The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PASTOR of Arizona).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

WASHINGTON, DC, February 25, 2010.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Ed PASTOR to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

Nancy Pelosi,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

Lord God, our strength and our salvation, touch us with the flame of Your love. Let it burn out self-interest, that our heartfelt dedication to public service of Your people may be transformed into deeper commitment.

Free this Congress to be Your sterile instrument to heal this Nation and restore its vitality.

May our accomplishments give You alone, Lord, all the glory, both now and forever.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to 10 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

CONGRESS IS BEGINNING TO WORK TOGETHER

(Mr. ALTMIRE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ALTMIRE. Mr. Speaker, the American people have demanded that Congress begin working together to solve this Nation’s problems, and we have done just that.

On Monday, our friends across the Capitol, in the other body as we say, passed their version of the jobs bill by a vote of 70-28. We, in this House, have already passed a different version, and yesterday we passed by an overwhelming bipartisan vote of 406-19 a long overdue elimination of the anti-trust exemption that health insurers have enjoyed for decades. We hope our friends in the other body will join us in a similarly bipartisan vote to send that bill to the President.

And today a bipartisan group of congressional leaders meets at the White House to discuss ways to bring down the cost of health care for every family and every business in America. While we’re not yet finished, and there’s clearly much work yet to be done, Congress this week has made great strides in moving forward on the issues that are of most concern to the American people.

IN RECOGNITION OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH

(Mr. TERRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today during Black History Month to recognize many important contributions African Americans have made to our Nation. We especially honor the extraordinary people who continue to shape our community and our great Nation. The Omaha area is blessed with thousands of successful and talented African Americans, and today I would like to recognize four individuals: Frank Hayes, Phyllis Hicks, Dr. Mary Clinkscale and Dr. Herb Rhodes.

Frank Hayes is a CPA who owns his own business. He is also a founding member and the first president of the 100 Black Men organization, which is dedicated to improving the lives of youth.

Since 1967 Phyllis Hicks has run the Salem Stepping Drill Team and continues to be a volunteer and chief fundraiser for this group. Through her outreach, she has helped many youth overcome obstacles.

Mary Clinkscale, Dr. Mary Clinkscale, or Dr. C, as she’s commonly referred to, is the administrator of the Great Beth-el Temple where she has planned, produced and directed more than 250 theatrical productions and presentations, including a performance to prelude The Tuskegee Airmen.

Dr. Herb Rhodes is a lifetime member of the Omaha business community. He was featured in 1975 in Ebony magazine which highlighted successful African Americans who were leading the way in business.

OUR HEALTH CARE SYSTEM

(Mr. WALZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., 1:407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.
Mr. WALZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to applaud the House, the Senate and the President for having the courage to attack the important issue of health care. I also want to recognize that the legislation passed by this House in November takes a huge leap forward in addressing the issue of paying for value in health care.

The current payment system rewards volume and quantity rather than quality and outcomes. We waste hundreds of billions of dollars every year on tests and procedures that do not improve patient health. We need to change the incentive system. We need doctors and hospitals to work together to coordinate care based around patient need.

In my district in southern Minnesota, the Mayo Clinic has done exactly that. There are other institutions around the country that also provide high-quality, low-cost, efficient care. This is the one issue that both sides can agree on.

Yesterday in Roll Call, led by the Mayo Clinic, the Chamber of Commerce, Cleveland Clinic and other insurers, they stated: reforming health care in America will not become easier with the passage of time. We encourage all stakeholders, government officials, patients, families, insurers, doctors and nurses to work together to pass reforms that provide quality, affordable health care for Americans. This is the path to true health care reform that will strengthen our economy, take care of America’s families, and grow jobs.

AMERICAN HEALTH CARE 1: CANADIAN HEALTH CARE ZERO

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the Canadian Premier of Newfoundland, Daniller Williams, snuck into the United States recently for some stealth health care. Now, why would the Canadian Premier come to the United States for heart surgery? Because his life depended on it.

“My heart, my choice, my health” he proclaimed. When it came down to it, he didn’t trust his life to Canada’s government-run health care system.

The American people have said they don’t want to be forced into signing their lives away with government-run health care either. When life and death decisions are put in the hands of government bureaucrats, it’s unhealthy for everybody.

Just ask the Canadian Premier. When it came down to a matter of his own life, the death decision, the Canadian Premier chose private health care and American heart surgeons over the Canadian nationalized system.
began a hunger strike to protest the human rights violations and the repeated beatings by the Cuban authorities. After an 83-day hunger strike, Orlando Zapata Tamayo passed away on Thursday, February 23, 2010, with his mother at his side.

In mourning the death of Orlando Zapata Tamayo, I urge my colleagues to listen to his message of freedom and respect for human life. As the atrocities he fought against remain the reality of the Cuban tyranny, I must continue to fight for human rights and the release of all political prisoners.

SNOHOMISH COUNTY AUTO THEFT TASK FORCE

(Mr. LARSEN of Washington asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to recognize the Snohomish County Auto Theft Task Force for its success in combating vehicle theft in my district.

Recently, the task force was recognized as the No. 1 auto theft recovery team in Washington State by the Washington Auto Theft Prevention Authority. While vehicle thefts across the State decreased 20 percent in 2009, Snohomish County led the way with a remarkable 29 percent decline.

The Snohomish County Auto Theft Task Force is an example of law enforcement agencies working together to make a difference in our community. The Snohomish team is made up of detectives from the Monroe, Marysville, and Lynnwood police departments; the Washington State Patrol; the Snohomish County Sheriff’s Office, the Snohomish County Prosecutor’s Office, and, most recently, the Tulalip Tribe.

Through this partnership, the task force disrupted the operation of 26 chop shops and theft rings over the past year alone—tracking down stolen vehicles, arresting those responsible, and helping make sure the bad guys were convicted.

Since forming in 2008, the Snohomish County team has convicted over 100 people and recovered 82 vehicles with an estimated value of $1.5 million along with $397,400 worth of stolen property. At a time when budgets are stretched thin, we should not forget the needs of law enforcement or of the work of our prosecutor’s office in making sure these folks are behind bars.

HEALTH CARE SUMMIT

(Mr. HERGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, the President continues to ignore the American people’s fundamental rejection of this health care bill. He needs to listen to the American public when they say “no” to Big Government and “no” to government-run health care. Yet, his proposal is more of the same government intrusion and high taxes that have been the dominant things of his health care plan since day one.

By refusing to change his plan, the President is demonstrating that today’s summit and his rhetoric about working with Republicans to find solutions are purely for show.

Mr. Speaker, it’s time to start over and allow the public to have a seat at the table.

ORLANDO ZAPATA TAMAYO

(Mr. SIRES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SIRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to share my deep sadness over the loss of a human prisoner of conscience, Orlando Zapata Tamayo, held by the Cuban regime.

Orlando Zapata Tamayo was first arrested in March of 2003 for participating in a hunger strike to demand the release of Dr. Oscar Biscet and other prisoners of conscience. Since his initial arrest and unwarranted imprisonment, the regime consistently increased Zapata’s prison term to 47 years.

While in prison, Zapata endured frequent beatings and unimaginable living conditions. On December 3, Mr. Zapata... agriculture education is one way to help secure our food supply. I urge you to join me and many of our colleagues, as well as the NAAE, on behalf of the National Council for Agricultural Education, in supporting America’s agricultural educators and students on this day, National Teach Ag Day.

BIPARTISAN EFFORT FOR JOB CREATION

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, we all know that most of the political eyes and other eyes are focused down at the Blair House right now as the health care summit has just gotten underway, and my friend from Fort Lauderdale and I are going to begin the floor management of the very important intelligence authorization bill focused on our Nation’s security.

But we can’t forget what issue is in the forefront of the minds of most Americans, and that is getting our economy back on track, focusing on job creation and economic growth. And we’ve just gotten the news this morning that there has been an unfortunate 12 percent increase in the jobless claims, and we continue to have mixed reports on where we are with the economy.

It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that it’s absolutely imperative for us to work in a bipartisan way to put into place true private sector job creation incentives, and by that I mean utilizing the bipartisan effort that was, in the last half century, utilized by John F. Kennedy, a bipartisan effort that was, in the last half century, utilized by John F. Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey, a bipartisan effort that was, in the last half century, utilized by John F. Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Res. 1105

Resolved. That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XIX, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 2701) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2010 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the United States Government, the Community Management Account, and the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, and for other purposes.

Providing for consideration of motions to suspend the rules

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1105 and ask for its immediate consideration. The House may consider a 1-year extension of the PATRIOT Act today so the Intelligence Committee will be making this document available for Member review from the committee offices located in HVC-304. Staff from the Intelligence and Judiciary Committees, as well as personnel from the Justice Department and with the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, will be available to answer any questions that Members may have. Members who want to review the document should call the Intelligence Committee to schedule an appointment.

Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from California, my good friend, Mr. DREIER. All time yielded during consideration of the rule is for debate only.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to inform Members that the Intelligence Committee has received a classified document from the Department of Justice that is related to the PATRIOT Act authorities currently set to expire at the end of the month.

The House may consider a 1-year extension of the PATRIOT Act today so the Intelligence Committee will be making this document available for Member review from the committee offices located in HVC-304. Staff from the Intelligence and Judiciary Committees, as well as personnel from the Justice Department and with the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, will be available to answer any questions that Members may have.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days with which to revise and extend their remarks and to insert extraneous materials into the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida?

Mr. DREIER. All time yielded during consideration of the rule is for debate only.

General LEAVE

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am grateful for your recognition. All Members have 5 legislative days with which to revise and extend their remarks and to insert extraneous materials into the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Mr. Speaker, the resolution, as announced by our Clerk, provides for consideration of H.R. 2701, the Intelligence Authorization Act for fiscal year 2010, under a structured rule. The resolution waives all points of order against consideration of the bill except those arising under clause 9 or 10 of rule XXI. The resolution provides 1 hour of debate on the bill, makes in order only those amendments printed in the rule, and the resolution waives all points of order against such amendments except those arising under clause 9 or 10 of rule XXI.

The resolution provides one motion to recommit with or without instructions and provides that the Chair may entertain a motion to rise only if offered by the Chair of the Intelligence Committee or his designee and provides that the Chair may not entertain a motion to strike the enacting words of the bill.

The resolution provides for a motion to consider the Senate bill and substitute its text with the text of H.R. 2701 as passed by the House. The resolution waives all points of order against the Senate bill and its consideration. It also makes in order a motion that the House retain its amendment and request a conference with the Senate and waives all points of order against such motion.

The resolution waives a requirement of clause 6(a) of rule XII for a two-thirds vote for same-day consideration of a report from the Rules Committee through the legislative day of Friday, February 25. It also permits the Speaker to consider motions to suspend the rules through the legislative day of Friday, February 26. The Speaker shall consult with the minority leader on the designation of any matter under this authority.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the rule providing for consideration of H.R. 2701, the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010.

As vice chairman of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, I know that the intelligence community is the first line of defense against terrorists, proliferators of weapons of mass destruction, and other rogue elements who wish to do us and our allies harm here at home and across the globe.

This legislation provides policy guidance to the intelligence community while also improving oversight and helping to prevent disastrous consequences that faulty intelligence and a misinformed Congress can have on national security.

Mr. Speaker, I have the honor and privilege of meeting many of our intelligence professionals in over 50 countries around the world during my oversight travel as a member of the Intelligence Committee. I cannot overstate how much I and the members of the committee, and I am sure all Members of this body, appreciate them and are humbled by their service. Their dedication and commitment became more evident when seven Americans made the ultimate sacrifice during a terrorist attack in Khost, Afghanistan, this past December.

But the attempted terrorist attack on Northwest Flight 253 on Christmas Day last year served as a stark reminder to all Americans that in spite of our best efforts we are still under attack, and we still have much work to do to get it right. The constant threat from violent extremists reinforces that now more than ever, and we must give the intelligence community the resources, flexibility it needs to thwart the continuing and emerging threats to United States national security.

For the last 4 years, our country has gone without an intelligence authorization bill. I find it very distressing that the House Intelligence Committee, which was created to ensure proper oversight and accountability of our intelligence community, has worked diligently every year to pass a bill but has not seen one signed into law in recent years.

As we have seen, the intelligence community is in dire need of independent oversight. Sadly, when we created the Director of National Intelligence, we did not create an independent Inspector General. This bill would remedy that flaw by making clear that the Inspector General does not stand at the whim of the Director of National Intelligence and also has an independent responsibility to keep Congress informed.

Some of my colleagues on the other side have argued against the creation of a new Inspector General. I would respectfully disagree with their assessment. It is clear that this provision will help to streamline and coordinate oversight.

This bill also contains a provision in the manager's amendment providing sensible reforms to the Gang of Eight provisions of the Intelligence Committee. I have seen that process abused in the past, and I am glad that we are taking a careful step towards reform. I believe that the administration has a statutory and constitutional duty to keep members of the Intelligence Committee, all members of the Intelligence Committee, fully informed on current intelligence matters. Therefore, by reforming this process, the bill enhances transparency and bolsters Congress' capacity to conduct important oversight.

The bill also clarifies the responsibility of the Director of National Intelligence to cooperate with GAO investigations initiated by Congress. GAO can provide the Congress with valuable expertise and assist with oversight functions, especially in areas of auditing and security clearance reforms.

I have stated time and time again that the Intelligence community is not diverse enough to do its job of stealing and analyzing foreign countries' secrets. Diversity is a mission imperative. I have offered an amendment on diversity in the intelligence community to the underlying bill. My amendment contains a requirement for the Director of National Intelligence to report to Congress on a comprehensive plan to improve diversity in the intelligence community. It calls on the Director to report on specific implementation plans for each element agency in the community. It also requires information on plans to improve minority retention, not only at the junior and mid-grade levels, but also at senior management levels as well.

Finally, it requires that the Director of National Intelligence report to the congressional Intelligence Committees on the efforts being made with diversity training and how improvement in diversity will be measured. This amendment, along with many other important provisions in this bill, will make our intelligence community more effective, more efficient, and more accountable.

Given the immense security challenges facing our Nation, it is vital that Congress pass this legislation so that we may continue to fulfill our commitment to the safety and well-being of the great American people.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. I yield myself such time as I might consume.

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, let me first express my appreciation to my friend from Fort Lauderdale, a member. of both the Rules Committee and a distinguished member of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

Mr. Speaker, last Christmas Day, as we all know, when a passenger boarded Northwest Airlines Flight 253 headed for the Dwight D. Eisenhower Metropolitan Airport, the issue of national security once again rose to the forefront, to the top of the agenda for everyone in our country. This is, of course, never, never far from our minds. But in recent months, as several high-profile terrorist plots have been thwarted, the tragic shooting at Fort Hood had taken place and our troops continue to fight two wars, we know that the threat of attacks on Americans remains a very real threat to us.

What was so shocking and revealing about the attempted attack on Christmas Day was not that al Qaeda remains a threat. This much we all know. What was most troubling to the American people was the revelation that to information was available that could have prevented Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab from ever boarding that plane in the first place.

Last month, December 25, as everyone, including the President has acknowledged, the system failed us. If not for the perpetrator’s failure to properly detonate the device and the heroic acts of his fellow passengers, this attempted attack would have become a horrible, horrible tragedy. It was not careful intelligence gathering, analysis, and coordination that saved the people on that plane; it was luck and the quick thinking on the part of those very courageous passengers.

Mr. Speaker, the American people rightly banded, immediately after Christmas, on Christmas Day and thereafter, to ask questions about what is being done to address this failure that allowed Abdulmutallab to board that plane. What exactly what wrong? How can we fix the system? What can we do to prevent this kind of failure ever, ever happens again.

Now, in light of these questions, it would seem appropriate that today we would be considering our annual intelligence authorization bill. Now is the time to compile the lessons learned from the attempted attack on Flight 253, the Fort Hood shooting, the numerous arrests of would-be terrorists like Najibullah Zazi and David Headley and the continued items that obviously we don’t hear about out there.

As the Statement of Administration Policy from July 8 of last year: “The administration has serious concerns with a number of provisions that would impede the smooth and efficient functioning of the intelligence community and that would raise a number of policy, management, legal and constitutional concerns.” That is the Statement of Administration Policy.

The statement went on to elaborate on the bill’s flaws: the serious risk of compromising highly sensitive data, the new layers of bureaucracy, the impediments to building an intelligence workforce for the 21st century, the inordinate oversight that we are not doing our job, the accusations, Mr. Speaker of political adversaries; these were the serious criticisms of President Obama. And they were leveled nearly 8 months ago before a whole host of new challenges that now face us. And the consequence to this was not a good idea at the time and, as I said, was criticized harshly by President Obama.

The manner in which they are bringing this bill to the floor is just as troubling, Mr. Speaker. The Democratic majority will likely claim that a bipartisan amendment process has been allowed: five Democratic amendments were made in order, four Republican amendments, and three bipartisan amendments. Yet these numbers mask the fact that 21 Democratic amendments were included in the manager’s amendments. This only not skew the process in a very partisan way, but it denies the Members of this body representing all Americans, representing Democrats and Republicans alike, the opportunity to vote on these 21 amendments individually based on their merits. We are denied the opportunity for transparency and scrutiny.

What’s worse, Mr. Speaker, is that this rule has implications for legislation far beyond the intelligence bill at hand. This rule provides a blanket check for the Democratic leadership to bring up any bill at any time today or tomorrow without a shred of transparency or even one moment of public scrutiny. This rule gives them carte blanche to take whatever legislative action they choose, entirely absent of any accountability.

And I’ve got to say, I was thinking about this last night when we were in the Rules Committee, to impose this kind of structure this early in a Congress—the second month of the second session of the 111th Congress. It's beyond the pale. When such drastic and draconian measures are taken to shield their actions from all scrutiny, we can only ask ourselves, what exactly are they plotting? What exactly are they trying to hide from the American people?

Mr. Speaker, for the sake of the security of our homeland and for the sake of a return to the often-promised accountability and transparency, I urge my colleagues to reject this rule. What we need to do is we need to take a hard look at the intelligence failures that have taken place. Let’s ask the hows and the whys and make the necessary reforms that will ensue that we never again have to rely on blind luck to protect the American people.

Mr. Speaker, perhaps most important of all, we must reject this attempt to shield the Democratic majority’s actions from public view.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

You know, Mr. Speaker, I appreciate my good friend from California’s desire to address Flight 253, but in my view, his complaints that the bill is outdated ignores the rule. The rule makes in order an amendment by Representative SCHAUER directed at the lessons of Flight 253.

Now, listen, the intelligence community, constituted of 16 elements, is charged with warning countless attacks on this country that go unnoticed, whether it be in the field of cyber, whether it be on the battlefront. We are constantly in that position. There have been hundreds of successes to protect our homeland security.

Mr. DREIER. Will the gentleman yield?
Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Certainly I will yield to my friend.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, let me say that I completely concur with my colleague about this notion of our recognizing that day after day—and I had that in my opening remarks—day after day we are seeing the prevention of the kinds of attacks that we are all concerned about, and we should and herald the intelligence community for that. I think that what we need to focus on is the Abdulmutallab situation, the Fort Hood shootings, and the Najibullah Zazi and David Headley arrests. These things do take place, and since this bill had any kind of committee consideration last year. And all we are arguing is, yes, it's great that some amendments have been made in order—unfortunately, it's a very partisan item to have the Intelligence included in the manager's amendment—but we believe very strongly that the committee—and you know very well, having worked so hard on that committee, that a lot of work takes place in secrecy, understanding that these situations, that should happen before bringing a measure of this magnitude to the floor that even the President and so many others have acknowledged is flawed.

I yield my friend for yielding.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Well, when you speak of the President's directions, there were several principal matters that the President referenced in his, as you put it, threatened veto. But the veto, more specifically, the principal objection was to the Gang of Eight restriction that many of us in the committee supported for the reason that we think—and thought—that each and every one of the members should be asked before—that each of the members should be advised by the President the same as those of the Gang of Eight.

You know, we use these terms around here. The Gang of Eight are the central players—the Speaker, the minority leader, the majority leader, and any Chair and any member of the committee Chairs and ranking members. That is who that small kernel of people are who receive specific information. I hope the public at least understands some aspect of that.

The point that I was trying to make and will continue to make is—let me give you a for example. In the last month, I have visited our intelligence operations in nine countries, including Saudi Arabia, Turkey, Israel, Jordan, Egypt, Ukraine, Germany, just to mention a few. In each of those places—and there were others that will go unmentioned—in each of those places I learned of immense success and reporting of saving backyards to the intelligence community and to the President. Nobody talks about that in the newspaper. Nobody talks about that in this particular setting. You pick three incidents out of thousands of successes and point to a community's failures. I can't accept that.

For 10 years I have watched on this committee these people work their hearts out. Republicans and Democrats, under the leadership of—friends of mine and yours—Porter Goss, who led this committee, others long before Leon Panetta, and the other committees that don't even get mentioned at all because most people don't even know that they have intelligence operations. What would happen in this world, what would happen with our allies if we did not have the SIGNEP? How would we be having the successes that we have in Afghanistan today of leaders of Taliban, leaders of al Qaeda? All the time it seems to me that all that comes out as is, oh, they just took another one, but it doesn't get played up. If one of them managed to get to Canada and to the United States, then that would be the biggest talk that we would have here in Congress. It's not fair, and fairness to the intelligence community is as deserving as any other parts of our bureaucracy that fail considerably, including this institution.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for just 1 second?

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I was going to yield my time, and I ask the gentleman to take his time, but I am more than happy to yield.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for yielding. And Mr. Speaker, let me just say that I totally concur with absolutely everything my friend just said.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Well, then, I will just take my time back, now that you agree with me.

Mr. DREIER. All I want to do is agree with you. So thank you very much.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, at this time, I am very, very happy to yield 4 minutes to the very hardworking and diligent and thoughtful ranking member of the Select Committee on Intelligence, our friend from Clarendon, Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY).

Mr. THORNBERRY. I appreciate the gentleman to take his time, but I am absolutely everything my friend just said. That is who that small kernel of people are. It is flawed.

I yield my friend for 1 second.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for yielding.

Should there be a complete record of the briefings that were made to Congress about various antiterrorism matters or should those just be selectively leaked out as is happening now?

Another question: Should we automatically give the Miranda warning that says you have the right to remain silent when a non-U.S. person is obtained here in the United States?

Another question: When we get into that situation? What are his organization overseas? What are his rights and what are our responsibilities when we get into that situation?

something that is against one’s individual religious beliefs.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DREIER. I am happy to yield to my friend an additional 2 minutes.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I appreciate the gentleman for yielding.

Now, remember, we can’t have debates on serious issues regarding Guantanamo, Miranda rights and other things. What is hitting in this blizzard of report, the several pages which say, if our intelligence professionals try to get information from a terrorist in order to prevent future terrorist attacks and if they don’t give him the proper amount of sleep, our intelligence professionals will go to jail.

If they do anything that violates how the terrorist sees his religious rights, without any standard of reasonableness, without any standard to judge it by—it’s like, if the terrorist says, My religion requires me to have a Big Mac every day. If we don’t give that Big Mac, we are violating this provision, and our intelligence professionals will go to jail.

There are provisions which say subjecting a terrorist to prolonged isolation on our intelligence professionals to go to jail. How many county jails and State prisons in the country could operate under this standard? I would say none. This provision will treat terrorists more gingerly than those who commit crimes in your neighborhoods.

So, Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, what this rule does is it avoids the debates on the substantive issues. Yet there is this thread, which I don’t believe the President seems to share—perhaps some in his administration do, and perhaps a few people in this Congress do—a thread of antagonism against our intelligence professionals which says we are going to prosecute them, as the Justice Department is investigating, and that we are going to send them to jail if they don’t coddle these terrorists in the appropriate way.

I think that reflects a lack of seriousness with this measure, and that is sufficient reason to reject this rule.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I have listened to my colleague, who is an absolutely brilliant member of the intelligence community, and he has provided continuing and dedicated service for the period of time he has served on this committee together. There is one thing, I think, I know a little bit more about than he does, and that is our prison system, and that is for the reason that I participated, as a State and a Federal judge and then as a lawyer, in dealing with circumstances in our prisons.

Our colleague suggests that detainees are treated in a certain way, and those particular things—for example, food and the length of the hair or religious convictions—have been litigation ad nauseam in the United States. I can assure you that persons who are in custody in the United States find themselves able to access to the food that comports with their religious requirements and also the other circumstanc es.

One thing that is great about America is that we do have values, and one thing that is great about handling other things they very much better when they even ever consider us, is that those values manifest themselves in the treatment of persons who are our enemies.

Now, I am going to try with this document here to present this not-in-my-backyard argument that I continue to hear from my colleagues about Guantanamo.

I first want to commend to my colleagues H.R. 3728, the Detainee Reform Act of 2009, which I filed, and I would urge them to look at it and to look at the detention criteria and at the ways to process detainees, as well as the reporting requirements that transpire, I will not take the time now to go into detail, but that measure is sitting here, and any one of them can join it. I have no pride of authorship, and I’ve said to Members on the other side and on our side that, if there is something they can add or detract, then please do it.

Regarding where you put people whom we hold and somehow or another the thought being that we can’t try people in our Federal system or, for that matter, if we have a situation where every detainee must be tried in military commissions, according to the Bureau of Prisons, ADX Supermax in Florence, Colorado, has a capacity of 490 inmates. There are currently 445, leaving 45 cells available. I can assure you anybody in Guantanamo could be transferred here with no threat to Florence, Colorado. No one has ever escaped Supermax. Supermax officers are some of the best trained in the Nation, and current and former inmates include—let me just give you some of these people:

Anthony Casso, a mobster and former underboss of the Lucchese crime family, is at this prison. Wadid el-Hage, a coconspirator in the 1998 United States embassy bombings, is in this prison. Matthew Hale, a white supremacist leader convicted of soliciting the murder of a Federal judge, is in this prison. Larry Johnson, a leader of the Gangster Disciples Nation, based in Chicago, is in this prison. Jeff Fort, the founder of the Almighty Latin Kings and Queens Nation, is in this prison. Howard Mason, a drug trafficker, who ordered the murder of Police Officer Eddie Byrne, is in this prison. A leading member of the Aryan Brotherhood, Barry Mills, is in this prison.

What are you talking about when you stand around and tell people that we can’t hold people in this Supermax prison? We can hold them in Guantanamo. We can hold them in Supermax, and we can do everything that is required, and it is our nation in order to protect ourselves in that regard.

Yet what has happened in this institution is you have given the American people a chance to believe that they are afraid of them in certain institutions in your neighborhood. Well, they come through your neighborhoods an awful lot, and you evidently don’t know about it. I, personally, am just a little tired of your not-in-my-backyard attitude about this particular system. We can hold terrorists, and we can hold criminals, and we’ve been doing it all of my adult career, and that’s 50 years as a lawyer. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, let me just say that my friend from Gold River, California, has been attempting to engage in a colloquy with my friend. I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Gold River, California (Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN), and I am sure that he will yield to the gentleman from Fort Lauderdale if he would like to respond in any way.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman and my amendment did one simple thing. It said that those who are currently in or in the future will be in Guantanamo Bay will not be transferred to U.S. sovereign territory for any trials. That is, they will stay at Guantanamo with the specially created courtroom that we have there—absolutely secure—under the Military Tribunal approach which we, the Congress, passed in 2005.

I mean that’s the answer to your question, but it must seem strange to the American people that the majority would be afraid, seemingly, to allow us to debate that with real consequence. You worry that we would violate the rule, knowing it has no consequence. The real consequence would be if we had an opportunity for the American people to actually be heard by way of legislation.

It is interesting that you did make in order the manager’s amendment, which will give newly established rights, by way of penalty, to our members of the intelligence community if they would dare deprive one of these individuals of sleep, without informing them for too long a period of time—neither one of them defined in the statute.

So what we have done is we have said we will continue to ignore the American people who have said loudly and clearly we should not want Khalid Sheikh Mohammed and his confederates to come to New York. We do not want those in Guantanamo to come to the United States.

I find it strange that the gentleman from Florida would compare H Rap Brown to a terrorist involved in a terrorist network. He doesn’t understand—I know he does understand. I’m sure it was a rhetorical device the gentleman was using—the difference between someone who is an American citizen and the rights that he has versus someone who happens to be a noncitizen—in fact, an unlawful enemy combatant. There is a distinction that has always been known in our courts, and the law is going to extend the full parity of constitutional rights to someone whose only connection with the United States is that that person was captured on the battlefield, attempting to kill Americans, is inconsistent with the history of this Nation and is inconsistent with all of the decisions of the Supreme Court.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DREIER. May I inquire of the Chair how much time is remaining on both sides if I yield to my friend from Gold River?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California has 13 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Florida has 7 minutes remaining.

Mr. DREIER. I yield an additional 1 minute to my friend from Gold River, California.

Mr. Daniel E. Lungren of California. So we have right now, taking place across the street from the White House, a summit on health care. We should be having a summit today on the intelligence community, in our effort against those who would wish to destroy us by terrorism. The way we act suggests to the American people this is not on the top of our priority list but on the bottom.

Later, we are going to have the rule on the PATRIOT Act. Why? Because, within a couple of days, three provisions of the PATRIOT Act are set to expire.

Monday, we rushed in here. We had an extra day of voting. What did we do? We worked to rid the country of the scourge of unnamed post offices. We are这儿 to make sure that—man—we’ve got to find some more post offices to name.

Why couldn’t we give additional time to allow amendments that are serious in nature and that the American people want us to deal with on this floor? But no. Once again, the Rules Committee has said we are not going to allow it, but we are going to incorporate in the manager’s amendment an amendment which actually provides greater rights to the American people. We are here to make sure that—man—we’ve got to find some more post offices to name.

And you’re correct. I was using the people in the Supermax to make the point no matter who they were, whether they were Zacarias Moussaoui, who certainly isn’t an American citizen, or countless others who can house them and that they can’t escape. The fear seems to think is that they would escape.

Mr. Speaker. I yield 1 minute to my colleague on the Rules Committee, the distinguished gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Perlmutter).

Mr. Perlmutter. I won’t take the 1 minute.

I’d say to my friend from California, in Colorado we were asked to take over the trial of Timothy McVeigh, who had blown up an office building in Oklahoma. He didn’t do it in Colorado. But we said okay, we’re part of this country. We’re part of America. We have a responsibility. We don’t know what kind of crazy people are going to come and try to disrupt or harm our judges, our people that worked in the prisons or the like, but we took that responsibility. We weren’t afraid of that responsibility. And our judicial system, our Federal judges, handled that matter. I think, in a very fair, fine, and proper manner. Did we do it because that’s who we are. And we’ve taken prisoners into our supermax who are terrorists by anybody’s definition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. Hastings of Florida. I yield the gentleman an additional 30 seconds.

Mr. Perlmutter. We take responsibility for those Americans who Americans have to deal with. We don’t like dealing with it. You don’t like dealing with it. But we have to. So we’re prepared. In our court system in America, whether it’s in New York or Colorado or California or good judges. We have good people that work in our Bureau of Prisons. We can handle this.

Mr. Dreier. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume. I would first say to my good friend from Colorado, Mr. Lungren has just reminded me that the moment one of these individuals is on American soil, they have enhanced rights that they would not otherwise have.

I would like to engage in a colloquy with the very distinguished ranking member of the Select Committee on Intelligence to discuss one of the amendments that unfortunately will not see the light of day, that we will not have the opportunity to debate other than in the context of the overall manager’s amendment, which included 21 amendments from our Democratic colleagues, including the McDermott amendment.

Now, the McDermott amendment, which was discussed by my friend from Clarendon, is an amendment that provides basically carte blanche, an opportunity for any individual, one of these bad plans, to claim that the reasons that they are being mistreated. The moment I heard the word “Big Mac” come forward from my friend Mac Thornberry, I have to say who’s my Big Mac, but I thought, my gosh, someone could actually claim that being denied a Big Mac would be cruel and unusual punishment? And I’ve got to say as I look at the litany of items on here, including exploiting phobias of the individual, I just don’t understand it. And I wonder if my friend might further enlighten us on this.

I’m happy to yield.

Mr. Thornberry. I thank my friend for yielding.

Let’s start with a bit of context. Remember, the Army field manual has been published so that terrorists all around the world know what we will and will not do to them. This will take it another step forward and actually put those terrorists on more consideration than ordinary criminals in our criminal justice system.

For example, it is not unusual, I suspect, for the FBI to interrogate someone accused of a crime, perhaps involving, for 15 years, to see if you cooperate with us or you may get the death penalty. That would be illegal under this amendment. As a matter of fact, the intelligence professional who says that under this amendment would go too far. And if you claim you cannot threaten the use of force.

The gentleman’s correct; there is no standard of reasonableness for what they would classify as your religious practice, so I can classify as my religious practice anything I say. And the intelligence professionals have to coddle to that or they could go to jail. It is an outrageous inversion of our priorities. I think, Mr. Speaker, where we care more about cuddling the terrorists than we do about protecting the American people.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for his contribution.

He just reminded me that the speech that everyone heard, what was described as the “Scott heard ‘round the world” when we saw Scott Brown elected to the United States Senate seat in Massachusetts, the line that came to the forefront was, I want to make sure that my tax dollars are expended on fighting against these terrorists rather than expending our tax dollars defending these terrorists. And the McDermott amendment stakes and expands the labor, time, and energy in defending them. And, unfortunately, the only discussion that we will have on this, Mr. Speaker, is during consideration of the rule because we’re not going to have a chance to vote on this amendment other than its being included in the overall manager’s amendment with 20 other amendments being included.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I continue to have to teach law here, and I never wanted to do that.

The language in the manager’s amendment restates existing criminal law prohibitions like those in the Detainee Treatment Act and clearly establishes that the United States will adhere to the rule of law, and that’s whether a person is in Guantanamo or whether they are in Colorado.

That said, at this time I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentlewoman from New Hampshire (Ms. SHEA-PORTER).

Ms. SHEA-PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the chairman for his hard work on the underlying bill.

As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, I know just how important it is to focus on vulnerabilities in the global supply chain, and I’m glad that my amendment was included in the manager’s amendment.

My amendment broadens review of global supply vulnerabilities to include the risks not only from counterfeit products but from original products. Considering the number of foreign state-owned or state-invested enterprises in the technology industry that manufacture products for our market, original products present serious risks to our defense and intelligence systems.

The amended review also assesses the impact of the provision of services by foreign-owned companies, which also creates vulnerabilities in the supply of parts and equipment, causing increased vulnerability to cyberattack on our intelligence systems.

I urge my colleagues to support the rule and the manager’s amendment.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, at this time I yield 3 minutes to a very thoughtful new Member who has expended a great deal of time and energy tracking what we can at least have a debate on the issue of bringing terrorists onto U.S. soil, my friend from Peoria, Mr. SCHOCK.

Mr. SCHOCK. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend from California for the time.

What a novel idea. The United States House of Representatives would debate the power of a good idea.

You know, in my short 1 year in this body, it’s amazed me how many amendments have come before this body at a straight up-or-down party vote. Republicans vote one way and Democrats vote another.

We live within the confines of majority rule. It’s something that our voters and taxpayers live with. It’s something that we in this body live with. But I think there’s something that almost everyone that I represent in my district abhors, and that is the notion that the power of a good idea is not allowed the form of debate in this body and that all Members get an up-down vote for each Member to cast his or her vote based on the best interests of their districts. And for that reason, Mr. Speaker, I offered three what I thought were thoughtful amendments specifically dealing with the proposal to move the rehabilitated Guantanamo Bay detention facility to my State in Illinois.

I might add, Mr. Speaker, that this wasn’t just an idea that I had, but rather, I was joined by every single member of the Illinois delegation on my side of the aisle. They felt this was important enough to allow both sides to be able to debate this issue, both sides, each individual Member, a straight up-or-down vote.

Now, what we wanted each Member to be able to vote on? Well, ladies and gentlemen, there’s been much talk about moving all of these prisoners, close to 100 of them, from Gitmo to the center part of our country, in the Midwest, in Illinois, and the idea that somehow that will make us safer as a Nation by moving those terrorists to our country. Yet one of the questions that continually is asked of me, as well as my colleagues who represent the State of Illinois, is who are these people? What are their names? Why are they being held? What acts of terror have they attempted or committed against our country?

So our amendment was very simple. It said this: The American people ought to know what we know. If the American people are supposed to weigh in to their elected representatives to say, yes, we think it’s a great idea for Guantanamo Bay to come to Illinois, don’t you think they should have the information in order to make an informed decision? After all, I sat in this front row a year ago and listened to the Speaker of this House talk about how I was going to be a part of the most transparent and open government in United States history. Imagine being a part of the most transparent and open government in United States history. And yet today, ladies and gentlemen, taxpayers, not just in the State of Illinois where these terrorists are supposed to be coming, but every American—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to my friend from Illinois.

Mr. SCHOCK. Thank you. I’ll wrap up.

Ladies and gentlemen, it’s real simple. In the most transparent and open government in United States history, shouldn’t the American people know what we know?

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, at this time I am happy to yield 2½ minutes to a hardworking member of the Intelligence Committee, a veteran of the FBI, the gentleman from Brighton, Michigan (Mr. ROGERS).

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, something fundamentally different has happened in the last year. We have fundamentally changed the way we deal with terrorists in the United States; they are being treated as criminals. Foreign-trained criminals are being brought to the United States and being treated as Americans.

The fact that we would take a terrorist off a plane who had just attempted to kill some 300 people and the people on the ground and say you have the right to remain silent—wrong. You don’t. I need to know if there’s anybody else out there. I need to know where the training camp was. I need to know a name of an airline you may have heard while you were training in the United States on a combat mission and kill Americans. They should be treated as enemy combatants. That’s exactly who they are. And when you make this fundamental switch from a proactive intelligence approach to keep them at bay to bringing them to the United States, it will have negative consequences for the national security of the United States.
To not allow the amendments—I have had many and many of my colleagues here who had amendments to debate and talk about these very serious issues. There is a reason that they couldn’t wrap up the fact that there was a shooting at Fort Hood and the Christmas Day bomber. There’s a reason that happened. Because when you bring in law enforcement, it slows things down.

They stop providing information until their lawyer can cut their best deal possible. This can’t be about lawyers in the back room cutting good deals for foreign-trained terrorists trying to kill Americans. It has to be about the protection of every citizen in the United States and our allies abroad. When we lose that focus, we will lose the ability to stop everyone that comes to these shores.

And if our new program is we are going to catch them at the airport by spending lots more money, we are going to lose this fight. We need to get them in Yemen, in Saudi Arabia, in the tribal areas of Pakistan, and wherever else they train, they finance, and they commit themselves to an act of combat abroad. When we lose that focus, we are going to lose this fight. We need to get the balance of my time.

Mr. SCHROCK’s very thoughtful amendment to deal with the issue of should we give enhanced rights to these people who have perpetrated terrible acts against us? Bring them onto U.S. soil, which would make that happen? We have a responsibility to debate that issue. Should we take the 21 amendments that our Democratic colleagues have offered, including my friend, Mr. McCcDERMOTT, who has an amendment that dramatically enhances the rights of those individuals who have either tried or have perpetrated terrible acts against us and provides them new defense?

Again I mentioned SCOTT BROWN earlier. And what resonated from his acceptance speech when he won the election was that we shouldn’t be expending our taxpayer dollars on defending these terrorists. We should be expending our taxpayer dollars to fight to make sure they cannot, ever possess the planes that they use to attack us. That is a breach against our security that we allow them to.

This bill is critical to addressing the many challenges we face within the intelligence community. I want to take this moment of personal privilege to thank Chairman REYES and the House Select Committee on Intelligence, the Republican and Democratic staff, for their extraordinary hard work and dedication in helping to see this excellent bill pass.

It is unfortunate that we live in a dangerous and different world, where we must always be vigilant of those who wish to cause harm to others. This bill is critical to addressing the many challenges we face within the intelligence community.

I want to take this moment of personal privilege to thank Chairman REYES and the House Select Committee on Intelligence, the Republican and Democratic staff, for their extraordinary hard work and dedication in helping to see this excellent bill to fruition.

Four years is far too long for the intelligence community to go without guidance from its oversight committees. I believe we should get an authorization bill passed and on the President’s desk into law. There is going to be added general debate. But when I listened to my colleague, who is my good friend, I kind of feel like that all of the labor on both sides, including speakers that I served with on that committee, Mr. McCcDERMOTT and Mr. ROGERS, we have worked very actively to get us to the position that we are in with reference to this authorization bill. There have been agreements and there have been disagreements. And there are always things that can be added.

The responsibility of the Rules Committee is to move the agenda. I am very proud of the fact that there is a summit on health care going on at the White House at the same time that we are discussing the authorization bill, and that I am getting ready to leave here and go to a jobs task force, which I believe is high on the minds of the American agenda, which proves that we really can do legislation, prepare legislation, chew gum and walk at the same time. We are an incredible lot of people we are, and just like that we can and another time on the floor to have you understand just how extraordinary the Federal judiciary is, just how extraordinary the intelligence community is, and just how important it is to our Nation’s security that we allow them to function accordingly.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. The Speaker pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF SENATE AMENDMENTS TO H.R. 3961, MEDICARE PHYSICIAN PAYMENT REFORM ACT OF 2009

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1109 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 1109

Resolved. That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to take from the Speaker’s table the bill (H.R. 3961) to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to reform the Medicare SGR payment system for physicians and to reinstitute and update the Pay-As-You-Go requirement of budget neutrality on new tax and mandatory spending legislation, enforced annually, automatic sequestration, with the Senate amendments thereto, and to consider in the House, without intervention of any point of order, except those arising under clause 10 of rule XX, a single motion offered by the chair of the Committee on the Judiciary or his designee that the House concur in the Senate amendments. The Senate amendments shall be considered as read. The motion shall be debatable for one hour equally divided and controlled by the chair and rank-and-file minority members on the Judiciary. The previous question shall be considered as ordered upon the motion to its adoption without intervening motion or debate for division of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is, Will the House now consider the resolution?
The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the House agreed to consider the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Colorado is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS). All time yielded during consideration of the rule is for debate only. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PERLMUTTER. I also ask unanimous consent that all Members may be given 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on House Resolution 1109.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado?

There was no objection.

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Mr. Speaker. House Resolution 1109 provides for consideration of the Senate amendments to H.R. 3961, extending expiring provisions of the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act.

The rule makes in order a single motion by the chair of the Committee on the Judiciary to concur in the Senate amendments. The rule waives all points of order against consideration of the motion except clause 10 of rule XXI, and provides that the Senate amendments shall be considered as read.

Finally, the rule provides 1 hour of debate on the motion, equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

The Senate amendments to H.R. 3961 extend for 1 year several expiring provisions essential to our fight against terrorism. One of these provisions allows authorities to seek court orders for business records or any intangible thing related to a terrorism investigation. Another expiring provision authorizes wiretaps on terrorism suspects so that law enforcement officials do not have to file multiple applications when a terrorist disposes of phone after phone or shifts from one communication device to another. Otherwise, terrorists could use multiple devices or frequently change cell phone numbers or carriers, with the aim of interfering with surveillance efforts under FISA.

The House Resolution has said that this provision has proven an important intelligence-gathering tool in a small but significant subset of FISA electronic surveillance orders. The government cannot use this authority lightly. It must provide specific information that the suspect may employ countersurveillance activities.

Finally, the Senate amendments we are considering today will extend for 1 year a provision first enacted in 2004 that allows the government to apply to the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance court, the FISA court, for surveillance orders involving suspected lone wolf targets. These are suspects who are engaging in or preparing for international terrorism activities, but don’t necessarily have ties to a larger organization, such as a terrorist group or a foreign nation. The provision does not apply to any U.S. citizen or illegal immigrant. These three programs are vital tools our Nation cannot let expire.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Colorado for yielding me the time, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the bill that is with us today. The safety of this Nation, protecting America from terrorists, is of high and vital concern not only to this Member, but I think every single Member, as we have been reminded time after time that we cannot take our eye off the ball, that the security of this country is a job that must be done all day, every day, by a group of savvy professionals that I believe we presently have in this country. It is a combined effort of not only law enforcement and intelligence, but also it involves bright minds from this body also.

Today what we are here to do is to consider reauthorization of the USA PATRIOT Act. This act was done 9 years ago, 9 years ago when our Nation was struck. It was crafted in such a way that there were provisions, ideas, thoughts that at the time we said we need to make sure they are reauthorized, that these ideas are looked at, where we go through the processes and see what happens not only with our own effectiveness with the law, but also how our intelligence agencies are nimble enough to adapt themselves to make these changes.

At the same time I say I am for this, it is unfortunate that my friends on the other side of the aisle to stop restricting this bill. It is a combined effort of not only law enforcement and intelligence, but also it involves bright minds from this body also.

Today what we are here to do is to consider reauthorization of the USA PATRIOT Act. This act was done 9 years ago, 9 years ago when our Nation was struck. It was crafted in such a way that there were provisions, ideas, thoughts that at the time we said we need to make sure they are reauthorized, that these ideas are looked at, where we go through the processes and see what happens not only with our own effectiveness with the law, but also how our intelligence agencies are nimble enough to adapt themselves to make these changes.

At the same time I say I am for this, it is unfortunate that my friends on the Rules Committee, my Democratic colleagues, continue to deny the minority due process by not allowing us to offer a motion to recommit. Time and time again Republicans are shut out of the amendment process, forcing us to simply accept what comes forward.

I encourage my friends on the other side of the aisle to stop restricting this bill and allow the House to move forward.

Almost 9 years ago, as I stated, Congress passed this PATRIOT Act, bipartisan support, at a time that was very difficult not only for our nation to see that enemy that was at us, but also for us to understand what was at us. We should not respond, and this Nation did respond.

We responded with a PATRIOT Act, to give our intelligence agencies the ability to be nimble, quick and to adapt themselves also. Glad this is being done.

Today we are here on the floor where we went through how these issues need to be talked about in this body and every single Member needs to understand them as a result of their constitutional duty to protect, defend, not just our Constitution, but this country. And I wholeheartedly agree with his assessment when he said we need to provide the intelligence community with the appropriate tools to protect this Nation.

Yesterday, the Senate passed this legislation by voice vote; confirming the importance of acting immediately. Look, I’m just for getting it done. I’m just for getting it done. If the Senate wants to do it by voice vote, that’s fine.

Today we are here on the floor to talk about the three provisions that were set to expire. They were set to expire because the previous Congresses have said we needed to have an active debate on these issues. I have talked about them, allowing the government to seek court orders for roving wiretaps on terrorism suspects who shift their modes of communication.

Mr. Speaker, if there’s one thing we learned, it is that the enemy is smart and nimble. They adapt themselves to the way we do business. We need to give our intelligence agencies the ability to be nimble, quick and to adapt themselves also. Glad this is being redone just in time.

To allow investigators to obtain a Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act court order to procure certain records in national security investigations, you’ve heard this said for a long time. The people who are trying to protect the country are few in number, and the cases against them are very large.

The number of people who are seeking to turn our country into another war
Mr. Speaker, at this time I will reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Mr. Speaker, I am in agreement with my friend from Texas that this rule ought to be passed and we ought to move forward right now. So I don’t have any other speakers. I’m going to reserve the balance of my time.

I’d ask my friend from Texas how many people he expects to have speaking on his side.

Mr. SESSIONS. I would appreciate that. And in a colloquy, if the gentleman would allow me the knowledge that he will be through.

Mr. Speaker, at this time we have the gentleman from Gold River, California, a gentleman, Mr. LUNGREN, who has served as not only a Member of this House, but a Member of the California legislature, and he also served as the Attorney General from the State of California. He’s a very thoughtful Member. He sees very clearly the laws of this country and the Constitution of this country, but he also sees the need for us to be nimble enough to see the attack that’s against us, to be able to respond and to give our men and women who are on the front line all the assets and resources only that are necessary, but the laws and the spanning of being able to make sure that we can fully protect this country.

And I will yield to the gentleman 6 minutes at this time.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. I thank the gentleman for the generous provision of time.

Mr. Speaker, when we were reauthorizing the PATRIOT Act in 2005, or extending it, I authored in committee the sunset provisions of the PATRIOT Act to further consideration by the House. That sunset was up last year. And so, rather than seriously consider it and thoughtfully proceed as to whether it ought to be permanent or not, we kicked the can down the road by extending it a year. And then we came just before Christmas up against it, once again, and we extended it for 2 months. And now, here we are, 3 days before the expiration of these provisions, and we are going to have a temporary extension, a year, not 2 months, but just a year.

I would hope that we would consider an issue such as this as an important primary issue. It’s almost as an afterthought. Just before we leave for Christmas, we extend it for 2 months. Now, we’re within 3 days of it expiring, we extend it for a year. Forgive me, but it almost sounds like we’re treating it like a burp after a big meal. And we’ve somehow missed about, something that happened, sort of involuntarily, as if we don’t have control of this.

I’ve said on this floor before that we’re certainly making sure that no passport in America goes unamed or un-renamed. But at the same time, we deal with this issue, which is crucially important.

Our Judiciary Committee considered the reauthorization of these provisions; and we reauthorized, by our bill, the business records section. We reauthorized the roving wiretap provision, although we made some changes in that from current law, which I did not support, but nonetheless, that was it. But the important thing to consider is to allow the intelligence-gathering authorities that we have in the overall law to individuals that we cannot, at that point in time, determine are actually involved with a foreign country, that is, associated with a foreign country, or with a known terrorism organization. And so they said it had never come up before. So we failed to vote it out of Judiciary Committee. That was in the morning, about 12:30, just after noon.

What happened later that day? The massacre at Fort Hood. A lone wolf. Now, admittedly not someone who would be under the PATRIOT Act because he’s an American citizen, but my point is, we have to be concerned about lone wolves.

And what about Mr. Abdulmutallab? If we had had information and been able to connect some of the dots early on, we would have not been able to prove initially that he was necessarily associated with any other group, maybe inspired by another group. He would actually come under the definition of a lone wolf.

And yet the Judiciary Committee said, well, we’re going to deprive our intelligence community of the powers under the law for those who are lone wolves.

That’s why I say this needs full and vigorous debate. We need to consider the essence of these provisions, and we need to determine whether we believe it needs more than an extension of a single year. Does anybody on this floor truly believe that al Qaeda will give up in a year? Does anybody believe that those who are out there with the idea that they want to do harm to the United States, are inspired by al Qaeda or others, are going to quit after this year? I would hope they would. I would hope we would defeat each and every one of them before the year's out. But that's unrealistic. Let's understand.

So, why we're bringing this to the floor with only a single-year provision is beyond me. If we take seriously our obligation to provide for the common defense, then this environment of a non-conventional war, asymmetric, as they like to say, undefined, compared to previous conflicts, where the enemy does not seek territorial advancement, but seeks the destruction of who we are and what we are, our institutions, and how we, in fact, act.

This is a different world. I've said on this floor before and I'll say it again, al Qaeda doesn't hate us and attack us because of the Statue of Liberty and everything it represents.

I want to send them a strong signal: Protecting this country should not be something that is related to whether we have an expiring provision or not. Let's make it permanent. Let's get that done. It would be my hope that the Intelligence Committee of this House would move to get that done as soon as we've passed this today.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friends from Texas and California for their comments, and their comments indicate that they support this rule.

This rule allows for the passage, ultimately, of an extension of time on three important surveillance tools that we now have within our arsenal. There is no disagreement between the sides at all as to the need for the passage of this rule and the need to move forward. So, I would urge a ‘yes’ vote on the previous question and on the rule.

I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 2701.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. REYES. Thank you, Madam Chair. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, I am proud to rise today in support of H.R. 2701, the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010. This is an unusual time of the year for us to be considering this legislation. However, it is and remains a very important bill which addresses critical national security issues, and one that we ultimately need to see enacted.

As chairman of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, my most important job is to guide the committee in providing appropriate tools, resources, and authorities to aid the dedicated men and women of the intelligence community in keeping our Nation safe. I believe that H.R. 2701 does just that.

First and foremost, this bill authorizes the activities and the funds for the 16 agencies of the intelligence community. It is difficult to talk about their roles and their missions in the open, but in some ways it is probably one of the most important things that we do on the Intelligence Committee. In addition to providing authorization for intelligence activities, this bill takes the important initial steps to improve congressional oversight of that intelligence community.

I want to highlight two legislative provisions from this year’s bill that I believe will significantly improve oversight.

When this bill was marked up in committee, we made significant changes to the so-called “Gang of Eight” procedures. As Members know, the President has had the statutory authority to limit briefings to the Gang of Eight when he deems it necessary to protect covert actions. It was the sense of the committee that the Gang of Eight statutory authority had been overused, and that, on matters of critical importance, the committee as a whole should have been informed. For that reason, that earlier version of the bill removed the statutory authority for limiting briefings to the Gang of Eight.

Last July, the administration issued a statement of policy on H.R. 2701 that included a veto threat with respect to the provisions that would modify the Gang of Eight notification procedures. I believe that some level of concern at that point should be that the intelligence community has been working with the administration over the past several months to resolve those differences. Since July, there have already been noticeable improvements in the way the administration and the intelligence community are communicating and briefing Congress.

Accordingly, the manager’s amendment I will offer includes a revised provision on Gang of Eight reform. I know that many were frustrated about the administration’s position on this issue. I think that it is important for us to continue to work towards the Gang of Eight notification procedures. It is important for us to have robust, meaningful, and productive engagement between Congress and the intelligence community. That is why, under the manager’s amendment, we can expect that notification procedures will be in place by the time we get to the intelligence authorization conference.

Another provision that I think is absolutely critical establishes a statutory Inspector General for the intelligence community. This provision will enhance the accountability of our intelligence agencies by enabling the Inspector General to conduct investigations in the field. This provision will also help keep a close eye on the protection of the rights of Americans.

Last July, the administration issued a statement of policy on H.R. 2701 that included a veto threat with respect to a statement of policy on H.R. 2701 that did not comport with the provisions that would modify the Gang of Eight notification procedures.

Accordingly, the manager’s amendment I will offer includes a revised provision on Gang of Eight reform. I know that many were frustrated about the administration’s position on this issue. I think that it is important for us to continue to work towards the Gang of Eight notification procedures. It is important for us to have robust, meaningful, and productive engagement between Congress and the intelligence community. That is why, under the manager’s amendment, we can expect that notification procedures will be in place by the time we get to the intelligence authorization conference.
her longstanding interest in appropriately monitoring and managing contractors in the intelligence community.

Mr. HOLST, the chairman of the Select Intelligence Oversight Panel, advocated for a provision addressing the videoencing of interrogations and other on intelligence information on the health risks faced by Desert Storm veterans.

Mr. THOMPSON of California, another subcommittee chairman, has worked hard on this bill as well. He pushed successfully for the inclusion of a provision to study the benefits paid to the families of the men and women of the intelligence community who have made the ultimate sacrifice. I am proud to support that as well.

We also received important input from the committee’s minority members. Mr. KLINE of Minnesota offered an excellent amendment, which we were pleased to accept, that requires the National Reconnaissance Organization to rewrite its charter to meet its current missions. Mr. CONAWAY’s personal interest in audible financial statements led to a provision in the bill that requires the intelligence community to focus on its internal financial management to provide a system that achieves auditability.

Madam Chair, I believe that this bill will provide the resources and the tools that the intelligence community needs to do its important work in keeping our Nation safe. That includes collection and analysis of human intelligence, signals intelligence, and geospatial intelligence.

It includes funds to detect and disrupt terrorist plots, to provide for intelligence support to the warfighters in Iraq and Afghanistan, and also improves the recruitment and training of a diverse and capable workforce.

During my time on this committee, I’ve had the good fortune to be able to travel and to meet the brave men and women of the intelligence community, both uniformed and civilian, and I am continually impressed and in awe of the great work that they do and the great morale that they have. They are dedicated, professional and highly skilled patriots, and I’m proud to offer a bill that supports them and all that they do for our Nation.

This past December, we lost seven of those brave men and women in the attack in Khost, Afghanistan. It is for them, and for those who carry on their mission, that I proudly submit this bill today.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chairman, I yield myself as much time as I shall consume.

Mr. Chairman, annual Intelligence authorization bills should be bipartisan legislation designed to address critical national security issues and deal in a deliberate and considered way with legislation affecting the intelligence community, the personnel within the intelligence community. Unfortunately, this bill does neither. I’m forced to rise in strong opposition.

When this bill was first reported almost 8 months ago, the bill failed to address critical and security issues such as Guantanamo detainees, attempts by this administration to convert intelligence and counterterrorism into matters of criminal law and meaningful reforms to the congresional oversight of the intelligence community.

In the nearly 8 months since this bill was reported out of committee, our country has suffered two major terrorist attacks and a significant number of near misses. During that time, the majority took no time and no action to bring this bill to the floor.

In 8 months nothing was done to fix the flaws in our intelligence community that were apparent to every American in the wake of the first attack at Fort Hood and the Christmas bombing attack on an American airliner.

In 8 months, nothing was done to clarify who is in charge of interrogating high-value terrorist detainees, who is responsible for the abuses around the world who want to do harm to America.

In 8 months, nothing was done to provide a long-term renewal of our critical intelligence authorities under the USA PATRIOT Act.

In 8 months, nothing was done to once and for all, stop hard-core, radical jihadist terrorists from being brought into the United States, despite the clear opposition that has arisen to this ill-considered idea from average Americans across the country.

In 8 months, nothing has been done to clarify how covert actions should be conducted or authorized when they could have deadly effects on American citizens. Nothing has been done.

Then, you go through and you take a look at the amendments that we wanted to propose that would have addressed these issues, and all of these were thrown out by the majority, an amendment that would direct the DNI to establish a panel to review the intelligence relating to weapons of mass destruction programs of Iran. Politically speaking, our intelligence community is now to the left of the United Nations and the left of what Iran could possibly do, to the left of the ill-fated National Intelligence Estimate that came out under the previous administration.

We’ve asked for an independent panel of experts to go in and review this. Our colleagues on the other side of the aisle said, no, that’s not necessary.

We asked for an amendment that would require the CIA to release publicly unclassified versions of documents relating to the use of enhanced interrogation techniques, this controversial background as to who knew what when, including some of the leading Members of this body. We asked for these documents to be released. The majority said no.

We asked for the prohibition of funds to bring Guantanamo detainees into the United States. The majority said, we won’t even debate it. We won’t consent. We won’t allow for an amendment that would do just that.

We asked for a report requiring the DNI to submit a report detailing steps taken to fix problems identified in the President’s Fort Hood intelligence re-review prior to December 25. Because the incident on November 5 had striking parallels to what happened on December 25, and we thought it was fair to ask the question and ask the Director of National Intelligence: With the information that you gained on November 5, what actions did you take that might have helped prevent what happened on Christmas Day? And the answer was, no, we don’t think that would be a worthwhile effort to ask the intelligence community those questions, we threw it out.

And then we said we had another amendment that said, Don’t we think it would be appropriate that we actually establish a process for the authorizing body and the notification of covert actions that may result in the death of a targeted U.S. citizen? It doesn’t get into a debate as to whether that is appropriate, an appropriate course of action. It just says, don’t we think that the intelligence community and the executive branch should have in place a detailed process of how these decisions are made, how they are authorized, and when Congress would be notified? And the answer from the majority was no.

A process that would give us an idea as to how the administration would authorize and notify Congress when they took actions that might result in the death of a targeted U.S. citizen, a targeted U.S. citizen.

And these are just the amendments that were not considered, substantive, serious issues that the majority is unwilling to debate, to discuss and to address.

Later on, as we go through the day and as we take a look at the manager’s amendment and the other amendments, we’ll take a look at the striking contrast between what the majority is willing to debate and discuss and to act on, and what they are unwilling to debate and discuss. And it has a direct impact on the safety of each and every American.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chairman, now it’s my privilege to yield 5 minutes to my good friend and chairman of the Armed Services Committee, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), who actually has jurisdiction over some of the issues that the ranking member mentioned just a couple of minutes ago.

Mr. SKELTON. Madam Chairman, first, let me thank the gentleman from Texas, Chairman SILVESTRE REYES, for the hard work that he did on this bill. So I rise today in strong support of the Intelligence Authorization Act.

From my perspective as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, it’s a good bill, one that will support the intelligence needs of our soldiers, sailors, airmen, marines, and our diplomats. And as you know, American men and women who are deployed into harm’s way depend on the intelligence capabilities authorized by this bill to achieve their missions. I cannot state strongly enough about how those in uniform who are in harm’s way depend upon the intelligence that they receive.

This legislation ensures continued delivery of quality intelligence products and capabilities through our warfighters. It will lead to important improvement in the future.

As I’ve said before, the relationship between the intelligence community and the Department of Defense is fundamental to the success on the battlefield. The relationship by expanding the intelligence community’s technical and human collection capabilities.

It adds significant resources to modernize signals intelligence capabilities, and to advance cutting-edge technologies that are the foundation for intelligence support for our warfighters in Afghanistan. The bill also adds resources for HUMINT collection against terrorists and other enduring and emerging global security issues in Asia, Africa, as well as in Latin America.

This measure will improve oversight of the intelligence community by creating a statutory and independent intelligence community-wide inspector general.

And, finally, this bill enhances cybersecurity, which is becoming very, very important, cybersecurity efforts by authorizing significant investments to support the President’s comprehensive cybersecurity strategy.

I congratulate Chairman REYES on bringing this bill to the floor and urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this very, very important measure.

And I might add, Madam Chairman, that we, on the Armed Services Committee, have dealt with some, and have the jurisdiction of dealing with some, matters that my friend from Michigan mentioned a few moments ago. They are within our jurisdiction.

Mr. THORNBERY from Texas, who will vutes to a member of the committee, matters that my friend from Michigan

I am deeply disturbed by some of the trends in this bill, and I hope that the manager’s amendment will not be adopted, and if it is, this bill should certainly be rejected.

Mr. REYES. It’s now my pleasure to yield 1½ minutes to my good friend and former member of the House Intelligence Committee who still is a valued member of this committee, the brave men and women in that community.

Mr. THORNBERY. Madam Chairman, I appreciate the distinguished ranking member yielding to me.

In many ways this bill is a tale of two bills. Part of this bill is the classified annex where specific dollar amounts are allocated to various programs. And the classified annex, I’m happy to report, is a bipartisan product. And I appreciate the chairman of this committee, Subcommittee Chairman RUPPERSBERGER, and others working with Republicans compromising from both sides but having a bipartisan product that has the support. I believe, of the full Intelligence Committee and should have the support of the full House. Unfortunately, that is not the case with the other provisions of this bill, the policy provisions of this bill, which are deeply disturbing.

As the ranking member has indicated, a number of key issues, whether it’s Guantanamo, to reading Miranda Rights, have not even been allowed to be debated and voted on on the floor of the House. Those issues have been shoved aside.

Instead, what we have in the underlying bill are 41 new reports, plus an additional 17 more reports that would be required of the intelligence community. And in other cases, deeply buried within the blizzard of all those reporting requirements is something that is deeply disturbing, and that is a new criminal part of the statute that would apply only to the intelligence community when they try to elicit information from a terrorist that can prevent future terrorist attacks.

And I think it would be helpful for all our Members to just remember a bit of the history here. Last year the Obama administration released a number of classified memos detailing interrogation techniques, despite the appeal of five former CIA directors not to do it, because doing so would harm our efforts against a terrorist. They did it anyway.

Then, secondly, last year, the administration decided that they would re-investigate CIA personnel who were involved in interrogations, even though it had been thoroughly investigated and there was no basis found for any criminal prosecution. The Obama administration decided they wanted to appoint a special prosecutor to go after those people again.

Third, there’s an effort to bring lawyers up on ethics charges because some people disagree with the legal opinion that they reached. And, of course, just recently we found that that effort has failed.

Fourth, last year, the Speaker, under pressure from questions about what she knew about those interrogations, alleged that the CIA lies all the time, despite the considerable evidence that she had been fully briefed about the interrogations. And the Speaker’s charge was so indefensible that this bill got postponed for 7 months and couldn’t even come to the floor, in order to protect her.

So you see that string of going after the intelligence community of making accusations against them. And then what we find in the manager’s amendment is this provision that creates new crimes only for the intelligence community when they try to illicit information. It is rather remarkable.

Anywhere in America, if a prison guard tries to wake a prisoner up, it’s okay; it’s part of the prison routine. Under this provision, if a terrorist does not consent to cooperate or the death penalty could be a potential punishment for his crime. It is against the law under this McDermott provision for an intelligence professional to in any way threaten physical harm or coercion against a terrorist in order to get information from a terrorist that the intelligence community can be prosecuted and sent to jail for 15 years.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I yield the gentleman an additional 2 minutes.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Anywhere in America there is a criminal investigation, it might be pointed out to a criminal suspect that it would be better to cooperate or the death penalty could be a potential punishment for his crime. It is against the law under this McDermott provision for an intelligence professional to in any way threaten physical harm or coercion against a terrorist in order to get information from a terrorist that is deeply disturbing, and that is a new criminal part of the statute that would apply only to the intelligence community when they try to elicit information from a terrorist that can prevent future terrorist attacks.

Third, there’s an effort to bring lawyers up on ethics charges because some people disagree with the legal opinion that they reached. And, of course, just recently we found that that effort has failed.

Fourth, last year, the Speaker, under pressure from questions about what she knew about those interrogations, alleged that the CIA lies all the time, despite the considerable evidence that she had been fully briefed about the interrogations. And the Speaker’s charge was so indefensible that this bill got postponed for 7 months and couldn’t even come to the floor, in order to protect her.
regarding the authorization of the Intelligence Officer Training Program.

As I understand it, that section will authorize the Director of National Intelligence to provide grants to institutions of higher learning to develop, among other things, innovative methods of teaching high-priority foreign language skills.

Is my understanding of this provision correct?

Mr. REYES. You are correct, Mr. BOSWELL.

Mr. BOSWELL. My understanding is that Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, has a highly innovative foreign language skills program. Under that program, Drake students work with native speakers in groups of five or fewer three times a week. Such students may also take a “strategies” course, which has several goals, including helping students approach the culture they are studying through a nonethnocentric lens.

Former students of this program have gone on to teach in China, become Fulbright Scholars, provide translation services, perform nonprofit and missionary work in El Salvador, complete advanced degrees in languages, and excel in the corporate world more generally.

Is Drake University’s language program the type of program that the intelligence community believes would be a good candidate to receive a grant from the ODNI under section 312 of H.R. 2701?

Mr. REYES. Having had the opportunity to visit Drake University with you, you are correct.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. REYES. I yield the gentleman an additional 30 seconds.

Mr. BOSWELL. Thank you, Chairman REYES, for that comment and that visit. That is correct. I appreciate that. I want to thank you for the clarification.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I would like to yield 4 minutes to my colleague from Michigan, a strong defender of the Intelligence Committee, Mr. ROGERS.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. I can’t tell you how disappointed I am in this bill for all that is at stake in the country.

When there was a switch in debate about how we approach the war on terror, that’s a legitimate argument, a legitimate debate to have, and we should do it under the light of day with all of the sets of consequences that come with any change of policy about how we go after terrorists overseas. And the notion that was brought out that, gee, if we just treat this like a law enforcement environment, if we treat it the way we would treat the average American citizen and extend the rights and privileges to foreign-trained terrorists, the world will like us, the world will win, our children or your children will be safe. To most people, that wouldn’t mean a lot. To trained professionals in the intelligence business, it means the difference between stopping them and them being successful. That little, small piece of information can save lives.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I yield my colleague 1 more minute.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. They made a fundamental shift, from proactive intelligence overseas to find them where they train, to where they finance, to where they recruit, to a law enforcement effort to bring them back to the United States. We’re bringing those responsible for following legal advice to the United States and putting them in mainstream courtrooms. We’re prosecuting CIA officers for following legal advice from the Department of Justice in interrogation. So we’re treating CIA officials and criminalizing foreign-trained terrorists like Americans with all of the benefits and the privileges therein.

You almost couldn’t make this up. You couldn’t come to this conclusion. And with it, we’ve got consequences.

When you look at the series of events from the Fort Hood shootings to the Christmas Day bomber and the mistakes that were made and the lost opportunity for disruption, we all ought to stand up and would get us back to where we’re putting the interests of Americans first versus the interests of the rights of terrorism before the safety and security of the United States.

I strongly urge a rejection of this bill.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I don’t quibble with the opinions that my friends on the other side of the aisle have. It’s just facts that don’t support your opinions that I quibble with. They’re not entitled to their own facts. I now yield 1½ minutes to a new member of our committee, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. BOREN), a valued member of our committee.

Mr. BOREN. Madam Chair, I rise today in support of H.R. 2701, the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010. This bill makes an excellent product and much needed investment in many critical areas, including those that have historically been underrepresented within the intelligence community. The bill creates a pilot program under the National Security Education Program, or the NSEP.

One of the most important investments is this bill’s commitment to developing foreign language capabilities, specifically in African languages that have historically been underrepresented within the intelligence community. The bill creates a pilot program under the National Security Education Program, or the NSEP. It expands the David Boren Scholars by requiring the Director of National Intelligence to identify high-priority African languages for which language education programs do not currently exist. The NSEP would then develop intensive training programs for implementation in both the United States and in countries where these languages are spoken.

Let’s not forget that 10 years ago we didn’t anticipate the conflicts along the Afghanistan-Pakistan border and the need for speakers of the local languages and dialects. When that need arose, we didn’t have the capabilities to meet immediate demands, and to this day, we are still playing catch-up.
Similarly, we cannot predict from where the next crisis will emerge, but by recognizing the current instability in the Horn of Africa, Sudan, and Congo, we can anticipate crises that will impact national security.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. REYES. I yield the gentleman an additional 15 seconds.

Mr. BOREN. We should be training the linguists and translators in the relevant languages now so that once again we are proactive in our efforts; we’re proactive in our actions. I urge support for this bill.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. At this time, I’d like to yield 2 minutes to my colleague from Texas (Mr. BURGESS).

Mr. BURGESS. I thank the ranking member for yielding.

This is a very unfortunate bill, and I think this side of the aisle has sufficiently laid out abundant reasons why it should be sent to the committee and fixed. The intelligence community is too important to our national security to allow a bill with as many concerns as this one to pass.

However, I am here also to discuss what I see as a fatal flaw in the way information is disseminated to Members of the House who are not committee members.

Nothing is more critical to the role each of us plays in representing our districts and this country than for us to have every relevant piece of information available to us prior to casting an important vote—certainly prior to casting a vote on one updating the authorizations for the way our government gathers intelligence. Yet many Members of this House have been denied access to key pieces of information simply by virtue of the fact that they do not sit on the Intelligence Committee.

I recognize that membership on any given committee in this Chamber means being granted access to matters in a special capacity. I respect that. I would even say that dividing up responsibilities is critical in achieving everything in a body as large as this one, but not being a member of the committee should not translate into having access to nothing that falls under the jurisdiction of this committee. Certainly, there are some pieces of information that are so important, of such importance to national security, that every Member of this body, should they so desire, should have access.

Last summer, the story broke about photographs alleging detainee abuse at Guantanamo.

I formally requested, through the Intelligence Committee, access to these photos. I assumed it would be a simple request. In 2005, similar photos at Abu Ghraib were readily available to every Member of this House by the same committee under the leadership of then-Chairman HOEKSTRA.

This time, after months of no response, I was informed that the committee did not retain the photos and could not or would not allow nonmembers of the Intelligence Committee access. At the same time as my request to view these photos, I requested to review the classified CIA Inspector General report titled “Counterterrorism Detention and Interrogation Activities.”

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I yield the gentleman an additional 30 seconds.

Mr. BURGESS. After months, I was denied my request, no reason given for the denial. I can hardly believe that on an issue as critical and crucial as this I would not be allowed access. I believe strongly that for me to vote on something as important as the Intelligence Authorization Act I should have access to every bit of information.

Finally, on the shooting at Fort Hood, I asked to have attendance at the briefing that was being given. But because a business meeting had to occur before I would be granted permission and no one had scheduled, I simply could not attend.

Madam Chair, this bill has problems on many, many levels, but it is impossible for me to vote in the affirmative given the restrictions on activities of members of the minority from this committee.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, just so we are clear, it doesn’t appear that some members of the other aisle realize how important the role of the House apply to everyone on a bipartisan basis. The information he sought was denied from our committee because it didn’t fit the criteria and the rules of the House.

With that, I now yield 2 minutes to my friend from the Armed Services Committee, chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee, and a new member of our House Intelligence Committee this year, Mr. SMITH from Washington.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. I certainly think there are a lot of very good things in this bill. Our intelligence community is a critical piece of fighting terrorism. Their counterterrorism efforts are absolutely at the top of the list of what the Intel Committee does.

We are supporting all of our agents in the CIA and throughout the intelligence community, and we thank them for that. We are there, we are aware that they are putting their lives on the line to prosecute this war every single day. This bill supports them across the board. It has the resources and support they need to do their job.

But to listen to the minority, you would read Miranda to absolutely everybody. We don’t. We are trying to make intelligent decisions.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. REYES. I yield the gentleman an additional 30 seconds.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. We need to do a better job of intelligence. We need to better coordinate that intelligence. That’s what I think we learned from the Christmas day attack. There is stuff in this bill to try to do this.

We need to do oversight better. We need to have a better idea from the intelligence community to do what they are going to tell us and when, and to make sure there is a record of it, which is in this bill, so that no one can later dispute what they were or were not told.

The minority has a critical role to play in making that happen. Instead of these talking points that somehow we have given up in the fight on terror and we are not supporting the intelligence community. That is absolutely untrue. Majority and minority strongly support our intelligence community, and we are absolutely committed to prosecuting this war to the fullest extent possible.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, how much time do we have remaining on each side?

The Acting CHAIR (Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas). The gentleman from Michigan has 1½ minutes and the gentleman from Texas has 13½ minutes.
Mr. HOEKSTRA. I would like to reserve my time until we are more equal.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I now yield 2 minutes to the chairman of the Terrorism-HUMINT, Analysis and Counterintelligence Subcommittee, my good friend from California (Mr. THOMPSON).

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for yielding.

I am pleased that this legislation supports critical U.S. intelligence capabilities at a level higher than we have ever had in the past. This bill improves the intelligence community's ability to understand hard targets, those countries that pose the greatest strategic threat to U.S. interests.

But it also increases funds for intelligence collections that will support U.S. policy decisions in other important regions such as Africa, Latin America, and Asia. We must continue to focus our resources on our priority targets, but we can't neglect emerging threats. This bill does both.

The bill also includes an amendment that I introduced in committee in conjunction with our colleague, DAVID PRICE of North Carolina, to improve the effectiveness of Interrogations and prevent harsh practices.

It calls on the Director of National Intelligence to evaluate scientific research on interrogations and assess how to improve our U.S. interrogators' training. It also requires the DNI to assess what the Department of Justice has done to implement programs to stop the use of these practices and the steps taken to understand the boundaries within which they can operate.

Finally, the bill contains a provision that I sponsored that requires the new Inspector General of the intelligence community to study the intelligence community's electronic waste disposal procedures. This provision was designed to protect not just our environment, but also our security.

The Inspector General must assess both the environmental impact of these practices and the steps taken to ensure that discarded devices do not contain sensitive information that our adversaries would be able to exploit.

Madam Chair, this legislation will strengthen the capabilities of our intelligence communities and our nation safer.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I yield myself 1 minute.

I hope that as we have the general debate on this bill right now that we have at least one person who will come up on the other side and explain exactly what is in the Mc Dermott amendment that it means and provide the implication will be to our men and women in the intelligence community. We hear over and over again how "we support the intelligence community"—without a single hearing.

Perhaps with about 1 minute of debate on the manager's amendment that has been allotted to that Mc Dermott amendment, we will fundamentally change the nature of the intelligence community, how they work and how they operate by creating new criminal statutes, not a minute of hearings in this committee, and all of a sudden it appears out of nowhere in a manager's amendment very late in the game.

Would someone on the other side please explain the rationale for bringing in this bill with having no hearing when it will have a fundamental impact on the intelligence community? What is the rationale, and why will we be willing to have hearings on this issue? Why were they unwilling to debate this issue, and why did they bury it into a manager's amendment with 22 other amendments?

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I am now pleased to yield 2 minutes to the chair of the Homeland Security Sub-committee on Intelligence, Information Sharing and Terrorism Risk Assessment, and our former ranking member of the House Intelligence Committee, Ms. HARMAN.

Ms. HARMAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me and hope that what I am about to discuss is supported by the current ranking member.

I rise in strong support of the manager's amendment. It includes two provisions which I authored and which address problems continuing to impede our efforts to keep our country safe.

First, it requires the Inspector General of the intelligence community to report to Congress in 180 days on over-classification of intelligence. Stamping documents "secret" or "top secret" for the wrong reasons interferes with accurate, actionable, and timely information sharing within the Federal Government and with State and local law enforcement. Protecting sources and methods is the right reason to classify information, but protecting turf or personal embarrassment is not.

D.C. Police Chief Cathy Lanier says she has had to work with the Federal Government for fear it will be immediately classified and rendered useless because she can't tell her officers in the field what to look for when on patrol. A variety of civil liberties and good government groups support our amendment, and I am glad it's in the manager's amendment.

Second, Madam Chair, the manager's amendment requires the Director of National Intelligence, in consultation with the Attorney General, to develop an intelligence sharing within....
Mr. REYES, Madam Chair. I now yield 2 minutes to the chairwoman of the Subcommittee on Intelligence Community Management, a valued member of my committee, Ms. ESHOO from California.

Ms. ESHOO. I thank the chairwoman, and I thank our distinguished chairman for his wonderful and dedicated leadership of the House Intelligence Committee.

It’s been far too long since we’ve had an Intelligence authorization bill enacted. Because Congress has the responsibility to set guidance for the intelligence community to strengthen our national security, which is really our highest obligation here in Congress, I am really pleased that this critical legislation is on the floor today.

This bill takes very important steps to increase congressional oversight of the intelligence community, which is very much needed. I would like to address two in particular that came out of the subcommittee that I am proud to chair.

