The Senate met at 3 p.m., on the expiration of the recess, and was called to order by the Honorable Roy Blunt, a Senator from the State of Missouri.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Gracious God, let Your glory be over all the Earth. Thank You for Your faithfulness that endures forever.

Today, give our lawmakers steadfast hearts that will honor You. Provide them with wisdom to strive to do Your will. May their debates and discussions not degenerate into incivility. Lord, lead them throughout life’s changing scene, strengthening them for every challenge. Remind them of the importance of reverential awe, which is the beginning of wisdom.

Grant us all wisdom and courage for the living of these days.

We pray in Your Holy Name. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore, The Democratic leader is recognized.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, on Friday, Senators Flake, Collins, and Murkowski, joined by Democratic Senators Coons, Klobuchar, and others, made the only fair move to demand that the FBI investigate the credible allegations of sexual misconduct by Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh. It was the right thing to do. It was fair to both Dr. Blasey Ford and to Judge Kavanaugh.

For too long Republicans have rushed this process forward and likely would have rushed to a final vote if not for the prudent and bipartisan effort of those Senators to demand a full FBI investigation.

What is important now is for the FBI investigation to be serious, impartial, and thorough, to ferret out the facts and do so quickly. That means interviewing all—all—of the relevant witnesses and accepting corroborating accounts when they come forward. It also means following up on any leads that emerge from the process of the investigation.

The FBI has ample resources to do this within the 1-week period requested by the members of the Judiciary Committee. No one is asking that it take longer than a week, but everyone is asking that it be done thoroughly and completely within that week.

There is concern that the White House has placed severe constraints on the investigation. Until today, the President tried to dodge that responsibility, with the White House even saying the Senate is somehow responsible for the scope of the investigation. Let me be clear. The Senate has no control over the scope of an FBI investigation of this sort—only the White House.

● This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.
A few hours ago, I was glad to hear President Trump say he would like to see Dr. Ford and Judge Kavanaugh interviewed by the FBI as part of this investigation and that the FBI should be able to interview anyone—anyone—appropriate. We have to know that the recent statements reflect what the White House has officially told the FBI.

Democratic Senators, led by Ranking Member FEINSTEIN, have asked the White House what parameters it is giving the FBI to interview. There are rumors that the majority staff of the Judiciary Committee were drawing up limited interview lists for the FBI and otherwise circumscribing the investigation. Partisan staffers on the Judiciary Committee should not exercise any constraints over this investigation.

Democratic staffers asked the Republican majority staff to get on the phone with Counsel McGahn to discuss what should be on these interview lists, and they were told: Forget it. It is the same partisan staff who has blocked documents, who has operated in a purely partisan way, and who couldn’t come up with an agreement when these things had always been done in a bipartisan way. To tell the partisan Senate staff on the Republican side dictate the terms of this investigation would be wrong.

Ultimately, President Trump and Counsel McGahn know the buck stops with them. It is only they who can instruct the FBI. Now that the President has said he wants a full investigation, that he wants both Dr. Ford and Judge Kavanaugh to be interviewed, we assume that will happen, but we want to make sure Mr. McGahn tells the FBI just that.

The Senate and the American people deserve to know what is the scope of the investigation because this investigation must be done in a manner that allows the public to have confidence in its findings. Whether you are for or against Judge Kavanaugh going to the Supreme Court, it will only benefit the country if the investigation is regarded as fair, clear, and not constrained, particularly by partisan means. For that reason, we the public, will be available to brief the Senate on the results of the investigation before a final floor vote.

Democrats are not interested in delay for the sake of delay. This can all be concluded quickly, but it must be done right.

We are a society based on the rule of law. It is therefore crucial that the American people have faith in the judiciary, especially the Supreme Court. Our job as Senators is to decide if someone has the intelligence, the temperament, the independence, and the credibility to earn the title of Justice of a lifetime. Character matters. Character matters deeply.

Anyone who watched the Judiciary Committee hearing on Thursday should have serious, if not disqualifying, doubts about Judge Kavanaugh’s credibility and independence—qualities we should expect in any Supreme Court Justice.

First, let me address the nominee’s independence. After Dr. Blasey Ford’s courageous, polite, detailed, and credible testimony to the committee, Judge Kavanaugh embarked on a partisan screed, angrily implicating sitting U.S. Senators in a conspiratorial plot to destroy his nomination. He even had the temerity to label the recent allegations a part of some “revenge of the Clintons,” an absurd and shopworn boogeyman of partisan Republicans from the Gingrich era on forward. That was from Judge Kavanaugh’s prepared opening statements.

When questioned, Judge Kavanaugh impugned the motives of sitting Senators, rudely interrupting and dismissing questions in a way I have never seen tolerated from a witness. Judge Kavanaugh asked a Democratic Member of the Judiciary Committee in 2004 and 2006, I thought that Judge Kavanaugh was too partisan to be on the bench—a lifetime appointment to the most important court in the land.

The harsh fact is that we have mounting evidence that Judge Kavanaugh is just not credible. He has dissembled about the Bush administration’s policies on torture, the nomination of controversial judges, grand jury proceedings, and the theft of Democratic emails. Thursday’s hearing provided fresh examples of Judge Kavanaugh’s difficult relationship with the truth. Judge Kavanaugh gave answers about his yearbook page, suppressed drinking games, and high school behavior that simply defy credibility. Judge Kavanaugh said he “never” drank much that he couldn’t come up with an agreement—character that does not track with multiple descriptions made by many high school and college classmates.

The 64,000 dollar question is this: Is Judge Kavanaugh credible? Will Judge Kavanaugh say anything, deny anything, mislead about anything to secure confirmation to the Supreme Court? Does he have the integrity, the independence, the credibility to do the job? Does Judge Kavanaugh deserve the promotion of a lifetime, for a lifetime? These very serious questions about Judge Kavanaugh’s state of mind and who he is today, not who he was in 1982, should weigh on the conscience of every Senator.

In my experience with Judge Kavanaugh, in 2004, in 2006, and again throughout this process, I am left with the impression that Judge Kavanaugh would dissemble, misrepresent, even prevaricate—even prevaricate—about everything from the momentous to the mundane—whatever it takes to cast his nomination in the most favorable light. Faced now with the gravest of allegations and the sincere testimony by a very courageous woman, I believe the Senate should consider the issue of credibility to be front and center in deciding whether Judge Kavanaugh deserves a seat on the bench—a lifetime appointment to the most important court in the land.

