and grow the economy, then Republicans are ready to work with you because the time for pretending America’s challenges can be solved with more of the same is over—over. The time has come to summon the political courage to move beyond the status quo, to end tax hikes and the policies tested by 30 minutes and the Republicans controlling the second 30 minutes.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF PATTY SHWARTZ TO BE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to consider the following nomination, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of Patty Shwartz, of New Jersey, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Third Circuit.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will be 30 minutes of debate equally divided in the usual form.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, last month Senate Republicans filibustered the nomination of Caitlin Halligan to fill a vacancy on the D.C. Circuit that arose when Chief Justice Roberts left the D.C. Circuit to join the Supreme Court 8 years ago. Caitlin Halligan is a woman who is extraordinarily well-qualified and amongst the most qualified judicial nominees I have seen from any administration. It is a shame that narrow special interests hold such influence that Senate Republicans blocked an up-or-down vote on her confirmation with multiple filibusters of her nomination and procedural objections that required her to be nominated five times over the last 3 years.

Had she received an up-or-down vote, I am certain she would have been confirmed and been an outstanding judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Instead, all Senate Republicans but one supported the filibuster and refused to vote up or down on this highly-qualified woman to fill a needed judgeship on the D.C. Circuit. Senate Republicans attacked her for legal advocacy as their own behalf of her client, the State of New York, instead of attributing the legal positions a lawyer takes when advocating for a client with what that person would do as an impartial judge. That is not the American tradition. That is not what Republicans insisted was the standard for nominees of Republican Presidents but that is what they did to derail the nomination of Caitlin Halligan.

Also disconcerting were the comments by Republicans after their filibuster in which they gloated about payback. That, too, is wrong. It does our Nation and our Federal judiciary no good when they place their desire to engage in partisan tit-for-tat over the needs of the American people. I reject that approach while working to confirm 100 of President Bush’s judicial nominees in just 17 months in 2001 and 2002.

The filibuster of the nomination of Miguel Estrada was different. It was to obtain an up-or-down vote on whether he acted ideologically as his supervisor at the Office of Solicitor General had alleged. Had we gotten access to those materials, there would have been a vote on the Estrada nomination. Republicans now want to demand access to all sorts of materials while filibustering for the first time in our history the Secretary of Defense and the Deputy Attorney General of the United States, as well as the nominee to head the CIA and judicial nominees. They cannot do that and still complain about the Estrada nomination.

Now that Senate Republicans have during the last 4 years filibusted more of moderate judicial nominees than were filibustered during President Bush’s entire 8 years—67 percent more, in fact—I urge them to abandon their misjudged efforts that sacrifice outstanding judges for purposes of partisan payback.

Today the Senate will finally consider another circuit court nomination that has been delayed for no good reason. The nomination of Judge Patty Shwartz to the Third Circuit has needlessly stalled for 13 months since being favorably reported by the Judiciary Committee. This is another of the many judicial nominees who could have been confirmed last year. She is another qualified nominee who is supported by her home state Senators and by the Republican Governor of New Jersey. After this prolonged and unnecessary delay, I am pleased that she will finally be allowed to join the Third Circuit to serve the people of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and the Virgin Islands.

In 10 years as a United States Magistrate Judge in the District of New Jersey, Judge Shwartz has handled more than 4,000 civil and criminal cases and presided over 14 cases that have gone to verdict or final judgment, including 11 jury trials. Before becoming a judge, Judge Shwartz spent 14 years as an assistant U.S. attorney in the District of New Jersey, ultimately rose to become chief of the Criminal Division. During her time as an assistant U.S. attorney, Judge Shwartz tried more than 15 jury cases to verdict, all as sole or chief counsel. It is past time for the Senate to consider her nomination on the merits of her record and to confirm her. Her nomination has been stalled on the Senate floor for 13 months. This is just one example of the unnecessary delays that have been imposed by Republican Senators and by the Republican Governor of New Jersey. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of that editorial be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my statement.