First, the bill creates an independent intelligence community inspector general. So many of the issues in the intelligence community cut across multiple agencies, and today there is no one who can look at all sides of these issues. This inspector general will have the dual responsibility to report to the Congress, not just to the Director of National Intelligence, increasing our oversight.

Second, this bill allows the GAO to conduct audits and reviews of the intelligence community. We all know the value of the GAO’s assessments firsthand. Their reputation for objective, thorough reviews is second to none. But today, the intelligence community refuses to allow GAO in the door. And I am going to put you in jail if you push your limits, and by the way, torture is already against the law. Nobody, and I mean nobody, is pushing torture. What we’re saying is, you cannot make this so unreasonable that they won’t do it. And if you don’t think that this will have an impact, an agent making the determination, should I or shouldn’t I, you know what? I was hoping to turn around and find 300 screaming, cheering Americans saying thank you for your patriotism and your service, not 25 Justice Department lawyers with subpoenas.

You will absolutely freeze the intelligence community’s ability to go out and get information that they need, and it is absolutely naive to believe that they’re going to do it anyway. I’m sorry, that’s not the way it works. These folks want to follow the law; they want to follow the Constitution. And guess what? At the end of the day, they’re willing to risk their lives to protect their country and their fellow Americans, and this is the treatment that we give them.

This one provision alone will disrupt that. And I urge my colleagues to support it.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentlewoman’s time has expired.

Mr. REYES. I yield the gentlelady 15 additional seconds.

Ms. ESHOO. Finally, I would like to say in response to really a terrible charge that was made by one of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle that this bill weakens the intelligence community, that it is an attack on the intelligence community; we can’t let that stand. There isn’t anything farther from the truth. This is singularly the largest Intel authorization with its base budget in the history of the United States of America. We are giving to the intelligence community the very tools that it requires, that it has requested, and are glad to do so.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I would like to yield 2 minutes to my colleague from Michigan (Mr. ROGERS). Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. I, too, along with my colleague from Texas, and certainly the ranking member from Michigan, want to bring to the attention of this body just how dangerous the amendment is that says this, “Any officer or employee of the intelligence community who, in the course of or in anticipation of a covered interrogation, knowingly commits, attempts to commit or conspires with another to commit, inhumane, or degrading treatment.” And it goes on to talk about infringing on their religious beliefs by any notion whatsoever that isn’t defined in the bill.

Sleep—talks about lack of sleep. As a matter of fact, the interrogators are probably getting a lot less sleep than actually the terrorists they are interrogating because they also process the information before and after the interrogations.

You have created a whole new direction to go after the very people who are interrogating people trying to kill Americans, and you are saying we are going to put you in jail if you push your limits. And by the way, torture is already against the law. Nobody, and I mean nobody, is pushing torture. What we’re saying is, you cannot make this so unreasonable that they won’t do it. And if you don’t think that this will have an impact, an agent making the determination, should I or shouldn’t I, you know what? I was hoping to turn around and find 300 screaming, cheering Americans saying thank you for your patriotism and your service, not 25 Justice Department lawyers with subpoenas.

You will absolutely freeze the intelligence community’s ability to go out and get information that they need, and it is absolutely naive to believe that they’re going to do it anyway. I’m sorry, that’s not the way it works. These folks want to follow the law; they want to follow the Constitution. And guess what? At the end of the day, they’re willing to risk their lives to protect their country and their fellow Americans, and this is the treatment that we give them.

This one provision alone will disrupt I can’t tell you how many operations worldwide and is worthy of our rejection of this direction in the intelligence community.

Mr. REYES, Madam Chair, it is now my privilege to yield 2 minutes to the chairman of the Subcommittee on Technical and Tactical Intelligence, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. RUPPERSBERGER).

Mr. RUPPERSBERGER. Madam Chair, first, I would like to focus on two of this bill’s most important provisions as it relates to technical and tactical intelligence, cybersecurity, and, number two, space.

The bill makes significant investments in the variety of critical cybersecurity programs, a need highlighted by repeated attacks on the information technology systems of the Federal Government and private industry over the past year.

As cybersecurity evolves and intensifies, our intelligence community must be able to respond quickly and with the latest technologies available. The National Security Agency, which I’m proud to say is in my district, has already developed a number of technologies that are already helping to protect our networks running and information systems, but we need to ensure that NSA and other intelligence agencies have the resources that they need to develop and deploy the defenses that will keep our networks running and information secure. This bill helps that.

Second, this bill makes important investments in space. It supports the President’s request to develop a new imagery capability. In addition, it supports the Senate proposal, which we believe is right for the highest obligation here in Congress. I am really pleased that this bill strengthens our national security, which is really our highest obligation here in Congress, I am really pleased that this critical legislation is on the floor today. This bill takes very important steps to increase congressional oversight of the intelligence community, which is very much needed. Mr. RUPPERSBERGER. Madam Chair, first, I would like to focus on two of this bill’s most important provisions as it relates to technical and tactical intelligence, cybersecurity, and, number two, space.

The bill makes significant investments in the variety of critical cybersecurity programs, a need highlighted by repeated attacks on the information technology systems of the Federal Government and private industry over the past year.

This inspector general will have the dual responsibility to report to the Congress, not just to the Director of National Intelligence, increasing our oversight.

Second, this bill allows the GAO to conduct audits and reviews of the intelligence community. We all know the value of the GAO’s assessments firsthand. Their reputation for objective, thorough reviews is second to none. But today, the intelligence community refuses to allow GAO in the door, even when the inspector general has asked them to investigate. This is not going to stand when Congress has asked them to in-allowed to be put in order as we went through the rules process. One of those things is how we are going to deal with the detainees from Guantanamo.

You know, at one time they were going to be moved into Kansas; the people said yes; and said no. They then were going to be moved to Michigan, and the people in Michigan stood up and said no. They then were going to be moved to South Carolina, and the leadership in South Carolina said no. Now it is the people in Illinois that are fighting the valiant battle and saying, no, we don’t want them in our State either.

There has been a fundamental problem in each case where the administration has proposed moving these individuals into a State; there has been absolutely no transparency. People in Michigan, people in Illinois, people in South Carolina and Kansas have all asked for the fundamental information: Who are these individuals? Why are they in Guantanamo? What did they do to deserve to be there? What has their behavior been while they have been in Guantanamo? In each case, for each of those States, people said, before the States make up their mind as to whether they are going to accept these individuals or not, share these individuals with the policymakers and the decision-makers in that State.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Chair, it is probably a good point that the ranking member makes that there should be a debate on Guantanamo. There is no question that we have had no consensus on whether these detainees from Guantanamo or detainees that have been transferred since the 9/11 attacks. The amendment will allow the CIA Director to conduct interrogations in a way that protects the identity of interrogators and protects other material that must be kept secret.

Finally, the bill also advances some of my other priorities, including a sustained emphasis on improving foreign language capabilities, expanding GAO’s ability to conduct investigations of intelligence community activities, and a long-overdue declassification review requirements for all war illness-related records at the CIA.

I urge my colleagues to join me in voting for this bill.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I yield my colleague from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY) 1½ minutes.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Madam Chair, our colleague on the Intelligence Committee from New Jersey talked about the importance of interrogations. It is absolutely true that much of the information that the United States has received since 9/11 has been prevented further successful terrorist attacks on our homeland has come from interrogations. That is why it is so important that we maintain that tool done by professionals in the right way, absolutely. But to tie their hands and allow those professionals conducting interrogations of terrorists even less latitude than the county sheriff or the FBI investigating a bank robbery have just seems to me to be madness. And yet the manager’s amendment, which has traditionally been used for technical-type corrections, less controversial sorts of issues, the manager’s amendment on this bill includes an amazing expansion of criminal liability only for those in the intelligence community.

It seems to me that before we start prosecuting members of the intelligence community for not giving terrorists the amount of sleep they ask for or for doing something that may violate whatever they describe as their religious beliefs, we ought to think twice about it.

It is important to say there is no reasonableness standard to say what is reasonably your intelligence belief or a reasonable amount of sleep; this is all at the discretion of the interrogator. We are jumping to their tune under this language. It is dangerous, and it should be rejected.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, may I inquire of the time remaining on both sides?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Texas has 3¼ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Michigan has 3 minutes remaining.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I am going to be the last speaker, so we only have one speaker left.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I now yield 1½ minutes to the chairwoman of the Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. SCHAKOWSKY).

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Madam Chair, I am proud to support this legislation because it will provide the men and women of our intelligence community with the tools they need to protect the Nation while implementing vital provisions to promote accountability and oversight.

As the Chair of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, I have worked to limit the intelligence community’s dangerous overreliance on contractors. To that end, I have worked hard to include section 338 in this bill, which requires the Director of National Intelligence to provide a comprehensive report to Congress on the intelligence community’s use of personal service contracts. It is my hope that this report will finally give us a clear picture of how much our national security has been doled out to the lowest bidder.

I want to talk for a minute about the issue of torture. I think it is so important to underscore that the manager’s amendment includes language originally proposed by Mr. McDermott that reiterates existing law on torture and that provides statutory criminal penalties for individuals who knowingly commit an act of cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment.

What I have been hearing from the Republicans is that somehow we are sacrificing our national security by not allowing the torture of our enemies. In fact, I think we are enhancing our national security by saying that we will not torture our enemies. In fact, I think we are enhancing our national security by saying that we will keep our enemies off balance.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to a valued member of our committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF).

Mr. SCHIFF. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Chair, I rise in support of the intelligence authorization bill. As a member of the committee, I am confident it provides our intelligence community with the tools it needs to keep our country safe. There are two aspects of the bill that I would like to highlight.

First, the bill includes the most substantial reform to the oversight relationship between Congress and the executive branch in a generation. The bill
Chairman REYES, has said now is not the time to do such a thing. The majority will keep a close eye on those developments, which are absolutely critical to the effectiveness of our intelligence community and to keeping America safe.

Second, the bill makes critical investments in our overhead infrastructure and architecture. This is essential to our capabilities and wouldn’t be possible without the work of some of the most brilliant minds in the country, like the scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

We are not giving the administration a blank check. It is imperative that our major acquisitions stay on budget and on schedule. Resources are scarce, and we cannot allow a handful of programs to spin out of control. The committee will keep a close eye on those programs.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, my colleague on the other side of the aisle, Chairman REYES, has said now is not the time to talk about Gitmo. Obviously, the majority has also said now is not the time to talk about getting an independent assessment of what is going on in Iran. Now is not the time to talk about the release of unclassified versions of documents related to the use of enhanced interrogation techniques. Now is not the time to talk about bringing the Gitmo folks here. Now is not the time to talk about the time lapse between Fort Hood and Christmas Day and what did and did not happen during that period of time. Now is not the time to talk about a process for the authorization and notification of covert actions that may result in the death of a targeted U.S. citizen.

So it is not time to talk about any of those or to debate any of those issues which are absolutely critical to the effectiveness of our intelligence community and to keeping America safe.

Interestingly enough, it is the day not to talk about but to bury into a manager’s amendment 22 different amendments, including one that will fundamentally change the way our intelligence community has to do business. No debate. No discussions. No debate. Buried in there is the McDermott amendment. We are now limited to, at most, 10 minutes per side to talk about 22 amendments in the manager’s amendment, which will come immediately following this general debate. Yet it is interesting that, in the discussion of general debate, not one person on the other side was willing to defend this amendment and the process by which it was included—no meetings, no discussions, no debate—on the grounds that it was included in the manager’s amendment.

Is this what the process in the House has now come down to, that we bury these critical amendments between 22 other amendments? If we split up the time equally, let’s see. We have 22 amendments divided by 20 minutes. We will, maybe, have 1 minute of debate. We will have 1 minute of debate on this amendment. It will be interesting when our folks in the intelligence community see what our friends on the other side of the aisle have done to them today, our friends on the other side who talk about so strongly defending our intelligence community. When they go visit them in the field, I would guess that they are going to get a very cold reception.

The other thing that they are going to do is they are going to have questions, and they are going to expect the majority to explain how they did this with no hearings. They are going to have to explain exactly. Now, what does this amendment do? How does it impact us? What does it mean? How is it operational?

I assume you knew that before you voted on it on the floor of the House, and my answer is going to be, I don’t think they do.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I understand the frustration on the minority side. As an Army veteran, as a veteran of Federal law enforcement for 20½ years, I understand and value the United States Constitution. I understand and value that we have to live by the rules. I understand and value the fact that we are a global leader that is much respected.

The gentleman talks about one amendment, and that amendment simply says, Follow the rules. Follow the law. Follow the principles that have made this country great. I understand that.

Apparantly, the minority does not understand that, and I feel for them because, in the final analysis, I have been with members of the intelligence community in faraway places around the world. I have been with them and their families at Bethesda when they were recuperating from the attack in Khost. I have been to the ceremony at the CIA. I understand what they go through. This is a good bill. It deserves everybody’s support.

Mr. HOYER. Madam Chair, I rise in support of this Intelligence Authorization Act, which authorizes the tools America needs to detect and combat its greatest threats, including what President Obama called “a far-reaching network of violence and hatred.”

In the past weeks, we’ve seen a great deal of evidence that policies adopted by President Obama and Democrats are working to keep Americans safe. In Pakistan, the government is cooperating for the first time in the arrest of top Taliban leaders, including second-in-command Abdul Ghani Baradar and Abdul Kabir, a member of the Taliban’s senior leadership. At home, Najibullah Zazi has been convicted in federal court for attempting to bomb New York City’s subway, and the Christmas Day bomber is giving us timely intelligence.

This bill continues the policies that are working and strengthens America’s intelligence collection. It significantly increases funding for human intelligence, a resource that is irreplaceable in disrupting terrorist networks. To ensure the broad reach of our intelligence community, it makes critical investments in language training and scholarships, so that our personnel will have the resources to infiltrate networks and intercept communications around the world. It also strengthens our defenses against the emerging threats of cyber and brainwarfare, which if unchecked, could have a crippling effect on our military and economy. And this legislation makes an important contribution to America’s nuclear non-proliferation efforts by requiring reports on the nuclear intentions and capabilities of Iran, Syria, and North Korea, as well as on the worldwide black market in materials that could contribute to nuclear weapons.

At the same time as it strengthens our intelligence capabilities, this authorization bill also ensures that they receive reasonable and responsible oversight to protect Americans’ rights. It creates an independent inspector general with responsibility for the entire intelligence community; protects the Intelligence Committees’ access, through the Government Accountability Office, to critical information it needs to conduct proper oversight of intelligence activities; and requires that the CIA Inspector General audit each covert action at least once every three years. To prevent the abuse of detainees that weakens our moral case to the world without making Americans safer, this bill also prohibits private contractors from interrogating detainees in CIA custody. Finally, this bill, like the recently-passed Defense Authorization bill, prevents the release or transfer of Guantanamo detainees until the President provides a detailed explanation of why releasing or transferring these detainees and mitigating any risk their release or transfer might cause.

Madam Chair, the Founders spoke of providing “for the common defense” not only because they face common threats, but because the work of overcoming those threats is common to all of us. That work is far too important to be subjected to fear-mongering or the demands of the political cycle. That doesn’t obligate all of my colleagues to vote for this bill, though I hope they will, nor oblige us to conduct this debate, today and in the days to come, with the respect and responsibility that our common defense from common danger demands.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Madam Chair, I stand in support of the 2010 Intelligence Authorization Act.

This measure continues congress’ commitment to delivering to the men and women who serve in the country’s intelligence community the resources they need to conduct the vital work of protecting American lives. This bill ensures that these resources are delivered in a manner that strengthens accountability.

In addition to authorizing funding for 16 U.S. intelligence agencies and intelligence-related universities with the highest moral standards, the bill contains important provisions to expand independent government oversight of the intelligence community so that the American public can be confident that the essential work of intelligence gathering is done in a manner that conforms with the principles that guide our national security.

To ensure that all relevant members of Congress are kept abreast of all important intelligence developments, the bill repeals the “Gang of Eight” provision which has for years limited some congressional intelligence committee member access to intelligence information and activities. With the passage of this measure, the president will be required to brief all covered members of congress on the covert activities of the government. This will ensure that all officials who have been elected to oversee intelligence matters are briefed and aware of events as they unfold.

To help combat waste, fraud and abuse, the bill creates a new Office of the Inspector General and invests the office with subpoena powers and important protections to ensure its independence.

Madam Chair, Congress has not sent an intelligence authorization bill to the president for his signature in more than five years. That means for five years, congress has not been a full partner in the development of this country’s national security policy. We need to pass this bill, not only to fulfill our oversight responsibilities, but also for the sake of the brave men and women who have dedicated themselves to the important work this bill helps to fund.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Madam Chair, I rise today in strong support of this legislation. It has been five long years since an intelligence authorization bill was last signed into law, and each new revelation about the conduct of the previous administration testifies to the need for effective congressional oversight of the intelligence community.

This bill also provides an opportunity to move beyond questions of misconduct and abuse to address the longer-term challenges of improving our intelligence capabilities, making them responsive to cyber-security and other new threats, and ensuring that they are accountable to Congress and the American public.

I’d like to highlight two aspects of the bill on which I have worked in recent years (along with colleagues such as Ms. SCHAUKOWSKY and Mr. HOLT), and which I believe are important steps toward improving the effectiveness of our intelligence operations.

First, the bill contains several provisions dealing with the use of private contractors by the intelligence community, which by some reports could consume nearly half of the annual intelligence budget. It would require a comprehensive report on the number and cost of contractors employed by the intelligence community and the extent of their use for intelligence collection, analysis, and other covert activities including detention and interrogation.

It also explicitly prohibits the use of contractors for the interrogation of detainees, codifying a prohibition that the CIA itself has already adopted.

Both of these measures are based on my Transparency and Accountability in Intelligence Contracting Act (H.R. 963), and both were approved by the House in the last intelligence authorization bill but were not signed into law.

Secondly, the bill lays a foundation for making the practice of interrogation more effective, professional, and ethical.

I have worked closely with Subcommittee Chairman Mike THOMPSON in crafting a section of this bill based on H.R. 591, my comprehensive interrogation and detention reform bill.

Our provision would require the DNI to report to Congress on:

- The quality and value of existing scientific research on interrogation;
- The state of interrogation training within the intelligence community, including its ethical component;
- Efforts to enhance career paths for interrogation practitioners within the intelligence community;
- The effectiveness of existing processes for studying and implementing best practices.

These and other key provisions of this bill are only a start, but they represent an important first step toward improving the effectiveness and accountability of our intelligence community, and ensuring that the necessary measures we take to protect our country do not come at the cost of our fundamental values.

Finally, I feel compelled to remind my colleagues on the other side of the aisle who are claiming that this bill—and this Administration—somehow do not appreciate the threat our nation is facing have clearly neither read the text of this legislation nor given the issue much serious thought. Rather than holding up critical military commissions at Guantanamo Bay as a panacea for all of our ills, we should be confronting the threats we face squarely, soberly, and with vigilant attention to questions of effectiveness and ethicality—which is exactly what this bill does.

I thank Chair R EYES, Ranking Member HOEKSTRA, and the members of their committee for their leadership and their continued attention to these vital issues, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Madam Chair, I rise today in support of the Fiscal Year 2010 Intelligence Authorization Act. This bill will make our nation safer by improving federal intelligence operations and supporting a national defense strategy that is both strong and smart.

I am proud to represent Fort Bragg and Pope Air Force Base. For many years I was the only member from North Carolina on the Homeland Security Committee. I am also a veteran of the United States Army. All these experiences make me particularly mindful of the importance of intelligence. Successful intelligence makes our men and women in the military safer. This is the least we can do for those who voluntarily put themselves in harm’s way.

I am also aware of the cost of intelligence failures, where either oversight or intelligence falls short. H.R. 2701 is an important bill that both provides necessary investments in intelligence, and implements the democratic controls needed to be certain that these investments are well managed.

This bill will ensure that Congress fully understands own responses to terror. Complete review of the report. Indeed, an attack on Northwest Airlines flight 253 can make future attempts more likely to fail as well. Similarly, the mandated report on the antrax attacks of nine years ago will publicize lessons learned about emerging threats, helping us to deal with similar threats more effectively in the future.

Madam Chair, I support this legislation, and I urge my colleagues to join me in passing H.R. 2701.

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Chair, I rise in strong support of the dedicated public servants of our intelligence community. Their work to ensure our national security is to be commended. However, I must oppose the Intelligence Authorization Act of 2010.

This legislation contains provisions that implement vital measures of accountability, such as a provision to prohibit the use of funds for payment to any contractor to conduct interrogations of detainees currently in custody. I also support the provision in this legislation to establish an independent intelligence community-wide Inspector General. These provisions are an important step to ensure that mechanisms of accountability and oversight are in place. However, I remain concerned that some of the methods being employed by our intelligence community may amount to serious violations of international law and our Constitution.

Last month, The Washington Post and New York Times reported that the Joint Special Operations Command (JSOC) maintained lists of “high value individuals” targeted for assassination abroad, and that those lists contain U.S. citizens. What’s more, the President may have authorized military operations with the express understanding that a U.S. citizen might be killed, or may be killed in the future.

Under such a policy, U.S. citizens are added to the list simply on the suspect of involvement in terrorism, in subversion of their basic constitutional rights to due process of law. Their right to a trial and to present a defense is summarily and anonymously stripped from them. History has demonstrated that the U.S. government has been quick to accusing someone of involvement in terrorism. Most recently, following the 2008 Supreme Court decision to afford detainees held indefinitely at Guantanamo Bay habeas corpus rights, the government was forced by federal court order to release thirty-three of thirty-nine detainees on the grounds of insufficient evidence to support accusations of their involvement in terrorism. U.S. citizens accused of involvement in terrorism are not even afforded the same rights that Guantamano detainees are—if they are added to the targeted assassination list, their punishment is murder.

In response to these reports, I submitted a common-sense amendment that would have required the President to report to the congressional intelligence committees the identities of all U.S. citizens on such lists, now or currently in the future. My amendment was about accountability. If the Administration sees fit to revoke unilaterally the constitutional rights of U.S. citizens abroad based on suspicion of involvement in terrorism, devoid of any judicial review, it must at least be required to report to the congressional intelligence committees each time a U.S. citizen is added to a targeted assassination list.

Since the beginning of the War in Iraq more than eight years ago, I have expressed grave concern that intelligence obtained or abused by the Executive Branch to justify the war in Iraq. More recently, the Nation reported that Blackwater was intimately involved in a targeted assassination program run by the JSOC and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) in Pakistan—a country with which we are not at war. I am gravely concerned about the use of private security contractors in intelligence work, particularly in programs that have virtually no transparency, accountability, or oversight. I remain concerned that we are continuing to conduct intelligence work in contravention of international law and in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

I will continue to work to ensure that all have equal protection under the law; and that Congress conducts its constitutionally mandated oversight of the Executive Branch effectively.

Mr. REYES. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the bill shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the 5-minute rule and shall be considered read.

(b) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States is a world power and an exemplar of the merits of due process and the rule of law.

(2) The use of torture and cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment harms our service- men and women because it removes their ass urance that they are operating under a legally acceptable standard, brings discredit upon the US and its forces, and may place US and allied personnel in enemy hands at a greater risk of abuse by their captors.

(3) The use of torture and cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment gives propaganda and recruitment tools to those who wish to do harm to the people of the United States.

(4) Torture and cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment do not produce consistently reliable information or intelligence, and are not acceptable practices because their use runs counter to our identity and values as a nation.

(5) The moral standards that reflect the values of the United States governing appropriate tactics for interrogations do not change according to the dangers that we face as a nation.

(6) Every effort must be made to ensure that the United States is a nation governed by the rule of law in every circumstance.

(7) Executive Order 13491 requires those interroga ting persons to follow of armed conflicts to follow the standards set out in Army Field Manual FM 2-22.3.

(8) The Congress should act in affirmation of its principles and the Executive Order 13491 by enacting standards for interrogations and providing criminal liability for those who do not adhere to the enacted standards.

(9) The courageous men and women who serve honorably as intelligence personnel and as members of our nation's Armed Forces deserve the support of the United States Congress. The Congress shows true support, in part, by providing clear legislation relating to standards for interrogation techniques.

(10) CRUEL, INHUMAN, OR DEGRADING TREATMENT PROHIBITED.—Part I of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after chapter 26 the following:

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. REYES) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. REYES. I yield myself such time as may be necessary.

Madam Chair, the manager’s amendment includes a number of revisions to H.R. 2701 along with a number of technical changes. I would like to highlight several of these key provisions.

The manager’s amendment makes significant changes to the underlying bill’s reforms to the process for notifying Congress on sensitive covert actions.

As my colleagues know, the National Security Act requires that the President inform Congress through the Intelligence Committees about all significant intelligence activities including covert actions.

In very limited circumstances, it allows the President to limit briefings on certain highly sensitive covert actions to the Gang of Eight—the leadership of the Intelligence Committees and the leadership of both the House and Senate Intelligence Committees.

Over the past several months, we have carefully considered the administration’s objections to the reforms that the committee included in the underlying bill. The manager’s amendment is a product of that work.

The bill, as amended, would require the President to maintain a record of all Gang of Eight briefings. It also requires that the full committee be notified every time that a Gang of Eight briefing is conducted and be provided with general information regarding that briefing.

In the event the President decides that a briefing must be limited to the Gang of Eight, the manager’s amendment also requires that he submit a certification stating that extraordinary circumstances require the briefings to be limited.

In the case of a limited briefing, the DNI will have to reissue that certification every 180 days or open the briefing to all members of the committee.
This reform is a substantial improvement over the language we included in previous authorization bills and which some of my colleagues still support. This earlier language would have actually expanded the President’s authority concerning restricted briefings, going so far as to include all intelligence activities, not just covert actions. It would also result in more restricted briefings and not fewer.

I am interested in passing laws that reform the notification process, not, as some would say, in sending political messages.

The manager’s amendment also includes a number of provisions proposed by my colleagues. These include an amendment by Mr. Bisch, which would require the DNI and the Attorney General to provide Congress with a strategy on balancing intelligence collection needs with the interests of the United States in prosecuting terrorist suspects.

The questioning and prosecution of terrorist suspects has been the subject of some controversy in recent weeks, and I believe that Congress could benefit from understanding how the administration plans to handle such cases in the future.

A second provision included in the manager’s amendment was proposed by Mr. MARSHALL of Georgia. It requires the DNI to study the best practices of other foreign governments to combat violent domestic extremism.

A number of our allies, including the United Kingdom and the Netherlands, have established programs to stop individuals from turning to terrorism. This is a growing problem here in the United States, and we could benefit from learning how our friends and allies have dealt with this problem.

Madam Chair, I urge the passage of the manager’s amendment.

At this point, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I claim time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Since the other side doesn’t want to talk about this amendment, I find myself having to come back and, once again, bring up the McDermott amendment. I would just appreciate, since there have been no hearings on this and it has slipped into this in the dead of night, just some answers to questions that maybe someone on the majority side can answer.

Remember, we’re in a community now where the people at the front lines realize, when they have been asked by Congress and the President to do something, that, 3 or 4 years later, they may be prosecuted for those very activities by following the requests of this Congress.

We are talking about enhanced interrogation techniques. The record indicates that even people as high as the Speaker of this House knew about it. Yet this House is supporting those efforts to perhaps go back and prosecute this. Now we open up a whole new set of legal risk for our people in the intelligence community. I wish this thing just said, “Don’t do it,” but it doesn’t. It’s 11 pages of legalese, creating all types of new and ambiguous rules for our people in the intelligence community.

Would someone please answer the question: why did we never have any hearings on this? Why no discussion? Why no debate? Why does this amendment define a criminal offense that only intelligence community personnel would be guilty of? This only applies to intelligence community personnel. Answer the question.

The amendment would make it a crime for depriving the individual of necessary food, water, sleep, or medical care. How does the bill define “necessary”? How will we explain that to the people in the intelligence community?

The amendment would make it a crime to require someone to participate in acts that included torture, but not individual’s religious beliefs. Is there any objective standard to define that term or is it a subjective standard? Is there any requirement of reasonableness?

The amendment would make it a crime to exploit phobias of the individual. Phobias? Could you explain why this would be a criminal offense for a member of the intelligence community but not a criminal offense for a prosecutor who threatens a detainee with increased jail time if he does not cooperate?

These are just some simple questions—questions that I would think people in the intelligence community would ask the next time someone from this body comes to visit them, and tells them how much we support them and how great of a job we think they’re doing. I would think they would hold this amendment up and say, “Sir, Madam, did you vote for this? Did you understand what it meant when you voted for it?” Could you explain it to me? Somebody please answer these questions.

We sure didn’t have the opportunity to ask this in committee, to get any briefings on this, to have any hearings, for someone to explain this to us. But, no, if the other side has its way, soon we will be prosecuting intelligence community personnel. An interrogator? Could you explain why this was done? Is it a criminal offense for a pros-her religious beliefs.' Now, we know that al Qaeda through their training always says when you're caught by the United States, allege abuse. It shuts the system down. Guess what we just did. Does that mean a Jewish FBI official had to go in and conduct an interview? I don't know. Does it mean that if an uncovered woman goes in to conduct an interview, we've blasphemed their beliefs and their religion? I don't know. But we've certainly made it easier to make the allegation, haven't we? We've made it most impossible for them to do what we have to have them do, and that's extract information that's going to save lives. I mean you could go on to any sector of any religion that has become radicalized and understand it's impossible to meet that standard. Impossible. We are hugely restricting and handcuffing our intelligence community from doing what they need to do, and that's to get information, without torture, that keeps Americans safe and alive.

And, again, al Qaeda, Madam Chair, uses the technique, and we know this through a whole series of sources, to allege abuse. They use it in their media campaign, and they know it makes us chase our tails for weeks on end. This only enhances, this only strengthens their cause and al Qaeda's operational tactic to slow us down in the obtaining of that information.

I can't tell you how serious this amendment is with no debate and no discussion. It's dangerous. I urge rejection on this alone.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, it is now my privilege to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Ms. RICHARDSON), who is a member of the Homeland Security Subcommittee on Emerging Threats.

Ms. RICHARDSON. Madam Chair, I rise to engage the chairman of the Intelligence Committee for purposes of a colloquy.

Mr. REYES. I am happy to oblige.

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, as a member of the Homeland Security Committee and subcommittee Chair, I'm concerned that the members of the Homeland Security Committee have not consistently and were not adequately briefed by the administration on the events surrounding the failed Christmas Day terrorist attack. The Homeland Security Committee has an important role in congressional oversight over agencies within its jurisdiction.

Mr. Chairman, do you agree with me and Chairman THOMPSON that the Homeland Security Committee should be briefed in a timely manner on national security matters that play a central role in homeland security?

Mr. REYES. I believe that the Homeland Security Committees have an important role to play in congressional oversight of national security matters and that the committee should be briefed on national security matters that fall within its jurisdiction.

Ms. RICHARDSON. I thank the chairman for that response.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I yield 1 minute to my colleague from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY).

Mr. THORNBERRY. Madam Chair, a few weeks ago, the Member stated that the McDermott language only restates what's in current law. I would be very interested for any Member who can come to the floor and tell me where in current law it says any officer or employee of the intelligence community who forces an individual to be naked goes to jail for 15 years. Sometimes there's a good reason to ask someone to take their clothes off—to make sure they don't have bombs strapped around their waist. And yet an intelligence officer who does that under the McDermott language is liable for 15 years in jail.

The McDermott language says an officer or employee in the intelligence community who deprives an individual of necessary sleep goes to jail for 15 years.

Now, I cannot believe the many good Members on both sides of the aisle who are concerned about prosecuting terrorists, about keeping the country safe, have thought through implications of this language. And to have it included in a manager's amendment along with 20 other amendments is just amazing to me.

I strongly encourage every Member of the House to read this language and be careful before you vote on it.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I yield myself 2 minutes.

The manager's amendment includes language originally proposed by Mr. McDERMOTT that reiterates existing law on torture and provides statutory criminal penalties for individuals who knowingly commit an act of cruel, inhumane, or degrading treatment. Torture is a reprehensible and counterproductive tactic to slow us down in the obtaining of information.

I strongly encourage every Member of the House to read this language and be careful before you vote on it.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I now yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARROW).

Mr. BARROW. I thank the Chair for yielding.

I rise to commend Chairman REYES for including in the manager's amendment my amendment to develop a competitive grant program that will encourage the U.S. intelligence community to partner with Historically Black Colleges and Universities to recruit, train, and retain an ethnically and culturally diverse intelligence workforce.

We face a diverse and growing array of threats around the globe. As the means used by our enemies become more advanced, so must our defenses. Cultural, language, and educational barriers affect the quality of intelligence we can gather, and it's critical that our intelligence community have the human assets to overcome these barriers.

The area of Georgia that I represent is home to several HBCUs with specific expertise in languages and computer sciences. Engaging these centers of academic excellence, as this amendment does, will produce more sophisticated intelligence officers, who will in turn make our country more secure.

I want to thank Chairman REYES for his work on this important legislation, and I urge my colleagues to support passage of this bill.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I yield 1½ minutes to my colleague from Michigan (Mr. ROGERS).

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Madam Chair, it's not that you're giving terrorists better rights than Americans. It's the fact that you're extending to foreign terrorists, foreign nationals, foreign-trained individuals coming here to commit acts of violence and kill civilians the same rights as Americans. It's a wrong. They are enemy combatants.

You say, well, we can't have Abu Ghraib. You're right; we can't. Torture is illegal. It was illegal then, and guess what? It was investigated and they have been prosecuted, rightly so. They abused people. Wrong. They go to jail. That's what happens in this system.

What you're doing now is interfering mass confusion into the people who are going to try to conduct debriefings all over the world, and they're going to go to dangerous places, and guess what? You've engaged one of the worst parts of the al Qaeda playbook that says, remember, when Americans are shooting at themselves and chasing their tail, they are not shooting at us. Allegue abuse. You've just put 11 confusing pages right into the hands of our enemy to say, make it really hard on the folks who are risking their lives to save Americans so that we can continue to do what we do, and that's find, rein, recruit, and we will send people to America to kill American civilians.

This is a dangerous, dangerous, dangerous step that you take. No debate. No discussion. Lots of confusion. Don't do this to the men and women who risk their lives every day to protect the United States of America.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 1 minute.

Mr. REYES. Thank you, Madam Chair.

I rise to inform my colleagues on the other side that the men and women protecting this country are clear about their duties. They are focused on keeping us safe. They are not concerned about the political spin here. They are not concerned about the rhetoric that they hear. But they do appreciate actions more than rhetoric.

I know because I have been around the world visiting them. I have been to talk to various groups in the intelligence community. They know that we appreciate the work that they do each and every day to keep us safe. And they are not going to be fooled, like the American people are not going to be fooled, by the rhetoric that comes up, the spin that they try to put on the management, and in particular the reiteration of something that is fundamentally American, and that is we have a Constitution. We have rules that we all have to live by. We understand the law. And we have to have respect for that law. It does not undermine any of that.

It is a good manager's amendment. I urge the adoption of the manager's amendment. The Committee is failing to do its work and has inordinate equities of the President and the Congress, this amendment has ceded the decision on the intelligence reform from last year.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I yield myself the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 1½ minutes.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Thank you.

Madam Chair, my colleague on the other side of the aisle is exactly right. The people in the intelligence community are watching exactly what we are doing. And actions do speak louder than words. The actions that they have seen, their colleagues were asked by this Congress, including, the record shows, the leadership of this House and the former administration, to do things on their behalf to keep America safe, and they see their colleagues now potentially being prosecuted because there have been rules changed under this administration.

As they see the rules changed for them and perhaps their colleagues being prosecuted, they see a global justice initiative coming out of the FBI where we were reading human rights to our enemies on the battlefield in Afghanistan. They see the actions and they see the actions are very, very different.

They see that we are moving KSM from Gitmo to trial in New York City. Thankfully, the people in New York City are saying no way, we are not doing it. And at the same time that KSM is being promised a trial in civil courts in the United States, they are seeing 11 pages of new vulnerabilities being placed on them after no hearings and no debate.

Yes, our men and women in the field are seeing a real difference. They are seeing a real difference in actions by this Congress in this administration. They see that they have become kind of a target of this administration, that this is now not about keeping America safe, it is about putting them into a legal framework, an ugly legal net.

Madam Chair, I rise in strong opposition to this bloated Manager's Amendment. Its flaws powerfully demonstrate how the Intelligence Committee is failing to do its work and has in fact become counterproductive to the work of the intelligence community. They see that they have become kind of a target of this administration, that this is now not about keeping America safe, it is about putting them into a legal framework, an ugly legal net.

They see that they have become kind of a target of this administration, that this is now not about keeping America safe, it is about putting them into a legal framework, an ugly legal net.

This amendment is everything that is wrong with intelligence policy in 2010. It is politicized, it fails to recognize or act on the serious threats that we continue to face as a nation, and it puts off the tough decisions indefinitely. Where it does take a substantive action, instead of taking meaningful steps to fix the problem it blames the men and women of the intelligence community for failing to follow a politically correct policy, even though that policy was ratified by Members of Congress at the highest levels. I think we have heard this story before.

The Managers Amendment contains the text of 22 Democratic amendments, and no Republican amendments. The Committee minority was not consulted on a single one of these amendments—in fact, one of them continues to reverse a bipartisan agreement on notification reform from last year.

Instead of taking meaningful steps to address critical national security policy issues that posed by bringing Guantanamo detainees to the United States, the flaws revealed in our intelligence sharing by the Fort Hood and Christmas attacks, and the issues posed by American citizens who join terrorist groups abroad, it would require 16 new reports, to bring the total for the bill to at least 51. Instead of addressing the men and women of our intelligence community, it would create a new criminal offense that not only would duplicate an existing law—it would apply only to our intelligence personnel. How's that for gratitude?

Instead of trying to provide proper procedures are in place to govern the conduct of covert action activities that could impact American citizens, the Majority believes it is more important to order yet another duplicative report on foreign language proficiency when the Pentagon has already briefed regularly and repeatedly on the efforts that are ongoing in this area.

Instead of trying to fix the intelligence sharing problems that were laid bare at the Fort Hood shooting and shown to be critical during the intelligence committee's oversight hearings, the Majority has chosen to put its head in the sand and order up a report on events in Argentina between the mid-1970s and the mid-1980s.

Instead of resolving the serious problems in coordinating the interrogation of the high-value detainees that became apparent when Miranda rights were read to a foreign radical jihadist, the Majority has chosen to require the intelligence community to write up not one, but two new reports and a “Task Force” on cybersecurity even though the Committee is in the middle of a series of comprehensive briefings and hearings on the subject and has conducted repeated oversight.

Madam Chair, I can't think of a single terrorist plot that has ever been disrupted by a report to Congress.

In addition to these more fundamental issues, I need to note for the record some specific serious problems with this amendment.

First, the amendment does even further damage to the bipartisan agreement that had been reached on reform of congressional notification. Instead of providing a mechanism that respects the separation of powers and the various equities of the President and the Congress, this amendment has ceded the decision of which Members of Congress will be briefed on foreign radical jihadis, the Majority has chosen to require the intelligence community to write up not one, but two new reports and a “Task Force” on cybersecurity even though the Committee is in the middle of a series of comprehensive briefings and hearings on the subject and has conducted repeated oversight.

Madam Chair, I can't think of a single terrorist plot that has ever been disrupted by a report to Congress.

In addition to these more fundamental issues, I need to note for the record some specific serious problems with this amendment.

Second, the amendment does even further damage to years of carefully developed practice and procedure for how the congressional intelligence committees conduct oversight by attempting to cede its responsibility to the GAO. The original bill was flawed because it would have provided the GAO with virtually unfettered authority to insert itself into intelligence community matters without applying the same rules that govern the congressional intelligence committees or limiting the dissemination of any work product to protect sources and methods. It was so bad that even the Obama administration objected that the bill “would fundamentally shift the longstanding relationship and information flow between the IC and intelligence committee members and staff.” This Managers Amendment makes these problems even worse by allowing the Comptroller General to unilaterally develop procedures for handling highly sensitive material with no requirement that it follow House or Committee rules, and in fact would allow committees other than the intelligence committees to request GAO review of the intelligence community.

This is contrary to the Rules of the House and the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission. How many times do we have to learn the simple lesson that intelligence oversight is most effective when it is conducted by the intelligence committees? Presidents and other private enterprises would demand no less. Those committees do more than just require new reports.

Third, buried deep within the 22 amendments contained in this Managers Amendment is an extraordinary provision that would create a new federal crime that would be applicable to the men and women of the intelligence community. Title 18 of the U.S. Code, section 2340A, already gives effect to the Convention Against Torture and makes torture a criminal offense in the United States. Torture is already against the law. Apparently, that’s not enough for the Majority—it has to have a special offense that would apply only to the men and women of the Intelligence Community—just as Attorney General Holder has appointed a special prosecutor to investigate them. There is no legal reason to do this—it appears only to make a political statement. The intelligence operatives on the front lines deserve our thanks and our support for doing hard things in hard places, like the sacrifice this year in Khost, Afghanistan. They do not deserve to be singled out for special criminal offenses. I believe that this is wrong.

Madam Chair, I strongly oppose this amendment.

Mr. PATRICK J. MURPHY of Pennsylvania. Madam Chair, I’d like to extend my sincere thanks to Chairman REYES for accepting this amendment and taking an important step toward strengthening our Nation’s cyber infrastructure against attack. Madam Chair, the protection of our country’s cyber infrastructure is one of today’s most pressing—and challenging—national security issues. Computers and Internet device technology have become pervasive in every type of crime and federal agencies are experiencing an increase in computer intrusions into our most secure and sensitive government computer networks. This growing threat is extraordinarily difficult to address. The technology used to perpetrate these crimes constantly changes and it can be exceedingly difficult to track down the perpetrators. It is our duty to ensure that our Intelligence Community and our Nation’s law enforcement agencies have every tool necessary in their arsenal to combat cyber criminals and cyber terrorists who seek to access or steal protected information.

To be successful in preventing security breaches, Madam Chair, the agencies tasked with protecting the country from cyber attacks must constantly revise and improve their primary functions of data collection, analysis, and dissemination to keep pace with expanding threats. Experts in the field have pointed to several areas of the law which may need to be reviewed and updated to ensure their effectiveness in protecting American individuals, businesses, and our national security.

Our proposal would establish the Cybercrime Task Force to analyze the current tools available to the Intelligence Community and law enforcement and provide legislative recommendations to strengthen those tools. Resources, reduce our national exposure, and prevent and deter cyber attacks, cyber terrorism, cyber espionage, and cybercrimes.

The goals of the task force include improving attribution to specific criminals, understanding the nontraditional targets of attackers, and strengthening federal computer crime statutes to deter would-be perpetrators.

First, crucial to better deterrence—and the possibility of implementing sanctions—is improving the IC’s ability to track and correlate attribution for cyber attacks. Attacks committed with the aid of computer or Internet device technology are often cleared with negative clearance. In order words, the IC is not able to detect and identify hostile foreign actors because of missing data at Internet service providers. The task force will identify evidence-based recommendations on mandatory data retention requirements that balance the privacy of an individual’s data, the technical and financial limitations of companies and Internet service providers, and the need to effectively cybercrime.

The task force shall incorporate in their recommendations suggestions to minimize barriers to entry into the service provider industry and to lessen any negative impact on innovation or new start-ups in the industry.

Second, Madam Chair, in light of the rapidly evolving nature of the crimes, we must better understand the likely, but nontraditional, targets to which perpetrators may seek unauthorized access. Cyber attacks are increasingly the preferred method of foreign intelligence services collection of data against the U.S., raising a host of novel training, counterintelligence and investigative issues. To improve these operations in the IC’s understanding of the extent to which computer and Internet device technology pervades traditional crimes, the task force shall compile a list of nontraditional targets (i.e., economic or industrial bases) in the U.S. that the IC has not traditionally dealt with as a target for foreign intelligence services.

Finally, Madam Chair, an increasing number of “terrorist” (i.e., physical) crimes are being committed with the aid of a computer or Internet network. The task force shall survey the current federal crime statute for computer fraud and abuse to determine whether it is sufficient in light of the advanced nature of the crimes being committed. It shall determine the adequacy of the laws for which cybercrime and cyber espionage constitute a predicate offense and provide recommendations for updating those statutes when warranted. The task force shall establish and disseminate guidelines for States to revise their State-level statutes equivalent to 18 U.S.C. 1030 to help ensure they keep pace with Federal changes.

An increase in the prevalence of crimes facilitated through computer fraud and abuse raises novel investigative, prosecutorial and training issues because of the complex and high-speed nature of computer and Internet technology. To improve law enforcement’s understanding of the extent to which computer technology pervades traditional crimes, the task force shall compile a list of which crimes are most often committed with the aid of computer technology. The task force shall advise whether a need exists to outlaw, or more clearly prohibit, certain behavior (i.e., unauthorized access) regardless of intent or resulting damage, whether monetary or to a computer system. The task force shall also address the increasing prevalence of individuals using pre-programmed hacking tools to commit a crime without necessarily understanding the full implications or potential consequences of the technology.

The task force shall analyze existing Federal and State data breach notification requirements and advise whether and how current law should be amended to strengthen requirements and improve compliance, including notification of relevant law enforcement authorities as well as any individuals whose personally identifiable information may be at risk from the breach. Currently, forty-three States have enacted breach notification requirements, and they vary widely, resulting in low compliance levels. The task force shall analyze discrepancies among existing requirements, determine barriers to compliance, and provide recommendations for overcoming such barriers (i.e., through Federal legislation, tying a company’s obligations to specific jurisdiction and their requirements, or through some other means).

Finally, the task force shall determine whether and how current victim restitution statutes should be amended in order for victims of cyber attacks to be made whole. Currently States have varying forms of recourses for vic- tims of cyber attacks, particularly when a person is hurt because a company’s data was breached. The task force shall recommend whether a Federal law is needed to address this and, if so, how it should be structured.

Madam Chair, I urge my colleagues to ensure that we stay a step ahead of hackers and cyber terrorists seeking to cause us harm and to pass this important amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HOEKSTRA), Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas will be post-poned.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. HOEKSTRA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in House Report 111–419.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I have an amend-ment as follows:

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. HOEKSTRA.

Insert after section 354 the following new section:

SEC. 355. PUBLIC RELEASE OF INFORMATION ON PROCEDURES USED IN NARCOTICS AIRBRIDGE DENIAL PROGRAM IN PERU.

Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency shall make publicly available an unclassified version of the report of the Inspector General of the Central Intelligence Agency entitled ‘‘Proce-dures Used in Narcotics Airbridge Denial Program in Peru, 1995–2001’’ dated August 25, 2008.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 111, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I would like to yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, this is a very straight-forward amendment. I thank the Rules Committee for making it in order. It basically says that for not later than 30 days after the enactment of this Act, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency shall make publicly available an unclassified version of the report of the Inspector General entitled ‘‘Proce-dures Used in Narcotics Airbridge Denial Program in Peru.’’

Many of you may remember that this was a very tragic incident where, with the assistance of our intelligence community, two of my constituents were tragically killed in Peru, shot down by the Peruvian Air Force. We need an unclassified version of this report being made available to the public, and more importantly, to the families, the families of those who were killed.

You know, it wasn't that long ago, it was within the last month that there was a report about an accountability review. Almost 9 years after that tragic shoot-down, there was an Accountability Board that had been convened. And its results have been made or were reported to our committee. Roughly 4 weeks ago I asked the Director of the CIA whether the families of those killed would be briefed on what was found in the Accountability Board and the account-abilities that were put in order. To date I am yet waiting for an answer.

This has been unfair to these families. It has been unfair to the American public that when we have had such a tragic failing in the intelligence com-munity, which included, from my perspective, an attempted coverup by the previous administration or by the in-telligence community as to exactly what happened, how it happened, and how these Americans were killed, that we have been closed in sharing that information with the American public and the families.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REYES. I would like to claim the time in opposition, even though I am not opposed to it.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. REYES. I yield such time as she may consume to my friend from Cali-fornia (Ms. HARMAN).

Ms. HARMAN. I thank the chairman for yielding, and surely hope that we cover a program amendment that I recall during my years as ranking member on the committee when we were, in quotes, ‘‘briefed’’ on this incident. I am very disappointed about the way it was handled. I personally think the gentleman from Michigan is correct, and I applaud what he is doing.

As we debate this bill, we must thank again the thousands of patriotic and courageous women and men who are serving in our intelligence community around the world. As I so often say, a grateful Nation salutes them for their efforts to keep us safe. Our Nation also remembers and honors those who lost their lives, most recently at Forward Operating Base Chapman in Afghan-istan.

Madam Chair, in addition to this ex-cellent amendment, I applaud the under-lying bill’s provisions to reform the way Congress is notified of sensitive covert programs, briefings that for too long were limited to the so-called ‘‘Gang of Eight.’’ During my years as ranking member, it was clear that ef-fective oversight required providing the entire committee with information previously limited to its leadership.

And so this bill rightly provides for full committee notice of Gang of Eight briefings, a contemporaneous record of those briefings, something we sorely lacked, and it entitles the full com-mittee to receive the same briefings as the Gang of Eight within 180 days.

These changes go a long way toward correcting the frustration felt on both sides of the aisle during my tenure on the committee. We should not have been put in the position of one hand upholding our oath of secrecy, while on the other hand being starved for information to conduct necessary oversight.

Just last week, pursuant to a FOIA request, memoranda describing some of our briefings were declassified. The documents, which are available to the public, show repeated pushback from Intelligence Committee members, sure-ly including me, about the failure to brief us on these documents or other timely information.

Madam Chair, last time I checked, Congress was an independent branch of government. We must assert our pre rogative to monitor and rectify prob-lems that surface in the programs we oversee. In the intelligence world, some of these problems affect our core values as well as our Constitution. Se-curity and liberty are not a zero sum game. It is our sworn duty to protect both. The language in the underlying bill and this amendment offered by Mr. HOEKSTRA go a long way to rectify long-existing problems.

I urge support for the bill and sup-port for this amendment.

Mr. REYES. I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan has the right to close.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chairwoman, I am prepared to accept the amendment, and want the record to reflect that Ms. SCHAKOWSKY from Illinois is very much in agreement with Mr. HOEKSTRA.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Thank you, Madam Chair.

I would like to thank my colleagues on the other side of the aisle and the chairman for accepting the amend-ment, my colleague from California for the kind words that she had to say. We worked on this program for a number of years together. And it has taken us such a long period of time to get the answers that help understand but do not explain what happened.

This amendment is intended to get more information to the American peo-ple, more information to the families. I do hope that over the coming days that the Director of the CIA, that the people in the intelligence community decide to give the families full access to the Accountability Board.

I appreciate the support of the chair woman of the subcommittee, Ms. SCHAKOWSKY from Illinois. This is a case where we have worked uniquely in a bipartisan way to address failings within the intelligence community, to try to right those wrongs, and to try to move us forward in a constructive and positive way. I thank my colleagues who have enabled that process to work and to work effectively.

Madam Chair, I yield back the bal-ance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gen-tleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. HASTINGS OF FLORIDA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in House Report 111–419.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 3 offered by Mr. HASTINGS of Florida:
Insert after section 352 the following new section:

SEC. 353. REPORT ON PLANS TO INCREASE DIVERSITY WITHIN THE INTELLIGENCE COMMUNITY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) To most effectively carry out the mission of the intelligence community to collect and analyze intelligence, the intelligence community needs personnel that look and speak like the citizens of the many nations in which the United States needs to collect such intelligence.

(2) One of the great strengths of the United States is the diversity of the people of the United States, diversity that can positively contribute to the operational capabilities and effectiveness of the intelligence community.

(3) In the past, the intelligence community has not properly focused on hiring a diverse workforce and the capabilities of the intelligence community have suffered due to that lack of focus.

(4) The intelligence community must be deliberate and work hard to hire a diverse workforce to improve the operational capabilities and effectiveness of the intelligence community.

(b) REQUIREMENT FOR REPORT.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of National Intelligence, in coordination with the heads of the elements of the intelligence community, shall submit to the congressional intelligence committees a report on the plans of each element to increase diversity within the intelligence community.

(c) CONTENT.—The report required by subsection (b) shall include specific implementation plans to increase diversity within each element of the intelligence community, including:

(1) specific implementation plans for each such element designed to achieve the goals articulated in the strategic plan of the Director of National Intelligence on equal employment opportunity and diversity;

(2) specific plans and initiatives for each such element to increase recruiting and hiring of diverse candidates;

(3) specific plans and initiatives for each such element to improve retention of diverse Federal employees at the junior, midgrade, senior management levels;

(4) a description of specific diversity awareness training and education programs for senior officials and managers of each such element; and

(5) a description of performance metrics to measure the success of carrying out the plans, initiatives, and programs described in paragraphs (1) through (4).

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Madam Chair, I would like to correct some things, because I have been here all day listening to our colleagues complain about the diversity of the intelligence community. This is the beginning of the process. And it is an important one, one that has not been undertaken in 4 years, such that we have not had an authorization bill for all that time.

Now, I am sure that my colleagues know that when this measure is completed, and on the other side in the other body, that we will have a conference. And many of the discussions that are being heard here today are likely to be addressed in that conference report.

Now, I have stated time and again that the intelligence community is not diverse enough to do its job of obtaining and analyzing information from countries secrets. Diversity is a mission imperative. We need people who blend in, speak the language, and understand the cultures and the countries that we are targeting.

The intelligence community is our Nation’s first line of defense against the increasing dangers and threats we face around the world. From the scourgery of terrorism, to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, to hostile governments, intelligence work is often unseen, and mostly thankless.

Now, I keep hearing all this talk about Mirandizing people on the battlefield. I have a lot of difficulty understanding when that happened. I have been on the committee for 10 years, and I don’t know that that is a methodology that is being employed with any regularity.

I have had the honor and privilege of meeting many of our intelligence professionals and traveling the world as a member of the Intelligence Committee to more than 50 countries. I cannot overstate how much all of us, Democrats and Republicans, every Member of this House and every President that I have known, are appreciative of their sacrifice and service.

And yes, I will stand and say that when this authorization measure passes that I do support the men and women in the 15 elements of the intelligence services and appreciate them very much.

I am proud to support this measure for several reasons. It substantially increases funding for human intelligence collection and counterintelligence activities, tools that have been underresourced in the past years.

The bill continues the essential funding to support the critical efforts of U.S. warfighters in Iraq, Afghanistan and Pakistan, and provides additional funding to address significantly emerging issues in Africa, Latin America and elsewhere. And I would urge my colleagues to footnote that.

There is no place that I think that we should focus as much attention as we have with Iran as Yemen. It is going to be critical for us to pay attention to that area of the world.

This bill also adds funds and authorities for language programs. Chairman REYES and I and countless other Members on this committee have fought this issue repeatedly for us to make progress in languages; and, I might add, we have been successful. If you see the new people entering the service, if you visit our operational activities, you’ll see there are more and more people that are in the service.

I do have something to quarrel about, and that is, the gays in the military provision that allows, among other things, that we’re putting people out of the service who are Farsi and Arabic speakers because they’re gay, and I think that’s ridiculous in the environment that we’re operating in.

We still don’t have enough women. We still don’t have enough North Koreans, and I could go on and on.

While the intelligence community has faced some problems of hiring people with diverse backgrounds, education and experience, including, indeed, more women and minorities, this progress has been at a glacial speed. The intelligence community has been historically slow to recognize the wealth and abundance of talent and skills that reside in first, second, and even third-generation Americans. We still don’t have an intelligence workforce that looks like our country. We aren’t even close.

The timeframe is that we, until we have every segment of society participating in the intelligence community, our capabilities will not rise to the level needed to defeat terrorism.

I’d like to yield the balance of my time to the distinguished chairperson of the Intelligence Committee, and to thank the Members of the Democrat and Republican staff on the House Intelligence Select Committee.

Mr. REYES. I just want to thank the very able Chair of our Select Committee for his hard work. I know he’s worked ever since he’s been on the committee on this very important issue that keeps, I think, the face of the intelligence community reflecting the face of this Nation.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chairman, I’d like to claim the time in opposition, although I will not be opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORN) for 1 minute.

Mr. THORN. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) has been a forceful and eloquent advocate for greater diversity in the intelligence community. And he’s exactly right; we will be more effective when we have greater diversity in our intelligence community. We’re more effective human collectors when we look like those from whom we are collecting. We will be more effective when we have a greater range of language talents including dialects. All of that is absolutely true.

My point, in addition, however, is that it’s not just getting them into the intelligence community. It’s how we treat them once they’re hired. And some of the recent actions over the last year, whether it’s a special prosecutor to go after, again, interrogators after they have already been investigated, or whether it’s releasing classified memos, even though five CIA directors recommend not having it done, that cuts against the ability to keep these qualified people in government service after we have them hired. And I can think of nothing worse than to threaten these people with 15 years of prison if they don’t do the work of the interrogation as far as encouraging our intelligence professionals to stay with the government.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chairman, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Madam Chairman, I will not oppose the amendment. I support the amendment. I think the report on highlighting the progress that we have made or that we may not have made toward our objectives of increasing the diversity within the intelligence community is something that is needed and something that my colleague has been championing for all the years that we have served on the committee together. I support the amendment and urge my colleagues to support it as well.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS). The Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it. The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. ROGERS OF MICHIGAN

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in House Report 111–419.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. Rogers of Michigan:

SEC. 349. FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION FIELD OFFICE SUPERVISORY TERM LIMIT POLICY.

None of the funds authorized to be appropriated by this Act may be used to implement the field office supervisory term limit policy of the Federal Bureau of Investigation requiring the mandatory reassignment of a supervisor of the Bureau after a specific term of years.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. ROGERS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Madam Chairman, it’s with a heavy heart I rise with this amendment. This has been a bipartisan issue for, I hate to say it, going on 5 years where the Director of the FBI implemented a new policy, and the policy was designed to try to get a different talent pool of individuals to come to Washington, D.C. to be supervisors in their new bureaucracy of the intelligence community, if you will. They were having a difficult time doing that.

So what they ended up doing is they forced supervisors in the field. These are FBI experts in a whole variety of fields—it could be white-collar crime, it could be organized crime, it could be counterterrorism efforts—and arbitrarily said, after 5 years you’re done. You either have to step down, you have to come to Washington, D.C. and apply to be an ASAC or other job, or you have to move on. You can either leave the Bureau, you can step down and go back to the ranks of what we used to call a brick agent in the FBI.

Five years ago we said, you know this is really unfair to a lot of agents. You have served on the committee to-people have to have confidence that government employees are working in the best interest of the Nation and not in just a personal self-interest.

I want to thank my colleagues from the HPSCI, Representatives Tienney, Boren, Schakowsky, Thompson, Holt, Rogers, and Members that support this amendment. And I urge the adoption of it.

Madam Chairman, how much time do I have left?

The Acting CHAIR. 2½ minutes is remaining.

Ms. ESHOO. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. ROGERS) 1½ minutes.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Madam Chairman, I want to thank my good friend, Ms. Eshoo from California. You know, sometimes you can get ahead of a problem. We don’t often do that in Congress. I think this is a great way to get ahead of a problem.

Given the fact that these individuals who have great things for our country, we’re thankful for it, takes sometimes a piece of intellectual property that really belongs to the people of the United States, and some of it is very sensitive, very compartmentalized. It’s information that is shared with very few. So I think it’s important responsibility. And for us not to have a policy on how we make sure that those people don’t use that information for personal gain on the outside of that community, especially the intelligence community, I think is wrong. And I think this is a good measure that puts some really basic protections, not only for them, but for the intelligence community and the people of America.

And I want to commend the gentlelady for her work and effort on this. And I wholeheartedly support this effort.

Ms. ESHOO. I want to thank the gentleman for his support. This is a bipartisan amendment.

I just want to add, Madam Chair, this is in no way a ban across the entire Federal Government and Federal workers. There are some that teach at universities at night; there are others that make really very low salaries—GS-1s in the $17,000 range—that do have some outside employment.

This goes directly to the skill set that the American people train these CIA officers and others in the intelligence community to do their work relative to national security. That shouldn’t be sold off in bits and parts by moonlighting.

So I think that we’ve done that respect fully, and I think that we’ve done it thoughtfully. And I’d like to thank the chairman again for this, Mr. Rogers, and Members that have supported it. I think it’s a good amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. Who seeks time in opposition?

With no one seeking time in opposition, the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Ms. Eshoo).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 6 OFFERED BY MR. CONAWAY

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 6 printed in House Report 111–419.

Mr. CONAWAY. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 6 offered by Mr. Conaway: Page 87, strike line 21 and all that follows through page 88, line 9, and insert the following:

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) it is imperative that intelligence community-wide auditability be achieved as soon as possible; and

(2) the Business Transformation Office of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence has made substantial progress and must be of sufficient standing within the Office to move the plan for core financial system requirements to reach intelligence community-wide auditability forward;

(3) as of the date of the enactment of this Act, the National Reconnaissance Office is the only element of the intelligence community to have received a clean audit; and

(4) the National Reconnaissance Office should be commended for the long hours and hard work invested by the Office to achieve a clean audit.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. CONAWAY. Thank you, Madam Chair.

This amendment is a pretty simple, straightforward one. It’s about good governance. It’s about protecting the assets of the American taxpayer as utilized by the intelligence community.

This bill came out of committee 8 months ago. We’ve now learned some things that in the last 8 months that we didn’t know then, and this amendment would simply substitute a new paragraph A for the old paragraph A. This paragraph would simply say it’s an important initiative for the intelligence community to work to get audited financial statements across all of the entities. This takes a lot of work, a lot of effort to make that happen.

I’d like to call the Chair’s attention to the National Reconnaissance organization, who is the only entity within the intelligence community that has, in fact, achieved an unqualified audit opinion on their financial statements. Under Dr. Scott Large’s leadership, that hard work was done. And then more directly, Karen Landry, the Chief Financial Officer for the NRO, and Sandi Van Boven, the Chief Financial Officer, led an incredible team to do an awful lot of hard work to make that happen. I don’t discount how hard that is. From my professional experience, I know it’s hard. But they’re to be commended as the agency that has achieved clean audited financial statements.

As important as that is, it’s an ongoing challenge, and I hope that General Bruce Carlson, who is now the leader at NRO, will continue to lead the efforts needed to make that happen.

This is a top-down function. It has to have the initiative of the leadership. The Office of Director of Intelligence has to make this a priority. And this amendment would seek to recognize that priority and continue to draw attention to it from our body so that the executive branch body, in fact, knows that we believe that it’s important to get this done. So it’s a pretty straightforward amendment, Madam Chair.

I recognize the hard work of some of the folks over at NRO is kind of a pat on the back for having done it correctly, shown us how it can be done, an increased amount of hard work being done by the team led by Ms. Landry and Ms. Van Booven.

So, with that, I encourage my colleagues on the floor today to support this good governance amendment that would further the hard efforts being done across the community to achieve unqualified audit opinions on their financial statements and all of the internal controls and systems that go behind that.

Final comment. There are some tough decisions ahead for Director Blair and others to make this happen, and I encourage them to make those decisions sooner than later. And I encourage my colleagues to support the amendment. I yield back.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY). The amendment was agreed to.

Amendment No. 7 offered by Mr. ARCURI

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

(3) CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE.—The term "critical infrastructure" has the meaning given that term in section 1016 of the USA PATRIOT Act (42 U.S.C. 18090).

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 110, the gentleman from New York (Mr. ARCURI) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.
The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. ARCURI. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The threat of cyberattack on our computer infrastructure as well as the threat of cyberwarfare cannot be overstated. The need for congressional action to ensure adequate funding is in place to guarantee that our country is prepared for any contingency we may face in this relatively new area of warfare is critical. I believe, as a nation, our investment in cybersecurity will be the Manhattan Project of our generation.

H. R. 2701 authorizes the funding to make this investment a reality. Cyberthreats and attacks are real, and they threaten our financial and defense networks every day. Nearly every aspect of everyday life in our global society is dependent on the security of our cyberinfrastructure. Cybersecurity programs to combat these threats with cutting-edge technologies. These new programs will present new legal and privacy challenges.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THORNBERY. I seek to claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. THORNBERY. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, I don't think anyone in this House can deny the importance of cybersecurity. Certainly the Intelligence Committee is devoting a great deal of time and effort to understanding the threats to our potential responses and how we go about it. I am perhaps, however, a lonely voice expressing caution about the number of reports that accumulate on top of one another year after year and weigh down our intelligence community.

I mentioned earlier that there are 41 new reports of one kind or another that are in the underlying bill. The manager's amendment, which we've debated, has at least 17 more reports on top of that. And I believe, if you look at all of the 20, 21 provisions of the manager's amendment, there are at least two reports on cybersecurity plus a task force.

Now, the issue is important, but surely the goodness—we have some responsibility in Congress to pay attention to the cost in terms of dollars, the cost in terms of manpower to do all of these reports that get added on top of the intelligence community but often never go away, that just stack on top of each other year after year.

So I appreciate the gentleman's interest in cybersecurity. I share that, by the way. I think the gentleman's right on the need to fund the men and women who gave their lives defending the United States in the service of the Central Intelligence Agency, especially noting those individuals who remain unnamed; and

(4) thank the Central Intelligence Agency for its crucial support of United States military operations in Afghanistan and Iraq;

(5) commend the men and women who gave their lives defending the United States in the service of the Central Intelligence Agency, especially noting those individuals who remain unnamed; and

(6) urge the Central Intelligence Agency to continue its dedicated work in the field of intelligence-gathering in order to protect the people of the United States.

Mr. ARCURI. Madam Chair, I thank the gentleman for his comments, and I think he's right. I think, clearly, the fact that a report is requested simply for the sake of requesting a report is redundant and is taxing on our intelligence community. But I think when we look at what happened during 9/11 and the fact that some of the intelligence branches of government were not sharing information, I think we need to learn something from that.

In my district, I have an Air Force research lab that really focuses a great deal on cybersecurity, and I want to make sure the information that they're developing and the technologies that they're developing are being shared with other branches of the military and the intelligence community. And I think it's very important that we allow congressional oversight and that we ensure that in our role as Congressmen, that we are making sure that they are doing that, that they are sharing the information the way they should.

So I certainly appreciate your point, but I think this is one of the places where it's critically important that we ensure that the information sharing is being done.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. ARCURI).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. BURTON OF INDIANA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 8 printed in House Report 111–419.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 8 offered by Mr. Burton of Indiana.

SEC. 505. SENSE OF CONGRESS HONORING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY.

It is the sense of Congress to—

(1) honor the Central Intelligence Agency for its contributions to the security of the United States and its allies;

(2) recognize the Central Intelligence Agency's unique role in combating terrorism;

(3) praise the Central Intelligence Agency for its success in foiling recent terrorist plots and capturing senior members of al-Qaeda;

(4) thank the Central Intelligence Agency for its crucial support of United States military operations in Afghanistan and Iraq;

(5) commend the men and women who gave their lives defending the United States in the service of the Central Intelligence Agency, especially noting those individuals who remain unnamed; and

(6) urge the Central Intelligence Agency to continue its dedicated work in the field of intelligence-gathering in order to protect the people of the United States.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. First of all, Madam Chair, I want to thank the Now, we have three Navy SEALs right now that are being court-martialed, and they are being court-martialed because they captured an al Qaeda terrorist in Fallujah in Iraq. And this al Qaeda terrorist took four American contractors, tortured them, dragged them through the streets, burned their bodies and hung them from a bridge.

He also cut off the head of a leading person that was over there gathering news and information for the news media, an out-and-out horrible terrorist. Now, when he was captured he was turned over to the Iraqi military for 2 days, and he came back and he said that he had been hit in the stomach and they spit his lip, and because of that these three Navy SEALs are being prosecuted. They are being prosecuted in a court martial.

What kind of a message does that send to our Navy SEALs, to the people in the field who are capturing and fighting these al Qaeda and Taliban terrorists? What would that message does send? We are trying to send the same kind of message to the CIA operatives who are out there trying to get information that will protect this country and protect the American people around the world against these people who want to destroy us and want to destroy our way of life.

It really bothers me, and I do appreciate the House approving this amendment that I have introduced. Obviously it’s something that is very important. But, in addition to that, I don’t believe we ought to be sending a message to the CIA or the Navy SEALs or our Special Forces men and women in the field that we are not going to back them up when they go out and get a terrorist or extract information from them that is vital in securing the safety of the people of this country.

One of the al Qaeda terrorists they are going to bring to New York. The main al Qaeda terrorist that was involved in Stork was he was waterboarded about 80 times, and he wouldn’t give up information, he finally did. He said that there was an attempt going to be made to fly a plane into a building in Los Angeles. Had he not choked up and given that information, we might have lost another 2,000 or 3,000 people like we did on 9/11.

It just seems silly to me and crazy to me that we are not going to allow our intelligence-gathering operatives to do their job. We ought to be supporting them completely day and night in anything they do to protect this Nation. (From the National Review Online, Feb. 25, 2010)

While You Are Distacted By The Summit, Obama Democrats Are Targeting The CIA

(By Andy McCarthy)

The Obama Democrats have outdone themselves. There is a world of difference between the tactic as administered by the CIA and the types of water-torture methods that have been used through history. The waterboarding method the CIA involved neither severe pain nor prolonged mental harm. But it was highly unpleasant and led especially hard cases like Khalid Sheikh Mohammed (i.e., well-trained, committed, America-hating terrorists) to give us information that saved American lives. The method was used sparingly—only on three individuals, and not in the last seven years. The American people broadly support the availability of this non-torture tactic in a dire emergency. Yet Democrats not only want to make it unlawful to subject to 15 years’ imprisonment any interrogator who uses it.

What’s more, the proposal is directed at any officer or employee of the intelligence community conducting a “covered interrogation.” The definition of “covered interrogation" is sweeping—including any interrogation done outside the U.S., in the course of a person's official duties on behalf of the government. Thus, if the CIA used waterboarding in training its officers or military officers outside the U.S., this would theoretically be indictable conduct under the statute.

Waterboarding is not all. The Democrats' bill would prohibit—with a penalty of 15 years' imprisonment—the following tactics, among others:

— "Exploiting the phobias of the individual"
— Stress positions and the threatened use of force to maintain stress positions — "Depriving the individual of necessary food, water, sleep, or medical care"
— Fed nudity
— Using military working dogs (i.e., any use of them—not having them attack or menace the individual); just the mere presence of the dog if it might unnerve the detainee and, of course, "exploit his phobias"
— Coercing the individual to blaspheme or vociferate his religious beliefs (I wonder if Democrats understand the breadth of seemingly innocuous matters that jihadists take for violated of their religious beliefs)
— "Excessive" force—"torture" or "cramped confinement (excessive and cramped are not defined) — "Isolated detention"
— "Placing hoods or sacks over the head of the individual"

Naturally all of these tactics are interspersed with such acts as forcing the performance of sexual acts, beatings, electric shock, burns, inducing hypothermia or heat injury—as if all these acts were functionally equivalent.

In true Alinskyite fashion, Democrats begin this attack on the CIA by saluting "the men and women who serve honorably as intelligence personnel and as members of our nation's Armed Forces" who "deserve the full support of the United States Congress." Then, Democrats self-righteously tell us that Congress "shows true support" by providing "clear legislation relating to standards for interrogation techniques." I'm sure the intelligence community will be duly grateful.

Democrats also offer "findings" that the tactics they purport to prohibit cause terrorism by fueling recruitment (we are never supposed to discuss the Islamist ideology that actually causes terrorist recruitment, only the techniques the US does not contain the pretexts for those spurred by that ideology). These "findings" repeat the canards that these techniques don't work; that they place our captors in greater danger (this is our forces captured by terrorists will be abused and probably killed no matter what we do, while our enemies captured in a conventional war will be bound to adhere to their Geneva Convention commitments—and will have the incentive to do so because they will want us to do the same); and that "their use reverses our identity and values as a nation.

Unmentioned by the Obama Democrats is that officers of the executive branch have a solemn moral duty to honor their commitment to protect the American people from attack by America's enemies. If there are no non-torture techniques, can we get a tip from Sheikh Mohammed to give us information that saves American lives, how is the use of them inconsistent with our values?

Here, the Obama Democrats are saying they would prefer to see tens of thousands of Americans die than to see a KSM subjected to sleep-deprivation or to have his "phobias exploited" without this reflecting the values of most Americans.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I rise to claim time in opposition to the Burton amendment, even though I am not opposed to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Without objection, the gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chair, I want to tell the gentleman I appreciate him wanting to honor the personnel of the Central Intelligence Agency. As I have said many times on the floor, I have had the privilege of visiting with members of the CIA and members of their families, members of the CIA throughout the world under probably the most difficult of circumstances. I understand the hardships that they face.

Most recently, I was with family members and survivors of the Khost bombing, which illustrates the danger they put themselves in willingly to protect our country. I would also remind the gentleman that I should not mix and compare apples to oranges. There is a big difference between a training exercise that simulates waterboarding and waterboarding an individual for 183 times. That's a huge difference.

The other thing I would point out is that when the last administration decided to take us down that road, that enhanced interrogation techniques would be authorized and approved. There has been a great amount of discussion about the legal authorization of these techniques, considered torture by most anybody's standards. I would also remind us that the CIA did not have any expertise in waterboarding. They had to actually go out and contract DOD personnel to be able to acquire that technique. It puts them in a tough situation.

I will tell you what I hear from the men and women of the Central Intelligence Agency. They understand the difference between politics and bad policy. They understand the difference between doing the kinds of things that they are expected to do to keep our country safe and responding to the kind of political spin that, unfortunately, we hear about their work.

But, the one thing that comes across when I hear from them is that they appreciate the support that they receive from the Congress. They appreciate the fact that regardless of what side of the aisle we're on, we respect the work that they do.

We, despite all of the arguments that are proffered here in this great Chamber, in the final analysis they know that they have a job to do. They know that they have a duty to perform. They know that they are committed professionals and that they expect and deserve the support of every member of this Chamber. That's why I appreciate the gentleman's sponsoring this amendment.

The way I think we ought to accept it. I accept it. I think we ought to leave it at that and leave the politics and leave the rhetoric and remind our-selves that the message we need to send them is that we support their work. The message we should send them is that we honor them for their service to this great country.

The message that we deliver to the families of those victims of the Khost bombing is that we will support them. We will have our differences politically, we will articulate those differences, but we will never stop supporting the great work that the men and women of the Central Intelligence Agency do for all of us.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlemen from Indiana (Mr. BURTON).

The amendment was agreed to.

Amendment No. 9 offered by Mr. HOLT.

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 9 printed in House Report 111-419.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Chair, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 9 offered by Mr. HOLT:
At the end of subtitle A of title V, add the following new section:

SEC. 505. REVIEW OF INTELLIGENCE TO DETERMINE IF FOREIGN CONNECTION TO ANTHRAX ATTACKS EXISTS.

(a) REVIEW.—The Inspector General of the Intelligence Community shall conduct a review of all available intelligence including raw and unfinished intelligence to determine if there is any credible evidence of a connection between a foreign entity and the attacks on the United States in 2001 involving anthrax.

(b) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Inspector General shall submit to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Committee on Homeland Security, and the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representa-tives and the Select Committee on Intel-ligence, the Committee on Homeland Secu-rity and Governmental Affairs, and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate a report containing the review conducted under subsection (a).

(2) FORM.—The report under paragraph (1) shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT), and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Chair, as you may know, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced last week that it is formally closing its investigation into the 2001 anthrax attacks, a major bioterrorist attack on America. Those attacks are believed to have originated from a postbox in New Jersey, disrupting the lives and livelihoods of many of my constituents and yours.

We already know that the FBI too quickly jumped to conclusions about the nature and the profile of the culprit or culprits and quickly zeroed in on one individual who later received a multimillion dollar settlement and apology for mistaken accusations.

Subsequently, the investigators focused on another individual, who then killed himself. Although the FBI never produced any physical evidence tying that individual specifically to the attacks, the investigation was closed.

Indeed, this investigation was botched at multiple points, which is why reexaminining it is so important. Given that the samples of the strain of anthrax used in the attacks may have supplied to foreign laboratories, we think it’s prudent to have the Inspector General of the intelligence community examine whether or not evidence of a potential foreign connection to the attacks was overlooked, ignored, or simply not passed along to the FBI.

Mr. BARTLETT and I are offering an amendment that would require the Inspector General to examine whether or not evidence of a potential foreign connection to the attacks was overlooked, ignored, or simply not passed along. The report would be unclassified with a classified annex and would go to Intelligence, Foreign Affairs, Judiciary and Homeland Security Committees.

Ivins sent the deadly letters that killed 5 and sickened 17 in 2001. ‘Ivins’ death came about a month after the FBI and Department of Defense paid an out-of-court settlement valued at $5.85 million to scientist Steven Hatfill, who had long been the key suspect in the case. Hatfill had sued the Justice Department, which had labeled him ‘a person of interest.’ He alleged that the Federal Government went on a smear campaign and leaked information that was damaging to his reputation.

Apparently they agreed they had. They paid him $5.85 million. They subsequently agreed, conceded that he was not involved in the case. Gary Andrews, another former chief of the bacteriology lab in Frederick, said it wouldn’t have been unusual for Ivins to work odd hours because he was working with animals, and it was more convenient to do it then. He says that ‘Bruce didn’t have the skill to make spore preps of that concentration. He never ever could make a spore prep like the ones found in the letters.’

‘Ivins’ death came about a month after the FBI said early on that he could not have done it because the spores were weaponized, and he had no ability to do that. More recently, they have been saying something a bit different than that.

I have here some quotes that I think will be relevant here. Jeffrey Adamovicz, the former chief of bacteriology—‘former’ is important here, because they would not let the current scientist at Fort Detrick talk to me. He just left. He is the former chief of bacteriology for the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute for Infectious Diseases in Frederick, Maryland, where Ivins worked. He wrote to The Frederick News-Post expressing serious misgivings about the FBI findings that Ivins was the ‘only suspect’ in the case.

‘The evidence is still very circumstantial and unconvincing as a whole,’ he wrote. ‘I’m curious as to why they closed the case while the National Academy of Science review is still ongoing. Is it because the review is going unfavorable for the FBI?’