I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the confirmation process for Judge Brett Kavanaugh, one of the most qualified and most impressive Supreme Court nominees in our Nation’s history, is moving forward.

On Friday, the Judiciary Committee reported this nomination favorably.

NOMINATION OF BRETT KAVANAUGH

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, the confirmation process for Judge Brett Kavanaugh, one of the most qualified and most impressive Supreme Court nominees in our Nation’s history, is moving forward.
Then, here on the floor, we officially moved to take up the nomination. Every Republican member of the committee agreed that Judge Kavanaugh should be reported out with a favorable recommendation, and every Democrat voted in opposition—in some cases, before anyone or anyone had even been nominated.

That last part shouldn’t really surprise anyone. Democrats have made no real attempt to disguise that this was a pure partisan calculation for them from the beginning.

Several of them had announced their opposition to Judge Kavanaugh’s nomination long before his original hearings even began, before they had questioned him on his judicial record they deem so problematic and, in some cases, more than 2 months before Dr. Ford’s allegations of misconduct were made public.

The Democrats didn’t mince any words. The way one Democratic member of the Judiciary Committee put it: Supported by the Democratic lawyers, and listen to this—“complicit in the evil.” That is a Democratic member of the Judiciary Committee.

Another Democrat on the committee, before Judge Kavanaugh was even named, just asked, about apocalyptic terms the consequences of whomever the President might nominate. Here was the quote: “We are looking at the destruction of the Constitution of the United States as far as I can tell.”

And here was the Democratic leader, just hours after Judge Kavanaugh was nominated: “I will oppose him with everything I’ve got.” Well, they have certainly done just that. They have done just that.

The ranking Democrat on the committee first heard from Dr. Ford on July 30. Did our colleague alert the chairman so the committee could do due diligence in a confidential way, consistent with Dr. Ford’s wishes? No, she did not. And that is precisely the issue with Judge Kavanaugh during her private meeting with him on August 20? She didn’t do that, either. As best we can tell, the Democrats chose to keep this allegation secret, rather than investigating in a bipartisan and timely way; in fact, they held it in reserve. Meanwhile, the senior Senator from California, or her office, were already in communication with Dr. Ford. In fact, her office had already recommended—recommended—until they were told to retain a particular Washington, DC, law firm.

The firm in question is not exactly foreign to Democratic politics. Two of its founding partners, including one of the attorneys who personally appeared at the hearing to represent Dr. Ford, had until recently been scheduled to hold a fundraiser for one of our Senate Democratic colleagues tonight. Oh, and by the way, the firm had also represented in another matter the person who made the most salacious and disgusting accusations against Judge Kavanaugh as a high school student.

This is the firm the Judiciary Committee Democrats recommended to Dr. Ford. Not long thereafter, of course, Dr. Ford’s letter to the senior Senator from California wound up in the hands of the press. The same letter in which she stated her confidentiality was leaked. By whom? As best I can tell, nobody had possession of this letter, except for Dr. Ford’s Democratic Congressional woman, the Democratic side of the Judiciary Committee, and presumably the former Podesta lawyers they recommended to Dr. Ford. And somehow—someday—ended up in the press. Dr. Ford’s plea for privacy was brushed aside. A predictable media circus was launched.

Of course, the questionable and concerning handling of this matter didn’t stop there. In her testimony, Dr. Ford seemed surprised that Chairman Grassley had offered her legal team a number of more discrete and less burdensome ways to share her story if she preferred and offered to fly investigators out to California, or anywhere else, for a private interview at a time and a place of Dr. Ford’s choosing. But, apparently, neither our Democratic colleagues nor the lawyers they recommended felt it was necessary to make their options clear to Dr. Ford.

She told the committee: “I wasn’t clear on what the offer was. . . . [I would have] been happy to speak with you on vacation in California.” “It wasn’t clear to me that was the case.”

So let’s take stock of all of this. The ranking member withheld serious allegations from committee colleagues, precluding any chance that they would be handled with sensitivity and discretion. Meanwhile, her staff made recommendations that the accuser retain specific, politically connected counsel. Then, her confidential account reached the media faster than it reached either the chairman of the committee or the FBI, which our colleagues have been insisting must now look into it. Finally, we had reason to believe that Dr. Ford was not even apprised of the chairman’s offers to collect her testimony in ways that might have been less likely to create a media circus and less burdensome on her. It is almost as if Dr. Ford didn’t want a Washington, DC-based media circus, but others with whom she was in contact and on whom she was relying wanted exactly that.

So we have learned that if you confide in Senate Democrats on highly sensitive personal matters, no request for confidentiality will keep you from becoming a household name. And even if you are a nominee whose judicial philosophy Senate Democrats deem to be objectionable, no centuries-old standard of presumed innocence will protect your name, your family, or your reputation from irreparable damage.

Now, fortunately, Chairman Grassley has taken action to clean up this mess.

Last Thursday, he supervised a professional and respectful hearing. He retained an experienced sex crimes prosecutor to methodically collect the details of Dr. Ford’s recollections. This is a professional who is recognized as an “Outstanding Arizona Sexual Assault Prosecution.”

Similarly, former Democratic Governor Janet Napolitano—a former Cabinet Secretary of President Obama’s and herself a member of Anita Hill’s legal team back in 1991—has taken action to clean up this mess.

Does anybody believe that? Do these actions suggest this has ever been about finding the truth? Does anybody believe that? Do these actions suggest this has ever been... about giving Judge Kavanaugh a fair hearing?

This institution has seen before episodes somewhat like what we are now seeing from some of our colleagues across the aisle. Back during the McCarthy era, in 1950—a character assassination and uncorroborated allegations were being utilized in a very different debate. That is when a distinguished Senator from Maine named Margaret Chase Smith—an icon from the great State of our colleague Senator Collins—went to the Senate floor to say enough was enough. She gave a speech that guaranteed she would be in the history of the Senate. She titled it “Declaration of Conscience.” Here is what she said:

I do not like the way in which the Senate has been made a rendezvous for vilification, for selfish political gain at the sacrifice of individual reputations and national unity.

Margaret Chase Smith went on:

Whether it be a criminal prosecution in court or character assassination in the Senate, there is little practical distinction when the life of a person has been ruined.

