The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer:

Eternal God, through Whom we see what we could be and what we can become, thank You for giving us another day.

Send Your Spirit upon the Members of this people’s House to encourage them in their official tasks. Be with them and with all who labor here to serve this great Nation and its people. Assure them that whatever their responsibilities, You provide the grace to enable them to be faithful to their duties and the wisdom to be conscious of their obligations and fulfill them with integrity.

Remind us all of the dignity of work and teach us to use our talents and abilities in ways that are honorable and just and are of benefit to those we serve. May all that is done this day be for Your greater honor and glory.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker’s approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Speaker’s approval of the Journal. The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Dold) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. Dold led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will entertain up to five 1-minute requests on each side.

IPAB MUST BE REPEALED

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, every American should be given the freedom to make his or her own decisions regarding health care. When the government takeover health care bill was passed, the liberal control of Congress took away this right and instead created the Independent Payment Advisory Board, IPAB. This board is comprised of 15 unelected and accountable bureaucrats who will be responsible for making major cuts to Medicare which are likely to lead to denial of care.

Today, House Republicans will vote on a bill that will eliminate IPAB and help strengthen our Medicare system for a doctor-patient relationship.

Our country cannot afford to spend $1.8 trillion on an unconstitutional government mandate which the NFIB reveals will destroy 1.6 million jobs.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

REPEAL OF IPAB WRONGLY TIED TO MEDICAL MALPRACTICE

Mr. HOLDEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of repealing IPAB. However, I speak in opposition to tying this repeal to H.R. 5. This is another act of political theater and disingenuous at best.

IPAB relinquishes congressional responsibility to care for our seniors. Passing these decisions off, whether it is to insurance companies or an unelected commission, undermines Congress’ ability to represent the needs of our seniors and make decisions on health care policy for Medicare beneficiaries.

We must preserve access to quality Medicare while containing costs and replacing the flawed payment system. Simply cutting reimbursements is not the answer. If we truly want to rein in the cost of Medicare and repeal IPAB, we should do it as a stand-alone bill.

The Senate has no intention of bringing H.R. 5 up for a vote. Why then are we wasting our time on legislation that has no chance of becoming law?

Americans want their elected leaders working together to find solutions to the problems facing our country, not to be active participants in political theater.

I urge my colleagues to have an open and honest debate on Medicare reform by bringing an independent IPAB repeal bill to the floor.
HEALTH ACT OF 2011

(Mr. FLAKE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLAKE. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the legislation we'll vote on shortly to repeal the Independent Payment Advisory Board created under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act. This is something that simply should not have been done. These are unelected board members, 15 of them, appointed by the President, tasked for finding savings and making recommendations.

Unfortunately, because of the limitations of what the board can cut, the majority of spending reductions will come from cutting reimbursements for doctors and those who care for Medicare patients. The ultimate result will be fewer options for patients when doctors are driven out of the Medicare system.

We were told when the Affordable Care Act was passed that it would lead to a reduction in premiums. It's done exactly the opposite.

This kind of board and these kinds of decisions made by unelected officials will simply drive the cost up further, and we cannot afford to do that.

My only regret in today's action is that we're not repealing the entire act. I hope that comes soon.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

(Mr. BACA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, today I rise to speak of the need to protect the health care of American women.

Last week, I hosted a women's conference focused on the benefit of the Affordable Care Act for women. The historic health care reform is a step in the right direction for the health of mothers, sisters, daughters, and granddaughters.

Thanks to affordable health care, women can no longer be dropped from insurance coverage when they get sick or become pregnant. Twenty million women have already used free preventive services offered through health care reform, including mammograms and colonoscopies.

Beginning in 2014, women will no longer be denied coverage for having a preexisting condition. The health care law finally ends gender rating, in which women are forced to pay higher premiums than men for the same coverage.

American women are the foundation of our families. We must protect the benefit of health care reform and ensure that all women have better access to health care.

CHARLES DARWIN WOULD BLUSH

(Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Ms. TSONGAS. Madam Speaker, tommorrow marks the second anniversary of the landmark health care reform bill being signed into law by President Obama.

Many of the important reforms under the new law benefit women, who for years have faced discriminatory practices by insurance companies and borne higher health care costs simply as a result of their gender.

Because of the new law, women can no longer be denied coverage or charged more for such preexisting conditions as breast or cervical cancer, pregnancy, or, of all things, being a victim of domestic abuse.

Women no longer have to share the cost of critical and potentially lifesaving preventive services such as mammograms and colonoscopies.

While additional reforms will be implemented in stages, many advances, as a result of health care reform, are already making a difference in the lives of women across this country.

JOEL SHRUM

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Madam Speaker, on Sunday in the Yemeni city of Tah-izz, al Qaeda terrorists viciously gunned down American Joel Shrum.

Joel grew up in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in Mount Joy and was a football star at Donegal High School. He leaves behind a wife and two young sons who lived with him in Yemen.

Joel worked as a teacher at the International Training Development Center, which focused on giving vocational training to the poor. Joel was a Christian, but he was not in the country to proselytize. According to his father, Joel was there to teach and break down barriers. The organization he worked for is staffed by both Christians and Muslims and has worked in the country for over 40 years.

The people of Yemen are appalled at this violence. Hundreds of activists took to the streets yesterday to demand justice for the killers. They carried photos of Joel and chanted: “Yemen is not a place for terrorism” and “We love you, Joel.”

Joel Shrum selflessly served the poor in a country far from home. He will be dearly missed by his family and by the people he came to serve.

THE NATIONAL DEBT

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Madam Speaker, I rise to address the American people about the catastrophic level of the national debt. This is a problem that threatens the health of our economy and the future of our children. To tackle this problem, we need a comprehensive plan that includes spending restraint and deficit reduction.

The national debt is a ticking time bomb that will burden future generations with higher taxes and lusher deficits. It is a problem that we cannot ignore or sweep under the rug.

Mr. PITTS. Madam Speaker, on Sunday in the Yemeni city of Tah-izz, al Qaeda terrorists viciously gunned down American Joel Shrum.

Joel grew up in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in Mount Joy and was a football star at Donegal High School. He leaves behind a wife and two young sons who lived with him in Yemen.

IT'S UNCONSTITUTIONAL

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Madam Speaker, as a result of health care reform, are already making a difference in the lives of women across this country.
The issue: Does the Federal Government have the constitutional authority to force Americans to buy government ordained and approved health insurance, or else? Or else face the wrath and punishment of government. The government does not have the authority to force citizens to buy any product, whether it is health insurance, a car, or a box of doughnuts. If the Supreme Court allows this government invasion of choice, what is next? Is the government, under the guise of it knows best, going to force citizens to buy only government approved green cars, only government houses, only government food? The health care individual mandate is a denial of liberty.

Yes, we need to fix health care, but does anyone really want to turn over the Nation’s health care to the government? The government seldom does anything better.

If you like the compassion of the IRS, the efficiency of the post office, and the competency of FEMA, you will love the unconstitutional, nationalized health care bill. And that’s just the way it is.

TRAYVON MARTIN

[Mr. AL GREEN of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.]

Mr. AL GREEN of Texas, Madam Speaker, I rise this morning to thank the many persons across the length and breadth of this country who have spoken up with reference to the injustice that has occurred in Florida with reference to the young man, Trayvon Martin.

I want to single out two people, however. The first, Joe Scarborough of MSNBC Morning Joe. When he spoke this morning, I literally had tears to well in my eyes as he took a strong position on this injustice. I beg that others would do likewise.

I would also like to thank the Reverend Al Sharpton. He has lost his mother; and I along with other people of goodwill would like to extend our condolences and our sympathies. But I am so grateful to Reverend Sharpton. He has indicated that he will be at the rally tonight in Sanford, Florida. And I thank him for what he has done and is doing.

May God continue to bless you, Reverend, and I look forward to being there with you.

Mr. CONYERS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. AL GREEN of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CONYERS. I would like to proudly associate myself with your remarks.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Poe of Texas). Members are advised to address their remarks to the Chair.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 5.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan? There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 89 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 5.

In the committee of the whole.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services, to provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system, with Mrs. MILLER of Michigan (Acting Chair) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIR. When the Committee of the Whole House rose on Wednesday, March 21, 2012, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule.

In lieu of the amendments recommended by the Committees on Energy and Commerce and the Judiciary printed in the bill, an amendment in the nature of a substitute consisting of the text of Rules Committee Print 112-18 is adopted and the bill, as amended, shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of further amendment under the 5-minute rule and shall be considered as read.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Protecting Access to Healthcare Act”.

TITLE I—HEALTH ACT

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE. This title may be cited as the “Help Efficient, Accessible, Less-cost, Timely Healthcare (HEALTH) Act of 2012”.

SEC. 102. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(f) EFFECT ON HEALTH CARE ACCESS AND COSTS.—Subtitle A of Title I of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148) and the current civil justice system is adversely affecting patient access to health care services, better patient care, and cost-efficient health care, in that the health care liability system is a costly and ineffective mechanism for resolving claims of health care liability and compensating injured patients, and is a deterrent to the sharing of information among health care professionals in which impede efforts to improve patient safety and quality of care.

(2) EFFECT ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care liability insurance purchased by health care system providers.

(3) EFFECT ON FEDERAL SPENDING.—Congress finds that the health care liability litigation systems existing throughout the United States have a significant effect on the amount, and use of Federal funds because of—

(A) the large number of individuals who receive health care benefits under programs operated or financed by the Federal Government;

(B) the large number of individuals who benefit because of the exclusion from Federal taxes of the amounts spent to provide them with health insurance benefits; and

(C) the large number of health care providers who provide items or services for which the Federal Government makes payments.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this title to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

(1) improve the availability of health care services in cases in which health care liability actions have been shown to be a factor in the decreased availability of services;

(2) reduce the incidence of “defensive medicine” and lower the cost of health care liability insurance, all of which contribute to the escalation of health care costs;

(3) ensure that persons with meritorious health care injury claims receive fair and adequate compensation, including reasonable noneconomic damages;

(4) improve the fairness and cost-effectiveness of our current health care liability system to resolve disputes over, and provide compensation for, health care liability by reducing uncertainty in the amount of compensation provided to injured individuals; and

(5) provide an increased sharing of information in the health care system which will reduce unintended injury and improve patient care.

SEC. 103. ENCOURAGING SPEEDY RESOLUTION OF CLAIMS.

The time for the commencement of a health care lawsuit shall be 3 years after the date of manifestation of injury or 1 year after the claimant discovers, or through the use of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury, whichever occurs first. Such time shall not be tolled for minors for any period during which a parent or guardian and a health care provider or health care organization have committed fraud or collusion in the failure to bring an action on behalf of the injured minor.

Mr. CONYERS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. AL GREEN of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CONYERS. I would like to proudly associate myself with your remarks.
as $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of separate claims or actions brought with respect to the same injury.

(c) Fair Share Rule.—In any health care lawsuit, each party shall be liable for that party’s several share of any damages only and not for the share of any other person. Each party shall be liable only for the amount of damages allocated to such party in direct proportion to such party’s percentage of responsibility. Whenever a judgment of liability is rendered as to any party, a separate judgment shall be rendered against each such party for the amount allocated to such party. For purposes of this section, the trier of fact shall determine the proportionate responsibility of each party for the claimant’s harm.

SEC. 105. MAXIMIZING PATIENT RECOVERY.

(a) Court Supervision of Share of Damages Actually Paid to Claimants.—In any health care lawsuit, the court shall supervise the arrangements for payment of damages to protect against conflicts of interest that may have the effect of basing the amount of damages awarded that are actually paid to claimants. In particular, in any health care lawsuit in which the attorney for a party claims a financial stake in the outcome by virtue of a contingent fee, the court shall have the power to restrict the payment of a claimant’s damage recovery to such attorney, and to redirect such damages to the claimant based upon the interests of justice and principles of equity. In no event shall the total of all contingent fees for representing all claimants in a health care lawsuit exceed the following:

(1) Forty percent of the first $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).
(2) Thirty-three and one-third percent of the next $500,000 recovered by the claimant(s).
(3) Twenty-five percent of the next $50,000 recovered by the claimant(s).
(4) Fifteen percent of any amount by which the recovery exceeds $250,000.

(b) Applicability.—The limitations in this section shall apply whether the recovery is by judgment, settlement, mediation, arbitration, or any other form of alternative dispute resolution. In a health care lawsuit involving a minor or incompetent person, a court may, at the request of the party or the attorney to whom a fee is less than the maximum permitted under this section, order the court to supervise the arrangements for the payment of all amounts awarded to a person on whose behalf such a judgment is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering the defendant to make periodic payments, in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

SEC. 106. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

(a) In General.—Punitive damages may, if otherwise permitted by applicable State or Federal law, be awarded against any person who brings a health care lawsuit only if it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that such person acted with malicious intent to injure the claimant, or that such person deliberately failed to avoid an unnecessary injury that such person knew the claimant was substantially certain to suffer. In any health care lawsuit where no judgment for compensatory damages was rendered against a person, no punitive damages may be awarded with respect to the claim in such lawsuit.

(b) Rule of Construction.—Subparagraph (A) may not be construed as establishing the obligation of the Food and Drug Administration to demonstrate affirmatively that a manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such medical product, named as a party to a product liability lawsuit involving such product and shall not be liable to a claimant in a class action lawsuit against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such medical product. Nothing in this paragraph prevents a court from considering cases involving health care providers and cases involving products liabilized against the manufacturer, distributor, or product seller of such medical product.

(c) In a health care lawsuit for health care services is alleged to have been performed and the amount of the packaging or labeling of a drug which is required to have tamper-resistant packaging under regulations of the Secretary of Health and Human Services (including labeling regulations related to such packaging), the manufacturer or product seller of the drug shall not be held liable for punitive damages unless such packaging or labeling is found by the trier of fact by clear and convincing evidence to be substantially out of compliance with such regulations.

(4) Exception.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply in any health care lawsuit in which—

(A) a person, before or after premarket approval, clearance, or licensure of such medical product, knowingly makes or withholds from the Food and Drug Administration in which that is required to be submitted under the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) or section 801 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262) that is material and is causally related to the harm which the claimant allegedly suffered,

(B) a person made or approved payment to an official of the Food and Drug Administration for the purpose of either securing or maintaining approval, clearance, or licensure of such medical product;

(C) the defendant caused the medical product which caused the claimant’s harm to be misbranded or adulterated (as such terms are used in chapter V of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 351 et seq.).

(b) Authorization of Payment of Future Damages to Claimants in Health Care Lawsuits.—In general.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction for present value, exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering the defendant to make periodic payments, in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

(a) In general.—In any health care lawsuit, if an award of future damages, without reduction for present value, exceeding $50,000 is made against a party with sufficient insurance or other assets to fund a periodic payment of such a judgment, the court shall, at the request of any party, enter a judgment ordering the defendant to make periodic payments, in accordance with the Uniform Periodic Payment of Judgments Act promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

be considered read, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question.

Mr. WOODALL. Madam Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

SEC. 102. PURPOSE.

It is the purpose of this title to implement reasonable, comprehensive, and effective health care liability reforms designed to—

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 591, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. WOODALL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. WOODALL. Madam Chairman, my amendment is a very straightforward amendment. But before I actually talk about the text of it, I want to speak about the real accomplishment of my friend from Georgia, who is the sponsor of the underlying legislation, H.R. 5.

The Washington Times did an article on this Congress and called it one of the most ineffective Congresses in history because they looked at how many laws we passed. But then they went on, and they looked at how many days of debate we’d had, how many votes we’d had, how many issues that were important the American people have we been able to expose in this Congress that we have not been able to expose in Congress before Congress before Congress before Congress in the past, and, Madam Chairman, that’s what we have today.

This bill, introduced by my good friend from Georgia, gives the American people an opportunity to discuss something that is on every single family’s mind in this country when it comes to health care, and that is controlling the cost of medical malpractice litigation.

Now, in this body, I’m sure we could disagree about the myriad ways there are to control it, but we can agree, I suspect—man and woman, Democrat and Republican—it has to be controlled. And I thank my colleague from Georgia for having the courage and the stick-to-it-ness to bring this bill to the floor after so many years of silence on this issue.

Madam Chair, my amendment simply strikes the findings section of the bill. As you know, findings are nonbinding parts of the legislation that speak to the intent of Congress. And this issue is, again, such a passionate one, not just for the 435 Members of this House, but for the 300 million Americans across this country. I choose to let the legislation speak for itself.

This legislation has been carved out with states’ rights provisions in it, to make sure that the flexibility that they need. It has been carved out with input from physicians, from attorneys, from families, from providers all across the board.

So my colleague, Madam Chair, would not change the substance of the bill but would simply eliminate the findings section to allow the substance of the bill to speak for itself.

And with that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. I rise in opposition to the Woodall amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONYERS. Madam Chair, we’re striking the findings. By striking statements of constitutional authority for the bill, the amendment recognizes that many Members of the House question Congress’ constitutional authority to pass H.R. 5. So for that reason, my colleague from Georgia, who is the sponsor of the underlying legislation, H.R. 5.

This legislation has been carved out with states’ rights provisions in it, to make sure that the persons seeking to apply the law to their person and property—have always been regulated by states, not the federal government. Tort law is at the heart of what is called the ‘police power’ or constitutional authority did the supporters of the bill rely upon to justify interfering with state authority in this way?

Conservative or Republican scholars and leaders have long cynically ridiculed a ‘fair-weather federalism’ that is abandoned whenever it is inconvenient to someone’s policy preferences. If House Republicans went to America to assess the Constitution themselves, and invade the powers ‘reserved to the states’ as affirmed by the Tenth Amendment, they would prove my colleagues right.

Senator Tom Coburn (R–OK): What I worry about as a fiscal conservative and also as a constitutionalist is that the first time we put our nose under the tent to start telling Oklahoma or Ohio or Michigan what their tort law will be, where will it stop? In other words, if we can expand the commerce clause enough to mandate that you have to buy health insurance, then I’m sure nobody is going to object to saying we can extend it to telling you how to practice law. Then we are going to have the federal government telling us what our tort laws are going to be in healthcare, and what about our tort laws in everything else? Where does it stop?

One of the things our founders believed was that our 13 separate states could actually have some unique identity under this Constitution and maybe do things differently, and I think we ought to allow that process to continue as long as we are protecting human and civil rights.

Congressman Lee Terry (R–NE): If you’re a true believer in the Tenth Amendment, then why are we not allowing the states to continue to decide what’s in their best interest for their residents?

Congressman Ted Poe (R–TX): The question is: does the federal government have the authority under the Commerce Clause to override state law on liability caps? I believe that each individual state should allow the people of that state to decide—not the federal government. . . . If the people of a particular state don’t want liability caps, that’s their prerogative under the 10th Amendment. . . . but I have concerns with the current bill as written.

Congressman Louie Gohmert (R–TX): The right of the states for freedom is enshrined in the 10th Amendment. . . . I am reticent to support Congress imposing its will on the states by dictating new state law in their own state courts.

Congressman Ron Paul (R-TX): The federal government shouldn’t be involved. It’s a state matter; tort law is a state matter.

Congressman John Duncan (R-TN): I have faith in the people—I have faith in the jury system. It’s one of the most important elements, and it was specifically enshrined in the Constitution, was felt to be so important, it was specifically put into the Constitution in the Seventh Amendment. And I’ll tell you, it’s a very dangerous thing to take away rights like that from the people.

Senator Mike Lee (R-UT) on tort reform: Congress needs to be very careful when it enters into a uniquely state law area like tort. So tort reform needs to be undertaken very carefully insofar as it done at the federal level.

Judson Phillips, founder of Tea Party Nation: Some conservatives complain opposing unconstitutional tort reform records the trial lawyers. The trial lawyers may benefit from stopping unconstitutional tort reform, but we fight to protect the Constitution. In this case, the trial lawyers are with us supporting the Amendment.

Robert Natelson, senior fellow at the Independence Institute: To be blunt: H.R. 5 flaunts the limitations the Constitution places upon Congress, and therefore violates both the Ninth and Tenth Amendments. . . . During the debate over ratification of the Constitution, leading Founders specifically represented that the subject-matter of H.R. 5 is outside federal enumerated powers and reserved to the states.

John Baker, College University law professor: House Republicans hope to nationalize medical malpractice law, which is traditionally a matter of state tort law, by passing H.R. 5. A bill that would wipe out all state medical malpractice laws and complete the nationalization of healthcare. Passage of H.R. 5 would undercut arguments that Obamacare is unconstitutional.

Carrie Severino, chief counsel and policy director at the Judicial Crisis Network: Among other things, S. 197 sets a statute of limitations on health care malpractice claims that is shorter than the one-year period provided in the Constitution in the Seventh Amendment. . . . It’s one of the most important elements, and it was specifically enshrined in the Constitution, was felt to be so important, it was specifically put into the Constitution in the Seventh Amendment.

The law’s own justification for its constitutional authority should be chilling to anyone committed to limited federal power. The bill would wipe out all state medical malpractice laws and complete the nationalization of healthcare. Passage of H.R. 5 would undercut arguments that Obamacare is unconstitutional.

The Acting CHAIR, Ms. BONAMICI: I yield the gentleman such time as I may consume to say that, as a freshman in this body, I’ve had to learn a few things over the last 15 months here serving in this body, and what I have learned is that I have learned a lot about every bill that I want out of this House the exact way I want it when it leaves here. It has been much to my chagrin, I thought I was going to be able to come here and make every bill perfect before it leaves here. But nothing can I not make it perfect. I believe it vital that, therefore, I have to deal with that United States Senate, and that has proved to be the most complicated part of this process.

There are absolutely, as the gentleman has listed, folks who have concerns about the underlying nature of this bill. But if not for this Gina was going to be able to have this conversation at all. If not for the courage of folks to step out on the ledge of history, and to do what I think is right, we wouldn’t be able to have it at all.

If we are to advance the course of litigation reform in this country, if we are to control the inaccessibility of health care that comes from rising costs, then we have to be willing to come to the floor of this House, and have the kinds of debates that my friend from Georgia has made possible today. That’s true.

I may disagree with some of the ways that we’ve gotten here—and by striking the findings, we make no conclusions today about why we’re here—but we make the certain conclusion today that if we don’t begin this process, we will never bring it to conclusion. If we don’t have this discussion today, Madam Chair, we will never solve these issues.

Mr. CONYERS: Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOODALL: I would be happy to yield to the ranking member.

Mr. CONYERS: I thank the gentleman for his courtesy. But why, as a new Member—and we welcome you to this body—why would we strike all the findings from this bill?

Mr. WOODALL: Reclaiming my time, and I thank the ranking member for his question. And that’s a good way to conclude, Madam Chair.

The reason is because the language of the bill speaks for itself. The language of the bill speaks for itself. When this bill passes the House today, Madam Chair, we will have the U.S. House of Representatives on record about solutions to the malpractice challenges that face this Nation. But there is no need to be on the record today, Madam Chair, of the different ways that we got here. Because I might disagree with my friend from Georgia about how we got here, I would certainly disagree with my friend from Michigan about how we got here.

But what is important is that we begin to take those steps forward. And with the removal of these findings, we are going to be able to let that language stand on its face for this House to have the free and open debate that I’m looking forward to today.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR, Mr. WOODALL: Madam Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume to say that, as a freshman in this body, I’ve had to learn a few things over the last 15 months here serving in this body, and what I have learned is that I have learned a lot about every bill that I want out of this House the exact way I want it when it leaves here. It has been much to my chagrin, I thought I was going to be able to come here and make every bill perfect before it leaves here. But nothing can I not make it perfect. I believe it vital that, therefore, I have to deal with that United States Senate, and that has proved to be the most complicated part of this process.

lawsuits without infringing on the rights of those who truly have been injured by medical mistakes.

What this bill does accomplish ought to frighten anyone who believes in the rights of States to govern themselves and individuals to be compensated for loss. This bill tramples over the rights of States to enact laws governing their own tort systems, and it severely restricts individuals’ rights to be compensated for all the losses caused by health care providers.

In some State of Oregon, for example, our supreme court has held that most statutory caps on noneconomic damages are unconstitutional. And Oregon is not alone. At least 12 other States have some constitutional prohibition against these types of restrictions. This bill not only overrides State laws and constitutions governing punitive and noneconomic damage awards; it also addresses States’ statutes of limitations, pleading standards, attorney-fee provisions, and joint liability. But it does not stop there.

Although this bill is being presented as medical malpractice reform, it reaches far beyond professional malpractice against doctors to include product liability cases against drug and device manufacturers, bad-faith claims against HMOs and insurance companies, and negligence suits against nursing homes. And it would take away all of the State and individual rights that the rapidly growing areas of the health care industry without evidence that doing so will lower the premiums for Americans. This is an unwarranted intrusion in personal liberty and a giveaway to insurance companies. So we should know if it’s going to lower health care premiums.

If this Congress is going to enact a sweeping bill nullifying longstanding State law and trampling on State constitutional rights, it’s not too much to ask that the people who frame the bill actually have the knowledge of how this will actually affect American families. This amendment simply requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to submit a report to Congress with that information before title I of this bill takes effect—a reasonable requirement.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Chair, I rise in opposition to the Bonamici amendment.

The Honorable REP. GAMEL. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. I rise in opposition to the Bonamici amendment because it would indefinitely delay critical medical liability reforms that will save the American taxpayers trillions of dollars, and save our health care system upwards of $200 billion a year in unnecessary spending.

The amendment before us would delay enactment of the tort reforms outlined in H.R. 5 until the Secretary of Health and Human Services submits a report to Congress on the potential effects of medical liability reform on health care premiums. However, the amendment does not require the Secretary to produce a report by a date certain. In fact, the Secretary could simply choose to never issue a report and forever delay the reforms at the heart of this underlying bill.

Regarding H.R. 5, I do not believe it is appropriate to vest the Secretary of Health and Human Services with the authority to permanently block enactment of a law based on the inability to produce a report. I realize that there are some who would like to see H.R. 5 given life, and, to provide the Secretary with the authority under IPAB to unilaterally dictate the medical choices of seniors. Given the track record of this administration on liability reform and their failure to address the issues in ObamaCare, HHS should not be given the power to bob and weave on this issue once again.

I do find the amendment somewhat ironic, and I actually wish the author of the amendment had asked us if we would like to proceed with PPACA. Maybe if we had this type of amendment then, we would not be saddled with a law that has taken away people’s health care choices and raised their health care premiums. It’s true that the law would reduce health care premiums by $2,500 a year. During debate on PPACA we knew that that was not true, and the CBO told Congress that it was not true. What was common sense is coming to fruition now. The law has reached into a new bureaucracy, and it’s fueling ever-increasing health care and premium costs.

In this case, Madam Chairman, this amendment is not needed because we have seen that real medical liability reform can and will reduce costs. It will stop the vicious cycle of frivolous lawsuits and defensive medicine. It will make our health care system more efficient and actually reduce unnecessary spending in the health care system, another thing this amendment failed to do. We do not need this amendment.

With that, Madam Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished majority leader, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR).

Mr. CANTOR. I thank the gentleman. Madam Chair, I rise in opposition to this amendment, which would simply delay the implementation of what we know is a cost-savings measure to so many millions of seniors—and so many millions of other Americans who are just seniors. Madam Chair, today we will vote to repeal one of PPACA’s most harmful provisions, the Independent Payment Advisory Board. IPAB is emblematic of the, as my friend Mr. Roe calls it, the Department of Unwise Spending. Republicans and Democrats agree about the path to quality care and how to control costs in our health care system.

Madam Chair, the President and his party want a centralized board of bureaucrats to control decisions about health care allocated to our Nation’s seniors. He proposes to restrict health care choices in order to lower cost. Our American system of free enterprise, innovation, and ingenuity has made our health care centers the best in the world. Our doctors transform dire health care conditions into promising outcomes and healthy lives. We produce the world’s lifesaving drugs, disease-prevention regimens, biologics, and vaccines. But policy making the best available care for our seniors by imposing artificial and arbitrary constraints on cost.

Neither the President nor congressional Democrats have proposed a solution to strengthen Medicare. Instead, the President gives 15 bureaucrats the power to make fundamental decisions about the care that seniors will have access to. Not to be deterred, the President has proposed expanding this board numerous times over the past year, vastly growing the board’s scope and ability to fix prices and ultimately ration care for our Nation’s seniors.

Madam Chair, the President and I do agree on this: the current Medicare reimbursement system is broken. That is why we don’t need a board of unelected bureaucrats to control costs. As we have proposed today, there is a better path forward.

During the health care debate, the President agreed with our Nation’s doctors that defensive medicine practices are driving up costs. Yet meaningful medical liability reform was not included in the 2,000-page health care law.

Madam Chair, as my colleagues have proposed today, we can model medical liability reforms on State-based laws. California, Texas, and Virginia have all implemented working solutions that drive down the cost of care. We can even propose more creative medical liability reform solutions. We’re always open to new ideas and suggestions. But not delay. Moving forward with commonsense medical liability reforms will mean that doctors can continue serving patients.

It means that injured patients will be compensated more quickly and fairly. It means health care costs will go down.

Madam Chair, you don’t need a new rationing board to save $3 billion. You simply need to enact liability reform policies that are so commonsense even States like California and others have had them on the books for decades.

When the entire medical community stands opposed to an idea, I would hope that our colleagues on the other side of the aisle and the President would listen. ObamaCare’s IPAB is not the solution. But IPAB hamstrings the President’s ability to strengthen Medicare for our seniors. Under their leadership, our House committees are advancing policies that will deliver the quality of health care the American people deserve.

Ms. BONAMICI. Madam Chair, I yield 15 seconds to my colleague from Michigan, Mr. CONYERS.

Mr. CONYERS. Just to get the facts into this debate, I rise in strong support of the Bonamici amendment. I include for the RECORD the Congressional Budget Office letter to Chairman Dreier of March 10, 2012, in which the CBO estimates that enacting the provision will increase the deficits, if you use IPAB, by $3.1 billion.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
U.S. CONGRESS,

Hon. DAVID DREIER,
Chairman, Committee on Rules, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has reviewed H.R. 5, the Help Efficient, Accessible, Low-cost, Timely Healthcare (HEALTH) Act of 2011, as posted on the Web site of the House Committee on Rules on March 12, 2012. CBO estimates that enacting the bill would reduce direct spending and revenues by $48.6 billion over the 2013–2022 period and by $46.5 billion over the 2013–2022 period.

Federal spending for active worker participants for the Federal Employees Health Benefits program is included in the appropriations for federal agencies, and is therefore discretionary. H.R. 5 would also affect discretionary spending for health care services paid by the Departments of Defense and Veterans Affairs. CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 5 would reduce discretionary spending by $1.1 billion, assuming appropriation actions consistent with the legislation.

H.R. 5 would impose limits on medical malpractice litigation in state and federal courts by capping awards and attorney fees, modifying the statute of limitations, and eliminating joint and several liability. It also would repeal the provisions of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) that established the Independent Payment Advisory Board (IPAB) and created a process by which that Board would recommend cuts to Medicare spending, assuming enactment by $1.1 billion.

CBO estimates that the changes in direct spending and revenues resulting from enactment of the limitations on medical malpractice litigation would reduce deficits by $48.6 billion over the 2013–2022 period. CBO also estimates that implementing those provisions would reduce discretionary spending by $1.1 billion, assuming appropriation actions consistent with the legislation. The basis for that estimate is described in the cost estimates of the Department of Health and Human Services. CBO recommends that funds be required under certain circumstances to modify the Medicare program to achieve certain specified savings.

CBO estimates that enacting the provision would repeal the Independent Payment Advisory Board would increase deficits by $3.1 billion, assuming enactment by $1.1 billion.

H.R. 5 contains an intergovernmental mandate as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) because it would preempt state laws that provide less protection for catastrophically injured patients from liability, loss, or damages (other than caps on awards for damages). CBO estimates that the cost of complying with the mandate would be $146 million for the years 2012–2013, which would fall below the threshold established in UMRA for intergovernmental mandates ($73 million in 2012, adjusted annually for inflation).

H.R. 5 contains several mandates on the private sector, including caps on damages and on attorney fees, the statute of limitations, and the fair share rule. The cost of those mandates would fall below the threshold established in UMRA for private-sector mandates ($146 million in 2012, adjusted annually for inflation) in four of the first five years in which the mandates were effective.

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Chair, I respect my colleague from Oregon, and I know she is well meaning and very thoughtful, but I must oppose her amendment. At this time, I urge my colleagues to vote against the amendment, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. BONAMICI. Madam Chairman, this is a reasonable amendment. It simply asks that before we make sweeping Federal policy that overrides State and individual rights, we know what we're getting in return.

I urge my colleagues to support this very reasonable amendment. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. BONAMICI).

The question was taken, and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. BONAMICI. Madam Chair, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to the rule, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Oregon will be postponed.

The Chair understands that amendment No. 3 will not be offered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. DENT

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in House Report 112–416.

Mr. DENT. Madam Chair, I rise for the purpose of offering an amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designating the amendment to be considered.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

SEC. 303. CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY.

The constitutional authority upon which this title rests is the power of the Congress to provide for the general welfare, to regulate commerce, and to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution Federal powers, as enumerated in section 8 of article I of the Constitution of the United States.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 591, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. DENT) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. DENT. Madam Chair, I’m pleased to join, PETE SESSIONS from Texas, on the floor this morning to support a very important amendment that we’ve introduced that would address the crisis in access to emergency care by extending liability coverage to on-call and emergency room physicians.

The underlying bill we’re debating here today is about patient access to care. Now I recognize that ideology may divide the House on the underlying bill. But common sense should unite us on this particular amendment. Our former colleague, Bart Gordon of Tennessee, had introduced this legislation with me last year. In this session, we have bipartisan support for this concept. Mr. MATHESON, Mr. MATHESON, and Mr. RUPPERSBERGER all have cosponsored this legislation that I am offering as an amendment. They cosponsored the original bill.

There’s a growing shortage of physicians and specialists willing to work in emergency departments. We’ve seen it all over the country. A 2006 Institute of Medicine report, “The Future of Emergency Care,” noted that the availability of on-call specialists is an acute problem in emergency departments and trauma centers. Emergency and trauma care is delivered in an inherently challenging environment. Every day, physicians providing emergency care face life-and-death decisions with little information or time about the patients they’re treating.

I’ve spoken with surgeons who’ve told me they dread a Code Blue out of fear of malpractice lawsuits. They want to serve those people who are coming into these emergency centers but are fearful for their families of a lawsuit. That’s what medicine has become, unfortunately, because of this out-of-control litigation system.

As a result, these physicians providing emergency and trauma care face extraordinary exposure to medical liability claims. Forty percent of hospitals say the liability situation has reduced in less than staffed their emergency departments. According to a report from the GAO, soaring medical liability premiums have led specialists to reduce or stop on-call services to emergency departments. This trend threatens the access of patients’ access to emergency services. Neurosurgery, orthopedics, and general surgery are the most impacted. They also are the services that emergency departments most frequently require. Trauma centers across the country have closed. In my home State of Pennsylvania, this has been a very serious problem.

This is an urgent issue that needs to be addressed. That amendment would protect access to emergency room care and reduce health care costs by allowing emergency and on-call physicians who deliver EMTALA-related services medical liability protections. EMTALA, Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act, ensures that any person who seeks emergency medical care at a covered facility is guaranteed an appropriate screening exam and stabilization treatment before transfer or discharge, regardless of their ability to pay. EMTALA is a Federal mandate that protects all our citizens, the insured and the uninsured alike. This amendment will provide a backstop for the doctors who provide these critical services.

Specifically, the amendment would ensure medical services furnished by a hospital, emergency department, or a physician on call under contract with a hospital or emergency department pursuant to the EMTALA mandate are provided the same liability coverage currently extended to community health centers and health professionals who provide Medicaid services to free clinics.

This amendment will not impact the rights of individuals who have been harmed to seek redress. What this amendment will do is ensure medical professionals are provided to provide critical, timely, lifesaving emergency and trauma medical care to all Americans when and where it is needed.

Please join me and Representative SESSIONS in supporting this amendment. If an accident ever happened to any of us, Heaven forbid, we want to make sure that there are people in these trauma centers and those emergency rooms ready to deal with that and won’t have nothing in their mind but saving our lives, not worrying about lawsuits. So I urge adoption of this amendment.

At this time, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Madam Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONYERS. To my colleague, Mr. DENT, hold up. You’re giving complete immunity to hospitals, physicians, and providers for any emergency activity. Do you want to do away with all liability whatsoever because it’s in an emergency room? Of course, you don’t. But this amendment removes the Federal Government to pay for the medical errors committed and denies our government any ability to address or remand those who commit medical errors. You don’t want to do that. You don’t want to go that far.

The Federal Government would be responsible for all occurrences of negligence in an emergency room. Please. Ninety-eight thousand patients die every year due to preventable medical errors.

I reserve the balance of my time.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. Members are advised to address their remarks to the Chair.

Mr. DENT. Madam Chair, just very briefly in answer to my colleague’s comments, I want to say very briefly that this does not waive liability. It simply says that when care is federally mandated under EMTALA that there will be Federal liability protection provided to those who are providing the care. That’s only fair. Federal bring action, but there will be Federal liability protection, as there should be, because this care is being required under Federal law. I think it’s completely reasonable.

At this time, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. But what we’re doing in the amendment is to provide immunity to all hospitals and physicians and require the Federal Government to pay for medical errors committed by them.

Look, we have 98,000 patients dying every year due to preventable medical errors. I’m not slamming the docs and the hospitals. I’m saying that we don’t want to provide complete immunity.

This Dent amendment, Madam Chairman, does just that: it provides complete immunity.

So I’m asking my colleagues to please slow down and realize that irreparable harm due to negligence in the emergency room—and we’ve got pages and pages of examples—would be not subject to adjudication because of this amendment. It’s a very dangerous amendment. It goes way too far. It’s overbroad. And I urge my colleagues to carefully examine the consequences of this provision. I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania has 30 seconds remaining.

Mr. DENT. The only thing I would like to oppose, once again, is this immunity protection only applies to care provided under EMPALA, and that’s federally mandated care. Other activities going on in that emergency room or trauma center would not be given this exemption from liability, only federally mandated care. It can’t be any more clear.

I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. CONYERS. Madam Chairman, this amendment would actually lower the incentive to practice safe medicine, and I say this on careful examination. I’m surprised that my colleague, the leader on the other side, himself a dis- tinguished doctor, would be silent on this provision because it shields hospitals, employed physicians, even phys- cicians who are already covered by pri- vate insurance; and physicians working in an emergency room setting will never be held accountable when they wrongly injure their patient. That is my only reservation and objection to what is otherwise an honorably in- tended revision of this measure.

When hospitals and emergency room departments are not held accountable for medical errors and for negligence, then they have no incentive to offer quality care or hire competent physi- cians. Please, I beg you to carefully ex- amine the dangers implicit in the Dent-Sessions amendment. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania has 15 seconds remaining.

Mr. LANGEVIN is a cosponsor of the bill, Mr. MATHESON, Mr. RUPPERSBERGER. It makes sense: it is imperative that we make sure our citizens have access to emergency care should they ever need it.

insurance options, empower patients to a patient-centered system, and they decrease premiums. Therefore, we all win.

Lowering the cost of health insurance is a goal we should all share. That is why the House passed a very similar measure, H.R. 4626, with over 400 votes in 2010.

There is one key difference between H.R. 4626 and this amendment, a difference of which I am proud. My amendment includes a prohibition on class action lawsuits in Federal court against these health insurance companies.

The FTC should have the power to investigate bad actors in the health insurance industry, but it helps no one if these companies—or for that matter, any American businesses—get mired in lawsuits that will cost millions. Class action lawsuits often result in big bucks in attorney fees for greedy trial attorneys, while leaving only pennies in the hands of plaintiffs who are allegedly wronged in the first place.

For example, let’s take the Cobell settlement. Fifteen years ago, a group of Native Americans sued the Federal Government and Secretary of the Interior, Bruce Babbitt, for mismanagement of their funds and won a $3.4 billion settlement only to find out that their attorneys were petitioning the judge for over $200 million in fees. This is outrageous.

When the poorest of poor are wronged in this country and are awarded a settlement in court, they shouldn’t have to split pennies amongst themselves as their lawyers walk away with a big fat check. That is the spirit behind the tort reform piece of my amendment. I am pleased to see this House ready to pass significant tort reform today and encourage all my colleagues to support my amendment as well as the underlying bill.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Madam Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CONYERS. It is my position that within the good that this does is a poison pill. The good is that consumers would also benefit from a repeal of McCarran-Ferguson. We salute you. But the problem is that this measure would ban class actions on a claim for violation of antitrust law, which is the cleverest way of ending antitrust law. Unless you have a class action—well, my doctor-Congressman is not a lawyer, but without class actions, you can’t bring a claim because nobody’s going to file a suit on a $30 issue, 1 million people suing for $30 each. So it’s a poison pill.

I’d like to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio), who had an amendment that had huge bipartisan support.

Mr. DeFAZIO. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

We had, at the end of last Congress, a tremendous bipartisan vote—406–19—on repealing straight up the antitrust immunity of the insurance industry.

The American people, no matter where they are on the Affordable Care Act, agree on one thing: Insurance companies should not be able to get together and collude to either exclude people from coverage or drive up prices. Yet they do. They have an exemption under a law from the 1940s.

Now, what the gentleman is offering soundly is that we get you out there because 90 percent of the antitrust cases are private, and almost every single one of those cases is a class action. So if you preclude class actions, you can pretend you’re being tough with the insurance industry while you can wink and nod and say, hey, don’t worry about it because there really won’t be any litigation under this; and you’re still going to be able to skate, and you’re still going to be able to collect and you’re still going to be able to drive up prices.

Think of the context in what we’re doing. We’re talking about IPAB today, but they’ve already voted to repeal the entire Affordable Care Act. That means no more restrictions on rescissions, no more restrictions on the dirty little practice where you’ve been paying your premium for years and you get sick and the insurance company says, sorry, we’re not going to renew your policy. That’s been outlawed.

The FTC is worried about bad actors in the health insurance industry. We ignore DEFAZIO’s over-regulation. But now comes the poison pill, which, by the way, won’t stop a class action. If you can’t bring class actions in this matter, then there’s no way people with small, valid claims can go into court and sue for 30 bucks.

Now, I think most people understand this without going to law school. If you eliminate class actions, you have effectively destroyed the McCarran-Ferguson repeal that we are bragging about. So it’s a kind of undercover scheme. We pretend we’re doing something good. We ignore DEFAZIO’s overwhelmingly bipartisan supported provision, and we let the insurance company through, and they live to continue the vile practices that have been revealed and discussed in this debate.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSAR. Once again, I want to make sure that everybody understands that you’re giving Federal oversight of collusion and monopoly. In class action lawsuits, what you’re doing is not giving it all away, but you’re limiting the vast improprieties that occur right now with class action.

This is carefully manipulated so that we’re moving the balance down the field and it balances it out with competition and having some oversight over our jurisdiction of judgements that are impugned with class action. Class action has gotten way out of line, and most American people do understand that classification.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Madam Chair, 2 years ago, during the debate over the Obama administration’s unconstitutional health care bill, this House considered a measure similar to this amendment.

During that debate, I argued that the repeal of the McCarran-Ferguson antitrust exemption for health insurers had “all the substance of a soup made by boiling the shadow of a chicken.” However, I reluctantly supported that bill because I believed that it would have no meaningful effect. Compared to the administration’s health care bill, a bill that does nothing looked like a great idea.

As I noted during the debate 2 years ago, the repeal of the McCarran-Ferguson exemption for health insurers will not bring down premiums.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) says that “whether premiums would increase or decrease as a result of this legislation is difficult to determine, but in either case the magnitude of the effect is likely to be quite small.”

The effects of the repeal of antitrust exemption will be small. The CBO says, “State laws already bar the activities that would be prohibited under Federal law if this bill was enacted.” Every State’s insurance regulations ban anticompetitive activities like bid rigging, price fixing and market allocation. Every State has insurance regulators who already actively enforce these prohibitions.

This amendment, like the bill we considered 2 years ago, will have no meaningful impact and may have minor negative unintended consequences.

But I will once again reluctantly support this measure because this amendment takes important steps to limit its unintended consequences and to reaffirm the McCarran-Ferguson exemption for non-health lines of insurance.

This amendment contains language that clearly limits its application to the business of health insurance. While the repeal of the McCarran-Ferguson exemption for health insurance does essentially nothing, repealing it for other types of insurance could be disastrous.

One of the main benefits of the McCarran-Ferguson exemption is that it allows insurance companies, subject to state regulation, to share historical and actuarial data.

The antitrust laws generally frown on competitors that share data. But in the insurance market, sharing data improves competition.
This is because a shared pool of data about the risks and loss rates of various kinds of insurance allows small and medium-sized insurers to enter the market and compete.

If insurance companies did not pool data, only the largest insurers would have access to too much data to account for risk and price their policies.

For a number of reasons, which include the size of most health plans, the availability of health care data from various public and private sources, and the relative unpredictability of health care costs, health insurers rely much less on sharing data than other insurers.

This amendment contains a clear definition that limits its application to the business of health insurance. It clarifies that the McCarran-Ferguson exemption continues to apply to life insurance, annuities, property and casualty insurance, and other non-health types of insurance. It is an improvement over other proposals that are not so limited, defined and clear about their intent.

This amendment also prevents private class action antitrust lawsuits against health insurers. This limits the possible unintended negative effects.

Because this amendment is much improved in ways that will limit its unintended consequences, and because it reaffirms the importance of the McCarran-Ferguson exemption to non-health lines of insurance, I support the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. GOSAR).

The amendment was agreed to.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 591, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. STEARNS. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I have a very simple amendment today. It’s the Good Samaritan Health Professions Amendment. This amendment would allow trained medical professionals to volunteer across State lines to assist in Presidentially de-declared Federal disaster sites.

My colleagues, in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, we saw firsthand how much of a demand there is for trained professionals at disaster sites and how there is a need to provide liability protection for these very experienced individuals.

According to the Council of State Governments, the most pressing need immediately after Katrina was the availability of medical volunteers.
However, out-of-state practitioners providing medical treatment face the real possibility of noncoverage under their medical malpractice policies.
Those that volunteer and treat the sick are at risk of violating existing statutes and potentially facing criminal or administrative penalties or civil liabilities.

A Baton Rouge newspaper, The Advocate, ran a story in September 2005 that talked about Dr. Mark Perlmutter, who was in the midst of giving a woman chest compressions when FEMA asked him to stop because of issues of liability protection.

CNN ran a story about a doctor who was evacuated to the New Orleans’ airport. The doctor was amazed to see hundreds of sick people and wanted to help them. He wanted to try his professional talents and heal the sick, but was prevented from doing so because of legal liability. "They told us, you know, you could help us by mopping the floor," and that’s what he was forced to do. And so he mopped the floor while people died all around him.

What is the PATH Act, you ask? Well, it’s the Good Samaritan Health Professionals Act, H.R. 3586. It’s a very simple bill, and it’s the foundation for this amendment to the PATH Act.

This amendment would allow medical professionals to volunteer at disaster sites. It would provide limited civil liability protection to medical volunteers who act on a good faith effort.

This is limited protection. It still allows victims to sue for serious acts such as criminal misconduct, reckless misconduct, or gross negligence. It does not cover criminal acts by health volunteers.

But for everyone working in good faith and doing the right thing, it will provide this basic protection to any trained medical volunteer. It will protect:

- Doctors, nurses or physician assistants that treat the injured;
- The psychiatrist, psychologist or therapist that provide emotional assistance to those grieving, and;
- The pharmacists or respiratory therapists that help treat chronic conditions like diabetes or COPD.

You shouldn’t have someone that spent years in college, years in medical school, through residency, spent years as a practicing physician, push a mop when there’s clear need for their services. This is wrong, and my amendment will correct that.

My colleague from Utah Mr. MATHESON and myself have a very simple amendment today. It is the Good Samaritan Health Professional Amendment. This amendment would allow trained medical professionals to volunteer across State lines to assist at presidentially declared disaster sites.

In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, we saw firsthand how much of a demand there is for trained professionals at disaster sites and how there is a need to provide liability protection.

According to the Council of State Governments, the most pressing need immediately after Katrina was the availability of medical volunteers.

However, out-of-state practitioners providing medical treatment face the real possibility of non-coverage under their medical malpractice policies. Those that volunteer and treat the sick are at risk of violating existing statues and potentially facing criminal or administrative penalties or civil liability.

A Baton Rouge newspaper, The Advocate, ran a story in September 2005 that talked about Dr. Mark Perlmutter, who was in the midst of giving a woman chest compressions when FEMA asked him to stop because of issues with transportation.

CNN ran a story about a doctor who was evacuated to the New Orleans airport. The doctor was amazed to see hundreds of sick people and wanted to help. He wanted to try his profession and heal the sick, but was prevented from doing so because of legal liability. "They told us, you know, you could help us by mopping the floor." And so he mopped the floors while people died around him.

What was the cost of inaction because of our litigious society? It’s incalculable, like this, that’s why I introduced the Good Samaritan Health Professional Act, H.R. 3586. It’s a very simple bill, and it’s the foundation for this amendment to the PATH Act.

This amendment would allow medical professionals to volunteer at disaster sites. It would provide limited civil liability protection to medical volunteers who act on a good faith effort.

It is the Good Samaritan Health Professional Amendment. This amendment would allow medical professionals to volunteer across State lines to assist at presidentially declared disaster sites. It would provide limited civil liability protection.

The American College of Surgeons The American Medical Association The American Hospital Association The College of Emergency Physicians The Neurologists The Physician Insurers Association The Roundtable of Critical Care These are just a sample; there are more medical groups that support this amendment.

I also would like to submit these letters of support into the RECORD.

This is a good amendment. It will save lives.

HON. JOHN BORNIER, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: On behalf of the more than 78,000 members of the American College of Surgeons (ACS), I would like to express our support for amending H.R. 5, the Protecting Access to Healthcare (PATH) Act of 2011 to include H.R. 3586, the Good Samaritan Health Professionals Act of 2011 (Stearns/Matheson Amendment). The ACS supports this amendment which would ensure disaster victims’ access to medically necessary care in a declared emergency.

Rapid medical response in a disaster can greatly decrease loss of life and improve outcomes for patients who desperately need basic care. Medical professionals, including physicians, who volunteer to help victims of federally-declared disasters. The medical profession has a long history of stepping forward to assist disaster victims. Rapid medical response in a disaster can greatly decrease loss of life and improve outcomes for patients who desperately need care.

Thousands of health professionals volunteered in the aftermath of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita to help the hurricane victims. We urge a “Yes” vote on the Stearns/Matheson amendment.

Sincerely,

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
I remind my colleagues of the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution, which is violated in H.R. 5, which preserves our system of federalism that allows States to legislate their own State tort laws and the qualifications of health care professionals. What could be more simple than that?

This is one of the least debated provisions of our great Constitution. And so amendments that limit liability of health care professionals by our Congress and provide a virtual blanket immunity to any individual for any harm while acting in a volunteer capacity during a disaster violates the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STEARNS. Madam Chairman, how much time do I have left on my side?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida has 2 minutes and 15 seconds remaining, and the gentleman from Michigan has 3 minutes remaining.

Mr. STEARNS. The one thing I would say to the gentleman, this is not unlimited. As I pointed out, there are provisions for stipulations. I yield 1 minute to the cosponsor on the Democrat side, Mr. MATHESON from Utah.

Mr. MATHESON. Madam Chair. I stand in strong support of this amendment, as I do to the underlying bill.

The amendment before us will provide much-needed liability protections to medical professionals to ensure that they are able to do what they are trained to do, which is save lives.

As Mr. STEARNS indicated, in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, it became clear that a uniformity of Good Samaritan laws is needed in this country. In several instances, qualified and certified physicians and other medical professionals from across the country were turned away from providing much-needed and critical care to victims of the disaster even when it was plainly apparent that the medical resources in the communities that were affected by the disaster were far beyond the capacity to provide adequate emergency care.

Yet doctors from Utah who volunteered to provide emergency care in situations such as this shouldn’t fear unnecessary lawsuits and, above all else, should not be turned away due to uncertainty about liability protections.

I want to thank my friend and colleague, Mr. STEARNS, for his work and his partnership on this amendment. This commonsense measure to provide liability protection to health care workers who volunteer to help in disaster response for their fellow human beings is needed. Madam Chair, rescue efforts often can be chaotic; and without the help of volunteers, government Agencies cannot always help everyone effectively.

Many State tort laws, including those of Louisiana, the State hardest hit by Hurricane Katrina, are unclear in regards to who is covered under State laws to provide unnecessary immunities. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STEARNS. Madam Chairman, I’d just say that the 50 State laws are not allowing a physician to help. He has to mop the floors.

I yield 45 seconds to Mr. FRANKS from Arizona. He’s chairman of the Constitution Subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

Mr. FRANKS of Arizona. Madam Chair, I just rise in strong support of this very commonsense amendment by my friend, Mr. STEARNS from Florida. This amendment is to provide liability protection to health care workers who volunteer to help in disaster response for their fellow human beings.

Madam Chair, rescue efforts often can be chaotic; and without the help of volunteers, government Agencies cannot always help everyone effectively. Many State tort laws, including those of Louisiana, the State hardest hit by Hurricane Katrina, are unclear in regards to who is covered under State law to provide Good Samaritan protections.

Madam Chair, this is a country of Good Samaritans. We should encourage our fellow human beings to help their fellow human beings and not offer impediments to them. I think this amendment does that, and I support it with the strongest conviction.

Mr. CONYERS. Madam Chair, that’s what we’re doing under the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 rather than go into the business of a constitutional violation by changing all of the State laws with this wholesale limitation of liability? Why not do it in a more appropriate way, which we would be bound to consider with you?

I yield to the gentleman if he cares to make a comment on that.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. CONYERS, the point is this is a Federal disaster, and you have a Federal Act in which the Federal Government is involved, you want to have a bill that’s a Federal bill.

Mr. CONYERS. The Volunteer Protection Act. I say to my colleague from Florida, is a Federal bill enacted in 1997, and that’s the one that I would urge you to want to join with me and others to modify if there is a problem. What you’re doing by Stearns-Matheson is that you are now changing the law in all 50 States without going through the Volunteer Protection Act over which we have jurisdiction. That’s the reason that I urge my colleagues that there is no need to upend existing State laws to provide unnecessary immunities.

Mr. STEARNS. Madam Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida will be postponed.

Mr. LOEBSACK. Mr. Speaker, I have a motion to recommit to the desk.

The motion to recommit the bill H.R. 5 to the Committees on Ways and Means and Energy and Commerce with instructions to report the same to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

SEC. 203. PROHIBITING ELIMINATION OF MEDI-

Care in the private health insurance market would also force seniors to pay more and more of their health care costs out of pocket. In these tough economic times, we need to find ways to be more efficient while maintaining quality of care. There are ways to do that, such as moving Medicare from a fee-based to a value-based payment system, something that I have supported all along since I’ve been in this Congress. However, the Republican plan for Medicare ignores these options and, instead, undermines traditional Medicare while doing nothing to reduce health care costs. This would shift costs to beneficiaries.

I recently held senior listening sessions around my district in Iowa. When I talk to Iowa seniors, I hear far too often that many of them are struggling just to make ends meet. That is unacceptable. No hardworking American should ever have to retire into poverty, and they certainly shouldn’t see their hard-earned savings wiped out because of medical bills.

During my listening sessions, I heard time and again from seniors about how much they rely on Medicare in order to stay healthy and stay afloat financially. Seniors’ medical and prescription drug costs already eat up a growing portion of their income, and many of them are stretched thin even without rising gas prices, utility costs, and an economic downturn that has hit so many. My heart goes out to what is happening here in Washington—we should all be reminded of that—and they’re upset about proposals to cut and weaken Medicare.

Our seniors did not get us into the fiscal mess that we’re in today in the first place, and I think it’s unfair to punish them for Washington’s irresponsible behavior. They cannot and they should not bear more of this burden. Unfortunately, the Republican plan for Medicare would force seniors to do just that, so I’m fighting to save that as our guarantee—a guarantee, by the way, that is neither Republican nor Democratic, but it’s an American guarantee. I think we all need to keep that in mind and remember that.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues in the House to join me in voting for this final amendment to preserve and to strengthen the most successful health insurance program our Nation has ever created, namely, Medicare.

Our grandparents have stood by us, folks; I think it’s time that we stand by them.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROE of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, 2½ years ago in this body, we debated the Affordable Care Act, and I remember being part of that debate here on the House floor. Part of that debate was to increase access for American citizens and to maintain the physician-patient relationship.

I have a letter here that was signed by 75 of us, both Democrats and Republicans, opposing, in part, because in the House version of the Affordable Care Act, the Independent Payment Advisory Board was not there.

This bill is very simple. H.R. 5 is to repeal the Independent Payment Advisory Board and to vote for malpractice reform, a very simple bill, one that should be easy to support. Let’s just discuss and see what occurred.

Based on the Independent Payment Advisory Board—most seniors don’t know about this—after the $500 billion has been taken out to pay for a new benefit. The Independent Payment Advisory Board are 15 unelected bureaucrats, appointed by the President and approved by the Senate to oversee Medicare spending.

Why does this bring angst to a physician? I practiced medicine for 31 years in Tennessee. My concern is I’ve already seen two examples of this, and this will be the third.

The first is a sustainable growth rate, a formula based on how to pay doctors in Medicare. This was established in 1997. Each year—almost every year since then—the Congress has had the ability to change this because, why? We were afraid if reimbursements to physicians were cut, access to our patients would be denied.

Let’s look at what’s going on right now.

Two weeks ago in this body, we extended the SGR for 10 months, preventing a 27 percent cut to physicians. Well, as a doctor, what would this mean for me in providing care for my patients? Would it be that this would mean you couldn’t afford to see the patients. With IPAB, a formula based on spending, not quality or access, what would happen, I believe, is that this would occur, this 27 percent—at the end of this year, a 31 percent cut, which would be catastrophic for our Medicare patients.

So it’s a very simple bill. We don’t want Washington-based bureaucrats getting in between the physician-patient relationship. Medical decisions should be made between not an insurance company, and certainly not 15 unelected bureaucrats in Washington. It should be made between a patient, the doctor, and that family.

The second part of this bill, very simply, is medical-legal malpractice reform.

When I began my medical practice in Tennessee, my malpractice premiums were $4,000 a year. When I left 4 years ago to come to Congress, $74,000 a year. During that time, from 1975 until I left to come here, there’s basically one insurance company in Tennessee, and certainly not 15 unelected bureaucrats in Washington. It should be made between a patient, the doctor, and that family.

The tort system we have for medical liability now is a very bad system. It needs to be reformed. No one has ever argued about paying actual damages. No one has ever argued about paying medical bills. It’s the unintended consequences of this bill that have run the cost up at no value to patients.

