House of Representatives

The House was not in session today. Its next meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 8, 2009, at 2 p.m.

Senate

Thursday, August 6, 2009

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable KIRSTEN E. GILLIBRAND, a Senator from the State of New York.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Eternal spirit, thank You for the continuous blessings of Your handiwork. From the first blush of dawn to the wonders of the starry heavens, we are daily made aware of Your creative might.

Bless our Senators to see the wonder of Your presence on Capitol Hill today. In the hands of the many workers who enable them to do their work, help them to catch a glimpse of the unity and cooperation You desire for them. Make them willing to both receive and give forgiveness as they manifest Your spirit in deeds of kindness. As our lives intertwine through common tasks, remind us that ultimately we are accountable to You. Guide our thinking, speaking, and decisions that we may live worthy of Your great love.

We pray in Your merciful Name.

Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable KIRSTEN E. GILLIBRAND led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. BYRD).

The bill clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, August 6, 2009.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable KIRSTEN E. GILLIBRAND, a Senator from the State of New York, to perform the duties of the Chair.

ROBERT C. BYRD,
President pro tempore.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Madam President, following leader remarks, there will be a period of morning business until 10 a.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each. It is my understanding the senior Senator from Iowa wishes to speak on a sad note in his life, and if he needs more than 10 minutes, I ask unanimous consent that be the case.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. At 10 a.m., the Senate will resume consideration of the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The debate until 2 p.m. will be controlled in alternating hour blocks of time, with the Republicans controlling the first hour and the managers and leaders controlling the time from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m., with each permitted to speak for up to 15 minutes. At 3 p.m., the Senate will proceed to vote on confirmation of the nomination.

Upon disposition of the nomination, the Senate will turn to the emergency supplemental appropriations bill for the Consumer Assistance to Recycle and Save Program, known as cash for clunkers. Under an agreement reached last night, seven amendments are in order prior to a vote on passage of the bill. Each amendment has up to 30 minutes of debate prior to a vote. I am hopeful that some debate time can be yielded back so that we will be able to begin voting at a reasonable time this afternoon.

APPRECIATION FOR COOPERATIVE SPIRIT

Madam President, I wish to spread on the record my appreciation for the cooperation from all Senators. We worked through some difficult things yesterday to get to the point where we are today. I especially wish to express my appreciation to the Republican leader, Senator MCCONNELL, who had to work through some difficult issues on his side, as I did on mine. We spoke and met yesterday many times. Of course, our most helpful staff was with us every step of the way—on our side, Lula Davis, and on McConnel’s side, Dave Schiappa—and we appreciate very much their expertise in this area.

FRANKEN MAIDEN SPEECH

Finally, I wish to say briefly that our newest Senator, Al Franken, gave his maiden speech last night. It was really very good. I was so impressed with how well prepared he was. I was very impressed with how well he delivered the speech. Here is a man who is a Harvard graduate, best-selling author, and entertainer who has been a U.S. Senator, and the people of Minnesota are so fortunate. If things work out as I think they will, he will be presiding over the Senate when the historic vote is called today on the new Supreme Court Justice.

HISTORIAN RETIREMENT RECEPTION

Madam President, Senate Historian Dick Baker will be retiring. In honor of his service to the Senate and the Senate community, there will be a reception today from 3:30 to 5:00 in the LBJ Room, S. 211. He is a wonderful scholar, a great writer, and a lecturer, and we are going to miss him very much.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to a period of morning business until 10 a.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

TRIBUTE TO MARY JO HOFFMAN

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, this morning a funeral service will be held in Sioux City, IA, for a 44-year-old woman who began working for the people of Iowa in my office in January of 1988. Mary Jo Hoffman was a loyal and trusted adviser to me and a beloved friend to my wife, Barbara, our family, and many of my Senate staff who served with her more than a decade ago and still, in a sense, are serving with her today.

Always filled with purpose, Mary Jo spent the last 2 years 4 months fighting cancer with the tenacity, strength, and determination we all knew and loved about her. When Mary Jo set her mind to something, she didn’t let much get in her way. She was that way when I met her when she was a bright young college student at the University of Northern Iowa, my alma mater, and she was that way when she worked effectively to serve constituents, first as a legislative aide, then as scheduler and as a top aide in my Senate office, and later on when she worked for my political campaigns. I valued her judgment and appreciated her hard work and commitment to quality in every position she held. Mary Jo also taught at night as a volunteer and earned a master’s degree while working on Capitol Hill.

She reached out and gave to others in so many ways through her church, in her community, and even on the U.S. Air Force base in Greece where she lived for a short period of time with her husband while he was serving. Someone in need had a friend in Mary Jo. She always came through and she did it in a way that was generous, spirited, and committed to ideals.

Mary Jo was a person of great faith. She provided leadership wherever she went through worship and fellowship and with the example she set with her own life. Mary Jo was a faithful witness for Christ and never more so than in the darkest hours and days of her last 2 years. She will continue to inspire those of us who were lucky enough to have her in our lives.

We all mourn Mary Jo’s departure, and our heart goes out to her family, including her devoted husband, Brent, and mother, Karen. I know Mary Jo’s beautiful young children, Silas and Lydia, will miss her every day. I pray that they find comfort in the honorable life lived by their mother and my dear friend Mary Jo. She served the people of Iowa and the Lord with distinction and humility. She left this world for the next world with the Lord and with her Lord.

I wish to read one sentence from the Sioux City Journal which I think sums up her life: “Her words were like thunder because her life was like lightning.”

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to have the full text printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MADAM PRESIDENT, I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally divided between Sen- ator DURBIN and myself.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. KAUFMAN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally divided between now and 10 o’clock be distributed as follows: 5 minutes for Senator ALEXANDER and then the rest of the time be equally divided between Senator DURBIN and myself.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time allotted for this complex and contentious issue is over.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Madam President, the White House, the Congress, and the American people are engaged in a stark debate over our Nation’s health care insurance system. A lot is at stake. We will make a choice in 2009, and that choice will determine the health care system we have in our Nation for a long time to come.

Fifteen years have passed since we last attempted to pass health care reform. What we do now will be consequential for decades to come. It will be a long time before the people of this country and their leaders will return to this complex and contentious issue.

So let us carefully review the potential plans. We have a plan being developed by the House of Representatives, a plan from the Senate HELP Committee, and a plan from the Finance Committee, we have the bipartisan Wyden-Bennett plan, and then we have a plan I am going to spend a lot of time talking about, and that is the President plan.

In listening to my colleagues speak on the floor of the Senate, on television, talk radio, in newspapers, and in private meetings, one thing is clear: the American people are engaged in a stark debate over our Nation’s health care insurance system. A lot is at stake. We will make a choice in 2009, and that choice will determine the health care system we have in our Nation for a long time to come.
They think the plan we end up with will be the PHS plan. They think a combination of those who want no health care reform and those who like none of the proposed plans will combine to kill all other plans. So what is the PHS plan? Our present health care system.

Let’s look at what will happen to average Americans if we keep our present health care system.

First, Americans’ health care insurance is twice what it was in 1994 and that is not an overstatement—explode. The average family in America can look forward to premium costs for their health insurance of more than $34,000 a year by 2016. That is an 83-percent increase over the cost in 2008. In my home State of Delaware, the costs will be even higher, with the average premium for family coverage approaching $29,000. At that amount, more than half of Delaware families would each have to spend half of their income on health insurance. What families will be forced to either go without insurance or to buy less coverage and put their life savings at risk.

Second, personal bankruptcies for medical costs will soar. Today, bankruptcies due to medical bills account for more than 60 percent of U.S. personal bankruptcies, a rate ½ times that of just 6 years ago. Going forward under PHS, we can expect more families in bankruptcy.

Third, uninsured Americans will keep paying a hidden tax to help pay for care for the uninsured. Under the PHS plan, doctors and hospitals will charge insurers even greater amounts to recoup the costs to provide services to the uninsured. Today, this hidden tax is estimated to be $1,100 per family per year. Under the PHS plan, it will most assuredly go up, raising the cost of health care for all Americans.

Fourth, Americans will continue to be denied health care if they have preexisting conditions. Several weeks ago, I talked about four Delawareans who, because of preexisting conditions, could not find insurance coverage. Others could get coverage have to pay exorbitant premiums to cover conditions such as high cholesterol, hypertension, diabetes, and cancer. Unfortunately, those who get sick may have their coverage dropped altogether. These problems, which threaten the security of all families, will continue under the PHS plan.

Fifth, for too many workers, health insurance portability will still be beyond reach. Too many Americans lose their insurance when they lose their jobs. Some can’t afford their COBRA coverage, and others can’t get another policy due to preexisting conditions. Even when they can find a new policy, they often discover they can no longer see the same doctor or use the same hospital.

As a result, too many Americans are stuck in their jobs, forging career advancement, just to keep their existing health plans.

Now let’s look at what will happen to the American economy if we keep our present health care system.

First, our present health care system is bankrupting the Federal Government.

The biggest driving force behind our Federal deficit is the skyrocketing cost of Medicare and Medicaid. In 2008, government spending on Medicare and Medicaid took up more than one dollar out of every five in our Federal budget. The more we spend on health care, the less we have for other investments—for education, for our veterans, and for job-creating technologies, to name a few.

To pay those higher Federal health care bills, we will have to pay more taxes or borrow more from China and other nations.

Controlling health care costs is the key to controlling our financial future. But under the PHS, health care costs will continue to spiral out of control.

Fourth, for too many workers, health care spending will crowd out our national savings and lower our standard of living.

Health care costs as a percent of gross domestic product will grow from 18 percent today to 28 percent in the year 2009 and even 34 percent in 2040. Those dollars out of every family’s budget going to health care cannot go for housing, food, or transportation. American consumers, over two-thirds of our economy, will have fewer dollars left for anything else.

That means less spending at the mall, at our car dealers, and at the grocery store. Controlling health care costs will put money back in families’ budgets and therefore back into the rest of our economy.

Third, the present health care system is killing U.S. economic competitiveness.

Today, U.S. manufacturing firms pay almost $5,000 per worker per year in health costs.

That’s more than twice the average cost for firms located in our major trading partners such as Europe and Japan, where a firm pays less than $2,000 per worker each year.

In a global economy, our workers and corporations face competitors who can beat them on price every time, just because of our broken health care system. Controlling health care costs will help to level that playing field. In a fair fight, our workers and our businesses can win.

Finally, more firms will stop offering health insurance for their employees.

The PHS will continue the slow erosion of employer-sponsored insurance. This is especially true for small businesses.

In the 2008 Employer Health Benefits Survey conducted by the Kaiser Family Foundation, only 63 percent of companies of all sizes offered health insurance to their employees, down from 69 percent in 2000.

But these numbers are even lower when looking just at small businesses, with the National Small Business Association reporting that that only 38 percent of small businesses provided coverage last year, compared to 61 percent in 1993.

Under the PHS plan, this decline in coverage will continue, with an estimated 10 percent of small businesses eliminating coverage in the next year and nearly 20 percent in the next 3 to 5 years.

Under the PHS plan, that would mean an additional 13 million added to the rolls of the uninsured in the next 5 years.

So that is what America will get if we decide to choose the PHS plan. Again, that is the present health care system.

If we choose the PHS plan, consumers will pay higher and higher premiums, including the hidden tax to help pay for all of our fellow Americans without insurance.

We will continue to see a rise in personal bankruptcies due to high medical costs. Americans will continue to face insurance coverage rejections based on preexisting conditions or have insurers drop their policies once they do get sick. And they won’t have portable insurance that they can take from job to job.

If we choose the PHS plan, health care spending will continue to threaten the bottom line of our Federal budget, eating away higher percentages of our GDP.

Our businesses will face more competitive disadvantages to their foreign competitors, paying more for health care insurance for their employees, or dropping it altogether.

The present health care system mistreats Americans as individuals and serves the country badly as a whole. We cannot continue in the present health care system.

I hope my colleagues will return in September committed to replacing our present health care system. I hope they will spend August searching for the best of the alternative plans that they want to support.

I hope we will turn our backs on the bankrupt present health care system and instead give the American people a health care system they can all be proud of—a health care system that will sustain them into the future.

We can do no less. They deserve no less.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Tennessee see is recognized.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam President, will the Chair let me know when I have 30 seconds remaining?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Yes.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam President, we are concerned about the health care reform legislation that we have seen in the House and here in the Senate. It is headed in the wrong direction. The Mayo Clinic has told us so. The Democratic Governors have told us so. The CBO has told us so.

We are hearing already from people around the country who fear that millions of people may lose their employer-sponsored health insurance and may find themselves in a government-run plan, with new State taxes to pay for Medicaid.

My purpose is to point out that as we go back to our States in August, there is plenty of opportunity to go in a new direction. I hope when we come back, we will start over in that direction.

As an example yesterday, 12 Senators—7 Democrats and 5 Republicans—wrote an op-ed in the Washington Post about the Healthy Americans Act, the bill that is sponsored by Senator Wyden, a Democrat, and Senator Bennett, a Republican. I am a co-sponsor among the 5 Republicans on that bill.

There are a number of things I agree with in the bill and some things with which I don’t agree. I agree it is the right framework upon which we can build a bipartisan discussion. For example, the things I like about the bill and the reason I endorse it is that it has been scored as budget neutral. In other words, it doesn’t add to the deficit, according to the CBO. It doesn’t create a government-run plan to compete with private insurance plans. People would have choices among options just like most people have today. It replaces Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program with private insurance plans. It doesn’t replace all of Medicaid, but about 40 million of the people who are on Medicaid today, which is the largest government-run program we have, would have a choice to buy plans like the rest of us.

I think one of the worse things about the bills we are seeing is that it dumbs low-income people into a government-run program that is failing—Medicaid—that 40 percent of the doctors will not see, and that none of us would want to join if we were forced to do so. This proposal takes away that problem. The Healthy Americans Act makes a fairer distribution of the government subsidies we already spend subsidizing health care by giving more Americans a chance to benefit from that.

It would give more Americans a chance to purchase the same kind of health insurance policy Federal employees and Members of Congress have. It provides a tax deduction for all American individuals and families to address the unfairness of our tax system. It includes an individual mandate. In other words, no free ride. We are all in this together. States that implement some sort of reforms against junk run-away lawsuits against doctors, which drive up the cost of malpractice insurance, will receive bonus payments.

It also includes some of the insurance market reforms about which we are hearing so much from our Democratic friends. What they don’t tell you is we are all for those changes. These are the insurance reforms that say you will have a right to purchase insurance without a physical examination, and if you have a problem when you go in to get insurance, you cannot be denied insurance for that reason. These are insurance reforms that virtually all Republican plans I have seen, and all the Democratic plans, have already in there. Those aren’t the issue.

It provides full subsidies to people living under 100 percent of the Federal poverty level to buy insurance, a private plan. This would mean roughly $5,000 for an individual and $12,000 for families to buy a plan. Americans earning between 100 to 400 percent of the Federal poverty level will receive subsidies on a sliding scale. After that, you pay for it yourself.

There are some points I don’t like about the bill, but I endorse the framework, as well. I will mention those. I don’t like the tax-free treatment for contributions to or proposals. During negotiations, if this were the bill we were discussing, I would urge to change that. I don’t like the fact that plans are required to be at the higher benefit level of the Federal employee plans. That is a level higher than most Federal employees have, and we can save dollars if we use the basic plan and use that money to provide higher subsidies to middle-income Americans to buy health insurance. I don’t believe the subsidies in this bill are enough for many middle-income families. I have suggested a place to get some of that money.

We phase out the tax deduction at $2,500 a year, which may not be high enough to make this a fair proposal. I am concerned about the abortion provisions in the bill, although it doesn’t provide government subsidies for abortion.

The point is, there is a framework that is headed in a different direction, and it has the support of 12 Senators.

I ask unanimous consent that the op-ed from the Washington Post be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam President, I also ask unanimous consent that an article by Art Laffer in Wednesday’s Wall Street Journal, which provides yet another reasonable option for providing health care opportunities for Americans without adding to the deficit, be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

THE ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam President, there is a way to do this if we want to head in a different direction.

I yield the floor.
particular fix is the enemy of good legislating. A package that will entirely please neither side, but on which both can agree, stands not only the strongest chance of passage but also the strongest chance of gaining acceptance from the American people.

We didn’t undertake this effort because we thought it would be easy; in fact, we started working on it because we knew it would be hard. Passing health reform is going to require that we take a stand against the status quo and be willing to challenge every interest group to which we are beholden. It will require that we work on life-and-death issues facing our constituents, our families, our friends and our neighbors.

It’s time to stop trying to figure out what pollsters say the country wants to hear from us and focus on what the country needs from us. The American people can’t afford for Congress to fail again.

[From the Wall Street Journal, Aug. 5, 2009]
HOW TO FIX THE HEALTH-CARE ‘WEDGE’
(By Arthur B. Laffer)

President Barack Obama is correct when he says that “soaring health-care costs make our current course unsustainable.” But the American people agree: 55% of respondents to a recent CNN poll think the U.S. health-care system needs a great deal of reform. Yet 70% of Americans are satisfied with their current health-care arrangements, and for good reason—they work.

Consumers are receiving quality medical care at a reasonable cost to themselves. This creates runway costs that have to be addressed. But ill-advised reforms can make things much worse.

An effective care begins with an accurate diagnosis, which is sorely lacking in most policy circles. The proposals currently on offer fail to address the fundamental driver of health-care costs: the health-care wedge.

The health-care wedge is an economic term that reflects the difference between what health-care costs the specific provider and what the patient actually pays. When health care is subsidized, no one should be surprised that people demand more of it and that the costs to produce it increase. Mr. Obama’s health-care reform will control costs, improve health outcomes, and improve the overall efficiency of the health-care system.

Mr. Obama’s alternative to traditional insurance that includes a tax-advantaged savings account. It allows people to purchase insurance policies across state lines. The proposals currently on offer fail to address the fundamental driver of health-care costs: the health-care wedge.

A patient-centered health-care reform begins with individual ownership of insurance policies and leverages Health Savings Accounts, a low-deductible alternative to traditional insurance that includes a tax-advantaged savings account. It allows people to purchase insurance policies across state lines. The proposals currently on offer fail to address the fundamental driver of health-care costs: the health-care wedge.

According to research I performed for the Texas Public Policy Foundation, a $1 trillion increase in federal government health subsides will accelerate health-care inflation, lead to cost-cutting in the health-care system, and diminish our economic growth even further. Despite these costs, some 30 million people will remain uninsured.

Mr. Obama’s reforms would literally be worse than doing nothing.

The president’s claim that his critics have not offered a viable alternative and would prefer to do nothing. But that argument couldn’t be further from the truth. Rather than expanding the role of government in the health-care market, Congress should implement a patient-centered approach to health-care reform. A patient-centered approach focuses on the patient-doctor relationship and empowers the patient and the doctor to make effective and economical changes.

HEALTH CARE

The second issue I have relates to health care. I heard my colleague from Tennessee come forward and suggest that he is working on an alternative to health care reform. I salute him for that, and I hope he will continue that effort. I also salute the three Republican Senators who have met for weeks, if not months, trying to hammer out the differences in health care reform. It is a constructive, positive dialogue. I am sure I would not agree with everything they have come to agreement on, but that is not what this is about. It doesn’t have to be a bill that is perfect in my eyes; it has to be a bill that is reasonable, that will bring down the cost of health care.

I know what happened in Illinois. In 1997, health insurance premiums through employers averaged $5,462. Just 9 years later, that number was $11,781. If we do nothing, by 2016, it will more than double, to $25,400.

Those who come to the floor and to town meetings and say, “Don’t touch it; all you can do is make a mess of it.”
ignore the obvious. The current health care system is unsustainable for families and for small businesses. Fewer and fewer businesses are offering health insurance protection. More people are finding themselves without health insurance protection.

In fact, in Illinois 15 percent of the population has no insurance at all. During the course of any given year, one out of three Illinoisians have no health insurance coverage at least some time during that year. That is unacceptable. Without health insurance coverage are one diagnosis or one accident away from bankruptcy. We know more and more people are going into bankruptcy court because of health care and medical bills they cannot pay. For those who stand here and say “Don’t touch it; leave it alone,” it is unsustainable. It is a system headed toward disaster.

Who wants to keep the current health care system? It is the people who are making the most money in the system, the health insurance companies. They have been profitable, when many other parts of the economy have not. They are now sponsoring activities and advertisements and all sorts of things at town meetings to try to create resistance to change in health care. That is not good. It is not a constructive dialog. To think that these town meetings that are supposed to take place for a healthy, honest dialog back home have now turned into political theater. Groups have Web sites that instruct people about how to disrupt a town meeting and embarrass a Senator or Congressman. I know that when I go to town meetings, people may disagree and be emotional, and that is OK. To think they have a coordinated effort to disrupt a town meeting. Who wants that? That is not constructive.

Let’s move forward with an honest, constructive, bipartisan dialog. Three Republicans are doing that now. If we do that, we can come up with a bipartisan compromise that I and the President would like to see by September. Let us come back with resolve in September to make sure there is real health care reform that brings stability to the costs that businesses and Americans pay, stability to coverage so you don’t lose your health insurance because of a pre-existing condition, changing a job, caps and limits on your policy, with quality access to preventative care, wellness care, and the quality care that every American deserves.

We can do that with patient-centered health insurance reform, and we can get it done in a bipartisan fashion in September when we return.

I yield the floor.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Morning business is closed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF SONIA SOTOMAYOR TO BE AN ASSOCIATE JUSTICE OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to consider the following nomination, which the clerk will report.

The bill clerk read the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor, of New York, to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 2 p.m. will be equally divided in 1-hour alternating blocks of time, with the Republicans controlling the first hour.

The Senator from South Carolina, Mr. DeMINT. Madam President, I do.

In addition, there would be some lawsuit abuse reform and some block grants to States to make sure people who are uninsured, who have pre-existing conditions, can buy affordable insurance.

In addition, there would be some lawsuit abuse reform and some block grants to States to make sure people who are uninsured, who have pre-existing conditions, can buy affordable insurance.

The Heritage Foundation says one of the Republican plans would have 22 million Americans insured within 5 years. They are plans that work. But, unfortunately, the other side will not even discuss plans that do not have more government control involved with them.

What we can do is make what is working work better. We do not need to replace it with what is not working. One of the reasons health insurance is more expensive today—a third more expensive—is that the government programs of Medicare and Medicaid do not pay their fair share, and those costs are shifted on to employers and individuals who have private insurance.

We do not need to expand the part that is broken in health care. We certainly do not need to expand a cash-for-clunkers type of health care system for America.

I am here today to talk about the President’s nominee to the Supreme Court, but first I wish to give a couple of comments in response to the Senator about health care because if the record be known to Americans, the preponderance of health reform legislation that has been brought over the last 5 years in the Senate has come from Republicans. The Democrats have consistently blocked any reform that would make health insurance more affordable and available to Americans. Their goal appears to be exactly the opposite—health care but government-controlled care.

If we look back a few years, the President, along with all the Democrats, voted against interstate competition among insurance companies. It is hard to say they are not on the side of insurance companies when they vote to prevent a national market, a national competitive market that people all over the country could buy policies that are more affordable and perhaps more needs much better than the ones they can get in their own States.

Today Americans can only buy health insurance in the States where they live. That means a few insurance companies can dominate the market. This is something we have tried to change, we have introduced, and the President has voted against it.

We have also proposed tax fairness for Americans who do not get their health insurance at work. The other side seldom discusses the fact that when you get your insurance at work, you get pretty big tax breaks. The companies that provide that health insurance do not have to pay taxes on it. They can deduct it. It is a business expense. And then employers do not have to pay income tax on the benefits. It is an equivalent benefit over $3,000.

The White House has introduced will give health care vouchers to every American. Every family would get $5,000 a year to find health insurance if they do not get their health insurance at work. Every individual would get $2,000.

Mr. DEMINT. Madam President, I do.

The Senator from South Carolina.

The President has voted against it.

We have also proposed tax fairness for Americans who do not get their health insurance at work. The other side seldom discusses the fact that when you get your insurance at work, you get pretty big tax breaks. The companies that provide that health insurance do not have to pay taxes on it. They can deduct it. It is a business expense. And then employers do not have to pay income tax on the benefits. It is an equivalent benefit over $3,000.

The White House has introduced will give health care vouchers to every American. Every family would get $5,000 a year to find health insurance if they do not get their health insurance at work. Every individual would get $2,000.

We do not need to expand the part that is broken in health care. We certainly do not need to expand a cash-for-clunkers type of health care system for America.

I am here today to talk about the President’s nominee to the Supreme Court, but first I wish to give a couple of comments in response to the Senator about health care because if the record be known to Americans, the preponderance of health reform legislation that has been brought over the last 5 years in the Senate has come from Republicans. The Democrats have consistently blocked any reform that would make health insurance more affordable and available to Americans. Their goal appears to be exactly the opposite—health care but government-controlled care.

If we look back a few years, the President, along with all the Democrats, voted against interstate competition among insurance companies. It is hard to say they are not on the side of insurance companies when they vote to prevent a national market, a national competitive market that people all over the country could buy policies that are more affordable and perhaps more needs much better than the ones they can get in their own States.

Today Americans can only buy health insurance in the States where they live. That means a few insurance companies can dominate the market. This is something we have tried to change, we have introduced, and the President has voted against it.

The President has said that our Constitution is a charter of negative liberties. It tells the government what it cannot do, but it does not tell us what we have to do. The whole point of the Constitution is to limit what we can do. But the President considers it inadequate, and he is nominating people to the courts who will be activists, who will expand what the Federal Government does and make arbitrary decisions rather than those based on the Constitution.

Unfortunately, I do rise today in opposition to the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the U.S. Supreme Court. I met with her personally, and I watched the hearings. I believe she is a very smart and gracious person with an inspiring personal story. But I also found her evasive and contradictory in her answers.

On several issues ranging from judicial philosophy to controversial “wise Latina” speeches, Judge Sotomayor experienced what we call confirmation conversion on many of her issues and simply walked away from a lot of her past statements and positions.

Now seeing her willingness to tell us what we want to hear, neither her testimony nor her long record on the judicial bench can give the American people any confidence that she will rule according to the clear language and intent of the Constitution.

Let me talk for a second about the Constitution versus precedent. I am concerned with Judge Sotomayor’s efforts to deflect questions by stating she relied on precedent to guide her decisions. I understand circuit court judges are guided and even bound by Supreme Court precedent, but precedent is not the same thing as the Constitution, particularly on the Supreme Court. A judicial confirmation process that puts the constitutional interpretation outside of the bounds of discussion is a waste of time.

On issue after issue during her hearings, Judge Sotomayor, rather than giving her own opinion, simply offered the opinions of many other judges. We have no idea what she thinks. In one sense, this is fitting. The Congress routinely passes legislation that none of us read or understands. So perhaps it is consistent for us to nominate and confirm a Justice when we do not understand what she actually believes.

Judge Sotomayor may be very learned in constitutional law, but we rarely heard her actually mention the Constitution itself. This is a big problem for our judiciary and our system of checks and balances.

In 2003, for the first time in American history, the body was prevented from voting at all on the nomination, even though he had majority support. Senators and grassroots groups, including Hispanic organizations that today say a good resume, rich life story and a great ethnic heritage. Yet she is being treated with far more dignity and respect than was Miguel Estrada, a highly qualified Hispanic nominee with an inspiring life story, who everybody knows is one of the best attorneys in the country. The Senate, for example, will actually vote on Judge Sotomayor’s nomination today. In 2003, for the first time in American history, this body was prevented from voting at all on the nomination, even though he had majority support.

Senators and grassroots groups, including Hispanic organizations that today say a good resume, rich life story and ethnic heritage make a compelling confirmation case for Judge Sotomayor, opposed even holding an up or down vote for Mr. Estrada. The treatment of Miguel Estrada was unfair and disgraceful toward the nominee and damaging to the traditions and practice of this body.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, on Tuesday I explained some of the reasons I cannot support the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to replace Justice David Souter, and I will mention a few others here today. These are important points. I think the nomination creates too many conflicts with principles about the judiciary in which I deeply believe. I wish President Obama had chosen a Hispanic nominee whom all Senators could support.

Over the course of this week, many of my Democratic friends have spent time reading Judge Sotomayor’s resume rather than reviewing her record. Nearly every speaker on the other side has repeated the talking point that she has more Federal judicial experience than any Supreme Court nominee in a century. I believe she does, and I respect her for it. But Justice Samuel Alito had only 1 less year of Federal judicial experience and actually had 5 more years on the U.S. court of appeals when he was nominated. Even as a prosecutor and he, too, had received a unanimous “well qualified” rating from the ABA. Yet 19 current Democratic Senators voted to filibuster his nomination, including the current President, and 55 voted against confirmation.

Other Senators emphasize the importance of appointing someone with Judge Sotomayor’s inspiring life story and ethnic heritage. Once again, I do not disagree. She has an inspiring life story and a great ethnic heritage. Yet she is being treated with far more dignity and respect than was Miguel Estrada, a highly qualified Hispanic nominee with an inspiring life story, who everybody knows is one of the best attorneys in the country. The Senate, for example, will actually vote on Judge Sotomayor’s nomination today. In 2003, for the first time in American history, this body was prevented from voting at all on the nomination, even though he had majority support.

The treatment of Miguel Estrada was unfair and disgraceful toward the nominee and damaging to the traditions and practice of this body. My Democratic colleagues want people to believe the concerns about the Sotomayor nomination are limited to one speech and one case. Some of them have said as much. At the same time, they say our review should be limited to only certain parts of the nominee’s record. As I have done with past nominees, however, I examined Judge Sotomayor’s entire record for insight into her judicial philosophy.

In addition to the controversial speeches I discussed on Tuesday, Judge Sotomayor gave a speech at Suffolk University Law School which was later published in that school’s law review.
She embraced the idea that the law is indefinite, impermanent, and experimental. She rejected what she called "the public myth that law can be certain and stable." She said that judges may, in their decisions, develop novel approaches and legal frameworks that push the law in new directions.

Judge Sotomayor's speeches and articles, then, present something of a perfect judicial storm in which her views of the law and her views of the world. Combine partiality and subjectivity in judging with uncertainty and instability in the law, and the result is an activist judicial philosophy that I cannot support and that the American people reject.

My Democratic colleagues will no doubt quickly say Judge Sotomayor's cases do not reflect that judicial philosophy. But remember that appeals court judges are bound by Supreme Court precedent, and Judge Sotomayor will help fashion the precedents that today bind Judge Sotomayor. That makes the rest of her views—expressed, I might add, while she has been a sitting judge—much closer to her future on the Supreme Court than to her current position on the appeals court.

Nonetheless, Judge Sotomayor has made plenty of troubling decisions on the appeals court. On Tuesday, for example, I discussed the case of Didden v. Village of Port Chester, in which Judge Sotomayor refused to give a man his day in court whose property was taken and given to a developer. She came to the bizarre conclusion that Mr. Didden should have sued before his property was even taken.

In Kelo v. City of New London, the Supreme Court held that general economic development can constitute the public use that the fifth amendment says, justifies the taking of private property.

We hear a lot these days that judges should appreciate how their decisions shape public policy. When the Court decided in Kelo greatly expanded the government's power to take private property, the San Francisco Chronicle no less said that the decision might turn the American dream of home ownership on its head. And one Washington Post headline after the decision read: "Court Ruling Leaves Poor at Greatest Risk." This decision was devastating not only for the right to private property in general but for individual homeowners in particular.

The decision in Kelo was issued after the briefing and argument in Didden but before Judge Sotomayor had issued her decision. Even though Kelo was a hallmark—or should I say landmark—decision to take property but also severely limited the ability of property owners to challenge the taking of their property in court.

Other Senators and I have already discussed Judge Sotomayor's troubling decisions regarding the second amendment right to keep and bear arms. She has applied the wrong legal standard to conclude that the second amendment does not protect State and local governments from infringing on the right to bear arms, and she has gratuitously held that the right to bear arms is so insignificant that virtually any reason is sufficient to justify a weapons restriction. No Federal judge in America has ever expressed a more limited, and limited view of the right to bear arms.

My friends on the other side of the aisle have made some creative attempts to downplay these troubling decisions. Perhaps the most curious is the claim that the second amendment right to keep and bear arms was created by the Supreme Court. On the other hand, I am baffled why this should bother those who believe in a flexible and shape-shifting Constitution. The Second Amendment makes up rights all the time—the right to abortion comes immediately to mind—without a peep from most of my Democratic friends on the other side of the aisle.

But the Senator who offered this strange theory should simply read the Constitution. The right to keep and bear arms is right there, right in the Constitution, in black and white. Perhaps he is instead referring to the Supreme Court's recognition last year that the right to bear arms is an individual rather than a collective right. Perhaps that is why he believes the Supreme Court created these rights. But the second amendment said that the right to bear arms is the right of "the people.

The fourth amendment says the same thing about the right against unreasonable searches and seizures. It, too, is a right "of the people." Does any Senator doubt that the fourth amendment protects an individual right? Does a Senator who believes that the Supreme Court makes up the individual right to bear arms believe that the Supreme Court made up the individual right to be free from unreasonable government searches?

When I chaired the Judiciary Subcommittee on the Constitution in 1982, we published a report on the second amendment right to keep and bear arms. I had the good fortune to have a long history and rich history of this right, which predates the Constitution itself. Thus, anybody can see why I am very concerned about this. We went to the bother of really writing about it back in 1982.

As the Supreme Court has recognized, it was a fundamental individual right of Englishmen at the time of America's founding, which the second amendment merely codified. Justice Joseph Story, in his classic "Commentaries on the Constitution," called this right "the palladium of the liberties of the republic." Our report showed definitively that the right to bear arms is indeed both fundamental and individual. The Supreme Court may have taken a long time to recognize this constitutional fact, but it made up nothing in doing so.

Madam President, I commit to my colleagues the subcommittee report to which I have referred.

Madam President, finally, let me describe one other matter which arose during the hearing which I found very troubling. And before I say that, of the 10 cases of Judge Sotomayor, heard by the Supreme Court, were reversed. On the ninth one, she was seriously criticized for her approach to the law, and that was a 5-to-4 decision. These are matters that bother a lot of people. I have mentioned a whole raft of other cases and a whole raft of other issues in my prior remarks here, so I will refer back to those remarks.

Prior to her judicial service, Judge Sotomayor was closely associated with the National Abortion Rights Action League, a group dedicated to the protection of abortion rights. In 1992, Judge Sotomayor held at least 11 different leadership positions with the fund, including serving as a member of both its board of directors and executive committee and as a member and chairman of its litigation committee. In a 1992 profile, the New York Times described Judge Sotomayor as a top policymaker with the fund. Other articles and profiles in the Times and the Associated Press say that she met frequently with the legal staff, reviewed the status of pending cases and briefed the board about those cases, and was an involved and ardent supporter of the fund's legal efforts. These descriptions relied upon and quoted lawyers with whom she worked at the fund. Minutes from the fund's litigation committee specifically describe Judge Sotomayor reviewing the fund's litigation strategy and cases.

At the start of the hearing, I asked Judge Sotomayor whether she had been aware of the friend-of-the-court briefs—the amicus curiae briefs—that the fund filed in several high-profile Supreme Court abortion cases. I just wanted to know what the truth was. I asked her about that because those briefs made arguments that can only be described as extreme, even by some who are in the pro-abortion movement. The fund, for example, compared the previous restrictions on abortion to the tax-payer Medicaid funds to oppression of Blacks symbolized by the Supreme Court's infamous Dred Scott decision. The fund opposed any and all abortion restrictions, including laws requiring that parents be informed before their young daughters have an abortion. The fund even argued that the first amendment right to freely exercise religion somehow undermines parental notification laws.

I asked Judge Sotomayor about these briefs and arguments, I made absolutely clear in my prefaced remarks that I was asking only about whether she knew about and agreed with them at the time the briefs were filed. I was not asking her even about her current views, let alone any position or approach she might take in the future. Judge Sotomayor told me that at the time she did not know the fund was filing these briefs or making these arguments. At times, she used that to appear to be the prepared talking point that she had not “reviewed the briefs.”

But in answering my question, she went much further than that and said:

> Obviously, [the Fund] was involved in litigation only they were opposing briefs. But I wouldn’t know until after the fact that the brief was actually filed.

To be clear, Judge Sotomayor said she never knew until after a brief had already been filed what arguments were made in the brief or even that it had been filed at all. I was shocked at this response and frankly found this claim very difficult to believe. How can a leader at a legal defense fund, who is actively working with the legal staff, supervising the staff, directing some of the years, briefing a board about pending cases, and an involved supporter of the fund’s legal efforts, be completely out of the loop about the briefs it has filed and the arguments the fund is making? I had been in contact with the legal team about the pending cases skip these high-profile Supreme Court cases? I have to tell you, I doubt it. Did she brief the board about everything but these abortion briefs? I doubt it.

The six abortion cases in which the Fund filed briefs were among the most visible cases on the Supreme Court docket. The 1989 case of Webster v. Reproductive Health Services, for example, attracted a record 78 different friend-of-the-court briefs, evidence that it was one of the most anticipated cases in decades. Virtually everyone in the public interest legal world, especially at civil rights groups, had it at the top of their watch list. And yet Judge Sotomayor would have us believe that, despite her leadership positions and active involvement with the Fund’s cases and legal strategy, she was completely unaware that the Fund filed a brief in Webster until after the fact. In other words, she knew no more than an outsider reading the newspaper about the Fund’s briefs and arguments in high-profile Supreme Court cases about hot-button social issues. I find that simply implausible.

When I questioned Hispanic leaders and groups during the confirmation process, their common message was that Senators should treat Judge Sotomayor seriously and respectfully. I believe we have done that. But they also insisted that our confirmation decision should be based on the merits, not on race. It was disturbing to hear, therefore, that some of these same groups appeared yesterday with the chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee warning about political repercussions of voting against a Hispanic nominee. I ask unanimous consent that a column published yesterday in Politico by former Florida House Speaker Marco Rubio addressing this issue be printed in the Record following my remarks.

> The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. Without objection, it is or ordered.

> Let me once again return to where I began. One of America’s oldest state constitutions opens by asserting what it identifies as essential and unquestionable rights and principles. In their charter, the people of Rhode Island State:

> In the words of the Father of his Country, we declare that the basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and alter their constitutions of government; but that the constitution which at any time exists, till changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all.

The Constitution belongs to the people. The people established it, and only the people can change it. This essential and unquestionable principle would be a farce if the people could change the words, but judges could change the meaning of those words. Judges would still control the Constitution, and their oath to support and defend it would really be an oath to support and defend themselves. America needs judges who are guided and controlled not by subjective empathy, but rather by objective law that they find outside themselves.

I take a generous approach to the confirmation process. I believe that the Senate owes some deference to a President’s qualified nominees and that qualifications for judicial service include not only legal experience but, more importantly, judicial philosophy. A judicial nominee must understand and be committed to the proper role and power of judges in our system of government. Evidence for a nominee’s judicial philosophy must come from her entire record.

I hope that on the Supreme Court, Judge Sotomayor will take an objective, modest, and restrained approach to interpreting and applying written law. I hope that she actively defends her impartiality against subjective influences such as personal sympathies and prejudices. I hope that she sees the Constitution, both its words and its meaning, as something that she must follow rather than something she can change at will.

I hope she will do all of that. I hope she proves me wrong in my negative vote against her confirmation.

Because the record does not convince me she holds those views today, I cannot support her appointment to the Supreme Court.

Finally, I refer those who are interested back to my remarks on Tuesday because I covered a number of other cases there that are equally important, but I believe, since I covered them there, I did not have to go through them here.

I am very concerned about this nomination. I feel very bad that I have to vote negatively. It is not what I wanted to do when this process started, but I believe I am doing the honorable and right thing, even though I feel bad about it. As I have said, I like Judge Sotomayor, I like her family, I like her life story. I am hoping she will listen to some of the things we have said on the floor, and I do wish her the best once she is confirmed.

I yield the floor.
of ideas is healthy when properly centered on policy and philosophy, as it has been. The debate is only poisoned when the color of one’s skin becomes a political football. Unfortunately, some of Sotomayor’s supporters have injected race into the discussion, indicating that a vote against her is a vote against Hispanics, even though I have not heard one utterance from any supporter opposing her that reflects a hostility toward Sotomayor personally or to her roots.

In evaluating judicial nominees, what matters most is determining what kind of judges they will be. And nominees who share Sotomayor’s view that their role is to make law rather than interpret it are individuals I cannot support and would urge others not to, as well.

As Florida’s first Hispanic speaker of the House, I too have thrilled at a trail that has been a great source of pride for my community, particularly for those of my parents’ and grandparents’ generations. My experience, like Sotomayor’s, is a testament to the boundless possibilities that exist in the United States, where the son of a bartender and housekeeper who came from Cuba without even a grasp of the English language could rise to such heights. Though the Maloney precedent does not expect special treatment, only the same treatment and same opportunities afforded to all Americans, I believe it would be wrong to apply a higher or lower standard to Sotomayor than the one applied to other Supreme Court nominees.

In the end, we are all Americans. I believe it is not the role of the judiciary to intervene in policy debates between 1980 and 1992. During this period, the PRLDEF’s board of directors between 1980 and 1992. During this period, the PRLDEF filed several amicus briefs in prominent abortion cases. These briefs repeatedly emphasized that Judge Sotomayor offered a glimpse of her disposition toward these important issues in her recent conversation with Senator Jim DeMint during which she expressed that she had support for a fundamental right that a child has constitutional rights. This statement indicates that Judge Sotomayor does not share the values of a majority of Americans and that her decisions on the Supreme Court will fail to protect the rights of unborn children.

Although Judge Sotomayor has never directly addressed abortion-related questions on the bench, her association with the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund (PRLDEF), a radical organization that has supported an unlimited right to abortion, indicates that she shares the organization’s views on these issues. Judge Sotomayor’s decision on the Supreme Court, her decisions when confronted with these important questions will align with the radical views expressed in PRLDEF’s amicus briefs.

We are particularly dismayed about the recent decision in the case of Maloney v. Cuomo, which incorporated the Second Amendment as a limit on state law, via incorporation of the Second Amendment through the Fourteenth Amendment’s Due Process Clause. Thus, the failure of the Maloney panel to engage in a proper due process analysis of the Second Amendment is extremely troubling, to say the least.

The Second Circuit’s decision (as well as the Seventh Circuit’s similarly flawed reasoning in National Rifle Association of America, Inc. v. City of Chicago) is at odds with the Ninth Circuit’s recent decision in the case of Maloney v. Cuomo, which involved the application of the Fourteenth Amendment’s Due Process Clause. Thus, the failure of the Maloney panel to engage in a proper due process analysis of the Second Amendment is extremely troubling, to say the least.

have good reason to worry about her views. We look forward to a full airing of her past decisions and judicial philosophy at the upcoming committee hearings, and urge you and all members to carefully consider the most serious questioning possible on these critical issues.

Outstanding for the confirmation process, the NRA has not announced an official position on Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation. However, should her answers regarding the Second Amendment at the upcoming hearings be hostile or evasive, we will have no choice but to oppose her nomination to the Court.

Finally, we would caution you against lending any credence to the endorsement of Judge Sotomayor’s nomination by organizations that falsely claim to represent gun owners, while promoting an anti-gun agenda. These front groups’ actions give them no credibility to speak on this nomination.

Thank you for your attention to our concerns. Should you have any questions or wish to discuss further, please do not hesitate to call on me personally.

Sincerely,

CHRISS W. COX,
Executive Director.

JULY 7, 2009.

DEAR SENATORS: As Americans who have dedicated ourselves to protecting the Second Amendment rights of U.S. citizens to keep and bear arms, we urge you not to confirm Judge Sonia Sotomayor as the next associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

It is extremely important that a Supreme Court justice understand and appreciate the origin and meaning of the Second Amendment, a constitutional guarantee enshrined unambiguously in the Bill of Rights. Judge Sotomayor’s record on the Second Amendment causes us grave concern over her treatment of this enumerated constitutional right.

Last year, the Supreme Court decided the landmark case District of Columbia v. Heller, holding that the Second Amendment guarantees to all law-abiding, responsible citizens the individual right to keep and bear arms, particularly for self-defense. Following Heller, the Supreme Court is almost certain to decide next year whether the Second Amendment applies to states and local governments, as it does to the federal government (see NRA v. Chicago and McDonald v. Chicago).

While on the Second Circuit, Judge Sotomayor revealed her views on the right to keep and bear arms in Maloney v. Cuomo, a case decided after Heller, yet holding that the Second Amendment is not a fundamental right, that it does not apply to the states, and that if an object is “designed primarily as a weapon” that is a sufficient basis for total prohibition even within the home.

This last point is critical. In Heller, the Court held that the government can ban certain weapons, such as submachine guns, because they are “inherently dangerous” and “ordinarily used for purposes of violence.” Although Judge Sotomayor was correct to eschew categorical bans, especially on the home front, where the right to keep and bear arms is at its strongest, her refusal to recognize a right to personal defense within the home is profoundly disturbing.

The Second Amendment survives today by being meaningful. A meaningful right to keep and bear arms would recognize citizens the individual right to keep and bear arms, particularly for self-defense. Following Heller, the Court is almost certain to decide next year whether the Second Amendment applies to states and local governments, as it does to the federal government (see NRA v. Chicago and McDonald v. Chicago).

We, the citizens of America, believe that the right to keep and bear arms is a fundamental right, not only because it is necessary to the self-defense of individuals and society, but also because it is necessary to the preservation of the Second Amendment.

The right to keep and bear arms is a right that is recognized by the Constitution of the United States of America, as well as by the constitutions of the individual states. This right has been recognized by the courts of the United States and the courts of the individual states for many years.

The Second Amendment is a guarantee of the people to keep and bear arms. The right to keep and bear arms is a right that is necessary to the self-defense of individuals and society.

We, the citizens of America, believe that the right to keep and bear arms is a fundamental right, not only because it is necessary to the self-defense of individuals and society, but also because it is necessary to the preservation of the Second Amendment.

interviewing various parties who were directly involved in the PRLDEF litigation activity during this period: “Ms. Sotomayor stood out, frequently meeting with the legal staff to review the status of cases; she was former members said . . . The board mon-tored all litigation undertaken by the fund’s lawyers, and a number of those lawyers said Ms. Sotomayor was an involved and adept supporter of their various legal efforts during her time with the group.”

If confirmed to the U.S. Supreme Court, Ms. Sotomayor will no longer be constrained by the precedents of that Court, including the precedents in which the Court upheld laws requiring a period of waiting and performed an abortion on a minor, requiring a pre-abortion waiting period, barring pubclic funding of an abortion, and—by a single vote, in 2007—a judge with a record of abortion appear, will she feel greatly constrained by the text and history of the Constitution, in which Roe v. Wade and its progeny find no support.

Because the available evidence strongly suggests that once on the Supreme Court, Sonia Sotomayor will seek to nullify abortion-related laws through constitutional interpretation, consistent with the extreme legal theories with which she was associated before being appointed to the federal bench, National Right To Life urges all senators to vote against her confirmation to the Supreme Court.

Respectfully,

DAVID N. O'STEEN, PH.D.,
Executive Director.
DOUGLAS JOHNSON,
Legislative Director.

DEAR CHAIRMAN PAUL LEAHY, SENATE JUDICIARY RANKING MEMBER JEFF SESS-IONS: On behalf of FRC Action (FRCA), the legislative arm of the Family Research Council, and the families we represent, I write to you today with serious reservations regarding the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor to the United States Supreme Court.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has the important role of properly vetting any nominee to ensure that the nominee has the requised knowledge and temperament, a broad understanding of the law and experience to make a good jurist. The nominee must be committed to making decisions based on the law and the facts of each case. Personal ideological predispositions toward certain results must be set aside, and the nominee must have the ability to faithfully uphold the Constitution recognizing that it is the Supreme law and source of authority for all American law, including judicial precedents.
A review of Ms. Sotomayor’s record shows she is lacking in many of these qualities.

Senators on the committee need to have
Ms. Sotomayor address what exactly she meant by her standards for judicial activism, the decisional process she uses, and whether she rejected the 1989 Principles for Judicial Activism. Ms. Sotomayor should also describe the extent of her role in the anti-life work at the Puerto Rican Legal Services, written in 1989, in which the organization called the right to abortion "precious," criminalizing abortion, and as an attorney she has surfaced numerous other concerns on sanctivity of life issues, on sovereignty matters, marriage questions, and more that makes us question her fitness to serve on our nation’s highest court.

Barriers and significant revelations at her Senate confirmation hearing that change our assessment of her judicial philosophy, Family Research Council stands in opposition to Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation.

The available evidence reveals Judge Sotomayor to be a judicial activist who does not have a commitment to the limited role of judges and the judiciary in our constitutional system.

Sincerely,

THOMAS MCCILKINSY,
Senior Vice President,
FRC Action.

WASHINGTON, DC.—Members of the Women’s Coalition for Justice released the following statements in response to today’s first Senate confirmation hearing for Supreme Court Nominee Judge Sonia Sotomayor.

Genevieve Wood, Vice President of Strate-getic Initiatives, The Heritage Foundation, stated, “Judge Sotomayor’s rejection of Justice O’Connor’s favored adage that a wise old man would reach the same conclusion as a wise old woman. It is deployed to the point where it can be taken to mean that the woman is not as wise as the man. Her statements raise grave concerns about whether she can truly be impartial and the current defense that she simply endorses the status quo doesn’t hold water. The Senators must ask challenging questions to determine whether she believes that a wise woman can reach the same conclusion as a wise man, or whether she intends to bring bias, as she has suggested, even to most cases.”

Margorie Looney Wolfer, President of the Susan B. Anthony List, stated, “Women are best protected by the rule of law—and blind justice. Their rights are most endangered when personal preference, ideology or pain-f ul personal information governs. Susan B. Anthony and her early feminist compatriots fought for a human rights standard sustained only through blind justice. When there is evidence of personal preference appears in any Supreme Court nominee’s judgment, it should give all women pause. Sonia Sotomayor’s record of support for judicial activism and her work for the pro-abortion Puerto Rican Legal Defense Fund other cases that she wields either as a friend of the unborn on the Supreme Court. Given what we know about Sonia Sotomayor’s own judicial philosophy, including her support of policies requiring parental notification, informed consent and bans on partial-birth abortion, her nomination to the Supreme Court will dramatically shift the dynamics of the Court.
Her record of activism in support of a radical pro-abortion agenda is clear and documented. This is a judge with a record sigificantly worse than Judge Souter’s. We are concerned today and want to seriously consider the consequences of confirming a Supreme Court justice whose radical record shows she would rule against all common-sense legal protections for the unborn, including parental notification, informed consent and bans on partial-birth abortion.
The American people will not tolerate a nominee who is outside the mainstream of American public opinion.”

THE ETHICS & RELIGIOUS LIBERTY COMMISSION OF THE SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION,
Nashville, TN, July 14, 2009

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY,
Chair, Senate Judiciary Committee,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. JEFF SESSIONS,
Ranking Member, Senate Judiciary Committee,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LEAHY AND RANKING MEMBER SESSIONS: This week, the Senate Judiciary Committee begins hearings on the nomi-ingen of Judge Sonia Sotomayor. We are deply troubled by many aspects of Judge Sotomayor’s record. While we could identify many more, we describe below those that are the most troubling.

Judge Sotomayor does not appear to share the pro-life values of nearly all Southern Baptists and of most Americans. Recent polling reveals that the majority of Americans are pro-life. Her lack of rulings on major sanctity of life issues makes it more difficult to determine how she would rule on sanctity issues, but her association with the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund raises serious questions about her committment to pro-life values.

She was on the Board of this organization, including as Vice President and Chair of the litigation committee. At that time, the Fund filed briefs in at least six prominent court cases in support of abortion rights.

Wendy Wright, President of Concerned
Women for America Legislative Action Committee stated, “Sonia Sotomayor’s record reveals she lacks the primary characteristics expected of a Supreme Court judge. She has used her position as a judge to deny equal justice to people based on their ethnicity. She worked with organizations that aggressively push for legislation that targets and regulations on abortion. Her flippant dismissal of cases and unwillingness to provide Constitutional reasoning for her decisions exposes her disregard for the separation of church and state. Her extreme views on the constitutional system and the people whose lives are dramatically impacted by her decisions. Through her words, her actions, and her record of abor-tionism, she has denied people equal opportu-ity to make a living because of the color of their skin, preborn babies their right to live, and women their right to decide the timing of their births.”

Judge Sotomayor will no longer be constrained by the precedents of the Court, including the precedents in which the Court upheld laws requiring a period of waiting and performing an abortion on a minor, requiring a pre-abortion waiting period, barring public funding of an abortion, and—by a single vote, in 2007—a judge with a record of abortionism. The American people will not tolerate a judge who violates the law. The American courts are a system of justice, a place where all people are judged according to the law. If Judge Sotomayor is confirmed to the Supreme Court, she will not be able to ignore the law as she has done as a judge or as a citizen.”

Enclosed are some highlights from Judge Sotomayor’s record and why we oppose her confirmation to the Supreme Court.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

August 6, 2009

While Judge Sotomayor has ruled favorably on abortion-related cases at times, we note that her rulings on race-related issues reveal a much more ideologically rigid attitude and support efforts that erode the equal opportunity for all. However, we oppose policies that discriminate against some races in order to achieve a predetermined racial outcome. Racial discrimination is wrong in any circumstance.

We are also disturbed by Judge Sotomayor’s lack of respect for private property rights. Her ruling in Didden v. Village of Port Chester demonstrates a willingness to ignore the Constitution’s Fifth Amendment protection of private property. While the Kelo case was decided on the basis of the property’s potential rather than its actual purpose, Judge Sotomayor’s decision is not limited to similar situations. In Ricci v. DeStefano she violated the 5th Amendment’s protection of personal liberty. In Kelo, she failed to uphold the individual’s right to bear arms. In Didden v. Village of Port Chester she failed to uphold their ability to exercise empathy from the bench.

We oppose the nomination of Judge Sotomayor as a Supreme Court Justice. As you recall, we raised a number of concerns about her record that we believe Judge Sotomayor meets the requirements and dedication. Nevertheless, we do not believe Judge Sotomayor meets the requirements for this extremely important position in our nation. We therefore urge you to vote against her confirmation.

Thank you for your service to our nation. We pray God’s wisdom for you as you make the decisions that affect life for hundreds of millions of people.

Sincerely,

RICHARD D. LAND,
President.

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the Susan B. Anthony List, LEAVES "an involved and ardent supporter of their various legal efforts."

You to vote against her confirmation.

Sincerely,

RICHARD D. LAND,
President.

THE ETHICS & RELIGIOUS LIBERTY COMMISSION OF THE SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY,
Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LEAHY: This week, the Senate Judiciary Committee is scheduled to vote on the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the Supreme Court. As you recall, we raised a number of concerns about her record that we believe are required examination during her hearings.

We watched the hearings and listened to Judge Sotomayor’s answers to some very probing questions. When we are not troubled by her decision in Kelo demonstrates an inconsistent application of that standard at best. The following cases remain determinative for us. In O’Keefe v. Molinaro, for example, the high court upheld 5th Amendment guarantee of speech or religious expression. In Maloney v. Cuomo she weakended the 2nd Amendment’s guarantee of the individual’s right to bear arms. In Didden v. Village of Port Chester she failed to uphold the 5th Amendment’s protection of personal property.

As before, we are deeply concerned about Judge Sotomayor’s lack of respect for private property rights. In her decision in Maloney v. Cuomo she ruled that a property’s potential rather than its actual purpose is the standard at best. The following cases reaffirm the centrality of the U.S. Constitution’s protection of private property.

We oppose the nomination of Judge Sotomayor as a Supreme Court Justice. As you recall, we raised a number of concerns about her record that we believe Judge Sotomayor meets the requirements and dedication. Nevertheless, we do not believe Judge Sotomayor meets the requirements for this extremely important position in our nation. We therefore urge you to vote against her confirmation.

Thank you for your service to our nation. We pray God’s wisdom for you as you make the decisions that affect life for hundreds of millions of people.

Sincerely,

RICHARD D. LAND,
President.

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the Susan B. Anthony List, we oppose the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the United States Supreme Court.

Women are best protected by the rule of law—and blind justice. Their rights are most endangered when personal preference, ideology, or pain influence judgment. Susan B. Anthony and her early feminist compatriots fought for a human rights standard sustained only through blind justice. When evidence of personal preference appears in any Supreme Court nominee’s judgment, it should give all women pause.

We regret that we must oppose the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the Supreme Court, based on her inability to judge without respect of persons and her misinterpretation of the rule of law and the United States Constitution.

Sincerely,

RICHARD D. LAND,
President.

The briefs in question advocate a philosophy that rejects any legal restrictions on abortion. This position disregards both the broad public support for such restrictions and the fact that such laws save lives. For example, when the Supreme Court grants funding for abortion on-demand, we see fewer abortions. Even abortion advocates recognize this reality. The Outtcher Institute recently issued a report showing that when public funding is not available, 1-in-4 Medicaid-eligible women do not have abortions. That means approximately 25% of babies whose mothers receive government subsidized health care likely survive due to laws like the Hyde Amendment. Sotomayor’s philosophy that rejects any legal restrictions on abortion is dangerous.

Given what we know about Sonia Sotomayor’s own judicial philosophy, including her support of pro-choice policies, given the Supreme Court’s current composition, we urge you to reject her nomination.

Sincerely,

MARJORIE DANNENFELSER,
President, Susan B. Anthony List.
Mr. SESSIONS. Those letters were from Fidelis, Defending Life, Faith and Family, outlining their opposition; a letter from the National Rifle Association; a letter from the National Right to Life Committee; a letter from FRCAction; a letter from The Women’s Coalition for Justice with God; SBA International, the Sisters of Charity of St. Anthony List; the American Association of Christian Schools; and the Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention. Those were one group of letters.

In addition, there are letters from the National Rifle Association, as I mentioned earlier. They have not often, if ever, weighed in on a judicial nomination. But this case, this nomination was so close to one of the most critical issues facing the country today. That is, whether the second amendment applies to States.

If the second amendment does not apply to States, then States and cities can completely ban guns within their jurisdictions. Judge Sotomayor earlier this year, after the Heller decision, in the first case of its kind after the Supreme Court’s decision in Heller, concluded the second amendment does not apply to the States.

She concluded in her very brief opinion that the second amendment does not apply to the States; they could eliminate firearms. She concluded it was settled law that this was the case when the Supreme Court in Heller and as the Ninth Circuit concluded, which held differently—explicitly left open this question.

So I think any person who cares about the second amendment and the right to keep and bear arms has to be very troubled that the nominee, earlier this year, concluded that it does not apply and it is settled law, when the Supreme Court had opened it up, as the ninth circuit said.

If her opinion were reversed, her opinion is not reversed, then cities and counties will be able to restrict firearm possession completely.

Sandrea Froman, who is the former president of the National Rifle Association, a Harvard law graduate herself, wrote that:

Surprisingly, Heller was a 5-4 decision, with some justices arguing that the Second Amendment does not apply to private citizens or that if it does, even a total gun ban would not violate the “legitimate governmental interest” could be found.

She goes on to say:

The Second Amendment survives today by a single vote in the Supreme Court.

Heller was a 5-to-4 decision.

Both its application to the States and whether there will be a meaningfully strict standard of review remain to be decided by the High Court.

I have offered that letter and other letters that we have received into the Record. I also printed in the Record a series of letters that I have written on the way I believe an analysis of a nominee should be conducted and what are the important principles.

Mr. President, I would like to express my appreciation to my staff whose assistance throughout this process was critical to the fair hearing that Judge Sotomayor received. The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing for Judge Sotomayor more quickly than it has for any of the Supreme Court nominees, despite the fact that she has been touted as having the most extensive legal record of any recent Supreme Court nominee. As such, my staff went to great efforts to prepare for the hearing on her nomination.

Our team was led by chief counsel for the Supreme Court nomination Elisabeth Cook; staff director Brian Benckowski; chief counsel William Smith; deputy staff director Matt Miner; and general counsel Joe Matal. Their knowledge of the issues and wise counsel proved invaluable during this confirmation process.

In addition, I am grateful to our Supreme Court team, including counselors David Brinsoo, Peter Fanelli, Ryan Nelson, and Isaac Fong; law clerks Chris Mills, Matt Kuhn, Anne Mackin, and Andrew English; and intern Jamie Sunderland.

I would like to acknowledge and extend my gratitude to the dedicated and talented members of my permanent staff who worked tirelessly on this nomination, all the while handling the regular legislative business and other nominations that came before the Judiciary Committee. These individuals are Danielle Brucchiotti, Bradley Hayes, Nathan Hallford, and Phil Zimmerly; professional staff member Lauren Pastarnack; and staff assistants Sarah Thompson and Andrew Bennon.

I would be remiss if I failed to mention the important work done every day by my communications director Stephen Boyd, press secretaries Sarah Haley and Stephen Miller, and press assistant Andrew Logan.

The people I have mentioned bore the bulk of the workload, laboring tirelessly night after night, day after day, and nonstop through the weekends. They deserve our recognition as a tribute to their hard work, professionalism, and dedication to public service.

I also would like to acknowledge the great help we received from the Republican majority leader and his staff: John Abeck, Josh Holmes, and Webber Steinhoff; and the invaluable contribution to our Republican Policy Committee counsel Mark Patton.

Finally, my thanks to the Judiciary Committee’s chief clerk, Roslyne Turner and her assistant, Erin O’Neill.

All of these fine staff members contributed to this process and we would not have been able to conduct such a fair and thorough hearing without their hard work and their professionalism. To each of them, I extend my heartfelt thanks.

The President pro tempore, The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. RISCH. I rise today, fellow Senators, to discuss the current nomination that is under consideration by the Senate for the U.S. Supreme Court seat.

Like every Member of this body, I take this responsibility seriously. The Constitution of the United States gives the Senate the opportunity to choose this person the solemn duty to participate in this under what has been called the advice and consent provisions.

Obviously, there are two parts here. First, “advice” and the second “consent.” The first part: the advice that the President selects, is not under the control of any Member here but is under the control of the President. He did not seek my advice on this, which is not surprising.

But, secondly, I am required to exercise my constitutional duty to express either consent or the withholding of consent. I appear here this morning to explain the conclusion I have reached in that regard.

This is a serious constitutional duty. I think every Member here takes it seriously. I think as we do exercise this constitutional duty, it is incumbent upon each one of us to create, in our own mind, a path forward and a criteria, if you would, as to how to reach a conclusion concerning that consent.

I think all of us come at it from a different point of view. Some of us have had some experience in that regard. Although I have not had experience here in this body with a U.S. Supreme Court nominee, I had served as Governor and had to appoint judges, to determine if, in my mind, a path forward, if you would, or a way, a method, in which we would reach that conclusion as to the appropriateness of a person, their qualifications to serve in a judicial capacity. I have done that.

In addition to that, I think all of us look to other people who have exercised this responsibility and looked for the type of matrix they had to reach the conclusion. I have also done that. I have chosen someone to emulate as far as how I would reach a conclusion as to whether I would grant the consent or withhold the consent.

That person whom I have chosen to emulate is a person who actually chose a matrix that is similar to mine; that is, when we do this, we judge who the person is, and what that person stands for—the “who” and the “what.” Like the person I have chosen to emulate, my focus is not on the “who,” my focus is on the “what.” What does this person stand for? Because it is, indeed, at the end of the day, the “what” that will guide that person when that person, when the nominee, makes decisions in their capacity as a U.S. Supreme Court Justice.

I met with the nominee. I have read her opinions. I have read a lot that has been written about the nominee, and weighed those using the matrix I have chosen, and that person I chose to emulate chose to reach a conclusion as to whether to grant the consent or to withhold the consent.
I think this is a decision that no one should reach lightly but should reach based upon weighing the factors that they have chosen. When it comes to the “who,” I find the nominee that the President has put forward to be a person who is engaging, who is very wise, who I think has had the experience to fill this position. I have no difficulty with that at all. I am honored that she would spend the considerable time she made available for me to meet with her and discuss with her the various issues that are important to the great State of Idaho.

At the end of the day, I have to move from the “who” to the “what.” And in that regard, I want to talk about now who I chose to emulate when it comes to making this decision. The person I chose to emulate is a person who currently serves as the President of the United States.

He came to this body and had the opportunity to do just what I have done; that is, get through this exercise to determine the “who” and the “what” which comes to the appointment and the qualifications to serve as a Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Then-Senator Obama went through this exercise. At the end of the day, when he voted on two of the nominees, two of the Supreme Court nominees, he determined that based upon his weighing of the nominees, he could not, in good conscience, vote for the nominee because—not because of the “who” part of the equation but because of the “what does this person stand for?” part of the equation.

He did that based upon his vision of what he wanted to see in America. I did likewise. He concluded that when he withheld his consent on those two, that person did not meet his view of what the vision for America was. I have reached the same conclusion on this nominee.

In good conscience, I must withhold the consent. My fellow Senators, I will withhold my consent based not on the “who” but on the “what” on this nomination. I will vote no.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, what is the parliamentary situation?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority controls the next 60 minutes. We're going to the nomination of Judge Sotomayor.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I thank the many Senators who took part yesterday in the historic debate over the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the Supreme Court. In fact, the distinguished Presiding Officer was one who introduced her to the Judiciary Committee and also spoke eloquently in the Chamber yesterday. I am hopeful that today will not only conclude the debate, but we will then vote on her confirmation and vote favorably.

Senator Klobuchar, the senior Senator from Minnesota, a very active member of the Judiciary Committee, led a group of five women Senators in a powerful opening hour of debate yesterday. The distinguished Presiding Officer was one of them, and it also included Senators Shaheen, Stabenow, and Murray. The speeches were very moving, Senator Jeff Sessions gave strong speeches of support for Judge Sotomayor's nomination, including Senator Schumer, Senator Specter and Senator Cardin, Senator Franken, the newest Member of the Senate, and the distinguished Presiding Officer of the Judiciary Committee, Senators gave strong speeches of support for Judge Sotomayor's nomination, including Senator Schumer, Senator Specter and Senator Cardin, Senator Franken, the newest Member of the Senate, and the distinguished Presiding Officer of the Judiciary Committee, Senators gave strong speeches of support for Judge Sotomayor's nomination, including Senator Schumer, Senator Specter and Senator Cardin. In fact, the distinguished Presiding Officer gave a particularly moving speech. Senator Bond, my former Governor, former attorney general, and now my Senate office, and a good friend. Senators Baucus, Merkley, AKA, Lieberman, Casey, Wyden, and Bennett all spoke for her.

The troubling thing yesterday was to hear some critics of hers making unfounded insinuations about the integrity and character of this outstanding nominee. That is wrong. She is a judge not a politician, and请你告诉我完整的句子。
Judge Sotomayor testified in response to a question from Senator KYL:

The decision of the Court in Heller . . . recognized an individual right to bear arms as applied to the Federal Government.

Judge Sotomayor testified in response to Senator CONROY:

In the Supreme Court’s decision in Heller, it recognized an individual’s right to bear arms as a right guaranteed by the Second Amendment.

In response to Senator FEINGOLD, Judge Sotomayor testified about Heller:

[The Supreme Court] did hold that there is . . . an individual right to bear arms, and I fully accept that.

Judge Sotomayor participated on a Second Circuit panel in a case called Maloney v. Cuomo that was decided earlier this year in which the unanimous—let me emphasize, the unanimous—panel—recognized the Supreme Court decision in Heller that the personal right to bear arms is guaranteed by the second amendment against Federal law restrictions.

Justice Scalia, arguably the most conservative Justice on the U.S. Supreme Court, said in his opinion in the Heller case that the Second Circuit decision in Maloney . . . expressed essentially unresolved and explicitly reserved as a separate question whether the second amendment guarantee applies to the States and laws adopted by the States, whether the State of New York or any other State. In doing so, the Second Circuit placed a series of Supreme Court holdings from 1876 to 1894 that the second amendment does not apply to the States.

I mention this because there are those who want Justices to not be activists but to be traditionalists. Going back to 1876 to 1894 recognizes a tradition of this country. The question posed to Judge Sotomayor and the Second Circuit in Maloney involved a challenge by a criminal defendant to a New York State restriction on a martial arts device called nunchucks or chokka sticks, not firearms. Indeed, in that case the appellant had pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct, agreed to the destruction of the nunchucks as part of the plea, and the charge of possession of the nunchucks in violation of New York law had been dismissed. The Second Circuit considered the case on appeal from a denial of a subsequent declaratory judgment case.

In declining to overrule the trial judge—the trial judge would not set aside the State law against nunchucks—the Second Circuit panel emphasized that its decision was dictated by Supreme Court precedent, holding that: “Where, as here, a Supreme Court precedent has direct application in a case, yet appears to rest on reasons rejected in some other line of decisions, the Court of Appeals should follow the case which directly controls, leaving to the Supreme Court the prerogative of overruling its own decisions.” Had the Second Circuit acted otherwise, it would have been seen as judicial activism and an unwillingness to adhere to Supreme Court precedent. That is something that every single Member of this Chamber has said judges should do, follow Supreme Court precedent.

Now Judge Sotomayor is criticized for decisions of the Court of Appeals that she is supposed to do; that is, follow the precedent of the Supreme Court. She seems to be caught in a Hobson’s choice. Had she violated that rule, had they acted otherwise, had they rejected the Supreme Court precedent, I am sure she would be attacked as being a judicial activist. Come on. Let’s be fair. When we have had nominees by Republican Presidents, we have heard over and over again how Republicans want these people because they follow precedent. Here, some Republicans are attacking Judge Sotomayor because she did follow precedent, because she did do what a Court of Appeals judge is supposed to do.

In fact, the approach taken by the Second Circuit decision in Maloney was adopted by some of the more respected, very conservative jurists in the country. Judges Easterbrook and Posner, both renowned conservatives, who wrote in the 2006 arrests by the Republican side over and over again, serve on the Seventh Circuit. They agreed with the Second Circuit panel. This may sound like it is getting into the weeds, but what I am saying is, judges of all stripes ruled the same way. In National Rifle Association v. City of Chicago, they cited the Second Circuit in Maloney. Judges Easterbrook and Posner refused to ignore the direction of the Supreme Court to implement Supreme Court holdings, even if the reasoning in later opinions undermines their rationale and, instead, “leave to [the Supreme Court] the prerogative of overruling its own decisions.”

What I am saying is, conservative judges, liberal judges, and moderate judges such as Judge Sotomayor all came to the same conclusion: You have to follow precedent. It may sound like I am doing a tutorial for a law school class, but I thought rather than having the rhetoric, let’s go to the facts and let’s go to the law. Because both the facts and the law are irrefutable.

If Republican Senators wish to criticize, let them criticize Justice Scalia’s decision in Heller to limit its application against Federal Government restrictions and expressly reserve for another Supreme Court decision whether to incorporate the Second Amendment right against the States. Judges Easterbrook, Posner and Dwyer of the Seventh Circuit and Judges Posner and Katzmann of the Second Circuit all followed Justice Scalia and the holdings of Supreme Court precedent.

Petitions for certiorari have been filed in the Maloney and National Rifle Association and are currently pending before the Supreme Court. A third, related decision by a panel of the Ninth Circuit is being reconsidered en banc by that Court of Appeals. Republican Senators insisted during the Roberts and Alito hearings that a Supreme Court nominee must avoid making predictions about how she might rule in a case. Yet Republican Senators have now reversed their approach to demand that Judge Sotomayor ignore these standards and commit to how she intends to rule on these cases and this issue if confirmed.

Recognizing that she would be unable to say how she would rule, I asked Judge Sotomayor whether she would approach these matters with an open mind and she assured us that she would. I do not see how any fair observer could regard her testimony as hostile to the Second Amendment personal right to bear arms, a right she has embraced and recognizes.

The question of incorporation of the Second Amendment of the Bill of Rights against the States is not merely likely to come before the Court; petitions to decide it are currently pending before the Supreme Court. There are well-recognized limits to how much a judicial nominee can say during her confirmation hearings. Nominees do not answer questions about cases or issues pending before the Supreme Court. It is striking that many of those who today criticize Judge Sotomayor’s adherence to these limits strongly defended them just a few years ago, when a Republican President was doing the nominating.

A 2005 Senate Republican Policy Committee Report commissioned by Senator KYL concluded that “the preservation of an independent judiciary” depends on a nominee’s ability to avoid signaling how she will rule on upcoming cases. According to this report, “It is inappropriate for any nominee to give any signal as to how he or she might rule on any issue that could come before the court, even if the issue is not presented in a current pending case. If prejudgment demands were tolerated, the judicial confirmation process would be radically transformed.”

Senator KYL’s Republican Policy Committee Report raises concerns that “no judge can be fair and impartial if burdened by political commitments that Senators try to extract during confirmation hearings” and concluded that “nothing less than judicial independence and the preservation of a proper separation of powers are at stake.”

Senators SESSIONS, CORNYN, GRASLEY, COBURN and HATCH referred to these restrictions on a nominee’s ability to answer questions during the Senate’s consideration of President Bush’s Supreme Court nominees. During the Senate’s consideration of the Roberts nomination, Senator Sessions said: Judges apply the facts to the legal requirements of the situation, and only then make a decision. [Judge Roberts] refused to make decisions on cases that may come before him. Of course, he should commit on that . . . he should not be up there making opinions on the cases. That is so obvious.
At that time, Senator CORNYN shared their view and strongly defended Republican nominees who refused to discuss legal issues that might arise in the future. He said:

It undermines a nominee’s ability to remain impartial once he or she becomes a judge. It also would make it very difficult, if not already impossible, for the President’s nominees to answer questions on issues that might come before him or her on the bench. . . . In other words, just because some Members may ask these questions, it would be improper for the President’s nominees to answer them. In accordance with long tradition and norms of the Senate in the confirmation process, they should not answer these questions.

At the beginning of confirmation hearings for John Roberts, Senator GRASSLEY said: “The fact is that no Senator has a right to insist on his or her own issue-by-issue philosophy or seek commitments from nominees on specific litmus-test questions likely to come before that Court.”

Senator COBURN criticized those Senators whom he said planned to vote against the Roberts nomination for his failure to state positions on specific issues. He said: “The reason they will be voting against John Roberts is because he would not give a definite answer on two or three of the social issues today that face us. He is absolutely right not to give a definite answer because that says he prejudges, that he has made up his mind ahead of time.”

In 2005, Senator HATCH noted the ethical restrictions on a nominee’s ability to answer questions and said:

I have said Senators on the Judiciary Committee can ask any question they want, no matter how stupid the question may be. . . . But the judge does not have to answer those questions. In fact, under the Canons of Judicial Ethics, judges should not be opining or answering open-ended questions about issues that may possibly come before them in the future.

Both Judge Roberts and Judge Alito followed their advice and did not answer questions with any specificity about cases that could come before the Supreme Court. Judge Roberts testified during his hearing: “I think I should stay away from discussions of particular issues that are likely to come before the Court.” During his hearing, Judge Alito testified:

I think it’s important to draw a distinction between issues that could realistically come up before the courts and issues that . . . are still very much in play . . . that’s where I feel that I must draw a line, because no issues that could realistically come up, it would be improper for me to express a view, and I would not reach a conclusion regarding any issue like that before going through the whole judicial process that I described.

I asked Judge Sotomayor during her hearing whether, if not bound by Second Circuit or Supreme Court precedent, on whether second amendment rights should be considered “fundamental rights,” she would keep an open mind to the nomination of Judge Roberts. Her response to me was straightforward. She said:

You asked me whether I have an open mind on that question. Absolutely. I would not prejudge any question that came before me if I was a Justice on the Supreme Court.

She could not have gone any further without prejudging the question Justice Scalia in his opinion in Heller left open, one that is currently pending before the Supreme Court.

In response to a question from Senator Coburn, Judge Sotomayor testified: “In the Supreme Court’s decision in Heller, it recognized an individual’s right to bear arms as a right guaranteed by the Second Amendment . . . . The Maloney case presented a different question. That was whether that individual right would limit the activities that States might limit the regulation of firearms.” Judge Sotomayor also told Senator Coburn at the hearing: “I can assure your constituents that I have a completely open mind on this question. I do not close my mind to the fact and the understanding that there were developments after the Supreme Court’s rulings on incorporation that will apply to this question or be considered.”

In response to a question from Senator Sessions on how she would come down on the question of incorporation of the Second Amendment, Judge Sotomayor testified: “I have not prejudged the question that the Supreme Court left open in Heller . . . of whether this right should be incorporated against the States or not.” She also answered Senator Sessions’ questions about the panel decision in Maloney: “Well, when the Court looks at that issue, it will decide is it incorporated or not. And it will determine by applying the test that it has subsequent to its old precedent, whether or not it is fundamental and hence, incorporated. But the Maloney decision was not addressing the merits of that question. It was addressing what precedent said on that issue.”

The only other case in which Judge Sotomayor was involved as an appellate judge incorporating Amendment contention was a case in which an illegal alien was convicted of distribution and possession with intent to distribute approximately 1.2 kilograms of crack cocaine and of illegal possession of a firearm while an illegal alien. In that case, United States v. Sanchez-Villar, decided in 2004—before the Supreme Court’s decision in Heller—involved an attempt to overturn a jury conviction. The defendant in that case claimed he had received ineffective assistance from his lawyer because his possession of the firearm in New York did not provide probable cause for seizure and arrest was rejected by a unanimous panel of the Second Circuit. The Second Circuit unanimously rejected this claim. In so doing, the panel quoted in a footnote to language from an earlier Supreme Court decision decided before Heller or Maloney. This is not unlike a number of cases in which Judge Sotomayor has upheld police actions where a defendant had no valid claim.

So I am disappointed by recent news accounts that the National Rifle Association has decided to score the vote on confirming Judge Sotomayor to the Supreme Court. They did this in response to pressure from the Republican leader. In fact, this is the first time in the history of the NRA that it has “scored” a Supreme Court confirmation hearing. The irony of this is, if she had been nominated by a Republican President, they would all be supporting her with her record.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record, at the conclusion of my statement, a copy of the July 24 letter from four members of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, who have consistently earned high ratings from the NRA, to the NRA’s executive vice president and executive director.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEAHY. Congressmen JOE BACA, SOLOMON ORTIZ, SILVESTRE REYES, and JOHN SALAZAR wrote:

[We are disapponted by the NRA’s opposition to the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the U.S. Supreme Court. It is not merited by either Judge Sotomayor’s record or hearing testimony.]

In their letter, they point out that at her confirmation hearings Judge Sotomayor ‘emphasized that she has an ‘open mind’ on the question of incorporation and ‘has not prejudged the issue.’”

In fact, they said: “Judge Sotomayor has said more than either of the two previous Supreme Court nominees about the Second Amendment—specifically, she said that it confers an individual right, as recognized by the Supreme Court in its Heller decision. The letter continues: “Even more troubling, it appears you are holding Judge Sotomayor to a different standard than you held Judges Roberts and Alito when they were nominated to the Court, or for that matter, any previous nominee to the Court. The double standard you have set for Judge Sotomayor is a disservice to all members of the NRA, particularly those who are Hispanic.” They are mystified as to why the NRA is characterizing Judge Sotomayor as hostile to the rights of gun owners and evaluating Judge Sotomayor by a different standard than that to which you have held previous Supreme Court nominees.”

I think it is a double standard. When Justices Roberts and Alito were nominated by a Republican President, Republicans did not have this standard. When this woman was nominated by a Democratic President, suddenly they change the standard. All I am saying is, they ought to follow the same standards they followed when President Bush nominated the two men he did now, when President Obama has nominated this woman to the Supreme Court.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record letters of support for Judge Sotomayor from a large number of prosecutors, including the National District Attorneys Association.
Hon. Patrick J. Leahy, Chairman, U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Hon. Jeff Sessions, Ranking Member, U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Dear Senators Leahy and Sessions: On behalf of the National Black Prosecutors Association, representing local, state and Federal African American prosecutors, it is my pleasure to submit my nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the position of Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. It is noteworthy to mention that she will be this nation’s third female and first Latina United States Supreme Court Justice. I highlight Justice Sotomayor’s gender and ethnicity only to point out that it is shocking that in its 220 year history, the United States Supreme Court has previously had only one female justice, and never a Hispanic justice, let alone a woman of varied ethnicities to be seriously considered for service on the United States Supreme Court.

Despite the reality of being diagnosed with Type I diabetes and shortly thereafter losing her father at the age of nine, Judge Sotomayor’s scholastic performance remained strong throughout her elementary and high school years. While at Princeton University, she fought for increased opportunities for Puerto Rican students and to diversify the University’s faculty and curriculum. After graduating summa cum laude, she entered Yale Law School, where she became the editor of the Yale Law Journal. After completing her studies, she practiced law at a high-powered law firm, and then became a trial attorney, and later a judge.

We applaud Judge Sotomayor’s distinguished career in public service, which began with her service as a Manhattan Assistant District Attorney. As a trial attorney, Judge Sotomayor honed her skills, gaining first-hand experience with the real world of crime, pursuing justice against the perpetrators of violent crimes. She was firm but fair as a United States District Court Judge, exhibiting a great respect and understanding of the United States Constitution and its interpretation in the twenty-first century. The opinions she has authored since becoming a judge on the United States District Court, exhibit a great respect and understanding of the United States Constitution and the interpretation of that Constitution in the twenty-first century.

We urge all Senators to approve Sonia’s nomination, as our country will be better off with Judge Sotomayor sitting on our nation’s highest court. We have a unique appreciation of our concerns. Just as important as her sophisticated knowledge of the law, the principles of law enforcement, deconstructed complex crimes, and her understanding of the law, Judge Sotomayor’s background, life experiences, and accomplishments demonstrate that she is the one to ensure that the law is applied equally and fairly to all Americans.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Steven J. Abir, President, National Black Prosecutors Association, DC.

Hon. Patrick Leahy, Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Hon. Jeff Sessions, Ranking Member, Senate Judiciary Committee, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEAHY AND SESSIONS: On behalf of the National District Attorneys Association, the oldest and largest organization representing America’s state and local prosecutors, we offer our full support for the nomination of the Honorable Sonia Sotomayor to become the next Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Because state and local prosecutors handle 95 percent of the criminal prosecutions nationally, rulings by the Supreme Court can have far-reaching, serious impacts upon criminal cases in state courthouses across the country. As former prosecutors yourselves, you have a unique appreciation of our concerns.

We practice where the law is truly tested — not in the deliberative atmosphere of an appellate courtroom, but on the streets where police must make split-second choices in dangerous situations and in trial court situations that sometimes give prosecutors and police only a moment to analyze and react. It is important to the National District Attorneys Association, and to the tens of thousands of prosecutors we represent, that the next Supreme Court justice be well steeped in the law and its practical implications.

I have had the opportunity to review the judicial record of Judge Sotomayor, particularly in areas important to prosecutors such as criminal and constitutional law. Through her rulings, Judge Sotomayor reveals a deep understanding of the law. As a prosecutor, I find her to employ a thoughtful analysis of legal precedent and the rule of law and apply that law to the specific facts of each case.

Just as important as her sophisticated knowledge of the law, the principles of law enforcement, deconstructed complex crimes, and her understanding of the law, Judge Sotomayor has often been described as a ‘tough and fearless’ prosecutor. She vigorously and effectively prosecuted child pornographers, murderers, burglars and many other ‘street crimes’ in the heart of New York City. She worked as a prosecutor in cases involving dangerous situations and in trial court situations that sometimes give prosecutors and police only a moment to analyze and react. It is important to the National District Attorneys Association, and to the tens of thousands of prosecutors we represent, that the next Supreme Court justice be well steeped in the law and its practical implications.

We urge all Senators to approve Sonia’s nomination, as our country will be better off with Judge Sotomayor sitting on our nation’s highest court.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Steven Abir, President, National District Attorneys Association, Alexandria, VA.

Hon. Patrick Leahy, Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.
Congratulations to Judge Sonia Sotomayor for the United States Supreme Court.

Throughout her distinguished career spanning three decades, Judge Sotomayor has worked at almost every level of our judicial system, giving her a depth of experience and knowledge that will be valuable on our nation’s highest court. After five years as the Assistant District Attorney in Manhattan, she went into private practice in 1984 to become a federal judge. In 1991, she began her career as a federal judge with her nomination to the United States District Court by President Bush. In 1996, she was promoted to the United States Appeals Court for the Second Circuit by President Clinton, where she has served for the past eleven years.

Through her distinguished experience as an Assistant District Attorney, Judge Sotomayor gained an understanding of what law enforcement officers go through day to day in their jobs. Her familiarity with criminal procedure and qualified immunity are evident in the rulings and findings she has issued during her seventeen year career as a federal judge. Judge Sotomayor has shown that as a jurist she has a keen awareness of the real-world implications of judicial rules, an important aspect when it comes to evaluating the actions of law enforcement officers and to keeping officers and the communities they serve safe.

As a Supreme Court Justice, NAPO believes Judge Sotomayor’s extensive experience in the judicial system and the knowledge she has gained as a prosecutor and judge will serve our nation well. Therefore, we urge you to confirm Judge Sonia Sotomayor for the United States Supreme Court. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me, or NAPO’s Executive Director, Bill Johnson.

Respectfully submitted,

Association of Prosecuting Attorneys

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD letters of support for Judge Sotomayor from a broad cross section of law enforcement agencies, including the National Association of Police Organizations (NAPO), representing more than 241,000 law enforcement officers throughout the United States.

Re Endorsement of Judge Sonia Sotomayor for the United States Supreme Court.

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LEAHY AND RANKING MEMBER SESSIONS: On behalf of the National Association of Police Organizations (NAPO), I offer our support to the Honorable Sonia Sotomayor’s nomination to become the next Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

NAPO is a national “think tank” that represents all prosecutors and provides additional resources such as training and technical assistance in an effort to develop proactive innovative prosecutorial practices that prevent crime, ensure equal justice and make our communities safer.

Judge Sotomayor’s proven record as a prosecutor, private litigator, District Court Judge and Federal Appellate Judge has shown her dedication to the law, equality of justice and ensuring safer communities. Her distinguished tenure as a Federal District Court Judge and Federal Appellate Judge has shown her dedication to the law, equality of justice and ensuring safer communities.

Judge Sotomayor’s judicial philosophy in criminal justice to be sound and support her common sense approach in reviewing criminal cases.

As one of the largest law enforcement organizations in the nation, the National Sheriffs’ Association is calling on the United States Senate to approve Sonia Sotomayor for the next Associate Justice of United States Supreme Court.

Respectfully,
SHERIFF DAVID A. GOAD,
President.

AARON D. KENNARD,
Executive Director.

COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES,
SHERIFF’S DEPARTMENT HEADQUARTERS,

Re Honorable Sonia Sotomayor.

Hon. PATRICK LEAHY,
Chairman, Senate Committee on the Judiciary,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LEAHY: As Sheriff of the Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department, which is the largest Sheriff’s Department in the country in one of the most diverse counties in the world, I support the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor as a United States Supreme Court Associate Justice and, respectfully, urge your Committee to support her nomination.

As you know, Judge Sotomayor has had the gamut of legal experience beginning with her education from Yale University. Judge Sotomayor’s work as an Assistant District Attorney for the New York County District Attorney’s Office and her work in private practice, led to her nomination by President George H.W. Bush to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, for which she was confirmed by the United States Senate. She served in that capacity until President Bill Clinton nominated her to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, followed by her second Senate confirmation.

Judge Sotomayor possesses all the traits important for service on the United States Supreme Court. Her educational background, diverse legal experience, and personal story have all contributed to her current success and will continue to positively shape her future on the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor is an excellent nominee for Associate Supreme Court Justice. I am confident that confirmation of her nomination would be a great honor for our Supreme Court and our Country. Thank you for your service to our Country and making these critical decisions that profoundly impact our Country and our Country.

Respectfully,
LEROY D. BACA,
Sheriff.

NATIONAL LATINO PEACE OFFICERS ASSOCIATION,

Re Honorable Sonia Sotomayor.

President BARACK OBAMA,
The White House,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: I am writing on behalf of the men and women of the National Latino Peace Officers Association (NLPOA) to unanimously support the appointment of the Honorable Sonia Sotomayor, Judge with the United States Court of Appeals for the Second District, as the next Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The NLPOA supports Judge Sonia Sotomayor because she has a long and distinguished career on the federal bench as well as her ongoing dedicated experience of all levels of the judicial system. She brings a lifelong commitment to... equality, justice, and opportunity, and has earned the respect of all her colleagues being in one of the most demanding appeals circuits in America; the Second Circuit.

She brought her personal experiences to this position, with a Juris Doctorate from Yale Law and completing her undergraduate work at Princeton, graduating summa cum laude. With over 30 years experience in handling a wide range of substantial civil and criminal cases, Judge Sotomayor has a distinguished record of professional accomplishments as judge, prosecutor, and community leader.

The NLPOA enthusiastically supports Judge Sonia Sotomayor as the next Supreme Court Justice of the United States of America.

If you have a need for additional information please feel free to contact me.

Respectfully,

Art Acevedo,
National President.

New York State Law Enforcement Council

The New York State Law Enforcement Council congratulates President Obama on his nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the United States Supreme Court. Judge Sotomayor is well known to us from her career as a prosecutor and as a federal judge. She is an extremely able jurist and an exceptional individual. I have no doubt that she will be well served when she assumes her seat on the Supreme Court.