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. HOLT. I yield the gentleman an additional 30 seconds.

Mr. BARTLETT. Thank you very much for your lead in this.

This has been devastating to my constituents and the scientists at Fort Detrick. This needs to be brought to a proper close. They did not believe he would have done it; the FBI said earlier on he couldn’t have done it. Thank you very much for leading in this.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Chair, it is beyond question that the FBI jumped to conclusions at the Justice Department, perhaps more than once, and many questions remain. This amendment would address one of those questions. Beyond this amendment, we still need a more complete examination of our government’s response to these attacks, the most serious bioterrorist attack against the United States. This will look at whether there is a foreign connection to those attacks that has been overlooked, ignored, or not pursued.

Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time, asking support for this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 10 OFFERED BY MR. CASTLE

The Acting CHAIR. The amendment is now in order to consider amendment No. 10 printed in House Report 111-419.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chairwoman, I have an amendment in the Clerk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 10 offered by Mr. CASTLE: Insert after section 354 (page 60, after line 15) the following new section:

SEC. 355. REITERATION OF REQUIREMENT TO SUBMIT REPORT ON TERRORISM FINANCING.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President, acting through the Secretary of the Treasury, shall submit to Congress the report required to be submitted under section 6303(a) of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 (Public Law 108-145; 118 Stat. 1735).

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This amendment, offered with Mr. LYNCH, requires the President, through the Secretary of the Treasury, to submit to Congress a comprehensive report on terrorism financing that was first mandated by the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004, section 6303 of this 2004 law required the President to submit to Congress a comprehensive report evaluating and making recommendations on the current state of U.S. efforts to fight terror financing. The important report was due in September 2005, but it has never been completed.

Multiple U.S. Government departments and agencies are involved in the effort to combat terrorist financing, including the Treasury, Justice Department, Homeland Security, State Department, Defense Department, FBI and the CIA. These various entities are to be commended for their efforts to track and disrupt complex terrorist financing schemes since 9/11. Still, with so many government entities involved in combating terrorist financing, it is critical that we heed the lessons of the past and undertake a thorough assessment of our progress.

The amendment I am offering today with Congressman LYNCH reiterates Congress’ requirement that the President undertake a thorough evaluation of our efforts to disrupt terrorist financing, including the ability to coordinate our intelligence and keep pace with evolving trends.

The bottom line is that terrorists need money to operate, and we need to be fully prepared and adaptable to combating their ability to access these funds. There is no room for delay in this endeavor, especially since top U.S. intelligence officials indicate a possible likelihood of another attempted terrorist attack on the United States at some time in the relatively near future.

Thank you for the opportunity to discuss my amendment. I look forward to working with the members of the committee on these important matters.

Mr. LYNCH. Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CASTLE. Madam Chair, I actually rise to support my colleague's amendment.

As the co-chairman of the Task Force on Terrorist Financing and Pro-liferation, I, too, am well aware that having an effective strategy on targeting the sources of terrorists in financing their operations is a very important part of our strategy. The amendment offered by my friend, Mr. CASTLE of Delaware, simply restates the basic requirement that the President, through the Treasury Department, report to Congress on the current status of U.S. efforts to combat terrorism financing. This reporting requirement is not new; in fact, it was mandated in the Intelligence Reform and Terrorist Prevention Act of 2004. A report was due out in 2005, but here today it has yet to be submitted.

I've had an opportunity, as co-chair of the task force, to spend a lot of time with our Treasury employees, very brave and courageous Treasury and State Department employees, in Afghanistan and Pakistan and Jordan and the Maghreb, North Africa; and they're doing wonderful and courageous work. However, that much being said, Congress still retains its oversight responsibility; and without this amendment, we have that assurance that the Administration is going to be very, very careful and walk on eggs when they are trying to get information from a terrorist, al Qaeda or whatever. We need to be giving them all the support that we can.

AMENDMENT NO. 12 OFFERED BY MR. SCHAUER

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 12 printed in House Report 111-419.

Mr. SCHAUER. Madam Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 12 offered by Mr. SCHAUER:

Insert after section 354 the following new section:

SEC. 355. REPORT ON ATTEMPT TO DETONATE EXPLOSIVE DEVICE ON NORTHWEST AIRLINES FLIGHT 253.

Such report shall describe any failures to share or analyze intelligence or other information within or between elements of the United States Government and the measures that the intelligence community has taken or will take to prevent such failures, including—

(1) a description of the roles and responsibilities of the counterterrorism analytic components of the intelligence community in synchronizing, correlating, and analyzing all sources of intelligence related to terrorism;

(2) an assessment of the technological capabilities of the intelligence community to assess terrorist threats, including—

(A) a list of all databases used by counterterrorism analysts to correlate and analyze terrorist threat information;

(B) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to integrate all relevant terrorist databases and allow for cross-database searches; and

(C) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to correlate biographic information with terrorism-related intelligence;

(3) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to train analysts on watchlisting processes and procedures;

(4) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to train analysts on watchlisting processes and procedures;

(5) a description of the intelligence community's activities to prevent terrorist threats, including—

(A) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to help prevent terrorist threats, including—

(B) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to prevent terrorist threats, including—

(C) a description of the steps taken by the intelligence community to prevent terrorist threats, including—

(6) a description of the processes and procedures by which the intelligence community prioritizes terrorism threat leads and the standards used to prioritize such leads;

(7) a description of the steps taken to enhance record information on possible terrorists in the Terrorist Identities Datamart Environment;

(8) an assessment of how to meet the challenge associated with obtaining and exploiting the ever-increasing volume of information available to the intelligence community; and

(9) a description of the steps the intelligence community has taken or will take to respond to any findings and recommendations of the congressional intelligence committees, with respect to such failures, that have been transmitted to the Director of National Intelligence.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 1105, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SCHAUER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. SCHAUER. Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

As a member of the Aviation Subcommittee of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, I believe it is critical for the Director of National Intelligence to submit to Congress a report on the attempted bombing of Northwest Flight 253.

The failed Christmas day attack over Detroit reinforces the notion that the threat of al-Qaeda is real and that our intelligence community, whether under a Democratic or Republican administration, must improve the way it protects the United States against terrorist attacks.

People in Michigan want answers. My amendment says, not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of the act, the Director of National Intelligence shall submit to Congress a report on the attempt to detonate an explosive device aboard Northwest Airlines Flight No. 253 on December 25, 2009.

This amendment will require the Director of National Intelligence to report to Congress information about any failures to share or to analyze intelligence within or between elements of the Federal Government related to this failed terrorist attack.

I believe it is imperative that the Director of National Intelligence also must submit a description of the measures that the intelligence community has taken or will take to prevent such failures from occurring again. This would include information on how the government intends to improve the interoperability of terrorist screening databases and to improve airline watch listing procedures. These tools are critical in preventing terrorists from getting an opportunity to kill innocent civilians.

I believe it is imperative that Congress be fully informed so that it may conduct rigorous oversight on this important national security concern.

I appreciate President Obama's candor and openness when speaking to the American people about the improvements needed to our intelligence community, and I applaud the President for taking swift action in ordering a thorough review of the Incident. President Obama has stated his willingness to work with Congress to solve this problem. This amendment will help ensure that Congress will be fully briefed on the results of that review. I urge the full support of this amendment.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I want to say I appreciate the amendment and the gentleman's interest.

This amendment would require the Director of the DNI to submit to the Intelligence Committees a report on the attempted bombing of Northwest Airlines Flight No. 253.
This report would provide an assessment on any failures to share information within or between elements of the Federal Government and the measures that the intelligence community has taken or will take to prevent such failures that may have occurred.

This report also covers issues such as analytic tradecraft, watch listing procedures, technical deficiencies, training database management. Many of the elements of this report mirror portions of the review of the DNI, which they are continuing at this time.

Requiring the DNI to provide this report will allow the Intelligence Committees to conduct rigorous oversight on this important national security concern.

Additionally, this amendment requires the DNI to submit responses to any findings or recommendations made by the Intelligence Committees.

With that, Madam Chair, I fully support this amendment.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I rise to claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 1 minute 20 seconds to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SCHAUER).

Mr. SCHAUER. Madam Chair, how much time remains?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SCHAUER) has 1 minute 20 seconds.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I will not oppose the amendment. Although, I do believe, and I would hope that my colleague from Michigan would agree that, perhaps, when we are talking about the scope of this amendment, it is broader than what is just written here.

One of the things that we are very, very concerned about which, I believe, should be included in this—because, like you, I believe, if the intelligence community had worked properly, perhaps we could have stopped this attack; but this is not just a matter of connecting databases and those types of things. It is also about missing clues that we had that were highlighted before Christmas Day.

What am I talking about?

We have known for quite some time that Awlaki was a concern. We saw kind of a mirror image of what happened on Christmas Day a couple of months earlier at Fort Hood, where 14 Americans were killed and where 14 Americans died in a tragic terrorist attack, linked to Awlaki, linked to al Qaeda on the Arabian Peninsula.

I had an amendment that went along those lines, but it was not accepted by the majority, and I think it may well have fallen within the scope of the amendment of yours, Mr. SCHAUER, which you are offering, which says:

If we had had these insights into al Qaeda on the Arabian Peninsula, if we had had these insights into Awlaki’s involvement with Major Hasan, if we had had these insights into the communications, the emails, between Hasan and Awlaki, what did we do between November 5 and Christmas Day to target Awlaki, to target al Qaeda on the Arabian Peninsula and to use this information that these individuals and this group might be targeting the U.S. and whether we missed opportunities in those 2 months to identify the threat and respond to it?

Are those the kind of questions that you might see which could also be addressed in this or are these outside of the scope of what you are looking for?

I yield to my colleague from Michigan.

Mr. SCHAUER. Thank you, Mr. HOEKSTRA, and thank you for your leadership on the Intelligence Committee.

Absolutely, my amendment deals directly with having the Director of National Intelligence describe failures and to share or analyze intelligence or other information within or between elements of the United States Government. So I think it is clearly my intent that the dots be connected.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Claiming my time, Madam Chair. I thank my colleague for that clarification because I think that is probably the bigger untold story here of how much and how many insights we might have had into al Qaeda on the Arabian Peninsula and how we failed to act on that intelligence and how we failed, as we’ve now been saying for a long period of time, to connect those dots, to be able to put in preventative measures and to actually have stopped Awlaki and al Qaeda on the Arabian Peninsula from carrying out this attack on Detroit and on the State of Michigan.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCHAUER. Madam Chair, how much time remains?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SCHAUER) has 1 minute 20 seconds remaining, and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA) has 1 minute 20 seconds remaining.

Mr. SCHAUER. I yield 1 minute 20 seconds to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. PETERS).

Mr. PETERS. Madam Chair, I rise today in support of the Schauer amendment to the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010.

Like many Americans, my Christmas Day spent with family was interrupted by the news of the attempted terrorist attack on Northwest Flight No. 253 to Detroit.

As a lifelong Michigan resident whose friends, family, and constituents regularly fly in and out of Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport, the Christmas Day attack was especially chilling. While it was certainly fortunate that no lives were lost in the Christmas Day attack, the attack exposed serious and unacceptable shortcomings in our ability to gather intelligence and to connect the dots.

I believe that protecting the American people and Congress’ number one priority and responsibility. The Christmas Day incident showed us that security officials need to work more closely with their counterparts overseas and within the United States intelligence community to ensure tougher and more coordinated screening.

I appreciate my friend Congressman SCHAUER’s leadership on this important issue, and I am proud to support the Schauer amendment because it will help ensure that we learn as much as possible about the failures that allowed the events of Christmas Day 2009 to transpire.

I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Chair, I will not oppose the amendment. As a matter of fact, I will support the amendment in its larger context, recognizing that this report by the DNI has to inform our decision to Fort Hood, the Fort Hood attack, and then the time from Fort Hood until Christmas Day. That is the area that we have been trying to get information on from the intelligence community over the last 3 or 4 months, and it has been the area that they have been most reluctant to provide us information on.

As a matter of fact, when I was in Yemen on New Year’s Day, less than 2 months ago, I was specifically prohibited from getting information exactly those kinds of questions as to what did the intelligence community know about Awlaki, about al Qaeda on the Arabian Peninsula. The individuals both in the intel community and with the ambassador were specifically instructed not to share that information, which tells me that there is some information there, and for some reason, they have not wanted to share that information with us.

With the understanding that that type of information will be shared with Congress in this report, also then recognizing that this may end up being a classified report which you may not have access to unless the committee agrees to provide you access to it. I support the amendment. I look forward to the DNI’s completing this report and to his submitting it to the committee.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SCHAUER. I thank Mr. HOEKSTRA for his support, and I urge Members to support this amendment.

Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SCHAUER).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. SCHAUER. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan will be postponed.

Mr. REYES. Madam Chair, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

changes that undermine their effectiveness. Instead of working with the administration and listening to national security experts, the House majority is only offering another short-term extension.

The majority may think that by pushing the reauthorization until after the election, they will then be able to pursue legislation to water down these provisions a year from now. But if so, they are playing with fire and innocent Americans are the ones who will get burned.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased now to yield such time as he may consume to the chairman of the Intelligence Committee, Mr. SYLVESTRE REYES, who has served on this committee for 10 years.

Mr. REYES. I thank the chairman for his work on this very important and vital issue and also for the opportunity to speak on an issue that is of such great importance to our country and to our country’s national security. It is our reason that we reauthorize the expiring PATRIOT Act and the provisions that the brave men and women of the intelligence community continue to utilize and to have these tools that they need to keep us all safe.

This 1-year extension will provide Congress the opportunity to examine important aspects of the PATRIOT Act and to make substantive changes that strike the right balance between protecting the rights of Americans and protecting our national security.

Recently, I introduced H.R. 3969, the Counterterrorism Authorities Improvements Act of 2009. This bill makes improvements to the PATRIOT Act which will strengthen the tools used to combat terrorism and to enhance at the same time the privacy and the rights of Americans.

Additionally, both the House and the Senate Judiciary Committees have passed PATRIOT Act reauthorization bills that would make important improvements to the law that will increase oversight while at the same time preserving critical intelligence authorities.

Some of the more important changes proposed by the House and the Senate include: one, modifying the FISA standard for obtaining business records to ensure that the government is required to make a connection to terrorism; two, requiring a higher standard to obtain library or bookseller records; three, increasing public reporting on the use of national security letters and FISA, including their impact on the privacy of Americans, a right we cherish; and, finally, number four, requiring the Inspector General of the Department of Justice to conduct regular audits of the use of these authorities. I am confident that a 1-year extension will provide Congress with the right time to make these important changes.

As always, Mr. Chairman, I look forward to working with you, especially in the coming year as we look at ways to make sure that we draw that balance between giving the men and women that keep us safe the ability to utilize essential and vital tools and also at the same time ensuring that the rights and the privacy of all Americans are protected.

With that, I thank you for yielding.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the chairman emeritus of the Judiciary Committee, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER).

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation to extend three provisions of the USA PATRIOT Act that are scheduled to expire on Sunday.

The attacks of September 11, 2001, tragically affirmed the urgency of updating our laws to address the clear and present danger presented by international terrorism. Although the memories of this day may have faded in the minds of some Americans, including some of my colleagues, the danger we face from terrorists and terrorist organizations has not faded. We continue to face an imminent danger, made clear by the attempted Christmas Day attack.

The three provisions scheduled to expire are, first, section 206, the roving wiretap provisions of the PATRIOT Act; second, section 215, the business records provision of the PATRIOT Act; and, third, section 6001, the ‘lone wolf’ provision of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act.

Of particular importance is the lone wolf provision, which closes the gap in the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act that, if allowed to expire, could allow an individual terrorist to slip through the cracks and endanger thousands of innocent lives. When FISA was originally enacted in the 1970s, terrorists were believed to be members of an identifiable group. That’s not the case today, and we need to respond accordingly.

Many modern-day terrorists may subscribe to a movement or certain beliefs but do not belong to or identify themselves with a specific terrorist group. Allowing the lone wolf provision to expire could impede our ability to gather intelligence about perhaps the most dangerous terrorists operating today. Regarding the lone wolf provision, I am pleased to note that ‘while we have not used it with regard to an indictment, it continues to be available for that individual whom we lack evidence to put with a particular terrorist group but does present a threat as an international terrorist.’

The close call we had on Christmas Day demonstrates the need for tough laws like the PATRIOT Act. Terrorist organizations appear to be stepping up their efforts against us, and we cannot let this happen. Our national security is at stake and the lives of thousands of innocent people, both Americans and visitors to our country. Our law enforcement officials must be provided with the needed tools to keep us safe, and we in Congress cannot drop the ball on our national security. We must reauthorize these provisions now.

For too long opponents of the PATRIOT Act have transformed it into a grossly distorted caricature that bears no resemblance whatsoever to the legislation itself. The PATRIOT Act has been misused by some as a springboard to launch limitless allegations that are not only unsubstantiated but are also false and irresponsible.

The fact remains that the USA PATRIOT Act is vital to maintaining America’s safety. The White House and Attorney General have called for extension of the three expiring provisions of the PATRIOT Act, and I commend the administration for recognizing the value of these important national security tools and for rightly urging the Congress to reauthorize each of them.

This is your administration, Mr. Speaker and majority Democrats, not our administration, and they have recognized the reason for that.

I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of reauthorizing these provisions before they expire.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield as much time as he may consume to the chair of the Constitution Subcommittee on the House Judiciary, the gentleman from New York, JERRY NADLER.

Mr. NADLER of New York. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this motion to concur in the Senate amendment, which would extend for a period of 1 year the sunset of three provisions of the USA PATRIOT Act. I very much regret that we have to be here today in this situation and that I have to oppose this legislation. I understand we are facing a deadline this weekend, but I also believe that we have an obligation to do more than punt.

That is effectively what we are doing today. We are punting this question to the next Congress.

Both the House and the Senate have worked hard to examine not just these three provisions, but the entire PATRIOT Act, and to craft legislation that would improve its effectiveness, and that would better protect the civil liberties of all Americans. That process is not allowed to continue. Today, with this vote, that process effectively ends.

The PATRIOT Act was passed at a time of panic, and in an extremely rushed manner. Many of its provisions were not well thought out, which is why Congress decided that certain parts of the PATRIOT Act should be enacted on a temporary basis so that we could revisit them after we had time to see how they worked.

The original passage of the bill in 2001 included a gentleman’s agreement at the last minute in a way that should have stood as an embarrassment to the House. The Judiciary Committee back then reported the bill unanimously, with support from the most conservative to the most liberal members. We did business the way the American people have always said they wanted us to do business, through negotiation and compromise in open committee hearings. That was the high point. The low point came in the dead of night. Then-Attorney General Ashcroft objected to the bill, and so with the cooperation of the then-Republican leadership that bill was junked, to all the bill that came to the floor was an entirely new bill written behind closed doors and not seen until shortly before we voted on it on the floor.

The bill that recently passed the Judiciary Committee would have extended the expiring provisions, but would have improved them in response to the problems that experience has brought to light. With respect to roving wiretaps, for example, the committee extended the provision until 2013, in order to clarify congressional intent that the government must describe its roving target with a sufficient degree of particularity to allow a judge to be able to distinguish the target from other potential users of places of public accommodation.

Our bill would have allowed the “lone wolf” provision of FISA to sunset. This provision allows the issuance of a FISA warrant against individuals with no connection to a foreign power or other foreign entity or to a terrorist group. That is not the purpose of FISA, and in fact Todd Hinnen, Deputy Assistant Attorney General for the Justice Department’s National Security Division, testified in the hearing before my subcommittee that this provision has never been used in the 8 years in which it has been enforced. There is no reason why a so-called “lone wolf,” concededly unconnected, not connected to a foreign power, not connected, concededly, to a terrorist group—otherwise he wouldn’t be a lone wolf—there is no reason why such a person could not be subject to a normal Title III wiretap warrant. That is why the committee voted to let this provision sunset.

We also added some procedural protections to section 215 orders which allow the government to seize all sorts of information concerning what an individual has been reading without a warrant. The bill would have required the Executive Branch to report to Congress on whether the procedures for sensitive collections could be further modified so as to enhance civil liberties protections without undermining national security objectives. This provision was also extended to the end of 2013 in the legislation reported by the Judiciary Committee.

My bill controlling the use of the much-abused National Security Letters was included in this bill as well. These letters, issued with no court oversight, have been used to obtain all sorts of material, and have been joined with gag orders on the recipients, gag orders that were recently struck down as unconstitutional by the courts. The Justice Department’s Office of Inspector General has issued some damning reports on the misuse of these letters, and the section is in dire need of reform. These reforms, which were a part of the bill reported by the Judiciary Committee, would have allowed legislative action extending these provisions of the PATRIOT Act.

I regret that we are not going to continue this process of improving the PATRIOT Act. I regret we do not have before us an extension designed to give us more time to finish this work in the balance of this Congress. But we are punting to the next Congress, which for all practical purposes means that we are extending the PATRIOT Act unchanged for the indefinite future. I believe that our Nation and our liberties will suffer as a result of this. I hope that this vote today, contrary to what I expect, will not stop my colleagues from continuing to support it, re-examining it, weeding out surveillance laws, and specifically continuing to examine and improve the PATRIOT Act in a timely manner.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California, a senior member of both the Judiciary Committee and the Homeland Security Committee.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, it is probably the highest honor of my life to serve in this House, and as a part of that to serve on the Judiciary Committee. I have great respect for the members of that committee and the work that we do. But in some ways, I would echo the comments of the gentleman from New York, although I would not agree with his conclusions, of the disappointment that this primary obligation of the Judiciary Committee, that is to deal with intelligence-gathering laws, and specifically continuing to examine and improve the PATRIOT Act in a timely manner.

I am the author of the sunset provisions from the 2005 extension of the PATRIOT Act. I put those sunset provisions in, or I offered them and got support from Members on both sides of the aisle precisely because I understood there was some controversy about those three, and that there was a need for those to take a serious look at it.

Unfortunately, while we have established other priorities in this Congress, in this House, it does not appear that the PATRIOT Act has been one of them. Because if it were otherwise, we would be spending hours, if not days, on this floor talking about the implications of the PATRIOT Act. And in the context of that debate, I am absolutely assured that the vast majority of this House would support the continuation of these provisions as is the conclusion of this administration.

These three provisions provide tools for our intelligence community to not only connect the dots, but gather the dots. There seems to be a misunderstanding at times that if we were to take some of these provisions and establish a higher degree of proof, or a higher degree of suspicion that somehow would make these tools more problematic. That I believe is a misunderstanding of some of these tools. These tools allow us to start the search. You don’t know if someone is involved with a terrorist group under some circumstances.

There was someone like Abdulmutallab, having his father come to the embassy and just report his suspicions about his son would not be sufficient for us to believe that he was necessarily allied with some terrorist group. In fact, you would believe that by the terms of the lone wolf provision, he would be right squarely in the middle of that provision. And yet what did our committee do? Our committee decided that because it had not been used before, we wouldn’t extend it. Well, if we had this as a priority, bring this bill to the floor, look at it and say if it is important enough for us to have these tools against al Qaeda and similarly situated terrorist groups and individuals, then maybe we ought to extend it for more than a year. Does anybody on this floor, does anybody within the reach of my voice believe that al Qaeda is going to stop 1 year from the 28th of this month?

And so while I believe that we did take a look at these three provisions in our committee, I was extremely disappointed by the resolution of that report and we couldn’t, if we had this as a priority, bring this bill to the floor, look at it and say if it is important enough for us to have these tools against al Qaeda and similarly situated terrorist groups and individuals, then maybe we ought to extend it for more than a year. Does anybody on this floor, does anybody within the reach of my voice believe that al Qaeda is going to stop 1 year from the 28th of this month?

We have a new 72-hour rule. We have been talking about a 72-hour rule meaning we should have bills on the floor for 72 hours. Here we have the fact that we wait until we are within 72 hours of the expiration of key parts of the law which allow us to protect ourselves against terrorists before we act. The American people must be scratching their heads and saying, This is the leadership we look for? These are the people who take an oath to the Constitution and to give us the ability to defend ourselves against terrorists before we act. Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman an additional 2 minutes.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. I thank the gentleman for the additional time.

So we are individual parts of a law that has served us well. Ironic it is that on the very day that our committee considered the lone wolf provision and decided because it had not been used before we should withdraw it, we had the terrible I-35 attack at Fort Hood. Within hours of us rejecting the notion that we needed a domestic lone wolf, now, of course the PATRIOT Act does not apply to someone who is an American citizen. But my point is that had we had such an attack before that attack took place, doesn’t it seem a little nonsensical to say because it hadn’t happened before we ought not to have some tools at our disposal which would help prevent it?

Let me just underscore again, these provisions in the law allow our intelligence community to collect the dots. The 9/11 Commission criticized our government for a failure to connect the dots. We first have to have the dots. You need to first have the information. And that is what these tools allow us to provide to our intelligence community so that they can analyze those things.

So Mr. Speaker, I reluctantly support this legislation because it is a mere 1-year extension. It deprives us of the debate that should be front and center of this representative body. If we truly believe our first obligation is to protect the people we represent, we must provide for the common defense. The PATRIOT Act does this. These provisions do this. We should act on this with full knowledge, full debate, and full confidence in our intelligence community that it will move forward and protect the American people.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield 4 minutes to an esteemed senior member of the Judiciary Committee, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

Mr. COBLE. I thank my friend from Texas, and thank him for elevating me to the esteemed status. I am not sure I deserve that.

Mr. Speaker, I don’t want to be a prophet of gloom and doom, but there are many people in this world who every night retire, prior to sleeping, with one thought in mind, and that one thought is destroy America. The PATRIOT Act has served as a useful impediment to thwart that effort of destruction, and it must not be allowed to expire.

The majority has had over a year to react to the threat of expiring provisions, but we failed to do so. In 2005, Mr. Speaker, I chaired the Crime Subcommittee of Judiciary, and we oversaw nine hearings to thoroughly examine all of the intelligence-gathering provisions of the PATRIOT Act. The Republican-led Judiciary Committee completed these and additional full committee hearings, a full committee markup, and floor consideration to reauthorize nearly one dozen provisions, all prior to the August recess.

The current majority, Mr. Speaker, has conducted additional subcommittee hearing, a markup, but still hasn’t brought a commonsense bill to the full House floor.

Again, I don’t want to promote gloom and doom, but time could be running out on us because one of these days, one of these people who retire with that, before they fall asleep with the one desire to destroy America, they may result in success. We need the impediment to stand thoroughly against this effort, and that impediment, among others, is the PATRIOT Act.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased now to yield to SHEILA JACKSON LEE, a senior member on the Judiciary Committee, who will be our closing speaker, and I will yield to her as much time as she requires.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, sometimes we come to the floor, Mr. Speaker, but we don’t understand, really, the impetus and the importance of the work that is being done here.

To my colleagues, what we are doing is securing the American people. We know that right now there is a major debate that is occurring with leadership dealing with health reform. We will also be addressing the question of jobs. But let it be very clear, nothing is going to stop us from addressing the question of national security.

Chairman CONyers has been working on the reform and the refitting, if you will, of the PATRIOT Act to make sure that it provides more security for the American people.

I just came from a hearing on Homeland Security of which I am a member, with the Secretary of Homeland Security, asking hard questions about the reinforcement of security, the provisions of support for personnel at the Department of Homeland Security, and the ability to give more resources so that the traveling public can be secure.

In this instance, we are acting expeditiously and wisely, because what is now occurring is that we are providing for the extension of the PATRIOT Act so we can, in fact, engage the other body and work constructively, one, to, with no doubt, commit ourselves, as the President has done, in committing to use every instrument of national power to fight terrorism, including intelligence and military operations, as well as the criminal justice system. That’s the Judiciary Committee.

There’s never been a doubt about the commitment of the Obama administration or the Judiciary Committee, the chairman and our colleagues in the other body. But it is important for us to handle our business and to do our duty, and that is to look with a fine-toothed comb at the PATRIOT Act to ensure that it does not violate the rights of Americans. No matter what your political persuasion, you have a sense of understanding of the Constitution. You understand due process. You understand unreasonable search and seizure. And so it is our obligation to do so.

And so I listened to the debate on the Intelligence bill. I was struck by the efforts that have been made to shore up any of the missing links to provide us a pathway away from the Fort Hood incident or the Christmas Day bombing. And one of the things I want to emphasize is the importance for horizontal integration: Homeland Security, Department of Justice, Intelligence, the agencies dealing with national security as we attempted to do after 9/11. We must ramp up the coordination of information. There must be not only on enhanced coordination, which is the premise of the PATRIOT Act, to get information and to ensure the obligation to ensure your civil liberties; but we must also be somewhat unique and distinct on how we assess who might be a threat.

I have constantly asked that we consider this thing called human assessment and behavior. A lot of people will call for profiling and that that’s the way to do it. And to my colleagues, that you can profile from this morning until the end of time, and you will miss someone who doesn’t fit the caricature, if you will, of who you might think happens to be a terrorist. Timothy McVeigh didn’t fit that profile.

And so it is important for them to be developed human intelligence and human behavior assessment. That should have been an appropriate approach to the Cold War. That’s not profiling; it’s assessing the behavior of interacting on the Internet, of speaking to the imam in Yemen, very conspicuous behavior that was assessed in Washington before he was transferred to Fort Hood, behavior that was not transmitted, if you will, in the right way.

And then we can look at the Christmas Day bomber, which we hope will never happen again. We had the shoe bomber. And so behavior should send us a red flag.

When we look at the premise of the PATRIOT Act, it is gathering information. And I know my colleagues would not want us to rush to judgment. And so what we have in place now is the opportunity for Americans to be protected, to use this cross-signal of information.

Might I also mention the assessment of the actions of the Department of Justice. There’s not been one moment when I think the decision that has jeopardized the American people. Yes, there’s been a decision that initially was accepted by local officials, as we understand it, to try individuals in a particular area.
There were provisions, obviously, to be made for that. That decision alone and whatever happens on the decision after about where that trial will be held has nothing to do with undermining America’s security. We have Mirandized people before, and they have given us information and we’ve garnered that information to use for our security. We have tried people in the civilian courts under our legal system, and we have found them guilty of what they have done, and we’ve protected the American people.

So I am concerned that there is some labeling going on, that there is not the convergence of resources in the Obama administration, there’s not the work on behalf of the Judiciary Committee chaired by Chairman Conyers that steadily puts together building blocks to secure the American people.

I hope people will rise to vote for this extension of the PATRIOT Act to allow this Congress, bipartisan, to sit down and do its work. But in the meantime, would we not be irresponsible if we did not come to the floor today to protect the American people, just as we’ve done with an authorization of the Intelligence bill which has never been done for over a large number of years. We are now doing that because we believe in the security of the American people.

I look forward to moving forward on this legislation. I look forward to pressing the intelligence community on human behavior assessment, now, not tomorrow, but today, and I look forward to us going forward on securing the American people with the tools that the Obama administration is working on.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the motion to continue the Senate amendments to H.R. 3961—Extending Expiring Provisions of the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2006. I support this motion to extend expiring amendments though I offered several amendments as we debated this issue in the Judiciary Committee that would have made the existing provisions of the ACT more effective.

H.R. 3961 extends for one year—through February 28, 2011—three antiterrorism provisions which would otherwise expire on February 28, including the “roving wiretap” authority that allows the government to conduct surveillance on suspects who communicate on multiple devices, or repeatedly change their cell phone numbers or carriers; a provision that permits federal law enforcement authorities to seek a court order without setting forth a terrorism investigation such as business records; and the “lone wolf” provision that allows for surveillance of terrorists who are not connected to terrorist groups.

The measure also extends, for one year, a provision that expanded federal law enforcement officials’ ability to use emergency warrants obtained under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) for access to business records to include “any tangible things”—such as library or bookstore records—regardless of the business or individual holding the item, as long as law enforcement officials assert that the records are sought in an effort to obtain foreign intelligence or in a terrorism investigation. An application for access to business records under this provision must provide a “statement of facts” proving that the information sought is “relevant” to the investigation.

A September 2009 letter from the Justice Department reports that the FISA court had received 48 applications involving business records in the previous year and 10 applications in the first half of 2010. The letter noted that 173 of those orders were issued prior to 2006 in combination with FISA pen register orders “to address an anomaly in the statutory language that prevented the acquisition of information normally associated with pen register information.” The 2006 reauthorization of the Patriot Act included language to clarify the law, and the Justice Department says the change made the use of the “business records” provision for such information unnecessary. The remaining business records orders were used to obtain transactional information that did not fall within the scope of other authorities.

The Department called on Congress to reauthorize this provision because there would “continue to be instances in which FBI investigators need to obtain information that does not fall within the scope of national security letter authorities and are operating in an environment that precludes the use of less secure criminal authorities.”

My amendment would have made an improvement to the public’s oversight of the PATRIOT Act by extending the life of the intrusive government surveillance programs for two years rather than four years as proposed. Specifically, my amendment focused on Sections 102 and 102 of the underlying bill. The change to Section 102 would have extended the sunset dates of roving wiretaps and FISA business records to December 31, 2011 rather than 2013. The change to Section 202 provides a sunset date of December 31, 2011 rather than December 31, 2013 for national security letters. The change would have permitted Congress to review these sections in two years rather than four years. In two years, we may find that these tools are in fact unnecessary, or that new tools are required.

Mr. Speaker, the motion also extends, for one year, a provision that allows law enforcement officials to pursue terrorists who use multiple devices, or change cell phone numbers or carriers repeatedly to thwart surveillance efforts under FISA. The law permits authorities to obtain multipoint or “roving” wiretaps so that officials do not have to file multiple applications to continue their investigations.

Under current law, applications for a roving wiretap do not have to include specific information on the location of the wiretap or the names of third parties who would be involved in assisting authorities with setting up the wiretap. Instead, court orders apply to the person or persons who are not a particular device or location. Under prior law, the government would have to return to the FISA court for an order that named the new communications carrier, landlord, etc., before tapping the new device or location.

The law requires the FISA court to base its finding on “specific facts” included in an application, and it requires court orders for roving wiretaps to describe in detail the specific target in cases in which the target’s identity is unknown. In the cases when the location of surveillance was unknown at the time of a court order, investigators would be required to notify the court within 72 hours of the start of surveillance at any new location. The court can extend this notification time to up to 60 days.

According to a September 2009 letter from a Justice Department official, the provision has “proven an important intelligence-gathering tool in a small but significant subset of FISA electronic surveillance orders.” The letter noted that this authority is only available when the government is able to provide specific information that the target of surveillance may engage in counter-surveillance activities. The letter noted that the government has sought to use it “in a relatively small number of cases (on average, twenty-two applications per year).”

Additionally, the measure extends by one year the so-called “lone wolf” provision that allows federal law enforcement officials to seek warrants from the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court to conduct surveillance on suspected individuals or “targets” who are engaging in international terrorism activities or preparation for such activities, but cannot be connected to terrorist groups or foreign nations. This provision applies only if the target is not a United States person, i.e., is not a citizen, legal immigrant or resident.

Before 2004, national security officials had to show a court that a target was an agent of a foreign power, or acting on behalf of a foreign power, in order to get permission to monitor a person, which sometimes prevented monitoring a lone wolf operating as an individual. According to the Justice Department, the authority was aimed at situations in which information linking a target to an international group is absent or insufficient, but where the target’s engagement in “international terrorism” has been sufficiently established. The department noted that in practice, the government “must know a great deal about the target,” but must also be unable to connect that person to any group meeting the definition of “foreign power” under FISA.

A Justice Department official, in a September 2009 letter, stated that the department had never filed a FISA application using this provision since it became law in 2004, but stated the department's support for reauthorizing the provision because of potential situations in which it could be the only avenue for surveillance.

Mr. Speaker, I believe it is very important that we extend the expiring provisions of the PATRIOT Act. I would urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this provision rather than to re-store civil liberties and secure America.

Mr. Smith of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi, an active member of the Judiciary Committee and a former city prosecutor, Mr. Harper.

Mr. Harper. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of the PATRIOT Act is to keep suspected terrorists under surveillance in an attempt to prevent another attack on our country like we suffered on September 11, 2001. I believe that it has been successful, and I support its extension. I firmly believe that our safety for the nearly 8% since 9/11 is due in part to the PATRIOT Act and the fine men and women who are able to use it each day to keep our country safe from harm.

I particularly believe that the lone wolf provision which allows for the surveillance of individual terrorists who might not be part of a larger international group is very important, and I'm very happy to see its inclusion in this extension.

I applaud those who worked in a bipartisan manner to pass this legislation in 2001, and I look forward to seeing that provisions of the PATRIOT Act continue to be used in an effort to keep Americans safe.

While I wish that a bill with the intent of extending the PATRIOT Act for longer than a year would have been before the House, I support the legislation before us today. I hope that my colleagues will join with me in supporting the extension of this very important counterterrorism tool.

Mr. Conyers. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve.

Mr. Smith of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to my colleague from Texas, a senior member of the Intelligence Committee, Mr. Thornberry.

Mr. Thornberry. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the distinguished ranking member yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, it is very, very important that we ensure that our intelligence professionals and our law enforcement professionals have the tools and the legal authorities they need to do their job. And we should never forget that their job is to protect us and prevent further terrorist attacks from killing Americans.

Now, over the course of the day today, as we consider the Intelligence Authorization bill, there have been a lot of words spoken in support of those intelligence and law enforcement professionals. But I would suggest that actions matter more than words. One of the actions we can take is to ensure that our tools that need to gather the information to stop terrorist plots. And these three expiring provisions of the PATRIOT Act that are being renewed for a year under this bill are some of the critical tools they need to gather that information and to protect us.

Mr. Speaker, I count about eight plots or attempted terrorist attacks since law enforcement have made the provision that has been stopped or thwarted in some way or another. One of them, unfortunately, was successful, and that was the attack at Fort Hood. One of them was stopped out of sheer luck and the awareness of passengers were interfering a the potential attack over Detroit. But a number of the other attempted attacks or plots over the past few months and years have been stopped, I believe, because of the tools included in the PATRIOT Act that have helped prevent American casualties. And I would suggest we cannot afford a single day without those tools, including the three that are extended over the course of this bill.

I would prefer, as others have said, that it would be longer than a year. But it is absolutely critical that we not allow them to expire and that we put them at least on somewhat of a longer term basis so that these professionals can actually do their job.

I would say to the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Speaker, that in addition to the tools, legal authorities, financial resources that are necessary for them to do their job to protect us, we also must provide these professionals in the intelligence community and the law enforcement community the support they need to do their job. And it is not supporting them, for example, to have a special prosecutor appointed by the Justice Department of this administration to re-investigate interrogators that have already been investigated. And it would not be supportive if we adopt the provision we've talked about earlier today, to establish new crimes against interrogators. They deserve the tools and support. Both can come together with the right votes.

Mr. Conyers. Mr. Speaker, I yield now to Jane Harman as the Co-Chairwoman.

Ms. Harman. Mr. Speaker, I thank Mr. Conyers for yielding and commend him for his leadership of the Judiciary Committee. He has authored many bills which I am proud to cosponsor, one of which included amendments to three expiring provisions of the PATRIOT Act. I rise today because I think we are missing an opportunity. There are good ideas in this House about how to curb the abuses with national security letters, how to clarify that roving wiretaps are limited to a single identifiable target, and how to eliminate the lone wolf provision which has never been used and for which existing title III authority can suffice. Those ideas have been the subject of hearings in the Judiciary Committee, and they're not being debated on this floor.

Instead, we hear that the only way to protect America is to extend the PATRIOT Act as is for another year. We could have extended it for a shorter period and fully debated how to amend the PATRIOT Act on this floor. I think this is a real missed opportunity. As one who was here when we first passed the PATRIOT Act, I recognize that my approach has been controversial.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Smiley.

Instead, we hear that the only way to protect America is to extend the PATRIOT Act as is for another year. We could have extended it for a shorter period and fully debated how to amend the PATRIOT Act on this floor. I think this is a real missed opportunity. As one who was here when we first passed the PATRIOT Act, I recognize that my approach has been controversial.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Smiley.

Mr. Smiley. Mr. Speaker, I yield now to the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Thornberry.

Mr. Thornberry. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to cosponsor, one of which included elimination of the lone wolf provision which has never been used and for which existing title III author... and I know that the President and many here are considering reforms which I may support—but we also must permit robust use of our Federal courts. I think it’s disingenuous to claim that after 300 people have been sent to jail for long sentences we can’t safely try terrorists in U.S. courts under Federal law. I agree with Secretary of Defense Gates and Attorney General Holder that such an amendment would make us less safe by removing a critical tool from the Nation’s arsenal, and that’s the use of our Federal justice system.

In conclusion, we must live our values. When we fail to do that, we offer a huge recruiting tool to those who would attack us. If we live our values by carefully amending expiring PATRIOT Act provisions, by standing up a privacy and civil liberties board and by saying that Federal Courts can try many of those we apprehend for terrorism-related crimes, we have the chance of winning in this era of terror.

Madam Speaker, I take a backseat to no one in the effort to defeat the terror threat against us. I take the threat very seriously, and I read proposed legislation carefully. Today, we could have, as Mr. NADLER suggested, passed a short-term extension and then had a robust public debate about amendments to expiring PATRIOT Act provisions. This is a missed opportunity and I oppose the extension.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. I am prepared to close. I will reserve my time.

Mr. CONYERS. I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, extending the expiring provisions of the PATRIOT Act will give our law enforcement officials and intelligence agents the authority they need to protect against terrorists’ threats. It is unfortunate, though, that some reject a long-term reauthorization. Refusing to reauthorize our national security laws for the long term signals weakness to our enemies. It says we are not serious about protecting American lives.

Repeated extensions of this law create uncertainty for intelligence officials and increase the danger that intelligence is missed and threats unidentified. (...) PATRIOT Act is not broken. And if it isn’t broken, we shouldn’t try to fix it.

Congress has already undertaken a sweeping review of the PATRIOT Act following extensive hearings in the Judiciary Committee. We approved a reauthorization in 2006 that made permanent all but three provisions and enhanced important civil liberty protections. The Obama administration, a bipartisan Senate, and House Republicans approved a long-term reauthorization of the PATRIOT Act.

Mr. Speaker, while I support this bill, our national interests would have been better served if we had considered a long-term extension. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation even though a long-term piece of legislation would have been a much-improved situation. I yield the remainder of my time to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio, DENNIS KUCINICH.

Mr. KUCINICH. I thank Mr. CONYERS. I rise in opposition to H.R. 3961, legislation to extend the expired provisions of the PATRIOT Act. The three provisions being extended today include the "roving wiretaps," which allow the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court to issue secret orders to wiretap any target without having to specify the target or the device. This extension also includes the "lone wolf" surveillance provision, which allows intelligence agencies to conduct investigations of individuals not connected to a foreign power or terrorist group, a provision that the administration has never had to use. Finally, this legislation would extend section 215 powers of the PATRIOT Act, which allows the government to order any entity to turn over "any tangible things" as long as it specifies its "an authorized investigation." Section 215 orders constitute a serious violation of Fourth and First Amendment rights by allowing the government to demand access to records associated with the exercise of First Amendment rights, such as library records.

Through years of documentation evidencing abuse of these provisions during the Bush administration, the Department of Justice has failed to hold Bush administration officials accountable for illegal domestic spying by barring any lawsuits to be brought against those officials. Months into this administration, The New York Times reported that the National Security Agency had "intercepted private e-mail messages and phone calls of Americans in recent months on a scale that went beyond the broad legal limits" and that the practice was "significant and systematic." Passage of this legislation continues to make Congress complicit in the violations of constitutional rights.

A letter written by the American Bar Association in 2005 to Congress expressing concern over "inadequate congressional oversight of government investigations undertaken pursuant to the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act" . . . "to assure that such investigations do not violate the First, Fourth, and Fifth Amendments." As Members of Congress aware to protect the rights and civil liberties afforded to us by the Constitution, we have a responsibility to exercise our oversight powers fully, and significantly reform the PATRIOT Act, ensuring that the privacy and civil liberties of all Americans are fully protected. More than 8 years after the passage of the PATRIOT Act, we failed to do so. As National Journal correspondent Shane Harris recently put it, we’ve witnessed the rise of an "American Surveillance State." We’ve come to love our fears more than we love our freedoms.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. Speaker, in 2001, I voted against the USA PATRIOT Act because it granted law enforcement powers too broad, too removed from oversight, and at the expense of Americans’ civil rights. I am disappointed that H.R. 3961 simply extends three of these provisions without any additional protections or oversight.

This is a missed opportunity to rebalance the need to pursue violent extremists with the need to respect our own citizens. Continuing to allow the government to obtain "any tangible thing" relevant to a terrorism investigation, including library records, is a disturbingly low bar. We can do better.

Committees in the House and Senate have offered drafts to improve the PATRIOT Act, and I strongly suggest that we move forward immediately to amend this law.

Mr. Speaker pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 1109, the previous question is ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDermott) and the gentleman from California (Mr. Herger) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes Mr. McDermott.

Mr. McDermott. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection. Mr. McDermott. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

This bill provides a short-term extension for a number of programs. When you have the other body basically operating on filibusters continuously on everything, it’s not surprising that suddenly somebody wakes up over there and figures out that they’re going to have to go to work and pass some legislation.

By the end of March, 1.2 million people will run out of unemployment benefits, so we’re extending unemployment benefits through the 8th of April, 2010. That is another month. The Senate likes to have a vote on unemployment about once a month. For whatever reason they want to come out here and do this when they can see the problem and they want to drag the American people through this process over and over again, I cannot understand.

The Republicans over there using filibusters to stop the Senate from doing anything simply don’t care about workers in this country.

Now, there is also an extension of COBRA assistance. We’re extending that until the 28th of March, 2010, so people have health insurance for another month. Thanks a lot. And we’re extending surface transportation programs, which makes related expenditures for surface transportation until March 28, 2010.

We’re extending the Medicare physician update, which extends the increase in physicians’ payments until March 28, 2010. We’re extending the Medicare therapy cap exceptions until March 28, 2010. We’re extending the poverty guidelines. And I could go on down this list. I have got a whole bunch more.

The fact is, we passed, in December, out of this House, a 6-month extension in unemployment benefits, but somebody decided we had to have a filibuster in the Senate, so they stopped the bill. And suddenly we come to 5:28 p.m. on the 25th of February and somebody says, oh, my God, there are going to be people in my district with no check. They have been calling my office for the last 2 weeks. Are they going to extend benefits? Will my benefits be extended? What’s going to happen to us?

Well, this is their answer. We will give them another month’s reprieve, and I urge all my colleagues to vote for this bill.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Herger. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. This legislation provides for a 1-month extension of several important programs, including unemployment insurance and health coverage for Americans laid off in this recession, a postponement of severe cuts in Medicare payments to physicians and a satellite television law that allows Americans in rural areas to get access to local news and programming.

It’s important to realize that this is not a jobs bill. On the contrary, the extension of unemployment insurance is needed because the 2009 stimulus bill didn’t create the jobs Democrats promised.

Instead of creating 3.7 million jobs as promised, the stimulus bill was followed by 3.3 million additional job losses. The record 16 million are now unemployed, and Americans are asking “where are the jobs?”

The legislation before us continues the payment of a record 99 weeks of total unemployment benefits, but millions will soon be exhausting those benefits and wondering what comes next, and they will face a job market that on top of everything else is now burdened by mammoth unemployment payroll tax hikes caused by all the unemployment benefits paid to date. So this need to pass this bill today is the result of the failure of the Democrat stimulus bill to create the jobs they promised. If it had created those jobs, and unemployment were now under 8 percent and falling, as Democrats predicted it would be, we could be in a position to start winding these benefits down.

Instead, unemployment is near 10 percent, and even the administration thinks it will remain so through at least this year.

The CBO has estimated this bill will add over $10 billion to the deficit. Less than 2 weeks after the Democrats’ pay-as-you-go bill was signed into law, we... are already seeing billions of dollars designated as “emergency spending” so we don’t have to pay for it. With abundant unused TARP and stimulus money that could pay for this bill, it’s clear Democrats are not serious about fiscal responsibility. We also need to craft policies that will actually create jobs so unemployed workers can get back to work. That will require ending the massive tax hikes and borrowing plans this Democrat Congress and administration has. These policies have created severe uncertainty among American workers and businesses, causing economic stagnation and discouraging hiring. We could eliminate this uncertainty and get the private-sector American job creation engine humming again by immediately extending all expiring tax cuts, scrapping plans for a government takeover of health care, scrapping plans to impose a national cap-and-trade program, repealing wasteful stimulus spending, and committing to not increasing taxes until the economy has fully recovered.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. I yield 3 minutes to my distinguished colleague from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN).

(Mr. LEVIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEVIN. Well, what we face is the highest number of long-term unemployed for over 60 years, 6.3 million people, long-term unemployed. We have 15 million people looking for work.

I came in just in the middle of the statement from my friend from California. I don’t think this is the time for us to be arguing over past programs. I have never understood what the minority was thinking about in terms of job creation. They have voted against Recovery Act bills. But this isn’t the time to be using the plight of the unemployed to try to make points about previous actions. This is the time for us to understand the pain for individuals in this circumstance. We passed a jobs bill here some months ago, unfortunately, without bipartisan support. But I don’t want to argue about that. We should be talking about providing a safety net, not a subsistence issue. It’s people who have been laid off through no fault of their own who need a continuation of unemployment compensation.

If we do not do this, the estimate is that over 1 million people nationally will lose their unemployment benefits in March. That’s 1 month alone, 1.2 million people. If that isn’t sobering enough to get us to focus on an extension of unemployment compensation and jobs for these people, I don’t know what else we will do.

So I hope we will come here and pass this bill and not use it as a vehicle to be talking about something other than the plight of the unemployed of this country who can’t find a job, 6 or 7 people looking for a job for every job that might open up.

I urge that we pass this overwhelming legislation.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, I reluctantly support this legislation. While it has major flaws, which I outlined earlier, the current job market in so many parts of the country, including my own congressional district in northern California, is so bad that the help, especially for long-term unemployed individuals, is needed and merited during the weeks covered by this legislation at the very least.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, as I listened to my friend from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) talk about the situation, it brings you almost beyond anger to realize that one person in the other body has stopped the unemployment extension for so many. We don’t know, even as we pass this bill over there today, what will happen if that gentleman does not lift his restriction on the Senate bill. We may be into a cloture situation again. Now what they did before, the unemployment insurance, they held it up and held it up, and then, when it came to the end, everybody voted for it.

It is clear, from the first words out of my colleague from California’s mouth, that this is about trying to prove to the people that the Democrats can’t run the Congress. They can’t run the Congress with the filibuster in the Senate. They can’t run Congress because of the filibuster in the Senate.

When we pass this bill, it’s clear Democrats are not serious about reducing uncertainty. They have voted against Repeal and Replace, repealing the wasteful stimulus spending, and committing to not increasing taxes until the economy has fully recovered.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this, and I urge the other body to think about changing the filibuster.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this legislation.

This bill would increase Federal spending by $10 billion, or $125 per family of four in the U.S. None of which would be paid for. And that’s just for a family of four. It will cost to extend these programs through the end of the year, as is already in the works. That, too, will get added to our children’s already enormous tab of government debt. They deserve far better.

Ironically, just two weeks ago the President signed a bill into law. He said “the PAYGO bill . . . says very simply that the United States of America should pay for what we go and live within our means again—just like responsible families and businesses do.”

Yet today, with this bill, we’re not living within our means, yet again.

A second flaw of this bill has to do with jobs. This legislation simply won’t create any. Some say that extending unemployment benefits stimulates job creation. If that were so, we would be at full employment already. Today record numbers of Americans—over 11 million—collect unemployment checks instead of paychecks. They collect record weeks of benefits—up to 99 weeks per person. And Congress added another $100 per month to those checks, for the first time ever. Yet since these programs started in 2008, the unemployment rate has jumped from 5.5 percent to over 10 percent as almost 8 million jobs disappeared.

So as these unemployment benefits are creating jobs, they are sure hard to see. But what we can see are mammoth payroll tax hikes this year in most States, as they struggle to pay for these benefits. As employer after employer has said, those tax hikes will further harm job creation when businesses and workers are already hurting.

In fact, some respected scholars argue these record unemployment benefit expansions actually are resulting in more unemployment, not less. That seems more than plausible.

At this time I would request unanimous consent to insert in the RECORD an article from the November 17, 2009 New York Post, which states:

As Larry Summers, the president’s top assistant for economic policy, noted in July, “The unemployment rate over the recession has major flaws, which I outlined ear-

As Larry Summers, the president’s top assistant for economic policy, noted in July, “The unemployment rate over the recession has major flaws, which I outlined earlier—rising. Yet what unemployed workers really want are jobs and paychecks. We need to start over and do the things that really help create jobs for unemployment. That means eliminating uncertainty by scrapping Democrats’ government health care takeover and cap and tax energy plans, extending expiring tax cuts on businesses and individuals, repealing wasteful stimulus spending, and committing to not increasing any tax until the economy has fully recovered.

Until we do that, additional extensions of unemployment benefits will simply siphon even more money we don’t have without truly helping unemployed workers find jobs, which must be our real goal.

(From the New York Post, Nov. 17, 2009)

THE ‘STIMULUS’ FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

(By Alan Reynolds)

Why did the unemployment rate rise so rapidly—from 7.2 percent in January to 10.2 percent in October? It was clearly the administration’s “stimulus” bill—which in Feb-uary provided $30 billion to greatly extend jobless benefits at no cost to the States.

As Larry Summers, the president’s top assistant for economic policy, noted in July, “The unemployment rate over the recession... has risen about 1 to 1.5 percentage points more than would normally be attributable to the contraction in GDP.’’ And the rate has moved nearly a percentage point higher since then, reaching 12.2 per cent of GDP that year. Countries with much deeper declines in GDP, such as Germany and Sweden, have unemployment rates far below ours.

Summing up, the US rate is so high. He explained it well in a 1995 paper co-authored with James Poterba of MT: ‘‘Unemployment insurance lengths unemployment spells. . . . the average unemployment spell has risen by seven weeks this year—to nearly 27 weeks by October.’’

Meyer also found that extended benefits, by making it easier for workers to wait and see whether they get their old jobs back, also makes it easier for employers to delay re-hiring laid-off workers. Just before unemployment benefits ran out, Katz found ‘‘large positive jumps in both the recall rate and new job finding rate.’’

The White House recently made the mysterious claim of having ‘‘saved’’ 640,329 jobs, at a cost of only $531,125 per job ($340 billion).

In reality, the evidence is overwhelming that the February stimulus bill has added at least two percentage points to the unemployment rate. If Congress and the White House hadn’t forced Congress to cut benefits, and when it did, the US unemployment rate would now be about 8 percent and falling rather than more than 10 percent and rising.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4691, Temporary Extensions Act of 2010, which temporarily extends a number of important expiring provisions that assist workers hit hard by the economy as well as averts the impending cuts under Medicare for physician services. These are important policies that we should not let lapse.

However, there are also a number of critical rural health payment adjustments under Medicare that expired last year which are not included in this package. These payment adjustments were created under the Medicare Modernization Act to correct flaws in Medicare payments and made a tremendous difference to rural hospitals, physicians, ambulances, and laboratories and the seniors they serve.

Congress has a long record of extending these important rural health care provisions. Most recently, the House found it appropriate to include extensions of many of these critical rural health care provisions in legislation it passed last year. However, these provisions have not yet been signed into law. Therefore, we ask for your continued support to improve rural health care by including in legislation Congress may consider in the coming weeks an extension of the critical rural health care provisions described.

Rural Hospitals: Our rural hospitals provide essential inpatient, outpatient and post-acute care to nearly 9 million Medicare beneficiaries. We support an extension of the geographical wage index reclassifications for the more than 100 ‘‘Section 308 Hospitals,’’ in order to continue to provide greater wage parity within a state in order to address increasingly competitively labor markets. In addition, it is critical that Congress ensure that small rural hospitals continue to be reimbursed for their costs for their laboratory services and preserves outpatient hold harmless payments for sole community and small rural hospitals. We also support an extension of direct billing under Medicare for certain grandfathered labs for the technical component of pathology services provided to certain small hospital laboratories. Finally, in order to protect the recently expired Rural Community Hospital Demonstration Project, which tests the feasibility and advisability for reauthorization of reimbursement for small rural hospitals.

Rural Doctors and Practitioners: Only ten percent of physicians practice in rural America even though more than a quarter of the population lives in these areas. In order to attract and retain physicians where they are needed mostly, it is imperative that we continue to maintain the 1:0.1 floor on the physician work geographic practice cost index (GPCI).

Rural Ambulance: In providing critical emergency health care to patients, it costs rural ambulance service providers more per transport than their urban counterparts because of the greater distances rural providers travel and their lower transport volume. In effect, rural ambulance providers receive less than 22.6 percent of their base rate which helps cover the costs of serving patients located in these extremely rural areas.

These rural equity policy provisions are critical to the ability of our rural health care providers to continue to provide quality care to rural Americans. A lapse in these payments will not only hurt rural ambulance providers to continue to provide quality care to rural Americans. A lapse in the payment of the Medicare SGR payment for rural ambulance service providers would cost them the greater distances rural providers travel and their lower transport volume. In effect, rural ambulance service providers receive less than 22.6 percent of their base rate which helps cover the costs of serving patients located in these extremely rural areas.

Accordingly (at 5 o’clock and 41 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

AFTER RECESS

The House resumed for the purpose of considering the question on the motion offered by Mr. Himes at 6 o’clock and 38 minutes p.m.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MAFFEI). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. MORAN of Kansas addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

HANDLING WITH KID GLOVES THE ENEMIES OF THIS NATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, sometimes I just do not understand this place. We are fighting people who will cut off your head, who will blow up a building and kill 3,000 people with an airplane. They will do anything they can to make us look weak. If we pass an intelligence bill, we want to do everything we can to treat them with kid gloves. It just doesn’t make any sense to me. The bill we are going to be voting on tomorrow in the manager’s amendment says this:

It would define “cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment” in intelligence interrogations, and it would provide a penalty of up to 15 years in prison for the use of this treatment during an interrogation.

They’re talking about our CIA people who are interrogating a terrorist—an a Qaeda terrorist, a Taliban terrorist or somebody who is threatening the security of the United States. I want to read that again.

It would define “cruel, inhuman, and degrading treatment” in intelligence interrogations, and it would provide a penalty of up to 15 years in prison for the use of this treatment during an interrogation.

Now, what intelligence agent in his right mind would go that extra mile to get information from a terrorist who had information about flying a plane into a building to kill a couple of thou- sand people? Because, if he used any-things that didn’t fit within this category, he could be prosecuted and could go to jail for 15 years. That’s insane.

Then it goes on to say that it would also provide a criminal penalty of up to 5 years in jail for medical professionals who enable such activities.

Look, I don’t believe in torture, and I don’t believe in mistreating human beings, but when you’re talking about the security of the United States of America, that’s number one. That is number one. When we take our oath of office here, we swear to uphold and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic. If these terrorists and enemies of the United States, we need to do whatever we can to make sure that we get information from them to protect this country. The people who are doing that job frontline are the FBI, the CIA, the DIA, and all of our individual intelligence elements. To ho-string them makes no sense to me whatsoever.

My liberal colleagues on the other side want to put them on the head and give them Jell-O for lunch and do all the other crazy things that you should do. They’re living better down at Guantanamo than in our prisons here in the United States—Americans. Yet we want to make sure that we treat them with kid gloves.

Right now we have three Navy SEALs who are going to be court-martialed because they captured an al Qaeda terrorist in Fallujah, in Iraq, a terrorist who dragged four American contractors through the streets, burned their bodies, tortured them, and hung them from a bridge. In addition to that, he cut the head off of Daniel Pearl, a newsman, and he put his head on a pike.

You know, that guy, I’m sure, deserves a little extra sweet treatment, but I don’t think so. Because he said he was hit in the mouth, had a bloody lip and got hit in the stomach, the three Navy SEALs who captured him are being court-martialed.

It makes no sense. This place is going nuts. We ought to be doing everything we can to defend and protect this country, and that means doing whatever is necessary, with certain limits, to extract any information we can from a terrorist. For us to put language in this bill that would give a 15-year penalty in prison for a CIA agent who goes a little beyond by using cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment—and, boy, I don’t know how you’d define that—what CIA agent is going to want to take that risk?

Just don’t understand it, Mr. Speaker. We are in a war against people who want to destroy us and our way of life. They are willing to do all kinds of things—they fly planes into buildings, do everything else, cut off heads, torture people. Yet we want to make sure we treat them with kid gloves. It makes absolutely no sense, and I will not vote for that bill tomorrow or anything that looks like it.

HONORING THE HEROES OF THE Haitian Disaster

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. ETHERIDGE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, on Tuesday, the House unanimously passed House Resolution 1066, recognizing the bravery and efforts of the United States Armed Forces, local first responders, and other members of Operation Unified Response for their swit and coordinated action in light of the devastation wrought upon the nation of Haiti after a horrific 7.0 magnitude earthquake struck Port-au-Prince and surrounding cities on the 12th of January, 2010.

I have the unique honor of representing both Fort Bragg and Pope Air Force Base. Men and women from the base were critical to the Haitian relief effort, and soldiers were involved in rescue and recovery operations as well as in humanitarian relief—distributing out food and water to victims of this terrible disaster.

I would like to thank all of the military and civilian personnel who responded so effectively and quickly to this disaster, serving honorably under less than ideal conditions.

The 2nd Battalion of the 82nd Airborne Division and the 18th Airborne Corps were among the first responders, with hundreds of paratroopers on the ground within days of the disaster and thousands within a week.

The 2nd of the 319th Airborne soon joined them. The entire United States

Army Garrison Fort Bragg came together and deployed units from the 82nd Airborne and 18th Corps in their support for our neighbors to the south.

In times of disaster, restoring and supporting the most basic requirements of life becomes a challenge. The 43rd and the 440th Maintenance Operations Squadrons and the 43rd Logistics Readiness Squadron provided the support for the fundamental requirements desperately needed by the Haitians: water, meals, and basic shelter. Of course, even the most needed supplies are useless on a tarmac. The 3rd

Aerial Port Squadron, the 43rd Missions Support Squadron, the 440th Air

Wing, and the 2nd Airlift Squadron got the materials where they were needed. The 145th Air Wing and the North Carolina National Guard worked with Pope

Air Force personnel to make these deliveries happen. Matching the supplies and the need is no small task. The 43rd

Operations Support Squadron and the 43rd Communication Squadron brought it all together under the able direction of the 43rd OG Command Post and assistance of the 43rd Security Forces.

The devastation of the nation of Haiti was tremendous. The infrastructure we take most for granted was destroyed. Roads, airports, and water infrastructure were made useless in an instant. The 43rd Civil Engineering Squadron arrived to put out fires and still used to rebuild this fundamental needs.

The military personnel were not the only ones from North Carolina who responded to the crisis. Civilians, first responders, individuals, and generous donors all helped make a difference to the people of Haiti. Communities of faith across the State moved to help all Haitians, many building upon decades of commitment to that island nation. Churches of every denomination and members of all faiths worked together in acts of charity. As the Gospel tells us to do, they fed the hungry, gave water to the thirsty, sent shelter to those driven from their homes by the earthquake, provided medical care, and, in the saddest charity of all, some helped to bury the dead. In addition to the efforts of the churches, synagogues, mosques, and other places of prayer, the Lions, the Masons, and the Daughters of the American Revolution all pulled out the stops to reach across the ocean.

Mr. Speaker, the military support, the people of faith, and the civilian first responders are not three groups; they are all one community. These groups are interwoven threads that came together to weave a safety net of volunteers, food, comfort, and shelter for the suffering in Haiti. I am proud of their efforts as they’ve worked to support the needs in Haiti. I am proud to represent such an amazing tapestry of generosity and talent in the 2nd District of North Carolina. And I was proud to support this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, let me say tonight to all Americans: I thank them for their help to these people in their hour of need.

THE ADMINISTRATION’S ENERGY-KILLING POLICIES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the administration’s new budget proposal will strangle small business. But there’s one small business the new budget is targeting with both barrels: the small, independent mom-and-pop oil and gas producers.

Getting energy out of the ground is a tough business, and it’s expensive. These wildcatters hire a lot of people and risk a lot of their own money to find oil and natural gas. Banks don’t lend money to these people for risky propositions; so a group of investors lend money to these people for risky business, and the Federal Government has to come together and risk their money in order to help to these people in their hour of need.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY of California. Mr. Speaker, earlier today we heard some pretty imaginative accusations from my Republican colleagues when they were talking about an amendment I offered to the Intelligence Authorization Act. While my amendment is being removed from the manager’s amendment up in the Rules Committee, I want to take this opportunity to clear up a few things.

When President Obama took office last year, one of his first Executive orders was to extend the Army field manual’s guidelines on interrogation tactics. Those guidelines prohibit interrogators in all Federal agencies from using brutal interrogations in any circumstance. That is the law today. Interrogators in all Federal agencies from using brutal interrogations in any circumstance. That is the law today. But this Executive order doesn’t completely solve the problem. The President can’t include criminal penalties in Executive orders, and current U.S. law doesn’t outline what constitutes a brutal interrogation.

My amendment would have expanded upon the President’s Executive order to clearly define what constitutes a cruel, inhuman, or degrading interrogation so that it is unmistakable what kinds of techniques are unacceptable. It also creates criminal penalties for those who use those kinds of interrogations. And to be clear, I didn’t invent...
As the President said when he issued his Executive order last year, “We are willing to observe core standards of conduct not just when it’s easy, but also when it’s hard.”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Jones) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in celebration of the recognition of the 100th anniversary of a great, value-laden, principle-driven organization, the Boy Scouts of America. It was 100 years ago that it led to the formal organization of the Boy Scouts of America. And that came from an event actually that happened across the sea, in London.

A businessman from Chicago, William D. Boyce, was traveling there, and on a foggy night was lost, and was guided by the selfless act of a young man who stopped to not just offer directions, but take the businessman, lead him where he needed to be. And at the end of that journey, Mr. Boyce offered to pay the man, pay the young lad for that selfless service, that kind act. And the response was, “Sir, I am a Scout. We do good turns, and not for pay.”

That led to Mr. Boyce returning and partnering with individuals in this country, and ultimately within the next year led to the forming of the Boy Scouts of America that has served this country and served the youth of this country for 100 years.

Scouting was described by its earlier founder, Lord Baden-Powell, when he founded Scouting in England, as a game with a purpose. It certainly is. That purpose is value-driven. And those values are lasting to this day 100 years later. They united the states of America as citizenship, and leadership, and service, and character that builds lives.

The Boy Scouts of America today through the Cub, the Boy Scouting, the Venturing program, the Scouting program serves both boys and girls. The Scout promise that is recited every week throughout this country at troop meetings includes those three parts of duty to God and duty to country, duty to self, and duty to others.

Prior to coming to this Chamber 14 months ago, I served for 30 years as a Scoutmaster. And in that time I saw that Scouting made a difference in the lives of kids, kids from all walks of life, kids that came from intact families and very challenged circumstances. I saw how Scouting made a difference in terms of putting them on the path for successful careers to become community leaders, to actually save lives, that applied their skills that they had learned to save lives. And as patriots and serving their country as members of our Armed Services, as firefighters, EMTs, and as becoming loving spouses and parents themselves.

Mr. Speaker, today I rise to talk about, additionally, the oldest existing, continuously registered, non-merged Boy Scout Council in America: The Chief Complanter Council based in Warren County, Pennsylvania. It was founded in July 1913.

In this 100th year of the establishment of Scouting, it is a pleasure to point out to my colleagues that the Chief Complanter Council was the 17th council to receive a charter from the Boy Scouts of America. But the first 16 have either disbanded or merged with other councils. So it holds onto the distinction as the oldest.

Originally chartered as the Warren County Council, the group was renamed Chief Complanter Council in 1954 to honor a local Seneca chief. The council office in Warren has a museum that features historical items, including a photo of five Scouts from 1914 with their badges sewn to their sleeves, and their hats that remind us more of a World War I doughboy.

In 3 years, the Complanter Council will celebrate 100 years of continuous scouting in an area that is dedicated to Scouting and its ideals. Local Scout executive Kevin Bonner said the area serves 60 percent of all Cub Scout-age youth, while the national average is about 20 percent. At any given time they have about 1,000 youth involved in their program.

I commend this council for its longevity, its service to Scouting, and the difference that it, as well as other Scouting programs across this Nation, make in the lives of our future leaders.
those services, I am able to take the floor and pay tribute to Mr. James Hadley, a businessman, a banker, community advocate, a civic and church leader, and a friend to all of those who knew him.

For most of his adult life, James Hadley spent it building financial and business enterprises in low, moderate income, and disadvantaged communities. And Jim worked with many, many programs and projects, business ventures, and financial institutions.

And while he worked with many throughout the City of Chicago, I believe that that which gave him the greatest sense of pride and accomplishment was the work that he did with the Community Bank of Lawndale, where he, Cecil Butler, Diane Glenn, Reverend Shelvin Hall, and others pioneered the development of a community-owned bank, which has changed its name and is now named the Covenant Bank and is under the leadership of Pastor Bill Winston of the Living Word Christian Center.

James Hadley and I both grew up in Arkansas not very far from each other. I in a little town Parkdale, and he in another town Warren. And I really didn’t know him at that time. But as fate would have it, we both migrated to Chicago. And as I got to know Jim, he became a role model for me. He was seriously committed to every endeavor to which he was a part of. He was loyal to whatever he was engaged in. He was a great family man, dedicated to his family, had a comprehensive approach to life, and was just a pleasure to know, to be around, and to work with.

As a matter of fact, I commend James Hadley for a life well lived, take note of his many contributions, and thank him for helping to make the world a better place in which to live.

As a matter of fact, he served on the board of many for-profits, the hospital board, Mount Sinai Hospital, was an active member of the Carter Temple CME church, worked with the Boy Scouts, worked with the male initiative in his church, and was simply known as a good man to all of those who knew him.

And so, Mr. Speaker, I extend condolences to his wife Gloria, his daughter, and all of the James Hadley family, and trust that there will be others who will come along like him, who was willing to give of himself continuously for the benefit of others.

James Hadley, he lived a good life. Well done.

HEALTH CARE SUMMIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. PAUL addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

And under the Health Caucus Web site, under the Issues tab, I think it is the second heading, is a Prescription for Health Care Reform. Anyone is free to go to that site and click on the Prescription for Health Care Reform, follow the links, and they will be taken to a one-page description of different bullet points on health care reform.

In fact, there is even a little segment to record comments if someone would like to leave their ideas or their thoughts on the paper. Or if someone thinks of other things that might in fact be included, we welcome those comments on the Web site.

I am just going to briefly go through this list, and then I have got some other observations that I want to make on the summit that occurred today. And we will be joined from time to time by other Members of Congress, and I want to give them an opportunity to speak. But under the Prescription for Health Care Reform, certainly evthins as I heard today, we don’t want a 1,000-page bill. People really didn’t want a 2,000-page bill after we came back and revamped it after the summertime. But what did people want Congress to do on health care?

There are people who have legitimate concerns that the system is not functioning in an optimum fashion. We do have great health care here in America, but there are distributional issues. The employer-sponsored insurance system does work well for the 60 to 70 percent of the population that is therein covered, but in fact there are problems for people who are outside the employer-sponsored insurance system, and there are certainly problems that all of us face with the advancing cost and complexity of health care.

So just running down the list, insurance reform that would include limitations on insurance companies excluding people for preexisting conditions, and guaranteeing access to insurance. There is one of the differences on the Republican and Democratic approach to this is that the Democrats want to have, and the President wants to have, a mandate. That is, you are required to buy a product, an insurance product.

It is interesting because during the campaign in 2008, President Obama, when he was a presidential candidate, actually moved away from mandates. Candidate Hillary Clinton during her candidacy was in favor of mandates. Barack Obama was less enthusiastic about mandates. He did feel that there should be a mandate for children. We don’t hear much discussion about that anymore. In fact, I don’t think I heard that during the 6½ hours of debate today.

But mandates really have no place in a free society. There’s some argument as to whether or not it would even be constitutional for the Federal Government to require someone to purchase an insurance product that they might not want. So there are legislative products out there. And this is the point I want to make. When people say, oh, we can’t start all over, this would be too taxing. There are a couple of bills out there that I would encourage. Mr. Speaker, I would look at H.R. 4026, a bill introduced by NEAL M. DEAL of Georgia; H.R. 4026, a bill introduced by myself. Those two bills, taken in conjunction, would go a long way towards eliminating the problems with existing conditions.

Another bill to address the tax fairness or the tax inequity that exist in the health insurance market today introduced by JOHN SHADEGG, H.R. 3218, the Improving Health Care for All Americans Act, that would allow the same benefits, no matter where you get your insurance, whether it’s through employer-sponsored insurance or in the individual market, the same benefits should accrue to an individual as accrue to a business.

Medical liability reform. Texas and California have taken big strides in medical liability reform. So why do I care? If Texas has fixed their problem with medical liability, why would I care about that? Well, I care because the cost of defensive medicine has become significant. And since the Federal Government is the purchaser of about 50 percent of all the health care in this country, the costs of defensive medicine that drive up the price of Medicare and Medicaid are very significant. And since the Federal Government is the purchaser of about 50 percent of all the health care in this country, the costs of defensive medicine that drive up the price of Medicare and Medicaid are very significant. And since the Federal Government is the purchaser of about 50 percent of all the health care in this country, the costs of defensive medicine that drive up the price of Medicare and Medicaid are very significant.

But prevention and wellness programs, although I do not have the bill number attached to this, we had several amendments in committee and in the Rules Committee leading up to the passage of the Democrats’ bill this fall that dealt with prevention and wellness. The legislative language is written. It is not in bill form right now because it would require a simultaneous modification of the HIPAA laws in order to allow that to happen.

And finally, I mentioned before, mandates come to such things. And this is one of the fundamental differences between the President and myself. He wants to force everyone to buy an insurance policy. He said that’s the only way to bring costs down. I would like to think, if the insurance companies know you have to buy their product, their prices are not likely to go down. In fact, if you’re required to buy their product under the penalty of law, with the IRS as the enforcer, it is very likely that the price will go up because no one wants to run afoul of the Internal Revenue Service.

And then we make insurance companies lazy. Why bother to compete with a better product? Why try to create a program that people actually want? You’ve got to buy it anyway. The government’s going to force you, you’re going to buy my product, I don’t even have to make it something that you want, and I can charge you more for it.

Mandates make insurance companies lazy.

We have a model for what works in this endeavor, and that is when the Medicare part D program rolled out, then Administrator of the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Dr. Mark McClelan, required, out of six classes of pharmaceuticals, there were six protected classes of drugs. Within each class, an insurance company had to choose one, and using that as the parameter, the companies did produce the plans that people wanted. The product, part D, has been very popular. Ninety-two percent of seniors now have credible drug coverage under because of the flexibility and the desirability of these programs. The cost came in way under budget, and 92 to 94 percent of seniors are satisfied or very satisfied with their prescription drug coverage, so a pretty good program worked. And the whole emphasis was to make this look more like insurance and less like an entitlement.

Creating products people want is a better way to go about getting meaningful change in the insurance market than giving the insurance companies a license to steal, which is what a mandate would be, in my opinion.

I have some other observations on the President’s activities, but I wanted to yield such time as he may consume to my good friend from Pennsylvania, Mr. G.T. THOMPSON, who in a former life was a health care administrator. I know it’s odd that a doctor and a health care administrator would get along, but the two of us do get along very well.

G.T., I will yield to you such time as you may consume.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Thank you, Dr. BURGESS. I really appreciate what my good friend from Texas is doing in terms of his leadership with the Congressional Health Care Caucus. It’s refreshing in this Chamber to deal with folks who have the facts and have the experience to make informed decisions when it comes to such issues like health care. I think of all the issues that come before this Chamber, there are probably few things as intimate to our individual lives as health care. And to observe this process over this past 14 months, where bills are written as I look at these bills, 1,000, 2,000, 3,000 pages, which has been special agendas, you know, just misled government-run health care, it’s apparent to me that those who are writing those bills have very little experience, if any experience in health care. And so it’s been a real privilege to be able to work with you and under your leadership to really look at the solutions that we need to have.

Now, as I travel around, and I did, my background was 28 years nonprofit community health center in the hospitals, the health systems I come out of, we work very hard to be partners with our physicians.

And so what am I hearing? As I travel in my congressional district and I listen to folks throughout the country, I haven’t met anyone that says, just don’t do anything. The commitment is that, as I talk with folks, that they feel that they like the health system we have. Can we improve it? I think there’s an acknowledgment that we can do that. And I’ve certainly spent my professional career serving my patients first as a therapist and a rehabilitation services manager and ultimately as a nursing home administrator. And looking at four dimensions of health care, we always continue to strive to improve. Number one is cutting cost. And that’s just not cost for a certain segment or a certain group, but cutting cost of health care for all Americans, which we’re committed to that. And the solutions are actually what you’ve talked about. It’s about improving access, increasing access and improving quality and strengthening that decisionmaking relationship between... the patient and the physician, not allowing government or a bureaucrat to be that wedge in between.

As I talk with people about health care, and I’ve been doing that since I came to Congress, that’s what they’re asking. And while I talk about different proposals, I’ve presented a number of them that deal with the subsidies and the premiums, that deal with the pre-existing conditions, that deal with the insurance companies, that deal with the purchasing across State lines, that deal with the silo mentality.

It’s things like many of the solutions you talked about, allowing to purchase across State lines. It fascinates me that you can go to the Internet and you can go on a Web site, some of them got like lizards on them, and you can purchase car insurance and get the best value, the best product for the best cost. You make that decision as an individual. And yet we are barred from purchasing health insurance across State lines.

In States like Pennsylvania, especially rural Pennsylvania where I’m from, if you have choices, you have just a couple of choices. Maybe if you’re lucky, you have three choices to pick from. And a lot of people say, well, I want the insurance that you have as a Member of Congress. Well, I’m quick to tell people, I worked non-profit community health care for hospitals for 30 years. I’m paying more today of my income for what I ever paid for health care. But what I would like every American to have, certainly every constituent in my district that I have today are just lots of choices. And we do that by allowing purchasing across State lines, more competition. That’s a good thing.

