SUMMARY AND PURPOSE OF LEGISLATION

H.R. 1644, the “Korean Interdiction and Modernization of Sanctions Act,” is a response to the urgent threat North Korea poses to the United States and its allies. The legislation builds upon the “North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act” (P.L. 114–122) to further restrict Pyongyang’s access to revenue which funds the regime’s nuclear and missile programs to protect the national security of the United States.

Experts believe that North Korea is developing an intercontinental ballistic missile that could strike the United States with a nuclear warhead. North Korea continues to produce fissile material for nuclear weapons. Some non-governmental studies have estimated that North Korea will accumulate enough nuclear material to build up to 100 warheads over the next few years. North Korea conducted two nuclear weapons tests and launched a record 26 ballistic missiles in 2016. These actions violate multiple U.N. Security Council resolutions.

In response the “North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act” was passed and signed into law last Congress. P.L. 114–122 provides the executive branch with basis to target North Korea’s money laundering and other illicit activities including arms and narcotics trafficking, and counterfeiting of U.S. currency. This has helped to restrict the regime’s access to hard currency. The law’s passage and signature into law was followed by two comprehensive U.N. Security Council resolutions being put into place.

Yet North Korea has worked over the past year to evade international sanctions with the help of a vast network of front companies and governments that span the globe. H.R. 1644, the “Korean Interdiction and Modernization of Sanctions Act” works to counter these developments by deterring those who continue to do business with North Korea and depriving North Korea of the resources it requires to develop weapons that threaten the United States. It enhances U.S. sanctions against North Korea in order to end the regime’s misuse of global shipping to transport illicit materials; its exploitation of the financial system to launder money; its severe human rights abuses including the use of forced labor; and other activities that violate applicable U.N. Security Council resolutions.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

North Korea’s Escalating Threat to the United States

North Korea continues to threaten the United States and its allies by rapidly developing its nuclear and ballistic missile program in violation of numerous U.N. Security Council resolutions. As of January 2017, Kim Jong Un has tested more missiles than the two previous dictators of North Korea, Kim Jong Il and Kim Il Sung, combined. North Korea conducted two nuclear weapons tests and launched a record 26 ballistic missiles in 2016. It most recently conducted a missile test on April 4, 2017, its fourth missile test in 2017. North Korea has tested a nuclear explosive device four other times since 2006. These actions violate multiple U.N. Security Council resolutions, pose a direct threat to U.S. allies and U.S. forces stationed in Northeast Asia and left unchecked, will soon pose a direct threat to the homeland of the United States.

The North Korean Government publicly acknowledges it continues to develop nuclear weapons and has stated it is willing to conduct preemptive strikes against the United States and its allies as a means of self-defense. The North Korean Government announcement of a September 9, 2016, nuclear test claimed that North Korea has “standardized” its nuclear warhead and would continue to advance the quality and quantity of its “nuclear force.” The announcement stated “the standardization of the nuclear warhead will enable the DPRK to produce at will . . . a variety of smaller, lighter and diversified nuclear warheads of higher strike power.” In his 2017 New Year’s address, North Korean leader Kim Jong Un stated that North Korea had “achieved the status of a nuclear power” and pledged to continue to “build up our self-defense capability . . . and the capability for preemptive strike . . . to defend the peace and security of our state.” Thae Yong Ho, a high-ranking North Korean official who defected to Seoul last year, has publicly stated Kim Jong Un is determined to complete development of his nuclear weapons program by the end of 2017.

The speed with which North Korea’s ballistic missile program is advancing poses an immediate threat to our national security. If left unchecked, North Korea will soon be able to target all 50 States and our Asian allies with a nuclear warhead. This poses a direct threat to the American people and has a significant destabilizing effect on the world.

On February 7, 2016, North Korea used a modified version of the Taepodong-2 ballistic missile to launch a satellite into space. On August 24, 2016, North Korea successfully tested a submarine-launched ballistic missile, firing the missile over 300 miles from a submerged submarine. In the wake of these and other tests of their missile technology, the North Korean Government announced on January 8, 2017, that it is ready to test-launch an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of striking the United States.

Legislative Response

The collapse of North Korea’s industrial economy in the early 1990s left it highly dependent on external sources of hard currency to sustain a population of approximately 23 million, a mechanized military of 1 million men and women, the military-industrial sector that supplies it, its weapons of mass destruction programs, and luxury items imported for senior regime officials. Because of the impracticality of transferring large sums of cash in bulk, North Korea continues to rely on the international financial system, and maintains large offshore foreign exchange reserves and other assets in China and Europe.

