House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Espaillat).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, March 12, 2019.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Adriano Espaillat to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2019, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties. All time shall be equally allocated between the parties, and in no event shall debate continue beyond 11:50 a.m. Each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, shall be limited to 5 minutes.

END HUNGER NOW

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) for 5 minutes.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, in September 2017, Puerto Rico was hit by two major hurricanes, Irma and Maria, both of which caused catastrophic damage, displaced thousands of families, and killed almost 3,000 American citizens. Adding insult to injury, the Trump administration organized an embarrassingly slow and ineffective response during Puerto Rico’s time of need.

Last July, FEMA released a report acknowledging many of their shortcomings in responding to Hurricane Maria. And I am sure we all remember images of the President tastelessly throwing paper towels at families during his relief visit, as if he were shooting free throws at a basketball game. It has been a year and a half since Hurricane Maria, and Puerto Rico has made incredible strides to rebuild, but many, many families are still struggling. These are American citizens who pay taxes and who work hard, just like mainland Americans, but for some reason, the Trump administration is having a hard time empathizing.

When I think of all the ways the Trump administration has attacked low-income and working families, I can’t say I am surprised.

Last week, The Washington Post reported that Puerto Rico was forced to start cutting its Nutrition Assistance Program, SNAP, benefits. Puerto Rico’s food assistance program is funded by a capped block grant separate from SNAP. While other Federal nutrition programs like WIC and school meals operate in Puerto Rico the same as in other States and territories, Puerto Rico remains disadvantaged because their Nutrition Assistance Program funds are static.

In order to receive nutrition assistance in Puerto Rico, you have to have a lower income—to receive less assistance—than someone who lives on the mainland. It also limits the program’s flexibility to respond to changes in demand. When the hurricane struck, additional funds had to be given to NAP to accommodate more participants. These forced cuts will reduce Puerto Rico’s food assistance benefits by 25 percent for 1.3 million people. That is 43 percent of Puerto Rico’s population.

It doesn’t happen overnight. It doesn’t take months. It takes years to recover from the devastation that Hurricane Maria caused, and Puerto Rico has continued to fight and advocate for disaster funds, unlike States on the mainland.

Time is running out, and we can’t allow these cuts to continue. This is a moral question for all of us here in this Chamber. This is about how we can do more for our fellow Americans who are recovering from a natural disaster.

It is all on us to act. It is all on us to end hunger now.

CELEBRATING NATIONAL AGRICULTURE WEEK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from...
Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today, during National Agriculture Week, to celebrate American farmers and farm families.

This national effort recognizes and celebrates the abundance provided by American agriculture. It also reminds citizens that agriculture is a part of all of us and plays a critical economic and food security role.

Thursday is National Ag Day, which began in 1935 as a way to increase public awareness of agriculture’s role in society. National Ag Day encourages every American to understand how food and fiber products are produced; appreciate the role agriculture plays in providing safe, abundant, and affordable products; value the essential role of agriculture in maintaining a strong economy; and acknowledge and consider career opportunities in the agriculture, food, and fiber industries.

In the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, we are fortunate to have more than 58,000 farmers. These men and women are the lifeline of the Commonwealth, as agriculture is our number one industry.

Our farmers produce a safe and abundant food supply, including our dairy farmers, who produce the milk that is stocked in the cases of our supermarkets and in lunchrooms across America.

My bill, the Whole Milk for Healthy Kids Act, would further expand milk choices in our schools. It would allow for whole milk, both flavored and unflavored, to be offered in school cafeterias.

Mr. Speaker, milk was once a staple in the diets of our students, but consumption in schools has dramatically decreased since the Healthy, Hunger-Free Act of 2010—which demonized milk fat, which is where nutrition and flavor is found.

Milk is the number one source of nine essential nutrients in the diets of many young Americans. We can provide the foundation for a solid, healthy lunch in our schools that also tastes great and students will want to drink.

When students don’t consume milk, they are not getting nutrients such as calcium, potassium, and vitamin D.

I urge my colleagues to cosponsor the Whole Milk for Healthy Kids Act, and support expanded milk choices in our schools.

Cybersecurity Skills Integration

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1592, the Cybersecurity Skills Integration Act.

As co-chair of the House Career and Technical Education Caucus, I am proud that we continue to provide the resources necessary to have a dominant and prosperous workforce. For instance, this past July, we authorized the Carl D. Perkins Act to advance career and technical education.

We must prepare a 21st century workforce to meet the technical demands our country is facing now and into the future. That is why, together with my friend, Congressman Jim Langevin, we have introduced a bill that promotes the integration of cybersecurity education into new and established postsecondary CTE programs.

With more than 16 critical infrastructure sectors in our country, we must prepare the next generation of learners to have the most sophisticated and comprehensive educational programs to protect our Nation’s most dire assets, systems, and networks.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I thank Mr. Langevin for his work and leadership on this issue.

EPA’s Decision on Redwood City Salt Ponds

The SPEIER pro temore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SPEIER) for 5 minutes.

Ms. SPEIER. Mr. Speaker, I am outraged, and not just at the political appointees in the EPA’s Washington, D.C., office, but at the complete opposite conclusion, the EPA determined in 2016 that came to a complete flop. That is why I am submitting this draft determination in its entirety for public record.

Draft Redwood City Salt Ponds JD Executive Summary

This document constitutes the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s (EPA) determination of the federal jurisdictional status of the Redwood City Salt Ponds for purposes of the Clean Water Act (CWA). This CWA jurisdictional determination applies to the Redwood City Salt Ponds property (the “Redwood City Salt Ponds” or the “Property”) depicted in Figure 1. The Property is approximately 1,365 contiguous acres adjacent to Westpoint Slough, a part of San Francisco Bay, located near Seaport Boulevard, Redwood City, San Mateo County, California. Within the boundaries of the subject area, approximately 95 acres of the Property are not “waters of the United States” where they are above the High Tide Line on the outer side of the perimeter levees bounding the Property, and above the Ordinary High Water Mark on the levee interiors. These non-jurisdictional areas consist of levees, building pads and other features converted to fast land before passage of the CWA.

The remaining estimated 1,270 acres within the subject area are “waters of the United States” as defined by the CWA, because: (1) the tidal channels within the Redwood City Salt Ponds were part of the traditionally navigable waters of San Francisco Bay, and were not converted to fast land prior to enactment of the Clean Water Act; (2) the tidal channels within the Redwood City Salt Ponds in their current condition have been shown to be navigable in fact, and are susceptible to use in interstate or foreign commerce with reasonable improvements; (3) the salt ponds are impoundments of water otherwise defined as waters of the United States; and (4) the salt ponds have a significant nexus to the traditionally navigable waters of the adjacent San Francisco Bay.

RECOGNIZING THE LIFE AND LEGACY OF THE HONORABLE RICHARD DALE NICHOLS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MARSHALL) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness that I speak today about the loss of the great Kansan and former Member of the United States Congress, my friend, Mr. Richard Dale Nichols.

Dick was born in southeast Kansas and honorably served his country in World War II as a member of the United States Navy. Upon returning to Kansas, he attended Kansas State University and was a fellow Beta Theta Pi fraternity brother.

After graduation, Dick entered the banking industry and, ultimately, settled down in McPherson, Kansas, where he served as president and then as chairman of the board for Home State Bank & Trust.

In 1980, Dick was elected to the United States Congress, representing the Fifth Congressional District of Kansas. Two years later, following the census, Dick’s district was eliminated, and he returned to life as a businessman, but he never gave up his passion and love for our country.

Dick served as president of the Kansas Bankers Association, was active in the local Chamber of Commerce, and was a fellow Rotarian. He was a proud man, but he never gave up his passion and love for our country.

Dick and will always be grateful for the time I spent with him as打败 Kansas State athletics, fellow Beta fraternity brothers, and Republican politicians.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Dick’s wife, Linda, and the entire Nichols family as they mourn the loss of a great Kansan and a great man. He will certainly be missed.

RESTORING INTEGRITY OF SUPPLEMENTAL NUTRITION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Speaker, I stand in support of Secretary Sonny Perdue and the Department of Agriculture’s proposed rule to restore the integrity of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program and implement the program as a safety net, not a way of life.

In 2019, too many able-bodied men and women remain on the sidelines of our workforce. Recent data published by the U.S. Federal Reserve in February indicate a historically robust economy yet sluggish labor force participation rates, indicating a continued reluctance by some to engage in the workplace.

According to data from USDA, we have more families accepting SNAP dollars today than we did at the height of the financial crisis of 2008. Despite major economic gains and today’s record low unemployment; too many States are allowing people to opt out of work, leaving employers to spend valuable resources searching for men and women to fill our many vacant jobs.

By requiring able-bodied adults without minor dependents who are seeking SNAP benefits to work at least 20 hours a week while participating in training or educational programs, we are ensuring these men and women are no longer disengaged from the labor market, but finding a way back to the workforce and long-term self-sufficiency.

This Nation’s economy is as strong as it has been in my professional lifetime. We must continue to encourage individuals to become self-sufficient and find new employment opportunities.

For too long, States have bypassed the rules and allowed able-bodied adults to neglect valuable job training and educational opportunities.

Employers across the country have good-paying jobs that can help individuals move out of poverty and regain their independence and dignity.

It is time we restore SNAP to its intended purpose, help men and women move back into the workforce, and take a major step in closing the workforce participation gap.

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to discuss the progress made over the past two years to close the digital divide.

Access to a reliable internet connection remains a significant challenge in rural America and across my district. Society is becoming more and more reliant on broadband, whether for access to educational resources, telemedicine, or precision agriculture technology.

At the beginning, more than 26 million Americans did not have access to high-speed internet. However, in a recent draft report circulated by Chairwoman Pai, that number dropped to just over 19 million at the end of 2017, with many of these new connections being in rural America. According to that report, fiber was deployed to another almost 6 million homes by the end of 2018, which is the largest number ever recorded.

Reducing regulatory burdens for deployment has helped to incentivize investment. Our local providers are working hard to leverage Federal programs, private dollars, and savings from the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act to further deploy broadband infrastructure to rural communities, better connecting our farmers, small businesses, and families.

Companies like Rockhouse Motion, a digital media company in Genesee, Kansas, or Rollin J Boutique in Phillipsburg, Kansas, both in my district, are able to thrive thanks to that internet connection.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud our efforts at the FCC, the USDA, and Congress to make broadband access in rural America both affordable and reliable. I also encourage my colleagues to continue working to ensure that Americans have access to an internet connection no matter where they live.

CELEBRATING GIRL SCOUTS ON THEIR 107TH ANNIVERSARY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Oklahoma (Ms. KENDRA S. HORN) for 5 minutes.

Ms. KENDRA S. HORN of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Girl Scouts of the United States as it celebrates its 107th birthday today.

On this day in 1912, Juliette Gordon Low founded this organization for, in her words, the girls of Savannah and of all America and of the world.

As you might be able to tell from the pictures next to me, Girl Scouts holds a special place in my heart. Girls Scouts prepares girls to empower themselves, promotes compassion, courage, confidence, character, leadership, entrepreneurship, and active citizenship.

You see, my life has been shaped, as have many other girls and women throughout this country, in large part by the lessons I learned through scouting. From my great-grandmother, to my grandmother, to my mother, to myself, Girl Scouts and the values that they taught me are the foundation that Girl Scouts helped me to achieve have helped carry me through life.

For more than a century, the Girl Scouts have taught girls to be go-getters, innovators, risk-takers, and leaders.

Today, with a record number of women serving in the U.S. Congress, there are also a record number of Girl Scouts. Fifty-eight percent of the women in the U.S. House of Representatives are Girl Scouts and 73 percent of female U.S. Senators are Girl Scouts.

Though there are hundreds of Girl Scout alums in both houses of Congress, there are three of us who earned scouting’s highest honor: myself, Congresswoman LAUREN UNDERWOOD, and Senator TAMMY DUCKWORTH.

This award, the Gold Award, is given to high schoolers after they identify an issue in their community, investigate it, build a team, build a plan, and implement it. These hands-on or take-action projects must have sustainable impacts on the community. They can be petitions to add playgrounds to local parks, recycling campaigns, building emergency kits, and on and on and on, but the one thing they have in common is a sustainability requirement. They simply can’t be a one shot. They must create lasting change.

Girl Scouts teaches its members to look for the root cause of a problem, not simply the symptoms.

The Gold Award is the highest achievement in all of Girl Scouts. Congress isn’t the only place as well that Girl Scouts have gone into public... service. Three Secretaries of State, Condoleezza Rice, Madeleine Albright, and Hillary Clinton, were all Girl Scouts, and virtually every single female astronaut has also been a Girl Scout.

Today, more than 50 million women alive have participated in Girl Scouts growing up. I am proud to say that for the Girl Scouts of western Oklahoma, there are today 14,000 girls who are members. Worldwide, Girl Scouts has 2.6 million current girl and adult members.

Although Girl Scouts is perhaps best known for the entrepreneurial skills it introduces through the cookie program, it does so much more to develop leadership skills in girls. It teaches them how to advocate for themselves, for others, and it gives them a voice beginning at a very young age.

Programs introduce girls to science, technology, engineering, art, and mathematics, often paths where girls might not otherwise be encouraged or supported to go on their own. Those STEAM programs introduce girls to these important areas and help them to move through challenges. Girls also learn about the outdoors through going on long treks, camping, kayaking, mountain biking, and countless other activities, all while learning how to minimize their impact on the environment.

Bottom line, Girl Scouts teaches girls the skills they need and they might not get elsewhere about healthy relationships, soft skills, financial literacy, nutrition and health. All of these journeys are designed by girls and for girls, following evidence-based approaches that ensure they fit girls and foster their growth.

I am honored today to rise to celebrate the Girl Scouts on their 106th anniversary as fourth generation Girl Scout and Gold Award recipient.

SOCIALISM LEADS TO HUMAN MISERY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BROOKS) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROOKS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, a prominent American socialist politician recently proclaimed that “capitalism is irredeemable.”

Mr. Speaker, capitalism, better known as free enterprise, is based on freedom and liberty, not government dictate.

The claim that freedom and liberty should give way to government control and dictatorship is astonishing, sad, and alien to the America that I know. It is a betrayal of the freedom and liberty Americans have fought and died for, a freedom that has given America the best gross domestic product, the most wealth of any nation in history. In sum, the argument that free enterprise is bad and irredeemable is the height of economic ignorance, and economic stupidity.

Mr. Speaker, it is one thing for an argument to be economically ignorant and stupid, it is another thing for it to be dangerous to human life. In that vein, the argument that socialism is better than free enterprise is not only a betrayal of America’s foundational principles of freedom and liberty; it is also dangerous and must be dealt with quickly and severely.

History is replete with examples of dead or dying nations that have paid a heavy price for succumbing to socialist politicians who care more about personal and dictatorial power, who care more about the nanny state, than the welfare of their own people.

For those who refuse to learn from history, I suggest reading George Orwell’s prophetic book “Animal Farm.” It explains all you need to know about how and why socialism fails and who rules in a Socialist society.

Venezuela’s economic and humanitarian catastrophe is a present-day, glaring lesson that warns all tempted by the siren song of socialism. Thousands of Venezuelans are dying from malnutrition, disease, and lack of food and medicine. The result: deadly riots.

In 2018 alone, a staggering 7,523 civilians were murdered due to clashes with military and state police forces.

Mothers are forced to choose which child to feed and which child goes hungry.

In 2017, the average Venezuelan lost 24 pounds because they could not get the calories necessary to maintain their body weight. Today, there are Venezuelans searching for food in trash cans who are fortunate if they can eat once a day.

As Venezuelans lose hope, suicide rates have skyrocketed to almost twice the global suicide rate.

Venezuela’s socialist economy has collapsed. 2018’s inflation rate soared to 80,000 percent. Nearly 90 percent of the population is living below the poverty line.

Even electricity is unreliable, as Caracas suffers from sporadic total power failures, casting Venezuela’s capital city into darkness.

Worse yet, Venezuela’s socialism promotes crime and lawlessness by desperate citizens. According to a 2018 report by the World Economic Forum, Venezuela is the second most dangerous country in the world, with Caracas coming in as the second most dangerous city overall with 111 homicides per 100,000 residents.

Venezuela’s suffering even extends beyond its borders, as thousands of refugees flee to neighboring countries that cannot take care of them.

Venezuela is a man-made catastrophe brought about by tyrannical dictators and self-proclaimed bosses that are always the result of socialist policies.

Mr. Speaker, America must learn from Venezuela, a country that succumbed to evil socialist sales pitches even though history proves socialism has failed every single time.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues and America to reject socialism lest America go down the same path of financial self-destruction as Venezuela.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I urge America to reject self-proclaimed dictators and bosses who seek to deprive America of our hard-fought and hard-won freedom and liberty.

THE PRESIDENT IS UNFIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, and still I rise. I do so today because I love my country and I believe in what it stands for.

Because I love it and believe in what it stands for, I believe that my country is worth liberty and justice for all. I believe it is worth government of the people, by the people, for the people. I believe that it is worth the belief that all persons are created equal and endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, among them, life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Our country is worth it. And because our country is worth making real these great and noble American ideals, I do not believe that an unfit President should be allowed to stay in office.

If we acknowledge that the President is unfit, if we say that he is causing harm to society, then we have to honor Article II, section 4 of the Constitution of the United States of America, which calls for the impeachment of an unfit President who is causing harm to society.

This is where I stood some many, many weeks ago, this is where I stand now, and I stand here because I love my country.

CONGRATULATING TOM DORSETT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX) for 5 minutes.

Ms. FOXX of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise to salute Mr. Tom Dorsett of Yadkin County in North Carolina’s Fifth District. Mr. Dorsett is about to retire from his very successful business, Dorsett Technologies, which, since 1977, he has grown into the innovative and thriving business it is today.

Mr. Dorsett, his wife, Jo, and their excellent employees have built the business from a small heating and air-conditioning supply and service business to one of the most innovative businesses in the area. Today, the company specializes in automation for buildings and municipal water and wastewater systems.

Municipalities across the country use Dorsett Technologies’ InfoScan software to control systems for energy, security, and water. The company has even supplied the U.S. Army, Air Force, and NASA with its cutting-edge technology.
Along the way, the company and the Dorsett family have been outstanding philanthropists for virtually every good cause and nonprofit in Yadkin County. Their support ranges from the Yadkin County Arts Council to the Yadkin County Rotary Club, the United Church, United Community Chamber of Commerce, Yadkin Christian Ministries, and the Yadkin County Community Foundation.

Mr. Dorsett is a visionary. Understanding the need to develop young people for the jobs of the future, Mr. Dorsett has led the effort to promote robotics education in the school system, giving and raising money for the program, which has become one of the most popular in the area. The Dorsetts were also lead gift givers for the Yadkin Arts Council, which renovated an area of the downtown into a very successful arts center a few years ago. He is a renaissance man, but he and his family seek no recognition for the positive things they do; although, recognition is much deserved.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the Dorsetts for being such positive role models and for their generous support of the Yadkinville community. We wish them well in their retirement.

PRUDENTIAL SPIRIT AWARD

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BACON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BACON. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise to recognize and congratulate one of the distinguished finalists for the Prudential Spirit of Community Awards, Millard South High School senior, Carly Renken, from Gretna, Nebraska.

Carly is a cofounder of the nonprofit Special Musicians, which conducts music sessions for over 40 kids with special needs in the Omaha metro area. The organization is designed to provide an inclusive, safe, and fun learning environment; teaches basic music theory; features instrument playing, singing, and dancing; and culminates with a performance in front of friends and family members.

In 1995, Prudential Financial partnered with the National Association of Secondary School Principals to create a program that focused on the importance of community service and volunteer work to inspire other Americans to help those in need. More than 29,000 students across the country participated in the 28th annual Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program. I ask that you all join me in recognizing Carly for her passion and service and thank Prudential Financial for taking the time to encourage our youth in the pursuit of selfless sacrifice.

CONGRATULATING TREY MYTTY

Mr. DRENNON. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise to support the constituent of mine who was recognized this past January as the 2019 Dealer of the Year by the American Truck Dealers.

Trey Mytty is the President and CEO of Truck Center Companies, which is headquartered in Omaha, Nebraska, located in my congressional district. Truck Center Companies has eight dealerships, including parts and service facilities in Nebraska, Kansas, and Iowa, and is an authorized Daimler Trucks franchise. Of the nearly 575 employees, almost 25 percent of his staff are military veterans or active in the Reserves or National Guard.

In 1990, while in high school, Mr. Mytty began a career with Truck Center Companies, then known as Omaha Truck Center. He started out by washing trucks and ensuring the workplace was clean. After earning his degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and working his way through the ranks, Trey became the dealer principal and the owner of Truck Center Companies.

The 2019 Dealer of the Year is a national award recognizing a commercial dealer who exhibits exceptional performance in their dealerships and performs distinguished community service. Trey was chosen, in part, for his support of Make-A-Wish Nebraska by sponsoring an annual golf outing. To date, the dealership has raised over $2.6 million, with a goal of $3 million in 2019.

In addition, Mr. Mytty and Truck Center Companies donate to multiple area technical schools, and the company has developed training programs to integrate young professionals into the truck retail industry.

Earlier this year, Mr. Mytty began a 2-year role as president of the Daimler Trucks North America Dealer Council, demonstrating his selfless leadership to his fellow truck dealers.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of all of the constituents of Nebraska’s Second District, please join me in congratulating Trey Mytty on being named the 2019 PRUDENTIAL SPIRIT AWARD

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Mytty, and his family, and the dealership staff at Truck Center Companies continued success and a prosperous future.

RECOGNIZING SHERRY WRIGHT

Mr. BACON. Mr. Speaker, in honor of Women’s History Month, I would like to recognize a constituent of the Second District of Nebraska, Sherry Wright, the first African American woman to receive a military commission from the University of Nebraska-Omaha’s ROTC program.

As a single mother, Sherry worked for 30 years in the United States Post Office, ground transportation. After serving in the Air Force, Sherry worked for 30 years in the United States Post Office, totaling 35 years of government service.

Now retired, Sherry’s selflessness and consideration for children has motivated her to create programs that educate and empower today’s youth. She has also taken children on educational field trips. At her own expense, she flew children to Disney World so that they could experience an airplane ride for the first time and know that there is a world outside of their neighborhood.

She founded and organized the Increase the Peace campaign, an organization to challenge youth to think about peace and what they can do to help their communities through writing and art. She has been an active board member of the Greater Omaha Neighborhood Coalition, the Drew Medical Health Clinic, the city of Omaha’s Homelessness Committee, and the Omaha Housing Authority board.

Not only is Sherry a published author of the book, “Somethin’ in My Water,” she is an Outstanding Service for Women of Color Award nominee and a recipient of the Henry Career Women of Nebraska and the UNO Woman of Color Award as well. She was also made an admiral of the Nebraska Navy by former Governor Dave Heineman.

Mr. Speaker, Sherry continues to lead by example and live through Christ as she serves and cares for her neighbor. Her willingness to serve our country and her local community makes her a positive role model, humble individual, and empowering community activist.

HONORING MAURA DUGGAN

Mr. BACON. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise with a heavy heart that I rise today to honor the life and memory of an amazing Bucks County resident, Maura Duggan, whom we recently lost after a courageous battle with cancer.

Maura was a longtime resident of Newtown, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. She married her husband, Thomas Duggan, in 1981, and, together, they raised three amazing children: Patrick, Collin, and Carlie.

Maura was beloved by her family and her friends and was known for her adventuresome spirit, her unwavering kindness, and her ability to appreciate the small things and to find joy in everyday life.

Mr. Speaker, we, as a House, send our deepest condolences to the Duggan family. I am grateful to them for sharing Maura’s life with all of us in Bucks County.

Maura touched so many lives and helped so many people. She is now enjoying her eternal reward for living her life serving others.

Maura was a longtime resident of Newtown, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. She married her husband, Thomas Duggan, in 1981, and, together, they raised three amazing children: Patrick, Collin, and Carlie.

Maura was beloved by her family and her friends and was known for her adventurous spirit, her unwavering kindness, and her ability to appreciate the small things and to find joy in everyday life.

Mr. Speaker, we, as a House, send our deepest condolences to the Duggan family. I am grateful to them for sharing Maura’s life with all of us in Bucks County.

Maura touched so many lives and helped so many people. She is now enjoying her eternal reward for living her life serving others.
Mr. FITZPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, just under 1 year ago, I stood in this very spot to recognize the outstanding work of Mary’s Cupboard, a food pantry in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. It is with a heavy heart that I rise today to mourn the passing of one of the founders of Mary’s Cupboard, Marion Slack, who passed away at the age of 96.

Marion, a longtime resident of Middletown Township in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, lived a life of devotion to her family, to her community, and to her Catholic faith. Marion truly embodied what it meant to live out one’s faith each and every day.

Inspired after meeting Mother Teresa, she established Mary’s Cupboard more than 40 years ago in Levittown, an emergency food center. A parishioner at Queen of the Universe Parish, Marion was previously recognized as Catholic Woman of the Year by the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Speaker, our entire community stands by her children: Mary Ellen, Maureen, Eileen, and Ann Marie, along with the entire Mary’s Cupboard family.

Marion is now enjoying her eternal reward for a life of service, and her legacy of service to Bucks County will last for generations.

TUBEROUS SCLEROSIS ALLIANCE

Mr. FITZPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, I had the pleasure of meeting with advocates from the Tuberous Sclerosis Alliance here in Washington, D.C., last week. In each and every speaking with them to express my strong support for the continuation of funding for the Tuberous Sclerosis Complex Research Program in the fiscal year 2020 Department of Defense Appropriations Act.

Tuberous Sclerosis Complex, or TSC, is a genetic disorder that can cause tumor growth in vital organs in the human body. It occurs in approximately 1 in 6,000 births.

Mr. Speaker, I want to share the story of the Miller family, constituents of mine from Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

Nearly 5 years ago, Lindsey and her husband, Dave, welcomed their daughter, Ellie, into the world. While Ellie was born with TSC, she has not let it stop her from being just like every other kid. She is developmentally on track, she enjoys preschool with her friends, and she sees her doctors regularly at the Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia.

However, there is no way to currently gauge how TSC will affect Ellie in the years to come. That is why funding for the Tuberous Sclerosis Complex Research Program is so vitally important.

This program has my full support, and I encourage all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support it as well. I thank my colleagues, Mr. MULLIN from Oklahoma and Mr. LOEBSACK from Iowa, for their leadership on this issue.

Again, I ask all of my colleagues to join me in this very worthy cause on behalf of all dealing with this across our Nation.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until noon today.

Accordingly (at 10 o’clock and 41 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at noon.

PRAYER

Rabbi Claudio J. Kogan, University of Texas Rio Grande Valley School of Medicine, Edinburg, Texas, offered the following prayer:

God, source of all living things, we ask Your blessings upon these representatives of the people who have devoted their lives to our welfare.

Strengthen them with Your courage; inspire them as they answer the Prophets’ call to feed the hungry and to clothe the naked, to lift up those in this land and in all lands who cannot stand on their own.

Bless them with the capacity to hear and to listen. May this body, which hosts rigorous and robust debate, embrace diversity without division, unity without uniformity.

May this House promote justice, moral clarity, ethical living, righteousness, and acts of kindness.

As an immigrant who came to this country 20 years ago and became an American citizen just 7 years ago, I join this House in a prayer of profound gratitude and deep appreciation for the blessings we, the people of the United States of America, are privileged to enjoy.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SCHNEIDER) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. SCHNEIDER. Madam Speaker, no American should face legal discrimination because of who they are or who they love.

As a Nation, we have made stunning progress toward realizing this dream of full equality and acceptance for our LGBTQ family, friends, and neighbors. But despite our success, including repealing Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell and achieving marriage equality as the law of the land, there is more work to do.

In many States across this country, LGBTQ individuals remain vulnerable to discrimination, with little recourse. Under the current laws protected by civil rights laws, LGBTQ Americans can be fired from their jobs, evicted from their apartments, or refused service at a restaurant simply because of who they are.

The current patchwork of State laws is not enough.

That is why I am proud to join with my colleagues to again introduce the Equality Act to ensure protection already extended to other protected classes are equally available to LGBTQ Americans.

It is time we prohibit discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity in education, employment, housing, credit, Federal jury service, public accommodations, and the use of Federal funds.

Let's make full equality a reality for all of us.

CONGRATULATING CRANE SYSTEMS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, in honor of National Vending Day, it is appropriate to celebrate the millions of Americans who get beverages, snacks, and unlimited items from vending machines.

Crane Merchandising Systems of Williston, South Carolina, managed by Rich Tucker, is a leading full-service vending solutions provider and employs over 700 associates. Crane is one of the largest employers of the Barnwell County region, and I am grateful for their success creating jobs. The automatic merchandising industry in America promotes an economic impact of nearly $25 billion with 150,000 employees. Not only does the industry meet the needs of consumers around the world, it also contributes $7.21 billion in wages to the economy and pays $3.5 billion in taxes.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

ROBOCALL TELEMARKETING AND SPOOFING

(Mr. VAN DREW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VAN DREW. Madam Speaker, thank you for allowing me to speak against robocall telemarketing and spoofing.

Our constituents, whether Republican, Democratic, or independent, are tired of being harassed by telemarketers and spoofers. People deserve to have their privacy and to be left alone. However, robocall scams are at an all-time high.

That is why I have introduced H.R. 1575, to crack down on abusive, annoying, and illegal robocalls.

Data shows that, in 2017, the FCC reported more than 4.5 million robocall complaints, an increase of more than 1 million from the previous year. More than 300,000 complaints were registered in the State of New Jersey alone.

This act helps protect consumers by ensuring that robocallers and scammers are prosecuted to the full extent of the law. That is why I ask for support of H.R. 1575.

NATIONAL AGRICULTURE WEEK

(Mr. ALLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALLEN. Madam Speaker, I rise here today in recognition of National Agriculture Week.

Back home in Georgia's 12th District and across the Peach State as a whole, agriculture is the number one industry. This week is about recognizing farmers and ranchers nationwide who sacrifice their blood, sweat, and tears to secure the safest, most abundant food supply in the world.

I grew up on a farm, and since being elected to Congress, I have had the distinct honor of serving on the House Agriculture Committee. I could not be prouder of what we have accomplished, especially getting the 2018 farm bill over the finish line.

It is without a doubt that agriculture touches all our lives in one way or another.

Many farmers in my district and across Georgia are hurt from the recent devastation caused by Hurricane Michael. I am doing all I can to ensure that they receive necessary and adequate financial assistance ahead of the upcoming planting season. I know my Senate colleagues are working to get this done as well, but the urgency of this simply cannot be overstated.

Rural America needs us to act now.

Madam Speaker, again, I thank all our farmers who work hard every day to feed and clothe this great Nation and the world.

AFFORDABLE HEALTHCARE IS A RIGHT

(Mr. MALINOWSKI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MALINOWSKI. Madam Speaker, today, I rise to tell the story of three very special young men from my district.

Edward Roman and his twin brother, Edwin, were diagnosed with a heart condition that took them through multiple surgeries. Both worked at the Village Trattoria restaurant in Summit, New Jersey, where they met Quinn Butler, a senior at Summit High.

When Quinn learned of what they were going through, he set up a GoFundMe site that raised $119,000 in 2 weeks.

It is a story of good people coming together to say they will not let a neighbor down, but it is also a story of how our healthcare system lets us all down.

A community should not have to going into debt due to a medical condition. Two young men worried about staying alive should not have to worry about negotiating with hospitals and insurance companies to stay solvent.

Every American deserves the security of knowing that affordable healthcare is a right that will follow us wherever we go, wherever we live and work, whatever misfortune may befall us.

Madam Speaker, our friends and neighbors will always do what they can. Now it is up to the Congress to do what we must.

CHRONIC WASTING DISEASE

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I made an amendment to the 2018 farm bill that gives priority status to chronic wasting disease under the research portion of the bill, and I will be introducing legislation to help identify and address the root causes of chronic wasting disease.

This past Saturday, my colleague and friend, Congressman JOHN JOYCE, and I were at the East Freedom Fire Hall with 300 hunters. At this event, chronic wasting disease was at the forefront.

While the science is developing, a cure is still years away and needs considerable funding to make it a reality. It is my hope that, through research, we can successfully cure chronic wasting disease.

TRUMP BUDGET AND GATEWAY

(Mr. PAYNE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAYNE. Madam Speaker, I wonder if President Trump intended for his budget to be a joke. He entitled it “Better America” but proposed massive cuts to education programs, the Special Olympics, Medicare, Medicaid, and AIDS programs.

Nothing about that will make America better. In fact, it will make life worse for millions of Americans.

Trump also likes to call himself the Builder President, but his budget includes not a single penny to fund the country’s most critical infrastructure project, the Gateway project.

Gateway is a nationally significant project to replace the crumbling tunnels that run under the Hudson River and connect New York and New Jersey. It is a critical project to truly build a better America. After all, Gateway is the linchpin of Amtrak's Northeast Corridor, which supports 30 percent of the Nation's jobs and produces 20 percent of our GDP.

The Gateway project isn't just about connecting New York and New Jersey. It is about ensuring the stability of the national economy and the free flow of workers from North Carolina to Maine. Trump can't be the Builder President if he doesn't build anything.

Mr. COLLINS of Georgia. Madam Speaker, last week, on the floor of this Chamber, I released a transcript of the interview of Page Ohr from our investigation into apparent wrongdoing at the FBI and DOJ. At that time I said I would make additional transcripts from the committee's investigation public, and I am here today to keep that promise.

