House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Cuellar).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, July 17, 2019.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Henry Cuellar to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2019, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties. All time shall be equally allocated between the parties, and in no event shall debate continue beyond 11:50 a.m. Each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, shall be limited to 5 minutes.

ADVANCE TO IMPEACHMENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Green) for 5 minutes.

Mr. Green of Texas, Mr. Speaker, and still I rise, a proud American. But I am especially proud, Mr. Speaker, of this House of Representatives because, yesterday, this House engaged in the first part of a bipartisan—bipartisan—effort.

It was bipartisan yesterday, but it is a bifurcated effort as well. Bifurcated because, yesterday, this House voted with a vote of 244 to condemn the President. Yesterday’s vote was to condemn, the first part of the bifurcated process. Today’s vote is to determine whether or not we will punish the President.

The effort yesterday was wonderful. I supported it. But it does not punish the President. It does not fine him. He will remain in office.

Today, we will deal with the question of what his punishment should be. Between 4 and 5, somewhere in there, there will be Articles of Impeachment voted on. This will be the opportunity for us to go on record letting the world know where we stand.

If we vote to table, we are voting not to advance impeachment. If we vote to send it to the Committee on the Judiciary, we are voting not to advance impeachment.

I will not vote to table. I will not vote to send it to the Committee on the Judiciary. I will want to move forward so that we can move to vote to impeach.

This President has committed impeachable offenses. Yesterday, we condemned him for them. Today is our opportunity to punish him for them.

And for those who might say, “Well, if you do this, there may be some people who won’t like you,” well, there are times when you have to do that which is neither safe nor politic nor popular.

You have to do it because it is right. You have to do it so that we can move to vote to impeach.

I also believe that this, and under the law, some 91 days since the Mueller report was presented—some 91 days. I think that it is time for us to send the President a clear message that he is not above the law. I think it is time for us to impeach.

I also believe that this, and understand, what we are doing today with impeachment, does not impact the Mueller report. It does not impact what the Committee on the Judiciary is doing or any other committee investigating obstruction. Obstruction has nothing to do with what we will vote on today. This is about what the President has done.

You cannot incite people to harm other people with your words. You can’t yell, “Fire,” in a crowded theater.

The President has committed an impeachable offense, and we ought to take it up. He ought to be impeached.

I will vote to advance to impeachment, and I pray that this President will be impeached today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to refrain from engaging in personalities toward the President.

IMMIGRATION CRISIS REQUIRES IMMIGRATION REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. Foxx) for 5 minutes.

Ms. Foxx of North Carolina, Mr. Speaker, our country is seeing unprecedented numbers of illegal aliens attempting to circumvent U.S. immigration and asylum laws at our southern border.

The Department of Homeland Security reported that 104,344 arrests occurred last month, making 4 straight months of arrests totaling over 100,000. That is the equivalent to the entire population of Watauga County in North Carolina’s Fifth District being detained at our southern border every 2 weeks.

Our Border Patrol officers, aid workers, and National Guard units have been overwhelmed performing the vital and often thankless work upholding the rule of law to keep our country safe. They deserve the support of this body, and so do those who have legitimate asylum petitions and humanitarian needs.

As I know, many in this recent migrant influx include women with children who want the life of opportunity that this country and our freedoms afford. Caring for children and families at our southern border need not be a partisan issue.

Last month, House Republicans delivered $4.6 billion to help manage the humanitarian crisis and strengthen border security. While this funding is necessary to address the border crisis, more needs to be done to modify the law and streamline asylum regulations. Rather than pivot to political pandering and policy extremes like open border advocates recognize the complex failures of our current system and address them head-on. That is why I am proud to cosponsor the Fix the Immigration Loopholes Act. This bill updates immigration law to efficiently process asylum claims and safely return children to their countries of origin. It is past time that we debate it on the House floor.

I call on Speaker PELOSI to continue our progress addressing the border crisis by bringing up bipartisan legislation for comprehensive immigration reform. The immigration crisis our country is facing has strained our country’s border security and customs enforcement protections to the breaking point. If this crisis continues, is not an option.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE “APOLLO 11” MOON LANDING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JOHNSON) for 5 minutes.

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, as chairwoman of the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology, it is an honor to stand before you today to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Apollo 11.

On the morning of July 16, 1969, Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins, and Buzz Aldrin lifted off from NASA’s Cape Kennedy. That day, millions watched in awe as NASA launched Apollo 11’s Saturn V rocket and began the long journey to accomplish the goals set by President Kennedy less than 10 years earlier to land a man on the Moon before the end of the decade.

As President Kennedy said in his speech at Rice University in September 1962: “We choose to go to the Moon in this decade and do the other things, not because they are easy, but because they are hard.”

There is no better explanation that captures the American spirit. We choose to take giant leaps. We choose to know the unknown. We choose to lead into the future.

On July 20, 1969, just 4 days after the launch, the world listened and watched as the first steps were taken on the Moon. Again, hundreds of millions of people across the world watched as history was made.

Five times more, NASA astronauts landed on the Moon and returned home safely. President Kennedy’s promise that our great democracy could achieve these hard things became a reality.

As we watched those things in July 50 years ago, dreams began to form. Every person watching the success of the Apollo program, young and old, no matter their background, was filled with inspiration.

Some youngsters could say to themselves, “I will be an astronaut.” Or, “I will be a scientist.” As they looked up to the Moon, they pictured themselves up there amongst those American heroes an unimaginable distance away.

This impact has its greatest effect on our young people. We must always remember that inspiration when we set out to accomplish our greatest goals, the youth inspiration. The world’s rising generations are watching, always setting their eyes on the sky and the stars. Young girls and young boys from all backgrounds thrive off the visions that we have now and imagine themselves becoming a part of it when they can.

We must meet this great responsibility to the following generations by providing opportunities for them to do great things with the challenge we face today. As my predecessor, chairman of the then-Committee of Science and Aeronautics, Congressman George P. Miller said after the Apollo 11 crew splashed down safely in the Pacific Ocean:

‘‘Those of us who are privileged to live today will pass this on to our children and our grandchildren, will, in turn, brag about the fact that we were there. The flight of Apollo 11 is perhaps the greatest secular achievement that the world has ever seen.

This achievement was made possible by the unified efforts of nearly a half million men and women, scientists and engineers, technicians and craftsman, and the support of the American people and their government. The United States space program is unmatched.

Just as we once set our sights to be the first to land on the Moon, let us bring that same sense of commitment to meeting other challenges facing our Nation.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BROOKS) for 5 minutes. Mr. BROOKS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, this week America celebrates the 50th anniversary of one of mankind’s— and America’s—greatest achievements: walking on the surface of the Moon.

Although there only one child, I recall the earth shake and the dishes in our kitchen cabinets rattle as the Saturn V engines were tested nearby. Even now, 50 years after the Moon landing, I get chills remembering when Apollo astronauts landed and later planted the American flag on the Moon’s surface.

It was American ingenuity, boldness, technical prowess, and economic might that made this historic achievement possible. I am proud to say the legacy of the Apollo 11 Moon landing lives on in the Tennessee Valley of Alabama that I represent. Some history is in order:

The Tennessee Valley’s Marshall Space Flight Center is the birthplace of America’s space program. Americans, generally, and Alabamians in particular, designed and engineered the Saturn V rocket that launched the historic Apollo 11 and took American astronauts to the Moon.

I will never forget the flames and the roar as our Saturn V rocket was launched and carried the Apollo 11 crew in vehicles to the Moon. I remember with tremendous pride Neil Armstrong’s words as he set foot on the Moon: “That’s one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.”

That giant leap meant to benefit all mankind is a prime example of American exceptionalism and helped cement America’s status as the most powerful and most influential nation in world history.

When Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin planted America’s flag on the Moon surface on July 20, 1969, there was no doubt that America’s space program had passed the Russians and become the preeminent leader in space exploration, a position America maintains today.

This week, America not only reflects on the miraculous achievements of the Apollo 11 mission, but also we honor those who played a critical role in its ultimate success. The Tennessee Valley is immensely proud of our pivotal role in landing a man on the Moon and, equally importantly, returning them alive to Earth.

Reflecting our pride in America’s achievement, there are two—that is, two—Saturn V rockets displayed at the United States Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Alabama.

These Saturn V displays help inspire the next generation to reach for the stars and achieve what now may be thought impossible.

While it is important to remember the historic achievements of the Apollo missions, it is also important to honor those who sacrificed their lives in the effort to achieve American greatness.

Hundreds of schools named after Apollo Command Pilot Virgil “Gus” Grissom, Senior Pilot Ed White, and Pilot Roger Chaffee, each of whom died in a capsule fire during an Apollo 1 ground test.

After the Moon landing and return of Apollo 11 astronauts Buzz Aldrin, Neil Armstrong, and Michael Collins to Earth on July 24, 1969, Huntsville’s streets were awash with revelers. German rocket scientist Wernher von Braun said on the Huntsville courthouse steps that day: “My friends, there was dancing here in the streets of Huntsville when our first satellite orbited the Earth, and there was dancing again when the first Americans landed on the Moon. I’d like to ask you: Don’t hang up your dancing slippers.”

Von Braun’s words remind us that mankind’s greatest achievements are yet to come, that America will continue to accomplish the unimaginable in space for the benefit of all humanity.

As we reach for the stars, I have confidence that the Tennessee Valley, the Lowcountry, and we say: “The sky is not the limit,” will be instrumental in carrying American astronauts back to the Moon, to Mars, and beyond.

HONORING DEPUTY WILLIAM KIMBRO

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CUNNINGHAM) for 5 minutes.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chair, I rise today to honor the valiant actions of Deputy William Kimbro of the Berkeley County Sheriff’s Office.

On June 11, Deputy Kimbro pulled over a speeding vehicle to find that 12-year-old Riley had stopped breathing. She needed immediate help, so without hesitation, Deputy Kimbro administered lifesaving care to this newborn until the first responders could arrive on the scene.

Deputy Kimbro served our Nation in the Navy for 21 years before joining the Berkeley County Sheriff’s Office in 2013. A school resource officer on summer break, patrolling the road is not Deputy Kimbro’s primary duty, but he acted without hesitation. For his bravery and composure, he earned Berkeley County’s Life-Saving Medal.

He is a husband and father of two children. Deputy Kimbro is an all-around hero, and we are lucky to have him looking after us in the Lowcountry, where, we say, “all first responders, keep the Lowcountry and this Nation a safer and better place.”

Deputy Kimbro should take a bow. We are extremely proud of him.

RECOGNIZING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF “APOLLO 11”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. THOMPSON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today, as a number of my colleagues have, to recognize that this Saturday, July 20, is the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 Moon landing.

Fifty years ago, Neil Armstrong became the first human to set foot on the surface of the Moon and declared the moment “one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.”

Along with Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins, he launched from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida and embarked on a journey that would change the course of human history forever.

At the time, I remember watching the coverage of the landing from my family living room, where we had moved the dining room table to eat dinner and watch this historic occasion. I remember the landing that occurred at 4:18 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on July 20. Along with many other children of that time across the country, I was filled with a sense of awe and wonder.

This consequential moment was sparked before in 1961 when President Kennedy stood before Congress and set forth an ambitious goal of putting a man on the Moon before the decade’s end, long before, as he acknowledged, the materials had been yet invented to make that a reality.

His bold vision became a reality on July 20, 1969. This achievement would not have been possible without American innovation and work ethic, paired with the support of the public.

Now, we can safely sending the first woman and another man to the south pole of the Moon, where no human has traveled.

This mission, called Artemis, will send astronauts back to the Moon by 2024, allowing us to establish a permanent presence on the Moon by 2028.

None of this can be achieved without a strong public-private partnership between NASA and the commercial industry and the strong support of the American people.

NASA works with companies, both large and small, from across the 50 States to prepare for the Artemis mission, as well as many other projects NASA conducts in space.

In Pennsylvania’s 15th Congressional District, there are several local businesses working with NASA. Just recently, NASA announced a contract for infrastructure support service from the H.F. Lenz Company in Johnstown to provide their engineering expertise.

In Bellefonte, Actuated Medical is working with NASA on additive manufacturing methods and custom medical devices.

Public-private partnerships like these will fuel the next generation of exploration.

Space is more than just a place of academic study, however. It is instrumental to our national security, discovers new technologies that have everyday applications, and encourages us to push the boundaries of what is possible.

Mr. Speaker, the legacy of the Apollo 11 Moon landing is forever enshrined in the hearts and the minds of Americans who witnessed the moment 50 years ago this week. We must reignite our curiosity for space exploration as we prepare to return to the Moon and seek further horizons in the decades to come.

RAISE THE MINIMUM WAGE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Ms. MOORE) for 5 minutes.

Ms. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to urge my colleagues to vote for the Raise the Minimum Wage Act.

In my district of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Milwaukeeans were stuck at the Federal minimum wage of $7.25 an hour set over a decade ago. These workers struggle to support themselves and their families with their meager wages.

Why? Because try, at $7.25 an hour, they are working themselves into poverty, since $15,000 a year is below the Federal poverty level.

What do these workers do? They are forced to juggle multiple jobs and contemplate long and unpredictable hours. Meanwhile, congressional inaction on minimum wage workers’ paycheck continues to erode this basic labor standard.

This inaction has contributed to out-of-control economic inequality and the decline of the middle class. Hardworking Americans working at the minimum wage are, indeed, working below the poverty level. Not only are they working below the poverty level, but they are supplying more labor to wealthy corporations that have benefited from our tax policy.

It also requires you, hardworking taxpayers, to subsidize those corporations. Why? Because they try, at $7.25 an hour, they are working themselves into poverty, since $15,000 a year is below the Federal poverty level.

I am so proud that I protested for fair wages alongside fellow Milwaukeeans in 2014 as part of the national Fight for $15 campaign. I was arrested for participating in the fight for $15 an hour in that protest, and I am grateful for the courage demonstrated by the protesters nationwide who joined the Fight for $15.

I thank you for the personal risks you have taken. We are voting on the Raise the Minimum Wage Act because of the momentum that you have created.

Raising the minimum wage will have countless benefits. To name a few, it will lift 40 million workers out of poverty and will increase the benefits of economic growth that President Trump has hoarded for the wealthy few.
Raising the national minimum wage is well overdue, and I urge my colleagues to vote ‘yes’ on the Raise the Wage Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to address their remarks to the Chair and not to a perceived viewing audience.

HONORING THE LEGACY OF THE "APOLLO 11" MISSION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MARSHALL) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Speaker, 50 years ago, on July 20, 1969, people across the country and around the world watched in eager anticipation as Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin landed on the Moon.

This historic event ended the space race and brought American innovation, determination, and leadership to the forefront of the global stage.

This was American exceptionalism at its best. My brother, sister, and I never missed an Apollo liftoff. We all became very familiar with that countdown: 10, 9, 8—ignition sequence—7, 6, 5—fire the retrorockets—3, 2, 1. Liftoff. We have liftoff. The rocket has cleared the tower. The rocket has cleared the tower.

We watched in amazement as we sat in front of that little RCA black-and-white TV. It was like the whole room was shaking. We would sit and watch the TV set until we saw the rocket finally leave all the way out of sight.

Apollo 11 was a 36-story-high rocket. It started its 8-day, 953,000-mile journey to the Moon and back.

We all had toy rockets back in the day, and we would repeat that liftoff sequence over and over. My brother and I would climb our garage and launch our toy rockets.

In Cub Scouts, we built rockets. In Boy Scouts, we built rockets. In our high school physics classes, we built rockets. In our Boy Scouts, we built rockets. In our high school physics classes, we built rockets. In our Boy Scouts, we built rockets. In our high school physics classes, we built rockets.

I have no idea how many young boys and girls were inspired to go into science because of the joy of watching rockets being launched to the Moon. Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin landed on the Moon.

In fact, Astronaut Nick Hague of Hoxie, Kansas, in my district, is currently conducting research on the International Space Station.

We are proud of Nick, who will keep doing a great job for America.

As a member of the House Science, Space, and Technology Committee, I am proud to join my colleagues here today in honoring the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 landing and its legacy that we continue to build upon today.

END HUNGER NOW

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago, the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Nutrition, Oversight, and Department Operations hosted a hearing that discussed the devastating impacts of President Trump’s proposed cuts to broad-based categorical eligibility.

Today, I would like to share the stories of a few of my constituents who have benefited from the streamlined process that broad-based categorical eligibility provides hungry families in accessing food benefits.

In my hometown of Worcester, Massachusetts, a single mother who is a domestic violence survivor raising one child works as a certified nursing assistant and makes $1,819 per month before taxes or payroll deductions.

While this is not enough to get by, her current income is barely over 130 percent of the Federal poverty level.

Even with an income this low, her family only receives a $15 monthly SNAP benefit. But because of broad-based categorical eligibility, her child is also able to receive free school meals, and it helps her stay afloat as a working mom.

Then there is another Worcester-area family of four, former refugees, with two high school aged children. The mother and father, who both work in shipping and packaging, make $15.35 an hour. While both parents work as many hours as they can, their income fluctuates depending on how many shifts they are assigned each week.

Many months they make under 130 percent of the Federal poverty level. But during other months when they get extra shifts, it puts them slightly higher, over 130 percent. This month they received $110 in SNAP; but if it were up to the Trump administration, just one more shift could threaten the entire family’s access to SNAP and their children’s access to free school meals.

Mr. Speaker, broad-based categorical eligibility is not a black-and-white issue. President Trump shouldn’t be cutting off people’s benefits just as they are getting on their feet.

Last year, we worked hard to come up with a bipartisan farm bill and, despite some discussions on this issue, Congress agreed then, and in 2014, to allow States to maintain their flexibility in accommodating low-income households. In my home State of Massachusetts, where the cost of living is relatively high, compared to the rest of the country, that flexibility is crucial.

I would like to take a moment now to highlight a forward-thinking partnership to address hunger among college students in Gardner, Massachusetts. I find the work of organizations that address food insecurity to be especially important during times like these.

I have mentioned before that the average SNAP benefit is around $1.40 per person per meal. You can’t even buy a cup of coffee for that, much less feed an entire family. For those experiencing hunger, food pantries often serve as the safety net when SNAP just isn’t enough.

In my district, for example, Worcester County Food Bank provides donated food to a network of 118 partner agencies, including food pantries, community meal programs, and shelters. Its mission is to engage, educate, and lead Worcester County in creating a hunger-free community. Last year, they served 81,000 neighbors.

Recently, I visited one of the food bank’s partners, the Mount Wachusett Community College’s Food for Thought Campus Pantry, one of the first college food pantries to partner with the Worcester County Food Bank in addressing food insecurity on local college campuses.

Research shows that community college students experience higher food insecurity than the rest of the population. A recent study found that two out of three community college students are food insecure.

The Food for Thought Campus Pantry was created in October of 2017 for students and by students in response to food insecurity among community college students, which has been an increasing threat to student success.

Since the Food for Thought Pantry opened its doors in October 2017, 210 students have registered for food assistance, and 7,236 pounds of food, and 12,607 total items were distributed.

Without organizations like the Worcester County Food Bank and Mount Wachusett’s Food for Thought Pantry, students and families would not have consistent access to the food they need. These programs and organizations are an irreplaceable key to solving our Nation’s hunger crisis, but they can’t bear all of the weight if the Trump administration has its way and cuts millions off of SNAP.

That is why I encourage my colleagues in the House and Senate to join me and fight every single attempt this administration makes to wage war on people who are hungry. Working together is the only way we are going to be able to end hunger now.

“APOLLO 11” COMMEMORATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BABIN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BABIN. Mr. Speaker, 50 years ago, America achieved the greatest technological accomplishment in human history.

Three men, Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins, and Buzz Aldrin, set off from Cape Canaveral on a voyage that President Kennedy called “the most hazardous, and dangerous, and greatest adventure on which man has ever embarked.”

Four days into their 8-day mission, Neil and Buzz climbed down the ladder of the lunar module and stood on the surface of the Moon; the very first human presence on a celestial body other than Earth; a feat that, to this day, no other country has equaled. And we did it five more times.

Armstrong, Collins, and Aldrin could not have accomplished this alone. Apollo 11 was the culmination of the hard work of more than 400,000 Americans who, with limited experience, and comparatively primitive technology, committed themselves to accomplish this task and completing President Kennedy’s order of returning the astronauts safely home.

I am so proud to represent Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, and the historic Mission Control of that Apollo era.

On the wall of the House Science, Space, and Technology Committee here on Capitol Hill, where I serve as the senior Republican on the Space and Aeronautics Subcommittee, is written, from the Bible, Proverbs 29:18, which reads: “Where there is no vision, the people perish.”

The 50th anniversary of the first Moon landing should serve as a reminder of what we, as a Nation, can accomplish when we do have a clear mission.

Six hundred million people from around the world gathered around their grainy television sets to watch those first steps. What is amazing is that this took place only 40 years after Lindbergh first flew across the Atlantic; and only 65 years after two bicycle-making brothers from Dayton, Ohio, achieved powered flight in Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.

The Apollo program built upon these accomplishments and exponentially pushed them forward, and we are on the cusp of doing it again.

President Trump and Vice President PENCE have ensured that we are, again, pushing outward, and launching America back into its dominant role as the global leader in space. We have our vision. This time, we head to the red planet by way of the Moon, and this time we stay.

NASA Administrator Bridenstine has focused NASA on achieving these goals with the Artemis program, Apollo’s sister, and I will continue to use my position in Congress to advocate for the support needed for NASA to accomplish this, the greatest endeavor.

Mr. Speaker, as we commemorate the 50th anniversary of Apollo 11 this week, I would like to thank all out there who helped us get to the Moon, and all those on the shoulders of which we set our feet on the Moon, and thank them for their tremendous contribution to our country.

I am anxiously looking forward to the next small steps and giant leaps in our space program.

“APOLLO 11” CELEBRATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Oklahoma (Ms. KENDRA S. HORN) for 5 minutes.

Ms. KENDRA S. HORN of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, this week, we celebrate one of the most remarkable moments in human history: The launch of the Apollo 11 lunar mission, and the first steps on the Moon by American astronauts Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin.

American leadership, ingenuity, and investment made this moment possible 50 years ago.

As the Space and Aeronautics Subcommittee chairwoman, I am honored to be joined by my colleagues today to recognize this achievement and talk about what it means, 50 years later. As we commemorate this historic accomplishment, it is clear that we stand on the shoulders of space pioneers, some of whom are still with us today.

Apollo 11 and Armstrong’s first steps on the lunar surface were the culmination of a focused, methodical buildup of the developments, demonstrations, and operational capabilities needed to achieve the Moon landing.

The value of the Apollo program is beyond measure. Its mission inspired and continues to draw countless Americans into science, technology, engineering and math. This program led to significant technological advances and products that changed the world as we know it and shape our lives today.

Fundamentally, the success of Apollo contributed to our standing in the world. Apollo taught us the value of taking audacious, and yet intentional, risks.

I would like to focus, as well, for a moment, on the mission that immediately preceded the Moon landing, Apollo 10. This mission, launched 2 months before, was launched to test all of the components and procedures just prior to landing. Carrying the lunar module, it came as close as 50,000 feet from the lunar surface before returning safely to Earth.

The 50th anniversary of the first Moon landing should serve as a reminder of what we, as a Nation, can accomplish when we have a clear mission.

I am anxiously looking forward to the next small steps and giant leaps in our space program.

Retired Air Force General Thomas P. Stafford, an Oklahoman, commanded this essential mission that enabled us to land on the Moon. General Stafford was born in Weatherford, Oklahoma, and received a Bachelor of Science from the United States Naval Academy in 1952, graduating with honors. Commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Air Force, he completed advanced interceptor training and served tours of duty flying F-86s. He then graduated from the U.S. Air Force Test Pilot School as the outstanding graduate.

Throughout his career, Stafford flew more than 100 different types of aircraft as he pushed the boundaries of achievement in air and space. Stafford was selected as an astronaut in 1962 and, 3 years later, flew on Gemini 6 as the first space rendezvous mission, followed by Gemini 9.

Later, General Stafford commanded the first international space flight mission, Apollo-Soyuz. This peaceful cooperation between two Cold War rivals was the first step in what has become a sustained relationship between the U.S., Russia, and our international partners with the International Space Station.

The last of the Apollo missions, its lasting impacts, reminds us that even in times of warfare and global distress, that space exploration is a unifying force of discovery, peace, cooperation, and diplomacy.

By beyond all his accomplishments, General Stafford has also become a friend and mentor. To General Stafford, and all of those who contributed to the success of Apollo, you inspired a generation and showed the world what is possible when our Nation comes together to focus on an ambitious goal and, in turn, change the world in both foreseeable and unforeseeable ways.

BUILDING ON THE APOLLO LEGACY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. POSEY) for 5 minutes.

Mr. POSEY. Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure to be here today to speak about the 50th anniversary of Apollo 11.

I remember sitting in class with the teacher discussing President John F. Kennedy’s speech about going to the Moon at Rice University in 1961, when he committed this country to putting a man on the Moon and bringing him safely back to Earth within the decade.

He said: Great nations do things, not because they are easy, because they are hard, but because it is certain that it is hard. I remember doing the math on my fingers and saying, you know, I am going to be old enough to be involved in that program. And my goal became to have my fingerprints on the rocket that took off the first man to the Moon.

Ten years later I was an inspector working on the third stage of the Apollo rocket, one of the highlights of my life.
Americans were united in those days in their zeal for space; the Apollo Moon landing being the greatest technological advancement in the history of mankind. Some writers described those times as a Camelot era, where people respected their leaders, even if they didn’t vote for them. Not until 9/11 had I seen Americans as united as they were around the Apollo program.

Space, of course, is important to our national security. It is important to our economic prosperity. It is important to our technological advancement.

I ask people how often they benefit from space, and the response usually averages, 6 percent say they benefit from space once a year; 4 percent say they benefit from space once a month; and only 2 percent say they benefit from space once a week. And we won’t even go to once a day.

I guess those people have roosters in the backyard that give them their wake-up calls. They don’t pay any attention to the images we have from the satellites. I guess they don’t use cell phones, or use credit cards, or even make cash transactions, because those are all satellite-linked.

Ultimately, space is important to us for the ultimate survival of our species. Neil deGrasse Tyson lectured our Science, Space, and Technology Committee several years ago on the benefits of space. And while he was here, he gave a lecture for staff and Members over at the Jefferson Building at the Library of Congress; very well-attended and well-taken.

During his presentation, he mentioned that space is the only thing we have left in the universe that doesn’t have a starting point or a starting time. That work led to being hired by Martin Marietta, a Denver-based aerospace company.

Charlie and his family were living temporarily in the boardinghouse on the history-making night of the Moon landing. Charlie’s companion was an Amish gentleman who turned to him and asked if he thought the astronauts were really going to land on the Moon. Charlie said, yes, because he worked at a place where they made the rockets that helped to get them there.

Charlie was a physicist who remembers, as a 19-year-old, President John F. Kennedy issue his challenge to America to go to the Moon. And after graduating and getting married, Charlie landed a job with the Hughes Corporation in Los Angeles for a starting salary of $3,000 a year. He worked on Surveyor, a NASA-funded program that sent unmanned rockets to the Moon. That work led to being hired by Martin Marietta, a Denver-based aerospace company.

When the Deseret News asked readers to answer whether they remembered where they were on July 20, 1969, they received responses from several Utahns who were serving in the military wrote in, and one wrote: ‘I was returning from a night mission over the Ho Chi Min trail in Laos as a pilot of a B-57. I remember it was a clear night with a full Moon, and my navigator and I were listening to the radio broadcast on Armed Forces radio at 30,000 feet. Later, my wife and I had Neil Armstrong to dinner in Paris while I was Air Attaché to France.’

Another wrote: ‘I was at building No. 9 Manned Spacecraft Center, now called the Johnson Spacecraft Center, in Houston. NASA set up big TV screens and chairs for NASA employees and their friends. I remember the pride and accomplishment of the mission and celebrations from NASA employees and contractors. I remember it like it was yesterday.’

Apollo 11 and the Moon landing was a jewel in NASA’s crown at the time. It set the foundation for many future American achievements in space.

Sixteen years later, Utah Senator Jake Garn became the first sitting Member of Congress to fly in space when he flew aboard the space shuttle Discovery as a payload specialist in 1985.

The closest I have gotten to the Moon—to date, anyway—is when, as the mayor of Salt Lake County, I placed the Clark Planetarium Moon rock into the Zion’s Bank vault for safekeeping. The planetarium was undergoing renovation, and we transferred our precious Moon rock under the watchful eye of law enforcement to its secure and temporary home.

Our planetarium is one of many across the country that benefits from Apollo’s legacy and brings science education to life for students in Utah. Those students will soon hopefully become the engineers, the mathematicians, and the explorers who will chart the next five decades of space research and space travel.

Here in Congress, I am proud to sit on the Science, Space, and Technology Committee, where we continue our forebears’ legacy of bipartisan investment in our Nation’s space program. Apollo inspired a generation of scientists and Americans, and some day soon, my four children may become space travelers when space tourism becomes a reality. They will stand on the shoulders of the thousands of dedicated men and women who dreamed the impossible dream and then made it a reality.

THE PUSH FOR SPACE IS ABSOLUTELY CRITICAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Waltz) for 5 minutes.

Mr. WALTZ. Mr. Speaker, 50 years ago this week, a group of astronauts launched from Kennedy Space Center in Merritt Island, Florida, embarking on a journey of discovery into uncharted territory.

July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong took one small step for man and one giant leap for mankind on the surface of the Moon. Armstrong and fellow astronaut Buzz Aldrin spent 2 1/2 hours collecting samples and taking photographs. Critically and importantly, they left behind an American flag and some of the most famous footprints in history, sealing America’s place as the leader of the space renaissance in the international space race.

Our journey to outer space was born out of a desire to discover, but that wasn’t the only reason we went to the Moon. We also went to the Moon to compete with Russia, specifically regarding protecting our Nation’s security. That competition still exists today, but it is even more serious now because of our economic and military dependency on space and because, in addition to Russia, we now have China explicitly stating its intent to surpass America as the leader in space.

Russia and China have made it clear their intention is not just to explore space, but to prepare themselves for conflict. Russia and China both know that they will never be able to take us on tank to tank, carrier to carrier, plane to plane, so they have decided in the global logistics, our telecommunications systems all depend on space. If we don’t prepare ourselves, our very way of life will be at significant risk.

Our banking, our financial institutions, our global logistics, our telecommunications systems all depend on space. If we don’t prepare ourselves, our very way of life will be at significant risk.

Our banking, our financial institutions, our global logistics, our telecommunications systems all depend on our space. If we don’t prepare ourselves, our very way of life will be at significant risk.

Our banking, our financial institutions, our global logistics, our telecommunications systems all depend on space. If we don’t prepare ourselves, our very way of life will be at significant risk.
As a member of the House Armed Services Committee and the Science, Space, and Technology Committee, I see how national security and space intersect every day. And as a Floridian, space is something that is absolutely part of who we are.

It is, of course, Florida’s Kennedy Space Center that our astronauts launched to the Moon, and I know that Florida will be a big player when we go back to the Moon once more in 2024 and as NASA, the U.S. military, and American industry work together to maintain American leadership in space. In my district in northeast Florida, we are very fortunate to have companies that once again will assemble the lunar landers to help NASA get back to the Moon.

So looking back on this historic Moon landing 50 years later, I hope we will all remember what an incredible moment this was for our country. Our American values and American ingenuity brought us to new worlds not just on Earth, but beyond. It is an honor to celebrate these accomplishments here today, and it is absolutely critical that we continue exploring and we continue innovating.

But it is also critically important that we fully understand that our competitors seek to supplant our leadership role in space, and they are not in line with our values. We cannot and will not allow that to happen.

CELEBRATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE LAUNCH OF THE “APOLLO 11”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Texas (Mrs. FLETCHER) for 5 minutes.

Mrs. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, this week we celebrate the 50th anniversary of the launch of Apollo 11, the spacecraft that sent Americans to the Moon. On July 16, 1969, before a crowd of 40,000 spectators at Rice University in Houston, President John F. Kennedy announced the ambitious goal of sending Americans to the Moon before the end of the decade.

On July 20, 1969, we got there. Neil Armstrong became the first human to set foot on the surface of the Moon, and 19 minutes later Buzz Aldrin became the second.

More than 600 million people around the world watched Armstrong take his first step live on television. The first words they heard on the Moon were “Houston, Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed.” followed by the observation, “That’s one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.”

As a native Houstonian and the Representative of Texas’ Seventh Congressional District, these historic words are seared in my mind. The Apollo 11 mission was more than just an amazing technological advancement, it brought Americans from all backgrounds and beliefs together toward a common goal and a common purpose. It made people a part of something bigger than themselves, perhaps bigger than they had ever imagined.

More than 400,000 Americans worked to make the Apollo 11 mission a success, many of them based at the Johnson Space Center in Houston. From the support crew to the flight directors at mission control, to the space suit designers, to the human computers, engineers, and scientists who designed and built the hardware and software, to the custodial staff who worked in the building to make sure they had a place to work, and to every small job in between, Apollo 11 was the result of a historic collaboration across our country.

The resounding success of the Apollo program served to captivate the world’s attention and cemented America’s status as a leader in scientific discovery and technological innovation, and it taught us what we as Americans can do, what we can accomplish when we work toward a common goal. What we learned from this mission is that, when we do that, even the sky is not the limit.

AMERICA MUST REMAIN THE LEADER IN SPACE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. WEBER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. WEBER of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 mission.

In his famous 1961 speech at Rice University in Houston, Texas, President John F. Kennedy challenged the Nation to put a man on the Moon by the end of the decade. President Kennedy spoke these now famous words: “We choose to go to the Moon in this decade and do other things, not because they are easy, but because they are hard.”

President Kennedy understood the importance of American leadership in space. He added: “Whether it will become a force for good or ill depends on man, and only if the United States occupies a position of preeminence can we help decide whether this new ocean will be a sea of peace or a new, terrifying theater of war.”

Military professionals will tell you that whoever occupies the high ground in a conflict has the upper hand. Folks, there is no higher ground than space. America must remain the leader in space. It is just that simple.

In 1969, the crew of Apollo 11 fulfilled that very mission to put a man on the Moon. Today, we honor not only the astronauts Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins, but all of the great NASA men and women who worked together to make the Apollo 11 mission a success.

We have learned about the hidden figures of the Apollo program, those behind the scenes. Here are some more.

At the height of the Apollo program, according to one estimate, 1 in 50 Americans were working on some aspect of the program. This included some 400,000-plus full-time employees.

The astronauts knew their lives depended on these people, most of whom they never knew nor would they ever meet, that were performing difficult tasks on a very demanding schedule.

Over 530 million people around the globe watched the telecast of Armstrong’s first steps from 250,000 miles away. Not only did Apollo 11 show the world what America can achieve, but it displayed a beautifully unique ability of human space exploration, its capacity to stimulate, to inspire, and to cause people to reach deep inside to find the very best they had to offer.

American greatness is a compilation of these things. On that day, we spread our message of American greatness around the globe. Fifty years ago, the politics of a volatile world order compelled us to the challenge of space competition. The world has changed, and in today’s uncertainty, one thing remains certain: the importance of American preeminence in space.

Now, we turn our focus to a new challenge. We will send Americans back to the Moon’s surface by 2024. This time, to stay. It has been a long time since man walked on the Moon. In 2024, we will make history once again when the first woman walks on the Moon.

With our great NASA’s lead, the private and public sectors are coming together to accomplish this great and very difficult task. Through their partnerships, American excellence is leveraged across the board. We are building sustainable, reusable systems that will not only take us to the Moon but leapfrog us to Mars.

Our great NASA is bringing Democrats and Republicans together in what I call American togetherness.

Thank God for NASA.

CELEBRATING HIDDEN FIGURES OF “APOLLO 11” MISSION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. WILSON) for 5 minutes.

Ms. WILSON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, 50 years ago, the Apollo 11 mission sent a crew of pioneering women on a journey of incredible significance. All were astronauts.

Symbolically, it was a representation that with enough hard work, dedication, and will, America could achieve the seemingly impossible.

The mission left lasting imprints, from the eternal footprints left on Tranquility Base to the values engrained into an entire generation.

The Moon landing inspired all who watched it to believe in the power of innovation, dedication, and most especially, unwavering courage. But today, I want to draw attention to some of the unseen heroes of the Apollo 11 mission. I will refer to them as the “hidden figures.”

Ms. Katherine Johnson, Ms. Dorothy Vaughan, and Ms. Mary Jackson have only recently been recognized for the incredible work they put into the mission that defined generations, thanks to the film “Hidden Figures.”

Only Ms. Johnson is still alive today to receive our overdue gratitude for these women.

Before we began carrying calculators in our pockets, Ms. Johnson, Ms. Vaughan, and Ms. Jackson did manual calculations of astronomical problems using only pen and paper.

The stakes were incredibly high. The working conditions were segregated and tense. Yet, these women produced work at a caliper high enough to send men to the surface of the Moon.

That is what I call some Black girl magic.

Ms. Johnson, Ms. Vaughan, and Ms. Jackson each defied intense discrimination and an overwhelming adversity. Their lifetimes were metaphorical Apollo missions: astronomically successful despite all odds.

But they were hidden figures. We did not know them.

I am proud to recognize them today on the floor as women of distinction with unrivaled talent. I am proud to know that their contributions are finally being recognized.

To very personal note, as a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., I am proud to call them my sisters.

Their legacy of Black female excellence and newfound recognition will undoubtedly inspire a generation of young people to pursue STEM careers, despite whatever odds may be against them.

Black girls can learn about the Apollo 11 mission and know that there are heroines who look just like them. First-generation college students, low-income children, and children of color can discover how it is possible to defy the odds with STEM.

To help make this possible, my long-term friend and colleague from Florida (Mr. Posey) and I worked together to pass H.R. 2726, the Apollo 11 50th Anniversary Commemorative Coin Act, which honors the Apollo 11 crew, NASA scientists, engineers, astronauts, and Americans from every State who made the mission possible. The bill supports college scholarships for future scientists, engineers, and astronauts. Surcharges from the sale of the coins will help promote STEM education, space exploration, and scientific discovery.

I am grateful that throughout my lifetime, these hidden figures have finally been brought into the light and celebrated in the manner they have deserved since 1969. They are no longer hidden. Now, we all know them, celebrate them, and thank God for their brilliance and magnificent contributions.

HONORING ABE BROWN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Posey) for 5 minutes, and Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember the life of Mr. Abe Brown.

In 1984, Mr. Brown was the first African American to be elected Glynn County coroner. This was not only important to Brunswick, but he was the first African American coroner in the entire State of Georgia.

His service to the Brunswick community was exceptional. He made it a point to treat each case like it was his own family.

Before his remarkable 8 years of public service, Mr. Brown owned a funeral home in town and built friendships with nearly everyone residing in Brunswick. Citizens there remember him as loved by anyone who came in contact with him and as a man who had a special way of encouraging people to work together.

Mr. Brown passed away earlier this year at the age of 77. This past June, the Brunswick City Commission named a park in his honor.

I am proud to recognize him today.

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Ms. Shakesha Deal for her dedication to her country, her community, and her own education.

A native of the First Congressional District of Georgia, Ms. Deal is currently serving Afghanistan as part of the Georgia National Guard. However, while at home, she works as a police officer with the Savannah Police Department.

Through all of her hours spent keeping the Savannah area a safe place to live, as well as her time dedicated to serving the United States Armed Forces, Ms. Deal has been studying for the last 7 months to earn a degree in criminal justice administration from Columbia College.

In late June, her fellow soldiers and police colleagues took part in something truly unique: a graduation ceremony in Afghanistan.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Ms. Deal on her graduation. She is an inspiration to all of us, and I wish her the best of luck with her career.

REMEMBERING DR. RAYMOND ALLEN COOK

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember the life of Dr. Raymond Allen Cook, who passed away on June 29 at the age of 99.

Dr. Raymond Allen Cook dedicated his life to sharing his love for English language literature with not only countless students in the State of Georgia but also students all over the world. He taught for over 30 years at multiple Georgia universities and even traveled the world to share his knowledge when he was appointed as a Fulbright lecturer in American literature at the University of Shiraz in Iran.

Highly accomplished in academic circles, he published numerous papers and even five books on some of the authors who developed the canon of our language’s literature including Walt Whitman, Geoffrey Chaucer, Jane Austen, and more.

Through all of this, he never forgot where he came from. In 1964, Dr. Cook returned to his and my alma mater, Young Harris College, to serve as its president.

I am thankful that both the State of Georgia and also my alma mater, Young Harris College, could partner with a scholar as distinguished as Dr. Cook for the last 30 years.

His family and friends will be in my thoughts and prayers during this most difficult time.

SALUTING CHIEF ANTHONY TANNER UPON HIS RETIREMENT

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Chief Anthony Tanner, a police officer with the Savannah Police Department during different points of his career.

Of the 12 men who have been chiefs of police in Waycross beginning in 1906, Chief Tanner has held the position longer than any of them.

His work in his community doesn’t stop there, though. Outside of the police force, he continued dedicating time to the community through the Exchange Club, Red Cross blood drives, the Domestic Violence Task Force, and much more.

Chief Tanner retired from the Waycross Police Department on June 28, and his work in the First Congressional District of Georgia will be deeply missed.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Chief Tanner on his retirement.

RECOGNIZING STEARNS COUNTY FOR WATER CONSERVATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Emmer) for 5 minutes.

Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Stearns County Soil and Water Conservation District for receiving the Source Water Protection Award for 2019.

Each year, the Minnesota Department of Health and the Minnesota Rural Water Association recognize water suppliers that conserve resources. This year, the Stearns County facility demonstrated its ability to go above and beyond to help save energy for the community.

Over the course of the year, the Stearns County facility updated its wellhead protection activities and ensured its inventory met contamination standards. Because of practices like these, the constituents of Minnesota’s Sixth Congressional District have access to safe drinking water.

Additionally, these efforts worked to conserve water, saving money for the county and bettering the environment.
The Stearns County Soil and Water Conservation District has worked closely with grant programs to raise money for its efforts. The citizens of Stearns County have better access to the services they need because the district has put conservation and health first.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate the Stearns County Soil and Water Conservation District for this outstanding recognition. We are grateful for its work to help our district and the great State of Minnesota.

RECOGNIZING DAN STOLTZ
Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Dan Stoltz for receiving the HERBIE Award.

This award from the St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce recognizes individuals that exemplify the traits inspired by its namesake, Herb Brooks: humanitarian, enterprising, resilient, bold, inspirational, and ethical.

Herb Brooks remains a Minnesota legend. As coach of the United States Olympic men’s hockey team in 1980, he led them to their gold medal victory with his focus, determination, strong work ethic, and inspirational leadership.

As CEO of Spire Federal Credit Union and in his everyday life, I can attest that Dan Stoltz channels the energy of his Minnesota legend, Herb Brooks.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Dan for this well-deserved award. Our community appreciates the generosity he provides every day.

CONGRATULATING THE SCHLICHTINGS, FARM FAMILY OF THE YEAR
Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Schlichting family for being named the University of Minnesota 2019 Farm Family of the Year.

The Schlichting farm is a third-generation farm owned and operated by the Rick Schlichting family. His grandparents homesteaded in Rice, Minnesota, in the 1920s.

Since then, Rick has taken pride in the land his family has worked and cared for by restoring some of the land to what it was like when his grandparents first settled the property. In fact, close to 70 acres have been reverted to original prairie.

The Schlichtings are dedicated to stewardship. In 2016, they were honored with the Outstanding Conservationist Award by the Minnesota Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

I am honored to represent farm families like the Schlichtings. They have dedicated themselves to preserving the land while doing their part to feed the world.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Rick and his family for being named Farm Family of the Year.

REMEMBERING GABRIELE GRUNEWALD
Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember the incredible life of Gabrielle Grunewald, who passed away far too early.

Taken by a disease that has impacted the lives of nearly everyone we know, Gabrielle was known by the world as an Olympic runner, star track athlete for the University of Minnesota, and someone who fought cancer every step of the way.

She used her story and her struggle to share a message of hope. She did this through the Brave Gabe Foundation, which supports research on rare cancers.

A cure is vital, but private and public dollars are necessary to fund this work, which is why we have and should continue to fund the National Institutes of Health.

We did not have a cure in time for Gabrielle or for all the other loved ones we have already lost, but if we continue to support medical research and innovation, a cure will be found, and we can save future generations from this awful disease.

THANKING BRENT HALES FOR HIS SERVICE AND LEADERSHIP
Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to thank Brent D. Hales for the service and leadership he provided to the University of Minnesota’s Extension program. I am also grateful for his participation on my Agricultural Advisory Committee.

Brent’s service to agriculture in Minnesota has been amazing. His work to foster community development and innovation in agricultural production has served our State well.

We have been lucky to benefit from his expertise and commitment. While we will miss him, I want to congratulate Brent for his new role as Penn State’s director of extension. As he transitions out of this service to the University of Minnesota on July 31, we wish him the best.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Brent, and congratulate him on his new opportunity.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF “APOLLO 11”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. ADERHOLT) for 5 minutes.

Mr. ADERHOLT. Mr. Speaker, it is no secret that it was 50 years ago this week that three brave Americans stepped foot on the Moon. When we look at our children’s toys today, it is amazing that they contain more data processing power than the systems which actually operated the Apollo vehicles 50 years ago.

These three American astronauts—Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins—could not really know whether they would return. They were willing to serve their country and proud for America to be leading the world in space.

But even if our space program got a strong jump-start, even because of the Cold War, this mission was also about the spirit and the need to explore. The whole world was eager to hear news of the mission. No matter what may happen in the future, this would be the first time human beings would step foot on a world other than our own home. Neil Armstrong’s description of that mission was a leap, and it is as fitting today as it is instructional now.

I am excited, as many of my colleagues and many Americans are, about the President’s call to accelerate our plans to land again on the Moon by 2024. I am very proud of the role that my home State of Alabama has played in the development of the most powerful rockets, the Saturn family. You can still see today, if you go down to Huntsville, Alabama, a real Saturn V rocket suspended horizontally at the U.S. Space & Rocket Center in Huntsville.

Likewise, I am proud of the Marshall Space Flight Center, including the Michoud Assembly Facility, as the designer and the builder of the Space Launch System. This will be the most powerful rocket in the world and is approximately 90 percent finished. The American taxpayers own it, and they will benefit from it as a national asset. It is the successful combined work of product companies and suppliers from virtually every State in the Nation.

The Saturn V rocket was able to execute the Apollo mission in one launch because of the rocket’s third stage propelled lander and the reentry vehicle to the Moon’s orbit.

Similarly, the SLS exploration upper stage, referred to as the EUS, will enable a payload delivery to the Moon’s orbit, including the Orion capsule, of 45 metric tons, three to four times greater than any other launch vehicle currently in use or close to completion. It can have that EUS capability ready by 2024, but we can only have that ready if we move ahead this year with that goal.

Systems like the SLS and Orion inspire innovation, and maybe one day other rockets and capsules will surpass them. But to reach the Moon by 2024, we need to stay focused and complete these nearly mature systems.

Some have said in recent years about our going to the Moon: We have been there. We have done that. With all due respect, I would disagree. But this new mission to the Moon, I would say: Go there, but don’t stop there.

Sustainability offers many future benefits, but let’s not get distracted for this first human return to the Moon. Let’s reach the peak. Let’s make that landing.

And as we ponder the future of the Moon, let’s look up again and set a date, a real mission date, for setting foot on Mars.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF “APOLLO 11”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BALDNER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BALDNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 50th anniversary of spaceflight Apollo 11 that first landed humankind on the Moon. As we all know, aboard this mission were American heroes: Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, Jr., and Michael Collins.