Competition brings the cost down and raises quality. I don’t care what you’re purchasing, that’s a principle that lasts.

Certainly, a formation of association health plans, and preexisting conditions, as you’ve talked about. I mean, those are all just a few of the different parts of the proposals that Republican Members have introduced and are pending bills that are right here that the Speaker could elevate to the floor at any moment so that we could actually take an up-or-down vote on these. I think the American people would vote yes. I see a thumbs-up from the American people as we talk about these different proposals.

Preexisting conditions, that’s a tough issue, but we’re addressing that within the proposals we have. Just because you’re born with a preexisting condition or you happen to have the misfortune to develop a disease such as breast cancer or prostate cancer in the course of your life doesn’t mean that you shouldn’t be able to afford to be able to purchase affordable health insurance.

I take an up-or-down vote on these. I don’t want to have the kind of process that we’ve put in place where the Democrats’ bills in the House and the Senate right now is they do not enjoy popular support. Pick your number: 56, 58, 75 percent of the American people who do not support this 2,000-page monstrosity that literally required bureaucrats down the well to pass this bill. The American people saw that and they rejected it.

They might trust us—I am not sure that they will—but they might trust us to work on some of these individual concepts one at a time. But at the very end of the summit today, the President decreed incrementalism and said we have to be bold and we have to move forward with a large bill.

Why do we have to do that? The programs to deal with preexisting conditions would involve risk pools to be sure. Reinsurance options for States, yes, it’s going to require some Federal subsidy. The Congressional Budget Office has given us a trillion dollar over 10 years. They may be a little bit light on that, but still we’re nowhere near a number like a trillion dollars, which is scaring Americans to death.

We could provide some help in that market. The States could provide some help in that market. We could ask our partners in the insurance industry to voluntarily or by law cap their premiums at some level so that the person who was in this market did not find the costs so daunting that they simply gave up and did not get insurance.

Now, all of these great programs that the President and the Speaker talk about that they’re going to give to the American people at no charge, none of these programs start for at least 4 years.

Now look, here we are 13 months into a new administration and the administrator at the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services is not there. He hasn’t even been appointed, much less confirmed by the Senate. That is the individual who is going to be responsible for taking this 2,700 pages of legislation that we give them and turning the legislation into rules and the Federal rulemaking process. That is going to be an enormous effort. It is going to take 4 years to work through all of that and impugn all of the legislative intent and make those Federal rules and leave the rulemaking period open long enough so that people can comment on it. That is an enormous task. It’s not going to happen overnight.

So the people that come to us and say, My premium’s going up too much, I want you to take it over; they’re not getting anything for at least 4 years.

Now, in the meantime, what if we took an approach—and, in fact, it was an approach that was talked about by Senator MCCAIN in the fall campaign of 2008. What if we took the approach of we’re going to take existing risk pools of the States—34 States have already created. We’re going to emulate the best practices of the best States. We’re going to allow for some reinsurance options, not to be going to allow for someone to take on higher-risk individuals so that no individual insurance company is tasked with too much in the way of financial loss, and we’re going to cover this group of individuals.

I heard it over and over and over and over again this summer at town halls. Stop what you’re doing. We don’t want you to destroy the system that is working well for 65 or 75 percent of the country. We want you to concentrate on those individuals who, through no fault of their own, have suffered a tough medical diagnosis, have lost their job and employer-sponsored insurance, couldn’t keep up with the COBRA payments and now find themselves into that dreaded category of uninsured with a pre-existing condition.

While we’re at it, we might look at the COBRA system. COBRA was placed as a protection to help people who had employer-sponsored insurance and lose their job. So employer-sponsored insurance means the employer generally pays about two-thirds of the premium; the employee pays about one-third of the premium. When you lose your job, the employee pays the entire insurance. In all likelihood, your employer is not going to pay their two-thirds any longer because you’re no longer their employee. But for 18 months, you can pick up the whole premium and pay that with a small administrative charge—I think it’s 102 percent of the premium—and you can continue your insurance for 18 months and not fall into the category of uninsured.

And if you have a preexisting condition, you continue to be covered at that cost.

But that’s a tall order for someone who just lost their job to continue to carry that degree of premium. What if we allowed people—instead of you had to keep that same insurance your employer provided you, what if we allowed them into a lower-cost, high-deductible plan for those 18 months and still preserve their insurability during that time, so that when they found employment, they can’t continue that insurance. But in all likelihood, your employer is not going to do that anymore because you’re no longer their employee. But for 18 months, you can pick up the whole premium and pay that with a small administrative charge—I think it’s 102 percent of the premium—and you can continue your insurance for 18 months and not fall into the category of uninsured.

And if you have a preexisting condition, you continue to be covered at that cost.

Some observations of the proceedings that I watched today when I had an opportunity to tune in in my office—I wasn’t on the invitation list to be there. It was pretty limited invitations. But I heard—and I don’t know which leader it was, whether it was the Speaker or whom, made comments there were absolutely no Medicare cuts that are involved in this. And yet the fact is the Congressional Budget Office Director, Doug Elmendorf, back on December 19, just a few days ago, said that there were Medicare cuts, and those Medicare cuts built into this impact all areas of health care from hospitals to skilled nursing to home health to hospice. Hospice, which is a wonderful service, will be in the final stage of dying, where they have the support of compassionate health care professionals surrounded by family to be able to die with dignity, and yet that is an area, one of many areas of Medicare cuts that are slated for under those proposals.

In my responsibilities across many different settings of health care, I have to say that there is a lot of reasons why commercial health insurance is expensive. Cost reform I would put right on top of the list.

But maybe even higher on the list, I would say, is the Federal Government. The Federal Government pays—underfunds and has systematically underfunded the costs of health care—the physician, the hospital for Medicare payment. For every dollar of cost of providing care, the Federal Government pays 80 to 90 cents. For medical assistance, it’s maybe, if you’re lucky, 40 to 60 cents. It depends on the State. The commercial insurance pays, on the average across the Nation, 135 percent of costs. And the primary reason for that is the hospitals’ physicians have to negotiate at that rate. If they don’t, they can’t make up. What the government does not pay.

Now, yesterday, in our Committee on Oversight and Investigations—we hauled in Anthem Insurance Company in California. And Anthem, to their great discredit, chose right now as a time to increase their premiums, and they have become the whipping boy for the poster child. I think they raised their premiums too fast. They were tone deaf. Their highest premium increase was 39 percent. Their average was 25 percent. Twenty-five percent. Okay, that seems high, but the President’s already said that. You may not agree because you get an orange instead of an apple, so after all, you’re good in that transaction.
So I guess if Anthem wanted to raise their rates, they probably should have stayed at that 12 percent rate. They would have been right in line with the President of the United States. They could have raised their rates and all been happy with the transaction. Instead they overshot. They hit an average rate of 25 percent and, as a consequence, found themselves sworn in under oath in our committee having to absorb the ordeal that we put people through when they come before our committee.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. I have to wonder with that because I see premiums like announcements, and they are going up. And this is why we’re committed to doing the right kind of smart government solutions to bring the costs of health care down, the premiums down. Giving a license to 12 to 13 percent additional increases, that’s unacceptable to me for the American people.

I have to wonder how much of what’s going on in Washington and these health insurance companies as America is watching the debate here, that—you know, giving this approach that the Democrats, my leadership, my friends and colleagues on the other side of the aisle are taking, how much is that driving up premiums right now because they don’t know what’s coming. They don’t know the premiums. There’s a lot of uncertainty.

I mean we, not too long ago, passed a credit card bill under similar circumstances. It was going to provide all kinds of limitations and impose new conditions, what has been kind of a free market type of process, and what I have seen, actually, as a result one of the unintended consequences, is some of those interest rates—before the new regulations kicked in, some of those interest rates went way up as an unintended consequence of government overreaching, government-run approach.

Mr. BURGESS. It’s interesting, perhaps the one thing that would provide the right impetus in the competition to hold down those costs we are not going to do, and that’s the ability to buy across State lines.

In the individual market, buying a policy for a family of four in New Jersey is $10,000 a year. Your State of Pennsylvania, $6,000 a year, my State of Texas, $5,000 a year. As long as people know what they are purchasing, I don’t see why it is reasonable to restrict someone from having a policy that may be more affordable.

My insurance premiums have decreased by about 50 percent over the last 2 years. Not because I am a Member of Congress and I get a special deal, but I said, you know what, I cannot longer afford this high option PPO insurance that is available to us in Congress, so I have elected to go into what’s called a high deductible health plan with a $10,000 deductible. I actually had one several years ago when I was in private practice. I liked it.

I liked the fact that I was the one who paid the doctors and the hospitals, I got to use. I didn’t have to go to 1–800–California to get an X-ray preapproved. I wrote the check and I controlled the money, and I made the decision about who I saw and when. So I have gone back to that type of policy, and I will tell you I am very satisfied.

We have improved from the old medical savings account in 1986 to the Health Savings Account improvements that started in 2003 and continue to this day. Preventive care is now included in those high deductible health plan because the insurance company has an interest in making sure if you have a problem that it is diagnosed early, while it is less expensive to treat, and I think ultimately that’s the best.

I have chosen a plan that does not have prescription drug coverage because after we passed the prescription drug benefit in Medicare in 2003, one of the unintended consequences was we changed the prescription drug regulations. Yes, it’s my money that I am spending for the pharmacy, and you can actually get the patient involved, put the power back in the hands of the patient. Let the patient and the doctor make those decisions.

Don’t make them buy the insurance at 1–800–California, but don’t make them buy across the street at Health and Human Services. Let the patient and the doctor make those decisions. Every doctor has had the unpleasant experience of having called a referral number and the patient denied a test or a procedure or a surgery, and then you have got to go to bat for them and prove all of these things. It is an enormous nuisance, and I hated it every time it happened.

On the other hand, in the Medicare and Medicaid system, they go ahead and cover that, but maybe 3 or months from now, maybe a year from now, they call you back and say, you know, we don’t think that hospitalization was actually necessary, and we are going to go ahead and take the test. And before the next round of payments that we give you for your next round of Medicare and Medicaid patients.
That is beyond frustrating because at that point you may not have at your immediate disposal the documentation that you at least would have had with a preapproval process. Neither is a good occurrence in a doctor’s office. We need to do some sort of common-sense. But, as much as I hated the preapproval process, I see now, dealing with these large, large Medicare and Medicaid outlays, why it is necessary sometimes to assess medical necessity and why it is necessary sometimes to seek that preapproval, perhaps in our Medicare system.

If we really were serious about bending the cost curve, instead of just cutting doctors’ payments—and that’s what we do, we say, well, we will pay 20 percent less this year than we did last year—what’s the practical effect of that? Well, the doctors’ costs are fixed. He is not paying less for electricity to light his office this year than he was last year. His office help certainly didn’t get 20 percent less last year and say, hey, you know what, we can all take a pay cut because we love working for you.

That doesn’t happen. His costs go up every year. The reimbursement rate goes down because Congress says, hey, we are spending too much money. What is the practical effect of that? The practical effect of that is, you know, I was able to pay my bills and take something home last year seeing 18 patients a day. But you know what, this year, I am seeing 25 patients a day. And maybe if I can squeeze an extra procedure or two out, maybe I should do that because I have got to make up that difference somewhere.

So we have gone about this the wrong way. We are ratcheting down costs at the provider, and yet the doctor, he or she is the one who picks up the pen and writes the prescription, orders the hospitalization. The most expensive item in the doctor’s office is their ballpoint pen. Why? Because the doctor is the one making the decisions about that medical care.

Wouldn’t a different way to look at this might be to say, Doctor, we are not going to cut your pay this year. We are, in fact, going to pay you a little bit more. We hope you will see fewer patients and maybe take a little bit more care and a little bit more preventive medicine and education with those patients along the way. It would be a phenomenal thing to look at but we never try. We just cut the doctors, pay and said, whew, we got through it this year, the doctors are all mad but maybe they won’t remember come November, and we will cut them again at the end of the year.

It is important to understand. I think, that Speaker PELOSI, HARRY REID, President Obama, their health proposals would not make health insurance significantly cheaper for America’s families. Under the bill passed by the House in November, H.R. 3962, a family of three making just under $55,000 a year and buying now a plan in this new exchange that’s going to be set up and created by the bill, they would have to personally contribute after a tax credit about $5,500 a year in premiums. Additionally, this family would also pay $4,000 of out-of-pocket costs exclusive of the premium—copays and drugs that weren’t covered—so this family would have to personally contribute for a family of three that earns $55,000 a year in the Health Insurance Exchange.

I think it’s important for people to understand that when we pass these bills and it’s all settled and done, it doesn’t mean free insurance. It doesn’t mean free health care. It means, yes, you have got a government option here for buying insurance, but it’s still going to cost something. It is still will sometimes bring up to them in that family’s budget every year, and we are misleading people by telling them that, hey, we need to pass this bill because too many people don’t have health care.

True enough, the person who has no income and no job will now have access to Medicaid, which they may not have had before, but the average person earning a reasonable salary is still going to find that the costs, the expense they paid for health insurance, is going to be significant. Here is the rub: If we pass this bill, this won’t be an optional expense in their budget. They will be required to buy this, and the enforcer is going to be the Internal Revenue Service.

Now, Mr. THOMPSON, you brought up the online purchase of insurance for automobiles that has the cute little lizards and cave men on the logos. People don’t like this, well, why, why, why not have a mandate. After all, there is a mandate to buy car insurance in your State, so, what would be the matter with having a health insurance mandate?

Here is the rub. In my State, this is a State decision that in the State of Texas, people have to carry insurance if they are going to exercise the privilege of driving on the roads of the State of Texas. Health insurance is a different animal, and for the Federal Government to require, not a State government, but the Federal Government to require the purchase of health insurance is taking us in the direction of losing liberty that none of us have really ever encountered before. It is a new concept.

So if a State wishes to exercise a mandate, which they have done in Massachusetts, then that’s a State decision, and they either be supported or rejected by the voters in that State, but for the Federal Government to create for the first time a mandate, a requirement that a person purchase a product just for the privilege of living in this country, again, we are going down the road of loss of freedom that, again, I don’t think people really want to go there.

Now, you will also hear, and it’s so strange to hear the comparison of we have got to have a mandate as you do with automobile insurance, and you know what, you can buy that consumable insurance online. What if, instead of waiting for a mandate to happen, right, we would let the health insurance be available online, let the plan finders be available online and, if people think it’s necessary to have a mandate, let that be a State decision. Let the people of the State declare the change is—right now you have, and I don’t know the precise number, 30 or 34 States whose attorney generals are drawing up legislation to prevent their States from or prevent their citizens and their health care being required to follow an illegal Federal mandate.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania being one of those, absolutely.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Well, you have touched on so many very important issues during that time, during the course of this hour. I certainly want to come back to—you know, I mean, I have known, when I was speaking, I mean, the patients were not a part of the treatment team, they were, you know, everyone kind of focused their energies on the patient, the individual, the consumer, but they weren’t included in health care decisions. So much has changed in at least three decades.

Today, I don’t know of any health care professionals that don’t consider the patient themselves a very important part of the treatment team, and it’s so important that individuals take that, exercise that self-responsibility to be informed and to make decisions and to take control of their health care, extremely important. And, you are saying, that is the HIPAA law from the 1990s.

And the patients are saying, you know what? Why don’t I retire now while I
We established medical savings accounts. We provided a prescription drug benefit in Medicare. For better or for worse, we passed the HIPAA law in 1996. But there was a lot of work that went on in health care.

Health care is an evolutionary process. Medicine is an evolutionary process because the knowledge base changes. The science changes over time. It is not a static event like law, or physics perhaps. But medicine is constantly evolving. In fact, many times we say to lawmakers to refer to it as both an art and a science.

Well, what do the people think about doing this all at once or perhaps taking off some smaller pieces that might be actually doable? Americans agree with Republicans and want a fresh start on health care reform. A CNN poll—now, CNN is not always friendly to conservative principles—in a CNN poll, 73 percent of Americans say lawmakers should work on an entirely new bill or stop working on health care altogether. That was on January 24, 2010. Another poll, 79 percent of independents want Congress to start work on a new bill or stop all work, again from the same time frame.

So maybe it is reasonable that we start over with these small, incremental changes and solve some of the problems that bedevil Americans right now, but not turn the entire system on its head in order to help that smaller percentage that is having difficulty right now.

Starting over does not mean that we have no bill to pass. It doesn’t mean that we start into another year-long debate. As I began this hour, I outlined to you, Mr. Speaker, several bills that are already out there, already written, could be called up, could go to committee, could be worked on, marked up, amended, and come to this House to be voted on up or down. We could pass a bill on preexisting conditions before we go home for recess. It would really be that simple. Instead, what we may get is the Senate bill being passed by the House of Representatives—under great duress for some Members of the House of Representatives—and then when that bill is passed by the House, it goes down to the President for his signature, and then good luck undoing all of the problems that are contained within that bill. It would be far better, since no help is coming for worse, we passed the HIPAA law in 1996. But there was a lot of work that went on in health care.

The gentlewoman from Texas may assume. Mr. BURGESS. Reclaiming my time, let me just run through a little bit.

We heard right at the end of the 6-hour discussion down at Blair House today, the President and I believe the Speaker of the House said that the time for incrementalism has passed. I felt like I had stepped back in time. I heard that very same argument in 1993 and 1994 when the then-Clinton health care plan was before the House of Representatives.

I will forget the day that Mike Synar, a Representative from Oklahoma, a Member of this House of Representatives, was down in Dallas. He was talking to a group of us who were American Medical Association members, and he was going to talk to us about this bill. Many people had questions at the time—believe it or not. I was so shy I was scared to say anything—but toward the end, someone asked Mr. Synar, wouldn’t it be better to tackle some of these problems on an individual basis and not try to do all of this all at once because it did appear to be frightening people. And Mr. Synar made a very emphatic statement that the time for incrementalism is over, we must have this bill and we must have it this year. She is familiar. That was over 15 years ago.

Of course they didn’t get the bill passed, life went on, the health care system in this country improved. We developed the State Children’s Health Insurance Program under a Republican President. We established medical savings accounts. We then, several years later, improved them with health savings accounts. Just some statistics to share with you; before the reform, one in seven obetricians no longer delivered babies, 49 percent of counties didn’t have an OB/GYN, 75 percent of neurosurgeons would no longer operate on children. Since passing that reform in Texas, it dramatically changed things. We had, in the 2 years before the reform passed, 99 Texas counties—Texas has 254 counties, and 99 counties lost at least one high-risk specialist. With the passage of what was then called Proposition 12, which was a constitutional amendment to provide caps on noneconomic damages and lawsuits, 125 counties added at least one high-risk specialist, including the counties I represent, Denton, Tarrant and Cooke Counties. And you can see of course there are some areas that are still needing to add specialists.

One of the remarkable things about the passage of this law is the number of counties that did not have an obetrician previously but now do, and the number of counties that have an emergency room doctor but now do. Twenty-six counties that previously had no emergency room doctor, 10 that had no obstetrician, and seven that had no orthopedic surgeon, now at least have at least one of those specialists. Charity care rendered by Texas hospitals has increased 24 percent, nearly $600 million since the passage of this legislation. And Texas physicians have saved well over $500 million in liability insurance premiums.

Now, people will argue that passing tort reform does not immediately result in lower cost. Defensive medicine is learned behavior. Defensive medicine is oftentimes learned over a lifetime of practicing medicine. And it does take a while to begin to walk back from that. Anyone who got all the way to the journey of a thousand miles starts with the first step, and Texas has taken that first step. In fact, in Texas, one of our bigger problems now is licensing all of the doctors who want to move to the State. The State Board of Medical Examiners cannot keep up with the demand. It is a good problem to have because we had many counties that were underserved. And now, with the passage of this legislation at the State level, almost 100 percent of Texans live within 20 miles of a physician. That is a remarkable change from even just a decade ago.

One of the last things I want to bring up tonight before we leave, we’ve talked a lot about cost, and during the course of the discussion down at the Blair House the debate on cost was lengthy and sometimes it became contentious, but just a few points that Representative PAUL RYAN from Wisconsin made today. He pointed out correctly that Medicare has an unfunded liability of $38 trillion over the next 75 years. There is a pit of the problems that we were encountering in the earlier part of this decade.
While Federal Medicaid spending grows at 23 percent this year, the program continues to suffocate State budgets. And this bill does not control costs. Mr. BIDEN talked about if we don’t bend the cost curve, we’re in trouble. I will submit that we are in trouble. We have bent the cost curve, but we are bending it in the wrong direction.

PROGRESSIVE CAUCUS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. ELLISON) is recognized for 60 minutes as the desigee of the majority leader.

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Speaker, I am here representing the Congressional Progressive Caucus tonight, the Congressional Progressive Caucus, a body of Members of Congress dedicated to the very simple idea that we all do better when we all do better. The Progressive Caucus, a caucus made up of Members of Congress—men, women, whites, blacks, Latinos, Asians, people of various different backgrounds throughout the whole country—all unified under the same idea that every body counts and everybody matters; that there is no one who doesn’t deserve civil rights; that everybody deserves civil rights; that men and women should enjoy the same rights; that women should have a right to choose; that there is no one who is outside the pale of our beloved community; and that we stand together on economic justice, environmental justice, stand together on the idea of health care for all, stand together on the idea that Wall Street bankers and the well-to-do should have everything going their way. In fact, we think that the working men and women of America should have something going our way. In fact, we’re the ones who do all the work around here and we’re the ones who should see America operating on behalf of and for the American people.

This is what the Progressive Caucus is all about. The Progressive Caucus is all about saying that consumer justice is important, health care reform is all about saying that consumer justice is all about. The Progressive Caucus is about. This is the Progressive Caucus, and I am talking about health care and the economy today.

I also want to say, as we talk about health care and the economy from the perspective of the Progressive Caucus, that is a Progressive standpoint, and I am going to be talking about health care right now. Let me start off the conversation about health care by saying that today, not only was the health care summit on and not only was the same old debate laid out—Democrats, Progressives wanting health care reform and Republicans wanting to speak for the folks in the party opposite are not so big on reform and want to just keep the status quo.

The fact is that we have had a national dialogue, focusing on what it is like to live without health care and facing the world with your children and your family without any health care coverage, facing bankruptcy as health care expenses skyrocket and you are unable to meet that reality, facing a situation where you have to put your medical expenses on a credit card, you know, which may have gone up to 28 or 30 percent. These are the kinds of things that concern us.

I want to commend the President for convening this dialogue today, for having this discussion. I do wish, however, that there had been a member of the Progressive Caucus in an official capacity there. It is true there were people from the caucus there, but our leadership is RAÚL GRIJALIVA and LYNN WOOLLSEY, and I believe they should have been there. There were other people there who were members of the Progressive Caucus but none who were members of the Progressive Caucus. I’m not happy about that, but you know what? Things are seldom perfect in life. I would have wished that we would have had it that way, but we didn’t.

A few things were clear about the health care summit today, which is that the ideology still rules the day for our friends in the party opposite that Americans continue to face health care nightmares on a daily basis and that the urgency of change is as powerful as ever. We have got to move forward. There is no way that we as a Congress can engage the public imagination around health care for a whole year and then come up with nothing. We need to have a health care bill.

This is the Progressive Caucus, and I am talking about health care and the economy today.

I also want to say, as we talk about health care and the economy from the perspective of the Progressive Caucus, that is a Progressive standpoint, and I am going to be talking about health care right now. Let me start off the conversation about health care by saying that today, not only was the health care summit on and not only was the same old debate laid out—Democrats, Progressives wanting health care reform and Republicans wanting to speak for the folks in the party opposite are not so big on reform and want to just keep the status quo.

The House also demonstrated and signaled its urgent desire to see health care reform when we took up the Health Insurance Industry Fair Competition Act just this week. This bill stripped away a protection that was granted to insurance companies, and it requires them to now compete. They got their exemption from antitrust laws taken away. It’s not enacted into law, but it was passed in the House, on the House floor, just this week. The idea is that health care companies don’t need to be exempted from antitrust laws. They need to have to face those laws because we need competition when businesses compete, consumers benefit. Simple as that. When businesses compete, consumers benefit, but for far too long, the health care insurance industry has played by a different set of rules.

Since 1945, the McCarran-Ferguson Act—you may have heard of it—has exempted businesses of insurance from Federal antitrust laws. That is not right, so we did something about it this week at last, on the House side, hoping that the body down the hall will do something similar. This bill that we passed off the House floor amends the McCarran-Ferguson Act by repealing the blanket antitrust exemption afforded to health insurance companies. This is something the American people want. Most people I talked to didn’t understand why they had an antitrust exemption in the first place. Under the bill, health insurers will no longer be shielded from being held accountable for price-fixing, for dividing up territories among themselves, for sabotaging their competitors in order to gain monopoly power, and for other anticompetitive practices. If they do it and if we can get it passed into law, then they are going to be held accountable; they are going to be taken to court. That’s what we need.

Removing this antitrust exemption is key, and it is supported by law enforcement officials, by the American Association of Attorneys General, the National Association of Attorneys General. The National Association of Attorneys General has consistently opposed legislation that weakens antitrust standards for specific industries because there is no evidence that such exemptions promote competition or serve the public interest. They do not promote the public interest. They undermine the public interest.

So I just wanted to tell everybody that this piece of legislation passed off the House floor, with greater change as we are driving every day a little closer to real health care reform. The Health Insurance Industry Fair by dealing with health care, but we’ve really got to get a good health care bill. If we are going to use reconciliation because we can’t get any Republican cooperation, why don’t we get the best bill we can get? Why do we get a bill that is less than we could get? Incrementalism. In several states, but if we don’t have to bother about getting 60 Senators in order to get around the filibuster rules, why don’t we just go with a good bill which would really help the American people—one that would lower costs, that would increase affordability, and that would have an option for people? It’s a good idea.

The Democratic health care reform plan, which passed through the House and included a public option, is a bill that makes a lot of sense. It covers pre-existing conditions. It stops the practice of recision—denying you health care when you need it most. It stops the bankruptcy of our businesses and of our families when they get sick.

As for the idea in particular, part of the plan that passed through the House offers and introduces competition; it lowers costs for consumers—taxpayers—and it brings a higher quality of health care to millions of uninsured Americans who want to see the public option in any final product, and I think it is something that people should let their government know that they want.

Currently, in 34 States, 75 percent of the insurance is controlled by five or fewer companies. Many of the areas of the company are dominated by just one or two private organizations. A public option would offer a choice to people living in these highly concentrated markets. This means that the addition of a public option would provide a quality and affordable choice. The public option offers competition. Again, in 34 States, 75 percent of the insurance market is controlled by five or fewer companies. In Alabama, almost 90 percent of the market is controlled by just one company. That’s not fair.

In addition, the public option would provide competition for private insurance companies to keep them honest. It would be completely up to individuals to decide whether they want to access the public option. You don’t have to use the public option. In fact, you could go to the private market if you felt there were a better deal there, but the public option would be there so that concentrated markets could not simply force you to buy their products.

If the Congress of the United States is going to mandate that Americans get health care insurance, we should at least say that there will be a public option so that we don’t force you into the arms of a monopolistic, highly concentrated market which would take advantage of you because of its market advantages.

Americans should be free to seek health care without having to fear that they could not afford it or that they would incur tens of thousands of dollars in debt. A public option offers us an advantage on cost. We know that existing public options, like Medicare and Medicaid, consistently have lower administrative costs than their private insurance counterparts. Of course they do, because the Commonwealth Fund, the net administrative costs for Medicare and Medicaid are 5 and 8 percent, respectively. If you look at the top five private health insurance companies, their administrative costs are 17 percent. While the insurance market is controlled by fewer and fewer insurance companies in more and more States, there is little incentive to lower costs. Why should they? They’re not in competition. A public option that is part of a single payer health care system is a very, very important development. I am so proud of the over 60 Members of Congress who signed onto John Conyers’ bill for single-payer health care, but we compromised when we passed it. Okay, We’re not going to get that. The single-payer was not really given a fair chance in the House of Representatives, in my opinion. Be that as it is, we said, Okay. We will compromise and do the public option.

Now the public option has been pushed to the side. In as early as August of 2009, we were told the public option is off the table. The off the table was what we were told. Well, the public option is such a good idea, such a powerful concept, that it keeps putting itself back on the table. So, when it looked like the public option was off the table again this winter—this winter, we thought, Okay, The public option is off the table again. Then we see a movement first, it was a move from the Senate—Senator BENNET, Senator GILLIBRAND, Senator BROWN. These Senators came together. They wrote a letter to HARRY REID, and they said, We want to vote on the public option, and we’re going to sign the letter to put it on the table again. Then it was six. It got the way up to 24. Then there are a number of Senators who said they don’t want to sign a letter, which is their choice, but they would vote for it if it comes before them.

Of course, we saw two dynamic fresh-man Members of the Congress—CHELLIE Pingree and JARED POLIS—two very dynamic, young Congress people who authored a letter that 120 of us signed, and now both the Houses have these movements moving forward. We didn’t see the public option in the President’s proposal, but both Houses of Congress are seeing these movements towards it. If we put that bill on the President’s table with a public option in it, he will sign it. He said he favored the idea. Here is his chance to prove it. [2145]} dollars CEO salaries and bonuses equate to high costs for America's working families, and a lack of competition provides no incentive to change their practices, but a public option will make them compete and will provide access to lower costs for people through competition. Higher quality. Competition always improves quality. Therefore, the public option will help consumers get better coverage for the same amount of money as their private insurers. Now, there are myths about the public option, and I think people ought to know that. The idea of a public option being a government takeover or even a government-run program is not really the truth. The idea that a mandated health insurance is a new tax on people is also not true. What a public option really is that the government would help cover the high cost of insurance for Americans while bringing those costs down through competition. Without health insurance reform, however, we can face and the problems that exist today to only get worse.

Now, the public option is not a take-over of health care. That's ridiculous. It's not true. It would simply be one option among many offered by the public, not the administration of the government, but so what. So is Medicaid, Medicare, the VA, and TRICARE. These are all government health care programs that people really, really like. You know, as a matter of fact, I had a hearing last year back in 1965 when we passed it, only 22 Republicans voted for it, and now they act like they're the defenders of the program, which they're not. But the fact is nobody's messing with Medicare nowadays. Why? Because it's a popular program. Even though only 22 Republicans voted for it in 1965 when it first passed, it is now the way we live, and nobody is going to allow it to be taken away.

In 10 years the out-of-pocket costs that are paid by individuals and families across America would increase by more than 35 percent and as many as 63.7 million Americans will be uninsured. That's intolerable in this great country. This means higher costs to taxpayers to cover hospital expenses of the uninsured. Employers will also have to pay health insurance premiums at least 60 percent higher than premiums today.

There are supporters for the public option in all areas of life, not just the House, not just the Senate, but also doctors are in support of the public option, and organizations behind them strongly support the public option too. These include the American Nurses Association, the American Cancer Society, the American Medical Association, and the AARP. Even hospitals such as the National Association of Children's Hospitals have supported the principles of health care change and the public option.

And let me just say when the American Medical Association that represents doctors say they're for the public option, that lets you know that people on the other side of the aisle saying things like, Oh, the Democratic Congress wants to get between you and your doctor, isn't true. It's just not the case. So you need to be aware of the myths that float around there.

As was said before, three courageous members of the Progressive Caucus went over to the White House today and offered the Congressional Progressive Caucus's perspective, and I was proud that they did that. The CPC, the Congressional Progressive Caucus, did not receive an invitation to the health care summit, but we showed up and we handed our ideas to the people who may have been invited, and we were happy to see that both Speaker Pelosi and Majority Leader Hoyer introduced the idea of the public option, and we thank them for that.

So let me just now move into another area before we wrap it up tonight, and that is the economy. Now, it's important, as we discuss the economy, to bear in mind that we've come quite a long way, quite a long way. In fact, when the Republicans were in office, they literally, not literally but figuratively, drove the country into the ground. They just ran the economy into the ground. The economy shrank 5.4 percent in the fourth quarter of 2008. Barack Obama was not the President then. It was under George Bush when the economy shrank 6.3 percent in the fourth quarter of 2008. The fact is that the economy lost 771,000 jobs in January 2009 alone. Remember, Barack Obama was not the President until January 20, This a Bush failure and, of course, a Republican failure.

Under the Republicans we erased $2.7 trillion in retirement savings. I will show you a board that I have. And it's important to remember that people trying to retire saw their retirement savings just shrink under the leadership of the Republicans. Very scary. Not very nice to the seniors. And more than tripling the debt in 8 years. Now, these folks shake their finger at us like we're big spenders. Look, they doubled the debt in 8 years. When President Clinton left office, we had a surplus. They took care of that because they cut taxes for the wealthiest Americans and never paid for them and then had a couple of wars they didn't pay for and that was the perfect storm for the worst recession since the Great Depression should be called the "Republican recession."

Now, just to show you a little bit more, I was talking about this idea of public debt a moment ago, and, of course, we all should be concerned about debt. As a progressive, I'm worried about debt because interest service on the debt can't be waived, can't be cut off. You've got to pay it when it's due. And that means that it cuts into the savings that we might be able to help people who I want to see helped. Like helping people who are in need of medical assistance, helping our schools, helping firefighters and police and teachers and public safety people. All these things get squeezed when you've got to pay all that high debt service.

But Republicans lack credibility on fiscal responsibility. It's not that they don't spend it. It's just they don't spend it on things that help your average citizen. They spend it on tax cuts for the very wealthy and wars.

So debt held by the public nearly doubled under the Bush administration. We can look here at the year 2000, $3.4 trillion. We see this red ink just about double and go all the way to $6.3 trillion in 2008 when the Democrats get the White House and the Congress.

The point is that Republicans lack credibility on fiscal responsibility. It's not that they don't spend. It's just that they don't spend it on things that help your average citizen. They spend it on tax cuts for the very wealthy and wars.

down. We’re just hitting it. And in January of 2009, you see Democrats are in control, and as we’re just adding to job losses here, it’s worse and worse and worse and worse, and then you see the slow but steady improvement.

Now, it’s not creating jobs, and this is a serious problem. But you can see that we’re going in the right direction. You can see that with Democrats in there, we’re doing better.

So the last month Bush was the President, about 751,000 jobs in a month. And the last month, and this doesn’t reflect the most recent data, we lost 22,000. Now, we still lost, and that’s bad. But the fact is we’re losing fewer and fewer and fewer and you can see that in a few months, we’ll be above the line and we’ll be adding jobs, which is something very, very important to point out.

Do you know what the toughest job in the circus is? Cleaning up after the elephants. So the Democrats are trying to fix the public can leadership in this country, and it’s not an easy thing to do. But you can see in a short period of time, we’re getting it all turned around.

Now, one of the things that helped turn things around is the Recovery Act. Now, you heard these folks say, oh, this is terrible, the Recovery Act is bad. You would think that the Recovery Act was something that wasn’t any good. But look here. This is something you should all be against it, even though it clearly put Americans back to work and stopped the bleeding of jobs. But that didn’t stop them from going out in ribbon cuttings and being there and just trying to show off and say, hey, look, give me some stimulus money. I didn’t vote for it, but I want to benefit from it. Isn’t that terrible?

Let me just read a little of this to you: “Amid mounting criticism, House Republicans said this week that it is not their fault because they were against the stimulus package, and later seek recovery from it for their districts.”

“After standing united in opposition to the President’s economic stimulus bill a little more than a year ago, many Republicans have touted the benefits of that measure back in their districts, according to a comprehensive list compiled by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.”

“Citing the stimulus and other measures, the DCCC claims that 91 House Republicans are talking out of both sides of their mouths.”

“In recent days former Senator Alan Simpson, Republican from Wyoming, and California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger have echoed the DCCC claims.”

“Like my dad, who’s a Republican, they’re honest Republicans, and Simpson and Schwarzenegger are telling the truth. "But key House Republicans argue that a vote against the stimulus bill should not prevent them from writing a letter on behalf of their constituents seeking grants available from the $787 billion measure. Some of them do say, however, that they should refrain from attending photo ops.” And it goes on.

What is the point? The point is they created a recession with their policies of tax cuts for the rich, wars that they didn’t pay for, tax cuts they didn’t pay for, no regulation of Wall Street, and just letting things run amok, not regulating predatory lending. Those are things the Democrats had been asking them to do it for years while we were in the minority. And then they create this situation where the economy tanks. Then when we put measures in place to bring the economy back and they vote against it, but then they run to take advantage of it. That is bad.

Now, the Recovery Act. The CBO, that is the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, estimates that in the third quarter of 2009, an additional 600,000 to 1.6 million people were employed in the United States. That is pretty good. In the third quarter of the calendar year 2009, an additional 600,000 to 1.6 million people were employed. That is pretty good. That is trying to dig us out of the hole.

The Congressional Budget Office projects that the Recovery Act will increase real GDP by 1.5 to 4.5 percent during the first half of 2010, and 1.2 to 3.8 percent during the second half. That is actually good as well.

Now, Mark Zandi, who actually was a consultant for Senator JOHN MCCAIN when he was running for President, who is pretty conservative, said, "I don’t think it is an accident that the economy has got out of recession and into recovery at the same time stimulus is providing its maximum economic impact." So even a conservative economist is telling them that the stimulus worked and is working. And I just wish they would agree that Democrats are better for the economy. I just wish the Republicans would agree with the unbiased evidence that Democrats are better for the economy.

Now, it is important, I mentioned retirement accounts earlier. Retirement Accounts Recovering Under the Obama Administration.

Now, where we see under the Bush administration the value of retirement accounts is going down, the value of retirement savings accounts. You see them, they are just getting down, down, down, down. They are just dropping. And then you see under the Obama administration, retirement accounts are up $1.8 trillion, as we see them climb from the first quarter of 2009 steadily back up. More evidence that Democrats are better with the economy, which is the thing that helps you put food on the table, a roof over your house, and maintaining money. Moving right through these boards here, and I just want to show the folks, the economy is swinging back to growth. Now, GDP is gross domestic product. That is the sum total of all the goods and services produced by the economy in a given period of time. You see that in the first quarter of 2008, we had negative GDP growth. It popped back up for a minute, but then it kept going down, down, down. This is all under Bush. And then you see GDP growth going back up. And these are the projected increases.

The fact is that the economy, GDP growth is increasing. That means real goods and services produced. That means people working. That means creating a recession with their policies of tax cuts for the rich, wars that they didn’t pay for, tax cuts they didn’t pay for, no regulation of Wall Street, and just letting things run amok, not regulating predatory lending. That means people providing services. And it means food on the table. It means soup in the pot. That is what it means. Or chicken, or whatever you like.

So let me just say, as I begin to wrap it up, the fact is that the economy is not back to health yet. It needs more things. I believe very strongly, and the Progressive Caucus agrees, that we need direct job creation from the government like the WPA, where we put unskilled people in public buildings, working in Head Starts, doing valuable work that needs to be done, and that these jobs could be paid and they wouldn’t be just special kinds of jobs, but they would just be jobs that people can do and hopefully keep that job.

If we can ignite the economy and keep the period of growth going, the economy is not out of the woods yet. We still have unemployment that is intolerably high, particularly in minority communities. This is intolerable. We have got to do something about it. There is no doubt about that. But we are going in the right direction. And we need to improve to keep the drive alive. Keep the drive alive, not turn back.

I just want to say to folks out across America, the fact is that it takes more than just a couple of years to get things straightened out after so many years of difficulty. We need new Americans, communities of color, working people, labor, everybody to keep their level of enthusiasm up about what the prospects for America are and not get discouraged just because things didn’t pop back into shape as soon as George Bush handed over the mantle of the presidency. It is going to take a little bit of time, but things are clearly going in the right direction.

One year in, the evidence is clear, and growing day by day, that the Recovery Act is working to cushion the worst of the greatest economic crisis since the Great Depression and lay a new foundation for economic growth. According to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, the Recovery Act is already responsible for as many as 2.4 million jobs. The analysis of the Council of Economic Advisers also found the Recovery Act is responsible for about 2 million jobs, a figure in line with independent forecasts in the economy. Even the conservative American Enterprise Institute is agreeing that the Recovery Act is helping create jobs, which no Republican voted for the stimulus package. It is very important to remember that.

We recently learned that our economy grew 5.7 percent in the fourth quarter, the largest gain in 6 years, and something many economists say is due to the Recovery Act. So again, negative GDP growth, meaning we were losing, the economy was shrinking when Bush was the President, and now it is growing. Very important for people to know that.

The Recovery Act, by the way, did cut taxes for 95 percent of working families. The Republicans love their tax cuts, but not for the regular working people, only for the very well-to-do. But the Recovery Act did cut taxes for about 95 percent of American families, the Health Work Pay Act tax credit. And that is about $37 billion in tax relief for about 110 million working families in 2009.

The fact is loans were made to over 42,000 small businesses through the Recovery Act, providing them with nearly $20 billion in needed capital. The Recovery Act funded over 12,500 transportation construction projects nationwide. When 40 percent of all construction workers are on the bench, that work is very, very, very welcome. These projects range from highway construction to airport improvements, of which more than 8,500 already are underway. It funded 51 Superfund sites from the national priority list. Of those sites, 34 have already had on-site construction. The Recovery Act, which I was proud to vote for, has done a lot of good for America.

So as we wrap it up today, it is important just to bear in mind that health care reform is a key component and a vital component of restoring our country to economic health. We need health care reform.

Remember, the Republicans had the House, the Senate, and the White House between 2000 and 2006, and they didn’t do anything to improve the health care situation for Americans.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ELLISON. The gentleman will have an hour to say whatever he wants. Mr. KING of Iowa. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman in my hour as well.

Mr. ELLISON. I can’t stay here all night.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Will the gentleman yield to correct a fact?

Mr. ELLISON. No, I am not yielding. You’re going to say whatever you want later, so let me just keep going. From 2000 to 2006, the Republicans had the White House—check the facts, Mr. Speaker—they had the Senate, and they had the House of Representatives, and they didn’t do anything to help health care.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ELLISON. I have already answered that question. I will not yield.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRIES

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ELLISON. I don’t have to yield, Mr. Speaker. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Minnesota may proceed.

Mr. KING of Iowa. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Is it common and normal for a Member to yield to another Member on a respectful request? The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is entirely at the discretion of the gentleman who controls time whether or not he chooses to yield.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. KING of Iowa. When a gentleman states an erroneous fact into the Record, is a Member’s alternative to move to take down the words rather than ask for a yield to correct the record? The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair does not respond to hypothetical questions. Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I will concede this moment for now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman have a further parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker. I would have a point of order if we didn’t have Members in bed right now, so I will concede this point right now and yield back.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Minnesota may proceed.

Mr. ELLISON. Let me just say for the third time, from 2000 to 2006, the Republicans had the presidency, they had the House of Representatives and the Senate, and they didn’t do anything to help Americans improve the health care situation.

They didn’t do a thing. They allowed premiums to increase. They allowed co-pays to increase. They allowed people to be denied for preexisting conditions. They allowed misery to accumulate around the health care crisis in America. They allowed the number of uninsured to increase, and they allowed a very difficult, awful situation. So now we’ve got upwards of 45 million people who don’t have health care, and while the Republicans could have done something about it, they did not do anything about it.

Now, in a few minutes, Mr. Speaker, I am going to yield and in a few minutes I am sure my friend from Iowa is going to have plenty to say. But I would like, Mr. Speaker, that anyone listening to the sound of my voice examine the facts I just laid out because they are true.

The Republicans could have done something to help Americans address their health care crisis between 2000 and 2006, and they did not do anything. And since the Democrats regained the Congress, we passed SCHIP, State Children’s Health Insurance Program, which President Bush vetoed, and we’re trying to fix one mess they made with prescription drugs by filling the doughnut hole. But all that program was a boon to large pharmaceutical companies, and we’re trying to fix that large debacle now.

The fact is is that the Republican Caucus could have helped the American people and they declined the invitation to do so. And now while America has been embroiled in a conversation about health care reform for a year, they have come up with nothing constructive to say. All they want to do is deprive Americans of their right to civil redress under the law when doctors sometimes make mistakes. They call it tort reform. But what it really is is denying consumers the right to redress grievances, which is an American thing to do to try to fix these problems.

Now, we’re not saying that people who abuse the legal system shouldn’t have accountability. We are saying do not shut the doors when Americans have legitimate complaints, which is what I think the Republican Caucus is in favor of.

The fact is, Mr. Speaker, that this hour, called the Progressive Caucus Hour, is all about talking about Progressive measures that have made America great. And I would offer you that, Mr. Speaker, every single thing that has made America the wonderful, beautiful, great country that it is has been a progressive proposal.

Breaking away from England was progressive. Throwing off a dictator was progressive. Freeing people from slavery was a progressive thing to do. Allowing unions to organize was a progressive step forward. Civil rights was progressive. Women’s rights was progressive. Getting rid of the poll tax was progressive. And it has been conservatives every step of the way trying to block these things.

America is a progressive country. America believes that everybody does better when everybody does better. America believes deep in its heart in religious tolerance. We believe in economic justice. We believe in equality for all people. But conservatives, trying to hold this country back and maintain the status quo, have been in the way all along.

So tonight, Mr. Speaker, may I yield back the microphone knowing full well that those following me will have plenty to add.

But with that, I will yield back.
PROGRESSIVES OR SOCIALISTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Himes). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. King) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. King of Iowa. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. My colleagues who have been recognized here on the floor of the House of Representatives. Frankly, it's astonishing to me that a fellow Member of Congress has so little confidence in things that he says are facts that he refuses to deal with the actual facts that he knew were before him.

To make the statement that Republicans did nothing on health care during those years of 2000 to 2006 is flat-out false, Mr. Speaker. It's a fact that we moved on health care. We moved some significant policy. And in particular, we passed the repair to the abuse of lawsuits, which today it was published by the Government Reform Committee—actually, was published 2 days ago. And I noted yesterday that there was an abuse of lawsuit abuse and health care in America is $210 billion. That's over $2 trillion for the course of a bill, and there isn't one dime that would be taken out of the pockets of that $2 trillion—a lot of which is still the legal fees that are offered by the President or the Democrats, and certainly not the gentleman from Minnesota.

And for him to stand here on the floor of the House of Representatives and very emphatically deny the very fact that is a fact of record and then refuse to politely allow for a correction of that record so you, Mr. Speaker and, by extension, the American people have an opportunity to be honestly and truthfully informed is an affront to the dignity of the dialogue on the floor of the House. So that's just a start on my answers. And I didn't come here to provide a rebuttal for the previous hour.

But the American people need to know that there is a Progressive Caucus here and it's 78 members strong, the last time I counted the names on the list on the Web site. The Web site was put up on a poster over here, and they're pretty proud of the policy that they have. You can go on that Web site and read and learn that. One of them is a Senator; the others are House Members. They are the most liberal Members of the House.

And when you look at the history of the Progressives, you will recognize that that Web site, that now with Mr. Grijalva's name in the Web site, was the Web site managed by the Socialists. The Democratic Socialists of America managed the Web site for the Progressives. They put it up, they took care of it. They maintained it. They put the information on. They wrote some of the language that went on there—a lot of it for all I know—and carried their philosophy from the Democratic Socialists—that is the Socialists—from the floor over to the Progressives' Web site. And when that linkage was uncovered and the pressure came up, then the Progressives decided, well, we'll manage our own Web site because we really don't want to have to put up with the criticism of our brethren, the Socialists. It's completely the brethren.

When you read the Socialists' Web site, it starts apparently on the Democratic Socialist Web site,进步ives.org. Mr. Speaker. It says clearly on there, it starts out with, We are not Communists. I always had a little trouble trusting somebody starting out their dialogue with, well, I'm not a Communist. Because if you know there behind that there's a "but."

Democratic Socialists, the brethren of the Progressives, linked together with their Web sites until a few years ago to declare that they are not Communists but they believe in a lot of the same things that the Communists believe in.

But the difference, according to the Socialist Web site linked to the Progressives' Web site, proudly by the Socialists themselves, and I quote proudly by the Progressives—they say, We are not Communists. But the difference is the Communists want to nationalize everything. Communists want to have the State own all property and own all of the resources. Everything exists for the State. And the Communists want to do central planning to manage the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker, let along labor.

The Communists are the ones that want the national health care act that's completely a single-payer plan paid for by the government. Nobody has to pay for anything. And it would require that everyone working within health care in America would be a salaried employee.

Oh, let me see. Where would I come up with that? Well, not necessarily on the Democratic Socialist Web site. Not necessarily on—let me see—the CPSA Web site. I read that in a bill that was introduced by some of the Progressives here in this Congress in 1981. They believe and still believe in single payer.

They think that health care should be free, that it's a right, not a privilege—not just your own health care, but everybody's own private health insurance policy; that the government ought to run all health care; that they would set up boards as central planning management boards that would tell everything how to operate.

But no one could be anything except a salaried or an hourly employee. You couldn't do fee-for-service. So if you're a super excellent brain surgeon, you get paid whatever they decide. You don't get paid for the number or the quality of the brain surgery that you perform.

But I am back to Democratic Socialists of America. What are they? Well, they're not Communists. That's what they say. And the difference is they don't want to nationalize everything. The Socialists, the slash Progressives, they don't want to nationalize the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker—not right away, anyway.

But when you read their Web site, it says, we want to nationalize the major corporations in America. I take that to mean the Fortune 500 companies and probably some more, and they write that they don't have to do it all right away. Once, they can do it incrementally. That want to nationalize the energy business so they can control the energy in America, and they want to nationalize the utilities in America so they can control the energy in America.

This could happen incrementally, they don't have to do it all at once. Socialist Web site. They say we don't elect candidates on our banner. We don't send candidates and get their names on the ballot under the Socialist ballot. We advance these candidates as Progressives because Progressives doesn't have quite the harsh connotation of the hardcore left that Socialist has.

So they hide under the Progressive banner and they advance the Socialist agenda, and it's on both of their Web sites. I wondered when I heard MAXINE WATERS from California a few years ago say, I think we should nationalize the oil refining business. I wonder where did that come from. MAURICE HINCHLEY made a remark also about the nationalizing of the energy industry.

Where did that come from? How does anyone have the chutzpah to make such a statement as a Member of Congress that they want to start taking over the private sector. This is before our economy started in this downward spiral. So I heard these words that came from them, and I am reading off the Web site, Democratic Socialist Web site, and the echo comes back to be the same.

I look over at the Progressives, of which each of those Members I mentioned are listed on the Progressives Web site, and it's the same agenda. Then we have a candidate for President called Barack Obama, and he has this artful way of using ambiguities so that the left hears him say something that they want him to say, and the right doesn't hear the same thing. They might actually even hear what they want him to say.

But where does the President govern? He is elected on hope and change. What was this argument that came from the President when he heard the criticism you are not working in a bipartisan way? You need to reach out to the Republicans, this closing the door and locking Republicans out, and it happened. It’s been happening here since September.

They met today to talk for the first time about the health care act in a meaningful way since last September, when Democrats shut Republicans out of their health care negotiating rooms. And, yes, they had guards outside the doors, they were there to provide security for the leadership. But think of the image, the doors go closed behind the Democrat leaders and they sit in there in the formerly smoke-filled rooms and they negotiate what they want to do to America without any eyes or ears of the press or anybody from the opposing party or any real conscience or conservatism inside the room.

So they cook up their deal. They cooked it up upstairs—well, let me say they cooked it up in the Speaker’s office, and they cooked it up in HARRY REID’s office. They ran the bills in the House and in the Senate. On November 7, here on a Saturday, the House of Representatives by the barest of margins passed a national health care act bill that takes away the lives of American people.

Then it went over to the Senate, where even the 60 votes that they had to have in the Senate with the liberals they had over there, they couldn’t get the votes to pass the House version, so they put together a Senate version and by the barest of margins, with the, let me say the most repulsive of sweet-hearted deals, put together barely the 60 votes they needed to break the filibuster and have it be successful on a cloture vote.

On Christmas Eve, Mr. Speaker, HARRY REID’s Scrooge gift to the American people was the Senate version of socialized medicine, their national health care act, complete with funding for abortion and illegals, out of the Senate. Merry Christmas, American people. HARRY REID and the 60 votes they had in the Senate at the time delivered a Christmas present to the American people. They cooked it up in HARRY REID’s Scrooge gift to the cloture vote.

That is what happens when our family gets together, and it takes three or four family reunions to get us all completely processed in their right, faithful way over Christmas vacation, but we will meet three or four times, and we will have other little individual meetings with friends and neighbors and do those things, there is a lot of dialogue going on between Christmas and New Year’s. In my neighborhood we talk about probably four things, but three things in particular. We talk about the weather, and we talk about religion, and we talk about the markets, and we talk about politics. That’s four, and politics moved up on the list.

It actually sat there, number one, and it was at the dinner table, and it is the most present of it was all across America. People were talking about what was happening to our country. While that was going on, SCOTT BROWN was campaigning intensively in Massachusetts. You had people waking up in Massachusetts. The polling that showed on that day, the 23rd of December, when the timing schedule for adjournment of the Senate and that final cloture vote was scheduled, on that day the poll I saw showed SCOTT down 20 points. That was another one that had him down 30 points.

But not a single pundit before Christmas predicted that SCOTT BROWN could be the next United States Senator from Massachusetts. That was 2 days before Christmas. No one predicted it before Christmas. It started to come out some days after Christmas, near, I think, the first of the year, if I remember correctly, when the first little hint that something might be going on in Massachusetts started to leak out to the rest of the world.

But I have every confidence that the faithful people in Massachusetts were sitting around their dinner tables and their Christmas trees and they were talking about the same things that we talk about, the weather, the religion and politics, probably not the markets the same way we do. As that position was coalescing in Massachusetts, some of the people were thinking, I have had enough. They thought we have our version of health care here, and it’s not our job or our business to impose another version of a government-run health care on everybody else in America.

I can tell you what happens when our family gets together, and it takes three or four family reunions to get us all completely processed in their right, faithful way over Christmas vacation, but we will meet three or four times, and we will have other little individual meetings with friends and neighbors and do those things, there is a lot of dialogue going on between Christmas and New Year’s. We talk about the weather, and we talk about religion, and we talk about the markets, and we talk about politics. That’s four, and politics moved up on the list. weighed in with just only the deafness of the leaders in this Congress, Mr. Speaker.

And so they went to work. They went to work in Massachusetts. They went out into the streets and put up signs and wrote letters and ran for Congress. As I went down through Massachusetts, I recall being in the Vietnamese section in Boston, and as I went down through that section—it’s really a small business section of Boston—a window had Scott Brown signs in the Vietnamese section of Boston, and certainly did many of the residential areas. There was a tremendous outpouring for Scott Brown.

As I went into the call centers, I had people come up to me and say, I’m a union member and my husband is a union member. We’ve always walked the streets for the Democrats, but this time we’re here to work for Scott Brown. We’ve had enough. The irresponsible overspending is at its core and the private business, a big part of this, and trying to push a national health care act down our throats like you give a pill to a horse is more than they could tolerate.

And so in that sea change from 21 percent down to 5 percent up—it actually was a 24, 25 percent turnaround that took place in an unpredicted way in Massachusetts—Scott Brown rose forward to a victory in Massachusetts and had a lead that was about the same for three weeks. I’m going to say in the polls that I saw the last 4 or 5 days at least in the race. So I don’t think that there was more than about 20 days for him to close the gap of 21 points. And he will know that a lot better than me, Mr. Speaker. But that message that came from the election of Scott Brown, that resounding noise out of Massachusetts—and there were a lot of people that went to Massachusetts to help. Tea party patriots went. Also people that went to Massachusetts to help. I went up to see what they could do because that’s where the fight was, that’s where people could preserve their liberty and they were committed to that cause. That election result came out, and it shifted the dynamics in the United States Senate, because Scott Brown promised to deliver the vote against cloture that would change the dynamics.

And so the President of the United States has not done very well in some of his endeavors—let me see. What did he do? He went to New Jersey and did several appearances in New Jersey, as I recall, to reelect John Corzine in New Jersey. Chris Christie won in New Jersey, Bob McDonnell won in Virginia. So President Obama went 0-for-1 in Virginia. He went 0-for-1 in New Jersey.

He went to Copenhagen twice, once to win the Olympics for Chicago and another time to see if he could seek some kind of a global green agreement on climate change. Now, they came out of Copenhagen with something they pointed to that said was a victory, but not much of anybody thought so. It is a mild little fig leaf of a victory.

So I’m going to describe it this way: President 0-for-1 in Virginia, 0-for-1 in New Jersey, and—completely a goose egg—0-for-1 in Massachusetts. And now the “Scott heard around the world” has echoed through this place. The White House, after that election, had to pull back. They had to stop and see if they could get a lay of the land and figure out what to do.

Senator Harkin said within a few days of that election that they had an agreement that they had negotiated with the House, and they had an agreement that would bring reconciliation through. It is a bit convoluted and I won’t explain it in detail here tonight, Mr. Speaker, but that was the first we heard that they were meeting behind closed doors to put together a reconciliation package. I know it had been rumored out there since September, but that was the first I recall of a legislator saying, Oh, yeah, we have that deal put together. That was Senator Tom Harkin from my State, my junior Senator, and he called it the conferees, the Senate bill and the House bill, and they could get the votes in the House behind closed doors. Once they decided they would go to the conference committee—and they would have their 72 hours as they thought should be in a bill, a Pelosi bill, and an Obama bill, it only turned out to be 12 pages or so of bullet points—all of this time and the White House can’t produce a bill, but they at least filed the bullet points of what they thought should be in a bill at 10 o’clock on Monday, so exactly 72 hours before the meeting was to convene and did convene at the Blair Hotel on today in this town. So they timed it to have their 72 hours as they promised. It just wasn’t a bill. The President didn’t present a bill, Mr. Speaker.

But they negotiated today and they have to examine it. So they called a meeting for today that was scheduled for 6 hours, started at 10 o’clock this morning and, interestingly, the time that that was rumored out there—that a lot of us thought was going to be a health care bill, a third bill, a Reid bill, a Pelosi bill, and an Obama bill, it only turned out to be 12 pages or so of bullet points—all of this time and the White House can’t produce a bill, but they at least filed the bullet points of what they thought should be in a bill at 10 o’clock on Monday, so exactly 72 hours before the meeting was to convene and did convene at the Blair Hotel on today in this town. So they timed it to have their 72 hours as they promised. It just wasn’t a bill. The President didn’t present a bill, Mr. Speaker.

We can, perhaps, get into some of those things a little bit, but I have several of these pieces of data here. This is the health care fact check. It doesn’t quite match my numbers, but it’s pretty close to what I have. As I watched this happen, as soon as the meeting opened up, it appeared to me that if a President would speak, the President would interrupt him. And then that individual might reclaim their time and try to speak again and the President... would interrupt him again. Then that individual would make a quick statement and yield the floor, in which case the President would speak, a Democrat would speak—generally uninterrupted—and then the President would take the time back and speak, then a Republican would speak and get interrupted again.

And so what is this? Give me the count on this, will you? I have them here, and I don’t think anybody else has에도 said them—I have not heard that they have. Six and a half hours of meeting, we have the President interrupting speakers 70 times in 6½ hours. Seventy interruptions. And out of those 70 interruptions, he was rude to the Democrats 20 times. He wasn’t always rude, actually. Sometimes it needed to be said also with Republicans. But you would think it would be equal or proportional. And you would think it would be respectful of people that had a policy and knew a lot of this policy. And presumably, according to the White House and the Democrats in leadership here and in the Senate, this would have been the first time they had heard Republican ideas. I am said we didn’t know any. Well, we had plenty and they knew it, but they repeated that we didn’t have any ideas.

So you would think they wouldn’t have interrupted. You would think, if they were actually telling the truth when they said Republicans didn’t have ideas, that they would have leaned forward in a very interested fashion and listened carefully to the proposals that at least we had like to the American people. It was the first time they had heard such things.

Well, in fact, they’d heard it all before, because we’d produced those bills all before. We’d introduced them all before. They were introduced, many of them as amendments in the markups of the bill, testimony, corresponded in the Ways and Means Committee and in the Energy and Commerce Committee. They were just all voted down on a party line vote with very few exceptions.

So the President interrupted Democrats 20 times. He interrupted Republicans 50 times. That’s 2½ times more. I have here that President Obama alone was 1 minute short of 2 hours on his own. It was a 6½-hour meeting. He claimed a third of the time in the meeting. The Democrats, including President Obama, burned not quite 4 hours. The Republicans altogether used up 1 hour and 50 minutes. So that’s at least 2–1. Actually, when you add it up, it comes to 3½—1 or so. My number have to actually come to actually 3.5–1 when I look at the time the Democrats spoke compared to Republicans speaking. It’s about—oh, it’s a number that originally was about 25 percent. It’s probably a little more than that, Mr. Speaker.

We have a number here that shows that 52 percent of the American people don’t think that they should go forward with a reconciliation. Now, that’s one of the things that should have been a deal breaker. If the President of the United States takes the position that he wants to invite people to negotiate on a bad bill? Could it be that this bill has been rejected by enough of the constituents of the Democrats?

How about the Blue Dogs? Where are the Blue Dogs on this? They seem to have gone underground on me this time. I wonder if they haven’t become groundhogs and seen their shadows instead of Blue Dogs who used to be for balanced budget, fiscal responsibility and for excoriating anybody who didn’t produce the same. Now that they have a President of their own kind, it’s a different equation for the Blue Dogs. They aren’t nearly as vocal.

This reconciliation package, this idea to put together a bill that would circumvent the yes votes of the Senate which require a 60-vote majority to break a filibuster and a vote of cloture, is something that has been rejected by many of the Senators who would be making the decision to go forward with this. This reconciliation, this “nuclear option” that it used to be called by Republicans when the Democrats, was opposed by Demo- crats after Democrat back in those years, mostly in 2005, when we needed to confirm some judges. By the way, Senator Reid said today that he was talking about reconcilia- tion. Huh. Yes, they were. BEN CARDF was talking about it while HARRY REID was talking about it. Only he was saying they need to go forward with reconciliation. So that’s been going on for some time. As I said, that argument has been going on since Sep- tember—the nuclear option, as Demo- crats called it. Now they call it rec- onciliation—nice, warm, and fuzzy.

The President had an opportunity to talk to the Republicans on the option of off the table. He did not do so today. It would have been an extension of an open handshake to at least say, We aren’t going to blow this thing through over the filibuster rules of the United States Senate, but the President didn’t do that. It must mean he is still for the nuclear option.

Even though HARRY REID said they weren’t talking about it, they are. The American people know that. The people know that. The American people know that the Republicans—even though it has been rejected by the President, then-Senator Obama, then-Senator SCHUMER, then-Senator Reid, then-Senator BIDEN and now Vice President, Senator DODD, Senator FEINSTEIN, then-Senator Clin- ton, and Senator MAX BAUCUS. All of them have rejected the idea of rec- onciliation. They called it a “nuclear option” when Republicans were contem- plating the same.

This is on a video, but I happen to have the tunnel. Some should know what the President said about this plan that I think, comes to this House and that, I think, comes to the Senate. I think... they're going to try the tactic, and it will blow the place up in the Senate, and it will bring the people to the streets in America. I think they're going to try it because it appears to me it is their last option to push this on us.

In 2005, then-Senator Obama said of reconciliation, A change in the Senate rules that really, I think, would change the character of the Senate forever.

He often pauses for a long time.

He picks up and he says, And what I worry about would be you essentially still have two Chambers—the House and the Senate—but you would have simply majoritarian absolute power on either side.

No check and balance on the majority power is what the President is saying to me. Only he was a Senator at the time.

He concludes with, And that's just not what the Founders intended.

President Obama was opposed to rec-conciliation as a Senator. It was a philosophical position for him, presumably, and now it looks like he is salivating over knowing his agenda might fall if they can’t violate a principle that he believes he stood on, which I disagree with, by the way.

Senator SCHUMER, who was in the discussions today, said, We are on the precipice of a crisis, a constitutional crisis.

This is of reconciliation, Mr. Speaker.

The checks and balances which have been at the core of the Republic are about to be evaporated, the checks and balances which say, if you get 51 percent of the vote, you don’t get your way 100 percent of the time.

"It is amazing. It's almost a temper tantrum. They want their way every single time, and they will change the rules, break the rules, misread the Constitution so that they will get their way." Senator SCHUMER of the nuclear option that is being contemplated by this White House and the leadership in the Senate and in the House in order to force-feed socialized medicine on America.

Well, the majority leader in the United States Senate had some things to say also about the nuclear option back in those years, which I believe was still 2005, when HARRY REID said,
"The right to extend debate is never more important than when one party controls Congress and the White House.
In these cases a filibuster serves as a check on power and preserves our limited government." HARRY REID. What did he think? He thought they shouldn’t use the nuclear option, the reconciliation package, because the fil-buster is necessary as a check on power and it preserves our limited government.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it brings me to then-Senator, now Vice President JOE BIDEN, who said of the reconciliation-nuclear option: "Ultimately an example of the arrogance of power, it is a fundamental power grab. I pray God when the Democrats take back control, we don’t make the kind of naked power grab you are doing." Vice President JOE BIDEN. Presumably that’s also a philosophical conviction. He is praying to God that they don’t do the same thing that he alleged Republicans were about to do—and did not, by the way, at least on that occasion.

Now I have on reconciliation Senator
CHRIS DODD, Democrat from Connecticut, who said, "I’ve never passed a single bill worth talking about that didn’t have as a lead cosponsor a Republican, and I don’t know of a single piece of legislation that’s ever been adopted here that didn’t have a Republican and a Democrat in the lead.
That’s because we need to sit down and work with each other. The rules of this institution have required that. That's why they exist. Why have a bicameral legislative body? Why have two Chambers? Why are people thinking about?
They understood, Mr. President, that there is a tyranny of the majority." Senator CHRIS DODD speaking of reconciliation.

Now, that’s a list of some of them, but I think it would be instructive to go the rest of the way through, Mr.
Speaker, and go to Senator DIANNE FEINSTEIN and what she had to say of reconciliation, which was: "The Senate become impassable out of House of Representatives, where the majority rules supreme and the party in power can dominate and control the agenda with absolute power."
Senator DIANNE
FEINSTEIN. And that is an accurate analysis of the function of what’s going on right now. We will see if she’ll participate in this and go back on her podition.

But at least then-Senator and now
Secretary of State Hillary Clinton won’t have to be engaged in this because the happened to be now the Senate of State and out of this loop.
But Hillary Clinton said of reconciliation: "You’ve got majority rule, and then you’ve got this Senate here where people can slow things down, where they can debate, where they have something called the filibuster. You know, it seems like a little less than efficient. Well, that’s right it is and deliberately designed to be so. The Senate is being asked to turn itself inside out. It’s the precedent to ignore the way our system has worked. The deli-cicate balance that we have obtained that has kept this constitutional system going for immediate gratification of the present President." Hillary Clinton, opposed to the nuclear option-reconciliation.

Now, the last quote that I have in front of me is Senator MAX BACHUS, who was actively engaged in the negotiations on this bill for a time with my senior Senator CHUCK GRASSLEY, who was a lead sponsor. On these negotiations last September, MAX BACHUS said of the nuclear option-reconciliation: "This is the way democracy ends, not with a bomb but with a gavel.''

That’s what we’re looking at, Mr.
Speaker. But all of these people are in a position to flip around and change their position. I’d remind the American people what Thomas Jefferson said that large initiatives should not be advanced on slender majorities. And that’s an important point, and I don’t know that Jefferson was talking about bipartisan majorities being broader than slender, but he surely would have rejected the idea that very slender, exclusively partisan majorities are not conducive to the good future of our country.

And then I would make another point with regard to these negotiations and discussions, Mr. Speaker, and that is the President of the United States has done kind words to say to some of the people that we’ve viewed as our enemies. One of them would be Ahmedinejad, who is the President of Iran. And he said in his State of the Union address—this is an interesting thing to come from the President. This is speaking almost directly to Ahmadinejad in Iran, standing back where you are, what of where you are,
Mr. Speaker. President Obama said this: "To those who cling to power through corruption and deceiand the silencing of dissent, know that you are on the wrong side of history, but that we will extend hands if you are willing to unclench your fist.''
That was the President’s statement in the State of the Union address, and no doubt he’s speaking to Ahmadinejad, someone who has sworn that he is an enemy of the United States and wants to annihilate the “Great Satan.”

And he defines Ahmadinejad as one who is clinging to power through corruption and deceit and the silencing of dissent.
It sounds a lot like what we’re going through here in this Congress. It seems a lot like the dissent that’s taking place in the House of Representatives, with no amendments allowed unless they make Republicans look bad, a shutdown of the open rules process, a shutdown of the debates process, and a driving through of legislation in a partisan way.

So I’m going to suggest this, Mr.
Speaker, that I would appreciate it if the President today would offer the Republicans the same thing that he offering Ahmadinejad, who is the President of Iran. And he said in his State of the Union address—this is an interesting thing to come from the President. This is speaking almost directly to Ahmadinejad in Iran, standing back
where you are, what of where you are,
Mr. Speaker. President Obama said this: "To those who cling to power through corruption and decei-
and the silencing of dissent, know that you are on the wrong side of history,
but that we will extend hands if you
are willing to unclench your fist.''
That was the President’s statement in the State of the Union address, and no doubt he’s speaking to Ahmadinejad, someone who has sworn that he is an enemy of the United States and wants to annihilate the “Great Satan.”

And he defines Ahmadinejad as one who is clinging to power through corruption and deceit and the silencing of dissent.
It sounds a lot like what we’re going through here in this Congress. It seems a lot like the dissent that’s taking place in the House of Representatives, with no amendments
allowed unless they make Republicans
look bad, a shutdown of the open rules
process, a shutdown of the debates process, and a driving through of legislation in a partisan way.

So I’m going to suggest this, Mr.

fering Ahmadinejad, who is the President of Iran. And he said in his State of

I’m going to hang on to the reconciliation-nuclear option because that’s the gun to the head of Republicans, and you can figure out if you’re going to blink and concede something to us today and bring some votes over to our side of the aisle we can certainly make this all happen. I mean, something that belongs to Democrats and Republicans. And when we rightfully refuse, they will pull the trigger on reconciliation, the nuclear option. And it won’t be because we didn’t offer an open hand. It will be because their clenched fist squeezed the trigger of the round of the nuclear option and sets off a food fight in America that will be ugly in the streets if they force this thing on this country. I have been joined by the gentleman and my very good and close friend from Texas (Mr. GOHMERT), whom I would be very happy to yield to.

Mr. GOHMERT. I appreciate my friend from Iowa, and I appreciate the points that he’s been making.

You heard so much information today. It was a bit mind-boggling when you think about the number of people that were in the so-called summit today, and not only did they not have a copy of the bills that they were going to try to ram down America’s throat, but I think about the number of people very indignant and say there’s no way. We heard the same thing right here on this floor just within feet of where I was certified as a mediator. I went through training and certification as a mediator. I was certified as a mediator. I went and they got to work. They were within maybe 1 minute of taking 2 doctors. They got to work. They got to work and said there’s no money in any of these bills for abortion.

We heard the same thing right here on this floor just within feet of where my friend from Iowa is. We heard people say when we debated the House bill that there is no money in this bill for abortion. And I don’t infer any evil intent or intent to deceive, but I know when people say that, since clearly they have no intent to deceive, they just want to try to ram down America’s knee, they seemed to be a little miffed when they didn’t have a copy of the bills that they were going to try to ram down America’s throat. We heard the same thing right here on this floor just within feet of where I was certified as a mediator. I went through training and certification as a mediator. I was certified as a mediator. I went and they got to work. They were within maybe 1 minute of taking 2 doctors. They got to work. They got to work and said there’s no money in any of these bills for abortion.

But let’s face it. It was called a summit today. Summit meaning height. It was the height of something. And we’ll let the Speaker figure out for us what that height was, but it was the height of something, the summit of something.

But the President himself, I think he was within maybe 1 minute of taking 2 hours of all that time by himself. And I was certified as a mediator. I went through training and certification as a mediator. I was certified as a mediator. I went and they got to work. They got to work and said there’s no money in any of these bills for abortion. And I don’t infer any evil intent or intent to deceive, but I know when people say that, since clearly they have no intent to deceive, they just want to try to ram down America’s knee, they seemed to be a little miffed when they didn’t have a copy of the bills that they were going to try to ram down America’s throat.

And which one mediator is something that belongs to Democrats and Republicans. And when we rightfully refuse, they will pull the trigger on reconciliation, the nuclear option. And it won’t be because we didn’t offer an open hand. It will be because their clenched fist squeezed the trigger of the round of the nuclear option and sets off a food fight in America that will be ugly in the streets if they force this thing on this country.

Mr. GOHMERT. I appreciate my friend from Iowa, and I appreciate the points that he’s been making.

You heard so much information today. It was a bit mind-boggling when you think about the number of people that were in the so-called summit today, and not only did they not have a copy of the bills that they were going to try to ram down America’s throat, but I think about the number of people very indignant and say there’s no way.
what, we found out this treatment was not safe so we’re removing it from something we’ll provide coverage for, you find out something is a brand new treatment that works, we add that, well, you’ve changed your benefits. And if you change the copay, if you change the deductible, if you change the price of the policy, bad news. Under number two, you lose your policy and you get kicked over under the Federal insurance exchange program.

Now, I was intrigued today to hear one of our Democratic friends there at the White House summit give a wonderful example about the Federal insurance exchange program. He gave this example or something like this. I was listening to two or three things at the same time, I had hearings and meetings and things going on. But as I understood it, he said, “Well, like when I want to go look for a flight or make travel arrangements, I will go onto Orbitz or something like that. Well, that’s all this Federal insurance program is. You know, it helps you find the best policy.”

Well, that is a wonderful point. I have been trying to find where the government owns Orbitz and Expedia. I can’t find that they own those programs. The best I can determine, whether it’s Travelocity, Orbitz, Expedia, whatever, I can’t find the government owns any of those. I can’t find that it is a Federal Orbitz, a Federal Expedia, Travelocity, whatever it is. I can’t find that. Apparently, these are private companies. And apparently, from what he said, he likes what the private companies are doing.

Well, we want people in America to have choice. We want them to have the best choice. And I bet you if you asked Americans, and said, “We’re thinking about creating a travel agency, and the government will make all your travel arrangements for you. You just contact our government office. We’re going to give you an option to all the other airlines, all the other travel agencies. We’re just going to let the government do that because we feel like you are owed a public option when you travel. I wonder how many people would ever go to the Federal option, because it is not competitive.

The Federal Government never has to compete. It can run in the red. They don’t care. Their salaries are not dependent on how well the company does.

And so I also want to point out that if you look here at section 501, the title of section 501 is “Tax on Individuals Without Acceptable Health Care Coverage.” “Tax on Individuals Without Acceptable Health Care Coverage.” And this place is supposed to care about the little guys, the guys that are out there working from dawn until dusk and some of them into the night to try to make enough money and then go to another job and moonlight to try to help the family, help the kids have what they need to get through school?

And you’re going to say, You know what? You make a little too much to be under the poverty line that will allow us to just give you free health insurance or health care, so under section 501, we’re just going to have to tax you because you’re not buying a Cadillac insurance policy.

But then again, we also know if you have a Cadillac insurance policy— which to me, Cadillacs are great cars. I used to have one before I ever came to Congress. I can’t afford one now, but they were good cars. And, unfortunately, Cadillacs may not be what they used to be now that the government motors own them or makes them.

But nonetheless, can you imagine the arrogance of a government that tells people, You’re not buying as expensive of an insurance policy that I think you ought to have so I am going to tax you for it?

And in the summary, the President’s plan points out—or the changes to the House and Senate bill says, in the summary, “You know what? The medical device tax—what some of us referred to as the wheelchair tax. Of course, they initially stuck the medical device tax in there, and there was no threshold above which you had to be to pay an extra tax if you had the misfortune of needing a medical device. And so some began to refer to it as the tampon tax, because that meets the requirements of a medical device and it could be taxed. And the threshold of a hundred dollars is put in there.

So the President says, You know what? We may just create a whole new excise tax that everybody is going to have to pay. Sorry about that $250,000 exclusion I told you about at one time, but you’re now going to have to pay more taxes. This is chock full of this stuff. That is why most Americans do not want this bill.

And if you look, there are all kinds of, still, pot sweeteners for Senators or Representatives that were reluctant. They changed some of those, but the pot sweeteners were in there to try to get their vote. They don’t help all Americans. They sweeten the pot only for those votes that they think they need to get it passed. That is not right. That is not good for all Americans. That’s not consistent with the equal protection that is promised to all Americans under the Constitution. You ought to have equal opportunity, and they don’t have it.

I appreciate so much the time as my friend has yielded.

PRAYER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Today's opening prayer will be offered by guest Chaplain Rev. Benny Tate, senior pastor of Rock Springs Church in Milner, GA.

The guest Chaplain offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Our Heavenly Father, we bow our heads in Your presence. The Bible teaches us, "Behold how good it is for brethren to dwell together in unity, because a House divided will not stand." May Your servants in this body not look to parties, personalities, preferences or press, but may they focus on principles and people.

God, we call our Senators politicians, but You call them ministers in the Bible. May all 100 Members of this body make full proof of their ministry. I ask for Your guidance on their decisions and Your grace on their families. Keep every one of them close and clean, being accountable to You.

We ask for protection for our men and women who so bravely protect us all over our world. We pray respecting all faiths, but pray this prayer in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. CORNYN. Madam President, as are many of us, I have been watching with great interest the bipartisan health care summit that is being broadcast on television. I am happy there is a bipartisan meeting at the White House to discuss health care reform. The practicalities are that only 38 of the 535 Members of Congress can participate directly in the summit, but I know that representatives of our political parties are there, along with the President. They are talking about something that is very near and dear to all of our hearts, and that is how to bring down the costs of health care without the reach of many of the American people, including too many in my State of Texas.