In September 2005, the Department of the Treasury invoked the authority of Section 311 of the USA PATRIOT Act of 2001, (P.L.107–56), and blocked the accounts of Banco Delta Asia, a small Macau-based bank. According to the Treasury Department, Banco Delta Asia acted as “a willing pawn” of North Korean agents laundering the proceeds of illicit activity, including the counterfeiting of U.S. currency. Treasury’s designation disconnected Banco Delta Asia from the international dollar-based financial system and caused a run on the bank. The Government of Macau intervened and blocked $25 million in North Korean deposits to prevent the bank from collapse. Indirectly, the action caused other banks to block other North Korean accounts, or to reject North Korean transactions.

The effect on the regime’s finances was devastating. Seventeen months after the sanction was imposed on Banco Delta Asia, North Korea agreed to dismantle its nuclear weapons program, but first insisted that the United States return the $25 million in blocked North Korean funds, effectively nullifying the Section 311 sanction as it applied to North Korea. Of course, North Korea reneged on its commitments.

Congress passed the “North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act of 2016” in an effort to replicate the impact of Banco Delta Asia-like sanctions. The Act, the only comprehensive North Korean sanctions bill to be signed into law, provided the administration with tools to begin seriously tackling this threat.

It has helped to constrain the regime’s access to hard currency. Since the enactment of the law, the Obama administration sanctioned North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and at least 10 other regime officials and five North Korean state-run entities for human rights abuses against the North Korean people. This was the first time the United States had sanctioned Kim Jong Un personally. On March 16, 2016, the Department of the Treasury formally determined that the transportation, mining, energy, and financial services industries in the North Korean economy shall be subject to U.S. sanctions. Pursuant to a requirement in P.L. 114–122, in June 2016, the Department of the Treasury designated North Korea a “primary money laundering concern” under the Patriot Act. That designation will require U.S. banks to “implement additional due diligence measures” to make sure North Korean banks don’t get access—even through third parties.

Countering North Korea’s Evasion of Sanctions

A February 2017 report by the United Nations Panel of Experts stated that the Government of North Korea is using “increasingly sophisticated” techniques to evade existing sanctions, including through dealings with middlemen and other countries that are willing to trade in money, arms, and slave labor that in turn funds the North Korean regime. That report highlighted evidence of North Korea’s ability to manufacture and trade in sophisticated military technologies using overseas networks and to mask the identity of ships to gain access to restricted ports. It noted how “designated entities and banks have continued to operate in the sanctioned environment by using agents who are highly experienced and well trained in moving money, people and goods . . . across borders.” House Committee on Foreign Affairs Report 114–392 documented previous efforts by North Korea to evade sanctions. This legislation will provide additional tools to target the North Korean regime’s efforts to evade sanctions.

Specifically, this legislation further restricts North Korea’s access to money and materials for its weapons programs by significantly expanding existing sanctions against the regime. It mandates sanctions against any foreign person who buys certain metals or minerals from the country or provides certain types of military use fuel or insurance or reinsurance to vessels sanctioned under a U.N. Security Council resolution for engaging in illicit trade with North Korea.

The bill also expands the ability to sanction those who import North Korean coal, iron, or iron ore above the limits imposed by U.N. Security Council resolutions, buy textiles or fishing rights from North Korea, facilitate the online business activities of the regime, or fail to comply with U.N. Security Council Resolutions targeting the country.

It also provides tools to target those involved in the export or use of North Korean forced labor, which is both a significant human rights abuse and another source of hard currency for the regime.

Targeting Vital North Korean Commodities

Targeting exports of North Korean coal could deprive the Kim regime of critical hard currency. With China amounting to 90 percent of all trade with North Korea, coal has long been its top export. Some analysts believe that North Korea's economy is 35 percent reliant on coal exports. With such a heavy reliance on one country and commodity, many believed that China's Ministry of Commerce announcement that China would suspend all coal trading until the end of 2017 would deal a significant blow to the North Korean economy. However, it has been reported that coal trading has continued in Rizao Port, in Shandong Province. A critical aspect of this legislation targets this vital North Korean commodity.

