A BILL

To establish a National Climate Bank.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “National Climate Bank Act”.

SEC. 2. NATIONAL CLIMATE BANK.

(a) In General.—Title LXII of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 21 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:
“CHAPTER FIVE—NATIONAL CLIMATE BANK

SEC. 5245. FINDINGS.

“Congress finds that—

“(1) the October 2018 report entitled ‘Special Report on Global Warming of 1.5 C’ by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change and the November 2018 Fourth National Climate Assessment report found that—

“(A) human activity is the dominant cause of observed climate change over the past century;

“(B) a changing climate is causing sea levels to rise and an increase in wildfires, severe storms, droughts, and other extreme weather events that threaten human life, healthy communities, and critical infrastructure;
“(C) global warming at or above 2 degrees Celsius beyond pre-industrialized levels will cause—

“(i) mass migration from the regions most affected by climate change;

“(ii) more than $500,000,000,000 in lost annual economic output in the United States by the year 2100;

“(iii) wildfires that, by 2050, will annually burn at least twice as much forest area in the western United States than was typically burned by wildfires in the years preceding 2019;

“(iv) a loss of more than 99 percent of all coral reefs on Earth;

“(v) more than 350,000,000 more people to be exposed globally to deadly heat stress by 2050; and

“(vi) a risk of damage to $1,000,000,000,000 of public infrastructure and coastal real estate in the United States; and

“(D) global temperatures must be kept below 1.5 degrees Celsius above pre-industrialized levels to avoid the most severe impacts of a changing climate, which will require—

“(i) global reductions in greenhouse gas emissions from human sources of 40 to 60 percent from 2010 levels by 2030; and

“(ii) net-zero global emissions by 2050;

“(2)(A) according to Bloomberg New Energy Finance, in 2018, approximately $64,000,000,000 was invested in renewable energy in the United States; and

“(B) according to the International Energy Agency, in 2018, approximately $42,000,000,000 was invested in energy efficiency in North America;

“(3) investments in renewable energy and energy efficiency have a demonstrated track record of increasing jobs while lowering the cost of new renewable energy investments, which benefits the clean energy economy;

“(4) green banks can be used to accelerate investment in—

“(A) new and emerging technologies; and

“(B) new and innovative financing products to leverage private sector financing;
“(5) green banking has a demonstrated track record of success at increasing investment in the clean energy economy;

“(6) green banks have led to $3,670,000,000 of investment in cost-effective clean energy projects across the United States, lowering energy costs for end-users, with that investment total composed of—

“(A) $1,079,000,000 in public funds; and

“(B) $2,591,000,000 in private and philanthropic capital;

“(7) in 2018, green banks were operating in a number of States and other jurisdictions, including—

“(A) the District of Columbia; and

“(B) the States of—

“(i) Colorado;

“(ii) Connecticut;

“(iii) Florida;

“(iv) Hawaii;

“(v) Maryland;

“(vi) Michigan;

“(vii) Nevada;

“(viii) New York; and

“(8) in the many different types of electricity markets around the country, achieving 100 percent market penetration of clean energy will require delivery of clean electric energy that is cheaper than alternative fossil-fuel based electricity;

“(9) market-based clean energy financing tools, such as those used by existing State and local green banks, can be used—

“(A) to accelerate the deployment of clean energy;

“(B) to reduce greenhouse gas emissions in the United States by substituting fossil-fuel based energy with lower-cost clean energy;

“(C) to unlock private investment by offering complementary capital that can change the dynamics of a capital stack and make new projects worth investing in for private sector capital providers; and

“(D) to open new markets for greater investment and increase opportunities for communities and the private sector; and

“(10) the Federal Government can accelerate and rapidly expand the deployment of clean energy technologies by creating a dedicated financial institution that can support the work of existing green banks and provide greater capital for efforts to reduce emissions, increasing the overall scale of clean energy investment and the pace of substitution of clean energy technologies for fossil-fuel based technologies.
