank you for your courage in bringing this forward this evening.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Thank you so much, my good friend from Nebraska. I just want to add that, while the whole issue is a very emotional issue, one of the things that really disturbs me in the whole abortion debate is when minors have abortions without parental notification. This means that if a minor has an abortion, that means that child has gotten into a family situation, and they’re under age. In many

H6527

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Thank you so much for sharing some moments with us and for all that you do with the Values Action Team to keep us alerted to issues that are pertinent to all in the United States.

When I started this a few moments ago, I was talking a little bit about the new administration and the new President matching his words with his actions. And I would like to go back a second because I have a transcript from the Saddleback forum, which was back in August of 2008, and I got this off of CNN. And I just want to read you a couple of paragraphs so that if Madame Speaker, you understand that I am not taking what then-candidate Obama and now President Obama has said. I really want to give you the full text.

And so Pastor Warren, after asking then-candidate Obama about his views on religion, Pastor Warren said, Let's go through some tough questions, tough ones. Then-candidate Obama said, I thought that was pretty tough. And Pastor Warren said, Well, that was a freebie. That’s a gimme, okay? Now, we’re dealing with abortion. Forty million abortions since Roe v. Wade. As a pastor, I’ve had to deal with this all the time, all of the pain and all of the conflicts. And I know this is a very complex issue, 40 million abortions. At what point does a baby get human rights in your view?

Then-candidate Obama said, Well you know, I think that whether you’re looking at it from a theological perspective or a scientific perspective, an ethical perspective or a scientific perspective, you know, is above my pay grade.

Pastor Warren: But have you—

Then-candidate Obama: But let me speak more generally about the issue of abortion because this is something obviously this country wrestles with.

One thing that I am absolutely convinced of is that there are moral and ethical elements to this issue. And so I think anybody who tries to deny the moral difficulties and the gravity of the abortion issue I think is not paying due diligence to what’s going on. So that would be point number one.

But point number two, I am pro-choice. I believe in Roe v. Wade, and I come to that conclusion not because I am pro-abortion but because ultimately, I don’t think women make these decisions casually. I think they wrestle with these things in profound ways in consultation with their pastors or their spouses or their doctors or their family members. And so this for me, the goal right now should be, and this is where I think we can find common ground—and by the way, I have now inserted this into the Democratic platform form—is, how do we reduce the number of abortions?

The fact is that although we have had a President who was opposed to abortion over the last 8 years, abortions have not gone down, and that is something that we have to address.

Pastor Warren: Have you ever voted to limit or reduce abortions?

Then-candidate Obama: I’m in favor, for example, on limits on late-term abortions. If there’s a reason, a compelling reason for the mother’s health. From the perspective of those who are pro-life, I think they would consider that inadequate, and I respect their views. One thing that I’ve always said is that on this particular issue, if you believe that a woman begins at conception, then—and you are consistent in that belief, then I can’t argue with you on that because that is the core of the faith for you. Madam Speaker, I would like to repeat that because I’m going to come back to that in a few minutes.

Then-candidate Obama said, If you believe that life begins at conception, then—and you are consistent in that belief—you can argue with me on that because that is a core issue of faith for you. What I can say, what I can and do say, there are ways we can work together to reduce the number of unwanted pregnancies so that we actually are reducing the number of abortions, and as an example of that, one of the things that I’ve talked about is how do we provide the resources that allow women to make the choice to keep a child. You know, have access to health care that they need? Have we given them the supportive services that they need? Have we given them the options of adoption that are necessary? That can make a genuine difference.

When I began this, I talked about the fact that the President, when he was running for office, spoke of a concept of abortion where we would actually reduce the number of abortions. And so as soon as he took office, he seemed to reverse that policy.

As many of my colleagues demonstrated tonight, just days after taking office, the first thing that this President did was reverse the Mexico City Policy, which I believe that policy that President Bush put in place, simply says that U.S. taxpayer dollars will not promote abortions overseas and that any NGO and any governmental agency or non-governmental agency overseas cannot use that money to promote abortions that they receive from the United States.

But if this was not enough, today Congress considered a bill that would establish in the State Department the Office of Global Women’s Issues. And one of those purposes of that Global Office on Women’s Issues is to promote abortions overseas.

So as the President stated when he was running for office, committed to reduce the number of abortions, he put it in the platform of the Democratic Party. He said that if you’re consistent in your beliefs that life begins at conception, that this should be recognized.

On this, I received in this Congress, in concert with the administration, is doing is rapidly promoting abortions through the use of Federal funds for those abortions.

But it’s not just the funding of overseas abortions that is occurring. It’s not the only assault on creating a culture of life that we have witnessed both from this administration and this Congress. And it’s not the only instance where the administration’s rhetoric does not match its actions.

What candidate Obama said about stem cell research at the Saddleback forum, he said, Now, if in fact adult stem cell lines are working just as well, then, of course, we should try to avoid any kind of moral arguments that might be in place.

Well, today, adult stem cells have actually been found to be useful in treating a large number of diseases or ailments; embryonic stem cells have not yet been found to effectively treat anything. Yet in March, our President signed an executive order overturning the Bush administration’s stem cell research policy.

And the assault on life does not stop there. Nor does the double-talk. You know, President recently spoke at Notre Dame, and it was met with some controversy. And in that May speech—I want to read to you the context, the full context of what he said on the issue of abortion.

And he said, Nowhere do these questions come up more powerfully than on the issue of abortion. As I considered the controversy surrounding my visit here, I am reminded of an encounter during my Senate campaign, one that I described in my book I wrote called “The Audacity of Hope.” A few days after I won the Democratic nomination, I received an e-mail from a doctor that told me while he voted for me in the primary, he had a serious concern that might prevent him from voting for me in the general election. He described himself as a Christian who was strongly pro-life, but that’s not what was preventing him for voting for me.

What bothered the doctor was an entry that my campaign staff had posted on my Web site, an entry that said I would fight right-wing ideologues who want to take away a woman’s right to choose. The doctor said that he had assumed that I was a reasonable person, but that if I truly believe that every pro-life individual was simply an ideologue who wanted to inflict suffering on women, then I was not very reasonable.

I wrote, I do not ask at this point that you oppose abortion, only that you speak about this issue in fair-minded words.

Fair-minded words.

After I read the doctor’s letter, I wrote back to him and thanked him. I didn’t change my position. But I did tell my staff to change the words on my Web site. And I said a prayer that night that I might extend the same presumption of good faith to others that the doctor had extended to me.

Because when we do that, when we open our hearts and our minds to those who may not think like we do or believe what we do, that’s when we discover that there are a lot of people who do care, who do have some level of common ground; that’s when we begin to say, Maybe we won’t agree on abortion, but we can still agree that this is a heart-wrenching decision for any woman to make, both with moral and spiritual dimensions.

So let’s work together to reduce the number of women seeking abortions by reducing unintended pregnancies and making adoption more available and promoting a range of supportive services that they need? Have we given them the resources that allow women to make a genuine difference.

The fact is that although we have seen the number of abortion that are necessary? That can make a genuine difference.

So let’s work together to reduce the number of women seeking abortions by reducing unintended pregnancies and making adoption more available and promoting a range of supportive services that they need? Have we given them the resources that allow women to make a genuine difference.

What bothered the doctor was an entry that my campaign staff had posted on my Web site, an entry that said I would fight right-wing ideologues who want to take away a woman’s right to choose. The doctor said that he had assumed that I was a reasonable person, but that if I truly believe that every pro-life individual was simply an ideologue who wanted to inflict suffering on women, then I was not very reasonable.

I wrote, I do not ask at this point that you oppose abortion, only that you speak about this issue in fair-minded words.

Fair-minded words.

After I read the doctor’s letter, I wrote back to him and thanked him. I didn’t change my position. But I did tell my staff to change the words on my Web site. And I said a prayer that night that I might extend the same presumption of good faith to others that the doctor had extended to me.

Because when we do that, when we open our hearts and our minds to those who may not think like we do or believe what we do, that’s when we discover that there are a lot of people who do care, who do have some level of common ground; that’s when we begin to say, Maybe we won’t agree on abortion, but we can still agree that this is a heart-wrenching decision for any woman to make, both with moral and spiritual dimensions.

tonight in terms of the inconsistencies in the President’s position. I also want to thank you for having pointed out the joy of having children. And I want to bring up one more example of what I think is an inconsistency on the part of the President.

He recently nominated Dawn Johnsen to head up the Office of Legal Council, and she is among the most controversial of his nominees. She formerly worked for NARAL and the ACLU’s Reproduction Freedom Project.

She has compared pregnancy to involuntary servitude, describing pregnant women as “losers in the contraceptive lottery,” and she even criticized then-Senator Clinton for claiming a need to keep abortions, traumatic experiences, rare.

She, as I said, has said that she believes that being pregnant or banning abortion undermines the 13th Amendment, which bans slavery. And she says “there is no ‘father’ and no ‘child’—just a fetus.” Any money for abortion is that amount to “involuntary servitude.” She goes on and on and on to talk about how horrible it is to bear a child.

And I think it is a very sad, sad situation. The President has nominated a woman who has these kinds of beliefs to head up an extremely important position in the administration, the Office of Legal Council. And I wanted to point that out as another inconsistency in the positions that he’s taken.

And I yield back.

Mrs. SCHMIDT. I thank you so much for that. Consistently since January, the words and the actions have not met the conscience clause, which he clearly took out, and yet said both as a candidate and in subsequent speeches as President that our conscience needs to be recognized and our moral beliefs need to be recognized, especially on this issue. He has really taken that away.

What we now are facing today is the change in the D.C. policy in which we are going to be faced with allowing for the public funding of abortions. Congressman Dornan’s amendment to FY1989 allowed the District of Columbia to use congressional funds, appropriated funds, something that we have to do because of article I of the Constitution, give the District of Columbia money to operate with. The disconnect between using those funds inadvertently for abortions was shut down by Congressman Dornan’s amendment. This was an amendment that has been faithful, except for a few years in the Clinton administration. Now with the President’s new budget, he wants to cleverly allow for the District of Columbia to use federally funded money for abortions.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, I thank my friend for yielding. As a matter of fact, that’s precisely why I’m here in getting here. I was working on that very issue.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. JEAN, just very briefly to say to my colleagues tonight, Barack Obama has said he is seeking common ground, and he wants to reduce the number of abortions. Sadly, virtually everything he has done, months to date, as President of the United States has expanded abortions internationally as well as domestically by executive order as well as by his embedding into his administration a president who’s who of abortion leaders, people from the organizations that are now running the government of the United States. These are the people who ran the organizations for abortion rights. Now they’re there.

The District of Columbia for years has not provided—and our hope is that it will continue to provide—any funding for abortion, except for rape and incest of the mother. That language, as you have pointed out, was crafted by Congressman Bob Dornan; and it was a little game that was played for years. I have been here 29 years, and I still have never yet the game that was played. The language would say, no Federal funds can be used for pay for abortion; but they would allow it because we congressionally authorize local funds, so the bottom line was, the net consequence was, abortion on demand unfettered was paid for by public funds, by taxpayers.

Barack Obama keeps saying he wants to reduce abortions. The common ground on reducing abortions is pro-science, prohibiting funding for abortions. The Alan Guttmacher Institute, the research arm of Planned Parenthood, and Planned Parenthood itself continually says that about a third of the abortions don’t occur when public financing is not available. So as a result of the Hyde amendment, as a result of an amendment that I offered back in 1983 that proscribed funding under the auspices of the Federal Employees Health Benefits plan, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and the Department of Labor, all the other amendments have actually permitted, facilitated those children who otherwise would have been aborted because public financing of abortion wasn’t there. That’s true common ground. Taxpayers don’t want to subsidize chemical poisoning and dismemberment of unborn children.

People can talk all they want. The cheap sophistry of choice is that it doesn’t bring into the visibility that it does bring into the visibility of the abortion, which is the malinger, ultimately the killing, of an unborn child. This is the year 2009. We know more about the magnificent life of an unborn child than ever before. Microsurgeries are being done. These unborn children are the littlest patients. They can get blood transfusions. Unfortunately in some hospital rooms and especially in clinics, they are being dismembered; they are being chemically poisoned; they are being starved to death. So I would only hope that this administration would match their words with their action.

CREATION OF NEW JOBS THROUGH CLEAN ENERGY TECHNOLOGY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. KILROY). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. POLIS) is recognized as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. POLIS. Madam Speaker, we are truly on the verge of a historic moment. We’re moving closer and closer to finally achieving legislation that will put us on the right path towards true energy independence and true environmental protection. Legislation that, at the same time, will grow our economy through clean energy jobs and promote an investment in cutting-edge American technology, for all while addressing the costly damages to our public health, economy and environment that is coming and will come from a changing climate.

The Republican Party just doesn’t seem to get it. They don’t seem to understand that the American people know that the cost of inaction is far higher than the cost of action. The same scare tactics and lack of faith in science and in American innovation won’t work here. They won’t fool the American people. Madam Speaker, the minority party has chosen to put this debate in oversimplified and disingenuous terms, and that’s truly sad. They’ve decided to call our clean energy future a tax because they don’t think the American public can figure out the truth, that endangering our economy, our public health and our environment is what is truly taxing our nation.

Madam Speaker, what the Republicans are espousing is a tax of inaction. The Republican inaction tax will cost our country many, many middle-class careers. The Republican inaction tax will mean harm to family farms, harm to water sources, and harm to the fastest-growing sector of American jobs, clean energy infrastructure. This Republican inaction tax means higher energy costs for families who won't be able to weatherize their homes, increased energy insecurity. The Republican inaction tax will pass along growing debt to our children by leaving behind opportunities to invest in innovative sectors and businesses that we are promoting in this American Clean Energy and Security Act. The Republican inaction tax will mean further devastation to our real estate market, as melting polar ice caps and rising sea levels could cost our Nation hundreds of billions of dollars in lost real estate value. This Republican inaction tax will cost the American people nearly $1.9 trillion annually, or 1.8 percent of U.S. GDP, by 2100. It’s time we have a real debate on this issue, not rhetorical oversimplifications that fail to serve our country but with the high-minded debate that we deserve. It’s time we discuss what’s really in this bill.

I would like to welcome my colleague and good friend from New Mexico, Representative MARTIN HEINRICH, who has a lot to say about what this bill has to offer.

Mr. HEINRICH. I want to thank my friend from Colorado.

Madam Speaker, we formed the Sustainable Energy and Environment Coalition in the 111th Congress because we believe in America’s promise to become the global leader in energy and environmental strategies of the 21st century. Leadership and innovation is the hallmark of American success. In 1961 when President John F. Kennedy said that our country would lead the world by landing an American on the Moon, within 8 years his goal was achieved with the Apollo project. Today that same success is present in our emerging clean energy economy.

Madam Speaker, the opportunity for America to create thousands of clean energy jobs that will build our 21st century economy cannot be understated. Evidence of that clean energy job growth, a key component of our local economic recovery, is already visible on the ground in communities like New Mexico’s First Congressional District, which I represent.

Part of this clean energy cluster growth is a result of the vast natural resources that New Mexico has to share. We are second in the Nation in solar energy capacity and 12th in the Nation for wind energy production potential, but we also have invested heavily in our human capital. One example of this success is the work being done in partnership with Sandia National Laboratories, which has been at the center of multiple renewable energy advancements across our country, including development of a high-temperature forming biofuel that can be used in military aircraft. With Sandia’s help, thousands of jobs in new energy fields have been created in our community by companies like Advent Solar and EMMORE, which makes concentrated solar photovoltaics. Just a month ago I participated in the grand opening of a $100 million Schott Solar manufacturing plant in Albuquerque, which is adding more than 1,400 good-paying jobs for New Mexicans. On the west side of the First Congressional District, Solar Array Ventures is building a factory that will employ 1,000 people; and in the rural east side of our congressional district, hundreds of people have been at work with good-paying jobs on the near complete 100-megawatt High Lonesome Mesa wind project.

Madam Speaker, these jobs are part of a thriving clean energy cluster that is leading our community towards economic recovery. I’m proud to report that Albuquerque’s clean energy job growth recently earned us a second-place national ranking in Kiplinger’s 2009 list. Albuquerque was recognized for leading the nation in key job growth areas of tomorrow. The potential to create these kinds of clean energy jobs across our Nation cannot be denied, and I am proud that the 111th Congress has already started investing in our clean energy future.

In the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, we invested more than $60 billion to help jump-start the clean energy jobs of tomorrow. These investments include building transmission lines to bring energy to communities in need, improving battery technology, training a new clean energy workforce, and increasing energy efficiency to help our country use less energy while we strengthen our economy.

I’m proud to have sponsored the Clean Energy Promotion Act, a bill that will expedite the review of wind and solar energy projects on our public Bureau of Land Management lands. I also cosponsored the national renewable energy standard legislation that is included in the current legislation to increase our country’s generation of energy from renewable sources.

Madam Speaker, in New Mexico’s First Congressional District and across the country, we are at a crossroads. We can either cede leadership and clean energy innovation to nations like Germany, which has the highest solar generation of any country in the world and in 2009 has the same average solar exposure as the State of Alaska; or we can jump-start the American clean energy industry, spurred by the same spirit of innovation that put us on the Moon, to put Americans to work in clean energy careers, building solar panels and wind turbines.

Let’s choose the path of innovation, the path that has led to American success throughout our history. Now is the time to take bold action on our energy policy.

Mr. POLIS. I have a question on that. I heard of people supportive of this Republican inaction tax trying to argue that this bill costs jobs, that somehow this is going to be bad for the economy. A lot of what you’ve been talking about, solar, I mean a solar plant hiring 1,400 people in your district, job growth on the infrastructure side. It certainly sounds to me like passing this bill, it’s going to lead to even more job growth in your district.

Is that what you’ve been finding?

Mr. HEINRICH. I believe that’s absolutely the case. In fact, what we’ve seen is even in the midst of this recession, the good news on our horizon has been these quality high-tech jobs in the renewable energy sector.

Mr. POLIS. Earlier on, as we were walking to the floor, we were talking about American ingenuity and innovation, and we talked about what’s possible with solar cars. I thought maybe you could share with us this story of what’s possible. I mean, the strength of America has always been innovation and ingenuity. I think this bill is really playing to our strength as a country in terms of what’s possible.

HEINRICH. I couldn’t agree more. I have to say, as someone who got my degree in mechanical engineering back in the mid-nineties, I actually participated in a solar car team, just a group of college students that got together in the early nineties and built a carbon fiber lightweight solar-powered vehicle that we raced across the United States against teams from Stanford and Michigan and other colleges around the country. I always thought to myself, if we could do that in 1993, 15 years ago, with a bunch of college students who didn’t even have our degrees yet, then think of the potential that we have today with the technology and the real support of policymakers like yourself. I think the opportunities for science and for business are absolutely endless.

Mr. POLIS. I see we’ve been joined by our colleague from New York (Mr. TONKO). Would you like to add to this discussion?

Mr. TONKO. Sure. Absolutely. Let me thank you, Mr. POLIS, for managing our discussion this evening here on the floor of the House of Representatives. It is a pleasure to join you. I know you have been an outspoken voice for greening up our thinking as it comes to energy and the environment and the economy, three areas that are critical right now that face a crisis of some dimension, and we can resolve those crises simply by moving forward with progressive policies.

So I thank you for providing the leadership here this evening on the floor and to join with you and our friend and colleague Representative HEINRICH because, you know, you are surrounded here by two mechanical engineers in background, education background.

Mr. HEINRICH. I believe that doesn’t happen on the floor of the House of Representatives very often.

Mr. TONKO. It doesn’t. We are usually vastly outnumbered. So it is good for us to step back and look at these issues from an academic perspective and to respond to them in technological terms. That is real leadership. And the President, the Speaker of the House, NANCY PELOSI, leaders here across the aisle here in the House and rank-and-file Members have come together to speak forcefully about just what we can accomplish if we set our sights on this innovation economy that is sparked by a green energy area.

The number one job that we can create in this clean energy career ladder are tremendous. It is a way to provide opportunities for those emerging members of the workforce and to train and retrain our existing workforce. As we look at the opportunities out there, they are immense.

Representative POLIS, you talked about the fear and despair approach taken by some as they try to message in very negative terms the work that is being done in this area. Well, a $475 billion tax on money going to foreign imports for fossil-based fuels could be referenced as a tax. We might say we are paying our bills for the energy supply we need, but it is taxing our economy and, more importantly, it is taxing households families that could otherwise be producing here in America the supplies we need with American jobs, American know-how, American intellect.

You know, as I listened to our Representative from New Mexico, as Representative HEINRICH spoke of that global race back from the decades ago, from the sixties, having heard Sputnik over and over again in the elementary classroom and having seen us in a race somewhat narrower than today’s race would be, Russia, the U.S. all competing to land a person on the moon. But a vision shared by a very eloquent, articulate leader of this Nation, John F. Kennedy, allowed us to come together to speak forcefully about just what we can accomplish if we set our sights on this innovation economy that is sparked by a green energy area.

That same race, global race, is upon us today, and it is not like we have a choice to enter into the race. We have no choice but to be part of it, and the pressure is on for us to win.

When China invests $12.7 million per hour in its greening-up opportunities, that is a signal to us that we can and we must do better than we are today. And whoever emerges, whichever country emerges the leader, the winner of that race, will then be that go-to nation that will export energy intellect, energy innovation, energy ideas. The energy capital that we can build will be extremely valuable for all of our American families.

And you know, had worked at NYSERDA before I entered here. I had chaired the Energy Committee in the New York State Assembly for 15 of my 25 years in the Assembly, and then went on to assume the role of president and CEO at the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority.

Projects that found us utilizing our wind, our sun, our Earth, our soil and our water enabled us to create energy supplies for New York State, Hydrokinetic power that was produced simply by the turbulence of the East River along the shoreline of the Island of Manhattan is there as a demonstration project, an R&D project, that as a prototype holds promise, great promise, when deployed into the manufacturing and commercial sectors.

The opportunity for geothermal, where I witnessed at the Culinary Institute of America six new dorms, lodges as they are referred to, utilizing geothermal as an energy source, and using the constant temperature of the Earth far below us was a simple and novel idea, almost cave-like in its concept, but it is providing modern-day usage, on-sun, solar, PV, all being utilized in New York State, as much as 1,100 megawatts worth of wind power.

So this is possible. It is very possible. And the jobs that we can create are tremendous. It provides energy security, energy independence, and therefore I believe is critically important to us, to our national security. We won’t be putting our sons and daughters in harm’s way because we won’t be in the battle zone, fighting over the commodity of oil and fossil-based fuels.

Mr. POLIS. If the gentleman will yield, what you are talking about sounds great, the great spirit of American innovation, jobs being created, improving our security. I mean, do you think that if we fail to enact this policy, that will be a blow to a lot of this activity, economic activity, security activity, everything you are talking about?

Mr. TONKO. Absolutely. And, you know, we will have to pay some other nation for their ideas. When we spoke the other day with the SEEC Caucus, of which both of you made mention, with the Sustainable Energy and Environment Coalition, the Green Dogs, so-to-speak, in the 111th Congress, we heard from the most recent energy minister, past energy minister, that a lot of American know-how and patents were being utilized in Denmark. Well, if we are not doing our intellectual capacity and this brain power, what a shame if we don’t invest it for our own benefit.

So the time is now to move. The time is long past that we have a comprehensive energy plan for this Nation. And it was one of the motivations for me to run for Congress, so that we could come here and do those sound policies that will move us into a new era of energy thinking, eclipsing us from a political generation of denial, a corner, but it needs an extra investment. It is an investment with an enormous potential return that would more than return dollars to U.S. taxpayers and, of course, contribute to the economy.

Similarly, advanced battery research is desperately needed to essentially bring the solar industry in the United States to that next step. What we lack in solar right now is the ability to really store the sun. And if we could have are talking about the cost of not taking action, it is not only an environmental cost, it is not only the direct impact of global climate change, we are also talking about disrupting a lot of these science and research, economic activities, undermining our national security, all these other costs.

So it is frustrating when people try to say, oh, this costs money. Well, you have to look at the cost of not taking action, which is far greater, orders of magnitude greater, than what we are spending here. It is a very practical way to boost this industry and create green jobs.

Mr. TONKO. Well, one of the great investments at NYSERDA in the State context that I functioned as a huge investment in R&D. And you need to see that R&D, research and development, and deployment, I would add, are economic development tools. You are using very bright minds with clever ideas, putting that lab experiment together to speak forcefully about just what we can accomplish if we set our sights on this innovation economy that is sparked by a green energy area.
a breakthrough, and, again, it is not rocket science, it is not science fiction, if we could have a breakthrough in advanced battery research so that we can extend storage capacity, so on sunny days we can store that energy on overcast days, especially in climates that aren’t always sunny. So when our friend Mr. HEINRICH comes from in New Mexico, we could absolutely transform the solar industry and make it a practical either supplement or alternative for households and businesses across the United States.

What could that do in terms of job creation and reviving the manufacturing sector of the United States? An almost endless return on a very wise investment of dollars.

Mr. TONKO. Mr. POLIS, if I might, to the comments made by Representative CONNOLLY of Virginia, and I thank him for his insight, to those comments I would add that as we achieve those efficiency outcomes, we are also cleaning the environment. We have the moral responsibility to make certain that our children, our grandchildren, generations that will follow us, do not get handicapped by some sort of situation out there like climate change, global warming, or footprint, that will destroy our environment.

The air we breathe is essential, and as stewards today of the environment that we inherited, we must pass it on to further generations, future generations, a state that is acceptable, clean and better, so that we can achieve that.

While we are on the battery situation, I would just make quick mention to further generations, future generations, what Mr. Heinrich is talking about. That battery will be able to be used for intermittent energy generation and energy storage.

That battery will be able to be used for heavy vehicles. That is important. It can be used for liquid fuels, high-density energy fuels that can then be used as an energy storage medium, just like the energy field what trees do every day, take sunlight and then store that as energy in a way that you can use. And you can do so much better. And when you look around at the American innovation in New York, in New Mexico, in Virginia and Colorado, there is no more innovative province in the world than the American entrepreneur.

You know, I was lucky to have the majority leader visit my district last year, so I took him out to Sandia National Labs, one of the places involved in basic research and development, that is rebuilding our energy economy and pushing us forward to the leadership position in the world that we deserve.

One of the things that we looked at Sandia National Labs was actually a process where they take solar energy and a carbon dioxide feedstock, what is currently a problem, it is pollution, it is warming our planet, and utilize that in the sense of making liquid fuels, high-density energy fuels that can then be used as an energy storage medium, just like the advanced batteries you were talking about.

There are people doing research today on a much more efficient method of hydrolysis that would then utilize hydrogen as the output, basically do in the energy field what trees do every day, take sunlight and then store that as energy in a way that you can use.

Take sunlight, and then store that as energy in a way that you can use. And if any country in the world should be leading these efforts, it’s the United States. And it’s time for us to take back our rightful position, leading the world on the future of clean jobs. But we can only do that through changes in policy. As the battery research moves to Korea and Japan and other places, we will be buying the advanced vehicles from those countries. And instead, we need to be supporting the advance battery research that’s being done in places like New York.

In my own home district we were doing research on batteries at Sandia National Laboratories to make sure that we do a better job increasing the density and the safety of these things. So, this is a huge opportunity for us.

As you said, it’s a job creator. And the cost, the opportunity cost of not acting, really hits us in the West, I think, probably more than anywhere except for maybe where you have a coast line. We are reliant for our economy on water, on the water that falls as snow pack, just like it does in your district in Colorado, and that water flows down hills and it runs our farms and it runs our factories. It keeps our rivers alive.

And yet we have seen a dramatic decrease in the amount of snow pack that actually reaches places like Albuquerque because it’s evaporating earlier, you know, temperatures are rising. The Tehemas Mountains in New Mexico have seen something like a seven-plus degree Fahrenheit swing in temperatures over time. That’s impacting forest fires. It’s less water for all of us to use for economic activity. And so the cost of not doing anything, of not implementing this bill, which is basically an Apollo project for energy independence and jobs in this country, is so much greater than the cost.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. If my colleague would yield, because the point you’ve both been making about the need for that competitive edge for American industry is really underlined by some the various American companies that, in fact, have endorsed this legislation. Let’s just take the automotive sector. Ford, Chrysler, GM, John Deere, Caterpillar have all endorsed this legislation. This is the reason for that. They understand that to stand still with existing technology is not going to cut it. They’re going to continue to lose market share, and they’re going to lose to foreign competition.

If I may, I’d just like to read into the RECORD some of the other companies, especially in the energy sector. And the reason I want to read these names into the RECORD is because so often we hear from our friends on the other side of the aisle, this is going to destroy American business as we know it. Well, that would come as news to the following list of companies who’ve enthusiastically endorsed this specific bill.

Duke Energy, coal, by the way, represents 75 percent of Duke’s portfolio. American Electric Power; Edison Electric Institute; Exelon; PG&E Corporation; FPL Group in Florida; Entergy; Austin Energy; Constellation Energy; Seattle City Light; Public Service Enterprise; P&G and other resources in New Mexico. Mr. HEINRICH; Shell Oil; Conoco; BP America; Entergy Energy; GE; Alcoa; Dupont; Dow Chemical; Johnson & Johnson; Rio Tinto; Siemens; National Venture Capital Association. These are American companies that understand the point you were making a little bit earlier, Mr. POLIS, that to stand still is to lose ground; and that actually, we have an enormous opportunity here to regain America’s competitive edge, create jobs, and once again, lead the advanced technologies and techniques. But we’ve got to make that initial step. This bill creates that framework.
Mr. POLIS. Mr. CONNOLLY, you know, one of the things that Mr. HEINRICH talked about, he said, you know, if these jobs aren’t created here, they’re going to be created elsewhere. The research will be done elsewhere. The fact that we need to supply energy needs to be addressed. That’s follow-on. We need to go forward to work here. And we have those available solutions. We need to go forward with that sort of concept.

And, again, it takes a vision. I believe this public, the American public, joins in the efforts when a vision is painted for them. It’s been painted in bold green measure by President Obama. His administration is taking us to a new level of thinking. The Speaker of the House, the leadership in this House, the Members, the rank and file. Members of the majority know this is the right thing to do. And it takes that boldness of vision and that determination, the integrity to move us to this new economy, and it will happen.

Mr. HEINRICH. Absolutely. And what we’re saying is, you know, rather than, we’re sending hundreds of billions of dollars a year to Saudi Arabia, to the Arab countries, to Venezuela. That money is gone from America where it’s gone. And we send it over there and that’s fueling their economy. We can recapture some of that money here and create clean energy here.

Mr. TONKO. Absolutely. Mr. POLIS, I would add this: As Representative in Colorado, like any of us as Representatives, we have seen far too many of our sons and daughters lost in the efforts to, in our involvement in the Mid East. Some of those names are familiar to those nations that we are now fighting against with the war on terrorism and the war in the Mid East. And so it really behooves us to think in newer terms, in bolder terms, in ways that build our independence, our security and our national security, which is critically important to us as we speak.

Mr. POLIS. Mr. HEINRICH.

Mr. HEINRICH. That word, independence, I think, is absolutely critical because this has given us the independence that, as Americans, we crave. And I can say, you know, one of the pieces of this is renewable energy portfolio standard, something that says all the utilities are going to create a certain portion of their power from renewable and clean sources, we’ve had that for a number of years in New Mexico; and it’s worked remarkably well. In concert with photovoltaic technology, you know, starting March or April, I started getting a credit from P&M resources that you mentioned earlier because I’ve got solar panels tied into the system, and during the day when we’re not home, we’re selling power back to the grid at the very time when everybody’s turning on their air conditioner. It is innovative solutions like that that are already working in so many places that are going to give people freedom from those oil wells. We’re also independent from this international and foreign oil that sucks so much money out of our economy in the United States.

Mr. POLIS. You know, and a good point you raise, you’re right. New Mexico and Colorado have really been leaders in terms of instituting renewable energy standards, also instituting incentives for solar technology. You know, at our State level and probably yours, the opposition. And they said, oh, this is going to drive jobs out of Colorado and New Mexico. This is going to hurt the economy.

Well, here we are several years down the road. This has made both of our economies stronger. I mean, isn’t this a great success story in New Mexico?

Mr. HEINRICH. Absolutely. And always better to be the leader that’s creating jobs that the State or the country, rather than watching those jobs go someplace else.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. I might add to the point you’re making, Mr. POLIS, in my State of Virginia, for example, we have a gubernatorial election going on right now, and one of the issues, the Republicans, has talked about drill down now, right off the shore of Virginia. Maybe that makes sense; maybe it doesn’t. But the wind power potential off the shore of Virginia dwarfs any estimate of what possible oil and gas reserves there might be offshore and could create jobs and could actually make Virginia an enormous net exporter to the Northeast and the Mid-Atlantic of a renewable source of energy forever.

Mr. POLIS. You know, Colorado is in this situation and I think this is good policy.

We are blessed with some natural resources, with natural gas and with oil. And I have to tell you, it’s a mixed blessing.

First of all, it’s highly cyclical. We’ve been through several cycles in Colorado where there’s been oil boom times. Everybody was riding high. Three years later the price crashes: everybody’s out of work, everybody’s looking for work.

We are also using a nonrenewable energy source. You take it out of the ground, it’s gone. We’re also destroying one of our other revenue sources, and it’s frequently at odds with the tourism industry, with preserving our natural heritage of great value to Colorado residents, the quality of life that attracts people to New Mexico and Colorado in the first place.

I mean, you know, we can have and we do have now, thanks to the leadership in our State of Governor Ritter and, in fact, the leadership of our voters who passed a number of these initiatives overwhelmingly. The renewable energy standard was passed by Colorado voters with over 60 percent of the vote. They didn’t buy the arguments of the other side. It’s even more popular today, 5 years down the road, than it was at the time because people have seen that effect. We can have a more stable economy. We can create jobs, and we can promote a clean environment all at the same time.

Mr. TONKO. Representative POLIS, I believe that even T. Boone Pickens has said we are not going to drill our way out of this given crisis. This energy crisis needs to be addressed in a constructive way. The constructive way reminds us that there are ways to produce power, as you suggest, without the use of fossil fuel and that the policy needs to be energy efficiency. That plant which we never built simply because we have reduced demand by a
Mr. POLIS. Well, 3,900 in 20 years, and in 10 years, $750. I mean, that is a lot of money for American families that this bill saves right there.

Mr. TONKO. And also, Representative POLIS, I think it’s important to note that controlling your destiny when it comes to energy choices, having new options available, having the production here domestically enhanced, having the efficiency tools that we require, not only utilizing that are shelf-ready, but to develop additional product lines that can create these, given opportunities, smart meters in which we invested this year with the stimulus package, with the Recovery Act, are a great way to provide for control over your energy consumption, to utilize off-peak where possible, and to have a smarter opportunity presented for us as consumers. That’s all available with technology today.

And as we further develop these packages that will enable consumers to control their energy destiny, it’s a great thing as we develop this American power to power America. It’s a wonderful concept.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Would my colleague yield on that point, because my good friend Mr. TONKO is describing is actually the same old wish list, I would tell you, as the Republicans have put out there.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Would my colleague yield just for a moment on that? Because this same study that Mr. POLIS and I are referring to, I just want to read a paragraph that addresses the very point you’re making, Mr. TONKO.

It says, In total, the energy-efficiency provisions of H.R. 2454 could reduce U.S. energy use by 4.4 quadrillion BTUs by 2020. Energy-efficiency savings are more than the annual use of 47 of the 50 States, including your home State of New York. Moreover, such savings will avoid 293 million metric tons of carbon dioxide emissions by 2020, the equivalent—of taking 49 million automobiles off the road every year. By 2030, these energy efficiency savings go to 11 quadrillion BTUs, accounting for about 10 percent of projected U.S. energy use that year.

This is incredible. And that’s what you’re getting at, that there are other efficiencies that can be achieved by this bill right now, by the way, also will lead to innovation, job creation, and savings for consumers we haven’t even calculated.

Mr. HEINRICH. Mr. HEINRICH. I think what my friend from Virginia is describing is actually a very conservative position.

And I think that one of the ironies in all of this is when you realize that we have nonrenewable resources and we use them—oh, I’m sorry, we have used them billions and billions of dollars in our economy—to use less of them, to stretch those out and to utilize them more effectively, that is a fundamentally conservative position, not to waste the resources that God has given us, but to utilize them as efficiently as we possibly can.

You know, I remember during the course of 2009, the whole issue of the tire gauge, and hearing Rush Limbaugh just make fun of this idea that a tire gauge could be of any value at all. And when you think about the fact that we will fight like dogs and cats in this Chamber over this little postage stamp of oil and gas in the North Slope of Alaska, the same amount of which could be conserved in a few years if people would use those tire gauges, that is, I think, a fundamental irony in all of that we breathe, the water that we drink, and certainly the soil that we utilize for our own opportunities and routine opportunities throughout life. We can then become the exporter of energy thinking, of energy ideas, of innovation. This is the strengthening of the economy.

As people invest in this economy, in the American know-how, we then become even stronger and we develop the solutions for our own air, for our own water, for our own fire, yet, our American know-how, that manufactures microchips. That is the idea that manufactures microchips. That is the way we bear in mind that this is the way we draw attention to this Nation and her intellectual capacity, where we become the exporter of energy thinking, of energy ideas, of innovation. This is the strengthening of the economy.

Mr. POLIS. The American Clean Energy and Security Act will help make sure that a lot of this technology is created here. We all worry about the trade deficit. It seems like America doesn’t make anything anymore. It seems like we’re importing from all over the world. Well, here is our opportunity to start making things again.

I visited a company in my district 2 weeks ago. They got a big order from someone for solar panels. They are exporting solar panels from Colorado to China.

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Mr. POLIS, right on message, I visited a company in my district the other day that manufactures microchips. That market is very cyclical. And the manufacturing capacity in the United States has shrunk and shrunk and shrunk.
They had a factory they had to close in the Midwest. They are retrofitting, and they are going to make solar panels at this factory should we pass this bill. They are waiting for this bill to pass, and almost overnight they are going to start to make solar panels.

Mr. TONKO. And I will add, if I may, that there are those industries that are energy intensive and trade intensive. And those are the focal points that we can no longer afford that we hand over to the competitive, making steel in this country our competitiveness of the American steel industry, making steel in this country is skewered, we are ceding those jobs and ceding them to an industry that is actually rewarding them for being more competitive, the way it's structured, the steel front will it help their competitiveness of the global marketplace. They are waiting for this bill to pass, this factory should we pass this bill. It's going to create a lot of jobs. But there is a family out there, and let's say they're a steelworker, let's say they are working in some of these industries that are energy intensive, that make it more efficient, some of those industries that are energy intensive, and actually rewards them for being more competitive, the way it's structured, the steel front will it help their competitiveness of the global environment at all. That has been dealt with in this bill, right?

Mr. HEINRICH. I think not only on the steel front will it help their competitiveness, the way it's structured actually rewards them for being more efficient. We produce steel in this country with far less of a carbon footprint than they do in China. And one of the things that we need to do is we need to ensure that they don't have the perception that this won't hurt their competitiveness in the global environment at all. That has been dealt with in this bill, right?

Mr. TONKO. And Representative POLIS, if I might, as we choose to speak to this green energy thinking, our actions, the vision shared with this Nation will percolate into all sorts of layers, even reach our youngest population where in the classroom they may be inspired to these careers. We need to encourage that sort of outcome. We need to encourage our more technically sophisticated workers of the future. And it could start as early as the elementary years when they hear the discussion out there when they hear the denial, when they don't have the deception, but when they get the facts brought to them. When they see the potential out there that exists today and that can grow into the future, that can't help but spark their interest.

How many young people were watching the first step on the moon? How many young people then chose to be scientists and engineers to go along that path? Our community colleges that are there as the campus of choice in so many communities, where they can train and retrain a workforce to become those stewards of the environment that will help us in this agenda to be more energy efficient and to grow R&D opportunities.

This is a tremendous opportunity to inspire our Nation, to lift us from the doldrums of an energy environment and economic crisis that has really hampered a lot of progress for this country and has denied competitiveness for our manufacturing base.

Mr. HEINRICH. This really is our generation's Apollo Project. It is the greatest challenge of our generation. And we intend to meet it and not cede that opportunity.

And the words that keep coming up over and over again, when you discuss these issues, independence, ingenuity, entrepreneurship, conservation, I mean, those are things that this Nation was built upon, and we certainly cannot turn our back on them now.

Mr. POLIS. You know, and again, what started this whole discussion is the cost of inaction, and we're talking about the benefits of action. And I think we've talked about when it's 750 bucks a year in your family's pocket, whether it's extra jobs being created or whether it's export-
I saw oil again hit a peak today. It was up over $80 a barrel. The dollar is weakening. Why is the dollar weakening? Because global investors are losing confidence in our currency. We can restore that confidence by being the center of the green revolution.

Mr. TONKO. Representative Polis, I believe that volatility, that unpredictable nature of what we have to pay for this import of oil or gasoline should really drive our thinking. And I firmly believe, with every ounce of my being, that this is the moment for America. This is our moment, a golden opportunity to turn green. And we can grow an economy and really respond to the environment that needs to be nurtured by us, and we can utilize our energy resources in an efficient way by having this American power that will power America. And this is our moment, and we can’t walk away from it.

Mr. POLIS. Our time is soon coming to an end. Do you have any closing thoughts, Mr. HEINRICH?

Mr. HEINRICH. Just to thank my friend from New York for really closing, I think, on the issue we need to think about. This is about independence, an end. Do you think the moment? And it’s about providing the good jobs of tomorrow for the next generation. For my sons who are 6 and 2 1/2, I want them to grow up in this country with the same opportunities that I had and more, and to have their children have the same opportunities that I had and more, and to have their children have those kinds of opportunities for the future generations of our nation.

Mr. POLIS. When people hear the American Clean Energy and Security Act, when they hear cap-and-trade, when they hear these, this is what they really mean, a lot of things we talked about here today. We are talking about the future of the American economy. We’re not just talking about creating jobs, we’re talking about saving American households $750 a year within 10 years and $3,900 a year within 20 years. We are talking about creating an immense growth sector, making America the center of this technology, exporting this technology to some of the very same countries that we rely upon today for importing either manufactured products or energy-related products.

And, most importantly, we are talking about ending the cost of inaction. We are talking about completely reducing a lot of these hidden costs and overt costs that we are paying every day when you fill up your tank with gas; sending our men and women overseas; importing products from overseas; sending our jobs overseas; and, of course, climate change, which is having an effect on farmers across our country as well as everybody else.

So by passing this American Clean Energy and Security Act, which our SEEC coalition, Sustainable Energy and Environmental Coalition, is heavily involved with here in the United States Congress, can be the single most important act that we take this term in Congress to help make sure that America has a strong economy throughout the rest of this century and that the dollar regains its strength, that we create jobs here in our country, and we also save American taxpayers and families money along the way.

So when people hear about this debate and they hear about costs, they need to realize the costs of inaction are greater, and they need to realize that the benefits of taking the right action now, and the right action is in this bill, will be a great testimony to America’s success and ingenuity for the next generation.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

- Mr. HILL (at the request of Mr. HOYER) for today after noon on account of family reasons.

    - Ms. BERKLEY, for 5 minutes, today.
    - Ms. KAPTUR, for 5 minutes, today.
    - Ms. PAULSEN, for 5 minutes, today.
    - Ms. McCLINTOCK, for 5 minutes, June 11.
  - Mr. POE of Texas, for 5 minutes, June 17.
  - Mr. JONES, for 5 minutes, June 17.
  - Mr. MORAN of Kansas, for 5 minutes, June 17.
  - Mr. DUNCAN, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Mr. MANZELLI, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Mr. OLSON, for 5 minutes, June 11.
  - Mr. GOMERT, for 5 minutes, today and June 11.
  - Mr. BROWN of Georgia, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Mr. HENSARLING, for 5 minutes, June 11.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 9 o’clock and 35 minutes p.m.), the House adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, June 11, 2009, at 10 a.m.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker’s table and referred as follows:

- 2003. A letter from the Secretary of Defense, Department of Defense, transmitting the Department’s report on Joint Officer Management, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 667, to the Committee on Armed Services.

- 2004. A communication from the President of the United States, transmitting the legislative proposal entitled, “Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2009”, or “PAYGO”, together with a sectional analysis (at No. 111—46); to the Committee on the Budget and ordered to be printed.

purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. FATTAH (for himself, Ms. SCHWARTZ, and Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania): H.R. 2003. A bill to amend the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act to improve the procurement and efficiency for the national school lunch and school breakfast programs, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Education and Labor.

By Ms. GREEN of Texas: H.R. 2804. A bill to amend title XXI of the Social Security Act to require 12-month continuous coverage for children under Medicaid, to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas: H.R. 2806. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to require 12-month continuous coverage for children under Medicaid, to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. HASTINGS of Washington: H.R. 2006. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to adjust the boundary of the Stephen Mather Wilderness and the North Cascades National Park in order to allow the rebuilding of a road outside of the floodplain while ensuring there is no net loss of acreage to the Park or the Wilderness, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Mr. KIND (for himself and Mr. JONES): H.R. 2007. A bill to sustain fish, plants, and wildlife on America’s public lands; to the Committee on Natural Resources, and in addition to the Committee on Agriculture, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. KING of Iowa (for himself, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. RADANOLO, Mr. KOCH, Mr. WESTMORELAND, Mr. WILSON of South Carolina, Mr. FRANKS of Arizona, Mr. PAUL, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. MARCHANT, Mrs. BACHMANN, Mr. MACK, Mrs. MYRICK, Mr. AIN, Mr. BRADY of Texas, Mr. PLEMINING, Mr. BUYER, Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado, Mr. ROONEY, and Mr. PAULSEN): H.R. 2008. A bill to amend the National Labor Relations Act to protect employer rights; to the Committee on Education and Labor.

By Mr. LAMBORN (for himself and Mr. SMITH of Texas): H.R. 2009. A bill to amend the Wilderness Act to allow recreation organizations consisting of hikers or horseback riders to cross wilderness areas on established trails, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Natural Resources.

By Ms. MATSU: H.R. 2010. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to establish various programs for the recruitment and retention of public health workers and to eliminate critical public health workforce shortages in Federal, State, local, and tribal public health agencies and health centers; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. McKEE of Kentucky: H.R. 2011. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to include constrictor snakes of the species Python genera as an injurious animal under the jurisdiction.

By Mr. ORTIZ (for himself, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. REYES, Mr. DELAVALIA, and Mr. RODRIGUEZ): H.R. 2012. A bill to establish certain standards for the adjudication of United States passport applications, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. PASCARELL (for himself and Mr. DOGGETT): H.R. 2813. A bill to establish a national knee and hip replacement registry; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. TIERNEY (for himself, Mr. KUCINICH, and Ms. BALDWIN): H.R. 2815. A bill to amend the Social Security Act to provide grants and flexibility through demonstration projects for States to provide universal, comprehensive, cost-effective systems of health care coverage, with simplified administration; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and in addition to the Committees on Ways and Means, Education and Labor, and Oversight and Government Reform, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. ETHERIDGE: H.Res. 25. A resolution expressing condolences to the families, friends, and loved ones of the victims of the catastrophic explosions at the ConAgra Foods plant in Garner, North Carolina, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

By Ms. NORTON (for herself and Mr. CLAY): H.Res. 258. A resolution recognizing the 70th anniversary of John Mercer Langston Golf Course; to the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

By Mr. TANN (for himself, Mr. SHIMKUS, Mrs. EMERSON, Mr. MOORE of Kansas, Mr. SCOTT of Georgia, Mr. BOOZMAN, Mr. MILLER of Florida, and Mr. MELANCON): H.Res. 272. A resolution commending the NATO School for its critical support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) efforts to promote global peace, stability, and security; to the Committee on Armed Forces.

By Mr. TANNER (for himself, Mr. SHIMKUS, Mrs. EMERSON, Mr. MOORE of Kansas, Mr. SCOTT of Georgia, Mr. BOOZMAN, Mr. MILLER of Florida, and Mr. MELANCON): H.Res. 272. A resolution commending the George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies for its efforts to promote peace, stability, and security throughout North America, Europe, and Eurasia; to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 4 of Rule XXII.
71. The SPEAKER presented a memorial of the Seventy-fifth Legislative Assembly of Oregon, relative to Senate Memorial 1 urging the United States Congress to pass legislation directing an agency of the federal government to establish a measure of poverty income in the determination of eligibility for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program and other anti-poverty programs that truly reflects economic deprivation based on current patterns of household consumption and the prevalence of families with two parents working outside of the home; to the Committee on Agriculture.

CONGRESSIONAL EARMARKS, LIMITED TAX BENEFITS, OR LIMITED TARIFF BENEFITS

Under clause 9 of rule XXI, lists or statements on congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits were submitted as follows:

Amendment No. 1 to be offered by Rep. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN of Florida, or a designee, to H.R. 1886, the Pakistan Enduring Assistance and Cooperation Enhancement Act of 2009, does not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits as defined in clause 9(d), 9(e), or 9(f) of Rule XXI.
The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable Robert P. Casey, a Senator from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Gracious God, to whom all thoughts are revealed and all desires known, we pray for this large Senate family. Lord, you know the secret needs of each person on Capitol Hill, those who are hurting or feel frustrated, discouraged, or exhausted. You know who has stopped loving and those who are experiencing estrangement in important relationships. You know also when guilt is corroding a soul.

Today, we ask You to bless all those who need Your love and healing, providing them with the grace and renewal only You can give. Lord, do in their lives exceedingly, abundantly, above all that they can ask or imagine, according to Your power working in and through them.

We pray in Your merciful Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable Robert P. Casey led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Byrd).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE, PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Robert P. Casey, a Senator from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to perform the duties of the Chair, Robert C. Byrd, President pro tempore.

Mr. CASEY thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, following leader remarks, there will be a period of morning business for up to 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each. The Republicans will control the first 30 minutes and the majority will control the second 30 minutes.

Following morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of the tobacco legislation. There will then be up to 1 hour for debate only, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees. This morning, we hope to reach an agreement to dispose of the pending Lieberman amendment and several additional amendments. Upon the use or yielding back of the debate time on the bill—that is 1 hour—and disposition of the Lieberman amendment, the substitute amendment will be agreed to and the Senate will proceed to a cloture vote on the underlying tobacco bill; therefore, Senators should expect a vote at around 11:30.

NOMINATIONS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we have 25 nominations the Republicans have held up. They are important. I was visited by Secretary Salazar regarding Hilary Tompkins, who is somebody he needs. She would be a lawyer for the Interior Department. She has a great education and background. That was cleared yesterday, and then the Republicans said no.

We have numerous people. For the Sentencing Commission, there is William Sessions of Vermont. We hear that is being held up because Senator Leahy is from Vermont and they don’t like the way Chairman Leahy is handling the Judiciary Committee. That is what we have been told. We also have Harold Koh. I heard on Monday, day before yesterday, from Secretary Clinton that this is somebody she needs very badly. Mr. Koh is going to be the lawyer for the State Department. We have a number of people under the auspices of the judiciary, and we can go through these. We have somebody who is going to help run the Department of Homeland Security, Rand Beers, who is well-qualified and a good person. The topper of them all is LTG Stanley McChrystal to be the man who runs Afghanistan.

I hope people will search their consciences and try to get these done. I cannot file cloture on every one of these. So that people watching this will understand our Senate procedure, it takes days for us to do that. With 25 nominations held up, it would take all summer—until we finish the July recess and beyond that—for us to get this done, filing cloture on every one of these. I hope it doesn’t come to that.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, in a single word, the health debate is about "choices." Will our country choose to tell parents they cannot take their child to the doctor because insurance is not in existence or is prohibitively expensive? Will we choose to tell small... businesses they have to lay off employees because they cannot afford skyrocketing health care premiums? As was outlined by Senator DURBIN yesterday, a small businessman he talked about was dealing with the travails of trying to health care for his employees. Will we choose real, meaningful health care reform that assures everybody the quality care they deserve?

There is another way this debate is about choice. Democrats are committed to ensuring all Americans can choose their doctors, hospitals, and health plans. No matter what the Republicans claim, this government has no intention of doing any of these things for you or meddling in any of these relationships. We have said that time and again. If you like the coverage you have, you can choose to keep it or you can change if you desire.

Like most Americans, we believe there should be more choice and more competition to lift the heavy weight of crushing health care costs. Today, 18 cents of every dollar spent in America is on health care. If we don’t do something about that relatively by 2020 it will be more than 35 percent of every dollar spent in America. If we leave it up to private insurance companies, which are more interested in keeping their profits than keeping us healthy, that is one of the best ways to do that—that is, to give people choice and competition—is to pass the health care legislation.

Third, the Republicans have a choice in the same way they can choose to work with us or against the interests of the American people. From the start, we have reached out to Republicans in this debate. Senator BAUCCUS has done everything he can to get a bipartisan bill. He still believes he can do that. I hope that is the case. Senator DODD, filling in for Senator KENNEDY, has done the same. He has reached out to Ranking Member ENZI and others on the committee to try to come up with a bipartisan bill. That bill was given to us yesterday.

Again, from the start, we have reached out to Republicans. We have let them know we would rather write this bill with them. That is what we want to do. Republicans, so far, have made it quite clear what they are against. We remain interested to learn what they are for. Democrats continue to save for our Republican colleagues a seat, or seats, at the table, and we sincerely hope they will take those seats. Last year, the American people made their choice clear. In no uncertain terms, they rejected the Republican status quo. Those with coverage know their health care bills are higher because of tens of millions of Americans who are uninsured. They know they should not have to go bankrupt or lose their home just to afford to stay healthy or care for a loved one.

I am sure we will disagree in the debate at times, and that is fine. We welcome an open and honest debate on the issue. We welcome a dialog.

One choice we do not have is to wait. We don’t have a choice to wait. Health care is not a luxury. It should not be a luxury. We cannot afford another year in which about 50 million of us have to choose between basic necessities and lining the pockets of big insurance companies just to stay healthy.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, Americans are increasingly frustrated with the U.S. health care system as we know it. They expect real reform, not just the promise of reform that never seems to come or the illusion of reform that last ended up what is good about the current system and replacing it with something that is actually worse.

Americans don’t think basic medical procedures should break the bank, and they don’t want millions of Americans have to go without basic care in a nation as prosperous as our own. Still, many Americans are quite happy with the health care they currently have, and they don’t want to be forced into a government plan they don’t like.

So the need for reform is not in question. The real question is what kind of reform—the kind that makes care more affordable and accessible or the kind that makes existing problems worse.

One thing most people like about health care in the U.S. is the quality of cancer care that’s available here. Far too many Americans die from cancer. Yet for all the problems we have, the fact is, America boasts some of the highest cancer survival rates in the world. And that is not the kind of thing Americans want to see change. But it could very well change if the U.S. adopts a government-run health care system along the lines of the one some are proposing.

A recent study comparing U.S. cancer survival rates with other countries found that, on average, U.S. women have a 63 percent chance of living at least 5 years after a cancer diagnosis compared to a 54 percent rate for women in Britain. As for men, 66 percent of American males survive at least 5 years while 45 percent of British men do.

Just as important as treatment is early detection. And here again, the U.S. routinely out-performs countries with government-run health care systems. According to one report, 84 percent of women between the ages of 50 and 64 get mammograms regularly in the United States—far higher than the 63 percent of women in the United Kingdom. Access to preventive care is extremely important and, frankly, when it comes to breast cancer, preventive care is something we do quite well in the U.S.

These are the kinds of things Americans like about our system, and these are the kinds of things that could change under a government plan. Americans don’t want to be forced off their existing plans, and they certainly don’t want a government board telling them which treatments and medicines they can and cannot have.

No mystery why Americans have higher cancer survival rates than their counterparts in a country such as Great Britain. Part of the reason is that Americans have greater access to the care and the medicines they need. And they don’t want that to change.

All of us want reform but not reform that denies, delays, or ration’s health care. Instead, we need reform that controls costs even as it protects patients. Some say a way to cut costs would be by discouraging the junk medical liability lawsuits that drive up the cost of practicing medicine and limit access to care in places such as rural Kentucky; through prevention and wellness programs that reduce costs, costs such as programs that help people quit smoking, fight obesity, and get early diagnoses for disease; and we could control costs and protect patients by addressing the needs of small businesses without imposing mandates or taxes that kill jobs.