We should listen to these words. They speak as loudly today as they did 68 years ago.

In my judgment, the pattern of behavior we have seen confirms what Democrats’ own public statements have told us: They are committed to delaying, obstructing, and resisting this nomination with everything they have. Just want to delay this matter past the election. That is not my supposition; that is their plan. According to another Democratic member of the Judiciary Committee, the junior Senator from Hawaii, that is their plan.

Soon I expect we will hear that the real issue is not Judge Kavanaugh's personal integrity and his good name, but rather, the FBI’s investigation was not infinite, this nomination was dragged through the mud with a weaponized and inflict the maximum damage—frankly, anybody in the country—who will have ever thought about giving Judge Kavanaugh a fair hearing?

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. LANKFORD). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, after the tumultuous week just past, after the fireworks during the Kavanaugh hearing—the second hearing—I think we all needed a little bit of time to digest that. I think we all needed a little bit more than that happened. I am, of course, referring to this contentious hearing over the confirmation of Brett Kavanaugh. It was fair and necessary, in my view, to hold the hearing because Dr. Christine Ford, the last hour of his hearing, turned out, was thrust into the national spotlight by our Democratic colleagues. Once there, we believe she deserved her chance to tell her story. Just as importantly, Judge Kavanaugh deserved a chance to defend his good name and make up their minds without even hearing the witnesses. Unfortunately, that is the kind of hearing we have heard from Dr. Ford. It was treated no worse than my own daughters would be if they found themselves in that atmosphere, be it in my circumstances or my brother or my mother or my wife. Similarly, I think Judge Kavanaugh should be treated as well as we would want our father, our brother, our son, or somebody’s husband were they to find themselves in his circumstances.

This is about fairness in the end, fair process, one that gives everybody a chance to tell their story. One of the things that matters most to me is we know that we are listening to this testimony—almost half of them—throughout the Senate had already made up their minds. I would hate to walk into a courtroom where the judge and the jury had already made up their minds, I would hate to walk into a courtroom where the judge and the jury had already made up their minds.

This is about fairness in the end, fair process, one that gives everybody a chance to tell their story. One of the things that matters most to me is we know that we are listening to this testimony—almost half of them—throughout the Senate had already made up their minds. I would hate to walk into a courtroom where the judge and the jury had already made up their minds.

I have told people before, and I will say it again. I want to make sure Dr. Ford is treated no worse than my own daughters would be if they found themselves in that atmosphere, be it in my circumstances or my brother or my mother or my wife. Similarly, I think Judge Kavanaugh should be treated as well as we would want our father, our brother, our son, or somebody’s husband were they to find themselves in his circumstances.

This is about fairness in the end, fair process, one that gives everybody a chance to tell their story. One of the things that matters most to me is we know that we are listening to this testimony—almost half of them—throughout the Senate had already made up their minds. I would hate to walk into a courtroom where the judge and the jury had already made up their minds.

What is so unusual now—I guess the goalposts seem to shift every day, maybe even every hour—some people are saying Judge Kavanaugh’s rebuttal and his denial was so forceful, and he was obviously upset, that somehow negatively reflects on his judicial temperament, and then he is disqualified for trying to defend his good name.

I will defy any Member of the Senate—frankly, anybody in the country—whose reputation and way of life was threatened with destruction, whose reputation as a father, as a husband, as a member of the second highest court in the country, and whose two daughters, his wife, his two daughters, his parents—and the girls he coached in basketball. I think that is why the judge felt like he had to defend forcefully his good name and reputation against unproven allegations. And who among us would do anything less?

We don’t live in a country where once accused of something you are assumed to be guilty. That would be a violation in a country of law. There is the presumption of innocence and the requirement that if you are going to make serious allegations against somebody—and, in this case, allegations of a crime—you have to meet certain standards. You have to prove it. But that’s exactly what we found out. Dr. Ford’s allegations were not proven. All of the people who, according to her, could substantiate her allegations said: I don’t remember anything like that. I was never present at such an event.

But that doesn’t seem to bother any of our colleagues who had already decided to oppose this nomination. That is one of the things I hate the most about Washington, DC. It is not enough to win an election. It is not enough to win an argument. They want to destroy you. It is an ugly, cruel, and reckless way to treat another human being.

I wish I could say that some of my colleagues across the aisle expressed one ounce of public concern, but no. They stated: You know, the way we handled this might have been wrong. Maybe we should have done it a different way. Maybe we should have raised the issue much earlier, as the normal way of proceeding an allegation would be handled, in a way that protected Dr. Ford and gave her a safe environment to tell her story and be questioned by the bipartisan professional staff who handle background investigations, as well as the FBI.

We could have done that in a way that respected Dr. Ford’s wishes, but we did not because of the way this has been mishandled. So far as I can tell, none of our colleagues across the aisle who wish unfair, embarrassing, disgraceful process on Dr. Ford and Judge Kavanaugh—none of them—expressed any regret or remorse or offered any apologies.

They haven’t been willing to admit that their stealth tactics and have done damage to one man and his family, to the Senate, to the Supreme Court, and to our national fabric, at the same time exposing Dr. Ford to the sort of public scrutiny and spotlight about which she asked for the implored—Senator Feinstein, please, protect me from that sort of environment.

We could have done so if it had been handled the right way. Our colleagues across the aisle have simply refused to cooperate at all in the process. They called for an additional supplemental FBI background investigation, but when we tried to question witnesses at the staff level in a bipartisan way, they simply refused to participate.

None of them have said the obvious, which is that it is pretty odd that Dr. Ford’s lawyers apparently didn’t tell her that investigators volunteered to go to California to speak with her in private. It is downright strange that she didn’t know she was being directed to Democratic lawyers and being sent off for polygraph examinations instead of being directed to the FBI or the Senate Judiciary Committee’s professional staff.

Our colleagues across the aisle have never questioned that their allies’ motives were anything less than perfectly righteous or pointed out the political convenience of any of this—that their usual strategic clarity is convenient; in other words, that this has been self-serving for our friends across the aisle who were already committed to oppose the nomination, no matter what. None of this makes it any less callous.