As I stated then, our interview transcripts were pertinent to a congressional investigation, but the 115th Congress ended, the investigation was closed, and copies were shared with certain Member of Congress.

Madam Speaker, I include in the Record the link www.dougcollins.house.gov/page so the American people can review the transcript of Lisa Page.

The American people deserve to know what transpired in the highest echelons of the FBI during that tumultuous time for the Bureau.

Out of an abundance of caution, the transcript has a limited number of narrowly tailored redactions, relating only to confidential sources and methods, nonpublic information about ongoing investigations, and nonmaterial personal information.

I will continue to work to release as many transcripts as possible. The American people deserve transparency.

VENEZUELA

(Ms. SHALALALA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. SHALALALA. Madam Speaker, last weekend, I traveled to the Colombia-Venezuela border to see firsthand the catastrophic humanitarian and public health crisis caused by the criminal Maduro regime.

I met with refugees at a hospital in Colombia and heard their harrowing stories of being on the verge of death due to malnutrition, treatable diseases, and a lack of medical care for high-risk pregnancies.

People with HIV cannot access antiretroviral drugs, as the government supplies dwindle and the Maduro regime continues to reject humanitarian aid. And now this crisis is spreading.

I met with Colombian officials who are doing everything they can to support 1.5 million refugees crossing the border. They can't do it alone. We must increase aid to countries like Colombia for public health.

Madam Speaker, our response to the crisis must include supporting the Venezuelan community that has already contributed to our south Florida and the United States. Thousands of Venezuelans claiming political asylum in this country are stuck in limbo because of unnecessary delays in the adjudication of their claims. Granting TPS is necessary and humane for those Venezuelans now here.

HONORING LOUISE WILLIAMS

(Mr. SMUCKER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMUCKER. Madam Speaker, March is Women's History Month, and I am proud to honor some remarkable women in my district this month.

Today, I would like to honor Judge Louise Williams, who was elected in 1973 as the first female district judge in Lancaster County. She served for 26 years, and also was the first female Black district judge in Pennsylvania. But she did so much more than that.

She was a member of the Lancaster City Council for three terms, served as council president during two of those terms, and she was also appointed to the State Board of Pardons, where she became the first victims advocate, serving 18 years there. She was involved in many other community organizations, including terms as president of the Lancaster NAACP, and of Girls, Inc. of Lancaster County.

Ms. Williams was a trailblazer for women in our community and always found ways to give back to our community and encourage others. She is one of the most respected civic figures in our district. It is an honor to recognize her today.

FREEDOM AND EQUALITY FOR ALL

(Ms. HILL of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. HILL of California. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Equality Act.

As the first LGBTQ woman in Congress from the State of California and the second openly bisexual woman to serve in Congress overall, I could not be prouder to support this landmark legislation.

Throughout my run, I got so many questions about why I chose to be honest about my sexuality. I am married to a man. I am from a purple, historically Republican, district, and everyone said it would be easier for me to hide who I am. But the reality is that representation matters, especially for the LGBTQ community, when so many of our basic rights are still at risk.

Through my work on the issue of homelessness, I have seen how disproportionately our community is affected by discrimination still. The Equality Act will provide basic protections in terms of employment, housing, education, and more. Everyone should have the right to pursue their dreams and provide a home for their families without fear of harassment or discrimination.

I could not be prouder to be part of a new generation of leaders who will be the ones to finally pass the Equality Act and fight for true freedom and equality for all.

AMERICA'S WORKFORCE

(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, as we work to strengthen America's roads, bridges, and highways, it is important that our workforce keeps pace with our infrastructure improvements.

Seventy percent of the Nation's freight is carried by commercial trucks, yet, as our economy strengthens, motor carriers are having difficulty finding the drivers they need to handle the growing capacity.

While most States, including Indiana, allow drivers to obtain a commercial driver's license at 18, they are prohibited from driving in interstate commerce until they are 21 by Federal law.

To address this issue, I cosponsored legislation to alleviate the shortage of commercial drivers back home, helping our farmers, manufacturers, retailers, and small businesses to keep Hoosiers working, eating, building, selling, and growing.

The DRIVE-Safe Act will help Indiana's freight continue to move, while preserving the safety of our highway system.

Madam Speaker, I look forward to working with my colleagues on the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee to help fill these desperately needed jobs and provide young Hoosiers with the opportunity to enter the industry.

PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

(Ms. PLASKETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. PLASKETT. Madam Speaker, I rise to highlight the budget proposed by the President of the United States.

This budget is a statement of our values as a Nation—what we prioritize and what we hope to accomplish. The President released his budget proposal yesterday and, while I Girl Scouts have engaged and inspired just 18 girls. Now, 107 years later, the America was officially launched in Savannah, Georgia, on March 12, 1912, with a meeting of just 18 girls. Now, 107 years later, the Girl Scouts have engaged and inspired generations of young women and empowered millions to serve their communities.

More than 50 million women are alumni of the Girl Scouts; 58 percent of the women who serve in Congress were Girl Scouts, and 72 percent of the women who serve in the Senate were Girl Scouts as young women.

My daughters and I have been lucky enough to be a small part of this rich history, and, for the past 5 years, I have served as a Girl Scout leader for my daughter's troop. Two-and-a-half million girls and adults participate in this tremendous program.

In my time as a Girl Scout leader, I have gotten to know so many bright and talented young women, to learn from them and with them, and to use the tools and lessons of the Girl Scouts to instill within these future leaders a fundamental belief in the power of service, the value of character, and the importance in our community.

As storied as this organization's past is, it will always be focused on the future. That is the purpose of Girl Scouts.

CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 116–20)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and ordered to be printed.

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days before the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared on March 15, 1995, is to continue in effect beyond March 15, 2019.

The actions and policies of the Government of Iran continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States.

For this reason, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared with respect to Iran and to maintain in force comprehensive sanctions against Iran to respond to this threat.

DONALD J. TRUMP.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or votes objected to under clause 6 of the rule.

The House will resume proceedings on postponed questions at a later time.

CALLING FOR ACCOUNTABILITY AND JUSTICE FOR THE ASSASSINATION OF BORIS NEMTSOV

Mr. ENGEL. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 156) calling for accountability and justice for the assassination of Boris Nemtsov, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

Whereas Boris Nemtsov was a Russian statesman who, over 25 years of public service, served as a Member of Parliament, Governor of the Nizhny Novgorod Region, and First Deputy Prime Minister of Russia; Whereas throughout his life, Boris Nemtsov showed an unwavering commitment to the ideals of democracy, freedom, and the rule of law, and to upholding the rights and dignity of Russian citizens; Whereas Boris Nemtsov was a powerful voice in opposition to the authoritarianism and corruption of Vladimir Putin's government, publicly blaming its abuses, leading street protests against election fraud and the war on Ukraine, and successfully advocating for international sanctions on human rights violators; Whereas Boris Nemtsov was co-chairman of a leading opposition party, won election to the Yaroslavl Regional Duma in 2013, and was planning to run for the Russian Parliament in 2016 and challenge Vladimir Putin for the Presidency in 2018; Whereas, on the evening of February 27, 2015, Boris Nemtsov was beaten in the back and killed as he walked across Bolshoi Moskvoretsky Bridge near the Kremlin in Moscow; Whereas, on March 7 and 8, 2015, Russian authorities arrested five individuals, all of them natives of the Chechen Republic, on suspicion of carrying out the assassination, while a sixth suspect allegedly blew himself up during the attempted arrest; Whereas the defendants were tried at the Moscow District Military Court, which on June 29, 2017, found the five guilty of carrying out the assassination of Boris Nemtsov, and on July 13, 2017, sentenced them to different prison terms; Whereas at the time of the assassination, the now-convicted gunman, Zaur Dadayev, was serving as a Lieutenant in the Internal Troops of the Interior Ministry of the Russian Federation and as Deputy Battalion Commander in the “Sever” (“North”) Regiment stationed in the Chechen Republic, under the command of the Internal Troops Commander, General Viktor Zolotov, and the Kremlin-backed head of the Chechen Republic, Ramzan Kadyrov; Whereas Ramzan Kadyrov has called Lieutenant Zaur Dadayev a “true patriot” and has publicly referred to Boris Nemtsov as an “enemy of Russia”;
Mr. ENGEL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution. I am proud to have authored this measure with the gentleman from Texas (Mr. McCaul), my colleague and the ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. The measure before us today condemns the assassination of Boris Nemtsov.

Nemtsov was a brave advocate for democracy in Russia, calling for free elections and an end to the massive corruption at the Kremlin. I remember when he visited here and I had him in my office. We talked about the need to stamp out any perceived threat to Putin’s regime for targeting political opponents and journalists, human rights activists, and independent media. He certainly was a champion of free elections, independent media, and a strong civil society. In the words of John McCain, Boris Nemtsov “would not be oppressed by unjust laws or violence . . . he was an inspiration.”

I was incredibly saddened to learn that the brave man had been murdered. I met Boris Nemtsov here in Washington in my office, when he visited here and I had him in my office. We talked about the need to stamp out any perceived threat to Putin’s authoritarian regime.

When I met Boris Nemtsov here in Washington in my office, he talked about his vision for Russia, free from Putin’s grip on power, with open, fair elections, independent media, and a strong civil society. In the words of John McCain, Boris Nemtsov “would not be oppressed by unjust laws or violence . . . he was an inspiration.”

I was incredibly saddened to learn that the brave man had been murdered.
conversation, as I mentioned before, he was murdered in cold blood in Moscow.

Now, it has been 4 years since his death, but there has been no proper investigation of his assassination and the coverup and zero accountability for those responsible. That is certainly an outrage.

This resolution condemns the Kremlin’s systematic targeting of its political opponents and calls on the administration to impose sanctions on those responsible for Nemtsov’s murder and coverup.

It also requires the administration to deliver to Congress a thorough report on Nemtsov’s assassination. That is a critical part of this legislation because, sadly, the Russian prosecutor’s office, in my opinion, hasn’t done nearly enough to stand up to Russia and call out Putin’s thuggery.

So it is up to Congress to assert American leadership on this issue. I strongly support this bipartisan, bicameral measure, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

HON. RICHARD E. NEAL, Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means,

WASHINGTON, DC, March 11, 2019.

Hon. ELIOT L. ENGEL,
Chairman, Committee on Foreign Affairs,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN ENGEL: I am writing with respect to H. Res. 156, “Calling for Accountability and Justice for the Assassination of Boris Nemtsov.” As a result of your having consulted with us on provisions on which the Committee on Ways and Means has a jurisdictional interest, I will not request a sequential referral on this measure.

The Committee on Ways and Means takes this action with the mutual understanding that we do not waive any jurisdiction over the subject matter contained in this or similar legislation, and the Committee will be appropriately consulted and involved as the bill or similar legislation moves forward so that it has any remaining issues within our jurisdiction. The Committee also reserves the right to seek appointment of an appropriate number of conferees to any House-Senate conference involving this or similar legislation, and request your support for such a request.

Finally, I would appreciate your response to this letter confirming this understanding, and would ask that a copy of our exchange of letters on this matter be included in the Congressional Record during floor consideration of this measure.

Sincerely,

RICHARD E. NEAL,
Chairman.

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Hon. ELIOT L. ENGEL,
Chairman, Committee on Foreign Affairs,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN ENGEL: Thank you for consulting with the Foreign Affairs Committee on H. Res. 156, “Calling for Accountability and Justice for the Assassination of Boris Nemtsov” and agreeing to forgo a sequential referral request so that the resolution may proceed expeditiously to the House floor.

I agree that your declining to pursue a referral in this case was not in line with your last letter concerning the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means nor prejudice its jurisdictional prerogatives on this resolution or similar legislation in the future. I would support your effort to seek appointment of an appropriate number of conferees from your Committee and ours to a resolution or similar legislation under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means to any House-Senate conference.

I will ensure that an exchange of letters is included in the Congressional Record during floor consideration of the resolution. I appreciate your cooperation regarding this resolution and look forward to continuing to work with you as this measure moves through the legislative process.

Sincerely,

ELIOT L. ENGEL,
Chairman.

Mr. KINZINGER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 156, which I was proud to cosponsor, calling for justice in the 2015 murder of Russian opposition leader Boris Nemtsov.

On the evening of Friday, February 27, 2015, Boris Nemtsov was shot in the back and killed by cowards just outside of the Kremlin in Moscow.

Mr. Nemtsov was an important figure in Russia because he stood up to Vladimir Putin and the Russian Federation as he called for democracy in a country dominated by oppression.

Before his assassination, Mr. Nemtsov was planning to run for President in 2018 against Vladimir Putin. One can only think of what Russia’s future would have been today with Mr. Nemtsov as its leader.

Since that day in February 2015, suspects have been charged and sentenced for murder, but we still don’t have all the answers or truly know why Mr. Nemtsov was killed. However, we do know that there has never been any questioning of additional suspects or any investigation into evidence that the convicted gunman was a member of a Russian unit that was stationed and backed by Chechen dictator and thug Ramzan Kadyrov.

Furthermore, Russia continues to put up roadblocks to outside investigators from the European Union and the OSCE to prevent more investigations into the sequence of events that fateful night. Four years after his murder, Boris Nemtsov and his family are still without answers or the justice that they deserve.

The House resolution uses the voice of Congress to hold his killers and their accomplices accountable. Specifically, this resolution condemns the Putin regime for targeting political opponents and using the Russian Government to cover up the murder of Mr. Nemtsov. It also calls on the U.S. Government to use its capabilities to identify those who support the murderers and to impose strict sanctions for their actions.

Last February, on the anniversary of his death, we saw a fitting tribute to Mr. Nemtsov’s calls for freedom and democracy in a country where nobody is above the law.

And we will be saying something else very important: that the United States is not in conflict with Russia or with the Russian people. On the contrary, we are in solidarity with the vast majority of Russians, who, like Boris Nemtsov, want a country that is free of corruption, a country where nobody is above the law.

Our argument is only with the leaders who deny them that, but those leaders won’t be around forever. Boris Nemtsov’s legacy will outlast them, and so will our desire to partner with the Russia that shares his values and vision.

Sincerely,

RICHARD E. NEAL,
Chairman.

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Mr. ENGEL. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KINZINGER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Madam Speaker, in closing, I want to thank Chairman Engel and the ranking member, Mr. McCaul, for offering up this important resolution which seeks justice for Boris Nemtsov’s brutal murder.

At a time when we are seeing the Russian people protesting tighter restrictions on their access to the internet, we should not forget the brave leadership of Mr. Nemtsov, a man who stood up to the oppressors in Russia and advocated bravely for freedom. We should honor his memory by continuing to seek justice for his assassination.

It is also important to note, Madam Speaker, the strong bipartisan showing in this Chamber of, really, any Russian resolution that comes up because we are united, as the prior speaker said, with the Russian people in fighting oppression, as we have for so long and we will continue to do.

I urge all Members to support this legislation.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Engel. Madam Speaker, in closing, let me say, it is critical that we speak out against strong men and dictators throughout the world. We need to demand justice for those unable to do so themselves.

As we have mentioned, Boris Nemtsov was brutally murdered for bravely standing up to Putin and his corrupt regime. The Kremlin is being complicit in covering up the assassination and failing to conduct a proper investigation.

By passing this measure, we show Putin, his cronies, and dictators throughout the world that the U.S. Congress is watching, and we will not stay silent.

Madam Speaker, I strongly support this resolution. I urge my colleagues to join me, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken. The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. Engel. Madam Speaker, on that point of order, you stated two-thirds being required.

The Speaker. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Engel), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kinzinger) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. Engel. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 596, the Crimea Annexation Non-recognition Act, as amended, currently under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. Engel. Madam Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I thank this bill’s author, who is a valuable member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Mr. Connolly from Virginia.

Madam Speaker, I also thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. McCaul), our ranking member, for working with us on this bipartisan legislation.

Madam Speaker, Vladimir Putin has left no doubt about his intentions to expand Russian influence, undermine democracy, and splinter the alliances and agreements that have long kept Russia in check.

We have seen these through Russia’s direct attacks on our democratic institutions, including our own—remember the Presidential election of 2016—through a pernicious and widespread misinformation campaign designed to distort reality and foment confusion and, in no clearer way, through its illegal occupation of parts of Ukraine and parts of Georgia.

It is shocking in the 21st century to see a country trample on a neighbor’s sovereignty and seize territory by force. As we have worked for since World War II to build a Europe that is whole, free, and in peace.

It has been 5 years since Russian forces moved into Crimea and staged a sham election in an attempt to give their occupation a gloss of legitimacy, but there is nothing legitimate about it—absolutely nothing.

The United States must never accept Putin’s attempts to seize territory by force, and this legislation would enshrine into our laws a nonrecognition of Russia’s annexation of Crimea. This bill will prevent our government from taking any action that even implies American recognition of this blatantly illegal land grab.

This bill also sends a strong message to our Ukrainian friends that we stand shoulder to shoulder with them as they continue to resist Russian efforts to fracture their country. This is especially important in light of recent events in which the Russian Navy intercepted Ukrainian patrol boats in Ukrainian waters, capturing the vessels and their crew by force.

Mr. Kinzinger. Madam Speaker, Putin is not just a thug. His troops may hold Crimea in a stranglehold, but we need to be clear that Crimea will always be part of Ukraine, not part of Russia. This measure will put that rejection permanently into our laws. I am pleased to support it.

Madam Speaker, I ask all Members to do likewise, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Kinzinger. Madam Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today with the majority, also in strong support of H.R. 596, the Crimea Annexation Non-recognition Act. I am proud to cosponsor this legislation, which clearly states that America will not recognize Russian sovereignty over Crimea.

Ukraine continues to face significant challenges from Russia, from their meddling, and from their aggression. In Congress, we know the true intentions of Vladimir Putin when it comes to Ukraine. Vladimir Putin and his cronies in the Kremlin are tainting Europe apart.

Russian-backed separatists continue their shelling of Ukrainian military positions in Eastern Ukraine, which has killed civilians in many areas. Additionally, Russia recently violated Ukraine sovereignty and territorial integrity when it fired upon and captured three Ukrainian vessels and 24 sailors. Russia continues to hold these sailors on bogus charges that they violated Russian borders, even though the Kerch Strait is determined to be neutral waters.

While Russia maintains that Ukrainian soldiers were threatening the construction of the Crimean bridge, which is currently under construction between the territory of Russia and Crimea, we know this is fake news from Putin and his thugs.

We need to continue to send a strong message to the Russians that the United States does not and will not recognize their claim of sovereignty over Crimea, not now and not ever. I commend Secretary Pompeo for making the Crimea Declaration last July that articulated this policy of the United States, and I believe Congress should support this position.

Madam Speaker, the bill is simple. It states that the policy of the United States Government is to never recognize sovereignty over Crimea, and it prohibits all U.S. Government agencies from taking any action with respect to acknowledging that Russia has any claims over the territory.

As Vladimir Putin seeks to impose his iron-fisted will over former Soviet republics, we must continue to stand with our allies to counter that aggression.

I commend the work of my friend from Virginia (Mr. CONNOLLY) and my friend from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT) for their leadership on this issue. By reaffirming congressional support for Ukraine's territorial integrity and by holding Russia accountable for its continued violation of Ukraine sovereignty, I believe we will continue to stand with Ukraine legislatively and most effectively from here and into the future.

Mr. CHABOT. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ENGEL. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CONNOLLY), the author of this bill and a very valued member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. Mr. CONNOLLY. Madam Speaker, I thank my dear friend from New York (Mr. ENGEL), the distinguished chairman of our committee, for his support. I thank my dear friend from Illinois (Mr. KINZINGER), the Republican manager today, for his support. And I salute my friend from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT) who has steadfastly cosponsored this resolution in previous Congresses to make a powerful bipartisan statement.

I rise today, Madam Speaker, in support of H.R. 596, the Crimea Annexation Non-recognition Act, which we introduced together, as I said, with Mr. CHABOT of Ohio.

This bill states unequivocally that it is the policy of the United States not to recognize the Russian Federation's claim of sovereignty over Crimea, its airspace, or its territorial waters. Furthermore, the bill prohibits the United States Government from taking any action that could possibly apply recognition of Russian sovereignty over Crimea.

Putin's forcible and illegal annexation of Crimea, the first forcible seizure of territory in Europe since World War II, undermines Ukrainian sovereignty and threatens the stability of Europe. Acquiescence on the part of the United States would threaten the security of all sovereign nations. Who is next? Moldova, Georgia, the Baltic States?

It is the longstanding policy of our country not to recognize territorial changes elected by force, as dictated by the Stimson Doctrine established in 1923 by then-Secretary of State Henry Stimson, a Republican under a Republican President, Herbert Hoover.

We upheld that doctrine with the issuance of the Welles Declaration in 1940, which stated emphatically that the United States would not recognize the illegal annexation at that time of the Baltic States by the Soviet Union.

That policy remained in effect for 50 long years. Some thought it quixotic. For more than those 50 years, we stood side by side with the Baltic States of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, sometimes in the face of ridicule. Today, they are independent nations and members of the NATO alliance.

The collective wisdom of the previous and current administrations, Congress, our European allies, and the American public is that similar principles must be adopted with respect to Crimea.

Crimea was Putin's original violation in Ukraine, and we have limited credibility to insist on his subsequent illegal invasion of the Luhansk and Donetsk areas of that country. If we do not take a stand with respect to Crimea, then we are just quibbling over the price.

What has happened in Ukraine—Russia's continued occupation of Crimea, invasion of the eastern part of the country, and continued occupation—has precipitated an international crisis, and the resulting conflict has claimed more than 10,000 lives. Russian authorities have attacked travel rights and the free press. The matter of rejecting the forcible and illegal attack on sovereign territory is so important that we should be satisfied with nothing less than absolute clarity about our position, which is that we support Ukraine's sovereignty over Crimea.

Furthermore, the Obama Administration, established a nonrecognition policy toward Russian sovereignty over Crimea and levied sanctions against individuals and entities enabling Russia's illegal occupation. Our allies in Europe have stood with us, shouldered to shoulder, in emphasizing and enforcing those sanctions.

Congress codified the Obama Crimea sanctions and has repeatedly used the power of the purse to prohibit the use of government funds for any action that could possibly recognize de jure or de facto illegal annexation of Crimea.

The fiscal year 2016 National Defense Authorization Act included similar language to that contained in our bill today, in order to prohibit the use of defense funds in a manner that could be construed as recognition of Russian sovereignty over Crimea. That language has remained in the NDAA ever since.

In the Countering America's Adversaries Through Sanctions Act, Congress reiterated its support for the Stimson Doctrine and its application to the illegal invasions by Russia and occupations of Abkhazia and South Ossetia in Georgia, Crimea and Eastern Ukraine, and the Transnistria region in Moldova.

The United States must lead the way in refusing to recognize or legitimize Russian illegal and forcible annexation of Crimea. That is why I am so proud to offer this bill, along with Mr. CHABOT, that expresses the will of Congress as loud and as clear as we can, and I urge my colleagues unani- mously to support it.

Mr. KINZINGER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT), a senior member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs and the primary cosponsor of this bill.

Mr. CHABOT. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 596, the Crimea Annexation Non-recognition Act, and I thank my good friend from Virginia, Representative Gerry Connolly, for his work and his leadership on this legislation and many other pieces of legislation that we have worked on in a bipartisan manner in this House.

They say there is no bipartisanship here, whether it is under Democratic or Republican control, and we found a way to make that happen on the Foreign Affairs Committee and the House.

As a senior member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the principal Republican cosponsor of this legislation, let me state clearly and emphatically that the United States—and the world, for that matter—must never recognize Vladimir Putin's reckless Crimean land grab, which is all too reminiscent of Soviet Cold War tactics.

This bill not only definitively sets out U.S. policy that we will not recognize Putin's bogus claims of sovereignty over Crimea, but it will also prohibit our government from taking any actions that might imply our recognition of Russian claims.

Representative CONNOLLY and I first introduced this legislation back in 2014, shortly after Putin seized Crimea. Despite the intervening years, we must never grow accustomed to Russian control over the peninsula. That is one reason that makes this legislation even more vitally necessary, because over time, the world sometimes does grow accustomed to things. We must never let that happen with Putin's grab of Crimea.

Last May, Putin opened a bridge over the Kerch Strait, which separates Russia from Crimea, in an attempt to better link it, to grab it and keep it. The bridge is too low for many large vessels, which has reduced economic activity at Ukrainian ports on the Sea of Azov, thus further harming Ukraine. Even more concerning, in November, Putin's thugs illegally seized three Ukrainian naval vessels and their crews at the entrance to the Kerch Strait.

In a calm and simple, Putin's illegal annexation of Crimea, as well as his adventures around the Kerch Strait and in Eastern Ukraine, have no place in a modern, democratic Europe. We must not abandon Ukraine to Putin’s bullying.

That is why I am pleased to cosponsor this legislation along with my friend, Mr. CONNOLLY, which is but a step toward a once-again free Crimea. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill so that we will never recognize Russian domination over the Crimean peninsula.

Mr. KINZINGER. Madam Speaker, I have no more speakers. I am prepared to claim my time.

Madam Speaker, I include in the RECORD a February 27, 2019, statement by Secretary Pompeo on Crimea and Ukraine.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE
Office of the Spokesperson
[For Immediate Release—February 27, 2019]

STATEMENT BY SECRETARY POMPEO
CRIMEA IS UKRAINE

Five years ago, Russia’s occupation of Ukraine’s Crimean peninsula fueled an escalation of Russian aggression. Russia attempted to expand its international reach, undermined basic human freedoms, and weakened our common security. The world has not forgotten how Russia exploited its Jay BILL, and its attempt to annexation of Ukrainian territory, Russia’s use of force against a peaceful neighbor must not be tolerated by reputable states. The United States reiterates its unwavering position: Crimea is Ukraine and must be returned to Ukraine’s control.

Threats to regional integrity, within its internationally recognized borders, including territorial waters.

Madam Speaker, in our history, we have always shown that the impact that our Nation has on others. When we stand up, we help them achieve a better tomorrow. We must continue to help Ukraine achieve that better future for its citizens, particularly one that is free from Russian aggression.

Recently, we sent the USS Donald Cook to transit through the Kerch Strait as a show of solidarity with Ukraine. Actions like these, and support for this bill, will further send the message to Vladimir Putin that the U.S. will never waver in our support for those who seek to push back against Russian oppression and coerced influence.

This is a great bill that shows the unity between Republicans and Democrats in this House, the legislative body, and the administration. I urge all Members to support this legislation, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ENGEL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, in closing, let me say that we need to take a strong stand against Vladimir Putin and his aggressive behavior in Eastern Europe. This legislation would reaffirm in American law that Russia’s annexation of Crimea is illegal and that the United States will never recognize its legitimacy. I hope the other body will act on this measure soon after we pass it, and I hope that we will finally signal its willingness to sign this legislation.

There are too many questions swirling around when it comes to Russia, too many times that we don’t seem to be calling Vladimir Putin out for what he has done. I think that it is something that we really need to look at very carefully, and I would hope the White House would do that.

Signing this bill will not put these concerns to rest, but it would help show that the United States won’t just roll over and accept Putin’s land grabs and egregious violations of international law.

I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CONNOLLY) for his work on this bill, and I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT) for his work on the bill. I am happy to support it, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 596, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. CONNOLLY. Mr. Speaker, on that the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore, pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

VLADIMIR PUTIN TRANSPARENCY ACT

Mrs. DEMINGS. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1404) to strengthen the United States response to Russian interference by providing transparency and accountability for Russian President Vladimir Putin, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 1404

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Vladimir Putin Transparency Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) According an Intelligence Community Assessment dated January 6, 2017, “Russian President Vladimir Putin ordered an influence campaign in 2016 aimed at the US presidential election. Russia’s goals were to undermine public faith in the US democratic process . . . Moscow’s influence campaign followed a Russian messaging strategy that blends covert intelligence operations—such as cyber activity—with overt efforts by Russian Government agencies, state-funded media, third-party intermediaries, and paid social media users or ‘trolls’.”.

(2) According to the Washington Post, official, public reports from the Russian government put Putin’s average annual income between 2011 and 2016 at approximately $122,000. But outside experts nevertheless have alleged that Putin’s true net worth is in the billions—suggesting his extensive corruption and connection to money laundering and other activities undertaken order to enrich Putin unjustly and to hide his true financial condition from the public.

SEC. 3. ASSESSMENT EXPOSING THE CORRUPTION OF VLADIMIR PUTIN.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should do more to expose the corruption of Vladimir Putin, whose ill-gotten wealth is perhaps the most powerful global symbol of his dishonest and pernicious efforts to undermine the rule of law and democracy in the Russian Federation.

(b) ASSESSMENT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of National Intelligence, in coordination with the Secretary of Treasury and the Secretary of State, shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees an assessment, based on all sources of intelligence, on the net worth and financial and other assets of Russian President Vladimir Putin and his family members, legitimate as well as illegitimate, including—

(1) the estimated net worth of Vladimir Putin and his family members;

(2) a description of their legitimate and illegitimately obtained assets, including all real, personal and intellectual property,

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1404) to strengthen the United States response to Russian interference by providing transparency and accountability for Russian President Vladimir Putin, as amended, is agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The ayes have it; the nays are—

Vladimir Putin Transparency Act
It has been said that money talks, but it is our job to keep it from speaking over the American people. Last week the House of Representatives passed H.R. 1, historic reforms to get big money out of politics. But we haven’t done nearly enough to prevent foreign politicians from using money from attacking our democracy.

Russia, the country that once had the ability to provide a decent life for its people, has chosen to strip their wealth, as they watch their wealth disappear overseas into hidden accounts. These corrupt oligarchs are a cautionary tale on how working people can be cheated if left unchecked. These corrupt bands of individuals, led by Vladimir Putin, have mounted a massive asymmetric attack against the United States.

America has the greatest military in the world, but the Russians have figured out that if they have any chance of victory, it is to undermine our elections, spread fear and unrest, sow discord through racism and other divisive tactics. What don’t they understand, Madam Speaker, is that we take pride in our democracy. We may have policy differences, and we might have policy disagreements, sometimes quite strongly, but we all know that our democratic form of government, a government of the people, by the people, and for the people is our greatest strength and weapon against any foe. We do believe in this country that every voice matters.

Foreign nationals are banned from contributing to U.S. elections, but multiple Kremlin-connected Americans have funneled millions of dollars into political action, wielding massive influence in our democracy, and Vladimir Putin is the king of this corrupt money.

Putin’s protests are generally delivered with a smirk and accusations of fake news, but his discomfort with revealing his shadowy networks that prop up dictators and human rights abusers around the world is quite strong. It is telling that after Ms. STEFANIK and I introduced this legislation, we were both attacked by Russian state media.

What is Putin afraid of? Perhaps the former KGB operative is well-aware of the poor long-term prospects for gangsters and autocrats who are unmasked before their impoverished countrymen, or he fears uncovering his meganetworks that prop up dictators and human rights abusers around the world in his quest to subvert world order. Likely, he and his cronies are desperate to obscure their billions in an attempt to shield themselves from justice abroad.

But, Madam Speaker, no matter the root of his fear, our obligation is to shine a light on his illicit networks. It is time that we hold him accountable. This legislation will expose the corrupt financiers behind the dark fund attacks against our democracy.

Madam Speaker, in closing, I call upon the words of our 35th President:

“Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe in order to assure the survival and the success of liberty.”

Madam Speaker, I urge the passage of this legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.
Congressional Record — House

March 12, 2019

Hon. MAXINE WATERS, Chairwoman, Committee on Financial Services, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. ELIO T ENGEL, Chairwoman, Committee on Foreign Affairs, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRWOMAN WATERS AND CHAIRMAN ENGEL: I write in reply to your letters regarding H.R. 1404, the Vladimir Putin Transparency Act. I appreciate your willingness to work cooperatively on this legislation.

I agree with your provisions of the bill fall within the jurisdiction of the Committees on Financial Services and Foreign Affairs; and that your Committees will not take up H.R. 1404 formally. I further agree that your Committees' inaction regarding the bill will not waive any future jurisdictional claims over matters addressed in H.R. 1404 while it falls within your Committees' jurisdiction under Rule X of the Rules of Procedure for the House of Representatives for the 116th Congress.

At your request, I lastly will ensure that our exchange of letters is included in the Congressional Record during floor consideration of the bill. Thank you again for your cooperation regarding the legislation. I look forward to continuing to work with both of you as the measure moves through the legislative process.

Sincerely,

ADAM V. SCHIFF
Chairman.

Ms. STEFANIK: Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, today I rise in strong support of H.R. 1404, the Vladimir Putin Transparency Act.

According to the 2017 Intelligence Community Assessment produced by the CIA, NSA, the FBI, and an indictment issued by the Attorney General in 2018, it is clear that Russian actors conspired to interfere and influence U.S. political processes and the Presidential election in 2016. This assessment stated that “Russian President Vladimir Putin ordered an information campaign in 2016 aimed at the U.S. Presidential election. Russia’s goals were to undermine public faith in the U.S. democratic process.”

Madam Speaker, the Russian Government has been known to employ a system of corruption and illicit financial ties as a tool for consolidating its domestic political control and projecting power abroad to weaken not only the United States but other democratic countries as well.

That is why I proudly co-sponsored H.R. 1404. The bill would require that within 180 days of enactment, the Director of National Intelligence, in coordination with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of State, shall submit a congressional report on the personal net worth and assets owned by Russian President Vladimir Putin.

The report would also include accounts, holdings, shell companies, and intermediaries, and identify senior Russian political figures and oligarchs who facilitate corrupt practices. Vladimir Putin and his corrupt allies seek to weaken democracies globally by consolidating political control through unethical means, and they must be brought to account for their actions.