By any objective measure, Judge Shwartz is a nominee with solid legal credentials and qualifications. Rather than evaluating her on her record, some have tried to claim there is an issue because Senator MENENDEZ met with her before supporting her. They ignore the many bipartisan votes on legislation or confirmations by the nominee and Senator MENENDEZ, that she must have made him some untoward commitment on how she would rule on some matter. There is no basis for that claim.

When the Senate blocked judicial nominees in order to delay confirmation, the Republicans are ready to work with you because the time for pretending America’s challenges can be solved with more of the same is over—over. The time has come to summon the political courage to move beyond the status quo, to end tax hikes and the policies tested by Republicans for the District of Columbia. Instead,
Federal courts. Instead, they cause delays, overcrowded dockets, overburdened courts and have gone on too long.

When confirmed, Judge Shwartz will be one of just three women serving as active judges on the Third Circuit. It is time to move forward in a bipartisan fashion to vote to confirm this qualified nominee so that she may better serve the American people as a member of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR,

Senator Chuck Grassley,
Hart Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

Senator Patrick Leahy,
Russell Senate Building,
Washington, DC.

Dear Senators: I write in support of Magistrate Judge Patty Shwartz’s nomination to be a Judge on the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. When I became the United States Attorney in the District of New Jersey in 2001, Judge Shwartz was Chief of the Criminal Division, a very important and taxing job in a large prosecuting office. Judge Shwartz was an impressive Criminal Chief, hard working, bright, articulate, great with people and conversant with the law. She remained my Criminal Chief until she became a Magistrate Judge. As a Magistrate Judge, she also performed admirably and garnered the respect of the entire legal community. Again, her hard work, amiable personality, patience, intelligence and knowledge of the law were lauded by all who appeared before her. I am sure that if she were elevated to sit on the Third Circuit Court of Appeals she would prove an excellent judge for all of the same reasons she was an excellent prosecutor and Magistrate Judge. She has my full support for the position for which I believe she is well suited.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me.

Very truly yours,

Chris Christie,
Governor.

COURTS WITHOUT JUDGES
(By the Editorial Board)

The number of vacancies on the nation’s federal courts has reached an astonishingly high level, creating a serious shortage of judges and undermining the ability of the nation’s court system to bestow justice.

Of 856 federal district and circuit court seats, a 10 percent vacancy rate and nearly double the rate at this point in the presidency of George W. Bush. More than a third of the vacancies have been declared by judges’ associations’ based on court workloads and the length of time the seats have been empty. By far the most important cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is the dearth of judicial nominees, for reasons of politics, ideology and spite, to confirm as few as President Obama’s judicial choices as possible.

Nominees confirmed by the Senate Judiciary Committee tell the story. Mr. Obama’s nominees for seats on federal courts of appeal, the system’s top tier below the Supreme Court, have waited an average of 148 days for their confirmation vote following the committee’s approval, more than four times longer than Mr. Bush’s nominees. For Mr. Obama’s nominees to federal district courts, the average wait time has been 102 days, compared with 35 days for Mr. Bush’s district court choices.

The prestigious and important United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit offers a particularly striking example of Republican obstructionism. The 11-justice court handles appeals from federal regulatory agencies and has exclusive jurisdiction over national security matters. It has four vacancies; the last time the Senate confirmed a judicial nominee to the court was 2006.

Mr. Bush appointed four judges to the court, a feeder to the Supreme Court, but he undoubtedly knew whether Mr. Obama would appoint any remains to be seen. Mr. Obama’s first nominee for the court, Caitlin Halligan, withdrew from consideration last month after Senate Republicans refused to confirm her for a second time. Those criticisms echoed the National Rifle Association’s ridiculous portrayal of her as a legal activist outside the mainstream because she had filed a brief in opposition to the gun industry when she was New York State’s solicitor general.

The real reason, as everyone knows, was to prevent a political balance on a generally conservative court. He may fare better with his latest nominee, Sri Srinivasan, a lawyer whose background working in the solicitor general’s office under both President Bush and President Obama should help his chances.

Nominees for other important government posts have also been held up by partisan reasons. Some Republicans say this is simply payback for the Democrats’ filibustering of Bush nominees. But while neither party should be in the business of obstructing judicial nominees, unless they are unqualified or unacceptably extreme, a retaliatory response based on politics hurts all who rely on courts to protect their rights and uphold the law.