Unfortunately, sometimes in Washington what happens is, you see what is happening on TV or what is happening in public, and it looks a lot like one thing. Then you find out that behind the scenes something very different is happening. What I am speaking about in particular is, in contrast to a bipartisan summit on health care, my understanding is there are efforts underway on the part of the staff of the majority party to consider the use of reconciliation to try to pass an unpopular health care bill with 51 votes on a party line.

I think the contrast between what people are seeing on TV and what is actually happening behind the scenes is pretty telling. I would say it is disappointing because I think health care reform is too important to affect one-sixth of our economy. It affects 300 million Americans. It is simply too significant a step to take to try to do so strictly along partisan party lines.

So while it is true that reconciliation has been used in the past, it has never been used for anything such as this. This would be unprecedented. I think it would be an act of defiance toward the American people who overwhelmingly disapprove of this legislation.

There is no doubt that we need health care reform. Premiums have more than doubled over the last decade. Medicare, which provides access to health care for our seniors, has a $38 trillion unfunded liability which translates into an IOU for every American family in the amount of $325,000.

If we heard anything out of the recent election in Massachusetts, I think it is that the American people think there is too much borrowing taking place in Washington, DC; too many responsibilities, such as this unfunded Medicare liability, that are simply not being met.

We know Medicaid continues to be problematic in not providing access to enough low-income people who are ostensibly beneficiaries of Medicaid. In the Metropolis in Texas, Dallas-Fort Worth, only 38 percent of doctors will see a medicare patient because reimbursement rates are so low. That is not keeping the promise of access. It is, unfortunately, too much like appearing to do one thing on the one hand and actually delivering something far different on the other.

I think everyone agrees we need to solve these important problems. But how we go about solving the problem is important to maintaining the confidence and trust of the American people. I think bipartisanship on this subject is absolutely crucial.

After Massachusetts sent our newest Senator, SCOTT BROWN, to Washington, we know there was more talk about bipartisanship. But instead of working together to solve these problems, bipartisanship has so often translated into: Take it or leave it; if we can do this strictly with a majority party vote, we will.

That is what happened on Christmas Eve. I remember that 7 a.m. vote on Christmas Eve when 60 Senators on the other side voted to pass a health care bill that the American people have simply said, in poll after poll, they do not want. Of course now we see the White House repackaging an unpopular House bill with an unpopular Senate bill and posting 11 pages on the White House Web site and claiming this is somehow a package that is sacrosanct and cannot be touched. But in no sense could it possibly be considered a bipartisan piece of legislation. To only let the majority party say: Well, this is the basic template, and you can tweak it around the edges but you cannot change any part of it—that is not bipartisanship.

So now after the election of Senator SCOTT BROWN, who campaigned on the pledge that he would be the 41st vote to defeat the Senate health care bill because of its spending, taxes, and its raising premiums on people with insurance, its taking $1 trillion from Medicare—already another fiscally unsustainable entitlement program, with $38 trillion in unfunded liabilities—to create yet another entitlement program, the people of Massachusetts sent Senator SCOTT BROWN here to stop the health care bill that they don’t want.

Now we find the majority party wanting to use reconciliation, a hyperpartisan tactic, to ram a bill through that the American people have rejected, most recently in Massachusetts. If we are talking about trying to regain the public’s confidence, not only is bipartisanship important in terms of bringing solutions to health care but transparency is crucial when we are talking about something so big that affects so many.

You will remember in 2008 when President Obama was Senator Obama running for President of the United States, he promised to broadcast negotiations on C-SPAN for the American people to see who was arguing on their behalf and who was not. Stark contrast again, between what was said then and what was actually done, we saw the White House cutting deals with special interest groups, such as the pharmaceutical industry. We saw individual Senators demand and get special deals for their States as a condition to giving their votes to pass that bill.

As much as anything else in the bill, I think the way the bill was passed with the sweetheart deals, secret negotiations, and lack of transparency turned the American people off to these health care bills. I know the President said that after his election Washington would not be business as usual. Unfortunately, it has been, and the American people don’t like it.

This subject—health care reform—is too big and too important and too costly to do through sweetheart deals, backroom negotiations, and with utter disregard for transparency. The American people have been told that Washington does not think many folks in Washington, DC, give them credit for because they know this health care proposal is not lasting reform, and it simply would not work as advertised.

The White House proposal will still increase premiums on American families; that is, if you have health insurance now, this White House proposal, an amalgam of the Senate and House bills, will raise your insurance premiums because of costly Federal Government mandates. But this White House bill does one thing the Senate bill did not. It actually spends $75 billion more than the Senate bill that passed this body on Christmas Eve, at 7 a.m.

The White House bill does share some common elements with the Senate proposal. It still cuts nearly $500 billion from Medicare to create a new entitlement program, including a program that gives seniors access to more choices and the quality care they like. Rather than allow them to continue to keep that Medicare benefit, this proposal, the White House bill—like the Senate Medicare Advantage, which gives seniors access to more choices and the quality care they like. Rather than allow them to continue to keep that Medicare benefit, this proposal, the White House bill—would cut $500 billion from Medicare, including Medicare Advantage.

The basic problem, again, is that we call this “health care reform,” but the health care bill offers no long-term plan for the Medicare Program’s solvency—in other words, that $36 trillion. I mentioned a moment ago. This actually makes it worse by taking another $7 trillion out of Medicare and makes things worse, not better, when it comes to the program’s long-term solvency. I simply think the choice the President has made, and that the Senate and House health care bills have made, to force millions of low-income people onto Medicaid is simply not right, giving them no choices but a government-run program which, as I mentioned earlier, denies them access too many times to a doctor because they cannot find a doctor who will see patients and accept government rates for Medicaid reimbursement. I mentioned the 38-percent figure in the metroplex of Dallas-Fort Worth. Only 38 percent of the doctors there will see these patients because of the rates. Yet these health care bills force millions of people onto that program along with, in the process, promising them access to care but then not delivering as advertised.

Then there is this problem. As you know, the Medicaid Program—the cost of that is borne by the Federal Government and the State governments. In my State alone, the health and human services commission in Texas estimates that the expansion of Medicaid under the President’s proposal will cost Texas taxpayers an additional $24.3 billion over the next 10 years. That $24.3 billion is an unfunded mandate that is contained in this bill.

Where does that money come from? Well, too often—I think some of our friends over there will tell you that what happens is, that is money that has to be used for an unfunded mandate from the Federal Government that comes from education, higher education budgets, law enforcement budgets, and other priorities. It is simply irresponsible for Congress to force on State taxpayers this responsibility to pay for this unfunded mandate when there are other priorities the States have chosen that they think are important—such as education, as I mentioned, and law enforcement.

The unfunded mandate in this bill is simply unacceptable. The Wall Street Journal summed up the President’s proposal this way:

It manages to take the worst of both the House and Senate bills and combine them into something more destructive. . . . It includes more taxes, more subsidies, and even less cost control than the Senate bill.

And it purports to fix the special interest favors in the Senate bill not by eliminating them—but by expanding them to everyone.

We know the furor it caused across the country when some Senators were able to negotiate more favorable Medicaid reimbursements than the rest of the country and when everybody found out those who were not in those favored States would end up paying for those special favors that were necessary in order to get 60 votes. This bill would cut $24.3 billion from Medicaid reimbursements for doctors who don’t take Medicare patients is not an unfunded mandate in this bill. Where does that money come from? Where does that money go? Where does that $24.3 billion go? The Senate and House bills. Yet these health care bills force millions of low-income people onto Medicaid is simply not right, giving them no choices but a government-run program which, as I mentioned earlier, denies them access too many times to a doctor because they cannot find a doctor who will see patients and accept government rates for Medicaid reimbursement.

I suggested we simply look at the facts—in this case straight from the Congressional Budget Office—and see what they, the official scorekeeper for Congress, have to say about these pieces of legislation.

The CBO said premiums for those who have health insurance of some kind—85 percent of the American people—whether it is through government programs like Medicare, the VA, or the like, but those who have private insurance, their premiums will go up by 10 to 13 percent or an average of $2,100 for families buying policies on their own. That is in the individual market where most small businesses and individuals have to shop for their policies. Their health insurance premiums will go up an average of $2,100 a family or 10 to 13 percent.

No wonder the more people learn about this legislation the less popular it becomes, and individuals who get their insurance through small businesses or large employers, which is 83 percent of Americans, will see the status quo. They will see their premiums continue to increase by 5 to 6 percent a year.

I thought health care reform was about bringing down the cost and making it more affordable, “bending the cost curve,” to use the jargon that has been bandied about over the last year and a half. But we find out that for those in the individual market, premiums will go up to 10 to 13 percent. For those in the larger employer market, it will go up to 5 to 6 percent. It would not bend the cost curve. It will either be ineffective at all and keep premiums basically where they would have been anyway or it will make it worse.

Then there is the gamesmanship in how it deals with the budget deficit. Here is what CBO said about the bill’s impact on the budget deficit: Washington budget gimmicks allow the White House to pretend the bills reduce the deficit. But this is really about health care reform. If it is really about health care reform, shouldn’t it be making sure that our seniors on Medicare have access to doctors and that they can actually find a doctor who will see them? The 23-percent cut in reimbursement rates for doctors who don’t take Medicaid patients is not an unfunded mandate in this bill, and it should be. If it is really about health care reform, shouldn’t it be making sure that our seniors on Medicare have access to doctors and that they can actually find a doctor who will see them? It is easy to pretend we are reducing the deficit by $132 billion, which is a fraction of the $24.3 trillion in Washington’s health care proposal is not lasting reform that will lower costs. Americans don’t believe “reducing the deficit” is possible at the same time we are spending $2.5 trillion over the next 10 years, and they are right. It is not. It purports to pretend we are reducing the deficit when we are raising taxes by $500 billion and taking another $500 billion from Medicare in order to pay for this program.

The Obama administration’s own actuaries have worried that future Congresses would not let the $500 billion in Medicare cuts happen. In other words, the bills spend now but would not pay later.

I assume the majority leader will bring up the doc fix sometime soon because he needs to. The 23-percent cut in reimbursement rates for doctors who don’t take Medicaid patients is not an unfunded mandate in this bill, and it should be. If it is really about health care reform, shouldn’t it be making sure that our seniors on Medicare have access to doctors and that they can actually find a doctor who will see them? If you cut 23 percent in the other reimbursement rates, which is where we are headed now, they are not going to have access to doctors.

Here is what the Obama administration’s own experts say about the cost curve. The Senate bill, they say, will increase overall American health care expenditures by $22 billion. It will not bend the cost curve down. It will actually bend it up, making things worse, not better.

The American people have been pretty smart about this. They have been more engaged, better informed on this subject than I have seen in a long time. Of course, health care reform is a very complicated area. But they have gotten very informed about this subject. And if they want lasting reform that will lower costs.

Here is what we know works to lower costs, but this is not something that is in the President’s bill and, apparently, not something the majority party is willing to consider. If they did, I submit this would be a big step forward to bending the cost curve down, making health care more affordable, and yield a bipartisan product the American people could support.

I believe we need to give control over health care dollars to patients, not to Washington bureaucrats or to insurance company bureaucrats either. The American Academy of Actuaries found that market-driven health care plans have saved as much as 12 to 20 percent in health care premiums—12 to 20 percent. That is a lot.

Then, of course, there is a practice of defensive medicine ending lawsuit abuse which would save $54 billion over the next 10 years, according to the CBO.

We also support allowing small businesses to pool together such as big companies do to pool their risks to help bring down premium costs. According to the Congressional Budget Office, this would lower premiums for small businesses by 2 to 3 percent—that is not a huge amount, but I am sure they will tell you every little bit helps. In conjunction with these other reforms would have a real, meaningful impact in terms of bringing down health care costs.

I also support and our side of the aisle supports allowing Americans to purchase health insurance from any State they want to, and that would create national competition. It would allow people to buy policies they can afford that suited their family's needs rather than those loaded with State and Federal mandates which would in higher costs.

If Congress would allow Americans to purchase their health insurance in any State they choose and thereby increasing competition, the Congressional Budget Office says the cost of their health care premiums would go down by 5 percent.

Clearly, competition, transparency, keeping the power in the hands of the consumer not in government are some of the things that would lower the costs, not cause them to go up. Are these part of the bipartisan health care reform that consumer-driven health care plans have saved as much as 12 to 20 percent according to the Congressional Budget Office?

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. I thank the Chair. I also support those things that would lower the costs, not cause them to go up.

I yield the floor.

AMERICAN HIKERS HELD IN IRAN

Mr. CASEY. Madam President, I rise today to discuss the ongoing imprisonment of three young Americans—Joshua Fattal from Pennsylvania and two other Americans who have been in prison in Iran with him, Sarah Shourd and Shane Bauer. These are three Americans who have now spent more than 7 months in solitary confinement in Iran's Evin Prison for allegedly crossing a poorly marked border, the border between Iran and Iraq.

Since their detention along the Iran-Iraq border on July 31, 2009, the Iranian Government has refused requests from their attorney for visits. The Government of Iran has delayed due process and rejected requests from family members to call or visit them. The Iranian regime has also delayed requests for Iranian visas for the families and stonewalled the Swiss Embassy's attempt to carry out diplomatic visits.

The longer the detainment of these young Americans continues, the more clear it becomes to the international community that the Iranian Government, the Iranian regime, is engaged in political games rather than seeking to grant them a fair and timely judicial process. On this basis, I request that Supreme Leader Khamenei, President Ahmadinejad, Judiciary Chief Larijani, and other Iranian officials realize the humane and just decision to release Josh, Sarah, and Shane immediately.

Keeping these three innocent Americans in prison without due process violates the international human rights standards as well as Iran's own laws. It has been more than 2 months since Foreign Minister Motaki claimed they would be tried in court. Yet no trial date has been set. According to Iranian law, no detainee can be held temporarily for more than 4 months; thus, judicial officials must either schedule a court hearing or set the three young Americans free. The only conclusion the international community can draw from the Iranian Government's words and actions is that they intend to keep these three young Americans in limbo for domestic or foreign policy aims. It has nothing to do with the actions or intentions of these three American tourists who were simply admiring the natural beauty of the Kurdish mountains near the Iran-Iraq border. The longer we put up with the Iranian regime's muddled political games, especially held by innocent young people, is squashed by cynical politics.
Among ancient Persia’s greatest legacies is a transparent and efficient justice system. Innocent people do not appear on the court docket. We ask the Iranian Government—we ask them to send the world the unambiguous message that this transparent, timely, and fair judiciary process is a cornerstone of Iranian civilization. Keeping Josh, Sarah, and Shane indefinitely in solitary confinement and without access to legal counsel or their families is unjust and is sure to color the visions of Iranian society for young people here and worldwide.

Do not make Josh, Sarah, and Shane, and their desperately concerned parents wait another day before being reunited. Supreme Leader Khamenei, release these young hikers now.

UNEMPLOYMENT

Madam President, in addition to those remarks about those young Americans, I want to talk for a few minutes about unemployment and what we can do. It certainly affects people all over the country but in particular in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We have 560,000 people out of work right now in Pennsylvania. Our rate is lower than a lot of places, but we still have that many people living through. I had a chance a couple of weeks ago to sit down with 8 of those 560,000 people in what is called a career link, a job center in Pennsylvania where people are filling out scores of applications, applying for jobs. In the case of these eight individuals, they are all over the age of 50 and many are over the age of 60 and 70—some of the worst situations for those who are in that age bracket, who work for 20, 30 years at one job and did it very well, and now, through no fault of their own, are out of work.

Listening to their stories gave me a better insight into what people are up against every day. A number of comments were significant and relevant and poignant, but one in particular by a woman by the name of Debi who said something very simple but telling about what is in her heart and what she is living through—she said simply: I had a chance to get back to work. To me, that is a very simple statement, but I think that is on the minds of a lot of Americans who are out of work, and their family members. They just want to get back to work.

They also want to see that Washington is not just legislating—that is obviously important, and I will talk a little bit more about that in a moment—but that we are trying to understand what they are up against. They do want to get back to work. It is that simple. One of the ways we can do that is by making sure those who are out of work, those something like 15 million Americans out of work through no fault of their own, that we do something to help them in the next couple of days to get through the next couple of weeks, literally, with unemployment insurance, COBRA health insurance, and so many other ways.

We should extend the eligibility for emergency unemployment compensation and for COBRA—known as COBRA premium assistance, really health insurance for the unemployed—that both of those will expire this Sunday, February 28. If an extension of the unemployment programs authorized by the Recovery Act is not passed, 1.2 million workers will lose their unemployment benefits by the end of March. So we have to act now to prevent that from happening. It is unfortunate that it seems there is only an agreement to keep extending it from December to February, then from February into March or the end of March. We should extend it a lot further than that. Maybe we will have an opportunity to do that.

There are lots of ways to try to understand what people are going through and try to get a sense of what people are living through. I had a chance a couple of weeks ago to sit with 8 of those 560,000 people in what is called a career link, a job center in Pennsylvania where people are filling out scores of applications, applying for jobs. In the case of these eight individuals, they are all over the age of 50 and many are over the age of 60 and 70—some of the worst situations for those who are in that age bracket, who work for 20, 30 years at one job and did it very well, and now, through no fault of their own, are out of work.

So we have to act now to prevent that from happening. It is unfortunate that it seems there is only an agreement to keep extending it from December to February, then from February into March or the end of March. We should extend it a lot further than that. Maybe we will have an opportunity to do that.

An extension of the federally funded unemployment compensation and COBRA programs through December 31, 2010—what we should do is extend it that far. They are necessary for a number of reasons. State labor departments will not be under pressure to constantly update their systems and informal constituencies of changes in national law. We should give them the kind of certainty and predictability that they have a right to expect, certainly the State government officials but more importantly, the families and affected persons who are recently laid off—not constantly be reminded that their unemployment benefits may run out sooner than expected. This is especially true where there are six applicants for every one job.

It is important to take action on unemployment insurance and COBRA health insurance coverage for a third reason as well.

At a time when millions of people don’t have health care coverage, failure to provide an adequate safety net to ensure people have affordable health insurance coverage will only add to the rolls on the sidelines of this debate on health care.

Two other points before I conclude. According to the CBO, which we keep quoting in the health care debate and in many others, for every $1 spent on unemployment compensation benefits, up to $1.90 is contributed to the gross national product. This is further evidence, in addition to what I and many others have quoted—Mark Sardy from moodsy.com—you spend a buck on unemployment insurance or COBRA benefits and you see a buck of those safety net provisions to help workers who lost their job, you not only help someone who needs help and should have the help we can provide, you also help our economy literally by jump starting spending.

We know that in the past couple of days we passed the jobs bill, the HIRE Act, a good piece of legislation for our business, for our economy, but also for preserving and creating lots of jobs. That jobs bill is not enough. We have to pass these safety net provisions on unemployment and COBRA health benefits. We also have to put more job creation strategies on the table and get bills passed to create more jobs. The recovery bill is still having an effect, still having a tremendous impact in Pennsylvania, with still a whole year left of spending and benefits of that spending in Pennsylvania and other States.

I see Senator SPECTER is with us. He and I have seen that up close in Pennsylvania, a tremendous impact already, but there is still more to do on the recovery bill he voted for under great pressure not to vote for it. Thank goodness he did. Without his vote, that bill would not have passed. Millions of Americans’ lives would be adversely impacted if we did not pass the Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009. We are working our way to do more work to do across the country and to have a positive impact on Pennsylvania.

One concluding thought. When you look at Pennsylvania, we might have a lower rate than a lot of States but we do have 560,000 people out of work. Unfortunately, more and more we are seeing in different labor markets, such as the Erie labor market, which is at 10 percent, the Lehigh Valley, Allentown, Bethlehem, and Easton at 9.8 percent, northeastern Pennsylvania, my home area, at 9.7 percent—even though our rate has not yet hit statewide 9 percent, we are seeing in different pockets that number going up. We have to continue to put job creation strategies in the pipeline, continue to have the recovery act have an even more positive impact. And thirdly, we need to make sure we pass the safety net provisions. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be waived.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I have sought recognition to talk briefly about two subjects: a recent CODEL I participated in on the passing of a beloved staff member. I ask unanimous consent that the time be extended 12:45.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, from December 28 to January 7, I participated on a congressional delegation which visited in Cyprus, Syria, India, Afghanistan, and Morocco, and have submitted a lengthy report, which is my practice.

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of that report be printed in the RECORD at the end of my remarks.

Mr. SPECTER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. SPECTER. For purposes of comment at this time, I will focus on what we found on our trip to Afghanistan and India as it relates to the current war in progress in Afghanistan which has, as a practical matter, been extended into Pakistan and a comment about our trip to Syria, our meetings with President Assad, as it bears upon the potential for a peace treaty between Israel and Syria.

Our visit to Afghanistan was very revealing to get a firsthand impression as to what is going on on the ground. I approached the trip with serious reservations about the President’s proposal to add an additional 30,000 troops there. My concern arose in the context of why fight in Afghanistan when al-Qaeda could organize as well in many other places, Yemen or Somalia. There had been such a lack of success in efforts in Afghanistan by Soviets, or by the Brits, going all the way back to Alexander the Great.

There is no doubt we have to do whatever it takes to defeat al-Qaeda, because they are not going to mitigate us. We are faced with where? Where are we to go? Of course, reports that there were only about 100 al-Qaeda actually in Afghanistan, we are really looking at a battle with the Taliban.

In our meetings with General McChrystal and other key officials, they emphasized the point that we should not retreat and that it would be a watershed event if the United States did not provide whatever military force was necessary in Afghanistan.

Our Delegate replied that the NATO support was lacking and we ought to rethink exactly how we are going to deal with the Taliban. The efforts to persuade the Taliban to come back and support the Karzai government—because there are many there who could be brought back if the incentives were sufficient and they were sufficiently confident—the Karzai government did not lend a whole lot to inspire confidence. They had an election that was clouded with fraud, with the claiming of how many the voters were.

They have sustained reports about dealing in the narcotics trade with high-ranking officials, repeated evidence of corruption at the highest levels—hardly inculcative to a stable government.

When the President projected a withdrawal by mid-2011, that was not what President Karzai had suggested. He was quoted in the press as saying, U.S. troops would have to be in Afghanistan for 15 years. When our delegation had an opportunity to meet with President Karzai, we pressed him on that issue, and he said: Well, 2 years would be required for an adequate presence of the U.S. military. He never could define what “adequate” was, but he said U.S. forces would have to stay for another 10 years.

More recently, in the intervening weeks, the war there has shaped up. We still have a small fraction of the 30,000 troops—something like 5,000. Perhaps it will not be necessary to commit the additional 25,000 troops.

We had a very productive meeting with the Prime Minister of India, Prime Minister Singh. A point which we pressed was whether India and Pakistan could enter into an arms reduct pact similar to the pacts which the United States and the Soviet Union have had, which would reduce the number of troops from India and the number of troops from Pakistan on the border to liberate more Pakistan military to help in the fight against al-Qaida and the Taliban.

Prime Minister Singh said he would certainly be willing to consider that, but Pakistan would have to control the terrorists. We questioned him as to whether the Pakistani Government could control the terrorists, and his reply was very blunt: Yes, the terrorists control the creation of Pakistan, which is the way he responded to that situation.

In the intervening weeks, again, there has been unique cooperation between Pakistani intelligence and the CIA, with many joint maneuvers, so perhaps there could be a material improvement along that line.

The written text, which will be submitted, goes into some greater detail, which I shall abbreviate because of the shortness of time.

In Syria, our meeting with President Bashar al-Assad was cordial and I think constructive. I had first visited Syria in 1984, and this was the 19th visit there. I have gone there repeatedly, as I have done in that region generally, and even more often to Israel, because I have long thought Syria was the key to the Mideast peace process.

Syria desperately wants to regain the Golan Heights, and only Israel can decide whether it is in Israel’s interest to cede the Golan Heights. But it is a different world in 2010 than it was in 1967, when Israel took the Golan. The strategy is very different in an era of rockets. It is not quite the same situation.

The United States has extended its military operations.

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton testified yesterday before the Foreign Operations Subcommittee, and I asked her if she would consider a recommendation to have the President call the Israeli leaders, Prime Minister Netanyahu, and the Syrian President, Bashar al-Assad, to the Oval Office to see an intermediary there. The office of the Presidency could have great forcefulness and great weight. The Secretary was noncommittal, and the record will reflect the exact words which were used.

The trip was very worthwhile. I find that when we leave the Beltway and leave Washington and see what is actually happening in the field, wearing a flak jacket in a helicopter across Afghanistan or talking to Foreign Minister Walid Mualem, who was the Ambassador here for 10 years, and getting a feel for what is going on in India, it gives us a much better insight into how we handle our foreign aid, how we handle our budget, and how we handle our military operations.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

I seek recognition to speak about a Congressional Delegation I took part in from December 22, 2009, to January 7, 2010. The CODEL, led by Senator Gregg, comprised of Senators Bayh, Cornyn, Enzi, Klobuchar and their spouses. I was accompanied by my wife, Jane. My Legislative Director, Christopher Bradish.

CYPRESS

We departed Andrews Air Force Base on Monday morning, December 28th, en route to Nicosia, Cyprus, with a refueling stop in Shannon, Ireland. We began the day with a meeting with our USAID mission to review projects being supported by the United States.

We then had a briefing with the United Nations Development Program (UNDP), which is focusing on reconciliation projects, to include media expansion. The UNDP office is located in the U.N. administered neutral zone, which divides the island. The UNDP continues to work with representatives in Cyprus on revision of the press and the diversification of media to allow viewpoints other than those of just the state-dominated media outlets to be heard.

The media is dominated by Turkish Cypriot and Greek Cypriot political outlets. Cyprus does not have equivalents of NPR or PBS. UNDP hopes to build on those models to allow diversification in the media by providing independent programming which can then be picked up by existing outlets for broadcast. The UNDP aims to provide all Cypriots with a non-partisan avenue of communication.

Following our meeting with USAID and UNDP officials, the delegation had a country team briefing led by Jonathan Cohen, our Deputy Chief of Mission. Our embassy in Cyprus has 65 U.S. employees in addition to recent Congressional Delegation I took part in from December 22, 2009, to January 7, 2010. We departed Andrews Air Force Base on Monday morning, December 28th, en route to Nicosia, Cyprus, with a refueling stop in Shannon, Ireland. We began the day with a meeting with our USAID mission to review projects being supported by the United States.

We then had a briefing with the United Nations Development Program (UNDP), which is focusing on reconciliation projects, to include media expansion. The UNDP office is located in the U.N. administered neutral zone, which divides the island. The UNDP continues to work with representatives in Cyprus on revision of the press and the diversification of media to allow viewpoints other than those of just the state-dominated media outlets to be heard.

The media is dominated by Turkish Cypriot and Greek Cypriot political outlets. Cyprus does not have equivalents of NPR or PBS. UNDP hopes to build on those models to allow diversification in the media by providing independent programming which can then be picked up by existing outlets for broadcast. The UNDP aims to provide all Cypriots with a non-partisan avenue of communication.

Since Cyprus’ accession to the European Union in January 2004, the number of Cypriots attending U.S. universities has decreased dramatically. The U.S. mission has created a program to use Cypriot students and alumni of U.S. universities to go to high schools and communities to speak about the benefits of an education in the United States.

On the law enforcement front, the Cypriot government has utilized U.S. expertise in some of their criminal investigations, including a program to use U.S. businesses operating on the island. U.S. exports to Cyprus grew by 28 percent in 2008. I asked about the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center’s efforts to establish a university and medical center in Cyprus. UPMC is exporting its expertise to bring world-class health care, advanced technologies, and management skills to markets worldwide.

Our mission provided an update on the status of negotiations between the north and south, the Greek Cypriot President Demetris Christofias and the Turkish Cypriot leader, Mehmet Ali Talat. Talks have ramped up in recent weeks with the two leaders meeting multiple times over the past week. However significant obstacles remain to reaching an agreement to include how to resolve vexing property, security and constitutional issues.

In November 2002, U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan presented a draft comprehensive peace settlement, commonly referred to as the Annan Plan. According to the Congressional Research Service: “[The Annan Plan] called for a ‘new state of affairs,’ in which the ‘common state’ government’s relations with its two politically equal components would be modeled on the Swiss federal example. It would have a single international legal personality. Component states would participate in foreign and EU relations as in Belgium. Parliament would have two 48-seat houses. Each state would have equal representation in the Senate. Seats in the Chamber of Deputies would be allocated on a proportional basis, with no state having less than 25% of the seats. A Presidential Council would have 8 members; the offices of President and Vice President would rotate among its members. No more than two consecutive presidents could come from the same state. Greece’s Turkish peasant community could not exceed 4% of the voting-age population.”

The U.S. had following September 11, 2001 has pressurized the United States as soon as possible. The legislation passed the Senate on October 6, and the House on October 23, 2009.

On December 30th, the delegation departed Larnaca, Cyprus for Damascus, Syria. This was my nineteenth visit to Syria. We were greeted by Jason Resch, our in-country officer, and Charles Hunter, our Charge d’Affaires, who provided an update of the situation on the ground during the ride to the embassy. Upon arrival, the delegation received two classified briefings to include a country team briefing. Following our briefings, the delegation departed for the Presidential Palace in Damascus to meet with President Bashar al-Assad and Foreign Minister Walid al-Mualem. President Asad opened the meeting by welcoming the delegation and provided his views on the bilateral relationship as well as regional tensions. I have long held the view that fostering an agreement between Israel and Syria would play a positive role in fostering an agreement between Israel and Syria. I indicated that if Hezbollah and Hamas could be disarmed and renounce violence, the region would be a safer place for all. I expressed the view held by many in the U.S. that the Syria-Iran nexus is troubling and Iran’s desire to obtain nuclear weapons poses a dangerous threat to the region. I complimented President Asad for his willingness to engage the Israelis via the Turks. I asked President Asad for his view on the prospects for an Israeli-Syrian peace, better relations with the West and his country’s relationship with Iran. He indicated that the “devil is in the details.” He explicitly decoupled the issues, stating that his country’s calculus for each is independent of the others. He indicated the U.S. should support the Turkish role in the peace process—which has been put on hold following the conflict in Gaza in 2008 and Israel’s parliamentary elections in 2009. Asad stated, “only peace can protect Israel.” He was encouraged by the United Nations Security Council’s resolution 1701, which called for peace talks.

On the U.S. role in the peace process, Asad pointed to efforts undertaken in the 1990s, when Secretary of State James Baker engaged forcefully with the interested parties. He indicated that Syria desires robust U.S. engagement in the peace process. Syria’s tepid alliance with Iran appears not to be a concern to President Asad by Syria’s desire to be on good terms with a regional force. Syria clearly wants the United States to withdraw from Iraq, but before Iraq begins drawing down forces, Syria fears it will prevent Iran from sweeping in to a political vacuum.

We discussed the issue of intelligence cooperation. The good cooperation Syria and the U.S. had following September 11, 2001 has since dissipated. The delegation pressed Asad for a resumption of cooperation so that cooperation had been good, but said that security and intelligence cooperation cannot flourish in the absence of strong political and diplomatic relations.

The delegation pressed Asad on the Iranian nuclear threat and the potential for Syria to be dragged into a regional conflict. Asad indicated that the Iranian issue needs to be resolved and that conflict must be prevented, but that he does not believe Iran is seeking a showdown with Syria. I joined Senators Casey, Feinstein, Boxer, Klobuchar, Franken and Murray in writing to the Iranian Ambassador to the U.N. Mohammad Khazaei to request that Iran grant the Swiss consular access to the Americans in Iran’s obligations under the Vienna Convention. The United States, in the wake of the Mumbai attacks, has engaged with India in discussions on the prospects for revising bilateral military agreements. The Indian government has expressed a willingness to consider a nuclear non-proliferation treaty with Pakistan, which could lead to a reduction in tensions and facilitate the establishment of a regional security framework.

Moreover, the Indian government has indicated a desire to cooperate with the United States on counterterrorism efforts. India's Prime Minister, Dr. Manmohan Singh, has stated that India is committed to working with the United States to address the threat of terrorism from the border to Al-Qaeda. Following our meeting with the Prime Minister, I returned to the embassy for a meeting with Robert Hadun, the Deputy Country Attache for the DEA and Gib Wilson, the Kabul Attache for the DEA. I received an overview of the regional drug trade and how it impacts the U.S. and our cooperation and assistance to India with their investigations and counterterrorism efforts.

The Deputy Chief of Mission hosted a working lunch with our counterparts from the Afghanistan Office of Narcotics Control: Pallam Raju, Minister of State for Defense; Jitin Prasada, Minister of State for Petroleum and Natural Gas; Abhishek Manu Singhvi, Minister of State for External Affairs; Raashid Alvi, Madhu Goud Yashiki and Deepender Singh Hooda. Our discussions centered on the topics we had discussed with President Karzai and the support team, but also provided us an opportunity to discuss how, as parliamentarians, we deal with local and national issues of importance to our constituents. Following lunch, the team proceeded to a country team briefing. Our mission in Afghanistan has four ambassadors—a rare occurrence, but one that is necessary given the complexity of the issues and the size of the mission.

We discussed the significant monetary investment being made in Afghanistan, with $250 million alone spent on the civilian side each month, and once the additional 30,000 troops arrive the cost will rise to between $9 and $10 billion per month for the entire U.S. effort. When asked to discuss the national security significance to U.S., Major General MacDonald stated that Afghanistan is the extremists’ base, threat exists and they have been operating across Afghanistan for years. We discussed the need to rationalize the disparity between President Obama saying we begin withdrawing in late 2011 and President Karzai saying that we will take 15 years for his security forces to be ready and many of the troops they have will be needed by July 2011. We pressed them on how quickly we can train security forces so the U.S. could turn over responsibility to the Afghan government and again shared the concern by many over U.S. debt, deficit and obligations at home.

Lieutenant General Caldwell outlined the efforts to develop the police and ministries of defense and interior. He highlighted the issue of lacking an effective Afghan police service. He told us that an Afghan soldier in Kabul who makes a judge makes about only $80. Clearly, civilian pay reform is needed.

I pressed the officials on getting the international community to carry its weight. They replied that the U.S. requested 2,500 troops on December 1, 2009 and NATO pledged 460. We are going around Kabul asking each country’s ambassador for additional troops. I again pressed them on when we can finally leave. They stated that governance, economy and security need to be in place to withdraw in tandem and that 300,000 Afghan military forces will be ready by July 2011.

MOOROCCO

The delegation arrived in Rabat, Morocco at 1:00 AM on January 5th where we learned were met by Ambassador Samuel Kaplan. Our Codell was very impressed with him. There is considerable debate about “political appointees,” but Ambassador Kaplan brought unique skills to this position from a distinguished career in the law, considerable business experience, and extensive activity in political and academic affairs.

We met with Foreign Minister Passi-Phirri and Director General Mohamed Mansouri. The Foreign Minister told the delegation he was pleased by the cooperation between our two countries and the deepening in the relationship on issues such as trade and defense and intelligence cooperation. The Moroccan enjoys Morocco’s unique position in the world, with one foot in the Middle East and one in Africa. He described the difficulty his country has had in establishing a democratic system permissible political parties while maintaining a democracy.

Much of our discussion focused on terrorism and the need to transcend the region. Director General Mansouri stated that terrorists have manipulated Islam and that Morocco has pushed for a more moderate approach and that it is engaged in combating radicalism. I pressed the Foreign Minister on recent incidents of terrorism and what can be done internationally to combat the suicide bombers and their skewed religious/political views. He told me that many in the Muslim world are moderates—not by the number. They lack educational and economic opportunities and poverty has led many to extremist camps. Yet, we also discussed how terrorists, including those that perpetrated 9/11 and most recently the Detroit airliner bombing attempt were educated and came from middle class or wealthy families.

I was told that we must work to resolve the conflict between the Israelis and the Palestinians and that a lasting peace will require substantial compromise by the governments and moderate Muslims to stand up and lead. In addition, they suggested a global interfaith dialogue must occur. They stated their desire to play a leadership role given Morocco’s history in hosting the three great religions.

The Foreign Minister highlighted Morocco’s efforts to engage the youth with opportunities and positive messages and that their brand of Islam is open, inclusive and tolerant and is a good model for the broader Muslim world.

We departed Rabat early on January 7th to return to Andrews Air Force Base by midday EST.

TRIBUTE TO MR. KENNY EVANS

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, Kenny Evans recently passed after being with me for some 30 years. I had known Mr. Evans in Philadelphia for a long time, but when I ran for the Senate in 1980, I asked him to be my campaign deputy in the African-American community. When I was elected, I brought him in as my key operative in the African-American community because of the urgency of having active minority representation.

He came to be known and loved and admired as a leading public official in the city. He served longer than most anyone who had been in public office. He was good at public relations and in job training and in education, on civil rights issues and on immigration.

When we had a proposal advanced by Congresswoman Chaka Fattah of Pennsylvania called GEAR UP almost a decade ago, with a $300 million price tag, I consulted with Kenny Evans, listened to his advice and recommendations and helped provide $300 million a year, which has now come to be in the $2.5 billion range, not only servicing Philadelphia but the entire country.

When we had a controversy last summer about African-American children being excluded from a swim club which said they were not welcome there, Kenny Evans took the lead in consultation and advice on how to handle it with the Civil Rights Division, and action has been taken to correct a wrong there.

He was an unusual public servant and an extraordinary man.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that a statement which was prepared by Michael Oscar, my executive director for southeastern Pennsylvania, which Mike Oscar gave at Kenny’s funeral, be printed in the Congressional Record.
Today, we do not grieve for Kenny Evans, for now he is free to follow the path God has laid out for him. Kenny took God’s hand when he left this world.

Good Morning and on behalf of Charolette and the entire Evans Family, I offer the following remarks highlighting our friend, Kenny Evans.

My name is Michael Oscar and I serve as Sen. Specter’s Executive Director in South eastern Pennsylvania. For nearly a decade, I had the distinct pleasure of working with Kenny in many different legislative and political capacities. It is with this background and dedication that I speak to you today.

May it be said of Kenny, the words of Alfred, Lord Tennyson:

“I am a part of all that I have met
To much is taken, much abides
That which we are, we are:
One equal temper of heroic hearts
Strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.”

Kenny personified these words because his cause was ours,—you and me—the cause of the common man and the common woman. His commitment was to those who Andrew Jackson once described as the humble members of society: the farmers, mechanics, laborers, and the forgotten.

On this foundation for the past three decades and beyond, Kenny defined our values, refined our policies, and refreshed our faith. He did this by operating behind the scenes with much grace, class, and dignity.

There was never a problem no matter how big or small, he did not try to solve, a request he did not try to respond to, or a person he did not try to help. This was his marque value.

Kenny’s work ethic and style mentored future generations of congressional staffers, political candidates, and current legislators in the art and science of politics. As Al Jackson, his friend and luncheon companion for many years, I witnessed firsthand his innate abilities to soften even the harshest of personal situations, “he is the maestro of politics”—instructively knowing how to deal with people and their everyday concerns.

In my mind, he turned this astute characteristic because he worked from the ground up, which provided him the proper rubric on how to communicate with people. As his Executive Director for the past five years, I witnessed firsthand his innate ability to soften even the harshest of personal situations. There was not a day that went by that Susan Segal would say, “Kenny would be the perfect choice to handle this constituent.”

“Handle this constituent he did” because his commitment went well beyond the federal city. When it took a phone call, a letter, a closed door meeting, he was a tireless advocate always on a mission.

When I was Senator Specter’s staff in Washington, D.C., before coming to Philadelphia, my COS at the time, Carey Lackman told me “you had an impressive list of references, but none greater than Kenny Evans.” Candidly, I didn’t know what Carey was talking about. I had no idea who Kenny Evans was and he was not listed as one of my references.

I later learned that Kenny worked closely with one of my former employer’s, Michael Kanz, the Clerk of Court for the District Court in Scranton. For nearly a decade, I had heard that I applied for the position he called Kenny to advocate on my behalf. Apparently, Kenny immediately called Carey and stated, “this guy worked in my office, he knows how many calls a day I get from constituents to get out of jury duty? You need to hire this guy.”

However, my first and lasting impression of Kenny occurred about a year later. Many of you may not be aware of this, but Kenny, along with Al Jackson, established the first urban aquaculture program in Pennsylvania and had Carey call the President. Many of you like me are probably scratching your heads right now wondering what is aquaculture. Well, it’s any crop that is cultivated in water—whether it be shrimp, fish, or seaweed.

Kenny learned about aquaculture from his numerous luncheon conversations with Al Jackson. Over the course of a year, they drafted this unique partnership between the University of Pennsylvania and Cheyney University. It allowed to provide African American students the opportunity to learn this unusual science.

Proudly I report to you today, the center has been successfully funded for the past seven years by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and has graduated nearly 188 African American students in the field of urban aquaculture. This was just one accomplishment of many that Kenny succeeded in on behalf of Sen. Specter.

Beyond Kenny’s political acumen, he mentored all of us to keep things simple, light. When I was drafted by the Senator to run his Philadelphia Office, I heard one of my predecessors define it as, “Kenny was always right”. He had sustained me and our team in Philadelphia for many years and they will never be forgotten.

One specific anecdote that defines what we called one of a “Kennyism” was when I was on a leave of absence from the Senator’s office to run Rep. Mike Fitzpatrick’s campaign. Despite my absence from the office, the Senator’s Office was filled with people at the time I was enrolled in the daycare center located in the Green Federal Building.

So for three days a week, I drove down to the city to drop him off. Before heading up to the campaign office in Doylestown, I would stop by the second floor cafeteria to grab a cup of coffee and I was always greeted by Kenny’s chuckle.

He would tell me “Sit down, Mike, tell me about the campaign and more importantly, how is your family?” He would listen, he would laugh, and he taught me to keep it light. He would end every conversation with “it will be ok.”

Speaking of campaigns, when I had the pleasure of accompanying the Senator during his visit with Kenny just a few weeks ago in the hospital, Kenny despite his medical maladies went right to work assessing for the Senator how the African American Community along with many others will come out for him in his re-election. Yes, many a “Kennyism” was shared that day.

A few short weeks later, I went back to visit with Kenny, along with Al Jackson, and Elvis Solivan, another stalwart of the Specter Team. While there I had this memorable conversation with Kenny’s grandson, La-ta-el Elvis Solivan, another stalwart of the Specter Team. While there I had this memorable conversation with Kenny’s grandson, La-ta-el Solivan.

He told me how his grandfather would bring the Senator’s Lincoln Town Car home when he was in town. When the Senator would offer his grandchildren a ride in it, and if they accepted the offer then they would wash it later.

When I heard the story, I just laughed. “Senator, rest assured, no one yet from the Oscar family has ridden in the Lincoln let alone washed it except for their father.”

Upon our arrival at t, the Senator offered to show me some of his office. As I perused through the photos of Kenny, Charolette, and President Obama. On that day, Tuesday, September 15, 2009, candidates were usually not well, but we wanted to ensure he received his photo with the first African American President of the United States.

That said, I grasped Kenny’s hand, along with Charolette’s and together we rode down the long convention center hallway with Andy Wallace at our side running interference. When we got to the photo line, we were immediately escorted to the front of the line. I turned to Shamin Specter and immediately stated, “I will not allow you to give this to Charolette to the President, and he replied, "No," but he immediately responded with "Mike, I want you to do it." I proceeded over to the President, Mr. President, I would like to introduce you to Kenny and Charolette Evans. Kenny has been with the Senator for the past 30 years. President Obama retorted, "my man, Kenny Evans" and extended a warm hug and handshake. Without question, I will never forget that moment.

Ladies and Gentlemen, for those of us who are a part of or friend of Sen. Specter’s Alumni and Family, please do not regard today in sorrow, rather rejoice in Kenny’s legacy and adapt his cause to your daily work.

Find comfort and solace in knowing that Kenny joins Carey Lackman and Tom Bowman, former staffers that were dedicated to the cause in helping the common man and woman of Pennsylvania and the nation. Imagine if you will the conversation they must be having right now.

For the rest of us assembled here today and to Kenny’s family; specifically, Charolette, I offer this summation of a constitutes Alumni’s ride in the Lincoln and that Kenny Evans, by recounting the final sentence of Sen. Ted Kennedy’s “The Dream Shall Never Die Speech,” at the 1990 Democratic National Convention:

“For all of those whose cares have been our concern, the work goes on, the cause endures, the hope still lives, and the dream shall never die.”

As in everything we do, may God be blessed! Thank you.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator withhold the suggestion of the absence of a quorum?

Mr. SPECTER. I do.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate stands in recess until 2 p.m.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:42 p.m., recessed until 2 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. Burriss).

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. President, right now there is a meeting at the White House that is being covered extensively by the national media. There has been much anticipation about the meeting between the President and a number of Members of Congress, equally divided between the two bodies, the House and Senate, and the two political parties. It is an opportunity for both sides to listen to each other. The media has decided that by and large this is going to be unproductive. I watched a good bit of it today. At least people are being open with what they believe and what they want.

There clearly are major differences between the two parties when it comes to health care. It goes back a couple, three generations. It certainly goes back to the 1960s, to Medicare specifically, when the Senate and the House and President Johnson signed the Medicare bill. An overwhelming number of Republicans opposed it and an overwhelming number of Democrats supported it. It wasn't as partisan as charged as this, but it had the same interest groups around it, including the same insurance company opposition, the same accusations by—it was the John Birch Society then. Today it is the tea parties who oppose it. They didn't talk about death panels back then. Perhaps the John Birch Society wasn't as creative as are the tea party people, but they said it would be a takeover by big government of health care; the government would stand between the doctor and the patient. None of that has happened with Medicare.

The kinds of accusations and charges and scare tactics used by the insurance industry and mostly Republican opponents in the 1960s to Medicare are very similar to the opponents to health care today.

So I say, setting the table, that there are major differences between the two parties. I was speaking to a couple of school groups recently, one from Lake-wood High School in east Cleveland and the University of Miami in Oxford, southwest Ohio. They asked about bipartisanship.

One woman said: I am neither a Republican nor Democrat—a young person, a 19- or 20-year-old college student. She said: I don't understand why they are blocking appointments, why you can't even agree on that, to even have a vote.

So the partisanship is surely more charged today than it has been. I explained to them not so much by ideological differences; that Democrats are believers by and large in things such as Medicare, and the Republicans think: Let the insurance industry do it. That is fine. That is a legitimate philosophical difference. The Republicans side with the insurance industry, and the Democrats believe government can play a positive role—not an overreach but a positive role in people’s lives by running programs such as Medicare or Medicaid, or programs such as Social Security, by running programs such as student loans, agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency which has made our country significantly safer and people’s neighborhoods significantly safer.

There are some people on the other side of the aisle who just want President Obama to fail. I don't think that is a majority of Republicans; I think it is some number. Let’s ignore that for a moment and just think there are philosophical differences between the two parties. I say that because I think there is something more going on, and that is on a lot of these issues there has been bipartisanship on this bill.

I sit on the Health Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee. We did our work on this bill back in May. Clearly, this hasn’t been rushed through the Senate. There has been a great deal of work on this. The Finance Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, the House Ways and Means Committee, the House Oversight Committee, and the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee. The Bush administration, on their big initiatives, pushed them through quickly without nearly as much debate as we have had, but, none-the less, we sat in the HELP Committee—Chairman Baucus knows this. It is what we accepted, I believe, 163 Republican amendments. I voted for probably 155 of them. I agreed with most of them. At the same time, the Finance Committee had negotiations with three Republican and three Democratic Senators. I think they took too long—that is my opinion—but they had negotiations for months. There were discussions in May and June and July and August and September. Finally, Chairman Baucus, in frustration, said: Let’s move forward. This doesn't seem to be working.

So there has been plenty of Republican input into this bill. There has been plenty of bipartisanship. As I said, there have been Republican amendments to the Senate Bill. There is a Republican flavor and certainly a bipartisian flavor. There were a couple of specific matters. They wanted to allow health insurers to sell across State lines. We did that in the bill. The bill has provisions that allows a company in Indiana to sell insurance to residents of Ohio.

A company in Indiana can sell in Ohio, and a company in Ohio can sell insurance to somebody across the line in Fort Wayne or in Richmond or in Indianapolis or in Gary or anywhere else in that State.

So we listened to that, and we included that in the bill because that is one the Republicans always talk about: If you can do it in New York, why can’t you do it in New Jersey? That would be a great thing. That is what we did. We agreed to that.

The second big issue the Republicans talk about is allowing individuals and small businesses and trade associations to pool together so they can acquire health insurance at lower prices, much the way the large corporations and unions do. We did it. We set up exchanges that are basically clearinghouses where companies so that individuals can go into these exchanges and buy insurance and spread the risk out among millions of people. Or small businesses can take their employees—for a company that may have 25 employees, if one or two of them get sick from cancer, let’s say, that small business will either—at best, that small business’s premiums will go up and at worst they will get their premiums canceled. If two or three or four employees are sick and it costs tens of thousands or maybe hundreds of thousands of dollars, you can be in a risk pool with millions so your rates don’t spike up. So the Republicans were right about that: Let them go into pools, and we did that.

So my point is, there is Republican flavor to this bill. There is Republican input—not just input, negotiations and successes—in this bill. There are 163 Republican amendments in the HELP Committee in this bill. There have been almost unending discussions surrounding the bill. Yet the Republicans, to a person, oppose the bill. The only reason I can figure that out—not that it doesn’t have bipartisanship to it—the only reason I can figure it out is what my colleague, Senator Demint from South Carolina, said: If this bill goes down, it is the President’s water-louse.

I don’t want to accuse my colleagues on the other side of the aisle of wanting this to fail in order to have the Democrats fail or wanting this to fail to damage Barack Obama’s Presidency. I don’t think that. I am not accusing them of that. I just think they have a different opinion.

I note the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll. The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEMIEUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. LEMIEUX. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to speak on the issue of health care. Right now the leaders of this body, as well as the House Representatives, are meeting with the President of the United States and members of his Cabinet at the Blair House to discuss the current health care reform proposal and where we should go forward to improve the health care of the people of this country.

I come to the floor today to talk about a specific portion of their discussion concerning health care fraud prevention.

Today, my colleague from Oklahoma, Senator Coburn, brought up with the President of the United States the issue of health care fraud prevention. As a Senator from Florida, this is something I have great concern about because, unfortunately, we are the capital of health care fraud for this country. I have put forward a proposal—S. 2128, the Health Care Fraud Prevention Act—to address one of our biggest problems.

Today, Senator Coburn brought up the fact that we believe that $1 out of every $3 spent on health care through Medicare or Medicaid or other public programs—$1 out of $3—is fraud, waste, and abuse—a shocking number. In fact, the belief is that $60 billion a year in Medicare alone—health care for seniors—is waste, fraud, and abuse.

Unfortunately, we don't have systems in place to give us and prevent these waste, fraud, and abuse. What we do in the Federal system when we think there is fraud is we send prosecutors and law enforcement folks out to
I went to Best Buy and bought a television. I live in Tallahassee, so before I left the store, my credit card sent me an e-mail. You live in Florida, is what this system is doing and thinking, and you are buying a television, which is a highly suspicious purchase, and you are doing it in Washington. DC. So I tell them yes, and the transaction goes through. If I tell them no, they do not pay Best Buy. They do not pay unless there is a verification on the front end. We can use the experience in health care to set up a predictive modeling system to prevent the fraud before it starts. I called the worldwide head of fraud prevention for MasterCard and asked him: Can we do what you do in health care? He said: Sure you can, and I will help you.

There is no reason we can’t stop billions of dollars of waste, fraud, and abuse.

Mr. President, before we go on to all the other issues, I want to make clear that we cannot agree upon, we should call up this bill and we should pass it. We would get 100 votes, I bet, in the Senate, and we could save what one group here in Washington thinks is $20 billion a year. That is $20 billion we could use to maybe pay down the deficit or put it back into Medicare, which is hurting and is going to run out of money in a few years. We could do good things with that money.

The third thing this bill does is it requires a background check for every health care provider. Can you believe we don’t check the criminal records of people who claim they are providing health care to our seniors? We don’t check to see if they are felons. We had a guy in Miami who was a convicted murderer who claimed to be a health care provider. This would require us do a background check. And if you are a criminal, guess what. You don’t get to provide health care. You don’t get to dupe the system.

So I hope we will take up this bill. I am appreciative of Senator Coburn. I am glad the President recognizes we can all agree on this. If we can all agree, let’s get something done. Let’s call the bill up and let’s pass it.

HAITI

Mr. President, I had the opportunity to go on a congressional visit to Haiti a couple of weeks ago—actually, 2 weeks from tomorrow. We were there on the 1-month anniversary of the tragic earthquake that killed more than 200,000 people. Two hundred thousand people died in Haiti. Myself and the other Members of the Senate and the House who went there were able to see some of the tragedy.

We visited the cathedral in Haiti. You often hear President Clinton talk about this wonderful Catholic cathedral in Haiti that stood the test of time but could not stand the test of this earthquake. In fact, really the only prominent part of this cathedral that still stood, unbelievably, was the cross. We talked to the people who were there. They are a wonderful and resilient people, and it is amazing that they could go on with the tragedy they had experienced.

I had the great honor to visit the Gesco Ford Operating Hospital, staffed mostly by American doctors and sponsored by the Clinton Foundation, some of them from Orlando, in my home State of Florida. They are doing wonderful work.

We met with the President of the country and the Prime Minister and Minister of Health, and we talked about what are the next steps.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter I authored to the President of the United States, to which I will be referring.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE
WASHINGTON, DC 20510
February 18, 2010.

HON. BARACK OBAMA, President of the United States, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: On Friday, February 12, we traveled to Haiti with a bipartisan group of colleagues from the House and Senate. And I want to thank Speaker Pelosi. The operation in Port-au-Prince, Haiti is dire. While much good work has been done to provide water and food, and to bury the dead, international assistance will be required for years to come. Although a disaster of historic proportions, this earthquake provides great opportunity for renewal and recovery of the past have for cities around the globe.

The goal must not be to return Haiti to where it was on January 11, 2010, but to assist the Haitian people in rebuilding a better, prosperous, and stable country.

We understand that in the coming weeks your administration will put forth a funding proposal to provide further relief to the Haitian people. For our efforts to be accomplished, that funding must be pursuant to a long-term plan for the success of Haiti’s redevelopment. Accordingly, we suggest the following:

With the aid of the international community, Haiti must develop a plan for long-term funding. That plan must include defined goals and accountability measures that ensure both transparency and sustainable progress. Second, funds must be provided in a significant way to the Haitian people directly. Micro-loans for small businesses and similar targeted programs that are directly linked to economic performance will foster entrepreneurship and organic business growth. Third, a priority of international assistance to Haiti must be to ensure the well-being, safety, and security of the thousands of orphans that are currently living in Haiti.

Fourth, long-term projects must focus on infrastructure and job growth with a special attention on developing centers of commerce outside the capital city, to strengthen the economy and disperse the population. Finally, a task force composed of Haitian-American leaders should be convened to tap the energy and vigor of America’s Haitian community to support sustained efforts for the relief effort.

In the short term, a joint effort must begin immediately to move displaced Haitians to high ground before the rainy season begins in the coming weeks. Thousands of Haitians are being housed in low-relief shelters and the tragedy will strike again when the rain comes. We urge your administration to stress this point combat the fraud. These folks are doing a very good job, and there has been a lot of good work done in my home State of Florida. But the truth is, that is going after the fraud after it has already happened, and oftentimes there is no money left to collect. What we need to do is what I have proposed, and what the Health Care Fraud Prevention Act, S. 2128, accomplishes is it stops the fraud before it starts.

I was happy today that the President agreed we need to prevent health care fraud. He said we have already incorporated all of the good ideas on this. I hope that means we are going to pass S. 2128. It is a bipartisan supported bill. It is a bill that would stop the fraud before it starts. It is not, however, in the Senate bill we passed in December. When I tried to bring this measure to the floor as an amendment, it was objected to. Since that time, I have worked with Senator Baucus and the Democratic and Republican side of the aisle to move this measure forward.

Senator Baucus and I have spoken about it. In the 11-page memo the President put forward, it references doing what S. 2128 would accomplish. So I hope that in the new proposal, we will put forward S. 2128 and pass it.

Quickly, what does the bill do? It does three things.

One, it creates a chief health care fraud prevention officer of the United States. That person, appointed by the President, would work at the agency for health and human services, and their job would be for combat fraud, and we have an industry in this country doing an excellent job of preventing fraud. When there is $60 billion in Medicare alone and potentially that whole job is to try to prevent that fraud. Remember, if this money is recovered, we can use it to provide health care, we can improve the quality of care because there will be more money going to helping our own, helping the poor, helping our veterans.

The second thing the bill does is it requires a background check for every health care provider. Can you believe we don’t check the criminal records of people who claim they are providing health care to our seniors? We don’t check to see if they are felons. We had a guy in Miami who was a convicted murderer who claimed to be a health care provider. This would require we do a background check. And if you are a criminal, guess what. You don’t get to provide health care. You don’t get to dupe the system.

So I hope we will take up this bill. I am appreciative of Senator Coburn. I am glad the President recognizes we can all agree on this. If we can all agree, let’s get something done. Let’s call the bill up and let’s pass it.

with President Préval and Prime Minister Bellerive.

In the midst of the terrible disaster, we were all struck by the strength and resiliency of our people. With a long-term, measurable plan for redevelopment, the people of Haiti can achieve an economy and a society worthy of our investment and their tremendous sacrifice.

Sincerely,

GEORGE S. LEMIEUX,
BILL NELSON,
AMY KLOBUCAR,
FRANK R. LAUTENBERG,
U.S. Senators.

Mr. LE MIEUX. Mr. President, this letter is cosigned by myself, Senator Nelson, my colleague from Florida, Senator Klobuchar, as well as Senator Lautenberg, all of whom were on the trip with me. The letter basically asks the President to do four things in trying to focus our help and relief for this country.

We have been involved in trying to help the Haitian people for decades, and the American people have opened their hearts and their wallets to help the situation in Haiti, but the situation is dire. I cannot think of a more complicated, difficult problem than trying to bring Haiti forward to a sustainable place. Haiti was already in bad shape, but it had a path forward and progress was being made. Now, as you drive the streets of Port-au-Prince, it looks like a bombed area. It looks like a war zone. You will randomly see three buildings standing as if nothing had happened and then a building that is completely and utterly destroyed.

Right now, thousands of people are huddled together in these makeshift camps in low-lying areas. My great fear for the short-term is that when the rains come, which they will in the next weeks in Haiti, there will be another great tragedy. So we have to be focused in our help.

So I, along with my colleagues, sent this letter to the President and asked the President to do four things:

First, create a long-term sustainable plan for Haiti and put in charge of that plan, on behalf of our relief efforts, a trustee, along with an inspector general, along with a board of advisers, to work in partnership with the Haitian Government to make sure the money is spent wisely. We cannot just send billions of dollars into Haiti and let the money evaporate in short-term solutions. There needs to be a long-term sustainable plan.

Second, we have to provide funds to the Haitian people directly. Small businesses need microloans so they can provide jobs for the people of Haiti. We can’t just give the money to third-party contractors.

Third, we have to be focused on this orphan issue. We have to make sure it is done legally, and where it is done legally, we have to make sure we get those children to their adoptive parents as quickly as possible.

Fourth, we have to make sure Port-au-Prince is not the center of the entire population for the country of Haiti. We are putting too many people in one place when tragedy strikes. We need to encourage development throughout the country.

I had the honor of having the President of Royal Caribbean cruise lines in my office yesterday—Floridian, Adam Goldstein—and we talked about tourism to Haiti. There is a beautiful citadel in Haiti that would be a wonderful attraction for cruise ship tourists. There have been all sorts of difficulties there in the past, and making sure it is safe and secure.

We need to find ways to create jobs outside of Port-au-Prince, outside that city, so that fragile humanity is not all focused in one place.

Finally, we need to make sure the Diaspora of Haiti, the Haitian-American people—for example, we have about 250,000 Haitian Americans in Florida—are involved in the rebuilding of Haiti. They need to be welcomed. They are dying to get involved. They are hungry to get involved in this process of rebuilding their home country.

So I hope the President will put together this commission, appoint a strong leader—a Colin Powell or someone who can work with the Haitian people to rebuild the island of Haiti, and I hope we can get effort and energy behind that proposal quickly so we don’t have any other significant challenges in the coming months ahead for the Haitian people.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, I rise today because our economy is struggling. Unemployment remains high, and the recession’s hold on cities across America is as strong as ever. My home State of Nevada has been one of the hardest hit, and our tourism-dependent economy is barely hanging on. Unfortunately, this is true for tourism-dependent cities across our country.

During these difficult economic times, it simply isn’t enough to try to stimulate domestic spending by passing one massive spending bill after another. We need to incentivize tourists from across the world to visit the truly unique destinations across America. From one coast of this country to the other, there are opportunities to tour historic sites, take advantage of recreational opportunities, observe great architecture, visit theme parks, dine in some of the finest restaurants in the world, view natural and man-made miracles, and soak up everything that is so uniquely found in America.

We all know we live in the best country in the world. Now is the time for people across the world to enjoy all we have to offer while repairing our economy at the same time.

My colleague from North Dakota, Senator Dorgan, understands the importance of reasserting our tourism industry on the world stage. Together, he and I have sponsored the Travel Promotion Act, which is before us today. This bipartisan piece of legislation would help to make our travel and tourism industry more successful and more competitive internationally. So I thank my colleague, Senator Dorgan, for his great leadership on this important issue.

Tourism is our country’s truest form of economic stimulus. The average overseas visitor to the United States spends roughly $4,500 per trip for hotel, transportation, dining, shopping, and other things. Unfortunately, tourism took a massive hit on 9/11, and it has not yet recovered. This lost decade has only been made worse by last year’s recession.

If the United States had managed to keep pace with global travel trends, 68 million more travelers would have visited the United States between 2000 and 2009. These travelers would have generated an estimated 250,000 new U.S. jobs in 2008 alone.

At a time when unemployment is at record-high numbers in this country, we cannot afford to throw away any tourism-related job creation. We could take a cue from Canada on successful tourism campaigns that we need so badly. If you have been watching the Olympics, you have seen these ads about British Columbia. I don’t know about the rest of you, but it has made me actually want to go up there. But it is not just watching the Olympics. It is the ads that have been the most successful part of making me want to go to that part of the world. They have beautiful things to advertise, to show you: Doesn’t that look like an incredible place to go visit?

Think about all we have in America that we can advertise to the rest of the world that may not have thought about it. I didn’t think about going up to Vancouver and British Columbia, but those ads spurred my interest in it, and I am sure they have for many Americans and other people around the world.

Tourism-related jobs can be created simply by spreading the word about the wonderful destinations that are literally scattered across the United States of America, and we can do it without raising taxes on hard-working American families or by digging ourselves even further into debt.

Unfortunately, the United States has dropped the ball when it comes to tourism and the industry has been virtually left behind. Declines in visits to the United States since 2000 have cost our country an estimated $500 billion in lost spending and at least $20 billion in lost tax receipts.

My speech today is not all gloom and doom, however. Instead, I stand here to offer a solution, a solution that can help get our hard-hit tourism industry back on its feet. What we need is a comprehensive strategy coordinated by public-private partnerships between the Government and the expert leaders from our travel and tourism industry. This effort needs to center on a major initiative that will make the wonderful destinations throughout our great country known to foreign audiences. Actually, we do not want them to just be aware of these magnificent places. We want them to feel compelled to visit them.

September 11, 2001, forever changed our country and the security measures along with it. We need to reinvigorate the hope and potential visitors about the new security policies of today so they can travel to and from our country with ease.

The bottom line is, the United States stands to make great gains economically and diplomatically. If we are to strengthen our travel and tourism industry, so how do we go about doing this? The Travel Promotion Act which is before us today would create a public-private corporation for travel promotion to the United States as a travel destination to overseas travelers. This corporation would develop and execute a plan to do the following: It would promote the United States and Americans worldwide by using coordinated advertising campaigns and other promotional activities, similar to what we see in the Olympics with Canada; the corporation would identify and correct misperceptions about U.S. travel policies; it would also help provide travel information to foreign visitors to the United States such as information about entry requirements, fees, and documents; and last, the corporation would focus its efforts to ensure that travelers benefit from overseas tourism, including areas not traditionally visited by international travelers.

Understand this, no taxpayer funds would be used to finance the corporation for travel promotion. Let me repeat that. No taxpayer funds would be used to finance the corporation for travel promotion. All the funding would come from private industry and from user fees paid by some international travelers. This would finally put the reins on equal footing with many other developed countries.

This legislation would be a true lifeline to my home State of Nevada, which depends so heavily on travel and tourism. I mentioned earlier my State was one of the hardest hit. But I do not think that description does the situation in Nevada justice. The tourism industry in Nevada, especially Las Vegas, has truly been crippled by the economic downturn. Workers were who struggled through home foreclosures have been forced to carry the burden of the downturned economy. Taxi cab drivers, valets, housekeepers, waiters and construction workers are struggling in this recession because Americans are not traveling like they used to. These workers are barely keeping their heads above water and some are not even able to do that. They are losing their homes, which has truly depleted the housing market in my State.

Boosting overseas travel will provide for growth in an otherwise shrinking segment of our economy, and it will help heal local economies around our country. This will, in turn, greatly advance our overall economy at a time when we cannot afford to turn away the potential of hundreds of billions of dollars more. With domestic travel and convention travel down, overseas travel could be the silver lining we all need. At a time when our country faces record deficit and spending levels, I know this money could mean so much to many of us. I say to you that I take my pledge of fiscal responsibility very seriously. I vote against spending bills that come across this floor all the time because they simply are an irresponsible waste of hard-earned taxpayer dollars. However, this bill is a responsible use of dollars. It does not apply a government spending bandaid to tough economic situations. It creates a solution that will greatly benefit our economy, and it does it without taxpayer dollars.

The Travel Act, which has the overwhelming support of Democrats and Republicans alike, is a relatively small investment that will significantly boost our economy, create jobs, and make us more competitive in the world. It not only decrease the deficit. This bill does not increase the deficit. But it could spur billions in additional economic activity, benefiting Americans all around the country.

The Congressional Budget Office—nonpartisan, the official scorekeeper around here—confirms it will not place any additional burden on the taxpayer. People across my State and across the country have had to make difficult decisions when it comes to their own families’ budgets. In fact, the legislation in my home State of Nevada is coming to terms with steep spending cuts and slashing services across the board as we speak, in a special session, because it is too little in the hole to sustain the current spending spree. So Americans are looking to us to boost the economy and so far we have not been able to do that.

Yes, we have spent money—and a lot of money at that, in fact—but our economic situation remains the same. I am asking that we look to the tourism industry as a lifeline for our economy, as I know it will be for my State and for so many others. The Travel Promotion Act will be that lifeline. It will create jobs, create opportunity, and show the world the beauty and the diversity of America.

Each one of us, who together represent all 50 States, knows we have incredible places to show the rest of the world. My home State of Nevada is actually the gateway to the Grand Canyon, which is located in Arizona. We have Lake Tahoe. We have, obviously, Las Vegas. We have so many other places to visit around our great State. So I urge each of us to tell those stories. What we need to do is tell them in a way that makes foreign travelers want to come to America. The Travel Promotion Act is going to help us do that.

Let me remind folks, if you watch the Olympics, ask yourself these questions when those commercials about British Colombia come on: Does that make you more or less likely to go, especially if you can afford it? I think the answer is pretty obvious. They make an attractive case to visit their country.

This is the United States of America, with some of the most beautiful, incredible places to see. Are you telling me we cannot advertise this in a way that makes people want to come here? Of course we can. We can have tourism really like never before in this country and all Americans will benefit by doing that because when foreign travelers come here, they spend money, boost the economy, and boost every single State in this country.

I encourage this Senate to pass this bill as quickly as possible and get it over to the President for signature so we can get on with boosting the economy.

I yield the floor.

KENNAN NOMINATION

Mr. WEBB. Mr. President, I would like to speak for a few minutes on behalf of Justice Barbara M. Kennan, who is the nominee to serve on the Fourth Circuit Court. I respectfully request, in the name of good governance and the proper functioning of our constitutional system, that our colleagues on the other side of the aisle allow a prompt vote on her nomination.

Justice Kennan was voted out of committee in October of last year by a unanimous voice vote. Her nomination is uncontroversial. She has been a dedicated public servant, a fair and balanced jurist, and her nomination has had broad bipartisan support. I believe it is critical that we move forward as quickly as possible to confirm her nomination.

There are currently four vacancies on the Fourth Circuit, more than any other circuit. The seat that Justice Kennan would fill has been vacant for more than 2 years. Justice Kennan is an extraordinary choice to fill this vacancy. She has been an associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit since 1991. She has been a trailblazer for women in the law throughout her career. At the age of 29, she was the first female general district court judge in Virginia when she was selected for the Fairfax County bench. That year she also became the first female circuit court judge when she was promoted to that court in 1982.
In 1985, she was 1 of 10 judges named to the First Virginia Court of Appeals and the only woman when that court was created. She was selected for the State Supreme Court, the second female justice ever to serve there, in 1991. She, in fact, the first judge to have served on all four levels of Virginia’s courts.

I also would like to point out when Governor McDonnell was recently sworn into his office, he specifically requested that Justice Kennan deliver him the oath of office. There is a wide bipartisan consensus inside Virginia about the quality of this nominee, and I am very hopeful we can move forward in an expeditious manner.

I am mindful of the Senate’s constitutional role in confirming executive nominations. It is vitally important, and a robust vetting process and debate are appropriate. We have conducted, inside Virginia in our delegation, that kind of vetting process which resulted in Justice Kennan’s name being moved forward.

In the spirit of pragmatic bipartisanship and good governance, I believe it is time to move past these procedural delays that seem to infect us and get on with the business of governing.

I would like to point out that out of 876 Federal judgeships, there are now 100 vacancies. These delays affect the administration of justice. These vacancies delay the resolution of disputes and they diminish our citizens’ rights to a speedy trial. It is my understanding the Judiciary Committee has broad support in this body. The vote in the Judiciary Committee is evidence of that. In fact, I will be very surprised if any Senator were to vote against her confirmation.

Again, I am asking my colleagues on the other side of the aisle if they might allow this nomination to proceed. I am asking my colleagues on the other side of the aisle if they might allow this nomination to proceed to a speedy trial. It is my understanding that. In fact, I will be very surprised if the Judiciary Committee is evidence of that. In fact, I will be very surprised if any Senator were to vote against her confirmation.

I am very hopeful we can move forward about the quality of this nominee, and I am very hopeful we can move forward. Once again, I am asking my colleagues on the other side of the aisle if they might allow this nomination to advance in a timely way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. SHAHEEN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BURRIS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

Mr. BURRIS. Madam President, as I address this Chamber, President Obama has assembled leaders of both political parties in a summit on the issue of health care reform. He has asked for all serious proposals to bring to the table, once and for all, in an effort to bridge the gap between the House and Senate legislation and pass a final bill. He even provided his own proposal for how we can reconcile these bills with one another.

I thank the President for his leadership on this issue and his continued commitment to the issue of health care reform. I am glad he has called Republicans and Democrats to the table once again in yet another effort to reenergize this debate and move forward on behalf of the American people. I remain confident that we can still get this work done. That is why I have come to the floor today: to reaffirm my commitment to comprehensive health care reform and to urge my colleagues to join with our President and the leadership of our respective parties to find a real solution. In fact, I recently joined many of my colleagues in signing a letter urging this Senate to pass a bill that includes a public option. It is something the floor and room knows I have supported since the beginning of this long debate. No matter what comes out of this afternoon’s summit, I will judge our final proposal based on its ability to acknowledge these three goals I have called for time and again over the past several months.

Our reform bill must restore competition to the insurance market, it must give us a hold insurance companies accountable, and it must provide real cost savings to the American people. I am confident we can pass a measure that is capable of meeting these goals. I remain confident that after nearly a century of inaction, the American people demand and deserve nothing less.

Every President, every Congress, every ordinary citizen in the past 97 years has had to wrestle with a health care system that is broken and inadequate, a system that our predecessors consistently failed to fix; a system that has deteriorated badly over the last few decades and that remains unworthy of this great Nation. Today, 47 million people are without health insurance and 88 million do not have stable coverage. As a result of our broken system, 45 million Americans die every single year because they had no health insurance. These shocking facts should never be far from our minds as we debate these issues. They are more than just statistics; they are ordinary Americans who desperately need our help.

As I address this Chamber today, we stand on the verge of correcting the oversights of the past century and getting these people the help they need. Legislation has been written, amended, and rewritten. We have compromised and compromised again. Each Chamber of the Congress has passed a comprehensive bill. Neither bill is perfect but both represent significant progress. We are so close to doing this. Now is the time to finish the journey.

The House and Senate voted for health care reform with a strong voice and a clear majority. At this point, we have only to reconcile the differences between these two bills. Just this week, President Obama released his detailed proposal outlining exactly how we can get this done. I urge my colleagues from both Chambers and from both parties to strongly consider this option.

Regardless of how we choose to proceed after today’s bipartisan health care summit, let us go forward with a definite plan of action. Let us come away with a plan to get this done, a plan that includes competition, cost savings, and accountability.

It is time to realize the promise of the last 100 years. I urge my colleagues to finish the fight that Teddy Roosevelt first waged more than a generation before any of us were born. Now is not the time to lose our nerve. Now is the time to act with conviction. Let’s make sure we get the basics of a few to undermine legislation that garnered 60 votes in this Chamber and 220 votes in the House. I refuse to accept that a handful of “no” votes can invalidate 220 votes. I refuse to accept that the minority party can stifle the voices of millions of Americans and hundreds of Members of Congress who have demanded that we win this fight.

I call upon my colleagues in both Chambers to look past our differences and carry out the will of the American people. They sent Democrats to Congress with the largest majority in decades. They elected a President who has pledged himself to this cause.

As far as the American people are concerned, this debate was over a long time ago. This issue has carried the day. This is the measure that the American people voted for in 2008 and, my fellow Democrats, this is what our party is all about. Now is not the time to shrink from this engagement in it. Now is not the time to falter or to second-guess the wisdom of the folks who sent us here. Now is the time to take bold action, to forge ahead, to carry forward the ideas and principles of our party by delivering real results and delivering for the American people a health care plan that will give them protection and not see their premiums going up 39 percent and 40 percent.

Comprehensive health care reform will extend quality coverage to 31 million Americans. It will reduce premiums and prevent insurance companies from abusing their customers or discriminating against people who get sick. Can my colleagues imagine: You get sick and think you have coverage today and then they cancel your policy and you have no coverage. The majority leader stood on the floor yesterday and told the story about the young kid with the cleft lip, where the father paid $90,000 because the insurance company canceled the policy because the kid was born with a cleft lip. That is unconscionable. We in this country should not tolerate it.

They could even cut the Federal deficit by about $1 trillion over the next two decades. I ask my colleagues: What are we waiting for? This is about values, not politics. Our country deserves better, so let's make it happen.

In politics, it is easy to find excuses. It is easy to wait, to delay, to place blame on another and throw up our hands. That is not leadership. That is not what the American people have called upon us to do and it is far less than they deserve. The American people have been waiting for 100 years, and I, for one, think that is quite long enough.

I say to my colleagues: It is time for us to lead. It is time to take up the mantle of Teddy Roosevelt and, yes, Teddy Kennedy, and everyone in between. Because this isn’t just about health care; it is about creating jobs, helping small businesses, and keeping America on the road to economic recovery. These issues are not separate as some would have us believe. They are tied intricately together. Fixing the American health care system will reduce the deficit, make it easier for small businesses to meet expenses, create jobs, and provide health coverage to more Americans than ever before.

The way I see it, we cannot afford to wait any longer.

Let us act with a strong, united voice. I urge my colleagues to join me in passing a final health care bill and sending it to President Obama as soon as possible. Yesterday would have been all right.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to reconsider be made and laid upon the desk; that the bill and its amendments, reports, and poverty guidelines—received from the Committee on Finance on February 25, 2010—be ordered to stand in the Senate on the calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Bunning). Is there objection?

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I objective.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Burgin). Is there objection?

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I objective.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to proceed to Unanimous Consent Request—H.R. 4691 is in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Durbin). There is no objection.
there be 60 minutes of debate with respect to that amendment, with the time equally divided and controlled between the leaders or their designees; that upon the use or yielding back of that time, and if a budget point of order is made against the amendment, a motion to recess or to adjourn the Senate or to change the point of order be considered made, and the Senate then vote on the motion to waive the point of order; that if the waiver is successful, the amendment be agreed to and the Reid substitute, as amended, be agreed to; that if the waiver fails, the amendment be withdrawn; further, that there be 3 minutes for debate with respect to the Reid substitute amendment, with the time equally divided and controlled between the leaders or their designees; that upon the use or yielding back of that time, and if a budget point of order is made against the amendment, a motion to waive the relevant point of order be considered made, and the Senate then vote on the motion to waive the point of order; if the waiver is successful, the Senate proceed to vote on adoption of the Reid substitute amendment; further, that no further amendments, motions, except a motion to reconsider a vote, or debate be in order; that upon disposition of the Reid substitute amendment, the bill, as amended, be read a third time; and following the reading by the clerk of the budgetary effects of the pay-go legislation with respect to H.R. 1586, the Senate proceed passage of the bill, as amended; that upon passage, the title amendment, which is at the desk, be considered and agreed to.

Before my friend from Kentucky makes his feelings known, let me say this. This is something we worked out yesterday. When I say “we,” that means Democrats and Republicans, all except one Senator. What this agreement allows is for all the provisions in this, these extensions be paid for out of the stimulus or the economic recovery money with their vote. Some people want to do that. Let’s vote on it. We know what the rules are. We are sent here to vote. We are not sent here to object. When 99 Senators want something done, it is not right for one Senator to hold it up. My friend has that right. But it is a real problem for so many different people. I would hope we could have a vote. We can do it tonight and move on to other things.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BUNNING. Reserving the right to object, I just wish to make sure I am objecting to the right motion. In the third-to-last sentence, the leader used, in my opinion, the wrong number. He used H.R. 1586.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the Senator from Kentucky is right. I have it written here.

Mr. BUNNING. It should be 4691.