So now we have agreed and the White House and the FBI have agreed to conduct a supplemental background investigation, something that could have been done months ago. It should have been done. I know more than 1 week, but it could take less time too. It is up to the FBI to determine who they believe they should interview for the supplemental background investigation, limited to up to a week and based on credible accusations. Those are the criteria.

Our colleague from Delaware and others during the hearing suggested that this period of time was sufficient. Back when we were discussing what was going to happen at the markup on Judge Kavanaugh’s nomination last Friday, every single one of the Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee said: Just give the FBI 1 more week, and that is what is happening.

But it will not make any difference. They are not persuadable. They have already made up their minds.

But it would not surprise me if at the end of the week, they raise their voices, which they have already begun to do, and move the goalposts, change their tune, find some fault with the FBI’s investigation or the length of time in which it was conducted. I wouldn’t be surprised at that is the way they have conducted themselves since the President announced Judge Kavanaugh as the nominee—always finding reason to delay, asking for something, and if they are given it, well, that is.

Though I did not think an additional or supplemental background investigation was necessary, I am not opposed to the supplemental FBI investigation. What I am opposed to is that this is the way the three people who Dr. Ford said were present at the party have all given sworn statements under penalty of felony saying: I don’t remember, or it didn’t happen, not in my presence. They are already under oath and can be prosecuted if they are not telling the truth.

I am not quite sure what the FBI is supposed to ask them after that, if they said: It didn’t happen, or I don’t remember, or it didn’t happen; I wasn’t there.

I am not sure what else they can really investigate, but I ultimately believe that given the state of the record, I don’t believe the FBI supplemental background investigation will significantly alter the situation we find ourselves in currently. That situation is this: If the allegations we discussed during last week’s hearing remain uncorroborated and they never came up in the context of six or other FBI background checks, if they have been explicitly denied time and again by the nominee, if alleged eyewitnesses have no recollection of them for say they didn’t happen, if they conflict with the accounts of many, many women who knew the nominee to behave honorably in high school, college, and law school and as a professional, and countless more women who have known and interacted with Judge Kavanaugh since, if the timing seems calculated, unusual, and politically motivated, and if our Democratic colleagues chose not to act on this opportunity when it was much more appropriate than now for them to do so, then there is simply no way we should not move forward. The die is cast, and it has been cast for quite a while.

A number of our colleagues announced against President Trump’s nominee for the Supreme Court before he was even identified, and a dozen or so more shortly after he was identified, without the benefit of any of the hearings that the American people have been entitled to.

Move forward we will, soon, because we simply cannot in the United States of America establish a precedent by which any nominee can be derailed by last-minute, unproven accusations. If we do, then why would anyone want to subject themselves to this process? Anybody and everybody who is nominated to a Senate-confirmed position would be subjected to this same precedent once set: guilty until you prove your innocence.

Well, I wasn’t there at the time that this was alleged. Well, you still have to prove a negative. You say you weren’t there, but you still have to prove your innocence.

That is the opposite of what the presumption of innocence calls for. That is the opposite of what due process of law calls for. That is the opposite of what our constitutional system demands in fairness to everybody involved.

If this precedent is set—which I pray it will not be set—the only ammunition the opposition would need to shoot down any figure at any time would be innuendo, speculation, suspicion, and nothing more. We can’t let that happen. We are not going to allow that to happen, and we are not going to set that kind of precedent.

It always seems that it is never quite enough to satisfy our colleagues across the aisle, particularly when it comes to the war over judicial confirmations and the Kavanaugh nomination. It is always more, more, and more: Set the goalposts, move the goalposts, and backtrack from what you have agreed. to, all in the interest of more delays, which provide more time for the unproven, uncorroborated smears on the character of the nominee and more pain and anguish for the family, who has to suffer along with the nominee and everyone else. The attack on the nominee and the media are practically gleeful at taking another whack at him, completely oblivious to what they are putting this good man and his family and friends through.

I have always supported Judge Kavanaugh's nomination. I did when he was nominated to the DC Circuit Court of Appeals, and I do now because I know him to be an upstanding and well qualified individual.

I first met him back in the year 2000, as I mentioned, preparing for an argument before the U.S. Supreme Court, when I was Attorney General. I met Brett Kavanaugh because he was one of the best lawyers in Washington, DC, to help you get prepared to argue a case before the Supreme Court.

But it is not just my experience with Brett Kavanaugh. Everybody who has practiced with him has said that. Hundreds of women who know him have said that. We know he has a brilliant legal mind, and we know his good character. Over the last 12 years on the DC Circuit Court of Appeals. Many cases where he has written the opinion of the court have been adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States, essentially, as the law of the land.

Judge Kavanaugh belongs on the Nation's highest bench, and by the end of this week, it will be time to put him there. Enough is enough. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MR. MORAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNITED STATES-MEXICO-CANADA AGREEMENT

Mr. MORAN. Mr. President, I come to the floor this afternoon to speak about an announcement that occurred last night that an agreement had been reached to modernize the North America Free Trade Agreement. The new agreement, named the "United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement," or "USMCA," will bring this trade pact between our countries into the 21st century.

Over the last year and a half, I have been working with my colleagues and others in the administration to make clear to President Trump, Ambassador Lighthizer, Secretary Ross, and my Senate colleagues of the importance of trade and exports—that whether that was in meetings with the President and his Cabinet officials, through my subcommittee chairmanships, through speeches here on the Senate floor, or with many of my constituents in Kansas whose livelihoods depend on trade. I have written numerous letters to U.S. agricultural leaders and various agricultural organizations, followed up by speaking engagements across the country at the annual meetings of national farm and ranch groups to rally producers to drive trade relationships with Canada and Mexico.

I have spent a lot of time in Kansas at nearly 100 townhall meetings in the last 2 years attended by various agriculture and commodity groups. I have talked to local media where folks are particularly interested at home about the issue of NAFTA and trade.

In each of these instances, I was clear that withdrawing from NAFTA without a replacement agreement would be devastating to the Kansas economy. While NAFTA modernization was due to reflect changes in the economy since its enactment almost 25 years ago, the agreement has been critical to growth in agricultural exports and has created countless manufacturing jobs in my State.

As a result of NAFTA, Canada and Mexico are two export markets that account for approximately 39 percent of total exports from Kansas. We, as Kansans, sell more aerospace parts and products to Canada than anywhere in the world and more food and commodities to Mexico than anywhere in the world.