This bipartisan legislation is an important step to ensuring the security of our elecational democracy around the world. I urge my colleagues to support this commonsense bill. I also want to thank my colleague, Representative Val DEMINGS, for her leadership on this issue. I am proud to work across the aisle with her to pass this important bill.

Madam Speaker, in closing, as I have noted in my remarks, this is important bipartisan legislation. It is about transparency, it is about accountability, and it is about standing up to the corrupt practices of Russian President Vladimir Putin. This is bipartisan, commonsense legislation, and I urge my colleagues to support this bill on the floor.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. DEMINGS. Madam Speaker, in closing, H.R. 1404 will shine a light on Vladimir Putin’s financial networks that have stripped the Russian Federation of its wealth and left the Russian people in poverty. It will also empower Congress, the intelligence community, and our allies to crack down on cross-border corruption.

I want to thank my colleague on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, Representative STEFANIK, for joining me in this important legislation.

Additionally, I want to thank the hardworking staff on both sides of the aisle on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and the Foreign Affairs Committee for their input on this critical legislation.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. DEMINGS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1404, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Keeping Russian Entrapments Minimal and Limiting Intelligence Networks Act

Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1617) to direct the Director of National Intelligence to submit intelligence assessments of the intentions of the political leadership of the Russian Federation, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Keeping Russian Entrapments Minimal and Limiting Intelligence Networks Act” or the “KREMLIN Act.”

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Russia continues to engage in informational warfare and political influence in the West, including by undermining democratic systems and exploiting economic and ethnictensions withinmember countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

(2) Such activities constitute a threat to the United States and its allies.

SEC. 3. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the Countering America’s Adversaries Through Sanctions Act (Public Law 115–44) authorized the United States Government to impose sanctions in response to actions by countries, including Russia, that undermine the security of the United States;

(2) the United States should sustain its contribution to the newly deployed enhanced forward presence of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia and encourage the United Kingdom, and Germany to continue their important leadership roles in the military presence of NATO in those countries;

(3) the United States has defensive intentions in pursuing such sanctions and such enhanced military posture in Europe, and does not seek to threaten Russian territory;

(4) the United States does not seek to be an enemy of the Russian people;

(5) the United States desires a peaceful, economically prosperous relationship with Russia based on democratic principles where freedom and the rule of law are upheld for all; and

(6) the United States is committed to defending these fundamental beliefs against any Russian aggression.

SEC. 4. REQUIREMENT FOR INTELLIGENCE ASSESSMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of National Intelligence, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense, shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees each of the assessments described in subsection (b).

(b) ASSESSMENTS DESCRIBED.—The assessments described in this section are the following:

(1) the Countering America’s Adversaries through Sanctions Act of 2017 (Public Law 115–44), or any successor legislation, and the United States should sustain its military presence in eastern Europe or to increased United States military support for allies and partners in the region, as the provision of additional lethal military equipment to Ukraine or Georgia.

(3) the potential areas where the Government of the Russian Federation could exploit weaknesses and divisions among the governments of its Western adversaries.

(c) FORM.—Each assessment required under subsection (a) may be submitted in classified form and shall be accompanied by an unclassified executive summary, consistent with the protection of intelligence sources and methods.

(d) APPROPRIATE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—In this section, the term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(1) the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives; and Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STEWART. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1617, the Keeping Russian Entrapments Minimal and Limiting Intelligence Networks Act, or the KREMLIN Act.

The intelligence community is united in its assessment that Russia attempted to sabotage the 2016 U.S. election and that America is not alone in facing these dangers and attacks. In fact, recent reports indicate that Russia continues to engage in information warfare and political interference in the West that threatens the health of democratic institutions within member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, otherwise known as NATO.

Among many examples, the Russian Federation is linked to cybercrimes in Ukraine and Germany, disinformation campaigns here in the United States, intelligence support for pro-Russian Bulgarian candidates, and financing for pro-Russian parties in France.

The bipartisan KREMLIN Act which I introduced with my friend, Congressman Chris Stewart of Utah, acknowledges the repetitive threat of foreign interference on the United States and our NATO allies.

Specifically, this legislation would require the Director of National Intelligence to submit three intelligence assessments to Congress. These assessments must analyze:

First, potential military action by Russia against members of NATO.

Second, potential responses by Russia to the cooperative spirit in which you have prepared to thwart efforts in the future to weaken international democratic institutions.

Third, potential weaknesses and areas of division against NATO allies.

Learning the Russian Government’s intentions in these areas will better enable the United States Government to counter any attempts to undermine this critical alliance that we call NATO.

I thank the Speaker, urge passage of H.R. 1617, and reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI. Madam Speaker, I have no further speakers and am prepared to close.

Mr. STEWART. Madam Speaker, once again, very briefly, this is a commonsense piece of legislation. It is a bipartisan piece of legislation. Importantly, it improves our national security. It improves the ability of our intelligence agencies to do the critical work that they do.

I urge my colleagues to vote in favor, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI. Madam Speaker, for the health of our democracy, I strongly urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan KREMLIN Act, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1617.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 1382

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Electronic Message Preservation Act”.

SEC. 2. PRESERVATION OF ELECTRONIC MESSAGES AND OTHER RECORDS.

(a) REGULATIONS REQUIRED FOR PRESERVATION OF ELECTRONIC MESSAGES.—Chapter 29 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following section:

“(a) REGULATIONS REQUIRED.—The Archivist shall promulgate regulations governing Federal agency preservation of electronic messages that are determined to be records. Such regulations shall, at a minimum—

“(1) require the electronic capture, management, and preservation of such electronic records in accordance with the records disposition requirements of chapter 33;

“(2) require that such electronic records are readily accessible for retrieval through electronic search and retrieval;

“(3) include timelines for Federal agency implementation of the regulations that ensure compliance with these requirements as expeditiously as practicable;

“(b) ENSURING COMPLIANCE.—The Archivist shall promulgate regulations that—

“(1) establish mandatory minimum functional requirements for electronic records management systems to ensure compliance with the requirements in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a); and

“(2) establish a process to ensure that the electronic records management system of each Federal agency meets the functional requirements established under paragraph (1).”;

(c) COVERAGE OF OTHER ELECTRONIC RECORDS.—To the extent practicable, the regulations promulgated under subsections (a) and (b) shall also include requirements for the capture, management, and preservation of other electronic records.

(d) COMPLIANCE BY FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Each Federal agency shall comply with the requirements promulgated under subsections (a) and (b).

(e) REVIEW OF REGULATIONS REQUIRED.—The Archivist shall periodically review and, as necessary, amend the regulations promulgated under subsections (a) and (b).

(b) DEADLINE FOR REGULATIONS.—

(1) BEGINNING OF ELECTRONIC MESSAGES.—Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Archivist shall promulgate the regulations required under section 2012(a) of title 44, United States Code, as added by subsection (a).

(2) ENSURING COMPLIANCE.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Archivist shall promulgate the regulations required under section 2012(b) of title 44, United States Code, as added by subsection (a).

(c) REPORTS ON IMPLEMENTATION OF REGULATIONS.—

(1) AGENCY REPORT TO ARCHIVIST.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the head of each Federal agency shall submit to the Archivist a report on the agency’s compliance with the regulations promulgated under section 2012 of title 44, United States Code, as added by subsection (a), and shall make the report publicly available on the website of the agency.

(2) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Archivist shall submit to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Oversight and Reform of the House of Representatives a report on Federal agency compliance with the regulations promulgated under section 2012(a) of title 44, United States Code, as added by subsection (a), and shall make the report publicly available on the website of the agency.

(3) FEDERAL AGENCY DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term “Federal agency” has the meaning given that term in section 2901 of title 44, United States Code.

(4) BUDGETARY EFFECTS.—The budgetary effects of this Act, for the purpose of complying with the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010, shall be determined by reference to the latest statement titled “Budgetary Effects of PAYGO Legislation” for this Act, submitted for printing in the Congressional Record by the Chairman of the House Budget Committee, provided that such statement has been submitted prior to the vote on passage.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MEADOWS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia.

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on this measure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) and the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MEADOWS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Electronic Message Preservation Act. This bill would update the Federal Records Act and the Presidential Records Act to ensure that agencies save records created through electronic messages, including emails. This bill would require the Archivist of the United States to issue regulations... mandating that all Federal agencies manage and preserve their email records electronically.

Agencies are already supposed to be saving emails electronically. In 2012, the Archivist and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget issued a directive that required agencies to do so. This bill would help ensure that email records from Federal agencies and the White House are all preserved.

According to a September 2018 report from the National Archives and Records Administration, approximately 35 percent of agencies continue to print and file hard copies of email messages. This means that these records are more likely to get lost, and they are harder for the agency to retrieve during records searches under the Freedom of Information Act.

This bill would put into statute what agencies are already required to do under a directive issued by the Archivist and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget in 2012. Agencies are required, under the directive, to save all permanent electronic records electronically by the end of 2019. Putting this requirement to save email records electronically into statute would show agencies that this is an issue seriously.

This bill would also require the Archivist to establish standards for the preservation and management of Presidental email records and to certify, annually, that the White House has records management controls in place that meet those standards. The Archivist would be required, under this legislation, to report 1 year after the President leaves office on whether the controls used by the President met the required standards.

This bill has been introduced and passed by the House under multiple administrations. This is not a partisan bill for sure. It is a good government bill.

Madam Speaker, I urge all Members to support this bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1582, the Electronic Message Preservation Act.

The American people. Madam Speaker, also have the right to know what is going on in their government. Preservation of Federal records is essential to that right. The Federal Government must preserve Federal records, regardless of the format or technology used to create those records in order to remain accountable to the American people.

Over the last two decades, technology has advanced. Electronic communication has permeated all parts of the Federal Government. The Electronic Message Preservation Act requires the Federal Government to preserve those electronic records in electronic format. It just makes sense.

For decades, many Federal agencies have used what we call the print-to-file method of electronic record preservation. That is right; Federal employees were actually encouraged to print out emails to archive the paper copies instead of just archiving them electronically.

Paper-based records, as you know, Madam Speaker, really are inefficient, prone to record loss, and difficult to manage. A poorly managed, paper-based system can also increase the costs of recordkeeping for the Federal Government and the American taxpayers.

The Office of Management and Budget and my good friends over at the National Archives, under the leadership of David Ferriero, have been working to modernize Federal recordkeeping. They issued a joint directive that requires agencies to preserve emails and other electronic records in electronic format. Under that directive, all Federal agencies should be preserving electronic records in an electronic format by the end of this year.

This bill, Madam Speaker, just codifies that requirement in a joint directive and expands the preservation of the electronic message preservations to include the Presidential records, as my colleague opposite has already noted.

The bill also requires agencies to report on compliance with the electronic recordkeeping requirements, which will allow Congress to understand the progress towards these goals. Madam Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman Cummings for working to pass this important legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

If anything, I am surprised, perhaps shocked, that we have had to put the matter of electronic recording into statutory form to make sure it has happened.

We are deep into the electronic era, and perhaps, when you put a matter into statutory form, it finally is a matter of law and it gets people's attention. I certainly hope so.

Madam Speaker, I am prepared to yield back under the gentleman has something more to say.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I yield back under the gentleman has something more to say.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Electronic Message Preservation Act. I introduced this bill with the goal of modernizing the Federal and Presidential Records Acts.

This bill would require the Archivist of the United States to issue regulations mandating that all federal agencies manage and preserve their email records electronically. This bill would help ensure that email records from Federal agencies and the White House are preserved.

According to a September 2018 report from the National Archives and Records Administration, approximately 35 percent of agencies continue to print and file hard copies of email messages.

This means that these records are more likely to get lost and that they are harder for the agency to retrieve during records searches under the Freedom of Information Act.

This bill would put into statute what agencies are already required to do under a directive issued by the Archivist and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget in 2012.

In 2016, the National Archives issued a document for agency records officers titled, “Why Agencies Need to Move Towards Electronic Recordkeeping.” The National Archives identified a number of reasons including long term cost savings, information security, and more efficient and effective implementation of the Freedom of Information Act.

This bill would also require the Archivist to establish standards for the preservation and management of email records that are presidential records and to certify annually that the White House has records management controls in place that meet those standards.

Under this bill, the Archivist must report one year after the President leaves office on whether the controls used by the President met the required standards.

This bill has passed the House with bipartisan support several times before, including last Congress. I urge my colleagues to support the bill again today and I hope the Senate will act on the bill and send it to the President's desk before the end of the year.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1582.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT AMENDMENTS OF 2019

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1608) to amend the Federal Advisory Committee Act to increase the transparency of Federal advisory committees, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

         (B) by redesignating subsection (a) as subsection (c) and by redesignating subsection (c) as subsection (a); and
         (C) by inserting after subsection (a) the following:
           (B) The head of each agency shall ensure that the agency does not interfere with the free and independent participation, expression of views, and deliberation by committee members.
     (2) The head of each agency shall ensure that the agency does not interfere with the free and independent participation, expression of views, and deliberation by committee members.

SEC. 3. PREVENTING EFFORTS TO CIRCUMVENT THE FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT AND PUBLIC DISCLOSURE.
(a) SUBCOMMITTEES.—Section 4 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended by striking subsection (a) and inserting the following:
   (a) APPLICATION.—The provisions of this Act or of any rule, order, or regulation promulgated under this Act shall apply to each advisory committee, including any subcommittee or subgroup thereof, except to the extent that any Act of Congress establishing any such advisory committee specifically provides otherwise. Any subcommittee or subgroup shall be established under section 9(a) is not required to comply with section 9(c).

SEC. 4. INCREASING TRANSPARENCY OF ADVISORY COMMITTEES.
(a) INFORMATION REQUIREMENT.—Section 11 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended to read as follows:
   (a) DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION.
   (1) (A) In general.—With respect to each advisory committee, the head of the agency to which the advisory committee reports shall make publicly available in accordance with subsection (b) the following information:
     (i) The charter of the advisory committee;
     (ii) The purpose or function of the advisory committee;
     (iii) A list of all current members, including, for each member, the following:
       (A) The name of any person or entity that nominated the member;
       (B) Whether the member is—
         (i) designated as a special Government employee;

March 12, 2019
(ii) a representative; or

(iii) a full-time or permanent part-time officer or employee of the Federal Government.

(4) In the case of a representative, the individuals or entity whose viewpoint the member represents.

(5) A list of all members designated as special Government employees, to whom written certifications were made under section 208(b) of title 18, United States Code, a copy of each such certification, a summary description of the conflict necessitating the certification, and the reason for granting the certification.

(6) Any recusal agreement made by a member or any recusal known to the agency that occurs during the course of a meeting or other work of the committee.

(7) The process used by the advisory committee for making decisions.

(8) Written determination by the President or the head of the agency to which the advisory committee reports, pursuant to section 10(d), to close a meeting or any portion of a meeting and the reasons for such determination.

(9) Notices of future meetings of the committee.

(10) Any additional information considered relevant by the head of the agency to which the advisory committee reports.

(b) MANNER OF DISCLOSURE.—

(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), the head of an agency shall make the information required to be disclosed available electronically on a publicly available website of the agency and to the Administrator at least 15 calendar days before each meeting of an advisory committee. If the head of the agency determines that such timing is not practicable for any required information, such head shall make the information available as soon as practicable but no later than 48 hours before the next meeting of the committee. An agency may withhold from disclosure any information that would be exempt from disclosure under section 552 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) Website Availability.—The head of an agency shall make available electronically on a publicly available website of the agency, detailed minutes and, to the extent available, a transcript or audio or video recording of each advisory committee meeting not later than 45 calendar days after such meeting.

(3) Grant reviews.—In the case of grant reviews, disclosure of information required by subsection (a)(3) may be provided in the aggregate rather than by individual grant.

(c) Provision of Information by Administrator of General Services.—The Administrator of General Services shall provide on a publicly available website of the General Services Administration, electronic access to the information made available by each agency under this section.

(d) Availability of Meeting Materials.—

(1) In General.—Except as provided in paragraph (2) and where prohibited by contractual agreements entered into prior to the effective date of the Federal Advisory Committee Management Act of 2018, agencies and advisory committees shall make available to any person, at actual cost of duplication, copies of advisory committee meeting materials.

(2) Application.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to require the disclosure of information that is protected from mandatory disclosure by statute.

(b) CHARTER FILING.—Subsection (f) of section 9 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.), redesignated by section 2(a) of this Act, is amended to read as follows:

(1) No advisory committee shall meet or take any action until an advisory committee charter has been filed with the Administrator, the head of the agency to whom any advisory committee reports, and the standing committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives having legislative jurisdiction of such agency. Such charter shall contain the following information in the following order:

(1) The committee’s official designation.

(2) The authority under which the committee is established.

(3) The committee’s objectives and the scope of its activity.

(4) A description of the duties for which the committee is responsible, and, if such duties are not solely advisory, a specification of the authority for such functions.

(5) The agency or official to whom the committee reports.

(6) The agency responsible for providing the necessary support for the committee.

(7) The responsibilities of the officer or employee of the Government designated under section 10(e).

(8) The estimated number and frequency of meetings of the committee.

(9) The period of time necessary for the committee to carry out its purposes.

(10) The committee’s termination date, if less than 2 years from the date of the committee’s establishment.

(11) The estimated number of members and a description of the expertise needed to carry out the objectives of the committee.

(12) A description of whether the committee will be composed of full- or part-time Government employees, representatives, or a combination of categories.

(13) Whether the agency will create subcommittees and, if so, the agency official authorized to exercise such authority.

(14) The estimated annual operating costs in dollars and full-time equivalent positions for such committee.

(15) Any other requirements of the agency.

(16) The date the charter is filed.

A copy of any such charter shall also be furnished to the Committees of the Senate.

(c) SEC. 5. MANAGING FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEES.

(a) COMMITTEE MANAGEMENT OFFICERS.—Subsection (c) of section 8 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.), as redesignated by section 2(d) of this Act, is amended by inserting ''OMB'' after ''Office of Management and Budget'' each place such term appears.

(b) R EPORT.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the committees described in subsection (c) two reports on the results of the review, as follows:

(1) The first report shall be submitted not later than 1 year after the date of promulgation of regulations under section 7(c) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.), as amended by section 8(b) of this Act.

(2) The second report shall be submitted not later than 5 years after such date of promulgation of regulations.

(c) COMMITTEES.—The committees described in this subsection are the Committee on Oversight and Reform of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate.

SEC. 6. COMPTROLLER GENERAL REVIEW AND REPORT.

(a) REVIEW.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall review compliance by agencies with the Federal Advisory Committee Act, as amended by this Act, including whether agencies are appropriately appointing advisory committee members who are not full-time or permanent part-time officers or employees of the Federal Government as either special Government employees or representatives.

(b) REPORT.—The Comptroller General shall submit to the committees described in subsection (c) reports on the results of the review, as follows:

(1) The first report shall be submitted not later than 1 year after the date of promulgation of regulations under section 7(c) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.), as amended by section 8(b) of this Act.

(2) The second report shall be submitted not later than 5 years after such date of promulgation of regulations.

(c) COMMITTEES.—The committees described in this subsection are the Committee on Oversight and Reform of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate.

SEC. 7. APPLICATION OF FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT TO TRADE ADVISORY COMMISSIONS.

Section 315(b)(2)(A) of the Trade Act of 1914 (19 U.S.C. 2115(b)(2)(A)) is amended by striking ''subsections (a) and (b) of sections 10 and 11 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act'' and inserting ''subsections (a) and (b) of section 10 and subsections (a)(7), (a)(8), (a)(9), (b)(2), and (d) of section 11 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act''.

SEC. 8. DEFINITIONS.

Section 3 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended by adding at the end the following paragraphs:

(5) The term ‘special Government employee’ has the meaning given that term in section 202(a) of title 18, United States Code.

SEC. 9. TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

Section 7(d)(1) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A), by striking ‘‘the rate specified for GS–18 of the General Schedule under section 5301 and inserting the rate for level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315’’; and

(2) in subparagraph (C)(i), by striking ‘‘the 30 individuals within the meaning of section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794a)’’ and inserting ‘‘individuals with disabilities (as defined in section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973)’’.

SEC. 10. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This Act and the amendments made by this Act shall take effect 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 11. NO ADDITIONAL FUNDS AUTHORIZED.

No additional funds are authorized to carry out the requirements of this Act and the amendments made by this Act, and any funds authorized by such requirements shall be carried out using amounts otherwise authorized.
The bill we are considering today includes changes made following negotiations we engaged in during the process. These changes are to address concerns raised last Congress by the Department of Health and Human Services and technical comments from the General Services Administration.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Washington, DC, March 11, 2019.

Hon. Elijah Cummings, Chairman, Committee on Oversight and Reform, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

Dear Chairman Cummings: In recognition of the desire to expedite consideration of H.R. 1608, "Federal Advisory Committee Act Amendments of 2019," the Committee on Ways and Means agrees to waive formal consideration of the bill as to provisions that fall within the rule X jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means.

The Committee on Ways and Means takes this action with the mutual understanding that we do not waive any jurisdiction over the subject matter contained in this or similar legislation. The Committee will be appropriately consulted and involved as the bill or similar legislation moves forward so that we may address any remaining issues within our jurisdiction. The Committee also reserves the right to seek appointment of an appropriate number of conferees to any House-Senate conference involving this or similar legislation.

Finally, I would appreciate your response to this letter confirming this understanding, and would ask that a copy of our exchange of letter on this matter be included in the Congressional Record during floor consideration of H.R. 1608.

Sincerely,

Richard E. Neal, Chairman.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT AND REFORM, Washington, DC, March 12, 2019.

Hon. Richard E. Neal, Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Clay: Thank you for your letter regarding H.R. 1608, the Federal Advisory Committee Act Amendments of 2019. As you know, the bill was referred primarily to the Committee on Oversight and Reform, with an additional referral to the Committee on Ways and Means.

I thank you for allowing the Committee on Ways and Means to be discharged from further consideration of the bill to expedite floor consideration. This discharge in no way affects the Committee's interest in the subject matter of the bill, and it will not serve as precedent for future referrals. In addition, should a conference on the bill be necessary, I would support your request to have the Committee on Ways and Means represented on the conference committee.

I would be pleased to include this letter in the Congressional Record during floor consideration in order to memorialize our understanding.

Sincerely,

Elijah E. Cummings, Chairman.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1608, the Federal Advisory Committee Act Amendments of 2019. I thank the sponsor of this legislation, my colleague from Missouri (Mr. CLAY). In spite of the fact that he is not wearing his stylish red glasses today, I want to acknowledge the great work that he has done. He has been a tireless advocate on this important reform over many Congresses.

H.R. 1608 will help improve the governance and transparency of Federal advisory committees. The Federal advisory committees are groups of experts and stakeholders who provide advice and recommendations to Federal policymakers.

Currently, Madam Speaker, there are over 1,000 advisory committees that are covered by the transparency and accountability requirements in the Federal Advisory Committee Act. But many more advisory committees are exempt from the law and may not receive the same level of scrutiny, due to a lack of transparency of their own operations.

The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY) has been right in working tirelessly to make sure these committees covered under the law are required to report on their operational costs. Those reports show advisory committees cost the Federal Government, many times, over $300 million annually, Madam Speaker.

We need to make sure that we are getting the most from the hardworking American taxpayers’ dollars. The 1972 act does not do enough to ensure transparency and openness to the Federal decisionmaking process.

This bill provides the needed transparency for how committee members are selected and how committee activities function. I encourage all my colleagues to support this particular legislation.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY).

Mr. CLAY. Madam Speaker, I thank my friend from the District of Columbia for her generosity in time and consideration, as well as my colleague and friend from North Carolina (Mr. MEADOWS), who supports the legislation also.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the Federal Advisory Committee Act Amendments of 2019.

As was mentioned, I introduced this bill in previous Congresses, and it most recently passed the House by voice vote in 2017, without amendment.

This legislation fits well with the theme of Sunshine Week, as the House joins together to address the need for more transparency in our government.

The Federal Advisory Committee Act, or FACA, as it is known, was originally enacted in 1972, as was mentioned, to ensure that the advisory groups that provide counsel to the executive branch operate with transparency.
Advisory committees provide the government with recommendations on a wide range of issues of importance to the American public. For example, advisory committees to the Department of Health and Human Services provide advice about critical issues such as sexual trafficking of children and youth. The National Advisory Committee on the Sex Trafficking of Children and Youth in the U.S. makes recommendations on Federal programs, such as best practices to provide services for children and youth who are victims of trafficking. The individuals on that committee are trusted to have experience relevant to the issues facing these children and share their reports with child welfare agencies that provide direct services around the country.

The bill we are considering today would strengthen FACA to make Federal advisory committees more transparent and make agencies more accountable in how they select and use their committees.

Under current law, agencies are able to avoid the requirements of FACA by conducting advisory committee business through subcommittees, as Ms. NORTON mentioned.

This bill makes it clear that FACA applies to subcommittees as well as their parent committees. The bill also clarifies that a committee set up by a contractor is subject to FACA if it is formed under the direction of the President or its agency.

Under FACA, agencies will be required to disclose how advisory committee members are selected; whether they have financial conflicts of interest; if they are appointed to provide their own expertise; and who they work for, if they are representing a specific interest.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I hope that the Senate will take it up quickly and send it to the President.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank the gentleman for his thoughtfulness. I have often said there are two ways things get done here in Washington, D.C.: slow and never. Let’s hope that this is one of those times where it is just slow and that we get the Senate to act on it.

I would inform the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia that I have no further speakers, and I am prepared.

But before I do that, I want to thank the staff on both sides of the committee. Oftentimes, we get up here and get to deliberate this, but it is the staffs who do the hard work. I thank our staff in the minority and, certainly, the majority staff for their hard work.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I must say that my friend from Missouri has been indefatigable in trying to get this bill passed. It looks like it received some notice, at least the last time, in the Senate.

I have joked with my friend that maybe if he got somebody else to introduce it, we could get the bill passed. But he keeps trying. If at first you don’t succeed, try, try again.

I believe that because he has understood that these advisory committees are very important and sometimes amount to enacting legislation, so important are some of them to our processes, that he has left no stone unturned until we get it done. I thank him for doing so.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. ADAMS). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1608.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FEDERAL REGISTER MODERNIZATION ACT

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker. I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1654) to amend title 44, United States Code, to modernize the Federal Register, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 1654

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

The Director of the Federal Register shall act as secretary of the committee. The committee shall provide for, among other things—

"(1) documents which shall be authorized under section 1509(b) to be published in the Federal Register;

"(2) the manner and form in which the Federal Register shall be published;

"(3) the manner and form in which agencies submit documents for publication in the Federal Register and special editions of the Federal Register;

"(4) subject to subsection (b), the manner of distribution to Members of Congress, officers and employees of the United States, or Federal official use, and the number which shall be available for distribution to the public;

"(5) the prices to be charged for individual copies of, and subscriptions to, the Federal Register and any reprints and bound volumes of it;

"(6) the manner and form by which the Federal Register may receive information and comments from the public, if practicable and efficient; and

"(7) special editions of the Federal Register.

"(b) CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS AMENDMENT.—Section 1510 of title 44, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 1510. Code of Federal Regulations

"(a) FOR COMPOSITION OF AGENCY DOCUMENTS.—The Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, with the approval of the President, may require, from time to time as it considers necessary, the preparation and publication in a special edition of the Federal Register a complete codification of the documents of each agency of the Government having general applicability and legal effect, issued or promulgated by the agency by publication in the Federal Register or by filing with the Administrative Committee, and are relied upon by the agency as authority for, or are invoked or used by it in the discharge of, its activities or functions, and are in effect as to facts arising prior to the date of codification, as specified by the Administrative Committee.

"(b) CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS.—A codification prepared under subsection (a) of this section shall be published and shall be designated as the ‘Code of Federal Regulations’. The Administrative Committee shall regulate the manner and forms of publishing this codification.

"(c) SUPPLEMENTATION, COLLATION, AND RE-PUBLICATION.—The Administrative Committee shall regulate the supplementation and the collation and republication of the codification with a view to keeping the Code of Federal Regulations as current as practicable. Each unit of codification shall be supplemented and republished at least once each calendar year. The Office of the Federal Register may create updates of each unit of codification from time to time and make the same available electronically or may provide public access using an electronic edition that allows a user to select a specific date and retrieve the codification of the codification in effect as of that date.

"(d) PREPARATION AND PUBLICATION BY THE FEDERAL REGISTER.—The Office of the Federal Register shall publish the codifications, supplements, collations, indices, and user aids authorized by this section.

"(e) PRINT AND DISTRIBUTION.—The ‘(c)’ codified documents of the several agencies published in the Code of Federal Regulations under this section, as amended by documents subsequently filed with the Office and published in the daily issues of the Federal Register, shall be prima facie evidence of the text of the documents and of the fact that they are in effect and in current and official publication.

"(f) REGULATIONS.—The Administrative Committee, with the approval of the President, shall issue regulations for carrying out this section.

"(g) EXCEPTION.—This section does not require codification of the text of Presidential documents published and periodically compiled in supplement to title 3 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

"(h) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—The table of sections for chapter 15 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking the items related to sections 1502, 1503, and 1504 and inserting the following:

"1502. Custody and publishing of Federal documents, appointments of Director.

"1503. Filing documents with Office; notation of time; public inspection; transmission for publishing.

"1504. ‘Federal Register'; publishing; contents; distribution; price.

"SEC. 2. DETERMINATION OF BUDGETARY EFFECTS.

"The budgetary effects of this Act, for the purpose of complying with the requirements of Pay-As-You-Go Act shall be determined by reference to the latest statement titled ‘Budgetary Effects of PAYGO Legislation’ for this Act, submitted for printing in the Congressional Record by the Chairman of the House Budget Committee, provided that such statement has been submitted prior to the vote on passage.

"The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) and the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MEADOWS) each will control 20 minutes.

"The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia, Ms. NORTON.

"Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extra- minutes.

"I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

"Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

"Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

"Democratic governments must be transparent and accountable to the American people. Recordkeeping laws apply to both. In support of transparency and accountability, the Federal Register Act of 1935, as my friend from the District of Columbia mentioned earlier, was created, and it actually created the Federal Register.

"The Federal Register also provides the building blocks for the Code of Federal Regulations, which makes it easier for the public to find Federal regulations by compiling them all in one place.

"In 1994, the Government Publishing Office began publishing the Federal Register online. When I got here, I actually got a paper copy of these Federal Registers, and I didn’t know what to do with them. I mean, they were just reams and reams.

"The gentlewoman from the District of Columbia is right. This is a good-government, efficient way, hopefully, to give the public the ability to save American taxpayer money.

"That online Register now includes navigational aids and links to related content, and it is fully searchable and downloadable.

"Congress has previously taken steps to make the Federal Register more efficient. In 2017, Congress passed the Federal Register Printing Savings Act. That law saved taxpayer dollars by actually requiring the GPO to provide only printed copies to Member offices that subscribe or request a copy of a specific issue.

H. Res. 156 continues in this spirit of reform with a commonsense change for the GPO and other agencies and gives them greater flexibility to make sure that we can save with online publications.

This bill also eliminates the requirements that agencies provide the National Archives with multiple copies of the documents submitted to the Federal Register. That requirement made sense when paper copies were mailed or delivered for publication, but now agencies can simply do that by sending duplicate copies electronically to comply with the law.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this particular piece of legislation. I thank the gentlewoman for her support, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I think it should be noted that all the bill does is give flexibility, full flexibility to publish the Federal Register electronically, so I suspect that there will still be paper copies.

But apparently, the Office of the Federal Register doesn’t think it can go online with the Federal Register, so that is very disturbing this late into the digital age.

I regard this bill, the bill of my good friend, I regard it as not a present, because it should have happened a long time ago, but absolutely necessary, and I commend him for this bill.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I am prepared to yield back. Unless my good friend has something further to say, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for her comments, and I yield back the balance of my time.

TRIBUTE TO DANNY WEISS

(Ms. PELOSI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. PELOSI. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to a dedicated and deeply respected member of my staff, my departing chief of staff, Danny Weiss.

For nearly three decades, Danny has brought a selfless, energetic, and unfailing leadership to the House of Representatives. He has committed nearly his entire career to this institution, inspired by his great respect for its history and empowered by his bold vision for its future.

Danny, the Congress and the country are stronger for the innovation, ingenuity, and insight that you have brought to this body.

Danny served in the office of my dear friend, Congressman George Miller—Mr. Chairman—for more than 25 years, including decades as his chief of staff.

In every position he has held in the Congress, Danny has been vital in advancing a serious, substantive, and successful agenda to improve the lives of hardworking families across America.

He has worked to expand opportunity, fighting for affordable quality healthcare, childcare, and education, and for healthier communities to his work on the: House Select Committee on Children, Youth, and Families; House Natural Resources Committee, and House Education and Labor Committee.

Danny has worked to expand justice by defending the rights and well-being of children, a mission he continued at the helm of Common Sense Media; and he has worked to expand progress to safeguard clean air, clean water, and preserve the beauty of God's creation.

And we are grateful for his leadership to elevate and amplify the issue of the climate crisis.

We are grateful that Danny agreed to return to the Congress at a pivotal moment for America. His efforts were vital to our Caucus' strength and unity, as Democrats developed our For the People agenda to clean up corruption in Washington, lower healthcare costs, and rebuild our country through investments in our infrastructure. Developing this agenda was no easy task, and as anybody like Danny knows, it is just as hard to keep Members of Congress on message—I thought that was funny—but Danny tried his hardest.

