A BILL

To modify the prohibition on United States assistance and financing for certain exports to Cuba under the Trade Sanctions Reform and Export Enhancement Act of 2000, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

1 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

2 This Act may be cited as the “Cuba Agricultural Ex-
3 ports Act”.

4 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

5 Congress finds the following:

6 (1) The United States has a long history of 7 providing safe and reliable exports. Close proximity
8 to Cuba lends itself to low transportation costs for 9 United States goods exported to Cuba. The United 10 States is geographically poised to be a significant 11 trading partner in agricultural commodities.

12 (2) Cuba imports approximately 80 percent of 13 its food, with global agricultural exports to Cuba
14 doubling over the past decade to $1,900,000,000.

15 (3) In 2005, the United States Department of 16 the Treasury published a final rule narrowing the 17 definition of “cash in advance” for trading with 18 Cuba, requiring that cash payments must be made
19 before United States products leave United States
20 ports, rather than the more customary payment
21 upon delivery. United States firms are precluded
22 from offering credit to ALIMPORT, a state-owned
23 and state-controlled entity that makes all decisions
24 regarding United States exports to the Cuban mar-
25 ket, resulting in declining United States agricultural 26 exports to Cuba. Notably, rice exports fell from a

1 value of $64,000,000 in 2004 to essentially $0 in 2 2009 and subsequent years.

3 (4) Recent action by the Obama administration
4 reversed that change to the definition of cash in ad-
5 vance, but United States agricultural exporters are 6 still not permitted to extend credit to Cuban buyers,
7 a key disadvantage relative to other exporting coun-
8 tries.

9 (5) In addition, there is no opportunity for 10 United States agricultural businesses to trade di-
11 rectly with the Cuban people and there is no Cuban
12 market; United States businesses have only one
13 venue to trade with Cuba and that is through 14 ALIMPORT, the state-owned and state-controlled
15 entity described in paragraph (3).

16 (6) Despite these restrictions, the United States
17 has been the largest exporter of agricultural goods
18 to Cuba over the last decade. However, the United 19 States slipped to being the second leading exporter
20 of agricultural goods to Cuba in 2013 and the third
21 leading exporter of agricultural goods to Cuba in 22 2014.

23 (7) While trade opportunities exist, Cuba re-
24 mains an undemocratic autocracy that oppresses its 25 own people and restricts freedom.

1 (8) With these cautionary factors in mind, it is 2 important to provide United States farmers and 3 ranchers additional opportunities to benefit from 4 trade with Cuba.

6 STATES ASSISTANCE AND FINANCING FOR 7 CERTAIN EXPORTS TO CUBA UNDER THE

9 HANCEMENT ACT OF 2000.

10 Section 908 of the Trade Sanctions Reform and Ex-
11 port Enhancement Act of 2000 (22 U.S.C. 7207) is 12 amended as follows:

13 (1) In the section heading, by striking “AND

4 funds to promote trade with Cuba by Fed-
5 eral commodity promotion programs estab-

7 motion law, as defined by section 501(a) of 8 the Federal Agriculture Improvement and 9 Reform Act of 1996 (7 U.S.C. 7401(a)).

16 termine that—

17 (1) the agricultural business is not controlled by 18 the Government of Cuba, including the Revolu-
19 tionary Armed Forces of Cuba, the Ministry of the 20 Interior of Cuba, or any subdivision of either such 21 governmental entity; and

22 (2) the agricultural business does not traffic in 23 the property of persons subject to the jurisdiction of 24 the United States that was confiscated by the Cuban
25 Government on or after January 1, 1959.

1 (b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

7 U.S.C. 1626)).

8 (2) CONFISCATED, CUBAN GOVERNMENT, PROP-
9 erty, AND TRAFFIC.—The terms “confiscated”,
10 “Cuban Government”, “property”, and “traffic”
11 have the meanings given such terms in section 4 of 12 the Cuban Liberty and Democratic Solidarity
13 (LIBERTAD) Act of 1996 (22 U.S.C. 6023).

14 (3) INVESTMENT.—The term “investment”,
15 with respect to the development of an agricultural 16 business in Cuba, means—

18 chase of a share of ownership, including an eq-
19 uity interest, in the development of the agricul-