All of us want reform, but the government-run plan that some are proposing for the U.S. isn’t the kind of change Americans are looking for. We should learn a lesson. At a time when some in the U.S. want government-run health care, Canada is instituting reforms that would make their system more like ours.

According to Canadian-born doctor David Gratzer, the medical establishment in Canada is in revolt, with private sector options expanding and doctors frustrated by government cutbacks that limit access to care. The New York Times reported years ago that private clinics were opening in Canada at the rate of about one a week—private clinics. Dr. Gratzer asked a simple question: Why are Americans rushing into a system of government-dominated health care when the very countries that have experienced it for so long are backing away? Many Americans are beginning to ask themselves the very same thing.

SOTOMAYOR NOMINATION

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, Senator LEAHY’s decision to rush Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation hearing is, indeed, puzzling. It risks resulting in a less informed hearing and it breaks with years of tradition in which bipartisan agreements were reached and honored over the scheduling of hearings for Supreme Court nominees. It damages the cordiality and good will that characterizes the Senate. These kinds of partisan maneuvers have always come with consequences. This time is no different.
June 10, 2009

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

S6395

The explanations that some of our friends offered yesterday to justify a rushed hearing were almost as remarkable as the decision itself and the partisan way in which it was handled. Some said Republicans proposed unreasonable hearing dates. Yet no one can cite the time and place when any of these supposed requests were made.

But blaming Republicans for statements they never made was not as ludicrous as the claim that Judge Sotomayor’s long judicial record is somehow reason to rush the review process. Not only is this counterintuitive—why should it take less time to read more cases?—it also flies in the face of every statement our Democratic friends made on the topic after the nomination of the last two Supreme Court nominees.

Time and time again, they told us the Senate was not a rubberstamp and that hearings for Judge Alito and Judge Roberts could not be rushed. As Senator LEAHY put it at the time:

We want to do it right. We don’t want to do it fast.

Republicans respected these requests because we recognized the importance of a thorough review. On the Alito nomination, the Senate, with Senators permitted to speak for 3½ minutes, held for 70 days to prepare for a hearing on a nominee who, as Senator LEAHY noted at the time, had handled some 3,500 cases on the Federal bench. Judge Sotomayor has handled over 3,600 cases. But it is no reason we should have as much time to review her record as we did Judge Alito’s. But for some reason, the old standard has been thrown out as new reasons have emerged for rushing the process on this nominee.

As Senator SESSIONS informed us yesterday, the questionnaire Judge Sotomayor filled out suffers from significant omissions. For example, she failed to produce numerous opinions from cases in which she was involved as a district attorney.

In addition, she failed to produce a memorandum from her time with the Puerto Rican Legal Defense Fund that opposed the application of the death penalty. When this omission was brought to the judge’s attention, I understand the White House then provided this memorandum, saying it was an oversight. But in the rush to complete the questionnaire in order to garner a yes vote, you are prone to these sorts of mistakes. This, of course, counsels the Senate to have a thorough, deliberative process, not a rush to judgment in order to meet an arbitrary deadline.

When it came to Republican nominees such as Judge Roberts and Judge Alito, our Democratic friends wanted to review the record, and Republicans worked in a bipartisan fashion to come to a consensus on a fair process that respected the minority’s rights. Yet when it came to a Democratic nominee, our friends want to deny Republicans the same rights. They want the shortest confirmation timeline in recent memory for someone with the longest judicial record in recent memory. Let me say that again. They want the shortest confirmation timeline in recent memory for someone with the longest judicial record in recent memory.

This violates basic standards of fairness, and it prevents Senators from carrying out one of their most solemn duties—a thorough review of the President’s nominee to a lifetime position on the highest Court in the land. The decision to short-circuit the process is regrettable and completely unnecessary.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business for up to 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with the Republicans controlling the first half and the majority controlling the second half.

The Senator from Nevada.

GUANTANAMO

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, as we are confronted with the news this week of the first of what may be many deadly terrorists being transferred to American soil, I am still left to wonder what the administration’s plan is for the detention facility at Guantanamo Bay.

I recently had the privilege of visiting Guantanamo Bay. I traveled down there with Senators BROWNBACK, BARRASSO, and JOHANNIS. I would like to start out by saying how proud I am of the job our men and women in uniform who are stationed down there are doing. ADM Dave Thomas and his staff are doing an outstanding job, and their efforts need to be recognized. These are the kinds of individuals who make America great and who keep us safe.

This is the type of facility where you do not have a true understanding of how well it run is it until you go down there and see it in person for yourself. I would actually encourage our President to go down and see firsthand what Guantanamo Bay is like, what the facility is like, how the prisoners are treated down there, and how well our service men and women in uniform are preforming.

As we are all aware, 6 months ago, President Obama set an arbitrary time frame for January 2010 to close Gitmo. It is now mid-June, and it appears he is no closer now than he was back in January of this year in identifying what his plan is. We still have seen little more than political rhetoric and no concrete plan of how to do with the prisoners currently being housed at Gitmo.

My question to the administration is: Why are we rushing to close this world-class facility without first having a plan in place? The administration should work with Congress on a bipartisan basis to first come up with a plan, if a plan is even possible, and then proceed from there.

Included in this population are critical figures involved in the 9/11 attacks on the United States and the bombings of a U.S. warship, the USS Cole, and also terrorists captured from the battlefield in Afghanistan. As I stated earlier, one of the most deadly terrorists who was formerly at Gitmo and is directly responsible for the deaths of 224 individuals is now in the United States. In their words, we need to see the security measures that have been put in place to keep these evil individuals from escaping or doing harm. These individuals do not view this war we are in as over. A document that was found in a cell used by al-Qaida operatives in Manchester, England, appropriately entitled the “Manchester Document” lays out how terrorists should act if captured.

According to the Manchester Document, if an individual is detained, he should “insist on proving that torture was inflicted on him. . . .” Whether it was or not, they want to use the press. They want to try to show that torture was used on them.

According to this document, they want to “take advantage of visits from outsiders to communicate with brothers outside the prison and exchange information that may be helpful to them in their work or plans.” They are to “master the art of hiding messages . . . and provide information about the enemy’s strengths and weaknesses, movements of the enemy and its members.”

The terrorists practice this doctrine on a daily basis. In addition, on a regular basis, they abuse our troops down at Guantanamo Bay. It is not the other way around.

A spokesman for the Pentagon stated that 14 percent of the over 500 who were released from Guantanamo Bay have returned to some sort of terrorist activity—14 percent. Some people say: Boy, that is a very low recidivism rate. But if we think about what mass murderers and evil individuals. These are people who want to set out to destroy our country, our way of life, and kill as many Americans as they can. Do we want to transfer or release some of these individuals if only 14 percent of them return? The lives of American troops are at stake.

By the way, the people who were released early, the over 500, those are the people we actually thought were safe. The people who are still there are the most dangerous and deadly.

One of the people who was transferred detonated a car bomb in Iraq.
Another is now a leading al-Qaeda operative in Yemen. As I said before, these were supposedly the safe ones. What would happen if those currently at Gitmo returned to the battlefield? This document and the actions of those at Guantanamo Bay illustrate what some in this Congress seem to have forgotten. We, as a nation, are still at war. They are trying to kill Americans and destroy our very way of life. The prisoners at Gitmo realize these realities. It is the time that we in Washington, DC, wake up and realize it as well.

The facilities at Gitmo are state of the art and are some of the most impressive I have ever seen. After touring the facilities down there, I believe it would be next to if not impossible to recreate those facilities in the United States, partially because of the physical location of the facility.

Guantanamo Bay is also the appropriate place to conduct military commissions. The privacy and seclusion of the unique courtroom facilities that have already been built there allow classified information to be protected and allow privacy for the 9/11 families who are grieving and have chosen to watch the proceedings down there. Too often, we forget about those individuals, the families of the 9/11/01 victims.

Transferring these hardened terrorists to the United States would make each of the facilities where they are transferred to, and the communities in which they are situated, terrorist targets. Let me repeat that.

Transferring these hardened terrorists to facilities in the United States would make each of the facilities they are transferred to and the communities in which they are situated terrorist targets. Would you like to own a small business, a gas station or a convenience store around one of these prisons that house terrorists? I know I wouldn’t.

Another observation that struck me while I was down at Guantanamo Bay was the care and treatment of the detainees. Every—every—effort is made to ensure their religious rights are respected. During my visit to the facility, we even paused as part of our tour out of respect for prayer time of the detainees.

In addition, there are various programs and resources to provide detainees with instructional training and social recreation. Listen to these statistics. Available to the detainees are over 13,000 books for them to read, 910 magazines, and various newspapers in different languages that are distributed weekly. They have access to a vast collection of DVDs for the detainees. It is almost like they have Netflix down there. They also have satellite television, including Al-Jazeera. Detainees are permitted quarterly phone calls to family members and have received or sent over 22,000 pieces of mail, including privileged attorney-client mail. Finally, we offer literacy classes, second language classes, and art classes for the detainees. These detainees are provided better health care than a lot of Americans are.

Does any of this sound like abuse? Does any of this sound like abuse? In his first 6 months, President Obama has had to make some tough decisions. Some of these decisions, such as his Afghan policy, I publicly supported. He needs to realize, though, that by transferring these hardened terrorists to the United States there is strong bipartisan opposition. If the President were to go down to Gitmo, tour the facilities, and to be completely honest with himself, I believe he would come to the same conclusion I did. In the end, there are no superior alternatives to Guantanamo Bay.

The administration must answer this question: How does closing Guantanamo, especially without a plan, make the American public safer? I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Udall of Colorado). The Senator from Arizona.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I commend my colleague from Nevada for his remarks and I want to associate myself with them.

I want to speak to health care and the reform that we are attempting to achieve here in Washington. Little disagreement exists about the need for health care reform. A routine trip to the doctor’s office can be surprisingly expensive, and many fear if they lose their jobs or even if they switch jobs, they will be left without health care. Others who are unemployed may be wondering how they can afford to see a doctor at all. So the question is, How can we make health care affordable and accessible to everyone, and can we build on the health reform that we have already achieved, so that everyone has access to high quality care without changing what works for millions of Americans?

President Obama wants to centralize power in Washington, to change the way health care is obtained by all. He would create what he calls a public option. This would not be an insurance program run by the public but one run by the Federal Government; that is to say, bureaucrats here in Washington, and I believe it would result in a one-size-fits-all government system that would depend upon complex rules and financing schemes, some kind of Federal health board and, of course, higher taxes. It would also inevitably create waiting lists for treatment and denial of care for many. Why? Because the Federal Government resources are not unlimited, so health care for some will have to be delayed or denied to keep spending in check.

The plan that Senator from Massachusetts has put forward would create a medical advisory council to determine what treatments people should get and when they should be treated. The goal of this medical advisory council, again, would be to control spending, not to ensure that everyone gets care when they need it. It could tell Americans when they can get their treatment and what medications they can have. Does any Constitution allow the Senator from Massachusetts would also offer subsidies to those whose incomes reach 500 percent above the poverty line.

President Obama has said that if new government-run health care is created, you won’t have to use it if you prefer your current plan. That is not the way the legislation is being written. The way the legislation is being written in the Finance Committee is that after your contract expires—and it is usually an annual contract—your insurance is gone, and your insurance company must begin to abide by a new set of Federal rules and regulations. That means you will not have the same policy you had before.

Moreover, the government-run care would quickly crowd out other insurers. Employees who have insurance through their company could be forced into the government plan if their employer decides it is simpler or cheaper to pay a fine to the Federal Government and eliminate the coverage. The company might reason: Why bother doing the paperwork when we can tell people to get on the government-run plan? That is exactly what the health experts say will happen.

The Lewin Group has estimated that 119 million people will shift from a private plan that they have onto this new government-run plan if it is created. That would affect two-thirds of the 170 million Americans who currently have private insurance, all but ending private insurance in this country.

First, we have the takeover of the auto companies and banks and AIG and student loans and now health care. That is apparently the agenda at play here.

Republicans believe that health care reform should make health care affordable and portable and accessible. That last point is often overlooked. Health care needs to be accessible. People need to get the care they need when they need it, and what the doctor prescribes for them rather than what a bureaucrat says they can have. Access to health care does not mean access to a doctor. Access to health care does not mean you will not have the same policy you had before. Because the legislation is being written in the Finance Committee is that after your contract expires—and it is usually an annual contract—your insurance is gone, and your insurance company must begin to abide by a new set of Federal rules and regulations. That means you will not have the same policy you had before.

I am not sure why some are embracing government-run insurance when those programs have created so many problems in Canada and the United Kingdom. Many people think that Canadians and Europeans get the same quality of health care Americans get but pay less. That is not true. The stories you hear from individuals in those countries about months- and years-long waiting lists and denial of care are not cherry-picked scare stories. They are commonplace. People often have to wait months for an MRI or a dental procedure or a hip replacement that they may need. According to a new study by the Fraser Institute, which is a Canadian-based think tank, the average wait time for treatment from a specialist in Canada is 18.3 weeks. That is the average wait time for a physican in the year 2007. Let me repeat: 1.7 million people couldn’t even see a family doctor, and that number does not include those who have a doctor and are on a waiting list, so add the wait times. The bottom line is that having a government-run plan does not guarantee that everyone will have access to a doctor or to medical care. Indeed, it chokes access.

There are some Canadian doctors who are taking action because of this. Private hospitals are sprouting up all over Canada. Dr. David Gratzer, who is a physician, recently wrote an article in the Wall Street Journal about the story of another physician, Dr. Brian Day of Vancouver. Dr. Day, who is an orthopedic surgeon, grew tired of the government cutbacks that reduced his access to an operating room, while at the same time increasing the number of patients he had to see them. So he opened a private clinic, the Camble Surgery Center, which employees more than 100 doctors. Public hospitals send him patients because they are too busy to treat them. The New York Times has reported a private clinic is opening each week in Canada.

Think about that. This is in response to a wonderful health care system? No, it is in response to a health care system that denies care to patients. Open a clinic that gives health care access to more people, of course, is a noble thing to do, and I commend Dr. Day, but the success of these clinics also shows that many people who can get out of government-run health care will do so.

Americans do not deserve or want health care that forces them into a government bureaucracy that will delay or deny their care and force them to navigate a web of complex rules and regulations. They want access to high-quality care for their own families and for their neighbors. They want to pick their own doctors, and they do not want Washington to dictate what care they can and cannot get for their families.

On a personal note, none of us in the Senate or in the gallery or anybody who may be watching us, I suspect, cares more about anything in the world—other than perhaps their own freedom—than the health of their family. If there is a health emergency right now, we will all drop anything we are doing to provide whatever health care is needed. We don’t want anybody to stand in the way of that. But the bottom line is that it is inevitable; when government wants to control the cost of providing health care, and it has control, what it will do is to either deny information to people about what options are available, as happens in Germany, for example; delay the care, which is frequently what happens in Canada; or what frequently happens in Great Britain, a doctor who serve a board that makes these decisions, they deny the care altogether because it is simply too expensive for what they consider the value you get out of it. For example: if you are over 65, then you are not likely to have an operation such as a hip operation or a knee operation. There are other restrictions that apply as well.

We don’t want that in America. We don’t want the government in Washington saying that because we want to save money, you can’t get care. I would also remind folks that the alternative that is being created in Canada—these private clinics—is not available under the government program we have in America—the Medicare system. We also have a veterans’ care system. But under Medicare, there is no alternative. You can’t have private care. If you are on Medicare, and you go to a doctor who serve a board that makes the law against the law for him to treat you and then charge you individually for that. Under Medicare, it is either Medicare or no care. That is the law.

I know how hard it was to get it changed. We tried to get something called private contracting, which would be the same as that alternative in Canada—the private clinic. We tried to get that for Medicare, so that if you were not satisfied with what Medicare gave you, and you wanted to speed it up or get a private doctor, even if he charged you whatever amount he charged you, you would have the right to do that. No. What Congress did was to say, you will have the right to do that, in a conference committee—that you cannot do that. Only if a doctor says in advance, I will not treat Medicare patients for at least 2 years is he able to provide that care to you.

So we have an incentive. If you want to take care of people outside of Medicare, you have to agree not to treat Medicare patients. And since we have so many physicians deciding not to take Medicare patients, that is the wrong incentive. We should be encouraging them to take more Medicare patients and at least allow the option that people in Canada have.
those Senators have withdrawn their holds and are now satisfied.

Senator BUNNING had written a letter to Secretary Salazar raising concerns about coal mining and mountaintop-removal-related issues. Secretary Salazar responded to that letter on June 4. As I understand it, Senator COBURN also wrote. His letter was to Miss Tompkins, raising questions about whether she was in fact committed to enforcing the law, which of course would be part of her oath of office.

Based on those exchanges of letters, I am informed that both Senator BUNNING and Senator COBURN are satisfied that her nomination can go forward at this time.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the correspondence between those two Senators and Secretary Salazar and the nominee Hillary Tompkins, following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (See exhibit 1.)

Mr. BINGAMAN. Those concerns have been resolved. I am not clear as to what the continued problem is, why we cannot get this nomination cleared. I raise it at this point. I put people on notice, or the Senate on notice, if we are not able to get it cleared I will once again come to the floor and ask unanimous consent later this week for us to proceed to executive session and to confirm that nomination.

I think this is a highly irregular process to just hold someone hostage for some totally unrelated concern which she has no ability to control. If there were some problem with this nominee, if there were some objection to her qualifications, clearly that would be a different matter. But as far as I know there is no objection to her qualifications. There is no problem with any of the statements she has made or any action she has taken. On that ground, I think we need to move quickly to confirm her nomination. I hope my colleagues will agree and will allow that to happen later today.

I yield the floor.

EXHIBIT 1
U.S. SENATE,

HILARY C. TOMPKINS,
Department of the Interior,
Washington, DC.

DEAR Ms. TOMPKINS, As you know, on May 22, 2009, President Obama signed into law the Protecting Americans from Violent Crime Act. This act was overwhelmingly approved in a bipartisan fashion in both the Senate and the House. The Department of the Interior has developed a rule to implement the requirements of the new law. The 1983 rule that would update and clarify the 1983 rule.

Follow the enactment of Public Law 111-24, the Secretary announced that the Department would follow Congress’s directive and implement the new law when it takes effect. If confirmed as Attorney General, I will be duty-bound to uphold and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States, including this particular law.

With regard to defending this law against legal challenges, the Attorney General of the United States is charged by statute with representing the United States in all legal matters. If confirmed as Attorney General, I will work closely with the Department of Justice in connection with any defense of this Act and all other federal laws.

Sincerely,

HILARY C. TOMPKINS

U.S. SENATE,

Mr. KEN SALAZAR.
Secretary of the Interior,
Washington, DC.

DEAR Mr. SALAZAR: I am writing to express my continued concern about the Department of the Interior’s decision to reverse its stream buffer zone policy and ask the Department of Justice to file a case with the U.S. District Court requesting that the current rule be vacated. Coal mining is a top energy issue to the Commonwealth of Kentucky and consequently I have an extreme interest in the stream buffer zone rule.

Aside from striking a balance between environmental protections, the now abandoned rule clarified a long standing dispute over how the Surface Mining law should be applied. Issuance of the rule represented the culmination of a seven year process that was thorough and well vetted. While I appreciate the comments that you and other members of the Department of the Interior have made regarding the importance of the role of our coal mining communities in our national energy landscape, I also believe that nearly a decade of examination of this issue should not be overturned lightly.

I respectfully ask for your full commitment to work with me as DOI determines how it will resolve the stream buffer zone matter. I further ask for a prompt written reply to this request. I appreciate your consideration and look forward to hearing from you.

Please feel free to contact Sarah Timoney, of my staff, at 202–224–4336 should you have any questions.

Best personal regards,

JIM BUNNING,
United States Senator.

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR,

Hon. JIM BUNNING,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BUNNING: Thank you for your letter dated June 4, 2009, regarding the lawsuit surrounding the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement’s Stream Buffer Zone regulation.

The matter is currently in litigation. We have asked the Court to take action that will allow the 1983 Reagan Administration rule to continue in force in all of the states that have delegated authority under the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act, Kentucky, along with most states, currently follows the 1983 rule. I will ensure that there is an opportunity for public input on the potential development of a comprehensive new stream buffer zone that would update and clarify the 1983 rule. We will keep you informed of our progress in this matter and welcome your suggestions.

As I have said many times, we must responsibly develop conventional energy sources, including coal, in order to achieve greater energy independence. I look forward to working together to achieve these goals.

Sincerely,

KEN SALAZAR

Mr. BINGAMAN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL PIPELINE SAFETY DAY

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, this morning I rise to remind all of us of a promise our government has made to the American people. It is an unspoken trust that certain things in our lives and communities are taken care of, that we don’t have to think much about because we trust our government to keep us safe.

I think most Americans turn on the tap each day and expect the water they drink to be safe, and they probably do not think a lot about it. We expect if there is an emergency we will be able to pick up the phone and 9-1-1 and someone will answer and send help to us.

That is exactly what the people who lived in Bellingham, WA, used to think about oil and gas pipelines, if they thought about them at all. But all of our assumptions of safety and innocence were shattered 10 years ago today when tragedy struck for three families, and an entire community came together to

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

S6399

WA, I rarely heard about them myself. In fact, it was not even rare.

The photo behind me was taken just moments after that explosion. Minutes before this, it was just a quiet creek. And this is what it looked like. That dramatic explosion took the lives, tragically, of young people. Stephen Tsiorvas and Wade King were playing along the banks of the creek when this tremendous fireball ran across the water and set everything around them ablaze. They were both badly burned, and Stephen was overcome by the fumes, lost consciousness, and drowned. Stephen, Wade, and I don’t think it was a gas accident. But it was an accident that could have been and should have been prevented.

Pipeline networks stretch across the entire country. They run under our homes, they run by our schools, and our offices. Most people do not even know they are there. In fact, former Bellingham Police Chief Don Pierce, who was on this scene that day back in 1999, was recently quoted as he said:

As I was standing there none of it made any sense because creeks don’t catch on fire. I don’t think I knew that there was a gas pipeline that ran under there.

The chief of police didn’t know there was a gas pipeline underneath.

Nationwide, the Office of Pipeline Safety oversees more than 2.3 million miles of pipeline that transports hazardous liquids and natural gas under and through every community across the country. They perform a very important service, bringing oil and essential products to our homes and businesses.

Prior to this accident in Bellingham, WA, I rarely heard about them myself and, like most Americans, I just assumed they were safe. At first I thought the Bellingham explosion was a fluke, something that never happens. Then, when I started to investigate this issue, I was astonished by what I learned. It turned out that what happened in Bellingham that day was not an isolated occurrence. In fact, it was not even rare.

According to the Office of Pipeline Safety, from 1986 until the time of this accident in 1999, there had been more than 5,500 incidents resulting in 310 deaths and over 90 percent of their bodies and both died the next day. They were both just 10 years old.

The same afternoon, the same time, 18-year-old Liam Wood, who had just graduated from high school 5 days earlier, was fly fishing along this creek. He was overcome by the fumes, lost consciousness, and drowned. Stephen, Wade, and I don’t think it was a gas accident. But it was an accident that could have been and should have been prevented.

The parents of the young victims who died in Bellingham may not have been unique in our tragedy, we were one of a kind in the Valley. Bellingham families, this explosion caused the loss of three young lives. That is like an oil spill the size of the Exxon Valdez disaster every 2 years. The environmental damage was estimated to cost $1 billion.

In addition to this horrific loss that was sustained by these three Bellingham families, this explosion caused massive environmental damage. In fact, I had been scheduled to be at this exact site just a few weeks later to dedicate a great, newly restored, salmon spawning ground. When I went there and saw the damage after the explosion, I was shocked. That blast had destroyed all the plant and animal life in the creek, and a once very lush and diverse habitat had been burned to ashes.

Almost every explosion was not unique. At that time, on average, our Nation was suffering one pipeline accident every single day. While Bellingham may not have been unique in our tragedy, we were one of a kind in our response. Today, 10 years after the unthinkable happened, the story of the Bellingham natural gas explosion is also a story of how a community came together to tackle a nationwide problem and protect other Americans from the same fate. I learned about the problems with inspection and oversight of our national pipeline system, the community channeled their grief into action.

Through research, I found out there were inadequate laws, insufficient oversight, too few inspections, and not enough trained inspectors, as well as a lack of awareness about these pipeline dangers. I learned that the most important public safety offices, the Office of Pipeline Safety, was underfunded and neglected.

I asked the inspector general of the Department of Transportation to investigate the Office of Pipeline Safety and provide recommendations for how we could make this system work better, and I got a report—a bill to improve pipeline safety in America. It turned out to be a very long, hard fight to convince Congress this was something we had to do something about. The people of Bellingham stood up and said, ‘We can do better.’ The parents of the young victims who were tragically lost on this date came to Washington, DC, to testify. So did Bellingham Mayor Mark Asmundson, and Carl Weimer, who is now head of the Pipeline Safety Trust.

That trust came into being thanks to the efforts of families and a group called SAFE Bellingham, that had organized to fight for better pipeline safety and accident prevention measures. So together with them and the great support of colleagues here in the Senate, Senator JOHN MCCAIN took a tremendous lead as chair of the committee, and I thank him for that; former Senators Slade Gorton and Fritz Hollings came together; Senator CANTWELL; Congress Members Jack Metcalf, Rick Larsen, and others—together we worked very hard and passed and President Bush finally signed into law our legislation in 2002 to give the Office of Pipeline Safety the resources and the muscle it needed to keep Americans safe. That law improved the training of pipeline personnel. It raised the penalty for safety violations. It invested in new technology that was badly needed so we could improve pipeline safety. It improved the inspection process, and, importantly, expanded authority to our States to conduct their own safety activities.

Children today in every corner of our State are safer because the people of Bellingham stood up and said, ‘We do not want this to happen ever again.’ But I am here today to remind us, 10 years later, that the work is not done. While our law has greatly reduced the number of pipeline accidents—still are accidents every year. That is why I am on the floor today to introduce a Senate resolution designating June 10 as National Pipeline Safety Day. I am introducing this resolution to commemorate the June 10, 1999, explosion in Bellingham and to recognize the importance of continuing to improve pipeline safety and accident prevention measures.

For me, this 10-year anniversary is a reminder of a day of terrible pain we must never forget. But it is also a reminder that we cannot just assume someone else is taking care of things. We cannot slip back to where we were before. We have to stay vigilant and continue to work to improve the safety of our pipeline system. That is the best way we can continue to celebrate and honor Steven, Wade, and Liam.

We ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 181 which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant bill clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 181) designating June 10, 2009, as "National Pipeline Safety Day."

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mrs. MURRAY. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate, and any statements be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 181) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. Res. 181

Whereas there are more than 2,000,000 miles of gas and hazardous liquid pipelines in the United States that are operated by more than 5,000 companies;

Whereas gas and hazardous liquid pipelines play a vital role in the lives of people in the United States by delivering the energy needed to heat homes, drive cars, cook food and operate businesses;

Whereas, during the last decade, significant new pipelines have been built to help move North American sources of oil and gas to refineries and markets;

Whereas, on June 10, 1999, a hazardous liquid pipeline ruptured and exploded in a park in Bellingham, Washington, killing 2 10-year-old boys and a young man, destroying a salmon stream, and causing hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and economic disruption;

Whereas, in response to the pipeline tragedy on June 10, 1999, Congress enacted significant new pipeline safety regulations, including in the Pipeline Safety Improvement Act of 2002 (Public Law 107-355; 116 Stat. 2985) and the Pipeline Inspection, Protection, Enforcement, and Safety Act of 2006 (Public Law 109-468; 120 Stat. 3486);

Whereas, during the last decade, the Pipelines and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration of the Department of Transportation, and the Pipelines and Informed Planning Alliance of the National Association of State Fire Marshals, has instituted a variety of important new rules and pipeline safety initiatives, such as the Common Ground Alliance, pipeline emergency training with the National Association of State Fire Marshals, and the Pipelines and Informed Planning Alliance;

Whereas, even with pipeline safety improvements, in 2008 there were 274 significant pipeline incidents that caused more than $255,000,000 of damage to property and disrupted the economy;

Whereas, even though pipelines are the safest method to transport huge quantities of fuels, situations that can lead to pipeline accidents are still occurring, including the pipeline explosion in Edison, New Jersey, in 1994 that left 100 people homeless, the butane pipeline explosion in Texas in 1999 that left 2 teenagers dead, the pipeline explosion near Carlshad, New Mexico, in 2000 that killed 12 people in an extended family, the pipeline explosion in Walnut Creek, California, that killed 5 workers, and the propane pipeline explosion in Mississippi in 2007 that killed a teenager and her grandmother;

Whereas the millions of miles of pipelines are still “out of sight”, and therefore “out of mind” for the majority of people, local governments, and businesses in the United States, a situation that can lead to pipeline ruptures and explosions that can provide a focal point for creating greater public awareness of all the advancements that can lead to greater pipeline safety; and

Whereas greater awareness of pipelines and pipeline safety can improve public safety;

Whereas a “National Pipeline Safety Day” can provide a focal point for creating greater pipeline safety awareness; and

Whereas June 10, 2009, is the 10th anniversary of the Bellingham, Washington, pipeline tragedy that was the impetus for many of the safety improvements described in this resolution and is an appropriate day to designate as “National Pipeline Safety Day”;

Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, The Senate—

(1) designates June 10, 2009, as “National Pipeline Safety Day”;

(2) encourages State and local governments to observe the day with appropriate activities that promote pipeline safety;

(3) encourages all pipeline safety stakeholders to use the day to create greater public awareness of all the advancements that can lead to greater pipeline safety; and

(4) encourages individuals throughout the United States to become more aware of pipeline safety initiatives in their communities in the United States and to encourage safe practices and damage prevention relating to gas and hazardous liquid pipelines.

Mrs. MURRAY. I thank my Senate colleagues.

I remind all of us as Americans that we have to be vigilant about what is around us, and when we are, we can make a difference in the lives of many people. The tragedy that occurred in Bellingham, Washington, on June 10, 1999, will remain with me always and with the families of Bellingham and everyone else. But if we do our work and we remain vigilant and we fund the Office of Pipeline Safety and we insist on strong provisions to protect families in the future, that is what is important about today.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the quorum call be rescinded.

HEALTH CARE

Mrs. MURRAY. Earlier this morning and, in fact, for the past several days, I have been interested to hear the comments from several of our Republican counterparts on the issue of health care. They are talking about Canada. Well, that is not an option, and I am only guessing, they would not want to talk about their health care. They are talking about Canada. But the discussion about what Canada does with its health care system has no bearing on what we are trying to do here in the Senate and Congress to reform the American health care system.

I guess, and I am only guessing, they want to talk about Canada because they do not want to talk about their real priority. Their real priority in coming out and inflating a discussion that should not even exist because it is not what we are talking about is simply because they want to protect the status quo. They want to protect the status quo in our health care system today. So they are out here talking about Canada, and that is not an option.

Let me tell you what we are doing because this is a very important discussion and a very important piece of legislation we are beginning our work on in the Senate. The status quo is not acceptable. This is an extraordinary moment of opportunity for real reform in health care. We here in the Senate are working very hard to come up with legislation that will protect for our families, for our businesses, and for our government.

Like all of my colleagues, I go home every weekend and I hear from individual families and people, from community leaders and businesses that the status quo is not acceptable. They will not tolerate a debate here in the Senate that goes for the status quo.

We here in the Senate are working on legislation that will protect people’s choice of doctors, will protect their choice of insurance plan. If you like what you have today, that will be what you have when this legislation is passed. And that is very important. We are working on legislation that will provide that affordable, high-quality health care is available for every American. That is not the case today. Our work really builds on the existing employer-based system we have. We strengthen it. It is fine, if you like what you have, you will be able to keep it. Let me say this again: If you like what you have, when our legislation is passed and signed by the President, you will be able to keep it. But if you do not like what you have today, you will have the opportunity to change it. We are going to provide new options for you so you have better health care.

Health care reform is not a luxury, it is an imperative today. Our health care system puts far too many Americans into crisis, and reforming it is an urgent necessity that demands our immediate attention. If we are going to restore the economy and secure our Nation’s fiscal future, now is the time to make health care more affordable for American families and business and government at every level. Doing nothing is not an option.

As we move forward on this debate, I remind all of us, do not be distracted by superfluous arguments that do not apply to the bills we are discussing.

The bill on which we are going to move forward in the Senate makes sure that if you like what you have today, you can keep it. If you do not like what you have, you can have health care or if you do not have any health care insurance at all, we are going to provide new options for you so you have better health care.

them side by side, and we are giving them every opportunity to do so, because health care has to work for all Americans.

So despite the rhetoric we heard on the floor this morning about Canada, which Canada is a great country—that is not what we are doing here. We are moving forward on health care reform that is drastically needed. The status quo is not an option. Doing nothing is not an option. Stopping us from moving forward is not an option. This is an issue we are having the courage to take up and move forward on because America needs us to do that.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BRIDENSTIN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, we are considering a bill that would allow the Food and Drug Administration to regulate one of the most deadly substances for sale in America, tobacco, a substance responsible for 400,000 deaths, more than HIV/AIDS, for example, each year, other than illegal drug use, alcohol use, motor vehicle accidents, suicides and murders combined, a substance responsible for $100 billion in health care costs every single year. I am glad we have finally reached this point. I hope we can pass this bill with a strong bipartisan vote. This moment has been coming for 20 years. There are Senators who deserve credit for where we are today in coming to this moment in history, because I am not an leader of the Senate. TED KENNEDY. Senator KENNEDY has been our leader on this issue. Unfortunately, his personal health struggle prevents him from joining us regularly, and he may not be here for the vote today, but we wouldn’t have reached this point without him. His dogged determination to reduce the number of tobacco-related deaths and illnesses in America has brought us to this moment in history. We will be voting with him in mind, as we should.

I think Senator Chris Dodd, who once again has stepped in, in an extraordinary way, as he did with credit card reform, passing a bill that had been decades in the making. Senator Dodd, at the last moment, has been called in by Senator KENNEDY and has done a spectacular job to move this bill forward. I am hoping we can pass it and get it enacted into law. It will save lives, but we can’t blame tobacco for all the faults in our health care system. It does have many parts that need to be addressed.

The United States spends about 17 percent of its GDP, gross domestic product, on health care. This amounts to $7,400 per person on health care each year. We spend more than twice as much as any other country on Earth when it comes to health care. As of 2006, health spending in the United States was higher than any other industrialized country. Health insurance premium increases consistently outpace inflation and the growth in family earnings. About 30 percent of America’s poor people spend more than 10 percent of their income on health care. Since the beginning of this decade, health insurance premiums have gone up by 78 percent. Everybody knows this. No matter who one works for—private business, public entity—we know the cost of health insurance keeps skyrocketing. Wages have only gone up 15 percent in that period. People and families cannot keep up. Overall, 46 million Americans have lost their insurance. Many lose their insurance for periods during the course of a year because of changing jobs and losing jobs.

With the amount of money our country dedicates to health, the facts don’t line up. Yesterday my colleague from Arizona, the Senate Republican whip, Jon Kyl, spoke about the problems with our health care system. I am glad he agreed there are problems to address. I need to clarify at least my view as to some of the things he said. Democrats in Congress are committed to working with President Obama to ensure every American has health care they can afford, health care they have, if that is their choice. Yesterday, Senator KYL said:

If you are an employee of a small business, for example, when your insurance contract runs out—and those contracts are usually 1 year or 2 years—the bottom line is, even though you may like it, at the end of the next year, when the contract runs out, you don't get to keep it.

That is not accurate. I have to say Senator KYL is saying something that doesn't reflect the position of the President, nor any Democrat I know in Congress. We believe—and we stand by this—if you like your current health insurance plan, you will be able to keep it, plain and simple, straightforward.

Senator KYL alluded to specific frustrations felt by small business owners across the country. Believe me, I understand that issue better than some. I have been working with Senator Blanche Lincoln of Arkansas, Senator Snowe of Maine, and Senator Klobuchar of Minnesota to come up with a plan so small business owners will be able to afford health insurance. I am happy to say that, at least at this moment, there is an indication the Finance Committee is considering our bill as part of their overall work product. As important as keeping your health plan, if you like it, if you are a small business owner, you find health premiums have increased 200 percent because you are a small business owner, you find health premiums have increased 200 percent because you are a small business owner, you find health premiums have increased 200 percent because you are a small business owner, or one sick baby born to a family of one of your employees, we want to make sure you are no longer subject to the unfair practice of raising premiums for that situation. In today’s system, at the end of the contract, small businesses are at the mercy of insurance companies that are in it for profit.

Earlier this week, I talked about a small business owner in Springfield, my hometown, who, in a span of just a few years, has seen his insurance premiums increase by 500 percent, though he has never turned in a claim. He has been forced to change his health care plan repeatedly. Because he is a small business owner, he has no bargaining power. What we are trying to do is ensure Americans are protected from this kind of price increase and that promised services are there when they need them.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle continue to raise tactics of fear and concern to steer us away from the real issues at hand. Yesterday the Senator from Arizona talked about “a new regime of regulatory insurance companies.” He expressed concern that Democrats in Congress are trying to control what health insurance companies are doing. If the Senator is talking about trying to take under control some of the practices of health insurance companies today, it is long overdue. People know what happens when their health insurance premiums go up dramatically, even though they haven't turned in a claim. Folks know when health insurance companies say they can exclude preexisting conditions and your health insurance policy is virtually worthless because the problems you face in life can’t then be covered. Folks know what it is to call that health insurance company and bargain or argue with some clerk over coverage. Changing those things, if that is what regulation is all about, is long overdue. It is time that customers, consumers, families, and businesses had a fighting chance when it came to health insurance companies.

We will hear plenty of speeches in the Congress in opposition to health care reform from a lot of people who are speaking for the health insurance companies. Why don’t they come up and say it. If they want to come to the floor and say: We like the current system; we don’t believe it needs to be changed; we don’t believe there is a crisis facing us in terms of cost; we believe that health care reform is not the best interests of patients and families, not the best interests of health insurance companies, nor the best interest of the Federal Government.

The bottom line is, we have to come up with health care reform which starts to reduce the costs of health care, making it more affordable, preserving quality, creating incentives for good health care outcomes, and focusing on the family and the patient, not on the government agency.

I am encouraged by my colleague from Arizona who raised the issue of insurance contracts, given his concern with small businesses and access to health care. I think he is right that attention should be given to what insurance companies are doing to these small businesses. Earlier this year, the GAO released a report showing how little competition there is and what a tough time small businesses have finding health insurance. The medium market share of the largest carrier of the small group market was about 47 percent, ranging from 21 percent in Arizona to about 96 percent in Alabama. This leaves American small businesses with few choices. We want to change that. Those who come to the floor of the Senate defending the health insurance companies and saying they want no change in the health care system have to defend the indefensible. How do they explain what small businesses are doing when they are trying to find affordable, quality health insurance?

If my colleague from Arizona wants to help small businesses, let him join us in the bipartisan bill Senators LYNCH, BLOCH and I are offering, the SHOP Act. By doing so, he will be working with us in committees to make a positive change.

I also wish to clarify one thing. Time and again you will hear the Republican side, and Senator KYL, have come to argue against government health care. They talk about it in the most general terms. What they are actually arguing against is a public option. What we hope to see come from all this debate about how health care reform is lots of opportunities for America's families and businesses to shop for health insurance from private insurance companies but to have, in some circumstances, the option of a government plan they can choose, if they wish—voluntary choice. Of all the criticism heard on the floor about government health insurance, I have yet to hear Senator McCONNELL or Senator KYL criticize Medicare. Why? Because 40 million Americans count on it. They know that was not for Medicare, they couldn't afford health insurance. People live a whole lifetime without health insurance protection. Finally, when they hit age 65, they have Medicare, and they thank the Lord for that day.

Medicare does a great job. Medicare is a proven success. For over 40 years, Medicare has provided quality care to America's seniors and disabled, and we have seen the longevity, the life expectancy of seniors increase every year and their independence increase because they don't end up with a mountain of health debt to pass on to their children or have to exhaust their savings. If the Senator from Kentucky and the Arizona senator want to come to the floor and argue against Medicare, I welcome the debate. I wish to be here when they say that government health insurance program has failed us. It has not. It has worked. To create a public option for those across the country as part of health care reform is long overdue. We need to build on and improve Medicare, and we can do that.

We also have to make sure our health care system is based on science and the outcomes, that we encourage preventive care, that we see those elements in our society where people can do things to make their own health care better.

Time and again you will hear the Republicans come to the floor as if they are part of the Travel Channel. They do not want to talk about America and the problems we face. They want to talk about England, New Zealand, Australia, Canada. They do not want to talk about the United States of America.

Well, it is time for them to come home and recognize that we can improve our health care system. Letting the average American keep the health insurance they have if they want to keep it, making sure we start to bring costs down, making quality health insurance available, giving families the peace of mind that I think they are looking for—this is not going to go through the roof and beyond their means. That is part of this debate.

Democrats are working to ensure Americans have real choice when it comes to their health care. My colleague from the other side of the aisle referred to the public option as government-run insurance. He believes that the insurance industry is already regulated enough and that a public option is unnecessary. I can tell the Senator that when I am receiving hundreds of letters and phone calls from constituents who cannot afford health insurance and who are seeing their premiums increase at alarming rates, I know our current health care insurance industry is not working for everybody.

In fact, according to a survey by the Kaiser Family Foundation, two-thirds of Americans support a public health insurance option similar to Medicare to compete with private health insurance plans.

Republicans want to preserve a broken system—one with escalating costs and no guarantee that policies won't be canceled.

Rather than help insurance companies, Democrats want to put American families first and help those struggling with high health care costs.

A public option for health insurance offers the American people the security that their health insurance is looking out for their best interests—just like Medicare does for our seniors.

My colleague is correct in that the Medicare Program needs some changes. I hope he will be supportive of the changes we will include in the health reform package.

Yes, we need to streamline the Medicare Program, restructure the delivery of care, and emphasize quality. We will do it and save costs. But we should build on what works, and despite what my colleague says, Medicare works.

According to a study by the Commonwealth Fund, 61 percent of elderly Medicare beneficiaries said they had received excellent or very good care, compared to only half of those with employer-sponsored healthcare.

This health care debate is Congress's opportunity to improve what we have and cut costs for the best care.

Comparative effectiveness research will help us do just that. Senator KYL claims that the government may misuse comparative effectiveness research as a tool to ration or deny health care. His use of the word “rationing” is only a veiled attempt to defend the status quo no matter how ineffective.

Comparative effectiveness research is a tool to expand Americans' access to high-quality health care, not restrict it. When we know which treatments are more effective, people will want the best and avoid what is ineffective. But we need this research in order to distinguish the best from the not so good.

Our health care system rates rationing and does not need to be based on ability to pay. If we reform our health system and identify which treatments are most effective, we can reduce that hidden rationing by making health care more affordable for everyone.

We need to learn what works and empower providers and patients to use that information. That is rationing—is a sensible component of the effort to build a high-quality, value-based, results-oriented health system.

We have serious problems in our health care system. This is America, and America needs a uniquely American solution to our Nation's health care problems. This is what Senate Democrats are committed to enacting. Mr. KYL, told some of his constituents, people in Canada and Britain whose experience with their country's health care system was not what we would define as quality health care.

I am sure we would like to think my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are sincerely concerned with the quality of health care around the globe, but I am more inclined to believe that this is their scare tactics trying to cloud the important issues once again.

In fact, Mr. KYL, you can get the specific instructions of Republican political consultant Frank Luntz. Here it is, on page 2, talking point No. 5 from a memo given to my Republican colleagues to guide their way of framing the health care debate. (5) The healthcare denial horror stories from Canada & Co. do resonate, but you have to humanize them. You'll notice we recommend the phrase “government takeover” rather than “government-run” or “government-controlled.” It's because too many politicians say “we don't want a government-run health care system like Canada or Great Britain” without those consequences. There is a better approach. “In countries with government run healthcare, politic1ans make your healthcare decisions. They decide if you'll get the procedure you need, or if you are disqualified because you are too old. We can't have that in America.

This debate is not about talking points or messaging or even other countries. Countries such as Canada and Britain have government-run healthcare and each has their unique set of good and bad aspects to the system. But, what we need to focus on is the people in our country. In our system today, insurance companies make the decisions and decide for people if they can get the procedure they need, or if they are disqualified because the treatment is too expensive. We can do better than that in America.

Patients and their doctors make the best decisions for a patient's health and wellbeing.

Every Senator in this Chamber can agree: Our health care reform efforts should be focused here at home. I hope my colleagues on the other side of the aisle will work with Democrats to ensure a strong health care package for the American people.

Mr. President, I see two of my colleagues are on the floor. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. SCHUMER. First, Mr. President, I wish to thank my colleague and friend from Illinois for his outstanding words on health care, and on the fact that we need some kind of check on the insurance companies. Our colleagues offer none. They just point to Canada and England, as he mentioned, which is a totally different system than we are focusing on.

Second, I wish to thank my colleague from Oregon, who is doing a great job in his first year in the Senate, for his generosity so I could speak for a brief moment and share with my colleagues some words about an act of bravery that occurred in my State yesterday.

TRIBUTE TO KEN MITCHELL

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, as the Senate right now debates some of the biggest national issues of our time, it is important to sometimes take a step back and look to some of the great acts that are happening every day in our towns, cities, and States. So I wish to call attention to an act of heroism—and that is the appropriate word; this man is a true hero—that took place in my home State of New York.

Yesterday morning, at the South Orangetown Middle School in Blauvelt, NY—a town in Rockland County about 45 minutes from New York City—a disgruntled man with a gun stormed into the office of the school superintendent. He grabbed the superintendent, Ken Mitchell, by the necktie and started throwing threatening demands. At least three gunshots were fired.

This is the kind of situation that would have scared most everyone. But, as we have learned now, Ken Mitchell is no ordinary person.

With his safety and the safety of his students on the line, he showed remarkable courage and wrestled the gunman down to the ground. He was able to grab the gun, kick it out of the way, and get the gunman pinned on the ground.

Usually when a SWAT team arrives at the scene of a crime, they are the ones to do the serious crime fighting. But this time, by the time they got there, they believed the school superintendent, who had already disarmed and pinned to the ground the dangerous criminal. To top it all off, Superintendent Mitchell even recognized one of the SWAT team members he had once coached as a kid on the local hockey team.

According to people on the scene, Mr. Mitchell was ready to get back to his office. As his brother-in-law said: “his tie wasn’t even messed up”—just another day on the job for another great New Yorker.

It should be no secret to anyone that this incident could very quickly have turned into something unspeakable. While the headlines today are ones of praise, they could have easily been ones of grief, And praise God they were not.

But as one of New York’s Senators, I want to rise publicly and congratulate Ken Mitchell for his act of bravery and heroism. As a parent myself, I know what it is like to send kids off to school in the morning and hope and pray they will come back home safely.

It is people such as Ken Mitchell who make it easy for parents to know their kids are in good hands when they wave goodbye on the schoolbus and send Johnny or Jill off to school.

Ken Mitchell is a reminder that every minute of every day Americans are engaging in personal, quiet acts of heroism. And I want to thank all of you for everything you do. And we should all be grateful. I am proud he is from my State. And I am proud that, if even for one moment, I can give him some of the recognition he deserves.

I am sure Superintendent Mitchell is back at work right now as if nothing happened. However, Superintendent Ken Mitchell, on behalf of all New Yorkers, all Americans, and parents everywhere, we say thank you. It is Americans like you that make us proud.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and once again thank my colleague from Oregon for yielding.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, in the coming weeks we are going to be talking up what is probably one of the most vexing policy challenges of the last 50 years: how to reform our health care system and provide affordable, accessible health care to every single American. The goal could not be more straightforward: to guarantee access for every American—and the stakes could not be higher.

Our small businesses are collapsing under the weight of health insurance premiums. Last month, Oregon’s largest small business insurer announced that the small business premium was going up 14.7 percent. That is on top of a 26-percent increase the previous year.

Large employers have the challenge as well. In a global economy, our workers and their families face a competitive disadvantage. A greater share of the price of each car in the United States goes to health care than goes to steel.

Mr. President, $1,500 of the cost of a car goes to health care, while across the border in Canada that price is zero. If we are going to compete in the world, we need a competitive, cost-effective health care system.

Of course, the biggest impact of our expensive, ineffective health care is most acutely felt around the kitchen table by our working families. Unemployment skyrocketing, virtually every family is reminded of how tenuous its connection is to health care—just one pink slip away from losing health care for their family.

Even those with insurance find health costs out of reach. Nearly half of the personal bankruptcies are by folks who have health insurance but who still could not manage all the health care costs because of when they became ill.

So this is what it boils down to: Working families in America, if they have health care, are concerned about the copays, they are concerned about being underinsured, and they are concerned about losing their insurance with the loss of a job. Those working families without health care are worried about getting sick and how they are going to get well if they are already sick.

None of this should not have to be the case. Health care is already devouring a large portion of our economy—18 percent of our gross domestic product—driving long-term Federal deficits and crowding out important State investments in education, in infrastructure, in social services, and pretty much everything else, and it is only projected to get worse as our population ages and health care inflation runs rampant year after year.

We simply, if we do not reform our health care system, our economy will not thrive. That is a stark choice. Our economy and health care are tied together.

I know none of this is news to the Presiding Officer or to any Mem bers of this esteemed Chamber. In fact, since President Truman, 60 years ago, called for health care for every working American as a national priority, we have been struggling to achieve that goal, and we have not yet gotten there. What we have done periodically trying to fix up a fragmented, expensive, unfair system. But the fear of change has always overtaken the sense of possibility.
Those stakes and that history make it all the more critical that we seize this moment to meet the challenge President Obama has laid out for us and that we deliver on health care reform. This is the year—2009 is the year. This is the year to deliver on the promise to give every American access to affordable health coverage, to ensure that our economy has the same potential to be the engine of prosperity and opportunity and employment in this century that it was in the last century.

To do that, we have to find ways to make our health care system more affordable. We need to spend our health care dollar in smarter ways so we can put money back in the pockets of Americans and make our businesses more competitive.

The good news is we have lots of examples of how to do this right now. Extensive research has documented that the regions of our country which spend the most per person on Medicare, that is, 50 percent more than the regions with the lowest expenditures on health care, do not end up with better health care. The lowest spending regions actually have the same or better health care outcomes after adjusting for health histories, ages, and occupations. Plus, the beneficiaries are more satisfied.

So if we could take the practices and change them in the high-cost regions to match the low-cost regions, we would save, in Medicare alone, hundreds of billions of dollars.

Our job in this health care reform effort is to change some of the rules of the road so they encourage and enable all providers to act more like the high performers, those providing and delivering high quality, lower cost health care.

That is why this legislation needs to get us to start spending our health care dollars more wisely, investing more in dollars more wisely, investing more in performers, those providing and delivering high quality, lower cost health care.

This marketplace will resemble something very close to the list of options Federal employees have. When you become a Federal employee, you have one list or this plan or this plan or this plan. Well, that is what we are going to do. We are going to provide a list of plans citizens can choose from, being part of a larger pool. We are going to provide a list of plans small businesses can choose from and benefit from, being a part of a larger pool of the insured.

This is a structure we are familiar with as Members of Congress. What works for Members of Congress, what works for workers, what works for working Americans. These plans give apples-to-apples comparisons so citizens can pick the plan that fits their family the best. It will ensure minimum standards so our workers are not ripped off, and the access to the marketplace will come with premium assistance so strapped consumers can get help affording the premiums to obtain health care.

Given the track record of inefficiencies and cherry-picking by private insurers, I think it is imperative that consumers have multiple choices, including a public option. Public option is simply a way to describe what we are already providing to our seniors throughout this Nation: A public, organized plan, a very efficient plan. Administrative costs of Medicare are around 2 percent, while the administrative costs for the individual applicants to the health care system for our small businesses is 30 percent. Why not let our individuals, why not let our small businesses benefit from a 30-percent improvement in the use of the health care dollar? This public option would compete on a level playing field with private plans, it would further expand choices for consumers, it would be a tool for keeping costs low, and it should be a part of any package we put forward.

I would think all of us in this room, hearing from our constituents in every corner of our States, would understand this whole conversation is about addressing one of the highest stress factors for working families in every part of this Nation, but there are opponents of this reform. My colleagues across the aisle hired a consultant, Frank Luntz, to prepare a plan to torpedo health care. This plan came out in April. This 20-page document is about how to kill any plan that is put forward. This goes on to say it doesn’t matter what the specifics of the plan are, adopt language that attacks it and present it as the opposite of what it is.

I am outraged when I hear stories from Oregonians about being turned away because of their preexisting conditions or their potential propensity for chronic disease management, building a research base about what works and what financial incentives are necessary to utilize those practices, rewarding care delivery built around coordination and efficiency rather than fragmentation and volume. We know these things work, and we need to make them the norm, not the exception.

We cannot stop the bleeding in our health care system costs without also doing something about the concentrated and bloated health insurance marketplace. The first thing we need to do is to end the insurance company practices that penalize you if you are old or you are sick or you have ever been sick.

I am outraged when I hear stories from Oregonians about being turned away because of their preexisting conditions or their potential propensity toward certain diseases. The folks who need health care the most are being turned away the most, and that is not a health care system.

We have 50 million Americans without health care. That is what this conversation is about: taking that 18 percent of our gross domestic product we spend currently and finding a way to provide good quality coverage to every single American—not leaving out 50 million Americans.

This document about how to kill health care says: Time is on our side. If we can slow the process down, we can kill it. Well, all windows of opportunity are open for a certain period of time and then they close, so I suppose that is smart advice if you want to kill health care, but if you want to do something for the 50 million Americans without health care, then we need to move forward quickly with health care reform.

This Republican Document about how to kill health care says: Say the plan is centered around politicians. Say it is about bureaucrats. Say it is about Washington, DC.

Well, I am not sure what there is about providing health care options to 50 million working Americans who struggle every day to address the cost of health care, and often end up in personal bankruptcy, and forgo all kinds of other opportunities, so their children can go to the doctor. This has nothing to do with bureaucrats. That has nothing to do with Washington. That has everything to do with family values and strengthening the foundation of our families.

This document is about how to kill health care says: Bring in denial and horror stories from Canada or other parts of the world to suggest people they will lose their relationship with their doctor; that somehow they will be jerked out of the arrangement they have found to be so satisfactory. Scare them. Scare the citizens of the United States.

Well, I can tell my colleagues that what is scaring the citizens of the United States is they can’t afford their health care, and they want us to do something about it. Bringing up false horror stories that have no bearing on the plan before us to scare our citizens and make them worry even more is not responsible. What is responsible is to do something about a broken health care system.
This document has lots more about how to kill health care. It says: Take this and say this will destroy the personalized doctor-patient relationship. Take this and say this will create waste, fraud and abuse, and so on and so forth; every poll-tested set of words designed to decrease support and scare people into forgoing this once-in-a-decade opportunity or pass this once-in-a-generation opportunity we have to change the health care system.

One may think I am raising this document before my colleagues—this plan for how to kill health care—and that maybe it doesn’t have any bearing on the real debate, but it absolutely does. These talking points are being echoed in this very Chamber—in this very Chamber—in order to kill health care.

Let’s see. Here we go: Frank Luntz’s memo—that is this memo on how to kill health care that came out in April—it says: Talking point No. 5: Health care denial horror stories from Canada and countries do resonate, but you have to humanize them. You will notice we recommend the phrase “government takeover” rather than “government-run” or “government-controlled.” Why? Because government run sounds even scarier. So what do we hear on the floor of this Chamber from our minority leader recently? I quote: “Americans are concerned about a government takeover of health care, and for good reason.” It goes on.

So recognize that is a point that is coming from a document about how to kill health care, not a responsible debate about the plan we have in front of us.

Let’s take a look at another example in Frank Luntz’s memo. His memo, talking points Nos. 3 and 4: Time is a government health care killer. Nothing else turns people against a government takeover of health care than the expectation that this plan will result in delayed and denied treatment. The arguments against the plan—now, note that this is about a plan that wasn’t written; it is about any plan put forward. The arguments against this plan must be pushed into a Washington-run government plan.

So what do we hear on the floor of this Chamber from our minority leader recently? I quote: “Americans are concerned about a government takeover of health care, and for good reason.” It goes on.