With Danny's efforts and with his persistence, we were successful and gained a historic majority record number of women in the 116th session of Congress. To say that Danny was instrumental in our efforts would be an understatement.

His career will also be defined by his unyielding belief that this body and each and every one of us can make a difference in the lives of the people whom we serve. Danny knows that even amid the chaos and the sensational headlines, we all have the power to be a force of good in this world.

I would like to join my colleagues in thanking Danny Weiss for not just his years of service, but for always keeping his eye on the prize and on the purpose and for his dedication to this institution.

Ms. PELOSI. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) to close for us, the chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Mr. SCOTT of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for providing me the opportunity to say some kind words about Danny Weiss.

I want to recognize Danny as a true model of a public servant. From Riverdale, New York, he wasted no time coming to Washington and leaving an impressive mark right here. For almost 28 years, he has provided invaluable service to the House of Representatives.

As we have heard, we know firsthand that Danny has been very effective in the House of Representatives because of his mastery of complicated issues that we face as Members of Congress. As chief of staff—first to Leader PELOSI and now to Speaker PELOSI—Danny has given wise counsel to me and my staff, and, as we have heard, to many other Members on issues that arise from time to time that need special attention that Danny always provided.

I would be remiss if I didn't note Danny's exemplary service to the Education and Labor Committee, under George Miller. Sitting here a few minutes ago, Danny asked me not to embarrass him—nice try.

We talked to George, and George informed me that early on he was on the lookout about hiring Danny, but over an Italian dinner with Danny's mother, Cora Weiss, George was informed rather emphatically that her son, Danny, would be a great hire and one of the best decisions that he ever made. George believes that mother knows the best, and the rest is history. Thanks to Danny's mom, we have all been blessed with his decades of public service to the House of Representatives.
CRIMEA ANNEXATION NON-RECOGNITION ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the unfinished business is the vote on the motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3105) to prohibit United States Government recognition of Russia’s annexation of Crimea, as amended, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

So (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: “A bill to prohibit United States Government recognition of the Russian Federation’s claim of sovereignty over Crimea, and for other purposes.”

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
MOMENT OF SILENCE FOR TORMENTED VICTIMS

(Mr. ROGERS of Alabama asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ROGERS of Alabama. Madam Speaker, I would ask to draw the House's attention to a terrible disaster that occurred in Alabama and Georgia on Sunday, March 3.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, we had an F-4 tornado with winds exceeding 170 miles per hour touch down in Alabama and stay on the ground a mile wide. For the next 70 miles, it plowed through Alabama and into Georgia.

This tornado took the lives of 23 innocent Alabamians and injured 90 people. It destroyed, just in Alabama alone, more than 120 homes, and then went into Georgia and did enormous property damage.

It is my hope that we, first of all, take note of the fact that the first responders in both of our States did a tremendous job and, since then, in the recovery mode.

The money and attention that this country and this Congress have invested in our first responders having the training and equipment they need to deal with these disasters, whether they are man-made or natural, was demonstrated again in this horrible disaster.

At this time, Madam Speaker, I would like to ask a moment of silence for us to ask God's grace and blessings on these families as they try to recover from this horrible disaster.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

(Mrs. WATSON-COLEMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. WATSON-COLEMAN. Madam Speaker, I had a saying when I was chair of New Jersey's appropriations committee: Show me your budget, and I will show you your priorities.

So let's take a look at what the President's budget priorities are.

An additional $8.6 billion for his misguided, hate-fueled wasteful wall; A 5 percent increase in the already bloated Pentagon budget, including money for his childish space force; and Making tax cuts for the rich permanent.

Now let's look at what he apparently does not value:

Medicare, $500 billion in cuts; Medicaid, $211 billion in cuts; and SNAP—that is meals for families that have fallen on hard times—$220 billion in cuts.

He also clearly doesn't prioritize:

The environment, 31 percent cut from the EPA; Education, $207 billion cut from student loan programs; or Infrastructure, 22 percent cut from the Department of Transportation.

Madam Speaker, any way you look at the budget, it is clear: This President needs to get his priorities in order.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO ROBERT PIOLI

(Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHNSON of Ohio. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to an American hero, Robert Pioli, of Marietta, Ohio.

Only 19 years old when Pearl Harbor was attacked, he stepped up to fight for his country. Robert requested to be a bombardier because it had the shortest training, and he was ready to fight.

In April of 1944, his B-17 was hit over Hungary. He was captured by the Nazis and became a POW, first sent to Poland and then eventually to Moosburg, Germany.

It was in Moosburg, in April 1945, that tanks under General Patton rolled over the gates and liberated the camp. Then came what Lieutenant Pioli said was the most memorable and dramatic moment of his life: The American flag was slowly raised over the town of Moosburg. There wasn’t a dry eye in the camp.

Robert recently passed away, peacefully, with his family at his side. I am honored to have gotten to know this family, and his family. He didn’t like to be called a hero, but that doesn’t change the fact that he certainly was one.

God rest in peace, Robert Pioli.

AVIATION SAFETY

(Ms. JACKSON LEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I serve on the Homeland Security Committee, and I have done so since the heinous act of 9/11.

I have a great deal of faith in the aviation industry of this Nation, but I want to offer my deepest sympathy to the people of Ethiopia and Indonesia.

In the instance of the Ethiopian flight, some eight Americans died. Ethiopian Americans have been calling my office saddened by the fact that some of their relatives, who are very special to them, lost their life.

I called, earlier today, for the grounding of the 737 Max 8 not because I don’t have faith in America’s genius, but because I believe people are number one and first. Pilots count, flight attendants count, and passengers count.

It was the FAA to remove their fear and to be able to assess a temporary grounding of this aircraft so that all of the systems can be checked, even the one that is automatic that the pilot is to release, which is alleged did not happen, but to release in order to save lives.

These planes, this aircraft, should be grounded now, and I will be sending a letter to the FAA to demand that.

HONORING DAN JENKINS

(Mr. WILLIAMS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WILLIAMS. Madam Speaker, I would like to take this time to honor a great man and even better friend, Mr. Dan Jenkins, who passed away last Thursday at the age of 90.

Many of us know Mr. Jenkins as a sports and literary icon. He wrote for “The Washington Post”, “Sports Illustrated”, “Golf Digest”, and the list goes on.

He won countless awards and authored more than 20 books, all the while representing our shared alma mater, Texas Christian University.

He was a true sports phenomenon, and he greatly impacted my life. In fact, he played a role in my decision to attend and play baseball at TCU. He was a vital member of the Horned Frogs golf team and has always been a regular at TCU sporting events.

Just recently, the school named the press box at Amon G. Carter Stadium after him. At 90, you may wonder what kept Mr. Jenkins going all these years.

The answer is that he never stopped writing. He was quoted as saying: “I want to keep my mind active. I don’t believe in those people who retire too early. Everybody who retires too early dies too early.”

Sadly, no matter what age Mr. Jenkins left this Earth, it would have been too soon.

I join the Fort Worth community in mourning an absolute legend in sports and in the media, but I take comfort in knowing his legacy will carry on for generations to come.

I hope you join me in praying for Mr. Jenkins’ wife, June; his sons, Danny and Marty; and his daughter, Sally, during this difficult time.

May God bless their family, and most importantly: Go Frogs. In God we trust.

CONGRATULATING GOOSE ISLAND AND BISHOP ENGLAND GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAMS

(Mr. CUNNINGHAM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Madam Speaker, today I rise to acknowledge the remarkable accomplishments of both the Bishop England High School girls basketball team and the Goose Creek High School girls basketball team, who are South Carolina’s State champs in the class AAA and AAAAA, respectively.

The Lady Gators rallied from behind to defeat Spring Valley with just seconds left in the game. Senior Mary Davis scored two free throw points to send the Goose Creek girls ahead. And then, with less than half a second on the clock, Shayla Nelson swatted a last-second attempt to defeat them.

The very next day, the Lady Bishops beat Keenan High School for their first AA class win in the county. It was a great season and the Goose Creek High School girls basketball team, who are South Carolina’s State champs in the class AAA and AAAAA, respectively.

REMEMBERING THE LIFE OF JAMES “JAMIE” PARKER

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to remember the life of James “Jamie” Parker, who passed away on Monday, February 25, at the age of 65.

Upon his passing, Mr. Parker had worked for 10 years as the editor for “Bryan County Now” as well as the night editor for the “Savannah Morning News.”

He reported on nearly everything happening in Richmond Hill, from sporting events to city council hearings, tear-jerking accidents, and stories where individuals made heart-warming contributions to their community.

His friends remember Mr. Parker not only as a trustworthy journalist reporting on these stories, but also as a great friend and having a heart as big as the country.

Deeply dedicated to his community, he attended more local sporting events than anyone else in town.

My thoughts and prayers are with his family, friends, and the entire Richmond Hill community during this difficult time.

CELEBRATING OAKLAND LITERACY COUNCIL’S 35TH ANNIVERSARY

(Mr. LEVIN of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEVIN of Michigan. Madam Speaker, I am proud to rise today in celebration of the 35th anniversary of the Oakland Literacy Council.

Since the Oakland Literacy Council was formed in 1984, volunteers have helped thousands of adult learners improve their literacy skills with the simple method of one neighbor helping another.

The dedicated and trained volunteers of the Oakland Literacy Council provide free basic literacy and English language instruction to adults who live in Oakland County, Michigan.

For 35 years, the efforts of the Oakland Literacy Council have helped residents, students, and workers improve their English language skills so that they may communicate with their child’s teacher, enhance their skills for a GED or to become a citizen of the United States, and improve their reading to receive promotions at work.

I commend the tireless work of the Oakland Literacy Council as it continues to improve the lives of Oakland County residents and strengthen the fabric of our southeastern Michigan community.

RECOGNIZING JAN GEE

(Mrs. RODGERS of Washington asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Jan Gee, the President and CEO of the Washington Food Industry Association.

Jan was recently presented the Women of the Year award from the Women Grocers of America. She has dedicated more than 30 years to being a voice for small businesses in... eastern Washington and continues to work tirelessly on behalf of family-owned markets and grocery stores throughout our State.

The winner of this award must exemplify the true characteristics of a leader. With a passion for the independent grocery industry, Jan Gee fits that description to a “T.” She has mentored and empowered women colleagues, inspiring and encouraging many to take on leadership positions.

I have known Jan since my days in the Washington State legislature. She is so deserving of this award because of her hard work, not only for small businesses but for helping to support the next generation of female leaders, entrepreneurs, and small business owners in Washington State.

I appreciate all that Jan has done and congratulate her on being recognized with the Woman of the Year award.

God bless you, Jan.

CALL FOR FISCAL CONSERVATISM

(Mr. SPANO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SPANO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to call attention to an obstacle that has stood before this Nation for many years, but that has recently risen to new and alarming heights.

Last month, the United States national debt topped $22 trillion for the first time in its history. This is $3 trillion higher than our annual GDP and equates to over $67,000 in debt to be borne by each and every American.

I understand this debt is the culmination of choices that all seemed reasonable in the moment. My colleagues and I entered public office to serve the country. And, too often, it is tempting to fix society by throwing money at our problems. However, this tactic mortgages future generations for their own generation but generations to come.

Congress has a duty to serve not only their own generation but generations to come, and we must exercise prudence to balance the desires of the present with the needs of the future.

This $22 trillion problem will require strong resolve from strong leaders.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. SPANO. Madam Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 5 o’clock and 6 minutes p.m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, March 13, 2019, at 10 a.m. for morning-hour debate.

BUDGETARY EFFECTS OF PAYGO LEGISLATION

Pursuant to the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 (PAYGO), Mr. YARMUTHY hereby submits, prior to the vote on passage, for printing in the Congressional Record, that H.R. 1588, the Electronic Message Preservation Act would have no significant effect on direct spending or revenues, and therefore, the budgetary effects of such bill are estimated as zero.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

O God, who has been our guiding light throughout life’s seasons, keep our lawmakers within the circle of Your divine will. Lord, give them hearts that seek Your wisdom, feet that flee from evil, and hands that serve Your purposes for our Nation and world. Empower them to be faithful to You and their calling to do Your will on Earth, inspiring them with Your divinity. Give them guidance in the tasks they permit righteousness to deliver them from trouble. Make them worthy of the trust you have given them.

We pray in Your great Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HYDE-SMITH). Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to resume consideration of the following nominations, which the clerk will report.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of Paul B. Matey, of New Jersey, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Third Circuit.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

BUDGET PROPOSAL
Mr. MCWEENY. Madam President, yesterday the White House released its budget proposal for fiscal year 2020. Understanding the President’s key priorities and vision for Federal spending is critical to the success of the entire funding process here in Congress.

Republicans agree that we need to remain focused on important goals, such as the continued rebuilding of our military, keeping up the fight against opioid abuse, and addressing the ongoing security and humanitarian crisis at our southern border.

As the senior Senator from Kentucky, I was especially encouraged to see the President’s commitment to our Nation’s veterans front and center, including a request to fully fund construction of the new Robley Rex VA Medical Center in my hometown of Louisville.

Together with my Senate colleagues, I look forward to carefully reviewing the administration’s priorities as this year’s funding process moves ahead.

NOMINATIONS
Madam President, on another matter, building on last week’s progress, the Senate will consider two more of President Trump’s outstanding judicial nominees, in addition to another executive branch nominee, this week.

The first item of business is the nomination of Paul Matey of New Jersey to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Matey holds degrees from Scranton and Seton Hall Universities, as well as clerkships on our Nation’s Federal courts. He has served the people of his State in the Office of U.S. Attorney in New Jersey and has built an impressive record.

I hope my colleagues will join me in voting to advance and confirm Mr. Matey and these other distinguished nominees so the Senate can fulfill our responsibility to the American people.

MEDICARE FOR ALL
On a final matter, here is a quote: “I think the $33 trillion price tag for ‘Medicare for all’ is a little scary.” That came from a Democratic Member of Congress who believe all the way in a leadership role. She sounds worried, and I don’t blame her.

The new House Democratic majority has wasted no time—no time at all—rolling out one half-baked socialist proposal after another. Apparently, the remarkable job growth, wage growth, and new opportunities pouring into communities across America have failed to persuade my Democratic friends of a simple reality: Things go pretty well when government gets its foot off the brake and lets American families live their lives without oppressive supervision from Washington Democrats. Apparently, that is just inconceivable, because the outlandish, government-driven proposals to take over one economic sector after another continue to roll in.

We have all heard about the New Deal—the far left’s master plan to hurt American energy independence, disrupt millions of workers’ livelihoods, put entire industries out of business, and let Washington regulators re-design every building in America, while letting China and other countries off the hook. That is just for starters. We have all heard about the price tag as estimated by the one research outfit that has actually taken a shot at hanging some numbers on all the vague, pie-in-the-sky language. They calculated the total could exceed $90 trillion.

But let’s not lose sight of the other party-defining, Socialist pivot many Democrats are rushing to embrace: Medicare for None. Yes, Democrats have taken the pulse of the American people, and here is what they have decided: They have decided that American seniors want their Medicare hollowed out until the only thing left is the name. They have decided that middle-class families are eagerly kicking off their health insurance plans and forced into a one-size-fits-all government alternative. Oh, and they have decided that taxpayers pay up and down the income scale are clamoring—just clamoring—to send more of their money to the IRS. No choices. No options. No alternatives. No more Medicare as we know it. Every single American has to obediently take a seat and buckle up for the Democrats’ wild ride toward government-run health insurance.

● This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

The sequo to ObamaCare and its soaring premiums is coming soon to a Democratic press conference near you. This time, they want to turn the entire system over to those bureaucrats and make it unlawful—unlawful—to possess competing private coverage. That sends quite a message, doesn’t it? My colleagues are so confident American families will love their new government-mandated healthcare plan that they feel compelled to outlaw any competition.

It has already been quite an experience watching liberal leaders grapple publicly with the question of whether, in fact, their movement is seriously going to double down on these socialist policies. Michael Bloomberg said this sort of proposal “would bankrupt us for a very long time.” Speaker Pelosi herself had to wonder publicly, “How do you pay for that?” Well, if you are Vermont or Colorado—two places that have flirted with the idea of single-payer healthcare—there is a simple answer: You don’t pay for it because you can’t.

In 2014, when Vermont grappled with a proposal for a State-run, single-payer system, the Governor’s office was forced to conclude from its own analysis that the cost of the program would nearly double State spending in its first year of implementation and could lead to $100 million deficits within 5 years. That was in Vermont. In 2016, Colorado Democrats put forward a ballot measure to pursue this in their State. Once again, the program’s costs were projected to exceed the entire State’s budget. So voters rejected it. In Colorado, percent of them rejected it, to be exact.

Those are just two States, and this is exactly the kind of broken math that Democrats are now hoping to force on our entire country—an estimated $32 trillion over the first 10 years, at least. That is more than the government has laid out in the last 8 years, combined, on everything—on everything.

I am sure we will be advertised the same old leftwing talking points about millionaires and billionaires magically paying for all of it. How often have we heard that? As I have noted before, it is just not possible. There are not enough millionaires and billionaires in the entire country to pay the tens of trillions of dollars this takeover would require. Even if the IRS seized every cent Americans earned beyond $1 million—all of it, took all their money—it wouldn’t be enough. The hole this proposal would leave in the Treasury. That is why one economist wrote that “the simple fact is that Medicare-for-all would require a dramatic shift in the federal tax structure and a substantial tax increase for almost all Americans.” Almost all Americans. Even leading Democrats can’t help but laugh at this stuff. This was Governor Andrew Cuomo of New York describing this idea in the context of his single-payer system, the Governor of New York derides as out-of-this-world expensive and impractical. No wonder some Democrats are worried about the radical rumblings within their party. Fortunate is that a single American people don’t have to worry a bit—at least not for now. This craziness will never get through the U.S. Senate.

Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader is recognized.

DECLARATION OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY

Mr. SCHUMER. By the end of this week, the Senate must vote on the resolution to terminate the President’s declaration of a national emergency. There are three very clear reasons to vote to terminate. First, there is no factual basis of an emergency at the border. The President made that clear when he said he didn’t need to do this. If we allow Presidents to declare emergencies for such nonemergency-type situations because they want to do it, we are headed down a very bad road. Second, the emergency was can- nibalized funds intended for our brave men and women in uniform in order to pay for the wall, including military construction, and maybe even military pay and pensions. The bottom line is, we hear from the other side how we have to make sure we give our soldiers what they need. We completely agree, but all of a sudden, when there is this wall, we take it away from the soldiers; we take it away from military readiness. That is not a trade most Americans would make.

Third and most important is the danger to our Constitution. The emergency declaration is an injury to this great Constitution under which we live. It claims powers for the Presidency that were explicitly given to Congress. It distorts the separation of powers and is an improper precedent for future Presidents.

The bottom line is, one of the things the Founding Fathers gave the most thought to was the balance of power and how to prevent an overpowered President. That is why they gave Congress the power of the purse. Are we going to reverse 220 years of a balance of power because a President is demanding a wall that Congress couldn’t get him, that Mexico couldn’t pay for? It goes far beyond the wall, whether you are for or against it. It goes far beyond all these other issues. It goes to the very nature of our government, and it will set us on a path that historians will come back and look at as a very bad turning point for America.

BUDGET PROPOSAL

Madam President, yesterday the Trump administration released its annual budget. These Trump budget requests have become so outlandish, so removed from reality, that even Republicans in Congress can’t work with that budget and can’t treat them seriously. They are essentially statements of principle from an administration that doesn’t care about governing. What does it care about? What are its priorities? That is what they talked about because I bet they know not a single Republican would vote for the budget.

We looked at the budget and what it would mean for my home State of New York. The President’s budget would cut millions of dollars from the Department of Justice programs that hire police officers, provide equipment, and combat the opioid epidemic. The budget would cut millions from New York’s educational programs that would help schools throughout our State, including those schools on milli- lionaire. It would hurt afterschool programs and STEM initiatives teaching our young people about science and math. The cuts to NIH would devastate New York’s hospitals, particularly rural hospitals, and would cut back on our great medical research. We are all living longer and healthier, in part, because of the medical research done by NIH. Hardly anyone wants to cut that. The President did.

The cuts to Medicaid would affect 6.5 million New Yorkers who rely on it. I think that story can be repeated for just about every State. New York is a very diverse State, with large urban, rural, and suburban populations, and every one of them is hurt across the board from safety and security to education and healthcare, to infrastructure and the economy. The Trump budget would be a gut punch to New York’s middle class. The same is true for the Nation.
Setting aside, for the moment, the humanity of these cuts, this budget reveals the depth of President Trump’s hypocrisy on several of his signature issues. Donald Trump campaigned for President promising not to cut Medicare, Medicaid, or Social Security. In 2015, in rebutting the challenges of the office sometimes prevent Presidents from achieving precisely what they campaigned on, but this is literally the opposite of what Donald Trump said in his campaign. No one is forcing his hand. He is proposing this.

Candidate Trump? No cuts to Medicare and Medicaid. President Trump? Cut those promises by more than $2 trillion.

This budget says: “Promises kept.”

Balderdash—balderdash—when it comes to Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid. Promises kept? Donald Trump said he wouldn’t cut Medicare or Medicaid. You would think the budget slashes these programs dramatically. How can they dare say “promises kept” on probably the most significant domestic-side programs we have when they slash them?

You don’t need a long memory to find out the hypocrisy of the President in this budget. Only a few months ago, the President spoke to the American Farm Bureau, promising a bright future for American farmers. Yet his administration proposed cutting the Department of Agriculture in the midst of implementing a new farm bill by 15 percent.

In his first address to a joint session of Congress, President Trump called education the “civil rights of our time.” Yet, he proposed cutting the Department of Education by 12 percent. Promises kept? Balderdash.

One of the few bipartisan moments during the President’s most recent State of the Union was when he pledged to “defeat AIDS in America and beyond.” The President’s budget, however, cuts the program that seeks to eliminate AIDS around the globe by 22 percent. Promises kept? Balderdash.

Of course, the President famously promised Mexico would pay for the border wall. His budget asks the American taxpayers to shell out $8.6 billion for the wall. Promises kept? Balderdash.

On the cover of the President’s budget are emblazoned the words “Promises Kept.” It must really believe no one will read beyond the cover page because this budget document is a list of broken promises by President Trump, one after the other. What he says to the public and what he puts out in his budget are one world. Promises kept? He said he wouldn’t cut Medicare or Medicaid. He cut them.

Promises kept? He said he would bolster our farmers. He cuts the farm bill 15 percent. Promises kept? Mexico will pay for the wall—not in this budget. The American taxpayers pay for it.

It is just pathetic that in this world in which we live, a President can be so hypocritical and contradictory by saying one thing and then having his budget do the exact opposite.

I have a challenge to my friend Leader McConnell, another challenge, because he seems to duck about every issue we have. Put President Trump’s budget on the floor of the Senate. You are putting the Green New Deal on the floor of the Senate. Put this budget on the floor of the Senate. Let’s see if a single Republican votes for it.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Madam President, this morning, the President tweeted a quote from a guest on “FOX & Friends” who called climate change fake science. Here is the quote: “There is no climate crisis, there’s weather and climate all around the world, and in fact, carbon dioxide is the main building block of life.”

There is weather and climate all around the world. Really, the President endorsed that quote. Just about every scientist who has studied it knows climate change is the greatest challenge facing our nation and our world who lives with these dramatic changes in weather, whether it is through California wildfires, whether it is through floods in the Middle West and Upstate New York, whether it is Miami streets flooding the Queen Mary and over again, everyone knows things are changing dramatically. It is not just the normal cycle I lived through the first 50 years of my life. We all know it is happening, and what does the President do? Not only does he deny it—it is worse—he acts on it in the wrong direction.

He has rolled back commonsense environmental protections, opened up more Federal lands for oil and gas, and put our nation’s lands and waters at risk. He would leave the Paris accord. In the budget, President Trump proposes to cut more than one-third of EPA’s funding and cuts other programs that combat climate change. Communities across the country are staring climate change in the face. Ask any farmer. They will tell you their growing seasons have changed. They will tell you about record droughts. They will tell you in the Mountain West about rebuilding homes and businesses. The President tweeted a quote from a guest on “FOX & Friends” who said climate change is fake science. He endorsed that quote. Just about every scientist who has studied it knows climate change is the greatest challenge facing our nation and our world.

This unhealthy development is not good for the long-term interests of companies or for America. America’s largest companies, for 466 of Standard & Poor’s 500, the equivalent of 92 cents out of every dollar went to stock buybacks. Corporate executives have been leaning on them more and more to satisfy shareholders who tend to be wealthy. The top 80 percent of all shares are owned by just a single Republican percent of America; that is even including pension funds.

After the Trump tax bill, last year buybacks reached their highest recorded level—over $1 trillion in a single calendar year. That is not money going to workers. That is not money going to communities. That is not money going into research to make better products. That is simply going to the wealthy CEOs and shareholders without other real benefit to the country.

This unhealthy development is not good for the long-term interests of companies or for America. America’s largest companies, for 466 of Standard & Poor’s 500, the equivalent of 92 cents out of every dollar went to stock buybacks. Corporate executives have been leaning on them more and more to satisfy shareholders who tend to be wealthy. The top 80 percent of all shares are owned by just a single Republican percent of America; that is even including pension funds.

We challenge our Republican friends to join the resolution by Senator Carper, myself, and others. It says three simple things: One, climate change is real. Do you believe that, all of my Republican friends? Can you answer yes or no? Two, it is caused by human activity. And, three, we need to do something to stop it, to stop the dramatic change in global warming.

First of all, it is notable that the Wall Street Journal editorial board wrote: Repurchasing shares is simply one way a company can return cash to owners if it lacks better ideas for investment. Tax reform increased corporate cash flow by cutting corporate taxes and letting companies repatriate their cash held overseas. First of all, it is notable that the Wall Street Journal editorial board basically admits that the Trump corporate tax cuts
The Wall Street Journal makes no mention of the record amount that corporate America has announced in buybacks since the tax bill passed—$1 trillion—or the many things corporations could invest in with their spare cash.

One thing the Journal never talks about is how income distribution is getting worse and worse and how the wealthy at the top own more and more of our wealth and our income while the middle class is more and more worried about the future and even about paying their bills now.

What about workers’ wages? Wouldn’t America be better off if workers were paid more? Income distribution is the worst it has been in decades. Why not reward workers for increases in productivity with higher wages? Productivity has gone up over the last decade—I think since about 2000—and workers have done the work to make that go up, though they have produced a lot of it.

What about pension funds? Listen to this. There are large numbers of corporate America that have not met the obligation of their pension funds—what happens when the workers that worked in the company and looking forward to a retirement with an amount of money that will not make them rich but at least allows them to live decently.

The Wall Street Journal makes no mention of any of these options. They said that buybacks are simply “one way a company can return cash to owners if it lacks better ideas for investment.”

Well, if that is the case, a lot of companies are willfully ignorant. When 92 percent of the S&P 500 have underfunded pension plans but are still authorizing billions of dollars in share repurchases, I think America would like to know that. In my view, I believe corporate America would have a hard time refuting that it is unconscionable for corporations to buy back billions in stock while letting its pension fund wither, breaking a promise to its workers, while letting its pension fund wither, and doing a retirement with an amount of money that will not make them rich but at least allows them to live decently.

Mr. THUNE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THUNE. Madam President, before I get to my main topic, I just want to briefly respond to something the Democratic leader in New York, said regarding the tax cuts bill that passed in 2017.

The Democrats, none of whom voted for it, obviously, have not ceased to criticize the passage of that tax relief bill, notwithstanding the significant economic progress we have seen as a result of its passage, coupled with relief from regulations and other policies that have been implemented by this President in working with the Congress.

There is historic economic data to report. We have record unemployment rates all across the country. We have seen record wage increases.

The Senator from New York talked about how this hasn’t benefited working Americans. That couldn’t be further from the truth. If you look at the data, it is very clear that wage rates are growing. They are growing at the fastest rate in over a decade. Today, we actually have more jobs available in this country than we do people looking for jobs. That is also a historic first and something that has been happening now for many months in a row.

We have record low unemployment, record high wages, and growth in the economic progress we have seen.

I know the Democrats all voted against it, so I suppose they have every reason to try to criticize it, but, again, if you look at the record, and if you look at the actual data, you get a very different conclusion from the one that they are trying to put forward and advance.

Judicial Nominations

Madam President, last week, we confirmed John Fleming to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development. The Senate confirmation process has been a familiar one over the past 2-plus years. He is a noncontroversial nominee being forced... to languish in limbo for months because Democrats will not agree to move the nominee forward outside of the lengthy cloture process.

As Senators, we have to take our confirmation responsibility seriously, and we have to mean that we will oppose a candidate who raises serious concerns about his or her suitability for the position for which he or she has been nominated. What it should not mean is that we reflexively slow-walk qualified candidates simply because we don’t like the President who is doing the nominating. That is what Democrats have done over the past 2 years, over and over. Again and again, the President has put up a qualified candidate the Democrats don’t really object to, and, again and again, they forced the leader to file cloture on the nomination, delaying confirmations for weeks or months.

How do we know the Democrats didn’t have genuine objections to a lot of these nominees? We have the Democrats’ votes to prove it. Nearly half of the recorded cloture votes in the 115th Congress received the support of 60 or more Senators when it came to a vote. More than one-third of the recorded cloture votes ultimately received 70 or more votes in support. That means that more than one-third of the cloture votes were supported by more Democrats voted in support of ending debate on a nomination and moving forward to a vote. Yet, in each of those instances, Democrats delayed the nomination from coming to a vote by forcing the leader to file cloture.

In one particularly egregious instance of objection, Democrats forced the Senate to spend more than an entire week considering four district court judges, even though not one single Democrat voted against their confirmation. That is right. Not one single Democrat voted against their confirmation. These judges could have been confirmed in minutes by a voice vote. Instead, Democrats forced the Senate to spend more than an entire week considering the nominations, a week that could have been spent on the many issues—serious issues that are facing this country—or a week that could have been spent on nominations that actually needed to be debated on the Senate floor.

During the 115th Congress, Senate Democrats forced 128 cloture votes on President Trump’s nominees—128 cloture votes. Do 17 or more Democrats forced the Senate to spend more than an entire week considering the nominations, a week that could have been spent on the many issues—serious issues that are facing this country—or a week that could have been spent on nominations that actually needed to be debated on the Senate floor.

During the 115th Congress, Senate Democrats forced 128 cloture votes on President Trump’s nominees—128 cloture votes. Do you want to know how many cloture votes Republicans forced during President Obama’s first Congress, his first 2 years in office? Twelve. In our democracy, you win some elections and you lose some elections. That is the way it goes. Sometimes you are a big fan of the person in the White House and sometimes you are not. That is the nature of free elections. That is the nature of life in a democracy.

But 2-plus years on, Democrats still can’t accept that they lost the 2016 Presidential election. They have spent the past 2 years doing everything they can to oppose the President, even if the American people get hurt as a result.

There is a reason that Senators, during previous administrations, have not objected to a President’s nominees, even when they didn’t like the President. It is because Senators have generally recognized that a President needs to fill vacancies in the executive branch so that the work of the government can get done. Senators have also always respected that the President duly elected by the American people deserves to be able to staff the administration that the American people have chosen.

Democrats have apparently decided that it is more important for them to be able to express their antipathy to President Trump than for the government to be able to get its work done. Democrats’ unprecedented obstruction has also eaten up time that the Senate could have been spending on other priorities—from growing our economy to making healthcare more affordable, to helping Americans save for education and their retirement.

I would like to suggest to my Democratic colleagues that 2 years is long enough for throwing a tantrum over the 2016 Presidential election. It might be time to accept the election results and to work with Republicans to confirm the President’s nominees in a timely fashion. After 2-plus years of Democratic obstruction, I am not holding out a lot of hope, but there is always a chance that Democrats will decide that it is time to stop playing partisan games and to start focusing on the business of the American people.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SCOTT of Florida). Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF PAUL B. MATEY

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on the nomination of Paul Matey, who has been nominated by President Trump to a New Jersey District Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

The Constitution actually charges this body with a sacred obligation. This body is charged by our Founders and by our Constitution with providing advice and consent on the individuals the President nominates to serve on the Federal courts.

Over the last century, the United States has developed a process for carrying out that duty of evaluation, evaluating those nominees, but just a couple of weeks ago, the body broke a century-old precedent. Until then, the Senate had never ever confirmed a judicial nominee over the objections of both home State Senators. I looked into this through the Congressional Research Service, and they didn’t find a single example where that has ever happened.

During the last century before the Trump administration, you could count on one hand the number of times the Senate had confirmed a judicial nominee when even one home State Senator had objected. That happened four times during the 1980s and once during the 1990s. That is it. But with the nominees now coming to the Senate floor, to this body, it is breaking a longstanding, bipartisan tradition and has jettisoned that rule and that idea. This has already happened—ignoring the objections of one home State Senator.

Now that is happening in a doubling-down capacity. The Senate confirmed Eric Miller to the Ninth Circuit a couple weeks ago, and he was opposed by both of his home State Senators, my friends PATTY MURRAY and M ARIA CANTWELL. This was the first time in a century that this body has disregarded the objections of both duly-elected Senators, who know their States, who know their communities. It was a break from this longstanding bipartisan tradition, this idea that this body is different from the majority body in the House; that in this body, we believe home State Senators should have a say on the nomination of judges. Not only are they in that community, but clearly, when you have a Republican President, you are going to see Republican-appointed judges. But this breakdown has now undermined this tradition that in the Senate, we find a way to come together and work together on this sacred duty of putting people into that third branch of government.