Cracking Down on Overseas North Korean Slave Labor

According to United Nations reporting, tens of thousands of North Koreans are sent to work abroad, earning the regime up to $2.3 billion in foreign currency annually. Many of these workers toil in extreme and dangerous conditions and only receive a small fraction of their wages. Instead, the vast majority of their earnings are paid directly to Pyongyang, which uses this source of hard currency to advance development of its nuclear weapons and inter-continental ballistic missiles. Building on reporting requirements in the "North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act of 2016," which required the State Department to report to Congress the list of countries where North Korean workers are employed, this legislation prohibits goods produced in whole or part by North Korean forced labor from entering the United States. It also sanctions foreign persons that employ North Koreans who are forced to labor in inhumane conditions and are denied access to wages and benefits, and will deny Pyongyang a crucial source of revenue.

North Korea and International Shipping

North Korea continues to violate sanctions against its use of international shipping to further its weapons programs. This legislation cracks down on North Korean shipping and port access that violate existing U.N. Security Council Resolutions. It prohibits any ships owned by the Government of North Korea or those owned or operated on behalf of any country not complying with U.N. Security Council resolutions from operating in U.S. waters or landing at any U.S. port. It also authorizes the Department of Homeland Security to conduct enhanced screening for any cargo originating from ports that enable North Korea to circumvent the search and seizure of vessels that violate applicable sanctions.

North Korea and State Sponsor of Terrorism Designation

This legislation requires the Secretary of State to determine whether North Korea meets the criteria to be designated as a State Sponsor of Terrorism (SSOT). In 2008 the Bush administration delisted North Korea from the SSOT list in a failed attempt to curb the Kim regimes illegal weapons program. Since then, Pyongyang has continued to engage in deeply concerning activity with the public assassination of Kim Jong Un's brother, Kim Jong Nam, the use of malicious and sophisticated cyber-attacks, and the intent to ship weapons to Iran. Undertaking an assessment of North Korea's behavior and, if warranted, relisting North Korea as a State Sponsor of Terrorism would open Pyongyang up to an array of sanctions, including a ban on arms-related exports and sales, controls over dual-use items, prohibitions on economic assistance, and imposition of financial restrictions. In addition to sanctions, this designation would send a message to the international community that Pyongyang is a pariah state, dissuading entities from engaging in activity that continues to facilitate North Korea's illegal weapons program.

H.R. 1644—Korean Interdiction and Modernization of Sanctions Act.

As ordered reported by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs on March 29, 2017

SUMMARY

H.R. 1644 would require the President to expand existing sanctions and impose new sanctions against North Korea. The bill also would authorize the Department of State to provide rewards for information on violations of certain sanctions. Finally, the legislation would require preparation of several reports to the Congress on the implementation of the bill.

CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1644 would cost $10 million over the 2017–2022 period, assuming appropriation of the estimated amounts. In addition, enacting the bill would increase revenues by $8 million and have insignificant effects on direct spending over the 2017–2027 period. Pay-as-you-go procedures apply because enacting the legislation would affect direct spending and revenues.

CBO estimates that enacting the legislation would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

H.R. 1644 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

H.R. 1644 contains private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA, by imposing requirements related to certain transactions associated with the new and expanded sanctions against North Korea. Because of the broad scope of existing U.S. sanctions against North Korea, CBO expects the number of domestic entities that would be affected by the incremental requirements in the bill would be small. Therefore, CBO estimates that the aggregate cost of the mandates in the bill would fall below the annual threshold established in UMRA for private-sector mandates ($156 million in 2017, adjusted annually for inflation).

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The estimated budgetary effect of H.R. 1644 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget functions 150 (international affairs) and 800 (general government).

By Fiscal Year, in Millions of Dollars
	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2017– 2022
INCREASES IN SPENDING SUBJECT TO APPROPRIATION
Estimated Authorization Level	0	2	2	2	2	2	10
Estimated Outlays	0	2	2	2	2	2	10
INCREASES IN REVENUES ¹
Estimated Revenues	0	*	*	1	1	1	3

Note: * = less than $500,000.

¹ CBO estimates enacting H.R. 1644 would increase revenues by $8 million and have insignificant effects on direct spending over the 2017–2027 period.

BASIS OF ESTIMATE

For this estimate, CBO assumes that H.R. 1644 will be enacted near the start of fiscal year 2018 and that the estimated amounts will be appropriated near the beginning of each fiscal year.