We have a unique opportunity. We have an opportunity because small businesses want help with those 26-percent increases and those 14.7-percent increases in premiums they are having to pay and they are not able to continue paying them. Large businesses are asking for help to become cost competitive so we can restore manufacturing in our Nation and put people to work and rebuild the middle class and have successful international corporations operating out of America. Family Administrations aretable and asking for help today. They know how they have struggled. They know if they have health care they might lose it next week when they lose their job. They know if they have health care, they might not be able to make the copays if they have something serious happen with their child. They know if they don’t have health care, they are going to have to forgo virtually everything else or perhaps forgo the treatment itself because they won’t be able to afford to make payments to the doctor or to the hospital.

This is the moment when families and small businesses and large businesses are coming together to paint a new vision to improve the quality of life and to strengthen the foundation of our families. Let us seize this moment. I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

EXTENSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the period for morning business be extended until 11:30 a.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nebraska is recognized.

Mr. JOHANNES. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. JOHANNES pertaining to the introduction of S. 1223 are printed in today’s RECORD under “Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

Mr. JOHANNES. Madam President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. GILLIBRAND). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FAMILY SMOKING PREVENTION AND TOBACCO CONTROL ACT

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, after the close of morning business, we will return to the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act. This is a piece of legislation which has been in the making for two decades or more which would finally say that tobacco is going to be regulated, as it should have been a long time ago.

For the longest time, the tobacco lobbyists were the most powerful lobby on Capitol Hill, and they managed to create an exemption in virtually every law so that no Federal agency could take a look at them and regulate them and basically know what we know about every product and service offered in America. They said: Well, the Food and Drug Administration didn’t have any authority. The tobacco lobby argued: We are not really food and we are not really a drug. So they managed to wiggle their way through the Federal statute book and at the end of the day have virtually no regulation or oversight. Unfortunately, while they have been doing that, 400,000 Americans have been dying every year of tobacco-related disease. It is the No. 1 preventable cause of death in America today. It is a product which is sold legally and a product which kills with lethality. That is a fact.

We know from experience that the tobacco industry has a tough assignment. What kind of business can survive that loses 400,000 of its customers every year, customers who die because of addiction to tobacco-related products? They needed a marketing campaign. The problem was, if you tried to market tobacco products to adults, most of them had the good sense to say: That is not what I want to do; I am going to stay away from tobacco. So they had to change their marketing strategy. If you couldn’t market to adults, you know the kids may be vulnerable, and that is where they went, with a vengeance, with the idea of addicting children to tobacco early in life, because, of course, tobacco products, with nicotine, are addictive. To some, it is a very strong addiction. They fight for a lifetime, with patches and a doctor’s care and hypnosis and anything they can think of. Some people can shake it and move away from it; others spend a lifetime addicted. So the tobacco companies went after the kids. They knew if they could get their products in the hands of children, and children would try them, they would become the next generation of smokers and ultimately a future generation of victims of tobacco. So this deadly cycle began by the tobacco companies, and the Federal Government took a hands-off attitude.

Back in the 1960s, we created a little warning label on tobacco cigarettes. You see it on billboards. It is so small, people don’t notice it. It has become so commonplace, nobody even registers with the message it delivers.

For the longest time, we have argued that tobacco should be regulated, that the products that are sold in America should have an agency with oversight kept on top of them. The tobacco companies fought it off year after year.

Finally, with this new President, with this new Congress, we have reached the moment where we have a chance to pass this important legislation. This is a bill that will protect children and will protect America, and it will reduce tobacco use. The House passed their version last month with a wide majority, and now it is time for the Senate to act. Every day that we don’t act, 3,500 American kids—children—will light up for the first time. That is enough to fill 70 schoolbuses of kids who will try cigarettes every single day for the first time. A thousand of those 3,500 will then become regular smokers and 2,000 will die of tobacco-related disease. It is responsible for 9 in 10 lung cancer deaths, one-third of all cancer deaths, and one in five deaths from cardiovascular disease. Approximately half of all continuing smokers will die prematurely as a result of the disease. Sadly, in Illinois, 317,000 kids alive today will eventually die from the smoking addiction which they started as kids.

Here is what the bill does. We put teeth in the law to restrict the marketing and sale of tobacco products to kids. We require tobacco companies to disclose the ingredients on their products. We require the Food and Drug Administration to evaluate any health claims for scientific accuracy and public health impact. We give the FDA the power to require companies to make changes to tobacco products to protect public health. And we require larger, stronger warning health notices on tobacco products. These are commonsense reforms that will start to reduce the products that have been taken on with kids in mind. It is a bipartisan bill. It has been so close to giving the FDA the authority it needs to regulate tobacco. I urge my colleagues to resist any amendments that will weaken this bill or add provisions that might stop it from becoming law. We have to work toward passage this week—we are not going to quit cold turkey tomorrow. A black market would emerge, and then the next thing you know the underground economy would be sus-

FAMILY SMOKING PREVENTION AND TOBACCO CONTROL ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of H.R. 1256, which the clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 1256) to protect the public health by providing for the Food and Drug Administration with certain authority to regulate tobacco products, and to amend title 5, United States Code, to make certain modifications in the Thrift Savings Plan, the Civil Service Retirement System, and the Federal Employees’ Retirement System, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Dodd amendment No. 1247, in the nature of a substitute.

Schumer (for Lieberman) amendment No. 1256 (to amendment No. 1247), to modify provisions relating to Federal employees’ retirement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, as I understand it, we are going to have a vote at 12:30. I ask unanimous consent the time between now and 12:30 be equally divided between the minority and majority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
(At the request of Mr. Dodd, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.)

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, later today, the Senate will vote to approve legislation that should have been enacted years ago—authority for the FDA to regulate tobacco products, the most lethal of all consumer products.

It has been a long and arduous path with many political obstacles. Fortunately, the legislative journey is nearing an end. The House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed a nearly identical bill earlier this spring. In May, the Senate HELP Committee approved the FDA Tobacco bill with the support of a strong bipartisan majority. On Monday, 61 Senators voted to invoke cloture on the committee-passed bill. President Obama is anxiously waiting to sign it into law. Passage of the legislation is much more than a victory for those of us who have long championed this cause or for any act for the millions of children who will be spared a lifetime of addiction and premature death.

The need to regulate tobacco products can no longer be ignored. Used as an addictive drug by the manufacturing and market them, cigarettes will kill one out of every three smokers. Yet the Federal agency most responsible for protecting the public health is currently powerless to deal with the enormous risks of tobacco use. Public health experts overwhelmingly believe that passage of H.R. 1256 is the most important action Congress can take to protect children from this deadly addiction. Without this strong congressional action, smoking will continue at its current rate, and more than 6 million of today’s children will ultimately die from tobacco-induced disease.

Smoking is the number one preventable cause of death in America. Nationally, cigarettes kill well over 400,000 people each year. That is more lives lost than from automobile accidents, alcohol abuse, illegal drugs, AIDS, murder, and suicide combined.

The American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, the American Lung Association, the American Medical Association, the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids and eighty-six other national public health organizations speak with one voice on this issue: They are all supporting H.R. 1256 because they know it will give FDA the tools it needs to reduce youth smoking and help addicted smokers quit.

A landmark report by the Institute of Medicine, released 2 years ago, strongly urged Congress to “confer upon the FDA broad regulatory authority over the manufacture, distribution, marketing and use of tobacco products.”

Opponents of this legislation argue that FDA should not be regulating such a dangerous product. I could not disagree more. It is precisely because tobacco products are so deadly that we must empower America’s premier public health protector—the FDA—to combat tobacco use. For decades the Federal Government has stayed on the sidelines and done next to nothing to deal with this enormous health problem. The tobacco industry has been allowed to mislead consumers, to make false health claims, to conceal the lethal contents of their products, to make their products even more addictive, and of worst to all—to deliberately attract children. The alternative to FDA regulation is more of the same. Allowing this abusive conduct by the tobacco industry to go unchecked would be terribly wrong.

Under this legislation, FDA will for the first time have the needed power and resources to take on this challenge. The cost will be funded entirely by a new user fee paid by the tobacco companies in proportion to their market share. Not a single dollar will be diverted from FDA’s existing responsibilities.

Giving FDA authority over tobacco products will not make the tragic toll of tobacco use disappear overnight. More than 40 million people are hooked on this highly addictive product and many of them have been unable to quit despite repeated attempts. However, FDA action can play a major role in breaking the gruesome cycle that seduces millions of teenagers into a lifetime of addiction and premature death.

What can FDA regulation accomplish?

• It can reduce youth smoking by preventing tobacco advertising which targets children. It can help prevent the sale of tobacco products to minors. It can stop the tobacco industry from continuing to mislead the public about the dangers of smoking. It can help smokers overcome their addiction. It can make tobacco products less toxic and encourage the development of genuinely less harmful alternative products.

• Regulating the conduct of the tobacco companies is as necessary today as it has been in years past. The facts presented in the Federal Government’s landmark lawsuit against the tobacco industry conclusively demonstrate that the misconduct is substantial and ongoing. The decision of the Court states: “The evidence in this case clearly establishes that Defendants have not ceased engaging in unlawful activity...” Defendants continue to engage in deceptive practices that are materially indistinguishable from their previous actions, activity that continues to this day.” Only strong FDA regulation can force the necessary change in their corporate behavior.

The legislation we passed last week with tobacco company marketing practices that target children and mislead the public. The Food and Drug Administration needs broad authority to regulate the sale, distribution, and advertising of cigarettes and smokeless tobacco.

The tobacco industry currently spends over thirteen billion dollars each year to promote its products. This means that many of these ads are designed to tempt children to start smoking, before they are mature enough to appreciate the enormity of the health risk. Nearly all smokers have their first cigarette every day, and 1,000 of them become daily smokers. The tobacco industry knows that nearly 90 percent of smokers begin as children and are addicted by the time they reach adulthood.

Documents obtained from tobacco companies prove, in the companies’ own words, the magnitude of the industry’s efforts to trap children into dependency on their deadly product. Studies by the Institute of Medicine and the Centers for Disease Control show the substantial role of industry advertising in developing an addiction by young people to use tobacco products.

If we are serious about reducing youth smoking, FDA must have the power to prevent industry advertising designed to appeal to children wherever they are seen by those children.

This legislation will give FDA the authority to stop tobacco advertising that glamorizes smoking to kids. It grants FDA full authority to regulate tobacco advertising “consistent with and to the fullest extent permitted by the First Amendment.”

FDA authority must also extend to the sale of tobacco products. Nearly every State makes it illegal to sell cigarettes to children under 18, but surveys show that many of those laws are rarely enforced and frequently violated. FDA must have the power to limit the sale of cigarettes to face-to-face transactions in which the age of the purchaser can be verified by identification. This means no self-service displays and vending machine sales. There must also be serious enforcement efforts with real penalties for those caught selling tobacco products to children. This is the only way to ensure that children under 18 are not able to buy cigarettes.

The FDA conducted the longest rulemaking proceeding in its history, studying which regulations would most effectively reduce the number of children who smoke. Seven hundred thousand public comments were received in the course of that rulemaking. At the conclusion of its proceeding, the Agency promulgated rules on the manner in which cigarettes are advertised and sold. Due to litigation, most of those regulations were never implemented. If we are serious about curbing youth smoking as much as possible, as soon as possible; it makes no sense to require FDA to reinvent the wheel by conducting a new multiyear rulemaking process on these issues. This legislation will give the youth access and advertising restrictions already developed by FDA the force of

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE  S6407
The nicotine in cigarettes is highly addictive. Medical experts say that it is as addictive as heroin or cocaine. Yet for decades, tobacco companies vehemently denied the addictiveness of their products. No one can forget the parade of tobacco executives who testified before Congress that smoking cigarettes is not addictive. Overwhelming evidence in industry documents obtained through the discovery process proves that the companies not only knew of this addictiveness, but actually relied on it as the basis for their marketing strategy. As we now know, cigarette manufacturers chemically manipulated the nicotine in their products to make it even more addictive.

An analysis by the Harvard School of Public Health demonstrates that cigarette manufacturers are still manipulating nicotine levels. Between 1998 and 2005, they significantly increased the nicotine yield from major brand-name cigarettes. The average increase in nicotine yield over the period was 11 percent.

The tobacco industry has a long and dis-honorable history of providing misleading information about the health consequences of smoking. Those companies have repeatedly sought to characterize their products as far less hazardous than they are. They made minor innovations in product design seem far more significant for the health of the user than they actually were. It is essential that FDA have clear and unambiguous authority to prevent such misrepresentations in the future. The largest disinformation campaign in the history of the corporate world.

Given the addictiveness of tobacco products, it is essential that the FDA regulate them for the protection of the public. Over 40 million Americans are currently addicted to cigarettes. No responsible public health official believes that cigarettes should be banned. A ban would leave 40 million people without a way to satisfy their drug dependency. FDA should be able to take the necessary steps to help addicted smokers overcome their addiction, and to make products less toxic for smokers who are unable or unwilling to stop. To do so, FDA must have the authority to reduce or remove hazardous and addictive ingredients from cigarettes, to the extent that it is scientifically feasible. The inherent risk in smoking should not be unnecessarily compounded.

Recent statements by several tobacco companies make clear that they have a plan to develop what they characterize as “reduced risk” cigarettes. Some are already on the market making unsubstantiated claims. This legislation will require manufacturers to submit such “reduction” products to the FDA for analysis before they can be marketed.

No health-related claims will be permitted until they have been verified to the FDA’s satisfaction. These safeguards are essential to prevent deceptive industry marketing campaigns, which could lull the public into a false sense of health safety. Only by preventing bogus claims will there be a real financial incentive for companies to develop new technologies that can lead to genuinely and verifiably safer products.

This legislation will vest FDA not only with the responsibility for regulating tobacco products, but with full authority to do the job effectively. It is long overdue.

Voting for this legislation today is the right thing to do for America’s children. They are depending on us. By passing this legislation, we can help them live longer, healthier lives. I know that the Senate will not let them down.

Mr. DODD. There are over 1,000 organizations that support H.R. 1256. I ask unanimous consent that some of these letters of support be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the matter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MARCH 26, 2009.

Hon. Henry WAXMAN
Chairman, Committee on Energy and Commerce, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

Dear CONGRESSMAN WAXMAN: We are writing to endorse the “Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act,” which you introduced on March 3, 2009. If enacted, this legislation will make a significant contribution in our national campaign to reduce the harm caused by tobacco and to protect our children and public health.

As you are aware, in the next 365 days, more than 400,000 Americans will die prematurely from tobacco use and more than 490,000 children, 12 to 17 years old, will become regular smokers. This is just a small part of the next generation of grim statistics. This year, under your leadership, the United States Congress has an opportunity to bring about fundamental change by enacting your legislation to regulate tobacco products and their marketing.

The “Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act” is the kind of tobacco regulation that makes sense and that is long overdue. It would prevent the tobacco companies from marketing to children. It would also provide rules for all products, including menthol and smokeless tobacco products. It would prohibit terms like “light” and “low tar” which have been used to mislead smokers into thinking that those tobacco products are less harmful. And it would force the tobacco companies to scientifically prove any claims about “reduced risk” products.

Some have questioned whether FDA can take on this important new task and whether it will have sufficient authority to do it. Having thoroughly studied this issue, we believe that the bill gives the FDA the resources it needs to do the job properly; and, without question, the FDA is the right agency to implement this new regulation because it has a public health mandate and the necessary scientific and regulatory experience.

The Congress can change the course of this public health crisis by enacting your legislation to provide FDA with authority over tobacco products. This is a strong bill and would significantly advance the public health.

Sincerely,

DONNA E. SHALALA,
Former Secretary of Health and Human Services.

DAVID KESSLER,
Former Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration.

DAVID SATCHER,
Former Surgeon General.

TOMMY G. THOMPSON,

tion.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY,
CANCER ACTION NETWORK,
WashingtoN, DC, May 18, 2009.

Hon. Edward M. Kennedy,
Chairman, Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, U.S. Senate, Washgton, DC.

Dear Chairman Kennedy: On behalf of the volunteers and supporters of the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network (ACS CAN), the advocacy affiliate organization of the American Cancer Society, we thank you for your leadership on The Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, S. 982.

We fully support this legislation to give the U.S. Food and Drug Administration needed authority to regulate the production, marketing and sale of tobacco products.

Every year, more than 400,000 Americans die from causes related to the use of tobacco products. The direct health care cost from tobacco use is $96 billion. Every day 3,500 kids smoke their first cigarette and each day 1,000 young people become regular smokers, one-third of whom will die prematurely as a result.

More than 1.4 million Americans will be diagnosed with cancer this year and more than 550,000 will lose their battle with the disease. There will be 159,000 lung cancer deaths this year. Smoking is responsible for 87 percent of the deaths from lung cancer.

Despite the overwhelming evidence of harm to public health and costs to the health care system, tobacco products remain virtually unregulated. In the absence of government intervention, the tobacco industry continues to market its deadly products to children, deceiving the general public about the harm they cause, and fail to take any meaningful action to make their products less harmful or less addictive.
Senator EDWARD M. KENNEDY, Chairman, Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN KENNEDY: The American Lung Association commends the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions for considering S. 982, the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act. Your legislation would finally give the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) the authority to regulate tobacco products.

This legislation would provide the FDA with the authority to stop the tobacco companies from advertising to children, making misleading claims about the health effects of tobacco products, and from manipulating their products to make them increasingly more addictive. FDA authority over manufactured tobacco products will finally allow our nation to begin to take significant steps to reduce the tobacco-caused death toll that claims more than 392,000 American lives each year and results in $132 billion annually in health care costs and lost productivity.

The American Lung Association is grateful to you for your leadership and we look forward to working with you to ensure its passage by the Senate in June.

Sincerely,

CHARLES D. CONNOR, President and CEO.

Chicago, IL, May 11, 2009.

Hon. EDWARD M. KENNEDY, Chairman, Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee, U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KENNEDY: On behalf of the physician and medical student members of the American Medical Association (AMA), I am writing to express our strong support for S. 982, the Tobacco Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, and to urge the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions (HELP) Committee to approve S. 982 during its mark up of the bill. This legislation would give the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) the authority to regulate the manufacture, sale, distribution, and marketing of tobacco products. The AMA firmly believes that Congress must act this year to protect the public’s health by passing the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act.

Cigarette smoking remains the leading preventable cause of death and disease in the United States. Each year, tobacco use kills more than 480,000 Americans and its associated health care costs more than $96 billion each year in health care expenditures, and an additional $97 billion per year in lost productivity. Furthermore, 3,000 kids between the ages of 12 and 17 years initiate cigarette smoking every day. In spite of this, tobacco products remain virtually unregulated. For decades, the tobacco companies have marketed deadly products to our children, deceived consumers about the harm their products cause, and failed to take any meaningful action to make their products less harmful or less addictive. Your bill would finally end the special protection enjoyed by the tobacco industry and protect our children and the nation’s health instead.

This legislation meets the high standard established by the public health community for FDA tobacco regulation. Importantly, the bill would give the FDA the authority to effectively regulate the manufacturing, marketing, labeling, distribution and sale of tobacco products, including the authority to:

Restrict advertising and marketing that promote tobacco products to children and adolescents

Prohibit unsubstantiated health claims by the tobacco industry

Require changes in tobacco products, such as modified nicotine products and excise taxes, to make them less addictive and less harmful

These provisions are broadly supported by the public health community. We assure you that ACS CAN will work vigorously to protect the approach you have taken and to see it enacted into law this year.

Thank you again for your commitment to this critically important and long overdue legislation.

Sincerely,

DANIEL E. SMITH, President.

Hon. EDWARD M. KENNEDY, Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, Dirksen Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN KENNEDY: On behalf of the American Public Health Association (APHA), the oldest and most diverse organization of public health professionals and advocates in the world dedicated to promoting and protecting the public and our communities, I write in strong support of S. 982, the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, legislation that would give the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) the authority to regulate tobacco products. In April, the House of Representatives passed this legislation by an overwhelming majority and we are hopeful the Senate will move quickly to pass the bill.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), tobacco use is responsible for about 480,000 deaths each year in the United States. In addition to this staggering statistic, state costs more than $96 billion each year in health care expenditures, and an additional $97 billion per year in lost productivity. Furthermore, 3,000 kids between the ages of 12 and 17 years initiate cigarette smoking every day. In spite of this, tobacco products remain virtually unregulated. For decades, the tobacco companies have marketed deadly products to our children, deceived consumers about the harm their products cause, and failed to take any meaningful action to make their products less harmful or less addictive. Your bill would finally end the special protection enjoyed by the tobacco industry and protect our children and the nation’s health instead.

This legislation meets the high standard established by the public health community for FDA tobacco regulation. Importantly, the bill would give the FDA the authority to effectively regulate the manufacturing, marketing, labeling, distribution and sale of tobacco products, including the authority to:

Require larger and more informative warnings on tobacco products that discourage current tobacco users from quitting or encourage new users to start

Require the disclosure of tobacco product content and tobacco industry research about the health effects of their products

Require larger and more informative health warnings on tobacco product packaging

Study and address issues associated with menthol tobacco products

We thank you for your continued leadership on this and other important public health issues. We look forward to working with you to ensure that the legislation is passed by the Senate and signed by the president this year.

Sincerely,

MATTHEW L. MYERS, Executive Director.

Hon. EDWARD M. KENNEDY, Chairman, Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN KENNEDY: We are very pleased that the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions will next week undertake consideration of S. 982, the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, your legislation to give the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) authority over tobacco products. On April 2nd, the House passed this legislation with a solid bipartisan vote of 296-112. We look forward to its passage by the Senate in the near future.

Tobacco use remains the leading cause of preventable death in the U.S., killing more than 400,000 Americans each year and costing our health care system an estimated $366 billion annually. More than 1,000 kids become regular, daily smokers each day—and one-third of them will ultimately die from their addiction. Amazingly, tobacco products are virtually unregulated by the federal government. Tobacco products are exempt from basic health regulations that apply to other consumer products such as drugs, medical devices, and foods. This special protection allows tobacco companies to market their deadly and addictive products to children, mislead consumers about the dangers of these products, and manipulate ingredients in order to make them more addictive and attractive to children.

There are more than 1,000 national, state and local organizations that support this legislation (the full list of supporting organizations can be seen at: http://www.consumerfreekids.org/reports/fdaorganizations.pdf) and both the President’s Cancer Panel and the Institute of Medicine support Congress giving the FDA the authority to regulate the manufacture and marketing of tobacco products.

We applaud your leadership on this important public health legislation and look forward to working with you to ensure its passage by the full Senate.

Sincerely,

MATTHEW L. MYERS, President.

American Academy of Pediatrics, Elk Grove Village, IL, April 29, 2009.

Hon. EDWARD M. KENNEDY, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR KENNEDY: On behalf of the Tobacco-free Kids and other pediatric medical sub-specialists and pediatric surgical specialists of the American Academy of Pediatrics...
(AAP), I would like to express our support for the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act (H.R. 1256), legislation to protect child health by providing the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) with the authority to regulate tobacco products. The bill made historic progress this year, passing in the House early in the session by an overwhelming bipartisan majority of 292–112. We urge the Senate to take up and approve FDA tobacco legislation as soon as possible and oppose the alternative offered by Senators Burr and Hagan.

It is estimated that more than 3 million US adolescents are cigarette smokers and more than 1 million under the age of 18 start smoking each day. If current tobacco use patterns persist, an estimated 6.4 million children will die prematurely from a smoking-related disease and 3,000 to 4,000 children start smoking each day. That brought us to the position of not having a vote today. That is an example of what happened when we couldn’t get unanimous consent to go forward. Nonetheless, I hope the substitute will be adopted, cloture will be invoked, and we can schedule a vote for final passage as I believe we will, in the next day.

This is important. A lot of work has been done on this bill. As Senator Durbin, our friend from Illinois, pointed out, this is work that has gone on for a very long period and not just a debate in the Senate. It is a bipartisan bill. We spent 2 days on markup, considering amendments, adopting some, accepting some. That brought us to the position we are in today with this legislation. As I have said over and over again, over the last number of weeks as we have considered this bill, this is an unprecedented action we will be taking, an historic moment in many ways. For the first time ever in the history of our country, the 100-year-old regulatory agency, the Food and Drug Administration, which regulates all the food and products we ingest and consume as Americans, will now for the first time be allowed to regulate tobacco products.

The FDA, the Food and Drug Administration, as I pointed out, not only regulates the food we humans consume but also pets—cat food, dog food, bird feed, hamsters—all those products have to be approved by the FDA. One product we have not been able to legislate because of opposition from the tobacco industry is tobacco products. We are about to change that. My hope is with a vote today and tomorrow, and then we will have said yes and over again, the President will be in a position to sign the legislation that will, first, give the Food and Drug Administration the opportunity to regulate these products and, as important, to determine and set guidelines and regulations dealing with the sale and marketing to young people.

It has been said, I know, over and over again, maybe not often enough, 3,000 to 4,000 children begin smoking every day in America. Every day we delay the FDA can take on this responsibility and begin controlling the marketing and sale of these products, we run the risk of more and more children starting the habit. We know that of that 3,000 to 4,000 who start smoking every day, 1,000 of them end up becoming addicted to the products. One in five high school students in my State of Connecticut today smoke. I suspect those numbers are probably fairly uniform across the country. Of that number I have mentioned, the thousand who become addicted, about one-third that number will die from smoking-related illnesses. Four hundred thousand people every year lose their lives as a result of tobacco-related diseases. That is why we want to offer some of these amendments, we didn’t have a chance to consider some of them, but I want them to know it was not an objection on this side to that at all. There were objections to the Lieberman amendment going forward that created this problem. But, nonetheless, the work that has been done on this bill I think is deserving of our support. It is worthy of our unanimity.

As I said over and over again, if you were to collect all of the adult smokers in the country—and 90 percent of adult smokers began as children, by the way—but if you asked all of them their opinion on whether we ought to do something about marketing these products to children, I would be willing to venture a guess that 98 percent of adult smokers, if they could speak with one voice today, would tell us to pass this bill. The last thing a parent who smokes wants is their children to start smoking. They know the hazards, they know the damage, they know the heartache that comes with the illnesses associated with these products.

On behalf of all parents in the country, smokers and nonsmokers, let us adopt this legislation and take a major step in dealing with the dreaded health problems associated with tobacco products.

I see my colleague from Wyoming so let me stop here and give him the remainder of the time he needs to comment on this. I thank him and his staff who have been working on this. I am a late arrival and I am working with Senator Kennedy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I am pleased the Senate is taking up the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act which will save hundreds of thousands of lives and more than $155 billion in health care costs every year. The Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act section 907 prohibits the use in cigarettes of flavors, herbs, spices, such as strawberry grape, orange, clove and cinnamon, when used as a ‘‘characterizing flavor’’ of the tobacco product or smoke. I applaud you along with Senator Kennedy for prohibiting these products.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. As you know, most new smokers start as children. Every day, approximately 3,000 kids will try a cigarette for the first time, and another 1,000 will become new, regular daily smokers. We should do everything possible to protect our children from the dangers of smoking.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. However, it is my understanding that the language in section 907 is not meant to prohibit the use of any specific ingredient that does not produce a ‘‘characterizing flavor’’ in a cigarette or its smoke; is that correct?

Mr. DOUG. The Senator from New Jersey is correct. While the term ‘‘characterizing flavor’’ is undefined in the legislation, it is intended to capture those additives that produce a distinguishing flavor, taste, or aroma imparted by the product. Nothing in this section is intended to expressly prohibit the use of any specific ingredient that does not fall into this category.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I thank the Senator for this clarification.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I am pleased the Senate is taking up the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Act which will save hundreds of thousands of lives and more than $155 billion in health care costs every year. Currently, there are more than 44 million smokers, of which 90 percent began smoking before the age of 18. Tobacco is a product that is responsible for 440,000 deaths each year. The Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act will go a long way in regulating tobacco products, and will make it less likely that a child will establish a dependence on tobacco products. In the United States alone, every day approximately 3,000 minors take up smoking. Simply reducing the use of tobacco by these minors, I would be willing to offer to employees under the older Civil Service Retirement System. This bipartisan amendment had the potential to affect the lives of hundreds of products, in order to ensure that consumers are better informed of the possible risks, addictive qualities, and adverse health effects of these products. In addition, this legislation will create more transparency and, as in many other consumable goods, the manufactures will be required to list all ingredients included in their tobacco products. This bill also gives the FDA the authority to set quality criteria for tobacco products, prohibit cigarettes containing any flavor other than tobacco or menthol, as well as require the FDA approval for all labels before putting on the market.

In 2005, cigarette manufactures spent more than $13 billion to attract new users, retain current users, and increase consumption. Children especially are exposed to tobacco advertising, seeing tobacco use glorified in movies, and advertisements and sponsorships of sporting events. This advertising misleads users, children and adults, to believe products are healthy, for example, ‘‘light’’ or ‘‘low-tar’’ designations. Our Nation stands to benefit greatly from this legislation, both in quality of life and health. The diseases and deaths caused by smoking are preventable, and every person has a stake in the issue, whether they smoke or not.

I was disappointed in 1998 when the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided in Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation v. Food and Drug Administration, that the FDA did not have the authority under existing law to regulate a addictive drug, and I am pleased the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act will take steps to address this lack of regulation. This bill has the support of over 1,000 organizations and deserves our support.

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, I regret that the Senate was unable to reach an agreement with regard to consideration of the amendment which Senators Lieberman, Akaka, Collins, and Voinovich offered under the amendment which was ruled non-germane, reformed several Federal employee retirement provisions. It made changes to benefit computation rules for certain Federal employees, including the ability to count sick leave and part-time service, and it authorized Federal agencies to reemploy Federal pensioners on a part-time basis.

I cosponsored this amendment. Its importance is particiled with me as a large number of Federal employees work and reside in my home State of Maryland. But that is not why I cosponsored it. I cosponsored the amendment because it was the right thing to do for all of America’s Federal employees.

The Lieberman amendment would have extended to employees under the Federal Employees’ Retirement System certain benefits which already apply to employees under the older Civil Service Retirement System. This bipartisan amendment had the potential to affect the lives of hundreds of thousands of Federal employees who work hard every day, many at modest pay grades, only to find that their benefits do not mirror those of their colleagues in the same positions.

We had an opportunity to send an important message to America’s Federal workers by bringing up this amendment. We had an opportunity to give them additional incentives to continue the missions they pursue on behalf of all of us. I do not believe that Congress still cares about doing what is right and fair. I regret we were unable to consider this amendment because of the objections of a minority of Senators.

I commend Senator LIEBERMAN and the other Senators who worked so diligently on this amendment. We will have other opportunities. I pledge my continued support for America’s Federal employees, just as they continue to work for America each and every day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, on behalf of Senator LIEBERMAN I ask unanimous consent, notwithstanding rule XXII, that I be permitted to call up amendment No. 1290 and that the amendment be modified with the changes at the desk; that once this modification is made, amendment No. 1256 be withdrawn.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DODD. I object. I make a point of order that the pending Lieberman amendment is not germane.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard. The point of order is well taken. The amendment falls.

Under the previous order, the substitute amendment is adopted.

The amendment (No. 1247) was agreed to.

Mr. DODD. The pending matter will be a vote at 12:30, in a few minutes, on the cloture motion, is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DODD. We will go to the vote right away. I appreciate the comments of my friend from Wyoming. I wish the RECORD to note there were no objections on this side to any of the amendments being offered, the germane amendments. My friend from Wyoming is absolutely correct. I regret that, that we didn’t have an opportunity to debate those, but let me say there may be a time and opportunity for us to deal with these on other vehicles as well, but my hope is we can invoke cloture and move forward.

I am prepared to yield back the time and proceed to the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment of the amendment and third reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on Calendar No. 47, H.R. 1256, Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act.

Harry Reid, Christopher J. Dodd, Robert P. Casey, Jr., Debbie Stabenow, Blanche L. Lincoln, Patty Murray, Ron Wyden, Jack Reed, Sheldon Whitehouse, Maria Cantwell, Roland W. Burris, Richard Durbin, Mark Udall, Edward E. Kaufman, Tom Harkin, Benjamin L. Cardin, Bill Nelson.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum is waived, the question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on H.R. 1256, Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. BYRD) and the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HAGAN). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 67, nays 30, as follows:

Byrd            Kennedy

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 67, the nays are 30. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is agreed to.

The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I wish to thank my colleagues. This is, again, a strong bipartisan vote on this issue, and it allows us now to get to the final passage. We have had about, I think, three cloture votes on this bill. If we followed the regular order, the vote would occur at 6:05 a.m. tomorrow morning. I am sure the leader will not ask us to do that, but that may save the price you pay for all the cloture votes we have had to go through. But sometime tomorrow the vote will occur, and the leadership will obviously decide when.

Let me again thank Senator ENZI and his staff and Senator KENNEDY and his staff. They have gone back many years. I am a place-holder on this. I hope our friend from Massachusetts is watching this because he battled 10 years to get us to this point.

If we can make a dent in those 3,000 to 4,000 kids who start smoking every day—the estimates are 11 percent will not start smoking because of what we are about to do on this bill. If we can make a difference among those 400,000 who lose their lives every year and those who contract emphysema and related illnesses, this may be the most important prevention step we take in the short term on our health care efforts.

For my colleagues on both sides of the aisle who have made this possible, this is a moment they can take great satisfaction in having made a significant contribution to the well-being of Americans. I thank all of them for that and urge a strong vote tomorrow for the passage of the legislation. Then we will work out—and we may not have to work out differences with the House—but if we do, we will then send this bill to the President for his signature, hopefully in the next few days. For the first time in the history of our country, the Food and Drug Administration will be able to regulate tobacco products, and that is a major achievement for our country’s children.

With that, Madam President, I thank my colleagues again and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator withhold his request?

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I withhold that request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to be able to speak as in morning business for 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SAFE COMMISSION ACT

Mr. VOINOVICH. Madam President, I rise today to again call attention to the irresponsible and reckless fiscal path we find ourselves on as a nation.

I urge my colleagues to act now to take the first step toward meaningful, comprehensive tax and entitlement reform through the enactment of the Secure America’s Future Economy Commission Act introduced with Senator JOE LIEBERMAN.

I urge my colleagues to take the time to read a recent letter from Senator LIEBERMAN and I urging their support of this legislation.

The SAFE Commission has broad bipartisan support outside of Congress, including the Peter G. Peterson Foundation, the Business Roundtable, the Concord Coalition, the National Federation of Independent Business, the Brookings Institution and the Heritage Foundation—I think if you get the Concord Coalition and the Heritage Foundation to support a piece of legislation, it is pretty bipartisan and fair—and also the Commission on Responsible Federal Budget. All of these organizations back the SAFE Commission concept as the way to tackle tax reform and our entitlement crisis.

I say to the Presiding Officer, as you may know, recently Chinese Prime Minister Wen Jiabao publicly voiced his concern about the security of the "huge amount of money" China has invested in the United States, saying, "To be detailedly honest, China is the largest foreign creditor of the United States, holding an estimated $1 trillion in U.S. Government debt. Though it may be unlikely due to the complex interdependent relationship we have with China, there are several avenues to call in that debt, sell off its holdings, or direct its foreign investments away from the United States, the impact on our economy and our national security would be devastating. I have been saying for years that we cannot allow countries that control our debt to control our future.

The fact is foreign creditors have provided 70 percent of the funds the United States has borrowed since 2001. As a result, 10 percent of the privately owned national debt is held by foreign creditors—mostly foreign central banks. That is going to be increased significantly because of all the borrowing we are doing. These lenders are starting to express significant concerns about the status of our fiscal situation. To be frank, they should be concerned.

Our spending is out of control. As a result, our debt is skyrocketing. When I arrived in the Senate in 1999, gross national debt was at $5.5 trillion or 61 percent of our GDP. The Obama administration recently projected the national debt to more than double to $12.7 trillion by the end of fiscal year 2009. From 2008 to 2009 alone, the Federal debt will increase 27 percent, boosting the country’s debt-to-income ratio of the national debt as a percentage of GDP—from 70 percent last year to 89 percent this year.

As shown on this chart, here is where we were in the Senate in 1999. In 2008, last year, the national debt as a percentage of GDP was 70 percent. Today, it is at 89 percent. You can see we are going to be very close to 100 percent of our GDP on our national debt. I call this the Pac Man that is eating up our revenue—particularly the interest. We are going to pay money that could be used for other things.

Alarming, the figures I just mentioned do not count our accumulated, long-term financial obligations. The Peterson Foundation recently pointed out that the Federal Government has accumulated $56.4 trillion in total liabilities and unfunded promises for Medicare and Social Security as of September 30, 2008. That works out—listen to this—to $483,000 per American household or $184,000 for every man, woman, and child in the country to pay for these unfunded obligations. In other words, we have $56.4 trillion in total liabilities and unfunded promises for Medicare and Social Security. It is an unfunded liability. If you look at it per household, it is $483,000 per household, and if you look at it per individual, for every man, woman, and child in the United States, it is $184,000.

To be completely fair to President Obama, our annual deficit and growing national debt have been problems for some time now. And, folks, I have come to the floor of the Senate time and time again to talk about paying down debt, balancing our budget, and so forth.

To my knowledge, President Bush never once mentioned the debt in any one of his State of the Union Addresses to Congress. But under the Obama administration, we have exacerbated the problem with an Omnibus appropriations bill that includes $408 billion in nonemergency funding, a $787 billion stimulus bill, and a 10-year proposed budget where the lowest deficit for a single year is larger than any annual deficit from the end of World War II to President Obama’s inauguration.

I know we are going through some tough times. Over the past year, we have been hit by an economic avalanche that started in housing, spread to the financial and credit markets, and then continued onward to every corner of our economy. I know it well. I am a Senator from Ohio. We are spending money to get out of this economic mess, but we cannot allow that to be an excuse to continue our reckless fiscal path. We have to start finding ways to work harder and smarter to do more with less. It does not take an economist to realize our course is unsustainable. I know it, the Obama administration knows it, the American people know it.

The Obama administration knows we can no longer ignore this crisis. Peter Orszag, whom I consider a friend, the Obama administration’s OMB Director, has even said:

I don’t want to sound like the boy crying wolf, but it is a fact that, given the path that we are on, two things: One is we will ultimately completely bankrupt the government that is substantially more severe than even what we are facing today if we don’t alter the path of Federal spending; and secondly, that if we were on that path in the future and something like we are experiencing today occurred, we would have much less maneuver room to fight because we will have already depleted the fire truck.

And I am disappointed that as OMB Director he has forgotten his commitment to entitlement and tax reform he so fervently and loudly espoused when he was CBO Director. You would think a change in title would not cause such a memory loss on as important an issue as the financial health of our country. To me, it can only mean one thing: that Peter Orszag and President Obama must not be serious about addressing the growing national debt or, worse, does not understand our fiscal crisis or, even worse than that, that he just does not care.

Just last Friday, the Washington Post ran an opinion piece taking the administration to task for lacking a plan on just how we start to dig our country out of this financial crisis. The author, Susan Post of the Brookings Institution, wrote:

"Mr. Geithner was met with laughter—when he told a group of Chinese students that their country’s assets were an unfunded liability. If you look at it per man, woman, and child in the United States, it is $483,000. If you look at it per household, it is $184,000."

In the United States, we are putting in place the foundations for restoring fiscal sustainability.

In a moment when all Americans should consider a wake-up call, Mr. Geithner was met with laughter—when he told a group of Chinese students that their country’s assets were very safe in Washington. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record this Washington Post article. NO LAUGHING MATTER

The Obama administration inherited from its predecessor both a tanked economy and a huge federal budget deficit. Under the circumstances, it cannot be faulted for increasing the deficit in the short run, because a mammoth recession called for fiscal stimulus. Thus, it is neither surprising nor irreversibly dangerous that the total federal debt held by the public’s looks as if it will reach 57 percent of gross domestic product by the end of fiscal 2009 on Sept. 30—well above the previous four decades’ average of about 40 percent. What is surprising is that, barring major spending cuts or tax increases, President Obama’s budget could drive that figure to 82 percent by 2019, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

We are already getting a taste of the problems that could develop if the president and Congress do not address the end of last year, the interest rate on 10-year Treasury notes has gone up from 2 percent to over 3.5 percent. That number is within historical norms; indeed, Treasury rates probably had been artificially depressed during the financial panic of the fall. But the spike, which will cost the government billions of dollars, also reflects mounting investor concern—"at home and, especially, federal spending; and secondly, that if we were on that path in the future and something like we are experiencing today occurred, we would have much less maneuver room to fight because we will have already depleted the fire truck.

That number is within historical norms; indeed, Treasury rates probably had been artificially depressed during the financial panic of the fall. But the spike, which will cost the government billions of dollars, also reflects mounting investor concern—"at home and, especially, abroad—about the U.S. fiscal situation. If government borrowing costs continue to accelerate, they could kick economic growth for years to come.

It was the sign of the times that Treasury Secretary Timothy F. Geithner had to travel to Beijing this week to reassure China, the world's third-largest creditor, that the U.S. government was in serious trouble. Geithner was in Beijing as the Treasury Department was preparing to send a letter to the leaders of the Group of 20, which would go to the G-20 leaders at their recent meeting in South Korea

It is more like the smoke and mirrors high standards the President has set for the budget, puts it like this:

Unfortunately, the President's plan exempts things like the 2001–2003 tax cuts, patching the alternative minimum tax, updating physicians' pay, and a litany of other costs. The proof of it is we haven't been able to do it thus far, so we are going to need the Commission. Everybody understands we are going to need it.

If you want to spend more money, you either have to find other spending or you are going to have to reduce or, in the alternative, you are going to have to raise taxes.

One of the things I would hope is that we can actually move and pass a bipartisan commission. They would be 20 members on the Commission; 2 of them would be from the administration, but it would take 13 out of 20, the recommendations would be fast-tracked through press and brought to the floor of both Chambers.

I know the President wants to move entitlement reform, that would be wonderful. But if the Federal Reserve chairman had said those things, he would have been absolutely right.

The chairman of the Federal Reserve, Ben S. Bernanke, was considerably more decorous than the Chinese students in testimony before Congress on Wednesday but, in essence, only slightly less skeptical. “Even as we take steps to address the recession and threats to financial stability,” he said, “maintaining the distance of the U.S. economy from the debt of more fiscally prudent European governments. In a moment that all Americans should consider a wake-up call, Mr. Geithner has laughed with the idea of the $1 trillion debt.

The SAFE Commission we are talking about would create a vehicle, much like we do for the BRAC process, to take on the tough issues of Social Security, tax reform, and creating, by a vote of 13 out of 20 members—there would be 20 members on the Commission: 2 of them would be from the administration, but it would take 13 out of 20—and if you have 13 out of 20, the recommendations would be fast-tracked through press and brought to the floor of both Chambers.

In other words, we would give it expedited procedure and then we would then have to either vote up or down, just as we do on the BRAC process. It would break the logjam in Washington and show the American people and the world that we are serious about getting this Nation back on track.

For the life of me, I cannot understand why President Obama doesn’t support this concept. I know he is getting a hard time from Speaker Pelosi and from several other Members in the House of Representatives, although STeny Hoyer is in favor of the commission approach to solving our entitlement and tax crisis. We all know we can’t get this done through the regular order of business. We know it. We would not be able to get it done. The proof of it is we haven’t been able to do it thus far, so we are going to need the Commission. Everybody understands we are going to need it.

I know the President wants to move on climate change. But he has to know that from a substantive point of view and a political point of view, he is going to have to deal with this long-term financial crisis in which we found ourselves. It would seem to me he could go forward with climate change, he could go forward with health care reform, and get the Commission formed. It will take the Commission at least a year to finish its business.

Think of this: If the Commission is able to get 13 out of 20 members to come back with a bipartisan solution to dealing with tax reform and entitlement reform, that would be wonderful. It would take that issue off the President’s plate. In other words, sooner or later, our President and his party are going to have to face up to the fact that the people of America are really worried—and so are the people of the world—about us doing something about tax reform and entitlement reform.

Wouldn’t it be great—I mean, if I were the Governor of Ohio, and somebody said: Governor, you know what. You have a real problem. And what we are going to do is, we are going to put a commission together and the bipartisan recommendation to come back with recommendations to get the job done—I would kiss them and say: Wonderful. I could kind of forget about it, except for the two people in the administration who were working on it. If they came back with a bipartisan solution, wow. Get it through Congress and we deal with the substantive problem and we get a big political problem off our plate just before going into the next Presidential election.

So we put them in a position where they have to work harder than they have ever had to work before to maintain the kind of standard of living that we would like to have for them and for our children and grandchildren. But if you think about it, if they come back with a bipartisan recommendation, the way we can deal with the problem that is going to be such a burden on the future of our country.

I came here in 1999, and one of the reasons I came here was to deal with the national debt. We have to do something about it. But when you go home, what are you going to point to for the people, your constituents? What are you going to point to and say: I am sincere about this; I want to do something about it. Then they are going to ask you: Well, what did you do? One of the things you can do is say: I supported a bipartisan commission. They are going to go to work during the next year. They are going to come back with a recommendation, and this is the way we can deal with the problem that is going to be such a burden on the future of our country.

One of the things I would hope is—and I feel like a broken record, but I would hope that the Holy Spirit would somehow enlighten us to face up to this very serious responsibility, one that if we don't face up to, will have a devastating impact on the future of our country and our children and grandchildren. I yield the floor, and I note the absence of a quorum.

DRUG REIMPORTATION AND REFORM

Mr. VITTER. Madam President, today I rise to speak on two crucial issues which I had hoped we would not only be debating in the context of this FDA bill currently before the Senate, but actually acting on in that context. So I speak about these two issues I am disappointed we are not taking this obvious, major opportunity of acting on a major FDA bill to again not only have me speak, but all of us act together on the crucial issues of, No. 1, the reimportation of prescription drugs, which many Members, most notably Senator McCaIN of Arizona, Senator McCaIN, suggested on the Senate floor last week. He stood bravely on the Senate floor and read directly from a lobbyist e-mail, a lobbyist of big PhRMA, the association which represents the biggest pharmaceutical companies, and read a detailed e-mail about how they were going to block and derail this effort of mine and Senator McCaIN's and Senator Dorgan's and others.

I think being that come to pass, seeing this effort successfully blocked from the FDA bill—something that is clearly a major opportunity on which to pass reimportation, a big FDA bill—that has to grow the cynicism of the American public. Americans all across the country and our children and grandchildren. We are not taking this obvious, major opportunity, to pass this reimportation, a big FDA bill, but, once again, it is cut off. It is blocked from consideration, from moving forward. That has to increase everybody's cynicism, and we have to work beyond that to pass this important legislation for the American people.

I am happy the majority leader has generally said he would find time on the Senate floor for consideration of a reimportation bill. We need to move. We need to move soon. We need to set a date certain. We need to pass it on an FDA bill, but, once again, it is cut off. It is blocked from consideration, from moving forward. That has to increase everybody's cynicism, and we have to work beyond that to pass this important legislation for the American people.

It is important to work on real issues and real solutions together and bridge that divide. Reimportation is a great example of that.

Now, we have on record a clear majority in this body and in the House of Representatives. Many Democrats and many Republicans have agreed. I think at a time when, unfortunately, the partisan divide and sometimes divisive and bitter partisan rhetoric is at an all-time high, it is important to find areas where we can bridge that divide in a meaningful and sincere way.

CREDIT CARD FAIR FEE ACT

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, yesterday I reintroduced the Credit Card Fair Fee Act. This legislation will provide fairness and transparency in the setting of credit card interchange fees.

Several weeks ago, the Senate passed legislation that will crack down on abusive fees and practices that credit card processors impose on consumers and cardholders. It is landmark legislation. It was 20 years in the making. I was pleased to support it and glad it passed.

We also need to take a hard look at the fees and the restrictions credit card providers impose on retailers. Retailers such as the restaurant down on the corner, the grocery store, the shop, these have to be looked at as well.

Currently, banks and credit card companies impose a system of fees and restrictions on retailers that accept their cards as a form of payment. There is a growing recognition that many of these fees and restrictions are anticompetitive and unfair to businesses and consumers.

Many people assume credit cards make their money off the customers who use them in direct payment, interest charges, and penalties. It turns out there is a whole level of fees that is imposed, which, obviously, is passed on to consumers but have a direct impact on sales in America. If we don’t want to drive small grocery stores out of business or small conveniences stores to go out of business or small grocery stores out of business, we have to take a hard look at the fees and restrictions.

Many people assume credit card payments for everything we pay in interchange fees to these credit card companies. It was 20 years in the making. The GAO did a study in which it was asked whether, in fact, the Federal Government bargains for lower interchange fees because of the volume of business we do. It turns out there is virtually no bargaining allowed, not even with the Federal Government.

If merchants want to accept credit cards, those merchants simply have to abide by the rates, just like the Federal Government, that the card networks set, even when the rates are increased.

In fact, card companies regularly increase their interchange rates. A report by the Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City found that between 1996 and 2006 Visa and MasterCard interchange rates increased from approximately a 2-cent fee to $1.80. That is about a 40-percent increase over that 10-year period of time.

The rates have gone up even further for cards that have rewards programs. The total amount of interchange fees collected last year was $48 billion, according to estimates of the National Retail Federation. It is a huge increase from 2001, when the figure was $16.6 billion.

Despite these rising fees, many merchants have no real choice but to accept credit cards as a form of payment. Consumers use their credit and debit cards for over 40 percent of all transactions. Interchange fees cut into retailer profits and force many merchants to raise consumer prices or go out of business.

As you think about it, what does it mean for the profitability of a company if the business is required to pay the credit card company 2 percent of the sale price on every sale? Well, for some companies that have a very tight margin, it can be significant. Best Buy, the large and successful electronics retailer, has a net profit margin of only 2.2 percent. Whole Foods, a well-known grocery store, has a profit margin of 1.4 percent. The food and drugstore retailer sector has a profit margin of only 1.5 percent, according to Fortune magazine.

How can these companies continue to be profitable if rising interchange fees paid to credit card companies cut into their already small operating margins? In 2007, the National Association of Convenience Stores reported the entire convenience store industry had profits of $3.4 billion dollars; however, they paid credit card interchange fees of $7.6 billion. Over twice the amount of industry profit was paid to credit card providers.

Of course, it has an impact on smaller businesses. I remember the first grocery store in the state of mine, who is coming by my office this afternoon in Washington, runs Niemann Foods, a chain of 65 grocery stores based in Quincy, IL. Every year I meet with him, and every year he asks me for help with interchange fees.

Last year, Niemann Foods made $6 million in profits but paid $3 million in interchange fees. Those fee payments are going up every year. He has no ability to negotiate any change in those fee amounts. It is a growing expense he can’t control.

Rising interchange fees cause many merchants to raise the price of their goods to cover these interchange fees. I don’t want to drive small grocery stores or small conveniences stores to go out of business. We need to do something for the American people.

The bill establishes a framework for negotiations and gives both sides a legal framework to negotiate. If they fail to reach a voluntary agreement, the matter would then go to an arbitration-style proceeding before a panel of judges appointed by the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission. The judges would collect and disclose full information about credit card fees and costs and then order a mandatory settlement conference to attempt to facilitate a deal. If that fails, the judges would conduct a hearing where the merchants and card providers would each propose what they think is a fair set of fees and terms.

The new law will establish a mandatory period for negotiations. It will establish a mandatory period for negotiations. It will set deadlines for negotiations and give both sides a legal framework to negotiate. If they fail to reach a voluntary agreement, the matter would then go to an arbitration-style proceeding before a panel of judges appointed by the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission. The bill would collect and disclose full information about credit card fees and costs and then order a mandatory settlement conference to attempt to facilitate a deal. If that fails, the judges would conduct a hearing where the merchants and card providers would each propose what they think is a fair set of fees and terms. The judges would then select the proposal that best represents what would be fairly negotiated in a competitive market. This set of fees and terms would govern access to the card system by merchants for a period of 3 years.

The bill contains safeguards to ensure the judges can only select a set of proposed fees and terms that is fair and pro-consumer. But the ultimate goal is to reach a deal before the process gets to the point where the judges would need to issue a ruling.

This is an archaic element of commerce in America that has a direct impact on consumers, the money we pay for goods and services, as well as the profit margins of a lot of businesses that are struggling. The credit card companies have been unable to justify their interchange fees in terms of the actual cost of processing credit card payments. It is a profit margin on their side for which they are not accountable.

My legislation is supported by the Merchants Payments Coalition, a coalition of retailers, supermarketers, convenience stores, drugstores, fuel stations, online merchants and other businesses. The coalition's member associations collectively represent about 2.7 million stores nationwide, with approximately 50 million employees.

I ask my fellow colleagues in the Senate to take a look at the legislation. I warn them in advance, if they are interested in looking at this issue of credit cards and interchange fees, be prepared. You are going to hear from every bank that issues a credit card, and I ask you to tell the Durbin legislation is the end of the world. But I hope you will also listen to the merchants and retailers in the States you represent. They will tell you this system is unconscionable and unsustainable.

To have the credit card companies dictate these fees to their retailers all across America is fundamentally unfair. We should have arm's length negotiation. We should have also at the Federal level a negotiation to determine what is the best arrangement for taxpayers when it comes to paying these credit card fees to the companies that provide credit cards for transactions with the Federal Government. It is not an unreasonable approach.

I hope my colleagues will take a look at this issue, and I hope they will listen to their merchants and retailers back in their States.

Guantanamo

Mr. President. I wish to commend the Obama administration for the progress they have made to date on closing the detention facility at Guantanamo Bay. According to media reports today, the Obama administration has reached a historic agreement with the Government of Palau to transfer 17 Guantánamo detainees to this Pacific island. These 17 detainees are Uighurs from China.

The Bush administration determined that all 17 are not enemy combatants and do not pose any risk to U.S. national security. The Bush administration had determined the Uighurs couldn't be legally returned to China, for fear they would be imprisoned and tortured. A Federal Court looked at all the classified evidence against these 17 Uighurs and found there was no legitimate reason to hold them and ordered them released. The President, this administration, is going to follow that court and the law.

I commend President Obama and those working with him for finding a solution to what has been a vexing problem by convincing the Government of Palau to accept Uighur detainees. This is the kind of diplomacy we need to achieve a better standing in the world and a more peaceful and secure situation for the United States.

Something else happened yesterday as well. The White House announced that Defense Secretary Robert Gates, first and former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and former Republican Secretary of State James Baker and Henry Kissinger and Condoleezza Rice; Defense Secretary Robert Gates, first appointed by President Bush; ADM Mike Mullen, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and GEN David Petraeus.

Yesterday, Senator KYL made a statement taking issue with some of my earlier comments about Guantanamo.

Senator KYL asked: "What is wrong with the prison at Guantanamo?"

Let me respond to Senator KYL's question. What is wrong with Guantanamo is it is a recruiting tool for al-Qaeda and other terrorists.

That is not just my opinion. That is the opinion of our military leaders, based on their experiences fighting the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Mike Mullen said:

The concern I've had about Guantanamo is it has been a recruiting symbol for those extremists and jihadists who would fight us. That's the heart of the concern for Guantanamo's continued existence.

General David Petraeus said Guantanamo is, "a symbol that is used by our enemies to our disadvantage. We're beat around the head and shoulders with it."

And Defense Secretary Robert Gates said:

Closing Guantanamo is essential to national security. It has become a rallying cry and recruitment tool for our enemies—endangering the lives of our soldiers in the field, diminishing the willingness of American allies to help wage the fight against al-Qaida and undermining the moral authority of the country.

Of course, Senator KYL is entitled to his point of view and I respect him and count him as a friend. But he offers no evidence to support his view, certainly no evidence that compares with those I have quoted here, starting with Gen. Colin Powell.

Not only is Guantanamo a recruiting tool for terrorists in the Middle East. There is evidence that al-Qaida is actually recruiting terrorists in Guantanamo itself. McClatchy Newspapers conducted an extensive investigation and concluded:

Instead of confining terrorists, Guantanamo often produced more of them by rounding up common criminals, conscripts, low-level foot soldiers, and men with no allegiance to radical Islam . . . and then housing them in cells next to radical Islamists.

McClatchy found that, "Guantanamo became a school for jihad" and "an American madrassa..."

Rear Admiral Mark Busby, the former commander of Guantanamo's detention facility, said, "I must make the assumption that there's a fully functioning Al-Qaeda cell here at Guantanamo."

Senator KYL also continues to claim that no one was abused at Guantanamo and that there is no connection between the abuses at Abu Ghraib and Guantanamo. I commend him for his reading of the Senate Armed Services Committee Report.

But the Senate Armed Services Committee issued a bipartisan report that reached a different conclusion. Senator LEVIN, and Senator McCAIN, the ranking member of the committee, found, "Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's authorization of aggressive interrogation techniques for use at Guantanamo Bay was a direct cause of detainee abuse there."