When Neil Armstrong first set foot on the Moon on July 20, 1969, he secured a place in a long, proud line of Ohioans who have performed aviation firsts. Beginning with the Wright brothers and continuing today with the fine scientists at NASA’s Glenn Research Center, generations of Ohioans have consistently led and driven innovation in our country. For centuries, Ohio has been on the forefront of new technologies and always pushed the boundaries of mankind in the name of exploration.

I would be remiss if I did not personally thank those brave astronauts who led the Apollo 11 mission 50 years ago for putting their lives on the line in service to their country. When Commander Armstrong took his first steps onto the Moon, surely, he couldn’t have known that a 7-year-old boy from his home State of Ohio was watching in amazement with his whole life ahead of him.

May our country always remember how profound the Apollo 11 Moon landings were. May we always honor the crew members, backup crew, support crew, capsule communications, and flight directors who made this mission a success and may the United States of America forever remain not only the first, but the principal nation of space exploration.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF “APOLLO 11”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California (Ms. HILL) for 5 minutes.

Ms. HILL of California. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 series.

When I think of Apollo 11, I am reminded of a feeling that many of us have forgotten in this current time of divisiveness and anger. Apollo 11 reminds me of an America that pulled together; a time when America prioritized impossible dreams, because impossible dreams were what built this country; a time when we understood that achieving those impossible dreams was a way to make every child feel prouder to be an American and every adventurer feel that our Nation loomed larger than we thought it could.

As Americans, we work hard, we get better, then we become the best. At its core, space exploration and the Moon landing were rooted in the American Dream, and I believe that dream is still worth dreaming today.

Fifty years later, the Apollo series and the space exploration of that time remind us that we are part of something bigger than ourselves. I stand here today as a district that is incredibly proud of our contributions to space technology, flight, and exploration. Really, our contributions to bringing that dream to life. My district is home to many of the Edwards Air Force Base workers who are critical to our country’s defense and service. We often say that the American conversation is rooted in the aerospace.

The NASA Armstrong Flight Research Center at Edwards Air Force Base made countless contributions to the NASA human spaceflight program during the sixties, from the X-15 rocket plane hypersonic research program to the lunar landing research vehicle, both of which had a direct impact on the Apollo missions. In fact, the first flight of a lunar landing research vehicle was in 1964 at Edwards Air Force Base. These vehicles were later used at Ellington Air Force Base to train the Apollo flight crew, including Neil Armstrong.

For my constituents and so many others across the Nation, the celebration of the Apollo mission is the celebration of our history. It is the celebration of people like my grandfather, who worked on the thrusters for the lunar landing module. From 1961 to 1970, he was involved with Apollo service module rocket development, qualification, and production.

In talking with my grandfather, I have seen how much of a catalyst this work is for our identity as Americans. The Moon shot gave so many of us something to believe in, and that belief paid off in its enduring impact to scientific discovery and commercial applications. We need to realize that triumph in this generation of Americans.

My work on the House Armed Services Committee has also shown me that the military and our defense capabilities simply don’t work any longer without a mastery of space. Our adversaries are on their way to the Moon, and we have no choice but to be there, as well. That is a vital part of how we maintain our status as the global leader that we have always been. To keep our strongest position, we have to have a plan and a strategy for space.

In doing so, we will inspire a generation of STEM workers, many of them young women, people of color, and first-generation college students, to be part of something great, something that defines our identity as Americans. We will stimulate our economy, innovate products that stretch beyond use in space, and contribute to our comfort and well-being here in America.

On the 50th anniversary of Apollo, I am honored to champion a program that unlocked so much American greatness. I am even more honored to have been a part of a district that is incredibly proud of our contributions to space technology, flight, and exploration. Really, our pledge of allegiance

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately noon today. Accordingly (at 11 o’clock and 25 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at noon.

PRAYER

Reverend John P. Fitzgibbons, S.J., Regis University, Denver, Colorado, offered the following prayer:

Most Holy God, please unite and guide the leaders in this House to recognize, to speak for, and to safeguard the vulnerable and the marginalized in all corners of our Nation.

Help us to have the courage to champion the rights of dreamers of all colors, all contexts, and all ages, especially the young, whose ardent desire is to know and to build a better society.

Help us to illuminate the path and to advocate for our country’s learners and their teachers so that access to education and the power of knowledge will continue to produce servant leaders committed to democracy, equality, and justice.

Help us to unite our hearts and our minds, to share freely of our gifts, to reflect critical thought and responsible action on moral and ethical issues, and to be men and women for others that both You and our constituents expect and deserve.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof. Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. GARCÍA) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. GARCÍA of Illinois led the Pledge of Allegiance.

WELCOMING REVEREND JOHN P. FITZGIBBONS, S.J.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the gentleman from California (Mr. CISNEROS) is recognized for 1 minute.
There was no objection.

Mr. CISNEROS. Madam Speaker, I am delighted to welcome to this Chamber Father John P. Fitzgibbons, who delivered today’s opening prayer.

A native of Omaha, Nebraska, he entered the Wisconsin Province of the Society of Jesus in 1973, and he was ordained as a priest in 1985.

Like all good Jesuits, Father Fitzgibbons has dedicated his life to God and to education. He currently holds bachelor’s degrees in philosophy and English, to master’s degrees in theology, a master’s in English, as well as a Ph.D. in English.

He had stints teaching at Creighton and Marquette Universities, and he served as the dean of the College of Professional Studies at the University of San Francisco. He would later return to Marquette University to serve as the associate provost for faculty development. In 2012, he was appointed the 24th president of my alma mater, Regis University.

Madam Speaker, I thank Father Fitzgibbons for his 26 years in education, his 34 years as a priest, and his 46 years of dedication to God. It has been a tremendous pleasure having him here today.

CELEBRATING THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF GRANDMONT ROSEDALE DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

(Ms. TLAIB asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. TLAIB. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of the Grandmont Rosedale Development Corporation as they celebrate 30 years of service to the residents of northwest Detroit.

Grandmont Rosedale Development Corporation was formed in 1989, initially as a business association for the five neighborhoods it represents. However, its focus from business to neighborhood preservation. From then on, Grandmont Rosedale Development Corporation has been active in reducing neighborhood blight, promoting sustainable economic development, and increasing homeownership.

Beyond that, they run a number of community-based programs, including a neighborhood coworking space, farmers market, and vacant property task force to help improve the quality of life for all the residents in the city of Detroit.

Grandmont Rosedale Development Corporation’s holistic approach to maintaining its neighborhoods is the true definition of community development. Its diverse staff and the countless volunteers put their heart and soul into the community, and that shines through in every project.

I am honored to serve this community, and I commend Grandmont Rosedale Development Corporation on the occasion of its 30th anniversary.

RECOGNIZING MURRAY-CALLOWAY COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(Mr. COMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Murray-Calloway County Chamber of Commerce for their designation as the 2019 National Chamber of the Year.

This national honor was awarded at the ACCE National Convention in Long Beach, California, on July 15. This is the second win for the Murray-Calloway County Chamber, the first being in 2012.

The National Chamber of the Year Award recognizes the area’s business leaders whose community contributions are unparalleled. ACCE only invites a limited number of the chambers to apply for the recognition process. It considers the chambers’ structure, finances, member engagement, services, and programs upon honoring a chamber. The chamber’s efforts have benefited not only the Murray-Calloway County area, but positively impacted communities throughout western Kentucky.

I would like to thank President Michelle Bundren and Board Chair LaCosta Bean-Hays, as well as the directors, staff, and chamber members for their unwavering dedication to the betterment of local industry.

I look forward to future accomplishments of the chamber and am proud to represent the thriving business leaders in Murray and Calloway County, Kentucky.

HONORING THE LIFE AND LEGACY OF MICHAEL GONZALEZ

(Mr. GARCÍA of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GARCÍA of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I would like to honor the life and legacy of one of my constituents and a friend for over 50 years, Michael Gonzalez. He was a professional engineer, deeply involved in many Chicago community issues and affairs.

As one of the founding members of the Illinois Latino Legislative Caucus Foundation, Michael paved the way for younger Latinos to follow. In his role as vice chair, Michael was instrumental to the growth of the foundation for 17 years. His invaluable work for our community ensured that hundreds of talented Latino students received scholarships to college.

Michael’s dedication and unwavering commitment to the foundation did not go unnoticed. He was often referred to as “the heart and soul” of the foundation. Most notably, he never received a dollar for the thousands of hours he dedicated to the foundation.

Michael Gonzalez leaves a legacy of engagement that continues to shape the foundation. His passing is a true loss for the foundation and the community. His presence in the community will be missed by many.

I extend my condolences to family, neighbors, and friends.

MADE IN AMERICA SHOWCASE

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the importance of American manufacturing and to highlight Pennsylvania’s contributions.

This week, the White House hosted its annual Made in America showcase, displaying products from all 50 States. Businesses of all sizes were invited to participate in the event to highlight the strength, creativity, and ingenuity of American manufacturers.

I am pleased that Pennsylvania’s 15th District represented the Commonwealth for 2 years in a row.

In 2018, BWP Bats, a baseball bat company from Brookville, traveled to the White House to share their products with attendees. This year, Zippo lighters, which are manufactured in Bradford, Pennsylvania, McKean County, represented the Keystone State.

Businesses involved in manufacturing are vital to Pennsylvania’s economy. Advanced manufacturing ranks among the Commonwealth’s top five industries, and nearly 1 in 10 people across the Commonwealth work for a manufacturer.

A strong manufacturing sector helps America stay competitive, and supporting legislation that strengthens the industry bolsters our Nation’s potential for a prosperous future by keeping good-paying, family-staying jobs right here at home.

HEALTHCARE IS PERSONAL

(Ms. HILL of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. HILL of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to give voice to what so many individuals and families in my community and across the country are feeling: deep anger at the threat of losing access to their healthcare.

First, I have to condemn the developments in the Ninth Circuit case that state title X providers can no longer lawfully refer women for abortion services.

Healthcare is personal. The conversations that take place between a woman and her doctor cannot be policed by Congress. These rules are damaging to... providers and dangerous—possibly even deadly—to patients. What is worse is that it is not just reproductive care. This administration is using stacked courts to dismantle the healthcare system that gives coverage to millions of Americans, including 60,000 individuals in my district, without even the vaguest plan to replace it.

My colleagues and I are working every day to lower the cost of prescription drugs and to ensure that we have a healthcare system that works for everyone, while this administration tries to rip coverage way. As Members of Congress, we owe it to our communities to fight back against these rollbacks at every step, and we will.

HOLLAND VIRTUAL TECH HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAM

(Mr. HUIZENGA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Holland Virtual Tech High School.

This program was brought to my attention by a gentleman named Louie, who talked about it and the positive impact it had on his family during one of my telephone townhalls recently. Since 2015, the program has served as an alternative credit recovery school on the campus of Holland High School in Holland, Michigan.

The fully accredited program offers a unique online learning environment designed for students who struggle in a traditional classroom setting or have fallen behind in their schoolwork due to unforeseen circumstances. Together, teachers, guidance counselors, and support staff at the school work with the students to develop an individualized graduation plan.

Through these efforts, nearly 400 students have graduated from the program. That represents countless lives positively impacted, even more doors opened, and endless opportunities created for these young men and women.

Upon completion of the program, students receive a Holland Public Schools diploma that meets all requirements of the Michigan Merit Curriculum. The program has played an integral part in increasing the overall Holland High School graduation rate by 5 percentage points over the last 2 years.

Students who graduate are equipped with the skills to successfully transition into their postsecondary lives, whether that be continued education, apprenticeships, or directly into the job market.

Mr. Speaker, I thank everyone who is involved with Holland Virtual Tech High School. Keep up the great work.

FREE TRADE AMONG FREE PEOPLE

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, America’s economic history is rooted in the exploitation of labor. It is a lesson worth remembering, but its history is not one of yesteryears alone.

Our existing trade deals impose an economic model built on cheap labor, where profits matter more than people. This system undermines the rule of law with a global race to the bottom.

Trade is not just about goods. It is about people. It is about communities. It is about workers.

In the agriculture sector alone, one can argue that our continent has gone from slavery to serfdom. That is why, today, I am introducing the Independent Labor Secretariat for Fair Trade Deals Act.

We need a trade model that respects workers and holds employers and workers accountable, with strong mechanisms for labor enforcement.

My bill would establish an independent labor secretariat to monitor and enforce transnational labor issues, with a wages and standards working group with expert wage panels to study the impacts on wages, benefits, labor rights, working conditions, and inequality.

The bill also requires that any trade agreement eligible for expedited consideration include enforceable labor standards and protections.

Mr. Speaker, let us dignify the workers who sustain us.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 582, RAISE THE WAGE ACT

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call upon House Resolution 492 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 492

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 582) to provide for increases in the Federal minimum wage, and for other purposes. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. The amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Education and Labor now printed in the bill, modified by the amendment printed in part A of the report of the Committee on Education and Labor now printed in the bill, is in order; that upon adoption of the resolution it shall be in order to consider in the House the bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. All points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended, are waived. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, as amended, and on any further amendment thereto, to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Education and Labor; (2) the further amendment printed in part B of the report of the Committee on Rules, if offered by the Member designated in the report, which shall be in order without intervention of any point of order, shall be considered as read, shall be separately debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question; and (3) one motion to recommit with or without instructions. The SPEAKER pro tempore, The gentleman from New York is recognized for 1 hour.
Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, on Monday, the Rules Committee met and reported out a rule, House Resolution 492, providing for consideration of H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act, under a structured rule.

The rule provides 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the minority leader. The Committee on Education and Labor. The rule makes in order one amendment, debatable for 10 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the Raise the Wage Act gradually increases the Federal minimum wage to $15 an hour by 2024, thereby fulfilling a promise to the American people that with hard work comes, at a minimum, a livable wage. Not a wage with eroded purchasing power or a wage that keeps workers from rising for their families, but a minimum wage that empowers Americans and gives them a fighting chance at economic mobility.

It has been over a decade, the longest stretch since the establishment of the Federal minimum wage, since this body voted to increase the minimum wage. This is a great disservice to the American people, and I am thankful to Chairman SCOTT for making a gradual increase of the Federal minimum wage a top priority of his Committee on Education and Labor, of which I am a proud member.

In my home State of New York, we have one of the highest minimum wages in the country. I was proud to support gradually increasing the minimum wage to $15 an hour while I served as majority leader in the New York State Assembly, and I look forward to doing the same here today to ensure all Americans working full-time can live safely and sustainably above the poverty line.

The benefits of increasing the minimum wage have far-reaching impacts throughout our society. The Raise the Wage Act could increase wages for nearly 23 million women throughout our society. The Raise the Wage Act could increase wages for nearly 23 million women.

It empowers women, narrowing the gender wage pay gap through pay increases for nearly 23 million women across America. It would also lift the families of at least 1.3 million Americans, 600,000 of whom are children, out of poverty. Let’s just think about that for a moment: 1.3 million Americans who are working hard to make ends meet but struggle below the poverty line because, for years, Congress let the real value of their hard-earned dollars erode.

This isn’t a handout for them. This is a fair and overdue adjustment for employees who deserve to earn a livable wage.

Recently, a friend of mine, who is the administrator at Temple Beth Kodesh in Rochester, New York, where I worked to put myself through college, sent me a copy of my pay stub from 1976.

At the time, I made the minimum wage, $2.30 an hour. People might argue or debate whether or not I was worth $2.30 an hour, but that was the minimum wage in 1976. Adjusted for inflation, that would be $10.35 in 2019 dollars.

Had the minimum wage kept pace with inflation, a worker who puts in 2,000 hours annually would make $20,700 today, but because the Federal minimum wage is still at $7.25, or more than $2 an hour lower than if the minimum wage was adjusted for inflation since that time, the same full-time worker today earns $14,500, a more than $6,200 erosion of purchasing power since 1976.

Even if you adjust for inflation since 2009 and look again at a 2,000-hour work year annually, the difference is $2,800.

When you are living paycheck to paycheck, as many minimum wage workers do, an additional $2,800, or at least $2,800 annually, can make a significant difference in your financial stability.

Gradually raising the minimum wage to $15 an hour doesn’t just benefit those earning minimum wage. It boosts the local economy in communities across this country.

A gradual increase to $15 will accelerate economic growth by putting money in the pockets of workers who want—and now can afford—to spend money beyond needs. Whether it be at the community grocery stores or family-owned shops, by spending money back in their local economy, they contribute to a positive economic cycle.

From narrowing the gender pay gap and lifting families out of poverty to strengthening local economies, the Raise the Wage Act has clear benefits we should all get behind. I am proud to be a cosponsor of this significant piece of legislation and urge all my colleagues to join me in supporting its passage.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I thank Mr. MORELLE for yielding the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, today we are considering H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act. This legislation would raise the Federal minimum wage to $15 an hour, a 170 percent increase over the current rate of $7.25 an hour.

An increase of this magnitude could harm American businesses, could harm American consumers, and certainly will harm American workers.

The legislation does not consider the labor market. It disincentivizes job growth and it has the potential to leave nearly 4 million workers unemployed.

Let us consider the data. The Congressional Budget Office recently released a report on the effects of mandating a Federal minimum wage in the United States.

The report explains how more than doubling the minimum wage would increase unemployment up to 4 million individuals. Four million workers would have to be laid off to increase wages for a little over 1 million people.

That means, for each person lifted out of poverty due to a wage increase, another three individuals will lose their jobs. Why?

I ask my colleagues: Is this a fair tradeoff? This bill creates false hope for low-wage earners who will be counting on a wage increase and keeping their job. But what if they don’t keep their job? Then it is just a tax.

In addition, those who are most likely to lose their jobs are likely to be minorities, women, and our young people.

Increasing the Federal minimum wage to $15 an hour would have unintended secondary effects, particularly increasing the risk of inflation. As wages increase, the cost of doing business will rise as well. Businesses will be forced to pass on these increased costs by raising the prices of goods and services. As the costs are passed on to the consumer, who will be hurt the most?

It is those vulnerable populations at the lower wage scale that this bill supposedly helps: the Americans who live in poverty.

Congress cannot, in good conscience, pass this legislation, at least, without understanding the full effects. January, the American Enterprise Institute released a report detailing how the costs of goods have changed over the past 20 years, controlled for inflation. This study included everything from televisions to furniture to housing and more.

Unsurprisingly, the products with the most government involvement—let’s use as examples healthcare and education—saw the most rapid increase in costs. Is it the intent of the majority to increase the price of many consumer products and services beyond what would be natural economic inflation?

Congress must also consider how this legislation will impact different parts of the country in different ways.

Many urban areas have already raised their minimum wage to similar levels. By the end of this year, New York City and San Francisco will have minimum wages of $15 an hour. Seattle’s two-tiered minimum wage system goes even further by requiring small employers to pay $15 an hour and large employers to pay $16 an hour.
However, in many parts of the country, they simply cannot handle the burden of a $15-an-hour minimum wage. Rural areas with small mom-and-pop businesses and significantly lower costs of living do not have the same needs or purchasing priorities as urban dwellers.

A Federal minimum wage should be a floor for all workers, not the floor for those working and living in the heart of the most expensive areas of the country.

Even the progressive think tank, The Third Way, lobbied for a regional minimum wage in place of an across-the-board increase.

If this legislation goes into effect as currently written, it should be renamed the “Rural Jobs Killer Act” because this one-size-fits-all policy would accomplish just that.

Another consequence of this legislation will be the pricing-out of individuals who seek to enter the workforce.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, nearly half of low-wage earners are under 25 years of age. Increasing the Federal minimum wage to $15 an hour will make it harder for these individuals to compete, meaning that many will not be able to find work.

As a teenager growing up in Denton, Texas, I worked a lot of different jobs. I baled hay, delivered pizzas, and mowed lawns to earn money for my education. Passing this legislation will eliminate such opportunities for the young people of today.

With this concern in mind, I offered an amendment to the Raise the Wage Act to protect opportunities for entry-level workers. My amendment would ensure that those individuals with less than a year of work experience have the opportunity to compete in the job market by allowing an entry-level wage for workers with less than 1 year’s experience.

The initial wage would be set at the current minimum of $7.25 an hour for the first year. Following that year, the Secretary of Labor would be authorized to update the entry-level minimum wage using a market-based analysis. The Secretary would be tasked to update this wage every 5 years to keep up with the changing labor and business environment, instead of a heavily-handed government mandate.

Young Americans and new workers deserve a chance to gain experience without being priced out of the job market by more experienced job seekers.

The final downside of a significantly higher Federal minimum wage is the risk this action has on the rapid automation of many jobs throughout the economy. Automation in stores, vehicles, and assembly lines could make many of our everyday tasks more efficient and profitable. However, new technologies will likely displace those who are not trained for other occupations.

There is a compelling commercial that one of our fast-food franchises has today that details the path of a young woman who gets her first job at one of these restaurants. Then, it sort of details her progress in every stage along the way. They say her name, and she gets the job. She gets promotions. She gets into school. She is the first in her family to walk across the stage at graduation.

But wouldn’t it be ironic if, instead of that young woman’s name, they would have a kiosk from the same fast-food franchise. The kiosk is actually advancing through the university, the artificial intelligence university. Eventually, the kiosk may sit in the Speaker’s chair one day.

Look, that is not the future we want. We want to empower our young people. We want to be able to give them work experience and allow them to work and grow.

It is a beautiful commercial. I think they have done a wonderful job telling that experience. But ironically, I think of that now when I go into that same restaurant. I am able to order a cup of coffee off the menu and never have to interact with an actual human at all.

Increasing the minimum wage by 10 percent across the country will expedite this process quicker than the pace of innovation ever would.

My fellow Texas Representative, freshman Representative Ron Wright, brought this concern to the attention of his colleagues at the House Education and Labor Committee. During consideration of this bill, Mr. Wurzli offered an amendment that required the Government Accountability Office to study the impact of the minimum wage on the loss of jobs due to automation and would stop the minimum wage hike if this job loss rose to half a million jobs. That seems reasonable.

Unfortunately, our colleagues on the other side of the aisle in the Education and Labor Committee rejected his concerns and it failed.

With that said, I commend my Democratic colleagues for their efforts to support the disability community with the inclusion of H.R. 873, the Transformation to Competitive Employment Act.

Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Department of Labor is able to grant employers 14(c) certificates. These certificates give employers the legal right to pay disabled employees’ wages below the minimum wage, officially called subminimum wages. This unfair policy enables individuals with disabilities to be exploited under the guise of integrating them into society.

However, a 2001 GAO report found that only 5 paid disabled workers at workshops that used the 14(c) certificates found employment outside of these facilities. Little to no training took place, and there was minimal integration into our modern society. Some workers, unfortunately, were paid as little as 4 cents an hour.

This issue was brought to my attention by a constituent of mine, Blake Pyron. Blake is a hardworking Texan. He owns his own business in Sanger, Texas.

Blake happens to have Down syndrome. He was the first person with Down syndrome in the State of Texas to start his own business and he has been an advocate for those with disabilities for years. Blake is proof that being differently abled does not change the value of one’s life or one’s labor.

Congress should continue to allow real wage growth to take place through a thriving labor market. By avoiding burdensome Federal mandates, by reducing expenses, by reducing red tape, Americans will see gains in productivity and wages allowing for more employment, not less. We don’t have to look very far to see an example of this. Over the past 2 years, the United States has seen unprecedented low levels of unemployment and record-high rates of wage growth. Due to comprehensive tax reform passed by the last Congress in the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, American companies have been able to reinvest in their employees and projects like never before.

Due to the Trump administration’s effort to reform and rein in overbearing and obstructive Federal regulations, the economy is no longer being held back.

With 7 million unfilled jobs in the United States today, the best way to raise wages is to let the power of capital work and allow companies to compete for workers. I urge opposition to the rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I appreciate hearing from my distinguished friend and colleague on the Rules Committee, Mr. Burgess. There is a lot to unpack from what he said. Let me make a few points before I yield to my colleagues on my side of the aisle.

First of all, as it relates to the economic numbers, the picture that Mr. Burgess painted is outdated. What it doesn’t take into consideration is the full picture here, which is the question of, if you are going to establish as a matter of public policy that there ought to be a minimum wage throughout this country, you do so recognizing that that minimum wage ought to continue to keep pace so that it doesn’t get eroded over time. I will come back to that in a minute.

I want to remind the gentleman that this change alone would lift 1.3 million people out of poverty—600,000 of whom are children who live in poverty—even though they might work 2,000 hours a year, what we consider full-time, full employment.

It is extraordinary. The savings alone to the government for people who are no longer in poverty and who might rise out of the need for public programs would be significant. Thirty million Americans benefit from the legislation that Mr. Scott has advanced.
Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes for the purpose of response.

The gentleman, Mr. MORELLE, was not here in 2007, the last time the minimum-wage vote was taken. The Speaker of the House was the same Speaker of the House that we have now. The minimum wage was raised. I don’t know if the gentleman remembers what happened in the year and a half following that, but job losses in this country were staggering. I am not saying it was a one-to-one relationship, but it certainly set the stage. The economy may have already been softening, but it really did accelerate the job losses that occurred in the recession of 2008.

Now, the gentleman correctly points out that 1.3 million people would get a raise. That comes at the expense of 4 million people who would see their employment eliminated by raising the minimum wage. Is that really the direction we want to go?

His jurisdiction has raised the minimum wage. Any jurisdiction that I represent is free to raise the minimum wage to whatever level it wants. A city in my district may say that it is not going to negotiate with a contractor that pays less than $15 an hour. That is fine. That is its job. That is its prerogative. It may do so, but it will find itself in competition with other jurisdictions that perhaps will not be so onerous.

Look, I was an employer not too terribly long ago, and I recognized, in the full-employment economy of the 1990s, that if I posted a job, the most entry-level job in my medical practice, for a minimum-wage hire, I was wasting my money. No one was going to respond to that ad because no one worked for minimum wage in the late 1990s during the tech boom. Everyone had jobs that paid higher than the minimum wage. That should be our aspirational goal, to have an economy that pays more than what a baseline economy would pay.

I sat on the Joint Economic Committee for the first several years of the Obama administration. It was a difficult time for my friends and colleagues, Christina Romer and Mr. Summer would tell us that the country’s best days were behind us.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I will admit I think this is the first time I have heard that the great crisis of 2007–2008 was caused by or a contributing factor was the increase in the Federal minimum wage from $5.85. That sort of ignores the problems in the housing industry, credit default swaps, and a whole host of things in the financial community, not to mention what happened in the automotive industry. So this is the first time I have heard that theory promoted by anyone, and I think that varies dramatically from what history will write about 2007 and 2008.

Nonetheless, I do want to just correct a few things that I thought I heard my distinguished friend say.

First of all, the 1.3 million people who will receive a raise, that is not what I said nor is it what CBO said. 1.3 million people will be out of poverty. It will be a raise for 27 million Americans. So that is the right number. It is not 1.3 million; it is almost 30 million Americans.

I just note that nowhere in the CBO does it talk about 4 million people being displaced. What it says is that there will be zero to 3.7, a two-thirds chance that will happen. The median loss will be 1.3 million. So nowhere is there 4 million.

But, again, the point here that I think we should take from this is, using the logic that has been posited by my friend and colleague, you could argue that, using that logic, there would be no minimum wage. Just let the States do whatever the States choose to do, localities do whatever localities choose to do. That is not the public policy decision we made in 1938, and we continue to have fidelity to this day and this time and place.

Now, there may be people who disagree with that who think there ought not to be a Federal minimum wage at all. I guess that is certainly their right to disagree and make that argument. But the most important thing here is that, if we are going to establish this—which we on this side of the aisle certainly believe in the Federal minimum wage—if you are going to allow it to continue to function without the erosion of inflation and the loss of purchasing power, making adjustments—which I think is one of the things that most advocates for this bill is that there may be other changes in time to wage rates, etcetera, under law—this will establish, for the first time in Federal law, a wage inflation adjustor each year so that we will stop, for the first time since we initiated the minimum wage, the erosion of purchasing power, and we won’t need to wait 10 years.

This is the longest period of time, as I mentioned in my opening comments, the longest period of time since the establishment of the Federal minimum wage, that we have waited to make those important wage adjustments.

I would just note that, while I was not here and I was laboring in the State legislature in New York creating what I think was good economic policy, I noted that the Committee on Education Labor, during the intervening time while my friends were in the majority, not only did they not attempt to raise the minimum wage, they did not hold a single hearing on the erosion of the purchasing power of the minimum wage, which at the time was $7.25 and remains, to this date, $7.25.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR).

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, corporate America and Wall Street are awash in profits and American workers haven’t had the benefit of a Federal minimum wage increase in over a decade, while the prices of everything have gone up—medicine, housing, food, cars. A recent study found there isn’t a single State where American workers are earning enough to live. In addition, the Committee on Education Labor has allowed the wages of hardworking Americans to fall behind the average of the world economy.

While many States and cities have raised their own minimum wage requirements, millions of Americans are stuck at $7.25 an hour.

What does this really mean? A person working full time for minimum wage takes home an annual salary of just a bit over $15,000 a year. With inflation, these workers have effectively had their wages cut by an astonishing 17 percent.

That is why I rise today in support of the Raise the Wage Act, a bill that will gradually raise the minimum wage to $15 by 2025, lifting 27 million American workers out of poverty, give roughly 40 million Americans a raise—nearly a third of our workforce—and stimulate local economies as Americans have more money to spend.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentlewoman from Ohio an additional 15 seconds.

Ms. KAPTUR. Such a raise would put $3,200 a year in the paychecks of more than 128,000 workers just in northern Ohio.

Mr. Speaker, the Raise the Wage Act will dramatically improve the lives of millions of hardworking people and families and communities across our country. Let’s come together and really help the American people who are working and pass this much-needed legislation without delay.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds just to read from the Congressional Budget Office report.

The paragraph that says, “Effects of the $15 option on employment and income,” ends with the sentence “a reduction of 3.7 million workers.” And there is also the little item of an $8.7 billion loss in family income.

I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BROOKS).

Mr. BROOKS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, socialist Democrats support open borders and the firing of 3.7 million American workers.

The way to raise wages is simple: America must stop importing cheap foreign labor that takes American jobs from American workers and suppresses the wages of hardworking Americans who need that money for their families.

The question is: Do we care enough about American family incomes to secure our borders and stop the flood of illegal alien labor that suppresses American wages? Of course not. Instead we have a 10-year sustained path, that we have waited to make those adjustments.

Well, that all sounds fine and good. Socialist policies always have a cost, and according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, those who seek an imperial decree for a $15-per-hour minimum wage increase.

You heard right. The policies being advocated today really are advancing the firing of as many as 3.7 million American workers from their jobs. That is likely firing the entire population of the State of Oklahoma.

Mr. Speaker, if the advocates of this legislation really cared about American workers, they would not fire them; rather, they would help secure our borders, save American jobs, save American incomes, and, as an added bonus, help prevent the deaths of over 30,000 Americans who die each year because of America’s porous southern border.

But that is not what the advocates of this legislation prefer. Rather, out of a lust for political power, they prefer open borders and the firing of 3.7 million American workers.

Mr. Speaker, I say yes to border security; I say no to killing jobs; and I say no to this job-killing socialist legislation.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I note that using that logic, pay cuts are those who seek an imperial decree for a $15-per-hour minimum wage increase.

I rise in strong support of H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act. It has been more than a decade since working people got a raise in this country. Americans are working harder than ever, and labor productivity is overperforming expectations.

However, the profit of this increased productivity is not being felt in the checkbooks of working people. In fact, American workers have experienced a erosion of income in the United States by people at the lowest end of the economic scale. It is an opportunity for us to think about a path to citizenship, to end the challenges faced by so many employers who seek good, hardworking workers.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. CICILLINE), my good friend and a distinguished gentleman.

Mr. CICILLINE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his remarks today.

we know that when workers earn more, they spend more money.

While the top 1 percent of Americans continue to amass Gilded Age amounts of wealth, working men and women have been left behind. It is time to reaffirm the American dream and reengage working Americans and pass this critical legislation. Americans deserve a raise, and that is what this bill does.

Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD a letter signed by many LGBTQ organization and allies organizations in strong support of this legislation.

July 17, 2019.

Dear Member of Congress: We, the undersigned, write to express our strong support for the Raise the Wage Act (H.R. 582). As lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer (LGBTQ) and allied organizations, we believe raising the minimum wage is a critical LGBTQ issue. Raising the federal minimum wage would benefit LGBTQ people by helping to reduce poverty and increase economic security for LGBTQ people and their families.

Because of discrimination in employment, housing, education, and other areas, LGBTQ individuals are less likely to be housed, employed, and poor than the general population. Nearly 40 million workers, including LGBTQ people, would receive increased wages. In light of the disproportionate rates of poverty among LGBTQ people, passing this measure is a critical priority for our community.

The Raise the Wage Act would raise the federal minimum wage to $15.55 this year and increase it gradually over the next six years until it reaches $15 an hour. After 2025, the minimum wage would be adjusted annually to keep pace with growth in the typical worker’s wages. In addition, the Act would phase out the outdated subminimum wage for tipped workers, which has been stagnant at $2.13 since 1991. It would also sunset the ability for employers to pay a subminimum wage to workers with disabilities and phase out the subminimum wage for workers under the age of 20.

An increase in the federal minimum wage would expand the LGBTQ community, especially its most marginalized members. Incomes would rise above poverty level for nearly 30,000 people in same-sex relationships. Minimum wage workers would decrease poverty by almost 50% among female same-sex couples and by 35% among male same-sex couples.

Transgender people would be particularly impacted by this bill. Almost one-third of transgender people live in poverty, which is more than twice the rate of the U.S. general population.

The bill would also have a profound impact on LGBTQ youth, who make up between 30% and 40% of the LGBTQ youth who are likely to be homeless and poor than the general population. Nearly 40 million workers, including LGBTQ people, would receive increased wages. In light of the disproportionate rates of poverty among LGBTQ people, passing this measure is a critical priority for our community.

Additionally, the Act will have enormous impacts on LGBTQ people of color and LGBTQ working class women. We write to express our community identity as people of color. Under the Act, 40% of Black workers and 34% of Latino/a workers will benefit. Women account for nearly 56% of the workers benefitting from an increased minimum wage. Women also account for 5% of the country’s tipped workers, who are more likely to live in poverty than the rest of the workforce. LGBTQ women are more likely than their non-LGBTQ counterparts to receive public assistance, be unemployed, and be near or under the poverty level.

Critics of the bill have argued against raising the federal minimum wage, proposing instead to increase the minimum wage gradually by state or region. However, a minimum wage of $15 by 2025 is not unrealistic in any part of the country. All communities have a strong incentive to support the Act because they are experiencing a housing affordability crisis in part due to flat incomes for low- and moderate-income workers in those communities.

Additionally, the Act’s plan to phase in the $15 wage over six years allows for lower-wage states and regions to adjust to the new wage. Opponents of the bill also contend that small businesses do not benefit from raising the wage. However, 61% of American small business owners support raising the minimum wage.

For these reasons, we support the Raise the Wage Act and urge you to consider the merits of raising the minimum wage to $15 for the LGBTQ community. LGBTQ workers need jobs that allow them to have security and take care of themselves and their families.

Respectfully,

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I, first, just want to remark that—I think, the last 11 months are the last figures I saw—over the last 11 months wage growth in this country has increased more than at any time in recent memory.

Wage growth is a lagging indicator, but it is happening, and that is a good thing, and we should celebrate that. There would be no reason to put the brakes on that that I can see.

I think we should be encouraged that that is happening, and I don’t think we should be doing things to the economy that would be detrimental and reverse that trend.

But let me just say at this point, if we defeat the previous question, Republicans will immediately bring up H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act, or Cadillac Tax Repeal Act, and include the text of H.R. 1398, the Health Insurance Tax Relief Act, and H.R. 2207, the Protect Medical Innovation Act, or the medical device tax repeal.

Legislation in previous Congresses to repeal the Cadillac tax has gathered strong support and brought employers and labor unions together in their efforts to eliminate this tax.

The Cadillac tax is calculated only based on insurance premiums, it could unfairly target those already struggling with higher healthcare costs and affect middle-income workers, including teachers and nurses, due to the continuing rise of health insurance costs.

H.R. 748 would repeal this tax in its entirety.

I would also like to note my support for the repeal of the medical device tax and delay the healthcare tax as part of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.

H.R. 748 is an important piece of legislation that would permanently repeal ObamaCare’s 40 percent tax on employer-provided health insurance, commonly referred to as the Cadillac tax.

Ending the Cadillac tax will provide important relief to both employers and employees and ensure employers can remain leaders in utilizing new technologies to reduce healthcare costs and ensure better patient care.

However, this bill doesn’t include repealing other burdensome taxes, like the medical device tax and the health insurance tax. We all know that Americans are facing rising costs and fewer healthcare options. Raising taxes on health coverage would only make matters worse for families, small businesses, and Medicare Advantage enrollees. That is why we should also include a bipartisan provision to provide some relief from the burdensome health insurance tax.

Hoosiers are proud to be leaders in medical innovation, with more than 300 medical device manufacturers in my State, that support nearly 55,000 good-paying jobs. However, after ObamaCare’s medical device tax took effect, the medical technology industry lost almost 29,000 jobs nationwide from 2012 to 2015, according to the Commerce Department’s data.

Medical devices have changed the way we think about healthcare. New technologies diagnose illnesses earlier, lowering the impact of care on a person’s daily life. All these notable gains will be lost as the medical device tax is reinstated. By defeating the previous question, we can revisit this job- killing tax as well.

It is critical that we repeal all three of these burdensome taxes before they go back into effect. Doing so will help lower premiums, improve access to care, and boost American manufacturing jobs.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote against the previous question.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of my amendment in the RECORD, along with extraneous material, immediately prior to the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CUETTLE). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, although the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. WALORSKI) did not actually talk about the minimum wage increase which is before us, I do note that about 40 percent of the workers in her district would be affected by this, with annual average raises of $3,200 a year.

Before I just make a couple of other points, Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD the following letters: The first letter is from the Service Employees International Union, SEIU, and the second is from the Communications Workers of America, both sharing overwhelming support for H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the two million members of the Service Employees International Union (“SEIU”), I write to urge you to vote YES on H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act of 2019, and to vote for the final vote to recommit the bill. At a time when wage stagnation and income inequality hold back our families and our economy, the Raise the Wage Act will begin to reverse this trend by pay broadly across the bottom of the workforce.

It has been more than ten years since Congress raised the federal minimum wage—the longest stretch in history. While wealthy corporations have been handed tax cut after tax cut, working families have been forced to support the Trump tax plan. As a result, one in nine of our nation’s full-time workers struggle to support themselves and their families on wages that leave them in poverty. There is a place in America where a full-time worker making the federal minimum wage can afford the basics.

A $15 federal minimum wage would be life-changing for millions of working families, lifting an estimated 1.3 million Americans out of poverty, and helping to create an economy that works for everyone, not just the wealthy few. We urge you to reject a provision that poll after poll confirms widespread support among Americans for this proposal.

The overwhelming share of low-wage earners would unabashedly benefit from a $15 minimum wage. This bill is particularly critical for women who make up nearly two-thirds of the workforce earning the federal minimum wage or just above it, as well as Latino and black workers. Currently, black workers are significantly overrepresented in states where the minimum wage has stayed at $7.25 an hour. Many of the same workers with low minimum wages also have so-called “Right-to-Work” provisions that weaken collective bargaining and the voice of working people. These same judicial decisions are also places where voting rights are under attack, Medicaid has not been expanded, and pre-emption laws block many localities from raising the minimum wage.

People like Terrence Wise, a worker at a McDonald’s in Kansas City, Missouri, have been on the front lines fighting for a $15/hour minimum wage knowing it would be transformative for him and his family. In his own words: ‘Just as fast food workers two or more jobs cause pay is so low. What if every U.S. worker just had to work one job, and that was enough to make ends meet? I want to know that when I get my paycheck, it’ll be enough to pay the rent, feed my kids and keep the lights on—and maybe even a little extra, like enough to take my girls out to ice cream. It’s not a lot to ask of Congress, and it would change the lives of millions of workers like me. It would give us a fair shot at the American dream we all hear so much about.

We urge Congress to heed the call to action from workers like Terrence Wise, and raise the wage so that millions of working people can be paid enough to lead a decent life, provide for their family and build a better future. SEIU strongly urges you to vote for H.R. 582, and to vote NO on any Republican Motion to Recommit. We will add votes on this legislation and the Motion to Recommit to our legislative scoreboard. If you have any questions, please reach out to Jaya Chatterjee.

Sincerely,

MARY KAY HENRY, International President.

COMMUNICATIONS WORKERS OF AMERICA, July 11, 2019.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the officers and 700,000 members of the Communications Workers of America (CWA), I am writing to urge you to vote in favor of H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act of 2019, and to vote for the final vote to recommit the bill. At a time when wage stagnation and income inequality hold back our families and our economy, the Raise the Wage Act will begin to reverse this trend by pay broadly across the bottom of the workforce.

It’s been a decade since the federal minimum wage has increased. Meanwhile, the cost of living has continued to increase for working Americans. For many Americans, working 40 hours or more a week is not enough to support themselves and their families, including restaurant workers, retail store employees and bank workers are among those who work full time for some of the most prestigious corporations, but still earn poverty level wages. It’s time for an economy that works for working families and especially for the people who work full time but who earn poverty level wages.

If enacted, the legislation will raise the federal minimum wage to $15.55 this year and increase it over the next five years until it reaches $15 an hour in 2024. Raising the minimum wage to $15 an hour will give roughly 40 million workers a pay increase, which is nearly 30% of the workforce. After 2021, the minimum wage will adjust annually to keep pace with growth of inflation. In addition, the legislation will phase out the subminimum wage for tipped workers, individuals with disabilities and workers younger than 20 years old.

All workers deserve to earn a living wage so they can live with dignity and respect. It is time Congress takes action to raise the wages of these low income workers and ensure the economy works for everyone, instead of those in the 1%. Therefore, I urge you to support H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act of 2019. CWA will include votes on this bill and any amendments that would undermine the bill in our Congressional Scorecard. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

SHANE LARSON, Director of Legislative, Political and International Affairs, Communications Workers of America (CWA).

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD letters from the American Association of University Women, the Patriotic Millionaires, the American Association of University Women (AAUW), I urge you to vote for the Raise the Wage Act (H.R. 582) when it comes to the House floor, vote yes to raise the wage and oppose any harmful amendments and any possible motion to recommit. The Raise the Wage Act (H.R. 582) is critical legislation which would gradually raise the federal minimum wage from $7.25 to $15 per hour and then require that the minimum wage increase be based on changes in the median wage. It would also end the tipped minimum wage and prohibit the use of subminimum wages for employees with disabilities.

Today, millions of women live in poverty because our federal minimum wage is inadequate for ensuring the economic well-being... of workers and their families. The federal minimum wage is currently only $7.25 per hour and just $2.13 per hour for tipped workers. Women comprise a majority of the low-wage workforce, and African American women and Latinas are significantly overrepresented in the low-wage workforce. Nearly two-thirds of minimum wage workers in the United States are women, as are two-thirds of workers in tipped jobs. Some workers with disabilities are paid a subminimum wage through certificates issued by states and the Department of Labor. This is not even close to a living wage, which is necessary to lift workers out of poverty. A woman with two children working full-time at minimum wage earns a yearly salary of $14,500, $5,000 below the poverty line.

Congress must take action to increase the minimum wage, passing the Raise Wage Act of 2019 (H.R. 582). If enacted, this legislation would raise the federal minimum wage to $8.55 this year and increase it over the next several years until it reaches $15 an hour, phase out the outdated subminimum wage for tipped workers, and also sunset the federal minimum wage for workers with disabilities. Women’s overrepresentation in low-wage jobs is a significant factor contributing to the gender pay gap. Currently, women working full-time, year-round are paid 80 cents for every dollar paid to men. The pay gaps have grown even wider for women of color. African American working women and Latinas, respectively, earn 61 and 53 cents on the dollar as compared to non-Hispanic, white women. Women make up nearly 58 percent of the workers who would benefit from a $15 minimum wage, making this bill instrumental for helping to close the gender wage gap. According to recent estimates from the Economic Policy Institute, increasing the federal minimum wage to $15 by 2024 would give more than 31 percent of all working women a raise, including 41 percent of African American working women, 38 percent of working Latinas, 29 percent of white working women, and 18 percent of Asian working women. Even the Congressional Budget Office’s analysis of the impact of the bill shows that workers overall will be better off and have higher annual earnings on average.

Raising the minimum wage is one action that Congress should take to ensure the economic security of families across the country. I urge you to vote for the Raise the Wage Act. When it comes up for a vote in the House floor for a vote and oppose any harmful amendments and any possible motion to recommit. Cosponsorship and votes associated with this bill may be scored in the AALU Action Fund Congressional Voting Record for the 118th Congress. Please do not hesitate to contact me or Anne Hedgepeth, Director of Federal Policy, if you have any questions.

Sincerely,
DEBORAH J. VAGINS
Sen. Vice President,
Public Policy and Research.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: I am writing on behalf of the Patriotic Millionaires organization to urge you to support the Raise the Wage Act (H.R. 582). Our members are deeply committed to raising the federal minimum wage to $15 an hour, and we hope that you will take the time to approve this legislation and support the Raise the Wage Act. We hope you will join us in supporting this critical legislation.

While we understand that legislation is always changeable until it is voted on, for us this policy makes a few “red lines” as follows: $15 per hour by 2024 (One Fair Wage or subminimum for tipped workers or anyone else)

Indexing: “No” on the vote to recommit.

Within that framework, we will gladly support whatever piece of legislation you all decide to advance.

Our members believe that current levels of economic inequality pose an existential threat to the nation, and that wealthy Americans have an inescapable responsibility to engage in the public life of the commons. That is why we were such an early adopter of the $15 wage, first endorsing it in 2013. We will fight urgently and publicly for this critical policy. Once the House passes the bill, we will formally launch a robust public education and advocacy campaign that will continue through next year and into the 117th Congress.

As business leaders and investors, our members are well acquainted with building profitable business models and plan to spend a good deal of time and effort focusing on outreach to the business community, particularly owners of small and medium sized companies. It is for that reason that we have sought to frame the argument for a $15 wage based on wages as the “cost input” will change at the same rate for each of them simultaneously.

From a macroeconomic point of view, 70% of the American economy is based on consumer demand. It is only logical that putting more money in the hands of more consumers will be a net positive for any business. Picture a bar on a Saturday night filled with patrons. Should the owner of the bar be more concerned about how much money all of those potential customers have to spend, or the higher wage he is paying the single bartender who is serving them? It’s simple math.

And to the small (but very vocal) group of business owners who insist their businesses will go under if they are required to pay a living wage, we have a simple message. If you cannot afford to hire an employee when you have a livable wage, you cannot afford to hire an employee. You may have concerns that a higher minimum wage will lead to greater automation. But as I stated before, the choice before you is this bill or no bill. You might not believe that $15 an hour for the entire country is the best option, but surely you must see that it’s far enough in many others challenges the credibility of the argument.

Furthermore, the regional approach puts the American worker at a disadvantage. It is time for the entire country to adopt a $15 wage. That floor for everyone should be $15. A study by the Economic Policy Institute shows that by 2021, there will be no county in the country where a person can support themselves on less than $15 an hour.

In terms of expecting different things from different localities, $15 is already not enough in several areas of the country, but we are not demanding $25 or $30 an hour in those areas. To say that $15 is “too much” in some places is simply not true. It is a starting place. Right now, $15 is “far from enough” in many others challenges the credibility of the argument.