It is also worth noting that Mr. Obama has not been putting forth candidates with strong ideological profiles. His nominees are decidedly moderate, which was not always true of the Bush judicial choices that the Democrats felt compelled to filibuster.

Mr. Obama could help reduce the problem by speeding up his nominations. The White House appears to have sharpened its focus since last week. But currently, 62 district and circuit court vacancies have no nominees.

The Halligan filibuster got some Democratic senators talking about a bolder strategy, including reviving filibuster reform and making it harder for senators to torpedo or delay nominations to fill judicial vacancies in their home states. Another proposal is to have Mr. Obama make simultaneous nominations to fill the four vacancies on the District of Columbia Circuit, which would force Republicans to come up with plausible reasons to oppose each of them. In the face of political paralysis, these ideas are worth embracing.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I see the distinguished Senator from Iowa, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, today the Senate will consider the 10th judicial nomination this year. With today’s expected action, we will have confirmed four circuit and six district nominees. At this point in 2005—and that was the beginning of President Bush’s first term—the Senate was only able to confirm just one judicial nominee. To what are we talking about for President Obama—the Senate had confirmed zero judicial nominees. Let me repeat that. At this point in 2005, the Senate had confirmed not 10, not 4, not even 1 judicial nominee, so that comes out to be zero.

The quick pace of this year comes on top of a very productive 112th Congress. Eighty-one judges were confirmed. In the last Congress, we confirmed more judges than any other Congress—going back 20 years to the 103rd Congress.

Despite this progress and our continued cooperation with the President and Senate Democrats, we continue to hear unfounded criticism.

For example, last week the White House spokesperson criticized the Senate for what he characterized as arbitrary and unique delays in getting nominees confirmed. In a previous post on its website, the White House complained about unprecedented delays in the Senate confirmation process.

While acknowledging the Senate had complaints, the White House said, ‘‘these nine judges waited 144 days for a floor vote, compared to President Bush’s nominees who waited an average of 34 days for a vote at this point in President Bush’s presidency.’’

As I stated, at the same point in 2005, none of President Bush’s nominees had been confirmed—not one.

The purported statistic of the “average of 34 days” is without foundation. It took until June for President Bush to reach 10 judicial confirmations. President Bush wouldn’t have another lower court nomination until October of that year.

But that delay in confirmations wasn’t because there weren’t nominees. By the beginning of April 2006, 21 judicial nominations had been submitted to the Senate.

President Bush’s first four confirmations came in a 71-6 vote. The first two of those nominees were nominated in September 2004 and confirmed about 6 months later.

The other two nominees waited much longer. Robert Conrad was first nominated April 28, 2003 by the Western District of North Carolina. He was confirmed a full 2 years later on April 28, 2005—not 34 days, as the White House implies.

His colleague, James C. Dever III, nominated for the Eastern District of North Carolina, waited even longer. He was first nominated in May 2002 and waited nearly 3 years before being confirmed on April 28, 2005.

So, this notion of unprecedented, unique and arbitrary delays simply ignores the facts and, in the process, distorts history.

In addition to the White House, we hear Senate Democrats grumbling about nominations and calling for changing the rules of the Senate. Of course, the majority would have to break the rules to change the rules.

Such intransigent comments utterly fail to recognize the work the Senate has already accomplished in approving judges.

The purported justification is the number of judges on the calendar—presently at 15. Where was their similar concern in April 2004, when the number of nominees on the Executive Calendar was nearly double what it is today?

A second prong of this debate concerns the vacancy rate in the Federal judiciary. Blaming judicial vacancies on the Senate confirmation process is unfounded and a distortion of the process. The vacancy rate is due to the failure in the White House to send nominations to the Senate.

Prematurely, 62 of the 87 vacancies—71 percent—have no nominee. For the 35 vacancies categorized as "judicial emergencies," only 9 have a nominee—74 percent have no nominee.

I would like to say a few words about today's nominee. I do have concerns about this nomination which have not been satisfied.

