I. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The Senate concurs with the purpose as stated in H. Rept. 113–424.

II. BACKGROUND OF LEGISLATION

In 2002, Congress enacted the Education Sciences Reform Act (ESRA) (Public Law 107–279), which also included the Educational Technical Assistance Act (ETAA) and the National Assessment of Educational Progress Authorization Act (NAEPAA), to improve Federal education research efforts, to strengthen the quality of technical assistance provided to States, and to carry out the National Assessment for Educational Progress (NAEP).

ESRA authorizes the Institute of Education Sciences (IES) as a semi-independent research entity in the U.S. Department of Education (the “Department”). IES contains four research centers, including the National Center for Education Research (NCER), the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), the National Center for Education Evaluation and Regional Assistance (NCEE), and the National Center for Special Education Research (NCSER). NCER conducts large scale research on education issues. NCES collects and publishes educational statistics. NCEE supports research efforts and activities and conducts large scale evaluations of Federal education programs. Finally, NCSER conducts research on issues related to students with disabilities.

ETAA authorizes comprehensive centers within the Department to provide technical assistance to States and school districts related to implementation of Federal education laws and programs. ETAA also authorizes the Statewide Longitudinal Data Systems program to provide funding to States to improve their State education data systems, including appropriate privacy protections for student data within such systems.

NAEPAA authorizes policies and funding for the implementation of the NAEP and the National Assessment Governing Board (NAGB).

III. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY AND COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

Committee Consideration

On September 17, 2014, the committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions met in Executive Session to consider the Strengthening Education through Research Act of 2014 (SETRA). Senators Harkin and Alexander offered an amendment as a complete substitute, and it was agreed to unanimously by all members present.

The Senate substitute to SETRA received support letters from the Knowledge Alliance; the Council of Chief State School Officers; Results for America; Alliance for Excellent Education; Education Northwest; Northwest Evaluation Association; SEDL; WestEd; Education Trust; the Data Quality Campaign; the Workforce Data Quality Campaign; the National Center for Learning Disabilities; Council for Exceptional Children; the Learning and Education Academic Research Network; Code.org; Collaborative for Academic, Social and Emotional Learning; Computing in the Core; the Higher Education Consortium for Special Education; RMC; CTAC; FHI360; SRI International; National Council of State Directors of Adult Education; Education Development Center; McREL; Measured Progress; and AdvanceED.
IV. EXPLANATION OF LEGISLATION AND COMMITTEE VIEWS

OVERVIEW

The Strengthening Education through Research Act (SETRA) would amend and reauthorize the Education Sciences Reform Act of 2002 for fiscal years 2015 through 2020. This legislation makes a number of improvements to the IES, a semi-independent institute within the Department of Education (the “Department”) that conducts and oversees education research, the Statewide Longitudinal Data Systems program, the NAEP and the NAGB. The legislation:

- Requires IES to identify research topics focused on ensuring that all students have the ability to obtain a high-quality education, improving access to and the quality of early childhood education, strengthening elementary and secondary schools, and increasing access to and completion of postsecondary education.
- Makes education research more relevant and useful at the State and local levels.
- Directs the Department’s comprehensive centers, which provide technical assistance to States on Federal education laws and programs, to prioritize serving the needs of school districts and schools with higher numbers of low-income students and schools identified for improvement.
- Requires collaboration between the comprehensive centers and entities responsible for providing applied research, the regional educational laboratories, to States and school districts and clearly delineates the duties of each entity to ensure these efforts are streamlined, more aligned, and responsive to the needs of States and school districts.
- Allows States and school districts to access useful, relevant information more quickly to help raise student achievement levels in the classroom.
- Authorizes increases in the Federal investment in research and technical assistance in a fiscally responsible way, including providing a substantial increase in the authorization of funding for special education research.
- Improves accountability and protects the taxpayers’ research investment by requiring regular evaluations of research and education programs by independent entities.
- Strengthens privacy provisions to ensure that personally identifiable information collected by IES is secure and protected.
- Designates IES as the primary evaluation arm of the Department to ensure an independent source conducts Federal education program evaluations.
- Strengthens NAEP, commonly called the Nation’s Report card, which measures and reports student performance across the country, largely in reading and math, every two years.

REGIONAL EDUCATIONAL LABORATORIES AND COMPREHENSIVE CENTERS

The Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions (hereinafter “The committee”) agrees with the intent of H.R. 4366 as passed by the House of Representatives to foster more collaboration between the regional educational laboratories (RELs) located in IES and the comprehensive centers located in the Office of Elementary and Secondary Education at the Department. The committee agrees with the House of Representatives language to clearly delineate and streamline the duties of each entity to ensure no overlap or duplication of activities. However, the committee struck the provisions in Section 206 of H.R. 4366 related to the reforms of the regional advisory committees in order to meet the intent for more collaboration. The committee heard from community stakeholders that collaboration could be developed between the RELs and comprehensive centers without requiring them all to report to regional advisory committees. Therefore, the Senate substitute to H.R. 4366 inserts provisions to require stronger collaboration between the RELs and comprehensive centers, including by requiring members of each entity’s advisory boards to sit on the other entity’s advisory boards. The bill also enables each REL and comprehensive center to have its own advisory board if they so choose, but ensures that information about the work of each entity is broadly shared with other entities.