What worries me now is this week, the Senate is on the brink of doing it again. Senate Republicans are moving to confirm an individual to the Third Circuit over the objections of both home state Senators—in this case, both home State Senators from New Jersey, Senator MENENDEZ and me. So this moment is personal to me, but more importantly, I want to sound the alarm yet again and not just sit as a by-stander to history and let this Senate tradition be eviscerated.

When I first got to the Senate, I made it known that I really wanted to be on a number of committees. I asked for the Committee on the Judiciary. I asked to be on the Finance Committee. It took me years to get on that committee. I am so proud to be on a committee that has an incredible record of doing bipartisan work, whether it was the bill we passed out of committee to protect Robert Mueller or last Congress when we worked together across the aisle to do comprehensive criminal justice reform.

I know the history of that committee. I have been watching it since I was much younger and had a lot more hair. I can tell you—the dissent—as Senator DURBIN so eloquently described last week in our markup committee—this is a committee whose...
Members have worked together to confront many great challenges. But now we find ourselves in a perilous position where important guardrails that were put in place to properly vet judicial nominees are being thrown by the wayside.

The latest development in the Senate is disregarding the blue-slip tradition, which over the last century has enabled home State Senators to have a meaningful role in the nomination process.

In late January of this year, the Senate Judiciary Committee held a markup meeting for 44 judicial nominees. Folks around here were literally calling it the monster markup. At that meeting, I told Chairman Graham, just as I had told Chairman Grassley last year, that the White House had not meaningfully consulted with me or Senator Menendez ahead of that markup. In fact, I pointed out, the White House had not offered to even arrange a meeting between Mr. Matey and me or Senator Menendez. We didn’t get an offer of a meeting before the nomination. We didn’t get an offer of a meeting before the confirmation hearing. We didn’t get an offer of a meeting before the markup.

Chairman Graham said he would make sure that Mr. Matey and I would be able to meet before the full Senate voted on his nomination, and we did. I really appreciate that and Senator Graham being a man of his word. But when I met with Mr. Matey last week, our conversation was refreshingly honest because we both knew it was just a courtesy. We knew this process was completely backward. Two home State Senators have just been rendered completely irrelevant in the selection of a circuit court judge from their State.

I ask any of my colleagues to imagine this: that a person to the circuit court from their community—and Mr. Matey and my city—are not even given a chance to meet with them, have a discussion, ask them questions. If it weren’t for my presence on the Judiciary Committee, where I got 5 minutes to question him, this person would have sailed through without any consultation with two home State Senators. I ask my colleagues how they would feel if this happened to them.

This breaking of a century-old precedent has made it clear that we are going to keep on breaking it. This is something that is not going to become a part of this body. Are we all really comfortable with the implications of that?

The Republicans on the Judiciary Committee just voted out two Second Circuit nominees over the objections of their home State Senators—again, historically unprecedented—and three nominees to the Ninth Circuit with the very same problem are about to come before this committee.

I urge my colleagues to be intent on dismantling the century-old process for the vetting of judicial nominees. This is being done methodically—taking it apart piece by piece, whatever it takes to push through these nominees.

The pendulum does swing in this place. I was told by Senators whom I respect—I still remember coming here and sitting down with some of the statesmen on both sides of the aisle. I still remember conversations with Senator Harkin, who is no longer here, and Senator McCain telling me to respect the traditions of this body, to understand that this body, as an institution, could absorb the cooling of the partisan rage or passions of the time; that we should preserve those parts of this institution that create comity, that force us to come together. But the wound that is being created right now goes to the ability of any Senator in this body to truly represent their State.

Look, the pendulum is going to swing. Eventually, there is going to be a Democratic President. This body will shift again. Every single Senator, whether or not they should be pro-choice, is going to have to ask the question: if you are pro-choice, are you going to see the time when, because of what we are doing today, they will have no say whatsoever when it comes to their constitutional duty of advice and consent?

My message to my colleagues is this: The feeling I had last week when I met with Mr. Matey is a feeling that everyone in this Chamber is going to have at some point if we do not stop this now. If we continue down this path, you will find yourself rendered irrelevant in the selection of judicial nominees from your State. You were duly elected by the people of your State, and there won’t be a thing you can do to stand up for your interests in this process.

This will be a sad chapter if we allow it to be written into our history. It doesn’t have to be this way. We could go back in this process. We could say: You know what, this guy is qualified. Why don’t we go back and have the process right away—Mr. White House sit down with their home State Senators and see if they can work out a deal, as it was done before, to make sure we have a role in the process the Founders designed.

The guardrails we have established in this body have an important purpose: to enable the Judiciary Committee and Senators to properly vet judicial nominees, to ensure that those nominees are not just qualified to serve but that they are moderate, not ideologues, and to ensure that they have a good judicial temperament.

We cannot walk away from the long-standing Senate practice of respect for the views of home State Senators about the judges who will serve in their State. I urge my colleagues to vote no on this nomination because of the chilling of the processes that have been a time-honored way of doing things in the Senate. But let me be clear: this is not just more than just the dismantling of these procedures. As a Senator, I do have a perspective on the nature of some of the nominees who are being put forward to serve on our courts, and I want to take a moment to speak to that.

The Constitution charges this body with vetting the President’s judicial nominees for good reason. It is our duty as Senators to provide a check and balance on those nominations to ensure that people who serve as Federal judges can be fair and impartial. It is our duty to help protect the independence of the judiciary. But over and over, we are seeing that President Trump is selecting nominees precisely because they will bring an ideological agenda to the bench.

This will be seen as we soon consider the nomination of Neomi Rao to the DC Circuit Court. Ms. Rao is a prime example of how the administration is working to politicize our Federal courts to achieve far-right policy objectives that do not sit in the mainstream of America. The examples of this are not just rhetoric; the examples of this are clear.

The DC Circuit Court often gets the last word on legal challenges to important regulatory protections. Is the person the President has chosen to sit on this court? Ms. Rao has dedicated much of her career as a law professor and as a Trump administration regulatory czar to tearing away critical protections for American citizens.

During her time in the Trump administration, Ms. Rao has overseen efforts to roll back an array of Federal protections, from fair housing to clean air and water, from women’s rights to LGBTQ rights, from food safety to workers’ rights, to so many areas that impact Americans of all backgrounds and all aspects of American life. She has also criticized landmark decisions by the Supreme Court. Other Trump nominees have not gone as far as she has. She literally criticized Brown v. Board of Education, Lawrence v. Texas, and Roe v. Wade.

Worse still, Ms. Rao has been unwilling to make the firm commitment to recuse herself from legal challenges to regulations that her office reviewed while she was a Trump administration regulatory czar. This is fundamental to the independence of our judiciary.

If you compare her position to others within the Trump administration, you will see that other judicial nominees, including President Trump’s prior nominee to the DC Circuit, have pledged to recuse themselves from matters they worked on in the executive branch, but Ms. Rao is refusing to do the same.

Given her long track record of opposing critical Federal protections, the serious concerns about independence and recusal, Ms. Rao is the wrong person to sit on the DC Circuit Court, and I urge my colleagues to vote no on the nomination as well.

Most importantly, I urge my colleagues, my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans—who do not want to be rendered irrelevant in the selection of judges from their States to stop—stop—this evisceration of a long-standing blue-slip tradition in the Senate.

I thank you for the time.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, this week, the Senate will continue to fill vacancies across the Federal bench.

This afternoon, we will vote to confirm Paul Matey to be U.S. Circuit Court Judge for the Third Circuit, and then we will move to the nomination of Neomi Rao for a seat on the DC Circuit Court of Appeals—the seat that was vacated by Justice Brett Kavanaugh.

Throughout her career, Ms. Rao has served in all three branches of government. She clerked for Justice Clarence Thomas on the U.S. Supreme Court and Judge Harvie Wilkinson on the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. She also worked here in the Senate as an assistant to the Judiciary Committee for then-Chairman Orrin Hatch.

She has worked as Associate Counsel and Special Assistant to President George W. Bush and in her current position as Acting Director for the Office of Administration and Regulatory Affairs—one of the most important and least understood Federal Agencies.

In addition to her outstanding career in public service, Ms. Rao was also an associate professor at the Antonin Scalia Law School at George Mason University and is a leading scholar in the field of administrative law.

Knowing her impressive background, it was no surprise to see that the American Bar Association, once hailed by the minority leader as the “gold standard by which judicial candidates are judged,” rated her as “well qualified.”

When considering this particular seat, it is hard to imagine anyone better prepared. The DC Circuit Court of Appeals has sometimes been referred to as the “second highest court in the land” and is unique because its case-load is disproportionately weighted toward administrative law and litigation involving the Federal Government.

Despite her outstanding qualifications, our Democratic colleagues have attempted to tank Ms. Rao’s nomination over decades-old writings. That sounds pretty familiar, although, as I recall, Justice Kavanaugh was excoriated for things in his high school yearbook. At least we have moved on to college when it comes to Ms. Rao.

During her confirmation hearing last month, critics returned to the Kavanaugh playbook and began criticizing her for things she wrote in college rather than asking her productive questions about maybe what she has learned since that time or how her views may have changed or how she has functioned as head of the OIRA or how her office has reduced regulatory costs by more than $23 billion. Instead, critics chose to focus on her decades-old writings.

Over the years, Ms. Rao has done what we have all done: She has grown and learned from her experiences. She has repeatedly said that she no longer holds the views that she wrote about back in college. I believe we should judge a nominee not by views they expressed in high school or college but what they have done since that time as mature adults and professionals. So just add me to the long list of people who believe Neomi Rao should be confirmed for the DC Circuit Court of Appeals.

Two dozen former Supreme Court clerks who worked alongside Rao sent letters to the Senate Judiciary Committee, touting her qualifications. They said:

Many of us have worked in government, at both the federal and state levels, some for Democrats and some for Republicans. . . . While our professional paths may have diverged, one thing of things we have always shared is admiration for Neomi. We are confident she will serve our country well on the DC Circuit.

We have seen similar letters from her classmates at both Yale and the University of Chicago Law School, as well as a group of more than 50 of her former law students. Her former students wrote:

Our views span the political spectrum: we have differing positions on the role and work of the Federal judiciary; and we have gone on to work in law firms, government, public interest organizations, and judges’ chambers. Yet despite her differences, we all agree that Professor Rao would make an outstanding addition to the bench. We have no doubt that, if confirmed, her brilliance and fair arbiter of the cases that came before her.

I agree.

I supported Ms. Rao’s nomination in the Senate Judiciary Committee, and I will once again look forward to supporting her nomination when the full Senate votes on her nomination this week.

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT

Mr. President, on another matter, this Saturday will mark the 268th birthday of James Madison, the Father of the Constitution and an ardent advocate for open government.

It is no coincidence that near his birthday each year, we also celebrate something called Sunshine Week—a time to promote transparency in government and access to public information.

I have always been proud of the fact that Texas is known for having one of the strongest and most robust freedom of information laws in the country. As attorney general of Texas for 4 years, it was my privilege to enforce those laws and write in college and personal letters in college.

We strive to maintain an open and honest government. Not only does it keep citizens in the know, it also helps keep government accountable.

As we all know, Justice Brandeis famously said: “Sunlight is said to be the best of disinfectants.” When I came to Washington, I wanted to bring that same Texas sunshine to the national level.

During my time in the Senate, I have made government transparency a priority, and I have pressed for more openness in the Federal Government through commonsense legislation.

Over the last decade-plus, my closest ally in that effort has been my friend and colleague from Vermont, Senator PAT LEAHY. Some people consider us to be the odd couple when it comes to this topic because Senator LEAHY is on the other end of the political spectrum.

As a conservative, I think if people act in government as if their actions are going to be known and available to the people they work for—the taxpayers—it really changes their behavior. It doesn’t require Congress or the government to pass more regulation or make rules to get them to do what they know they should do if they knew that what they were doing was going to be made public; hence, my support for the Freedom of Information Act and public information law.

Senator LEAHY and I have worked so well together because we understand that this is not a Republican or Democratic issue. We both recognize that whether it is a Republican administration or a Democratic administration, everyone wants to truthful their successes and hide their failures. That is just human nature. But in order for our government to run well and the American people to trust that it is running well, we need transparency and the accountability that goes along with it.

Safeguarding our right to public information is the Freedom of Information Act, or FOIA. FOIA serves not as a weapon but as a shield, protecting the American people from a government that may seek to abuse its power or conceal fraud and abuse.

In the more than 50 years since FOIA was first enacted, we have seen a tug of war playing out in both Republican and Democratic administrations, with some favoring more openness and others favoring less. That is why it is so important that we fight here in the Senate to ensure that the balance doesn’t tilt away from transparency.

This is a great opportunity both to reflect on the important steps we have taken in the past and to reconnect ourselves to the ongoing important work that we still need to do.

I believe the most significant legislation Senator LEAHY and I shepherded during our work together is the FOIA Improvement Act of 2016. It required government Agencies to operate under a presumption of openness when considering whether to release government information.

This is aimed to reduce the abuse of exemptions to withhold information from the public and to minimize the bureaucracy in the FOIA request process by requiring the creation of a single
It is unlikely you will find someone in Colorado government or politics who doesn’t know Sam or hasn’t worked with Sam, and there is no shortage of recognition for the incredible work he has done. If you need proof, you can look through the abundance of awards he has received, including a lifetime achievement award from the Colorado City & County Management Association earlier this year. It is also not surprising that Sam has his own day, Sam Mamet Day, on February 4, which was dedicated by the city of Greenwood Village as a thank-you for his years of sincere dedication to them. These are just a few of the many examples of appreciation that showcase the passion and zeal Sam has for the cities and communities across our great State.

I can’t stress enough how Colorado communities have benefited and how the State of Colorado has benefited from the work of Sam Mamet. His years of persistence and dedication in his role have had a tremendous and monumental impact. His work transcends beyond partisanship, and I think that is the most important thing to talk about. When you see Sam Mamet, you don’t think of left or right or red or blue. You see nonpartisanship in the work he does.

He cautions leaders to avoid demeaning an issue or individual on the other side, something so important in today’s political environment, and to focus more on cultivating policies that will simply benefit each and every community based on the specific needs and requirements of the people. We need more leaders like Sam.

Sam has long believed public service is the highest calling. He recognizes the gravity the position holds and why it is so important that public servants are given the tools necessary to better the streets and neighborhoods and communities they belong to. This is what each and every citizen expects and their leaders and what he has dedicated his life to accomplish.

“Empowered Cities and Towns, United for a Strong Colorado,” is CML’s vision statement, and Sam is the embodiment of these words. Each and every day he worked to give the cities and towns around him the tools and knowledge to empower them, and for 40 years he helped to unite a strong Colorado. While that was a big step in improving local communities, it is far from over. He has big shoes to fill, but I know Kevin Bommer, the next executive director, will do an outstanding job.

With that, I yield the floor.

The Fifth Circuit—one of the most conservative appellate courts in the country—will hear the case next. The case is destined for consideration by the Supreme Court, wherein Trump-appointed Justices Gorsuch and Kavanaugh will cast two deciding votes on whether to uphold the ACA or cast it aside. I shudder to think which way they are likely to go.

The outcome of this case will have a profound impact on virtually every American, especially the 133 million people living with preexisting conditions.

This is not a game. Lives are at stake. Without the ACA’s protections, millions of Americans living with conditions as common as diabetes, obesity, heart disease, or cancer could be charged exorbitant premiums or denied insurance coverage altogether.

The stakes in this ongoing court battle are incredibly high. Our resolution simply asks the Department of Justice to do its job, defend the ACA as a duly enacted act of Congress, and stand up to protect Americans living with preexisting conditions.

Although many of my Republican colleagues profess to support protections for those with preexisting conditions, not a single one of them has signed on to support this resolution.

Under new leadership, the Department of Justice can do the right thing. During his confirmation hearing, newly confirmed Attorney General Bill Barr indicated he was open to reassessing DOJ’s decision to oppose the ACA in court. We shall see.

With this resolution, my Democratic colleagues and I urge him to reexamine the Department’s position, consider the monumental impact this case would have on millions of Americans, and stand up for the 133 million Americans living with preexisting conditions.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. Res. 94 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration; further, that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Hawaii.

Ms. HIRONO. Madam President, I often say that I like to see when people reveal themselves.

With this objection today, my colleague from Wyoming has sent a clear message to Americans living with preexisting conditions, the Republican Party doesn’t care about them. I am disappointed with his objection, but I can’t say that I am surprised. Today’s action is very consistent with the Republican Party’s hostility to the ACA and their belief that healthcare is a privilege reserved only for those who can afford it.

To recap, Republicans voted dozens of times and gutted the ACA over 3 years to repeal the ACA in its entirety. The Senate came within one vote in July 2017 of repealing the law—one vote.

The majority leader and my Republican colleagues from South Carolina and Montana proposed—and came close to passing—a bill that would have gutted the ACA and cut hundreds of billions of dollars from Medicaid.

As part of their huge tax cut for the rich and corporations, Donald Trump and congressional Republicans eliminated the individual coverage requirement of ACA, driving up premiums across the country.

So the assault on healthcare continues. The American people are paying attention, and Republicans will be held accountable.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President. I come today to ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Senate Resolution that is at the desk, expressing the sense of the Senate that efforts to create a one-size-fits-all government-run healthcare system referred to as “Medicare for All” should be rejected.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Ms. HIRONO. Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Ms. HIRONO. Reserving the right to object, this resolution is a cynical attempt to divide Democrats where no division exists. The Democratic Party is united behind the principle that healthcare should be affordable and accessible to all. As far as I am concerned, healthcare is a right, not a privilege reserved for those who can afford it.

Medicare for All is one way to get to universal healthcare that is affordable for everyone, but it is not the only way. While Democrats are working to build on the success of the Affordable Care Act to cover even more Americans, Senate Republicans have tried and again to eliminate coverage for tens of millions of Americans. This is particularly evident in the President’s budget—a budget that would make over $2 trillion in cuts to Medicare and Medicaid, programs that provide healthcare coverage to one out of every four people in our country.

I call on my Republican colleagues to join us to improve the ACA and expand coverage to more Americans rather than trying to repeal the Affordable Care Act time after time.

It is unfortunate that my colleagues would rather offer this distortion than acknowledge that millions of Americans rely on Medicare, Medicaid, and the ACA for healthcare. In offering this resolution, Republicans continue to do nothing except propose cuts to all three critical programs.

I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I would just point out that what my friend and colleague from Hawaii described as a distortion is one of the key points of the Democratic Party.

Medicare for All, as they call it, is part of the so-called Green New Deal, which would bankrupt the country, which is unaffordable, unworkable. The fact is, this Medicare for All proposal, which so many of the Democrats have signed, projected a deficit of $33 trillion and maybe a lot higher after what we have heard from the Presidential candidate, BERNIE SANDERS, as to the things he wants to do going beyond just Medicare for All.

We know that taxes would increase significantly under their proposal. We know that for Americans who have health insurance right now through their work, over 150 million Americans would lose that. We know that for people on Medicare, it would make their care much harder. Then, of course, there would be the issue of rationing for care—the lines and the time to wait.

There was an article in the New York Times, an opinion piece by David Brooks, on Friday, talking about why the so-called Medicare for All will not work, and it made reference to healthcare in Canada.

I would say to the Presiding Officer that as a Senator who is also a surgeon, I practiced in Canada in my practice prior to becoming a U.S. Senator and while practicing in Wyoming. People in Canada—where the healthcare is paid for by taxes but is free—I have taken care of people who couldn’t afford to wait the amount of time it would take to get their free operation.

The article in the New York Times on Friday made reference to the fact that the waiting times are so long that if the President of the United States, the primary care provider in Canada, the wait time to get to see an orthopedic surgeon is 9 months—9 months. The Democrats are proposing something that has given the people of Canada a waiting time of 9 months.

So what we see under this Medicare for All proposal—and I have just introduced today this Senate resolution saying that Medicare for All should be rejected, and there should also be a rejection of the tax increases, the loss of choice, and the long lines that will come from this Democrat-sponsored proposal for Medicare for All.

Thank you.

I yield the floor.

Ms. HIRONO. Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Ms. HIRONO. Very briefly, I simply want to ask my Republican colleagues whether they believe that healthcare should be accessible and affordable for all. Apparently, they do not, because they have offered absolutely nothing to make sure healthcare is accessible and affordable for all.

In fact, in their continuing efforts to sabotage the Affordable Care Act and, in fact, eliminate the Affordable Care Act, they would rather have a healthcare system where millions of Americans are without healthcare at all.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

WOMEN’S HISTORY MONTH AND THE EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, this month we celebrate the storied history of incredible women in our country. We recognize the sacrifices made and the battles fought to ensure a future where our daughters and granddaughters are born into a world of equality and limitless opportunity.

Throughout Women’s History Month, we mark the historic strides women have taken to advance our culture, our sciences, our States, and our Nation. As we recognize these achievements, we must also assess and advocate for the work still to be done, including the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, the ERA. Ratifying the ERA would be a major milestone on the road to equality. Not only would ratification enshrine equal rights for women in the Constitution, it would also honor all of those who have fought for justice along the way.

One such inspiring woman is civil rights activist Juanita Jackson Mitchell. A Baltimore native, Mrs. Mitchell fought to end legally sanctioned segregation in her community while she simultaneously reached out to young people and mobilized them into civic engagement. After she received her law degree from the University of Maryland, she was the first African-American woman to practice law in our State, and she worked tirelessly on a number of cases to provide more job opportunities for African Americans. As President of the NAACP in Baltimore, she advocated for integration and later convinced the city to hire Black social workers, librarians, and police officers, which bolstered the community by helping to bring an end to long-held systemic prejudices.

As a community activist and champion of women’s rights, Mrs. Mitchell exhibited true bravery in her engagement with her community. She fearlessly paved the way for other women to join the movement. She worked with Black women and organizations to find solutions for systemic social and educational discrepancies in communities of color. Mrs. Mitchell... understood the importance of representative democracy and of empowering those who could make differences in their communities. Juanita Mitchell is a shining example of why a constitutional amendment to guarantee women's rights is so important.

The ERA, which Congress approved in 1972, guarantees equal protection under the law regardless of one's sex. At that time, Congress imposed a 7-year deadline—later extended to 10 years—for the States to act. By the time the deadline expired in 1982, 35 States had approved the Equal Rights Amendment—three short of the 38 States necessary to add it to the Constitution. Since then, two more States have approved the amendment, which leaves us just one State shy of reaching the goal. Congress must act to authorize additional time for the remaining States to consider the amendment.

Earlier this year, I and the senior Senator from Alaska, Ms. Murkowski, introduced the Senate Resolution, S.J. Res. 6, to reopen consideration of the ERA. It may come as a shock to many that in a country to which the world looks as being an example of liberty and justice, our Constitution does not guarantee women the same rights and protections as men. That is why this bipartisan resolution is imperative as we urge Congress and the remaining States to finish what we started nearly 50 years ago to ensure equality under the law for all women.

In the early 20th century, women were disenfranchised and had little or no legal, financial, or social opportunities to pursue. Property ownership, jobs, and economic equality were privileges women did not have. Today, a century later, more women have entered the workforce than ever before. Women are filling leadership roles at unprecedented levels, and we are finally on the verge of ratifying the ERA. This change has boosted our economy. It has empowered our families, and brought our society to new heights of innovation, enlightenment, and opportunity. We see that change is not only possible, it is essential to realizing our greatest potential as a nation.

While ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment is critical to giving women in our country the rights they deserve, it is not, in and of itself, enough. I will continue to fight for the ERA but also for women’s economic opportunities and reproductive rights.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

She passed the test established by the President—that he would appoint judges who would overturn Roe v. Wade.

But as abhorrent and objectionable as I find many of her views and her refusal to give straightforward answers, she has also written a number of very troubling articles and op-eds about her views on women’s rights and women’s healthcare. We have in this Chamber a term called “confirmation conversion,” and I thought Ms. Rao provided an example of discriminating against those pieces.

In an op-ed about date rape, she wrote: “If [a woman] drinks to the point where she can no longer choose, well, getting to that point was part of her choice.” In another op-ed criticizing aspects of feminism, Rao wrote that women “must be thoroughly educated about the consequences of their sexuality in order to prevent such problems” as date rape. From early in her career, these writings indicate that she believes women bear a major part of responsibility for date rape.

These writings are from early in her career, and I thought she would completely break with them and reject them. She failed to do so. Only after the hearing did she disavow them, without directly apologizing, and that kind of confirmation conversion is inherently unbelievable.

Undermining her credibility even more are the actions she took later in her career—after those writings and before she was nominated.

She serves as the head of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, also known as OIRA. Her job is to review all regulatory actions—all of them—proposed by the administration. In that capacity, Ms. Rao approved rescinding guidance provided to schools on how to address and prevent campus sexual assault. Under the new rules, sexual assault survivor’s may be required to undergo live cross-examination by their attacker’s representative. In the course of an administrative proceeding, there would be cross-examination by the attacker’s lawyer or other representative. Schools would be required to use a higher standard of proof for claims of sexual misconduct.

Under this administration’s own analysis, these rules would have a profound, chilling effect on the number of complaints sexual assault survivors file and the investigations that are conducted. That is the reason they are proposing the new rules—to discourage survivors from coming forward to seek justice.

It is not only Rao’s early writings that stigmatize and blame women survivors of sexual assault; the recent policies she approved and authorized institutionalize these really regrettable and unacceptable views. Her deeply troubling positions on sexual assault and her victim-blaming rhetoric, especially as she was initially as the reckless musings of a college student rather than breaking with them and rejecting them—place the rights of women and others at risk. We should deny her confirmation.

Equally important, she has also used that position at OIRA to restrict reproductive rights.

Let me be clear. One of the important features of the Affordable Care Act is a requirement that health insurers cover contraceptives as an essential health benefit—no charge to consumers because it is an essential health benefit.

Last week, the Department of Homeland Security released an issued rules that would allow any and all private companies to deny contraception coverage if the CEO had a moral or religious objection. Two Federal courts found that the rules were illegal because they violate the due process clause—the legal process required by law to implement the new rules—and that objection was found to be an inadequate justification for, in effect, violating the rights of women who and heek that kind of care at no charge. As the head of OIRA, Neomi Rao not only approved of the substance of the new rules but was so committed to implementing them that she signed off on an illegal process to do so.

That is not all Neomi Rao has done to, in effect, discourage and deter reproductivie health. The Department of Health and Human Services recently finalized a new title X regulation. Under this proposal, a lifeline organization that provides or refers patients for abortions is ineligible for title X funding to cover STD prevention, cancer screenings, and contraception. As with any rule, OIRA had to conduct a cost-benefit analysis in order to approve that rule, and I am deeply troubled by Rao’s views and actions on reproductive rights that led her to approve that rule and encouraged and condoned the rule and its disastrous effects on women’s rights.

We are living in an era fraught with abuses of power, under a President who has shown nothing but disdain for the rule of law. In this dark and dangerous era, it is all the more important that we hold a Congress willing to set limits on executive power to prevent an imperial Presidency.

In fact, Ms. Rao is a proponent of a fringe theory on executive power known as the unitary executive theory. She believes that the President, as the head of the executive branch, holds absolute control over executive power. As recently as 2014, she outlined the implications of this theory in the Alabama, according to legal scholars, the President must be able to remove at his sole discretion all principal officers, including the heads of independent agencies. She has criticized the Supreme Court’s decision in Morrison v. Olson, which upheld the independent counsel statute in effect at that time. In her view, the President must be able to fire at will anyone in the executive branch. In her view, that includes special prosecutors, even if investigating wrongdoing by the President.

In 2016, she was interviewed on Hugh Hewitt’s radio show. She was asked whether she believes the current special counsel regulations have similarly restrictive effect on executive power and whether the President can direct the actions of the Attorney General or Acting Attorney General. Her view? The Constitution vests all executive power in the President. He can direct his subordinates. He can fire the special counsel.

I hoped that during her confirmation proceedings, she would disavow those views. I asked her whether she thought the President could fire Robert Mueller, the current special counsel. She refused to answer my question.

That extreme view of Presidential power is deeply alarming when it is held by a member of one of the most important courts in the country, which may review decisions of that special counsel to subpoena the President or potentially indict the President or take other actions in the course of an investigation.

I am more than alarmed; I am strongly opposed to this nomination. I hope my colleagues will join me in voting no on final confirmation.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the presence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I recently reintroduced the Accountability through Electronic Verification Act this Congress, as I have in previous Congresses. This commonsense bill would require all employers to use E-Verify programs, which in turn would ensure that they are employing nothing but a legal workforce.

As most Americans have realized, the immigration debate here in the Congress today—and for a long time—has become highly partisan and obviously controversial. Of course, worst of all, it has become completely unproductive.

I believe there is a sliver of hope, however, and that is through the passage of an E-Verify program that makes E-Verify mandatory.

Whether you are a Democrat or a Republican, whether you are for open borders or you want secure borders, we all ought to agree that enforcing the law and protecting Americans is a bipartisan goal.

In 1986, the Immigration Reform and Control Act made it, for the first time, a Federal crime to employ undocumented workers. Ten years later, in 1996, Congress created a new tool to verify employment eligibility known as E-Verify.

Today, E-Verify is a voluntary program that gives employers a web-based tool to verify the identity and employment eligibility of new employees.

I have worked to renew and expand the program for use in all 50 States and to allow for information-sharing between Federal Agencies, including the Department of Homeland Security.

Participating employers then tap into a user-friendly Electronic Verification system that cross-matches documents provided by employees on their I-9 forms with Federal records available to show the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, the Social Security Administration, and the Department of Homeland Security. So the records of a worker applying for a job can be compared with government records to know whether somebody is legally in this country to work.

Today E-Verify provides instant verification for more than 750,000 employers and businesses all across America. In fact, my Senate office uses E-Verify when hiring employees whom the taxpayers pay for, but I am responsible for the employment office uses E-Verify when hiring our staff, and I have found it to be quick and easy to use.

At my annual 99 county meetings that have happened throughout Iowa, I regularly hear about the growing economy, rising wages, and the vitality on Main Streets. Iowa now ranks first in the Nation for the lowest level of unemployment. That also means there are growing challenges for employers in my State to hire the workforce needed to grow and expand. I will bet a lot of my colleagues hear that in their respective States as well.

We need to make sure hiring practices don’t harm U.S. workers or those authorized to work in the United States. That is why I reintroduced the bill I announced in the first words of my speech today, the accountability through electronic verification bill.

This legislation will help businesses comply with immigration laws by certifying the legal status of their workforce. The bill will permanently authorize the E-Verify Program, and require employers to use the system to determine workers’ eligibility. It would then make every employer have to use it, except as contrasted for the last couple of decades on a voluntary basis.

For decades, E-Verify has served as a proven tool for employers that want to use it. It has helped to reduce incentives for illegal immigration and safeguard job opportunities for Americans and legal workers. Expanding the system to every workplace will improve accountability for all businesses and take another very important step toward putting American workers first.

Current law requires all contractors doing business for the Federal Government to use E-Verify, repeating for a third time now the mandatory aspect of this compared to the voluntary aspect of the present law.

I hope that the House-passed laws mandating the use of E-Verify also may require employers to participate, for example, as a condition of business licensing. With low unemployment... across the country, and with Iowa leading the way, policymakers have a responsibility to ensure the growing economy has the workforce it needs to continue to do the growth of the last few years.

As the former chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, I worked extensively to protect the integrity of employment visas and work permits for foreign workers. A top priority must be to ensure immigration policies aren’t displacing American workers or depressing wages.

Making E-Verify a permanent and mandatory requirement for all U.S. employers will bring across-the-board certainty to hiring practices throughout our country. Certifying the legal status for prospective hires makes common sense, and having in place the tools at one’s fingertips makes it a simple, convenient solution.

E-Verify is a proven tool to encourage legal immigrants to apply for un-filled jobs, deter illegal immigration and human trafficking.

In addition to making E-Verify permanent and mandatory within 1 year of enactment, my bill will increase penalties for employers who illegally hire and employ unauthorized individuals to work in our country. The bill will also require employers to check the status of all current employees within 1 year using the E-Verify system and terminate employment of those found unauthorized to work in the United States.

This bill establishes a demonstration project in rural areas without internet capabilities to assist small businesses.

Finally, the bill will require the Social Security Administration to improve its efforts to detect identity theft using Social Security numbers.

Expanding E-Verify will help restore integrity and trust in our Nation’s immigration system by curbing incentives for hiring persons unauthorized to work in America. I was pleased to hear my colleague, now-Chairman GRAHAM of the Judiciary Committee, highlight the benefits of E-Verify in a Judiciary Committee hearing held last week. He is right. Nationwide E-Verify would go a long way to relieve concerns about illegal immigration and workforce displacement.

Let me repeat. This bill will not change immigration law. All it does is ensure that businesses are complying with Federal law through a simple, convenient solution.

Issues like what you do do about the 10 or 11 million people who are unauthorized to live and unauthorized to work in America.

Some people say: Well, you are going to load them up and get them out of the country, but that’s not realistic. I would find it would be humanitarian. To deal with that issue, we have to have credibility for the whole immigration system, and E-Verify will help that, along with everything we are doing to control the borders, and we have to do more than that.

Again, to repeat, this is a simple first step to tackling larger issues within immigration. Best of all, it has the support of the American people.

A recent Zogby poll showed that mandatory E-Verify enjoys widespread support from voters. Seventy-four percent of all voters polled support mandatory E-Verify. In fact, the support is very bipartisan. The poll showed that roughly 55 percent of Democrats, 78 percent of Republicans, and nearly 91 percent of Independents support the idea of E-Verify.

Support for Nationwide E-Verify isn’t just nonpartisan, it is supported by Americans across all ethnic boundaries. In fact, 77 percent of Hispanic voters, 52 percent of Black voters, and 74 percent of Asian voters polled all support E-Verify.