Washington, DC,
June 8, 2009.

Hon. Patrick Leahy, Chairman,
Hon. Jeff Sessions, Ranking Member,
Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Senators Leahy and Sessions, I am writing in support of President Obama’s nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to serve as associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. I believe that Judge Sotomayor’s inspiring life story, and especially her experience as a prosecutor in New York City, where I spent most of my career, demonstrate a strength of character that will serve her well on our nation’s highest court.

Judge Sotomayor grew up in a housing project in the South Bronx. I patroled the streets of the South Bronx in the 1970s and I know what a tough environment that was. I did not have the privilege of working with Assistant District Attorney Sotomayor, but recently I visited several of my colleagues who did work with her, and they give her nothing but rave reviews. They were impressed with her intelligence, her strong work ethic, and her fierce determination to prosecute criminals, and they use words like “salt of the earth” to describe her.

I believe it is important to note that in the questionnaire that she filled out for the Judiciary Committee, Judge Sotomayor included several criminal cases from her history as a prosecutor in the South Bronx in the 1970s. I believe she is honest about the challenges she faced, and she gives a strong sense of her commitment to public service.

Like many others, I have been inspired by Judge Sotomayor’s personal story. She brings with her a blue-chip legal firm, but she chose instead to take a low-paid position in the Manhattan District Attorney’s office, where she gained priceless real-world experience and could not help but inform her judgment as she decides criminal cases that come before her.

Sonia Sotomayor went out of her way to stand shoulder to shoulder with those of us in public safety at a time when New York City needed strong, tough, and fair prosecution. She will continue to bring honor to herself, and now to the Supreme Court, when she is confirmed for this critically important position.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

John F. Timoney,
Chief of Police, Miami, Florida,
President, Police Executive Research Forum.

Mr. LEAHY. I urge each Senator to vote his or her own conscience in connection with this historic nomination.

EXHIBIT 1

Congress of the United States,

Wayne Lapierre,
Executive Vice President, National Rifle Association of America, Fairfax, VA.

Chris Cox,
Executive Director, National Rifle Association of America, Fairfax, VA.

Dear Messrs. Lapierre and Cox: As Members of Congress whose strong support for the rights of gun owners has earned us consistent high ratings from the NRA, we are disappointed by your opposition to the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the U.S. Supreme Court. It is not merited by either Judge Sotomayor’s judicial record or hearing testimony. Troubling appears that you are holding Judge Sotomayor to a different standard than you held Judges Roberts and Alito when they were nominated to the Court, or for that matter, any previous nominee to the Court. The double standard you have set for Judge Sotomayor is a disservice to all members of the NRA, particularly those who are Hispanic.

We support the confirmation of Judge Sotomayor. She is eminently qualified by her experience as a prosecutor, district judge, and 12 years on the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. Her judicial record is marked by modesty and restraint, prompting the New York Times to write that her “judicial opinions are marked by diligence, depth and unflashy competence” and are “models of modern judicial craftsmanship, which prizes craftsmanship over ideological or precedential record and a methodical application of layers of legal principles.” Adam Liptak, “Nominee’s Rulings Are Exhautstive But Often Narrow,” New York Times, May 12, 2009. Moreover, Judge Sotomayor has emphasized that the history of incorporating the first Hispanic Justice on the Court, particularly one so well qualified for the job, is an important step for our country.

Judge Sotomayor has said more than either of the two previous Supreme Court nominees about the Second Amendment. Specifically, she said that it confers an individual right, as recognized by the Supreme Court in its Heller decision. Judge Sotomayor’s judicial record and hearing testimony suggest that Judge Sotomayor is well qualified to discuss her position on incorporation, even though there is now a circuit split on the issue and there are petitions pending asking the Supreme Court to take the issue. Judges are prohibited by ABA rules from commenting on pending cases, making it inappropriate for Judge Sotomayor to state a definitive position. However, at her hearing on her nomination, she emphasized that she has an “open mind” on the question of incorporation and has “not prejudged” the issue.

Conversely, Justice Roberts testified at his confirmation hearing facing a similar circuit split prior to the Heller decision on the issue of the individual right to bear arms. He chose to discuss the issue at all, saying only: “That’s sort of the issue that’s likely to come before the Supreme Court when you have conflicting views.” And now-Judge Alito was not even asked a question about the subject. Yet the NRA voiced no opposition to these candidates who were actively forthcoming on issues of importance to us.

Your letter cites two cases as evidence that Judge Sotomayor is hostile to the Second Amendment. Your analysis of those cases is either mistaken or deliberately misleading.

United States v. Sanchez-Villar, on which Judge Sotomayor was a member of the panel, was decided in 2004, four years before the Supreme Court’s landmark decision in Heller. The 2nd Circuit decision was consistent not just with 2nd Circuit precedent, but with the weight of authority at the time; in 2004, every circuit but the Fifth had concluded that the NRA had similarly concluded that the Second Amendment did not protect an individual right. Your letter fails to mention either fact.

Your characterization of Maloney v. Cuomo is similarly erroneous. First, Maloney did not involve firearms at all. The degree to which it was not considered an important case at the time can be gleaned from the fact that no outside entity or organization, including the NRA, filed an amicus brief in that case, in contrast to the multiple amicus briefs filed in the National Rifle Association v. City of Chicago.

Second, the Maloney court did not reject the concept of incorporation; it recognized the prerogative of the Supreme Court, which in Heller explicitly did not overrule prior precedent on incorporation. The panel wrote, “[w]here, as here, a Supreme Court precedent has direct application in a case, yet fails to appear on rest on reasons rejected in some other line of decisions, the Court of Appeals should follow the case which directly contravenes the pre-routine of overruling its own decisions.”

Two of the most renowned conservative jurists in the country, Judges Posner and Easterbrook of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, recently endorsed the Second Circuit panel opinion in Maloney. In National Rifle Association v. City of Chicago, Judge Easterbrook’s opinion explicitly stated that the court “agree[d] with Maloney.”

Even Mr. Maloney himself said the decision in this case was “not a question of incorporation.” I did not expect to win...it was clear to me that they had a very solid basis for saying that the Second Amendment is not incorporated into the states. We respectfully believe that Judge Sotomayor will have no problem doing anything about it, they had a defensible position there.” Mike Pesca, “High Court May Review Personal Weapons Ruling,” NPR Legal Affairs, June 1, 2009.

In conclusion, we are mystified as to why the NRA is characterizing Judge Sotomayor as hostile to the rights of gun owners and even suggesting that Judge Sotomayor’s position is not set at the same level as those held by prior nominees. We are also concerned that your opposition will alienate important gun rights organizations and individuals. It is our hope that you will reconsider your position on Judge Sotomayor.

Sincerely,

Joe Baca
Silvestre Reyes
Solomon P. Ortiz

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I see Senator Lincoln on the floor, one of my most distinguished colleagues, and I yield to her.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arkansas.

S910 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE August 6, 2009
Mrs. LINCOLN. Madam President, I thank the chairman of the Judiciary Committee. He is a good and trusted friend, and I appreciate all the hard work he and all of our colleagues on the Judiciary Committee have done and all the efforts they have put into this nomination hearings process. I rise today to discuss what I think is one of the most consequential and long-lasting decisions in the duties a Senator can perform under the Constitution—the confirmation of a U.S. Supreme Court Justice. It is a rare practice, so rare, in fact, that my consideration of the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor will mark only the third Supreme Court nomination I will have considered since I was first elected to the Senate in 1996.

Even though the President today making this Supreme Court nomination has changed from the previous two nominees, as the chairman of the Judiciary Committee has mentioned, my standard of standards of qualifications for serving on our Nation's highest Court.

First among these are the opinions of my constituents in my home State of Arkansas, including those in the legal community. I have heard from a number of the bench and bar who have expressed strong support for Judge Sonia Sotomayor, emphasizing her unique background, impressive resume, and solid judicial record.

I also gained a lot of insight when we met at length in June. I was able to learn firsthand about who she is as a person, her temperament, and her unique life experiences—all of which I believe will help give her the ability to give every litigant who comes before the Supreme Court a fair shake.

And I readily identify with her because Judge Sotomayor is no stranger to hard work. She was born in New York, and is the daughter of parents who came to the United States from Puerto Rico. After her father died, when she was young, Judge Sotomayor was raised by her mother, a nurse, a hard-working woman with tremendous values. She went on to become valedictorian of her high school, a member of Phi Beta Kappa at Princeton, and editor of the Law Review at Yale Law School.

She has a breadth of professional experience, having served as an assistant district attorney and in private practice before beginning her 17 years serving as a Federal judge. She has a long history, and, again, one that starts with hard work and dedication to hard work.

Arkansas is known for its ability to grow self-made Americans, and those are Americans who are no strangers to hard work. They understand what is involved in putting into who you are, and what you are trying to become, and what it is you want to achieve on behalf of half of others.

Judge Sotomayor even told me in our personal meeting that she had entered her practice in real estate and business law because she had a great appreciation for business and the industries of this great country and she wanted to increase her knowledge of corporate law and broaden her experience.

Moreover, I was impressed during our meeting with her eagerness to learn more about Arkansas and her attention to the issues that were most important to my constituents in my home State of Arkansas.

The Senate Judiciary Committee hearings also provided me with an opportunity to learn about her record and her judicial philosophy.

As the chairman of the Judiciary Committee mentioned earlier, I was raised as an avid duck hunter and a gun owner. Gun ownership is a unique part of my State's heritage. I was pleased to hear Judge Sotomayor make a promise before the Senate Judiciary Committee to have an open mind on the issue of the second amendment and to understand what it means in terms of our rights as American citizens.

In response, Judge Sotomayor expressed caution in declaring how she would rule on an unsettled constitutional issue likely to come before the Supreme Court before hearing the arguments and studying the opinions before her. I would have been concerned about a nominee who had already made up their mind about an unsettled legal issue that is likely to come before the Court. Her responsibility is to not come in there prejudging or predetermining in her decisions, but to come to the Court with an open mind.

Based on her substantial record, serving on two courts, I am satisfied Judge Sotomayor will give future cases involving the second amendment and the rights of Americans to own firearms for recreation and self-protection a very fair hearing. I am also satisfied that her past rulings on these issues followed precedent and fall within the judicial mainstream.

And I think Senator Sessions mentioned some of that in his comments in terms of being judicial mainstream.

Overall, I appreciated Judge Sotomayor's approach to the judiciary hearings and her willingness to respond to questions from Senators on both sides of the aisle on many important topics.

Based on her answers, I believe Judge Sotomayor cares more about following the law and maintaining the respect for the judiciary than she does about politics and ideology.

As Judge Sotomayor stated:

"The task of a judge is not to make law. It is to apply the law."

Finally, I have again searched my conscience and reflected on my principles as a Senator for the people of the great State of Arkansas, using my experiences a legislator both here and in the House of Representatives, and also as a farmer's daughter, my experience as a wife, a mother, a neighbor, to evaluate a decision of such great weight.

It has become apparent to me Judge Sotomayor does meet the test to serve in our Nation's highest Court. I base this conclusion on the respect and support she has earned from those in my home State, colleagues on both sides of the aisle who know her well, on the evidence and the record from her own comments and those of her colleagues, and that she has had an abiding respect for the Court's decisions, and that she understands the value of continuity in our law.

I also see the support from industry representatives, such as the Chamber of Commerce, as well as labor organizations. The Senate Judiciary Committee received a letter of support for Judge Sotomayor's nomination from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the world's largest business federation, representing businesses and organizations of every size, sector, and region. The U.S. Chamber wrote, in their letter:

"Pursuant to our long-standing endorsement policy, the Chamber evaluated Judge Sotomayor's record from the standpoint of legal scholarship, judicial temperament, and an understanding of business and economic issues. Based on the Chamber's evaluation of her judicial record, Judge Sotomayor is well-qualified to serve as an Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court."

Her extensive experience both as a commercial litigator and as a trial judge would provide the U.S. Supreme Court with a much needed perspective on business litigants face. Consistent with her Senatorial testimony, the Chamber expects Judge Sotomayor to engage in fair and evenhanded application of the laws affecting American businesses.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the letter to the Senate...
Judiciary Committee from the Chamber of Commerce be printed in the Record. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Sessions:
The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the world's largest business federation representing more than three million businesses and organizations of every size, sector, and region, announced today its support of the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. The Chamber urges members of the Senate Judiciary Committee to vote in favor of reporting Judge Sotomayor's nomination for full Senate consideration.

Pursuant to our long-standing endorsement policy, the Chamber evaluated Judge Sotomayor's record from the standpoint of legal scholar, judicial temperament, and an understanding of business and economic issues. Based on the Chamber's evaluation of her judicial record, Judge Sotomayor has the qualifications and temperament necessary to serve as Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. Her extensive experience both as a commercial litigator and as a trial judge would provide the U.S. Supreme Court with a much needed perspective on the issues that business litigants face. Consistent with her Senate testimony, the Chamber expects Judge Sotomayor to engage in fair and evenhanded application of the law.

The Chamber urges your support of Judge Sonia Sotomayor as Associate Justice of the United States.

Sincerely,

R. BRUCE JOESTEN, Executive Vice President, Government Affairs.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Madam President, I do believe Judge Sotomayor will make an excellent Supreme Court Justice and she will give all who come before the Court, and she in particular, the opportunity to serve a fair hearing and the attention and respect they deserve. So in this very important decision that each of us as Senators must make, I am proud to be able to support her nomination.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, once again, the Senate is being called upon to decide matters of constitutional duty to consider a nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court. Positions on the Supreme Court are hugely significant given their lifetime tenures and the impact of the Court's decisions on the lives of Americans. Our votes on Supreme Court nominees are among the most significant that we cast.

I commend Chairman Leahy for the extraordinarily thorough and fair hearings the Judiciary Committee held on this nomination. It has given us a very extensive record upon which we can base our judgment. I have reviewed the nominee's qualifications, temperament, and background to determine if she is likely to bring to the Court an ideology that distorts her legal judgment or brings into question her open-mindedness. I believe it is clear that Judge Sotomayor satisfies the essential requirements of openmindedness and judicial temperament, and her decisions as a trial judge fall well within the mainstream of our jurisprudence.

Judge Sotomayor's judicial career has received bipartisan support. She was nominated first to the district court in the State of New York by President George H.W. Bush. The Senate confirmed her nomination. President Clinton nominated Judge Sotomayor to be a circuit court judge, and the Senate overwhelmingly confirmed her nomination to that position.

The American Bar Association Standing Committee evaluated Judge Sotomayor and interviewed more than 500 judges, lawyers, law professors, and community leaders from across the United States. They analyzed Judge Sotomayor's opinions, speeches, and other writings. They read reports of Reading Groups comprised of recognized experts in the substantive areas of the cases reviewed, and they conducted an in-depth personal interview of the nominee. In the words of the committee:

The Standing Committee's investigation of a nominee for the United States Supreme Court is based upon the premise that the nominee must possess exceptional professional qualifications. The significance, range, and nationwide impact of issues that such a nominee will confront on the Court demands no less.

After that extensive investigation, the American Bar Association gave Judge Sotomayor their highest rating unanimously, rating her "well qualified."

Some colleagues have expressed concern over the differences in language and ideas they thought they observed in Judge Sotomayor's opinions as a trial judge versus as a judge on the U.S. Supreme Court. The significance, range, and nationwide impact of issues that such a nominee will confront on the Court demands no less.

In conclusion, I yield the floor.

Kappa. She was a co-recipient of the M. Taylor Pyne Prize, the highest honor Princeton awards to an undergraduate. At Yale Law School, Judge Sotomayor served as an editor of the Yale Law Journal.

In her 30-year legal career, Judge Sotomayor has been a Federal circuit and trial court judge, a civil commercial litigator in private practice, and a State prosecutor. She served as an assistant district attorney in the New York County District Attorney’s Office and later worked in private practice. Judge Sotomayor’s judicial career has received bipartisan support. During the 102nd Congress, President George H.W. Bush nominated Judge Sotomayor to be a district judge on the Southern District of New York. On August 11, 1992, the Senate confirmed her nomination.

During the 105th Congress, President Bill Clinton nominated Judge Sotomayor to be a circuit judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. On October 2, 1998, the Senate confirmed her nomination by a vote of 67–29.

On May 26, 2009, President Obama nominated Judge Sotomayor to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court to fill the seat left vacant by the retirement of Justice David Souter. Recently, the American Bar Association Standing Committee evaluated Judge Sotomayor and interviewed more than 500 judges, lawyers, law professors and community representatives from across the United States; they analyzed Judge Sotomayor’s opinions, speeches and other writings; read reports of reading groups comprised of recognized experts in the substantive areas of the law that they reviewed; and conducted an in-depth personal interview of the nominee. In the words of the committee:

The Standing Committee’s investigation of a nominee for the United States Supreme Court has been based upon the premise that the nominee must possess exceptional professional qualifications. The significance, range, complexity and nation-wide impact of issues that a Supreme Court justice will confront on the Court demands no less.

After that extensive investigation, the American Bar Association gave Judge Sotomayor their highest rating, unanimously rating her “well qualified.”

Some colleagues have expressed concern over the differences in language and ideas they observed in Judge Sotomayor while sitting as a judge in the courtroom, and as a citizen outside of the courtroom. For example, one colleague wrote in a layway during Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation hearing:

I want to ask your assistance this morning to try to help us reconcile two pictures that I think have emerged during the course of this hearing, and, of course, as Senator Schumer and others have talked about, your lengthy tenure on the federal bench as a trial judge and court of appeals judge. And then there’s a picture that has emerged that—from your speeches and your other writings.

He further stated, you know, I actually agree that your judicial record strikes me as pretty much in the mainstream of—if judicial decision making by district court judges and by court of appeals judges of your judicial level. And while I think what is creating this cognitive dissonance for many of us is for many of my constituents who I’ve been hearing from isn’t that you espouse personal views almost in your speeches and in some of the comments that you have made. So I guess part of what we need to do is to try to reconcile those.

Assume there is a difference between Judge Sotomayor’s rulings in the courtroom, and those personal views she expressed outside of the courtroom. If so, aren’t we looking for people who can apply the law on the bench, even if he or she has a different personal opinion? At the end of the day, we want our judges to leave their personal views outside of the courtroom. That is the essence of an impartial judiciary.

Senator Graham pointed out when he asked her a question:

Her speeches, [while troubling], have to be looked at in terms of her record. When we look at this 17-year record we will find someone who has not carried out that speech.

In other words, Judge Sotomayor has demonstrated the trait she is accused by some of lacking: the ability to leave her personal opinions at the courthouse door. She has an extensive judicial record and we have had the opportunity to review that record. The Congressional Research Service analyzed Judge Sotomayor’s record and concluded:

Perhaps the most consistent characteristic of Judge Sotomayor’s approach as an appellate judge has been an adherence to the doctrine of stare decisis (i.e., the upholding of past judicial predecents). Other characteristics appear to include what many would describe as a careful application of particular facts at issue in a case and a disinclination for situations in which the court might be seen as overstepping its judicial role.

That is the opposite of an activist jurist imposing her views despite the law. During her confirmation hearing, Judge Sotomayor addressed the role of the courts numerous times. Her response makes clear that she adheres to the responsibilities of a judge: . . . look at my decisions for 17 years and note that, in every one of them, I have done what I think is the law. I try to follow the rule of law, the fact that I do not permit personal views, sympathies or prejudices to influence the outcome of cases, rejecting the charging of a criminal plaintiff with undisputably sympathetic claims, but ruling the way I have on the basis of law rejecting those claims . . .

We all have personal views and sympathy for. . . . That I believe regrettably can’t lay those aside. Judge Sotomayor has proven in her judicial career that she can, while faithfully applying the principles of the U.S. Constitution.

For these reasons, I will vote to confirm Judge Sotomayor to the Supreme Court.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that letters received by the Judiciary Committee from the AFL-CIO and from AFSCME be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the matter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the AFL-CIO, I am writing to urge you to support the swift confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor as our next Supreme Court Justice.

Judge Sotomayor fully acknowledges the risks and consequences of judicial rulings, and throughout her career has demonstrated her understanding of the impact of the law on working families. She has also consistently interpreted our labor laws in the manner in which they were intended.

Judge Sotomayor has recognized that secession for union activity can be a basis for granting asylum in this country. She has enforced the rights of workers to be free from all types of discrimination, to be paid correct wages, and to receive the health benefits to which they are entitled. She issued an injunction that saved baseball.

Throughout her nomination hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Judge Sotomayor demonstrated that she is a stellar jurist with a commitment to uphold the constitutional rights of all.

Judge Sonia Sotomayor would bring more federal judicial experience to the Supreme Court than any justice in the last 100 years. We urge the Senate to confirm her nomination to the Supreme Court.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM SAMUEL, Director, Government Affairs Department.

American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

To Members of the Committee on Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC,

DEAR SENATOR: On behalf of the 1.6 million members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), I am writing to urge you to vote yes when the Senate Judiciary Committee consider the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the U.S. Supreme Court.

We believe that she conducted herself with distinction during her confirmation hearing and that she should be confirmed as the next U.S. Supreme Court Justice.

Judge Sotomayor was impressive during her confirmation hearing, demonstrating that she is well-qualified to serve on the high court. Her successful appearance before the Judiciary Committee is no surprise when you consider her strong educational and professional background. She was valedictorian of her high school class, won a scholarship to Princeton and earned her law degree at Yale University where she served as editor of the Yale Law Review. Judge Sotomayor has served with distinction as a litigator, prosecutor, trial court and U.S. appellate judge and brings more federal judicial experience than any of the current members of the Supreme Court and than any Justice in the last century prior to their nomination to the high court.

As an organization representing working men and women, we obviously are interested in a judicial nominee’s record on issues impacting the lives of working families. Judge Sotomayor has been consistent in her interpretation of labor laws and has worked to preserve the rights of workers to receive fair pay, health benefits and to be free of workplace discrimination. She has proven that she is well within the mainstream with her views of the Constitution.

Judge Sotomayor’s nomination marks a milestone, making her the first Hispanic and the first to be nominated to the high court, thereby fulfilling President Obama’s promise to add diversity to the Supreme Court.

We strongly support the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the U.S. Supreme Court and urge you to vote yes to confirm her.

Sincerely,

CHARLES M. LOVELESS,
Director of Legislation.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I yield the floor and note the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, the Judiciary Committee has received several letters supporting Judge Sotomayor’s nomination, and from organizations dedicated to advancing civil and women’s legal rights, including LatinoJustice PRLDEF, the Alliance for Justice, and the National Women’s Law Center. I ask unanimous consent that these letters be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

LatinoJustice PRLDEF

FORMER LATINOJUSTICE PRLDEF BOARD MEMBER JUDGE SONIA SOTOMAYOR NOMINATED TO THE U.S. SUPREME COURT

We congratulate former board member and present Federal Appeals Court Judge Sonia Sotomayor in being nominated to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The LatinoJustice PRLDEF family rejoices and congratulates President Obama for making the historic decision to nominate the first Latina to the Supreme Court. The president has selected a woman who exemplifies and respected judge who will be a great asset to the court and our nation—but with her first opportunity to nominate a Supreme Court Justice, the president brings the Hispanic community into the exclusive chambers of the highest court in the land.

"Sonia is a member of our family and spent more than a decade providing leadership to our organization, said Cesar Perales, LatinoJustice PRLDEF President and General Counsel. "I believe that Justice Sotomayor will keep probing mind as well as her thoughtful and extraordinary intellect. She is a most practical person who found solutions to complex issues."

Judge Sotomayor’s nomination comes at a time when the Hispanic community is at the heart of some highly politicized issues and attacks on our civil liberties. LatinoJustice PRLDEF recently has fought battle after battle to halt the so-called "English only" laws, a rash of hate crimes against Latinos and attempts to police the use of Spanish.

As the second largest and fastest growing population in America, with a large pool of qualified individuals to choose from, it was wholly appropriate for the president to nominate a talented and experienced judge.

Although Judge Sotomayor has a stellar judicial record, many of her supporters are expecting a fight from the right and from conservatives.

"We are prepared to engage those who would unfairly tarnish her reputation," several things, "you need to know that LatinoJustice PRLDEF will come to her defense."

The Latino community will be looking to the Senate to proceed with the confirmation process in a fair and timely manner.

We expect senators from both parties should treat Judge Sotomayor with the respect she deserves, examine her record thoughtfully, and perform their constitutional duty without undue delay or obstruction.

LatinoJustice PRLDEF has organized a Task Force made up of exemplify her cautious, technical approach to judicial review. They also demonstrate both judicial restraint and a commitment to access to federal courts. Taking a measured approach to questions of standing, she has consistently demonstrated the ability to examine justiciability prerequisites before allowing a case to proceed. Attentive to issues of numerosity and ripeness, Judge Sotomayor systematically works through alleged harms, identifies those that create an active case or controversy, and gives attention to statutory and constitutional challenges. She has explained the limits of the privilege to seek court redress. Although Judge Sotomayor has ruled on only a few preemption cases, her rulings reflect the often complex interplay between state and federal law, and she subjects preemption claims to rigorous statutory analysis, relying on text and legislative history to discern Congressional intent. Her rulings on other issues concerning preemption, such as, such as court stripping, sovereign immunity, and attorneys’ fees, demonstrate awareness of the importance of access to a fair and impartial judicial system.

Judge Sotomayor’s criminal law experience is lengthy and varied. She spent the first five years of her career as a prosecutor in the Manhattan District Attorney’s office, and she has participated in hundreds of criminal cases during her career as a trial and appellate judge.

Importantly, Judge Sotomayor will bring to the Supreme Court the insights gained from her years presiding over criminal cases as a trial court judge, which will make her the only sitting judge who has been directly responsible for implementing the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines and meting out punishment. Her district court record reflects a tough jurist unafraid of imposing sentences at the high end of the guideline range for both white collar and violent criminal defendants. However, uniformly support sentence enhancements, and vigorously opposed a district court’s injection of personal policy preferences into a sentence).

Judge Sotomayor’s criminal law opinions reveal the temperament of a former prosecutor who understands the real-world demands of prosecuting crime and fundamental fairness to our criminal justice system.

As part of AFJ’s work to promote a fair and independent judiciary, we conducted a thorough analysis of Judge Sotomayor’s judicial opinions. We believe that Judge Sotomayor’s opinions reflect the high standards of the constitutional right of criminal defendants, Judge Sotomayor closely follows Second Circuit precedent and dispenses narrow

In harmless rather than structural error. Her restrained manner is most evident in her habeas corpus decisions, in which she strictly adheres to the procedural requirements of the Anti-Eavesdropping Device Act (“AEDPA”), often dismissing habeas petitions as unexhausted or time-barred under AEDPA, even when faced with potentially meritorious claims, in one instance even material actual innocence. While the Alliance for Justice believes that, where possible, judges should reach the merits of habeas petitions whenever the Constitution or federal law requires it, we recognize the damage that a trial court error inflicts on the integrity of a criminal proceeding. Respect for Judge Sotomayor’s moderate approach and commitment to preserving the delicate balance between the government’s ability to prosecute criminals and an individual’s constitutional rights.

Judge Sotomayor takes a similarly cautious approach in civil rights cases, above all taking care to strictly follow precedent and limit her rulings to the facts at hand. When finding that the matter before her is not squarely addressed by precedent, she tends to rule narrowly, making the law in small increments rather than in bold steps. While we do not always agree with her restrained interpretation of the Constitution and the precedents, we applaud the consistent attention she has paid to matters of process, including procedural due process. Her opinions insist that individual rights and the civil justice system are entitled to adequate notice, a right to be heard, and representation. In particular, we appreciate that she has shown particular attention to the procedural rights of individuals who are less likely to be able to fund for themselves. She has also emerged as a strong defender of First Amendment rights to free speech and free exercise of religion, as well as the rights of the disabled.

Her limited record reviewing controversial constitutional issues, such as those involving the Second Amendment and the Takings Clause, is a model of restraint, faithfully applying Supreme Court precedent. She does not depart from her cautious approach when reviewing civil rights protections against discrimination. Her employment discrimination decisions are within the legal mainstream, and she has ruled in a consistently moderate and restrained manner. Plaintiffs of whatever race, ethnicity, or other characteristic have fared in her court well. Contrary to the accusations by some commentators, there is no evidence of racial or other bias in the hundreds of decisions Judge Sotomayor has written. Rather, her jurisprudence in cases involving racial discrimination claims is very much like her jurisprudence in other areas of the law: de liberate, measured, and strictly adherent to precedent. Finally, on other hot-button issues such as reproductive rights, capital punishment, affirmative action, her record is too slim to arrive at any meaningful conclusions about her views.

Our review of Judge Sotomayor’s rulings in business and consumer litigation also emphasizes Judge Sotomayor’s dedication to careful attention to the facts of each case, deference to the legislature, and adherence to legal precedents. Judge Sotomayor has a wealth of experience in business and consumer litigation garnered from her time spent as a judge, in private practice, and throughout her career as an attorney. And subsequently, she will bring to the Court an impressive working knowledge of commercial law, including securities, antitrust, employment, bankruptcy, and product liability. An analysis of Judge Sotomayor’s opinions in labor cases showed that she cannot be pigeonholed as pro-union, pro-employer, or pro-employee, although her opinions in labor cases showed that she cannot be pigeonholed as pro-union, Sotomayor’s moderate and careful approach to the law is consistent with her respect for the legal rules and precedents. In the long run, this respect for the rule of law may contribute to the stability of the law and the Court’s prestige.

In sum, our examination of Judge Sotomayor’s record demonstrates her consistent and moderate approach. Importantly, her very presence on the Court may have a “Marshall effect”: justices who sat with Justice Thurgood Marshall have noted that his presence on the Court changed their conversations and informed their decisions. As the Court’s first Hispanic and only its third woman, Judge Sotomayor will bring to the Court an activist justice on the Court who appear intent on weakening our core constitutional, civil rights, environmental, and labor protections. Most fundamentally, Judge Sotomayor is a highly accomplished and qualified nominee who has proven herself to be fair, reasonable, and committed to upholding the rule of law and core constitutional values. For these reasons, Alliance for Justice is proud to endorse her historic nomination to the Supreme Court.

Sincerely,

NAN ARON, President, Alliance for Justice.

Re: nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY, Chair, Senate Judiciary Committee, Washington, DC.

Hon. JEFF SESSIONS, Ranking Member, Senate Judiciary Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN LEAHY AND SENATOR SESSIONS: On behalf of the National Women’s Law Center (the “Center”), we write in support of the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. Judge Sotomayor possesses sterling academic and legal credentials, with a varied legal career including government service as a prosecutor, private practice in complex areas of commercial law, and 17 years as a federal judge, both at the trial and appellate level. She is well-regarded in the profession and has an excellent reputation as a careful, thoughtful, fair, and extremely intelligent jurist. The ABA Standing Committee on the Federal Bar has unanimously rated her well-qualified for the Supreme Court. She has also received the endorsement of the National Association of Women Lawyers, the Hispanic National Bar Association, and the New York City Bar Association. In addition to her exceptional legal qualifications, Judge Sotomayor brings an inspiring life story and a demonstrated commitment to public and community service, including within the civil rights community.

As an organization dedicated to advancing and protecting women’s legal rights, the National Women’s Law Center since 1972 has been involved in virtually every major effort to secure and defend women’s legal rights in this country. The Center has reviewed Judge Sotomayor’s legal record, including her judicial decisions, public statements, and experiences outside of her service on the bench, and her testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee during her confirmation hearings. The Center’s review of the totality of Judge Sotomayor’s legal record has led the Center to conclude that Judge Sotomayor will bring a real-world perspective, much-needed diversity of experience and background, considerable legal acumen, and a deep commitment to core constitutional values. The National Women’s Law Center is proud to support Judge Sotomayor, an exceptionally qualified nominee who is only the third woman, the third person of color, and the first Latina and woman of color, to be nominated to the Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor’s legal record demonstrates that she is a careful judge who is extremely respectful of the role of the judiciary, who is deferential to precedent, and who delves deeply into the factual record. Judge Sotomayor’s decisions have been fully justiciable as a matter of law, within the mainstream of judicial thought. Questioned extensively about her prior state-ments regarding the influence that a judge’s personal beliefs and experiences play in the decisionmaking process, Judge Sotomayor re-plied consistently that she believes strongly that the even-handed application of the law must always prevail. Judge Sotomayor’s tes-timony at her confirmation hearings on a va-riety of topics and legal issues reinforced her record as a judge, reiterating her commit-ment to precedent, her careful, thoughtful, fact-bound approach, and her understanding of the role of the judiciary.

Judge Sotomayor’s record and testimony provide confidence that her judicial philos-ophy and approach to the law are consistent with the legal rights and principles that are central to women, including the constitutional right to privacy and Roe v. Wade, Equal Protection, and key statutory protections.

The Center offers its strong support of Judge Sotomayor’s nomination to the Su-preme Court, and urges the Committee to ap-prove her nomination quickly.

Sincerely,

NANCY DUFF CAMPBELL, Co-President.
MARCIA D. GREENBERGER, Co-President.

Mr. DURBIN, Madam President, as a Member of Congress, there are votes you cast that you remember for a lifetime. Recently, a new Senator, AL FRANKEN, came to my office the day after he was sworn in, and we talked about his adjustment to the Senate. He told me about his concerns about the first three votes he cast in the Senate, that he was pushed in quickly and had to make decisions and didn’t have a chance to reflect as he would have liked to reflect on those votes. I said to him that I understood that. He said that after he has been in the Senate for a while—or the House for that matter—and he has cast many votes, he would realize that some are more important than others.

This is an important vote. It is not the most important vote a Member of Congress can cast—a vote for a nomi-nation of the Supreme Court. I would argue the most important vote you can cast is whether America goes to war because if the decision is made in the affirmative, as it has been, people will die. I can’t think of anything more compelling than that vote.

But this ranks a close second in terms of it will have these lifetime appointments to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court Justices on average serve 26 years, longer than most Members of Congress. The Supreme Court has the last word in American law and comes to our most significant legal issues. The High Court across the street, comprised of nine men and women, defines our personal rights as Americans to privacy and the restrictions the government can place on the most personal aspect of our lives and our freedom. It doesn’t get any more basic than that.

The Supreme Court decides the rights of workers, consumers, immigrants, and victims of discrimination. The nine Justices decide whether Congress has the authority to pass legislation to protect our civil rights and our environment. They decide what checks will govern the executive branch—the President—in time of war.

In critical moments in American history, the Supreme Court has succeeded and failed our Nation. In the Dred Scott decision in the 1850s, the Supreme Court perpetuated slavery and led us to a civil war. In Brown v. Board of Education, in the 1950s, that court brought an end to legal segregation based on race. Because these issues were so important, and tomorrow’s issues may be as well, we make our choices for the Supreme Court with great care. We obviously need Justices with intelligence, knowledge of the law, the proper judicial temperament, and a commitment to impartial and objective justice. More than that, we need Supreme Court Justices who understand our world and the impact of their decisions on every day people. We need Justices whose wisdom comes from life, not just from law books.

 Sadly, this important quality seems to be in short supply these days. The Supreme Court has issued decision after decision in recent years that represent a triumph of ideology over common sense. The case of Ledbetter v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company is the best example of this troubling trend. In that case, the Supreme Court dismissed a claim of pay discrimination simply because the claim was filed more than 180 days after the initial discriminatory paycheck. But most employees in most businesses in America have no idea how much the person next to them is being paid, so it is often impossible to know you are a victim of pay discrimination until long after the fact, long after 180 days. The Supreme Court’s Ledbetter decision defied common sense, the realities of the workplace, and a long record of earlier decisions.

There was another case, Safford Unified School District v. Redding. A 13-year-old girl was strip-searched at her school based on a false rumor that she was hiding ibuprofen pills. At the oral argument before the Court in April, several Supreme Court Justices asked questions about the case that revealed a stunning lack of concern for the dignity of the 13th-grader. The Justices even suggested that being strip-searched was no different than changing clothes for gym class. Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg helped her eight male colleagues understand why the strip search was humiliating enough to violate her constitutional rights. The majority of the Justices, nevertheless, ruled that school officials were immune from liability.

These and other decisions demonstrate that the Supreme Court needs to understand the real world and the impact its decisions have on real people. I believe Judge Sonia Sotomayor will be such a Justice.

One concrete memory of Judge Sotomayor’s hearing was watching her mother’s face glow with pride as Judge Sotomayor talked about the history of her family. She spoke about growing up in public housing, losing her mother when she was 7 years old, and struggling to succeed against adversity, illness, and the odds. She talked about what a great impact her mom had on her life, and that her mom taught her what a friend was worth.

She graduated from Princeton University and Yale Law School, serving as a prosecutor and a corporate litigator, and then being selected by President George H.W. Bush to serve the Federal judiciary and being promoted to a higher judicial office by President Bill Clinton.

It is a rare occurrence for a Federal judge to receive appointments by Presidents of different political parties. Sonia Sotomayor received those and that reflects so well on her skill as a judge.

Judge Sotomayor has served for more years as a Federal judge than any other Supreme Court nominee in a century and, if confirmed, she will be the only Justice on the current Supreme Court with actual experience on the district court and the trial court, the front line of our judicial system.

For many who oppose Sonia Sotomayor, her life achievements and her judicial record aren’t good enough. They have gone through 3,000 different court decisions that this woman has written or been part of. They have scoured through hundreds of speeches she has given. If you watched the hearing, they focused primarily on one case and one sentence in one speech.

At Judge Sotomayor’s hearing, Republican Senators mentioned the words “wise Latina woman”—that one line in one speech—17 different times. Senator after Senator asked her, “What did you really mean with those three words?”

Those of us who are Senators live in a world of daily decisions, speeches, and votes. If we vote in a way that is controversial, we ask the people to be fair and judge us on our life’s work, not on a single vote. It is a standard we ask for ourselves. But for some Senators, it is not a standard they would give Judge Sotomayor when it comes to her decision in recent years that represent a triumph of ideology over common sense.

Members of Congress also live in a world of revised and extended remarks. We live in a world of jokes that aren’t that funny, and verbal gaffes. Many want to condemn Judge Sotomayor for attacking the so-called Latina woman herself conceded was “a rhetorical flourish that fell flat.” I think some of her critics in the Senate are applying a double standard here.

I pointed out at the hearing that those who read the “wise Latina” sentence should have kept reading, because a little further in that same speech, the judge noted that it was nine white male Justices on the Supreme Court who unanimously handed Brown v. Board of Education decision, and other cases involving race and sex discrimination.

Judge Sotomayor made it clear at her hearing that she believes no single race or gender has a monopoly on good or bad moral judgment. But her life is not good enough for some of my colleagues. I hope that Senators would be wise enough themselves to look at her long record on the bench and not one line in one speech.

For me it is honest. A great deal of concern about her nomination has to do with the issue of diversity. Why do we even seek diversity when it comes to appointments to the Federal judiciary? First, it is because we live in a diverse nation. We want every American to believe we have an equal opportunity to succeed. We want every American, Black, White, brown, male and female to know that our system of government is fair. We want all Americans to look to our Congress and our courts and feel there are leaders who can identify with the diversity of life experience in this great diverse Nation.

Second, diversity on the Federal bench is important because different life experiences can lead to different perspectives.

Does anybody believe there is a clear, objective answer to every case that comes before the Supreme Court? If they do, please explain to me why one third of all rulings in that Court in the last term were decided by a 5-to-4 vote.

Does anybody believe the Supreme Court’s recent strip search case would have come out the same way if Justice Ginsburg, the only woman on the Supreme Court at this moment, had not helped her eight male colleagues to reflect on what it was like for a 13-year-old girl to be treated in such a humiliating fashion at her school?

Does anybody believe that women judges have not helped their male colleagues understand the realities of sex discrimination and sexual harassment in the workplace? Study after study has shown that men and women on the bench sometimes rule differently in discrimination cases. That is why diversity is so important.

This doesn’t mean their rulings are based on personal bias. It simply means that Americans see the world through the prism of various experiences and perspectives. Our Supreme Court Justices should possess an equally rich and wide field of vision as they interpret the facts and the law. Criticizing Judge Sotomayor for recognizing this reality is unfair.

The criticism of Judge Sotomayor for her position in the Ricci case, which involved the firefighters in Connecticut, is also unfair. Judge Sotomayor’s position in that case followed past judicial precedents. At her nomination hearing, she offered clear explanations about the law as she saw it when she reached her conclusion, and about how her decision was fully consistent with the way the law has historically dealt with competing claims of discrimination.

Her position in the Ricci case was supported by a majority of the members of her appellate court, a unanimous three-judge panel of her court, the district court, and by four of the nine justices of the Supreme Court. Hers was not a radical, unreasonable position. I think we know that. When my colleague Senator SPECTER asked the firefighters themselves if they believed that Judge Sotomayor’s ruling in the Ricci case was made in good faith, they said they had no reason to believe otherwise. Nor do I.

To those who say Judge Sotomayor wouldn’t have an open mind in race discrimination cases, look at her 17 years on the bench. Based on an independent study by Supreme Court scholar Thomas Goldstein, after looking at all 96 of her race discrimination cases, he found that she ruled in favor of the plaintiffs less than 10 percent of the time. There is no bias in her decision-making. The facts don’t support that conclusion.

There are two other issues I will address—foreign law and the second amendment. These issues are near and dear to the rightwing conservative base.

With respect to foreign law, Judge Sotomayor stated repeatedly over and over, in question after question, that American courts should not rely on decisions of foreign courts as controlling precedent. But she said that in limited circumstances, decisions of foreign courts can be a source of ideas, akin to law review articles or legal treatises.

She is hardly alone in her thinking on this. Justice Ginsburg took the same position when she observed: “I will take enlightenment wherever I can get it.”

This commonsense approach has been embraced by two conservative Supreme Court Justices appointed by President Reagan, William Rehnquist and Anthony Kennedy.

Indeed, we cannot expect the rest of the world to adopt the democratic principles and fundamental freedoms we promote as a Nation, while at the same time saying we will never consider ideas developed in other countries. This is plain common sense.

It is sad that some of my colleagues are inclined toward xenophobes and don’t appreciate that the march of democracy has reached many corners of the world and generated thoughtful reflection on our most basic values.

On the second amendment, I was sorry to see a major lobby group in Washington, DC, the National Rifle Association, not only announce their opposition to Judge Sotomayor but also notify its members and colleagues that this vote is going to be scored against them on the annual legislative scorecard. This is the first time in its history that the NRA has taken a position on a Supreme Court Justice.

Every citizen is entitled to his opinion, but it is unfortunate that the decision of this historic gravity has become a bargaining chip for lobbyists in Washington, and contributions in the next political campaign. What is worse, Judge Sotomayor has a record of honest reflection on the second amendment.

Most of the gun-related criticism of Judge Sotomayor is focused on the Maloney case. But in that case, she came to the exact same conclusion as a three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, based in Illinois. That three-judge panel was not a gathering of liberals. It featured three Republican appointees and two of the most conservative icons on the Federal bench, Judge Frank Easterbrook and Judge Richard Posner.

They concluded that only the Supreme Court, not appellate courts, could overrule century-old Supreme Court cases on whether the second amendment right to bear arms applies to the States.

I realize the NRA and their Senate allies don’t like that ruling. They wanted Judge Sotomayor to do what the Ninth Circuit did and overrule Supreme Court precedent. But in the Maloney case, Judge Sotomayor did what an appellate court should do, and she followed the law.

I am pleased that not every conservative group liked the NRA’s line of fire. I will mention some organizations and individuals who don’t typically show up at Democratic party rallies but who support the judge: Kenneth Starr, a man who led the impeachment of President Clinton; Charles Fried, a conservative panel of the Bush administration, also supports her confirmation, as do conservative columnists Charles Krauthammer and David Brooks. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has endorsed her. In Illinois, the conservative Chicago Tribune said:

In four days of testimony under often intense questioning, [Judge Sotomayor] handled herself with grace and patience, displaying a thorough knowledge of case law and an appreciation of her critics’ concerns. The result was to reinforce a strong case that she will make a great Supreme Court justice and deserves Senate approval.

I want to acknowledge that, as of this moment, eight Republican Senators have stepped forward and announced they are going to support Judge Sotomayor. I am heartened by their courage and their support of this fine judge.

The last issue I would like to address is that word “empathy.” Judge Sotomayor’s critics have twisted and tortured this word in an effort to discredit her and raise doubts about her objectivity. Empathy is simply the ability to see another person’s point of view. It is the ability to put yourself in their shoes. That is it. It doesn’t mean exercising bias or favoring a particular side. The judge’s critics are wrong to conflate these concepts.

I believe, and President Obama believes, that Judge Sotomayor’s life experience—from her days growing up in public housing, to her service as a high-powered lawyer representing large corporations—will give her unique ability to understand the interests of all the parties that come before her for decisions of the Supreme Court. It gives her an ability to understand different perspectives and points of view. That is what empathy is all about.

Judge Sotomayor had demonstrated this quality in 17 years on the bench. It explains why she enjoys such a reputation for fairness and thoughtfulness.

In the 220-year history of the United States, 110 Supreme Court Justices have served under our Constitution, and 106 of them have been white males. We have had two women Justices, Sandra Day O’Connor and Ruth Bader Ginsburg. Two of them have been African-Americans, Thurgood Marshall and Clarence Thomas.

In life, and in our Nation, if you want to be first, you have to be the best. Sonia Sotomayor’s resume and inspirational background clearly meet that higher standard. What a great story it is for America that President Obama has given us a chance to consider Sonia Sotomayor to serve as the first Hispanic woman on the Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor should not be chosen to serve on the Court because of her Hispanic heritage. Those who oppose her for fear of her unique life experience do no justice to her or our Nation. Their names will be listed in our Nation’s annals of elected officials one step behind America’s historic milestones.

I urge my colleagues to support and vote yes on the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor to be the next Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, I am proud to support the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor as the next Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.
Judge Sotomayor’s story is proof of the central American promise: that any person, by sheer force of their talent, can rise from the humblest background to one of the highest offices in this country. Born to a Puerto Rican family, Judge Sotomayor grew up in public housing in the South Bronx. Her father, a tool-and-die worker with a third grade education, died when she was nine years old. Due to her mother’s struggle and sacrifice, and Judge Sotomayor’s tremendous ability and perseverance, she graduated valedictorian of her high school in New York, then graduated summa cum laude from Princeton University.

She went on to earn her law degree from Yale Law School, where she was editor of the Yale Law Journal. After law school, Judge Sotomayor served as an assistant district attorney in New York County for 5 years and then entered private practice as a corporate litigator. For the past 17 years, she has served as a federal district and appellate court judge.

Given her experiences and career, there is no doubt that Judge Sotomayor is immensely qualified to serve on our Nation’s highest Court. What is unique about her 17-year judicial career, from my meeting with her, and from her confirmation hearing is that she is an unbiased, mainstream judge with a deep commitment to the rule of law and constitutional values. She has an exemplary record, during her tenure on the bench, and every independent analysis has made clear that she is a judge who faithfully applies the law.

Given her record, I am saddened that many Republicans have chosen to grossly distort her record, and have spent so much time focusing on a few out-of-context quotes and less than a handful of decisions. Putting rhetoric aside, she has participated in nearly 3,000 decisions and authored approximately 21 hearings and 16,000 pages of fact. The contrast between Judge Sotomayor and the Rehnquist Court of nine years old. Due to her mother’s struggle and sacrifice, and Judge Sotomayor’s tremendous ability and perseverance, she graduated valedictorian of her high school in New York, then graduated summa cum laude from Princeton University.

be someone who respects precedent, strives to apply congressional intent and purpose, and understands the importance of this Nation’s landmark civil rights protections. Based on her long judicial record, I am confident Judge Sotomayor is precisely that type of judicial-judge.

Confirmation of Judge Sotomayor will be historic. She clearly has the intellect, experience and judgment to be an outstanding Justice. I am proud to support her nomination.

The Acting President pro tem, the Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. VINOICH. Madam President, I rise today in support of the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor as an Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The role of the Senate in the nomination of a Supreme Court Justice is to give its advice and consent on the President’s nomination. I believe it has been that longstanding tradition of this body that we are to judge whether an individual is qualified to serve based on the complete record of each nominee.

Once again, I compliment Senators Sessats and LEAHY for the excellent job they have done in conducting the confirmation hearings for Judge Sotomayor. The hearings were fair and enabled the American people to get a better understanding of what sort of Justice Judge Sotomayor will be.

Equally important, those hearings were conducted with civility, allowing Senators to disagree without being disagreeable. This is something I would like to see more of in the Senate.

Sadly, as some of my colleagues have pointed out, the judicial nomination process has become so partisan that it seems to bring out the worst in the Senate, when it ought to bring out the best.

I believe the factors to be examined in determining whether a Supreme Court nominee is qualified include her education, prior legal and judicial experience, judicial temperament, and commitment to the rule of law. Based on my review of her record, and using these factors, I have determined that Judge Sotomayor meets the criteria to become a Justice of the Supreme Court.

I didn’t come to this determination lightly, and Judge Sotomayor has made statements that give me pause. However, after reviewing her judicial record and the comments made during the Judiciary Committee hearings, on balance, I believe she is fit to serve on our Nation’s highest Court.

I am comforted by Judge Sotomayor’s express rejection of then-Senator Obama’s view that in a certain percentage of judicial decisions “the critical ingredient is supplied by what’s in the judge’s heart and the depth and breadth of one’s empathy.” In answer to a question from Senator KYL, she said:

I can only explain what I think judges should do, which is judges can’t rely on what’s in their heart. They don’t determine the law. Congress makes the laws. The job of a judge is to apply the law. And so it’s not the heart that compels conclusions in cases, it’s the law. The judge applies the law to the facts before them.

In addition to being fit for the bench, the story of Judge Sotomayor is the story of so many Americans who rose from humble beginnings to reach levels of achievement that would not be possible in any other nation.

It is sort in the record that reminds me of what is so unique and special about our Nation, that a young working-class Latina woman or the son of a first-generation Eastern European immigrant family can be nominated to the Supreme Court or be elected to serve his home State in this great Chamber.

During our private meeting, Judge Sotomayor and I were able to discuss this opportunity. What struck me is she is someone who understands what a great opportunity this is, as well as the great challenges that await her. While the Founding Fathers may have a disagreement with her on some of her legal views, I think they would be proud that judging individuals on their merit has endured as part of this great experiment.

As a number of my colleagues have already noted, Judge Sotomayor, through hard work, has risen from humble beginnings to now await confirmation to the Supreme Court. Judge Sotomayor excelled throughout her academic career. From the time at Blessed Sacrament School and Cardinal Spellman High School, where she was the valedictorian of her class, she has excelled in highly competitive environments. Like Justice Alito, she is a graduate of Princeton University and Yale Law School. Judge Sotomayor attended Princeton on scholarship and graduated not only summa cum laude but also won the prestigious Payne Prize from that university. Judge Sotomayor went on to Yale Law School, where she served as an editor of the Yale Law Journal. Her academic record should serve as an inspiration to all that in a meritocracy, we all have an equal opportunity to rise to the top.

After her stellar academic career, Judge Sotomayor entered public service as a district attorney in New York, where her drive and basic fairness were well noted. I am particularly impressed with public service impressed me.

Judge Sotomayor not only succeeded in the public sector, she also worked her way up from associate to partner, practicing corporate law at a New York law firm. In private practice, Judge Sotomayor specialized in intellectual property and copyright law. Her rise from associate to partner in such a specialized field is a clear indication that the private sector recognized her merit and rewarded her for her skill and ability.

Judge Sotomayor returned to public service with her appointment to the district court, where she served for 6 years. I believe Judge Sotomayor’s experience on the district court will be invaluable to the Supreme Court, where none of her colleagues have experience as a judge in a trial court. I hope her experience there will help shape her future opinions, particularly in procedural cases. Many commentators have noted a need for rules that work in practice, not just in theory.

Judge Sotomayor’s time on the trial bench was marked by high ratings that set forth the facts and applied the law narrowly. Did you hear that? Her time on the trial bench was marked by opinions that set forth the facts and applied the law narrowly—exactly what one would want from a trial court.

In addition to district court experience, Judge Sotomayor has appellate court experience, over 10 years on the Second Circuit. I reviewed many of her opinions from her time on the Second Circuit, and while many were not opinions I would have offered, her opinions, as well, were within the legal mainstream. Judge Sotomayor’s opinions, for the most part, were lengthy, workman-like, limited rulings, the sort of opinions that exhibit the judicial restraint that one would hope for a Supreme Court Justice.

Given her academic and professional achievements, it is not surprising that the American Bar Association has given the judge its highest rating when considering her for the Supreme Court.

While impressive in what she has overcome to reach this point in her career, her record is not without blemish. In particular, the one comment that gave me significant pause as to whether I would support her nomination is the now well-known statement by the judge that “a wise Latina woman with the richness of her experiences would more personally understand than a white male who hasn’t lived that life.” Such a statement is repugnant to someone like me who has worked so hard to reach a colorblind society where an individual’s race or gender is not considered in judging a person’s merit. The question I had to ask myself was, Is this comment an indication that Judge Sotomayor would reject the rule of law and blind justice to favor certain people on the basis of inappropriate criteria? After study of her judicial record, I concluded it is not. Based on my review, Judge Sotomayor’s decisions, while not always decisions I would render, are not outside the legal mainstream and do not indicate an obvious desire to legislate from the bench. Furthermore, Judge Sotomayor recognized during her nomination hearings that this “could be hurtful” and was not reflective of how she would judge cases. Through my review and my staff’s review of her cases, her testimony, and her preparation, I have confidence that the parties who appear before her will encounter a judge who is committed to recognizing and suppressing any personal bias she may have to reach a decision that is dictated by the rule of law and precedent.

I think I would be remiss in my discussion of the judge if I failed to address the Supreme Court's decision in the Ricci v. DeStefano case. By now, all my colleagues and many Americans are aware that the Supreme Court reversed the Second Circuit's decision in the Ricci case. The case involved a race discrimination suit against the city of New Haven, CT.

Some opponents of Judge Sotomayor's confirmation have used this opinion to suggest that her legal philosophy is outside the mainstream of American jurisprudence and that her nomination should be rejected. I believe a review of the close decisions rendered by the various Federal courts, including the Second Circuit's 7-to-6 decision to refuse to rehear the case and the Supreme Court's 5-to-4 decision to rehear it, is necessary to properly draw this matter, for a number of the judges who reviewed the case, a close call. In other words, it was very close. For one to say she is outside the mainstream when these decisions were so close is a very strange and stretching thing quite a bit. Nevertheless, I believe Judge Sotomayor and her fellow panel judges would have better served the public by issuing a more comprehensive decision regarding their logic in affirming the Second Circuit's decision in favor of the city of New Haven.

In closing, I wish to make a few remarks about the judicial confirmation process.

Judge Sotomayor is the third nominee to the Supreme Court to come before the Senate since I came to the Senate in 1999. For both Justice Roberts and Justice Alito, then-Senator Obama promoted an "empathy standard" to determine if he would vote for these nominees. Then-Senator Obama said:

The critical ingredient is supplied by what is in the judge's heart.

Such an analysis is no analysis at all. In fact, it flies in the face of the meritocracy in which Judge Sotomayor succeeded. All of us in this Chamber can examine the academic credentials of and prior judicial decisions authored by a nominee and determine whether he or she is qualified. We cannot examine and judge what is in the heart of a nominee.

Let me apply Senator Obama's standard. I would not be voting for Judge Sotomayor, his nominee. The President was wrong. I think his standard makes the whole nomination process an exercise in partisan politics. We need less politics in the judicial selection process and the judiciary in general, not more. It has become too politicized in the last several years. It is something about which all of us should be concerned.

I urge all my colleagues to reject the Obama empathy standard—just as Judge Sotomayor rejected it, just as I am rejecting it—and return to a standard where it is the qualifications of the nominee we judge, not the politics or heart of that nominee.

Judge Sotomayor is not the nominee I would have selected if I were President, but making a nomination is not about me. My role is to examine her qualifications to determine if she is fit to serve. Again, in reviewing her academic and professional record, taking into account her temperament and integrity, it is clear to me she is qualified to serve as the next Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HAGAN). Will the Senator withhold the request for a quorum call?

MR. VONNOCH. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. SANDERS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to jump to the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. KENNEDY, Madam President, I strongly support the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. She will be the most experienced jurist to be placed on the Supreme Court in a century, and she will be the first Latina Justice in our Nation's history.

With her extensive career in public service and her lifelong commitment to equal justice, Judge Sotomayor will bring a remarkable perspective to the Court. Given her extraordinary and far-ranging experience, she has already distinguished herself as one of the most able and hardworking Federal judges in the Nation, and I am confident that she will bring the same high ability and dedication to all issues before the Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor has already spent 17 years as a Federal judge. She was first nominated to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York in 1992 by President George H.W. Bush. Six years later, she was nominated by President Clinton to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. She received bipartisan support in the Senate each time, and it is a special privilege for me to support her for the third time.

Judge Sotomayor has a deep understanding of our legal system as a result of the experience she has had as an attorney and a judge. She has more judicial experience at both the appellate and district court level than any Supreme Court nominee in the past 70 years. In addition, in her earlier legal career, she served as an assistant district attorney in New York City and worked as a civil litigator in private practice. Her experience in the criminal and civil systems and as a district attorney and an appellate court judge give her a unique perspective that will be invaluable as a Justice of the Supreme Court.
During her years as a Federal judge, she has participated in over 3,000 decisions, including over 400 Second Circuit decisions by panels that included at least one judge appointed by a Republican President. In those cases, she has agreed with the result favored by the Republican appointees over 85 percent of the time. Some have sought to portray Judge Sotomayor as a judicial activist, but her record clearly shows that she is a mainstream jurist who does not let personal ideology dictate the outcome of the cases she decides.

Not only is Judge Sotomayor eminently qualified by her experience to serve on the Supreme Court, but her nomination is historic. I, like many Americans, welcome the insight and perspective that Judge Sotomayor will bring to the Court, and she will serve as a role model for millions of our people.

Judge Sotomayor’s compelling life story is an impressive example of the best in America today. She was born in the Bronx and raised in New York City by hardworking parents. Through the strong support of her family and her own hard work and dedication and extraordinary achievement, she has been nominated to serve the Nation’s 111th Supreme Court Justice.

I commend President Obama for selecting her. With her intelligence, insight, and experience, she is an excellent choice to serve in this distinguished role, and I am sure she will do an outstanding job protecting the rule of law and the fundamental rights and liberties of all Americans. Judge Sotomayor has worked hard to achieve success, and I commend her for her life’s accomplishments. I wish her well in this new role, and I urge my colleagues to support her confirmation.

On the day soon to come, when she walks up the steps of the Supreme Court and passes under those famous and historic words, “Equal Justice Under Law,” inscribed in the marble over the entrance, millions of our fellow citizens and communities across the Nation will be able to say, “Yes, the American dream is alive and well in America today.”

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I rise to speak in support of Judge Sonia Sotomayor’s nomination to be an Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor’s nomination to the highest court in the land is historic in several respects. Clearly, becoming the first Hispanic to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court is an important milestone. Our country is well served when these barriers fall and we are able to reflect the diversity of our citizenry.

But what also makes Judge Sotomayor’s nomination so significant is the extent of her judicial experience and her overall qualifications.

Judge Sotomayor has more Federal judicial experience than any jurist nominated to the Court in the last 100 years, and has more overall judicial experience than any nominee in the last 70 years. She is the first Supreme Court nominee to have sat on both a Federal trial court and an appellate court, and would be the only current justice with trial court experience. Altogether, she has been a Federal judge for over 13 years on the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York and 11 years on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. In addition to serving on the bench, Judge Sotomayor has a distinguished record as a prosecutor and an attorney in private practice.

Considering the depth of Judge Sotomayor’s experience, it is not surprising that after a thorough review of her record the American Bar Association unanimously gave her their highest rating. The ABA found that she was “well qualified” to serve as a justice based on her integrity, competence, and judicial temperament. Judge Sotomayor’s testimony before the Senate Committee also demonstrated her adherence to mainstream jurisprudence and commitment to objectively making decisions based on the facts of each case and the applicable legal precedent.

I strongly believe Judge Sotomayor has the qualifications, experience, and impartiality necessary to be an excellent justice of the Supreme Court, and I urge my colleagues to support her nomination.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, we have received a number of discussions from Senators throughout this confirmation process regarding judicial activism—what is it and what does it mean. I think our former Judiciary Committee chairman and great legal constitutional scholar, ORRIN HATCH, has defined it clearly and fairly and in the right way. ORRIN HATCH has said for years that judicial activism is when a judge is assigned a case and they allow their personal, political, moral, religious, or ideological views to influence their decision, and not render a verdict based on the law and the facts. It is true of a conservative jurist with a conservative ideology as well as a liberal.

In truth, in recent years, we have had a pretty frequent national debate—for maybe 20 or more years—over this question. The intellectual defense of activism—the living constitutional view of activism—has come from the liberal side. Conservatives have said: No, that is not the role of a judge. A judge is supposed to decide the discrete issue before them in a way that handles that case because it may well provide precedent in the future. And that is what they should do and not be expansive in their rulings and set policy or to promote some long-term agenda they believe—rightly or wrongly—may be the greatest thing the country could ever do. They believed they should not.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll. The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, I have tried to say: Well, everybody does it. Everybody is an activist, so the Constitution is a malleable document. It gets redefined as the years go by. It is a living document, they say. But it is not living, is it? You can go over to it and read it and study. I am surprised there are not more pieces of legislation held unconstitutional than there are. It is not activism for a judge, such as Chief Justice Roberts—who has been accused of being an activist—to declare a statute unconstitutional. What would be wrong is if he were doing so to promote his own personal views about policy. That would be wrong.

The second amendment to the Constitution says that “a well-regulated militia being essential for the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.” That is what the second amendment says. It is in the Constitution. It is one of the Bill of Rights. Essentially, when the city of Washington, DC—a Federal enclave, a district—saw fit to almost completely ban the right of citizens in this city to have guns, Chief Justice Roberts and four other members of the Supreme Court found it violated the Constitution. It violated the right of the people to keep and bear arms, and it was a decision that is not what I am saying. Somehow we have gotten confused on this matter. Therefore, we need to be alerted to it.

Sometimes my colleagues, I think, have tried to say: Well, everybody does it. Everybody is an activist, so the Constitution is a malleable document. It gets redefined as the years go by. It is a living document, they say. But it is not living, is it? You can go over to the archives building and you can see if there is a contract, it is a contract. People granted certain rights to this government and they reserved certain rights to themselves. Of the rights they reserved, for example, was the right of free speech, the right to assemble, and to criticize their incumbent politicians if they are not happy with them. They reserved the right to keep and bear arms.

I think we need to get our minds straight. Judges should see their role as a limited role, and they should not be seeking to impose their policy values on the country. They should see it as then-Judge Roberts said in his hearing so beautifully and so eloquently: A judge is a neutral umpire. They call the balls and strikes. They do not take sides in the ball game. How much more basic can it be than that?

I wanted to try to clarify that point, and I think it is important. We have other rights—unlike the right to keep your property unless it be taken for public use, such as a highway. That is a public use. But in the Kelo case, 5 to 4, and in the case rendered by Judge Sotomayor, they ruled that the city could condemn the man’s drugstore—his property on which he was going to build a private drugstore—and the city could condemn it and give the property to another man to build a different drugstore on for personal profit. Where does the public use come from?

Justice O’Connor dissented in the Kelo case and ruled the other way. She ruled the other way, and it was okay to do that. The case dealing with Judge Sotomayor went even further than that. But it is not activism for a court to say that no city, or whatever, can take a man’s property under some redevelopment scheme or plan so they can get more tax money, because if they take it and give it to this other private guy, he can build a big shopping center there and they will get more tax revenue. That is not a public use. The question is: Is the property used for a public purpose, not otherwise? The Constitution gives an individual the right to have their property and people can’t take it from you.

The Constitution, likewise, says every American citizen is entitled to equal protection of the laws and that they cannot be denied equal protection of the laws on account of their race. It is a big important constitutional issue. So we get into a situation where a city, New Haven, conducts a fair test, by all accounts; a carefully crafted test. No one on the panel has any qualms about its validity. They conducted a test and 18 firefighters passed the test. They testified that they studied very hard to master the test which related directly to their firefighting ability. They go out and do the right thing and they are on track to be promoted. But not enough people of one group or another did well on the test, and the city—the government—decides they didn’t get the results they liked on this test and so they threw it out.

It is not activism for the U.S. Supreme Court to say—really all of them to say—that this is not right, that this is not complying with the Constitution or even the civil rights statutes in America that require equal justice under the law, not favoritism based on one or the other because of their background, ethnicity, or race. That is just what it is all about.

The Justices on the Supreme Court, the ones who are known for showing restraint, should not be criticized if on occasion they declare the U.S. Congress did something wrong and it was unconstitutional. I am afraid we do it more often than we like to admit, the truth be known. Bills come through here late at night, nobody has done any constitutional research on most of what is in them to see if it is constitutional or not. The American people are entitled to have the final decision about constitutionality rest with a court that is prepared to defend their individual rights.

On the three cases I mentioned—the case of a property taking from a private individual, the case of 18 firefighters and the case of cooperative ready to claim their promotion, and the question of the right to keep and bear arms—each one of those was an individual situation in which an individual American appealed to the courts and claimed they have a right in plain words provided to them by the Constitution and they are asserting that right and they are pleading their case in the Court and asking the Court to grant them that right. In the three cases I mentioned, unfortunately Judge Sotomayor went the wrong way, the wrong way from my point of view. She took the position that the power of the State, and against the individuals asserting their claims in three exceedingly important cases. It is not activism to throw out a city’s decision on forfeiture or guns; she said no, she said it was not a decision that discriminates against American citizens based on their race.

That is one of the things we discussed a lot in this debate. I think it has been a good debate. I commented on this before, on the first day. I think I was right. She is being somewhat too much here. She gave us all a chance to ask questions. We had 30 minutes, as we have done before. Some wanted to do less, but he said no, that is the way we do these things. We had 30-minute rounds and then 20-minute rounds and then 10-minute rounds to ask questions. I think pretty much the fundamental issues involved in this nomination got discussed in committee. Some written questions were filed in addition to the口头 questions in Senate floor.

I believe the Members of the Senate have an adequate record from which they can make a decision on what they think is best for America.

I believe we should not have anyone on the Court who is not committed to the Constitution, not committed to putting aside their personal political agenda, and who will stay in strict adherence to the law and the facts of the cases that come before them. That is how I vote today. I am proud of Judge Sotomayor. She handled herself well and patiently at the committee. She was asked a lot of tough questions, but if you want to be a Justice on the U.S. Supreme Court you have to be prepared for that. You should not submit yourself if you are not prepared for that. But she handled it nicely and courteously.

I think the Senators conducted themselves well also. A lot of people wanted to vote for her but, as the hearings went on, they studied the record, they concluded they were not able to vote for her based on philosophy and her approach to the law. But I think the committee hearing did what it was supposed to.

There have been no delays. This will be one of the fastest confirmations in history. Within a few hours we will be having an up-or-down vote on her confirmation. Unlike what happened when Judge Alito—a fabulous nominee, in my opinion—was subjected to a fillibuster before he was confirmed. She is going to be given an up-or-down vote in just a few hours.

I thank the Chair for this time. I look forward to the rest of the debate and final vote in a few hours.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, for the second time this week, I come to the floor to voice my opposition to the nomination of Judge Sotomayor to be an Associate Justice. I cannot support her nomination because I am not persuaded she has the right judicial philosophy to be on the Supreme Court. I have spoken many times and have again spoken at the Judiciary Committee and on the floor at some length about my reasons for opposing the judge’s confirmation, but I want to reiterate some of these reasons before we vote on her nomination about 2 hours from now.

It is the Senate’s constitutional responsibility to thoroughly review the qualifications of the President’s judicial nominations. This advice and consent process is especially important when we consider nominees to the Supreme Court, which obviously is the highest court in our land. In the past week, Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid and Ranking Member Sessions did an admirable job in conducting a fair but very rigorous examination of the judge’s record. The nominee was asked tough questions, but she was also treated fairly and with respect, as is appropriate for all judicial nominees.

We want to make sure judicial nominees have a number of qualities, but superior intelligence, academic excellence, distinguished legal background, personal integrity, and proper judicial demeanor and temperament are not the only qualities we must consider in a judicial nominee. Judges, and in particular Supreme Court nominees, must have a true understanding of the proper role of a Justice as envisioned by the writers of the Constitution as well as an ability to faithfully interpret the law and Constitution without personal bias and prejudices. Since becoming a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee the very first year I came to the Senate in 1981, I have held this standard to confirm both Republican and Democratic Presidents’ nominees for the Supreme Court.
Because Supreme Court Justices have the last say with respect to the law and have the ability to make precedent, they do not have the same kinds of restraints lower court judges have. So we need to be convinced these nominees have judicial restraint—in other words, the self-restraint to resist interpreting the Constitution to satisfy their personal beliefs and preferences. We need to be persuaded these nominees will be impartial in their judging and bound by the words of the Constitution and precedent. We need to be certain these nominees will not overstep their bounds and encroach upon the duties of the legislative and executive branch. That is our checks-and-balances system of government.

Our American legal tradition demands that judges not take on the role of policymakers, reserved to those of us in the legislative branch, but that instead they check their biases and preferences and politics at the door of the courthouse. The preservation of our individual freedoms depends on limiting policymaking to legislators rather than on elected judges who have a lifetime appointment.

When then-Senator Obama voted against now-Chief Justice Roberts, he spoke for his desk over there about how a judge needed to have, in his words, “empathy” to decide the hard cases. He said:

That last mile can only be determined on the basis of one’s deepest values, one’s core concerns, one’s broader perspective on how the world works and the depth and breadth of one’s empathy. . . . in these difficult cases the critical ingredient is supplied by what is in the judge’s heart.

In another speech, President Obama further elaborated on this empathy standard:

In those 5 percent of cases, what you’ve got to look at is what is in the Justice’s heart. What is the emotional component of what America should be . . . . We need somebody who’s got the heart—the empathy—to recognize what it’s like to be a black teenager mom, the empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor or African-American or gay or disabled or old—and that’s the criteria by which I’ll be selecting my judges.

He spoke very well in that quote about the empathy those of us who were elected ought to have, but I think he spoke incorrectly about what judges should have. And when the President then nominated Judge Sotomayor to the Supreme Court, he did that with the belief that she meets his empathy standard.

President Obama’s empathy standard has been widely criticized as contrary to the proper role of judges—and that is my point—that a judge’s empathy standard necessarily commotes standards of impartiality. That is a very radical departure from our American tradition of blind impartial justice. In fact, even Judge Sotomayor repudiated President Obama’s empathy standard at her confirmation hearing. A judge’s impartiality is so critical to his or her duty as an officer in an independent judiciary that it is a central concern for the judicial branch, notably the Supreme Court or a Supreme Court Justice.

While justice is not an automated or mechanical process, it also is not a process that permits a patchwork of cases where the outcome is determined not by the law but by the judge’s personal predilections. Judges may differ on what the law is, but they should never do so because of a difference in ideology or because of their empathy for one of the parties. An empathy standard for judging would betray the very cause of equality that it purports to champion by creating classes among our citizens in the eyes of the law. That is what is so dangerous about President Obama’s standard and why we should be cautious in deferring to his choices for the judicial branch. That is why we should consider the nature and character of the nominees based on their fidelity to the rule of law and not on some well-intentioned hope or belief that the personal biases they will rely on in judging will be the right ones.

Unfortunately, Judge Sotomayor’s views on the nature of a judge and judicial decisionmaking process that are quite contrary to what our American tradition demands of the judiciary and our system of justice.

I will cite a few troubling statements she has made. She questioned “whether achieving the goal of impartiality is possible at all in even most cases” and also “whether by ignoring our differences as men, women, people of color, we do a disservice to both the law and the society.”

She promoted identity politics where she openly admitted that “[my experiences] will affect the facts I choose to see and that I will never accept that . . . judge[s] must not deny the differences resulting from experience and heritage.”

She claimed that the court of appeals is where “policy is made.”

She said that a “wise Latina would more often than not reach a better conclusion than a white male.”

She disagreed with a statement by Justice O’Connor that “a wise old man and a wise old woman would eventually reach the same conclusion in a case.”

She said that “unless American courts are more open to discussing the ideas raised by foreign cases, and by international causes of trying to lose influence in the world,” as if it is for the Supreme Court Justices to worry about our influence in the world. It seems to me the chief diplomat of our country is the President of the United States. She urged judges to look to foreign law so they can get their “creative juices” flowing.

At her confirmation hearing, Judge Sotomayor attempted to distance herself from these statements at the Judiciary Committee hearing. She tried to distance herself from these statements at the Judiciary Committee hearing.

She openly admitted that “[my experience] will affect the facts I choose to see and that I will never accept that . . . judge[s] must not deny the differences resulting from experience and heritage.”

I was not the only one who had problems reconciling what Judge Sotomayor said at the hearing with the statements she has made over and over throughout the years. That is because the statements made at the hearings and those made in speeches and in law review articles outside the hearing are polar opposites. Some of her explanations were contrived or far-fetched. In my opinion, these statements in her writings and speeches cannot be reconciled with her hearing testimony. I sincerely hope that Judge Sotomayor is not the person I am to believe. She appears to be Justice Ginsburg in her speeches and writings but made statements like Chief Justice Roberts in her confirmation hearing.

So I think the Washington Post’s conclusions are worth repeating:

Judge Sotomayor’s attempts to explain away and distance herself from that [wise old man and wise old woman will eventually reach the same conclusion in a case] statement were, that we are not close to disingenuous, especially when she argued that her reason for raising questions about gender or race was to warn against injecting personal beliefs into the discussion of issues.
I am not only troubled by the speeches and writings of the judge—these were produced during her time as a sitting judge on the Second Circuit—and her contradictory statements before the Judiciary Committee but I also have concerns with cases Judge Sotomayor decided when she sat on the Second Circuit. Some cases raise serious concerns about whether Judge Sotomayor will adequately protect the second amendment right to bear arms and the fifth amendment property rights.

Statements she made at the hearing raise concerns that she will not appropriately create or expand rights under the Constitution. Other cases raise concerns about whether she will impose her personal policy decisions instead of the Constitution. In fact, those of the legislative or executive branch. In addition, Judge Sotomayor’s track record on the Supreme Court is not a particularly good one. She has been reversed 8 out of 10 times and was criticized in another of the 10 cases. At the hearing, Judge Sotomayor was asked about her understanding of rights under the Constitution, including the second and fifth amendments and the right to privacy. She was asked about her personal sympathies and prejudices when ruling on hard cases dealing with important constitutional rights.

With respect to the Ricci case, I wasn’t persuaded by Judge Sotomayor’s claims that she followed precedent, nor her explanation as to why she could dismiss such a significant case in summary fashion. The only reason this case found its way to the Supreme Court was because the Second Circuit colleague read about it in the newspaper, recognized its importance, and asked to have it reconsidered. When the Supreme Court reversed Judge Sotomayor’s decision, it held that there was no “strong basis in evidence” to support her opinion. In fact, her legal reasoning in Ricci was so flawed, all nine Justices rejected it.

With respect to the Maloney case, I was concerned with Judge Sotomayor’s explanation of the decision. It appears that the second amendment right to bear arms is not “fundamental,” as well as her claims that she was simply following Supreme Court and Seventh Circuit precedent. I was also concerned with her refusal to affirm that Americans have a right of self-defense. If Maloney is upheld by the Supreme Court, the second amendment will not apply against State and local governments, thus permitting potentially unrestricted limitations on this important constitutional right.

With respect to the Didden case, I was troubled with Judge Sotomayor’s failure to understand that her decision dramatically and inappropriately expands the ability of State, local, and Federal Governments to seize private property under the Constitution. In fact, based on the Didden holding, it is not clear whether there are any limits to the ability of State, local, and Federal Governments to take private property. I was also concerned with Judge Sotomayor’s mischaracterization of the Supreme Court’s holding in Kelo. And I wasn’t satisfied with her explanation of why she summarily dismissed the property owner’s claims based on the statute of limitations. I don’t think these concerns are off the mark—the Didden case has been described as “probably the most extreme anti-property rights ruling by any federal court since Kelo.”

So Judge Sotomayor’s discussion of landmark Supreme Court cases and her own Second Circuit decisions raise questions in my mind about whether she understands and applies the rights given to Americans under the Constitution. I question whether she will refrain from expanding or restricting those rights based on her personal preferences.

Almost two decades ago, then-Judge Souter during his confirmation hearing spoke about courts “filling vacancies” in the law. That discussion struck me as odd and troubled me, because clearly it is not the role of a court to fill voids in the law left by Congress. Although Judge Sotomayor troubled me on his courts “filling vacancies” statement when I pressed him about it, I believe that his decisions on the Supreme Court actually reveal that he does believe courts can and do fill vacancies in the law. It is no secret that I regret my vote to confirm him. And because of that, I have asked several Supreme Court nominees about the propriety of judges “filling vacancies” in the law at their confirmation hearings. This question shouldn’t have come as a surprise to Judge Sotomayor. I asked her about it at her confirmation hearing. Unfortunately, I wasn’t satisfied with her lukewarm answers to my question. In fact, it just reinforced the concerns I had with her hearing testimony, cases, speeches and writings.

Judge Sotomayor has overcome many obstacles to get to where she is today. There is no doubt that Judge Sotomayor is an engaging, talented, intelligent woman. She has tremendous legal intellect and good qualities. I very much enjoyed meeting with her and getting to know her personally. But I can’t just base my decision on these things. I have to look at her judicial philosophy and determine whether I believe it is one that is appropriate for the Supreme Court. That is my constitutional responsibility. And based on her answers at the hearing and her decisions, writings, and speeches, I am not comfortable with that outcome. For that reason, I will not be able to support Judge Sotomayor’s nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. UDALL of New Mexico). The Senator from Rhode Island.

MR. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that this hour under Democratic control be divided in the following manner: Reed of Rhode Island, 15 minutes; Senator CARPER, 10 minutes; Senator KERRY, 10 minutes; Senator MENDENHELD, 5 minutes; Senator SCHUMER, 5 minutes; Senator Nelson of Florida, 3 minutes; and Senator BOXER, 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MR. REED. Mr. President, the nomination of Supreme Court of Appeals is where “pol- icy is made,” or is it the nominee who pledged “fidelity to the law?” Is it the judge who disagreed with Justice O’Connor’s statement that a wise woman and a wise man will ultimately reach the same decision, or is it the nominee who rejected President Obama’s empathy standard? Only time will tell.

Mr. CORKER. Madam President, Judge Sonia Sotomayor has an impressive background, an inspiring American story. She is a testament to the power of a strong work ethic and a focus on education and is a role model to many Americans as a result. I enjoyed meeting with her in June and found her to be very intelligent and eloquent in expressing her thoughts. I let her know I would reserve judgment on her nomination until the conclusion of a fair and thorough hearing process.

For this reason, I am disappointed to say, I will not be able to support Judge Sotomayor’s nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. UDALL of New Mexico). The Senator from Rhode Island.

MR. REED. Mr. President, the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor to replace Associate Justice David Souter is of great importance. The Supreme Court is the ultimate arbiter of justice in the land. Therefore, this is one of the most consequential votes that any Senator can cast.

The Constitution makes the Senate an active participant, along with the President, in the confirmation of a Supreme Court judge. Article II, section 2, clause 2 of the Constitution states that nominees to the Supreme Court shall only be confirmed “by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate.” The Senate’s role in the confirmation process places an important democratic check on the President’s judicial nominations. As a result, this body’s consent is both a constitutional requirement and a democratic obligation. It is in upholding our constitutional duties as Senators to give the President advice and consent on his nominations that I believe we have one of our greatest opportunities and responsibilities to support and defend the Constitution of the United States.

As I have said before, in weighing a nominee’s qualifications for the Court, we must consider an individual’s intellectual gifts, experience, judgment, maturity and temperament. Judge Sotomayor’s compelling life story demonstrates that she possesses each of these qualities.

She overcame early adversity—with the loss of her father, a diagnosis of juvenile diabetes—to become an accomplished student at her high school. She went on to Princeton, where she excelled both inside and outside of the classroom, receiving the school’s highest academic prize upon graduation.

From there she became a stellar student at Yale Law School and served on its prestigious law journal. Upon graduating from Yale, Judge Sotomayor surely had a number of very lucrative options available to her. It is a testament to her early commitment to public service that she chose to serve 5 years as assistant district attorney in New York.

By all accounts, she was a zealous and thorough prosecutor and demonstrated the same rigor and commitment to excellence that have been her hallmark throughout her career.

Judge Sotomayor is extremely qualified for this role. As a Supreme Court Justice, Judge Sotomayor would bring to bear her rich and varied real-world experience. She has been a big-city prosecutor. She has been an attorney at the bar, and she also knows what it means to be an appellate judge. Judge Sotomayor would make history as only the third female Justice and the first Hispanic Justice. Moreover, she has stated that her trial experience has prepared her well to serve on the Supreme Court. It is a simple test, one drawn from the text, the history and the principles of the Constitution.
confident that Judge Sotomayor’s intelligence, her character forged by her extraordinary background and experience, and her profound respect for the law and the craft of judges make her an exceptionally well-qualified nominee to the Supreme Court and we urge her speedy confirmation.

Mr. REED. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARPER. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I rise in support of Judge Sonia Sotomayor’s confirmation to the U.S. Supreme Court. Those of us who are privileged to serve in the Senate cast literally thousands of votes during our years here. We take many votes that crucial and important. But a handful of them are far more meaningful than others. These votes have historic consequences, ones which will resonate for years—in some cases, for decades—to come. This is one of those votes.

This is my third opportunity to vote on a Supreme Court nominee. On the previous two occasions, we faced different circumstances in which I had to decide whether to vote for or against candidates who were nominated by a President not of my party, nominees who may not have shared my political beliefs or my judicial philosophy. Similar to my colleagues, I take seriously our constitutional obligation to provide advice and consent to determine whether a President’s nominees truly merit a lifetime appointment.

In each of those two earlier cases, I considered my decision carefully and deliberately. In one of those cases, that of now-Chief Justice John Roberts, I chose to support the President’s selection. I did not. Reasonable people can disagree about the nominee before us this week. I certainly respect the views of my friends on the other side of the aisle who may ultimately vote against Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation. But, first, I wish to explain why I am supporting Judge Sotomayor and, second, I want to encourage my Republican colleagues to support her nomination as well.

In 2005, I voted to confirm Judge John Roberts to become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. I admitted it was a close call, at least it was for me. Ultimately, I chose to take what I described at that time as a ‘leap of faith.’

Chief Justice Roberts holds political and legal opinions that are not consistent totally with mine in a number of respects. I knew he would sometimes deliver decisions I might not fully agree with. But after carefully considering his testimony, meeting with him at some length personally and talking to a number of his colleagues—colleagues who knew him well and colleagues who had worked closely with him in the past—I concluded that John Roberts would prove to be a worthy successor to retiring Chief Justice Rehnquist, and I think he has.

In short, by supporting John Roberts’ nomination, I voted my hopes, not my fears. And, instead of my fears in the case of then-Judge, now-Chief Justice Roberts, I hope many of our friends and colleagues on the other side of the aisle will see their way clear to doing the same in this instance.

Before coming to the Senate, I served as Governor of Delaware. As Governor, I nominated dozens of—actually scores of—men and women to serve as judges in our State courts. The qualities I sought in the judicial nominees whom I submitted to the Delaware State Senate included unimpeachable integrity, a thorough understanding of the law, a keen intellect, a willingness to listen to both sides of a case, sound judicial temperament,Beerntsen, and a strong work ethic.

These are qualities that still guide me as I decide how to vote on judicial nominees in the Senate. In applying each, just as I voted my hopes in support of Judge Sotomayor during the course of my examination of her record, it is clear to me she meets or exceeds all of them.

First, consider her experience. Judge Sotomayor’s compelling life story—a story that confirms her work ethic and informs her judicial temperament. In June of this year, I had the pleasure of meeting personally with Judge Sotomayor. We spoke at length about her early service, and her life. We talked about our respective childhoods, our respective educational opportunities, and our careers. It was a revealing conversation, and her responses were forthright. They were insightful. And they were sincere.

The nominee before us truly highlights the diversity of the country in which we live. We know her story by name. She was born in the South Bronx to Puerto Rican parents. Her father had limited education and did not speak English. Her mom worked 6 days a week to support her family and instilled in her the importance of a quality education. Judge Sotomayor excelled in school and went on to attend Princeton University on a scholarship. She later went on to Yale Law School, where she served as an editor of the Yale Law Journal.

I have met many people in my life who have built themselves up from nothing. Unfortunately, I have found that a number of them—maybe many of them—seem to have forgotten where they came from and who they are. In contrast, I am pleased to say that Sonia Sotomayor has not forgotten. When we met, she told me she was ‘still Sonia from the projects.’ Despite all her success, she still has not forgotten her roots. Let me say, I find that enormously refreshing and encouraging.

After law school, Sonia Sotomayor served as an assistant district attorney in New York. During her 5 years in that position, she tried dozens of major criminal cases and became known, in the words of Robert Morgenthau—who was then, and still remains, the district attorney in Manhattan—as a ‘tough, smart, and effective attorney.’

Starting in 1984, Sonia Sotomayor spent 8 years in private practice. As a civil and international corporate litigator, she gained considerable experience in the private sector, handling cases involving everything from real estate to contract law, from intellectual property to banking.

Then, in 1992, with bipartisan support, Sonia Sotomayor began her service to this country in the Federal judiciary. She was nominated to serve as a Federal district judge, not by a Democrat but by a Republican, President George Herbert Walker Bush, and was unanimously—unanimously—confirmed by this Senate.

Six years later, when Democratic President Bill Clinton nominated her to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, she received the support of 25 of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle. Their vote of confidence in Judge Sotomayor then has since been confirmed by her reputation for moderation and impartiality.

The Second Circuit is considered by many to have one of the most demanding caseloads in our Nation. Judge Sotomayor participated in over 3,000 decisions and has written more than 230 opinions for the majority. During her time on the bench, she examined difficult issues of constitutional law, complex business disputes, and high-profile criminal cases.

Judge Sotomayor brings more Federal judicial experience to the Supreme Court than any Justice confirmed in the last 100 years.

As a Federal judge for nearly two decades, Sonia Sotomayor has demonstrated a clear commitment to unbiassed, impartial justice and to the rule of law. Unlike some nominees for the Federal bench, with Judge Sotomayor, we can see a long paper trail of her legal rulings.

Her record reveals that she consistently takes each case on its own merits—regardless of the ideological outcome—and narrowly applies the law to the particular facts. She may even be more of a strict constructionist, when it comes to applying the law, than many of the Justices we have had to rely on.

Quite frankly, she is a model of judicial restraint.

As a circuit court judge, Sonia Sotomayor is known as a moderate who agrees with her more conservative colleagues far more than she disagrees with them. One of her colleagues on the Second Circuit, Richard C. Wesley, himself an appointee of George W. Bush, had this to say about her:

Sonia is an outstanding colleague with a keen legal mind. She brings a wealth of knowledge and hard work to our collegial endeavors on our court. It is both a pleasure and an honor to serve with her.
Another Second Circuit colleague, Judge Roger Miner, who was appointed by President Ronald Reagan, described Judge Sotomayor as an “excellent choice,” saying:

I don’t think I’d go as far as to classify her in one camp or another. I think she just deserves the classification of outstanding judge.

And the Second Circuit’s current chief judge, Dennis Jacobs, appointed by the first President Bush, said:

Sonia Sotomayor is a well-loved colleague on our bench from every point of view knows that she is fair and decent in all her dealings. The fact is, she is truly a superior human being.

The strength of Judge Sotomayor’s record and reputation is perhaps why, to some extent, many critics have focused almost exclusively on one or two legal rulings, and on a line from a speech she gave years ago. But I do not find much to agree with in these criticisms. But even if I did, it does not seem fair to me that she should be judged on those few items alone. These few quibbles need to be put in the context of her lifetime of work.

Of all people—of all people—we in the Senate should understand the importance of the voices of our colleagues, whether we have served here for 12 years or 24 years or for 50 years, such as Robert Byrd has done, we will vote thousands of times. As many of us know from personal experience, it is easy to take one vote or one decision or one line from one of our speeches completely out of context and make us appear to be someone we are not or to stand for something that is entirely alien to our beliefs and values. It has happened to me. I suspect it has happened to most, if not all, of our colleagues. I might add, I believe that is what has happened to the nominee before us today.

As a result, I believe it is incumbent upon us to examine carefully a nominee’s overall record, much as I hope the people of Delaware will consider my vote when they cast their votes every 6 years.

If nothing else, Judge Sotomayor’s extensive record demonstrates she sticks to the law. Perhaps that is why, in part, the American Bar Association has given this judge, this nominee, its top rating of “well qualified” in assessing her record and in evaluating her judicial temperament.