Spending Subject to Appropriation

Provisions of H.R. 1644 would increase administrative costs at the Department of State and the Department of the Treasury. Based on limited information from the administration and the costs of implementing similar legislation, CBO estimates that the departments would require additional appropriations of $2 million a year. In total, and incorporating the effects of inflation, CBO estimates that implementing those provisions would cost $10 million over the 2017–2022 period, assuming appropriation of those estimated amounts.

Section 203 would authorize the Department of State to make cash awards for information on violations of certain sanctions. The department currently has a rewards program to deter transnational organized crime, which uses appropriated funds to offer cash awards for similar purposes. Based on information about awards offered under that program, CBO expects that the department could offer individual awards of up to $1 million to $2 million under section 203; however, CBO has no basis for estimating how many or when such amounts might be paid.

Direct Spending and Revenues

CBO expects that revenues from penalties would increase under provisions of the bill that would expand economic and trade sanctions, especially those covering certain financial transactions. Because significant sanctions on activity with North Korea already exist under current law and are generally complied with, and because the North Korean economy is relatively small, CBO expects that enacting the bill would increase revenues from penalties by a small amount—less than $500,000 each year in 2018 and 2019 and $1 million a year starting in 2020. In total, CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 1644 would increase revenues by $8 million over the 2017–2027 period.

In addition, enacting H.R. 1644 would increase both the number of people who would be denied visas by the Secretary of State and the number who would be subject to civil or criminal penalties. Most visa fees are retained by the Department of State and spent without further appropriation, but some fees are deposited in the Treasury as revenues. Penalties also are recorded as revenues and a portion of those penalties can be spent without further appropriation. However, CBO estimates that those provisions would affect very few people and thus have insignificant effects on both revenues and direct spending.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO CONSIDERATIONS

The Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 establishes budget-reporting and enforcement procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or revenues. The net changes in outlays and revenues that are subject to those pay-as-you-go procedures are shown in the following table.

CBO Estimate of Pay-As-You-Go Effects for H.R. 1644 as ordered reported by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs on March 29, 2017

By Fiscal Year, in Millions of Dollars
	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2017– 2022	2017– 2027
NET INCREASE OR DECREASE (–) IN THE DEFICIT
Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Impact	0	0	0	–1	–1	–1	–1	–1	–1	–1	–1	–3	–8

INCREASE IN LONG-TERM DIRECT SPENDING AND DEFICITS

CBO estimates that enacting the legislation would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

ESTIMATED IMPACT ON STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS

H.R. 1644 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

ESTIMATED IMPACT ON THE PRIVATE SECTOR

H.R. 1644 would impose private-sector mandates, as defined in UMRA, by prohibiting transactions that lack sufficient financial controls to ensure that they do not facilitate any of the new or expanded set of sanctions against North Korea. The cost of the mandates would be the forgone net income from complying with the incremental requirements of the bill. Because of the broad scope of existing U.S. sanctions against North Korea, the number of domestic entities and the value of their transactions that would be af-affected by the bill would probably be small. For example, according to foreign trade statistics from the Census Bureau, U.S. exports to North Korea amounted to about $5 million in 2015. Therefore, CBO expects that the aggregate cost of mandates in the bill would fall below the annual threshold established in UMRA for private-sector mandates ($156 million in 2017, adjusted annually for inflation).

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1. Short Title.

This Act may be cited as the “Korean Interdiction and Modernization of Sanctions Act.”

Section 2. Table of Contents.

This provision includes the table of contents for the legislation.

Section 3. Definitions.

This provision both amends existing definitions under the “North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act” to modernize, update and expand definitions, as well as applying new definitions for the purposes of this Act.

TITLE I—SANCTIONS TO ENFORCE AND IMPLEMENT UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL SANCTIONS AGAINST NORTH KOREA

Section 101. Modification and expansion of requirements for the designation of persons.

This section further restricts North Korea’s access to money and materials for its weapons programs by significantly expanding existing sanctions against the regime. It mandates sanctions against any foreign person who buys certain metals or minerals from the country or provides certain types of military use fuel or insurance or reinsurance to vessels sanctioned under a U.N. Security Council resolution for engaging in illicit trade with North Korea.

To deny the Kim regime the hard currency it needs to fund its weapons programs, this section expands the ability to sanction those who import North Korean coal, iron, or iron ore above the limits imposed by United Nations Security Council resolutions, buy textiles or fishing rights from North Korea, facilitate the online business activities of the regime, or fail to comply with United Nations Security Council Resolutions targeting the country.