I strongly encourage my colleagues to support this bipartisan bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, DC, December 17, 2009.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker, House of Representatives, Capitol Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM SPEAKER: In July, 75 members of the U.S. House of Representatives wrote to express strong opposition to proposals, such as the Independent Medicare Advisory Council (IMAC) Act of 2009” and the “Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (IMAC) Act of 2009” (H.R. 2718, S. 1110, S. 1380), that would divest Congress of its authority for Medicare payment policy and place this responsibility in an executive board. This letter clearly stated opposition to the inclusion of any of these or any other similar proposals in health reform or any other legislation.

With regard to the underelected board members, believe it is imperative to restate our strong opposition to any proposal or legislation that would place authority for Medicare payment policy in an unelected, executive branch commission or board.

Consistent with the July letter, on November 7, 2009, the House passed the “Affordable Health Care for America Act” (H.R. 3962) did not include provisions to create an unelected Medicare board. Yet, at present, the Senate is considering the “Affordable Health Care Act of 2009,” which includes provisions to create an “Independent Medicare Advisory Board” (IMAB) that would effectively surrender Congress’s authority over Medicare payment policy.

To create an unelected, unaccountable Medicare commission as envisioned in the Senate’s IMAB proposal, end Congress’s ability to shape Medicare to provide the best policies for beneficiaries in our communities around the country. Through the health care oversight and Medicare program’s beginning, Members have been able to represent the needs of their communities by improving benefits for seniors and the disabled, affecting policies that fill the health care workforce pipeline, and ensuring that hospitals are equipped to care for diverse populations across our individual districts. Such a responsibility is one that is not taken, nor should be given away, lightly.

These proposals would severely limit Congressional oversight of the Medicare program and the capacity within the executive branch, without Congressional oversight or judicial review, would eliminate the transparency of Congressional hearings and debate, without the open and transparent legislative process, Medicare beneficiaries and the range of providers who care for them would be greatly limited in their ability to help develop and implement new policies that improve the health care of our nation’s seniors. An executive branch Medicare board would completely eliminate Congress’s ability to work with the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services to create and implement demonstration and pilot projects designed to evaluate new and advanced policies such as home care for the elderly, the patient-centered medical home, new less invasive surgical procedures, collaborative efforts between hospitals and physicians, and programs designed to eliminate fraud and abuse.

The creation of a Medicare board would also effectively and community input into the Medicare program, removing the ability to develop and implement policies expressly applicable to different patient populations, including national policies that would flow from such a board would ignore the significant differences and health care needs of states and communities. Geographic and demographic differences that exist in our nation’s health care system and patient populations would be dangerously disregarded. Furthermore, all providers in all states would be required to comply even if these policies were detrimental to the patients they serve. Such a commission could not threaten the ability of Medicare beneficiaries, but of all Americans, to access the care they need.

Finally, as the people’s elected representatives, we much oppose any proposal to create a board that would surrender our legislative authority and responsibility for the Medicare program to unelected, unaccountable officials within the very same branch of government that is charged with implementing the Medicare policies that affect so many Americans. Therefore, we must strongly oppose the creation of IMAB, IMAC, a reconstituted MedPac or any Medicare board or commission that would undermine our ability to represent the needs of the seniors and disabled in our own communities. Again, we urge you to reject the inclusion of these or any like proposal in health reform or any other legislation.

I say to my friend that he and I do have a disagreement. I think it would enjoy bipartisan support on this floor if you brought the Bishop bill, the Senate bipartisan bill, to the floor. But the only way we’re really going to be able to find that out—it’s not by me saying, I think it wouldn’t. There’s a very easy way to see whether it would, and that’s to bring it to the floor next week.

I don’t think there’s anybody, hopefully, that wants to disrupt and have the costs of pay or hundreds of thousands of people thrown out of work or not have opportunities for work. We know the construction trades in particular have been very badly hit by the lack of construction that’s going on.

You can have your opinion and I can have my opinion, but there is a way to determine whether or not, in fact, we can get bipartisan agreement; and that is, as I said, and as the Speaker has indicated, let the House work its will. The Senate has the will—having been majority leader—is for the majority leader to bring the legislation to the floor for a vote. Then you may be right, I may be right, but we will know and it won’t have to be speculation.

If I’m right and we do pass that bill, then next week, before March 31, before the expiration of the current highway authorization, we can send a bill to the President of the United States, and he will sign the Senate bill. We don’t know that he will sign a bill that’s still languishing in your committee because we haven’t seen the final parameters of that bill because it is obviously pretty controversial on your side of the aisle. Again, if you want certainty, we have an opportunity for certainty. We have an opportunity with a bipartisan bill that the Senate has passed. I don’t know why we’re rejecting that bipartisanship. The gentleman says, well, this is a unanimous vote. He’s right. It seems to me that’s a greater argument for trying to embrace a bipartisan agreement and move forward with giving certainty to the construction industry, to States, to municipalities, and to counties on what is going to be available to them to plan and to pursue infrastructure projects critical to commerce and to their communities.

I regret that the gentleman has indicated that’s not an option that he will consider. I mean, government, it seems to be the continuation of uncertainty, not the allaying of uncertainty. I don’t know whether the gentleman wants to make another comment on that or not.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I would just say to the gentleman, I guess we are going to agree to disagree. We’re dealing with the reality that we don’t have the money, and we’re trying to fashion a path forward that both sides can agree upon.

Obviously, we cannot agree upon that next week with all the differences that still exist, which is why we’re creating the construct of a 90-day extension, which then gives us the possibility to get into conference with the Senate to try and produce a longer-term transportation funding bill.

Mr. HOYER. Well, I won’t pursue it any further, Mr. Leader, but you’ve been unable to get agreement within your party on the Senate bill. It’s been on the floor for over a month. I hope you can get there. I would hope you would get there in a bipartisan fashion so that Mr. RAHALL and Mr. MICA could agree on a bill, which has been my experience in the 31 years I’ve been here. It’s not by experience that something hasn’t happened. But almost invariably—and I think for the years you’ve been here, you’ve experienced that as well.

Let me ask you now with respect to the budget. Do you expect the budget to come to the floor? You indicated that. If so, would that be Wednesday?

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is correct. We will be beginning debate on the budget Wednesday and likely concluding that debate and vote on Thursday.

Mr. HOYER. Normally, as you know, we’ve had alternatives made in order. We, of course, want to make in order an amendment which will guarantee that Medicare will be available to our seniors and that we will not decimate Medicaid, which we think is appropriate for our seniors. We also want to make sure that we have revenues that can sustain health care for seniors, education for kids, help for our communities.

Will the gentleman be able to tell me whether or not, in fact, alternatives will be made in order by the Rules Committee that would be offered either by the minority ranking member of the committee and/or others as historically have been the case?

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman, yes, we expect that to be the case. Obviously, I disagree with his characterization of our budget. We are, in fact, saving the Medicare program in a bipartisan fashion.

Mr. HOYER. Was there a bipartisan vote in the committee on that? I thought it was a totally partisan vote in the committee. Was I incorrect?

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman that the gentleman knows very well what I refer to, that the disproportionate cause of our deficit has to do with health care entitlements. And actually, as the gentleman knows, last year and this year we’ve had alternatives made in order.

Mr. HOYER and Mr. MICA could agree on Thursday.
Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for his comments.

The last thing I would ask the gentleman: Am I correct that the agreement that was reached was between our parties, which led to the passage of the Budget Control Act in a bipartisan fashion, does not reflect the substance of that agreement as it relates to the discretionary spending number for fiscal year 2013? Senator McConnell is quoted, as you know, as saying that that was an agreement that was reached and that he expected it to be pursued.

I want to make it clear that he was not referring to the action of the Budget Committee, but he was referring to the agreement on the discretionary number.

Am I correct that the agreement that was reached, in order to get a bipartisan vote on the Budget Control Act, which we made sure that this country did not default on its debts for the first time in history, in the August at the top line was that, a cap. We all know we’ve got to do something about spending in this country, and the top line within the budget resolution will reflect that top line provided in the budget resolution for the second year of the budget that we have passed last year.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I respond to the gentleman by saying it is our view that the agreement reached in August at the top line was that, a cap. We all know we’ve got to do something about spending in this country, and the top line within the budget resolution will reflect that top line provided in the budget resolution for the second year of the budget that we have passed last year.

Again, we view it very much that we need to continue to try—at least try—to save taxpayer dollars when we are generating over $1 trillion of deficits every year, and I think the taxpayers expect no less.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for his comments, but I will tell the gentleman that if we’re going to have negotiations, and we have one number and you have another number, and we agree on a number, and then we pass a bill which reflects that number, put it in law—it doesn’t say it’s a cap; it says that will be the number. As we pass the budget, we said that will be the number. Now this is the law. And as was observed by others on the other side of the Capitol, but I will observe it here as well, if we’re going to have those kinds of negotiations, it’s sort of like the guy who comes up to you and says, look, I’ve got something to sell you, do you want to buy it? And you say, yes, let’s negotiate on price. And you come to a price of $100. And then you come to settle, and the guy says, well, that was my top number. I’m going to give you $95. We have a meeting of the minds as a contract requires.

Very frankly, nobody on our side, and frankly I don’t think anybody on your side ever negotiated that deal—I didn’t mean that didn’t vote for it—and as a matter of fact, I know for a fact the Speaker, and I believe yourself, have been quoted that that was the number and we ought to stick with it. Clearly, Mr. Roosmins believes that’s the number that was agreed to.

Now, we’re not going to be able to agree on things if all of a sudden it becomes, well, that was a notional thing that we did, not an agreement. A lot of our people voted on that to make sure, A, we didn’t go into default as a country, and, B, that was not the number we wanted. It clearly was not the number your side wanted. But it was a number we agreed upon. And it seems to me that if we’re going to try to keep faith with one another and with the law that we passed that we should stick with what we agreed to.

I understand that we want to bring the budget deficit down. As a matter of fact, on this side of the aisle, I’ve made those comments, and I’ve been criticized by some on my side, as you well know. Yes, we do need to get a handle on the budget. We’re going to have a real debate on the deficit and debt, and I’ve been working very hard on that. We’re going to have a debate, a fulsome debate, hopefully, on whether or not your budget does that. We’ve had disagreements all the years I’ve been here on that, and performance has not reflected, from my standpoint, that the representatives have always worked out, perhaps on either side.

But I regret, I regret deeply, Mr. Majority Leader, that we’ve reached an agreement, and based upon that agreement, this House took an action, it took a bipartisan action, and it passed a piece of legislation that was critically important to make sure that America did not go into default. And now we see 7 months later, crossed financials are suffering, and his whole Miami community is suffering.

JUSTICE FOR TRAYVON MARTIN

(Ms. WILSON of Florida asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. WILSON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I promised that every day I would come to the floor of this House and announce to America just how long and hard I’ve tried to get justice for Trayvon Martin has been delayed. As of today, Trayvon Martin was murdered 26 days ago, and still there has been no arrest. There has been no arrest, and everyone is suffering. His parents are suffering, his classmates are suffering, and the whole Miami community is suffering.

A psychologist once described to me what it feels like to lose a child. She says it is as if someone cuts your chest open, rips out your heart, throws it on the ground, stomps on it, picks it up, places it back in your chest, and then sews you back up. She said the parents carry that pain inside of their heart forever.

So, today, this is for Sybrina and Tracy, Trayvon’s parents. As they fight for justice, I stand with them. We demand justice for Trayvon. We demand justice for all murdered children. Stay strong, Sybrina and Tracy, stay strong. I’ll be with you at the rally this evening just as soon as votes here are done. Keep one hand in God’s hand, and stay strong, my friends, stay strong.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to address their remarks to the Chair.

REMEMBERING NORTH CAROLINA STATE SENATOR JIM FORRESTER

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in remembrance of a friend, former colleague and public servant, North Carolina Senator Dr. Jim Forrester. Jim was a lifelong public servant. He was a brigadier general with the U.S. Air Force and the North Carolina Air National Guard. He served as a flight surgeon during the Vietnam War. He was a small town doctor and community leader. He and his wife of 51 years, Mary Frances Forrester, shared the values that made our country great, were committed to the community, and worked tirelessly for the betterment of their city and State. Together they sold Bibles to pay for his education at Wake Forest Medical School. He made time from his successful practice and family to serve on the Gaston County Board of Commissioners in 1982 before being elected to the State senate, where he served 11 terms. Today we pay tribute to his life and service. My heart goes out to Mary Frances, his three daughters and son, and his eight grandchildren. May God’s peace be with them and the many people who mourn his death and celebrate his life of service.

IN RECOGNITION OF DR. BYUNG WOOK YOON AND NATIONAL KOREAN AMERICAN DAY

(Ms. WATERS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Korean American Day. I would like to recognize the 109th anniversary of the first Korean immigrants to arrive in the United States and the achievements of the Korean American community for bringing both this day and the importance of the contributions of Korean Americans to light, Dr. Byung Wook Yoon.

In 2003, Dr. Yoon, then-president of the Southern California Centennial Committee of Korean Immigration to the United States, began the campaign to establish a National Korean American Day. In 2004, when Dr. Yoon became president of the Korean American Foundation, he formed the National Committee of Korean American Day. Under his leadership in 2005, the committee claimed victory when the United States Senate and U.S. House of Representatives passed resolutions supporting the goals and ideals of Korean American Day and established an annual celebration recognizing the many contributions of Americans of Korean descent to the life and cultural fabric of the United States.

Aside from spearheading the campaign to establish Korean American Day, Dr. Yoon has accomplished a great deal in his lifetime. He is the recipient of the Presidential Award from the Republic of Korea, the Grand Award for World Korean Day from the World Korean Union, the Grand Award for Korean American Day from the Korean American Foundation, and the Grand Award for Korea Immigration to the United States.

REPEAT IPAB

(Mr. CRAWFORD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CRAWFORD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to voice my support for the Medicare Decisions Accountability Act that passed this body today.

The measure will repeal the controversial Independent Payment Advisory Board, or IPAB, that would limit seniors' access to Medicare.

In my rural Arkansas district, senior citizens rely on Medicare to see their doctor and get their prescriptions filled. Without the coverage, they would be in a world of hurt. IPAB has the real threat of limiting seniors’ access to treatment. I won't stand idly by while the IPAB board of 15 unelected and unaccountable bureaucrats tries to deny Medicare services to my constituents.

Members of IPAB are not subject to any real checks and balances. A huge amount of power is being given to this Medicare-cutting board that will be tasked with deciding who can and can't receive health care benefits. I am committed to strengthening Medicare for today’s seniors and the next generation of Americans for this program. The Independent Payment Advisory Board will not protect seniors; it will only deny care.

Mr. Speaker, the Medicare Decisions Accountability Act gives seniors in my Arkansas district the security of knowing that their Medicare will not be denied by faceless bureaucrats. I hope the Senate will now take action and pass this important bill.

HONORING THE LIFE OF HIS HOLINESS POPE SHENOUDA III

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, this week, the world laid to rest in the Egyptian desert a holy and wise spiritual giant, Pope Shenouda III, the 117th Pope of Alexandria and the patriarch of all Africa of the Coptic Orthodox Church. He passed on March 17.

His Holiness Pope Shenouda III presided more than 40 years over a worldwide expansion of the Coptic Orthodox Church. During his papacy, he appointed the first Coptic bishop to preside over North American dioceses. When His Holiness became Pope in 1971, there were only four churches in North America. Today, there are over 100.

He made deep commitments to ecumenism, interfaith dialogue, not just with Catholic groups—meeting the Roman Catholic Pope of Rome for the first time in over 1,500 years in the year of 1973—but he joined with Protestant churches as well as Islamic leaders and Muslim clerics. He was a man for the world.

I had the honor of meeting the Pope at our local Coptic Christian church when it was being constructed. He was a man of immense faith, unforgettable. I never felt his steady, strong, peaceful countenance when I asked him what it would take to achieve unity among the faith confessions, and he said: It would take love.

His contributions to a world understanding his steady, strong, peaceful countenance when I asked him what it would take to achieve unity among the faith confessions, and he said: It would take love.

The failure to distance the church from Mr. Mubarak led to general disillusionment with the pope after the revolution, especially among younger and more secular Copts.

Pope Shenouda was born on Aug. 3, 1923, as Nazeer Gayed in the city of Asyut, Egypt, according to a biography of the patriarch posted on the church’s Web site. He attended Cairo University and became a monk in 1954. In 1981, Pope Shenouda was sent into internal exile by President Anwar Sadat, with whom he clashed after complaining about discrimination against the Copts.

Mr. ADERHOLT and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, Mr. John Rowe, as the chairman and CEO of Exelon, is retiring upon closing of the company’s merger with Constellation Energy.

John joined Unicom, the parent company of Commonwealth Edison, in 1998. He was hired to help fix its troubled nuclear fleet and prepare the company for deregulation.

In both 2008 and 2009, Institutional Investor named John the best electric utility CEO in America. In the 14 years of John’s leadership, Exelon has been named by Forbes with "America’s Best Managed Companies" as a "Global 2000 Company," the "Best Managed Utility Company," to Fortune’s list of the World’s Most Admired Companies, one of Businessweek’s Top 50 companies, and Utility of the Year by Electric Light Power.

Throughout John’s career, he has been an active leading voice in energy and environmental policy, delivering policy addresses and testifying before Congress, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and State regulators.

John and his wife, Jeanne, are committed participants in civic and cultural activities. They are committed to a wide range of a variety of civic activities, with a focus on education and diversity. The Rowes are particularly proud of their substantial commitment to founding the Rowe-Clark Math and Science Academy. And he is a board of trustees chairman of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Mr. Speaker, have come to know John Rowe during my tenure in Congress. I can say that his impact on the energy industry will be long felt by both policymakers and Exelon customers. I wish him and his family well in their future endeavors.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to talk about someone that I have come to know through my work on the Energy and Commerce Committee over the years, John W. Rowe. Mr. John Rowe, the chairman and CEO of Exelon, is retiring upon closing of the company’s merger with Constellation Energy. His retirement marks the end of nearly 14 years at Exelon and his 28-year tenure as the longest-serving electric utility CEO. It also brings to a close a long career in the utility business in which Mr. Rowe has distinguished himself as both an industry and civic leader.

John joined Unicom, the parent company of Commonwealth Edison in 1998. He was hired to help fix its troubled nuclear fleet and prepare the company for deregulation. He shepherded the merger of Unicom and PECO Energy and has led the combined company, Exelon, since it formation in 2000. The Unicom-PECO merger is widely regarded as the most successful merger in the industry’s history. ComEd serves 3.5 million customers and operates the largest fleet of nuclear power plants in the country.

In both 2008 and 2009, Institutional Investor named Rowe the best electric utility CEO in America. He has also received the Edison Electric Institute’s distinguished leadership award, Keystone Center Leadership in Industry Award, Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce Burnham Award for Business and Civic Leadership, induction into the Chicago Business Hall of Fame, University of Arizona Eller College of Management Executive of the Year Award and the Union League of Philadelphia Founder’s Award for Business Leadership.

In the 14 years of John Rowe’s leadership, Exelon has been named for Forbes as one of “America’s Best Companies,” a “Global 2000 Company” by Fortune, a “Managed Utility Company” to Fortune’s list of the “World’s Most Admired Companies,” one of BusinessWeek’s “Top 50” companies, and “Utility of the Year” by Electric Light and Power.

Mr. Rowe served as chairman of the Nuclear Energy Institute, the Edison Electric Institute (EEI), the Commercial Club of Chicago, and the Massachusetts Business Roundtable.

Rowe and his management team succeeded in turning around the ComEd nuclear fleet—increasing the capacity factor from less than 50% to more than 92% in every year since 2000 and average refueling outage days were reduced by half. Exelon today is the largest and widely regarded as the best nuclear plant fleet in the U.S.

Responding to massive reliability issues in ComEd’s service territory in 1998 and 1999, Rowe spearheaded the effort to improve system reliability that has helped reduce the frequency and duration of customer outages by 40% since 1980. ComEd has spent more than $3 billion on improving the system since 1998. ComEd now performs in the top quartile of its peer companies for reliability.

Under Rowe’s leadership, PECO has been an industry leader in reliability performance, moving from the top quartile to top decile in infrastructure modernization and the use of equipment to eliminate and reduce the length of outages for customers.

Throughout his career, John has been a leading voice on energy and environmental policy delivering policy addresses and testifying before Congress, the Federal Energy Regulation Commission, state regulators and other. He wrote a pioneering book on industry efforts for utility restructuring and a fierce advocate for environmental stewardship and diversity.

Perhaps more than any other CEO, Rowe has made environmental stewardship a hallmark of his tenure at each of his companies. While at CMP, he championed energy efficiency and cogeneration.

John and his wife Jeanne are committed participants in civic and cultural activities. They are committed to a wide variety of civic activities with a focus on education and diversity.

The Rowes have established the Rowe Family Charitable Trust. Over the past decade, the Rowes and the family Trust have contributed more than $19.9 million to organizations including the University of Wisconsin, the Illinois Institute of Technology, the Chicago History Museum, the Field Museum, Misericordia, the Chicago Shakespeare Theater, Metropolitan Family Services and Northwestern University.

The Rowes are particularly proud of their substantial commitment to founding the Rowe-Clark Math and Science Academy, and a Noble Street operated charter school and the Rowe Elementary School, a Northwestern University operated charter school. In addition, John Rowe serves as Chairman of New Schools Chicago, an organization that promotes and funds Charter Schools in the City of Chicago.

Rowe also serves as Chairman of the board of trustees of the Illinois Institute of Technology and as President of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation. He is a Vice Chairman of the Field Museum and has previously served as Chairman of the Commercial Club of Chicago and its Civic Committee and as Chairman of the board of the Chicago History Museum. While CEO of CMP, Rowe served as the Chairman of the Fort Western Museum capital campaign. At NEEES, Rowe served as President of the USS Constitution Museum, Chairman of the Mechanics Hall capital campaign, a member of the board of the Massachusetts Natural Conservancy and on the board of Trustees at Bryant University.

Under Rowe’s leadership and strong belief that utilities can and must have a commitment to their communities, Exelon has become a major part of the social fabric of the communities it serves. Exelon companies granted over $270 million to non-profit organizations serving our communities over the last eleven years including a $70 million donation to fund the Exelon Foundation.

Since the program’s inception in late 2005 Exelon employees have tracked over 318,000 hours of community service. Exelon employees serve on over 350 non-profit boards across the service area, making an impact at the community level.

In recognition of Rowe’s dedication to the community he has received the Civic Federation of Chicago's Gage Award for Outstanding Civic Leadership, the Citizen of the Year award from the City Club of Chicago, and the Heart of Mercy Award from Misericordia.

Under his leadership, Volunteer Match has recognized Exelon as the Corporate Volunteer Program of the Year. Exelon has also received the Ron Brown Award for Corporate Leadership and was named to Corporate Responsibility Magazine’s Best Corporate Citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I have come to know John Rowe over my tenure in Congress and I can say that his impact on the energy industry will be long felt by both policy makers and Exelon’s customers. I wish him and his family well in their future endeavors.

DOWN SYNDROME AWARENESS DAY

(Mr. YODER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. YODER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to call attention to a very special day in our country. Yesterday marked the seventh anniversary of Down Syndrome Awareness Day.

There are over 400,000 people living in the United States with Down syndrome. This equates to one out of every 700 new babies born in America.

Many of us personally know friends and family members who have Down syndrome. Those with Down syndrome lead active and productive lives, attend school and work, participate in decisions that affect them, and contribute to society in so many wonderful ways. That’s why I am proud to support the Down Syndrome Awareness Act, the ABLE Act, and I will continue to do my part to spread the word about this and other important legislation that will help those with Down syndrome have the tools to succeed.

Please help me celebrate the importance of Down Syndrome Awareness Day, and let’s join together to champion every individual in this country, especially those with Down syndrome.

JUST SAY “NO”

(Mr. GOHMERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOHMERT. Mr. Speaker, we’ve just had a vote on H.R. 5 something very important. It’s one of the horrible parts of the ObamaCare bill that we would have a board that would dictate to people what they could or could not have in the way of treatment or care.

The Federal Government has no business getting between people and their doctor. They have no business taking over health care, because if the Federal Government has the right to take over people’s health care, then they’ll have the duty to tell people how to live, what they can eat, what they must do.

But I had to vote “no” on this bill for this reason: in order to pay for this bill, under our rules, they added a provision that has the Congress dictating to every State in the country what their State med-mal tort laws have to be.

In Texas, we did tort reform, and we have doctors coming back. Some say, well, LOUIE, other States don’t have it. That’s fine. It’s their right. Their doctors can come to Texas.

But when Congress wants to usurp State law, I have to say, “No.”

THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. Speaker, as the 2-year anniversary of the President’s so-called Affordable Care Act approaches, we’re reminded of a pivot point. It almost seems like yesterday when we heard the line, “We have to pass the bill so we can find out what’s in it.” That prediction today stands as one of the few justifications for passage of the law to still hold much truth or credibility.

Then supporters said it wouldn’t cost a dime; yet last week, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office stated they would raise the law to cost $1.76 trillion over 10 years. That’s nearly double the $910 billion originally claimed.

Supporters said it would bring down costs; yet these new mandates have helped result in premium increases of up to 25 percent in my home State of Pennsylvania.

Today we remain committed to repealing and replacing this costly and dangerous law, piece by piece, if necessary. We take a great step today by repealing a provision that would otherwise cede the responsibility of Congress to an unelected and unaccountable Medicare rationing board. This measure is yet another facet of that commitment.

THE PRESIDENT NEEDS TO GET WITH THE PROGRAM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 5, 2011, that gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, last week President Obama was in an oilfield in New Mexico, and the President said:

Under my administration, America is producing more oil today than at any time in the last 8 years. That’s a fact. That is a fact.

He went on to say:

You have my word that we will keep drilling everywhere we can, and we will do it while protecting the health and safety of the American people.

And he said:

A recent independent analysis showed that over the last 8 years, there’s been no connection between the amount of oil that we drill in this country and the price of gasoline.

“There’s no connection,” he went on to say. And then the President added:

Even if we drilled every square inch of this country, we’d still only have 2, 3, or 4 percent of the world’s known oil reserves.

That’s just not true. It’s just simply not true. Today, on television, the former president of Shell Oil, John Hofmeister, said—and he ought to know, he was in the oil business. He says that there is a trillion—a trillion, get that; not a billion, but a trillion-plus barrels of oil in America, more oil than there is in Saudi Arabia, and it’s not contested by the President, and he’s misleading the American people.

The reason he said that is because when the President talked about the increase in oil production, he was talking about the increase in oil production on private land outside the Federal Government’s grip.

When you talk about the Federal lands, where we know there’s tons of oil, oil production fell by 11 percent last year. It went down. So we’re not drilling for that oil. We’re not drilling off the Continental Shelf. We’re not drilling in the Gulf of Mexico. We’re not drilling in Alaska and the ANWR. We’re not using coal oil shale for oil.

And so that trillion barrels of oil, much more than we’ll ever need, more than in Saudi Arabia, if we just did what the President says that we’re already doing. But we’re not doing it.

I’m going to be down here on the floor next week, and I’m going to show that the applications for permits to drill in this country have gone down, gone down by 36 percent since President Obama took office in 2008. So he says we’re drilling everywhere. The permits that have been requested by the oil companies and those who will produce gasoline in this country have gone down by 36 percent since the President took office.

Now, let me just end up by saying this: the price of gasoline, from 2000 to 2009, was an average of $2.09 a gallon. The average retail price of gasoline when President Obama took office was $1.85 a gallon. And the average price of gasoline today is $3.88 a gallon, and everybody in America knows that. That’s an increase of 86 percent.

So when the President goes on these trips around the country to make statements to the American people about the great things they’re doing for energy production in this country, he should get his facts correct. Either he’s misleading us intentionally or he’s somebody’s wrong information. But we have an abundance of energy in this country that’s not being tapped.

I have no problem with us looking at alternative energy sources like solar, wind, geothermal, all those things, nuclear, but those things are going to take a long time, and we’re still going to have to depend on oil and fossil fuels for many years to come. And the President needs to tell the truth and get with the program.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to refrain from engaging in personalities toward the President.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, let me just say, if I may, that I try my best not to direct any comments to the President. When I speak on the floor, I usually say, “If I were talking to the President.” So I always qualify that.

Thank you very much. With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

THE 21ST CENTURY BATTLEFIELD

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 5, 2011, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WEST) is recognized for the remainder of the hour as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. WEST. Mr. Speaker, throughout the history of the world, there has always been conflict between nations and among people. Wars have been fought to conquer land. Wars have been fought to acquire resources. Wars have been fought to spread ideas.

What is constant is that with each succeeding battle, both the tools and the techniques of warfare have progressed. From the earliest days of using rocks and sticks to the advancement of bows and arrows to flintlock and then automatic weapons, to TNT, atomic and nuclear bombs, man has continued to find new ways of inflicting greater destruction on each other.

My father served in World War II. My older brother served in Vietnam. I myself, served in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm, Iraqi Freedom, and Enduring Freedom, and my nephew continues to serve in the United States Army and has already been deployed to Afghanistan twice.

The only thing we know for sure is that the enemies my nephew has faced and will face in the future are altogether different from the enemy my father found in Europe and my brother found in Southeast Asia. Unlike any conflict this Nation has ever undertaken, from Lexington and Concord to Gettysburg and Antietam, from Belleau Wood and the Marne to Normandy and Iwo Jima, from the Chosin Reservoir to Khe Sanh, to the Persian Gulf, this 21st century battlefield is not defined by columns, fronts, uniforms, or borders, but, rather, about one ideology against another.

Today, Mr. Speaker, I want to speak about this 21st century battlefield, one that is vastly different from any we have faced before. If we are not as prepared to fight in this new virtual environment as we would be to fight in unfamiliar physical surroundings, it will be just as likely to effect our downfall as the jungles in Indochina were to the colonial French troops.
simply understand our enemy; we must define it.

In 2012, more than 10 years after the Twin Towers fell in the city of which you, Mr. Speaker, represent, there is still a debate in this country about whom we are at war with and whether it is worth our effort. We will not make forward progress.

So, now that we have defined the enemy, we must develop strategic imperatives.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that there are three strategic imperatives: to engage, to deter, and to strike. We must clearly, then, identify specific strategic level objectives, and there are four.

First, Mr. Speaker, we must deny the enemy sanctuary. The number one asset our military has is its strategic mobility. When that is curtailed by a focus on nation-building or occupation-style warfare, we eliminate our primary advantage and, worse, turn our military forces into targets, because this enemy truly indeed has no respect for those borders and boundaries. Therefore, we must be willing to take the fight directly to him.

Second, we must interdict the enemy’s flow of men, material, and resources. We have to cut off the enemy’s ability to fund, supply, and replenish his ranks. As my colleague just spoke, our own energy independence is a vital part of that goal.

Third, we must, Mr. Speaker, win the information war. Unfortunately, the enemy is far more adept at exploiting the power of the Internet, broadcast media, and dissemination of powerful imagery. In fact, I fear that there are some in our media who now see themselves as an ideological political wing. If we cannot fully utilize information as a resource and part of our national power, we will lose this battle, if not our country.

The great example of this occurred during the Tet Offensive, when the North Vietnamese used information to their benefit against a superior American fighting force. Despite their own troops being badly depleted in the attack, our enemy was able to paint the outcome as a devastating loss for the United States. A former Vietcong destroyed an armoured vehicle, a charred body, and a French general. "How can we be defeated?" he asked. "We have just defeated the Americans!"

Today, the Islamic fundamentalist enemy collectively portrays themselves as the victims of imperialism. Just as the Axis and Communist powers defined the free world as aggressors in order to cover up their crimes and designs for global domination, totalitarian Islam seeks to replicate the exact same strategy.

The now-deceased Osama bin Laden incited violence against Americans by invoking just such language when he said:

U.S. soldiers only fight for capitalists, usury takers, and the merchants of arms and oil, including the gang of crime at the White House. Under these circumstances, there will be no harm if the interests of Muslimes converge with the interests of socialists in the fight against the crusaders.

Mr. Speaker, fourth, as far as strategic objectives, we must cordon off the enemy and reduce his sphere of influence. We have to shrink the enemy’s territory and not allow any political, cultural, educational, and financial infiltration into the United States.

What happened with Major Malik Nadal Hasan at Fort Hood, Texas, should not have been possible in this country. We must not turn a blind eye to a bold enemy who is telling us exactly what he wants to do and who is willing to bring the battle to our doorsteps.

Furthermore, for us to classify this jihadist attack as workplace violence defies sanity.

It is important that we must not hamstring our troops through the rules of engagement. Let us trust our men and women who are fighting for the preservation of this great constitutional Republic, and that includes our domestic law enforcement.

We should hold terrorists accountable: deny the enemy sanctuary, cut off his flow of resources, use information to our advantage, and reduce his sphere of influence.

We must recognize that Iraq and Afghanistan were both theater-based operations. It is up to our elected leaders and strategic-level military officials to identify and agree on the correct goals and objectives.

Beyond identifying the enemy and defining our objectives in kinetic battle, we must also understand and recognize the truly nonkinetic conflicts of the 21st century battlefield. One need only review the collapse of the Soviet Union to understand great nations can be toppled economically as well as militarily.

In fact, one country paid particular close attention to the fall of the Soviet Union, and that was China. In fact, China’s efforts to modernize its economy were taken explicitly from the playbook of Lenin during the period of the New Economic Policy. Lenin sought to place market mechanisms in a Communist economy to preserve the rule of the party and modernize this war’s industries. It also sought to deceive the West into believing that communism had been weakened and was, therefore, a less formidable opponent.

China, Mr. Speaker, has been mimicking this tactic for decades. It’s time that we took notice. Currently, the United States is providing a great economic advantage to China by allowing them to have an incredible trade surplus and hold nearly 30 percent of our debt. We must recognize that China is not using that advantage to improve the standard of living of its citizens. Instead, it is taking its economic edge to the 21st century battlefield. Within 10 years, the world’s largest blue-water Navy will fly not under a United States but a Chinese flag.

Why is that important?

Because no matter how technology changes, the Earth’s surface will still be covered 70 percent by water. All of the great civilizations—from the Venetians, to the Romans, to the Portuguese, Spanish, Dutch, English, and the Japanese—understood that the power and reach of a nation is extended not through a great army but through a strong navy. In 1990, the United States possessed 570 naval war vessels. Today, we have 285—projected to go even lower. If we cannot protect the sea lanes of commerce, we leave ourselves vulnerable, not just militarily, but economically to a power in China that continues to seek world communism as its ultimate goal, irrefutably so.

Mr. Speaker, I could spend the entire Special Order talking about China, because I believe, in this century, China could become the premier dominant nation in the world. And while the relationship between China and the United States is based on mutual needs at this moment, I am concerned for the day when China realizes this relationship is more of a hindrance than a need, and we always need to prepare if that day is to come.

As a veteran of Operation Iraqi Freedom, who experienced the initial battle of that conflict, I am proud to be among the more than 1 million Americans who served in Iraq. What my fellow comrades in arms achieved in that country is nothing short of historic. Together, we defeated one of history’s most tyrannical dictatorships and replaced it with what could be a free and democratic Muslim government. American soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines beat back a radical Islamic insurgency and create what we hope for—an ally and partner in freedom.

I will never forget those with whom I served and those who served after I left that battlefield. I will always remember the sacrifice borne by so many servicemembers and their families. However, I have to question the motives of President Barack Obama in announcing a full withdrawal of American forces in October of 2011. Did the President press the commanders on the ground for that decision? Did he abide by the bottom line of security that we succeed in Afghanistan? And how do we define “success”? We cannot grant the enemy another opportunity to use that country as a home base for planning strikes against our Nation. Deny the enemy sanctuary. Unconditional withdrawal from Afghanistan is not the answer. If we do not prevent another radical Islamic extremist in Iraq, without considering the ground situation or the advice of top military advisers, would be absolutely reckless. Allowing Afghanistan to revert to its previous condition under Taliban control overruns the progress made so dearly by our forces, and it creates new threats to all Americans and this world.

Let me be clear. If we exit without delivering a crushing blow to the Taliban and other extremists therein, they will bring the fight to us. And while I believe the men and women serving in Afghanistan are performing bravely, above and beyond, it is vital that they are given all the tools necessary to succeed. We must ensure that they have the proper equipment, the proper weapons systems, a clearly defined mission, but, most importantly, flexible rules of engagement that do not needlessly put their lives at risk.

Mr. Speaker, recently Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was in the United States, delivering remarks that reinforce that the State of Israel is a bright light in a dark ocean of tyranny and oppression. Israel must be allowed to defend itself from external and internal aggression. The Israeli people must be allowed to continue to build within their own borders, and Jerusalem must be recognized, irrefutably, as the Nation’s only capital. Furthermore, the United States should stand by Israel’s side in the face of a United Nations which clearly views the State of Israel through a lens tinged with anti-Semitic hatred, which, unfortunately, we just saw played out in France.

Nothing less than our commitment for Israel and its citizens at the United Nations by the United States Government is simply unacceptable. I am concerned that Israel, America’s strongest and most loyal ally in the Middle East, has become more isolated and vilified since Barack Obama became President than ever before in its existence, and I believe the United States Congress has a solemn duty to ensure that the homeland of the Jewish people remains as strong and virtuous.

The United States and Israel share the common bonds of freedom, liberty, and democracy, and the right to worship in the name of any religion as you see fit. We share a common enemy, but a common purpose and a common judgment. We have both seen our citizens murdered by these terrorist thugs. We are, indeed, each other’s greatest ally, for without the United States Israel would not exist, and without Israel the United States would soon be a country without friends.

Today, the bonds between us must be stronger than ever because those bonds are threatened as never before. Israel, Mr. Speaker, is a small country surrounded by enemies. The United States, however, is a large country being infiltrated by the same enemies. Like us, the Israelis seek only to be one nation under God, with liberty and justice for all. And as the Bible makes clear in Leviticus, chapter 25, verse 10, “The land shall not be sold forever, for the land is mine; ye are strangers and sojourners.”

The bottom line is this: our Judeo-Christian faith heritage calls us to duty to stand beside the modern-day State of Israel. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if we discuss Israel, we must discuss the Palestinian Authority. It is quite simple. No entity that aligns itself with a group that calls for the complete and total destruction of another country should ever be granted statehood.

I will never support funding for the Palestinian Authority or the recognition of a Palestinian state as long as they are reconciled and connected with Hamas. Further, I have cosponsored House Resolution 394, to support Israel’s right to annex Judea and Samaria, if the Palestinian Authority continues to press for the unilateral recognition of Palestinian statehood at the United Nations.

I am not convinced that a United Nations-recognized Palestinian state could place Israelis under the sovereignty of a group that actively seeks their destruction. This is Iran continues to push for nuclear weapons and has the capability to enrich uranium. It remains a state sponsor of terrorism and has aided internationally recognized terrorist organizations like Hezbollah. Hezbollah, along with groups like Hamas and al Qaeda, is committed to seeing the destruction of the democratic free- doms that we treasure, along with the State of Israel in its entirety.

As a member of the United States House of Representatives, one of my objectives is to protect the safety and security of Israel. A stable Israel is important to a stable United States, and Iran is a constant threat to that stability. We must continue to talk about Iran, for we are bearing toward a point at which we won’t be able to prevent that nation from acquiring nuclear weapons without a massive military strike. It must not come to that. Iran is merely months away from producing sufficient weapons-grade uranium for a 15-kiloton bomb, a development which will put American naval vessels and the Strait of Hormuz at risk.

As you know, I have spent a lot of my adult life in uniform, some of it on that field of battle in Iraq. Those of us who fought in Operation Iraqi Freedom knew that our enemies received considerable assistance from the Islamic Republic of Iran. The terror masters in Tehran, those who target American troops in Afghanistan today, received guidance, training, weapons, money, and an untold number of explosives that have killed or terribly maimed so many of our Nation’s finest, our comrades. We knew it without a doubt. We knew it because the components of those bombs bore irrefutable proof of Iranian manufacture. And it’s time to use it. There can be no doubt that the people of Iran are yearning for new leaders; 2½ years ago, millions of them took to the streets to protest against election fraud and to call for an end to the Islamic dictatorship. There can be little doubt that, unlike so many of the uprisings in the Muslim world, the overwhelming majority of the Iranians do not want radical jihadist overlords. They want a separation of mosque and state, with the mosque in the mosque, not running the state.

Of all the opposition movements in the Muslim Middle East, the Iranian one is the closest to us, the only one that surely wants to be part of the Western world. So why, then, Mr. Speaker, has the Iranian opposition movement not been explicitly endorsed by our government? Why do the President and the Secretary of State continue to talk about reaching an agreement with the Tehran regime? Why do the President and the Secretary of State refuse to mention that fact. Every so often, someone will remind us that Iran is the world’s leading sponsor of terrorism, but that does not en- capsulate the truth of the matter. They are killing us every single day. If you want to see what the con- sequences of an Iranian victory would look like, just observe what life is like for the citizens of Iran. Anyone who voices opposition to the government or complains about the oppressive treat- ment of the Nation’s women is arrested, tortured, and often killed. Inde- pendent newspapers have long since been silenced. A citizen’s e-mail is blocked or filtered with the same tech- nology used in the People’s Republic of China.

The Washington Post editorialist that states the Iranians’ fervor ef- forts to construct atomic bombs put it very bluntly when they wrote:

> By now, it should be obvious that only re- gime change will stop the Iranian nuclear program, and only regime change will stop the Iranian war against America. Only re- gime change will bring an end to the mullahs’ global dream.

The Washington Post thinks that sanctions can help, provided they are serious sanctions that strike at the heart of Iran’s financial system. Mr. Speaker, I have no problem supporting such an effort, but I doubt that that will be enough because sanctions are only effective when a regime cares for its people. Iran is a theocracy. An acquisition of a nuclear weapon will enable them to achieve their goal, the restoration of the Islamic caliphate.

We have another, even more powerful, weapon to aim at the Islamic dictator- ship of Iran: the Iranian people. And it’s time to use it. There can be no doubt that the people of Iran are yearning for new leaders; 2½ years ago, millions of them took to the streets to protest against election fraud and to call for an end to the Islamic dictator- ship. There can be little doubt that, unlike so many of the uprisings in the Muslim world, the overwhelming ma- jority of the Iranians do not want radical jihadist overlords. They want a separation of mosque and state, with the mosque in the mosque, not running the state.

I support this legislation and commend my Florida col- league, the chairwoman of the Commit- tee on Foreign Affairs, for intro- ducing this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, let’s be clear: there is no greater threat to Israel and the United States today than the development of nuclear weapons by Iran. President Obama has tried to take the diplomatic route when negotiating with Iran, but that is an effort that has indis- cernable failure. Iran has twice sent their warships through the Suez Canal and has waged that war ever since. The United States of America nearly 33 years ago declared war on the United States today, received guidance, train- ing, weapons, money, and an untold number of explosives that have killed or terribly maimed so many of our Na- tion’s finest, our comrades. We knew it without a doubt. We knew it because the components of those bombs bore irrefutable proof of Iranian manufacture. And it’s time to use it. There can be no doubt that the people of Iran are yearning for new leaders; 2½ years ago, millions of them took to the streets to protest against election fraud and to call for an end to the Islamic dictator- ship. There can be little doubt that, unlike so many of the uprisings in the Muslim world, the overwhelming ma- jority of the Iranians do not want radical jihadist overlords. They want a separation of mosque and state, with the mosque in the mosque, not running the state.

Of all the opposition movements in the Muslim Middle East, the Iranian one is the closest to us, the only one that surely wants to be part of the Western world. So why, then, Mr. Speaker, has the Iranian opposition movement not been explicitly endorsed by our government? Why do the Presi- dent and the Secretary of State con- tinue to talk about reaching an agree- ment with the Tehran regime? Why does the President not say that Ahmadinejad and Khomein must go? If Qadafi had to go and Mubarak had to go and Assad must go, why not the Ira- nian terror masters?

Since the President and the Sec- retary of State are unwilling to spell it out, I will offer my assistance. Ahmadinejad and Khomeini have to go, along with their evil henchmen. We need clear language from our leaders that states, Down with the Islamic Re- public of Iran! With all the rhetoric re- presents a clear and present evil in our world. We, hereby, call for a free Iran, and we are willing to support an effort by the Iranian people to liberate their country.

President Ronald Reagan recognized the threat of inaction, and he laid out a road map on how to confront evil in our world three decades ago. First, tell the truth. Tell it often. Tell it everywhere. The world must see that Iran is in the clutches of evil people who kill Iranians and support the killing of Israelis and Americans every day and who will kill even more, if and when they get nuclear atomic bombs and warheads.

The truth is that we have tried to reach some sort of reasonable agreement with them for more than 30 years. The truth is they don’t want it. They want to destroy us. And that’s what they mean when they chant, “Death to America.”

Second, our leaders and representatives must call for the release of political prisoners being persecuted in that country, to include the Iranian Christian minister being threatened with execution. When our diplomats attend international conferences, they should arrive with lists of victims in Iran, and they should list the names of those tortured for totalitarian regimes to kill people with names than to slaughter faceless victims.

Third, we should broadcast the facts to the Iranian people. They need to know that we stand with them. They need to know what’s going on inside their country. This is based on our experience during the Cold War when it turned out people inside the Soviet Union knew more about events in London and Paris and Washington than inside their own borders. That’s why Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty were such potent instruments of peace. Our broadcasts are often jammed by the Iranian regime. We must defeat their censorship.

Finally, we have to track down the killers of Americans and bring them to justice. The world must know anyone that takes an American life will be targeted and taken out in any country on the planet. Those who kill our citizens will not find safe haven in Iran.

Mr. Speaker, a majority of the America media did not feel it was important to report that Iranian President Ahmadinejad visited Cuba, Venezuela, Ecuador, and Nicaragua this past January. Ahmadinejad that almost 200 years of precedent established by the Monroe Doctrine when he declared that “from now on, Latin America will no longer be in the backyard of the United States.”

President Ahmadinejad is assisting Hugo Chavez with missile sites and has joked with that South American dictator about pointing a warhead at the United States. And, Mr. Speaker, there are Hezbollah camps in South America. Chavez himself has offered to send troops to Iraq. And, although it has reportedly funded al Qaeda, President Ahmadinejad has recruited the Mexican drug cartels for an attempted assassination of a Saudi ambassador in the United States.

Mr. Speaker, President Ahmadinejad’s sphere of influence is not limited to the Middle East. He is entering our hemisphere and showing the influence he has in this region. And that goes back to our fourth strategic objective.

President Obama seems to be uninterested in the principles of the Monroe Doctrine because, after all, he did take the wrong side in Honduras, and he has laughed it up with Hugo Chavez.

Mr. Speaker, the Syrian government, meanwhile, is continuing its vicious crackdown on innocent Syrian civilians seeking only freedom and democracy. According to available figures, almost 10,000 Syrians have lost their lives and thousands more have been injured. Many more have been forced to flee. The International Atomic Energy Agency also recently concluded that the secret Syrian facility destroyed by Israel in 2007 was “very likely a nuclear reactor” based on a North Korean model capable of producing plutonium for nuclear weapons. The Syrian government has become a conduit in Iran’s arming of Hezbollah Shilite forces in Lebanon and Hamas in Gaza. They have provided a safe docking station for Iranian warships, and they possess an arsenal of chemical weapons and missiles that I fear could end up in the hands of terrorists with whom they are allied.

The threat posed by the Assad regime to the United States, to our allies, and the Syrian people is stark and growing. The time to increase pressure on that regime is now. That is why I joined other Members of Congress in sending a letter to President Obama requesting that he implement additional sanctions on Syria. The people of that country deserve a government that represents their aspirations and respects their human rights. It is clear that Bashar al-Assad is not willing to implement genuine reforms and that he lacks the legitimacy to lead the Syrian people.

The United States and all responsible nations must hold the regime accountable and the brutality must end. Additional sanctions would show the Syrian people that we stand with them in their struggle for democratic freedoms while also making it clear to the Syrian regime that it will pay an increasingly high cost for its gross violations of human rights and dignity, which is why, Mr. Speaker, UN ESCO should expel Syria and strongly condemn them, and not repeatedly attack Israel. But, however, we must recognize that there’s an interesting turn in Syria with the Iranian and Russian presence evolving.

Mr. Speaker, it was not too long ago the American people watched a transition in Egypt, with this administration supporting the Egyptian government and the new dawn of democracy. Today, instead we are witnessing the nightmare of one of the greatest threats to the stability in the Middle East, a new Egyptian government under the Muslim Brotherhood. The Egyptian Parliament is now controlled by a majority of radical Islamists, and the Muslim Brotherhood is turning Egypt into a radical Islamic state. The Muslim Brotherhood also maintains active ties to Hamas, a terrorist organization that openly calls for the destruction of Israel.

Of course, America should stand with the Egyptian people. However, if the radical elements of the Muslim Brotherhood are left unchecked in that country, the security of the citizens of Israel, Egypt, and the United States all will be in jeopardy.

On July 19, 2011, I wrote a letter to the House Committee on Armed Services Chairman Buck McKeon on the troubling revelation of a possible U.S. military sale to the government of Egypt. It stated in my letter:

It has come to my attention that the Defense Security Cooperative Agency notified Congress on July 1, 2011, of a possible foreign military sale to the government of Egypt for 125 M1A1 Abrams tank kits for coproduction and associated weapons, equipment, and related training, and logistics.

America must continue to stand with the Egyptian people and encourage them to build their own democracy with new political parties and freedoms. However, we must exercise caution with regard to military sales and equipment to the Egyptian government until a government is formed absent of the radical elements of the Muslim Brotherhood that would maintain an active peace with Israel.

Speaking of the Muslim Brotherhood, Mr. Speaker, I would like to quote to you directly from a former Supreme Guide of the International Muslim Brotherhood. In December of 2006, Mohammed Akef said:

The Brotherhood is a global movement whose members cooperate with each other to achieve a specific goal: to make the whole world a religious world view—the spread of Islam until it rules the world.

Three years ago, a court found a Muslim charity right here in the United States guilty of funneling millions of dollars to the terrorist group Hamas. That was the Holy Land Foundation trial. The Council of Islamic Relations, CAIR, was named as an unindicted coconspirator. That case included testimony that Hamas’ parent organization, the Muslim Brotherhood, planned to establish a network of organizations to spread the militant Islamist message right here in the United States. In its own “Explanatory Memorandum” for North America, the Muslim Brotherhood stated that its strategic goal is to establish an Islamic center in every city in order to “supply our battalions.”

Through its various front organizations in the United States, the Muslim Brotherhood is succeeding in cultural and political infiltration of the United States. References to Islamist terrorism in our public discourse. After the 9/11 Commission identified “Islamic terrorism” as a threat in this country, the Muslim Public Affairs Council recommended the United States Government find other terminology. As a result, the FBI Counterterrorism Lexicon and the 2009 National Intelligence Strategy included a policy single reference to Islam, Muslim, the Muslim Brotherhood, Hamas, or Hezbollah.

Furthermore, after Major Nidal Hasan’s attack on Fort Hood, the Department of Defense Report used the terms “violent extremism” and “Islam” and noted in footnote 42 that incident was officially classified as workplace violence.

Mr. Speaker, we must also be concerned about North Korea. I was stationed in North Korea in 1995 along the demilitarized zone. I stood on the 38th parallel and looked through the barbed wire and landmines. And there, Mr. Speaker, you can see a repressed Nation. I saw for myself what a ticking time bomb that country can be. Sooner or later, North Korea will either explode or it will explode. The situation in North Korea most closely resembles a street gang, where the leader of the gang is killed and a young guy must step up.

In that instance, it is critical for the newly appointed “top dog” to establish his credibility by proving himself. And today’s North Korea is ruled by a 28-year-old appointed four-star general.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it took me 22 years to become a lieutenant colonel. You can begin to understand how dangerous a situation is brewing just west of the Sea of Japan. The tactics do not change, and the game is getting tiring. Anytime North Korea finds itself in need of money, it saber rattles with the threat of a secret nuclear arms program. It has fired artillery onto the South Korea island and sunk five South Korean vessels. Again and again, the international community responds with misguided attempts to “buy” the country off. Threaten to go nuclear and get funding at exchange? I call that international extortion. The DPRK newspaper, Nodong Simmun, and other mouthpieces for the Workers’ Party of Korea sensed this policy of weakness and referred to the disbursement of food and aid as “tribute.” If there’s one thing we’ve learned, it’s that the North Koreans cannot be trusted to voluntarily disarm. They are playing our country and the entire Western world for fools. Sooner or later, we’ll need to step up and stand up to this simmering menace just a few hun lines from Japan.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, if we miss this opportunity to recognize the 21st century battlefield—and understand, we did not talk about Africa, we did not talk about Somalia, and we did not talk about our own border security. I thank you, Madam from Indiana for speaking about energy independence. But if we miss this opportunity for understanding what this battlefield truly is, to understand the threats and to lay out a strategic vigil for victory, we will lose the opportunity to ensure that our children and grandchildren of America will have a secure future.

As a country, we must roll up our sleeves and devise a roadmap for security. We must be mindful of the wise words penned by Sun Tzu in the book “The Art of War” more than 25 centuries ago:

To know your enemy and to know yourself, and to know the environment, in countless battles, you will always be victorious.

If we do not understand this simple maxim, we face dark days ahead indeed. And that shadow could not only fall on this country, but on the entire world. Because no matter what our detractors may think, we are that beacon, we are that lighthouse. We are, as President Ronald Reagan said, “the shining city that sits upon a hill.”

For the sake of our Nation and of all nations that seek freedom for their children and must be prepared to fight on this 21st century battlefield, and we can settle for no less than victory upon it.

Mr. Speaker, those of us who have served in battle are the last to desire it. But as John Stuart Mill once wrote: War is an ugly thing, but not the ugliest of things. The decayed and degraded state of moral and patriotic feeling which thinks that nothing is worth war is much worse.

Policymakers and those of us here in Washington, D.C. should heed the wise words of George Santayana:

He who does not learn from history is doomed to repeat it.

I will always stand by the men and women of the Armed Forces, and I am proud to represent them as a combat veteran in the United States Congress. I will always continue to protect our Nation, as I once did on the battlefield, and as I am now honored to do in this, the people’s House, steadfast and loyal.

And I yield back the balance of my time.

APPOINTMENT AS MEMBER TO COMMISSION ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair announces the Speaker’s appointment, pursuant to section 201(b) of the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (22 U.S.C. 6431 note), as amended, and the order of the House of January 9, 2011, of the following member on the part of the House to the Commission on International Religious Freedom for a term effective March 23, 2012, and ending May 14, 2014:

Mr. Robert P. George, Princeton, New Jersey

THE PROGRESSIVE MESSAGE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 5, 2011, the Gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Ellison) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Speaker, my name is KEITH ELLISON. I will claim the time over the next several minutes, and I want to talk about the issues before us today, namely, the budget. The budget is the issue today, Mr. Speaker.

We know that you may know that the majority has come out with their budget, and, of course, the Progressive Caucus has come out with its budget, and that’s what I want to talk about tonight.

The Congress, Mr. Speaker, is made up of a lot of diverse interests. We have people who span the spectrum of political thought. On the far right, those folks are present here and they allow themselves to be heard. But we have other folks who have different points of view and believe that the best of America is the idea of liberty and justice for all. That’s the Progressive Caucus—the idea that all Americans, no matter what their color is, no matter what their religion is, no matter their gender whether they are male or female, no matter who they may be, have a right to live in a safe, free country with an opportunity to make a good, decent living with a retirement and with good, solid services like public schools like police and fire and all these things, and we should live in a nation where we can really promote the common welfare. What that means is that the public sector and the private sector together—we have a mixed economy—need to work together to elevate the best interests of all American people.

To that end, the Progressive message, which I want to share tonight, is going to be about this budget, this Budget for All. The Progressive Caucus budget is called the Budget for All, and that’s the Progressive Caucus message. Tune in at cpc.grilavala.house.gov to learn more about it, Mr. Speaker. Now, this is the hashtag for the Budget for All. It’s #Budget4all. We want people to check it out and read about it.

It’s very different from the Ryan budget. It’s very different because we have a different vision for our country. It’s very different because the Progressive Caucus believes that responsibility and the benefits of being an American should be shared; whereas, I think it’s fair to say that the Ryan budget believes that if you give rich people a lot of money, maybe they’ll start some businesses and maybe they’ll hire someone and maybe people who are not in the middle class and investing in innovation and education. Our budget, the Progressive Caucus budget, and the Caucus add those things. And in the long run, we know that is how our country will grow, how our economy will grow and how our country will be wealthy. And that’s what I want to talk about tonight.
Caucus, the Budget for All, protects the basic social safety net, which is Medicare, Medicaid, and Social Security.

Now, it’s very important to protect these programs, Mr. Speaker, because these programs go beyond just helping the people who basically live in America, for those of us living now. Let America never be a nation where our senior citizens who literally forged a way for younger people like me and those younger will have to eat dog food, have to choose between their medication and their meal, won’t have enough to make their basic ends meet.

We need to support Medicare, Medicaid, and Social Security. That’s what the Budget for All does. The Ryan budget, which is really the Republican budget, does something very, very different, and we’re going to talk about that in a minute.

Now, it’s important, Mr. Speaker, to bear in mind that when you talk about the budget of a nation, what you’re really talking about are the priorities of that nation, the values of that nation.

If you show me a family budget and that family spends a lot of money on potato chips and pop and not on the gym, I’ll tell you what they value. If you show me a family that puts money into their kids’ education and spends on making sure that they live in a neighborhood that’s safe, then I’ll tell you what their values are. If you show me a family that buys nutritious foods, I’ll tell you what their values are.

Our budget is a reflection of what we believe, and our budget as a nation is also a reflection of what we believe.

Our Budget for All, here’s what it reflects:

First of all, it puts Americans back to work. That is the number one thing the Budget for All of the Progressive Caucus does. Our budget attacks America’s persistently high unemployment levels with more than $2.4 trillion over 10 years in job-creating investment. This plan utilizes every tool at the government’s disposal to get the economy working again, including—and Mr. Speaker, this is important—direct-hire programs that create a School Improvement Corps; also a Park Improvement Corps, a Student Job Corps, and others.

So, right now, when we have literally 14 million people out of work looking for jobs, why don’t we send them to our schools and make these schools top-quality institutions and make the faculty well paid, well cared for, well taken care of so that when the boiler breaks, the principal doesn’t have to say, oh, my goodness, do I take it out of the maintenance budget to fix the boiler? What do I do?

We’ve got aging infrastructure in this country, and our schools are part of that. They’re crumbling, and we’ve got to do something about it. Under the Progressive Caucus Budget for All, we spend money to hire people to help rejuvenate and improve our schools, School Improvement Corps.

Also, in many districts where State and local governments have been cutting back, you have teachers who are trying to service 50 kids, 40 kids. This program can help teach kids and give the teacher some real help in the classroom so that they will not be overburdened.

Also, we invest in a Park Improvement Corps. Now, in my great city of Minneapolis—and I’m going back there today, I hope—you can walk around our beautiful lakes. One of the lakes we have is called Cedar Lake, and everybody loves Cedar Lake. You can walk through the paths there. And recently, Mr. Speaker, I stopped at a picnic table along the paths of Cedar Lake and stamped on this—Mr. Speaker, you’d be surprised to see—it said “WPA 1934.”