Lawmakers in the House have a simple choice to make—do something, or do nothing. Move the minimum wage to $15 an hour, or keep it at $7.25. TheRaise the Wage Act has 203 voting cosponsors, and needs 218 votes to pass. The bill and some other more perfect bill, the choice is between this bill and no bill. While there is another minimum wage bill that has generated support, it has the threshold of support required to pass. Nor should it. With all due respect to Third Way and other “centrist” think tanks, the so-called “fiscal approach” will not solve the problem.

First, there already is a regional approach to this issue in that states and localities are responding to free to lower the wage. But if the federal wage if their economies and politics support it. The purpose of federal legislation is to set a floor for the entire country, to ensure that every American worker has a fair minimum wage. That floor for everyone should be $15. A study by the Economic Policy Institute shows that by 2021, there will be no county in the country where a person can support themselves on less than $15 an hour.

We recognize that you might disagree with our assessment, that there might be other approaches you think are more appropriate. But as I stated before, the choice before you is this bill or no bill. You might not believe that $15 an hour for the entire country is the best option, but surely you must see that it’s better than $7.25 an hour. We’ve reached a critical point where inaction is simply no longer an option.

The Patriotic Millionaires believe that a fair minimum wage is a fundamental building block of an economy that works for all Americans, not just the ultra-wealthy. We believe that everyone deserves the right to be able to make a living wage, and that this fair minimum wage is $15 an hour. We believe that wealthy Americans have an inescapable responsibility to engage in the public life of the commons. That is why we were such an early adopter of the $15 wage, first endorsing it in 2013. We will fight urgently and publicly for this critical policy.

To be clear, the choice is not between this bill and some other more perfect bill, the choice is between this bill and no bill. While there is another minimum wage bill that has generated support, it has the threshold of support required to pass. Nor should it. With all due respect to Third Way and other “centrist” think tanks, the so-called “fiscal approach” will not solve the problem.

Dear Representative:

On behalf of our 3 million members and the 50 million students who support us, I urge you to VOTE YES on H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act. Votes on this issue may be included in NEA’s Report Card for the 116th Congress.

This legislation would benefit working people across our nation, including NEA’s education support professionals—the school bus drivers, cafeteria workers, custodians, and other members of school communities who are the first ones to arrive in the morning, and the last to go home at night. Their work is tremendously valuable, and the support they provide students often goes well beyond their job titles. Yet, they struggle to make ends meet.

The Raise the Wage Act would:

- Benefit all low-wage earners, not just teenagers or restaurant workers;
- Benefit nearly one-third of manufacturing workers, one-fourth of health care workers, one-fifth of construction workers, and one-sixth of educators;
- Reduce poverty and income inequality by raising the total annual income of the lowest-paid workers; and
- Help to close racial earnings gaps.

As you know, the federal minimum wage has not increased since 2009. During that time, about 20 states have raised their minimum wages to levels that the federal government has not even attempted to match. So, will improve the circumstances not only for the workers themselves, but for their family members and communities. Please VOTE YES and Raise the Wage.

Sincerely,

Hilary O. Shelton,
Director, NAACP Washington Bureau & Senior Vice President for Policy and Advocacy

Re: NAACP strong support for H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act

U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

Dear Representative:

On behalf of the NAACP, our nation’s oldest, largest, and most widely-recognized grassroots-based civil rights organization, urge you to vote for and support through passage H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act. People of color, women, families and too many others have been left behind by our economy and our policies far too often for far too long. Adopting the Raise the Wage Act would mark a crucial step toward ensuring we can all work toward greater equity, dignity, and a living wage.

The Raise the Wage Act will make significant contributions in the economic security of millions of American women, men, and families by raising the federal minimum wage from $7.25 to $15 an hour by 2024, then indexing it so that it continues to rise along with wages overall. H.R. 582 will also end unfair current exclusions for tipped workers, people with disabilities, and youth so that they too, can benefit from a decent minimum wage.

The NAACP has a long and strong history of supporting federal laws that improved the lives of hard working Americans, and ensuring that all people are covered. From the Fair Labor Standards Act to the very first federal minimum wage bill in 1938, we were active supporters of a fair day’s wage for a hard day’s labor. We continue to advocate for an increase in the buying power of the minimum wage to keep up with the cost of living in the United States, and that minimum wage. If the federal minimum wage is working men and women, are able to keep their families out of poverty.

Thank you for your consideration of our position. If you are a member of the House of Representatives, please support this bill.

Sincerely,

Hilary O. Shelton,
Director, NAACP Washington Bureau & Senior Vice President for Policy and Advocacy

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, one additional point that I wanted to make to you and your colleague who serves the residents of the 6th District of New York, Mr. GOLодаE. I mentioned earlier, the Republican concerns with this bill is another partisan political priority that really has no chance of becoming law.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a “no” vote on the previous question, on the underlying measure, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to spend some time on the floor last night, my distinguished colleague from Texas, though we disagree strongly about this.

I would just once again reiterate that the CBO estimate on this is nowhere near 4 million jobs lost. That is not mentioned anywhere in the CBO report. It talks about a range from zero to 3.7 million. The median is 1.3 million.

But, again, this is as much a question of values and what we stand for and a moral imperative as it is for statistics, because the statistics would argue for it.

1.3 million Americans would be lifted out of poverty the moment we pass this and this becomes law. Nearly 30 million Americans would see their annual wage increased, in some cases dramatically. And this, as I indicated earlier, makes certain that, as a matter of public policy, we make certain that there is no erosion of the purchasing power of the minimum wage because of the indexing on this.

I really feel, Mr. Speaker, that those are the statistics that we ought to be mindful of, not just the worst possible, which is overstated by my colleague across the aisle.

There should be, Mr. Speaker, no place in this great Nation where a minimum wage employee working full-time cannot afford the basic essentials.

The work we are doing here today does not dictate a one-size-fits-all model for every State. It simply creates a floor, a floor that is important, a Federal standard that says, if you work full-time in this country, if you put in the effort to earn for yourself and your family, you will achieve, as the President said, if you afford the basic necessities of life.

I believe this bill is just; I believe it is moral; I believe it is long overdue;. and I look forward to supporting its passage.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank my colleagues for their words of support for H.R. 582, the Raise the Wage Act. I would especially like to thank Chairman Burgess for his leadership and his commitment to this effort, and Chairman McGovern of the Rules Committee for his work to move this significant legislation to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a “yes” vote on the rule; I urge a “yes” vote on the previous question.

The material previously referred to by Mr. Burgess is as follows:

At the end of the resolution, add the following:

Sec. 2. Immediately upon adoption of this resolution, the House shall proceed to the consideration in the House of the bill (H.R. 748) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the excise tax on high cost employer-sponsored health coverage. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. An amendment in the nature of a substitute consisting of the texts of H.R. 748, H.R. 1136, and H.R. 2297, each as introduced, shall be considered as adopted. The bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. All points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended, shall be considered waived. The previous question shall be considered ordered on the bill, as amended, and on any further amendment thereto to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means; and (2) one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

Sec. 3. Clause (c) of rule XIX shall not apply to the consideration of H.R. 748.

Mr. MORELLE. Mr. Speaker, on that point of order, I yield the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes had it.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, on that point of order, I object to the request of the gentleman from New York.

Mr. Speaker, it is no secret that Congress has serious concerns about the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Kingdom of Spain, and the Italian Republic: (1) The transfer of the following defense articles, including defense services and technical data, described in Executive Communication 1427 (EC-1427) submitted to Congress pursuant to subsections (c) and (d) of section 36 of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2776) and published in the Congressional Record on June 3, 2019: (A) Coproduction and manufacture in Saudi Arabia of Paveway Pre-Amp Circuit Card Assemblies (CCA), Guidance Electronics Detector Assemblies (GEDA) CCAs, and Control Actuator System (CAS) CCAs for all Paveway variants. (B) Coproduction and manufacture in Saudi Arabia of Paveway Electronics Detector Assemblies (GEDA) CCAs and Control Computer Groups (CCG). (C) The transfer of up to 64,683 additional kits, partial kits, and full-up rounds. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. MCCAUL) each will control 10 minutes. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include in the RECORD extraneous material on the measure under consideration. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume. Mr. Speaker, the three measures the House will now consider are extraordinary, extraordinary but necessary, because they respond to what I view as an extraordinary abuse of power by the Trump administration, using a phony emergency to override the authority of Congress and push through $8 billion in arms sales.

Each of these resolutions would prohibit a specific license for the export of precision-guided munitions, or smart bombs, and related components. We are focusing on these three licenses because the weapons would be the first ones shipped.

Mr. Speaker, it is no secret that Congress has serious concerns about the Saudi-led coalition’s war in Yemen. The Saudis and their partners and, for that matter, the United States do have legitimate security concerns about the efforts of Iran and its proxies to destabilize the Gulf region.

But as this war has dragged on, it has become clear that the coalition has carried out its campaign with little regard for innocent life: schoolbuses full of children destroyed in a fiery flash, weddings and funerals incinerated with no warning, civilian buildings and communities targeted.

Reckless doesn’t begin to describe it. It is gruesome. It has contributed to the worst humanitarian crisis in the world.

To make matters worse, many of the weapons used in this carnage were built in America, sold by American companies to the Saudis and their partners.

Starting in the last Congress, when the administration told us they were planning to go ahead with another massive sale of offensive weapons to the Saudis and Emiratis, Senator MENENDEZ and I used the tools at our disposal to place informal holds on these transfers. We hoped that the administration would work with us and dial back their plans in these nations to start acting responsibly.

Now, the administration has complained that we stopped these sales from going through for months and months. But, as I said, this was an informal mechanism. The law—and I emphasize it is the law—says that, at any point, if an administration wants to go ahead with a weapons sale, it has to send a formal notification to Congress. That starts a 30-day clock. During that time, Congress can vote to stop a weapons sale.

Did the administration stop us to try to find a way forward? No. Did they send a formal notification, starting the process laid out in the law under which Congress can legislatively block the sale? No.

What did they do? They dug up an obscure provision of the arms export law and declared an emergency to justify moving ahead with these sales.

What does that mean? It means, they went around Congress. It means, they went around the law.

Now, the emergency provision exists in law for a good reason. And if there were a real emergency—if the United States or our citizens or our allies were in immediate danger—we wouldn’t be standing here today. There would be no objection.

But here is the thing, Mr. Speaker. There is no emergency.

Do you know how I know? I know because nearly 2 months down the line, not a single weapon has been shipped. Most of the weapons haven’t even been built. In fact, one of the phony emergency declarations lets the Saudis build new facilities to manufacture weapons in their country, which I only presume would be American manufacturers. Currently building these weapons in the United States would be out of a job.

That is right. Donald Trump declared an emergency to move jobs out of the United States—good manufacturing jobs, the kind Americans fight for. He abused the law to send them abroad.

What kind of emergency requires weapons that will be built months and months down the road? Or requires building a new factory on foreign soil? Especially when the law only gives Congress a 30-day review period.

The answer, Mr. Speaker: a phony emergency. An emergency designed to make yet another end run around Congress, to undermine the separation of powers, to trample on this body’s constitutional duties.

I am sick and tired of it, Mr. Speaker.

The State Department sent an assistant secretary up to the Hill to testify about this fiasco. He told us in the Foreign Affairs Committee that the administration took this brazen action out of respect for Congress’ oversight role. Mr. Speaker, that is really, really hard to believe.

The other body passed 22 bipartisan resolutions that would stop all these sales, going forward. The three measures we are considering today deal with weapons that are already manufactured, sitting in a warehouse, and, if we don’t act, will be loaded onto a ship and sent to Saudi Arabia and the UAE within the next 2 months.

This resolution would prohibit the use of an emergency declaration to move ahead with the transfer of 64,000 Paveway precision-guided munitions, or, as we call them, smart bombs. Sixty-four thousand. Mr. Speaker, which would be added to the stockpile of 58,000 the Saudis previously purchased starting in 2015.

What will all these weapons be used for? No one knows.

If the administration wants to sell these weapons, they should follow the law, not misuse it, and they should come to Congress for its approval.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McCaul. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this dangerous resolution.

Right now, as I speak, Iran is stretching its tentacles of terror across the Middle East.

By aiding the Houthis in Yemen, arming Hezbollah and Lebanon, and supporting the Shiite militias in Iraq and Syria, Iran is a Shia Crescent that can dominate the region. Their goal is to build a strategic land bridge from Tehran to the Mediterranean Sea. If we allow them to succeed, terrorism will flourish, instability will reign, and US allies, like Israel, will be threatened.

One of the ways we can push back against Iran’s murderous aggression is by empowering our partners in the region. Unfortunately, this irresponsible resolution handcuffs our ability to do so.

Specifically, this legislation would prohibit an export license and stop the United States from providing our partners with the arms that they need to defend themselves. This particular license first came before members of the Foreign Affairs Committee in January of 2018. When I became the lead Republican in January of 2019, I reviewed this case and myself, to discuss an appropriate response. He listened to our advice and made a prudent decision to exercise restraint.

The President has made it explicitly clear the United States is not looking for war. The decision to move forward with these arms sales is part of a larger effort to deter Iran. A key part of that effort is to empower greater burden sharing by enhancing the defense capabilities of our allies. These sales provide more options for deterring Iran that do not all depend on U.S. intervention.

I support these sales, even though I do not think that all 22 required emergency certification—this is a point the chairman and I agree on—especially those that will not be ready for delivery until later this year. I support revising the law with Chairman Engel to ensure and enhance the role of Congress in future emergency sales.

I thank the chairman for his bipartisanship work with me on that amendment to the NDAA that was passed by a wide margin.
But I do oppose re litigating prior, lawful sales to partners who face growing threats to their security, which is what today’s resolutions attempt to do.

Mr. Speaker, we face many dynamic challenges. Iran threatens the Middle East. It pursues the annihilation of Israel, and it remains the number one state sponsor of terrorism around the world. That threat is growing, not waning. For that reason, I believe that Members should oppose today’s resolutions.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island, Mr. Cicilline.

Mr. CICILLINE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to support S.J. Res. 36 and the other measures related to arms sales being considered this afternoon. We will prevent three sets of arms sales to Saudi Arabia and the UAE without undergoing the proper congressional notification process.

We are here today because rather than come and make their case to Congress, the administration invented a phone call to bypass the legal process for approving arms sales. There is no justification for this decision, other than the administration knew that these sales would be met with scrutiny from Congress and didn’t want to deal with it.

Well, they were right. Congress is concerned about these proposed sales, and we should not sit back and allow the administration to continue with the charade of claiming an emergency exemption for them. I am glad that these measures of disapproval have bipartisan support and have already passed the Republican-led Senate. I urge all of my colleagues to support them today.

The administration briefed this body on Iran just days before the supposed emergency was declared and never mentioned an emergency. We are supposed to believe that, within a matter of days, the situation escalated so quickly that they were forced to bypass Congress. Most of the weapons included in the emergency sales are offensive weapons, and much of the sale will be delivered months or years from now, further evidence that no emergency existed.

The egregious and legally questionable move to put more weapons into the hands of regimes who are responsible for perpetrating horrific civilian casualties in Yemen comes as no surprise from an administration that has cozied up to the Saudi Crown Prince, even as we have credible evidence that he and his government are responsible for the cold-blooded murder of an American resident and journalist.

Just because you don’t like the process doesn’t mean you get to ignore it. This action has implications far beyond the current sale. If Congress doesn’t reassert our proper role in the process, we risk giving up the authority in the arms sale process entirely.

This isn’t and shouldn’t be a partisan issue. It is our job, as Congress, to represent the American people in matters of war. If we let this action go without a strong congressional response, the repercussions will be wide-ranging and longstanding.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support these resolutions of disapproval and block these arms sales once and for all.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. Miller).

Mrs. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in opposition to S.J. Res. 36. This legislation is bad policy and it sets a bad precedent.

Today, Congress is attempting to block legal U.S. arms sales to strategic partners who face increased threats from Iran and terrorist proxies.

The administration is ensuring that our allies in the Middle East have the capabilities to defend themselves and protect the hundreds of thousands of Americans who live and work in the Gulf states. These allies depend on military equipment from the U.S. to help fight the Islamic State, ISIS, and other threats. If we don’t supply it, they will buy it elsewhere.

Russian arms dealers are already exploiting the reluctance. At this point in history, we need to do what we can to decrease Iran’s influence in the region.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote against the resolution.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Virginia (Ms. Spanberger).

Ms. SPANBERGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S.J. Res. 36, a joint resolution which I am leading in the House.

The evidence is clear: the Saudi Government continues to disregard the vital distinction between combatants and innocent civilians in Yemen.

In February, Congress voted to end U.S. support to the Saudi-led campaign against the Houthis that have left thousands of civilians dead and created one of the largest humanitarian crises in modern times.

However, the President not only vetoed a resolution, but the administration is now ramping up support for Saudi Arabia’s defenses in Yemen, while simultaneously escalating tensions with Iran.

As I made clear during Foreign Affairs Committee hearings in May, not only is the administration trying to sell the Saudis more powerful weapons, but we are giving them the opportunity to build their own. With this latest proposal, the administration would be transferring sensitive technology that would allow Saudi Arabia to manufacture these high-tech weapons directly.

Congress has wrested its authority now as a coequal branch of government. This resolution, which I have led in the House, would make sure that blatantly offensive weapons aren’t sold to the Saudi military under the guise of defensive uses without congressional review.

I am proud to work with my colleagues in the Senate to block the sale of precision-guided munitions, which are some of the most horrific examples of targeted attacks against civilians.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to stand up against this misguided decision, protect our innocent lives and reassert the authority of Congress.

Mr. McCaul. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to go back to when we debated the Yemen resolution, which I thought was, once again, pro-Iran and pro-Houthi rebel, and anti-Israel. It is interesting that after that passed this Chamber, that the Houthis rebelled and celebrated a victory in the Congress, thinking that the American people, through the Congress, actually supported them.

We have to be responsible in our rhetoric on this floor and what we stand for. Many in this body favor asking our partners around the world to step up and do more to help protect our shared interests.

The President has called on other nations to take on the burden of defeating terrorism in the Middle East and has commended our partners for their contributions to regional security. Sharing this burden of collective security interest is really vital to ensuring the United States is not the only one bearing the costs in blood and treasure, for we have borne way too much in the Middle East.

But these arms sales are where the rubber hits the road for burden sharing. We cannot ask for partners to take on additional burdens while withholding from them the tools to do so. We should and do work with our partners to train them to use U.S.-origin equipment effectively and responsibly. This is an ongoing process.

My fear is that if we are unwilling to provide our partners with the means to ensure their own security and to invest the resources to turn them into responsible users, then the United States will find itself as a main guarantor of Middle East security, bearing the costs for the last several decades. We also need to be wary of our partners turning to China and Russia for their defense needs.

Mr. Speaker, it was unfortunate how this plays into the current law, I believe, was utilized for these 22 sales. That is where Chairman Engel and I agree. And that is why we have worked on a bipartisan basis to refine this process for invoking an emergency moving forward. We have the informal congressional review process to try to resolve concerns regarding sales.

But when Members place indefinite holds on sales and place a stop to our ability to share burdens with our partners—for 18 months in some cases—it undermines our entire security strategy and the important bilateral partnerships we worked so hard to establish and grow. For that reason, I oppose the resolution, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, may I ask how much time I have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proof certain defense articles and services, in Northern Ireland, and the Republic of France is prohibited.

37) providing for congressional dis-resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to the committee of the managing member of the minority party for 7 days to report, and if not reported, the joint resolution is considered read.

The question was taken; and the joint resolution is considered read.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 491, the joint resolution is considered read.

The text of the joint resolution is as follows:

S.J. RES. 37

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the issuance of an export license for any of the following proposed exports to the United Arab Emirates, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, or France is prohibited:

(1) The transfer of the following defense articles, including defense services and technical data, described in Executive Communication 1425 (EC-1425) submitted to Congress pursuant to section 36(c) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 277c(c)) and published in the Congressional Record on June 24, 2019, for the transfer of 16,000 GBU–30 Paveway II Kits and the proposed transfer of 16,000 GBU–30 Paveway II Kits.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KINZINGER) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include in the RECORD extraneous materials on the measure under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there a motion to close debate on this measure?

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the second resolution we are debating is very similar to the second resolution we have debated on many of the other Arab Emirates of certain defense articles and services, including defense services and technical data, described in Executive Communication 1425 (EC-1425) submitted to Congress pursuant to section 36(c) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 277c(c)) and published in the Congressional Record on June 24, 2019, for the transfer of 16,000 GBU–30 Paveway II Kits and the proposed transfer of 16,000 GBU–30 Paveway II Kits.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentle-

man from New York (Mr. ENGEL) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KINZINGER) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include in the RECORD extraneous materials on the measure under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there a motion to close debate on this measure?

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the second resolution we are debating is very similar to the first. But in this case, it would nullify the administration’s phony emergency being used to transfer 60,000 precision-guided bombs to the United Arab Emirates. That is, it is on the record and we estimate the Emirates already have on hand.

I won’t rehash the same argument, but I would like to make a point why, when we see what is going on in Yemen, it is so important for the United States to take a stand.

Mr. Speaker, one of the things the Foreign Affairs Committee has focused on this year is trying to put American values back at the center of our foreign policy: Democracy, human rights, the rule of law.

Frankly, this administration has acted like it cannot be burdened with these fundamental things that make America America. It just boggles the mind that any great country can throw weight around, but we are not China. We are not Russia. Our foreign policy should show the world the character of our country, our compassion, our belief that people everywhere should be able to live prosperously, productively, and have healthy lives.

These ideas go hand in hand with promoting our security. We want more stable, secure countries and communities. Democratic countries are stronger partners for the United States on the world’s stage. And if we are serious about those values, it means speaking out when we see them trampled, whether they are trampled by an adversary or a friend.

When we turn our back on these ideals; when we strip the word “democracy” out of the State Department’s mission statement; when we look the other way when the President ride roughshod over Congress so there is no separation of powers and whatever the President wants, he gets, and Congress just rubberstamps it. It can’t be that way.

So even if this administration will not stand up for values, the Congress should, and the Congress will. These measures, along with much of the Foreign Affairs Committee’s work this year, sends a strong message that our values must guide our foreign policy.

So, again, it is important for us to help Saudi Arabia. It is important to realize Iran is making trouble. It is important to note the Houthis are not good people. But it doesn’t mean that we give Saudi Arabia, or any other country a blank check to do whatever they want, dropping bombs indiscriminately on school children, on buses. We can’t just sit idly by and let that happen and continue to send weapons that are perpetrating these crimes.

So, this is a strong message, I think, that our values must guide our foreign policy, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KINZINGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, just a quick point on that. We don’t like when innocent people are bombed, and when we look at Yemen, I think it is really incumbent on us to see what is happening.

A legitimate government in Yemen was overthrown by Iranian-supported rebels, and Iran, who has not sent one dollar of humanitarian aid to support the people who have been killed. What we are talking about in this specific resolution is actually UAE.

So, I rise in opposition to S.J. Res. 37. Since the emergency declaration to expedite arms sales to the Saudi-led coalition to defeat the Houthis rebels. Congress has debated the President’s exercise of the emergency clause of the Arms Export Control Act.

This joint resolution of disapproval, along with 21 other JRs, intends to stop transfers of arms to the United Arab Emirates, and Jordan.

S.J. Res. 37 specifically blocks the transfer of Paveway precision-guided munitions to the United Arab Emirates. This military asset flying in international airspace is a significant threat to stability in the region. Iran and the forces it supports, like the Houthis, are a threat to our national security and the security of our allies. They are the number one contributor to human suffering in Yemen.

We have seen the Iranian regime threaten international shipping in the Strait of Hormuz, including ships belonging to the U.K., Japan, and Norway. They have shot down an expensive military asset flying in international airspace. Prior to the President’s emergency declaration, the head of Iran’s Quds Force called on terror groups to prepare for a proxy war with United States forces in the region. Since then, we have seen these proxies become emboldened in their actions. Yet, we are here today debating arms sales to the UAE on the basis that these arms transfers may be used by our strategic ally in Yemen.

While there is no guarantee that these weapons will ever be used in Yemen—will ever not be used in Yemen either—there are facts that show exactly why we must continue to provide these arms to the UAE.

As a former Air Force pilot and a current pilot in the Air National Guard, I am proud that our government would not send our Air Force to fly sorties without the munitions needed to defend themselves. Similarly, we should not have an ally flying our F-16s without the necessary tools it needs to complete its mission. The Iranians have shown that they have the capacity and ability to fire upon our military assets with no regard for whether the platform is manned or unmanned. When our allies are in a dogfight, we can’t leave them without the means to defend themselves and our shared interests.

I also want to point out that there is a lot of discussion about offensive or defensive weapons. A bomb can be used defensively or offensively. I can’t think of many weapons that are actually defensive in nature because they are used to destroy an enemy. So it is all about how you employ that weapon.

Saying that we want to send only defensive weapons, shows our allies to be weak against an Iran that is shown that it wants to go on the offensive. In 2018, it invaded basically every country in the Middle East and show Iranian influences there.

On the broader picture, we have got to debate how this went out. I fully agree with everybody on that. But we cannot leave our allies in the lurch. We cannot leave them unprotected because our big, chief enemy is Iran. I know there is broad-based agreement on that, and we cannot show weakness in the eyes of that.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KINZINGER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT), a senior member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Mr. CHABOT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his leadership on this and many other issues.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to S.J. Res. 37 which would prevent the transfer of Paveway precision-guided munitions to the United Arab Emirates.

There are numerous reasons to oppose this resolution. Let me list three:

First, and most obviously, some Paveways have already left the U.S., and this fact alone shows that this resolution is more about messaging than action. Second, the munitions needed for our allies’ mission.

Second, the UAE is a steadfast partner against Iran. Tehran is our foremost opponent in the region right now. We need the UAE for these munitions.

That is why I am saying if we don’t pass this measure, then these bombs will be on their way to the Emirates very soon.

If we do pass this resolution, then it will go to the President’s desk and it will put him on the spot to answer whether he agrees that our values need to be central to America’s work around the world.

I am very concerned and assure you of the malign role that the Iranians play in the region. I am very concerned about the Houthis who also play a bad role in the region. But that doesn’t mean that we should just give blank checks or give them arms. I think it would just be a mistake to let them think that they don’t have to have any conduct in trying to conduct this war into diminishing civilian casualties.

The other point I want to raise, again, is the fact that, Mr. Speaker, do you remember when you were a kid in school and you learned how a bill became a law?

Well, there is something called separation of powers, checks and balances. It is not right for the President to declare an emergency when there really is no emergency in order to get around Congress’ disapproval of something. So I feel it is important to fight for the institution as well.

So, again, if we do pass this resolution, it will go to the President’s desk, and it will let him answer whether he agrees that our values need to be central to our work around the world.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 491, the previous question is ordered on the joint resolution.

The question is on the third reading of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The question was taken; and the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. KINZINGER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The previous question is ordered on the passage of the joint resolution.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 3 of House Resolution 491, I call up the joint resolution (S.J. Res. 38) providing for congressional disapproval of the proposed export to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia of certain defense articles and services.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 3 of House Resolution 491, I call up the joint resolution (S.J. Res. 38) providing for congressional disapproval of the proposed export to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland of certain defense articles and services, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 491, the joint resolution is considered read.

The text of the joint resolution is as follows:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the issuance of an export license with respect to the following proposed exports to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland is prohibited:

1. The transfer of the following defense articles, including services and technical data, as described in Executive Communication 1422 (ESC-1422) submitted pursuant to section 36(c) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2776(c)) and published in the Congressional Record on June 3, 2019: The proposed transfer of defense articles, defense services, and technical data to support the manufacture of the Aurora Fuzing System for the Paveway IV Precision Guided Bomb Program.

2. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MAST) each will control 10 minutes.

3. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 minutes to extend their remarks and include in the RECORD extraneous materials on the measure under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this final measure we agree that our values need to be central to our work around the world.

Mr. Speaker, this final measure we asked that we think about the definition of the word “declaration”, what that means to each of us.

My friends on the other side of the aisle would prefer to forget that these arms sales were expedited for a very specific reason. They are omitting this information because it doesn’t fit into their narrative that the President is doing a favor to Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. I can tell you that defense is no favor.

The threat that emanates from Iran that precipitated this emergency declaration is very, very real, and, as a result, so is the need for the weapons sales to our partners.

So let’s think about: Are these situations emergencies? Do they pose an immediate risk to life—an immediate threat to life?

In May in the days after the U.S. military launched an attack on an Iranian drone, Iran attacked oil tankers in the Gulf of Oman. I would say that is an emergency and a threat to life.

Armed drones struck Saudi oil fields. I would say that is an emergency and a threat to life.

A rocket was launched near the U.S. embassy in Baghdad. I would call that an emergency and a threat to life.

The head of the Quds Force called on terror groups to prepare for a proxy war. I would certainly call that an emergency and a very direct threat to life.

A bomb-carrying drone was launched by Houthi rebels targeting a Saudi airport. I would say that is an emergency and a threat to life.

Now in the weeks since the emergency declaration, Iran has only ramped up its attacks and it is precipitating the need to have this emergency declaration.

The Houthis have continued attacks on civilian airports in Saudi Arabia. That is an emergency and a direct threat to life.
The IRGC perpetrated another attack on commercial shipping, this time targeting Japanese and Norwegian oil tankers transiting through the Strait of Hormuz. I would say that is an emergency and a threat to life.

A rocket hit an oil drilling site in Iraq’s southern Basra Province striking inside a compound that housed contractors and employees of Exxon Mobil. I would say that is an emergency and a threat to life.

Irritated down a U.S. military asset over international waters, I would say that is an emergency.

Just last week three Iranian paramilitary vessels tried to impede the passage of a British oil tanker transiting the Strait of Hormuz, and I would say that is an emergency and a threat to life.

Now, even as Iran continues to threaten international shipping and civilians in the Middle East, there are Members who want to create doubts about the commitments that we have to our partners on the front lines. Now for Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, this is not an abstract threat. It is their tankers that are being attacked, their airports that are being targeted, and their oil fields.

Now, our bilateral relationship with Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates undoubtedly is complicated, and we absolutely have to press for improvements in this domestic human rights for both countries. I think we can agree on this wholeheartedly: we have to seek justice and accountability in the murder of Jamal Khashoggi, undoubtedly. In fact, earlier this week this body voted overwhelmingly for Mr. MALINOWSKI’s H.R. 2037 which imposes sanctions on those responsible for Mr. Khashoggi’s murder.

Even as the United Arab Emirates draws down its presence in Yemen, we must press Saudi Arabia to minimize civilian casualties in that conflict, but none of these challenges justify whatsoever abandoning our partners as they face down a threat from an Iranian regime that is on the march throughout the Middle East. In fact, we must continue to show our investment in our strategic partnerships in order to incentivize our partners to make the changes that we are asking them to make.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have had a longstanding concern about these sales. We have a codified congressional review process precisely to address such concerns, however it is my assessment that my Democratic colleagues ignored this review process.

Prior to the emergency notification, Republican Members had supported these sales, but Democrat Members subjected them to informal holds—in some cases for over a year—without any clear path to resolution. Now, given the wide range of conflicts and threats in the Middle East, I do not understand why my colleagues were surprised when, after months and even over a year of delay, it was assessed that our partners urgently needed these defense articles and services for their national security in these emergency situations.

Perhaps if my colleagues had taken a more active approach to resolving their concerns, we would have avoided the situation in which additional capabilities were needed to respond to the elevated threat, this emergency situation that has been posted by Iran.

Now, Mr. Speaker, there has long been a consensus in this body that Iran’s malign activities in the Middle East are a threat to the United States’ national security and to our partners. In the past 3 years alone, we have passed legislation responding to Iran’s support for terrorism, growing ballistic missile arsenal, and human rights abuses. The Iranian regime has not backed down from these malign activities, and it is my sincere hope that this body will not back down from its resolve to counter Iran’s destabilizing agenda.

Unfortunately, this resolution and the other joint resolutions of disapproval for the 22 sales are very much a step in the wrong direction.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. TAYLOR).

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, from its inception, the Islamic Republic of Iran had an anti-American bent: what it did in our Embassy, its attack on the Marines in Beirut in 1983, its efforts in Iraq.

In 2003, I was part of the invasion force. I saw with my own eyes the Iranian efforts to destabilize Iraq, and they continue to do that there today. They continue to support the Assad regime in Syria. They continue to overextend themselves in Yemen, support the Houthis rebelling against Saudi Arabia.

Around the Middle East, Iran has become the enemy of freedom and democracy.

If America is going to succeed, we need to have allies; we need to have friends. We need to support those allies and those friends. Making sure that Saudi Arabia or UAE have the weapons that they need to fight back against Iran’s terrorism that is gravitating around this region is mission-critical for the survival of our Republic.

Mr. Speaker, I stand against this resolution.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time for the purpose of closing.

Mr. MAST. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

I am glad we had a spirited debate on the issues. As always, I am grateful to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. McCaul) my friend, the ranking member for his collegiality. We are generally bipartisan on the Foreign Affairs Committee, and when we do disagree, we do so on the issues and not on the politics and the personalities.

I have enormous respect for Mr. MAST, who knows about, but I would say that this today, is not a referendum on Iran. I agree with everything that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have said about Iran: its bad intention, its bad behavior. I agree.

But, again, I say, as I said before, it doesn’t mean we give another country, being an ally or not, a blank check to do whatever it pleases. And in this particular case, the conduct of the war in Yemen is something that we cannot just turn our heads away and say: “Oh, well, this is the war and the Iranians are bad, so, therefore, we are going to look the other way.” I think if we are talking about American weapons, we can demand better.

So I think that these measures are a chance for the Congress to take back some of the power granted by the Constitution, to say that we don’t stand by when any administration—this administration, administrations to come in both parties—we won’t stand by when any administration ignores Congress, plays fast and loose with the law, and fails to demand accountability for human rights abuses around the world.

I encourage all my colleagues to support this measure and the two others that we have just considered.

I thank Mr. MAST and my friends on other side of the aisle for a spirited debate, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 491, the previous question is ordered on the joint resolution.

The question is on the third reading of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MAST. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

RECOMMENDING THAT THE HOUSE FIND WILLIAM P. BARR AND WILBUR L. ROSS, JR., IN CONTEMPT OF CONGRESS

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Oversight and Reform, I call up the report (H. Rept. 116–125) to accompany the resolution recommending that the Resolved, That William P. Barr, Attorney General of the United States, and Wilbur L. Ross, Jr., Secretary of Commerce, in contempt of Congress for refusal to comply with subpoenas duly issued by the Committee on Oversight and Reform, shall be fined, imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court, and the Speaker of the House shall present the resolution to the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, to the end that Mr. Ross be proceeded against in the manner and form provided by law.

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House shall otherwise take all appropriate action to enforce the subpoenas.

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Committee on Oversight and Reform shall take all necessary steps to enforce the above-referenced subpoenas, including, but not limited to, seeking further authorization from the House of Representatives through a vote of the Bipartisan Legal Advisory Group pursuant to clause 8(b) of rule II, and H. Res. 430, to initiate or to intervene in proceedings in any federal court of competent jurisdiction, to seek judgments affirming the duty of the subpoena recipients to comply with the above-reference subpoenas, and to seek any appropriate ancillary relief, including injunctive relief.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution shall be debatable for 1 hour, equally divided.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Oversight and Reform, I call up the resolution (H. Res. 497) recommending that the House of Representatives find William P. Barr, Attorney General of the United States, and Wilbur L. Ross, Jr., Secretary of Commerce, in contempt of Congress for refusal to comply with subpoenas duly issued by the Committee on Oversight and Reform, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 491, the resolution is considered read.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

House Resolution 497

Resolved, That William P. Barr, Attorney General of the United States, and Wilbur L. Ross, Jr., Secretary of Commerce, shall be found to be in contempt of Congress for failing to comply with subpoenas duly issued by Chairman Elijah E. Cummings relating to the 2020

Resolved, That the Attorney General of the United States, and Wilbur L. Ross, Jr., Secretary of Commerce, failed to comply with a Committee subpoena issued on April 2, 2019, to produce documents, and (ii) ordered a Department of Justice employee, John Gore, not to comply with a Committee subpoena requiring him to appear for deposition testimony before the Committee on April 11, 2019.

Resolved, That the Secretary of Commerce failed to comply with a Committee subpoena issued on April 2, 2019, to produce documents.

Resolved, That the Report of the Committee on Oversight and Reform details the refusal of the Attorney General to produce documents to the Committee as required by subpoena, the order from the Attorney General directing John Gore to defy a duly authorized Committee subpoena for deposition testimony, and the refusal of the Secretary of Commerce to produce documents to the Committee as required by subpoena.

Resolved, That pursuant to 2 U.S.C. 192 and 194, the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall certify the Report of the Committee on Oversight and Reform, detailing the refusal of William P. Barr, Attorney General of the United States, to produce documents to the Committee on Oversight and Reform as directed by subpoena, to the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, to the end that Mr. Barr be proceeded against in the manner and form provided by law.

Resolved, That pursuant to 2 U.S.C. 192 and 194, the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall certify the Report of the Committee on Oversight and Reform, detailing the refusal of Wilbur L. Ross, Jr., Secretary of Commerce, to produce documents to the Committee as directed by subpoena, to the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, to the end that Mr. Ross be proceeded against in the manner and form provided by law.

And do not take this decision lightly. Holding any Cabinet Secretary in contempt of Congress is a serious and solemn authorization—one that I have done everything in my power to avoid. But in the case of the Attorney General and the Secretary, Secretary Ross, they blatantly obstructed our ability to do congressional oversight into the real reason Secretary Ross was trying, for the first time in 70 years—in 70 years—to add a citizenship question to the 2020 Census.

Secretary Ross testified under oath that he added a citizenship question solely—I want you to concentrate on that word, "solely"—to help the Justice Department enforce the Voting Rights Act. But we now know that claim was nothing but a pretext.

Our committee's investigation uncovered evidence that Secretary Ross launched a secret campaign to add the citizenship question within days of assuming this post.

We learned that Secretary Ross ignored warnings from experts inside and outside the Census Bureau, including the Bureau's chief scientist, that adding a citizenship question will be costly and harm the accuracy of the census.

In other words, they were saying: If you do this, you are not going to have an accurate Census.

Our investigation also revealed that Secretary Ross spoke with Attorney General Sessions, Steve Bannon, and Kris Kobach. Contrary to his testimony to Congress, the Commerce Department conjured up the voting rights rationale to hide these interactions.

This entire Congress should be reflected in this.

Committee Democrats first asked for documents from the Department of Commerce and the Department of Justice when we were in the minority in April and May of 2018. Both departments ignored us.

When I became chairman, I renewed these requests on behalf of the committee. Since then, the administration has engaged in a purposeful effort to obstruct—and I do not use that word lightly—our investigation. The Department of Commerce have refused to provide key unredacted documents that we need to understand the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, about why they really made this decision.

Instead, what did they do? They produced thousands of pages that were largely nonresponsive, heavily redacted, or publicly already available.

When they let us interview witnesses, what did they do? They ordered the witnesses not to answer more than 500 of our questions. Secretary Ross even refused my request to meet to try to work this out.

Like I said, I do not come to this floor lightly. This is not an easy decision. But there comes a time when the Congress must be for the Congress.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

As a result, on April 2, more than 3 months ago, after a bipartisan vote, the committee subpoenaed these key documents, including a memo that the Department of Commerce wrote about the citizenship question and gave to the Department of Justice.

The Departments have admitted to us that this memo does exist, but they refused to produce this document and many others.

I must say, to give credit where credit is due, that my good friend and colleague on the other side, Mr. MEADOWS, worked tirelessly to try to help us get the things that we needed. I appreciate that, trying to work in a bipartisan way.

Going on from there, last month, in light of this obstruction, the Committee on Oversight and Reform passed a resolution to hold Attorney General Barr and Secretary Ross in contempt of Congress. The vote was also bipartisan. However, many of our Republican colleagues apparently support the Trump administration’s refusal to comply with any authorized congressional subpoenas.

Let me say to my colleagues that we need to be clear that we, as a body, have a constitutional duty to be a check on the executive branch. That is our job. Every 2 years, we swear to uphold the Constitution of the United States of America. That is what we are supposed to do.

Some of my colleagues claim that we were interfering with the Supreme Court’s decision on this issue. That argument never did make any sense to me since we launched our investigation in 2018, more than 10 months before the Supreme Court took up the case.

Even if you accept that misguided argument, the Court case is now over. That argument is gone.

The President announced last week that he would no longer pursue adding a citizenship question to the Census. However, in that same speech, the President admitted that he wanted citizenship data to implement partisan gerrymandering.

The President’s statements directly contradict Secretary Ross’ sworn testimony that the only reason, the sole reason, the Trump administration wanted this data was to help the Justice Department enforce the Voting Rights Act.

The Departments of Justice and Commerce have been engaged in a campaign of laws and the process Congress put in place to maintain the integrity of the Census. I would say to all of our Members: Let’s be very careful about what we do with regard to the Census. It has a tremendous impact for 10 years on how more than $660 billion in Federal funds are appropriated, over and over again—apportionment, redistricting, and making sure that every American gets their fair share back of their taxpayer dollars for the money the hard-working people who raised the money for our taxes.

The resolution before us today is about protecting our democracy. It is about protecting the integrity of this body. It is bigger than the Census. It is about protecting the integrity of the Congress of the United States of America.

We need to understand how and why the Trump administration tried to add a question based on a pretext so that we can consider how to ensure that this never happens again.

There are those who will ask the question: Why, with the Supreme Court having decided what they have decided, do you want the documents? We want the documents because we want to make sure that we do not, in the future, spend a year or a year and a half chasing something that is not accurate—in the words of the Supreme Court, that is the process of getting an accurate account, which is exactly what the Constitution says we must do.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support our resolution to hold Attorney General Barr and Secretary Ross in contempt of the Congress of the United States of America.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I rise in opposition.

Madam Speaker, we are here today debating a premature and ill-considered resolution to hold Attorney General William Barr and Secretary of Commerce Wilbur Ross in contempt of Congress.

In the eyes of the Democratic majority, their crime is not cooperating enough with the Democrats’ investigation into the reinstatement of the citizenship question on the Census. First, this contempt citation is a misuse of one of the most powerful tools available to this body.

Second, the idea that the Trump administration is stonewalling this investigation is false. Secretary Ross himself testified for over 6 hours while the committee’s investigation or even, in Chairman Cummings’ words, engaged in a cover-up from the top, is simply wrong.

The bottom line is, the Department of Justice and the Department of Commerce are cooperating with the committee’s investigation into the reinstatement of the citizenship question on the 2020 Census. The administration has produced a total of 31,000 pages of documents to the committee, 14,000 pages from the Commerce Department and 17,000 pages from the Justice Department.

The committee had heard testimony from six witnesses, with more interviews expected this month. Secretary Ross himself testified for over 6 hours about his decision to reinstate the citizenship question on the Census.

The real issue we should be debating is why the Democrats are afraid to ask how many citizens are in the United States of America.

Let’s remember, just 1 month ago, the Supreme Court ruled that asking a citizenship question on the Census is constitutional. Since the Supreme Court ruling, the President has said a citizenship question will not appear on the 2020 Census.

To put away all doubt about asking a citizenship question on the Census and all future Censuses, I introduced a bill last night to add a citizenship question to the 2020 Census. My bill is intended to put away all doubt about asking a citizenship question on this and future Censuses.

If the Democrats can’t impeach President Trump, they will, instead, hold his Cabinet in contempt of Congress. This is just another episode in political theater. This exercise is not a responsible use of the contempt authority.

This is just another attempt for the Democrats to delegitimize the efforts of Congress to accurately count the number of United States citizens in the United States, something that should not be controversial. This is all part of the same game plan to manufacture controversy around anything associated with the Trump administration.

These are the sort of abusive tactics that we should reject. These are the sort of tactics that give Congress a bad reputation. We should be better than this.

Madam Speaker, I urge all Members of the House to vote against moving this partisan contempt legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me be very clear: This is not theater. I wish it was theater. It is not theater.

This is about us making sure that we protect the integrity of the Census and our Constitution.

Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mrs. LAWRENCE).

Mrs. LAWRENCE. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this resolution to hold Attorney General Barr and Commerce Secretary Ross in contempt of Congress.

Madam Speaker, we have reached a point that we, as Congress, must have the courage—and we have a duty to our constituents of these United States of America—to uphold the Constitution.

Congress has an obligation to conduct oversight of the executive branch, yet this administration continues to refuse to provide our committee with relevant documents relative to the investigation of our 2020 Census.

Today, the full House will vote to hold Attorney General Barr and Secretary Ross in criminal contempt of Congress for their complete disregard of the Constitution—not of Democrats, of the Constitution—and their refusal to provide our committee with relevant documents relative to the investigation of our 2020 Census.

It is 100 percent within our congressional responsibility to ensure the Federal Government is ultimately working in the best interests of the people it serves.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution, to stand up and fulfill their duty and responsibility to the Constitution, which says we must take care of the people of this great country and that Congress will maintain its power as a separate but equal branch of government.

Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for his leadership.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLER).
Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, every Member of Congress was elected to work on issues that will positively impact their districts.

As we stand here today, our Nation is dealing with a crisis at our southern border; our seniors are struggling with rising drug prices; our farmers are waiting for a free and fair trade deal with Mexico and Canada; and our veterans deserve the care they have earned.

Yet, today, House Democrats are, once again, putting off these important issues and continuing with their partisan investigations of President Trump and his administration.

Madam Speaker, this administration has produced 31,000 pages of documents related to the Census. This administration has made five senior officials available for interview. All this is due to a disagreement over a citizenship question on the Census.

Madam Speaker, a citizenship question on the Census should be controversial. Every Census conducted by the United States Government from 1820 to 1950 asked about citizenship.

Other countries ask about citizenship. The United Nations recommends it as a best practice. The Census Bureau today already asks a segment of the population about citizenship.

Let’s set these facts aside. Given that President Trump is no longer seeking to add a citizenship question to the 2020 Census, voting on a resolution to hold two Cabinet members in contempt of Congress is simply a Democratic tactic to waste this Chamber’s time and avoid working on the serious issues facing our Nation.

Madam Speaker, I urge Members to vote against the resolution so the House can stop this partisan nonsense and focus on meaningful policy.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY), a member of our committee.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his great leadership.

Madam Speaker, today, we vote to defend the interests of the American people, our system of checks and balances, and our very Constitution with this resolution to hold Secretary Ross and Attorney General Barr in criminal contempt.

For well over a year, Trump administration officials have lied through their teeth about the reason for adding a citizenship question to the 2020 Census.

They have repeatedly lied to Congress, the Supreme Court, and the American people.

In an effort to cover up their lies, they blocked every demand from our committee, every demand to comply with requests for witness, documents, asserting illegitimate executive privilege, and blatantly ignoring bipartisan subpoenas, all to a degree that would literally break the Constitution if allowed to stand.

New evidence in court, which I shared on this floor, revealed that the real reason for the question was to disenfranchise non-White voters. The Supreme Court ruled that the administration cannot add the question on the Census.

A functional democracy depends on accountability. Accountability requires real oversight.

The passage of this criminal contempt resolution is necessary to preserve the integrity of all congressional oversight on this and so many other issues now and into the future. This contempt resolution, in fact, allows both Democrats and Republicans to do their job.

Never, ever during my time in Congress have I encountered such complete contempt for the law, and that contempt deserves to be punished.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for this. Our democracy depends on it.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. MEADOWS), one of the great leaders of this body.

Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, let me give you a quote: “Holding someone in contempt of Congress is one of the most serious and formal actions our committee can take, and it should not be used as a political tool to generate press as part of an election-year witch hunt.”

Who is responsible for that quote? It is not Ranking Member Jim JORDAN. It is not Leader MCCARTHY. It is not Conference Chair Liz CHENEY. It is Chairman ELIJAH CUMMINGS. Those are his words.

What we need to do is understand that we are using this as a political tool, and we are better than that. We are better than that.

I am going to quote from another letter from Chairman CUMMINGS. At that time, he was not the chairman. Chairman CUMMINGS wrote a letter to Speaker Boehner. He said, “A fundamental problem with conducting such a partisan investigation is that the results are not even-handed but instead are skewed, incomplete, and inaccurate.”

Chairman CUMMINGS went on further. He said: “These deficiencies are magnified when we rush from a committee vote to a floor vote at breakneck speed, with little concern for the facts or the law.”

What was he referring to? He was referring to a contempt vote on Eric Holder.

Here we are today, in the same venue. I am using the chairman’s words, so I am going to make an appeal to the chairman, with the hope that my good friend opposite will heed these words because, in that same letter, he made a direct appeal to the Speaker of the House at that particular time. He said that he hoped that the chairman would accept that the Attorney General is willing to come in to meet personally and enter into direct negotiations in good faith to try to resolve the matter.

I am hoping that the gentleman opposite will withdraw his contempt resolution, not force a vote on this, but enter into a direct negotiation with the Attorney General and, hopefully, resolve this without taking this particular action.

Madam Speaker, I think it is critically important that we understand why we are here today. It is because we are using two standards, one standard for the minority party at one time and one standard for a majority party at another time. Let’s use the same standard and make sure that we give the Attorney General the ability to negotiate directly with the gentleman opposite.

Madam Speaker, I certainly hope that cooler heads will prevail and that we get to the bottom of this. It is about allowing Congress to do its job but do it with respect.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me be clear. First of all, I thank the gentleman for quoting me so much. I am tremendously honored. I think the quotes that he used just reiterate what I said when I began about how seriously I take this matter. I wouldn’t be here if I did not consider this to be very serious.

The other thing I would say is that we have made tremendous efforts, and the gentleman knows it because he has helped, working with me to try to get the documents and the things that we need. We have not been able to get them.

Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GOMEZ).

Mr. GOMEZ. Madam Speaker, the Census can be used to either marginalize or to strengthen communities. This President decided on the path of marginalization.

They did that by coming up with an idea to silence the voices of immigrant communities throughout the country by adding a citizenship question that they deemed necessary to enforce the Voting Rights Act.

For 53 years, no Department of Justice had a problem enforcing the Voting Rights Act without Census block grants. After citizenship, all of a sudden, 2017 comes around, and you know what? We have a problem.

This is the excuse that they had. This is the reason they had to add this question to the Census. It is just completely false, even to the extent that we saw that they said that the Department of Justice was the one that asked for it.

Then, we find out later that they had to shop around to the Department of Homeland Security and other Department of Justice agencies to get the people to try to ask the Census Bureau to add the question. Then, they went back to Jeff Sessions, who carried out their request.
We are investigating because everything that they have said, the Department of Commerce and Wilbur Ross, has been a complete lie.

If you don’t believe me, the recent Supreme Court decision said, “Unlike a typical case in which an agency may have used unexplained reasons for a decision...the sole stated reason seems to have been contrived.”

What does “contrived” mean? It means forced, artificial, manufactured, false. Falsely that is what it is. It is a contrived reason.

The American people have a right to know the real reasons, not the contrived reasons, not the ones that were manufactured, not the ones that were made up. That is why we are asking for these documents. That is why, when Congress cannot perform its obligations for oversight and as a check on the executive branch, then we must hold these individuals in contempt.

I ask my colleagues to do the same thing.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will remind Members to use the proper designation for the presiding officer.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. MILLER).

Mrs. MILLER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to oppose the resolution before us.

Knowing who is in our country should not be controversial. Let me repeat that: Knowing who is in our country should not be controversial.

Although my colleagues across the aisle have blurred fact and fiction on this issue, the truth is, asking a citizenship question is standard operating procedure. It is currently asked on censuses throughout the world, in Australia, Canada, Germany, Ireland, Mexico, U.K., and many others. The United Nations recommending asking the citizenship question as a census best practice so countries can gather accurate information about their citizens.

It is not a new idea in the U.S. either. We first asked the citizenship question on the Census in 1820 and continued the practice for the next 130 years. It is still asked every year on the American Community Survey. The information collected is protected by Federal law, and our Justice Department uses the information to enforce the Voting Rights Act.

We will ask the citizenship question on I-9 employment eligibility forms.

Right here in the District of Columbia, a citizenship question is asked on driver’s license applications. They do the same in Wisconsin.

In California, anyone who applies for a firearm license has to answer a citizenship question. In Ohio, concealed carry both states must verify if they are citizens or not.

These States believe it is fine to ask this question to obtain a firearm or driver’s license, but it is not okay to ask on the Census?

For anyone to claim that this is a hot-button issue, I just don’t buy it. It seems a little bit more like hot air. I am glad that President Trump is working across Federal agencies to ensure that we can get this crucial information.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this resolution so that we can get back to actual work.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. RASKIN), the chairman of our Subcommittee on Civil Rights and Civil Liberties.

Mr. RASKIN. Madam Speaker, like the chairman, I am charmed and tickled by the argument offered by our friend Mr. MEADOWS, who quotes our beloved chairman in resisting a rush to a contempt vote against Attorney General Holder.

Of course, two sides can play this game because the gentleman from North Carolina, of course, voted for and championed a contempt citation against the Attorney General in that case.

Why would he support a contempt finding as appropriate against one Attorney General who is acting in a recalcitrant way but not against another?

Madam Speaker, this is not a policy battle about the citizenship question. Although many of us may think that it is. They have already lost that battle. They lost it in the Federal district courts three times. They lost it in the United States Supreme Court. They lost it with Chief Justice John Roberts. They lost it with the majority of the Supreme Court, a Supreme Court that was gerrymandered by Senator McCaskill for precisely occasions like this, so they could get the outcome they wanted, but even that Court rejected the contrived rationale that was offered by the Commerce Department.

It has been rejected by six former Census Directors. It was rejected by their own chief scientist in the Commerce Department and the Census Bureau. They lost the case under the Census Act. They lost the case under the Administrative Procedure Act.

Even President Trump acknowledges that they lost. At least, I think he acknowledges it today, although he does waver back and forth. And I hope members of this body will hold you in contempt of the Congress of the United States of America.

Mr. M CCARTHY. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. McCARTHY), the great minority leader.

Mr. McCARTHY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Before I walked out of my office, I first looked at my calendar. I knew it was July, but I wondered if it was back in February. It is another day on the floor, and it is like “Groundhog Day” all over again.

Yesterday on this floor was a sad day. It is not a day about decorum. It is not a day about any of the issues that any of my constituents ask about.

They ask me when I go home, and, Madam Speaker, I envision that they ask most every Member in this body: Have you done anything about surprise billing? Have you made sure that our existing conditions are protected like that bill GREG WALDEN has with so many cosponsors? Have you done anything to make sure the economy continues to grow?

No. I go home and I tell them: They had another resolution to attack President Trump or the administration. So we may be in July, but it is Groundhog Day all over again.
Are we doing anything about a budget? Because, Madam Speaker, I listened to my colleagues when they say: Show me your budget; show me your values.

And I know winning a majority is important, and I knew, Madam Speaker, when we were in the majority putting a budget out is not easy, but it is the fundamental responsibility of a majority. So, yes, I came to this floor hoping we would have that debate. But, no, no debate about a budget. I can’t tell my constituents that the majority did a budget this year.

When they ask me: Well, what about I read all these things about caps, that you have got to come into agreement to ever make something happen together.

No, I am coming back down to the floor this time, and we are talking about contempt.

They ask me, Madam Speaker: What contempt are you talking about?

I said: Well, it is regarding the Census.

Well, wasn’t that all solved?

Well, hasn’t this already been solved and already been decided, but, Madam Speaker, this majority thinks it is another political opportunity.

Then I listened and I heard this comment the other day. Madam Speaker, they said: I challenge you to find voters who can name a single thing House Democrats have done for their kitchen table this year, because when I am home, they don’t come up to me and talk to me about party; they talk to me about what the House is doing.

In their house, at their kitchen table, you know what they talk about there? They talk about their budget, because they do know their budget is their values, and they value having a budget. They will talk politics, but I don’t think they get too petty.

It is interesting, at the kitchen table in the House of Representatives, there are rules for different people. I thought the rule of law mattered in this country, and I was kind of excited when I watched a Problem Solvers Caucus stand up together, Republicans and Democrats, before there was a vote for a Speaker in this Congress, and they requested a Consensus Calendar. And what does a Consensus Calendar mean?

It means, if a Member from any side of the aisle ever ask me that question. There are less than 12,000 people who ever had the privilege to serve here. I travel a long way each week to have that opportunity. I spend a lot of time thinking about it. I spend a lot of time listening and talking to my constituents.

Last night I went home and I did a telephone townhall. Thousands of people were on that call. Not one person asked me about the contempt of a Censure. Not that it is for, but that it is out.

They talked about an earthquake. They wondered if they would have enough money. I said: I don’t know; we don’t have a budget.

The hospital, because this community is not very big, Ridgecrest, about 30,000, the earthquake did damage to the hospital. People can get some surprise billings, not anything their fault, but we are not talking about it on this floor. We are not solving that problem.

But do you know what happened? There was this Congressman from South Carolina. He didn’t get 290. He is up to 370. He followed the exact model, not the number they put out—290, to get above politics. If you made that happen, your bill would come to the floor.

Well, that was the rule. That is what we just put in.

Madam Speaker, do you know what happened? There was this Congressman from South Carolina. He didn’t get 290. He is up to 370. He followed the exact rule that the majority just put in. And do you know what happened the day he was going to be the very first bill on a Consensus Calendar? And what happened the day that really brought people together? Survivor benefits for those who gave their life to defend this Nation.

I was proud. I was proud that more than 370 people in this body did not play politics with that issue.

But do you know what happened when that day came? The rules are not equal. The rules are not equal. They were changed last Friday. They were changed so he could not have his vote. So Congressman Joe Wilson could not come to this floor.

Was it changed in a committee? No. They put it in a rule, so they can choose. Yesterday, when I watched decorum on this floor, any other Member of this body would not have the right to speak if their words were taken down, if it were me, you, anybody else. But, no, the rules were changed once again, and everybody on one side of the aisle, Madam Speaker, voted to change those rules; they hold people who seem to be different, seem to be special, seems to be that they can break the rules.

I guess the majority should get what they want, not what the people around the kitchen table of America want.

I wonder, Madam Speaker, I wonder, when I watch people campaign and they talk about what they want to achieve here, how many said they have to have a budget, of impeach and resolution, all after one entity, the President of the United States?

I didn’t have anybody on any side of the aisle ever ask me that question.

I hold this job with a great deal of respect. There are less than 12,000 people who ever had the privilege to serve here. I travel a long way each week to have that opportunity. I spend a lot of time thinking about it. I spend a lot of time listening and talking to my constituents.

I know some people on the other side of the aisle, Madam Speaker, might get mad at this chief of staff. But sometimes you get upset when people speak the truth. Sometimes it hurts.

What hurts more to the American public is more of this, if it is just going to be Groundhog Day every day that we are going to have contempt-—impeachment—contempt. So, yes, I came to this floor hoping to end bipartisanship, they broke that record, too. They made it partisan. And that is what we did last week.
When we go home this week and we talk about what we achieved, I don’t know what I can say. That is not why we ran. We are better than this.

When I watched the decorum yesterday, I know we are better than that. But the most disturbing to me is, when somebody did not abide by the rules of the House, the rules were changed to protect that person.

America is more than a country. America is an idea of self-governance, an idea of rule of law, of respect. If you care so much to change the rule that you would have a Constitution Calendar, abide by it, not just because somebody on the other side of the aisle worked hard to. If you cared so much that you said a budget matters, that it sets the tone of who you are, produce one.

I understand there are winners and losers in elections, but, Madam Speaker, as I listened to the comments of why they wanted to battle, they admitted to their colleagues they were using the Census investigation to gather information that, in his words, the courts could use in ongoing litigation. So here because you or your constituents asked about it? Are we here because you just want to play a little more politics? Because I would tell you this: You have got another thing coming up right after they can play politics on it one more time.

I would ask deep inside that, for once, let’s put it aside. I know that election didn’t turn out the way you wanted it, but at the end of the day, people expect us to find common ground. They expect us to give on both sides.

I will guarantee you no one ever went to the polls to say: I want you to go there to spend a whole week just attacking. I warned a Member said of why they wanted to battle, they admitted to their colleagues they were using the Census investigation to gather information that, in his words, the courts could use in ongoing litigation. So here because you or your constituents asked about it? Are we here because you just want to play a little more politics? Because I would tell you this: You have got another thing coming up right after they can play politics on it one more time.

I would ask deep inside that, for once, let’s put it aside. I know that election didn’t turn out the way you wanted it, but at the end of the day, people expect us to find common ground. They expect us to give on both sides.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are directed to address their remarks to the Chair.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I just want to make it clear, Madam Speaker, as I listened to the comments of why it was needed, the fact is that the integrity of this House and to protect the integrity of the Census and make sure that we get the records that we need to do our job, and I would hope that this administration, in making sure that happens. Because it is not just about us; it is about people who will come and fill these seats when we are dancing with the angels.

I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CONNOLLY), the very distinguished gentleman who leads our Government Operations Subcommittee excellently.

When we say the Pledge of Allegiance, we pledge allegiance to the flag and the Republic for which it stands, and perhaps some of the speakers on the other side can do a little research as to why we pledge allegiance to the Republic.

Today, again, we are debating because of a potential question on the Census. There are certain people who feel that it would be wrong to ask about citizenship on the Census.

I can tell you, as a lawmaker, I would certainly like to know how many people in this country are citizens. I would also like to know how many people are legal or illegal, both of which may affect decisions we make, formulas we make here.

I have a bill up—in the past; I already introduced it this year—that says that people who are noncitizens shouldn’t be eligible for public benefits. If that bill were ever to become law, I can easily imagine distributions being affected from this place being affected by the results on a Census like that.

Other countries do not have problems getting numbers if they ask about citizenship. Canada doesn’t have a problem. Mexico doesn’t have a problem. There is no reason this United Nations recommends we ask about citizenship.

It didn’t result in bad Censuses until 1950. It doesn’t result in bad results on the long form or bad results on the Community Survey. It doesn’t result in problems in the State of Wisconsin, where we have a citizenship question that you have to answer prior to getting a driver’s license.

So I wish we would put away this resolution today. I don’t think it is right to spend more time debating the Census question.

I hope if this does not appear on this Census, that it is eventually put on the Census for 2030.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I thank my good friend for courageously bringing this contempt resolution to the House today.

The authority and the very integrity of the House of Representatives has been challenged by this administration as never before in American history. If it were not for the Supreme Court, this administration’s decision to deliberately prevent an accurate Census count would have succeeded.

Neither the President nor the Republican House has the support of a majority of the American people.

Using Secretary Ross, the administration tried to change its way to an undercount. Both Attorney General Barr and Secretary Ross have gone out of their way to refuse to provide needed documents or offered pretexts for not providing them pursuant to valid subpoenas.

So serious has been this obstruction that the House must seek criminal contempt, which can carry stiff penalties.
and prison time, or simply surrender to the administration and invite continuing obstruction of our ability to perform our legislative and oversight functions.

To be sure, we fully recognize the difficulty of obtaining contempt against this administration by this administration, but the House would as soon surrender its authority as to take no action in the face of historic and willful defiance.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. COMER) for yielding and for his great work on the committee.

Secretary Ross and Attorney General Barr are doing their jobs. So what is their reward? Democrats are going to hold them in contempt.

Both the Commerce Department and the Justice Department, have submitted 31,000 documents to the committee. They have made available all kinds of witnesses for depositions and transcribed interviews. In fact, we have not had another one happening later this month.

And the Secretary himself sat for over 6 hours in a hearing answering every single question the committee had. He raised his hand, said he swore to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help him God, and answered all the questions. And what does he get for it? Democrats are going to hold him in contempt.

And why are they doing this? All because they don't want to tell the truth. What the U.N. says is the best practice, and citizens, and the most difficult of enforcement of criminal contempt?

Since 1820, in one form or another, we have been asked the citizenship question solely to help the Department of Justice enforce the Voting Rights Act. We understand now that may not have been true.

And he has given us unresponsive—that is a legal term—unresponsive documents in those thousands of documents that he has turned over to us, not the documents that we have asked for.

This resolution on the Census: Are you a citizen of the greatest nation in history is driving it all.

This resolution is ridiculous, and we should vote it down.

Madam Speaker, if he has not been responsive, we must hold him in contempt.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Georgia (Mr. HICE). Mr. HICE of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

The problem is that this is not the way we are supposed to do the business of oversight. Contempt resolutions are generally something that happens deep inside and deep within an ongoing investigation when the committee has run up against brick walls and has exhausted all possibilities before then.

That is certainly not the case here. We are in the middle of an investigation into Federal agencies that are complying with our requests. This is absurd.

The Oversight and Reform Committee has held six transcribed interviews with witnesses. Another one is on the way within days. The Commerce Department and the Justice Department have produced over 31,000 pages, documents, combined—14,000 from Commerce and 17,000 from Justice. These are not things that happen when we are not talking about Federal agencies that are stonewalling an investigation. That simply is not what is happening here.

This investigation has only been going on for a couple of short months. I would like to remind this Chamber that it wasn't too long ago that then-Ranking Member Cummings was cautioned himself against pursuing a resolution of contempt in 2012, and that was after a year of stonewalling by the Obama administration. We are just a couple of months into this one.

If these Federal agencies were legitimately stonewalling an investigation, as the Obama administration did, I would certainly feel differently, and I am sure others here would, as well. But they are not stonewalling, and the facts simply don't support this contempt resolution.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues not to support this.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
Mr. MEADOWS. Madam Speaker, I want to make a point that in this body now on 2 consecutive days, we have broken the rules of Congress to expedite things. In this particular contempt resolution, and I want to make sure there's no misunderstanding, the Congressional Record reflects that we broke rule 2(f) on the committee about notice. It was brought to the attention of the chairman, and here we are again going and violating the rules of this House, not rules that the minority put in place, but the majority put in place. We gave the chairman the chance to perfect this procedural problem, and yet they continued on to hold this contempt violation.

I can tell you, they may vote today to hold them in contempt, but it is a violation of Congress' very rules itself that should have been remedied. I ask that the gentleman opposite withdraws his resolution so that we can perfect this.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. Armstrong).

Mr. ARMSTRONG. Madam Speaker, upon assuming the chairmanship of the committee in January 2019, the chairman of the Oversight and Reform Committee formally initiated an inquiry into Secretary Ross' decision to reinstate the citizenship question on the 2020 census.

Just recently, as of June 27, 2019, the Supreme Court has issued a ruling. The Supreme Court ruled that the administration is cooperating with the investigation. The DOJ and the DOJ have produced 31,000 responsive documents—14,000 from the DOC and 17,000 from the DOJ. The committee has held six transcribed interviews with witnesses, and a seventh interview is expected.

In short, Madam Speaker, the Judiciary Committee has already held Bill Barr in contempt for not violating Federal law. And now the Oversight and Reform Committee is about to hold Bill Barr in contempt for cooperating with the committee. This is wrong. This is not how we are supposed to do business in this Chamber.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gohmert).

Mr. GOHMERT. Madam Speaker, this is such a disturbing time for those of us who have spent our adult lives trying to see that justice is done, laws are followed, and yet here we again come after Attorney General Bob Barr and another Cabinet official, Ross.

The truth is, I didn't really know Bob Barr when he got nominated. I knew that he was friends with Bob Mueller. That caused me concern. But it appears we have an attorney general who is concerned about justice and he is concerned about stopping injustices. And yet, still, some people are wanting to cause as much trouble for the President and stop his administration from getting as much accomplished for the American people as possible.

It has got to stop at some point. It is like a game, and we are going to hold him in contempt again. This is a double secret probation against Bob Barr. How many double, triple, quadruple secret probations are we going to do? This isn't going to amount to anything.

If you take this to any Federal judge to try to enforce it, he or she will look at the procedure and go: This is ridiculous. You are not going to have me hold the attorney general in contempt for following the law, and you are wanting to interrupt his efforts to follow the law. That is not happening.

So this is all about a show, when there is true injustice going on. Thank God that we have a President who wanted to see justice done. He knew he didn't collude. And now we have an attorney general who is trying to do the same thing.

Madam Speaker, let's say no to this contempt. Let's get back to doing the job that the American people want us to do.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COMER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I think that just about everyone who spoke on our side of the aisle made the factual points that this is not necessary. This resolution is an ongoing attempt by the majority party to try to do anything they can to disrupt the Presidency of our President of the United States.

Every country, just about, in the world asks the citizenship question. Mexico and Canada ask the citizenship question. In fact, the United Nations recommends that countries ask the citizenship question.

I don't for the life of me know why we would resort to this type of action in this body, especially after what happened yesterday. I wonder. Madam Speaker, is this an attempt to try to move the direction of the American people from their frustration at the lack of achievement by the majority party from a legislative standpoint to try to somehow enrage their anger at the President?

This is unnecessary. This is more political theater, and I urge the Members of this fine body to oppose this resolution.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, may I inquire as to how much time is left?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Maryland has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, some of my colleagues have argued that holding Secretary Ross and Attorney General Barr in contempt of Congress is premature. That is simply not true. If anything, it is long overdue.

The Department of Commerce and the Department of Justice have failed to comply with congressional requests for more than a year. The Oversight and Reform Committee Democrats first asked for documents from the Department of Commerce in April of 2018 and the Department of Justice May of 2018. Those requests were ignored.

When I became chairman, I renewed those requests. In response, the administration produced thousands of pages. But most of the documents were either heavily redacted, already public, or nonresponsive to the committee's request. So the committee narrowed its request and issued bipartisan subpoenas to compel production of that narrow group of documents. That was in April, more than 3 months ago.

I even asked Secretary Ross to meet with me personally. He refused.

And, last month, the committee passed the bipartisan resolution before us to hold Secretary Ross and Attorney General Barr in contempt of Congress. Still neither department has provided the documents that we have asked for.

So I have come to the floor to urge our Members to vote in favor of this. I do not, again, bring this lightly. This is not theater. This is about doing our job. This is about protecting the integrity of not only our census, but of our Congress.

Madam Speaker, I urge all Members to vote for this resolution, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired. Pursuant to the rule, the previous question is ordered on the resolution. The question is on adoption of the resolution.

The question was taken; and the yeas and nays were ordered.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. Pingree). Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or other motions to suspend the rules objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

The House will resume proceedings on postponed questions at a later time.
INSPECTOR GENERAL PROTECTION ACT

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1847) to require congressional notification for certain changes in status of inspectors general, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Chair recognizes the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the measure before us.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to support the Inspector General Protection Act, which would improve the independence of inspectors general.

This bipartisan bill, introduced by Representative TED LIEU and Representative JODY HICE, would also address the disturbingly slow nomination of IGs that have been the norm across multiple administrations.

The bill would require notification of Congress 30 days prior to an IG being placed on leave. Such notification is already required prior to an IG being removed from duty.

The bill would also require the President to report to Congress if he has not nominated an IG after 210 days of a vacancy occurring.

The report must include the reasons for failing to make the nomination and a target date for doing so. The requirement will hopefully prod the executive branch to nominate IG’s in a more timely manner.

Inspector general provide critical oversight and accountability within Federal agencies, and the positions need to be filled more quickly than is currently the case.

Madam Speaker, I urge Members to support this bipartisan bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise today in support of my bipartisan bill, H.R. 1847, the Inspector General Protection Act, which will enhance the independence and integrity of our IGs.

Since Congress passed the original Inspector General Act in 1978, these government watchdogs have played a crucial role in our democracy. They root out waste, fraud, and abuse at all levels of government, saving American taxpayers billions of dollars annually and ensuring that government programs benefit the people.

According to the nonpartisan Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency, taxpayers saved $32.7 billion in fiscal year 2017 from audit recommendations. That is a $22 return on every dollar invested.

Unfortunately, both Democratic and Republican administrations have hamstrung our IGs with persistent vacancies and underfunded budgets. According to the Project on Government Oversight, taxpayers saved $32.7 billion in fiscal year 2017 from audit recommendations. That is a $22 return on every dollar invested.

They have assisted us with discharging one of our most important responsibilities, shining the light on areas of the government that need improved efficiency and economy.

However, throughout both Republican and Democratic administrations, there have been numerous vacant inspector general positions. Certain agencies have experienced prolonged periods of absent inspector general leadership.

For example, the Department of the Interior has been without a permanent inspector general since 2009. Likewise, there are approximately 13 vacant inspector general positions for agencies covered by the Inspector General Act.

This bill would require the President to timely notify Congress of a failure to nominate an inspector general for a given agency. The President would also be required to explain why a nomination has not yet been made and provide a target date for that nomination.

The bill also calls for increased transparency by requiring the President to notify Congress if an inspector general is placed on leave or changes status.

Inspectors general are an indispensable tool to Congress. By ensuring the Federal Government is adequately staffed with inspectors general, we are reaffirming our commitment to rooting out government fraud, waste, and abuse.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. TED LIEU), the sponsor of this legislation.

Mr. TED LIEU of California. Madam Speaker, first, let me thank the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLER) for their comments in support of this legislation.

I rise today in support of my bipartisan bill, H.R. 1847, the Inspector General Protection Act, which will enhance the independence and integrity of our IGs.

Unfortunately, both Democratic and Republican administrations have hamstrung our IGs with persistent vacancies and underfunded budgets. According to the Project on Government Oversight.
Oversight, vacancies of permanent inspectors general is not a new problem or one that is unique to this administration. This issue has persisted for years under both Democratic and Republican leadership. The Department of the Interior, for example, has lacked a Senate-confirmed inspector general for over a decade.

But it is not just vacancies that have been problematic. In a committee report, the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs reported that “another type of personnel action has the potential for doing significant damage to OIG independence if abused: placing an IG on indefinite paid or unpaid nontenure status.”

My bill will address both of these problems.

First, H.R. 1847 requires notification of Congress in advance of an inspector general being placed on administrative leave. This ensures Congress is aware of any potential attempts to improperly sideline an inspector general.

Second, the bill requires the President to report to Congress if an inspector general has not been nominated within 210 days after a vacancy occurs for that position, including the reasons a nomination has not been made and a target date for doing so.

This reasserts Congress’s oversight role and allows Members to question, on an informal basis, the decision of any future administration to leave core inspector general offices vacant.

As Senator CHUCK GRASSLEY told The Washington Post in 2017, “Independent, nonpartisan IGs can be some of the President’s best allies in finding and cutting waste, fraud, and abuse in the bureaucracy.”

I agree with that statement. That is why I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, as well as the U.S. Senate, toward getting this commonsense bill signed into law.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 736) to require the Director of the Government Publishing Office to establish and maintain an online portal accessible to the public that allows the public to obtain electronic copies of all congressionally mandated reports in one place, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 736

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KLEINER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

MR. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous materials on the measure before us.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I thank Representative MIKE QUIGLEY for his persistence in pursuing this great government legislation. Hopefully, we can get this bill enacted this Congress.

H.R. 736, the Access to Congressional Mandated Reports Act, is a non-controversial bill that has been approved by the Oversight and Reform Committee many times. The bill is a commonsense measure that would make the government more transparent and accountable. It would create a one-stop-shop where Congress and members of the public could access agency reports to Congress.

Federal agencies submit thousands of reports to Congress each year. This bill will improve congressional oversight by making it easy to find and access these reports. H.R. 736 would also give the public access to agency reports.

Currently, members of the public often have to file requests under the Freedom of Information Act to obtain some agency reports to Congress. Many of these reports are not available online.

An online library of Federal reports would improve the ability of our staffs to use the information in them to make sound policy. It also would encourage agency compliance with reporting requirements. Finally, it would support timely access to the reports by State and local governments, students, academics, and others, with the additional benefit of increasing the burden on agencies to process FOIA requests.

The Access to Congressionally Mandated Reports Act has been endorsed by over 25 organizations from across the political spectrum. I have a letter from the groups that I include in the RECORD.

July 16, 2019.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI, REPUBLICAN LEADER McCARTHY, AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES: We, the 27 undersigned organizations, write to express our strong support for the bipartisan Access to Congressionally Mandated Reports Act (“ACMRA”) and to respectfully urge you to vote in favor of the legislation on the House floor. If enacted, the ACMRA will strengthen Congressional oversight and improve government transparency.

The ACMRA will establish a central repository of agency reports submitted to Congress and will require agencies to submit required reports. This will improve Members of Congress’s access to the reports and ensure Congress knows when they become available.

The ACMRA also directs agencies to provide the Government Publishing Office (GPO) any report that is both required by law to be submitted to Congress and is releasable under the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”), subject to certain limitations. The legislation will not change what information is in the public sphere, but it will improve accessibility. Nor does the legislation affect in any way what information is provided to Congressional committees or place any burden upon them.

Under the ACMRA, agency reports will become publicly available on GPO’s website within 30 days of submission to Congress, and will be redacted in accordance with FOIA’s provisions, which include the removal of classified or otherwise confidential material. Each report will be assigned a unique identifier that will make it easy to track reports as new editions are released.

Additionally, the Congressional Research Service (CRS) will perform work already performed by the Clerk of the House to identify all agency reports the law requires be submitted to Congress. This will tell us whether an agency has complied with its obligation to submit reports in a timely fashion.

The Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee favorably reported the ACMRA on July 9, 2019. Additionally, the legislation was repeatedly favorably reported by both the Committee on House Administration and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform during prior Congresses.

The ACMRA was first introduced in 2010, and we are hopeful it will become part of this Congress’s transparency legacy.

We appreciate your thoughtful consideration of the measure and are hopeful the ACMRA will be enacted shortly.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, legislation similar to this bill this legislation has been introduced in the Senate and favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Madam Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support this legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 736, the Access to Congressionally Mandated Reports Act sponsored by my colleague from Illinois (Mr. QUIGLEY).

Federal agencies are required to produce numerous reports to Congress each year. These reports cover a wide range of topics that give valuable insight into government activities.

While some reports are posted on agency websites, most are not available online. It is incredibly difficult for the general public to find reports, especially older reports. Keep in mind that these are reports that the taxpayers paid for in the first place. H.R. 736 will solve this problem. The bill directs the Federal Government to compile all congressionally mandated reports in a central location.

The Government Publishing Office would be required to establish an online database where agencies would submit congressionally mandated reports. In order to protect sensitive information, the bill allows agencies to redact information in reports that would otherwise not be releasable to the public under the Freedom of Information Act.

The database would provide access to reports free of charge. The reports would be searchable, sortable, and available to be downloaded in bulk. H.R. 736 ensures that these taxpayer-funded reports are transparent and accessible. It will make it easier for both the public and Congress to review and evaluate Federal agency activities. Increased transparency under this bill will allow the public to help Congress hold the government accountable.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. QUIGLEY), a distinguished member and sponsor of this legislation.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I will keep my comments brief because this bipartisan, commonsense bill is simple. H.R. 736 would make all agency reports to Congress, and releasable under FOIA, available on one website at no cost to the American public.

Each year, Federal agencies submit thousands of reports to Congress that contain a wealth of information that enables the public to better understand how Federal agencies are, or are not, fulfilling their respective missions, from ensuring the safety of our drugs and financial institutions, to the operation of the environment and monitoring the soundness of our financial institutions.

Unfortunately, many, if not most, of these reports simply sit collecting dust in the committees they are delivered to or are posted in numerous and confusing places on dozens of agency websites, rarely to be seen or thought of again.

In fact, the only comprehensive list of congressionally mandated reports is printed in paper format each year by the Clerk of the House and is available only by request, provided that one knows it exists.

My bill would, for the first time, create a single website where the public and Members of Congress can easily search, sort, and download all congressionally mandated reports from agencies.

Ultimately, this will help us conduct better research and oversight of these agencies and will allow the public to learn about what agencies are doing with their hard-earned tax dollars.

This bill is meant to be a window into the workings of government to ensure the government’s business is done transparently and is accountable to the people it serves.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this straightforward, commonsense bill and vote “yes” on H.R. 736.

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I have no further speakers. I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I have no further speakers. I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 736, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

LUCAS LOWE POST OFFICE

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1250) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 11158 Highway 146 North in Hardin, Texas, as the “Lucas Lowe Post Office”, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 1250

Be it enacted by the House and Senate of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
As my colleagues know, to fast-track this measure.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous materials on this measure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1526) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 11158 Highway 146 North in Hardin, Texas, as the 'Lucas Lowe Memorial Post Office'.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleagues in consideration of H.R. 1526, to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 200 Israel Road Southeast in Tumwater, Washington, as the “Eva G. Hewitt Post Office.”

Eva Hewitt was not just a business woman and postmaster, but she was often described as the heart and soul of Tumwater.

With her husband, Charles Hewitt, Eva established the Hewitt Drug Store which housed the Tumwater Post Office. Eva Hewitt started as an assistant, and later assumed the role of postmaster in 1915. Following the death of her husband in 1927, Eva Hewitt took over the business and the post office. Eva Hewitt was the longest serving postmaster until 1942. At the time, Eva was the only woman postmaster in 1915. Following the death of her husband in 1927, Eva Hewitt took over the business and the post office. Eva Hewitt was the longest serving postmaster until 1942. At the time, Eva was the only woman postmaster in 1915. Following the death of her husband in 1927, Eva Hewitt took over the business and the post office.

Eva Hewitt also was a community leader and was widely regarded as Tumwater’s local historian. She was also active in the Daughters of the Pioneers of Washington and was the namesake of the Eva Hewitt Orthopedic Guild. The Hewitt Drug Store was eventually demolished for the construction of Interstate 5.

Naming a post office to honor Ms. Hewitt’s public service would help ensure that her pivotal legacy lives on. So I yield myself such time as I may consume. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I have no further speakers. I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend remarks and include extraneous material on this measure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mrs. LURIA) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleagues in consideration of H. R. 1844, to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 66 Grove Court in Elgin, Illinois, as the Corporal Alex Martinez Memorial Post Office Building.

Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI).

Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA).

Madam Speaker, we would like to rise in support of my own legislation, H. R. 1844, to designate the facility of the U.S. Postal Service located at 66 Grove Court in Elgin, Illinois, as the Corporal Alex Martinez Memorial Post Office Building.

Corporal Alex Martinez, a lifelong Elgin resident, wanted to join the Marine Corps since he was a little boy. From a young age, he yearned to follow in the footsteps of his father, Enrique Martinez, who was a longtime Navy reservist, and an aunt who served in the Army.

As a senior in high school, with his whole life ahead of him, he decided to follow his dreams. He surprised his friends and family by attending summer school to graduate early, enlisted in the Marine Corps, and marry his high school sweetheart, Juliana Martinez, at the age of 18.

After graduation from basic training, Corporal Martinez was assigned to the 1st Combat Engineer Battalion, 1st Marine Expeditionary Force, where he excelled as a combat engineer. In this role, he had the dangerous but crucial responsibility to guide ground forces away from life-threatening obstacles, such as lethal improvised explosive devices.

In his second deployment on April 5, 2012, a unit that Corporal Martinez was guiding began receiving enemy fire. Despite facing an immediate threat to his own life, he continued to calmly and systematically clear lanes for marines to maneuver against the enemy.

Tragically, Corporal Martinez was killed after an explosive device detonated in Helmand province. In that moment, Alex Martinez became the first and only Elgin native to fall in combat since the terror attacks on September 11.

While in Afghanistan, Corporal Martinez would tell his loved ones his plans to start a family and to continue his selfless service by becoming a fireman or a police officer. But as a consequence of his sacrifices to this great Nation and the people who inhabit it, he never could pursue those dreams.

Madam Speaker, you and I and the many Members of this Chamber are fortunate to live in a diverse nation with innumerable freedoms, but we can only enjoy these freedoms and the peace and prosperity that accompany them because of the sacrifices made by Corporal Martinez and the millions of men and women who dedicate their lives to defend our democracy.

To honor Corporal Martinez’s honorable sacrifices to this country, to recognize the sacrifice of his loved ones, and to express solidarity with all service members and veterans in the United States, I strongly urge my colleagues to support H. R. 1844.

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H. R. 1844, introduced by Representative KRISHNAMOORTHI. This bill names the post office located in Elgin, Illinois, in honor of Marine Corporal Alex Martinez.

Alex Martinez knew he was destined for public service since he was a little boy. He had a two-phased plan. First, he would join the military, following in his father’s footsteps. Then, upon retirement, he would continue in public service as a police officer or firefighter. Shortly after high school, Alex joined the United States Marine Corps, filling step one of his boyhood dream. After boot camp, he was assigned to the 1st Combat Engineer Battalion, 1st Marine Division.

Corporal Martinez was deployed twice to Afghanistan in support of Operation Enduring Freedom. On April 5, 2012, Corporal Martinez was conducting combat operations in the Helmand province of Afghanistan when he was killed after an explosive device detonated.

While Corporal Martinez’s life of service was tragically cut short, his sacrifice and bravery will not be forgotten. I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I have no further speakers.

I urge all of my colleagues to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H. R. 1844.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RYAN KEITH COX POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H. R. 3305) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 2509 George Mason Drive in Virginia Beach, Virginia, as the "Ryan Keith Cox Post Office Building".

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

H. R. 3305

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Ryan Keith Cox Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on this measure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROUDA) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mrs. LURIA) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleagues in consideration of H. R. 3305, to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 2509 George Mason Drive in Virginia Beach, Virginia, as the Ryan Keith Cox Post Office Building.

Madam Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mrs. LURIA) to further explain her bill.

Mrs. LURIA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and heroic actions of Ryan Keith Cox.

On May 31, the year’s largest mass shooting in America struck in our Virginia Beach community. Keith was... amongst the 12 wonderful people who lost their lives in the tragedy. In his final moments, Keith showed extraordinary bravery.

Keith was an active and irreplaceable member of our community. He regularly attended his father’s church, New Hope Baptist Church, where he sang in the choir with his renowned golden voice. He had hoped to follow his calling and his father’s footsteps and become more active in the ministry.

For 12 years, Keith served the city of Virginia Beach as a public utilities employee. His coworkers described him as someone who was always nice to others and treated colleagues to lunch. One colleague called Keith a ‘teddy bear’ who always knew what to say to make an upset colleague smile.

Those who knew him said Keith embodied leadership. Keith’s friends and family agreed that he made his impact by putting the needs of others before his own. Keith’s last day on Earth was no different.

During the shooting, Keith led several of his coworkers to safety. Keith then refused to take refuge, stating: ‘I’ve got to see if anybody else needs help.’

Keith stood watch and checked on his colleagues, voluntarily exposing himself to a deadly line of fire. One of Keith’s colleagues summed it up: ‘If it wasn’t for him, there would have been several more people who perished.

In our community’s darkest hour, Keith prioritized the safety of his colleagues over his own. He was a true servant leader who made the ultimate sacrifice.

This is our chance to tell Keith’s story, to showcase his heroism to our community, our Commonwealth, and our Nation. I was proud to introduce this bill to name a local post office in Ryan Keith Cox’s honor will forever remind us of his valor and his 12-year long career with the Virginia Beach Post Office.

Madam Speaker, the designation of this post office in Ryan Keith Cox’s honor will forever remind us of his valor and his 12-year long career with the Virginia Beach Post Office. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleagues in consideration of H.R. 2325, to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 100 Calle Alondra in San Juan, Puerto Rico, as the 65th Infantry Regiment Post Office Building.

In 1899, a year after the Spanish-American War, Congress authorized the creation of a unit of volunteer soldiers in the newly acquired territory of Puerto Rico. Redesignated in 1920 as the 65th Infantry Regiment of the United States Army, this unit served admirably in World War II and the Korean war.

In World War II, the 65th Infantry Regiment suffered casualties defending against enemy attacks, with regiment members earning one Distinguished Service Cross, two Silver Stars, two Bronze Stars, and 90 Purple Hearts.

In the Korean war, when General MacArthur ordered the evacuation of the Hungnam enclave, the 65th Infantry Regiment played a crucial role, and ultimately, under the Regiment’s protection, 105,000 troops and 100,000 refugees were evacuated.

These brave Americans protected the very foundation of this great country. Naming a post office to honor the 65th Infantry Regiment who served and sacrificed for us is but a small price of what these brave men and women deserve from the country to whom they have given so much.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2325) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 100 Calle Alondra in San Juan, Puerto Rico, as the ‘65th Infantry Regiment Post Office Building’.

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Madam Speaker, I yield as much time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Puerto Rico (Miss GONZÁLEZ-COLÓN), my friend.

Miss GONZÁLEZ-COLÓN of Puerto Rico. Madam Speaker, I thank Mr. KELLER for the opportunity.

I am very humbled but, at the same time, very proud to rise in support of H.R. 2325, legislation that I introduced to designate the United States Postal Service facility located at 100 Calle Alonpra in San Juan, Puerto Rico, as the “65th Infantry Regiment Post Office Building.”

Shortly after Puerto Rico became a U.S. territory in 1898, Congress authorized the creation of a unit of volunteer soldiers on the island. Then, in 1920, the unit was redesignated as the 65th Infantry Regiment of the United States Army, and it served as the Nation’s last segregated unit, composed mainly of Hispanic soldiers coming from Puerto Rico.

Members of this regiment—commonly known as The Borinqueneers after the Taíno word for “Puerto Rico” meaning land of the brave—represent the best of our island’s proud and rich tradition of military service.

Despite their relatively limited combat service in World War II, the regiment suffered casualties defending against enemy attacks. Individual soldiers from this unit earned one Distinguished Service Cross, two Silver Stars, two Bronze Stars, and 90 Purple Hearts.

However, it was during the Korean war that the 65th Infantry Regiment’s patriotism and courage came to be widely known and admired.

Fighting as a segregated unit from 1950 until 1952, the Borinqueneers participated in some of the fiercest and toughest battles of the war.

The Borinqueneers not only fought the enemy on the battlefield, but they also had to overcome negative stereotypes held by some of their commanders and fellow soldiers.

Brigadier General William Harris, who commanded the regiment during the early stages of the Korean war, would recall that he had been reluctant to assume command of the unit just because of the prejudice within the military, but that his experience eventually reimbursed the members of the 65th Infantry Regiment as the best soldiers he had ever seen.

General Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief of the United Nations Command in Korea, would similarly write that “The Puerto Rican soldiers of the gallant 65th Infantry give daily proof on the battlefields of Korea of their courage, determination, and resolute will to victory, their invincible loyalty to the United States and their fervent devotion to their imitated example of human relations, which the Americans of the continent and Puerto Rico have in common. They are writing a brilliant record of heroism in battle, and I am indeed proud to have them under my command. I wish that we could count on many more like them.”

For its extraordinary service during the Korean war, the Borinqueneers received many unit-level awards, including two Presidential Unit Citations. Soldiers in the regiment earned a total of nine Distinguished Service Crosses, approximately 250 Silver Stars, over 600 Bronze Stars, and more than 2,700 Purple Hearts.

Even 60 years later the laurels continued, as Master Sergeant Juan Negron, who served in the 65th Infantry Regiment, was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor, our Nation’s highest military decoration.

In 2014, actually, this same House enacted legislation to award the Congressional Gold Medal to the Borinqueneers. The 65th, consequently, became the first Hispanic unit and the sole unit from the Korean war to receive this distinction, and they were the last unit to launch a battalion-sized bayonet attack by the U.S. Army. Madam Speaker, H.R. 2325 allows us to continue honoring the Borinqueneers’ service by designating the U.S. Post Office in San Juan as the “65th Infantry Regiment Post Office Building.”

This recognition is made even more significant when considering that this Federal building is located adjacent to one of Puerto Rico’s main avenues. Do you know the name? It is the 65th Infantry Regiment Avenue. That is how you know the name? It is the 65th Infantry Regiment Avenue.

The story of these soldiers is emblematic of the courage of thousands of Puerto Rican soldiers who, for generations, have fought and bled alongside their fellow Americans to defend the United States across the world.

Madam Speaker, as Puerto Rico’s sole representative in this Congress, I urge my colleagues to join me in further recognizing their sacrifice, their legacy, by supporting this bill.

Mr. ROUDA. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I, too, encourage my colleagues to support this bill.

Madam Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for leading the minority discussion today, the newest Member of Congress. It is an honor to serve with him. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under section 956 of the House Rules and Manual, the Speaker is constrained not to entertain the request unless it has been cleared by the bipartisan floor and committee leaderships.

CONSENSUS CALENDAR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair announces the Speaker’s designation, pursuant to clause 7(a)(1) of rule XV, of H.R. 748 as the measure on the Consensus Calendar to be considered this week.

MIDDLE CLASS HEALTH BENEFITS TAX REPEAL ACT OF 2019

Mr. NEAL. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 748) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the excise tax on high cost employer-sponsored health coverage, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 748

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.”

SEC. 2. REPEAL OF EXCISE TAX ON HIGH COST EMPLOYER-SPOONSORED HEALTH COVERAGE.

(a) In General.—Chapter 43 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by striking section 4980I.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. NEAL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. After a decade of fiercely debating the merits of the Affordable Care Act, I hope we will turn a corner today, and can now focus on strengthening the parts of the law that work in the manner we had intended and changing the parts of the law, which is not unusual, that we believe could be improved.

This legislation, tirelessly championed by Representative JOE COURTNEY of Connecticut, with 367 bipartisan cosponsors, addresses the so-called “Cadillac tax,” a part of the law that had the unintended consequences of reducing healthcare benefits that were provided to certain American workers.

More than 181 million Americans currently depend upon employer-sponsored health insurance, the majority of the American people, including retirees, low-and moderate-income families, public-sector employees, small business owners, and nonprofit workers.

While the name “Cadillac tax” implies this excise tax only applies to luxury health coverage, the truth is it will eventually apply to almost every American with employer-sponsored health insurance.

At a time when American families are already worried about the healthcare costs that apply to them, the Cadillac tax has had the effect of increasing deductibles and out-of-pocket costs as employers make changes in their plans designed to avoid the tax.

We have also found that the Cadillac tax affects health plans that have higher numbers of workers with chronic diseases or serious illnesses, that cover more than a million women or families, or that provide to part-time workers because premiums for those plans are often higher.

This was not the goal of this tax when it was originally included in the ACA. I know because I helped to negotiate and to write the Affordable Care Act.

Congress wanted to encourage employers and insurance companies to find ways to offer better coverage at lower costs. And, while many actions in the ACA did bend the cost curve, it was not enough. Employers and insurance companies are now killing off employer-sponsored coverage, higher out-of-pocket healthcare costs are still little to no resultant wage increases.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLY of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, this is a great day for us. We worked with Chairman NEAL on this and JOE COURTNEY. I don’t normally go out on a limb, but it is nice to see a bunch of Irish guys get together—I am not sure you can say that anymore in the people’s House—to make sure that we are protecting so many people who have earned healthcare through their employer.

For the last couple of days, if you were to look at what happened here in the House and you were to go back home and talk to people back home, they would ask, “Can’t you guys get along on anything? Can’t you put away those things you guys over here actually start to talk about the things that help us? Can’t you do things like that?”

We have watched it, Madam Speaker, and I am sure people are back home saying, “They can’t do anything.”