Senators LEVIN and McCAIN also concluded, on a bipartisan basis, that there was a connection between the abuses at Abu Ghraib and Guantanamo. They said in their report:

The abuse of detainees at Abu Ghraib in late 2003 was not simply the result of a few soldiers acting on their own. Interrogation techniques such as stripping detainees of their clothes, using stress positions, and using military working dogs to intimidate them appeared in Iraq only after they had been approved for use in Afghanistan and at Guantanamo.

And, as I said yesterday, Susan Crawford, a top Bush administration official, concluded that Mohammad al-Qahtani, the so-called 20th hijacker, could not be prosecuted for his role in the 9/11 attacks because he was tortured at Guantanamo Bay.

For many years, President Bush said he wanted to close the Guantanamo detention facility, and there were few, if no complaints from the Republican side. But the President never followed through on his commitment. McClatchy found that, "Guantanamo has made that same call, we hear this chorus of opposition. I think President Obama has accepted the challenge—the challenge to make certain that these detainees are treated in a responsible way that those who should stand trial will stand trial for their crimes and war crimes; that those who cannot be brought to article 3 courts in America should be tried before reformed military tribunals that have rules of evidence and procedure more consistent with our values and laws; that some will be returned, like the Uighurs, if they pose no threat, to places where they cannot threaten the United States and that some will be kept in detention because they continue to be a threat to our Nation. That is a responsible course of conduct. It deserves bipartisan support."

I yield the floor.

the second Car Czar Award

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, this is the "Car Czar" award for Wednesday, June 10, 2009. It is a service to taxpayers from America's new automobile headquarters: Washington DC.

It is the second in a series of "Car Czar" awards offered upon Washington meddlers who distinguish themselves by making it harder for the auto companies your government owns to compete in the world marketplace.

On Monday, I presented the very first "Car Czar" award to the Honorable BARNEY FRANK of Massachusetts for interfering in the operation of General Motors. Congressman FRANK, who is chairman of the House Financial Services Committee, intervened last week to save a GM distribution center in his Massachusetts district.

The warehouse, which employs some 90 people, was slated for closing under GM's restructuring plan. But Mr. FRANK put in a call to GM CEO Fritz Henderson and, lo and behold, the facility has a new lease on life according to the Wall Street Journal. Mr. FRANK, of course, is chairman of the House committee that recently orchestrated paying $2 billion in taxpayer dollars to give the U.S. Treasury 60 percent ownership of General Motors and 8 percent ownership of Chrysler.

Now, for this second "Car Czar" award, there are many deserving contenders.

For example, this afternoon the Honorable CHRIS DODD, Mr. FRANK's Senate counterpart, is chairing a Banking Committee hearing featuring two of the administration's chief meddlers in Washington-owned car companies: Mr. Ron Bloom, a senior advisor on the auto industry at Treasury and Mr. Ed Montgomery, White House Director of Recovery for Auto Communities and Workers.

Tomorrow, over in the House, the Financial Services Committee will hold a hearing on salaries of workers in companies the government owns.

Another obvious contender for the award is the administration's new Chief-Price-Fixer for the cost of labor, Mr. Kenneth Feinberg who will review and approve how managers of car companies are paid. According to the New York Times article on June 8, Mr. Feinberg is likely not just to tell Gov- enment-owned car companies and banks how much to pay people, it is likely "everyone else's compensation will be monitored, too."

But there is time next week to honor all these worthy contenders. Today's "Car Czar" award clearly should go to the Members of the Wisconsin and Michigan and Tennessee congressional delegations, each of whom met today with the administration's chief meddlers in Washington, with GM executives, imploring them to build small cars in our home States. In Tennessee's case, of course, we were talking about the Saturn plant in Spring Hill, recently placed on standby; in another words, we are giving the "Car Czar" award today to, among others, myself—the senior Senator from Tennessee.

Now, in my own defense, as Mr. FRANK's spokesperson said on June 8, Mr. FRANK was caught calling GM about the warehouse in Massachusetts—I was "just doing what any other Congressman would do" in looking out for the interests of his constituency. But that is precisely the problem "Car Czar" awards. As the Wall Street Journal put it, "... that's the problem with industrial policy and government control of American business. In Wash- ington, every Member of Congress now thinks he's a czar who can call ol' Fritz and tell him how to make cars."

But consider for a moment the implications of all 535 of us in Congress regularly participating in such incestuous behavior. It is one thing, as I did in 1983 as Governor, to argue to General Motors to put the Saturn plant in Ten- nessee right next to the Nissan plant. That was an arm's length transaction.
It is quite another thing for me as U.S. Senator and a member of the government that owns 60 percent of the company, to urge GM executives to build cars in my State. I can pretend I am making my case on the merits: central location, right to work laws, four-lane highways, hundreds of suppliers, low taxes, a successful Japanese competitor 40 miles away. But my incestuous relationship as owner taints the entire affair.

So I will continue to confer “Car Czar” awards—seeking to end the in-cestuous nature of these meetings and time-wasting hearings—until Congress and the President enact my “Auto Stock for Every Taxpayer” legislation which would distribute the Government’s stock in GM and Chrysler to the 120 million Americans who paid taxes on April 15. Such a stock distribution is the fastest way to get ownership of the auto companies out of the hands of meddling Washington politicians and back into the hands of Americans in the marketplace. It is also the fastest way to allow the car company mangagers to design, build and sell cars rather than scurry around Washington—under oath—answering questions and being instructed by their poitical owners how to build cars and trucks.

Distributing the stock to the taxpayers also may be the fastest way for Congressmen to get themselves re-elected. According to the Nashville Tennessean, an AutoPacific survey reports that 81 of Americans polled agree “that the faster the government gets out of the automotive business, the better.”

Now, here is an invitation for those who may be listening: if you know of a Washington “Car Czar” who deserves to be honored, please email me at CarAward@Alexander.Senate.gov, and I will give you full credit in my regular “Car Czar” reports here on the floor of the United States Senate.

And after you write to me, I hope you will write or call your Congressman and Senators and remind them to enact the “Auto Stock for Every Taxpayer Act” just as soon as General Motors emerges from bankruptcy. All you need to say when you write or call are these eight magic words, “I paid for it. I should own it.”

I yield the floor.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, I am glad we are now engaged in the health care debate, but this debate is long overdue. I congratulate the Obama administration for taking on the tough issues. This is not an easy subject in order to reach the type of consensus necessary in order to pass major legislation. There are a lot of special interest that are going to make it difficult for us to move forward.

I am proud this administration is taking up this issue because we are in a health care crisis in America. I say that because the cost of health care is the single most expensive nation in the world per capita on health care—$2.4 trillion a year, 15 percent of our gross domestic product. Those numbers are increasing dramatically each and every year. The cost of health care is not sustainable.

We had a great deal of discussion here about fiscal responsibility and bringing our budget into balance. President Obama is correct. If we do not deal with the escalating cost of health care, it is going to make it virtually impossible for us to bring our budgets into balance in the future—whether it is a Medicare budget or who have no health insurance, as a budget. We have to do a better job in reining in the cost of health care. America needs to be competitive internationally. We cannot be competitive internationally unless we find a way to bring down health care costs.

Family insurance premiums have gone up threefold in the last 8 years alone—much faster than earnings, three times as fast as earnings. The consequences for Marylanders is that they are going into bankruptcy. You have heard it said that we are only one health incident away from filing bankruptcy in America for many families. They have to make difficult choices: Should I really go see a doctor? Is it really that important, because do I really have the money to lay out? It is not covered by my insurance, or I don’t have insurance, what do I do?

We have 46 million Americans today who have no health insurance, and it is very costly in the way they enter the system. They use the emergency rooms. They don’t get preventive health care. They spend a lot of money. It increased 20 percent over the last 8 years.

In my State of Maryland, we have 760,000 Marylanders, 15.4 percent of our nonelderly population, without health insurance.

We need to reform our health care system. We need to build on what is right in our health care system and correct what is wrong.

What is right is that we have some of the highest quality health care in the world. I have been from all over the world travel to my own State of Maryland to visit Johns Hopkins University or the University of Maryland Medical Center or NIH in order to get their health care needs met or to train the professionals. We want to maintain that edge in America, of leading-edge technology to keep people healthy. We have choice in our health care system. I believe that is good. You can choose the health plan in many cases. You certainly can choose the provider in many cases. That adds competition to quality of care in our system.

We have to correct what is wrong. The first thing we have to correct is the cost. We have to bring the cost down.

The first way to bring down the costs is for everyone to be in the system to deal with cost. We have to bring down the cost of health care. We have 46 million people without health insurance today. Are we going to let them try to figure out what private insurance to go to without the controls on cost? That is going to add to the cost in this country, not bring it down.

We have to at least have a comparison on a fair competition between public insurance and private insurance. I favor private insurance. But I want to have a public insurance option because I want the people of Maryland and around the Nation to have choice, to be able to choose the plan that is best for them.

They can stay in the plan they have now if they are satisfied with it. We want them to, and we encourage them to. But we want them to have a choice. We want the market to work. That is why the public insurance option has become more and more important.

Let me point out the two programs that we recently changed. Medicare Advantage. Well, Medicare Advantage is the private insurance option within Medicare that our seniors have the option to join.

Well, when Medicare Advantage started, Medicare Plus Choice, it was a savings to the taxpayers because we paid the private insurance company 95 percent of what we paid the fee-for-service companies within the public option, saving money for the system. It made sense.

Well, guess what. Today we are paying the Medicare Advantage plans, the private plans, 112 to 117 percent of what we paid the fee-for-service companies within the traditional public option in Medicare. In other words, every person who picks private insurance costs the system money.

The Congressional Budget Office, which is a nonpartisan objective scorekeeper, says the Medicare Advantage premium we pay over what we would pay if they were in fee for service costs the system $150 billion over 10 years. So the public option is not only to offer choice to the people of our country between a plan that they want and it is available to them, whether it is a private plan or a public plan—remember, the providers are going to be private. This is not who provides the benefits; it is who pays for it, who puts together the plan. It will save the system money.

Part D: There is no public option in Part D. Many of us raised that issue back then, that we could have saved taxpayer money and saved Medicare money. But it tried to force the private insurance companies honestly by having a public plan where we know what is being charged and paid for prescription drugs. Most of it is the cost of medicine. Why can we not have transparency? Why do we have to pay the high overhead costs of private insurance without the competition of a model that could save the taxpayers money and save our system money?

This is not a government takeover, as some of my colleagues have said. Medicare was not a government takeover. Medicare pays for the private doctors and hospitals so the disabled and seniors can get access to health care in America. I think those who make the arguments, which are basically scare tactics, are not adding to the debate anything that is worthy of this issue. This is a very important issue to the people of our Nation. This is our opportunity to fix our system by improving the building on it, and correcting what is wrong.

But let's strengthen the good parts of our system. Let's strengthen those coverages that people are happy about, the employers who are providing health benefits to employees, where it is working. But let's correct the runaway costs in our system, and let's provide a reasonable way that those who do not have health insurance can get health insurance.

If we can work together, Democrats and Republicans, this is an American problem. This is about America's competitiveness. This is about American families being able to afford their health care. This is about balancing our budgets in the future so America can continue to grow as the strongest economy in the world. But it starts today in this debate about fixing one of the underpinnings of our economy that is out of whack.

We need universal coverage. We need to have options available that will keep health care affordable for all people in this country and provide quality care for each American. That is what this debate is about.

I applaud the committees that are working on this issue. I applaud all of the Members of this body and the House who are seriously engaging in this discussion.

I think we can all learn from each other. If we work in good faith, we can develop a health care reform proposal that will maintain quality but provide access and affordability to every family in America. That should be our objective, I hope we will all work toward that.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KAUFMAN. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KAUFMAN. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for up to 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ASME

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I rise to congratulate the American Society of Mechanical Engineers on the 125th anniversary of their codes and standards.

As the only serving Senator who has worked as an engineer, I have a degree in engineering and worked as a mechanical engineer—I was proud to sponsor a resolution acknowledging the lasting impact ASME codes and standards have had on our Nation and on other parts of the world.

Now to non-engineers, codes and standards developed by and for mechanical engineers may sound like a lot of jargon and, candidly, like pretty boring stuff.

But as an engineer, I am proud to say that I believe that the nuts and bolts of how to build things, how to create, how to standardize and grow equipment and industries have been at the very heart of the American economic growth-engineered for more than 125 years.

That kind of nuts and bolts thinking and creativity will be what leads America out of this recession and toward sustained economic growth once again.

So I'm pleased that the Senate has joined me in celebrating a success story of American engineering.

This story begins when ASME was founded in 1880. ASME currently includes more than 127,000 members worldwide. It is a professional organization which promotes the art, science, and practice of mechanical and multidisciplinary engineering and allied sciences. One of its chief functions since its founding has been the development of national machine part standards, along with uniform work practices to ensure mechanical reliability.

This week, ASME will celebrate its 125th anniversary of codes and standards development.

This is a tribute to the dedicated service of technical experts and engineers, whose efforts resulted in internationally accepted standards—standards that not only enhance public safety but also promote global trade.

Its first published performance test code was entitled "Code for the Conduct of Trials of Steam Boilers.''

Since then, ASME has developed more than 500 technical standards for pressure vessel technology, electric and nuclear power facilities, safety systems, gas pipelines, engineering drawing practices, and numerous other technical and engineered products and processes.

At present, ASME codes and standards, as well as conformity assessment programs, are used in more than one hundred countries.

Does engineering sound boring to you? Let's hope America's youth don't think so. We need to excite the young minds of thousands and thousands of young Americans about the possibilities of being an engineer, because engineers have always been the world's problem solvers. It is impossible to ignore the effect ASME's codes and standards have had on global development.

During the period of rising industrialization, as machines were expanding in use and complexity on farms and in factories, ASME standards helped to ensure the safety of engineers and workers using these machines.

Today, in our global economy, these codes and standards are continually revised and updated to reflect changes in technology. As a result, ASME's codes and standards are accepted across the globe and help to advance international commerce. The American Society of Mechanical Engineers has adapted to meet the changes and challenges of engineering professions. I commend their accomplishments and contributions to the health, safety, and economic well-being of our Nation.

I am pleased that the Senate yesterday approved S. Res. 179.

While I was in college, I wanted to be a mechanical engineer, in part because 52 years ago, after Sputnik, the United States was supporting science and engineering on an unprecedented level. America's competitive spirit and the AIAE's advanced educational offerings motivated me to assist our country in meeting the challenges of those times.

Thousands of innovations created myriad new opportunities for growth and development. We can do this again.

The financial crisis should lead to a cultural shift back to the strong foundations of innovation and the know-how that have always been the American way. I am glad that the federal government is again investing strongly in supporting the basic scientific, medical, and technological research that will spur the discovery and innovations to create millions of new jobs and shape a bright American future.

I thank my fellow Senators for joining with me in celebrating one small chapter in the American economic success story, with hope that we can inspire similar successes in the coming years.

Mr. President, I wish to speak about our excellent Federal workforce.

In my years of government service, I have met so many wonderful people who give so much of themselves for the benefit of us all. That is why I believe it essential for the American people to have confidence in our Federal employees.

Americans need to know that they can place their trust in those charged with carrying out the people's work. Our country is filled with talented individuals performing their jobs with excellence.

I cannot count—literally cannot count—the Federal employees who deserve to be praised here in this Chamber, because that number is so great. But I hope to share one story today that is exemplary of our civil servants overall.

The ancient philosophers used to say that our government is filled with talented individuals performing their jobs with excellence. I have not chosen to reference this analogy by chance. Rather, it fits well with the story of a hardworking and accomplished civil servant whom I wish to recognize today.

I spoke earlier about the effect of engineers on our economy and our communities. The Federal employee I honor today has spent more than a quarter of a century working as a civilian engineer for the Navy Department.

Although today Brian Persons has risen to become executive director of the Naval Sea Systems Command, or NAVSEA, he began his public service as a ship architect at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard. A Michigan native and graduate of Michigan State with a degree in civil engineering, Brian went to work in 1981 for the Navy Department, designing and maintaining the ships of our fleet. Brian distinguished himself in the design division at Long Beach, and he was made a supervisory architect within a few years. While there, he worked on overhauls of surface ships, including the great battleships U.S.S. New Jersey, Missouri, and Missouri. In 1988, when the U.S.S. Samuel B. Roberts struck a mine in the Persian Gulf, the Navy sent Brian to Dubai to provide analysis and repair options.

Although he was only asked to spend a week in Dubai, Brian remained with the stricken vessel for 45 days until it was again seaworthy.

I want our Nation's graduates to know that careers in public service are full of opportunities like the one given to Brian.

Federal employees at all levels get to work on exciting and relevant projects every day. Brian returned to NAVSEA in 1996 and has worked in various roles there over the past 12 years. For his dedicated service in government, Brian was awarded the Meritorious Presidential Rank Award in 2004 and won the prestigious Distinguished Presidential Rank Award last year. This year, he was appointed as executive director of NAVSEA, its most senior civilian executive.

In addition, he uses his work as an engineer and manager, throughout the years, to give back to the community. Brian has served as a role model for those working with him, including a number of colleagues from traditionally underrepresented minority groups, whom he has mentored as they sought leadership positions in the Department.

This is truly the kind of service and mentorship we need to promote among engineers and other science professionals. Engineers can play an important role in bettering our communities and promoting education among our students.

I am glad we were able to include funding for service opportunities of this kind in the Serve America Act earlier this year. I call again on my colleagues and all Americans to join me in recognizing the contributions of Brian Persons and all of the engineers, scientists, and technicians who continue to ensure that our ships remain seaworthy and on a forward course.

I honor their service and that of all our hard-working Federal employees.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for up to 10 minutes.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. President, of all the complex issues the United States will deal with in this Congress, none will be more important than health care reform. Of all the momentous decisions we will make over the next few months, none will be more consequential or long-lasting than the votes we may take regarding the future health care system which comprises our health care system. If we get it right, we could devise a program that makes health care more accessible and affordable, provides health coverage to millions of Americans who are currently without health insurance, relieves Americans from worry about the effect changing jobs will have on their health care, saves lives through an increased focus on prevention and wellness, saves money by curbing the out-of-control growth in government health care programs, keeps patients and families in control of their health care choices, and makes doctors the decisionmakers on treatment options. We have a great opportunity before us to improve the American health care system, but we run a perilous risk if we do not act wisely and carefully. We can fix our broken health care system by making it more accessible and affordable for Americans, and we can do it without jeopardizing quality, individual choice, and personalized care.

The American people need us to act on this issue, but they do not need or want us to act rashly. We do not need to enact a Washington takeover or a scheme that would inevitably lead to a government takeover of one-sixth of our gross domestic product.

I recently spoke with a resident of a country that has a major U.S. ally. He expounded the benefits of his country’s government health care program, explaining in particular detail how the program works there. But then I posed a question: What happens in your country if I get cancer? He smiled and said: If I get cancer, I am going to the United States. He is going to the United States. It was a very telling answer that points out a profound truth: There are many things we need to fix about American health care, but there are a number of things we do right.

There are a number of things right about our system, and we don’t need to risk losing those things that today give Americans the highest quality health care system in the world.

Nine middle-aged American women have had a mammogram—90 percent of American women—compared to less than three-fourths of Canadian women. More than half of American men have had a prostate test compared to one in six Canadians. Nearly one-third of Americans have had a colonoscopy compared to less than 5 percent of Canadians. These are statistics we need to be proud of as compared to our Western allies.

In his focus in America on prevention, we also spend less time waiting for care than patients in Canada and the United Kingdom. Canadian and British patients wait about twice as long—sometimes more than a year—to see a specialist. We don’t need health care reform that moves us in that direction. Mr. President, 287,429 people today, at this very moment, are waiting for some sort of procedure in Canada, and 1.8 million people in England are waiting for a hospital admission or an outpatient treatment. They are having to wait for that in England.

We Americans also have better access to new technologies such as medical imaging than patients in Canada or the United Kingdom. Americans are responsible for the vast majority of all health care innovations. The top five U.S. hospitals—only five top U.S. hospitals—conduct more clinical trials than all the hospitals in any other single developed country. Only the top five hospitals in another country in the world in clinical trials. We ought to be proud of that. We ought not to enact any program that would jeopardize that type of innovation.

Since the mid-1970s, the Nobel Prize in medicine or physiology has gone to American residents more often than recipients from all other countries combined. We get results based on our innovation and our research in the United States of America.

All these numbers translate into one very important fact: Americans have a better 5-year survival rate than Europeans for common cancers. For example, in the area of colon cancer, we have a 65-percent, 5-year survival rate in America, compared to only 50 percent in the United Kingdom. For prostate cancer, we have a 93-percent survival rate for 5 years in the United States; only 77 percent in the United Kingdom. Ninety percent of Americans who suffer from breast cancer have a 5-year survival rate; only 82 percent in the United Kingdom. For thyroid cancer that figure is a 94-percent, 5-year survival rate and only 75 percent in the United Kingdom.

Put another way, breast cancer mortality is 52 percent higher in Germany with their government-run system than in the United States, and breast cancer mortality is 86 percent higher in the United Kingdom with their government-run health care system. Prostate cancer mortality is 604 percent higher in the United Kingdom and 457 percent higher in Norway. Is there a genetic predisposition for the people of Norway to die of prostate cancer or German women to have breast cancer? I don’t think so. I think these numbers, these stubborn facts reflect that our American system of innovation and detection and treatment is a good thing, and as we move to improve and fix our system, we need to be careful to maintain that type of quality.

There are broken parts of our system, to be sure, but my point today is to urge this body to consider the consequences of the options we will consider. There is no question we need to make health care more affordable and we need to expand access. Republicans support providing affordable access to coverage for every American, and we can do that without a Washington, DC, takeover of health care. What we cannot afford the risk of doing is eroding the quality of care in pursuit of our goals this year. The surest way to destroy quality is to hand the reins of health care over to the Federal Government. I recently had the opportunity to discuss health care with a member of the British House of Commons. That member of Parliament said: Whatever you do, do not do what we did in the United Kingdom.

A Washington takeover of health care would result in a stifling of innovation. I am convinced it would result in long waits. As we consider a so-called public option, we need to ask ourselves: Will it lead, as I believe it will, to a one-size-fits-all Washington takeover of health care and inevitably mean that our citizens will be denied and delayed the health care we need? We need to be careful as we answer that question. I regret to say the plan I see taking shape on the other side of the aisle would result in either a politician or a bureaucrat making your health care decisions instead of you and your doctor. I urge my colleagues to protect innovation and to protect quality.

I am convinced we can protect the doctor-patient relationship and make health care more affordable and accessible for all without jeopardizing the quality I have spoken about this afternoon. I believe all of us in this body want a solution that works for Americans. There is common ground to be found that would continue the opportunity for the United States to be that world leader in quality. Congress and the American people need to pay close attention as we proceed this summer and this fall on one of the most important debates in our time.

Thank you. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I wanted to say this to the occupant of the Chair personally, but I will take the opportunity to say it now. The presentation the Senator made on the floor regarding health care was stupendous, terribly impressive. I am going to take much of what the Presiding Officer said today and use it in the information I give people in Nevada and the presentations I make on the floor. It was very good.

As the health care debate has heated up this week, Republicans have once again rolled out one of their standard, stale talking points. They question the efficiency of our government. When all else fails, all they do is berate the government.

But if Republicans want to have an honest debate about how our government operates, I think one of the first things I would suggest is that they should start looking in the mirror at themselves.

Today, Republicans are wasting more time than ever arguing for no good reason. The tobacco bill on the floor right now is both responsible and overdue. After making us wait out all the 30 hours of procedural time before even moving to the bill—Mr. President, the 30 hours isn’t all of it. To get to that point, you have to file cloture, which takes 2 days, and then we have the 30 hours—a total waste of time. Republicans are now making us wait another 30 hours before we can vote on the bill. So it is 30 hours just to move to it, and then 30 hours once we are on it.

Let me reiterate how important the bill we are wasting time on not doing is to our American people. Every day, 3,500 Americans try a cigarette for the first time, and the vast majority of them are children. Nationwide, 93 percent of all high schoolers smoke; 32 percent of all high schoolers smoke. That is more than twice the number of children in high school smoke. That is more kids than participate in athletics in our schools who are smoking.

Tobacco companies make money hand over fist by marketing and selling their poisonous products to our kids.
The bill before the Senate takes smart steps to keep our children and families healthier and keep the tobacco companies honest. It will make it harder for those companies to sell tobacco to children; help those who smoke overcome their addiction; it will make tobacco products less toxic for those who cannot or do not want to stop.

We have tried in good faith since last week to reach agreement with Republicans on amendments to this bill. Our floor staff has given the Republican floor staff a finite list of both Democratic and Republican amendments that we wanted to vote on as we consider the bill. With rare exception, the amendments were germane. If not germane, they were arguably germane. But no. These amendments included three from Senator HAGAN, and one each from Senators COBURN, ENZI, BUNNING, and LIEBERMAN.

Unfortunately, despite repeated efforts to move forward, our Republican colleagues have said no every time.

Republicans are also slowing down our government in another way. In the few short months since President Obama took office, Republicans held up many nominees for crucial positions. There are 25 being held up right now, as we speak. Let me give you a few of them. We have had to have closure votes this year on the Secretary of Labor; the Deputy Attorney General, the No. 2 person at the Justice Department; the Deputy Secretary of the Department of the Interior, which is like the Chief of Staff for the Department of the Interior; two members of the Council of Economic Advisers; and, incredibly, America’s Ambassador to Iraq, Chris Hill. They held him up for a long time. Every time I spoke to Secretary Gates, he wanted to know where his Ambassador was, somebody to run that country—at least American interests in that country.

Poor LTG McChrystal, holding up 25 or more qualified and noncontroversial nominees, including Rand Beers, nominated to be Under Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, a pretty important position; Cass Sunstein, nominated to head the Office of Management and Budget’s Information and Regulatory Affairs division. You could go to any law school in America today and ask them to name the top 10 academics in law schools, and Cass’s name would be one of the top 10 on everybody’s list. But he is not good enough for the Republicans to get him cleared; Hilary Chandler Tompkins, nominated to be the Solicitor for the Department of the Interior. That is the lawyer there. They have 70,000 employees. Secretary Salazar thinks it is a good idea that he has a lawyer there. They are not going to allow that; William Sessions, nominated to be Chair of the U.S. Sentencing Commission. Listen to this one. We have been told the reason he is not going to be approved is because he is from Vermont, and Senator LEAHY is chairman of the Judiciary Committee. They want to embarrass a friend, the chairman of that committee, Chairman PAT LEAHY; Harold Koh, nominated to be the State Department’s legal adviser. Just like the Interior Department, the State Department, Secretary Clinton wants a lawyer there that has that important office. But no. Robert Grove, nominated to be Director of the Census—no.

I have only mentioned five. There are 20 others. The Republicans recklessly refuse to confirm LTG Stanley McChrystal to be our Ambassador to Iraq. Listen to what they are doing now. They are holding up LTG Stanley McChrystal, an eminently qualified soldier, whom President Obama and Secretary Gates chose to be our new commander in Afghanistan. I met him in my office the other day. This is a man with the military in his blood. His father was a great general. His father won five Silver Stars fighting for our country around the world. Stanley McChrystal is an expert in counterinsurgency, which we need so badly in Afghanistan. But, no, we are not going to get him approved—at least for now. Republicans are so opposed to everything, they even oppose putting people in some of the most important positions in our government. Let’s believe the majority, Democrats—that those who have been chosen to serve our country must be able to get to work without delay.

Republicans across the country agree with that, also. But we have 40 Members of this body—Republicans—who don’t represent Republicans across this country. Republicans, if given a chance, wouldn’t they approve LTG McChrystal? Of course they would. And the other people I mentioned. We believe those who have been chosen to serve our country must be able to get to work without delay. President Obama was elected. Shouldn’t he have the people he wants to work with him? Perhaps the only thing this is how the Senate always operates. The occupant of the chair is a new Senator. This isn’t how it used to operate. Let me put these delays into context.

In the first 4 months of the Bush administration—the second Bush administration—I am sure it was the same in the first Bush administration—when the Senate was controlled by the President’s party, and we were in the minority, there wasn’t a single filibuster of a Bush administration nominee. But in the first 4 months of the Obama administration, Republicans have filibustered eight of his nominees. Those are the ones we had to file cloture on. I have indicated that there are many others. With the constraints we have in the rules of the Senate, I cannot file cloture on every one of these. Those filibusters in the first 4 months of Senator Obama’s administration are twice as many as President Bush faced in his first 4 months.

I hope some people who are listening are going to watch understand this: We are not berating Republicans in Oregon or in Nevada or across the country. What I am saying is the Republicans here in the Senate—40 of them—are not being fair to our President and our country.

Last year, after Republicans held up the work of the Congress more than any other time in history—remember, Republicans, Democrats, and Republicans—I would hope they would learn that the American people don’t like this—Independents, Democrats, and Republicans. Don’t like it. We want to work together.

Take health care. They have seats at the negotiating table. We want to work with them. Energy, the same thing. There is no question the American people are taking notice, and they are fed up with petty partisan games. There is no question that these reckless tactics have consequences.

Republicans delay and delay and delay to their own peril. The truth is that all Americans suffer. It is time that the Republicans let us get to work and allow President Obama to have his nominees, and let’s get this bill off the floor. Every day we wait, 3,500 more people are subject to being addicted to tobacco.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, I would like to speak for about 3 or 4 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, for far too long, this Nation’s broken health care system has limped along badly and in need of serious reform. Many in Washington have lacked either the foresight or the political will to take on this issue. For those who have tried, it has been almost impossible to get anywhere. Even today, the President’s health care proposal is under attack from both the right and the left. I think we need to do better. Controversy should not drown out conversation.

The time has come to cast aside the constraints of partisanship, stop bickering, and start talking about real change. The American people have had enough. It is time to get to work.

The facts are plain: tens of millions of Americans are uninsured and underinsured. Many of these are children. Even employer-sponsored coverage is in jeopardy as employer costs are being drained by skyrocketing costs, and many have cut benefits. High premiums, rising copayments, and expensive prescription drugs are driving American families to the brink.

Can we stand by and watch as unreasonable health care costs cripple families who are already struggling? No, we cannot.
S6424
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
June 10, 2009

Can we allow this crisis to deepen, leaving more and more hard-working Americans behind? No, we cannot.

It is the solemn duty of this Congress to follow President Obama’s lead and enact swift, responsible reform. We can cut costs and improve coverage. We can make health care more affordable, stronger, and less wasteful. We can empower individuals and families to make important decisions, not giant corporations or government bureaucracies. We can and we must make quality, affordable health care available to every single American.

While I support the role insurance companies play in our health care system, I strongly believe a public option should also be available. This would restore accountability to the system and increase competition, driving prices down and making good coverage, private or public, more affordable for everyone.

American businesses and families have waited far too long for meaningful health care reform. The time to act is now.

Some of my colleagues have been working to fix our broken system for many years. Senator Kennedy has been a leader throughout his career. This is the moment he and many others have been working toward. We must seize this opportunity to reform health care in America. I urge my colleagues to work with President Obama, as well as Senator Kennedy, to make sure everyone has access to quality, affordable coverage.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the question to the nominee be dispensed with. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURRIS). Without objection, the matter is so ordered.

SOTOMAYOR NOMINATION

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I wish to assure our Members, the American people, and Judge Sotomayor that our committee is going to do its best to have a hearing on her confirmation that would be worthy of the serious responsibility we have and that the American people will feel is fair. I hope they will say it is the best hearing we have ever had.

I have to tell you, though, things are moving faster than I would like to have seen them move, and it does cause some difficulties for us. As I discussed on the floor yesterday, the Republican members of the Judiciary Committee are deeply concerned about this process being moved this rapidly. Yesterday, Chairman LEAHY unilaterally announced that the hearings would begin on July 13, some 48 days from the announcement of this nomination. I won’t go into a lot of detail, but I would note that in the recent three Supreme Court nominees, Justice Breyer’s hearing was 60 days after the announcement. Justice Roberts—the one that has been most cited and was the shortest—was 55, and Justice Alito’s was 70. And I would note that Justice Roberts had 370 cases, whereas Judge Sotomayor has 3,500-plus cases to review. Senator SCHUMER and Senator LEAHY in remarks they made previously, it is better to do it right than to do it too fast.

I would note that late last week, the White House sent her answers to the questionnaire and all the nominee’s cases, requiring a good deal of information, and that is done on a bipartisan basis. Those answers were sent forward with great fanfare. In a press release from the White House Counsel’s Office, the Obama administration proclaimed that they set a record by completing the process in just 9 days. But this is a confirmation process, not a confirmation race. I think the White House should focus more on having thorough and complete answers to the questionnaire, not on entering the “Guinness Book of World Records” for the fastest response from a Supreme Court nominee.

We know now that Judge Sotomayor omitted or failed to include key information and has provided incomplete and sometimes contradictory responses to the questionnaire. The responses are not satisfactory. So today all seven Republican members of the Judiciary Committee, we have been through the checklist of them—for some time and seen these issues develop before, have written to ask that the nominee fulfill her duty to provide clear and complete answers to our questions in order to obtain quite a bit of information that is now not available and should have been included.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have that letter printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY
Hon. Sonia Sotomayor,
Office of the Counsel to the President,
The White House.

DEAR JUDGE SOTOMAYOR: Thank you for providing your questionnaire, assembled materials, and June 6, 2009 questionnaire supplement to the Judiciary Committee. Committee staff are reviewing your questionnaire responses and attachments and have noted a number of apparent omissions. In addition, we believe that some of your responses are inconsistent with others of these responses, we would respectfully ask that you re-visit the questionnaire and provide another supplement as soon as possible. If you believe that your questionnaire is fully responsive, we would appreciate an explanation to that effect.

To assist you in completing your questionnaire, below are a list of the potential omissions detected to date:

(1) Question 6 asks for your employment record. Although you indicate that you were a member of the board of directors of the State of New York Mortgage Agency, it appears that you also served on the Administration and Personnel Committee (or the Program Committee) and as a member of the board of Community Planning Board #6. In addition, you indicate that you served as a lead and vice president of directors of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense & Education Fund; however, in response to Question 25, you indicated that you served as Finance Officer and (if applicable) as editor of both law reviews.

(2) Question 12(a) requires lists and copies of materials written or edited. You have been widely described as an editor of the Yale Law Journal and as Managing Editor of the Yale Studies in World Public Order. However, you have not provided copies of materials from either publication. Please provide the Committee with copies of any materials you edited during your tenure as an editor of both law reviews.

(3) Question 12(b) requires copies and descriptions of certain reports, memoranda, or policy statements prepared by specified organizations. You have stated that “As a member of various court committees, I have prepared and contributed to numerous reports and memoranda on court issues, which relate to internal court deliberations and are not available for public dissemination.” However, the question is not limited to publicly available reports. Please provide such reports and memoranda.

(4) Also with respect to Question 12(b), you initially omitted a report concerning the death penalty that you were asked to have that letter printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Although you indicate that you were a member of the board of directors of the Office of the Counsel to the President, the Office of the Counsel to the President is searching its records for information on this case. Please provide us with this information as a supplement to the questionnaire.

(5) Question 13(g) requires a brief summary of and citations for all opinions where decisions reversed by a reviewing court. For three cases you have indicated that the judgment of the respective courts was affirmed by a reviewing court and that the judgment is no longer available for public dissemination. For opinions not officially reported, copies are requested. Although you indicate with respect to Bernard v. Las Americas Communications, Inc., that there was no formal opinion, you make no such representation with respect to the United States v. Gottesman opinion or the United States v. Shauls opinion. If we do not appear that copies of these opinions have been provided, please clarify your response.

(6) Question 14(b) asks about trial experience and requires “opinions and filings” for cases going to verdict, judgment, or final decision. For three cases you have indicated that “The Manhattan District Attorney’s Office is searching its records for information on this case.” Please provide us with this information as a supplement to the questionnaire.

(7) Also with respect to Question 14(d), you state: “I tried an additional 14 cases during my time as an assistant district attorney, from 1979 to 1984. The Manhattan District Attorney’s Office is searching its records for further information on these cases.” Please provide us with this information as a supplement to the questionnaire.

(8) Question 16(e) asks about appellate practice. Nominees are asked to provide copies of briefs and if available, transcripts. You state: “I have requested the briefs and any available transcripts from these cases from the Clerk of the Court of the Second Circuit on May 30th and will forward to the Committee as soon as I receive them.” Please provide us with this information as a supplement to the questionnaire.

(9) In response to Question 11(b), you state that you are a member of an organization, the Belizean Grove, that discriminates on the basis of sex. However, you indicate that you “do not consider the Belizean Grove to invidiously discriminate on the basis of sex in violation of the Code of Judicial Conduct.” Please explain the basis for your belief that membership in an organization that discriminates on the basis of sex nonetheless conforms to the Code of Judicial Conduct.

(2) Question 12(d) requires a list of speeches, remarks, lectures, etc., given by the nominee or, in the absence of prepared texts, outline/notes, then a summary of the subject matter (not a topic or a description). We believe that numerous entries in your list do not provide a “summary” of your remarks; instead, they set forth general topics. For example:

“I spoke on Second Circuit employment discrimination cases”;

“spoke, a federal court externship class on Access to Justice”;

“I spoke on the United States Judicial System”;

“I participated in a symposium on post-conviction relief. I spoke on the execution of judgment of conviction”;

“I spoke on the implementation of the Hague Convention in the United States and abroad”;

“I participated in an ACS Panel discussion on the sentencing guidelines”;

“I participated in a roundtable discussion and reception on ‘The Art of Judging’”;

“This list is not exhaustive. In addition, we are concerned about the fact that you have failed to provide a draft, video, or transcript for more than half of your speeches, remarks, lectures, etc. According to your questionnaire, you have identified 191 occasions responsive to the questionnaires. For 88, you stated that you could not locate any record, for one you stated that you gave a standard speech, for two you cross-referenced a different speech, for 81 you provided a draft or video, and for eight you provided news clippings instead of a draft, transcript or remarks. We are particularly troubled because there may well be transcripts of certain remarks. For example, a transcript of the 2004 panel entitled ‘The Future of Judicial Review: The View from the Bench’ was available online. Please advise us of the process you undertook to search for these speeches, and for those that you are unable to provide to the Committee, please provide a more thorough explanation of the content of each speech.

Although you have provided a great deal of information to the Committee, and we appreciate your efforts, it is important that your information be complete to permit the Committee to properly evaluate your record in the short time that has been provided.

That attention to this matter. We look forward to your receiving your supplemental answers as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

JEFF SESSION.

CHUCK GRASSLY.

JOHN CORNYN.

JON KYL.

TOM COHUN.

ORRIN HATCH.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, the judge has provided our committee with a good deal of information. We also appreciate that the judge has already once recognized that her quick questionnaire was incomplete. The issue was raised, and she provided the committee with additional information on June 6 which really should have been in the first response. However, we are still concerned with several aspects.

As I have already said, the minority leader reiterated this morning that members of the Judiciary Committee of the full Senate need a complete and thorough record in order to make informed judgments on this nomination.

This is a lifetime appointment. It is our one chance in Congress to get it right. A Justice on the Supreme Court, if not faithful, has the power to actually alter the Constitution in addition to faithfully follow it, and sometimes I think that is what they have done.

We need to know what kind of judges we are going to get. Does this judge understand that he or she will be under the law, subordinate to the law, one who must faithfully follow the law or do they believe they are above the law and have the freedom and the ability to interpret it in new and novel ways which might seem to further some agenda he or she might have, if they are on the bench? I think the American people are concerned about that. I think they are right to be concerned about that. Decisions have been rendered, in my opinion, that are not faithful to the Constitution, not required by the Constitution.

Those are things we need to talk about and do it in a fair way and do it at a high level. There is no need to be personal about it.

The oversights and errors in this questionnaire are the product of trying to rush through a nominee with one of the most lengthy records in recent history, maybe ever, to the Supreme Court, in one of the shortest time-frames in history.

I think we should try to get it right. I believe a fair and thorough process, in the best spirit of this Chamber and in the best interest of this Nation, is what we should look forward to. I want to see we get the complete record and get back on the right track. I believe we can do that and it is important we work at it.

I promise, as I said, to do what I can, and I believe we will have a very fair and objective hearing. But it is also important that we are fair to the American people. They are depending on us to carefully scrutinize anyone who may be for confirmation. We cannot do that without a complete questionnaire.

There are a number of things I raised the other day, yesterday, about the shortfall. I will briefly make a point or two. The letter sets forth in some detail quite a number of areas we get forth. It is eight different items and some other comments that we believe are inaccurate and we call for additional information. There are some significant matters that have not been addressed. When the judge supplemented her initial questionnaire on June 6 by providing us with a report concerning the death penalty article she drafted during her time on the board of the Puerto Rican Legal Defense Education Fund, she had initially omitted that from the report. We would appreciate confirmation that a thorough review of those records has been completed, given the initial omission, and that she has provided the relevant documents to the committee in response to this question.

There are other questions of writings, reports, and speeches. Question 12(a) requires the nominee to provide copies of materials written or edited, including any essays she has written, which relate to internal court deliberations and are not available for public dissemination.

I don’t think those are the kind of documents that are secret. I think they can be obtained, and I believe the questionnaire calls for all of those.

Paragraph 12(d) talks about a list of speeches and lectures providing the title of those speeches or, if that is not available, outlines and notes and, if not that, a summary of the subject matter involved in the speeches. About a third of those speeches have not been prepared and the summaries are inadequate. I will give an example. This was a response to one of them:

I spoke on Second Circuit employment discrimination cases.

There is no summary of what it was about, no outline or other information on that speech.

Another one:

I spoke at a federal court externship class on Access to Justice.

Another one:

I spoke on the United States Judicial System.

Another one:

I participated in a symposium on post-conviction relief. I spoke on the execution of judgments of conviction.

Another one:

I spoke on the implementation of the Hague Convention in the United States and abroad.

It goes on. There are several others. But those are inadequate responses, probably as a result of rushing the questionnaire through. I hope the nominee will go back and see, first of all, if she can find the written speech she gave and provide us a copy of it. That would be helpful as we review those matters because there have been some questions about speeches that the nominee has made.

I will not take any more time. I will let the letter speak for itself. I tried to call the judge earlier this afternoon, but she will not be available until sometime later, to tell her this is coming forward. I believe her staff may have already been notified of it, the White House Counsel’s office.

These are not little bitty matters. They are important matters. If we are going to move forward in a record-breaking timeframe, the least we can expect is complete and full answers to these questions. It is appropriate that we inquire that this questionnaire be properly and completely answered. I hope and believe it will be. Certainly that is what our request is.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROBERTS. I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for about 12 or 13 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about health care reform. What else in regard to the interests of the American people and what we are doing here?

As the Republican leader, Senator McCauley, has pointed out in several floor speeches over the past week or so, the desire for health care reform on both sides of the aisle is one that unites this Chamber across both political and geographic boundaries.

Our system of health care produces some of the best care in the world and it is the driver of a substantial share of the medical innovations that have wiped out diseases, improved our comfort, and extended our time on this Earth.

However, this system is not truly accessible to everybody, and that is the problem. That is what this entire debate boils down to: your ability to have access to a doctor, to go see the doctor of your choice when you need to see that doctor.

Solving this problem of access is exceedingly complicated, partly because it evidences itself in so many diverse ways all across the country, so many geographic areas. For example, in our rural areas in Kansas, we are struggling with attracting and retaining doctors and keeping the doors open to our hospitals, to our pharmacies, and clinics. We talk about recruiting athletes. My goodness, the business of recruiting doctors and health care professionals is equally as competitive.

In our urban areas such as Kansas City and Wichita, our providers face very different challenges which are just as daunting and which threaten a patient’s ability to access health care.

On top of that, although some 250 million Americans have health insurance, somewhere in the neighborhood of 27 to 47 million, depending on who you are counting and who is talking, do not. That makes accessing health care expensive and very challenging for them.

In addition, the government-run Medicare Program, which is on the verge of bankruptcy, by the way, does not pay doctors and pharmacists and ambulance drivers and nurse clinicians—pardon me, clinical lab folks and hospital health care providers and almost every health care provider that you can name—they do not pay them enough to cover their cost. Unless these providers have a non-Medicare population to recoup their losses, they cannot stay in business. He just met with some of his patients lose out—a de facto rationing of health care.

As a member of both the Finance and HELP Committees, and the cochair of the Seagull to heat bill that I am able to participate and have been participating, along with staff, in this complex and very difficult effort. We must reform our health care system into one that guarantees meaningful access for all Americans and assures that patient-doctor relationship.

However, this effort to date has been a tale of rhetoric versus that of reality. The promise of cooperation contrasted with the unfortunate but real fact of partisanship, something I do not like to say.

Let me explain. President Obama, who ran as a “postpartisan” candidate, has made many overtures to Republicans indicating a desire for this process to be bipartisan. He met with some members of our leadership and obviously the leadership on the other side of the aisle as of today.

Others in the Senate have declared their goal to be a bill that attracts upward of 70 votes. Is that possible? I would hope so. It could be. That would be a tremendous victory for the Senate of the United States and the American people.

But the reality is something very different. Today in the HELP Committee, the Health, Education, Labor and Pension Committees, we have just begun the process of walking through a 615-page bill that we are scheduled to mark up next Tuesday.

This bill does not have one single Republican support, as far as I can tell. Moreover, it is incomplete, with many details missing. For example, the innovation that improve the lives of not only those of us in this great country but all across the world. When people are really sick, they come to the United States.

This bill will spend upwards of $2 trillion—$2 trillion—our children and grandchildren will have to some day repay. If we are going to do this, we cannot afford to get it wrong. For this reason, I initiated a letter a week ago on behalf of all of my Republican colleagues on the Finance Committee and on the HELP Committee. I asked the chairman of those respective committees, the distinguished chairman, Senator Dodd, who is now serving in Senator Kennedy’s absence, to give this process the time and the careful consideration it deserves. That was the message of the letter: Give us the time and the very careful consideration this vital issue deserves.

It seems to me our requests have been extremely reasonable. First, please provide us with your detailed plan with enough time for us to read it, to understand it, and get feedback from our constituents back home, the people the bill will affect.

We have done this in the Finance Committee. Goodness knows, I do not know how many panels we have had, how many walk-throughs, how many slide presentations. Boy, that is tough in the afternoon to turn the lights off, to go home, to serve in the Senate of the United States.

It turns during the time we are privileged to serve in the Senate of the United States. This health care reform bill will affect the lives of every single American. It will reform a system that drives one-sixth of our economy, over 16 million American jobs. It will have consequences for medical science and innovation that improve the lives of not only those of us in this great country but all across the world. When people are really sick, they come to the United States.

I think asking for these details is absolutely fair. I think it is necessary under the circumstances. In fact, I would be ignoring my responsibilities to my constituents in Kansas if I did not demand these conditions be met.

Every single Republican member of the Finance Committee and HELP Committee signed the letter. Every single one expressed a desire to work with our colleagues to achieve bipartisan health care reform.

That brings me back to today's HELP Committee walk-through of 615 pages of an incomplete draft, the rushed HELP and Finance markup schedule, Tuesday, and then in about a week or two, the arbitrary floor debate deadlines that we hear from leadership. I hope our letter will slow this hurried dash to an imaginary finish line. Slow it down. Slow it down. I know it is extremely important that we pass good health care reform legislation. It is also extremely important to prevent bad legislation from passing and allowing America saddled with it for about 20 or 25 years. I wish at the end of every committee room, if in fact the bill gets to committee, the committee of jurisdiction, that we can hold appropriate hearings and have a sign that says, "Do no harm." And then right below it perhaps we could put "whoa," until everybody can slow down and read it in regard to process, and cost, and specifics of the bill, and trying to work together to get a good product.

There is no reason why the Senate should rush through a bill that has this much at stake. So time out. Time out. Time. Slow down. Give us the details. That is all we are asking for. The people of this great Nation deserve nothing less. Let's get health care reform and let's get it right.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THUNE. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

PAY-GO

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, there is a disturbing pattern emerging in Washington, DC, which I don't think is being lost on the American people. We have seen, since the beginning of this year, and accelerating debt, with the passage of the stimulus bill, with the new appropriations bill that was passed, an 8.3-percent increase over the previous year, which was twice the rate of inflation, and according to the Congressional Budget Office and the Joint Tax Committee, the average American family's share of the debt this year alone is $55,000. The average family's share of the Federal debt is $55,000 per family member.

But I think as more of this spending and more of this debt accumulates, the American people have become more convinced that the spending isn't solving the problem it was supposed to solve, which was we were going to create jobs, get the economy growing and expanding again. We haven't seen any of those effects.

What we have seen, of course, is more debt, more interest, and a bill that we would hand to future generations that is not fair to them because we should not be penalizing future generations and pushing them because we haven't been able to live within our means.

The most recent response to that by the administration was yesterday. They came out and announced they are going to implement pay-go. So we are going to have pay-go regulations or pay-go policies now in place with respect to the Federal budget and the way we operate in Congress. Incidentally, even when pay-go was in effect, it was not very effective because much of the budget, much of the spending that occurs in Washington is outside the realm or outside the net of pay-go. In fact, if you look at what pay-go does in terms of its design, it exempts all discretionary spending, would allow all current entitlement programs, such as Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid, to continue to grow on autopilot. It affects only new entitlements or tax cuts. In fact, if you look at what pay-go does in terms of its design, it exempts all discretionary spending, would allow all current entitlement programs, such as Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid, to continue to grow on autopilot. It affects only new entitlements or tax cuts.
So it is clearly biased in favor of higher spending and higher taxes. In fact, it does not apply to discretionary spending and if, in fact, it does not in a meaningful way apply to entitlement reform—in other words, it simply puts on one cap on how much entitlements can grow, but it doesn’t get at the fundamental issue that these programs continue to grow unabated—it is simply one thing: a statutory excuse to raise taxes. That is essentially what pay-go is.

The new administration came out with the news bulletin yesterday that this is somehow a bold, new step and that they are going to attack and take on this deficit and this debt we have. Of course, what they didn’t tell us is—sort of the expression we use in my part of the country—it is like closing the barn door after the horse is already out of the barn because we have already not all this spending this year that wasn’t covered by pay-go. The stimulus bill, which was $800 billion in new borrowing, was outside of pay-go. In fact, over the past several years now that the Democrats have been in power in the Congress, they have consistently violated the pay-go standard, about 15 times, to the tune of about $882 billion in all this new spending that was done outside of pay-go.

So now it is like all of a sudden coming to the conclusion and realization that now we are going to get serious about deficits, now we are going to get serious about spending, now we are going to somehow clamp down on all these new programs that are out there. Somehow, at least rhetorically, subscribing to pay-go as a concept is going to be the solution and the answer to that.

I think we all know better than that. As I mentioned, pay-go has been routinely sort of ignored in the past. Even if it were to apply, as I mentioned earlier, it does not capture much of the spending that goes on here in Washington. It is simply nothing more than a way to raise taxes. Having said that, I mentioned before much of the spending that has already occurred here in Washington. Yet the big-ticket items are still looming out there on the horizon in the future. By that I mean health care reform, which is a big priority of the administration. We are starting to see more details, get a little bit of a glimpse of what that might entail.

We know, for one thing, based upon the statements that have been made by the President and by the Democratic leaders in the Congress, they want it to include a government plan, purely and simply. They want a government plan, which means one thing; that is, that the government takes over health care in this country. Because you cannot maintain a private insurance program, you cannot maintain a private-sector delivery system, a market-based health care system in this country if you are going to have a government plan.

The government plan is where everybody, according to studies that have been done, eventually would end up going. They would gratefully there. More and more small businesses either would be forced to pay fines, if they did not have insurance themselves or offer insurance. The suggestion is—and I think it is a fair one based upon the analysis—that a lot of the independent outside groups—you will see more and more small businesses giving up their health care coverage and having their employees move and transition into the government plan. The government will become the repository for all the employees who are currently covered in employer-provided health care plans in this country.

So the government component of this will continue to grow, and eventually you will have a system that very much models or is very similar to what we see in other places around the world. Some people talk about Canada, some people talk about Europe and all these other countries. But the reality is, a lot of the people in those countries come to the United States. The reason they come here is because we have the highest-quality care and because they can get access to it.

The one thing that happens when the government runs health care is the government decides what procedures are covered. The government decides what treatments are going to be part of the coverage. The government will decide how soon you can get access to those treatments. What you find in other countries around the world are long lines, long waits, and that is fairly typical of the countries I mentioned.

The thing that makes the American system so unique in all the world is its dependence upon and its foundation upon a market-based system. It has led to incredible innovation. It has led to incredible research and development, new treatments, new therapies, and has provided all kinds of opportunities for people of this country to receive health care, and, frankly, as I mentioned before, for people from other countries who come here to get their health care.

So why we would want to throw out that part of our health care system that is so good and replace it with a government-run system—which, frankly, again, the government is going to get in the middle of the decision between the consumer of health care or the patient and the physicien, and make those decisions. It seems to me that is not a model we want to emulate in the United States. As I said, we have a system that needs reform. We have flaws in the way our current system works. But the fact is, it is the very best health care system in the world, and I think it would be a big mistake for us to go down a path that shifts and moves more and more people into a government-run, government-controlled system. Where procedures are going to be covered and how soon you are going to have access to them.

I think it does one thing: It obviously would lead to a rationing of health care. By that I mean, simply again, that the government would have to try the clamp down on costs, limit the access of people to have certain types of therapies, certain types of treatments, and I think you would find less and less choice available in health care in this country. That is what I think a government-run system would give you in the end.

Most of us on this side have laid out a number of proposals, alternatives to a government-run system. Everybody says: Well, come up with a plan of your own. We have a number of them out there. We have a Coburn-Burr plan that has been introduced. Senator Gregg from New Hampshire has a plan that has been introduced. There is a Bennet-Wyden bill, which is a bipartisan bill, that has been introduced out there. There is a number of alterna- tives that have been put forward by Republicans.

To date, we have only seen little sort of generalities about the Democrat plan. All we simply say is we are going to insist upon a government-run component to that. Again, it simply is nothing more and nothing less than a government takeover of health care, which is going to lead to all kinds of outcomes that I do not think most people in this country are prepared for and, frankly, if they had the opportunity, would not support.

But they have entrusted us with the responsibility to look for ways to make health care more affordable. We are talking about anywhere from $1 trillion to $1.5 trillion to $2 trillion. Of course, if they are going to adhere to the newly announced pay-go standard, that means this new entitlement program has to be paid for.
So where does that $1.5 trillion or $2 trillion come from? Well, obviously, it is going to come from some revenues raised from some part of our economy. That means a lot of hard-working Americans are going to see their taxes go up, as this new government takeover of health care, which is going to give them fewer options, and get in the way of the patient-doctor relationship, and cost them a lot more in the form of higher taxes.

I think even though much of the spending I have already referred to is in our rearview mirror—all that is left is to pay the bill for that. We still have to pay the bill. We are borrowing, which means somebody is going to pay the bill. We are going to hand off the bill to the next generation of Americans because, obviously, when you borrow $1 trillion, someday it has to be paid back. In the meantime, when you continue to rack up that kind of borrowing and when you continue to do all the other things we are doing in our economy in terms of interventions, whether it is with regard to financial institutions or auto manufacturers—you can kind of go down the list—insurance companies now that the government actually has an ownership interest in that—we are acquiring enormous amounts of exposure and debt for the taxpayers of this country.

The health care plan is going to be another $1.5 trillion or $2 trillion on top of that. When you borrow at that amount of money, you do have to pay it back. By the way, I should mention, too, the interest on the amount of debt we are going to rack up in the next 10 years alone is about $5 trillion. Think about that. That is just to pay the finance charge on the debt we have in this country. Think about the enormous burden that places on the American taxpayers and the American economy.

What generally happens in a case such as that is, when you borrow that much money, there is a lot more pressure out there, and the people who are buying that debt are, at some point, going to start demanding a higher interest rate. When interest rates go up, with the higher return on their investment, generally inflation follows with it. So you have all kinds of economic problems that are created by the level of borrowing we have already incurred. And, of course, to add a new heavy healthcare entitlement on top of that. It literally is breathtaking the amount of intervention we are seeing in the private marketplace today.