Importantly, the new agreement includes all three countries. As I conveyed to the President when the bilateral U.S.-Mexico agreement was announced, a final deal without Canada would be a significant step backward from the agreement in place today. I applaud President Trump for taking these concerns seriously and, while engaging in tough negotiations, recognizing the benefit of all three nations being included in the final agreement.

The road ahead for this new agreement will be long and difficult. I am carefully reviewing the agreement's details and look forward to additional economic analysis on the impact it would have—particularly on Kansas but on farmers, ranchers, and manufacturers across our country and, equally of importance, the impact upon their employees.

Once the President signs the agreement, it will be up to Congress to consider and vote to approve the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement—most likely next year. However, today farmers and ranchers are breathing a sigh of relief, as the announcement brings greater certainty at a time when producers are facing extended periods of low commodity prices. Agricultural conditions in our State, due to drought and due to commodity prices and the uncertainty of export markets, are a significant challenge right now.

Simply put, we produce more in this country than we can consume. Farmers, agricultural leaders, and commodity groups spend their own time and money developing export markets. We have many checkoff programs designed to encourage the sale of agricultural commodities from Kansas and the United States around the globe. Over a span of years and sometimes even decades, U.S. producers have built relationships with consumers around the world based upon our ability to consistently deliver high-quality commodities at competitive prices. This agreement ought to inspire confidence in our purchasers in Mexico and Canada as well as around the world that America will continue to be a reliable supplier of food and agricultural commodities.

Under the new agreement, all agricultural commodities that currently have duty-free access under NAFTA will continue. In addition, U.S. dairy producers who had a long, difficult time with Canada's supply management system will enjoy greater market access to the Canadian market.

Agricultural trade in this deal is also critical for aerospace, auto, and other manufacturers in Kansas who rely on an integrated North American supply chain. Withdrawing from NAFTA or excluding Canada from the agreement would have disrupted markets and cost Kansas jobs.

I am hopeful that negotiations will continue with Canada and Mexico to resolve section 232 steel and aluminum tariffs that have raised prices for Kansas manufacturers and their customers, as well as resulted in retaliation against U.S. producers, including pork producers in Kansas.

While I come to the floor to commend an agreement being reached on modernizing NAFTA, we have a lot of work to do to resolve current trade disputes while building new export markets.

The trade dispute with China has harmed farmers and ranchers when they can least afford it. Producers have faced low prices and declining income for the better part of a decade. I remain concerned that if we lose major export markets, we will see a prolonged downturn in the prices instead of the recovery that is so desperately needed and desired.
Since the start of the trade dispute with China, soybean prices have fallen over $2 per bushel, which equates to Kansas farmers and grain handlers losing out on $378 million of possible revenue solely on soybeans.

Kansas is the top sorghum-producing State in the Nation. About half of the sorghum produced in the country is exported, with 90 percent of exports previously going to China. It is estimated that the decline in sorghum prices due to tariffs and other trade issues will result in about $87 of lost revenue per acre planted in Kansas.

I have held two hearings to review the administration’s trade policies in the Appropriations subcommittee that I chair—Commerce, Justice, Science—including a hearing with Ambassador Lightizer. These hearings offered me and my colleagues the opportunity to express directly to the administration the importance of trade and for me to express my concerns to Ambassador Lighthizer.

The ability of Kansans to make a living depends on the opportunity to sell around the world what we grow and produce and manufacture, and I will continue to urge in the direction of more trade, not less. I will also keep working to meet with farmers, ranchers, manufacturers, commodities groups, agricultural leaders, and organizations to make sure their voices are heard, and I will continue to be a component of the ongoing work to promote free and fair trade.

I end my remarks by noting my appreciation to the administration officials for working to make certain these markets remain available to Kansas farmers and manufacturers, providing them with some much needed certainty. I will further analyze the details of this agreement, but I am pleased to say that last night’s announcement is clearly a positive development for United States Judges that binds him as a sitting judge on the Federal appeals court for the DC Circuit.

In the ensuing firestorm, there has been a calculated and orchestrated assault on the judge’s character that day that should disqualify him from being a Supreme Court Justice or in a judge for that matter. But don’t take it from me; listen to Judge Kavanaugh himself. In 2016, in the Catholic University Law Review, he wrote about the importance of judges steering clear of politics. He told the readers: "A good umpire, like a good umpire, cannot act as a partisan." He said that while it is good for some judges to come with a background in politics or policy, "federal judges have to check any prior political allegiances they have and have to shed them." Based on Judge Kavanaugh’s testimony last week, it certainly doesn’t sound like he has shed his partisan convictions and connections.

In the same law review article, Judge Kavanaugh wrote:

To be a good judge and a good umpire, it’s critical to have the proper demeanor. It’s important to . . . keep our emotions in check and be calm amid the storm.

He is not wrong. Indeed, the Code of Conduct for United States Judges backs him up.

Canon 2 of the code reads:

A Judge Should Avoid Impropriety and the Appearance of Impropriety.

...A judge should respect and comply with the law and should act at all times in a manner that promotes public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary.

It further explains in commentary:

An appearance of impropriety occurs when reasonable minds . . . would conclude that the judge’s honesty, integrity, impartiality, temperament, or fitness to serve as a judge is impaired. Public confidence in the judiciary is eroded by irresponsible or improper conduct by judges.

Canon 3 explains that “a judge should be faithful to, and maintain professional competence in, the law and should not be swayed by partisan interests, public clamor, or fear of criticism.”

We need to consider the rules and rules that argue against the kind of intemperate behavior we saw from Judge Kavanaugh because of the allegations brought against him by several sources, all of which deserve a full and fair investigation by the FBI.

I was heartened to see Senators Flake and Coons both in agreement to hold off on a floor vote for at least a week while the supplemental background investigation can be completed to look into these allegations. Since the agreement, they have convened and have arisen about the exact nature of that investigation. Is it limited? If so, how? Will all leads be followed, or will the FBI be hamstrung in some way by instructions from the White House? Whatever the case, there has been a lot of a debate about whether the FBI investigation will be credible and professional and not a perfunctory effort. There are some indications now that the FBI will be allowed to do its job. I hope that will be the case. I expect that the FBI will continue all possible avenues of investigation that are relevant as to whether Judge Kavanaugh had a pattern of drinking that resulted... in aggression and belligerence toward women. Some have said that Judge Kavanaugh deserves the benefit of the doubt and that unless Dr. Ford’s account can be proven, he should be confirmed, but that confuses the issue. No one is entitled to be on the Supreme Court. The burden should be on Judge Kavanaugh to show he is fit for the job.