Well, I am here to tell you today that is just not true. You are going to see a bipartisan effort today on a bipartisan bill to make sure that hardworking Americans get to keep their employer-sponsored healthcare.

Those are people in labor unions. Those are people in everyday businesses: small businesses, big businesses, all across the board.

What we are doing today is a move in the right direction. What we are doing today is truly bipartisan, and we hope it becomes bicameral.

Today you are going to see both Republicans and Democrats come together to do the right thing for the right reasons, and good things are going to come of that.

It just doesn’t get any better than this, especially at a time when you go back home and people just look at us and say, “Holy smokes. On the floor of the people’s House, you guys can’t get along on anything?”

Well, we are. We are going to get along on something. And we are going to do something that is really big, and we are going to pass H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act. It is also known as the Cadillac tax.

I happen to be a Cadillac dealer. Cadillac has forever been described as the standard of the world.

The healthcare piece we are talking about is a standard of the world. And so many times in the past it was described as, this is just too darn generous for generations of people who... went to the bargaining table and negotiated, as part of their labor agreements, healthcare.

Mr. COURTNEY. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. COURTNEY), the lead sponsor of this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. DELBENE), the lead sponsor of this legislation, is authorized to control the balance of the time and is recognized.

Ms. DELBENE. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. COURTNEY), the lead sponsor of this legislation.

Mr. COURTNEY. Madam Speaker, I thank Congresswoman DELBENE for her leadership managing this bill and the Ways and Means Committee for embracing it. Their advocacy sends a powerful message to the House to pass the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.

I also thank my friend, Representative MIKE KELLY, for his bipartisan support of the bill, defying the polarized politics that too often dominates the healthcare debate.

Madam Speaker, this bill today comes with the support of more than 600 healthcare groups that represent millions of Americans who have joined together to repeal the 40 percent excise tax on health plans scheduled to go into effect in 2022.

Madam Speaker, this tax was a late add-on to the Affordable Care Act deliberations and has been rattling around in the Federal Tax Code since 2010, never actually having collected a penny of revenue but, nonetheless, casting a statutory shadow over 180 million Americans' health plans, which we know, from HR administrators and employee reps in real life, has added pressure to shift coverage into higher deductible plans, which falls on the backs of working Americans.

As the Commonwealth Fund recently reported, the number of Americans who are underinsured as a result of high deductibles has grown by over 50 percent since 2005. The Kaiser Family Foundation just reported that 31 percent of employer health plans will get hit with the excise tax in 2022, and that number will skyrocket soon after.

Passage of this bill will lift the shadow that hangs over employer-sponsored plans and stop the high deductible trend from worsening.

As the bill's lead sponsor, I want to foot stomp that the repeal of the tax does not touch the architecture of the ACA's patient protections. Repeal is completely severable from the other 400 sections of the law and leaves intact essential health benefits and the elimination of preexisting condition exclusions and lifetime limits.

Given that those patient protections have been in full operation for the last 10 years, during which this zombie tax has been in a coma, it is abundantly clear that the tax is disconnected from the rest of the law.

Lastly, I want to underscore the CBO determination that passage will not result in any increase in the number of uninsured.

Madam Speaker, with 370 House cosponsors, I am hopeful that an overwhelming tally tonight will send a laser-like message to the Senate to adopt this bill as soon as possible, as is.

Madam Speaker, I include in the RECORD letters from Families USA, a strong advocate for the ACA, as well as the Council of Insurance Agents & Brokers, in support of the bill, and a 2009 letter signed by 188 supporters of the ACA in support of this repeal of the excise tax.

HON. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. FAMILIESUSA, July 15, 2019.
not the answer. It is the primary responsibility of policy makers, the health care sector, and the government to solve the health care cost crisis. And your constituents agree. More than 80 percent of people in this nation—both Democrats and Republicans—believe it’s the responsibility of the government to get control of out-of-control health care costs.

H.R. 748 is an important opportunity for Congress to support high quality health care and the employers that provide it. In recent years, deductibles in ESI plans have risen considerably while costs have continued to grow. The so-called “Cadillac Tax” creates the wrong incentive to employers around the nation. For low and moderate-income working families, it will trigger higher deductibles, higher premiums, and the employers that provide it. In recent years, deductibles in ESI plans have risen 8.9% since 2010, while wage growth has remained comparatively flat. The legislation repeals the so-called “Cadillac Tax” that undermines the employer sponsored insurance market. The “Cadillac tax” applies a 40 percent excise tax on the value of employee benefits and property/casualty agents that represents the largest and most successful enterprise in health insurance and property/casualty agents across the nation. What we need now is higher value in insurance coverage, and in turn, discourage wasteful health care spending. This assumption is based on access to a substantial choice in coverage, which is certainly not the case under our current system. Today, small employers pay more for a given insurance plan than a large employer—not because of benefit quality or an employees’ excessive use of plan benefits, but due to smaller risk pools. While America’s Affordable Health Choices Act will help close most of the insurance discounts it can’t be achieved until 2018 when all reforms are enacted. Further, America’s Affordable Health Choices Act will allow for continued use of age rating with declining rates. While age rating will be restricted, the practice underscores limited choice for cheaper coverage options.

America’s Affordable Health Choices Act includes sensible revenue sources to pay for the legislation. However, inclusion of an excise tax on high cost insurance plans, as proposed by the Senate Finance Committee, could have significant and detrimental implications for millions of middle-class Americans. The short-term impact would be great on individuals and families living in high cost regions and for those that have sacrificed pay increases for strong benefits. Over the long term, the number of individuals and families subjected to the tax would likely continue to grow. To this end, we urge you to continue to reject proposals to enact an excise tax on high cost insurance plans that could be potentially passed on the middle class families.

We look forward continuing to work with you to advance health care reform legislation that expands coverage and lowers care costs.

Sincerely,

JOE COURTNEY
Mike Ross.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

H5961

The Council,

July 15, 2019.

HON. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

Dear Speaker Pelosi: On behalf of the Council of Insurance Agents and Brokers ("The Council"). I write to express our members’ strong support for H.R. 748, The Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. The legislation repeals the so-called “Cadillac Tax” that undermines the employer sponsored insurance market. The “Cadillac tax” applies a 40 percent excise tax on the value of employer-sponsored health coverage that exceeds certain threshold levels—estimated to be $11,100 for self-only coverage and $23,750 for family coverage for 2022. We thank Congressman Joe Courtney and Mike Kelly for their leadership on this important issue, and urge members of the House of Representatives to support H.R. 748.

By way of background, The Council represents the largest and most successful employee benefits and property/casualty agencies and broker firms annually place more than $300 billion in commercial insurance business in the United States and abroad. Council members conduct business in some 30,000 locations and employ upwards of 350,000 people worldwide. In addition, Council members specialize in a wide range of insurance products and risk management services for business, industry, government, and the public.

The “Cadillac Tax,” has been delayed twice by Congress to protect Americans from its harmful impact. But the latest implementation date of 2022 continues to cause an adverse effect on the affordability and quality of health care coverage available to employees and their families. The Kaiser Family Foundation notes that deductibles have risen 89% since 2010, while wage growth has remained comparatively flat.

The tax was intended to impact Americans with “gold-plated” plans, but the reality is that very modest plans covering low- and moderate-income working families will trigger the tax. The latest implementation date of 2022 continues to cause an adverse effect on the affordability and quality of health care coverage available to employees and their families. The Kaiser Family Foundation notes that deductibles have risen 89% since 2010, while wage growth has remained comparatively flat.

HON. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

Dear Speaker Pelosi: As Congress continues to consider revenue sources for America’s Affordable Health Choices Act and other health insurance reform proposals, we strongly encourage you to reject imposing an excise tax on so called high cost insurance plans. Significant regions with high health care costs in the short-term, and, in the long-term, inevitably extend to more and more middle income Americans across the country.

As you know, the Senate Finance Committee reform proposal, America’s Healthy Future Act, contained a 40 percent excise tax on insurance plans that exceed certain threshold levels. Real life experience with both health insurers and inelastic markets for services such as health insurance has clearly warned us that this tax will be passed along to insurance payers. Beginning in 2013, the threshold for individual plans will be $9,800 in family coverage. In subsequent years, increases in the cost thresholds will be tied to the Consumer Price Index for urban consumers (CPI-U) plus one percent. The proposal also includes a transition relief rule, which will set cost thresholds 20 percent higher for the 17 highest cost states. The transition relief rule will be phased out by 2016. It is important to note that the proposed thresholds for such a tax already have been surpassed for many middle-income Americans in 2009.

For middle-income Americans that have forgone wage and salary increases for strong insurance benefits, these thresholds are simply too low. And, for middle-income Americans who live in the highest cost regions for health care, the transition relief rule is also too low and phased out far too soon.

A Commonwealth Fund report issued on August 20, 2009, “Paying the Price: How Health Insurance Premiums Are Eating Up Middle-Class Incomes,” outlined projected increases in insurance premiums if nothing is done to change the current cost trajectory. According to the report, average insurance premiums for a family of four with employer sponsored insurance coverage increased over the next ten years, with average annual increases of 5.7 percent. The report went on to conclude that average premium costs for family coverage in 2015 will range from $15,508 in the lowest cost state to $19,731 in the highest cost state. Considering high and low cost states will be treated the same with regard to the proposed excise tax in 2013, the average premium projections in high cost regions teeter on the projected cost thresholds of the excise tax.

Further, the lessons learned from the alternative minimum tax (AMT) should also serve as a warning for the creation of an excise tax on high cost insurance plans. Over the past 20 years, the AMT has morphed from a tax on the wealthiest Americans to a tax on the middle class. In 1969, when the

Mr. KELLY of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I thank Mr. KELLY for giving me time to speak in support of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. This bill will provide the much-needed relief from one of the most burdensome and blunt taxes in ObamaCare.

By repealing this tax, we will save employers from paying a 40 percent tax on high-cost employer-sponsored health coverage. The bill will provide much-needed relief not only for employers but for employees, some of whom are low-income earners with high-cost health benefits who are forced to bear the repercussions of this tax.

That said, I am disappointed that the majority chose not to repeal the medical device tax or the health insurance tax, both of which are harming hard-working families across the country.

The medical device tax is a 2.3 percent excise tax on the value of medical devices sold domestically. Making life-saving products more expensive is not good policy and should be included in this repeal bill.

The health insurance tax, or HIT, is a more than $100 billion sales tax on private health insurance that affects every private plan in the country. At a time when we are all trying to lower the cost of healthcare, why are the Democrats in the majority preventing us from removing this unnecessary and burdensome tax?

This bill could do so much more, but I am happy that the majority is finally admitting that the ObamaCare tax increases are bad for the country and that good tax policy doesn’t need to be replaced with more bad tax hikes. In fact, when much of our healthcare system is failing, when healthcare costs are still unaffordable for many, when Medicare will be insolvent within a decade, and when Medicaid’s uncontrollable costs are bankrupting our States, it still leaves millions of low- and middle-income earners without access to doctors. We should be working harder to provide more access and choice to the American people in a fiscally responsible way.

Madam Speaker, I urge the repeal of this tax, and I urge adoption of the bill.

Ms. DEIBLE. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. LARSON).

Mr. LARSON of Connecticut. Madam Speaker, I commend my colleague on the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. KELLY, for his hard work and diligence in bringing this bill to the floor, as he acknowledges below.

I think the gentleman and everybody in this body understand and respect the persistence, hard work, and dedication of Joe Courtney. From its introduction and inception, from its first letter to its more than 370 sponsors, ultimately, he has demonstrated that, yes, in this body, we can arrive at solutions in a bipartisan way that people will ever remember. But it is his diligence, persistence, and ability to work across the aisle, working together in the common interest of every American citizen.

Joe Courtney was chairman of the Public Health Committee in the Connecticut Legislature. He has forgotten more about these programs than most people will ever remember. But it is his diligence, persistence, and ability to work across the aisle that has brought this legislation here today to be passed unanimously.

Mr. KELLY of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. ESTES).

Mr. ESTES. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.

This important bill repeals the so-called Cadillac tax, a policy implemented through ObamaCare that would have placed a 40 percent tax on high-cost employer healthcare plans.

The tax was originally included as a way to help pay for the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, commonly called ObamaCare, by targeting employers with expensive health plans and insurance companies. However, in practice, it would have been middle-class workers bearing the real burden to pay for it through taxes. It would have hurt union members, nonunion members, small businesses, and nonprofits.

In fact, the Joint Committee on Taxation and the Congressional Budget Office predicted that a whopping 70 percent of the revenue collected by the Cadillac tax would have come from higher income and payroll taxes rather than excise taxes on insurers.

This massive tax increase would have devastated middle-class workers and families, many of whom continue to struggle with the rising costs of ObamaCare as it is.

I thank my colleagues for realizing the bad implications of this failed policy and for working in a bipartisan way to repeal the Cadillac tax.

I am hopeful that today’s action will allow us to move forward to address similar policies, like the health insurance tax and the medical device tax.

Instead of propping up the failed Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, let us focus on tax cuts that would give more choices, and instead of increasing taxes, we must get serious about improving healthcare and our economy.

Madam Speaker, I believe H.R. 748 is a great first step, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I include the letters that I have in my hand in the RECORD.

INTERNATIONAL FEDERATION OF PROFESSIONAL & TECHNICAL ENGINEERS, AFL-CIO & CLC,

WASHINGTON, DC, July 15, 2019

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of 80,000 workers represented by the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers (IFPTE), we are writing to urge you to vote for the passage of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act. This important bipartisan legislation repeals the so-called ‘‘Cadillac tax’’—a perplexing, employer-sponsored health care plans—set to take effect in 2022—those of millions of working and retired Americans depend on.

Since the 40 percent excise tax was enacted as part of the Patient Protection & Affordable Care Act, out of pocket health care costs have continued to increase faster than wages. At the bargaining table, workers in all sectors of the economy are accepting lower or no pay increases, and cuts to other important benefits in exchange for an employer-provided health benefit that is both affordable and meets the health needs of their families. If this tax is not repealed, millions of workers and retirees will see the real gains from these tradeoffs fall by the wayside, while the underlying issues driving health care costs will go unaddressed.

Analysis by the Congressional Research Service and the Congressional Budget Office shows that the costs of this tax will be passed onto workers in the form of lower wages, reduced benefits, and the loss of coverage options. Even though the excise tax has not taken effect yet, it has already affected the benefits and quality of employer-sponsored health insurance. Employers themselves admit that the tax is an impediment to providing a health care benefit that could end up triggering the 40% excise tax.

In anticipation of the tax’s original effective date, the American Society of Preventive Medicine reported in 2015 that ‘‘Almost 90 percent of large employers are taking steps to...’ try to prevent their company from having a plan that triggers the excise tax.” In the federal sector, the OPM’s Federal Employees Health Benefits Program carrier guidance tells federal employees to design plans to avoid triggering the excise tax.

If the excise tax is allowed to take effect, it will work in favor of plans that push down benefits to employees, while hurt employers who are trying to provide generous benefits, but because of demographic factors, geographic disparities, market concentration, and risk pool size.

To be clear, it is not employers or insurer companies who will end up shouldering the tax’s burden: it is workers and middle-class families who end up floating the bill for this regressive tax. Researchers at CUNY School of Public Health found the 40 percent health benefits tax will “disproportionately harm families with incomes between $38,550 and $100,000, the wealthy.” This tax will only serve to increase healthcare costs and reduce benefits for working Americans in a time where they simply cannot afford to pay more for less coverage.

For all of these reasons, I urge you to support working families and vote “Yes” on H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal of 2019.

Thank you.

ROBERT MARTINEZ, Jr.,
International President.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MACHINISTS AND AEROSPACE WORKERS, Upper Marlboro, MD, July 15, 2019.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM), I strongly urge you to support working families and vote “Yes” on the bipartisan Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal of 2019. H.R. 748. This vital legislation introduced by Representatives Joe Courtney (D-CT) and Mike Kelly (R-PA) would rightly repeal the 40% health benefits tax on employer-sponsored healthcare before working Americans and their families are further impacted by this onerous tax.

In a time where so many Americans are feeling the pinch of rising healthcare costs, the so-called “Cadillac Tax”, as it is commonly known, is a gut punch directed squarely at the middle class and working families. Despite several delays in its implementation, millions of Americans are already feeling the impact of the 40 percent health benefits tax. They feel its impact at the doctor’s office and at the bargaining table as employers increase deductibles, reduce benefits, and drop plan options to prepare for the tax’s looming threat. In order to halt these growing concerns on American workers, the tax must not simply be further delayed, but swiftly repealed.

Originally, the 40% health benefits tax was intended only to be levied only on “gold-plated” health insurance plans with very rich benefits. However, the realities of continued medical cost inflation, an aging workforce, and new medical technologies are pushing the cost of even modest plans above the tax’s threshold. We also know that the impact of the tax would disproportionately burden single-coverage plans that often face higher healthcare premiums. Plans hit by the tax often cover more female employees, more workers with dependent children, more senior workers at smaller businesses, and employees with physically demanding jobs.

More than 181 million people (a majority of the country) receive employer sponsored insurance. While the tax is “levied” on employers, experts expect costs largely to be shifted to workers and their families. And, it is unconscionable that hard working Americans will be levied a 40% excise tax on benefits that they have fought hard to achieve/receive looming over them. While this tax does not take effect until 2022, having twice Congress, this egregious tax is already hollowing out the benefits of working people who have employment-based coverage. Indeed, employers are already scaling back their health care benefits and offerings, and/or increasing workers’ out of pocket costs.

In recent years, deductibles and out of pocket costs of ESI plans have risen considerably, while costs continue to grow. According to the CUNY School of Public Health research, the health benefits tax predominately impacts the middle class. Congress should work together to strengthen the middle class instead of promoting policies that will ultimately take money from their hard earned paychecks and reduce, and make more costly, the health care benefits they receive.

I call on you to support the full and permanent repeal of the so-called “Cadillac Tax”. I urge you to tell other members that you stood with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters family to pass this important legislation. Vote yes on H.R. 748.

Sincerely,

JAMES P. HOFFA,
General President.

H.R. 748 has board support from affected stakeholders, including unions, public and private sector employers, health advocacy organizations, and health insurance providers. Today, a bipartisan majority in the House recognizes that the excise tax will result in reduced health benefits and coverage options, lower wages and pension benefits, hurt workers trying to provide competitive benefits to employees, while failing to address the real cost drivers in the health care system.

Therefore, we urge you to vote for H.R. 748.

Sincerely,

PAUL SHEARON,
Secretary-Treasurer
Legislative Director.

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF TEAMSTERS,

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: This week, the House of Representatives will consider H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. On behalf of the more than 1.4 million members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, I ask you to vote yes on H.R. 748. This bipartisan legislation would repeal the excise tax on high value employer sponsored health insurance (ESI), often referred to as the “Cadillac Tax”.

The Teamsters have long opposed proposals that tax higher valued benefits. Attempts to tax employer provided health care benefits through the 40 percent excise tax on high quality health care plans reduce the health benefits and wages Americans receive and increase their out of pocket costs. Policy makers should not penalize, with an egregious tax, employers that do the right thing and provide high value health insurance to their workers.

More than 181 million people (a majority of the country) receive employer-sponsored insurance. While the tax is “levied” on employers, experts expect costs largely to be shifted to workers and their families. And, it is unconscionable that hard working Americans will be levied a 40% excise tax on benefits that they have fought hard to achieve/receive looming over them. While this tax does not take effect until 2022, having twice Congress, this egregious tax is already hollowing out the benefits of working people who have employment-based coverage. Indeed, employers are already scaling back their health care benefits and offerings, and/or increasing workers’ out of pocket costs.

In recent years, deductibles and out of pocket costs of ESI plans have risen considerably, while costs continue to grow. According to the CUNY School of Public Health research, the health benefits tax predominately impacts the middle class. Congress should work together to strengthen the middle class instead of promoting policies that will ultimately take money from their hard earned paychecks and reduce, and make more costly, the health care benefits they receive.

I call on you to support the full and permanent repeal of the so-called “Cadillac Tax”. I urge you to tell other members that you stood with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters family to pass this important legislation. Vote yes on H.R. 748.

Sincerely,

ROBERT MARTINEZ, Jr.,
International President.

INTERNATIONAL UNION OF OPERATING ENGINEERS,

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: The International Union of Operating Engineers represents more than 316,000 professional fire fighters and emergency medical personnel, working in all 50 States and Canada, thousands of whom would be affected by this 40% tax on high value health insurance plans.

As you know, Congress has acted twice to delay this tax—its current effective date is July 17, 2019

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
H5963

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY:

The International Union of Operating Engineers represents more than 316,000 professional fire fighters and emergency medical personnel, working in all 50 States and Canada, thousands of whom would be affected by this 40% tax on high value health insurance plans.

As you know, Congress has acted twice to delay this tax—its current effective date is July 17, 2019.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY:

The International Union of Operating Engineers represents more than 316,000 professional fire fighters and emergency medical personnel, working in all 50 States and Canada, thousands of whom would be affected by this 40% tax on high value health insurance plans.

As you know, Congress has acted twice to delay this tax—its current effective date is
I am proud to be a cosponsor of today’s legislation, and I am excited that many of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle as well are prepared to get rid of this destructive tax that was put in place by ObamaCare.

But while we are at it, while we are repealing ObamaCare taxes, we should include an equally destructive tax in today’s repeal: the medical device tax.

I am very proud to serve the residents of Warsaw in northeast Indiana, the region that is often referred to as the orthopedic capital of the world. Unfortunately, companies in my district and all across this country have been needlessly hampered by the inability of this Congress to fully and permanently repeal the onerous medical device tax. When it was enforced, this tax destroyed 29,000 jobs and caused a $34 million reduction in investments in life-saving research and development.

So today, while we are here voting on this bipartisan legislation to repeal the Cadillac tax, I ask that all Members of this body be equally mindful in moving swiftly to also repeal the medical device tax.

Ms. DELBENE. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 1⁄2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DANNY K. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, Speaker, I strongly support this bill to eliminate the 40 percent tax on high-quality healthcare benefits.

Americans are facing a healthcare affordability crisis. Employers and insurers are raising the cost of healthcare for hardworking Americans by increasing copays, deductibles, and out-of-pocket expenses.

In the last decade, annual deductibles for families have exploded by 212 percent, while workers’ earnings have only increased 26 percent. This tax is clearly having a negative impact on working families, and its repeal is overdue.

The International Union of Operating Engineers supports H.R. 748 and respectfully requests that you repeal the tax on high-cost health plans as quickly as possible. We believe that permanent repeal of the 40-percent tax should be a top priority for this 116th Congress, and we look forward to working with you to enact it into law.

Thank you for your leadership on this vital issue for Operating Engineers and their families.

Sincerely, JAMES T. CALLAHAN, General President.

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I support this legislation, H.R. 748.

During our discussions on health reform in 2009, many of us strongly opposed the excise tax on so-called Cadillac employer-provided health plans. We were unsuccessful in keeping it out of the House version of the bill, but we all knew it ended up in the final bill. It has been delayed since then, but now it is enactment time. This is imminent. We need to do something now.

The Cadillac tax would impact employers and families whose health insurance plans cost more than $11,100 for an individual and $29,750 for family coverage. This is not a small universe, and the effects will be highly negative.

If we do nothing, this tax would fall squarely on employees, encouraging employers to shift away from tax-free health benefits to taxable wages.

As deductibles have risen more than 200 percent in the employer-sponsored insurance plans, the cost of care has continued to grow while wages remain flat. We must ensure that employers can continue to provide high-quality healthcare.

I urge my colleagues to support the bipartisan repeal of the Cadillac tax.

Mr. KELLY of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BANKS).

Mr. BANKS. Madam Speaker, this is a historic day. We have finally found a tax that Members and my friends on both sides of the aisle agree needs to be cut.

As such, when H.R. 748 comes to a vote, ERIC urges members to vote YES and support this legislation.

H.R. 748, supported by more than 360 co-sponsors in the House, would eliminate the excise tax on high-cost employer-sponsored health insurance. The tax does not target overly-generous benefits; instead, it attacks plans used by millions of Americans. As such, plans that insure more individuals with chronic conditions, more seniors, more women, and populations more likely to incur health care costs will be unfairly taxed at an inapplicable rate - those which base parts of the country where health care is more expensive.

If Congress fails to repeal the Cadillac tax, employers may have to: Directly shift costs to employees. This could increase the portion of the premium employees pay, increasing deductibles, copays and coinsurance.

Eliminate employer contributions to consumer-directed accounts. This includes Health Savings Accounts (HSAs), Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRAs), or Flexible Spending Accounts (FSAs).

Reduce access to care. This includes tightening networks and excluding high-cost providers, implementing barriers to high cost treatments and providers (step therapy, prior authorization), moving expensive medicines deeper into Rx formularies, and eliminating coverage for some medications.

Eliminate coverage for spouses and dependents, and separate out or eliminate expanded benefits like inpatient, dental, vision, hospital indemnity, laser-only, or other “add-on” benefits.

Drastically redesign plans. For instance, ending preferred provider organization (PPO) or similar plans, and implementing a high-deductible health plan (HDHP) or a health maintenance organization (HMO).

Eliminate investments in health. Investments that plan sponsors make to improve health may save money later, but the costs of those investments could be considered to push value to the plan. As such, plans may consider eliminating on-site clinics, wellness programs, telehealth benefits, health information technology investments, and other health improvement efforts that have up-front costs.

As we have previously reported to Congress, the Cadillac tax is an existential threat to employer-sponsored health benefits. Repealing the Cadillac tax is ERIC’s top priority on behalf of our member companies. While employers support efforts to reduce health care costs, a tax on benefits will do the opposite, making health insurance less affordable for workers, their families, and retirees.

As such, when H.R. 748 comes to a vote, ERIC urges members to vote YES. We look forward to working with Congress to finally repeal this damaging tax, to ensure affordability of health benefits for patients.

Sincerely, JAMES P. GELFAND.
AGC KEY VOTE: VOTE “YES” ON H.R. 748, THE MIDDLE CLASS HEALTH BENEFITS TAX REPEAL ACT OF 2019

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC), I write to urge you to support the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 748). The AGC, along with the National Coalition on Benefits (NCB), a coalition of businesses and associations committed to protecting the ability of employers to provide uniform employee health benefits across the country, strongly supports the passage of H.R. 748, the “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.” This legislation would repeal the looming “Cadillac Tax,” a 40 percent excise tax imposed on employee health benefits above a government-determined amount imposed by the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA), commonly referred to as the “Cadillac Tax.”

Any tax that raises the cost of health benefits will harm the more than 180 million Americans who rely on and value employer-sponsored health coverage. Even though the Cadillac Tax is delayed to 2022, the Business Group urges the 116th Congress to pass this legislation early in 2019 to provide permanent relief and clarity to employees that this fundamentally flawed tax will not impact their health benefits.

According to our survey data, absent plan changes, 73% of companies who responded will have at least one plan that triggers the excise tax in 2022 and 94% will in 2026. In a few short years, if the tax is not repealed, it will affect nearly 100% of employer plans since the tax is indexed to general inflation, not medical inflation, which is consistently much higher.

Furthermore, the National Business Group on Health, which represents 440, primarily large, employers (including 75 of the Fortune 100) who voluntarily provide health benefits and other health programs to over 55 million American employees and their families, believes that not only is this tax flawed, it is also not the most effective way to tackle rising health care costs. Rather than focusing on taxes that will raise costs for working Americans and their employers, Congress should focus on supply-side drivers of medical inflation and unnecessary care.

Sincerely,

Brian J. Marcotte, President and CEO.

NATIONAL COALITION ON BENEFITS,

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES: The National Coalition on Benefits (NCB), a coalition of businesses and associations committed to protecting the ability of employers to provide uniform employee health benefits across the country, strongly supports the passage of H.R. 748, the “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.” This legislation would repeal the looming “Cadillac Tax,” a 40 percent excise tax imposed on employee health benefits above a certain threshold. Employers support the full repeal of the Cadillac Tax because this tax inequitably forces the reduction of employee benefits and, because of the flawed indexing provisions of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, this tax will affect most plans in a few years, even those with reduced benefits. Employers devise benefit plans two years in advance of the actual plan year. As a result, employers are being forced now to reduce employee benefits in order to avoid the impending reach of the Cadillac tax.

Working Americans don’t want their health benefits taxed at a time when they’re already confronting higher premiums and deduct costs. A new poll, conducted by pollster Frank Luntz, highlights that 81 percent of voters oppose taxes on employer-provided health coverage.

The Cadillac Tax presents a direct threat to the more than 180 million Americans who rely on employer-sponsored coverage to meet their health care needs. Reps. Joe Courtney and Mike Kelly for their tireless efforts to repeal this onerous tax on employee benefits and urge the House to approve H.R. 748.

Sincerely,

NATIONAL COALITION ON BENEFITS.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of NFIB, the nation’s leading small business advocacy organization, I write in support of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. This legislation repeals the 40 percent excise tax on employer-sponsored health insurance, also known as the “Cadillac Tax.” Any tax that raises the cost of health benefits will harm the more than 180 million Americans who rely on and value employer-sponsored health coverage. Even though the Cadillac Tax is delayed to 2022, the Business Group urges the 116th Congress to pass this legislation early in 2019 to provide permanent relief and clarity to employees that this fundamentally flawed tax will not impact their health benefits.

According to our survey data, absent plan changes, 73% of companies who responded will have at least one plan that triggers the excise tax in 2022 and 94% will in 2026. In a few short years, if the tax is not repealed, it will affect nearly 100% of employer plans since the tax is indexed to general inflation, not medical inflation, which is consistently much higher.

Furthermore, the National Business Group on Health, which represents 440, primarily large, employers (including 75 of the Fortune 100) who voluntarily provide health benefits and other health programs to over 55 million American employees and their families, believes that not only is this tax flawed, it is also not the most effective way to tackle rising health care costs. Rather than focusing on taxes that will raise costs for working Americans and their employers, Congress should focus on supply-side drivers of medical inflation and unnecessary care.

Sincerely,

Mr. DelBENE. Madam Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ).

Ms. SANCHEZ. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act, and I want to thank Chairman NEAL and Mr. COURTNEY for their tireless efforts to get this legislation passed.

I have been proud to support the repeal of the Cadillac tax for many years. Last Congress, I offered an amendment to repeal the tax during the healthcare repeal and replace debate.

It is important to remember that the Cadillac tax does not just affect high-value plans. If Congress does not act, the tax will hit hardworking Americans and their families who receive employer-sponsored insurance. Employers... have already started shifting costs to their workers in anticipation by increasing deductibles, copays, and coinsurance. Congress has voted twice to delay the tax, but now is the time to officially repeal the law that we are ultimately taking this vote today. I look forward to passage today and will keep working to strengthen and protect America’s healthcare.

I include in the RECORD letters from CWA, UAW, AFSCME, AFT, and AFGE and the AFL-CIO in support of this bill.

COMMUNICATIONS WORKERS OF AMERICA, July 15, 2019.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE NEAL: On behalf of the officers and 700,000 members of the Communications Workers of America (CWA), I am writing to urge you to vote in favor of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019, when it comes before the House this week.

This tax will permanently repeal the 40% tax on employer health benefits which is currently scheduled to take effect in 2022. It will provide relief to our members, and working people everywhere, whose health benefits are under continual attack by employers looking to shift the cost of care to workers.

A recent study by the Commonwealth Fund found that the number of Americans who are underinsured as a result of high out-of-pocket costs and deductibles has grown by over 50% since 2010. The fastest growth in under-insurance has come from Americans with employer-provided coverage. This is consistent with our members’ experience at the bargaining table, where fights to preserve affordable coverage and prevent plan cuts dominate our negotiations at every employer.

CWA, along with the other unions, believes that the current excise tax on high-value employer sponsored health plans, like the one in the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019, will improve health care for many of our members and working families, including those who have benefited from this and other protections like nurses and teachers. Groups of workers who are relatively older, less healthy, or working jobs with relatively high health risks will also suffer additional health costs.

More broadly, America’s health care system faces an escalating affordability crisis and this 40 percent tax worsens it. For example, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) and prominent economists have predicted that employers have responded to the impending tax by increasing worker’s deductibles, copays, and/or coinsurance in order to avoid the excise tax by shifting higher health care costs to workers. The 40% benefit tax will exacerbate this trend and force cuts across our health plans, making health care less affordable.

Our members are currently negotiating agreements with employers that extend to 2022. Current data indicates many of our largest member health plans will be subject to this tax immediately when it goes into effect that year. That is why action now to resolve this issue is critical.

H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act, will improve health care for working people across the country, providing relief to workers who are paying high prices for their healthcare. CWA will consider votes on this bill on our Congressional Scorecard.

Thank you in advance for your consideration.

Sincerely,

SHANE LARSON,
Director of Legislative, Political and International Affairs.

INTERNATIONAL UNION, UNITED AUTOMOBILE, AEROSPACE & AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT WORKERS OF AMERICA—UAW

DETROIT, MI, July 16, 2019.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of more than one million active and retired members of the International Union, United Automobile, Aerospace & Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW), we urge you to vote yes on the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 748). This bill would permanently repeal the excise tax on high-value employer-sponsored health plans. The tax is scheduled to be levied on the aggregate amount of employer-sponsored coverage exceeding thresholds established in the law for individual coverage ($9,600) and family coverage ($30,100). The excise tax is currently set to take effect in 2022.

The UAW believes affordable comprehensive health care should be a right for every American. That is why we strongly support the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and vehemently oppose the law that is attempting to uproot it. The ACA has made important strides towards the goal of universal, comprehensive, affordable coverage. In fact, since its passage in March 2010, millions of people who are underinsured have gained health care coverage. In addition, tens of millions more with pre-existing conditions have been able to get affordable and comprehensive insurance, all protected by laws that are designed to discriminate against people with pre-existing conditions is prohibited under the ACA. Workers with employer sponsored coverage have benefits that are necessary and important protections, like the prohibition on lifetime caps, found in the law. Without these protections, unionized workers would have to collectively bargain for these essential, common sense protections.

Like any comprehensive law, the ACA needs to be refined and repealing the scheduled tax on employer sponsored coverage would improve our health care system. As the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) and prominent economists have predicted, employers have responded to the impending tax by increasing worker’s deductibles, copays, and/or coinsurance in order to avoid the tax. Employers who have increased cost sharing under their plans, switched to lower cost benefits, eliminated plan options, or narrowed provider networks in anticipation of the tax. According to a 2016 national survey of employers conducted by the Kaiser Family Foundation, the percentage of employers with a plan that restricted the choice of doctors or hospitals in order to avoid the excise tax on high-quality healthcare plans, was 28% in 2016 and 20% in 2022. This tax makes health care more affordable. We urge you to support the bipartisan “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act,” H.R. 748, and vote yes on this important legislation.

Sincerely,

JOSH NASSAR,
UAW Legislative Director.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the 1.7 million members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), I urge you to support passage of the bipartisan “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019” (H.R. 748), which would repeal the 40 percent ("Cadillac") tax on employer-sponsored worker and retiree health benefits. AFSCME strongly supports H.R. 748 to prevent further increases in workers’ health costs and erosion of their health benefits.

Repealing the 40 percent tax is needed because it encourages employers and insurers to reduce working families’ health benefits thereby raising medical copays, coinsurance, deductibles, and related out-of-pocket health expenses. AFSCME seeks immediate repeal because, while the tax does not take effect until 2022, it already is reducing benefits—especially for workers covered—disproportionately burdens working families, and discriminates against female dominated occupations like nurses and teachers. Groups of workers who are relatively older, less healthy, or working jobs with relatively high health risks will also suffer additional health costs.

More broadly, America’s health care system faces an escalating affordability crisis and this 40 percent tax worsens it. For example, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) and prominent economists have predicted that employers have responded to the impending tax by increasing worker’s deductibles, copays, and/or coinsurance in order to avoid the excise tax by shifting higher health care costs to workers. The 40% benefit tax will exacerbate this trend and force cuts across our health plans, making health care less affordable.

Our members are currently negotiating agreements with employers that extend to 2022. Current data indicates many of our largest member health plans will be subject to this tax immediately when it goes into effect that year. That is why action now to resolve this issue is critical.

H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act, will improve health care for working people across the country, providing relief to workers who are paying high prices for their healthcare. CWA will consider votes on this bill on our Congressional Scorecard.

Thank you in advance for your consideration.

Sincerely,

SHANE LARSON,
Director of Legislative, Political and International Affairs.

The 40 percent excise tax is not scheduled to take effect until 2022, so now is the time for repeal, before it has any further deleterious effect on the working and middle class families that are its targets. Support for repeal of this regressive tax is widespread. There is no doubt that its effect will be to make health insurance less affordable. That is certainly what workers and retirees whose compensation has declined in real terms over the past decade due to pay freezes and retirement benefit reductions. AFGE strongly supports the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.

Sincerely yours,

J. DAVID COX, SR.
Ms. DELBENE, Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. JUDY CHU).

Ms. JUDY CHU of California, Madam Speaker. I rise in support of H.R. 748, repealing the so-called Cadillac tax. I believe that we in Congress should be incentivizing employer-sponsored insurance to be more generous, not less; and at a time when the President is working to dismantle the Affordable Care Act, we should recognize that through regulations that allow junk plans to flourish, we need to stand with American workers and fight for more generous health plans.

The plans that are hit by this tax cover more female employees, more workers with dependent children, more older workers, and employees at small businesses. These are the people who are being hit by high deductibles, rising premiums, and more cost sharing in the health system than ever before. A recent study showed that in 2018, 58 percent of Americans do not have $1,000 of savings in case of an emergency, and yet the average deductible in 2018 was $3,350.

I must pass this bill. I include letters of support for H.R. 748 into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD from organizations such as the Alliance for Retired Americans, the Alliance to Fight the 40, and the College and University Personnel Association for Human Resources.

DEAR REPEALER SCHUMER: On behalf of the 4.4 million members of the Alliance for Retired Americans, I am writing to urge you to vote in favor of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act, when it comes up for a vote on the House floor this week.

As you know, approximately 181 million Americans rely on employer-provided health insurance for their medical care that they need. The 40% excise tax, originally passed as a part of the Affordable Care Act, is assessed on any health plan that provides coverage for a category of high-value benefits and is calculated as 40% of the actuarial premium cost of the plan. The “Cadillac Tax” would apply to plans that exceed a certain actuarial value, which is based on the government’s actuarial cost accounting standards, and are characterized by risk segmentation that raises their premiums above the actuarial value of their benefits. The “Cadillac Tax” imposes a relatively insignificant factor in the overall size of FEHBP’s premiums. Age, gender, health status and program structure are the most significant factors in determining higher premiums, and premiums determine whether a plan is subject to the tax.

While intended to target high-premium plans for the wealthy to expand benefits and coverage for uninsured individuals, the tax squarely affects middle class workers and their families. Johns Hopkins University researchers projected that 75% of employer-sponsored plans would be affected by the tax.

Retirees are especially vulnerable to higher health care costs and will be hit if the tax goes into effect. Older Americans’ retiree health benefits are already in jeopardy due to higher premiums. If not repealed, employers may reduce the benefits provided to their retirees who are younger than 65 and eliminate supplemental coverage altogether for Medicare eligible retirees age 65 and over. In addition, the tax disproportionately hurts women, low-income families, people with disabilities, workers with high-risk occupations, and those with chronic medical conditions.

Many workers are already experiencing the effects of the tax. Some employers are reducing health coverage for their employees to avoid the tax. Others are increasing premiums and deductibles to shift costs to workers. The Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act will eliminate this looming damage facing millions of American workers.

I urge you to vote in favor of H.R. 748 to protect quality health coverage for older Americans and millions of their families. The importance of this vote cannot be overstated.

Sincerely,

RICHARD J. FIESTA, Executive Director.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES, AFL-CIO.

On behalf of the more than 700,000 federal and District of Columbia employees represented by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, to urge your support for the bipartisan “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019” (H.R. 748) which would eliminate the unfair and unnecessary, and relatively high-cost employer-sponsored health insurance. We ask that you vote “YES” when the bill comes to the floor this week.

Most federal employees and federal retirees participate in the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program (FEHBP). The premiums for almost every plan that participates in FEHBP would be hit by this tax, making a very expensive program even more expensive for both taxpayers and participants. The act was not necessary and, thus is subject to this tax, not because the benefits they provide are so comprehensive, but because the structure of FEHBP leads to high premiums. FEHBP plans enroll enormous political power to charge high prices, escape audit by virtue of their exemption from application of the government’s cost accounting standards, and are characterized by risk segmentation that raises their premiums above the actuarial value of their benefits. The “Cadillac Tax” imposes a relatively insignificant factor in the overall size of FEHBP’s premiums. Age, gender, health status and program structure are the most significant factors in determining higher premiums, and premiums determine whether a plan is subject to the tax.

President.

RANDI WRINGARTEN. sides of the Capitol—and all across the country. Currently, there are more than 360 cosponsors in the House and 42 cosponsors in the Senate who support legislation to repeal the tax. In addition, 665 organizations including, businesses, nonprofits, cities, chambers of commerce, insurers, brokers, unions, and patient advocacy groups recently signed a letter supporting full repeal of the “Cadillac Tax.”

We urge you to keep health care affordable for working families by including full repeal of the “Cadillac Tax” in any package under consideration before the end of this year.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

ALLIANCE TO FIGHT THE 40.

COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR HUMAN RESOURCES, Knoxville, TN, July 17, 2019.

Hon. MITCH MCCONNELL, Majority Leader, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. CHARLES SCHUMER, Minority Leader, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR LEADER MCCONNELL, MINORITY LEADER SCHUMER, SPEAKER PELOSI, AND MINORITY LEADER MCCARTHY: On behalf of the College and University Professional Association for Human Resources (CUPA–HR), I write in support of H.R. 748, a bill that fully repeals the “Cadillac Tax,” and urge members of the House to vote “YES” when the bill comes to the floor for a vote this week. I also urge the Senate to approve this bill quickly and send the bill to the President’s desk before the end of the year.

CUPA–HR serves as the voice of human resources (HR) in higher education, representing more than 31,000 human resources professionals and other higher education leaders at over 2,000 colleges and universities across the country. Its membership includes 93 percent of all U.S. doctoral institutions, 79 percent of all master’s institutions, 58 percent of all bachelor’s institutions and over 500 two-year and specialized institutions. Higher education employs over 3.9 million workers nationwide, with colleges and universities in all 50 states.

CUPA–HR members collectively provide comprehensive health benefits to millions of employees, retirees, students and their families. As such, CUPA–HR supports and encourages employer efforts to provide benefits that enhance employees’ health and wellness—including efforts to keep healthcare affordable.

For these reasons we urge the full House to vote “yes” on this legislation. Please do not hesitate to reach out to me to discuss this issue further.

Sincerely,

JOSHUA A. ULMAN, Chief Government Relations Officer, College and University Professional Association for Human Resources.

Speaker NANCY PELOSI, House of Representatives.

Leader KEVIN MCCARTHY, House of Representatives.

Leader CHARLES SCHUMER, U.S. Senate.

Leader MITCH MCCONNELL, U.S. Senate.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI, LEADER MCCARTHY, LEADER SCHUMER, AND LEADER MCCONNELL, for over seven decades, the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) has represented the interests of our nation’s Human Resources (HR) professionals. Today, with millions of Americans who impact the lives of 115 million employees each day we use our voice to elevate issues squarely at the intersection of work, workers and the workplace. Workplace healthcare is one of those issues.

SHRM believes public policy must strengthen the employer-based health care system, which provides coverage to more than 181 million Americans. As the bedrock of the U.S. health care system, employer-sponsored plans are the largest providers of health insurance (66 percent of the workforce) to individuals in the United States. Therefore, I write to share SHRM’s strong support for passage of the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act.

Although not effective until 2022, employers are already restructuring their health benefit offerings to avoid the tax. According to a new analysis by the Kaiser Family Foundation, the anticipated tax would affect one in five (21%) employers offering health benefits when it takes effect in 2022 unless employers change their health plans. As 2022 approaches, more employers will have to closely scrutinize their health benefit offerings and make the necessary changes to avoid the tax, which may include reducing benefits and/or altering wellness and chronic care prevention programs. While the excise tax is only intended to target high-value plans, modest plans will also be impacted, meaning millions of Americans and their families could face higher copays and deductibles, causing some to decline employer-provided health care.

The Cadillac Tax must be dealt with in advance of any proposed implementation date, otherwise employees could see further cuts in workplace health care. As 2022 begins and looming proposed rules have a direct impact on plan decisions that are being made now for the ‘next several coverage years.

Full repeal of the Cadillac tax is extremely timely. H.R. 748 will bring certainty to millions insured under an employer plan.

Sincerely,

JOHNNY C. TAYLOR, JR., SHRM–SCP, President & CEO.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI, LEADER MCCARTHY, LEADER SCHUMER, AND LEADER MCCONNELL, we write in support of the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 748), to repeal the 40 percent excise tax on employer-sponsored health coverage and employee benefits under the Affordable Care Act (ACA).

As members of the Partnership for Employer-Sponsored Coverage, we write with our strong support for passage of the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 748), to repeal the 40 percent excise tax on employer-sponsored health coverage and employee benefits under the Affordable Care Act (ACA). The important reform effort impacts the over 181 million Americans covered through employment-based benefits plans.

The Partnership for Employer-Sponsored Coverage is committed to ensuring that employer-sponsored coverage is strengthened and remains a viable, affordable option for decades to come. Employer-sponsored coverage has been the backbone of our nation’s health system for nearly eight decades. Employers have a vested interest in health care quality, value, and system viability.

The 40 percent excise tax, also known as the Cadillac tax, would force employers to cut or limit employee benefits. The tax is a hidden burden that grows every year, and will address the demand side of rising health costs. While dubbed the Cadillac tax because the provision was targeting “high cost” employer-sponsored health coverage, it would impact the vast majority of employee benefit plans.

While we appreciate prior delays of this tax, uncertainty remains in the employer health market as the U.S. Treasury Department begins to develop proposed rules for implementation. Employers make plan decisions well in advance of a coverage year beginning and looming proposed rules have a direct impact on plan decisions that are being made now for the ‘next several coverage years.

Full repeal of the Cadillac tax is extremely timely. H.R. 748 will bring certainty to millions insured under an employer plan.

Ms. DELBENE. Madam Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. BRENDAN F. BOYLE).

Mr. BRENDAN F. BOYLE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I thank my friend from Washington State for yielding.

More than anything, today is about fairness for America’s workers. I come to this issue with the experience of remembering on several occasions when I was growing up, my parents, who were both hardworking members of organized labor, going through a contract negotiation and wondering, if they were going to go out on strike, what was going to happen.

On more than one occasion, it would end like this. They would say: Well, I think we got a fair deal. We are forgoing a pay increase, but thank God we are able to save our healthcare and our benefits.

Then time and time again, thousands—indeed, millions—of American workers made that decision that they would forgo pay raises, forgo pay increases, so they could save their healthcare. So then, decades later, to face a 40 percent tax on that healthcare just is not right and not fair to America’s workers.

So I am proud to stand here today with my fellow Pennsylvanians on the other side of the aisle, with colleagues of mine on both sides of the aisle, in order to repeal this Cadillac tax which never should have been passed in the first place.

Madam Speaker, I will enter into the RECORD a number of letters from organizations all supporting this piece of legislation to repeal the Cadillac tax.

NRF, July 16, 2019.
Hon. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.
Hon. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND MINORITY LEADER MCCARTHY: I write to share the strong support of the National Retail Federation (NRF) for H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. Please note that NRF may consider votes on the strongly bipartisan H.R. 748 and related procedural motions as Opportunity Index Votes for our annual voting scorecard.

