S. RES. 426

Expressing the sense of the Senate that the United States should support and protect the right of women working in developing countries to safe workplaces, free from gender-based violence, reprisals, and intimidation.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

APRIL 14, 2016

Mrs. MURRAY (for herself, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. MARKEY, and Mr. BROWN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations

RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of the Senate that the United States should support and protect the right of women working in developing countries to safe workplaces, free from gender-based violence, reprisals, and intimidation.

Whereas women in developing countries who join the industrial workforce suffer from, or become increasingly vulnerable to, economic violence, including forced overtime, wage theft, abusive short-term contracts, discrimination, sexual harassment, and violence at work;

Whereas women typically make up the majority of the workforce in industries in which the rights of workers have been restricted, including—

- (1) export manufacturing (including the global apparel industry); and

- (2) other export sectors (including the cut flowers and fresh produce industries);

Whereas sexual violence is often used by a male manager as a means of intimidation or punishment when a female worker makes a mistake, fails to meet a production target, asks for leave, or arrives late to work;

Whereas women are particularly vulnerable to violence and intimidation at work due to—

- (1) the frequently disproportionate number of male managers;
- (2) the lack of policing and reporting of sexual harassment; and
- (3) common cultural norms that assert male dominance and place disproportionate pressure on women to maintain their income and support their children and elders;

Whereas a survey of female garment industry workers in Bangladesh revealed that—

- (1) nearly $\frac{1}{3}$ of respondents had been a recipient of an unwelcome sexual overture, inappropriate touching, or a threat of being forced to undress; and
- (2) nearly $\frac{1}{2}$ of respondents had been beaten or struck in the face by a supervisor;

Whereas some of the most deadly accidents in industrial history have occurred in export processing industries in which female workers predominate, including—

- (1) the fire at Ali Enterprises in Pakistan in 2012, the deadliest apparel factory fire in history, in which the lives of 259 workers were lost; and
- (2) the collapse of the Rana Plaza building in 2013, in which the lives of 1,134 Bangladeshi workers were lost and 2,500 more workers were injured, the majority of whom were women;

Whereas these and other industrial accidents have occurred in facilities that were monitored and certified as safe and decent workplaces by private, voluntary corporate social responsibility initiatives invested in by global brands from the United States and Europe;

Whereas female workers are often knowingly exposed to dangerous and life-threatening machinery or toxic substances that are no longer used in developed nations due to their reproductive or general health effects, without even simple safety measures like gloves or face masks; and

Whereas research shows that—

- (1) workers who are well-informed about health and safety facilitate safer workplaces; and
- (2) legal protections that allow elected labor union representatives of workers to raise safety and other concerns without fear of reprisals are essential for worker safety: Now, therefore, be it

1 Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that the
2 United States should—

3 (1) support policies that create safe and decent
4 jobs in developing countries, which are critical to en-
5 suring peaceful and sustainable economic growth
6 and development in a globalized world;

7 (2) support policies that reduce gender-based
8 violence, and other forms of discrimination, at work,
9 and that improve the ability of women workers to

1 speak out in defense of their rights without fear of
2 reprisals;

3 (3) encourage the development of an Interna-
4 tional Labour Conference Convention to address
5 gender-based violence at work;

6 (4) promote labor rights in trade agreements
7 and enforce the right of women and other workers
8 to join a labor union to defend their other rights and 9 safety;

10 (5) use diplomatic means and international
11 aid—

12 (A) to end violence against women in the 13 workplace; and

14 (B) to empower women and other workers
15 to participate fully in their economies and to 16 protect their safety; and

17 (6) encourage United States companies with 18 international supply chains, and Federal agencies in-
19 volved in procurement, to increase transparency and 20 accountability in order to ensure that products are 21 produced in workplaces that—

22 (A) work aggressively to end gender-based 23 workplace violence; and

24 (B) respect the rights of women workers.