Now the Republicans’ hired gun prosecutor, whom they hid behind while Dr. Ford was questioned, has published a memo in which she concludes that she could not bring a case based on the evidence heard at the second hearing. Frankly, this conclusion is meaningless. I am sure that in her previous job as a specialist in sex crimes, she would never have proceeded to a trial before an investigation, and she would not have excluded key witnesses. There was no investigation. Key witnesses were not called. I hope this is not the way she would prepare a case.

I have said many times that Democrats don’t need to manufacture reasons to oppose Judge Kavanaugh’s elevation to the Supreme Court. Based on his record, his opinions and dissents, his academic writings, and his speeches, I have concluded that he will not be a fair and objective Justice of the Supreme Court. His views on reproductive rights, Native rights, on legal protections for workers, consumers, and the environment, to mention his very broad views of Presidential protections are deeply concerning to me.

Now that we have heard Dr. Ford’s account and have seen Judge Kavanaugh’s angry and combative reaction, it is evident that he should not serve and should not be confirmed to the Supreme Court. We can do better, and the American people deserve better. I yield the floor.

LAS VEGAS MASS SHOOTING

Ms. CORTEZ MASTO. Mr. President, 1 year has passed. Lives were cut short at the Route 91 Harvest Music Festival. Those wounded and killed that night had come together to have fun, to relax, and to celebrate their love of country music with their friends and family from hometowns of Las Vegas. Instead of a celebration, terror rained down on them that night. As Nevadans woke up to the news of what happened, many like me were shocked and heartbroken. We asked, how could this happen?

I will never forget going to the family reunification center, where families were looking for their loved ones or were waiting for calls from the coroner, and I will never forget the parents I spoke to moments before their learning that their daughter, Melissa, didn’t make it.

In the weeks following the 1 October massacre, Las Vegas demonstrated that we are a tight-knit family who rally together in times of need. We heard stories of incredible bravery at the scene of the attack—a husband who died to protect his wife on the night they were celebrating their 23rd wedding anniversary; a former marine who turned a truck into a makeshift ambulance and drove more than two dozen people to the hospital; a couple who provided CPR to victims as bullets rained down; a mother who went into mammaw bear mode and used her body as a shield to protect her children; hundreds of concert-goers who risked their lives while carrying fellow concert-goers to safety.

All of our firefighters and police officers in Southern Nevada, including the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department, the Clark County School District Police, the Las Vegas Fire Department, and the Clark County Fire Department, deserve our utmost thanks for their bravery on the night of the attack. They, along with American Medical Response, MediWest Ambulance, Transport, the University Medical Center, Sunrise Hospital and Medical Center, the Valley Health System, Dignity Health, and all of the first responders in Southern Nevada, went above and beyond the call of duty.

On August 1, many of these brave men and women ran toward the bullets, putting their lives in grave danger because they knew it was the only way to save people in need. Nurses and doctors worked all through the night, not just on October 1 but for months afterward to care for the wounded.

Before dawn had even broken on October 2, people in Las Vegas, Reno, and throughout the State had formed lines at blood banks. Many of the lines were so long they stretched out the door and around the block. The staff at United Blood Services worked tirelessly to process the donations and get the blood supply to our area hospitals.

For the weeks that followed, Las Vegas held candlelight vigils. They donated food, coffee, water, and blankets to help the survivors and the victims’ families. They constructed beautiful memorials that still stand as a testament to those taken and to provide healing to every person impacted by events of that night.

The Red Cross and the Department of Veterans Affairs stepped in to bring mobile units to our hospitals.

The FBI and the Nevada Victims of Crime Program helped grieving families secure funds to cover funeral and travel costs.

Our military community stepped in to provide critical support as well. Airman First Class Nellis Air Force Base were present at the concert on the night of the shooting and helped evacuate attendees. Nellis medical professionals treated victims and helped saved lives while the military spouse community collected basic needs for the survivors and the victims’ families.

Providers at the Las Vegas-based Behavioral Bilingual Services were instrumental in addressing immigration and language barriers for so many immigrant survivors.

The Clark County staff at the Vegas Strong Resiliency Center has been there for survivors every step of the way, advocating on their behalf and helping them find new jobs, getting them compensation for lost wages, and getting them the mental health care they need.

Airlines like Allegiant and Southwest and medical providers like Valley Health Systems, MediWest, and American Medical Response helped defray costs for the victims and their families.

St. Rose Dominican Hospitals said that they would not bill or require payment from any of the victims they treated, and United Health waived cost-sharing for victims so that they could get treatment for months after the tragedy with no out-of-pocket costs.

The generosity didn’t end there. People all over the world donated more than $31 million to pay for basic necessities, medical bills, and funeral costs for the victims and their families.

One year has passed since the events of October 1, 2017. I know for many in our community of Las Vegas, and for the hundreds of survivors, it feels as though they have been forgotten, but please know—please know—the survivors and those who were taken will never be forgotten.

We will always hold the names and stories of everyone affected by this tragedy in our hearts and in our minds. In Las Vegas, we are still healing. are still grieving for the family members who are no longer with us—for sisters, brothers, mothers, fathers, cousins, nieces, nephews, aunts, and children we will never see again. We are still grieving for the survivors, whose lives have been irrevocably altered.

I don’t believe perfect healing is possible, but I do believe we can learn to adjust to the searing pain of tragedy. We do it through remembrance.

Through remembrance, the people we love are never truly gone, as long as we are around to see their names or share a memory of them. Through remembrance, the people and families who are still healing from their wounds are shown the love and comfort of our community.

Today, in remembrance of that awful night 1 year ago, let’s give thanks for the bravery and dedication of our first responders. Let’s continue to do everything we can to support those who are still struggling to recover from the emotional and physical wounds they sustained on October 1.

Fifty-eight innocent lives ended on October 1, but thousands more were changed forever. We must keep the survivors in our minds and in our hearts as they heal, and remember both visible and invisible, and get back on their feet.