For all these reasons—and more—I rise today to announce my full support for the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be our Nation’s 11th Supreme Court Justice. I am proud of Judge Sotomayor’s dedication to her country, and I am impressed by her outstanding accomplishments. Today marks the 11th Supreme Court Justice to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

With that, I say thank you to the Presiding Officer and yield the floor. Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I have never missed a vote on a nomination for a Supreme Court Justice in my time in the Senate. Today, I will vote to support the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor. I submitted questions to Judge Sotomayor on matters of great importance to the preservation of congressional power: the constitutional grant of the purse strings to the Congress; the role and responsibility of the legislative branch to conduct oversight and investigation; and the deliberate restraints on the executive branch created by the Constitution’s separation of powers. I found her answers thoughtful, her intellect keen, and that Judge Sotomayor possessed the requisite reverence—and patience—for the process outlined in Article II, section 2 of the Constitution.

I watched the hearings intently; I studied Judge Sotomayor’s words. What struck me about the Judiciary Committee’s hearings was the dearth of inquiry into her judicial record. Indeed, her record is certainly substantial; the most substantial record I have seen in some time. But, instead of delving into her many opinions, or questioning her jurisprudence, Judge Sotomayor was asked the same few questions over and over, needlessly.

The tendency to grandstand is hardly a partisan thing. The Senate’s ability to question a judge is a precious gift from our Founding Fathers—a check on the Judiciary and on the Executive. While the President may nominate, the advice and consent of the Senate is required for confirmation. But, in this particular instance, partisan trifles took the place of constitutional probing. Statements were taken out of context, while volumes of Judge Sotomayor’s judicial record went unexamined and unexplored. Unfortunately, by not probing, the Senate shirks its responsibilities.

Judge Sotomayor’s story is similar to my own story. Much like my own journey from the southern coalfields of Raleigh County to the U.S. Senate, Judge Sotomayor overcame tremendous adversity through determination and hard work.

Judge Sotomayor will be confirmed by the Senate. That is a good thing. I hope that we as a body will reflect on the nomination and confirmation processes as envisioned in the Constitution, and ask ourselves whether we can do a better job in living up to the spirit of the law in the future.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. President, I rise today to announce my full support for the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be our Nation’s 11th Supreme Court Justice. I am proud of Judge Sotomayor’s dedication to her country, and I am impressed by her outstanding accomplishments. Today marks the historic occasion for our country, as Judge Sotomayor becomes the first Hispanic ever to serve on the highest Court in the land.

For all these reasons—and more—I invite my conservative colleagues on the other side of the aisle to take a leap of faith, as I did a few years ago with John Roberts—as I did 4 years ago—and join me in casting their vote in favor of Judge Sotomayor’s nomination to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today to announce my full support for the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be our Nation’s 11th Supreme Court Justice. I am proud of Judge Sotomayor’s dedication to her country, and I am impressed by her outstanding accomplishments. Today marks the historic occasion for our country, as Judge Sotomayor becomes the first Hispanic ever to serve on the highest Court in the land.

The decision of whether to confirm a nominee for a lifetime appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court is one of the most important the Senate has. The only time a Senator will have an opportunity to vote on the Supreme Court is the first time, when the President nominates and the Senate confirms. This decision will affect generations of Americans for years to come.

After 24 years of service to the people of West Virginia as their U.S. Senator, the nomination of Judge Sotomayor marks the 11th Supreme Court nominee under five Presidents that I have had the opportunity to consider. I have supported most nominees, but have opposed those nominees to whom I would have had to construe my decision after a careful and thorough process, and the same is true of my support for Judge Sotomayor.

The first question that must be answered about any nominee is: Does he or she possess the intellect, experience, and temperament to serve on the Supreme Court? For Judge Sotomayor, the clear answer is yes.

Her educational and professional background is impeccable. She was valedictorian of her high school class, graduated summa cum laude from Princeton University, and served as an editor of the Yale Law Journal while attending Yale Law School. Judge Sotomayor has served with distinction on both the federal and judicial system as a prosecutor, civil litigator, district court judge, and appeals court judge. In her confirmation hearings before the Judiciary Committee, she showed herself to be an even-tempered and honest person, as well as a straightforward and critical thinker.

But once a nominee’s impressive credentials and integrity are established, my analysis of his or her fitness to serve on the Supreme Court cannot end there. The tremendous responsibility that all Justices have to the Constitution—and their decisions’ impact on all Americans requires further consideration of the nominee’s core beliefs about our country and our justice system.

Before supporting a nominee, I need to know that he or she understands the consequences of the Supreme Court’s decisions. I need to know that he or she will protect the best interests of West Virginians. And I need to know that he or she will uphold the fundamental rights and freedoms that all Americans enjoy under the Constitution and in our laws.

Every American needs to know that our courthouse doors are open for everyone, not just the wealthy, the powerful, or the well-connected. The Founders intended our courts to serve as a place where all citizens can go to resolve disputes, seek relief from injustices, and hold wrongdoers accountable. As members of our court of last resort, Supreme Court Justices have a particularly important role in upholding our constitutional freedoms, even when lawmakers or public opinion would limit them. And we cannot afford to hire an attorney; or Brown v. Board of Education, in which the Court struck down racial segregation in our Judges have been appointed to the Federal bench in 1992 by President George H.W. Bush, she has more Federal judicial experience than any nominee in history. And Judge Sotomayor’s record shows that she is not an activist and has not legislated from the bench. She has faithfully adhered to precedent. In fact, the nonpartisan Congressional Research Service, CRS, found that “perhaps the most consistent characteristic of Judge Sotomayor’s approach as an appellate judge has been adherence to the doctrine of stare decisis (i.e., the upholding of past judicial precedents).”

Further, CRS found that Sotomayor has exhibited “a careful application of particular facts at issue in a case and a dislike for situations in which the court might be seen as overstepping its judicial role.”

Finally, Judge Sotomayor has the temperament to serve on the Supreme Court. Her grueling nomination hearings demonstrated her patience, thoughtfulness and composure in the face of tough and aggressive questioning by almost 20 Senators over several days.

Those same qualities of character were evident during our personal meeting. In her humble and open-minded manner, she stated that she could relate to people from more rural areas like myself. She understands everyday people and their struggles, she has common sense, and she is not a stranger to hard work and the need to overcome obstacles. In short, I believe she learned the same values and the same lessons growing up in the Bronx that I learned growing up in Bismarck.

Some Senators have announced their intention to vote against Judge Sotomayor, but their criticism has not been based on a comprehensive assessment of her qualifications. As an appellate judge, her 17 years of service and over 3000 decisions and authored over 450 cases. As an appellate judge, Judge Sotomayor herself has admitted that she could have phrase some of her comments in these areas more effectively or appropriately. But when taken in their full context, her remarks seem to be primarily an expression of support for the Second Amendment and the notion that a diversity of backgrounds has made us a stronger and better nation. Perhaps more importantly, there is no evidence whatsoever that her personal views have improperly influenced her decisions in the courtroom.

There are also questions whether Judge Sotomayor’s views on gun rights, and, in particular, whether or not she believes the second amendment restricts the right of individual States to regulate firearms. Despite the concerns that have been raised, a careful reading of her judicial record indicates that she has been very much in the judicial mainstream on gun issues. And she clearly stated during her confirmation hearings that she has a completely open mind on the specific question of how the second amendment should be applied to the States. I take her at her word, and it is my hope that the Supreme Court will do the same. The second amendment protects the rights of gun owners and users against intrusion by State laws.

When voting on judges, all we can do is try to determine whether or not their accomplishments reflect and reinforce or his or her intellect and character, and decide whether or he is or she is qualified to serve on the bench. I have consistently followed that approach in the past, most recently in voting to confirm Chief Justice Roberts and Associate Justice Alito. Using the same standards I applied to those nominations, I believe Sonia Sotomayor is eminently qualified for a place on the Supreme Court, and I am proud to support her nomination.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, there are few decisions that have a more lasting effect on our democracy than fulfilling my constitutional duty of advice and consent for Justices of the Supreme Court. This body will assume the decision to confirm or deny her appointment. Once again today as we consider the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to fill a seat on the Supreme Court that has been vacated by Justice David Souter. She is the third woman to be nominated to the Supreme Court and the first nominee to be of Hispanic descent. This will be the third time that I have cast a vote in regards to a Supreme Court Justice. The previous two times were for current Chief Justice Roberts and current Associate Justice Alito. Both of these Justices were appointed by former President George W. Bush. I voted in favor of both of these nominees even though their ideologies often differ from my own. They are true to the principles of the Constitution and while our philosophies may differ, they both are, and were, within the broad mainstream of contemporary jurisprudence.

It is within this mainstream that I find Judge Sonia Sotomayor. Her career as a jurist is a model of integrity and discipline. Her judicial philosophy is rooted in precedent and a devotion to the law. Judge Sotomayor has consistently been a judge who has interpreted the law and while our philosophies may differ, they both are, and were, within the broad mainstream of contemporary jurisprudence.

Sotomayor distinguished herself as an able jurist who relied on precedent. I reviewed her record and did not find anything that would deter me from that belief. The same can be said of her testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee during her confirmation hearings. She made clear that she does not inject personal bias in her decision making process and I trust her at her word.

Often, I think that this process has become too politicized and Judge Sotomayor is highly qualified and able to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. Opposition for opposition’s sake is not constructive to our national dialogue.

However, while I believe the President should have some latitude in selecting judges this does not mean that those nominees should be ideologues that stand outside of conventional judicial theory. Most Americans do not sit on the ends of the political spectrum but within the middle. I believe that Judge Sotomayor is within the mainstream, and I support Judge Sotomayor to be Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court and look forward to casting my vote in favor of this historic nominee.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, today I rise to address one of the most significant and far reaching decisions a Senator makes: The vote on a confirmation of a Supreme Court Justice. This vote will have an immense impact on future Supreme Court decisions. A Supreme Court is called upon to make two decisions that are irrevocable; one is the decision to go to war and the other is the confirmation of the members of the Supreme Court.

The people of Maryland have entrusted in me the right to make this decision and I take this responsibility very seriously.

When I decide how I will vote on any nominee for the Federal bench, I have three criteria. First, the nominee must possess the highest personal and professional integrity. Second, the nominee must have the competence and temperament to serve as a judge. Finally, the nominee must demonstrate a clear commitment to core constitutional principles. Judge Sonia Sotomayor passes all those tests with flying colors.

If confirmed, Sonia Sotomayor would be the third woman to serve on the Supreme Court and the first Hispanic on the bench. She has a compelling personal story, as well as a distinguished judicial record. Her father was a tool-and-die worker with third grade education who served at almost every level of the judiciary, and her legal career show that she is a brilliant woman with a breadth and depth of legal experience. She has been a prosecutor, an attorney in private practice, a trial court judge, and an appellate judge. I am particularly impressed by her record on the bench, where she has earned a reputation as a tough on crime, fair on the facts and the law, respectful of precedent, and mindful of the limited role of the judiciary.

Judge Sotomayor has won praise for her record. She has been an activist dedicated to enforcing the law. She has carried out this pledge. Her 17-year record shows she is a moderate judge who respects judicial precedent. In fact, 95 percent of her decisions have been favored by Republican appointees on the Second Circuit and she is well known for her judicial restraint.

In sum, Sonia Sotomayor is an outstanding nominee to the highest court in the United States and an inspiration to all Americans. She is living proof that the American dream can be achieved. She is the daughter of hard working immigrants. The obstacles, went to Ivy League schools on scholarship, and has served for over 17 years as a Federal judge.

For nearly two decades, Sonia Sotomayor has been a sharp and fearless trial judge. In 1992, President George H.W. Bush nominated Judge Sotomayor to serve as a Federal district judge and she was unanimously confirmed by the Senate. As a Federal district court judge, she heard over 450 cases during 6 years as trial judge and ruled against Major League Baseball owners to end the baseball strike. She was then nominated by President Clinton to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and confirmed by the Senate on a vote of 69-29.

Judge Sotomayor has pledged fidelity to the law, and her extensive record of upholding the law as a trial and appellate judge is a concrete example of how she has carried out this pledge. Her 17-year record provides evidence of a restrained and mainstream judicial philosophy. Judges, on the other hand, must show respect for the laws and Constitution of The United States and deference to settled law and precedent. The role of a judge is to adjudicate impartially; and the impartial application of justice should be devoid of personal views and political agendas.

Second Circuit Court of Appeals. Only than 3,000 cases as a member of the law.

Sotomayor has decided, it is clear to me that her opinions were informed by the law as he or she sees fit. And while I may not personally agree with the outcome of a case. I will make an important contribution to a more bipartisan approach to our judicial nominations, which to my disappointment has affected both the tenor of the debate and the outcome of the vote. The Senate confirmed Chief Justice Roberts with 22 dissenting votes, and Justice Alito was confirmed with 42 dissenting votes. In 2005, the nomination process became so polarized that I joined with 13 of my colleagues to form the Gang of 14 to prevent the shutdown of the Senate over partisan positioning with respect to appeals court nominees. I commend the Judiciary Committee for presiding over a cordial and fair hearing process for Judge Sotomayor, but as in all things, I wish the Senate could return to a more bipartisan approach to our constitutional responsibility to provide advice and consent.

As a Senator, I have taken very seriously my role to responsibly, thoughtfully, and thoroughly review a nominee’s qualifications and record. After examining her record, meeting personally with her, and observing the Judiciary Committee hearings, I am convinced that Judge Sotomayor will make an important contribution on the Supreme Court. I wish her well in her new role.

I thank the Senate for this opportunity to offer my perspective on this historic nomination. Mr. DORGAN, Mr. President, I will vote to confirm the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. Let me explain why I am supporting her.

Judge Sotomayor’s impressive life story is an American story of working hard and making the most of every opportunity. She grew up in a housing project in the South Bronx nurtured by a working mother who instilled in her the values of America. She understood that education was the key to unlocking the greatness that is available in our country. She won a scholarship to Princeton University, where she graduated with highest honors. But she did not stop there. She then attended one of America’s finest law schools, where she also excelled and was a member of the prestigious Law Review.

In addition to her extraordinary academic achievements, Judge Sotomayor’s many work experiences in the legal profession make her ideally suited to be a Supreme Court Justice. She has been a prosecutor, an attorney in private practice, a trial judge and an appellate court judge. She has been a Federal judge for more than 17 years. When she is confirmed, she will have had more judicial experience than any other Supreme Court Justice in more than 100 years, and she will be the only justice on this Supreme Court to have had experience as a trial judge. The knowledge she has gained over those many years will serve her, the Court, and our country well.

After reviewing her career on the bench and closely following her confirmation hearings, I have concluded that Judge Sotomayor is sincere in her commitment to apply the law, rather than to make the law. Her record shows that she cannot be fairly labeled “left” or “right.” For many years, she has looked at the facts and law of the many cases that have come before her and she has called them as she sees them without regard for anything else. Her record clearly demonstrates that she is a moderate, mainstream judge with great respect for the law, our Constitution, our country, and its institutions.

In my own meeting with Judge Sotomayor, I found her to be intelligent, measured, deliberate, and thoughtful. Judge Sotomayor assured me that she holds no set-tled law. The more than 3,000 cases she has participated in support that conclusion as well.

This extensive record, and all of her experiences in life and law, likely explain the remarkable breadth and scope of people and organizations, many from opposite ends of the political and ideological spectrum, supporting her nomination. For example, the Chamber of Commerce and labor unions support her as well as numerous police organizations and defense lawyers. These are not natural allies, but they have seen what I have seen: a person of exceptional intelligence, wide-ranging experience, and a commitment to even-handedly and fairly applying the law without fear or favor.

This is also demonstrated by her appointments to the bench. It is telling that Judge Sotomayor was first appointed to the Federal bench by President George H. W. Bush, who nominated her to the District Court for the Southern District of New York. Judge Sotomayor was then promoted by President Clinton to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. It is rare indeed to have a judge nominated by Presidents of both parties, and this is a testament to Judge Sotomayor’s intellect, impartiality, and judicial conduct.

A Supreme Court appointment is for life and many Justices serve for decades, but their influence does not stop there. They write opinions that will have an effect on the law of the land for many decades even after they leave the Court. That is why I take my duty as a Senator to confirm a President’s nomination for the Court so seriously, as I have done here.

One of the things that makes our country great and an inspiration to so many throughout the world is our commitment to “Equal Justice Under Law,” which is carved in marble over the entrance to the Supreme Court. Equal justice means that, under our law, who you are does not matter; who you know or are connected to does not matter; how much money you have or do not have does not matter; the color of your skin, your ethnicity, your gender or any other personal characteristic does not matter. The facts of a case and the applicable law are all that matter in our justice system. That is why we say “Equal Justice Under Law” means in our country and to our country.

I am confident that “Equal Justice Under Law” will inform and animate Judge Sotomayor’s decisions throughout her tenure on the Supreme Court. If one looks with an open and fair mind at the full breadth of Judge Sotomayor’s inspiring life, extraordinary career and superb qualifications, as I have, it is clear that she has earned a place on the Supreme Court and I am proud to be supporting her nomination. I have no doubt that our country will be well served by her.

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, more than a century ago, a young couple from Puerto Rico settled down in the Bronx with dreams of a better life. They didn’t have much money, but they had a vision for the future. A vision that their son and daughter might be able to get a good education, find a rewarding job, and live out the full promise of the American dream.

Today, their son Juan is a doctor and university professor near Syracuse, NY.

And their daughter Sonia is about to become the first Latina Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

This family’s story could only take place in America.

But it is not only her remarkably American story that will make Judge Sonia Sotomayor an excellent addition to the Court. Her legal background marks her as the single most qualified Supreme Court nominee in the last 60 years.

After graduating from Princeton University and Yale Law School, she served as an assistant district attorney and then had a successful legal practice of her own.

In 1991, President George H.W. Bush appointed Ms. Sotomayor as the first Hispanic judge on the U.S. District Court in New York State.

Eight years later, President Clinton elevated her to the U.S. Court of Appeals, where she serves today.

Throughout her distinguished career, Judge Sotomayor has been a prudent and thoughtful jurist. She has consistently exhibited the highest standards of fairness, equality, and integrity.

She is a brilliant legal mind and a moderate on the bench. As one can argue with her professional qualifications for this post.

And I believe that her personal background will lend a fresh and dynamic perspective to the highest court in our land.

That is why I was proud to write to President Obama on May 15, urging her nomination.

I am pleased that he shares my high regard for Judge Sotomayor, and I thank him for giving us an eminently qualified nominee to confirm.

When we consider the makeup of the Supreme Court, we seek to build debate, not consensus.

Judge Sotomayor’s uniquely American story will bring diversity to the Court’s rulings.

And it is this diversity—of background, of perspective, of opinion—that will lend legitimacy and integrity to each decision.

As an attorney general of Illinois, I have a deep understanding of these issues.

Every legal opinion should be bound by law and the weight of precedent.

The law must be grounded in sound and dispassionate reasoning, and it is a powerful force in people’s everyday lives.

That is why we need jurists like Sonia Sotomayor on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Because, when five voices come together to render a court decision, it becomes the law of the land.

There is no army, no threat of violence to back it up—just the quiet force of a legal opinion.

That is the wonderful thing about this democracy.

And as a Supreme Court Justice, Sonia Sotomayor will never forget that.

She will be a strong addition to the highest court in our land, and I urge my colleagues to join me in giving her our utmost support.

Let us come together to make history by confirming the first Latina Supreme Court Justice in American history.

Let us renew our commitment to fairness, equality and diversity by confirming the most qualified nominee this Senate has seen in more than half a century.

Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise today with great pride to express my support for the confirmation of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. Today, the Senate will make a historic decision in confirming Judge Sotomayor. She brings a wealth of experience to this lifetime appointment, with 17 years of service on the judicial bench—more than any member of the current court. She has served as a prosecutor, a trial judge, an appellate judge and has also worked as an attorney in the private sector.

In fact, with the retirement of Justice David Souter and the confirmation of Judge Sotomayor, there will be the only justice on the current Supreme Court with experience as a trial judge. This experience gives her a perspective that will be a much-needed addition to the Court.

I am confident today—and I am confident we will—Judge Sotomayor will become the nation’s first Hispanic in history to sit on the highest court in the land, and only the third female Justice. Women, Latinos—and indeed all Americans—can join in celebrating these significant milestones.

Judge Sotomayor embodies the progress our country has achieved, and yet I know she would agree with me that there is much more to be done.

According to the American Bar Association, women comprise 47 percent of all law students, as compared to 1947, when women made up 3 percent of law students. That is significant progress. I think Judge Sotomayor’s appointment will mark the beginning of a new era of steady progress. According to the U.S. Department of Labor, today only about 4 percent of lawyers and 3 percent of judges are of Hispanic descent. Women, Latinos—and indeed all Americans—can join in celebrating these significant milestones.

Judge Sotomayor will serve as an Associate Justice. She will also serve as a tremendous role model for law students and other young people thinking about entering the legal profession and for those who aspire to become judges. Her confirmation and service on the U.S. Supreme Court will serve to accelerate progress into the future.

Like election of the president who appointed her, Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation says to young people of all incomes and backgrounds: You can be anything you want to be.

All of us have been moved by Judge Sotomayor’s personal story—of her upbringing in the Bronx by a working mother, and her rise from those humble beginnings to graduate in one of Princeton University’s first classes to include women. From there she went to Yale Law School, where she excelled, and then to a coveted post—one of the few held by women—in the Office of the Manhattan District Attorney.
With her record of solid experience, clearly Judge Sotomayor is ready to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. In rating Judge Sotomayor, the American Bar Association conducted confidential interviews with a large number of judges and litigants who have worked with her or argued cases in her court. The ABA unanimously found Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be “well qualified,” the highest rating the association can give a judicial nominee.

Judge Sotomayor has received support from Democrats and Republicans, law enforcement groups and civil rights organizations. Among these groups are the Association of Prosecuting Attorneys, National Association of Chiefs of Police, National Fraternal Order of Police, Major Cities Chiefs Association, Women’s Legal Defense and Education Fund, and the NAACP.

I agree with the Hispanic National Bar Association, which said that Judge Sotomayor deserves all the support of Democrats required for service as a Justice and are confident that, when confirmed, she will render fair and impartial justice for all Americans.”

The National Association of Women Lawyers, CRS, stated that “perhaps the most consistent characteristic of Judge Sotomayor’s record, “establishes her lack of gender, racial, ethnic or religious bias and her willingness to maintain and open mind, deciding cases on the record before her.”

Throughout her 17 years on the bench, Judge Sotomayor has shown a respect for established precedent and deference to the role of the elected branches of government. She made this point clear in the meeting I had with her shortly after President Obama nominated her for the post. The nonpartisan Congressional Research Service, CRS, stated that “perhaps the most consistent characteristic of Judge Sotomayor’s approach as an appellate judge is her deference to” existing judicial precedent.

In her meeting with me and in testimony before the Judiciary Committee, Judge Sotomayor repeatedly acknowledged the right to privacy is enshrined in our Constitution. I believe she will preserve that right.

President Obama made a wise choice in selecting Judge Sotomayor to serve on our highest court. She has demonstrated her integrity and intellect throughout the thorough confirmation process. Having followed her confirmation hearings closely, I am confident that Judge Sotomayor not only has a deep understanding of the law and great respect for precedent, I am confident she will make a fine associate justice.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I rise to express my support for the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be an Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Her career on the Federal bench, from the Southern District Court in New York to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, and her personal journey, from a childhood in a housing project in the Bronx, to honors at Princeton University and Yale Law School, are now well known to everybody in the country.

But one of the things that received a small amount of attention in her confirmation hearing are the 5 years—right out of law school—she spent as a prosecutor in the office of legendary Manhattan district attorney Robert M. Morgenthau. It is a reflection of Sonia Sotomayor’s grit, determination, and courage that she took on this challenge at that particular time to serve as an assistant district attorney during one of the most crime-laden periods of New York’s history.

It is not often we get a chance to elevate to the Nation’s highest Court someone who has followed police into shooting galleries, someone who has tracked down witnesses on streets awash in drug-related violence, and someone who has personally taken on witnesses and shredded some of them on cross-examination, and who has personally moved juries to tears in her closing arguments.

It is not often we get a chance to confirm a Supreme Court nominee who does not come from what Chairman PAT LEAHY likes to call the “judicial monastery.” But rather we have a chance to confirm someone who has the experience, perspective, and understanding of how the world works within our system of law as a practitioner and also having seen what is like for those who try to enforce the law at the street level, our police, our law enforcement officials, and also in seeing what happens to victims and families drawn into the system unwillingly.

Judge Sotomayor certainly was not in a “judicial monastery” when she began her practice of putting criminals behind bars in New York. I believe experience will prove of enormous value to somebody on the Supreme Court—someone who can go there understanding what it means to work 12-hour days as a prosecutor struggling to put together a case with reluctant witnesses, with police who have a difficult time coming to the courthouse, and, obviously, with experience in interpreting the fifth amendment, fourth amendment rights with respect to search and seizure and personal incrimination.

One of her cases, in particular, stands out, which is the 1983 so-called Tarzan Murderer case, involving a man who broke into apartments, sometimes by swinging from rooftops, robbing the residents, and then shooting them for no apparent reason. It was Judge Sotomayor’s first homicide case and also her first homicide conviction. The defendant, Richard Maddicks, went to prison for 62½ years.

Judge Sotomayor said the case affected her as no other; that it underscored for her how crime destroys families and how prosecutors “must be sensitive to the price that crime imposes on our society.” I believe, having been a prosecutor, those are lessons I learned also firsthand and did not come automatically to the bar with a sensitivity to.

As much as I admire her work as a New York prosecutor, that experience alone, obviously, does not qualify her for confirmation to the Supreme Court. But I think it is an important experience. I think it says a lot about her approach to the law and what she is willing to fight for.

There are, obviously, few things we do that are as important as confirming a Supreme Court Justice, and especially now with the Court so evenly divided. So this is a pivotal moment for the Court. The direction our country will take for the next 30 years is being determined now by this debate.

A vote for Judge Sotomayor is a vote for each of our personal understandings of the Constitution, of the laws of the land, and of what we think is important with respect to the application of the rights and freedoms that define this country. That is what this vote is. It is a vote to protect the basic rights and freedoms that are important to every American, and I would say, especially, privacy, equality, and justice.

Consider, for example, the case of Lilly Ledbetter and Diana Levine as an example of how just one Supreme Court appointment can affect the lives and freedoms of countless Americans. In the Ledbetter case, the Court’s nine Justices granted immunity to employers who discriminate against workers in matters of salary. It took a new Congress and a new President to strike down the Court’s ruling in the continuing effort to ensure that all Americans—women and men—receive equal pay for equal work.

I have voted for Supreme Court nominees in the past, when it was clear to me they would protect those constitutional rights and freedoms. And I have voted against Supreme Court nominees, when it was clear to me they would not protect those rights and freedoms.

So we have to ask ourselves: What direction will this nominee take the Supreme Court? Will this nominee protect the civil rights and liberties enshrined in the Constitution and protected by law that we have fought for and hard? Will the Senate support Congress’s power to enact critical legislation—sometimes defining those rights? Will the nominee be an effective check on the executive branch?

As a Senator, each of us has a right—not just a right, but an obligation, a duty—to protect the fundamental rights that are part of our Constitution. I think part of that means we have to preserve the incredible progress we have made with respect to civil rights and realizing those rights.

Having reviewed Judge Sotomayor’s extensive record, and having read some of her more important rulings, I have concluded that she will do exactly that, she will protect them. She is someone who understands what sets America apart from almost every other country is the right of any citizen—no matter what level they are at, in terms of their work, employment or pay, income, status—that no matter where they come from, no matter what is their lot in life, they have a right to have their day in court. Recently, in this time of the last 15 years, we have seen those rights reduced, in some cases. We have seen the access of average citizens to the courts of America diminished.

I believe Judge Sotomayor understands the real world, and how important it is to preserve that relationship of an individual citizen to access to the courts.

It took a Supreme Court that understood that, in terms that the doctrine of “separate but equal” was anything but equal and, therefore, to break the Constitution out of the legal straightjacket it found itself in. I believe Judge Sotomayor meets the standard set by Justice Potter Stewart, who said:

The mark of a good judge is a judge whose opinions you can read . . . and have no idea if the judge is a man or a woman, Republican or Democrat, Church or Jew. You just know that he or she was a good judge.

For the last 17 years, she has applied the law to the facts in the cases she has considered, while always cognizant of the impact of her decisions before the court. I think she showed restraint, but she also showed fairness and impartiality in performing her duties under the Constitution.

I believe, though, it is clear her years as a prosecutor prepared her for the Federal bench in ways that few jurists get to experience. After that she spent nearly 6 years as a district court judge and almost 12 years on the appellate court demonstrating a very sophisticated grasp of legal doctrine and earning a reputation as a sharp and fearless jurist.

Courage is one of the qualities that Judge Sotomayor’s colleagues and friends often attribute to her. One of those colleagues who ought to know these things was her one-time boss and, I might add, somebody whom, when I was a prosecutor, we modeled much of what we did in Massachusetts on his approach to the New York District Attorney, that is Robert Morgenthau. He said she was a “fearless prosecutor” and “an able champion of the law.” The police with whom she worked so closely felt the same way. That is why her nomination to the Supreme Court has been endorsed by nearly every major law enforcement organization in the country.

As a district court judge, she showed just how fearless she could be, in 1995, she ended the Major League Baseball strike with an injunction against the league’s powerful owners. All of her actions on the district court were important.

Of all her actions on the district court, that was one of my favorites. Some experts suggested that she had saved baseball and, in doing so, she had, as Claude Lewis of the Philadelphia Inquirer wrote, “joined the ranks of J.T. DiMaggio, John F. Kennedy, Mike Ditka, Robinson and Ted Williams.” I am not sure I would go as far as Ted Williams, but Judge Sotomayor’s actions did get the Red Sox back on the field at Fenway Park.

It is interesting to me that Judge Sotomayor would bring more federal judicial experience to the Supreme Court than any Justice in the last 100 years. That is a fact her critics conveniently ignore.

In fact, she would bring more federal judicial experience to the high court—more that 17 years all totaled—than any of the current associate justices.

Chief Justice Roberts came to the court with just 2 years on the federal bench, Justice Alito 16 years, Justice Scalia 3 years, Justice Kennedy 13 years, Justice Ginsburg 13 years, Justice Souter 1 year, Justice Brennan and Justice Breyer zero years.

As we all know, Judge Sotomayor would be the first Latina to serve on the Supreme Court, just as she was the first Latina on the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. Much was made of this after her nomination by President Obama. And rightly so.

Judge Sotomayor is a role model of aspiration, of discipline, of commitment, of intellectual prowess and integrity. Her story is an American story, a classic American story, an inspiring American story.

How could anyone not be moved by the sight of Judge Sotomayor’s mother, Celina, wiping away tears as the Judge paid loving tribute to her during her confirmation hearing? How could anyone not celebrate the journey that is Judge Sotomayor’s life story? An improbable journey, an extraordinary journey, a uniquely American journey.

We should not underestimate the importance of the diversity Judge Sotomayor will bring to the Supreme Court. People from different backgrounds bring different perspectives to bear on decisions, and that produces better decisions. That is especially important for the Supreme Court, which is, after all, the ultimate champion of the rule of law and protector of rights in America.

How important is diversity? The Supreme Court recently decided a case and found that school officials violated the fourth amendment rights of a young girl by conducting an intrusive strip search of her underclothes while looking for the equivalent of a pain killer. During oral arguments in that case, one of the male Justices compared the search to changing for gym clothes. The other male Justices laughed, but Justice Ruth Ginsburg, the lone female on the court, pointed out how “humiliating” such a search is to young girls.

I know that the Judge’s critics claimed that she would rely on “empathy” rather than the law when deciding cases. But during her confirmation hearing, she made clear her commitment to the rule of law. “Judges can’t rely on what’s in their heart,” she testified. “They don’t determine the law. The job of the judge is to apply the law. And it’s not the heart that compels conclusions in cases. It’s the law.”

She, in fact, has never used the word “empathy” in any of her decisions in more than 3,000 cases or the nearly 400 opinions she has written. Nor has she ever used it to describe her judicial philosophy in any speech or article.

Her decisions have been based on established precedent and a respect for the limited role of a judge.

But every judge, even Supreme Court Justices, are shaped by the experiences of their lives.

That Supreme Court nominee testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee that he would bring to the court “an understanding and the ability to stand in the shoes of other people across a broad spectrum.” That was Justice Clarence Thomas.

Another acknowledged being influenced by the fact he came from a family of immigrants. “When I get a case about discrimination, I have to think about people in my own family who suffered discrimination because of their ethnic background or because of religion or because of gender. And I do take that into account,” he said. That was Justice Samuel Alito.

But her sister testified as a racial minority in expressing his commitment to a society without discrimination. “I am a member of a racial minority myself, suffered, I expect, some minor discrimination in my years,” he said. That was Justice Antonin Scalia.

I don’t know why anyone would think gender and ethnicity do not inform one’s worldview. How could it be otherwise? “We’re all creatures of our upbringing,” Justice Sandra Day O’Connor once observed.

So, too, is Judge Sotomayor. But that does not mean she will not judge fairly. There is nothing in her long career to suggest otherwise. Above all, in fact, Judge Sotomayor will bring to the court a keen legal mind to the court and an extraordinary record of following, defending and upholding the rule of law.

It is no wonder that she earned a “well qualified” rating from the American Bar Association, the highest rating available in the ABA’s evaluation of Federal judicial nominees’ credentials, a process the organization of legal professionals has conducted for more than 50 years.

Our Nation’s highest court will certainly benefit from Judge Sotomayor’s scholarship, her years on the Federal bench and the uniquely American aspects of her life.

But as I noted earlier, the High Court’s Justices will also benefit from Judge Sotomayor’s years as a prosecutor, from having someone among them who has been on the front lines in the fight against chaos and violence of the city, someone who has seen up close the awful toll crime exacts on its victims, someone who has stared down evil and who has sent the most evil to prison.

Judge Sotomayor’s experience on the bench and her experiences in life have given her a keen sense of compassion and an unique understanding of everyday Americans—qualities that will serve her well as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, qualities that will serve our country well in the Court’s deliberations.

It is clear she understands that our Nation is defined by the great struggle of individuals to earn and protect their rights.

I believe Judge Sotomayor will protect those rights, which did not come easily—access to the court house and the school house, civil rights, privacy rights, voting rights, antidiscrimination laws, laws that cured bloodshed and loss of life, all written into law in a fight, all requiring constant vigilance to make sure they are enforced and maintained.

Do I overstate the importance of vigilance? Hardly. Just a few short months ago, the Court heard oral arguments in a case challenging the constitutionality of the reenacted Voting Rights Act. The act remained intact. But the fact that the Court heard the case is cause for concern that even a slight shift in the makeup of the Court could weaken or undo laws that protect the rights and well being of the American people.

It was the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who said that “the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice.” I believe Judge Sotomayor’s nomination to the Supreme Court—indeed, her entire career, as a prosecutor, as a district judge, as an appellate judge—is part of that arc bending toward justice.

Mr. President, I proudly support her nomination and urge all my colleagues to do the same. A vote to confirm Judge Sotomayor will be a high mark in the history of the Senate and in the history of this country.

Mr. President, on behalf of Senator Leahy, I ask unanimous consent that a letter and statement of support for the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, be submitted on behalf of our organization and with the particular support of the identified individual members of the Board of Directors and Trustees, who have joined and highlighted their commitment to the Lawyers’ Committee’s position.

We also enclose an 81 page Report analyzing Judge Sotomayor’s record pertaining to constitutional and civil rights issues which are of paramount importance to the Lawyers’ Committee.

We believe that the members of the Lawyers’ Committee assisted us in support of Judge Sotomayor have done so because the record demonstrates that Judge Sotomayor is well qualified to serve as an Associate Justice, with a record of judicial service characterized by both its longevity and its quality. Judge Sotomayor’s record in the area of civil rights reveals a balanced and considered approach to following precedent and safeguarding the protections contained in our nation’s Constitution and civil rights statutes. We also believe Judge Sotomayor brings integrity to the Supreme Court based on her gender, ethnicity and experience as a prosecutor and trial judge.

We urge the members of the Senate Judiciary Committee to support the nomination of Judge Sonia M. Sotomayor for confirmation by the full Senate.

Sincerely,

NICHOLAS T. CHRISTAKOS, Co-Chair.
JOHN S. KIERNAN, Co-Chair.

STATEMENT SUPPORTING THE NOMINATION OF Judge Sonia Sotomayor as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court

The Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, and the undersigned members of its Board of Directors and Trustees, write to support the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the Supreme Court of the United States and to urge the Senate to confirm that nomination.

On May 26, 2009, President Barack Obama nominated Judge Sotomayor, who currently serves on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, to replace retiring Justice David Souter. Judge Sotomayor’s confirmation hearing occurred in 2005, when Sandra Day O’Connor, the first woman to serve on the Supreme Court, retired. If confirmed, Judge Sotomayor would be the first Hispanic and the third female justice in the 219 year history of the Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor has impressive academic and professional credentials. She has had a wide-ranging legal career as a prosecutor, a corporate litigator, and both a district and appellate court judge. These combined experiences have equipped her for the post currently available on the Supreme Court. In addition, having sat for six years on the district court and more than ten years on the court of appeals, Judge Sotomayor has more federal judicial experience at the time of her nomination than any Supreme Court nominee in the last hundred years.

This nomination is of special interest to us as directors and trustees of the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law because of our shared goal of promoting equal justice under law. The Lawyers’ Committee has issued a number of decisions weighing back the critical protections against discrimination that are afforded by the Constitution and Civil Rights laws. This trend underscores the pressing need for a Justice who understands the persistent realities of discrimination and who interprets our civil rights laws as they were intended—to provide meaningful protections.

We believe that the best evidence of Judge Sotomayor’s qualifications is the judicial opinions she has written over her long career on the bench. Analysis of her opinions in civil rights related cases prepared by the Lawyers’ Committee forms the primary basis for our support for Judge Sotomayor’s nomination. The Lawyers’ Committee also examines her speeches and other writings to see whether they contained anything that should disqualify her from serving on the Supreme Court or that might indicate that she has a judicial philosophy, particularly in the civil rights arena, from that reflected in her judicial opinions. The results of the Lawyers’ Committee’s analysis are contained in its Report on Judge Sotomayor’s nomination.

Based on our review, we conclude that Judge Sotomayor’s record in civil rights cases demonstrates careful judicial analysis, with full consideration of the relevant facts and law, accompanied by a sensitivity to civil rights issues that is consonant with constitutional and statutory mandates. We have found nothing in Judge Sotomayor’s opinions or non-judicial writings, which appropriately refer to her unique life story and the perspective she brings to the background, that should disqualify her from serving on the Supreme Court. Our review of her judicial decisions, as well as her speeches and writings, lead us to conclude that Judge Sotomayor would bring to the Court an appropriate regard for the importance of enforcement of the civil rights protections of the Constitution and federal civil rights laws. We further conclude that her performance as a Court of Appeals judge clearly supports the proposition that she will honor statutory and adherent law.

On the Second Circuit, Judge Sotomayor has heard over 3,000 appeals and has written over 250 signed panel opinions. Her opinions reveal a jurist who follows established precedent yet is willing to raise concerns about the practical impact of that precedent. Her opinions exhibit deference to the discretion of trial judges. Judge Sotomayor’s jurisprudence in civil rights cases indicates that she carefully weighs the facts and the law, and has fully considered the need for existing judicial decisions and adherent law. She interprets civil rights laws in a manner that provides meaningful protection from discrimination. She is careful of the need to grant early relief to defendants when the facts and law justify a summary ruling.

Judge Sotomayor possesses both the exceptional competence necessary to serve on the Court and a profound respect for the importance of protecting the civil rights afforded by the Constitution and constitutional civil rights laws. Additionally, we believe that having a diverse Court is important for our nation. For these reasons, we support the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the Supreme Court of the United States and urge the Senate to confirm her nomination.

By action of the Executive Committee, this statement has been submitted to members of the Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, for the individual signature of subscribing Board members whose names are set forth below. The following individual members of the Boards of Directors and Trustees of the Lawyers’ Committee hereby subscribe to the statement.

Ahead of the anniversary of the signing of the Voting Rights Act, at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue is an African American sitting in the Oval Office. This is America.

Across the street in that magnificent symbol of equal justice under law, a woman—a Latina—will take a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court. This is America.

In this Chamber, this Senator respectfully stands before you born in the same year as Judge Sotomayor and in similar circumstances—raised in a tenement in an old neighborhood in New Jersey, the son of immigrants, the first in my family to go to college. It never dreamed I would stand on this floor on this day to rise in support of an eminently qualified Hispanic woman who grew up in a housing project in the Bronx, as I was growing up in that old tenement in Union City, Yes, this is America. It is the America our Founders intended it to be.

I said on this floor earlier in this debate that when Judge Sotomayor takes her seat on the U.S. Supreme Court, we will only need to look at the portrait of the Justices of the new Supreme Court to see how far we have come as a nation, to understand who we are as a people. It is true that we are often divided and pulled in different directions but, ultimately, that very fact gives us an edge and it gives us an edge.

And that is not what she will do or how she will make. It is the long view of America—or rather the present view of America—a wide, inclusive view—often profoundly moving, sometimes heartbreaking, but giving her an edge where she may see what others cannot, and I truly believe that is a gift that will benefit the Nation as a whole.

So I call on my colleagues to step back, take the long view, think of what our Founders hoped for this Nation, and let’s vote. History awaits and so does an anxious Hispanic community in this country.

I have made my decision, and I will proudly stand in the well of this Chamber, my vote for Judge Sotomayor as the next Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. When she places her hand on the Bible and takes the oath of office, the new portrait of the Justices of the Supreme Court will forever reflect who we are as a nation, what we stand for as a fair, just, and hopeful people.

Let that be the legacy of our generation, for this is America—the America our Founders intended it to be.

Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee has received letters of support for Judge Sotomayor’s nomination from local, national, and international law enforcement, including the chiefs of police of major cities, among others. I ask unanimous consent that those letters, as well as letters from national Latino and Hispanic rights organizations, such as NALEO, and others be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

METROPOLITAN POLICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEAHY: After careful consideration of Judge Sonia Sotomayor’s established record of respect and understanding for the work of law enforcement, I am today writing to express my strong support of her nomination as the next Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

In my nearly 30 years experience as a police officer and police executive in three states, Louisiana, Washington, and Tennessee, it is clear to me that law enforcement officers and the criminal justice system will be given full respect for the rule of law. I am encouraged that Judge Sotomayor, through her work as a prosecutor in New York, and later as a trial judge, learned first hand how crime impacts a community and how members of law enforcement are in the trenches every day working to make a difference for safer neighborhoods. I believe that she understands the challenges police agencies face in dealing with criminals, and that her rulings will ensure that law enforcement is treated with respect and fairness in matters coming before the Supreme Court.

Senator Leahy, I understand that you will explore and consider a number of issues and factors before making your confirmation decision. I have every confidence that Judge Sotomayor’s clear familiarity with how the current impact law enforcement and the criminal justice system will be given full consideration. Thank you for your kind attention to this letter, and thank you for your support of the men and women in Tennessee, Vermont and our great nation’s 48 other states who wear the badge of protection and service.

Sincerely,
RONAL W. SERPAS,
Chief of Police.
We applaud her distinguished career in public service, a record of achievement that began with her work as a prosecuting attorney. During the early years as an Assistant District Attorney, Sonia Sotomayor earned high marks from law enforcement. She has been praised by those who worked at her side on criminal cases as well as officials who have taken cases to her courtroom in later years.

Her record as a prosecutor and a judge both show a commitment to public safety and sensitivity to the needs of the community. She has made decisions that are both tough and compassionate. Her record shows respect for the laws and cases that enable the police to do their job.

American law enforcement has always looked to you for leadership and we again turn to you to move the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor quickly through the confirmation process.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM J. BRATTON, President, Major Cities Chiefs.

Hon. PATRICK LEAHY, Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEAHY: On behalf of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP), I am pleased to inform you of our support for the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to be the next Associate Justice on the United States Supreme Court.

As you know, the IACP is the world’s oldest and largest association of law enforcement executives. With more than 26,000 members who comprises the IACP, having been nominated by President George H.W. Bush. In this position she was the youngest judge in the Southern District of New York and the first Hispanic federal judge in New York. During that time she supported claims to freedom of religious expression under the First Amendment. She continued in that position until her appointment as appellate judge by President William Jefferson Clinton in 1998.

The Honorable Sonia Sotomayor’s perseverance, work ethic, integrity, and tested and proven ability to excel demonstrate her strength of character. Her commitment to nonpartisan, fair decision making, and upholding the law without bias makes Judge Sotomayor a clear choice for Supreme Court Justice.

We are confident that Judge Sotomayor will dutifully represent the law of the United States of America. Our appeal is consistent with WOES’s mission to develop the leadership and promote the contributions of Puerto Rican grandmothers and young people whose efforts extend from preserving a block, to honoring the gifts of our precious Planet! Sonia Sotomayor is a star whose light shows working class boys and girls that they can become men and women who achieve in order to serve.

As a Latina, Judge Sotomayor’s appointment addresses two glaring deficiencies in the court’s lack of diversity and will bring our court system closer to real equality of opportunity.

In their appeal New York Senators Schumer and Gillibrand recognize that “Latinos are a large and growing segment of our society that have gone seriously underrepresented in our legal system. Indeed, while Latinos comprise around 15 percent of the population, only about 7 percent of federal judges are Latino. Moreover, not a single Latino has served on the United States Supreme Court in the history of our country.”

While more than half the U.S. population is female, nearly one-third of all U.S. lawyers are women. Approximately 30 percent of the judges serving on the lower federal courts are women. It is truly shameful that the retirement of Justice O’Connor should have resulted in the reduction of the paucity of women from the court’s lack of diversity and will bring our court system closer to real equality of opportunity.

Hon. PATRICK LEAHY, Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, U.S. Senate, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEAHY: On behalf of MANA, A National Latina Organization, with headquarters in Washington, DC, twenty-six states and six affiliates across the nation expresses wholehearted support for the appointment of the Honorable Sonia Sotomayor to serve as a Supreme Court Justice.

Growing up in the Bronx after her parents moved from Puerto Rico, Sotomayor’s mother instilled the value of education early in her life. After graduating valedictorian at her Catholic high school, Sotomayor went on to Princeton, where she continued to excel. She attended Yale Law School and wrote for the Yale Law Journal.

Judge Sotomayor has had an exceptional and diverse career that will be an invaluable asset in a role as a Supreme Court Justice. She began her career as an assistant district attorney in the state of New York. Later, she worked in private practice as a corporate litigator, dealing with cases for both American and foreign clients. In 1992 she served as a federal judge for the U.S. District Court, having been nominated by President George H.W. Bush. In this position and six affiliates across the nation expresses wholehearted support for the appointment of the Honorable Sonia Sotomayor to serve as a Supreme Court Justice.

Sincerely,

LYDIA LOPEZ MARSTAS, President.

De Re United States Supreme Court nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor.

Hon. PATRICK LEAHY, Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, U.S. Senate, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. LEAHY: Women of El Barrio (WOES) proudly and respectfully urge you to make Judge Sonia Sotomayor your first appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States of America. Our appeal is consistent with WOES’s mission to develop the leadership and promote the contributions of Puerto Rican grandmothers and young people whose efforts extend from preserving a block, to honoring the gifts of our precious Planet! Sonia Sotomayor, is a star whose light shows working class boys and girls that they can become men and women who achieve in order to serve.

While more than half the U.S. population is female, nearly one-third of all U.S. lawyers are women. Approximately 30 percent of the judges serving on the lower federal courts are women. It is truly shameful that the retirement of Justice O’Connor should have resulted in the reduction of the paucity of women from two to one. Most recently the lone remaining female, Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, has battled serious health problems.

In Judge Sotomayor you have a nominee of unquestioned legal prowess and excellent academic credentials. She’s a Princeton University graduate, summa cum laude; a Judis Doctor of Law from Yale Law School, including Editor-in-Chief of the Yale Law Journal. As a practicing attorney, she was a litigator in an international law firm and served as Manhattan Assistant District Attorney under Robert Morgenthau 17 years on the federal bench as trial judge in the Southern District of New York and her current position on the 2nd Circuit.

In its October 2008 issue of Esquire magazine found that “In her rulings, Sotomayor has often shown suspicion of bloated government and corporate power. She’s offered a re-interpreta...
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I want to begin my remarks by introducing into the RECORD a letter I wrote with Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE in May, after Justice Soutter announced he would be retiring from the Supreme Court. I ask unanimous consent that this letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE PRESIDENT.

The White House, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: The announced retirement of United States Supreme Court Justice David Souter—an outstanding jurist—and we are nominating someone for a lifetime appointment to our nation’s highest bench.

The most important thing is to nominate an exceptionally well-qualified, intelligent person to replace Justice Souter—and we are convinced that person should be a woman.

Women make up more than half of our population, but right now hold only one seat out of nine on the United States Supreme Court. This is out of balance. In order for the Court to be relevant, it needs to be diverse and better reflect America.

Mr. President, we look forward with great anticipation to your choice for the Supreme Court vacancy.

Sincerely,

BARBARA BOXER.
U.S. Senator.

OLYMPIA SNOWE.
U.S. Senator.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, at that time, we wrote, in part:
The most important thing is to nominate an exceptionally well-qualified, intelligent woman. From this humble housing project. Her father, a factory worker, died when she was only 9 years old. Her mother worked two jobs to support the family. From this humble background, she graduated summa cum laude from Princeton and became an editor of the Yale Law Review. She will bring a unique set of experiences growing up as a young Latina to the high Court. As the Nation’s first Latina Supreme Court Justice, Judge Sotomayor will bring a unique set of experiences to the role: and will be a richer place because of her perspective.

I commend our President for selecting such an outstanding, well-qualified nominee.

Judge Sotomayor’s record and speeches will be tough, had a right to ask her any-thing they wanted, and she stood her ground beautifully.

I look forward to seeing her sworn in as our next Supreme Court Justice.

Mr. JOHANNS. Mr. President, Senators have an enormous responsibility when it comes to deciding whether to support or oppose a Supreme Court nominee.

We must examine whether the person nominated to the highest court in the land will uphold and defend the principles contained in the Constitution, refrain from judicial activism, respect the rule of law, deliver blind justice to each and every litigant before the Court, and render reasoned decisions in a grueling process.

As President Obama said when he nominated her:

Sonia Sotomayor is a woman with an impressive life story and resume, with an open mind and a steadfast resolve to evaluate the nominee’s qualifications on an unbiased basis.

In fact, having gone through the confirmation process myself before being sworn in as Secretary of Agriculture, I believe that a necessary amount of deference should be given to the President’s choices.

However, after carefully reviewing Judge Sotomayor’s record and speeches as well as closely monitoring her hearing before the Judiciary Committee, I could not support her nomination.
There are several areas that concern me with regard to Judge Sotomayor. First, I am concerned that she will not be a neutral umpire. You see, a judge has the duty to preside over a courtroom with no inclination to side with either side. A judge must be able to put aside his or her personal or political agenda before sitting down on that bench. That is because no matter who you are—Black or White, woman or man, rich or poor—every person in this country is entitled to receive equal justice under the law.

There is a reason that Lady Justice wears a blindfold. By now, most people are aware of Judge Sotomayor’s comments that a “wise Latina woman” would “more often than not reach a better conclusion than a White male.” However, I think it bears pointing out to those who claim the comment was made in isolation and taken out of context, that Judge Sotomayor has made a series of similar comments over the years.

For example:

In short, I accept the proposition that a difference will be made by the presence of women and men, and that my experiences will affect the facts that I choose to see as a judge.

Our experiences as women and people of color affect our decisions. The aspiration to impartiality is just that—it’s an aspiration. I willingly accept that we who judge must not deny the differences resulting from experience but attempt, continuously to judge when those opinions, sympathies, and prejudices are appropriate.

By ignoring our differences as women or men of color, we do a disservice both to the law and society.

Nowhere in the history of our judicial system have judges been told “go with their gut” as implied in the civil system have judges been told to experience and heritage but attempt... continuously to judge when those opinions, sympathies, and prejudices are appropriate.

By ignoring our differences as women or men of color, we do a disservice both to the law and society.

One of the most compelling reasons that the public has been asked to go with their gut is the lack of female judges on the bench. If no backstop, I cannot support Judge Sotomayor’s nomination. She did not convince me, either through her past rulings or during her confirmation hearing, that she would carry out justice in an impartial manner. Impartiality is essential to our justice system.

Beyond my concern that Judge Sotomayor will not be able to set aside personal views and prejudices, is her overall record before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court has substantively reviewed 10 of Judge Sotomayor’s decisions. Of those cases, eight have been reversed or vacated, one was upheld on a different legal standard and sharply criticized for using a flawed legal theory, and the last one was upheld on a slim 5-4 margin. This is a record that directly questions the nominee’s legal reasoning and the ability to sufficiently apply the rule of law. A 10-percent success rate does not excuse and mas...tory of the law that I feel is necessary of a Supreme Court Justice.

The final point of concern that I would like to highlight is Judge Sotomayor’s view of the Second Amendment. In Maloney v. Cuomo, Judge Sotomayor joined a panel opinion that decided in one paragraph the Second Amendment did not apply to the states. Also, in United States v. Sanchez-Villar, she joined a summary panel opinion that, among other things, used a one-sentence footnote to conclude that “the right to possess a gun is clearly not a fundamental right.”

Judge Sotomayor believes that states have the authority to infringe on Second Amendment rights. This is fundamentally at odds with the Constitution.

Although Judge Sotomayor attempted to make a reasonable her past comments during the hearing, her record speaks for itself. Even the Washington Post, which endorsed Judge Sotomayor, found her testimony “less than candid” and “uncomfortably close to disingenuous.”

Ultimately, I came to the decision that too many uncertainties exist regarding whether Judge Sotomayor will uphold the rule of law equally for all people and adhere to legislation.

While I respect and appreciate her impressive life story and accomplishments, I cannot support her nomination to the highest Court.

Mrs. Hutchison. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor to the U.S. Supreme Court. Judge Sotomayor has a compelling biography.

As the first daughter of a young Puerto Rican couple, she grew up in a public housing project in the South Bronx.

Her father, a factory worker, died when she was 9 years old. Her mother, then raised her and her younger brother, and instilled in them a belief in the power of education.

Judge Sotomayor excelled in school. She graduated as valedictorian of her class at Blessed Sacrament and at Cardinal Spellman High School in New York.

She won a scholarship to Princeton University, where she continued to excel, graduating summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa.

She was a co-recipient of the M. Taylor Pyne Prize, the highest honor Princeton awards to an undergraduate.

At Yale Law School, Judge Sotomayor served as an editor of the Yale Law Journal and as managing editor of the Yale Studies in World Public Order.

Over a distinguished career that spans three decades, Judge Sotomayor has worked at almost every level of our judicial system.

Today, she serves on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

An appointee of President Clinton on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, Judge Sotomayor participated in over 3,000 panel decisions, and authored roughly 400 published opinions.

When I met with Judge Sotomayor last month, I found her to be a very likeable woman.

She also displayed these traits during her Senate confirmation hearings.

If she is confirmed, she will be the first Hispanic Supreme Court Justice—an ascendency that will mark a historical moment in our country.

I have, throughout my career, been a strong supporter of Hispanic nominees for judicial appointments and confirmation.

I am proud of the fact that, of the 40 judges I have had a role in nominating for the districts courts in Texas, and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, 30 percent have been Hispanic.

Likewise, I was a strong supporter of Miguel Estrada, who, like Judge Sotomayor, had an incredibly compelling life story, but whose nomination for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District Circuit was filibustered.
I believe the decision of whether to support a nominee for the Federal courts—and especially the highest court—must be grounded in qualifications and judicial philosophy.

She certainly meets the academic and experience criteria for service on our country's highest court.

The criteria for judicial philosophy for my concurrence is to apply the law, not make the law.

A judge must interpret the Constitution, not amend it by judicial decree.

One of the most important and recently confirmed constitutional rights is the right to keep and bear arms.

The Founding Fathers knew what they were doing when they put the second amendment in the Bill of Rights. This wasn't an accident.

They knew from their experience in the Revolutionary War that a free people must have the right to possess and bear arms.

The second amendment clearly says: "A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the People to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

Although some people are confused by the word "militia," it is clear that the Founders did not use the word "militia" to mean that gun rights could only be used in an organized army.

The Framers did not intend for this right to be a "collective" right.

If that had been their purpose, they would have been satisfied with article 1 section 8 of the Constitution that gives Congress the power "to provide for calling forth the Militia to execute the Laws of the Union, suppress Insurrections and repel Invasions."

The Framers went further than that. They wanted to ensure that gun ownership was recognized by posterity as an "individual right." So they included it as part of the Bill of Rights, which is a compilation of protected individual liberties such as free speech, freedom of religion, and a fair trial.

The amendment ensures that every American can secure his freedom, and defend his life and property, if necessary.

In that sense, the right to keep and bear arms could very well be one of our most important rights—because it is the right from which all of our other rights, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, et cetera are secured.

That's why, last year, I led a congressional effort to support the affirmation of that amendment as an important individual right in the Supreme Court case of D.C. v. Heller, which overturned Washington, DC's unconstitutional ban on handguns.

In that case, Senator Tester and I, joined by 53 of our colleagues and 250 members of the U.S. House, filed a "friend of the court" brief in favor of Dick Heller, who simply wished to exercise his constitutional right to protect himself and his family.

The problem that a majority in Congress believe that the second amendment is a constitutionally secured individual right.

It was the first time in history that a majority of the House and Senate sent this type of brief to the Supreme Court.

In the case of D.C. v. Heller, the Supreme Court affirmed the right to keep and bear arms as an individual right for the first time in almost seven decades.

Unfortunately, however, just a few months ago, even after the Supreme Court's Heller decision, Judge Sotomayor issued an opinion in another case, Maloney v. Cuomo refusing to acknowledge that the second amendment is a fundamental right, and therefore may not be binding on the States.

As a strong advocate of the second amendment, I cannot ignore this decision.

I am very troubled by Judge Sotomayor's opinion in Maloney v. Cuomo's recognition appears to disregard an instruction by the Supreme Court in Heller specifically regarding fundamental rights.

In Footnote 23 of the Heller decision, the Supreme Court stated: "With respect to Cruikshank's retaining validity on incorporation, a question not presented by this case, we note that Cruikshank also said that the First Amendment did not apply against the States and did not engage in the sort of Fourteenth Amendment inquiry required by our later cases."

These "later cases" to which the court is referring held most Bill of Rights guarantees to be incorporated through the due process clause of the 14th amendment against State violations.

This was a clear instruction to the circuits that in future second amendment cases they will need to confront the incorporation question and do so following the Supreme Court's line of cases on incorporation.

I must take issue with Judge Sotomayor's per curiam opinion in Maloney v. Cuomo's opinion references the Heller footnote, it only acknowledges the portion noting the continued validity of Supreme Court precedent indicating the second amendment is not binding on the States.

Her court failed to recognize the instruction to conduct the contemporary 14th amendment incorporation analysis the Heller footnote demands.

As such, the Sotomayor opinion reaches the conclusion that the cases from the 1800s are still applicable—and therefore, basically, the second amendment is not binding on the states.

When questioned by the Judiciary Committee about the Maloney case, Judge Sotomayor said she was following precedent.

However, she did not follow the instruction of the Supreme Court in Heller on this point.

Judge Sotomayor determines that Presser and Bach instruct the court to maintain Presser's conclusion that the second amendment is not applicable to the States.

But Heller's Footnote 23 asks the Court to "engage in a Fourteenth Amendment inquiry."

I specifically asked Judge Sotomayor when we met why she did not follow this instruction, articulated just last year by the Court?

I did not receive a satisfactory explanation to this very pivotal question, nor did I hear one in her testimony before the Judiciary Committee.

Heller is precedent, and in this precedent the Supreme Court tells the circuits to perform a 14th amendment inquiry.

In April of this year, the Ninth Circuit considered the same second amendment and incorporated.

While also looking to Presser for guidance, the Ninth Circuit turned to its own circuit precedent, Fresno Rifle & Pistol Club, Inc. v. Van de Kamp, and—like the Second Circuit—it would have been inclined to conclude that the second amendment did not apply to the States.

However, the Ninth Circuit acknowledged that it had not yet engaged in the sort of Fourteenth Amendment inquiry required by the Supreme Court's later cases, and therefore undertook the due process incorporation analysis as envisioned by the Heller footnote.

At the conclusion of the analysis, the Ninth Circuit finds that the second amendment right to keep and bear arms is "deeply rooted in this Nation's history and tradition" and "compels [us] to recognize that it is indeed fundamental and therefore incorporated by the due process clause of the 14th amendment and applied against the states and local governments.

Let me repeat that. The Ninth Circuit's opinion holds that the second amendment protects an individual's liberty, and because that protection is enumerated and so fundamental, the due process clause guarantees it, and the second amendment is therefore binding on the States.

We cannot escape the fact that both courts, each bound by the same Heller precedent, reached opposite conclusions, with Judge Sotomayor's opinion failing to subject the second amendment to the due process clause analysis that is required by the Supreme Court, and failing to identify the second amendment as a fundamental right, binding against the States.

It is from this fact, this outcome, that I am unable to reconcile with my earnest desire to confirm the first Hispanic Justice to the Supreme Court.

With the circuit courts split on the question of whether the second amendment is an individual right protected against State infringement, the Supreme Court will undoubtedly have this issue before it in the upcoming term.
With the constitutional right to keep and bear arms hanging in the balance, I cannot in good conscience vote to confirm a nominee whose judicial record indicates an unwillingness to protect and defend such a fundamental, individual right. For that reason, I must oppose the nomination of Judge Sotomayor to the Supreme Court of the United States.

I similarly opposed the confirmation of Attorney General Eric Holder earlier this year. I take my stance on the second amendment embodying a collective right rather than an individual right. One added point. I am troubled by a line in her February 25, 2005, speech at the Duke Law School, “Court of Appeals is where policy is made.” This is a troubling statement in the area of judicial philosophy. As I have stated earlier, I believe policy is made by elected officials who must be accountable through elections, not by Federal judges with lifetime appointments.

Judge Sotomayor is without a doubt an intelligent, experienced, and capable nominee, and she will bring much needed diversity to the Court. But, after careful examination, I cannot support her confirmation to the highest court in the land.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until 3 p.m. will be divided, with the following speakers controlling 15 minutes each in the following order: the Senator from Alabama, Mr. SESSIONS; the Senator from Vermont, Mr. LEAHY; the Republican leader; and the majority leader.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, when President Obama nominated Judge Sotomayor to the Supreme Court, I pledged that we would treat her with respect and that our questions would be tough but always fair. It is an important office. I believe we have lived up to that obligation.

Again, I thank Chairman LEAHY and the members of the Judiciary Committee for their efforts. I think it did help provide a basis for our full debate in the Senate. I thank Judge Sotomayor for her kind words regarding how the process has been conducted, and the way she conducted herself.

We have had a robust debate on the Senate floor over these past few days, and we have addressed many important questions and issues.

The debate over Judge Sotomayor’s nomination began with President Obama’s radical new vision for America’s court system. According to the President, all nominees to the Federal bench would now have to meet an “empathy standard.” This standard requires judges to reach their most difficult and important decisions through the “depth and breadth of [their] empathy” and “their broader vision of what America should be.” This is a stunning ideological reform. It would turn the American tradition of judges who interpret the Constitution into judges who interpret the Constitution on the basis of foreign law. It would turn the American legal system into the device used when selecting her. This process reflected a broad public consensus that judges should be impartial, restrained, and faithfully tethered to the law and the Constitution.

I think it will now be harder to nominate activist judges. This is not a question of left versus right or Republican versus Democrat. This is a question of the true role of a judge versus the false role of a judge. It is a question of whether a judge follows the law as the framers intended or as they wish it to be. It is a question of whether we live up to our great legal heritage or whether it is abandoned.

Empathy-based rulings, no matter how well-intentioned, do not help society but imperil the legal system that is so essential to our freedoms and so fundamental to our way of life. We need judges who uphold the rights of all, not just some, whether they are New Haven firefighters, law-abiding gun owners, or Americans looking for their fair day in court. We need judges who put the Constitution before politics and the right legal outcome before their desired personal political and social outcome. We need judges who understand that if they truly care about society and want it to be strong and healthy, then they must help ensure our legal system is fair, objective, and firmly rooted in the Constitution.

Our 38th President, Calvin Coolidge, said of the Constitution: No other document devised by the hand of man ever brought so much progress and happiness to humanity. The good it has wrought can never be measured.

I certainly believe he is correct. That document has given us blessings no people of any country have ever known, which is why real compassion is not found in the empathy standard but in following the Constitution.

Judge Sotomayor, however, has embraced the opposite view. For many years before her hearings, she has bluntly advocated a judicial philosophy where judges ground their decisions not in the objective rule of law but in the subjective realm of personal “opinions, sympathies, and prejudices.”

A Supreme Court Justice wields enormous power—a power over every man, woman, and child in the entire country. It is the primary guardian of our magnificent legal system. Because I believe Judge Sotomayor’s philosophy of law and her approach to judging fail to demonstrate the kind of firm, inflexible commitment—a power over every man, woman, and child in the entire country. It is the primary guardian of our magnificent legal system. Because I believe Judge Sotomayor’s philosophy of law and her approach to judging fail to demonstrate the kind of firm, inflexible commitment—

Mr. President, I see my colleague, Senator LEAHY, is here. He has handled many of these nominations over quite a few years. We did not agree on a lot of the things that came up in the hearings, but he committed to giving the opportunity to the minority party to have a full opportunity to ask questions and to raise issues and speak out. I thank the chairman. I think it did credit to the Senate. I thank the chairman, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Alabama for his kind comments. As he knows, I made similar comments about him this morning in the Senate Judiciary Committee. I reiterate them here today.

We did decide, both Senator Sessions and I, at the beginning of this process that we would try to make sure everybody was heard. We may have different outcomes on how everybody would vote, but everybody was heard what has been done. I compliment the leaders of the Senate for doing that.

We are about to conclude Senate consideration of this nominee. I thank those Senators who evaluated this nomination. I thank especially those Republican Senators who have shown the independence to join the bipartisan confirmation of this historic nomination. I thank all Senators on both sides of the aisle who spent hours and hours and days and days in our hearings.

Some critics have attacked President Obama's nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor by contending he picked her for the Supreme Court to substitute empathy for the rule of law. These critics are wrong about the President; they are wrong about Sonia Sotomayor.

Let's leave out the rhetoric and go to the facts. When the President announced his choice of Judge Sotomayor 10 weeks ago, he focused on the qualities he sought in a nominee. He started with "rigorous intellect" and "a mastery of the law."

He then referred to recognition of the limits of the judicial role when he talked about "an understanding that a judge's job is to interpret, not make, law; to approach decisions without any particular ideology or agenda, but rather a commitment to impartial justice; a respect for precedent, and a determination to faithfully apply the law to the facts at hand." That is what President Obama said.

Then he went on to mention experience. He said:

- Experience being tested by obstacles and barriers, by hardship and misfortune; experience insisting, persisting, and ultimately overcoming those barriers. It is experience that comes with a common touch and a sense of compassion; an understanding of how the world works and how ordinary people live. And that is why it is a necessary ingredient in the kind of justice we need on the Supreme Court.
- The President concluded by discussing how Judge Sotomayor has all these qualities. The President was looking not just for lawyerly ability, but for wisdom—for an understanding of how the law and justice work in the everyday lives of Americans. In a subsequent radio and Internet address, the President reiterated the point when he said:

As a Justice of the Supreme Court, she will bring not only the experience acquired over the course of a brilliant legal career, but the wisdom accumulated over the course of an extraordinary journey—a journey defined by hard work, fierce intelligence, and the enduring faith that, in America, all things are possible.

President Obama did not say that he viewed compassion or sympathy as a substitute for the rule of law. In fact, he has never said he would substitute empathy for the rule of law. That is a false choice. The opposition to this nomination is based on a false premise.

When she was first named, Judge Sotomayor said: "I firmly believe in the rule of law as a foundation for all our basic rights." Judge Sotomayor reiterated time and time again during her confirmation hearing her fidelity to the rule of law: "Judges can't rely on what's in their heart. They don't determine the law. Congress makes the law. The job of the judge is to apply the law. And so it's not the heart that compels conclusions, it's the law. The judge applies the law to the facts before that judge.

Those who, after 4 days of hearing, would ignore her testimony, should at least take a look at her record as a judge. Judge Sotomayor has demonstrated her fairness and impartiality during her 17 years as a judge. She has followed the law. There is no record of her substituting her personal views for the law. The many independent studies that have closely examined Judge Sotomayor's record have concluded it is a record of applying the law, not bias.

What she has said, and what we should rule of acknowledge, is the value her background brings to her as a judge and would bring to her as a Justice, our first Latina Justice.

Judge Sotomayor is certainly not the first nominee to discuss how her background has shaped her character. Justice O'Connor has acknowledged, "We are all creatures of our upbringing. We bring whatever we are as people to a job like the Supreme Court." Everybody knows that, just as all 100 of us.

Many of my colleagues and I have talked about the nomination of color. Judges, and Department of Justice appointees. I have been ranking member on two Supreme Court nominations and conducted this one. I mention to thank the Senators from Alabama for his cooperation during it.

After those hundreds of hearings, you get a sense of the person you are listening to. I met for hours with Judge Sotomayor, either in the hearing room or privately. You learn who a person is, you really do, in asking these kinds of questions. You have to bring your own experience and your own knowledge to promised by voting his or her conscience on the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor to serve as a Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. I will proudly vote for her.

Mr. President, I see the Republican leader is here, and I will reserve the remainder of my time.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader is recognized.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, once again I wish to thank the chairman and the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, Senator LEAHY and Senator SESSIONS, and their staffs, for conducting a dignified and respectful hearing. From the beginning of the process, I assured Judge Sotomayor that Republicans would treat her fairly. At the end of the process, I can say with pride that we kept that commitment.

This particular nominee comes before us with an impressive resume and a compelling life story. Yet the question we must ask ourselves today is whether we believe Judge Sotomayor will fulfill the requirements of the oath that is taken by all federal judges to administer justice without respect to persons; that is, to administer justice evenhandedly.

President Obama asked himself a different question when he was looking for a nominee. The question he asked is whether that person has the ability to empathize with certain groups. And as I have said, empathy is a fine quality. But in the courtroom, it is only good if a judge has it for you. What if you are the other guy? He walked out of the courthouse, he can say he received his day in court. He can say he received a hearing. But he can't say he received justice.

At her hearings Judge Sotomayor was quick and even eager to repudiate the so-called empathy standard. But her writings reflect strong sympathy for it. Indeed, they reflect a belief not just that impartiality is not possible, but that it is not even worth the effort. Judge Sotomayor’s record of complex constitutional cases concerns me even more. Because in Judge Sotomayor's court, groups that didn’t make the cut of preferred groups often found they ended up on the short end of the empathy standard, and the consequences were real.

One group that didn’t make the cut in Judge Sotomayor’s court were those who needed the courts to enforce their rights. That is, the claims of a group of firefighters who had been unfairly denied promotions they had earned. This past June, the Supreme Court reversed her ruling, making her 0 for 3 this term, with all nine Justices finding that she had misapplied the law.

Gun owners didn’t make the cut, and they haven’t fared well before Judge Sotomayor either. She has twice ruled the second amendment isn’t a fundamental right and thus doesn’t protect Americans when States prevent them from bearing arms. And here too, she didn’t even give the losing party’s claims the dignity of a full treatment. In one case, she disposed of the party’s second amendment claim in a one-sentence footnote. In the other, she did it with a single paragraph.

Property owners weren’t on the list either, and they too haven’t fared well in Judge Sotomayor’s court. In an important fifth amendment case—the amendment that protects against the government taking private property—Judge Sotomayor broadened even further the government’s power. A ruling which one property law expert called “one of the worst property rights decisions in recent years.”

And her ruling in this case fit an all-too-familiar pattern: she kicked the aggrieved party’s serious constitutional claims out of court in an unsigned, unpublished, summary order. We got only a brief explanation as to why.

These important cases illustrate the real-world consequences of the empathy standard, in which judges choose to see certain facts but not others, and in which it’s appropriate for judges to bring their personal or political views to bear in deciding cases. Lieutenant Ben Vargas, one of the firefighters who did not fare well under the empathy standard, may have put it best. Speaking to a law student, he asserted, “I don’t blame the judge. I think judges make a decision according to their own conscience.”
keep this commitment, I cannot support her nomination.

Mr. President, does our side have time left, I would ask?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Only the leader has time.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, on May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a ruling that would begin to reroute America toward a more unified Union. When the Justices unanimously directed, in Brown v. Board of Education, that our children’s schools must no longer be racially segregated, their decision echoed far beyond the walls of a courtroom in Washington, DC, or a classroom in Topeka, KS. The decision paved the way for countless future turns that would make our Nation more just and its people more equal.

Now weeks later after that opinion, Sonia Sotomayor was born in the south Bronx. In her lifetime, this Senate has sent to the Supreme Court the only two women and the only two Americans of color to ever sit on that bench. In the 30 weeks since President Obama made his history by nominating Judge Sotomayor, many have emphasized the importance of putting the first Hispanic on the Nation’s highest Court. This is truly historic for our entire nation, but especially for the young Latinos in this country who will see in Judge Sotomayor concrete evidence of the heights to which they can legitimately aspire.

But it is no less significant that in a country where women represent half of our population, Judge Sotomayor will be the third woman, only the third woman to ever serve as a Justice and will be one of only two women serving on the Court today.

In many ways, Justices Sandra Day O’Connor and Ruth Bader Ginsburg have made this day possible for Judge Sotomayor. Because of the trail these women represent half of our population, Judge Sotomayor will be the third woman, only the third woman to ever serve as a Justice and will be one of only two women serving on the Court today.

When Justice Ginsburg arrived at Harvard Law School, she was greeted by a dean who asked why the nine women in her class—it was a class of about 700 people—why nine women in her class were occupying seats that could otherwise be taken by men. Little did he know she would later join another group of nine legal experts whose membership was long restricted to men, the Supreme Court of the United States. Like Justice O’Connor, Justice Ginsburg did not receive a single offer from any of the 12 law firms with which she interviewed, even though she finished first in her law school class.

When she was recommended for a clerkship to the Supreme Court, at least two of the Justices refused to hire her. Why? She was a woman.

America is grateful that O’Connor and Ginsburg did not give up. We are proud to see women in positions that have long been dominated by men.

In the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act case before the Supreme Court, Justice O’Connor’s successor, Samuel Alito, wrote the majority opinion in a 5-to-4 ruling that made it virtually impossible for women and other victims of pay discrimination to fight back.

Justice Ginsburg, who herself has been a victim of pay discrimination because she was a woman, read her powerful dissent aloud from the bench. It is rarely done. But she stood and proudly vowed to keep fighting back.

In the Lilly Ledbetter 2007 case before the Supreme Court, Justice O’Connor’s successor, Samuel Alito, wrote the majority opinion in a 5-to-4 ruling that made it virtually impossible for women and other victims of pay discrimination to fight back.

Justice Ginsburg, who herself has been a victim of pay discrimination because she was a woman, read her powerful dissent aloud from the bench. It is rarely done. But she stood and proudly vowed to keep fighting back.

She invited Congress to correct this injustice, and we did that. We changed the law. After we passed the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act this year, it was the first piece of legislation that President Barack Obama signed into law.

Similarly, when the Supreme Court heard the case of a 13-year-old honor student, a girl who had been stripped of her access to Ginsburg’s courtroom because Ginsburg heard her colleagues minimize the humiliation the student had suffered, Justice Ginsburg noted that she was the only one on the Court who had ever been a 13-year-old girl and encouraged her colleagues to take into account the victim’s perspective. The Court rightly ruled the search was unreasonable. That would not have happened but for Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Judge Sotomayor’s life experiences will not dictate her decisions any more than Justice O’Connor, Ginsburg, Scalia, or Alito have let their personal experiences prescribe their own rulings. But as the newest member of the Supreme Court, she will bring a perspective not only as a woman, but also a former criminal prosecutor, commercial litigator, trial judge, and appellate judge. She will share the depth and breadth of that experience with her colleagues, just as they will be able to share their own unique views on any case with her—their own views.

Justice O’Connor has said that the first African-American Justice, Thurgood Marshall, opened for her colleagues a window into a different world and was able to relate to them experiences they could not know.

Justice O’Connor and Ginsburg have done the same. Soon we will also have the first Hispanic and the first Arab-American on the Supreme Court. A Supreme Court that is a better Supreme Court.

Judge Sotomayor’s journey to this day has not been without obstacles. But because of the struggles fought by those who came before her, she has been able to succeed. Today the Senate will make history by confirming the first Hispanic, the third woman, and the third person of color to the Supreme Court of the United States. But equally as important, we will also make history by confirming someone as qualified as Sonia Sotomayor.

Her experiences come not only from the legal world but also the real world. Her understanding of the law is grounded not only in theory but also in practice. Her record is beyond reproach. Her respect for the limits of the judiciary is resolute, and her reverence for the law is unwavering.

Sonia Sotomayor is an American of tremendous credentials. Both her academic record and her career experience are second to none. She graduated summa cum laude from Princeton University and excelled at Yale; again, Stanford, Harvard, Yale, all in the top three law schools in the country. She excelled at Yale where she was a member of the law review, the prestigious Yale Law Review.

After she is confirmed, she will be the only Justice who has seen a trial from every single angle. She has seen a trial from prosecuting civil and criminal cases, she has presided over them as a trial judge, and handled them as an appellate court judge. That is precisely the kind of experience we need on the Supreme Court.

I have had concerns for quite some time that we have far too few judges on the Court who have had trial experience. As a trial lawyer—I have tried more than 100 cases in front of juries—that experience to someone sitting on that Court is important. And she will bring that. That is so important.

We have too many Supreme Court Justices who have never conducted a trial. Some of them have never been involved in a trial. They have looked at cases from the appellate purview. I propose someone would be one of five judges on the Court with trial experience at a case from a trial court perspective.

As the distinguished ranking member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator Jeff Sessions of Alabama, said shortly after her nomination, Judge Sotomayor’s nomination: “She’s got the kind of background you would look for, almost an ideal mix of private practice, prosecution, trial judge, circuit judge.”

I could not agree more with my friend Jeff Sessions. Her experience as a trial judge will be invaluable to the Supreme Court. As a former trial lawyer, as I have indicated, a judge is more than just a political title to me.
It is someone who understands the law and sees every day how it affects people, real people.

When looking at Judge Sotomayor, I see someone who knows what happens in a courtroom, which is an arena unlike any in the world. We tend to think of Supreme Court cases as major milestones that change the arc of our history and define our principles. And they do. But they often begin as ordinary, routine cases before a trial judge. It could be a traffic stop that leads to a Supreme Court case. It could be a protest in a park, it could be the placement of some monument in a park or some public place, it could be a dispute over money.

Linda Brown was a girl trying to go to public school close to her house in Topeka, Kansas, setting in motion the beginning of the end of segregation in Brown v. Board of Education. Linda Brown was that little girl who wanted to go to school close to her home. Judge Sotomayor has always been a powerful defender of constitutional rights, whether it is the State of New Hampshire’s constitutional rights or our country’s constitutional rights. All Americans thank this good man for his decades of service to our Nation, and he has more to give. I am confident, though, that Judge Sotomayor will soon build upon her impressive record with an already impressive when she is across the street at the Supreme Court.

I am certain she will leave the writing of the law to those of us on this side of the street. That is our job, and she will impartially and faithfully fulfill her constitutional duty to apply only the laws that we pass here.

I am also convinced that, when she soon takes the same oath every Justice before her has taken, she will “administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the rich and to the poor.”

Sonia Sotomayor has risen remarkably from the trials of a modest upbringing in the South Bronx of New York to presiding over major trials on the Federal bench. All Americans, men and women of every color and background, can be confident that she will ensure equal justice under the law in our Nation’s very highest Court.

That is why I am so proud to cast my vote in favor of the confirmation of Sonia Sotomayor as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

I yield the floor and I suggest the approval of the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor and the legislation clerk will call the roll.

The nomination was confirmed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the motion to reconsider is considered made and laid upon the table. The President will be immediately notified of the Senate’s action.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, the Senate has concluded consideration of the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor and has confirmed her as a Justice on the U.S. Supreme Court. The consideration of a nomination for a lifetime appointment to the Supreme Court is one of our most consequential responsibilities. The consideration of the nomination of Sonia Sotomayor has been a credit to the Judiciary Committee and to the Senate.

We could not give this process the attention it deserves without the help of dedicated staff. For 2½ months, the staff of the Judiciary Committee has worked long hours dutifully to help Senators in their review. I wish to thank the following members of the majority staff in particular: Jeremy Paris, Erica Chabot, Kristine Lucius, Roscoe Jones, Shanna Singh Hughey, Maggie Whitney, Sarah Jackett, Miranda Meier, Elaine Burditt, Noah Bookbinder, Stephen Kelly, Kelsey Kobelt, Matt Virkstis, Anya McMurray, Juan Valdivieso, Curtis

AMENDMENT NO. 2300

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I have an amendment. I believe it is at the desk. If not, I send it to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Iowa (Mr. HARKIN) proposes an amendment numbered 2300.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be dispensed with.

Mr. HARKIN. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President: What is the order of business right now?

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be dispensed with.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To limit the provision of vouchers to individuals with adjusted gross incomes of less than $75,000 to whom a deduction under section 151 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, filed a joint return; (ii) whose adjusted gross income with respect to whom a deduction under section 151 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, filed a joint return; (iii) whose adjusted gross income was less than the amount of the most recent tax return described in clause (i) not more than $50,000 ($75,000 in the case of a joint tax return or a return filed by a person filing as head of household); (c) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 7 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and not later than the requirements of section 553 of title 5, United States Code, the Secretary of Transportation shall promulgate final regulations that require—

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Certain amendments are in order to be offered to the bill, with a 30-minute time limit.

Mr. HARKIN. Thirty-minute time limit on?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I have an amendment. I believe it is at the desk. If not, I send it to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Iowa (Mr. HARKIN) proposes an amendment numbered 2300.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be dispensed with.

Mr. HARKIN. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President: What is the order of business right now?

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To limit the provision of vouchers to individuals with adjusted gross incomes of less than $75,000 to whom a deduction under section 151 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, filed a joint return; (ii) whose adjusted gross income with respect to whom a deduction under section 151 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, filed a joint return; (iii) whose adjusted gross income was less than the amount of the most recent tax return described in clause (i) not more than $50,000 ($75,000 in the case of a joint tax return or a return filed by a person filing as head of household); (c) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 7 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and not later than the requirements of section 553 of title 5, United States Code, the Secretary of Transportation shall promulgate final regulations that require—

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Certain amendments are in order to be offered to the bill, with a 30-minute time limit.

Mr. HARKIN. Thirty-minute time limit on?
Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, it has been brought to my attention that there is a mistake in drafting part of this amendment. Quite frankly, it does read that a voucher may only be issued under the program to an individual "who filed a return of Federal income tax for taxable year beginning in 2008." There are some low-income people who don’t file income tax returns, so there is a little bit of a problem in the drafting. I still remain committed to somehow working this out. It now looks as though even some people who make just over the minimum wage would not be allowed to go in, and those are the people I am trying to get to more than anybody else, those who are making a very low income but probably don’t file an income tax return because they are low income. So, I am not opposed to the program. I think it works. But I just think it ought to be better targeted.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, before the Senator from Iowa leaves the floor, if the Senator from Iowa has no further speakers on his amendment or wishes to speak any further, I am prepared on our behalf to yield all the time on our side if he would like to yield the time on his side so we can move the process on, and if the Senator would like to ask for the yeas and nays right now before I seek to offer my amendment, I am happy to stand by for that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am not sure who is controlling time, but I wish to speak on the bill and on the amendment at the same time. Is there a time limit on the bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is a total of 30 minutes on the amendment, equally divided.

Mr. LEVIN. I am asking a parliamentary inquiry: Is there a time limit on the bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No.

Mr. LEVIN. I thank the Presiding Officer. I wish to speak on the bill. I would ask, who is controlling time in opposition to the amendment? I wish to speak on the bill.

Mr. President, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, it has been brought to my attention that there is a mistake in drafting part of this amendment. Quite frankly, it does read that a voucher may only be issued under the program to an individual "who filed a return of Federal income tax for taxable year beginning in 2008."
return. That raises some troubling questions. I am also told that, under the agreement we have now, I cannot offer another amendment. In other words, amendments are now limited. I have a problem, because it is not what I intended to do. It is a drafting error. I apologize for that. I will continue to try to work on it and see if I can do something at some point. I remain committed to having an income cap on this program.

With that, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, let me say that he raises a good point about his amendment. I don’t think it would be a difficult matter to drop that provision, or modify that provision, so that it would not preclude someone who had not filed an income tax return from being eligible for the program.

If the Senate wishes to modify his amendment to that effect, there would be no objection on our side. However, there would be objection to simply dropping the amendment, because too many people on our side are in agreement with the concept, and this is pursuant to a unanimous consent agreement.

Again, if the Senator wishes to modify the amendment, there would be no objection to that, although we would want to see the language, obviously.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to set aside my amendment and that we move on to other amendments. We will bring this amendment up later. I ask unanimous consent that the time we have been reserved and that we come back to this amendment after the others have been disposed of.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 2301, AS MODIFIED

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I call up my amendment No. 2301, which is at the desk, and I ask unanimous consent that Senators BENNETT, ROBERTS, and SNOWE be added as cosponsors, and I also ask that the amendment be modified with the particulars at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the amendment, as modified.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arizona (Mr. KYL), for himself, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. ROBERTS, and Ms. SNOWE, proposes an amendment numbered 2301, as modified.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. STATUS REPORT AND REIMBURSEMENT OF UNFUNDED OBLIGATIONS.

The Consumer Assistance to Recycle and Save Act of 2009 (title XIII of Public Law 111–32) is amended—

(1) in subsection (c)(1)(A), by striking “November 1, 2009” and inserting “August 8, 2009”;

(2) in subsection (g)—

(A) by amending paragraph (1) to read as follows:

(i) DATABASE.—The Secretary shall maintain, and update each business day, a database that contains—

(A) the vehicle identification numbers of—

(i) all new fuel efficient vehicles purchased or leased under the Program; and

(ii) all eligible trade-in vehicles disposed of under the Program; and

(B) the amount of money—

(i) obligated by the Federal Government for payment of vouchers issued under the Program; and

(ii) remaining to be obligated for such payments from the amount appropriated for such purpose.; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:—

(3) REIMBURSEMENT OF UNFUNDED TRANSACTIONS.—In addition to the amount appropriated under paragraph (1) there shall be made available the Program from amounts appropriated under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111–5) for the Department of Transportation and not otherwise obligated, an amount equal to the amount by which the dollar value of all of the vouchers issued under the Program during the period described in subsection (o)(1)(A) exceeds $1,000,000,000.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, when Congress rushed the so-called Cash for Clunkers Program to passage as part of the fiscal year 2009 supplemental appropriations bill, it had little time to consider how the program would work. Although the program is well-intentioned, many have criticized its efficiency and questioned the ability of the Department of Transportation to manage its application.

The program has only been running for a couple of weeks, but DOT is already saying the $1 billion appropriated for the program has likely been spent. But nobody really knows. Yet this bill would appropriate an additional $2 billion.

My view is that before we jump to spend another $2 billion of taxpayers’ hard-earned money, we need to call a time-out—clear all of the transactions that qualify, see how much it costs, and evaluate how much more, if any, we would want to spend. If, as appropriate, we certainly should establish a tracking system to know how much the government is committed to pay each day so that we will know when to cut the program off before we again run out of money. In short, this program must be properly restructured now if it is to be continued.

There have been multiple complaints from dealers who have had trouble with the program. Some dealers haven’t received their registration information, and some have had trouble accessing the system to submit transactions. This information is concerning because, if true, DOT presumably doesn’t have an accurate count of how many transactions dealers have made compared to how much money has been spent in the Cash for Clunkers Program. In fact, it is my understanding that the National Automobile Dealers Association estimated that at least 200,000 deals have been completed but not yet successfully submitted to the Department of Transportation.

The confusion at DOT is evident. On Thursday, July 30, less than 1 week after DOT started to accept dealers’ transactions, DOT told Congress that the program was suspended because the $1 billion had been exhausted. The next day, DOT said the program was not suspended and transactions could continue. On Sunday, August 2, Secretary LaHood was on C–SPAN’s “The Newsmakers” and first stated that the entire $1 billion hadn’t been spent. However, later in the interview, he said that the administration would only honor deals made through Tuesday, August 4, unless the Senate approves this bill. He then said, in the same interview, that DOT estimates there is only enough money to cover deals made through this week. The process is anything but accurate. Dealers should not have to bear the risk that deals they made in good faith won’t be honored.

It is not only dealers who should be concerned about whether the government has accurate data needed to wind down the program before the funding runs out. Secretary LaHood recently said that the government will make “a good-faith effort” to reimburse all deals that are in the “pipeline.” But without appropriated money, he cannot make any commitment. Statements of the Secretary are not binding promises. Consumers are also entitled to certainty. That is why we need a time-out to assess where we are and redo the process to be fully transparent and accurate.

Specifically, my amendment would terminate the program as of August 7, 2009, at 11:59 p.m. to give a date certain to dealers and consumers to avoid any further confusion about whether all... dealer transactions will be honored. It would delay new funding for the Cash for Clunkers Program beyond the $1 billion already appropriated, except for such sums needed to meet all obligations through August 7 that may exceed $1 billion. DOT currently has no mechanism in place to efficiently cut off transactions once the appropriated threshold is reached.