The National Retail Federation, the world's largest retail trade association, passionately advocates for the people, brands, policies and ideas that help retail thrive. From its headquarters in Washington, D.C., NRF empowers the industry that powers the economy. Retail, the nation's largest private-sector employer, contributing $2.5 trillion to annual GDP and supporting one in four U.S. jobs—42 million working Americans.

For over a century, NRF has been a voice for every retailer and every retail job, educating, inspiring and communicating the powerful impact retail has on local communities and global economies. H.R. 748, introduced by Representatives Joe Courtney (D–CT) and Mike Kelly (R–PA), will repeal the Affordable Care Act's 40% excise tax on employer-sponsored health plans. Though portrayed as being targeted at rich “gold-plated” benefit plans, the “Cadillac Tax” is projected to hit much more mainstream plans covering low- and middle-class families in the coming years because of how it is indexed.

This legislation helps protect health insurance to American employers by helping to maintain growing health benefits costs. NRF appreciates Congress' past two successful efforts to delay the “Cadillac Tax.”

We urge its full repeal, however, because this tax forces the reduction of benefits well in advance of its effective date. Employers generally craft benefit plans two or more years in advance of the actual plan year. Benefits are being reduced now (increasing employee cost-sharing) to avoid the unfair tax on “excess” benefits.

We strongly urge your support for H.R. 748, bipartisan legislation to repeal the “Cadillac Tax.”

Sincerely,

DAVID FRENCH,
Senior Vice President, Government Relations.
NECA, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the National Electrical Contractors Association (NECA), I am writing in strong support of H.R. 748—Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019. NECA strongly urges the immediate inclusion of 361 co-sponsors with a majority of each party caucus supporting repeal of the Cadillac Tax. The Cadillac Tax, set to go into effect until 2022, employers are already being compelled to reduce benefits or implement cost-sharing to avoid being on a trajectory to trigger the tax thresholds. If Congress does not act now, the tax will hurt millions of Americans with employer-sponsored plans with benefits valued at $10,200 per year individual or $27,500 per family. This tax ignores significant demographic and geographic factors and applies to benefits that help keep employees healthy, such as health savings accounts. Most importantly, it penalizes employers, including NECA contractors, for providing their employees with quality health insurance.

NECA contractors work to provide quality, affordable health coverage through self-insured, employer-sponsored group plans to well over 500,000 employees across our nation. Employer-sponsored health insurance provides affordable quality coverage in the best interest of businesses and their workers. Although the tax does not go into effect until 2022, employers are already being compelled to reduce benefits or implement cost-sharing to avoid being on a trajectory to trigger the tax thresholds. If Congress does not act now, the tax will hurt millions of Americans with employer-sponsored plans.

Thank you for your consideration of these views. As the nationally recognized voice of the $171 billion electrical construction industry, NECA and our contractors nationwide urge you to vote yes on H.R. 748. Please note that we will include this vote in our NECA Legislative Report Card for the 116th Congress. Thank you for your consideration of our views.

Sincerely,
MARC A. GIAMBERARDINO, MPA,
Vice President, Government and Public Affairs.
NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF HEALTH UNDERWRITERS,
Hon. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.
Hon. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY: The National Association of Health Underwriters (NAHU) endorses the passage of H.R. 748, a repeal of the 40% excise tax on certain employer-sponsored health insurance plans, known as the “Cadillac Tax.” NAHU represents 100,000 insurance agents and brokers who are engaged in the sale and service of health insurance and other ancillary products. NAHU members and the consumers they represent are concerned that the law calls for a 40% excise tax on the aggregate monthly premium of each primary insured individual that exceeds the year’s applicable dollar limit, which will be adjusted annually to the Consumer Price Index plus one percent. The current threshold is indexed for the tax to take effect. While designed as an incentive for employers offering the most benefit-rich plans, in reality the tax will impact a majority of plans, including those that aren’t benefit-rich and were not the intended targets of this provision.

Many employers could be subjected to this tax, with various factors determining the likelihood of a plan’s costs exceeding the threshold. These include family size, state benefit mandates, high-cost geography, age, health status, the number of employees and other factors. In addition to paying the tax, employers will be forced to handle onerous compliance requirements on a monthly basis to record and pay the tax to insurers. In turn, insurers will be required to treat the tax as revenue and will be taxed on that amount, which will be passed along as the tax for everyone. Individuals and families who are already struggling to afford existing plan premiums and higher deductibles will also be hit by the tax, further increasing their costs.

We appreciate your consideration on this issue that is important for businesses and their employees so that all families can afford quality health insurance. We look forward to working with you and your colleagues enacting this bipartisan legislation this year.

Best regards,
JANET TRAUTWEN,
Executive Vice President and CEO.
NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS,
July 15, 2019.
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM), the largest manufacturing association in the United States representing 14,000 manufacturers in every industrial sector and in all 50 states, I am writing to urge you to support the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019 (H.R. 748) introduced by Representatives Joe Courtney (D–CT) and Mike Kelly (R–PA).

Manufacturers consistently rank the rising cost of health care as a primary business challenge in the NAM’s Quarterly Outlook Survey. Despite the challenges, approximately 98 percent of NAM members continue to provide health insurance to employees. The manufacturing industry is committed to providing quality health benefits to employees to maintain a healthy workforce, attract and retain talent and because it is the right thing to do. Many are leading new health benefit initiatives to provide quality care that reduces growing health benefits costs. Additionally, manufacturers oppose applying heavy federal tax burdens on employers’ and workers’ health bills. H.R. 748 would permanently repeal the 40 percent tax-hike on “high-cost” health benefits, commonly referred to as the Cadillac Tax. While this tax was initially intended to impose a high-cost excise tax on health care plans, it is expected to burden a broad crosssection of small and large employers across the country and to discourage employer innovations that are improving benefits for manufacturing workers. Manufacturers have been forced to begin plan preparations even though the tax is scheduled to go into effect in 2022. Fully repealing the Cadillac tax, health insurance tax and medical device tax will remain top health care priorities for manufacturers.

The NAM urges strong support for H.R. 748 and appreciates ongoing efforts to eliminate the looming threat of health care taxes on manufacturers. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
ROBYN M. BOERSTLING,
NTU urges all Representatives to vote ‘yea’ on H.R. 748, Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.

NTU has noted before that the Affordable Care Act’s excise tax on high-cost-employer-sponsored insurance (ESI), popularly known as the “Cadillac tax,” is a poor solution to a real policy dilemma—addressing the employer-sponsored health insurance exclusion that has distorted markets. Even though the intent of the tax was to reduce health care costs and boost the economy, the Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT) and the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) have estimated that the Cadillac tax will depress wages.

The Cadillac tax would also have a far-reaching impact on ESI plans. The Kaiser Family Foundation (KFF) recently reported that the Cadillac tax could impact more than one in five employers (21 percent) in 2022, when the tax is scheduled to go into effect. Since the cost of ESI plans is expected to rise faster than inflation, a growing proportion of plans will likely become subject to the tax over time, KFF estimates that nearly two in five ESI plans (37 percent) will be subject to the tax by 2030.

When it comes to taxes imposed by the Affordable Care Act, Congress should not stop with Cadillac tax repeal. Both the medical device tax and the Health Insurance Tax (HIT) have been suspended by Congress, but are scheduled to resume in 2020. The costs of these taxes will ultimately be borne by consumers, in the form of higher health spending and higher premiums. Additionally, Congress should examine the tax treatment of health care in a holistic fashion and work toward a minimally distortionary environment that empowers consumers to make decisions about their own health care needs.

NTU strongly urges Representatives to support H.R. 748, and additionally, to permanently repeal both the medical device tax and HIT.

Roll call votes on H.R. 748 will be included in our annual Rating of Congress and a “YES” vote will be considered the pro-taxpayer position.

Ms. DEBENE, Madam Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. HORSFORD).

Mr. HORSFORD. Madam Speaker, thank you for bringing this issue to Washington for managing this important bill.

I rise today to speak in support of the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act. We cannot afford to let this tax continue to discourage high-cost-employer-sponsored health plans to take effect. This tax would increase costs for America’s working and middle-class families.

For many working families, necessary medical treatment remains tragically unaffordable due to exorbitant out-of-pocket costs and deductibles. If this so-called Cadillac tax isn’t repealed, this crisis of affordability for medical care will only worsen.

To avoid the excise tax, employers will, in all likelihood, reduce the value of their plans and reduce benefits and even increase their workers’ share of the cost. This would result in increases in out-of-pocket costs for more than 180 million workers, including 1.3 million people in my home State of Nevada, and it would decrease access to quality insurance plans across the country.

This vote helps labor throughout the country, including the Culinary Workers Union in my home State. Members’ benefits, wages, and overall compensation allow them to stay afloat financially, and to quote the international union president for UNITE HERE, D. Taylor: “They drive used cars, not Cadillacs, and their healthcare does not include spa treatments.”

At a time when this is the reality for our constituents, Congress should make sure that employers doing the right thing and providing high-value health insurance to their employees are supported.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. DEBENE, Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 30 seconds to the gentleman from Nevada.

Mr. HORSFORD. Madam Speaker, Congress should make sure that employers doing the right thing and providing high-value health insurance to their employees are supported, not penalized with an egregious tax.

Madam Speaker, I include in the Record a letter from UNITE HERE and several other national organizations.

UNITE HERE!

Las Vegas, NV, July 15, 2019.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of UNITE HERE and the 300,000 men and women and their families from the fastest growing private sector union in America, I am asking for your vote to approve H.R. 748, the “Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.” It is time to finally put a marker down and bring real tax reform to hard pressed working Americans, not just to health insurance and medical device companies who have a legion of lobbyists at their disposal. At a time when consumer anxiety is high and where one job should be enough to make a living but isn’t, the 181 million middle-class Americans who receive their health benefits from a private employer need an economic boost and some good news. I want to make the position of our union and membership clear: We support tax reform for all Americans, starting with the repeal of the 40% excise tax on employer-sponsored health insurance.

The so-called “Cadillac Tax” impacts far more health plans than many members of Congress, including some Democrats, who characterize these hard-earned health benefits as “overly generous.” In fact, the 40% excise tax on employer-sponsored health plans encourages employers to substitute low-quality drive-yourself used cars, not Cadillacs, and their health care does not include spa treatments.

Delayed but not yet repealed, this tax has already incentivized employers to dramatically reduce their health benefits and overall compensation to avoid the tax thresholds. As should be avoided at all costs, many of high-cost employers have changed, or plan to change, their health insurance offerings to avoid the tax, according to the Employee Benefit Research Institute. Many of our low-income members reject pay raises just to maintain their health benefits.

Our union is already doing its part to keep health costs down among our members. Ken Blair, President of UNITE HERE Local 217 says: “We’re fighting hard to keep our costs down inside our union because our members stay healthy or making sure they use the most cost effective way to keep our insurance low. Now we’re going to be taxed!”

Our membership is majority minority, a majority of women, and represent workers from over (111) countries. On behalf of our members, I again urge you to vote for H.R. 748 and stand up for millions of middle-class Americans who receive modest health insurance coverage through their jobs.

D. TAYLOR, President, UNITE HERE.

SERVICE EMPLOYERS
Detroit, MI.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the two million members of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), I urge you to vote for H.R. 748, Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act, which will eliminate the 40 percent “Cadillac” tax on health benefits employers are justifying to shift more costs to employees, raising costs for workers and their families. Congress must take action to ensure that employers have access to affordable coverage whether that coverage comes through an employer-sponsored plan, private non-group coverage, or public programs.

Too many working families are struggling to afford high out of pocket costs—including deductibles, co-insurance, and co-payments required under their employer sponsored insurance (ESI) plans. Unfortunately, the impending 40 percent health benefits tax has exacerbated the trend of shifting health costs to working people by creating new pressure for businesses to cut generous coverage in order to avoid triggering the tax. Though some claim providing consumers more “skin in the game” through increased cost-sharing forces them to use care more efficiently and reduce costs, research demonstrates that high cost-sharing requirements prevent people from accessing even necessary care, including care for chronic illnesses that could prevent more expensive interventions in the future. For example, a 2019 survey of adults with employer benefits conducted by Kaiser Family Foundation/LA Times found that half of respondents said that they or someone in their family went without or postponed needed care or medication as a result of cost. Given the economic stress working people face, policies should encourage high-value comprehensive coverage. The 40 percent health benefits tax acts to discourage it.

Furthermore, since their inception, unions have advocated and bargained on behalf of their members for comprehensive healthcare. As a union, we value the robust health insurance coverage we fought for at the bargaining table for so many years, often at the expense of higher wages. Many of our members live in geographic areas with higher living expenses that include significant health costs. The majority of our membership is comprised of women; as they are likely to need health services that will cost more than their younger male counterparts, their coverage plans will be more expensive. We should not punish workers who, through their union, are able to have a voice in their pay and benefits and in fact should honor the choices and decisions workers make through negotiations with their employers.

For decades, SEIU members have fought for healthcare as a basic human right, not a privilege. We believe that everyone in America has a right to quality, affordable healthcare. SEIU members support all legislation that improves and strengthens our healthcare system, including expanding coverage and lowering excessive out-of-pocket costs—that are a huge financial burden on working American families today and a major cause of economic stress. We view repeal of the excise tax as a necessary improvement that is consistent with our goal to support policies that make healthcare more affordable. While some in the Administration and Congress actively work to sabotage our healthcare system, whether through regulation or legal attacks, it is heartening to see that others are taking seriously their obligation to try and improve America's healthcare seriously.

For these reasons, we ask you to support the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 74).

Sincerely,
MARY KAY HENRY, International President.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE:

On behalf of the 500,000 members of the Laborers' International Union of North America (LIUNA), I urge you to support and vote for H.R. 748, bipartisan legislation to repeal the so-called Cadillac Tax provision of the Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Since the ACA became law, this regressive tax has been a looming dark cloud above every union member’s health benefits and the remaining 181 million Americans who rely on their employer-sponsored insurance. For workers and families who have lost their union whose healthcare benefits are collectively bargained for and essentially self-funded in order to provide good healthcare for themselves and their families, this is unacceptable and a use of our dollar.

For nearly ten years, unions, businesses, patient advocates, and consumer groups have supported repeal of the Cadillac Tax, and, with over 350 cosponsors, we finally have the opportunity to repeal it.

We urge you to support H.R. 748 and vote to end this unfair tax on America’s working class.

With kind regards,
I Sincerely yours,
TERRY O’SULLIVAN, General President.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE:

On behalf of the 62,000 members of the Air Line Pilots Association, International (ALPA), I write in support of the bipartisan Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019 (H.R. 748). H.R. 748, introduced by Representative Joe Courtney (D-CT), repeals the 40% excise tax on health care plans.

H.R. 748 currently has 361 bipartisan cosponsors. If enacted, it would ensure that the excise tax on employer-provided health care benefits is opposed by over 81% of Americans. The excise tax on employer provided health care benefits is predicated on the flawed economic assumption that the cost of a health insurance plan is the main driver of health care costs. Detailed analysis of our health insurance system has demonstrated that the real drivers of health care costs are location, occupation, gender and age.

Without a repeal, many employers are necessarily preparing for the introduction of the excise tax by increasing copays, deductibles and out of pocket maximums in their health care plans. The excise tax will further erode the health care protection provided by our plans and drive out of pocket costs up for professional pilots and other workers.

When H.R. 748 comes up for a vote this week, I urge you to support it. Thank you for your consideration.
Sincerely,
CAPT. JOSEPH G. DePETE, President, Air Line Pilots Association Intl.

--- JULY 15, 2019 ---

HON. RICHARD E. Neal, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN NEAL: On behalf of our 3 million members and the 50 million students they serve, we urge you to VOTE YES on the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 748), which would eliminate the 40 percent excise tax on “high cost” employer-sponsored health plans scheduled to take effect in 2022. Votes on this issue may be included in NEA’s Report Card for the 116th Congress.

Under the Affordable Care Act, “high cost” employer-sponsored health benefits whose value exceeds specified thresholds will be subject to a 40 percent excise tax starting in 2022: $11,200 for single coverage and $30,150 for family coverage, the Tax Policy Center projects. We support repeal because:

- The tax would take money out of the pockets of educators who have accepted lower wages in return for decent health care coverage—just when there’s growing recognition among lawmakers and the American people that educators deserve better compensation. Moreover, educators would be among those hit hardest by the tax as noted in an analysis published in Health Affairs.
- The tax applies equally to plans for lower- and higher-income households as well as retirees, regardless of whether they live in areas with unusually high health care costs.
- The tax is far likelier to hit plans due to factors beyond employees’ control—their age, gender, and location—than because of the benefits provided.

Initially, the Kaiser Family Foundation estimates, the tax would affect 21 percent of employers who provide health coverage—31 percent when workers’ voluntary contributions to Flexible Spending Accounts are taken into account as the law requires. Over time, more and more workers would be subject to the tax since health care costs continue to rise at a faster rate than inflation.

Educators are already struggling to make ends meet—they cannot afford to pay even more for health care. Please VOTE YES on the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act (H.R. 748).

Sincerely,
MARC EGAN, Director of Government Relations, National Education Association.
get an increase, maybe a 1 percent, 1 1/2 percent increase, but they were always able to sustain their healthcare. So this is a very important piece of legislation, one I know we have been working on.

I want to thank the gentlewoman from Washington State. I want to thank the gentlewoman from the Ways and Means Committee. This has been a long time coming. I hope we can fix this, and I hope it is the first step to us building out a better healthcare system that is more affordable, more accessible, more innovative, and more focused on prevention as we move down road in the next several months.

Mr. KELLY of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I want to thank my colleagues on the other side.

There is an old saying in life that sometimes you get a second chance to do the right thing. Eight years ago when the Affordable Care Act was passed, I am sure it was an oversight or an undersight or just not actually understanding what was taking place that day, my colleagues on the other side at that point were looking to pass the Affordable Care Act, and one of the victims in this was employer-sponsored insurance.

We referred to it today as the “Cadillac tax,” and I am glad we used that term, quite frankly. I told you earlier I am a Cadillac dealer, so I am really happy to hear it. Any time anybody thinks something is outstanding, they call it a Cadillac.

But what we are going to do today has nothing to do with fancy cars. It has nothing to do with extravagant health care, but it does have everything to do with punishing hard-working Americans and their families. What we are doing today is a crucial step toward protecting employer-sponsored health insurance for all Americans.

Again, as I said earlier, we are doing the right things for the right reasons for the right people, not just Republicans, not just Democrats, but every single American out there who gets his or her health insurance through their employer.

It is a remarkable thing to see happen here on the people’s floor, the people’s House, where we come together and agree that we can fix a wrong, we can right a wrong, we can make things right that we maybe had a different look at 8 years ago but we decided today that it just really makes sense to do that.

I want to give a special thank-you, though, to some friends from the Ways and Means Committee for forming the Problem Solvers Caucus. In the rules package this year, they were able to bring up a rule that says if you get 290 sponsors or cosponsors on a piece of legislation, that needs to come forward.

JOE COURTNEY has worked on this for many years, and we have already talked about the number of people who were already on board and ready to see this come to pass, just couldn’t get through the procedures to get to the floor. And I think when I go back home, people would say to me, if you have so many people that agree on the same thing and are doing the right thing and you say there is something in the rules that needs to change, and that has taken place today.

But the really great part of it is—the really great part, is that Republicans and Democrats are coming together in this and we are doing the right thing, ensuring, at least from our part of the Congress, that we can repeal this onerous tax on hardworking Americans.

So I am so glad to be here today and I am so thankful. Working with JOE COURTNEY has been absolutely marvelous. The gentleman has really had staying power. He has never given up on this. He has stayed on it and stayed on it and stayed on it. There is an old saying: Play through the whistle. I have got to tell you, Madam Speaker, in this case, JOE COURTNEY played through the echo of the whistle. He never gave up.

So to be here with my colleagues today and coming to a conclusion that this is the right thing for us to do is really good.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank my friends that came here and spoke today on behalf of our side of the aisle for supporting this.

We have had an opportunity this afternoon to do something, to do something not for ourselves, but for the people who sent us here to represent them.

Madam Speaker, having said that, I would urge all of my colleagues to vote in support of this piece of legislation and pass it and send it on to the Senate, where we would hope they would understand that at this end of the Capitol, there is overwhelming support for hardworking Americans and their families.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. DELBENE. Madam Speaker, I strongly support H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act of 2019.

This legislation has been a bipartisan goal since I came to Congress in 2012, the permanent repeal of the Cadillac tax. The original design of the Cadillac tax was meant to be a narrowly targeted tax on the most extravagant plans.

Instead, the tax will hit working families for a variety of factors far beyond their control. That includes age, geography, and occupation. And a recent analysis from the Kaiser Family Foundation found that the Cadillac tax will impact over 20 percent of employers when the tax goes into effect in 2022. When flexible spending account contributions are included, that number jumps to over 30 percent and would affect just under half of all workers by 2030.

While the intended goal of the Cadillac tax was to put downward pressure on plan costs, the mechanics of the tax will simply put more costs onto working families in the form of higher deductibles and greater cost-sharing so employers can avoid the tax.

Madam Speaker, I remind my colleagues that healthcare costs are a top concern of the American people, and today we can take a meaningful step to address that concern.

Madam Speaker, I urge all Members to vote “yes” on this legislation, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LYNCH. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 748, the Middle Class Health Benefits Tax Repeal Act. This important, bi-partisan legislation will finally repeal, once and for all, the excise tax on employer sponsored union sponsored health plans, also known as the “Cadillac Plan Tax.” This fix is long overdue.

This egregious tax, if allowed to take effect, would have hit the health insurance that 181 million working Americans and many union members and their families rely on. It would have likely resulted in increased costs, and ultimately lesser access to health care, thereby defeating the purpose for passing the A.C.A. in the first place.

This was one of the reasons why I voted against the final compromise version of the A.C.A. in 2010; because while the Cadillac Tax was not in the House-passed bill, the Senate added it into the legislation that came back to the House, I believed then, and still do now, that imposing a 40 percent tax on health insurance for union workers would hurt hard-working American families—the very people who sent us here to make their lives better.

Madam Speaker, before coming to Congress and before becoming a labor rights lawyer, I was an ironworker for 18 years. I worked side-by-side with men and women in the building trades who wanted nothing more than to work hard and be able to take care of their families. When I was President of my local union, I was acutely aware of the importance of the benefits, such as health care, that we would negotiate on behalf of our members. It is important to remember that generations of union workers have stood on the picket line or taken less pay in their paycheck in order to get better health care coverage. The Cadillac Tax included in the A.C.A. actually sought to punish those workers for standing up for their families. Repealing this tax would have broken the good-faith promises made to these hard-working Americans.

I am not alone in recognizing the serious harms of the proposed excise tax, because... members of Congress from both sides of the aisle came together to delay this tax again and again, moving its effective date from 2018 to 2022. In addition, today’s legislation, H.R. 748, has an astounding 369 cosponsors. I think that must be some kind of record. That kind of bipartisanship has sadly become rarer these days, but this level of agreement only goes to show that passing this bill is the right thing to do.

Madam Speaker, this fix for the A.C.A. has been long-needed and I am pleased that we are finally taking this important step to protecting hard working, middle-class Americans. I urge my colleagues to support this commonsense bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Neal) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 748, as amended.

The question was taken. The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

RAISING A QUESTION OF THE PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise to a question of the privileges of the House and offer a resolution previously noticed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution is in order. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk reads as follows:

H. Res. 498

Resolved, that the House of John Trump, President of the United States, is unfit to be President, unfit to represent the American values of decency and morality, respectability and civility, honesty and propriety, respectability and integrity, is unfit to defend the ideas that ideals that have made America great, unfit to defend liberty and justice and for all as enshrined in the Pledge of Allegiance, is unfit to defend the American ideal of all persons being created equal as exalted in the Declaration of Independence, is unfit to ensure domestic tranquility, promote the general welfare and to ensure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity as lauded in the preamble to the United States Constitution, is unfit to protect the government of the people, by the people, for the people as elucidated in the Gettysburg Address, and is impeached for high misdemeanors that the following article of impeachment be exhibited to the Senate:

Article of Impeachment exhibited by the House of Representatives of the United States in the name of itself, of the people of the United States, against Donald John Trump, President of the United States, in maintenance and support of its impeachment against him for high misdemeanors committed as President constituting harm to American society to the manifest injury of the people of the United States:

The House of Representatives on July 16, 2019, strongly condemned President Donald Trump’s racist comments that have legitimized and increased fear and hatred of new Americans and people of color by saying that our fellow Americans who are immigrants, and those who may look to the President like immigrants, should “go back” to other countries, by referring to immigrants and asylum seekers as invaders, and by saying that Members of Congress who are immigrants, or those of our colleagues who are wrongly assumed to be immigrants, do not belong in Congress or in the United States of America.

In all of this, the aforementioned Donald John Trump has, by his statements, brought the high office of the President of the United States in contempt of the public disgrace, and disrepute, has sown seeds of discord among the people of the United States, has demonstrated that he is unfit to be President, and has betrayed his trust as President of the United States to the manifest injury of the people of the United States, and has committed a high misdemeanor in office. Therefore, Donald John Trump by causing such harm to the society of the United States is unfit to be President and warrants impeachment, trial, and removal from office.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution qualifies.

MOTION TO TABLE

Mr. MCCARTHY. Madam Speaker, I have a motion to table the articles of impeachment at the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and the yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The noes appeared to have it.
Mr. THOMPSON of California, Mrs. NAPOLITANO, and Ms. WILSON of Florida changed their vote from "yee... to "nay."
Ms. KAPTUR, Messrs. TAYLOR and HASTINGS changed their vote from "nay" to "yee."
So the motion to table was agreed to.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The Acting CHAIR. There being no further amendments, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SEAN PATRICK MALONEY of New York) having assumed the chair, Mr. ESPAILLAT, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3491) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2020 for intelligence andintelligence-related activities of the United States Government, the Community Management Account, and the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, and for other purposes, and, pursuant to House Resolution 491, he reported the bill, as amended by that resolution, back to the House with sundry further amendments adopted in the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the previous question, the Speaker appoints three tellers, and directs the Clerk to proceed.

MIDDLE CLASS HEALTH BENEFITS
TAX REPEAL ACT OF 2019

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the unfinished business is the vote on the motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 748) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the excise tax on high cost employer-sponsored health coverage, as amended, on which the yeas and nays were ordered. AUTHORIZING THE CLERK TO MAKE CORRECTIONS IN ENGROSSMENT OF H.R. 3494, DAMON PAUL NELSON AND MATTHEW YOUNG POLLARD INTELLIGENCE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEARS 2018, 2019, AND 2020

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to acknowledge Tykhil Greene. Mr. Greene is the first African American valedictorian of the University Academy Charter High School.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be authorized to make technical corrections and conforming changes to the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

CONGRATULATING TYKHIL GREENE ON BEING FIRST AFRICAN AMERICAN VALEDICTORIAN OF UNIVERSITY ACADEMY CHARTER HIGH SCHOOL

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to acknowledge Tykhil Greene. Mr. Greene is the first African American valedictorian of the University Academy Charter High School.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Shimkus) urges Mr. Cissners. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

OPPOSING RAISING THE FEDERAL MINIMUM WAGE

Mr. SPANO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. SPANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong opposition to H.R. 582, which would more than double the Federal minimum wage.

Numerous studies show that doubling the minimum wage to $15 an hour would be catastrophic for small businesses. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that this bill would result in the loss of up to 3.7 million jobs, which is approximately the same number of people who live in the State of Oklahoma.

When I started my own business, I went without a salary for a full year to invest in the business. I needed to pay overhead and to keep my employees paid. I could not have borne these expenses under a $15 minimum wage.

I think of my scheduler, Naomi Hilton. As a teenager, I hired her in my small business to be the receptionist in my office. She worked hard, and within a year she was promoted to legal assistant, and then to paralegal, and eventually she earned more than $15 an hour.

If not for a much lower minimum wage, I would never have been able to start my business, hire Naomi, and pay her more than the minimum wage proposed in this bill.

I support higher wages for all, and the economy has given us these jobs without costing millions of jobs and thousands of small businesses.

INCLUSIVITY AND DIVERSITY, NOT BIGOTRY AND DISCRIMINATION

Mr. LANGEVIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I am a Congressman in no small part due to civil rights legislation: the ADA that passed 29 years ago next week. Inclusivity is not abstract to me. Diversity is not just a buzzword. This weekend, our Nation confronted bigotry and discrimination, the vile opposites of these virtues. That we did so is not surprising. Our country is not perfect, built as it is on the original sin of slavery, but the source of these racist remarks should shock all of my colleagues, as they came from the President himself.

The President’s tweets attacking my fellow Representatives is inexcusable. There is no explanation, no possible context in which they would be acceptable. They are the product of his world view that prizes division and conflict. I believe in compromise. I believe in trying to work together to better our country even when we disagree, but that spirit of tolerance cannot extend to the blatantly racist and xenophobic rhetoric.

I voted yesterday to condemn the President’s remarks, but that should never have been necessary. Our country is better than the example this President is setting. I only hope that we can heal after this dark chapter.

ADDRESSING THE MURDER OF ROSENDA STRONG

Mr. NEWHOUSE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Mr. Speaker, sadly, I rise again today to speak about the epidemic of missing and murdered indigenous women.
After 300 days of searching, the body of Rosenda Strong was finally found on the Yakima Nation reservation in central Washington.

The life of this young mother of four was not lost, but taken, as are the lives of many other Native American women across the country. Rosenda is a citizen of the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla, and her case is one of 71 unsolved cases involving missing and murdered indigenous women in Washington State.

Since she went missing last October, her loved ones have rallied to bring national attention to the alarming high number of murder and violence rate facing Native American women across the country. Children are left without mothers, parents are left without daughters, and communities are left questioning their safety and their future.

This crisis can no longer be ignored. Congress must act to deliver justice to victims like Rosenda and so many others like her.

ENCOURAGING WOMEN TO PURSUE CAREERS IN STEM
(Ms. MURCASEL-POWELL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. MURCASEL-POWELL. Mr. Speaker, oftentimes Latinas in STEM are used to being the only women in the room and often the only people of color. Women make up only 24 percent of the STEM workforce, and Latinas only 2 percent of the entire STEM workforce, but the future is changing.

I rise today to celebrate the accomplishments of Laura and Natalia Coronado, twin sisters who recently graduated from Florida International University with bachelor’s degrees in computer engineering. Now they are used to being the only women in the room and often the only people of color, but they are also used to being the only women in the room and often the only people of color, but they are also used to being the only women in the room and often the only people of color.

Breaking into a career field that is dominated by men is not easy. Believe me, I know. It is up to all of us to create a society where women are encouraged to pursue careers in STEM, and that means promoting diversity and supporting equal opportunities.

CONGRATULATING COASTAL MIDDLE SCHOOL
(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Coastal Middle School in the First Congressional District of Georgia for being distinguished as a Lighthouse School to Watch.

Organized by the National Forum to Accelerate Middle-Grades Reform, the Lighthouse Schools to Watch program celebrates high-performing middle schools based on four factors: academic excellence, developmental responsiveness, social equity, and organizational structure.

In Savannah, Coastal Middle School has been surpassing the norm in all of these areas, while also taking the initiative to go the extra mile for others. The school teaches classes in both Arabic and Chinese, values quality writing skills, embraces students with disabilities, serves students from abroad, and provides opportunities for students to serve the local community.

While Coastal Middle School continues to excel, schools across Georgia are also raising the bar. Georgia was the first of three States in the Nation to qualify for the National Forum Schools to Watch program.

Congratulations, Coastal Middle School. Keep up the good work, and thank you for your commitment to providing students in our area with an exceptional education.

RETIEMENT OF ST. CLAIR SHORES CITY MANAGER MIKE SMITH
(Mr. LEVIN of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEVIN of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate my constituent in St. Clair Shores, City Manager Mike Smith, on his upcoming retirement after nearly two decades of service to the community.

Mike Smith has been a true hands-on leader. I ran into him at St. Clair Shores Memorial Day parade, which is one of the biggest in the country, where he was rushing around on a golf cart, as ever, personally managing this huge event.

Mike has also been a leader on an issue extremely important to me and my fellow Michiganders: water quality. He has fought for improvements to the Chapaton Retention Basin, a project I have made it my mission to help fund in order to protect water quality in Lake St. Clair and the Great Lakes system.

While I will miss Mike’s partnership, I wish him the very best in his retirement, and I thank him for his tremendous service.

OUR JOB IS TO DO THE PEOPLE’S WORK
(Mr. FULCHER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FULCHER. Mr. Speaker, in the last few days, we spent a lot of time in session in the U.S. Congress reviewing and debating tweets and personal comments of individuals. In the meantime, policy debate and the urgent work of the people are excluded from the agenda.

As I speak, among other things, we are apprehending some 3,000 immigrants per day on our southern border, we will lose around 130 people today due to the opioid crisis, and our national debt will increase another $3 billion or so in just the next 24 hours.

It is clear that the majority leadership does not want to have policy initiatives that are desired by our current administration to even get a debate, but, Mr. Speaker, we have an election process to deal with those concerns.

It is our job to do the people’s work. Please, let’s go to work.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE NEED HEALTHCARE SOLUTIONS THAT WILL WORK FOR THEM
(Mr. TONKO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TONKO. Mr. Speaker, for years Republicans in Congress and the White House have made it a top priority to end healthcare protections for millions of Americans. They voted more than 60 times to repeal the Affordable Care Act, but when the time came, they had no replacement to offer.

Since President Trump took office, more than 3 million fewer Americans have health insurance. They have removed healthcare information from government websites and arbitrarily shut down the Federal marketplace website at peak times to drive down enrollment.

Now the Trump administration is at it again, pushing the extreme Texas v. U.S. lawsuit that would repeal the entire ACA and throw America’s healthcare system into total disarray. More than 130 million Americans with preexisting conditions would lose their healthcare protections, out-of-pocket costs would jump for millions of America’s seniors and families, and some 53 million more Americans would lose access to quality, affordable health coverage before 2024.

My Democratic colleagues and I are fighting back to improve coverage and lower premiums, bring down prescription drug costs, and strengthen Medicare and Medicaid for this generation and the next.

The American people are right not to trust this Republican Congress or President with their healthcare. Let’s stop this endless repeal without replace effort and get back to solutions that will work for the people.

RECOGNIZING DR. MARK CRUMMEY
(Mr. CLINE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLINE. Mr. Speaker, school principals are more than just managers of educators and school activities. These individuals become students’ friends, mentors, coaches, and advocates.

Today, I have the distinct honor of recognizing Dr. Mark Crumney, principal of Highland Park Elementary School in Roanoke, Virginia. Dr. Crummey was recently named Elementary Principal of the Year by the Virginia Parent Teacher Association.

Dr. Crummey has over 25 years of experience in education. As both an educator and administrator, his life has been dedicated to service. His quarter century of experience continues to enrich the lives of the students who pass through the doors of Highland Park.

During Dr. Crummey’s tenure, students have shown improvements in both grades and test scores, a testament to his and the staff of Highland Park Elementary’s efforts.

Mr. Rogers once said: “Anyone who does anything to help a child in his life is a hero to me.” I agree with that statement and want to recognize Dr. Crummey as a hero in our community. His continued dedication to the students of Highland Park Elementary is commendable, and I congratulate him on this incredible honor.

RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE

(Ms. GARCIA of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. GARCIA of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 created a minimum wage for all workers to ensure a livable wage. However, it has been over a decade since the last increase of the Federal minimum wage, the longest period without any raise since the minimum wage was established.

Sadly today, $7.25 an hour forces many Americans to work two, many times three, jobs to make ends meet.

Someone living in my district making minimum wage must work 112 hours a week to afford a two-bedroom apartment for their family. That is 16 hours a day, 7 days a week. That is two shifts with no day off.

381,000 workers in my district would receive a pay raise by increasing the minimum wage to $15 an hour.

Raising the minimum wage would help many hardworking Americans rise out of poverty and reach financial stability that, right now, is simply out of reach. We must increase the minimum wage.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of us to vote for the minimum wage bill tomorrow.

50TH COMMEMORATION OF APOLLO 11

(Ms. JACKSON LEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Mr. Speaker, what a glorious week to celebrate the 50th commemoration of Apollo 11.

I rise as someone whose eyes were wide open when this magnificent act occurred.

I had the privilege of serving on the House Science, Space, and Technology Committee, as well, and on the Space and Aeronautics Subcommittee. I even served as they were building this massive space station.

It is likewise a privilege to represent the area on which NASA’s Johnson Space Center is located. Just a few weeks ago, I walked through mission control and saw those outstanding men and women symbolizing those who were at their station on the very day that Neil Armstrong touched this magnificent planet. And then I was able to say, “one small step for man, and one large step for mankind,” but to know what the astronauts go through, and the stars in the eyes of children.

Every year I hold a Christmas party of 15,000 for the children in our community. The most popular people that are the astronauts that I invite. I am excited about celebrating this 50th commemoration of Apollo 11. I salute the astronauts, the teams, and NASA because it opens our eyes to the wideness of space, the wonderment of science, and the greatness of America. God bless them. Congratulations. And God bless America.

CONGRATULATING BRADLEY FERGUSON

(Mr. VAN DREW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VAN DREW. Mr. Speaker, I want to take a moment to talk about an exceptional young person from Mainland Regional High School in South Jersey. Bradley Ferguson of Mainland Regional High School was recently selected as a United States Presidential scholar.

The U.S. Presidential Scholars Program was founded in 1964. Since 1964, it has honored over 7,500 graduating high school seniors for academic achievements and contributions to their communities.

One hundred and twenty-one U.S. Presidential Scholars are honored annually for their academic excellence and their service. I am so excited that Bradley is representing South Jersey with his great achievement. All the young people being honored with this award are proof that education brings forth excellence.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Bradley for his accomplishment. I can’t wait to see whatever his future is going to hold, but we all know that he is going to achieve greatness.

HONORING HILTON RAY SEGLER

(Mr. BISHOP of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of my constituent and friend of longstanding, Hilton Ray Segler. On July 4, 2019, Hilton, a loving husband, father, and grandfather, passed away at the age of 82 in Albany, Georgia.

He dedicated his professional life to agriculture. He began in 1957 selling ag chemicals, was co-owner of NIPAN, and later sold crop insurance. He is most remembered for his leadership in the pecan industry.

Hilton developed a special interest in pecans and became a leading State leader and advocate for the pecan industry. He served as president of the Georgia Pecan Growers Association for two terms. As president, and a pecan grower himself, he testified before Congress on behalf of pecan growers for three of the last four farm bills.

Hilton’s hard work and desire to better the industry led to many accomplishments, including crop insurance, ensuring that conservation and emergency programs were available to pecan growers; and the Market Access Program, to aid in building the pecan export market. His passion and leadership will be sorely missed by the industry.

On a personal note, Hilton was my friend. I will miss his sage advice and his wise counsel. He never told me what I wanted to hear. He always told me what I needed to hear. The State of Georgia and our Nation have been truly blessed to benefit from Hilton’s leadership and his advocacy.

RAISING THE MINIMUM AGE

(Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Raise the Wage Act.

For the last 10 years, the minimum wage has remained stagnant as the cost of living has skyrocketed across the country. Low-income families and minimum wage workers have carried the brunt of this burden.

Working Americans deserve sustainable living wages, and we should not accept an economy where parents working full-time jobs cannot support their families. A vital part of the American promise is the right to a decent livable wage.

This legislation will empower our workforce, strengthen the economy, and support families across the United States of America. I look forward to voting in favor of this important legislation, and I encourage my colleagues to do the same.

COLLEGE AFFORDABILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2019, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PORTER) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Ms. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Georgia (Mrs. McBATH).

Mrs. McBATH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today on the issue of college affordability. Too many of our students are finding themselves saddled with student loan debt after attending predatory institutions. We cannot expect our students to repay these loans when they were not given the quality education and degree that they paid for.

Student veterans were told their degrees. But according to the Department of Education, the majority of students who are unable to complete their college degrees, the forecast is even worse. This is where the real problem lies. According to the Department of Education, only 56 percent of borrowers who left before completing their degrees are able to lift themselves out of that debt.

In 2012, in my book, “Broke: How Student Loan Debt Bankrupts the Middle Class,” I wrote about the financial risks of attending college, especially for those who are unable to complete their degrees. It is true that the typical worker with a bachelor’s degree earns 71 percent more than a worker with only a high school diploma. But those caught in the middle between the high school degree and the bachelor’s degree are at the highest risk of financial instability.

While the overall level of education in our country has increased, the largest group of people in bankruptcy remains those with some college.

And let’s be clear: Many of these students who fail to complete degrees are not uninterested in an education. They enrolled in college and they wanted to earn that degree. And many would still love to finish their degrees. But according to the Department of Education, the majority of those who leave college do so because of job or financial demands. In fact, fewer than 8 percent of student loan debtors in bankruptcy reported that they left college because they did not want to continue their education. Many of these families and students face demands to care for family members or are unable to continue to pay their tuition or meet their living expenses.

And those who are most harmed are those who come from economically disadvantaged backgrounds to begin with. The power of Pell grants and other Federal funding streams has dropped dramatically as the cost of a college education has skyrocketed. And to make matters worse, this administration is rolling back protections for students attending for-profit colleges where some of the worst abuses have occurred.

I recently spoke with one of my constituents, a 30-year-old man named Thomas Jones. Tom lives in northeastern Pennsylvania. Tom didn’t earn high school degrees. Not only did he want to finish high school, he wanted to get a college degree. A few years after graduating from high school, after working multiple jobs to make ends meet, Tom started searching for a program that would help him pursue his passion for graphic design.

He found The Art Institute of California online and filled out an interest form. A recruiter soon called him, and he was incredibly excited to join the program and work toward a degree. He didn’t realize at that time that “anyone who could find a way to pay” would likely be accepted.

I am pleased to tell you that the tools and code that they taught were outdated and that his access to his instructors was nearly nonexistent. He graduated with an associate’s degree and with more than $30,000 in debt. But he graduated with none of the skills that he needed to be productive. While working jobs completely unrelated to his field of study, Tom worked to teach himself the skills he actually needed, and today he has managed to become a semi-successful digital marketing agency. But his student loan debt is a constant weight on his shoulders.

He recently got married, and as he considers starting a family, he finds himself wondering if he will be able to financially provide for his children when he, himself, still owes tens of thousands of dollars.

I recently joined with my colleagues in introducing the Relief for Defrauded Students Act of 2019, which would help borrowers who were defrauded or misled by their colleges. The Department of Education Undersecretary Betsy DeVos has failed to follow through with promises made to protect borrowers.

But this is not enough. As we have seen too frequently, the Department of Education and Secretary DeVos cannot be trusted to safeguard the interests of students whom, by law, they are obligated to protect. Because of that, I believe that we should require information sharing with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau and the Department of Education and that this information sharing would help make sure that the consumer agency’s student loan ombudsman has the data necessary to understand the challenges that borrowers are facing.

That is why I introduced the CFPB Student Loan Integrity and Transparency Act. The bill does just what its name suggests. It mandates that the Department of Education and student loan servicers share information and cooperate with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s student loan education ombudsman. That ombudsman is the number one Federal official tasked with advocating for students struggling to repay Federal student loans.

The bill also requires that the ombudsman’s office be fully staffed at all times, so that it can conduct the level of oversight necessary to protect student borrowers.

On the ninth anniversary of the passage of Dodd-Frank, it is time that we take stock of the protections of that landmark legislation that prevents another financial crisis. Many of these protections, the administration and my Republican colleagues have chosen to strip away. Even if piecemeal, we must reanimate those protections established under Dodd-Frank or we will again face the kind of dire consequences that fell on the shoulders of American families in 2008.

I wrote my book, “Broke: How Debt Bankrupts the Middle Class,” in 2012. That was 7 years ago. The college affordability crisis is not new to this country, and it is not new to this Congress. The crisis has been going on for years.

While students are unable to finish their educations because of the financial lack of student supports, while thousands face bankruptcy because of the high costs of college, Congress has done nothing. In the 7 months that I have been here, Congress has done nothing.

How much longer will we wait to address the student loan crisis? Because the students who are buried in debt, many from degrees that they were unable to finish because of financial pressure, cannot keep waiting.

Every day that we do nothing, we are failing every single person in this country who pursues a postsecondary education. We are stifling our economy and actively preventing the most vulnerable people from achieving economic success. No one in Congress, Democrat or Republican, should accept this. We are failing our Nation’s students.

As a mother of three young children, I refuse to stand by and let this happen. That is why I have joined with my colleague, Representative JAHANA HAYES, to found the first-ever Congressional College Affordability Caucus.

Before being elected to Congress, I was a university professor, and I spent nearly a decade helping college students who were facing bankruptcy. The mission of the College Affordability Caucus is to convene a diverse group of Congress Members to discuss the main drivers of the increasing cost of higher education and the resulting accessibility barriers to students who are seeking a postsecondary degree or credential.

The College Affordability Caucus will highlight solutions to the student loan default crisis, ensure that adequate guardrails are in place to protect every student from predatory actors, and reduce barriers to college completion that subsequently heighten college debt repayment problems for far too many students.

As we move forward to a reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, I hope that the College Affordability Caucus can work with other congressional leaders for whom this is a priority to make sure that we are protecting our students and ensuring that everyone has access to a high-quality, affordable education.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

SOUTHERN BORDER CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2019, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOHO) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. YOHO. Mr. Speaker, I am excited tonight to talk to this audience here and at home about a serious situation that has plagued America and American politics since the mid-1980s.

But that is not what I am excited about. I am excited to offer a bipartisan legislation solution to fix our broken immigration system.

Before I get into the nuts and bolts of what we are going to talk about, we need to look back on past efforts of what worked and efforts that did not work.

This body, along with President Reagan, did immigration reform that gave approximately 3.5 million individuals amnesty. Reforms were put in place to prevent a repeat of the illegal immigration challenge this Nation has had.

America, time and time again, has been said to be the most generous country when it comes to immigration policies, and I think we can all agree with that. Over 1 million people migrate to America, legally, per year.

Unfortunately, this body became divided and has continued to be divided over the enforcement of current laws and border security and making the needed reforms and revisions and adaptation to the times and needs of today to ensure our Nation’s borders are secure.

There are many programs where individuals can migrate to America legally, whether it is for work, to get an education, to become a citizen, to seek refuge from a national disaster, or for one’s safety because of bad government, corrupt government, or fear of life.

However, this body has become so divided and the situation since 1986 has grown to the point that we now have a conservative estimate of over 12 million individuals illegally, and the number continues to grow.

The number will continue to grow until this body stops playing politics with policies and people’s lives and puts forth a policy that is best for America, not for America’s political party, not best for the next election.

If a policy is best for America, the question is asked: Is it not best for all—our citizens, the immigrant, and national security?

What must happen is for this body to stop playing the political divisive game that has divided this Nation over the immigration policies.

On the Democratic side, Mr. Speaker, in the other side wants to have open borders, and I have to admit, the Democratic Presidential candidates have talked about that. The Democrats, Mr. Speaker, want to give everyone amnesty.

Therefore, nothing gets resolved because the narrative becomes political, the canyon that has grown between us grows larger, and nothing gets done.

I am a veterinarian by trade, and what I have learned is you have to look at the fact in front of you; you have got to diagnose the condition; you have got to look at the underlying cause; and then you have to treat accordingly.

In order for a problem to be solved, there must be the recognition that there is a problem.

Let me reference some of the rhetoric spoken by the very people tasked with solving this challenge to our great Nation, and this was at the beginning of the year.