The Davis family lost their daughter Nyessa on the night of the shooting. Nyessa’s dream was that her three sons would one day graduate from college. They decided that the best way to heal their family and their community was to start an organization dedicated to fulfilling Nyessa’s dream. I thank the Davis family for their resilience and their generosity. We must follow the Davis family’s example and continue to come together as a community. We must come together, not just in Las Vegas but all throughout Nevada to bring healing, peace, and hope to everyone who was affected.

Tonight, at 6:30 p.m., the city of Las Vegas will host a ceremony at the Las Vegas Community Healing Garden to dedicate a new remembrance wall. I encourage everyone back home to try to attend this event or simply take a moment to pause and reflect in honor of the victims and their families.

In a few moments, I will read the names of everyone who was killed so that their names will be reserved in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

May God bless the city of Las Vegas, the State of Nevada, and everyone affected by this tragedy.

Today, we remember Austin Cooper Meyer, 24 years of age from Sparks, NV; Brennan Lee Stewart, 30, North Las Vegas, NV; Cameron Lee Robinson, 28, Las Vegas, NV; Charleston Hartfield, Henderson, NV, 34 years of age; Eric Steven Silva, 21 years old, Las Vegas, NV; Laura Anne Ship, 50, Las Vegas, NV; Kayla Christine Shirts, 46, Las Vegas, NV; Quintin Joe Robbins, 20, Henderson, NV; Adrian Allan Murfitt, 35, Anchorage, AK; Dorene Anderson, 49, Anchorage, AK; Brett Erin Schwanbeck, 61, Bullhead City, AZ; Andrea Lee Anna Castilla, 28, Santa Ana, CA; Angela Christine Gomez, 20, Riverside, CA; Austin William Davis, 29, Riverside, CA; Bailey De Schweitzer, 20, Bakersfield, CA; Brian Scott Frasier, 39, La Palma, CA; Candice Ryan Bowers, 40, Garden Grove, CA; Carrie Rae Barnett, 34, Riverside, CA; Christiana Mae Duarte, 22, Redondo Beach, CA; Christopher Hazencon, 44, Catalina, CA; Christopher Louis Roybal, 28, Corona, CA; Dylan Michael Mann, 22, Grand Terrace, CA; Denise Marie Cohen, 58, Carpernteria, CA; Derrick Dean Taylor, 56, Bonita, CA; Hannah Ahlers, 34, Beaumont, CA; Jack Reginald Beaton, 54, Bakersfield, CA; Jennifer Marie Parks, 35, Lancaster, CA; Jennifer Topaz Irvine, 42, San Diego, CA; John Joseph Phippen, 56, Santa Clarita, CA; Jordyn Nicole Rivera, 21, La Verne, CA; Kelsey Breanne Meadows, 28, Taft, CA; Keri Lynn Galvan, 31, Thousand Oaks, CA; Kurt Allen Von Tillow, 39, Bakersfield, CA; Lisa Marie Patterson, 46, Lomita, CA; Melissa Ramirez, 26, Littlerock, CA; Michelle Vo, 32, Marina del Rey, CA; Patricia Mestas, 67, Riverside, CA; Rachel Kathan Parker, 33, Long Beach, CA; Rocio Guillen, 40, Corona, CA; Sandra Lee Casey, 35, Torrance, CA; Stacie Ellen Etcheber, 50, Novato, CA; Susan Marie Smith, 53, Simi Valley, CA; Teresa Kimura, 38, Placentia, CA; Thomas Allen Day, Jr., 54, Corona, CA; Victor Lloyd Ling, 55, Aliso Viejo, CA; Carla Marie Medig, 28, Edmonton Alberta, Canada; Cassandra Lyn Kylmnychuk, 34, Valleyview, Alberta, Canada; Jordan Alan Davis, 23, Maple Ridge, British Columbia, Canada; Tara Ann Roe, 34, Okotoks, Alberta, Canada; Carly Ann Krebaum, 33, Sutherland, IA; Rhonda LeRocque, 42, Tewksbury, MA; Stephen Richard Berger, 44, Excelsior, MN; Lisa Romaero-Muniz, 48, Gallup, NM; William Winstfeld, 58, Falls Church, PA; James Sonny Melton, 29, Big Sandy, TN; Heather Lorraine Alvarado, 35, Cedar City, UT; Carolyn Lee Parsons, 31, Seattle, WA; and Denise Brenna Burditus, 50, Martinsburg, WV.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
CINCINNATI SHOOTING

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, last month, we were reminded again of the important work journalists do in our communities, bringing Ohioans, Oklahomans, people from Kansas, or wherever the information they need in an unfolding crisis. And they have done it with purposeful dedication, right from the moment of every tragedy. In September, we got one of the worst news alerts any of us can imagine. There was an active shooter in Cincinnati. We hugged our loved ones a little tighter that night as we prayed for the victims, by the latest senseless shooting that took the lives of three innocent Ohioans. We thank the first responders who rushed to the scene. We thank the law enforcement officers who have spent the week investigating. We thank every person caring for the injured. We also thank the local reporters who rushed to the scene, doing their job to keep our community informed in a crisis.

Reporters gave Ohioans real-time information on TV, immediately getting the word out to warn people to avoid the area where the shooter was active. They talked to law enforcement, and they talked to witnesses on the scene. From firsthand accounts, we learned the first shots were heard just before 9:11 a.m.

One reporter talked to a witness who told of the heroism of the Cincinnati police officer, saying he saw a lady who gave him a hug and said she was a nurse. She was bleeding. Her shirt was red.

It is yet another horrific scene among far too many we have endured in this country. At every one of these tragedies—every single one—courageous journalists and citizens of our country, not enemies of the people, are among the first on the scene. They tell us the stories behind the victims, and they help us honor the memories of those who have been killed. They give us a full picture of what yet another other shooting has cost our country. They reported that Cincinnati lost a father, a grandfather, and a son. They brought us stories of a young programmer just getting started in his career whose life was cut short, of a father of two teenagers who will forever have to live with the scars of losing a parent, and of a grandfather of eight who helped build the Queen City as a construction supervisor.

It is despicable that Congress refuses to pass commonsense gun safety laws to protect Americans from yet more gun violence. As these tragedies keep happening, we keep pressing for change. We will keep thanking law enforcement and our medical professionals who deal with the unthinkable of a mass shooting. We will keep thanking the reporters who are doing their jobs—newspaper, radio, television, online—to bring us the facts and who deserve our respect no matter the comments of some people in elected office.