Now, that’s the Works Progress Administration. We had a program then in the Depression, given the high rate of unemployment, our generation should not do less. A Park Improvement Corps to help take care of the paths, take care of the parks, make sure the monuments dedicated to the enjoyment of all Americans are cared for and we hire people in the process, this is a good idea.

Also, the Student Job Corps. Mr. Speaker, one of the things that our unemployment numbers reflect is that a lot of young people are out of work. A lot of people who just got out of college are still looking for their first job. A lot of young people who decided that they didn’t want to go to college but are now out of work are having a very tough time. So the Student Job Corps would be a program to put students to work.

You know, Mr. Speaker, there’s lots of work to be done around America. According to the American Society of Civil Engineers, there’s $2 trillion worth of maintenance that needs to be done all across America. I’m talking about the roads, the bridges, the transit, the schools, all the young people who need intervention. There’s tutoring that needs to happen. There’s all kinds of things that need to happen. And between the School Improvement Corps, the Park Improvement Corps, and the Student Job Corps, we will be able to literally hire millions of people. This would be great. It would spur our economy; it would increase aggregate demand; and it would give a lifeline to some people who’ve been out of work for a long time.

People would really rather work, Mr. Speaker. Of course, I’m a very firm believer in our social safety net for the non-elderly. I believe in it. I think Medicaid is very important. I believe that food stamps is a critical program. I believe in all these programs. But I do know—and everyone knows—that folks would rather work. So let’s set up a work program so that people can do their job in jobs that need doing. Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about some of our direct-hire programs. But what about the other aspect of the Budget for All, which focuses on the targeted tax incentives that spur clean energy, manufacturing, and cutting-edge technological investment in the private sector?

Now, Republicans, if the economy is doing great, they want a tax cut. If the economy is doing bad, they say, Tax cut. If the economy is kind of up and down, they say, Tax cut. These guys think that we should always cut taxes all the time, except when working people want a tax cut. They really fought us tooth and nail over the payroll tax cut. But if ever some really rich people want a tax cut, they say, sure. And it’s not that they’re bad people. It’s because they mistakenly assume that trickle-down economics works. They think that if you give rich people money, then rich people will maybe have 5 kids or at least that’s what they’re hoping for.

The tax cuts we’re talking about are targeted so that we can spur clean energy, manufacturing and cutting-edge technological investment in the private sector. Of course, President Obama has presided over America now with 23 straight months with private sector job growth—long way to go, but definitely the right direction.

The third aspect that we need to spend on for jobs is in a surface transportation bill. We propose a $556 billion surface transportation bill and the approximately $1.7 trillion in widespread domestic investment.

The Budget for All, Mr. Speaker, is all about putting Americans back to work. First. But here’s something about the Budget for All that people need to know, and it’s that our budget is more fiscally responsible than the Republican budget.

Now, if you ask Republicans, they think, oh, well, liberals, you know, they want more. Of course, I talk about something that the American people need to know, and that’s that our budget is more fiscally responsible than the Republican budget.

Unlike the Republican budget, the Budget for All substantially reduces the deficit and does so in a way that
Our budget creates a fairer America. We end tax cuts for the wealthiest 2 percent of Americans on schedule at the year end, which is set to expire; and we let them expire for the top 2 percent. Extends tax relief for the middle class households and the vast majority of Americans. Creates new tax brackets for millionaires and billionaires in line with the Buffett Rule. Eliminates the Tax Code’s preferential treatment of capital gains and dividends. Abolishes corporate welfare for oil, gas, and coal companies. Eliminates loopholes that allow businesses to dodge true tax liability. Creates a publicly funded Federal election system that gets corporate money out of politics for good.

Now, it has always bothered me, Mr. Speaker, that two-thirds of American corporations don’t pay any taxes, because there’s one-third that do. Because we have this system of loopholes everywhere, some corporations have to pay full freight and others don’t have to. GE, for example, was said to have paid no or very low taxes, but there’s a lot of others that didn’t pay. Bank of America didn’t pay. There’s a lot of them that didn’t pay. I don’t think Boeing paid.

I’m saying that for the one-third of American corporations that do pay, we’ve got to make sure that everybody ponies up something. If more people pay, the burden on the ones that do pay will be lower. The Budget for All recognizes this important truth, unlike the Ryan budget, which protects coal, oil and those dirty polluting industries—oil, gas, and coal companies. Now, another aspect of the budget driver, another big budget driver are these overseas wars.

Let’s face it, in Iraq they told us that we were supposed to be getting rid of weapons of mass destruction. There weren’t any. They told us that Saddam Hussein was going to al Qaeda. He wasn’t. They said that we had to go there to make sure that there would be peace. We’re leaving now, and the Iraqis—it’s their country, and they are managing the best they can. Still, it’s not and Afghanistan, leaving America more secure at home and abroad.

Our budget adapts our military to 21st century threats because we definitely believe that America should be strong, but we should be adapting ourselves to the reality that we’re in. One of the attributes of our bill, one of the very important components is a piece of legislation called the SANE Act. This excellent piece of legislation reasons that this Cold War arsenal is no longer necessary because this is all Cold War stuff designed to fight the Soviet Union, and there is no more Soviet Union. What are we doing with these 20th century weapons systems in the 21st century? We need to get out of Afghanistan. We need to responsibly and expeditiously end our military presence in Afghanistan, leaving America more secure at home and abroad.

Yes, we have a crisis, but it’s not caused by the military presence in Afghanistan. It’s caused by the funding of the military. A vast majority of Americans want our troops to be out of Afghanistan right now. We need to get our hands on the transportation bill, and I will point to what we’ve done with infrastructure. The Republican majority leader that we’re living in hard times, we don’t have money, that we can’t be looking, for example, at the Senate bill and we can’t move forward. And I just listened as our minority whip spoke about the urgency of moving forward on an infrastructure bill.

What I think is important, and really the theme that I wanted to focus on as I listened to you in my office—I just left about 12 constituents who are the beneficiaries of community health clinics, one of the items that we’ve supported as a Progressive Caucus for a very long time and championed along with the Tri-Caucus, to put in the Affordable Care Act, which, by the way, this 2-year anniversary is tomorrow.

The point is that we have optimism. We have the sense that America can get it done. You’ve just put up a very telling poster that when our Republican friends begin to talk, we’re heading toward a pathway of devastation: no Medicare, no Medicaid, allowing reckless investments or speculation to occur, jobs overseas, and not focusing on our recovery.

By the way, we understand a balanced budget. We are using war savings for the people of the United States of America. Our troops come home, and we realign our national security focus. I think most Americans will understand that, even national security excepting the phenomenon of more bad news, we’re in the middle of the recovery. We are using war savings to fight the war on terrorism.

Don’t you think young people who have just graduated from college, who have just graduated from trade school, who are just trying to make a living, and we talk about the deficit and the budget, but they don’t understand that.

So, what do we do with the $2 trillion? Well, we have an infrastructure bill. We have a public works bill, which will help the middle class and to put Americans to work. It’s a budget signed to help the middle class and to provide for Americans.

Our budget creates a fairer America. We reduce the budget so that it reflects the modern reality. This Budget for All protects American families by providing a make work pay tax credit for families struggling with high gas and food costs. This make work pay tax credit for families that are struggling with high gas and food costs is the kind of thing that incentivizes work, which is what we want to do. We extend the earned income tax credit and child dependent care credit.

I’m very happy to say I’ve just been joined, Mr. Speaker, by a good friend of mine from the great State of Texas, SHEILA JACKSON LEE. Whenever she is ready, why don’t we hear from her, Mr. Speaker, and what she has to say about the Budget for All.

Moving forward on this issue of protecting American families, the Budget for All invests in programs to stave off further foreclosures to keep Americans in their homes. This is very important. A lot of the economists who look at the problems with our economy have concluded that until we get our hands around this foreclosure crisis, we’re going to continue, Mr. Speaker, to have very slow growth.

The Budget for All addresses this problem. We deal with investing in programs that will tell us about a path forward. We also invest in children’s education by increasing in education, training, and social services.

The Budget for All is a good budget. It’s a budget that makes sense. It’s a budget for America. It’s a budget designed to help the middle class and to put Americans to work. It’s a budget that really reflects what Americans want, which is to get out of Afghanistan and Iraq. And we’re already out of Iraq, but we’re still kind of there. But we don’t have a military presence there; we’ve got contractors there.

This is a good budget that I hope that people will take a very strong look at. It is more fiscally responsible than the Ryan budget. We spend more upfront to get the economy moving, but then we save money on the back end, and we end up getting to primary surplus in the year 2016. This is an important thing that we need to do.

Let me just pass the microphone and yield to Congresswoman JACKSON LEE, who has distinguished herself in many areas, not the least of which is fighting for a fair budget for our Nation.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

wanted Grandma there or your aunt there or your favorite brother there or Mom and Dad there or family there. This was an exciting time. The Progressive Caucus budget speaks to that excitement and optimism and hopefulness.

Our budget has an infrastructure bank that allows the private sector to come together and effectively bring about infrastructure projects in all manner of areas, from the hamlets that are so small, to the villages, to the county governments, to the city governments and State governments.

I introduced a surface transportation bill that has been slowed, another bill that would stand some security and transportation security and recognize that we must secure our surface transportation. In this bill, we proposed a 6-year $556 billion reauthorization bill that, over 10 years, would lead to a $213 billion increase in transportation funding. The bill also does create many jobs that provide for small contractors, minority-owned contractors, women-owned contractors. It would create work. It’s an optimistic view.

The tax pay tax credit for the years 2013–2015 is about let’s lot folks who are working, let those get a benefit that makes sense. Then we have more than $2 trillion in domestic investment packaging.

Just let me mention the idea of when you work with emergency jobs to re-store the American Dream, getting people out where improvement is need-ed—student improvement, park improve-ment, neighborhood jobs, neighborhood heroes, community health clinics, fed-erally qualified clinics, and child care corps—getting folks to work.

In my town, Mr. ELLISON, in the Southwest as you well know, we had a great drought in the last year. Volun-teers are trying to plant trees, but I tell you we could stand for a Community Corps to get out there and help us re-seed America, if you will. We know that. We know the Job Corps. But this is a concept that gets folks out working.

I also want to congratulate the Uni-versity of Houston-Downtown that is heavily minority that just won the dis-tinguished honor roll recognition for the largest amount of community serv-ice done by a campus across the Na-tion, the Department of Education. That means people are ready to put that to work.

Tax credits for investment in advanced energy. I’ve got a company right in my community that’s been awarded for its new innovative work on energy, manufacturing, capital ac-cess for entrepreneurs of small busi-ness.

Now, let me just say this. I am ex-cited about the 3 million Apple 3s that were sold because I think that is opti-mistic, and it employs the genius of America and it goes against the sad, deflated concept.

Now, let me be very clear. I am not ignoring the unemployed Americans. I want to be very clear on that. I don’t think the Progressive Caucus has for a moment. We did a job tour. We’re going back out again. We have no reason to dismiss the person who is now sitting unemployed, the unemployed.

What I want to say is there is some optimism. We’ve got to get all of those folks to be part of this new surge of opt-imism which this Progressive Caucus budget, if passed, would generate. But I want to continue, to my good friends at Apple. Bring the jobs home. You are manufacturing Apple 3 in China. I certainly believe in an international framework. I know that everything can’t be made in America, made at home. But I do know that as-pects of the talent that you’re using in China can be found here in the United States. And the cost of shipment—I can tell you you can save some dollars. Let’s put our thinking caps on for com-panies like Apple that want to do it, that you can balance those resources.

I’m just going to cite General Elec-tirc. I know that we had put a real heavy heat on General Electric. I am told by their employees they are bringing jobs home. I met with some em-ployees in my district who have indicat-ed that they have been bringing them home. I looked at them. They were real. They were alive. So, they have jobs, and they said they work for General Electric, but a number of companies looking that way.

Let me quickly just mention because this is all exciting, and I think people need to hear about excitement and oppor-tunity.

We already talked about the manu-facturing community’s tax credit, tax credit for the production of advanced technology vehicles. Again, everybody is saying we’re slow on the hybrid, we’re slow on the electric car. But all of us want to say that we should find tax credits for alternative fuel commercial vehicles, which is very possible. Double the amount of expense startup expenditures. So that means that if you’ve got a startup, we’re going to double what you can expense. I think that makes a lot of sense.

Young people are the ones that are always starting startups. We need to encourage that. Enhance and make permanent the research and experi-mentation tax credit, which is right in the line of the Texas Medical Center. Many of our medical research hos-pitals, MD Anderson in the 18th Con-gressional District, while it’s our neighbor, is working on new tech-nology. This fits an optimistic view on how we can cure the worst of the worst.

Let me also say that I want to make mention that we are dealing with tax brackets, and we are looking, I think, at sensible policies dealing with capital gains and State policy. What I would say to people who are listening to us: Get on our Web site and give us your input. We’re interested in what you have to say.

As well, let me just put in a pitch that no one likes the season when April 15 comes around. But we’ve tried to make our tax reform palatable. As far as I can see, we have left alone the charitable tax exemption. I tell you there are those who are very concerned the charitable tax exemption. I want you to know that the Progressive Caucus has focused on, before we talk about taxes, that they would attack the charitable tax exemption and not go to some of the ones that the Pro-gressive Caucus has focused on, because they would attack the charitable tax exemption.

I had one foundation, one nonprofit talk to me today and say how chal-lenging it is to get funding for the dis-advantaged and programs that deal with intercity. So I want you to know that the Progressive Caucus recognizes the value of the charitable tax deduc-tion, and you don’t find that on our table.

I want to say something to Mr. ELLI-SON. I wanted to mention, for a mo-ment, Trayvon Martin.

Mr. ELLISON. By all means I yield time.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. He is cer-tainly a lawyer who’s practiced law, but I have met Mr. ELLISON’s wonderful family of youth and young people, a young man. That’s what happens. Per-son don’t realize that we have families on both sides of the aisle. Good Repub-lican friends who have young fami-lies. So whatever you see us saying here on the floor of the House, we are particularly sensitive and warm toward Members’ families because we are, in essence, despite our policy debates, we are a family here.

So I simply wanted to indicate first to give good wishes to Congresswoman CORRINE BROWN, who is now with her constituents in a major protest in Flor-ida on this sad and tragic incident. I wanted to say that we will gather on Tuesday to present an opportunity for the case to be heard on this issue and the Federal Government’s responsi-bility or authority.

One of the things that in this budget we are very keenly sensitive to are the needs of the Department of Justice. Again, an optimistic budget, because the Department of Justice is the armor in many instances that will come in and help a community when they cannot help them locally.

Mr. Martin was killed on February 26. He was buried on March 1. Today is March 22. It was only when his parents came out or used their grief that they’re still grieving to start asking who, Mr. Ellison. Again, this foundation was not iso-lated to Florida or Sanford. If you listen to the various media outlets, par-ents, no matter what their background, were calling and asking, What about my child? I think it is important that we show this young man. It could be any of our family members. Can we imagine our youngsters wearing the clothing of the day—hoodies, sneakers, jeans. Do we need to remind you that Mr. Trayvon Martin was simply getting some Skittles, on the phone with his girlfriend, walking back to where his father was and going to look at some games. In this instance, it was basketball.

I come from local government. You come from State government. We know about Neighborhood Watch. We champion Neighborhood Watch. We have this Community Night Out. Police Night Out, whatever it is, and all of us have gone to it. We tell neighbors to watch out for each other. It’s important for it to be said this was not watching out for each other.

The basic 911 tape, if you frame it, the old that’s the right thing to do. The description I may not adhere to, some of the words in the description, but so be it, you described this individual as such. But it came back and asked the specific question, “Are you following him?” “Yes.” “Do not do that.”

This youngster, football player, babysitter—likes to babysit, eating Skittles—a fun food to eat with a basketball game—was on the sidewalk. Not coming out of a window, not knocking on a door, not standing in front of a door, not on a lawn—walking on a sidewalk, which the Progressive Caucus has stood many times on that First Amendment right, we’ve stood many times. He was walking, and we are now in an abyss of darkness in terms of what next happened, but the description is, this young boy was shot point-blank in the chest.

We have to call upon the Federal resources. We’ve called for a Federal investigation. We’ve been joined by many colleagues. We have tapes of witnesses, meaning people inside their homes, saying they heard shouting and crying for help. We’ve heard people ask the question: Why didn’t the neighborhood watch stand down in the car? Move away? We’ve also heard the author of the “stand your ground” bill—which, by the way, is in 20 or so States—a Republican State representative, articulate in newspaper clips that it is not a pursue and attack. It is that you can stand your ground upon someone coming, but it is not a pursue and attack. I just wanted to indicate that it is important for Members of Congress—and I believe there is a sense of outrage. We are not taking this to the level that does not respect the family that is mourning. We’re not creating hysteria. We are only begging for the truth, and telling us about cases from the west coast to the east coast, to the North and the South. So I wanted to indicate that we will be joining as Members of Congress in hearing the circumstances, as much as we can, on the theory of the Federal Government’s responsibility or authority. I think that is the more appropriate approach to take.

I want to thank the gentleman for letting me articulate, I think, just the sheer horror of having our kids leave our home—for innocence—and not just a dead child. I believe that, and as one who sees this, I believe we owe that family a response.

Mr. ELLISON. It’s funny you should make that particular point about your family tie, because, when I first heard about the case of Trayvon, I mean, my thought went immediately to my own 17-year-old son. We live in Minneapolis, and he could very well be running to go get some Skittles, and could be talking quite well, yet, out; it’d feel terrifying to me, deeply disturbing and troubling, that somebody would think that, first of all, he was some sort of a problem because he was walking down the street, and then to follow him. Then even after 9/11, when people say don’t follow, they still follow.

You’re right. Much has been said about the Florida law, the “stand your ground” law, but this gentleman did not stand his ground. There is no evidence to suggest that that is what happened. He went after this kid. Then you hear the tape of the boy as he was screaming. Somebody said to me earlier today, Well, don’t call Trayvon a boy. Hey, he was 17. He was a boy.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. He was a boy.

Mr. ELLISON. He was killed by a grown 28-year-old man. It’s deeply disturbing. I wish the people who don’t quite get it yet, could feel how some of us feel about this case. I mean, I spent 16 years in the criminal justice system. I know that horrible things happen, and it’s heartbreaking any time we lose anyone, but to think that law enforcement would operate and treat this person with impunity is absolutely an abandonment of every principle of serve and protect. If a cop did what this guy did, they would take his gun, they would make him give a urine sample, and they’d put him on administrative leave until this thing was sorted out. This guy walked away.

Here is another thing. As a criminal defense lawyer, I find it nothing short of shocking that this man’s representation—shooting him in self-defense—was good enough. I mean, if you’ve got a self-defense claim, then after you’re charged with murder, you can raise that and see if you can convince a jury that it was self-defense. We have a dead young man here, and the chief of police is like. Well, these things happen. No, there needs to be accountability. Do you know what I don’t want to see happen? I hope people don’t think this is only because this kid is black. You know, this could be a kid of any color.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. That’s right.

Mr. ELLISON. Any parent should be shocked. Any 17-year-old who’s walking the streets ought to be worried that some overzealous wannabe police officer would just shoot him down. This case is a national outrage.

Do you know what? You know and I know, because we’ve both worked in the system, that if the police would have made the arrest and processed this case in the ordinary course, it probably wouldn’t have even hit the national news. But because nothing was going—cold case cooler; it looked like first-degree murder—we’re all horrified.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. You’re speaking as a parent, and I think everyone can appreciate that. You really highlighted it. In this instance, of course, we have to look and see whether there was a hate crime or if his civil rights were violated.

But you’re absolutely right. We had nothing to go on. We had a person—child to have themselves, and so many of us have worked to ensure that the guns on these streets don’t go. After our law enforcement officers because, obviously, there are many who believe the more guns the better off we are with our children. This has nothing to do with the Second Amendment. It’s just guns, guns, guns. So he has a concealed weapon. I’m not here to cast any aspersions, but as the reports are coming out, he has some challenges—meaning Mr. Zimmerman—to his record. He has some challenges.

With that in and of itself, the officer should have brought him in, but there is no evidence of that. Maybe they did, but there is no evidence of that, and they should have done, as you indicated, the normal police work. He has a defense, so be it—that of a concealed weapon permit and “stand your ground.” But you have a dead person, Mr. ELLISON. They should watch. Mr. ELLISON. Any parent should be shocked. Mr. ELLISON. They should watch.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. That is correct.

What I don’t understand, and what we will be, if you will, perusing is, where did this case go wrong and the fact that the Federal Government has to come in when things go wrong.

Someone said to me in my office that this case has riveted like Emmett Till’s case riveted.
Mr. ELLISON. Yes, Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. And you're right. There are cases across America. Members have raised cases in conversations that we've had, and we need to have all of that in an inventory so we can, out of this tragedy, say to those parents: Trayvon counts. We care. Young people count. Children count. Your community counts and our communities count.

I wanted to say that. I'm not going to let this go. As for the Judiciary Committee; the Congressional Black Caucus; the Tri-Caucus, which involves the Asian Caucus and the Hispanic Caucus; letters that have been written by a number of Members of Congress; the work of Congresswoman Brown- and the Progressive Caucus, I know, is a willing partner when it comes to issues of justice—we are not going to let this rest without finding some relief and rest for this family.

And I thank the chairman for his personal story. I met the young man, and we've traveled together, our family, at the Dem caucus events where families come together.

I will just conclude by simply holding up, again, this picture. And for those who don't know the terminology, let me just show. He is in football attire here; and we don't know what college he would have gone to or what football team, if that had been his choice, that he would have played on.

Let me just put this up. If you can see it, this is an innocent face. But he is wearing a hoody. And if anyone needs to know, I have a hoody. It's my local college's paraphernalia that you buy, and you wear it to the game, and it has a hoody. And it's something that I think everybody who has seen in this country. I see nothing on here that says: Bad guy. Criminal. Shoot me. That's not what we do in America. I want to thank the gentleman for allowing me to share and to say that we will find justice to this.

I will simply conclude by saying that I do believe in an optimistic America. Revealing my pain about this young man is pain for all those whose names we have not called. But in believing in an optimistic America, I want to be a problem solver. I want to solve this problem or answer this problem with respect to Trayvon Martin.

I want to say that as I perceive this product that was produced, this Budget for All, I am so grateful that over 90-plus members of the Progressive Caucus saw that the right route to take was the optimistic upturn, positive, open opportunity budget to give to all of America. That's what we should be supporting, not the downward, the "no way out," but really that there is a new day for America.

I yield back to the gentleman and thank him for his courtesy.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. I thank the gentlelady for joining me tonight.

We talked about the Budget for All, and the hashtag again is #Budget4all.

People can check it out on Twitter or on anywhere else. It will be on U.S. Progress. We want people to look at the Budget for All. We want your ideas.

But I think it's also important to draw a contrast. The recently released Ryan budget, the Republican budget, does some critical things that Americans should know about. It ends Medicare. It devastates Medicaid, rewards Wall Street, punishes Main Street, protects corporations that ship jobs overseas, threatens the recovery. It protects tax breaks for the people who don't need them and actually cuts into the social safety net for America's everyday heroes, police, fire, job training, small business, infrastructure, college affordability.

I think the facts show that in the course of the last couple of months, I guess 18 months or thereabouts, I believe that the Republican majority hasn't been working on solving problems.

People can say whatever they want about Dodd-Frank, or they can say whatever they want about the Affordable Care Act or the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act. Or they can say anything they want about the credit cardholders' bill of rights. But in the last Congress, these are bills the Democratic House majority passed that were designed to try to solve problems for Americans.

Now, some people say, Well, it should have done this more. It shouldn't have done so much of that. Fine. That's what we do here. We debate stuff. But I'm not aware of any single piece of legislation we looked at since they took the majority designed to solve a problem. It's all been: cut everything; whack everything. Let's not take a surgical look at what should be cut, what's not working. Just cut everything.

They have created budget crisis after fiscal crisis after debt limit crisis. I mean, this is the Congress of crisis.

And the Speaker may be aware that because the Ryan budget basically goes below the nonmilitary discretionary in the Budget Control Act, which was a deal, when the Senate comes in with their budget and this bill and theirs don't match, we're going to have another standoff.

Oh, and by the way, we're going to have a standoff in 10 days because the transportation bill is expiring. The House majority, the Republican Caucus, has said they have to pass a 2-year transportation bill. So the transportation bill within 10 days is looking to expire. They say, We'll only do a 3-month bill. Three months? This is putting everybody's lives in jeopardy. They just did it with the FAA not more than a few months ago. This is the crisis Congress, where they will not make long-term decisions because they are playing politics.

I believe that since the Republicans have put defeating the President as their primary goal, therefore, of course, they're not operating on the basis of trying to solve any problems.

But before any Republicans get upset with me for saying these things that I honestly believe to be true, don't get mad at me. Americans believe that that's what they're doing. Now here's a question put to Americans. Republicans would rather see President Obama lose than see Americans. Half of Americans believe the Republicans are sabotaging the recovery to win an election. This is a Washington Post poll: fifty percent responded positively to that; 44 percent said no.

If you've got people thinking that your main goal is to get rid of the President and not help them, that's a problem. And look, some folks might say, Oh, look, Keith, that's not true. That's just you politicians arguing again. Well, MITCH MCCONNELL said it. He said, Our main priority is to defeat the President, make the President a one-term President.

So at the end of the day, this budget reflects that politics-playing theme that they seem to be rigging the system even more heavily in favor of the richest 1 percent. Their budget gives generously to the rich and protects existing tax breaks for those at the top of the income scale.

And the reality is we're only way to pay for such huge tax cuts for the 1 percent is to make the 99 percent pay for the tab. Their budget would weaken the middle class of America. First and foremost, the plan ends the Medicare guarantee of decent, affordable health care that has been in place for years that serves tax breaks for the people who ship jobs overseas.

One of the best economies since World War II was in the 1990s. One of the best. We had the Clinton-era tax cuts.
rates, which we hope we’ll return to, at least for the top 2 percent. The top 2 percent were doing great during Clinton’s time. And yet the Republicans say that unless we give rich people more money, the economy is not going to be good. Well, it’s not good now, and that has been in charge for a long time.

So the bottom line is the Ryan budget proposal is bad for America, cutting basic criteria for seniors and not investing in jobs. The Budget for All invests in America and puts Americans as the top priority, not just winning some election.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time.

BROKEN PROMISES IN OBAMACARE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HULTGREN). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 5, 2011, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. FLEMING) for 30 minutes.

Mr. FLEMING. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is indeed a pleasure to come to the House today to address this Chamber about a subject that I think is very important on the minds of the American people, and that is the 2-year anniversary of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, also known as PPACA, and certainly more commonly known as ObamaCare.

I want to give you a little context, Mr. Speaker, of where I come from. I’m a Congressman from Louisiana in the 4th District, centered in Shreveport Bossier. I have been a family physician for 36 years. I still see patients when I have the opportunity. I also have businesses on the side that are not related to health care.

So in my world for many years, and in raising a family, the responsibilities of meeting payrolls have included not only running a small medical practice but also a growing business dealing with all of the regulations, the taxation, and the many different issues—personnel problems, human resource problems—that we must deal with. And certainly providing health care has been a great challenge over the years.

And there’s no question that the system has not been what it should be prior to this time.

In fact, one of the reasons why I ran for Congress—and many other of my colleagues who were physicians—we have 15 just in the Republican section alone, and I think we’ll have more next year—the reason why we’ve become so activated, if you will, when it comes to Federal policy on health care is because of all the failures that we’ve seen over the years and the problems with government trying to micromanage health care.

So what I want to talk about today is broken promises with regard to ObamaCare. You may recall that Candidate Obama, Senator Obama, says you will not have to change your health care plan if his health care plan is brought into law. For those of you, he said, who have insurance now, nothing will change under the Obama plan except that you will simply pay less.

Another quote from him is this. This is President Obama in June of 2009: And that’s how we re-form health care, we will keep this promise to the American people. If you like your doctor, you will be able to keep your doctor. If you like your health care plan, you will be able to keep your health care plan.

Well, what is the truth of this? By the administration’s own estimates, new health care regulations will force most firms and up to 80 percent of small businesses to give up their current plans by 2013. Grandfather plans would be subject to the costly new mandates and increased premiums under the President’s health care plan.

Again, my own business is back home. We still cover our employees, and we would fall under the grandfather. But here’s what we’re up against. If we change just one dotted “i,” one crossed “t,” that totally nullifies the grandfather rule that applies to our plan. So what that means is if you have a small business whose structure, anything—then simply we will fall into the government-mandated plan in which we have to choose among the three specified, certified government plans that would be chosen for us.

Now you could say, Well, we could keep exactly what we have without changing one scintilla of it. The problem is, what if the cost continues to go up—and it will—and we say maybe let’s raise the deductible, raise copayments, cut some coverage somewhere—change the way we cover pharmaceuticals, do something to lower that cost so we can afford it as a company and our patients can afford it. No. It then nullifies the grandfather clause and then it activates all of our co-pay, our co-insurance, and we will be required to be in it.

Let’s go to broken promise number two. I have many broken promises but I’m going to focus on six today.

Broken promise number two: President Obama in September of 2009 says: First, I will not sign a plan that adds one dime to our deficits either now or in the future. I will not sign it if it adds one dime to the deficit now or in the future.

Well, is that true? An honest accounting and the CBO finds that it will increase the deficit by hundreds of billions in the first 10 years alone. For instance, the law double-counts the Medicare savings.

It’s interesting the way we have something in Washington, in Congress, called the CBO, the Congressional Budget Office. It uses a scoring mechanism. It works out of a 10-year budget window. So whatever we do, it either costs more or costs less, based on what happens first in the next 10 years. And so the objective for the Obama administration to get this bill passed because they saw what we saw, and that is it will add billions of dollars to the deficit. So what did they do? They manipulated the budget window to make it look like it paid for itself. And how did they do that? Well, for one thing, the way the bill is set in motion and the way it’s implemented is that for the first 4 years—you’ve noticed that at each step of the way, as predicted in March of 2010, it hasn’t been implemented. Why? A very good reason. Because the costs don’t begin until it’s implemented. However, the revenues already began soon after the bill was passed. So the way the way we have 10 years of revenue—that’s income—and 6 years of costs.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I could run any business profitably that way if I have 10 years of revenue and only 6 years of cost. That’s precisely what happened here. However, the law has been re-scored and in fact what was supposed to be a $900-$1 billion bill over 10 years is now re-scored at $1.75 trillion. And next year, which will then stretch into the full 10 years, it will be well over $2 trillion.

Former CBO Director Douglas Holz-Eakin has written that:

Under a realistic set of assumptions, the law will increase the deficit by at least $500 billion in the first 10 years and more than $1.5 trillion in the second decade.

Mr. Speaker, let’s go back to where we are with government health care pre-ObamaCare. Back in the nineties, the last time that we balanced a budget was under President Clinton and after, of course, a Republican-controlled House and Congress in general sent a balanced budget three times in a row. He vetoed it twice and finally signed it the third time.

How did they do it and can we do it today? Well, one reason is very important, and that is that at that time 30 percent of the budget was made up of discretionary spending, that’s entitlement spending, which would be Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security, and other forms of mandatory spending such as welfare, section 8 and so forth. So that meant that 70 percent was discretionary spending, which means that you could cut budgets out of certain departments and agencies and you could begin to balance a budget once again.

Well, today it is 60 percent of the budget that’s mandatory or entitlement spending—and growing—which means that we have certainly much less to work with in order to balance the budget, and it continues to grow. The largest piece of that is Medicare itself.

Mr. Speaker, I guarantee you that most Americans do not realize that today Medicare is very much a subsidized and entitlement program. Even though its recipients and those of us who are in the workforce paying into it, even though we pay premiums into it, the return on those premiums are threefold; that is to say, for every dollar you put into Medicare, you get $3 back in benefit. And that applies no matter what your income. Warren Buffett is old enough to be on Medicare, and as a result of that, Warren Buffett, with his $40 billion, gets the same subsidies as the little lady who barely gets by each month.

So it’s important for us to understand what we already have a government-run health care system—that is, Medicare—that actuates, the CBO and everyone says becomes insolvent, runs out of money in 4 to 8 years; it just depends on how you estimate it in. And to be honest with you, with each year that estimate comes closer and closer rather than farther and farther away.

So, I hate to say it, but promise number one was broken. The President promised that there would be nothing to change about your health care plan or your doctor. We know that not to be true.

Broken promise number two is it would not add one dime to the deficit. And we know now that it’s going to be at least $500 billion, perhaps as much as $1.5 trillion over the coming decade.

So let’s move to broken promise number three. President Barack Obama said this—President Obama said, ‘Just repeal ObamaCare and leave the people as they are.’

And one more misunderstanding I want to clear up. Under our plan, no Federal dollars will be used to fund abortions, and Federal conscience laws will remain in place.

We can just forget. There was a whole lot of drama around here during the debate, the original ObamaCare bill—and, by the way, I want to point out something about the term ‘ObamaCare.’

I’m often asked in my town halls, Why do you call it ObamaCare? Isn’t that that being derogatory or in some way denigrating to the bill itself or to the President? Of course the rhetorical response I have is, Well, if it’s a law or a bill that you can be proud of, then why are you ashamed to name it after the President? If it were a bill I was proud of, a law I was proud of, I would love it if it were called FlemingCare.

But, quite honestly, I don’t think even the President is proud of this bill. And how do I know that? Because on the 2-year anniversary, where are the cakes and the candles? Where’s the celebration? Remember that Speaker Pelosi, when she was Speaker right here in this Chamber, said that we have to change our system, ‘we have to know what’s in it.’

Well, Mr. Speaker, we now know what’s in it, and we’re not happy about it. Fifty-seventy percent of the American people say we want it repealed, and only 36 percent—and these are consistent numbers since the passage of the law. In fact, they’ve actually gotten a little worse over time. The vast majority of Americans do want it repealed.

But back to this. What about the funding for abortion services?

Well, when the bill first passed this House, we had protections and guarantees. We had a few pro-life Members from the Democrat side, we had a vast number of pro-life Members on the Republican side, and we came together and said, okay, they’re not going to vote for this bill. No Republican voted for it. But the Democrats who were pro-life said, We’re not going to support this bill unless it has protections not to prevent abortions.

Today we’re in a divided Nation when it comes to the question of abortions. About half of Americans, 51 percent, are pro-life. They do not believe that life is something innocuous. Something near that say, Well, we think it’s a woman’s right to choose. But by a margin of around 75 percent, Americans say we do not want to pay for—through our taxpayer money, we do not want to pay for abortions.

And so we were given certain guarantees that that wouldn’t happen. However, when the bill came back to us from the Senate, all the protections, conscience clause protections, protections against complicity in all funding of abortions, all of that was stripped away.

Now, the President would say, ‘Well, today, and many Democrats would say, there’s not any taxpayer funding of abortions. Well, again, is that true?’

Just remember: Department of Health and Human Services, under Secretary Sebelius, issued a final rule on the State health care exchanges providing for taxpayer funding of insurance coverage that includes elective abortion services. And the President declared that abortions on demand will be included in publicly funded insurance plans. This means that it is absolutely required that insurance companies provide abortion services.

Now, even among the pro-choice Americans, they would suggest to you and admit to you that while they think a woman should have the right to choose, they also would agree we need to reduce the number of abortions when they are not medically necessary. We will make abortions more and more convenient, more and more available and cheaper and cheaper, that’s not going to be the case. Even though abortions have been coming down year after year because young ladies have been deciding for life instead of against life, we’re going to be seeing those numbers go back up again because of the wholesale subsidy of the industry.

What do I mean by that?

To comply with the accounting requirement of ObamaCare, plans will collect a $1 abortion surcharge for each premium payer. The enrollee will make two payments, $1 per month for abortion and another payment for the rest of the services. As described in the rule, the surcharge can only be disclosed to the enrollee at the time of enrollment. Furthermore, insurance plans may only advertise the total cost of the premiums without disclosing that enrollees will be charged a $1 per month fee to pay and directly subsidize abortions.

Now, that’s kind of technical jargon. What does it mean?

It basically means that in the most technical sense, the premium dollars will not be used to fund abortions. What will happen is that you, as Americans, will be charged an extra fee, a surcharge, if you will. It will be booked separately, but it still flows directly to abortion services. You’ll be required to do that.

Under ObamaCare, all insurance plans must cover, at no charge—to the patient, that is—the patient, to the patient—abortion-inducing drugs, contraceptives, sterilization, and patient education and counseling for women of reproductive age. Religious employers such as Catholic hospitals, Christian schools, Catholic care centers will have to provide and pay for such coverage for their employees regardless of their religious beliefs.

Now, Mr. Speaker, that is a direct violation of the First Amendment to the Constitution. The First Amendment to the Constitution provides that government shall establish no religion and that you should have the freedom to practice religion in any way you see fit. And we’ve seen this played out over these many years of this century.

For instance, the Amish are against war. It’s against their conscience to fight in a war. And if, indeed, an Amish person is asked to join the military, to pick up a rifle and go fight, if he declares that it’s against his religious conscience, then he is not forced to fight. And that is a well-respected and a well-observed tradition, and it’s certainly right down to the very beginning of the core of the Constitution.

But for some reason we’re suspending that constitutional right. That is to say that a hospital owner, an insurance company owner, a physician, even, or abortion provider, cannot provide abortion-inducing pills, certainly provide abortions themselves, or perhaps for whatever fundamental religious reasons, such as in Catholicism it’s against their religion to practice sterilization or even give control pills, that they cannot refuse to provide those. Now the question, of course, comes from Democrats on this, well, that means that those services will be cut off from Americans.

Well, today these institutions are not required to produce that. And does anybody have a problem finding these services and in an affordable way?

Every State has a program—it’s funded both by the State and federally—to get free services with regard to obstetrical, gynecological care and prevention of pregnancy. So it already exists today. It’s completely available. There’s no reason that we have to force health care providers to participate in something that is against their religious or moral convictions.
to provide the abortion or abortion-related services that we dictate to you. Then, as a result of the pushback of the Catholic Church, they said, well, we’ll make an accommodation. But, Mr. Speaker, that accommodation never occurred. It’s only a statement made by the President. The actual rule that was propagated is still the rule today and, in fact, it’s now been finalized. Nothing was changed. It was certainly just spin put on the entire discussion of the rule.

Let’s move along to broken promise number four.

President Barack Obama, September 2009, in an address to a Joint Session of Congress—and I was here—says: ‘‘I will protect Medicare.’’

Now, did he protect Medicare? Well, the first thing that ObamaCare does is it cuts $500 billion—a half a trillion dollars—from Medicare itself. I repeat, ObamaCare does one thing: to finance the services that it provides, it cuts $500 billion from Medicare. Part of that is taken out of the so-called Medicare Advantage program, which is a private part of Medicare where private plans under the Medicare plan, Gold are provided funds. But half or more of that is simply taken out of direct services, such as home health, hospice services, many other kinds of services. So I don’t see how you can remove $500 billion from Medicare and begin to say that you’re going to protect it.

In fact, we Republicans have been criticized in the last year that for some reason we want to end Medicare. Nothing could be further from the truth. Republicans want to save Medicare. But because Medicare—you heard me say Medicare will become insolvent in 4 to 8 years, the experts tell us. Don’t take my word for it. Go to the experts, the actuaries and the CBO. They tell us that the system runs out of money, the checks start bouncing in 4 to 8 years.

So what have our Democratic colleagues done to save Medicare? Whenever you ask them, all you hear is crickets. How about ‘‘I leave that to Congress’’answer to that? Well, we submitted in 2011 a budget that would not only protect Medicare, but sustain it indefinitely by the use of premium support, means testing, and many other things, and opening up Medicare to market forces so it would drive costs down and increase services. So whether you like the Republican solution or not, we do have a solution. Our Democrat friends offer no solution.

So their plan is no plan. Their plan is sticking your head in the sand. And, therefore, their plan is the one that would end Medicare.

On to broken promise number five. Senator Barack Obama, Candidate Obama, said: ‘‘Under my plan, no family making less than $250,000 a year will see any form of tax increase.’’

Well, is that true? Well, let me go down the list and you decide for yourself. Mr. Speaker: $52 billion in fines on employers who do not provide government-approved coverage; $32 billion in taxes on health insurance plans—not a penalty, just, simply straightforward, an excise tax which adds up to $32 billion. Mr. Speaker, if you think that your premiums are going to go down when the taxes on those companies go up, then we need to sit down for a few years: $5 billion in taxes from limits on over-the-counter medication; $15 billion in taxes from limiting the deduction on itemized medical expenses—and that’s to everybody, not just people who make over $200,000, $250,000 a year; $13 billion in taxes from new limits on flexible spending accounts; $60 billion in taxes on health insurance plans; $27 billion in taxes on pharmaceutical companies; $30 billion in taxes on medical device companies. We already hear of medical device companies either going out of business or moving their business overseas.

$3 billion in taxes on tanning services; $3 billion in taxes on self-insured health plans; and $1 billion in new penalties on health savings account distributions. Remember that one of the most useful tools in limiting cost that has been well received by beneficiaries of private insurance has been health savings accounts, which allow you to keep your own money and spend your own money and save the first dollar expenses to insurance companies, which ultimately lowers your premiums. I know that because we instituted that about 7 years ago in our companies; and instead of having 15 percent increase year over year in our premiums, they flattened out and have never been above 3 percent per year. That means more money we can pay our employees and more benefits that they can enjoy.

But here’s a couple of really important ones I think everyone needs to understand, Mr. Speaker.

In 2013, the payroll tax will increase 9 percent going to Medicare for those making $200,000 to $250,000 a year—that is to say, single filers, $200,000; a couple, $250,000.

Now, Mr. Speaker, most people hearing this might say, Well, that doesn’t apply to me because I don’t make $200,000 a year. But this is not indexed, Mr. Speaker. In a few years, through inflation, Mr. Speaker, everyone will be included in this, virtually; certainly the middle class would be.

Already today we have a similar problem called AMT, alternative minimum tax. It was designed years ago to hit the wealthy, the high-income earners. Who is it hitting today? It’s hitting the middle class because it hasn’t been indexed.

But that isn’t the worst of it when it comes to taxes. There is a 3.8 percent tax on certain investment assets—again, for people who make $200,000 for singles, $250,000 for a couple. Again, the question is, Well, what do I care? I sell my house, I make some money on it, but I don’t make $200,000 a year. I sell my stocks, maybe I sell a business, I sell some other sort of asset. Should I worry about that? Well, maybe today you don’t. The average American doesn’t make $200,000, $250,000 a year. But if, Mr. Speaker, we add more mandates, we take caps off, all that does is raise the premium. The marketplace has to deal with that one way or another. So you have to decide for yourselves, as consumers, do you want more benefits, less caps, or do you want less benefits, more caps? You’re going to have to pay for it either way.

So I would say, Mr. Speaker, yes, we would have to keep those taxes. But what we’d rather do, more than that, is to make it a choice for the American citizens. They can choose whichever one they want. If you want a plan that, for instance, has no lifetime caps, fine. But you are going to have to pay incrementally more in taxes and Medicare dollars in order to receive that benefit.

The CBO projects that the law’s new benefit mandates will raise premiums... in the individual market by $2,100 per family. The increase is because people will be forced to buy richer coverage, which will encourage them to consume even more health care.

So, you see, Mr. Speaker, the President's candidate, proposed that the cost of premiums would go down by $2,500 per year per family. It has already gone up that much, so that's a spread of about $5,000 per year, and it's expected to go up even another $2,100 as ObamaCare fully kicks in.

Mr. Speaker, these are the main six points that I wanted to bring out today. In closing, I would just like to say that we'll be posting, Mr. Speaker, on our Web site these promises and the others that have been broken. And I pledge, with many of my colleagues here in the House, that we will, hopefully, the beginning of next year fully repeal ObamaCare and replace it with something that's common sense, that's market-driven, that re-establishes the doctor-patient relationship and puts the choice back into the hands of the American citizen.

Preserving our rights

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 5, 2011, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMIERT) for 30 minutes.

Mr. GOHMIERT. Mr. Speaker, a couple of points I want to address. I appreciate so much my friend, Dr. FLEMING, who has the adjoining district to mine, across the Sabine River over in Louisiana. He makes great points. We need to get the Federal Government out of the business of controlling people's health care. We need to get them back in the business of being a referee, making sure insurance companies and health care providers do the right thing, butt out of the business of dictating and controlling health care.

Very clear from ObamaCare, the IPAB, we got a board of 15 people going to dictate people's medical decisions for them, and, of course, all of the pandering back during the debate on ObamaCare how you can, as my friend Dr. FLEMING pointed out, the President, all those who mirror his comments, all those that read from the same teleprompter and say, oh no, you like your health care, you can keep it. You have a good doctor, you can keep it. Well, we knew they were wrong. They were wrong.

So most people have already lost their health care exactly as they had it before if they liked it, and if they haven't yet, they will. That's why it was a good idea, not only to repeal the provision on that board that will dictate people's lives, what health care they can have, what they can't have. That was a good idea.

We need to repeal the whole bill. It is unconstitutional, and of course the President did us a wonderful favor by showing what many of us knew, that if ObamaCare is considered constitutional—it's not, but if the courts considered it that way—then it is very clear, the President believes, and I think, under the bill, he has the authority to step on, suppress, override people's individual liberties and freedoms.

We were assured by our Founders that we were endowed by our Creator with certain unalienable rights, among those, life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Well, ObamaCare modifies that to the extent that you can have life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness only if it meets with the approval of the administration in power and the people they've put on IPAB, and what they have to say about whether you're too old to have a treatment, whether, or, like the President said in one of his town halls to a lady that said, will you at least consider the quality of life on people like my mother and whether she could get a pacemaker since she'd lived for 10 years with the pacemaker. And he said it's because if they were 20 years younger, maybe we're just better off telling your mother just take a pain pill. The part that he didn't say is take the pain pill and die. Don't live 10 years, because that's what ObamaCare will do for us.

So, hopefully, the Supreme Court Justices that will take this up and consider it will also realize that since ObamaCare gives the President the power to override the Constitution and prohibit the free exercise of religion—I'm Baptist, but, obviously, it does clearly restrict the free exercise of individual Catholics, of Catholic institutions, and that's because the President says so, because ObamaCare gives him the power to do that. I hope that the Supreme Court Justices will take note of that. They could take judicial notice of what has been publicly done and by order, and take note of the fact that since our freedom of religion is clearly expressed in the Constitution, that is, by order, and it's there in black and white, the government's not to prohibit the free exercise of religion.

And since the "privacy rights," as the Supreme Court has come to call them, are not written in the Constitution, they were somehow found in the shadow of a penumbra somewhere and, gee, if ObamaCare gives the President the power to override people's constitutional rights, for rights that are put in stated words in the Constitution, then it's certainly some redneck President down the road the right to just say, you know what, the privacy rights aren't even there, and so we're setting those aside too. Just like I set aside Catholics and other religious beliefs, now we have the power to set aside a right that's not even mentioned in the Constitution.

And it ought to scare every thinking liberal—we won't get the ones that don't think—but every thinking liberal ought to have that go to their core and give them goose bumps.

Oh, my goodness. I didn't think about some redneck person possibly getting—becoming—President because at some point the American people are going to get so fed up with having Washington dictate all of their individual decisions that they may just elect the biggest redneck they can get.

And because the Supreme Court, if it were to do the unthinkable and rule ObamaCare as constitutional, then the administration will have not only a right, they will have a duty to dictate to people how they can live, because if the Federal Government has the right, under the Constitution, to control all our health care, putting some providers out of business, picking winners and losers, telling who gets a pain pill, who gets a pacemaker, if they have the right to do that, the government has a duty to tell every person how they can live.

We're told that the Federal Government, if it wanted to, could look at every debit purchase, every credit card purchase. I mean, I got in this discussion with a gentleman from Louisiana. He makes great points. We need to get them back over in Louisiana. Who has the adjoining district to mine, who has the spectrum, perhaps. They're both reporting the same thing: that this administration, through Secretary Hillary Clinton, is going to announce that it could care less what Congress has or-dered about helping the enemies of Israel, about helping those who are ter-rorizing and persecuting Christians in Egypt and destroying churches and eliminating freedom of religion, and are saying they want to rethink their peace plan. They know, if Israel and setting themselves up to be the enemy of Israel. And now this administration, knowing that Congress passed a law that says you can’t give people money in Egypt unless you can certify to cer-tain facts—and they cannot, not hon-estly. If they do so now with what we know publicly, we know they will not be honest in doing so, and they’re going to give $1.5 billion, not in hu-manitarian aid, according to this story, not food—military aid.

So forget all of those speeches that this President gave at AIPAC: Oh, gosh. We’re Israel’s best friend. We’re going to help them. Because, oh, no, we’re going to give people who have the power, to destroy Israel, on the border with Israel, military aid, as they are planning—many there make it clear they hate Israel, they hate us, and I’ve said over and over: We don’t have to pay people to hate us. They’ll do it for free.

We have to quit funding the enemy of us and the enemy of our friends. This is insane. And I hope somewhere in this administration is a cooler head that will say, Mr. President, Madam Secre-tary, Israel is our friend. Remember the speeches you’ve both given about what a friend they are? And it’s time that we do not provide military aid, abetting, and assistance to people that want to destroy Christians, that want to destroy Israelis, and that want to put the world in turmoil and have ev-eryone living exactly as they dictate. We want to keep some freedoms here and in Israel, and the way to do that is not to fund and provide military assist-ance to anyone unless we know they are our friend. We’re Israel’s friend, they’re the friends of our friends.

To do otherwise will bring calamity on this country like they will not real-ize until it’s too late.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Eternal God, the captain of our souls, You know every temptation and trial we face. Give our lawmakers today the wisdom to be good stewards of the bounties You have given and to trust You to deliver them from evil. Make them pure enough to use wisely the wealth we call ours, as they remember that to whom much is given, much will be required. Allow no hunger for attain ment nor thirst of ambition to drive them to align themselves with wrong. Lord, strengthen them to serve You this day with right choices and unwavering loyalty. We pray in Your merciful Name. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The acting President pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, following leader remarks, the Senate will be in a period of morning business for 1 hour. The majority will control the first half, the Republicans the final half.

Following that morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of the capital formation bill.

The filing deadline for second-degree amendments to the motion to concur with respect to the STOCK Act is 10:30 this morning.

At about 12:30 p.m. today, there will be seven roll-call votes, including completion of the IPO bill, the STOCK Act, and three judicial nominations.

JOBS CREATION

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I was disappointed to see in the newspaper this morning and hear on the news that Republicans in the House have decided to not mess with our highway bill—a bill on which we spent 5 weeks. The highway bill is a piece of bipartisan legislation that will save a great 2.8 million jobs. The House of Representatives is so disorganized and in such a state of disrepair that they can't even extend the highway bill. I don't know what is in their minds.

This program was started by a radical liberal Dwight Eisenhower, who decided after having brought—as a major under orders from his commander—a caravan of military vehicles across the country that the roads were awful. So he remembered that all during his military service. When he became President of the United States, he decided something needed to be done about that. The Interstate Highway System was the brainchild of Dwight Eisenhower. Now the Republicans in the House are talking as if it is some socialist program that was developed at Harvard or some other radically liberal place. I can't imagine what their mindset is.

Barbara Boxer, one of the most liberal Members of this body, and Jim Inhofe, one of the most conservative Members, came together on a bill that we passed on a bipartisan basis in the Senate. The vast majority of the Democrats voted for it, and the vast majority of Republicans voted for it. It is a good bill that will save or create 2.8 million jobs. But over in that big dark hole we now refer to as the tea party-dominated House of Representatives, they couldn't do it. They couldn't agree on it. They couldn't agree even on their own bill. They destroyed their own bill. Now they will not even agree to take up our bill.

The funding for our highway system terminates at the end of this month. I am not inclined to go for the short-term extension they are going to send to us. They are going to have to feel the heat of the American people—they meaning the tea party-driven House of Representatives.

The initial public offering legislation will be on the floor and debated for the last time in just a short time. It will pass. The bill is far from perfect, but it is a good bill. It will help capital formation, and I am glad we are able to pass it on to the House. I am hopeful, with the good work done by Senator Merkley, Senator Warner, Senator Bennet and others, the minority will wrap their arms around this and pass it. I hope they will agree to pass the...
Health Care

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, 2 years ago tomorrow President Obama signed the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act into law. It was the greatest single step forward toward ensuring access to affordable quality health care for every American, regardless of where they live or how much money they make.

Millions and millions of Americans have already felt the benefit of this law. Seniors are saving money—millions and millions of dollars—on their prescriptions and their free checkups. The doughnut hole is rapidly disappearing because of this law.

Instead of being told to forego emergency care or heart attack away from bankruptcy. People think they are in good shape; they have a health insurance policy. Then they get into a car accident or they get cancer or some other dread disease and they are in the process of being taken care of and they are told their bills are not going to be paid anymore; their limit is $10,000 or $50,000 and insurance stopped paying the benefits.

Under this legislation that can no longer be done. That is why the President signed the bill. Under this legislation every man, woman, and child in America will have access to the health insurance they can afford and the vital care they need. They will have the same kind of insurance the Presiding Officer and I have—basically the same insurance policy. Then they get into a car accident or they get cancer or some other dread disease and they are in the process of being taken care of and they are told their bills are not going to be paid anymore; their limit is $10,000 or $50,000 and insurance stopped paying the benefits.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, yesterday I outlined many of the broken promises we have seen in connection with the new ObamaCare law: from the promise of being able to keep the plan you have and like, to the promise of protecting Medicare, to the promise of lowering premiums, to the promise of lowering health care costs. Democrats also said taxes would not go up and existing conscience protections would be respected.

Looking back, it seems like there was not anything our Democratic friends, including the President, were not willing to promise in order to get the bill across the finish line. But there is another category of disappointments too; that is, in all the aspects of this bill Democrats did not even talk about before it passed.

We all remember when Speaker PELOSI famously said: We have to pass this bill so we can find out what is in it. One of the things Americans found out about was something called the IPAB—Independent Payment Advisory Board. This is an unelected, unaccountable board of bureaucrats empowered by this law to make additional cuts to Medicare based on arbitrary cost control targets. As a result of this new board, 15 bureaucrats would now have the power—without any accountability whatsoever—to make changes to Medicare.

What is more, there is no judicial or administrative review of IPAB personnel or recommendations. In other words, they are accountable to no one. IPAB is not answerable to voters, and it cannot be challenged in the courts. Its main role, as the Wall Street Journal editorial board put it, will be “the inevitable dirty work of denying care”—“the inevitable dirty work of denying care.”

In an effort to control spending, IPAB will limit patient access to medical care. It is that simple and, frankly, it is totally unacceptable. Republicans recognize the problem with Medicare spending and the need for reform. We also recognize that IPAB is not the answer.

This is just one more reason ObamaCare needs to be repealed and replaced, and that is why even Democrats are cosponsoring a bill to repeal it over in the House, calling it “a flawed policy that will risk beneficiary access to care.” So this is not just a Republican issue; there is strong bipartisan opposition to this new law.

Look, if the President himself does not even want to talk about this law anymore, and even Democrats in the House are sponsoring repeal of parts of their own law, it should be pretty obvious that we need to get on with it.

We need to reform health care. But this reform made things worse. The evidence and broken promises are all around us. It is time the President acknowledged it, and it is time the two parties came together and did something about it.

It is time to repeal ObamaCare and replace it with the kind of common-sense reforms Americans want—reforms that actually lower costs and which put health care back in the hands of individuals and their doctors rather than bureaucrats in Washington.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will be in a period of morning business for 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with the majority controlling the first half and the Republicans controlling the final half. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

Mr. HARKIN. Again, Mr. President, tomorrow we celebrate the second anniversary of the signing of the affordable care act into law. Our Democratic leader, Senator REID, in his opening remarks today, outlined the tremendous progress we have made. I listened to the comments made by our distinguished Republican leader, and all I heard was: Repeal ObamaCare, repeal ObamaCare.

But I never heard what they want to replace it with. They just want to go back to the old system where the insurance companies ran everything before, where people were thrown off their policies because they had an illness, where because of preexisting conditions people could not get health care coverage, where we had this big doughnut hole which we are now closing for the elderly?

The one aspect I want to focus on this morning in my brief time is an extraordinary element of the affordable care act that is not being talked about a lot but which members of the committee I now am privileged to chair, the HELP Committee, worked so hard to include in the affordable care act; that is, the array of provisions that promote wellness, disease prevention, and public health.

Taken together, these provisions have begun to jump-start America’s transformation into a genuine wellness society. They are transforming our current sick care system into a true health care system. I have said this many times: We do not have a health care system in America. We have a sick care system. If people get sick, they get care—one way or the other. But there is very little out there to help people keep healthy and to maintain wellness and to keep them from going to the hospital in the first place. Now, that is what I call the old health care system, and that is what we have begun to establish with the affordable care act, by preventing chronic diseases, enabling people to stay healthy, and stay out of hospitals in the first place.

Right now in the United States about 75 percent of all our health care spending—75 percent of the Nation’s health care spending—is on chronic diseases. Only 4 percent is spent for prevention. So during the last year we have data for—2005—the United States spent about $2 trillion on health care. Of every $1 spent, 75 cents went toward treating patients with chronic diseases, many of which are preventable. Only 4 cents went toward prevention. That ought to tell us something right there. That is the system, and that is the system the Republicans want us to go back to: Spending more and more to treat people after they get sick rather than trying to put something forward to keep people healthy.

Well, in the affordable care act we have tremendous opportunities to again move us to more prevention and wellness. We have made historically new investments in this area of wellness, prevention, and public health. Here is one example of that, as shown on this chart.

Before our health care reform bill, our law, was passed, just take the issue of colorectal cancer screening: we know, if people get it early and detect it early, their chances of survival are tremendous. If people detect it too late, then they are going to be in the hospital, and they are going to have cancer, they are not going to live. But we know, by people getting a colorectal cancer screening, that there is tremendous opportunity to again move us to more prevention and wellness. We have made historically new investments in this area of wellness, prevention, and public health.

Cholesterol screening: We know if people get good cholesterol screening, they can get on either a drug or a good diet, an exercise program, reducing the prevalence of heart disease. Tobacco cessation: Need we keep repeating around here how much it costs our society from the plague of tobacco use?

Well, here is where we were before health care reform, as shown on this chart. About 68 percent were covered for colorectal cancer screenings, about 57 percent were covered for cholesterol screenings, and only 4 percent were covered for tobacco cessation activities.

After health care reform, now there is 100 percent—100 percent—coverage for colorectal screenings with no copays and deductibles. I might add; 100 percent coverage for cholesterol screenings, and 100 percent coverage for tobacco cessation activities.

That is prevention, that is wellness, keeping people healthy in the first place. What do the Republicans want? They want to go back to what it was. They have made too much progress in prevention and wellness to go back to the old ways of just treating people after they get sick.