House Speaker NANCY PELOSI called the situation: “A fake crisis at the border.”

Senate Minority Leader CHUCK SCHUMER called it: “A crisis that does not exist.”

House Majority Leader STENY HOYER said: “There is no crisis at the border.”

And I can read on and on with the individuals’ names, but there is no need to because they are talking points that don’t change.

Another Member: “There is no crisis at the border.”

“We don’t have a border crisis.”

“A crisis that does not exist.”

“Nonexistent border crisis.”

“There is no border crisis.”

This comes from a piece in the Washington Examiner that Byron York wrote: “This moment might be a time for introspection for those who have consistently downplayed the urgency of the situation on the border. Earlier this year, with the number of illegal crossings rising; with the nature of the crossers changing, more families and more children than in earlier years; with the testimony of border officials that they were unable to handle the situation; with all that happening, more Democrats and their supporters in the media forcefully denied that there was a crisis on the southern border.”
Here are a few more examples, Mr. Speaker.

"In the media, ‘Never Trump’ Republicans, former Republicans, and other commentators have joined in."

"Former Rep. Joe Scarborough, now with MSNBC, called the situation ‘an imaginary border crisis.’"

"Former Bush White House official Nicolle Wallace, also with MSNBC, said, ‘There’s not a crisis.’"

"Former Weekly Standard editor Bill Kristol called the situation ‘a fake crisis.’"

Another one says: ‘A fake crisis.’

Another one: ‘There is no crisis on the border.’

Another one: ‘There is no crisis at the border.’

"They are the same talking points that get passed from one person to another."

Another one: ‘A faux crisis.’

"A make-believe crisis.’"

Even the comedians on late-night television weighed in and said: ‘A fake border crisis.’

In this one article, there are over 26 examples, and there are plenty more where this came from.

The situation at the border is so terrible in part because those in power, and those cheering them on in the media, have steadfastly resisted common-sense measures to reduce the flow of illegal immigrants, the large majority of whom do not have a valid claim of asylum, across the border. The resulting paralysis in border policy encourages more migrants to come, making the situation worse by the day.

"Perhaps some of those quoted above only want to deny the President a victory,” which is shameful. No matter how sensible the results are, they can’t give in so that the situation is resolved.

The bottom line is, the American people are less safe; the immigrants are less safe; and America’s national security is threatened.

"Perhaps others are simply looking for a partisan advantage” for the next election. "Perhaps some sincerely believe in open or virtually open borders."

As I said, the Democratic Presidential candidates have all expressed their views on that.

"It does not matter what their motives are. The crisis—yes, crisis—at the border worsens every day that we do not act.”

I am happy to say that I think people have come to their senses, that there is recognition today that there is a crisis at our border. The important thing to note is that if we recognize there is a crisis at the border, then you can start to heal the problem, and then you can start fixing that problem. It starts with border security and the enforcement of the laws already on the books. People want to put in new laws and do all these things. The laws are already on the books. There are some flawed laws, like the Flores agreement, that need to be changed.

I just spoke to a Member of Congress who returned from the border, and he has spoken to the border security people. He was down there, and he saw firsthand. He had a shocking report. The coyotes bringing people in have control of what we call parishes or little neighborhoods. They have control of an area, and they bring people in. They are working with the narcotics traffickers. They are bringing individuals into this area.

Understand what is happening here. An individual who comes in will pay a coyote up to $8,000 for entry to come into America. It is more difficult to bring one individual in than it is with a child. A person who comes in with a child only has to pay $5,000 to a coyote. The reason is that they have to smuggle one individual in, get them on a bus, and they give them a boxed lunch.

This was just reported to us, and that was from firsthand. He had a shocking report. The person with a child who comes in only has to pay $5,000 because we have to process that, so it is easier to get them in. They can just come across the border, and our system rolls them in, so it is only new.

The coyotes—understand this—and human traffickers, which are the same, are advertising in other countries, Africa, the Middle East, the Asia-Pacific region, and South and Central America on TV ads. They say: ‘Come to America. We can get you in.’

They have the prices printed. The coyotes, the human traffickers, and the narcotics are getting rich at the expense of the immigrant and the refugee who truly need to come into America, and the children.

We always hear on the other side that it is for the children. Well, by God, if you believe that, then fix the dang problem.

It is also the expense of our American citizens and our children. I was elected by American citizens, and my first job is to uphold the Constitution. My first job is to the people of my district who sent me here. My first job is to protect our constitutional principles for the people of this Nation.

The other thing that gets threatened is our national security. The reports that we have right now indicate there are over 60 countries represented from the region, the coyotes running around, traffickers, most of them are undocumented immigrants, most of them unaccompanied children.

The other side will say, well, it is for the children. I agree. No child should have to go through that. No parent should have to go through that in 2019. Yet, this is 2019. Not a dang thing has been done in this body to fix this problem because politicians—and I am almost embarrassed to say that I am a politician—are afraid to fix this problem.

Do you know why? They will get political arrows thrown at them. Somebody will say: Oh, you want amnesty. You want to deport everybody.

They stay away from the next election comes, and nothing happens other than the situation gets worse.

Let me go to another picture of sickening photos of the humanitarian crisis at the border detention center. Business Insider all the way in Australia is highlighting, how it is worse if this body does not get the American immigration system is. You see kids running around. They are barefoot. People are laying on aluminum blankets, heat shields.

People are in this situation. This is not a new crisis. This is something that has been going on since 1986. It is coming to a head, and it is going to get worse if this body does not get the backbone to do what is right and do what is right for America. As I said, if it is right for America then it is going to be right for the immigrant, right for the American citizen, and right for this country. If we don’t do those things, then it is going to get worse.

Let’s go to that other picture. There is a graph here that I want to highlight before I turn it over to my good friend. On this graph, I think it is interesting because numbers and pictures speak lots of words. This is the southwest border apprehension for fiscal year 2019.

Before I get into this, President Trump has taken a lot of heat for trying to resolve a situation that gets worse every day. He has to do that only because this body is inept at what it is tasked to do. This body is the one that is supposed to work immigration laws. This body is the one that is supposed to do the enforcement laws. The President is tasked with executing the laws. According to Article II, Section 3, he shall faithfully execute the laws of the United States. If Congress creates the problem, then he has no other choice.

He has called this an emergency. He has taken flack for that. He has taken all kinds of criticism for trying to do what is right for this country, trying to protect our national security, and trying to have some kind of commonsense way to slow this down.

Yet my colleagues on the other side who in 2014 that this was a crisis, at the beginning of this year, they said there was no crisis. They criticized him for trying to act.

I want to show this graph. I know it is hard to see from TV, but look at this graph. We have different years represented here. We go from 2014 all the way up to 2019. The bottom line is, 2016, we were actively deporting people. There was a bad economy. We were getting as many people into this country.

What I want to show is in October 2018. Look at 2019. If we start at January, we are at 54,000 people apprehended at the border. This was when there was no crisis at the border, 58,000 while there was no crisis at the border. By the time June came around, that number had grown to 104,000 apprehensions at the border.

There was no crisis, according to my colleagues on the other side who won’t come together to solve this problem.

President Trump acted, and he acted strongly. He appealed to Mexico to help us with this situation. I commend the President of Mexico for coming to terms with President Trump. They put in enforcement at their southern border.

You can see exactly the effect of that when it happened. It happened right here in the end of June. Since then, the illegal apprehensions have dropped precipitously down to under 110,000 in just a month and a half.

We haven't changed the laws in this country. We haven’t increased border security in this country. But the Mexicans came to rescue and help us. In fact, the Mexican Government is doing more to solve this problem for America, American citizens, and immigrants than acknowledged on the left side.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING), who is a great friend of mine and a great proponent of legal immigration.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about a Member of this Congress, the Honorable Joaquin Castro, whose brother is running for President of the United States. He has introduced legislation to eliminate the use of the term “illegal alien” in Federal statute because it hurts people’s feelings. Hurts people’s feelings, when we have people going to their graves at their hands. I think their feelings are hurt a lot worse. And our compassion needs to be for those who have been killed and those who have been injured and those who have been abused in many ways. But to just change the terminology of the reality is just a political statement.

And I would add, on top of that, the policies that have been advocated on the other side of the aisle are the policies that culminate in open borders.

Open borders mean, picking a particular number that came out of DHS, in April, 4,117 illegal aliens interdicted in a single day.

So I got my little calculator, and I divided 4,117 into 710,000, which is the average size of a congressional seat. That meant that every 24 weeks another congressional district, an entire congressional district in Iowa, is supplanted by illegal aliens coming into America. And that number could well be as many as 50, 60, or 70 seats over the period of a Census time.

So I point this down, in conclusion here, and compress it so that even those folks who are the least likely to understand this will understand what I am about to describe.

If you were to close out a county in the desert of Nevada so that there wasn’t a single person living there, and then as we interdict these folks on the border at the rate of 4.117 in a single day, and over 24 weeks you accumulate the equivalent of an entire congressional district, you put them into that county, the Census shows up and counts them—710,000. 710,000 of them then become an entire congressional district. That entire congressional district couldn’t elect a single person because there wouldn’t be a single citizen there in 24 weeks.

So that means anybody can move there and vote for themselves, come to Congress, and represent 710,000 illegals—that is how bad it is—in only 24 weeks.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. ROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for taking the initiative to claim this time on the floor of the House of Representatives and bring up this topic.

I point out, Mr. Speaker, to the people who are paying attention here at least that that is you that this is the most complex issue that the United States of America faces and has ever faced.

We might face a tax issue or a national defense issue, and we might face a healthcare issue. They are very complex and very detailed. But almost everything else, you can make your mistakes, fix them, and move on, but it doesn’t multiply itself throughout the multiple generations that we have.

Immigration is very complex. At the heart of it is something that I heard the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOHO) reference, and that is the word “1986.”
brining an opportunity for us to speak on the floor of the House of Represent-atives on an issue that is front and center for most of the American people. It is, by far, the number one issue that the American people care about. I can particularly speak to the people of Texas, because I have seen the brunt of the failed border security, the failed immigration policies of the Federal Government.

I had the opportunity to visit an ICE detention facility in Aurora, Colorado, this past Saturday. I was out in Denver for a Western Conservative Summit. I was visiting family members, and I saw this terrible story of individuals rushing the ICE facility in Aurora, Colorado, and taking down the American flag, defacing the American flag, then raising the Mexican flag.

Mr. ROY. Mr. Speaker, I was going to bring this up, and I am glad the gentleman from Texas did.

What happened to the day when migrants came to this country to cherish liberty and freedom and become enrolled in the beliefs that we have to assimilate?

I appreciate the gentleman bringing that up because those aren’t friendly signs, to take down the American flag and put up the Mexican flag in our country.

Mr. ROY. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman’s question. I think it is an important question.

To take down the American flag, deface the American flag with the words “abolish ICE,” to turn it upside down and re-raise it; to raise, then, the Mexican flag alongside of it over this ICE detention facility, I went there the day after this occurred. I met with the individuals running this facility, both ICE as well as the private individuals, GEO, that were running it.

What did I find in the facility? It is a detention facility that houses 1,200 individuals. It was clean.

There were doctors’ offices. There was medicine.

There were ping-pong tables.

There were iPads to watch news in home counties.

There were televisions.

There were video game stations.

There were three square meals.

There were clean bunk beds.

There were people from 57 countries. Only 29 percent of the people in there are from Mexico.

Traditionally, this ICE facility has 80 percent of its occupants coming from individuals who are brought in from interior enforcement, usually vio-Ient criminals or people who have violated our laws other than immigration laws, and 80 percent are usually of that population.

Now, 80 percent of that is from people who are flooding across our border, overworking Border Patrol. ICE has no beds, no place to put these individuals who have violated our laws. As a result, we have overcrowding in the Border Patrol facilities.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle have, for months on end, been refusing to acknowledge that there is a border crisis, only awakening in the last several weeks to finally acknowldge that there is a crisis, to finally agree to pass only humanitarian aid, that is, dollars to go to HHS, ORR to take in individuals, unaccompanied children, but then restricting dollars for ICE.

Why? Because I think that the Democratic Caucus is run by four members of the Caucus. I don’t think there is a single Speaker. I think there are four Speakers. I think those four Speakers are deciding the policy for the Democrat Party. I think, as a re-result, we saw precisely what is happening. We have no resources for ICE—none.

We are vilifying ICE. We are vilifying Border Patrol. Speak to the Border Patrol agents on the border who are holding the line defending the United States of America while cartels have operational control of our border, while they are breaking the law. In Texas, the Gulf Cartel, Los Zetas, the Cartel de Noreste, the Sinaloa, they are using human beings for profit. They are using children as tickets to sell access to the United States.

Why are they doing that, and how are they doing that? My Democrat colleagues know full well the answer to that, and they don’t care. They don’t care that cartels are abusing our laws for profit, that they are doing so in a way that violates, that profiteers, that violates—women on the journey, a third of whom are abused along the journey. And they do so knowing that Border Patrol is overwhelmed and refuse to do anything about it.

Now, what I want to know, and I don’t know what my colleagues think about this, but why is it that we have got about 1 week left before we are going to adjourn for a 6-week recess, and yet my Democrat colleagues are going do nothing about the crisis next week? Are we going to be home for 6 weeks and allow that to continue to be the state of affairs at our southern border?

I think this country deserves better.

I think the migrants who seek to come here and are looking at little girls and women on the journey, a third of whom are looking at a sovereignty being violated by dangerous cartels. We are looking at a sovereignty being violated by dangerous cartels.

Why are they doing that, and how are they doing that? My Democrat colleagues know full well the answer to that, and they don’t care. They don’t care that cartels are abusing our laws for profit, that they are doing so in a way that violates, that violates—women on the journey, a third of whom are abused along the journey. sources, total CBP enforcement, Custom Border Patrol.

Apprehensions in 2017, total for the year was 526,901. 2018, that number—because the word had gotten out. The drug cartels are very good business people, unequally jobby, they are not ethnical people. They are not people I would want to have next to us. I don’t want them in my country. But they are very good at what they do. The apprehensions in 2018 was 683,178.

Now, get this. If people will not come together in a bipartisan way, they don’t need to be in Congress.

When you hear these numbers, apprehensions year-to-date 2019—keep in mind, 2017 is 527,000; 2018, 683,000 for the years, 2019, to date, the end of June, 787,161.

Folks, when are we going to do this? If not now, when? Are we going to wait until there are 20 million people here? 40 million people? 50 million people? If not now, when? Are we going to wait until there are 20 million people here? If not now, when? Are we going to wait until there are 20 million people here?

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gohmert), a great friend of mine, another great Texan.

Mr. Gohmert. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from Florida, and I appreciate him yielding.

This is something we ought to be talking about every day because it is a crisis. It makes a difference. It is helping destroy our country.

And it is really tragic, though, and I would not superimpose any type of attack on personalities, however, I think what we really have is not evil intentions, I think it is just massive ignorance. Because we have heard over and over: Oh, if you want to secure the border, you want just U.S. citizens, then you are a racist.

So that just reflects an ignorance.

Mr. Gohmert. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman feel like it is politics being played over policy for the next election?

Mr. Gohmert. Mr. Speaker, there is no question about that.

Mr. YoHo. Absolutely. It is sickness, sickening for this body, sickening for America.

Mr. Gohmert. No, it is.

But American citizens are comprised of every race, of every nationality, all walks of life. It is one of our strengths, people coming from so many different walks of life, countries, races. Yet when we have applied the standard “from out of many, one,” then we have been our strongest, all different races, nationalities.

Mr. YoHo, this is a threat. This is not about being racist. It is about doing rule of law.

Our good friend Steve King brought up a great point. This is rule of law.

That is all we are asking: Follow the rule of law.

This body has been derelict in their duty, and that is why this problem is growing, because they put politics above policy. They are afraid to stand up. It is like I said. We have asked President Trump, re-convene Congress, bring us back in at the August recess. And I would bring us back every time until we fix this problem, period.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gohmert).

Mr. Gohmert. Mr. Speaker, our Border Patrol agents are exhausted. They have worked so many hours.
We had a hearing today in Judiciary on a bill adding requirement after requirement, millions and millions of dollars. They didn’t give them any money in the 4.6 to do the job of enforcing the border. Our Border Patrol agents need help. They are in big trouble.

Mr. YOHO. They do. I appreciate the gentleman bringing that up. I will talk about that at the end.

Mr. Speaker. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PERRY), my good friend and colleague, the brigadier general.

Mr. PERRY. Mr. Speaker. I thank the gentleman from Florida for hosting this Special Order and continuing to elevate this issue and keep talking about it.

The last time that we were speaking on this floor about the crisis on our southern border with Mexico, our colleagues on the other side of the aisle were still denying there was a crisis, if you remember.

In report after report—if you watched CNN, MSNBC, et cetera—they said it was a manufactured crisis, manufactured by Donald Trump.

To their credit, they finally agreed that there is a crisis. I just thought, well, such is the state of the Democrats on the other side of the aisle. But more, acceptance of reality counts for progress around here. But we have got to be thankful that we are at least having a conversation sometime.

But you would think, with this crisis on our southern border, people are being coming illegally. That doesn’t count the ones coming at points of entry. Those are in between the points of entry. And that also doesn’t count the ones that weren’t caught, right? Those are the ones we caught.

Usually, Border Patrol says you can times two whatever we caught because others are getting through. You would think that we would be working around the clock here to fix this crisis at the border since we all now agree that there is a crisis.

But, instead, my good friends on the other side of the aisle are focused on smearing the President. I get the partisanship, but what really troubles me is they are also focused on smearing Border Patrol and ICE agents that are duty bound. They raise their right hand and take an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution and the laws that were created, that this body created. They are just doing their job that we asked them to do, and for that, they are being criticized, demonized, and smeared.

To add further insult to injury, some of our colleagues are now saying that they trafficked had no connection. They are just doing their job that we asked them to do, and for that, they are being criticized, demonized, and smeared.

A solution to the problem of people coming illegally, pouring across the border by the other side of the aisle, in some cases, is to abolish the agencies and the people who are working to stop it.

This completely sounds wrongheaded to me. I don’t know who that makes sense to, but it doesn’t make any sense to me.

Now, what other ideas have we heard? Of course, amnesty for illegal foreign nationals. That is going to fix the problem, because if you know that you can break the law and nothing is going to happen to you, I am sure that is not an encouragement to keep on breaking the law. I am sure that is not solvable:

Decriminalizing illegal entry. So, if you have somebody trespassing on your land and you go to the police and you say, “Hey, these folks keep trespassing on my land,” the police say, “Well, here is our solution. We are just going to make trespass legal now. Are you good with that?”

Well, that doesn’t seem like much of a solution.

Eliminating detention facilities. So, recently, a study maintains that 90 percent of the young people—young girls, but not exclusively, but young people that are being brought in—because these folks know that if they bring a child with them, it is tantamount to just immediate entry—30 percent of those connection, had no familial family connection to the person that they are with.

So, the reason to have detention facilities, among other things, is to try and figure out: Is this child with a parent or a relative, or is this child being trafficked?

A solution to this overwhelming problem offered by my friends on the other side of the aisle is to just get rid of the detention facilities.

So, the last place that this small child is looking for salvation, for safety, to stop the trafficking that is happening at that time, looking to America, probably praying and hoping that, finally, when we get to America, they are going to fall out that I am being exploited in horrific ways.

Our good friends on the other side of the aisle say, No, we are not going to do any of that. Just keep on exploiting the kids, but don’t do it here. Don’t do it in Mexico either. Now, just keep exploiting them in your town.

Well, that is not much of a solution.

To me, that is horrific, thinking about that.

Of course, then, another solution is providing taxpayer-funded healthcare for people that came here illegally.

Mr. Speaker, I don’t know where every everybody lives, but I know that people in the community that I am privileged to represent are having a hard time paying for their own healthcare now, let alone paying for people that came here illegally.

And, again, that is a solution to stop people from coming across the border offered from our friends on the other side of the aisle.

Let’s face it, these are incentives. These aren’t solutions to fix this problem: these are incentives to exacerbate the problem.

I don’t know what reality my good friends on the other side of the aisle are residing in, but, so far, it seems to me their platform has been amnesty, apathy, or apoplexy.

And we are frustrated because we know that the solutions are out there.

We have worked on them here, and we are happy and willing to work with our friends and colleagues on the other side of the aisle, but they seem paralyzed by theatrics in politics.

We know that loopholes in our immigration laws are being exploited by human traffickers and drug cartels. They are taking laws designed to help the most helpless, and they are using them for profit at a tragic cost to children and families.

Yet, the policies and the solutions proposed by our good friends on the other side of the aisle expand those loopholes or create even brand-new ones.

And we know, with hundreds of thousands of people streaming across the border, we need funds for beds and detention space.

Some of our friends on the other side of the aisle say, “Well, we don’t want you to detain these people, and we are not going to provide any funding for beds.”

So the answer is, when they come across the border, don’t even talk to them. Just let them keep on going. Let the children stay with their trafficker, end detention altogether, leaving the trafficked child at the mercy of their trafficker.

Then there is the dangerous transnational criminal organization, not only trafficking in children, but the drugs that are ravaging your very community.

They are coming across our southern border. Barriers, fencing, and wall, they are a force multiplier, because if our Border Patrol agents don’t have to stare at this place right here on the border because there is a barrier there, they can look over here where traffickers are coming across. Without any barrier, they have to look everywhere, and there is just simply not enough of them.

The other side shut the government down, trying to stop us from securing the border.

These cartels make massive profits. You heard about El Chapo’s sentence today. It is estimated he was making $3 billion a year trafficking children and drugs into your community, $3 billion a year.

El Chapo is in jail. Do you think somebody else didn’t take over? Do you think he was the only cartel in Mexico?

The other side wasting time on this floor passing partisan bills that have no hope of becoming law. Meanwhile ICE made more than 1,500 human trafficking arrests, and 97 percent of those were for sex trafficking. 20,000 children were illegally smuggled into the United States in December of
I implore, again, President Trump to reconvene Congress, if it leaves without solving this problem, in the August recess and every time. He can be the first President since President Truman in 1948 to do this.

I implore anyone who is watching to call your Members and tell them you want this problem solved. There is no reason that this does not get solved. This is something we can do.

Throw politics out of it. Let's get good policies. Good policies for America and good policy for our citizens, and good policy for our country.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

KEEPING THE PROMISE OF SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2019, the Chair reconvenes the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SCHWEIKERT) for 30 minutes.

Mr. SCHWEIKERT. Mr. Speaker, tonight is a continuation of a series I have been doing on the floor every other week. The chaos of the floor schedule. I take about a half an hour and walk through things I see in the numbers and, in many ways, express my intense frustration at both the Democrats and many of my brothers and sisters on the Republican side. I am tired of being dragged from the daily chaos that has become the House of Representatives to realize that the single biggest threat to the cohesion of our society is demographics. I am going to walk through what that means.

The reason I always put up this particular board is that we have developed, in our office, a five-prong attack on what society does financially to be able to keep the promises of Social Security and Medicare.

The demographics I was speaking of are those of us who are baby boomers. There are 74 million of us born, functionally, in an 18-year period, with 10,300 of us retiring or turning 65 every single day.

The math is devastatingly ugly. My instinct is maybe that is why it is avoided in conversation around here, because the math is difficult. It is uncomfortable. It is also real.

Some say, ‘Come on Mr. Speaker, do what you do to encourage workforce entry?’ The answer is yes. We have to do things that grow the economy, regulations, using technology that maximizes economic expansion, trade that maximizes economic expansion, regulations, smart regulations, using technology that maximizes economic expansion.

Labor force participation, what do you do to encourage workforce entry? We are doing remarkably well right now. We still have a problem with millennial men. We still need to find ways to create some spiffs within the Tax Code, within the retirement parts of the code, to encourage seniors who are healthy, wish to do it, and are prepared to do it, to stay healthy.

We have to do things to encourage family formation and to move to an immigration system that is talent-based, so it maximizes economic vitality.

We are going to have to look at the earned entitlement and things we can do to put spiffs and incentives within there to change the cost of healthcare, to encourage staying in the labor force, smart decisionmaking.

One of these is really important to me. I have spent a lot of time on the floor—aggressive adoption of disruptive technology, particularly in healthcare.

In this body, we have a running debate. The Republicans say our healthcare reform is who should get subsidized, who shouldn’t, and we will add more forces. The Democrat side is: Well, we won’t add market forces. We will do a collectivization, but we will see who pays and who gets subsidized.

We are having an argument about the money, on who gets to pay, not what to pay.

There is technology, and we have done this over and over on the floor, that is about to crash the price of healthcare. If this body is prepared to have a Blockbuster moment—and when I say, “Blockbuster moment,” I mean Blockbuster video moment, where technology changes things. We no longer go down to the neighborhood shopping center and get a little silver disk to shove into our player at home. Instead, we go home and hit a button.

It turns out, in healthcare, you have two sides. You have technology, everything from something you can blow into that tells you if you have the flu, to the thing you wear on your body that helps diagnose you, to the autonomous healthcare clinics that are going up around Phoenix, to the other side, the single-shot cure for hemophilia, things that actually cure disease.

If we can get our heads straight and say we need to crash the price of healthcare—it will be hard. That type of economic technology disruption is going to scare a lot of our friends, whether those in certain medical practices, who can’t offer certain services. But we don’t have a choice.

I want to walk through some. First, some of the good news and the reality on the math because this place is substantially a math-free zone. How many of you have been to the things you wear on your body that helps diagnose you, to the autonomous healthcare clinics that are going up around Phoenix, to the other side, the single-shot cure for hemophilia, things that actually cure disease.

If we can get our heads straight and say we need to crash the price of healthcare—it will be hard. That type of economic technology disruption is going to scare a lot of our friends, whether those in certain medical practices, who can’t offer certain services. But we don’t have a choice.

I want to walk through some. First, some of the good news and the reality on the math because this place is substantially a math-free zone.

Last week, I had floor time scheduled, but the floor ran long because, well, the chaos on the floor. I ran into one of my friends, a Democrat from the Midwest, and we were talking about the speech I was about to give.

His immediate reaction was: Well, David, you had that tax reform a couple of years ago, and that is the real reason.

You look and say, no. If you think about what has happened in labor, in tax revenues, in the dramatically fewer people who actually need social services, it has been incredibly positive for the economy.

So I put this board up for him. Take a look. If you actually take a look at these years, the middle bar chart, that is 2018. The blue is 2017. The gray is 2019 fiscal year.

This is the first 9 months of what we call receipts. For those of you on the Ways and Means Committee, this is substantially our responsibility in these receipts. Highest revenue first 9 months in U.S. history. Adjusted for constant dollars, the second highest in U.S. history. The doom and gloom and the crazy things that were said about tax reform aren’t true, and the math says so.

We don’t have a choice. If we do not substantially grow this economy, dramatically grow this economy over the next couple decades—not the next couple years, but next couple decades—you can’t mathematically cover the promises we have made on Social Security and Medicare.

And I don’t know why it is so terrifying for elected Members to actually be honest about the math. The chart is shown here. If you go onto the Treasury’s website, look at the receipts that have come in—highest in history; adjusted for inflation, constant dollar, second highest in history.

It is working. It is working.

There are things that are also really optimistic. We are getting one of those—do you remember our five points? Getting the economy to grow long term with stability, you all saw the June labor force report, jobs report—incredibly good numbers, far beyond our expectation.

But what was also really optimistic for those of us who are trying to build these models is the number of the population who were coming back into the labor force.

And I know this is getting out, but when you actually see more job postings than you have available workers, amazing. If I told you that a couple years ago, you would have laughed at me, but it has happened.

But the other thing we also start to look for, is even if you see little ticks up in the unemployment, the number going up, if it is not because of the falling available jobs but because those re-entering are choosing to enter the labor force, that is really powerful because that labor force participation number has a sense of the productivity of our society.

We have already seen some pretty impressive productivity step-ups. We have actually seen a constant wage gain, particularly for our brothers and sisters who were at, the technical term, the lower quartiles, which I always thought would bring joy across the body.

But it almost now seems this body is incapable of embracing good, optimistic, joyous numbers of how many of our brothers and sisters out there who had a pretty crappy previous decade are actually doing well now. There should be optimism about this. There should be joy about this, but would that be giving one party kudos against the other?

So take that differential, multiply it times 74 million baby boomers, and that is the math. That is substantially the driver of a completely unsustainable math that blows up everything in our lives. Yet we are terrified to talk about this. We all know it.

We all walk around with these reports here, though I wonder how many people ever open them up and read them. But that is the math.

We can manage this, but we have to do it with a level of creativity and understanding that it is not one solution; it is dozens of policies coming together to make it work. So let’s see what that short cut looks like.

This board now is maybe a year out of date, so I need some updating on it, but it functionally shows the shortfall in Social Security. Total Social Security shortfall over the 30 years is about $32 trillion.

What you see in the blue is interest. What you see in the purple is just what we call the cash balance shortfall. But the real difficulty, the honest difficulty, is Medicare.

Medicare produces about a $72 trillion cash shortfall over the next 30 years, where, if you look at the last bar, it is actually green. It is in the positive. The rest of the budget is positive.

This isn’t Republican or Democrat math. It is just demographics. It is what we are as a society. But yet we will weaponize this.

So if the Democrats do certain things, we are going to attack them on it. If we do certain things, they are going to attack us. Yet this is the fragility of our society, and it is almost impossible around here to talk about because there is folklore around here.

I can’t tell you how many public events I have done over the years where you will get someone to come up to you and say, “Hey, if you just take care of waste and fraud,” or “If you just take care of this,” or “If you take care of that”; anyone who says that today, particularly if they are an elected Member of Congress and they come behind a microphone and say, “If I take care of this,” that deals with the debt and deficits that are coming,” they are not telling you the truth. That is not what the calculator says. It is a rounding error. But that is not part of our political folklore in this culture.

So back to analyzing these numbers. Projected 2049 deficit, solely Social Security and Medicare. If you actually see the dedicated revenues, this one is purely on GDP, the percentage of the GDP that is going to have to be dedicated just to covering Social Security and Medicare. We will be taking in about 5.8 percent of taxes equal to GDP, that is dedicated to Social Security and Medicare, but we are going to be living in a world where we are getting proposals from the majority that offer another $40 trillion-plus of spending in the next 30 years.

Help us find our calculators. Help us find some compassion, some soul that we can make this society work. But you can’t do it by living in a fantasy world. The math is the math, and pretending it isn’t dooms our future.

I truly believe we are at a moment of inflection where if we do the right thing, we actually could have a couple of decades and my three- and-a-half-year-old can have an amazing future, every other child can have an amazing future, every retiree will know they are secure.

But if we don’t take care of these things, how do we deal with the other wave that is coming at us: the multi-employer pension crisis, the municipal pension crisis, the State pension crisis, the amount of our seniors, and million and million heading towards retirement that actually have almost no capital set aside for their retirement other than that Social Security and those medical benefits that are Medicare?

If you care and love about people, learn the math, tell the truth about it, and work with those of us who are passionate on working to a solution, instead of chasing the shiny object of the daily drama that is the House of Representatives right now, on what gets you the most clicks on your social media, what might get you a television hit tonight.

This is not particularly sexy, this is not exciting, this is not what a lot of our constituents want to hear, because it is painful.

It is also the single most important thing any elected Member of this Congress can do, is fixing the greatest threat to our society is $100 trillion of promises over the next 30 years to our seniors that there is no mathematical way to cover.

Let’s go do the right thing.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

THE THREAT COMING OUT OF WASHINGTON TO WORK CENTERS OR COMMUNITY REHABILITATION PROGRAMS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Arizona has 7 minutes remaining.

Mr. SCHWEIKERT. I have come up this year; this may be the two dozenth, which is huge in the math, the reality. Some of the times I am behind the microphone I am much more optimistic because there is a technology disruption, there is economic growth, there are things happening around us that give us a fighting chance.

But sometimes, I sit down and I sit here and highlight the different reports, and I am terrified for my little girl and what her future will be like because, right now, the math says her marginal tax rate is going to be more than double what I pay today just to maintain, just to keep the wheels on.

The economic growth crashes in our society. The opportunity is taken away.

And then we have crazy around here where we are getting proposals from the majority that offer another $40 trillion-plus of spending in the next 30 years.

People born with disabilities that cause people to have different abilities than most of the rest of us have, frequently now they work in work centers, frequently packaging or other light manufacturing sort of jobs. They sometimes make minimum wage, they sometimes make less than minimum wage.

If you have not toured one of these facilities, you have really missed out on one of the joys of life.

Here we find people working hard, earning their own paycheck, proud to go to work each day with friends and a social network, sometimes working in the same place for 20 or 25 years, who feel quite fulfilled, and quite frankly, should make the rest of us ashamed if we are ever unhappy in our own life, seeing people so happy with the jobs they have.

However, friends of people with different abilities, be they family members, be they guardians, be they just next-door neighbors, have to wake up, because there are small, powerful forces who want to shut down these work centers.

Why do they want to do so and how are they going to do it?

They are going to do it two ways. Tomorrow, or soon, in this place, we are going to take up what will be publicly discussed as the increase the minimum wage bill.

However, the increase the minimum wage bill is going to do something more than just that. It is going to get rid of 14(c) waivers for minimum wage, which allows people to work for less than minimum wage.

This is no oversight. We tried, in something called the Rules Committee, to amend the minimum wage bill.

There are people out there who feel it is below people's dignity to ever work for less than minimum wage.

People familiar with the sheltered workshops and the abilities of the people there know that already there are people who are not going to be able to find employment at $7.50 an hour. There is no way these folks are going to find employment, or many of these folks are going to find employment, at $15 an hour.

What is going to happen when you lose the ability to grant waivers and have somebody make $3 or $4 or $5 an hour? What happens when that disappears?

People are no longer going to be able to work in the community, they are no longer going to be able to work at the community rehabilitation centers.

The thing to wind up sitting at home. They might wind up in day services, but in day services, you don't get the pride of going to work. You aren't going to work every day like your parents did or like your siblings do or like your friends do. You will no longer have the social network that comes with every job, in which you will be able to have the same friends, which are so vital, because family members, parents eventually pass away. It is so important to have this other network.

It is so important to have the self-satisfaction that comes with getting your own paycheck, the self-satisfaction that comes with buying your own clothes, maybe buying gifts for relatives, that people are going to lose if there are no jobs at all.

The people who don't like community work centers are also on the attack in the Department of Education. And there, they remove the ability for folks in this situation to have competitive integrated employment. They feel we are isolating people in these facilities.

First and foremost, we have as a country learned that folks in these facilities are not segregated away in some dark corner.

Like I said, if you meet them, they are so happy and proud to show visitors the work they are doing. They are more happy than even the average citizen in our society to get their own paycheck and deposit it in a bank and know that they are buying their own clothes or buying things for other people.

Everybody should see what we have an opportunity to lose and everybody should ponder what will happen when these facilities are gone, because we are in a situation in which employers are not going to be able to afford to spend $15 an hour for a lot of these folks, just as right now employers are not able to spend $7.50 for these folks.

What they will also find is many folks like working in the work centers and prefer working in the work centers to other places in society.

Just as people with different abilities perhaps prefer participating in Special Olympics or prefer going to special church services with people in similar situations, folks like this frequently prefer working with their friends in the sheltered workshop. They feel very good about the situation.

When these radicals succeed in closing down the work centers, it is very difficult for folks like this. Even if you were able to find another job in the community with a work coach, you are no longer working with your friends, you no longer have the continuity of perhaps working with the same people, both in management and on the floor, for 20 or 25 years.

If you get a job at a fast food restaurant, even if you are able to work a few hours a week there, there is much more turnover. And frequently people do not like the stress that comes with not working with other people in their own situation.

It is time for the parents, the employees, just friends of people with disabilities to stand up and tell Congress, "Do not be swayed by a loud minority."

It bothers me when bossy people in Washington think they know what is best for people around the country. It bothers me when they feel that way about anybody, but it especially bothers me when they feel that way about the most vulnerable members of society, because I am convinced there is a loud majority of people, both the people with disabilities and relatives of people with disabilities, who just think that the work centers are going to be there forever.

The time has come to fight for the work centers, because there is a radical group who philosophically, apparently, thinks that when the minimum wage is $15 an hour, that jobs are going to spring up for these folks, and that they can shut down the work centers, and that the employers are going to say, "Sure. We can afford—whatever that is—$600 a week to have someone like this work for us."

Guess what? You are going to find almost no jobs. You may find a for employers, kind of as a charity type of thing, will take people in for 3 or 4 hours a week, but that is not like having a job for 30 or 40 hours a week like everybody else in society has.

These folks do not want to feel different. They do not want to be different than everybody else. They want to be like their siblings and their friends and their parents and go to work 30 or 35 hours a week.

Just like the rest of us who like to socialize and have friends who have worked in the same offices or the same factories for years.

They do not want to be working 2 or 3 hours a week or not at all. They do not want to be in a situation in which they are stuck with a job coach.

Now, I happened to bring along some testimonials that have floated onto my desk as examples, from either people who work in the work centers or parents of people who work in the work centers, and this is typical of what you will find, whether you talk to the parents or the employees.

Here is a story, Yael Kerzan's story. And I will just read bits of them.

"Yael does not feel segregated at Northwoods"—which is the local community rehabilitation work center—"because it is a community to her. She very much enjoys visiting with her work friends. The work she does at her CRP helps her be more productive and appropriate" at a job outside of the work center. "In addition, Yael's CRP provides a place for her to work when she is not at her independent job.

"She does not want to stay home, watch TV and do nothing. If she was not working, she would be miserable. In fact, Yael happily gets up every morning at 4:30a so she has plenty of time to be ready by 5:30a for her ride to work.

Which, by the way, is typical. I think folks like this have much more pride with their job than a lot of people who at least appear to be born with more."
Yael would rather be paid the special wage than to participate in day services’, which amounts to babysitting, whatever else they call it.

Next, another woman from Wisconsin.

I want to voice my opinion of the bill affecting 14(c).

“I do not want to see sheltered workshops close. Workshops are a meaningful way of life for many people born with disabilities.

“I am not against rehabilitation for individuals that rehabilitation may work for. But believe me, not all individuals born with disabilities are able to work outside of sheltered employment.

“My sister is one. She has been through DVR, has been employed several times, at several different jobs, only to fail. All was well when the job coach was present; not so when they weren’t.

“She was abused emotionally and physically by employers. She got the jobs no one else wanted or would do. I could go on and on.”

This woman, again, says her sister would be incredibly damaged if they got rid of the local sheltered workshop.

Another person, talking about his daughter, “Save for 200 sight-words, she remains illiterate, unable to read or write at a level commensurate with the rest of the adult world, unable to discern character differences in others (which has led to others taking unfair advantage), and again unable to grasp complex subject matter or multipart instruction, unable to understand numbers, let alone grasp the concept of arithmetic,” it makes it very difficult for her to do normal independent employment.

“Thankfully, the only positive light in her’’ life “has been the Black Hills Works here in Rapid City, South Dakota’, ’’ here again, another community support provider.

Another example of a person with different abilities, whose joy in life comes from working at the work center. And we have people who want to shut down these work centers because they feel the people are segregated there.

But I am sure Jonathan, right now, is proud of the job he has. I am sure, like all the people I see when I tour my workshops, they are so proud to show me what they have accomplished, they are so proud to talk about their paycheck, and they are so proud to talk about the new Packers jersey they bought or whatever. You are taking away the freedom from people.

I think it would be sad if they do not have the option to make less than minimum wage.

I started my first support employment program in 1985 and strongly believe in the right to access employment and to receive necessary accommodations.

The use of 14(c) is a necessity. Many people with significant disabilities cannot successfully perform a job to industry standards, 14(c) opens the door to those who fit in this picture. It allows the person to actually set his or her own standard and to increase pay as their performance improves. We need a full range of services and to recognize the reality of challenges many people have and then to support their strengths through 14(c) and other accommodations.

I will also point out that people who are asked to work in the community may be able to work in the community but don’t like it because of the stress it puts on them to do a very difficult task, which may be able to work in the community because it is at a pace which they are more comfortable handling. And they are working with people who are the same people they have worked with over a period of years.

Another testimonial:

I like working here and I make less than minimum wage. People should have the option to work at a company that pays less than minimum wage or work in the community and make minimum wage. I don’t want to work in the community. I like coming here and making friends also with my coworkers and making money.

What these people are doing is they are taking away the freedom from people. I think it is so arrogant for people who purport to be looking out for the disabled people in our society to say, I am taking away an option from you because I know best. Again and again you meet people who are very happy in the work centers and it is horrible to take away that option.

I had a job about 10 years ago, but I got very sick and I lost it. I am here making benefits and palletizing and going to class and stuff. I like to come to work and continue making money every day.

I know I don’t make minimum wage. It is okay I don’t make minimum wage. I am not as fast as I used to be. I like my friends. I love my job. I don’t like to stay at home. It is boring.

I hope we don’t take away this guy’s option.

I work in the community at Publix, but I don’t get very many hours. 14(c) helps me supplement my hours so I have something to do when I am not at the grocery store and can still make some money.

If the workshop went away, I would have to go somewhere else like coming here and it gives me something to do and helps my friend.
Here, I am going to make a point. A lot of these folks do find something in the community for 4 or 5 hours a week. Now, I am going to let people wonder when somebody works only 4 or 5 hours a week, particularly in this employment, why that is. Some of these lack-of-common-sense advocates feel that if somebody is able to find a job for 4 hours a week at the local grocery store, they should be able to find a job for 36 hours a week at the local grocery store. I will tell you, if you talk to the owners of these places, which are very nice people, frequently they are giving out jobs kind of as a community service, which is why these folks are only working 4 to 6 hours a week at one of these places. They are not going to be able to get jobs for 35 or 36 hours a week.

And when the sheltered workshop closes, it is not going to be replaced with a job in the community. It is going to be hour after hour sitting at home watching TV, or it is going to be at day services, which amounts to babysitting.

They are going to lose the satisfaction and pride that comes with work, and they are going to lose the independence of getting their own paycheck and not being as dependent on government support.

I like getting a paycheck. I used to have a job in the community, but I fell and couldn’t keep up. I love working in the workshop until I can get another job in the community. If there was no workshop, I would just color all day. I like having work to do.

Bingo. And there are people who would be happy to just have day services and have somebody color all day and not have the satisfaction of having a job.

I am a person with a disability who knows that not everyone can work in a job in the community. It takes hard work in being able to follow directions. Sometimes bosses are hard on you and want you to do more than you can. It is not easy to have a job and follow all the rules. I have friends who got fired or quit because it is hard. Why can’t people with disabilities have choices?

Some people might say they want to work, but when they do leave a sheltered workshop, they come back because it is hard out there in the work world. Maybe there are some agencies holding people back who really can work, bagging groceries or doing janitorial work. But there are very good agencies out there who are giving people with significant disabilities an opportunity to earn money because they can’t work in the community. Please, please, please consider people with IDD and low IQ and not make this work go away.

I have many regular jobs, but I like my program because it is not as stressful and more understanding. Staff are easy to talk with and you don’t have to worry if the place will be staffed. Someone is there.

Regular jobs are a lot harder. Applications are online, and that is not easy. Some people are not understanding in a competitive job. Communication is hard. They don’t understand disabilities.

I don’t get minimum wage, but it is not worth it. The more work I do, my pay goes up. I am not forced to do anything I can’t do. Breaks and hours are better than at another job. I feel like I work more on a team than I ever have. Other jobs don’t give you enough time. I think my program is cool and gets people ready for regular jobs, if they want to.

Don’t take away 14(c). It would hurt me. I get to be with my friends and make money, too.

Again, this person is pointing out that frequently people in these work centers are working with people with similar abilities, they enjoy being with people with similar abilities, and it is more stressful not being with people with these abilities. So even if other jobs are available, you are sometimes hurting these people, and you should not be telling them what they should be doing.

I work at a 14(c) program. Programs like mine perform a valuable service by offering much-needed alternatives to workplace environments that people with intellectual disabilities may not be totally comfortable with. The staff are much more tolerant and understanding of the difficulties that people with disabilities have versus staff at a CI environment.

Ever since I was a little kid, people such as teachers and relatives have all tried to push me to be as normal as possible, but with programs like this I can be myself.

I guess I will wrap it up. There are other testimonials that I can read. I will wrap it up by saying that the silent majority has to speak up.

And I would strongly encourage my colleagues to tour the local work centers. It will make them feel better to see how these people are working. It will make them feel better to see the pride that these folks take in a job.

If they talk to them, they will tell them how much they enjoy working in the work center. And then they can ask themselves, if this minimum wage bill passes as is, if the new rules that are proposed in the Department of Education go forward, they will ask themselves. What will become of these folks?

They should feel very guilty when they charge ahead, not paying attention to what the most vulnerable members of society will have happen to them, because people in this institution, or bureaucrats a few buildings away, have decided that they know what is for people other than themselves and have decided against all common sense that everybody in our society is capable of making $15 an hour.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Mighty God, hear our prayers, search our hearts, and know our thoughts.

Keep our lawmakers on Your path, inspiring them to walk with integrity. Hear and answer their prayers, saving them with Your might. Lord, preserve our Senators as the apple of Your eye, ordering their steps and bringing them to Your desired destination.

We love You, Lord, for You are our strength.

And, Lord, we thank You for the life and service of retired Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens.

We pray in Your great Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAMER). The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ANTI-COUNTERFEITING CONSUMER EDUCATION AND AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, in honor of Anti-Counterfeiting Consumer Education and Awareness Month, I wish to highlight the problem of counterfeits sold online.

Counterfeitors are increasingly turning to e-commerce to sell all of their fakes. In the past, I have advocated for increased education and awareness efforts because I believe these efforts and education are critical tools in our country’s arsenal against counterfeits. I encourage our Customs and Border Protection to identify ways to increase information sharing with their private industry partners. This is one way we can prevent the sale of fakes and keep consumers safe.

I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

REMEMBERING JOHN PAUL STEVENS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, first, this morning, the Senate recognizes the death of a distinguished American. We received word last night that the remarkable life of former Associate Justice John Paul Stevens had come to a close at the age of 99.

Justice Stevens served for 34 years on the Nation’s highest Court. You didn’t have to agree with his constitutional philosophy to admire his obvious intelligence or the universal reports about his kindness and collegiality or the passionate patriotism he was proud to wear on his sleeve. No question; this was a quintessential public servant of the “greatest generation.”

A son of Chicago who enlisted in the Navy the day before Pearl Harbor and went on to earn a Bronze Star for his work in cracking the coded messages of Imperial Japan, there was just something about Justice Stevens that told you this man lived life to the fullest. At age 12, he was there to see Babe Ruth’s “called shot” at Wrigley Field. At age 99, just this year, he published a memoir that was subtitled “Reflections on My First 94 Years.”

In between, alongside his time on the Court, he found time to weigh in on Shakespearean scholarship on the side.

So the Senate joins the Nation in appreciating this American life fully lived, and our condolences are with the Stevens family on this sad day.

NOMINATION OF MARK T. ESPER

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, yesterday, our colleagues on the Armed Services Committee heard testimony from Dr. Mark Esper, the Senate-confirmed Secretary of the Army and President Trump’s nominee for Secretary of Defense. They examined his extensive record of military and public service and discussed the variety of challenges the next Secretary will face. By the end, I believe anybody impartial would have to have come away impressed by Dr. Esper’s mastery, intelligence, and thoroughness.

Of course, it is not exactly surprising that a decorated combat veteran and distinguished scholar would convey expertise and calm under pressure. For those of us who knew him during his service as national security adviser to the former majority leader, Bill Frist, those qualities are familiar.