Additionally, the committee is concerned with the House of Representatives language that would cap the number of RELs and comprehensive centers authorized under law. Instead of capping the number of each entity, the committee agreed to authorize 10 RELs and 17 comprehensive centers. This is a change (and overall reduction) from current law which authorizes 10 RELs and no less than 20 comprehensive centers. In addition, the reauthorization gives the IES Evaluation and Regional Assistance Commissioner (the Evaluation Commissioner) authority to fund a lower number of RELs, or reorganize them, in consultation with the REL advisory boards. The Evaluation Commissioner will be able to take such an action if he or she determines that an insufficient number of RELs are meeting the needs of their regions, an insufficient number are meeting their performance indicators, or an insufficient number of eligible applicants have the capacity to meet those indicators. The committee intends that the Evaluation Commissioner take this step only if the conditions set forth in the statute relating to reducing or reorganizing the RELs are met. The committee believes that the existing framework—a network of 10 RELs serving 10 distinct regions—should not be disrupted unless there are persistent problems or a clear shortage of eligible applicants that have the ability to operate a REL effectively.

Similarly, the reauthorization gives the Secretary of Education (Secretary) authority to fund a lower number of comprehensive centers beyond the overall reduction of the centers in the bill, or reorganize them, in consultation with the comprehensive center advisory boards. The Secretary will be able to take such an action only if he or she determines that an insufficient number of comprehensive centers are meeting the needs of their regions, an insufficient number are meeting their performance indicators, or an insufficient number of eligible applicants have the capacity to meet those indicators. The committee intends that the Secretary take this step only if the conditions set forth in the statute relating to reducing or reorganizing the centers are met. The committee believes that 17 comprehensive centers should not be disrupted unless there are persistent problems or a clear shortage of eligible applicants that have the ability to operate a comprehensive center effectively.
PROMOTING INDEPENDENCE AT IES AND THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR EDUCATION STATISTICS

The House Committee on Education and the Workforce noted that a goal of H.R. 4366 is to ensure that the IES and the research centers within IES can maintain their independence from politics and bias. The committee shares this goal and agrees with provisions in H.R. 4366 which designate IES as the primary entity responsible for conducting research on, and evaluations of, Federal education programs administered by the Department. This will help ensure objectivity and quality in evaluating the taxpayer investments in Federal programs.

The committee also chose to preserve much of what the House had suggested in determining the appointment of the heads of the research centers, including language that would make the appointment of the Commissioner of the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) a decision made by the IES Director rather than the President. This will help align the governance of NCES with all the other IES research centers to create a coherent governance structure at IES overall, as well as protect the NCES Commissioner position from political influence. It would also mirror the governance structure of two similar statistical agencies—the National Center for Health Statistics and the National Center for Science and Engineering Statistics—which do not have Presidential appointed directors. However, given the vital role of the NCES and its historical importance within the Department as the main entity charged with gathering and producing education statistics, the committee feels that NCES should maintain a degree of autonomy different from that of the other research centers within IES. To that end, the committee changed a provision in H.R. 4366 from requiring the IES Director’s approval of the NCES Commissioner’s plan for NCES activities to a provision that requires the NCES Commissioner to consult with the IES Director in the formulation of the plan. Rather than requiring the NCES Commissioner to have his or her Statistics Center plan approved by the IES Director, this change provides the NCES Commissioner with the needed flexibility and independence to marshal the resources and energies of the center in the direction and manner he or she sees fit.

PRIORITIZING SERVICES FOR LOW-INCOME STUDENTS

The committee agrees with the provisions of H.R. 4366, as passed by the House of Representatives, to make education research more timely and relevant to States and school districts. The research and technical assistance provided by entities funded under this Act is critical to ongoing education improvement efforts around the Nation. Given the historical role of the Federal Government in improving education programs for low-income students, the committee added a provision in section 203 to ensure that comprehensive center grantees prioritize and serve schools identified for improvement and schools and school districts with a high percentage or number of low-income students. This prioritization will help to ensure that the schools and school districts most in need of the technical assistance provided by comprehensive centers receive it.
PROVIDING SERVICES TO THE BUREAU OF INDIAN EDUCATION

American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian students face unique educational obstacles and often have lower high school graduation rates and other educational outcomes than their peers. The committee believes a concerted effort must be made to improve educational services for American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian students. As such, the committee inserted a provision in section 203 to enable the Secretary to make arrangements as necessary, within the requirements of the overall structure of the comprehensive centers, to ensure that the Bureau of Indian Education and States or school districts serving large numbers of American Indian, Alaska Native, or Native Hawaiian students have access to the services of comprehensive centers.