My amendment would require DOT to submit a detailed report to Congress, before any new appropriations are made, that evaluates the methodology it used to track the daily obligations incurred under the program versus reimbursements sent to the dealers. The reporting requirement would ensure that when Congress can evaluate what changes have to be made to more efficiently disburse any future money allocated to the program and, importantly, be able to track the disbursements and obligations to ensure the latter do not exceed the funding available. To this end, my amendment would add a requirement that if future appropriations are made, DOT must track daily the number of transactions made and money left to be obligated for reimbursement sent to the dealers. Again, this would ensure that the onus is on DOT working with the most up-to-date information so that no consumer or dealer would enter into a transaction if funding is already exhausted.

Some have questioned whether the Cash for Clunkers Program is encouraging consumers to purchase or lease fuel-efficient vehicles. On June 11, two of my colleagues even submitted an opinion piece in the Wall Street Journal that indicated the Cash for Clunkers program was “bad policy” and “would create handouts for Hummers.” The report would also evaluate the fuel efficiency standards of the automobiles traded in and the new automobiles leased or purchased. Obviously, should we want to modify the terms of the legislation to meet some of the concerns expressed by the colleagues I mentioned, that could be done at that time.

I am very familiar about what happens when legislation is rushed through without any oversight. In 2000, the Arizona State legislature passed a well-intentioned law, much like cash for clunkers, which provided a tax credit for purchasers to buy vehicles converted to run on propane or compressed natural gas. The program was originally estimated to cost $5 million. However, lawmakers continued the call for the expansion of the program based on consumer demand. Before long, the $5 million price tag ballooned up to a $600 million budget liability. It was stopped in time to avoid the State from bankrupting itself.

I am concerned that we are putting American taxpayers in a similar position. If the additional $2 billion is simply appropriated for this program, will DOT come back to Congress in September and argue that we must extend the program yet again? Maybe there would be no money committed than the $2 billion, as may be the situation now. Aren’t we required to apply some metrics, in other words, to evaluate the benefits against the cost to taxpayers? I don’t have to remind anybody of the worrisome views of temporary programs. Former President Reagan used to describe them by saying, “There’s nothing more permanent than a temporary government program.” That could well be the case here if we don’t step back and evaluate the program, and if we don’t ensure that any future funding for such a program is done in a more efficient manner than this particular program is today.

As I said, auto dealers are hardly the only business that would be happy to receive government assistance. So evaluating it at this juncture is very important, lest we make the same mistake in the future.

We rushed through the Cash for Clunkers once. I suggest that we should not make the same mistake again. I urge my colleagues, therefore, to support my amendment when the appropriate time comes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona controls 8 additional minutes, and there is 15 minutes in opposition.

Who yields time to the Senator?

Mr. KYL. I am happy to yield to my colleague.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Kyl amendment. I remind my colleagues how this all happened. In June, the House “air dropped” $1 billion for a Cash for Clunkers Program into a conference report, which had nothing to do with clunkers, accompanying a $105 billion war supplemental spending bill and sent it over to the Senate. Despite the fact that my colleagues on the other side had advocated a new rule in the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act to allow a procedural vote to strip air drops from conference bills, when such a vote was presented, it was voted to keep this clunker of a provision.

I hope one of my colleagues will propose a “cash for golf clubs” proposal. I have had many calls from people who have old golf clubs, and they would like to have cash for them. We know that it is an important national sport and it is an important part of our economy. I hope we will be taking up a “cash for golf clubs” provision in this bill.

We are spending $3 billion to subsidize car purchases, some of them from automotive companies we own. We own Chrysler and General Motors. We own them, and we are going to give them money. So maybe it will come back to us.

The Wall Street Journal editorializes—

This is crackpot economics. The subsidy won’t add to net national wealth, since it merely transfers money to one taxpayer’s pocket from somebody else’s, and merely pays that taxpayer to destroy a perfectly serviceable asset in return for something he might have bought anyway.

Here we had it stuck into a supplemental appropriations bill that had nothing to do with automobiles. So we find that we are like free money. They like free money. Yes, we all like free money. So the program has gone out of control.

We have no idea, as Senator Kyl has said, how much money is being spent, how much is being obligated. So rather than stop and see what the story is here, let’s spend $2 billion more. At some point, this kind of thing has to stop. The national debt has climbed to $11.6 trillion. If we are under the impression—if anybody is under the impression—it is going to be taken out of the stimulus package, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee in the House 2 days ago said: Don’t worry, we will add an additional $2 billion. Don’t worry, it would not be taken out of the program that the money is there for; that money will be “replenished.” Do you know what replenishing means? It means $2 billion more of taxpayers’ dollars. Everybody in Congress now is patting themselves on the back. The program has also been a success, I might add, for foreign auto manufacturers. Four of the five top-selling cars in the program are made by foreign automakers, according to the Department of Transportation, and a success for Citibank that managed the voucher program, which has received $45 billion in Federal aid, and, yes, for the 184,000 Americans who have received up to $1,500 toward the purchase of a new car, except for the other 290-some million who will not take advantage of this program who will be paying the bill.

I urge adoption of the Kyl amendment. At least we should pause and see where we are.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. SHAHSEN). Who yields time?

The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, if nobody is seeking time in opposition, I would suggest on this amendment that all time be yielded back, if the Senator from Arizona is agreeable.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, at this time, I object. I think at some point we will be able to yield back much of the time, but at this time, we need to talk with our Members to make sure Members have had a chance to say their peace.

Mr. President, would it be in order to ask for the yeas and nays, and when the time is yielded back, we can set the vote?
Mr. KYL. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senate from New Hampshire [Mr. GREGG] proposes an amendment numbered 2302.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To protect the generations of tomorrow from paying for new cars today)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 2. AMENDMENT TO THE 2010 BUDGET RESOLUTION.

8. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress) is amended—

(1) in section 101—

(A) in paragraph (2), strike the amount for fiscal year 2010 and insert "$2,880,499,000,000";

(B) in paragraph (3)—

(i) strike the amount for fiscal year 2011 and insert "$2,969,592,000,000"; and

(ii) strike the amount for fiscal year 2012 and insert "$2,982,053,000,000"; and

(C) in subsection (b), by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

'(2) for fiscal year 2010, $1,685,285,000,000 in new budget authority and $1,907,200,000,000 in outlays;'.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, the senior Senator from Arizona alluded to the fact that basically this bill is un—paid for—$2 billion. There is a figleaf representation that the money in this bill is somehow being taken out of an—other account, and, therefore, it is off—set—the account being the Renewable Energy Loan Guarantee Program under the stimulus package. But that is a total fraud—a total fraud.

This is the ultimate bait and switch because, as the senior Senator from Ar—izona pointed out, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee in the House, for whom I have a lot of respect and I think his forthrightness is re—freshing, quite honestly, said on the floor of the House, when he was asked the question: What is going to happen to the fact that $2 billion has now been taken out of the Renewable Energy Loan Guarantee Program, what is going to happen to the loan guarantee program?

Mr. GREGG said:

If the gentleman would yield, I share the gentleman’s view that the Renewable Energy Loan Guarantee Program is of vital impor—tance to creating a new, green economy. We have talked with the White House. We have talked with the Speaker and I want to assure you—

This is the chairman of the Approp—riations Committee when he assures you, you can be assured it is for sure—and I want to assure you that all of us cer—tainly have every intention of restoring these funds.

They are doubling down on the debt. It is bad enough—this should be called the ‘‘debt for clunkers’’ bill to begin with because basically what we are doing is creating debt for our children. We are suggesting, we are proposing, we are allowing $4,500, $1 billion, now $3 billion out the door to buy cars today, but the bill to pay those cars is going to come due on our children and our grandchildren as they have to pay the debt off, which this is going to go to increase.

This is nothing more than a program which is being funded entirely by tax payers and an increase in the Federal debt, as Congressman OBEY forthrightly stated when he said: We are going to find the $2 billion we took out of this account, and we are going to refill that $2 bil—lion, which is going to be pay to do. Everybody knows that.

I don’t happen to support the program, but I at least would like to have some integrity in this process, and I would like to have the program paid for. If I am suggesting we are going to add to the American people that this program is paid for, let’s pay for it. So my amend—ment does that. That is all it does. It creates a mechanism to make sure we are not going to replenish an account we allegedly took the money out of in order to pay for this account.

The way I have set this up, it does not have to necessarily affect the loan guarantee program. In fact, it is not specifically the loan guarantee pro—gram at all what I have done. What I am suggesting we do is that next year, in order to make sure this program is paid for, we reduce what is known as the 302(a) allocation cap by $2 billion. That way we can be reasonably con—fident that before this money can be spent twice, there will have to be a vote, a 60-vote point of order brought against it on the floor of the Senate, and people will have to forthrightly say: Oh, we are actually borrowing from our children to do this. Or alter—native, we will not borrow from our children to do this; we will actually pay for it by reducing the 302(a) allocation cap.

It is an attempt to bring some integ—rity to the process, some honesty to the process, and actually pay for the program we allege we are paying for rather than use this gamesmanship, which is the ultimate bait and switch of saying we are going to pay for it today from funds we are taking out of the account tomorrow, and then we are going to claim it is paid for tomorrow so we end up borrowing the money from our children. In this case, it would be twice because we had to bor—let me indicate first to my friend from New Hampshire, we are not talking about sales that would have happened anyway. If anybody looks at the numbers of what has been happening in this country, we have had capacity to build 17 million vehicles in this country, 9 million of those sold and they have doubled the number of staff they have had. They have worked to refine and to deal with the immediate concerns because of how quickly the response came in.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S8951

So I would just urge that we vote no on the Gregg amendment, no on the Gregg amendment, and no on any other amendment that will kill the most effective stimulus we have passed this year.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. INOUYE. Madam President, I rise to speak in opposition to this amendment No. 2302 that is being offered by my colleague and friend from New Hampshire.

Madam President, at the beginning of this Congress, just about every Member in this Chamber approached me and my colleague from Mississippi, Senator COCHRAN, and indicated that we had to fix the legislative and appropriations process. The Appropriations Committee has been unable to move forward in the legislative and appropriations process.

With regard to the amendment of my friend from New Hampshire, first, let me say this. The bill is already deficit neutral. The $2 billion involved is completely offset with funds already appropriated, the merits. The reality is, if any amendment is adopted, the program will die. Those opposing the CARS Program are offering amendments hoping at least one of them will be adopted so the program will be killed.

With regard to the amendment of my friend from New Hampshire, first, me. The bill is already deficit neutral. The $2 billion involved is completely offset with funds already appropriated and they have doubled the number of staff they have had. They have worked to refine and to deal with the immediate concerns because of how quickly the response came in.

So I would just urge that we vote no on the Gregg amendment, no on the Gregg amendment, and no on any other amendment that will kill the most effective stimulus we have passed this year.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, how much time is remaining in opposition to the Kyl amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Eleven minutes.

Mr. LEVIN. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to use that time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, we will soon vote on whether to extend the Cash for Clunkers Program. Rarely has this body passed legislation that has so clearly and quickly met our goals than when it approved the first installment of money for this program earlier this summer. The program offers rebates of $3,500 to $4,500 to consumers who trade in old inefficient vehicles for new cars and trucks with higher mileage. Thousands of consumers have taken advantage of this opportunity to take advantage now wonder whether they will have the opportunity.

It is important to understand the context in which we originally approved this program. Amid the most severe downturn since the Great Depression, auto sales everywhere plummeted—in the United States and around the globe, foreign manufacturers and U.S.-based companies alike. In this U.S. market, month after month auto dealers have reported sales that have fallen 40 percent or more from a year ago. This unprecedented decline has harmed not only the hard-working autoworkers in my home State and other States, but auto suppliers, auto dealers, and small businesses in every community in this Nation. Because the auto industry represents such a large share of this Nation's overall economic activity, as long as this sales decline continues, it will weigh down our economic recovery process.

Many of the oversight goals Senator KYL is seeking to achieve, NHTSA already has the authority to do and there are already working on. NHTSA is already maintaining a database and is working to make it as timely and up to date as possible.

The original legislation also requires a report to Congress that will cover many of the details that are in the Kyl amendment. The legislation also adds the requirement of a GAO study that path that had already been laid out by other nations. In Germany, France, Japan, and other nations, governments recognized the danger to their own auto industries in this time of economic crisis and they acted. Germany's Government established its own version of cash for clunkers, and in June car sales were up 40 percent over the same period a year ago. Other nations saw similar impressive increases.

After just a few days, our efforts have yielded impressive results. This week Ford reported its sales increased in July from a year ago, the first year-over-year increase reported this year by any automaker. Other carmakers, foreign and domestic, saw smaller declines than in previous months. The impact has been so striking that one private economist has raised his estimate for economic growth in the third quarter of this year by more than 50 percent based solely on the success of cash for clunkers.

The program accomplished what it was intended to accomplish. In just a few days, a quarter of a million Americans traded in their old car for a new model using the credits available from this program. That is a quarter of a million American families who, with the help of more fuel-efficient transportation, a quarter of a million transactions that will pump new money into local economies, and an incalculable boost to this Nation's struggling auto industry.

The program has made significant improvements in the fuel efficiency of our Nation's vehicle fleet. According to data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, consumers using this program are buying new vehicles with an average 63 percent improvement in fuel economy over their trade-ins. More than four out of every five vehicles traded in are trucks; nearly three out of five new vehicles are cars. The average mileage improvement per gallon is more than double the program's minimum and far greater than expected.

In short, cash for clunkers has exceeded earlier projections in its ability to get older cars off the road and their damaging emissions out of our skies. Seldom have we had an opportunity to do more for our environment than we do today. Reinforcing and extending this program will get replaced hundreds of thousands more of these environments by vehicles with highly efficient new vehicles.

Some Members have proposed changes to the program by amendment. Some amendments are pending, or will be introduced, that are not related to this program. These may be well-intended amendments, but it is vitally important to keep in mind the need for immediate action. The House of Representatives has sent us a bill that will keep the program running. Any amendments, any amendments that the Senate approves will go back to the House of Representatives where action will be delayed until the House reconvenes in September. So any amendment that is adopted here is the death knell for this program. It would have to end immediately if an amendment is adopted because of the uncertainty over whether funds remain and to what extent. This program is designed to be a one-time stimulus, not a stop-and-start deal, which would make it more complex and confusing.

This situation is not new. We had a similar situation just a week or so ago. When the Senate passed a bill to reauthorize and extend the highway trust fund, an amendment pending to that bill would have prevented the Federal Government from cutting $8.7 billion in transportation funding from several States, including my home State of Michigan. Normally, it would have been a simple decision to vote for that amendment to avoid those cuts. Michigan is in desperate need, and that amendment would seemingly protect hundreds of millions of dollars for my State. Yet I voted against the amendment. I did so because of the time-sensitive nature of the underlying bill. And many others in this body voted against an amendment for that same reason.

The highway trust fund was on the verge of running out of money, and the bill that we were voting on restored funding to keep it solvent through September. With the House of Representatives about to adjourn a week or so ago, any Senate amendment to that bill would have required that it be sent back to the House of Representatives, likely killing the bill. I, and many others here, decided not to risk letting the highway trust fund run out of funds. So what did we do? We voted for the bill, but we voted against an amendment, even though that amendment would have helped our States. What did we instead is we pledged to seek passage of that amendment at a later date to a different legislative vehicle. I opposed every amendment to that bill, as did a majority of my colleagues.

That is the situation we are in now. If we want this program to continue, we have but one choice. We have to vote for it, but we also must vote against all of the amendments that are pending to it, even though those amendments may be attractive standing on their own and in ordinary circumstances. It is going to be difficult for some to vote against these amendments. I understand that. But the issue is going to be, do you want the Cash for Clunkers Program to continue? If any amendment passes, it is the end of that program.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. Coburn from Oklahoma.

AMENDMENT NO. 2304

Mr. COBURN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside and that Coburn amendment No. 2304 be called up.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. Coburn] proposes an amendment numbered 2304.

Mr. COBURN. I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide assistance to charities and families in need)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SECTION 1. ASSISTANCE TO CHARITIES AND FAMILIES IN NEED.

Section 1302 of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2009 (Public Law 111-32; 123 Stat. 1909; 49 U.S.C. 35001 note) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(2)(B), by inserting "or for donation to a charity"; and

(2) in subsection (c)(2)—

(A) in subparagraph (A), strike "For each" and insert "Except as provided in subparagraph (C), for each";

(B) by redesignating subparagraph (C) as subparagraph (D); and

(C) by inserting after paragraph (B) the following:

"(C) DONATION TO CHARITY.—For each eligible vehicle surrender to a dealer under the Program, the dealer may dispose of such vehicle by donating such vehicle to—

"(i) an organization that—

"(I) is described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code, including educational institutions, health care providers, and housing assistance providers described in such section; and

"(II) certifies to the Secretary that the donated vehicle will be used by the organization to further its exempt purpose or function, including to provide transportation of individuals for health care services, education, employment, general use, or other purpose relating to the provision of assistance to those in need, including sales to raise financial support for the organization; or

"(ii) a family that does not have sufficient income to afford, but can demonstrate a need for, an automobile."

Mr. COBURN. Madam President, it is interesting to note what we just heard from the Senator from Michigan about how we can’t fix this program—admitting that there are several things wrong with it—because the House is out of town and we have to pass it. So we are going to do the wrong thing for the right reason.

I have not heard from a dealer in my State that is not for this program. There is no question it is stimulatory. There is no question, however, that the stimulation is one based on time of sales, not on true total stimulation to our economy. What we are doing is stimulating future sales to be bought at this time. But, more importantly, we have two untoward disadvantages that this program is causing which is actually hurting the poorest and the nearest and those of color in this country.

When we wrote this amendment, we went to the Finance Committee. We were told it was not going to score.
When we got to the Joint Economic Committee, they scored this amendment as costing $90 million, but what they did not take into consideration is that if these cars were actually given to charities or to people who did not have a car, it scored exactly the same. In essence, there is no net score with the bill.

The fact is, with this program—because we are destroying half a billion dollars worth of real assets so far in this country, and we are going to destroy $1.2 to $1.3 billion worth of real assets, real cars that charities could really use to give to real people who do not have transportation—we are taking that away. In our tough economic times right now, charities' income is down about 30 percent across the board while the demands on the charitable organizations are up. We all recognize that charities use the contributions of automobiles to then turn around to sell and fund a lot of charities.

What this amendment does is allow the vehicles that are traded in to be donated to poor families or to charities. Why destroy a perfectly good car that somebody in a rural area who cannot get a new care now because they do not have transportation—why destroy that mechanism of opportunity?

I understand there probably will not be the votes for this amendment. But to say we are going to take a perfectly good automobile that somebody less fortunate could utilize for years for transportation purposes, that will elevate them economically, and instead we are going to destroy it, we are going to destroy the opportunity for somebody less fortunate to have that automobile. This program is working for two groups of people: it is working for the auto industry and their dealers, and it is working for anybody who qualifies for the Cash for Clunkers Program. But it is not working for everybody else. This is a small minority of Americans who are going to benefit for a specific industry.

I heard the Senator from Arizona raise the question: Why not golf clubs? Why not RVs? Why not other industries that might be effective and not wasteful. The fact is, with this program—because we have a program and we are already doing it. In Oklahoma we had a car that was traded in that had 10,000 miles on it. They destroyed the engine on the car under this program. Granted, it had poor gas mileage, but that was transportation. Somebody who was poor, transportation to somebody who did not have transportation.

We have been debating health care around here for 6 months. The biggest limitation on access to health care in rural and poor communities is transportation, and we are going to take away an opportunity to give many of those people transportation. We are going to take it away. The schizophrenia of Washington continues to amaze me, and the lack of common sense that is associated with what we do.

I will make one final note. The reason this bill has problems, the reason the Transportation Department is having trouble with it is never went through a committee, never had multiple hearings, had not had an oversight on what we were going to do, and it was done in such a short period of time that we did not even allow the Transportation Department an effective amount of time to set it up. It would be effective and not wasteful.

If you hear any complaints from the dealers, it is they do not know where they stand on whether they are going to get paid. They have no clue right now because the government has not filed paper work, getting that money to them—what we are seeing is a lot of problems with unhappy customers right now at the dealers because the Transportation Department cannot be efficient in administering this program.

I conclude by noting that if this is the standard under which we are going to reenergize our economy, then we ought to apply the same standard to every other industry. If we do, we will not be bankrupt in 11 years, we are going to be bankrupt next year.

I want our auto companies to succeed. There is no question there are stimulatory benefits to what we are doing, but it is at a great cost. As the Senator from New York just noted, the net-net cost is $50,000 per net car that would not have been traded in. It is foolish.

I hope Members of the body will consider this amendment. I know they have been instructed to not consider it.

I will reserve the remainder of my time.
because I strongly support the programs that have donations of automobiles to charities for the very reasons the Senator from Oklahoma talked about.

The reality is that there have been trends against donating cars. In recent years, because of the CARS Program, I have to indicate; it is because of a tax treatment change that was made under the Republican majority back in 2004 that has been a problem. If we want help the charities with automobiles, we would fly the tax treatment that was passed as part of the tax changes that were made under the Republican majority.

Also, many charities have indicated to us that they have not seen a drop in donations due to the program. What is most interesting is that we talked to some who have said they have actually seen an increase due to the heightened awareness of car recycling, particularly in owners who, after researching, find out they are not eligible. They really do not qualify for the CARS Program but they are still looking to take advantage in some way of the deals that are out there on these great new vehicles, made in America. I hope people are going to be doing everything with their vouchers to buy an American-made vehicle. The temporary program has really given people the opportunity to go out and shop and take a look at what is out there.

Pat Jessup, the president of Cars 4 Causes, has said that, “Oddly enough, car donations are up this month. Oddly enough, car donations are up this month.” She adds:

In fact, because of the increase in donations, Cars 4 Causes has staffed up to handle the incoming calls.

What a nice byproduct of all the awareness right now, of the possibilities going out and buying a new vehicle.

To continue quoting her:

Once the conversation about trading in or trading up or donating a car gets the car owners searching possibilities, looking into tax deductions versus cash for the trade-in. Also, some have found their car does not qualify for the Cash for Clunkers Program, but while researching they discover the tax advantages of donating a vehicle. Then they call us.

I appreciate the concerns that have been raised, but, in fact, this program—raising awareness about the cars that are available, the new or more fuel-efficient automobiles that are available in car dealerships all across the country, the ability to use the Cash for Clunkers Program, we are now seeing that other great programs where vehicles are donated to charities have actually gone up.

For that, among many other reasons, particularly because this amendment would kill the CARS Program, I urge a “no” vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. COBURN. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record four news articles published in the last week about how cash for clunkers has negatively impacted charities. This comes from the North-West Cable News, Denver Post, Fox News, and NBC4.com.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

NEWS QUOTES ON HOW CLUNKERS IS HURTING CHARITIES

"Cash for Clunkers" hurting charities—

Some say the popular "Cash for Clunkers" program is taking cash out of the hands of local charities.

Animal Services of Thurston County depends on donations of $100,000 a year that could end from Northwest Charity Donation Service. It's a service that relies on donated cars. But since the "Clunkers" program began, the sales have dropped down by 30 percent from last year.

"It's probably been at least a 40 to 50 percent drop in donations that people can choose to go to a charity of their choice from the area," said Thomas J. Wies, of Northwest Charity Donation Service.

Charities are also concerned that, as more cars end up at salvage yards, there will be fewer inexpensive used cars will be available for working families.

DENVER POST
Charities fear pinch from "clunkers" program.

Areas charities reliant on car donations for funding say the government's "cash for clunkers" program might hurt them. "If the government is going to give them a chunk of change for their clunker, then we're concerned that they're not going to come to us any longer," said Meaghan Carabello of Goodwill Industries Denver. Last year, Goodwill and Cars Helping Charities, the third party that takes in the donations and sells them, took in 1,900 and 3,000 donated cars, respectively.

For Goodwill, that translated to about $220,000 in revenue.

FOXNEWS.COM
"Cash for Clunkers" puts the brakes on donations.

Riteway Charity Services in Sun Valley, Calif., turns thousands of donated cars into money for local food banks, homeless shelters and Boy Scout clubs. They say the recession put a dent in donations; they're down 20 percent from last year.

Now the car rebate program has really put the brakes on the third in line.

Charities can offer a tax write-off as little as $500 next spring. But that just can’t compete with the program handing car buyers rebates of between $3,500 and $4,500 for trading in their gas-guzzlers for new, higher-mileage models.

The latest IRS figures show 300,000 cars were donated under this program this week, but the groups are afraid that donations are going to dry up.

Officials at Goodwill said they are worried that the Cash for Clunkers program will make people cash in their clunkers and close the door on an opportunity to bring in money for local programs.

"When you pull 250,000 cars off the streets, maybe more, that could end up in our lots and help low-income buyers," Knowlton said.

"Every single car is an opportunity. We love every car," Hartley said.

Mr. COBURN. Madam President, I could be a whole lot more comfortable with this bill if you told me there was not another one coming in a month. But the fact is, what we are doing is buying forward sales. Every economist says that. Eighty percent of the sales that come in under cash for clunkers—we are just moving up sales that were going to be there anyway. There is nothing wrong with that as long as we said we would convert in time we are not going to do that.

I wonder if my distinguished colleague from Michigan would commit to the body that we are not going to see another one of these bills in 2 months, 3 months, 4 months, or 5 months, we are going to subsidize the purchase of automobiles by stealing from our children in this country—regardless of the economic benefit for one particular industry. Is there an answer to that question?

The fact that there is no answer to the question means it is not going to stop with this one. As soon as this next program stops, and as soon as we run through the money, the sales are going to go right back down.

But our option to do that is: Well, we have to do another one and another one because we are buying forward sales.

What we need is the health of the economy. I do not deny we need to inject the proper amount of fiscal stimulus, true fiscal stimulus, not a government transfer payment, which is 60 percent of the stimulus bill that was passed, but it is an interesting question: When does it stop?

If we are going to do it for automobiles, and let's say automobiles get healthy but the appliance industry does not, are we going to do it for the appliance industry? How much more can we afford to borrow from our kids? These are legitimate questions that need to be addressed.

I understand the depth and breadth of the difficulties the States in the upper Midwest are feeling from this recession and especially the impact on the automobile companies. I want to be cooperative. I want to see them come out.

But it would certainly give us much less indignation if we knew there was truly going to be an end and not another one of these CARS Programs when the sales dribble right back down because all we did was stimulate forward sales into this sales period.

With that, I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. LEVIN. First, let my thank my friend from Oklahoma for raising some of these questions which are entitled to be debated. We are not alone in having a Cash for Clunkers Program. Other countries, including Germany, have had these programs. So we are not de-signing something from scratch. All auto-producing countries that I know of in the world are fighting to have an auto industry came out at the end of this recession.

Unless we take action in a number of ways, that is not going to happen. So the Cash for Clunkers Program is based on a similar type of program in other countries, including Germany, where it has been very successful.

It is not my intent—to answer the other part of his question—it is surely not my intent that this program continue beyond this extension. No one can give an assurance as to what is going to happen in the future with this body or other Members of this body or, indeed, with myself. But it is not my intent that this be a continued program beyond this extension. The reason it was so essential that we have this extension is it was such a successful program. It sold out so quickly, we think our success actually overwhelmed us.

I don’t believe, as the Senator from Oklahoma does, that people were buying forward. I think maybe the opposite site happened. By the way, I think people may have been waiting until there was this kind of incentive because people are in desperate economic shape. Perhaps some of the people who knew there was going to be such a program may have held back in buying a vehicle.

But also the other prong of this program, besides the economic boost it gives to the economy overall, is the environmental benefit. That is a point which the Senator’s amendment does not address. It is intended to get clunkers off the road, not just to get an economic stimulus into the auto area for sales of vehicles that benefit not just producers but car dealers and suppliers, but there is also a huge environmental benefit which has not only proven itself, but done much better than anybody could have expected.

That is ignored by the Senator’s amendment, because keeping those cars on the road, as the Senator would do, denies the environmental benefit of the Cash for Clunkers Program. That is another reason I would oppose the Senator’s amendment.

Mr. COBURN. Is it not true that the average platoon will run down for 10 weeks?
Mr. LEVIN. I do not know the number.

Mr. COBURN. Maybe 10 weeks. I know Chrysler was down longer than that. Can you explain it? When I drive by the auto dealers, and when I check the statistics with NHTSA, inventories are low.

So we are going to put $2 billion back out, when inventories are at half the level on the car lots of what they normally are. So it, in fact, you pass this, you might ought to spread it out over a period of time so the factories can get the cars to the dealers because that is a significant worrisome part on a lot of my dealers—that if you bring it back now, it is going to be going to have the cars to sell them.

I did make a note before, I say to the chairman. He is my chairman. I get along with him great. I have great admiration for him. I am glad Oklahoma does not have any car manufacturing plants right now. I can tell you that. But I did make a point that it takes 133 billion BTUs to make a Toyota Prius. You have to drive that car, on average, 2 years before you are ever at break-even.

So if you take a used car—and this program does not apply to used cars, right? It applies only to new cars. If you take a used car and compare it to a new car, it is at least 2 1/2 years before you ever get the first benefit, in terms of green, 2 1/2 years.

So we may see a difference in those, but in terms of BTUs consumed, it is 2 1/2 years before you see the first change in terms of carbon footprint under this program. Ultimately, I would admit to you there is a carbon benefit to it.

Mr. LEVIN. In response to the Senator, I think that same point is true with the sale of new cars.
Mr. COBURN. Yes, it is true.

Mr. LEVIN. But the faster we get the more fuel-efficient cars, the better environmental impact we are going to have, even though there is that time period. When there is a carbon footprint that results from the production of the new car.

But you get to that 2 1/2 years faster then if you buy that new car now than if you buy it a year from now or 2 years from now.

Mr. COBURN. Well, 2 years from now, it is going to have 4 or 5 miles better mileage.
Mr. LEVIN. It may. We do not know that.

Mr. COBURN. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama is recognized.

Mr. SHELBY. Madam President, 1 week after commencing the $1 billion extension of Cash for Clunkers Program, it is so popular that it has used up all its funds.

Could it be that through this program, which entices car buyers with up to $4,500 to trade in their old cars, the government has finally devised a smart way to stimulate the economy?

In a word, no.

Instead, the Federal Government has sent another $1 billion of taxpayer funds into the economic abyss with $2 billion of taxpayers’ funds to follow. It has robbed Peter to pay Paul, to give a kickback to the automotive industry.

Advocates of the Cash for Clunkers Program state the additional $2 billion in funding is necessary because the program is such a great success. Of course it is. Who does not want free money?

The Cash for Clunkers Program is simply another bailout to prop up a struggling industry wrapped in the political guise of an environmentally friendly program.

While I agree that there are benefits to getting older, less fuel-efficient vehicles off the road, do not be fooled. That is not even what this program accomplishes.

Let me explain.

Under the Cash for Clunkers Program, it does not matter how big a difference in gas mileage there is between the car you are trading in and the car you are buying.

The trade-in must only meet the 18 miles per gallon requirement to be considered a clunker.

After that, environmental concerns end. As a result, under the Cash for Clunkers Program, replacing an 18 miles per gallon vehicle with one that offers 22 miles per gallon gets a subsidy.

But you do not receive any Federal funds if you replace a 19 miles per gallon vehicle with one that gets 40 miles per gallon.

If improving gas mileage is the goal, then a sliding scale that adjusted the subsidy with the difference in gas mileage between old and new cars would seem reasonable.

Or if reducing emissions from older cars is the objective, the subsidy could be larger for trading in older vehicles. The Cash for Clunkers Program does not do either.

So, if there are no significant environmental benefits, then the goal must be to help stimulate the economy.

Yet the program has done little to actually stimulate the economy.

Many of the individuals taking advantage of the program’s subsidies are not new car buyers spurred by this incentive package, but instead those who put their purchase on hold waiting for the program to launch.

Simply put, these buyers would have bought the car anyway.

Edmunds.com, a noted online site for car sales, stated this number could buy 100,000 car buyers.

Further, Edmunds also published an analysis showing that in any given month, 60,000 to 70,000 “clunker-like” deals happen with no government program in place.

Therefore, the 200,000 deals the government was originally prepared to fund through the Cash for Clunkers Program were likely the natural “clunker” trade-in rate.

This program squeezed months of normal activity into just a few days. When the backlog is met, interest in the program will fade, and the façade of economic benefit will disappear.

The Cash for Clunkers Program is a shell game of transferring wealth from the pockets of one taxpayer to another. We should call it what it really is, another billion dollar auto bailout.

This program is little more than a clunker itself.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. VITTER. I ask unanimous consent to call up Vitter amendment No. 2303 to the pending legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

AMENDMENT NO. 2303

Mr. VITTER. I ask unanimous consent to call up Vitter amendment No. 2303 to the pending legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.
The legislative clerk reads as follows: The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. VITTER] proposes an amendment numbered 2303.

Mr. VITTER. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 2303

(Purpose: To provide for a date certain for termination of the Troubled Asset Relief Program.)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 1. TERMINATION OF TARP.

Section 120 of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (12 U.S.C. 5320) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (b); and

(2) by striking "(a) TERMINATION..."

Mr. VITTER. I urge bipartisan support of the Vitter amendment. It is very simple and straightforward but important: It ends the TARP bailout program on a date certain, the date certain originally set out, which is December 31 of this year.

Under the TARP bailout legislation, the program is supposed to end on that date. There was some fine print. The fine print said the Treasury Secretary unilaterally can say: No, we need to extend it. On his own, with no additional vote of Congress, he can extend it until October 3, 2010.

I think this extension would be absolutely contrary to the best interests of the Nation, and I believe we should act and simply take that extension authority back and wind down the program and end the program, the bailout, in an orderly way on the original intended date of December 31 of this year.

I think we should do this for three clear reasons. First of all, the biggest reason is simply the TARP bailout program was rushed through Congress in what was described as an impending and indeed a cataclysmic crisis. We were told by several experts certainly, including the Treasury Secretary and the Chairman of the Federal Reserve, that the financial system was in imminent danger of collapsing. I am not exaggerating. I am simply repeating their statements from last fall.

So Congress, certainly over my objection, passed the TARP bailout program in that atmosphere of absolute crisis. Well, what we were actually getting toward recovery and what we see for the next year. But I think we can all agree that imminent collapse, if it was ever before us, is not before us now; that huge so-called cataclysmic crisis, if it was ever a threat, has passed. So the whole rationale for the extraordinary $700 billion TARP bailout program, that crisis, has clearly passed.

Again, I am not saying we are out of this recession. I am not saying we are not in tough economic times. I am not saying we do not have a lot further to go in recovery. I am saying no one believes the world financial system is in imminent danger of collapse or will be, thankfully, anytime soon.

Clearly, the entire rationale for such an extraordinary and unprecedented use of government power and intervention and the use of $700 billion of taxpayer funds, the rationale has passed. Reason No. 2 is that the TARP bailout, in practice, has become nothing more than a political slush fund and has been used in many different ways, never as it was originally designed.

Of course, when it was originally proposed, that it was a toxic asset purchase program; it would be used for one purpose and one purpose only—for the government to buy toxic assets to get them off the balance sheets of troubled financial institutions. That was the sum and substance, 100 percent of the original design and rationale. As we all now, it never was used in that way. Literally within a few weeks of Congress passing the program last fall, it morphed completely. By the original end, it was used to buy toxic assets anymore. Then it morphed into an equity investment program for the largest banks that were deemed too big to fail. That, of course, has been carried out to the tune of not just $700 billion but trillions of dollars, and this money is constantly reprocessed.

Next TARP was morphed again and used as a slush fund to bail out two auto companies. Specifically, the administration—at the time, the Bush administration—said: No, TARP is not about manufacturers, auto companies, at all. It is not about that. It is about financial institutions. Nevertheless, it was morphed again, used as a slush fund to bail out two auto companies.

And there are many different, smaller programs which have been devised and funded out of the TARP bailout slush fund.

TARP has been consistently used by the government for whatever different purpose, whatever new bright idea the administration—first, the Bush administration and now the Obama administration—decides is a good thing to do. It has truly become a slush fund, open-ended, no limits, that the administration can use pretty much however it wants. There doesn’t seem to be any real or meaningful limitation. So far the original $700 billion program has grown to reach $3 trillion. That is because some money is paid out. It is paid back in. It is reprocessed.

According to SIGTARP, the group that monitors this, the total financial exposure of TARP and TARP-related programs, when we look at all of the myriad activities, may reach $3 trillion.

Third and finally, the third important reason we should establish this date certain to wind down the TARP bailout slush fund is that from the very beginning, TARP has not been transparent. It has been very opaque. It has been ripe for fraud and misuse. Unfortunately, there are numerous pieces of evidence and media accounts to bear this out. For instance, on July 21, Neil Barofsky, special inspector general for the TARP program, issued a quarterly report to Congress. In it, he said: As of June 30, there are 35 ongoing criminal and civil investigations about misuses of money; Federal felony charges against Gordon Grigg, FTC action against misleading use of MakingHomeAffordable.gov, and on and on.

In its quarterly report issued in July, SIGTARP said that the Treasury “has repeatedly failed to adopt recommendations that SIGTARP believes are essential to providing basic transparency and fulfill Treasury’s stated commitment to implement TARP with the highest degree of accountability and transparency possible.”

Specifically, SIGTARP had four key recommendations, and they have not been implemented in any meaningful way.

The Vitter amendment is very simple, very straightforward. Let’s take back the unilateral authority the Secretary of the Treasury now has to extend it, to extend it by the original end date for the TARP bailout fund—December 31 of this year. Let’s take back the unilateral authority the Secretary of the Treasury now has to extend it, to extend it by the original end date for the TARP bailout fund—December 31 of this year. Let’s take back the unilateral authority the Secretary of the Treasury now has to extend it, to extend it by the original end date for the TARP bailout fund—December 31 of this year.

Mr. ISAKSON. I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be referred to the Senate Finance Committee, and the clerk call up amendment 2306.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk reads as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. ISAKSON] proposes an amendment numbered 2306.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide an income tax credit for certain home purchases, and to transfer to the Treasury unobligated funds made available by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act in the amount of the reduction in revenue resulting from such credit.)

On page 3, after line 11, insert the following:

Effective on the date of the enactment of this Act—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subpart A of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting after section 220 the following new section:

"SEC. 25E. CREDIT FOR CERTAIN HOME PURCHASES.

"(1) ALLOWANCE OF CREDIT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an individual who is a purchaser of a principal residence during the taxable year, there shall be
(2) DOLLAR LIMITATION.—The amount of the credit allowed under paragraph (1) shall not exceed $15,000.

(3) ALLOCATION OF CREDIT AMOUNT.—At the election of the taxpayer, the amount of the credit allowed under paragraph (1) (after application of paragraph (2)) may be equally divided among the 2 taxable years beginning with the taxable year in which the purchase of the principal residence is made.

(b) In the case of a taxable year to which section 26(a)(2) does not apply, the credit allowed under subsection (a) for the taxable year shall not exceed the excess of—

(A) the sum of the regular tax liability (as defined in section 26(b)) plus the tax imposed by this chapter for any other principal residence, the basis of such residence shall be reduced by the amount of such credit.

(B) the sum of the credits allowable under this subpart (other than this section) for the taxable year.

(5) TO THE EXTENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—If a credit is allowed under this section in the case of any individual (and such individual's spouse, if married with respect to the purchase of any principal residence, no credit shall be allowed under this section in any taxable year with respect to the purchase of any other principal residence, the basis of such residence shall be reduced by the amount of such credit.

(B) JOINT PURCHASE.—In the case of a purchase of a principal residence by 2 or more unmarried individuals or by 2 married individuals filing separately, no credit shall be allowed under this section if a credit under this section has been allowed to any of such individuals in any taxable year with respect to the purchase of any other principal residence.

(c) PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE.—For purposes of this section, the term 'principal residence' has the same meaning as when used in section 121.

(d) SIGNAL OF DOUBLE BENEFIT.—No credit shall be allowed under this section for any purchase for which a credit is allowed under section 96 or section 1400C.

(e) SPECIAL RULES.—

(1) JOINT PURCHASE.—

(A) MARRIED INDIVIDUALS FILING SEPARATELY.—In the case of 2 married individuals filing separately, subsection (a) shall be applied to each such individual by substituting $7,500 for $15,000 in subsection (a)(1).

(B) UNMARRIED INDIVIDUALS.—If 2 or more individuals (whether married or not) purchase a principal residence, the amount of the credit allowed under subsection (a) shall be allocated to the individuals in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe, except that the total amount of the credits allowed to all such individuals shall not exceed $15,000.

(2) PURCHASE.—In defining the purchase of a principal residence, rules similar to the rules of paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 1400C(c) shall apply to the purchase of a principal residence made after December 31, 2009, for purposes of this subsection.

(3) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Rules similar to the rules of section 1400C(c) (as in effect November 1, 2008) shall apply to the purchase of a principal residence made after December 31, 2009, for purposes of this subsection.

(4) RECAPTURE OF CREDIT IN THE CASE OF CERTAIN DISPOSITIONS.—

(36) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (37) and inserting ‘‘, and’’, and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

‘‘(38) to the extent provided in section 25E(g).’’.

(3) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subpart A of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 25 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 25D the following new item:

‘‘Sec. 25E. Credit for certain home purchases.’’.

(4) SUNSET OF CURRENT FIRST-TIME HOMEOWNER CREDIT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—

(B) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by paragraphs (1) through (4) shall apply to purchases made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(5) TRANSFERS TO THE GENERAL FUND.—From time to time, the Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer to the general fund of the Treasury an amount equal to the reduction in revenues to the Treasury resulting from the amendments made by paragraphs (1) through (4). Notwithstanding section 5 of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Pub. L. 111-5), such amounts shall be transferred from the amounts appropriated or made available and remaining unobligated under such Act.

Mr. ISAKSON. Madam President, I want to address this amendment for a moment, and I want to set the stage for the amendment. This amendment was first offered by myself and others in January of 2008. It is an amendment that would provide a $15,000 income tax credit to a family that purchases or builds a new home for their children or other family dwelling in the United States, regardless of their age, their income, or their State. Six months later, in the middle of 2008, the Finance Committee did pass a $7,500 tax credit which was an interest-free loan trying to incentivize first-time home buyers to come to the market. But because it was a loan, it didn’t do anything. So in December of last year, we changed it to an $8,000 tax credit for only first-time home buyers with incomes less than $75,000 for individuals and $150,000 for couples.

It has worked. In fact, if we look at sales figures from January through July, we will find that entry-level housing, that housing under $180,000 has actually begun to recover. And but if we examine the marketplace, we find terrible numbers, such as the following: 47 percent of all the homes in the United States of America are worth less than what is owed upon them. That is a tragedy. Worst of all, in the month of June, 57 percent of all sales in America were foreclosures or short sales; 43 percent were arm’s-length sales. The housing market continues to flounder. Values continue to decline, and equities continue to disappear.

This amendment is added to the cash for clunkers bill for a very important reason. As Senators STABENOW and LEVIN will tell us, the up-to-$4,500 incentive to buy a new, fuel-efficient car by trading in an old gas-guzzling car worked. It worked so well that in 1 week the money disappeared.

That demonstrates what I have known all my life. Positive incentives cause positive results. The problem is, though, it was not the automobile market that disappeared first in America. It was the collapse of housing in the last quarter of 2007, which accelerated in early 2008, which pulled away the equity, reduced the amount of credit folks had and caused car loans to go bad and so they did not buy cars. Only the only way we will ever turn the U.S. economy around is to return the biggest engine of the U.S. economy and that is the construction industry and single-family construction and single-family housing.

Right now we are stagnant. The problem is not with first-time buyers. It is with move-up buyers. It is the fellow who has transferred from Atlanta, GA to Hartford, CT who can’t sell the house he bought because he can’t buy a house in Connecticut because he doesn’t have the equity out of Atlanta. This tax credit does not take other people’s tax money and give it to you to buy a house. It gives you a credit against the taxes that you owe. Rather than buying a depreciable asset such as a car, you are buying an appreciable asset such as real estate. It has a multiplier effect.

What we offered this amendment last year, it was estimated by one economist that it would create 700,000 sales in one year and 685,000 jobs. If there is anything America needs, it is just that. So just as cash for clunkers has demonstrated that positive rewards can cause positive actions on behalf of the consumer, so too would the tax credit do the same.

By the way, the cost of this credit is estimated by CBO at $34.2 billion. In January, they said there was not much money. Since then we have spent $85 billion on AIG, $700 billion on TARP, $787 billion on a stimulus, and we are still floundering; and $34 billion sounds like a pretty cheap price to address what is the principle problem in the economy. This amendment says it is paid for. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to transfer from the stimulus money to the Internal Revenue Service the claims to cover the tax credits filed by homeowners when they pay their taxes for the houses they have purchased.

Finally and most importantly, there is a rude awakening coming in America, and it is coming on November 30, 2009. That is when the existing tax credit for first-time home buyers goes away. The last incentive for an arm’s-length sale will have disappeared. If we think we have economic difficulties now, wait until that happens. But with the stimulus money from the date of its passage 1 year ahead, which would be sometime in August of next year, a $15,000 nonmeans-tested credit to replace the $8,000 means-tested credit. If the economists are right—not me—it will do the one thing the U.S. economy desperately needs. It will generate a legitimate housing market. Values will stabilize. We will reflate in the value of homes. People will buy more cars because of that than they will because of cash for clunkers. So we want to take the evidence of the success of this program, take what we already know has worked in a means-tested manner in first-time home buyers, and expand it across America, because every American is suffering in this economy. Every American deserves us to look for positive incentives to bring the economy back, restore their equity, improve their value, and return them to the future. I hope the men and women of the Senate will adopt this amendment.

To those who are going to say, we can’t do it because the House is gone, I ask this question: If we were talking about health care and one body had passed it, the House would be back here in a New York minute. They could come back in a hurry, and we know it. Restoring our economy is important. Recovering the equity of our homes is important. Repaying the American people for the dissipation of our marketplace is important. The home buyer’s tax credit will do it. I urge my colleagues to vote yes on the Isakson amendment.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

AMENDMENT NO. 2303

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I rise to address the Vitter amendment. The Senator from Louisiana has offered an amendment that would end the so-called TARP program on December 31 of this year and remove the Secretary of the Treasury’s discretion to extend the deadline until October of next year. I cannot say it won’t be a popular idea, but I think it is important to point out that we are far from being out of the woods in terms of the economic difficulties we face. Members don’t need to hear that from me. We still have about 20,000 people a day losing their jobs. We have around 10,000 people a day getting foreclosure notices on their homes. We know there is still an emerging problem with commercial real estate that has yet to be addressed. It is looming out there and we know it. The housing market is stagnant, even though there have been Herculean efforts offered by our colleague from Georgia, who just spoke, for first-time home buyers on which I joined him to provide some incentives for people to move forward, including his most recent proposal. Losses on bank balance sheets are increasing still despite the fact that there are very positive signs. The market needs time as there seems to be an improvement, even a sort of improvement in the right direction. But at this juncture, anyone who can say there is no longer any reason for us to ask what funds remain will not be asked the TARP program, this is not adding to the funds. This is merely a question of whether the program ought to be terminated at the end of this year or extended for about 7 or 8 months into next year.

I urge my colleagues not to, at this juncture—without anyone beingclairvoyant—anyone who sits here and tells you there is no longer any need for this, I do not think is listening very carefully or watching very carefully what is occurring because I do not think they exist of any of these additional funds within the TARP program.

So while we would all like the crisis to be behind us, and we would all like to stand here and say there is no longer going to be any need for any of these additional funds within the TARP program, I do not know of any one of us who could say with certainty what the future holds.

I believe it is very important we have this authority extended beyond the 31st of December into October of next year. And if we do not extend it, anyone, none of us who just spoke, for first-time home buyers, the secretary has made a difference over these past 31 months than to abandon the program. This is merely a question of whether the program ought to be terminated at the end of this year or extended for about 7 or 8 months into next year.

With that, when the vote occurs on the Vitter amendment, offered by our colleague from Louisiana, I would urge our colleagues to reject this amendment, not because we do not want to extend the program, we do, but because we are in favor of more resources going to TARP. That would be a hard vote. This merely says: Does the program get to extend beyond the 31st of December of this year? There is no request here for additional funding—the funds that exist and to extend it for another 8 or 10 months to give us the opportunity to respond, should the facts require it.

I do not think we want to look back, in January or February, and have to go back through originating or starting all over again another program, given the difficulties I think we would face trying to achieve that result. It is better to keep the program that has been in place and has been working and which we have a different opportunity in the past few months than to abandon the program at this juncture when the program very well may be needed.

With those thoughts in mind, I would urge our colleagues at the appropriate time to reject this amendment.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.
Ms. STABENOW. Madam President, I also rise in opposition to the Vitter amendment.

First of all, this amendment, as my distinguished colleague has indicated, would limit the government’s options in dealing with the financial crisis by prohibiting the Treasury from exercising its discretion—extension authority. It would take away a very important option at this time that we should be retaining and, frankly, send the wrong signals to the markets when our markets are so fragile.

At a time when we are beginning to see small signs of improvement, small signs—and we will not see real signs until people have jobs and are working again—but restricting the administration’s ability to stabilize the financial markets is dangerous and it is counterproductive to our economic growth.

Unfortunately, this amendment would actually undercut one of the most effective programs to help the economy we have seen. We know, as we have said before, that if there are any amendments that are adopted, then this effectively kills the CARS Program.

So for a multitude of reasons, I would urge a “no” vote on this particular amendment.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, will my colleague yield for a moment?

Ms. STABENOW. Madam President, I am happy to yield.

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I inquiry why I appreciate the Senator’s comments—I inquired how much in resources are remaining in the TARP program. I suspect it is a question where my colleagues would like to know what remains or what has come back. As a result of a number of financial institutions having paid the money back, I am now told we have something around $700 billion left in the TARP program or that is what remains of the $700 billion. There is every anticipation there will be resources continuing to flow back in.

So I want to provide some assurance to our colleagues that I do not see any circumstance in which, at this juncture, there would be a request for additional TARP funds. I think that is probably on people’s minds. So by extending the program into October of next year, it is very important my colleagues understand we are not asking for any additional funds. The funds that remain in the program and that will come back could be used—hopefully will not need to be used—for any emergency that occurs after December 31.

But there are adequate resources there that should make it unnecessary for this body to come back and to seek additional funds in the TARP program. I think it is an important point to make for our colleagues.

Madam President, I thank my colleague for yielding.

Ms. STABENOW. Madam President, it was my great pleasure to yield and I appreciate the distinguished chairman of the Banking Committee for his comments, as he has led us on so many of these issues to bring us out of an incredibly difficult economic situation for the country.

AMENDMENT NO. 2396

Madam President, I also wish to speak, briefly, on the Isakson amendment. At other times, in other places, I absolutely agree we need to continue to jump-start the housing market. I think we have seen that the $8,000 first-time home buyer tax credit has been a positive. I support it.

When we look at what families choose to purchase, what their biggest purchases are, for most families it is their home and it is their automobile. We have actually modeled the CARS Program after the same kind of argument that caused the Congress and the President to support the stimulus, the $8,000 first-time home buyer tax credit. I think we ought to seriously look at ways to expand that, and I very much appreciate the leadership of the Senator from Georgia on this issue.

But the reality is, if we were to adopt this amendment to help those who are interested in buying a home, we would hurt people who need to buy an automobile and the stimulus that has worked so well, so quickly, in the CARS Program.

So I would ask for a “no” vote on this particular amendment simply because, at this point in time, we know what’s happened—and we know what is happening here. Those who are opposed to the underlying bill, to the CARS Program, know if there are any amendments that are adopted, then the entire program will be ended. It will be done.

We are hearing from auto dealers all across the country, as well as consumers, as well as those who provide the materials for automobiles—we have heard from the steel industry, we have heard from the rubber industry, we have heard from those who benefited from advertising, we have heard from all those in the long line of people who benefit from the auto industry and manufacturing in this country—that this has worked in stimulating the economy, getting people back into showrooms.

Even if people do not qualify for the program, they get back into the showroom, and they look around at these great American cars. I will say, a lot of them are made in Michigan. We look for those. But the reality is, there are great automobiles that are out there now, and people are taking this time to go in and to shop and buy automobiles, even if they are not part of the program.

So we are hearing from dealers all across the country talking about the success of this program. It is something for consumers, something people can see that is tangible. It is not just a debate about what might happen sometime in the future, but it is about right here, right now, how do we help consumers?

The added benefit, as we know, is that because we said you need to buy a more fuel-efficient vehicle, we are seeing, in fact, the fuel economy go up, savings go up. We are told right now the average vehicle that is being turned in gets a little over 15 miles per gallon. That is about $1,000 back in somebody’s pocket saved on gasoline. And, boy, wouldn’t we all like to have $1,000 back in our pockets right now as a result of a stimulus program that supports people’s efforts to get into a more fuel-efficient vehicle? This has been a winner on every front.

We know, at this point in time—after the quick action in the House of Representatives last Friday when it became clear the initial funding was going to be running out—we have known since then, with the House gone, the opportunity to continue this program depends upon our willingness to step up and support the House bill without changes. We all know that.

I would challenge anyone offering an amendment if their amendment is passed, does that mean we have their vote on the underlying bill? Because that would be a cruel and unusual punishment. At the moment, I think what we have are ideas that are good and ideas that are not that are being offered. But everybody knows, in the end, any amendment that is adopted, no matter how well-entrenched, or even if it is well-intended efforts, good ideas, good ideas such as the Isakson amendment, which in another venue I have supported and will support—but right now, on this bill, if we make any changes, we are saying to every small business dealer, every dealer across the country; We don’t care whether this has worked, we don’t care whether this is effective, we don’t want to support you, and we don’t want to continue it. We are saying the same thing to consumers. We are saying the same thing to consumers who care desperately about the auto industry and manufacturing in this country.

So I am very hopeful we will reject all the amendments that are in front of us. On those I support, in terms of the substance, I look forward to working with colleagues in the future, to come back in other ways to put forward these ideas. There are certainly very good ideas that have been put forward, and we will put forward ideas that I do not believe are positive.

But right now the only question in front of us is: Do you support the CARS Program? Do you support the small business dealers across this country? Do you believe this economic stimulus should be continued? And, I am convinced that there are ideas that have worked so well?

I have to say, in closing, I have said before, my father and my grandfather were auto dealers back in the days of Oldsmobile, which rates me. But I know what it was like living in a small town where this dealership was so important in terms of employment, in terms of supporting the community.
and all that was going on. I know how hard they worked.

My first job was washing cars on the car lot. I understand all that goes into a family-owned business and how much our dealers and their communities, about their business, about their employees. This is about them. This is about supporting people who support their communities, who create jobs, who have had a very, very, very tough time in the economy.

Here we have the great opportunity to support something, not based on faith, not based on some intellectual argument but based on the fact it is working and urge all my colleagues to vote no on the amendments and to join us in extending, as we go into the August recess, a very important and effective stimulus for the American economy.

Thank you very much, Madam President.

Mrs. MURRAY. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, how much time is left in opposition to the Isakson amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A full 15 minutes.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent—I am not sure who controls the time in opposition—that I be allowed to use 3 minutes of that time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, the Isakson amendment is an example of an amendment which is not only well intended but amendment that I happen to favor and have favored on a number of occasions on this floor.

One of the problems, though, is it is very clear we have a choice before us. We are going to have an extension of the Cash for Clunkers Program, with passage of the House bill without any changes in it, or it is going to die.

Passage of the Isakson amendment is not only well intended, but as good an amendment as it is, it will defeat both. We cannot get the Isakson amendment passed into law by adopting it here. It would be added to a bill which is going to nowhere except to a House which would be added to a bill which is going to die.

We cannot get the Isakson amendment as it is, it will defeat both. It is not only well intended, but as good an amendment which is not only well intended but an amendment that I happen to support something, not based on faith, not based on some intellectual argument but based on the fact it is working and urge all my colleagues to vote no on the amendments and to join us in extending, as we go into the August recess, a very important and effective stimulus for the American economy.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, in my opinion the pending amendment is the Isakson amendment, and he has 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, I have an amendment to my amendment that I send to the desk. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to make a modification to my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2300

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I believe the pending amendment is the Harkin amendment, and he has 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, I believe the pending amendment is the Harkin amendment, and he has 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Reserving the right to object, and I will object for reasons I have discussed with Senator HARKIN, any amendment to this bill will end the bill. It is a death knell for the bill. The modification also would have another delay even if it didn’t kill the bill, even if it was passed and the House was able to adopt it. It requires regulations to be adopted which would take time. It would be a stopping and starting of the program. It would create a great deal of confusion.

This is an extremely well-intended amendment. I give Senator Harkin a lot of credit for what he is aiming to do. But, I cannot achieve its purpose the way it is drafted. The way it would be modified would take a significant period of time to be modified. It would result in a stop-and-start situation of the Cash for Clunkers Program. So, reluctantly, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator has 1 minute on his amendment.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, in good faith last year, I tried to get this in the bill and it didn’t work. I tried it again with this amendment. I was informed there was a problem with it, which I recognized. I tried to again in good faith offer a modification to it. My friend from Michigan is right; it does require some determinations by the Secretary which probably would take some time. I am not certain that is all that much of a reason to not allow it.
I still believe there should be an income cap. But the way the amendment is now drafted, quite frankly, I couldn’t even support it because it didn’t do what I originally wanted to do. There was an error in drafting. I tried to amend it. I can’t seem to get the job done because of the time constraint. There was an action on my amendment; therefore under the rules, I have to have consent to get it modified. I have heard an objection to that. Since I can’t get it done, since I can’t modify it, I move to table my own amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time remains on the amendment, so the motion to table will have to wait until the time has expired.

Mr. HARKIN. Well, I will not have any time left.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. The Senator has a right to table his amendment. I would simply say that while he is correct that his amendment would be better if it were modified, and he would have had no objection on our side to that modification, it still makes an important point and I think it would have been supported by many people on our side of the aisle. I, frankly, would vote against the motion to table myself because I think it does make an important point, and I think we should be able to debate it and dispose of it.

The Senator has a right to table his amendment. I would urge those on our side to vote against the motion to table.

Have the yeas and nays been ordered? The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to table is in order now.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, I move to table my amendment.

Mr. KYL. I ask for the yeas and nays. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be.

The question is on agreeing to the motion.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. BYRD), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY), and the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI) are necessarily absent.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The amendment (No. 2301), as modified, was rejected.
The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Gregg amendment is the pending question.

The motion to raise a point of order was agreed to. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Madam President, I don't happen to agree with this proposal, but what I certainly don't agree with is that my colleagues don't agree with—is that we should be paying for this by putting the debt on our children's backs. Yet that is exactly what is going to happen.

The chairman of the Appropriations Committee in the House has been very fortuitous. He said he spoke to the White House, he spoke to the Speaker, and he said the funds with which this program is being funded were taken out of the stimulus, and what he is going to do is replenish the stimulus. So we are essentially going to borrow twice to do this program, and both times we are borrowing from our kids.

My amendment simply enforces our ability to actually pay for this program, which is what we should do—do no fig leaves, just a real exercise in actually paying for a program, rather than passing the bill on to our kids, as we seem to do around here so regularly. I hope people would vote for this amendment.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, this amendment would have an across-the-board cut to the appropriations bill of $2 billion, including appropriations bills that have already passed. It is a recipe for chaos in the appropriations process. The pay-for is in the bill for this $2 billion package.

In addition to all of that, any amendment to this bill will kill the program. So if you want to kill the program as well as I have in the appropriations process, then you will vote for the Gregg amendment; otherwise, you will vote no.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I raise a point of order that the pending amendment violates section 201 of S. Con. Res. 21, the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2008.

Mr. COBURN. Madam President, I move to waive the applicable section of the budget Act with respect to my amendment.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 46, nays 51, as follows:

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 2303

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There will now be 2 minutes equally divided prior to a vote on the Vitter amendment No. 2303.

The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, this amendment is very simple. It simply says the TARP bailout fund will end when we originally said it would end: December 31 of this year. Under the original TARP bill, the Treasury Secretary has the authority to extend it another almost full year, until October of 2010. We would take that authority away. We would retain that responsibility and say we will wind down the TARP bailout fund at the end of this year.

Clearly, the crisis, the imminent collapse of the financial system, has passed and is not before us. If we are serious about the bailout being temporary, being necessary because of truly unusual circumstances, if we are serious about that, we will vote yes on this amendment and end TARP at the end of this year in an orderly way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, this amendment would terminate the program at the end of this year. While there are certainly very positive signs that the economy is improving, all of us are painfully aware of how much further we have to travel before the economy is truly back on its feet. The foreclosure rate and the unemployment rate are still troubling.

This is not a request for additional money. There is about $170 billion left in the TARP program. It would be premature and unwise for us to terminate a program without knowing yet that we have actually come out of difficult times. I urge colleagues to reject this amendment. What this does is sustain the program beyond December 31 of this year into October of next year. Then, hopefully, we won’t need these resources. Hopefully, we won’t have to use another nickel of this money. But I don’t think we want to come back in February and March and all of a sudden have to restart a program such as this because we haven’t achieved all the success we would like in getting our economy back on its feet.

I say respectfully to my friend from Louisiana, I urge colleagues to reject the Vitter amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. VITTER. I ask for the yeas and nays.

NOT VOTING—3

Amendment (No. 2305) was rejected.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. SCHUMER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I believe the final amendment is now in order, the Isakson amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct. There is 2 minutes of debate divided equally on the amendment.

Who yields time?

The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, very simply, this is the amendment to help our economy recover. The Senator from Washington, the Senator from Connecticut, the chairman of the Banking Committee, are co-sponsors of the main bill. It provides a $15,000 tax credit for the purchase of any home in America during the next 12 months. It will make the difference. It does not do anything to the base bill.

For those who would say we cannot do it because the House is gone, we can do anything if we want to. It is time we address the central core issue to our economy; the housing market.

I urge all my friends to support the Isakson amendment to provide the $15,000 tax credit.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, this is another well-intended amendment. It is an amendment, indeed, that many of us have voted for in a slightly different form in a different place. However, it would represent the death knell for this program. So if you believe the Cash for Clunkers Program is a successful program and should be extended, this amendment needs to be defeated and raised at a different point.

We will not get the Isakson amendment. I urge all of us to reject it. All we will do is stop the Cash for Clunkers Program from continuing. That seems to me to be the choice, which is a fundamental one. I hope we defeat the Isakson amendment.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I raise a point of order that the pending amendment violates section 201 of S. Con. Res. 21, the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2008. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I move to waive the applicable section of the Budget Act with respect to my amendment and ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

Mr. SCHUMER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.
Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. BYRD), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY), and the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI) are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEAHY. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, pursuant to section 493(E)1 of the fiscal year 2010 budget resolution, S. Con Res. 13, I raise a point of order against the emergency designation provision contained in the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Ms. STABBN. Mr. President, for the sake of all of my colleagues, this would kill the CARS program for 160,000 dealers and consumers across the country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order is not debatable.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. President, auto jobs form the backbone of American manufacturing, especially in the Midwest. Millions of Americans and jobs in my home—state of Missouri more than 200,000 workers, depend on the auto industry for their livelihoods.

Unfortunately all of those jobs were at risk when the big three domestic auto companies almost went completely under.

Recognizing the importance of this industry to our economy and millions of workers, the government acted to protect these auto jobs.

One of those actions was to pass the Cash for Clunkers Program. I supported this program because I thought it would help save thousands of jobs at auto dealers, parts plant, and assembly plants.

Also, this program was designed to help consumers with the cost of more fuel-efficient cars and, ultimately, in the long-term benefit the environment with reduced emissions.

This is one government program that has actually exceeded everyone’s expectation.

Folks in Missouri and across the Nation have been flocking to once rather empty car lots.

This is one government program that has actually exceeded everyone’s expectation.

Folks in Missouri and across the Nation have been flocking to once rather empty car lots.

In fact, there were tens of thousands of new car purchases made through the program after only a week.

The President’s decision to continue funding the cash for clunkers program will allow consumers to purchase new cars, delivering a real economic stimulus to our States. As evidenced by the extraordinary response to the program thus far, this is a win-win. It provides much-needed jobs and resources to our states and promotes fuel efficient cars to benefit our environment, reducing our dependence on foreign oil. I am thankful the additional $3 billion for this program is being taken from the already enacted stimulus package which I voted against earlier this year. Unfortunately, programs that would provide real stimulus like cash for clunkers and robust highway and infrastructure investments were not part of the original stimulus package. These types of direct tangible investments provide not only jobs through dealers, manufacturers, and auto suppliers, but usable assets for taxpayers. I am hopeful that this program will continue to provide much-needed relief to the Ohio’s automotive manufacturers.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, auto jobs form the backbone of American manufacturing, especially in the Midwest. Millions of Americans and jobs in my home—state of Missouri more than 200,000 workers, depend on the auto industry for their livelihoods.

Unfortunately all of those jobs were at risk when the big three domestic auto companies almost went completely under.

Recognizing the importance of this industry to our economy and millions of workers, the government acted to protect these auto jobs.

One of those actions was to pass the Cash for Clunkers Program. I supported this program because I thought it would help save thousands of jobs at auto dealers, parts plant, and assembly plants.

Also, this program was designed to help consumers with the cost of more fuel-efficient cars and, ultimately, in the long-term benefit the environment with reduced emissions.

This is one government program that has actually exceeded everyone’s expectation.

Folks in Missouri and across the Nation have been flocking to once rather empty car lots.

In fact, there were tens of thousands of new car purchases made through the program after only a week.
Cash for Clunkers has given a much needed jump-start to dealers and the auto industry that have been suffering with the worst car sales in recent history.

This program has benefitted consumers and small businesses on the other end of this trade, not only helping auto dealers sell more vehicles, but allowing consumers to trade in their older and less efficient cars with new models that are more fuel-efficient, thus helping the environment. This has also been a much needed boost to the economy, now, when we sorely need it.

This program promised that it would have worked better than the misnamed Recovery Act. Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am pleased to support this bill, which will provide additional funding to the popular Consumer Assistance to Recycle and Enact Clean Transport Act, or CARS, for short. While not perfect, CARS has encouraged Americans to trade in their older and less fuel-efficient vehicles while boosting new car sales and helping to revive local economies in Wisconsin and across the country, something that is sorely needed in these difficult economic times.

CARS began almost 2 weeks ago and in that time, interest in CARS has far exceeded most initial expectations for the program. Despite some problems with implementation of the program, it should be temporarily extended to help ensure that Americans who still want to participate in the program can do so, and that deals which have already been made in reliance on the program can go through. At the same time, I hope the Department of Transportation will listen to the concerns from car dealers and consumers and make improvements to help ensure CARS operates more smoothly in the coming weeks.

I am pleased that the Department of Transportation has fixed one problem created in implementing CARS. When Congress created the CARS program earlier this year, it fully intended to ensure that Wisconsin and all states which are in compliance with the statute’s requirements, including provisions related to car insurance, be allowed to participate in the CARS program. The Transportation Department issued a final rule almost 2 weeks ago that set the guidelines for the CARS program. This rule included a requirement that individuals who wanted to trade in their vehicles had to demonstrate proof of car insurance for at least one year prior to the trade-in, a requirement which statutorily language stating that a trade-in vehicle be “continuously insured consistent with the applicable State law.”
whether the program has lived up to its proponent’s promises. And the very good news is that clearly, it has. In fact, the program has exceeded expectations.

Based on approximately 184,000 dealer transactions so far, it has been recorded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, NHTSA, we know the following:

CARS transactions are generating a 60-percent increase in vehicle fuel economy. The average of the vehicles being turned in have a fuel economy rating of 15.8 miles per gallon, while the average of the vehicles being sold have a fuel economy rating of 25.3 miles per gallon. This means the average CARS transaction is leading to an increase in fuel efficiency of 9.5 miles per gallon. I think we can all agree that this is very significant improvement.

How significant? The savings in gas purchases alone are estimated to be $700 a year for the typical consumer. Clearly, the program is living up to its promise to put more fuel-efficient cars on the road.

As for the second promise—that this program would provide a much needed boost to automobile sales in the U.S., the White House reported the following on August 4: “U.S. auto sales rose to their highest levels of the year in July as consumers rushed to trade in older vehicles under a government incentive program that has become so popular that the federal government has not yet made available—to the American people and to the Congress—the appropriate data to support these claims.

If you have picked up a newspaper in the past few weeks, the sudden popularity of the program is clear. Newspaper headlines have consistently noted the program is rapidly running out of money and that car purchases are well above where they were at this time last year. Since the program’s inception in the state of Vermont, car dealers have reported having difficulty keeping up with demand for new cars that meet the program’s requirements. But while we know that cars are moving off sales lots and onto the road, we have yet to receive enough details about the current sales data to know the true story of whether this program is working as intended.

Recent reports on the program have indicated that there is about to run out, yet the number of actual car sales through the program was far lower than the program allowed for. Further, many dealers have noted that hundreds of thousands of dollars in program vouchers from the government have yet to be paid. If this is in fact the case, we should demand that the management of this program be ironed out before pumping billions more into it. Are we sure that this the best way to spend $2 billion right now, if it is to be spent on worthy and pressing purposes to which such significant sums could be allocated.

Positive indications about the direction of the economy are emerging. Today we learned that the number of Americans filing for unemployment dropped to its lowest level since January. The Cash for Clunkers Program may prove to be a factor in helping our country emerge from this recession, and I certainly hope that is the case.

But the public release of information about this car rebate program is necessary to ensure that both the Congress and the American people can make well-informed judgments about the merits of continuing this program in these economically challenging times. If the administration is unwilling or unable to provide this information before the Senate votes on additional funding, I will be unable to support the program’s extension.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on passage of H.R. 3435.

The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we have one more vote. I appreciate everyone’s cooperation. We have accomplished a great deal this whole work period. This week has really been a productive one. I appreciate everyone’s help. The Republican leader and I have worked hard to get it to this point on Thursday night at 8 o’clock. That is hard to comprehend.

We will come back after the break and have a vote Tuesday evening. We will keep people posted as to what is going to happen. We are going to move to appropriations bills as quickly as we can, and we have other things to do throughout the work period. I hope everybody has a great work period at home.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I wish everybody well during August while visiting your constituents, and I look forward to being back here after Labor Day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I thank all of my colleagues for their support. I also thank Senator Reid for his amazing leadership and hard work. We wish everyone a wonderful and safe August. Thank you so much for allowing an important stimulus to continue throughout the month of August. We appreciate it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The senior Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I thank everyone for keeping this successful program going. Have a great August.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the third reading and passage of the bill.

The bill (H.R. 3435) was ordered to a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the bill pass?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask for the yea and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. What is the status, Mr. President?

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the period for the transaction of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Georgia.

TRIBUTE TO FRANK NORTON

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I rise, along with my colleague from Georgia, to commemorate the life of a good man and a great American, Frank Norton.

Frank’s years of service to this country ended recently with his untimely death. But it is fitting we remember Frank on the Senate floor, a place where he served this body, as well as service to our country in years prior to that.

Frank died a resident of St. Simons Island, GA, a place he called home, even though he was a native of nearby Waycross, GA.

Frank graduated from Emory University in 1966, and it was his intention to go to law school. Unfortunately, the Army intervened. He was drafted, wound up going to Officer Candidate School, and not long after that became an Army Ranger Instructor. He then headed to Vietnam. While he was in Vietnam, he served in one of the most dangerous jobs in the Army, which was a Ranger reconnaissance platoon leader. For his service and bravery, Frank earned some nine medals, including the Purple Heart and three Bronze Stars for Valor in combat.

Frank went on to serve in assignments at Fort Benning and Fort Stewart, GA, as well as in Korea and Germany. But it is his congressional assignments that some of my colleagues will remember him for. He came to head the Army liaison office in both the House and the Senate.

At the time of his retirement in 1993 as a colonel, Frank was the principal Deputy to the Secretary of the Army for U.S. Senate Liaison. He was the only Army officer to serve in that position in both the House and the Senate.

But Frank’s service to country did not end there. In 1993, my predecessor, Senator Sam Nunn, appointed Frank to serve as a staffer on the Senate Armed Services Committee. This was a point in time when this Nation had to go through its first major base closure and realignment process. Frank headed up that process from an Armed Services Committee standpoint and did an outstanding job.

After a later career in government relations, Frank devoted his time to his family farm, to charities, and to relations, Frank devoted his time to his family farm, to charities, and to community service in Waycross, Brunswick, and St. Simons. Frank loved art, the symphony, and classical music, which is hard to believe for a guy who was as robust and personal and such a great retired Army colonel as Frank was.

His lovely wife Carol and his young son Lee are going to miss him. Certainly, I am going to miss him. We honor him tonight.

I yield for my colleague from Georgia, Senator Isakson.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I am honored to rise with Senator Chambliss to pay tribute to a great Georgian and a great friend to the United States of America and a great veteran of the U.S. Army.

COL Frank Norton was quite an extraordinary man. Senator Chambliss mentioned, upon graduation he went to Vietnam, and in Vietnam he took one of the most dangerous missions of all and did it superbly. He was decorated nine times. He returned here and throughout his career served in the Congress, the Senate, and served the people of the United States in many ways.

Frank Norton is a very unique individual. When he left military service and left service to the House and Senate, liaison committees, he formed a firm called Hurt and Norton, and they were quite a team; always jovial, always hard working, always on target, always delivering for their clients, and their clients were always the State of Georgia.

Our biggest economic asset in Georgia is our port of Savannah, and they represented the port. Our coastline is one of the most valuable areas of Georgia, and they represented our coastline. And most importantly of all, in the critical days of Port Stewart, they represented Port Stewart and the Hinesville community to see to it that the needs of our soldiers were met and the needs of the city of Hinesville, which hosted the soldiers, were met as well.

Frank died on the tennis court with his young son Lee. Tonight I send my regrets to his wife Carol, to Lee, and to all his family. But I also send my praise, my praise for a great Georgian, a great American, who sacrificed in so many ways for this country. May he now rest in peace looking down on all of us from heaven.

I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

SIGNING AUTHORITY

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader be authorized to sign any duly enrolled bills and joint resolutions through Friday, August 7, 2009.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

IN PRAISE OF PEARLIE S. REED

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I rise once again to speak about one of our great Federal employees. Whenever I enter this Chamber, I cannot help but admire the inspirational works of art that adorn it. Above the main entrances rest marble reliefs depicting the three virtues of Courage, Wisdom, and Patriotism.

Our Federal employees embody all three of these qualities, though my focus today will be on patriotism. The marble relief representing patriotism, which sits atop the lintel of the door to my right, shows a man setting aside his plow to take up the sword. This image recalls the parallel stories of Lucius Cincinnatus and George Washington, two farmer citizens who set aside their daily work in order to defend the people’s liberty.

In the history of democracy, the sword and plow have come to symbolize this dichotomy. Traditionally, the sword features most prominently as the metaphor for patriotism. However, I would argue that the plow is just as much a symbol of patriotism as the sword. The plow represents a citizen’s daily contribution to society over the course of many years. The highlight of the Cincinnatus story, from which our forebears drew inspiration, is that he returned without fanfare to his plow when the war was finished.
The great statesman Adlai Stevenson once said:

Patriotism is not short, frenzied outbursts of emotion, but the tranquil and steady dedication of a lifetime.

I think it is fitting to speak about patriotism as symbolized by a plow, because the Federal employee I wish to recognize has worked for the Department of Agriculture for over 35 years. Pearlie Reed was raised on a farm in the rural town of Heth, AR, where he was the ninth of eighteen children. He worked hard to attend the State University of Pine Bluff, which was especially challenging for an African-American man in the South during the struggles of the Civil Rights movement.

Nonetheless, Pearlie received his degree, and he joined the USDA in 1968 as a student intern for the Soil Conservation Service. In the years that followed, Pearlie rose steadily in the Soil Conservation Service from an entry-level soil conservator to district conservationist, to deputy state conservationist, to state conservationist, to eventually appointed as the state conservationist for Maryland in 1985. He served in that position for 4 years, after which he became the state conservationist for California.

As his career advanced, Pearlie also received a master’s degree in public administration from American University. The Soil and Conservation Service was eventually transformed into the Natural Resources Conservation Service or NRCS. From 1994 to 1996, Pearlie served as associate chief, and his last year on the job also served as Acting Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Administration.

In 1998, Pearlie was promoted to chief of the NRCS, and he held the position until this week, when he was named Regional Conservationist for the Western United States. In that role, Pearlie was in charge of all natural resource conservation efforts by the Federal Government in 10 States and the Pacific Basin area.

Pearlie has said that one of his proudest moments in his career came when he was asked to lead the Agriculture Department's task force on civil rights in the 1990s. He led a team that issued a report containing 37 recommendations on how to ensure that the Department is a welcoming place for minorities. Pearlie briefed President Clinton personally, and the President issued an order that all 37 of his recommendations be implemented.

Pearlie retired from the USDA in 2003, but this week Secretary Vilsack called him out of retirement and asked President Obama to appoint him as Assistant Secretary of Administration, the position he briefly held in an acting capacity 10 years ago. Pearlie was confirmed by the Senate on May 12, and he is now back at work for the farmers and ranchers of America.

One of his former colleagues said once that:

If you look up the term “public service” in the dictionary, you’d likely see a picture of Pearlie Reed right next to it.

Over the course of his long career, Pearlie has received the Distinguished Presidential Rank Award, the George Washington Carver Hall of Fame Award, and the USDA's Civil Plow Honor Award, among others. Pearlie exemplifies the kind of patriotism Stevenson spoke about—the patriotism of steady work and perseverance represented by Cincinnati's plow.

I hope my colleagues will join me in honoring Pearlie Reed's distinguished service and that of all Federal employees working in agricultural development, resource conservation, and rural advancement.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I want to speak, if I can, for a few minutes this evening on the health care bill. I suppose today or tomorrow will be the last time before September 2 to address the issue of health care reform, and I thought it might be worthwhile this evening—in the waning hours—to give our colleagues and others who are interested an idea of where we are in this debate and what options have been proposed. As many have heard us say already, the committee for which I have been hired as sort of a pinch-hitter for Senator Kennedy—the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, on which I am proud to serve—and I must say once again, with deep regret, that the chairman, Senator Ted Kennedy from Massachusetts, has not been able to be with us over the last number of weeks. I will tell you this. He is watching very carefully every meeting and markup and gathering that occurs, because he has invested so much of his public life and career to trying to reform the health care system of our Nation. So I was asked to step in for him, temporarily, until he gets back on his feet and can join us in this effort.

We have spent a long time over the last number of weeks and months on this debate. We have spent a tremendous amount of time in the committee, even a lot of time before the actual markup in preparing for the legislation. So this evening I wish to talk about sort of where we are with that bill, what is in that bill in very practical terms, and how it would affect individuals.

I also want to give my colleagues some opportunity to appreciate what will happen while we are away for 5 weeks in terms of those who will lose their insurance, as they will, between Washington Congress and September 2. I have made the point over and over again that 14,000 people a day in our Nation lose health care coverage. Those are terrible numbers. They are more significant in some States than in others, but there is that erosion of coverage every day.

As long as nothing happens, as long as no health care crisis affects them or their families, they may be able to survive all of that until they find a job or run out of money, and while they can afford health care coverage. If, unfortunately, they are caught—as so many are—with that unexpected accident, that unexpected health care crisis, that unexpected diagnosis of a major health care problem, they are in that period without coverage, the implications can be staggering, and not just because they lack the coverage that might allow them to take care of that emergency accident or injury. But if they are diagnosed with something in the absence of a health care plan, under the present circumstances, there is very little likelihood that they are going to be able to get a health care plan that will be within their means to afford it because they will have that existing condition when a diagnosis occurs. So the health care costs go right up through the ceiling.

So again, 14,000 a day, as we gather here, find themselves in that shape. I thought it might be worthwhile to get some idea of where this time before the end of the August recess, when we return, 756,000 of our fellow citizens will have lost their health insurance—while we are away over the next 4 or 5 weeks—and that is a staggering number.

Some may find it means to get it back. Some may have a spouse who gets a job that provides coverage. But those are the numbers if you take every day the loss of health care coverage.

My patient here, with these numbers, you can see the thermometer is now exploding. He is even having some beads of perspiration here because he is now worried that he or his family could be caught in that free fall, without the necessary coverage to protect against economic ruin. It could happen.

So as we begin a short discussion this evening of where we are, I thought it might be important to share with my colleagues that while we leave with the full confidence of a very good health care plan as Members of Congress, that should an accident, a diagnosis, a problem occur to any one of us—while we don’t want that to happen—there is no likelihood we are going to be put in economic difficulty because of it. Certainly we will probably get good care because of who we are, what we do, but no worry about the sort of economic ruin that this crowd of 756,000 Americans may face if they are caught in a similar situation.

I have hope that all my colleagues have a good recess, that they will get around their States and districts. I also hope they will get an annual physical this year, as I hope everyone does. We provide the opportunity, under our health care plan, to do that at little or no cost. That is how I discovered earlier this summer, in June, that I have early stage prostate cancer, and I will be going through a procedure in the next few weeks to deal with that matter, and I am confident, since I caught it in this early stage, that I will come out fine. I have had a chance to talk to people who have gone through this or had a family member and I know about the very slow growth. It is early stage. It hasn’t metastasized. I am not going to be in tough shape. I believe I am going to come out of this fine. But that is what you get when you get an annual physical. You find out what is wrong.

There are people who, of course, don’t do that. We even have had colleagues who didn’t. A wonderful man I served with in this body for many years by the name of Spark Matsunaga from Hawaii did not discover it early enough, and he lost his life to prostate cancer. Almost 30,000 people in our country die every year of prostate cancer. In many instances, if not most, it is because it wasn’t diagnosed early enough. It is very slow growing. There is ample time to respond to it, if you need to find out about it.

So when you get that physical, and I hope each of my colleagues remembers that if they do that and they find out they have a health issue, or if something happens in an accident to them, or if anybody in their family suffers a health crisis, they will be able to focus their attention on getting well because there is absolutely no risk that any Member of the Congress, or the millions of Federal employees who have the options—more than 20 of them each year, by the way—to choose what plan serves us best—no risk they will lose their economic security because they got sick or they had a bad diagnosis or they got hurt. Because as I said a moment ago, we all have great health insurance and we are not going to lose it any time soon.

But tens of millions of Americans have that. Does not allow them to get the care they need. It is not just the uninsured; it is people with insurance I want to focus on this evening—people who have insurance when they need it, with the doctor of their choice, and while we are gone, nearly half a million of them will lose that coverage.

I understand we are all going to be patient on this effort of health care reform. It takes time to get it right. I acknowledge that. But 70 years is long enough. That is how long we have gone in our Nation without addressing in a holistic way the health care issues that must be addressed.

By the time we return from our recess, the number of Americans, I pointed out, who will have lost health insurance since our committee, the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee, passed the Affordable Health Choices Act more than 3 weeks ago, will be over three-quarters of a million people.

While a bill that will improve the quality and affordability of health care for every American sits waiting for action, as I said, 756,000 of our fellow citizens are going to lose that insurance before we come back from our recess.

Let me take a moment and show my colleagues what that means in their States. I have broken this down State by State so you get some idea of what the implication is. Sometimes these numbers can be daunting. It may be hard for people to see this, but I have broken it down. I will run it down very quickly.

Alabama, 5,760 people will lose their health insurance over the next 5 weeks; Alaska, 640; Arizona, 8,960; Arkansas, 2,560; California, 70,080 people will lose their health care coverage before we reconvene in early September; Colorado, 3,200.

I know the Presiding Officer has been working hard on this issue. I commend him for this effort. I know he will be meeting with a lot of his constituents. In fact, Colorado and Connecticut lose the same number of people, 3,200 as well.

In Delaware, 960; in Florida, 27,200; Georgia, 13,760; Hawaii, 1,600; Idaho, 2,240; Illinois, 8,640; Indiana, 15,360 will lose health care coverage; Iowa, 2,240; Kansas, 1,280; Kentucky, 1,280; Louisiana, 5,760; Maine, 2,240 lose health care coverage; in Maryland, 7,360; Massachusetts, over 13,000 people, close to 14,000 people will lose health care coverage over the next 5 weeks; Michigan, 19,440; Minnesota, 6,080; Mississippi, 4,160; Missouri, 6,720; Montana, 960 people; Nebraska, 1,280; Nevada, over 7,000 people will lose health care coverage; New Hampshire, 960; New Jersey, 20,800 people will lose health care coverage; New Mexico, 2,560; New York, 38,080 people will be dropped from the health care rolls; North Carolina, over 16,000; North Dakota, 320; Ohio, 12,480; Oklahoma, 1,600; Oregon, 8,640; Pennsylvania, 16,320 people; Rhode Island—our colleague, SHELDON WHITEHOUSE, is here from Rhode Island. He was such a valuable resource for the various options that are available. In fact, Colorado and Connecticut lose the same number of people, 3,200.

In Delaware, 960; in Florida, 27,200; Georgia, 13,760; Hawaii, 1,600; Idaho, 2,240; Illinois, 8,640; Indiana, 15,360 will lose health care coverage; Iowa, 2,240; Kansas, 1,280; Kentucky, 1,280; Louisiana, 5,760; Maine, 2,240 lose health care coverage; in Maryland, 7,360; Massachusetts, over 13,000 people, close to 14,000 people will lose health care coverage over the next 5 weeks; Michigan, 19,440; Minnesota, 6,080; Mississippi, 4,160; Missouri, 6,720; Montana, 960 people; Nebraska, 1,280; Nevada, over 7,000 people will lose health care coverage; New Hampshire, 960; New Jersey, 20,800 people will lose health care coverage; New Mexico, 2,560; New York, 38,080 people will be dropped from the health care rolls; North Carolina, over 16,000; North Dakota, 320; Ohio, 12,480; Oklahoma, 1,600; Oregon, 8,640; Pennsylvania, 16,320 people; Rhode Island—our colleague, SHELDON WHITEHOUSE, is here from Rhode Island. He was such a valuable resource in our HELP Committee over the last number of weeks, and I commend him for his contribution, he and JACK REED both making significant contributions to our Affordable Health Choices Act.

South Carolina, over 10,000 people will lose their health care coverage, South Dakota, 960; Tennessee, 12,800; Texas, 15,040; Utah, 3,840; Vermont, 960; Virginia, 10,560 people; in West Virginia, 960; Wisconsin, 7,360; Wyoming, 320.

I have broken that time but sometimes you mention 14,000 and we don’t break it down State by State. These are the projected losses in terms of health care coverage. They will not have the same degree of security that we do during the next 5 weeks.

When we leave here, I, of course, hope none of us suffer any kind of a diagnosis or any kind of an accident, but as I said a moment ago, as painful as that may be, many of us will suffer the pain of someone you can afford to have your child covered, your spouse covered, or have the means to take care of yourself if something happens.

The people in these numbers, hopefully, will never have that problem, but if they do it is a major catastrophe. Roughly 65 percent of all bankruptcies in the last year have been caused because of a medical crisis—about 65 percent of all bankruptcies. Your first thought might be that is probably the uninsured who ended up in that shape. They didn’t have insurance, they ended up with a serious problem and got drained of whatever few assets they had left and took the bankruptcy act to the next.

Mr. President, 75 percent of the people who were affected by bankruptcy as a result of the health care crisis have insurance; three out of four people who have insurance had ended up in bankruptcy. It was not the uninsured, it was the insured.

This evening—I know they are always out there marketing this idea that this bill we are talking about is not designed to help the insured, only the uninsured. Now, unfortunately, that is further from the truth. Our major efforts are to try to bring down the costs of the insured. Many have such high deductibles and out-of-pocket deductibles they never get to engage their insurance company.

At any rate, these are the numbers. I think it is important for my colleagues to look at it.

To my colleagues, think about constituents you are going to see over the recess facing these problems. Imagine a small business owner paying $1,000 a month on premiums with a $6,000 deductible. It is not an uncommon event for small businesses. Imagine this small businessman telling you that his insurance company dropped his daughter’s coverage when their doctor suggested surgery to remove noncancerous tumors, forcing him to get a separate, more expensive policy for her.

It doesn’t have to be this way. These facts happen all the time. Under our bill, under the bill we passed 3 weeks ago, this small business owner would be able to choose an affordable plan that he or she could rely on, wouldn’t be denied coverage for the preexisting condition of their daughter, and that coverage would not be taken away once the policy is issued. That is the difference between the status quo, as it is today, and what we propose in our legislation we spent so much time crafting.

Imagine, if you would, a small business owner who offers health coverage to his 20 employees. He is paying about 60 percent of the cost of the premiums but unable to afford family coverage. Imagine that small business owner telling you that one of his employees has been left for a job that provides family coverage.

It doesn’t have to happen. In fact, this case is one I am very familiar with. This was the case of a small employee in Hartford, CT, who employs 20 people but about 10, and very loyal employees. I think most of them have been there 20 years. He had an employee the other day literally almost in tears, if not in tears, announcing to his employer that he had to leave because his wife, who had the health care coverage, lost her job. So they were without health insurance.

