

114TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. RES. 150

Expressing the sense of the Senate about the importance of effective civic and government education programs in schools in the United States.

---

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

APRIL 23, 2015

Mr. GRASSLEY (for himself and Mr. CARDIN) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to

---

RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of the Senate about the importance of effective civic and government education programs in schools in the United States.

Whereas civic and government education is essential to the preservation and improvement of the constitutional government of the United States;

Whereas civic and government education programs foster understanding of the history and principles of the constitutional government of the United States, including principles that are embodied in certain fundamental documents and speeches, such as the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, the Bill of Rights, the Federalist Papers, the Gettysburg Address, and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech;

Whereas research shows that too few people in the United States understand basic principles of the constitutional government of the United States, such as the natural rights set forth in the Declaration of Independence, the existence and functions of the 3 branches of the Federal Government, checks and balances, and other concepts fundamental to informed citizenship;

Whereas, since the founding of the United States, schools in the United States have had a strong civic mission to prepare students to be informed, rational, humane, and involved citizens who are committed to the values and principles of the constitutional government of the United States;

Whereas a free society relies on the knowledge, skills, and virtue of the citizens of the society, particularly the individuals elected to public office to represent the citizens;

Whereas, while many institutions help to develop the knowledge and skills and shape the civic character of people in the United States, schools in the United States, including elementary schools, bear a special and historic responsibility for the development of civic competence and civic responsibility of students;

Whereas student learning is enhanced by well-designed classroom civic and government education programs that—

(1) incorporate instruction in government, history, law, and democracy;

(2) promote discussion of current events and controversial issues;

(3) link community service and the formal curriculum; and

(4) encourage students to participate in simulations of democratic processes; and

Whereas research shows that the knowledge and expertise of teachers are among the most important factors in increasing student achievement: Now, therefore, be it

1       Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that—

2               (1) civic and government education is essential
3       to the well-being of the constitutional government of
4       the United States;

5               (2) comprehensive and formal instruction in
6       civic and government education would provide stu-
7       dents a basis for understanding the rights and re-
8       sponsibilities of citizens in the constitutional govern-
9       ment of the United States;

10              (3) elementary and secondary schools in the 11       United States are encouraged to offer courses on the 12       history and theories of the constitutional government
13       of the United States, using programs and curricula
14       with a demonstrated effectiveness in fostering civic
15       competence, civic responsibility, and a reasoned com-
16       mitment to the fundamental values and principles
17       underlying the constitutional government of the 18       United States; and

19              (4) all teachers of civics and government are 20       well served by having access to adequate opportuni-
21       ties to enrich teaching through professional develop-
22       ment programs that enhance the capacity of teach-

- 1 ers to provide effective civic and government edu-
- 2 cation in the classroom.