Unfortunately, I am unable to support the nomination, although I expect Judge Shwartz will be approved as a United States District Judge for the Third Circuit. I congratulate her on her confirmation and hope that she performs her duties in a skilled manner, demonstrating judicial temperament, with respect for the law and Constitution.

This nomination started out troubled. Not because of Republican opposition, but because of concerns expressed by her home State Democratic Senator.

Originally, Judge Shwartz's home State Senator questioned her intellectual fitness for the court stating she "did not adequately demonstrate the breadth of knowledge of constitutional law and pivotal Supreme Court decisions."

Concerns were also expressed that she "misapplied the application of strict scrutiny versus rational basis review" and "did not express substantive knowledge as to the scope of the rights in the Bill of Rights under the Constitution or jurisprudence on the constitutional limits of Executive Branch powers." According to press reports, she specifically misapplied the law after speaking about Citizens United.

These are pretty serious issues. So, Judge Shwartz was asked about them during her hearing, specifically the discussion on Citizens United. But she denied it happened, testifying instead that she did not discuss any specific cases, only general principles.

However, in follow-up written questions for the record, Judge Shwartz changed her story and said that she and her home State Senator had discussed two specific cases: Citizens United and Roe v. Wade.

I find this after-the-fact disclosure troubling. Not only was it inconsistent with her hearing testimony, but it prevented me and other Senators from following up regarding what discussions she apparently had regarding Citizens United and Roe v. Wade.

Because of the ambiguity surrounding these interviews and Judge Shwartz's inconsistent testimony, questions remain as to what understandings were reached or what assurances Judge Shwartz may have given to gain support from her home State Senators.

Unfortunately, her Committee hearing failed to remove the doubts that were initially raised. Again, these were raised by her home State Senator.

Furthermore, because of her lack of candor at her hearing, I was unable to have confidence in a nominee to a court that she is prepared to be a Circuit Judge. I share the doubts raised regarding her limited knowledge of constitutional law; misapplication of standards of review; and inadequate understanding of substantive areas of law.

Accordingly, I cannot support this nomination. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD her biographical information.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Patty Shwartz is nominated to be United States Circuit Judge for the Third Circuit. Judge Shwartz was born in 1958 in New York City, and she received her B.A. from Smith College in 1980 and a J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1986. Upon graduation, Judge Shwartz worked for a year as an associate of Pepper, Hamilton & Scheetz. In 1987, Judge Shwartz began a two-year clerkship with Judge Harold A. Ackerman of the U.S. District Court of the District of New Jersey. Immediately after her clerkship, she began a fourteen-year career as a criminal prosecutor with the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the District of New Jersey. During her time as an Assistant U.S. Attorney, she prosecuted individuals for violent crime, drug trafficking, and had several years, she was assigned to the Special Prosecutions Division, handling public corruption cases. A short time later, Judge Shwartz was promoted to Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division where she supervised dozens of line prosecutors. In February of 1999, she was promoted to Chief of the Criminal Division, until 2001. In 2001, she began a brief stint as Executive Assistant U.S. Attorney, supervising the Criminal, Civil, and Fraud Divisions. In 2002, she returned to the Chief of the Criminal Division, overseeing the expansion and reorganization of the division. According to her questionnaire, Judge Shwartz has tried more than fifteen criminal cases to verdict.

In 2003, Judge Shwartz was appointed to be U.S. Magistrate Judge for the District of New Jersey. As Magistrate Judge, she has managed all aspects of the pre-trial process in over 4,000 cases. She is responsible for convening scheduling conferences, resolving discovery disputes, conducting on nondispositive motions, holding settlement conferences, and presiding over final pretrial conferences. In May 2009, Judge Shwartz was appointed to be Chief Magistrate Judge. The American Bar Association’s Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary gave her a unanimous “Well Qualified” rating.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I yield the floor, Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 6 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I am pleased to rise in support of the confirmation of Judge Patty Shwartz to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, a nomination which has finally come to the floor, and the time has come to move this nomination. Judge Shwartz has my full support and urge my colleagues to do the same. I am happy we were able to work out the vote on this nominee without a cloture vote, which is incredibly important.

I want to refer to my distinguished colleague, the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, who mentioned a home State Senator—who happens to be me—and to clarify some issues.