Henry took a job that paid 30 percent less than the job he had for more than 20 years in order to get the coverage. That would not happen under our bill. That does not have to happen. That family, if you will, small business, would be able to find affordable coverage for their employees using the same strong bargaining power and broad risk pooling that large businesses enjoy.

This is one of the major problems for small businesses. The average small business pays 18 percent more in premiums than large businesses—18 percent more—and they get a lot less coverage as a result of it because they don’t have the opportunity to pool as much, come together. Our bill gives that small family the same opportunity to that gateway, that place where these policies exist that they can shop for and determine what is best for them—what they can afford and what they want to have for their family—what does not exist today. Unless we change the law, that small business owner is going to be faced with rising premium costs and less and less coverage for their employees. We change that. We fix that. That is important.

Let me mention a third scenario. Imagine a single mother, self-employed, paying more than she can comfortably afford for an insurance plan—that doesn’t exist today. Under our bill, that single parent would be able to find affordable coverage for her children. She would be able to find an insurance plan that she can afford and that best meets her family’s health care needs.

Mary, in this case, wouldn’t have to pay more than others her age in her area would, rather than just paying more because of gender.

Finally, imagine a woman who bought the best coverage she could afford based on monthly premiums because she knew going without insurance was a bad idea. Imagine her telling you she was just diagnosed with breast cancer at the age of 25, and only then realizing the inadequacy. Imagine her telling you she now has more than $40,000 in medical debt.

Under our bill, this young woman would be able to keep her parents’ coverage through her 26th birthday, what we call the young invincibles, between the age of 21, when you are dropped from your parents coverage, and you are on your own. That is a very significant percentage of our population. A lot can happen. This woman was diagnosed with breast cancer late. But had she been in the same circumstances physically, with the adoption of our legislation she would have qualified for that young adults coverage, and she could have been able to keep her policy without any cost, or stay under her parents’ plan until she was 26 and never have to worry about being denied because of a preexisting condition, which of course now she has. Having been diagnosed with breast cancer, those premiums for that woman will go through the ceiling, even as young as she is, because she has that preexisting condition.

We asked our colleagues to imagine these cases because they are so incredibly, rather routine, extraordinary cases. They are rather routine in many cases. We will see people in these situations—I know my colleagues will, during the break we are on, real people who can suffer by our inaction.

Let me take a minute, if I can, to talk about what health reform means in my State of Connecticut as well. In the last month, an insurance company in my State proposed to raise rates by 32 percent on people buying insurance plans through the individual market. This news was shocking, given the debate going on at the Federal level, but the company went ahead with the proposed rate hike for Connecticut families. Today I received word that the Connecticut Insurance Department went ahead and approved a modification to the company’s proposal that will raise the premiums for the residents of my State by up to 20 percent—a 20-percent increase.

I don’t know many people in Connecticut who got a 20-percent pay raise in the last year. I suspect very few. People are going to struggle because of the rate hike. People are going to struggle across the Nation, of course, until we take action because the rates continue to go up.

Consider, if you will, what has happened in the last few years: an 86-percent increase in premiums, in rates since 1996. In my State they have gone up about 46 percent in 6 years, and that is before the news of this latest company increase.

We have a bill—again, that would reduce the cost for Americans, the Affordable Health Choices Act, which we adopted in our committee, which in fact addresses this very issue. I want to encourage all my colleagues to spend a little time looking at the bill we wrote over this August break.

I will take just a minute this evening to talk about how costs would be lowered under our proposal. Many ask the question: Why do you lower costs? I will use my own State as an example.

According to America’s Health Insurance Plans, which is the trade association for the health insurance industry, in Connecticut in 2007, the average monthly premium on the individual market for single coverage was $277 and the average monthly premium on the individual market for family coverage was $646.

I ask unanimous consent to be able to proceed for an additional 10 minutes. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Those are the numbers: monthly payment, individual market, $277; family premiums, family market, $646. Keep those numbers in mind, if you will. These numbers were for 2007. I presume in 2009 they have gone up a bit, but those are the latest numbers I obtained from the trade association. They reflect what an individual making about $21,000, on average, paid in 2007. That is a lower income individual, but there are a lot of people who have incomes at that level working in our country. You try to pick up the cost of $277, or $646 a month with an income like that. You know the outcome. You are not going to be able to afford it. You could not come near it.

Under our legislation, a low-income worker at $21,000 would now pay $20 a month in health care premiums for individuals.

That is $277 a month under the status quo, to $20 a month under the Affordable Health Choice Act—from $277 to $20. That is $157 a month. That is $2,340 a year. That is $2,340 a year under the Affordable Health Choice Act. That is a lower income individual, but there are a lot of people who have incomes at that level working in our country. You try to pick up the cost of $277, or $646 a month with an income like that. You know the outcome. You are not going to be able to afford it. You could not come near it.

For family coverage, a family of four who makes two times the Federal poverty level—approximately $44,000 a year—pays $646 each month for family coverage, as I mentioned earlier in my statement. Under our bill, that family would now pay $40 a month for their health care premiums; that is $646 under the status quo as a month under the Affordable Health Choices Act.

When people say it does not make any difference, you are not bringing down costs, you tell them that individual making around $21,000 a year or that family making $45,000 a year that is a significant reduction in their health care premiums. That is the real difference between the status quo and what our legislation offers. That is affordable coverage.

What is not captured in the numbers under the status quo is the fact that that family in Connecticut has no guarantee even of a patchwork of bills that policy. For that matter, they have no guarantee, if they are issued the policy, they will not see it cancelled or rescinded because they file a claim. And they have no guarantee that policy will be renewed the following year. If this bill changes all of that. Connecticut families and families across the country can at long last be assured they will be able to choose among quality, affordable health care plans.

Before my colleagues depart, let me say this: Let’s come back to work here in September, come back ready to offer our thoughts and suggestions and constructive criticism. We are going to pass a bill this fall, and we are going to do it with the help of any Senator willing to be a part of that solution. But we are not going to continue to wait for the sake of waiting until the politics get right.

Between adjournment tonight and when we return around September 5 or 6, there are people who are going to be put into the category of the uninsured. These are insured people. We ought to be doing everything we can reasonably and thoughtfully to put the brakes on this kind of hemorrhaging that is occurring. It is bad for individuals and their families, and it is bad for the economy of our Nation. It is shameful that the wealthiest Nation on the face of this Earth takes the insured population of our Nation and puts them at such risk, and their families, wiping them out, as happens too often with financial ruin.

We have coverage. We are fortunate to have it. We ought to be able to do everything in our power to see to it that every member of our community, no matter their economic status, ought not to play roulette with their future and that of their families because they lack the economic security that others who are more fortunate financially have. That is not right. Health care ought not to be a choice only for those who can afford it, decent health care by the accident of birth. That you are born into a family who lacks the economic means should not place your child in a different situation than mine or someone else’s. It is bad for the economic security that others who are more fortunate financially have.

That is right. Health care ought not to be a choice only for those who can afford it, decent health care by the accident of birth. That you are born into a family who lacks the economic means should not place your child in a different situation than mine or someone else’s. It is bad for the economic security that others who are more fortunate financially have.

The Problem of Cost. Millions of Americans cannot afford to pay the costs of medical care, and they are not protected by adequate health insurance.

That was 1955. This section says:

In human terms, this meant that the Blue Dog on the House side adopted our proposal on the public option as part of the House-passed bill. Of course, Jack Reed and Bernie Sanders, as well as Jeff Andrews and my friend from Rhode Island, and Bon Casey did a great job in helping us shape the legislation. I thank all of the members of the committee.

I thank Mike Enzi, my colleague from Wyoming, the ranking Republican member, along with his colleagues on the Republican side. They did not vote for the bill in the end. I regret that. But they made contributions that made it a stronger and better bill.

But let’s come back in September and get this done. Why are we here this evening in the closing hours of our session here before this break begins, so that we can highlight this most important issue that the President has committed his administration to, and that I believe the overwhelmingly majority of Americans—when you get sick at home and your child is in trouble, you do not wake up and wonder what party you belong to or what your political leanings are; what you want to know is, Do we have a plan for you? Is someone going to see my child or my spouse? Are they going to get good care? Am I not going to go into economic ruin from this? You do not wonder whether you are in a blue State or red State or what political party is in power. What you want to know is, Does anybody give a darn, and are they doing anything about it? I am in trouble, my family is in trouble, and are you helping us to get us back on our feet? And that is what we tried to do in this legislation.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Let me thank Chairman Dodd for his leadership and for his remarks. He said he would give us a discussion of where we are, and he has done a wonderful job of showing how this bill will improve the lives of regular Americans in a very concrete way, including particularly Americans who have insurance.

To supplement his discussion of where we are, I wanted to give a quick discussion of where we have been in the trajectory of where we have been to where we are telling us something about where we are going. And everybody in this country, insured or uninsured, should have some real concern about where we are going in health care in this country if we do not act.

The year I was born was 1955, and this was the headline from the New York Times in 1955. It is hard to read the little part here; I will read it to you here:

The Problem of Cost. Millions of Americans cannot afford to pay the costs of medical care, and they are not protected by adequate health insurance.

That was 1955. This section says:

In human terms, this meant that the American had to scrap his budget, dig into savings or go into debt, to pay some $7.5 billion for doctors, hospitals, dentists, nurses, and the myriad physical accessories of medical care.

That was 1955, when the Nation’s medical bill ran over $10 billion. They were horrified to say over $10 billion. It is now over $2.5 trillion.

So that is the year I was born. We were already bemoaning the state of America’s health care system.

This is 1979. I had just gotten out of college. And the HEW Secretary said:

Health cost called unjustified. HEW Secretary Patricia Roberts said: The quality of American health care does not justify its price tag of more than $200 billion a year. Still bemoaning the health care problems, still not getting anything done about it.

Now, 1988. This was the year my wife became pregnant with our first child. And here is it: Prospects: Soaring health care costs. Joseph Califano said—he was the former Secretary of Health and Welfare—“The average jump in premiums could hit 30 percent in 1989.” But at the same time, we are getting less for it.
things change in health care, the more they stay the same.

Here is 1992. Health care costs increasing at more than twice the rate of wages have made benefits so expensive it would be surprising if companies were not doing whatever it took to dampen hiring." And they dampen wages, as we have seen, and increasingly businesses are having to avoid health care because they cannot keep up with that cost. That from 1992. So we took these stories and we put them together on this chart. This shows the increases in America's spending on health care in each of those years, starting back the year I was born, that first story, 1955, 1979, 1987, then 1992, then 2009. It increased from $12 billion, which seemed like a big number then, to $200 billion, to over half a trillion dollars, to $850 billion, nearly a trillion, and now $2.5 trillion.

Look how far it has bumped from 1992 to 2009. This, my friends and colleagues, is what is called a trajectory. It is going to keep going if we do not do anything about it.

The latest estimates for my home State of Rhode Island are that in 1992, which is not too far from now, in 2016, probably about this far up on the graph, $230 billion a year is what a family will have to pay for family coverage—more than $26,000 a year. That means if you are a comfortably earning hard-working individual pulling down say any of $52,000, half of your income, pretax income, goes out the door for health care before you start anything else. That is not sustainable. That is why we talk about Thelma and Louise instead of Harry and Louise. That is what wage growth has been like. If you don't feel like your wages have gone up in the last couple years? For a decade, from 1999 to 2009, wage growth has been 29 percent. That is less than 3 percent a year and way less than 3 percent a year compounded. That is what wage growth has been like. If you don't feel like your wages have gone up this last outcome, you have done right. They haven't. For many Americans, wages flat-lined for a decade. How about your insurance premiums? Did they flat-line? No, sir. The insurance premiums went through the roof, more than doubled in one decade. That is the steep curve I showed you, 120 percent. How about insurance industry profits? Up 428 percent in the same period that wages were up 29 percent. So there is something we can do something about. On insurance, so many Americans are uninsured, it is worth taking a look at this. We have all used and heard the figure about 46.47 million Americans who are uninsured. That is the people whose families lose their insurance, is nearly 87 million. If you started on the east coast and moved your way west, and when you got to the Mississippi and into the Midwest, and Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, and Louisiania and you took the population of every single State west of the Mississippi River and Louisiana and you took the population of every single State west of that all the way to California, the population of all these States is about 87 million, to give you an idea of how many Americans lose their health insurance and have to go without it at a point during the year.

Then there are catastrophic levels of waste in our health care system. Our former Treasury Secretary, a Republican, knowledgeable about health care, ran the Pittsburgh Regional Health Initiative for years. He said $1 trillion of annual waste is associated with process failures. He has calculated $1 trillion a year of waste in our health care system.

The Lewin Group is a group many people talk about here. They are described on the Senate floor as the gold standard in health care information. They produce reports on excess costs from incentives to overuse services, from poor care management and lifestyle factors, excess costs due to competition and regulatory problems, excess costs due to transactional inefficiencies; $151 billion here, $530 billion here, $203 billion here. As we say in Washington, a billion here and a billion there, and pretty soon it starts to add up. This adds up to over $1 trillion in waste in congruence with what the former Treasury Secretary said. It is not just newspapers that are saying it. It is also President Obama's own Council of Economic Advisers. Their report on July 9 said that:

Efficiency improvements in the U.S. health care system could free up resources equal to 5 percent of U.S. GDP which is above $700 billion a year.

They also noted:

(1) should be possible to cut total health expenditures by about 30 percent without reducing access to care. This, again I suggest that savings on the order of 5 percent of GDP could be feasible.

Again, two calculations coming to the same point, savings of over $700 billion a year.

That is one of the things we are trying to do. In addition to family-by-family improvements, small business-by-small business improvements, individual-by-individual improvements that Chairman Dodd has wrought through this bill, we are also trying to turn around a health care system that has been out of control, that has not been reformed for my entire lifetime. So that now is our moment, and it is our trajectory that we can actually make this country if we don't do something about it. We simply cannot continue a cost curve such as this that is already at $2.5 trillion and is accelerating northward. We can't be competitive with our international competitors in trade if we do this. We can't sustain our families if we do this. We simply cannot keep this government fiscally solvent if we do it. We have to turn the car before it gets to the cliff. If we can't do that, then shame on us.

I think we need to be in this together. One of the ways we will do this is through a public plan. A public plan is important because there are a number of ways in which you change those cost curves. You don’t have to take services away from people because of all that waste. What you have to do is deal with the waste. You build in electronic health records for every American so the efficiencies that other industries have enjoyed from the computer revolution finally hit health care. You increase transparency, which has the worst information infrastructure of any American industry except mining—the mining industry and then health care. Huge improvements and huge savings from that.

Quality improvements can save money. It has been demonstrated over and over again, as in Senator Stabenow and Senator Levin’s home State of Michigan. They did quality improvement in intensive care units. In 15 months, they saved $150 million and 1,500 lives, and it wasn’t even in all the intensive care units. It was just in one State. It was that one kind of quality improvement program, just in intensive care units. It was just in one State of Michigan. They did quality improvements in intensive care units. So huge gains to be made from quality improvements.

Prevention. Senatorarkin spoke the other day about what can be gained from preventing particularly conditions that arise from diabetes. Enormous savings, if we can focus on all that.

Transparency and improved administrative efficiency so doctors and insurers aren’t fighting all the time. We can do all those things, but somebody has to lead. The question for us is, can we trust the private insurance companies to lead in all those areas. If you look back, you see they never have. We are way behind where we should be. They are not leading. It will take a competitive option to run those issues and run with them and show what we can do.

I will close with this. One of the things we are hearing is you can’t possibly have a public option. It is a line in the sand. The very distinguished ranking member of the HELP Committee has said it is intolerable to have a public option. It simply would not work. It can’t happen. There are two ways we get health insurance in this country. One is through a private health insurance provider. The other is through workers’ compensation, which the business community runs in order to protect itself against the injuries and illnesses and diseases and catastrophic harms that can happen to people at work and that they have to protect themselves against. All across America, there are State funds, public options that deliver health care insurance, State by State, over and over again. So when the ranking member goes home to his State of Wyoming, not only is a public option for delivering health insurance not anathema, it is what he goes home to.

He goes home to a single-payer public option, so one business community appears perfectly satisfied with and he appears perfectly satisfied with.

Their Presidential candidate, John McCain, goes home to Arizona to a public plan with 56 percent market share. It competes in a lively workers’ compensation health insurance market. The distinguished minority leader goes home to Kentucky, and in Kentucky his business community enjoys a public option for workers’ compensation. They just don’t have it. We are simply not going to have a public option. So we need to be able, in the spirit of coming together in the face of this national emergency, to put aside the old notion that a public option simply can’t exist, can’t happen. It happens in nearly half our States. It is supported by the business communities in those States. It delivers care efficiently, and none of the Republican Senators from those States have, to my knowledge, ever complained about it in that context.

I will conclude with that. I think we are at a turning point, and it is important, as we go, that we remember this is a long struggle we have been on. My colleague from Kentucky, since 1995, it has gotten dramatically worse, and the rate at which it has been getting worse is increasing. It is worsening. We have to do something about it now—for everybody in this country, for businesses large and small, and for people and families, insured and uninsured, and we are pledged to do that.

I thank the very distinguished chairman and yield the floor.

Mr. Dodd. Mr. President, I thank our colleague from Arizona. He has been very eloquent in talking about the historical framework of this debate, going back, even predating the 1950s, when we determined the need for a national health plan in this Nation, not only to deliver health care to people but also to address some of those economic problems associated with health care costs. I thought it might be worthwhile to invite my colleague to share some additional thoughts on this view. Today, as I am told, we are spending about 17 percent of our gross domestic product on health care costs. I am told, by those who are economists looking at this, that if we don’t alter anything but merely sort of stumble along, that percentage of our gross domestic product will jump from 17 percent to 34 percent of the gross domestic product, which is a staggering amount when we consider how expensive that would be and the result, in practical terms, to the very premium costs the Senator from Kentucky identified.

I also talked the other day to a leading businessman in our country, the former chief executive officer of Pitney Bowes, a well-known, established company, headquartered in my home State of Connecticut but has facilities in many States across the country. It employs thousands of people. The former CEO is a man named Mike Critelli. He is no longer the CEO, but he was the CEO who was responsible for bringing a wellness plan in place there, reduced their employees by offering them incentives—the opportunity to reduce weight, quit smoking, improve diets, all these things.

Talking to Mike Critelli, he did it because, one, he thought it the right thing to do. Certainly, improving the quality of the health of your employees is a decent thing to do. But Mike Critelli also pointed out to me that in addition to being the decent thing to do, it was a very sound practice for business. Very simply, he said: If I could increase the productivity of my workers, which is the critical element, if the United States is going to compete in the 21st century, if wage rates are not going to drop down to Third or Fourth World country levels, we are going to have higher wage rates. We are going to have higher costs to produce our products.

So the one advantage we bring over third-rate and fourth-rate nations that don’t pay as much for employment is the productivity of the American worker, which historically has exceeded that of almost any other worker anywhere in the world.

Mike Critelli’s point is that having a good wellness plan in place increases the productivity of that worker, and that is our edge in a global economy. We need to start thinking in these terms.

I hear people in the business community say we can’t afford to do this. We can’t afford not to do it. You can’t have 34 percent of your gross domestic product consumed with health care costs.

Our advantage is productivity. As Mike Critelli points out, if your workers are sick, if they are obese, if they have diabetes, if they have basic illnesses at a young age, as many do today, then the ability of that worker to produce those products and services is going to be curtailed and we suffer.

So there needs to be some lights turned on for someone in the business community about this issue. Some are having sort of a Pavlov’s dog response to it. If you mention health care reform, they reach back decades to the age-old bromides and responses to this issue without thinking about what means this in the 21st century, freeing up the ability of workers to produce better products in a highly competitive marketplace.

Let me mention one other thing I do not think we have talked about. Forty-four years ago from last week, Lyndon Johnson signed Medicare into law. Last week was Medicare’s birthday. Medicare was signed into law 44 years ago, in 1965. Obviously, that was a great benefit to people over the age of 65, and what a difference it made. It took that population, which was the poorest sector of our population, the elderly, and put them on a standard of living that allowed them to lead decent lives after productive years of working.

So with prescription drugs, doctors visits, and the like, put aside the problems today with Medicare we know exist and we have to deal with, it did that. Did that exist? Of course it did, and we paid enough attention to it. It was a source of relief and stability to a family. Because all of a sudden those parents—which a younger generation had to put aside resources for because for most of us, we were going to college and had to pay our own way. We had to have that income to be able to put aside resources to provide for those aging parents—because less of a burden because Medicare existed.

The cost of prescription drugs, the visits to the doctor, the hospitalizations—all of a sudden, magically, 44 years ago from last week, a good part of that burden was lifted off the shoulders of the children of Medicare recipients.

And it unleashed a level of investment that allowed our economy to prosper and grow. For other reasons too, but not the least of which, all of a sudden, there was that security in a family. They were not going to face financial ruin because, all of a sudden, their parents had a crisis they were going to have to pay for out of their pockets.

I do not know if there are any economic models that examined that, but I do not think we attribute enough of Medicare’s success to the contribution it made to the overall economy of our Nation 44 years ago because of that stability and certainty and security in a family, where your parents—that aging population—at least had a safety net. We also have a point that financial ruin that can befal a family.

I think we are missing a point in this debate in that what people are really worried about is that lack of certainty, that lack of stability. People are saving away money today because: If I lose my job, if I end up with a pre-existing condition, if we move, I could lose my health care coverage, and all of a sudden my kids, my wife, myself are put in this position. That uncertainty, that lack of stability, that lack of security has a negative impact on the consumer choices people make. I might like to buy that second car. We may need it but—do you know what—756,000 people are going to lose their health insurance in the next 5 weeks. I might be one of them. And if something happens, how do I pay for that problem? So—do you know what—we are going to delay that purchase or this other thing we might have done because I don’t have the stability, the certainty, and the security there is a safety net there. Lord forbid a crisis happens, how do I pay for that?

So while there is the comparison between Medicare’s recent birthday! 44 years ago and what we are trying to achieve—we are thinking about it in a very small context: How much does that doctor visit cost? How much is that prescription drug? There are benefits to that. We need the parameters of what we are trying to achieve because of the investments we are making that I think have a larger impact on the overall economy of our Nation.

So I wanted to say to my colleagues from Rhode Island, by talking about these rising costs—and no end in sight, by the way—unless we find some way to put the brakes on all of this and begin to reduce the problems—how do you do that? If all of a sudden you have a child who is getting good dental care at an early age, that child is less likely to have a problem as they get older. If we can convince children and families to eat better because we make the incentives to do so—9,500 children today started smoking in the United States, and 3,500 start smoking every single day. And every single year, 400,000 people die because of tobacco-related illnesses—400,000 die—not to mention the number of lifelong illnesses and die prematurely.

Of the 3,500 who start smoking today, 1,000 become addicted. You do not have to have a Ph.D. in medicine to know that if you stop the products, you are consuming a product with 50 carcinogens in each cigarette.

Here we know if we can begin to change that lifestyle, which we have done, by the way—and, again, I thank my colleagues because for the first time in 50 years since the Surgeon General pointed out that tobacco could kill you, only a few weeks ago we did what we have never been able to do before: Tobacco marketing, sales, and production became illegal. It is the Food and Drug Administration. By the way, the Food and Drug Administration regulates mascara, lipstick, and pet food. But we could not get the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco products, which has changed as a result of the actions of this Congress.

But that is an example of what I am talking about. If we can stop a child from smoking, then that child grows up with a far greater likelihood they are going to reach retirement age in far better shape, which means far less usage of that Medicare dollar and that hospital or that doctor’s visit. So you cannot see any of some of this immediately but over the longer term we will. And that is bending that curve. We are all talking about bending that curve of cost. We can do that making these kinds of investments.

I am told only 2 percent of the Food and Drug Administration regulates mascara, lipstick, and pet food. But we could not get the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco products, which has changed as a result of the actions of this Congress.

So I wanted to say to my colleague from Rhode Island, by talking about these rising costs—and no end in sight, by the way—unless we find some way to put the brakes on all of this and begin to reduce the problems—how do you do that? If all of a sudden you have a child who is getting good dental care at an early age, that child is less likely to have a problem as they get older. Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a moment? Mr. DODD. Mr. President, our will be happy to yield to my colleague.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I want to respond to what the Senator was saying, that this trajectory is very likely to continue. Every signal and every prediction is it is going to continue and we will hit that 35 percent, spending a third of our entire economy just on health care, and that really does break our country. It is a terrible indictment of our generation if we allow it to happen.

But we also have a great opportunity here, which the chairman has also pointed out. As you know, over and over again, as the distinguished President Officer knows, over and over again, in legislation, we are asked to make hard choices about things, and if you go one way, you cannot go the other. Economists would call it a zero sum game. You cannot have both. There is no win-win.

This is a situation where there is a win-win. As the distinguished chairman pointed out, we are spending 17 percent of our gross domestic product on health care in this country. It is the worst record, the highest expenditure, of any country in the world. Most other developed nations spend 8 or 9 percent. That is the average of the European Union of their gross domestic product on their health care.

For that exaggerated expenditure, what do we get? Lousy health outcomes. We have higher mortality rates in developed competitor nations in obesity. We have far higher rates of obesity in our country. We are way behind our developed competitor nations in obesity. We have far greater rates of child mortality in the United States than there are in our developed nations with which we compete. There is far greater longevity in those countries than ours. Americans do not live as long as people in our competitor nations, the developed ones, and a lot of it has to do with our health care system.

In 2009, the United States spent $2 trillion on health care. Only 15 percent of that was going into primary prevention. Eighty percent was going into secondary prevention and one percent was going into tertiary prevention. That is not enough money to help us break this country financially.

So by bending that curve, by investing in prevention, by improving the quality by investing in electronic health records, by eliminating those medical errors, we accomplish two things at once. We improve the health statistics of our Nation, we have people who live long, we have less babies who die in childbirth, we have a thinner and less obese and less ill nation, and we lower the costs, and we do it together. The question I might ask is: Are we going to agree on, on both sides of the aisle, but, unfortunately, these old canards about socialized medicine and how we
Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I will do the same. And, again, my thanks to SHELDON WHITEHOUSE of Rhode Island. He has just been a stellar advocate of the kind of change we need.

I know the Presiding Officer, as well, as a new Senator, has spent an inordinate amount of time on these questions, as well, in his own State and has listened to people in Colorado talk about this issue and what we can do together to get it right. I welcome his participation immensely as well.

I wish all of my colleagues a very healthy and safe break in the month of August, as I do for all Americans. But I hope my colleagues will keep in mind, I did not recite these numbers to put anyone on the spot. But sometimes we need to talk about numbers that are real to people, and these are real numbers that will potentially affect many of our fellow citizens. So we need to come back here with a renewed commitment to get this done.

We have the capability. We have good people here who care, I know, about these issues. And none of these decisions we can make are going to necessarily predict with absolute certainty that everything is going to work as well as we hope they would. But you have to begin. And we have to take a chance and work forward and hope these ideas we put on the table work. And to the extent they do not, you modify and change it, as will certainly be the case in the years ahead. But inaction, just saying no, is unacceptable. The answer “no” to health care ought to be rejected by every citizen in this country. This is a difficult problem, but being too difficult is an excuse that history will never forgive us for. It will never tolerate that excuse: This was too hard to do. When you think about previous generations and hard choices and difficult decisions, we wouldn’t be here today if those generations had not made the difficult decisions we are here today because they made hard choices, they made the difficult decisions, and we have no less of a responsibility as a generation to do it on this issue. This is hard and it is difficult, but that will never be an acceptable answer to future generations if we bankrupt our country because we couldn’t figure out how to solve this problem.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

COMMENDING RICHARD BAKER

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about a man who has been serving the U.S. Senate for almost 35 years. Now that is how I and many other Senators may begin remarks about a colleague who is retiring. My remarks today are indeed about a colleague but not about a fellow Senator. These remarks are about Senate History. Richard Baker is an important member of the Senate community who has made the Senate a better institution during his tenure.

Remarkably, until 1975 the U.S. Senate did not have a Historical Office charged with preserving the institutional memory of this great body. Dick Baker is the original and only Director and the Chief Historian for the past 34 years. Under his leadership, the Historical Office has worked to recover, catalogue and preserve the history of the Senate.

Building this office from the ground up required Dick Baker and his team to collect and maintain records on current and former Senators, reflect oral histories, document important precedents, statistics and Senate activities. And as a photographer I must point out that this work included the cataloging and preservation of a huge trove of Senate-related photographs.

From the beginning, Dick Baker knew his responsibility at the Historical Office was not only to preserve the history of the Senate but to make it more accessible. That included providing access to members, staff, media and scholarly researchers. He exposed more of the Senate and its rich history to the general public through exhibits in the office buildings, presenting materials via the Web and working with C-SPAN to incorporate Senate history into its programming.

And as an author, Dick Baker disseminated information with his publications on Senate history, including a biography of the former Senator from New Mexico, Clinton P. Anderson. His greatest impact, however, I believe the Senate as a whole, has been his placing of our work here in proper context. Most Senators and I look forward to the historical “minutes” that he presents at the opening of many of our caucus lunches. He has also been accessible to me and other Senators in providing presentations of the Senate history at many different venues. My staff and I thoroughly enjoyed a presentation he provided to us on the history of the Senate delegation. His acumen and care for describing Senate history has reminded all of us about the significance of our work here.

As much as visitors feel the weight of history when they enter this building, it is no less important for those of us who represent them to be well aware of the 200-year history of the Senate. It is important to remember that although great men and women preceded us, and even greater ones will undoubtedly follow, our words and actions will continue to echo through these halls long after we are gone. Dick has reminded us of that regularly, and for that we thank him and wish him well.

COMMENDING RON EDMONDS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, it is fitting that we in the Senate take note of the retirement of Ron Edmonds of the Associated Press, a veteran news photographer who has long and superbly documented public life in the Nation’s Capital, including here on Capitol Hill.

Barbara Edwards of Associated Press, a veteran news photographer who has long and superbly documented public life in the Nation’s Capital, including here on Capitol Hill.

Barbara Edwards of Associated Press, a veteran news photographer who has long and superbly documented public life in the Nation’s Capital, including here on Capitol Hill.
If by chance we have not seen Ron himself over the years on the White House driveway or in the Senate’s hearing rooms and hallways, we all surely recognize his work. His images, in the parlance of photographers, have bracketed the history of our era, from the march on Washington, to the attack on President Reagan’s life—a photograph for which Ron Edmonds was awarded a Pulitzer Prize for spot news photography.

By now he has covered the White House for 28 years and captured the news in images of so many Presidents. He entered the world of photography in the day of celluloid film and concluded his career after having helped usher in the age of digital news photography.

I am grateful to have known Ron during his long career. I wish him and his family our congratulations and our best wishes.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD Ron Edmonds’ farewell message to his AP associates.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

RETIREMENT MESSAGE OF RON EDMONDS

July 2009

After twenty-eight years of covering the White House for the Associated Press, I have decided to retire. I will spend some time with my family. I know you usually hear this excuse from politicians who have just been caught with their hands in the cookie jar or with a high-priced companion; but, in this instance, spending time with my family is my true reason, ok maybe a little fishing as well.

I have had one of the most fantastic jobs in the world. It has allowed me to work with some of the greatest journalists in the world and to make images of some of the biggest events in the last thirty years. I hope that in some small way, I have helped the Associated Press maintain its prominence as the number one news organization.

I will never forget the experiences that I have been allowed to take part in: such as, walking through the Forbidden City in China or walking around Times Square with Ronald Reagan; ducking behind an inadequate rock in the Iranian desert as Iraqi artillery shells exploded around us; or, more pleasantly, drinking lemonade with King Hussein and Queen Noor at their summer home in Aqaba, Jordan; and boating down the Nile and strolling through the Valley of the Kings in Egypt.

I have spent many sleepless nights mulling over this decision. It is difficult to leave my many friends here and around the world at the Associated Press, but I have great hopes for a continued bright future for the AP. I leave with no trepidation but rather with a heart full of confidence that our younger generation of AP photographers, such as Charles Dharapak among others, will fill the void with a better and stronger report than ever before.

I have been lucky enough to win a couple of small awards for my work. But perhaps one of the most rewarding still was when my daughter Ashley came home from elementary school and announced that she was so proud, because that day she was able to raise her hand and tell the teacher that the picture on the front of her Weekly Reader was taken by her dad.

I will miss all of my friends, especially those editors on the desk of the Washington bureau, who very rarely get the credit they deserve for wading through my many images to put me on the front pages of newspapers and web pages around the world. It has always been a team effort in Washington. Thanks to all of you for making me look good.

Regards,

RON EDMONDS,
Senior White House Photographer, Associated Press.

COMMENDING BOVE’S RESTAURANT

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I would like to recognize the Bove family of Burlington, VT, on receiving a prestigious honor from the National Association of Specialty Food Trades. In particular, I congratulate Mark Bove, President of Bove’s, and his brother Rick, on receiving the Gold Sofi Award in the Outstanding Pasta, Rice and Grain category.

Bove’s Restaurant opened on Pearl Street in Burlington in 1911 and has been a local favorite for generations. Marcelle and I enjoyed many of Bove’s Italian specialties while we were dating. I was a student at Saint Michael’s College, and Marcelle attended the Jeanne Mance School of Nursing. To this day, Bove’s continues to be a favorite among college students, and many return to the restaurant as alumni during their reunion weekends.

Much to our delight, Mark Bove began bottling his family’s outstanding sauces for sale in grocery stores and now also sells Bove’s specialties, including meatballs and lasagna, at retail sites around our country. When I come home from a long day in the Senate, I am delighted that Marcelle and I can still enjoy a dinner from Bove’s, just as we did as students years ago. We have also enjoyed sharing their great dishes with other Senators and their staff and at the annual Taste of Vermont in Washington.

Once again, I congratulate the Bove family for this high honor. I ask unanimous consent to have a copy of a July 6 article from the Burlington Free Press printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(From the Burlington Free Press, July 6, 2009)

BUSINESS MONDAY: BOVE’S WINS GOLD FOR LASAGNA

Bove’s famous frozen lasagna has been awarded the National Association of Specialty Food Trades’ prestigious Gold Sofi Award in the Outstanding Pasta, Rice and Grain Category.

The all-natural, hand crafted lasagna is a frozen version of the popular classic served at Bove’s cafe on Pearl Street in Burlington.

A year ago Mark Bove, president and sauceboy, introduced the world to his family’s recipe on The Food Network’s “Throwdown with Bobby Flay,” soon followed by an appearance on “The Today Show,” where Bove prepared his lasagna for Hoda Kotb and Kathie Lee Gifford. The national exposure was a success.

“I was making small versions of the lasagna at the restaurant and shipping them around the country,” Bove said in a statement. “We just couldn’t keep up with demand this way, which led me to produce the lasagna for retail.”

COMMENDING SENATOR NORM COLEMAN

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today to honor and pay tribute to my good friend and colleague an extraordinary public servant and tireless advocate for the people of his cherished State of Minnesota, Senator Norm Coleman. I want to express my most sincere gratitude for his lifelong friendship and my enormous admiration for him and his impressive litany of accomplishments. And although I am saddened by his departure from this esteemed Chamber, I know with utmost certainty that Senator Coleman’s exceptional contributions to Minnesotans and the American people will continue well into the future.

I am proud to say that Senator Coleman and I served together over his 6 remarkable years in the Senate, and I would like especially to express my immense gratitude for his pivotal role on the Committee on Commerce, Science and Entrepreneurship over that span of time, where I served first as chair and now as ranking member. Senator Coleman was always a reasoned and passionate voice on the committee, and his indelible impact is indisputable. Whether it was our work together on The Small Business Health Fairness Act of 2005, The Small Business Disaster Response and Loan Improvements Act of 2006, or a number of other measures and issues, Senator Coleman, true to the founding tradition of the U.S. Senate, continually addressed the concerns of his constituents, while at the same time making the best decisions for this Nation.

I especially well recall our joining forces over the winter of 2006 when natural gas and home heating oil prices had skyrocketed in Maine, Minnesota, and numerous other cold weather States, turning a crucial problem of years past into an urgent crisis that required immediate congressional attention. With the level of funding allocated for this Nation, states could not maintain the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program, LIHEAP, an initiative I have long championed that provides vital funding to our country’s low-income families and elders.

Recognizing both the plight of Minnesotans and all affected Americans from the beginning of this crisis, Senator Coleman and I strongly lobbied to give LIHEAP funding to states. Senator Coleman was an instrumental catalyst in our successful effort to pass this bill to the benefit of our fellow Minnesotans and other untold Americans across this land. And for that, I will be forever grateful.
With a career in public service of more than 30 years, begun in 1976 when he was chief prosecutor for the Minnesota Attorney General’s office, Senator Coleman possessed an unflagging determination to advocate on behalf of the people of Minnesota that has never faltered or waned. Prosecuting cases around the State while further developing a growing concern for community issues, Senator Coleman was eventually named Minnesota State solicitor general. And, his outstanding trajectory of leadership was just beginning, for it was then—in 1993—that Norm became mayor of St. Paul, during which time, with his hallmark optimism, he steered the course of the capital city through a transformational revitalization effort.

And so, it came as no surprise that Norm Coleman, after he was sworn in as a U.S. Senator, hit the ground running. And let me say from the outset, Senator Coleman’s was a welcomed voice in a era of increasing partisanship, especially at a time when ideology has been held in greater value by many of our Nation’s elected officials than service to the American people, when too often the slogans and sound bytes in an era of increasing partisanship, and the governing all too frequently never begins, and where public disenchantment with politics runs high.

Senator Coleman’s desire to look beyond this regrettable status quo, embracing instead a sense of collaboration and cooperation, could not have been more central as our chamber sought to enact laws to genuinely improve the lives of Americans.

As I reflect on my friend’s illustrious tenure in the Senate, I cannot help but recall in instance after instance on impertinent matters of far-reaching consequence how Senator Coleman was able to transcend party politics and seek solutions and results for the betterment of the people of the country. For example, Senator Coleman, along with Senators Durbin and Lincoln, was a leading proponent, supporting The Small Business Health Options Program Act or The SHOP Act which would once and for all finally level the playing field for American small businesses and the self-employed and allow them to pool together nationally to receive a host of new, affordable, and quality coverage options.

Norm, like the rest of us, understood all too well that health insurance market reform and coverage policies in The SHOP Act must be included in broader health reform legislation. We will miss his voice as the health care debate moves forward and as we strive to build a consensus on landmark health care legislation. But make no mistake, Senator Coleman was integral in helping lay the foundation for achieving meaningful and sustainable health care reform.

Playing his country and constituents above political expediency, Senator Coleman and I joined together in support of passage and eventual enactment of The Fair Equity Act, bipartisan legislation aimed at increasing pay equity in America and protecting victims of wage discrimination into law. We have labored to extend key, renewable energy tax credits to expand the indispensable State Children’s Health Insurance Program or SCHIP. We stood side by side in the fight to allow Medicare to negotiate lower drug prices, and we joined together to help block proposed cuts in Medicaid. I want to thank Norm, who has truly been a stalwart, to solve his resolve and will on a cross-section of issues that have defined his term in the Senate as a model of governance that ought to be more prevalent.

In that vein, I cannot convey enough what a privilege it was to serve in the Republican Main Street Partnership with Senator Coleman—an organization that my husband, Jock, formerly chaired. Founded in 1998 to promote thoughtful leadership in the Republican Party and to join individuals, organizations, and institutions that share centrist values, the partnership has unfortunately witnessed a decline in our ranks in recent years. But the message and impact of the organization are intrinsically connected to our capacity to truly achieve bipartisanship and garner results on behalf of those who elected us, and Senator Coleman embodied that ethos with integrity and distinction.

In fact, Senator Coleman characterized the Main Street’s message well when he said, “this isn’t about marching to a single tune. This is about being able to listen and work with like-minded colleagues, bring those perspectives, and hopefully play a role in the resolution of things that bottom line are good for the people of Minnesota.” Well, his actions not only aided Minnesotans, but also Mainers and Americans of every stripe and background across this great land.

And yet, one of his exemplary achievements, his greatest accomplishment is undeniably his wonderful family and the love and devotion he has for his wife Laurie, and their two children, Jacob and Sarah. So, it is with a profound honor that I join with his family, and his many friends, in praising Norm for his tireless stewardship of the common good and phenomenal commitment to public service, and for a tenure that enfolds his legacy into the rich, longstanding Senate tradition of Minnesotans.

And so to my colleague and good friend, Norm, let me say, you have been a shining example of bipartisanship and comity that transcends politics, and you will be sorely missed. As you embark on this next chapter and as you consider your next endeavors be they public or private, I urge you, in the immortal words of the poet Alfred Lord Tennyson, “to strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.’’

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I join my colleagues in appreciation and admiration of Senator Norm Coleman. Norm has been a faithful public servant to the people of Minnesota, a principled leader, and a good friend. He made a difference here in Washington, and I feel privileged to have served with him in the U.S. Senate.

Norm and I arrived in Washington at the same time as Sandy and me. We experienced many of the same challenges and adjustments that freshman Senators face, and we encouraged each other by facing them together. Norm and I found we shared a common approach to solving problems, and partnered to advance legislation whenever we could.

Norm said his best idea came from the people of Minnesota, and they can be proud of what he achieved in Washington. Norm supported conservation programs to protect his State’s lakes, rivers, and woodlands. He had a real heart for children, especially those suffering from cancer or waiting to be adopted into loving homes. He was a champion of private-sector initiatives in alternative energy, including clean coal, wind power, and biomass technologies. Norm exposed fraud at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to protect Medicare, and tax evasion by defense contractors. Norm voted to put John Roberts and Samuel Alito on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Of my strongest memories of Norm were formed during our trip to Iraq in January of 2008, about a year after President Bush announced our surge forces there. Norm had joined many Senators in supporting the surge, despite the political risk that support entailed. He understood that the strategy and leadership of GEN David Petraeus was America’s best chance to succeed in Iraq.

Norm and I, along with Senator Johnny Isakson, visited Baghdad together. We had dinner with General Petraeus and Ambassador Ryan Crock, and discussed how we could facilitate political reconciliation. We met with General Ray Odierno to discuss the new mission of population security, as well as the progress they were seeing in reducing violence and U.S. casualties. We toured a marketplace in western Baghdad, where U.S. and Iraqi forces had helped bring back shopkeepers and their customers by driving out insurgents and terrorists.

During our visit, I got to see the Norm Coleman that Norm and I know very well. At Maverick Security Station in Baghdad, I saw Norm honor troops who hailed from the Twin Cities and throughout his State. At a meeting with Iraqi civilian leaders, I saw him encourage our courageous military forces in the Muds, and Kurds working to build a free and democratic nation in the heart of the Middle East. And wherever we traveled, I saw his easygoing manner, his wry sense of humor, and his appreciation of the honor bestowed on him by his fellow Minnesotans.

Norm ran a tough race for reelection last fall, a race that lasted far longer... than the Minnesota winter. He mounted a legal challenge based on a clear principle: no Minnesotan should be disenfranchised. As chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, I was proud to support Norm as he pursued his case in the courts. And once he had entered the Senate, he added the grace with which he conceded the race, and the optimism he has shown for his own future, and that of our country.

Norm accomplished much in Washington that I think he remains proudest of what he achieved closer to home. After Minnesota’s hockey team moved to my home state of Texas back in 1993, Mayor Norm Coleman of St. Paul led the effort to bring the National Hockey League back to the Twin Cities. Since the first puck dropped in 2000, the Minnesota Wild have sold out every game they have played, and every fan owes a debt of thanks to Norm Coleman. I too am thankful for Norm Coleman, because some of the same example he set for us. He never let public service go to his head. He always put his faith and family first. He fought hard to keep his seat, but never failed to keep his cool.

I wish Norm and Laurie the very best, as their journey together continues.

PROTECTING TENANTS AT FORECLOSURE IMPLEMENTATION

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, for too long, tenants have been the innocent victims of the foreclosure crisis. Countless tenants across the country have been forced to leave their homes simply because their landlords were unable to pay their mortgages. Too often, these tenants had no idea that the property was even under foreclosure until the authorities arrived at their door to inform them that they must vacate the property immediately. I want to work with Senator KERRY to include the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act of 2009 in the recently enacted Helping Families Save their Homes Act. This new law protects tenants facing evictions due to foreclosure by ensuring they can remain in their homes for the length of the lease or, at the least, receive sufficient notice and time to relocate their families and live to a new home. The full Senate approved the bill on May 6, 2009, and President Obama signed it into law on May 20, 2009.

These protections are so important that my colleague Senator KERRY and I want to ensure that families and mortgage holders know their rights and obligations under the law.

Under the new law, all bona fide tenants who began renting prior to transfer of title by foreclosure of their rental property must be given at least 90 days’ notice before being required to vacate the property. In addition, these bona fide tenants are allowed to remain in place for the remainder of any leases entered into prior to the transfer of title by foreclosure. These leases may be terminated earlier only if the property is transferred to someone who intends to reside in the property and only if the tenants are given at least 90 days’ notice of the fact of such sale. Successors in interest to properties transferred by foreclosure under the act are required to provide the obligations of the former owner under the housing assistance payments contract.

Both the Federal Reserve and the Department of Housing and Urban Development have acted quickly to issue notifications to the entities that they regulate describing the law in the same way. Their notifications stated how the law is intended to provide.

I also agree with Chairman DODD’s statement of the intent of the legislation. As the chairman stated, the law was intended to provide all bona fide tenants, who began renting prior to transfer of title by foreclosure of their rental property, be given at least 90 days’ notice before being required to vacate the property. In addition, these bona fide tenants are allowed to remain in place for the remainder of any leases entered into prior to the transfer of title by foreclosure. These leases may be terminated earlier only if the property is transferred to someone who intends to reside in the property and only if the tenants are given at least 90 days’ notice of the fact of such sale. Successors in interest to properties acquired by foreclosure are held to follow the law, and that tenant families obtain the benefits the law was intended to provide.

No one in the Senate has worked harder to fight against the scourge of foreclosures than Chairman DODD. As a former member of the Senate Banking Committee, I know Chairman DODD has tirelessly fought to assist low and moderate-income families and to help tenants who need protections from foreclosures or unscrupulous landlords. Without his efforts, families in Connecticut and throughout the nation would not have access to critically needed protections and many more American families would be facing foreclosure.

I agree with Chairman DODD that it is important that persons and entities acquire properties through foreclosure follow the law, and that tenant families obtain the benefits the law was intended to provide.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I was pleased to work with Senator DODD to enact this legislation to help tenants affected by foreclosures.

The drought has severely impacted Texas farmers and ranchers. According to one recent study, economic losses will reach $3.6 billion by the end of this year—a little less than $1 billion in livestock losses—and the rest in crop losses.

A few weeks ago, I met with some ranchers and farmers in San Angelo, TX. They shared with me how drought conditions were devastating production—even as the recession weakened demand. They also asked me a question: Where was the money Washington promised to help them through these tough times?

This question is the same question I am asking today: Where is the money Congress authorized last year for the Supplemental Revenue Assurance Program?

The SURE Program was included in the farm bill I voted for in June of 2008. It received broad bipartisan support. It created a trust fund of about $3 billion a year to help farmers and ranchers during tough times.

Yet despite becoming law more than a year ago, the SURE Program has still not been implemented by the USDA. Not a single farmer or rancher has received any assistance from the trust fund so far. No payments had even been planned before December of this year—as it is the lowest of five priorities within USDA’s disaster assistance program.

On July 16, I wrote Secretary Vilsack. I asked him to tell me when our farmers and ranchers can expect to receive the assistance authorized for them. I also cosponsored Senator Hutchison’s amendment to the Agriculture appropriations bill, which expresses the sense of the Senate that USDA should expedite the drought relief we need this year.

This week, I spoke to Secretary Vilsack as he was traveling in Kenya. He told me that the SURE Program should be finalized by September, which is encouraging news. He also said that the Department’s antiquated record-keeping, as well as new demands imposed on USDA in the stimulus bill, have prevented this program from being finalized sooner.

Nevertheless, Mr. President, I am frustrated that we are discussing more money for cash for clunkers—when we should be asking: Where’s the cash for crops? Where’s the relief for ranchers?

Other Senators may be asking a third question: Why should I care? Can I think of any reason?

First, Texas isn’t the only State susceptible to drought conditions. The Lone Star State is experiencing the worst of it now, but many other States in the South and West could experience similar conditions in the future. In the Senate, the SURE Program was created for farmers and ranchers in all of our States—so we all have a stake in seeing this program implemented quickly and successfully.

Second, the implementation challenges of this program should be on our minds as we consider expanding or creating new programs. Mr. President, the SURE Program isn’t a complicated program. It is a fairly straightforward disaster assistance initiative. This shouldn’t be a heavy lift for the Federal bureaucracy.

Yet if a simple program like this takes a year or more to get off the ground—Senators really should pause and take a deep breath before we create a vast new Federal bureaucracy to run a complicated cap-and-trade scheme, take control over one-sixth of our economy in the name of health care reform, or dump more taxpayers’ dollars into the Cash for Clunkers Program.

PSORIASIS AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, I rise today to bring attention to the serious, debilitating, chronic diseases of psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis. August is Psoriasis Awareness Month, and I urge you to support S. 571, the Psoriasis and Psoriatic Arthritis Research, Cure, and Care Act for 2009—important legislation that I have cosponsored with my colleagues.

This legislation will fill important gaps in psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis data collection and research, and is an important step in providing relief to the as many as 7.5 million Americans that the National Institutes of Health, NIH, estimates suffer from these non-contagious, genetic autoimmune diseases.

Psoriasis is the most prevalent autoimmune disease, yet is widely misunderstood, minimized, and under-treated. Between 10 and 30 percent of people with psoriasis also develop psoriatic arthritis, which causes pain, stiffness and swelling in and around the joints. Without treatment, psoriatic arthritis can be disabling. Of serious concern is that people with psoriasis are at elevated risk for myriad comorbidities, including but not limited to, heart disease, diabetes, obesity, and mental health conditions. Psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis impose significant burdens on individuals and society. Psoriasis alone is estimated to cost the Nation 56 million hours of lost work and between $2 billion and $3 billion annually.

The Psoriasis and Psoriatic Arthritis Research, Cure, and Care Act would help combat the pain, suffering, and stigma of psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis by expanding psoriasis research conducted by the NIH and strengthening the effort on these diseases by establishing a national psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis patient registry through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The bill also directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to convene a summit to discuss issues and opportunities in psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis research. Finally, the bill calls upon the Institute of Medicine to conduct a study and issue a report on recommendations with respect to access to care for people with psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis. Taken together, these efforts will help reduce and prevent suffering from these conditions.

I would like to take a moment to recognize the significant work of the National Psoriasis Foundation volunteer whose 6-year-old daughter Hannah has psoriasis. While this disease is physically painful, for a child, the emotional pain can be just as debilitating. In the summer months, little Hannah endured many staves and rude remarks at the public pool. Her psoriasis was particularly bad, covering a large portion of her small body. Paula eventually bought a pool for the backyard so her daughter could swim and play without being teased and embarrassed. It is important that we do all we can to work with groups like the National Psoriasis Foundation to raise awareness about the disease and to fight the stigma that this serious autoimmune disease is just a case of “dry skin.”

In my home State of Oregon there are over 89,000 of my constituents living with psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis. I encourage my colleagues to meet with psoriasis patients in your States to learn more about psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis, and work to reduce the misconceptions surrounding these conditions. I further urge you to join with me and other colleagues in supporting people with psoriasis by cosponsoring S. 571.

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent that the letter dated August 6, 2009, from Consumers Federation of America, et al., be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Re Deceptive Loan Check Elimination Act.

Hon. JEFF MERKLEY,
U.S. Senate, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

Dear Senator MERKLEY: We congratulate you on introducing legislation to protect consumers from the risks of credit marketed via unsolicited checks that can be signed and deposited, obligating consumers to repay high cost loans. The Check Elimination Act fills a gap in protections against mailing unsolicited credit devices that has existed since Congress prohibited banks from mailing live credit cards to consumers in the 1970’s.

Checks mailed as part of credit solicitations represent the loan principal, not just a credit line. Once these checks are “cashed,” the borrower becomes obligated for a relatively large debt generally at a high interest rate and prohibitive terms. This marketing practice poses serious risks to consumers, given identity theft and its repercussions. First, consumers are harmed if these checks are cashed by someone other than the named borrower. Given the ease with which incoming mail can be stolen from mail boxes or diverted by others in a household, marketing by unauthorized live check loans is a risk to consumers who did not request credit. The cost to consumers includes the time and money spent correcting credit reports and notifying lenders about fraudulently arranged debt as well as reduced credit scores until the fraudulent item is corrected, which can take months. Second, live loan checks present a “free money” temptation for consumers struggling to make ends meet, who may not have the ability to pay back the check loan.

No device that extends credit and obligates borrowers should be sent without express request from consumers. It is high time that Congress complete the job started over thirty years ago to prohibit creditors from mailing out live credit devices to consumers who did not request them and that can be used to obligate consumers and damage credit ratings.

We look forward to working with you as this bill moves through the legislative process. Please contact Jean Ann Fox, CPA.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, the Obama administration has rightly focused much of its attention not on Iraq but on the region of the world that most threatens our national security—the Pakistan-Afghanistan region. This was not always the case. The leadership of al-Qaeda and Afghan Taliban operate and where Pakistani Taliban elements are seeking to extend their reach. I expressed these concerns, among other places, at a hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to Ambassador Richard Holbrooke, the administration’s envoy to the region. Ambassador Holbrooke conceded that the concern was real and that, while the outcome was always uncertain, they could not rule out these unintended consequences. Testifying before the same committee a week later, Admiral Mullen made similar comments.

The war in Afghanistan is inextricably linked to the al-Qaeda safe haven in the FATA and the Afghan Taliban safe haven in Balochistan, as well as to the current conflict in the Northwest Frontier Province and to the rest of Pakistan. It is not the same war throughout the region, and it would be a mistake to perceive a monolithic enemy. But we need to consider the consequences of our actions and those of our partners throughout the region.

Last year, I made a trip to Peshawar in the Northwest Frontier Province. There I met the province’s leadership, as well as the extraordinary Americans working in our consulate there. During and after my trip, I expressed concern about the impact of deals made between the government and the Pakistani Taliban. Tragically, however, the situation in the NWFP got worse. Increased fighting in Peshawar included the killing of USAID employees and an attack on our top diplomat there. And the Pakistani Taliban’s reach into Swat became broader and more radical, further threatening our national security and that of Pakistan. These advances must be permanently rolled back, just as safe havens in the FATA cannot be allowed to stand.

But it is not enough for us to throw our support behind the Pakistani military incursions. This is a critical moment in which it matters how Pakistan seeks to assert its control. The displacement of over 2 million civilians, delays in assistance to and the return of those who are internally displaced, the coordinated and accountable civilian-lead security to the people all pose serious risks. Internal conflicts fuel terrorist recruitment and can create new safe havens. So while we have a clear interest in the success of one side—the Pakistani Government—we also have a clear interest in how this conflict is waged and how it is resolved.

At the same time, we must focus more attention beyond the safe havens and instability in South Asia, particularly on Yemen and Somalia. The threat from al-Qaeda affiliates in those countries, as well as from al Shebaab, is increasing. But we must remember that the internal stability, vast ungoverned areas, and unresolved local tensions have created almost ideal safe havens in which terrorists can recruit and operate. They have also attracted foreign fighters in substantial numbers. Americans, Al-Qaeda’s long tentacles reach into these countries, and our efforts to track individual operatives are critical, just as they are in Pakistan. But, while we should aggressively pursue al-Qaeda leaders, we will not achieve our long-term strategic goals if we think about counterterrorism primarily as a manhunt or if we assume there is a finite number of terrorists in the world. Conditions in places such as Yemen and Somalia are actually new ones. That is why press stories suggesting that operatives from Pakistan are relocating, while troubling, ignore the larger strategic picture. Because of conditions on the ground, al-Qaeda affiliates in Yemen and Somalia are far more capable than in Pakistan, and their reach and capabilities on their own. And the best way to stop them is to address head-on the reasons—frequently unique to the countries in which they are operating—for their success.

The threats to our national security in Yemen are serious and are getting worse. News last month about the murder of as many as nine hostages in Yemen, which Yemeni officials have linked to groups affiliated with al-Qaeda, is a reminder of the increasing violence there. As in Peshawar, our diplomats have been in the crosshairs, with the attack last September on our Embassy in Sana’a. And, as our State Department has warned, al-Qaeda in Yemen remains strong, and its tactics indicate high levels of training, coordination, and sophistication. Any serious effort against al-Qaeda in Yemen will require the engagement of the government, whose capabilities and commitment are extremely weak. Yemen is a fragile state whose government has limited control outside the capital. It is also distracted from the counterterrorism effort by two other sources of domestic instability—the Houthi rebellion in the north and tensions with a southern region with which Sana’a was united less than 20 years ago. In other words, counterterrorism is hampered by weak governance and by internal conflicts that would not appear on the surface to threaten our interests. Our only choice, then, is to develop a comprehensive policy toward Yemen that places counterterrorism within a broader framework that promotes internal stability, economic development, demobilization, democracy, accountability, and the rule of law.

And we must do this while considering the obstacles to repatriating the approximately 100 Yemeni detainees currently detained at Guantanamo Bay. I have spoken out about security gaps in Yemen, particularly with regard to the escape from detention of a terrorist operative responsible for the attack on the USS Cole. I support the closing of Guantanamo, but with so many of its detainees hailing from Yemen, we need to take an honest look at the weaknesses in Sana’a’s justice and security systems and consider whether there is anything we can do about them.

Instability in Yemen is, of course, directly linked to conflict in the Horn of Africa. Earlier this year, the pirate attack on a U.S. vessel briefly raised awareness of maritime insecurity fostered by a lack of effective governance and insufficient naval capacity on both sides of the Gulf of Aden. This problem continues, even when it is not on the front page and in the headlines—and a driver of overall instability in the region. Meanwhile, refugees from the conflict in Somalia are fleeing to Yemen. According to a recent U.N. report, thirty 30,000 have crossed the Gulf of Aden this year with thousands more preparing to do so. The human cost to this exodus, as well as the potentially destabilizing affects, demand our attention. Finally, Yemen is linked to the Horn of Africa through arms trafficking that violates the U.N. embargo on Somalia and fuels the conflict there.

The threat in northern Somalia is, or should be, more apparent now than ever. Last October, terrorists attacked in Mogadishu and Puntland, regions—and regional governments—for which we have little in the way of policy. I am not arguing that we recognize their independence, but it is in our national interest to engage them—diplomatically and economically—and to promote stability there. I have spoken frequently, and for years, about the need for a comprehensive policy for the Horn of Africa. Serious attention to the unique conditions in Somaliland and Puntland must be part of that policy.

Meanwhile, the raging conflict in central and southern Somalia is worse than ever, as a beleaguered transitional government fights a strengthened al Shebaab and allied militias. Foreign fighters have come to Somalia to fight alongside al Shebaab, including Americans, one of whom was implicated in the October terrorist attacks. The threat in East Africa, which dates back to the instability and has even expanded its support network south, into parts of Kenya. Yet for far too long, our policy toward Somalia has been fragmented or nonexistent. Our counterterrorism approach to the country has been ad hoc and has failed to confront the reasons why Somalia is not just a safe haven for al-Qaeda in East Africa but a recruiting ground for increasing numbers of fighters—Somali and foreign—who are then recruited and trained by local and regional forces. That is why a comprehensive policy must include a serious, high-level commitment. to a sustainable and inclusive peace and why all elements of the U.S. Government need to work together toward common goals.

As in Yemen, the key to a successful strategy is the recognition that destabilizing factors in the region are a threat to the United States. Thus, separatism in the Ogaden or Somali region of Ethiopia, the ongoing Ethiopian-Eritrean border disputes, and the ways in which these tensions motivate the policies of these countries toward Somalia must factor into our broader regional strategy. This is complex, to be sure. But we simply have no other choice—we must recognize the complexity, understand it, and devise policies that address it.

This administration has a historic opportunity. And there are indications that lessons are being learned. The Director of the National Counterterrorism Center, who the previous administration—recently said the following:

"This is a global struggle for al-Qaida, but if we think about it too much as a global struggle and fail to identify the local events that attract these knapsack terrorist people to join what they view as a global struggle, we will really miss the boat. We have to try to disaggregate al-Qaida into the localized units that can operate independently and attack those local issues that have motivated these individuals to see their future destiny through a global jihadist banner."

This is the strategic framework that we have been waiting for, and it is encouraging.

But statements such as these are only the beginning. To effectively fight the threat from al-Qaida and its affiliates, we have to change the way our government is structured and how it operates.

First, we need better intelligence. Recent reforms to our intelligence community have focused on tactical intelligence—on “connecting the dots.” We need to tackle the gaps in strategic intelligence. We need to improve the intelligence that relates directly to al-Qaida affiliates—where they find safe haven and why. But we also need better intelligence on the local conflicts and other conditions that impede or complicate our counterterrorism efforts. And we need better intelligence on regions of the world in which the increasing marginalization of communities, resentments against local governments, and ethnic conflicts can result in new safe havens, new pools for terrorist recruiting, or simply distractions for one of our counterterrorism partners.

Second, we need to fully integrate our intelligence community with all the ways in which our government, particularly the State Department, openly collects, reports, and analyzes information. This integration, which was the goal of legislation that I introduced in the last Congress with Senator Hagel and that twice has won approval from the Senate Intelligence Committee, is a critical component of strategic counterterrorism. Without it, we will never understand the conditions around the world—most of them apparent to experienced diplomats—that allow al-Qaeda affiliates to operate, nor will we be able to respond effectively.

The integration of clandestine intelligence community activities and open information gathering must include the allocation of real resources to the right people. This is fundamental. We can no longer afford to have budget requests driven by the equities and influence of individual agencies, rather than interagency strategies. And while Congress should do its part, real reform must be internalized by the executive branch.

Fourth, we need to recognize that when whole countries or regions are off limits to our diplomats, we have a national security problem. We know that national tensions in Yemen, clan conflicts in Somalia, and violent extremism in Pakistan all contribute to the overall terrorism threat. But if our diplomats can’t get there, not only will we never truly understand what is going on, we won’t be able to engage with the local populations. In some cases, we can and should view embassies as posts. For years, I have pushed for such an initiative in northern Nigeria, a region where clashes between security forces and extremists have taken hundreds of lives in recent weeks. In some cases, these efforts are prohibitive. But there, we cannot just turn our backs; our absence doesn’t make the threats go away. Instead, we should develop policies that focus on helping to reestablish security, for the sake of the local populations as well as for our own interests.

Fifth, we need strong, sustained policies aimed directly at resolving conflicts that allow al-Qaeda affiliates to operate and recruit. These policies must be sophisticated and informed. We have suffered from a tendency to view the world in terms of extremists versus moderates, good guys versus bad guys. These are blinders that prevent us from understanding, on their own terms, complex conflicts such as the ones in Yemen or Somalia or, to inject two other examples, Mali and Nigeria. They have also led us to prioritize tactical operations—DOD strikes in Somalia, for example—without full consideration of their strategic impact. Conversely, some of the local conflicts as obscure and unimportant, relegating them to small State Department teams with few resources and limited influence outside the Department. This must change. Policy needs to be driven by the real national security interests we have in these countries and regions, and our policies need to be supported by all elements of the U.S. Government. That includes a real recognition that, sometimes, policies that promote economic development or part of a regional strategy are critical to our counterterrorism efforts, and they need real resources and support from the whole of our government.

Mr. President, after 7 years of an administration that believed it could fight terrorism by simply identifying and destroying enemies, we now have an opportunity to take a more effective, comprehensive, long-term approach. The President, in his speech in Cairo, reached out to Muslims around the world. The Director of the NCTC has stressed the need to address local conditions in the global struggle against al-Qaida’s affiliates. The Secretary of Defense has acknowledged the need to increase the role and resources of other agencies and departments. Now, however, the real work begins. Changing the way the government, and Congress, for that matter, understands and responds to the national security threats facing us will not be easy. But we have no time to wait.

45TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE WILDERNESS ACT

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, as founder of the Senate Wilderness and Public Lands Caucus, I led a Senate resolution commemorating the upcoming 45th anniversary of the Wilderness Act of 1964. I am delighted the Senate passed this resolution last night, and I am very pleased that Senator McCain joined me in leading this effort. I also thank our other colleagues for their support as cosponsors: Senators LAMAR ALEXANDER, EVAN BATH, MICHAEL BENNET, BARBARA Boxer, RONALD BURRIS, ROBERT BYRD, MARIA CANTWELL, BENJAMIN CARDIN, SUSAN COLLINS, CHRIS DODD, DICK DURBAN, DIANNE FEINSTEIN, JUDD GREGG, JOHN KERRY, JOE LIEBERMAN, ROBERT MENENDEZ, EVAN BAYH, MICHAEL BENNET, LEE MCCARTHY, PATTY MURRAY, MARK UdALL, TOM UdALL, GEORGE VOINovich and RON WYDEN.

This Wilderness Act was signed into law on September 3, 1964, by President Lyndon B. Johnson, 7 years after the first wilderness bill was passed by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota. The final bill, sponsored by Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, passed the Senate by a vote of 73-12 on April 9, 1963, and passed the House of Representatives by a vote of 373-1 on July 30, 1964.

The Wilderness Act of 1964 established a National Wilderness Preservation System “to secure for the American people of present and future generations the benefits of an enduring resource of wilderness.” The law gives Congress the authority to designate wilderness areas, and directs the federal land management agencies to review federal lands and make their responsibility for their wilderness potential.

Under the Wilderness Act, wilderness is defined as “an area of undeveloped federal land retaining its primeval character and influence which generally appears to have been affected primarily by the forces of nature, with the imprint of man’s work substantially unnoticeable.” The creation of national wilderness system marked an innovation in the American conservation movement—wilderness would be a place where our “management strategy” would be to leave lands essentially undeveloped.

The original Wilderness Act established 9.1 million acres of Forest Service land in 54 wilderness areas. The support for wilderness has continued through the 111th Congress with the creation of 52 new wilderness areas in the Omnibus Land Management Act of 2009. Today, the wilderness system is comprised of over 109 million acres in over 750 wilderness areas, across 44 States, and administered by 4 Federal agencies: the Forest Service in the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and the Bureau of Land Management, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and the National Park Service in the Department of the Interior.

As we in this body know well, the passage and enactment of the Wilderness Act marked a monumental achievement that required steady, bipartisan commitment, institutional support, and strong leadership. The U.S. Senate was instrumental in shaping this very important law, and this anniversary gives us the opportunity to recognize this role.

As a Senator from Wisconsin, I feel a special bond with this issue. The concept of wilderness is inextricably linked with Wisconsin. Wisconsin has produced some of the world’s most influential wilderness thinkers and leaders in the wilderness movement such as Senator Gaylord Nelson and the writer and conservationist Aldo Leopold, whose “A Sand County Almanac” helped to galvanize the environmental movement. Also notable is Sierra Club founder John Muir, whose birthday is the day before Earth Day. Wisconsin also produced Sigurd Olson, one of the founders of The Wilderness Society.

I am privileged to hold the Senate seat held by Gaylord Nelson, a man for whom I have the greatest admiration and respect. He is a well-known and widely respected former Senator and two-term Governor of Wisconsin, and the founder of Earth Day. In his later years, he devoted his time to the protection of wilderness by serving as a counselor to The Wilderness Society—an activity which was quite appropriate for someone who was also a co-sponsor, along with former Senator Proxmire, of the bill that became the Wilderness Act.

The testimony at congressional hearings and the discussion of the bill in the press of the day reveals Wisconsin’s crucial role in the long and continuing American debate over wilderness in mind and in the development of the Wilderness Act. The names and ideas of John Muir, Sigurd Olson, and, especially, Aldo Leopold, appear time and time again in the legislative history.

Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, chairman of what was then called the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, stated that his support of the wilderness system was the direct result of discussions he had held almost forty years before with Leopold, who was then in the Southwest with the Forest Service. It was Leopold who, while with the Forest Service, advocated the creation of a primitive area in New Mexico in 1923. The Gila Primitive Area formally became part of the wilderness system when the Wilderness Act became law.

In a statement in favor of the Wilderness Act in the New York Times, then-Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall discussed ecology and what he called “a land ethic” and referred to Leopold as the instigator of the modern wilderness movement. At a Senate hearing in 1961, David Brower of the Sierra Club went so far as to claim that “no man who reads Leopold with an open mind will ever again, with a clear conscience, be able to step up and testify against the wilderness bill.” For others, the ideas of Olson and Muir, particularly the idea that preserving wilderness is a way for us to better understand our country’s history and the frontier experience—provided a justification for the wilderness system.

I would like to quote colleagues of the words of Aldo Leopold in his 1949 book, “A Sand County Almanac.” He said, “The outstanding scientific discovery of the twentieth century is not the television, or radio, but rather the complexity of the land organism. Only he who is wise and well read about it can appreciate how little is known about it.”

We still have much to learn, but this anniversary of the Wilderness Act reminds us how far we have come and how the commitment to public lands that the Senate and the Congress demonstrated 45 years ago continues to benefit all Americans.

I would like to recognize the following organizations for their efforts to continue protecting our wild places: American Rivers, Alaska Wilderness League, Campaign for America’s Wilderness, Earthjustice, Natural Resources Defense Council, Pew Environment Group, Republicans for Environmental Protection, Sierra Club, Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance, and The Wilderness Society.

WOMEN’S EQUALITY DAY

Mrs. McCASKILL. Mr. President, in observance of the upcoming Women’s Equality Day on August 26, 2009, I wish to pay tribute to the women soldiers and civilians of the U.S. Army who serve and defend our great country each day—whether in garrison communities here in the United States, like at Ft. Leonard Wood in my native Missouri, or on the front lines of battle in places like Afghanistan, Iraq, and other places around the world.

Although the G.I. bill does not receive equal treatment or recognition while serving in the military during the Civil War or the wars of the 20th century, they now serve in many roles and capacities in the Active, Guard and Reserve components and perform equally as well as their male counterparts. Today’s Army fighting women are critical to the success of the Army’s mission, and their sacrifice on the battlefield demonstrates a clear call to duty that transcends any supposed gender limitations.

One such example of this bravery is Silver Star recipient SPC Monica Brown, who, when her convoy was attacked while on patrol in Afghanistan, disregarded a hail of bullets that threatened her own life and jumped into action in her role as a medic to pull wounded soldiers to safety and render lifesaving aid to them. I also think about the heroic actions of Sgt. Leigh Ann Hester, another Silver Star recipient and military police platoon leader. When Sergeant Hester and her fellow soldiers were ambushed south of Baghdad, she bravely led her unit through an insurgent ‘kill zone’ and in a flanking position to assault the enemy with fire, killing three insurgents herself.

These acts of selflessness are also mirrored in the spirit of volunteerism and commitment that Army civilian women exhibit as they deploy to combat zones wherever the Army needs them. Like their male counterparts, these women are serving honorably and selflessly as architects, doctors, nurses, lawyers, structural engineers, logisticians, and in scores of other occupational specialties. And like our military women, they do justice to the millions of women who preceded them in history to fight for equal rights for women in America.

As we celebrate the great accomplishments of women in the military on Women’s Equality Day, it is imperative that our Nation and leaders continue to evaluate additional opportunities for military service by women. While women have achieved and contributed so much to the Army and the overall military mission, some barriers still exist.

I look forward to a day when more combat aviation and ground occupational specialties will be open to women, for instance. I look forward to a day when there will be more women in the general officer ranks to accompany my good friend GEN Ann Dunwoody, the Army’s first and only female four-star general in its entire 234-year history. Our military and government must never slow its commitment to giving women the access to the full range of opportunities that the military has to offer. In doing so, I am confident that these few remaining barriers will fall.

I strongly encourage my fellow members to honor Women’s Equality Day on August 26 by thanking the military women and their families of their States for their commitment, bravery and unflinching support to our great Nation.
NATIONAL HEALTH CENTER WEEK

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize the week of August 9, 2009, as National Health Center Week. National health centers provide care to 18 million people a year throughout the United States, through services at Community, Migrant, Homeless and Public Housing Health Center delivery sites. In the opportunity in a week dedicated to these sites to promote awareness on the expansive role they play in the health care of some of our Nation’s most underserved citizens.

It is important to recognize that at a time when health care costs have increased considerably across the country, these health centers have continued to serve an increasing number of patients without compromising the quality of care.

The Community Health Center Program, which operates in communities that are designated as medically underserved, has played a particularly important role as a health safety net provider in my State of South Dakota. Significant barriers limit access to quality health care for thousands of South Dakotans. The successful efforts of our State’s community health centers have helped reduce many of these barriers by providing quality care to our State’s low-income citizens. These health centers provide on-site dental, pharmaceutical, mental health, and substance abuse services that are often hard to come by in rural communities.

In South Dakota, more than 50,000 patients received care in 2007, 40 percent of whom were uninsured and an additional 25 percent were covered under Medicaid.

I strongly support this model of health care delivery and commend the hard work of those in South Dakota and across the Nation in providing accessible, high-quality health care to those most in need.

WIPA AND PABSS REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2009

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I urge the Senate to pass by unanimous consent the WIPA and PABSS Reauthorization Act of 2009—H.R. 3325—which was passed recently by the House of Representatives. The bill will extend, for 1 year, two programs that provide important care for Social Security and supplemental security income, SSI, disability beneficiaries who would like to return to work.

Both of these programs were included in the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999, which passed Congress with bipartisan support. Under the Work Incentives Planning and Assistance, WIPA, program, the Social Security Administration, SSA, funds community-based organizations to provide personally accessible to Social Security and SSI disability beneficiaries who want to work, by helping these beneficiaries understand SSA’s complex work incentive policies and the effect that working will have on their benefits. This program can help to reduce the fears many beneficiaries have about attempting to return to work.

Under the Protection and Advocacy for Beneficiaries of Social Security, PABSS, Program, SSA provides grants to protection and advocacy systems to provide legal advocacy services that beneficiaries need to secure, maintain, or regain employment. The PABSS Program also provides beneficiaries with information about obtaining vocational rehabilitation and employment services.

The Finance Committee and other committees in Congress have received testimony from disability advocates and other stakeholders about the importance of these programs to increasing employment among disability beneficiaries.

The Social Security Administration is currently authorized to spend $23 million annually from its administrative budget to fund the WIPA Program, and $7 million annually to fund the PABSS Program. However, the authorization for both programs expires on September 30, 2009.

This bill will extend the WIPA and PABSS Programs for 1 year, with no changes, while the relevant committees in Congress consider a longer term reauthorization. This 1-year extension will ensure that these programs can continue to provide disability beneficiaries with the assistance they need to return to work.

I thank my colleagues for their support for temporarily extending these important programs.

SNAKE HEADWATERS WILD AND SCENIC DESIGNATION

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I wish to speak on the Craig Thomas Snake Headwaters Legacy Act of 2009.

Shortly before Craig Thomas passed away, he introduced legislation, S. 1281, to protect the Snake River headwaters. His goal was to designate hundreds of miles of river in northwest Wyoming as wild and scenic. At the time, Senator Thomas stated that this designation would be a “badge of honor” for these rivers.

On May 15, 2007, the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources held a hearing on S. 1281. Senator Thomas invited Jack Dennis, a world renowned fly fisherman, to testify in support of the bill.

During his testimony Jack Dennis eloquently made the case for wild and scenic designation stating “Without hesitation, the rivers and streams of the Snake River Headwaters are the most stunningly beautiful in the world.” Jack further testified that “To walk these rivers and hear the music of the fish, to watch them swim out of the lodge, to watch an elk come down to the river to drink at sunrise—these rivers touch all our souls.”

On Sunday, August 9, 2009, I will be participating in a community event in Jackson Hole, WY, to officially designate the Snake River headwaters as wild and scenic. I will be joining Susan Thomas, Jack Dennis, and hundreds of grassroots organizations and individuals who never gave up.

Like so many others, the river touched Craig’s soul. This coming Sunday, we will finish the task Craig Thomas started. It is a remarkable accomplishment—388 miles of river dedicated as wild and scenic, 388 miles of pristine water that will be protected for the enjoyment of future generations.

What an honor indeed.

SENATE EMPLOYEES’ CHILD CARE CENTER

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the Senate Employees’ Child Care Center for 25 years of service.

The Senate Employees’ Child Care Center opened its doors on February 27, 1984, as the first childcare center on Capitol Hill. Its successful opening is attributed to the dedication and hard work of Senate Members, employees, and their families.

The center has grown, much like the children and Senate families it has served. On opening day, the center had 27 children enrolled from the ages of 18 months to 5 years. Today, the center today has grown to a full enrollment of 68 children from the ages of 10 weeks to 5 years.

The center first opened in what was known as the Immigration Building and is now the Capitol Police headquarters. As it outgrew that space, a new facility was constructed nearby. Enrollment and growth continued, necessitating the construction of a new facility in December of 1995. Many things have changed over the past 25 years, such as the location, number of children served, and the faces of teachers and families, one constant is this: the Senate Employees’ Child Care Center remains a first-class facility. Families continue to appreciate the comfort of knowing their children are in a safe and enriching educational environment. In fact, many families refer to the Center as a “school” rather than a daycare facility.

We and our staffs strive for excellence. The Senate Employees’ Child Care Center does the same. In 1989, it became the first center in Washington, DC, to achieve accreditation from the National Association for the Education of Young Children, NAEYC. This accreditation is the “gold standard” for early childhood education, and the center has maintained it continuously since 1989.

As in the early days, families with children enrolled in the center are encouraged to be involved in its daily operations. Many families spend their lunch hours doing “nap duty,” others
I ask that the Senate join me in honoring him for his impressive athletic career and newest honor as an inductee into the National Baseball Hall of Fame.

HONORING THE 437TH AIRLIFT WING

Mr. DE MINT. Mr. President, Senator GRAHAM joins me today to congratulate the men and women of the 437th Airlift Wing stationed at Charleston Air Force Base, South Carolina, for their outstanding service in defending our Nation and for their great achievements at the Air Force’s Air Mobility Command Rodeo Competition.

It is been 8 years since the attacks of 9/11, and the record of continuous operations for the 437th is an inspiration to us all. Shortly after the attacks, Charleston leapt into action, dropping humanitarian aid to Afghanistan and hours after pounding al-Qaeda and Taliban insurgents.

Later, when we put boots on the ground, the 437th led the first-ever C-17 combat dirt landing in the barren wilderness of Afghanistan to establish a critical forward operating base. Since then, they have delivered a staggering 1.3 billion pounds of cargo to support our troops and provide relief for friends and allies around the world.

However, when the 437th is not saving lives and delivering freedom, they are winning awards and bringing home trophies. We are especially proud of the 437th’s accomplishments at the 2009 Air Mobility Command Rodeo Competition. The 437th competed with more than 100 teams and 2,500 people from the United States Air Force and allied nations. They led the C-17 aircrew competition and finished first in two out of three competitions, earning trophies for “Best C-17 Refueling Crew” and “Best Short Field Landing Crew.” Furthermore, Team Charleston continued their distinguished record of world-class maintenance and added “Best C-17 Preflight Team” to their long list of awards. These are impressive achievements that bring great credit upon the 437th.

The outstanding achievements of Rodeo team members CPTs Robert Lowe, Joseph Beal and Joseph Beal and Senior Airmen Richard Case, John Paull, and Veronica Bankey; Senior Airmen Dennis Adams and Joshua Ramalia; and Senior Airmen Jessy Martin, Brian Parmenter, Hector Schubert, Nicholas White, John Paull, and Veronica Bankey; Senior Airmen Dennis Adams and Joshua Ramalia; and Airman First Class Daniel Jones.

AFGHAN NATIONAL SECURITY FORCES

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, we have embarked on a new course in Afghanistan. The plan has 21,000 troops and trainers engaged primarily in clearing the Taliban in Kandahar and Helmand provinces. We know from counterinsurgency doctrine that we must not hold the areas that have been cleared.

I speak today on the need for expanding the Afghan National Army and Police. They must do the holding of those areas taken by our forces so that we can leave Afghanistan, we must do everything in our power to protect these brave men and women in a hostile environment. We must be effective and efficient in clearing and holding against insurgents. And we must ensure we have the necessary civilian resources to build a secure and stable environment, in which Afghans can sustain rule of law and promote good governance.

These goals are critical to our shared counterinsurgency mission. Success will not be easy or without a great cost or burden. It will continue to require patience, determination, and an enduring American commitment.

As GEN McChrystal affirmed when he assumed command of the ISAF forces, the Afghan people are at the center of our mission. In reality, they are the ultimate guarantors of this mission. We must protect them from violence, whatever its nature.

The Afghan people are at the heart of our operations, and the first principle of protecting the population in counterinsurgency is building a strong indigenous security force that can assume control and take the lead.

Our military, civilian, and political leadership agree that enhancing the capability and capacity of the Afghan National Army and Afghan National Police is key to an eventual U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan. Before we move in this direction, however, we must consider what additional resources are required to help the ANA and ANP succeed.

Current estimates indicate the Afghan Army is one fourth of the size of the Iraqi Army, where the ongoing insurgency now pales in comparison to Talibani-led violence in Afghanistan. This is woefully inadequate if we hope to meet Afghanistan’s short-term and long-term security requirements. The same can be said for the Afghan police, which provides the essential services of border security, law enforcement, coordinating counternarcotics, and serving as a paramilitary force.

The Afghan National Army and Police must work in tandem on counterinsurgency—one cannot succeed without the other—with the army “clearing” the land and the police “holding” to ensure stability. Progress in “building” economic development and governance cannot be sustained until the security forces succeed in their mission.

Current plans to expand the Afghan National Army to 335,000 and the Afghan National Police to 80,000 by 2011 represent a positive step in the right direction but still fall short of the necessary requirements. These numbers are insufficient for the Afghanns to independently maintain security and establish rule of law in the long-run, and therefore should be considered critical milestones, but not ceilings, for the training mission.

According to the Army/Marine Corps Counterinsurgency Manual drafted by General Petraeus in 2006, the requisite number of security forces should not be defined by the number of insurgents. Rather, the size of host nation security forces must be defined by the number of inhabitants. According to the Counterinsurgency doctrine, as delineated by General Petraeus, recommends a minimum target ratio of 20 counterinsurgents for every 1,000 residents.

According to this ratio, in order to secure Afghanistan—a country of more than 33 million—a minimum of 600,000 security forces are needed, which includes the army and police. Current targets for the ANA and ANP barely reach 40 percent of this minimum requirement. It is clear that these numbers should be increased, and this is why I support doubling the target number for the ANA from 135,000 to 250,000, and increasing the ANP from 80,000 to 150,000.

As Secretary Gates has outlined, we must better prepare to fight the wars we are in, and recognize that irregular warfare is not just a short-term challenge. Rather, it is a long-term requirement that requires a realignment of both military strategy and spending. And as we continue to engage in counterinsurgency, we must recognize those elements of our strategy which are essential to our mission.

Chief among them remains building the indigenous security capacity of the host nation security forces.

It is in this regard that I strongly urge my colleagues to join me in supporting an increase in the size of the Afghan national security forces. While this may require additional trainers, troops, and resources in the short run, it is the only way to ensure the long-run stability of Afghanistan.

WYOMING’S WORLD WAR II MEMORIAL

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President. I wish today to talk about a special group of people who live and work with us every day by side, in towns across America. The terrible days of the Second World War produced an entire generation of men and women who answered the call to duty to defend freedom and defeat tyranny in far off lands across both oceans. They left their homes and families, endured great trials, and gave so much of themselves for so many of us in the most difficult of circumstances.

These brave men and women served in our Nation’s darkest hour. And then they came back home. They went back to work, to school, bought homes, raised families, and continued to build our Nation. Today they are our friends and neighbors, our parents and grandparents, our fellow Americans. And we owe them such a tremendous debt of gratitude.

Mr. President, on August 15, 2009, the State of Wyoming will dedicate its World War II Memorial at the Wyoming Veterans Memorial Park in Cody, WY. And I am honored to be here on the floor of the Senate to personally give thanks to the many men and women and their families who made such great sacrifices on our behalf during the terrible days of World War II.

The memorial being dedicated and the ceremony itself required a major commitment on the part of those who worked to successfully complete the project. This includes veterans, their families, friends, admirers, and all of those people of Wyoming whose hard work and generous contributions made this memorial possible.

The Wyoming World War II Memorial is a fitting tribute to all those of the Greatest Generation who gave so much for our country. It is because of them they came back home. They went back and are able to exercise the rights guaranteed to us in our Constitution every day. We are the grateful beneficiaries of their sacrifices.

My father was a veteran of World War II. He fought in the Battle of the Bulge. My wife Bobbi’s father was in both World War II and Korea. My dad always told me that I should thank God every day that I live in America and how fortunate I was. He was right. This is the greatest country on Earth. And it is because of the brave actions of so many of our fellow countrymen.

The Wyominnng Congressional delegation had the privilege of greeting a group of Wyoming’s World War II veterans on the National Mall this spring. They made the Wyoming Honor Flight trip to Washington from Wyoming to visit the World War II Memorial. Wyominnng’s World War II veterans are heroes of our history. Ms. Hunter’s program is being used in classrooms across Texas, so that they may learn more about the richness of the man-

10TH BIRTHDAY OF ETHEL SCHWENGEL

- Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, today is the 100th birthday of a very special Iowan and a wonderful friend, Ethel Schwengel. One century ago today, Ethel was born on her parents’ family farm near Purdin, MO. This is a bit premature, but I should also note that one are on the other side of the world quite literally saved the world. Let Wyominnng’s new memorial be a monument to our endless thanks for all they have secured for us. All of Wyoming, and in deed America, says thank you.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

COMMENDING SALLY HUNTER

- Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize the distinguished service of an outstanding Texan, Sally Hunter. Ms. Hunter is the recipient of the 2009 Preserve America Elementary History Teacher of the Year for Texas. This award recognizes outstanding American history teachers from elementary school through high school, as well as the crucial importance of American history education. One teacher from the State is chosen from thousands of exceptional teachers to receive this prestigious award.

For almost 30 years, Sally Hunter has served the students of Texas as an instructor, mentor, and friend. Through recognizing and cultivating untapped potential within students, she has inspired countless youth to be men and women of character, vision and dedication. Ms. Hunter began serving students as an elementary school teacher in Austin ISD in 1980, and has taught fourth grade since 1995. Since that time, she has positively impacted the lives of thousands of students by making history personal and meaningful.

Ms. Hunter has a gift for recognizing the unique needs of students and has never failed to commit her time, energy, and resources to meeting their needs. Ms. Hunter’s love for teaching has made a lasting impact on her students, and she exemplifies an outstanding teacher and historian.

Sally Hunter’s years of selfless service and unwavering devotion to her students’ lives have earned the respect of countless Texans. I thank Sally for her commitment to excellence in teaching the future leaders of Texas and send my best wishes for the years ahead.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF TROUT UNLIMITED

- Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, it is with great pride that I pay tribute to Trout Unlimited, a national conservation organization established in my home State of Michigan. This exceptional organization was founded in 1959 on the banks of the Au Sable River, near Grayling, MI, by 16 concerned Michigan anglers. These anglers, who met in the State of Michigan. This exceptional organization was founded in 1959 on the banks of the Au Sable River, near Grayling, MI, by 16 concerned Michigan anglers. These anglers, who met in the in approximately 400 chapters throughout the United States, including 23 chapters in Michigan.

The founders of Trout Unlimited, or TU, were united by their love of trout fishing and by their growing discontent with what Michigan's popular recreational activity termed "cookie cutter trouts." In 1962-63, TU prepared its first policy paper, "Put and Take Trout Stocking," which put forth a solution to protecting wild trout populations, with plans for stocking its waters with hatchery-reared fish. Driven by the belief that Michigan's trout streams could produce fish far superior in both size and quality to those produced in hatcheries, TU began promoting the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to curtail the "put-and-take" trout stocking and to start managing for wild trout and healthy habitat. Buoyed by this success, anglers subsequently founded TU chapters in Illinois, Wisconsin, New York, and Pennsylvania with the mission of conserving, protecting and restoring North America’s coldwater fisheries and their watersheds.

Indispensable to the success and strength of Trout Unlimited are the thousands of dedicated members and volunteers. TU members have spent countless hours restoring trout and salmon habitat, and some of the most visible effects have been on hundreds of watersheds nationwide. In addition, these members have provided the knowledge and leadership necessary to improve environmental policy on the local, state and national level and to carry out TU’s ambitious conservation agenda.

Many have contributed significantly to the success of Trout Unlimited over the last fifty years. Trout Unlimited has been an important, vigilant and effective advocate for coldwater resources in Michigan and across the country. I know my colleagues join me in offering gratitude and appreciation to Trout Unlimited for a job well done. Protecting our natural resources and waterways for future generations is a noble endeavor, and I look forward to working with TU and its members to see that our commitment to our country’s most important natural resource continues.

REMEMBERING REBECCA JANE DALTON WEINBERGER

- Ms. SNOWE, Mr. President, today I wish to pay tribute to a great woman. Rebecca Jane Dalton Weinberger has passed away recently—Rebecca Jane Dalton Weinberger, Mrs. Caspar W. Weinberger. Jane was a native Mainer and a wonderful friend who passed away recently—Rebecca Jane Dalton Weinberger, Mrs. Caspar W. Weinberger. Today, I would like to offer a few thoughts of my own on Jane’s life, as well as include some of the thoughts that her exceptional son, Casper Weinberger, Jr., has shared regarding his beloved mother—and I will ask that Mr. Weinberger’s statements upon Jane’s passing be printed in the Record in their entirety.