Now, again, we have been able to promote the care of patients around the country to promote health and wellness. For example, in Illinois, the State made improvements to its side-walks and marked crossings to increase student physical activity levels. You might say: Well, big deal. Well, it is. Because of these improvements, the number of students who are walking to school has doubled—doubled—and it is expected to save the school system about $677,000 a year just on bus costs. So kids are healthier and we save money.

In Alabama, Mobile County is using funds from this prevention fund to support tobacco quit lines to help residents live tobacco free—again, under the Tobacco Cessation Program. Officials estimate over 4,000 comprehensive smoke-free policy expected to protect 13,000 of their residents—this is in Mobile County, AL—from being exposed to secondhand smoke. All across America, more and more is being invested in preventive care. For example, a 5-percent reduction in the obesity rate—just a 5-percent reduction in the obesity rate—will yield more than $600 billion in savings on health care costs over 20 years.

Again, our prevention fund is out there getting people the necessary support and information they need to reduce obesity. So with the misguided efforts to repeal the health care reform law, again, most Americans know what is at stake. They are going to lose a lot of these prevention activities that enable us to take charge of our own health care to make sure we get our colonoscopies on time, our mammograms, and screenings.

Every woman in America now over age 40 gets a free mammogram screening—no copays, no deductibles. The Republicans want to take that away from the women of this country. Colonoscopies, as I said, without copays or deductibles. Republicans want to take that away. Annual physicals. We know a lot of people do not get annual physicals because it costs money. It costs them. Now they can get an annual physical free—no copays, no deductibles. Republicans want to take that away.

Again, I think we have to ask the question—every time I hear the Republicans talking about doing away with ObamaCare or the affordable care act, we have to ask: Are we going to cut short this transformation into a wellness society in preventing diseases, keeping people healthy in the first place? I think the answer is clear. Americans are not going to allow all those hard-earned protections and benefits under the affordable care bill to be taken away. We are not going to be dragged backward. We are going to continue our march forward to make ourselves more healthy. We are not going back to the old system, where only a little over half the people in this country got cholesterol screening, 68 percent got colorectal cancer screening.

We want people to get early screenings, we want people to have preventive care so they stay healthy. Not only is it going to help our family budgets, it is going to help our Federal budget if we have people healthier and not going to the hospital in the first place.

ObamaCare or the affordable care act is not talked about a lot. But to me it is one of the most important aspects of moving us, again, to a society where we are not just relying on people going to the hospital and paying for high hospital bills and things such as that in the future.

I am going to yield the floor. I just wanted to make those comments about one aspect of the affordable care act. Of course, we do know there are many benefits in the affordable care act people do not want to lose. Right now, we ban lifetime limits, which helps more than 100 million people. They want to take that away. Republicans want to take that away. We cover vital preventive services, which I just went over; young people remaining on their parents’ coverage up to age 26—all the things that we have made too much progress too much progress in making sure health insurance is affordable, available.

I guess I have just one more thing to say, if my friend from Rhode Island will let me.

Everyone in this Senate body belongs to the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program. Do you know what. We have coverage for preexisting conditions. We have no lifetime limits on our policies. Yet that is what we did; we want to move forward with health care reform because we have made too much progress too much progress in making sure health insurance is affordable, available.

I yield the floor for my distinguished friend from Rhode Island who played such a pivotal role in getting the affordable care act through on our committee and has been one of the more eloquent spokespersons on this health care bill in the last couple years.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WARRNER). The Senator from Rhode Island.
Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Let me first congratulate Chairman HARKIN for his remarks today but more than that the work that has preceded today on the health care bill. He was an ardent advocate for the prevention programs that save lives and money. It was a real pleasure to work with him at that time.

Today is the second anniversary of the passage of the affordable care act. I wish to describe how the law is already making a difference for families in Rhode Island and across the country by drastically improving access to higher quality care, by addressing rising health care costs, and by protecting consumers.

Look at the changes. Children with preexisting conditions were denied coverage—no longer. Lifetime limits on insurance policies left many American families struggling to pay medical care bills. These days those no longer. Insurers could cancel coverage for individuals who became sick—no longer.

In addition, the law helps kids just out of school who all too often cannot get that first job with health insurance. It is a shame to have to rely on their parents’ insurance policies until age 26.

For seniors, prescription drug costs are down as the Medicare doughnut hole begins to close. This is real change, and it hits home in my home State of Rhode Island. I hear from Rhode Islanders and I listen.

I heard from Greg, a father in Providence, who told me about his 16-year-old son Will. Will spends 2 hours every day undergoing treatment to keep his cystic fibrosis under control. In addition to his daily treatment and prescriptions, Will sees a specialist four times a year to monitor the disease. Greg said he often thinks about his son Will’s future and whether his son will be able to maintain health insurance coverage and receive the treatment he needs.

Thanks to the affordable care act, Will does not have to worry about insurance companies denying him coverage because he has a preexisting condition. He feels that he will have to go without treatment because his medical bills will have pushed him over some arbitrary lifetime limit.

As many as 374,000 Rhode Islanders, including 89,000 children similar to Will, can now receive the treatments they need free from lifetime limits on coverage. People who want to repeal ObamaCare should be ready to look in the eye and tell him why they want to take that away from him and his son.

Olive, a senior from Woonsocket, shared with me that her husband takes several medicines to help treat his Alzheimer’s disease. A 3-month supply for two of his medications costs close to $1,000. As Olive said: ‘‘Those months go by quickly. Last year, Olive and her husband fell into the prescription drug doughnut hole in July. Without the affordable care act, they would have been responsible for paying the full cost of his medications. But because of health care reform, Olive and her husband received a discount on their prescription drugs and saved $2,400 last year.’’

Olive and her husband are two of the over 14,800 Rhode Islanders who received a 50-percent discount on brand-name prescription drugs when they hit the doughnut hole. This discount resulted in an average savings of over $550 per person, for a total savings of more than $8.2 million for seniors in Rhode Island alone.

People who want to repeal ObamaCare should be ready to look in the eye and tell her why that $8.2 million should go back into the pocket of the pharmaceutical company she and her husband should have to cough up an extra $2,400 for the drug companies.

Brianne, a 22-year-old graduate of the University of Rhode Island, currently works part time as a physical therapy assistant. She makes frequent trips to her doctor to monitor the disease. Greg said he ‘‘It’s the right thing to do.’’

As of June of last year, Brianne was 1 of over 7,500 young adults in Rhode Island who gained insurance coverage as a result of the reform law. People who want to repeal ObamaCare need to explain to Brianne why she and those other 7,500 Rhode Island kids should be kicked off their parents’ policy.

The affordable care act has also brought needed relief to employers that are still the leading source of health coverage in the United States. Geoff is a small business owner in Providence. He provides health insurance for his employees because, as he said, ‘‘It’s the right thing to do.’’

But the rising costs of his employees’ health insurance have placed increased pressure on his business. Geoff is a business owner in the small business health care tax credit, which covers up to 35 percent of premiums paid by a small business owners for its employees coverage. These credits are a lifeline for small businesses that are struggling in today’s difficult economy and for the people those small businesses employ. People who want to repeal ObamaCare need to look Geoff in the eye and tell him why they want to take away that tax credit life line that lets him provide coverage for his employees.

The affordable care act also provided support for community health centers.

In Rhode Island, similar to elsewhere in the country, community health centers fill a critical gap in our health care system, delivering comprehensive, preventive, and primary care to patients, regardless of their ability to pay.

Mr. Whitehouse. Let me first congratulate Chairman HARKIN and the HELP Committee on the Obama administration’s implementation of the delivery system reform provisions of the affordable care act. When I say ‘‘delivery system reform,’’ I mean those provisions that Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, we are going to talk about Medicare today and the way the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act cuts into Medicare, destroys Medicare, all.

Two years ago the President wanted a health care bill in the worst way, and that is exactly what he got, and that is exactly what America got.

Anybody out there on Medicare or about to be on Medicare or young enough that someday they will be on Medicare should be very concerned about what happened under this act.

All of you, I am sure, are aware of somebody who is on Medicare who has already been hurt; they are being denied because they are not being paid what they ought to be paid.

To call it the “patient protection” and “affordable” care act is a major mistake. It neither protects Medicare patients nor makes it affordable.

In fact, one of the things we will bring out today is that there has been a theft of $500 billion from Medicare to fund other parts of the program. There is some fraud in it because it was spent, but it still shows up in the account. That in itself is a fraud, and it really doesn’t add to the debt. To solve the whole thing, they have a whole new board of unelected bureaucrats to make additional cuts to Medicare to make it look as though it is OK. And then there is the accounting sleight of hand. I am one of the two accountants in the Senate now, and you have to pay attention to it. It goes back to the fraud because if this same sort of thing were being done in the private sector, people would go to jail.

There are a number of ways that we will bring out how that is not just budget gimmicks and sleight of hand but is actually taking advantage of seniors.

The Chief Medicare Actuary said that Medicare will go broke in 2024. That is 5 years earlier than last year’s report by the Chief Medicare Actuary. He is the guy who works for Medicare; he doesn’t work for us. He has to figure out how much in the hole it is and what needs to be done to fix it.

My contention, of course, is that you can’t steal $500 billion out of a program that is already going broke and expect it to be fine. We warned about that as we were going through the passage of this Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, which, as already mentioned, was passed 2 years ago tomorrow. It could have been fixed. There were three plans on the Republican side that would have done what is claimed to be done by this act. Those ideas were largely rejected.

Today we are going to talk about some thefts, fraud, unelected bureaucrats, and accounting sleight of hand. I have some people here who want to respond to some of the things that have been said.

Senator COBURN has listened to some comments made on the other side celebrating this great day.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I listened very intently to the first two speakers this morning. As somebody who has now been a physician for almost 30 years—I practiced full time for over 25 years—I heard the Senator from Iowa and what his desire would be on the chart he showed. He said that 100 percent screening is occurring now in three areas. That isn’t true. We are not screening. We hope to screen, and we hope to screen 100 percent, but the facts on screening that are available are that it is only used 5 percent by Medicare patients on the screening that was already available with no cost to Medicare patients. So we have to distinguish between what we desire and what is actually going to happen.

Let’s take the example of colon screening. I am a colon cancer survivor. I was diagnosed, through colonoscopy, with colon cancer. Let’s take that example, and then let’s take the example of the other aspects of the affordable care act, called the Independent Payment Advisory Board. What is the purpose of that Independent Payment Advisory Board? Its purpose is to cut the cost of Medicare through the decrease of reimbursements—first, for the first 5 years, physicians and outside providers, and then, starting in 2019, hospitals. What do you think the first thing to be cut will be? It is the reimbursement rate for a colonoscopy. So when the reimbursement rate for a colonoscopy goes below the cost—and it is very close right now, by the way, the cost to perform a colonoscopy versus what Medicare reimburses—when that is cut, what do you think will happen on screening?

The goal of changing health care is an admirable goal. We know that $1 in $3 doesn’t help anybody get well or prevent them from getting sick today. But what the American people need to understand is that what is coming about is a group of 15 unelected bureaucrats, who cannot be challenged in court, who cannot be challenged on the floor of the Senate or the House, mandating price reductions to control the cost of Medicare. What does that ultimately mean? They will do their job. We won’t be able to do anything about it. But what it means is that they will reimburse at levels less than the cost to do services, and so, consequently, what will happen is the services won’t be there.

They also are going to do what is called comparative effectiveness research. We know about comparative effectiveness research. If you are a practicing physician today, you have to do continuing medical education. Part of that medical education is knowing the latest comparative effectiveness research. It is as if they are reinventing something that already exists. But the point is that they are going to use that to deny or change payments for procedures that patients need.

What is wrong with all of this? It is that we are inserting a government board that will make the critical decision about what is the best care for our seniors. That is a pretty heavy burden to put on a nine-person board that might not even have a medical background.

Think about that for a moment. When I go to my doctor, I don’t want him concentrating about anything except me. He turns over his shoulder about whether he met the IPAB’s comparative effectiveness study on what he is doing for me, when, in fact, the art of medicine as well as the science may say they are wrong, and he is going to do what the government says rather than what he thinks is best for me, what am I getting for that?

I will be on Medicare next year, much to my regret, because my choices will now be limited in terms of who I can see, the quality of care—it wasn’t intended to be this way, it was intended to be helpful, and I don’t doubt the motives of anybody who set this board up—but the greatest threat to quality of care for seniors in this country is not a patient directly, they are never going to listen to a patient, but they are going to make the ultimate decisions based on what that patient is going to get.

With that, I yield back to my colleague.

Mr. ENZI. But that board was made essential by decisions that were made in the health care bill. In the health care bill, we took $500 billion—$1/2 trillion—out of Medicare. We took $15 billion from hospitals, we cut $120 billion from nursing homes, and we took $135 billion from Medicare Advantage, we took $15 billion from rural America.

We have to fix Medicare, and the only solution we have come up with is the one Senator COBURN mentioned, which is to form this new board, with surprising powers, that is going to be able to cut more in Medicare so it doesn’t go away, though we stole $500 billion from Medicare.

Senator BURR is on the committee. He has had to sit through a lot of the hearings and a lot of the amendments that were never passed from our side that would have fixed this, and I am sure he has some comments.

Mr. BURR. I thank the Senator from Wyoming and my colleague from Oklahoma. We have worked on this, spent tireless hours trying to save not just Medicare but health care as we know it in America today. I think what my colleague has already mentioned is that we have put in place mechanisms in law that will dismantle a health care system the American people feel comfortable with and that has served them well for 50 years, and that is way too expensive. Look at the examples Dr. COBURN has talked about—IPAB, the independent board that will make coverage decisions and reimbursement decisions. When you cut reimbursements, you are isolating patients out of the system. As you cut reimbursements, you are going to defund the hospital’s ability to keep the doors open in rural America.

But let’s look at the things that are not obvious. What does that effort by IPAB do to innovation in health care? What companies are going to go out and put $1 billion on the line for development of a new drug or a device given they do not think they can recover enough through the reimbursement system to cover their research and development, much less the approval process of the products? It would be a vastly different America if in fact all these drugs that are breakthroughs and the devices that are effective at keeping us living longer are sold in Europe and South America and Asia but not in the United States because we have now developed a health care system that doesn’t allow them the ability to recover that money. Now match that with the lack of choice today.

In this country, we have choice. As a matter of fact, as a Federal employee, I can pick from probably 30 different health care plans—the same ones every Federal employee from.

But all of a sudden, in this health care bill, we have said to seniors: You know that Medicare Advantage which allowed you choice, where you could choose a provider other than the Federal Government? Well, we are going to take that away from you. Now, we didn’t take it away, we just said we are not going to reimburse them to the degree that allows them to offer the plans.

Let’s look at what Medicare Advantage provided for seniors. It provided a wide array of benefits than does traditional Medicare. It is good for some. They have chosen it. It won’t be good for them in the future, if this health care bill is not reversed, because through the actions of IPAB and through the explicit language of the bill, Medicare Advantage will not be an advantage anymore, and everybody will have to default to the government plan, which is probably going to be as expensive with preventive care.

I know the Senator from Wyoming knows that in North Carolina we sort of lead the country as the model of medical homes. We are on the verge there of trying to put seniors into medical homes. We have already done it with a Medicaid population. We have saved money. But my State of North Carolina this year has a gap of about $500 million in Medicaid—the people we are responsible for and the money we have allocated for it, even though the last 3 years we have saved almost $1 billion by being creative at how we designed our Medicaid. This health care initiative, with no input from any State, I still doubt that that is going to be a good thing for Medicare beneficiaries in North Carolina. So what have we done? We have shifted the responsibility down to the State at the State taxpayer level.

We still have to fix Medicare, and the only solution we have come up with is the one Senator COBURN mentioned, which is to form this new board, with surprising powers, that is going to be able to cut more in Medicare so it doesn’t go away, though we stole $500 billion from Medicare.

Mr. ENZI. So that prescription Part D actually drove down the cost of medication, and now we are ending up in a situation where part of that will be impossible because of what happened to Medicare, with $500 billion being stolen.

I see we are joined by Senator LEE of Utah, and I know that Utah has had a health care system that has been a model for other States and now is possibly in jeopardy. I don't know if the Senator would care to comment on Medicare or on that, but we appreciate his coming.

Mr. LEE. I thank my colleague. And he is correct, Utah does indeed have a health care system that functions well, and functions well notwithstanding the fact it is not managed, it is not governed by the Federal Government.

This is one of the great wonders of our nation, and became so because of the American health care system that is not managed, that is not governed by the Federal Government.

We learned also that there is great danger to our individual liberty with any government, because whenever any government acts, whenever it does anything to regulate our lives, it does so at the expense of our individual liberty. We became less free, by degrees whenever government does just about anything.

But the risk to our liberty is especially great—it is at its highest—when the acting government is a large one, because that is what enables the government to act in the interest of the majority, and the tendency of government is to treat the majority as it wishes, and the minority as it pleases. When the government acts, it is at its most powerful, and it is at its most dangerous to our liberty.

As the Senator from Wyoming pointed out very well, we created Medicare Part D. What a novel approach, to take a health care system that was not managed, that was not governed, and make it the full-time job of the Federal Government to regulate health care. And that is what we have done in Medicare Part D, and that is why the debate has to be had, because the debate is whether we should continue to have government-regulated health care, or whether we should continue to have health care that is managed by private individuals, private businesses, and private organizations.

The debate has to be had because the debate is whether we want a government-regulated health care system, or whether we want a health care system that is managed by private individuals, private businesses, and private organizations.

The affordable care act—also known as Obamacare—contains an individual health insurance mandate that takes Congress’s powers to a whole new level. For the first time in American history, our national legislature has required every American in every part of this country to have a particular product; not just any product but health insurance; not just any health insurance but that specific kind of health insurance that Congress, in its wisdom, deemed appropriate and necessary for every American to buy. This is absolutely without precedent. It is also, I believe, not defensible even under the broad deferential standard that has been applied by the U.S. Supreme Court since the late 1930s and early 1940s.

Among other things, the limits that have been maintained by the Supreme Court, notwithstanding its deference to Congress under the commerce clause, have been limited by a few principles. First, the Supreme Court has continued to insist that although some intrastate activities will be regulated by Congress under the commerce clause, some activities occurring entirely within one State—activities that historically have been regarded as the exclusive domain of States, activities such as labor, manufacturing, agriculture and mining—although some activities might be covered by Congress, those activities at a minimum have to be activities that impose a substantial burden or obstruction to interstate commerce or on Congress’s regulation of interstate commerce.

The Supreme Court has also continued to insist that the activity in question that is being regulated needs to be activity, first of all, and not inactivity. But it also needs to involve economic activity in most circumstances, unless, of course, it is the kind of activity that, while ostensibly noneconomic, by its very nature undercut a larger comprehensive regulation of activity that is itself economic.

Finally, the Supreme Court has continued to insist time and time again that Congress cannot, in the name of regulating interstate commerce, effectively oblitera the distinction between what is national and what is local.

The affordable care act through its individual mandate effectively blows past every one of those restrictions, restrictions that even under the broad deferential approach the Supreme Court has taken toward the regulation of commerce by Congress over the last 75 years or so—even the Supreme Court, even under these broad standards, isn’t willing to go this far. There are very good reasons for that, and those reasons have to do with our individual liberty. They have to do with the fact that Americans were always intended to live free, and they understand that we are more likely to be free when decisions of great importance need to be hammered out at the State and local level; that is, unless those decisions have been specifically delegated to Congress, specifically designated as national responsibilities. This one is not.

Decisions about where you go to the doctor and how you are going to pay for it are not decisions that are national in nature, according to the text and spirit and letter and history and understanding of the Constitution. They are not, and they cannot be.

If in this instance we say, well, this is important so we need to allow Congress to act, we do so at our own peril. We stand to lose a great deal if all of a sudden we allow Congress to regulate something that is not economic activity; in fact, it is not activity at all. It is inaction. It is a decision by an individual person whether to purchase anything, whether to purchase health insurance or, if so, what kind of health insurance to purchase. Our very liberties are at stake, and that is why I find this concerning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. ENZI. I ask unanimous consent for an additional 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I thought I had 2 more minutes. I appreciate the comments.

This is the 2-year anniversary of the passage of what is the so-called affordable patient care act. The Supreme Court has chosen next week to begin the discussion of the implications of that decision by taking three times as long as they do on any case so that they can divide this into pieces, and that mandate piece will be the second one.

One that they probably won’t be going into is this Medicare problem. We are going to have seniors who are going to be without care because we have taken $500 billion out of Medicare when it needed a doc fix and it needed a whole bunch of other things, and particularly in those areas there are critical access hospitals, rural health clinics. Can any reasonable person believe that you can cut $3 trillion from a program and not affect its impact on patient care?

I wish to have more time to show that there is a theft of this $500 billion, there is fraud involved, that there are bureaucrats and accounting sleight of hand.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

JUMPSTART OUR BUSINESS STARTUPS ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of H.R. 3606, which the clerk will read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3606) to increase American job creation and economic growth by improving access to the public capital markets for emerging growth companies.

Pending:

Reid (for Merkley) Amendment No. 1884, to amend the securities laws to provide for registration exemptions for certain crowd-funded securities.

Reid (for Reed) Amendment No. 1931 (to Amendment No. 1884), to improve the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until 12:30 p.m. will be equally divided between the two leaders or their designees.

The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be yielded 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, in a few hours, after votes on two amendments that I hope we will pass, we are going to vote on final passage of the House of Representatives-passed bill, the so-called JOBS bill. I am going to vote against passage of this bill because it would remain far too deeply flawed even if the two amendments were passed to justify passage by the Senate.

I am going to vote no on this bill because it will significantly weaken existing protections for investors against fraud and abuse.

The supporters of this bill claim it will help to create jobs. They have even titled it the JOBS Act, but there is no evidence it will help create new jobs. There is not one study that its proponents have shown us how repealing provisions that protects us from conflicts of interest in the research coverage of companies with up to $1 billion in revenue will create jobs; nor is there evidence that removing transparency and disclosure requirements for very large companies will create jobs; nor is there evidence that allowing unregulated stock sales to those unable to assess, withstand, or withstand investments will create jobs; nor is there much else in this bill that will, even arguably, help create jobs. It will, however, take the cop off the beat relative to the activities of some huge banks, and it will threaten damage to the honesty and integrity of our financial markets.

That is a mistake in its own right. We should value honesty and integrity in markets, as in all things. And legislation that creates new opportunities for fraud and abuse should be amended or rejected. But the damage done by this bill to the integrity of our markets will also work against the purported goal of this bill—the encouragement of investment to create jobs.

By making our financial markets less transparent, less honest, and less accountable, this legislation threatens to discourage investors from participating in capital markets. That damage would make it harder—not easier—for companies to attract the capital they need and to hire new workers.

Our capital markets are the envy of the world, and that is in part because we recognize that efficient markets that help businesses raise capital and aim to match up investors in companies need transparency and they need financial integrity. But this bill will allow companies to make fewer disclosures and impose important investor safeguards. This bill will increase many types of risks to investors, including the risk of outright fraud. I want to focus on a few of the many serious flaws in this bill.

First, this bill harms investors by allowing a wide range of companies to avoid basic requirements for disclosure and transparency. It does that by changing the threshold at which companies are considered large enough and their stock is widely enough held to trigger those disclosure requirements. Today, companies are generally required to register with the SEC and meet basic requirements for financial transparency and accountability if they have 500 or more shareholders. The bill before us will raise that exemption to 2,000 or even more shareholders. It would even raise the level at which banks can deregister from 300 to 1,200 or more shareholders regardless of the bank’s size in terms of assets. These changes would allow even very young companies with several thousand shareholders to avoid telling regulators, shareholders, and potential shareholders even the most basic information about their finances, and to avoid accounting and reporting standards.

Second, this bill harms investors by allowing companies to make largely unregulated private stock offerings to members of the public. Today, such inherently risky, unregulated offerings cannot be advertised to the public and are generally limited to shareholders who are financially able to absorb the risks involved. But the House bill allows advertisement of these unregulated offerings to the general public. It will even allow banks to sell even more risky schemes with almost no oversight. Advertisers could pitch these risky investments in cold calls to senior citizens centers. That is why groups such as AARP are deeply concerned about what these changes will do to senior citizens who are often the targets of financial fraud and abuse.

Third, this bill abandons a lesson we learned all too painfully during the dot-com crisis of the 1990s. At that time, companies seeking their investment. It defies common sense to argue that investors will be more likely to put their money at risk and therefore help to create jobs in that kind of environment.

This is a bad bill. Because debate was closed off and amendments severely limited, it will not be able to fix nearly enough of it. But we will hopefully remedy a few of its flaws in amendments we are going to be voting on. Change to the crowding provisions of the House bill is welcome, and I commend Senators MERKLEY, BENNET, and others who drafted that provision which Senators REED, LANDRIEU, and I also incorporated in our substitute bill, which was defeated yesterday. This amendment will give investors some idea of a company’s wherewithal and potential value. It is a useful tool in establishing capital and in support of Senator REED’s amendment to close important loopholes in the current law—one the House bill fails to address. With this amendment, it will be harder to evade registration and disclosure requirements by using shareholders of record who exist only on paper but who hold shares for large numbers of actual beneficial owners. This, too, is part of our substitute, and its inclusion in the bill would represent an improvement.

But we should not fool ourselves. These improvements, if adopted, though welcome, are far from sufficient. We are about to embark upon the most sweeping deregulatory effort and assault on investor protection in decades. The Council of Institutional Investors warns us that “this legislation will likely create more risks to investors than jobs.”

If we pass this bill, it will allow new opportunities for fraud and abuse in capital markets. Rather than growing our economy, we are courting the next accounting scandal, the next stock bubble, the next financial crisis. If this bill passes, we will be voting at our votes today with deep regret.

We should not adopt this bill today. We should return it to committee. We should have hearings. We should have opportunities to amend this bill. Adopting this bill will put us in a position of the most massive and mistaken deregulation of our capital markets in decades.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BROWN of Ohio). The senior Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, soon, around the 12:30 hour or on one of the seven votes this afternoon, we are going to be voting on cloture on the STOCK Act. I have 45 minutes allotted to me to speak about the disappointments I have with the this bill, and why I think the parliamentary procedure is wrong and why the whole process irritates me.

Bipartisanship happens to be alive and well in Washington, DC, where most of our constituents believe it is never working. Earlier this week, we had the Republican majority leader of the House and the Democratic majority leader of the Senate—that is bipartisan work together to thwart the will of 60 Senators and 286 Members of Congress. The end result is that—work together to thwart the will of 60 Senators and 286 Members of Congress. The end result is that—work together to thwart the will of 60 Senators and 286 Members of Congress. have a 60-vote requirement in the Senate, we know what that 60-vote requirement is meant to do; that no amendment under a 60-vote requirement is ever going to be adopted. That was surely the motive behind the 60-vote requirement. When an amendment got adopted when this bill was first up, because the Democratic leader voted against it, the Republican leader voted against it, the Democratic manager spoke against it, and the Republican manager was against it. Common sense tells us, if we study the Senate, an amendment such as that is never supposed to get adopted. But we got the 60 votes to get it adopted. Frankly, I was surprised we got the 60 votes to get it adopted. But that is taken out of the bill we are going to be voting on this afternoon.

My amendment simply says that if someone seeks information from Congress or the executive branch to trade stocks, sale executive branch, and the American people ought to know who they are. Nobody is saying they cannot do it, but we ought to know who they are. We do that through the process where everybody ought to know who lobbyists are—not that lobbying is bad, but it ought to be transparent. With transparency comes accountability. The same way this amendment asks these people who are involved in seeking information to register so we know who they are. The amendment asks about lobbying. Frankly, if we want to know who they are, we ought to bring all that out of the shadow, into the public’s information.

But the leadership of both parties—the majority in the House and the majority in the Senate—went behind closed doors and made that provision magically disappear. What they did was truly amazing because a handful of Senators and Congress, the executive branch, and the American people ought to know who they are. Nobody is saying they cannot do it, but we ought to know who they are. Do that through the process where everybody ought to know who lobbyists are—not that lobbying is bad, but it ought to be transparent. With transparency comes accountability. The same way this amendment asks these people who are involved in seeking information to register so we know who they are. The amendment asks about lobbying. Frankly, if we want to know who they are, we ought to bring all that out of the shadow, into the public’s information.

Let me go back to section 7, part b, and quote:

Definition—for purposes of this section, the term “political intelligence” shall mean information that is derived by a person from direct communications with an executive branch employee, a Member of Congress, or an employee of Congress; and provided in exchange for financial compensation to a client, consultant, or client’s employees, and who is known to intend, to use this information to inform investment decisions.

That is the definition that they thought we don’t know what political intelligence is. It’s not going to be the right. Is passing this amendment, even though 286 Members of the House of Representatives have sponsored a bill to do it and take that very same definition that they say is so vague and put it in a bill for the purposes of studying something. That seems pretty straightforward, doesn’t it? That definition seems pretty straightforward. Of course, now that definition will only be applied to a study, not to legislation with real teeth—because the powerful interests of Wall Street are running out.

If you think that is bad, this is what happened to the STOCK Act in the Senate. By now, I think just about everybody is familiar with the STOCK Act because the powerful interests of Wall Street are running out. If you think that is bad, this is what happened to the STOCK Act in the Senate. them. So now there is kind of a relationship built up here between the people who know their way around Congress and people who want this information that if there is investment in stock as a result of this and there is an increase in the value of the stock, that one who is trading through the company. That is a tragic result of this decision by the leadership to leave out the amendment that was adopted by 60 Members of this Congress and would do nothing more—not make anything illegal—than let us know who these people are.

Through my oversight investigations, I have learned that political intelligence gathering for Wall Street is a growing field ripe for abuse. Here are two examples of the type of activity that will continue to be kept in the dark.

In the course of my investigations of a whistleblower’s claim, I learned that the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services has closed-door meetings with Wall Street firms where CMS policies are discussed. No record is kept of the meetings, and employees are essentially on the honor system to make sure they are not giving investors inside information. As an example, the whistleblower who came to us claimed that over a dozen CMS employees spent nearly 2 hours briefing Wall Street analysts and investigators on the tax-payers’ dime. A member of the public could not know in and get that kind of access to that information. CMS is supposed to be working for us. Instead, we found out that they are working for Wall Street. If my amendment fails, we won’t know how many of these meetings occur throughout the government and who profits from these meetings.

Another example is an investigation I conducted into the Obama administration’s Department of Education. The Department of Education was getting set up to issue regulations on gainful employment that would affect not-for-profit colleges. Several hedge funds had bet big that those new regulations would make it harder for for-profit colleges to do business. Then news began to leak that those regulators were not going to be as tough as was expected. Suddenly, for-profit stocks began to rise, and these hedge fund investors reached out to their friends in the Department of Education.

This is from an actual e-mail my investigators uncovered. It was sent from Steve Elsman, a hedge fund investor, to David Bergeron. He was part of a team in charge of writing these regulations. The e-mail reads:

I know you cannot respond, but FYI education stocks are running because people are hearing DOE is backing down on gainful employment.

To translate that Wall Street jargon, the term “running” means that a stock is going up.

Within minutes this e-mail was marked “high importance” and forwarded to senior-level political appointees. These appointees included James Kvaal, the Deputy Under Secretary, and another policy expert at the Department and Phil Martin, the Secretary of Education’s confidential assistant. To this day we do not know why the Department’s higher education inspector general doesn’t know that a hedge fund investor was losing money. What we do know is that for-profit stock dropped significantly, and if you bet big that these stocks would drop, you likely made a lot of money. When I asked the Department of Education if they had answered my questions, they admitted to my staff that this e-mail was not a proper contact.

In addition, the Department of Education inspector general is investigating the gainful employment rule-making process.

These are just two examples in government agencies where reports such as these are just the tip of the iceberg. The more powerful a Department is, the more it affects financial markets, and the more it affects financial markets, the more people on Wall Street want to pay for information about what is going to happen here on this island surrounded by reality that we call Washington.

Usually, the only way any sort of ethics reform gets done around here is if someone gets caught. With political intelligence, we have the opportunity to create transparency before the next scandal occurs. As Wall Street grows, this industry is going to grow, with the potential for corruption. The question is, What are we going to do about it? Transparency is the simplest and least intrusive solution, and if transparency doesn’t do the job, then you can legislate. But I have found out through so many of my investigations over the last 20 years that if you bring transparency to something and get it out in the open, it tends to correct itself—maybe not completely but to a great degree.

Originally, in starting investigations, you think you are going to have to have a massive amount of legislation, but when you get transparency involved and the accountability that goes along with it, you find that you don’t have to pass a lot of laws, that a lot of people know that if somebody is looking over their shoulder, they are going to do what is right.

Now, with a commission another study, as the House of Representatives wants to do and we are going to be voting on when we vote on cloture here, but that is kicking the can down the road for another year. We can act today by defeating cloture and getting to some of these amendments that have such widespread support in the Congress of the United States. With 60 votes in the Senate and 286 cosponsors in the House of Representatives, this is our last chance to make sure the Senate does not give up against secrecy for political and economic espionage people and for transparency in government. We must not allow the special interests to operate in the dark.

Just bring them out of the shadows—not that what they are doing is illegal, but we ought to know what it is.

For these reasons, and to support transparency, to support open government, and to support good government, I will vote for this bill and I hope a lot of my colleagues—in fact, I hope all 60 of my colleagues who voted for the amendment in the first place—will oppose cloture.

Cloture is invoked, which is likely, I intend to vote for this bill anyway because the underlying bill is a very necessary piece of legislation, but it is not much of a victory for the American people. As the Washington Post said, if it included the Leahy amendment, if it included the Grassley amendment, it would be the most sweeping ethics reform in the last 5 years.

I yield the floor and reserve the remainder of my time. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the question be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, this is a critical moment. The Senate is on the verge of adopting legislation that could cost the American people dearly in the future. The House bill with respect to capital formation, which is labeled a jobs bill, but goes more to fundamentally changing security laws, is, in effect, another regulatory race to the bottom. There has not been a normal committee process in terms of weighing this legislation. This is a complicated bill involving the interaction of many different securities laws, interactions which have not been sorted out or analyzed, yet we are rushing to justice—or rushing to conclusions.

Hasty deregulation has repeatedly been included in the savings of financial crises—including the savings and loans crisis, the Enron-era crisis, the great recession of 2008, and the list goes on. Those who are impacted by those crises—those who lost their savings or dealt with cleaning them up, experts in this field, and many more—have come out in strong opposition to this proposal: from the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Mary Schapiro, the North American Securities Administrators Association, the State officials charged with enforcing securities laws, auditors, financial analysts, pension fund managers, and organizations like AARP, all who have spoken out against this legislation and supported my efforts to protect investors.

This capital formation bill is fundamentally flawed, and it should not become law in its present form. It undercuts and dilutes investor protections and has no real requirements to

S1967

The underwriters were paid 18 times what the auditors were. Groupon paid their accountants and auditors $1.5 million, and their investment bankers received $42 million. So the notion that these Sarbanes-Oxley auditing costs and accounting procedures are what is responsible for the companies from deciding to go ahead ignores the fact that compared to the investment banking fees which they will still have to pay, these costs are somewhat insignificant in comparison.

Theoretically, this bill is supposed to promote the flow of capital to emerging businesses. But in practice it will likely promote and continue to promote the flow of big fees to investment bankers and others to bring these companies public. There is nothing wrong with that, but there is nothing in this underlying legislation that is going to require discounts in the cost of an IPO because of the reductions in accounting costs. There is nothing in this legislation that goes to pricing the IPO. However, this legislation could give insiders more ways to manipulate the market while average investors are left out in the cold.

There is a difference between cutting red tape and allowing insiders to cut corners—undoing the commonsense safeguards that protect people who play by the rules. The House bill lowers standards for taking companies public and lowers standards for protecting the public investment which is the primary purpose when companies go public.

This so-called IPO onramp desperately needs an onramp, through more careful consideration by the Senate and the House in conference so that we can improve some provisions which have great merit but need improvement. This bill would allow very large companies with up to $1 billion in revenues per year to avoid financial transparency and auditing disclosure designed to ensure they are not manipulating their books while enjoying lighter regulation for up to 5 years after the IPO.

If this unbalanced bill becomes law, without these needed improvements, it could weaken oversight of Wall Street—oversight that in the past has provided investors protections that are extremely important. Again, there is merit to the idea of giving small start-up companies more financing options, but the devil is in the details, and the way this bill is written and packaged could be the perfect storm that ultimately make it harder to raise capital. It opens the spigot to general solicitation and mass marketing of what have traditionally been private securities offerings, and we could fully expect to have senior citizens and others through nightly cable advertisements, through billboards, cold calls by brokers, or other individuals telling them about the special opportunities for investing their cash, fall for some of these tactics.

Retail investors can be solicited through this bill’s reg A process to raise up to $50 million capital for small businesses. They will hear the pitches to make their investment now and get rich.

Again, there is potential for expanding the use of regulation— it is on the books already at the Securities and Exchange Commission—but not without safeguards. For example, as the bill is currently drafted, these solicitations can be made without audited financial statements. I think as a point of departure, if someone is trying to sell a security, they should at least have to provide ordered financials from the company they are soliciting on behalf of.

Now, the crowdfunding amendment, I hope will still be improved by the work of Senator Merkley and Senator Bennet and Senator Brown. We will be voting on that later today too. It is a substantial improvement, but I think even they themselves will admit this is an experiment and perhaps could be improved even further. But I commend them and salute them for what they have done, and I hope our colleagues will accept the amendment and move forward.

Over the last few days we have spent a great deal of time talking about the shortcomings in this legislation. With the exception of the proposals before us, many of these shortcomings still exist, and I think they will lead potentially to difficulties and harm to investors.

People understand investing is risky. They try to make an informed choice, and they win some and lose some. But more Americans want U.S. financial markets work best when investors have access to timely, comprehensive, and accurate public information that allows people to make solid investment decisions. In fact, one of the principles of the competitive market, if we refer to our economics 101 textbook, is perfect information.

That is the assumption for competitive markets: perfect information.

Well, there is never perfect information. But there has to be information. Otherwise it is not a market, it is a casino. This legislation undermines some of the decades-long protections we have had in place to provide at least adequate information to investors.

By stripping away auditing standards and giving the investing public less information in almost every setting, sophisticated players and investment banks will have all the advantages. The average investor will be operating in much more challenged circumstances.

Middle-class America will be particularly affected. As USA Today noted:

Banks that manage IPOs will be able to use their access to past financial results to dominate research on new companies, with incentives to promote their firm’s banking clients.

The American people want big banks and large companies to play fair and comply with the basic rules and responsibilities that go with being a public company. That is not too much to ask.
I believe history will judge this misnamed bill quite harshly. Instead of rushing to pass this bill, we should be working together to protect the interests and economic well-being of the American public. We should be focused on creating jobs and helping working families. As Senator, this bill does not do that and, indeed, ironically, it could harm our constituents by shattering their faith—and it has been test- ed quite recently by the financial crisis and other crises—in the market, rather than offering their confidence that they will be protected against fraud and manipulation.

I believe we are capable of writing better legislation without sacrificing important investor protections. I hope we can go forward. I am disappointed the substitute amendment, authored by myself and Senator Landrieu and Senator Levin, was not accepted. As such, I would urge, when we get to final passage, people think very seriously about the consequences of the bill. Despite the efforts of Senator Merkley and Senator Bennett, Senator Brown of Massachusetts and others, despite my efforts, I am afraid the final version of this legislation will not protect investors as it should and, therefore, could be rejected.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that any time remaining in quorum calls be equally divided between my Republican colleagues and my Democratic colleagues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. President, I would like to yield myself 5 minutes to discuss the JOBS Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. President, I think we are doing something very constructive in this body, something very constructive for our economy, for the American people, for economic growth, and for job creation. After being in a Congress that has thus far been a little frustrating for the lack of progress we have made on this front, today is a very big day.

We have a chance to pass a bill that has passed the House overwhelmingly with a huge bipartisan majority—a bill that the President of the United States has said he will sign into law. We have a chance to pass this, to have it signed into law, and to, thereby, enable small and growing businesses across America greater access to the capital they need to grow, to hire new workers, to help expand this economy, to really make some progress at a time when we need it badly.

The bill I am talking about, of course, is the JOBS Act. It has passed the House 290 to 22—an overwhelming majority. It consists of a series of component measures I will talk about in a little bit in some detail—each of which has either passed the full House almost unanimously or at least in committee by overwhelming majorities. This is very broad bipartisan support.

It is important, however, that to get to this point we need to defeat the amendment offered by my friend and colleague, Senator Grassley. It would be a great deal, the Senator from Rhode Island, who is offering an amendment that would have devastating unintended consequences—an amendment that does not merely weaken the progress we are going to make with this bill but would actually push us backwards from where we are today.

The way in which it would do that—and I doubt this is the intent, but I am sure this is the consequence of this amendment—if it were enacted, this amendment would cause companies that are organized as private companies, for good and sufficient reasons—many for many years; they choose to be private companies because it is what is best for their business, their employees, and the shareholders—this bill might well force many of them to become public companies against their will.

Because a change in the rules, in the regulations by which we count the number of shareholders—as the amendment from Rhode Island would do—would trigger this change in the status of these companies, having an enormously detrimental impact on many companies, raising their costs of compliance dramatically, making them less profitable.

I am very concerned, for instance, among the many ways this could happen—one could be through ESOPs, the employee stock ownership plans. I know the Senator from Rhode Island believes they would not trigger this. I think it is very likely they would. Not only would this force private companies to go public against their will, but it would discourage the creation of and investment in employee stock ownership plans. I think the last thing we want to do is discourage a very constructive way of compensating employees.

So if we can defeat the Reed amendment, then we can move on to—I think we will have another amendment that will deal with crowdfunding. I do not know whether that passes. But either way we will be able to expand the opportunity of small companies to raise capital through crowdfunding mechanisms. Then we will have a final pass and then the bill might be the most pro-growth measure this body will consider perhaps this whole year.

Let me walk through a couple of specific items.

This is a chart I have in the Chamber that shows just a sampling of the organizations and institutions that support this bill. It is a wide range of businesses and business associations, folks who are in the business of launching new companies, of growing small companies. It is a long list. This is an incomplete subset of that list.

As shown on this next chart, this is an important point I want to make; that is, there is a very vast range of investor protections that are completely unaddressed, completely unaffected by this legislation.

The legislation is actually modest in the regulations it changes, and the categories it leaves in place to protect investors who are choosing to invest in companies—be they public or private—are quite extensive. A whole range of antifraud provisions that remain in full force are unaffected.

A full range of SEC disclosure and reporting obligations remain entirely still in full force. There are governance rules that are unaffected by any of this legislation—proxy statements, reporting obligations. We have a very extensive body of law and regulation that very precisely controls all kinds of reporting and disclosure requirements designed to protect investors. It all stays in place.

Investors remain very well protected if this legislation is enacted. I want to touch on the three aspects I think I am most excited about, and I will acknowledge my bias. These are three bills I introduced with Democratic cosponsors in the Senate, each of which has been rolled up into this package, in addition to the crowdfunding piece I alluded to earlier and a bill introduced by Senator Thune and others that is also part of this package.

One of the pieces in this jobs package that is very constructive is a bill I introduced with Senator Tester. This is a bill that takes the existing regulation A in the securities law, the body of law—regulation A allows companies to issue a security in a streamlined regulatory fashion. It streamlines the process. It reduces costs somewhat. The problem is, the current limit is only $5 million, making it not very practical for the vast majority of companies. Our bill would take that limit to $50 million and make it an option to raise capital and grow a business that would be available to far more companies.

A second piece that I introduced with Senator Carper, and I am very grateful to Senator Carper for his work, is to lift the permissible number of shareholders that a small privately held business can have without triggering the full, very expensive, and onerous SEC compliance regime. Our bill would take that limit from 500 up to 2,000. There are many companies throughout Pennsylvania, across the country, that are successful. They are growing, they are thriving, but they have a number of shareholders that is bumping up against their limit. They are close to 500. They need to raise capital. They do not want to go public, and they have plenty of people who would like to invest in their successful business so they can grow. But they cannot do it because they are close to that threshold. We would lift that threshold to 2,000 so they can raise more money in the private markets which is available to them.

Then, finally, what is in some ways the centerpiece of this legislation in my mind is a bill I introduced with Senator SCHUMER, and I thank him for his work. This is a bill that facilitates going public. When a company reaches that point in its growth where in order to grow further, in order to hire more workers, in order to expand—it needs to become a publicly traded company, we make it more affordable for more companies to do that, so they can do it sooner, they can grow sooner, they can hire the additional workers sooner.

We do it with what we call an onramp. It is a process by which a company—if it has less than $1 billion in sales, less than $750 million in market flow—such a company would be able to do a public offering without being subject to all of the most expensive parts of the SEC regulatory regime. They would be required to comply with a big majority of all of the existing reporting requirements, but there would be some pieces—especially section 404(b) of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, which is extremely complex and expensive to comply with—they would not have to fully comply with that for 5 years or until they become $1 billion in sales or $750 million in market flow, whichever came first.

So what we are doing with this part of the JOBS Act is we are giving small and growing companies an opportunity to grow faster to avoid the most expensive regulation to which they would be subject. Nobody is exempted permanently. Everybody who goes public would be subject to the full panoply of regulations within 5 years or sooner if they grow faster, and it is only available to companies that have sales, as I said, of less than $1 billion. But that describes a great number of companies.

I can tell you from personal experience, many companies that are not able to cross that threshold of asking themselves: Should we go public—we could grow, we could use the capital, we could deploy it to hire more workers, we could make constructive use of it—they also have to weigh the cost. The cost of compliance right now is huge, and we have seen a huge dropoff in the number of IPOs. We have seen a huge extension in the period of time between the successful launch of a company and the moment they do an IPO. We have seen that lengthen dramatically since we passed Sarbanes-Oxley. It is, in part, because it is so expensive to comply.

So what we will be doing, if we pass this legislation today—which I certainly hope we will—is making it a little bit more affordable for companies to make that decision sooner, which means hiring workers sooner, which means growing sooner, which means more growth for our economy, more opportunities for all of the people we represent.

So I am very optimistic. I am very pleased that we have been able to pull together such broad bipartisan support—this overwhelming vote in the House, the endorsement of the President of the United States, the support and cooperation with individual Democratic Senators who have cosponsored key pieces of this legislation.

I do think it is equally important we defeat the Reed amendment so we do not actually go backwards in this process and have the unintended consequence of forcing currently private companies to become public against their will, to incur all kinds of costs that are actually counterproductive. If we can do that today, then I think we can pass this legislation. We know the President of the United States will sign it. We should do it as soon as we can. I wish to thank all my colleagues who played a role in advancing us to the point we are at today.

I yield the floor and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HAGAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, how much time is remaining in the debate on this measure?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 23 minutes total; 18 minutes on the majority side.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I see the floor is vacant. I assume the time is being taken from both sides at this moment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In the quorum call, the time is being charged equally. Right now, it is being charged to the majority.

Mr. DURBIN. Thank you. I will try to fill that time with something interesting to you, which I think benefits to the best markets in the world. Because of strong regulation and oversight by the Securities and Exchange Commission and other agencies, our markets are transparent and investors get accurate detailed information. One hundred million Americans depend on the strong regulated markets when they are making their savings for retirement or college. This is a creation that began back after the Great Depression, when Franklin Roosevelt said we needed the government able to regulate our financial agencies to set the economy on the right track and keep it there.

Strong oversight has helped pension fund managers who count on safety and transparency so they can provide pension benefits to millions of American retirees, and investors from around the world bring their money here because of our investor protections. Yet the Senate is considering a House-passed capital formation bill that rolls back the very protections that make our markets the best in the world.

Supporters of this bill claim investors will jump at the opportunity to invest in a company as soon as we reduce disclosure, auditing, and accounting standards. They say this is a perfect way to create jobs. But why should investors choose to invest in companies under conditions that do less to protect their money? What should investors who were burned during the dot-com crash put more capital in companies that are exempt from the same rules we put in place to ensure it would never happen again? Why would investors who were left with nothing after the financial crisis because of risky behavior by executives with golden parachutes find companies exempt from compensation standards more attractive?

The answer is they will not. The ones who do will be more exposed to deceit and fraud. The result will not be more jobs, it will be less transparency, less accountability. Professor John Coats of Harvard Law School agrees. Here is what he said: [The proposals] could likely generate their own mandates, but reduce the very thing they are being promoted to increase: job growth.

Listen to what SEC Chief Accountant Lynn Turner said: proposed legislation is a dangerous and risky experiment with US capital markets. . . . I do not believe it will add jobs but may certainly result in investor losses.

The House-passed bill, as written, will not create jobs, but let me tell you why I think it will do. It is going to impose on companies with more than $1 billion in revenue—that is 90 percent of the newly public companies—more than $1 billion of annual revenue exempted from the standards that help ensure audits based on facts, not on who is managing the auditor’s contract. These are the same internal controls we just adopted after Enron, after we were burned there, after investors lost their money, after pension funds lost their investments. This is the right track. Let it never happen again.

In this euphoria, we are going to repeal the Enron standards for these companies. This bill would allow companies to use billboards and cold calls to lure unsophisticated investors with the promise of making a quick buck investing in new companies.

According to the New York Times, it will allow anyone with an idea to post their bid online and sell $50 million without ever providing financial statements. This is a scam. How many times have we picked up our cell phones to see there is a Nigerian opportunity out there? Be prepared after this bill passes. They will not be from Nigeria; they may be from next door. We are giving them the opportunity to ask people all across America for their hard-earned savings on investments that are not backed with financial statements.

Last Friday, SEC Commissioner Aguilar joined the Chairman of the SEC Mary Schapiro in raising concerns about this House-passed bill. Is that... not fair warning that we ought to least have a hearing on this bill before it passes?
I ask unanimous consent to have Commissioner Aguilar’s statement printed in the RECORD.
Third, the bill reorganizes and deletes the provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act that require accelerated filers to provide more disclosure. While there are some legitimate concerns about the disclosure requirements that could harm investors, this bill seems to impose tremendous costs and potential harm on investors with little to no corresponding benefit.

H.R. 3606 concerns me for two important reasons. First, the bill would seriously hurt investors. The bill temporarily reduces transparency, the investor protection and, in turn, make securities law enforcement more difficult. That is bad for ordinary Americans and bad for the American economy.

Second, the bill would greatly increase the costs of capital for startups and emerging companies. The bill’s definition of “emerging growth company” would include every issuer with less than $1 billion in annual revenues (other than large accelerated filers and companies that have issued over $1 billion in debt over a three year period) for five years after the company’s first registered public offering. It is estimated that this bill would exempt 98% of IPOs and a large majority of U.S. public companies for that five year period.

An emerging growth company would only have to provide two years (rather than three years) of audited financial statements, and would not have to provide selected financial data for any period prior to the earliest audited period presented in connection with its initial public offering. It would also be exempt from the requirements for “Say-on-Pay” voting and certain compensation-reports disclosures. Thus, a company’s financial disclosures may make it harder for investors to evaluate companies in this category by obscuring the issuer’s track record and material trends.

“Emerging growth companies” would also be exempt from complying with any new or revised financial accounting standards (other than accounting standards that apply equally to private companies), and from some new standards that may be adopted by the Financial Accounting Standards Board. This would result in inconsistent accounting rules that could damage financial transparency, making it difficult for investors to compare emerging companies to more established companies in their industry. This could harm investors and, arguably, impede access to capital for emerging companies, as capital providers may be more reluctant to invest in companies that have access to all the information they need to make good investment decisions about such companies.

Second, the bill would greatly increase the number of record holders a company may have, before it is required to publish annual and quarterly reports. Currently, companies with more than 500 shareholders are required to register with the SEC pursuant to Section 12(g) of the Securities Exchange Act and provide investors with records of beneficial ownership that are maintained by the underwriters of an IPO. These rules are designed to protect investors from potential conflicts of interest in connection with scandals of the dot-com era and the collapse of the dot-com bubble buried the IPO market for years. Investors won’t return to the IPO market, if they don’t believe they can trust it.

Fifth, H.R. 3606 would fundamentally change U.S. securities law by permitting unlimited offers and sales of securities under Rule 506 of Regulation D (which exempts certain non-public offerings from registration under Securities Act), provided only that all purchasers are “accredited investors.” The bill would specifically permit general solicitation and general advertising in connection with offering materials, thus eliminating the distinction between public and private offerings.

This provision may be unnecessary. A recent report by the Stanford Center for Law, Strategy and Financial Innovation confirms that Regulation D has been effective in meeting the capital formation needs of small businesses, with a median offering size of $1,000,000 and at least $37,000 unique offerings since 2009. Regulation D offerings surpassed $300 billion in 2010. The data does not indicate that users of Regulation D have been seriously hampered by the prohibition on general solicitation and advertising.

I should note concerns expressed by many that this provision of H.R. 3606 would be a boon to boiler room operators, Ponzi schemers, bucket shops, and garden variety fraudsters by enabling them to cast a wider net and make securities law enforcement much more difficult. Currently, the SEC and other regulators may be put on notice of potential frauds by advertisements and Internet sites promoting “investment opportunities.” H.R. 3606 would put an end to that tool. Moreover, since it is easier to establish a violation of the registration and prospectus requirements of the Securities Act than it is to prove fraud, such scams can often be shut down relatively quickly. H.R. 3606 would make it almost impossible to do so before the damage has been done and the money lost.

In addition others have noted that the current definition of “accredited investor” may not be adequate and that the requirement that purchasers be accredited investors would provide limited protection. For example, an “accredited investor” retaining $1 million in savings, who depends on that money for income in retirement, may easily fall prey for a “hot” offering that is continually hyped via the internet or late night commercials. These are just a few observations regarding H.R. 3606. There are other provisions that require substantial further analysis and review, including among other things the so-called crowdfunding provisions.

The expansion of putative protection in this bill are among the factors that have prompted serious concerns from the Council of Institutional Investors, AARP, the North American Securities Administrators Association, the Consumer Federation of America, and Americans for Financial Reform, among others.

QUESTIONS RE: H.R. 3606

As H.R. 3606 is considered, the following is a non-exhaustive list of questions that should be addressed:

1. The bill would define “emerging growth companies,” with the IPO, with less than $1 billion in annual revenue, other than a large accelerated filer or a company that has issued $1 billion in debt over a three-year period. What is the basis for the $1 billion revenue trigger?

2. Why is revenue the right test? Why is $1 billion the right level?

3. It has been estimated that this definition would include 98% of all IPOs, and a large majority of all public companies within the 5-year window. Was such a broad scope intended?

4. As provided in the bill, financial accounting standards, auditing and reporting standards required by the SEC for companies that are otherwise prepared to grow (that is, they have the appropriate business model, management team, and aspirations) are prevented from growing by an inherent lack of access to potential sources of capital. If a company does not comply with regulatory requirements, it would be a boon to boiler room operators, Ponzi schemers, bucket shops, and garden variety fraudsters by enabling them to cast a wider net and make securities law enforcement much more difficult.

Others have raised concerns. The North American Securities Administrators Association, the Consumer Federation of America, the Americans for Financial Reform, the Council of Institutional Investors, securities experts such as Professor John Coffee and the AARP, concerned that senatorial oversight be worth it.

When shares are held in “street name” the number of beneficial owners may greatly exceed the number of record holders. How will the new threshold of 2000 record holders be applied in such cases?

5. How would the exclusion of employees and crowdfunding purchasers be applied, if such holders transfer their shares to other investors? How would this be tracked?

6. To the extent the bill results in reduced transparency or reduced liquidity for emerging growth companies, or for companies exempted from Exchange Act reporting by the new thresholds under Section 12(g), such results can impact investment decisions by institutional investors.

How would mutual fund managers, pension fund administrators, and other investors with fiduciary duties address such reduced transparency or lack of liquidity in making investment decisions?

7. How would the exclusion of employees and crowdfunding purchasers be applied, if such holdings transfer their shares to other investors? How would this be tracked?

8. To the extent the bill results in reduced transparency or reduced liquidity impact the ability of fund managers to meet applicable diversification requirements?

9. Could such effects cause managers to increase concentration into fewer US reporting companies? How would such concentration affect market risk? Would the bill result in investor funds being redirected to companies overseas?

5. The bill is being promoted as a jobs measure. Any potential that reducing regulation will improve access to capital for small and emerging businesses, allowing them to grow and add employees.

What is the evidence that regulatory oversight unduly impedes access to capital?

6. What is the evidence that companies that are otherwise prepared to grow (that is, they have the appropriate business model, management team, and aspirations) are prevented from growing by an inherent lack of access to potential sources of capital?

7. If a company does not comply with regulatory requirements, it would be a boon to boiler room operators, Ponzi schemers, bucket shops, and garden variety fraudsters by enabling them to cast a wider net and make securities law enforcement much more difficult.

Others have raised concerns. The North American Securities Administrators Association, the Consumer Federation of America, the Americans for Financial Reform, and the Council of Institutional Investors, security experts such as Professor John Coffee and former SEC Chief Accountant Lynn Turner have raised concerns that the bill would make it easier to raise capital but kept the safeguards in place.

It was defeated virtually on a party-line vote. It was defeated. It would have preserved the Dodd-Frank say-on-compensation requirements that would have made it easier to raise capital but kept the safeguards in place.

The amendment would have prohibited companies from advertising and selling stock to the unsophisticated, unsuspecting investors. It would have included minimum requirements for crowdfunding websites so investors are not blindly giving money to... someone with a good-looking Web site that promises a good return that will never ever happen.

In short, the amendment would have responded to investors’ concerns—the very same investors some of my colleagues claim underwriting will encourage to invest. That is not all we have done. The amendment also included a reauthorization of the Export-Import Bank, which makes loans to major companies and smaller companies too who want to export American-made products made by American workers.

The reauthorization increased the bank’s lending cap to $140 billion. This is the same Export-Import Bank that received bipartisan support in the Banking Committee and was reported out on a voice vote. A similar reauthorization was introduced by a Republican the last time around in 2006. It passed the Senate without even the requirement of a record vote.

However, very recently both the Landrieu-Reed-Levin amendment, which was the substitute that included the Export-Import Bank reauthorization, and the Cantwell amendment failed to obtain enough votes to invoke cloture, mostly a voice vote. Republicans voted to extend the Export-Import Bank authorization—two. This is a bank which gives our companies in America a fighting chance around the world to compete with those companies in other countries that are subsidized by their government. We have the Export-Import Bank to help our companies, companies in my State such as Boeing and Caterpillar. Good-paying jobs right here in America, sustained by exports, helped by the Export-Import Bank, defeated on the floor of the Senate. Only two Republican Senators would step up and vote for that bank, and it used to be noncontroversial. We did it because we knew it was so good for our economy. It turned out to be a partisan issue.

Too many things turn out to be partisan issues on the Senate floor lately. That is the latest casualty. It is clear that politics and theoretical jobs created by a bill that significantly reduces investor protections are more important to some of my colleagues than the real jobs that would have been created by the Export-Import Bank.