I have always taken the role of advice and consent for judicial nominations very seriously, as I am sure we all do. Appointments to the Federal bench are lifetime appointments, and the circuit court is often the last stop before the Supreme Court. That makes that responsibility even greater. Very few Americans, if they appeal, get past the circuit court to Supreme Court consideration.

We know the process can be long and difficult; sometimes overly partisan on both sides based on legitimate concerns and personal beliefs. In the end we always look to confirm the best and most qualified individuals. We conduct a thorough review of the nominees, their understanding of the law, their intellect, their analytical thinking and reasoning, and we make our decisions—and I have made mine—about the nominee.

I had the opportunity on more than one occasion to discuss with the judge issues that I believe reflect the high standards to which a nominee should always be held. There is no understanding between this nominee and me as to how she would rule in any given set of circumstances. There was a suggestion about what the law is today in both those instances. I am sure the judge simply did not recall the specifics of that at the time of the hearing but I would be forthright and say: Yes, there were two cases. The simple discussion of what is a Supreme Court decision is, in my mind, not only inappropriate, but at a circuit court level is more than desirable.

In the totality of our discussions Judge Shwartz indicated to me the type of intellectual rigor, the knowledge that in fact guarantees to me that she deserves the lifetime appointment to which I expect the Senate will confirm her. The fact that I come to the floor today in full support of her confirmation speaks not only to her qualifications but to her character and to her judicial temperament and suitability to serve on the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

Aristotle said: "Character may be called the most effective means of persuasion."

We can say that, having spent time meeting with Judge Shwartz, I am absolutely persuaded that she is a person of character and meets the highest standards for any nominee.
I urge my colleagues to unanimously confirm this highly qualified woman who, I know, will serve honorably and serve well.

Judge Patty Shwartz is a proud New Jerseyan. She has been a magistrate judge on the District of New Jersey since 2003.

Originally from Paterson, she graduated from Rutgers as a Henry Rutgers Scholar with the highest honors.

After college, Judge Shwartz went to the University of Pennsylvania Law School, edited the law review, and was named Outstanding Woman Law Graduate.

She has been an associate in Philadelphia at Pepper, Hamilton & Schetzer, clerked for the Honorable Harold A. Ackerman of the District Court for the District of New Jersey, and, in 1989 joined the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the District of New Jersey.

She rose to the position of deputy chief of the criminal division and then to chief of the criminal division serving as the Executive Assistant United States Attorney.

She has handled over 4,000 civil and criminal cases, and, since 2009, she has been an adjunct professor at Fordham University School of Law.

She is on the advisory board for the Association of the Federal Bar of the State of New Jersey, the Board of Advisors for the Historical Society of the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey, and the Board of Directors of the Federal Magistrate Judges Association, where she represents the Third Circuit.

She is clearly highly qualified—a woman of distinction who deserves confirmation.

If experience, character, and temperament are the most persuasive weapons in a judicial nominee’s arsenal, then Judge Shwartz comes before this chamber very well-armed.

Let me say to my colleagues who may not have had the opportunity to look at closely at this nominee’s record as I have, in making my judgment I have had the benefit of invaluable advice and counsel from many members of the Federal bar whose opinions I sought. They are both Democrats and Republicans, and they affirmed what I subsequently discovered for myself in discussions with her: that there is not a single reason to vote no on this nomination.

I urge my colleagues to send a message that although the process can be long and fraught with conflicting opinions, in the end it bends toward the best and brightest, and Judge Patty Shwartz is proof of it.

She has strong bipartisan support not only from both the Senators from New Jersey but also our Governor Chris Christie. I urge my colleagues to join me in voting to confirm Judge Patty Shwartz to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

I yield the floor.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, it is my great honor to once again express my strong support for the Senate confirmation of Magistrate Judge Patty Shwartz to the United States Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

It has been a long road, but it’s great to finally reach this day. I began the process for Judge Shwartz to President Obama almost 2 years ago, and since her first nomination by the President 18 months ago I have had the privilege of shepherding her candidacy through the Senate.