CONSUMER FINANCIAL PROTECTION BUREAU

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, last week we learned from investigative reporting that a senior political appointee—a political appointee at the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, Eric Blankenstein, has written hateful, bigoted blog posts. This is a man handpicked for the job—and paid very well from tax dollars—by Mick Mulvaney, the head of the CFPB, the sort of part-time head of the CFPB. He is tasked with enforcing laws to protect consumers, laws protecting Americans from discrimination and lending.

The Consumer Protection Bureau is supposed to be on the frontlines, fighting for families getting ripped off by shady payday lenders at big banks. The person with Blankenstein’s job should be fighting and preventing the very real financial discrimination that everybody in this body knows happens all too often today in Ohio and Oklahoma and across this country. Instead, these stories and these blog posts, we have the person tasked with this job has written that most hate crimes “are hoaxes.” These blog posts are filled with disgusting, bigoted language that I will not repeat on the Senate floor because we have a better decorum than that and this language is so offensive.

But this is the man Mick Mulvaney wants going after big banks that discriminate. How is it that the Director of Management and Budget failed to look into the background of such a senior, well-paid political appointee? Placing Blankenstein in charge of fair lending was a moral mistake, a managerial failure, and he should be fired immediately. It has been a week now since reporters found those hateful writings. The fact that he is still in the job is a disgrace. The President should act; the CFPB head should act.

We have seen no contrition from Blankenstein—no contrition from him, no apology for the hateful posts, no acknowledgement that these are totally inappropriate and immoral views for the person tasked with policing shady corporations trying to get away with ripping off and discriminating against consumers, Mulvaney gutted the office of the CFPB that was supposed to stop discrimination in lending. He disbanded the team that protected student loan borrowers. He canceled an investigation into the payday lending industry that preys on consumers and traps them in a downward spiral of debt. He employee—a group of employees—saying: You have to lobby harder. You have to go to people; you have to give campaign money so that they will listen to you.

He has hired a bunch of political cronies, people like Eric Blankenstein, and has given them enormous salaries to run the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau into the ground, and we now know specifically of one. The abuses look pretty common, but we know of one. We know of Eric Blankenstein—who has a history of spewing disgusting, bigoted views. He is still collecting a $260,000 paycheck from taxpayers. That is unacceptable.
It is past time that Eric Blankenstein—I don’t think I have ever gone to the floor and personally called out somebody and their salary and asked that they be fired, but when he has these kinds of positions and this kind of background and has spread this kind of hatred, and we are paying him $200,000 of taxpayer money, that is morally outrageous.

Mick Mulvaney, do your job. President Trump, do your job. He should not be employed there.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate engage in its routine legislative wrap-up as in morning business during today’s session of the Senate.

TRIBUTE TO ETHEL EDNA TILLEY

Ms. HASSAN. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize and extend my sincere congratulations and happy birthday wishes to Ethel Edna Tilley, who celebrates her 100th birthday on October 19.

Ethel, who likes to go by Edna, was born in Ramsgate, England, in 1918 and immigrated to the United States with her mother and sister when she was 8 years old. Her father worked for 3 years in America before their family joined him and settled in Everett, MA. Edna met her husband Charlie at the County Road Church in Chelsea, MA. They later married in the same church, while Charlie was home on leave during his service in World War II. After the war, they moved to Saugus, MA, where they raised their two children, Geraldine and Robert.

At 40 years old, Edna fulfilled her lifelong dream and became a teacher. Together with her husband, Edna remodeled the first floor of their home and opened the Country Kindergarten. Her kindergarten became a nursery school and daycare center serving hundreds of children for 22 years.

She retired from teaching only to go back to work 2 years later, at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service in Durham, NH. Throughout her life, Edna also served as a Sunday school teacher, a Sunday school superintendent, a factory worker, and a key-punch operator at a bank. Additionally, Edna taught dance classes with her husband before he passed away in 1996.

Today, Edna lives in Fremont, NH. She loves to paint, and she gives away items she makes to friends and family. She has four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Her family describes her as kind, generous, and pure in heart.

I hope you join me, Edna’s friends and family, and many people across the Granite State in wishing Ethel Edna Tilley a very happy 100th birthday.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. Reed (for himself, Mr. Whitehouse, Mr. Blumenthal, and Mr. Murphy):

S. 3533. A bill to amend the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act to designate certain river segments within the Wood-Pawcatuck watershed as components of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. Reed. Mr. President, today I am introducing, along with my colleagues Senator Whitehouse, Senator Blumenthal, and Senator Murphy, legislation to designate river segments within the Wood-Pawcatuck watershed as part of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

Following more than three years of intense study, this legislation would formally recognize the recreational, natural, and historical qualities of portions of the Beaver, Chipuxet, Green Fall-Ashaway, Pawcatuck, Queen-Usequaugh, Shunock, and Wood Rivers in Rhode Island and Connecticut while providing access to Federal resources and promoting strong partnerships for their restoration and protection.

The Wood-Pawcatuck watershed is a national treasure that not only holds natural and scenic value, but is also an important economic driver for the area. Indeed, the twelve local river communities experience direct economic benefits from their proximity to these rivers through increased recreation and tourism. The watershed provides a range of opportunities for visitors, from viewing early industrial mill ruins, to trout fishing, to bird watching, to kayaking.

I have long been a supporter of protecting and restoring these rivers, which is why I sponsored the Wood-Pawcatuck Watershed Protection Act in 2013. The study that was initiated by that legislation has been a critical tool for bringing together stakeholders from Rhode Island and Connecticut including representatives from local State agencies, local governments, and conservation groups in order to develop a collaborative path forward. The resulting stewardship plan, which was formally adopted by the study committee and supported by all twelve local river communities, currently existing efforts to preserve and manage the river ecosystems while also considering what steps will need to be taken collectively in the future to protect them.

I would like to commend Representatives Langevin, Cicilline, and Courtney for introducing companion legislation. It is particularly fitting this week we commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Wood-Pawcatuck Watershed Act, that we are continuing our work to protect these special places. I look forward to working with all of my colleagues to pass this legislation so that we can preserve the rivers of the Wood-Pawcatuck watershed for the enjoyment of future generations.