Born in Milford, ME, Jane was a notable figure in our State. A writer and publisher of outstanding children’s stories, Jane was a gentle, sensible, and compassionate woman who in 1942 met—on a troop ship bound for Australia—a man then referred to as U.S. Army CAPT Caspar W. Weinberger, who would become her husband for 63 years not to mention Secretary of Defense under President Ronald Reagan—and above all, an extraordinary mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother. Jane Weinberger was truly one of a kind and will be profoundly missed by all of us who were fortunate to know her.

Inseparable throughout their 63 years of marriage, Jane and Caspar are indisputably now reunited—together once again—their rightful state of being. In remembering all that they meant to their children, I can only see love in their eyes and all of its trials and triumphs. Jane and Cap were passionately devoted to one another—each drawing strength and inspiration from the other’s indomitable spirit. In fact, her son tells of how, and I quote, “it was my mother who . . . almost literally pushed him into his first political campaign as the Republican candidate for the State Assembly from San Francisco’s 21st Assembly District and began this noble endeavor, and I look forward to working with TU and its members to see that our commitment to our country’s most important natural resource continues.

Jane was not only unfailingly dedicated to her family—raising her sons, her grandchildren, and being a true friend—as well as being husband and wife. And it was Jane who did Caspar the tremendous favor of introducing him to the great State of Maine. Of course, Jane was born there—even if you were pivotal in the downfall of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War! And Jane was a force of nature in her own right. In the words of Caspar Weinberger, Jr., “My mother . . . helped her family hold together and prosper under the most trying conditions that can only be truly understood by those who achieve fame and the scrutiny that go with holding high office in America. She was down to earth and sensible, and she was also a woman of great dignity, beauty and courage . . . She was instrumental in helping her husband win elective office . . . and later became a Washington, DC hostess, while Cap was serving in cabinet positions to three different U.S. presidents throughout the 1970’s and 80’s.”

Jane was no less unyieldingly dedicated to her family—raising her sons, Caspar and Arlin—but also to her community and the world around her. Again, to quote Mr. Weinberger, she was “certainly civicminded—she was a volunteer in many an organization for the poor and needy.” She volunteered for many civic duties and charities and writing children’s stories, and was a former chairwoman of the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, DC; served on the board of Amherst College in Massachusetts; and for many years served on the Board at Jackson Laboratories in Bar Harbor. As Cap Weinberger, Jr. wrote, she believed “that it was most important to contribute to their good efforts in attaining to defeat cancer in every form once and for all.”

Once the Weinbergers had arrived back in Maine after their years in Washington, Jane also started a publishing business she had long envied, which was chiefly focused on children’s books and which she ran for more than 20 years with more than 120 titles. And her company came to be acknowledged, as her son put it, as “not the biggest but among the very best.”

On a more personal note, certainly, my husband Jock McKernan—Maine’s former Governor—and I have deeply treasured our friendship with Jane and Cap. Every time we drive by the home they cherished on Somes Sound, called the “Windswept House,” in Mount Desert, ME, I’m reminded of the birthday party that Jane threw for Cap. And what a wonderful night that was—under the stars of a spectacular Maine summer sky—with Secretary Colin Powell and so many others joining in the festivities and the laughter. In Caspar Weinberger, Jr.’s words. She arranged for a startling and magnificent round of fireworks in his honor. Strangely, twelve years later on the night before her passing, he witnessed another stunning display of fireworks put on just across the inlet to Somes Sound by a neighbor celebrating a wedding or other special event. While these lights were not really designed in her honor, to us it was highly symbolic, as if her time of respect had come and was recognized. In my view, as well it should have been, for she was most definitely the power that guided my father to the highest heights of American government.

Mr. President, Jane Weinberger achieved her own formidable heights throughout her remarkable lifetime, leaving behind a truly magnificent legacy in Maine. My profound sympathies go out to Caspar and Arlin as well as Jane’s sister, Virginia, and her three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren at this most difficult of times. Jane will always be in the hearts of those whose lives she touched so deeply.

Mr. President, I ask to have printed in the Record Mr. Weinberger’s statements to which I referred.

The information follows:

Mrs. Caspar W. (Jane) Weinberger Dns

Jane Dalton Weinberger, 91, wife of former President Ronald Reagan’s Secretary of Defense, the late Caspar W. Weinberger, died last night, July 12, 2009 in Bar Harbor, Maine. For the last six months, she had been in declining health and was living in a nursing home near her home known as “Windswept House” in Somesville, Maine on Mount Desert Island.

Born Rebecca Jane Dalton in Milford, Maine, on March 29, 1918, Mrs. Weinberger became an Army nurse at the outbreak of World War II. While her ship headed to Australia in 1942, she met her husband-to-be, U.S. Army Captain Caspar W.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
August 6, 2009

REBECCA JANE DALTON WEINBERGER (1918–2009)

DEAR EDITOR, I write this letter today with a heavy heart, but also with a sense of pride and certain knowledge that now the journey of my dear parents is finally complete. Rebecca and writing children’s stories. She served in elective office as a California assemblyman who went on to become a California lawyer and then a public statesman. This is the story of her life, yet it is also the story of her family’s existence. What is it with these special New England genes that seem to breed so many naturally long-living Maine people? I don’t really know; perhaps it is just a real love of life replete with a sense of humor, of which my mother surely knew both. Jane was a gardener but that was the limit of her outdoor exercise. She did enjoy swimming, but hardly on any regular body-building schedule. She drank a lot of wine, and heavier spirits when she was younger, although she always controlled herself with not even a suspicion of intoxication. On many occasions she was happily drunk. Nevertheless, she still managed always to look elegant and poised, regardless of circumstances and she lived to be over ninety-one years old. Given all that she went through in Cap’s last years of suffering (he was on dialysis for over one year) especially at his passing in the spring of 2006, it is amazing that she still had most of her wits until the very end. She out-lived her husband by three years and she was a great lady to be around.

From what I know of her early history, my mother found herself born into a quasi-indigenous family. Her father simply left home one day when she was about eight years old and never came back. But Jane did not quit. By early adulthood she had a nursing degree from the Summernurse Academy and World War II was calling for her services. She was sworn in as a Second Lieutenant U.S. Army nurse in 1941 and soon was transferred to the Pacific theater. On her way aboard a ship to care for soldiers in Australia, she met her life-mate. She told me the story once of how in Shanghai, she was asked, "Are you married?" She replied, "Yes, soldier!" And, indeed Army Lieutenant, soon to be Captain Caspar "Cap" Weinberger was that and more. A lifetime public servant, he was a California assemblyman who went on to serve in many U.S. cabinet posts and eventually became President Ronald Reagan’s Secretary of Defense. Cap and Jane married in Australia in 1942. My sister arrived first in San Francisco, Washington, DC. She was a loving wife to her husband before his passing in 2006. All of her family will miss her very much, but are glad that she has finally reached the place in heaven, her son Caspar Weinberger, Jr. said today.

In line with her wishes, there will be no formal services for Jane; her ashes will be scattered on the gardens she loved and tended at her Windswept House. The family asks that in lieu of flowers and cards, donations be made to the Weinberger Foundation, the family’s non-profit organization, at P.O. Box 860, Mt. Desert, ME 04660.

REBECCA JANE DALTON WEINBERGER (1918–2009)
In addition to my sister, Arlin, and me, Jane leaves one sister, Virginia Garceau. Jane had three grandchildren, my nephew, James, and my two daughters, Louise and Rebecca. She left this life knowing that she had five great-grandsons, Timothy, David, George, Douglas Caspar and Charles.

In a very strange twist of fate, Jane’s ten-year-old thoroughbred Golden Retriever, “Brandy,” died of a sudden stroke last Tuesday, July 7, right on the Full Moon. In my view, his death meant that he will be there for Jane in her spiritual journey beyond this life. Wow! Jane had a wonderful long life, perhaps rewarded for all her service by a just God or perhaps simply by the sense of firm resolve she brought to every thing she did; most likely it was by a combination of both.

But primarily, as is most important to me, Rebecca Jane Dalton Weinberger was my mother. I loved her dearly and I shall miss her very much. But I am happy too for her, as at long last she can leave this weary Earth and perhaps re-join her husband of 66 years. Thank you, Jane for giving me not just life but a wonderful life. Indeed, though it was hardly your nature, you may now rest most peacefully.

Casper W. Weinberger, Jr., Mount Desert, ME.

COMMENDING KITTERY TRADING POST

Ms. SNOWE, Mr. President, with summer in full swing, I wish today to recognize a small family-run Maine business that has been outfitting customers, in all of their outdoor needs for over 70 years. The Kittery Trading Post, located in Maine’s southernmost town of Kittery, offers outdoor enthusiasts a shopping experience that is nearly as enjoyable as their outdoor activities.

The Kittery Trading Post holds a special place in the hearts of Mainers and tourists alike as it is one of the first visible landmarks upon entrance into our State from New Hampshire. The company was established by Philip Adams in 1938 and began small as a one-room, 360 square-foot retail location cohabitating with a gas station. Mr. Adams initially started his business by swapping gas for pelts, supplies for cars, and beef for ammunition. While the Trading Post has grown and much has changed over the years, it remains a family-owned and operated business to this day.

In 1961 Philip Adams sold the trading post to his 21-year-old son, Kevin. Under Kevin’s leadership, the Kittery Trading Post was voted Independent Specialty Retailer of the Year in 1979 by the United State Sporting Goods Industry. Kevin operated the company until his retirement in 1986, when the reins were handed over to his family—his wife Anna and two daughters—perfectly in sync with the Family’s commitment to excellence. Today, Karl and Betsy Adams, Kevin’s widow, carry on this tradition.

In 1990, the Kittery Trading Post was named a Retailer of Excellence in 1995, a celebrated honor given to businesses that make generous contributions in the areas of community, employment, and service. The Kittery Trading Post hosts a variety of seminars for over $50, and also assures each customer that if they are not completely satisfied with their purchase they may return it for a full refund or replacement.

As a vibrant and active member of the local community, the Kittery Trading Post hosts a variety of seminars and events throughout the year. These events include weekly community bicycle rides, fly fishing lessons for children, and classes for gun owners on firearm reloading safety.

Over the course of its lengthy history, the Kittery Trading Post has expanded to become Southern Maine’s outdoor sports outfitting arena. A true Maine gem, the Trading Post is an impressive destination for the amateur and the experienced outdoorsman alike. I commend everyone at the Kittery Trading Post for their exceptional work in providing quality and friendly service to tens of thousands of visitors each year, and wish them continued success for future decades.

COMMENDING EDWIN C. PETRANEK

Mr. THUNE, Mr. President, today I thank an American veteran for his valiant service to our country in the Advanced European Theater of Operation during World War II. Edwin C. Petranek was born September 9, 1916, in White River, SD. After graduating from the University of South Dakota in 1932, he served in the U.S. Army, including active duty in Oklahoma, California, and Germany. He left active duty in 1938 but remained committed to his service by joining the California Army National Guard. When he moved his family—his wife Anna and two daughters—to California in 1939, he transferred to the Colorado Army National Guard. As an artillery officer in the Colorado Army National Guard, he commanded the 2nd Battalion 157th Infantry in the Line of Duty and returned to combat again and again. Ed left the European theater only after shattering his hip and being fitted with a full body cast.

Ed recovered and received a medical discharge in 1946 but stayed in the Army Reserves for 10 additional years, during which he returned to South Dakota and completed a master’s degree. Upon receiving an honorable discharge in 1956, Ed continued to serve in a civilian capacity as an educator and coach. Here his commitment to excellence remained evident as he earned induction into the South Dakota Athletic Hall of Fame.

Both at home and abroad, the perseverance exhibited by South Dakota’s own Ed Petranek remains an example to us all. This man has been awarded the Silver Star, a Purple Heart with three oak leaf clusters, a Bronze Star with cluster for meritorious service, and many other honors. He also presented the French Legion of Honor.

Today we have the chance to thank him for his dedication and to reflect on the true meaning of service.

COMMENDING LIEUTENANT COLONEL (RETIRED) WALTER PAUL

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, today I acknowledge the retirement of LTC (Ret.) Walter Paul, of the Colorado Army National Guard, and to recognize him for his distinguished public service as the resource manager and legislative director of the Colorado Department of Military and Veterans Affairs from 1999–2009.

Walter was born in Vienna, Austria, and raised in the state of Victoria, Australia. He received a BS in chemistry from the University of Wisconsin in 1971. After college, he entered the U.S. Army as an artillery officer and served on active duty in Oklahoma, California, and Germany. He left active duty in 1978 but remained committed to his service by joining the California Army National Guard. When he moved his family—his wife Anna and two daughters—to Colorado in 1979, he transferred to the Colorado Army National Guard. As an artillery officer in the Colorado Army National Guard, he commanded the 2nd Battalion 157th Field Artillery in Colorado Springs.

As a traditional guardsman, Lieutenant Colonel Paul served as a member of the Guard on weekends while maintaining a business career during the week. He worked for Honeywell Semi-conductor Division in Colorado Springs as a military program manager. In 1986 he earned his degree from the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs, UCICS, and for 13 years, he taught part time at the UCICS Business
His assignments have included the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, NC; 173rd Airborne Brigade, Vietnam; A Company, 1st Battalion 502nd Infantry, 101st Airborne Division, Vietnam; 75th Infantry, Ranger, 101st Airborne Division, Plans Officer and Division Training Officer in the 24th Infantry Division at Fort Stewart, Georgia; and Task Force Commander of 2nd Battalion 8th Infantry in the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Carson, CO.

Among Colonel Robinson's awards and decorations are the Defense Superior Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, Purple Heart, Bronze Star, eight Air Medals, two Defense Meritorious Service Medals, and three Meritorious Service Medals.

Colonel Robinson has also served as an instructor of political sciences at West Point; Aide de Camp to the U.S. Representative to the NATO Military recommender for the commander in Chief, U.S. Pacific Command; chief of strategy at USCINCPAC in Hawaii; and as Fifth U.S. Army senior active duty adviser to the Colorado Army National Guard.

He retired from active duty in June 1996 and became the resource manager and legislative liaison for Colorado's Department of Military Affairs. In 1999, he became the deputy director of the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. He will retire next month, after 13 years with the department.

It was in his capacity as deputy director that I first met Colonel Robinson, when he and the department's legislative director, LTC (Ret.) Walter Paul, visited my office in my first year as a Member of the House of Representatives. Over the years, Colonel Robinson and Lieutenant Colonel Paul worked very closely with my office on issues important to the Guard in Colorado, and helped me and my staff understand and appreciate the critical role the Guard plays in times of peace and war. It was clear that this wasn't "just" a job for Lieutenant Colonel Paul—he was dedicated to his work and to the Guard, he was always available when my office needed his assistance, and his cheerful demeanor made him a joy to work with.

LTC Walter Paul has tirelessly supported our Nation's men and women in uniform. He is a patriot whose distinctive accomplishments reflect great credit upon him, the State of Colorado, and the Nation. I hope my colleagues will join me not only in recognizing his past accomplishments, but also in wishing him all the best in his future pursuits.

COMMENDING COLONEL (RETIRED) WILLIAM L. ROBINSON (ROBBY)

- Mr. UDALL of Colorado, Mr. President, today I recognize and pay tribute to COL (Ret.) William "Robby" Robinson, who was commissioned as an infantry officer in 1968 through the U.S. Military Academy and who will retire next month after 13 years working for Colorado's Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. We owe him a debt of gratitude for his contributions to our Nation.

Colonel Robinson's civilian education includes a bachelor of science from West Point and a master's degree in public administration from Harvard University. His professional military education includes the infantry officer basic and advanced courses, Ranger, Airborne, Jumpmaster and Pathfinder schools at Fort Benning, GA; the College of Infantry at Fort Leavenworth, KS; the Command and Staff at Rhode Island; and the Army War College in Pennsylvania as the USCINCPAC Fellow.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petition or memorial was laid before the Senate and was referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM–77. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Texas urging Congress to make eradication of the fever tick in South Texas a priority and continue to provide appropriate funding and resources for this effort; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 120

Whereas, south Texas is on the front line of the battle against the fever tick, a pest that threatens to inflict catastrophic losses on the Lone Star State’s agricultural economy, and could spread beyond a permanent quarantine zone established along the Rio Grande in 1943; and whereas the historical range of the tick ranged across the entire southeastern United States, reaching as far north as Maryland and Pennsylvania; the tick can carry and transmit a parasite that causes cattle fever, which kills up to 90 percent of infected cattle; in 1893, the Texas Animal Health Commission was founded to fight this scourge, and in 1907 the United States Department of Agriculture established the National Cattle Fever Tick Eradication Program; by then, the tick had already caused direct and indirect losses estimated to equal more than $1 billion in today’s dollars; and

Whereas, the eradication program had successfully contained the fever tick to an 852-square-mile quarantine zone by 1943; the tick was never eliminated in Mexico, however, and personnel from the USDA Tick Force have maintained a high level of vigilance to fight continuous reintroduction; after the pest was detected beyond the zone in 2007, five temporary preventive quarantine areas were established, covering one million acres in Starr, Zapata, Jim Hogg, Maverick, Dimmit, and Webb Counties; and Whereas, in March 2008, the Texas Department of Agriculture requested $13 million to fight the spread of fever ticks; the USDA released $5.2 million, and in January 2009 it committed another $4.9 million in emergency funds, but sustained funding over the long term is essential; moreover, the National Fever Tick Eradication Strategic Plan, developed and approved by the USDA, has never had adequate funding, and Dr. Bob Hillman, the state veterinarian and executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission, has warned that fever ticks are a national livestock threat that requires an all-out assault; and

Whereas, the fever tick has gained substantial ground in this state, but the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Texas Animal Health Commission, and the USDA Tick Force continue working diligently with cattle owners to save a key component of the Lone Star State’s agricultural economy and prevent the battlefield from extending to other states; if the fever tick is not contained, the cost to the cattle industry could reach $1 billion a year and lead to rising food costs for consumers; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Legislature of the State of Texas:

That...
Resolved, That the 81st Legislature of the State of Texas hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to make eradication of the fever tick in South Texas a priority and continue to provide appropriate funding and resources for this effort; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Texas secretary of state forward a copy of this resolution to the president of the United States, to the speaker of the house of representatives and the president of the senate of the United States Congress, and to all members of the Texas delegation to Congress with the request that this resolution be officially entered in the Congressional Record as a memorial to the Congress of the United States of America.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. Wyden:
S. 1586. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide the same tax treatment for both commercial and noncommercial investors in oil and natural gas and related commodities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Wyden. Mr. President, businesses like airlines, trucking companies, and heating oil distributors buy and sell oil and futures contracts because they need to do so to run their day-to-day business and hedge their risk against higher oil prices like consumers saw last year.

But there are also buyers and sellers in the market—financial speculators—who are simply there to try to make a quick dollar on oil as an investment strategy. The explosion of speculators into the marketplace has distorted the oil and gas market and driven up the price of oil for everybody. When commercial businesses see fuel prices go up, they try to consume less. But when speculators see prices go up, they buy into the commodity market. This distorts the normal supply-demand balance of the markets and digs a huge financial hole for average Americans.

In 2000, speculative trading in the oil futures markets accounted for 37 percent of crude oil trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. By last day last summer when prices were approaching $150 a barrel, that number had grown to more than 70 percent. I do not think that is a coincidence.

There are all kinds of proposals around to fix the regulatory system to prevent trading abuses. Oregon's economy really suffered from abusive energy trading by Enron, and I am all for closing trading loopholes. But my bill is aimed at something different. It is aimed at the giant financial bubble that has been created by people who are simply chasing speculative profits in the commodities markets and creating artificial demand that is driving up oil prices.

The legislation I am introducing today—Stop Tax-breaks for Oil Profit-seeking, STOP, Act of 2009—will let some of the air out of this speculative balloon and help create a level playing field among companies participating in these commodity markets.

Under the tax code, commercial traders, those who truly need to buy, sell and hedge their purchases of oil, pay taxes on whatever profits they make on trading at the same rates as ordinary income. Speculators get a much better deal from the Tax Code. Some, such as pension funds or endowments, do not pay any tax whatsoever when they profit on their oil or futures investments. Others, like hedge or index funds, can get lower tax rates by realizing some of their trading profits as capital gains. Clearly, the deck is stacked against the businesses who really buy and use oil. That means it is also stacked against the consumer who needs the services and products those businesses provide.

My proposal removes incentives in the tax code that make such investments attractive to both tax-exempt and tax-paying investors. It also makes everyone in the United States who is buying and selling oil and gas or futures contracts play by essentially the same tax rules across the board. Taxpaying entities would lose the ability to treat any of these investments as capital gains and be subject to comparable tax treatment on oil and gas investments as airlines or trucking companies or fuel distributors or other businesses that truly need to be in these markets.

Tax-exempt entities, like pension funds, would be required to pay 'unrelated-business-income-tax' on their oil and gas trading gains. UBTI already exists as a well-established tax obligation for income that is not directly related to the tax-exempt purpose of the organization. UBTI was created precisely to keep tax exempt organizations from competing unfairly with taxpaying businesses, which is what they are doing when they enter the commodities market as an investment income purposes. The bill also includes provisions that would prevent tax exempt organizations from investing in off-shore funds to try to avoid the new UBTI tax.

By focusing on tax fairness, my bill would realign the profit incentives that are currently attracting non-commercial actors to the markets. If speculators are truly in the markets and are wrecking havoc with oil and gas prices, this bill will do away with their tax subsidies and make them leave. It deflates the speculative balloon of artificially inflated profits that has made this investment arena so attractive.
If speculators are not a problem, then this bill will help prove the theory that the wild swings in oil prices of the past year truly can be blamed on supply and demand. The bill would only cover the oil and natural gas markets, and related products like gasoline and diesel fuel, and be in effect for the next 4 years. However, after 3 years, it would require the Treasury Department to issue a report analyzing the impact of these changes on these markets, making recommendations on what changes to make.

Other proposals on oil speculation focus on regulation of the market or limiting the amounts of oil traders could purchase. These approaches are “top down” efforts to prevent trading abuses and financial investors from swamping the market. This bill approaches the problem from the bottom line up. Willy Sutton, the bank robber was asked why he robbed banks, to which he is said to have replied, “It’s where the money is.” That is why this bill focuses on the flow of financial investment funds into the oil and gas markets, it’s where the speculation is.

In these tough economic times, I believe consumers need protection from people who try to game the system to pad their own pockets. By putting an end to the imbalances in the tax code that currently feed oil profiteers, the STOP Act will be good for American businesses and consumers. I hope my colleagues will join me in protecting our economy and leveling the playing field in the oil and gas markets by voting in favor of the STOP Act.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1588

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Stop Tax Breaks for Oil Profiteering Act” or the “STOP Act.”

SEC. 2. CAPITAL GAIN OR LOSS FROM SALE OR EXCHANGE OF OIL OR NATURAL GAS AND RELATED COMMODITIES TREATED AS SHORT-TERM CAPITAL GAIN OR LOSS.

(a) GAIN OR LOSS ON APPLICABLE COMMODITY.

(i) IN GENERAL.—If a taxpayer has gain or loss from sale or exchange of any applicable commodity which, without regard to this section, would be treated as long-term capital gain or loss, such gain or loss shall, notwithstanding any other provisions of this title, be treated as short-term capital gain or loss.

“(b) APPLICABLE COMMODITY.—For purposes of this section—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘applicable commodity’ means—

(A) oil or natural gas (or any primary product of oil or natural gas) which is actively traded (within the meaning of section 1092(d)(1)),

(B) a specified index (within the meaning of section 1221(b)(1)(B)(ii)) a substantial portion of which is, as of the date the taxpayer acquires its position with respect to such index, specified index commodities described in subparagraph (A),

(C) any notional principal contract with respect to any commodity described in subparagraph (A) or (B), and

(D) any evidence of an interest in, or a derivative instrument in, any commodity described in subparagraphs (A), (B), or (C), including any option, forward contract, futures contract, short position, and any similar instrument in such a commodity.

(ii) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN SECTION 1256 CONTRACTS.—Such term shall not include a section 1256 contract (as defined in section 1256(b)) which is required to be marked to market under section 1256(b)(6).

(b) APPLICATION TO SECTION 1256 CONTRACTS.—Such term shall not include a section 1256 contract (as defined in section 1256(b)) which is required to be marked to market under section 1256(b)(6).

(c) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN PARTNERSHIP INTERESTS.—For purposes of this section, if a taxpayer recognizes gain or loss on the sale or exchange of a partnership interest in a partnership, the portion of such gain or loss which is attributable to unrecognized gain or loss on section 1256 contracts with respect to applicable commodities shall be treated as short-term capital gain or loss. The preceding sentence shall not apply if the taxpayer is otherwise required to treat such portion of gain or loss as ordinary income or loss.

(d) APPLICATION.—This section shall apply to any taxable year beginning after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2014.

SEC. 3. GAINS AND LOSSES FROM OIL AND NATURAL GAS AND RELATED COMMODITIES TREATED AS UNRELATED BUSINESS GAINS AND LOSSES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 512(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to modifications to unrelated business taxable income) is amended by adding the following new paragraph:

“(3) TREATMENT OF GAINS OR LOSSES FROM COMMODITIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (5) or any other provision of this part—

(i) income, gain, or loss of an organization with respect to any commodity shall not be excluded but shall be taken into account as income, gain, or loss from an unrelated trade or business, and

(ii) all deductions of the organization with respect to such income or gain shall be allowed as a carryback.

(B) EXCEPTION FOR ORDINARY INCOME AND LOSSES.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to any income, gain, or loss of an organization which, if not excluded under this title and without regard to subparagraph (A), would be treated as ordinary income or loss.

(C) LOOK-THRU IN THE CASE OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—If an organization owns directly or indirectly stock in a foreign corporation, the organization’s pro rata share of any income, gain, or loss of such corporation (and any deductions directly connected with such income or gain) with respect to 1 or more applicable commodities shall be included in the income, gain, or loss of such corporation as direct or indirect stock in such foreign corporation for the taxable year of the organization in which the item arises without regard to whether there was an actual distribution of the organization’s pro rata share of such income, gain, or loss of the foreign corporation. If such income, gain, or loss of the foreign corporation is treated as unrelated business income or loss and is not included in the income, gain, or loss of such organization, the organization shall be treated as having realized such income, gain, or loss as unrelated business income or loss, as applicable, to the extent of its pro rata share of such income, gain, or loss of the foreign corporation (for purposes of applying paragraph (6)(A), all of the loss attributable to such portion and allowed as a carryback shall be treated for purposes of paragraph (6) as a short-term capital gain or loss for the year).
or loss of the foreign corporation with respect to applicable commodities.

(ii) Sale of interests in corporation.—If a taxpayer recognizes gain or loss on the sale or exchange of all or a share of a corporation in a foreign corporation, the portion of such gain or loss which is attributable to unrecognized gain or loss with respect to 1 or more applicable commodities with respect to applicable commodities acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2012, report the results of the tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph.

(iii) Legislative recommendations as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph, the term ‘applicable commodities acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2012, report the results of the tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph.

(iv) Legislative recommendations as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph, the term ‘applicable commodities acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2012, report the results of the tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph.

(v) Legislative recommendations as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph, the term ‘applicable commodities acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2012, report the results of the tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph.

(vi) Legislative recommendations as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph, the term ‘applicable commodities acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2012, report the results of the tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph.

(vii) Legislative recommendations as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph, the term ‘applicable commodities acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2012, report the results of the tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the results of this paragraph.

(4) such other matters with respect to such sales and exchanges involving organizations exempt from Federal income taxation under such Code, including regulations, as the Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as are necessary to carry out the provisions of this paragraph, including regulations—

(i) to prevent the avoidance of the purposes of this paragraph through the use of pass-through entities or tiered structures, and

(ii) to provide that this paragraph shall not apply to sales or exchanges of interests in organizations in foreign corporations in cases where the income or gain of the foreign corporation from any applicable commodity is otherwise subject to tax imposed by this chapter.

(F) Application.—This paragraph shall apply to any applicable commodity acquired after August 31, 2009, and before January 1, 2014.

(b) Effective date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to applicable commodities under section 1256 after August 31, 2009, in taxable years ending after such date.

SEC. 4. STUDY OF TAX TREATMENT OF COMMODITIES AND SECTION 1256 CONTRACTS.

(a) Study.—The Secretary of the Treasury, or the Secretary’s delegate, shall conduct a study of the Federal income tax treatment of section 1256 contracts under section 1256 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and of applicable commodities under sections 1251, 1256(f)(6), and 512(b)(20) of such Code. Such study shall include an analysis of—

(1) the average annual number of sales or exchanges of such contracts and commodities, excluding the number of sales and exchanges involving organizations exempt from Federal income taxation under such Code,

(2) whether the amendments made by this Act have had any effect on the number or type of such sales and exchanges,

(3) the effect of tax policy on the operation of the covered tax treatment change and on the demand for, and price of, commodities, particularly with respect to oil and natural gas, and

(4) such other matters with respect to such tax treatment as the Secretary determines appropriate.

(b) Report.—The Secretary shall, not later than January 1, 2012, report the results of the study conducted under subsection (a) to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, together with such legislative recommendations as the Secretary determines appropriate with respect to the Federal income tax treatment of section 1256 contracts and applicable commodities.

By Ms. CANTWELL (for herself and Mr. GRASSLEY):

S. 1589. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the incentives for the production of biodiesel; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleague, Senator GRASSLEY, and introduce an important piece of legislation that will modernize the tax incentives for domestic biodiesel production. The Biodiesel Tax Incentive Reform and Extension Act of 2009 will provide predictability to investors, to producers, and to researchers so we can move forward and continue to displace imported fossil fuels. We hope that biodiesel diesel that is produced here in the United States.

Last year, we all saw the devastating effects that $140 per barrel oil had on our economy and our constituents. For economic reasons, national security reasons, and environmental reasons, we cannot allow ourselves to remain dependent on foreign oil. We have to re-double our efforts to deploy alternative fuels that can be produced in the United States.

Biodiesel is a diesel replacement fuel that is produced from vegetable oils, animal fats and waste oils. It is refined to meet the minimal specification that is readily accepted in the marketplace. Typically biodiesel is blended with conventional diesel fuel, and it is not necessary to modify a vehicle’s engine to use the fuel.

There are also economic policy benefits associated with the production and use of biodiesel. It is an extremely efficient fuel that can be produced domestically so we do not have to rely on imported fuel. Biodiesel creates 3.2 units of energy for every unit of fuel that is required to produce the fuel and the 690 million gallons of biodiesel produced in the U.S. in 2008 displaced 38.1 million barrels of petroleum.

Replacing fossil fuel use with biodiesel also can play a constructive role in addressing the issue of climate change. When compared to conventional diesel fuel, pure biodiesel reduces direct carbon lifecycle emissions by 78 percent, which in 2008 was the equivalent of removing 980,000 passenger vehicles from the road.

Congress first enacted a tax incentive for biodiesel in 2004 and since that time, this tax credit has helped encourage the production and use of this alternative fuel. Production of biodiesel increased from 25 million gallons in 2004 to 690 million gallons last year, and the industry has built the commercial scale production capacity. There currently are 176 plants in operation with the capacity to produce more than 2.61 billion gallons of biodiesel.

The 39 new plants that are either under construction or being expanded would add nearly 849.9 million gallons of production capacity. We have to be sure these plans for expansion go forward. Unfortunately, limited access to capital, uncertainty surrounding the Federal commitment to biodiesel, and the current state of the economy threaten to undermine the progress the U.S. biodiesel industry has made to build the production capacity and infrastructure needed to aggressively displace petroleum diesel fuel with renewable, low-carbon biodiesel. Right now, less than one-third of the industry’s facilities are operating at full capacity.

The 51,893 jobs that are currently supported by the U.S. biodiesel industry show there is real job growth potential in this industry. Much of that job growth and economic activity will happen in our rural communities who continue to be hard hit right now.

The current law tax credit will expire at the end of this year and Congress must act or we will threaten the future of this promising domestic industry. The National Biodiesel Board estimates that if Congress does not provide some predictability to the industry, U.S. production will likely fall from 690 million gallons in 2008 to 300–350 million gallons in 2009. This could cost the U.S. economy more than 29,000 jobs. These are not jobs we can afford to lose.

In addition to the looming expiration, the current structure of the tax credit has administrative problems and is subject to abuse that makes it difficult to ensure that only qualified fuel benefits from the incentive. We owe it to taxpayers to make sure that we are getting the results we enact so in addition to extension to 2014, we need to make the structural changes that Sen. GRASSLEY and I are proposing today.

The centerpiece of the bill is changing the incentive from a blender credit to a production tax credit so that we focus the benefits of the incentive on building the domestic production industry. Under current law, the credit was targeted at the blending of biodiesel with petroleum diesel. While this was helpful in getting us to the point we are now, it is time we move even farther in the direction of promoting the production of petroleum fuel alternatives.

In addition, the legislation we are introducing today will simplify administration of the incentive for both taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service, IRS, and will eliminate any remaining opportunity for abuse of the tax credit through schemes like “splash and dash” in which oil companies add a few drops of biodiesel to their petroleum diesel just to qualify for the tax credits.

Under our bill, the $1 per gallon tax credit will be provided for the production of biodiesel, renewable diesel and aviation jet fuel that complies with established fuel standards and Clean Air Act requirements.

For small producers, those with an annual production capacity of less than 60 million gallons, we increase the $1 to $2 per gallon to provide the first 15 million gallons of biodiesel produced.

We simplify the definition of biodiesel so that we encourage production from any biomass-based feedstock or recycled oils and fats. Hopefully this will unleash even more research and commercialization of alternative fuel sources.

The bill also simplifies the coordination between the income tax credit and the excise tax liability to, again, tighten up compliance and reduce administrative burdens on taxpayers. Most importantly, our bill would extend this tax credit for 5 years, giving needed financial predictability to the industry.

I thank Senator Grassley for joining me on this bill and look forward to working with our colleagues on the Finance Committee to adopt this worthwhile, commonsense proposal that is consistent with sound energy and sound tax policy.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S 1599

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the "Biodiesel Tax Incentive Reform and Extension Act of 2009".

SEC. 2. REFORM OF BIODIESEL INCOME TAX INCENTIVES.

(a) In General.—Section 40A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 40A. BIODIESEL PRODUCTION.

"(a) In General.—For purposes of section 38, the biodiesel fuels credit determined under this section for the taxable year is $1.00 for each gallon of biodiesel produced by the taxpayer which during the taxable year—

"(1) is sold by such producer to another person—

"(A) for use by such other person's trade or business (other than casual off-farm production),

"(B) for use by such other person as a fuel in a trade or business, or

"(C) for sale of such biodiesel at retail to another person and places such biodiesel in the fuel tank of such other person, or

"(2) is used or sold by such producer for any purpose described in paragraph (1)

"(b) INCREASED CREDIT FOR SMALL PRODUCERS.—

"(1) In General.—In the case of any eligible small biodiesel producer, subsection (a) shall be applied by increasing the dollar amount contained therein by 10 cents.

"(2) LIMITATION.—Paragraph (1) shall only apply to the first 15,000,000 gallons of biodiesel produced by any eligible small biodiesel producer during any taxable year.

"(c) COORDINATION WITH CREDIT AGAINST EXCISE TAX.—The amount of the credit determined under this section with respect to any biodiesel shall be reduced to take into account any benefit provided with respect to such biodiesel solely by reason of the application of section 6426 or 6427(c).

"(d) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) BIODIESEL.—The term 'biodiesel' means liquid fuel derived from biomass which meets—

"(A) registration requirements for fuels and fuel additives established by the Environmental Protection Agency under section 211 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7545), and

"(B) the requirements of the American Society of Testing and Materials D6751.

Such term shall not include any liquid with respect to which a credit may be determined under section 40.

"(2) BIODIESEL NOT USED FOR A QUALIFIED PURPOSE.—If—

"(A) any credit was determined with respect to any biodiesel under this section, and

"(B) any person does not use such biodiesel for the purposes for which it was claimed, then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to the product of the rate applicable under subsection (a) and the number of gallons of such biodiesel.

"(3) PASS-THRU ENTITIES AND TRUSTS.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, rules similar to the rules of subsection (d) of section 52 shall apply.

"(4) LIMITATION TO BIODIESEL PRODUCED IN THE UNITED STATES.—No credit shall be determined under this section with respect to any biodiesel unless such biodiesel is produced in the United States from raw feedstock. For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'United States' includes any possession of the United States.

"(5) BIODIESEL TRANSFERS FROM AN IRS REGISTERED BIODIESEL PRODUCTION FACILITY TO AN IRS REGISTERED TERMINAL OR TERMINARY.—The credit allowed under subsection (a) shall be allowed with respect to biodiesel sold by an entity that was referred to in section 4081(a)(1)(B)(i) in instances where section 4081(a)(1)(B)(iii) is applicable. The credit allowed under subsection (a) may not be claimed by a terminal or refinery relying on fuel upon which the credit was previously claimed by a biodiesel producer.

"(f) RENEWABLE DIESEL.—For purposes of this Act, renewable diesel means liquid fuel derived from biomass which meets—

"(1) the registration requirements for fuels and fuel additives established by the Environmental Protection Agency under section 211 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7545), and

"(2) the requirements of the American Society of Testing and Materials D975 or D396, or any other equivalent standard approved by the Secretary.

Such term shall not include any liquid with respect to which a credit may be determined under section 40. Such term does not include any biodiesel produced in the United States with a mark of designates the apportionment as such biodiesel as renewable diesel.

"(B) TREATMENT OF ORGANIZATIONS AND PARTNERS.—

"(1) ORGANIZATIONS.—The amount of the credit not apportioned to patrons pursuant to subparagraph (A) shall be included in the amount determined under subsection (b) for the taxable year of the organization.

"(2) PATRONS.—The amount of the credit apportioned to patrons pursuant to subparagraph (A) shall be included in the amount determined under such subsection for the first taxable year of each patron ending on or after the last day of the payment period (as defined in section 1362(d)) of the taxable year of the organization, or if earlier, for the taxable year of each patron ending on or after the date on which the patron receives notice from the cooperative of the apportionment determined under this paragraph.

"(III) SPECIAL RULES FOR DECREASE IN CREDITS FOR TAXABLE YEAR.—If the amount of the credit of the organization determined under such subsection for a taxable year is less than the amount of such credit shown on the return of the organization for such year, an amount equal to the excess of—

"(1) such reduction, over

"(2) the amount not apportioned to such patrons pursuant to subparagraph (A) for the taxable year, shall be treated as an increase in tax imposed by this chapter on the organization.

Such increase shall not be treated as tax imposed by this chapter for purposes of determining the amount of tax apportioned under this chapter or for purposes of section 55.

"(3) RENEWABLE DIESEL.—For purposes of this title—

"(1) TREATMENT IN THE SAME MANNER AS BIODIESEL.—Renewable diesel shall be treated in the same manner as biodiesel.

"(2) RENEWABLE DIESEL DEFINED.—The term 'renewable diesel' means liquid fuel derived from biomass which meets—

"(A) the registration requirements for fuels and fuel additives established by the Environmental Protection Agency under section 211 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7545), and

"(B) the requirements of the American Society of Testing and Materials D975 or D396, or any other equivalent standard approved by the Secretary.

Such term shall not include any liquid with respect to which a credit may be determined under section 40. Such term does not include any biodiesel produced in the United States with a mark of designates the apportionment as such biodiesel as renewable diesel.

August 6, 2009

“(g) TERMINATION.—This section shall not apply to any sale or use after December 31, 2014.”

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subpart D of part IV of subchapter C of chapter A of such Code is amended by striking the item relating to section 40A and inserting the following new item:

“Sec. 40A. Biodiesel production...”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to biodiesel sold or used after December 31, 2009.

SEC. 3. REFORM OF BIO DIESEL EXCISE TAX INCENTIVES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (c) of section 6426 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended to read as follows:

“(c) BIODIESEL CREDIT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the biodiesel credit is $1.00 for each gallon of biodiesel produced by the taxpayer and which—

“(A) is sold by such producer to another person—

“(i) for use by such other person’s trade or business (other than usual off-farm production), “(ii) for use by such other person as a fuel in a trade or business, or

“(iii) who sells such biodiesel to retail to another person and places such biodiesel in the fuel tank of such other person, or

“(B) is used or sold by such producer for any purpose described in subparagraph (A).

“(2) DEFINITIONS.—Any term used in this subsection which is also used in section 40A shall have the meaning given such term by section 40A.

“(3) BIODIESEL TRANSFERS FROM AN IRS REGISTERED TERMINAL TO AN IRS REGISTERED TERMINAL.—The credit allowed under this subsection can be claimed by a registered terminal or refinery in instances where section 4081(a)(1)(B)(iii) is applicable and not inconsistent with this section, apply in respect of any tax imposed by section 4081 and not by this section.

“(4) TERMINATION.—This subsection shall not apply to any sale, use, or removal for any period after December 31, 2014.

(b) PAYMENT.—Subsection (e) of section 6427 of such Code is amended—

“(1) by striking “or the biodiesel mixture credit” in paragraph (1),

“(2) by redesignating paragraphs (3) through (6) as paragraphs (4) through (7), respectively, and by inserting after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

“(5) BIODIESEL CREDIT.—If any person produces biodiesel and sells or uses such biodiesel as provided in section 6426(c), the Secretary shall pay (without interest) to such person such biodiesel credit with respect to such biodiesel...”

“(3) by striking “(paragraph (1) or (2))” each place it appears in paragraphs (4) and (6), as redesignated by paragraph (2), and inserting “(paragraph (1), (2), or (3))”,

“(4) by striking “alternative fuel” each place it appears in paragraphs (4) and (6), as redesignated by paragraph (2), and inserting “fuel”, and

“(5) by striking “biodiesel mixture (as defined in section 4024(b)(1)(B) of such Code)” each place it appears in paragraphs (4) and (6), as redesignated by paragraph (2), and inserting “fuel”,”

“(ii) by striking “(1) a registered terminal under section 4081 of such Code is designated under this paragraph as a registered terminal under section 4081(d)(1)” transferred in bulk (without regard to the manner of such transfer) to a terminal or refinery if—

“(1) such biodiesel was produced by a person who is registered under section 4011 as a producer of biodiesel and who provides reporting under the EnStars fuel reporting system of the Internal Revenue Service, and

“(2) the operator of such terminal or refinery is registered under section 4011.”

(d) PRODUCTION REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS.—Subsection 6426 of such Code is amended by striking “subsections (d) and (e)” in the flush sentence at the end and inserting “subsections (c), (d), and (e)”. }

(e) RECAPPING.—Subsection (1) of section 6426 of such Code is amended to read as follows:

“(1) ALCOHOL FUEL MIXTURES.—If—

“(A) any credit was determined under this section with respect to alcohol used in the production of alcohol fuel mixture, and

“(B) any person—

“(i) separates the alcohol from the mixture, or

“(ii) without separation, uses the mixture other than as a fuel, then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to the product of the applicable amount and the number of gallons of such alcohol.

“(2) BIODIESEL.—If any credit was determined under this section with respect to the production of any biodiesel and any person does not sell such biodiesel for a purpose described in subsection (c)(1), then there is hereby imposed on such person a tax equal to $1 for each gallon of such biodiesel.

“(3) APPLICABLE LAWS.—All provisions of law, including penalties, shall, so far as applicable and not inconsistent with this section, apply in respect of any tax imposed under paragraph (1) or (2) as if such tax were imposed by section 4081 and not by this section.

“(4) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The heading of section 6426 of such Code (and the item relating to such section in the table of sections for subpart D of chapter 65 of such Code) is amended by redesignating “alcohol fuel, biodiesel, and alternative fuel mixtures” and inserting “alcohol fuel mixtures, biodiesel production, and alternative fuel mixtures”.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to biodiesel sold or used after December 31, 2009.

SEC. 4. BIO DIESEL TREATED AS TAXABLE FUEL.

(a) BIODIESEL TREATED AS TAXABLE FUEL.—Clause (1) of section 4025(a)(3)(A) of such Code is amended by inserting “and biodiesel” as defined in section 4024(c)(3)(A)”, after “(other than gasoline)”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to biodiesel removed, entered, or sold after the date which is 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

By Mrs. MURRAY (for herself and MR. DURBIN): S. 1591. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, to establish the Health Technology Program in the United States Agency for International Development to research and develop technologies to improve global health, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, for a child in a developing country, very simple tools, like safe injection technologies for vaccination, can mean the difference between life and death. But the fact is that many countries are simply unable to afford such critical health technologies. Research has given us many promising early-stage technologies that could make a difference, but tragically, in many cases the promise of such technologies goes unrealized.

I know that it is sometimes tempting to think of global health as a distant goal, far removed from the lives of everyday Americans. But, as the emergence of new pandemic threats such as H1N1 flu reminds us, global health is public health—and it affects Americans right here at home. It is impossible to pick up a paper today, watch TV, or use the internet without realizing that we are more connected than ever before to people around the world.

As I speak with scientists and leaders in my State, they are excited about finding new ways to tackle tough global health problems. I hear the same enthusiasm when I speak with young people who are passionate about helping others. Of course, this growing support for global health can be seen not only in my home state, but throughout our country, in our universities and in community organizations. I know that many of my colleagues in the Senate are dedicated, tireless advocates for global health. Last year, the Congress supported this development by reauthorizing the President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief, PEPFAR, a huge victory for global health and a strong foundation for future efforts.

In May, President Obama announced a new, comprehensive global health strategy, renewing the longstanding U.S. commitment to global health and building on the successes of programs begun during the Bush administration like PEPFAR and the President’s malaria initiative, programs that have saved millions of lives. President Obama has called for us to continue these efforts and to focus on improving the health of mothers and children and strengthening health systems in developing countries.

Developing countries urgently need technologies that will work for their health care systems, technologies that are easy-to-use, culturally appropriate, and above all affordable.

Today I am introducing the 21st Century Global Health Technology Act to support these goals by applying our country’s traditional strengths in research, innovation, and entrepreneurship to global health. My bill will encourage the development of appropriate global health technologies by authorizing efforts at the US Agency for International Development, USAID, to make sure that promising health technologies are not left to sit on the shelf, but instead are developed and delivered to those in need.

Developing global health technologies is not easy or glamorous and the financial incentives for business are few. But for many years, the USAID has supported global health technology development through an innovative model that encourages the public, non-profit, and private sectors to work together. I urge my colleagues to support this bill because the USAID has a long and inspiring track record of success in technology development. For example, the USAID’s HealthTech program meets a wide range of needs from developing tools to rapidly diagnose infectious diseases to designing safe delivery kits that keep mothers and newborns healthy. Working with non-profit and commercial-sector partners, HealthTech has investigated over 100 technologies, licensed or transferred 21 life-saving technologies designed for use in low-resource settings, and moved 10 technologies into global use.

The HealthTech program helps the USAID leverage Federal money to encourage the private sector to become involved in the effort to improve global health. In an average year, HealthTech matches the USAID’s funding with cash and in-kind contributions from the private sector. The average ratio of private sector investment to USAID funding in HealthTech-developed technologies that have reached commercialization is about 9 to 1. It’s a win-win model that increases the number of affordable global health technologies and provides new opportunities for U.S. companies.

Technology development at the USAID is a smart investment. However, the agency’s technology development efforts currently are not authorized, so funding is often uncertain. That uncertainty prevents the USAID from pursuing many promising technologies. My bill will provide $5 million per year over 5 years to support technology development at the USAID—a small, but steady source of funding that will bring greater stability to technology development efforts and encourage more private sector partners to get involved.

Investing in global health technology is the right thing for the U.S., for our companies, for our bright young people who are pursuing careers in global health, and for our security since our well-being is linked to our ability to prevent global pandemics and to reach out to people around the world. But, most importantly, investing in global health and in affordable health technologies will save millions of lives. It is simply the right thing to do.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1591

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “21st Century Global Health Technology Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The United States has committed to the United Nations Millennium Development Goals of—

(A) reducing child mortality;

(B) improving maternal health; and

(C) combating HIV/AIDS, malaria, and other diseases.

(2) The goals described in paragraph (1) cannot be reached without health technologies and devices to diagnose infectious diseases and reduce disease transmission.

(3) The development, advancement, and introduction of affordable and appropriate technologies are essential to efforts by the United States to reduce deaths among the world’s most vulnerable populations, particularly children and women in the developing world.

(4) A recent report by the Institute of Medicine on the commitment of the United States to global health—

(A) recommends that United States institutions share existing knowledge to address prevalent health problems in low- and middle-income countries;

(B) recommends continued support for partnerships between the public and private sectors to develop and deliver health products in low- and middle-income countries; and

(C) urges the United States Government to continue its support for innovative research models to address unmet health needs in poor countries.

(5) Investments by the United States in affordable, appropriate health technologies, such as medical devices for maternal and child care, vaccine delivery tools, safe injection devices, diagnostic tests for infectious diseases, and innovative disease prevention strategies—

(A) reduce the risk of disease transmission; and

(B) accelerate access to life-saving global health interventions for the world’s poor.

(6) Through a cooperative agreement, known as the Technologies for Health program (referred to in this section as “HealthTech”), USAID supports the development of technologies that—

(A) maximize limited resources available for global health; and

(B) ensure that products and medicines developed for use in low-resource settings reach the people that need such products and medicines.

(7) The HealthTech cooperative agreement—

(A) facilitates public-private collaboration in the development of global health technologies;

(B) leverages public sector support for early stage research and development of health technologies to encourage private sector investment in late-stage technology development and product introduction in developing countries;

(C) benefits the United States economy by investing in the growing United States global health technology sector, which—

(i) provides skilled jobs for American workers; and

(ii) enhances United States competitiveness in the bio-technological and knowledge-based global economy; and

(D) enhances United States national security by—

(i) reducing the risk of pandemic disease; and

(ii) contributing to economic development and stability in developing countries.

SEC. 3. PURPOSE.

The purpose of this Act is to authorize a health technology development program that supports coordinated, long-term research and development of appropriate global health technologies—

(1) to improve global health;

(2) to reduce maternal and child mortality rates; and

(3) to reverse the incidence of HIV/AIDS, malaria, and other diseases.

SEC. 4. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HEALTH TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM.

Section 107 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151e) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(7) The Health Technology Program shall—

(A) coordinate and lead research and development efforts;

(B) be funded by USAID on a competitive basis; and

(C) serve as a national laboratory and technology development program for global health.

SEC. 5. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is established in the United States Agency for International Development (referred to in this section as ‘USAID’) the Health Technology Program, which shall—

(A) coordinate and lead research and development efforts;

(B) be funded by USAID on a competitive basis; and

(C) serve as a national laboratory and technology development program for global health.

SEC. 6. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HEALTH TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM.

There is established in the United States Agency for International Development (referred to in this section as ‘USAID’) the Health Technology Program, which shall—

(A) coordinate and lead research and development efforts;

(B) be funded by USAID on a competitive basis; and

(C) serve as a national laboratory and technology development program for global health.

SEC. 7. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is established in the United States Agency for International Development (referred to in this section as ‘USAID’) the Health Technology Program, which shall—

(A) coordinate and lead research and development efforts;

(B) be funded by USAID on a competitive basis; and

(C) serve as a national laboratory and technology development program for global health.

SEC. 8. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HEALTH TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM.

There is established in the United States Agency for International Development (referred to in this section as ‘USAID’) the Health Technology Program, which shall—

(A) coordinate and lead research and development efforts;

(B) be funded by USAID on a competitive basis; and

(C) serve as a national laboratory and technology development program for global health.

SEC. 9. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is established in the United States Agency for International Development (referred to in this section as ‘USAID’) the Health Technology Program, which shall—

(A) coordinate and lead research and development efforts; and

(B) be funded by USAID on a competitive basis.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
S9003

The inability of major corporations to properly assess the risk of the mortgage securities they were trading is a problem whose effects have not been confined to Wall Street. To put it simply: when big banks sneeze, the rest of America gets a cold. This year, more than $1 trillion of the subprime mortgage originated during the housing boom will reset to higher interest rates.

In my home State of Maine, we are struggling with falling home prices and a record number of foreclosures. During the first half of 2009 alone, there were 1,696 filings in Maine, a number that is only expected to grow as part of a comprehensive overhaul of our financial markets, combat future attempts at deception, and protect investors by making scrutinized mortgage investments more reliable and trustworthy.

We must quickly restore confidence in mortgage securities if we are to stabilize our housing markets. To do so, we must certify the quality and content of our mortgage securities to enable housing finance to generate liquidity and spur lending. This is why it is urgent to create the Federal Board of Certification for mortgage securities. This legislation would create a "good housekeeping seal of approval" for the mortgage security industry and certify that the mortgage products are in fact what they claim to be. Accordingly, I call on Congress to take up and pass this commonsense legislation as part of a comprehensive overhaul of our financial markets that Congress must consider in short order to ensure that the calamitous events of the past year are never again repeated.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the "Federal Board of Certification Act of 2009".

SEC. 2. PURPOSE.
It is the purpose of this Act to establish a Federal Board of Certification, which shall certify that the mortgages within a security instrument meet the underlying standards they claim in regards to documentation, loan to value ratios, debt service to income ratios, and borrowers' credit standards. The purpose of the certification process is to increase the transparency, predictability, and reliability of securitized mortgage products. Certification would aid in creating settled investor expectations and increase transparency by ensuring that the mortgages within a mortgage security conform to the claims made by the mortgage sellers.

The proposed Federal Board of Certification would not override any current regulations and would not in any way stifle any attempts by private business to rate mortgage securities. This legislation would, however, create incentives for improving industry rating practices. Open publication of the Board's certification criteria would augment the efforts of private ratings agencies by providing incentives for increased transparency in the ratings process. The Board's certification would also serve as a check on the industry to ensure that ratings agencies carefully scrutinize the content of mortgage products before issuing evaluation of securitized mortgage securities. Significantly, the Federal Board of Certification would also be voluntary and funded by an excise tax. Users could choose to pay the costs for the Board to rate their security, or they could elect not to submit their product to the Board.

We must quickly restore confidence in mortgage securities if we are to stabilize our housing markets. To do so, we must certify the quality and content of our mortgage securities to enable housing finance to generate liquidity and spur lending. This is why it is urgent to create the Federal Board of Certification for mortgage securities. The Board would promulgate standards which the Board shall use to certify mortgage securities. The Board shall also serve as a check on the industry to ensure that ratings agencies care fully scrutinize the content of mortgage products before issuing evaluation of securitized mortgage securities. Significantly, the Federal Board of Certification would also be voluntary and funded by an excise tax. Users could choose to pay the costs for the Board to rate their security, or they could elect not to submit their product to the Board.

reporting systems for use by the Board in ascertaining mortgage security risk. The Board shall assess, and publicly publish, how it evaluates and certifies the composition of mortgage securities.

(c) AFFECT ON FEDERAL REGULATORY AGENCY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT OF NEW FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS SUPERVISORY AGENCIES.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to limit or discourage Federal regulatory agency research and development of new financial institutions supervisory methods and tools, or to preclude the field testing of any innovation devised by any Federal regulatory agency.

(d) ANNUAL REPORT.—Not later than April 1 of each year, the Board shall prepare and submit to Congress an annual report covering its activities during the preceding year.

(e) REPORTING SCHEDULE.—The Board shall determine whether it wants to evaluate mortgage securities at issuance, on a regular basis, upon request.

SEC. 9. BOARD AUTHORITY.

(a) AUTHORITY OF CHAIRPERSON.—The chairperson of the Board is authorized to carry out and to delegate the authority to carry out its duties and responsibilities to the Board, including the appointment and supervision of employees and the distribution of business among members, employees, and administrators.

(b) USE OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, AND FACILITIES OF FEDERAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS SUPERVISORY AGENCIES, AND FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS.—In addition to any other authority conferred upon it by this Act, in carrying out its functions under this Act, the Board may utilize, with their consent and to the extent practical, the personnel, services, and facilities of the Federal financial institutions regulatory agencies, and Federal Reserve banks, with or without reimbursement therefor.

(c) COMPENSATION, AUTHORITY, AND DUTIES OF OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES; EXPERTS AND CONSULTANTS.—The Board may—

(1) subject to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, relating to the competitive service, classification, and General Schedule pay rates, appoint and fix the compensation of such officers and employees as are necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act, and to prescribe the authority and duties of officers and employees and

(2) obtain the services of such experts and consultants as are necessary to carry out this Act.

SEC. 10. BOARD ACCESS TO INFORMATION.

For the purpose of carrying out this Act, the Board shall have access to all books, accounts, records, reports, files, memoranda, papers, things, and property belonging to or in use by Federal financial institutions regulatory agencies, including reports of examination of financial institutions, their holding companies, or mortgage lending entities; and the Board shall have access to books, papers, and correspondence files related to such reports, whether or not a part of the report, and all without any deletions.

SEC. 11. REGULATORY REVIEW.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not less frequently than once every 10 years, the Board shall conduct a review of all regulations prescribed by the Board, including identifying outdated or otherwise unnecessary regulatory requirements imposed on insured depository institutions.

(b) PROCESS.—In conducting the review under subsection (a), the Board shall—

(1) categorize the regulations described in subsection (a) by type; and

(2) at regular intervals, provide notice and solicit comments on a particular category or categories of regulations, requesting commenters to identify areas of the regulations that are outdated, unnecessary, or unduly burdensome.

(c) COMPLETE REVIEW.—The Board shall ensure that the notice and comment period described in subsection (b) is consistent with respect to all regulations described in subsection (a), not less frequently than once every 10 years.

(d) REGULATORY RESPONSE.—The Board shall—

(1) publish in the Federal Register a summary of the comments received under this section, identifying significant issues raised and providing comment on such issues; and

(2) eliminate unnecessary regulations to the extent that such action is appropriate.

(e) REPORT.—Not later than 30 days after caring out subsection (d)(1) of this section, the Board shall submit to the Congress a report, which shall include a summary of any significant issues raised by public comments received by the Board under this section and the relative merits of such issues.

SEC. 12. LIABILITY.

Any publication, transmission, or webpage containing an advertisement for or invitation to buy a mortgage security shall include the following statement:

"Certification by the Federal Board of Certification can in no way be considered a guarantee of the mortgage security. Certification is merely a judgment by the Federal Board of Certification of the degree of risk offered by the security in question. The Federal Board of Certification is not liable for any action taken in reliance on such judgment of risk."

S. 1565. A bill to amend the Truth in Lending Act to prohibit the distribution of any check or other negotiable instrument as part of a solicitation by a creditor for an extension of credit, to limit the liability of consumers in conjunction with such solicitations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, in recent years, consumer credit has gone from providing convenience and short-term financing to a game of tricks and traps that strips families of hard earned resources and locks the middle class into a vicious cycle of debt. Today, I introduce legislation to end one of those deceptive practices—the unsolicited mailing of "live" loan checks.

Deceptive loan checks have afflicted consumers, especially seniors, for far too long. In these schemes, financial institutions send unsuspecting customers checks along with blank deposits that strips families of hard earned resources and locks the middle class into a vicious cycle of debt. Today, I introduce legislation to end one of those deceptive practices—the unsolicited mailing of "live" loan checks.

Bank regulators have failed for years to rein in these deceptive products. In Oregon, one of my elderly constituents—a veteran of the Korean war—ended up in a subprime mortgage because he unknowingly deposited a deceptive loan check that he never requested. Sadly, instead of being able to cancel the loan, he was pushed into rolling this unwanted loan into his mortgage, which was then transformed from a safe, fixed rate mortgage that had nearly been paid off, into a brand new, subprime mortgage. As this case shows, deceptive products and practices lead our consumers into dangerously high cost debt. If individuals wish to take out high cost loans, they should have every right to do so, but financial institutions should not be prohibited from sending a "live" loan check unsolicited mailing of "live" loan checks.

I urge my colleagues to join me in this and future efforts to restore honesty to the consumer credit markets.

S. 1566. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to acquire the Gold Hill Ranch in Coloma, California; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I rise to discuss the Gold Hill-Wakamatsu Preservation Act. This legislation would authorize the Bureau of Land Management to acquire and manage the Gold Hill Ranch near Coloma, California. This site was the location of the Western American Rice and Silt Colony from 1869 to 1871, recognized by the State of California and Japanese American Citizens League as the first Japanese settlement in the United States.

In 1869, seven Japanese individuals and a European expatriate fled the turmoil in Japan and sailed across the Pacific to San Francisco aboard a side wheeler called the "China." The group made their way eastwards and purchased land in Gold Hill. Within 2 years, the colony grew to 22 Japanese families, and began growing traditional Japanese crops such as tea, silk, rice, and bamboo. The Japanese colonists and surrounding community learned about each others’ culture and agricultural techniques. Local and San Francisco newspapers wrote about the colony, and the settlers began to receive acceptance in American society.

Unfortunately, the colony was short-lived due to financial problems, which forced the group to disperse and settle throughout California beginning in 1871. The Veerkamp family, which owned neighboring lands, purchased the property in 1875. Despite the short history of the colony, it was an important milestone that helped bridge Japanese and American cultures and paved the way for large-scale emigration of Japanese settlers to the United States. It also contributed to major Japanese influences on the agricultural economy of California.

Many of the original structures on the site remain intact, including a farmhouse, the grave of a young girl named Okei, numerous artifacts, and agricultural plantings. Japanese-Americans and other visitors come to see the site and place offerings on Okei’s grave. As a testament to the cultural exchanges that occurred at this site, the Gold Trail Middle School, located on an in-holding carved out of this site, now maintains an exchange program with a sister school in Wakamatsu, Japan. Governor Reagan recognized the property as a State historic site in 1969, and the site is currently being considered for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

The 272-acre ranch encompassing the original colony site has been passed down for generations through the Veerkamp family. Thanks to the hard work of the American River Conservancy and Wakamatsu Gold Hill Colony Foundation as well as the generous accommodation of the Veerkamp family, the site has been preserved for visitors to come and learn about the history of the Wamatsu colonists and Japanese-American culture. The site provides multiple other benefits, including wildlife habitat, open space with hiking trails and picnic areas, and grazing and pastureland. The family and non-profit partners agree that federal acquisition would help guarantee that the site’s cultural history, agricultural character, and open space are permanently preserved for generations to come. The Bureau of Land Management is well-suited to manage this site since it has an excellent relationship with Japanese-American Citizens League, the El Dorado County Board of Supervisors, the Governor of Fukishima Prefecture, and numerous elected officials in Washington, D.C., and throughout California. The American River Conservancy and the Mayor of Wakamatsu in Japan, Mr. LeAhy. Mr. President, today, I am pleased to introduce the Reserve Officers Association Modernization Act of 2009. I want to thank Senators Chambliss and Pryor for joining me to introduce this legislation. As the co-chairs of the United States Senate Reserve Caucus, Senators Chambliss and Pryor have worked hard for the brave men and women of the United States Reserves.

Over the past decade, our country has relied on the National Guard and Reserves more than at any other time in recent history. The Guard and Reserves provide an invaluable contribution to our Nation’s military, our national security, and disaster relief efforts. In recent years the National Guard and Reserves have demonstrated their position as a keystone to our military operations, particularly in Iraq and Afghanistan. This site is testament to Japanese history, California’s agricultural economy, and the American tradition of bringing together people of diverse cultures in the common pursuit of freedom and prosperity. I look forward to working with my Senate colleagues to move this legislation and preserve this story of the Wakamatsu colonists for future generations.

S. 1599. A bill to amend title 36, United States Code, to include in the Federal charter of the Reserve Officers Association leadership positions newly added in its constitution and bylaws; to the Committee on Armed Services.

The significance of this site for Japanese Americans has been compared to the significance of the Mayflower journey and Plymouth Rock landing for European Americans. This site is testament to Japanese history, California’s agricultural economy, and the American tradition of bringing together people of diverse cultures in the common pursuit of freedom and prosperity. I look forward to working with my Senate colleagues to move this legislation and preserve this story of the Wakamatsu colonists for future generations.

SECTION 1. ENDANGERED FISH RECOVERY IMPLEMENTATION PROGRAMS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—Section 2 of Public Law 106–392 (114 Stat. 1602) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(11) MARKETABLE YIELD POOL.—The term "marketable yield pool" means the portion of the regulatory capacity that, as of the date of enactment of this paragraph, is dedicated to marketing purposes.

"(12) REGULATORY CAPACITY.—The term "regulatory capacity" has the meaning given it in Section 101 of the Federal Power Act.

(b) AUTHORIZATION TO FUND RECOVERY PROGRAMS.—Section 3 of Public Law 106–392 (114 Stat. 1603) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(1) by redesignating subsections (e) through (h) as subsections (f) through (i), respectively; and

"(2) by inserting after subsection (d) the following:

"(e) ALLOCATION OF RUEDI RESERVOIR MARKETABLE YIELD POOL.—RELEASE OF WATER.—For fiscal year 2013, and each fiscal year thereafter, at the request of the Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service (referred to in this subsection as the "Director"), 5,412.5 acre-feet of water shall be released from the marketable yield pool of water stored in the Rueldi Reservoir for the benefit of endangered fish habitat in the Colorado River.

No requirement for contract or other agreement.—The release of water under paragraph (1) may be carried out without the formation or execution of any contract or other agreement.

"(4) Reimbursement.—The capital, operational, maintenance, and replacement costs that arise from the release of water under paragraph (1) shall be reimbursable.

"(5) Effect.—The release of water under paragraph (1) shall satisfy 50 percent of the obligation of certain water users to provide 10,825 acre-feet of water, as described in the document—

"(A) entitled "Final Programmatic Biological Opinion for Bureau of Reclamation's Operations and Depletions, Other Depletions, and Funding and Implementation of Recovery Program Actions in the Upper Colorado River above the Confluence with the Gunnison River"; and

"(B) published by the Director on December 20, 1999.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, today I am introducing a revised version of the Naval Oil Shale Reserve Mineral Royalty Revenue Allocation Act that I previously introduced on August 4, 2009. This bill is the same as the one I previously introduced, but it corrects an error regarding the allocation of outstanding mineral royalties to four counties in Colorado instead of two—those four counties being Garfield, Rio Blanco, Mesa and Moffat. This revised version also makes it clear that the mineral royalty allocated to these four counties would not affect the normal allocations to those counties under the "payment in lieu of taxes" program. In all other respects, the bills have the same purposes and the same. It is a bill designed to release mineral royalty receipts to Colorado where the receipts were generated from gas development within this reserve on the western slope near Rifle, Colorado.

By way of background, in 1997, Congress transferred the federal Naval Oil Shale Reserve lands in western Colorado from the U.S. Department of Energy, DOE, to the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, BLM, and directed the BLM to begin leasing the oil and gas resources under these lands. The Transfer Act also directed that the royalties recouped from this leasing program be set aside and the state portion not disbursed to Colorado until the Interior Department and the DOE certified that enough money from the royalty receipts accrued to satisfy two purposes.

The first was to provide funding to clean up the Anvil Points site on these lands. Anvil Points was an oil shale research facility that operated within the Naval Oil Shale Reserve for about 40 years. The facility was operated by DOE at one point, and private industry performed research there under contract. Waste material was produced at this facility from oil shale mining and processing. That waste accumulated in a pile of about 300,000 cubic yards of spent oil shale and other material—including arsenic and other heavy metals—which rests on slopes below the facility.

The second purpose was for the reimbursement of certain costs related to the transfer.

The transfer to the BLM, this area experienced significant natural gas leasing and, as a result, significant royalty revenue was generated. On August 8, 2008, the DOI and DOE certified that adequate funds had accrued to accomplish the goals of cleanup and cost reimbursement and subsequently allocated all royalty revenue generated after this date according to the Mineral Leasing Act, which establishes that Colorado receive a proportionate share.

However, considerably more revenue accrued than was necessary to accomplish the cleanup and cost reimbursement goals. This bill would direct that this additional royalty revenue be allocated to Colorado according to the formulas and procedures established by the Mineral Leasing Act for the disbursement of federal mineral royalties under the Mineral Leasing Act.

The bill also directs that the Colorado share of this remaining royalty revenue be allocated to the four Counties directly impacted by oil and gas leasing on the Naval Oil Shale Reserve lands—specifically, Garfield, Rio Blanco, Mesa, and Moffat Counties. Finally, this bill makes it clear that these royalty payments shall not affect the funds that these counties normally receive under the "payment in lieu of taxes"—or PILT—program.

Based on figures provided by the BLM, there remains approximately $17 million in these accounts for Colorado's royalty share. This bill would make Colorado whole and provide it with its rightful share of the remaining royalty revenue to address critical local needs and impacts from the very leasing that produced the royalty revenue.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1602

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. TREATMENT OF OIL SHALE RESERVE RECEIPTS.

Section 738et seq. of title 10, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(3)(A) The moneys deposited in the Treasury under paragraph (1) that exceed the amounts described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (2) shall be transferred by the Secretary of the Treasury in accordance with section 35 of the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 191) to the State of Colorado for use in accordance with subparagraph (B),

"(B)(i) Of the amounts to be distributed under subparagraph (A), the Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer:

"(1) 45 percent to Garfield County, Colorado;

"(2) 40 percent to Rio Blanco County, Colorado;

"(3) 10 percent to Moffat County, Colorado; and

"(4) 10 percent to Mesa County, Colorado.

"(ii) The amounts provided to the counties under clause (i) shall be used by the counties, or any cities or political subdivisions within the counties to which the funds are transferred by paragraph (2)(B), to mitigate the effects of oil and gas development activities within the affected counties, cities, or political subdivisions.

"(iii) Amounts provided to the counties under clause (i) shall not be considered for the purpose of calculating payments for the counties under chapter 69 of title 31, United States Code."

By Mr. WHITEHOUSE (for himself, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. SESSIONS):

S. 1606. A bill to require foreign manufacturers of products imported into the United States to establish registered agents in the United States who are authorized to assist in the enforcement of process against such manufacturers, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I rise to speak in support of the Ponsor that do not manufacturers' Legal Accountability Act of 2009, which I am introducing today with the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, Senator SESSIONS, and Senator DURBIN. This bipartisan bill is an important step in protecting American consumers and businesses from injuries caused by defective products manufactured outside the United States. Those products hurt American consumers—they lead to serious injuries, and even death—and they hurt American businesses that must deal with angry customers, product recalls, and unusable inventory.

The list of recent examples of Americans injured by defective foreign products is shocking. Last year, pet food contaminated with tainted wheat gluten has been recalled in the last two years. Substandard tires have failed, leading to fatalities. Most recently, defec- tive drywall imported from China has been found to contain excessively high levels of sulfur, causing houses to smell like rotten eggs, corroding copper wiring, and making expensive appliances fail. Thousands of homes may be affected.

At a hearing that I chaired in May, the Subcommittee on Administrative Oversight and the Courts explored the legal hurdles facing consumers who are injured by defective foreign products and by businesses that find that their foreign partners refuse to honor their contracts. These hurdles allow foreign manufacturers to continue to injure American businesses and consumers, and also put American manufacturers at a competitive disadvantage since they allow foreign manufacturers to import products that do not comply with American safety requirements. Two major hurdles to proper accountability are the inability to serve process on the foreign manufacturer and the ability of that foreign manufacturer, even if served, to evade the jurisdiction of American courts. As the witnesses testified at the hearing, legislation that addresses these issues is necessary and appropriate. The Foreign Manufacturers Legal Accountability Act addresses both concerns.

The first problem, the inability to serve process on a manufacturer, essentially means that it is difficult for an American to serve a foreign manufacturer the documents necessary to give it the legally required notice that it is the subject of a lawsuit. This sounds like a simple step, and it should be. Unfortunately, however, it is very hard to serve process on foreign companies abroad. As witnesses explained at the hearing in May, service abroad is complicated by the Hague Convention on the Service Abroad of Judicial and Extra Judicial Documents in Civil and Commercial Matters to which the United States is a signatory. Under that convention, a complaint must be translated into the foreign language, transmitted to the Central Authority in the foreign country, and then delivered according to the rules of service in the host country of the defendant. This can cause months and even years of delay, not to mention great expense for Americans.

The Foreign Manufacturers Legal Accountability Act will allow Americans to overcome that procedural hurdle by serving legal papers inside the United States on registered agents of foreign manufacturers. The bill requires the heads of federal government agencies such as the Food and Drug Administration to pass regulations requiring that foreign manufacturers of products regulated by their agencies register an agent who will accept service of process. It allows regulators to exclude manufacturers who only import a minimal number of products into the United States. It imposes a minimal burden on foreign manufacturers, since they would only have to appoint one agent to accept service of process for all state and federal regulatory and civil actions anywhere in the United States. The bill allows the manufacturer to choose any location for that agent with a “substantial connection to the importation, distribution, or sale of the products of such foreign manufacturer.” This simple and straightforward system will allow Americans to commence their lawsuits fairly and promptly, and ensure that foreign manufacturers have proper and fair notice of the proceedings brought against them. It will not conflict with American obligations under the Hague Convention, since that convention applies to service of process on foreign manufacturers in their home countries, not in the United States.

The second hurdle, the inability to establish personal jurisdiction over foreign manufacturers, can end a lawsuit against a foreign manufacturer before it even begins. Think about how unfair this is. A foreign manufacturer sells its defective products in the United States, injures American consumers and businesses, and then argues that it is not subject to the courts in the state where the American was injured—in legal parlance, that the courts do not have personal jurisdiction over it. As witnesses explained at the hearing, foreign manufacturers raise this technical legal defense to avoid liability even when serious injuries or even death have been caused by their products—defective tires, fireworks, exercise equipment, bikes, and toys.

The Foreign Manufacturers Legal Accountability Act will enable injured Americans to surmount this hurdle. It will make clear to foreign manufacturers that by importing their products into the United States and by registering an agent in the United States, they are consenting to the jurisdiction of the courts in the state where their agent is located. By consenting to jurisdiction, the manufacturers will avert unnecessary and expensive legislation about technical legal issues and allow courts to settle the merits of disputes. This approach is fair to foreign manufacturers since American manufacturers are subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of at least one state. This bill therefore complies with the trade principle that we should not subject foreign manufacturers to burdens not already imposed on domestic manufacturers.

Indeed, the Foreign Manufacturers Legal Accountability Act is ultimately about fairness. We all know American manufacturers comply with regulations that ensure the safety of American consumers and businesses. When they fail to do so, they must answer to regulators and are held accountable through the American tort system. Unfortunately, however, foreign manufacturers are not being held to the same standards. Foreign manufacturers produce faulty goods and send them into the U.S. market. Currently, it is nearly impossible for harmed American consumers to bring a tort action against foreign manufacturers of products that are flawed or even dangerous. Foreign manufacturers are often difficult to identify or locate and even if found, the process of seeking damages against them is extremely costly and burdensome. Without the threat of litigation, foreign manufacturers may be able to sell dangerous products to their American consumers, resulting in lower quality and often defective products. Furthermore, American companies who unknowingly buy shoddy products from foreign manufacturers and then resell them become the sole defendant in tort cases filed against them when foreign defendants cannot be located. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Chinese manufacturers were responsible for 89 percent of all product recalls in 2007 and 58 percent in 2008. These numbers demonstrate the need for Congress to take action to protect American consumers. Senator Whitehouse’s proposal is a positive step in the right direction.

I have witnessed the effects of this problem firsthand in my State. Mr. Chuck Stefan from Alabama testified before the Subcommittee on Administrative Oversight and the Courts, which Senator Whitehouse chairs and I serve as ranking member, about the hardships his business has faced in seeking damages against a foreign manufacturer. Mr. Stefan is the Senior Executive Vice President at the The Mitchell Company, a homebuilder in Alabama, Florida, and Mississippi. Forty-five of the houses he built have been identified as containing a defective type of Chinese sheetrock, which produces corrosive gases. These gases are not merely unpleasant. They damage the copper found in piping and wiring systems. When the problem was first discovered, The Mitchell Company could not even determine who manufactured the drywall, which was only stamped “made in China.” When the manufacturing parties were finally identified as both Chinese and German-based, it was a substantial and costly burden to serve them properly even though the companies had extensive operations in the United States. Mr. Stefan emphasized the fact that when foreign manufacturers cannot be held accountable, it hurts his company’s bottom line and harms U.S. consumers.
Stores such as Mr. Stefan’s are becoming all too common and it is incumbent upon Congress to work towards ameliorating the burdens that U.S. businesses and consumers face when seeking damages against foreign manufacturers. This issue is one that affects us across the nation. I am grateful to Senator WHITEHOUSE for taking the initiative to ensure that Congress does its part in solving this problem.

S. 1609. A bill to authorize a single fisheries cooperative for the Bering Sea Aleutian Islands longline catcher processor subsector, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. President, today I introduce the Longline Catcher Processor Subsector Single Cooperative Act.

In Washington, our history is based on a rich maritime tradition that contributes billions of dollars to the state’s economy each year. There are 3,000 vessels in Washington’s fishing fleet that employ 10,000 fishermen. Seafood processors employ another 3,800 Washingtonians. And fish wholesalers employ an additional 1,000 people.

For many communities along this nation’s coastlines, the economy literally ebbs and flows with the tide. It is important to remember that the economies of these communities depend on are a public trust and a resource to be both treasured and protected.

As guardians of the ocean and its plentiful resources, it is necessary that we examine all issues of “ownership” with care, transparency, and fairness. The issue of fishery cooperatives has proved to be an issue that demands nothing less.

In July of 2008, I chaired a hearing in the Commerce Committee’s Subcommittee on Oceans, Atmosphere, Fisheries and Coast Guard, examining the impact of fishery management regimes on fishing safety and conservation. Following that hearing and numerous meetings with stakeholders to discuss the policy, safety, economic, and environmental implications of fishing cooperatives, I am here today to introduce the Longline Catcher Processor Subsector Single Cooperative Act, which would allow the formation of a single fishing cooperative in the Pacific cod catcher processor fleet.

Instead of fishermen racing against each other and the elements to catch as much as they can, this bill would allow the fishermen to bring some sanity back to their livelihoods. Under this legislation, the Pacific cod catcher processor fishery can allocate the catch among their members, putting an end to the very dangerous “race for fish.”

The cooperative would empower commercial fishermen with the framework and incentives to police themselves while still preserving the crucial regulatory and oversight responsibilities of the federal government and the North Pacific Fishery Management Council.

By adopting this bill, we can improve fishing safety in the Pacific cod catcher processor fleet by putting an end to the “race for fish.” Doing so would lessen the fishery’s environmental footprint, and give these fishermen the financial certainty that has worked for others across this Nation. Fishing safety is a real concern that must be addressed at the federal level. In 2006, the Coast Guard reported that in the decade from 1994 to 2004, 1,398 fishing vessels were lost tragic—reminders of what can go wrong at sea.

Most of these fishing-related fatalities occur in the North Pacific, where the fishermen from my home state of Washington make their living. The difficult waters equate to the highest casualty rates in the nation, and highest rates of fatality and injury among fishermen. But the North Pacific’s rough waters are not the only factor these fishermen have to cope with.

It is a tough business—tough for those who work the boats and those who make the business-end decisions. It’s a business that is driven by incentives and dangerous conditions that work in tandem to place countless numbers of fishermen at risk.

When things go wrong, it is usually because of failures at multiple levels. You see, it’s not always about vessels. Nor is it all about inspections, safety equipment, or training. Fishing safety is closely related to how fisheries are managed and the very foundation fishing has come to be built upon: competition.

Without legislation such as this, the fisheries will continue to operate on a foundation of destructive competition, or a “race for fish.” Because this race for fish is a very dangerous race. Fishing safety, and the very foundation fishing has come to be built upon: competition.

Without legislation such as this, the fisheries will continue to operate on a foundation of destructive competition, or a “race for fish.” Because this race for fish is a very dangerous race.

According to Lieutenant Christopher Woodley, the former fishing Vessel Safety Coordinator of the 13th U.S. Coast Guard District based in Seattle:

“This race encourages fishermen to operate in all weather and sea conditions, to operate without rest, and encourages risk-taking behaviors. But we can change that. By instituting a cooperative style of fishing management, we will dramatically change the incentives. And by changing the incentives to put a premium on safety, we can change the way people fish and hopefully prevent future tragedies at sea.”

Safety is not the only goal of this legislation. This legislation aims to make environmental and economic improvements to the process of fishing.

By eliminating the “race for fish,” as I mentioned before, we effectively slow the pace of fishing. Commercial fishermen can optimize onboard processing facilities. The result is an increase in the product recovery rate per pound of fish caught, meaning they can use more parts of the fish and make wiser and more efficient use of our precious ocean resources. A slower pace also decreases bycatch and promotes ownership of the fishery, which will facilitate a conservation mindset among fishermen.

We have once again shifted the incentive from reckless speed to doing things slower, better, smarter, and more environmentally conscious.

Furthermore, the Longline Catcher Processor Subsector Single Cooperative Act means greater job stability for the Pacific cod freezer longliner fleet’s workers.

When fishermen no longer race, the fishing season lasts longer. This means more stability and predictability for crew members, and eliminates the boom and bust cycle that often prevails today.

I want to be clear that this bill is not yet a finished product. I welcome comments, suggestions, and criticisms to help make this bill good public policy for everyone involved.

As we discuss issues like safety of our fisherman and environmental implications to our oceans, it’s imperative that we commit to an open and transparent process that shines the light of accountability.

Both in fisheries management, fishing safety, and those areas where the two intersect, transparency must be the rule.

We owe it to our coastal communities, our fisherman, and the American public collectively as stewards of one of our greatest public resources—our oceans.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1609

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Longline Catcher Processor Subsector Single Fishery Cooperative Act”.

SEC. 2. AUTHORITY TO APPROVE AND IMPLEMENT A SINGLE FISHERY COOPERATIVE FOR THE LONGLINE CATCHER PROCESSOR SUBSECTOR IN THE BSAI.

(a) In General.—Upon the request of eligible members of the longline catcher processor subsector holding at least 80 percent of the licenses issued for that subsector, the Secretary is authorized to approve a single fishery cooperative for the longline catcher processor subsector in the BSAI.

(b) Limitation.—A single fishery cooperative approved under this section shall include a limitation prohibiting any eligible member from harvesting a total of more than 20 percent of the Pacific cod available to be harvested in the longline catcher processor subsector, the violation of which is subject to the penalties, sanctions, and forfeitures under section 308 of the Magnuson-Stevens Act (16 U.S.C. 1888), except that such limitation shall not apply to harvest amounts from quota assigned explicitly to a CDQ group as part of a CDQ allocation to an entity established by section 305(i) of the Magnuson-Stevens Act (16 U.S.C. 1855(i)).

(c) CONTRACT SUBMISSION AND REVIEW.—The longline catcher processor subsector shall submit to the Secretary—

(1) not later than November 1 of each year, a contract to implement a single fishery cooperative approved under this section for the following calendar year; and

(2) not later than 60 days prior to the commencement of fishing under the single fishery cooperative, any interim modifications to the contract submitted under paragraph (1).

(d) DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE REVIEW.—Not later than November 1 before the first year of fishing under a single fishery cooperative approved under this section, the longline catcher processor sector shall submit to the Attorney General a copy of a letter from a party to the contract under subsection (c)(1) requesting a business review letter from the Attorney General and any response to such request.

(e) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall implement a single fishery cooperative approved under this section not later than 2 years after receiving a request under subsection (a).

(f) STATUS QUO FISHERY.—If the longline catcher processor sector does not submit a contract to the Secretary under subsection (c) then the longline catcher processor subsector in the BSAI shall operate as a limited access fishery for the following year subject to the license limitation program license or licenses for 2006, 2007, and 2008, according to the catch accounting system data used to establish total catch; and

(2) No sooner than 7 years after approval of a single fishery cooperative approved under section 2 of this Act, the Council may modify the harvest limitation established under section 2(b) if such modification does not negatively impact any eligible member of the longline catcher processor sector.

(c) PROTECTIONS FOR THE GULF OF ALASKA PACIFIC COD FISHERY.—The Council may recommend for approval by the Secretary such harvest limitations of Pacific cod by the longline catcher processor subsector in the western Gulf of Alaska and the Central Gulf of Alaska as may be necessary to protect coastal communities and other Gulf of Alaska participants from potential competitive disadvantages resulting from changes in the BSAI Pacific cod fishery.

SEC. 4. LONGLINE CATCHER PROCESSOR SUBSECTOR NON-COOPERATIVE LIMITED ACCESS FISHERY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—An eligible member that elects not to participate in a single fishery cooperative approved under section 2 shall operate under this section not later than the license limitation program in effect for the longline catcher processor subsector on the date of enactment of this Act or any subsequent modifications to the license limitation program recommended by the Council and approved by the Secretary.

(b) HARVEST AND PROHIBITED SPECIES ALLOCATIONS.—Eligible members operating in a non-cooperative limited access fishery under this section may collectively—

(1) harvest the total amount of BSAI Pacific cod total allowable catch, less any amount allocated to the longline catcher processor subsector non-cooperative limited access fishery;

(2) utilize the total amount of BSAI Pacific cod prohibited species catch allocation, less any amount allocated to a longline catcher processor subsector non-cooperative limited access fishery; and

(3) harvest any re-allocation of Pacific cod to the longline catcher processor subsector during a fishing year by the Secretary.

(c) COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT QUOTA PROGRAM

SEC. 7. COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT QUOTA PROGRAM.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the western Alaska community development program established by section 306(i) of the Magnuson-Stevens Act (16 U.S.C. 1855(c)(1)), including the allocation of fishery resources in the directed Pacific cod fishery.

SEC. 8. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act—

(1) BSAI.—The term “BSAI” has the meaning given that term in section 301(a) of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2005 (Public Law 108-147; 118 Stat. 2866).

(2) BSAI PACIFIC COD TOTAL ALLOWABLE CATCH.—The term “BSAI Pacific cod total allowable catch” means the Pacific cod total allowable catch for the directed longline catcher processor subsector in the BSAI as established on an annual basis by the Council and approved by the Secretary.

(3) BSAI PACIFIC COD PROHIBITED SPECIES CATCH ALLOCATION.—The term “BSAI Pacific cod prohibited species catch allocation” means the prohibited species catch allocation for the directed longline catcher processor subsector in the BSAI as established on an annual basis by the Council and approved by the Secretary.

(4) COUNCIL.—The term “Council” means the North Pacific Fishery Management Council established under section 302(a)(1)(G) of the Magnuson-Stevens Act (16 U.S.C. 1882(a)(1)(G)).

(5) ELIGIBLE MEMBER.—The term “eligible member” means a holder of a license limitation program license, or licenses, eligible to participate in the longline catcher processor subsector.

(6) GULF OF ALASKA.—The term “Gulf of Alaska” means that portion of the Exclusive Economic Zone contained in Statistical Areas 610, 620, and 630.

(7) LONGLINE CATCHER PROCESSOR SUBSECTOR.—The term “longline catcher processor subsector” has the meaning given that term in section 219(a)(6) of the Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2005 (Public Law 108-447; 118 Stat. 2866).

(8) MAGNUSON-STEVENS ACT.—The term “Magnus-Stevens Act” means the Magnus-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1801 et seq.).

(9) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Commerce.

By Ms. CANTWELL (for herself, Mr. VITTER, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mrs. MURRAY, and Mr. MARTINEZ):

S. 1610. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the shipping investment withdrawal rules in section 955 and to provide an incentive to increase foreign shipping earnings in the United States; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleagues Senators VITTER, LANDRIEU, MURRAY, and MARTINEZ and introduce the American Shipping Reinvestment Act of 2009. This legislation will build on work Congress started in 2004 to strengthen the U.S. merchant marine, create needed jobs in U.S. ship building, and stimulate economic activity in our maritime sector.

Since our Nation’s founding, the maritime sector has been integral to U.S. national security and economic censes for 2006, 2007, and 2008, according to the catch accounting system data used to establish total catch; and utilize the percentage of BSAI Pacific cod total allowable catch equal to the combined average percentage of the BSAI Pacific cod harvest allocated to the longline catcher processor subsector retained by the vessel or vessels designated on the eligible members license limitation program license or licence for the directed longline catcher processor subsector in the BSAI. security. American companies own and operate both U.S. flag ships and a significatificant number of vessels under international registries. The U.S. flag fleets of these companies generally are built in the United States and are manned with U.S. seamen. These U.S. flag fleets conitinue to be the shipbuilding industrial base in this country and the pool of qualified seafarers, but they also create the shipping assets that are needed for military sealift in time of war or national emergency.

Moreover, understand commercial shipping and understand that we maintain a fleet of ships for military purposes. What may not be as well known is that the international ships of some American-owned companies are part of what is called the effective U.S.-controlled fleet, EUSC fleet. The EUSC is the fleet of merchant vessels registered in certain foreign nations that are available for requisition, use, or charter by the U.S. Government in the event of war or national emergency.

For example, U.S. flag commercial vessels and their American crews transported the majority of the cargo—more than 25 million measurement tons of cargo—in support of Operations Endura-

What people also may not know is that the EUSC fleet has been in decline for the past quarter century, largely because of U.S. tax policy. Following enactment of the 1986 tax law changes, there was a precipitous decline in American-owned international shipping. To remain competitive, many American-owned shipping companies either became foreign companies or simply divested themselves of their foreign assets.