The Export-Import Bank is responsible for supporting 200,000 American jobs at more than 100,000 U.S. companies. One would think it would have won more than two Republican votes. Madam President, 113 of these companies are located in my State of Illinois and 80 are small businesses.

One of those companies, Holland LP, in Crete, IL, employs 250 people and completed a major export transaction with assistance from the Export-Import Bank. Holland was able to sell two complete in-track welding systems to a company in Nicaragua.

The CEO of Holland said: “Without the Export-Import Bank, this transaction would not have come to life.” That is how the Ex-IM Bank can help companies in my State and companies around the United States.

I have to say, there will be an amendment offered soon, this afternoon, within the hour, the Merkley-Bennett-Scott amendment which is bipartisan. It would allow small businesses to raise up to $1 million through crowdfunding Web sites but will put in protections for investors from those posing as a business and selling a lot more hope than substance.

The amendment would require all crowdfunding Web sites to register with the SEC. That is a step in the right direction. It is one of the most important elements that needs to be changed in this bill out of about eight elements, and it is the only one we are likely to address this afternoon.

I urge my colleagues to support the amendment of Jack Reed of Rhode Island requiring the SEC to revise the definition of ‘holder of record.’ The financial industry has been working overtime to beat this amendment. They have been on the phones calling everybody saying, “Stop the Reed amendment.”

According to John Coffee, a professor at Columbia Law School, the shareholder of record concept is archaic and can be game.

State securities regulators also share that same concern. The American Securities Administrators Association said it makes no sense to exclude any investor from the count of beneficial holders.

The Reed amendment would require the SEC to update the definition of ‘holder of record’ to revise an outdated definition that may hide the true number of shareholders a company might have.

While I believe the bipartisan Merkley-Bennett and the Reed amendments will significantly improve parts of our law, this would be the right direction. It is one of the few good bills. That is why I am prepared to vote no on final passage.

This bill, as much as any bill we have ever considered on the Senate floor, should have at least had a hearing. We should have at least brought in some expert witnesses. I will tell you, we will rue the day we ran this thing through the House and Senate without the appropriate oversight. I can already predict, having seen this happen many times before, that when it makes it to the President, this is a good bill. That is why I am prepared to vote no on final passage.

will give investors a great deal more confidence that what they are reading is actually and truly the case. That is a foundation for successful investment.

There are many folks across the country who have looked at these crowdfunding provisions, different provisions. I thought I would read from Motaavi, a crowdfunding intermediary based out of North Carolina. On the House bill, they say:

The crowdfunding language in the [House bill] does not create investor protection measures. It does not require offerings to be conducted through an intermediary, which opens the door to fraudulent activity. It also does not require appropriate disclosures or inspections. The bill does not require the issuer to inform investors of dilution risk or capital structure.

Crowdfunding is premised on openness. Without disclosure, investors cannot protect themselves or accurately price the securities they are buying. If issuers are not willing to provide information over and above what is required, the [House] language does not provide investors with other alternatives short of giving up on crowdfunding altogether.

They then comment on the bipartisan amendment we are presenting on the floor of the Senate, and they note:

It strikes the right balance between disclosure and flexibility. The language is tightly integrated with existing securities laws to provide investor protection. It places easily met obligations on the issuer and the intermediary to ensure that investors have the information they need to make sound decisions. The bill has many provisions for appropriate rulemaking, and is written in a way that reflects how crowdfunding actually works.

Remember, this is a crowdfunding intermediary based in North Carolina—one working to occupy this Internet space and wants a platform, a structure, that works and makes crowdfunding a legitimate strategy for capital formation.

The letter continues:

We think crowdfunding can be a valuable and integral part of the capital formation process. The Crowdfunding Act is the right bill [the amendment we are considering today] to make this happen.

Launch is a crowdfunding portal provider. They say:

For the first time, we have a Senate bill with bipartisan sponsorship, a balance of state oversight and Federal uniformity, industry standard investor protections, and workable rulemaking.

Let’s turn to the startup exemption—three entrepreneurs who have led the charge in our Capitol for flexible provisions for crowdfunding:

We write to suggest that if you consider the House version of the bill, you consider adding the following crucial components:

1. Crowdfunding investing intermediaries that are SEC-regulated to provide appropriate investor protections.
2. All or nothing financing so that an entrepreneur must hit 100 percent of his funding target, or no funds will be exchanged.
3. Sizing based out of North Carolina. On the House bill, they say:

Finally, we have SoMoLend, a peer-to-peer lending site. Here is their commentary, where they say this amendment is:

... robust enough to provide guidance to a new industry, but will also benefit the crowdfunding industry in the long-term, as compared to a possible race to the bottom with a “no regulatory” approach. The disclosure and regulatory requirements will provide adequate investor protection, advising of risk but also deterring fraud.

It continues:

Again, this has long-term benefits to the industry as a whole.

This hits at the heart of why these investor protections are so important. Not only do they deter scams and fraud, not only do they protect vulnerable investors, such as seniors and others, who have little experience in the investing market, but they build a strong capital formation market, a successful platform for capital formation, a market that puts capital where citizens would like to put it—the wisdom of the crowd, if you will—a market that allows good ideas to rise to the top, a market that will create jobs now and in the future.

I urge my colleagues to support amendment No. 1884 to provide the right balance of streamlining and investor protection.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT Pro Tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak up to 1 minute.

The PRESIDENT Pro Tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Amendment No. 1221

Mr. REED. Madam President, shorty, we will be voting on my amendment, which will maintain the House’s increase in the number of shareholders at 2,000 in order to remain private. But what I do is actually ensure that the shareholders are the real shareholders; that there is not an intermediary holding the stock in the name of perhaps literally hundreds of shareholders, but they are the real shareholders.

There has been some criticism about the affect it will have on ESOPs, private funds, mutual funds, and others. We have been assured by legal experts that this doesn’t affect any of these funds or entities.

In addition, the SEC has assured us that it, through rulemaking, can clarify that ESOPs, mutual funds, private funds, and other entities similar to these will not be affected. I believe if a company has 2,000 real shareholders, those shareholders should have access to routine information on a regular basis, and that is the thrust of this amendment.

SHAREHOLDER THRESHOLD

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Madam President, one of the six components of the House-passed JOBS Act is a measure I sponsored here in the Senate to foster capital formation in the community banking industry. The Securities and Exchange Commission from 500 shareholders to 2,000. It is Title 6 in the JOBS Act before us today. My colleague Senator TOOMEY has a bill contained in the JOBS Act as well that would raise the shareholder threshold for all companies. Senator TOOMEY’s legislation is contained in Title 5 of the JOBS Act.

On this point, my understanding is that Sections 501 and 601 of the JOBS Act address two distinct classes of issuers. One is a general provision for all issuers other than banks and bank holding companies, and the other one applies to banks and bank holding companies. I ask the Senator, is this correct?

Mr. TOOMEY. Yes, that is my understanding. I thank Senator HUTCHISON for all of her hard work on the bank shareholder bill, and for clarifying this point.

Mrs. FEINSTEN. Madam President, I rise today in strong opposition to the JOBS Act. Supporters of this bill insist it will help small businesses looking to raise capital, but instead its primary effect would be to strip away critical investor protections.

The House-passed bill applies to more than just small businesses. It also exempts large corporations—those with annual revenues up to $1 billion—from important financial reporting requirements.

There are many good reasons why public companies are required to undergo periodic examinations and disclose financial information, and this bill-undercuts those investor protections.

I remember the massive fraud and financial chicanery that led Enron to intentionally shut down powerplants in California in order to pump up profits. And all of us remember the lasting damage from the collapse of the dot-com bubble.

Let me go over some of the problems with the House bill.

It would eliminate the requirement that many companies audit their internal controls, a requirement put in place specifically in response to the Enron debacle.

Companies with virtually no operating history could sell stock directly to the public over the Internet without going through any registered intermediary.

The bill has no meaningful protections to prevent investors’ savings from being wiped out on risky investments. Investors could get 10 percent of their annual income on any one company, with no limit to how much income or savings they could invest in multiple companies’ stock sold over the Internet with little financial disclosure. The JOBS Act would reduce the number of years of audited financial statements that companies must publicly disclose.

It would abolish shareholder advisory votes on executive compensation and golden parachutes.

And it would eliminate the disclosure requirement of CEO-to-median-worker salary ratio. Reformed the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform Act.

It remains unclear why the supporters of the JOBS Act believe disclosing executive compensation is an obstacle to companies going public. Under the JOBS Act, a fraudster could raise up to $1 million in small increments from mom-and-pop investors without having to disclose any significant financial or legal disclosures. Candidly, this could lead to the greatest proliferation of get-rich-quick schemes in history.

It is a shame this process has unfolded in this manner and at this breakneck speed. There are some merits to the underlying goal of the bill.

Reducing compliance costs on actual small businesses willing to go public is a laudable goal. But instead of debating the issues, we are rushing through this bill.

It is important to note that, even under the Sarbanes-Oxley law, financial game-playing by big public companies has not gone away. This bill would invite even more of that harmful activity, under the guise of being good for the public marketplace.

Congress’s recent track record on financial deregulation isn’t very good. In the past decade or so Congress has eliminated the Glass-Steagall firewall between commercial and investment banking and deregulated the over-the-counter derivatives market. We are still paying for those mistakes.

I had hoped the Senate would be humbled by that experience. Instead, we are rushing through changes to decades-old securities laws that could have significant negative effects on investor protections.

I voted against the JOBS Act so we can take the time to truly understand the ramifications of this bill for the marketplace, small businesses, and investors.

Mrs. BOXER. Madam President, I wish to explain my opposition to H.R. 3066, a bill that would undermine regulation of our financial markets and leave investors vulnerable to fraud.

The underlying spirit of this legislation is one that I support: improving the ability of smaller companies, especially startups, to raise capital. Small companies are essential to our economy, and it is critical that they be able to raise capital efficiently. Our financial regulations should be up-to-date and reflective of the reality of the size of new public companies in modern times, and new methods of reaching out to potential investors.

However, I am deeply concerned that the bill goes too far in rolling back investor protections. These rules were created for a reason, often after hard lessons learned from scandals like Enron and WorldCom. They protect ordinary people from losing their retirement savings to fraud and mismanagement, and help our markets function efficiently, ensuring that investors of all types have meaningful and accurate information. All companies benefit when investors have confidence in the safety and fairness of the marketplace.

SEC Chair Mary Schapiro and SEC Commissioner Luis Aguilar have raised concerns that this bill will hinder securities law enforcement and reduce investor protection. Bloomberg News editorialized that it “would be dangerous for investors and could harm already fragile financial markets.” The New York Times Editorial Board said this legislation “would undo essential investor protections.”

It is a mistake to rush this important piece of legislation when the possibility of a genuinely bipartisan compromise exists. The Reed-Landrieu-Levin amendment, which was blocked by Senate Republicans despite bipartisan support from 54 Senators, would have greatly improved the bill. It would have allowed smaller companies to raise capital more easily, without going as far as the underlying bill in providing exemptions for companies with annual gross revenue of up to $1 billion. I thank my colleagues for their efforts in drafting that carefully balanced proposal.

I am pleased that the bipartisan Merkley-Bennet-Brown amendment became part of the bill. It will allow companies to reach investors through social media, but with sensible rules to reduce fraud and provide meaningful regulatory oversight. Nevertheless, significant investor protection problems remain in the other sections of the bill, and I cannot support its passage.

I was also disappointed that reauthorizing the Export-Import Bank, which was offered as an amendment by a group of bipartisan cosponsors, was blocked by Senate Republicans.

The Ex-Im Bank keeps American businesses competitive worldwide, especially in countries with challenging economic and political conditions, and sustains American jobs in the process. The Bank’s investments helped to support 900,000 export-related American jobs last year, including 21,025 in California. As the economic recovery continues, now is not the time to take away this support and put our companies at a disadvantage.

This bill clearly was rushed; this bill is risky for investors, and that is why I voted no.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Madam President, I rise today to express my views on the bill that is before this body—H.R. 3066—Our Business Startups Act. This bill is a package of measures intended to increase capital formation a goal which I believe Democrats and Republicans share. Banking Committee members on both sides of the aisle, including Senator SCHUMER, CRAPO, TESTER, VITTER, MERKLEY, TOOMEY, BENNET and JOHNSON, teamed up to introduce a number of bipartisan legislation on this issue, and I commend them for their hard work.

Small businesses are the engine of the American economy. Start-ups and small businesses create a majority of new jobs, and they deserve every opportunity to take an idea and turn it into an exciting, new venture that could lead to the next great American company.

Investments are often necessary resources that allow start-ups and small businesses to grow. Unfortunately, the recent trend is that fewer emerging companies are entering the U.S. capital markets though IPOs. According to the IPO Task Force, 92 percent of job growth occurred after a company’s IPO, so it makes sense to consider ways to facilitate more IPOs.

There are also novel ideas to help start-ups raise money over the Internet, reaching out to their friends through social media and inviting them to invest small amounts to help them grow their business.

So in considering these new ideas to spur job creation in a balanced and thoughtful way, the Banking Committee held four hearings since last summer. We heard a wide range of views on how best to reform our securities laws to allow new and growing companies to raise capital, but in a way that does not undermine investor protections so that people will still be willing to invest.

At our hearings and through our efforts to explore this subject, members of the Banking Committee heard concerns about provisions in the House bill before us from a number of experts, including the Chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission. One piece of the legislation attempts to encourage more companies to pursue an IPO by creating a so-called “on-ramp.”

The House bill determines that companies under $1 billion in annual revenue should be exempt from disclosures for up to 5 years. Witnesses at the Banking Committee’s hearings raised concerns about whether this threshold is appropriate and accurately reflects those companies that need relief most. The House bill contains a provision to restrict the independent standard-setting by the Financial Accounting Standards Board. For many years Congress has debated whether we should legislate accounting standards or leave it to the experts. I remain unconvinced that interfering with the independence of FASB would be an appropriate action for Congress to take or would inspire more people to invest in the private sector.

It is also unclear that eliminating safeguards to reduce conflicts of interest between stock research analysts and firms selling stock, as the House bill does, will on the whole be beneficial. The absence of such safeguards a decade ago led analysts to write conflicted stock recommendations which too many Americans believed and relied upon to invest, and ultimately lose, their money. Those misleading and fraudulent stock recommendations caused many Americans to pull out of the market and lose confidence in the integrity of the financial system. We must closely monitor this area going forward.

Crowdfunding is a concept with potential, but I do not think that the House bill provides appropriate oversight of the online funding platforms to ensure that unsuspecting investors are not ripped off by an online scam. Operators of online funding platforms are not required to register with the SEC. While there is some information these operators are required to share with regulators, it remains unclear if this modest sharing of information will be sufficient for regulators to monitor these operators and ensure the platform is in the same way investments on the stock market are monitored. The House bill needlessly limits the involvement of State securities regulators to help the SEC oversee new crowdfunding operations.

In response to these concerns on crowdfunding, I was pleased to assist Senators MERKLEY, BENNET and others in crafting an alternative approach that strikes a better balance between capital and investor protections. The Merkley-Bennet amendment requires crowdfunding companies to provide basic disclosures, including a business plan and financial information to potential investors. It also requires companies offering stock online to either register as a broker-dealer with the SEC, or pursue a “funding portal” registration. This will provide greater oversight than the House bill. Among other key improvements, the Merkley-Bennet amendment provides for stronger Federal-State oversight coordination, and it allows for properly scaled investment limits as well as an aggregate investment cap across all crowdfunding companies, further protecting investors. For these reasons and more, I urge my colleagues to correct the weak House crowdfunding title and join me in supporting the Merkley-Bennet amendment.

Another provision in the underlying House bill modernizes the Regulation A threshold by raising the cap on how much money can be raised in the capital markets without registering with the SEC. The House bill transfers authority away from Congress by requiring the SEC to review and potentially raise the threshold every 2 years. This has the potential to preclude a rigorous public debate about when and why the Regulation A threshold should be raised again.

The House bill would also expand the ability of companies to advertise private offerings to accredited investors, referred to as Regulation D. Some have raised concerns that there are not enough safeguards for investors, who could be misled into investing in a company without a full appreciation of the level of risk they are taking on. This will also warrant close attention moving forward to ensure seniors are not taken advantage of.

Finally, while I believe the current 500–Shareholder Rule should be updated, it is unclear if the House approach to dramatically raise the threshold, from 2,000 to shareholders of record, is a balance at all. A more modest increase seems more appropriate to balance investor protection and transparency with capital formation.

Throughout this process I have sought to help address needed investor protections in a thoughtful manner while helping to support entrepreneurs, grow small businesses, and put Americans back to work. But I did not write the underlying House bill before us today, and I was pleased to help support my colleagues in drafting the Senate substitute amendment. I believe the Senate substitute addresses each of the concerns I raised. I am disappointed more of my colleagues did not support this alternative that would have increased protections for investors.

That said, no piece of legislation is perfect, and this bill contains innovative new solutions that have the potential to boost the economy. Small businesses and startups deserve the opportunity to boost the economy. Unassuming investors relied on upbeat research reports supplanting the need to fully disclose the state of the firm. Firms worked frantically to put together initial public offerings for fledgling Internet companies. Within 1 month, shareholders lost nearly $1 billion as Enron stock plummeted. Families and employees lost their entire savings in a matter of days. Investor confidence in the entire system evaporated. Just over a decade ago, a company called Enron revealed one of the largest corporate frauds and accounting scandals of our time. We all remember the stories of documents shredded, shell companies, exaggerated profits, and lax accounting rules.

Congress and the Securities and Exchange Commission responded to these scandals by putting investor protections in place to restore confidence in the capital markets and ensure companies provide comprehensive and honest information to the public. Thanks to these protections, investors no longer have to wonder whether the accounting and auditing disclosures are, in fact, independent and accurate. We can’t afford to go backward.

There is small choice in rotten apples. I am here to talk about the choice we have this afternoon, on voting for final passage of H.R. 3606. Over the past week, the Senate has been debating a bill the House has passed the JOBS Act. Securities and Exchange Commission chief accountant Lynn E. Turner said recently: “It won’t create jobs, but it will simplify fraud.” I fully support finding ways to help the private sector create good-paying jobs.

Last year, I worked with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to pass the Vets Jobs bill, cutting taxes for small accounting scandals of veterans get back to work. This Chamber also passed three free trade agreements, setting the stage to increase American exports to Korea, Colombia, and Panama by an estimated $15 billion a year, creating tens of thousands of new jobs. And just last week, the Senate passed overwhelmingly the highway bill, which will create and sustain more than 14,000 American jobs per year.

But our choice today leaves much to be desired. While this bill includes some very positive changes to enhance and encourage small business investment, it includes several rotten apples that roll back important investor protections and put the integrity of our markets in question. So quickly we forget the past. Just over a decade ago, a company called Enron revealed one of the largest corporate frauds and accounting scandals of our time. We all remember the stories of documents shredded, shell companies, exaggerated profits, and lax accounting rules.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, in Taming of the Shrew, William Shakespeare wrote:
ensure small businesses are given a level playing field. I hear from Montana small businesses that rules under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act can be costly and time-consuming for small companies which simply lack the capacity to handle the extra regulations. I agree we must also look at what these rules may be doing to hamper growth of U.S. small businesses. But we should not forget the past. We should not exempt big business carte blanche without fully discerning the implications.

There are several pieces of this legislation with which I agree. I commend my colleague and friend from the State of Montana, Senator Tester, for his tireless effort to address legitimate concerns with the current cap on small business public offerings.

Senator Tester introduced his bipartisan measure after meeting and talking to growing companies in Montana and elsewhere that could benefit greatly from raising the cap on regulation A small public offerings. Rob Bargatze, founder and CEO of Lligocyte, in Bozeman, MT, and chairman of the Montana Bioscience Alliance, testified in the Banking Committee last year on ideas to improve access to capital for the emerging bio industry.

Rob rightly points out that the current $5 million cap "does not allow for a large enough capital influx for companies to justify the time and expense necessary to comply with even the most basic underwriting bank from publishing research reports in support of the upcoming IPO. The House bill would now allow underwriting banks to issue such research to unsuspecting investors. And it limits the company’s responsibility to make sure such research is accurate and comprehensive. We have seen too many examples lately of what can happen when we don’t protect the little guys from Wall Street greed—just look at how MF Global handled the exposure of Montana ranchers, and that is when there were rules in place. We can’t afford to go back to the days when Enron was able to swindle thousands of Americans out of their life savings.

I appreciate the work of my colleagues on this matter, but I view it to American workers and families to see to it that this bill preserves investor confidence and integrity in our markets.

I simply cannot support the House package containing so many bad apples.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The previous order, all postcloture time has expired.

The question is on agreeing to the Merkley amendment No. 1931. The amendment (No. 1931) was rejected.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The previous order, the motion to reconsider is considered made and laid upon the table.

AMENDMENT NO. 1884

Under the previous order, there will now be 2 minutes of debate equally divided prior to a vote in relation to the Merkley amendment No. 1884. Who has time?

The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. MERKLEY. Madam President, I have 1 minute?

Mr. MERKLEY. Colleagues, I want to encourage you to adopt amendment No. 1884. The House bill, as it came to us, on crowdfunding is a pathway to predatory scams. It requires no information to be provided by a company; and if the company provides information, it requires no responsibility or accountability for the accuracy of that information. It allows companies to hire people to pump the stocks, which is exactly what we all know, from pump-and-dump schemes, is very dangerous to any sort of solid financial foundation for capital aggregation, capital formation.

I want to applaud my colleagues Senator BENNET, Senator LANDRUE, and Senator BROWN of Massachusetts, who have worked together to bring this bipartisan amendment forward. It provides the right amount of streamlining for the companies, the right amount of streamlining for portals on the Internet, and the right set of investor protections, information, and accountability necessary to make crowdfunding fulfill the exciting potential it has.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired. Who yields time in opposition? Mr. KYL. I yield back.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 1884. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll. The amendment (No. 1884) was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The previous order, the motion to reconsider is considered made and laid upon the table.

The question is on the engrossment of the amendment and third reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be 2 minutes of debate, equally divided, prior to a vote on passage of H.R. 3006, as amended.

The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Madam President, the House bill has some very promising concepts about providing access to capital. What it fails to do is adequately protect investors.

We have tried, through our alternative, to protect investors. That alternative has been rejected on a cloture vote by the Senate. We have made some improvements with the Merkley proposal, but we are not quite to the point yet where I think we can be confident that investors will be protected.
As such, I think we should vote against this legislation, and that we should in fact try again and get it right. That is why the head of the Securities Exchange Commission opposes this, and the state securities regulators, and former heads of the Securities Exchange Commission, and the Council of Institutional Investors, and many others.

We are opening up vast loopholes in our securities laws without adequate disclosure for investors. I think we will regret this vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. TOOMEY. Madam President, I claim the time in support of the legislation. I suggest that we are on the verge of doing something very constructive for our economy, for small businesses, and for job growth, and it might be one of the most constructive things we are going to do this year in that area.

This legislation makes it easier and more affordable for young and growing companies to go public, to raise the capital they need to grow, to hire more workers. It also actually makes it easier for those who want to remain private and to attract more investors, and to do so without triggering the very onerous and expensive regulations attendant to being a public company.

This is going to create more jobs and more growth in the economy. That is why it passed the House with a vote of 390 to 23. That is why the President of the United States has endorsed this bill and said he will sign it into law. That is why there are dozens and dozens of organizations and groups and companies and trade associations that support this legislation, so that we can do something right here, right now, today, that the President will sign into law, which will help small and growing companies raise the capital they need to grow.

I urge my colleagues to vote yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Shall the bill, as amended, pass?

Mr. INHOFE. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. Madam President, I ask that I be notified after 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the STOCK Act, which we will vote on shortly. This legislation is based on a bill that was first introduced in the Senate last fall by Senator SCOTT BROWN, and a similar one introduced by Senator GILLIBRAND, I wish to commend them both for their work on this legislation. As a cosponsor of Senator Brown's bill, I especially want to recognize his leadership on this issue.

I also wish to recognize Chairman LIEBERMAN for all the work he has done in moving this important bill through our committee, through a robust debate here on the Senate floor, and to final passage today. Last fall, press reports on "60 Minutes" and elsewhere raised the question of whether lawmakers are exempt, either legally or practically, from the insider trading laws.

The STOCK Act is intended to affirm that Members of Congress are not exempt from our laws prohibiting insider trading. As we saw when we first considered this legislation, despite reassurances from legal experts and the SEC that no such exemption exists, there has been persistent disagreement about the issue. That's why we feel it is important to send a very clear message that Members of Congress are not exempt from the insider trading laws, and that is exactly what this bill does.

Last month the Senate passed its version of the STOCK Act by an overwhelming bipartisan margin of 96 to 3.

We are certainly taking a significant step forward, on behalf of the American people, toward restoring some faith in our country's economy. That is why I thank Leader REID for his leadership, Chairman LIEBERMAN, Ranking Member COLLINS, Senator BROWN, and all our colleagues on both sides of the aisle who worked so hard to pass this legislation.

I wish to thank my colleagues from New York, LOUISE Slaughter, who fought so hard and so long toward this end.

This legislation was a rare instance where 96 Senators came together to deliver results for the American people. We passed a strong bill with teeth that will clearly and expressly make it illegal for Members of Congress to misuse the trust their staff, and their families to gain personal profits from nonpublic information gained through their service.

I strongly believe we have to make it clear no one is above the law and that Members of Congress need to play by the exact same rules as every other American. It is simply the right thing to do.

This is a commonsense bill and Americans can be assured our only interest is in their interest. When President Obama signs the STOCK Act, we will have begun to restore the public's faith in Washington.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask that I be notified after 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will be notified.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

The Senator from Maine.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask that I be notified after 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will be notified.

STOP TRADING ON CONGRESSIONAL KNOWLEDGE ACT OF 2012

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to concur in the House amendment to S. 2038, which the Senate has before it.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to concur in the House amendment to S. 2038, an original bill to prohibit Members of Congress and employees of Congress from using nonpublic information derived from their official positions for personal benefit, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will be 4 minutes of debate, equally divided in the usual form.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this bipartisan and now bicameral congressional ethics measure. This started as a response to stories and allegations that Members of Congress would not be held liable for insider trading. It then developed into what I think is the most significant congressional ethics legislation we have adopted in at least 5 years. It has been in a lot of other public disclosure and good government measures.

I wish to give particular thanks to Senator KIRSTEN GILLIBRAND and SCOTT BROWN, who led the effort and took the initiative that got this ball rolling.

I yield the rest of my time to Senator GILLIBRAND.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. I thank the Chairman.

We are certainly taking a significant step forward, on behalf of the American people, toward restoring some faith in our country's economy. That is why I thank Leader REID for his leadership, Chairman LIEBERMAN, Ranking Member COLLINS, Senator BROWN, and all our colleagues on both sides of the aisle who worked so hard to pass this legislation.
to the Congress, the U.S. Government, and the citizens we serve.

As I explained when we considered the Senate version, this is not a new fiduciary duty, in the traditional sense, but the recognition of an existing duty. The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 already affirms that the public servants—Members of Congress, the employees of the executive and judicial branches—owe a similar duty, and must also comply with the insider trading laws.

There are differences, of course, between the House and the Senate version. It preserves the core of the bill passed by the Senate to make absolutely clear that elective office is a place for public service, not for private gain. Underscoring that important message is the chief purpose of the STOCK Act, and that is why I support it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 1 minute.

Ms. COLLINS. We need to send a strong message that elective office is the place for public service and not private gain.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I again, filed a carefully crafted version of the bipartisan Public Corruption Prosecution Improvement Act as an amendment to the STOCK Act. Despite near-unanimous approval for this amendment just a few short weeks ago, there was an objection by the House Republican leadership to the anti-corruption measure and Senate Republicans objected to going to conference to restore this important anti-corruption provision which had been stripped out of the bill. I am deeply disappointed that the Senate is taking up the House version of the bill that stripped out our bipartisan anti-corruption measure without consideration or a vote.

My amendment reflects a bipartisan, bicameral agreement and would strengthen and clarify key aspects of Federal criminal law to help investigators and prosecutors attack public corruption Nation-wide. The House stripped this amendment from the STOCK Act after a flurry of misinformation about what the amendment actually does. Senator CORNYN and I took it very seriously and addressed them effectively when we drafted the amendment. The amendment I seek to offer includes a further belt-and-suspenders modification to address any legitimate concern. It is carefully and narrowly drawn and will only reach clearly corrupt conduct.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has now reported the Public Corruption Prosecution Improvement Act with bipartisan support in three successive Congresses and it has passed the Senate by voice vote. The House Judiciary Committee reported a companion bill unanimously. It is past time for Congress to act to pass serious anticorruption legislation. That is what the Public Corruption Prosecution Improvement Act amendment would be.

Public corruption erodes the trust the American people have in those who are elected to represent them in their democratic service. Loopholes in existing laws have meant that corrupt conduct goes unchecked. The stain of corruption has spread to all levels of government and victimizes every American by chipping away at the foundations of our democracy. My amendment would help us to take real steps to restore confidence in government by rooting out criminal corruption.

In Skilling v. United States, the Supreme Court sided with a former executive from Enron and greatly narrowed the honest services fraud statute, a law that had been appropriately used for decades as a crucial weapon to combat public corruption. The Court's decision leaves open the opportunity for State and Federal public officials to secretly act in their own financial self-interest, rather than in the interest of the public. This amendment, in a simple manner without ambiguity, closes this gaping hole in our anticorruption laws.

If we are serious about addressing the kinds of egregious misconduct we have seen over the last ten years, Congress should enact meaningful legislation to give law enforcement the tools necessary to enforce our anticorruption law. The STOCK Act is much less meaningful without this important substantive reform. I am deeply disappointed that the Senate apparently will not take the opportunity to support taking these modest steps to bring those who undermine the public trust to justice.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, today the Senate has the opportunity to vote in support of the STOCK Act. If we vote for the House amendment to the Senate bill, we can send this legislation right to President Obama to be signed into law. That is exactly what we should do.

The lifeblood of our democratic government is the contract between the people and their elected representatives, a contract that must be based on trust that elected officials will act for the good of our Nation and in the interests of their constituents, and not for personal gain. To ensure that we maintain that trust, our Nation has laws and our Congress has rules that establish clearly the responsibilities of government officials. Members of Congress and their staffs and provide for the enforcement of violations.

The legislation before us is, in a way, preventative legislation to prevent conflict of interest. It's a tightening up of our legal and ethical guidelines as part of what must be a constant effort to assure that the interests of our Nation and our constituents come first. Our constituents must have confidence that Members of Congress and our staffs will not use our positions for our personal financial benefit.

To be clear, as it stands now, it is a violation of the trust our constituents place in us, a violation of the democratic process, a violation of the securities laws, and a violation of congressional ethics rules for Members of Congress to use their public service to generate personal trading profits or insider trading—the use of information not available to the public to make investment decisions. But questions have been raised about insider trading by Members of Congress. The legislation before us today is a strong measure that those questions are answered. It removes any doubt that insider trading by Members and employees of Congress is against the law and against Congressional rules. It is important to remove that doubt because any appearance of a breach in trust between Congress and our constituents is corrosive to honest, open and effective government.

Back in December, the Homeland Security & Governmental Affairs Committee, of which I am a member, held extensive discussions designed to preserve that trust, including a very productive hearing on December 1. Later in December, our committee held a markup and approved the Stop Trading on Congressional Knowledge Act, or STOCK Act. I want to thank our chairman, Senator LIEBERMAN, and our ranking member, Senator COLLINS, for their leadership, and the many members of the committee, Democratic and Republican, who made contributions to this process.

Two things became clear during our hearings and our markup. The first is that there was consensus that we should remove any uncertainty about the prohibition against insider trading. The second thing that became clear was significant bipartisan desire to avoid any unintended consequences as we sought to remove any uncertainty. We reported out the legislation because of widespread agreement on our goals, the means, and it was understood that we would attempt to address those concerns before the bill came to the floor. And so a number of us worked in the weeks after the markup to make sure that our goals and our means were in concert. We met that objective, and our consensus was reflected in the language of the bill that passed the Senate by a vote of 96 to 3. The House amendment before us today retains the key provisions in the bill. Senator LIEBERMAN, Senator COLLINS and I, among others, worked so hard to get right. While some provisions that I supported have been removed by the House amendment, the central purpose of this bill remains the same. The House amendment, like the Senate bill, replaces, removes any uncertainty over the prohibition on insider trading, and it avoids unintended harmful consequences that concerned some of us.

I would now like to discuss two critical provisions in the bill before us today. The first reassures the American people that there are no barriers to prosecuting Members and employees... of Congress for insider trading. It does so through language establishing that Members and employees of Congress have a duty arising from “a relationship of trust and confidence” with the Congress, the government, and most importantly, the American people. Establishing such a duty removes any doubt as to whether insider trading prohibitions apply to Congress. It is also important that the bill’s language makes clear that in offering this new language it does not in any way prevent enforcement of the anti-insider trading provisions contained in current law. Again, I am confident that under current law, Members of Congress and our staffs are prohibited from insider trading. This bill will ensure that the current prohibition is unambiguous, and thereby strengthened.

The second major provision of the legislation instructs the Ethics Committees of both chambers to issue clear guidance to members and staff regarding the prohibition on profiting from inside information. This guidance will clarify that existing rules in both chambers relative to gifts and conflicts of interest also prohibit the use of non-public information gained in the conduct of official duties for private profit.

Let me briefly mention one other provision, unrelated to insider trading but nonetheless an important step forward in ensuring the confidence of our constituents. As one of the originators of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995, I am well aware of the value of transparency in government. The bill before us improves congressional transparency by requiring that personal financial disclosure filings required of members and certain staff are made available electronically to the public. But because this bill also significantly expands the number of officials required to file public disclosures, including lobbyists, military and intelligence officers, it is critical that this provision be implemented in a way that is consistent with our national security interests. Care should be taken to ensure that public filers are not made unnecessarily vulnerable to malicious use of personal information.

The House amendment also removes a provision of the Senate bill that would have required political intelligence consultants to register in a way similar to lobbying. These are registered to register currently. Instead, the House amendment, like the version of the Senate bill that was reported by the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, requires the Comptroller General of the United States to study the role of political intelligence in financial markets and report back to Congress. It is corrosive of open government for political intelligence consultants to sell their access to officials. Before Congress acts to address this problem, we must understand more about it, which is why I support this study. I look forward to working with my colleagues to address this issue once we have the benefit of the Comptroller’s report.

In addition to the insider trading and disclosure provisions, this bill contains numerous other important improvements to our ethics laws. I urge my colleagues to support today, to pass this legislation and send it to President Obama for his signature.

I ask unanimous consent that my statement appear in the RECORD at the appropriate place before the vote on the STOCK Act—S. 2038.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Madam President, I rise today to support cloture on the motion to concur in the House amendment to the “Stop Trading on Congressional Knowledge Act,” the “STOCK Act”—S. 2038.

We have come a long way in a short time in a bipartisan fashion on this bill, which does many good things.

I want to start by thanking my colleagues, Ranking member COLLINS and Senators GILLIBRAND and BROWN for all their work on this bill.

And I want to thank Majority Leader REID for making the STOCK Act the first bill the Senate debated after the winter recess.

Mr. President, this problem received a jolt of momentum late last year when “60 Minutes” aired allegations that some Members of Congress and their staffs used information gained on their jobs to enrich themselves with insider trading.

We took the issue up at a hearing of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee in December and established that the charge that Congress had exempted itself from insider trading laws was just not true. However, it was also clear that existing laws needed to be clarified.

At one committee hearing, several securities law experts told us that there was ambiguity in the law and they could not be sure how a court would rule if there was a challenge to the SEC’s authority to bring an insider trading case against a Member of Congress.

That is because, as the experts explained, a person may be found to have violated the insider trading laws only if he or she breaks a fiduciary duty, a duty to the institution of Congress or to the shareholder of the company, or to the source of the non-public information, for example.

The experts told us that it is possible that a judge looking at existing case law might conclude that Members of Congress owe no duty to anyone with respect to the nonpublic information they receive while carrying out their duties. Now, if I were a judge, I would not see it that way. It seems self-evident that public office is a public trust, and that Members of Congress owe a duty to the institution of Congress, to the government as a whole, and to the American people not to use information gained during their time in Congress—and unavailable to the public—to make investments for personal profit.

But the fact is that there are some very smart legal experts who are concerned that a judge would not see it that way. And this lack of clarity could in fact shield a Member of Congress from prosecution for insider trading.

The STOCK Act clarifies this ambiguity in the Security Exchange Act of 1934 by explicitly stating that Members of Congress and our staffs have a duty of trust to the institution of Congress, to the U.S. Government, and to the American people—a duty that Members of Congress violate if they trade on non-public information they gain by virtue of their position.

The bill also requires the Ethics Committees of both houses of Congress to file an electronic database of Members and staff may not use non-public information derived from their position in Congress to make a private profit.

Besides these changes aimed at insider trading, the STOCK Act includes other significant Congressional ethics legislation. For example, it requires Members of Congress and their staffs to file public reports on their purchases or sales of stocks, bonds, commodity futures or other financial transactions exceeding $1,000 within 30 days of the transaction. Currently these trades are reported once a year. Timelier reporting will allow the SEC and the public to assess whether there is anything suspicious about the timing of the trade.

The bill also contains important language that requires financial disclosure forms filed by Members and staff be made electronically available—and perhaps even more significantly—be available online for public review.

There really is no sensible reason to make someone come physically into the House or Senate to see a copy of one of these financial disclosure forms, which are public records.

The bill will also require the Government Accountability Office to study and report back to Congress on so-called “political intelligence” consultants who sell information derived from government officials to investors.

The STOCK Act also contains several provisions that were added in the Senate. The House to strengthen the bill, including language offered by Senator BLUMENTHAL related to the denial of Congressional benefits to Members who commit public corruption crimes; language offered by Senator BOXER that will, for the first time, require Members of Congress or Congressional Branch officials to disclose their mortgages on their annual financial disclosure forms; and language offered by Senator MCCAIN to prohibit executives of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac from receiving bonuses while the firms remain in federal conservatorship.

This is a very strong bill, in fact, the strongest Congressional ethics reform bill that has been passed by Congress since we passed the Honest Leadership and Open Government Act in 2007.

This bill was reported as an original bill out of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs on December 13 by a vote of 7 to 2. The bill moved quickly and was approved by the Senate the next day, after thorough debate on the Senate floor, including the consideration of 20 amendments, the bill passed the Senate on Feb. 2 by a vote of 96 to 3.

The bill was sent to the House, which passed it on February 2 by a vote of 398 to 13. Mr. Speaker Pelosi then requested the Senate to act on a concurrent resolution to concur on the House amendment to S. 2038, the Stop Trading on Congressional Knowledge Act.

On March 22, by a vote of 96 to 3, the Senate passed the STOCK Act, which will require all Members of Congress to disclose all their trading activity required to be filed on a quarterly basis.

Mr. Reid. The STOCK Act requires Members of Congress and their staffs to abstain from profiting on any nonpublic information derived from conversations with constituents.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. The Democratic leader is correct. As the Director of Enforcement at the SEC, Robert Khuzami, stated in his testimony before the House Financial Services Committee: “You have to be acting with corrupt intent, knowledge, or recklessness. If you act in good faith, you’re not going to be guilty.” My staff had detailed conversations with the SEC while drafting the duty provisions and raised these concerns specifically. Our goal in drafting the duty provisions of the STOCK Act was to ensure that insider trading protections apply to government officials no differently than they do to the rest of the public, but at the same time, we crafted exceptions that could curtail interaction between Congress and the public.

Mr. REID. Furthermore, it is my understanding that Section 11 of this bill is not intended to override the authority of the President to exempt from public availability the financial disclosure reports of individuals engaged in intelligence activities, as contained in section 105(a)(1) of the Ethics in Government Act. As to the executive branch, section 105(a)(1) applies to all of the public availability requirements of this bill.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. That is correct. It is not the intent of the STOCK Act to override the President’s authority for necessary exemptions for intelligence activities.

Ms. COLLINS. I yield the remainder of my time to Senator Scott Brown.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. BROWN of Massachusetts. Madam President, today, we put America first and we passed a bipartisan and now bicameral bill the President will sign, and we took an important step in ending the deficit of trust hurting our democracy. I wish to thank Senator Gillibrand and the leadership of Senator Collins and Senator Lieberman for marking this up so quickly. Today is a good day. The STOCK Act will affirm that Members of Congress are not above the law and will increase transparency by requiring Members of Congress and highly compensated Federal employees to disclose all their trading activity within 45 days. Today, America is a government by the people and for the people, and that means our elected officials must follow the same laws as everybody. We have taken a step toward reestablishing trust, and today we are one step closer to making every seat the people’s seat.

I encourage everybody to support this passage.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF DAVID NUFFER TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF UTAH

NOMINATION OF RONNIE ABRAMS TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

NOMINATION OF RUDOLPH CONTRERAS TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations which the clerk will report.

The bill clerk read the nominations as follows:

Today's consideration was facilitated by the application of the "new standard" to schedule the nomination for a vote. This is not a nomination that should have been filibustered or required the filing of a cloture motion in order to be scheduled for consideration by the Senate. This is a nomination, reported unanimously by the Judiciary Committee over 5 months ago, that we should have voted on and confirmed last year.

Today's consideration was facilitated when the majority leader and the republican leader came to an understanding last week. With a judicial vacancies crisis that has lasted years, and nearly one in 10 judgeships across the Nation vacant, the Senate needs to work to reduce judicial vacancies significantly before the end of the year.

Unlike the nearly 60 district court nominees of President Bush who were confirmed within a week of being reported by the Judiciary Committee during President Bush's first term, qualified, consensus nominees to fill vacancies on our Federal courts have been needlessly stalled during President Obama's first term. The five-month delay in the consideration of Judge Nuffer is another example of the needless delays that were occasioned by Republicans' unwillingness to agree to schedule the nomination for a vote.

The application of the "new standard" the junior Senator from Utah conceded was another needless delay when Republicans boycotted the Judiciary Committee meeting last week and prevented a quorum while insisting on a meeting to hold over nominees. We will overcome that and have those nominations before the Senate this spring.

I hope the committee will hold hearings on another 11 nominations in the next few weeks. One of those nominees, Robert Shelby, is to fill the other vacancy on the United States District Court for the District of Utah. Whether he is included depends in large measure on the Senators from Utah.

I have assiduously protected the rights of the minority in this process. I have only proceeded with judicial nominations supported by both home State Senators. That has meant that we are not able to proceed on current nominees from Arizona, Georgia, Nevada, Florida, Oklahoma and Utah. I even stopped proceedings on a circuit court nominee from Kansas when the Kansas Senators reversed their nominations and withdrew their support for the nominee.

I have been discussing with the junior Senator from Utah whether he will support the nomination of Robert Shelby. I have yet to receive assurance that he will. His vote today on the Nuffer nomination may provide a clue.

When the Judiciary Committee considered the nomination of David Nuffer from Utah, Senators, Senator HATCH and Senator LEFF, strongly supported the President's nomination. This is another nomination on which President Obama reached out and consulted with Republican home State Senators. The Senators from Utah supported this nomination when the President made it last year and when after hearing and study it was voted on by the Senate Judiciary Committee. They both serve on the Committee. Had either of them opposed this nomination, I would not have proceeded with it. They supported it. I hope this will not be another occasion on which either switches his vote from yes to no. That is another new practice and new standard that Senate Republicans have seemed to adopt.

By working steadily and by proceeding with the regular consideration of judicial nominations, I hope the Senate ensures that the Federal courts have the judges they need to provide justice for Americans without needless delay. In the two most recent presidential election years, 2004 and 2008, we worked together to reduce judicial vacancies to the lowest levels in decades. In 1992, with a Republican President and a Democratic Senate majority, we confirmed 66 judicial nominees.

Our courts need qualified Federal judges, not vacancies, if they are to reduce the excessive wait times that burden litigants seeking their day in court. It is unacceptable for hardworking Americans who turn to their courts for justice to suffer unnecessary delays. When an injured plaintiff sues to help cover the cost of his or her medical expenses, that plaintiff should not have to wait 3 years before a judge addresses the dispute. All but a handful are by any measure consensus nominations, as are Ms. Abrams and Mr. Contreras. There was never any good reason for the Senate not to proceed to votes on these nominations. It should not have taken cloture petitions to acquire agreement to schedule votes on these qualified, consensus judicial nominations.

Ronnie Abrams is nominated to serve as a Federal trial judge in the District of Columbia. Born to Cuban immigrants, Mr. Contreras has devoted his career to public service for the last 17 years. He worked as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the District of Columbia and in Delaware. He has risen to be the chief of the Civil Division of the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, where he currently serves. The delay in considering his nomination recalls the 4-month filibuster against the nomination of Judge Adalberto Jordan of Florida. On that nomination, Senate Republicans delayed a vote in the Senate for a full month and a cloture was invoked and the filibuster brought to an end. Judge Jordan was then finally confirmed as the first Cuban-American to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit.

The consequences of these months of delays are borne by the nearly 160 million Americans who live in districts and circuits with vacancies that could be filled as soon as Senate Republicans agree to up or down votes on the 20 judicial nominations currently before the Senate awaiting a confirmation vote.

The Senate must continue the actions allowed by last week's agreement. The Senate needs to make progress beyond the nominations included in that agreement, and beyond the 20 nominations currently on the calendar. There are another eight judicial nominees who have had hearings and are working their way through the Senate for a vote. The Senate was needlessly delayed last week when Republicans boycotted the Judiciary Committee meeting and prevented a quorum after insisting on a meeting only to hold over nominees. There are another 11 nominations on which the Senate need to make progress, and the Senate should be holding additional hearings during the next several weeks. By working steadily and by continuing the regular consideration of judicial nominations represented by last week's agreement, the Senate can do its part to ensure that the Federal courts have the judges they need to provide justice for all Americans without needless delay.

Our courts need qualified Federal judges, not vacancies, if they are to reduce the excessive wait times that burden litigants seeking their day in court. It is unacceptable for hardworking Americans who turn to their courts for justice to suffer unnecessary delays. When an injured plaintiff sues to help cover the cost of his or her medical expenses, that plaintiff should not have to wait 3 years before a judge
In the meantime, the district has had to rely on visiting judges from other districts across the country, Karth said. One to two judges come each week to assist with court proceedings.

“We continue to struggle to keep within standards and cases. We basically have to work harder and try to be resourceful in pulling together resources, sometimes from outside our district, to perform well,” Karth said.

“There’s certainly a wear and tear on anybody who has to sustain that sort of a pace for lengthy periods,” he said.

Walter Nacher, a lawyer and partner with Nash & Kirchen in Tucson, said the “crushing” caseload in the district is having a serious impact on trials.

“If lessens the possibility of justice for all parties involved,” Nash said.

Prosecutors have less time to prepare arguments, while victims’ cases aren’t resolved “as fast as they should be.” And judges could be rushed into a decision, meaning some guilty defendants may be acquitted, he said.

The need for new judges will be even greater when Speedy Trial Act provisions are reinstated next week after the emergency expires, Nash said.

Silver agreed that slow trials affect all sectors of the justice system but have an obligation to ensure justice for all. But with limited resources, space problems in courtrooms, large numbers of criminal cases and other litigation, Silver said, he would prefer civil trials in particular lagging behind or not getting the attention they deserve.

“So far we’re OK, but it will present a problem at some time,” Silver said. “We are required to act fairly in every criminal case, but there’s only so much we can do.”

The emergency cannot be renewed for six months, Silver said. He said that if things don’t improve, officials will have to consider the possibility of renewing.

“There was a reason for it last year, and I expect there’ll be a reason for it this year,” he said.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, again, we are moving forward under the regular order and procedures of the Senate. This year, we have been in session for about 32 days, including today. During that time we will have confirmed 12 judges. That is an average of better than 1 confirmation for every 3 days. With the confirmations today, the Senate will have confirmed nearly 74 percent of President Obama’s Article III judicial nominations.

Today, we turn to three more judicial nominations. Ronnie Abrams is nominated to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York. She graduated with a B.A. from Cornell University in 1990. She received her J.D. from Yale Law School in 1993. Upon law school graduation, she clerked for Honorable Thomas P. Greens of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. From 1994 to 1998 she worked as an associate on civil matters at David Polk and Wardwell. In 1998, Ms. Abrams joined the United States Attorney’s Office for the Southern District of New York as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Criminal Division. She has been an associate on a variety of criminal cases, including those involving the sexual exploitation of children, bank robbery, immigration, identity theft and money laundering. She also served in the Narcotics, Violent Crime and Public Corruption Units. From 2004 to 2008, Ms. Abrams served in a supervisory role at the United States Attorney’s Office, as either Deputy Chief or Chief of the Criminal Division. In 2008, Ms. Abrams returned to David Polk and Wardwell as Special Counsel for Pro Bono and represents those without means to represent themselves.

Rudolph Contreras is nominated to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia. He is a 1984 graduate from Florida State University and received his J.D. in 1991 from the University of Pennsylvania Law School. After graduating from law school, Mr. Contreras joined the litigation department of the law firm Jones Day. In 1994, he became an Assistant United States Attorney in the District of Delaware and the District of Columbia. In that capacity, he represented the United States and its departments and agencies in the trial and appellate levels in civil actions. In 2003, Mr. Contreras became Chief of the Civil Division in the District of Delaware. There, he supervises 40 Assistant United States Attorneys, 6 Special Assistants, 12 United States Attorneys, and 31 support staff.

David Nuffer is nominated to be United States District Judge for the District of Utah. He received his B.S. in 1980 and his J.D. in 1982 from Brigham Young University. He began his legal career as an associate at Allen Thompson & Hughes. From 1982 to 1992, Judge Nuffer practiced both criminal prosecution and criminal defense. From 1995 to 2002, he represented municipalities, individuals and businesses in civil litigation. He also served as a part-time United States Magistrate Judge during this time. In 2003, he was appointed to serve as a full-time magistrate judge. In 2009, he became Chief Magistrate Judge and has presided over over 30 cases that have gone to verdict or judgment. While some may complain about the time it has taken to confirm Judge Nuffer, I would note that the President took over a year and a half—576 days—to submit this nomination, once the vacancy occurred.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, I am pleased that the Senate today will confirm U.S. Magistrate Judge David Nuffer to the U.S. District Court in Utah. Two of the five judicial positions on that busy court have been vacant for some time, and Judge Nuffer will be a welcome addition.

Judge Nuffer has been involved in virtually all aspects of the legal community in Utah. He was in private practice for more than 20 years and has been an adjunct professor at Brigham Young University’s J. Reuben Clark Law School since 2001. He has chaired the Utah Judicial Conduct Commission and served on advisory and study committees.

Mr. Abrams joined the United States Attorney’s Office for the Southern District of New York as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Criminal Division. She has been appointed by the Utah Supreme Court. This diversity of experience and commitment to both the bar and the bench make him well qualified to join the U.S. District Court.

Judge Nuffer has also worked to promote the rule of law internationally, as a consultant and lecturer with the Ukraine Rule of Law Project. I was pleased last year to meet with a group of judges from Ukraine who were in the United States, both Washington and in Utah, as part of this educational program. Our independent judicial system and commitment to the rule of law is unparalleled anywhere in the world.

I also want to note Judge Nuffer’s efforts to promote access to the courts through technology. He has definitely been ahead of the curve on this issue.

Back in the 1990s, Judge Nuffer directed the Utah Electronic Law Project and served on the Utah Supreme Court’s Ad Hoc Committee on Access to Electronic Court Records. As Chairman of the Senate Republican High-Tech Task Force, I appreciate how cutting edge efforts can benefit all Americans at low cost.

As I travel throughout Utah talking to lawyers and judges, the unanimous opinion is that Judge Nuffer has the experience, temperament, and integrity to be a great Federal Judge. It was no surprise when the American Bar Association unanimously gave him its highest rating. I thank my colleagues for their support of this fine nominee.

Mr. LEAHY. I would note, on this side, at least—I know we have to have a rollcall on this first nominee. I will have no objection if there are voice votes on the next two. That would be up to others. But on the first one I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Will the Senate advance and consent to the nomination of Ronnie Abrams, of New York, to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York?

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

The nomination was confirmed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will be now be 2 minutes of debate equally divided prior to a vote in relation to the Abrams nomination.

Who yields time?

The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Madam President, we expect this to be the last vote. I am told that we have worked something out so the next judge we can do by voice. This will be the last vote of the week.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Madam President, I am honored to offer my strong support for the nomination of Ronnie Abrams to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. I also want to thank President Obama for acting on my recommendation and nominating another superbly qualified woman jurist to the Federal bench.

I have had the privilege of knowing Ms. Abrams for many years. I know her as a fairminded woman of great integrity. Throughout her distinguished legal career, she has proven herself as an exceptional attorney. As Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division for the United States Attorney’s Office of the Southern District of New York, she supervised hundreds of prosecutions, including violent crime, organized crime, white-collar crime, public corruption, drug trafficking, and crimes against children.

Her record shows her commitment to justice. I can tell you she has a deep and sincere commitment to public service. There is no question that Ms. Abrams is extremely well qualified and well suited to be a Federal judge.

I strongly believe our Nation needs more women such as serving on the Federal judiciary, an institution that I believe needs more exceptional women. I believe it is incredibly important that we do reach the point of balance in the judiciary. I recommend her most highly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SANDERS). Who yields time in opposition?

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Ronnie Abrams, New York, to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York?

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. KYL. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Nevada (Mr. HELLER) and the Senator from Illinois (Mr. KIRK).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

NFL DISCLOSURE

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise to speak about a disturbing disclosure made recently by the National Football League. The National Football League announced that they had been informed by the NFL that a "bounty" program was still in place.

Under this bounty program, players were reportedly given significant sums of money in direct exchange for intentionally injuring opposing players, disabling them, and for having them carried off the field in an ambulance.

According to reports, compensation started at $1,000 for causing an opponent to "carry off" the field. This was called a "cart-off." The price was $1,500 for causing an opponent to be unable to continue the game. This was known as a "knockout." These "bounties" reportedly reached high sums of money, as large as $10,000 and even $50,000.

What is even more troubling is that reports suggest that these bounty systems might have reached far beyond the New Orleans Saints. Reports表面ing as a result of the NFL's investigation have indicated that other teams may have also been engaged in this practice.

One former professional football player recently tweeted:

"Why is this a big deal now? Bounties have been going on forever."

Another stated:

"Prices were set on Saturday nights in the team hotel... We paid our bounties on opposing players. We targeted big names, our sights set on taking them out of the game."

"Let me tell you why this is important and reprehensible. A spirit of aggressiveness and competitiveness is an integral part of many sporting contests, but bribing players to intentionally hurt their opponents cannot be tolerated."

Just yesterday, to its credit, the NFL announced historically stiff penalties for those involved in the New Orleans Saints bounty program. The team's head coach, general manager, former defensive coordinator, and assistant head coach was suspended for long periods of time. The team will forfeit selections in upcoming drafts and the team was fined.

I commend the National Football League for taking swift and decisive action to discipline those involved in the bounty program. But we need to make sure this never happens again on any team, in any team sport.

For that reason, I will be convening a hearing of the Senate Judiciary Committee. I spoke to Senator Pat Leahy about this this morning, and he has given me his permission as chairman to move forward. We will have a hearing and put on the record what sports leagues and teams at the professional and collegiate level are doing to make sure there is no place in athletics for these pay-to-maim bounties. I want to hear the policies and practices in each of the major sports and collegiate sports that are being put in place, and that we explore whether Federal legislation is required.

Currently, bribery in a sporting contest is a Federal crime. It is illegal to carry out a scheme in interstate commerce to influence a sporting contest through bribery. This goes back to a law enacted almost 50 years ago by Senator Kenneth Keating of New York.

Here is what he said at the time about bribery that would influence the outcome of a sporting contest:

"We must do everything we can to keep sports clean so that the fans and especially young people, can continue to have complete confidence in the honesty of the players and the contest. Scandals in the sporting world are big news, and can have a devastating and shocking effect on the outlook of our youth, to whom sports figures are heroes and idols.

As the Department of Justice stated at that time, when the Federal law making it a crime to engage in bribery to influence the outcome of a sporting contest was enacted, Federal legislation was necessary to deal with the inadequacies and jurisdictional limitations of State law.

Mr. President, most of us are sports fans. I would have to list my favorite sports as football, with baseball a close second. I know football is a contact sport. I still have a bum knee to show from my football experience in high school. Accidents will happen and injuries will happen. That is a part of the game. I knew it when I put on my uniform and went out on the field. But I never dreamed there would be some conspiracy, some bribery involved and some other player trying to intentionally hurt me or take me out of the game. That goes way beyond sports.

I am heartened by the fact that many of the leaders in sports are now sensitized to the injuries that are being caused to players, particularly in the football arena. We know concussions can be devastating and ultimately take mation of State law.

I think it is time, whether we are talking about hockey, football, baseball, basketball, or any collegiate team contest, that we have clear rules to make certain that what happened with the New Orleans Saints never, ever happens again.

This hearing will invite representasporting leagues and the NCAA. So they will have time to prepare, we will call the hearing after the Easter break, but I hope to have it in a timely fashion.

I want fans all across America and I want players all across America to know that what happened in New Orleans that led to this action by the NFL is not going to be repeated.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, you know very well, because you are such a leader on the issue of jobs for America, that the Senate passed a very important bill last week. It is called MAP 21, Moving Ahead for Progress in the 21st Century. It was revisited our transportation programs as they relate to highways, our bridges, and our transit systems.

This was a very difficult bill to get done because it took a lot of compromise. My friend in the chair knows this. He comes from Vermont where they have had a lot of issues with rebuilding their roads after disasters, and he knows how important it is, especially in those rural areas, to make sure we have a good transportation system both in our roads, our freeways, and our mass transit.

We got this bill done. It was remarkable, 74 votes. Actually, it would have been 75 votes. One of our colleagues was absent, and he was for the bill. So three-quarters of the Senate supported that bill. We excitedly found out some House Members were very happy with it and they have introduced it and that bill, MAP 21, is sitting over in the House. There is a lot at stake, and they are not moving this bill.

They could take that bill off the desk and they could pass it in 15 minutes. I served in the House. I know the rules. It is not like the Senate, where we can filibuster and do amendments and all the rest. It is a very quick process. They have not done that. Instead, they are talking about putting together a bill just with the Republican Party and not including Democrats in that at all. So they would have a very partisan bill, and they are not interested in going to the Democrats. They want to turn that bill into some offshore oil drilling, drilling in the Arctic, drilling in the lakes, drilling, drilling, drilling, when it has nothing to do with the bill and would only add contentious, non-germane issues to what is a very clear statement by the Senate, in a bipartisan way, that in order to be a great nation and in order to have a strong economy, we need to move goods, we need to move people.

