RECOGNIZING THE HERITAGE, CULTURE, AND CONTRIBUTIONS OF AMERICAN INDIAN, ALASKA NATIVE, AND NATIVE HAWAIIAN WOMEN IN THE UNITED STATES

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Indian Affairs Committee be discharged from further consideration and the Senate now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 100.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 100) recognizing the heritage, culture, and contributions of American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian women in the United States.

There being no objection, the committee was discharged and the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize two remarkable female leaders of the Mohegan and Mashantucket Pequot Tribes in honor of National Women's History Month. Both Tribes have reservations in the State of Connecticut and are an integral part of our community. The women I recognize today represent so many other Native American women who were strong in conviction, fearless in leadership, and dedicated to preserving their Tribal identity.

Dr. Gladys Iola Tantaquidgeon was a Mohegan Medicine Woman born in 1899. After learning tribal spirituality and herbalism from her "grandmothers," Dr. Tantaquidgeon studied at the University of Pennsylvania, writing in the field of anthropology and working with noted anthropologist Frank Speck. She researched herbal medicine among related east coast Tribes in order to broaden her Mohegan pharmacopeia. For her impressive academic achievements, Dr. Tantaquidgeon received honorary doctorates from the University of Connecticut and Yale University. She was also inducted into the Connecticut Women's Hall of Fame and received the National Organization for Women's Harriet Tubman Award, the Connecticut Education Association's Friend of Education Award, and numerous Native American honors.

Her contributions extended beyond academia. In 1931, she, her brother Harold and their father, John, founded the Tantaquidgeon Indian Museum in Uncasville, CT, using education to help remedy prejudice. Then in 1934, John Collier, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, recruited Dr. Tantaquidgeon to serve as a community worker on the Yankton Sioux Reservation in South Dakota. For 9 years, she served as a specialist for the newly formed Federal Indian Arts and Crafts Board to promote Indian art, encouraging the restoration of critically important ancient practices the Federal Government had prohibited at that time.

Dr. Tantaquidgeon used her strong sense of social justice to support women in difficult situations by working as the Niantic Women's Prison librarian in the 1940s. She continued her life of service to others when her personal records of correspondence about Mohegan births, graduations, marriages, and deaths played a pivotal role in gaining Federal Recognition for the Mohegans in 1994.

Throughout her amazing 106 years of life, she led the way for women, especially women of color, to seize new opportunities and for everyone to engage in a greater level of discussion and education about Native American history and culture. Her legacy will leave a positive academic and social impact for years to come.

The other exceptional woman I wish to remember today is Martha Ann "Matt" Langevin, a Mashantucket Pequot Indian. Born in 1901, she spent her entire life in Mashantucket and dedicated her years to researching traditional medicinal uses for indigenous plants and herbs.

Ms. Langevin strongly advocated for the preservation of the Mashantucket Pequot land, culture, and way of life. She stood at the forefront of efforts to defend the Tribe's lands whenever State or local government officials tried to take them away. Her readiness to protect her community demonstrates Ms. Langevin's indomitable determination.

She was also an incredibly thoughtful, loving friend to many. With three siblings and seven half-siblings, Ms. Langevin was considered a beloved aunt by her nieces and nephews, as well as by other Pequot children who stayed with her when their parents left to find work. She took excellent care of the children.

Much of Ms. Langevin's life focused on gardening, preserving food, and watching over her ancestral lands. One of her most important undertakings was her constant work to preserve Pequot traditions and land, a task she took up with great passion and conviction. An inductee into the Connecticut Women's Hall of Fame, Ms. Langevin will be remembered for her compassion and zeal for continuing traditions and looking after the people and the lands she loved.

I applaud both of these women's immense accomplishments, and I hope my