Mr. REID. That was my mistake. I appreciate the Senator catching that.

Mr. BUNNING. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, may I now speak and propose a unanimous consent? First of all, let me say this to my good friend from Nevada. I have worked very hard trying to work out a compromise, anywhere from 2 to 4 weeks on this, trying to get it paid for, for the time of the extension. We were very close. We tried to get agreement using different pay-fors than the Senate proposed. But in the final analysis, it came down to, when the White House summit adjourned, the leader came back and it was going to be his way and no one else’s way. That is what it turned into. I am going to propose a 30-day extension with an offset. So I am as anxious to get those same provisions he has brought up—the COBRA, flood insurance, Satellite Home Viewer Act, highway funding, SBA provisions, American Recovery Home Viewer Act, SGR, pothole guidelines. I wish to get them renewed also.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 4691

So, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691; that the amendment at the desk, which offers a full offset, be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). Is there objection?

The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, there probably has never been a time in the history of our country when we had economic conditions that are like they are today—unemployment all over this country averaging some 10 percent; some States as high as 14 percent. If there were ever an emergency with our economy, it is tonight, it is today. And to think we are not going to declare this an emergency?

Millions of people are unemployed, millions of people have been unemployed for long periods of time and their unemployment benefits are running out. They are not able to buy their health insurance because the program is going to expire on Monday.

The Senate has a history of treating unemployment benefits as an emergency. No one, I repeat, can argue that the current economic downturn does not represent an emergency. So, Mr. President, I am forced to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding rule XXII, the cloture vote on the motion to concur in the House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.R. 1299, the United States Capitol Police Administrative Technical Corrections Act.

Harry Reid, Byron L. Dorgan, Russell D. Feingold, Patrick J. Leahy, Daniel K. Inouye, Kay R. Hagan, Jeff Bingaman, Robert Menendez, Richard J. Durbin, Jack Reed, Mark Begich, Patty Murray, Bernard Sanders, Robert P. Casey, Jr., Barbara Boxer, Jon Tester, John D. Rockefeller IV.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the motion to concur in the House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.R. 1299, the United States Capitol Police Administrative Technical Corrections Act, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. LANTZER) and the Senator from Virginia (Mr. Warner) are not present.

Mr. KYL. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Texas (Mrs. HUTCHISON) and the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. INHOFE).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 76, nays 20, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 26 Leg.]

S773
The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 76, the nays are 20. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is agreed to.

The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that following the remarks of Senator DeMINT, his vote and the next vote be 10 minutes in duration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Closure having been invoked, the motion to refer falls.

Under the previous order, all postcloture time is yielded back.

The Senator from South Carolina, Mr. DeMINT, is recognized for up to 10 minutes.

Mr. DeMINT. Mr. President, I know many here are very anxious to start a new government agency, and I won’t hold you up for very long.

It is important that we recognize some things that are happening. There is probably one good thing we can do tonight—maybe—to stop the landslide of more government control. In the last year—a little over a year—we have seen this Federal Government take over two of our largest auto companies, our largest mortgage company, our largest insurance company, and expand its control on America’s domestic energy sources, and, of course, we had the debate on trying to expand control of health care.

We are expecting, very soon, a new financial reform package that will expand Federal control everywhere from Wall Street to the local pawnshop.

While these big things are coming in front of us, there are things happening in the executive branch that are circumventing Congress, and that should concern us. A lot of you have heard from industries back home about what the EPA standards are doing. Businesses don’t know what to expect, nor do local communities. I had an engine company in my office today that said orders were on hold until they find out what the EPA is going to do. I have also heard that in the last week talking about the FCC and the coming ruling on expanding control over the Internet—one place in our economy that continues to boom with innovation.

There is one thing that just leaked out that I want to bring to your attention. We need to try to halt that tonight before it is too late. A whistle-blower at the Department of the Interior leaked a document that shows they are considering using the Antiquities Act to grab over 10 million acres of land in nine Western States and basically take them offline of jobs for mining, forestry, and energy. This includes Nevada, Utah, Montana, New Mexico, California, Arizona, Oregon, Colorado, and Washington. It is important that we stop this and at least have some Senate hearings on what they are trying to do.

This is a priority for what we are talking about today because the President and the Congress have said our top priority is jobs. This action by the Interior Department will hurt jobs. It will dry up tax revenues in local communities and States. It will restrict energy supplies in this country.

Mr. President, all I am asking is that we suspend the rules, which require 67 votes, and vote on this amendment to stop the Department of the Interior from taking over over 10 million acres of land and hurting our economy and jobs.

I promised the leader I would keep it to less than 10 minutes. I encourage everybody to support this motion I am getting ready to make.

Mr. President, I move to suspend the provisions of rule XXII, including germaneness requirements, for the purpose of proposing and considering my amendment, which is on the desk, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the motion of the Senator from Oklahoma to suspend rule XXII and offer an amendment to prohibit the establishment of national monuments under the Antiquities Act or any other law.

I understand that the proposed amendment is in response to allegations that a portion of an internal planning memo at the Department of the Interior identified several areas throughout the country as areas that may be appropriate for potential national monument consideration.

The Secretary of the Interior has stated that the document was simply a brainstorming exercise to identify sites on public land that might merit more serious consideration for possible management options, and that no decisions have been made about which areas, if any, might merit more serious review and consideration.

I don’t think it makes sense to try to legislate every time an article appears in the newspaper. I would observe that even the document in question that was leaked to certain Members of Congress states that “further evaluations should be completed prior to any decision, including an assessment of public and Congressional support.” Secretary Salazar has publicly stated his view that new designations and conservation initiatives work best when they build on local efforts. So I think that any attempt to legislate at this time is very premature.

Apart from the substantive problems with the proposed DeMINT amendment, the travel promotion bill is not the appropriate legislation to consider this issue, and waiving the Senate rules to allow for consideration of an amendment that would not otherwise be in order is, in my view, not appropriate.

For these reasons, I oppose the motion to suspend rule XXII.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. LAUTENBERG) and the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WARNER) are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. (Mr. FRANKEN). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 38, nays 58, as follows:

the number of international visitors between January and November of 2009 fell by 7.2 percent compared to the same period during 2008.

Both developing countries and industrialized economies around the world have ministers and offices that promote travel to specific countries. However, the United States does not have an office that promotes travel and tourism abroad. This legislation is an important first step in the right direction. Establishing an Office of Travel Promotion will help to attract foreign travelers to the United States. This will not only sustain our tourism based industries, it reinforces business relationships and promotes a better understanding between Americans and our friends abroad. Interacting with the American people is a valuable tool at our disposal to dispel international travelers of misconceptions they may have about our country. Approximately 74 percent of visitors have a more favorable opinion of the United States after visiting our country.

The economic activity generated by international travel and its promotion should be approached in the same manner we foster other industries equally important to jobs and the economy. The Travel Promotion Act of 2009 is vital to our travel and tourism industry’s ability to compete globally, and to restore confidence in the United States’ image as a country that is committed to welcoming our friends from abroad. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation, and help us ensure that international business and leisure travel to the United States is given all of the tools necessary to succeed.

The question is on agreeing to the motion to concur in the House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.R. 1299.

Mr. MENENDEZ. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays are ordered. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the Senate amendment to H.R. 1299.

Mr. MENENDEZ. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays are ordered.

Mr. MENENDEZ. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays are ordered.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?
Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 4691

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691, a 30-day extension of provisions which expire on Sunday, February 28—unemployment insurance, COBRA, flood insurance, Satellite Home Viewer Act, highway funding, SBA business loans and small business provisions of the American Recovery Act, SGR and poverty guidelines—received from the House and at the desk; that the bill be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. BUNNING. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, the Senator has objected to extending unemployment benefits across the United States of America which will expire on Sunday night. He has also objected to extending COBRA benefits, which is health insurance for the unemployed people across America. This has been done regularly, now that we are in this recession, because millions of Americans are out of work. We know there are four or five, maybe even six people for every available job. Folks have depleted their savings, they run the risk of losing their homes, they are trying to keep their children in school, they are trying to provide the necessities of life, and the Senator from Kentucky objected to their having unemployment benefit checks.

What does it mean to me? Well, in the State of Illinois, it means that as of Sunday night, 15,000 people in my State will stop receiving unemployment benefits because of the objection of the Senator from Kentucky. It means that every week thereafter another 15,000 will lose their unemployment benefits. It is a harsh reality that many of these families have been looking forward to for a long time.

The Senator has also objected to providing assistance to small business. The request I made would extend, for 30 days, provisions of the Small Business Act and the Recovery Act lending programs for small businesses. So what the Senator from Kentucky is doing, as of Sunday night, is shutting down the availability of credit for small businesses across America through this Small Business Administration program. In the midst of a recession, when we are all working very hard, these are the engines that will bring us out of this recession, when they are desperate for credit to keep their doors open, families who have spent a lifetime building a small business are going to be denied an opportunity to borrow money through the Small Business Administration because of the objection of the Senator from Kentucky.

Let me say a word about COBRA. One of the first casualties of unemployment is health insurance. Sadly, many of these people are in a position where they do not qualify for Medicaid—health insurance for the poorest people. So they find themselves without health insurance for the first time because they are unemployed. We said, under President Obama's Recovery Act, we are going to help you pay for those premiums so you can continue to have health insurance for your family. That expires Sunday night too. The objection of the Senator from Kentucky means thousands of people across America will lose their health insurance. Because of this, 100,000 people, they will lose it on Sunday night.

Workers who lose their jobs count on COBRA. And COBRA, frankly, is expensive. On average, COBRA coverage consumes 84 percent of unemployment benefits. It is not cheap. The average monthly unemployment benefit in Illinois is just over $1,300. The average monthly family COBRA premium is over $1,100. Through the Recovery Act, we said we would pick up 85 percent of that. Well, because of the objection of the Senator from Kentucky, if these people want to maintain their health insurance through unemployment, they are basically going to have to turn to savings or give it up. Why? Why would we want to heap this kind of suffering on people who are already going through such misfortune? It isn't just Illinois that suffers, it is virtually every State. As of December, because of his 30,000 people in Kentucky unemployed—10.7 percent of the Kentucky workforce—63,000 people in Louisville, 18,000 people in Lexington, 6,000 in Bowling Green, 5,500 in Elizabethtown, 5,000 in Owensboro. As they are doing without work, many of these people are just getting by on unemployment checks. They are just trying to get by.

Last month, the State of Kentucky had the sharpest increase in unemployment claims in the country—in the entire United States—with 2,510 more claims than the month prior due to the automobile industry and manufacturing job cuts. Unfortunately, many people will lose their unemployment benefits in Kentucky because of the objection of their Senator. If Senator BUNNING has his way, more than 14,000 Kentucky residents will lose their unemployment assistance in March and 60,000 in June.

Why? Why are we doing this to these families in Kentucky and Illinois and every State? Everyone acknowledges there is only one objection. Everyone in this Chamber acknowledges we are a caring and compassionate country, and we will, on an emergency basis, extend a helping hand to those who have lost their jobs. Most Senators have left for the evening, but some have stayed on the floor. I have asked them if they would like to say a word on this issue. They are going to go home and tell their people back home there are going to be some terrible things happening as of tonight. The objection of the Senator from Kentucky: 15,000 in my State, thousands in his own State and all across the country.

I am staying tonight to talk about this because, frankly, I don't think this country ought to be business as usual. I don't think one Senator ought to be able to heap this kind of suffering and misfortune on people who are already struggling in this economy. If you wish to take it out on somebody, take it out on a colleague or a debate, but these are helpless people out of work.

Senator Reid offered to the Senator from Kentucky an amendment—bring to the floor your theory on how to pay for this. He has a theory. He wants to pay for it with stimulated funds, as I understand it. He would have had his chance on the floor to make his case. He would have had a rollcall at the end of the day. He might have won, he might have lost, but he would have had his chance on the floor and said I am not going to fall for that. I may lose this amendment and therefore I am going to object.

That is the nature of things. It is like when you pitch a ball game. Sometimes you win and sometimes you lose. On the floor, sometimes you win.

Mr. BUNNING. Do you know about that?

Mr. DURBIN. I have never pitched a ball game. I never have. I am very proud of what you have done in your baseball career. But let me tell you, this is a wild pitch you are throwing tonight because this is a pitch that is hitting somebody in the stands, it is hitting an unemployed worker in Illinois. That is a wild pitch that should not have been thrown, Senator.

I believe when you look at what this is going to do across America, this is unforgivable that we would do this to these unemployed people.

For the Senator from Michigan, I yield for the purpose of a question.

Ms. STABENOW. I appreciate the Senator from Illinois, my friend, in his comments. I guess my question would relate to the State of Michigan because the Senator listed all the important statistics. I wonder if the Senator is aware that in March, 62,000 people in the great State of Michigan, where we have the highest unemployment rate—we have a 14.6-percent unemployment rate, over 700,000 people right now unemployed, looking for work. These are people trying to keep a roof over their head, trying to keep food on their table, they are trying to hold things together as they are looking for a job. Yet we have 62,000 great people from Michigan who are going to lose their unemployment benefits in March. In fact, if this continues—and I know all of us are working very hard to get a year extension of unemployment benefits. But I am wondering if my friend is aware that by May, 225,000 people in Michigan will be out of their benefits. These are people who are looking for work. We know for every one job available there are six people right now who are fighting to get that job. We have to get jobs for people. We are working very hard to make sure there are more jobs and partnering within the private sector.

But in the meantime, I am wondering if my friend would agree with the fact that long-term unemployment extends over many decades and as much a disaster for families as anything else. We do emergency spending for floods and hurricanes and all kinds of disasters. For families, would my friend agree, this is as much of a disaster and warrants as much immediate attention as anything else we do?

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Michigan, this has been characterized as an emergency because it is an emergency. It has been acknowledged by the Senate Committee. It will be treated as an emergency spending situation. It is an extraordinary situation, just like a drought or flood or hurricane or tornado. These people have had their lives disrupted. We are trying to keep these families together.

If there is ever a family value issue, this is it.

At this point I would like, on behalf of the people of Michigan and Illinois and Kentucky, Mr. President, to ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691, a 30-day extension of provisions which expire on Sunday, February 28, unemployment insurance, COBRA, flood insurance, Satellite Home Viewer Act, highway funding, SBA, business loans and small business provisions of the American Recovery Act, SGR, and poverty guidelines received from the House and at the desk; that the bill be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BUNNING. The Senator from Kentucky objects.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Rhode Island for purposes of a question.

Mr. NEED. I am wondering if the Senator from Rhode Island can tell us how many people have lost employment and how many people have lost their jobs.

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from Rhode Island he is correct. In these elections many people have lost so many jobs, we set politics aside and we say we are going to help these people, whether it is victims of an economic disaster or a natural disaster. I cannot imagine if I were going home to Rhode Island, facing 12.9 percent unemployment, that I would have extended unemployment insurance for families who are looking for work. We know for every one job available there are six people right now who are fighting to get that job. We have to get jobs for people. They are really up against it when it comes to health insurance. It is one of the first casualties. This objection by the Senator from Kentucky will make sure we do not get help to many families who have appropriate extended unemployment benefits, that now we are going to. I think they are going to be as surprised as I am. It is easy to get out of touch in this place. People are deferential to you around here. They open doors for you and bow and scrape. It is easy to forget what people are going through, what family is feeling right now, how hard it is for them to look to the future and still see that American dream on the horizon.

Really, 30 days of unemployment? Really? Have we gotten to that? Have we gotten to that point that that is going to be a political football? I think we have to take a hard look in the mirror, if it comes to this—30 days of unemployment insurance for families who want to work, who deserve to work, who are trying to work.

By the way, let me ask the Senator from Illinois, if the unemployment runs out, where do those families go? What happens then? Where do they go?

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Missouri, people there is almost no place to turn. In my hometown of Springfield, IL, there is something called township assistance, when you have no place to turn. It is a fraction of the money you would receive for unemployment. It would barely provide money for food for these people.

Mrs. McCASKILL. Mr. President, I am assuming if they get to the point, then it is food stamps, right?

Mr. DURBIN. That is correct.

Mrs. McCASKILL. There is other governmental assistance that is available to them. Maybe they will have to lose their homes. They would have to go to homeless shelters.

What I am trying to get at is there is a cost to this. It is not like all of a sudden the government is not going to get any cost if these stop getting unemployment insurance. If they lose their health insurance, it is not as though they are going to get treatment. They may get hit by a car on Monday. We are going to take care of them in the emergency room. We are all going to pay for it.
This is wrong. I hope the Senator sticks around and renews this motion for a while. I hope some of us stick around and help.

The American people need to realize how out of touch this place has gotten.

Mr. DURBIN. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. DURBIN. Regular order. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Mr. BUNNING. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator reserves the right to object.

Mr. BUNNING. It seems to me that people have been listening, particularly the Senator from Illinois. He has been through two of these with the leader. He heard the arguments on both sides. Unfortunately, he has a one-side-only view on this. I have offered the same COBRA, flood insurance, unemployment insurance, Satellite Home Viewing Act, highway funding, SBA business loans, small business loans and small business provisions of the American Recovery Act, SGR, and poverty guidelines received from the House and at the desk; that the bill be read three times, passed, and that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

Mr. DURBIN. Reserving the right to object. Mr. BUNNING. Regular order. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Mr. BUNNING. Reserving the right to object.

Mr. BUNNING. It seems to me that people have been listening, particularly the Senator from Illinois. He has been through two of these with the leader. He heard the arguments on both sides. Unfortunately, he has a one-side-only view on this. I have offered the same COBRA, flood insurance, unemployment insurance, Satellite Home Viewing Act, highway funding, SBA business loans, small business loans and small business provisions—I have offered to do the same thing for the same amount of time. The only difference I have, and some of my good friends from the other side of the aisle, is that I believe we should pay for it.

There is a right over the last 3 years of the Democratically controlled Congress. We have run up $5 trillion in debt. There has to be a time to stop that.

We just passed, last week, pay-as-you-go. The first bill up—and I have said this before earlier—was the small business bill that just passed. Now, $5 billion out of that bill was paid for; $10 billion was not.

This is the second request after we passed the small business bill that the leader proposed. This also adds $10 billion to the deficit. That is $20 billion in two small bills.

What I have proposed is that we pay for it. My gosh, we have over $100 billion in unspent stimulus money. I also worked, or tried to work, with the leader and his staff. I know he was busy in the White House. I tried very hard to work with his staff to get other pay-fors and cut the time down to 2 weeks to make sure these people were taken care of.

I did not get any support from my good friends on the Democratic side of the aisle. I tried very hard to work with his staff to try to do what you are proposing to do, the Senator from Illinois. I will be here as long as you are here and as long as all of those other Senators are here. I am going to object every time because you will not pay for this and you propose never to pay for it.

Eventually, by Tuesday, when we do have another vote, you will get a vote, and you will get this done. So I am trying to make a point to the people of the United States of America: We have a debt of $14-plus trillion. I listened to the head of the Federal Reserve speaking to me in the Banking Committee on Monday, about the same high numbers, and said the debt and the proposed budget of the Obama administration makes the debt unsustainable. We cannot sustain it.

I have a family of nine children and 40 grandchildren. I am as concerned as all of those good Senators sitting over there to pay for this and make sure we give these benefits to those people. But that is not the case. So it is their way or the highway, and I am not taking the highway.

Mr. DURBIN. Regular order. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Mr. BUNNING. I object. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. DURBIN. I wanted to give the Senator from Kentucky an opportunity to explain his position. I did not assert regular order until he had an opportunity to do so. But I would like to remind him, on November 4 of last year, he issued a press release entitled, “Bunning Supports Extension of Benefits for Kentucky’s Unemployed.” The legislation includes Senator Bunning’s net operating loss amendment. It passed by a vote of 98 to 0. And he said: Kentucky has been hit hard by the current economic downturn. This legislation will lend a helping hand to working families across the Commonwealth who are in search of a job.

It was not paid for either. The point is, we are in the same recession. It has gotten worse in some areas of the country, particularly in the Senator’s area of the country.

As I reported earlier, unemployment figures are growing in Kentucky. The situation is just as dire and just as serious.

I share the Senator’s concern about our deficit situation. But virtually every reputable economist you will talk to will tell you, in the midst of a recession you need to insert into the economy economic activity and spending, and the fastest is unemployment benefits to those out of work because they spend it instantly. It goes right back into the economy.

This idea of somehow we are going to hold back on unemployment benefits and balance the budget on the backs of unemployed people in Illinois and Kentucky, you could not pick a worse strategy or a worse time to do it. The stories coming out of Illinois and the stories coming out of Kentucky are as graphic as can be.

Samantha, who lives in Kentucky, writes: I am in desperate need of help.
Would my friend agree that, in fact, there are other choices? In fact, when we have the debate about extending the tax cuts to the wealthiest Americans, I want to hear the same debate and the same objection coming as is coming to people right now who are trying to hold it together for $200 or $300 a week and keep food on their table for their families.

Would my colleague agree?

Mr. DURBIN. I agree with the Senator from Michigan. I will tell you that because the Senator from Kentucky has noted our current national debt, $14 trillion, I think it is worth a moment to explain that debt and how we reached it.

When President George W. Bush became President of the United States, we had a national debt of $5 trillion, and we handed him a surplus—as President Clinton left office, he gave to President George W. Bush a surplus. At the end of the George W. Bush Presidency 8 years later, we were knocking on the door of $12 trillion in debt. We had more than doubled the national debt in 8 years.

How did that happen? Some of it came from circumstances beyond President Bush’s control. 9/11 devastated the economy, and that devastation cost us dearly in terms of jobs and services and businesses and revenue lost.

But conscious decisions were made by the George W. Bush administration to enact tax cuts in the midst of a war. That has never happened before in the history of the United States. It is counterintuitive. In addition to your ordinary budget of your country, you have a war budget on top of it. When you desperately need revenue to pay for that war and the ordinary expenses of your government, this administration, the previous administration under George W. Bush said: Let’s give tax cuts to the wealthiest people in the midst of those two wars. They were voted on by the other side of the aisle, who supported the idea, driving us deeper in debt as a nation. And, of course, we waged the wars under President Bush without paying for them. That, too, added to our national debt.

Another $400 billion was added to the debt with the Medicare prescription drug program, which was not paid for. So when this President came to office, he inherited not only a recession, but $12 trillion in national debt brought on by the previous administration. The recession has taken and added another $1 trillion to that debt in this last year, and we are trying to claw our way out of it.

Now, that is the reality and the history of how we reached this point of $14 trillion in debt. To suggest it is the Democratic side of the aisle that does not take the deficit seriously, I would say, we produced a surplus under President Clinton, a surplus that was hand-ed to President George W. Bush and quickly mushroomed into the biggest debt in the history of the United States of America.

Mr. SESSIONS. Would the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield for a question. Mr. SESSIONS, The Senator from Illinois is very eloquent today. But I think he is avoiding the question posed by Senator Bunning, who simply says he is prepared tonight to fund the programs that you wish, to have them go forward.

As I understand it, it is not true he said that if you take this $10 billion, I think it is, that is required to fund this program, and you fund it out of the $400 billion unspent from the stimulus—a large part of it was supposed to go for this very purpose—that he would let the bill go tonight; that what he objects to is not doing that, and which, in effect, means—does it mean that the debt will be increased again tonight by another $10 billion.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield for the purpose of responding to the Senator from Alabama, there is one element that he has forgotten to include; that is, the majority leader, Senator Reid, offered to the Senator from Kentucky a vote, an up-or-down vote, as to whether these unemployment benefits and COBRA benefits would be paid for out of stimulus funds. He rejected it. He said: I do not want to agree to that because I may lose the vote. And he may.

The Senator from Kentucky would not agree to a vote on that question. He said: I may lose it. Well, he may. He may win it. But the fact is, he would not agree to a vote. He said: You have to agree to this unanimous consent resolution that says this would be paid for.

Now, I would say to the Senator from Alabama, I understand that the remaining stimulus funds, most of which are already committed and obligated, will be spent this year on projects in Alabama, Illinois, and Kentucky to create jobs. So the money we take out of that stimulus fund now unspent is money that will not be spent to create jobs in these states.

Now, that to me, would be a misfortune because we want to create jobs. I will concede to you this money for unemployment will add to the deficit, as previous emergency spending for unemployment has as well. What we are asking for tonight has been the ordinary care of business, which the Senator from Kentucky has supported as recently as November.

Mr. SESSIONS. Would the Senator yield?

Mr. DURBIN. I yield only for the purpose of a question. Mr. SESSIONS, We are well aware that the Democrats have a sizable majority in both chambers and the Democratic leadership, including yourself, is committed to not paying for this and taking care of this appropriation by borrowing additional money from the world on which we pay interest, then it is likely to be a futile act to have this vote.

He is asking you to step to the plate, as I understand it, is he not, and say: Join with me and let’s pay for it, either through the stimulus or some other way, and let’s not keep adding debt because that is what the American people are asking. And I ask you, are you not hearing that from your constituents?

Mr. DURBIN. I am hearing from my constituents that they are out of work. Many of them are unemployed. And I would say to the Senator from Alabama, we may have 59 votes, but you know as well as I do that 60 votes is the coin of the realm in this body.

You also know that with very little parliamentary effort, you can drag out this whole question through motions to proceed and cloture and filibusters. It can go on literally for days if not weeks.

I ask the Senator from Alabama, why would we do that in a situation where these people desperately need help for unemployment assistance and for health insurance? Why do we want to hold this misery on? We said to the Senator from Kentucky: You can have a vote. You may win. You may lose. You will have your day on the floor of the Senate. He said: No. Unless you accept my way, go to the highway. Did I hear that earlier? As far as I am concerned, that is not a reasonable approach.

I have called up amendments on the floor and lost them. But the point is, you make your best case, and the Senate decides whether to support your position. Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator from Illinois for allowing me to ask those questions. I think the Senator from Kentucky is speaking on behalf of the conscience of a lot of Americans, a majority of Americans, if they heard this debate. He is doing it as a matter of principle. I know he has no desire to see people not receive unemployment compensation. He is willing to support that. He simply is saying that enough is enough.

Mr. BUNNING. I have a question for the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield for a question.

Mr. BUNNING. The press release you read from was about an unemployment insurance extension that was fully paid for. So don’t compare apples to oranges.

Mr. DURBIN. I will verify that. I was given information it was not. If I am incorrect, I will state so. But we have extended unemployment benefits repeatedly and not paid for them.

Mr. BUNNING. I understand that. I have voted for that occasionally. But this one you read from was fully paid for.

Mr. DURBIN. I will check on that. If the Senate is correct, I will make that point in the record.

I would like to notify the Senator from Kentucky about Joetta from Ferguson, who wrote:

I have been laid off since October 31, 2008. When I was laid off, I lost my health insurance. The COBRA plan offered cost so much, I could not keep the insurance. I was told if business picks up in the spring, I could get called back to work. However, since I was laid off from the concrete company, there have been two other office personnel layoffs in January, so I doubt I will be called back to work. I am 58 years old. I have a high school education. I am finding it extremely difficult to find a job, even in the wealthy and affluent town I have worked and resided in all my life. I do not expect favors from anyone. I am completely down and out and can hardly pay bills, buy food, etcetera, let alone medical expenses. I have insurance through his employment but the cost to add me onto his plan is so high, we simply cannot afford it. Also, he makes $10 per hour, so it isn’t as if we have an abundance of money to live on. And I am a very economic person.

It is hard to imagine why we would say no to unemployment benefits for Joetta from Ferguson under the circumstances. If we want to fight this budget deficit battle, why would we hurt her in the crossfire of the conversation? Why wouldn’t we extend these unemployment benefits for her and thousands like her in Illinois and Kentucky and other States?

Mr. MERKLEY. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. MERKLEY. First, I would like to know, as we stand here tonight, have we paid for the tax cuts handed out to the wealthy?

Mr. DURBIN. If you are talking about the tax cuts under President George W. Bush, no.

Mr. MERKLEY. I am a new Senator. I have been here just over a year. But I don’t recall, in January of 2009 when I arrived, that any Member stood up and said: I am going to hold up everything and say we are going to cut people off at the welfare line?

Mr. DURBIN. If you are talking about the tax cuts under President George W. Bush, no.

Mr. DURBIN. That is exactly what has happened with this objection, this extension of unemployment benefits for 30 days. That is all we are asking for, 30 days.

Mr. MERKLEY. So if I understand right, this is the complete opportunity to have a debate 30 days from now, but we could have had the debate tonight because there could have been a vote tonight. It was offered but turned down. There will be opportunities throughout this next month, but we are going to cut people off at the worst moment here because one Senator says: I am happy about unfunded gifts to the most fortunate, but I am determined not to help people who are down and out.

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Oregon, that is exactly what has happened. When it came to the tax cuts, they weren’t paid for. They went primarily to the wealthiest people in America. Now unemployment benefits not paid for are objected to.

Mr. MERKLEY. I am deeply disturbed that one could be so disconnected from the challenges of working Americans as to have us in the situation we are in this moment.

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Oregon, here is a comment from Sharon, who is also from Kentucky. She writes:

I have worked since the age of 15. I hold two MA degrees and have worked a full and part-time job for 15 years. I entered the private sector until my position was eliminated approximately 14 months ago. Gas prices almost prevented my seeking employment very far from home. At 55 years of age, I never thought I would be without health insurance, but have difficulty finding a job. By the way, my spouse was also employed by a company which was downsized and sold twice within 1 year or this month. There is the most unfortunate Americans who have lost their jobs—and when you lose your job, you might well have lost your health care that went with your job—if you are struggling, then it matters that it is paid for.

Mr. DURBIN. I agree with the Senator. It is a double standard, and it is one that benefits those who are wealthy as opposed to those who are out of work.

Mr. MERKLEY. It is a double standard that bothers me a great deal.

We in this Chamber are fortunate enough to receive a paycheck. But back home, I have a tremendous number of families, working families in Oregon who can’t get a paycheck. I have unemployment in Crook County of 16.8 percent. I have unemployment in Douglas County of 14.9 percent. In Harney County, it is 15.5 percent. In Deschutes County, it is 14.5 percent; Jefferson County, 14.1 percent; Lake County, 12.9 percent; Josephine County, 13.6 percent. These are counties where more than one in eight people is out of work.

Am I to say to my good citizens back home that if you are among the most fortunate, we will give you additional benefits, unpaid for, but if you are down and out, it is just too bad, we are going to hold everything and say we are not going to help you?

Mr. DURBIN. That is exactly what has happened with this objection, this extension of unemployment benefits for 30 days. That is all we are asking for, 30 days.

Mr. MERKLEY. It is a double standard, and it is one that benefits those who are wealthy as opposed to those who are out of work.

period to benefit the top three-tenths of 1 percent. I don’t recall hearing anybody saying: Hey, we have a huge national debt. We can’t afford another trillion dollars. But somehow, when it comes to desperate people who are hanging on by their fingernails, trying to keep their families afloat, this is the most serious economic moment since the Great Depression of the 1930s, somehow, right now that has to be paid for. We have to pay for $10 billion, but somehow you don’t have to pay for $1 trillion. That was a pay cut for the people that period. I don’t quite understand that. Maybe my friend from Illinois can elucidate.

Mr. DURBIN. I would say in response, I do not understand it. It is hard for me to follow the logic that we need to reward those who are the most comfortable in America and punish those who are suffering. That is what this objection does. By denying unemployment benefits and COBRA benefits to those out of work, it literally makes their lives more difficult. Yet half of the same people have argued that these tax breaks for the wealthy should be considered as part of our future, even if they are not paid for. I don’t follow the logic behind that position in any way whatsoever.

Mr. SANDERS. For the record, the sum was $350 billion over 10 years, not $1 trillion. The trillion would have been the complete repeal of the estate tax. But nonetheless, $350 billion benefitting the top three-tenths of 1 percent is a meager amount of money. I am somewhat amazed that nobody at that point was terribly worried about how that was going to be paid for.

I thank the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania for a question.

Mr. CASEY. I don’t know if the Senator has seen this, but this is the National Employment Law Project, February 2010. One of the columns highlights a very large number of individuals exhausting their unemployment benefits in the month of March. I don’t know if the Senator from Illinois quoted this number earlier, I don’t think he did. But the total for the month of March in Illinois would be 65,431 people. In my State of Pennsylvania, the total would be not quite that high but 62,599 people.

That leads me to my second question. I had the opportunity a couple weeks ago to sit with one of the 560,000 people in my State who are out of work. In Pennsylvania, that 560,000 adds up to 8.9 percent of the workforce, but it is an incredibly high number—maybe not a record but very close. Those eight individuals were like only one of the people in this country who has lost their job, not through anything they did. Through no fault of their own, they are out of work.

I would ask the Senator from Illinois about what he has seen and heard from individuals in his State who have lost their jobs and are going to job centers and places such as that to fill out unemployment forms, fill out job applications. I would ask you about that.

(Mr. MERKLEY assumed the Chair.)

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from Pennsylvania, in response to the question, through the Chair, that I have been to unemployment centers in Chicago and downstate, and I am always heartened by the fact that these people are just not going to give up. They really keep trying. But you can tell that many of them are beaten down. Some of them have told me how many times they now apply on the Internet for any job openings and they do not even get a response. They consider it a victory just to get an interview or a response, and they just keep trying every single day. Meanwhile, they are trying to keep their families together, and the only lifeline they have is unemployment insurance checks. It is not a lot of money: $1,100 a month. Imagine trying to live on it.

It is a very meager amount of money, particularly if has been used as a larger paycheck and more comfort in life. Why would we cut off the $1,100 a month to these people at this moment in time when the economy is so weak? I do not understand why we would object to providing benefits to these people, whether they are in Pennsylvania or Kentucky or Illinois. In my way of thinking, many of these folks are in this situation through no fault of their own, and they are trying their best to live their lives around and it is not an easy circumstance for any of them.

Mr. CASEY. The one I have met in that—call it a career link, a job center—of those eight individuals, all but one—but maybe even the one—of those eight people were in their fifties, sixties, or seventies. In most instances—probably five out of the eight, maybe six out of the eight—they had never lost their job before; they had never had unemployment insurance, food stamps, any kind of help. In fact, one woman said she felt ashamed that she had to apply for food stamps. She never had to be that reliant on anything. Another woman by the name of Debbie said to me she just want to get back to work. We don’t want to be in this condition. We want to get back to work. So there was no complaining.

But I want to ask the Senator, as well, about how we have arrived at part of this discussion, which is that we focus on those who need this unemployment insurance—and we are talking here just about a 30-day extension; we are not talking about providing this for years or a long period of time—but the Senator talked about the economic impact of the spending of these dollars. I do not know if the Senator is familiar with what Mark Zandi, the economist, talked about. I do not know if the Senator is familiar with that. Let me just ask the Senator that.

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from Pennsylvania, I am aware of that economist, and I am aware the CBO recently reported that the one thing we can do to generate more economic activity in our economy that is better than anything else is unemployment assistance. It is No. 1 on their list. They talked about tax credits for new jobs in small businesses, but No. 1 was unemployment assistance. So as we cut back on unemployment assistance, the economy starts to go into a stall. We are not putting the money back into the economy; we are pulling it out at a time when the Federal Reserve is trying to keep interest rates low to generate more economic activity and move us forward to better employment. We are pushing against it. We are taking unemployment assistance out because of the objection of the Senator from Kentucky—one Senator who has objected. So from the economist viewpoint, we are doing exactly the opposite of what we should be doing to get this economy moving again.

Mr. CASEY. Let me add that reference to the Congressional Budget Office that has been made by Mark Zandi. Mark Zandi is an economist from moodys.com. He happened to be an adviser to JOHN MCCAIN’s Presidential campaign, so he is not some partisan in this debate. But he said, going back a year ago, when we were debating the recovery bill—to whether to enact it or not—he said that if you spend $1 on unemployment insurance, you get one it is more than $1.60 back, somewhere in the $1.60 to $1.70 range. So this is not only a question of how we help people who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own; the secondary benefit here is it can help people who are out of work and need a stimulated economy, need an economy that is jump-started by the spending that would provide unemployment insurance. So it makes no sense.

As the Senator from Illinois said earlier, there are lots of ways to make the argument that our friend from Kentucky is making, but this is not the time or the place, when all we are talking about is a 30-day extension of unemployment insurance for people who, through no fault of their own, have lost their jobs. It makes no sense. And as I look at these numbers in Pennsylvania of 62,599 people losing or will lose, if he prevails, their unemployment insurance in the month of March, it makes no sense.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania.

I yield to the Senator for Alaska for a question.

Mr. BURGESS. I thank the Senator very much.

I have a couple questions in regard to the bill. I will probably have more later, but, first, remind me and the people who are watching what the unemployment rate for our country is today.

Mr. DURBIN. Currently, on a national basis?

Mr. BEGICH. On a national basis.

Mr. DURBIN. I believe it is now just slightly below 10 percent on a national basis. In my State, it is still over 11 percent.

Mr. BEGICH. In your State, it is 11 percent?

Mr. DURBIN. Yes. Mr. BEGICH. In my State, it is 9 percent.

I will lay out a couple points. In my State, the 9 percent, which is one of the highest in years for us, one of the highest numbers ever in a long time, but when you look at it by region—and I am curious if in your State it has similar impacts like this—for example, 9 percent is a lot, no question about it, but in the Aleutians East Borough in Alaska it is 20.2 percent; in Bethel it is 14.8 percent; in Aleutians West Borough it is 13.7 percent; in the Northwest Arctic Borough it is 12.89 percent; in Kenai Borough it is 12.3 percent; in Mat-Su it is 10.4 percent. Those are examples. The number is high for our State. It is one of the highest in many years. But it really does not tell the whole story. I ask the Senator, do you have similar circumstances that are regionally higher than the average for your State?

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from Alaska that Rockford in the northern end of my State was as high as 15 percent. You know, it does not tell the whole story because, as they say, some people get discouraged when they are out of work and they do not get counted on those rolls anymore. So the actual unemployment rate is much higher. These people will not be affected by our action tonight because they are not in the program, they are not receiving unemployment assistance.

Mr. BEGICH. Some people get discouraged when they lose their jobs. They have lost faith.

The average does not tell the story. There will be pockets in Kentucky and Illinois and Alaska with much higher unemployment. So when we cut off the benefits because of the objection from the Senator from Kentucky, as of Sunday night some of these counties will be hit harder than others. There is no question about that.

Mr. BEGICH. I will ask if I can read something toward a question. As you read down here—where I am doing here a little bit, and your answer to my question is what I wanted to ask to make sure I was clear on that. It is not just the average that we should always be thinking about, but how do we drill down?

When I got back from my break, I received this e-mail. I am sure you have similar e-mails. That is going to be my question. What kind of responses have you gotten from those who are unemployed?

Here is one from my State:

. . . I implore you as your first order of business upon your return from the snow—

Which I thought was very interesting—and recess to extend the emergency unemployment benefits through the end of 2010 that are due to expire on the 28th of Feb.

Thank you.

He was thanking me in advance for something this gentleman believes we should do because it is right. This gentleman is 46 years old, a professional in the legal field. He had applied for over 30 different jobs. He has had two interviews. He is still unable to get a job. He is Jeff from Eagle River. I will not use his last name. He did not authorize me to do that. But just reading this letter tells me, why are we not doing this?

I am a new Member. Like the Senator from Oregon, I have been here a little over a year. I have the same question. During the economic crisis, the $1 trillion that was unfunded, given to the richest of the rich. It has never been revoked or changed, but it was funded by whom? Not by this body but on the backs of people like my son who is 7½ years old, who will pay for the richest of the rich. I do not call it a tax cut; I call it a tax scheme. To me, that is outrageous when I think about it.

So I associate my comments with the previous Democratic administration left an annual budget in surplus and a nation that had a $5 trillion debts. My recollection is that in addition to a nation in annual budget surplus, what President Clinton also left the Republican administration that followed was a budget trajectory projected by the nonpartisan professional Congressional Budget Office to eliminate the national debt of the United States of America. We would be a debt-free nation if the Democratic policies of President Clinton had been followed according to the nonpartisan, professional Congressional Budget Office. However, recall, there were actually economic debates that were provoked by that, wondering whether it was actually a good idea for the Nation to be, for the first time since President Andrew Jackson, debt free.

So my question is, Is it not true that more than just an annual budget surplus was left to the Republicans by the Democrats last time, but what was left to them also was a budget trajectory that would have made this Nation debt free by the time President Bush took office? Had he extended those Democratic policies?

Mr. DURBIN. The Senator from Rhode Island is correct. The Senator from Kentucky has talked about the Nation's deficit and debt, and he should realize that President Clinton had left office in January of 2001, the national budget was in better shape than it had been in a generation.

In fiscal year 2000, the final year in which President Clinton had full responsibilities, at the end of which our Nation's budget surplus was $236 billion—budget surplus. That year, the debt held by the public declined for the third consecutive year. As President Clinton left office, budget surpluses were projected to continue throughout the next 10 years. CBO, in its January 2001 budget outlook, projected surpluses of $5 trillion for 2001 through 2010, including nearly $800 billion in 2010 alone. Those surpluses were so large, Senator Judd Gregg from New Hampshire earlier mentioned a vehicle for funding the Medicare prescription drug benefit that was not paid for, at least the $400 billion cost. I will acknowledge he was correct that the unemployment I referred to in November was paid for. I just agree with him that broad-based, fundamental, long-term plans that are actually supposed to help families out of penury. Why is it not fair to ask the public would be entirely paid off by 2010, including nearly $800 billion in 2011 alone.

Fast forward 8 years, at the end of George W. Bush's Presidency, that administration, and the national debt had climbed from $5 trillion that he inherited to more than double that amount.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. The question I was asking is, Is it not fair to ascribe to that Republican administration and its policies the responsibility for more than just the difference between $5 trillion and $12 trillion? Because if those policies hadn't changed, according to the nonpartisan, neutral, professional Congressional Budget Office during the term of President Bush, we would have actually been a debt-free nation and, therefore, responsibility for the entire Federal debt that was inherited by President Obama could fairly be said to be the responsibility of the policies from the other side of the aisle.

Mr. DURBIN. The Senator from Rhode Island is correct.

I don't know how the Senator from Kentucky voted when it came to the tax cuts for the wealthy. I don't know, so I can't presume to state it on the floor. I don't know if he voted for the annual budgets to prolong the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan without paying for them. I don't know if he voted on the Medicare prescription drug benefit that was not paid for, at least the $400 billion cost. I will acknowledge he was correct that the unemployment I referred to in November was paid for. Mr. DURBIN. The Senator from Rhode Island is correct.
try to care for her disabled mother. She has a bachelor's degree in business administration. She has an associate's degree in architecture. She is a capable, trained, hard-working woman. Because she is out of work, her car has been cut off, making it much more difficult to try to find work, and it is unemployment insurance that is keeping her family together. This will cut 309 Rhode Islanders in our small State right off, in another few months it will cut 1,500 people right off.

How am I supposed to explain to them this principle that they need to suffer because of our budget deficit, with a party that is forcing that suffering on them and that did more to run up our national deficit that ever and that has obstructed the vehicle that would have started the work to fix the deficit and is absolutely silent about the deficit when millionaires and multimillionaires and billionaires are given a tax cut? How can I explain that? What do I tell her?

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Rhode Island, there is no explanation because it doesn’t make sense. The senator certainly couldn’t explain to this woman she worked so hard throughout her entire life and now faces this misfortune that we are heaping additional misfortune on her because of this objection to extending unemployment benefits. In the State of Rhode Island—I know it is small in comparison to so many others—the Senator from Rhode Island is likely to meet some of these 309 people or hear from them when their unemployment benefits are cut off. I am sure my friend from Rhode Island will join me in trying to find work. I am sure my friend from Rhode Island will join me in trying to find work. I can explain to them that the Senator from Kentucky has objected to extending 30- day unemployment benefits. If we are going to fight this war on the deficit, why fight it on the backs of unemployed people such as the one we have just heard described in the State of Rhode Island?

Mr. DURBIN. Would the Senator from Illinois give me a chance to respond? You have had the floor for an hour and a half.

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield for a question from the Senator.

Mr. BUNNING. A question. OK. If all the things that have been said on the other side are true, all of the programs you have talked about could have been extended and for much longer periods if Senator Reid, your leader, had not blown up the bipartisan jobs bill agreed to by the chairman of the Finance Committee and the ranking member, Senator Baucus and Senator Grassley, and jammed through his own bill which we talked about; and all the spending forces of that compromise, of those that you are talking about, were paid for in that bill. Explain that to the American people.

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to. The Senator from Kentucky has not stated it 100 percent accurately.

Mr. DURBIN. Because in the original proposal from the Finance Committee, the unemployment benefits were extended for 3 months, as I understand it. The tax extenders—

Mr. BUNNING. They were paid for.

Mr. DURBIN. Let me explain. There was a source of revenue for the bill, but it was not enough to pay for the entire bill. The source of revenue was enough for those who wanted to say: Well, this will pay for unemployment, to point to it; and those who wanted to say: No, it pays for another part of the bill. So it did not pay for the entire bill.

Mr. BUNNING. That is your interpretation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. I yielded for a question and I answered the question, but I will yield for another question.

Mr. BUNNING. It has been brought up during this debate that the balanced budget amendment and the balanced budget is a product of the Clinton administration. The Senator from Illinois knows that. Mr. DURBIN. No, I don’t know that to be false.

Mr. BUNNING. Well, do you know anything about how the balanced budget bill was brought to the floor of the House of Representatives?

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Kentucky I was serving in the Senate.

Mr. BUNNING. I was serving.

Mr. DURBIN. I will tell my colleague what has been brought on the floor and which I stand behind; that is, the fact that when President William Clinton left office, he left a budget in balance and in surplus.

Mr. BUNNING. Yes. Mr. DURBIN. I yield for a further question.

Mr. BUNNING. That is only because Representative John Kasich and the Budget Committee that he chaired in the House, for 3 years in a row, brought a balanced budget bill to the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives. I was a member of that Budget Committee.

The first 2 years, the Clinton administration rejected the balanced budget bill. In the third year, instead of getting run over by the train, President William Jefferson Clinton got on the train and agreed that the balanced budget bill should be passed. Then the Senate concurred and we balanced the budget in that little bit, but we did it. That is where the surplus came from—a Republican’s idea, John Kasich, of Ohio, who brought a balanced budget to the floor.

Mr. BUNNING. If that is a question—

Mr. DURBIN. The questions I have are—I wanted to straighten out my good friend from Rhode Island.

Mr. DURBIN. If that was a question, it is clear that there was bipartisan-ship, and we can use a little bit more of that around here.

Mr. BUNNING. Even the fact that our President—somebody who talked about extending tax cuts to the wealthy and talked about extending tax cuts, and the fact that nobody on the floor of this Senate—explain to me, with 60 Democrats and 40 Republicans, why someone on the Democratic side of the aisle didn’t make a bill that would rescind those tax cuts? Your President—our President—wants to extend $250 billion estate tax bill, without paying for it. Then we are told it is budget. Well, it is right. Look it up. I am on the Budget Committee, so I see these bills. Is the Senator on the Budget Committee?

Mr. DURBIN. No. I am not. I yield further for a question.

Mr. BUNNING. The Senator in the chair is, so he knows what has been proposed.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield for the purpose of a question.

Mr. BUNNING. The question I asked about the 60/40, I didn’t hear anybody answer that. The Senator from Oregon is gone. He was the guy who posed the question.

Mr. DURBIN. In response to the Senator from Kentucky, this is a great debate. I think I explained to the Chair, or anybody else who wants to pass a $250 billion estate tax bill, also without paying for it. Then we are told it is budget. Well, it is right. Look it up. I am on the Budget Committee, so I see these bills. Is the Senator on the Budget Committee?

Mr. DURBIN. No. I am not. I yield further for a question.

other things that weren’t paid for. That is what this is about. As the Senator knows—in fact, I know the Senator from Illinois gets irritated at me sometimes because I am constantly trying to figure out ways that we can be more fiscally responsible around here. Sometimes I swim upstream on some of those things. I was one of the cosponsors of pay-go. In fact, pay-go was in place in the 1990s, and it was allowed to expire in Congress. It was 2000, or 2001, or 2002, in the early years of the administration, when the Republicans had the majority. They let it go. They said they didn’t need pay-go anymore. This is probably the most glaring example, and it gets in my craw, because I now hear so much talk of fiscal responsibility and pay for programs—how many were willing to put forward that kind of program on the credit card, one big blob of red ink.

Is the Senator aware how many of our friends on the other side of the aisle have new religion—this is new religion about balancing the budget—and how many actually voted for Medicare D? It was a brandnew entitlement program, a government-run health care-related government program, a government-run health care-related government program, a government—run health care-related government program, a government—run health care-related government program run by the government. My recollection is that the biggest campaign contribution to the teams in Kentucky and Illinois and Missouri because we have not paid for them. Clearly, it is a double standard. I might add that when it came to the estate tax, the death tax, allowing the wealthiest in America to pay, voted for this program that was unpaid for. Now they tell us we cannot extend unemployment benefits to people in Kentucky and Illinois and Missouri because we have not paid for them. Clearly, it is a double standard.

budget chairs in Missouri because they were kind of puffing up about how they were going to be able to balance the budget this year. I looked into it and realized that the only way they were balancing the budget this year was because of the stimulus money. It is, in fact, money that we sent to Kentucky, gone to Illinois, gone to Missouri, gone to Oregon, gone to Alaska, and gone to Rhode Island. That is what is allowing these State legislators to keep from making massive layoffs of public school teachers. They would be massive cuts in education in Missouri this year, and, frankly, no cuts in public education would be popular in Missouri.

I asked the Missouri legislators. I said: Some of you have been talking about doing away with the stimulus, pulling back the stimulus. In fact, some of our friends across the aisle said we should get rid of the rest of the stimulus. I asked the State legislators: What if we pull the stimulus? Tell me how Missourians will be hurt if we decide to pull the rest of the stimulus and maybe spend it on other things, such as perhaps this emergency bill dealing with unemployment insurance. They would not tell me. They want the people of Missouri to think they are balancing that budget with fairy dust. They don't want the people of Missouri to know that, in fact, the stimulus is what is out there helping these States balance these budgets because our revenue has dropped off the charts, just like our revenue has, which is causing some of the deficit and which is certainly contributing in a great way to the debt as it relates to a drop in revenue, an increase in unemployment expenses, and then the programs that have been passed in the previous administration not paid for.

I have 20,000 Missourians—20,000—who are going to find out sometime in the next 40 hours that they are done with Medicaid, food stamps, and unemployment insurance. And I cannot believe that if we have this kind of crisis at the other end of the income scale, that all of a sudden we would not have this newfound religion that this is the moment, this is the hour, this is the day that we are going to find new religion about deficits. It is the wrong time.

I am a cosponsor of pay-go. I am a cosponsor of the fiscal commission. I don't take earmarks. I voted against the omnibus. I voted against many of the things that were passed in the previous administration not paid for. The previous administration not paid for. I voted against many of the things that were passed in the previous administration not paid for. I voted against my friends across the aisle. They don't take earmarks. I voted against the omnibus. I voted against many of the things that were passed in the previous administration not paid for.

Mr. BUNNING. You said you would yield to me.

Mr. DURBIN. I know. For those who are following this debate, we have asked to extend unemployment benefits for those out of work in America for 30 days and to extend COBRA benefits which helps them to pay for their health insurance for 30 days. It passed the House of Representatives. We were prepared to pass it this week so that when the benefits expire for many people on Sunday night, they would continue.

One Senator from Kentucky, Senator Bunning, who is on the Senate floor, objected. As a consequence, we have taken to the floor to make certain that the people who are following this debate understand the gravity of this decision. It is not a casual decision. It is a decision made by one Senator that will literally affect the lives of a lot of people.

I give an example of Stan Lipowski who lives in Rockford, IL, as I mentioned earlier an area hard hit. Stan is pretty nervous. He is 60 years old. He lives in Loves Park near Rockford. He lost his job in June and relies on his unemployment check to keep his household afloat. This is from the Rockford newspaper where he is quoted as saying:

'It's not sufficient, but without it, I'd be in real trouble. I'm already borrowing against my house to put my daughter through college. He is living on his unemployment check, and the objection of the Senator from Kentucky is going to cut off the checks for people just like him. I cannot understand why we would do this. I am going to renew my unemployment consent request.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691, a 30-day extension of provisions which expire Sunday, February 28, unemployment insurance, COBRA, flood insurance, Satellite Home Viewer Act, high-wage funding, SBA business loans and small business provisions of the American Recovery Act, SGR, and poverty guidelines received from the House and at the desk; that the bill be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SANDERS). Is there objection?

Mr. BUNNING. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky objects?

Mr. BUNNING. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He said he did not object.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. As I understand it, the unanimous consent request is agreed to?

Mr. BUNNING. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky objects?

Mr. BUNNING. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. DURBIN. I thought maybe we had gotten through to the Senator from Kentucky. It is interesting, he wants to talk about everything except the unemployed people affected by his objection. In my view, as the Medicare prescription drug program, which costs $400 billion over a 10-year period of time, is not paid for and you voted for it. So when it comes to deficit reduction, you pick and choose those issues that you will spend money on. Tonight you are making it clear that you will not spend money to help unemployed people—people across Kentucky and across Illinois.

Some of these stories I received from my State I am sure you received from your State. Here is one from a woman in Bullhead City, IL:

My husband and I are in our fifties and lost our jobs in 2008. I knew immediately we were in trouble so we took our savings and moved to a state park where rent is $40 a month, including utilities.

They were living in a camper.
out in August and we have no income. The $400 rent that seemed so cheap a year ago is now a struggle to pay. To keep our phone and Internet on is a struggle, yet imperative—

Because that is the way they look for jobs.

Neither of us has ever been without until now. I have found that it is more and more difficult and our spirits are at an all-time low. I worry more about the sins in my eyes, not so much for myself but for the thousands who are facing these difficult times alone. I could not do it alone.

When my husband left the house this morning to look for work, I slipped a baggie of Life cereal in his pocket so he would not go hungry. We had no milk . . . too early to offer ramen noodles or macaroni and cheese.

I’ve always been proud to be American and of this great country, yet I can’t seem to hold my head up these days. I barely have enough money to make it . . . I wait and pray for an extension [of unemployment benefits] to buy us more time.

I implore the Republicans to quit dangling carrots in our faces and do the right thing.

That is what this is about, Senator Bunning.

This woman and people like her all across America who will be turned down for unemployment benefits because of your objection. Why are we doing this to these people, whether they are in Kentucky, Tennessee, Wisconsin or any other State? We are a caring people, and I know the Senator from Tennessee feels that way. I do too.

Mr. BEGICH. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DURBIN. I think the Senator is correct. I know we talked about this yesterday. I know the Senator from Kentucky sure did go around and see what was going on. Pharmaceutical companies got those monies, made extensive profits, and on the backs of taxpayers. But now it is time to help our seniors, make sure they get basic care, and they are going to be thrown over. It is amazing to me, when I look at this bill—I thought it was simple. Maybe I am naive, being a new Member here, but these are simple things. The crisis in this country is the biggest recession since the Great Depression.

Mr. BEGICH. I know in my state the answer is: They will. This is a significant percentage cut in the reimbursement rate. So not only do we have the unemployed now, whom the other side seems to have a problem with, yet when it comes to the richest of the rich, they have no problem dealing with them, taking care of them unfunded.

The pharmaceuticals—I know this debate a little bit. I know how the talk I just heard from the Senator from Kentucky sure did go around and see what was going on. Pharmaceutical companies got those monies, made extensive profits, and on the backs of taxpayers. But now it is time to give a little bit of assistance to make sure we can move through this tough time, we are not willing to assist the unemployed. Yet the richest of the rich get taken care of.

I want to ask one question about that so-called bipartisan bill that was mentioned earlier. I know earlier there was discussion, and I hope I can ask this question. The “bipartisan” bill that was talked about earlier, I know I flipped through the multiple pages of the index and saw all these extenders for businesses, and, if I remember this right—correct me if I am wrong—the unemployed had a very short extension but all these businesses got the long extensions for their tax benefits.

Again, it is a question of who do we support here and who do we help? Am I mistaken that so-called bipartisan bill—that really wasn’t bipartisan and which had a lot of issues with it—am I correct there was some imbalance there that people were concerned about?

Mr. DURBIN. I think the Senator from Alaska is correct.

Mr. BEGICH. The other piece I want to talk about, and I will end on this because I know the Senator from Oregon has a question or two, and it is one of the things I heard over and over again, and that is why I think the way this is being approached is very simple: Here we have the things on the other side.

Does this bill deal with seniors and making sure the reimbursement rate is the right rate so doctors can perform the services these seniors need?

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Alaska that the correct there was some imbalance there that people were concerned about?
Mr. DURBIN. I will yield for a question.

Mr. CORKER. I believe we are stooping to a low level.

Mr. DURBIN. I am sorry, I did not hear the Senator.

Mr. CORKER. I believe we are stooping to a low level.

Mr. DURBIN. I did yield for a question, and I don’t believe the Senator has a question, but I respect him and respect his point of view.

Mr. CORKER. My question is: Is this the way the Senate functions? And I am asking someone who I respect right now.

Mr. DURBIN. I said to the Senator that we gave notice to the Senator from Kentucky, after he had made his objection. So this was not a sneak attack. As soon as he made his objection, we notified the Republican side of the aisle of what I was going to do.

Secondly, I would say that I think those of us who——

Mr. BUNNING. Unfortunately, that is not true.

Mr. DURBIN.—Put a hold on a bill or a hold on a nomination can certainly do that. I think they ought to step forward and say publicly when they do that and why they do that.

Mr. CORKER. That has been done.

Mr. DURBIN. In this situation, in fairness to the Senator from Kentucky, he has been very public and open about his objections to this. I certainly respect we have different points of view.

But I would say to the Senator from Tennessee, here is what I face and what other Senators face. After we completed these rollcalls here, we would have walked out the door and gone home and relaxed all day for the weekend, and then come Sunday, somebody might have noticed the unemployment benefits for 15,000 people in my State were cut off, eliminated, employment benefits for 15,000 people.

Mr. CORKER. That has been done.

Mr. DURBIN. In this situation, in fairness to the Senator from Kentucky, he has been very public and open about his objections to this. I certainly respect we have different points of view. But I would say to the Senator from Tennessee, here is what I face and what other Senators face. After we completed these rollcalls here, we would have walked out the door and gone home and relaxed all day for the weekend, and then come Sunday, somebody might have noticed the unemployment benefits for 15,000 people in my State were cut off, eliminated, people out of work.

I could have left. I would like to be home relaxing too—I am not a spring chicken—but I think it is an important enough issue to stand up and speak about it tonight. We have heard from the Senator from Kentucky. I have yielded to him in a way that may go beyond what is required, but I wanted him to express his viewpoint, and he has, about why he has done this.
And, yes, I am a little weary standing here all night. But if we were to walk out that door and ignore the impact of that objection on the thousands of people in our own State, do you think we are meeting our obligation as Senators to our workers worth speaking out? You must receive these same communications I receive from people who are out of work. These are sad, heart-breaking stories. We are about to make these stories even worse because of the objection of one Senator.

Yes, it is his right to do it. But it is our right to stand and explain the effect this is going to have on a lot of innocent people.

I yield to the Senator from Oregon for purposes of a question.

Mr. MERKLEY. I thank the Senator. I have before me a chart on workers losing Federal unemployment benefits at the beginning of March. It notes “Workers Exhausting Regular State Benefits: Additional Federal Extensions” as 380,000 workers. Then there is an additional column that says “Workers Prematurely Exhausting Their Federal Benefits” at the start of March: 613,000. I am rounding off. It has a “Total,” that says the United States as a whole: 1,193,838 individuals lose their benefits.

As I am reading this chart, my impression is they are losing their benefits at the end of February if we do not have an extension. Am I reading this correctly?

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from Oregon, I believe it is the end of March.

Mr. MERKLEY. The end of March. But there are many people who lose their benefits much sooner if we do not pass this extension?

Mr. DURBIN. As I understand it, some will start to lose them as of Sunday night. Then, as their benefits expire, by the end of the month, the Senator is correct: 1,193,000 people. The Senator from Kentucky and others have said eventually you are going to get around to the process of actually getting the 30-day extension. It is true we could do that. We could use up another week of time of the Senate to go through the filibusters and cloture motions on the motions to proceed and the rest of it. But it strikes me as a colossal waste of time and a sad commentary on the process where we are forced to do this to provide simple unemployment benefits to people across America who are out of work.

Mr. MERKLEY. My friend from Tennessee has made some comments about the process. I must say I very much respect the dialogue he has been involved in, in the Banking Committee, through the year I have served on that committee, working to find the right way to have regulatory reform that will help put our economy back on track. There are many things we agree with.

But I completely respectfully disagree that it is inappropriate, when unemployment benefits are threatened for our workers in our States, to come to this floor and say: This matters. This matters for working families.

When I was asking the people of Oregon to consider my candidacy to come here to represent them, I went on a 100-town tour with 100 public townhalls. In every community and every townhall I talked to about the challenge of employment and health care. Tonight, both are at stake.

I had one woman who stood and she said: I got a letter from my doctor whom I have had for many years. I think she said 20 years. She said: The letter fired me from being a patient because I am on Medicare now and that the doctor had dismissed all the Medicare patients because the calendar could now be filled with folks with private insurance that paid better.

My colleague from Alaska was talking about that problem in Alaska. It is a huge problem in Oregon that our seniors who are on Medicare cannot get in the doctors’ offices. It is increasingly difficult. The result of it being increasingly difficult is, a program they have counted on to provide their health care they are unable to utilize.

Tonight we are considering an extension or a fix of the physician payments related to this very issue, whether doctors are going to take and keep taking Medicare patients in their agenda. We have talked about unemployment, but it is equally important we address this Medicare rate because, in my State, it is a growing challenge. We have a generational contract with our citizens over Medicare that they are going to be able to get in the door of a doctor’s office. If we do not address this payment issue, then we are not honoring that generational commitment under the Medicare Program.

So I do, respectfully, disagree with my colleague from Tennessee. I wish he had made his point of view, this is what it has come down to. I wish we had more debates such as this with votes. I wish we had a vote tonight, with a debate, and that my good colleague from Kentucky had agreed to have the debate and had made his case and persuaded us on this floor of his point or that others would have made a different point and would have been persuasive. But we didn’t have that debate because the offer was made and the offer was rejected.

Here—by looking at the thousands and thousands of Americans who are going to lose their health care because they will not be able to get in a doctor’s door, who are going to lose their COBRA benefits and therefore will not be able to afford the expenses of health care important they are unemployed, who are going to lose their unemployment insurance benefits—or looking at the businesses that are trying to get small business loans that will not be able to get them if we are not extending the small business loan guarantee program.

I think this is about one of the most important debates for working Americans. We need to get this 1-month extension, we need to respect that everyone in this Chamber, every one of our 100 Senators can proceed to carry this debate on over this coming 30 days. We are going to have another chance to vote on this. But tonight we should not take our differences over the process or our differences over what happened during the Bush administration—and take it out on the most vulnerable members of our society.

So I ask my colleague from Illinois, do you share my view that we are taking procedural differences and age-old debates and we are taking it out on the most vulnerable? Is it the wrong thing to do, as I believe?

Mr. DURBIN. I say to the Senator from Oregon that is exactly why I am standing. I didn’t plan on doing this. I had a pretty full day down at the Blair House and other places. I believed, by the end of the day, the Senator from Kentucky would agree to a vote. He had a commitment he made he would come to the floor—which is all we can ask for in the Senate, to argue his point of view—and that we would be able to go home for the weekend knowing unemployed people across the United States would not take their unemployment benefits cut off—a cutting off unemployment checks in the midst of this recession.

I had not planned on being here tonight, but I thought to myself, I say to the Senator from Tennessee, how can I look those doctors in the eye? I know him, I know him, I know him. I don’t plan to stand up and go to bed and say: Well, just another day, another objection. Those 12 million people who sent me here expect me to stand for them once in a while.

That is what I am trying to do. I cannot believe we have reached the point in the Senate where these battles over cosmic issues are being visited on people who are struggling to survive day to day, to put food on the table. That is what it has come down to. That is exactly what it has come down to. I think that is unfortunate. I think we are better than that. I think we should be better than that as a Nation and as a Senate.

Does the Senator from Vermont seek the floor to ask a question? I yield for the purposes of a question.

Mr. SANDERS. I say to my good friend, the Senator from Tennessee, he is a good friend as is the Senator from Kentucky. I like the Senator from Kentucky. I think he is honest. He is sin- cere. He is not hiding. He is sincere. I respect that. We disagree very strongly on his position.

The Senator from Tennessee said a moment ago his point of view, this is not the way the Senate functions, that is not how the Senate is about, in so many words.

If you go and ask millions of people and say if the amendment of Senator BUNNING came to the floor of the Senate—no one can predict what the vote would be—but my guess is he would probably lose. That is my guess. But he has decided, one person, to say to hundreds and hundreds of thousands of workers, I, one Senator, am exercising my right, no question about that, and I am going to object. I, one person who does not have the votes to pass my amendment, am saying to people—you have heard the Senator from Illinois describing these stories of the pain, turning things through. No one disputes what he is saying. It is going on in Tennessee, it is going on in Vermont, Kentucky, Missouri. We all understand that. I don't think there is a disagreement. People are hurting terribly.

I don't think there is a disagreement. When people Monday morning wake and find they are not getting the safety net of that life-supporting check, do you know what people are going to be feeling? Do you know what panic? They don't know how the bureaucracy works. Suddenly, they wake and somebody says: I am not getting my check. Am I ever going to get a check? Well, they are going to get a check, but it is delayed.

There was an article in the paper just the other day, one of the ramifications of this recession, and we all know it is true, is what it is doing to the emotional health of people. Think about people who want to work, who have worked their whole lives and cannot find a job. Do you know what it is doing to them? To their emotional well-being? Do you think they like unemployment checks? The vast majority don't want it—a thousand times more than they would like a job. Suddenly, for no understandable—they don't understand what is going on. I don't understand what is going on half the time in the Senate. Suddenly, because one Senator and somebody says: I am not getting my check. Am I ever going to get a check? Well, they are going to get a check, but it is delayed.

I ask my friend from Illinois, my assumption is, we are at some point soon going to pass these unemployment extensions. My understanding is, I don't know how it is going to be, but I suspect many Republicans are probably going to vote with many on this side; is that a correct assumption? And are we simply bringing more pain and confusion to hundreds of thousands of people who suddenly, Sunday, Monday, are going to find out they don't get a check?

Mr. DURBIN. I would say, in response to the Senator from Vermont, the last time we went through this exercise about unemployment benefits, he may recall there was a Republican Senator who insisted on an amendment on the bill relating to ACORN. If he could not get another chance to take a swing at the organization, he was going to hold up the unemployment benefit bill.

I reached the limit of my patience at that moment. I thought to myself, it was not the first, second, third, or fourth time going to be the sixth or seventh time. There was a belief on his part that he had to keep taking a swing at this organization, even at the expense of delaying unemployment benefits.

I will tell you, I think that is unfortunate. If you want to fight a battle, for goodness' sakes, make it a fair fight. Do not fight the battle over the bodies of people who are unemployed and struggling to get by on a day-to-day basis. If you want to fight the battle of the deficit, fight the battle of the deficit on the budget resolution or whatever appropriations bill you choose.

But to deny unemployment benefits to make your point about the Nation's debt takes this to an extreme. That is why I am here. That is why I did not go home tonight. I would like to be there to see what is happening with the Olympics and what is happening in America doing. But I thought to myself, I cannot walk out that door without speaking up for what I consider to be an unjust decision by one of my colleagues.

He sees it differently. I do like Senator BUNNING. He and I may have had our differences, but we have had some good conversations about baseball. Maybe that is all but about baseball.

Mr. SANDERS. I would say that the Senator and I have had strong agreements. I would ask the Senator from Illinois, in the hearing of the Senator from Kentucky: Look, the Senator from Kentucky has raised important issues. I would hope that he would allow us, not for our sake, but for the sake of tens and tens of thousands of people, to get those checks out. Let's come back and continue that debate.

You have raised the right issues. These unemployment benefits are going to go out, unless I am mistaken. So all we are doing is disrupting the process. We understand where you are coming from. You have raised a fair point. It is a very important issue.

But I would, through my friend from Illinois, ask my friend from Kentucky, who is a friend—I like JIM BUNNING: Let us continue this debate. But it does not have to be tonight. It does not have to be in a way that causes confusion and uncertainty and a lot of pain for a lot of people. So I would—

Mrs. MCCASKILL. Would the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield. But I would say also to the Senator from Tennessee and the Senator from Kentucky, there is a version of this unanimous consent request which will give you your vote. If the Senator would agree to that, I would be happy to yield.

I yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mrs. MCCASKILL. The Senator from Tennessee and the Senator from Vermont and the Senator from Rhode Island all came here in the same class. The Senator from Oregon just arrived in January. So we have not been here for a long time to watch how the Senate works and how the Senate tradition has worked. I know it appeared to my pal from Tennessee that I looked like I organized an ambush of the Senator from Kentucky. I have to tell you the truth, we are not that well organized. If we were that well organized, we probably would have been doing more of this a long time ago.

I honestly came down to the Senate floor understanding a deal had been made to give Senator BUNNING a vote on his amendment. I expected that vote to occur. I had not talked to my office. I got to the floor and realized that Senator BUNNING, which he can do under the rules, was going to hold it.
I walked up as I was finishing voting on the third bill, and I said to DICK: Are you going to stick around and make him object again?

He said: You know, I think I am going to stick around for a while. I just do not feel right going home.

At that moment I thought: I do not feel right about going home either. I think it is time, if we are going to do an objection every 5 minutes, and if we are going to hold— if this was a hold on a nominee, it could wait until Monday. But when Senator BUNNING decided to do this, it came at a risk. And the risk it came with was that there were going to be Senators who were going to try to speak out about it. There were going to be Senators who were going to disagree with him, and they were going to publicly say that this is not the moment.

This $10 billion, with all of this deficit spending that has gone on for the last decade, this is not the moment toicit spending that has gone on for the last decade, this is not the moment to speak out about it. There were going to be Senators who were going to publicly say that this is not the moment. But I respect you so much, and I want to stay and talk about it.

Here is what I ask. Have there been this many objections and holds traditionally in the Senate?

Mr. DURBIN. No.

Mrs. MCCASKILL. Have we had this many? Have there been this many obstructions to the regular order of the Senate traditionally?

Mr. DURBIN. I have been here 14 years—14 years in the House, 14 years in the Senate. This Senate has changed so dramatically in the 14 years I have been here. We actually had debates on the floor of the Senate. We had Members offering amendments back and forth. I mean good debates. I thought it really was a joy to be part of a deliberative body that engaged in that.

But in this era of cloture and filibuster and holds and objections, and it grinds to a halt. You think to yourself: No wonder there is frustration among the membership, and no wonder people outside look at us and say: Why are they not doing things?

How can we explain to people in Missouri, Illinois, or Tennessee or Kentucky, that we are here tonight because we are going to cut off unemployment benefits? You know, the Senator is right, the Senator from Vermont is right. The day will come when those unemployment benefits will go through. It may take us a week. We may have to eat up a whole week of the Senate Calendar to get that done.

You think to yourself: Senator, is there not something you should be doing that is more important? And we know there is. We should be working on a jobs program. We should be working on health care. You are working on financial regulations. I know, Senator CORRker, you may be upset with me at this time. But if someone is upset with me I respect you so much. It shows extraordinary courage on your part to step up and try and tackle this tough issue.

I am glad you are doing it. It does harken back to a better era in the Senate when people did work on a bipartisan basis. So I would say to the Senator from Missouri, we have been here for a while, and I know there are staff people in this room who could be here this late. In deference to them, I am going to allow the Senator from Missouri to ask a question. I am going to then make a unanimous consent request again. Then at that point, I will not make it after that point.

Mrs. MCCASKILL. Well, I guess what I am trying to ask the Senator is—I do not think most Americans think the Senate is working very well right now. I think we are behaving sometimes like children. I think most Americans are not sure what the rules are and what the difference is between a cloture, a filibuster, a motion to proceed, and a motion to recommit; what is the difference between a reconciliation and a conciliation or all of the other terms we throw around here.

But the real thing I think we all need to come to grips with is that, if we are going to try to stop the place, we need to be proud of it. I think that goes on both sides of the aisle. If a Senator wants to hold a nomination, I do not think they should be allowed to keep it secret for 30 seconds. If somebody wants to try to hold a bill or wants to object to something, I think this nonsense that they have had in the Senate forever that it is a secret for a while is the stupidest thing that I can possibly imagine.

If you are big enough to get elected to the Senate, you ought to be big enough to own what you do with your rights when you get here. Senator BUNNING has stood up strong tonight, and he has explained his position. A few of us stuck around and talked about our positions. I think that is a wonderful thing. We were talking about something we can do. I think it is a heck of a lot healthier than running around behind closed doors placing holds that nobody knows are there or why.

I make a pledge tonight that if I am ever going to hold anything, the minute I decide to do it, I am going to say what it is, why it is, and I am going to own it. I think it is time that all of us do that. If somebody is not willing to own it, then I hope someone comes to the floor and does to them what we are doing tonight.

I think the sooner we own what we are doing with our rights in the Senate, the sooner we wear them like a proud coat of bright-colored feathers, the better off we are going to be in terms of getting things done around here. This is not about making the other side fail. That is not what this is supposed to be about. This is supposed to be about us working together like you are trying to do.

My friend, the Senator from Tennessee, you are doing the right thing. I hope it is contagious because if you can spread it around a little, I think the American people would be so proud that we would quit this nonsense of political holds and political vote-saving amendments.

By the way, I am the first to admit this has gone on on both sides. This is an equal opportunity Senate. But it is time that we try to make this place work better.

I want to tell you honestly, my dear friend, I think tonight helps. I do not think it hurts. I think it is a good thing, and I am proud to have participated in this tonight. I think the Senate would be a healthier place if we did it more.

I thank the Senator from Illinois for yielding for this time, and I thank him for sticking around as long as he has, so at least we now know what has happened.

Mr. DURBIN. If that is a question, I agree. In defense of the question, I agree with what the Senator said.

I yield to the Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I was presiding during the time that my friend, Senator CORKER, was speaking. I did not have the chance to respond. But I want to assure him, through the Chair and through this question, that as the distinguished Senator from Missouri has just said, this was not planned on our side, at least not by me. I came for the votes.

The only surprise tonight was my surprise that a Senator was going to stop our unemployment insurance program. It never crossed my mind, until it just happened tonight, that was within the realm of possibility. I have 75,000 people unemployed in my small State of Rhode Island. We are at 13 percent unemployment.

So when I discovered, as a surprise tonight at these votes, that this was going to happen, like Senator DURBIN, I could not just walk away from this Chamber. No way.

But it was not as part of a planned surprise. The person in my life who was surprised as to what happened tonight was me. Frankly, I am still surprised, and I am surprised this has not resolved itself during the course of this discussion.

I am surprised that the 75,000 people in Rhode Island and over 1 million people in this country, who are going to wake up to the worst anxiety and extra anxiety that Senator SANDERS spoke about, are going to have to face that. I think it is unfortunate. But it is not because of a surprise attack by me. It is because I am responding to a surprise attack by someone who I think is very unfortunate and extraordinarily painful for tens of thousands of regular working people who did nothing wrong but cannot find work in this economy in my home State.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator. I am happy to yield for a question from the Senator from Tennessee.
Mr. CORKER. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Illinois. I have to say to my friend from Missouri that I agree that the discussion has been very good. I received an e-mail from my staff regarding what was happening. I got in my car and drove down here. I have to say that I have never been to the other side of the aisle and on this side. I have a lot of friends, a lot of goodwill.

I say to the Senator from Illinois, I don't think I have ever, in my short time here, 3 years 2 months, I don't think I have offered a message in any event. I don't think I have ever offered anything that was meant to obstruct unnecessarily. As a matter of fact, I offer very few amendments. I try to do my work with other Senators and bring things to the floor that are hopefully ready to pass.

At the end of the day, the Senator from Vermont is the best I know in this body at talking about compassion for people that I know he believes; I think I always listen to him with great awe, candidly, at his ability to express what all of us feel about people who are unemployed or have large heating bills or whatever may exist. I don't really think that is what this is about. It isn't. This debate is about the fact we are spending money that we don't have. Yet we have passed a $787 billion stimulus bill that won't be spent until way beyond 2012.

I cosponsored an amendment, a piece of legislation with the Senator from Colorado, Mr. BENNET, to use some of that unspent money past 2012 to pay down the deficit. He is in a tough race. He wanted me to cosponsor something that was sensible, and I did.

This is really not about the fact that all of us want to see people who are unemployed have these benefits. We don't want to see physicians take a 21 percent cut. It is about paying for it. I would say to the Senator from Illinois would agree to me offering unanimous consent that we pass this measure that is before us, and we do it tonight. And we pay for it with unspent funds from the stimulus bill that won't be utilized or are not planned to be utilized until beyond 2012. That is what this debate is about. All of us want to see people get unemployment benefits. We want that. We want to see them have all the things that are in this bill. It is not about that. You know that if this bill were offset, it would have been voice voted out of here.

I ask unanimous consent that we pass this measure out, that we offset it with unspent stimulus moneys that are going to be utilized past the year 2012, and then we work together, just like we are tonight, to figure out a way to make up that difference. I know this is something that is very important to the administration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask for the regular order. I yielded for the purpose of a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois yielded for a question.

Mr. DURBIN. I would say to the Senator from Tennessee, here is the difficulty we face. Of the stimulus funds currently sitting there, they have been obligated. They will be spent. There won't be a surplus, we are told, of any funds. This would have come out during the course of the debate, if Senator BUNNING had accepted our offer of the amendment. To agree to this now is to basically agree to what he has been asking for, just say we will pay for it with the stimulus. I don't think it should be, and I don't think it can be. It should be the subject of a good floor debate. That is what the Senate is for.

I understand you can't make a unanimous consent request when I have yielded only for a question. But that would be my response to you based on that.