I will close with this. Perhaps it is time that Congress and both parties take a very deep breath and listen to the American people instead of to our own echo chambers.

Before we discuss expanding guest worker programs or discuss comprehensive immigration reform, let’s first codify E-Verify and restore the American people’s trust in our immigration system.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. JONES. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I rise today to talk about something that, quite frankly, I find to be completely abhorrent, and that is the short-changing of our Nation’s military widows when it comes to survivor benefits they paid for and earned. It is something that I was dismayed to learn is happening to some 65,000 surviving spouses of American military servicemembers—including more than 2,000 Alabamians—who were killed in action or died as a result of service-connected causes.

After suffering the loss of a loved one, military widows and their families can find themselves unexpectedly losing out on vital survivor benefits they had planned to receive in these tragic circumstances. That is because, under current law, surviving spouses are entitled to receive VA dependency and indemnity compensation benefits, or what is known as DIC.

Some families go a step further. Like many families in every sector. Some families go a step further by voluntarily paying into the Defense Department’s Survivor Benefits Plan, which acts like an additional life insurance policy. Again, they are entitled to the DIC benefits, but they pay for additional coverage should there be a traumatic accident or tragic death, which acts like an additional life insurance policy. That policy is something these families voluntarily pay into, and like any other life insurance plan you or I might buy, they expect to get the benefits they have paid for.

For those who are entitled to receive these benefits from both programs, they are subject to what has been known as the widow’s tax. Again, this is a tax for those forking over benefits from both programs—the DIC and the survivor’s benefit programs. That is because our law prohibits widows from receiving their full benefits from both programs. That is the widow’s tax.

This isn’t just a problem facing Active-Duty families. It is far bigger, folks, because it impacts anyone who has a service-connected death.

To put that in context, in Alabama alone, there are over 60,000 Department of Defense retirees whose families could be impacted by the widow’s tax if the veteran were to pass from a service-connected cause.

Now, I understand that we have to be careful stewards of taxpayer dollars. I am fully aware of that. But give me a break when it comes to military spouses and widows. This is a benefit that families paid for out of their own pockets. If they are not getting the money, then, it begs the question: Who is?

No surviving spouse should be faced with this kind of unexpected and completely unfair cut to the benefits they ought to be able to count on in these heartbreaking circumstances.

No surviving spouse should have to fight for what their families are owed—in the wake of family tragedy, no less. Again, this is what they are owed. This is the thing they have paid for.

No surviving spouse should have to make a massive lobbying effort in the Capitol of the United States, of this great country, to get folks to understand that this is wrong and we need to fix it. Every year, there is a campaign to fix this program. Yet, it doesn’t get done.

Instead, these families should be focusing on helping their families begin to heal and find strength. They should be given the space and time to breathe.

It is an absolute shame that this is even a problem we need to address. That is why I have introduced bipartisan legislation with several of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle—Senators Collins, Tester, Cisapo, and 31 others—to repeal the law that prevents these families from receiving their due just.

The Military Widows Tax Elimination Act of 2019 reflects our belief that people who put their lives on the line for our country deserve to know their families will be taken care of if something, God forbid, ever happens to them.

Our bill has support from the Gold Star Wives of America, the VFW, the Military Officers Association of America, the National Military Family Association, the Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors, and so many others. In fact, some of the most dedicated activists from the Gold Star Wives are watching today from the Gallery right now, including Crystal Wenum, Harriet Boyden, and Donna Eldridge. I thank them all for their leadership and for their continued contributions to our country.

This legislation has been introduced in previous sessions of Congress, but it has yet to pass—in large part because of concerns about the cost. As I said, while I certainly understand that there is going to be a cost associated with this, we are talking about a benefits plan that these families paid for on their own accord. It is their money that went into this fund, not taxpayer money and not money that is appropriated every year. It is their money, and they deserve to get it back.

I think we can all agree that ending the widow’s tax is the right thing to do for our families. Why don’t we finally get it done in this, the 116th Congress? Let’s show our troops and their families that we support them not just in word but in deed. Let’s show their families that we support them, and we should be able to work out those differences long term, as we do with every other nation. We have to resolve some of these things.

I am proud that the administration is full force taking on the issue of China. Over the past couple of decades, every administration has tried to work out some kind of ongoing conversation with China on trade, and all of them have been somewhat successful, but they usually fail. This administration has had a singular focus on trade in dealing with China and trying to resolve those issues with them, and I hope it is successful long term. I hope that we will be very specific in how we actually handle that strategy and that at the end of it, we will still be openly trading and reducing some of those barriers.

It is a Communist country. It doesn’t always play by the rules. It also uses some of the rules to its own advantage in ways unlike any other country. For instance, when they joined the WTO—the World Trade Organization—they self-declared themselves as a “developing nation.” Developing nations are able to waive a lot of the rules of the World Trade Organization rules because they are developing. May I remind this body that China is the second largest economy in the world—second only to ours? They are not a developing nation. They have used the rules of WTO to call themselves developing so they do not have to live up to the international standard of basic trade.

On March 22, 2018, President Trump signed a Memorandum on Actions by the United States to address what is called a 301 investigation. They are targeting what the White House calls “economic aggression” from China. Let me give some specifics on that.

China uses joint venture requirements on any foreign investment. They want to have ownership in those companies actually doing business there. They put pressure on technology firms to transfer their technology to China if they are going to actually sell to China. The result is that they may not even make the product that is manufactured there, that those original companies sell back to the United States, but they will take that information and then actually sell to other parts of the world from that stolen information from a technology transfer.

Akin to that, China maintains unfair licensing practices. Typically, in other parts of the world, our intellectual property is protected and that we sold by that nation, or we actually have a licensing agreement with them that is fair market value. Not so with China. They put pressure on entities and actually cheat and steal our intellectual property at times. That doesn’t happen with the companies that sell to a certain types of firms, where, long term, China wants to produce it on their own rather than buy it from other countries. If that production is done in China, China will take the intellectual property, and the plan is clearly to then take that intellectual property and use it for themselves in the days ahead.

China is notorious for supporting cyber intrusions to take the information that they can, from American companies or Western companies. If there is a design they are interested in, whether that be an airplane or 3D printing or whatever it may be it is that is designed somewhere else, they reach in and try to hack and steal it. This is not recent; this has been going on for quite a while. In 2014, the Department of Justice indicted five Chinese military actors for cyber espionage against multiple U.S. corporations. In 2017, the Department of Justice charged three Chinese nationals with hacking and theft of trade secrets. And it goes on and on.

Just in the past couple of weeks, the World Trade Organization has agreed with the United States in our complaint against China and how they handle agriculture subsidies. Agriculture subsidies from any country are limited in that country, but China uses large ag subsidies through their farmers and ag companies to subsidize those products with state taxes. Let me give an example of that. Thirty-two percent of the return for rice in China is a government subsidy back to rice farmers.

I have heard folks say: Well, in the United States, we also have a farm program. We have a farm bill. We provide subsidies as well.

That is true, but our rice farmers have a 2-percent subsidy. Chinese rice farmers have a 32-percent subsidy.

The World Trade Organization agreed with this on us, and they have determined that China is in violation and the United States can retaliate on that.

China is using that policy and abusing that policy on subsidizing. It is not only causing problems in China and with trade with China and their pricing, what they sell for, it is also causing uncertainty worldwide. Let me give a for-instance. Cotton farming. Oklahoma is big in cotton farming, but China has grown cotton for years through its cotton farmers, and so they are overproducing what they need or what they can sell. Currently,
60 percent of the world’s cotton supplies are stacked up in China, just in piles, not being used anywhere, but because China is subsidizing people to produce it, they are overproducing it in mass quantities. They have nowhere to send it, so they just stack it up in cotton depots in China. The same thing with wheat. Forty percent of the world’s wheat supplies are currently piled up in stacks in China. That destabilizes worldwide wheat prices and worldwide cotton prices. That is not the way we are going to really isolate an economy as large as China.

I encourage our administration to resolve trade issues worldwide and resolve tariff issues with China, on a worldwide basis. Instead of saying it is a national security threat with Canada and Mexico and others, and so we need to have steel and aluminum tariffs, see the real national security threat that we have from China, and gather a cooperative group and focus on that one area.

One of those areas is those 301 tariffs that I mentioned before. Any tariffs that go into place must first and foremost, not hurt American consumers, American companies, and American workers. My concern is that 301 tariffs—as they have grown—will hurt and are currently hurting American conmconsumers, American employees, and American companies.

The 301 tariffs—these are products that are manufactured in China. They are often designed so the engineering, the marketing, all of those things, the design intellectual property is here in the United States. Companies in the United States look for manufacturing expertise. They find expertise in certain types of products, like electronics, lighting, and other things. There is a lot of profit in manufacturing and expertise—in China. It is a natural thing to say: There is a large body of groups and individuals and technology that is already there to do it. Let’s do the manufacturing there and the design and engineering here.

It makes sense just on the supply chain function. This administration has laid down tariffs—so far, three different tiers of tariffs. The first tier. Every American company was allowed to say “Is there any other place that can do it?” and to ask, for an exclusion process. If, after they could find exclusions, they could petition the government and get out of it.

The second tier. They were also allowed to ask for exclusions through the process, to ask for basically a waiver, to say: This is the best place to do it. There is no other competition. There is no one pressuring us not to do it here.

But when the third and largest tier came out—$200 billion in products—no exclusion process was given for these American companies. A 10-percent tariff was laid down on these companies.

Here is what that means. If you are a company that produces a consumer electronic or lighting or one of the other resources that is manufactured in China, and the people you are selling it to—you made a contract a year or two ago on what the price would be.

Whether selling to Lowe’s or Home Depot or Walmart or Best Buy or whatever it may be, you made a deal about how much you are going to sell that product for and how much you are going to sell. With a 10-percent tariff laid down, who pays that tariff? It is not going to be the end user initially because the contract has already been made. It is not going to be the Chinese manufacturing location. It is going to be the companies doing the production in the United States. The American workers and the American companies pay the brunt of all of those, and, by the way, there is no way to file an exclusion on this group. For $200 billion worth of products, Americans are actually facing the brunt of that.

So far, Americans have paid $12 billion in tariffs. In addition to charging the Chinese: it is punishing us. By the end of the year, if this continues, those contracts will have run out, and they will be repricing consumer electronics products all over the country, and the American consumer will be the one to pay higher prices on this. So 301 tariffs disproportionately hurt those in the middle class and those in poverty who have fixed incomes. This needs to be re-

First and foremost, there needs to be a way to have a waiver process. As we have done in the first two sections, there is no opportunity to get it out of the third and largest group. It is a rea-soneable thing for American companies to say: How can we actually produce this?

I have partnered with Senator Coons in the Senate and Representatives Kind and Walorski in the House, and we put together a basic bill dealing with im-tax tariffs, dealing with the 301, laying down for the first time how we would actually manage tariffs in the days ahead and what exclusion process there would be and has to be.

It is reasonable to have a predictable level to benefit the American consumer, especially those in poverty and with fixed incomes, and to benefit American workers. We can’t have tarfiffs on a foreign country that actually hurt American workers. That is an issue we still have to resolve. I am glad to have a partnership with Senator Coons to work on that, and we hope to get that done this year to guard work-ners for the future.

Along with that, in any trade negotiations, we have what is called trade promotion authority. We have basic standards. An example would be environmental concerns. We don’t want to work with another country that is igoring environmental concerns. We are concerned about where we are in the environment—the air we breathe and the water we drink. That is important to us as Americans because we want to protect our families. We understand it pushes up the cost of some products, but the long-term benefit is greater, and we are very careful in evaluating our relations. Where we do negotiate and it drives up costs, we push back on that, saying that we don’t want to overregulate and drive up costs, but we want to have clean air and water.

For the Chinese, that is not so. In many areas of China, you can’t breathe, and on a regular daily basis people are still having to wear masks over their faces because of the exhaust, the fumes, and the toxic air they breathe, based on their limitations on the environmental quality of the air. It is becoming a worldwide issue because of the amount of trash the Chinese are allowing to go into the Pacific Ocean, filling the Pacific Ocean with plastic and trash.

Part of our trade promotion author-
y and one of the agreements we have is to lean in and talk with the Chinese. We can’t have tariffs that hurt American consumers. We can’t have tariffs that hurt American companies. deals with the issue of religious freedom in their country and China’s aggressive move to limit religious freedom in their country. Recently, President Xi has worked toward secularization of religion to try to make everything in the country—even art—equal. Our government is stripping away religious practice that is not approved by the Government of China. This discrimination has impacted Tibetan Buddhists, Muslims, Catholics, and other religious groups.

In fact, right now we are tracking the imprisonment of a pastor named Pastor Cao. Pastor Cao and his wife are American citizens and his children are American citizens. He is allowed to have legal residency in the United States, but 2 years ago as of this month, he was imprisoned in China.

Pastor Cao has a hearing coming up on the 22nd of this month, and we are watching very closely for Pastor Cao and for his family that hearing happens. It has been postponed again and again.

On the 22nd of March, we anticipate the Chinese Government will have his hearing, and we are watching very closely to have this finally resolved. There is no reason for Pastor Cao to be in prison right now.

We don’t want to see, in China, forced reeducation facilities, intimidation, lack of medical attention for people of faith. Let’s see for the people of China what people worldwide have the opportunity to have—freedom of religion. In our trade conversations we think it is highly advisable to engage in these conversations for people like Pastor Cao, whose children are looking forward to holding him in their arms again and for him to be released.

China is an important part of the worldwide conversation. They are a powerful nation. We should be able to work together on key issues. The Chinese Government needs to determine how they are going to trade and if they are a developing country or if they are really a worldwide leader.

We need to determine how they are going to do fair trade with them, and we need to determine who they are going to be on the world stage, dealing with human rights and dignity. It is not all about sameness of a world; this is about the power of the individual within the country.

I am sure the people of China are very proud of their country. We would love to engage with the people of China, and we appreciate their engagement with us as we receive thousands of Chinese students and visitors every single year.

This is a point where we should resolve the trade issues that have been lingering for decades now, and we hope we can get to an agreement that is right, from our administration being attentive so that the tariffs don’t hurt our own citizens to the Chinese economy that is slowing down due to the ongoing trade conversation. Let’s work toward a trade policy that is going to work for people so we can’t resolve trade issues together.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ENR KANTER

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I have come to the Senate floor this afternoon to talk about a young man named Enes Kanter, and his family, living my hometown Portland Trail Blazers.

I wish I could be here to run through Saturday’s box score or preview tonight’s match up against the Clippers, but, unfortunately, Mr. Kanter is facing dangers that are far more serious than the outcome of any basketball game. His family is now facing those dangers as well.

Mr. Kanter is from Turkey. His love of basketball brought him to the United States in 2009, and he was selected third overall in the 2011 NBA draft by the Utah Jazz. Enes is a bright, intelligent, and soft-spoken guy. He pays attention to what goes on back home in Turkey; he cares deeply about his country’s future; and he rightfully believes that he ought to be able to express his opinion as he sees it on these important issues. For that, Turkey’s President Erdogan has labeled Enes Kanter a terrorist.

President Erdogan and his cronies are too thin-skinned to tolerate Enes Kanter’s eloquence and inspirational dissent off the court. Erdogan revoked Mr. Kanter’s passport based on accusations that lacked any real proof. President Erdogan has demanded that INTERPOL issue a red notice on Mr. Kanter, which means he has to stay in the United States whenever his team travels outside the country. It has kept Mr. Kanter from going to London and going to the Olympic Games.

As Mr. Kanter himself wrote in a recent Washington Post opinion article, “I am definitely a target, and Erdogan wants me back in Turkey where he can silence me.”

Following strategies right out of “The Dictator’s Playbook,” Erdogan has responded like a coward to Mr. Kanter’s criticism and has tried to silence him by threatening his family—his family who still lives in Turkey.

Mr. Kanter recently told reporters that his father would be going on trial this week, in just a few days, in Turkey. The details of that trial are shrouded in the fog of secrecy—where authoritarians thrive. Yet Mr. Kanter’s powerful words cut cleanly through that fog just a few days ago. When asked what his father was on trial for, Enes said for “just being my dad.”

Enes is a young man who has already sacrificed so much. As a teenager, he moved thousands of miles away from home to pursue his dream of playing in the NBA. For the crime of just voicing his opinions on the future of Turkey—a nation that is supposedly an American ally—Enes was labeled a terrorist. Erdogan has cut off contact with his family because he believed Erdogan would punish them for speaking with someone who was critical of Erdogan’s government. Now, without being able to contact them, Enes has to live in constant fear of what is going to happen to his loved ones back home.

So, as I stand on the floor of the U.S. Senate, I want to make sure there isn’t any confusion on two important topics.

First, Mr. Erdogan, the world is watching how you treat Mr. Kanter for father this week and in the weeks ahead. Mr. Erdogan, the world is watching how you treat Mr. Kanter both when he is on American soil and when Enes travels abroad.

Second, the United States cannot and must not stand idly by while Enes and his family are subjected to this autocratic torment.

I have called on Secretary of State Mike Pompeo to raise Mr. Kanter’s case with his counterparts, and I have asked our Secretary of State to state clearly that our country will actively resist these contrived red notices or extradition requests. The fact is, our State Department should be taking all of the necessary steps to ensure that Mr. Kanter can travel safely with the Trail Blazers or to advocate for the freedom of his people. Enes Kanter is a young man—an American resident—who is exercising the right to free expression. As Mr. Kanter himself wrote in a recent Washington Post opinion article, “I am definitely a target, and Erdogan wants me back in Turkey where he can silence me.”

When the Saudis brazenly killed Washington Post columnist Jamal Khashoggi in a consulate in Turkey, Erdogan styled himself a fierce defender of journalists, but this is a classic situation of actions speaking louder than words, for Erdogan jails more journalists than do the Saudis. In fact, Erdogan jails more journalists than do the Russians, the Chinese, and more than any other authoritarian regime that is out there.

Erdogan does not only target journalists or independent media outlets, all of whom knowingly bravely risk such oppressive actions when they just want to report the truth; Erdogan has thrown peaceful demonstrators into... jail as well. Just last Friday, he cracked down on people who were assembling peacefully in Istanbul for International Women’s Day.

It gets worse—worse because Erdogan is brazen enough to push his assaults on democracy right here on American soil. Less than 2 years ago, Erdogan gave the go-ahead for his security detail to brutally attack non-violent demonstrators right here in the Nation’s Capital. That assault, to emphasize the point, took place on American soil—right here, just a short walk from the White House. Americans ought to be outraged over this sort of behavior, especially from a supposed friend and ally like Turkey.

It has not gone unnoticed that Erdogan recently doubled down on his decision to make a major military purchase from Vladimir Putin’s Russia, and his use of fraudulent INTERPOL red notices is right out of Vladimir Putin’s playbook.

It is past time for the State Department to stand up to this behavior. The State Department needs to call this behavior out. It is not a far-off threat to other people the Federal Government can conveniently ignore. Erdogan’s abuses are taking place right here in our country, on American soil. People like Enes Kanter are the victims.

As a younger man back in the day, I went to school on a basketball scholarship. I often tell people at my townhall meetings that I wanted to play in the NBA—a ridiculous idea because I was too small, but I made up for it by being quite slow. My abilities on the court were certainly light years removed from Enes Kanter’s, but I can tell you, from playing in college, I certainly remember the value of a full-court press. I am firmly committed and will state once more that our State Department must put a full-court press on Turkey to treat Mr. Kanter—and all of those who are speaking out against Erdogan’s totalitarian regime—with respect for their human rights and freedom of expression.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. MCSALLY). Without objection, it is so ordered.

BUDGET PROPOSAL.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, the President’s inauguration over 2 years ago was a historic moment. Though my candidate didn’t win, I attended it in my capacity here in the U.S. Senate and saw a lot of people, but the one person I saw who was nothing short of remarkable was Jimmy Carter.

The reason why it was remarkable to see the former President, who left office in 1980—39 years ago—was the fact that most everyone had counted him for dead. If you will remember, he was diagnosed with a form of cancer that was supposedly fatal. People were talking about making their last trip to Plains to attend his church on Sunday and hear his last sermon. I thought it was over, too, but something amazing happened. There was a new drug that came along, and it turned out to be just the right drug to save his life.

When I saw Jimmy Carter a little over 2 years ago, I thought to myself: I never thought I would see him again, and I never thought I would see him looking this good.

Those things don’t just happen. Those drugs aren’t just discovered. They are the product of a great deal of work and research and application.

I remember asking Dr. Collins at the National Institutes of Health what Jimmy Carter’s story was. He explained that early research at NIH, which is the premier medical research facility in the world, had led to some new possibilities in treating cancers. It just so happened that Jimmy Carter’s cancer was responsive to that drug. Others have lived too, and I hope that even more are discovered.

The good news is that the U.S. Senate and Congress understand this. Do you know what has happened over the last 4 years? What has happened over the last 4 years is a dramatic show of bipartisanship when it comes to medical research.

ROY BLUNT, from Missouri, is the chairman of the subcommittee that funds the National Institutes of Health. LAMAR ALEXANDER, from the State of Tennessee, is the chairman of the authorizing committee for the National Institutes of Health.

place to turn and no savings to turn to? That is not a good outcome.

Then there was the suggested cut of $845 billion in the Medicare Program. Medicare is health insurance for the elderly. When you reach age 65, you have paid into it through your working life and so you have a right to Medicare insurance plan. The President cuts $845 billion out of Medicare.

Does Medicare work? There is one way to test it. What is the life expectancy of citizens today, after Medicare, compared to their life expectancy before Medicare? It is dramatically different. People are living longer and more independent lives because Medicare gives them quality care when they reach age 65, and President Trump believes we should cut that program by $845 billion. That, to me, is shortsighted.

When it comes to our health, is there anything more important? When it comes to the health of our families, of seniors, of the disabled, and of women who are about to have a baby, is there anything more important than to make sure that turns out right? It is hard for me to think of what it might be.

The cut to the Centers for Disease Control of $1.3 billion in the President’s budget is another one you just shake your head at. The Centers for Disease Control shows up when no one else will enter the room, when they are facing diseases that are life-threatening. For the Ebola crisis in western Africa and the fear that it would spread throughout that continent and maybe to the United States, it was the Centers for Disease Control that stepped in and said: We will take it on.

The overwhelming response was Lake Michigan. That beautiful lake, a part of the Great Lakes, is not just a source of pride, but it is a source of good, clean drinking water and of recreation and commerce. We know it is threatened from chemical runoffs to invasive species, and we fight to make sure those lakes will survive for another generation. The President cuts the funds for that effort by 90 percent.

These are just a few examples of decisions made in the President’s budget. Needless to say, I have saved the best for last. Though he has cut everything I just talked about—from medical research to protecting our Great Lakes, for example—I want to turn to the cut he made in the effort to taking care of senior citizens, to making sure that health insurance is there for expectant mothers—the President needs $8.5 billion for his ah-mighty wall, this wall on our southern border.

We have given the President 120 miles of fencing—new and replacement fencing—over the first 2 years he was in office. That is 120 miles to add to the 610 already on our border. Do you know how many miles have been built, as I start counting today, for the last 2 years that we have given the President? None. It takes a long time to build these fences, and the President is learning it the hard way. Yet he wants to take money out of programs across the board on the possibility that they may be built in the future—needed or not. Congress needs to step up—and I hope on a bipartisan basis—to assert our constitutional authority and to fight for a budget that is much more balanced and that realizes the real values of America.

JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, this week, Senate Republicans are asking to confirm two more circuit court nominations, which would make a total of six circuit court confirmations this year.

None of these six circuit court nominees have had any prior judicial experience. Some have had very little courtroom experience at all.

Four of them have been put forward over the opposition of Senators in their home state: Eric Miller, who was opposed by both Washington Senators; Chad Readler and Eric Murphy, who were opposed by Senator Brown; and now Paul Matey, who was nominated over the objections of both Senators BOOKER and MENENDEZ.

I believe the Republican majority is making a serious mistake by abandoning blue slips for circuit court seats. They have set a precedent that could affect each and every one of our States.

Already, the Trump administration has nominated a person for a Ninth Circuit California seat, Daniel Bress, who has only lived in California for 1 year since he graduated and who practices in Washington, DC.

It is absurd to see a nominee to a California-based seat with such minimal ties to California. That is what the Republicans have brought about by abandoning circuit court blue slips. It is a big mistake.

This week, Majority Leader MCCONNELL plowed right through with a vote on Paul Matey, President Trump’s nominee for a Third Circuit seat based in New Jersey. Mr. Matey had recently served for 4 years as the general counsel for University Hospital in Newark, NJ. While Mr. Matey was there, a patient safety organization gave this hospital annual grades of “C,” “D,” “D,” and “F” for patient safety. The grades got worse while Mr. Matey was there.

Alas, Mr. Matey had been a longtime staff member to New Jersey Governor Chris Christie. He served as Governor Christie’s chief ethics officer and deputy chief counsel. Mr. Matey said he provided a rigorous system of ethics training, monitoring, and oversight for staff members in the Governor’s office; yet it is unclear what steps, if any, he took to ensure that ethics rules were followed. It certainly appears that Mr. Matey’s ethics guidance fell short during the so-called Bridgegate scandal in New Jersey. That is when Christie administration officials arranged to close lanes on the George Washington Bridge as retaliation for the Christie administration’s decision to close lanes during the 2013 Super Bowl. against a mayor who had not endorsed the Governor’s reelection. The deputy chief of staff, Bridget Kelly, was sentenced to 18 months in prison for her role in this scandal.

In addition to being a former staffer to a Republican Senate leader, Ms. Matey is a longtime member of the Federalist Society. But just because a nominee meets the ideological litmus tests of the Republican Party and the Federalist Society doesn’t mean he has the experience and judgment to be a good circuit court judge. More likely, it is a sign the nominee will be an ideological judge.

New Jersey’s two Senators opposed Mr. Matey’s nomination, but the White House and Senate Republicans plowed right through with this controversial nominee.

Also this week, Senator McCONNELL has scheduled a vote on D.C. Circuit nominee Neomi Rao. The DC Circuit is often considered the second most important court in the land, and the president’s nominees to this court bring with them a wealth of legal and judicial experience.

Ms. Neomi Rao has virtually no practical experience in law. She has never tried a case in court. She has never argued an appeal in court. She has never made an appearance in an American court, and she has filed one court brief in her entire career.

How in the world could someone suggest that this woman get a lifetime appointment to the highest court in the land, never having tried a case, never having argued an appeal, never having made an appearance in the court, and having filed only one court brief in her entire career?

She was a political appointee of the President, working at the Agency known as the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs. When she was there, she set out to rescind a lot of Federal regulations—regulations, however, that might have been better left on the books—that protected workers, the environment, and Americans facing discrimination. She was out to put an end to those regulatory protections.

While she wrote a letter to the Judiciary Committee apologizing for some of these writings, what does it say about her values, her thinking, and whether she should be in this legal position for the rest of her life?

The bottom line is this. Ms. Rao has minimal practical experience in the law. Her legal views are beyond extreme, and her personal views, as reflected in her own personal writings, are deeply troubling.

I would like to say to the President and those who are in charge of picking his nominees: Please, isn’t there a good Republican conservative somewhere in this area who has actually been in a courtroom, who has actually made an appearance in a case, who has maybe even tried a case, who has maybe even filed a motion, or who would know a courthouse if they saw it and not on television? Is that too much to ask for a lifetime appointment to the second highest court in the land?

This nominee may be ideologically perfect for somebody who decided she was destined for this court, but this nomination is not a perfection when it comes to the legal system in America. It is an imperfection, which, if approved by the Senate, is going to be with us for a lifetime. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Ms. WARREN. Madam President, I come to the floor to oppose the nomination of Neomi Rao to be a judge of the second most powerful court in the country.

My obsession boiled down to just this one question: Will Ms. Rao advance equal justice for all or will she continue to tilt the courts in favor of the rich and powerful?

Ms. Rao’s record shows that she will continue to tilt our courts in favor of the powerful few and leave everyone else behind, and that is why I oppose her nomination, but that is also exactly why she was selected by the President for this important lifetime appointment.

In the last 2 years, with the Trump administration controlling the White House and Republicans, until January, controlling both Houses of Congress, the rich and powerful have had unparalleled access to the government, and they have been terrifyingly effective at making Washington work even better for themselves.

Just think of some of their high-profile victories: a tax plan that takes away money from working Americans and gives it straight to the biggest corporations and wealthiest individuals, rollbacks of countless protections to protect public health, consumer welfare, and environmental safety. Those are just the policies people have been paying attention to.

For decades now, billionaire-funded rightwing groups have operated in the shadows to take over our courts by installing rightwing judges who will put the interests of giant and wealthy individuals ahead of everyone else. For those special interests, Neomi Rao is the ideal candidate.

In 2017, I came to the floor to oppose Ms. Rao’s nomination to lead the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs—the small but powerful Agency that reviews and signs off on economically significant Federal rules. I was concerned about Ms. Rao’s advocacy for weakening or handcuffing Federal Agencies that are there to help protect the public from giant corporations that prey on consumers, that mistreat their workers, and that pollute our environment.

I worried that confirming her to lead OIRA would threaten the health and safety of all Americans. For example, Ms. Rao attacked the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau—the Agency that has returned $12 billion to working families who were cheated—arguing against its authority to protect consumers from predatory lending practices.

That was exactly the kind of candidate that Big Business and billionaires wanted, so the Republican-controlled Senate confirmed Ms. Rao, and the all-too-predictable happened.

Under Ms. Rao’s leadership, OIRA approved the EPA’s decision to roll back important environmental positions, OIRA rubberstamped changes at the Department of Labor that allowed certain employers to avoid workplace injuries, and Ms. Rao blocked a proposed measure from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission that would have helped uncover pay discrimination. The list goes on.

Ms. Rao pairs her pro-corporate stance with harmful, regressive views about sexual assault. In college, she wrote an article placing blame on the survivors of sexual assault if they drank alcohol, claiming that such behavior was “part of their choice.”

At her hearing, she refused to fully disclaim this line of thought, claiming she was just recommending certain actions that women could take to make themselves less likely to be assaulted.

If that wasn’t worrisome enough, Ms. Rao also argued in a book review that public protections for women, for people of color, and for Americans with disabilities are had because they have eroded the power of traditional elites, going so far as to call affirmative action the “bane of all good elitists.”

For President Trump, congressional Republicans, and their billionaire buddies, Ms. Rao’s commitment to protecting the interests of the rich and powerful over everyone else was a feature of her tenure at OIRA, not a bug. Now, as a reward for spending a year and a half rolling back public protections and rubberstamping corporate America, the Trump administration has selected her to be a judge on the second highest court in this country.

At the DC Circuit, Ms. Rao would have the power over to stop Federal efforts to protect Americans from exploitive corporations and billionaires. She would rule on attempts to protect the air we breathe and the water we drink. She would have the power to overturn protections for workers from unsafe work conditions, and she would have the chance to upend rules to prevent big corporations from discriminating against people of color, LGBTQ Americans, and other marginalized communities.

Throughout her career, Ms. Rao has made very clear what her preferred hierarchy looks like: corporations and billionaires at the top, and everybody else at the bottom.

As a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals, Ms. Rao will have an opportunity to practice that philosophy at an even larger scale.

Madam President, our Federal courts are supposed to defend equal justice for all Americans, not cater to the wealthy and well-connected. Neomi Rao’s record shows that she will continue the corporate takeover of our courts.

A vote for her is a vote against the millions of Americans who have already borne the consequences of the radical regulatory policies she has advanced throughout her career. That is why I believe the Senate should reject her nomination.

Nomination of William Beach

Madam President, I also want to express my strong opposition to the nomination of William Beach to run the Bureau of Labor Statistics. BLS’s accurate and impartial analysis is crucial to policymakers, workers, and businesses.

In Mr. Beach, President Trump has chosen someone who has spent years at so-called think tanks that are funded by radical rightwing billionaires pushing so-called studies that criticize Social Security and support draconian budget cuts and tax cuts for the richest Americans—studies that have since been discredited. That is not whom we need running one of our country’s most important statistical Agencies.

Because Mr. Beach’s radical, pro-corporate background, I want to join Ranking Member MURRAY in expressing my serious concern with my Republican colleagues’ refusal to confirm Democratic nominees to other important Agencies for workers—the National Labor Relations Board and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. This obstruction is a total departure from precedent, and it is preventing these Agencies from protecting the rights of millions of American workers to bargain collectively and to go to work without worrying about illegal discrimination and harassment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island, Mr. WHITEHOUSE, Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for probably about 15 minutes, and should Senator VAN HOLLEN from Maryland—who is scheduled to arrive—arrive, that I be able to engage in colloquy with him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Climate Change

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Madam President, there is now no doubt that climate change is happening, that it is caused by human activity, and that we must act now to avoid the worse of it.

For too long we have seen the fossil fuel industry and its army of front groups use manufactured doubt, phony doubt, as their weapon of choice to obstruct any solution. Well, science studies lie that there is zero chance it alone will be sufficient, and any plan that falls short of that mark amounts to its own diluted brand of climate denial. Bashing the Green New Deal doesn’t solve the problem.

