Apparently, because of the lack of interest by the Democrats in seeing that there is a deal done, it would appear they don’t mind having the cuts to Medicare. And that’s what was puzzling me last week.

After they hear how far backwards Republicans are willing to go on the supercommittee, how is it that the Democrats end up walking away, basically, from what they wanted? So I struggled to try to figure out what it was that would keep them from being desperate to cut a deal with the Republicans because surely they don’t want those cuts to Medicare.

Then I realized, well, Democrats are 100 percent totally responsible for the $500 billion in cuts to Medicare that are contained within ObamaCare. They also know that millions of dollars of Republican campaign money will be spent next year in probably talking about the $500 billion in cuts that the Democrats solely, on their own, pushed through in ObamaCare and that unless there is at least a couple hundred billion in cuts to Medicare, then at least that amount would result from a failure to pass some kind of bill from the supercommittee.

Unless there’s something like that, the $500 billion that the Democrats cut from Medicare last year is all anybody is going to basically be talking about in the next election.

But if the supercommittee fails and if the House and Senate don’t pass what they’ve sent, then we’ve already seen the rhetoric begin: Republicans, they say, are wanting to cut health care; they’re wanting to cut Medicare.

So now we see how it’s playing out.

Some, apparently, on the Democratic side—not all, but some, apparently the leadership of the Democratic Party—apparently the President—want to see a failure so they can campaign against Republicans saying, No, they didn’t want agreement anyway; and look at the cuts to Medicare that they’ve forced. I don’t see any other explanation for the cavalier attitude of the Democratic leadership and not pushing so hard to get an agreement to avoid the massive cuts to Medicare. Even with the massive cuts, it won’t be as big a cut as ObamaCare was to Medicare; but it will be enough, apparently, for them to campaign and try to demonize the Republicans.

Apparently tomorrow we’re going to vote on a balanced budget amendment. It will either be House Joint Resolution 1 or House Joint Resolution 2. House Joint Resolution 1 has a cap on spending that we can’t go above, a percentage of gross domestic product. It requires a supermajority in order to raise taxes. That’s House Joint Resolution 1. That’s what passed out of committee after a long and exhausting day of debate and amendments.

But we’re bringing to the floor joint House Resolution 2. It just says, You’ve got to balance the budget. I know there are those who say, Well, that would mean that our decisions start being made by the courts. Well, 49 out of 50 States, as I understand it, have a balanced budget requirement in their constitutions. Their courts don’t make those decisions. I don’t see why it would be otherwise if it was. Under the Constitution, we’ve got the power to restrict jurisdiction for everybody but the Supreme Court. We could do that if that’s what we chose to do.

We’re in a mess, because we’re not doing the things we promised we would do with a balanced budget requirement in the majority, the very things the Democrats lost the majority in this House because they didn’t fulfill. It’s time to get serious about our promises.

Everybody is aware of Francis Scott Key who wrote our wonderful National Anthem. As my time runs out, I want to finish tonight with something else that Francis Scott Key said. On February 22, 1812, he said this:

The patriot who feels himself in the service of God, who acknowledges Him in all his ways, has the promise of Almighty direction, and will find His Word in his greatest darkness, “a lantern to his feet and a lamp unto his path. He will, therefore, seek to establish for his country, in the eyes of the world, such a character as shall make her not unworthy of the name of a Christian nation.

We’ve got a lot to do if we’re going to live up to our commitments, our oaths. A balanced budget amendment with a spending cap is what we need to do. That’s what we passed out of committee in regular order. That’s what I would vote for tomorrow. Since that’s not coming, then I don’t want to push through a balanced budget amendment that requires ever-upward spiraling taxation because, as we’ve shown this year, without a balanced budget amendment, Congress doesn’t have the will to cut spending, not a majority of the House and Senate both.

It’s time to live up to the commitments we’ve made and what we owe our creator, our maker. If we’ll do that, we can have another 200 years of greatness as a Nation. If we don’t, as Abraham Lincoln said, This Nation will die by suicide. I want it to live and flourish. I want us to keep our commitments.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