This idea of a national transportation system came to us from a Republican President named Dwight Eisenhower. He was a war hero and a general. He knew logistics, and he knew that if you have your own secure zone and they have to move their artillery, they have to move their equipment and all the rest, they need to have a logistics plan. When he became President, he knew: We are moving products from one State to the next. It is commerce. We had better get it right. And he started the highway system.

Since that time, we have had bipartisan support for transportation legislation. Whether it was Bill Clinton or whether it was George Bush or George Bush’s father or it was Jimmy Carter or it was Ronald Reagan or it was Richard Nixon, we have had bipartisan support.

The American people must be really happy to hear that we were able to carry out that bipartisan spirit. Senator INHOFE and I, working in our committee; Senator HUTCHISON and Senator ROCKEFELLER, working in their committee—these are Republicans and Democrats working together—Republicans and Democrats in Finance, Republicans and Democrats in four committees worked on this bill and voted it out.

We asked the House to take up the bill and pass it. So far we have heard nothing at all to lead us to the belief that that is what they are going to do. This entire program expires at the end of next week. If they just send us an extension without funding, if they send us an extension without change in law, it is going to wreak havoc in our States. We already have letters from the States saying that they are very fearful because this is the construction season. You cannot enter into an agreement if you only have a short-term agreement to keep the highway program operating for 30 days or 90 days or 60 days. We call on them to pass this bill.

I did a press conference today with Democrats. Leader PELOSI and STENY HOYER and friends over there who work on transportation issues—Nick RAHALL, the ranking member of the committee, and Mr. BISHOP, who has introduced the Senate bill, and Mr. DeFazio from Oregon. We had one message, and the message was this: Speaker Boehner, do what every great Speaker has done before you—reach out to the other party, come to the table and get 218 votes and pass this. So far we do not hear anything like that. I am very worried and I am concerned. Why?

Mr. President, 1.4 million construction workers are unemployed. That would fill 14 football stadiums. Fourteen Super Bowl stadiums filled with unemployed workers—that is what we have in construction because we have had such a downturn in housing. We ask Speaker Boehner respectfully, take up the bill. Put these people to work. Our bill will save 1.9 million construction jobs, and it will create up to 1 million more. We can take this 1.4 million, hire 1 million workers, and you would bring down that unemployment rate—way, way down. It is 17.1 percent.

How about our businesses? Our businesses need help. Mr. President, 1,075 organizations—the vast majority of them are businesses—have begged us to do this bill. We say to Speaker Boehner, respectfully, listen to more than 1,000 organizations. Pass the bill.

I am going to read an amazing array of editorials. I will not read them in whole, I will read them in part. The idea is that maybe Speaker Boehner isn’t listening, maybe he is not paying attention, but the country is.

Here is an editorial—not from a blue State but from a bright red State called Oklahoma, the Tulsa World:

Bipartisanship in the Senate Moves Transportation Bill. This is what they said:

With rare bipartisanship, the U.S. Senate on Wednesday passed a much-needed and much-delayed national transportation bill that could create jobs and fund road projects.

They finish by saying:

House Speaker John Boehner has called for the House to either take action on its bill or close it. That could clear the House to consider the Senate bill.

The country’s infrastructure has been ignored for too long; and it is in dire straits. This is an important and necessary extension of the Transportation bill. It will make needed improvements to our transportation infrastructure and, just as important, it is a real job-creator.

This is an editorial from Oklahoma—far from a blue State. They want us to finish our work, and they are calling on Speaker Boehner to do it.

Here is another red State, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram:

What an exciting thing to see the U.S. Senate pass a surface transportation funding bill last week on a 74-22 vote. Such bipartisan support for maintaining and improving this crucial part of the national infrastructure makes it almost seem like the good old days in Washington. . . .

At one point, [House Speaker John Boehner] said he would put the Senate bill before the House. . . .

Now he says:

It’s beginning to look like Boehner doesn’t have a clue what the House will do. . . .

If the Star-Telegram is right and Boehner doesn’t have a clue as to what to do, I would like to respectfully ask him to take up the Senate bill and pass it.

We just passed a bill they sent us with 73 votes. Our bill passed with 74. We did it. They should do it. In their bill that we passed, there is not one estimate of how many jobs will be created. We are hoping there will be. It is the IPO bill. This one is 3 million jobs, unequivocal. They name a bill the “JOBS bill,” they send it over here, and it gets 73 votes. We are going to pass it. We took it up. Now they should pass the bill we passed. They call it the “Oregon Register Follies” if he doesn’t act.

This is from the Oregon Register Guard. It is entitled “A Solid Transportation Bill.”

By an impressively bipartisan 74-22 vote, the U.S. Senate on Wednesday passed a two-year blueprint for transportation. The House should pass this massive bill swiftly after setting aside an outrageous Republican version that would link highway, bridge, and other transit spending to an expansion of oil drilling from the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

It praises our bill and points out that our bill is supported by labor and business, and it will create 3 million jobs.

I am going to read a few more of these. I hope somebody in Speaker Boehner’s office is watching. I really do, because we are showing what is happening in the country. Everybody is calling on Speaker Boehner to pass the bill.

This is the Sacramento Bee. Who could say it better? “Stop dithering, pass transportation bill.”

The Senate’s two-year bill, while not ideal, would provide states stability through the end of 2013. It also would give lawmakers a year to work on long-term funding.

Some House Republicans are saying they won’t act on a multiyear bill until . . . after the Easter break.

That is unacceptable, that is what I think.

You quote something I said, and I am going to repeat it because I think it is important.

This was a bill that brought us together, and Lord knows, it’s hard to find moments when we can come together.

Isn’t that true, Mr. President? It is hard to find times when we come together, when we came together, three-quarters of the Senate.

Speaker Boehner, what more do you want? You had 22 Republicans vote aye. Take up our bill and pass it.

Here is another one: “Highway bill would boost stability.” How important is that as we climb out of this recession?

A two-year, $109 billion highway bill that passed the Senate this week buoys the hope of interest groups like roadbuilders and the travel industry that the House can be proded by the senators’ action to pass its own bill before a March 31 expiration.

The bill has no earmarks.

This is from Mississippi, another red State.

Mississippi could derive major benefits from a part of the bill called the RESTORE Act amendment, supported by Wicker and Cochran. It would establish a restoration fund for Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas.

Et cetera—the gulf coast—to restore the damage caused in the calamitous oilspill.

Here we have newspaper after newspaper. I will be finished in about 6 minutes. Here is another Chicago Sun-Times editorial: “For a Better Commute, Pass Transportation Bill.”

How about this:

The U.S. Senate just delivered a gift to the House: a bipartisan transportation bill at a time when America really could use a lift. Here’s hoping the House Republicans don’t mess it up.

News for them: Right now, they are messing it up. All they have to do is take our bill from the desk and pass it, and, guess what, that would mean 3 million jobs; thousands of businesses could enter into contracts to build our roads and fix our bridges. There are 70,000 bridges in a state of disrepair, deficient, meaning they could have serious consequences. We saw bridges collapse. That is not a game. And infrastructure is aging.

I love this editorial. Essentialiy, it says:

A spokesman for Speaker John Boehner tells us that “the hope is that the House can come together, pass a long-term extension” of the transportation bill.

That is a hope. That is a prayer.

They tried it for more than a year. Guess what. They got nowhere. They will not talk to the Democrats over there.

I served in the House for 10 years. It was a wonderful experience. Tip O’Neill was a great Speaker. They had a lot of great ones over there, but Tip O’Neill knew that the way to get things done was to get to 218. He didn’t care if the people voting were Democrats or Republicans; if he saw a need, he got to 218 and he would go to his friend Bob Michel on the other side, like I went to Jim Inhofe, and they worked together the way we did.

Speaker Boehner, reach your hand out to Leader Pelosi. She is ready to go. She will work with you.

Here is one from Ohio. This is the State of Ohio. It is entitled “Road to Compromise.”

On Wednesday, 74 Senators, Republicans and Democrats, joined together in a real accomplishment: a two-year, $109 billion transportation bill. . . . The timing couldn’t have been better. Authorization for federal highway spending ends on March 31. Without action, construction, repair and maintenance will halt across the country.

What will the House do? It should take the cue of the Senate, and quickly approve the legislation that won bipartisan support.

This is Speaker Boehner. You know, in Speaker Boehner’s State, at a minimum, 55,000 jobs are at stake—at a minimum. That is without our new program that leverages funds. That would double, but right now there are 55,000 jobs we protect and we could create about another 40,000. In Leader Cantor’s State, it is 40,000 jobs and we could create another 30,000. I don’t know what they are thinking about over there. I honestly don’t know. What are they thinking about? Here is one. This is from Florida, an editorial: “Pass This Transit Bill.”

How could you get it clearer?

In an all too rare display of bipartisanship, the Senate last week passed a transportation bill of vital interest to South Florida and the rest of the country.

Unfortunately, House members apparently haven’t gotten the word. The Senate bill extends funding for federal highway, mass transit and other surface transportation projects for two years. That would save or create three million jobs.

Speaker John Boehner appears to have recognized that this version favored by some House hard-liners in his caucus doesn’t stand a chance of becoming law, but there’s no immediate plan to go forward with a reasonable compromise.

This uncompromising approach is why public approval of Congress stands at 10 percent or below in recent polls. Mr. Boehner should urge the members of his caucus to set aside their job-killing intransigence and accept the bipartisan Senate version.

Let me repeat that.

Let’s hold this here. I am going to conclude here because I know Senator FRANKEN has been waiting and I so respect his right to speak. But I did want to point out that this particular editorial comes from the newspaper that is home to the chairman of the committee over there. . . .

Here is another one: “Highway bill could create another 30,000. I don’t know what they are thinking about over there. I honestly don’t know. What are they thinking about? Here is one. This is from Florida, an editorial: “Pass This Transit Bill.”

With new signs every week that the recov-

Here’s hoping the House Republicans don’t do what the Senate did. . . .

Congress is gridlocked again—surprise!—this time over Federal transportation funding.

Last week a bipartisan majority in the Senate passed a $109 billion measure that would maintain Federal funding for highway and mass transit projects for two years. But a five-year bill . . . drafted by . . . John Mica, has stalled amid opposition from Democrats and some Republicans.

Rather than let transportation projects grind to a halt, lawmakers should pass the Senate bill as the only bipartisan vehicle available. Then, they should get started on writing the problems into the next bill over the long run—before the next bill becomes due.

Let’s put up the last one. This is from the Tampa Bay Times. This is a part of Florida that is pretty red, so I will close with this one.

House Should Fix Partisan Potholes and Pass Transit Bill.

With new signs every week that the recovery is aging. That is not a game. And infrastructure is aging.

Here’s hoping the House Republicans don’t do what the Senate did. . . .
Nation that they are in chaos because they don’t know what the House is going to do.

So we took up a House bill, we didn’t play partisan games, we passed it in a couple days, and it got 73 votes. Our jobs bill for highways and transit and roads and bridges got 74 votes. I say they wanted us to do this, we did it. How about they take a look at this bill. How about they save 3 million jobs. How about they do the people’s work before they go off on their break. They owe it to the American people. BOEHNER, CANTOR, MICA, all of them owe it to the American people. They said it is a priority, and they do nothing. They are dithering, as the papers have expressed. Today, they can stop dithering. Tomorrow, they can get our bill ready for a vote. Next week, they could pass it, we can go home, and we can all celebrate with our businesses and our construction workers and our small businesses to pool with others to get more affordable health insurance for the patient that is the right fit for them. Of course, while presently no child can be denied health insurance for preexisting conditions, starting in 2014 no American will be denied health insurance or penalized for having a preexisting condition. It is working. The plan is already lowering premiums in order for companies to comply. For example, Aetna in Connecticut lowered their premiums on an average of 10 percent because of this provision in the law. Another key provision in the law is the value index. The value index rewards doctors for the quality of the care they deliver, not the quantity—for the value of the care, not the volume. My home State, Minnesota, is a leader—if not the leader—in delivering care they deliver, not the quantity—for the care they deliver, not the quantity—for the value of the care, not the volume. My home State, Minnesota, is a leader—if not the leader—in delivering care. My colleagues and I disagree on many things. Can we all at least agree to talk about what is factual? The benefits of this law are tremendous and Americans across the country are already experiencing it. I urge all my colleagues to acknowledge these benefits and to support the continued implementation of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

The cleansed their Nation’s job creators in the Senate.

Let’s talk about seniors. I go to a lot of senior centers around my State. I know the Presiding Officer goes to senior citizen centers around New Hampshire. Because of the health care law more than 57,000 seniors in Minnesota receive a 50 percent discount on their medications and drugs when they hit the donut hole, at an average savings of $590 per senior. By 2020, the law will close the donut hole entirely. You know who likes that—seniors. You know what else seniors like? The 2014–2020, 424,000 Minnesotans with Medicare received preventive services without copays, such as colonoscopies and mammograms and free annual wellness visits with their doctors. I could go on and on with what we have already gained, but I wish to talk a little bit about a provision I wrote with the catchy name “medical loss ratio,” which is sometimes called the 80/20 rule because of my medical loss ratio provision which I based on a Minnesota law. Health insurance companies must spend 80 to 85 percent of their premiums on actual health care. This is 85 percent for large group policies, 80 percent for small group and individual policies and 80 percent on actual health care. We have already heard the medical loss ratio provision is working. The plan is already lowering premiums in order for companies to comply. For example, Aetna in Connecticut lowered their premiums on an average of 10 percent because of this provision in the law.

Another key provision in the law is the value index. The value index rewards doctors for the quality of the care they deliver, not the quantity—for the value of the care, not the volume. My home State, Minnesota, is a leader—if not the leader—in delivering care. My colleagues and I disagree on many things. Can we all at least agree to talk about what is factual? The benefits of this law are tremendous and Americans across the country are already experiencing it. I urge all my colleagues to acknowledge these benefits and to support the continued implementation of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

The truth is the policy behind the bill was flawed. The truth is that the law is fundamentally flawed. It raises taxes and health care costs for working families. And the bureaucrats between patients and their doctors. It tangles our Nation’s job creators in regulations and redtape, and it defies our country’s most sacred document—
the Constitution of the United States.
Next week, the U.S. Supreme Court begins hearings to determine whether the health care law violates the Constitution. It is one of the most important cases in recent history. The Court has set aside 180 days to hear oral arguments—more time than has been devoted to a case in over four decades. Its ruling will have a far-reaching impact on our health care system, but it doesn’t stop there. It will have an impact on our economy, and fundamentally on the expansion of congressional authority over the individual citizen.

I hope the Supreme Court will resolve the countless problems in this law for good by striking it down in its entirety.

The facts tell us that with the passage of time, things have not gotten better with this law; they have, in fact, gotten worse. Take last week’s report from the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office as one example. We learned something about the cost of this bill. Before the bill was passed, many of us were saying this bill was filled with budget gimmicks to make it look like the American people than it was. Well, we learned that the cost of the law’s coverage provisions alone is projected to balloon to $1.7 trillion.
The problem is that CBO only does 10-year projections, so the major provisions of this law were delayed until 2014. Why? Well, the reason for that is it was done to mask the true costs of this bill when it was fully implemented. When we eliminate gimmicks such as this and consider the law’s first 10 years of full implementation, I fully expect the total cost of this legislation will not be the $900 billion promised by President Obama, it will be $2.6 trillion. This law certainly doesn’t bend the curve down.

CBO concludes that families buying insurance on their own will pay an astounding $2,100 more a year for that insurance. Yet then-Candidate Obama promised that Americans would see their premiums decrease by $2,500 by the end of his first term.

The recent CBO report also noted that the Federal Government will spend $168 billion more on Medicaid compared to last year’s estimate.

The coming out. That means more people will be trapped in a broken program where waiting lines will, in fact, be longer, emergency room visits will be more frequent, because that is the only place they can find care, health care outcomes will get worse, and 40 percent of physicians today won’t even see patients in this program.

This law does not deliver better quality health care either. Imposing Medicaid on more people is like giving someone a ticket to ride a bus that has broken down hundreds of miles away but claiming they have a ticket so, in fact, they have the opportunity for transportation. Not only that, the law puts all the pressure and burden on our States to implement the Medicaid Program’s largest expansion since 1965, placing $118 billion in unfunded mandates on States, when our States are struggling to figure out how they balance their budgets. As a former Governor who has balanced budgets, I believe this expansion dumped on our States to manage is a critical and fatal flaw of this legislation.

CBO also recently projected that up to 20 million working Americans could lose their employer-sponsored health care coverage because of this health care law. That is an incredible shift, especially when we consider that our President promised no fewer than 47 different times: “If you like your plan, you can keep it.”

In addition to a potential 20 million employees losing their current coverage, 7 million seniors are likely to lose their Medicare Advantage plans. According to the Congressional Budget Office Director, more than 3,200 Nebraskans enrolled in Medicare Advantage will, in fact, have their benefits cut in half. Families in 17 States, including Nebraska, no longer have access to child-only health insurance because of mandates in this law.

Wait a second. I just said in 17 States they no longer have access to a child-only health insurance policy because of this law’s effect. That is incredible.

Our Nebraska Insurance commissioner called this collapse of the child-only market “an example of the unintended consequences of this imperfect law.”

Here we see the President’s promise, again, flippantly on its head: This law forces you to say goodbye to the coverage you like for children.

Over the past 2 years, I have traveled across the great State of Nebraska hosting townhalls, roundtables, and meeting with the many folks who know about this law, the more they detest it. Religious schools and hospitals and charities are troubled because the law will force them to violate their deeply held beliefs.Seniors are concerned that the law will limit access to care because it siphons $500 billion from Medicare and uses it as a piggy bank to spend on other government programs.

The administration’s own Medicare Actuary concluded “the prices paid by Medicare for health services are very likely to fall increasingly short of the costs of providing these services.” The CMS Actuary continued that these Medicare cuts could result in “severe problems with beneficiary access to care.”

Let me translate that. That means this law will make it more difficult for senior citizens to get health care because the Federal Government is not paying its way. Others wonder what the 159 new boards established by this law will mean for access to health care, and hard-working Nebraskans question how the law’s $5 trillion in taxes will affect their families. Approximately 428,000 Nebraskan households making less than $200,000 will pay higher taxes—approximately 428,000. That is based on estimates by the Joint Committee on Taxation.

Businesses across Nebraska have shared with me that they are holding off on hiring because of the mandates in this legislation. At a roundtable last week, business men and women expressed their concerns about the law’s tax on health insurance companies in the fully insured market, and with good reason. The health insurance tax alone could impose $87 billion in costs on businesses and their employees over the law’s first 10 years alone.

An analysis by the National Federation of Independent Business indicates this law will force the private sector—will force the private sector—to cut between 124,000 and 249,000 jobs between now and 2021. That is not just a statistic; those are families that lose a job because of this health care bill.

It is remarkable that in the midst of our economic situation, the President’s signature legislation actually reduces jobs. These are some of the reasons Nebraskans are demanding louder than ever that this law be repealed.

Now, some of the law’s supporters have taken up the mantra: Well, don’t repeal it, repair it. That is a nice slogan. This law, though, is so fatally flawed no bandaid is ever going to fix it.

I experienced firsthand how difficult it is to change this law when I worked to repeal the 1990 tax-cutting requirement, which nearly everybody agreed was idiotic. It would have increased paper work burdens on our Nation’s job creators by up to 2,000 percent.

The administration even agreed this pay-for in their law needed to go, and, in the end, 87 Senators supported full repeal of the provision. But it took 9 months and 7 votes before my efforts to repeal a provision that everybody agreed was idiotic was finally successful. So anyone who tells you we can tinker with the law to fix it might as well offer you ocean-front property in the State of Nebraska.

The 2,700-page law is one of the largest pieces of legislation ever passed in this Nation’s history. Its provisions are interconnected, ill-fated, and far-reaching, and they will affect every single American economically, socially, and physically. We cannot sit idly by and allow for the negative consequences to continue unraveling, and they will.

As I said, I hope the Supreme Court strikes down this entire law. But if it does not, we will continue our fight to repeal it, as Nebraskans demand that I and instead of the many inefficiencies and address the underlying costs. We must give States the flexibility to run their Medicaid Program in the best way that serves the needs of those vulnerable populations in that State.

This law is misguided. It stifles job growth and does not improve health care for millions of Americans, and it should be the duty of all Members of Congress to demand it. Nebraskans are demanding it, and they deserve that.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, 2 years ago this week, President Obama signed into law the affordable care act. This landmark law would extend health insurance coverage to 30 million uninsured Americans in the next few years. Reform based on good-quality and affordable health insurance, talked about for decades, is finally becoming a reality.

Over 15 months, Congress debated and then passed the most sweeping and comprehensive reforms to improve the everyday lives of every American since Congress passed Medicare in 1965. It was an arduous process, but in the end this is one of the curve that Americans and the new law makes it easier for seniors to afford prescription drugs in the meantime. In 2010, more than 7000 Vermonters received a $250 rebate to help cover the cost of their prescription drugs when they hit the doughnut hole. Last year, nearly 6800 Vermonters with Medicare received a 50-percent discount on their covered brand-name prescriptions, resulting in an average savings of $714 per person. Since the affordable care act was signed into law, more than 4000 young adults in Vermont have gained health insurance coverage under these reforms, which allow young adults to stay on their parents’ plans until their 26th birthday.

The improvements we are seeing in Vermont go on and on: 81,649 Vermonters on Medicare and more than 100,000 Vermonters with private insurance gained access to and received preventative screening coverage with no deductible or copay. These are just a few of the dozens of consumer protections of the affordable care act being implemented, allowing consumers to take control of their own health care decisions. Known as the Patients’ Bill of Rights, these rules protect consumers against the worst health insurance industry abuses that have been the likely reason why so many Americans are demanding it, and they deserve that.

Yet another major reform now protects hard-working Americans from one of the most egregious insurance industry practices: setting lifetime or annual limits on health insurance coverage. Before this change in the law, wherever I traveled in Vermont, I was often stopped in the grocery store, at church, on the street, or at the gas station by Vermonters who shared their personal, wrenching stories about how they could no longer get medical treatment because they had met their annual or lifetime maximum. Many of these Vermonters were perfectly healthy before being diagnosed with cancer or diseases that cost well beyond their means for treatment. Instead of being able to focus on getting healthy, patients instead had to worry about whether their next doctor’s visit would push them above the insurance company’s arbitrary limit.

Beginning in 2014, insurance companies will no longer be allowed to deny coverage to individuals with pre-existing health conditions or to charge higher premiums based on health status or gender. We learned in a report issued by the National Women’s Law Center this week that until these reforms are implemented, insurance companies are continuing to charge women higher premiums than men. In States where this practice is not prohibited, women can pay substantially more than men solely because of their gender. Those who wish to turn back the clock and repeal the affordable care act threaten to return the American people to a system where women can be charged more than men, children can be denied insurance coverage because they were born with a health condition, and individuals risk losing their health insurance solely for getting sick.

In addition to these improvements to our health insurance system, over time the affordable care act will insure 93 percent of our population and make a substantial investment in our ecosystem. Like I was proud to work with Senator GRASSLEY and others to include strong antifraud provisions in the law that have already helped prevent and detect fraudulent activities that in the past have cost American taxpayers millions of dollars each year. Despite the specious arguments from opponents of reform, this bill is the largest deficit reduction measure upon which many in Congress will ever cast a vote. The Congressional Budget Office estimated that it will cut the deficit by $143 billion through 2019, and by more than $1 trillion in the decades to come.

Regrettably, opponents of the affordable care act have sought to continue their political battle by challenging the landmark legislation in the courts, right from the moment President Obama signed it into law. These opponents seek to claim that Congress did not have the authority to make these changes to the Federal deficit by $143 billion through 2019, and by more than $1 trillion in the decades to come.
until they are sick to get coverage, driving up the costs for everyone else in the meantime. This will mean that many of the consumer protections in the law, such as the ban on preexisting health conditions, would disappear, once again leaving millions uninsured. For a law that was praised as a landmark and a testament to the bipartisan nature of our Nation, the Supreme Court should not cast aside this landmark law and Congress’s time-honored ability to act on behalf of the American people.

The affordable care act is a tremendous victory that will improve the lives of Americans for generations to come. For decades, we have heard heartbreaking stories about the enormous challenges Americans face because they are uninsured or underinsured. With each year that we move forward to implement the features of the affordable care act, these stories are becoming fewer and fewer and are being replaced by stories of the success of these reforms, one family at a time, all across Vermont and all across America.

There is still much more to accomplish, and there are still millions of Americans who are struggling to buy or keep adequate health insurance coverage for their families or themselves. As these reforms are implemented over the next few years, I will continue to work with Vermonters and the Department of Health and Human Services to help Americans have the access to the quality, affordable health insurance that everyone and every American needs and deserves. I yield the floor.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I note in morning business that the bipartisan Violence Against Women Act reauthorization now has 61 cosponsors. I thank Senator CRAPo for his leadership and commend the Senators from both parties who came to the floor last week to speak about the importance of reauthorizing the Violence Against Women Act.

I want to thank Senators MIKULSKI, MURRAY, MUKERSKI, KLOBUCKAR, HAGAN, SHAAEEN, FEINSTEIN and BOXER for coming to the Senate floor last week to express bipartisan support for the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act and to emphasize the importance of reauthorizing this landmark legislation. I hope that their statements will point the way for the Senate to act soon to pass this important legislation.

Senator KLOBUCKAR spoke about her time as a prosecutor in Hennepin County, MN, and her efforts to put the focus on children’s needs in domestic violence cases. She spoke about the dangers faced by law enforcement and the loss of a young officer who was killed while responding to a domestic violence call behind a wife and three young children.

We heard from the respected senior Senator from Alaska, Senator Murer, who spoke of the message we need to send so that victims can have confidence and muster the courage to leave an abusive situation. She spoke about the important commitment we make against sexual assault and domestic violence in this legislation and our continuing efforts to effectively protect our rural communities such as the villages of rural Alaska.

The Senate heard last Thursday, as well, from Senator MIKULSKI, Senator LEAHY, Senator SHAAEEN, Senator FEINSTEIN and Senator BOXER, the author of a House bill in 1990 that was an important part of this effort. Eight Senators came to the floor to remind us all why this measure is important and that the Senate should proceed to pass it.

For almost 18 years, the Violence Against Women Act—VAWA—has been the centerpiece of the Federal Government’s commitment to combating domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking. The impact of this landmark law has been remarkable. It has provided life saving assistance to hundreds of thousands of women, men, and children, and the annual incidence of domestic violence has fallen by more than 50 percent since the law was first passed.

Support for the Violence Against Women Act has always been bipartisan, and I appreciate the bipartisan support that this reauthorization bill has already received. Senator CRAPo and I introduced the reauthorization of the Violence Against Women Act in November. With Senators HELLER and AYOTTE joining the bill this week, it is now cosponsored by 61 senators from both sides of the aisle, reaching a critical level of bipartisan support.

The Violence Against Women Act is not about partisan politics. It is about saving women’s lives and responding to the scourge of domestic and sexual violence. We should consider the bill and pass it because it is vitally important legislation. The legislation now before the Senate is informed by the experiences and needs of survivors of domestic and sexual violence all around the country, and by the recommendations of the tireless professionals who serve them every day. It builds on the progress that has been made in reducing domestic and sexual violence and makes vital improvements to respond to requests we have heard many times. Each time we have authorized and reauthorized the Violence Against Women Act.

Our legislation includes key improvements that are needed to better serve the victims of violence. Because incidence of sexual assault remains high, while reporting rates, prosecution rates, and conviction rates remain appallingly low, this reauthorization increases VAWA’s focus on effective responses to sexual assault. It also endorses evidence-based therapies and methods that can be very effective in preventing domestic violence homicide. The provisions of the bill are described and explained in the committee report, which was also filed last week.

The provisions that a minority on the Judiciary Committee labeled controversial are, in fact, modest changes to meet the genuine, unmet needs that survivors and service providers, victims every day, have told us they desperately need. As every prior VAWA authorization has done, this bill takes steps to recognize those victims whose needs are not being served and find ways to help them access care now or in the future.

This reauthorization seeks to ensure that services provided under the Violence Against Women Act are available for all victims, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity. Research has proven that domestic and sexual violence affects all communities, but victims of different sexual orientations or gender identities have had a more difficult time obtaining services. There is nothing radical or new about saying that all victims are entitled to services. This is what the Violence Against Women Act has always done. It reaches out to help all victims. As Senator FEINSTEIN last week: “[T]hese are improvements. Domestic violence is domestic violence.”

Domestic and sexual violence against Native women continues to be a problem of epidemic proportions. Just as we made strides when we enacted the Tribal Law and Order Act two years ago, we can take responsible steps to more effectively protect Native women. Working with the Indian Affairs Committee, we have included a provision to fill a loophole in jurisdiction in order to allow tribal courts jurisdiction over perpetrators who have significant ties to the tribe in a very limited set of domestic violence cases involving an Indian victim on Indian land. This provision could allow prosecution of cases that currently are simply not addressed, and it would do so in a way that guarantees defendants comprehensive rights.

The bill would allow a modest increase in the number of available U visas. Law enforcement is authorized to request visas for immigrant victims who are helping their investigations. These visas are key law enforcement tools that allow perpetrators of serious crimes to be brought to justice. They were created in VAWA previously with bipartisan support. The Department of Homeland Security and the Fraternal Order of Police strongly support this provision because it serves law enforcement officials.

We all know that while the economy is now improving, these remain difficult economic times, and taxpayer money must be spent responsibly. That is why in our bill, we consolidate 13 programs into four in an effort to reduce duplication and bureaucratic barriers. The bill would cut the authorization level for VAWA by more than $135 million a year, a decrease of nearly 20 percent from the last reauthorization. The legislation also includes significant accountability provisions, including audit requirements, enforcement mechanisms, and restrictions on grants and costs.

Our reauthorization bill is the product of careful consideration and has widespread support. I have reached out to those who have opposed these provisions to work out a time agreement to govern amendments. The Judiciary Committee passed this bill after considering the amendments offered by the minority. That is what the Senate should do. Then we should move forward and pass this important measure with strong bipartisan support. These problems are too serious for us to delay. We should reauthorize this law now.

This is crucial, commonsense legislation that has been endorsed by more than 700 State and national organizations. Numerous religious and faith-based organizations, as well as our law enforcement partners have endorsed this VAWA reauthorization bill. The Violence Against Women Act should not be a partisan matter. The last two times the Violence Against Women Act was reauthorized, it was unanimously approved by the Senate. Although it seems that partisan gridlock is too often the default in the Senate over the last couple of years, it remains my hope working with our Republican co-sponsors of H.R. 348, which has been approved by the Senate, that we can pass our VAWA reauthorization with a strong bipartisan majority.

Domestic and sexual violence knows no political party. Its victims are Republican and Democrat; rich and poor, young and old, male and female. Let us work together and pass strong VAWA reauthorization legislation without delay. It is a law that has saved countless lives, and it is an example of what we can accomplish when we work together.

TRIBUTE TO HERBERT S. VERRILL

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I rise today to pay tribute to a man who has made a great sacrifice to protect and defend the liberties of his beloved United States, and the Republic of France as well. 2LT Herbert S. Verrill of Whitehall, Queensbury, County of Saratoga, New York, is a veteran of World War II and served a tour of duty in Europe in 1945. Today he is 92 years old and resides on Old Whitley Road in Laurel County.

Mr. Verrill, or “Herb” as many call him, served in the U.S. Army, Company E, 399th Infantry Regiment, 100th Infantry Division. Near Reversville, France, on March 15, 1945, he commanded a small troop. He was just a lieutenant, and at the time he and his men ventured into the midst of an attack that day. To Herb’s horror, his unit found themselves trapped in a maze of barbed wire and landmines while bullets whizzed around them. Herb accidentally set off one of the buried mines, and the explosion took off his foot in a nearly fatal wound. In a superhuman act of courage, Herb ignored the pain and forgot the wound he had just received. All the 24-year-old lieutenant would think about was the safety of his two other men who had left him. Herb directed his men safely out of the middle of the heated skirmish.

After the war, Herb returned home to Kentucky. He married, fathered three successful children, and found his way back to civilian life. For the next many years Herb, like many other World War II veterans, kept the courage and selflessness he had shown on the battlefield to himself. He sat quietly and humbly, watching those around him enjoy the freedoms and liberties he and many others had made such a great sacrifice to preserve. Although Herb had done his best to move on, the world would not forget the great heroism that he had shown.

Herb received a letter from the Consul General of France, based in Chicago, IL, in July of 2011. He had been named a Knight of the Legion of Honor by the French Republic, one of the highest awards one can receive in the country of France. The letter read:

My fellow countrymen will never forget your sacrifice. Their children and grandchildren and all of your courageous actions as can be your own children and grandchildren. This outstanding distinction is the highest honor that France can bestow upon those who have achieved remarkable deeds for France. It is also a sign of gratitude for your invaluable contribution to the liberation of France during these difficult times in the history of our nation.

The award was authorized on July 4, 2011.

Herb was also recognized by the country whose flag he had worn on his uniform in the United States of America. He received the Distinguished Service Cross. The letter he received from GEN Donald Storm recalled the “indomitable courage and resolution” displayed by Herb during the battle in Reversville that “prevented confusion and consequent casualties among the men, which made possible the capture of the objective.”

Herb’s nephew, Randy Stanifer, is in awe of the great sacrifice that was made by the soldiers and women of the United States in World War II. “The men from those wars were pre-cell phones and pre-Internet,” he says. “They were out in the field and would go months without hearing from their families. They went through many things and when most of them came home, they didn’t talk about it.”

Randy went on to declare, “I think we should all pause for a few minutes and recognize the things they had to go through and appreciate their sacrifices.”

Herb was extremely pleased to receive both awards. He is one of the few remaining veterans of World War II; sadly, our country loses more every day. He answered his country’s call to serve, and he did so valiantly. Herbert Verrill undoubtedly deserves every recognition.

Mr. President, at this time I would like to ask my colleagues to join me in commemorating the service and sacrifice made by 2LT Herbert S. Verrill in World War II on behalf of the United States of America and the French Republic.

Today an article appeared in the Laurel County-area publication the Sentinel Echo. The article highlighted the courageous life of Mr. Verrill and reported on the awards bestowed upon him by the French Republic and the United States in July, 2011. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that said article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

LAUREL MAN RECEIVES FRENCH MILITARY HONOR

(By Nita Johnson)

A local veteran of World War II recently received two honors for his military service, one of which is the highest honor bestowed by the French government.

Herbert Verrill of Old Whitley Road was presented with the Knight of the Legion of Honor on behalf of the people of France through the Consul General of France, based in Chicago. He also received the Distinguished Service Cross for his valor leading his men away from a minefield during the battle in France and for directing his company to continue an attack, despite being injured himself.

Verrill served with the United States Army Company E, 399th Infantry Regiment, 100th Infantry Division near Reversville, France, on March 15, 1945. Verrill, a lieutenant at the time, was leading his troops through an attack by enemy forces—through mines and barbed wire—when he accidentally set off one of the mines. The explosion blew Verrill’s foot off. In a display of courage and trauma, Verrill kept his fellow comrades and their safety foremost, and ordered them away from the minefield. He continued to ensure their safety and continued to direct the men by hand and arm signals. Verrill received the letter from Graham Paul, Consul General of France in Chicago, IL, last month.

“It is my pleasure . . . to inform you, on behalf of the people of France, the President of the French Republic has named you Knight of the Legion of Honor for your valorous action during World War II,” the citation reads. “My fellow countrymen will never forget your sacrifice. Their children and grandchildren are as proud of your courageous actions as can be your own children and grandchildren. This outstanding distinction is the highest honor that France can bestow upon those who have achieved remarkable deeds for France. It is also a sign of gratitude for your invaluable contribution to the liberation of France during those difficult times in the history of our nation.”

The award was authorized through a decree from the President of the French Republic on July 4, 2011.

Verrill was also presented with the Distinguished Service Cross by the American government for his courageous acts. The citation concluding Verrill’s deeds reads: “The President of the United States of America, authorized by Act of Congress,
TRIBUTE TO WILMER LEE BOGGS

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, I rise today to pay tribute to a man who has not only valiantly served his country, but is also a husband and a loving father and grandfather.

Mr. Wilmer Lee Boggs of Laurel County, KY. Mr. Boggs served in the U.S. Army Air Corps for over 3 years, and upon returning home he contributed to the nation in a different way, by serving with the U.S. Postal Service for a quarter of a century.

Wilmer was drafted into the U.S. Armed Forces in 1942. He was 21 years old. Shortly after receiving glowing scores on his entrance exam, he pulled an assignment to basic training in Ft. Thomas, KY, after only a few days and transferred to the Air Corps, the Army service division from which the Air Force would later come. At the time, the Army Air Corps was in need of mechanics, specifically supercharger mechanics. Superchargers were built onto plane engines to provide the vehicle with more power and speed. The skills displayed by the young Wilmer Boggs showed that he was the man for the job.

Wilmer Boggs, along with the rest of his supercharger class No. 21, graduated from the Aviation Institute of Technology in 1943. Based in England, Wilmer spent the next 7 months going wherever the corps called him to repair, service, stock, and fuel the airplanes.

Born and raised in Laurel County, Wilmer Boggs had never lived anywhere else. While he was in the Army Air Corps he traveled through 19 different countries and made sure to hold onto a little piece of home the entire time: his dear friend Wilma Vaughn.

Mr. Boggs had promised Wilma, whom he had met at Sue Bennett College, that he would write faithfully each month, and that is exactly what he did. The two kept up until the soldier returned home in January 1946.

Just 6 months later, in July of 1946, Wilmer went to pick Wilma up from her house with the idea of marriage in the back of his mind. The unsuspecting Wilma was no doubt surprised by Wilmer's request. But love prevailed, and later that day the two were wed, and according to Wilmer, "She was the best wife there ever was."

Wilmer went on to become a postmaster in the U.S. Postal Service while Wilma taught elementary school. They retired together in 1981. Sadly, his beloved Wilma passed away in 2011 but not before the two had seen almost the entire western part of the United States together.

Wilmer has spent his 89 years on Earth forging a legacy that is matched by few. His character is upstanding, and he is a man driven by principle. He is deeply loved and admired by his family, and he is greatly respected by those who knew him. It is men like Wilmer whom we can all look up to.

Underneath the loyalty and service he has shown his country in its time of need, there is a deep and humbling appreciation for his fellow man and local community, which he has conveyed throughout his lifetime.

Mr. President, at this time I would like to ask my Senate colleagues to join me in commemorating Mr. Wilmer Lee Boggs for his upstanding character and devoted service to country and community throughout his prosperous lifetime.

An article was published in the Sentinel Echo Silver Edition in the fall of 2011. The story observed the phenomenal life and times of Wilmer Lee Boggs. It described his dedication to the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. Army, and his local economy. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that said article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WORLD WAR II: TAKING THE LEAD

(By Carrie Dillard)

After 25 years with the United States Post- al Service, Wilmer Lee Boggs retired as post- master in 1981. The 89-year-old has worked in banking and the family business, in farming and dairy. He's volunteered for more than four decades with soil conserva- tion and the Gideons.

With his natural leadership abilities, Boggs could be seen as a political role model. Boyd Boggs, who served as both judge and sheriff during his lifetime, but he preferred tinkering with tools instead.

It's why his job in the U.S. Army Air Corps suited him perfectly. Boggs was an airplane engine mechanic, specializing in super- chargers.

"It was pretty fortunate to get to do something I liked to do," he said.

Boggs was drafted into the military in 1942. He was 21 years old.

"I got a notice to go into London to the draft board. I was expecting in," he said.

Although Boggs was drafted into the Army, his entrance exam quickly showed an aptitude for more, and he was chosen for the Air Corps, a predecessor to the Air Force.

He was supposed to do his basic training at Fort Thomas, Kentucky, but after just a couple of days there, he was selected to go to mechanics school.

"I took a test," he said, "and they pulled me out it. They was needing people to go to mechanics school."

Boggs was then selected to specialize in superchargers, which gave the airplane engine more power and speed. The skills displayed by the young Wilmer Boggs showed that he was the man for the job.

TRIBUTE TO “CHIP” JAENICHER
Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I rise today in honor of Captain Paul “Chip” Jaenichen, United States Navy, who is retiring this month after three decades of dedicated service to our great Nation. Captain Jaenichen has spent the last 2 years of his career serving the U.S. Congress as the Navy’s Deputy Chief of Legislative Affairs. In this role, Captain Jaenichen maintained oversight of the Navy team that provided coordinated briefings to Congress with information concerning the programs of the Department of the Navy.

Captain Jaenichen’s Kentucky roots run deep. He spent his formative years in Brandenburg, graduating from Meade County High School in 1978. During his senior year he was selected as one of 50 football players from across the Commonwealth to play in the 1978 East-West All-star game. Chip’s wife Paula was born in Morganfield, grew up in Louisville and later attended Meade County High School with him. After her graduation from Western Kentucky University, Paula and Chip were married in Brandenburg. The couple then moved to Louisville, where they lived until he began the Nuclear Training pipeline. Their daughter Rachael attended Murray State University and is now an English teacher at Reidland High School in Paducah. Chip and Paula’s son Nathan currently serves as a Marine Corps pilot.

Chip was able to pay homage to his Kentucky heritage in his career as the Executive Officer of the USS Kentucky, an Ohio Class ballistic missile submarine. During this tour he started a Namesake State school partnership with Raceland Elementary School near Ashland. Through this program, which continues to thrive, he coordinated several visits for the crew of the Kentucky to visit local philanthropic projects in the Commonwealth. Chip’s efforts led to his nomination and selection to the Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels in 1996, an organization with which he remains active.

Captain Jaenichen’s Naval career began in 1978 with an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy from Representative William Natcher. Upon graduation, he was commissioned as a submarine officer and spent the majority of his career on sea duty. He honorably served on four different submarines before assuming the role of Executive Officer aboard the USS Kentucky. After three strategic deterrent patrols with the Kentucky, Captain Jaenichen assumed command of the USS Albany. Captain Jaenichen served the final 2 years of his career with the Navy’s Legislative Affairs office here in Washington.

I thank Captain Jaenichen for his 30 years of loyal service to this Nation. He has made a lasting and significant contribution to the United States Navy and our Nation. I wish him and his family all the best as they begin this new chapter in their lives.

TRIBUTES TO SENATOR BARBARA MIKULSKI
Mr. LIEBERMAN. Madam President, I rise today to join my colleagues in congratulating Senator Barbara Mikulski from Maryland on becoming the longest-serving woman in the history of Congress. Senator Mikulski has thus reinforced her distinctive mark on this institution and her unmistakable place in our Nation.

Those who have worked beside Senator Mikulski know her to be a dynamic force of nature. While she is not the tallest senator, she reaches the greatest heights with her strong principles, indomitable spirit, and steady resolve.

From the neighborhoods of east Baltimore to the Halls of Congress, she has spent her career in the political trenches fighting for others—for working families, for working Americans, and for her beloved Maryland. Senator Mikulski has been a practical leader for better women’s health care. She fought to have women included in clinical trials and medical research at the National Institutes of Health and helped establish federal standards for mammograms.

Her impact is not only felt in the lives of those she serves, but also in her relationships with those she serves with. At this time in our politics when tribal instincts have coarsened our discourse and weakened our bonds, Senator Mikulski is a unifying force of comity in the Senate. She brings a sense of civility and a sense of humor to this institution at a time when both are sorely needed.

Women senators fondly know Senator Mikulski as their Dean. She hosts regular bipartisan dinners for them and in particular has taken a leadership role in mentoring other women as they follow in her footsteps to the halls of Congress. She has represented Maryland for more than 35 years, and who earlier this week became the longest-serving member of Congress. Senator Mikulski is a fighter, a fearless leader and a role model for women and young girls everywhere, including my three daughters, Caroline, Halina and Anne.

During the course of her distinguished career, Senator Mikulski has been an incredibly effective advocate, and in particular has taken a leadership role in mentoring other women as they follow in her footsteps to the halls of Congress. She has represented Maryland exceptionally well—on issues ranging from civil rights and the environment, to issues affecting working families and our criminal justice system.

I am proud that my first vote as a Senator in January was in favor of one of Senator Mikulski’s bills, the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act, which guarantees women equal pay for equal work. And I have thoroughly enjoyed... working with her in the Senate HELP Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education Act reauthorization and passage of the Affordable Care Act. I look forward to continuing to work with Senator Mikulski on these and other important issues in the Senate.

March is Women’s History Month, and I can think of no better time to honor and reflect on what Senator Mikulski’s work has meant to the United States Senate and to her constituents in Maryland. Let us follow the leadership of Senator Barbara Mikulski and continue to fight for a better America.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I want to join my colleagues in today’s well-deserved accolades for my friend, Barbara Mikulski.

The other day, as often happens to most of us here, I found myself temporarily waylaid by an informal scurril of reporters in one of the Capitol hallways. And, unknown to me, I was blocking Senator Mikulski’s path. She made me aware of that fact in her distinctive and typically enduring way: “Hey, Tall and Lanky—make way for Short and Stocky!” she said.

But it is not just that humor and good nature that makes Barbara Mikulski such a great colleague and friend. As a resident and colleague from an adjoining State, I respect all she has done at the local level, in the U.S. House and now in the Senate, to move the National Capital Region forward in terms of the regional ties that join together this special region where we live and work.

You see, Virginia and Maryland share more than just a common border. Our two States are home to hundreds of thousands of hard-working and under-appreciated Federal workers and retirees. Our States share safety and funding concerns related to Metro. We each have a shared responsibility in our stewardship of the Chesapeake Bay. Maryland and Virginia also share world-class NASA facilities on the Eastern Shore.

As a friend, I appreciate her leadership role in helping this first-time legislator—and recovering former Governor—make the sometimes difficult adjustment to this body. As the father of three daughters, I am grateful for the doors Senator Mikulski has opened—and sometimes kicked-open—for young women.

Senator Mikulski truly is a force of nature. She is tough, focused, and extremely effective. And as these testimonials demonstrate, Senator Mikulski is widely respected and loved by current and former members of this body.

I am pleased to join these colleagues in thanking Senator Mikulski for her service, her leadership and her friendship.

INTENT TO OBJECT

I ask unanimous consent that a letter of March 20, 2012, sent by myself to Majority Leader Reid, be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the matter was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Hon. Harry Reid, Majority Leader, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Senator Reid: I write to notify you that I am putting a hold on S. 1789, the Postal Reform bill, dated March 20, 2012. I will submit a copy of this notice to the Legislative Clerk and the Congressional Record within 2 session days and I give my permission to the objection Senator to object in my name.

While I absolutely agree that the United States Postal Service (USPS) must be reformed to meet the country’s needs in the 21st Century, I must object to moving forward on current legislation while the USPS continues a rushed study to close a needed mail processing center on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Making matters worse, USPS sparrows and no opportunity for written comment in this study process. This is totally unacceptable.

The half-a-million residents who live on the Eastern Shore and rely on the mail service must have a voice in this process. These residents include farmers, small businesses and a significant rural and elderly population that relies heavily on mail delivery for life saving medications, daily newspapers, and important business documents. The Eastern area mail processing center is the only mail processing center on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and its ongoing operation is critically important to the economy of the shore. Relaying delivery standards by moving mail processing from Easton to Delaware is simply not a practical or sustainable option.

My constituents have a right to be heard, they have a right to maintain the standard of delivery service that they currently receive, and they deserve a fair and transparent process for decisions about the Easton area mail center.

I’m grateful for your leadership, and I look forward to working with you to ensure that the Postal Service remains financially solvent and ready for the 21st Century. But I must object to consideration of S. 1789 while this issue remains outstanding and I grant permission for you (or your designee) to object in my name.

Sincerely,
Barbara A. Mikulski,
United States Senator.

THE INVEST ACT

Mr. FRANKEN. Madam President, I would like to discuss the votes that we have taken over the last few days.

Tuesday, along with 54 of my colleagues, I voted in support of the INVEST In America Act as a substitute for H.R. 3606. In fact, I was an original cosponsor of the INVEST In America Act because it strikes the right balance between promoting entrepreneurship and protecting investors.

But before I go into a long explanation, I would like to begin with a story. Bemidji is a town of about 14,000 people in northern Minnesota and might not be the first place you would think of as being a hotbed for start-up investment. But you would be wrong. Three entrepreneurs there, Tina, Bud, and Tim, harnessed the power of the Internet and the crowdfunding website Kickstarter to raise over $17,000. With that money, they are opening a micro-brewery—the Bemidji Brewing Company.

Two hundred and fifty individuals contributed to their efforts—about half of them were friends and family, and half of them were strangers. Many contributors gave $20—and in return, Bemidji Brewing is sending them a bottle opener and decal, and will carve their name into the walls of the future brewery. Bemidji Brewing hopes to have batches out to local establishments this summer.

This is an amazing story. And there are thousands of others just like it. I submit this effort to types of crowd-sourced endeavors. But we don’t need H.R. 3606 to produce more success stories like Bemidji Brewing. Instead, we need a balanced approach—one that limits investor risk and keeps our markets transparent and reliable. When the public has the opportunity to contribute to start-up businesses, they should be aware of the risks—what are they getting in return for their money? Investing in securities comes with risks, but those risks are balanced with SEC requirements to provide full information and investor disclosure.

H.R. 3606 just has too many problems. H.R. 3606 opens the door for large companies to more easily cook their books. It lets companies with tens of thousands of shareholders evade SEC oversight. It eliminates provisions to prevent conflicts of interest in company research that contributed to the dot-com bubble. There are so many downsides and dangers to H.R. 3606 that it will destroy more jobs than it creates.

The INVEST In America Act, however, promotes the same ideas contained in H.R. 3606—providing for investment opportunities for small business start-ups, easing the regulatory burden for emerging companies—but does so in a way that protects investors and our markets.

Don’t take it from me—take it from securities law experts. I have heard from Richard Painter, a professor of corporate law at the University of Minnesota, a former Associate Counsel to President George W. Bush, and Chief White House Ethics Lawyer from 2005 to 2007. Here is what he said about this debate:

I strongly support these amendments to the JOBS Act. Reckless and fraudulent conduct in connection with the offer and sale of securities is a large part of our present economic difficulties. Lowering the bar for the offer and sale of risky securities to the public is no way to get us out. If Congress changes the securities laws at all in this Act, these amendments should be included.
The current Chairman of the SEC, Mary Schapiro, has said that one component of H.R. 3606 is “so broad that it would eliminate important protections for investors in even very large companies. Former SEC Chairman Arthur Levitt went much further, calling H.R. 3606 “a dribble of the least investor-unfriendly bill that I have experienced in the past two decades.” Lynn Turner, former Chief Accountant at the SEC said, “It won’t create jobs, but it will simplify fraud.”

And this week, Mike Rothman, the Commissioner of Minnesota’s Department of Commerce, had to say:

Too many Minnesotans have suffered too long from unemployment. With nearly 170,000 Minnesotans out of work, our State’s highest priorities are supporting economic and business growth and creating jobs. The Jobs bill passed recently by the U.S. House of Representatives strives to achieve much-needed job growth, but contains unwarranted reduction in significant investor protections.

The Minnesota Department of Commerce works to protect investors and consumers. Last year, the Department registered over 7,000 new licenses to broker dealers, agents, and investment advisers and has over 125,000 individuals currently licensed. Through our State registration process, we work to ensure that those selling securities and advising consumers about securities are both knowledgeable and capable. This essential level of oversight helps ensure basic protection of Minnesota investors and consumers.

The House version of the Jobs bill threatens to unravel what years of experience teaches us is required to protect investors by curtailing state oversight and, in the interest of state’s capital market, I urge you to support the substitute amendment. Working together, we can make every reasonable effort to create jobs while safeguarding the need for basic and essential measures of consumer protection.

That is from Minnesota’s Department of Commerce, the primary watchdog for securities in the state of Minnesota.

Minnesota’s AARP State President, Dr. Lowery Johnson, summarized the issues this way:

Older Americans who have saved their entire lives by accumulating savings and investments are disproportionately represented among the victims of investment fraud. This legislation before the Senate undermines vital investor protections and threatens market integrity. Older Minnesotans deserve safeguards that ensure proper oversight and investor protection.

We must not repeat the kind of penny stock and other frauds that ensnared vulnerable older Americans in the past. The absence of adequate regulation in the past has undermined the integrity of the markets and damaged investor confidence while having no positive impact on job creation. Please preserve essential regulations that protect older investors from fraud and abuse, promote the transparency, and ensure a fair and efficient marketplace. We believe the amendment to be offered by Senators Reed, Landrieu and Levin moves closer to achieving this balance and deserves your support.

I have talked from other consumer groups from around the country. The Consumer Federation of America supports the INVEST In America Act, and cautions against H.R. 3606, noting that it would “undermine market transparency, roll back important investor protections, and, if investors behave rationally, drive up the cost of capital for the small companies it purports to benefit.”

All of these choices—from Minnesota and across the country—shaped my position on these bills. That is why I supported the INVEST In America Act. That is why 55 Senators voted in favor of it. The INVEST In America Act also included reauthorization of the Export-Import Bank, which supported almost $1.2 billion in export sales in Minnesota over the last 5 years, and well over half of those exporters are small businesses. That is a lot of jobs in Minnesota.

We have made some improvements to this bill. The amendment passed in the Senate is better than the language in the House bill. But it still leaves too many opportunities for harm. Here is the bottom line: I strongly support entrepreneurs, I support innovation, and I support job creation. The INVEST In America Act struck the right balance between promoting jobs and entrepreneurship while preserving the integrity that our markets have historically enjoyed.

American public companies have benefitted from the lowest cost of capital in the world, and this is because of the low risks associated with investing in transparent, well-regulated markets. America is a great place to invest because the entire world has confidence in our markets. If H.R. 3606 increases fraud, or even just investment losses, this bill runs the risk of backfiring completely—decreasing investor confidence and ultimately increasing the cost of doing business. And this will ultimately destroy jobs, not create them.

In the end, I couldn’t support H.R. 3606 for all those reasons. It is a bill that is going to enable fraud, a bill that turns our securities market into a lottery game, and a bill that will lead to many Minnesotans, especially seniors, losing their hard-earned savings and investments.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, in defending the Constitution and arguing for its ratification, Alexander Hamilton stated plainly in the first of the Federalist Papers the challenge and the promise of American democracy.

He explained:

It has been frequently remarked that it seems to have been reserved to the people of this country, by their conduct and example, to decide the important question, whether society can best be maintained, not by establishing good government from reflection and choice, or whether they are forever destined to depend for their political constitutions on accident and force.

The challenge identified by Hamilton and our Founding Fathers remains with us today.

Will American citizens and will our political institutions maintain our Constitution and adhere to the rule of law or will we succumb to force and the whims of the moment?

Will the law be supreme and will the Constitution endure or will politics prevail?

Is it a choice that Americans and public officials face every day?

But some moments present this choice in bolder terms. And the legal challenge to the President’s health care law is one of those moments that present a stark choice.

Will we support the Constitution or will we throw in with the passing wishes of temporary majorities?

That is the choice that we as Americans face and that the Supreme Court will face when it hears oral arguments on this case next week.

There are a number of issues before the Court, but at the top of the list is the constitutionality of the individual mandate.

Like many critical constitutional questions that come before the American people, particularly those of first impression, it often takes some time for a consensus to emerge.

The answer is not always immediately clear. But through public dialogue and argument, our constitutional integrity of these actions comes into greater focus.

That is what happened with ObamaCare’s individual mandate. As the implications of this sweeping exercise of Federal power became clear, the American people’s initial hesitation about this provision solidified into an enduring bipartisan consensus that this mandate violates our constitutional commitment to limited government.

The American people came to understand that if the individual mandate is permissible, then anything is permissible.

If the individual mandate is allowed to stand, then there are no effective limits on the Federal Government.

And if there are no limits on the Federal Government, then our constitutional liberties are in jeopardy.

The American people came to understand that the question about the individual mandate runs far deeper than any debate about health care. They understand that the mandate presents us with a pivotal question.

Will we maintain the Constitution as our supreme law, one which puts effective limits on the powers of the Federal Government, or will we abandon the Constitution bequeathed to us by our Founding Fathers and, instead, accept a new constitutional order where the only restraints on the Federal Government are those it deigns to place on itself?

The American people—and certainly the people of Utah—have made clear at every opportunity their deep skepticism about the individual mandate. As Presidential candidate Barack Obama understood these concerns about the individual mandate, The media noted during the Presidential campaign that while then-Senator Hillary Clinton’s plan would require all Americans to purchase health insurance, then-Senator Obama declined to go down that road.

One writer predicted that an economic mandate requiring Americans to purchase a particular product “would give the inevitable conservative opposition a nice fat target to rally around.”

That nice fat target was an historically unprecedented expansion of Federal power in violation of the Constitution’s commitment to limited government.

Unfortunately, President Obama put the politics of health care reform over any concerns about the constitutionality of the individual mandate.

This is how the journalist Ron Kind explained the President’s conversion:

Obama, never much for the mandate, was concerned about legal challenges to it but was impressed by DeParle’s coverage numbers. Without the mandate, the still-sketchy Obama plan would leave twenty-eight million Americans uninsured; with the mandate, the estimates of the number left uninsured were well below ten million.

And so he made his decision.

“The President of the United States takes an oath to support and defend the Constitution. As a candidate, and as President, it appears that President Obama was aware of the constitutional concerns with the individual mandate.

But like his progressive forebears, he put his policy desires before the long-term integrity of our Constitution.

Fortunately, the American people were not so quick to put the Constitution second.

Along with a number of my colleagues here in the Senate, I made the case for the mandate’s unconstitutionality a priority.

On the first day of the Senate Finance Committee’s markup of what would become ObamaCare, I raised doubts about the constitutionality of the individual mandate.

Those doubts were dismissed.

I offered an amendment that would have provided for expedited judicial review of any constitutional challenges to the legislation.

That amendment was ruled out of order.

But the constitutional concerns with this mandate would not be buried.

The people of this country would get their say and their sweeping assertion of Federal power, one far in excess of anything the Founders contemplated.

My State of Utah helped to lead the way, signing on as an original plaintiff in the litigation that is now before the Supreme Court. And I was honored to work with the Republican leader, my friend and colleague, Senator McConnell, in developing friend-of-the-court briefs filed at the trial level, at the initial appellate level, and now before the Supreme Court.

Putting aside all of the precedents, this really is a matter of simple logic and common sense.

Our Constitution is one of limited powers. The powers of Congress are few and enumerated. Yet if this mandate is allowed to stand, then there are effectively no limits on the Constitution any longer.

Some claim to give.

Either this mandate will stand or our Constitution will stand.

But both cannot survive this litigation.

The Eleventh Circuit got it right in its analysis of this law. This is what they concluded.

Economic mandates such as the one contained in the Act are so unprecedented, however, that the government has been unable, either in its briefs or at oral argument, to point this Court to Supreme Court precedent that addresses their constitutionality. Nor does it obtain independent review reveal such a precedent.

The partisan supporters of ObamaCare say that this is just the opinion of a conservative court.

But it is also the opinion voiced by the liberal writer Timothy Noah as far back as 2007.