It also provides tools to target those involved in the export or use of North Korean forced labor, which is both a significant human rights abuse and another source of hard currency for the regime. To improve the North Korean people’s access to food, it includes similar sanctions that can be used against those who buy food or agricultural products from the country.

Section 102. Prohibition on indirect correspondent accounts.

A recent report by international investigators found that North Korea has used concealment to continue its access to the international financial system, including the ability to “transact through top global financial centers.” This section ensures that U.S. financial institutions have terminated the correspondent accounts they use to do business with foreign financial institutions if that account is being used to provide financial services to the North Korean Government or any of the companies and banks that have been found to enable the regime.

To completely cut the Kim regime out of the U.S financial system, this section also prohibits North Korea from conducting any transactions using U.S. dollars. This includes “U-turn” transactions, where funds are briefly transferred into dollars while being exchanged between North Korean won and another foreign currency. This will further restrict the regime's ability to do business abroad by targeting its use of the U.S. dollar as an intermediary when transferring funds between two foreign currencies.

Section 103. Limitations on foreign assistance to noncompliant governments.

This section amends existing law to make clear that foreign governments that buy or sell North Korea conventional weapons—a serious and continuing problem—are prohibited from receiving certain types of U.S. foreign assistance. It includes a reporting requirement to strengthen congressional oversight of this prohibition.

Section 104. Amendments to enhance inspection authorities.

North Korea continues to trade banned goods, utilizing evasion techniques that are “increasing in scale, scope and sophistication.” One recent ship interdiction seized the largest cache of ammunition in the history of North Korean sanctions. This section requires a report to Congress detailing foreign countries whose seaports and airports fail to inspect or seize the cargo of North Korean ships or aircraft, as required by United Nations Security Council resolutions. The Secretary of Homeland Security is authorized to implement enhanced screening of cargo bound for the United States that has transited one of these identified, failing seaports or airports.

Section 105. Enforcing compliance with United Nations shipping sanctions against North Korea.

This section prohibits any ships owned by the Government of North Korea or owned or operated on behalf of any country not complying with U.N. Security Council resolutions from operating in United States waters or landing at any U.S. port.

Section 106. Report on nuclear program cooperation between North Korea and Iran.

North Korea and Iran have cooperated in developing nuclear weapons, ballistic missiles, and conventional arms. This section requires a report to Congress detailing that cooperation and potential consequences.

Section 107. Report on implementation of United Nations Security Council resolutions by other governments.

This provision requires a report to Congress on foreign governments' compliance with and implementation of U.N. Security Council resolutions on North Korea. A recent investigation by North Korea experts found that implementation of these U.N. resolutions remains “insufficient and highly inconsistent.”

Section 108. Briefing on measures to deny specialized financial messaging services to designated North Korean financial institutions.

This section requires a briefing to Congress on entities that provide specialized financial messaging services to North Korean banks designated under U.N. Security Council resolutions. As banks use these services to conduct international transactions, this will help identify North Korean banks that remain connected to the international financial system.

TITLE II—SANCTIONS WITH RESPECT TO HUMAN RIGHTS ABUSES BY THE GOVERNMENT OF NORTH KOREA

Section 201. Sanctions for forced labor and slavery overseas of North Koreans.

This section prohibits goods produced in whole or part by North Korean forced labor from entering the United States. It also sanctions foreign persons that employ North Koreans who are forced to labor in inhumane conditions and are denied access to wages and benefits. Exporting forced labor to foreign countries is estimated to earn the regime billions of dollars of hard currency each year and represents a significant human rights violation.

Section 202. Modifications to sanctions suspension authorities.

This section ensures the delivery of potential humanitarian aid would not be adversely impacted. It also allows Korean-Americans to plan reunion meetings with relatives in North Korea.

Section 203. Reward for informants.

This section encourages whistleblowers to report violations of financial sanctions on North Korea by allowing the State Department to offer cash rewards for such information under the Department's existing rewards program.

Section 204. Report on designation of North Korea as a state sponsor of terrorism.

This section requires the administration to determine within 90 days whether the Government of North Korea should be re-designated as a State Sponsor of Terrorism. This determination will take into account widespread reports the North Korean Government has carried out assassinations, kidnappings, and other terrorist acts outside of its own borders, including the recent assassination in Malaysia of Kim Jong Un's exiled half-brother using a banned chemical substance

TITLE III—GENERAL AUTHORITIES

Section 301. Authority to consolidate reports.