Mr. CORKER. I would like a ruling from the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois is correct.

Mr. CORKER. I thank the Senator for yielding for a question, and I thank him for this discussion. I understand my request is out of order. I actually thank each of you for your heartfelt comments. All of us know that we all want to see these benefits extended.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I am going to ask this unanimous consent request one last time this evening. I will not be making another unanimous consent request until tomorrow morning. There will be an opportunity. I believe, with the Senate coming into session, pursuant to the adjournment script, at about 9:30 in the morning. I will make one request. I will make the same unanimous consent request in the morning. That is the only time I will make it. But at this point that is my plan.

I thank the members of the staff, all of them, who were not notified that this was going to happen this evening and had to make changes in their own personal and family plans as a result.

As we have said, there will be thousands and thousands of people across America impacted by this decision in just a few days. That is why many of us thought it was worth the wait and the effort. I still believe it was.

I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691, a 30-day extension of programs which expire on Sunday, February 28—unemployment insurance, COBRA, flood insurance, Satellite Home Viewer Act, highway funding, SBA business loans and small business provisions of the American Recovery Act, SGR, and on poverty guidelines received from the House and at the desk, that the bill be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BUNNING. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. DURBIN. It is my understanding we will now move to closing the session. I thank my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, particularly on the Democratic side, for sticking with me through the course of the evening. None of us had planned for this, and it may be a surprise that this bill came before us. I think there were heartfelt sentiments stated here, and I thank them very much for staying with me.

REMEMBERING VERNON HUNTER

Mr. KAUPMAN. Mr. President, I rise once again to recognize one of America's great Federal employees. I have spoken before about the values that bind our Nation's public servants together. One of the most fundamental of these is sacrifice.

We see this quality each day in the men and women who serve in uniform, both in the military and in law enforcement. They put themselves in harm's way to keep us all safe and protect our freedoms and way of life.

Those who work in civilian roles also routinely take risks to their safety when performing their jobs, including the many Federal employees posted overseas and at our borders.

This week, sadly, our Nation mourns the loss of a truly outstanding public servant who was killed last Thursday in the tragic attack against an office building in Austin, TX. Vernon Hunter was a 27-year veteran of the Internal Revenue Service and before that served for two decades in the U.S. Army.

Earlier this month, I honored an IRS employee who made it possible for tens of millions to file their taxes electronically at that time. I noted how our IRS employees continually work hard to make it easier and less stressful for Americans to pay their taxes.

Vernon was one of the great IRS managers who helped process tax filings and resolve issues for taxpayers. He had a reputation known far and wide, and his life was full of life. He always wanted to help people solve their problems. His biography reads like a lesson in service and sacrifice.

A native of Orangeburg, SC, Vernon entered in the U.S. Army after graduating from high school. He served two combat tours in Vietnam, at the same time facing discrimination at home when he was turned away from an all-White boarding house despite wearing the uniform. Vernon remained in the Army for 20 years, after which he worked for a short time in the private sector. However, as do many of our great Federal employees, he believed he had always been called to serve his Nation, and he returned to Federal employment nearly three years ago when he began working for the IRS.

Last week, Vernon lost his life when a small plane appeared out of the clear morning sky and struck his office.

Mr. KAUPMAN. One final note. As I am speaking, the second Amendment to the Senate, which is the final amendment, has been ruled out of order. It was a proposed amendment to the amendment that is before the Senate, and the ruling of the Chair was that it was unnecessary. building. The pilot also died in an act of apparent suicide, leaving behind a lengthy manifesto condemning corporations, the government, and singling out the IRS. Although 13 people were injured, Vernon was the only person killed in the violent explosion that ensued.

Vernon, dedicated public servants such as Vernon bravely put themselves at risk each and every day through the mere act of doing their jobs. The attack in Austin was, of course, presaged by the Oklahoma City bombing and the anthrax attacks of 2001.

Civilians Federal employees know there is always a risk. Many pass through metal detectors each morning coming to their offices. Mail is screened and emergency drills rehearsed. A Federal office building is a place of both dedicated work and unwitting risk in the name of service to country. Vernon, tragically, epitomized both.

Vernon was 68 years old and is survived by his wife Valerie who also works for the IRS in the same office building, along with six children and stepchildren, seven grandchildren, and a great-grandchild. According to his son, Vernon was planning to retire from the IRS and go back to school. He wanted to teach children with special learning needs. Vernon was also an active member of the Greater Mountain Zion Baptist Church in Austin where he taught and where his funeral will be held tomorrow.

I hope my colleagues will join me in honoring Vernon Hunter and expressing our condolences to his family, friends, and those who worked with him at the IRS. He made the ultimate sacrifice in service of our Nation.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I rise today during Black History Month to honor the history and legacy of the First Kansas Colored Infantry, a regiment of former slaves, which was the first group of Black men to fight in the American Civil War.

This regiment of escaped Black slaves was the first organized into service for the U.S. Government. They were commanded by COL James M. Williams. For the first time during the Civil War, Black troops were fighting alongside White troops in the name of freedom and equality.

In June 1862, Kansas Senator James H. Lane started recruiting troops from among free Blacks, especially the increasing numbers of fugitive slaves in Kansas, men who had fled their masters in Missouri and Arkansas. The progressive nature of Kansas made it appealing to slaves fleeing Missouri and Arkansas as soon as the Civil War fighting began. By August 1862, Colonel Williams assembled 500 men in a camp outside Fort Leavenworth. The men fought bravely in July of 1863, at Cabin Creek, when the First Kansas Colored Infantry along with other Union forces worked to drive the Confederates out of nearly all of Arkansas.

President Lincoln also took note of the bravery of the First Kansas Colored Infantry when he noted to a group of visitors from South Carolina who came to contemplate the suffering of Blacks: "You say you will not fight to free Negroes. Some of them seem to be willing enough to fight for you." These men of the First Kansas Colored Infantry continued to fight until the end of the Civil War, being credited with seeing action at Sherwood, MO; Honey Springs; Indian Territory; and Lawrence, KS; Poison Springs, AR. They saw more regular combat than any other black regiment of the war. In October 1865, the men of the First Kansas Colored Infantry were discharged at Fort Leavenworth.

Frederick Douglass once stated, "In a composite nation like ours, as before the law, there should be no rich, no poor, no high, no low, no white, no black, but a common country, common citizenship, equal rights and a common destiny." These men were willing to give their lives in the hopes for a better future, an equal future, for their children. It is a struggle that continues today, as we celebrate the history as we continue to engage in it.

Mr. President, the men of the First Kansas Colored Infantry helped shape this nation into a society of freedom and a beacon of hope around the world. I ask that we all honor them and honor their legacy of service.

USA PATRIOT ACT EXTENSION

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, this is not where I hoped we would be, 8 1⁄2 years after the USA PATRIOT Act became law. Congress should have passed that law in such haste in 2001 and ought to have enacted meaningful reforms to it years ago. That is why I opposed the 2005 extension of the PATRIOT Act in the first place, and it is why, Congress after Congress, year after year, I have sponsored and cosponsored bills and amendments to enact changes that would protect the rights of innocent Americans while also ensuring that the government has the authorities it needs to protect national security.

So needless to say, it is far from ideal that the three expiring provisions are being extended for 1 year. But my hope is that Congress will take the opportunity presented by the 1-year extension to finally enact the meaningful changes to the PATRIOT Act that I have been advocating for years. It is well past time to place appropriate checks and balances on authorities like national security letters, whose abuse the inspector general has documented repeatedly; "sneak and peek" searches, which allow government agents to search Americans' homes without telling them until well after the fact; and provisions that force the government to secretly obtain records about Americans without connections to terrorists or spies.

I will continue to fight for these reforms, just as I did a few months ago in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Our committee took up the USA PATRIOT Act Sunset Extension Act in October 2009, and Senator DURBIN and I pushed for improvements—on a variety of issues. Some of those amendments were successful, such as the amendment shortening the presumptive time period for delayed notice of a "sneak and peek" search warrant from 30 days to 10 days and the amendment requiring that the Attorney General issue procedures governing the acquisition, retention, and dissemination of records obtained via national security letters, NSLs. There are other provisions in that bill that I strongly support, as well, including new inspector general audits, a sunset for the first time on the NSL authorities, and changes to the NSL and section 215 gag orders to help bring them in line with the first amendment.

But in key ways, that bill fell short, and as a result I voted against it in committee. Most importantly, it did not contain critically important protections for the government's use of section 215 orders and NSLs. Senator DURBIN and I have both argued that we should have required that the government be able to demonstrate some connection—however tenuous—to terrorism before obtaining an individual's sensitive business records using these authorities. But those amendments were rejected. This was in some respects mystifying. The Senate Judiciary Committee passed this same standard for section 215 orders unanimously in 2005, and the Senate adopted it by unanimous consent that year, although it was not in the conference report that ultimately became law. The arguments that led the Senate to pass this standard in 2005 still apply. The "relevance" standard of section 215, certified amends and used in a dangerous manner and the burden of proof should be on its proponents to explain why a more focused standard, unanimously supported by the Senate in 2005, cannot serve as an effective counterrorism and national security tool.

I recall during the debate in 2005 that proponents of section 215 argued that these authorities had never been misused. They cannot make that case now. Section 215 has been misused. I cannot elaborate, but I believe that the public deserves some information about this. I and others have also pressed the administration to declassify some basic information about the use of section 215, and it has declined. I hope that the administration will reconsider and that more information will be declassified before this reauthorization process is completed. I do appreciate that the administration has offered to provide information about this to Members of the Intelligence and Judiciary Committees. But that is just a start. We must find a way to have an open and honest debate about the nature of these government powers, while still protecting national security secrets, and under current conditions that simply isn't possible.

Congress and the American people do, however, have a great deal of information about the national security authorities that have been abused by the FBI. In a series of incredibly detailed audits—audits that the Judiciary Committee chairman worked so hard to require in the 2006 PATRIOT Act reauthorization legislation—Inspector General and Department of Justice officials have documented years of misuse. In his first report, in 2007, the inspector general found—as he put it—"widespread and serious misuse of the FBI’s national security letter authorities." His most recent report documents even more instances of the FBI inappropriately obtaining telephone records, through the use of so-called "exigent letters" and other informal requests for telephone billing records, that violated the requirements of the Electronic Communications Privacy Act, ECPA.

So I will continue to press for improvements to the PATRIOT Act. Indeed, last year and nine other Senators introduced the JUSTICE Act, which takes a comprehensive approach to fixing our surveillance laws. It permits the government to conduct necessary surveillance but within a framework of accountability and oversight. It ensures both that our government has the tools to keep us safe and that the privacy and civil liberties of innocent Americans will be protected. These are not mutually exclusive goals. We can and must do both.

Since the PATRIOT Act was first passed in 2001, we have learned some important lessons. Perhaps the most important is that Congress cannot grant the government overly broad authorities and just keep its fingers crossed that they won’t be misused or interpreted by aggressive executive branch lawyers in as broad a way as possible. It is no longer possible for Congress and the American people to accept the president’s word that he won’t be misused or interpreted by aggressive executive branch lawyers in as broad a way as possible.

I hope that this extension will allow Congress an opportunity to do just that—to get this right once and for all.

NOMINATION OF JUSTICE BARBARA KEENAN

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, in the summer of 2009, Senator Webb and I had the honor of interviewing several potential candidates to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. We were enormously impressed by the qualifications of all the candidates being considered. But one candidate rose to the top of the list for her extensive experience, judicial temperament, and commitment to the law. This candidate was Justice Barbara Keenan.

President Obama nominated Justice Keenan on September 14, 2009. The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing on the nomination where members of the committee were given the opportunity to engage Justice Keenan in a question-and-answer session. On October 29, 2009, the members of the committee reported the nomination by unanimous consent.

Justice Keenan’s nomination has been on the Senate Calendar for 4 months now. I believe it is time for this Chamber to consider the nomination and give Justice Keenan an up-or-down vote.

Justice Keenan has strong academic credentials. She graduated from Cornell University in 1971 and received her law degree from the George Washington University Law School in 1974. She also earned a master of laws degree from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1992.

Justice Keenan has served with distinction at every level of State court in Virginia. She has served as a justice on the Virginia Supreme Court since 1991. She also served on the Fairfax County General District Court, the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, and the Court of Appeals of Virginia. Earlier in her career, Justice Keenan worked as an assistant prosecutor in Fairfax and briefly worked as an attorney in private practice.

The Virginia State Bar Judicial Nominations Committee ranked Justice Keenan as “highly qualified.” She was one of the few candidates to receive a unanimous vote.

The committee noted in the summary of her evaluation that “... it would be a shame to lose Justice Keenan’s skills on the Supreme Court of Virginia, but Senators Webb and Warner could do no better than to appoint her to the Fourth Circuit.” The committee also found that Justice Keenan has exhibited excellent judicial temperament, has the highest integrity, and concluded that she has superior intellect and legal skills for the position.

In addition to the Virginia State Bar, Justice Keenan was considered “highly recommended” or “highly qualified” by the Virginia Women Attorney’s Association, the Old Dominion Bar Association, the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association, and the Asian Pacific American Bar Association.

I must also mention that Justice Keenan is the first woman appointed to the bench in Virginia and one of the initial 10 appointees to the Virginia Court of Appeals following its creation in 1985.

Six weeks ago Justice Keenan was the first woman to administer the oath of office to a Virginia Governor, Gov. Bob McDonnell.

In May, Virginia Lawyers Weekly named Justice Keenan as the “influential woman of the year” for “a litany of firsts and years of service.”

I look forward to casting my vote in support of Justice Keenan’s nomination and encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to do the same.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO TONY BELL

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize Tony Bell of Harveyville, KS. Tony has been selected as a 2009 Great Comebacks Recipient for the Central Region. This very important program annually honors a group of individuals who are living with incontinence or recovering from ostomy surgery.

The Great Comeback Award celebrates the lives of people with painful and debilitating diseases like Crohn’s disease, ulcerative colitis, colorectal cancer and other diseases that can lead to ostomy surgery. Tony is one of over 700,000 Americans, from young children to senior citizens, who have an ostomy, a surgical procedure that reconstructs bowel and bladder function through the use of a specially fitted medical prosthesis. Ostomy surgery is a life-altering and sometimes life-saving procedure which both addresses a medical issue and improves a patient’s quality of life.

Hundreds of thousands of those suffering from Crohn’s or ulcerative colitis rely on a certain type of ostomy to function on a daily basis. Just like a prosthesis, ostomies help restore patients’ ability to participate in the normal activity of daily life. Recipients are patients who live full and productive lives with their ostomies.

Born with a defect of his colon, Tony Bell received an ostomy immediately after birth. A few years later, the ostomy was reversed, but after years of struggling with incontinence, 9-year-old Tony received a permanent colostomy. All of a sudden, this inactive, withdrawn boy who was scared to leave his home was ready to saddle up and grab life by the horns.

In control of his body—and his life—at last, an empowered Tony embraced a bright future—one he hoped would include a career as a professional bull rider. He wasted no time, mounting his first bull at the age of 10. As Tony trained for rodeo events, he also pursued cancer and other diseases that can affect senior citizens, he was chosen to join the elite Kansas Ambassadors choir on a European tour.
While attending college on a singing scholarship, Tony went pro on the rodeo circuit and competed professionally for 2 years, even riding in the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo, known as “The Daddy of Them All.” Having achieved this childhood dream, Tony has set his sights on a new goal, following in his parents’ footsteps to become a teacher.

Through it all, Tony says he drew tremendous strength from his parents, who taught him to be resilient and to bounce back from whatever life threw his way. He also credits his “second family,” Youth Rally, a summer camp for adolescents with an ostomy, for helping him through some rough patches in his life. He now returns each summer as a counselor and enjoys “paying it forward” by providing support and encouragement to campers.

Today, Tony, 28, lives in Harveyville, KS, with his wife Pam and 6-year-old stepdaughter Haiden. He works on the family farm and is only a few credits shy of his special education teaching degree. Although Tony didn’t end up a country music star, he channels his passion and performs in a barbershop quartet with his dad. An outdoor enthusiast, he enjoys skydiving and noodling—fishing for catfish with your bare hands. “I want to share with the world my story of success so that others with life-changing conditions know that they are not alone,” said Tony. “No matter what comes your way, always reach for the stars and grasp your dreams—they are only a bull ride away.”

I urge my colleagues to take the time to meet with Tony and some of the other Great Comebacks Regional Award Recipients. Their personal stories are inspirational and will raise your awareness about some of the Great Comebacks being made by people living with intestinal diseases or recovering from ostomy surgery.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. INHOFE (for himself, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. RISCH, Mr. BARRASSO, and Mr. VITTER): S. 3036 A bill to amend the Safe Drinking Water Act to prevent the enforcement of certain national primary drinking water regulations unless sufficient funding is available; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Small System Drinking Water Act of 2009. This is the third Congress that I have introduced this bill which would assist water systems throughout the country comply with the ever growing number of federal drinking water standards. I am pleased to be joined by Senators MIKE CRAPO, JAMES RISCH, JOHN BARRASSO and DAVID VITTER as cosponsors of this legislation. My bill will require the Federal Government to live up to its obligations and require the EPA to use the tools it was given in the 1996 Safe Drinking Water Act amendments, SDWA.

My goal here is to ensure that small towns across this country have affordable drinking water and that the laws are fair to small and rural communities. Currently EPA assumes that families can afford water rates of 2.5 percent of their annual median household income, or $1,000 per household. For some families, paying $83 a month for water may not be a hardship but for so many more, it is nearly impossible. There must be some flexibility inserted into the calculation that factors in the ability to pay these costs. Forcing systems to raise rates beyond what their rate-payers can afford only causes more damage than good.

EPA needs to look more closely at how it determines affordability. My bill directs EPA to take additional factors into consideration when making this determination. These include ensuring that the affordability criteria are not more costly on a per-capita basis to a small water system than to a large water system.

In EPA's most recent drinking water needs survey, Oklahoma identified a total of over $4.1 billion in drinking water needs over the next 20 years. $2.4 billion of that need is for community water systems that serve fewer than 10,000 people. The $4.1 billion does not include the total costs imposed on Oklahoma communities to meet federal clean water requirements, the new Long Term 2 Enhanced Surface Water Treatment Rule. Oklahoma continues to have municipalities struggling with the 2002 arsenic rule. Many of our small systems are having difficulty with the Disinfection Byproducts, DBP, Stage I rule, and small systems who purchase water from other systems and did not have to test, treat or monitor their water must now comply with DBP II. EPA estimates that over the next 20 years, the entire country will need $52.0 billion to come into compliance with existing, proposed or recently promulgated regulations.

My bill proposes a few simple steps to help systems comply with all these rules. First, it requires the technical assistance program in the Safe Drinking Water Act to provide technical assistance to small systems. Second, the bill requires the EPA to convene a working group to examine the science behind the rules in order to compare new developments since each rule's publication.

Section 1412(b)(4)(E) of the SDWA Amendments of 1996 authorizes the USEPA to draft a model guidance document that states can use to create their own programs.

Most importantly this bill requires the federal government to pay for these unfunded mandates created by laws and regulations. In 1995, Congress passed the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act to ensure that the Federal Government pays the costs incurred by State and local governments in complying with Federal laws. My bill is designed to ensure that EPA cannot take an enforcement action against a system serving less than 10,000 people, without first ensuring that it has sufficient funds to meet the requirements of the regulation.

Since the 108th Congress, I have co-authored and cosponsored legislation to provide additional resources to communities through the State Revolving Loan Funds. Unfortunately, not much has changed. We still have too many regulations and not enough money to pay for them. Passage is important but until that money becomes available, it is unreasonable to penalize and fine local communities because they cannot afford to pay for regulations we imposed on them. I thank my colleagues and look forward to their support of this commonsense proposal.

By Mr. UDALL, of New Mexico (for himself and Mr. COCHRAN): S. 3039 A bill to prevent drunk driving injuries and fatalities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the ROADS SAFE Act of 2010. I am pleased to be joined in introducing this legislation by my colleague, the Senator from Tennessee, Mr. BOB CORRICK.

This legislation will encourage the development of new tools to fight drunk driving and has the potential to save 8,000 lives every year.

Tragic drunk driving crashes often prompt communities to do more to prevent drunk driving. This was the case in my home State of New Mexico back in 1992, when a drunk driver killed a mother and her three girls on Christmas Eve. He was speeding down the highway 90 miles an hour, going the wrong way down an interstate highway. This crash led our state government and the people of New Mexico to work together to draft a model guidance document that states can use to create their own programs.

The United States has already made significant progress. Compared to 20 years ago, our roads are much safer today. Yet even as the overall number of people killed on our highways has declined, drunk driving still accounts for about one-third of all traffic fatalities.

It is even more worrisome that a drunk driver has just a 2-percent chance of being caught. In fact, one study found that first-time drunk driving offenders have, on average, driven drunk 87 times before being arrested. Imagine, 87 times. This is unacceptable. Something must be done to prevent these drivers from getting on the road in the first place.

True, new technologies are emerging that hold the promise of in-vehicle technologies to prevent drunk driving.

A December 2009 report by the Government Accountability Office, GAO–10–79, reaffirms this concern and provides additional evidence of the need for such a study. The GAO concluded that “weaknesses in FCC’s processes for collecting and using information raise concerns about the transparency and informed nature of FCC’s decisionmaking process.” Furthermore, the report found the “FCC faces challenges in ensuring it has the expertise needed to adapt to a changing marketplace.”

With the rapid advancement of technologies and innovation within the telecommunications industry, the FCC must be better equipped and more agile to address the ever-changing technical landscape from a regulatory perspective. If it isn’t, our Nation’s technical leadership in this area will continue to erode and it will be even more difficult to lay the proper policy foundation necessary to meet future telecommunications needs.

To better examine these significant issues and make tangible recommendations toward a comprehensive solution, this legislation proposes a study by the National Academy of Sciences on the technical policy decisions and technical personnel at the Federal Communications Commission; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today, along with Senators KAUFMAN, for herself and Mr. KAUFMAN:

S. 3042. A bill to provide for a study by the National Academy of Sciences on the technical policy decisions and technical personnel at the Federal Communications Commission; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Yet, communications technologies are becoming increasingly complex—evolving from the traditional circuit-switched phone networks to packet-based dynamic-routing high-bandwidth data networks. The need to thoroughly address these issues challenges staff and engineers to keep up with the rapid development of technical rulemakings since the Commission doesn’t have the appropriate resources for timely technical evaluation and decisionmaking.

The technical policy process, including those to authorize new technologies, have been dismally slow—typically taking 2–5 years for approval—creating a bottleneck for innovation and competition.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is the regulatory agency charged with ensuring a competitive marketplace. FCC’s mission is to protect and promote the public interest in the development of the public telecommunications and information marketplace. The current FCC decisionmaking process has evolved over time from a hierarchical structure to a more collaborative, cross-cutting process. It is for good reason: in 1948, the latest full FCC reorganization, the Federal Communications Commission was created to address these issues challenges staff and engineers to keep up with the rapid development of technical rulemakings since the Commission doesn’t have the appropriate resources for timely technical evaluation and decisionmaking.

The technical policy process, including those to authorize new technologies, have been dismally slow—typically taking 2–5 years for approval—creating a bottleneck for innovation and competition.

order to properly regulate communications, the FCC must be deeply knowledgable of both the legal and technical aspects of the issues before it. That is why I sincerely hope that my colleagues join Senator KAUFMAN and me in supporting this important legislation.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I am proud to cosponsor a bill Senator SNOWE introduced today to conduct a study on the technical policy decisionmaking process and the availability of technical expertise at the Federal Communications Commission, or FCC.

Professionals in the STEM fields of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics have always been our Nation’s problem solvers. They help us solve great challenges in energy, health, security, and transportation. Their innovation creates jobs, jobs that will continue to lead us on the path to economic recovery.

Still, the number of STEM professionals and the number of our government’s most critical agencies has been declining. In 1948, the FCC had 720 engineers on staff. Today, while communications technologies have become increasingly complex, it has fewer than 300 engineers there. Over the years, there has been a shift in the FCC from hiring engineers to hiring professional staff, resulting in a shortage of network engineers. What is more, a high proportion of these experienced engineers are eligible to retire within the next few years. That means that as communications technology continues to change the way we engage our world, the FCC may face a critical shortage.

This legislation proposes a study by the National Academy of Sciences to address these issues. Specifically, the study will examine the FCC’s technical policy decisionmaking, including if the FCC has the adequate resources, processes, and personnel in place to evaluate properly and to account for the technical implications of the Commission’s rulemaking process. It will also examine the current technical personnel staffing levels and FCC recruiting and hiring processes of technical staff and engineers. Finally, the study will provide recommendations to improve each of these areas.

It is critical that we include engineers in our Nation’s technical policy and decision making, at the FCC and across the government. I am pleased that this study will explore the implications and offer recommendations for the decline of engineers in this important agency and I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting Senator SNOWE’s efforts.

By Mrs. GILLIBRAND (for herself, Mr. KAUFMAN, Ms. SNOWE, Ms. CANTWELL, Ms. KLOBUCHAR, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 300—A bill to award planning grants and implementation grants to State educational agencies to complete comprehensive planning to carry out activities designed to integrate engineering education into K–12 instruction and curriculum and to provide evaluation grants to measure efficacy of K–12 engineering education; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions:

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. President, I am pleased to lead a bipartisan group of Senators today to introduce the Engineering Education for Innovation Act, also called the E² for Innovation Act. Joining me in leading this are Senators KAUFMAN, SNOWE, Senator MURRAY, Senator CANTWELL, and Senator KLOBUCHAR. The intent of this legislation is to competitively award planning and implementation grants for State educational agencies to integrate engineering education into K–12 curriculum and instruction to spark student interest in engineering through comprehensive K–12 engineering education including hands-on design and engineering components.

The need for a STREAMline of K–12 engineering education curriculum and teacher professional development programs, encourages broader participation of girls and underrepresented minorities in K–12 engineering education; to develop model engineering education programs, and the legislation also funds the research and evaluation of such efforts.

Our Nation today faces pressing technological challenges in renewable energy, health care, bioengineering, nanotechnology, material science, and information technology. According to the National Science Board’s 2010 Science and Engineering Indicators, only 5 percent of college graduates in the United States major in engineering, compared with 12 percent of European students, 20 percent of those in Asia and one-third in China. In addition, while women earn 58 percent of all bachelor’s degrees, they constitute only 18.5 percent of engineering, African Americans hold only 4.6 percent and Hispanics hold only 7.2 percent of bachelor’s degrees awarded in engineering.

As a woman, I am a strong proponent of programs that support girls and underrepresented minorities. Many K–12 students, especially girls and students from underrepresented groups or who are economically disadvantaged, and their teachers have little knowledge about more career possibilities in engineering. Today, we continue to have an untapped pool of potential technical workers, and we must leverage the diversity of these individuals to fuel the innovation necessary for our future global competitiveness.

I am committed to initiatives that enhance student participation in STEM, diversify the STEM pipeline and promote competence and confidence. Teach engineering for preparing the next generation of our Nation’s high tech workforce for a sustainable and competitive economy. Long term investments in STEM education will pay rich dividends to our future economy by building capacity to innovate.

The introduction of engineering education has the potential to improve student learning and achievement in STEM and actually lead to the production of a greater number of engineers. What is more, it has the potential to improve student interest in pursuing a career in the field.

I believe we are at a crucial moment for science, technology, engineering, and math, or STEM education. Today’s engineers have a central role to play in developing the innovative technologies needed to sustain our economy and promote real job growth. In turn, we must promote policies and programs that help to generate greater interest in STEM and actually lead to the production of a greater number of engineers.

Last year, the National Academy of Engineering and National Research Council released their seminal report on engineering in K–12 education. According to their report, K–12 engineering education can help us meet the engineering education and teacher professional development needs for science, technology, engineering, and math and increases students’ technological literacy. It can also increase awareness of the engineering profession and boost student interest in pursuing a career in the field.

The report stressed the need for greater coordination among key stakeholders to develop common definitions and grade level appropriate goals for engineering education. It also emphasized the need for more research on the impacts of engineering education and potential models for implementation. The E-squared for Innovation Act seeks to address these recommendations in three ways.

First, the legislation awards planning grants to State educational agencies to review any existing engineering education resources in the State and to develop implementation plans to integrate K–12 engineering education into curriculum and instruction. Grants must coordinate these activities with a number of partners, including the Governor’s office, institutions of higher education, teachers and administrators.
at public elementary and secondary schools, and other relevant players in the State. Second, the E-squared for Innovation Act provides implementation grants to State educational agencies to carry out a number of activities, including developing standards, curricula, and assessments that include engineering; recruiting and training qualified teachers to deliver engineering education; and investing in afterschool engineering education programs. Priority will be given to applicants who serve a significant percentage of student populations underrepresented in engineering.

Third, the bill charges the Institute of Education Sciences with conducting research and evaluation on the grants awarded. These studies will determine the effectiveness of the programs and activities at improving student achievement in STEM education and assess how successful programs can be replicated.

The E-squared for Innovation Act is supported by a diverse list of 77 organizations. To name a few, supporters include the National Center for Technological Literacy, the American Society for Engineering Education, the SABRE Foundation for Science and Mathematics Education, IBM, Intel, the University of California, the National Society of Black Engineers, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers—just to name a few. I am truly amazed but genuinely pleased at the wide-reaching support for this bill.

Norm Augustine, former CEO of Lockheed Martin, expressed strong support for the E-squared for Innovation Act, adding:

One of the many reasons our nation does not seem to attract young people into engineering is that many seem to have no idea what an engineer does. Although we attempt to teach students in K-12, seldom do we expose students to engineering.

Many in my home State recognize this problem and, consequently, support for STEM programs is growing in Delaware. Governor Jack Markell recently launched a STEM education council in Delaware to bring together teachers, business leaders, curriculum specialists, higher education representatives, and others to focus on innovative STEM programs and curricula that engage young people in Delaware in STEM education. The council will assist in Federal grant applications for STEM-related programs and support effective professional development programs in STEM areas.

In STEM-focused schools across Delaware, the learning how to extract DNA from fruit, build robots that can throw balls, perform forensic investigations, make “slime” and lip balm, and more. It is through these types of comprehensive, hands-on activities that we will get young people interested and learning STEM subjects and eventually pursuing engineering jobs. The E-squared for Innovation Act is just the kind of program we need to bolster these activities in Delaware and ensure more students nationwide have access to these exciting engineering opportunities.

I cannot stress enough how much I believe this Nation is at a crossroads in STEM education. This is our opportunity to push forward and create an environment that will cultivate and encourage our next generation of engineers. They will foster the research and innovation that will help us solve challenges like water, drinking water, life-saving cures for cancer and diseases, renewable energy, affordable health care, and environmental sustainability. Our country is counting on these future engineers, and the E-squared for Innovation Act is a step in the right direction to support and encourage them.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 422—RECOGNIZING THE IMPORTANT PROGRESS MADE BY THE PEOPLE OF UKRAINE IN THE ESTABLISHMENT OF DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS FOLLOWING THE PRESIDENTIAL RUN-OFF ELECTION ON FEBRUARY 7, 2010

Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. KERRY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res. 422

Whereas adherence by Ukraine to democratic, transparent, and fair election standards has been necessary for full integration into the democratic community;

Whereas steps undertaken by Ukraine in recent years, including reform of election laws and regulations, the development of a pluralistic and independent press, and the establishment of public institutions that respect human rights and the rule of law, have enhanced Ukraine’s progress toward democracy and prosperity;

Whereas the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) concluded that “most EU-level commitments were met” with regard to the conduct of the run-off presidential election on February 7, 2010;

Whereas international monitoring groups concluded that prior elections in Ukraine on January 17, 2010, and in 2007, 2006, and 2004, were also generally in accordance with international election standards;

Whereas the United States has closely supported the people of Ukraine in their efforts to pursue a free and democratic future since the declaration of their independence in 1991;

Whereas the NATO Freedom Consolidation Act of 2007 (Public Law 110–17; 22 U.S.C. 2128 note), signed into law by President George W. Bush on April 2, 2007, recognized the progress made by Ukraine toward meeting the responsibilities and obligations for membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and designated Ukraine as eligible to receive assistance under the NATO Participation Act of 1994 (title II of Public Law 103–447; 22 U.S.C. 2128 note);

Whereas U.S. policies toward integration within European institutions through a joint European Union–Ukraine Action Plan, as part of the European Neighborhood Policy;

Whereas the United States–Ukraine Strategic Partnership Commission was inaugurated by Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Ukrainian Foreign Minister Petro Poroshenko on December 9, 2009; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate— (1) recognizes the important progress made by the people of Ukraine in establishing democratic institutions and carrying out peaceful elections on January 17 and February 7, 2010;

(2) supports ongoing progress by Ukraine in addressing remaining challenges in the electoral processes as identified by the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe and other international election monitoring entities;

(3) encourages all parties to respect the independence and territorial sovereignty of Ukraine, as well as the full integration of Ukraine into the international democratic community;

(4) pledges further support for the development of a fully free and open democratic system, as well as a transparent free market economy, in Ukraine; and

(5) reaffirms its commitment to engage the Government of Ukraine in further development of bilateral cooperation through the United States–Ukraine Strategic Partnership Commission.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to recognize the important progress made by the people of Ukraine in the establishment of democratic institutions following the presidential runoff election on February 7, 2010. Voters recently elected Viktor Yanukovych as President of Ukraine in a process that international monitors declared to have generally conducted with international election standards. This represents important progress toward the consolidation of democratic institutions that the U.S. has worked diligently to foster. Serving as President George W. Bush’s envoy to the 2004 run-off election that resulted in what is now widely known as the “Orange revolution,” I had the opportunity to witness firsthand the great aspirations of the Ukrainian people for a government that responds to their needs. Given Ukraine’s location on the periphery of NATO and the Russian Federation, as well as its role as the primary energy conduit to Europe, Ukraine’s political development and external orientation greatly impact European security and U.S. policies in the region. A continuing partnership with the people of Ukraine and U.S. technical assistance programs on a range of issues, including nuclear security, non-proliferation, energy security, institution-building, and others, will serve to advance our vital national security interests. This U.S. engagement should also support ongoing progress by Ukraine in addressing the remaining challenges in the electoral processes as identified by international election monitoring entities. In recognition of the profound strategic value of U.S.-Ukrainian partnership, I am pleased to submit this resolution concerning the important progress made by the people of Ukraine in the establishment of democratic institutions.

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) commends the more than 175,000 men and women who have served in VISTA for their dedication and commitment to the fight against poverty;
(2) recognizes the BMW ORACLE Racing team for winning the thirty-third America's Cup; and
(3) encourages the continued commitment of VISTA members to creating and expandning programs designed to bring individuals and communities out of poverty.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today, to celebrate a remarkable anniversary. This month, Volunteers in Service to America, better known as VISTA, celebrates the 45th anniversary of its founding. I am delighted to have Senator THAD COCHRAN of Mississippi as my cosponsor. Public service is a bipartisan issue.
Forty-five years of bringing people together, lifting communities up, fighting poverty, making America stronger.
Forty-five years of fighting illiteracy, improving health services, reducing unemployment, increasing housing opportunities, reducing crime and recidivism, and expanding access to technology.
Forty-five years of leveraging reources and building capacity while providing thousands of Americans the opportunity to devote a year of full-time service living and working in low-income communities to help eradicate poverty.

VISTA did not invent these ideas;
America has a long and rich history of public service. But when John F. Kendey became president, these enduring values found new life. The person in his new administration who truly pursued that vision with all his might was President Kennedy’s brother-in-law, Sargent Shriver. I will always know him as a hero and a friend.
He created a legacy of programs that promote social equality and human dignity—such as Legal Services, Job Corps, and yes, VISTA. He was also the driving force behind the creation of the Peace Corps, which is how I originally came to know him.

When we first met in the early 1960s, I was still studying Chinese and interested in Southeast Asia affairs, but my life had already dramatically transformed after meeting Sargent Shriver.

He understood that one way to improve the world was to start with our own communities—and that if we unite together, we can change our communities, making our communities stronger, we can make the world a better place.

That was when I became a VISTA volunteer, shortly after the program began. I was lucky enough to come to West Virginia—and that was when my life changed forever. I often say that while I was technically born in New York, I was really born in West Virginia that year.

I truly believe that people are liberated when they get outside of themselves to help other people.

When I first came to West Virginia, over 40 years ago, much of my work was with children who didn’t have great opportunities in life. I was a VISTA member in Emmons, West Virginia, a small, coal mining community on the Boone-Kanawha County line.

It took me 6 months to finally be accepted by the community. I used to sit on the railroad tracks with the kids, throwing rocks and just talking with them. One day, one of the kids invited me into their home; then the others soon followed.

I had found what I wanted by working with this community—what my gut was telling me was important. I found out a few other things as well. There was not any organization in the community or a general effort to better the living conditions of the area.

Many of the children didn’t even go to school because it was several miles to a county school, and the school board wouldn’t send a bus to Emmons.

So, we fought for a school bus. We built a small library. We built a park. We started a baseball team. We didn’t win a single game, but that wasn’t what was important. It was opening up new possibilities for those kids.

My experience was just one of thousands. Since 1965, more than 175,000 Americans of all ages and walks of life have answered VISTA’s call. I am proud to count myself as a member of that very special group.

So VISTA’s anniversary is also my own. When I look back on VISTA’s beginnings, I see my own roots—the foundation on which I have built the rest of my life.

I got into politics shortly thereafter. I knew I could not be a VISTA forever, so I ran for the House of Delegates, knowing that was the way I could continue to make change.

I knew there were a thousand Emmans all across Appalachia. But everything that I have done in my career in public office has been grounded in the VISTA experience and in those kids and families who taught me so much about life.

Today, VISTA, which became part of AmeriCorps in 1993, continues to engage more than 7,000 members in helping more than 1,600 local organizations build sustainable anti-poverty programs every year.

So to them—to VISTA’s members, past and present—to its numerous devoted host organizations and communities which give as much to the program as they receive—to my friend and mentor Sargent Shriver—to everyone who carries on VISTA’s noble work every day—congratulations and thank you.

Now, watch out. We have only just begun: In these times of enormous economic uncertainty and challenge, our nation needs VISTA’s, courage, commitment and service more than ever. Your impact is real. I know without a doubt, from the bottom my heart that for years to come, VISTA members will continue to make our communities and our nation—for the better.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join the distinguished Senator from West Virginia, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, in submitting a resolution to celebrate the 45th anniversary of the Volunteers in Service to America, or VISTA, program.

President Kennedy suggested in 1963 a program of national service that would provide assistance to those in need in urban and rural areas. Less than 2 years later, President Johnson launched the “War on Poverty,” and included the VISTA program created by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

Incorporated into the AmeriCorps network of programs in 1993, VISTA has been hard at work in the fight against poverty for 45 years. Today, the VISTA program is stronger than ever, placing 6,500 full-time volunteers at 1,200 nonprofit organizations and public agencies across the country. These volunteers are committed to serving the needs of the poorest Americans at numerous program sites, and they are to be commended for their unselfish contributions to helping others.

I am proud to say that there are 87 VISTA volunteers at 21 program sites in my home State of Mississippi. I understand the sacrifices that are being made by these young men and women and the important impact that these volunteers have made in our communities.

I am pleased to congratulate VISTA on 45 years of distinguished service to our country.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 50—RECOGNIZING THE HISTORIC FOUNDING OF THE BLACK STUNTMEN’S ASSOCIATION AND THE COALITION OF BLACK STUNTMEN AND WOMEN

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to acknowledge a group that has created opportunities for countless African American men and women in the film and television industry. I rise to submit this Senate Concurrent Resolution honoring the Black Stuntmen’s Association and the Coalition of Black Stuntmen and Women for their efforts to not only integrate, but enhance the television and film industry. This is a companion resolution identical to H. Con. Res. 199 submitted by my good friend, Congresswoman SHELLEY BERKLEY.

I take great pride in submitting this resolution not only because these individuals knocked down the walls of racial discrimination, but also because many of these pioneers now reside in my home State of Nevada.
In the 1950s and 1960s, when many African Americans lived in the South, they experienced racism on a daily basis. While driving, they were often stopped by the police for no reason. They were also denied the right to vote in many areas. Despite these challenges, many African Americans refused to give up their rights. They continued to fight for their freedom, and their courage inspired others to join the struggle.

The NAACP, which was founded in 1909, played a crucial role in this struggle. It was formed by a group of lawyers, including Thurgood Marshall, who wanted to fight against racism in the entertainment industry. They believed that if they could change the image of African Americans, they could change the way people thought about them.

The NAACP worked to change the perception of African Americans in movies and television. They fought to ensure that African American actors were given the opportunity to play diverse roles, and that they were treated fairly on set.

The NAACP also worked to change the perception of African Americans in the media. They fought to ensure that African Americans were portrayed in a way that was respectful and true to life.

The NAACP's efforts were not in vain. Over time, the perception of African Americans in the media began to change. More African American actors were given the opportunity to play leading roles, and their performances were praised for their authenticity and depth.

Today, the NAACP continues to work to ensure that African Americans are treated fairly and with respect. They continue to fight against racism and discrimination, and they are committed to ensuring that all Americans are treated with dignity and respect.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that following my remarks, the Senate adjourn until 9:30 a.m., Friday, February 26.

I would like to ask by way of a question, does the Senator from Kentucky seek recognition?

Mr. BUNNING. Yes, I will.

Mr. DURBIN. Would you like to speak after I have made the request so I could make the adjournment subject to your speaking?

Mr. BUNNING. That is acceptable.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that following my remarks and the remarks of the Senator from Kentucky, I seek recognition from the Senator from Tennessee for debate only—let me suspend this unanimous consent request.

Mr. DURBIN. President, I will attempt to make this unanimous consent request again. I ask unanimous consent that following my remarks, the remarks of the Senator from Tennessee, Mr. Corker, who will make a unanimous consent request and then engage in debate only beyond that, and the remarks of the Senator from Kentucky, following those remarks, the Senate adjourn until 9:30 a.m., Friday, February 26; that following the prayer and pledge, I would like to ask by way of a question, if the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senator proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 30 minutes each. I didn’t make it clear that the Senator from Kentucky would speak in debate only.

Mr. BUNNING. I have a few things I would like to comment on.

Mr. DURBIN. In debate only.

Mr. BUNNING. Yes. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. DURBIN. There will be no roll-call votes during Friday’s session of the Senate. The next rollcall vote will occur on Tuesday morning.
given notice to Senator Bunning and others that I will be renewing this unanimous consent request tomorrow morning.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT
Mr. Durbin. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it adjourn after the statements that have already been noted as part of this request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Tennessee.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 4691

Mr. Corker. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Illinois for his nature this evening. I thank all of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, I think we have had a nice discussion. I think we all know this is not about any of our lack of desire to make sure that these benefits are extended. I think everybody here knows this. It has been nice listening to some of the comments.

Therefore, since it was out of order before, I would like to ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691, that the amendment at the desk which offers a full offset be agreed to, that the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and this issue will be dealt with. Every American that is looking for the benefits we have discussed will have those forthcoming.

Mr. President, I ask that that be approved.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. Durbin. Reserving the right to object, I believe the Senator from Tennessee said 4891. I think the bill was 4691.

Mr. Corker. H.R. 4691.

Mr. Durbin. If the Senator would not mind repeating his unanimous consent, I didn’t quite hear the end of it.

Mr. Corker. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4691 which I understand to be the measure that is before us, that the amendment at the desk, which I understand offers a full offset to pay for this, be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read for a third time and passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. Durbin. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Kentucky.

OFFSETTING THE UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFIT EXTENSION

Mr. Bunning. Mr. President, it has been a long night. It is called an ambush. That is what happened. The consent that I was assured of was going to be that the Senator from Illinois offer the same—I am going to get it right. 30-day extension offset. He was going to offer it, and I was going to have a chance to object. We weren’t going to stand around for 3½ hours debating the issue. That is the understanding I had with the leader of the Democrats.

Now, I don’t know what I have for tomorrow. I have been assured that the Senator from Illinois will offer the same amendment tomorrow morning, and I will have a chance to object, if I so choose. But I want to assure the people who have watched this thing until a quarter of 12, I have missed the Kentucky-South Carolina game that started at 9 o’clock. It is the only redeeming chance we had South Carolina, since they are the only team that has beat Kentucky this year. All of these things that we have talked about and all the provisions that have been discussed, the unemployment benefits, all these things, if we had taken a longer version of the jobs bill that was mutually agreed on, a bipartisan bill that Senator Baucus and Senator Grassley agreed on, that the Senator from Nevada, the leader withdrew his support from and brought his own narrowly scoped bill to the floor, $10 billion was not paid for, $5 billion was—so we have $10 billion immediately after we passed pay-go last week, so we have a $10 billion bill we talked about early on that just passed and now we have an extension—by the way, the Baucus-Grassley bill was totally and completely—it is debatable, according to the Senator from Illinois, but it was paid for—CBO said it was paid for, but at least that is what Joint Tax said, too, because I happen to be on the same committee with those two gentlemen—we would not have spent 3 hours-plus—almost 3½—telling everybody in the United States of America that Senator Bunning does not give a damn about the people who are on unemployment; the doctors whom I represent that I did not want to extend SOR; all of the other things—COBRA, flood insurance, small business loans, and small business provisions.

I feel sorry for the people in Kentucky who live in east Kentucky who lost their Satellite Home Viewer Act for a day or two because they will miss all those Senate commercials that are going on. I know how they desperately want to watch those, but if they do not have cable, they will not be able to do it.

But this debate could have been completely changed had the other side rammed through a bill, a partisan bill, over a bipartisan bill. You cannot preach bipartisanship and practice partisanship. I do not give a darn how good you are at conniving people, people see through it. If you think I am kidding, go into your State and ask. The American people understand what is going on up here. That is why the Congress and the Senate have a 30-percent approval rating. Even the President of the United States is higher than that, and his is not good because it is below 50 percent.

But I have served in this body and over in the House—I have not had as long; I have had 2 years shorter than the House service of the Senator from Illinois and 2 years shorter than the Senator’s Senate service; so I have spent 12 and 12, 12 years here and 12 in the House—and we are not conning the people in the United States about anything. They know what is going on. That is why they are madder than heck. They are tired of Senators who talk out of both sides of their mouths. They are tired of people who have been appointed to positions who come before the Congressional committees and do not speak the truth. If you think the Tea Party people are crazy, get them involved in your Senate race or get them against you when you are running.

Remember now, this all could have been changed had not the leader of the Senate decided that a bipartisan compromise jobs bill was not as important as his partisan jobs bill that just passed right before all this debate.

I just want to tell the people who have watched—and I doubt if there are many right now—that I am as interested in all those things I have objected to because of no offsets as the people who have spoken on the other side of the aisle or my good friend from Tennessee or my good friend from Alabama.

This body should be and can be better than it has been. In my 24 years of service, I have never seen the Congress and the Senate have a 30-percent approval rating. Even the President of the United States perform as badly as we are performing presently. And it shows up. Bipartisanship means input from both sides—not talking about it, doing it. That is the whole difference in what we have had here tonight. We did not even have to have this debate. Thank you.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate stands in adjournment until Friday, February 26, 2010, at 9:30 a.m.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 11:52 p.m., adjourned until Friday, February 26, 2010, at 9:30 a.m.
EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

IN TRIBUTE TO REPRESENTATIVE JOHN P. MURTHA OF PENNSYLVANIA

SPEECH OF

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 24, 2010

Ms. DeLAURO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay my respects to a tireless champion for soldiers, veterans, and the middle class, a venerable lion of this body, and a treasured friend, Congressman Jack Murtha.

The first Vietnam veteran ever elected to the House of Representatives, Congressman Murtha dedicated his career to America’s fighting men and women, and always worked to put our troops and their safety first. I consistently relied on his wisdom and his insights on matters of defense and national security.

From his position as Chairman of the Defense Appropriations Committee, Jack extraordinary dedication to the well-being of our troops and their families was evident in his actions every day. He knew that keeping our soldiers out of harm’s way meant providing them with state-of-the-art equipment, from submarines to helicopters. And with that in mind, he helped to maintain a defense-industrial base that brought high-paying, high-skilled manufacturing jobs both to his home state of Pennsylvania and my own state of Connecticut. His legacy will live on not only in his service to military men and women, but through the millions of jobs he helped to create in our region.

Jack was also concerned with the well-being of Americans waging another kind of battle, and he always supported critical funding for research on diseases such as cancer, AIDS, and diabetes. In short, he was a great ally to Connecticut, a great Pennsylvanian, and a great American, and he will be deeply missed. This House is smaller after his passing.

HONORING EDWARD BALOIAN

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. RADANOVICH. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Edward “Ed” Baloian upon being awarded the Ag One “2010 Community Salute.” Mr. Baloian will be recognized on Saturday, February 27, 2010 at the Ag One event benefiting the Jordan College of Agricultural Science and Technology at California State University, Fresno.

In 1923, Ed Baloian’s father, Charles, started a full-service produce business, Charles Baloian Company, Inc. In 1945, upon returning home from serving their country in World War II, Ed and his brother, James, joined their father as partners in the family business. In 1965, the Baloin family formed Pam Pak Distributors, Inc., to package and market fresh vegetables from a large number of local growers. Ed Baloian took on the responsibility of managing the operations at Pam Pak Distributors. Just three years later, in an effort to increase their annual business and to supply the rising local demand for their products, Pam Pak began its own farming operation.

Mr. James Baloian retired from the family business in 1985, and later that year, Mr. Baloian and his son, Tim, started a new branch to the company, Baloian Packing. This new business continued the efforts of Pam Pak, their number one label, and included beets, carrots, tomatoes, eggplant, red onions, melons and squash. The company ships these products to grocery stores, restaurants and food service customers around the United States and Canada.

Outside of the farming and shipping industry, Mr. Baloian is very active in Rotary, is a Paul Harris Fellow and has served on the council at Peoples Church in Fresno, California. Recently, Mr. Baloian accepted the Central California Excellence in Business Award on behalf of his company.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend and congratulate Edward Baloian upon being awarded with the Ag One “2010 Community Salute” for his tremendous support of the agriculture community. I invite my colleagues to join me in wishing Mr. Baloian many years of continued success.

CONGRATULATING THE LAPORTE FAMILY YMCA ON ITS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. JOE DONNELLY
OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. DONNELLY. Madam Speaker, today I rise to honor the LaPorte Family YMCA, celebrating its 100th anniversary of serving the people of LaPorte and the surrounding communities.

For 100 years, the LaPorte Family YMCA has offered a variety of resources to its members. Its dedicated administrators, volunteers and community partners work tirelessly to uphold the organization’s mission to promote positive values, investment in community, and mental, physical, and spiritual well-being.

Founded on December 9, 1910, it took LaPorte citizens less than 2 weeks to raise the bulk of the $65,000 necessary for the construction of the original YMCA facility. This building was completed in 1911. Since that time, the original YMCA building in LaPorte has undergone numerous renovations and additions. Finally, in 1995, the LaPorte YMCA was expanded to its current size of 11,000 sq. ft., which encompasses a teen center, weight room, pool, and a child care center.

As an evolving organization, the YMCA seeks to adapt to the community’s needs while promoting family values. The LaPorte Family YMCA remains committed to the original mission of the organization to respond to the needs of the surrounding community.

Today, the LaPorte Family YMCA continues to successfully fulfill this mission by providing quality services stressing literacy, safe child care and healthy lifestyle choices. These programs are not only well managed and effectively run but are also vital to the community at large and the YMCA’s effort to make a difference in the community “one child, one senior, one family at a time.”

So today, on behalf of the citizens of the Second Congressional District of Indiana, I would like to congratulate the dedicated administrative personnel and community volunteers who make the LaPorte Family YMCA such an upstanding organization and outstanding resource for LaPorte and the surrounding communities.

COMMEMORATION OF TAIWAN’S “2-28 MASSACRE”

HON. SCOTT GARRETT OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 63rd commemoration of Taiwan’s “2-28 Massacre.” In the Fall of 1945, 50 years of Japanese occupation of Taiwan ended with World War II. The United Nations gave administrative control of Taiwan to the Chinese Nationalist Party. After more than a year, the Taiwanese people were frustrated by the corruption and economic mismanagement that seemed to plague the party. On February 28, 1947, an elderly woman was arrested and beaten. A group of Taiwanese confronted the Chinese troops responsible. One of the Taiwanese was shot, riots raged, and Chinese soldiers gunned down thousands of unarmed civilians.

During the following days, government troops arrived from mainland China. The Chinese soldiers began capturing and executing Taiwanese lawyers, doctors, students, and other citizens. It is estimated more than 18,000 people lost their lives. During the following four decades, the Chinese Nationalists continued to rule Taiwan with an iron fist under Martial Law that was not lifted until 1987. The Massacre had far reaching implications. Over the next half-century, these events helped galvanize Taiwan’s struggle for independence and for its transformation from a dictatorship to a thriving and pluralistic democracy.

I urge other Members to join me in commemorating this important historical event.

I am proud to honor Kelly for her academic and personal achievements and congratulate her upon the receipt of this prestigious award.

CORPORAL JACOB HENRY TURBETT

HON. THADDEUS G. McCOTTER OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. McCOTTER. Madam Speaker, today I rise to honor Corporal Jacob Henry Turbett, a courageous and noble Marine, who died on February 13 at the age of 21. Corporal Turbett lost his life while bravely supporting combat operations in the Helmand Province, Afghanistan.

Corporal Turbett was a member of the Second Combat Engineer Battalion, Second Marine Division, II Marine Expeditionary Force based in Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. He was a 2007 graduate of Canton High School and took part in Civil Air Patrol. He came from a celebrated military family. His grandfather, cousin and two of his uncles were in the Marine Corps. His uncle was in the Navy and his sister, Jaime Turbett, started boot camp in the Navy only ten days before her brother was killed. Corporal Turbett followed in these proud footsteps by completing tours of duty in Bangladesh and Iraq. Additionally, he was stationed in Okinawa, Japan. He was a hard worker, a proud and brave American, and a loving husband to his wife Crystal, whom he married in July 2008. Along with his wife and sister he is survived by his mother, Sheila, his father, Richard and his brother, Joe Marsh, who is a sheriff’s deputy in Humboldt County, California.

Corporal Turbett sacrificed everything for his country in Operation Enduring Freedom. To his fellow soldiers, his family and friends, and to everyone who knew and loved him, he was a dedicated member of his community who answered the higher calling to serve his country.

Madam Speaker, during his lifetime, Corporal Turbett enriched the lives of everyone around him by employing energy, leadership, courage and intelligence in everything he did. As we bid farewell to this exceptional individual, I ask my colleagues to join me in remembering and honoring his contributions and years of devoted service to his community and our country.

HONORING THE ORGAN PIPE CACTUS NATIONAL MONUMENT FOR BEING RECOGNIZED BY THE INTERMOUNTAIN REGION’S WILDERNESS STEWARDSHIP AWARDS PROGRAM

HON. RAÚL M. GRIJALVA OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. GRIJALVA. Madam Speaker, I rise today honor the employees of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument. The staff of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument has been recognized by the Intermountain Region’s Wilderness Stewardship Awards Program with the top award for 2009 as true Wilderness Champions.

Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument covers 330,689 acres and, of that acreage, 95 percent is designated wilderness. Founded in 1937, the employees of this National Monument have continuously monitored and evaluated the land use and local environment. President Franklin D. Roosevelt preserved this land for its scenic views but also for its ecological wonders. Having been occupied by American Indians, Mexicans and Europeans the diverse history of this land makes it valuable around the globe. In addition, in 1976 the United Nations bestowed the title of International Biosphere Reserve on Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument further confirming not only its local importance, but its value internationally. Twenty-six species of cactus flourish in the harsh conditions, as well as many species of birds, lizards, bats and rodents. They all delicately coexist in this wondrous ecosystem.

Until the 1970s, this land was used for ranching and mining, making the jobs of the current staff challenging. Catching up with the damage done during these times has proven to be the stimulus for all the wonderful projects taken on by the employees at Organ Pipe. Most notable is the Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument Ecological Monitoring Program. This program has been diligently working since 1997 to monitor and evaluate critical aspects of the region. From reporting changes in the ecosystem, to documenting damage to the land by neighboring developers, this program has proven vital to the stability of the National Monument, as well as to the ecosystem of Southern Arizona.

Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument is also a vital part of the community and offers guided tours, hiking, camping, excellent birding and plenty of beautiful picnic areas. Organ Pipe also offers wonderful educational opportunities through student field trips and its... participation in the VIEWs program through the National Park Service.

The men and women employed at Organ Pipe monitor this delicate ecosystem while still preserving this beautiful area. The staff take bi-annual photos in eight different areas to monitor land use and development along the Mexico border, annually monitor spring and summer lizards and their habits in the Sonoran Desert, and have set up an annual climate monitoring system for which the data are all reported into their ORPI Ecological Monitoring Report. Through the staff’s efforts, the stability of this wonderful, natural resource is protected.

The employees of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument who have been honored with this award truly deserve it. They are vital players in the protection of America’s wild lands. As a member of the House Committee on Natural Resources and, having seen our community grow to over a million people during my lifetime, I know the importance of protecting these delicate areas. It gives me great joy to see such wonderful people giving of themselves to preserve and protect this spectacular region of Southern Arizona.

HONORING MS. DEBRA GABEL
HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. HIGGINS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the years of service given to the people of Chautauqua County by Ms. Debra Gabel. Ms. Gabel served her constituency faithfully and justly during her tenure as the Cherry Creek tax collector.

Public service is a difficult and fulfilling career. Any person with a dream may enter but only a few are able to reach the end. Ms. Gabel served her term with her head held high and a smile on her face the entire way. I have no doubt that her demeanor left a lasting impression on the people of Chautauqua County.

We are truly blessed to have such strong individuals with a desire to make this county the wonderful place that we all know it can be. Ms. Gabel is one of those people and that is why Madam Speaker I rise to pay tribute to her today.

PRISONERS OF CONSCIENCE IN CUBA
HON. ALBIO SIRES
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. SIRES. Madam Speaker, I rise today to share my deep sadness over the loss of a Cuban prisoner of conscience, Orlando Zapata Tamayo, held by the Cuban regime. Orlando Zapata Tamayo was first arrested in March 2003 for participating in a hunger strike to demand the release of Dr. Oscar Biscet and other prisoners of conscience. Since his initial arrest and unwarranted imprisonment, the regime consistently increased Zapata’s prison term up to 47 years.

While in prison, Zapata endured frequent beatings and unimaginable living conditions. On December 3, 2009, Mr. Zapata began a hunger strike to protest the human rights violations and the repeated beatings by the Cuban authorities. After an 83-day hunger strike, Orlando Zapata Tamayo passed away on Tuesday, February 23, 2010. In mourning the death of Orlando Zapata Tamayo, I urge my colleagues to listen to his message of freedom and respect for human life. As the atrocities he fought against remain the reality of Cuba today, we must continue to fight for human rights and the release of all political prisoners.

In light of this tragic death, it is important to recognize the hundreds of activists and prisoners of conscience that continue to risk their freedoms and their lives in Cuba. One such man, Normando Hernandez Gonzalez, was also arrested in the massive crackdown on suspected dissidents in March of 2003. Mr. Hernandez was sentenced to 25 years in prison. While serving this term, his health has deteriorated significantly and he continues to suffer from several life-threatening ailments. I am very concerned for his well-being, and along with the international human rights community, I plead for his immediate release and the release of every wrongly imprisoned Cuban.

HONORING MAURICE GROSSMAN
HON. RÁUL M. GRIJALVA OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. GRIJALVA. Madam Speaker, it is my pleasure to rise today to honor Maurice Grossman, one of Tucson’s true treasures, who passed away January 21st at the age of 82. Maurice was beloved by many who knew him not just for his art but for his dedication to human rights and the Democratic Party.

A retired art professor from the University of Arizona, Maurice Grossman spent his life as a ceramic artist, activist and a leader in the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender community.

Maurice served in the Navy during World War II, before attending Wayne State University in Detroit. After attending and teaching at other universities, he traveled to Japan as a Fulbright scholar, then finally to Tucson to teach.

The founder of the University of Arizona’s ceramics program in 1955, Maurice received several prestigious awards during his career, including a National Endowment for the Arts grant in 1986 and the UA’s Creative Teaching Award. Maurice’s commitment to supporting other artists’ was unflinching and genuine. He would invariably turn up at openings and contribute his works to galleries, both big and small.

Always the activist, Maurice single-handedly took it upon himself to register people to vote. He felt that it was his duty to make sure that everyone, regardless of background, had a voice. When he retired in 1989, he became more involved in the effort to help fight discrimination against the LGBT community.

Maurice was quoted in a 2004 article as saying, ‘‘It’s not just about equal rights for us. It’s really about the rights for everyone. Do we want to take a step forward or a step back?’’ Maurice never stepped back. He was an extraordinary man and a true individual. His role as an activist for equality and human rights will not soon be forgotten.

I was privileged to know Maurice personally. Always enthusiastic, I could count on not only his support but his passion. His dedication to the community was never-ending.

Madam Speaker, I rise to honor Maurice Grossman and thank him for being a role model for so many of us.

RETRIEVAL OF MR. LEW STULTS

HON. HOWARD P. “BUCK” McKEON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. McKEON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the retirement of Lew Stults, who graciously served as my District Director for the past 12 years, representing the needs of constituents in the 25th Congressional District of California. A 53-year resident of the Antelope Valley, Lew first began working for me in 1998 and was a direct liaison to residents, schools, businesses, city and county government officials, civic organizations, and the local aerospace industry.

Lew was an integral part of my most senior staff, forging relationships and addressing issues that significantly and positively impacted Southern California. He became such a beloved figure that he was oftentimes referred to as the “Congressman of Palmdale.”

Lew arrived in the Antelope Valley at the age of 10 in 1957, when his family relocated from Portland, Maine. He attended elementary and middle schools in the Lancaster School District and graduated from Antelope Valley High School in 1965. He first attended Antelope Valley College in the fall of 1965, but interrupted his education to join the U.S. Navy in 1966. Lew is a veteran who served in an airborne photographic reconnaissance squadron. After his 4-year service in the Navy, Lew returned to the Antelope Valley and again attended Antelope Valley College.

He has had a long and distinguished career in sales and marketing. Lew was elected twice to two 4-year terms on the Board of Trustees for the Lancaster School District. In 1993 Lew became the founding President of the Lancaster Education Foundation, a non-profit corporation raising money for children in the Lancaster School District. He is a long-time member of Lancaster West Rotary Club and is a Past President of the Antelope Valley Board of Trade.

It has been my absolute honor to have Lew Stults as a senior advisor and staff member for more than a decade. He is a tremendous man of warm humor, quiet wit, and great integrity.

I congratulate Lew on his retirement and wish him and his wife of 42 years, Karen Stults, prosperity in all future endeavors.

THE KOJALAY TRAGEDY

HON. BILL SHUSTER
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. SHUSTER. Madam Speaker, one of our greatest strengths as elected officials is the opportunity to bring to light truths that are little known and command recognition.

Today, as the cochairman of the House Azerbaijan Caucus, I would like to bring to the attention of this body the tragedy that took place in Khojaly, Azerbaijan, a town and townspople that were destroyed on February 26, 1992.

At the time, the Khojaly tragedy was widely covered by the international media, including the Boston Globe, Washington Post, New York Times, Financial Times, and many other European and Russian news agencies.

Fifteen years later, there is little attention or interest paid to the plight of Khojaly outside of Azerbaijan.

Sadly, Khojaly, a town in the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan, now under the control of Armenian forces, was the site of the largest killing of ethnic Azerbaijanis. With a population of approximately 7,000, Khojaly was one of the largest urban settlements of the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan.

According to Human Rights Watch and other international observers, the massacre was committed by the ethnic Armenian armed forces, reportedly with the help of the Russian 366th Motor Rifle Regiment. Human Rights Watch described the Khojaly Massacre as “the largest massacre to date in the conflict” over Nagorno-Karabakh. In a 1993 report, the watchdog group stated “there are no exact figures for the number of Azeri civilians killed because Karabakh Armenian forces gained control of the area after the massacre” and “while it is widely accepted that 200 Azeris were murdered, as many as 500-1,000 may have died.”

At the time, Newsweek Magazine reported: “Azerbaijan was a charnel house again last week: a place of mourning refugees and dozens of mangled corpses dragged to a moshque behind the mosque. They were ordinary Azerbaijani men, women and children of Khojaly, a small village in war-torn Nagorno-Karabakh overrun by Armenian forces on 25–26 February. Many were killed at close range while trying to flee; some had their faces mutilated, others were scalped.”

Time Magazine stated “While the details are argued, this much is plain: something grim and unconscionable happened in the Azerbaijani town of Khojaly two weeks ago. So far, some 200 dead Azerbaijanis, many of them mutilated, have been transported out of the town tucked inside the Armenian-dominated enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh for burial in neighboring Azerbaijan. The total number of deaths—the Azerbaijanis claim 1,324 civilians have been slaughtered, most of them women and children—is unknown.”

Azerbaijan has been a strong strategic partner and friend of the United States. The tragedy of Khojaly was a crime against humanity and I urge my colleagues to join me in standing with Azerbaijanis as they commemorate this tragedy.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Speaker, I would like to pay tribute today to Alan and Nancy Brodovsky, who are widely known for their community service in Sacramento, California, and especially for their devotion to education excellence.

Madam Speaker, I became aware of and made many friends in the Sacramento Jewish community as a result of a decade in the legislature and through family connections. I have always been impressed by the vibrancy and commitment of the volunteers in our state capital, and have maintained strong ties with my friends there.

Alan Brodovsky is a Sacramento native who has been among the most active in giving his time to the community. He has been particularly involved in supporting the establishment and growth of the Sacramento Jewish Community Foundation, the only Jewish Day School in Sacramento. He has spent 25 years in leadership positions on the board of trustees. He was also instrumental in forming an advisory board to establish, build, and manage the investments for Shalom School’s endowment program.

Mr. Brodovsky has been a volunteer leader of the greater community in many ways, serving on the board of trustees of Mosaic Law Congregation, three years as president. He is currently a member of its foundation board. He is a trustee and treasurer of Hillel of Davis and Sacramento, vice president of the Trust Fund for Jewish Elders. He has served on the board of the Jewish Community Foundation of the West, the JCRC, and is the past president of the Sacramento Junior Chamber.

Nancy Brodovsky has been a force in the Sacramento community since she married Alan and moved there in 1985. She has also been president of the board of trustees of Shalom School, and has served as a trustee for the Crocker Art Museum School, the only Jewish Day School in Sacramento. She has spent 25 years in leadership positions on the board of trustees. She is currently a member of its foundation board. She is a trustee and treasurer of Hillel of Davis and Sacramento, vice president of the Trust Fund for Jewish Elders. She has served on the board of the Jewish Community Foundation of the West, the JCRC, and is the past president of the Sacramento Junior Chamber.

Perhaps her most high-profile role has been as the chairman of the board of directors of the M.I.N.D. Institute at University of California, Davis. The M.I.N.D. Institute is a collaborative international research center, committed to the awareness, understanding, prevention, care and cure of neurodevelopmental disorders, the most well-known of which is autism. In addition to being intimately involved in setting the course of the institute, Nancy has organized and overseen annual fund-raising events that have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for the program.

Madam Speaker, Alan and Nancy Brodovsky have raised two fine sons even as they have devoted their time and efforts to their community. In tribute to their years of dedication, the Brodovskys will be honored by the Shalom School in March. I ask you and my colleagues to join me in commending them for their community work and wish them well in their future endeavors.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2314, the Native Hawaiian Government Reorganization Act, as well as the Abercrombie Amendment, and I thank my good friend Mr. ABERCROMBIE for his diligent work on this bill.

H.R. 2314 is long overdue. Since 1959, when Hawaii was admitted to the Union as our 50th state, Hawaiian home lands—lands to which native Hawaiians are legally entitled—have been administered by the state government of Hawaii in trust with the federal government.

H.R. 2314 simply provides a process for establishing a Native Hawaiian governing entity that would represent the interests of Native Hawaiians in negotiations with the federal and state governments. It would also grant the Native Hawaiian governing entity sovereign immunity—the same authority granted to other native Indian governments.

This bill is about empowerment. Native Hawaiians deserve to be able to advocate for their self-interest in negotiations with the state and federal government.

This bill is about self-determination. Native Hawaiians deserve a say in the welfare and future of their community.

I have visited Hawaii many times, and the people of Hawaii are near and dear to my heart. They have a rich culture and a beautiful heritage that they can pass on to this day. They deserve a say in their future, and they deserve an equitable remedy to their past treatment.

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Madam Speaker, on February 22, 2010, due to weather delays on my flight from Kansas City, I did not cast a recorded vote on H.R. 4425 or H.R. 4238. If I had voted, I would have voted “yes” on both.

Mr. GRIJALVA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to all the staff at the Buenos Aires National Wildlife Refuge. The Refuge consists of a beautiful 118,000 acres of mountains, riparian zones, and grasslands in the Southern Arizona desert and contains majestic areas such as Brown Canyon, Arivaca Cienega, and the Baboquivari Mountains.

The Buenos Aires National Wildlife Refuge is a sanctuary for many different types of wildlife including the Pima pineapple cactus, the...

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — Extensions of Remarks E241

TRIBUTE TO LIEUTENANT GENERAL LARRY DODGEN

HON. ROBERT B. ADERHOLT
OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. ADERHOLT. Madam Speaker, I would like to offer my condolences to the family of LTG Larry Dodgen, former head of the Army's Aviation and Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal.

On February 20, 2010, I along with many others across the State and Nation were saddened to hear of the passing of Retired LTG Larry Dodgen.

Dodgen served in the U.S. Army from 1972 to 2006. He was awarded the Defense Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit with two oak leaf clusters, the Meritorious Service Medal with four oak leaf clusters, the Army Commendation Medal and the Army Achievement Medal.

After retiring from the Army in 2006, Lieutenant General Dodgen worked as sector vice president and deputy general manager of the Missle Defense Division at Northrop Grumman's Mission Systems sector. Lieutenant General Dodgen will be remembered for his outstanding leadership, effective communication, and for making safety and security the top priority for both his troops and their families. It was an honor to work with him, and I know he was well-liked and respected throughout Congress.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his wife Leslie and her family and friends.

RECOGNIZING AND THANKING AMERICAN ENTREPRENEURS

HON. ADRIAN SMITH
OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. SMITH of Nebraska. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the men and women who are striving to realize the American dream and who will be integral in our economy's recovery. This week we are recognizing and thanking American small businesses and the entrepreneurs behind them.

Entrepreneurs are a key component to our Nation's economy now more than ever. They are responsible for the creation of two-thirds of all new jobs each year, and their small businesses comprise more than 97 percent of all employers in the United States—nearly 30 million businesses in all.

Entrepreneurs are important for the entire nation, but in Nebraska they are vital. In the most recent report from the Small Business Administration, Nebraska has an estimated 163,077 small businesses which employed more than 10,700,00 people and paid $43,000,00 in wages.

Quite simply, we need small businesses and entrepreneurs. They deserve our support and recognition as they work to rebuild our economy.
All too often there is a tendency to rely on the government to create wealth and prosperity when, in reality, these are created in the private sector by risk-taking entrepreneurial Americans with ideas, innovation, and their own hard work.

RECOGNITION OF CINDY DYAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Ms. KILROY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Cindy Dyas, a strong, inspirational woman who fought to raise awareness for breast cancer as well as the care of patients suffering from the illness. Cindy, diagnosed with breast cancer in 1991, was instrumental in bringing both issues to the forefront in the Columbus community.

Cindy Dyas played an integral role in bringing the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure to Columbus. Since the inaugural race in 1993, the number of participants has grown from 800 to 47,000 and has raised $13 million in support of Ohio cancer research. Currently the Columbus Race for the Cure ranks in the top 10 for participation among Race for the Cure events nationwide. Each year her contribution to breast cancer awareness and research in Columbus lives on through thousands of central Ohioans who take part in and support the annual Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure.

After bringing the Race for the Cure to the Columbus area, Ms. Dyas walked in every race but one and was an active member of the Columbus Komen Board. In 2003 she received the Komen Cameo Award, the highest award given to a volunteer by the foundation. Upon her death in 2005, Susan G. Komen for the Cure established the Cindy Dyas Award of Heroism. The award is presented annually to a long-term breast cancer survivor whose dedication to the cure has given strength to others in the same way that Cindy Dyas has inspired countless cancer survivors.

The Upper Arlington Historical Society and the City of Upper Arlington have chosen Cindy Dyas as one of the 2010 inductees for the Upper Arlington Wall of Honor. Each year the Historical Society and the city select members of the community who have demonstrated an outstanding achievement and personal character, or provided valuable service to the community. The induction ceremony will be held on May 23, 2010, in honor of Cindy Dyas, her contribution to Upper Arlington, Columbus, and the search for a cure of breast cancer. I am proud to honor Cindy Dyas, whose leadership and courage in the fight against breast cancer in the Columbus and central Ohio area has been and continues to be an inspiration.

HONORING ALEC ROBINOVITZ, A TOP YOUTH VOLUNTEER IN SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. BROWN of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Alec Robinovitz, who was named one of two top youth volunteers in South Carolina for 2010 by the 15th Annual Prudential Spirit of Community Awards.

Alec, a fifth-grade student at East Cooper Montessori Charter School in Mt. He is a remarkable and inspirational young man who has chosen to make a positive impact on his community by reaching out to those in need.

I am proud of my constituent, Alec Robinovitz, who has displayed an incredible sense of kindness and commitment to the children at MUSC. Thank you, Alec, for your exemplary volunteer service in South Carolina’s First District, and congratulations on receiving such a noble honor.

IN TRIBUTE TO REPRESENTATIVE JOHN P. MURTHA OF PENNSYLVANIA

HON. BILL SHUSTER
OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 24, 2010

Mr. SHUSTER. Madam Speaker, I want to thank Representative Kanjorski for organizing this afternoon’s special order to honor the memory of our friend and colleague Jack Murtha.

Over the course of the hour many members of our delegation and the House will add their own personalized sentiments to memorialize Jack Murtha and I appreciate the opportunity to add my own remarks today.

Jack Murtha will always be remembered for his extraordinary service to his country, both in and out of uniform. He always put the interests of his country, his state, and his constituents first and he will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Outside of Pennsylvania, Jack Murtha will be remembered—and rightly so—for his skills in navigating the ins and outs of House rules and procedures. He will be remembered as someone who could get things done in Washington.

As a former colonel in the Marine Corps, Jack never forgot Congress’ primary responsibility to provide for our common defense. His unceasing commitment to national security will go down as legend in Washington, as will the work he did on behalf of our men and women in the military through his chairman-ship of the Subcommittee on Defense Appropriations.

For those of us from Pennsylvania, especially the western part of the state, Jack will always be remembered and greatly missed for the dogged determination he showed over his career to make sure the needs of the people he represented were met.

There is little doubt that Jack left an indelible mark on this House and his impact will still be felt long after he is gone.

Personally, I will always remember Jack as a friend to both my father and me over the 36 years he served the people of the 12th district of Pennsylvania.

Jack was an extraordinary person—a tireless advocate for his constituents, and a champion for our national security. We have lost a true patriot. I send my condolences to Jack’s wife Joyce and their children. My thoughts and prayers continue to be with them and the people of the 12th District.

HONORING MEHDI MORSHED

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. CARDOZA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Mehdi Morshed, who has been one of California’s leading transportation policy experts and innovators for over 40 years.

Mr. Morshed served as a member of the California High Speed Rail Commission from 1994 to 1996 and was the first person to be appointed to the board of the newly created California High Speed Rail Authority in 1997. He was appointed by the board to be the first Executive Director of the Authority in 1998 and has served in that position since.

Mr. Morshed has been instrumental in guiding the development of the California High Speed Rail Project from its inception and has been an advocate nationwide. The project has evolved from a planning concept to a fully developed project with an 800-mile system that has won political, community, and finally voter support and is poised for implementation in the near future.

Prior to becoming the Executive Director, Mr. Morshed served as the principal policy person on transportation issues for the California State Senate for more than 20 years. Prior to that, he worked for the California Department of Transportation in various capacities, including planning, design and construction of bridges. He was a member of the design engineering team for San Diego’s Coronado Bridge.
HONORING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF AFRICAN AMERICANS TO THE TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE OF THE UNITED STATES

SPEECH OF

HON. LAURA RICHARDSON
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 23, 2010

Ms. RICHARDSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1085, which supports the goals and ideals of National African American History Month, celebrates the contributions that African Americans have made to the transportation and infrastructure of the United States, and urges the American people to join the House of Representatives in celebrating this contribution. H. Res. 1085 is an important measure that pays tribute to African Americans’ crucial role in building our nation, innovating new technologies, and helping create long-lasting economic growth and prosperity.

I thank Chairman GERBERST for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I would also like to thank the author of this legislation, Congresswoman CORRINE BROWN, for chronicling the crucial, and often overlooked contributions of African Americans to our nation’s growth and progress.

Madam Speaker, African Americans have made significant and far-reaching contributions to our nation’s transportation systems and critical infrastructure. Thousands of African Americans overcame racial discrimination, harsh environmental conditions, and frequent physical danger, to build critical portions of our nation’s highways, bridges, and transit systems. Many African Americans founded aeronautics schools that trained pilots who went on to serve in the military or flying commercial airliners. Further, African Americans were the source of innovative designs that helped make our transportation and infrastructure systems modern, efficient, and safe. For example, Garrett A. Morgan developed the traffic signal, which has proven indispensable to our transportation system. Elijah McCoy’s “lubricating cup” automatically oiled steam engines, making the railroad system dramatically more efficient. Elbert R. Robinson invented the electric railway trolley, which was adopted by cities across the country. Humphrey Reynolds produced the safety gate on bridges, a development that has made transportation significantly safer. These are just a few examples of the vital contributions of African Americans to transportation and infrastructure in the United States. It is perhaps even less well known that during the Civil Rights Movement, countless African Americans devoted themselves to tireless activism that led to the desegregation of our nation’s transportation systems and improved working conditions for transportation workers of all races across the country. These invaluable efforts not only improved our roads, bridges, and transit systems, but also led to significant national progress in achieving racial equality and reconciliation. It is entirely fitting that we take this opportunity to honor African Americans’ contributions to our transportation and infrastructure and appreciate the numerable benefits that these efforts yielded for our nation.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 1085.