I talked about some of the spending and some of the borrowing that has been done. But in the taxes that are going to be associated with health care—and I could go down a list. There is a three-page list of the various, what we call pay-fores or ways of raising revenue to help finance health care. But there is a big tax looming on the horizon, and that is the carbon tax, what we call the national sales tax on energy. If this climate change bill, which is currently moving through the House of Representatives, reaches the Senate, and if it does, in fact, pass the Congress this year, that, too, will entail an incredible amount of taxation, because there is no way in this country you can attach, essentially, a cost to carbon emissions. Companies that emit to buy the credits that would be associated with that without them passing it on. They are going to pass it on. Everybody admits that. The President has admitted that. The leadership on the other side has admitted that.

All the utility companies in the country will tell you that.

A carbon tax, a national sales tax on energy, would hit places such as where I am from in the Midwest the hardest because we are, by and large, proportionately more dependent upon coal-fired power than are many other areas in the country. We have a sparse population, which means we have a higher carbon footprint,” which means people produce more in this state in terms of the carbon they are doing. They are going to pay way more for energy under any kind of a climate change bill or what we call a cap-and-trade bill or cap-and-tax bill.

However you want to refer to it, there is a sense of getting around the fact that it is going to cost an enormous amount every single year for families in this country, for businesses in this country, for industrial users, for school districts. I have seen the statistics from school districts in my State, from commercial users, from residential users about what those costs are going to be. They are stunning.

So that is another tax that is still out there. Add that to the health care tax that will come with whatever health care bill is passed through here, and the amount of taxation is going to start to rival the amount of spending and borrowing that is going on in Washington.

But it brings me to my final point, and that is what I am concerned about and what I am starting to hear more and more from people in my State of South Dakota—many cases unsolicited—who come up to me and raise this issue of the amount of government ownership of our private economy. We are seeing, again, unprecedented levels.

If there is one bedrock principle in American history, it is the adherence to the ideals of private enterprise. In a moment of extreme candor, the Economist commented, the United States has substantially deviated from this historical pattern, and the Federal Government now owns substantial shares of major U.S. corporations. We own—the taxpayers; I mean you and I and all of us here—we are now shareholders in a lot of major U.S. corporations. The taxpayers—the Federal Government—own 79 percent of AIG, 75 percent of General Motors, 10 percent of Chrysler, 36 percent of Citibank, 80 percent of Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae. And it goes on and on and on.

So we have all this spending, borrowing and taxing and now, on top of that, increasing the amount of government ownership of America’s private economy. If there is one thing Americans are clear on, it is that the government should not be taking over bigger and bigger shares of the American economy.

There was a survey recently by Rasmussen that said 75 percent of Americans agree the Federal Government should not take over the U.S. banking system. That was a poll done in February. More recently, 60 percent say that the bailout loans given to GM and Chrysler were a bad idea. That was an April 21 poll. A new poll, done on May 31, just recently, shows that 67 percent of Americans are opposed to providing General Motors with $50 billion and giving the government a 70-percent ownership interest in GM. Mr. President, 56 percent of voters said it would be better to let GM go out of business. None of us want to see that. But I think none of us, at least most Americans do not want to see the government owning more and more of American companies. The Federal Government is inevitably going to use that ownership stake to push its own agenda.

In a moment of extreme candor, former Labor Secretary Robert Reich declared that if the government is an active shareholder, they should “push management to take actions that are not necessarily geared toward higher shareholder return.”

Think about that statement. The government owns more and more of American businesses. They should not be management decisions to take actions that are not necessarily geared toward higher shareholder return.” In other words, the government should use its newly acquired power in formerly private companies to further its own agenda.

Both the political process and the free markets are going to be distorted if that happens. In fact, in the New Republic, Noam Scheiber recently wrote that “government ownership invariably politicizes management decisions which could be a fiasco.” The article notes that a coalition of unions is lobbying against providing bailout dollars to Principal Financial Group because of its opposition to “card check.” You find more and more of these pressures on now because the government has a bigger and bigger stake in the government dictating day-to-day management decisions in American business. That is not a path I would argue we want to go down.

The Economist commented on the government-forced Chrysler bankruptcy:

In its haste it has vilified creditors and rid them of any chance to take claims over the carmaker’s assets. At a time when many businesses must raise new borrowing to survive, that is a big mistake. . . . The Treasury has also put a gun to the heads of GM’s lenders.

In a recent Bloomberg article, Bradley Keoun warns of some of the problems that Citigroup—and other banks incurred in accepting bailout money—may encounter as a result of the partial government ownership. Among them he cites government pressure for stricter compensation rules, directives to focus on “State-approved social objectives,” increasing scrutiny of earnings, and being forced to exit risk-taking businesses that are profitable competitors.

I think there is plenty of thought out there from people who understand the economy and the importance of the private market, its tradition, its contribution to the success of the American economy, and the prosperity we enjoy today, as well as a lot of anecdotal and other evidence that when the government gets into these particular situations where it is trying to influence the day-to-day decisions of private business in this country, those who are trying to manage our private businesses in this country, leads to all kinds of fiascos and disaster.

I was more than one point and that is, according to Bloomberg, after demands from lawmakers, Citigroup consented to support cramdown legislation, even though this policy was opposed by others in the banking industry. It is pretty clear these types of interventions into the private marketplace, into the free market economy in this country, lead us down a path that is not good for American taxpayers, not good for the American economy, and that it stifles innovation and entrepreneurship. In fact, I would argue it kills the entrepreneurial spirit in this country to have government taking bigger and bigger ownership interests, bigger and bigger ownership stakes in the American economy, and further dictating the decisions, the day-to-day decisions which American businesses make that are designed to grow their companies, to get a better return for the shareholders, to become more profitable, to make America more prosperous, to raise our standard of living, and to deliver more benefits to employees—all these things that have driven this economy and made it the envy of the world. I don’t think we want to go down a path or stay down a path that gets us deeper and deeper into ownership of the private economy.

I am going to be introducing and filing a piece of legislation tomorrow which addresses this issue and which provides an exit strategy for the Federal Government and for the taxpayers to begin to get out of all these ownership interests they have in the American economy, and I will have to opportunity on the floor to talk more about that at a later time. But this afternoon, I wished to touch on these issues as we begin the debate which has sort of captured this city and the Congress and the administration. I think it’s going to engage the American public over health care reform and the trillions of dollars of new taxes and revenues that are going to be necessary to finance the proposal the new administration has for health care reform and how that takes us even further down the path of government intervention and a level of nationalization of our private economy—in this case health care—and that pattern that just goes on and on which I think more and more Americans are reacting to and more and more Americans, I believe, are going to become engaged in.

Members of Congress on both sides are going to be hearing from their constituents about what they perceive to be a real threat to the long-term viability, the long-term prosperity, and the long-term protection of the taxpayers’ interests. I hope they will become more engaged. I certainly hope we will be able to defeat proposals that come before the Senate that call for greater governmental ownership, greater governmental intervention, greater expansion of governmental power in Washington that will limit the choices of Americans, limit their access to health care opportunities, health care therapies, health care treatments that all too often are lost, I believe, in a system where the government rations care. I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MCCHRISTAL NOMINATION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, in my office a few minutes ago, I received a call from Admiral Mullen, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. I wrote down what he asked and what he said. He said there is a sense of urgency that General McChrystal be able to go to Afghanistan tonight.

There is no commander in Afghanistan.

Admiral Mullen said—and I wrote it down: Admiral McChrystal is literally waiting by an airplane. It is 2 o’clock in the morning Thursday in Afghanistan. Dawn will soon be breaking and our troops will not have a commander there.

Is this what the minority wants? Why can’t they come and approve this man to go defend us in Afghanistan? I am without words to try to explain my consternation at the fact that General McChrystal, one of our most eminent, prominent, outstanding, qualified soldiers, a man whose father won five Silver Stars, a man whose record is one of being the leading person in our military to do counterinsurgency—that is what he is an expert in doing.

Let’s get the man appointed tonight so he can leave in an airplane and get over there and take care of his men and women.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

GUANTANAMO

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, it wasn’t that long ago that the Senate voted almost unanimously to oppose bringing any terrorists at Guantanamo to the United States. But earlier this week, the administration ignored the will of the American people as expressed through that Senate vote by transferring a Guantanamo detainee named Ahmed Ghailani to New York. The purpose of the transfer is to try Ghailani in a U.S. civilian court for his role in the African embassy bombings of 1998. The administration’s decision raises a number of serious questions.

First, Ghailani has already admitted that he attended a terrorist training camp in Afghanistan and assisted those who planned and carried out the embassy attack, but says he did so unintentionally. In a U.S. civilian court, if you’re found not guilty, you’re allowed to go free. So if we are going to treat this terrorist detainee as a common civilian criminal, what will happen to Ghailani if he’s found not guilty? And what will happen to other detainees the administration wants to try in civilian courts if they are found not guilty? Will they be released? If so, where? In New York? In American communities? Or will they be released overseas, where they could return to terror and target American soldiers or innocent civilians?

Second, if Ghailani isn’t allowed to go free, will he be detained by the government? If so, where will he be detained? Would the administration detain him on U.S. soil, despite the objections of Congress and the American people?

Third, why does the administration think a civilian court is the appropriate place to try Ghailani? Congress enacted the military commissions process on a bipartisan basis as a way to bring terrorists to justice without disclosing information that could harm national security. Some have complained that the previous administration moved too slowly on military commissions, but a lot of that delay was due to the constant legal challenges that were leveled against the process, including by some in the current administration. In fact, Ghailani’s case was already being handled by the military commissions process—to the point that a judge had established a trial schedule for him. I ask unanimous consent that the trial schedule be printed in the RECORD.

The Senate proceedings, the trial proceedings, and the detention of terrorists will be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
United States of America v Ahmed Khalfan Ghailani (aka "Fuji", "Haytham", "Abubakar Khalfan Ahmed", "Sharif Omar")

Schedule for Trial Amendment One

4 March 2009

1. The following trial schedule is ordered. Times when listed are local Eastern United States.
   a. 1 June 2009: Discovery completed.
   b. 13 July 2009: Discovery Motions due to the military judge and opposing counsel. If counsel intend to submit more than ten (10) discovery motions, counsel shall inform the military judge and opposing counsel of the total number of law motions which counsel intend to present NLT 1200 hours, 8 June 2009. If appropriate, the military judge will advise counsel of a revised schedule to present the motions.
   d. 20 July 2009: Law Motions due to the military judge and opposing counsel. In general, law motions are those which require no evidentiary hearing to determine. If counsel intend to submit more than ten (10) law motions, counsel shall inform the military judge and opposing counsel of the total number of law motions which counsel intend to present NLT 1200 hours, 13 July 2009. The military judge will advise counsel of a revised schedule to present the motions.
   e. 20 July 2009: Law Motions due to the military judge and opposing counsel. In general, law motions are those which require no evidentiary hearing to determine. If counsel intend to submit more than ten (10) law motions, counsel shall inform the military judge and opposing counsel of the total number of law motions which counsel intend to present NLT 1200 hours, 13 July 2009. The military judge will advise counsel of a revised schedule to present the motions.
   h. 31 August 2009: Evidentiary Motions due.

2. Note: Evidentiary Motions due within five business days of the submission of the request. Any Defense motion for production of witnesses in conjunction with a motion will be due to the court and opposing counsel within five days of receipt of a denied witness request.

3. Requests for deviations from the timelines for hearings or for submission of motions established by this notice must be submitted not later than 20 days prior to the date established, except for law motions for which requests for deviations from the due date must be submitted within 7 days prior to the date established.

4. Monthly Status Conferences will be scheduled throughout the pendency of this action or as needed under the circumstances. Counsel should anticipate the fluidity of the process of this action and be vigilant to adjust schedules as necessary to maintain the efficient and fair administration of justice. Court's decisions by reconsidering its position in the matter for Guantanamo, and trying them using the military commissions process. Fourth, how will the administration ensure that trying Ghailani in a U.S. court doesn't damage our national security? As we've seen in the past, trying terrorists in the U.S. has made it harder for our national security professionals to protect the American people. This moved to use the military commissions process, is the best way to deliver justice while protecting the American community, we will enable terrorists to escape justice. Mr. DURBIN. I was hoping to ask the Senator from Kentucky a question.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I understand the majority leader was asking about clearing some military promotions earlier today. I wanted to indicate—and I see the assistant majority leader is here—we are clear with those and never had an issue with these particular promotions. Therefore, I suggest that we call them up and confirm them immediately.

Unless there is an objection from the other side, and having notified the other side, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to executive session to consider the following military promotions: Calendar Nos. 192, 193, and 194. I further ask unanimous consent that these nominations be confirmed en bloc, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, that the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action, and that the Senate then resume legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nominations considered and confirmed are as follows:

IN THE AIR FORCE

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Air Force to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 601:

To be general
Lt. Gen. Douglas M. Fraser

IN THE ARMY

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Army to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 601:

To be general
Lt. Gen. Stanley A. McChrystal

IN THE NAVY

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Navy to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 601:

To be admiral
Adm. James G. Stavridis

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now return to legislative session.

The Senator from Illinois.

GUANTANAMO

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I want to make a comment about the minority leader’s statement on the floor while he is still here. If he is willing to stay, we can engage in a dialog on this issue. I think it is time we do come to the floor together, along with the Republican whip, and at least make it clear what our positions are on some of these issues related to Guantanamo because it has been a matter of concern and a lot of comment on the floor of the Senate over the last several weeks.

I was going to ask the Senator from Kentucky, the minority leader, whether I understood him correctly when he said he believed that this individual, Ahmed Ghailani, if found not guilty in a court in the United States, would be released in the United States to stay here in a legal status. I wish to ask the Senator, if that is what he said, what is the basis for that statement?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I can only repeat what the President’s spokesman himself said. I am responding to the question propounded to me by the Senator from Illinois. It is my understanding the President’s spokesman was understood to say that what would happen to Ghailani if he were found not guilty. So there is some confusion about that.

Mr. DURBIN. There is no confusion. This is such a leap to argue that if this man, who is not a resident of the United States—if I am not mistaken, he is Tanzanian—that somehow if he is found not guilty in the courts of the United States, he is qualified to be released into our population. That is a statement I don’t know anyone could draw that conclusion. He would have no legal status to stay in the United States unless we gave him one.

By what basis does the Senator from Kentucky suggest that this man, who may have been involved in the killing of 12 Americans among 224 other people, is going to be released by President Obama into our communities and neighborhoods?

Mr. McCONNELL. Is the Senator asking me a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I am.

Mr. McCONNELL. Let me say I am only quoting the President’s spokesman. He says he doesn’t know what would happen if Ghailani is released.

Let me say to the Senator from Illinois, let’s assume that he is sent back to the country from which he came. I ask, in what way is America safer if Yousef was held in preparation for trial and during trial because he was held in a secure facility.

Today we are told by the Department of Justice that there are 355 convicted terrorists in American prisons. I asked the Senator from Kentucky, does he believe we should remove them from our prisons, those already convicted, and from our neighborhoods, those currently serving, such as Ramzi Yousef?

Mr. McCONNELL. I say to my friend from Illinois, he has made this point before, and I answered it before. I will answer it again. If President Bush didn’t put a date on it before he had an idea what he was going to do with them. And that is the core issue here.

Mr. DURBIN. The core issue is for 7 long years, the Bush administration failed to convict the terrorists who planned the 9/11 terrorist attacks—for 7 years. And for 7 long years, only three individuals were convicted by military commissions at Guantanamo, and two of them have been released. So to argue that the Guantanamo model is one that ought to be protected and maintained, notwithstanding all of the danger it creates for our servicemen overseas to keep Guantanamo open, is to argue for a plan under the Bush administration that failed to convict terrorists, failed with military tribunals and through the courts of this land.

I have to say that as I listen to the argument of the Senator from Kentucky, it is an argument based on fear—fear—that if we try someone in a court in America, while they are incarcerated during trial, we need to be afraid. There was no fear in New York for more than 2 years while Ramzi Yousef was held in preparation for trial and during trial because he was held in a secure facility.

I don’t know what will happen to Mr. Ghailani if he is found not guilty. It is conceivable that he could be charged with other things. It is conceivable he could face a military tribunal. It is conceivable he may be subject to detention.

I will say this with certainty: President Obama will not allow dangerous terrorists to be released in the United States in our communities and neighborhoods. I hope everyone on both sides of the aisle would agree with that.

Mr. DURBIN. The Senator from Kentucky is critical of President Obama for announcing that he was going to close Guantanamo before he had a plan, why didn’t we hear the same complaint when President George W. Bush announced he was going to close Guantanamo before he had a plan? Is the difference partisan?

Mr. McCONNELL. I say to my friend from Illinois, he has made this point before, and I answered it before. I will answer it again. If President Bush didn’t put a date on it before he had an idea what he was going to do with them. And that is the core issue here.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

is the place to try them, right down there in Guantanamo.

If my friend is suggesting it is a good idea to bring these terrorists into the United States and, if convicted, put them in U.S. facilities, the supermax facility has basically no room. There may be one bed. As far as I know, there is no room at supermax.

Not only do we have, if we bring them into the United States—I don’t know, this is not a laughing matter. Say what you will about the previous administration, but the supermax facility has basically no room. As far as I know, there is no room at supermax.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, will Mr. McConnell, I don’t have the floor. My friend from Arizona. Maybe he can get the Senator from Illinois to yield for a question as well.

I don’t think we want to complain about the fact we haven’t been attacked since 9/11. I say to my friend from Arizona. If you did what I think you should do, with the 355 convicted terrorists currently in prison, and the Senator didn’t answer. He said: We haven’t been attacked since 9/11. That is unresponsive.

We have facilities where these convicted terrorists can be held safely and securely. Marion Federal Penitentiary in my home State has 33 convicted terrorists. I just spent a week down there, not far from the Senator from Kentucky. I say to my friend from Illinois, would you do with the 355 convicted terrorists currently in prison, and the Senator didn’t answer. He said: We haven’t been attacked since 9/11. That is unresponsive.

I say to my friend from Illinois, would you do with the 355 convicted terrorists currently in prison, and the Senator didn’t answer. He said: We haven’t been attacked since 9/11. That is unresponsive.

I trust the courts of our land, the same courts that convicted Ramzi Yousef. I trust those courts to give Ghailani a fair trial under American law. I trust at the end of the day that a jury, if it is a jury, will reach its decision.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, let me say Senator McCain and Senator Graham can speak for themselves, but neither of them has ever been in favor of closing Guantanamo without a plan to do something. They want to see what the plan is to deal with these terrorists. Beyond that, they can speak for themselves. But they are not in favor of closing Guantanamo without a plan.

With regard to the suggestion that we should bring these prisoners to the United States and try them, my good friend from Illinois has suggested there is no down side to that. Why not do it? We could. But the question is, Should we? We should not because we passed the military commissions for the purpose of trying these very detainees. There are courtrooms and a $200 million state-of-the-art facility at Guantanamo to both incarcerate them and to try them. We know no one has ever escaped there, and we know we haven’t been attacked again since 9/11.

Let’s assume terrorists bring them up here for trial. My good friend has suggested no harm done. During the Ramzi Yousef trial, he tipped off terrorists to communications link. During the Zacarias Moussaoui trial, there was inadvertently leaked sensitive material. The east Africa Embassy bombing trials aided Osama bin Laden. The blind Sheikh Abdel-Rahman trial provided intel to Osama bin Laden. When you have these kinds of trials in a regular American criminal setting, there are downsides to it.

In terms of community disruption, I would cite the mayor of Alexandria, VA, right across the river. Ask him... how he felt about the impact of the Moussaoui trial on their community.

So I think the suggestion that somehow it is a good solution to bring these terrorists to the United States and to mainstream them into the U.S. criminal justice system is simply mistaken. If they are convicted, we don’t have a good place for them. Everybody cited the supermax facility. Well, there is no room there. It is quite full. We have the perfect place for these detainees, for them to be detained and to be tried and ultimate decisions made.

I share the view of the Senator from Illinois that the previous administration did not engage in those military tribunals as rapidly as we all would like. They had a lot of disruptions from lawsuits and other things, and I expect they would argue that slowed them down. But I think they are in the right place—the right place to be incarcerated and the right place to have their cases disposed of.

Mr. President, my friend from Arizona is here and wants to address this, or another issue, and so I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BENNETT). The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I will speak briefly, then yield to the Senator from Arizona. I will be happy, if he wants to ask a question or maintain a dialogue, but I will make this very brief.

I have confidence in the courts of America. If I had to pick one place on Earth to have a trial and to be assured it would be a fair trial with a fair outcome, it would be right here in the United States of America. Maybe I have gone too far. Maybe I am showing a bit of rhetoric. For example, I would assert that he would be released in our system of justice. I believe in the integrity of our judiciary. I believe in our Department of Justice prosecutors. I believe in our defense system, our jury system. I believe we have the capacity and the resources to try someone one fairly better than anywhere in the world.

The Senator from Kentucky may not agree with that conclusion. He obviously thinks there is too much danger to have a trial of a terrorist in the United States. How then does he explain 355 convicted terrorists now sitting in American prisons, tried in our courts, sent to our prisons, safely incarcerated for years? That is proof positive of this system working.

The Senator from Kentucky, the Republican leader, is afraid. He is not only afraid of terrorism—and we all should be because we suffered grievously on 9/11—but he is afraid our Constitution is not strong enough to deal with threats. He is afraid the guarantees and rights under our Constitution may go too far when it comes to keeping America safe. He is afraid of using our court system for fear it will make us less safe, that it would be dangerous. He is afraid the values we have stood for and the Geneva Conventions and other agreements over the years may not be applicable to this situation. I don’t think that in this country, in its Constitution, in its values, in the rights of all Americans, the people who are sworn to uphold them at every level, I believe Mr. Ghailani will get a fairer trial in the United States than anywhere on Earth, and that if he is found guilty in being involved in over 200 innocent people and innocent Americans, he will pay the price he should pay, and he will be incarcerated safely.

This notion that we have run out of supermax beds and that is the end of the story—and the State of Colorado is the home State of the President Officer, where the Florence facility is located—I would say to the Senator from Kentucky that may be true for the supermax facility at the Federal level, but there are supermax facilities across America that can safely incarcerate convicted terrorists or serial murderers or whomever. We can take care of these people.

If there is one thing America knows how to do, it is how to try a question whether we should brag about it—we know how to incarcerate people. We do it more than any other place on Earth, and we do it safely. The notion there is only one place—Guantanamo—where these dangerous people are safely held defies logic and human experience.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, first of all, I was going to interrupt and ask a question, but I simply conferred with Senator MCCONNELL—and I will state and the RECORD can reflect the fact—that I believe Senator MCCONNELL asked the question of where he would be released if he were convicted. I don’t believe he asserted that he would be released in the United States. I just wanted to clear that up. Obviously, we can check the transcript and determine it. I think that was his intent because of the questions that Robert Gibbs had posed. At least that is my understanding of it. We can resolve that.

But I would like to say a couple of other things. First of all, it is important to have this debate. The Senate has been discussing this. I think the practice would be to try to do so. But on an occasional basis, when we have a good Federal charge, we have the evidence that can back it up, and we think we can get a conviction, there is nothing wrong in those few selected cases with doing it. But I can’t say all 240 of the terrorists at Guantanamo qualify for that. Very few of them do, as the President said in his remarks.

Let me note some of these cases. The famous trial of Ramzi Yousef. Here is a statement by Michael Mukasey, the former Attorney General. This is a quotation from the Wall Street Journal, again, during the trial of Ramzi...
Yousef, the mastermind of the 1993 World Trade Center bombing:

"Apparently, an innocuous bit of testimony . . . about delivery of a cell phone battery was enough to tip off terrorists still at large that Osama bin Laden was monitoring their communications. . . . Link, which in fact had been monitored by the government and had provided enormously invaluable intelligence, was immediately shut down, and further information lost."

I am not going to read the entire quotations but just some headlines. I mentioned the trial of Zacarias Moussaoui. That was a case also in which sensitive material was inadvertently leaked. Here is the headline from a CNBC story:

There is a whole story about how that happened. The East Africa Embassy bombing trials, which occurred after 2001, September 26 is the Star-Ledger story:

The story of disclosing information unwisely became clear after the New York trials of bin Laden associates for the 1998 bombings of U.S. embassies in Africa. Some of the evidence indicated that the National Security Agency, the U.S. foreign eavesdropping organization, had intercepted cell phone conversations. Shortly thereafter, bin Laden stopped using a particular means of communication. In the late 90’s, it leaked out in The Washington Post that the National Security Agency was tracking his location through his cell phone. After this information was public, Mr. bin Laden stopped using the phone.

There is another story about the same thing, with a headline in the New York Times. There is another quotation about the trial of the blind sheik, a story we are all familiar with, of Michael Mukasey, the former Attorney General, saying this in the Wall Street Journal:

In the course of prosecuting Omar Abdel Rahman: . . . the government was compelled—by cases that charged him with conspiring to provide material support to terrorists—to turn over a list of unindicted co-conspirators to the defendants. Within ten days, a copy of that list reached bin Laden in Khartoum.

There are other cases, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have these articles printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

N.Y. LAWYER CONVICTED OF AIDING TERRORISTS

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK.—A veteran civil rights lawyer was convicted Thursday of crossing the line by smuggling messages of violence from one of her jailed clients—a radical Egyptian sheik—to his terrorist disciples on the outside.

The jury deliberated 13 days over the past month before convicting Lynne Stewart, 65, a firebrand, left-wing activist known for representing radicals and revolutionaries in her 30 years as a New York lawyer.

The trial, which began last June, focused attention on the line between zealous advocacy and criminal behavior by a lawyer. Some jurors saw the case as a government warning to attorneys to tread carefully in terrorism cases.

Stewart slumped in her chair as the verdict was read, shaking her head and later wiping tears from her eyes.

"She supported his idea of turning the courts into a forum where these people could tell their story, claiming he did not commit the crimes he was accused of committing, and was a victim of the system," said David Rosenbaum, a New York-based lawyer who is representing Stewart.

But she also testified that she believed violence was sometimes necessary to achieve justice: "To rid ourselves of the entrenched, voracious type of capitalism that is in this country that perpetuates our racism, I don’t think that can come nonviolently."

A major part of the prosecution’s case was Stewart’s 2000 release of a document withdrawing the sheik’s support for a cease-fire in Egypt by his militant followers.

Prosecutors, though, could point to no violence that resulted from the statement.

BUSINESS ACCOUNT OF A LEAK’S IMPACT HAS IMPACT

(By David E. Rosenbaum)

WASHINGTON.—As an example of the damage caused by unauthorized disclosures to reporters, President Bush said at his news conference on Monday that Osama bin Laden had been tipping by a leak that the United States was tracking his location through his telephone. After this information was published, Mr. Bush said, Mr. bin Laden stopped using the phone.

The president was apparently referring to an article in The Washington Times in August 1998.

Toward the end of a profile of Mr. bin Laden the day after American cruise missiles struck targets in Afghanistan and Sudan, that newspaper, without identifying a source, reported that “he keeps in touch with the world via computers and satellite phones.”

The article drew little attention at the time in the United States. But last year, the Sept. 11 commission declared in its final report: “Al Qaeda’s senior leadership had stopped using a particular means of communication almost immediately after a leak to The Washington Times. This made it much more difficult for national security agencies to intercept his communications.”

There was a footnote to the newspaper article:

Lee H. Hamilton, the vice chairman of the commission, mentioned the consequences of the article in a speech last month. He said: “Al Qaeda’s senior leadership had stopped using a particular means of communication almost immediately after a leak to The Washington Times.”

In their 2002 book, “The Age of Sacred Terror” (Random House), Steven Simon and Daniel Benjamin, who worked at the National Security Council under President Bill Clinton, also mentioned the incident. They wrote, “When bin Laden stopped using the phone and let his aides do the calling, the United States lost its best chance to find him.”

More details about the use of satellite phones by Mr. bin Laden and his lieutenants were revealed by federal prosecutors in the 2001 trial in Federal District Court in Manhattan of four men charged with conspiring to bomb two American embassies in East Africa in 1998.

As the trial of the man who is believed to be the mastermind of the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, the suspect in the 1998 bombings of the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania, and the man the government says gave the mastermind of the 1993 World Trade Center bombing his cell phone to discuss sensitive operational details, U.S. intelligence sources said.

There is another story about the same thing, with a headline in the New York Times. There is another quotation about the trial of the blind sheik, a story we are all familiar with, of Michael Mukasey, the former Attorney General, saying this in the Wall Street Journal:

[From the Wall Street Journal, Aug. 22, 2007] JOSE PADILLA MAKES BAD LAW—TERROR TRIALS HURT THE NATION EVEN WHEN THEY LEAD TO CONVICTIONS

[By David A. S. Mulkesey]

The apparently conventional ending to Jose Padilla’s trial last week—conviction on charges of conspiring to commit violence abroad and providing material assistance to a terrorist organization—left us with an odd and unsettling conclusion: The che- riest hope to anyone concerned about how our legal system deals with the threat of international terrorism is that it will be dispersed with a conventional explosive—albeit in a limited time in which to let Padilla testify, prosecute him or let him go. As that limited time drew to a close, the government changed course. It withdrew the grand jury subpoena that had triggered his designation as a material witness, designated Padilla instead as an unlawful combatant, and transferred him to military custody.

The reason? Perhaps it was because the initial claim, that Padilla was involved in a dirty bomb plot, could not be proved with evidence admissible in an ordinary criminal trial. Perhaps it was because to try him in open court potentially would compromise sources and methods of intelligence gathering. Or perhaps it was because Padilla’s apparent contact with higher-ups in al Qaeda made him more valuable as a potential intel- ligence source.

The government’s quandary here was real. The evidence that brought Padilla to the government’s attention may have been compelling, but its source is highly questionable. The most obvious reason why that could be so; or the source may have been such that to disclose it in a criminal trial could harm national security. In fact, terrorism prosecutions in this country have unintentionally provided ter- rorists with a rich source of intelligence. For example, in the course of prosecuting Omar Abdel Rahman (the so-called “blind sheik”) and others for their role in the 1990 World Trade Center bombing and other crimes, the one event that is in all cases that charge conspiracy—to turn over a list of unindicted co-conspirators to the defen- dants. That list included the name of Osama bin Laden. As was learned later, within 10 days a copy of that list reached bin Laden in Khar- toum, letting him know that his connection to that case had been discovered. Again, during the trial of Ramzi Yousef, the mastermind of the 1993 World Trade Cen- ter bombing, the government could see that in his testimony in a public courtroom about deliver- ary of a cell phone battery was enough to tip off terrorists still at large that one of their own had been compromised. That link, which in fact had been monitored by the government and had provided enormous value to the investigators, was immediately shut down, and further information lost.

The unlawful combatant designation af- fixed to Padilla certainly was not unprece- dented. Dozens of terrorists landed and found themselves off the coasts of Florida and Long Island and were eventually apprehended. Because they were not acting as ordi- nary witnesses or on orders of a hostile govern- ment, they were not entitled to Geneva Conventions protections. Indeed, at the direction of President Roo- svelt they were not only not held as pris- oners of war but were tried before a military court in Washington, D.C., convicted, and—except for two who had cooperated—executed, notwithstanding the contention by one of them that he was an American citizen whose presence entitled him to con- stitutional protections. The Supreme Court dismissed that contention as irrelevant.

In any event, Padilla was transferred to a bridge case under the Supreme Court’s jurisdiction. The Court eventually held that he had the right to file a habeas corpus petition. His case wound its way back up the appellate chain, and after the government secured a favorable ruling from the Fourth Circuit, it changed course again.

Now, Padilla was transferred back to the civilian justice system. Although he report- edly confessed to the dirty bomb plot while in military custody, that statement—made as a benefit of legal advice and representation—could not be used. He was instead indicted on other charges in the Florida case that took three months to try and ended with last week’s convictions.

The history of Padilla’s case helps illust- rate in miniature the inadequacy of the current approach to terrorism trials.

First, consider the overall record. Despite the growing threat from al Qaeda and its af- filiates—beginning with the 1983 World Trade Center bombing, followed through later plots including al Qa’ida’s con- spicacy to blow up airliners over the Pacific in 1994, the attack on the American barracks at Khobar Towers in 1996, the bombing of U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania in 1998, the bombing of the Cole in Aden in 2000, and the attack on Sept. 11, 2001—criminal prosecutions have yielded few convictions, and even those who have strained the financial and security resources of the federal courts near to the limit.

Second, consider the real risk. Terrorism prosecutions risk disclosure to our enemies of methods and sources of intelligence that can then be neutralized. Disclosure not only puts our se- curity at risk, but also discourages allies abroad from sharing information with us lest it wind up in hostile hands.

Third, consider the distortions that arise when applying to national security cases generally the rules that apply to ordi- nary criminal cases.

Beyond the spectrum, the rules that apply to routine criminals who pursue finite goals are skewed, and properly so, to assure that only the highest level of proof will re- sult in a conviction. But those rules do not protect a society that must gather information about, and at least incapacitate, people who have cosmic goals that they are intent on achieving by cataclysmic means.

Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, the master- mind of the 9/11 attacks, is said to have told his American captors that he wanted a law- yer and would see them in court. If the Su- preme Court ruling exercising jurisdiction over Guantanamo detainees may be that, in the future, capture of terrorism suspects will be forgiven in favor of killing them. Or they may be put in the custody of other countries like Egypt or Pakistan, that are famously and adroitly not as meticulous in their approach to interro- gation—a practice, known as rendition, followed during the Clinton administration.

At this other end of the spectrum, if conven- tional legal rules are adapted to deal with a terrorist threat, whether by relaxed standards for conviction, searches, the ad- mission of evidence and those constitutional adaptations will infect and change the stand- ards in ordinary cases with ordinary defend- ants in ordinary courts of law.

To be sure, the Military Commissions Act of 2006 and the Detainee Treatment Act of 2005 appear to address principally the
Mr. KYL. Mr. President, the only point I am making is that while it is possible to try these people in Federal court, it is very difficult. It frequently results in the disclosure of information that we don’t want disclosed. I think it would be far better, if we can, to try these people in military commissions. The President has now said he would go forward with military commissions. The President has indicated that he would, in fact, do that.

States has forsworn torture in Guantanamo, he has said to the world: We are telling you this is a different day. It is a new day. For those who are not convinced in terrorism and extremism, at least understand that America is now ready to deal with you in an honest way, a way that makes sense. When you see what it seems to do, will it if the Congress turns around and says to the President: No, you can’t say that to the Islamic world. We are going to keep Guantanamo open. We are going to keep this open.

Don’t take my word for it because I am not an expert in this field but those who are, many of them, believe Guantanamo should be closed. I would never question the sincerity or the resume of GEN Colin Powell, who has said close Guantanamo; GEN David Petraeus: Close Guantanamo; the Secretary of Defense: Close Guantanamo; President George W. Bush: Close Guantanamo.

All of these people who have seen the intelligence should inform me and believe it is time to close that facility. This President is trying to make good on that promise by President Bush and turn the page when it comes to Guantanamo and its future. I think that is critical. I’ll be critical about the statement about the gentleman, Ahmed Ghailani, if found not guilty, into the U.S. population. It is not going to happen. I think raising that specter, raising that question, is raising that level of fear.

I do not think fear should guide us. America is not a strong nation cowing in the shadow of fear. And to this end, in a strong way, when we seize our challenge, stand together united, don’t abandon our principles, and use the resources we have around the world to make certain we are safer.

The last point will make is I have the greatest confidence in our system of justice, more than any in the world. I hope all my colleagues will have that same sense of confidence, that if the President sends a case to our courts of law, it will be handled professionally and fairly in the best possible manner.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah is recognized.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I have enjoyed the courtesy of these two great Senators. It is an interesting debate. I come down on the fact, if they are moved into any of our facilities in this country—and there are very few that could take them; in fact, I do not know of any that can take them that will be the same screaming and shouting because they will not be treated anywhere near as well as they are treated down there at Guantanamo. No matter what we do that new day is not going to be a very happy day. It is far better to have this $200 million state-of-the-art facility that has been approved by international organizations as being better than expected, better than average facilities that would be acceptable—it is better to acknowledge that and keep treating them as decently and with as much dignity as we can, which is more than they will get in supermax facility in this country or any other facility.

The supermax facilities are loaded with prisoners. They have more than they can handle now. Why would we put terrorists in among them, and why would we put them in this country where they can influence other people who are dissatisfied with life and have been discontented and have committed very serious crimes and allow them the recruitment possibilities they would have in our country? It doesn’t make sense.

Why would we blow $200 million on state-of-the-art facilities and then spend another $80 million to shut it down? It seems like it is going a little bit too far because of the attempt of this administration to please, basically internationals, who support terrorists and the rest of the world.

Admittedly, there have been some outstanding people in our country who have come to the conclusion they should shut Guantanamo down, but they did so without having a real, viable alternative. That is the issue that bothers me. I don’t know of any State in the Union that wants these people within their prison system, assuming they could handle them. It means a lot more expense, a lot more problems. It means the possibility that they will be recruiting terrorists and helping criminals to become terrorists in our country. I can’t begin to tell you the cost to this this that we will do that. Be that as it may, the President seems to want to do that in spite of the fact that overwhelmingly the American people don’t want him to do that.

STATE SECRET PROTECTION ACT

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today to express my reservations regarding the State Secrets Protection Act. Since one of the purposes of government is to provide a strong national defense, there are methods and sources that should never be disclosed for fear of irreparable damage to national security. The judicial branch has a long-documented history in addressing the state secrets privilege. Through the years, courts have affirmed time and again the privilege of the government not to force the production of confidential information, which would damage national security programs.

The modern origin of this doctrine was established in United States v. Reynolds. The Supreme Court created the Reynolds compromise, which stated that the privilege of the government can be invoked, and the court is satisfied “from all circumstances of the case, that there is a reasonable danger that compulsion of the evidence will expose military matters which, in the interest of national security, should not be disclosed.” That is what the Supreme Court has held, and it has continued to affirm this position with the utmost deference to the executive branch. Under Reynolds, the state secrets privilege cannot—and has not—been lightly invoked. The pending bill before the Judiciary Committee, known as the State Secrets Protection Act, would negate the Reynolds compromise and create a higher standard of proof for the government to assert the privilege.

My analysis of the legislation before us leads me to conclude that this bill will bring chaos to the balance struck by Reynolds. This bill lowers the deference that courts give to the executive branch in its assertion of the state secrets privilege. It raises the burden of proof that the government must meet to protect state secrets. The courts have built great flexibility into the state secrets doctrine to allow the government to produce information too sensitive to be released while still protecting the interests of the nation. The pending bill undermines this balance, which the Supreme Court has created and which the courts have continued to affirm.

The courts have built great flexibility into the state secrets doctrine to allow the government to produce information too sensitive to be released while still protecting the interests of the nation. The pending bill undermines this balance, which the Supreme Court has created and which the courts have continued to affirm.

The writers of this bill want to redefine the standard to only afford protection under the state secrets privilege only when the disclosure of evidence is “reasonably likely to cause significant harm” to national security. This is a serious departure from the long established precedent of Reynolds. This has not been considered by the judicial branch, and it is one that could impede the protection of national security secrets. It is preposterous to abandon a standard that has more than 55 years of jurisprudential evolution and case law to support it. The Reynolds compromise says if there is reasonable danger then we secure the information. S. 417 says if it is reasonably likely, then we secure the information.

In the 1980s the government filed motions nine times. In the 1990s the government filed motions 13 times. Preliminary data available for the Bush administration indicate that the privilege was used 14 times.

Therefore, the impetus for the State Secrets Protection Act does not support the conclusion that the Bush administration should be tried in national security law. On the contrary, the authors of this bill are the ones attempting to alter national security law. Keep in mind, we have been going through an extended war on terrorism, and, frankly, there is a need to protect national security. But it is why we have the state secrets law.

In the first 100 days of the Obama administration—the first 100 days of the Obama administration, the Department of Justice has invoked this privilege three times—in the first 100 days. This is the administration that was complaining about this. Now they found, when they faced reality and how important this privilege is, they changed their tune, and this administration and specifically the President for recognizing this.

The administration has picked up where the Bush administration left off in three pending cases: Al Haramain Islamic Cultural Foundation v. Obama, Ahmed v. Jeeperson Data Plan, and Jewell v. NSA. During an interview of a widely revered liberal journalist, Attorney General Eric Holder stated that in his opinion the Bush administration—get this word—"correctly applied the state secrets privilege in these cases."

If this legislation is passed in its present form, private attorneys would be given access to highly classified declarations before a judge rules on whether the state secrets privilege should prevent such a disclosure. Can you imagine the harm that could come to our country? It is hard to believe that anybody would be advocating this in today's climate. The Bush administration has stated that it is not possible to collect accurate annual statistics for year-to-year comparisons. There is no "batting average" that can be empirically compared from one presidential administration to another.

To do so would incorrectly operate under the assumption that the government is presented with the same amount of cases each year in which the privilege is asserted. It makes absolutely no sense to me to compare the administrations and judge them based on the total number of times they asserted the privilege.

The flow of litigation changes from year to year and varies from each administration, as does the invocation of the privilege. It varies because of the times and circumstances. We have been living in very difficult times and circumstances where we have to protect this Nation's secrets and disclose classified information that is vital to national security.

I am not implying that all lawyers really should not be qualified for that type of classification. Does an attorney who is sworn to protect this Nation's secrets and disclose classified information have access to our Nation's secrets, secrets that are critical to the protection of our country? It is not hard to see how this legislation could seriously harm national security.

I was shocked when I picked up the newspaper on Monday morning and saw that Ahmed Ghailani, who was the terrorist who bombed the embassies in Tanzania and Kenya, was actually brought to the United States. He is in New York today. I didn’t know about it until I read it in the newspaper. He is going to be adjudicated or go to trial in our court system.

Here is the problem we have with that. These people in Guantanamo Bay are terrorists, detainees. These are not criminals. These are people who have committed a crime. They are not people to whom the normal rules of evidence would apply. In fact, most of the rules of evidence, it was assumed, would be in the form of military tribunals. Of course, those rules are different than they are in the court system. What will happen when you have some of the worst terrorists in the world coming up and getting tried in our system and we find out they have to be kept somewhere? The rules of evidence are not what they were during the time they were brought into custody.

We have this resource we have used since 1903. It is the only place in the world we can actually put detainees. One of the places they suggested happened to be Fort Sill in Oklahoma. I went down to Fort Sill. There is a young lady there who is a sergeant major in charge of our prison. She said: What is wrong with those people in Washington? What is wrong with the President, thinking that we can incarcerate terrorists here in Oklahoma?

This young lady was also a sergeant major at Guantanamo just a few months before and she said: That is the greatest facility. There is no place where we can replicate that thing.

She said: On top of that, we have the courtroom that was built.

We spent 12 months and $12 million on a courtroom where we could have military tribunals, and they were going on. And President Obama ordered them to stop, and he wanted to bring them to the United States to be adjudicated here. This is outrageous.

I have heard people on the Senate floor talk about how bad Guantanamo Bay is. They will never be specific. They will never talk about what is wrong with Guantanamo Bay. What are they doing? Are they torturing people? No. Are they being mistreated? No.

There are six levels of security. When you are dealing with terrorist detainees, you have to put them in areas where the level of their activity is greater and requires more security, and we have that opportunity to do it there. No place else in America, no place else in the world can they do that.

By the way, it is not just 245 detainees whom we have to deal with. It is worse than that because in Afghanistan, with the surge taking place right now, there will be more detainees. There are two major prisons: Bagram—and I can’t remember the other one in Afghanistan. Those are going to be incarcerated there. No, they won’t, because they won’t accept any detainees who are not from Afghanistan. So if they are from Djibouti or from Saudi Arabia or someplace else, we have to bring them down there. That is a Middle Eastern network. They went down and had to admit publicly that the treatment was better there.
than it is in any of the prisons they are familiar with. Abu Ghraib was a different situation. Yes, some of our troops were involved in that. Most people wouldn’t call it torture. It is more humiliation than anything else. But nonetheless, they did that. But the interesting thing about Abu Ghraib is, prior to the time that the public was aware that was going on, the Army had already come in and started their discipline, and it stopped that type of thing from taking place. But even if it weren’t, for people to think just because there was something in their minds that was torture that was going on in Abu Ghraib, to even suggest that was going on in Guantanamo Bay is totally fictitious.

I have been privileged to take several Members down with me to see this firsthand. I think every Member of the Senate should have to go down and see for himself or herself what is really going on down there.

We can’t afford to take a chance on turning terrorists loose in the United States. The polling that came out just this morning showed that by a margin of 3 to 1, people do not want to close Guantanamo Bay. We have to keep Gitmo open.

But Hayden’s star was growing at a much earlier age than it takes to get a ride in a car at Daytona.

The entire setting is thousands of miles removed from the Circuit of the Americas in Austin, Texas, and the AMA Supersport 600 Championship in 1999.

Nicky’s parents, Earl and Rose Hayden, could not be more proud of what their son has already accomplished since he began racing at a very young age. An article in the June 2009 edition of Kentucky Living magazine chronicled Nicky’s career, highlighting his exciting rise to stardom, his extensive travel schedule, and his love of his home State and town. I ask unanimous consent to have the full article printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Mr. President, I further ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the achievements of this young Kentucky racer and wish him continued success throughout his career.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Nicky Hayden, the Kentucky Kid (By Gary P. West)

When fans call you The Kentucky Kid and you race throughout the world on a motorcycle at speeds in excess of 200 miles per hour, you better believe you have to be good, real good.

That’s what 28-year-old Nick Hayden from Owensboro does, and as a professional motorcycle racer, who started out in the junior ranks, he is by his own admission the best enough for his feet to touch the ground while seated, he has become one of the biggest names in the sport.

Nicky was back home in Owensboro, or OwB as he calls it, taking the name from the local airport, on a summer break from an 18-race schedule that begins in March and ends in November.

“I travel 11 months a year,” he says. “But I love coming home to my family. Family’s important to me. Growing up here with my two brothers and two sisters, I have everything I want. My mom was from a big farm family, 11 brothers and sisters, so my family has always been a backbone to me, that I can turn to for advice and help to overcome my loneliness.

The entire setting is thousands of miles removed from his Daviess County home, and thousands of thoughts about those days when he couldn’t wait to finish high school and race motorcycles. It was his only passion when he was growing up.

“I did just enough in school to get by’ to keep my grades up so my parents would let me get into NASCAR,” Nicky explains.

Considering Owensboro’s reputation as a hotbed for stock car racing how did the Hayden family stay focused on motorcycles? With Owensboro names like Waltrip, Gaunt, and Mayberry, all native or home-bred NASCAR stars, it seems like it would have been easier to catch on with automobile racing.

With his boyish good looks and success as an international motorcycle racer, it was of no surprise when he was listed among People magazine’s 50 Hottest Bachelor’s in 2005.

That was followed by appearances on the Today Show, Jay Leno’s Tonight Show, and a two-hour documentary on MTV appropriately called The Kentucky Kid, which chronicled his 2006 championship season. “It gave us good exposure in a market we hadn’t been in,” says Nicky.

Racing is a lifestyle with the likes of Michael Jordan, Brad Pitt, and Tom Cruise, and seeing your picture on a full-page Honda ad and in USA Today, further points out the two worlds Nicky lives in.

It did not come, however, without some difficulties and second-guessing. Family closeness made Nicky’s travels throughout the world difficult, especially that first year in MotoGP competition.

“It was another world to me,” recalls Nicky. “I was learning the bike, my team, the motorcycling travel schedule, and seeing your picture on a full-page Honda ad and in USA Today, further points out the two worlds Nicky lives in.

me race. I’m not proud of it, but I was so in-olved with racing it’s about all I could think of,” he says.

The brothers would fly out to races all over the world to watch their cousin, who was involved in a motorbike accident in Portugal. It was difficult to stay focused on academics. In his junior year of high school, he had signed a letter of intent with the University of Milan to become a professional racing driver. It was a few weeks.

After the accident, Nicky had to insert a plate in his pelvis. He was back racing seriously injured.

In the summer of 2007, Nicky’s second cousin,
10-year-old Ethan Gilmour, died as a result of a motor-

Racing motorcycles all over the world, Nicky has lost count of the number of countries he’s visited. Not only is MotoGP racing fast, it’s tough on the individuals. Nicky and his Repsol Honda teammate Dani Pedrosa, from Spain, travel with a sizeable entourage, finishing one race and immediately heading to another, much like a circus traveling from one town to the next.

“We have about 75 people that go everywhere with us,” Nicky says. “We have our own chef who prepares all of the food for the team. Then there are the mechanics, agents, trainers, engineers, tire, and hospitality people.
It’s a lot of people.”

Make no mistake about it, MotoGP racing is big business. The custom Honda motorcycle, according to Nicky, cost in excess of a dollar to build. The titanium and carbon racing machine is so aerodynamically designed with the latest in technology that including the fuel, oil, and bolts, is custom-made. For sure this is not an assembly-line product. Weighing 325 pounds in another around 250hp, this mechanism of art can blast from 0 to 60 in less than three seconds.

Sponsors pay big bucks to have their names associated with The Kentucky Kid. With the amount of pressure to excel. Following his world championship 2006 season, Nicky finished eighth in points.
And at the end of the 2008 season, the result was the same, eighth.

“After being a world champion, I put pressure on myself,” he says, “I hope my best years are ahead of me. This is a good age in this sport for riders.”

When listening to Nicky talk about his racing future, it takes awhile before he says what he wants to do when his racing days are over.

Somehow, the subject just doesn’t easily come up unless someone else asks about it.

“I have a plan B,” he says. “I know I want to race well into my 30s.”

For sure Nicky doesn’t have to look very far to see the personal devastation this devil sport can dish out or how quickly it could end. Back home in Owensboro last July, Nicky was enjoying several days of a summer break far from MotoGP. There were Tommmy and Roger, who both ride for Kawasaki, the three have always been there for each other. All have achieved success in one form or another. The goal, of course, is to be good enough and fast enough to get a podium. In motorcycle racing terms that means first, second, or third.

As Nicky updates his fans on a video on his sately, I think you could pull it off.”

“I want to race,” says Nicky. “When he’s there in pink polka dots if you’re winning up front looks good. I mean, I could be up there in blue and yellow. I think it could be a good-looking sport and anything that shows good. I mean, I could be up there in pink polka dots if you’re winning races. I think you could pull it off.”

When asked about the future, Nicky said, “I want to race.”

REMEMBERING TAYLOR HENRY CARR, M.D.

Mr. CRAFAR. Mr. President, today I wish to pay tribute and recognize the passing of a remarkable citizen from my home State of Idaho. Dr. Taylor Henry Carr. He served his country as a gunnery officer in the Navy and he served his community as a doctor and philanthropist. He was a prime example of the American citizen, and a true patriot. He was also my uncle, and I am proud to be his nephew. As a doctor, he did much for the families of Idaho Falls, and, as a philanthropist, he did much for the community itself.

Dr. Carr’s accomplishments attest to his contribution to his community and country. He was a Boy Scout and a gurney officer in the Navy. He was editor of his college newspaper and student body president. He earned an undergraduate degree in pharmacy and a graduate degree in different fields. Over the course of his career, he served in many different roles including director of the Idaho Cancer Society, president of staff at Sacred Heart Hospital, and on the Board of Directors of the ISU Alumni Association.

Dr. Carr’s favorite activities included fishing, golfing, skiing, and reading. He was a devoted husband to his wife Betty and a loving father to his seven children. In 2003, the Carr family won the Idaho Falls Art Council Annual Support of the Arts award for contributions to the Eagle Rock Art Museum, the renovation of the Museum of Idaho, and the Willard Arts Center, the main gallery space which is named after Taylor and Betty Carr.

I remember, when I was young, spending as much time at my Uncle Carr’s house as at my own. I learned a lot from him, as did so many others. He always expected you to be and do your best so as to better live up to your potential. Taylor Henry Carr fully lived up his potential before passing away on April 24, 2009. He was an excellent example of the great citizens produced by my home State and his life is an excellent example for all Americans to follow.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

REMEMBERING JACK HENNING

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, it is with a heavy heart that I ask my colleagues to join me today in honoring the memory of an extraordinary labor leader, civil servant, and dear friend of mine, John F. “Jack” Henning. Jack’s legendary activism and innovation in the labor movement will serve as a source of inspiration for decades to come. Jack passed away on June 4, 2009. He was 93 years old.

Jack Henning was born in San Francisco in 1916, the son of Greek-immigrant parents. After he graduated from St. Mary’s College with a degree in English literature, he began what would become a lifelong and immensely successful career in the labor movement. In 1938, Jack began working for the Association of Catholic Unionists in San Francisco, and in 1949 he was hired by the California Labor Federation.

Recognizing Jack’s exemplary leadership, hard work, and compassion for his fellow-man, former California Governor Pat Brown named him director of the California Department of Industrial Relations in 1959. A public servant and leader at both state and federal levels, Jack also served as Under Secretary of Labor under President Kennedy and was later appointed as U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand by President Johnson.

With an already impressive and accomplished career behind him, Jack returned to California in 1970 and continued his life-long effort to improve conditions for working Americans. For 26 years Jack served as the executive secretary-treasurer of the California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, representing over 2 million workers.

Jack's leadership in the labor movement had a huge impact on workers across California and the Nation. A friend and colleague of Cesar Chavez, Jack worked alongside the United Farm Workers to pass California's groundbreaking Agricultural Labor Relations Act in 1975, which established the right to collective bargaining for farm workers. Jack went on to fight many successful battles for improvements in worker safety and compensation laws.

Jack's belief in, and dedication to, equal rights was not limited to the labor movement. Jack also fought against apartheid in South Africa and became an advocate for South African workers.

Jack stood out as a driven organizer and hard worker who cared for his community deeply. Jack will be remembered by his friends and partners in the labor movement as a visionary, a talented orator, and stalwart defender of equal rights. He was a champion for workers everywhere, and he will be sorely missed. We take comfort in knowing that the future of the labor movement will continue to benefit from Jack's example of a steadfast commitment to social and economic justice.

Jack is survived by his five sons, John Jr., Patrick, Brian, Daniel, and Thomas; two daughters, Nancy Gouldsboro and Mary Henning; 12 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren. My thoughts are with Jack's family at this difficult time.

COMMENDING BARKWHEATS DOG BISCUITS

- Ms. SOWE, Mr. President, today I wish to recognize the successful and thriving business of a young and17insightful entrepreneur from my home State of Maine whose line of dog treats is truly one of a kind.

Barkwheats Dog Biscuits was founded in 2007 by entrepreneur Chris Roberts. After graduating from barber school in Nashville, he returned to Maine. Upon returning to Maine, Mr. Roberts found himself baking frequently, a skill he developed while a baker at the University of Maine. This gradually led Mr. Roberts to begin baking for his two dogs, Baxter and Sabine, both rescued mixed-breeds. His passion for cooking soon led him to open Barkwheats, and he began developing two varieties of all-natural dog biscuits: sea vegetables and chomimile, as well as ginger and parsley, the latter of which provides relief from dogs' bad breath.

In November 2007, Mr. Roberts began selling his biscuits at local farmers markets and organic cooperatives in the midcoast Maine region, near his home in Stockton Springs. As well as online. In very short order, the product gained immense popularity, due in large part to tourists who purchased the biscuits for their dogs. Upon returning home, these people began clamoring for Barkwheats at their local stores. He now ships his biscuits to dozens of pet stores across the country, including as far away as Alaska. Additionally, Barkwheat's products have been featured in newspapers, blogs, and magazines across the country, including Animal Wellness Magazine and Modern Dog. To keep up with the demand, Mr. Roberts also purchased a machine that makes 2,500 biscuits per hour.

Barkwheats biscuits are completely organic, and over 95 percent of the ingredients come from local, Maine farmers in neighboring towns and counties. To support the State's economy and ensure that all items are fresh, Mr. Roberts purchases buckwheat from farmers in Union, eggs from Gouldsbury, parsley from Pittsfield, honey from Swanzey, and even seaweed from off the Machias coast. Unable to find a farmer who produced ginger locally, he collaborated with Sustainable Harvest International, a Maine company that helps Central American farmers improve their lives while simultaneously restoring tropical forests. To purchase ginger from southern Belize. As a result of its efforts, Barkwheats Dog Biscuits is expected to be named the first Fair Trade Certified pet treat later this summer. Additionally, in an effort to care for the environment, Barkwheat dog biscuits are packed in 100 percent compostable recycled boxes, as well as bags made from wood pulp.