This is a good moment for me to interrupt my remarks because I see the majority leader on the floor. If I may, I will yield to him to close out the Senate and then have myself and Senator VAN HOLLEN recognized at the conclusion of the majority leader’s comments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Order of Procedure

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that all postcloture time on the Rao nomination expire at 12 noon tomorrow; further, that if confirmed, the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table and the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action. I further ask unanimous consent that if cloture is invoked on the Beach nomination, all postcloture time expire at 1:45 p.m. tomorrow; that if confirmed, the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table and the President be immediately notified of the Senator’s action.
ARMs SALES NOTIFICATION

Mr. Risch. Madam President, section 36(b) of the Arms Export Control Act requires that Congress receive prior notification of certain proposed arms sales defined by that statute. Upon such notification, the Congress has 30 calendar days during which the sale may be reviewed. The provision stipulates that, in the Senate, the notification of proposed sales shall be sent to the chairmen of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In keeping with the committee’s intention to see that relevant information is available to the full Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Mr. Chairman, Committee on Foreign Relations,

Hon. James E. Risch,
Chairman, Committee on Foreign Relations,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: Pursuant to the reporting requirements of Section 36(b)(1) of the Arms Export Control Act, as amended, we are forwarding herewith Transmittal No. 19-12 concerning the Air Force’s proposed Letter(s) of Offer and Acceptance to the Government of Australia for defense articles and services estimated to cost $240.5 million. After this letter is delivered to your office, we plan to issue a news release to notify the public of this proposed sale.

Sincerely,

Charles W. Hooper,
Lieutenant General, USA, Director, Enclosures.

TRANSMITTAL NO. 19-12
Notice of Proposed Issuance of Letter of Offer Pursuant to Section 36(b)(1) of the Arms Export Control Act, as amended

(i) Prospective Purchaser: Government of Australia.

(ii) Total Estimated Value: Major Defense Equipment*: $240.5 million.

Total $240.5 million.

(iii) Description and Quantity or Quantities of Articles or Services: Includes:

- Major Defense Equipment: A radar guided missile featuring digital technology and micro-miniature solid-state electronics. AMRAAM capabilities include: multiple launches against multiple targets, resistance to electronic counter measures, and interception of high flying and low flying jamming and maneuvering targets. AMRAAM Cap- tive Air Training Missiles are non-func- tioning, inert missile rounds used for arma- ment load training, and which also simulates the correct weight and balance of live mis- siles during captive carry on training sor- ries. The AIM-120C-7, as employed in the Na- tional Advanced Surface-to-Air System (NASAMS), protects national assets from imminent hostile air threats. The AMRAAM All Up Round is classified CONFIDENTIAL, major components and subsystems range from UNCLASSIFIED to CONFIDENTIAL, and technology data and other documenta- tion are classified up to SECRET.

(iv) Date Report Delivered to Congress: March 12, 2019.

POLICY JUSTIFICATION

Australia—AIM-120C-7 Advanced Medium-Range Air-to-Air Missiles

The Government of Australia has requested to buy up to 108 AIM-120C-7 Advanced Medium-Range Air-to-Air Missiles (AMRAAM); six (6) AIM-120C-7 AMRAAM Air Vehicles Instrumented; and six (6) spare AIM-120C-7 AMRAAM guidance sections. Also included are containers, weapon system support equipment, support and test equipment, site survey, transportation, repair and return warranties, spare and repair parts, publications and technical data, maintenance, personnel training, and training equipment. U.S. Government and contractor representative engineering, logistics, and technical support services, and related elements of logistics support. These items are in support of Australia’s purchase of the National Advanced Surface to Air Missile System (NASAMS). The estimated total program cost is $240.5 million.

This sale will support the foreign policy and national security of the United States by helping to improve the security of a major ally that is an important force for po- litical stability and economic progress in the Western Pacific. It is vital to the U.S. na- tional interest to assist our ally in devel- oping and maintaining a strong and ready self-defense capability.

This proposed sale is in support of the Australian Defence Force (ADF) Project LAND 19 Phase 7B for acquisition of a ground based air and missile defense capability. Australia will have no difficulty in absorbing this equip- ment into its armed forces.

The proposed sale of this equipment will not alter the basic military balance in the region.

The prime contractor will be Raytheon Missile Systems, Tucson, Arizona. There are no known offset arrangements proposed in connection with this potential sale.

Implementation of this proposed sale will not require the assignment of any additional U.S. Government or contractor representa- tives to Australia.

There will be no adverse impact on U.S. de- fense readiness as a result of this proposed sale.
Wyoming was also facing severe water shortages due to an extended period of drought, requiring Harry to make the difficult decisions resulting from those shortages.

As director, Harry was instrumental in carrying out key responsibilities of Wyoming's Water Development Office: developing Wyoming's water resources through sound water planning and use. Water is a precious resource in the west. It is key to maintaining an excellent quality of life, economic security, and safety. Through Harry's leadership, numerous water storage projects are underway in the State, which will help Wyoming realize its water storage potential for today and to serve communities tomorrow. Whether it is through the reconstruction of the Middle Piney Dam or the storage enhancement project at Fontenelle Reservoir, Harry understands the importance of securing water resources in the State for future Wyoming generations.

In addition to reservoir planning and construction, Harry oversaw the development of river basin plans, weather modification projects, addressing watershed threats from wildfires, and carrying out the Small Water Project Program. Water affects everyone. Making sure Wyoming's water resources are used efficiently and responsibly for the benefit of the people of Wyoming is a responsibility Harry takes very seriously.

Harry's expertise and the strong relationships he has fostered throughout the basins we share with neighboring States is invaluable. He has contributed to a number of regional water supply efforts, including the Colorado River Basin States Salinity Control Program. He also serves as Wyoming's representative on the Platte River Recovery Implementation Program, a cooperative agreement with Nebraska, Colorado, and the Federal Government, to maintain water usage and development by implementing conservation practices for certain endangered and threatened fish and birds.

We are fortunate Harry chose early in his professional life to use his skills and talents to focus on water. He has dedicated his career to being a water advocate for the people of Wyoming and to finding long-term solutions to securing Wyoming's water needs. We are all better for his efforts.

I invite all members of the Senate to join me in congratulating Harry on his retirement, and wishing both him and his family much happiness and success in the future.

TRIBUTE TO STEVE CANNON

Mr. CRAPO. Madam President, I congratulate Steve Cannon, who is retiring after a 42-year career in Idaho television.

Steve Cannon translated his deep interest in weather as a youth into a long-time career. He retired this month from his position as weatherman for KIDK Eyewitness News 3, which has coverage in my hometown of Idaho Falls and the Pocatello area. He got his start in front of the camera in 1977, when he went to work for the former KID TV 3, but he began his broadcasting career in radio, working for a radio station in Rexburg. Leading up to his career in weather; reporting, Steve graduated from Idaho Falls High School, studied journalism at Brigham Young University, served a mission in Great Britain, and finished his degree at Idaho State University.

Steve has a profession and deep understanding and appreciation for the people of eastern Idaho show in his thoughtful reporting. He is known for his humor, relatability, dependability, and strong work ethic. Steve has reported with agility and skill, as he has navigated significant advancements in weather reporting over the past four decades. Steve's weather reporting has shaped how countless Idahoans have planned their days, and his astute observations have been instrumental as he has reported on the major weather events that have had considerable impacts on lives.

In addition to his career, Steve has given his time and talent in support of service projects and the community. This includes his assistance with the creation of the Idaho Falls Citizen's Watch Patrol for the Idaho Falls Police Department.

I understand that Steve has looked forward to the end and ability to devote all his time to his family and loved ones during retirement that begins as his wife also retires from teaching. I wish you both well, and thank you for your outstanding work in our community.

REMEMBERING GEORGE DAUGHERTY

Mr. MANCHIN. Madam President, my home State has truly lost a shining star. We have lost West Virginian, a noble Army Veteran, a gifted performer, and a dear friend to all. George Daugherty's enthusiasm for life was infectious to anybody who had the privilege of knowing him, and it is an honor to recognize his life and legacy.

You could often find George on Morgantown's High Street next to the bronze statue of Don Knotts singing a rousing chorus of "Hail West Virginia." He would usually tack on a phrase to the song: "Who's that with George?"

I know he is looking down on all of you with a smile. I am honored to join each of you in honoring George's memory, as well as the unwavering love he had for his family, our great Nation, and our home State.

TRIBUTE TO DAN O'NEILL

Mr. MERKLEY. Madam President, Robert F. Kennedy once said: "We want to make sure that we bequeath to our descendants a better and safer world than the one in which we live today." For nearly four decades, Dan O'Neill has dedicated himself to creating that better, safer world for future generations. As he prepares to step back from his work and enjoy a much-deserved retirement, I want to share a few thoughts about this wonderful individual.

As a young man volunteering for an NGO in Africa, Europe, and the Middle East, Dan came face to face with some of the worst that this planet has to offer: extreme poverty, oppression, famine, and war. At first, he documented these horrors in photos, articles, and journals, until one day when he decided he couldn't just watch anymore. In the face of this abject horror and suffering, specifically the brutal genocide in Cambodia and coverage of the Khmer Rouge Killing Fields, Dan's conscience wouldn't allow him to just sit by as a witness. He knew he had to act; and act he did.

In 1979, he founded the Save the Refugees Fund to give lifesaving aid to hundreds of thousands of Cambodians fleeing for their lives and safety. Three years later, he expanded on that effort by cofounding Mercy Corps, a global nongovernmental, humanitarian aid organization with the goal of alleviating suffering, poverty, and oppression by helping people build just, secure, and prosperous communities.

Thirty-eight years later, Dan has traveled the world to meet with political and religious leaders; worked on the ground to establish and run Mercy Corps programs in some of the least hospitable places on Earth; and witnessed, firsthand, natural disasters, human catastrophes, political upheavals, war, and famine. The organization that he created, Mercy Corps, has provided over $4 billion in lifesaving assistance to more than 220 million people in need in at least 122 countries.

Today, amid the world’s most dire situations, you can always count on Mercy Corps to be there, building the founders’ legacy of just, secure, and productive communities. Where this is a desperate challenge, you are likely to find Mercy Corps at work, providing vital aid and assistance to refugees in Jordan; giving water to famine-stricken families in South Sudan; or bringing desperately needed public attention to today’s worldwide refugee crisis. All of that is, in no small measure, thanks to Dan O’Neill’s inexhaustible passion and leadership.

So to Dan O’Neill, who has done so much, for so many, for so long, I simply want to say, thank you. I wish him all the best as he begins this next chapter of his life.

RECOGNIZING JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT USA

• Mr. GARDNER, Madam President, today I want to recognize Junior Achievement USA, who are celebrating their 100th anniversary this year. In 1919, Junior Achievement opened its doors to young people, with the simple goal of helping students succeed in their future careers. This was accomplished by helping students develop skills necessary to make smart choices in their academic and economic futures.

Junior Achievement strives to positively impact students by providing skills centered on financial literacy, work readiness, and entrepreneurship. They focus on preparing tomorrow’s workforce by bridging the gap between traditional education and the obtaining of career skills and competencies needed to succeed beyond a student’s high school years. Junior Achievement provides classroom programs, capstone educational experiences, and entrepreneurship summits, all while partnering with companies who value relevant hands-on learning.

Headquartered in Colorado Springs, Junior Achievement impacts a diverse population in all 50 States. Today Junior Achievement USA reaches almost 5 million students in over 22,000 classrooms across the country. It employs nearly 1,600 people and approximately 250,000 volunteers help inspire students along the way.

Throughout its history, Junior Achievement USA has had an impact on more than 110 million students, making them one of the Nation’s most accomplished organizations dedicated to providing young people the skills necessary to live independent futures and create their own economic success. We need more organizations like Junior Achievement that work to empower young people and help them recognize the opportunities and realities of life and work in the 21st century. Junior Achievement USA has and will continue to be valued and appreciated for their significant contributions to the State of Colorado and to the country as well.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message from the President of the United States was communicated to the Senate by Ms. Ridgway, one of his secretaries.

PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE

REPORT OF THE CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN THAT WAS DECLARED IN EXECUTIVE ORDER 12957 ON MARCH 15, 1995—PM 6

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days before the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the same anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared on March 15, 1995, is to continue in effect beyond March 15, 2019.

The actions and policies of the Government of Iran continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States.

For this reason, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared with respect to Iran and to maintain in force comprehensive sanctions against Iran to respond to this threat.

DONALD J. TRUMP

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 11:29 a.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mrs. Cole, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

Back in 2005, my very good friend, the late-Senator from Ohio, George Voinovich, came to me with an idea to help solve this problem—he came to me with the idea for DERA. Senator Voinovich said to me, let’s provide financial incentives for people to replace or retrofit diesel engines with American-made clean vehicle technology. He told me that we can dramatically reduce diesel emissions, protect our health and create jobs here at home. I said “Sign me up!” And I’ve been a consistent supporter ever since. In 2005, Congress passed DERA faster than I think we’ve passed any EPA program ever before. This simple idea has turned into one of EPA’s most effective clean air program on the books today.

For every dollar spent in the DERA program, our Nation sees $13 in economic and health benefits. The emission reductions have helped States meet clean air standards and resulted in more than $12.6 billion in health benefits alone since the program’s inception.

From requests for electric school buses, to replacement ferry engines, to simple diesel retrofits, EPA tells us that the requests keep coming in—but, unfortunately, funding for DERA far exceeds the program’s available funds. With millions of dirty diesel engines on our roads, DERA is as important today as it was when it first started. Now, we must work together to ensure that every State, Tribe, and territory can still benefit from this unique program.

At a time when our Nation is looking for ways to create jobs, have healthier air and a better climate, cleaning up dirty diesel engines through DERA stands out as a prime example of what works.

Today, I’m proud to continue the bipartisan tradition that started more than 15 years ago with my good friend, Senator Voinovich. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass reauthorization of DERA this Congress.

Thank you Mr. President.

By Mr. Kaine (for himself and Mr. Collins):

S. 752. A bill to amend the Higher Education Act of 1965 to provide for teacher and school leader quality enhancement and to enhance institutional aid; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pension.

Mr. Kaine. Mr. President. As career opportunities and the requisite skills for success adapt to the demands of the 21st century, so must the instruction and preparation students receive. Educators are tasked with designing educational experiences that rise to the rigorous State academic standards and reflect the needs and interests of our Nation’s diverse student population. We have become accustomed to welcoming our colleagues to pass the school year with news headlines describing over-staffed classrooms and districts struggling to fill teacher vacancies. Though the challenge of teacher and principal shortages is felt broadly across the country, with a particularly acute impact on our rural communities, it is an issue we can remedy.

The reauthorization of the Higher Education Act is an opportunity to strengthen the preparation and leaders and to further support State efforts to successfully implement the Every Student Succeeds Act. It is also an opportunity to address the fact that schools in high-needs communities are often staffed by a revolving door of underprepared and inexperienced teachers who are unable to meet students’ needs. This in part due to State teacher shortages.

This is why I am pleased to introduce today with my colleague Senator Collins, the Preparing and Retaining Education Professionals Act, or PREP Act. As schools across our Nation continue to face growing class sizes, many are struggling with a shortage of qualified teachers. Rural communities in particular are experiencing a dearth of teachers equipped to meet their growing needs. The PREP Act aims to create high-quality teacher residency programs to develop a diverse workforce that is well-prepared to provide the educational opportunities students need to be successful in the 21st century.

More specifically, this legislation would expand the definition of “high need” districts under the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) to include those experiencing teacher shortages in rural communities and in areas such as special education, English language, science, technology, engineering, math, and CTE, to allow for access to additional support and improvement. It would also encourage school districts to establish partnerships with local community colleges and universities to ensure their education programs are preparing future teachers in content areas where there is currently a shortage of educators. It would increase access to teacher and school leader residency programs and preparation training while requiring States to identify areas of teacher or leader shortages by subject across public schools and use that data to target their efforts. Additionally, the PREP Act bolsters support for teacher preparation programs at Minority Serving Institutions (MSIs) or Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) to invest in a diverse and well-prepared educator workforce.

Improving our Nation’s educational system is contingent on our ability to effectively implement and further support the Every Student Succeeds Act. It is also an opportunity to prepare the future workforce and educate students in the 21st century.

SUPPORTING THE DESIGNATION OF MARCH 2019 AS ‘NATIONAL COLORECTAL CANCER AWARENESS MONTH’
Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 105, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:
A resolution (S. Res. 105) supporting the designation of March 2019 as “National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month.”

Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to; that the preamble be agreed to; and that the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 105) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to. (The resolution, with its preamble, is printed in today’s Record under “Submitted Resolutions.”)

WORLD WILDLIFE DAY
Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be adopted on its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:
A resolution (S. Res. 91) designating March 3, 2019, as “World Wildlife Day.”

There being no objection, the Committee was discharged and the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. McCONNELL. I know of no further debate on the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate?

Hearing no further debate, the question is on adoption of the resolution.

The resolution (S. Res. 91) was agreed to.

Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the Coons amendment to the preamble at the desk be considered and agreed to; that the preamble, as amended, be agreed to; and that the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 192) to the preamble was agreed to as follows:
(Purpose: To amend the preamble)
In the 25th whereas clause of the preamble, in paragraph (3), strike “poses” and insert “could potentially pose”:...
In the 27th whereas clause of the preamble, strike “approximately 100,000,000,000 sharks are killed annually” and insert “millions of sharks are killed every year in illegal, unreported, and unregulated fisheries”.

The preamble, as amended, was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, as amended, was agreed to as follows:

WHEREAS wildlife has provided numerous economic, environmental, social, and cultural benefits during the course of human history and wildlife conservation will secure those benefits for future generations;

WHEREAS plant and animal species play an important role in the stability of diverse ecosystems around the world and the conservation of that biodiversity is critical to maintain the delicate balance of nature and keep complex ecosystems thriving;

WHEREAS millions of individuals in the United States and millions of people around the world are engaged in the conservation of wildlife, both domestically and abroad, and wish to ensure the survival of species in the wild;

WHEREAS the trafficking of wildlife, including timber and fish, comprises the fourth largest global illegal trade after narcotics, the controlled substances and currency, and human trafficking and has become a major transnational organized crime with an estimated worth of as much as $23,000,000,000 annually.

WHEREAS increased demand in Asia for high-value illegal wildlife products, particularly elephant ivory and rhinoceros horns, has resulted in substantial and rapid increases in poaching of those species;

WHEREAS the trafficking of wildlife is a primary threat to many wildlife species, including elephants, rhinoceroses, pangolins, and sharks;

WHEREAS many different kinds of criminals, including some terrorist entities and rogue security personnel, often in collusion with corrupt government officials, are involved in wildlife poaching and the movement of ivory and rhinoceros horns across Africa;

WHEREAS wildlife poaching presents significant security and stability challenges for military and police forces in African nations that are often threatened by heavily armed poachers and the criminal, extremist allies of those poachers;

WHEREAS wildlife poaching negatively impacts the livelihoods of all nations and wildlife crime has wide-ranging economic, environmental, and social impacts;

WHEREAS the African Elephant Status Report 2018 of the International Union for Conservation of Nature revealed that the elephant population of Africa has recently seen a dramatic decline, mainly due to poaching, and the continental population is now thought to be approximately 415,000;

WHEREAS, from 2007 to 2012, the number of elephants killed in Kenya increased by more than 900 percent, from 47 to 387 elephants killed;

WHEREAS, between 2002 and 2013, as a result of poaching, about 65 percent of the forest elephants in Central Africa was killed and forest elephants lost 30 percent of the geographical range of forest elephants, placing forest elephants on track for extinction in the wild;

WHEREAS fewer than 50,000 wild Asian elephants remain and poaching of these populations is on the rise, with an average of 1 elephant poached every week in Burma, driven by demand for elephant skin products;

WHEREAS the number of rhinoceroses killed by poachers increased by 1) dramatically increased from 13 in 2007 to 2,126 in 2014, an increase of more than 9,000 percent; and 2) to 769 in 2018;

WHEREAS—(1) the 3 species of Asian rhinoceroses also remain under constant threat of poaching; and (2) the total populations of Javan and Sumatran rhinoceroses number fewer than 100 individuals in the wild;

WHEREAS fewer than 4,000 tigers remain in the wild throughout Asia;

WHEREAS pangolins are often referred to as the most trafficked mammal in the world;

WHEREAS all 8 pangolin species spanning Africa and Asia are faced with extinction because pangolin scales are sought after in the practice of traditional Chinese medicine and pangolin meat is considered a delicacy;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Senate—

(1) designates March 3, 2019, as “World Wildlife Day”;

(2) supports raising awareness of the benefits that wildlife provides to people and the threats facing wildlife around the world;

(3) supports escalating the fight against wildlife crime, including wildlife trafficking and illegal, unreported, and unregulated fishing;

(4) applauds the domestic and international efforts to escalate the fight against wildlife crime;

(5) commends the efforts of the United States to mobilize the entire Federal Government in a coordinated, efficient, and effective manner for dramatic progress in the fight against wildlife crime; and

(6) encourages continued cooperation between the United States, international partners, local communities, nonprofit organizations, private industry, and other partner organizations in an effort to conserve and celebrate wildlife, preserving this precious resource for future generations.

ORDER FOR WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 2019

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, moving right along, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, March 13; further, that following the prayer and pledge, the morning hour be deemed extended, and proceedings be approved to date, the time for the leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, morning business be closed, and the Senate resume consideration of the Rao nomination under the previous order.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. McCONNELL. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it stand adjourned under the previous order, following the remarks of our Democratic colleagues.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
The Senator from Rhode Island.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Madam President, when we yielded to accommodate the majority leader, I was talking about the episode on the Senate floor with the Republican Senators coming to bash the Green New Deal. I wanted to go on to say that the USA Today editorial—the one saying climate change is "a true crisis facing the United States and the world"—also said this about the Green New Deal crisis:

Republicans in the White House and Congress are having a grand old time mocking the Green New Deal. But the critics owe this and future generations more than scorn; they have an obligation to put better ideas and solutions on the table.

So far we have not seen much from my Republican colleagues by way of better or, indeed, any solutions.

Madam President, I would like to take a moment to express my gratitude and appreciation to Senators Murkowski and Manchin for the joint piece that they wrote in the "Washington Post" recently.

I ask unanimous consent to have that article printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

So we get that my colleagues don't like the Green New Deal.

Let me consider other proposals. We have lots of them on the Democratic side. We have had cap and trade. We have had "keep it in the ground." We have had Green New Deals. We have had revenue-neutral carbon fee proposals.

Senator Van Hollen, of Maryland, is here to discuss his ideas. We are ready here.

Republicans said last week they wanted innovation to address climate change—"easy solutions worthy of West Virginians, Alaskans and others." They have an obligation to put better ideas and solutions on the table.

The United States leads the world in research and development. Our national labs and universities are working toward the next scientific breakthrough, and private investors are pursuing the next game-changing technology. The United States is at the forefront of clean-energy efforts, including energy storage, advanced nuclear energy, and carbon capture, utilization and sequestration. We are committed to adopting reasonable policies that make it easier to build on and accelerate current efforts, and ensure a robust innovation ecosystem.

The impact of developing these new technologies will be felt from the small walk of life, including residents of rural communities and other areas served by older technologies. Transforming these communities to more efficient forms of energy will provide them with cleaner energy that is also more stable and has lower costs, which will bring about additional benefits to the American people.

Although climate change is a significant challenge, it is not the only one we face. We are seeing a rise in ocean levels in our home states. Scientists tell us that the Arctic is warming at twice the rate of the rest of the planet. Rising sea levels and diminishing sea ice on Alaska's shores are affecting our fisheries and forcing some remote communities to seek partial or total relocation. In summer 2016, we experienced unprecedented flooding that killed 23 residents and inflicted tremendous damage across the state.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Madam President, I am now honored to yield the floor to my distinguished colleague from Maryland who has been working on this issue in the House before he came to the Senate and has become a leader in the Senate caucus, Senator Van Hollen.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.
Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Thank you, Madam President. I want to start by thanking my friend, the Senator from Rhode Island, Mr. WHITEHOUSE, for his leadership on addressing the climate issue for many, many years, taking to the floor the Senate time and again to raise the alarm about the dangers of climate change and what it means to communities throughout this country and people throughout the world, and, much more than that, putting forward very specific ideas—constructive ideas—on how we can address this issue together. I am proud to join the legislation that he referenced, along with Senator BARRASSO, to look at carbon capture technologies and to incentize those technologies, as Mr. WHITMER indicated. It is a small measure but maybe a first baby step that we can work on here together.

Like the Senator from Rhode Island, I have been listening carefully to the floor discussion over the last couple of weeks. I have heard many of our Republican colleagues come to the floor. They have come to criticize the Green New Deal. The Green New Deal, of course, was ambitious set of goals to address the crisis of global climate change and to put out some ideas for how we address this generational challenge.

What I heard a lot of criticism, as Senator WHITEHOUSE said, I didn’t hear a single—not one—idea about how we can work together to significantly address this challenge, which is why Democrats have asked our Republican colleagues to join us in supporting S. J. Res. 9, which was introduced by Senator CARPER, along with the Democrats and, I am pleased to say, one Republican. The question, of course, is where are the other 52 Republicans when this is the language? I am going to read it because it is straightforward, and I think the American public will ask themselves why we don’t have 100 Senators on this piece of legislation:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) climate change is real;

(2) human activity during the last century is the dominant cause of climate crisis; and

(3) the United States and Congress should take immediate action to address the challenge of climate change.

It is simple, straightforward. I want to just take these very quickly, one at a time.

"Climate change is real." Look, we all know that there are a few greenhouse gases. You have methane, which is a very potent greenhouse gas. But the most prevalent one, of course, is carbon dioxide. It is a greenhouse gas, and you can measure the concentration of carbon dioxide in our atmosphere. You can go out and take samples and measure it.

In doing that, we find that we have seen huge increases in the concentration of carbon dioxide in our atmosphere over the last 100 years. I am proud to represent the State of Maryland, which is home to NASA Goddard, where they do a lot of climate science, and home to NOAA, or the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. I am holding the latest measurement they did in January 2019. It shows the carbon dioxide in the atmosphere at 411 ppm. That is a jump from 247 ppm about 380 years ago. If you look at that over time, you see a big jump in concentration. These are greenhouse gases, and that is why you see, of course, the increasing temperatures.

I am now holding in my hand something from NASA that just came out on February 6 of this year, headlined ‘2018 fourth warmest year in continued warming trend, according to NASA, NOAA.’ It points out that globally 2018 temperatures ranked behind those of 2016, 2017 and 2015, and it goes on to say that the past 5 years are collectively the warmest years in modern record.

So there are large concentrations of CO2 and rising temperatures. I hope our Republican colleagues will agree with us on that point in the resolution.

No. 2 is that it is caused by human activity. There is no doubt that if you look at how fossil fuels that were in our Earth for millions of years have been released by Industrial Revolution in the last century—be it from coal-fired powerplants, oil, or gas—all of a sudden you saw this carbon which had been trapped in the Earth released into the atmosphere through human activity, and that also is measurable.

So I hope our Republican colleagues will agree with us on those two points, and if they agree with us on those points, then I hope they will agree with us that we should all do something about it, because the consequences of climate change are very real, and we can see them all around us.

Senator WHITEHOUSE mentioned a recent study that showed that the probability that we were wrong was .001 percent—negligible.

We just saw last Thanksgiving—this last year at Thanksgiving time—that 300 U.S. scientists issued the Fourth National Climate Assessment. I have a copy of part of that in my hand right here, and they make it very clear—these are U.S. scientists—that the impact of these growing temperatures is real and, of course, we see them all around us in the form of much more extreme and frequent droughts. We see it in the form of more forest fires. We see it in the form of flooding and sea level rise. We see it all over our country in every community and all over the world. The costs of doing nothing are mounting by the day.

If you look at this report that was issued around Thanksgiving, they also talk about the regional impact of disruption and of the impacts of climate change. They look at different regions around the country, including the Northeast. Of course, Senator WURTEHOUSE represents Rhode Island, and I have the honor of representing Maryland. It says these areas, these regions, will get hot faster than many other areas.

It also talks about the impact of climate change on the Chesapeake Bay, which is a national treasure and is very important to Maryland’s economy. They predict stronger and more frequent storms and an increase in rain, which will lead to more pollution in the bay, increased water temperatures, and sea level rise. By the way, one island has already disappeared in the Chesapeake Bay, and a couple more look like they will be going under in the coming years because of sea level rise.

If you go to the Naval Academy in Annapolis and you talk to folks there, they will tell you that they are already experiencing the negative impact of flooding and sea level rise right there at the Naval Academy. Of course, our military has warned for years about the consequences of climate change.

I just want to give a very simple analogy since I mentioned the Chesapeake Bay. Like many of us, we have worked hard to protect places in this country, and the Chesapeake Bay is an incredible natural estuary. Years ago, everyone recognized that the bay was dying. We saw more sewer overflows into the bay because we didn’t have enough sewage treatment plants. We saw runoff from suburban roads and highways. We saw nutrient runoff from farms in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. The bay was on its way down fast. Of course, with all of those nutrients in the watershed, you lose the oysters, the crabs, and the seafood industry. You lose the Chesapeake Bay.

The same thing, of course, happening to our planet. Just like with the Chesapeake Bay, there is a limit to how much carbon pollution you can put on our planet. We have all seen those amazing photographs of the Earth from outer space. The Earth is telling us that there is a limit as to how much carbon pollution we can spew into it, and it is telling us by its screaming out with these extreme weather events. So the real question is, What are we going to do about it?

As Senator WHITEHOUSE said, there are many things we should be doing. I will close my remarks by mentioning one that also involves putting a price on carbon because, among the array of tools we need to deploy, that really needs to be one of them. It is really based on the simple idea we have pursued in this country to fight pollution, which is that the polluter pays, right? The folks—the industries—who are causing the pollution that is impacting our communities in harmful ways should pay. How do you make them pay? You put a price on the carbon pollution that is being emitted. When you put a price on the carbon pollution that is being emitted, there is an incentive for others to find innovative ways to generate energy without there being carbon pollution.
That is why, for many years, I proposed what is called the cap and dividend bill, which looks at the science and says: OK, if we want to make sure to avoid these huge costs to our communities, we have to limit the amount of carbon pollution that is being emitted.

We base that on science, and that generates a price for carbon. That means, as Senator WHITEHOUSE said, that in order to avoid that price, people will be willing to invest to reduce carbon emissions. We take the funds generated from putting a price on carbon, and we rebate those funds to the American people. A study by an economist at the University of Massachusetts Amherst found that if you do that—if you rebate the funds you generate by putting a price on carbon and making polluters pay and if you rebate that to American households—80 percent of American households will actually have more money in their pockets at the end of the day. I started with that. That doesn’t even count the additional benefits from there being a cleaner environment and fewer storms and severe weather events. It also doesn’t include the incredible economic opportunities that would be unleashed by having more people invest in clean energy technology and energy efficiency.

So it is really a pleasure to be here with my friend Senator WHITEHOUSE because that is one tool among others, including the need to invest in more research. The Senator said you have to put some resources behind research and innovation. It doesn’t just happen by magic. We can have clean energy portfolio standards, we can do a lot of things, but we need to start with something real. That is why we are here, because that is the final part of that resolution. It is a very simple resolution that says that climate change is real, that it is caused by human activity, and that the U.S. Congress should take immediate action to address the challenge.

It is time for our colleagues to stop criticizing everybody else’s ideas and to put their own ideas on the table. We are ready to work with our colleagues on a bipartisan basis to address this most pressing of issues that face our country and the world.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. If I may, Madam President, I would like to remark on the figure that Senator VAN HOLLEN used. There is recent measurement in our atmosphere of a carbon dioxide concentration of 411 parts per million. Standing on its own, that may not seem particularly significant, so let’s put that into context.

NASA, Senator VAN HOLLEN mentioned and which has important facilities in Maryland, has been measuring this for a long time.

By the way, I think NASA’s scientists have demonstrated they know what they are talking about. They have hovers driving around on Mars right now, so they know what they are talking about.

The scientists have gone back and determined what the carbon dioxide levels were on Earth over a period of 400,000 years. If you look back, there is a graph that NASA has that shows the carbon dioxide levels ramping up and down, up and down, over 400,000 years. For that entire period, they have stayed between 180 parts per million and 300 parts per million. That was the range within which the entire human species experienced our development—180 parts per million at the low and 300 parts per million at the high. At 411, we are now out of that range by almost the entire range. We are not out by a little; we are out of that range by a lot.

Also, 400,000 years is a very long time. If you look at how long human-kind has been farming—kind of the basic, organized activity of our species—the common view is that we really started farming about 12,000 years ago. Some people push that number further, more towards 20,000 years. We have known that for 5,000 years. We have known that for 5,000 years in Mesopotamia. If you think about the first people who put seeds in the ground and planted farms, you only go back 12,000 to 20,000 years. If you think about the first people who rolled a wagon or a chariot on a wheel, you only go back about 5,000 years. This record goes back 400,000 years. They know it because you can go into ancient ice, and you can find bubbles of air from tens and hundreds of thousands of years ago, and you can test them. Ohio State University, which is where they keep the cores they have drilled out of glaciers, and I have seen how they go back and do these micro measurements that let you know what the carbon dioxide levels were. So we are not off by a little, folks; we are off by a lot.

When you consider the known scientific effect of carbon dioxide concentrations, we have known what it has meant for the biosphere for tens of thousands of years. We have somehow just let it out of the freezer at Ohio State University, which is where they keep the cores they have drilled out of glaciers, and I have seen how they go back and do these micro measurements that let you know what the carbon dioxide levels were. We are not off by a little, folks; we are off by a lot.