HONORING KATIE STAIGLIANO, A DISTINGUISHED FINALIST OF THE 15TH ANNUAL PRUDENTIAL SPIRIT OF COMMUNITY AWARDS

HON. HENRY E. BROWN, JR.
OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. BROWN of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, today I rise to recognize Katie Stagliano, one of four distinguished finalists of the 15th Annual Prudential Spirit of Community Awards.

Katie, a fifth-grade student at Pinewood Preparatory School in Summerville, S.C., donated more than 1,000 pounds of fresh produce to local soup kitchens and even more impressive, Katie produced the vegetables from five gardens that she tends. She has since recruited friends, family, members of the community and businesses to support her effort to feed the hungry. Katie is a remarkable young woman who has displayed an incredible sense of kindness and commitment to the hungry in South Carolina’s First District.

Thank you, Katie, for your exemplary volunteer service, and congratulations on receiving this distinguished honor.

HON. THADDEUS G. MCCOTTER
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. MCCOTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge and honor Margaret Reyez, who is the recipient of the ATHENA award, which honors outstanding women for their leadership.

After a 13-year career at St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia, Michigan, Margaret found her true calling when she became an Information and Media Center Clerk for the Westland Public Schools Student Libraries. In the position she still holds, Margaret promotes literacy and the benefit it brings. Margaret is also a featured history presenter in the dramatic program of Greenfield Village. Appearing as a 19th-century schoolmarm at the Scott Settlement School, Margaret brings history to life and continues her championship of literacy. Certified in 1987 as a coordinator with Rainbows for All God’s Children, a support group for children suffering the loss of a parent through death or divorce, Margaret lent her caring heart to the most vulnerable in her community.

In 1990, Mrs. Reyez was certified as a Youth Minister, devoting herself to that role at St. Simon and Jude Church in her hometown of Westland. Margaret Reyez graduated in 2001 from Schoolcraft College with an Associates Degree in Liberal Arts. She is involved in numerous community service programs including the Red Wagon Literacy campaign. Mother to three adult children and five grandchildren, perhaps the greatest testament to Margaret Reyez comes from her daughter who credits her mother with instilling this in her children, “You can be and do anything you want to if you just keep trying and don’t give up.”

Dedicated to her community, she has tirelessly worked to identify the needs of families within the Wayne Westland School District, and is considered a mentor and role model to women in her community.

Madam Speaker, Margaret Reyez has forged a legacy of commitment and dedication to helping families in the Cities of Wayne and Westland. I ask my colleagues to join me today in honoring Margaret, and I congratulate her upon receiving this honor.

H.R. RES. 45—INCREASING THE STATUTORY LIMIT ON THE PUBLIC DEBT

HON. GARY C. PETERS
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. PETERS. Madam Speaker, there is no way I can in good conscience vote for an additional $2 trillion increase in the debt limit, without first exploring other alternatives. We need a plan for reducing spending in both the short and long term, and a workable path to balance our budget and shrink our national debt. For example, reducing the authorization for TARP, cutting wasteful agricultural subsidies to corporate factory farms and cracking down on offshore haven tax cheats could help reduce the debt while Congress works toward enacting a long term, bipartisan solution that will aggressively reduce our budget deficits.

This year, Congress needs to cut spending and development by a bipartisan commission, as well as enact a strong PAY-GO law that requires any new spending programs be offset elsewhere in the budget. We must find a way to control budget deficits or another debt increase will likely be inevitable. That’s the responsible strategy for generating surpluses like we enjoyed in the 1990s.

Last week, the Senate had a genuine opportunity to take on our national debt in a bipartisan manner as proposed by Senators Gregg and Conrad. Their proposal, which was supported by a majority of the Senate including moderate Democrats and Republicans but unfortunately killed by a stubborn minority, would have created a bipartisan commission that would craft fiscal reforms that Congress would then have to vote on as a single package.

I am voting to reject the Senate’s almost $2 trillion debt increase. Any debt increase that Congress considers going forward should include a plan for long term debt reduction, such as Senator Gregg’s debt commission.

CELEBRATING 110 YEARS OF THE VFW

HON. TED POE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. POE of Texas. Madam Speaker, The Veterans of Foreign Wars, VFW, celebrated its 110 years of service recently. Decades ago on September 29, 1899 a small group of Spanish-American war veterans came together to speak on behalf of the many veterans who returned home wounded or sick. With no medical care or pension, these brave men were left to fend for themselves. The first three chapters were formed and rapidly gained popularity throughout the United States, and by 1936 proudly declared a membership of almost 200,000 veterans.

The VFW has been in the forefront of helping convey the acknowledgments and benefits deserved to those who fought for our country. I would like to name a few achievements of the VFW. They assisted in establishing the Vets Reserve Bank, the first veterans bank to open in the 20th Century, and fought for compensation of war related injuries and illnesses.

Today, the VFW and Auxiliary volunteer in the community and donate to college scholarships and provide financial assistance to service men and women and their families. Their list of accomplishments, the list goes on. I would like to thank each member and the VFW as a whole for their steadfast hard work in giving back to those who gave so selflessly.
Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Sister Jennie Leichtenberg upon her retirement from PUENTE Learning Center—after 25 years as its founder and chief executive officer.

Sister Jennie was named the center PUENTE—the Spanish word for bridge and an acronym for People United to Enrich the Neighborhood Through Education. As founder of PUENTE and to celebrate the 25th anniversary of this life-transforming organization which has given hope and opportunity to countless individuals at the centers in Boyle Heights and South Los Angeles. I ask my congressional colleagues to please join me in thanking Sister Jennie for her many years of exemplary service to the community. In addition to witnessing her incredible contributions to Los Angeles over the years, I am also proud to call her a dear friend. As Sister Jennie transitions into retirement, we commend her for her leadership and hard work to develop PUENTE into the nationally and internationally renowned educational center for children, youth and adults that it is today. We extend to her our most heartfelt gratitude and best wishes.

IN CELEBRATION OF TOWN OF NORMAL MAYOR CHRIS KOOS BEING NAMED AN ENVIRONMENTAL HERO BY THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

HON. DEBORAH L. HALVORSON OF ILLINOIS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mrs. HALVORSON. Madam Speaker, today I rise to recognize Mayor Chris Koos of the Town of Normal, for being named by Governor Patrick Quinn as an “Environmental Hero” by the State of Illinois. The award is given in recognition of a strong commitment to the health and protection of the environment in Illinois.

Through strong leadership and commitment to sustainable practices, Mayor Koos was at the forefront of creating a pedestrian-friendly community that has attracted Fortune 500 companies and over $260 million in private investment. In addition, Uptown Normal is the first neighborhood in the United States to require Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) certification for new buildings. Having had the opportunity to work with Mayor Koos, I know first-hand that this award is well deserved. His commitment to innovative, cleaner and greener initiatives, has improved the quality of life for the citizens of the Town of Normal. For this, I commend him for his efforts and wish him and the Town of Normal continued growth and success for years to come.

HEALTH INSURANCE INDUSTRY FAIR COMPETITION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. BART STUPAK OF MICHIGAN IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, February 24, 2010

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, the insurance industry and Major League Baseball are the last industries in our country not subject to Federal anti-trust laws.

The insurance industry can collude to set rates, resulting in higher premiums than true competition would achieve. Because of the exemption, rate increases are not reviewed by the Federal Government. Today I hold a hearing of the Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations evaluating the most recent and egregious example of this. In California, WellPoint’s Anthem Blue Cross plan recently raised premiums by an astounding 39 percent.

One of the most effective actions Congress can take to lower health care costs is to remove the health insurance industry’s anti-trust exemption. This legislation would create competition in the health insurance market and lower the overall cost of health insurance for consumers. According to the American Medical Association, 94 percent of insurance markets in the United States are now highly concentrated. In my state of Michigan, one company controls 63 of the health insurance market.

Insurers are thriving in the anti-competitive marketplace, raking in enormous profits and paying out huge salaries to top executives. Meanwhile, American families are struggling to pay their mortgages, credit card bills and medical expenses. Many are losing their health insurance altogether with the loss of their jobs.

Yet health insurance companies continue to thrive, at the expense of struggling Americans. It is about time that insurance companies play by the same rules as every other American industry.

I urge Members to support this legislation, to establish a fair insurance market that encourages competition and lower costs.

HONORING THE LIFE AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF GEORGE RIOS UPON HIS RETIREMENT

HON. ZOE LOFGREN OF CALIFORNIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, February 25, 2010

Ms. LOFGREN of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and accomplishments of a distinguished member of my community, George Rios. After more than thirty years of service, George is retiring from the City of San Jose on March 6, 2010.

In the great tradition of the American Dream, Mr. Rios is the son of Mexican immigrants. He grew up in Oakland, California and spoke no English as a child. His father was a stucco factory worker, and his mother took care of George along with his 2 brothers and 1 sister. To help support the family, George and his brothers and sister took odd jobs, such as picking fruit, and loading and unloading produce.

Mr. Rios graduated from high school in 1969, and then went to college at San Jose State University and graduated in 1974. He graduated from University of California’s Davis King Hall School of Law in 1977.

After completing his legal studies, George worked at San Jose Legal Aid helping indigent clients with civil legal issues. After two and a half years at Legal Aid, George was hired at the Office of the San Jose City Attorney. He began work in January of 1980 under then-City Attorney Bob Logan. After only five years, he was promoted to the position of Assistant City Attorney. George has handled complex lawsuits for the City including arguing numerous cases in State and Federal courts. He has argued 2 cases before the California Supreme Court and assisted in arguing one case before the United States Supreme Court.

George has served on the Mayors’ Gang Prevention Task Force and the Task Force to implement Fast Track rules in Superior Court. He has been active in the Bar, served as a pro tem judge, a trustee for the Santa Clara County Bar Association, and as a member of the La Raza Lawyers Association. He has also served on the Board of Directors of the Almaden Valley Counseling Center, and as a member of the California Council for Criminal Justice and the Legal Advocacy Committee of the League of California Cities.

George is a tremendous role model and is a valued member of the San Jose community. I wish him, his wife and three sons the very best as he enjoys his retirement.

H.R. 4264 THE EQUALITY FOR WOMEN FARMERS ACT

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Ms. ESHOO. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of and very proud to cosponsor the Equality for Women Farmers Act, introduced by Congresswoman DELAURO.

I thank Congresswoman DELAURO for her leadership on behalf of women farmers. After being presented with the facts about the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s history of discriminating against women farmers, Congresswoman DELAURO became their champion and crafted H.R. 4264, the Equality for Women Farmers Act.

Like Congresswoman DELAURO, I’m proud of the important role women farmers have played in the development of our nation’s food system, but I was shocked to learn about the discrimination that many women farmers have been subjected to by the USDA.

In December, Congresswoman DELAURO and I listened to six extraordinary women farmers who shared their stories about discrimination from the USDA. This discrimination has come in many forms including denied access to financial aid.

More than 1,900 women farmers across the U.S. have detailed the discrimination they suffered in seeking farm loans and assistance from the USDA and how such actions have seriously disadvantaged them.

The discrimination cost some of the women farmers their livelihoods and discouraged future generations of women farmers from considering this an honorable profession.

I applaud the USDA and the Obama administration for reaching an agreement with black farmers over racial discrimination, however, we cannot forget about the other groups that have faced discrimination at the USDA, including women farmers.

The Equality for Women Farmers Act changes USDA policy to provide a procedure for compensating women farmers who have suffered years of gender discrimination from the USDA. This legislation will establish a compensation fund for women farmers and set up a process to review and adjudicate their claims.

I support the Equality for Women Farmers Act because I believe strongly that all farmers, regardless of gender, should be given the opportunity to succeed. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

HONORING THE LIFE AND SERVICE OF LANCE CORPORAL JOSHUA H. BIRCHFIELD

HON. JOE DONELLY
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. DONELLY of Indiana. Madam Speaker, today, I rise to solemnly honor Lance Corporal Joshua Birchfield for his dedication and service to the United States of America. LCpl Birchfield, a 24-year-old member of the Marine Corps, was killed on February 19, 2010 by small arms fire while conducting combat operations in Helmand Province during his first tour of duty to Afghanistan. Joshua risked everything to serve his country, and for that we are eternally grateful.

Joshua graduated from Westville High School in 2004 and enlisted in the Marine Corps on April 7, 2008. He joined the Marines after seeing a TV news segment focused on the hardships military families endure when they are separated, especially during the holidays. He was deeply inspired by those who dedicated their lives in the service of others, and he wanted to share the burden they were carrying on behalf of our nation.

LCpl Birchfield was stationed in Helmand Province as a rifleman with the 3rd Battalion, 4th Marine Regiment, 1 Marine Expeditionary Force based in Twentynine Palms, California. For his service and support in Operation Enduring Freedom, he has been awarded multiple military awards including the Purple Heart, Combat Action Ribbon, National Defense Medal, Afghanistan Campaign Medal, Global War on Terrorism Service Medal, Sea Service Deployment Ribbon and the NATO Medal.

A baseball enthusiast, Joshua was a hero to many in the Westville community and will be remembered as the selfless and compassionate human being he was. Joshua is survived by both his parents and sisters, extended family and many friends.

It is my solemn duty, and humble privilege, to honor and remember Lance Cpl. Joshua H. Birchfield and a life cut tragically short. Joshua stands as a testament to the great honor possessed, and sacrifices made, by our men and women in the armed forces, and their families. We were all blessed by his presence and we are all diminished by his passing. I, and the grateful citizens of Indiana’s Second District are deeply saddened by his loss, especially from his family, our community and our country. We mourn his passing and offer solemn gratitude for his service.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE FARMINGTON/FARMINGTON HILLS FOUNDATION FOR YOUTH AND FAMILIES ON CELEBRATING ITS 15TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. GARY C. PETERS
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 3, 2010

Mr. PETERS. Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the 15th anniversary of the Farmington/Farmington Hills Foundation for Youth and Families. As a Member of Congress, it is both my honor and privilege to recognize this important milestone and pay tribute to this outstanding organization.

The Foundation was created in 1995 with the focus of assisting youth through supporting after-school programs. Over the Foundation’s 15 years it has awarded almost $500,000 to 37 different non-profit programs. The Foundation has since grown and expanded its focus to support a wide-range of community based programs which work to enrich the lives of Farmington and Farmington Hills residents. Each year the Foundation holds an annual gala to highlight the work of programs it has supported, as well as raise support and awareness for future projects. At its 2009 gala, the Foundation introduced its “Bountiful Backpack” program, which arose out of the need to ensure that the substantial number of children who are on free and reduced lunch in our schools continue to have those same healthy nutritional options outside of school.

This year the Foundation honors George and Delores Riley, whose philanthropic work has left a profound positive impact on the communities and citizens of Farmington and Farmington Hills. After nearly 30 years of running a highly successful communications business, in 1998 George Riley sold his company and started the Riley Foundation. According to Mr. Riley, he started the foundation to “really help children.” Mr. Riley’s vision and commitment continues today with the Rileys’ children. The Riley Foundation’s latest major project created a park in downtown Farmington which has been a haven for children and their families in the Farmington area. Beyond local projects, the Riley Foundation has done extraordinary work for the less fortunate worldwide. Since its inception, The Riley Foundation has recently partnered with public television to develop a new broadcast center for the Metro-Detroit market.

Madam Speaker, I am honored today to recognize the Farmington/Farmington Hills Foundation for Youth and Families on the occasion of its 15th anniversary and wish them many more years of continuing to build a stronger Farmington/Farmington Hills community through its support of projects which enrich the lives of area residents.

HONORING FRANK HAYES
HON. LEE TERRY
OF NEBRASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. TERRY. Madam Speaker, today it is my privilege to rise during Black History Month, a time when we remember the important contributions African Americans have made to our nation. I want to especially honor the extraordinary people who continue to help shape our community and nation. I represent thousands of successful and talented African Americans in the Second Congressional District of Nebraska. Today I would like to pay special tribute to Frank Hayes.

Mr. Hayes is a CPA in Omaha. He was the first African American in the state of Nebraska to receive his license to practice public accounting. He owns his own business, dealing with individual and corporate tax. He began his business in 1983 and now has more than 20 employees serving more than 100 clients in 15 states. He is also a founding member and was the first president of the 100 Black Men organization, which is dedicated to improving the lives of youth. Thank you Frank Hayes for everything you have done for youth and distinguished career, making a difference in the lives of thousands of people, especially our young people.

HON. DEBORAH L. HALVORSON
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mrs. HALVORSON. Madam Speaker, today I rise to recognize the 20th Anniversary of the McLean County Community COMPACT (Collaborating on Meaningful Partnerships and Careers for Tomorrow). The COMPACT, through a coalition of business, education, community, and government volunteers, offers support to school-aged youth in McLean County, Illinois. The COMPACT helps youth become self-sufficient, contributing citizens, through an effective transition from formal schooling to the world of work.

The COMPACT offers a variety of supportive special programs and services for students, teachers, and educational entities through a collaborative effort among business and community leaders. The COMPACT promotes active exchange of resources among businesses and educational entities, including the participation of students in research projects.

The McLean County Community COMPACT was born in 1989 when a small group of local leaders met to address the high school dropout rate and the number of children in McLean County living in poverty. From these leaders came invitations to colleagues to join the effort and a volunteer organization named the COMPACT was born. Since 1990, thousands of students have participated in the COMPACT’s projects and from those projects created awareness, motivation, and direction for many young people.

In November of 1994, the COMPACT entered into a partnership with the University of Illinois Extension in McLean County. The organization continued to move forward, hiring an executive director who coordinates among the COMPACT’s 250 members. In its 20th year, the COMPACT focuses on 8 project areas including the original Sixth Grade Business Education Partnerships, Principal for a Day, and Career Preparation Realities. It also serves at-risk youth through Achieving Competence in Education and brings technology to homes of students without it through the Clearinghouse Project. More recently, the COMPACT has developed youth leadership activities through Teens in Prevention and Youth LEADS, offering opportunities for youth to help their peers find the correct path.

I would like to commend the McLean County Community COMPACT staff, volunteers and board of directors for their commitment and innovative collaborative efforts in preparing the youth of McLean County for the world of work. I wish them many more years of continued success.

HON. TOM McCINTOCK OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. MCCINTOCK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the heroic actions of Sergeant Joseph Matteoni of the Grass Valley Police Department and Firefighters Gary Dunne and Jeff Johnston of the Grass Valley Fire Department, Engine 1, during the 309 Mill Street Apartment Fire.

On the morning of August 30, 2009, fire and police units were dispatched to an apartment building fire at 309 Mill Street in Grass Valley, California. Upon arriving at the scene of the fire, responders were informed by local citizens that residents were trapped inside the building.

Sergeant Matteoni heard faint cries for help emanating from the backside of the second story of the building. Without hesitation, and disregarding his own personal safety, Sergeant Matteoni rushed into the smoke-filled apartment and carried a woman out of the smoke-filled apartment where she collapsed. Battling extreme heat and smoke, Sergeant Matteoni carried a woman out of the smoke-filled apartment and with the assistance of Officer Dan Kimbrough, moved her to safety.

Meanwhile, Firefighters Dunne and Johnstone entered from the front of the building. Forced to crawl on their bellies because of the thick smoke and extreme heat, the firefighters pushed through the burning building toward cries for help, finding a second woman standing disoriented in the hallway. As they approached, the woman retreated further into her smoke-filled apartment where she collapsed. Pushing into the apartment, Firefighters Dunne and Johnston carried the woman out of the building and to safety.

The brave actions of Sergeant Joseph Matteoni and Firefighters Gary Dunne and Jeff Johnston are a testament to the finest traditions of the Grass Valley Police and Fire Departments. It is my honor to recognize and thank them for their commitment to going well above and beyond the call of duty in service to our community.

IN SUPPORT OF KFUO 99.1 FM "CLASSIC99"
HON. WM. LACY CLAY
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. CLAY. Madam Speaker, I stand today on behalf of my constituents and with my friend and colleague Congressman JOHN SHIMKUS to raise further concern about the pending sale and format change of Classic99. As St. Louis’s only classical radio station, Classic99 is a true asset to the cultural fabric of St. Louis.

As Congressman SHIMKUS noted, the sale of KFUO 99.1 FM by the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod is currently under review by both the Media Bureau and the FCC. While we certainly do not wish to exact undue influence on either of these agencies, our constituents have made clear to us their concerns, and we agree that this loss will be a blow to the wealth of our region’s culture and economy. We hope that these negative impacts will be considered while reviewing this sale.

We have seen that losing the arts can wreak havoc on a community, and the Metro East region will be no different. If Classic99 is converted to a different music format, the cultural and economic consequences will be dismal. The world-renowned St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will lose audience and its chief advertising venue, forcing gifted musicians and staff to suffer even more pay cuts and freezes. Losing Classic99 will result in a cultural deficit as well. 94% of readers polled by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch feel that the loss of Classic99 "takes away a vital voice for the arts in this community," and will detrimentally affect their ability to support local artists.

Arts education organizations throughout my district, like the Opera Theater of St. Louis, the St. Louis Art Museum, and the Touhill Performing Arts Center, will lose their only major arena for audience-building, live broadcasts, and fund-raising. The loss of revenue will hinder arts and music education in the district, further impairing opportunities for our young people to be enriched through the arts. We know that arts education gives youths self-confidence and increases academic achievement. We simply cannot afford to sacrifice these opportunities, and I am deeply troubled by the idea that more educational outlets for our children will be put in jeopardy by this move.

I firmly agree with my colleague that the negative impact these cultural and economic changes will have on the local community should play a role in determining the sale of 99.1.
COMMENDING JOHN ANTON OF HAVERHILL
HON. NIKI TSONGAS OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010
Ms. TSONGAS. Madam Speaker, today I pay tribute to John Anton, the National Down Syndrome Society 2010 Advocate of the Year. Mr. Anton is a resident of Haverhill, Massachusetts in my congressional district. Throughout his life, Mr. Anton has been a leader and advocate for those with intellectual and developmental disabilities. His work has touched thousands of lives, and his efforts should be recognized and emulated.

The National Down Syndrome Society is the national advocate for the value, acceptance and inclusion of people with Down Syndrome. The Advocate of the Year honor commends Mr. Anton’s work to enhance the quality of life for those with intellectual and developmental disabilities, while helping them to realize their life aspirations and become valued members of their communities.

Mr. Anton certainly deserves this award. He has committed his life to helping individuals adapt to their disabilities, achieve their greatest potential, and work toward productive, independent lives.

He was determined to bring awareness to this cause, and was successful in his endeavor. Massachusetts adopted the new name in 2009. He is to be congratulated on this achievement.

Mr. Anton served as the Chairman of Massachusetts Advocates Standing Strong. He spent time as a legislative intern with State Representative Tom Sannicandro and also worked for the Arc of Greater Haverhill-Newton. Throughout his life, he has mentored others with disabilities and has been a great inspiration to many. We in Massachusetts are grateful for his service to the Commonwealth.

Madam Speaker, I hope my colleagues will join me today in congratulating John Anton for receiving the National Down Syndrome Society 2010 Advocate of the Year, and for his efforts and dedication to a cause for which he is so passionate.

We thank you, Mr. Anton, for your ongoing service to those with intellectual and developmental disabilities and look forward hearing of your continued successes.

HONORING DR. DAVID BENKE
HON. MIKE COFFMAN OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010
Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor Dr. David Benke, a math teacher at Deer Creek Middle School in Littleton, Colorado. Dr. Benke is an ordinary American—husband, father, teacher and coach—but his actions this week in the face of grave danger were extraordinary.

As school was letting out on Tuesday, a gunman approached and opened fire on students.

Upon seeing the suspect, Dr. Benke, in a moment of extreme bravery, rushed towards the shooter, wrestled him to the ground, and held on as his colleagues helped subdue the shooter.

He broke up a potentially deadly school shooting, and if it were not for the rapid and selfless actions of Dr. Benke and his colleagues, it could have been much more violent and tragic encounter.

When asked about his actions, Dr. Benke modestly responded, "I was doing what I knew how to do and there’s something I can do about it, I want to try and do something about it."

He did more than just “something.”

There are many heroes in our midst, and sometimes it takes an extraordinary moment of danger to bring out their true valor.

The people of the Sixth District are fortunate to have Dr. Benke in our community. It is ordinary people like him who do extraordinary things that keeps our community safe.

RECOGNIZING GREG FIRST OF DADE CITY, FLORIDA
HON. GINNY BROWN-WAITE
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010
Ms. BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Greg First of Dade City, FL. for most of his life, Greg has been a faithful servant to his community; volunteering himself to many causes which have helped to enrich the lives of many.

Born to Jimmy and Mary First in Bedford, Ohio, Mr. First moved to Zephyrhills with his family at the age of 10. After graduating from Zephyrhills High School, he attended the University of Maryland and served in the United States Air Force from 1968 to 1972.

Mr. First has volunteered himself, quite literally, having donated a total of 16 gallons of blood while director of public relations for Blood Net, in addition to volunteering for Meals on Wheels, Relay for Life, and a local Hospice. He has kept up the spirits of Zephyrhills residents as an announcer for Main Street Parades and high school football games.

A three-time president of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. First has been a Christian Radio DJ, a lifetime Am Vet Member, and he even started his own local news website, “What’s Up Zephyrhills?”

Madam Speaker, on February 26, the Conservative Club of East Pasco will honor Greg’s achievements with the Lincoln Heritage Award. I ask you to join me today to honor him on the floor of this house. May we all give back to our communities as much as Mr. First has.

HONORING THE LIFE AND SACRIFICE OF MEDGAR EVARS AND CELEBRATING THE UNITED STATES NAVY FOR NAMING A SUPPLY SHIP AFTER MEDGAR EVARS
HON. LAURA RICHARDSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010
Ms. RICHARDSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1022, which honors the life and sacrifice of Medgar Evars, recognizes the important role he played in progressing the cause of civil rights, and congratulates the United States Navy for honoring him with the naming of the United States naval ship Medgar Evars. H. Res. 1022 is an important measure that pays tribute to an individual who sacrificed his life fighting for the core American values of equality and civil rights.

I thank Chairmen CONyers for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I would also like to thank the author of this legislation, Congressman HANK JOHNSON, who has taken the time to remember the invaluable work of Medgar Evars and to celebrate the United States Navy’s efforts to honor this American hero.

Medgar Evars was born in 1925 in Decatur, Mississippi. Growing up in the heart of the segregated South, Medgar Evars experienced the worst of racial oppression. Still, in 1943, he volunteered to serve his country in World War II, and fought valiantly with the United States Army in the Battle of Normandy.

After fighting overseas for the cause of freedom and democracy, Medgar Evars returned home to a segregated country as a second-class citizen. He dedicated himself to activism, working tirelessly for the cause of racial equality on behalf of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). As a result of his activism, Medgar Evars was the target of numerous death threats and assassination attempts. But his bravery and dedication knew no bounds and he continued his important work until he was tragically murdered on June 12, 1963.

It is entirely fitting that we honor Medgar Evars, who in his life as well as his death, helped move our country out of a time of oppression and segregation and into an era of greater tolerance and equality.

It is equally fitting that the United States Navy has chosen to honor Medgar Evars with the naming of the United States naval ship Medgar Evars. This ship, a Lewis and Clark class dry cargo ship, is a state-of-the-art vessel that will provide essential support to Navy operations around the world. Just as Medgar Evars helped bring our nation racial reconciliation, the United States naval ship Medgar Evars will help the Navy to promote peace and conflict resolution throughout the world.

This ship is one more way in which the United States Navy’s efforts to honor this American hero.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 1022.

TRAGEDY IN KOHJALY, AZERBAIJAN

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. ORTIZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today to bring attention to the tragedy that occurred in Kohjaly, Azerbaijan on February 26, 1992. Many lives of the Armenian people living in Kohjaly were lost and scores of others were destroyed when they were brutally attacked by Armenians. With a population of 7,000, Kohjaly was one of the three largest urban settlements of the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan. Armenians established the blockade of Kohjaly in the fall of 1991, cutting off ground transportation on October 30. Electricity and water supplies were cut off in January 1992. By February 1992, almost all of the Nagorno-Karabakh except Shusha and Kohjaly had fallen under control of Armenians backed by Russia's 366th regiment.

On the night of 25 February 1992, the Armenians and the Russian 366th launched an attack on Kohjaly. The Armenians had declared that a “free corridor” would be provided for civilians to leave the town. However, people were attacked on their way to Agdam, the nearest Azerbajani settlement.

The Kohjaly tragedy was covered by the foreign media including the Boston Globe, the Washington Times, New York Times, Financial Times, and other European and Russian news agencies. On November 29, 1993, Newsweek quoted a senior U.S. Government official as saying, “We see what we see is a systematic destruction of every village in their [Armenians] way. It’s vandalism.”

The extent of this massacre against women, children and the elderly was unfathomable:

613 people were killed including 63 children, 106 women, and 70 elderly.
8 families were wiped out.
25 children lost both parents.
130 children lost one parent.
487 people were wounded including 76 children.
1,275 people were taken hostage.

Armenia still occupies close to 20 percent of Azerbaijan. Nearly 1 million Azerbaijanis live as refugees in their own country, displaced by Armenian aggression. Resolutions issued by the U.N. Security Council and the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, PACE, have ordered Armenia to withdraw from Azerbaijan’s lands.

Azerbaijan is a strong ally of the United States in a very important and very uncertain region of the world. I ask my colleagues to join with me and our Azerbaijani friends in commemorating the tragedy that happened to the people of Kohjaly.

IN RECOGNITION OF JAMIE McMURRAY’S WIN AT THE DAYTONA 500 IN THE NO. 1 CHEVROLET BASS PRO SHOP TRACKER BOATS CAR

HON. ROY BLUNT
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. BLUNT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to America’s great spectator sport, NASCAR; its most prestigious race, the Daytona 500; and the 2010 champion, Southwest Missouri native Jamie McMurray. On Sunday, McMurray rode to victory in a Bass Pro Shops sponsored car. His stunning win sparked excitement among all NASCAR fans, especially those in Southwest Missouri, where he learned his racing skills.

McMurray started 2010 without a ride, having been released from another team at the end of the 2009 season. When Springfield, Missouri-based Bass Pro Shops owner Johnny Morris decided to return to NASCAR sponsorship with Earnhardt Ganassi Racing, McMurray got the call to drive. McMurray won the Daytona 500 in the No. 1 Chevrolet Bass Pro Shops/Tracker Boats car, leading by only two laps, the least in the race’s history.

Jamie McMurray started stock car racing in the early 1990s on tracks in Bolivar, Missouri; Lebanon, Missouri; and at the I–77 Speedway in Odessa, Missouri. In 1992, at age 16, McMurray began driving NASCAR late models and raced in the NASCAR RE/MAX Challenge Series in 1998–1999. By age 21 he had won the NASCAR late model division on the Lebanon track. In 1999 he began racing on the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series circuit.

McMurray’s breakthrough came three years later, when he was offered a full-time Busch Series ride. He earned two victories on the Busch Circuit and finished sixth in series points. In 2003 as a NASCAR regular, he was Rookie of the Year.

When NASCAR Sprint Cup Series driver Sterling Marlin was out with an injury, owner Chip Ganassi offered McMurray the seat to complete the 2002 season. It didn’t take long for Jamie to make his mark on the sport. In his second race with Ganassi in Charlotte, North Carolina, McMurray won the UAW-GM Quality 500 at Lowe’s Motor Speedway.

Now in his ninth season, McMurray is racing for the new Earnhardt Ganassi team. In his first race of the season, he scored a victory in the granddaddy of all stock car racing events: the Daytona 500.

Every racing fan in Southwest Missouri was thrilled that McMurray won the race in a No. 1 Chevrolet Bass Pro Shops/Tracker Boats car from the Southwest Missouri-based company. McMurray endured years of hard work on local tracks to earn his way into the winner’s circle of America’s greatest stock car event.

For NASCAR fans in Southwest Missouri, I want to offer my congratulations to Jamie McMurray, Bass Pro Shops/Tracker Boats, and to their families and supporters.
TEEN DATING VIOLENCE AWARENESS MONTH
HON. DAVID G. REICHERT OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. REICHERT. Madam Speaker, I ask that we take the time to recognize the importance of Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month. This is an increasingly critical issue that has a devastating effect on our schools, families, and most importantly the victims of this horrifying crime.

The fact is that teens are at a higher risk than adults—half of reported date rapes occur among teenagers. Every year, nearly 1.5 million high school students experience physical abuse from a dating partner.

This violence against another human being breaks our hearts and should never be tolerated.

We took an important step to help these victims with the passage of my Amendment 20 to H.R. 227, which provided funding to the Supporting Teens through Education and Protection (STEP) program to help schools combat sexual harassment.

Every young person deserves relationships based on respect, and Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month is a time to draw needed attention to this important issue. By educating our youth about the importance of safe and healthy relationships, raising awareness among those who care for them, and supporting the community services that aid victims, we can help to prevent this tragic cycle of abuse.

TEXAS TO TAKE THE BAR EXAM, AND AFTER PASS-
ED TO THE UNIVERSITY OF DUNDEL. After her first hard work and determination she was accepted to the University of Denver. After being denied because of race, she transferred to Howard University in Washington, DC, and graduated in 1953.

This experience was the first African-American woman to be accepted to practice law in Texas.

Mrs. Farris did not spend long celebrating, and after moving back to Wichita Falls, she took up practice in an office near the railroad tracks on the city’s east side. She endured countless civil rights atrocities that would shock most people today but to her were very real. With great perseverance, she established a reputation for herself, and on July 7, 1954, members of the Wichita County Bar Association elected her to serve as Special Wichita County Judge. This made her the first African-American woman to hold any capacity in the South since Reconstruction.

Mrs. Farris continued her career as a solo practitioner until she closed her office in January 2010. As a woman of faith, she was active in her church until her death and was involved in countless organizations from the local to the national level. Her life included many firsts, and she will be truly missed.

Madam Speaker, the work of Charlye Farris will truly echo through the generations as so many women and minorities have benefited from her fine efforts. I ask my fellow colleagues today to join me in recognizing her many achievements and celebrating a life that has had such a positive impact on society.

EXPRESSING CONDOLENCES AND CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF CHARLYE OLA FARRIS
HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Charlye Ola Farris who passed away on February 18, 2010, and was the first African-American to serve as a Southern judge in any capacity since Reconstruction.

Charlye Farris was born in Wichita Falls, Texas. Her father, a baskin in his own right, was the first African-American school superintendent in Texas, and her mother served as an elementary school teacher for 49 years. She graduated as the valedictorian from Booker T. Washington High School in 1945 at the age of 15 and went on to complete a bachelor of arts degree in political science from Prairie View A&M College.

After spending a year teaching school, Mrs. Farris decided to pursue her dreams of obtaining a law degree. At the time, it was almost impossible for an African-American woman to gain admittance to a law school, but through hard work and determination she was accepted to the University of Denver. After her first year, she transferred to Howard University in Washington, DC, and graduated in 1953. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. Farris returned to Texas to take the Bar exam, and after passing, she was sworn in, making her the first African-American woman to be licensed to practice law in Texas.

Mr. BARRETT of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the 100th birthday of Walter Gamewell Watson. Dr. Watson, known as "Curly" to his friends, is said to be the oldest known working physician in the United States. Along with the communities of both North Augusta, South Carolina, and Augusta, Georgia, am taking this opportunity to celebrate both his life and his faithful, compassionate service to his fellow man.

Dr. Watson was born in 1910 in the small agricultural community of Ridge Spring, South Carolina. His father was a farmer and postmaster of the local post office. Dr. Watson’s mother was a schoolteacher. He grew up milking cows and plowing fields. Like many of his peers, he studied agriculture, and it was his good fortune to actually study under the late senior South Carolina Senator, Strom Thurmond, who was a teacher at the time.

After high school, Walter Watson attended the Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina, where he played football and excelled academically. Upon finishing college, he returned to Edgefield County, and for 5 years, he served as both the principal and football coach at Edgefield County High School and later went on to be the school system of Bainbridge, Georgia.

While working in the educational field, Walter Watson saved money for medical school. He eventually attended the Medical College of Georgia and graduated in 1943. He did his internship and residency at the University Hospital and was board certified in Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr. Watson served in the Army as an Army physician from 1945 to 1947. After being discharged from the Army, he returned home to join the medical practice established by the late J.W. Thurmond, M.D.

For more than 60 years, Dr. Watson has practiced at the University Hospital in Augusta, Georgia. He has delivered an estimated 15,000 babies. His reputation for excellence at the hospital and his care and concern for his patients has been so notable that a wing of the hospital was named after him. The W.G. Watson, M.D., Women’s Center was dedicated in 1999.

Other notable achievements include his marriage to Audrey, and their four daughters and one son. Dr. Watson is also the oldest living graduate of the Citadel. Today, I celebrate Dr. Watson’s birthday as well as his lifetime service to his community, his State and his Nation. God bless you, Dr. Watson.

COMMEMORATING TAIWAN’S 2–28 INCIDENT
HON. KENNY MARCHANT
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. MARCHANT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to observe the 63rd commemoration this coming Sunday of Taiwan’s “2-28 Incident.” The Incident was an antigovernment uprising in Taiwan that began on February 28, 1947, and was violently suppressed during the following weeks by soldiers that had been sent from China by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Estimates of the number of deaths vary from 10,000 to 30,000.

In the fall of 1945, 50 years of Japanese occupation of Taiwan ended after Japan had lost World War II. In October of that year Taiwan was returned to the Republic of China (ROC).

Due to the mounting corruption and the implementation of unfair public policy and official practices on the indigenous population, tension increased between the Taiwanese people and the ROC administration. According to Ambassador John L. Stuart, “the economic deterioration of the island and administration of the mainland officials became so bad that on February 28th, 1947, popular resentment erupted into a major rebellion.” The Incident came on the evening of February 27, 1947, when in Taipei a dispute between a female cigarette vendor and certain armed Monopoly Bureau agents and special police agents triggered civil disorder and open rebellion that lasted for days.

The Incident is now openly discussed and commemorated as Peace Memorial Day. The details of the Incident have become the subject of investigation. Monuments and memorial parks to the Incident victims have been erected in a number of cities in Taiwan.

Madam Speaker, the Incident had far-reaching implications. Over the next half century, the Taiwanese democracy movement that grew out of the Incident helped pave the way for Taiwan’s momentous transformation to a thriving and pluralistic democracy. Nowadays Taiwan has demonstrated the strength of its democracy by succeeding in peaceful handovers of power. I am confident that Taiwan will continue to make contributions to the development of democracy in the region.

Madam Speaker, I hope Members will join me in commemorating this important historical event.
TRIBUTE TO THE UNI-CAPITOL WASHINGTON INTERNSHIP PROGRAMME

HON. JAMES L. OBERSTAR OF MINNESOTA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. OBERSTAR. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate a unique international exchange programme by which the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure has participated since its inception 11 years ago.

The Uni-Capitol Washington Internship Programme (UCWIP) matches a dozen of Australia’s best university students to Congressional offices for 2-month, full-time internships each January and February. The program is nonpartisan, bicameral, and focuses on connecting people for lasting education and mutual understanding. It is a true exchange that regards its participants as young professionals looking to enter the working world with a head start of sophistication, personal growth, and international sensibilities.

The Australian interns bring a hunger for knowledge and a passion to understand our national legislation, serve as a window into out. They provide valuable perspectives on the public policy issues and challenges that they face in their own country. They leave with an unfettered knowledge of Congress and the individuals who serve the American public.

I’ve been a proud host of an astounding quintet of Australia’s finest student interns: Narelle Hards from Flinders University in Adelaide, South Australia, in 2000; Louise Squire from the University of Western Australia in Perth, 2004; Lauren Reed from Deakin University, in the Melbourne metropolitan area of Victoria, in 2005; Michael Ng from the University of Melbourne, in 2007; and this year, Clara Jordan-Baird, of the University of Melbourne.

Each has brought with them knowledge of and passion for transportation. I recall vividly, for example, how Lauren Reed briefed Committee staff about her home state of Victoria and its compelling anti-drunk driving campaign. Narelle, Louise, Lauren, Michael, and Clara have each brought broad and directly to United States-Australia relations thanks to their insights, observation, and helping hands as our Committee workload demanded.

I know that many offices on both sides of the aisle have enjoyed similar experiences with these young Australians. And I know that the Australians have taken home with them a memory for one many years to come. They leave with an unfettered knowledge of Congress and the individuals who serve the American public.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE GENERAL OMAR NELSON BRADLEY

HON. BLAINE LUETKEMEYER OF MISSOURI IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. LUETKEMEYER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the late General Omar Nelson Bradley, hero of World War II, America’s last surviving five-star General, first Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and a proud son of Randolph County in the heart of Missouri’s 9th Congressional District. It will be hard to match the honor and participation in the celebration and observance of “General Omar Bradley Day” in Moberly, Missouri on Friday, February 12, 2010, the General’s birthday. An event to commemorate Moberly’s favorite son will be held at the Moberly High School and a reproduction of the portrait of General Bradley, which is in the Bradley corridor at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., will be unveiled and will hang in the foyer of the Moberly High School auditorium, on the south end of the school campus.

I would like to recognize the members of the General Omar Nelson Bradley Library and Museum Committee for arranging Friday’s celebration and for their tireless efforts to promote awareness of General Bradley’s special connection to Moberly. The members of the committee are Chair Sam Richardson, City Councilman Dick Boots, City Manager Andy Morris, Mayor Will Ben Sims, General Bradley—a man known for his humility and modesty—wrote that he accepted the fact he was “America’s favorite son” and that he and Mrs. Kitty Bradley viewed Moberly as their most favorite city in the whole world.

I am honored to have been asked to join the Moberly Country Club and Moberly Rotary Club and longtime member of the Central Christian Church, where he grew up.

IN HONOR OF AGNES TEBO

HON. SAM FARR OF CALIFORNIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. FARR. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a great American, Mrs. Agnes Tebo for a lifetime of public service and civil rights activism. This coming Saturday, the Monterey County Branch of the NAACP will honor Mrs. Tebo with its President’s award. I will have the great pleasure of attending this ceremony and presenting Mrs. Tebo with her award and best wishes of the House. I am particularly excited because I have been privileged for many years to count myself among her friends. Indeed, she has been a great role model and inspiration to several generations of public servants from Monterey County. And that remains true today; at 95 Agnes Tebo is truly one of our nation’s great treasures.

Born October 25, 1914, in Port Arthur, Texas, Agnes Dronet grew up in a world dominated by Jim Crow’s pervasive injustice. As a child, she remembers going to school with the separate schools, restaurants, and other humiliations that so dominated the daily lives of Port Arthur’s African American citizens. More ominously, Agnes can remember the climate of fear created by the Klu Klux Klan through murders, cross burnings and other terrorist acts. She recently told a reporter that “we had to walk a straight line or we knew we’d end up dead. The people who did it would brag about it, and nobody would do anything about it. The law wasn’t enforced. As a child, I just accepted it. I just thought that’s how life was.” But that meant that Agnes was right. In 1937, at the age of 23, Agnes found her way to Salinas, California, after a childhood spent working to help her single mother...
Tribute to Wil Billington, Trustee Emeritus of Johnson County Community College

HON. DENNIS MOORE OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Wilbur “Wil” Billington, a former trustee of Johnson County, Kansas, Community College [JCCC], who recently was honored by JCCC’s board of trustees with the designation of “trustee emeritus,” signifying an individual who demonstrated significant contributions to the college and the community as a trustee.

As a former elected trustee of JCCC, I know Wil Billington and am pleased to have this opportunity to support his award and to share news of it with my colleagues. The JCCC recently issued a news release detailing Wil Billington’s designation as “trustee emeritus.” I include it with this statement and I know that all House members join with me in celebrating this award, which is richly deserved by a Johnson Countian who has worked diligently in support of higher education and economic development in our community.

Billington Named JCCC Trustee Emeritus

OVERLAND PARK, Kan.—At their meeting Jan. 21, the Johnson County Community College board of trustees named Wilbur “Wil” Billington as a trustee emeritus. The trustee emeritus designation is intended to recognize former trustees who demonstrated significant contributions to the college and the community as a trustee.

Billington was nominated by Terry A. Calaway, JCCC president, and Ben Craig, a four-term member of the board who cited Billington’s support of education in the state of Kansas and in Johnson County. Billington is the second trustee to receive emeritus recognition. The first was Virginia Krebs, who was named trustee emeritus in October 2008. Billington will be honored in person at a future board meeting.

“Wil Billington’s vision as a trustee gave Johnson County Community College a secure foundation on which to build,” Calaway said. “Naming him as a trustee emeritus is a fitting way to remember and honor his educational leadership.”

From 1962 to 1968 Billington was a member and president of the local board for School District No. 110, one of the largest K–8 school districts in Johnson County before its consolidation as part of the unified Shawnee Mission district. As such, Billington was appointed to the Advisory Council for Community Colleges that made recommendations to the Kansas Board of Education for the creation of new community colleges in the state. In 1965, he served as chairman of the Master Planning Committee for Post-secondary Education in Kansas in the early 1960s.

In Johnson County, Billington was asked by the county commissioners to chair a committee that would study the feasibility of creating a community college here. The group published a written report unanimously recommending the creation of such a college in Johnson County. Billington was elected to the college’s first board of trustees in 1967, receiving the largest plurality of votes among approximately 30 candidates, serving from 1967 until 1975. As chairman of the board, Billington and his fellow trustees produced the college’s ‘Blue Book,’ a working philosophy that helped guide the selection of administrators and the development of the college’s curriculum for the following decades.

In January 2000, the JCCC library was named for Billington in recognition of his years of support of the college. Billington worked for the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City for 35 years, retiring as executive vice president.

THE SOCIAL SECURITY DISABILITY APPLICANTS’ PROFESSIONAL REPRESENTATION ACT OF 2009

HON. LAURA RICHARDSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Ms. RICHARDSON. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4532, the Social Security Disability Applicants’ Access to Professional Representation Act of 2009, which will authorize the permanent extension of the attorney and non-attorney fee-withholding provisions passed under the Social Security Protection Act of 2004. This important legislation will guarantee that seniors have access to the professional representation needed to secure the benefits that they need in their old age.

I thank Chairman Rangel for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I would also like to thank the author of this legislation, Congresswoman TANNER, for his hard work and determined efforts to ensure that Americans are able to achieve financial security and stability in their old age.

Madam Speaker, for seniors, getting Social Security benefits can be a rigorous process. Many seniors rely on professional representatives to help them navigate the Social Security Protection Act of 2004, which allowed representation fees to be withheld from Social Security Insurance (SSI) applicants’ past-due benefits and paid directly to representatives. H.R. 4532 will also extend provisions that make qualified non-attorney representatives eligible to be paid through fee-withholding.

The provisions set to be extended by H.R. 4532 will provide easy access to the qualified representation that many seniors need in order to secure their benefits. This legislation is especially important in these tough economic times. With limited income and increased health care needs, seniors across the country—and especially in my home State of California—have been hit particularly hard by the ongoing economic recession. Now, more than ever, we need to help the elderly access the benefits that they need to achieve financial stability.

In conclusion, I support this bill because it will make the Social Security system more fair and easy to use for the 63,000 seniors in my district and millions more across the country.

I urge my colleagues to support the Social Security Disability Applicants’ Access to Professional Representation Act of 2009 which represents a much needed response to our Nation’s current economic challenges.

We have about 30 million girls under the age of 20 living in the United States. Thirty million wonderful and beautiful people, full of creativity, energy and dreams. Yet these girls face a struggle with unrealistic beauty and body image standards.

Findings from a recent survey conducted by the Girl Scout Research Institute show that 90 percent of girls feel pressure from the media to have an ideal body type. Ninety percent. As a result, their self-esteem, their body image, and their psychological and physical health are damaged when they do not measure up to these unrealistic beauty standards.

We must elevate girls’ voices and concerns. Our daughters and grandchildren need to see more girl-positive media, more natural and real female role models instead of touched-up, airbrushed models.

The Girl Scouts of America on February 10, 2010—the eve of fashion week—hosted an event in New York City promoting messages that feature girls and women who have healthy, diverse body images and participate in respectful and healthy relationships. I commend the Girl Scouts for the important work they do in creating a healthy environment for young girls and women.

Our support on this issue will help support girls’ physical, emotional, and social health. Let us join the Girl Scouts in empowering girls to live healthy lives and become tomorrow’s leaders with courage, confidence, and character.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE ASSOCIATED FOOD AND PETROLEUM DEALERS ON CELEBRATING ITS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. GARY C. PETERS
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. PETERS. Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Associated Food and Petroleum Dealers (AFPD). As a Member of Congress, it is both my honor and privilege to recognize the AFPD on achieving this most impressive milestone.

Since its founding in 1910, the AFPD has acted as a strong advocate for the food, beverage and petroleum industries in the State of Michigan. Based in my district, in the city of Farmington Hills, the AFPD currently represents 3900 retailers in the States of Michigan and Ohio. The AFPD boasts a diverse membership ranging from independent supermarkets, convenience stores, service stations and auto repair businesses to the wholesalers, distributors, and manufacturers who support them. Many of the small businesses which the AFPD supports are important economic and philanthropic pillars within our shared communities.

Going beyond advocacy for its respective industries, the AFPD established the AFPD Foundation in 1999 to support the philanthropic work of its members in the communities which it serves. To date, the AFPD Foundation has awarded over $300,000 in academic scholarships to extraordinary and deserving students in the States of Michigan and Ohio who are attending accredited higher learning institutions. The AFPD Foundation also partners with the Salvation Army during the holidays to promote its Red Kettle program, which allows the Salvation Army to provide food, toys, and clothing to families in need.

Madam Speaker, it is my privilege to recognize the Associated Food and Petroleum Dealers on the occasion of celebrating its 100th anniversary. The philanthropic work of the AFPD Foundation has enriched the lives of many within the communities its members serve. The celebration of the AFPD’s 100th anniversary is indeed an impressive milestone and I wish it and its members many, many more successful and productive years to come.

IN TRIBUTE TO REPRESENTATIVE JOHN P. MURTHA OF PENNSYLVANIA

SPEECH OF HON. ROBERT A. BRADY OF PENNSYLVANIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, February 24, 2010

Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, thank you for allowing me to say a few words about our friend Jack Murtha. First, I would like to advise Mrs. Murtha that I am her adopted son. I don’t know if Jack ever told you (Mom). But, he did adopt me.

Eighteen years ago, he took me under his wing. It was warm in the winter and cool in the summer. He also taught me a few things. He taught me to be courteous to everyone and that everyone is special. He made us all feel special. He was more comfortable with the privates than with the generals. He made everyone feel important.

He would make the little people feel needed and appreciated. He had a great sense of humor and enjoyed telling his stories and jokes. He had a big heart and tremendous compassion for people.

Unfortunately, a whole lot of people—including our illustrious press—never knew that Jack Murtha.

With the exception of his family, I was more fortunate than all of you. Every Thursday or Friday before we broke for the week, I would say goodbye to him. Because of his knee problem, I would help him down from his seat—the only reserved seat in Congress. Then, I would shake his hand and give him a kiss goodbye. I did not know Wednesday January 27th would be the last time I would kiss my friend goodbye.

Jack Murtha was your friend. Jack Murtha was the best friend of the men and women in uniform. He will be deeply missed. We will never see another Jack Murtha.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, please join me in celebrating the twenty-five years commitment to celebrating the members of the American-Croatian women.

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I would like to extend to the Record the following letter from Professor Robert D. Auerbach, a professor at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas.

LETTER FROM PROFESSOR ROBERT D. AUERBACH, LBJ SCHOOL OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS

HON. RON PAUL OF TEXAS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I would like to extend to the Record the following letter from Professor Robert D. Auerbach, a professor at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas. This letter provides additional information regarding remarks I made at yesterday’s Financial Services Committee Hum-from the Congress. Had the deception been discovered the Fed chairmen following Burns may have been forced to rapidly implement some real transparency to restore the Fed’s credibility, that have reduced or eliminated many of the deceptions, and corrupt practices that are described in my book. They were brought up by Congressmen Ron Paul is the exposure of faulty examinations of the Federal Reserve of a foreign bank in Atlanta, Georgia through which $5.5 billion was sent to Saddam Hussein that a Federal Judge found to be part of United States active support for Iraq in the 1980s.

On November 9, several federal marshals brought a prisoner, Christopher Drogoul, into my office at the Rayburn House Building of the U.S. House of Representatives. The marshals removed the manacles. Drogoul took off his jump suit and changed into a shirt, tie, and business suit. He immediately looked like the manager of the Atlanta agency with domestic headquarters in New York City of Banca Nazionale. Drogoul had come to testify about a "scheme prosecutors said he master-minded thatfunneled $5.5 billion in loans to Iraq's Hussein through BNL's Atlanta operation. Some of the loans allegedly were used to buy military and nuclear nuclear and nuclear materials in the years preceding the first Gulf War."

Drogoul's "off book" BNL-Atlanta funding to Iraq began in 1986 as financing for products under Department of Agriculture pro-gr programs. "The loans allegedly had been authorized by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Since Drogoul told the committee he was merely a tool in an ambitious scheme by the United States, Italy, Britain and Germany to secretly arm Iraq in their 1980-88 war, the testimony was politically contentious and unproven. He was sentenced in Notember 1993 to 37 months in prison, and he had already served 20 months awaiting his sentencing hearing.

U.S. District Judge Ernest Tidwell found that the United States had actively supported Iraq in the 1980s by providing it with government-guaranteed loans even though it wasn't creditworthy. The judge said such policies "clearly facilitated criminal conduct."

Gonzalez was drawn to Drogoul's answer about the Fed examiner who had visited his Atlanta operation. Gonzalez said that "At the November 9, 1993 Banking Committee hearing I asked Christopher Drogoul, the convicted official of the Banca Nazionale Del Lavoro agency branch in Atlanta, Georgia, how the Federal Reserve Bank examiners could miss billions of dollars of illegal loans, most of which ended up in the hands of Hussein.

Mr. Drogoul stated: "The task of the Fed [bank examiner] was simply to confirm that the State of Georgia audit revealed no major problems. And thus, their audit of BNL usually consisted of a one or two-day review of the state of Georgia’s preliminary results, followed by a cup of es-xpresso in the manager’s office."

Gonzalez was appalled at the of lack of effective and of a little storefront bank and also appalled by the gifts ex-

They voted in 1995 to destroy the source transcripts of its policy making committee that had been sent to National Archives and Records Administration. Chairman Alan Greenbloom committee vote on his destruction, telling the members: "I am not going to record these votes because we do not have to. There is no legal requirement."

(p. 104 in my book.) Greenspan thus removed any fingerprints on this act of record destruction. Donald Kohn, who is now Vice Chair of the Federal Reserve, answered some questions I had sent to Chairman Greenspan about this destruction. Kohn wrote back a letter on Noember 1, 2001 to me at the University of Texas that they had destroyed the source records for 1980-93. They did not believe it to be illegal and there was no plan to end this practice. That is one reason why the Federal Reserve audit supported by Congressman Ron Paul is needed. The Fed must stop destroying its records.

A SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO KEN MOR-ROW, MEMBER OF THE 1980
UNITED STATES OLYMPIC GOLD MEDAL HOCKEY TEAM

HON. ROBERT E. LATTA
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. LATTA. Madam Speaker, it is with great pride that I rise to pay tribute to Ken Morrow, Olympic gold medalist and U.S. Hockey Hall of Fame inductee. The City of Bowling Green, Bowling Green State University, and the greater Northwest Ohio community celebrate this great American athlete.

In an incredible achievement in 1980, Ken Morrow was a member of hockey teams that won an Olympic gold medal and the Stanley Cup. At the age of 23, Ken Morrow was a member of the 1980 USA Miracle on Ice American hockey team that won the gold medal for the United States of America in Lake Placid, New York. Ken Morrow was also a member of the New York Islanders, who won the Stanley Cup in 1980.

A Bowling Green State University alumnus, Ken Morrow was an NCAA West All-American athlete in 1978. Morrow was also named player of the year for the Central Collegiate Hockey Association. He was drafted by the New York Islanders in 1976; however, Morrow reained in college until graduating in 1979.

Ken Morrow played a total of ten seasons in the National Hockey League during his profesional hockey career he helped the New York Islanders to win four straight Stanley Cup titles. Following his career as a hockey player, Morrow began a coaching career in the NHL. He was later inducted into the United States Hockey Hall of Fame, and in 1996 received the Lester Patrick Award for his accomplish-m ents in the sport of hockey.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in conveying special gratitude to Ken Morrow as we celebrate this accomplished individual. Our communities are well served by great Americans like Ken Morrow. On behalf of the people of the Fifth District of Ohio, I am proud to recognize Ken Morrow.

HEALTH INSURANCE INDUSTRY FAIR COMPETITION ACT

SPREAD OF

HON. BOB EETHERIDGE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 24, 2010

Mr. EETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4626, Health Insurance Industry Fair Competition Act. This legislation is another step in Congress’ work to reform health care to bring down costs and expand choices for all Americans. Last year, we worked to make sure seniors could keep their doctors by reforming the Medicare payment system. This bill cracks down on insurance companies that are taking advantage of obsolete laws to manipulate premiums. The next step will be to protect North Carolina families from additional insurance company abuses, bring down health care costs and turn around the crushing effects of skyrocketing health care costs on our national debt.

H.R. 4626 will restore competition and transparency to the health insurance market. Competition is the engine that drives our economy, spurs innovation, and ensures that the American consumer receives a fair deal on goods and services. But for far too long, the health insurance industry has played by a different set of rules. Since 1945, the McCarran- Ferguson Act has exempted the business of insurance from federal antitrust laws. This bill repeals that blanket antitrust exemption afforded to health insurance companies. Under H.R. 4626, health insurers will no longer be shielded from legal accountability for price fixing, dividing up territories among themselves, sabotaging their competitors in order to gain monopoly power, and other such anti-competitive practices.

When NC families are hurting, doing nothing really isn’t an option for me. I’ve heard from thousands of neighbors in my district who are suffering under the current system. I receive calls, letters and emails on health care literally every day.

Sheila is a woman from Raleigh who fears she will suffer the same fate as her sister who died from asthma because she couldn’t get coverage. Linda from Sanford is a nurse who’s tired of insurance industry bureaucrats interfering with patient care. Nancy from Louisburg says she’s not looking for a handout, just a fair playing field because everyone should be able to get insurance. Dan is a young man from Raleigh whose fiancé’s coverage was denied when she got sick. Peggy from Rocky Mount wants affordable coverage for small business workers and the self-employed who please, “please don’t let the insurance companies win this time.’ These are the voices of regular folks on North Carolina’s Main Streets and country roads.

Mr. Speaker, making sure every American has access to affordable health insurance and high-quality health care is one of the most important challenges of our time. The health reform debate is about saving money and saving lives. At its core, health reform is all about ensuring that American families and businesses have more choices, benefit from more competition, and have greater control over their own health care. Repealing this exemption is an important part of that effort. I urge my colleagues to join me in taking a stand for the American people.

HONORING KATHRYN “KAY” HIRE, MOBILE’S ASTRONAUT

HON. JO BONNER
OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, on Sunday night, the six-member crew of the Space Shuttle Endeavor returned to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida after 14 days in Earth orbit. Aboard the STS–130 was Mission Specialist Kathryn “Kay” Hire, Mobile, Alabama’s first astronaut.

A native of Mobile and a 1977 graduate of Murphy High School, Kay Hire epitomizes the ideal service to her country. A 1981 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Hire earned a Master of Science degree in space technology from the Florida Institute of Technology in 1991 while also serving as a Naval officer.

Over her military career, Hire has taken part in a wide range of missions, from oceanographic research to naval flight instructor. In 1993, she was the first female in the U.S. military to be assigned to a combat aircrew when she flew aboard a P–3 maritime patrol aircraft, taking part in Atlantic and Caribbean operations. She also received active naval duty in support of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom as a member of the U.S. Naval Central Command staff. She later returned to reserve status and served as Commanding Officer of the Navy Reserve Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command.

She transferred her duties to NASA in 1989, reporting to the Johnson Space Center in Florida after 14 days in Earth orbit. Aboard the Columbia, Hire spent 16 days in space and took part in 26 life science experiments focusing on the effects of microgravity on the brain and nervous system.

While on the just-completed Endeavor Mission, Hire traveled to the International Space Station where the ISS and Endeavor crew took part in the final major construction project for the orbiting space station—the installation of the “Tranquility” module. The new addition to the space station will house life support systems for the “Tranquility” module. The new addition STS–90, logging over 381 hours above planet Earth.

Madam Speaker, I join the people of South Alabama in welcoming Kay Hire back down to Earth, and in expressing our pride for her service in our military and space programs. She is a tremendous role model for our youth. For those who seek examples of real heroes in our society, one need not look any further than Kay Hire, Mobile’s astronaut.

Instead of a summit on health care, we should have a summit on job creation, or a summit on cutting spending and reducing the deficit, or a summit on lawsuit abuse reform, or a summit on not treating terrorists like common criminals.

The Administration’s health care plan raises premiums, increases taxes and cuts Medicare benefits for seniors, according to the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office. It’s no wonder 67 percent of Americans now want Congress to start over on health care.

Instead of defying the wishes of Americans, the Administrations should address the 15 million people who are unemployed, the millions more who have given up on finding a job, and specifically the 17 percent unemployment rate in the black community.

The Administration should listen to the American people, not hold a six-hour photo-op on the wrong subject.

HONORING MARIO DIAZ-BALART OF FLORIDA

HON. MARIO DIAZ-BALART
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor one of our outstanding community leaders, Mr. Thomas of Immokalee, Florida. Mr. Thomas truly embodies the ideals of service, selflessness and leadership.

For 16 years Mr. Thomas served as the Executive Director of the Collier County Public Housing Authority, and during his tenure, significantly increased public housing in Immokalee, a farm-worker community in rural Southwest Florida. Though he retired from public service in 2002, he has continued his activism and involvement in the community.

No one knows Immokalee better than Mr. Thomas, who is known by friends and neighbors as the unofficial mayor. He dedicates each day of his life to advancing the needs of his community and ensuring that Immokalee thrives. He is a selfless community leader and answers the call of duty not for recognitions or merits, but because of a true love for his town and a desire to see it prosper.

Originally from New York, Fred has been a proud resident of Immokalee for more than two decades and enjoys much of what Florida has to offer, like hunting and fishing. He is also a talented and recognized photographer, always capturing Florida’s unique wildlife and pristine environment. He is married to wife Cheryl, for their invaluable service and support.

Mr. Thomas is a passionate advocate for Immokalee and an eloquent voice for his country. He often frequent commission meetings and speaks out on behalf of his neighbors and the needs of Immokalee residents. His professional and business affiliations include: Commissioner of the Immokalee Water and Sewer District, Chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee of the Collier County Municipal Planning Organization, Vice-Chairman of the Immokalee Enterprise Zone Board, chairman of the Immokalee Community Development Advisory Board, Collier County Sheriff’s Commission, Board of Directors of Immokalee Chamber of Commerce, Member of the Immokalee Rotary and Member of the Immokalee Optimist. Most recently, in 2009, he was appointed by Governor Charlie Crist to serve as a Board Member of the South Florida Water Management District’s Big Cypress Basin.

As we celebrate Black History Month, please join me in thanking Fred Thomas, and his wife Cheryl, for their invaluable service and contributions to the Southwest Florida community and their leadership, which makes a difference in the lives of many each day.

NATIONAL MANUFACTURING STRATEGY ACT OF 2010

HON. DANIEL LIPINSKI
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. LIPINSKI. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to be introducing today the National Manufacturing Strategy Act of 2010. I would like to especially thank the 27 members of Congress who have joined me in supporting this bipartisan bill.

While our Nation reaps enormous benefits from a strong domestic manufacturing base, it is increasingly clear to me that we need a coherent and forward-looking policy to support America’s manufacturers. I believe that by requiring the President to develop and submit to Congress a National Manufacturing Strategy every four years, we can ensure the government is doing all it can to ensure this vital industry is able to succeed. Manufacturing is too important for us to continue to manage it in an ad hoc, unplanned fashion.

Currently, Federal, State and local governments interact with and strive to support manufacturing in their own ways. Unfortunately, these efforts are too often reactive, uncoordinated, and stovepiped within agencies and jurisdictions. What we need instead is an approach that is coordinated, proactive, and fulfills both short- and long-term goals to improve our manufacturers’ international competitiveness.

My bill would require the President to closely consult with industry leaders and stakeholders in undertaking a far-reaching analysis of factors related to domestic manufacturing, its workforce, research and development, investment, the defense industrial base, and other related areas. Based on this analysis, the President shall develop a National Manufacturing Strategy that includes specific goals and recommendations for improving the manufacturing sector’s competitiveness. Importantly, my bill will establish a Manufacturing Strategy Board. This advisory group will work in manufacturing, innovation, and the workforce will provide the President advice and guidance on manufacturing issues, both specific to the development of the Strategy, as well as on a regular, continuous basis.

I very much appreciate the support, feedback and guidance that my office has received from a wide range of individuals and organizations during the development of this bill. Individuals from the AFL–CIO Industrial Union Council, National Defense Industry Association, American Iron and Steel Institute, National Council for Advanced Manufacturing, Aerospace Industry Association, Center for American Progress, and the U.S. Department of Commerce, among others, have provided

COMMEMORATING THE 117TH ANNIVERSARY OF PAYNE CHAPEL AM.E. CHURCH IN WEST PALM BEACH, FLORIDA

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 117th anniversary of the founding of Payne Chapel AM.E. Church in West Palm Beach, Florida, an institution that is as old as the city itself.

The theme of this year’s celebration is “Enhancing the dream; bright hope for tomorrow”. Payne Chapel is not a building touched by the hand of man or nature, but a calling that has been passed from one man to another through the years.

Madam Speaker, from 1893 to 2008, 30 pastors, 24 presiding elders, 36 bishops, and three assistant pastors have served Payne Chapel AM.E. Church. Payne Chapel is more than a building; it is a living testament to the community that built it. As we celebrate the anniversary of the founding of Payne Chapel A.M.E. Church. Payne Chapel is more than a building; it is a living testament to the community that built it.

Mr. McDONALD of Arizona. Madam Speaker, this is not the ringing condemnation that the survivors of Khojaly deserves but it is an important first step by an international community that has too long been silent on this issue. Congress should take the next step and I hope my colleagues will join me in standing with Azerbaijanis as they commemorate the tragedy of Khojaly. The world should know and remember.

COMMEMORATING THE 16TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE KOHJALY TRAGEDY

HON. MICHAEL E. McMAHON
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. McMAHON. Madam Speaker, I rise to commemorate the 16th anniversary of the Khojaly tragedy, when on February 25–26, 1992, the town of Khojaly in the Nagorno Karabakh region of Azerbaijan was brutally attacked by Armenian forces. The town of Khojaly, which was home to 7,000 people, was completely destroyed; a total of 613 people were killed, of which 106 were women and 83 were children, and 56 of whom are purported to have been killed with extreme cruelty and torture. Additionally, 1,275 were taken hostage, 150 went missing; 487 people became divorced, 76 of whom are teenagers; families were wiped out; 25 children lost both of their parents, and 130 children lost one of their parents.

Sadly, Khojaly, a town in the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan, now under the occupation of Armenian forces, was the site of the largest killing of ethnic Azerbaijani civilians.

According to Human Rights Watch and other international observers, the massacre was committed by the ethnic Armenian armed forces, reportedly with the help of the Russian 366th Motor Rifle Regiment.

As part of the population tried to escape the town of Khojaly, they encountered violent ambushes and were murdered. According to the Russian organization, Memorial, 200 Azerbaijani corpses were brought from Khojaly to Aghdam within four days, and it was discovered that they were subjected to abuses, torture and mutilation. Human Rights Watch stated that “we place direct responsibility for the civilian deaths with Karabakh Armenian forces.”

At the time, Newsweek Magazine reported: “Azerbaijan was a chamber house again last week: a place of mourning refugees and dozens of mangled corpses dragged to a make-shift morgue behind the mosque. They were ordinary Azerbaijani men, women and children of Khojaly, a small village in war-torn Nagorno-Karabakh overrun by Armenian forces on 25–26 February. Many were killed at close range while trying to flee; some had their faces mutilated, others were scalped.”

Time Magazine stated “While the details are argued, this much is plain: something grim and unconscionable happened in the Azerbaijani town of Khojaly 2 weeks ago. So far, some 200 dead Azerbaijanis, many of them mutilated, have been transported out of the town tucked inside the Armenian-dominated enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh for burial in neighboring Azerbaijan. The total number of deaths—the Azerbaijanis claim 1,324 civilians have been slaughtered, most of them women and children— is unknown.”

Members of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, PACE, from Albania, Azerbaijan, and the United Kingdom stated in May 2001 in Written Declaration No. 324 that the “Azerbaijanies massacred the whole population of Khojaly and fully destroyed the town.”

Khojaly was the first significant Azerbaijani settlement overrun by Armenian forces in the region of Nagorno-Karabakh. The forces next overran the Nagorno-Karabakh districts of Zangilan, Gubad, Fuzuli, Aghdam, and Kalbajar, as well as the towns of Shusha and Lachin. Altogether, the occupied territories represent roughly 20 percent of the territory of Azerbaijan. And, altogether slightly one million Azerbaijanis were evicted from their homes over the course of the Armenian-Azerbaijan war.

Madam Speaker, this is not the ringing condemnation that the survivors of Khojaly deserve but it is an important first step by an international community that has too long been silent on this issue. Congress should take the next step and I hope my colleagues will join me in standing with Azerbaijanis as they commemorate the tragedy of Khojaly. The world should know and remember.

INTRODUCTION OF IMPROVING COMPACT-IMPACT ASSISTANCE FOR EDUCATION

HON. MADELEINE Z. BORDALLO
OF GUAM
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Ms. BORDALLO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce H.R. 4695, a bill to expand the Federal Impact Aid program to reimburse schools for the costs of educating students... from the Freely Associated States, FAS, residing in the United States, including the territories. Impact Aid was originally authorized by the Elementary and Secondary Education Act in 1965 to compensate local school districts for the costs of educating federally connected children. Examples of these kinds of students include those whose parents live on military bases, live on Indian lands, or are the children of accredited foreign diplomats. However, the Impact Aid program does not compensate local schools for the costs incurred by educating students from the FAS.

The United States entered into the Compacts of Free Association with the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, and the Republic of Palau and under the Compacts, citizens of these countries can enter the United States without a visa. Thus, children whose parents are citizens of the FAS are in schools in the States and territories under a special immigration category and are federally connected just as children of military families are similarly federally connected. This legislation would provide a means for the Federal Government to provide assistance to impacted local education authorities.

Madam Speaker, the economic downturn has forced many local school districts to cut education budgets. This is a longstanding issue for affected jurisdictions and they need this tool even more than ever. I would like to thank Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Faileomavaega, Mrs. Christensen, Mr. Honda, Mr. Sablan, and Mr. Pierluisi for joining with me as original cosponsors. I will work with these cosponsors to pass this bill during the 111th Congress.

TRIBUTE TO CONGRESSMAN SONNY CALLAHAN—2009 "MOBILIAN OF THE YEAR"

HON. JO BONNER OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, I rise to congratulate my dear friend and predecessor, former Congressman Sonny Callahan, for being selected as 2009 Mobilian of the Year by the Cottage Hill Civic Club.

To the people of South Alabama, Sonny needs no introduction. He has dedicated much of his life to serving our area. A Navy veteran and a self-made local business success, Sonny has never known a time when he was not giving back to his community.

First elected to public office representing Mobile in the Alabama House of Representatives in 1971, Sonny embarked on a journey that took him to the Alabama State Senate and eventually to Washington, DC, where he labored in this House for no less than 18 years.

He quickly made a name for himself in these Halls, earning the gavel of one of the 13 subcommittee chairmanships on the House Appropriations Committee after only 10 years in office. He was named chairman of the powerful Subcommittee on Foreign Operations in 1995, protecting America’s interests and investments around the world.

In 2000, he became the chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development. In this position, Sonny worked closely with the Bush Administration to develop and finance a new national energy policy.

While chairman of this subcommittee, he also served as vice chairman of Foreign Operations and was a member of the Transportation Subcommittee.

In an era of stark partisanship that too often divides this Chamber, Sonny Callahan knew only friends as he served in Congress. His ability to reach out across the aisle won him universal praise and enabled him to accomplish much for his district and the State of Alabama.

After retirement from Congress in 2003, Sonny has refused to settle down into a quiet life of leisure. In addition to working in his own government consulting firm, Sonny was named by Governor Bob Riley to serve on the Alabama Port Authority Board. In 2004, Sonny was named Patriot of the Year by local veterans groups, and in 2005, the Boys and Girls Clubs of Mobile named its Theodore activity center the Sonny Callahan Boys and Girls Club Building.

I wish to personally congratulate Sonny Callahan for having received the honor of "Mobilian of the Year," and on behalf of the people of South Alabama, I thank Sonny, his wife, Karen, and their children and grandchildren, for their continued service and dedication to the state and the people we so dearly love.

HONORING GALVESTON BUSINESSES

HON. RON PAUL OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, on March 4th, the Galveston Chamber of Commerce will hold its 164th annual meeting. Established by the Ninth Congress of the Republic of Texas in 1845, making it the oldest chamber of commerce in Texas, the Galveston Chamber of Commerce works to promote and advocate for the business community of Galveston.

At the March 4th meeting, the Galveston Chamber of Commerce will honor 32 Galveston businesses who have served the Galveston Community for 100 years or longer. The Port of Galveston, which has been in operation since 1825, is the oldest business in the community.

It is truly a remarkable achievement that these 32 businesses kept their doors open through several hurricanes, tropical storms, recessions, and the Great Depression.

I certainly agree with Gina Spagnola, president of the Galveston Chamber of Commerce, who said "Our business community is the life-blood of our community, and we must continue to welcome, appreciate, encourage, support and protect them."

Madam Speaker, it is a tremendous pleasure to join my friends at the Galveston Chamber of Commerce in saluting these businesses for their years of service to the people of Galveston. I am truly honored to serve as their representative and hope all my colleagues will join me in congratulating these outstanding businesses. I have attached a list of the names of the businesses that will be honored on March 4 and the date that the companies were established.

IN TRIBUTE TO REPRESENTATIVE JOHN P. MURTHA OF PENNSYLVANIA

HON. ALAN B. MOLLOHAN OF WEST VIRGINIA

SPEECH OF
two of the greatest defenders Congress has ever seen—the senior Senator from my own state . . . and Jack Murtha.

Jack was a leader. His respect for his colleagues and his commitment to this House informed his role as Chairman. Jack recognized the importance of what we do here, and Jack was always—always—prepared. There was never a man more suited to the gavel than Jack Murtha.

Jack was a Marine. If he had not been a Marine, he could have played the part—the man radiated strength and purpose in every action he took. But Jack not only looked the part, he was the genuine article. And there is, of course, no such thing as a former Marine—once a Marine, always a Marine. As fiercely as Jack defended the prerogatives of Congress, his commitment to our House took a back seat to his commitment to men and women in uniform. The service member—an infantryman outside Fallujah, a Marine in Afghanistan, an airman in Bagram, a sailor in the Persian Gulf—has never had a better protector than Jack Murtha.

That is the chief reason he didn't hesitate when he came out so publicly against the War in Iraq—something that earned him the respect of many and the enmity of some. I don't know that he didn't care about either judgment, but I do know that neither applause nor condemnation guided his decision at all. His allegiance was to the men and women in the field.

To me, Jack was a friend and a mentor. In a sense that was a relationship I inherited. My father, who represented West Virginia's First District until he retired in 1982, worked closely with Jack. Shortly after I won election to his seat, Dad told me that I would never go wrong seeking Jack's counsel. He was right.

Finally, Jack was a family man, a loving husband and partner to his wife, Joyce, and parent to Donna, John, and Patrick. Their loss cannot be described by words. They have my deepest condolences.

Jack will be missed by all.

HONORING PASTOR WALTER THOMAS RICHARDSON

HON. MARIO DIAZ-BALART
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, February 25, 2010

Mr. MARIO DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Madam Speaker, today I rise to honor one of the most devoted and beloved leaders in South Florida, Dr. Walter Thomas Richardson, whose dedication to God, his faith and his community has allowed him to break social barriers and touched thousands of lives.

Since 1983, Pastor Richardson has served as Senior Pastor of Sweet Home Missionary Baptist Church in Perrine, Florida and his preaching has enriched the faith and lives of many. He is a Miami native, married to M. Dolores, father to Walter L. and LaKisha, and proud grandfather of seven. His family has played a key role in his development as pastor and community leader. He learned of the importance of community service at a young age, from his parents, Bishop Walter H. and Mrs. Poseline M. Richardson and in 1969, while serving in the military, felt a calling for the ministry. His education has also played an important role in his formation. He obtained both Bachelor and Master Degrees from St. Thomas University, and a Doctorate from Trinity Theological Seminary.

Pastor Richardson is a leading voice of social justice and multicultural integration. His congregation is formed by Native Americans, African Americans, Hispanics, Haitians and several Caribbean Islands among many other groups. His love of service has manifested itself in multiple ways. He is a professor of religion at St. Thomas University, Chaplain in the Miami-Dade Police Department, and Board Member of Florida Memorial College, New World School of the Arts, the Community Relations Board and the Alliance for Human Services, to name a few. He is also author of Going through Samaria, a book which teaches about the importance of Christianity, and had recorded 30 songs and composed more than 100. His unique service and leadership has gained him recognitions from the City of Miami, the City of Fort Lauderdale and National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

As we celebrate Black History Month, I ask you to join me in honoring the work of Pastor Walter Thomas Richardson and thanking him for his service to our community. He has improved the lives of many.