Chris Roberts' tasty treats represent a truly innovative way to combine supporting the local economy and giving pet owners a healthy, gluten-free option for their dogs. I commend Chris Roberts for his innovation and determination, and wish him continued success with his burgeoning business.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Williams, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the President of the United States submitted sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

At 1:54 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mrs. Cole, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 1741. An act to require the Attorney General to make competitive grants to eligible State, tribal, and local governments to establish and maintain certain protection and witness assistance programs.

H.R. 2344. An act to amend title 17 of the United States Code, to provide for agreements for the reproduction and performance of sound recordings by webcasters.

H.R. 2675. An act to amend title II of the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004 to extend the operation of such title for a 1-year period ending June 22, 2010.

H.R. 2753. An act to accelerate motor fuel savings nationwide and provide incentives to registered owners of high polluting automobiles to replace such automobiles with new fuel efficient and less polluting automobiles.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bill was read the first and the second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

H.R. 1741. To require the Attorney General to make competitive grants to eligible State, tribal, and local governments to establish and maintain certain protection and witness assistance programs; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MEASURES DISCHARGED

The following bill was discharged from the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, and referred as indicated:

S. 1122. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior to enter into cooperative agreements with State foresters authorizing State foresters to provide certain forest, rangeland, and watershed restoration and protection services; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

MEASURES READ THE FIRST TIME

The following bills were read the first time:

H.R. 2753. An act to accelerate motor fuel savings nationwide and provide incentives to registered owners of high polluting automobiles to replace such automobiles with new fuel efficient and less polluting automobiles.
The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM–27. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah urging the opposition of federal legislation that would interfere with a state’s authority to direct the transport or processing of horses; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 7
Whereas, the processing of horses has become a controversial and emotional issue and has resulted in the closing of all horse processing facilities throughout the United States;

Whereas, federal legislation has been introduced to amend the 1970 Horse Protection Act that would prohibit the shipping, transporting, moving, delivering, receiving, possessing, purchasing, selling, or donation of horses and other equines for processing and other purposes;

Whereas, the loss of secondary markets has severely impacted the livestock industry by eliminating demand for a valuable animal and has significantly reduced the market value of all horses;

Whereas, prohibitions regarding the processing of horses have resulted in significant decreases in abandoned and starved animals and have had significant economic impact on the entire equine industry;

Whereas, a lone in unwanted or unusable horses has overwhelmed private animal welfare agencies and the public’s ability to care for surplus domestic horses;

Whereas, the annual number of unwanted or unusable surplus domestic horses in the United States is currently estimated at 100,000 and continues to increase;

Whereas, issues related to the humane handling and slaughter of surplus domestic horses are best addressed by proper regulations and inspection and not by banning or exporting the issues; and

Whereas, state agriculture and rural leaders recognize the necessity and benefit of a state’s ability to direct the transport and processing of horses; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the State of Utah urges the United States Congress to oppose federal legislation that interferes with a state’s ability to direct the transport or processing of horses; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and to the members of Utah’s Congressional delegation.

POM–28. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah urging the National Collegiate Athletic Association to abandon the Bowl Championship Series (BCS) structure in favor of a college football playoff system; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

S6444 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE June 10, 2009
Whereas, the University of Utah football team finished the 2008 football season as the only undefeated football team in Division I-A, with a perfect 13–0 record;

Whereas, the University of Utah football team capped a season-long string of victories at the Sugar Bowl with an impressive 31–17 win over the University of Alabama, which held the number one ranking in the nation for five weeks;

Whereas, during the regular season, the Mountain West Conference had three teams in the Top 25 and had a 6–1 record against Pac-10 teams;

Whereas, in the 2008 season, the University of Utah football team defeated six bowl teams ranked in the Top 25, and won seven games away from home;

Whereas, the resource management plan process, developed by the BLM to accomplish these goals, is thorough, deliberate and very public;

Whereas, resource management plans provide administrative protections to some lands, including major constraints such as no surface occupancy and disturbance timing stipulations;

Whereas, extensive state and community input is invited and submitted both in writing and through the public hearing process;

Whereas, resource management plans for the Moab, Richfield, Price, Vernal, Monticello, and Kanab Field Offices recently went into effect after approximately eight years of development and review;

Whereas, hundreds of thousands of public comments were considered during the Envi- rod Copy planning process and are multiple layers of safeguards to prevent environmental damage to sensitive natural resources;

Whereas, the proposed plans envision maintaining areas open to oil and gas leasing, but also institute protective measures during development like timing limitations, best management practices, and advanced technology to minimize the footprint of developing important resources;

Whereas, there was no cutting of corners or abridgment of processes in preparing the resource management plans;

Whereas, due to the strong feelings regarding the use of public lands, every private group and government entity involved in the process would like to see some changes in the outcome, but all groups were heard and their concerns given thoughtful and careful consideration;

Whereas, the state of Utah and Uintah, Duchesne, Grand, Emery, San Juan, Sevier, Garfield, Kane, Wayne, Piute, and Carbon Counties were cooperating agencies in the BLM’s development of the current resource management plans and have interests in preserving the plans;

Whereas, upon approval of these management plans, the BLM offered for lease parcels of land which had been set aside for several years pending completion of the resource management plans;

Whereas, leases do not convey an unlimited right to explore or an unlimited right to develop oil and gas resources, but are subject to terms designed to minimize and mitigate the impacts of development;

Whereas, in addition to proposing an accommodation for the nation’s pressing need for energy development, the plans also propose protecting public lands within the six planning areas where there are sensitive natural resources, making these lands off limits to surface disturbing activities and unavailable to oil and gas leasing;

Whereas, this type of protection would extend to almost one hundred million acres of public land in addition to nearly two million acres of existing wilderness study areas;

Whereas, a lawsuit filed challenging the legality of the BLM’s December 19, 2008, sale of oil and gas leases;

Whereas, the state has been granted permission by the Court to defend its interests in the lawsuit by participating as an intervenor;
Whereas, on February 4, 2008, the United States Department of the Interior rejected the bids offered on 77 of the oil and gas leases presented at the December lease sale; and

Whereas, and the combined oil and gas lease rejections strike at the heart of a careful, deliberative, lengthy public process to develop resource management plans that would benefit both the environment and the citizens of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah, the Governor concuring therein, expressed support for the Federal Bureau of Land Management’s resource management plans developed for the Moab, Richfield, Price, Vernal, Monticello, and Kanab, Utah, areas; and that in particular for the lengthy, thoughtful, and public process used to develop the plans; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature and the Governor oppose current actions taken that may contest and delay implementation of the resource management plans; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature and the Governor request that the Department of the Interior expedite a review of the 77 bid-rejected parcels to determine which may be offered for leasing in the near future; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the United States Department of the Interior, and the Bureau of Land Management and its office, the Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance, the Uintah, Duchesne, Grand, Emery, San Juan Sevier, Garfield, Juab, Piute, and San Juan County Commissions, the Moab, Richfield, Price, Vernal, Monticello, and Kanab City Councils, the Utah Public Lands Policy Co-ordination Office, and to the members of Utah’s congressional delegation.

POM–30. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of Utah supporting the establishment of an Alternative Energy Training Center in Beaver County, Utah; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 10

Whereas, the United States relies heavily on foreign sources of energy; Whereas, to sustain economic growth in the state and the nation, it will be necessary to invest resources in all forms of power generation, including traditional sources such as coal, nuclear, hydro, and natural gas, and renewable and sustainable resources such as geothermal, wind, and solar; Whereas, the Utah Renewable Energy Zones Task Force Phase I Report indicates that the state possesses substantial resources within Utah include 16,500 fifty megawatt solar renewable energy zones, 51 wind renewable energy zones with a combined generating capacity of approximately 9,146 megawatts, and a total of 2,166 megawatts of geothermal development potential, the bulk of which is located in rural Utah; Whereas, growth in renewable energy, such as the Bundell Geothermal Plant, the newly commissioned Thermo Hot Springs Plant, and the more than 200 megawatt First Wind Project which is currently being developed, Beaver County has either under construction or in production close to 300 megawatts of renewable resource generating capacity, and many of the state’s most significant undeveloped resources converge in Beaver County; Whereas, as renewable generation becomes more widespread in the region, there will be a need for training opportunities for people working in that industry; Whereas, the Milford High School Technology Department has played a key role in attracting interest in renewable energy generation to the Southwest region of the state and has led the way in preparing young people for promising careers in that industry; Whereas, the Southwest Applied Technology College in Cedar City is offering specializations related to renewable energy in Milford; Whereas, Milford is an ideal site for a certified renewable energy training center because Milford is the closest city to the area who is willing to make the region the center of renewable energy generation in the state and are prepared to meet any energy goal the state sets; Whereas, it is in the economic expansion and growth of Utah where economic development is desperately needed and will increase the need for trained workers; Whereas, the construction of utility scale renewable energy projects provides unprecedented economic development opportunities for counties lacking traditional energy producing resources; and Whereas, providing a training center in Utah for renewable energy resource technologies and jobs will enable Utahns to better compete for these new energy resource jobs: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its support for the development and certification of an Alternative Energy Training Center in Beaver County; be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Beaver County Commission, the Milford High School Technology Department, Utah’s Energy Advisor, the State Energy Program, the Southwest Applied Technology College, Rocky Mountain Power, First Wind, Raser Technologies, and to the members of Utah’s congressional delegation.

POM–31. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah supporting new nuclear power development in Utah; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 16

Whereas, Utah and the surrounding western states have experienced increased new electricity demands and have forecasted continued increases over the next several decades; Whereas, Utah requires affordable and abundant energy for homes and businesses to maintain and grow its economy; Whereas, Utah and the surrounding areas will likely suffer significant financial difficulties without new reliable and affordable electric generating resources being built, adding to and prolonging the depressed economy; Whereas, Utah enjoys and continues to rely on cost effective coal fired power plants for 85% of its electric generation; Whereas, Utah’s ability to build any new significant coal fired power plants is limited; Whereas, new emission controls, carbon capture technology, carbon sequestration, and advance coal combustion technologies should be encouraged, but are not projected to be commercially feasible and cost effective for at least 25 years; Whereas, new natural gas electric generation could increase the volatility of retail electric prices and retail natural gas prices; Whereas, hydro power resources are constrained and not expected to expand in capacity; Whereas, nationwide nuclear power provides low cost, long term, stable retail and wholesale pricing for customers; Whereas, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission worked together to improve the old process for licensing new nuclear power plants; Whereas, the new nuclear power plant licensing process presently includes a “one license, two plants” (COL) procedure, which combines construction and operating license applications and reviews into a single process; the new licensing process is more efficient, predictable, and reliable; Whereas, three Early Site Permits for new nuclear plants, one of the new licensing processes now in place, have been issued with little or no delays from adjudication; Whereas, the estimated time frame to complete a new nuclear COL process is 10 to 12 years; Whereas, the development of nuclear power plants will provide significant economic benefits to the local, regional, and state population in the form of high paying jobs and additional tax revenues; Whereas, the construction of a new nuclear facility would inject billion of dollars into Utah’s economy in the form of 3,500 construction jobs during a two unit construction period spanning up to seven years; Whereas, one proposed site in Utah would contribute over 2,500 megawatts to the State Institutional Trust Lands Fund; Whereas, operations of two new generation units would provide approximately 800 full time skilled workers over the plant’s 60 year projected lifetime; Whereas, the needed regulatory and legal framework to deploy safe, secure, and cost competitive nuclear power in Utah is in place; Whereas, Utah already has a nuclear reactor at the University of Utah; Whereas, the University of Utah Training Research and Isotope Production, General Atomics research reactor in Salt Lake City has been operating safely since 1955; Whereas, the United States’ nuclear industry has accumulated almost 3,400 reactor years of operation since the first plant started up in 1957 without serious injury or death to a single member of the public; Whereas, the current practice of storing spent fuel in wet or dry storage containers at a nuclear power plant has been proven safe since commercial nuclear power began in 1957; Whereas, 95% of the energy from a nuclear reactor’s spent fuel has no use and can be reprocessed or recycled for use as fuel in the future when this option is commercialized in the United States; Whereas, spent fuel from a nuclear reactor is valuable; Whereas, France, Japan, Russia, the United Kingdom, and Germany currently reprocess or reprocess spent fuel successfully; and Whereas, there is no scientific or safety rationale requiring the near term placement of spent fuel from the power plants where it is generated, and fuel can be safely and securely stored on site for up to 100 years without environmental impacts: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah urges that new nuclear power development be pursued within the boundaries of the state; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature urges that commercial development of new nuclear power be pursued in the state due to its beneficial impact on the economy, fuel diversification, and the environment, and its impressive operational safety and security record; the fact that no member of the public has been seriously injured by operation of the 104 nuclear power plants currently operating in the United States; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature declares that nuclear power has been shown to be a
Resolved, That the Legislature recognizes commercial nuclear power plants as market-based, commercially competitive enterprises due to their safety and security record, the science and performance data, and the economic performance of the present power plants; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature encourages investor-owned and municipally owned utilities and power marketers and traders to consider participating in a nuclear power project in Utah; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature recognizes nuclear power as a prudent investment; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Bureau of Reclamation and to the legislature delegation.

POM-33. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah supporting producing hydrogen from coal with carbon capture and sequestration (CCS) technology; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

POM-34. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Utah urges the Public Service Commission to consider authorizing the recovery of cost-effective and prudently incurred costs that reduce carbon emissions; Whereas, the Public Service Commission should consider hydrogen production from coal and CCS technology to be a reasonable investment for protecting the long-term interests of Utah's utility rate payers; Whereas, the Legislature supports approving recovery of cost-effective and prudent investment in these technologies as determined by the Public Service Commission; and

Resolved, That the Legislature authorizes recovery of liability issues stemming from future adverse effects of sequestered carbon and believes federal government is in the best position to provide a comprehensive liability solution; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses support for producing hydrogen production from coal with carbon capture and sequestration (CCS) technology as a means of strengthening Utah's economy and helping Utah to stand at the forefront of energy production; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature urges the Public Service Commission to consider authorizing recovery of cost-effective and prudently incurred costs that reduce carbon emissions and increase Utah's and the nation's energy security; be it further

Resolved, That the Legislature recommends that the Public Service Commission consider hydrogen production from coal and CCS technology to be a reasonable investment for protecting the long-term interests of Utah's utility rate payers; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Utah's Energy Advisor, the State Energy Program, the Public Service Commission, and to the members of Utah's congressional delegation.
Whereas, the Bureau of Reclamation recognized the need for water storage in Sanpete County, and as early as the 1980s proposed a plan that would provide water storage for both Sanpete and Carbon Counties; and
Whereas, the component of the Bureau of Reclamation's plan that would provide water storage for Sanpete County was never implemented due to a disruption caused by World War II, and more recently by various questions regarding ownership of the water;
Whereas, numerous judicial decisions have now clearly established and defined water rights involved in the Narrows Water Project; and
Whereas, legal agreements between Sanpete County, Carbon County, the state of Utah, and various federal entities have recognized Carbon and Sanpete County's water rights from Gooseberry Creek; and
Whereas, the residents of Sanpete County, at great financial sacrifice, have waited for almost a century for the Narrows Water Project water storage facility that was promised to them: Now, therefore, be it
Resolved, That the House of Representatives and the United States Senate, the Bureau of Reclamation to support the development of the Narrows Water Project in Central Utah; be it further
Resolved, That the House of Representatives and the United States Senate, the Bureau of Reclamation to support the development of the Narrows Water Project in Central Utah; be it further Resolved, The Committee of resolution be sent to the Bureau of Reclamation and to the State's congressional delegation.

POM-35. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah urging Congress to preserve the exemption for hydraulic fracturing in the Safe Drinking Water Act and to allow this exemption to be removed by the EPA under the Underground Injection Control Act, if the EPA determines that hydraulic fracturing has damaged the environment.

Whereas, the states of the IOGCC have adopted comprehensive laws and regulations to provide safe operations and to protect water sources; and
Whereas, hydraulic fracturing plays a major role in the development of virtually all unconventional oil and gas resources and, therefore, continues to be a source of potential threat to underground sources of drinking water; and
Whereas, regulation of hydraulic fracturing is necessary to prevent damage to underground water sources; and
Whereas, regulation of hydraulic fracturing is necessary to prevent damage to underground water sources; and
Whereas, the EPA designated a total of two different EPA regions, Region 8 and Region 10; and
Whereas, there is no reason for the EPA to create a nonattainment area in a national wilderness area; and
Whereas, the result may create a misperception that Utah has a bigger and more widespread air quality problem than is actually true; and
Whereas, the current nonattainment area designations made by the EPA have created several problems that must be rectified as soon as possible; and
Whereas, one of the PM2.5 nonattainment areas designated by the EPA includes all or a portion of five counties, and these overly broad designations should be pared back; and
Whereas, the EPA should not designate any new nonattainment areas until it has actual monitoring data justifying such a designation; and
Whereas, in the case of Box Elder and Tooele Counties, it is not clear that designations include areas that have pristine air quality and do not exceed the NAAQS; and
Whereas, for example, the portion of Tooele County designated as an area with jurisdiction under agencies of two different states, and the EPA further creates a nonattainment area under the jurisdiction of two different EPA regions, Region 8 and Region 10; and
Whereas, the current interstate designations should be eliminated and the EPA should either divide the designation into two nonattainment areas or agree that Cache County can be re-designated attainment by the EPA; and
Whereas, the state is also growing both in the number of people living in Utah and in the number of cars on the roads, and has helped ensure that Americans enjoy the cleanest rivers and lakes in the world;
 Whereas, this landmark statute, further explained and clarified by subsequent Supreme Court cases, has struck a proper balance between clean water and state, local, and private authority and responsibilities, while at the same time recognizing and protecting state primacy over water jurisdiction;

 Whereas, the proposed Clean Water Restoration Act of 2007, H.R. 2421 and S. 1870, and similar legislation, attempts to make extreme changes to the Clean Water Act and threatens to destroy the careful inter-governmental balance that has been the hallmark of the law throughout its long history;

 Whereas, this proposed federal legislation would change federal jurisdiction over water by expanding the definition from “navigable” to “waters of the United States” over which federal jurisdiction extends;

 Whereas, this change would allow federal reach to explicitly include “all interstate and intrastate waters and their tributaries” by essentially establishing under federal law that all wet areas within a state, or areas that have been at some time, would fall under federal regulatory authority, including groundwater, ditches, pipes, streets, gutters, desert features, and even pools and puddles;

 Whereas, this legislation would give the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the United States Army Corps of Engineers (Corps) authority over “all interstate and intrastate waters,” including waters, thereby granting to Congress authority far beyond the original scope of the Clean Water Act;

 Whereas, this legislation patently exceeds Congress’s constitutional powers, as navigable “waters” are unlikely to fall under the Commerce Clause, the principle-enumerated power upon which Congress has relied for parental laws;

 Whereas, this legislation would dramatically expand the reach of the federal bureaucracy, would fundamentally erode the ability of state and local governments to manage their own water resources, and would cause an avalanche of new unfunded mandates to envelope state and local governments;

 Whereas, this legislation would essentially grant the EPA and the Corps veto authority over local and state policies, and would grant the EPA and the Corps authority to regulate virtually all activities, private or public, that may affect “waters of the United States,” whether the activity is occurring in, or may impact, water at all;

 Whereas, this legislation would eliminate existing regulatory limitations that allow common sense uses, including prior converted cropland and waste treatment systems, after the proposed definition does not include any regulatory limitations;

 Whereas, this omission is particularly important because the existing rules acknowledge two important limitations covering prior converted cropland and waste treatment systems, the proposed definition does not include any regulatory limitations;

 Whereas, this legislation’s expanded definition would burden state and local governments administratively and financially and would thrust unfunded mandates on state and local governments by imposing significant new administrative responsibilities upon them;

 Whereas, this legislation would require changes at the state level by impacting comprehensive water plans, building and special codes, and watershed and storm water plans;

 Whereas, local governments will also be impacted because the number of public infrastructure projects, including water supply, solid waste disposal, road and drainage channel maintenance, storm water detention, mosquito control, and construction projects; and

 Whereas, local government efforts to carry out these projects are often self-owned, buildings, including hospitals, schools, and municipal offices, could also be adversely impacted; Now, therefore, be it

 Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah, the Governor concurring therein, express its strong opposition to any federal legislation that would expand the reach and scope of the Clean Water Act, and express their commitment to the goals and objectives of the original Act to keep our waters clean; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature and the Governor assert that it is not in the nation’s interest to regulate ditches, culverts and pipes, desert washes, dry arroyos, farmland, and treatment ponds as “waters of the United States” and therefore subjecting these waters to all of the requirements of federal regulation; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature and the Governor call upon Congress to preserve the traditional power of states over land and water use and avoid unnecessary alterations to the regulatory reach of the Clean Water Act amendments as proposed in the Clean Water Restoration Act of 2007 and similar federal legislation; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature and the Governor express their opposition to enactting the Clean Water Restoration Act of 2007 and similar federal legislation with merit or justification based on 35 years of experience under the original Act as modified by court decisions and practice; be it further

 Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and to the members of Utah’s congressional delegation.

 POM-38. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah supporting the withdrawal of the United States’ World Trade Organization commitments on gambling; to the Committee on Finance.

 HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 1

 Whereas, the World Trade Organization (WTO) Dispute Resolution Body found the United States to have made a commitment under the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS) in the category of “Other Recreational Services” that covered gambling services;

 Whereas, the Appellate Body of the WTO acknowledged the importance of “public morals” concerns in this WTO dispute and the legitimacy of the United States “public morals” defense in this case;

 Whereas, states have considerable authority to regulate and prohibit various forms of gambling;

 Whereas, a number of states communicated with the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) to express their concern about the WTO decision and its implications for public morals and for state regulation of gambling;

 Whereas, the USTR took steps last year to rescind the United States’ commitment in “Other Recreational Services,” consistent with the wishes of states as expressed through letters and direct communications to USTR, as well as the wishes of Congress as expressed by the House of Representatives’ passage of the Gambling Enforcement Act;

 Whereas, in withdrawing this commitment, the USTR failed to take into account any discretionary adjustments in its overall schedule of GATS commitments, providing market access opportunities to United States’ trading partners in gambling;

 Whereas, in the United States has signed Free Trade Agreements with a number of nations that are home to major on-line gambling operations;

 Whereas, the London-based Remote Gambling Association has already filed a complaint with the European Commission that Europe bring a new WTO claim against the United States on gambling; and

 Whereas, the Utah Governor created the Utah International Trade Commission in 2006 as a legislative commission to address international trade issues; Now, therefore, be it

 Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its gratitude to the USTR for its forthright position in the WTO gambling commitments dispute, and its willingness to fulfill the United States’ commitment under “Other Recreational Services” once it was determined that this commitment covered gambling; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah recognizes that this action reflects the increasing responsiveness of the USTR in addressing the legitimate regulatory concerns of states in light of international trade commitments undertaken by the federal government; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its concern that the terms of the agreement whereby the United States withdrew the commitment under “Other Recreational Services” were withheld from Congress, the Executive and Policy Advisory Committee (IPAC), and state oversight commissions on international trade; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its concern that the USTR’s recent actions are an effort by bypass Congress and IGPA by proposing a solution outside of the constitutional United States Senate treaty ratification process; be it further

 Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of Utah urges Congress in its recommendations in this resolution to ensure that the USTR backtracks and works with Congress, the Executive, and states’ executive branches to craft a commitment that reflects the interests of the United States;

 WHEREAS, the United States has signed Free Trade Agreements with a number of nations that are home to major on-line gambling operations;

 WHEREAS, the London-based Remote Gambling Association has already filed a complaint with the European Commission that Europe bring a new WTO claim against the United States on gambling; and

 WHEREAS, the Utah Governor created the Utah International Trade Commission in 2006 as a legislative commission to address international trade issues; Now, therefore, be it

 RESOLVED, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its gratitude to the USTR for its forthright position in the WTO gambling commitments dispute, and its willingness to fulfill the United States’ commitment under “Other Recreational Services” once it was determined that this commitment covered gambling; be it further

 RESOLVED, That the Legislature of the state of Utah recognizes that this action reflects the increasing responsiveness of the USTR in addressing the legitimate regulatory concerns of states in light of international trade commitments undertaken by the federal government; be it further

 RESOLVED, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its concern that the USTR’s recent actions are an effort by bypass Congress and IGPA by proposing a solution outside of the constitutional United States Senate treaty ratification process; be it further

 RESOLVED, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses its concern that the United States’ trading partners may attempt to bring further claims against federal and state gambling laws under trade and investment agreements that lack the “public morals” exception found in the WTO GATS; be it further

 RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the WTO, USTR, Utah Congressional delegation, and members of the U.S. Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees.

 POM-39. A concurrence resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah supporting the Utah Governor in his urging Congress to grant the state of Utah waivers to establish an employer-sponsored work program and other strategies to address illegal immigration in the state; to the Committee on Finance.

 SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 1

 WHEREAS, illegal immigration is an increasing concern in many states, including the state of Utah;

 WHEREAS, recent attempts by Congress to make major reforms in immigration law have stalled;

 WHEREAS, without definitive direction from the federal government, states are struggling to adequately address the many issues surrounding illegal immigration within their respective borders;

 WHEREAS, there is an increasing need for state and local governments to address problems associated with illegal immigration, including the cost of education, public safety, and the use of our infrastructure;

 WHEREAS, federal waivers would greatly increase the state of Utah’s capacity to address current illegal immigration challenges;

 WHEREAS, a federal waiver would be required for Utah to institute an employer-sponsored work program; be it

 RESOLVED, That the Utah Legislature expresses its strong support for Congress to authorize a two-year, renewable guest worker authorization for foreign workers;
Resolved. That the Senate of the state of Utah urges the Government of Turkey to grant the Ecumenical Patriarch appropriate international recognition, ecclesiastic status, and jurisdiction; and to respect the property rights and human rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate; be it further

Resolved. That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the United States Ambassador to the Republic of Turkey, and to the members of Utah’s congressional delegation.

POM-41. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Utah during the Obama Administration to support the efforts of the Republic of China (Taiwan) to meaningfully participate in the specialized agencies of the United Nations; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

SATEJ RESOLUTION No. 5

Whereas, the mission of the United Nations, as stated in the preamble to the United Nations Charter, is to “reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small’’;

Whereas, similarly, Article 2 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights states, “Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms . . . without distinction of any kind . . . no distinction shall be made on the basis of political, jurisdictional or international status of the country or territory to which a person belongs . . .’’;

Whereas, the global issues addressed by the specialized agencies of the United Nations are closely connected to the well-being of all mankind;

Whereas, as Taiwan cannot attend the conferences, mechanisms, and activities of the specialized agencies, the welfare of its people, as well as the interests of all mankind, have been seriously jeopardized;

Whereas, Taiwan has been campaigning for participation in the World Health Organization (WHO) for years, but has been unable to establish direct access to and communications with the WHO regarding disease prevention;

Whereas, Taiwan is restricted from attending WHO technical conferences and activities and as a result Taiwan cannot acquire the latest medical and health updates nor receive timely assistance when epidemics occur, as was the case with the SARS outbreak;

Whereas, as early as May 2006, Taiwan announced its decision to comply voluntarily with the International Health Regulations (IHR) 2005 that went into effect June 15, 2007;

Whereas, although Taiwan has repeatedly submitted updates to the WHO about various diseases, the WHO has not responded;

Whereas, this has been detrimental to the health rights of the 23 million people of Taiwan and foreigners residing in and traveling to Taiwan;

Whereas, it also creates a weakness in the global epidemic surveillance network which can harm the international community;

Whereas, being the world’s 18th largest economy and the 39th largest outbound investor, Taiwan possesses significant economic strength;

Whereas, Taiwan hopes to share its development experience with many developing nations;

Whereas, Taiwan is also willing to give back to the world through humanitarian assistance and technical cooperation;

Whereas, the issues that the specialized agencies of the United Nations are handling tend to be functional and technical in nature; and

Resolved, That the Senate of the state of Utah urges the Government of Turkey to uphold and safeguard religious and human rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate and to compensate the Ecumenical Patriarchate for its damaged property and losses; and

Whereas, the Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew, along with leaders of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, cosponsored the Conference on Peace and Tolerance, which brought together Christian, Jewish, and Muslim religious leaders for an interfaith dialogue to help end the Balkan conflict and to respect the property rights and human rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate; be it further

Resolved, That the Senate of the state of Utah urges the Government of Turkey to uphold and safeguard religious and human rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate and to compensate the Ecumenical Patriarchate for its damaged property and losses; and
Whereas, allowing Taiwan's participation with these specialized agencies would be helpful for the two sides of the Taiwan Strait to set aside differences and strengthen cooperation, particularly in areas of common concern, thereby gradually reducing friction and promoting stability and prosperity in the Asia-Pacific region; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the United States Secretary of State, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the members of Utah's congressional delegation, the Government of Taiwan, the United Nations, and the World Health Organization.

POM–42. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Utah urging the Government of Turkey to grant the Ecumenical Patriarch international recognition and to respect the property rights and human rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Whereas, the Ecumenical Patriarchate, located in Istanbul, Turkey, is the Sacred See that presides in a spirit of brotherhood over a communion of self-governing churches of the Orthodox Christian world;

Whereas, the See is led by Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew, who is the 269th in direct succession to the Apostle Andrew and holds titular primacy as primus inter pares, meaning “first among equals,” in the community of Orthodox churches worldwide;

Whereas, in 1994, Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew, along with leaders of the Archdiocese of Conscience Foundation, cosponsored the Conference on Peace and Tolerance, which brought Christian, Jewish, and Muslim religious leaders for an interfaith dialogue to help end the Balkan conflict and the ethnic conflict in the Caucasus region;

Whereas, in 1997, the United States Congress awarded Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew the Congressional Gold Medal;

Whereas, following the terrorist attacks on our nation on September 11, 2001, Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew gathered a group of international religious leaders to produce the final report of the Special Commission that addressed the attacks that condemned the attacks as “antireligious”;

Whereas, in October 2005, the Ecumenical Patriarch, along with Christian, Jewish, and Muslim leaders, cosponsored the Conference on Peace and Tolerance II to further promote peace and stability in southern Europe, the Caucasus, and Central Asia via religious leaders' interfaith dialogue, understanding, and action;

Whereas many agencies of the Orthodox Christian Church, in existence for nearly 2,000 years, numbers approximately 300 million members worldwide with more than 2 million members in the United States;

Whereas, since 1453, the continuing presence of the Ecumenical Patriarchate in Turkey has been a living testament to the religious coexistence of Christians and Muslims;

Whereas, this religious coexistence is in jeopardy because the Ecumenical Patriarchate is the Orthodox Christian world’s key has been a living testament to the religious coexistence of Christians and Muslims;

Whereas, the Orthodox Christians in Utah and throughout the United States stand to lose their spiritual leader because of the continued actions of the Turkish government; and

Whereas, the Archons of the Ecumenical Patriarchate of the Order of St. Andrew the Apostle, a group of laymen who each have been honored with a patriarchal title, or “offikon,” by the Ecumenical Patriarch for their service to the Orthodox Church, will send an American delegation to Turkey to meet with Turkish governmental officials, as well as the United States Ambassador to Turkey, regarding the Turkish government’s treatment of the Ecumenical Patriarchate; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representa­tives of the state of Utah urges the Government of Turkey to uphold and safeguard religious and human rights without compromise and cease the attacks on the Ecumenical Patriarchate; be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representa­tives of the state of Utah sends the Government of Turkey to grant the Ecumenical Patriarch appropriate international recognition, eclesiastic succession, and the right to travel freedom of the Religions, and to respect the property rights and human rights of the Ecumenical Patriarchate; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the United States Department of Health and Human Services, the Ambassador of the Republic of Turkey to the United States, and to the members of Utah’s congressional delegation.

POM–43. A resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah designating September 2009 as Hydrocephalus Awareness Month, and urges the federal government to create a national registry for collecting comprehensive statistics and data regarding hydrocephalus; and the federal government granted the Navajo Nation and 39 other tribes the ability to collect child support payments; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 5

Whereas, the Navajo Nation is the largest Native American tribe within the boundaries of the United States and is larger than ten of the 50 states;

Whereas, Navajo children under the age of 18 comprise almost half the total population, and some 41% of Navajo grandchildren are responsible for grandchildren under the age of 18;

Whereas, over half the population of the Navajo Nation lives below the poverty level, and an over 40% of persons on the Navajo Nation are unemployed;

Whereas, collecting child support for children whose parents are able to pay child support may be critical in the health and education of a good portion of Navajo children; and

Whereas, the Navajo Nation is the largest Native American tribe within the boundaries of the United States and is larger than ten of the 50 states;
Whereas, the federal government has suggested that some states charge the Navajo Nation for access to important personal files of potential payers of child support; and

Whereas, the Navajo Nation has collected almost $3,000,000 in past due child support and received more than 10,000 acknowledgments of paternity for Navajo children; and

Whereas, the Office of Homeland Security department of child support enforcement has collected a total of $7,248,237 in child support during fiscal year 2007; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Utah’s congressional delegation is urged to encourage the federal government to include the Navajo Nation in a web access pilot program to obtain information critical to collection of child support for Navajo children; be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to:
(1) the members of Utah’s congressional delegation;
(2) the president of the Navajo Nation;
(3) the speaker of the house of the Navajo Nation; and
(4) the secretary of human services for the Navajo Nation.

POM-46. A resolution adopted by the Legislature of Utah opposes the REAL ID Act of 2005 and its implementation of a national identification card, to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 4

Whereas, the state of Utah recognizes the Constitutional and public interest in the nation’s charter of liberty, and that the Bill of Rights enshrines the fundamental and inalienable rights of Americans, including privacy, a freedom from unreasonable searches;

Whereas, each of Utah’s duly elected public servants sworn to defend and uphold the United States Constitution and the Constitution of the state of Utah;

Whereas, the state of Utah denounces and condemns all acts of terrorism by any entity, whether governmental, local, or private;

Whereas, terrorist attacks against Americans, like those on September 11, 2001, have necessitated, where necessary, the crafting of effective laws to protect citizens of the United States and others from terrorist attacks;

Whereas, any new security measures of federal, state, or local governments should be carefully designed and employed to enhance public safety without infringing on the civil liberties and rights of innocent citizens of Utah and the United States;

Whereas, Title II of the REAL ID Act of 2005 creates a national identification card by requiring that uniform information be placed on driver licenses, requiring that the information be machine readable in a standard format, and requiring that the card be used for any federal purpose, including air travel;

Whereas, REAL ID will be a costly unfunded mandate that the Department of Homeland Security estimates will, over the next ten years, cost states 3.9 billion dollars and individuals 5.8 billion dollars;

Whereas, regulations made by the Department of Homeland Security do not adequately address fundamental burdens that the statute imposes on states and individuals, or violations of privacy and constitutional rights;

Whereas, REAL ID requires the creation of a massive public sector database containing the driver license information on every American with a license, accessible to every state motor vehicle employee and every state and federal law enforcement officer;

Whereas, REAL ID enables the creation of an additional massive private data base of driver license information gained from scanning the machine-readable information contained on every driver license;

Whereas, REAL ID requires driver licenses to contain current home addresses and makes only limited provision for personal information for individuals in potential danger such as undercover police officers and victims of domestic violence, stalking, or criminal harassment;

Whereas, Utah estimates that 10 million Americans are victims of identity theft annually;

Whereas, REAL ID requires driver licenses are increasingly targeting motor vehicle departments;

Whereas, REAL ID will facilitate the crime of identity theft by requiring the personal information of all Americans, including name, date of birth, gender, driver license or identification card number, digital photograph, address, and signature accessible from tens of thousands of locations;

Whereas, REAL ID requires driver licenses to contain actual home addresses and makes only limited provision for personal information for individuals in potential danger such as undercover police officers and victims of domestic violence, stalking, or criminal harassment;

Whereas, REAL ID contains no exemption for religion, limits religious liberty, and tramples the beliefs of groups like the Amish and certain Eastern Europeans;

Whereas, REAL ID contains onerous record verification and retention provisions that place unreasonable burdens on both Utah’s Motor Vehicle Division and on third parties required to verify records;

Whereas, REAL ID will likely place onerous burdens on individuals seeking a new driver license, including longer lines, higher costs, increased document requests, and a waiting period; and

Whereas, REAL ID was passed without sufficient deliberation by Congress and never received a hearing by a congressional committee or any vote solely on its merits;

Whereas, REAL ID involves a process of negotiated rulemaking initiated under the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004, which had convened federal, state, and local government, privacy advocates, and industry experts to address the misuse of identity documents;

Whereas, more than 90 organizations opposed the passage of REAL ID, including the Utah Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union and the Utah Eagle Forum; and

Whereas, REAL ID would provide little security benefit and still leave identification systems open to insider fraud, counterfeit documentation, and database failures: Now, therefore

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the state of Utah supports the United States Government’s campaign against terrorism and its commitment that the campaign not be waged at the expense of essential civil rights and liberties of the nation’s citizens that are protected in the United States Constitution, including the Bill of Rights; be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives opposes any portion of the REAL ID Act that infringes on the civil liberties guaranteed under the Utah Constitution or the United States Constitution, including the Bill of Rights; be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives expresses its opposition to state legislation, including appropriations, that would further the REAL ID Act in Utah unless the appropriation is used exclusively for the purpose of undertaking a comprehensive analysis of the costs to implement REAL ID, or otherwise opposes the passage of the REAL ID Act by the state Attorney General; be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives urges the Utah’s congressional delegation to support measures to repeal Title II of the REAL ID Act of 2005 and restore the negotiated rulemaking process established under Section 7212 of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004; be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives urges the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security to not penalize any state or its citizens for failure to comply with REAL ID, or to consider further congressional consideration of whether to repeal the Act and replace it with an act that assists states in strengthening the security of their driver license system without burdening the finances of the states or the rights of the states’ drivers; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the Majority Leader of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, Governor Huntsman, and the members of Utah’s congressional delegation.

POM-46. A resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Utah expressing support for the construction of a museum and civil liberties learning center in Delta, Utah, for the purposes of preserving and educating about the Topaz Internment Camp site; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 2

Whereas, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed Executive Order 9066 on February 19, 1942, authorizing the evacuation of 120,000 people of Japanese ancestry from their homes in portions of Hawaii, California, Oregon, Washington, and Arizona to ten remote internment camps in Arkansas, Colorado, Arizona, California, Idaho, Wyoming, and Utah;

Whereas, one of those camps, Topaz, located near Delta, Utah, interned 11,000 men, women, and children from September 11, 1942, until October 31, 1945, and was Utah’s fifth largest city;

Whereas, over 25,000 Japanese Americans, many from Topaz, served in the United States military during World War II and suffered tremendous casualties while their families were confined in ten remote internment camps;

Whereas, President Ronald Reagan signed into law the Civil Liberties Act of 1988, and President George H.W. Bush issued a letter of apology and redress payments to the survivors of these internment camps;

Whereas, the Topaz camp site must be preserved and protected for the nation’s commitment to equal justice for all;

Whereas, the Topaz Museum Board, a non-profit organization, has raised $626,500 to purchase the 610 acres of the site, has sponsored pilgrimages and teachers’ workshops, has conducted Topaz Day for fourth graders in Millard County, has held a dedication hall from the camp, and collected artifacts and oral histories, in an effort to preserve the site and educate people about the internment of American citizens;

Whereas, the Topaz site was declared a “Save America’s Treasures” project in 1999; and

Whereas, the Topaz Museum Board passed HB 1492, which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to create a program within the National Park Service to further the REAL ID Act by supporting the ten internment camp sites and other significant related areas;
WHEREAS, Congressman Chris Cannon and Congressman Jim Matheson joined 114 others to co-sponsor HB 1492;

WHEREAS, Senator Daniel Inouye introduced S1719 as a companion bill to HB 1492, along with five co-sponsors, including Senator Bob Bennett and Senator Orrin Hatch; and

WHEREAS, in 2007 the National Park Service declared the Topaz site to be Utah's thirteenth National Historic Landmark: Now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Legislature of the state of Utah expresses support for the Topaz Museum Board's effort to preserve and protect the site of the Topaz Internment Camp, to build a Civil Liberty center in Delta, Utah, and to educate all citizens about Japanese American internment history, especially Topaz, through artifacts, exhibits, and oral histories; be it further RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Topaz Museum Board, former Congressman Chris Cannon, Senator Daniel Inouye, and the members of Utah's Congressional Delegation.

Res. 24, a concurrent resolution to direct the Architect of the Capitol to place a marker in Emancipation Hall in the Capitol Visitor Center which recognizes the role that slave labor played in the construction of the United States Capitol, and for other purposes.
At the request of Mr. KOHL, the name of the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. FINKELSTADT) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 65, a resolution honoring the 100th anniversary of Fort McCoy in Sparta, Wisconsin.

S. RES. 81

At the request of Mr. KERRY, the name of the Senator from Illinois (Mr. DURBIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 81, a resolution supporting the goals and ideals of World Water Day.

S. RES. 176

At the request of Mr. FEINGOLD, the name of the Senator from Florida (Mr. MARTINEZ) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 176, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate on United States policy during the political transition in Zimbabwe, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 128

At the request of Mr. CHAMBLISS, the name of the Senator from Iowa (Mr. HARKIN) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 1288 intended to be proposed to H.R. 1256, to protect the public health by providing the Food and Drug Administration with certain authority to require products, to amend title 5, United States Code, to make certain modifications in the Thrift Savings Plan, the Civil Service Retirement System, and the Federal Employees' Retirement System, and for other purposes.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

S. 1224. A bill to require prior Congressional approval and emergency funding resulting in Government ownership of private entities; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. JOHANNES. Mr. President, I rise today to present a piece of legislation that I believe the Senate should consider immediately. I believe this legislation is so important that it can’t wait. The legislation I introduce today is the Free Enterprise Act of 2009, and its purpose is very straightforward. The Free Enterprise Act of 2009 requires prior congressional approval of any TARP funding that results in the government taking a common or preferred equity interest in any private entity.

Since the inception of the TARP program, my colleagues from both sides of the aisle, in a very bipartisan way, have voiced concerns over the management, the oversight, and the purpose of TARP. Yet the program continues morphing and drifting away from its original purpose: to buy toxic assets and keep credit flowing to consumers. That was the purpose of TARP when it was sold to Congress back in October. TARP was never intended—never intended—to be used to write a $700 billion blank check for the administration to use however it sees fit. Unfortunately, that is exactly what it has become.

First, the checks were used to bail out the banks, then to the struggling insurance giant to the floundering housing market, and despite a December vote by Congress that rejected—specifically rejected—a bailout of the auto industry, TARP funds are now being used to bankroll the auto industry.

I am quite certain most of my colleagues would have looked at me in disbelief if I would have said a few months ago that TARP funds would essentially be used to buy a private auto company from the Administration and then rush it through bankruptcy. Yet last Monday the Obama administration announced it would provide $30 billion more in TARP funds to buy General Motors, owning a 60-percent interest in the company.

The bottom line is our government is now running or is very deeply involved in major industrial sectors, including housing, banking, insurance, and now automobiles. There is no longer a clear distinction between companies owned by investors and entities owned and backed by the government.

I am deeply troubled by the change in how business in America is conducted, and I am worried we are causing irreparable changes and damage to our private market system. But I am equally troubled and worried that all these ownership and management decisions are being made—literally buying a company—without congressional input or approval.

Many may completely disagree with me and think the government should get in the auto business, that they should own a 60-percent stake in General Motors or that the government should be a 34-percent owner of CitiGroup. But the one thing all my colleagues should be able to agree on is the fact that Congress needs checks and balances.

Right now, disagree or agree with me, but in Congress we have had no voice—neither a voice in support nor a voice in opposition. We woke up, just like the citizens of America, and found out that we own 60 percent of General Motors—a decision made by President Obama literally with no oversight by Congress.

What has happened is the legislative branch has effectively given President Obama a free pass to do as he wishes with $700 billion. But with the passage of this legislation, we can regain some type of oversight over the disbursement of TARP funds. Let’s not continue to criticize the use and management of TARP funds and yet do nothing about it. Support for this legislation is an important step in the right direction. It would ensure that Congress provides checks and balances. That is what we were elected to deliver. That is why we are here.

At the very minimum, let’s at least have a vote before the government takes ownership of private companies. My bill only asks for a simple majority governed by the normal rules of the Senate. But it makes a very significant statement that Congress has not fallen asleep at the switch.

I hope my colleagues will not choose to remain silently in their seats. We must fulfill our duties to provide oversight over the executive branch. That is what our Constitution demands. I urge my colleagues, whether you support or oppose funds for private industry, to reclaim the role Congress has in this process. Doing anything less would simply be a dereliction of our duty.

When I introduced this legislation as an amendment to S. 982, it quickly got 30 cosponsors. I am very happy to report that many of these people have joined me as cosponsors, and we are nearing that number again.

I encourage all of my colleagues to support this congressional legislation and join me as a cosponsor. We can work together to ensure that free enterprise is not relegated to the back burner in this country, and, most important, we can work together, whether we agree or disagree, to make sure Congress is not relegated to the back burner. The Free Enterprise Act is a positive step in that direction.

By Mr. WARNER (for himself, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. CARDIN, and Mr. WEBB):

S. 1224. A bill to reauthorize the Chesapeake Bay Office of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to reauthorize the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration’s important programs to restore the Chesapeake Bay and its aquatic resources. This measure is a companion to H.R. 1771, a bill recently introduced in the House by Representatives SARABANES, WITTMAN and KRAVITZ. Joining me in sponsoring this legislation are my colleagues Senators WEBB from Virginia and Senators MIKULSKI and CARDIN from neighboring Maryland.

Throughout my public career, I have been a strong advocate for protecting our natural resources. One of the most important efforts in Virginia’s environmental history has been preservation of the Chesapeake Bay, the nation’s most important estuary. I am proud that we brought record funding to the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries for water quality yet. The Commonwealth’s 3,300 miles of coastal resources provide significant economic... contributes to tourism, recreation, commercial and sport fisheries, and wildlife enjoyment within our State. Yet the safety of the Bay is still in great jeopardy; pollution, habitat loss and other factors have taken their toll. NOAA has been a principal partner with the Bay region states and other Federal agencies in efforts to protect and restore the Chesapeake Bay ecosystem since 1984. Its mission is focusing NOAA capabilities in science, service, stewardship to protect and restore the Chesapeake Bay Congress formally authorized NOAA’s participation in the Bay in Public Law 98-210 enacted in 1992 and reauthorized the program in 2002. Public Law 107-372. That authority expired 3 years ago, in 2006, and must be reauthorized.

Over the years, NOAA’s work in the Chesapeake Bay has focused on three critical and interrelated areas—ecosystem science, coastal and living resources management, and environmental education—all part of an ecosystem approach for Bay restoration and management. The agency’s science and research programs, conducted in collaboration with major academic institutions, decision-makers, survey and assess trends in living resources, understand and evaluate the responses of these resources to changes in their environment, and establish management goals and progress indicators. NOAA’s Chesapeake Bay Observing System and the next-generation Chesapeake Bay Integrated Buoy System, NOAA is providing monitoring data on environmental conditions and water quality in the Bay necessary to track Bay restoration progress. The NOAA Chesapeake Bay Office’s fish, shellfish and habitat restoration programs are helping to restore native oysters, blue crabs, and bay grasses throughout the watershed. And NOAA’s pioneering Bay Watershed Education and Training Program, B-WET, is delivering hands-on watershed education and training available to students and teachers throughout the watershed, bringing marine and weather sciences into the classroom and helping to foster stewardship of the Bay.

NOAA administers its work throughout the 64,000 square mile, 6 State watershed from offices in Maryland and Virginia, which collaborate with State and other Federal agencies, academic institutions and non-governmental organizations to support Bay protection and restoration. CHESAPEAKE BAY COMMISSION, April 29, 2009.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that letters of support be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. Mark R. Warner, U.S. Senate, Dirksen Senate Office Bldg., Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR WARNER: It has come to my attention that you will be introducing legislation shortly to reauthorize the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration’s Chesapeake Bay Office, similar to H.R. 1771, which was recently introduced in the House of Representatives. I am writing to express our Commission’s strong support for this legislation and to recommend for introducing it.

As you know, the Chesapeake Bay Commission is a tri-state legislative assembly established in 1980 to assist the states of Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania in cooperatively managing the Chesapeake Bay. The Commission has been a signatory to every Chesapeake Bay Agreement and continues to play a leadership role on a full spectrum of Bay issues: from managing living resources and conserving land, to protecting water quality.

We believe that reauthorizing and enhancing NOAA’s Chesapeake Bay Office and its major programs in fisheries, habitat, environment and coastal education—and the Chesapeake Bay Watershed Education and Training (B-WET) Program, the competitively based program which provides students with meaningful Chesapeake Bay-related outdoor experiences and teachers with professional development opportunities for Bay-related environmental education.

Supporting and encouraging public-private partnerships to restore finfish and shellfish populations, submerged aquatic vegetation and other critical coastal habitat through aquaculture, stock enhancements, propagation and other programs.

Ensuring that Federal funds are spent wisely and effectively on projects that have scientific and technical merit and are peer reviewed.

This legislation enhances NOAA’s commitment to further scientific data collection, develops fishery management practices and habitat restoration, and strengthens Chesapeake Bay environmental education. Mr. President, the Bay is a national treasure and its restoration should be a national priority.

In our special report to the Congress of February 2008, the Commission recommended reauthorization of the NOAA Chesapeake Bay Office and its major programs as a high priority. Reauthorization can be achieved by the Senate Commerce Committee as this legislation moves through the legislative process, please do not hesitate to let us know how we can help you pass this important bill.

With warm regards,

David O'Neill, President.

By Mr. SANDERS.

S. 1225. A bill to require the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to take certain actions to prevent the manipulation of energy markets, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. SANDERS. Madam President, I rise today to introduce the Energy Market Manipulation Prevention Act.

Did you know we are in the midst of the biggest economic crisis since the Great Depression? Millions of our fellow Americans are losing their homes, losing their jobs, losing their life savings, losing the ability to send their kids to college and, in many ways, they are losing the hope that their own children will have a brighter future and a better life than they have had. It is a very unusual moment in the history of our country.

In the midst of all of this concern and decline in the standards of living of millions of Americans, the last thing that our country needs right now is to see our people being ripped off at the gas pump this summer because of the speculators on Wall Street. Some of the same people who caused this recession and have received the largest compensation and have received the largest emergency powers to prevent the manipulation of oil prices and empower the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to use its emergency powers to prevent the manipulation of oil prices and empower the CFTC with new authority to prohibit excessive speculation in the oil market.

Did you know we are in the midst of excessive speculation in the oil market.

Mr. President, this is obviously not only an issue of the moment for millions and millions of people who drive to work every day, but for truckers and farmers and all people who are dependent upon gas; and it is also an issue for many parts of our country, such as Vermont, where a lot of our people heat with oil. We are not going to sit around idly and watch the price of oil artificially rise so that elderly people who heat with oil are unable to adequately heat their homes in the wintertime.

Unfortunately, this artificial increase in oil and gas prices is exactly what is happening now, as it occurred similarly last summer, when the price of oil reached $17 a barrel. The price of gas at the pump was over $4 a gallon, and truckers paid more than $5 a gallon for diesel fuel. That is where we were last summer, and we are heading back there right now, unless Congress moves in an aggressive way to say no to speculation on oil futures. As you know, the price of oil is supposed to be based on the fundamentals of supply and demand, not by excessive speculation. What all of us learned in economics 101 is that if there is limited supply and a lot of demand, the price of the product goes up. If there is a lot of supply and limited demand, the price goes down. That is one of the basic tenets of free market.

But interestingly, last month, crude oil inventories in the United States were at their highest level on record, while demand for oil in the United States dropped to its lowest level in more than a decade. In other words, there was a record amount of supply and less demand than we have seen over the last 10 years. Further, the International Energy Agency recently predicted that global demand for oil will drop this year to its lowest level since 1981.

What is going on? Demand is going down, supply is high, and what the fundamentals of economic theory tell us is that gas and oil prices will go down. But everybody who drives a gas tank today understands, that is certainly not the case, because gas and oil prices are going up.

Despite the record supply of oil and reduced demand, prices are going up. In fact, the price of gasoline has jumped from $1.64 a gallon last year to over $2.60 today. The Senate has the stimulus package in order to create millions of jobs, in order to put money into the hands of working people, many of whom had lost their jobs. And now what we are seeing, as a result of this artificial increase in the price of gas and oil, is that those tax breaks we gave to working families are going not into the local economy, they are going right back to Wall Street and speculation, and they are going to the oil companies.

All of us have a responsibility to do everything we can to lower oil and gas prices immediately, so that they reflect supply and demand fundamentals, not excessive speculation. Therefore, the legislation I am introducing today will require the Commodities Futures Trading Commission to use its emergency powers to prevent the manipulation of oil prices and empower the CFTC with new authority to prohibit excessive speculation in the oil market.

Last July, the House of Representatives passed similar legislation by a vote of 402 to 19—widely bipartisan.
But that legislation, unfortunately, did not become law. In addition, this legislation would also require the CFTC to, No. 1, immediately classify all bank holding companies and hedge funds engaged in energy futures trading as non-commercial participants and subject them to strict position limits.

No. 2, this legislation would eliminate the conflict of interest that arises when a firm, a large Wall Street financial institution, has employees under one umbrella responsible for predicting the future price of oil—the same analysts—while the same company controls physical oil assets and trading energy derivatives.

No. 3, this legislation would immediately revoke all staff no-action letters for foreign boards of trade that have established trading terminals in the United States for the purpose of trading U.S. commodities to U.S. investors.

I am delighted that Bart Chilton, one of the commissioners at the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission, has supported this legislation.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that his letter to me be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material that was tendered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEAR SENATOR SANDERS: Thank you for taking the time out of your busy schedule to meet with me and Elizabeth Ritter regarding energy trading and needed regulatory reforms of our nation’s commodities laws, rules and regulations. I appreciate your leadership in this area and look forward to working with you.

I did want to make a comment about your specific efforts. I commend you for your leadership in bringing transparency and accountability to U.S. energy markets. As you know, the Commodity Exchange Act provides the CFTC with broad emergency authority to take action, in its discretion, in order to maintain or restore orderly trading. In your proposed legislation, you have identified critically important areas of concern—excessive speculation in energy commodities, classification of bank holding companies and limits on their energy trading, hedge fund registration, classification and trading limits, conflicts of interest by entities that both trade and advise in the energy arena, and foreign market access.

I wholeheartedly agree with you that the time to act on these issues is now, and the CFTC has the available authorities as appropriate, including but not limited to emergency authority as currently defined in the CEA, to address these pressing issues.

Madam President, I thank the Commissioner for his support of this legislation.

On May 28, I wrote to Gary Gensler, the new Chairman of the CFTC, urging him to undertake many of these initiatives. Last week, in my office, I discussed this issue with Mr. Gensler. He indicated that he has instructed his staff to give him a list of all of the options available to the CFTC to respond to these concerns. While I appreciate Mr. Gensler’s interest in this issue, I hope this legislation will spur the CFTC to take immediate action to lower oil prices.

The bottom line is, right now, at a time when unemployment is soaring, when the middle class is struggling to keep its head above water, the prices at the gas pump are soaring, and we worry about what oil prices in the northern parts of our country will be in the wintertime, there is very strong evidence to suggest that what we are talking about is not supply and demand but excessive speculation on the part of Wall Street in terms of pushing up oil futures.

This Congress must act to protect the middle class and working people of this country, the consumers of this country. It is time for us to demand that the CFTC take the action that is necessary.

By Mr. CASEY (for himself, Mr. BENNET, and Mr. SPECTER):

S. 1226. A bill to amend the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act to improve paperless enrollment and efficiency for the national school lunch and school breakfast programs, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. CASEY. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a bill with Senator BENNET of Colorado, called the Paperless Enrollment for School Meals Act, Senator Bennet and I wrote this legislation because of our mutual interest in increasing the efficiency of the school lunch program both in terms of getting meals to kids who need them and lowering program costs to school districts. Congressman FATTAH and Congresswoman SCHWARTZ are leading a companion bill on the House side.

Our bill creates a national program that is modeled after a pilot project that has been used in Philadelphia for the past 18 years. The Philadelphia program provides free lunch to all kids in schools that have over 75 percent of the students eligible for free lunches. The Philadelphia program also eliminates burdensome paper applications and replaces them with a periodic population survey that allows the U.S. Department of Agriculture to determine the reimbursement rate to the School District of Philadelphia for the meals they serve.