A 2002 study commissioned by the Department of Defense and performed by professors at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology found that the EUSC fleet, measured by 36 percent in terms of numbers of ships and nearly 55 percent in terms of deadweight tonnage between 1986 and 2000. Perhaps more importantly, these declines have been largely experienced in militarily-useful vessel types. For example, the results of a 2002 DOD study found that if the EUSC fleet continues its present decline, DOD’s ability to support U.S.

military tanker requirements will di-minate over time.

For years, Congress recognized this problem in 2004 and addressed it by enacting the tonnage tax regime as part of the American Jobs Creation Act. Our legislation today builds on that policy by correcting an oversight in the 2004 act that has continued to stymie the ability of U.S. shipbuilding companies to invest in new ships in the United States.

We have very strong economic and national security reasons to support U.S. owned shipowning companies and to maintain the maritime industry in this country. We also have to continue to support needed changes in our tax code so that we provide operators of U.S. flag vessels in international trade the opportunity to be competitive with their tax-advantaged foreign competitors.

Notwithstanding the significant competitive disadvantages between 1986 and 2004 companies operating international ships, there continues to be several U.S. owned shiping companies with foreign operations, and our legislation is directed as helping them sustain and grow their U.S. flag fleets and maintain their EUSC fleets. This bill will help these companies make needed investment in the U.S. economy, and create jobs in a way that also will enhance national security.

Specifically, The American Shipping
Reinvestment Act of 2009 would repeal an outdated section of the Internal Revenue Code and allow U.S. shipping companies with foreign income earned prior to 1986 to reinvest it into the U.S.
for the purpose of growing their U.S.
flag operations.

Congress first included foreign ship-ning income in Subpart F in 1975, which meant that all shipping income was taxable at the full U.S. corporate tax rate no matter whether it was invested abroad or in the United States.
However, a temporary rule, applicable to foreign shipping income earned from 1975 to 1986, continued to allow for deferral in cases where this income was reinvested in qualifying shipping activities. Section 955 of the Internal Revenue Code provided that this income would be included in gross income, i.e., taxed, immediately under Subpart F in the event of any net decrease in qualified shipping investments.

The American Jobs Creation Act of 2004 restored for shipping income the normal tax rule under which non-Subpart F income of foreign subsidiaries is not taxed by the United States until it is reinvested and paid out as a dividend.
In restoring the potential for deferral for certain shipping income, Congress in 2004 returned the treatment of ship-ning income to where it was prior to 1975.

Unfortunately, Congress did not address the rules under IRC Section 955 that apply to income earned between 1975 and 1986, thus creating a situation that this income is permanently stranded offshore. Our bill would repeal these IRC provisions and allow all IRC stranded assets to be reinvested in the United States under the favorable tax terms that were in effect for other companies and industries in 2004. Specifically, the legislation provides a one-time opportunity for Americanowned shipping companies to bring foreign source income back into the United States at a discounted tax rate for the purpose of expanding and growning our domestic maritime industry.
Within the American companies, stranded assets will never return to the United States and never be subject to U.S. taxation.

The bill is guaranteed to create jobs for American workers with the funds being brought back into the U.S. economy—on the ships, in the shipyards building the ships, and in supporting businesses. The bill contains a provision that would recapture any tax benefits previously enjoyed by its owners. This makes its full-time U.S. employment levels.

This bill also would enhance U.S. national security interests by supporting shipyards that are vital to our defense industrial base, by enabling new U.S.
flag tanker capacity to transport our Nation’s energy products and by providing DOD with critical assets—manpower and ships—necessary to help sus-tain military sealift.

The bill is strongly supported by maritime labor, shipyards, and ship owners and operators and can provide a boost to the U.S. maritime industry at a time when the U.S. is struggling to find its economic footing. The jobs created by this legislation are well-paying, long-term jobs in a crucial sector of our Nation’s economy. I urge my colleagues to join me and the other original cosponsors in supporting this Bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—
(1) Section 951(a)(1)(A)(ii) is amended by inserting ‘‘ and at the end of clause (i) and by striking (clause (iii).

(2) Section 951(a)(1)(A)(iii) is amended by striking ‘‘ and ‘‘ at the end and inserting ‘‘ except that in applying this clause amounts invested in less developed country corporations described in section 955(c)(2) (as so in effect) shall not be treated as investments in developed countries.

(3) Section 951(a)(3)(C) of such Code (relating to the limitation on pro rata share of previously excluded subpart F income withdrawn from investment) is hereby repealed.

(4) Section 964(b) of such Code is amended by inserting ‘‘, 955.’’

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section apply to taxable years of controlled foreign corporations ending on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, and to taxable years of United States shareholders in which or with which such taxable years of controlled foreign corporations end.
SEC. 3. ONE-TIME TEMPORARY DIVIDENDS RECEIVED DEDUCTION FOR PRIORLY UNTAXED FOREIGN BASE COMPUTING SHIPPING INCOME.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a corporation which is a United States shareholder and for which an election under this section is made for the taxable year, for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, there shall be allowed as a deduction in computing taxable income under section 63 of such Code an amount equal to 85 percent of the cash distributions which are received during such taxable year by such shareholder from controlled foreign corporations to the extent that such distributions are attributable to—

(1) which was derived by the controlled foreign corporation in taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986, and

(2) which would, without regard to the year earned, be described in section 954(f) (as in effect before the enactment of the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004),

(b) INDIRECT DISTRIBUTIONS.—A rule similar to the rule of section 965(a)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall apply, determined by treating cash distributions which are so attributable as cash dividends.

(c) LIMITATION.—The amount of dividends taken into account under this section shall not exceed the amount permitted to be taken into account under paragraphs (1), (3) (determined by substituting “December 31, 2008” for “December 31, 2002” in (3)), and (4) of section 965(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, determined as if such paragraphs applied to this section.

(d) TAXPAYER ELECTION AND DESIGNATION.—For purposes of subsection (a), a taxpayer may, on its return for the taxable year to which this section applies—

(1) elect to apply paragraph (3) of section 959(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 before paragraphs (1) and (2) thereof, and

(2) designate the extent, if any, to which a controlled foreign corporation’s earnings and profits are attributable to—

(1) foreign base company shipping income (determined under section 954(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as in effect before the enactment of the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004), or

(2) other earnings and profits.

(e) ELECTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The taxpayer may elect to apply subsection (d) only if made on or before the due date (including extensions) for filing the return of the taxable year to which subsection (d) applies.

(2) TIMING OF ELECTION AND ONE-TIME ELECTION.—Such election may be made for a taxable year—

(A) only if made on or before the due date (including extensions) for filing the return of tax for such taxable year, and

(B) only if no election has been made under this section or section 965 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 with respect to the same distribution for any other taxable year of the taxpayer.

(f) REDUCTION IN BENEFITS FOR FAILURE TO MAINTAIN EMPLOYMENT LEVELS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If, during the period consisting of the calendar month in which the taxpayer first receives a distribution described in subsection (a) and the succeeding 23 calendar months, the taxpayer does not maintain an average employment level at least equal to the taxpayer’s prior average employment, an additional amount equal to $25,000 for each full-time equivalent number of employees by which the taxpayer’s average employment level during such period falls below the prior average employment (but not exceeding the aggregate amount allowed as a deduction pursuant to subsection (a)) shall be taken into account as income by the taxpayer during the taxable year that includes the final day of such period.

(2) PRIOR AVERAGE EMPLOYMENT.—For purposes of this paragraph, the taxpayer’s “prior average employment” shall mean the average number of full time equivalent employees of the taxpayer during the period consisting of the 24 calendar months immediately preceding the calendar month in which the taxpayer first receives a distribution described in subsection (a).

(g) AGGREGATION RULES.—In determining the taxpayer’s employment level and prior average employment, all domestic members of a controlled group (as defined in section 264(e)(5)(B) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) shall be treated as a single taxpayer.

(h) SPECIAL RULES.—Rules similar to the rules of subsections (d) and (e) and paragraphs (3), (4), and (5) of section 965 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall apply for purposes of this section.

(i) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This Act shall apply to taxable years ending on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. GREGG (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. DODD, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. HARKIN, Ms. SNOWE, and Ms. MIKULSKI):

S. 1611. A bill to provide collective bargaining rights for public safety officers employed by States or their political subdivisions; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, this morning, 660,000 police officers and 300,000 firefighters across the country will get up and go to work to protect our homes, our families, and our communities. They will go into burning buildings, patrol our streets, and put their lives on the line, because they believe in the importance of what they are doing.

These dedicated workers are in the trenches every day, making life-or-death decisions, and their experiences give them tremendous knowledge about how to protect our country. We need to listen to their recommendations and consider their advice. Unfortunately, however, all too often, our first responders have no voice in the decisions that affect their lives and their livelihoods. Their input is disregarded because they don’t have the same rights as other workers.

Workers who work in the sector who want a voice on the job have the right to form and join a union. They can fight for a safer, fairer workplace. But 300,000 police and 70,000 firefighters live in States in which their State governments deny them the fundamental right to a voice on the job. Even if these workers overwhelmingly agree that they want to form and join a union, their State government says they can’t have one.

That is not fair. We are asking these workers to do much for their communities—the least we can do in return is give them a voice at the table in the life-and-death discussions and decisions that affect their families and their futures. They deserve the opportunity to choose for themselves whether they want the advantages that unions bring.

That is why it is an honor to join Senator GREGG and Senator BURKETT in supporting the Public Safety Employer-Employee Cooperation Act to guarantee that our first responders will have a path they can use to decide if they want a union. If the workers don’t want a union, they don’t have to follow that path. But the State has to make it available and let the workers choose.

It won’t be difficult for States to create this path. All they have to do is provide four basic rights: the right to form and join a union; the right to sit down at the table and talk; the right to sign a contract if both parties agree; and the right to go to a neutral third party when there are disputes.

Apart from these four rights, all the other details of the collective bargaining system are left up to the States. They have the flexibility to decide whether to exempt small communities. They decide how workers can select a union. They can also decide how workers and employers should resolve disputes—through arbitration, mediation, factfinding, or some other mechanism.

This bipartisan bill has been carefully drafted to preserve a balance between the interests of State and local governments and the workers they employ. It has been the product of years of careful negotiations, including a hearing and two markups in the HELP Committee. It was passed by the House of Representatives in the last Congress with an overwhelming bipartisan margin, including 98 Republican votes. No it is time to get it across the finish line and give our dedicated first responders the fair treatment they deserve. It is a matter of fundamental fairness and an urgent matter of public safety.

I commend Senator GREGG for his leadership on this very important issue, and I urge my colleagues to show these heroes the respect they deserve by supporting the Public Safety Employer-Employee Cooperation Act.

By Mr. BENNET:

S. 1613. A bill to reduce the Federal budget deficit in a responsible manner; to the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. BENNET. Mr. President, I cannot tell you how much I appreciated your remarks—I was sitting in the chair and those of Chairman DODD as well. The hour is late. The idea that you would be here at 3:00 to talk about something as important as health care is appreciated, I know, by the people in your State, but also by the people in my State as well. So I say thank you for that.

I also want to talk about health care. I want to talk about health care in the context of fiscal discipline in this country. As you know, our Nation’s annual deficits are staggering, and our
The cost of health insurance is eating into family budgets faster and faster. Over the past decades, premiums for Colorado families, as this chart shows us, have more than doubled, growing four times faster than wage increases. The cost of premiums for a Colorado family in 2005 was $3,000; by 2016, Colorado families will be spending over $25,000 on their premiums, a 90-percent increase. We have come out of a period with an 85-percent increase, and if we do nothing, we are going to end in a period with a 90-percent increase, with no real increase in wages.

Left unaddressed, this imbalance, which is the creation of our catastrophically inefficient health care system, will destroy the middle class in this country. If we do nothing, if we continue on with the status quo, by 2016, just 7 years from now—and I believe these numbers are very similar to the ones you quoted for Rhode Island—by 2016 a typical Colorado family earns will be eaten up by health care costs, leaving just 60 cents for everything else.

Think about it. That is almost half an average family’s income. Money that would otherwise go to feed them or house them, but just to cover the cost of the family health care plan. And that is just paying for coverage. Never mind if you actually get sick.

In 2007, 62 percent of the personal bankruptcies in this country were due to medical costs. Traditionally, most people's employers help pay for cost increases. That has been the case for over many years. But I heard from employers all over Colorado having to make tough choices—cutting back on benefits and laying off more costs to their employees.

In the coming years, copays for Coloradans will go up double digits. More often than not, you can’t get health care plans with higher deductibles, and more employers are getting out of the business of providing health insurance for their employees altogether.

Mr. President, we won’t be able to completely flatten the health care cost curve in the short run, and we should be careful not to overpromise, but we have to make the rising cost of health care something our economy can plausibly absorb.

Part of the solution is reducing waste and curbing overpayments to insurance companies, and part of the answer is encouraging patients to seek preventative care. Small businesses may not see health costs go down immediately, but we sure can slow their rise. And if we have to work hard to make sure they do not rise this quickly. Reforming our health care system could save over 100,000 small business jobs in the coming years that would otherwise be lost if we do nothing.

I agree with bipartisan voices saying that our first health care goal has to be to drive down costs, and we must start with Medicare. As I travel throughout Colorado, I have met countless physicians, nurses, and hospital workers who tell me about the perverse incentives in Medicare. Instead of being paid to spend time with patients and produce better quality care, doctors and nurses are paid for the number of patients they see. They have no incentive to provide the shortest amount of time and the number of procedures they perform. This is no way to produce patient-centered care, and it is no way to reduce cost.

Health care costs are the largest single influence, as you know, the care of the elderly and disabled. As the largest health care program in the United States, Medicare influences every level of health care. Private insurance and employer-based health care look to Medicare as they make decisions on what to pay doctors, nurses, and hospitals. Owing to the perverse incentives in Medicare, however, since 1970—since 1970—every year for almost 40 years, year-in and year-out, Medicare spending per person has been growing by over 5 percent a year. In 2007, Colorado families will go up double digits. More and more small businesses all over my State and working families and businesses in the last 15 years. But I heard from employers all over Colorado having to make tough choices—cutting back on benefits and laying off more costs to their employees.

These business of providing health insurance to the American people that provide affordable, stable health care and make it more efficient, that we will make the health care marketplace more competitive, and that we will help our fiscal situation a great deal, and that is one of the fundamental reasons health care reform is needed. But these decisions we make today matter so much because they will dictate the well-being and range of choices of the generations that follow us.

Sometimes, with the daily hall of press clippings, these issues may seem overly complex, but I like to use a pretty simple analogy. The way we run our government is not different than if you or I were to buy a house—probably a bigger one than we reasonably could afford—and then we tell the bank to please send the mortgage documents to our kids. Imagine how that burden—paying for mom and dad’s house—would constrain our children’s choices. What dreams would they have to defer...
because their first obligation was a debt they didn’t even incur.

My three daughters, ages 9, 8 and 5, have never had an economics class, but I can tell you that as much as they love their mom and dad, if asked, they would do that deal—especially my 5-year-old, Anne. Whether we are taking her blanket away or telling her to stop sucking her thumb or putting a mountain of debt on her, she knows a raw deal when she sees one.

We know that the next generation much more than this, as the chairman, Senator Dodd, was saying. We ought to be able to build on our roles as parents and community leaders to respect our children, come together, and plan America’s way back to fiscal health. The longer we wait, the more difficult the choices become. If we wait 10 years, we will face a massive gap between our spending and the revenue the government collects. If we wait 10 years to take action, we would have to increase income taxes by at least 90 percent to keep pace. That is an unacceptable outcome for Colorado’s families. If you don’t like tax increases, fine, then we would have to slash Federal spending by almost one-half, then massive tax hikes on Medicare, our Nation’s defense, and other critical initiatives that keep our country strong. No one wants to be put in a position to make those kinds of choices either. These outcomes are unacceptable, and we cannot continue this fairy-tale that why inaction is so unacceptable on health care and also on returning to policies of fiscal discipline. It is long past time to put in place the policies that will reverse this condition. And as with any deep hole, the first order of business is to stop digging.

The good news is that we have a tried-and-true way to stop making matters worse. In the 1990s, we had Pay-Go. Pay-Go—collectively forced the shovel from Congress’s hands and made Congress stop digging. Pay-Go means that before Congress can create new spending on permanent programs, it needs to figure out how to pay for that new spending, just as every family in the States we represent.

Pay-Go helped turn 1980s deficits into 1990s surpluses, and we actually began to pay down our debt. Pay-Go is commonsense budgeting. It is not any different than what a family does when its spending gets out of hand. When that bad credit card statement comes in the mail, a parent knows it is time to sit down at the kitchen table and plan how to stop the spending. Pay-Go is what Congress and President Clinton did so that such family decisions when its spending gets out of hand. Pay-Go helps us understand how the government works. Whatever the gross domestic product is in a given year, Congress must limit the deficit to 3 percent of the GDP or less. Economists tell us that a 3 percent deficit is sustainable over time, and that is a reasonably healthy ceiling. Now of course we should push to do better than running a deficit that is 3 percent of GDP. But this is a good starting point at setting a floor and adhering to a budget. We would all clap if the deficits of today—12 or 13 percent of GDP—were 3 percent, and no one would clap louder than our children.

Under my legislation, if Congress failed to meet these deficit control requirements, the government would have to impose an across the board cut called a sequester. Certain programs such as Social Security and veterans programs would not be subject to cuts, but most of the government’s functions would be. The goal, of course, is to avoid this drastic measure by forcing Congress to plan ahead, and forcing Congress to pay attention to the deficit when it makes its spending choices.

Deficit limits make perfect sense during most years. But, as we have learned during this recession, an infusion of public funds can jolt a frozen economy and help turn that economy around. Running temporary deficits can kickstart a stagnant economy. But this only works if during healthy economic times, you also reduce government spending. The deficit limits I am proposing in this legislation would put Congress on a gradual track back to a sustainable fiscal footing.

We should immediately enact budget reform proposals like Pay-Go discretionary spending limits and deficit limitation. Under the Budget Control Act of 2011, the rate at which we accumulate debt will continue to accelerate due to the aging of the population and increased health care costs. As angry as all are with the excessive leverage in the private marketplace over the past decade that contributed to the market crashing, it is also obvious that Washington set a very bad example.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S9015

Let’s put an end to these unsound fiscal practices. Let’s not put our kids in the kind of situation we have inherited. Let’s not make matters even worse, and the policy decisions regarding the national debt even harder for our kids. What we need now is leadership and cooperation; not more shifting costs to our kids. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that if we remain on our current course, the total debt owed by the public will stand at over $7 trillion by the end of fiscal year 2019—only 10 years from today.

The point is that linked with our growing debt are the dreams and the plans of millions of American families. There is nothing fun about tightening our belt and cutting popular programs. I don’t like it any more than anyone else who is here. Yet there are plenty of encouraging signs that this Congress and this President can stand together and do exactly that. Recently, just a couple of weeks ago, the Senate stood with the President for fiscal discipline and slashed nearly $2 billion from an outdated weapons system. That is a good start that I gladly supported. But so much more is left to do.

Coloradans already know we are in a bad way. People in my State are well aware that the excesses in recent years are catching up to us, and they know that Congress and the President have to make hard fiscal choices, reform health care before it eats up our entire budget, and pay for our reform efforts.

This challenging outlook may be just what it takes to bring both political parties to the negotiating table. Paired with Pay-Go, it is my hope that this new legislation can be a real starting point for meaningful fiscal negotiations. It is time we come up with an intelligent framework of fiscal management, that keeps Congress thinking ahead each time it makes a decision, and each time it puts together our annual budget, and each time it is faced with America’s long-term fiscal trajectory.

Washington’s fiscal mess was created over many years, and we won’t solve the problem overnight. But this bill would give Congress and the President a guidepost to make the decisions necessary to get our budget under control. It would set a strong and binding standard for us to act responsibly.

We can’t think of our kids. When I worry about what type of country we will leave my daughters and all of our young people, I know that others who vote differently than I do have the same worries. We owe more to our kids than to leave them a huge national debt and no plan to get out of it.

If we don’t start making difficult decisions soon, we will be limiting our children’s ability to make our country a better place, before they even get started. We will be limiting their ability to invest in education, life-saving scientific research, or new technologies that form the foundation of economic growth. We will be limiting their ability to defend the Nation during future times of war that we can’t even think of today. And we will be limiting their chances of having a quality of life even better than what our parents and grandparents left to us.

If we fail to step up to the plate and pass a fiscally sound health care reform bill, this Congress will be remembered for years to come as the one that let down the country. If we fail—not just to stop digging this deep fiscal hole, but to put a process in place for climbing back up to solid fiscal footing—we will have failed to perform as the stewards of our children’s dreams.

Let’s stand together, with our President and with American families. Let’s get health care reform done responsibly, let’s take action to reduce the deficit and debt, and let’s put this economy back on track.

By Ms. SNOWE:

S. 1615. A bill to amend the Small Business Act and the Small Business Investment Act of 1958 to stop the small business credit crunch, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship.

Ms. SNOWE, Mr. President, the state of small business lending in the United States is bad and dire, as was shown during CIT’s recent color brush with bankruptcy. One area of lending which has historically helped small firms has been Small Business Administration backed lending, but while the SBA traditionally guarantees $20 billion in loans annually, before the passage of the stimulus, new lending this year was on track to fall below $10 billion. In fact, in the first quarter of fiscal year 2009, the number of SBA 7(a) loans dropped by 57 percent when compared with the first quarter of fiscal year 2008.

Last year, to help address the frozen credit market and the drop in SBA lending I introduced the 10 Steps for a Main Street Economic Recovery Act. Many of the provisions in 10 Steps were included in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act and several have already been credited with helping to increase SBA volume. These include fee reductions for 7(a) and 504 loans and allowing for the refinancing of 504 loans. To ensure that SBA lending remains a critical source of capital for small businesses, we must continue to bolster this program and help it to evolve and grow.

In order to maintain this momentum we must take steps to further reform and improve SBA-backed lending. The legislation I am introducing, the Next Step, builds on the 10 Steps for a Main Street Economic Recovery Act and makes the SBA’s lending programs more viable and responsive to the needs of today’s small business borrower.

The Next Step includes provisions that would allow borrowers to take out larger 7(a) and 504 loans up to $5 million. This bill would help satisfy the capital needs of small businesses, looking to start or expand their operations. The bill would also allow for the refinancing of 7(a) loans. Finally, SBA borrowers must have the ability to shop around for SBA backed loans. My legislation would establish an online platform through the SBA that would allow borrowers to compare SBA loan rates and make an informed choice, giving borrowers a chance to save time and money.

These targeted reforms included in the Next Step for Main Street Credit Availability Act of 2009 will help bring SBA lending into the future, make the SBA’s lending programs competitive with private lenders, so we can control the cost of health care, we will have squandered this narrow window of opportunity. If we fail to step up to the plate and pass a fiscally sound health care reform bill, this Congress will be remembered for years to come as the one that let down the country.

I urge my colleagues to support this critical legislation to help improve small business lending.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Next Step for Main Street Credit Availability Act of 2009”.

SEC. 2. MAXIMUM AMOUNTS FOR 7(a) LOANS.

Section 7(a)(3)(A) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(a)(3)(A)) is amended by striking “$1,500,000” and inserting “$50,000”.

SEC. 3. INCREASED LOAN AMOUNTS UNDER 504 PROGRAM.

Section 502(2)(A) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(2)(A)) is amended by striking “$4,000,000 (or if the gross loan amount would exceed $2,000,000” and inserting “$5,500,000”.

SEC. 4. MAXIMUM LOAN AMOUNTS UNDER 504 PROGRAM.

Section 502(2)(A) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(2)(A)) is amended by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”.

SEC. 5. MAXIMUM LOAN LIMITS UNDER MICROLOAN PROGRAM.

Section 7(m) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(m)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(B)(ii), by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”; and

(2) in paragraph (2)(A)(ii), by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”.

SEC. 6. REFINANCING EXISTING LOANS.

(1) TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.—Section 7(a) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“A borrower that has received a loan under this subsection may refinance the balance of the loan by applying for a loan from the lender that made the original loan or with another lender.”.

(2) INCREASED AMOUNT.—Section 7(a) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(a)) is amended by striking “(2) INCREASED” and inserting “(3) INCREASED”.

SEC. 7. MAXIMUM LOAN AMOUNTS UNDER 504 PROGRAM.

Section 502(2)(A) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(2)(A)) is amended—

(1) in clause (i), by striking “$1,500,000” and inserting “$4,000,000”; and

(2) in clause (ii), by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”.

SEC. 8. MAXIMUM LOAN LIMITS UNDER MICROLOAN PROGRAM.

Section 7(m) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(m)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(B)(ii), by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”; and

(2) in paragraph (3)(D), by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”.

(3) in paragraph (1)(B), by striking “$35,000” and inserting “$50,000”.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.
SEC. 6. ONLINE LENDING PLATFORM.

It is the sense of the Congress that the Administrator of the Small Business Administration should establish a website that—

(1) lists each lender that makes loans guaranteed by the Small Business Administration and provides information about the loan rate of each such lender;

(2) allows prospective borrowers—

(A) to compare rates on loans guaranteed by the Small Business Administration; and

(B) to apply online for loans guaranteed by the Small Business Administration.

By Ms. CANTWELL.

S. 9016. A bill to authorize assistance to small- and medium-sized businesses to promote exports to the People’s Republic of China, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the U.S.-China Market Engagement and Export Promotion Act of 2009. For many small- and medium-sized businesses across this country, one of which are in my home State of Washington, getting access to the Chinese market proves difficult at best. However, to establish a foothold in the ever-expanding Chinese market can prove pivotal in achieving financial success. China is a tremendous market for U.S. goods and services. According to the U.S.-China Business Council, despite the global economic downturn, 85 percent of congressional districts increased their exports to China in 2008. In addition, exports to China in almost every congressional district grew more than exports to anywhere else from 2000 to 2008.

In 2008, U.S. total exports to China equaled $337.8 billion. That means our trading balance with China in 2008 was a $260.3 billion deficit. This bill would help States establish export promotion offices in China, some of which are mere footnotes to any larger Chinese business education programs.

I support this bill because of the enormous role that small businesses play in our economy. Small- and medium-sized businesses are a great potential engine of growth. Between 2004 and 2005, small businesses created 78.9 percent of the nation’s net new jobs, and with expanded export opportunities that number will be able to increase in the near future. Considering the huge impact that small- and medium-sized businesses have on our economy, I urge all my colleagues to support this bill and give the business owners the assistance they need to succeed in the Chinese export market.

The U.S.-China Market Engagement and Promotion Act will build the infrastructure necessary to connect American small- and medium-sized businesses with export opportunities in China.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TITLE I—PROGRAMS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

SEC. 101. GRANTS TO STATES TO ESTABLISH AND OPERATE OFFICES TO PROMOTE EXPORTS TO CHINA.

(a) GRANTS AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of Commerce, acting through the Assistant Secretary for Trade Promotion and Director of the United States and Foreign Commercial Service, shall provide grants to States to establish and operate State offices in the People’s Republic of China to provide assistance to United States exporters for the promotion of exports to China, with a particular focus on establishment of offices in locations in addition to Beijing and Shanghai.

(b) AMOUNT.—The amount of a grant under subsection (a) shall be 33 percent of the total costs to establish and operate a State office described in such subsection.

(c) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 270 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Commerce shall promulgate such regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) STATE.—The term “State” has the meaning given the term in section 2301(j)(3) of the Export Enhancement Act of 1988 (15 U.S.C. 4721(j)(3)).

(2) UNITED STATES EXPORTER.—The term “United States exporter” has the meaning given the term in section 2301(j)(5) of the Export Enhancement Act of 1988 (15 U.S.C. 4721(j)(5)).

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Commerce $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2010 through 2014.

(2) AVAILABILITY.—The money appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations under paragraph (1) shall remain available until expended.

SEC. 102. PROGRAM TO ESTABLISH CHINA MARKET ADVOCATE POSITIONS IN UNITED STATES EXPORT ASSISTANCE CENTERS.

(a) PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of Commerce, in the Secretary’s role as chairperson of the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee, shall establish a program to provide comprehensive assistance to small- and medium-sized businesses in the United States for purposes of facilitating exports to China.

(b) CHINA MARKET ADVOCATES.—

(1) TRAINING AUTHORIZED.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Commerce shall create not fewer than 50 China market advocates authorized under this section.

(B) SELECTION PROCESS.—The Secretary shall create a new China Market Advocate Program at U.S. Export Assistance Centers.

(c) SERVICES PROVIDED BY ADVOCATES.—

(1) ASSISTANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary shall provide comprehensive assistance to small- and medium-sized businesses in the United States for purposes of facilitating exports of United States goods to China. Such assistance may include—

(A) assistance to find and utilize Federal and private resources to facilitate entering into the market of China;

(B) continuous direct and personal contact with businesses that have entered the market of China;

(C) assistance to resolve disputes with the Government of the United States or China relating to intellectual property rights violations, export restrictions, and additional trade barriers; and

(D) programs by which China market advocates are trained to provide assistance to United States exporters for the promotion of exports to China, with a particular focus on establishment of offices in locations in addition to Beijing and Shanghai.

(d) SELECTION PROCESS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall make available to eligible small- and medium-sized businesses in the United States for purposes of facilitating exports of United States goods to China, such assistance if the Secretary determines that the small- and medium-sized business meets the following criteria:

(A) the small- and medium-sized business is located in the United States and is engaged in international trade;

(B) the small- and medium-sized business has the financial means and personnel capacity to make use of the services provided by the China market advocate; and

(C) the small- and medium-sized business has the potential to expand its international sales.

The Secretary shall make such determination based on the following:

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Commerce $15,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2010 through 2014.

(2) AVAILABILITY.—The money appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations under paragraph (1) shall remain available until expended.

SEC. 103. ASSISTANCE TO SMALL- AND MEDIUM-SIZED BUSINESSES FOR TRADE MISCELLANEOUS.

(a) ASSISTANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of Commerce, in the Secretary’s role as chairperson of the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee, shall establish a program to provide comprehensive assistance to small- and medium-sized businesses in the United States for purposes of facilitating exports to China.

(b) SELECTION PROCESS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Commerce shall—
(1) develop a transparent and competitive scoring system for selection of small- and medium-sized businesses to receive assistance authorized under subsection (a) that focuses on the feasibility of exporting goods and services to China; and
(2) develop specific criteria for a definition of "business-related expenses", as the term is used in subsection (b), that is compatible with best business practices.

(c) Authorization of Appropriations.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Commerce $2,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2010 through 2014 to carry out this section.

SEC. 104. PLAN TO CONSOLIDATE FEES FOR GOLD KEY MATCHING SERVICES IN CHINA.

(a) Plan Required.—As soon as is practicable after the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Commerce, acting through the Assistant Secretary for Trade Promotion and Director of the United States and Foreign Commercial Service, shall submit to Congress a plan to consolidate fees charged by the Department of Commerce for Gold Key matching services provided to small and medium-sized businesses that export goods or services produced in the United States to more than one market in China.

(b) Gold Key Matching Services Defined.—In this section, the term "Gold Key matching services" means the Gold Key Service program of the Department of Commerce and includes—
(1) the arrangement of business meetings with pre-screened contacts, representatives, distributors, professional associations, government contacts, or licensing or joint venture partners in a foreign country;
(2) customized market and industry briefings with trade specialists of the Department of Commerce;
(3) timely and relevant market research;
(4) appointments with prospective trade partners in key industry sectors;
(5) post-meeting debriefing with trade specialists of the Department of Commerce and assistance in developing appropriate follow-up strategies; and
(6) assistance with travel, accommodations, interpreter service, and clerical support.

TITLe II—PROGRAmS OF THE SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 201. TRADE OUTREACH AT THE OFFICE OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE OF THE SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION.

Section 201 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 649) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(h) Promotion of Exports to China.—The Office shall provide strategic guidance to small business concerns with respect to exporting goods and services to China.

(1) Director of China Program Grants.—
"(I) IN GENERAL.—There shall be in the Office a Director of China Program Grants (in this section referred to as "the Director").

(2) Appointment.—The Director shall be appointed by the Administrator and shall be an individual with demonstrated successful experience in matters relating to international trade and administering government contracts.

(3) Rate of Pay.—The Director shall be paid at a rate equal to or greater than the rate of basic pay for grade GS-14 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code.

(4) Duties.—The Director shall be responsible for administering the grant program authorized under section 202 of the United States-China Market Engagement and Export Promotion Act (relating to Chinese business education programs) and any other similar or related program of the Office.

SEC. 202. GRANTS FOR CHINESE BUSINESS EDUCATION PROGRAMS.

(a) Grants Authorized.—The Administrator of the Small Business Administration, acting through the Director of China Program Grants in the Office of International Trade, shall make grants to institutions of higher education, and other institutions of such business education, to pay the Federal share of the cost of planning, establishing, and operating education programs described in subsection (b).

(b) Education Programs Described.—Education programs described in this subsection are academic programs of study relating to business in China, including undergraduate and graduate level degrees, courses, or seminars on—
(1) the economy of China;
(2) trade and commerce in China;
(3) new and expanding export opportunities for United States small business concerns in China; and
(4) the economic, commerce, and trade relations between the United States and China.

(c) Application.—A small business concern may apply for a grant described in subsection (b) if the small business concern demonstrates a true understanding of the China business environment.

(d) Duration of Grants.—A grant under this section shall be for an initial period not to exceed 2 years. The Director of China Program Grants may renew such grant for additional 2-year periods.

(e) Federal Share.—(1) Federal share.—The Federal share of the cost of an education program described in subsection (b) shall not exceed 50 percent of the cost of such program.

(2) Non-Federal Share.—The non-Federal share of the cost of an education program described in subsection (b) may be provided either in cash or in-kind.

(f) Definition.—In this section, the term "institution of higher education" has the meaning given the term in section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001).

By Mr. DODD (for himself, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. MERKLEY, Mr. BENNET, Mr. AKAKA, and Mr. SCHUMER): S. 1619. A bill to establish the Office of Sustainable Housing and Communities, to establish the Interagency Council on Sustainable Communities, to establish a comprehensive planning grant program, to establish a sustainability challenge grant program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Livable Communities Act.

Our communities are growing and changing. And the way we plan for their futures needs to evolve, as well. At stake is whether or not we will be able to enjoy the places where we live and work without excessive traffic, skyrocketing fuel costs, and sprawl development patterns that eat up our open space.

As our communities grow, people are living farther from jobs, commuting longer distances on more crowded roadways, paying more at the pump at a time when family budgets are stretched thin and putting more greenhouse gases into the air at a time when climate change has emerged as an urgent threat.

We are losing our rural land and open spaces. Transportation costs are making housing less affordable. Even though our communities are growing in size, we are losing the community spirit that makes American towns and cities so great.

It is clear that current trends simply cannot continue.

Sustainable development will cut down on the traffic that has long plagued my home State of Connecticut and connect people with good-paying jobs. Done right, it will protect the environment and help us meet energy goals; protect rural areas and green spaces; revitalize our Main Streets and urban centers; create and preserve affordable housing; and make our communities better places to live, work, and raise families.

Is this even sustainable development or is it a transportation issue? An energy issue? A housing issue? An environmental issue?

The answer, of course, is "all of the above," and unfortunately, that tends to short some circuits here in Washington. Our policy has long been stovepiped within the various agencies responsible for each of the issues affected by planning and development.

In February, I wrote a letter to President Obama urging him to establish a White House Office of Sustainable Development to coordinate housing, transportation, energy, and environmental policies.

I felt confident I would find a partner in the White House. The President has been a strong leader on these issues, and he has shown a willingness to shake up a Federal Government that hasn’t always succeeded when it comes to thinking outside the box and addressing related issues in a comprehensive, effective way.

Sure enough, last month I brought together Secretary of Transportation Ray LaHood, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Shaun Donovan, and Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lisa Jackson at a Banking Committee hearing—three public servants who don’t often find themselves in the same hearing room at the same time.

They brought with them a pledge that the administration would work across agency lines to take a holistic look at development policy—and a firm commitment to livability principles that would serve as the foundation for that policy going forward.

The administration’s principles demonstrate a true understanding of the best way forward.

Sustainable development, as grounded in these principles, provides more transportation choices for families, expands access to affordable housing, enhances economic competitiveness by...
connecting families with jobs and services, targets funding towards existing communities to spur revitalization and protect our open spaces, values the unique character of both our cities and our small towns, and improves collaboration between different government agencies to better leverage our investments.

As Secretary LaHood said at the hearing, we are now all working off the same playbook. But now it is time to snap the ball and move down the field. Last month the White House announced the selection of Shelley Poticha to head up these efforts. If the Livable Communities Act becomes law, as I hope it will, Ms. Poticha will head a new HUD Office of Sustainable Housing and Communities.

This new office will serve as a clearinghouse for best practices, so that successful initiatives can be easily replicated. And it will give HUD Secretary Donovan, Deputy Secretary Ron Sims, and POTIC the tools and authority they need to really dig in and become a partner to our communities in creating a sustainable future.

One successful play from our playbook could be modeled after a project in my home State of Connecticut. It links housing and transportation policy, encourages smart land use, generates economic growth, and will reduce our carbon footprint around what’s known as the Tri-City Corridor in Connecticut. This proposal would provide commuter and 110-mile-per-hour intercity rail service between New Haven, Hartford, and Springfield, MA, and feature 12 stops, creating “transit villages” and revitalizing local economies.

Already, we are seeing how this proposed service is serving as a catalyst: attracting new business, commuters, and residents, and transforming struggling local economies.

Another success story is Meriden, a small city of nearly 60,000 residents located roughly halfway between New Haven and Hartford. In anticipation of a commuter stop on the rail line, the city would like to transform 15 acres of brownfields into new commercial and residential developments, including a public green that doubles as a flood buffer.

Imminently north of that site is the Mills Memorial public housing complex, providing 140 units of affordable housing to low-income residents.

By linking transit, housing, and commercial planning, the city of Meriden will be able to transform its downtown into a bustling economic center ready to support a wide range of residents.

The vision of Meriden and so many communities throughout the country needs the support and planning tools to take these initiatives from idea to action.

So, today, I offer for your consideration legislation that encourages communities across the country to begin planning for more prosperous and livable futures.

In addition to creating the new HUD Office of Sustainable Housing and Communities I mentioned earlier, this bill creates a competitive grant program that States and localities can use to better integrate transportation, housing, land use, and economic development when making long-term planning decisions.

In addition, it provides funding for communities to implement these comprehensive regional plans through a challenge grant program. This program will focus on public transit, affordable housing, complete streets, transit-oriented development, and redeveloping brownfields.

Finally, this bill creates an Interagency Council on Sustainable Communities to break down the “stovepiping” that exists within the Federal Government and coordinate Federal policies to encourage sustainable development. In my mind, the State of Connecticut, integrated planning and sustainable development is critical to growing stronger communities.

We have a state-level program called HOMEConnecticut that provides grants to promote Incentive Housing Zones. In the same way that States and towns have either applied for grants or already received them, The investment will pay off in affordable homes, good jobs, and more livable communities.

Like bragging on Connecticut, but I would love to see this success replicated in communities around the Nation. The Obama administration has already signaled its commitment to encouraging sustainable development and helping local authorities build a better future. It is time for us to do the same. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this important legislation.

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. KERRY, and Mr. LUGAR):

S. 1620, A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide tax incentives and fees for increasing motor vehicle fuel economy, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, as the success of the Cash for Clunkers Program that we are working to extend today makes clear, there is substantial interest among consumers in upgrading the fuel efficiency of their vehicles. In fact, maybe the most surprising thing about the program has been the higher-than-expected appetite by consumers for the most fuel-efficient vehicles.

It is an encouraging sign, but it remains surprising because it is extraordinarily difficult for a consumer to take in the full benefits, or costs, of fuel economy. The value of fuel efficiency depends on the unknowable fact of what the price of gasoline is likely to be in future years as well as requiring a calculation to make and apples-to-apples comparison of the costs of ownership at different efficiency levels. This explains why study after study demonstrates that consumers don’t fully account for the fuel economy of their vehicles when making buying decisions. Decisions that many people regretted making only a few years earlier as gas prices climbed near $4 per gallon last fall.

This isn’t only a problem for consumers. Improving the fuel economy of a vehicle requires significant engineering and new technologies, often adding hundreds or thousands to the manufacturer price of a vehicle; costs consumers have proved unwilling to bear. Faced with this reality, and the uncertainty of recovering their costs from consumers who are unsure of the value of fuel efficiency, car makers have generally thought it is in their best business interests to meet the fuel economy requirements of CAFE and consumers sort out the best vehicles, they are faced with giving up a cost advantage to their competitors investing in new technologies.

For this reason, and to attempt to take into account the very real costs in oil and climate insecurity by our undervaluation of efficiency, Congress has put in a series of incentives to support our climate and energy goals and enhance our economic competitiveness. For this reason, and to go further than the CAFE requirements and produce more efficient vehicles, they are faced with giving up a cost advantage to their competitors.

Although I support these investments to increase our competitiveness in the clean energy technology manufacturing race, unless the domestic market is large enough, the infrastructure will not support them over the long term, they simply won’t be enough. I believe the best path to both support our climate and energy goals and enhance our economic competitiveness is to create a set of clear technology-neutral incentives that can achieve our goals and then let the market and consumers sort out the best technologies.

The Efficient Vehicle Leadership Act of 2009 that I am introducing today will support our climate and energy goals and enhance our economic competitiveness. For this reason, and to attempt to take into account the very real costs in oil and climate insecurity by our undervaluation of efficiency, Congress has put in a series of incentives to support our climate and energy goals and enhance our economic competitiveness. less fuel-efficient a vehicle is relative to the CAFE standard. The CAFE standard is based on the size, or “footprint”—the interior dimensions of the four wheels of the motor vehicle, so each vehicle would compete with other vehicles of a similar size. The CAFE standard also allows them to net out, making the overall system revenue neutral and providing a continuing incentive each subsequent year. Thus, the purchasers of fuel efficiency laggards for each size pay to make the most fuel-efficient equivalent vehicles more affordable. The rebate amount must appear on the fuel efficiency sticker and consumers can choose if they want to receive their rebate directly in their tax returns or they can transfer the credit to dealer, as long as the dealer has given them the rebate to the consumer at the point of purchase.

In sum, this bill provides a long-term structure for the automotive sector that provides certainty to manufacturers that the technologies that they must employ to meet the new fuel efficiency requirements will be valued by consumers and, beyond that, rewards and incentivizes innovation in vehicle efficiency to go beyond the CAFE requirements. The technological advancement of the auto industry will be harnessed, with no net impact on safety or comfort, and without distorting the marketplace. Consumers would benefit for years to come from a smaller hit on their wallet at the pump. The United States would benefit overall as we began to curb our appetite for oil.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1620
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; AMENDMENT OF 1986 CODE.
(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Efficient Vehicle Leadership Act of 2009”.
(b) AMENDMENT OF 1986 CODE.—Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 2. TAX CREDIT FOR FUEL-EFFICIENT MOTOR VEHICLES.
(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart B of part IV of subsection A of chapter 1 (relating to other business credits) is amended by inserting after section 30D the following new section:

"SEC. 30E. FUEL PERFORMANCE REBATE."

"(1) IN GENERAL.—There shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year an amount equal to the amount determined under paragraph (2) with respect to any qualified fuel-efficient motor vehicle placed in service by the taxpayer during such taxable year.

"(2) CREDIT AMOUNT.—With respect to each new qualified fuel-efficient motor vehicle, the amount determined under this paragraph shall be:

"(A) the absolute value of the difference between the fuel-economy rating and the reference fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle for the model year, and

"(B) 100, and

"(C) the applicable amount.

"(3) APPLICABLE AMOUNT.—For purposes of paragraph (2)(C), the applicable amount is equal to—

"(A) in the case of model year 2011—

"(i) $1,000, or

"(ii) $2,000, if the fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle is at least 50 percent more efficient than the reference fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle as determined under paragraph (2)(A), and

"(B) in the case of any succeeding model year—

"(i) $1,500, or

"(iii) $3,500, if the fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle is at least 75 percent more efficient than the reference fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle as determined under paragraph (2)(A).

"(b) NEW QUALIFIED FUEL-EFFICIENT MOTOR VEHICLE.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘new qualified fuel-efficient motor vehicle’ means a passenger automobile or light truck—

"(1) which is treated as a vehicle for purposes of title II of the Clean Air Act,

"(2) which achieves a fuel-economy rating that is more efficient than the reference fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle for the model year,

"(3) for which standards are prescribed pursuant to section 32902 of title 49, United States Code.

"(4) the original use of which commences before the beginning of the first taxable year to which such credit is allowed under this section.

"(5) which is acquired for use or lease by the taxpayer and not for resale,

"(6) which is required for use or lease by the taxpayer and not for resale,

"(7) which is manufactured by a person who has at least 4 wheels.

"(8) which has been constructed pursuant to section 32902 of title 49, United States Code.

"(9) which is sold for use in the United States.

"(10) which is not eligible for any credit under section 331 for any purpose.

"(11) with respect to which the basis of any property for which such credit is allowable under this section—

"(A) may not claim such credit unless such property is eligible for such credit under section 331;

"(B) the basis of any property for which such credit is allowable under this section shall be reduced by the amount of such credit allowed under such section.

"(b) SPECIAL RULES.—

"(1) BUSINESS CREDIT TREATED AS PART OF OTHER CREDITS.—

"(2) ALLOWANCE OF CREDIT.—Any transfer under clause (i) is claimed once and not retransferred by a transferee.

"(3) NON-DOUBLE BENEFIT.—

"(4) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(A) BUSINESS CREDIT.—The term ‘business credit’ means a credit allowable under section 331 for a qualified motor vehicle placed in service during the taxable year.

"(B) REFERENCE.—The term ‘model year’ means a year for which the term is used in section 331(b)(2).
under subsection (a) with respect to such vehicle (determined without regard to section (c)). For purposes of subsection (c), property to which this paragraph applies shall be treated as of a character subject to an allowance for depreciation.

"4) PROPERTY USED OUTSIDE UNITED STATES, ETC., NOT QUALIFIED.–No credit shall be allowed under subsection (a) with respect to any property referred to in section 50(b)(1) or with respect to the portion of the cost of any property taken into account under section 50(b)(1).

"5) RECAPTURE.—The Secretary shall, by regulations, provide for recapturing the benefit享受ed under subsection (a) with respect to any property which ceases to be property eligible for such credit (including recapture in the case of a lease period of less than the economic life of a vehicle).

"6) ELECTION NOT TO TAKE CREDIT.—No credit shall be allowed under subsection (a) for any vehicle if the taxpayer elects to not have this section apply to such vehicle.

"7) INTERACTION WITH AIR QUALITY AND MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARDS.—A motor vehicle shall not be considered eligible for a credit under this section unless such vehicle is in compliance with—

(a) the applicable provisions of the Clean Air Act as applicable make and model year of the vehicle (or applicable air quality provisions of State law in the case of a State which has adopted such provisions under a waiver under section 209(b) of the Clean Air Act), and

(b) the motor vehicle safety provisions of sections 301 through 30109 of title 49, United States Code.

"8) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.—In the case of any model year beginning in a calendar year after 2010, the amount in subsection (a)(3)(B) shall be increased by an amount equal to—

(A) such dollar amount, multiplied by

(B) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for the calendar year in which the model year begins, determined by substituting '2009' for '1992' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

Any increase determined under the preceding sentence shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $100.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

"1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the Secretary shall promulgate such regulations as necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

"2) COORDINATION IN PRESCRIPTION OF CERTAIN REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of the Treasury, in coordination with the Secretary of Transportation and the Administrator of the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall prescribe such regulations as necessary to determine whether a motor vehicle meets the requirements to be eligible for a credit under this section.

(b) CREDIT ALLOWED AGAINST ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX.—

(1) BUSINESS CREDIT.—Section 38(c)(4)(B) is amended by redesignating clauses (i) through (viii) as clauses (ii) through (ix), respectively, and by inserting before clause (i) (as so redesignated) the following new clause:

(i) the credit determined under section 30D.

(2) PERSONAL CREDIT.—

(A) Section 26(b)(3)(B) is amended by striking "and 30D" and inserting "30D, and 30E".

(B) Section 25(e)(1)(C)(ii) is amended by inserting "and including 30D, and 30E" after subparagraph (F) and (G), and

(C) Section 25B(g)(2) is amended by striking "and 30D" and inserting "30D, and 30E".

(D) Section 26a(a) is amended by striking "and including 30D, and 30E".

(E) Section 904(b) is amended by striking "and 30D" and inserting "30D, and 30E".

(3) CHILD CREDIT.—

(A) Section 25C(c)(1)(B) is amended by striking "(except under section 30E)".

(B) Section 1706(b)(4) is amended by striking "and 30D, and 30E".

(C) Section 1706(b)(5) is amended by striking "and 30D, and 30E".

(D) Section 25A(c)(1)(C)(ii) is amended by striking "and including 30D, and 30E".

(2)Display of Credit.—Section 32908(b)(1) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subparagraphs (E) and (F) as subparagraphs (F) and (G), and

(2) by inserting after subparagraph (D) the following new subparagraph:

"(E) the amount of the fuel-efficient motor vehicle credit allowable with respect to the sale of such vehicle under section 30E of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 30E)."

(4) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 38(a) is amended by striking "plus" at the end of paragraph (34), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (35) and inserting a period, and, by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(36) the portion of the fuel performance rebate to which section 30E(c)(1) applies.".

(2) Section 1018(a) is amended by striking "motor" at the end of paragraph (30), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (37) and inserting ", and", and, by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(38) to the extent provided in section 30E(c)(1).

(3) Section 6501(m) is amended by inserting "30E(e)(1)" after "30D(a)".

(4) The heading for section 30D of this Act is amended by striking "Provision of section 30E of chapter I of this title is amended—

(a) IMPOSITION OF TAX.—

(1) In General.—The term 'fuel guzzler motor vehicle' shall be treated as of a character subject to tax under subsection (a) with respect to such vehicle, with a period of less than the economic life of a vehicle, the combined fuel-economy rating for such motor vehicle, expressed in gallons per mile, determined in accordance with section 32904 of title 49, United States Code.

(2) Model Year.—The term 'model year' has the meaning given such term under section 30D(a) of such title.

(3) Motor Vehicle.—The term 'motor vehicle' means any vehicle which is manufactured primarily for use on public streets, roads, and highways (not including a vehicle operated exclusively on a rail or roads) and which has at least 4 wheels.

(4) REFERENCE FUEL-ECONOMY RATING.—

The term "reference fuel-economy rating" means, with respect to any motor vehicle, the fuel economy standard for such motor vehicle, expressed in gallons per mile, in accordance with such term as defined in regulations prescribed by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency for purposes of the administration of title II of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7521 et seq.).

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—In the case of any model year beginning in a calendar year after 2010, each dollar amount in subsection (a)(2) shall be increased by an amount equal to—

(1) such dollar amount, multiplied by

(2) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for the calendar year in which the model year begins, determined by substituting '2009' for '1992' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

Any increase determined under the preceding sentence shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $100.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) The heading for part I of chapter A of section 32 is amended by striking "GAS" and inserting "FUEL".

(2) The table of parts for chapter A of title 42 is amended by striking "GAS" in the item relating to chapter A and inserting "FUEL".

(3) The table of sections for part I of chapter A of title 42 is amended by striking "Gas" in the item relating to section 4061 and inserting "Fuel".

(4) The heading for subsection (d) of section 4061 is amended by striking "gas" and inserting "fuel".

(b) Fuel Guzzler Motor Vehicle.—

For purposes of this section—

(1) In General.—The term 'fuel guzzler motor vehicle' means any vehicle which is manufactured primarily for use on public streets, roads, and highways (not including a vehicle operated exclusively on a rail or roads) and which has at least 4 wheels.

(2) Exception for Emergency Vehicles.—The term 'fuel guzzler motor vehicle' does not include any vehicle sold for use and operated exclusively on a rail or roads.

By Mr. SANDERS (for himself and Mr. MERKLIN):
S. 1621. A bill to improve thermal energy efficiency and use, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, today I am pleased to introduce the Thermal Energy Efficiency Act, which I believe can play an important role in moving our Nation toward green job creation and greenhouse gas emissions reductions. I thank Senator MERKLEY for being an original co-sponsor on this bill. I also thank the International District Energy Association, the Biomass Energy Resource Center, the American Council for an Energy-Efficient Economy, Sustainable Northwest, and the U.S. Clean Heat and Power Association for working with us to ensure that as we consider comprehensive global warming legislation, we do not forget about energy efficiency and thermal energy.

This legislation addresses two ways of producing and distributing thermal energy, which is a technical term for heat. The legislation focuses on combined heat and power and district energy. Combined heat and power means that one source of energy can produce electricity and then capture and use the resultant heat for a second purpose: heating or location but for multiple locations. Combined heat and power gets both heat and power from one energy source and can work with fossil fuels or biomass or even waste. Combined heat and power can offer huge efficiency gains and lower carbon footprints for our powerplants.

District energy can be used together with combined heat and power, or separately from it, in systems designed purely for district heating. District heating does is use heat not just for one building or location but for multiple locations. Just as homes or businesses share electric lines or telephone lines, they can also share a heat source. And sharing a heat source can often be a major source of efficiency.

For too long, Federal energy policy has not focused enough on thermal energy or energy efficiency. We know we can do more. According to the Department of Energy, combined heat and power represents roughly 9 percent of our existing electric power capacity today, but if we moved to 20 percent by 2030, we could avoid 60 percent of the projected growth in carbon dioxide emissions in this country, equivalent to taking more than half of the current passenger vehicles off the road in the United States. Additionally, we could create 1 million new jobs and generate $234 billion in new investments.

We are talking about real technology that is already today. In Copenhagen, district energy provides clean heating to 97 percent of the city. In our own country, in St. Paul, MN, district energy and combined heat and power provide 65 megawatts of thermal energy and 25 megawatts of electricity from renewable urban wood waste. Jamestown, NY, started their district heating project in 1981, and today the system provides 16 megawatts of thermal energy. The public school district uses district energy and has saved more than 16 percent of their energy use over a 30-month period and saved more than $500,000 dollars for taxpayers in the process.

We have other opportunities to expand this technology all over our Nation. For example, in my home State of Vermont, several of our cities and towns are looking at district energy. In Burlington, VT, we have 50 megawatt powerplant that uses wood chips and wood waste for power. Yet approximately 60 percent of the energy produced by this plant is lost as wasted heat. This is typical of many conventional power plants. If Burlington implemented district energy, it could use the wasted thermal energy to heat and cool many buildings downtown. The hurdle for Burlington, and many cities and towns, is the upfront capital investment required to build a district energy system.

That is why today I am introducing the Thermal Energy Efficiency Act. We need a stable, long-term funding source for district energy and combined heat and power. This bill would use 2 percent of the revenues derived from auctioning emissions under global warming legislation to support hospitals, cities and towns, schools and universities, businesses and industries, and even Federal facilities and military bases as they implement efficient thermal energy systems.

This bill would recognize the important role that efficiency and thermal energy can play in helping our Nation meet our energy security, emissions reduction, and economic goals. As a member of both the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and the Environment and Public Works Committee, I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure that combined heat and power and district energy are included in comprehensive energy and global warming legislation.

By Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself, Mr. DODD, and Mr. MENENDEZ):

S. 1623. A bill to prohibit the Secretary of the Interior from issuing new Federal oil and gas leases to holders of existing oil and gas leases who do not diligently develop their existing Federal leases, or who have to first give up those leases. Last fall, the Government Accountability Office issued a report, "Oil and Gas Leasing: Interior Could Do More to Encourage Diligent Development," that looked at whether enough is being done to ensure oil companies are taking steps to develop Federal oil and gas leases. The report found that the Department of the Interior—whose Minerals Management Service manages offshore leases and Bureau of Land Management manages onshore and National Petroleum Reserve leases—lags behind State and private landowner efforts to develop Federal lands that are leased for oil and gas development. The GAO recommends that the Secretary of the Interior “develop a strategy to evaluate options to encourage faster development of its oil and gas leases.” Though both MMS and BLM require “reasonable diligence” in developing and producing oil and gas on Federal leases, the GAO found that the Interior Department has not clearly defined what activities or timeframes concessionaire must achieve to meet their diligence requirements, and that my bill requires that the agencies carefully consider the timing and management of their programs. The GAO concludes that leaseholders, in general, are not required to take actions to develop a... lease during the primary term. The only specific diligent development requirement that Interior officials identified to the GAO applies only to lessees of 8-year leases in the Gulf of Mexico and requires drilling to occur before the end of the fifth year or else the lease is extinguished from the lease. These leases represent less than 1 percent of the total lease universe. In addition to the GAO evaluation, the Department of the Interior’s Office of the Inspector General issued a report in February 2009 on its investigation of whether oil and gas companies were adequately developing Federal leases and whether the Department of the Interior was ensuring companies bring their leases into production. The inspector general concluded that, while there is no guarantee that a particular lease contains oil and gas in commercial quantities, there are no requirements to ensure lessees are taking steps to reach this conclusion and to ensure development of lease acquisition saleable production. Specifically, the inspector general found there are no requirements for the Department to monitor production progress or compel companies to develop leases and there is no requirement to detail activity on nonproducing leases. My bill will ensure the Federal Government develops diligent development requirements for oil and gas leases.

With over 100 billion barrels of oil under Federal lands and 20 years of lease expiration, there are leases available for leasing. Congress must properly encourage their development. This won’t solve our energy problems—the unfortunate truth is that in today’s global market, gas prices are dictated less by the market in the United States and more by OPEC’s actions. Nevertheless, Congress must ensure appropriate oversight of our Federally leased lands and waters, as we simultaneously reduce our dependence on foreign oil through continued leadership in clean and renewable energy production, decreasing our demand of oil and gas since we are the No. 1 consumer of both in the world, and pursuing alternative energy sources especially in the transportation sector.

By Mr. WHITEHOUSE: S. 1624. A bill to amend title 11 of the United States Code, to provide protections for medical debt homeowners, to restore diligent development protections for individuals experiencing economic distress as caregivers to ill, injured, or disabled family members, and to exempt from means testing debtors whose financial problems were caused by serious medical problems, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary. Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that would help families struggling with medical debts overcome hurdles that under current law make it difficult for them to find relief in the bankruptcy system. With medical costs at an all-time high and the unemployment rate hovering near 10 percent nationwide—and 12.4 percent in my home State of Rhode Island—too many individuals and families struck with injury and illness have no other option but to file for bankruptcy. According to a recent Harvard University study, health care-related costs have been the primary driver of personal bankruptcy filings, contributing to over 62 percent of filings in 2007. The statistics are as shocking as the personal stories, and unsurprising: Countless Rhode Islanders have written to me during my time in office asking for help with crippling medical costs, and I want to share just two of their stories with you today.

Adam, a 25-year-old from Bristol, recently underwent surgery for cancer. Adam’s treatment plan requires him to undergo a CT scan every 2 months. While his insurance initially paid for his health costs, he received word not long after his surgery that his policy had been cancelled and he would have to pay $6,700 out of pocket for an upcoming CT scan. As of today, Adam, a young man just starting his adult life, has $20,000 in medical debt and reports that he “cannot see any light at the end of the tunnel.”

Robert, a veteran and retiree also from Warwick, suffered a major heart attack in November of 2004. Although he had health insurance, Robert was responsible for paying a $2,000 deductible plus 20 percent of the cost of his care. After 40 years of working and saving, these medical costs wiped him out, and he had to sell his home.

Adam and Robert have both suffered unexpected medical costs that have turned their lives upside down. These Rhode Islanders, like millions of others nationwide, may be forced to file for bankruptcy to get a clean start—but when they do, they will learn that the bankruptcy process can be time consuming, costly, and ultimately may not allow them to stay in their homes.

The legislation that I am introducing today, the Medical Bankruptcy Fairness Act of 2009, would help people who because of medical costs have no other choice but to file for bankruptcy. The bill would waive procedural hurdles so that Adam and Robert would have the option of a speedier, less expensive, and more efficient bankruptcy. To begin with, it would waive credit counseling requirements for debtors; and exempt from means testing debtors whose financial problems were caused by serious medical problems, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Education, Labor, and Pensions. Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I wish to speak about poverty and, specifically, how we measure it and its influence on millions of Americans.

When we return from the August recess, the Census Bureau will release its annual report documenting the number of Americans living in poverty. But these numbers will provide a flawed picture of poverty in America since they are based almost exclusively on 50-year-old food prices. The bill I am introducing—the Michigan American Poverty Act, or MAP, Act—directs the Census to develop a new poverty measure that is based on a more comprehensive definition of need. Improving the poverty measure is not just an academic exercise for statisticians, it is essential in helping us identify and implement effective policies that address this crisis.

Even with an inaccurate measurement, the picture of poverty in America is startling. In 2007, the year for which we have the most recent data, one in eight Americans—and nearly one in five children—didn’t have the resources to meet their basic needs: food, clothing, and shelter. Think about that. One in five children in America in 2007 went to bed without even the most basic elements that we take for granted. In my home State of Connecticut, more than 85,000 kids lived in poverty. And that was before the economic downturn in which we now find ourselves.

The poverty threshold was created by the 1960s Food and Shelter Task Force of the President’s Commission on Income Maintenance Programs in the United States. It is one of three measures—the income measure and the poverty threshold—are flawed. It is a simple calculation. But unfortunately both elements—the income measure and the threshold—are flawed.

The poverty threshold was created using data from the 1950s and 1960s. Currently, it is calculated by taking the 1950s cost of emergency foodstuffs—food only for temporary use when funds are low—and multiplying that number by three because in the 1960s, food represented one-third of a family budget. But today, food represents one-sixth or one-seventh of a family’s budget. Similarly, a family’s cash income before taxes was once an accurate and straightforward way to measure a family’s resources. But today, many Americans are subject to both State and Federal income taxes and may face exorbitant health costs or other critical needs which drain their resources. In addition, many work outside the home, meaning they now need pay for childcare and for getting to and from work.

And on the other side of the ledger, we now provide many benefits to low income workers that are not cash payments—they are provided through our Tax Code, or like energy assistance programs, paid directly to providers. I have fought throughout my career for programs that lift people out of poverty. Think of the earned-income tax credit, food stamps, section 8 housing vouchers, and tax credits such as the earned-income tax credit. Let me be very clear: this isn’t a bill to change eligibility for programs or the allocation of Federal funds. In fact, the bill’s text is explicit about that. The MAP Act creates a new measurement. It does not replace the Federal Poverty Line. It does not change eligibility for programs. It will not lead to an unprecedented automatic increase in spending.

What the MAP Act will do is help us understand the scope of the poverty crisis in America, and to better evaluate the effectiveness of our solutions to it. We have a difficult job ahead of us, to determine if the current poverty measurement system accurately measures poverty. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this legislation.

By Mr. HARKIN.

S. 1472. A bill to improve choices for consumers for vehicles and fuel, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, our national energy situation continues to deteriorate as gasoline prices threaten our economy, and our oil imports are responsible for an incredibly large wealth transfer... from America to global oil producers. Our most immediate and visible energy challenge is our dependence on petroleum-derived fuels for transportation, but we also face the need to reduce the greenhouse gases that result principally from fossil fuel production and use. Recognizing that our global warming challenge is fundamentally linked to our energy systems, their resolution has a common strategy—to transform our energy sector to one far less dependent on fossil fuels and far more reliant on energy efficiency and domestic renewable energy supplies. This energy transformation strategy also represents a crucial economic recovery and development opportunity because millions of jobs will be created as we carry out this strategy.

Americans recognize the magnitude and the urgency of our energy challenges. They rightfully expect us to adopt policies to move this energy transition forward. In particular, we need to reduce dependence on oil in transportation, and we have broad agreement on two fundamental approaches—increasing efficiency of vehicles and increasing use of alternative fuels. We mandated more efficient vehicles by passing the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007, EISA. That bill also mandates a brisk expansion of biofuels production under the renewable fuels standard. However, we also need to expand the number of vehicles that can use these alternative fuels and the number of filling stations selling these biofuels.

Today I am joined by my esteemed colleague, Senator LUGAR of Indiana, selling these biofuels.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(c) RULEMAKING.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation shall prescribe regulations to carry out the amendments made by this Act.

SEC. 3. BLENDER PUMP PROMOTION.

(a) BLENDER PUMP GRANT PROGRAM.—

(1) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection—

(A) BLENDER PUMP.—The term “blender pump” means an automotive fuel dispensing pump capable of dispensing at least 3 different blends of gasoline and ethanol, as selected by the pump operator, including blends ranging from 0 percent ethanol to 85 percent denatured ethanol, as determined by the Secretary.

(B) E-85 FUEL.—The term “E-85 fuel” means a blend of gasoline approximately 85 percent ethanol, with the minimum of 90 percent and the maximum of 85 percent of the content of which is denatured ethanol.

(C) ETHANOL FUEL BLEND.—The term “ethanol fuel blend” means a blend of gasoline and ethanol, with a minimum of 9 percent and a maximum of 85 percent of the content of which is denatured ethanol.

(D) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Energy.

(2) GRANTS.—The Secretary shall make grants under this subsection to eligible facilities (as determined by the Secretary) to promote the Federal share of—

(A) installing blender pump fuel infrastructure, including infrastructure necessary—

(i) for the direct retail sale of ethanol fuel blends (including E-85 fuel) to consumers, including blender pumps and storage tanks; and

(ii) to directly market ethanol fuel blends (including E-85 fuel) to gas stations; including blender pumps and storage tanks, and loadout equipment; and

(B) providing subgrants to direct retailers of ethanol fuel blends (including E-85 fuel) for the purpose of installing fuel infrastructure for the direct retail sale of ethanol fuel blends (including E-85 fuel), including blender pumps and storage tanks, and loadout equipment.

(FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share of the cost of a project carried out under this subsection shall be 50 percent of the total cost of the project.

(4) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary to carry out this subsection to remain available until expended—

(A) $50,000,000 for fiscal year 2010;

(B) $100,000,000 for fiscal year 2011;

(C) $200,000,000 for fiscal year 2012;

(D) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 2013; and

(E) $500,000,000 for fiscal year 2014.

(b) INSTALLATION OF BLENDER PUMPS BY MAJOR FUEL DISTRIBUTORS AT OWNED STATIONS AND BRANDED STATIONS.—Section 211(o) of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7545(o)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(13) INSTALLATION OF BLENDER PUMPS BY MAJOR FUEL DISTRIBUTORS AT OWNED STATIONS AND BRANDED STATIONS.—

(A) DEFINITIONS.—In this paragraph:

(i) E-85 FUEL.—The term ‘E-85 fuel’ means a blend of gasoline approximately 85 percent of the content of which is ethanol.

(ii) ETHANOL FUEL BLEND.—The term ‘ethanol fuel blend’ means a blend of gasoline and ethanol, with a minimum of 9 percent and a maximum of 85 percent of the content of which is denatured ethanol.

(iii) MAJOR FUEL DISTRIBUTOR.—

(I) I N GENERAL.—The term ‘major fuel distributor’ means any person that owns or controls, directly or indirectly, 20 or more retail fueling stations.

(II) EXCLUSION.—The term ‘major fuel distributor’ does not include any person that owns less than 20 retail fueling stations.

(IV) SECRETARY.—The term ‘Secretary’ means the Secretary of Energy, acting in consultation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency and the Secretary of Agriculture.

(B) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall promulgate regulations to ensure that each major fuel distributor, for each blender pump that dispenses gasoline into commercial fuel stations through majority-owned stations or branded stations, installs or otherwise makes available ethanol fuel blend dispensers for gas stations, including any other equipment necessary, such as tanks, to ensure that the pumps function properly) for a period of not less than 5 years at not less than the applicable percentage of the majority-owned stations and the branded stations of the major fuel distributor specified in subparagraph (C).

(C) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE.—For the purpose of subparagraph (B), the applicable percentage of majority-owned stations and the branded stations shall be determined in accordance with the following table:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Calendar year</th>
<th>Percent</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2012</td>
<td>10%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2013</td>
<td>20%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2014</td>
<td>35%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2015 and each calendar year thereafter</td>
<td>50%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(D) GEOGRAPHIC DISTRIBUTION.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), in promulgating regulations under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall ensure that each major fuel distributor installs or otherwise makes available 1 or more blender pumps that dispense E-85 fuel and ethanol fuel blends at not less than a minimum percentage (specified in the regulations) of the majority-owned stations and the branded stations of the major fuel distributor in each State.

(ii) REQUIREMENT.—In specifying the minimum percentage under clause (i), the Secretary shall ensure that each major fuel distributor installs or otherwise makes available 1 or more blender pumps described in that clause in each State in which the major fuel distributor operates.

(E) RESPONSIBILITY.—In promulgating regulations under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall ensure that each major fuel distributor described in that subparagraph installs or otherwise makes available the blender pumps described in that subparagraph and any other equipment necessary (including tanks) to ensure that the pumps function properly.

(F) PRODUCTION CREDITS FOR EXCEEDING BLENDER PUMPS INSTALLATION REQUIREMENTS.—

(i) EARNING AND PERIOD FOR APPLYING CREDITS.—If the percentage of the majority-owned stations and the branded stations of a major fuel distributor that the Secretary finds installs or otherwise makes available the blender pumps in a particular calendar year exceeds the percentage required under subparagraph (C), the major fuel distributor shall earn production credits under this paragraph, which may be applied to any of the 3 consecutive calendar years immediately after the calendar year for which the credits are earned.

(ii) TRADING CREDITS.—Subject to clause (iii), a major fuel distributor that has earned credits under clause (i) may sell the credits to another major fuel distributor to enable the purchaser to meet the requirement under subparagraph (C).

(iii) EXCEPTION.—A major fuel distributor may not use credits purchased under clause (ii) to fulfill the geographic distribution requirement in subparagraph (D).

By Mr. UDALL, of Colorado (for himself and Mrs. HAGAN):

S. 1628. A bill to amend title VII of the Public Health Service Act to increase the number of physicians who practice in underserved rural communities. S. 1628.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce an important piece of legislation on behalf of myself and Senator KAY HAGAN of North Carolina, the Rural Physician Pipeline Act of 2009.

In making my way across my home State, I have listened to rural constituents from every corner of the state and their message is clear: rural communities are being hit hard by America’s health care crisis.

The life expectancy for women in many rural counties across the Nation has declined significantly over the past several decades, and health outcomes for Hispanic, Native American, and other minority populations are at unacceptable levels. Low-income rural Americans in these areas have very few options for affordable access to health care, if they have any at all.

Just over 2 weeks ago, I reached out to health care providers and professionals in rural regions of Colorado that have been most impacted by our ailing health system to hear directly from those on health care’s front lines. While there are many factors contributing to the lower health outcomes we are seeing in these regions, including regulatory hurdles and low reimbursement rates for rural clinics and hospitals, the physicians and health professionals I spoke with were pretty clear about the overwhelming culprit: lack of primary care doctors.

Invoking imagery of the black bag toting doctor from yesteryear making house calls to treat all that ailed you and your family, primary care physicians are still the lynchpin of our health care system. These physicians are the most familiar to Americans—they are the family doctor, general practitioner, and pediatrician, and they are many times the only point of contact that people have with the health care system. They are the first line of defense for keeping our families healthy.

Unfortunately, as the entire Nation suffers from a shortage of primary care doctors, our rural areas are hit the hardest. For a variety of socioeconomic and resource-related reasons, rural communities struggle to compete with big cities in recruiting from an already scarce pool of doctors. Some of these barriers are inherent to these areas—lack of job opportunities for spouses or a general lack of desire to live the lifestyle offered by our rural communities. But let’s be honest, if we use our resources wisely and work toward solutions to break them down, particularly with respect to how we as a nation train and compensate our front line doctors.

Medical school is where we develop and educate our new doctors, yet the 4 years of training they provide more often than not nudge students into more lucrative specialty care or toward practice in higher paying cities. While we certainly rely on our cardiologists, orthopedists and the many other medical specialists to provide the top-notch care that only they are trained to provide, we cannot continue to push students into these areas to the detriment of primary care. A balance needs to be found.

Today, I am proud to introduce, along with Senator KAY HAGAN of North Carolina, the Rural Physician Pipeline Act of 2009. This legislation can be part of the solution to our rural physician shortage. This legislation would make grants available to medical schools across the country for establishing programs designed to recruit students from rural areas who have a desire to practice in their hometowns. These programs would cultivate and strengthen the rural commitment of these future “homegrown” doctors, provide them the specialized training necessary to excel in the unique environment of sparsely populated regions, and assist them in finding post-graduate training programs that specialize in training doctors for practice in underserved rural communities.

For primary care doctors in rural areas face challenges that urban doctors do not. When a physician is the only health care provider for an entire county, he or she cannot refer patients back to a hospital. Rural training programs encouraged by this bill would give students additional training in pediatrics, emergency medicine, obstetrics, and behavioral health, among other areas, which will allow them to better serve their communities and hopefully lower the disturbing disparities of health outcomes we have seen over the years.

I was prompted to write this bill after seeing the promising results of a similar program at the University of Colorado School of Medicine. Faculty like associate dean for rural health, Dr. Jack Westfall, and rural health track director, Dr. Mark Deutchman, have found that reaching out to rural communities for student recruitment and reinforcing their rural commitment throughout their training is the best way to get them back into the communities that need them most.

My hope is that any version of similar programs nationwide will provide a “one, two punch” for the rural physician workforce—it will train more rural doctors, and it will train them better.

I recognize that this legislation would play only a modest role in tackling the immense workforce challenges our health care system faces. We need more equitable payments for low-paid primary care doctors, loan-forgiveness programs must be expanded to allow medical graduates to practice primary care without going into budget-crushing debt, and graduate medical education dollars need to be more flexible so that rural residency programs can be established to train graduates.

Health care reform needs to address these areas.

As my fellow Senators and I depart Washington for our home States to listen to the ideas, needs, and concerns of our constituents over the remainder of the month, We do so with the knowledge that there is much to accomplish.
upon our return. And as Congress continues working toward a health reform bill that puts the patient in charge of his or her health care choices, brings costs down, ensures financial sustainability, and brings security and stability to all Americans, there is one other thing we must also insist: health reform will not leave rural America behind.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Rural Physician Pipeline Act of 2009”.

SEC. 2. RURAL PHYSICIAN TRAINING GRANTS.

Part C of Title VII of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 293k et seq.) is amended—

(1) after the part heading, by inserting the following:

"Subpart I—Medical Training Generally"; and

(2) by inserting at the end the following:

"Subpart II—Training in Underserved Communities"

SEC. 749. RURAL PHYSICIAN TRAINING GRANTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Administrator of the Health Resources and Services Administration, shall establish a program to make grants to eligible entities for the purposes of—

(1) assisting eligible entities in recruiting students most likely to practice medicine in underserved rural communities;

(2) providing rural-focused training and experience; and

(3) increasing the number of recent allopathic and osteopathic medical school graduates who practice in underserved rural communities.

(b) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—In order to be eligible to receive a grant under this section, an entity shall—

(1) be a school of allopathic or osteopathic medicine accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association approved by the Secretary for this purpose, or a combination or consortium of such schools; and

(2) submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such form, and containing such information as the Secretary may require, including a certification that such entity—

(A) will use amounts provided to the institution to—

(i) establish and carry out a Rural Physician Training Program described in subsection (d);

(ii) improve an existing rural-focused training program to meet the requirements described in subsection (d) and carry out such program in accordance with this section;

(iii) expand and carry out an existing rural-focused training program that meets the Program requirements described in this subsection; and

(B) establish a network of allopathic and osteopathic medical schools that have developed or will develop rural training programs in accordance with this section.

(3) The Secretary shall take into consideration the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the Secretary determines appropriate;

(5) the number of graduating students who participated in the Program and in rural communities the Secretary determines appropriate.

(5) ANNUAL REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—On an annual basis, the entity receiving a grant under this section shall submit a report to the Secretary describing the success of the Program established by the entity based on criteria the Secretary determines appropriate.

(6) the number of students participating in the Program.

(7) the number of graduates who participated in the Program who are practicing in underserved rural communities.

(8) the number of graduates who participated in the Program who were not practicing in underserved rural communities not less than one year after completing residency training; and

(9) the number of graduates who participated in the Program who are practicing in underserved rural communities not less than one year after completing residency training.

(9) RURAL TRAINING PROGRAM SYMPOSIUM.

(G) ANNUAL REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—On an annual basis, the entity receiving a grant under this section shall submit a report to the Secretary describing the success of the Program established by the entity based on criteria the Secretary determines appropriate.

(10) the number of graduates who participated in the Program who were not practicing in underserved rural communities.

(b) SUPPLEMENT NOT SUPPLANT.—Any eligible entity receiving funds under this section shall use funds that would otherwise be expended by supplant, any other Federal, State, and local funds that would otherwise be expended by such entity to carry out the activities described in this section.

(i) MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—With respect to activities for which funds awarded under this section are to be expended, the entity shall agree to maintain expenditures of non-Federal amounts for such activities at a level that is not less than the level of such expenditures maintained by the entity for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the entity receives a grant under this section.

(ii) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated—

(A) $4,000,000 for fiscal year 2010;

(B) $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2011;

(C) $6,000,000 for fiscal year 2012;

(D) $7,000,000 for fiscal year 2013; and

(E) any other experts or individuals with experience in practicing medicine in underserved rural communities the Secretary determines appropriate.
By Mr. ROCKEFELLER (for himself and Mr. FRANKEN):

S. 1630. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to improve prescription drug coverage under Medicare part D and to amend the Public Health Service Act and the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, and the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to improve prescription drug coverage under private health insurance, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today with the newest esteemed Member of this Chamber, Senator AL purdue; to the Committee on Finance;

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today with the newest esteemed Member of this Chamber, Senator AL purdue, to introduce the Affordable Access to Prescription Medications Act of 2009. I think this is the first bill we have introduced together, and I look forward to working with him again in the future. The legislation we are introducing today is a critically important bill—one that protects all Americans from high out-of-pocket spending on prescription drugs.

With each passing year, Americans are paying more for their health care. Rising out-of-pocket costs are problematic for all patient populations, but are particularly burdensome for chronically ill and low-income individuals. The health insurance premiums and out-of-pocket costs for those below the federal poverty level are huge, with 28 percent paying more than ten percent of their income. Overall, out-of-pocket spending as a share of total insurance market is large and rapidly growing, with an increase of 45 percent between 2001 and 2006.

Prescription drugs represent the highest out-of-pocket cost for patients, comprising almost 31 percent of total out-of-pocket spending. The higher the out-of-pocket cost, the fewer individuals fill their needed medications. In fact, about 20 percent of individuals with out-of-pocket spending greater than $250 a month do not fill their prescriptions and, thereby, further exacerbate their conditions. Out-of-pocket expenses are only getting worse, especially as prescription drug costs increase. A 2009 survey found that 33 percent of Americans have cut back on health care spending in the last twelve months, as the economy has worsened.

In Medicare specifically, beneficiaries enrolled in a prescription drug plan in 2007 spent $38 a month, on average, for prescription drug co-payments. However, for those on high-cost medications, the cost burden can be enormous. Ninety percent of Medicare prescription drug plans and ten percent of private insurance plans include what is referred to as a specialty tier for medications costing over $600 a month. For these medications, enrollees can be asked to pay up to 33 percent of the drug's cost in copayments. The high cost of treatment, particularly for life-saving and life-sustaining treatments, poses an unreasonable and devastating barrier for sick patients that can force them to delay or entirely forgo necessary treatment. For one West Virginian, the chemotherapy drug he needs to treat his cancer is more than $13,500 for a 90-day supply. Under his Medicare prescription drug plan, he would have to pay $4000 of that cost. He didn't have $4000, so he chose not to be treated.

Another West Virginian with multiple sclerosis contacted my office recently, and told me that the drug to treat her disease, which allows her to continue to walk, costs $1500 a month. Her private insurer changed its policy from a $20 flat copayment for each prescription to 25 percent co-insurance for each prescription, creating a financial burden for her of $475 per month. It should come as no surprise that she is struggling to pay this amount every month.

These West Virginians are just a couple of examples of the millions of Americans who pay their health insurance premiums every month for coverage that is supposed to protect them from such enormous financial losses—but, sadly, it does not. Providing access to affordable prescription drugs for the treatment of chronic diseases is critical to improving our nation's health care system, which is why we are introducing this legislation today. The Affordable Access to Prescription Medications Act will go a long way to address the growing problem of catastrophic prescription drug expenses.

First, this bill will establish a $200 cap on the amount a person could be charged for any one prescription, and a $500 cap on the total amount an individual could be charged for all prescriptions in any given month. These caps apply to all private and public insurance plans, including Medicare prescription drug plans.

Second, this bill establishes an exceptions process for specialty drugs. Currently, the most expensive prescription drugs in the Medicare prescription drug program that are included on specialty tiers are not subject to benefit design requirements, but for all other Medicare-covered prescription drugs, a beneficiary can request an exemption to allow them access to needed drugs. High-cost, specialty drugs can be difficult to access and this bill will allow any beneficiary to request any needed prescription drug, including those in specialty tiers, through the exemptions process.

Third, this bill requires the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission, MedPAC, to conduct two studies regarding discrimination and cost-sharing. The first study will review Medicare Part B, Part C, and Part D prescription drug policies to make sure they do not violate the non-discrimination clause of the Medicare Part D law. Under 2003 law, plans are prohibited from discriminating against individuals based on medical condition. The second study will examine the impact of prescription drug cost-sharing on the health benefits of Medicare beneficiaries, particularly for those who have already paid their way through the so-called doughnut hole.

If enacted, this legislation will protect Americans from high out-of-pocket spending on prescription drugs. Based on studies that explain the problem, this bill could potentially lower copayments for 2.5 to 10 percent of Americans with the highest prescription drug costs. It will prevent Americans from the risk of incurring extraordinarily high prescription drug costs.

The national cap on out-of-pocket spending for prescription drugs will reduce costs for the most vulnerable population by over 50 percent. Given the rising costs of drugs, the prevalence of new drugs on the market, and the current economic recession, addressing the affordability of prescriptions drugs is vitally important.

We must act now to make prescription drugs more affordable for all Americans, but especially those with chronic diseases. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this important bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1630. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–102(c)(4)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(E) ADDITIONAL PROTECTIONS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, effective for plan years beginning on or after January 1, 2011, a PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan and an MA organization offering an MA-PD plan shall, with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to covered part D drugs under the plan, ensure that—

"(I) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the covered part D drug (as determined by the Secretary);

"(II) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single covered part D drug (30-day supply); and

"(III) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.

"(ii) ADJUSTMENTS.—The amounts described in clauses (II) and (III) of clause (I) shall be annually adjusted to reflect the average of the percentage increase or decrease in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers (U.S. city average) and the percentage increase or decrease in the medical care component of such Consumer Price Index during the calendar year preceding the year for which the adjustment is being made.

"(b) EXPANSION OF EXCEPTIONS PROCEED.—Effective for plan years beginning on or after January 1, 2011, the Secretary shall expand the category tier for medications under sections 423.560 through 423.636 of title 42, Code of Federal Regulations (as in effect on the date of enactment of this Act), to allow individuals enrolled in a prescription drug plan under part D of title XVIII of the Social Security Act or an MA–PD plan under part C of such title to request an exception for a specialty prescription drug to a plan's designation of a covered part D drug (as defined in section 1860D–2(e) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–102(e)) as a non-preferred prescription drug.

(c) Medicaid anti-discrimination clause.

PART D ANTI-DISCRIMINATION CLAUSE.—

section as if such section applied to such plan.''.

(2) Adjustment for cost-sharing the percentage increase or decrease in the Consumer Price Index during the calendar year preceding the year for which the adjustment is being made.

At the end of the following new section:

“(a) In General.—A group health plan under this part shall comply with the notice requirement under section 714(b) with respect to the requirements of this section as if such section applied to such plan.

(b) Adjustments.—The amounts described in paragraphs (2) and (3) of subsection (a) shall be annually adjusted to reflect the average of the percentage increase or decrease in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers (U.S. city average) and the percentage increase or decrease in the medical care component of such Consumer Price Index during the calendar year preceding the year for which the adjustment is being made.

“(a) In General.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage, that provides coverage for prescription drugs shall, with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to such drug coverage, ensure that—

“(1) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the prescription drug (as determined by the Secretary);

“(2) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single prescription drug (30-day supply); and

“(3) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.

Subtitle B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and Medicare Advantage organizations offering MA–PD plans under part C of such title.

(2) Study and report on cost-sharing for prescription drugs under parts B and D.—

(A) Study.—The Medicare Payment Advisory Commission shall conduct a study on cost-sharing for prescription drugs under parts B and D of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and Medicare Advantage organizations offering MA–PD plans under part C of such title.

(1) An analysis of—

(I) the use of specialty tiers for covered part D drugs under prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans;

(II) the effect of such specialty tiers on access to care for Medicare beneficiaries.

(ii) Consideration of the mechanisms described in subparagraph (B) in the context of the provisions of section 1860D–11e(2)(D) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–111(e)(2)(D) as added by section 3001 of the Affordable Care Act).

(iii) An analysis of the interaction between such utilization and the effects of such utilization with the Medicare part D anti-discrimination clause.

(iv) Consideration of the methods described in subparagraph (B) in the context of the provisions of section 1860D–11e(2)(D) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–111(e)(2)(D) as added by section 3001 of the Affordable Care Act).

(v) An analysis of the interaction between such utilization and the effects of such utilization with the Medicare part D anti-discrimination clause.

(3) Review and report on cost-sharing for prescription drugs under parts B and D.—

(A) Study.—The Medicare Payment Advisory Commission shall conduct a study on the costs of Medicare part D drugs based on certain categories of such drugs and issuance.

(II) include an analysis of the interaction between such utilization and the effects of such utilization with the Medicare part D anti-discrimination clause.

(III) An analysis of the interaction between such utilization and the effects of such utilization with the Medicare part D anti-discrimination clause.

(4) Requirement under section 714(b) with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to such drug coverage, ensure that—

“(1) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the prescription drug (as determined by the Secretary);

“(2) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single prescription drug (30-day supply); and

“(3) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.

(1) In General.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage, that provides coverage for prescription drugs shall, with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to such drug coverage, ensure that—

“(1) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the prescription drug (as determined by the Secretary);

“(2) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single prescription drug (30-day supply); and

“(3) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.

Subtitle B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and Medicare Advantage organizations offering MA–PD plans under part C of such title.

(1) Study and report on cost-sharing for prescription drugs under parts B and D.—

(A) Study.—The Medicare Payment Advisory Commission shall conduct a study on the costs of Medicare part D drugs based on certain categories of such drugs and issuance.

(II) include an analysis of the interaction between such utilization and the effects of such utilization with the Medicare part D anti-discrimination clause.

(III) An analysis of the interaction between such utilization and the effects of such utilization with the Medicare part D anti-discrimination clause.

(4) Requirement under section 714(b) with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to such drug coverage, ensure that—

“(1) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the prescription drug (as determined by the Secretary);

“(2) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single prescription drug (30-day supply); and

“(3) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.

Subtitle B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and Medicare Advantage organizations offering MA–PD plans under part C of such title.

(1) In General.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage, that provides coverage for prescription drugs shall, with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to such drug coverage, ensure that—

“(1) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the prescription drug (as determined by the Secretary);

“(2) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single prescription drug (30-day supply); and

“(3) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.

Subtitle B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and Medicare Advantage organizations offering MA–PD plans under part C of such title.

(1) In General.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage, that provides coverage for prescription drugs shall, with respect to any co-payment or coinsurance requirements applicable to such drug coverage, ensure that—

“(1) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed the base cost of the prescription drug (as determined by the Secretary);

“(2) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $200 per month for any single prescription drug (30-day supply); and

“(3) such required co-payment or coinsurance does not exceed $500 per month.
The provisions of the bill will apply to health insurance coverage offered by a health insurance issuer in the individual market in the same manner as they apply to health insurance coverage offered by a health insurance issuer in connection with a group health plan in the small or large group market.

(2) Conforming Amendment.—Section 2762(b)(2) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 300gg–62(b)(2)) is amended by striking “section 2751” and inserting “sections 2751 and 2754”.

(c) Application to FEHB.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to the ABTC program of chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation, APEC, Business Travel Cards Act of 2009. This bill would authorize the Secretary of Homeland Security and State Department to issue APEC Business Travel Cards, ABTC’s, to business leaders from APEC countries and senior government officials who are actively engaged in APEC business.

The APEC program has 18 nations participating, including China, Japan and Australia, which are among the world’s larger economies. The United States currently recognizes foreign issued ABTC travel cards. Cardholders from the APEC program’s member countries need to present valid passports and those from other countries must still obtain U.S. visas as required by United States law. However, ABTC card holders are allowed to benefit from expedited visa interview scheduling at U.S. embassies and consulates, and expedited immigration processing through airine crew and diplomat immigration lanes upon arrival at U.S. international airports. However, under current law, ABTC card holders are not yet eligible to apply for the ABTC program and therefore do not enjoy these same benefits in Asia-Pacific countries. This bill would require the Secretary of Homeland Security to issue ABTCs to United States citizen business leaders and senior government officials actively engaged in APEC business no later than January 1, 2010.