And there is some evidence that it was the opinion of Senator Obama when he declined to endorse a sweeping individual mandate when running for President.

But once elected, President Obama put policies first. In the interest of supercharging the healthcare welfare state and passing his signature legislative initiative, he put aside any concerns with the individual mandate and endorsed this unprecedented regulation of individual decisionmaking.

The President should have stuck with his original position.

Those who defend the constitutionality of the individual mandate make an astounding claim—that the decision not to buy something, in the aggregate, substantially affects interstate commerce and a state commerce. Those who defend this position stand for the proposition that the Federal Government can regulate your decision not to do something, that it can regulate not just economic activity but economic inactivity, and that Congress can regulate not just physical activity but mental activity.

If Congress can do these things, Congress has no limits.

A Constitution that creates a limited Federal Government has been transformed into a Constitution that gives plenary, unlimited, power to the Federal Government.

This is not only something that the American Founders worked hard to prevent, but it is something that contemporary Americans continue to reject.

There are many reasons to oppose ObamaCare. Today, the administration’s allies are touting the benefits of the law for small business. This is laughable.

The administration promised that ObamaCare’s small business credit would help more than 4 million small businesses. This was a pretty paltry concession to the businesses that would be harmed by the employer mandate, new regulations, and half a trillion dollars in taxes and penalties imposed by ObamaCare.

And as could be expected from such a top-down, Washington-centered approach, small businesses have been less than eager to take up this valuable credit. The administration claimed that 4 million small businesses would use this credit. Yet according to a report from the Treasury Inspector General, after 2 years, only 300,000 taxpayers, or 7 percent of the eligible entities, have claimed this credit.

But as bad as ObamaCare’s policies are—confusing benefits, heavyhanded mandates, and enormous economic costs for families and businesses—it is the profound unconstitutionality of the law that remains paramount in the minds of most Americans.

Next week, almost 2 years to the day after ObamaCare became law, the Supreme Court will consider arguments in this historic case.

I am confident that when the dust settles, our Constitution will emerge standing and strong.

And I am equally confident that the American people will have the last word on those politicians who chose to look the other way and who acknowledged the deep constitutional shortcomings of this unprecedented intrusion on the liberty of America’s citizens and taxpayers.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO DR. ED COULTER

Mr. BOOZMAN. Mr. President, today I wish to honor Dr. Ed Coulter, who is retiring from his position as Chancellor of Arkansas State University Mountain Home (ASUMH) after 16 years of service. Dr. Coulter devoted his life to education and began his career serving as a public school principal for 3 years. He spent the next 25 years working at Ouachita Baptist University as an assistant to the President and Vice President for Administration before joining ASUMH as Chancellor in 1995.

In his 16 years at ASUMH, Dr. Coulter expanded the campus from a small community college into the innovative institution it is today. His enthusiasm and leadership made him a very effective fundraiser which resulted in the expansion of facilities on the 140-acre campus. Under his watch, the $24 million, 65,000 square-foot Vada Sheid Community Development Center was built, which has become an icon to the campus and community alike.

Along with his commitment to education, Dr. Coulter has worked with numerous professional associations. His roles have included serving as a Chair of the American Association of Community Colleges Board of Directors, American Cancer Society Board of Directors, Arkansas State Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, and was corporate board member of the Baptist Medical Center System. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of First National Bank and is a member of the Mountain Home Rotary Club.

I congratulate Dr. Ed Coulter for his outstanding achievements in education and I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring his accomplishments. I wish him continued success in his future endeavors and I am grateful for his years of service and leadership to Arkansas.

TRIBUTE TO GEORGE MOSES

Mr. CASEY. Mr. President, today I wish to congratulate George Moses of Pittsburgh, PA, on his selection by the National Low Income Housing Coalition for the Cushing Niles Dolbear Lifetime Service Award. Mr. Moses has dedicated his life to helping others and this award serves as recognition of a lifetime of service to those in need.

Mr. Moses’ life has been one of service, perseverance, and leadership. He served as a soldier in the United States Army from 1963 until his honorable discharge in 1965. He then returned to work in Pittsburgh, including as a laborer in the city’s steel mills. In 1990, his life underwent a significant change. Following a major surgery, he was unable to climb stairs and as a result moved into an apartment in the East Liberty section of Pittsburgh. Mr. Moses took a leadership role, working to help his fellow residents, and together with them founding an organization called the Federal American Coalition of Tenants, which focus on educating residents to fight for fair and equal housing practices.

Mr. Moses has continued his work on behalf of low-income residents to this day. His leadership and advocacy were instrumental in assisting hundreds of people who lived in Pittsburgh’s Northside avoid eviction. When a HUD-Assisted rental housing development tried to evict many of its residents, Mr. Moses stepped in and helped to organize the Northside Coalition for Fair Housing. The Northside Coalition’s actions were successful in helping keep many of the residents in their homes, and to this day, the Northside Coalition helps to manage the properties and provide social services to the residents.

For the past 12 years, Mr. Moses has been a strong advocate for affordable housing at the national level, serving on the Board of Directors of the National Low Income Housing Coalition. For the last 6 years he has served as Chairman of that board. The Lifetime Service Award being given to him by the Coalition is a fitting tribute to the leadership and service he has dedicated to it. I thank him for his service to Pennsylvania and the Nation, and offer him my warmest congratulations on this well-deserved award.

TRIBUTE TO LTC DAREN S. SORENSON

Mr. HELLER. Mr. President, it is my privilege to recognize LTC Daren S. Sorenson, an extraordinary American, whose heroic acts to defend his country and fellow servicemembers has earned him a second Distinguished Flying Cross, DFC, a State of Nevada and the U.S. Air Force are proud to commend Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson for all of his accomplishments.

I am grateful and humbled to honor Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson for his dedication and sacrifice to this Nation. He has been honored many times and served as the deputy mission commander during the first preemptive strike on the inaugural night of Operation Iraqi Freedom in 2003. During this combat operation, Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson earned his first DFC for targeting and assisting the destruction of an armored unit of the Iraqi Republican Guard. Not only has Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson been recognized for this prestigious award once, but he received his second DFC during his deployment to Afghanistan for his support in Operation Enduring Freedom.

On May 25, 2011, during an operation in Eastern Afghanistan, Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson implemented techniques and strategies learned at Nevada’s Nellis Air Force Base to defend and save the lives of nearly 50 coalition members. Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson’s valiant aeronautical techniques drew away opposing fire and enabled air controllers and ground forces to locate combatants and defeat the enemy. His devotion to duty in the face of perilous flying conditions is admirable and maintains the highest standards and traditions of the U.S. Air Force.

As America’s oldest military aviation award, the Distinguished Flying Cross is presented to those who have exhibited heroism or achievement in aeronautics. I applaud Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson for earning this prestigious award twice during his service. His continuous acts of bravery are a testament to his commitment to the United States.

Today, we commend Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson’s acts of valor and the continuous sacrifices made by all of our servicemembers to ensure the safety and security of our nation. We owe them and their families a great deal of gratitude for their personal sacrifices. I am proud to join the citizens of Nevada in recognizing Lieutenant Colonel Sorenson’s accomplishments. STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. FRANKEN (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 2225. A bill to amend the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 to reauthorize and improve the Rural Energy for America program; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. FRANKEN. I rise to introduce the Rural Energy for America Program Reauthorization Act, along with my friend Senator Harkin from Iowa.

Farmers and rural businesses form the backbone of this country, and rural communities are particularly crucial to Minnesota's culture and economy. In fact, in my State, one out of every five jobs is related to the agricultural economy.

We all rely on farmers for our food. It is thanks to farmers that when we go to the grocery store there is an abundance of fresh food at cheaper prices than in many other countries. While family farmers and rural businesses work hard to keep our shelves stocked, they do so under difficult conditions. Weather and disease can wipe out a crop, profit margins can be small, and fluctuating market prices for their products can be devastating to a family farmer.

Farm work is also very energy intensive, so when energy and gas prices rise, farmers have to make tough choices. High energy prices mean laying off farm workers, increasing crop prices, if they can, and squeezed budgets all around. To make matters worse, many of our government programs that help manage rising energy prices are under attack and on the budget chopping block.

REAP, or the Rural Energy for America Program, can help farmers manage the cost of energy. The bill I am introducing today will reauthorize this important farm bill program that will help farmers and rural small businesses continue to cut energy bills and generate electricity on site.

Let me go through a few examples of what REAP projects can look like. It is putting solar panels on barns. It is wind turbines in fields. There are wind turbines all over Minnesota. It is anaerobic digesters on dairy farms which actually use waste to create methane gas and electricity. It means energy efficiency improvements in houses and geothermal pumps in factories. It means agricultural producers and businesses can reduce their costs and generate an additional stream of income. It means rural America can make high-tech investments, create jobs, and lead the way in producing clean energy. I know in the Presiding Officer's State of New Hampshire there is tremendous biomass and potential for energy biomass and the low carbon footprint that represents.

Rural Energy for America Program is a modest program, but it is a wise investment that effectively leverages private funds. Since it was created in 2002, this program has helped almost 6,000 farmers and small businesses across the Nation invest in alternative energy projects. The program has generated or saved enough energy to power about 600,000 homes a year. By providing just $125 million in grants and up to $165 million in loan guarantees, the program has brought in $800 million in private and State investments. Plus, the Rural Energy for America Program helps create demand for new jobs in rural economies. These are jobs in production and operations and maintenance work—good jobs that rural America needs. It also bolsters American energy independence and fosters homegrown energy sources such as wind and solar and biomass and geothermal instead of foreign oil.

Shirley Hovda's rural wood finishing and coating business, Quality Decorating, in Roseau, MN, is one of the 6,000 that benefited from the Rural Energy for America Program over the years. Before Shirley took over, her newly constructed 6,000 square foot facility was cold in the winter and in the fall and in the early spring. When Shirley's heating bills spiked, she decided it was time to invest in a geothermal heating and cooling system to reduce costs in her newly constructed 6,000 square foot facility.

With the help of a $7,920 grant from the Rural Energy for America Program, she was able to purchase and install the geothermal system in 2008. Over the past 5 years, Shirley has seen her energy bills reduced by 40 percent, saving thousands of dollars she has invested in more productive parts of her business.

The bill we are introducing today reauthorizes the Rural Energy for America Program to continue helping farmers and small business owners such as Shirley to make smart investments in renewable energy and energy efficiency. It makes improvements to the program as well. While the program has had a fantastic impact on the country's rural economy, farmers tell me they are facing challenges accessing it. So our bill removes barriers while ensuring taxpayer dollars are spent wisely.

First, our bill simplifies the application process, making it easier for farmers and small businesses to access the program's grants and loans. The new application process matches the complexity of the application to the size of the project. That way, farmers and the USDA can avoid unnecessary and costly paperwork if the project doesn't warrant it.

Second, my bill removes a regulation that currently requires farmers to use the program's funding to install a second electric meter that currently goes unread. In these tight fiscal times, I think it is important that every taxpayer dollar is well spent, so the bill will eliminate this redundancy and remove an unnecessary burden on program participation.

Third, our bill requires the USDA to include stronger health and environmental criteria when evaluating potential projects, and it expands startup support and funds for feasibility studies so that farmers and businesses can start projects with sound planning.

We are very grateful for the strong support from the agricultural community, including the National Farmers Union, the Minnesota Farmers Union, the Environmental Law and Policy Center, the National Sustainable Agriculture Coalition, the Agriculture Energy Association, the Distributed Wind Alliance, the Minnesota Corn Growers, and the Minnesota Soybean Growers.

With the Chair's indulgence, I have about 30 seconds left. I have an inner clock. I think I am up against my 2 minutes, so I wish to say I am proud to introduce this legislation with Senator HARKIN, who is a true champion to farmers here in the Senate. Going forward, I look forward to working with all of my colleagues from both sides of the aisle to pass this reauthorization as part of the farm bill.

I see Senator JOHANNES, the former Secretary of Agriculture, on the floor, whom I hope to work with on this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. CARDIN (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. DURBIN, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, Mr. HARKIN, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. MENENDEZ, and Ms. MUKULSKI):
S.J. Res. 39. A joint resolution removing the deadline for the ratification of the equal rights amendment to the Constitution on the Judiciary Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, today I am introducing a joint resolution which would remove the deadline for the states' ratification of the equal rights amendment, ERA. I thank Senator JOHANNES, the former Secretary, for his leadership on the Committee on the Judiciary.

When Congress passed the ERA in 1972, it provided that the measure had to be ratified by the States, 38 States, within 7 years. This deadline was later extended to 10 years by a joint resolution enacted by Congress, but ultimately only 35 out of 38 States had ratified the ERA when the deadline expired in 1982. Congress can and should give the States another chance. In 1992, the 27th Amendment to the Constitution prohibiting immediate Congressional pay raises was ratified after 203 years. Article V of the Constitution contains no time limits for ratification of constitutional amendments, and the ERA time limit was contained in a joint resolution, not the actual text of the amendment.

The Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution requires “equal protection of the laws,” and the Supreme Court has so far held that most sex or gender classifications are subject to only “intermediate scrutiny” when analyzing laws that may have a discriminatory impact. In 2011 Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia gave an interview in which he stated that “certainly the Constitution does not require discrimination on the basis of sex. The only issue is whether it prohibits it. It doesn’t.” Ratification of the ERA by state legislatures would provide the courts with clearer guidance in holding gender or sex classifications to the “strict scrutiny” standard.

The ERA is a simple and straightforward constitutional amendment. It reads: “Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on the basis of sex.” The amendment gives power to Congress to enforce its provisions by appropriate legislation, and the amendment would take effect two years after ratification by the States.

March is Women’s History Month. And today is the 40th anniversary of passage by the Senate of the joint resolution to extend the ERA ratification timeline on March 22, 1972. Today, nearly half of the States have a version of the ERA written into their State constitution. My own State of Maryland’s constitution reads that “Equality of rights under the law shall not be abridged or denied because of sex.”

I am therefore pleased to introduce this joint resolution today, which is endorsed by a wide variety of groups, including United 4 Equality, the National Council of Women’s Organizations, the National Organization for Women, and the American Association of University Women. I urge my colleagues to support this joint resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bills by title for the first time.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system.

A bill (S. 2230) to reduce the deficit by imposing a minimum effective tax rate for high-income taxpayers.

A bill (S. 2231) to amend the Federal Credit Union Act, to advance the ability of credit unions to promote economic growth and economic development opportunities, and for other purposes.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I now ask for a second reading on each of the three bills but object to my own request.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. JOE COURTNEY
OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Mr. COURTNEY. Mr. Chair, since 1965, Medicare has provided seniors guaranteed health benefits and today, close to 50 million Americans who have paid into the system now rely on the program for care. While the program’s sustainability is stronger than in recent past, this Congress, like those before it, has an obligation to ensure sustainability of the program for current enrollees and future beneficiaries. The Independent Payment Advisory Board, IPAB, was created with this objective in mind. However, despite best intentions, I believe that IPAB is the wrong approach to achieve this shared goal.

Relinquishing control of Medicare provider reimbursements to an unelected IPAB is problematic to me for a number of reasons. Congress has helped shape a Medicare system that reflects unique care needs of varying demographics as well as differences between regions and states. Further, this system has been developed with transparency and accountability in congressional debates. Implementing IPAB would limit the strengths of the current system, and would continue a trend of ceding congressional authority to the Executive branch. This is, in part, why I cosponsored the Medicare Decisions Accountability Act, H.R. 452, legislation to repeal IPAB.

The fact is that the Affordable Care Act will contain spending growth in the Medicare program—indeed, independent of proposed IPAB reforms—through integrated and coordinated care models and modest reimbursement changes. According to the Congressional Budget Office, CBO, estimates that the law will slow annual Medicare growth from seven to four percent over the next decade. And, over the past year, the S&P has measured the lowest rate of growth in the history of Medicare—below three percent.

Today, the House considered legislation to repeal IPAB, a goal that I support. Unfortunately, a calculated choice to polarize the vote by incorporating the HEALTH Act (H.R. 5)—an unrelated and divisive bill—emphasizes the cynical gamesmanship of Republican leadership who clearly are not interested in forging a partisan coalition to repeal IPAB. The HEALTH Act, in part, limits intentional torts or settlements that would deny their day in court.

Over the next ten years, Medicare will cost between $8 trillion and $9 trillion and there are a whole host of offsets which would easily counter the costs of IPAB repeal without injec- ting scorchard earth partisan politics. For example, MedPAC has recommended rescinding duplicative bonus payments to private insurance providers that administer Medicare Advantage plans, which have historically been overpaid by 14 percent. At the very least, this option provides a more tempered approach to offset H.R. 452 and build an honest consensus on a strong IPAB.

Despite my long-standing support for the repeal of IPAB, I cannot support H.R. 5 as presented to the House today. It is my sincere hope that this chamber can debate the repeal of IPAB through a more measured, balanced, and reasonable approach in the future.

ON THE OCCASION OF THE RETIREMENT OF ROBERT GRACELY FROM GENISYS CREDIT UNION AFTER YEARS OF FINANCIAL SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

HON. GARY C. PETERS
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. PETERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Mr. Robert Gracely on the occasion of his retirement from Genisys Credit Union after more than three decades of dedicated and passionate service to its members and the greater Southeast Michigan community. A member of Genisys since October 1967, his work has been significantly focused on Genisys’ role as a steward of the Southeast Michigan community.

Within the varied positions he has served during his time with Genisys Credit Union, Mr. Gracely has been a passionate advocate of its mission as a not-for-profit, member-owned financial institution that has been committed to helping its members since its formation in 1936. Based out of Auburn Hills, Michigan, Genisys serves over 200 thousand credit unions in Michigan and one of the strongest in the country with over $1.4 billion in assets. Genisys and its members are deeply involved in altruistic work which supports local charities, organizations and events that enrich the lives of many throughout Michigan. These endeavors have earned Genisys and its members not only considerable praise but numerous awards for their commitment to community service and volunteerism.

Throughout his tenure with Genisys, Mr. Gracely’s colleagues have routinely praised his exceptional talent for recognizing client needs and recommending the right services. With his focus on building community partnerships, Mr. Gracely has leveraged his leadership with Genisys Credit Union to partner with and support local businesses, which has cultivated a vibrant small business community. Furthermore, Mr. Gracely has been praised for his ability to work within a team, to work with his staff and to identify issues and find innovative solutions. His strong command of financial issues, dedication to high quality customer service, and focus made him an invaluable asset. Genisys continues to develop its partnerships within the community and could not have been done without the help of Mr. Gracely.

Mr. Speaker, as a leader within Genisys Credit Union Mr. Gracely has done so much to guide it and its members in their philanthropic activities within the communities that Genisys serves. Like so many of his colleagues in senior leadership positions at Genisys, he has worked tirelessly to provide the credit union’s members with quality customer service and financial advising. His spirit of collegiality, dedication to his employees and the greater community, and his creativity will be sorely missed. I wish Mr. Gracely many happy years in retirement and I know he will continue to be involved in volunteer efforts here in Southeast Michigan for years to come.

HONORING BLAKE HUDDLESTON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. OLSON. Mr. Speaker, I am privileged to interact with some of the brightest students in the 22nd Congressional District who serve on my Congressional Youth Advisory Council. I have gained much by listening to the high school students who are the future of this great nation. They provide important insight into the concerns of our younger constituents and hopefully get a better sense of the importance of being an active participant in the political process. Many of the students have written short essays on a variety of topics and I am pleased to share these with my House colleagues.

Blake Huddleston is a senior at Pasadena Memorial High School in Harris County, Texas. His essay topic is: In your opinion, what role should government play in our lives?

The American form of Democracy is built upon the principle that every man has the right to have his voice heard, yet today many Americans revoke this right. Neither Congress nor the President can adequately govern such a vast land and people as the United States without participation in government, which has been declining in recent years due to an increase in apathy. Adequate governance does not require petitions, marches, or protest; simply voting for issues and candidates is enough to ensure that the American voice is heard in the white halls of the Capital. But in order to create a sense of honor in participating in our centuries old processes, both those who vote and those who seek office must offer their constituents something worth speaking for.

In times of discord and partisanship the American people become disillusioned with... what is perhaps the greatest Democracy to ever exist. By compromising, by understand- ing not only their own personal beliefs, but the beliefs of those opposed to them, congressmen and presidents inspire the people they represent to become involved in the American process because their electorate believe that the system does work; that the system can solve serious problems without mindless bickering over irrelevant issues. There exist a social bond between electors and the elected in America: when the elected rise above politics and become statesmen, Americans will rise as well. When the elected fall, so too does the will of Americans to par- ticipate.

CONGRATULATING THE MY POSSI- BILITIES HIPSTORE: OPEN FOR BUSINESS

HON. SAM JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to recognize the great staff, board of directors, and Hugely Important People—or HIPsters—of My Possibilities in Plano, Texas as they celebrate the organization’s newest venture, the HIPstore.

My Possibilities is a non-profit organization that provides daytime, year-round vocational training and other programs for adults with special needs. The first organization of its kind in Collin County, My Possibilities opened its doors in June of 2008 when caring moms joined forces to create a safe, social atmos- phere for young adults who had “aged out” of secondary education. Today, ten full-time staff members serve 125 HIPsters each week.

Inspired by the My Possibilities motto, staff and HIPsters alike work hard to “Make every day count.” The new HIPstore provides a great enterprise opportunity to do just that. The store is a 3,000 square-foot facility that features gift items like candles, jewelry, and artwork all handmade by HIPsters. The HIP- sters not only learn creative skills, put them into practice, and watch their handmade work make a profit, but learn the ins and outs of operating a retail outlet. For instance, they help to stock the shelves, monitor inventory, interact with customers, and operate the cash register.

To the former hard work and forward thinking have made the HIPstore possible: Thank you for your efforts. It is my pleasure to join you in celebrating this exciting new chapter of My Possibilities’ service to the North Texas community. I’m glad to help announce that the HIPstore is “open for busi- ness!”

RECOGNITION OF IDA MAAE BYRD

HON. EDOPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to and honor Ms. Ida Mae Byrd. A native of Waycross, Georgia, Ms. Byrd has enjoyed a very active life looking after her family and her community. We celebrate your 100th birthday.

Ms. Byrd was born to Maebelle and Jack Smith in Waycross, Georgia, on March 13, 1912. She is the third of six children. At the young age of 16, Ms. Byrd was looking for more opportunities so she moved to Brooklyn, New York. Once in New York City, Ms. Byrd worked diligently to bring her immediate family with her.

At the age of 19, Ms. Byrd married Willy Byrd, forming a strong union that produced five children. The family was a close knit group held together by her strict control and discipline. She set an example for her siblings on how to properly raise children—supporting a strict environment with a loving and warm personality.

In her younger days, Ms. Byrd loved to dance and one of her favorite places to dance was the Savoy Manor in the Bronx. Along with dancing, Ms. Byrd enjoyed her occasional Mill- er High Life beer and her beloved New York Mets. As an avid fan, she was rewarded with two World Series championships. Through the years she was an active member of Pilgrim Baptist Church under the leadership of Bishop Roy E. Brown. Ms. Byrd enjoyed these church events most with her family who attempted to make every moment a memorable one.

Ms. Byrd has lived through an incredible century that has witnessed two World Wars, the Jim Crow South, the invention of the tele- vision and the computer, and the Civil Rights movement. She has also lived to see apartheid end in South Africa and the election of the first African American President of the United States.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Ms. Ida Mae Byrd on the celebration of her 100th birthday.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE 10TH ANNI-versary of the FLORA-BAMA AND GULF COAST RESI- DENTS’ SUPPORT OF NEW YORK CITY AND HARLEM AFTER SEP- TEMBER 11, 2001

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the 10th Anniversary of the Flora-Bama and Gulf Coast support of New York City and Harlem after September 11, 2001.

In 2002, Joe Gilchrist, owner of the Flora-Bama Lounge in Pensacola, Florida brought to New York a group of more than 100 visitors, including musicians and songwriters, to pay respect to the ground zero site and support New York. Gilchrist also encouraged the group to spend money to help uplift New York City’s economy and provide moral and spiritual sup- port to the victim’s families. The group also toured New York City fire houses, the Empire State Building and Central Park. The visit cul- minated in a great celebration at the Waldorf Astoria, which included performances by Chuck Jackson, and other musicians and sing- ers who participated in the Frank Brown International Songwriters Festival.

On Saturday February 4, the Harlem community, along with Joe Gilchrist and the Frank Brown Songwriters Festival celebrated the 10th Anniversary of the Flora-Bama and Gulf Coast historic visit to New York. Musicians, songwriters, business leaders and residents from the Flora-Bama and Gulf Coast toured the 911 Memorial site and performed in lower Manhattan and in Harlem. This Cultural Exchange was promoted with the theme of, “Merging Manhattan Music with Southern Sounds.” Kicking off the diverse musical trib- ute were original songs by “Lil Man,” an eight year old “Hip Hop” artist and his own songs; stellar performances by Michael Jack- son impersonator, Jesse Valence; and Urica Rose, an electrifying singer and songwriter, representing the “New Generation of Rock” performers.

The group attended Open House events at the world famous Apollo Theater, including performances by Ballet Hispanico, the Dance Theatre of Harlem, Amateur Night winners and was given a tour by Apollo historian Billy Mitchell. The group joined Commander E. Randy Duplee at Harlem’s historic Colonel Charles Young American Legion Post 398, where Flora-Bama musicians joined Hammond B3 Organist and Jazz legend Seleno Clark, Percussionist Don Eaton and the Harlem Groove Band for a jam session to commemo- rate the 10th Anniversary of their visit to New York City.

As Dean of the New York Congressional Delegation, I want to extend my thanks to Joe Gilchrist and the Frank Brown Songwriters Festival for their outstanding economic, moral and spiritual support to Harlem and the great State of New York.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. JOSEPH CROWLEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve pa- tient access to health care services and provide- improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Chair, today, the House is considering legislation that would repeal the Independent Payment Advisory Board, or IPAB. To be clear, I am not a big fan of IPAB—I had concerns with this new entity when it was first being discussed, and I re- main concerned with it today.

I do find it interesting, however, that my col- leagues on the other side of the aisle are sud- denly so troubled about IPAB’s effect on Medi- care, when their plan to end Medicare is so much worse.

I fear that today’s floor action is less about a real concern for seniors, hospitals and phy- sicians in the Medicare program, and more about trying to win a battle in the war against health insurance reform.

They have shown with their words and their actions, even down to their choice of offsets, that this yet another political exercise.

But that is a game that I refuse to play. Our seniors deserve real answers and real solu- tions, not yet another repeal-but-not-replace attempt.

So even though I don’t think that IPAB is the best answer to strengthening Medicare, I can’t in good conscience vote for this bill, at this time, with this kind of clear and blatant political agenda at the core of this debate.

What we need is a real, substantive discussion about solutions to keep Medicare costs, and medical malpractice costs as well, under control for the long term. But with today's floor action, these needed discussions are too likely to get lost in a sea of shouting.

And that's not what we need right now. If my colleagues on the other side of the aisle want to work with us to address the concerns that many of us have with IPAB, to make changes, then I'm willing to meet them halfway.

But if they want to blame the Affordable Care Act for everything wrong in the world, even when it has controlled costs so well that IPAB won't even come into play for years to come, and even when it has given millions of American families control back over their health care, I can't join them in these political attacks.

So I have to oppose passage of this bill today.

HONORING THE LIFE OF HIS HOLINESS POPE SHENOUDA III

HON. MARCY KAPTUR
OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, this month, the world laid to rest a holy and wise spiritual leader, His Holiness Pope Shenouda III, the 117th Pope of Alexandria and the Patriarch of All Africa on the Holy Apostolic Seat of Saint Mark the Evangelist of the Coptic Orthodox Church of Alexandria and head of The Holy Synod of the Coptic Orthodox Patriarchate of Alexandria, who passed from this life on March 17, 2012.

His Holiness Pope Shenouda III presided more than 40 years over a worldwide expansion of the Coptic Orthodox Church. During his papacy, he appointed the first-ever bishops to preside over North American dioceses. When His Holiness became pope in 1971, there were only four churches in North America. Today there are over 100.

Pope Shenouda III was well known for his deep commitment to ecumenism and interfaith dialogue. He believed that Christian unity was a matter of faith rather than of jurisdiction. In 1973, Pope Shenouda III became the first Coptic Orthodox Pope of Alexandria to meet the Roman Catholic Pope in over 1500 years. In this visit, Pope Shenouda III and Pope Paul VI signed a common declaration on the issue of Christology and agreed to further discussions on Christian unity. He led dialogues with various Protestant churches as well as Islamic clerics and Muslim leaders worldwide.

In an address he gave at an ecumenical forum during the International Week of Prayer in 1974, he declared, "The whole Christian world is anxious to see the church unite. Christian people, being fed up with divisions, are pushing their church leaders to do something about church unity and I am sure that the Holy Spirit is inspiring us."

A biographer aptly described Pope Shenouda III as "A distinguished and prominent religious leader, a profound theologian, a gifted preacher, a talented author, a spiritual father, a man of God his entire life. He devoted his writings, teachings and actions to spread and propagate for the rules of understanding, peace, dialogue and forgiveness."

I had the unforgettable honor of meeting Pope Shenouda III as our local Coptic Christian community was being constructed. He was a man of immense faith, great humanity, and deep intellect. When I asked him about future unity among various faith confessions, I will never forget his steady, strong countenance as he advised me "that would take love." He was a very profound man.

President Obama called Pope Shenouda III "a beloved leader of Egypt's Coptic Christians and an advocate for tolerance and religious dialogue," and said he will be remembered "as a man of deep faith, a leader of a great faith, and an advocate for unity and reconciliation." The faith community around the world and people of good will everywhere joins the Coptic Orthodox Church in mourning the passing of Pope Shenouda III from this life. We extend our sympathy to church members worldwide and in our own community. His contributions to world understanding and bridging horizons yet unmet will flower in decades hence. May God bless his soul and allow his unfinished work to progress in his memory.

THOUSANDS MOURN C OptIC POPE IN CAIRO

(By Kareem Fahim)

CAIRO—In front of a tearful crowd of thousands including members of Egypt's emerging political class, a funeral service was held on Tuesday for Pope Shenouda III, the popular and charismatic leader of the Coptic Orthodox Church, who died on Saturday.

The pope's body lay in an open white casket through the emotional two-hour ceremony in St. Mark's Cathedral, where he was remembered as a "wise captain" who built bridges to Muslims and other Christian denominations and who strengthened the identity of the church, especially among its younger members. Hundreds more people stood outside the cathedral, unable to gain entry to the invitation-only service.

The scene of a stomatotomia later in the day when thousands of people mobbed a van carrying the pope's body to his burial site, in a monastery in northern Egypt. Red-faced military policemen wrestled with mourners carrying the pope's portrait who were straining for a last glimpse of him through the dark windows of the white van.

The flood of grief for the only pope many Egyptian Copts have ever known—he was enthroned in 1971—underscored feelings of unease that many Christians have felt in the ongoing tumult of Egypt's political transition. Roughly 1 in 10 Egyptians belong to the Coptic Orthodox Church, which was founded in the first century and was the majority religion here before the coming of Islam. In recent years, long-held complaints about anti-Coptic discrimination have been replaced by deeper fears that Islamist parties will further marginalize the Christian population as they try to reframe Egypt into a more observant Muslim state.

For most of his four decades as patriarch, Pope Shenouda managed a delicate balancing act, strongly supporting President Hosni Mubarak in exchange for a measure of protection as the pope strengthened the church's power and reach. He was broadly popular among Egyptians, and was especially well-known for his wit. He was also seen as a rigid defender of a conservative church, and some Copts faulted him for resisting reform.

Criticism of Pope Shenouda's relationship with Mr. Mubarak became more pronounced after the popular uprising against Mr. Mubarak's rule took hold in January 2011, with attacks on churches and Coptic protesters by hardened elements of the government's troops following behind. Since the pope's death, though, that criticism has been laced with sadness.

"I don't disagree that he interfered with politics," said Mina Samy, a 30-year-old physician outside St. Mark's on Tuesday. "But when he spoke, he did it for Egypt's best interest, not for his personal interests, like others do."

"I'm hoping for another copy of him," he said. "Nothing is too much for God. He was a great scholar, and he led the church during his 35-year career we left us at a time when Egypt needed him."

HONORING BILL KEFFLER OF RICHARDSON, TEXAS FOR 35 YEARS OF OUTSTANDING PUBLIC SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON
OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, with great appreciation for his selfless public service, I rise to recognize before the U.S. House of Representatives Bill Keffler of Richardson, Texas on the occasion of his retirement.

Bill's résumé of accomplishments closely matches that of the City of Richardson itself. During his 35-year career with the City, 17 as city manager, he has played an integral role in bringing first-rate transportation entities, higher education institutions, healthcare providers, and corporations to Richardson. Under his watch, the City has also received countless awards for its responsible, transparent, and innovative administration.

Those of us who have been fortunate enough to work with Bill know him as a true leader not just in Richardson, but in the entire North Texas region. A current member of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee for the North Texas Commission, Bill is also the immediate past-president of the Texas City Manager's Association and an advisory board member for Methodist Richardson Medical Center, Leadership Richardson, and the University of Texas at Dallas Development Office, to name a few.

Bill, a mix of Irish Green and Raider Red, kicked off his stellar career back in 1977 having already obtained a bachelor's degree in government at Notre Dame and a master's degree in public administration at Texas Tech University. He and his wife, Chrisie, raised five great kids in Richardson. Bill's family and friendship are considered staples in the community—as are his famous striped ties.

To Bill, thank you for all you've done to build Richardson into the city it is today. It is a pleasure to know you, and I wish you the very best in the years to come. God bless you, and I salute you.
IN RECOGNITION OF THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF SAN JACINTO COLLEGE AND GULF COAST PASS GRANT

HON. GENE GREEN
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the contributions of San Jacinto College, a Hispanic-Serving Institution and community college located in our district which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

The mission of San Jacinto College is to deliver accessible, affordable, high-quality post-secondary education programs designed to meet the needs of the residents of Harris County.

The primary focus of the College is helping students to achieve their personal and professional goals, create seamless transitions among educational levels, and to prepare students for the job market or transfer to senior institutions. Through its programs and services, and partnerships with industry, the College supports the economic growth of the community and the region.

San Jacinto College recently received a grant that will fund collaborative programs with local secondary school districts focused on increasing college readiness and completion of community college developmental education courses. The grant, provided through the Community College Leadership Program at the University of Austin, was made possible by The Houston Endowment.

The $1.2 million, three year grant, known as the Gulf Coast Partners Achieving Students Success, or Gulf Coast PASS, will help San Jacinto College and its partners, Pasadena and Sheldon Independent School Districts, ISDs, expand existing projects and implement new partnerships. Special focus will aim to increase college readiness and completion of community college development education courses where necessary.

With the help of these funds, San Jacinto College is partnering with local ISDs to start up two early college high schools, one with Pasadena ISD and another with Sheldon ISD. The Sheldon ISD Early College High School will open in Fall 2014.

The Texas Education Administration states that early college high schools must provide access to under-represented populations, lower socio-economic students, and first-in-college students to provide a pathway for higher education attainment for these students who would be less likely to pursue higher education.

Our nation must do more to close the gaps in the academy. If we continue to see the same patterns of achievement, then our future is at risk.

I hope this incident will be a wake-up call and have us come to our senses and sense of fairness, justice and community—the kind of community that looks out for and takes care of its children, not kills them or fosters an atmosphere where this kind of action is encouraged.
In doing so, they do not demonstrate genuine interest in legislating on behalf of the American people. The Republicans know the Senate will not vote for such a bill. Nor will I. I will not approve a bill that caps non-economic medical malpractice damages at $250,000. Apparently, this is the price the Republicans put on a bill that allows physical impairment, pain, suffering and even wrongful death.

I know our medical malpractice system needs improvement. If only my Republican friends would come to me with a third way, a new fair and workable way, to approach this problem. I would be more than happy to work with them on a bipartisan basis, which this Congress so desperately needs right now.

But, until that time, I am forced to vote against this piece of legislation. I will not approve of a bill that rehashes the same old medical malpractice language. I will not vote for a bill that attempts to wear down bits of the Affordable Care Act. If they had their way, the Republicans would repeal the entire ACA, and take away insurance from over 30 million Americans. Instead, we are busy granting insurance coverage to 17 million children with pre-existing conditions.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. KENNY MARCHANT
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. MARCHANT. Mr. Speaker, due to the sudden passing away of my father, I was unable to participate in House floor votes on March 22, 2012.

THE CURRENT SITUATION IN AFGHANISTAN

HON. MICHAEL M. HONDA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, tragic events in the last few weeks in Afghanistan have underscored the messages I have continuously emphasized in Congress in the past. As long as we pursue military solutions to the unrest in Afghanistan while foregoing attention to economic, political and social solutions, security will remain elusive. Our military service officers are heroes, but we are failing them as we continue to pursue a strategy that lacks proper understanding of both the social constructs of the Afghan people and the meaning of peace.

It is our duty as Americans to give the people of Afghanistan what they want, not what we want to give them. Afghan citizens want peace, they want security and they want the right to self-determination based on their own social, cultural, and religious values. Afghans do not want to be at the constant risk of night raids and air strikes that could kill their friends and neighbors, checkpoints and security barriers that keep their families apart, or incidences of violence which sometimes involve International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) troops being more than happy to work with. And they certainly do not want foreigners burning the Holy Quran, which all Muslims hold as dear as life, or have their very own safety compromised by foreign forces who should be there to protect them.

As members of the United States government, we also owe the American people what they want, and not what we want to give them. In this regard, we are failing our own people as they face the economic burden brought on by the global economic crisis while lives, money and resources are being wasted abroad in an effort which has, sadly, led to resentment and the incitement of hatred against America.

Last week, the Department of Defense Comptroller confirmed one of our worst kept secrets—that the deployment of one soldier to Afghanistan for one year costs $850,000. We currently have 90,000 soldiers deployed in Afghanistan. Additionally, we have 1,142 U.S. civilians from the State Department and other non-defense agencies currently in Afghanistan, and each civilian costs taxpayers $570,000 per year, according to the most recent estimate from the Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction. Furthermore, in 2011, our taxpayers spent $11.2 billion to pay, train and equip Afghanistan's security forces; and in the past ten years the U.S. has spent more than $550 billion in Afghanistan alone, or about $1 billion per week.

A new Washington Post poll finds that sixty percent of American voters feel that the war was not worth fighting. It also finds that, for the first time, Republican voters are “evenly split” on the wisdom of continuing this war. This is what America wants, and it is our duty to respect that.

Last year, as co-chairman of the Congressional Progressive Caucus's Peace and Security Taskforce, I urged President Obama to take heed of the same Washington Post poll that revealed that fifty-four percent of all voters want the U.S. to withdraw troops even faster than the President's 2014 timetable. As we look forward to our future role as global leaders of peace and security, we must not forget our past and present mistakes. Our international affairs priorities must be anchored in the recognition that our national security is intrinsically linked to our economic vitality. We cannot fight for global security but ignore the economic security of the people of America. We need a budget that reflects the fact that diplomacy and development prevents wars, because smart security can lead to global stability, a fraction of the cost, freeing up funds to engage in nation building here at home. As we look forward to the question of how to handle future matters in the Middle East, these are the priorities that we simply cannot afford to forget.

Mr. Speaker, Peace and Security are created through a well-functioning government, a fair and prosperous economy, and a harmonious society. We have failed the Afghan people on each and every one of these fronts, and in so doing, we have also failed ourselves and our constituents. As we reflect on the recent military tragedies in Afghanistan, we must ask ourselves how many more apologies we can afford to offer.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE TOWNSQUAREBUZZ FOUNDATION AND PARTNERS: HONORING THOSE WHO SERVE

HON. SAM JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to recognize the TownsSquareBuzz Foundation and the City of McKinney, Texas, as they join forces to declare Red Shirt Fridays in McKinney.

The Foundation’s “Paint McKinney Red!” campaign was launched last year to raise awareness about the unique challenges veterans face when they return from war.

To date, TownsSquareBuzz has printed 500 red t-shirts that are being sold by 10 local partner businesses. The shirts remind us, “Honor Those Who Serve: Past, Present, Future,” and all sale proceeds go directly to the local Community Lifeline Center in McKinney. The Lifeline Center’s great operation serves folks in need in 17 cities across Collin County. Its veterans-support initiative, funded in part by a grant from the Texas Veterans Commission, helps local veterans and their families with housing, utilities, medical and dental treatment, transportation, counseling, and job training, to name a few.

Inspired by the nationwide Red Shirt Fridays project, the local efforts of TownsSquareBuzz and the City of McKinney will provide direct assistance to our friends, family members, and neighbors who are the returning heroes of today’s military campaigns.

These brave men and women put their lives on the line to keep America strong, proud, and free. Through partnerships like Red Shirt Fridays, the North Texas community is reminded of the privilege and duty we bear to honor, thank and give back.

To the TownsSquareBuzz Foundation, City of McKinney, Community Lifeline Center, and every individual and business helping to paint McKinney red:

Thank you for your efforts. May God continue to bless the United States of America through great folks like you. I salute you!

HON. RANDY HULTGREN OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. HULTGREN. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride that I rise today in honor of U.S. Marine, Jack Silliman. Tragically, Jack was killed during the Vietnam War. In 1961, when Jack was still a boy in the 7th grade he wrote a winning speech that was presented to President John F. Kennedy. I submit Jack’s speech.

WHAT I CAN DO FOR MY COUNTRY

Madam president, honorable judges, fellow C.Y.C.L. members, parents, teachers and friends. The subject of my speech is, “What I Can Do For My Country”.

First of all I can be a good citizen. I can honor and respect the flag of the United States in which I was born. I can be proud of our president and his ten cabinet members.

When I am ready to vote I should know and understand the rules of voting. I should think of the privilege I have of being able to cast a free and secret ballot.

In being a good citizen I should allow each person to speak his own opinion. I can give help to the ill and friendless. I must help make safety rules for my community and endeavor to carry them out.

Second, I should get the best education possible by learning the principles of my classroom. I can learn to enjoy the company of others. I must do my best to understand the governmental problems of my nation.

I can read and listen to the news and current events of my state and nation. I can take an active part in political affairs and learn all I can about them.

I must learn all I can about the science and progressive ness of other nations as well as my own. I must be able to contribute to the defense effort.

Third, I must keep myself physically fit by eating the right kinds of food, getting the right amount of sleep and correct exercise, and avoiding the use of those things harmful to me.

I must train myself so as to make a real contribution to the defense of my country in the field of education.

In conclusion, I can be a good citizen, get the best education possible and keep myself physically fit.

Thank you.

CHILDREN’S SERVICE CENTER

HON. LOU BARLETTA
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. BARLETTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the Children’s Service Center, which will celebrate its 150th anniversary on April 11, 2012. The Children’s Service Center has been serving families of the Wyoming Valley in Northeastern Pennsylvania since it was incorporated on April 11, 1862, to create a sanctuary in order to provide shelter, food, and instruction to a number of underprivileged children in the Wyoming Valley.

The Children’s Service Center was originally called The Home for Friendless Children. As its programs grew and developed, it became a nationally renowned shelter and educational center for infants and children. By 1929, the Home for Friendless Children had become the Children’s Home. As time went on, it appeared the children needed more than a shelter—they needed a home. Two cottages were built, the Martha Bennet Home and the Children’s Home, and they became the first two open psychiatric residential settings for children in North America. During this time, the Martha Bennet Estate and Children’s Home Foundation requested that a newly formed organization called the Children’s Service Center become established in order to manage the residential program. The creation of the Children’s Service Center occurred in 1938.

As a mental health care system, the Children’s Service Center is deeply committed to the wellness of young people in our community. Their mission is to meet the individual needs of children, adolescents, and their families. Children’s Service Center assessment, crisis, and referral services are working 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to help these children lead a better lifestyle.

Mr. Speaker, today, Children’s Service Center stands as ray of hope for young people in the Wyoming Valley of Pennsylvania. I commend this agency for its 150 years of dedicated service to our children, to community, and to country.

IN REMEMBRANCE OF LEON EARL WYNTER IN HONOR OF NATIONAL BLACK HISTORY MONTH

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of writer, journalist, former commentator and dear friend Leon Earl Wynter who passed away on Tuesday, January 18, 2011 at the age of fifty-seven. Born in 1953, Leon grew up in the Bronx, New York and was fond of saying that he arrived "just in time for most of the things that mattered; the space race, the triumph of the civil rights movement, disco, cable and the Macintosh computer."

He described himself as "first a Christian, then American and black by way of his Jamaican heritage". He is survived by his daughters Grace Alexandra, his mother Sylvia, and his brother Stephen. Leon left behind an abundance of those who knew him personally and loved him, as well as those who knew him professionally and respected him. Leon created a legacy of friendship, a body of work to be proud of, and a life time of vivid memories of those of us who have been privileged, like me.

Leon had an extraordinary career, which began in commercial banking, and continued in journalism as a Washington Post staff reporter in 1980. At the Washington Post, he covered education and racial change in suburban Prince George's County, Maryland. He later joined the Wall Street Journal's bureau in 1984, and covered the federal banking beat on Capitol Hill, as well as federal telecommunications and technology policy. He then created and wrote a monthly column for the Wall Street Journal called "Business & Race". He considered the title alone as a victory, and he wrote it for ten years, from 1989–1999. In his twenty-years as a journalist, essayist, commentator, speaker and an author, Leon developed into an acclaimed voice on the racial and ethnic transformation of American identity.

As a sought-after public speaker in business, Leon shared his expertise and perspectives with strategic marketers at Time Warner, Pepsico, GlaxoSmithKline, Cox Cable and the Strategic Research Institute. His commentaries on race, pop culture and life were frequently heard on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered". Leon published dozens of essays in newspapers and magazines, including the Wall Street Journal, Savoy, Washington Post and New York Newsday, among others.

In August 2002, Leon realized his goal in life after publishing his first book, “America Skin: Big Business, Pop Culture and the End of White America”. In 2007, Leon helped co-write my memoirs, “And I Haven't Had a Bad Day Since.” Later, Leon would begin a new career as the Harlem Community Development Corporation where he served as Director of Communications.

Leon was known by many as one of the Valley elite, a committed Christian, professor of journalism at the University of Maryland, an enthusiastic blogger, an evolving musician, a lover of Public Radio, a tireless debater, and someone capable of great passions. He once wrote, "I’m just in time to discover that life is not about being current it's about being present with God for my child and my loved ones".

Mr. Speaker, in celebration of National Black History Month, I ask my colleagues to join me in remembrance of my dear friend, Leon Earl Wynter. If you knew him, these are the facts and the celebration of his life. If you did not know him . . . you missed something very special.

HONORING THE 125TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE AMERICAN PHYSIOLOGICAL SOCIETY

HON. CHRIS VAN HOLLEN
OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute the outstanding achievements of the American Physiological Society as it celebrates its 125th anniversary. The APS is a scholarly association dedicated to fostering scientific research, education, and the dissemination of information about human and animal physiology. Its headquarters are in Bethesda in Maryland’s Eighth Congressional District.

Physiology is the study of how living systems function and plays a pivotal role in advancing medical discovery. The APS is an outstanding example of a not-for-profit organization that supports the advancement of science in the public interest.

APS publishes research findings on physiology in its 13 peer-reviewed journals. These journals—the oldest of which has been publishing since 1898—collectively publish about 3,000 research articles each year. All of this scientific content is made freely available on the web 12 months after initial publication.

The APS also sponsors scientific meetings and conferences throughout the year where physiologists can share their latest findings with their colleagues.

The APS offers educational outreach programs for students beginning at the elementary school level and provides support to students of physiology in graduate school and beyond. The APS has been recognized with a Presidential Award for Excellence in Scientific, Mathematics, and Engineering Mentoring, PESMEM, for its long standing effort to increase diversity in physiology and to encourage the progress of underrepresented minority students and professionals.

Over the course of 125 years, the APS has grown from 28 founding members to more than 11,000 members. These physiologists teach and conduct research in medical schools, hospitals, colleges, universities, industry, and government throughout the U.S. and 66 other countries.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the APS on its 125th anniversary and honoring this organization for its many accomplishments.

TRIBUTE TO DR. CHARLES EDWARD GUNNOE

HON. KEN CALVERT
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and pay tribute to a good friend of mine, Dr. Charles "Chuck" Gunnoe. Dr. Gunnoe passed away March 10, 2012, in Corona, California, with his wife Becky and his family at his side. Chuck was a pillar of the community in Corona, California, and he will be deeply missed.

Chuck was born September 25, 1928, in Chicago, Illinois, the son of Andrew Benton and Anna Gunnoe. After honorably serving in the United States Air Force, Chuck earned his medical degree from Indiana University. Chuck worked as a family physician for 54 years. Chuck, and his wife Becky, were known throughout the community and Dr. Gunnoe (Drs. Gunnoe) was the primary physician in Corona. Chuck considered himself a country doctor and was inspired by his hometown doctor in Indiana who would make house calls. Dr. Gunnoe moved to Corona in 1956 after completing his residency at Riverside General Hospital and took over the practice of a local doctor.

Chuck was a visionary in Corona; he immediately saw the need for more medical services in the community and purchased land that would become the site for the second hospital in Corona. After many years of work, that hospital would become the site for the second Corona Regional Medical Center. As a physician, Dr. Gunnoe never rushed with his patients, would visit some at home if they were unable to come to the office, and gave many his home telephone number. That kind of service and commitment to the health of his patients is rare today. Dr. Gunnoe retired in 2010, having been a doctor to three generations of Corona residents. He would still see some patients in his home after he retired; his dedication to his patients as steadfast as ever.

It is hard to imagine that Chuck would have any free time on his hands yet he always found time for his community. He was past president of the Corona Chamber of Commerce, its Citizen of the Year in 1996, founder of the local Jaycees, and owner of Deerfield Station, a gourmet restaurant. In his free time, Chuck enjoyed spending time with his family, traveling in his motor home, playing tennis, golf and bowling.

Chuck is survived by his wife, Becky Gunnoe of 35 years; daughters, Dawne (Chuck) Malone, Janice Tedesco, Laura Leigh (Michael) Gunnoe-Pass; sons, Bryan A. Gunnoe, Charles E. (Susan) Gunnoe, Jr.; sister, Mabel Pugh; seven grandchildren, Dylan and Nicolas Tedesco, Jessica, Danielle and Jake Gunnoe, Michael Benton and Sean Christian Pass, and three great-grandchildren, Stina, Jonah and Sebastian.

On Friday, March 16, 2012, a memorial service was held celebrating Chuck's extraordi-Chuck’s family and friends; although Chuck may be gone, the light and goodness he brought to the world remain and will never be forgotten.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. MICHAEL G. FITZPATRICK
OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Mr. FITZPATRICK. Mr. Chair, over the course of the last two years since the President signed the Affordable Care Act into law, bipartisan opposition to many portions of this legislation has steadily grown in this chamber.

Today, the House of Representatives passed the Protecting Access to Healthcare Act as part of a deliberate, transparent, and comprehensive plan to fix America’s broken and expensive health insurance system. While I favor a full repeal of the Affordable Care Act, this effort represents removal of the most harmful provisions of President Obama’s flawed law. The PATH Act does this by enacting many needed medical malpractice tort reform to reduce healthcare costs and it repeals President Obama’s unaccountable Independent Payment Advisory Board, IPAB, which would limit Medicare patient access to health care services.

As the House puts forward ideas to protect and save Medicare, the Administration has decided it can better serve seniors by cutting benefits for seniors by more than $575 billion, and creating a panel of unelected, unaccountable Washington bureaucrats tasked with curtailing Medicare even further.

More than 230 of my colleagues in the House from both parties and over 380 groups representing doctors, patients and employers have joined us in opposition to the IPAB.

I urge the Senate and President to stand with us against this overreach of government power and make the Protecting Access to Healthcare Act law. Congress must work to reform health care in a way that reduces costs for both patients and providers while preserving the quality of care that Americans deserve.

SUPPORTING JOBS WITH THE JONAS SALK ELEMENTARY CAP UNDO REGULATORY ENVIRONMENTAL DELAY (CURED ACT)

HON. BRIAN P. BILBRAY
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation that will place a 90-day deadline on the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to issue a final decision for a permit to build an elementary school in my district. After nearly 10 years of delays, it is time to move forward on this critical school for the children in my congressional district. The bill does not sidestep environmental review. Endangered species and habitat will be protected. It is time to recognize and place the impact of delay to the community on hold.

Jonas Salk Elementary is a proposed school site within the community of Mira Mesa in San Diego, California. With nearly one in 10 San Diego residents out of work, this is a “shovel-ready” project that has been the victim of nearly a decade of bureaucratic regulatory delays. This has hurt students, deprived the community of park amenities and much needed jobs.

This school is needed to ease existing overcrowding at Mason Elementary, Hage Elementary and other San Diego-area schools. The proposed project is located within an existing community, on a lot that has been vacant and graded since 1978. Along with the school, the project envisions a park and joint-use facilities to benefit the region.

The San Diego Unified School District Board approved the plans to build Jonas Salk Elementary in 2003, with the intent of serving students in 2006. Unfortunately, the elementary school has been indirectly delayed by an environmental lawsuit and various agency delays for nearly a decade. If enacted, my legislation will help ensure that students will be able to attend this long delayed school in 2014.

At a time when schools are overcrowded and the resources to build schools are scarce, to delay a project with both the need and the resources to construct with no real impact to the environment is unacceptable. The intent of this bill is to not allow the opening of the school to slip any further. The San Diego Unified School District has done its due diligence to protect the environment and provide for students. My bill recognizes the school district’s efforts and ensures that the final determination is issued in a timely manner so that the school can finally be built and begin servicing the community.

Projects that provide an obvious community benefit and produce much needed jobs should be accelerated, not punished with costly and pointless delays.

NATIONAL SAFE PLACE AWARENESS WEEK

HON. JOHN A. YARMUTH OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. YARMUTH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of National Safe Place Awareness Week. Every year in America, as many as 2.8 million young people run away from or are pushed out of their homes. Almost half of them do so because of a family conflict. A young person in crisis is often scared and confused. The distinctive yellow-and-black sign that marks a Safe Place location is a universal symbol of safety and assistance. It signifies a place—a business, school, fire station, library, or many others—where a young person in crisis can get help.

There are almost 20,000 Safe Place locations throughout the United States in 40 states totaling 1,156 communities. During the past 12 years, National Safe Place agencies have counseled nearly 90,000 young people in person and more than 110,000 via telephone.

SADLY, the need for Safe Place services continues to grow. In response, National Safe Place is seeking to give more young people a place to turn for help—regardless of their circumstance.

[Mr.] Speaker, I have introduced a resolution recognizing March 18-24 as “National Safe Place Awareness Week.” The goal is not only to have more signs hanging across the country, it is to raise awareness and support of the vital programs National Safe Place provides for young people in the most vulnerable of situations.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this resolution.

EXPRESSING CONDOLENCE TO THE VICTIMS OF THE RECENT TORNADOES IN THE MIDWEST AND SOUTH

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in my heartfelt sympathy for the people who have been struck by the recent tornadoes in the Midwest and South. These disasters have caused the deaths of more than 30 people in five States and left several communities in need of support, including volunteers, food, clothing, and monetary contributions. Although we will be able to rebuild these communities, we can never replace the lives lost, and my thoughts and prayers are with those families today.

These disasters are a reminder that the needs of relief and recovery efforts are constant. When disasters—be they hurricanes, earthquakes, fires, floods, or tornadoes—wreck entire communities and drive whole families from their homes, rapid and generous outside assistance is essential to preserving lives and property. I hope that we can learn from this disaster—and other recent natural disasters around the country—that we need to better coordinate and find Federal disaster relief efforts.

Mr. Speaker, I once again extend my deepest sympathies to the people who have been affected by these tornadoes. I urge all the appropriate Federal agencies to ensure that these communities receive the help they need.

RECOGNIZING THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ARC OF CHESTER COUNTY

HON. JIM GERLACH
OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. GERLACH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate The ARC of Chester County, Pennsylvania on its 60th anniversary of improving the quality of life for individuals with developmental and intellectual disabilities.

The history of The ARC of Chester County is a long and storied one, extending back to 1952 when local Chester County parents founded the organization as an affiliate of The ARC U.S., which was founded in Philadelphia and counted this group among its first local chapters. When The ARC was founded, there were few programs and services for the special needs population it served, and in fact many were institutionalized at the state institutions of Pennhurst and Embreeville. The founders of The ARC defied the conventional wisdom of the time by advocating and working for public education and community inclusion for their children.

The only group in Chester County whose services are completely community-based, The ARC of Chester County has celebrated many significant firsts in its illustrious 60 year history. It is responsible for the first sheltered workshop in Chester County, the first community-based classrooms for children with developmental or intellectual disabilities, the first and only recreation program of its kind in Chester County for folks with such disabilities, the first organization in Pennsylvania to advocate for public education for children with special disabilities, the first group home in Pennsylvania, and the first community-based job coaching and employment program.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me today in congratulating The ARC of Chester County on the occasion of its 60th anniversary and to extend best wishes for the agency’s continuing work to meet the needs of the community through the 21st century and beyond.

HONORING JOSH HURLEBERT

HON. SAM GRAVES OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. GRAVES of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Josh Hurlbert for his dedicated service over the past three years as a member of my staff. Josh will be leaving my staff to pursue his dream of serving the people of Missouri in elected office.

Josh has been an invaluable part of my office. His was the first voice that many constituents heard when they called my office. Josh gave them the information they asked for whether it was information about a bill, a way to contact a government agency or if the latest email going around was true. He also worked with the people of Clinton, Caldwell and Daviess Counties to make sure their voices were heard in Washington.

Josh also cheerfully took on additional office duties or tasks without being asked. His professionalism and dedication to serving my constituents was a great example of how government should work.

While I am losing a valuable member of my team, I am excited for Josh to begin the next chapter of his career in public service. He knows that the best way to truly represent someone is to listen to their ideas and their concerns. Josh will be a voice for common sense and limited government the rest of his life.

Mr. Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Josh Hurlbert for his service to the people of the Sixth Congressional District, I, and the rest of my staff, wish him success in his future endeavors.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF OBAMACARE

HON. DOC HASTINGS
OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to highlight the serious state of health care in our country as we approach the second anniversary of ObamaCare.

When ObamaCare was drafted behind closed doors without bipartisan input and slammed through the legislative process in 2010, President Obama and NANCY PELOSI promised us that this government takeover of health care would allow people who like the health care plan they have now to keep it.

But I and my Republican colleagues knew better when we voted against the bill—and we were right. In the two years since ObamaCare was signed into law, Americans have already experienced significant increases in premiums, loss of choice in medical coverage, and less access for seniors to obtain quality health care.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, a recent report by the Congressional Budget Office stated that as many as 20 million Americans could lose their employer-provided health care coverage as a result of ObamaCare—half of who are low-wage workers whom depend on their employer health coverage. Even the Department of Health and Human Services admitted that portions of the President’s health care law, which were originally projected to lower costs, would in fact increase taxes on hardworking American taxpayers.