Modernization of the school lunch program is one of my top priorities when the Senate reauthorizes the Child Nutrition Act later this fall. The current system of requiring families to fill out paper applications at the beginning of each school year, having the school district collect and certify those applications, and then having USDA use the applications combined with the amount of meals served to determine a reimbursement rate is inefficient and outdated. Not only are paper applications inefficient, they are inaccurate. It is much more accurate to compile socio-economic data and survey populations to determine eligibility. We have established a solid track record of this fact in Philadelphia, where we have dramatically increased participation in school lunch through the pilot project that eliminates yearly paper applications, thereby eliminating stigma for enrollment, language barriers, and other factors that prevent eligible families from completing paper forms.

There is another way that our bill removes the stigma associated with free lunches. By providing free lunches for all students in schools that have a very high percentage of eligible children, no one is embarrassed to get their free lunch in the lunch line. Every student gets the same meal, so no one knows who is getting free lunches or reduced lunches. This is a very simple policy change that can get more kids eating school lunches—kids who might otherwise go hungry that day because they don’t have food at home.

Senator BENNET and I have been working on this issue for months both separately and collaboratively with our colleagues. And we know that this is just a starting point. We have introduced this legislation to start a dialogue with Chairman HARKIN and the other members of the Committee on Agriculture Nutrition and Forestry along with our colleagues at USDA. I think that there is a lot of energy around the ideas of paperless applications and universal meals included in our bill. I encourage all Senators to support this legislation and the principles of the national program Senator BENNET and I have outlined and save our schools money while increasing access to quality school meals for the kids who need them the most."

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Paperless Enrollment for School Meals Act of 2009”.

SEC. 2. DATA-BASED ELIGIBILITY FOR SCHOOL MEALS AND BREAKFASTS.

(a) ELIGIBILITY.—Section 11(a)(1) of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1759a(a)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(F) In general.—A school or local educational agency may elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) in lieu of special assistance payments otherwise made available under this paragraph based on applications for free and reduced price lunches if the school or local educational agency—

“(I) elects to serve all children in the school or local educational agency free lunches and breakfasts under the school lunch program and school breakfast program established under section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1773), during a period of 5 successive school years; and

“(II) pays, from sources other than Federal funds, the costs of serving the lunches or breakfasts that are in excess of the value of assistance received under this Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.).

“(b) ALTERNATIVE DATA SOURCES.—Subject to criteria established by the Secretary not later than December 31, 2010, special assistance payments under clause (i) may be based on an estimate of the number of children eligible for free and reduced price lunches under section 9(b)(1)(A) derived from recent data other than applications, including—

“(I) a socioeconomic survey of a representative sample of households of students, which may exclude students who have been directly certified under paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 9(b);

“(II) data from the American Community Survey of the Bureau of the Census;

“(III) data on receipt of income-tested public benefits by students or the households of students or income data collected by public benefit programs, including—

“(aa) the supplemental nutrition assistance program established under the Food and Nutrition Act of 2006 (7 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.);

“(bb) the medical assistance program under the State medicaid program under title XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396 et seq.);

“(cc) the supplemental security income program established under title XVI of that Act (42 U.S.C. 1381 et seq.);

“(dd) the program of block grants to States for temporary assistance for needy families established under part A of title IV of that Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.); or “(ee) other data, including State or local survey data and State or local tax records.

“(c) PAYMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For each month of the period during which a school or local educational agency described in clause (i) serves free lunches or breakfasts to all enrolled children, the school or local educational agency shall pay at the rate for free meals shall be made for a percentage of all reimbursable meals served that is equal to the percentage of students entitled to free meals.

“(II) REDUCED PRICE MEALS.—For each month of the period during which the school or local educational agency serves free lunches or breakfasts to all enrolled children, the school or local educational agency shall pay at the rate for reduced price meals shall be made for a percentage of all reimbursable meals served that is equal to the percentage of students estimated to be eligible for reduced price meals.

“(III) OTHER MEALS.—For each month of the period during which the school or local educational agency serves free lunches or breakfasts to all enrolled children, food assistance payments shall be made for the remaining of the reimbursable meals served.

“(iv) RENEWALS.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—A school or local educational agency described in clause (i) may apply to the Secretary at the end of the period described in clause (i), and at the end of each period thereafter, for a school year, or local educational agency receives special assistance payments under this subparagraph, for the purpose of continuing to receive special assistance payments under this Act for a subsequent 5-school-year period.

“(II) APPROVAL.—The Secretary shall approve an application under this clause if available socioeconomic data demonstrate that the income level of the population of the school or local educational agency has remained consistent with or below the income level of the population of the school or local educational agency in the last year in which reimbursement rates were determined under clause (ii).

“(III) DATA.—Not later than December 31, 2010, the Secretary shall establish criteria regarding the socioeconomic data that may be used when applying for a renewal of the special assistance payments for a subsequent 5-school-year period.

“(v) HIGH-POVERTY AREAS.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—A school or local educational agency may elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) in lieu of special assistance payments otherwise made available under this paragraph based on applications for free and reduced price lunches if the school or local educational agency—

“(A) during a period of 2 successive school years, elects to serve all children in the school or local educational agency free lunches and breakfasts under the school lunch program under this Act and the school breakfast program established under section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1773);

“(B) pays, from sources other than Federal funds, the costs of serving the lunches or breakfasts that are in excess of the value of assistance received under this Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.), and

“(CC) the school or local educational agency for the prior school year, directly certified under paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 9(b) at least 60 percent of the enrolled students;

“(bb) for a school, for the prior school year, directly certified under paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 9(b) at least 60 percent of the enrolled students; or

“(cc) for a local educational agency or school that received payments under this subparagraph for the prior school year, directly certified under paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 9(b) at least 40 percent of the enrolled students.

“(II) PROCEDURES.—Not later than December 31, 2010, the Secretary shall establish procedures for State agencies, local educational agencies, and schools to meet the requirements of this clause and to elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) for a future school year if the school or local educational agency for the current school year, that the school or local educational agency may become eligible to elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) for a future school year if the low educational agency directly certifies at least 40 percent of the enrolled students for the current school year, that the school or local educational agency eligible to elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) for a future school year if the school or local educational agency directly certifies at least 50 percent of the enrolled students for the current school year, that the school or local educational agency may be eligible to elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) for a future school year if the school or local educational agency directly certifies at least 60 percent of the enrolled students; and

“(III) LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY NOTIFICATION.—Not later than May 1 of each school year, each local educational agency shall notify—

“(aa) any school that directly certified at least 60 percent of the enrolled students for the current school year, that the school is eligible to elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) for the next school year and explain the procedures for the school to make such an election; and

“(bb) any school that directly certified at least 50 percent of the enrolled students for the current school year, that the school may become eligible to elect to receive special assistance payments under clause (ii) for a future school year if the school directly certifies at least 60 percent of the enrolled students.

“(vI) PROCEDURES.—Not later than December 31, 2010, the Secretary shall establish procedures for State agencies, local educational agencies, and schools to meet the requirements of this clause and to elect to receive the option provided under clause (i).

“(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 11(a)(1)(B) of the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1759a(a)(1)(B)) is amended by striking “or (E)” and inserting “(E), (F), or (G)”.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself and Mr. PRYOR):

S. 1228. A bill to amend chapter 63 of title 5, United States Code, to modify and improve the court procedure for administrative law judges, contract appeals board members, and immigration judges; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, today I introduce the Administrative Judge Law Equity Act, a bill to provide leave equity for Administrative Law Judges, ALJs, Contract Board of Appeals Judges, CBAJs, and Immigration Law Judges. I am pleased to be joined in this effort by my friend, Senator MR. PRYOR.

In 2004, Congress passed the Federal Workforce Flexibility Act, which changed the leave accrual rate for mid-career employees entering the Federal workforce. Under the Act, agency heads were given the discretion to allow workers to qualify a period of an employee’s non-Federal career experience as a period of Federal service. Additionally, the Act stated that high-level, senior executives and senior-level employees accrued annual leave at the maximum rate of eight hours for each biweekly pay period.

Although senior executives were placed under a pay-for-performance system, administrative law judges accrued leave at the maximum rate, the same as other senior-level employees. Under the last administration, the Office of Personnel Management denied administrative law judges leave equity because they are not under a pay-for-performance system. I believe it is inappropriate for administrative law judges to be placed under any type of pay-for-performance system because it could compromise their independence. Independent decisionmaking is essential for administrative law judges, and is the reason ALJs and CBAJs do not receive bonus awards.

Currently, there is a shortage of ALJs to adjudicate benefits claims in the Social Security Administration. There are approximately 765,000 cases pending and not enough ALJs to process the backlog. I believe this bill will provide the Federal Government with an important tool in its efforts to recruit and retain highly-skilled administrative law judges.

I am pleased that this bill enjoys broad support from employee groups that include Administrative law judges, including the Association of Administrative Law Judges, the Association of Hearing Office Chief Judges, the Federal Administrative Law Judges Conference, the Forum of U.S. Administrative Law Judges, the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, the National Association of Immigration Judges, and the Senior Executives Association. The purpose of this bill is to give administrative law judges the same benefits as other senior-level employees.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1229. A bill to reauthorize and improve the entrepreneurial development programs of the Small Business Administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship.

Mr. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, the Small Business Administration has provided critical financial assistance and counseling to America’s small businesses since 1953. The services and assistance provided through SBAs programs have been pivotal to this country’s economic growth and have helped thousands of American entrepreneurs realize their dream of starting and growing a successful business. In this time of economic uncertainty, reauthorization of entrepreneurial development programs is essential to moving our Nation forward.

What helps our entrepreneurs helps our entire economy. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, small businesses employ more than half of the workforce and account for half of the Nation’s Gross Domestic Product. Small business management and technical assistance can potentially help millions of small businesses by teaching entrepreneurs and small business owners fundamental principles and practices regarding cash flow, cost management, how to access to capital and effective business planning. The SBA, through its resource partners such as Small Business Development Centers (SBDCs), Women’s Business Centers, WBCs, Service Corps of Retired Executives, SCORE, and others, not only provides technical assistance and information to potential and current small business owners, but helps focus this Nation’s entrepreneurial spirit into concrete economic growth.

As Chair of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I have heard from small business owners across the country. They have told me that the programs and services currently offered by the Small Business Administration provide access to important resources that enable them to start, grow and expand their businesses. But more can and must be done to help these entrepreneurs. Through an extensive reauthorization of the entrepreneurial development programs within the Small Business Act, I believe that we can dramatically improve the tools available to small business owners, address the concerns of women and minorities, and growing and strengthening our economy.

That is why today I am introducing the Entrepreneurial Development Act of 2009. This legislation will provide SBA resource partners with the tools they need to effectively serve small businesses, giving them more opportunities to help lead the nation back toward economic prosperity.

Before I discuss details of this bill, I first wish to thank Senator Snowe for her continued leadership on small business issues and working with me on this bipartisan effort. Over the past three congresses, the reauthorization of these programs has continued to receive support on both sides of the aisle, demonstrating the importance of reauthorizing essential entrepreneurial development programs.

SBA is utilizing resource partners such as SBDCs, SCORE, WBCs and others to ensure that we are growing the Nation’s economy through entrepreneurial development. In 2007, with a modest Federal investment of approximately $97 million in assistance, SBDC clients generated nearly $222 million in additional Federal revenue through the sales of the small businesses that received assistance from SBDC’s attributed their success to assistance offered by the SBDC. Nationally, this economic activity resulted in approximately $2.26 in revenue for every Federal dollar expended.

This level of return on investment is not unique to SBDCs. According to an SBA report to Congress, SCORE helped 99.7 percent of its clients start or expand a new business. The legislation will also create more than 2,000 new jobs each year.

These programs also provide essential information, training and assistance to a broad and diverse cross-section of communities throughout the country, and serve to further grow a variety of industries. Resource partners such as WBCs and initiatives such as the Program for Investment in Microentrepreneurs, PRIME, are dedicated to serving the economic and socially disadvantaged, providing tools and resources to small businesses in those communities that are most in need. According to a study sponsored by the Association of Women’s Business Centers, AWBC, 2/3 of WBC clients have household incomes of less than $50,000 and 42 percent are women of color. These programs serve communities with limited access to capital and educational opportunities and provide them with the tools and information they need to start and manage a successful business.

The reauthorization of these programs is critical to effectively provide entrepreneurs with essential assistance and resources to start a successful business. The legislation will also create opportunities for veterans and service disabled small business owners. According to the Department of Veteran Affairs, there are more than 23.6 million veterans in the country, with hundreds of thousands of veteran’s coming home from service in Iraq and Afghanistan each day. Many of these returning soldiers become entrepreneurs to support themselves and rebuild their lives after long deployments, which also serves to create new jobs in their communities.

Since the passage of The Veterans Entrepreneurship and Small Business Development Act of 1999, the SBA’s Office of Veterans Business Development has been working to provide technical assistance and support to those veterans who have served our country and returned to start or grow a small business. This legislation seeks to ease their transition by providing business counseling and technical assistance through a new network of Veterans Business Centers, modeled after Women’s Business Centers and Small Business Development Centers. The Veterans Business Center Program will provide services not only to returning veterans and service disabled veterans, but also to the families, spouses and surviving spouses of these heroic men and women.

The 111th Congress will be the third consecutive Congress during which comprehensive legislation reauthorizing and improving the SBA’s Entrepreneurial Programs has been introduced. Ranking Member SNOWE introduced S. 3776 in the 109th Congress and former Chairman John Kerry introduced S. 1671 and S. 2920, a bill to which I was a cosponsor, during the 110th Congress. In each previous Congress, this legislation was well received and passed unanimously out of Committee; however, these bills stalled before the full Senate. As Chair of the Small Business Committee this Congress, it is a top priority of mine to finally get this legislation passed and ensure that during this time of economic uncertainty, we are able to provide small businesses with the tools they need to grow and expand their businesses. With this in mind, I will work closely with Ranking Member SNOWE and the other members of the Committee in the coming months to get this legislation to the President’s desk.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(2) by redesigning subsections (m) and (n), as amended by this Act, as subsections (i) and (m), respectively.
The National Women's Business Council provides an independent source of advice and policy recommendations regarding women's business development and the needs of women entrepreneurs in the United States to—
(A) the President;
(B) Congress;
(C) the Interagency Committee on Women's Business Enterprise; and
(D) the Administrator.

(2) The members of the National Women's Business Council are small business owners, representatives of business organizations, and representatives of women's business centers.

(3) The chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship of the Senate and the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives make recommendations to the Administrator to fill 8 of the positions on the National Women's Business Council.

Four of the positions are reserved for small business owners who are affiliated with the political party of the President, and 4 of the positions are reserved for small business owners who are not affiliated with the political party of the President. This method of appointment ensures that the National Women's Business Council will provide Congress with nonpartisan, balanced, and independent advice.

(4) In order to maintain the independence of the National Women's Business Council and to ensure that the Council continues to provide the President, the Interagency Committee on Women's Business Enterprise, the Administrator, and Congress with advice on a nonpartisan basis, it is essential that the Council maintain the bipartisan balance established under section 407 of the Women's Business Ownership Act of 1988 (15 U.S.C. 7107).

(b) MAINTENANCE OF PARTISAN BALANCE—Section 407(f) of the Women's Business Ownership Act of 1988 (15 U.S.C. 7107(f)), as amended by this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(4) PARTISAN BALANCE.—When filling a vacancy under paragraph (1) of this subsection of a member appointed under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), the Administrator shall ensure that there are an equal number of members on the Council from each of the 2 major political parties.

(c) ACCOUNTABILITY.—If a vacancy is not filled within the 30-day period required under paragraph (1), or if there is an imbalance in the number of members on the Council from each of the 2 major political parties for a period exceeding 30 days, the Administrator shall submit a report, not later than 10 days after the expiration of such 30-day deadline, to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship of the Senate and the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives, that explains why the requirement was not met and provides an estimated date on which any vacancies will be filled, as applicable."

SEC. 206. STUDY AND REPORT ON WOMEN'S BUSINESS CENTERS.

(a) In General.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a broad study of the unique economic issues facing women's business centers located in covered areas to identify—
(1) the difficulties such centers face in raising non-Federal funds;
(2) the difficulties such centers face competing for financial assistance, non-Federal funds, and assistance; and
(3) the difficulties such centers face in writing grant proposals; and

(b) Other Difficulties.—Such centers face because of the economy in the type of covered area in which such centers are located.

(2) Report.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to Congress a report regarding the results of the study conducted under subsection (a), which shall include recommendations, if any, regarding how to—
(1) address the unique difficulties women's business centers located in covered areas face because of the type of covered area in which such centers are located;
(2) expand the presence of, and increase the services provided by, women's business centers located in covered areas;
(3) best use technology and other resources to better serve women business owners located in covered areas;
(4) DEFINITION OF COVERED AREA.—In this section, the term "covered area" means—
(I) any State that is predominantly rural, as determined by the Administrator;
(II) any State that is predominantly urban, as determined by the Administrator; and
(III) any State or territory that is an island.

“(ii) includes a small business concern—

“(I) not less than 51 percent of which is owned and controlled by veterans or, in the case of any publicly owned business, not less than 51 percent of the stock of which is owned by one or more spouses of veterans; and

“(II) the management and daily business operations of which are controlled by one or more spouses of veterans;

“(F) the term ‘spouse’, relating to a veteran, service-disabled veteran, or Reservist, includes an individual who is the spouse of a veteran, service-disabled veteran, or Reservist on the date on which the veteran, service-disabled veteran, or Reservist died;

“(G) the term ‘veterans’ business center program’ means the program established under paragraph (2)(A); and “(H) the term ‘women’s business center’ means a women’s business center described in section 29.

“(2) PROGRAM ESTABLISHED.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator, acting through the Associate Administrator, shall establish a veterans’ business center program through which the Associate Administrator may provide financial assistance to a private nonprofit organization to conduct a 5-year project for the benefit of small business concerns owned and operated by veterans, which may be renewed for one or more additional 5-year periods.

“(B) FORM OF FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—Financial assistance under this subsection may be in the form of a grant, a contract, or a cooperative agreement.

“(C) VETERANS’ BUSINESS CENTERS.—Each private nonprofit organization that receives financial assistance under this subsection shall establish or operate a veterans’ business center program described in paragraph (2)(A) of this subsection; or, if an applicant is establishing or operating satellite offices in the region described in paragraph (5) served by that private nonprofit organization (that provides to veterans and veterans’ organizations, service-disabled veterans, Reservists, and the spouses of veterans (including service-disabled veterans) and Reservists—

“(i) financial advice, including training and counseling on applying for and securing business credit and investment capital, preparing and presenting financial statements, and managing cash flow and other financial operations of a small business concern;

“(ii) management advice, including training and counseling on the planning, organization, staffing, direction, and control of each major activity and function of a small business concern;

“(iii) market opportunities, preparing and executing marketing plans, developing strategies, locating contract opportunities, negotiating contracts, conducting public relations and advertising techniques; and “(iv) advice, including training and counseling, for Reservists and the spouses of Reserve Flight.

“(D) APPLICATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A private nonprofit organization desiring to receive financial assistance under this subsection shall submit an application to the Associate Administrator at such time and in such manner as the Associate Administrator shall require.

“(B) 5-YEAR PLAN.—Each application described in subparagraph (A) shall include a 5-year plan on proposed funding and training activities relating to the veterans’ business center.

“(C) DETERMINATION AND NOTIFICATION.—Not later than 60 days after the date on which a private nonprofit organization submits an application under subparagraph (A), the Associate Administrator shall approve or deny the application and notify the applicant of the determination.

“(D) AVAILABILITY OF APPLICATION.—The Associate Administrator may select to receive financial assistance under this subsection shall submit an application to the Associate Administrator at such time and in such manner as the Associate Administrator may require.

“(E) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The criteria established under this paragraph are—

“(i) the experience of the applicant in conducting programs or other efforts designed to impart or upgrade the business skills of veterans, and the spouses of veterans, who own or may own small business concerns; and “(ii) the ability of the applicant to begin operating a veterans’ business center within a minimum amount of time.

“(F) CRITERIA PUBLICLY AVAILABLE.—The Associate Administrator shall—

“(i) make publicly available the selection criteria established under this paragraph; and

“(ii) include the criteria in each solicitation for applications for financial assistance under this subsection.

“(G) AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE.—The amount of financial assistance provided under this subsection to a private nonprofit organization for each fiscal year shall be—

“(A) not less than $150,000; and “(B) not more than $200,000.

“(H) FEDERAL SHARE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—

“(i) INITIAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—Except as provided in clause (ii), a private nonprofit organization that receives financial assistance under this subsection shall provide non-Federal contributions for the operation of the veterans business center established by the private nonprofit organization in an amount equal to—

“(I) in each of the first and second years of the project, not less than 33 percent of the amount of the financial assistance received under this subsection; and

“(II) in each of the third through fifth years of the project, not less than 50 percent of the amount of the financial assistance received under this subsection.

“(ii) RENEWALS.—A private nonprofit organization that receives a renewal of financial assistance under this subsection shall provide non-Federal contributions for the operation of the veterans business center established by the private nonprofit organization in an amount equal to not less than 50 percent of the amount of the financial assistance received under this subsection.

“(I) FORM OF NON-FEDERAL SHARE.—Not more than 50 percent of the non-Federal share for a project carried out using financial assistance under this subsection may be in the form of in-kind contributions.

“(J) TIMING OF DISBURSEMENT.—The Associate Administrator may disburse not more than 25 percent of the financial assistance awarded to a private nonprofit organization before the private nonprofit organization obtains the non-Federal share required under this paragraph with respect to that award.

“(K) FAILURE TO OBTAIN NON-FEDERAL FUNDING.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—If a private nonprofit organization that receives financial assistance under this subsection fails to obtain the non-Federal share required under this paragraph during any fiscal year, the private nonprofit organization may not receive a disbursement under this subsection in a subsequent fiscal year or a disbursement for any other project funded by the Administration, unless the Administrator makes a written determination that the nonprofit organization will be able to obtain a non-Federal contribution.

(ii) RESTORATION.—A private nonprofit organization prohibited from receiving a disbursement under clause (i) in a fiscal year may receive financial assistance in a subsequent fiscal year if the organization obtains the non-Federal share required under this paragraph in a subsequent fiscal year.

(9) CONTRACT AUTHORITY.—A veterans' business center may enter into a contract with a nonprofit or government agency to provide specific assistance to veterans, service-disabled veterans, Reservists, or the spouses of veterans, service-disabled veterans, or Reservists. Performance of such contract shall not hinder the veterans' business center in carrying out the terms of the grant received by the veterans' business centers from the Administrator.

(10) EXAMINATION AND DETERMINATION OF VIABILITY.—

(A) EXAMINATION.—The Associate Administrator shall conduct an annual examination of the programs and finances of each veterans' business center established or operated using financial assistance under this subsection.

(ii) FACTORS.—In conducting the examination under clause (i), the Associate Administrator shall consider whether the veterans' business center has failed—

(I) to provide the information required to be provided under subparagraph (B), or the information provided by the center is inadequate;

(II) the center has failed to comply with a requirement of the veterans' business center program, as determined by the Assistant Administrator, including—

(aa) failure to acquire or properly document a non-Federal share;

(bb) failure to establish an appropriate partnership or program for marketing and outreach to small business concerns;

(cc) failure to achieve results described in a financial assistance agreement; and

(dd) failure to provide to the Administrator cost breakdown of actual expenditures for costs incurred during the most recent full fiscal year;

(ii) an assessment of—

(I) the amount of the non-Federal share obtained and expended by the veterans' business center during the most recent full fiscal year; and

(II) with respect to any in-kind contributions under paragraph (4)(B), verification of the existence and valuation of such contributions.

(C) DETERMINATION OF VIABILITY.—The Associate Administrator shall analyze the results of each examination under this paragraph and, based on that analysis, make a determination regarding the viability of the program and finances of each veterans' business center.

(D) DISCONTINUATION OF FUNDING.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The Associate Administrator may discontinue an award of financial assistance to a private nonprofit organization at any time if the Associate Administrator determines under subparagraph (C) that the veterans' business center operated by that organization is not viable.

(ii) RESTORATION.—The Associate Administrator may reinstate financial assistance to a private nonprofit organization in a subsequent fiscal year if the Associate Administrator determines under subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) that the veterans' business center is viable.

(11) PRIVACY REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (A), a veterans' business center may receive financial assistance from the private nonprofit organization and the Administration that is in effect on the date of such examination under clause (i), the Associate Administrator determines under subparagraph (C) that the private nonprofit organization will be able to obtain a non-Federal contribution, and the nonprofit organization is not otherwise prohibited from receiving such financial assistance by a court in any civil or criminal enforcement action initiated by a Federal or State agency.

(iii) Restoration.—A private nonprofit organization that receives financial assistance from the private nonprofit organization and the Administration that is in effect on the date of such examination under clause (i), the Associate Administrator determines under subparagraph (C) that the private nonprofit organization will be able to obtain a non-Federal contribution, and the nonprofit organization is not otherwise prohibited from receiving such financial assistance by a court in any civil or criminal enforcement action initiated by a Federal or State agency, may receive financial assistance from the private nonprofit organization and the Administration that is in effect on the date of such examination under clause (i) if the Administrator or Associate Administrator determines that such a disclosure is necessary to conduct a financial audit of a veterans' business center.

(B) EXCEPTION.—A veterans' business center may disclose information described in subparagraph (A) if the Administrator or Associate Administrator is required to make such a disclosure by a court in any civil or criminal enforcement action initiated by a Federal or State agency.

(12) REPORT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 60 days after the end of the most recent full fiscal year, the Associate Administrator shall submit to the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Small Business of the Senate a report on the effectiveness of the veterans' business center program and the results of the examination of each veterans' business center without the consent of the individual or small business concern.

(ii) INITIAL DESIGNATION.—The initial designation of a veterans' business center under this subsection shall be a report on the effectiveness of the veterans' business center program and the results of the examination of each veterans' business center.

(i) an assessment of—

(I) the employment increases or decreases of small business concerns that receive advice from the veterans' business center; and

(II) the number of individuals or small business concerns that receive advice from the veterans' business center, including the number of such individuals who are—

(aa) veterans or spouses of veterans;

(bb) service-disabled veterans or spouses of service-disabled veterans; or

(cc) Reservists or spouses of Reservists;

(ii) the gross receipts of small business concerns formed by individuals receiving assistance from the veterans' business center, including—

(aa) veterans or spouses of veterans;

(bb) service-disabled veterans or spouses of service-disabled veterans; or

(cc) Reservists or spouses of Reservists;

(iii) the net profits of small business concerns that receive advice from the veterans' business center; and

(iv) the employment increases or decreases of small business concerns that receive advice from the veterans' business center;
(II) the effectiveness of the services provided by each private nonprofit organization receiving financial assistance under the veterans’ business center program; and
(III) whether the services described in clause (ii) are duplicative of services provided by other veteran service organizations, programs of the Administration, or programs of another department or agency, and if so, recommendations regarding how to alleviate the duplication of the services; and
(IV) whether there are areas of the United States in which there are not adequate entrepreneurial services for small business concerns owned and controlled by veterans, and, if so, whether there is a veterans’ business center established under the veterans’ business center program providing services to that area of the United States.

(i) recommendations, if any, for improving the veteran’s business center program.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, as Ranking Member of the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I rise today to join with Senator LANDRIEU to introduce the Entrepreneurial Development Act of 2009, a bill that would reauthorize and improve the U.S. Small Business Administration’s, SBA, Entrepreneurial Development programs. I have long fought to expand the power and reach of the SBA’s entrepreneurial development tools, which are used by millions of current and aspiring entrepreneurs and small businesses across the U.S. These programs demonstrate how Congress can play a positive role in enhancing private-sector financing for start-up companies. We must continue to strengthen these core SBA programs because they have played such a critical role in aiding the efforts and dreams of America’s entrepreneurs, and in bolstering small business job creation.
The bill that I am cosponsoring today is the product of the type of bipartisan, consensus work product for which the Senate Small Business Committee has come to be known. The provisions contained in this legislation are a compilation of ideas and initiatives put forward by Senators LANDRIEU, and other Committee members. Much of the language in the Entrepreneurial Development Act of 2009 was contained in S. 2920, the SBA Reauthorization and Improvements Act in the 110th Congress, the individual provisions of which were each passed unanimously by the Senate Small Business Committee during the 110th Congress. Unfortunately, that bipartisan bill never passed the Senate. This act, among other things, builds upon the aforementioned successes of SBA’s Entrepreneurial Development programs, which collectively created or retained 200,000 jobs in 2008 alone.

Since their inception, Small Business Development Centers, WBCs, have been essential in the delivery of management and technical counseling assistance and educational programs to prospective and existing small business owners. The SBDC program has served over 180,000 clients with new business starts, sustainability programs for struggling firms, and expansion plans for growth firms. For every dollar spent on the SBDC program, approximately $2.87 in tax revenue is generated.

According to a recent report conducted at Mississippi State University, as a direct result of its counseling programs, SBDC clients generated approximately $7 billion in sales and created over 73,000 new jobs in 2006. Therefore, it is imperative that in such troubling economic times we ensure that this program has the resources necessary to successfully aid small businesses. Through this legislation, which increases the SBDC program’s authorization to $160 million by fiscal year 2012, this program will be in a better position to continue helping entrepreneurs succeed.

The Women’s Business Center, WBC, program, established by Congress in 1988, promotes the growth of women-owned businesses through business training and technical assistance, and provides access to credit and capital, federal contracts, and international trade. The WBC program served more than 159,000 clients across the country last year, providing help with financial management, procurement training, marketing and technical assistance. WBCs also provide specialized programs that include mentoring in various languages, Internet training, issues facing displaced workers, and rural home-based entrepreneurs.

Our legislation builds on our commitment to providing assistance to small entrepreneurs. It directs the SBA’s Office of Women’s Business Ownership to develop programs to bolster the growth of women-owned small businesses by providing support for business operations, manufacturing, technology, finance, Federal Government contracting, and international trade.

The bill also makes substantial improvements to the Women’s Business Center program, which created nearly 9,000 jobs at a cost of only $1 per job. This fiscal year, including an expansion of the types of entities that are eligible to host WBCs to economic development organizations, state-chartered development organizations, colleges and universities. Finally, the bill directs the SBA to provide a minimum of $150,000 in funding annually to all new WBCs that are in their first 5 years of operation, allowing new centers to become fully established before they have to compete for federal funding.

The bill also reauthorizes SCORE, a non-profit association that matches business-management counselors with small business clients. SCORE volunteer counselors share their management and technical expertise with both existing and prospective small business owners. With its 10,500 member volunteer association, sponsored by the SBA, and more than 389 service delivery points and a website, SCORE provides management and technical counseling nationwide. The national SCORE organization delivers its services of business and technical assistance through a national network of chapters, an Internet counseling site, partnerships with SBA’s SBDCs and WBCs, and associations with the public and private sectors. In 2008, SCORE created or retained 25,000 jobs, and this act will help improve this program by raising the authorization level to $13 million in fiscal year 2012.

In addition to reauthorizing SBA’s ED programs and increasing their funding levels, this bill also addresses the crises small businesses face when it comes to securing quality, affordable health insurance. Health insurance costs are up 88 percent in the U.S. since 2000. This has led to a disturbing trend of fewer and fewer small businesses being able to offer health insurance to their employees.

A key provision in this bill would establish a grant program to provide information, counseling, and educational materials to small businesses, through the well-established national framework of the SBA’s technical assistance partners including SBDCs, WBC, Veteran’s Business Centers, and SCORE. Research conducted by the non-partisan Healthcare Leadership Council found that with a short educational and counseling session, small businesses were up to 33 percent more likely to offer health insurance to their employees. It is therefore vital that we provide the SBA’s resource partners with the resources necessary to give small businesses the critical health care education they need to navigate the complex insurance market.

The SBDC and WBC programs provide tremendous value for a relatively small investment. I am committed to ensuring that Americans have the necessary resources to start, grow and develop a business. I believe that it is our duty to do everything possible to sustain prosperity and job creation throughout the U.S. I urge my colleagues to support this vital piece of legislation.

By Mr. DODD:
S. 1231. A bill to create or adopt, and implement, rigorous and voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science covering kindergarten through grade 12, to provide for the assessment of student proficiency benchmarked against such standards, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce The Standards to Provide Educational Achievement for Kids, SPEAK Act, a bill designed to provide incentives to states to begin holding every child in America to the same high standards. At its core, SPEAK will adopt and implement voluntary core American education content standards in math and science while incentivizing states to adopt those standards.

America’s leadership, economic, and national security rest on our commitment to educate and prepare our youth to succeed in a global economy. The key to succeeding in this endeavor is to have high expectations for all American children as they progress through our Nation’s schools.

Currently there are 50 different sets of academic standards, 50 State assessments, and 50 definitions of proficiency under the No Child Left Behind Act. As a result of varied standards, exams and proficiency levels, America’s highly mobile student-aged population moves through the Nation’s schools gaining widely varying levels of knowledge, skills and preparedness. Yet, in order for the U.S. to continue to be a global economy, we must strengthen our educational expectations for all American children—we must compete as one Nation.

Recent research shows that American students have significant shortcomings in math and science. Many lack the basic skills required for college or the workplace. This affects our economic and national security; it holds us back in the global marketplace and risks ceding our competitive edge. This is unacceptable.

America was founded on the notion of ensuring equity and opportunity for all. And yet, we risk both when we allow different students in different states to graduate from high school with very different educations. We live in a nation where 8th graders in some states score more than 30 points higher on tests of basic science knowledge than students in other states. Yet my colleagues today what equality of opportunity we have under such circumstances.
This is where American standards come in. Voluntary, core American standards in math and science are an important step in ensuring that all American students are given the same opportunity to learn to a high standard no matter where they reside. They will allow our students to better prepare to compete in the global marketplace. Uniform standards are a first step in maintaining America’s competitive and national security edge.

While I understand that education is, after all, a state endeavor, we cannot ignore that at the end of the day America competes as one country on the global marketplace. This does not mean that I am asking states to cede their authority in education. What the bill simply proposes is that we use the convening power of the Federal Government to incentivize efforts to create a core set of common standards. I would like to take a moment to recognize the recent remarkable achievement of the National Governors Association and the Council of Chief State School Officers in partnership with Achieve, Inc. ACT, and the College Board. Just last week they announced that 49 States and territories have joined the Common Core American Education Standards Initiative and have committed to a process to develop common standards in English language arts and mathematics. They have made a commitment to evidence-based and internationally benchmarked standards, which are scheduled to be developed later this year. This effort is outstanding. Just 2 years ago, when I introduced one of the first bills in the Senate on standards, this type of effort would have been unthinkable. Now, there is strong momentum to bring all standards across the country with competitive and consistent standards.

The SPEAK Act, provides flexibility in the creation or adoption of American standards, understanding that there are effective efforts underway that could be integrated into the program of Federal incentives that this bill would provide.

The SPEAK Act will task the National Governors Association Board with creating or adopting rigorous and voluntary core American education content standards in math and science for grades K-12. It will require that the standards be anchored in the National Assessment of Educational Progress’ math and science frameworks. It will also ensure that such standards are internationally competitive and comparable to the best standards in the world, similar to the outline created for the standards being developed through the Common Core State Standards Initiative.

States that do participate, while required to adopt the American standards, will be given the flexibility to make them their own. They will have the option to add additional content requirements, they will have final say in how coursework is sequenced, and, ultimately, States, and districts will still be the ones developing the curriculum, choosing the textbooks and administering the tests. The standards provided for under this legislation will simply serve as a common core.

The SPEAK Act will develop rigorous achievement goals. It will ensure that varying developmental levels of students are taken into account in the development of such standards. It will provide for periodic review and update of such standards. It establishes an American Standards Incentive Fund to incentivize states to adopt the standards. Among the benefits of participating is a significant infusion of funds for states to bolster their K-12 data systems. No one will deny that our Nation is facing difficult economic times. However, there remains a steadfast commitment to improving education for our students, a commitment that includes working to develop voluntary American standards. I applaud states that realize that despite facing difficult budget realities, holding all students to the same, high standards will be what is best for the future of our nation. These States need and deserve incentives and resources to complete this important work.

I should also note that the SPEAK Act has garnered endorsements from businesses, math/science organizations, foundations, and the education community. Through the leadership of Congresswoman VERNON EHLERS in the House of Representatives it shares not only bicameral, but bipartisan support. Together we have all come together to affect meaningful change in our public schools.

We live in an economy where you can no longer lift, dig or assemble your way to success. Today, you have got to think your way to success so that when public education doesn’t work, when we fail to compete as one nation, our entire country gets left behind. Low expectations translate to an America that is less competitive on the world stage. If that happens, we are going to wonder why we didn’t do anything about it while we still had time.

The Core American standards will set high goals for all students, allow for meaningful comparisons of achievement across states, and help ensure that all of our students are qualified to enter college. At the end of the day, we all want what is best for our country and parents want what is best for their kids. With core standards, America will begin the work of regaining its competitive edge in the global economy. In the life of every student, equality will be made a little more real with reintroducing the skills and knowledge we expect of them are no longer made contingent on where they reside.

I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting the SPEAK Act. As we start holding our students to the same high standards, I expect that we will be amazed at the excellence that follows.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Throughout the years, educators and policymakers have consistently embraced standards as the mechanism to ensure that every student, no matter what school the student attends, masters the skills and develops the knowledge needed to participate in a global economy.

(2) Recent international comparisons make clear that students in the United States have significant shortcomings in mathematics and science, yet a high level of scientific and mathematics literacy is essential to societal innovations and advancements.

(3) With more than 50 different sets of academic content standards, 50 State academic assessments, and 50 definitions of proficiency under Section 6311(b) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)), there is great variability in the measures, standards, and benchmarks for academic achievement in mathematics and science.

(4) Variation in State standards and the accompanying measures of proficiency make it difficult for parents in other to meaningfully gauge how well their children are learning mathematics and science in comparison to their peers internationally or here at home.

(5) The disparity in the rigor of standards across States yield test results that tell the public little about how schools are performing. Students with high standards or low proficiency requirements may appear to be doing much better than States with more rigorous standards or high-proficiency requirements for proficiency.

(6) As a result, the United States’ highly mobile student-aged population moves through the Nation’s schools gaining widely varying levels of knowledge, skills, and preparation.

(7) In order for the United States to compete in a global economy, the country needs to strengthen its educational expectations for all children.

(8) To compete, the people of the United States must compare themselves against international benchmarks.

(9) Grounded in a real world analysis and international comparisons of what students need to succeed in work and college, rigorous and voluntary core American education content standards will keep the United States economically competitive and ensure that the children of the United States are given the same opportunity to learn to a high standard no matter where they reside.

(10) Rigorous and voluntary core American education content standards in mathematics and science will enable students to succeed in academic settings across States while ensuring an American edge in the global marketplace.

SEC. 3. ASSESSING SCIENCE IN THE NATIONAL ASSESSMENT OF EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS.

(a) NATIONAL ASSESSMENT OF EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS AUTHORIZATION ACT.—Section 303 of the National Assessment of Educational Progress Authorization Act (20 U.S.C. 9622) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking "State assessment," and inserting "and State assessments in reading, mathematics, and science";

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by inserting "science," after "mathematics,";

(B) in paragraph (2)—

(i) in subparagraph (B), by striking "reading and mathematics" and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science";

(ii) in subparagraph (C), by striking "reading and mathematics" and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science";

(iii) in subparagraph (D), by striking "science;"; and

(iv) in subparagraph (E), by striking "reading and mathematics" and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science";

(C) in paragraph (3)—

(i) in subparagraph (A), by striking "reading and mathematics" and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science"; and

(ii) in subparagraph (C), by striking "reading and mathematics" each place the term occurs and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science"; and

(D) in paragraph (4)(B), by striking "require, or influence" and inserting "or require";

(3) in subsection (d)(3), by striking "reading and mathematics" each place the term occurs and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science"; and

(4) in subsection (f)(1)(B)(v), by striking "and mathematical knowledge" and inserting "mathematical knowledge, and science knowledge";

(b) ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION ACT OF 1965.—Subpart I of part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 631 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in section 1111(c)(2) (20 U.S.C. 6311(c)(2))—

(A) by inserting "and, for science, beginning with the 2010–2011 school year" after "2002–2003," and

(B) by striking "reading and mathematics" and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science"; and

(2) in section 1112(b)(1)(F) (20 U.S.C. 6312(b)(1)(F))—

(A) by striking "reading and mathematics" and inserting "reading, mathematics, and science"; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (1) the following:

"(2) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Education."

SEC. 5. VOLUNTARY AMERICAN EDUCATION CONTENT STANDARDS INCENTIVE FUND.

The National Assessment of Educational Progress Authorization Act (20 U.S.C. 9621 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by redesignating sections 304 (as amended by section 4) and 305 as sections 306 and 307, respectively; and

(2) by inserting after section 306 the following:

"SEC. 304. CREATION OR ADOPTION OF VOLUNTARY AMERICAN EDUCATION CONTENT STANDARDS INCENTIVE FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of the Standards to Provide Educational Achievement for Kids Act and from amounts appropriated under section 307(a)(3) for a fiscal year, the Assessment Board shall create or adopt voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science covering kindergarten through grade 12.

(b) DUTIES.—The Assessment Board shall implement subsection (a) by carrying out the following duties:

1. Create or adopt voluntary American education content standards for mathematics and science covering kindergarten through grade 12 that reflect a common core of what students in the United States should know and be able to do to compete in a global economy.

2. Anchor the voluntary American education content standards based on the mathematics and science frameworks and achievement levels under section 303(e) of the National Assessment of Educational Progress for grades 4, 8, and 12.

3. Ensure that the voluntary American education content standards reflect international standards of excellence and the latest developments in the fields of mathematics and science; and

4. Review existing standards in mathematics and science developed by professional organizations.

5. Review State standards in mathematics and science as of the date of enactment of the Standards to Provide Educational Achievement for Kids Act and construct and work with all State education agencies and other appropriate organizations.

6. Review the reports, views, and analyses of a cross section of experts, including classroom educators, and of the public, as such reports, views, and analyses relate to mathematics and science education, including—

(A) reviews of blue ribbon reports;

(B) exemplary practices in the field; and

(C) recent reports by government agencies and private organizations.

7. Review scientifically rigorous studies that examine the relationship among—

(A) the sequences of secondary school-level mathematics and science courses; and

(B) student achievement.

8. Ensure that steps are taken in the development of the voluntary American education content standards to properly identify the needs of students who receive special education and related services under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.) and of students who are limited English proficient (as defined in section 9101 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7801)).

9. Solicit input from organizations and entities, including—

(A) 1 or more professional mathematics or science organizations, including mathematics and science educators;

(B) the State educational agencies that have received American Standards Incentive Fund grants under section 305 during the period covered by the review; and

(C) other organizations and entities, as determined appropriate by the Assessment Board.

(b) E STABLISHMENT OF FUND.—From amounts available from the American Standards Incentive Fund to award, on a competitive basis, grants to State educational agencies to enable each State educational agency to adopt the voluntary American education content standards in

"SEC. 305. THE AMERICAN STANDARDS INCENTIVE FUND.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(2) ACAD EMIC CONTENT STANDARDS.—The term ‘academic content standards’ means the aligned, challenging academic content standards described in section 1111(b)(1) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)(1)).

(3) LEVELS OF ACHIEVEMENT.—The term ‘levels of achievement’ means the State levels of achievement under subsections (I) and (II) of section 1111(b)(1)(D) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)(1)(D)(I), (II)).

(4) STATE ACAD EMIC ASSESSMENTS.—The term ‘State academic assessments’ means the academic assessments that the State described in section 1111(b)(3) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)(3)).

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF FUND.—From amounts appropriated under section 307(a)(4) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall establish and fund the American Standards Incentive Fund to carry out the grant program under subsection (c).

(c) INCENTIV GRANT PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 12 months after the Assessment Board adopts the voluntary American education content standards the Secretary shall use amounts available from the American Standards Incentive Fund to award, on a competitive basis, grants to State educational agencies to enable each State educational agency to adopt the voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science as the core of the State’s academic content standards in mathematics and science by carrying out the activities described in subsection (f).

(5) GRANTS.—A grant under this subsection may be used for the purpose of educating local educational agencies and schools as follows: (A) to develop curricula and instructional materials in mathematics or science that are aligned with the voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science adopted under section 304, and (B) to conduct other activities needed for the implementation of the voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science.

(c) STATE AGENCY.—A State educational agency receiving a grant under subsection (c) shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require. The application shall include—

(1) a description of the activities that the State educational agency will undertake to implement the voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science for each grade level, any of the following:

(C) Align the State academic assessments and assessments under section 303(e) for the elementary schools and secondary schools operated or funded by the Department of Defense to carry out activities similar to the activities described in subsection (f) for the elementary schools and secondary schools operated or funded by the Department of Defense;

(D) Conducting other activities needed for the implementation of the voluntary American education content standards in mathematics and science.

(2) the planned activities described in the application submitted under subsection (e).

(B) DATA AUDIT SYSTEM.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Department of Defense, may award grants under subsection (c) to the Secretary of Defense on behalf of elementary schools and secondary schools operated by the Department of Defense to enable the Director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs to carry out activities similar to the activities described in subsection (f) for the elementary schools and secondary schools operated or funded by the Department of the Interior.

(3) STUDY.—Not later than 2 years after the completion of the first 4-year grant cycle for grants under this section, the Commissioner for Education Statistics shall carry out a study comparing the gap between the achievement and performance of the State’s academic content standards in mathematics and science science for grades 4, 8, and 12, with the achievement levels in mathematics and science science for grades 4, 8, and 12, with the achievement levels in mathematics and science for grades 4, 8, and 12.

(4) NATURE OF GRANT.—A grant under this subsection to a State educational agency shall be in addition to and not in lieu of any other grant awarded to the State educational agency under subsection (c).
“(5) LIMIT ON NUMBER OF GRANTS.—In no case shall a State educational agency receive more than 1 grant under this subsection.

(1) REPORTS TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of the Standards to Provide Educational Achievement for Kids Act, and every 2 years thereafter, the Secretary shall report to Congress regarding the status of all grants awarded under this section.

“(m) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to establish a preference for any curricular or preferred teaching methodology for elementary school or secondary school instruction.

(n) TIMELINE EXTENSION.—The Secretary may extend the required reporting under section 1111(b)(2)(F) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)(2)(F)) by not less than 2 years and by not more than 4 years for a State served by a State educational agency that receives grants under subsections (c) and (k).”

SEC. 6. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Section 307(a) of the National Assessment of Educational Progress Authorization Act (as redesignated by section 5(1)) (20 U.S.C. 9624(a)) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) In General.—There are authorized to be appropriated—

“(1) to carry out section 302, $8,750,000 for fiscal year 2010 and such sums as may be necessary for succeeding fiscal years;

“(2) to carry out section 303, $200,000,000 for fiscal year 2010 and such sums as may be necessary for each succeeding fiscal year;

“(3) to carry out section 304, $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2010 and such sums as may be necessary for each succeeding fiscal year; and

“(4) to carry out section 305, $400,000,000 for fiscal year 2010 and such sums as may be necessary for each succeeding fiscal year.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 181—DESIGNATING JUNE 10, 2009, AS “NATIONAL PIPELINE SAFETY DAY”

Mrs. MURRAY (for herself and Ms. CANTWELL) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 181

Whereas there are more than 2,000,000 miles of gas and hazardous liquid pipelines in the United States that are operated by more than 2,000 companies;

Whereas gas and hazardous liquid pipelines play a vital role in the lives of people in the United States by delivering the energy needed to heat homes, drive cars, cook food and operate businesses;

Whereas, during the last decade, significant new pipelines have been built to help move North American sources of oil and gas to refiners and markets;

Whereas, on June 10, 1999, a hazardous liquid pipeline ruptured and exploded in a park in Bellingham, Washington, killing 2 10-year-old boys and a young man, destroying a salmon stream, and causing hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and economic disruption;

Whereas, in response to the pipeline tragedy on June 10, 1999, Congress enacted significant new pipeline safety regulations, including the Pipeline Safety Improvement Act of 2002 (Public Law 107–335; 116 Stat. 3285) and the Pipeline Inspection, Protection, Enforcement, and Safety Act of 2006 (Public Law 110–69); and

Whereas, during the last decade, the Pipelines and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration of the Department of Transportation, with support from a diverse group of stakeholders, has instituted a variety of important new rules and pipeline safety initiatives, such as the Common Ground Alliance, pipeline emergency training with the National Association of State Fire Marshals, and the Pipelines and Informed Planning Alliance, such as the Common Ground Alliance, pipeline emergency training with the National Association of State Fire Marshals, and the Pipelines and Informed Planning Alliance;

Whereas, even though pipelines are the safest method to transport huge quantities of fuel, pipeline incidents still occur, including the pipeline explosion in Edison, New Jersey, in 1994 that left 100 people homeless, the butane pipeline explosion in Texas in 1996 that left 2 teenagers dead, the pipeline explosion near Carlsbad, New Mexico, in 2000 that killed 12 people in an extended family, the pipeline explosion in Walnut Creek, California, in 2004 that killed 5 workers, and the propane pipeline explosion in Mississippi in 2007 that killed a teenager and her grandmother;

Whereas the millions of miles of pipelines are still “out of sight”, and therefore “out of mind” for the majority of people, local governments, and businesses in the United States, a situation that can lead to pipeline damage and a general lack of oversight of pipelines;

Whereas greater awareness of pipelines and pipeline safety can improve public safety;

Whereas a “National Pipeline Safety Day” can provide a focal point for creating greater pipeline safety awareness; and

Whereas June 10, 2009, is the 10th anniversary of the Bellingham, Washington, pipeline tragedy that was the impetus for many of the safety improvements described in this resolution and is an appropriate day to designate as “National Pipeline Safety Day”;

NOW, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate—

(1) designates June 10, 2009, as “National Pipeline Safety Day”;

(2) encourages State and local governments to observe the day with appropriate activities that promote pipeline safety;

(3) encourages all pipeline safety stakeholders to use the day to create greater public awareness of the advancements that can lead to greater pipeline safety; and

(4) encourages individuals throughout the United States to become more aware of the pipeline hazards in their communities in the United States and to encourage safe practices and damage prevention relating to gas and hazardous liquid pipelines.

Mr. KERRY (for himself, Mr. LUGAR, Mrs. SHAHEEN, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. LIEBERMAN, and Mr. DE MINT) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res. 182

Whereas the people of Albania have made extraordinary progress from authoritarian government and a closed market to a democratic government and market economy in less than two decades;

Whereas the Republic of Albania, with the advice and consent of this Senate and the governments of the other member countries of the Pipelines and Informed Planning Alliance, was officially admitted to full membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on April 2, 2009;

Whereas the Thessaloniki Declaration of 2003 confirmed that the countries of the Western Balkans are eligible for accession to the European Union once they have fulfilled the requirements for membership; and

Whereas the Government of Albania has accepted numerous specific commitments governing the conduct of elections as a participatory, equal, free, and fair, and competitive exercise, including the election held in 2005:

(1) urges the Government of Albania to fulfill the commitments it has made to the OSCE with respect to the conduct of its upcoming elections, and to ensure that those elections are free and fair;

(2) urges the Government of Albania to expedite the implementation of its voter identification card program to minimize the possibility of disenfranchisement如此 many cards as possible to eligible voters prior to the election;

(3) commends the positive step taken by the Government of Albania to reduce the cost of the voter ID card significantly and avoid charges of a poll tax; and

(4) expresses its hope that credible democratic elections in Albania will contribute to a strong and stable government responsive to the wishes of the people of Albania and strengthen Albania’s standing within NATO and European institutions.

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 70, S. 407.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

S. 407

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, [SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.]

This Act may be cited as the “Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2009”.

[SEC. 2. INCREASE IN RATES OF DISABILITY COMPENSATION AND DEPENDENCY AND INDEMNITY COMPENSATION.]

(a) RATE ADJUSTMENT.—Effective on December 1, 2009, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall increase, in accordance with subsection (c), the dollar amounts in effect on November 30, 2009, for the payment of disability compensation and dependency and indemnity compensation under the provisions specified in section 215 of such title.

(b) AMOUNTS TO BE INCREASED.—The dollar amounts to be increased pursuant to subsection (a) are the following:

(1) WARTIME DISABILITY COMPENSATION.—Each of the dollar amounts under section 1114 of title 38, United States Code.

(2) ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION FOR DEPENDENTS.—Each of the dollar amounts under sections 215(h)(1) and 215(i)(1) of such title.

(3) CLOTHING ALLOWANCE.—The dollar amount under section 1112 of such title.

(4) DEPENDENCY AND INDEMNITY COMPENSATION TO SURVIVING SPOUSE.—Each of the dollar amounts under subsections (a) through (d) of section 311 of such title.

(5) DEPENDENCY AND INDEMNITY COMPENSATION TO CHILDREN.—Each of the dollar amounts under sections 1113(a) and 1114 of such title.

(c) DETERMINATION OF INCREASE.—

(1) PERCENTAGE.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), each dollar amount described in subsection (b) shall be increased by the percentage determined by the Secretary in accordance with section 215 of such title.

(2) ROUNDING.—Each dollar amount increased under paragraph (1), if not a whole dollar amount, shall be rounded to the nearest whole dollar amount.

(3) SPECIAL RULE.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs may adjust administratively, consistent with the increase specified in subsection (a), the rates of disability compensation payable to persons section 10 of Public Law 85–857 (72 Stat. 1283) who have not received compensation under chapter 11 of title 38, United States Code.

(e) PUBLICATION OF ADJUSTED RATIOS.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall publish in the Federal Register the amounts specified in subsection (b), as increased under subsection (a), not later than the date on which the matters specified in section 215(1)(2)(D) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 415(i)(2)(D)) are required to be published by law.

(f) DETERMINE THE PERCENTAGE.—Each of the dollar amounts under section 1115(1) of such title.

(g) INCREASES TO OTHER PROVISIONS OF LAW.—Each of the dollar amounts under section 1313(a) of such title.

(h) ALLOCATION OF ADJUSTED RATES.—Each of the dollar amounts under section 1314 of such title.

(i) DETERMINATION OF INCREASE.—

(1) PERCENTAGE.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), each dollar amount described in subsection (b) shall be increased by the same percentage as the percentage by which benefit... amounts payable under title II of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) are increased effective December 1, 2009, as a result of a determination made under section 215(i) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 415(i)).

(2) Rounding.—Each dollar amount increased under paragraph (1), if not a whole dollar amount, shall be rounded to the nearest lower whole dollar amount.

(d) SPECIAL RULE.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs may adjust administratively, consistent with the increases made under subsection (a), the rates of disability compensation payable to persons under section 10 of Public Law 85–857 (72 Stat. 1263) who have not received compensation under chapter 11 of title 38, United States Code.

(e) PUBLICATION OF ADJUSTED RATES.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall publish in the Federal Register the amounts specified in subsection (b), as increased under subsection (a), not later than the date on which the matters specified in section 215(i)(2)(D) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 415(i)(2)(D)) are required to be published by reason of a determination made under section 215(i) of such Act during fiscal year 2010.

SEC. 3. CODIFICATION OF 2008 COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT IN RATES OF DISABILITY COMPENSATION AND DEPENDENCY AND INDENITY COMPENSATION.

(a) VETERANS’ DISABILITY COMPENSATION.—Section 1114 of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(3) ADDITIONAL DIC FOR CHILDREN OR DISABILITY.—Section 1311 of such title is amended—

A Bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to provide for an increase, effective December 1, 2009, in the rates of compensation for veterans with service-connected disabilities and the rates of dependency and indemnity compensation for the survivors of certain disabled veterans, to codify increases in the rates of such compensation that were made effective as of December 1, 2008, and for other purposes.

DISCHARGE AND REFERRAL—

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the committee-reported substitute amendment be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed; that the committee-reported title amendment be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and any amendments related to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

The bill (S. 497), as amended, was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

The title amendment was agreed to, as follows:

A Bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to provide for an increase, effective December 1, 2009, in the rates of compensation for veterans with service-connected disabilities and the rates of dependency and indemnity compensation for the survivors of certain disabled veterans, to codify increases in the rates of such compensation that were made effective as of December 1, 2008, and for other purposes.