During that time I have worked with colleagues on both sides of the aisle to ensure she has bipartisan support. And earlier this year, I personally communicated with a number of my Republicans colleagues to assure them of her qualifications.

Her confirmation is well-deserved, because putting Judge Patty Shwartz on the Federal bench will be a great service to our nation and our justice system. She brings 25 years of public service to the bench—years she spent as a teacher, an attorney, and a judge.

Judge Shwartz graduated from Rutgers University with the highest honors and received her law degree from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, where she was an editor of the Law Review and was named her class’s Outstanding Woman Law Graduate.

Since 2003, Judge Shwartz has served as a U.S. Magistrate Judge in the District of New Jersey, where she has handled more than 4,000 civil and criminal cases. And within the New Jersey legal community, she has earned a solid reputation for dispensing justice fairly and wisely.

She will make an excellent addition to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. The opportunity to nominate Federal judges is a sacred duty. I have felt lucky to recommend many eminently qualified, impressive, and accomplished individuals.

Yet rarely have I seen such an outpouring of support for a single judicial candidate as I have with Judge Shwartz.

John Lacey, past President of the Association of the New Jersey Federal Bar, said, “thoughtful, intelligent, and has an extraordinarily high level of common sense.”

Thomas Curtin, the chairman of the lawyers’ advisory committee for the U.S. District Court of New Jersey, said, “Every lawyer in the world will tell you that she’s extraordinarily qualified, a decent person, and an excellent judge.”

And seldom has someone had such a distinguished career working for—and earning the respect of—people on both sides of the aisle.

From 1989 to 2003, Judge Shwartz served in the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the District of New Jersey. In this role, she supervised hundreds of criminal cases, including cases concerning civil rights, violent crimes, drug trafficking, and fraud.

And in the U.S. Attorney’s Office, she served under three Republican U.S. Attorneys: current Supreme Court Justice Samuel Alito; former Secretary of Homeland Security under George W. Bush, Michael Chertoff; and New Jersey’s current Governor, Chris Christie.

Governor Christie has been especially outspoken in his praise of Judge Shwartz. He has said, “Judge Patty Shwartz has committed her entire professional life to public service, and New Jersey is the better for it.”

That is his statement. Now, if Governor Christie and I agree on something so adamantly, you know it’s right.

Judge Shwartz’s roots in New Jersey run deep. Like me, she is a native of Paterson, NJ, where she learned the value of hard work from her parents, who owned and operated a store for more than 50 years.

And as anyone who has met or worked with Judge Shwartz can attest, she inherited every ounce of her parents’ strong work ethic—and then some.

After years of hard work, today is a great and triumphant day. I look forward now to seeing Judge Patty Shwartz take her place on the Federal bench. I can say with certainty that our justice system—and the country—will be better for it.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there a sufficient second?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. HEITKAMP). Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Patty Shwartz, of New Jersey, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Third Circuit?

The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. LAUTENBERG) is necessarily absent.

Mr. CORNYN. The following Senator is necessarily absent: the Senator from Florida (Mr. RUBIO).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 64, nays 34, as follows:

S. 2482

The Los Angeles Times wrote a story recently that has been in the news this month, outlining the urgent need for comprehensive immigration reform. This bill would address one of the key issues that we have been discussing in the Senate—namely, how to improve the Department of Homeland Security’s ability to secure our southern border. As I mentioned earlier, the Department of Homeland Security has made significant progress in implementing key initiatives to strengthen border security, including increased deployment of technology and resources in high-risk areas.

The legislation would also provide funding for the construction of additional fencing and the deployment of additional Border Patrol agents to reinforce our physical barriers on the border. This is necessary to prevent illegal crossings and to deter those who would attempt to exploit vulnerabilities in our current system.

In addition, the bill would provide additional resources to enhance the Department of Homeland Security’s ability to share information across agencies and with state and local law enforcement partners. This would allow for a more coordinated and effective response to threats.

I believe that this bill represents a step forward in our efforts to secure our borders and protect our communities. I encourage my colleagues to support this important legislation and to work together to ensure that our borders are secure and our communities are protected.

I thank the Senator from Illinois for his leadership in this area and look forward to continuing the discussion on this important issue.