PROTECTING STUDENT AND INDIVIDUAL PRIVACY

The committee agrees with provisions of H.R. 4366, as passed by the House of Representatives, that protect individual student data and ensure that individually identifiable data should only be available to those that have a need to use the data. SETRA provides for extensive protection of individually identifiable information, consistent with current privacy laws, particularly with regard to data collections at NCES. The bill reauthorizes stringent penalties for any person who discloses or publishes data for other than statistical purposes or violates the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) and other relevant Federal privacy laws. H.R. 4366 continues prohibitions around a national data base of individually identifiable information. It also aligns prohibition language with similar language in the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, denying Federal officials the ability to mandate, direct, or control State and local curriculum, programs of instruction, specific academic achievement or content standards or assessments, or allocation of State or local resources. Last, the bill makes changes to cooperative education statistics partnerships established under the bill, which assist States in improving data quality standards by ensuring they are voluntary, and will continue to not collect any student data.

CLARIFYING POLICIES RELATED TO THE NATIONAL ASSESSMENT OF EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS AND THE NATIONAL ASSESSMENT GOVERNING BOARD

As one of its duties, NAGB is responsible for overseeing and setting policy for NAEP. NAEP has long been regarded as a trusted, non-biased source on how well the Nation’s schools are educating students and raising performance levels. The committee agrees with provisions in H.R. 4366 that make some small changes related to NAEP. The bill clarifies NAGB’s role in selecting the subjects and setting the schedule for NAEP, in line with current law requirements, as well as providing input on annual budget requests for NAEP. The committee also agrees with provisions that clarify NAGB is responsible for the initial release of the NAEP reports, and NCES is responsible for the content of initial and subsequent NAEP reports to ensure such reports are valid and reliable. The committee intends the changes to the NAEP sections of H.R. 4366 to align the legislation to match 25 years of practice, and provide accuracy and clarity around the roles of NCES and NAGB with regards to NAEP and NAEP reports.

NEW ADDITIONS

The committee made several new additions to H.R. 4366 to address areas of importance to the committee. For example, the committee included language making clear that IES peer reviewers of special education research must have an understanding of special education. Furthermore, the committee included a provision to ensure that research around early education focuses on improving access to early childhood education in addition to improving quality. The committee also added provisions to ensure Federal education research also focuses on adult education and literacy, where appropriate.

The committee made additional changes to the National Center for Education Research (NCER) in addition to what was included in the House-passed legislation. First, the committee included language to allow for the Center to perform research on the acquisition of skills and competencies that will allow students to think critically, solve complex problems, and communicate effectively. This new authority was included in recognition of the importance of higher-order learning in the development of well-rounded students. Second, the committee made changes to allow the NCER Commissioner to disaggregate data based on other student characteristics as determined by the Commissioner in addition to the required categories of age, race, gender, disability, English learner status, and socio-economic background. Evidence suggests that certain students may be at risk for disproportionate rates of discipline in school, and providing this authority to the Commissioner would allow him or her to disaggregate data further, as warranted by the evidence, so long as any reported information does not reveal individually identifiable information.

MODERNIZING STATEWIDE LONGITUDINAL DATA SYSTEMS

The committee concurs with the views expressed by the House Committee on Education and the Workforce in H. Rept. 113–424 as it relates to modernizing the Statewide Longitudinal Data Systems program. The committee specifically notes that SETRA allows grantees to align statewide longitudinal data systems from early education through postsecondary education and the workforce, so long as such alignment is consistent with privacy protections within the bill. In promoting alignment between early learning and K–12 education through this program, the committee urges the Department to seek applications from States that work to connect early education data to K–12 systems from multiple sources, such as early education data held by State educational agencies and, where applicable, early education data as described in the Head Start Act, 42 U.S.C. 9837b(1)(D)(i)(IV). In addition, the committee urges the Department to work closely with grantees to ensure the privacy of personally identifiable data included in these systems, including helping them meet the requirements of the FERPA and other relevant Federal privacy laws.
DENIAL AUTHORITY

H.R. 4366 includes a provision to ensure NCES is authorized to deny access to data if it believes the data is unnecessary for, or unrelated to, the proposed research design or intent, or if providing access to the information would introduce a risk of privacy violation. The committee added additional clarifying language to ensure that the denial authority granted to NCES only apply to non-public use data sets.

V. COST ESTIMATE

Pending response from CBO.