In carrying out this section, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall ensure that the total costs associated with carrying out this section are funded from the Department of Homeland Security and are authorized to remain available until expended.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER (for himself, Mr. AKAKA, and Mr. BROWN):

S. 1634. A bill to amend titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act to protect and improve the benefits provided to dual eligible individuals under the Medicare and Medicaid programs; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today with my colleagues, Senator AKAKA and Senator BROWN, to introduce the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Improvement Act, legislation that makes long overdue improvements to the Medicare prescription drug program, particularly for Medicare beneficiaries. All are simultaneously enrolled in Medicare. Known as “dual eligibles,” these individuals are among our nation’s most vulnerable populations—and they have been overlooked for far too long.

Approximately 8.8 million Americans are simultaneously enrolled in Medicare and Medicaid, and they are among the sickest and poorest individuals covered by either program. Most dual eligibles are very low-income, in poor health, and have substantial health care needs. Seventy-one percent of dual eligibles have annual incomes below $10,000. Over half of all elderly dual eligibles are limited in activities of daily living and, in contrast, other Medicare beneficiaries, are three times more likely to be disabled. Dual eligibles also have higher rates of heart disease, pulmonary disease, diabetes, and Alzheimer’s disease than the general Medicare population.

Unfortunately, effective fail-safe mechanisms were not put into place by the previous Administration to address the transition of the dual eligibles to Medicare prescription drug coverage. Consequently, millions of elderly and disabled Medicare recipients continue to experience significant barriers to care.

Health care problems persist for the dually eligible largely because of poor coordination between Medicare and Medicaid—which have two different sets of providers, two different sets of benefits, and two different sets of enrollment policies. The legislation we are introducing today will go a long way to provide dual eligibles with the right care, in the right setting, and at the right time.

Additionally, the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Improvement Act will provide more affordable and comprehensive prescription drug coverage for all Medicare beneficiaries.

First, this bill will create a new Federal Coordinated Health Care Office within the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). The purpose of this new office will be to provide a much more integrated model of care for dual eligibles by coordinating their Medicare and Medicaid benefits.

Second, this bill contains two provisions to help make prescription drugs more affordable and accessible for all Medicare beneficiaries—it allows the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate directly with pharmaceutical companies to lower prescription drug prices and it creates a Medicare-operated prescription drug plan.

The Secretary would be required to implement two or more of the following strategies on an annual basis to reduce the cost of prescription drugs covered by Medicare: direct price negotiations with pharmaceutical manufacturers, additional rebate agreements for Medicare prescription drugs that are consistent with the rebate agreements provided to states for Medicaid, comparative clinical effectiveness data, independent prescription drug rates negotiated under the Federal Supply Schedule.

A Medicare-operated prescription drug plan would be created by the Secretary of HHS. This plan would be a stable and affordable option available to all Medicare beneficiaries. This plan would create a robust prescription drug formulary based on patient safety, efficacy and value. The formulary incentive process would be transparent and uniform. An advisory committee would be created to review petitions for drug inclusion and recommend formulary changes. This Medicare-operated plan will create fair-market competition and lead to less costly drug choices for Medicare recipients.

Third, this bill contains significant new requirements for Medicare Advantage Special Needs Plans. These plans serve extremely vulnerable populations, including dual eligibles; yet, they have very few standards that they are required to abide by. The Medicare Prescription Drug Improvement Act will require special needs plans to be accredited by the National Committee for Quality Assurance. Additionally, our legislation requires special needs plans to provide more robust prescription drug coverage, meet uniform standards for data collection and reporting, and offer better care coordination.

Finally, this bill will implement a number of technical fixes to facilitate enrollment in the Medicare prescription drug benefit for those who qualify. State and Federal officials will be required to clearly identify dual eligibles in all databases and electronically file eligibility information, so that these beneficiaries will not continue to fall through the cracks. Pharmacies will use a facilitated point-of-sale enrollment process and automatically enroll certain dual eligibles in the Medicare-operated prescription drug plan. New limits on cost-sharing and resource requirements for low-income beneficiaries will also be put into place. Prescription drug cost-sharing for dual eligibles using home and community-based services, instead of institutionalized care, will be eliminated.

We are in the midst of discussing sweeping changes to our health care system. In addition to provisions to help the uninsured, health care reform must also include provisions to improve the coverage that people have today. This is especially true for seniors and individuals with disabilities. The Medicare prescription drug program is extremely difficult to navigate and many enrollees are still denied access to the prescription drugs that they need. This legislation will make the Medicare prescription drug program much more manageable for seniors and individuals with disabilities, particularly those dually eligible for Medicare and Medicaid.

The time for action is now, and I urge my colleagues to join us in support of this important legislation. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

8. 1634

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE, TABLE OF CONTENTS. (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Improvement Act.”

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents of this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.

TITLE I—MEDICARE AND MEDICAID IMPROVEMENTS

Sec. 101. Providing Federal coverage and payment coordination for low-income Medicare beneficiaries.

Sec. 102. Creating Medicare operated prescription drug plan option.

Sec. 103. Accreditation requirement for all specialized Medicare Advantage plans and revisions relating to specialized Medicare Advantage plans for special needs individuals.

Sec. 104. Improving better care coordination for low-income beneficiaries in Medicare part D.

programs in order to ensure that such individuals get full access to the items and services to which they are entitled under titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act.

(3) The provisions of the Federal Coordinated Health Care Office are as follows:

(A) Providing dual eligible individuals full access to the benefits to which such individuals are entitled under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(B) Simplifying the processes for dual eligible individuals to access the items and services covered under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(C) Improving the quality of health care and long-term services for dual eligible individuals.

(D) Increasing beneficiary understanding of and satisfaction with coverage under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(E) Eliminating regulatory conflicts between rules under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(F) Improving care continuity and ensuring safe and effective care transitions.

(G) Eliminating cost-shifting between the Medicare and Medicaid program and among related health care providers.

(H) Improving the quality of performance of providers of services and suppliers under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(4) RESPONSIBILITIES.—The specific responsibilities of the Federal Coordinated Health Care Office are as follows:

(A) Medicaid Operated Prescription Drug Plans for Special Needs Individuals (as defined in section 1859(b)(6) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–28(b)(6)), physicians and other relevant entities or individuals with the education and tools necessary for developing programs that align benefits under the Medicare and Medicaid programs for dual eligible individuals.

(B) Working with the Director of the Congressional Budget Office and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and in consultation with the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission and the Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission, to, not later than January 1, 2011, establish dynamic scoring for benefits for dual eligible individuals to account for total spending and savings for comparable risk groups under the Medicare programs.

(C) Supporting State efforts to coordinate and align acute care and long-term care services for dual eligible individuals with other items and services furnished under the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

(D) Providing support for coordination of contracting and oversight by States and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services with respect to the integration of the Medicare and Medicaid programs in a manner that is supportive of the goals described in paragraph (3).

(5) COST-SHARING.—The Secretary shall, as part of the budget transmitted under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, submit to Congress an annual report containing recommendations for legislation that would improve care coordination and benefits for dual eligible individuals.

(6) ADJUSTMENT OF MEDICAID REPRESENTATIVES TO MEDICARE PAYMENT ADVISORY COMMISSION AND CONSULTATION WITH MEDICAID AND CHIP PAYMENT AND ACCESS COMMISSION.—

(1) Addition of Medicaid Representatives to Medicare Payment Advisory Commission and Consultation with Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission.—Section 1805(c)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395b–6(c)(2)(B)) is amended by adding at the end the following sentence: “Such membership shall also include at least 2 individuals who are nationally recognized for their expertise in financing, benefits, and provider payment policies under the program under title XIX.”

(2) Consultation with Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission.—Section 1805(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395b–6(b)) is amended by adding at the end the following paragraph:

“(9) Consultation with Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission.—In carrying out the duties of the Commission under this subsection, the Commission shall consult with the Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission established under section 506 of the Children’s Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2009 (Public Law 111–3) on an ongoing basis.”

(3) MACPAC FUNDING AND TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—

(a) FUNDING.—Section 1900(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396f(c)) is amended—

(1) in the subsection heading, by striking “AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS” and inserting “FUNDING”;

(2) in paragraph (1), by inserting “(other than for fiscal year 2009)” before “in the same manner”;

(3) by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

“(2) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, there is appropriated to MACPAC $11,403,000 for fiscal year 2009 to carry out the provisions of this section.

“(3) AUTHORIZATION.—In addition to amounts made available under paragraph (2), there are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 2010 such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

“(4) AVAILABLE.—Amounts made available under paragraphs (2) and (3) to carry out the provisions of this section shall remain available until expended.”.

(b) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—Section 1900(b) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking “June 1” and inserting “June 15”;

(2) in paragraph (2), by inserting “(other than for fiscal year 2009)” after “for fiscal year 2009”;

(3) in paragraph (3), by striking “6 percent” and inserting “2 percent”;

(4) in paragraph (4), by striking “2 percent” and inserting “6 percent”;

(5) in paragraph (5), by striking “32 percent” and inserting “12 percent”;

(6) by inserting “(Public Law 111–3)” after “in the fiscal year 2010”;

(7) by striking “5 percent” and inserting “2 percent”;

(8) by striking “(Public Law 111–3)” after “in the fiscal year 2010”;

(9) in paragraph (4), by striking “150 percent of such amount” and inserting “85 percent of such amount”;

(10) by striking “50 percent” and inserting “85 percent”;

(11) by striking “in paragraph (3)” and inserting “in paragraph (4)”;

(12) by striking “(as specified in section 1805–13(a)(3))” and inserting “(other than for fiscal year 2009)”;

(13) in paragraph (5), by striking “2 percent” and inserting “6 percent”;

(14) by striking paragraph (10) and inserting the following:

“(10) CONSULTATION WITH MEDIPA.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—MACPAC shall regularly consult with the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (in this paragraph referred to as ‘MedPAC’) established under section 1805 in carrying out its duties under this section.

“(B) DATA SHARING.—MACPAC and MedPAC shall have unrestricted access to all deliberations, records, and nonproprietary data of the other such entity, respectively, immediately upon the request of the other such entity.”.

(d) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section—

(1) requires mandatory integrated care under the Medicare or Medicaid programs under titles XVIII and XIX, respectively, of the Social Security Act;

(2) promotes enrollment in specialized MA plans for special needs individuals (as defined in section 1859(b)(6) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–28(b)(6)), physicians and other relevant entities or individuals with the education and tools necessary for developing programs that align benefits under the Medicare and Medicaid programs for dual eligible individuals;

(3) prohibits the development of Medicaid managed care for dual eligible individuals; or

(4) prevents dual eligible individuals from electing to remain in the original Medicare fee-for-service option, or the right to make such election being protected.

SEC. 102. CHANGING A MEDICARE OPERATED PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN OPTION.

(a) Medicare Operated Prescription Drug Plan Option.—

(1) In general.—Subpart 2 of part D of the Social Security Act is amended by adding after section 1860D–11 (42 U.S.C. 1395w–111) the following new section:

“SEC. 1860D–11A. (a) IN GENERAL.—Not—withstanding any other provision of this part, for each year (beginning with 2011), in addition to any plans offered under section 1860D–11, the Secretary shall offer one or more Medicare operated prescription drug plans that are prescription drug plans that—

(1) are offered under section 1860D–11A; and

(2) with a service area that consists of the entire United States and shall enter into negotiations in accordance with section 1860D–11A(1) for months in each succeeding year.

(b) Monthly Beneficiary Premium.—

(1) QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—The monthly beneficiary premium for qualified prescription drug coverage and access to negotiated prices described in section 1860D–2(a)(1)A) shall be charged under a Medicare operated prescription drug plan for each year.

(2) Premium Subsidy for Dual Eligible Individuals.—

(A) FULL-SUBSIDY ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS.—In the case of an applicable subsidy eligible individual described in paragraph (4)(A), the individual is entitled to the benefit of an income-related premium subsidy equal to 100 percent of the monthly beneficiary premium of the Medicare operated prescription drug plan.

(B) OTHER SUBSIDY ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS.—In the case of an applicable subsidy eligible individual described in paragraph (4)(B), the individual is entitled under this section to an income-related premium subsidy determined on a linear sliding scale as follows:

(1) One hundred percent of the amount described in subparagraph (A) for individuals with incomes at or below 135 percent of such level.

(2) Seventy-five percent of such amount for individuals with incomes above 135 percent of such level and at or below 140 percent of such level.

(3) Fifty percent of such amount for individuals with incomes above 140 percent of such level and at or below 145 percent of such level.

(4) Zero percent of such amount for individuals with incomes at 150 percent of such level.

(5) Cost-Sharing for Applicable Subsidy Eligible Individual.—

(A) FULL-SUBSIDY ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS.—In the case of an applicable subsidy eligible individual described in paragraph (4)(A), the provisions of section 1860D–11A(1) shall apply, except the premium subsidy under paragraph (2)(A) shall be substituted for the premium subsidy under subparagraph (A) of subsection 1860D–11A(14)(A)(2) shall apply, except the premium subsidy under paragraph (2)(B) shall be substituted for the premium subsidy under subparagraph (A) of such section 1906D-1(a)(3).

(4) Definition of applicable subsidy eligible individuals.—For purposes of paragraph (3), the term ‘applicable subsidy eligible individual’ means the following:

(A) Full-subsidy eligible individuals.—

(i) Individuals with income below 150 percent of poverty line.—Any individual who—

(I) is enrolled in a Medicare operated prescription drug plan;

(II) declares to have income that is below 15 percent of the poverty line applicable to a family of the size involved; and

(III) meets the resources requirements described in section 1906D-14(a)(3)(E), as amended by section 201 of the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Improvement Act.

(ii) Individuals with income below 135 percent of the poverty line.—Any individual who is enrolled in a Medicare operated prescription drug plan who—

(I) is a full-benefit dual eligible individual (as defined in section 1902(a)(10)(E));

(II) receives benefits under the supplemental medical security income program under title XVI; or

(III) is eligible for medical assistance under clause (1), (iii), or (iv) of section 1902(a)(10)(E).

(B) Other applicable subsidy eligible individuals.—Any individual who—

(I) is not described in paragraph (1);

(II) is enrolled in a Medicare operated prescription drug plan;

(III) declares to have income that is below 150 percent of the poverty line applicable to a family of the size involved; and

(IV) meets the resources requirements described in section 1906D-14(a)(3)(E), as amended by section 201 of the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Improvement Act.

(5) Use of a Formulary and Formulary Incentives.—

(A) Use of a formulary.—

(i) Use of a formulary.—With respect to the operation of a Medicare operated prescription drug plan, the Secretary shall establish and apply a formulary (and may include formulary incentives described in paragraph (5)(C)(i)) in accordance with this subsection in order to—

(I) increase patient safety;

(II) promote the appropriate use and reduce inappropriate use of drugs; and

(III) reward value.

(ii) Default initial formulary.—Until such time as the Secretary develops and applies the initial formulary under paragraph (5), a Medicare operated prescription drug plan shall be required to include all drugs that provide safety and effectiveness as a prescription drug under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act that are covered part D drugs and may include formulary incentives, to encourage use of covered part D drugs that—

(I) have a lower cost and provide a greater clinical benefit including fewer safety concerns or a greater risk of side-effects, than another drug in the same class that should be included in the formulary; and

(II) are drugs in a class that provide less clinical benefit, including greater safety concerns or a greater risk of side-effects, than another drug in the same class that should be included in the formulary.

(iii) Use of advisory committee.—

(A) Use of advisory committee.—

(I) to review petitions from drug manufacturers or price-setting organizations for which there has not previously been a treatment option or for which a clear and significant benefit has been demonstrated over other covered part D drugs;

(ii) to recommend any changes to the formulary established under this subsection.

(B) Composition.—The advisory committee shall be composed of 9 members and shall include representatives of physicians, pharmacists, and consumers and others with expertise in evaluating prescription drugs. The Secretary shall select members based on their knowledge of pharmaceuticals and the Medicare and Medicaid populations. Members shall be deemed to be special Government employees for purposes of applying the conflict of interest provisions under section 1861 of the United States Code and no waiver of such provisions for such a member shall be permitted.
(C) Consultation.—The advisory committee shall consult, as necessary, with physicians who are specialists in treating the disease for which a drug is being considered.

(D) Purposes.—The advisory committee may request the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality or an academic or research institution to study and make recommendations described in subparagraph (A)(ii) in order to—

(1) clinical effectiveness;

(2) comparative effectiveness;

(3) safety;

(4) enhanced compliance with a drug regimen.

(E) Recommendations.—The advisory committee shall make recommendations to the Secretary regarding—

(1) whether a covered part D drug is found to provide less clinical benefit, including fewer safety concerns or less risk of side effects, than another drug in the same class that is currently included in the formulary and should be included in the formulary;

(2) whether a covered part D drug is found to provide less clinical benefit, including greater safety concerns or a greater risk of side effects, than another drug in the same class that is currently included in the formulary and should not be included in the formulary;

(3) whether a covered part D drug has the same or similar clinical benefit to a drug in the same class that is currently included in the formulary, and the drug should be included in the formulary;

(4) any data from clinical trials conducted using active controls on the drug or drugs that are the current standard of care;

(5) any available data on comparative effectiveness of the drug;

(6) any other information the Secretary requires for the advisory committee to complete its review.

(G) Response to Recommendations.—The Secretary shall review the recommendations of the advisory committee and, if the Secretary accepts such recommendations the Secretary shall modify the formulary established under this subsection accordingly. Nothing in this section shall preclude the Secretary from adding to the formulary a drug for which the Director of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality or the advisory committee has not made a recommendation.

(H) Notice of Changes.—The Secretary shall publish notice to beneficiaries and health professionals about changes to the formulary or formulary incentives.

(I) Stability of Benefit.—Once a covered part D drug is added to the initial formulary established under this subsection, the drug may not be removed from the formulary for at least 3-year period, unless the Secretary determines there are safety or efficacy concerns with respect to the drug.

(J) Non-Excludable Drugs.—The following drugs or classes of drugs shall not be excluded from the initial formulary (as described in paragraph (1)(B)) or the initial formulary established by the Secretary (as described in paragraph (5)):

(A) by inserting “Benzodiazepines.”

(B) by inserting “Benzo diazepines.”

(C) by inserting “Benzodiazepines.”

(D) by inserting “Benzodiazepines.”

(E) by inserting “Benzo diazepines.”

(F) by inserting “Benzodiazepines.”

(G) by inserting “Benzodiazepines.”

(H) by inserting “Benzodiazepines.”

(I) Consultation.—The Secretary shall consult with experts in the clinical benefits and availability of a Medicare operated prescription drug plan, or plans, providing including information in the annual handbook distributed to all beneficiaries and adding information to the official public Medicare website related to prescription drug coverage available through this plan. The Secretary shall—

(2) sole responsibility for marketing by the Secretary.

(A) in general.—The Secretary shall have sole responsibility for marketing Medicare operated prescription drug plans.

(B) Authorization.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as are necessary to carry out such marketing.

(C) Application of all other requirements for drug plans.—Except as specifically provided in this section, any Medicare operated drug plan shall meet the same requirements as apply to any other prescription drug plan, including the requirements of section 1860D–4(b)(1) relating to assuring pharmacy access.

(D) Requirement.—The Secretary shall establish procedures to provide for the automatic enrollment of subsidy eligible individuals (as defined in section 1860D–14(a)) in a Medicare operated prescription drug plan in the case where such individuals lose their current prescription drug coverage, become part D eligible individuals, or become Medicare beneficiaries of the Medicare Advantage program. The Secretary shall provide timely notice to beneficiaries regarding the same or similar clinical benefit to a drug already covered under the plan whose current prescription drug coverage will be terminated under the plan in accordance with section 1860D–14(b).

(E) Rule of construction regarding eligibility for medical assistance.—In no case may any enrollee in a Medicare operated prescription drug plan affect the eligibility of an individual to receive medical assistance under a State plan under title XIX.

(F) Effective date.—The amendment made by this subsection shall take effect as if included in the enactment of section 101 of the Medicare, Medicaid, and Modernization Act of 2003.

(G) Conformity amendments.—

(1) in general.—Section 1860D–3(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–103(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(4) Availability of the Medicare operated prescription drug plan.—A Medicare operated prescription drug plan (as defined in section 1860D–11A(c)) shall be offered nationally in accordance with section 1860D–11A.”.

(B) Section 1860D–3 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–103) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

(C) Section 1860D–11(g) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–111(g)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(8) No authority for fallback plans after December 31, 2009.—

(1) in the heading, by inserting “and Medicare operated prescription drug plans” after “Medicare Advantage plans”;

(2) by inserting “or Medicare operated prescription drug plan” after “a fallback prescription plan”;

(D) Section 1860D–16(b)(1) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–116(b)(1)) is amended—

(i) in subparagraph (C), by striking “and” after the semicolon at the end;

(ii) in subparagraph (D), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”;

(iii) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“The requirements for expenses incurred with respect to the operation of Medicare operated prescription drug plans under section 1860D–11A.”.

(E) Section 1860D–41(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–151(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(19) Medicare operated prescription drug plan.—The term ‘Medicare operated prescription drug plan’ has the meaning given such term in section 1860D–11A(c).”.

(F) Effective date.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect as if included in the enactment of section 101 of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003.

SEC. 109. AMENDMENT FOR ALL SPECIALIZED MEDICARE ADVANTAGE PLANS AND REVISIONS RELATING TO SPECIALIZED MEDICARE ADVANTAGE ADVANTAGE PLANS FOR SPECIAL NEEDS INDIVIDUALS.

(A) Participation requirement.—Section 1859(f) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–28(f)) is amended—

(1) in paragraphs (2)(B), (3)(B), and (4)(B), by striking “paragraph (3)” and inserting “paragraphs (5) and (6)” each place it appears;

(2) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(6) Accreditation requirement for all SNPs.—

“(A) Establishment of accreditation program.—Not later than January 1, 2011, the Secretary, acting through the Director of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality and the Administrator of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, shall enter into a contract with the National Committee for Quality Assurance under which the National Committee for Quality Assurance shall develop an accreditation (and re-accreditation) program for all specialized MA plans for special needs individuals (as defined in subsection (b)(6)), including specialized MA plans for special needs individuals (as so defined) that meet the accreditation standards developed by the National Committee for Quality Assurance under the contract under subparagraph (A).”

and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

‘‘(d) PLAN COMPLAINT SYSTEM.—

‘‘(1) SECRETARY.—

‘‘(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall develop and maintain a plan complaint system, within the period referred to as the system to—

(i) collect and maintain information on plan complaints;

(ii) track open complaints from the date the complaint is logged into the system through the date the complaint is resolved; and

(iii) otherwise improve the process for reporting plan complaints.

‘‘(B) TIMEFRAME.—The Secretary shall have the system in place by no later than the date that is 6 months after the date of enactment of this subsection.

‘‘(C) PLAN COMPLAINT DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term ‘plan complaint’ means a complaint that is received (including by telephone, letter, e-mail, or any other means) by the Secretary (including by a regional office, the Medicare Beneficiary Ombudsman, the Medicare contractor, a fiscal intermediary, and a Medicare administrative contractor) from a Medicare Advantage eligible individual or a Part D eligible individual regarding a Medicare Advantage organization, a Medicare Advantage plan, a prescription drug plan sponsor, or a prescription drug plan, including, but not limited to, complaints relating to marketing, enrollment, covered drugs, premiums and cost-sharing, and plan performance, grievances and appeals, participating providers. Such term also includes plan complaints that are received by the Secretary directly from the enrollee or plan relating to complaints by such individuals.

‘‘(2) PROCESS CRITERIA.—In developing the system, the Secretary shall establish a process for reporting plan complaints. Such process shall meet the following criteria:

(A) ACCESSIBLE.—The process is widely known and easy to use.

(B) INVESTIGATIVE CAPACITY.—The process involves the appropriate experts, resources, and methods to assess complaints and determine whether they reflect an underlying pattern.

(C) INTERVENTION AND FOLLOW-THROUGH.—The process triggers appropriate interventions and monitoring based on substantiated complaints.

‘‘(3) QUALITY IMPROVEMENT ORIENTATION.—

The process guides quality improvement.

‘‘(E) RESOLVER.—The process routinely provides consistent, clear, and substantive responses to complaints.

‘‘(F) TIMELINES.—Each process step is completed within a reasonable established timeframe, and mechanisms exist to deal quickly with complaints of an emergency nature requiring immediate intervention.

‘‘(G) OBJECTIVE.—The process is unbiased, balancing the rights of each party.

‘‘(H) PUBLIC ACCOUNTABILITY.—The process makes complaint information available to the public.

‘‘(I) STANDARD DATA REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish standard data reporting requirements for reporting plan complaints under the system.

(B) MODEL ELECTRONIC COMPLAINT FORM.—

The Secretary shall develop a model electronic complaint form to be used for reporting plan complaints under the system.

‘‘(3) STANDARD DATA REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—

The Secretary shall conduct an ongoing evaluation of the system, and every 3 months thereafter, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to Congress a report on the study conducted under subparagraph (A), together with recommendations for such legislation and administrative actions as the Secretary determines appropriate.

(B) Effective Date.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to exceptions and appeals processes with respect to the determination of prescription drug coverage for an enrollee under the plan; and

(ii) provide instant access to such process by enrollees through a toll-free telephone number and an Internet website.

(b) Extension of the Annual, Coordinated Election Period.—

(1) In general.—Section 1935 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–1(b)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

‘‘(D) QUARTERLY REPORTS.—Not later than 6 months after the implementation of the system, and every 3 months thereafter, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to Congress a report on the study conducted under subparagraph (A), together with recommendations for such legislation and administrative actions as the Secretary determines appropriate.

(B) Effective Date.—The Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services shall conduct an evaluation of the system. Not later than 1 year after the implementation of the system, the Inspector General shall submit to Congress a report on such evaluation, together with recommendations for such legislation and administrative actions as the Inspector General determines appropriate.

SEC. 213. UNIFORM EXCEPTIONS AND APPEALS PROCESS.

(a) In general.—Section 1980(d)(4)(b)(3) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w–1(b)(3)), as amended by section 107, is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

‘‘(G) USE OF SINGLE, UNIFORM EXCEPTIONS AND APPEALS PROCESS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, a PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan under the organization offering an MA–PD plan shall—

(i) use a single, uniform exceptions and appeals process with respect to the determination of prescription drug coverage for an enrollee under the plan; and

(ii) provide instant access to such process by enrollees through a toll-free telephone number and an Internet website.

(b) Effective Date.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to exceptions and appeals processes on or after January 1, 2011.

SEC. 214. PROHIBITION ON CONDITIONING MEDICAID ELIGIBILITY FOR INDIVIDUALS ENROLLED IN CERTAIN CREDITABLE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE ON ENROLLMENT IN THE MEDICARE PART D PROGRAM.

(a) In general.—Section 1935 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396v) is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(F) PROHIBITION ON CONDITIONING ELIGIBILITY FOR MEDICAL ASSISTANCE FOR INDIVIDUALS ENROLLED IN CERTAIN CREDITABLE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE ON ENROLLMENT IN MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT.—

‘‘(1) IN GENERAL.—A State shall not condition eligibility for medical assistance under the State plan for a Part D eligible individual (as defined in section 1903(a)(3)(A)) who is enrolled in creditable prescription drug coverage under subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) of section 1903(a)(3)(A) on enrollment in a Medicare prescription drug plan under part D of title XVIII or an MA–PD plan under part C of such title.

‘‘(2) COORDINATION OF BENEFITS WITH PART D FOR OTHER INDIVIDUALS.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as prohibiting a State from coordinating medical assistance under the State plan with benefits under part D of title XVIII for individuals not described in paragraph (1).’’

SEC. 215. OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT ON PART D FORMULARIES’ INCLUSION OF DRUGS COMMONLY USED BY DUAL ELIGIBLES.

(a) Ongoing Study.—The Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services shall conduct an ongoing study of the extent to which formularies used by prescription drug plans and MA–PD plans under part D include drugs commonly used by full-benefit eligible dual eligible individuals (as defined in section 1905(o)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396u–6)).
S. 1635. A bill to establish an Indian Youth telemental health demonstration project, to enhance the provision of mental health care services to Indian youth, to encourage Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and other mental health care providers serving residents of Indian Country to obtain the services of postdoctoral psychology and psychiatry interns, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, today I introduce an amendment, or supersession, to those programs that require states that apply for a demonstration project; language to streamline and improve the process by which Tribes apply for grants through SAMHSA; and an addition of postdoctoral mental health intern programs in an effort to increase the availability of services in Indian Country.

The Indian Youth Telemental Health Demonstration Project Act has been introduced in previous Congresses. This project would authorize the Secretary of Health and Human Services to carry out a four-year demonstration project for the use of telemental health services in youth suicide prevention, intervention, and treatment. These mental health services refer to those health care services provided from a remote location through technological means. These types of services are especially important in remote, isolated communities like the United States in the state of North Dakota where mental health professionals are scarce.

This bill also includes new language to enhance available mental health resources for addressing the many issues and barriers Tribes and tribal organizations face when applying for federal assistance through SAMHSA. For example, this provision requires SAMHSA to monitor the incidence of youth suicide in Indian Country, accept non-electronic grant applications from Tribes, give priority to disadvantaged tribal applicants with high rates of suicide, prohibit cost-sharing requirements, and prevent Tribes and tribal organizations from being required to apply through a state. In addition, this section requires states that apply for a SAMHSA grant using Tribal data to consult with Tribes and include them in any implemented programs.

Lastly, the bill includes encouragement for Tribes to use post-doctoral mental health professionals. Post-doctoral psychology and psychiatry interns are able to see patients and provide mental health services under the supervision of a certified mental health professional. The Veterans Administration is currently utilizing post-doctoral psychology intern programs, which have been successful in expanding the availability of mental health services to veterans. We need to promote innovative programs like this to increase the mental health services available in Indian Country.

The 7th Generation Promise in the bill’s title is the Native American concept that we need to consider the impacts of our actions on our descendants seven generations into the future. Suicide is devastating our current generation of Native Americans, and we need to do something to protect them and among tribal members under the age of 24. Clearly, we must do more for the mental health and suicide prevention in our Native American communities across the United States.

The bill introduced includes three major actions to improve suicide prevention services in Indian Country: a youth telemental health demonstration project; language to streamline and improve the process by which Tribes apply for grants through SAMHSA; and an addition of postdoctoral mental health intern programs in an effort to increase the availability of services in Indian Country.
our Native Americans seven generations down the road.

I would like to thank Senator JOHNSON for working with me on this important piece of legislation. Health care, and especially mental health issues, remain a top priority for me as Chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee. I look forward to continuing this important work so that we may stop the high levels of youth suicide and other health disparities among Native Americans.

I would like to end by saying that one youth suicide is one tragedy too many. My hope is that passage of this bill will bring some aid to our Native American communities experiencing this crisis.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1655

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “7th Generation Promise: Indian Youth Suicide Prevention Act of 2009”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1)(A) the rate of suicide of American Indians and Alaska Natives is 1.9 times higher than the national average rate; and

(B) the rate of suicide of Indian and Alaska Native youth aged 15 through 24 is—

(i) 5.5 times the national average rate; and

(ii) the highest rate of any population group in the United States;

(2) risk behaviors and contributing factors for suicide are more prevalent in Indian country than in other areas, including—

(A) history of previous suicide attempts;

(B) family history of suicide;

(C) history of depression or other mental illness;

(D) alcohol or drug abuse;

(E) health disparities;

(F) stressful life events and losses;

(G) easy access to lethal methods; and

(H) exposure to the suicidal behavior of others;

(i) isolation; and

(j) incarceration;

(3) according to national data for 2005, suicide was the second-leading cause of death for Indians and Alaska Natives of both sexes aged 10 through 34;

(4)(A) the suicide rates of Indians and Alaska Natives aged 15 through 24, as compared to suicide rates of any other racial group, are—

(i) for males, up to 4 times greater; and

(ii) for females, up to 11 times greater;

(B) data demonstrates that, over their lifetimes, females attempt suicide 2 to 3 times more often than males;

(5)(A) Indian tribes, especially Indian tribes located in the Great Plains, have experienced epidemic levels of suicide, up to 10 times the national average; and

(B) suicide clustering in Indian country affects entire tribal communities;

(6) Alaska Natives and Alaska Native communities are statistically underestimated because many areas of Indian country lack the proper resources to identify and monitor the prevalence of suicide;

(7)(A) the Indian Health Service experiences health professional shortages, with physician vacancy rates of approximately 17 percent, and nursing vacancy rates of approximately 18 percent, in 2007;

(B) 90 percent of all teens who die by suicide suffer from a diagnosable mental illness at time of death;

(C) more than 1/2 of teens who commit suicide have never been seen by a mental health provider; and

(D) 1/5 of health needs in Indian country relate to mental health;

(8) often, the lack of resources of Indian tribes and the remote nature of Indian reservations makes it difficult to meet the requirements necessary to access mental health services; and

(9) the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and the Service have established specific initiatives to combat youth suicide in Indian country and among Indians and Alaska Natives throughout the United States, including the National Suicide Prevention Initiative of the Service, which has worked with Service, tribal, and urban Indian health programs since 2003;

(10) the National Strategy for Suicide Prevention was established in 2001 through a Department of Health and Human Services collaboration among—

(A) the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration;

(B) the Service;

(C) the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention;

(D) the National Institutes of Health; and

(E) the Health Resources and Services Administration; and

(11) the Service and other agencies of the Department of Health and Human Services use information technology and other programs to address the suicide prevention and mental health needs of Indians and Alaska Natives.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to authorize the Secretary to carry out a demonstration project to test the use of telemental health services in suicide prevention, intervention, and treatment of Indian youth, including through—

(A) the use of psychotherapy, psychiatric assessments, diagnostic interviews, therapies for mental health conditions predisposing to suicide, and alcohol and substance abuse treatment;

(B) the provision of clinical expertise to, consultation with, and medical advice and training for frontline health care providers working with Indian youth;

(C) training and related support for community leaders, family members, and health and education workers who work with Indian youth;

(D) the development of culturally relevant educational materials on suicide; and

(E) data collection and reporting;

(2) to encourage Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and other mental health care providers to develop programs to obtain the services of predoctoral psychology and psychiatry interns; and

(3) to enhance the provision of mental health care services to Indian youth through existing grant programs of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ADMINISTRATION.—The term “Administration” means the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

(2) DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—The term “demonstration project” means the Indian youth telemental health demonstration project under section 3(b).

(3) INDIAN.—The term “Indian” means any individual who is—

(A) a member of an Indian tribe; or

(B) eligible for health services under the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.).

(4) INDIAN COUNTRY.—The term “Indian country” has the meaning given the term in section 1151 of title 18, United States Code.

(5) INDIAN TRIBE.—The term “Indian tribe” has the meaning given the term in section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b).

(6) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

(7) SERVICE.—The term “Service” means the Indian Health Service.

(8) TELEMENTAL HEALTH.—The term “telemental health” means the use of electronic information and telecommunications technologies to support long-distance mental health care, patient and professional-related education, public health, and health administration.

(9) TRIBAL ORGANIZATION.—The term “tribal organization” has the meaning given the term in section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450c).

SEC. 4. INDIAN YOUTH TELEMENTAL HEALTH DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.

(a) AUTHORIZATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Service, is authorized to carry out a demonstration project to award grants for a demonstration project to Indian youth who—

(A) have expressed suicidal ideas;

(B) have attempted suicide; or

(C) have mental health conditions that increase or could increase the risk of suicide.

(2) ELIGIBILITY FOR GRANTS.—Grants under paragraph (1) shall be awarded to Indian tribes or tribal organizations that operate 1 or more facilities—

(A) located in an area with documented disproportionately high rates of suicide;

(B) reporting active clinical telehealth capabilities; or

(C) offering school-based telemental health services to Indian youth.

(3) GRANT PERIOD.—The Secretary shall award grants under this section for a period of up to 4 years.

(4) MAXIMUM NUMBER OF GRANTS.—Not more than 5 grants shall be provided under paragraph (1), with priority consideration given to Indian tribes and tribal organizations that—

(A) serve a particular community or geographic area in which there is a demonstrated need to address Indian youth suicide;

(B) enter into collaborative partnerships with Service or other tribal health programs or facilities to provide services under this demonstration project; and

(C) serve an isolated community or geographic area that has limited or no access to behavioral health services; or

(D) operate a detention facility at which Indian youth are detained.

(5) CONSULTATION WITH ADMINISTRATION.—In developing and carrying out the demonstration project under this subsection, the Secretary shall consult with the Administration as the Federal agency focused on mental health issues, including suicide.

(b) USE OF FUNDS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—An Indian tribe or tribal organization shall use a grant received under subsection (a) for the following purposes:

(A) to provide mental health services to Indian youth, including the provision of—

(i) psychotherapy;

(ii) psychiatric assessments and diagnostic interviews, therapies for mental health conditions predisposing to suicide, and treatment; and

(B) to provide mental health services to Indian youth, including the provision of—

(i) psychotherapy;
alcohol and substance abuse treatment.

(B) To provide clinician-interactive medical advice, guidance and training, assistance and intervention, counseling and treatment, and related assistance to Service or tribal clinicians and health services providers working with youth being served under the demonstration project.

(C) To assist, educate, and train community leaders, health education professionals and providers, mental health professionals, tribal outreach workers, and family members who work with the youth receiving telemental health services under the demonstration project, including interventions designed to identify health, crisis intervention and suicide prevention, mental health or behavioral disorder, and substance use disorders among youth.

(D) To develop and distribute culturally appropriate community educational materials regarding—

(i) suicide prevention;
(ii) suicide education;

(E) To conduct data collection and reporting relating to Indian youth suicide prevention efforts.

(2) TRADITIONAL HEALTH CARE PRACTICES.—In carrying out the purposes described in paragraph (1), an Indian tribe or tribal organization may use and promote the traditional health care practices of the Indian tribes of the youth to be served.

(c) OUTREACH FOR RURAL AND ISOLATED INDIAN TRIBES.—Due to the rural, isolated nature of most Indian reservations and communities, applicants for grants under this section, including any Indian tribe or tribal organization that the Secretary determines to be necessary, shall be required to provide a non-Federal share of the cost of any project or activity carried out using the funds provided under the grant; and

(d) COLLABORATION.—The Secretary, acting through the Service, shall encourage Indian tribes and tribal organizations receiving grants under this section to collaborate to enable comparisons regarding best practices across projects.

(e) ANNUAL REPORT.—Each grant recipient shall submit to the Secretary an annual report that—

(i) describes the number of telemental health services provided; and

(ii) includes any other information that the Secretary may require.

(f) REPORTS AND PROGRESS.—

(1) INITIAL REPORT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which the first grant is awarded under this subsection, the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Natural Resources and the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives a report that—

(i) describes each project funded by a grant under this section during the preceding 2-year period, including a description of the level of success achieved by the project; and

(ii) evaluates whether the demonstration project should be continued during the period described in clause (i).

(B) CONTINUATION OF DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—On a determination by the Secretary under clause (ii) of subparagraph (A) that the demonstration project should be continued, the Secretary may carry out the demonstration project during the period described in that clause using such sums otherwise made available to the Secretary as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(2) FINAL REPORT.—Not later than 270 days after the date of termination of funding for the demonstration project under subsection (g), the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Natural Resources and the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives a final report that—

(i) describes the results of the projects funded by grants awarded under this section, including any data available that indicate the number of attempted suicides; and

(ii) evaluates the impact of the telemental health services funded by the grants in reducing the number of completed suicides among Indian youth;

(3) CLARIFICATION REGARDING INDIAN TRIBES

SEC. 5. SUBSTANCE ABUSE AND MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES ADMINISTRATION GRANTS.

(a) GRANT APPLICATIONS.—

(1) EFFICIENCY OF GRANT APPLICATION PROCESS.—The Secretary shall carry out such measures as the Secretary determines to be necessary to maximize the time and workload efficiency of the process by which Indian tribes and tribal organizations apply for grants under any program administered by the Administration, including by providing methods other than electronic methods of submitting applications for those grants, if necessary.

(b) PRIORITY FOR CERTAIN GRANTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—To fulfill the trust responsibilities of the United States to Indian tribes, in awarding relevant grants pursuant to a program described in subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall consider the applicability to the applications of Indian tribes or tribal organizations, as applicable, that serve populations with documented high suicide rates, regardless of whether the Indian tribes or tribal organizations possess adequate personnel or infrastructure to fulfill all applicable requirements of the relevant program.

(B) DESCRIPTION OF GRANT PROGRAMS.—A grant program referred to in subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall—

(i) administered by the Administration to fund activities relating to mental health, suicide prevention, or suicide-related risk factors;

(ii) designed to provide a non-Federal share of the cost of any project or activity carried out using a grant provided under any program administered by the Administration; and

(iii) under which an Indian tribe is an eligible recipient.

(C) CLARIFICATION REGARDING INDIAN TRIBES AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in applying for a grant under any program administered by the Administration, no Indian tribe or tribal organization shall be required to apply through a State or State agency.

(4) REQUIREMENTS FOR AFFECTED STATES.—

(A) DEFINITIONS.—In this paragraph:

(i) AFFECTED STATE.—The term ‘affected State’ means a State—

(I) the boundaries of which include 1 or more Indian tribes; and

(II) to which a project is awarded under any program administered by the Administration of which includes statewide data.

(ii) INDIGNATION.—The term ‘Indian population’ means the total number of residents of an affected State who are members of 1 or more Indian tribes located within the affected State.

(II) REQUIREMENTS.—As a condition of receipt of a grant under any program administered by the Administration, each affected State shall—

(i) describe in the grant application—

(I) the Indian population of the affected State; and

(II) the contribution of that Indian population to the statewide data used by the affected State in the application; and

(ii) demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Secretary—

(I) of the total amount of the grant, the affected State will allocate for use for the Indian population of the affected State an amount equal to the proportion that—

(aa) the Indian population of the affected State bears to

(bb) the total population of the affected State; and

(II) the affected State will offer to enter into a partnership with each Indian tribe located within the affected State to carry out youth suicide prevention and treatment measures for members of the Indian tribe.

(5) SUBSTANCE ABUSE AND MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES ADMINISTRATION GRANTS.

(a) GRANT APPLICATIONS.—

(1) EFFICIENCY OF GRANT APPLICATION PROCESS.—The Secretary, acting through the Administration, shall carry out such measures as the Secretary determines to be necessary to maximize the time and workload efficiency of the process by which Indian tribes and tribal organizations apply for grants under any program administered by the Administration, including by providing methods other than electronic methods of submitting applications for those grants, if necessary.

(b) PRIORITY FOR CERTAIN GRANTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—To fulfill the trust responsibilities of the United States to Indian tribes, in awarding relevant grants pursuant to a program described in subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall consider the applicability to the applications of Indian tribes or tribal organizations, as applicable, that serve populations with documented high suicide rates, regardless of whether the Indian tribes or tribal organizations possess adequate personnel or infrastructure to fulfill all applicable requirements of the relevant program.

(B) DESCRIPTION OF GRANT PROGRAMS.—A grant program referred to in subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall—

(i) administered by the Administration to fund activities relating to mental health, suicide prevention, or suicide-related risk factors;

(ii) designed to provide a non-Federal share of the cost of any project or activity carried out using a grant provided under any program administered by the Administration; and

(iii) under which an Indian tribe is an eligible recipient.

(C) CLARIFICATION REGARDING INDIAN TRIBES AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in applying for a grant under any program administered by the Administration, no Indian tribe or tribal organization shall be required to apply through a State or State agency.

(4) REQUIREMENTS FOR AFFECTED STATES.—

(A) DEFINITIONS.—In this paragraph:

(i) AFFECTED STATE.—The term ‘affected State’ means a State—

(I) the boundaries of which include 1 or more Indian tribes; and

(II) to which a project is awarded under any program administered by the Administration of which includes statewide data.

(ii) INDIGNATION.—The term ‘Indian population’ means the total number of residents of an affected State who are members of 1 or more Indian tribes located within the affected State.

(II) REQUIREMENTS.—As a condition of receipt of a grant under any program administered by the Administration, each affected State shall—

(i) describe in the grant application—

(I) the Indian population of the affected State; and

(II) the contribution of that Indian population to the statewide data used by the affected State in the application; and

(ii) demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Secretary—

(I) of the total amount of the grant, the affected State will allocate for use for the Indian population of the affected State an amount equal to the proportion that—

(aa) the Indian population of the affected State bears to

(bb) the total population of the affected State; and

(II) the affected State will offer to enter into a partnership with each Indian tribe located within the affected State to carry out youth suicide prevention and treatment measures for members of the Indian tribe.

(5) SUBSTANCE ABUSE AND MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES ADMINISTRATION GRANTS.

(a) GRANT APPLICATIONS.—

(1) EFFICIENCY OF GRANT APPLICATION PROCESS.—The Secretary, acting through the Administration, shall carry out such measures as the Secretary determines to be necessary to maximize the time and workload efficiency of the process by which Indian tribes and tribal organizations apply for grants under any program administered by the Administration, including by providing methods other than electronic methods of submitting applications for those grants, if necessary.

(b) PRIORITY FOR CERTAIN GRANTS.—
Secretary shall conduct outreach activities, with a particular emphasis on the provision of telemental health services, to achieve the purposes of this Act with respect to Indian tribes and Alaskan Native entities located in rural, isolated areas.

(4) PROVISION OF OTHER ASSISTANCE.—

(i) General.—The Secretary, acting through the Administration, shall carry out such measures (including monitoring and the provision of required assistance) as the Secretary determines to be necessary to ensure the provision of adequate suicide prevention and mental health services to Indian tribes described in paragraph (2), regardless of whether those Indian tribes possess adequate personnel.

(ii) Application.—(A) To submit an application for a grant under any program administered by the Administration, including programs relating to access to the Internet or other electronic means that may have resulted in previous obstacles to submission of a grant application; or

(B) To fulfill all applicable requirements of the relevant program.

(ii) Description of Indian tribes.—An Indian tribe referred to in paragraph (1) is an Indian tribe—

(A) of which the members experience—

(i) a high rate of youth suicide;

(ii) a low literacy status; and

(iii) extreme health disparity;

(B) that is located in a remote and isolated area; and

(C) that lacks technology and communication infrastructure.

(iii) Authorization of Appropriations.—There are authorized to be appropriated to each program referred to in paragraph (1) grants to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(b) Early Intervention and Assessment Services.

(i) Definition of affected entity.—In this subsection, the term ‘‘affected entity’’ means an entity—

(A) that receives a grant for suicide intervention, prevention, or treatment under a program administered by the Administration; and

(B) the population to be served by which includes Indian youth.

(ii) Requirement.—The Secretary, acting through the Administration, shall ensure that each affected entity carrying out a youth suicide early intervention and prevention strategy described in section 1520(b)(1) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 290bb–36(c)(1)), or any other youth suicide-related early intervention and assessment activity, provides training or education to individuals who interact frequently with the Indian youth to be served by the affected entity (including parents, teachers, coaches, and mentors) on identifying warning signs of Indian youth who are at risk of committing suicide.

(c) Use of Predoctoral Psychology and Psychiatry Interns.

The Secretary shall carry out such activities as the Secretary determines to be necessary to encourage Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and other mental health care providers serving residents of Indian country to obtain the services of predoctoral psychology and psychiatry interns—

(i) to increase the quantity of patients served by the Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and other mental health care providers; and

(ii) for purposes of recruitment and retention.

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself, Mr. Snowe, and Mrs. Feinstein):

S. 1639. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to improve and extend certain energy-related tax provisions, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Expanding Industrial Energy Efficiency Incentives Act of 2009, joined by my Finance Committee colleague, Senator SNOWE, in introducing the Act, which creates the first direct tax-based incentives for industrial energy efficiency. As such, the Act helps our industrial sector and there is significant energy savings potential if these new motors are placed widely into service. By reducing the initial design and added component costs, this new credit will accelerate the adoption of advanced motor technologies into higher volume production, helping to ensure technology available economy-wide.

Third, the bill adds a new incentive for replacing CFC chillers. Large water-cooled chillers are the engines of air-conditioning systems for almost all large buildings. The bill establishes a credit of $150 per ton, plus an additional incentive of $100 for each ton downsized during replacement. The incentive extends only to pre-1993, post-1990 water-cooled chillers that use the refrigerants CFC-112. While chillers that use CFC-11 and CFC-12 refrigerants have been banned for new installations because their refrigerant breakdown products attack the ozone layer, some 30,000 chillers that still use these refrigerants remain in public and private facilities across the country. Replacing these obsolete systems would allow for the recovery of 37 million pounds of ozone depleting CFCs—or 64 million metric tons of carbon dioxide from reduced electricity consumption—the equivalent of taking 3.3 million cars off the road.

While CFC chiller replacement is cost-effective over the long-term, the high up-front costs mean that many building owners do not make these investments. This moderate tax incentive improves the economics and reduces the up-front cost, substantially increasing the number of systems replaced.

Collaterally, but just as significantly, this bill is a jobs bill. For instance, if all CFC chillers are replaced, we expect that approximately 10,500 American jobs can be directly created or preserved in the manufacturing, removal and installation of new chillers. Additional engineering services were expected to take advantage of these incentives, adding up to a potential 60,000 jobs.

Finally, the bill improves the combined heat and power incentive, which was enacted as part of the tax extender package. The package added a 10 percent investment tax credit for combined heat and power systems. The expansion of the combined heat and power tax credit would increase the credit’s applicability from the first 15 megawatts of system capacity and remove the overall system size cap of 50 megawatts, allowing a greater number of combined heat and power projects to be financially viable and move forward. A recent Department of Energy study estimates that ramping up total U.S. combined heat and power to account for twenty percent of electricity capacity, a percentage that is within our reach, would enable to over sixty percent of the expected increase in carbon dioxide emissions from today to 2030—the equivalent of taking more than half of current passenger vehicles in the U.S. off the road.

Together, the four industrial energy efficiency incentives capture a large portion of the energy efficiency potential in the industrial sector. These incentives will catalyze the deployment of new technologies that will decrease carbon emissions and protect our natural resources, all while saving money on energy costs and creating jobs. I look forward to working with Senator Snowe to see these provisions enacted into law.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1639

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE: AMENDMENT OF 1986 CODE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) Short Title.—This Act may be cited as the "Expanding Industrial Energy Efficiency Incentives Act of 2009".

(b) Amendment of 1986 Code.—Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision of the Code of 1986, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) Table of Contents.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; amendment of 1986 Code; table of contents.

Sec. 2. Modifications in credit for combined heat and power system property.

Sec. 3. Motor energy efficiency improvement tax credit.

Sec. 4. Credit for replacement of CFC refrigerant chiller.

Sec. 5. Qualifying efficient industrial process water use project credit.

SEC. 2. MODIFICATIONS IN CREDIT FOR COMBINED HEAT AND POWER SYSTEM PROPERTY.

(a) Modification of Certain Capacity Limitations.—Section 48(c)(3)(B) is amended—

(1) by striking "15 megawatts" in clause (ii) and inserting "25 megawatts";

(2) by striking "20,000 horsepower" in clause (ii) and inserting "34,000 horsepower";

and

(3) by striking clause (iii).

(b) Nonapplication of Certain Rules.—Section 48(c)(3)(C) is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

"(iv) Nonapplication of Certain Rules.—For purposes of determining if the term ‘combined heat and power system property’ includes technology which generate electricity or mechanical power using back-pressure steam turbines in place of existing pressure-reducing valves or which make use of waste heat from industrial processes such as by using organic rankine, stirling, or kalina heat engine systems, subparagraph (A) shall be applied with the exception that it shall apply to—

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to periods after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 3. MOTOR ENERGY EFFICIENCY IMPROVEMENT TAX CREDIT.

(a) In General.—For purposes of section 38, the motor energy efficiency improvement tax credit determined under this section for the taxable year is an amount equal to $120 multiplied by the motor horsepower of an appliance, machine, or equipment—

(1) manufactured in such taxable year by a manufacturer which incorporates an advanced motor system or other motor system technology, or such other motor systems technologies as determined by the Secretary of Energy,

(2) utilizes permanent magnet technology, electronically commutated motor technology, switched reluctance motor technology, or such other motor systems technologies as determined by the Secretary of Energy,

(3) offers variable or multiple speed operation, and

(4) uses permanent magnet technology, electronically commutated motor technology, switched reluctance motor technology, or other motor systems technologies as determined by the Secretary of Energy.

(b) Aggregate Per Taxpayer Limitation.—In the case of a CFC chiller replaced by a new efficient chiller which is certified to meet efficiency standards established by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating, and Air Conditioning Engineers, the term ‘CFC chiller’ includes a water-cooled chiller which is certified to meet efficiency standards established by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating, and Air Conditioning Engineers.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to property manufactured or placed back into service after the date which is 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 4. CREDIT FOR REPLACEMENT OF CFC REFRIGERANT CHILLER.

(a) In General.—For purposes of section 38, the CFC chiller replacement credit determined under this section for the taxable year is an amount equal to—

(b) Conforming Amendments.—

(1) Section 38(b) is amended by striking "plus" at the end of paragraph (34), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (35) and inserting "plus", and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

(36) the motor energy efficiency improvement tax credit determined under section 45R.

(2) Section 101(a) is amended by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (36), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (37) and inserting "and", and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

(38) to the extent provided in section 45R(d)(1).

(3) The table of sections for subpart D of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1, as amended by the end the following new item:

Sec. 45R. Motor energy efficiency improvement tax credit.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to property manufactured or placed back into service after the date which is 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5. QUALIFYING EFFICIENT INDUSTRIAL PROCESS WATER USE PROJECT CREDIT.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as "the Expanding Industrial Energy Efficiency Incentives Act of 2009".

(b) AMENDMENT OF 1986 CODE.—Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) AGGREGATE PER TAXPAYER LIMITATION.—In the case of a CFC chiller replaced by a new efficient chiller which is certified to meet efficiency standards established by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating, and Air Conditioning Engineers, the term ‘CFC chiller’ includes a water-cooled chiller which is certified to meet efficiency standards established on January 1, 2010, as defined in table 6.8c in Addendum M to Standard 90.1-2007 of the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating, and Air Conditioning Engineers.

(d) TONNAGE DOWNSIZING.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘tonnage downsizing’ means the amount by which the tonnage rating of the CFC chiller exceeds the tonnage rating of the new efficient chiller.

(e) ENERGY AUDIT.—As a condition of receiving a tax credit under this section, an energy audit shall be performed on the building prior to installation of the new efficient chiller, identifying cost-effective energy-saving measures, particularly measures that could contribute to chiller downsizing. The audit shall satisfy criteria that shall be issued by the Secretary of Energy.

(f) PROPERTY USED OUTSIDE UNITED STATES NOT QUALIFIED.—No credit shall be allowable under subsection (a) with respect to any property placed in service after December 31, 2013.

(g) Conforming Amendments.—In the case of a CFC chiller replaced by a new efficient chiller the use of which is described in paragraph (3) or (4) of section 50(b) of the Energy Policy Act of 1990, the person who sold such new efficient chiller to the entity shall be treated as the taxpayer that placed in service the new efficient chiller that replaced the CFC chiller, but only if such person clearly discloses to such entity in a document the amount of any credit allowable under subsection (a) and the... person certifies to the Secretary that the person reduced the price the entity paid for such new efficient chiller by the entire amount of such credit.

(‘‘g‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

Sec. 48D. Qualifying efficient industrial process water use project credit.

(a) In general.—Section 46 is amended by striking ‘‘and‘‘ at the end of paragraph (4), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (5), and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

‘‘(37) the CFC chiller replacement credit determined under section 458.’’.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—(1) Amendment by this Act is, by striking ‘‘plus‘‘ at the end of paragraph (35), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (36) and inserting ‘‘, plus‘‘, and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

‘‘(38) the section 48D industrial process water use project credit.’’.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to replacements made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

5. QUALIFYING EFFICIENT INDUSTRIAL PROCESS WATER USE PROJECT CREDIT.

(a) In general.—Section 46 is amended by striking ‘‘and‘‘ at the end of paragraph (4), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (5), and by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

‘‘(6) the qualifying efficient industrial process water use project credit.’’.

(b) AMOUNT OF CREDIT.—Subpart E of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1, as amended by this Act, is amended by adding at the end of the following new item:

‘‘Sec. 458. CFC chiller replacement credit.’’.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to replacements made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 48D. QUALIFYING EFFICIENT INDUSTRIAL PROCESS WATER USE PROJECT CREDIT.

(‘‘a‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘b‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘c‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘d‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘e‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘f‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘g‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘h‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘i‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘j‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘k‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘l‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘m‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘n‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘o‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘p‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘q‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘r‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘s‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘t‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘u‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘v‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘w‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘x‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘y‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

(‘‘z‘‘ shall apply to the site by a public water system.

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself, Mr. CORNYN, and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 1640. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide coverage of intensive lifestyle treatment to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Take Back Your Health Act of 2009. I want to thank my friends Senator CORNYN and Senator HARKIN for joining as original cosponsors of this bill.

This bill is another example of how Democrats and Republicans can come together on health reform. This bill incorporates ideas that bridge the philosophies of both parties: prevention, individual responsibility, and paying for health care services that provide value.

These days, health care reformers talk about bending the cost curve down and focusing on delivery system “game changers”. Often my friends and I have talked about how preventing disease or illness before it happens—does both, but is not scored as bending the cost curve by the Congressional Budget Office.

Over the last year, I have worked with some of the brightest minds in prevention—Doctors Dean Ornish, Mike Roizen, and Mark Hyman—on how to design a program that will change the focus of medicine from treating medical problems to preventing them while delivering savings. The road that took us to this bill has not been an easy one, but I believe this bill achieves all of our goals when it comes to encouraging healthier behaviors that will help prevent disease, especially chronic diseases.

The heart of this bill is what’s called an intensive lifestyle treatment program. This program is an individualized health plan prescribed by a doctor that changes people’s inefficient habits and getting healthier through exercise, nutrition counseling, care coordination, medication management, and stopping smoking.

This type of program has been proven to help even reverse the progression of many chronic diseases. A Highmark Blue Cross Blue Shield study found that their costs went down 50 percent after their patients took part in an intensive lifestyle program. That can mean big savings for Medicare and for seniors.

Even a CMS Medicare demonstration—which notoriously does not score savings for anything—found that people who went through a lifestyle program had the same or lower costs over three years than as Medicare beneficiaries who didn’t go through the program.

In times like these, the American people want to know that the Medicare program is going to get their money’s worth. The Take Back Your Health Act embraces a pay-for-performance type system. Doctors are paid a bundled payment to encourage efficiency and teamwork, and they are held responsible for their success. If a patient’s health status does not improve according to at least two measures, the doctor doesn’t get paid. In addition, if a patient goes through the program for diabetes, but still has problems and has to go to the hospital, the lifestyle treatment doctor doesn’t get paid.

The last innovation in this program is that it gives individuals a financial incentive for getting healthier. Every person who goes through the treatment program and improves his or her health status gets a one-time $200 reward.

The beauty of this bill is that everyone has skin in the game: the doctor, the payors, the government. The success will be the secret of its success. It is just this kind of innovative program that can be a real game-changer for Medicare and for our entire health care system, by bringing the focus of our health care system back to the basics of making us healthier.

I look forward to working with Chairman BAUCUS and Senator GRASSLEY on including this bill in health reform. I urge my colleagues to join me as cosponsors on this bill.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself and Mr. BINGAMAN):

S. 1643. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a credit for the conversion of heating using oil fuel to using natural gas or biomass feedstocks, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, addressing our Nation’s dependence on imported oil and our greenhouse gas emissions will require policies that extend across the economy, as well as policies that are more narrowly tailored to specific sectors. Today, I rise with my colleagues from Maine, Senator SULLIVAN, and Senator WARD, to offer a bill that would enhance energy security and reduce greenhouse gas emissions associated with heating our nation’s homes and buildings. Our bill, the Cleaner, Secure and Affordable Thermal Energy Act, creates significant incentives for consumers, businesses, and tax-exempt entities that now rely on heating oil to convert to energy-efficient natural gas or biomass heating systems.

Across the country, and particularly in the Northeast and Midwest, many homes and buildings still derive heat from oil-burning furnaces. According to the Energy Information Administration, in 2007, our Nation consumed nearly 160 million barrels of oil for heating fuel. This use of heating oil continues despite the existence of widely available alternatives that are cleaner, more secure, and more affordable.

On April 22, I held a hearing in the Energy and Natural Resources Committee on the Energy Efficiency Resource Standards. The Committee heard from several witnesses about the advantages of and efforts to convert residential, business, and public users from oil to natural gas or biomass heating systems. For each household that converts from fuel oil to a natural gas heating system, we avoid 1.7 metric tons of greenhouse gas emissions. For each commercial building, we avoid 9.8 metric tons, and for each industrial facility, we avoid as much as 2,984 metric tons. These emission reductions are even more significant for conversions to heating systems that are fired by biomass resources.

Besides being cleaner, natural gas and biomass are far more secure resources. Ninety-eight percent of domestically consumed natural gas is produced in North America, and domestic reserves of natural gas are estimated at 100 years based on current consumption.

Finally, since the price of natural gas and biomass is lower and less volatile than the price oil, converting offers significant short- and long-term cost savings and efficiencies. For instance, while the average annual cost of using fuel oil for home heating averages $1,734, the average annual cost of operating a natural gas furnace is $1,004.

But significant up-front costs prevent many families and businesses from converting their heating systems. The Cleaner, Secure and Affordable Thermal Energy Act will make these conversions more affordable for American families, businesses, and tax-exempt entities.

First, for residential consumers, the Act establishes a 30 percent tax credit for costs associated with converting from a fuel oil to natural gas or biomass heating system. The credit is capped at $3,500, $1,000 in the case of biomass stoves. To qualify, the replacement equipment must be energy efficient; a natural gas boiler must have an AFUE rating of at least 85 percent, a replacement natural gas furnace must have an AFUE rating of at least 90 percent, and a biomass appliance must have a thermal efficiency rating of more than 75 percent.

For business taxpayers, the act authorizes bonus depreciation for property installed before 2012. This would enable business taxpayers to expense—that is, immediately write-off—half of the cost of qualifying property, and deprecate the remaining balance over the typical cost-recovery period.

Many of the Nation’s heating oil systems are used by public entities, particularly school systems. To help public entities finance their conversions to natural gas and biomass heating, the Act adds conversion programs as an activity eligible for Qualified Energy Conservation Bonds.

Finally, to encourage expansion of natural gas service capabilities, the act includes a two-year extension of the 15-year depreciation schedule created for distribution facilities under the Energy Policy Act of 2005.

The act would move us significantly in the direction of a low-carbon economy while enhancing energy security and reducing heating costs. I look forward to working with Senator SNOWE to enacting our bill into law.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 245—RECOGNIZING SEPTEMBER 11 AS A "NATIONAL DAY OF SERVICE AND REMEMBRANCE"

Mr. SCHUMER (for himself, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. LUTENBERG, Mr. CASEY, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. DODD, and Mr. LIEBERMAN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 245

Whereas, on September 11, 2001, terrorists ruthlessly attacked the United States, leading to the tragic deaths and injuries of thousands of innocent United States citizens and other citizens from more than 90 different countries and territories;

Whereas in response to the attacks in New York City, Washington, D.C., and Shanksville, Pennsylvania, firefighters, police officers, emergency medical technicians, physicians, nurses, military personnel, and other first responders immediately and without concern for their own well-being rose to service, in a heroic attempt to protect the lives of those still at risk, consequently saving thousands of men and women;

Whereas in the immediate aftermath of the attacks, thousands of recovery workers, including trades personnel, iron workers, equipment operators, and many others, joined former first responders in search of the military personnel to help search for and recover victims lost in the terrorist attacks;

Whereas in the days, weeks, and months following the attacks, thousands of people in the United States and others spontaneously volunteered to help support the rescue and recovery efforts, bravely both physical and emotional hardship;

Whereas many first responders, rescue and recovery workers, and volunteers, as well as survivors of the 9/11 terrorist attacks, continue to suffer from serious medical illnesses and emotional distress related to the physical and mental trauma of the 9/11 tragedy;

Whereas hundreds of thousands of brave men and women continue to serve every day, having answered the call to duty as members of the United States Armed Forces, with thousands having given their lives or suffering injury to defend our Nation’s security and prevent future terrorist attacks;

Whereas the entire Nation witnessed and shared in the tragedy of September 11, 2001, and in the immediate aftermath of the attacks became unified under a remarkable spirit of service and compassion that inspired and helped heal the Nation;

Whereas in the years immediately following the attacks of September 11, 2001, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics documented a marked increase in volunteerism among the people of the United States;

Whereas families of 9/11 victims, survivors, first responders, rescue and recovery workers, and others called for Congress to pass legislation to formally authorize the est-establishment of September 11 as an annually recognized “National Day of Service and Remembrance” by the President of the United States to proclaim the day as such;

Whereas, in 2004, Congress unanimously passed H. Con. Res. 473, expressing the sense of Congress that it is appropriate to observe the anniversary of the attacks of September 11, 2001, with voluntary acts of service and compassion;

Whereas hundreds of thousands of people in the United States from all 50 States, as well as others who live in 170 different countries, annually observe the anniversary of the attacks of September 11, 2001, by personally engaging in service, good deeds, and other charitable acts; and

Whereas, on March 31, 2009, Congress passed the Edward M. Kennedy Serve Americas Act, which included for the first time authorization and Federal recognition of Sep-ember 11 as a “National Day of Service and Remembrance”, a bill signed into law on April 21, 2009, by President Barack Obama: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) calls upon all people in the United States to annually observe a “National Day of Service and Remembrance”, with appropriate and personal expressions of reflection, including performing good deeds, attending memorial and remembrance services, and voluntarily engaging in community service or other charitable activities of their own choosing, with the honor of those who lost their lives or were injured in the attacks of September 11, 2001, in tribute to those who rose to come to the aid of those in need, and in defense of freedom; and

(2) urges all people in the United States to continue to live their lives throughout the year with the same spirit of unity, service, and compassion that was reflected through the Nation following the terrorist at-

SENATE RESOLUTION 246—REQUIR-ING THAT LEGISLATION CONSID-ERED BY THE SENATE TO BE CONFINED TO A SINGLE ISSUE

Mr. ENZI (for himself and Mr. BARRASSO) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration:

S. Res. 246

Resolved,

SECTION 1. SINGLE ISSUE REQUIRE-MENT.

(a) POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider a bill or resolution that is not confined to a single subject.

(b) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER AND APPEALS.—

(1) Waiver.—This section may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) Appeals.—Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to any provision of this section shall be limited to 30 minutes, to be equally divided between, and considered by, the appellant and the manager of the bill or joint resolution. An affirmative vote of two-thirds of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required in an appeal from the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this section.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the legislative climate the United States Senate has found itself operating in. Like many of my colleagues, I began my political career in local government. I was mayor in my hometown and then served in legislative bodies in the Wyoming State Legislature. It was during this time I learned that the most effective legislation comes from a process that is transparent and focused. For example, the Wyoming State Legislature requires that all bills be based on one issue. They cannot be loaded up with random provisions, riders, and add-ons that have nothing to do with the overall legislation. In Congress, we often use omnibus bills to pass multiple legislative items that should be considered on their own merit. Omnibus often create more problems in the long run than they solve.

Instead of focusing on one policy issue at a time, we have allowed legislative logjams to foul up the Senate’s work and ill-considered legislation to be hastily pushed through this institution. These legislative practices, which have become the norm are a gangrene that eats away at this institution.

Legislation that is fundamental to our country’s wellbeing has become politicized and burdened with extraneous provisions that have not been fully vetted through the regular order. Most of the time Members have not had the op-opportunity to vote on what they are voting on, let alone the public which will have to live under and pay for whatever lurks in the unseen pages. By tolerating this behavior, the Senate is allowing legislation needed to address our Nation’s most pressing challenges to go through unrefined and lousy with special interest provisions.

To help bring this institution back in line with its original purpose, today I submit my Single Issue Legislation Resolution to be a starting point for changing the attitude the Senate has toward building bills. It will allow us to focus on getting individual issues addressed more effectively. Specifically, this resolution enacts a standing order that creates a point of order against a bill or resolution that is not confined to a single issue. This point of order can only be overruled by a supermajority.

My Single Issue Legislation gives the Senate the opportunity in the amendment process it has always enjoyed and allows the Senate as a legislative body to develop the structure and scope of the standing order through practice and precedent rather than through arbitrary rules. At the same time, we ensure that our legislative process is focused and productive. In short, we bring ourselves back to how the Founding Fathers intended and wanted our legislative process to operate.

Our job is to address political points by stuffing as many pet projects and knee-jerk provisions as we can into bills, but rather to represent the needs of our constituents, our States, and our country by doing what is best for us as a nation. We must get back to a better process for crafting and considering legislation so that we can enact effective policies to meet the many challenge we face today. This is why we were elected to the United States Senate. We owe it to the people we represent to work through a process that allows legislation to be properly and thoroughly considered and debated. My Single Issue Legislation resolution helps us do just that.

SENATE RESOLUTION 247—DESIG-NATING SEPTEMBER 26, 2009, AS “NATIONAL ESTUARIES DAY”

Mr. WHITEHOUSE (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. BURR, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. CAR-PER, Mr. COCHRAN, Ms. COLLINS, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Ms. GILLIBRAND, Mr. GREGG, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LAUTENberg, Ms. MUKLELSKI, Mrs. MURRAY, Mrs. SHAHEEN, Mr. WARNER, and Mr. WYDEN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. Res. 247

Whereas the estuaries of the United States comprise a significant share of the national economy, with 43 percent of the population, 49 percent of employment, and 49 percent of economic output located in such regions;

Whereas coasts and estuaries contribute more than $800,000,000,000 annually in trade and commerce to the Nation’s economy;

Whereas more than 43 percent of all adults in the United States visit a sea coast or estuary at least once a year to participate in some form of recreation, generating $8,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000 in revenue annually;

Whereas more than 28,000,000 jobs in the United States are supported through commercial and recreational fishing, boating, tourism, and other coastal industries that rely on healthy estuaries;

Whereas estuaries provide vital habitat for countless species of fish and wildlife, including many that are listed as threatened or endangered;

Whereas estuaries provide critical ecosystem services that protect human health and public safety, including water filtration, flood control, shoreline stabilization and erosion prevention, and protection of coastal communities during extreme weather events;

Whereas 55,000,000 acres of estuarine habitat have been destroyed over the last 100 years;

Whereas bays once filled with fish and oysters have become dead zones filled with excess nutrients, chemical wastes, and harmful algae blooms;

Whereas sea rise level is accelerating the degradation of estuaries by submerging low-lying lands, eroding beaches, converting wetlands to open water, exacerbating coastal flooding, and increasing the salinity of estuaries and freshwater aquifers;

Whereas in the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 1472) Congress found and declared that it is national policy to preserve, protect, develop, and where possible, to restore or enhance, the resources of the Nation’s coastal zone, including estuaries, for current and future generations;

Whereas estuary restoration efforts cost-fully restore natural infrastructure in local communities, livelihoods, jobs and reestablish the natural functions of estuaries that yield countless benefits; and
Whereas September 26, 2009, has been designated “National Estuaries Day” to increase awareness among all citizens, including local, State, and Federal officials, about the importance of healthy estuaries and the need to protect them; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates September 26, 2009, as “National Estuaries Day”;

(2) supports the goals and ideals of “National Estuaries Day”;

(3) acknowledges the importance of estuaries to the Nation’s economic well-being and productivity;

(4) recognizes the persistent threats that undermine the health of the Nation’s estuaries;

(5) applauds the work of national and community organizations and public partners to promote public awareness, protection, and restoration of estuaries; and

(6) reaffirms its support for estuaries, including the preservation, protection, and restoration thereof, and expresses its intent to continue working to protect and restore the estuaries of the United States.

SENATE RESOLUTION 249—HONORING UNITED STATES NAVY PILOT CAPTAIN MICHAEL SCOTT SPEICHER WHO WAS KILLED IN OPERATION DESERT STORM

Mr. ROBERTS (for himself and Mr. NELSON of Florida) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 249

Whereas more than 81,000 Americans remain missing from World War II, the Korean War, the Cold War, the Vietnam War, and the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan;

Whereas the people of the United States honor Captain Michael Scott Speicher;

Whereas Captain Speicher was shot down in Wadi Thumayil while flying an F/A-18 Hornet fighter jet on January 16, 1991, the first night of the Persian Gulf War;

Whereas Captain Speicher’s fate remained unknown until July 2009, when United States Marines stationed in Anbar recovered his remains in an unmarked desert grave;

Whereas Captain Speicher made the ultimate sacrifice for his country; and

Whereas Captain Speicher’s wife and 2 children have sacrificed to the greatest extent. The people of the United States honor them by commemorating Captain Speicher;

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) honors Captain Michael Scott Speicher for his service and sacrifice, and for giving his life fighting for the Nation in Operation Desert Storm;

(2) honors Captain Speicher’s family for their love and undying strength and determination to bring Captain Speicher home;

(3) encourages the Department of Defense to continue the Nation’s efforts to provide clear and accurate information about what happened to our fallen heroes, to determine the nature and cause of Captain Speicher’s death, and to continue accounting for all who remain missing in action; and

(4) honors the United States Navy, the United States Marine Corps, the Defense Intelligence Agency, and the Department of Defense for their efforts to bring Captain Speicher home.

SENATE RESOLUTION 250—TO AUTHORIZE TESTIMONY AND LEGAL REPRESENTATION IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA V. AMIR SHERVIN

Mr. REID (for himself and Mr. MCCONNELL) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 250

Whereas, in the case of People of the State of California v. Amir Shervin, pending in Superior Court in Alameda County, California, the prosecution has sought testimony from Eric Vizcaino, an employee of Senator Boxer’s office from whom testimony may be necessary; the Senate may, by the judicial or administrative process, be taken from such control or possession by the Senate or by permission of the Senator;

Whereas, when it appears that evidence under the control or in the possession of the Senate may promote the ends of justice, the Senate will take such action as will promote the ends of justice consistent with the privileges of the Senate; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved that Eric Vizcaino and any other employee of Senator Boxer’s office from whose testimony may be necessary be authorized to testify in the case of People of the State of California v. Amir Shervin, except concerning matters for which a privilege should be asserted.

Sec. 2. The Senate Legal Counsel is authorized to represent employees of Senator Boxer’s office in connection with the testimony authorized in section one of this resolution.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 38—EXpressing SUPPORT FOR THE DESIGNATION OF AN EARLY DETECTION MONTH TO ENHANCE PUBLIC AWARENESS OF THE NEED FOR SCREENING FOR BREAST CANCER AND ALL OTHER FORMS OF CANCER

Mrs. HAGAN (for herself and Mr. DURBIN) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions;

S. Con. Res. 38

Whereas more than 2,000,000 new cases of cancer are diagnosed in the United States every year;

Whereas the most common types of cancer in the United States are nonmelanoma skin cancer, breast cancer in women, prostate cancer in men, lung cancer, and colorectal cancers;

Whereas 1 out of every 8 women in the United States will develop breast cancer in her lifetime;

Whereas incidence of breast cancer in younger women is increasing, and breast cancers are generally more aggressive and result in lower survival rates when they occur in young women;

Whereas breast cancer takes the life of 1 woman in the United States every 13 minutes;

Whereas, in 2009, approximately 192,370 women in the United States will be diagnosed with invasive breast cancer;

Whereas available treatments are very unlikely to cure advanced breast cancer;

Whereas many oncologists and breast cancer researchers believe that a cure for breast cancer will not be discovered until well into the future;

Whereas lung cancer (both small cell and non-small cell) is the second most common cancer in women;

Whereas, in 2009, approximately 11,270 women in the United States will be diagnosed with invasive cervical cancer, of which approximately 4,070 will die;

Whereas, if ovarian cancer is detected and treated early, the survival rate is 93 percent, however, fewer than 20 percent of all cases of ovarian cancer are found at an early stage;

Whereas more than 80 percent of all cases occurring in men more than 65 years old;

Whereas African-American men are diagnosed with prostate cancer more often than White men;
Whereas, in 2009, approximately 192,280 men in the United States will be diagnosed with invasive prostate cancer;

Whereas if cancer is detected early enough, more than 75 percent of all people who develop cancer could be saved;

Whereas greater awareness of the critical necessity for the early detection of breast cancer will not just save tens of thousands of lives but also greatly reduce the financial strain on government and private health care services by detecting cancer before it requires very expensive medical treatment;

Whereas there is a need for enhanced public awareness of the need for cancer screening;

And whereas the designation of an Early Detection Month will enhance public awareness of breast cancer and all other forms of cancer; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That Congress supports the designation of an Early Detection Month to enhance public awareness of the need for screening for breast cancer and all other forms of cancer.

The Committee on Veterans’ Affairs held a hearing on pending health care legislation on April 22, 2009, during which the Committee received testimony on S. 423. Support for this bill was voiced by the Department of Veterans Affairs, Disabled American Veterans, American Federation of Government Employees, and Paralyzed Veterans of America. The Committee ordered the bill reported on May 21, 2009. The Committee report—S. Rpt, 111-041—was filed on July 8, 2009.

In 19 of the past 22 fiscal years, final VA appropriations have been enacted late and requests for supplemental appropriations for VA health care have increased in frequency during recent years. Over the past 7 years, final VA appropriations were late approximately 3 months on average. While there has been some impact on the timeliness and overall quality of VA care from these financial and management difficulties in the past, there is a serious concern that continued funding problems could significantly weaken the quality of veterans’ health care. Providing sufficient, timely and predictable funding to the VA health care system would mitigate these dangers and allow VA administrators and directors to more effectively and efficiently provide medical care to veterans.

Advanced funding would allow the VA to function more effectively, to better align with funding cycles, and to avoid annual partisan political maneuvering. Through appropriating funds in advance to the medical services, medical support and compliance, and medical facilities accounts, we can avoid any disruption to the provision of adequate and timely health care to those who have sacrificed a great deal for this nation.

I understand that authorizing advanced appropriations is a serious endeavor and as such have made sure this legislation also enhances oversight of the VA health care budget process. The Comptroller General of the United States will be required to conduct a study of adequacy and accuracy of the budget projection model by VA’s Enrollee Health Care Projection Model and any other model or methodology used to measure health care expenditures. The study would cover the five fiscal years included in each budget submission; however, the focus is intended to be upon the fiscal year for which the advance appropriation would be made. These reports would be submitted to the appropriate committees of Congress no later than the date on which the President submits the budget request for the following fiscal year.

This bill has received support from a myriad of organizations including The Partnership for Veterans Health Care Budget Reform, The Independent Budget Veterans Service Organizations, The Military Coalition, and the American Federation for Government Employees. I thank them for their efforts and ongoing commitment to this legislation.

I thank the many Senators who have cosponsored this legislation, including Committee members Senators BURR, ROCKEFELLER, MURRAY, SANDERS, BROWN, Tester, Begich, Burris, Specter and Isakson. I am also delighted that Senator Snowe was an original co-sponsor of this bill and has worked hard in support of it.

Mr. President, this legislation will bring much needed stability and predictability to the VA health care system and consistent, high-quality health care to the veterans and I am delighted with today's action by the Senate.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to Calendar No. 129, H.R. 1016, the House companion; that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the text of S. 423 be inserted in lieu thereof; the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed; the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table; that upon passage of H.R. 1016, S. 423 be returned to the calendar, with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill (H.R. 1016), as amended, was read the third time and passed, as follows:

H.R. 1016
Resolved, That the bill from the House of Representatives (H.R. 1016) entitled "An Act to amend title XI of the Social Security Act, to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to furnish hospital and domiciliary care, medical services, nursing home care, and related services to eligible and enrolled veterans, but only to the extent that appropriated resources and facilities are available for such purposes."

(1) For 19 of the past 22 fiscal years, funds have not been appropriated for the Department of Veterans Affairs for the provision of health care as of the commencement of the new fiscal year, causing the Department great challenges in planning and managing care for enrolled veterans, to the detriment of veterans.

(3) The cumulative effect of insufficient, late, and unpredictable funding for the Department for health care endangers the viability of the health care system of the Department and impairs the specialized health care resources the Department requires to maintain and improve the health care system of the Department and impair the specialized health care resources the Department requires to maintain and improve the health care system of the Department.

(4) Appropriations for the health care programs of the Department have too often proven insufficient over the past decade, requiring the Secretary to ration health care and Congress to approve supplemental appropriations for those programs.

(5) Providing sufficient, timely, and predictable funding would allow the Department to properly plan for and meet the needs of veterans.

SEC. 3. TWO-FISCAL YEAR BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR CERTAIN MEDICAL CARE ACCOUNTS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS.

(a) TWO-FISCAL YEAR BUDGET AUTHORITY.

(1) In general.—Beginning with fiscal year 2011, new discretionary budget authority provided in an appropriations Act for the appropriations accounts of the Department specified in subsection (b) shall be made available for the fiscal year involved, and shall include new discretionary budget authority for such appropriations accounts that first become available for the first fiscal year after such fiscal year.

(b) MEDICAL CARE ACCOUNTS.

(1) The medical care accounts of the Department specified in this subsection are the medical care accounts of the Veterans Health Administration as follows:

"(1) Medical Services.

"(2) Medical Support and Compliance.

"(3) Medical Facilities.''.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 1 of such title is amended by inserting after the item relating to title I the following new item:

"113A. Two-fiscal year budget authority for certain medical care accounts."

SEC. 4. COMPTROLLER GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES STUDY ON ADEQUACY AND ACCURACY OF BASELINE MODEL PROJECTIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS FOR HEALTH CARE ENDURING FUTURE.

(a) STUDY OF ADEQUACY AND ACCURACY OF BASELINE MODEL PROJECTIONS.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study of the adequacy and accuracy of the budget projections made by the EnrollVE Health Care Projection Model, its equivalent, or other methodologies, as utilized for the purpose of estimating and projecting health care expenditures of the Department of Veterans Affairs (in this section referred to as the "Model") with respect to the fiscal year involved and the subsequent four fiscal years.

(b) REPORTS.—

"(1) In general.—Not later than the date of each year in 2011, 2012, and 2013, on which the President submits the budget request for the next fiscal year under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the Comptroller General shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report setting forth the budget request for such fiscal year in each of the next three fiscal years.

"(2) ELEMENTS.—Each report under this paragraph shall include, for the fiscal year beginning in the year in which such report is submitted, the following:

"(A) A statement whether the amount requested in the budget of the President for expenditures of the Department for health care in such fiscal year is consistent with anticipated expenditures of the Department for health care in such fiscal year as determined utilizing the Model.

"(B) The basis for such statement.

"(C) Such additional information as the Comptroller General determines appropriate.

"(D) AVAILABILITY TO THE PUBLIC.—Each report submitted under this subsection shall also be made available to the public.

"(E) APPROPRIATE COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term "appropriate committees of Congress" means:

"(A) the Committees on Veterans' Affairs, Appropriations, and the Budget of the Senate; and

(b) the Committees on Veterans' Affairs, Appropriations, and the Budget of the House of Representatives.

TO AMEND TITLE XI OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Finance Committee be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 3325 and that the Senate then proceed to its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3325) to amend title XI of the Social Security Act to authorize for 1 year the Work Incentives Planning and Assistance program and the Protection and Advocacy for Beneficiaries of Social Security program.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; further that any statements be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 3325) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

CAMPUS FIRE SAFETY MONTH

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. Res. 40, and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will state the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 40) to designate September 2009 as "Campus Fire Safety Month."

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and any statements related to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 40) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. Res. 40

Whereas, each year, States across the Nation formally designate September as Campus Fire Safety Month;

Whereas, since January 2000, at least 129 people, including students, parents, and children, have died in campus-related fires;

Whereas more than 80 percent of those deaths occurred in off-campus residences;
Whereas a majority of college students in the United States live in off-campus residences;
Whereas a number of fatal fires have occurred in buildings in which the fire safety systems had been compromised or disabled by the occupants;
Whereas automatic fire alarm systems provide the early warning of a fire that is necessary for occupants and the fire department to take appropriate action;
Whereas automatic fire sprinkler systems are a highly effective method of controlling or extinguishing a fire in its early stages, protecting the lives of the building’s occupants;
Whereas many college students live in off-campus residences, fraternity and sorority housing, and residence halls that are not adequately protected with automatic fire sprinkler systems and automatic fire alarm systems;
Whereas fire safety education is an effective method of reducing the occurrence of fires and reducing the resulting loss of life and property damage;
Whereas college students do not routinely receive effective fire safety education during their college years and beyond; and
Whereas, by developing a generation of fire-safe adults, future loss of life from fires may be significantly reduced: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates September 2009 as “Campus Fire Safety Month”; and
(2) encourages institutions of higher education and municipalities across the Nation—
(A) to provide educational programs to all students during September and throughout the school year;
(B) to evaluate the level of fire safety being provided in both on- and off-campus student housing; and
(C) to ensure fire-safe living environments through fire safety education, installation of fire suppression and detection systems, and the development and enforcement of applicable codes relating to fire safety.

AGENT ORANGE AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 248, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk reads as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 248) designating the month of August 2009 as “Agent Orange Awareness Month.”

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 248) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

Whereas between 1964 and 1973, 8,744,000 men and women bravely served our Nation in the Vietnam War;
Whereas an estimated 2,600,000 service men and women may have been exposed to Agent Orange in Vietnam;
Whereas Agent Orange is an herbicide that was used during the Vietnam War to kill unwanted plants and remove leaves from trees that provided cover for the enemy;
Whereas the United States military sprayed more than 19,000,000 gallons of herbicide throughout South Vietnam, with Agent Orange accounting for approximately 11,000,000 gallons of this amount;
Whereas Agent Orange is an extremely toxic substance that contains dioxin;
Whereas the Department of Veterans Affairs has recognized that certain cancers and other health problems are associated with exposure to Agent Orange;
Whereas John Baldacci, the Governor of the State of Maine, has proclaimed August 2009 as “Agent Orange Awareness Month” for that State;
Whereas the State of Alaska has 76,000 veterans, the highest population of veterans per capita, with 26,000 of those being veterans of the Vietnam War; and
Whereas, as a Nation, we are deeply grateful and thankful for those men and women who bravely served during the Vietnam War: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates August 2009 as “Agent Orange Awareness Month”;
(2) calls attention to those veterans who were exposed to Agent Orange and the adverse effects that such exposure has had on their health;
(3) recognizes the sacrifices that our veterans and service members have made and continue to make on behalf of our great Nation, especially those veterans who were exposed to Agent Orange;
(4) reaffirms its commitment to our Nation’s veterans; and
(5) does not, by this resolution, authorize, support, or settle any claim against the United States.

HONORING U.S. NAVY PILOT CAPTAIN MICHAEL SCOTT SPEICHER

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 249, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution (S. Res. 249) was submitted earlier today.

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates August 6, 2009 as “Agent Orange Awareness Month,”
(2) designates August 6, 2009 as “Agent Orange Awareness Month,”
(2) honors Captain Speicher’s family for their love and undying strength and determination to bring Captain Speicher home;
(3) encourages the Department of Defense to continue the Nation’s efforts to provide clear and accurate information about what happened to our fallen heroes, to determine the nature and cause of Captain Speicher’s death, and to continue accounting for all who remain missing in action; and
(4) honors the United States Navy, the United States Marine Corps, the Defense Intelligence Agency, and the Department of Defense for their efforts to bring Captain Speicher home.

AUTHORIZING TESTIMONY AND LEGAL REPRESENTATION

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 250, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk reads as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 250) to authorize testimony and legal representation in People of the State of California v. Amir Shervin.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, this resolution concerns a request for testimony and representation in a criminal action in Superior Court in Alameda County, CA. In this action, the defendant is charged by the State of California with resisting arrest arising out of an attempt by the police to serve him with a warrant requiring his court appearance on the charge that, in September 2006, he battered an employee in the reception area of the San Francisco office of Senator BARBARA BOXER.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 249) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

Whereas 88,000 Americans remain missing from World War II, the Korean War, the Cold War, the Vietnam War, and the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan;
Whereas the people of the United States honor Captain Michael Scott Speicher;
Whereas Captain Speicher was shot down in Wadi Thumayal while flying an F-18 Hornet fighter jet on January 16, 1991, the first night of the Persian Gulf War;
Whereas Captain Speicher remained unknown until July 2009, when United States Marines stationed in Anbar recovered his remains in an unmarked desert grave;
Whereas Captain Speicher made the ultimate sacrifice for his country; and
Whereas Captain Speicher’s wife and 2 children have sacrificed to the greatest extent, and the people of the United States honor them by commemorating Captain Speicher; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) honors Captain Speicher’s family for their love and undying strength and determination to bring Captain Speicher home;
(2) honors Captain Speicher’s family for their love and undying strength and determination to bring Captain Speicher home;
(3) encourages the Department of Defense to continue the Nation’s efforts to provide clear and accurate information about what happened to our fallen heroes, to determine the nature and cause of Captain Speicher’s death, and to continue accounting for all who remain missing in action; and
(4) honors the United States Navy, the United States Marine Corps, the Defense Intelligence Agency, and the Department of Defense for their efforts to bring Captain Speicher home.