This provision allows for the consolidation of reports consisting of similar units of time into a single report.

Section 302. Rule of construction.

This provision clarifies that this Act shall not limit the authority of the President to apply additional sanctions under "North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act of 2016."

Section 303. Regulatory authority.

This provision requires that the President promulgate regulations to implement this Act not later than 180 days after passage.

Section 304. Limitation on funds.

This provision states that no additional funds are authorized to carry out the requirements of this Act.

Such a designation shall recognize, within the designated area, the paramount right of navigation over all other uses.

(2) No designation may be made by the Secretary pursuant to this subsection, if such a designation, as implemented, would deprive any person of the effective exercise of a right granted by a lease or permit executed or issued under other applicable provisions of law: Provided, That such right has become vested prior to the time of publication of the notice required by clause (A) of paragraph (3) hereof: Provided further, That the determination as to whether the designation would so deprive any such person shall be made by the Secretary, after consultation with the responsible official under whose authority the lease was executed or the permit issued.

(3) Prior to making a designation pursuant to paragraph (1) hereof, and in accordance with the requirements of section 5, the Secretary shall—

(A) within six months after date of enactment of this Act (and may, from time to time thereafter), undertake a study of the potential traffic density and the need for safe access routes for vessels in any area for which fairways or traffic separation schemes are proposed or which may otherwise be considered and shall publish notice of such undertaking in the Federal Register;

(B) in consultation with the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Interior, the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of the Army, and the Governors of affected States, as their responsibilities may require, take into account all other uses of the area under consideration (including, as appropriate, the exploration for, or exploitation of, oil, gas, or other mineral resources, the construction or operation of deepwater ports or other structures on or above the seabed or subsoil of the submerged lands or the Outer Continental Shelf of the United States, the establishment or operation of marine or estuarine sanctuaries, and activities involving recreational or commercial fishing); and

(C) to the extent practicable, reconcile the need for safe access routes with the needs of all other reasonable uses of the area involved.

(4) In carrying out his responsibilities under paragraph (3), the Secretary shall proceed expeditiously to complete any study undertaken. Thereafter, he shall promptly issue a notice of proposed rulemaking for the designation contemplated or shall have published in the Federal Register a notice that no designation is contemplated as a result of the study and the reason for such determination.

(5) In connection with a designation made pursuant to this subsection, the Secretary—

(A) shall issue reasonable rules and regulations governing the use of such designated areas, including the applicability of rules 9 and 10 of the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, 1972, relating to narrow channels and traffic separation schemes, respectively, in waters where such regulations apply;

(B) to the extent that he finds reasonable and necessary to effectuate the purposes of the designation, make the use of designated fairways and traffic separation schemes mandatory for specific types and sizes of vessels, foreign and domestic, operating in the territorial sea of the United States and for specific types and sizes of vessels of the United States operating on the high seas beyond the territorial sea of the United States;

(C) may, from time to time, as necessary, adjust the location or limits of designated fairways or traffic separation schemes, in order to accommodate the needs of other uses which cannot be reasonably accommodated otherwise: Provided, That such an adjustment will not, in the judgment of the Secretary, unacceptably adversely affect the purpose for which the existing designation was made and the need for which continues; and

(D) shall, through appropriate channels, (i) notify cognizant international organizations of any designation, or adjustment thereof, and (ii) take action to seek the cooperation of foreign States in making it mandatory for vessels under their control to use any fairway or traffic separation scheme designated pursuant to this subsection in any area of the high seas, to the same extent as required by the Secretary for vessels of the United States.

(d) EXCEPTION.—Except pursuant to international treaty, convention, or agreement, to which the United States is a party, this Act shall not apply to any foreign vessel that is not destined for, or departing from, a port or place subject to the jurisdiction of the United States and that is in—

(1) innocent passage through the territorial sea of the United States, or

(2) transit through the navigable waters of the United States which form a part of an international strait.

(e) COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS.—(1) The Secretary may enter into cooperative agreements with public or private agencies, authorities, associations, institutions, corporations, organizations, or other persons to carry out the functions under subsection (a)(1).

(3) As used in this paragraph, the term “inherently governmental function” means any activity that is so intimately related
