

Twenty-one years after the first settlement, the area's residents agreed to establish a post office, which required that the town be given an official name. It had been called many things, from Central City to Sandridge to Lakeview. The decision was to be made in the wake of a tragic death, that of Roy Peebles, the young son of Reverend David Peebles. Locals decided that the town should be named after Roy, and on May 24, 1894, Roy had a name and a post office.

Roy remained a quiet, sparsely populated area until the 1940s, when Hill Field was established nearby. Roy City suddenly grew rapidly, forcing an equally rapid expansion of services. For a brief period, overflowing classes for schoolchildren were held in the halls. A semi-permanent solution was found in busing students across Ogden to other solutions, and a permanent solution was finally completed in 1965 in the form of Roy High School. It became the largest high school in Weber County, and has been ranked as one of the top ten high schools in the country.

Thanks to spending by members of the military working at Hill Air Force Base, the Navy Supply Depot, and the Defense Supply Depot, businesses in Roy City expanded quickly during and after WWII. In 1953, the city was granted a charter to establish Utah's first branch bank, paving the way for branch banks to spread throughout Utah.

In recent years, Roy City has been called "Weber County's Fastest Growing City," boasting over 35,000 residents. It has also been regularly lauded as one of Utah's most fiscally well-managed cities. Roy City now offers its citizens a host of modern businesses, conveniences, and services, from biking trails to an aquatic center.

To mark this year's special anniversary, Mayor Joe Ritchie will be presiding over the burial of a time capsule that is to be opened in 25 years, exactly one century after the city's incorporation. May the last quarter of that journey be as productive and successful as the first three.●