Americans deserve access to the quality health care they need when they need it and at a cost they can afford. Improvements must be made, but reforms need to focus on putting patients first and lowering costs. Lowering costs for hardworking American taxpayers can be achieved by expanding health care choices and tools to help families save, making it easier for small businesses to afford to offer care, ending lawsuit abuse, and protecting the doctor-patient relationship from government intrusion.

After several years of uncertainty and stagnant economic conditions, the American people need real solutions and real results. This cannot be achieved by budget tricks or accounting gimmicks that do nothing to help hardworking American taxpayers and only result in higher taxes and burdensome federal government mandates.

Efficient, effective government that spends less and serves better is the only answer to restoring genuine accountability and faith in our government. The House of Representatives has voted 25 times to repeal, defund or dismantle this law. It is my hope that before the next anniversary of ObamaCare, the Senate and President will join the House to repeal this trillion-dollar government takeover of health care and work on real reforms that lower costs for the American people.
MARKING THE 9TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE START OF THE IRAQ WAR

HON. JIM MCDERMOTT
OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to mark the 9th anniversary of the start of the Iraq War. Nine years ago this month, members of the U.S. Armed Forces invaded Iraq in what became one of the bloodiest and most protracted missions in our military’s history. Today, our country is still paying the extraordinary price for the nine years in Iraq, both in terms of lives lost and trillions of dollars that could have gone toward nation building here at home.

For many veterans, coming home marks the beginning of another fight—fight for treatment, care, and integration into civilian life. Invisible wounds of war, such as post-traumatic stress disorder, affect one in five veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. Speaker, I also submit an article by Jon Soltz, a former Iraq War veteran, on the need from Iraq and Afghanistan.

An important event that has occurred in the last 50 years was September 11, 2001, September 11, 2001, was a big disaster for the United States of America. Thousands of people died from this tragic event, people were scared when they boarded airplanes, which were the vehicle by which this much of this destruction was brought on the United States of America. It was decided that were linked to Osama bin Laden and Al Qaeda, hijacked four American airliners. The terrorists crashed all four planes into different locations on the east coast of America, two crashed into the World Trade Center towers located in financial district of New York City, one into the Pentagon, Virginia, and the final one crashed into a rural field in Pennsylvania. The passengers on flight 93 fought to regain control of the aircraft from the hijackers but did not succeed. More than 3,000 people in total were killed during these attacks. Most of the people killed were located in the World Trade Center. New York Army National Guard units were quickly called up to restore order and provide disaster relief in the wake of this tragedy. At the pentagon, 74 military and civilian personnel were killed. President Bush called approximately 10,000 soldiers up to active duty in Iran. Due to this terrorists act which occurred many American’s were enraged and then enlisted in the military to retaliate for what the terrorists had done to our country. In December 2001, more than 17,000 soldiers from reserve components from various home lands were called to service. The Department of Defense called this effort “Operation Noble Eagle”. Because of what these terrorists did a lot of Americans now refer to all Muslims as terrorists. Due to these events the United States has created more effective metal detectors and improved the security around our airports, ports and entry into the country. The United States was bought together as a nation in this great time of despair.

RECOGNITION OF LYNCH SYNDROME AWARENESS DAY

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute and to honor Lynch Syndrome Awareness Day. Lynch Syndrome is a hereditary condition that exposes families to a higher risk of contracting aggressive cancers at a younger than average age.

First identified in 1966 by Dr. Henry T. Lynch, Lynch syndrome is a genetic disorder caused by a mutation in mismatch repair genes MLH1, MSH2, MSH6, EPCAM, and PMS2. These genes prevent the body from cancers by repairing the errors in DNA replication, but due to the mutation, those mismatch genes have stopped functioning properly. Consequently, the defective gene causes individuals affected by Lynch Syndrome to sustain a lifetime risk of up to seventy-five percent of colorectal cancer, sixty-five percent of contracting Endometrial Cancer, nineteen percent Gastric Cancer and a much higher than average risk of contracting many other cancers, most often at a younger than average age.

The only accurate method of diagnosing Lynch Syndrome is through genetic testing and a comprehensive assessment of the family's medical history. To be diagnosed with...
Lynch Syndrome, a patient must meet the Amsterdam Criteria II—three relatives must have Lynch Syndrome associated cancers, two must be directly related to the third, and one must be under the age of 50.

In the U.S. alone, there are approximately 600,000 people who are carriers of Lynch Syndrome mutation, yet only five percent of those carriers have been diagnosed. In comparison to the general population, in a lifetime, people affected by Lynch Syndrome are up to eighty-two percent more susceptible to Colon Cancer, up to sixty percent more prone to Endometrial Cancer, seven to nine percent more disposed to Stomach Cancer, nine to twelve percent more vulnerable to Ovarian Cancer, and the list continues.

While researchers have not been able to determine a cure for Lynch Syndrome, there are still various ways to manage and treat this condition. Through screenings and medical management programs, polyps and growths can be detected and removed before becoming life-threatening. In addition to annual colonoscopies, EGDs, endometrial samplings, urinalyses, and cervical examinations, pathological testing of all colorectal tumors in accordance with NCCN guidelines, and abdominal hysterectomies, Lynch Syndrome can be effectively managed.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in countenancing today as Lynch Syndrome Awareness Day. Although researchers have yet to find a cure, hopefully, through our support and recognition more people will become educated about this extremely life-threatening disease and a cure will shortly be on its way.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. Mr. Chair, today we again are considering H.R. 5, the "Help Accessible, Efficient, Low-cost, Timely Healthcare (HEALTH) Act." This bill is intended to change what some of my colleagues on the right believe to be a broken medical liability system.

Quickly, paradoxically, many supporters of H.R. 5 were vocal opponents of the recently passed health-related federal law, the Affordable Care Act, whose anniversary we celebrate here tonight. It must be stated that many Americans celebrate with us and dine in good health—thankful that this Congress came together to pass health care 2 years ago.

Foes of healthcare reform claim that the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution, which gives the Federal Government some authority over states, was abused to pass the healthcare law. Under the rules of this Congress, House sponsors of any bill must explain Congress' constitutional authority to pass it.

Rather ironically, H.R. 5's sponsor, Representative Phil Gingrey (R-GA), cites the Commerce Clause as he tries to enact sweeping legislation that would completely overhaul State tort law and undermine hundreds of years of precedent.

Yet, for my colleague, Mr. Gingrey, his statement represents a complete reversal from his position earlier, which he has called "the government takeover of our healthcare system."

Which might explain why my colleague Mr. WOODALL from Georgia submitted an 11th hour amendment during the Rules Committee Hearing on the rule for H.R. 5, striking the Commerce Clause mention from this bill.

The Woodall Amendment struck almost two pages from their bill—and reading it I can see why. It reads:

Effect on Interstate Commerce.—Congress finds that the health care and insurance industries are industries affecting interstate commerce and the health care liability systems existing throughout the United States are activities that affect interstate commerce by contributing to the high costs of health care and premiums for health care insurance purchased by health care system providers.

This sounds strikingly similar to the arguments being advanced against the Affordable Healthcare Act. You cannot have your cake and eat it too. Either health care affects interstate commerce—it doesn't. Which is of course the impetus for the amendment offered by my colleague from Georgia. What a dilemma to find oneself in? Trying to gut the Affordable Healthcare Act, but using the precise argument supporting Congress' power to regulate.

While the U.S. Constitution and Supreme Court interpretations do not identify a constitutional right to health care for those who cannot afford it, Congress has enacted numerous entitlement statutes, such as Medicare, Medicaid, and the Children's Health Insurance Program, that establish and define specific statutory rights of individuals to receive health care services from the government.

As a major component of many health care entitlements, state programs may be cut back. The Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution empowers Congress to "regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes."

The Supreme Court developed an expansive view of the Commerce Clause relatively early in the history of judicial review. This power has been cited as the constitutional basis for a significant portion of the laws passed by the Congress over the last 50 years, and it currently represents one of the broadest bases for the exercise of congressional powers.

The Supreme Court accords considerable deference to a legislative decision by Congress that a particular health care spending program provides for the general welfare. If enacted, H.R. 5 would, among other things, cap the noneconomic damages that a plaintiff in a health care lawsuit could recover. It would also preempt existing State laws on proportionate liability, allow courts to reduce contingent fees, and abolish the collateral source rule.

Studies and empirical research have shown that caps diminish access to the courts for low wage earners, like the elderly, children and women. In fact, the American Bar Association has studied this issue for over 30 years.

If economic damages are minor and non-economic damages are capped, attorneys are less likely to represent these potential plaintiffs. And frankly Mr. Speaker, many of these plaintiffs are not very likely to be able to afford access to legal services. The equal scales of justice would be tipped.

Those affected by caps on damages are the patients who have been most severely injured by the negligence of others. These patients should not be told that, due to an arbitrary limit, they will be deprived of the compensation determined by a fair and impartial jury.

Courts already possess and exercise their powers of remittitur to set aside exces-sive verdicts, and that is the appropriate solution rather than an arbitrary cap. Let the courts and judges do their jobs and judge.

While the system may need some tweaks to help control ballooning medical malpractice insurance premiums paid by doctors, it is imperative that as we make changes, we are careful not to remove incentive for doctors to perform their duties at the highest standard. We must not leave victims of malpractice without viable remedies.

The bill before us today is not new; in fact, it was first introduced in 2005. As written, the HEALTH Act would severely limit the ability of injured patients and their families to hold health care and medical products providers accountable.

The bill is so broadly drafted that it would also limit remedies against the for-profit nursing home, insurance and pharmaceutical industries, and even against doctors who commit intentional torts, such as sexual abuse.

Let's take a look at the collateral source rule which is the common-law rule that allows an injured party to recover damages from the defendant even if he is also entitled to receive them from a third party. Common third parties, that is, collateral sources, include a health insurance company, an employer, or the government.

To abolish the collateral source rule would be to allow or require courts to reduce damages by amounts a plaintiff receives or is entitled to receive from collateral sources. While there is a reason that the common law adopted it: it is preferable for the victim rather than the wrongdoer to profit from the victim's prudence, for example buying health insurance or the good fortune in having some other collateral source available.

One commentator has also noted that, when the collateral source is the government, and the benefit it provides are future services, such as physical therapy, there is no guarantee that it will provide such services for as long as they are needed, as government programs may be cut back.

Moreover, I don't many people willing to literally give an arm or leg for cash, but accidents happen due to negligence. Awards serve to educate the public but also serve the added purpose of providing a disincentive for bad actors.

There are a number of reasons why this bill is flawed though, and not just the collateral source rule. Its scope is extremely broad and encompasses much more than necessary to simply protect doctors from high insurance premiums. It contains a sweeping preemption of state law. It reduces the statute of limitations on malpractice claims.

It severely restricts contingency fees, discouraging lawyers from taking on malpractices cases. And it essentially strips victims of the right to bring a claim against drug and medical device manufacturers.

According to a November 2010 study by the Office of Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services about 1 in 7 patients experience a medical error, 44 percent of which are preventable.

AMENDMENT: EXEMPTION FOR IRREVERSIBLE INJURY

Because this bill is so overbroad, I introduced an amendment in the Rules Committee Hearing on H.R. 5, with my colleagues, Congressmen QUIEGLEY and HANK JOHNSON, which would have helped to close the wide gaps created by this bill.

My amendment carved out an exemption for healthcare lawsuits for serious and irreversible injury. This would have exempted victims of malpractice that resulted in irreversible injury, including loss of limbs and loss of reproductive ability, from the $250,000 cap that H.R. 5 imposes on non-economic damages.

As individuals who are blessed to have all of our limbs and use of all of our senses, it is difficult to understand how challenging day-to-day life can be for someone who lacks these things.

However, it is nearly impossible to imagine the stress and challenges faced by someone who has suffered irreversible bodily injury because of the negligence of another.

Imagine going to the hospital for minor pain and leaving with no limbs because of thoughtless mistakes made by the trained experts who are supposed to take care of you.

For Connie Speers, a Texas woman from Judiciary Chairman SMITH’s district, this exact nightmare is a reality. As a patient who had dealt with blood clots in the past, and had a filter installed in one of her heart’s main arteries, Ms. Speers went into a San Antonio hospital complaining of leg pain. She was made to wait, eventually treated, and was discharged.

However, three days later, when her legs were the color of a cabernet and she was delirious, she called 911. When Spears, who was rendered unconscious, was treated at a different hospital, they determined that the filter in her artery was severely clotted and had caused tissue death in her leg, as well as kidney failure. Weeks later, Connie Speers regained consciousness, and learned that doctors had to amputate not one, but both of her legs in order to save her life.

As a result of negligence by the emergency room doctors who initially treated Ms. Spears, she lost her legs, and nearly her life. To make matters worse, when she attempted to seek the aid of a lawyer to handle her case, she was unable to find an attorney to represent her. She was repeatedly told, “You have a great case, but not in Texas.”

In 2003, assemblymen in Texas passed tort reform laws, similar to the one proposed today, that made it extremely difficult for patients to win damages in any health care setting, but especially emergency rooms. It caps damages at $250,000, like H.R. 5, and requires that emergency room doctors acted with “willful and wanton” negligence—a near impossible standard to prove. A plaintiff would essentially have to show the medical professional or company had a vendetta against them to recover.

This nightmare has also become a reality for Jennifer McCreedy, a San Antonio single mother who fell and severely injured her ankle and sought treatment at an emergency room. Despite the severity of the break, the bone in her ankle was never set, a common practice to prevent future lawsuits, and she was not seen by an orthopedic surgeon. She was sent home and told to wait until the swelling went down.

However, the swelling did not go down, and a surgery that should have only taken one hour, took four. Because of the swelling, the surgeon had to slice her Achilles tendon, and wounds that refused to heal required grafts.

To date, Ms. McCreedy has endured five surgeries and has been rendered permanently disabled, curbing her ability to work and provide for her family. As a result of the negligence of those emergency room doctors, Ms. McCreedy went from a hard working, financially secure mother and homeowner to dogging creditors and nearly losing her home to foreclosure.

For victims of malpractice who have suffered irreversible injury, like Connie Speers and Jennifer McCreedy, it is impossible to put a price tag on the stress and pain and suffering they have already endured.

Furthermore, it is outrageous that we would attempt to pass a law that puts a cap on the future challenges they are sure to face. It is inhumane to neglect the emotional price paid by victims of egregious acts that result in such serious, irreparable harm.

We should not deprive patients who have suffered injury as a result of one of these drugs or devices of the right to receive compensation from the manufacturer or distributor of such.

As we strive to become a healthier, more competitive nation, we need all the outstanding doctors, nurses and other health care providers we can get. They must be unconstrained by excessive health care liability premiums to go into the field. We must be excited and encouraged to enter the life sciences without the fear of being crushed under the weight of excessive liability premiums.

Placing caps on medical liability recovery does not necessarily lead to lower liability insurance premiums for doctors and health care providers. In fact, there is evidence that insurance companies have raised premiums in states like my home State of Texas and in California which use medical liability caps to reap an unearned profit at a time when health care lawsuits and the damages from those lawsuits were declining.

If it is the intention of this House to pass legislation that will reform the system of medical malpractice liability in a sensible manner, then it is imperative that we strongly consider the amendments offered by myself and my Democratic colleagues last night.

Let’s not send a flawed bill to the Senate. Again, I would like to thank the Chairman and Ranking Members for their work on these bills—though I hold out hope that members of the Judiciary Committee and this body could come together for the good of the American people.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in celebration of National Black History Month to recognize the prestigious Third Annual 2012 Harlem Fine Arts Show at Harlem’s historic cathedral, The Riverside Church. The Harlem Fine Arts Show, HFAS, is one of the nation’s largest and most prominent collections of works, paintings, photographs and sculptures by both established and emerging African American artists from around the world. The HFAS always takes place during National Black History Month and this year’s exhibition kicked-off with a Diversity Prep Youth Day/ Fine Arts Exhibit and Opening Preview Reception on Friday, February 3, with exhibitions on Saturday, February 4 and Sunday, February 5. The Annual Harlem Fine Arts Show was built upon the tradition of the long-established Black Fine Arts Show, which for fourteen years was the premiere show for exhibiting modern and contemporary art and highlighting some of the most diverse and exciting contemporary paintings and sculpture by Mr. Clark. “Our event is one of the largest collections of African American art ever assembled for a fine arts show, representing more than 100 artists—a dramatic reminder during Black History Month of the tremendous contributions of African and Caribbean American artists to the global fine arts landscape.”

This year’s theme, “A Global Celebration” shines a spotlight on artists around the world. The HFAS will feature the art produced by African Americans within our community and from around the world illustrating shared ancestry, injustices, and shared pride. Our Afrocentric art provides a deep sense of connection between generations of Americans and events they may have only heard about. The art of our people demonstrates the struggle, the pain and the hardship we have endured, and celebrates the joy, the accomplishments and achievements of our past, present and future.

The three day global celebration will showcase the explosion of culture that began with the Harlem Renaissance in the early nineteen hundreds and will include contemporary artist exhibitors and nationally renowned regional galleries. The Harlem Fine Arts Show is pleased to have John Martin, a seasoned exhibition designer of the JP Martin Group, bring together the artwork of some of the most accomplished and influential American artists of African and Hispanic descent.

The renowned photography of James Van Der Zee (June 29, 1886–May 15, 1983), a prominent documentarian of Harlem, New York from 1915 to 1986, will be among the featured artists who also include:

Hérald Alvaress, a Haitian artist born without arms due to a congenital birth defect who began painting at the age of eight, who teaches art to disabled children at St. Vincent’s Center for Handicapped Children in Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

Stacey Brown, a visual artist whose creations on glass are inspired by his background in graphic design, with flowing shapes and contours that express contemporary and edgy artistic style, whose work has garnered acclaim from the Atlanta Journal Constitution, Décor Magazine, and BET’s hit reality show, College Hill.

Frank Frazier, a Harlem native whose art career spans over 40 years of personal, professional growth and inspiration, whose genius works depict everything from antagonistic war to jovial jazz concerts.

George Nock, a self-taught artist and former running back with the New York Jets and Washington Redskins, who has distinguished himself among the great sculptors of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries through his highly original bronzes.

Kerream Jones, whose work possesses a multifaceted and timeless quality that has led this prolific artist to receive commissions from Verizon Wireless, Pepsi, Upscale Magazine, Atlanta Tribune: The Magazine, the City of Chicago, and various non-profit organizations.

Gwendolyn E. Redfern, a North Carolina native and multi-talented artist who expresses life experiences through her pottery, painting, and mixed media collages.

Najee Dorsey, Founder of Black Art in America and a mixed media artist whose work pays homage to a cast of colorful characters, folk legends and heroes, as well as critiquing aspects of contemporary times.

In accordance with HFAS’s commitment to our young scholars, the show will host diversity prep day to give students the opportunity to explore the visual arts, mingle with the artists, and participate in a youth information fair by the show’s sponsors and partners.

Mr. Speaker, let me congratulate along with Founders Dion Clark, this year’s Mistress and Masters of Ceremony, Barbara Smith and Dan Gasby for your ongoing contributions to Black and American culture. On behalf of my colleagues and a very grateful nation and in celebration of National Black History Month I salute and recognize all of our participating Harlem and world renowned artists and exhibitors of the 2012 Harlem Fine Arts Show.

HONORING AERAS AND THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF ALLERGY AND INFECTIOUS DISEASES (NIAID) OF THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH (NIH)

HON. CHRIS VAN HOLLEN
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Aeras and the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) for their innovative partnership to conduct clinical trial research on a tuberculosis vaccine candidate. Aeras and NIAID are leveraging established NIAID and HIV vaccine trial networks in Africa including the HIV Vaccine Trials Network (HVTN), the HIV Prevention Trials Network (HPTN) and the International Maternal Pediatric Adolescent AIDS Clinical Trials Network (IMPAACT) to accelerate a multi-center Phase II clinical trial of a tuberculosis vaccine candidate.

The two partners are working together in a novel way that capitalizes on existing infrastructure and displays responsible stewardship of U.S. government resources. The partnership also showcases the innovative capacity of U.S.-based researchers and the willingness of the American people to engage in solving global health problems such as the TB epidemic.

Tuberculosis is the second leading infectious disease killer worldwide, taking the lives of 1.4 million children, women and men each year. It is extremely deadly for people living with HIV. As drug-resistant strains of tuberculosis evade the best tools we have to fight this disease, new tuberculosis vaccines hold promise to help eliminate this disease as a public health problem in a cost-effective way.

Aeras is a nonprofit product development partnership leading efforts to develop new vaccines against tuberculosis, with laboratory, vaccine manufacturing and office facilities in Rockville, MD. Aeras works globally with partners in government, foundations, academia and industry to advance the world’s most promising TB vaccine candidates.

I am proud to serve the Congressional district where both Aeras and NIH are engaging in cutting-edge research at the forefront of solving devastating health problems. I hope to see the continuation and expansion of important research partnerships that hold promise to save millions of lives, create a world free from TB and secure our country’s place at the forefront of world-class research.

A TRIBUTE TO JIM LEWIS

HON. ROBERT A. BRADY
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Jim Lewis on the occasion of his retirement. Mr. Lewis has contributed over thirty-three years of faithful service to the School District of Philadelphia.

Since 1981, Jim has worked for the School District of Philadelphia in various capacities, as a Mechanic, Foreman, Supervisor, and Compliance Officer; an Assistant to the Chief Operating Officer; and eventually as Senior Vice President for Facilities and Operations and for Special Projects. A registered Master Plumber for twenty-five years, Jim is also the President and CEO of “Just in Time” Plumbing and Heating. He benefitted greatly from this body’s enactment of the 1973 Comprehensive Employment Training Act, which helped give him the skills he needed to succeed.

Mr. Lewis’s accomplishments and contributions to his community stretch far beyond his employment. He is a past President and current board member of the Emerald Education Committee, of which he has been a member for 32 years; and a current member of the Millions. Jim has been married for thirty-two years to Eileen Lewis, with whom he has raised two children, Jim and Christine.

Mr. Speaker, I encourage my colleagues to join me in thanking Jim Lewis for his years of service and dedication to the School District of Philadelphia and for his greater service to his community.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, March 21, 2012

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Chair, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 5, legislation which makes it more difficult for injured patients to hold medical providers, the drug industry, insurance companies, and nursing homes accountable for patient deaths and injuries. The so-called “Protecting Access to Healthcare Act,” is simply the same, repackaged tort reform proposal that has been considered on the House floor many times. This “medical malpractice” bill is a one-size-fits all, anti-individual rights bill that denies individuals their rights to redress who are injured.

The medical liability components of H.R. 5 do little to control health care costs and do more to undercut the rights of patients. The $250,000 cap and high standard of proof for punitive damages would severely weaken the deterrent effect that punitive damages have on egregious misconduct. Forever freezing the damage caps further weakens future deterrent effects while further reducing benefits to injured parties.

According to the Institute of Medicine, approximately 98,000 people die each year in the United States from preventable medical errors. The best way to lessen healthcare costs associated with malpractice is to reduce incidents of malpractice, not bargain away the legal rights of injured patients and consumers. This bill does nothing to address patient safety, quality measurement, and care improvement strategies that could actually reduce costs.

Mr. Chair, H.R. 5 will not do anything to lower the cost of health care. If the compensation for injured patients is not sufficient, American taxpayers will be picking up the tab. I urge my colleagues to consider very carefully who will end up paying at the end of the day.

RECOGNIZING THE 191ST ANNIVERSARY OF THE INDEPENDENCE OF GREECE

HON. MICHAEL G. GRIMM
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 21, 2012

Mr. GRIMM. Mr. Speaker, today, as we celebrate the 191st anniversary of Greek independence, it gives me great pride as a member of the Congressional Hellenic Caucus in celebrating the ties that connect our two great democracies together as both friends and allies.

In celebrating this day we also honor the accomplishments of Greek Americans, many of which first immigrated to our country and made their homes in New York, and the fantastic contributions they have brought to our country as a whole. I represent the 13th Congressional District of New York and am proud to have a large and thriving Greek American community in my district. Anyone who visits the remarkable cultural festivals thrown by the Holy Cross Orthodox Church in Bay Ridge, or the Holy Trinity, Nicholos Greek Orthodox Church on the West Shore of Staten Island, can attest to the strength of, and support for, the Greek-American community in Staten Island and Brooklyn.

Greek Independence Day is an opportunity for all Americans to reflect on our nation’s own freedoms. We must not forget that when the United States was first conceived, many of its ideas and laws were based on those of the Greeks. Just seeing the artwork right here in the United States Capitol or reading through our constitution exemplifies the profound impact the people of Greece have made on our modern society.

It is with great pride that I rise today to honor the independence of a nation that, for centuries, has protected the fundamental rights of liberty and participation in the democratic process. As the United States, we have seen the positive cultural heritage Greek-Americans bring to local communities firsthand in Staten Island and Brooklyn, and I am sure that the shared bond between our two great nations will remain rock solid for many years to come.

ON THE INTRODUCTION OF THE MEDICARE ADVANTAGE PRO-GRAM INTEGRITY ACT

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Medicare Advantage Program Integrity Act. My legislation will make commonsense payment reforms to the Medicare Advantage (MA) program to ensure that taxpayers get the best bang for their buck. The Medicare Advantage Program Integrity Act requires that Medicare Advantage plans capitate more accurately reflect the health status of their enrollees. In addition, the bill ends the ability for Medicare Advantage plans to game the system by retaining investment income from pre-payments. Taken together, these policies will save over $20 billion over ten years, protecting both taxpayers and beneficiaries.

The MA program has grown substantially in recent years, increasing from $65.2 billion in plan payments in 2006 to $116.1 billion in 2010.
Today, 25 percent of Medicare beneficiaries are enrolled in a private health insurance plan through MA. Congress took action through the Affordable Care Act (ACA) in 2010 to substantially reduce historical excessive base payment rates in MA. However, these plans continue to be overpaid relative to traditional Medicare, both in terms of base rates that exceed the cost of traditional Medicare in many geographic areas and because payments do not accurately reflect the health status of enrolled beneficiaries.

Because plan payments are adjusted for health status, increasing plan payments are increased as anticipated service use increases, plans have an incentive to “up code” and report less healthy patients. In fact, documented independent evidence shows that Medicare Advantage plans do tend to report higher patient severity than is supported by medical records. The data also show that reported patient severity in MA plans increased faster than for comparable patients in traditional fee-for-service Medicare (FFS) over the same time period.

In an attempt to address this issue, CMS reduced MA beneficiary risk scores (which are used to adjust base payments) by 3.41 percent when calculating payment rates in 2010 and 2011. However, a Government Accountability Office (GAO) report, Medicare Advantage: CMS Should Improve the Accuracy of Risk Score Adjustments for Diagnostic Coding Practices (January 12, 2012) found the Medicare Advantage Program continues to overpay MA plans despite the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services’ (CMS) effort to adjust payments to more accurately reflect the health status of plan enrollees. GAO estimated that in 2010, MA beneficiary risk scores were at beneficiary risk scores in their plans, a 7.1 percent higher than they would have been if the same beneficiaries had been continuously enrolled in traditional Medicare. GAO recommended that CMS take additional steps to improve the accuracy of these scores and estimated that this methodology improvements would have saved the Medicare program $1.2 to $3.1 billion in MA plan payments in 2010 alone.

My legislation implements the GAO recommendations by continuing and phasing in the higher coding intensity adjustment over several years to prevent disruption in the market.
The policy in this legislation would culminate in a 7.1 percent downward adjustment by 2019.
GAO’s findings indicate that a coding adjustment of up to 7.1 percent is warranted now and would yield billions of dollars in federal savings.

Under current law, CMS makes advanced capitated payments to Medicare Advantage plans at the beginning of every month for each MA plan.
MA plans often then invest these Medicare funds in interest-bearing accounts until the money is needed to pay for services. Current law does not prohibit Medicare Advantage plans from retaining the investment income on the prepayments. However, Office of Inspector General (OIG) points to the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHBP)
as a model, noting that in contrast to Medicare Advantage, insurance companies’ ability to earn investment income is limited under FEHBP. The HHS OIG conducted audits in 2000 and 2011 and concluded that if Medicare delayed pre-payments to Medicare Advantage plans by 46 days (similar to FEHPB), the delayed pre-payments to Medicare Advantage plans would have increased Medicare savings.

The Medicare Advantage Program Integrity
Act has been endorsed by the Medicare Rights Center, the Center for Medicare Advocacy, AFL-CIO, Families USA, the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare and the Alliance for Retired Americans. This is a commonsense piece of legislation that attacks waste at its source and improves the program without hurting real people. I urge all of my colleagues to support the bill.

HONORING THE LIFE AND SERVICE OF MARINE CORPS CAPTAIN MI-
CHAE L QUIN

HON. FRANK R. WOLF OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor the life and service of Marine Corps Captain Michael Quin, who tragically lost his life, along with others, during the final training mission before he was scheduled deployment to Afghanistan. Captain Quin is a native of Purcellville, Virginia where his parents, Brad and Betsy still reside.

Captain Quin graduated from Loudoun Valley High School and received an appointment in the United States Naval Academy, where he graduated in 2006. Michael went on to successfully complete flight school and receive his wings in 2008, graduating at the top of his flight school class. Michael rose quickly as a pilot from 2nd Lieutenant to Captain and was in command of a helicopter.

On February 22, Captain Quin was conducting a training mission at the Yuma Training Range Complex in Arizona when his helicopter collided with another, killing six out of the seven pilots in his squadron. Captain Quin was remembered by the commanding officer and gunnery sergeant of the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing as “one of those rare young captains” who inspired admiration from all those with whom he served.

Captain Quin’s service has been reported on by the Leesburg Today, which I submit for the record, as well as the Loudoun Times Mir-or, Purcellville Gazette, and the Blue Ridge Leader. Captain Quin was honored by residents of Purcellville when his body made the return trip from Arizona to Reagan National Airport and finally back home to his family.

Marines old and young, police, firefighters, and Boy and Girl Scouts turned out to show their respects for Captain Quin and to show support for his parents, siblings and fiancée.

Captain Quin was an example of leadership and patriotism of which we all can be proud. He chose to serve his country during an extremely difficult times and was prepared to wear the uniform of the United States Marine Corps into battle to protect his family and his country. That he lost his life in service to his country is a testament to his bravery.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that the thoughts and prayers of the full House of Representatives be extended to the Quin family as they honor the prayers of the full House of Representatives

CAPT. QUIN REMEMBERED: “HE WAS THE BEST”

The tragic impacts of the nation’s war effort again are being felt in Loudoun, with the death of U.S. Marine Corps Capt. Michael Quin. The Purcellville resident and 2002 Loudoun Valley High School graduate was killed last week when two helicopters collided while training in Arizona in advance of a deployment to Afghanistan.

Mourned by his parents, sisters and fiancée before coming home for four or five days with his fiancée before leaving in early April for Afghanistan.

His parents Brad and Betsy Quin had seen the report of the fatal crash and when they didn’t hear from their son that all was well, they began to worry. When the Marine officers were sent to deliver the news of their son’s death, they flew planes first at the naval base at Pensacola, FL, before moving on to New York.

Interrumpingly, during training, he hooked up with a squadron in Atlanta, GA, and there was a mutual adoption. After two years the young Marine aviator was “winged” Dec. 2, 2008, they all supported him. His parents’ pride in those naval aviator’s wings of gold “is more than you can imagine,” Brad Quin said.

From there, Capt. Quin immediately went to the West Coast where the Marine Corps were forming new squadrons. He rose through the ranks to 1st Lieutenant in command of his first ship, then to captain. He was No. 1 in the Marine Corps’ flight school, where he chose to fly Hueys.

His closeness to and support of others was noticeable during a tough time in which additional training and certifications were needed to life and the job. He was No. 1 in the Marine Corps’ flight school, where he chose to fly Hueys.

When the lieutenant colonel said he had asked the crews to tell him about Capt. Quin, the officer himself became choked with emotion. The support no matter their trade or rank is “pillars of the community.”

Looking back on his son’s life, “He was the kind of kid who didn’t really require much correction from us,” his father said.}

because the Washington detachment of the Marine Corps will hold an arrival ceremony before the return home with a Marine Corps escort, and the Washington detachment of the Marine Corps will release his son’s body soon. He has been in the college world all his life, even if you’re studying history and Spanish, as Michael Quin did.

Frederick Dryden has been in constant touch with the Quins. “Once we know the final date for burial in Arlington, the company will begin its planning in earnest,” something along the lines of the plans and ceremony for Mace two years ago.

“We’ll welcome him home in the proper way,” Dryden said.

Mace was killed Oct. 3, 2009, along with seven other U.S. soldiers, defending the Camp Keating outpost in the Nuristan province of Afghanistan against more than 300 Al Qaeda-linked insurgents. Mace was a 2005 Loudoun Valley graduate.

I urge a no vote and I hope that the Majority comes to its sense, embraces bipartisanship, and comes back with a bill I can support.

CELEBRATING STU TOOTH, THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE BOYS AND GIRLS CLUB OF TROY, MI

HON. GARY C. PETERS
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. PETERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Steve Toth, the Executive Director of the Boys and Girls Club of Troy, on the occasion of his retirement, after 16 years of service.

Steve’s service to the Troy community has extended well beyond the walls of the Boys and Girls Club. He has been a leader—raising action and bringing elements of Troy’s diverse groups together to build a stronger, more connected community. For the last 15 years, he has been a member of the Troy Kiwanis Club and served terms as its Treasurer and President. Steve has volunteered this time mentoring youth in sports and spent the last eleven years as a soccer referee and trainer for middle school students. Steve has also been active in his church and has taken time each of the last three years to deliver food containers to seniors living in Troy.

Steve’s passion and dedication for helping others have not only earned him the respect and praise of other community leaders, but a number of awards and recognitions. Among those honors is a 2004 Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., “Keep the Dream Alive Award” from the Archdiocese of Detroit for his support of the South Oakland Shelter project and his Parish’s Giving Tree Programs. Steve has also been recognized by Leadership Troy as Troy’s Outstanding Citizen of the Year in 2009 for his volunteer work in the community.

However, among all of his endeavors in the last 16 years, there is nowhere Steve’s passion, vision and service have been more profoundly felt than at the Boys and Girls Club of Troy. When Steve arrived at the Club, he brought with him his 18 years of prior experience as an Executive Director for two of the YMCA’s centers in Michigan. In 2006, after a decade of work at the Boys and Girls Club, Steve used his knowledge and experience to engage its board and the broader community in a campaign to construct a new 18,000 square foot, state-of-the-art facility. This facility allowed the Club to offer an innovative and comprehensive set of programs that help its 30,000 annual attendees build their leadership skills and take an active role in shaping their futures for the better.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating Steve’s impact not only on the Troy community, but on the youth whose futures he has helped to build. I know he will surely be missed by all who have benefited from his wisdom, his passion and his determination to engage our youth. I wish Steve many years of retirement, and I know that he will continue to heed the call to serve the Troy community.

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of National Black History Month to celebrate the 200th Anniversary of Boyer Lodge No. 1 of the Free and Accepted Masons Prince Hall Affiliation of New York City.

History notes that Boyer Lodge No. 1 was named after Jean Pierre Boyer, a native of Saint-Domingue, who was born around February 15, 1776. He was a courageous soldier and leader of the Haitian Revolution, who served as a General under Toussaint L’Ouverture in the Haitian War of Independence against the French Government. Jean Pierre Boyer served as the fourth President of Haiti from 1817 to 1820 for the longest period of time of any of the revolutionary leaders of his generation. He reunited the north and south of Haiti in 1820 and also invaded and took control of Santo Domingo, which brought all of Hispaniola under one banner. In 1822, under President Boyer’s leadership Haiti declared independence from France in 1825, becoming the only free Black nation, then in existence.

As stated by Worshipful Master Carlo Smith-Ramsay, “The daring price that our ancestors paid to boldly and audaciously decide to become Freemasons at a time in history when men of color were not entirely free men and the laws of the land provided them very little protection is the reason why we should humbly and reverently celebrate our Bi-centennial Anniversary of Boyer Lodge No. 1.”

Presidents Jean Pierre Boyer recruited freed American blacks to immigrate to the Republic of Haiti, using advertisement opportunities in newspapers, promising free land and political opportunity to black settlers. He sent agents to black communities in the United States to convince them that Haiti was a sovereign state and open to immigration only for blacks. In September of 1824, nearly 6,000 Americans, mostly free people of color, migrated to Haiti within a year, with ships departing from New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Unfortunately, the new president of the island and the inability of President Boyer’s administration to help support the new immigrants in the transition most returned to the United States. Boyer ruled the island of Hispaniola until 1843, when he lost the support of the ruling elite and was ousted. He went later exiled to France where he died in 1850.

Since its founding, Boyer Lodge #1 has met continuously for One Hundred and Ninety Four years. In 1826, the Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Massachusetts helped further expand Black Freemasonry in New York State by the chartering of Club Lodges Rising Sun Lodge and Hiram Lodge. On March 14, 1845, further progress was achieved when Boyer Lodge #1, Celestial Lodge #2, Rising Sun Lodge #3 and Hiram Lodge #4 convened and erected Boyer Grand Lodge of New York. Thus becoming, “The Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of the State of New York.”

Prince Hall Freemasonry derives from historical events which led to a tradition of separate and predominantly African American Free masonry in North America. It consists of independent Grand Lodges, which are considered regular by the United Grand Lodge of England. Prince Hall was born in 1735 and was a tireless abolitionist and leader of the free black community in Boston. Hall tried to gain New England’s enslaved and free blacks a place in some of the most crucial spheres of society, Freemasonry, education and the military. He is considered the founder of “Black Freemasonry” in the United States, known today as Prince Hall Freemasonry. Prince Hall formed the African Grand Lodge of North America.

On March 6, 1775, Prince Hall was made a Master Mason in Masonic Constitution Military Lodge No. 441, along with fourteen other African Americans: Cyrus Johnston, Bueston Slinger, Prince Rees, John Canton, Peter Freeman, Benjamin Tiller, Duff Ruoff, Thorn-as Santerson, Prince Rayden, Cato Spean, Bryan Smith, Peter Howard, and Richard Tilley, all of whom apparently were free by birth. Prince Hall unani mously elected its Grand Master and served until his death in 1807. Most Worshipful Grand Master Prince Hall is considered the first black community activist of his time who made many appearances before the Boston City Council and Massachusetts Colony Legislature. Prince Hall had a passion for learning and education and operated a school in the basement of his home. He also lobby tirelessly for education rights for black children and a back-to-Africa movement. Many historians regard Prince Hall as one of the more prominent African American leaders throughout the early national-period of the United States.

The Prince Hall Lodge, formerly known as the African Lodge is the oldest fraternal organization in the country and has been a leading influence in the lives of black men in America. During the abolitionist movement, African American churches formed. Prince Hall Lodges emerged at the forefront of the struggle. As stated by Most Worshipful Grand Master Reverend Dr. Gregory R. Smith, “in essence, and more often than not, members and church members were one and the same. This was the case with both Lattion, who was the First Worshipful Master of Boyer Lodge and a member of Mother African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and James Varrick, the first Bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church and charter member of the Boyer Lodge.”

Both the church, particularly the Mother AME Zion Church, formerly known as the “Freedom Church” and the Masons played prominent roles in the Underground Railroad. Many Masons were captains and conductors on the Railroad and Mother Zion earned its “Freedom Church” name by being one of the major stops on this complex network, which contributed to the freedom of more than 100,000 slaves. Today, the Mother AME Zion Church is the oldest existing African American institution in New York and is the oldest lodge in the Prince Hall fraternity and the third oldest African American institution in New York State.
Mr. Speaker, let me join my fellow brethren and a very grateful nation as we celebrate during National Black History Month, the 200th Anniversary of Boyer Lodge No. 1, the first established Lodge of the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. Let me also congratulate the Most Worshipful Master Carlo Smith-Ramsay, leader of Boyer Lodge No. 1 and our 55th Grand Master of the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York, Most Worshipful Reverend Dr. Gregory Robeson Smith, 33°, EdD, DMin, MBA, MDiv.

CELEBRATING THE GRAND OPENING OF MAXIM INTEGRATED PRODUCTS' FARMERS BRANCH CAMPUS

HON. KENNY MARCHANT
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. MARCHANT. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride that I celebrate the grand opening of Maxim Integrated Products Inc.’s new campus in Farmers Branch, Texas on March 23, 2012.

As a semiconductor company headquartered in Silicon Valley, California, Maxim’s presence in North Texas began in 2001 when it acquired Dallas Semiconductor. Maxim is an impressive Fortune 1000 business with annual revenues of $2.5 billion and approximately 9,300 employees worldwide, of which 1,400 operate in Texas. The Farmers Branch campus will employ 800 people and is Maxim’s second-largest site in the United States. It is the centerpiece of the design of integrated circuits and engineering as well as business management functions such as finance, marketing and customer service.

The 18.5-acre campus will be home to the 138,000 square-foot, employee-named Lone Star Building. The Lone Star Building will house 528 employees with the potential to accommodate a total of 650 people. The building is unique and features state-of-the-art, energy-efficient technology that includes automated lighting and control systems to reduce energy consumption by 37 percent. It also enjoys double-paned insulated windows with low-e coating, a chilled water air conditioning system and a roof that reflects heat.

Maxim has been active in the community by sponsoring the October 2011 Dallas Susan G. Komen “Race for the Cure,” with 80 employees participating. Through proactive environmental efforts, the site also recycled more than 90 tons of materials in 2010, including glass, cardboard, paper, metal, plastic and batteries.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the 24th Congressional District of Texas, I ask all my distinguished colleagues to join me in congratulating Maxim Integrated Products on the grand opening of its Farmers Branch campus. I am proud to represent Farmers Branch, and I am grateful for the hundreds of jobs the company provides to the North Texas community.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. TED POE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole on the House of the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Chair, ObamaCare is unconstitutional and must be repealed in its entirety. That is why I voted for the full repeal of the President’s nationalized healthcare bill, including the Independent Payment Advisory Board (IPAB). I have also introduced legislation to defund the individual mandate provision of ObamaCare. Although I fully support the repeal of IPAB and have cosponsored legislation to repeal it (H.R. 452), I cannot support final passage of H.R. 5 because the bill includes provisions that I believe violate States’ rights and the 10th Amendment. As a strict constitutionalist and a fierce defender of States’ rights, I cannot accept replacing one unconstitutional law with another.

H.R. 5 imposes a Federal medical liability cap on the States. In effect, this allows the Federal Government to overrule the State governments that have decided to prohibit liability caps. Five States already have constitutional prohibitions on liability caps, and I believe that H.R. 5 will supersede these State constitutions and override the will of those legislatures. I myself believe in medical liability caps, like we have in Texas; however, if another State’s voters do not want such reform, that is their decision to make. And, their doctors are welcome to keep coming to Texas.

Mr. Speaker, in honor of Sergeant Tom Bergren’s 32 years of valiant and dedicated service, I am pleased to submit this statement for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

H.R. 5 PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

HON. NICK J. RAHALL II OF WEST VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to voice the concerns raised by my constituents regarding the Independent Payment Advisory Board (IPAB).

Though I voted against H.R. 5, the Protecting Access to Healthcare Act, I, too, have concerns about an unelected, unaccountable board tasked with creating cost-cutting plans if Medicare spending exceeds certain levels. Though the Board is prohibited by law from cutting beneficiary policies, and the Congressional Budget Office predicts that a cost-cutting plan will not be triggered during this budget cycle, I urge my House colleagues to revisit this issue. We, as elected representatives of the people, have a Constitutional responsibility to ensure the voices of our constituencies are heard when it comes to the future of Medicare. Walling off those decisions, in order to expedite cost cutting efforts that lack sufficient popular support, is the surest way to a budgetary debacle.

We must preserve access to quality care, while containing costs, but we also must ensure an opportunity for the voice of the people to be heard and their needs to be taken into consideration.
CELEBRATING PASTOR EDWARD L. BRANCH AND THE CONGREGATION OF THIRD NEW HOPE BAPTIST CHURCH IN DETROIT, MICHIGAN

HON. GARY C. PETERS
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. PETERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Pastor Edward L. Branch and the congregation of Third New Hope Baptist Church in Detroit, Michigan on the occasion of its 56th anniversary.

Over 50 years ago, Deacon John Cunningham and residents of Detroit came together in the fellowship of Christ to carry out the work of the Lord. Under its first leader, Pastor John L. Davis, the congregation found its first home on Carpenter Street in Detroit.

As a testament to Pastor Davis' focus on missionary and outreach programs which guided lost souls, the congregation prospered and grew so extensively that Third New Hope had to move to a bigger space on Russell Street.

Following the departure of Pastor Davis in 1961, Third New Hope came under the ministry of Reverend G.P. Chapman. Reverend Chapman led the congregation with great passion, kindness and a strong conviction of faith. As a true servant to the Lord and his community, he was known as a compassionate man that, "would give you the shirt off his back."

Under his guidance, Third New Hope created a youth choir, usher board, nurses guild, and more social outreach programs. Again, in recognition of the strong spiritual bond of the congregation to its community, Third New Hope saw its congregation expand and had to find a new, larger home on Linwood Street.

In 1977, after 16 years of service, Reverend Chapman retired and the call to lead Third New Hope was heeded by Pastor Edward L. Branch. A young, energetic and spiritually inspired leader, Pastor Branch placed renewed inspiration in the life of his congregation and served the needs of the community.

Under his tenure, the congregation expanded its outreach with the Heritage Center for African American Religious Studies, Men's and Women's Ministries, Marriage Ministry and Pastoral Care. In addition to moving to its current site on Plymouth Road in Detroit, Pastor Branch led a campaign to raise money for a community center, paved three parking lots near the church, established The Watchmen (a ministry of men who are aimed at protecting the community from harm) and expanded the church to a second location, the Third New Hope West Campus.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in recognizing the accomplishments of the congregation of Third New Hope Baptist Church in Detroit. Today, Third New Hope's two locations provide Metro-Detroit residents with spiritual guidance and vital social services. Over its 56-year history, the Church and its congregation's profound impact have been felt across our communities. I know that Third New Hope continues to prosper under the leadership of Pastor Branch and I wish him and the congregation many more years of vibrant spiritual fellowship in Christ and service to the community.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPONSOR OF H.R. 5

HON. JOE COURTNEY
OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. COURTNEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 568, a bipartisan resolution reaffirming the United States resolve to prevent Iran from acquiring nuclear weapons capability. I co-sponsored this resolution because of the critical importance to U.S. national security and regional stability to deny Iranian nuclear weapon capability through every diplomatic tool and pressure to avoid resorting to military force.

Reports of progress in Iran's nuclear program have been disconcerting. The November 2011 International Atomic Energy Agency report presented "serious concerns regarding possible military dimensions to Iran's nuclear program" and reported that "Iran has carried out activities relevant to the development of a nuclear device." There would be devastating consequences for a nation that has threatened Israel's existence and poses significant security threats to its neighbors to acquire nuclear weapons. As President Obama said during his January 24, 2012 State of the Union Address, "Let there be no doubt: America is determined to prevent Iran from getting a nuclear weapon."

Since I entered Congress in 2007, I have stood firmly against nuclear proliferation to Iran. In 2010, I co-sponsored and supported through passage the Comprehensive Iran Sanctions, Accountability, and Divestment Act, which enacted sanctions against companies investing in Iran's energy sector. In addition, I am a cosponsor of legislation to expand sanctions against Iran, the Iran Threat Reduction Act (H.R. 1905).

It has been under President Obama's leadership and reinvigorated cooperation with allies and other nations that has ramped up the pressure to deny Iran's capability. President Obama entered office with the international effort to challenge Iran divided and in shambles. Immediately, the President rallied the international community to apply pressure in conjunction with the United States as a diplomatic force multiplier. Russia and China joined in a 2010 the U.N. Security Council comprehensive sanctions effort. These sanctions slowed the Iranian nuclear program and have levied damaging effects on the Iranian economy. The coalition held as we expanded a sanctions offensive against Iran's Central Bank and their oil exports.

These efforts make it clear that Iran must change its recent behavior and instead fulfill its obligations under the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty. The longer it takes Iran to change its course, the further cut-off it will grow diplomatically and the more strangled its economy will become. Now we must expand these efforts to increase sanctions, further isolate Iran, and explore every outlet to undermine the Iranian regime politically and seek real change in that country's leadership and political direction.

This resolution communicates Congressional unity with the Administration and determination to the international community to maximize every diplomatic and economic tool available to pressure and deny Iran nuclear weapon capability. To be clear, other options—such as the use of United States military force against Iran—require the deliberate and thoughtful consideration of this Congress, a power which I believe this resolution clearly preserves.

I am co-sponsoring this resolution to continue our nation's effective, ratcheting pressure to force Iran on a new path and to avoid a subsequent request from the Administration some day to authorize the use of military force against Iran.

HON. JUDY CHU

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Ms. CHU. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize a great loss to our community, Ms. Irene Portillo, who passed away on March 13, 2012, after a valiant battle with cancer. My heart goes out to her two children, Desiree Portillo and Darren Rae Portillo; her son-in-law, Paul Rabinov; her grandchildren Paloma Irene and David Darren Rabinov; her brothers Henry Jr., Armando, Mario and Arturo Esparza; her nieces and nephews; and all of her family and friends.

Ms. Irene Portillo was a remarkable Californian angel. Born and raised in East Los Angeles and Boyle Heights, she led a life dedicated to community service and improving the lives of her fellow Angelinos.
Ms. Portillo’s most lasting legacy was her service as founding member and Executive Director of Project Amiga, a non-profit, community-based organization that provides education and computer training, support services, job placement and other assistance to at-risk youth and adults in Los Angeles County. Irene personally oversaw Project Amiga’s training programs, and mentored many Welfare to Work participants and at-risk youth to help improve their lives and become self-sufficient.

Irene truly loved her community. Not only did she create a whole new organization in Project Amiga to provide badly needed support services for our most economically disadvantaged and vulnerable populations, but she also dedicated much of her life to educating and molding our youth. She did this through many different avenues, as a tenured instructor at Rio Hondo College and as a Presidential Appointee on the National Advisory Councils on Vocational Education and Women’s Educational Programs.

Irene also worked hard to give folks a second chance at life, as the first Hispanic woman to manage one of the largest California State Employment Development Department offices. Through the EDD, she worked with felons recently released from the penal system and transitioning back into the community. Irene received many awards for her work, from L.A. Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa, Secretary of Labor Hilda Solis and many others.

I urge my House colleagues to join me in honoring Ms. Irene Portillo for her record of community service, her indomitable spirit and her remarkable service and contributions to her community and to our nation.

RECOGNIZING GILBERT HOLMES, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE ACLU OF INDIANA, FOR A LIFE OF PUBLIC SERVICE

HON. ANDRE CARSON OF INDIANA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. CARSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, on the occasion of his retirement, I would like to congratulate Gilbert Holmes for a lifetime of trailblazing leadership and devoted public service.

From humble roots growing up in Sparta, Illinois, Gil ascended to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the U.S. Army, where he served valiantly for twenty years, including in Vietnam and as aide-de-camp to Major General Frederick Davison. Upon leaving the service, Gil applied his organizational acumen with venerable Hoosier organizations, including the Indianapolis Museum of Art, Methodist Hospital, and Lincoln National Corporation.

From 1989 to 1996, Gil rendered distinguished public service as Commissioner of the Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles, and later, as President and CEO of IndyGo.

Gil’s career culminated in his selection as executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana, where he has served ably for the past three years as both steward and advocate.

Gil has spent his life combating prejudice, proving skeptics wrong, and empowering those with whom he works to achieve great things. On March 31, 2012, Gil will retire, leaving behind a legacy of lives bettered by his mentorship and leadership. On behalf of the 7th Congressional District of Indiana, I wish him well in his retirement and extend to him our gratitude for his commitment to his fellow Hoosiers and to the advancement of civil rights for all.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

SPEECH OF HON. LEE TERRY OF NEBRASKA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and provide improved medical care by reducing the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Chair, I support full repeal of the Independent Payment Advisory Board.

The health reform law takes away power that has traditionally been left to Congress, and places health care decisions in the hands of an unelected, board of bureaucrats.

Unfortunately, the House has decided to attach a bipartisan bill to repeal the IPAB, with legislation that is unconstitutional and I believe a federalization of our tort reform system. This is a blatant violation of state’s rights and a violation of the 10th Amendment. Tort law is an area of law traditionally left completely to states discretion.

Many of us believe the health reform law is a government takeover of our health care system. If one considers oneself to be a true state’s rights person, why do we give states the latitude and ability to do it, and then take it away with a one-size-fits-all mandate from the federal government?

TRIBUTE TO PETE P. PETERS

HON. JIM COSTA OF CALIFORNIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the life of one of our Nation’s most principled and generous business leaders, Mr. Pete P. Peters. Sadly, Mr. Peters passed away on March 13, 2012 at the age of 94. His remarkable impact on California’s San Joaquin Valley will ensure that his legacy lives on for years to come.

The son of Armenian immigrants, Pete was truly a shining example of the American Dream. With hard work and perseverance, he and his family were able to become business leaders and generous community benefactors.

Mr. Peters, and his brother Leon, were both notable entrepreneurs; he was a self-trained engineer who pioneered a design for a stain-less steel circular tanks that have been used for decades by winemakers worldwide. His innovative spirit and passion allowed the brothers to run Valley Foundry and Machine Works as a family operation.

Upon his retirement in 1989, Mr. Peters immersed himself in our community and was active in a number of organizations. He oversaw the Leon S. Peters Foundation and served as chairman of the Pete P. Peters Foundation. While he did not have the opportunity to go to college, Mr. Peters was an ardent advocate for higher education and felt it was necessary for young Americans have the opportunity to go to college, regardless of their financial circumstances. As a result, he was an enthusiastic supporter of colleges and universities in the San Joaquin Valley, including: California State University, Fresno (CSU Fresno), Fresno City College, and Reedley College.

Mr. Peters was also a supporter of Community Regional Medical Center, Valley Public Television, the San Joaquin River Parkway and Conservation Trust, and the San Joaquin Valley Winemaking Association.

Recognizing his immense contributions to the San Joaquin Valley, California, and our Nation, CSU Fresno conferred on him an honorary doctoral degree—the CSU’s highest honor.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the life of Mr. Pete P. Peters. His humility and unwavering commitment to the improvement of our community not only made him an asset to the San Joaquin Valley, but a role model for our entire Nation.

HON. ADAM KINZINGER OF ILLINOIS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. KINZINGER of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, I was unable to cast my vote on H.R. 886, which would request Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of the 225th anniversary of the establishment of the United States Marshal Service. Had I been able to, I would have cast an “aye” vote in favor of the legislation.

HON. MIKE COFFMAN OF COLORADO IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, on January 20, 2009, the day President Obama took office, the national debt was $10,626,877,048,913.08. Today, it is $15,574,428,564,198.34. We’ve added nearly $5 trillion to our debt in just 3 years. This is debt our nation, our economy, and our children could have avoided with a balanced budget amendment.

PROTECTING ACCESS TO HEALTHCARE ACT

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 21, 2012

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5) to improve patient access to health care services and providers, and to provide the opportunity for the Secretary to reduce the excessive burden the liability system places on the health care delivery system:

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Chair. I rise today to express my objections to the inclusion of H.R. 5, the HEALTH Act into H.R. 452, Medicare De- serts Accountability Act of 2011. Medical malpractice tort reform does not belong as a part of the repeal of the Independent Payment Advisory Board, or IPAB.

The HEALTH Act is an inherently flawed bill that should not be considered by the House and should not be included with H.R. 452. It does not fix the problem of medical malpractice or the supposed insurance “crisis”. Instead, it takes control away from the states, where it belongs. This legislation was originally conceived over 20 years ago and has yet to pass both houses. There is a reason for that.

The cap imposed by H.R. 5 is both unjust and unfair. It does not take into account the severity of a patient’s injury or whether negligence is at issue.

The real problems we are facing is patient safety. If we fix that, then there will be no need to try and take away from the states their right to legislate this issue. In a Wall Street Journal article, it was found that by focusing on patient safety, anesthesiologists went from being one of the most risky specialties to improving one of the lowest malpractice insurance premiums. In fact, their premiums are lower now than they were 20 years ago.

We should not focus on medical malpractice tort reform, but rather education and training for medical professionals.

I am a strong proponent of repealing the IPAB, but cannot in good conscience vote for this bill because it is not a clean repeal.

The IPAB takes away from Congress the ability to determine Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals. It consists of 15 members who are unelected by the People, but rather are appointed by the President. The members of the IPAB are not accountable to anyone once appointed and therefore Congress loses much of the power it has to shape Medicare payment policies. By repealing the IPAB, the ACA will be strengthened, not weakened.

If this bill was as it was passed in both the Energy & Commerce and Ways & Means committees, there would be no controversy from many of my colleagues on the Demo- cratic side, but I cannot support a bill that will have such a profoundly negative impact on the 74,000 Medicare eligible constituents in my district. I advise my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote “no” on this bill as currently written.

SALUTE TO BISHOP JOHN HENRY SHEARD ON THE CELEBRATION OF HIS EXCEPTIONAL LEADERSHIP IN THE CHURCH OF GOD IN CHRIST

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 22, 2012

Mr. PETERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute Bishop John Henry Sheard, Pastor of Greater Mitchell Church of God in Christ of Detroit, one of our nation’s most exceptional leaders in the great state of Michigan.

From humble beginnings in a rural town in Mississippi to a leadership position in the International Church of God In Christ (COGIC), Bishop John Henry Sheard has been a great spiritual leader and true pioneer. Bishop Sheard moved to Detroit at a very early age. Under the tutelage of the Bishop John Seth Bailey, he moved up through the ranks of the Church. After being ordained, Bishop Sheard was installed as pastor of Mitchell Street COGIC in January, 1982. Displaying great leadership skills, he moved his growing congregation to a larger location in the city of Detroit. It is current known as Greater Mitchell Church on God in Christ.

Bishop Sheard was later elevated to District Superintendent, Jurisdictional President of the Youth Department, and to the Jurisdiction’s prestigious Executive Board. Ultimately, he was consecrated Bishop of the First Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of Michigan Southwest by the General Board of the Church of God In Christ, with Bishop L.H. Ford as Presiding Bishop. For more than nearly 20 years, Bishop Sheard has presided over the First Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of Michigan Southwest and during this time the Jurisdiction has made tremen- dous strides.

Known as a man of impeccable integrity and great leadership, Bishop Sheard has traveled throughout the country. His peers have twice elected him overwhelmingly as the Chairman of the Board of Bishops for the Church of God In Christ, Inc. He humbly chairs this prestigious Board, which is comprised of about 200 Bishops worldwide. He has earned many awards and accolades, including being honored by the Ohio Southern Christian Leadership Conference as “Bishop of the Year for 2009.”

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in recognizing and paying tribute to Bishop John H. Sheard. Pastor of Greater Mitchell Church of God In Christ, on the celebration of his exceptional leadership in the great state of Michigan.