When you consider that we are just far out of the range that has made human life and development comfortable on this planet throughout the entire duration of our species—that we are out of that range for the first time in 400,000 years and are out of that range by an amount that is practically equal to the entire range itself—if that is not a signal for us to wake up and pay attention, I don’t know what it is. The fact that the fossil fuel industry can drown out that signal with its propaganda is a tremendous example of the phrase “everybody is screaming out in all of these different ways to let us know that it has reached its limit when it comes to carbon dioxide pollution. That is why we have to do something about it.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Arsenic, too, is a naturally occurring substance, but you don’t want too much of it.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. There you go.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I thank Senator VAN HOLLEN for joining me in this colloquy and for speaking today on the floor.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Madam President, just before they leave, I thank both Senator WHITEHOUSE and Senator VAN HOLLEN for conveying the urgency behind this climate change issue. Both of them have gone through the specifics of what we are talking about. Suffice it to say, I share many of the concerns they have been discussing here this evening. I thank them.

Nomination of Neomi J. Rao

Mr. WYDEN. Madam President, tonight, the Senate is debating another Trump judicial nominee who is attempting to run away from appalling statements they wrote in the not-so-distant past. This time, it is Neomi Rao, who is up for a lifetime appointment to the powerful DC Circuit Court of Appeals.

While studying at Yale, Ms. Rao wrote that sexual assault victims were partly to blame for having been assaulted. She ridiculed feminism and women’s rights activists. She attacked groups that promoted multiculturalism and minority rights. She belittled those that were fighting for LGBTQ rights. She wrote that warnings about what we now identify as climate change are, in effect, fake news. And that’s not all.
After these writings came to light, she stuck to the same script as the other Trump nominees who found themselves in the same position.

They say: It is all way in the past. I have grown up. I no longer hold those views.

Except in Ms. Rao’s case, she cannot plausibly claim the views she put into writing back then would have no bearing on how she would decide cases as a judge today. That is because you can see those views reflected in the work she is doing right now as the head of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.

This is an office that doesn’t get a lot of time in the spotlight, but the individual in charge of that office has more power to shape Federal rules than almost anyone outside the Oval Office.

During Ms. Rao’s time as the head of this program, she has taken a buzz saw to protections for women’s health, for sexual assault victims on college campuses, Americans, and for Black and Latino Americans.

Under her watch, the Trump administration has allowed polluting corporations to poison Americans’ air and water, propped up dirty powerplants that belch carbon into the skies, and added to the extreme dangers of climate change.

During her nomination hearing, she called—and this was her description—somatic views of what she wrote “crageworthy.” She wrote a letter to the Judiciary Committee saying she was sorry, and that’s all well and good, but it doesn’t change the fact that she has helped turn those same extreme views—those same extreme views—into Federal policy under President Trump.

To help spell this out, as they say on so many television shows: Go to the tape.

In the long essay titled “The Feminist Dilemma” published in the mid-1990s, she laid out her views on a range of issues dealing with women’s rights and sexual violence. At the time, our country was waking up to the fact that most sexual assaults are not random acts of violence committed in dark alleyways; they are committed by someone the victim knows.

The term “date rape” was relatively new to a lot of people. In this essay she wrote: “Although I am certainly not arguing that date rape victims ask for it,” she wrote. “They did exactly that—several times. She put the burden on women to prevent their assaults.

She also described “The dangerous feminist idealism which teaches women that they are equal.” That is an exact quote—“dangerous idealism which teaches women that they are equal.”

She went on, “Women believe falsely that they should be able to go anywhere with anyone.” That is a quote.

“Women believe falsely that they should be able to go anywhere with anyone.”

Now, as I noted already, Ms. Rao has tried to separate herself during her nomination from those thoughts—what she wrote as a younger person—but she continues to double down on these views and their influence in her current position.

A few years ago, there was an effort to strengthen Federal rules to reduce sexual assaults on campus and compel schools to do a better job of protecting women. With Ms. Rao’s help, Education Secretary Betsy DeVos and Donald Trump are now rolling those protections back.

Ms. Rao has also taken steps to roll back rules designed to fight wage discrimination and sexual harassment against women in the workplace. She worked to make it harder for women to get no-cost contraception under the Affordable Care Act.

Now I am going to turn to her views on the rights of other groups. LGBTQ Americans, Black, and Latino Americans are just several examples. Here she has attacked so-called multiculturalists writing: “Underneath their touchy-feely talk of tolerance, they seek to undermine American culture.”

When you read that sentence, it seems like she believed the American culture in need of protecting is actually one of intolerance.

Now, she protested that “homosexuals want to redefine marriage and parenthood,” to which I say: Anyone like Rao, who defines marriage and parenthood by limiting the definition of love, is just wrong and, frankly, un-American.

She even blasted African-American and Latino fraternities and sororities, arguing they were the ones who didn’t understand the true meaning of Dr. King’s “I Have a Dream” speech.

In a book review, she praised an author for writing:

Perhaps it is time to stop thinking of blacks—and having them think of themselves—as a category. Let them rise or fall as individuals.

A nominee for the Federal bench ought to be able to recognize that the design of racism has been to have society and governments at all levels in this country discriminate against African Americans as a category and to prevent individuals and their families from rising from this hardship.

Again, Ms. Rao can try and try and try some more to distance herself from these writings, but she cannot distance herself from the work she does right now in her job.

Civil rights activists scored a major victory in a recent Supreme Court case, Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs v. The Inclusive Communities Project. The case dealt with what he come to be known as the “disparate impact” regulations. The Court held that housing policies that inadvertently discriminate against minorities violate the Fair Housing Act. That type of “disparate impact” regulation exists across Federal law. But right now, with Ms. Rao’s help, Donald Trump is working to undo these protections.

Here I quote from the Washington Post:

The Trump administration is considering a far-reaching rollback of civil rights law that would dilute Federal rules against discrimination in education, housing, and other aspects of American life.

This article continues:

Past Republican administrations have done little to erode the concept’s application, partly out of concern that the Supreme Court might disagree. But changes would be unpopular and viewed as racist.

Apparently, that is not a big enough concern to stop Ms. Rao and the Trump administration.

Now briefly, I would like to look at her writings on climate and environmental protection.

She mocked what she called the “three major environmental bogeysmen,” the greenhouse effect, the depleting ozone layer, and the dangers of acid rain.

In an extraordinary twist of logic, she suggested that people who warned about climate change were clinging to a “dangerous orthodoxy” — her quote—“with no reference to the prevailing scientific doubts.”

Her work at the Trump administration shows no change in perspective.

Now I am going to turn to her views on women’s rights and sexual violence. At the time, our country was waking up to the fact that most sexual assaults are not random acts of violence committed in dark alleyways; they are committed by someone the victim knows.

The term “date rape” was relatively new to a lot of people. In this essay she wrote: “Although I am certainly not arguing that date rape victims ask for it,” she wrote. “They did exactly that—several times. She put the burden on women to prevent their assaults.

She also described “The dangerous feminist idealism which teaches women that they are equal.” That is an exact quote—“dangerous idealism which teaches women that they are equal.”

She went on, “Women believe falsely that they should be able to go anywhere with anyone.” That is a quote.

“Women believe falsely that they should be able to go anywhere with anyone.”

Now, as I noted already, Ms. Rao has tried to separate herself during her
Perhaps that is why, during her nomination hearing, she refused to recuse herself from cases involving issues she worked on during the Trump administration.

So here is my bottom line. The Senate has seen this before—Trump nominees with extreme, offensive, and what are essentially incendiary writings from the past. In Ms. Rao’s case, there are current examples of how she has not left those views in the past.

When it was Ryan Bounds nominated to the Ninth Circuit, this body—the U.S. Senate—stood up and said no. Mr. Bounds’ views were extreme. More importantly, he knew it, and he hid them. In my view, it is time to take a stand once more in the Senate, where Ms. Rao’s views are on display for all to see. I am going to be a no on the nomination of Neomi Rao. I urge my colleagues to join me.

I yield the floor.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands adjourned until 9:30 a.m. tomorrow.
MAJ SEAN M. DONOHUE TRIBUTE

HON. SCOTT R. TIPTON
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. TIPTON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Major Sean M. Donohue of the United States Army for his extraordinary dedication to duty and service to the U.S. House of Representatives and our Nation. Major Donohue will soon transition from his current assignment as an Army Congressional Liaison in the U.S. House of Representatives to serve as the Command Surgeon for the Center for Initial Military Training at the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command. This unit is the largest charged with training all initial entry Soldiers in the Army.

A native of Tacoma, WA, Major Donohue began his military career after graduating from the University of Puget Sound, enlisting after the 9/11 attacks as a medic in 2002. He was commissioned in 2009, completed his clinical training as a Physician Assistant at Fort Carson in Colorado and promptly deployed to Afghanistan as a Battalion Surgeon with the 173rd Airborne Brigade Combat Team. Since then, Major Donohue has served in numerous leadership and staff positions around the world. His wife, Lexey, is a dedicated military spouse and they have three handsome boys: William, Jack and Maximus.

In 2017, Army Medicine selected Major Donohue to serve as Legislative Liaison in the Army House Liaison Office. In his role as a legislative liaison, Major Donohue served as the primary liaison between Members of the 115th and 116th Congresses, their Staff, Legislative Committees, and the U.S. Army. In this role, he planned, coordinated, and accompanied Congressional and Staff Delegations on numerous worldwide fact-finding and investigative missions. Major Donohue built the relationships and trust needed to increase the trust and confidence the U.S. Congress has in the U.S. Army.

Madam Speaker, it is my honor to recognize the selfless service of Major Donohue and his family as they continue to serve our great Nation in the next chapter of his remarkable career.

REMEMBERING MODEANE THOMPSON

HON. STEVE COHEN
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. COHEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the life of the late Modeane Nichols Thompson, a founding member of the Memphis Panel of American Women, whose quiet resolve to establish racial and sectarian reconciliation and understanding during tense times in the 1960s will be long remembered. Mrs. Thompson, a longtime family advocate with Family Services of Memphis, died February 25 at the age of 89. An African American and Roman Catholic, Mrs. Thompson joined with Joyce Blackmon, Dorothy “Happy” Jones, Jeanne Varnell and Jocelyn Wurzburg to demonstrate that people of different races and religions could establish lasting relationships and bridge cultural divides. Mrs. Thompson was a calming influence in Memphis as a voice and early advocate for the communities of South Memphis where lives were disrupted by urban renewal. She was quoted in the nationally circulated Redbook magazine in 1964 in an article about racial prejudice entitled “What Can I Tell My Children?” She was a natural fit for the women’s panel, which she told The Commercial Appeal was “designed to confront historically difficult issues in an open and civil manner. We hoped open dialogue and minds between people for the first time.”

A lifelong member of the NAACP and the National Conference of Christians and Jews, her work was honored by the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center in Cincinnati in 2006 and by the Women’s Foundation for a Greater Memphis, with its Legends Award, in 2014. I extend my condolences to her five children, seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, her extended family and her many friends.
HONORING THE KEISER UNIVERSITY MEN'S SWIMMING TEAM ON WINNING THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS NATIONAL TITLE

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS OF FLORIDA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. HASTINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the Keiser University men's swimming team and their coach Adam Epstein on winning the 2019 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) national title.

Coach Epstein leads by example. His dedication to Keiser University and its swimming program is truly commendable. Not only has Coach Epstein been named Coach of the Year for the second time, since forming his team in 2017, but in just three seasons he has led the Seahawks to two NAIA national titles.

This year's championship team had many standout swimmers. Junior Marcel Nagy won three events and was named the NAIA Swimmer of the Year. Freshman Pol Roch won the 500 meter free-style and set a national record in winning the 400 meter individual medley. Lukan Macek and Joel Hannson made their 5th relays in the competition and totaled 622 points to win the national title.

Madam Speaker, I would like to congratulate Dr. Arthur and Mrs. Belinda Keiser, the representative in Congress. I wish Keiser University and its swimming program many more years of continued success.

HONORING WYOMING GAME AND FISH DIRECTOR SCOTT TALBOTT'S RETIREMENT

HON. LIZ CHENEY OF WYOMING IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Ms. CHENEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Scott Talbott on his retirement as Director of the Wyoming Game and Fish Department.

I have had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Talbott for many years, and his tireless work to ensure hunting and recreation in Wyoming remains available and open to the public is much appreciated.

A third-generation Wyoming native, Mr. Talbott spent much of his adult life working to protect and preserve wildlife in Wyoming. During his 34 years at the department, Mr. Talbott has served in several positions working his way up to eventually serve as Director. It has been a privilege working with Mr. Talbott to ensure stewardship of Wyoming's world-class wildlife.

Again, Madam Speaker, I would like to congratulate and thank Scott Talbott for his years of dedicated service to the people and wildlife of Wyoming.

HONORING FATHER P. MARTIN “MARTY” DONNELLY

HON. MARCY KAPURT OF OHIO IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Ms. KAPURT. Madam Speaker, it is with deepest sorrow, highest esteem, and abiding gratitude that I include in the Record the tributes delivered by Father Tony Gossel in honor of the life of Reverend Paul Martin “Marty” Donnelly on February 1, 2019 at the Most Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church in Toledo, Ohio. Father Marty will be dearly remembered as a faithful Roman Catholic priest, a servant of God, who gave his unselfish and unselfish caretaking for Marty right up to the end.

But what is the end? What is death? Here is my version of another better-phrased story: firefigher fully loaded leaving a dock at Toledo Terminal on the Maumee River—dock workers shout “Here she comes!” the ship is seen as a speck between the water of the bay and the sky—fully loaded the ship is observed by someone on Put-in-Bay who shouts “Here she comes!” the loaded ship is the same, the absence or change is in the Toledo workers—and that is death.

Today we grieve the absence of Marty Donnelly. Yet, we know that angels have already shouted “Here he comes.” Marty Donnelly knew that if life has the last word, then love must overcome negativity and cord, forgiveness must overcome bitterness, and generosity must overcome greed.

Marty had such faith. Yet, with great zest Marty pointed to the Kingdom of God already in our midst. And he did this even as his brain functions slowly worsened over the years. His few words could not do so he did this actions, to the end. To observe Marty in any phase of his adult life was to know God’s Kingdom being in plain sight.

Wow!! What a remarkable friend and family man!! What an authentic servant leader!! What a genuine man of God and of the people!! If each of us would follow Jesus Christ the way Marty did, our faith communities may actually be “field hospitals.”

Now, in our celebration of Eucharist we join together with Christ in gratitude to our loving, gracious Father for the beautiful gift of Paul Martin Donnelly. We thank God for who he was to us, for what he was to us, and for what he was to us, fed by the Eucharist, we are missioned to go live the Gospel in our own lives.

May our gracious God give eternal peace and joy to our noble friend Samaritan we dearly called Marty.

Amen.

FATHER P. MARTIN “MARTY” DONNELLY

Father P. Martin “Marty” Donnelly was solemnly buried by God on August 13, 1938. He began a lifelong walk in service to others. This journey touched many in the greater North American community. Fr. Marty’s journey of life ended when he passed away January 27, 2019, surrounded by family and friends. A life well done!
He was born the son of Leonard and Agnes Donnelly, who were founding members of Most Blessed Sacrament Parish, where Marty attended elementary school. Marty then attended Toledo Central Catholic High School and was a member of “the great class of 1966”. Many of Marty’s classmates named lifelong friends and gathered regularly. After Central Catholic, Marty followed his older brother Bob’s path into the priesthood.

Marty attended St. Meinrad Seminary College and received his bachelor’s degree in 1969. Subsequently, Marty attended Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome and was ordained a Roman Catholic priest in 1964. Fr. Marty served as a Master in Education in 1973, from the University of Notre Dame.

Once Fr. Marty entered the priesthood his life of service accelerated with assignments at Norwalk St. Paul Parish and High School from 1964-1968, and Lima Central Catholic from 1968-1973. It was in 1973, that Fr. Marty returned to his alma mater, Toledo Central Catholic, as an Assistant Principal. In 1976, he was named the seventh Principal and later the first Pastor and President of Toledo Central Catholic, a role he served until 1987. Fr. Marty became Pastor at St. Ann and St. Theresa in 1987, and served as pastor of St. Martin de Porres from 1990 to 2005. In 2005, he returned to his roots as Pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Parish until his retirement in 2011.

Through his years of faith filled service, Fr. Marty mentored and supported youth from his schools, parishes and neighborhoods and introduced them to weave the fabric of their communities. He will always be remembered for his dedication to the poor and furthering social justice causes in the community.

Fr. Marty was affiliated with many organizations including Central City Ministries of Toledo, the Erase the Hate Campaign, the Ohio Coalition against gun violence and the Multi-Faith Council of Northwest Ohio. Through his advocacy for these organizations and others, Fr. Marty touched the lives of many.

Being a servant to others, he never sought or wanted recognition for himself, however he earned many, including Toledonian of the Year, a Key to the City, a Keynote Speaker at the Central Catholic Golden Shamrock Award 2001; a Humanitarian of the year award; Drum Major for Justice in 2005; the St. Katharine Drexel award in 2006; a Voice for All People in 2007, and the Central City Ministry Service Award in 2011.

In addition to his passionate service to others Fr. Marty was truly family centric, encompassing the Donnelly, Hendricks and greater Quinn clans. Fr. Marty fully loved and looked forward to the annual Quinn reunions where everyone anticipated his creative costumes based upon the theme of the family party.

Fr. Marty was preceded in death by his parents, Leonard and Agnes Donnelly; brothers, Leonard “Quinnie” Donnelly, Auxiliary Bishop of Toledo and sister, Mary Hendricks. Surviving are his brother-in-law, Patrick Hendricks, nieces, Ann (Tim) Doran, Kay (William) Byrne; nephews, Larry (Sharon) Hendricks, Jim (Julie) Hendricks, Mike (Kaye) Hendricks and David (Bets) Hendricks. 18 great and 10 great great nieces and nephews.

The family would like to thank the staff at the Pro-Medica Ebeid Hospice Residence for their care and comfort during Fr. Marty’s final journey. A special thanks also to cousins, Dorothy “Buck” Taylor for her years of dedication, love, care and friendship with Fr. Marty.

Visitation will be from 2 to 7 p.m. with evening prayer to follow at 7 p.m., on Thursday, January 31, 2019 at Our Lady Queen of the Most Holy Rosary Cathedral, 2535 Collingwood Boulevard, Toledo. Thursday’s visitation will be hosted by his faithful parishioners of St. Martin de Porres. On Friday, February 1, 2019, visitation will be from 9 to 10:45 a.m. at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, 2209 Castlewood Dr. Toledo, followed by Words of Remembrance at 10:45 a.m. and the Funeral Mass at 11 a.m. Burial will be private family.

The family would suggest any memorial donations be made to Toledo Central Catholic High School, Most Blessed Sacrament or St. Martin de Porres Parishes.

His mantra for all to remember: ‘Love One Another!’

Arrangements entrusted to the Anshberg-West Funeral Directors.

Online condolences may be sent to Fr. Marty’s family at www.anshberg-west.com.

HONORING VERNON DAVIS

HON. ELEANOR HORTON NORTON
OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to ask the House of Representatives to join me in recognizing Vernon Davis, a District of Columbia native, for his outstanding achievements— as a core member of the Washington NFL team and for his Vernon Davis Foundation.

Vernon Davis was born in Washington, D.C. and raised in the Petworth neighborhood with seven siblings, including his brother Vontae Davis, who is currently a member of the NFL’s Buffalo Bills. Vernon Davis attended Truesdell Elementary, Paul Public Charter School and Dunbar High School. He was a letterman in football, basketball and track and field, and went on to attend the University of Maryland, where he was a Consensus All-American in football in 2005.

Vernon Davis, tight end of the Washington NFL team, started his NFL career in 2006 with the San Francisco 49ers. He went on to become a Super Bowl champion, Second-team All Pro and NFL receiving touchdowns leader.

As a core member of the Washington NFL team, Davis’ love for football and influence on the team’s culture are displayed with pride on a daily basis.

Off the field, Vernon is known for his dedication and commitment to children and families in the Washington, D.C. area through his Vernon Davis Foundation. These efforts are highlighted through his work to promote reading among our youth through his READ 85 campaign, support mentoring programs with the Boys and Girls Club of Greater Washington and strengthen families in collaboration with the National Center for Children and Families. Davis is also a loving father and one of the best role models in football.

Madam Speaker, I ask the House of Representatives to join me in recognizing Vernon Davis for his outstanding contributions through his work as a sports hero and as a role model for Washington, D.C. residents.

CELEBRATING THE PALM CENTER’S 20TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. ALICE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. HASTINGS. Madam Speaker, I am honored to rise today to recognize the Palm Center on the occasion of their 20th anniversary. Founded in 1998 by the University of California, Santa Barbara, the Palm Center conducts policy research on key social and political issues affecting the most vulnerable Americans. For 20 years, the Palm Center has been a trailblazer in efforts to protect lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) service members.

The organization has worked diligently against the discriminatory “Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell” (DADT) policy, which prohibited service members of the LGBT community from disclosing their sexuality while serving.

The Palm Center’s independent research has enhanced the quality of public dialogue and contributed to the work of independent scholars, students, journalists, members of the public, and policymakers, like myself. In 2009, the Palm Center’s research was a welcomed resource that allowed me to introduce the Open and Honest Testimony Act. This legislation addressed the discriminatory DADT policy by allowing LGBT troops to testify openly without the risk of discharge and ensured that Congress based its decision on the best possible information.

In 2013, the largest collection of research on DADT policy was published in the journal of Homosexuality. This publication was composed of the work of Palm Center scholars, as well as reviews of the literary works of Palm Center authors. The Palm Center was the first to release a study on openly gay military service members following the repeal of DADT. Even after its repeal, the Palm Center has continued its work against other anti-LGBT military policies.

The Palm Center’s current research focuses on transgender military service. This research comes at a pivotal time when President Trump’s Administration threatens the ability of transgender men and women to serve in our military. The Palm Center’s scholarship has made it abundantly clear that the transgender ban would weaken our military readiness, cause substantial disruptions, deprive the military of talent, and wreak havoc on the lives of military families. The research the Palm Center is conducting is crucial to negating the mis-information and belittling rhetoric the Trump Administration continues to engage in regarding our brave transgender service members.

Madam Speaker, I want to extend my heartfelt congratulations to the Palm Center on its 20th anniversary. The work they are doing to provide the public with accurate and evidence-based information is invaluable to us all. I look forward to continuing my work with the Palm Center, and wish them many more years of great success.
HONORING THE LIFE OF ADAM
DAVID NUSZEN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. ZELDIN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and legacy of Adam David Nuszen who lost his battle with mental illness and addiction a little over 3 years ago. With an insatiable curiosity and unparalleled connectivity to the world around him, Adam's bright future was as limitless as the night sky he so admired. As a gifted musician, poet, writer, philosopher and inventor, Adam enlightened everyone who had the honor of meeting him, and as the oldest of three siblings, he was the protector of his family with a fierce loyalty that was only surpassed by his quiet quest for justice.

At the age of 22, Adam was diagnosed with schizophrenia, which sent him in and out of hospitals in an attempt to balance his mental illness with some semblance of an everyday life, but he succumbed to the dangerous and devastating world of opioid addiction. Even in his darkest days, Adam always encouraged his family to “look up” so they didn’t miss the beauty he saw in the world around them.

In November 2015, Adam lost his battle with addiction, but only after leaving an indelible mark on his family, friends and community. During his last conversation with his mother Linda, Adam carried this same positive sentiment and tone, which has stayed with Linda to this day and inspired the creation of the nonprofit foundation Look Up for Adam.

The rise of the heroin and opioid abuse epidemic has affected so many families across Long Island and our entire nation, and Look Up for Adam provides support for these families to look up just as Adam did, and in honor of his enduring spirit and character, I’d like to support his mother’s request in declaring March 12th, Adam’s birthday, as National Look Up Day.

There are so many families across our entire nation who are battling the heroin and opioid abuse epidemic, who when down in the trenches sometimes forget to look up at the world around them. National Look Up Day serves as a reminder for these families to keep a positive outlook, but also for us as Members of Congress to never stop fighting to combat the heroin and opioid abuse epidemic and never waver in our support for the families affected by it.

HONORING ROB WYNBRANDT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. BUCHSHON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the contributions of Rob Wynbrandt, who will retire on March 15th as Executive Director and General Counsel of the Society of Thoracic Surgeons (STS). I commend his 30 years of legal service and guidance for cardiothoracic surgeons and their patients.

Mr. Wynbrandt graduated from Northwestern University in 1977 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in History, and obtained a Juris Doctor with Honors from the University of Michigan in 1979. He worked for many years as a partner in a Chicago law firm, serving clients such as The Society of Thoracic Surgeons, the American Academy of Dermatology, American Academy of Pediatrics, American College of Radiology, and the American College of Surgeons. In 2002, Mr. Wynbrandt was named STS Executive Director and General Counsel. Once Mr. Wynbrandt took the helm at STS, he expanded its staff and oversaw the development of programs on patient safety, public reporting, and professional medical education for cardiothoracic surgeons. It was under Mr. Wynbrandt’s legal expertise that the STS launched its now world-renowned National Database. As a result of his leadership, the database has become the gold standard for clinical outcomes registries and serves as the bedrock for quality improvement initiatives involving heart and lung surgery patients.

I congratulate Mr. Wynbrandt on a distinguished career at STS, and join his family, friends, cardiothoracic surgeons, and their patients from around the country in extending my best wishes in his retirement.

HONORING THE CASPER CHAPTER OF FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA WINNING THE NATIONAL FFA FARM AND AGRIBUSINESS MANAGEMENT CONTEST

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Ms. CHENEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Casper Chapter of Future Farmers of America on their victory at the National FFA Farm and Agribusiness Management Contest.

Future Farmers of America is a national organization dedicated to educating and encouraging young people on the importance of sustainable farming and agribusiness. The young men and women of the Casper Chapter have distinguished themselves among chapters from all across the nation. They truly are some of the best that Wyoming has to offer. They are the future of agribusiness in Wyoming, and the country.

Again Madam Speaker, I extend my congratulations to the Casper Chapter of Future Farmers of America on their victory and applaud their commitment to an industry that is vital to our nation.

HONORING THE BLANCHE ELY BOYS BASKETBALL TEAM FOR WINNING ITS SECOND STRAIGHT CLASSIC 8A STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. HASTINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the Blanche Ely boys’ basketball team and their coach Melvin Randall on their 57–52 victory to claim its second straight Class 8A boys basketball state championship at Lakeland’s RP Funding Center on March 9, 2019.

Coach Randall’s dedication to Blanche Ely High School and its basketball program is truly commendable. Before the game, Coach Randall provided the team the same piece of advice he always does: “piece by piece”. The All-USA Boys Basketball Coach of the Year and Broward County Sports Hall of Fame Inductee led his team by example, providing them with the courage, resilience, and wisdom needed to win.

The Blanche Ely boys’ basketball team would not be a success without their tremendous commitment to the sport. Senior Joshua Scott will be the first player in the program’s history to win four back-to-back state titles. Aderes Stanton-McCray also was critical to his team’s win. His block brought the team back into the lead in what Coach Randall described as the “play of the game”.

I would also like to recognize the entire Tiger basketball team, which includes: Tyreece Francois, Jayden Fye, Daniel Merrius, Eric Guerrier, Aderes Staton-McCray, Javier Zapata, Jeremiah Mathieu, Jair Copeland, Derrick Lovett, Joshua Scott, Malachi Hazelton, Lance Rainer, Javon Workers, Lamont Evans, Colby King, and Bryson Williams.

Madam Speaker, it is my honor to congratulate Principal Dr. Karlton O. Johnson for his outstanding leadership of Blanche Ely High School, as well as Coach Melvin Randall, and the entire Blanche Ely boys’ basketball team. They had a tremendous season and should be extremely proud of themselves. I wish the Blanche Ely High School and their basketball program many more years of continued success.

friends in celebrating his long life and the incredible impacts he’s made. We wish him the happiest of birthdays and nothing but health and prosperity in the years ahead.

TRIBUTE TO THE MILWAUKEE URBAN LEAGUE

HON. GWEN MOORE OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Ms. MOORE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Milwaukee Urban League as it celebrates 100 years of service to the Milwaukee area Community. The Milwaukee Urban League was established in 1919 as an affiliate of the National Urban League (NUL) in response to the migration of African Americans who moved north from southern states in search of greater opportunities and a better way of life. They assisted in their transition to urban life and employment, helping African Americans in Milwaukee secure economic self-reliance, parity and power, and civil rights.

The Milwaukee Urban League became a hub and sought to meet the various needs of the African American Community. They established a medical clinic in the 1920s and sponsored a community center for holiday gatherings, youth recreation and crafts, and taught boxing skills. In 1926 the Urban League released a study that established the need to eliminate poor housing as a high priority. In subsequent years, it was instrumental in ending legalized racial discrimination in housing and creating the Metropolitan Milwaukee Fair Housing Council which still exists today. In the 1930s, the Milwaukee Urban League established the Industrial Relations Project to improve job opportunities and working conditions through relationships with business establishments.

Over the years the Urban League has continued to promote employment and economic self-sufficiency through such initiatives as apprenticeship programs, and pre-employment skills training. Other employment help includes on-the-job placement and training and older workers and job ride programs. The Milwaukee Urban League has promoted business ownership and development through efforts such as the Franchise Initiative designed to help African Americans acquire franchises, thereby, generating wealth and increasing the number of jobs in the community. It hosts an annual Youth Leadership Summit to promote civic engagement.

The Milwaukee Urban League has been on the front lines of the struggle for equality by both performing research that establishes the case for change and taking actions that result in change to help the next generation succeed. The Urban League continues to collaborate on many issues to enhance the well-being of the community it serves to achieve positive outcomes, including: seeking alternatives to incarceration, working with organizations to speak out against hatred and bigotry, improving academic achievement and social growth among students, and eliminating barriers to employment including enhancement.

Madam Speaker, for these reasons I rise to recognize and pay tribute to the Milwaukee Urban League as it celebrates its 100th anniversary and continues its efforts to benefit the Fourth Congressional District and the State of Wisconsin.

HONORING SHERIFF JOE MAX TAYLOR

HON. RANDY K. WEBER, SR.
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. WEBER of Texas. Madam Speaker, former Galveston County Sheriff Joe Max Taylor passed away on Monday, February 11, 2019.

Sheriff Taylor was a veteran, husband and father who dedicated his life to public service. His colleagues describe him as an innovator, mentor and a skilled politician. The Sheriff served Galveston County for 54 years, 19 of those years he served as sheriff.

Sheriff Joe Max Taylor’s legacy is one filled with a deep love for his Galveston community. During his career, he assisted in growing the sheriff’s office from nineteen deputies to more than 300 deputies. He was also instrumental in helping form the mental health division and the auto crimes task force.

Those who knew Sheriff Taylor know he was more than a sheriff, he was someone who did so much for our community. He will be greatly missed, and our thoughts and prayers are with his family.

INTRODUCTION OF THE TEACHER VICTIMS’ FAMILY ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2019

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. HASTINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Teacher Victims’ Family Assistance Act of 2019. It is well known that this country faces a gun violence epidemic. In fact, in the 2018 school year alone, there were 24 school shooting incidents. This is the highest annual number of school shootings in recent history, averaging out to one school shooting incident every seven and a half school days. The pain and heartache that result from this tragic and needless loss of life sends shockwaves through our communities, but especially through the families left behind.

Today, our teachers must contend with not only the awesome responsibility of preparing our children for bright and meaningful futures, but also with protecting them from the very real threat of active shooters and others wishing to harm our children and grandchildren.

Too often, the teachers themselves are casualties in this epidemic, leaving the families of the slain teachers, many with small children, unprepared financially.

The Teacher Victims’ Family Assistance Act of 2019 directs the Secretary of Education to provide assistance to the immediate family members of K-12 teachers who are killed during their performance of duties at a public or private school. This bill provides victims’ families with funeral assistance; a death benefit payment to the surviving spouse, dependent child, or other next of kin; monthly living assistance for the surviving spouse; and undergraduate education assistance for each dependent child.

In time, it is my sincere hope that the need for the crucial assistance provided by this measure will not be necessary as fewer and fewer families are forced to cope with the tragic loss of a loved one at school. However, until that time, we must do all we can for our dedicated and hardworking teachers and their families, and that is exactly the spirit with which this legislation is put forward.

Madam Speaker, I urge this body to expeditiously pass this measure. Doing so will reaffirm America’s solidarity, gratitude, and support for our nation’s dedicated educators, who work tirelessly on behalf of our children.

COMMEMORATING THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CRYSTAL CHORDS

HON. TOM REED
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, March 12, 2019

Mr. REED. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Crystal Chords.

The Crystal Chords are a group of extraordinary women who come together to share their love of music and sing a cappella in the barbershop style. For twenty-five years the women of Crystal Chords have graced the communities of the Corning-Elmira area, singing at a variety of community functions. They are a proud chapter of Harmony, Inc., a nonprofit international organization, whose mission is to empower women through education, friendship, and a cappella singing in the barbershop style.

The barbershop quartets of the Crystal Chords share their talents throughout the year, singing for civic and charitable events. They have sung at community events such as the Corning Parade of Lights and Horseheads’ Holly Days, and regularly perform at local churches. The Crystal Chords are committed to charity in their communities as they fundraise for the Food Bank of the Southern Tier at all of their concerts and events.

The Crystal Chords are proudly directed by the husband-wife team of Bill and Donna McKay. Their years of barbershop quartet experience and unwavering dedication have led the Crystal Chords from its inception twenty-five years ago to continued success today.

Twenty-five years of uniting members of our communities with music is certainly a cause for celebration. I congratulate the Crystal Chords on this impressive milestone and look forward to their continued success in the years to come.

Given the above, I ask that this Legislative Body pause in its deliberations and join me to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Crystal Chords.
