A BILL

To develop and nationally disseminate accurate, relevant, and accessible resources to promote understanding about African-American history.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4 This Act may be cited as the “1619 Act”.

5 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

6 Congress finds the following:

7 (1) The United States has demonstrated a com-
8 mitment to remembrance and education about the

1 experiences of African Americans in the United 2 States.

3 (2) Congress has played a critical role in pre-
4 serving the memory of the African-American experi-
5 ence in the United States and promoting awareness
6 by recognizing African-American History Month in 7 1976 to “seize the opportunity to honor the too-
8 often neglected accomplishments of black Americans
9 in every area of endeavor throughout our history.”.

10 (3) 400 years after the first slaves were brought 11 to American shores, and growing distance of stu-
12 dents and their families from this history, it is im-
13 portant to institutionalize education about the events
14 of African-American history such as slavery, the 15 Civil War, Reconstruction, Jim Crow, and the Civil 16 Rights Movement, which led to monumental legisla-
17 tion like the Civil Rights Act and the Voting Rights
18 Act, among other notable events.

19 (4) As intolerance, bigotry, and racism are pro-
20 moted by hate groups, African-American history
21 education provides a context in which to learn about 22 the danger of what can happen when hate goes un-
23 challenged and there is indifference in the face of 24 the oppression of others. The African-American ex-

1       perience is an important component of the education
2       of citizens of the United States.

3           (5) Today, those who deny the importance of 4       African-American history or distort the true nature
5       of the Africa-American experience continue to find
6       forums, especially online. This denial and distortion
7       dishonors those who were persecuted and murdered,
8       making it even more of a national imperative to edu-
9       cate students in the United States so that they may 10      explore the lessons that African-American history
11      provides for all people, sensitize communities to the 12      circumstances that gave rise to the African-Amer-
13      ican experience, and help youth be less susceptible to 14      the falsehood about African-American history and 15      destructive messages of hate that arise from Afri-
16      can-American history denial and distortion.

17           (6) Currently, 7 States (Arkansas, Florida, Illi-
18      nois, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, and Rhode 19      Island) require by law that schools, in collaboration
20      with special K–12 Black history oversight commit-
21      tees, teach students about African-American history.
22      More schools and teachers, including those in under-
23      served communities, can and should deliver quality
24      African-American history education.

1           (7) For more than 4 years, the National Mu-
2           seum of African American History and Culture has 3           worked to build and support the field of African-
4           American history education, and advance the quality
5           and sustainability of African-American history edu-
6           cation at the local, State, and national levels, by en-7           gaging teachers and students across disciplines and 8           grade levels.

9           (8) The Federal Government, through support
10          for educational activities of national museums estab-
11          lished under Federal law, can assist teachers in ef-
12          forts to incorporate historically accurate instruction
13          on human rights atrocities, including the African-14          American experience, in curricula.