S. 1122

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill S. 1122 be discharged from the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, and that it be referred to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MEASURES READ THE FIRST TIME—S. 1232 AND H.R. 2751

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I understand there are two bills at the desk, and I ask for their first reading en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the titles of the bills.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1232) to amend the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act with respect to the importation of prescription drugs, and for other purposes.

A bill (H.R. 2751) to accelerate motor fuel savings nationwide and provide incentives to registered owners of high polluting automobiles to replace such automobiles with new fuel efficient and less polluting automobiles.

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I now ask for a second reading en bloc, and I object to my own request en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The bills will be read for the second time on the next legislative day.

Mr. BEGICH. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 2009

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 10 a.m., Thursday, June 11; that following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and that there be a period of morning business until 2 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the first hour equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with the Republicans controlling the first 30 minutes and the majority controlling the second 30 minutes; that following morning business, the Senate resume consideration of H.R. 1256, the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, with the time until 2:30 p.m. equally divided and controlled between Senators DODD and ENZI or their designees; that at 2:30 p.m., all postcloture debate time having expired, the Senate proceed to vote on the passage of the bill, with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, tomorrow at approximately 2:30 p.m., the Senate will proceed to a roll call vote on passage of the FDA tobacco legislation.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. BEGICH. Mr. President, following the remarks of Senator Chambliss, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate adjourn under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECOGNIZING COACH SUZANNE YOCULAN

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I rise tonight to recognize a very special Georgian, Suzanne Yoculan just retired as the coach of the women's gymnastic program at the University of Georgia. Coach Yoculan is a graduate of Penn State University, and she was named head coach of the University of Georgia gymnastics team in 1983. The team, under her leadership, has been nothing short of spectacular. During her 26 years at the helm, Georgia's gymnastics team, or the Gym Dogs, as they are affectionately referred to, have posted a meet record of 831 wins, 117 losses, and 7 ties, for a winning percentage of .870—pretty spectacular.

Let me list the accomplishments the Gym Dogs have achieved under the leadership of Coach Yoculan: Four undefeated seasons: 1993, 1998, 1999, and 2006. Her teams have finished in the top three in the Nation 19 out of the last 21 years. They have also been a part of the Super Six, the final six NCAA teams every year since the format was introduced in 1993, and have never missed the NCAA women's gymnastics competition. She was Southeastern Conference Women's Gymnastics Coach of the Year in 1986, 1987, 1999, 2001, 2002, 2004, 2006, and 2009. She was the NCAA Women's Gymnastics Coach of the Year in 1987, 1993, 1998, 2006, and 2008. Under her leadership, the Gym Dogs won 16 Southeastern Conference championships and 10 NCAA women's championships, including in the years 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, and 2009. Yes, that is right—the last 5 years in a row, under Coach Yoculan's leadership, our Gym Dogs have won the national championship every year.

This year, in April, the team competed in the NCAA match at the Bob Devaney Center in Lincoln, NE. After a slow start, Coach Yoculan gathered the team in the locker room, gave them a talk, and what she always does, an awful lot from her lady athletes. And did they ever respond in a very positive way. They came down the stretch with several different 10s on various platforms and won the national championship for the fifth consecutive time.

Coach Yoculan made this statement after the meet:

It is really a magical team that has so much fortitude and just love for the sport and passion, and they never quit. I feel blessed, and I actually lived it every day being around them, and that is the thing I am going to miss the most.

Well, those of us who are Bulldogs feel blessed to have had Suzanne Yoculan as our gymnastics coach for the last 26 years. We congratulate her on a very successful career, and certainly we wish her the best in wherever life may take her from here.

GUANTANAMO BAY

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, next I rise to speak about the terrorists being held at Guantanamo Bay naval facility, or Gitmo. There are over 260 terrorists in U.S. custody at the military detention facility in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, today. Let me describe some of the individuals who reside at Guantanamo.

First, Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, or KSM, is the self-proclaimed and quite unapologetic mastermind of the 9/11 attacks. KSM admitted he was the planner of 9/11 and other planned, but foiled, attacks against the United States. In his combatant status review board, he admitted that he swore allegiance to Osama bin Laden as a member of al-Qaida, was the military operational commander for all foreign al-Qaida operations, and much more. KSM and four other detainees who are charged with conspiring to commit terrible 9/11 attacks remain at Guantnamo today. In addition, Gitmo houses Abd al-Rahim al-Nashiri, who was responsible for the October 2000 USS Cole bombing which murdered 17 U.S. sailors and injured 37 others. Also residing at Gitmo are Osama bin Laden's personal bodyguards, al-Qaida's terrorist camp trainers, al-Qaida bomb makers, and individuals picked up on the battlefield with weapons trying to kill American soldiers—our young men and women who patriotically serve their country. The detainees at Guantanamo are some of the most senior, hardened, and dangerous al-Qaida figures we have captured.

In May, just 3 weeks ago, the Senate voted 90 to 6 to prohibit any of these hardened terrorists from being brought to the United States. Despite this clear objection, the administration transferred one detainee, Ahmed Ghailani, to New York City yesterday. He is facing charges in the Southern District of New York for his role in the August 7, 1998, bombings of two U.S. Embassies in Africa.

Some of my colleagues in the Senate have touted this as an example of how we can bring criminal charges against the Gitmo detainees and try them in our courts. However, no one has pointed out that Ghailani was indicted on...
March 12, 2001, a full 6 months prior to the terrorist attacks of 9/11 and after a full investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The case against Ghailani was built long before he was transferred to Gitmo in 2006. To imply that other detainees, many of whom the FBI investigated and extracted evidence against, may similarly be prosecuted in U.S. courts is naive.

The President, in announcing the closing of Guantanamo Bay in January of this year, failed to come forward with a plan. I believe the American people what he intended to do with the rest of the remaining prisoners being held in that facility. Americans are outraged about the fact that there is now the potential for those individuals to be transferred to the United States and the possibility that some of them may be released into American society.

The reaction of the administration to the outcry from the American people and to the outcry from Members of this body, as well as the American people what he intended to do with the rest of the remaining prisoners being held in that facility. Americans are outraged about the fact that there is now the potential for those individuals to be transferred to the United States and the possibility that some of them may be released into American society. I simply will close tonight and say to the American people what he intended to do with the rest of the remaining prisoners being held in that facility. Americans are outraged about the fact that there is now the potential for those individuals to be transferred to the United States and the possibility that some of them may be released into American society.

A TRIBUTE IN RECOGNITION OF LAURAINE FERRIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Lauraine Ferris, an active community member with more than twenty years of experience in social services.

Lauraine Ferris, a graduate of the John Jay College of Criminal Justice, is currently the Assistant Director of the Rose McCarthy Family Residence in the East New York section of Brooklyn. Ms. Ferris and her staff assist families with obtaining the necessary life skills to achieve and obtain independent living.

Lauraine Ferris also possesses a vibrant, creative spirit that thrives on the performing arts. Ms. Ferris is an accomplished actress, dancer, and model, winning several pageants. She shares her talents with the youth and seniors of her community, donating her time to teach African/modern dance.

RECOGNIZING CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE RECREATIONAL BOATING COMMUNITY

SPEECH OF

HON. CANDICE S. MILLER
OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 9, 2009

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of H. Res. 410. This resolution commends the recreational boating industry and boating community for their sizable contribution to the economy of United States, and for their stewardship of the environment.

There are more than 59 million boaters in the United States today, helping to generate $33 billion dollars annually in economic activity. As a result, the boating industry supports an estimated 337,000 employees, who manufacture and sell boats and operate the harbors and marinas. The goods and services purchased to build and maintain boats come from each of the fifty states. Therefore, boating does not only help the water regions of our country, but benefits America as a whole.

That having been said, the boating industry and community are especially important to Michigan and to Michigan's economy. They provide invaluable assets to my district, which has Lakes Huron and St. Clair and the St. Clair River on its eastern border. Boating is not just an important recreational opportunity; for many, life on the water becomes a way of life. The impact of boating spills over into other sectors of the economy like tourism and hospitality industries.

Unfortunately, when the economy falters, it is often the recreational boating industry that feels the impact first. Many people think of boating as a recreation for only the rich, but in Michigan we know that is simply not the case. The people who make the boating industry what it is are the working class individuals who spend their weekends out on the water with friends and family. When those people face economic challenges, you will find that the boating industry does as well.

In this climate, the boating industry is facing some difficult times, nowhere more difficult than in the state of Michigan. In Michigan, we were once the number one state in terms of total boat registrations, but we have since slipped to fourth. Given the challenges that have faced the Michigan economy over the last few years, this is no surprise. The boat manufacturers, dealers, and marina operators should all be commended for their efforts to keep going through this economic period.

Since coming to Congress, I have worked to promote issues that are important to maintaining a thriving and profitable boating industry. I am proud to co-chair of the Congressional Boating Caucus with GENE TAYLOR, and together we have worked on a number of issues to help the boating industry weather the storms that have come its way. This resolution will acknowledge the contributions of the boating industry as they fight through this difficult time.

I urge all of you to please join me in supporting this bi-partisan initiative to recognize our boaters and recommend that President Obama issue a proclamation calling for the observation of National Boating Day.

HON. ANN KIRKPATRICK OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mrs. KIRKPATRICK of Arizona. Madam Speaker, I would like to pay tribute to Dr. Robert L. Millis who is retiring as director of the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Arizona. During his tenure, Dr. Millis oversaw the Lowell Observatory—one of only a handful of private, independent research institutions in the United States—quadrupled its staff, increase visitation tenfold, and construct major new facilities including the Steele Visitor Center, the McAllister Public Observatory, the John M. Wolff instrument facility, and, most recently, the 4.2-meter Discovery Channel Telescope. Telescope now under construction in Northern Arizona.

As a researcher at Lowell, Dr. Millis concentrated on smaller bodies of the Solar System: asteroids, comets, planetary satellites, Pluto, and objects orbiting on the edges of our Solar System. Dr. Millis was a member of several two-person teams that discovered the rings of Uranus, noted periodic variation in the activity of Comet Halley, and proved the existence of an extended atmosphere on Pluto. He also led a multi-institutional team—the Deep Ecliptic Survey—in an eight-year endeavor to explore the region of the Solar System beyond the orbit of Neptune. That venture resulted in...
For the past year, Martin has attended West Point’s Preparatory School in Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. Martin worked very hard during his year in prep school, and the results speak for themselves.

Before the prep school, Martin attended St. Pius X Catholic High School. Martin was very involved athletically at St. Pius, participating in both wrestling and football, and has continued to excel in sports at the West Point Prep School. In addition to his scholastic and athletic achievements, Martin has also attained the rank of Eagle Scout and has even served as an assistant scoutmaster.

Further, Martin is very involved with his church, where he serves as a Faith Formation Teacher, a Eucharistic Minister, an Atlanta Chorister’s Guild Camp Counselor, and participates in the Church Teen Group. He also volunteers for the St. Francis Table, the St. Vincent de Paul Thrift Store, and Habitat for Humanity.

Martin Kaido is an incredibly well-rounded young man, and I am honored to have the privilege to nominate him for an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy. I ask that my colleagues take this time to congratulate Martin as well as his parents, Michael and Mary Kaido, for his accomplishments. It is because of dedicated young people like Martin that America has the finest military in the world. Our Nation is fortunate to have his service.

On Capitol Hill, the United States Flag is celebrated everyday. Flags are flown over the Capitol each day of the year in honor of birthdays, retirements, and, as well as in the memory of loved ones lost. These flags are then shipped directly from congressional offices with an official certificate from the Architect of the Capitol, declaring the date and occasion for which the flag was flown.

I ask that you join me in supporting House Resolution 420, thereby celebrating this American symbol, honoring our country, our men and women who have served and are currently serving in the United States Armed Forces, our veterans who bravely fought beneath flag, and all citizens who proudly fly the American Flag to show their support for our great country, and the ideals this great Flag represents.
A TRIBUTE IN RECOGNITION OF MARIE J. MARJORIE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009
Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Marie J. Marjorie, a community leader dedicated to improving the health of Central Brooklyn’s residents.

Marie J. Marjorie is an Administrative Director at Interfaith Medical Center where her responsibilities include Community Affairs, Media and Marketing, Internship and Volunteer Services, and management of the Gift Shop.

Marie J. Marjorie reaches out to the numerous community organizations, agencies, clergy, churches, schools, and other groups that are interested in working together with Interfaith to continue to improve the health of Central Brooklyn’s residents. She has implemented many successful programs at the hospital including the “Health Career Learning Center” which gives high school students hands-on training in different departments.

A passionate health advocate, Marie J. Marjorie frequently lectures on health care disparities, patients’ rights, and immigrant health issues. Her research “Who are the children and how is their Health?” was published in the book “The Multicultural Cultural Challenge in Health Education” by ETR & Associates.

In addition to her work at Interfaith, Marie J. Marjorie is a volunteer English tutor for a group of young recent immigrants and a parishioner of St. Boniface R.C. Church where she is the Sunday school instructor for the youth group.

Marie J. Marjorie earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Long Island University. She is an advisory board member of the Haitian Apostolate, the HHT Association Resource Group, and a member of Boston College for Corporate Citizenship, the American Public Health Association and the Public Relations Society of America.

Madam Speaker, I would like to recognize Marie J. Marjorie, a vision leader and an inspiration to all of New York.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Marie J. Marjorie.

BILLY COX’S STATEMENT IN HAVERHILL HONORING SENATOR EDWARD M. KENNEDY

HON. NIKI TSONGAS OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009
Ms. TSONGAS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to join one of my constituents, Bill Cox of Haverhill, in honoring Senator EDWARD M. KENNEDY of Massachusetts by including a copy of Bill’s heartfelt remarks, given at a recent event in Haverhill, in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. His comments fondly and appropriately pay tribute to Senator Kennedy for his lifetime of unparalleled service to Haverhill, Massachusetts, and our country.

If you tell Ted Kennedy that you are from Haverhill, the first thing he will tell you is how proud he is to have Barbara Soulottis looking out for his Massachusetts office. Barbara has worked for the Senator since he was first elected 47 years ago and currently serves as his State Director. Barbara has been called the role model for running a senator’s district office.

I can now tell you that one of the most difficult assignments I have undertaken is to attempt to summarize the career and accomplishments of Senator Ted Kennedy.

It has been said that no one works harder than Ted Kennedy and that his legislative instincts are unsurpassed. Both statements are indisputable.

His record of achievements on educational opportunities, science and equal rights for all people, protecting the environment and achieving quality health care for all Americans is unsurpassed. Even as he contends with his own recent health issues, his drive and determination are stronger than ever.

Having been our United States Senator for 47 years, Ted Kennedy has fought for issues that benefit the people of Massachusetts and the nation, such as increasing the minimum wage and funding his ‘No Child Left Behind’ initiative. He continues to work to better the lives of working families and to secure our nation from our true threats.

He has a reverence for those who serve in our Armed Forces and has quietly comforted those families who have made the ultimate sacrifice. Senator Kennedy has moved an agenda that includes everything from hunger to high tech.

Senator Kennedy has a deep and abiding devotion to his home state. He led the charge to see that we have sufficient funding for a parking garage here in Haverhill. Although the Senator is a citizen of the world, he knows that he is home when he is in Haverhill. Our community welcomed his recent visit to the City [with] Congresswoman Tsongas. He stopped at Mark’s Dell to visit with his old friends, the Dimakis family, then on to A–1 Deli where a crowd awaited him and he met new friends and old.

On behalf of the City Committee, we send our best wishes to Ted and Vicki, and take this opportunity to reflect and pay thanks to Senator Kennedy for his lifetime of service to our City, State and Country.

HONORING JAMES AFRICANO FOR HIS APPOINTMENT TO THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE ACADEMY

HON. PHIL GINGREY
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009
Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Steve Hunt.

Steve Hunt was born and raised in Brooklyn where he attended Tilden and Jefferson High Schools. He earned a bachelor of science degree in community health education from York College. He is professionally certified as a New York State Certified Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Counselor, an Internationally Certified Alcohol & Drug Counselor, a Pre and Post Test HIV/AIDS Counselor and is certified in Mediation/Conflict Resolution.

Madam Speaker, I would like to recognize Steve Hunt, a visionary leader and an inspiration to all of New York.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Steve Hunt.
Ms. SCHWARTZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor and congratulate the Women of the Water Works upon the completion of the extensive restoration of the Fairmount Water Works. When the Fairmount Water Works opened in 1812, and after three years, clean water was being pumped to the homes of Philadelphia.

In ten short years, the Water Works was pumping over five million gallons of water daily. This engineering marvel was praised by many tourists and admirers, including Mark Twain and Charles Dickens. In 1909, the Water Works was closed due to pollution in the Schuylkill River.

In 1976, the Water Works was recognized as a National Historic Landmark by the U.S. Secretary of the Interior. Shortly before the announcement, the Junior League of Philadelphia initiated a campaign to preserve this treasure. Since that time, other organizations have joined the effort to return this landmark to its former status as a prime recreational, educational, and historic attraction.

By the turn of the 21st century, Women for the Water Works spearheaded a $26 million project to restore the Water Works, as well as to incorporate a new Interpretive Center. The Interpretive Center opened its doors in 2003 with a mission “to educate citizens to understand their community and environment, especially the Water Works began in 1812, and after three years, clean water was being pumped to the homes of Philadelphia.”

In 2008, the Women for the Water Works reached their fundraising goal of $5 million for the final phase of the project, bringing the total dollars raised to more than $28 million since renovations began thirty years ago. It is commendable that the Fairmount Water Works reopened in 2012, and after three years, clean water was being pumped to the homes of Philadelphia.

The Water Works began operation in the 1790s when a yellow fever epidemic hit Philadelphia. People blamed the disease on the filth that coated city streets and looked for a way to deliver drinking water and wash roads. Constable that the Water Works and seven other water-related tourist attractions of the 19th century will again enchant and educate both Philadelphia visitors and residents.

A TRIBUTE TO THE 2009 ELLIS ISLAND MEDAL OF HONOR RECIPIENTS

HON. DAN BURTON OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the 2009 recipients of the coveted Ellis Island Medal of Honor. Presented annually by the National Ethnic Co-alliation (NECO), the Ellis Island Medal of Honor pays tribute to our Nation’s immigrant heritage, as well as our individual achievement. The medals are awarded to U.S. citizens from various ethnic backgrounds who exemplify outstanding qualities in both their personal and professional lives, while continuing to preserve the richness of their particular heritage. Since NECO’s founding in 1986, more than 2,000 Americans have received Ellis Island Medals of Honor, including six American Presidents, several United States Senators, Congressmen, Nobel Laureates, outstanding athletes, artists, clergy, and military leaders.

As we all know, citizens of the United States can trace their ancestry to many nations. The richness and diversity of American life makes us unique among the Nations of the world and is in many ways the key to why America is the most innovative country in the world. The Ellis Island Medals of Honor not only celebrate select individuals but also the pluralism and democracy that enabled our ancestors to celebrate their cultural identities while still embracing the American way of life. This medal is not about money, but about people who really seized the opportunities this great country has to offer and who used those opportunities to not only better their own lives but make a difference in the lives of those around them. By honoring these truly outstanding individuals, we honor those who show that origins and excellence may be at odds but that the contributions they and other groups have made to America. I commend NECO and its Board of Directors headed by my good friend, Nasser J. Kazeminy, for honoring the contributions of many such individuals.

Madam Speaker, I ask all of my colleagues to join me in recognizing the good works of NECO, and congratulating all of the 2009 recipients of the Ellis Island Medals of Honor. I also ask unanimous consent that the names of the following individuals be placed into the Congressional Record following my statement.

HONORING THE LIFE OF MARILYN GIORDANO

HON. GUS M. BILIRAKIS OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Marilyn Giordano, a wonderful woman who recently lost her courageous battle with colon cancer.

I came to know Marilyn through her work with the American Vitiligo Research Foundation. Vitiligo is a condition in which one’s skin loses pigment and becomes discolored. It is a disease that can easily destroy the spirit of those it affects. Marilyn cared passionately about people with Vitiligo, especially children. She had a great love for this skin condition and the psychological affects. Marilyn dedicated her life to helping these precious children deal with their condition the best they could.

Marilyn’s friend Stella Pavlides, the founder of the American Vitiligo Research Foundation, shared with me the courage with which Marilyn battled colon cancer. Stella said that Marilyn never lost faith that she would survive, refrained from complaining or asking why she was going through such an ordeal, and remained optimistic and positive until the very end, which came peacefully on April 29. That sounds just like the Marilyn I came to know.

Stella has asked me to become an advocate for raising awareness about colon cancer in the days since Marilyn’s death. She correctly points out that colon cancer is one of the most deadly forms of cancer in its advanced stages, though it also is one of the most treatable in its earliest stages. I was pleased that the House passed H. Con. Res 60 earlier this year, which supports the observance of Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month in March and emphasizes the importance of early detection and screening of this disease.

I also recently cosponsored H.R. 1189, the Colorectal Cancer Prevention, Early Detection, and Treatment Act, which would establish a colorectal cancer screening program at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and provide grants to states for colorectal cancer screening and treatment programs. I believe the House should pass this vital, important bill to improve the detection and treatment of this deadly disease.

HONORING KENNEDY PATTERSON FOR HIS APPOINTMENT TO THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE ACADEMY

HON. PHIL GINGREY
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize a young man from Georgia’s 11th Congressional District who has distinguished himself as an excellent student and leader and has committed to serving his country. I am proud to announce that Kennedy Patterson from Marietta, Georgia, has received an appointment to the United States Air Force Academy.

For the past year, Kennedy has attended the Air Force Academy Preparatory School. Kennedy has worked very hard during his year in prep school and the results speak for themselves. Before the prep school, Kennedy attended Marietta High School where he was a member of the Air Force JROTC. Kennedy is an Eagle Scout and has a black belt in Taekwondo. He has been recognized with the Admiral’s Cup Award, the Aviator Wings Award, the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution Bronze ROTC Medal, the American Legion Military Excellence Medal, and the American Legion Officer Medal.

Kennedy Patterson is an incredibly well-rounded young man, and I am honored to have the privilege to nominate him for an appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy. I ask that my colleagues take this time to congratulate Kennedy as well as his parents, James and Nell Patterson, for his accomplishment.

HONORING KENNEDY PATTERSON FOR HIS APPOINTMENT TO THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE ACADEMY
Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Madam Speaker, unfortunately on June 8, 2009, I was unable to cast my votes on H.R. 1736, H.R. 1709, and H. Res. 420. Had I been able to vote, I would have voted as follows:

Had I been present for rollcall No. 311, on suspending the rules and passing H.R. 1736, International Science and Technology Cooperation Act, I would have voted “yea.”

Had I been present for rollcall No. 312, on suspending the Rules and passing H.R. 1709, STEM Education Coordination Act of 2009, I would have voted “yea.”

Had I been present for rollcall No. 313, on suspending the Rules and passing H. Res. 420, Celebrating the symbol of the United States flag and supporting the goals and ideals of Flag Day, I would have voted “aye.”

As a researcher at Lowell, Dr. Millis concentrated on smaller bodies of the Solar System: asteroids, comets, planetary satellites, Pluto, and objects orbiting on the edges of our Solar System. Dr. Millis was a member of several two-person teams that discovered the rings of Uranus, noted periodic variation in the activity of Comet Halley, and proved the existence of an extended atmosphere on Pluto. He also led a multi-institutional team—the Deep Ecliptic Survey—in an eight-year endeavor to explore the region of the Solar System beyond the orbit of Neptune. That venture resulted in the discovery of approximately half the currently known objects in the area known as the Kuiper Belt.

Dr. Millis will remain an active pillar of the Flagstaff community. He will work with Flagstaff-area business leaders committed to improving the greater Flagstaff area and the State of Arizona by bringing together talent and resources to provide leadership on economic and quality of life issues in the region. I wish Dr. Millis the best of luck and look forward to seeing the greater Flagstaff community benefit from the energy and leadership that Dr. Millis provided to the Lowell Observatory for the past 40 years.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Madam Speaker, on June 9, 2009, I mistakenly cast a “YES” vote on H.R. 2751, the Consumer Assistance to Recycle and Save Act. I am submitting this statement for inclusion in the Congressional Record to clarify that I am opposed to H.R. 2751 and had intended to vote “no.” The bill authorizes $4 billion of new spending. This is on top of the $85 billion American taxpayers have provided to help “restructure” the auto industry already. Just yesterday, auto-parts suppliers asked President Obama’s auto task force for an additional $8 to $10 billion in federal aid. In addition, a similar program instituted in Germany ended up costing three times more than originally anticipated. Also, the legislation requires dealers to remove “clunkers” from the market through salvage, reducing the amount of preowned supply. Families that still cannot afford a new automobile, even with the voucher, will face rising prices in the used car market during the current recession. Affordability is an even greater issue. Additionally, under the bill, the DOT is required to promulgate many of the regulations to implement the program within 30 days. This grants too much authority to the executive branch to enact a new $4 billion dollar program. For these and other reasons, I am opposed to H.R. 2751, and I intend to vote “no” on rollcall 314.

HONORING NICHOLAS JACKSON FOR HIS APPOINTMENT TO THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE ACADEMY

HON. PHIL GINGREY
OF GEORGIA

In the House of Representatives
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize a young man from Georgia’s 11th Congressional District who has distinguished himself as an excellent student and leader and has committed to serving his country. I am proud to announce that Nicholas Jackson from Acworth, Georgia has received an appointment to the United States Air Force Academy.

Nick attends Harrison High School where he has a 3.47 Grade Point Average. Nick is a four year varsity letter winner for the Harrison football and track and field teams and has proven himself a leader—being selected Captain of the football team on multiple occasions. He was named to the Cobb County Touchdown Club All County football team, the Marietta Daily Journal 2nd team All County football team, and was an honorable mention All Atlanta Journal-Constitution All Northwest Georgia football player. Nick brings his love of sports into community service, as well, annually volunteering for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes’ football camp as well as the Harrison High School Community Service Day. Nick’s athletic accomplishments have gone unnoticed by the Air Force Academy—earning him a letter of recruitment from the head coach of the Falcons.

Nicholas Jackson is an incredibly well-rounded young man, and I am honored to have the privilege to nominate him for an appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy. I ask that my colleagues take this time to congratulate Nick as well as his parents, Michael and Colleen, for his academic and community commitments, because of dedicated young people like Nick that America has the finest military in the world. Our nation is fortunate to have his service.

A TRIBUTE TO PATRICK HURLEY

HON. BRIAN P. BILBAY
OF CALIFORNIA

In the House of Representatives
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. BILBAY. Madam Speaker, I would like to bring to your attention today the many outstanding achievements of Patrick Hurley, the outgoing president of the Carlsbad Hi-Noon Rotary Club. Patrick’s leadership during the 2008–2009 Rotary year has contributed significantly to the Hi-Noon Rotary Club, the community of Carlsbad and the mission of Rotary. His tenure, the Carlsbad Hi-Noon Rotary Club sponsored Interact, a youth service club; RYLA, a youth awareness leadership conference; a Christmas party and provided meals and gifts to needy elementary school children; co-sponsored the Oktoberfest fundraiser that benefited the Carlsbad Women’s Resource Center and the Carlsbad Boys and Girls Club and completed a very successful golf tournament which funded scholarships for Carlsbad high school students; provided mentors for the City Stuff Program, a program that empowers Carlsbad school children to understand city government; promoted literacy by providing dictionaries for English and Spanish speaking elementary school children; provided over nine hundred books to the Jefferson Elementary School students, and provided financial support to our military personnel and their families.

In addition, under President Patrick Hurley’s leadership the Carlsbad Hi-Noon Rotary and its membership completed a number of other projects. These projects included providing volunteers to help maintain public and private property, provide food and clothing for the needy and homeless, and assist in the distribution of food, clothing and toys to needy Carlsbad families in conjunction with the Carlsbad Christmas Bureau, and through the Gazeebo project, a city landmark structure was refurbished and relocated for public enjoyment.

In the international arena, under President Hurley’s leadership, a team of Carlsbad Hi-Noon Rotarians joined with others and traveled to Mexico to build a house for a needy family: a badly needed ambulance was provided and refurbished for the City of Mazatlan, Mexico, and through our support of the Paul Harris Foundation, we co-sponsored numerous other humanitarian projects all over the world including the efforts in countries to develop entrepreneurial skills and become self sufficient.

I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing the many fine achievements of Patrick Hurley. Without question, his leadership and fine work of the Carlsbad Hi-Noon Rotary Club are worthy of recognition by the House today.
A TRIBUTE TO CHICAGO BLUES LEGEND CORA “KKO” TAYLOR (1928–2009)

HON. BOBBY L. RUSH OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. RUSH. Madam Speaker, American music legend, KoKo Taylor, the “Queen of the Blues,” died June 3, 2009 in Chicago. Her masterful voice represented the spirit of Chicago—proud, loud and full of life.

Born September 28, 1928, in Bartlett, Tennessee, on a small farm to a family of sharecroppers, Cora Walton would one day be known throughout the world as “KoKo Taylor.” She earned her nickname because of a love of chocolate. Orphaned by age 11, along with her five brothers and sisters, Koko developed a love for music from a mixture of gospel she heard in church and blues she heard on radio stations. With one brother accompanying her on a guitar strung with baling wire and another brother on a fife, made out of a corn cob, Koko began her career as a blues woman.

In her early 20s, Koko met her soon-to-be husband, the late Robert “Pops” Taylor, moved to Chicago looking for work. With nothing but, in Koko’s words, “35 cents and a box of Ritz crackers,” the couple settled on the city’s South Side, the cradle of the rough-edged sound of Chicago blues. Taylor found work cleaning houses for wealthy families in the rity northern suburbs. At night and on weekends, Koko and Pops would visit the South and West Side blues clubs, where they would hear singers like Muddy Waters, Howlin’ Wolf, Magic Sam, Little Walter and Junior Wells. And, through working from Pops, it wasn’t long before Taylor was sitting in with many of the legendary blues artists on a regular basis.

Ms. Taylor’s big break came in 1963 when, after one of her signature fiery performances, songwriter/arranger Willie Dixon approached her. Much to Koko’s astonishment, he told her, “My God, I never heard a woman sing the blues like you sing the blues.” Dixon first recorded Koko for USA Records and, then, secured a Chess Records recording contract for her. He produced several singles and two albums for her—including her huge 1966 hit single “Wang Dang Doodle”–firmly establishing Koko as the world’s number one female blues talent.

Over the course of her nearly 50-year career, Ms. Taylor received numerous awards for her music. She signed with Alligator Records in 1971 and recorded nine albums for the label, eight of which were Grammy-nominated, and came to dominate the female blues singer ranks, winning 25 W.C. Handy Awards, more than any other artist. In 1984, she received a Grammy for the live, multi-artist album Blues Explosion on Atlantic Records. In 2004, Koko was presented with the coveted National Heritage Fellowship Award from the National Endowment for The Arts. She also earned 25 Blues Music Awards, more than any other blues artist, male or female. On March 3, 1993, Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley honored the songstress with a Legend of The Year Award, and declared “Koko Taylor Day” throughout Chicago.

In 1998, Chicago Magazine named Koko “Chicagoan of the Year” and, in 1999, she was inducted into the Blues Foundation’s Hall of Fame. “There are many kings of the blues,” said The Boston Globe at the time, “but only one queen. Koko’s voice is still capable of pinning a listener to the back wall.”

There is no doubt she was the queen of the blues and Koko Taylor’s legacy will live on through her music. She has influenced a number of other artists including Bonnie Raitt, Shemekia Copeland and Janis Joplin. Her voice lives on in her recordings. We all are forever indebted to her for her contributions to America’s rich music history.
North Haven, like all fishermen up and down the coast, need a place to land their lobsters, store their bait, load and unload their lobster traps. In some communities fishermen use privately owned piers, in other communities they compete for space at public landings and town docks. Some keep their skiffs upside down on the benches, others mount them on the dock, most park their trucks at the landing.

Coastal landowners who used to allow their friends and neighbors to cross their property to get to the clam flats face rising property taxes and pressure to sell. With these sales to the highest bidder, frequently to build a vacation home or condos on a desirable and “au- tentic waterfront,” access for the community is lost in the process. Condos spring up, displacing the fishermen and boat builders, and the wide variety of businesses that require access to the water. As new construction sprawls, traditional ties to the water are severed and the economic engine that is our coast sputters and stalls for want of a place to land a fish or dock a boat.

Our nation’s working waterfronts are disappearing. Less than 20 miles of Maine’s 3,300 mile coastline support commercial fishing and other traditional marine based activities—and working waterfronts are continuing to disappear.

These are a very important 20 miles. Maine’s Working Waterfront Coalition, a broad and diverse group of stakeholders dedicated to protecting working waterfronts, conducted a study that found that working waterfronts like those supported by this legislation add between $15 and $168 million more to the economy than those just a mile or two away. One of the conditions of the bill states that any working waterfront receiving a working waterfront grant must provide access to the water for the public. The bill makes an exception for commercial fishing if providing access would not be safe.

Those who live on or visit our coasts know how valuable coastal property is—and this is why traditional uses of working waterfronts are vulnerable. Eliminating working waterfronts fundamentally alters the economy, culture and habitat of coastal communities. Please join me in supporting America’s Waterfront Working Act of 2009; help protect working waterfronts and the jobs they provide.

RECOGNIZING THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY OF HOSTELLING INTERNATIONAL USA

HON. JAMES L. OBERSTAR OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. OBERSTAR. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Hostelling International USA for its 75 years of service.

Hostelling International USA is a nonprofit organization founded in 1934 to promote hostels and hostel related programs in the United States, especially for young travelers. It has grown nationally and currently hosts nearly 100,000 guests per year by both domestic and foreign travelers. In doing so, it promotes cultural exchange through travel and supports tourism for local economies.

The Minnesota Council of Hostelling International USA operates the Mississippi Headwaters Hostel in Itasca State Park. Since 1992, in partnership with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, this hostel offers budget accommodations for families, schools, and youth groups. In addition, the Council promotes global travel to and from Minnesota through educational programs in the Twin Cities.

I congratulate Hostelling International USA for its 75 years of service.

INTRODUCING THE RETIREMENT SAVINGS TRANSPARENCY ACT

HON. SUSAN A. DAVIS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Retirement Savings Transparency Act.

More than ever, Americans are relying on 401(k) plans to finance their retirements. Almost 50 million Americans have invested approximately $2.7 trillion in 401(k) retirement plans.

Yet a recent study by the Government Accountability Office (GAO) has found that over 80 percent of Americans do not know what kind of fees are being charged on their hard-earned retirement savings.

But even small differences in these 401(k) fees can lead to significant reductions in the amount of money retirees can expect to see.

For example, an increase of only one percent in 401(k) fees can lower a retiree’s savings by over $32,000 over the course of a 30-year period.

The same reductions can take place because of even minor differences in the rates of return on a 401(k) investment portfolio.

One of the most persistent barriers to workers understanding their retirement options is the failure of financial disclosures to put these fees and returns in context.

When they are provided with information on fees and returns, consumers often have no frame of reference to which to make comparisons.

Yet these benchmarks are readily available in the marketplace and are regularly used by institutional investors in making their investment decisions.

I believe we need to make these same benchmarks available to all Americans saving for retirement.

We have an obligation to help workers make informed decisions when it comes to their precious retirement investments.

The legislation I am introducing today would provide workers with appropriate points of comparison for both the fees and returns associated with each investment option in their 401(k) accounts.

This will help Americans better understand their investment options and make the right decisions to maximize their retirement savings.

At the same time, the increased transparency in fees and returns will force plan providers to compete, driving down costs and improving returns.

During the tough economic climate, Americans have already seen their retirements decline. Many retirees have seen their nest eggs... evaporate and some are even being forced to go back to work after retirement.

It is even more important now than ever to help Americans squeeze every penny out of their retirement investments. I hope we will pass this important legislation and empower Americans to make the most of their hard earned savings.

CONGRATULATING AIRCRAFT OWNERS AND PILOTS ASSOCIATION ON ITS 70TH ANNIVERSARY

SPEECH OF
HON. CANDICE S. MILLER
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 9, 2009

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res 472, a resolution to congratulate the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association on their seventieth anniversary, and speak to their dedication to general aviation, to safety, and the important contribution general aviation provides to the United States.

The AOPA was established seventy years ago, on the eve of World War II. This non-profit association has been dedicated to general aviation, improving general aviation safety, providing pilots with training, education and advocating on their behalf at every level of government.

More than 75% of all flights in the United States are general aviation. America relies on general aviation for business, medical delivery services, sightseeing and for just plain fun and a love of flying.

General aviation is a vital industry in America’s economy. Currently there are 19,000 airports nationwide that provide jobs for 1.3 million Americans and bring in more than $100 billion dollars annually.

After the terrorist attacks of 9/11, the AOPA responded by partnering with the TSA to develop a nationwide Airport Watch Program that uses pilots as eyes and ears for observing and reporting suspicious activity.

Flight Safety has remained a principal focus for the AOPA, so they have supported new technologies to make aviation safer. AOPA was a principle advocate of the GPS navigation systems which helped lead the way for the Next Gen Air Transportation System—with aviation-specific applications and advanced innovations such as weather forecasting.

And today, the AOPA represents more than 289,000 American general aviation pilots—including my husband who is a long time member. He started flying when he was a fighter pilot in Vietnam, and now we fly an RV–8, which he built in our garage.

I am proud to support the resolution to honor the AOPA for the commendable work they do in the aviation field.

Their dedication to aviation, aviation safety, training general aviation pilots, and to new technologies makes me proud to support this association.

Congratulations on your first 70 years.

HONORING VICTORIA HAYES FOR HER APPOINTMENT TO THE UNITED STATES MERCHANT MARINE ACADEMY

HON. PHIL GINGREY
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize a young woman from Georgia’s 11th Congressional District who has distinguished herself as an excellent student and leader and has committed to serving her country. I am proud to announce that Victoria Hayes from Acworth, Georgia has received an appointment to the United States Merchant Marine Academy.

For the past year, Victoria has attended New Mexico Institute in Roswell, N.M., which is the prep school for the Merchant Marine Academy. Victoria has worked very hard during her year in prep school and the results speak for themselves. Before the prep school, Victoria attended East Paulding County High School. Victoria was very involved with the East Paulding band program, and has continued to excel in music at the Merchant Marine prep school—participating in the marching, concert, and regimental bands. She also has the honor of being a Silver Taps bugler.

Victoria Hayes is an incredibly well-rounded young woman, and I am honored to have the privilege to nominate her for an appointment to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. I ask that my colleagues take this time to congratulate Victoria as well as her parents, William and Mary Ellen Hayes, for her accomplishments. It is because of dedicated young people like Victoria that America has the finest military in the world. Our nation is fortunate to have her service.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. RON KIND OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. KIND. Madam Speaker, on June 8, 2009, I missed rollcall votes 311, 312, and 313 due to family reasons. Had I been present, I would have voted “aye” on each of those votes.

A TRIBUTE IN RECOGNITION OF SANTOS CRESPO, JR.

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. TOWNS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Santos Crespo, Jr., a visionary leader in New York City's labor community.

Santos Crespo, Jr. was first introduced to the labor movement at the age of 10, when his father, a delegate and executive board member of Local 6, H.E.R.E. (Hotel Employees & Restaurant Employees Union) brought him to meetings where he witnessed the struggles non-unionized employees must endure.

Santos Crespo, Jr. began community organizing at the age of 14 and was recognized by the late W. H. Booth, Chairman of the Committee on Human Rights under then Mayor John Lindsay. He was a founding member of the Black and Puerto Rican Student Union at Baruch Community College and was instrumental in introducing Black and Puerto Rican Studies there. He has received numerous awards, was named by the Daily News Viva as one of New York City’s Influential Latinos, and has also served in numerous committees related to youth and substance abuse prevention and intervention.

Santos Crespo, Jr. is currently the Executive Vice President of the New York City Board of Education Employees Union, Local 372, DC 37, AFSCME, the largest local (26,000 members) within DC 37 and also serves as one of DC 37’s Vice Presidents. He is also a member of the New York City Chapter of the Labor Council for Latin American Advancement (LCLAA), serves on its Executive Board, and also serves on the Executive Board of the national LCLAA, representing 1.4 million Latino Trade Unionists. He is also a member of many other labor organizations such as the Coalition of Black Trade Unionists (CBTU) and the Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance (APALA) along with civil rights organizations including the Congress for Puerto Rican Rights and the New York NAACP.

Madam Speaker, I would like to recognize Santos Crespo, Jr., a champion of New York City’s many labor causes.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Santos Crespo, Jr.

CONGRATULATING DANA WYGLE, RECIPIENT OF THE AHWAHTUKEE FOOTHILLS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE 2009 WOMEN IN BUSINESS SCHOLARSHIP

HON. HARRY E. MITCHELL
OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. MITCHELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the achievements of Dana Wygle, who is the recipient of the 2009 Ahwatukee Chamber of Commerce Women in Business $1,000 Scholarship. The Ahwatukee Foothills Chamber recently honored Dana at the Ahwatukee Women in Business Faces of Success event, which recognizes present and future businesswomen.

Dana recently graduated from Desert Vista High School. An active and involved student, she also worked at Barro’s Pizza throughout high school. Dana danced with the Ahwatukee Foothills Chamber of Commerce Women in Business Faces of Success event, which recognizes present and future businesswomen.
Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Madam Speaker, I rise to share in the nation’s shock, outrage, and sorrow at the tragic shooting today at the U.S. Holocaust Museum here in Washington. My heart and prayers go out to the family of the young security guard, Stephen Tyrone Johns, who was killed in this senseless crime.

Senator FRANK LAUTENBERG, who serves on the board for the museum, noted the irony that this hateful act took place in this beautiful, peaceful place; a sort of thoughtful sanctuary dedicated to ensuring that the evil of the holocaust never again gains a foothold on this earth. How right he is. How many times must this museum serve to teach the world about the horrible power of hate?

Earlier this week, this body considered two resolutions, one condemning the killing of Dr. George Tiller and one condemning the killing of Army Private William Long and the wounding of Army Private Quinton Ezeagwula. Like today’s killing, these acts were simply reprehensible. The taking of innocent life cannot be justified.

Our society has traveled down a road that should never have been trodden. Human life has been devalued. Violence has been glorified. The gift of living has lost its meaning. In accepting his Nobel Prize, Dr. Martin Luther King said, “Man must evolve for all human conflict a method which rejects revenge, aggression and retaliation.”

The foundation of such a method is love.” As a people, we must promote life, we must celebrate this miracle. And, as a Congress, we must lead the way with laws that protect all, particularly the most vulnerable amongst us, and that encourage loving, life-affirming ways.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the anniversary of an important milestone in our American history.

Today marks the 46th anniversary of the passage of the Equal Pay Act.

In 1963, Congress passed the Equal Pay Act to prohibit employers from wage discrimination on the basis of someone’s sex.

This groundbreaking shift was a game-changer for women who were before, and in many places still are, treated as unequal in the workplace.

It was important to level the playing field. It was important to provide equal pay for equal work.

And it’s important for us today to remember that we need more game-changers—that there are more wrongs to right, and that there are inequalities and injustices to remedy.

That those things over which we have no control—our race, our gender, our sexual orientation, our disabilities—should not divide us.
or preclude anyone from achieving success and providing for his or her family.

The enactment of the EPA was only the first step, and while women’s salaries have risen dramatically, we have more work to do to end employment and pay discrimination.

Let’s remember that all Americans are created equal and deserve equal treatment. We shouldn’t remember today, not just today on this anniversary, but every day.

CONGRATULATING PATTY DURANT, RECIPIENT OF THE AHWATUKEE FOOTHILLS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE 2009 WOMEN IN BUSINESS PALO VERDE AWARD

HON. HARRY E. MITCHELL
OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. MITCHELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the achievements of Patty Durant as the recipient of the 2009 Women in Business Palo Verde Award. The Ahwatukee Foothills Chamber recently honored Patty at the Ahwatukee Women in Business Faces of Success event, which recognizes present and future businesswomen. The award is given to female Chamber members who are role models for other women in business.

Patty is involved with her local business community in many different ways. She is a long-time Ahwatukee Foothills Chamber of Commerce member, treasurer of the Board of Directors, and past chairwomen of its women in business committee. For the past two years, she has served on the Tukee Home Tour committee, a group which organizes events to allow participants the opportunity to view remodeled homes in the community. In addition to her involvement with the chamber, she is a sales representative for Ahwatukee Foothills and Tempe offices of Empire Title Agency.

Presently, Patty serves as a co-chair of the Chamber Scholarship sub-committee, evidence of her commitment to the support of future businesswomen. At the same event at which she was honored for her achievements, she presented 2009 Desert Vista High School graduate Dana Wygle with the Ahwatukee Chamber of Commerce Women in Business Scholarship award.

Madam Speaker, please join me in recognizing Patty Durant for her contributions to her local business community and her efforts to encourage the endeavors of future businesswomen.

RECOGNIZING THE RECIPIENTS OF THE 2009 SHELTER HOUSE, INC. VOLUNTEER AWARDS

HON. GERALD E. CONNOLLY OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 10, 2009

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Shelter House, Inc., and more particularly the contributions that its volunteers make in service to our community. Shelter House and its outstanding volunteers serve Northern Virginia by coming to the aid of some of those most in need of support and assistance. Volunteers are critical in helping Shelter House achieve its mission of breaking the cycle of homelessness by providing crisis intervention, temporary housing, training, counseling, and programs to promote self-sufficiency.

Shelter House is a community-based, nonprofit organization. It was formed in 1981 when several ecumenical groups came together to better serve low-income individuals and families. Shelter House operates two shelters, the Katherine K. Hanley Family Shelter and the Patrick Henry Family Shelter, which provide temporary housing for families in our community who find themselves homeless. In addition, Shelter House offers transitional housing services throughout Fairfax County. As part of the effort to stop the cycle of homelessness, the services provided by Shelter House continue even after individuals enter permanent housing.

Individuals, organizations, and businesses dedicate their time, money, and wherewithal to help Shelter House succeed in its efforts to end homelessness in Fairfax County. These relationships are critical assets to Shelter House and a leading cause for its successes.

Shelter House has recognized the specific contributions from its partners and volunteers and named the following recipients of its 2009 Volunteer Awards: Ending Homelessness Award: Lord of Life Lutheran Church; Youth Volunteer Award: Simrun Soni; Unsung Hero Award: Mary Joyce; Special Events Award: Jack and Jill of Northern Virginia; Friend of Shelter House Kids Award for the Patrick Henry Family Shelter: Ira Kirschbaum; Friend of Shelter House Kids Award for the Katherine K. Hanley Family Shelter: Ron Koch; Community Partner Award for the Patrick Henry Family Shelter: Interior Redesign Industry Specialists, National Capitol Area; Community Partner Award for the Katherine K. Hanley Family Shelter: Clifton Community Women’s Club; and Community Champion Awards: Miller and Smith; Junior League of Northern Virginia and Capital One.

The outstanding efforts of the above-mentioned individuals and organizations merit special recognition, but one must acknowledge the impact of all Shelter House volunteers who work to provide secure and structured environments for families and connect them with the supportive services they require. These volunteers help make Shelter House one of the most effective organizations in the battle to end homelessness by empowering families to reach their full potential.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in expressing our gratitude for the efforts of these volunteers and their colleagues at Shelter House. The selfless commitment of these individuals provides enumerable benefits to Northern Virginia as a community as well as life-changing services to the individuals in need.
SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. HIGHLIGHTS

House Committees ordered reported 33 sundry measures.

Senate

Chamber Action

Routine Proceedings, pages S6393–S6480

Measures Introduced: Eleven bills and two resolutions were introduced, as follows: S. 1223–1233, and S. Res. 181–182.

Measures Passed:

National Pipeline Safety Day: Senate agreed to S. Res. 181, designating June 10, 2009, as “National Pipeline Safety Day”.

Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act: Senate passed S. 407, to amend title 38, United States Code, to provide for an increase, effective December 1, 2009, in the rates of compensation for veterans with service-connected disabilities and the rates of dependency and indemnity compensation for the survivors of certain disabled veterans, to codify increases in the rates of such compensation that were effective as of December 1, 2008, after agreeing to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

Measures Considered:

Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act: Senate continued consideration of H.R. 1256, to protect the public health by providing the Food and Drug Administration with certain authority to regulate tobacco products, to amend title 5, United States Code, to make certain modifications in the Thrift Savings Plan, the Civil Service Retirement System, and the Federal Employees’ Retirement System, taking action on the following amendments proposed thereto:

Adopted:

Dodd Amendment No. 1247, in the nature of a substitute.

During consideration of this measure today, Senate also took the following action:

Chair sustained a point of order that Schumer (for Lieberman) Amendment No. 1256 (to Amendment No. 1247), to modify provisions relating to Federal employees retirement, was not germane, and the amendment thus fell.

By 67 yeas to 30 nays (Vote No. 206), three-fifths of those Senators duly chosen and sworn, having voted in the affirmative, Senate agreed to the motion to close further debate on the bill.

A unanimous-consent-time agreement was reached providing for further consideration of the bill at approximately 2 p.m., on Thursday, June 11, 2009, and that the time until 2:30 p.m. be equally divided and controlled between Senators Dodd and Enzi, or their designees; provided further that at 2:30 p.m., all post-cloture time debate having expired, Senate vote on passage of the bill.

Good Neighbor Forestry Act—Referral Agreement: A unanimous-consent agreement was reached providing that the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry be discharged from further consideration of S. 1122, to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior to enter into cooperative agreements with State foresters authorizing State foresters to provide certain forest, rangeland, and watershed restoration and protection services, and the bill then be referred to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Nominations Confirmed: Senate confirmed the following nominations:

1 Air Force nomination in the rank of general.
1 Army nomination in the rank of general.
1 Navy nomination in the rank of admiral.

Nominations Received: Senate received the following nominations:

Robert V. Abbey, of Nevada, to be Director of the Bureau of Land Management.

Timothy J. Roemer, of Indiana, to be Ambassador to India.

Harry R. Hoglander, of Massachusetts, to be a Member of the National Mediation Board for a term expiring July 1, 2011.

Speaker: Read a letter from the Speaker wherein she appointed Representative Jackson (IL) to act as Speaker Pro Tempore for today.

Suspensions—Proceedings Resumed: The House agreed to suspend the rules and agree to the following measures which were debated on Tuesday, June 9th:

Recognizing the significant accomplishments of the AmeriCorps: H. Res. 453, to recognize the significant accomplishments of the AmeriCorps and to encourage all citizens to join in a national effort to salute AmeriCorps members and alumni, and raise awareness about the importance of national and community service, by a 2/3 yea-and-nay vote of 359 yeas to 60 nays, Roll No. 318 and Recognizing the 25th anniversary of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children: H. Res. 454, to recognize the 25th anniversary of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, by a 2/3 yea-and-nay vote of 419 yeas with none voting "nay", Roll No. 319.

Rejected the Burton motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Foreign Affairs with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with an amendment, by a recorded vote of 174 ayes to 250 noes, Roll No. 327.

Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Foreign Affairs now printed in the bill shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the 5-minute rule.

Agreed by unanimous consent that the Chair may reduce to two minutes the minimum time for electronic voting under clause 8 or 9 of rule twenty or under clause 6 of rule eighteen.
Agreed to:

Polis amendment (No. 3 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that broadens the experience within the Foreign Service and encourages Foreign Service officers to pursue a functional specialty by making it mandatory to develop a functional focus during an officer’s first two years as well as creating a more diverse promotions panel where functional and regional specialists are evenly distributed. It requires the State Department to make materials from libraries and resource centers, including U.S. films available over the Internet when possible and for the advisory commission on public diplomacy to gauge the effectiveness of online outreach authorized under section 214;

Hunter amendment (No. 4 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that includes the Secretary of Defense as a member of the Task Force on the Prevention of Illicit Small Arms Trafficking in the Western Hemisphere;

Nadler amendment (No. 5 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that expresses the sense of Congress that the United States should continue working with the states of the former Soviet Union to see that immigrants from these states who now live in the United States are paid the pensions they are owed by these states;

Sessions amendment (No. 8 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that expresses the sense of Congress that Israel has the right to defend itself from an imminent nuclear or military threat from Iran and other countries and organizations;

Davis (CA) amendment (No. 9 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that requires the Inspectors General of the Department of State, the Department of Defense, the United States Agency for International Development, and the Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction to modify their auditing and assessment protocols for Afghanistan to include the impact U.S. development assistance has on the social, economic, and political empowerment of Afghan women as part of their auditing and reporting requirements;

Holt amendment (No. 11 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that directs the Secretary of State to report within 60 days of enactment on changes in treaty and U.S. laws that could help improve compliance with the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction;

Bishop (NY) amendment (No. 13 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that requires a GAO study of the effects of USAID’s use of waivers under the Buy America Act for HIV test kits on 1) United States-based manufacturers and 2) availability of and access to HIV testing for at-risk populations in low-income countries;

Moore (WI) amendment (No. 14 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that makes clear that passage of laws in Afghanistan that restrict or repress human rights, including the rights of women, undermines the support and goodwill shown by the international community and the U.S. through the considerable financial aid that has been provided to help rebuild Afghanistan and may make it harder to generate public support for those seeking to provide such support in the future;

Meeks (NY) amendment (No. 16 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that requires the Secretary of State to report to Congress on bilateral efforts to promote equality and eliminate racial discrimination in the Western Hemisphere;

Kirkpatrick (AZ) amendment (No. 18 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that adds to the monitoring and evaluation system established in the bill a requirement to look at the illegal southbound flow of cash;

Lynch amendment (No. 20 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that directs the State Department to submit to Congress a report on the 1059 and 1244 Special Immigrant Visa Programs for certain Iraqis and Afghans who work for, or on behalf of, the U.S. Government;

Berman amendment (No. 21 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that requires the Department of State to conduct a cost-benefit analysis in conjunction with all appropriate Federal departments and agencies on how to best use American funds to reduce smuggling and trafficking in persons;

Peters amendment (No. 22 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that provides that the Secretary of State shall report to Congress on the flow of people, goods, and services across the international borders shared by the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, and the Caribbean region;

Berman amendment (No. 23 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that creates the Global Clean Energy Exchange Program, a program to strengthen research, educational exchange, and international cooperation with the aim of promoting the development and deployment of clean and efficient energy technologies;

Eddie Bernice Johnson (TX) amendment (No. 24 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that establishes and provides financial assistance for exchange programs between Afghanistan and the United States for women legislators;

Eddie Bernice Johnson (TX) amendment (No. 25 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that expresses the sense of Congress that the use of child soldiers is unacceptable and is a violation of human rights and the prevention and elimination of child soldiers should be a foreign policy goal of the United States;

Poe (TX) amendment (No. 26 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that makes it a two year requirement for the President to report total U.S. cash and in-kind contributions to the entire United Nations system each fiscal year by every U.S. agency or department;

Pages H6506–07

Castle amendment (No. 27 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that requires reports to Congress every 90 days listing the countries that refuse or unreasonably delay accepting nationals of such countries who are under final orders of removal from the United States. Empowers the Secretary of State to suspend diplomatic visa issuances to any country that continues to deny or unreasonably delay repatriation;

Pages H6507–08

Mathesam amendment (No. 17 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that provides that the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Attorney General and the Director of the Census Bureau, will conduct a feasibility study and issue a report to Congress on whether there can be implemented a method for using the passports of U.S. citizens living overseas to facilitate voting in U.S. elections and for being counted in the U.S. Census;

Page H6509

Berman manager’s amendment (No. 1 printed in part C of H. Rept. 111–143) that (1) makes a number of minor, technical and conforming changes, including changes to address concerns of other Committees that have jurisdiction over certain provisions of H.R. 2410 and making changes to certain authorizations; (2) adds the relevant text from H.R. 2828, 110th Congress, as passed by the House, relating to compensation of Foreign Service victims of terrorism; (3) adds a provision relating to streamlining export controls to better serve the scientific and research community, consistent with the protection of U.S. national security interests; (4) adds a provision on monitoring and evaluating certain provision U.S. overseas activities; (5) adds a provision to improve the stabilization and reconstruction activities of the Department of State; (6) adds a provision on implementation of an international nuclear fuel bank; (7) adds a provision relating to the development of a food security strategy; (8) adds certain other sense of Congress provisions; and (9) adds a new subsection to section 334 providing that nothing in that section shall be construed as affecting existing statutory prohibitions relating to abortion (by a recorded vote of 257 ayes to 171 noes, Roll No. 320);