You could hardly invent better qualifications for the top job at the Pentagon than Mark Esper’s: a graduate of West Point, advanced degrees from the Harvard Kennedy School and George Washington University, courageous service with the 101st Airborne in the Gulf war, service at the Defense Department, a successful career in the private sector.

Every step of the way, he earned respect and admiration. That includes high praise from DOD leaders of the last administration, the Obama administration. They say that Dr. Esper “works hard, he’s smart, he’s dedicated.” He has “all the qualifications.” Our colleagues at the hearing saw an exceptionally well-qualified nominee. In fact, as my friend the junior Senator from Virginia has put it, they saw a... man of "sound character and moral courage." He is a man of honor and integrity, dedicated to our Nation and committed to the men and women who serve in uniform, and I think it is clear he deserves prompt confirmation. Even more, the Pentagon and our Nation’s security deserve a Senate-confirmed Secretary of Defense to be in place and on the job. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting his confirmation as soon as it can reach the floor.

TREATIES

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the Senate is in the midst of considering bilateral tax treaties with Spain, Switzerland, Japan, and Luxembourg. If yesterday’s overwhelming votes on the first protocol are any indication, all four will be ratified with huge bipartisan majorities. As I have said many times in this chamber, American businesses and workers in all 50 States will be thrilled to finally be back on fair footing.

The details of these nuanced agreements are complicated, but the core principles are quite simple. Foreign trade and international investment are key cornerstones of the U.S. economy. Major parts of proud American businesses and hundreds of thousands of hard-working Americans’ jobs are oriented around trade with these four nations. So their governments and our government sit down and negotiate which country will tax which kind of activity. The result is more clarity, more certainty, and less tens of millions of dollars over the years; alleviation of the double taxation could now allow for greater investment in plants and workers.

NASC Executive Officer Cristobal Fuentes released this statement that is heralding news of the Spanish protocol’s passage:

"This is a great day for North American Stainless and all U.S. companies with foreign investors that had been subject to unfair double taxation for many years. We are located in Kentucky, and if it had not been for Senator Mitch McConnell and his tireless efforts I firmly believe this day would never have come. Senator McConnell stood up for his constituents and helped negotiate at our Ghent, Kentucky plant by moving this protocol through the Senate. He listened to us and put Kentucky first. Workers in all 50 states stand to benefit from Senator McConnell's efforts, and companies nationally have him to thank for improving the American business climate."

"In addition to Senator McConnell, we are grateful to Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Jim Risch and the bipartisan group of Senators on his committee that moved this protocol forward. We are also thankful that President Donald Trump and U.S. Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin and their staff members understood the vital importance of this protocol and strongly engaged to work with the Senate to achieve this victory. It is now vital that President Trump’s Administration move quickly to finalize and implement this protocol with the Spanish Government so that affected companies can have fiscal certainty before year’s end as we relaunch steel. We are confident that President Trump will move quickly because this protocol falls squarely within his America First agenda."

"At a time when Chinese stainless steel producers are engaged in unfair trade practices and market uncertainty exists, this treaty victory gives a leg up to the American workers who produce quality stainless slabs in Ghent, Kentucky. Senator McConnell, President Trump, Secretary Mnuchin and everyone who supported the protocol stood up for working people across America today, including the ones right here in Kentucky. This treaty will preserve and unlock large investments in our facility, and we look forward to talking more about the biggest consequences.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Multiply this kind of story by all of the other numerous, significant Kentucky companies whom these agreements affect; then multiply by 50 States because U.S. businesses from coast to coast interact with these four nations; then consider how many hundreds of thousands of workers all of these companies employ. That is the scale of what we are talking about—the highest consequences.

I know job creators across the country are thrilled that the Senate is finally moving forward this week, and I am certainly proud to have helped secure this matter. Today, it seems that not all of our colleagues are thrilled. Don’t get me wrong; the vote totals on the floor have spoken volumes. The cloture vote on the Spain agreement was 94 to 1—just one Senator in opposition—and the treaty was ratified yesterday 94 to 2.

Yet I was curious to hear one colleague of ours come to the floor yesterday and passionately argue against what I have done as majority leader to what I have done to secure Senate ratification of this protocol. During that time, he has tried and failed to persuade Treasury Departments of two different administrations to insist on certain changes that would have required reopening the international negotiations. He tried and failed to persuade Treasury Secretaries to pass certain guidelines on the Foreign Relations Committee that his ideas were so necessary that we should risk scuttling the treaties—scuttling all of the treaties—over them. He tried and failed to persuade the Senate.

At every step, executive branch officials and Senate colleagues have tried to engage his concerns in good faith. But for 6 years in the case of the Spain treaty, 8 years with respect to Switzerland, and 9 years with respect to Luxembourg, he was unable to persuade anybody—over 9 years. In all of that time, no one was persuaded, partly because the changes he demanded didn’t solve a real problem, partly because they would have forced reopening the treaties for even more negotiations, and partly because everybody else was actually listening to the job creators who have been pleading with us for a long time to get this off their necks. There were 9 years—9 years of rejecting reasonable counteroffers and accommodations, 9 years of working to hold up these treaties and trying to sell the Obama administration, the Departments of the Administration, and his Senate colleagues on an off-the-wall story that failed to persuade anyone.

Look, I am a patient man, but my patience is not inexhaustible. After unanimous consent was denied on multiple occasions, I determined, after consulting with the Treasury Secretary and the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, that I would prepare to file cloture on these tax protocols. Yet even after this whole journey, our colleague still was not blocked or shut out of the process. He had his opportunity.

A few weeks ago, he had the opportunity to offer amendments to the protocols in committee. They failed on a vote of 17 to 5. Last night, we put two more of his amendments up for votes on the floor; they went nowhere.

Nine years is long enough. In fact, it is far too long—too long for our U.S. businesses to have been either paying needless double taxes or deferring huge amounts of money in dividend payments that could otherwise have been invested here at home.

Year after year, money that could have been immediately used to hire Americans or make new investments had to either be frozen up or handed over in duplicate taxes—all in large part because, our colleague could not accept that one single Senator who has not persuaded his fellow Members is not entitled to single-handedly rewrite international treaties. No wonder all kinds of American employers came out of the woodwork yesterday and urged the Senate to reject his misguided amendments and waste no more time in ratifying these treaties. I don’t know why the Senator believes he was close to a breakthrough after his years of effort. Hope springs eternal, I suppose.

Even if he had convinced the administration or his colleagues, the U.S. Government would have had to reopen the treaties for negotiation all over again with the other party, which would almost certainly have brought about changes that they wanted. No wonder President Trump’s Treasury Department expressed opposition to these amendments. Treasury told Senator McConnell amendment No. 912, of a peculiar nature. McConnell amendment No. 913 (to amend Senate Bill No. 852), to change the enactment date.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority whip.

UNITED STATES-MEXICO-CANADA AGREEMENT

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, after years of economic stagnation during the Obama administration, we are experiencing an economic revival. Thanks to Republican economic policies, the economy has taken off during the Trump administration. Unemployment is near its lowest level in half a century. June marked the 16th month that unemployment has been at or below 4 percent. For 15 straight months—15 straight months—we have had more job openings than Americans looking for work. Right now, there are roughly 1.6 million job openings more than Americans looking for work. That is the largest margin ever recorded. June also marked the 11th straight month that wage growth has been at or above 3 percent. Before 2018, wage growth had not hit 3 percent in nearly a decade.

Importantly, the benefits of this economic growth are being spread far and wide. Ordinary Americans are seeing bigger paychecks, more jobs, and more opportunities. Over the past 3 years, pay hikes for the lowest income workers have grown the fastest. Huge numbers of new blue-collar jobs have been created. Unemployment rates for minority groups have decreased significantly. The unemployment rates for Asian Americans, African Americans, and Hispanic Americans are all at or near record lows.

While our economy as a whole is thriving, there is one segment of our economy that is not fully enjoying the economic growth we have been experiencing. While our Nation’s farmers and ranchers have seen benefits from tax reform, years of commodity and livestock prices that are below the cost of production, protracted trade disputes, and natural disasters mean our agricultural economy is trailing behind the economy as a whole.

I am privileged to represent South Dakota farmers and ranchers in the U.S. Senate, and addressing the needs of these hard-working Americans is one of my top priorities.

Recently, I was very pleased to be able to help persuade the Department of Agriculture to move the haying and grazing date to September 1 for this year for cover crops on prevent plant acres. This will allow farmers and ranchers in northern States like South Dakota to sow cover crops without worrying that they won’t be able to harvest or graze them before winter weather sets in.

Cover crops help farmers by improving soil health, which improves future yields, and they can save farmers significant money by serving as an important source of feed. That second benefit is particularly important for farmers right now. Due to last year’s severe and lengthy winter, feed supplies disappeared, leaving no reserves. Cornstalks—a source of grazing and bedding—will be in short supply this year, and so will the supply of alfalfa due to winterkill. Cover crops will be crucial to alleviating this feed shortage.

If necessary, I will be encouraging the Department of Agriculture to release Conservation Reserve Program acres for emergency haying and grazing this year to further address the feed shortage.

The best source of information about what farmers and ranchers need is the farmers and ranchers themselves. Right now, producers are telling me that what they need more than anything else is market access for their products around the globe. Farmers and ranchers depend on trade. Our Nation’s farmers and ranchers have grown the fastest. Huge numbers of new blue-collar jobs have been created. Unemployment rates for minority groups have decreased significantly. The unemployment rates for Asian Americans, African Americans, and Hispanic Americans are all at or near record lows.

The best source of information about what farmers and ranchers need is the farmers and ranchers themselves. Right now, producers are telling me that what they need more than anything else is market access for their products around the globe. Farmers and ranchers depend on trade. Our Nation’s farmers and ranchers a substantial portion of the agricultural products we produce. Right now, though, farmers and ranchers are facing a lot of uncertainty when it comes to trade. While farmers appreciate the assistance the administration has provided to offset the lower commodity prices resulting from current U.S. trade policies, they would prefer to receive a check from selling their products instead of from the government.

Farmers are deeply concerned that their access to global markets, which has already diminished, will continue to erode, as U.S. agricultural products continue to be replaced by those from foreign competitors.

That is why passing the United States-Mexico-Canada trade agreement and wrapping up the other trade agreements the U.S. is negotiating has to be a priority. I have repeatedly relayed this message to the President and key members of his administration, and I will continue to do so.

While I strongly support the administration’s goal of strengthening market access for our Nation’s farmers and ranchers, the most urgent need right now is to get farmers certainty about what international markets are going to look like. Agreements with China, Japan, and the European Union all need to be concluded quickly to end current trade and market uncertainties.

We need to pass the already negotiated United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement as soon as humanly possible. This agreement will preserve and expand market access for farmers and ranchers in two of our Nation’s most significant agricultural export markets—Canada and Mexico. Of particular interest to the rapidly growing dairy industry in South Dakota, USMCA will expand market access for U.S. dairy products in Canada. The U.S. International Trade Commission estimates that the agreement will boost U.S. dairy exports by more than $277 million. The agreement will also expand market access for U.S. poultry and egg producers, and it will make it easier for American producers to export wheat to Canada.

Senate Republicans are ready to pass this agreement as soon as the President formally submits it to Congress. We are just waiting for Democrats in the House, who are still not convinced, to decide whether they are ready to take up the agreement despite the significant steps taken to address their priorities. It is high time for the Democrats in the House to make it clear they are ready to approve this agreement and allow our Nation’s agricultural producers to start seeing the benefits. I will continue to fight to get USMCA passed as soon as possible.

I am honored to represent thousands of farmers and ranchers in the Senate. I am proud that Republican economic policies have been lifting Americans across the economic spectrum. I will continue to work to get our Nation’s agricultural economy going again so that our Nation’s farmers and ranchers can prosper and thrive. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, last night, we received the news, the sad news, that Justice John Paul Stevens passed away at the age of 99. He was a son of the “greatest generation,” a code breaker in the U.S. Navy at Pearl Harbor, a lifelong Chicago Cubs fan, and a Shakespearean scholar. What a combination.

John Paul Stevens was the third longest-serving judge on the U.S. Supreme Court in the Nation’s history. The length of his tenure meant the jurisprudence of Justice Stevens left a mark on nearly every area of the law. Just as remarkable as the length of his tenure was its quality.

Justice John Paul Stevens was a champion for civil rights, equality, and accountability, who devoted his life to the ideal of equal justice under the law. He worked to constrain the use of the death penalty, defend abortion rights, articulate the bounds of Presidential power—very needed today—and believed that unravelling the limits on corporate campaign spending “threatens to undermine the integrity of elected institutions across the nation.” He was so right.

The fact that Leader McConnell and all our Republican friends lead the charge in allowing so much corporate money—very wealthy money—to cascade into our system—well, Justice Stevens is in Heaven reminding them of what they are doing to faith in our democratic institutions.

Stevens was at times an iconoclast. He was willing to buck conventional approaches and have his own views evolve. One constant, however, was his courtesy. During oral arguments, he would begin with the preface: “May I ask a question?” as if the counsel were doing him a favor. Out of respect for the respect he paid to everyone who came before the Court, on his last day on the Bench, lawyers and spectators throughout the Supreme Court Chamber wore his signature bow tie in his honor. It is inconceivable to me that anything I could say on the Senate floor.

Justice Stevens was a great man, a model jurist: wise, fair, compassionate, and caring about the little guy and gal. Our judiciary today needs more like him or her.

Mr. President, a different subject. It is certainly abhorrent that Leader McConnell has said we should move on from the President’s comments this weekend without him even pausing to think about it, and that is not the only subject Leader McConnell is stifling debate on in this Chamber.

The size of McConnell’s legislative graveyard grows with each session. Leader McConnell has stood in the way of progress on a multitude of issues: healthcare, in his legislative graveyard; climate change, in his legislative graveyard; voting rights, in his legislative graveyard; gun safety, in his legislative graveyard; and paycheck fairness, in his legislative graveyard.

When Leader McConnell refuses to even debate these issues and allows them to be amended, he hurts average Americans. He hurts Americans of all color and all creeds. He hurts Americans whether they have been in this country for 12 generations or they are new immigrants, new Americans, in this country.

There are so many issues: healthcare costs going through the roof, drug going through the roof, and Leader McConnell doesn’t let us vote on them—pre-existing conditions and the right to be protected if you have one. So if your son or daughter has cancer, the insurance company can’t say: “I am cutting you off” and you watch that child suffer and you can’t give him or her the healthcare they need. McConnell says: ‘No debate, no change.’

In fact, so many Republicans are silent on the lawsuit that President Trump and 19 Republican attorneys general filed that would get rid of pre-existing conditions.

Climate change. We know what is happening to our planet. Ask Senators from anywhere on the coasts, anywhere where we have had disasters, and talk to our farmers in terms of temperatures and predators, natural pests. The world is changing, and we are doing nothing about it. He will not let a single bill on that. There is also voting rights or people being deprived of gun safety, where thousands lose their lives, and we could close loopholes that 90 percent of Americans support.

Mr. President, there are so many issues. Let me dwell on one of them: healthcare, where Leader McConnell’s graveyard hurts every American: immigrant, nonimmigrant, Black, White, Brown, every religion, and every creed. Healthcare is the No. 1 issue in the minds of most American families. Millions of families across the country are still struggling with how to afford healthcare and how to afford prescription drugs, but at the moment, as I have mentioned, the Trump administration is actively supporting a lawsuit that would dismantle the healthcare protections we have today.

The consequences of the lawsuit are mind-boggling: tens of millions—tens of millions—would lose coverage and see premiums rise. Up to 133 million Americans—close to half of us—who have preexisting conditions would see their protections vanish. Yet Leader McConnell has not allowed this Chamber to debate whether the Senate can intervene in that lawsuit, let alone on any legislation that would improve our healthcare system. Astonishingly, many Republicans—many Senate Republicans—are publicly rooting for the Trump administration’s lawsuit to succeed, even if it means plunging our country into a healthcare crisis.

Climate Change

Mr. President, as I mentioned, healthcare is far from the only subject Leader McConnell has prevented the Senate from debating. Later today, my friend from Hawaii Senator Schatz will host the first hearing of the Senate Democrats’ special committee on the climate crisis, bringing mayors from across the country to talk about how their cities are combating climate change.

This Senate, because of Senator McConnell’s graveyard, will sit on its hands and do nothing, but our cities and states have no choice but to do something. They are closer to the people. They are doing stuff. We will hear about it today.

Climate change is the greatest threat to our planet, and Leader McConnell will not even let the Senate debate the issue. This will go down in history poorly for all of our Republican friends who back that up, which is just about everyone.

We had to form our own committee because Republicans wouldn’t join a bipartisan committee to discuss this. In his time as majority leader, Senator McConnell has brought forward exactly one bill to address climate change, and it was so his party and he could vote against it—a sham, a ruse, a trick, which flopped.

Many Republicans don’t support every Democratic idea to address climate change. I understand that, but Leader McConnell has provided no way for the Senate to even debate the matter. How are we supposed to compromise or make progress if the Senate leader refuses to allow us to debate any legislation? How can America make progress, even when the House moves forward, when the Senate has become a legislative graveyard for so many issues?

On climate change, healthcare, and so many other issues, Leader McConnell has stood in the way of progress for average American families.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the Democratic leader and I just want to take a few minutes here to point out to everyone that our colleague, the senior Senator from Vermont, just cast a truly historic vote. Of course, these tax treaties are significant, but I am talking about the fact that Senator LEAHY just cast his 16,000th vote of his Senate career. We know of no single statistic that could begin to capture such a tenure, but this figure comes close—16,000 votes cast in the Senate, 16,000 votes cast in favor of smaller actions and the accumulation of smaller accomplishments over a lifetime of quiet, dedicated service amount to a great monument of achievement.

Leader MCCONNELL noted that Senator LEAHY was the youngest Senator ever elected from Vermont. He is still just young at heart, at dedication, and at conviction as he was the day he came to the Senate.

We welcome Senator LEAHY and know that he will serve many, many more happy, productive years in this Chamber.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I wish to join the chorus here. This is a big day, as Senator MCCONNELL and Senator SCHUMER said, for our friend and colleague PAT LEAHY.

PAT and I have been working together a long time; this is our fourth decade. As we were told, he just cast his 16,000th vote in the U.S. Senate. I want to note that only three Senators have ever hit that mark—Senator Robert Byrd, Senator Danny Inouye, and Senator Strom Thurmond. And he is still going. PAT still has some time on his hands. This is an extraordinary achievement, as we all know, here in the Senate.

As I said, PAT and I have served together for more than three decades. As Senators MCCONNELL and SCHUMER said, he was first elected at the age of 34, making him one of the youngest Senators here.

As we all know, last year we completed our work, working together, before the Fourth of July recess, on the Appropriations Committee. We are going to try to do it again this year, working together. I just think, if we work together, as we have before—PAT and I have given and taken from each other—it is good for the Senate.

I congratulate Senator LEAHY again on this rare and remarkable achievement—16,000 votes. It is a first. He currently ranks first in seniority in the Senate—first, folks, in seniority. He is our senior Senator. It has been nothing short of a privilege to serve alongside him. He is an excellent colleague, he has been a class act. I have enjoyed working with him and look forward to a few more years in the future.

Mr. DURBIN. (Applause.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished majority leader and the distinguished Democratic leader—both very close friends of mine whom I have served with for so long. And my dear, dear friend Senator SHELBY from Alabama.

It is the friendships that mean the most, both to me and to my wife Marcelle. It is the friends we gather on both sides of the aisle and the people I have traveled with around the world.

One of my proud achievements was the War Victims Fund, but it was Senator SCOTT from Delaware. He was Mr. Republican in our State, and I wondered how he was going to end the war in Vietnam, which we close with mentioning just one trip to Moscow. He said: PATRICK, you and Marcelle are going to come to Moscow. I was 34 years old. I had just gotten through a campaign that nobody had contributed to. We were flat broke. I blurted out: What is the airfare to Moscow?

He said: No, we are going to take Jerry’s plane.

I said: Jerry who?

He said: Jerry Ford. He is the President. Don’t you read the papers?

We had an equal number of Republicans and Democrats on that trip, and we formed lifelong friendships and learned how to work together. I urge Senators to continue doing that. And it was better than flying commercial.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I thank my colleagues. (Applause.)

PROTOCOL AMENDING TAX CONVENTION WITH LUXEMBOURG (TREATY DOC. 111–8)

Resolved (two-thirds of the Senators present concurring therein), Section 1. Senate Advice and Consent Subject to a Declaration Concurring Therein.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The advice and consent of the Senate to the ratification of the Protocol Amending the Convention between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with Respect to Taxes on Income and Capital, signed on May 20, 2009, at Luxembourg (the “Protocol”) and the related agreement effected by exchange of notes, signed on May 20, 2009 (Treaty Doc. 111–8), subject to the declaration in section 2.

Sec. 2. Declaration.

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the following declaration: The Protocol is self-executing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the motion to reconsider is considered made and laid
The pile kept burning. It was smoldering. You could smell it blocks and blocks away—10 blocks, 20 blocks, 30 blocks away. Men and women kept going to that pile to do the very hard work of, first, trying to find survivors and, then, of course, just trying to find remains and doing all the hard work of cleaning up. They dove in. They got to work. They wanted to help our country heal.

Now more than 18 years have actually passed and thousands of those men and women have actually died. Thousands more are getting sick. They are getting grueling, painful diseases, like cancer, and they are now dying. Why? Because they did the work at Ground Zero that we asked them to do, and it made them very sick—the air they breathed, the smoke, the burning metal, the crushed glass, the crushed electronics, the toxins they breathed in that the EPA told them was safe.

These heroes have since had to quit their jobs and do the jobs they love and provide for the families they love because they are too sick. They have had to give up their income. They have had to give up their dreams. They have had to face the terrifying reality that they are actually going to die because of what they did on 9/11 and the months thereafter.

If that wasn’t a great enough burden, they had to use the most precious commodity, time—time away from their families, time away from their friends, and time away from their children, from their loved ones, and from their community. To do what? To come here. To come here to walk the Halls of Congress, to go to office after office, to ask that this body and this government stand by them in their greatest time of need, to ask for the basic compensation that they have earned and deserve, to ask for the healthcare that could actually make them another year longer and not have to go through bankruptcy, and to have to come here week after week, spending thousands of dollars of their own money, sacrificing the time and energy that they have left.

I have seen first responders in wheelchairs, attached to oxygen tanks, spending their last moments here in Congress just asking that we do the right thing. Almost 10 years ago, 9 years after the attacks, Congress finally listened. We passed a healthcare and compensation program so that these men and women have actually run out of money for them, that the compensation they have earned and the need their families have will be cut by up to 70 percent.

Eventually, we passed another compensation bill, but, again, it was for another 5 years. Even though thousands of 9/11 first responders are sick and even more will become sick, they still had to come back, even though some of those diseases are lifetime diseases and more will die. And, now, sadly, the fund is running out.

The 5 years aren’t over yet, and the Federal Government is already having to tell these families who have gotten cancer and died since 9/11 that we have actually run out of money for them, that the compensation they have earned and the need their families have will be cut by up to 70 percent.

Once again, sick and dying first responders are being forced to come here to knock on our office doors to remind Members of Congress of what they did on that day and the weeks and months since, to tell them their personal stories of how painful it is to lose everything you love. First, it is your ability to work, then your ability to play with your kids, then your ability to eat, and then your ability to breathe.

I believe we have a responsibility—a sacred responsibility—so that anyone in this Chamber who has any sense of decency, compassion, or patriotism would listen to our first responders and ask them what they need: a permanent compensation program so that these men and women will never have to spend another moment in these hallways again. This bill passed last year, but, instead, my colleague has objected, asking people to come back over and over. Everyone loves to point fingers in this place, but there is nowhere else to point that finger today than this Chamber.

The House has already passed the bill overwhelmingly 402 to 12. It is about as bipartisan as it gets. Shame on those 12 Members who voted no.

We could pass this bill right now, but, instead, my colleague has objected, asking people to come back over and over. Everyone loves to point fingers in this place, but there is nowhere else to point that finger today than this Chamber.

for coming. You are the people who got this done. You are the people who made this happen more than any of us and more than anyone else. The heroes of 21st century America have names like Zadroga and Pfeifer and Alvarez, for whom this bill is named—three of the thousands who checked to the towers bravely and lost their lives because of their bravery and selflessness.

I say to my friend from Kentucky: Throughout the history of America, when our young men and women or older men and women volunteered, or were drafted, for our armed services and risked their lives for our freedom, we came back and gave them healthcare, and we are still working on making it better. Why are these people any different? They, too, risked their lives in a time of war and were hurt by it—by diseases they didn’t even know they could get. How can we, for whatever reason, stop this bill from moving forward?

We are going to have a defense bill on the floor. We are not going to offset it. It has pay raises for our soldiers. It has new equipment. We are not going to ask for an offset. Why this bill—why is it different? It is not. This fund needs to be fully funded.

I agree with my friend from Wyoming, the Presiding Officer, the House leadership, hardly people who aren’t careful with the dollar—sometimes too careful—when Kevin McCarthy and Scalise, the Freedom Caucus leader, Mark Meadows, all voted for it, why are we holding this bill up? If we put it on the floor today, we could pass it, and it would be on the President’s desk this week, and those brave people here and the many more who came would not have to come again. They should not have to come again.

It is not that it will be a joyous day when this bill passes. They are going to have to return to nurturing their brothers and sisters who are sick and to worry if they might get sick from all the things that were in the towers—that poisoned their systems, their lungs, their digestive systems, their kidneys, and their livers.

The bottom line is very simple. You can come up with 10,000 reasons not to do something, but you shouldn’t come up with any reason not to do something noble and right.

I urge my friend from Kentucky to withdraw his objection. I urge Senator McConnell, the leader, to put it on the floor now, and we can let these folks in the Gallery and so many others do what they need to do—help their families, help their friends, and make sure their health is given the best protection possible.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. President, I thank Senator Schumer for being such an extraordinary advocate for the men and women who have served our Nation. This bill would never have gotten this far without his leadership, without his dedication, and without his absolute commitment to the men and women in the Gallery, as well as the men and women in all 50 States throughout this country.

I thank Senator Schumer for never giving up on this bill and for always bringing it across the finish line when others gave up. His leadership and his tenacity the most. I thank him, for the record, for his undying commitment to the men and women who serve this Nation.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the record for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The Senate proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, today is “Washington Waste Wednesday.” It is a new series I launched last week to highlight all of the ways Washington wastes taxpayer dollars. Unfortunately, there are a lot of ways.

My belief is that you, the American taxpayer, can spend your money better than Washington can. It is a novel concept, but Senator McConnell understands that when you spend your money, it is oftentimes an embarrassment.

As Governor of Florida, my focus on responsible spending meant more money in the pockets of Florida families. The funding available to pay down State debt and invest in what mattered most to our families. We paid down $10 billion in State debt over my 8 years as Governor—nearly one-third of total State debt. We cut taxes 100 times, giving more than $10 billion back to Florida families and job creators. And we have record funding for education, for the environment, and for transportation.

But right now, our national debt is impossible to fathom, much less sustain. It is $22 trillion. Just let that sink in for a minute. We are already $22 trillion in the hole, but that doesn’t stop the far-left Democrats from proposing more debt for this country. Medicare for All, which I like to call Medicare for None, would not only throw 150 million people off the private insurance they like, but it is projected to cost as much as $32 trillion over a decade. That is $32 trillion with a “t.”

The problem with our healthcare system is rising costs. It just costs too much. Prescription drugs cost too much. Hospital visits cost too much. ObamaCare drove up the cost of healthcare. That is obvious. Then the government tried to hide that cost by providing Federal subsidies to the tune of $737 billion in 2019—$737 billion in 2019 and $1.3 trillion by 2029.

Instead of providing subsidies and proposing more wasteful ideas, we should be focused on bringing down the cost of healthcare, which solves two problems. First, it will result in more people having healthcare coverage, and, second, it would ensure that health insurance results in actual healthcare.

Reduce costs and you solve both of these problems, but solving problems is a novel concept in Washington. The Democrats in Washington just want to keep spending more money on the problem. On top of Medicare for All, the Democrats want a Green New Deal. The Green New Deal—I call it the Green Job Killer—would cost as much as $93 trillion. These two proposals alone will cost more than $100 trillion, which is more than $100 trillion that we can’t afford to spend.

We are turning this Nation around. Our economy is booming, and wages are rising. We can’t go along with this dangerous socialist playbook. Higher taxes, more debt, and more regulation will cost us billions and could disrupt our country. These ideas are the craziest examples of Washington waste we have seen in a long time.

Thankfully, the American people will not go along with socialism. We can’t afford to cut and cut, but we have to be thoughtful. We have to propose real solutions, just as we did in Florida, to make Washington work for all American families.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to once again give the facts about the Democrats’ one-size-fits-all healthcare proposal, the legislation that many Democrats are referring to as Medicare for All.

My focus today is what is going to happen to American patients if the government takes full control of our Nation’s healthcare system. I speak as a doctor who practiced medicine for 24 years in Casper, WY. It is so interesting, as a doctor, to take a look at what is being proposed because I know the specifics of the impacts on the lives of patients, patients I have taken care of as part of my training and part of my practice in Wyoming, and as a doctor, I have personally studied what is happening to healthcare in other countries around the world.

You have no doubt heard about the waiting crisis of care in England. There are doctor shortages, and, of course, there is rationing of care. British rationing has actually become the focus of a recent article in the magazine, The Economist. The article is entitled, “The front line of England’s NHS is being reinvented.” It says, “A shortage of family doctors leaves little choice but to try something new.”

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have this article printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
A SHORTEST LINE OF FAMILY DOCTORS LEAVES LITTLE CHOICE BUT TO TRY SOMETHING NEW

The National Health Service is free, so it is

The post-GP world is rationed. Family doctors, known as general practitioners (GPs), act as the first port of call for patients; friendly gatekeepers to the rest of the system, people who refer patients to specialists only if needed. But in some parts of the country, including St Austell on the Cornish coast, access to the raters is itself rationed. "You can't book an appointment to see me here," explains Charlotte Paddison of the Nuffield Trust, a 39-year-old GP, one of a team in charge of an innovative new medical centre. "You simply turn up when we triage them.

It is an approach that will soon be familiar to more patients. Simon Stevens, chief executive of NHS England, has said that being a GP is arguably the most important job in the country. There is, however, a severe shortage of them. According to the Nuffield Trust, fewer than 10,000 people, down from 66 in 2009—the first sustained fall since the 1960s. Only half of patients say they almost always see their preferred GP. There are also more practical problems. Doctors complain that they are overworked, and growing numbers retire early. The average consultation lasts just nine minutes, among the quickest in the rich world.

Although the NHS hopes to train and recruit new family doctors, the gap won’t be plugged any time soon. A new five-year contract for GPs will only allow access to the money, practices will have to form networks which, it is hoped, will help them take advantage of economies of scale and do more to prevent illnesses rather than merely treating them.

When the four practices serving St Austell merged in 2015, it was an opportunity to reconsider how they did things. The GPs kept a diary, noting precisely what they got up to during the day. It turned out that lots could be done by other, more junior, staff. They invited physiotherapists, with the first cash for such roles arriving on July 1st. To access the money, practices will have to form networks which, it is hoped, will help them take advantage of economies of scale and do more to prevent illnesses rather than merely treating them.

The shortage of GPs leaves the NHS with a little choice but to try something new. "A lot of the world has either copied or is trying to copy English primary care," in particular its openness to all and the continuity of care to which patients are entitiled. "Patients with the most complicated or urgent problems make it to a doctor. As a result, each GP is responsible for 3,800 locals, compared with an average of 2,000 in rich countries.

Although few practices have made changes on the scale of St Austell Healthcare, across England the number of clinical staff other than GPs has grown by more than a third since 2015. The logic behind the introduction of these new roles is compelling, says Ben Taylor of the Beechwood Medical Centre in Halifax says that new roles quickly show their worth. Her practice took in a "work wellness adviser" employed by the council. The adviser’s job is to help people over the age of 50 with poor mental health back to work in a year—a task which she completed in just six weeks. In St Austell, physiotherapists are paid more than £140,000 from prescribing costs. Far fewer staff now report that they are burnt out.

Working in a team will nevertheless require a big shift in mindset for many doctors, particularly those in surgeries that have never before employed anyone else. Ben Taylor explains the benefits of the new way of working. "The practices will end up doing what they must to get the extra funding, but little more. There are also more practical problems. Seven in ten GPs say their practices are too cramped to provide new services, and it is not clear where some of the extra staff will be hired from."

Perhaps the biggest problem is that patients have grown used to having a doctor on demand. Although those who no longer have to queue for an appointment may feel a little better, others might feel lobbed off if diverted to another clinician. A study published last year by Charlotte Paddison of the Nuffield Trust, and colleagues in the British Medical Journal found that patients who had been in the care provided by a nurse if they initially expected to see a doctor. Patients who have a close relationship with their GP tend to be more satisfied and enjoy better health outcomes than others.

But other evidence suggests that, for some conditions, nurses provide care that is as good as or better than that provided by GPs. The aim, says Nav Chana of the National Association of Primary Care, which helped develop the new model, is to use small teams of doctors and other clinical staff to replicate the sort of relationship with patients that used to be more common. Just parachuting in "a lot of people who look like doctors" will not raise standards, he warns.

The shortage of GPs leaves the NHS with a little choice but to try something new. "A lot of the world has either copied or is trying to copy English primary care," in particular its openness to all and the continuity of care to which patients are entitled. "Patients with the most complicated or urgent problems make it to a doctor. As a result, each GP is responsible for 3,800 locals, compared with an average of 2,000 in rich countries.

Although few practices have made changes on the scale of St Austell Healthcare, across England the number of clinical staff other than GPs has grown by more than a third since 2015. The logic behind the introduction of these new roles is compelling, says Ben Taylor of the Beechwood Medical Centre in Halifax says that new roles quickly show their worth. Her practice took in a "work wellness adviser" employed by the council. The adviser’s job is to help people over the age of 50 with poor mental health back to work in a year—a task which she completed in just six weeks. In St Austell, physiotherapists are paid more than £140,000 from prescribing costs. Far fewer staff now report that they are burnt out.

Working in a team will nevertheless require a big shift in mindset for many doctors, particularly those in surgeries that have never before employed anyone else. Ben Taylor explains the benefits of the new way of working. "The practices will end up doing what they must to get the extra funding, but little more. There are also more practical problems. Seven in ten GPs say their practices are too cramped to provide new services, and it is not clear where some of the extra staff will be hired from."

Perhaps the biggest problem is that patients have grown used to having a doctor on demand. Although those who no longer have to queue for an appointment may feel a little better, others might feel lobbed off if diverted to another clinician. A study published last year by Charlotte Paddison of the Nuffield Trust, and colleagues in the British Medical Journal found that patients who had been in the care provided by a nurse if they initially expected to see a doctor. Patients who have a close relationship with their GP tend to be more satisfied and enjoy better health outcomes than others.

But other evidence suggests that, for some conditions, nurses provide care that is as good as or better than that provided by GPs. The aim, says Nav Chana of the National Association of Primary Care, which helped develop the new model, is to use small teams of doctors and other clinical staff to replicate the sort of relationship with patients that used to be more common. Just parachuting in "a lot of people who look like doctors" will not raise standards, he warns.

"I should say, though, patients don’t love it."

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, the story opens with a simple observation, and this is the first sentence: "The national health service is free, so it is also rationed." That is what we are seeing, and that is what people are living with every day in Britain. Under the guise of healthcare being free, they live in a world where healthcare is rationed.

So how bad can that be? What would this mean with this one-size-fits-all—Medicare for All, which the Democrats are proposing?

The Economist writes that in Britain today "[m]any patients with the most complicated or urgent problems make it to a doctor." Actually, today you need a doctor’s referral to see a specialist in England. But now, in some parts of the country, a British bureaucrat must preapprove your visit to the family doctor, who will then make the referral to the specialist. I can imagine people in our country tolerating that. So, ironically, "access to the raters is itself now rationed." According to the article, "Only half of [British] patients get to see their preferred doctor."

Remember that old line—"If you like your healthcare, you can keep it. If you like your doctor, you can keep your doctor." In Britain, only half get to see their doctor—if they get to see them, if they get to go through the rater, who is a bureaucrat.

What happens after you wade through all of this, wade through the morass of the bureaucrat and the family doctor to get to the specialist? What does the article say about when you actually get to see a doctor? The average consultation time, it says, is 9 minutes—"one of the shortest consults I have ever heard of. I cannot imagine 9 minutes—after waiting all of this time to see the doctor, 9 minutes and then the doctor moves on to the next patient, who has also been waiting and waiting and waiting to see the doctor.

What does this tell us about what would happen in the United States in particular trying to see doctors if we followed this one-size-fits-all, government-run healthcare program that Senator SANDERS and so many of the Democrats are supporting? If we adopt a government-run, one-size-fits-all healthcare system, which is what they are proposing, I would tell Americans to expect to pay more to wait longer for worse care. That is what we would see. To borrow the line from The Economist, bureaucrats will, as they say, reinvent what healthcare means for you.

You may have seen the stories about the thousands of elderly patients right now going blind in Britain—going blind. Why are they going blind? Well, because the British health service is rationing eye surgery. The president of the Royal College of Ophthalmologists has said that the rationing is part of the government’s cost-cutting in England, and people are going blind as a result. Thousands of elderly patients are refusing to go on waiting lists, but the bureaucrats who must approve it are denying the treatment. The number of denials has doubled in the last 2 years.

According to the Royal College of Surgeons, a quarter of a million British patients have been waiting more than 6 months for planned medical treatment. That is happening in England today. The waiting times are getting longer. Now let’s look at Canada. According to the New York Times, Senator Bernie Sanders, like Canadians, has written about the prospect of a one-size-fits-all, government-run healthcare system because he says it is "free." Of course, Senator Sanders knows it is anything but free. After all, the healthcare proposal that Senator Sanders is proposing has a $32 trillion price tag. The Senator admits the plan hikes taxes on middle-class families. He said it in the debate the other night. The truth is, even doubling your taxes will not pay for this healthcare proposal. Yet a majority of Democrats in the House of Representatives—a majority—have cosponsored what Senator Sanders is proposing. A majority of the Democratic Senators running for President today have cosponsored Senator Sanders' one-size-fits-all proposal. Apparently Senator Sanders approves of the Canadian long wait times because he says wait times are not a problem. Well, maybe he should check with the Canadians to see if wait times are a problem, because patients in Canada typically wait 3 months for treatments and for certain treatments, much, much longer. In some ways, the Canadian healthcare system has been called a trick-or-treat medicine because if you haven't seen your care by the end of October, by Halloween, you will have to wait until next year because they will have run out of the money allotted for that procedure or that healthcare in that country in that year.

As a doctor practicing in Wyoming, I have actually operated on people from Canada who came to the United States for care. It is free up in Canada, but they couldn't afford to wait for the free care they were going to get in Canada, so they came to the United States to pay for the care here.

Still, that is what the Democrats are proposing—a one-size-fits-all approach. So people will pay more through their taxes to wait longer for care that will be worse care. Even the Congressional Budget Office people who looked at this in terms of funding, looked at what it would cost to do a Senator Sanders' style approach, said it would be expensive, complicated, and the delays and waits just in treatment but also in technology.

Many Democratic candidates for President have also endorsed—amazingly so—free healthcare for illegal immigrants. You saw the question being asked on the debate stage. Every one of the Democrats running for President was standing there and was asked: Which one of you would have in your healthcare plan free health insurance, free healthcare, for people in this country right now? And every hand on the stage went up.

When you take a look at what the proposal actually is—this Medicare for All, this one-size-fits-all approach—it actually takes health insurance away from 100 million people who get it through work and gives it to illegal immigrants. So 180 million American citizens will lose their on-the-job insurance while illegal immigrants will get it for free. That is the Democrats'Medicare for All proposal.

The Congressional Research Service recently reported that the Sanders bill ends Medicare as well as on-the-job health insurance, and what we will be doing is entering into one expensive, new, government-run system.

Still, the Democratic Senators who are running for President and the 118 Democratic Members of the House support this feeble legislation. They haven't cosponsored it, saying: Let the Washington, DC, bureaucrats call the shots—unelected, unaccountable bureaucrats calling the shots as they ration your care. They will micromanage your care, delay your care, delay your treatment—treatment that you urgently need. That is the difference. People will lose the freedom to see their own doctor. We have seen what has happened in England. Patients will wait months for treatment. Keep in mind—delayed care is often denied, and if they finally get to see a physician, the amount of time in consultation will be incredibly short. That is why what is being proposed by the Democrats in this one-size-fits-all approach—a government plan, a Canadian-plan—is completely unacceptable to American citizens.

You don't need Democrats' phony promises of free care; what you need is to have the freedom to get the care you want and need from a doctor whom you choose at lower cost. That is why Republicans are going to continue to work on real reforms that improve patient care, that increase transparency, that lower the cost of care, and that empower the people to pay out of their own pockets, without adding these incredibly longer wait times and the loss of the ability to make choices on your own. Why should we pay more to wait longer for worse care, which is what we are seeing with a one-size-fits-all approach? Let's make sure patients can get the care they need from the doctor they choose at lower costs.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROMNEY). The Senator from Texas.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I would ask unanimous consent that Senators Alexander and Menendez be allowed to speak for 5 minutes each before the vote scheduled at 2 p.m. today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF "APOLLO 11"

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, 50 years ago, the world was transfixed by a grainy, black-and-white image of Neil Armstrong descending a ladder, presenting to the television audience in history—glued to the TV screen on that day. I was actually in high school, and, like so many Americans and Consternationivans involved in getting them to the Moon in the first place.

We now know that this lunar trip had quite a sense of humor. Michael Collins was once asked in an interview what he thought aboutPresenting to the astronauts' return, we learned that when Buzz Aldrin stepped off the ladder, he told Armstrong he was being careful not to lock the door behind him. And when talking about the fact that most of the photos from the surface of the Moon were of Aldrin, not Armstrong, the Senator said that Buzz was the far more photogenic of the crew.

While the first lunar landing meant many different things to people around the world, there was one thing that was abundantly clear: That date—July 20, 1969—established the United States as the world leader in human space exploration. It also put my hometown, the place of my birth, Houston, on the map as a hub for spacelift innovation in the United States.

We all remember the very first words uttered by Neil Armstrong after landing. He said, "Houston, Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed." Of course, the man was talking to the greatest minds of the generation, who were working at Johnson Space Center in Houston, TX. The men and women at Mission Control Center exercised full control over Apollo 11, from the launch at Cape Canaveral to landing on the Moon, to the splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

For more than 50 years now, the Johnson Space Center in Houston has been the home of the human space program. The success marked the turning point in space exploration, and folks across Texas are eager to celebrate this momentous anniversary. You can do like I have and visit John- son Space Center yourself and see NASA's Mission Control from Apollo. It was redesigned to look exactly the way it did in 1969, down to the retro coffee cups and glass ashtrays. You can watch the Houston Astros take on Oakland while wearing space caps. Across the State, you can see special movie screenings, space-themed menus, and "ask an astronaut" events to educate our next generation of space travelers.

To commemorate this historic mission in Washington, I introduced a bipartisan, bicameral resolution with my colleagues Senator Brown, Congressmans Barber, and Congresswoman Horn last month. I thank my colleagues who supported this effort and urge my fellow Senators to join me in passing it this week. This resolution honors Apollo 11's three crew members—Buzz
Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, yesterday marked the passing of a giant in American law. Justice John Paul Stevens passed away at the age of 99. I just bought his most recent book. The subtitle reads, "Fl significantly 90 years." Justice Stevens was a favorite, born and raised in the city of Chicago. He was a lifelong Cubs fan. He was in the crowd of Wrigley Field as a very young man in 1932, on October 1, during a World Series game, when Babe Ruth made the famous called shot—hitting a home run over the fence.

He attended the University of Chicago and Northwestern School of Law. Naturally, he graduated at the top of his class. In between, he served as lieutenant commander of the U.S. Navy during World War II and was awarded the Bronze Star.

After law school and a clerkship with Supreme Court Justice Wiley Rutledge, John Paul will be an accomplished attorney in Chicago, leading to his nomination to the Seventh Circuit in 1970. In 1975, he was nominated to the Supreme Court by President Gerald Ford and confirmed by the Senate 98 to 0.

I want to extend my sympathy to Justice Stevens’ family, including his surviving daughters, Elizabeth and Susan, his 9 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Today we bid farewell to a giant, and we thank Justice Stevens for his decades of service to this country and for his profound contribution to American law.

OPIOD EPIDEMIC

Mr. President, years ago, there was a Senator from Wisconsin named William Proxmire. He used to come to the floor every month and give what he called his "Golden Fleece Award" for the worst example of Federal Government waste. Earlier this year, I launched a new series dedicated to that tradition, with floor speeches that built on the Proxmire Award with a focus on the most extreme cases of the pharmaceutical industry’s greed. It is known as the Pharma Fleece Award.

I have highlighted price-gouging for lifesaving insulin, the patent abuses that extend monopoly control over pricing of drugs, and the billions of dollars’ worth of medications that are thrown away each year deliberately through the production of oversized, unnecessary drug vials.

This month, I want to focus on the pharmaceutical industry’s role in another national disgrace—the opioid epidemic. We are in the midst of the nation’s worst drug overuse epidemic in our history. There is no town too small, no suburb too wealthy to be spared the suffering and the deaths that have been wrought by this problem.

Last year, 2,062 people in my home State of Illinois died from opioid overdose. There is culpability with nearly all the stakeholders, including the U.S. Government. There is no denying how this epidemic was ignited. For years, the pharmaceutical industry wildly mischaracterized the risk of opioids, falsely claiming they were less addictive and less harmful; that these painkillers should be prescribed for common aches and pains. The industry itself had information proving the dangers of such long-term use.

In 2007, the manufacturer of OxyContin, Purdue Pharma, pleaded guilty to a felony charge of mishandling the drug by misrepresenting OxyContin’s risks. This resulted in a modest fine as the company continued to flood the Nation with their deadly painkillers.

Now reporting this morning from the Washington Post found that Big Pharma saturated the country with 76 billion oxycodone and hydrocodone pills between 2006 and 2012. During a 6-year period, 76 billion pills were produced by the pharmaceutical company, Mallinckrodt, 28 billion opioid pills on the market during this time.

Downstate in Illinois is a small rural county, Hardin County. It has fewer than 10,000 people and a county, Hardin County. It has fewer than 10,000 people and a population of the county is 4,300 people. It is one of the smallest, least populated counties in my State. In the year 2010, approximately 6 million hydrocodone pills and 1 million oxycodone pills were shipped to Hardin County and its surrounding communities. For 4,300 people, they shipped 7 million pills. All of this data was actually captured and reported to a Federal agency, the Drug Enforcement Administration. They will come up again in my presentation. That means drug manufacturers knew about this obscene volume of pills being produced and sold; that drug distributors knew exactly where and how they were being transported, and law enforcement had its eyes on it all along.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the list of the top opioid distributors and manufacturers from 2006 to 2012.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
Mr. DURBIN. This opioid epidemic wasn’t started by some runaway virus. They were decisions made by real people to flood America’s towns and streets with “a blizzard of prescriptions,” as Richard Sackler of Purdue Pharma put it in his own words. In fact, the pharmaceutical industry in the United States produced 14 billion opioid pills in 2016 alone—enough opioid pills for all the adults in America to have a 3-week supply of opioids. Who would approve the production of 14 billion opioid pills in 1 year, 2016? It turned out it was your government.

The Drug Enforcement Administration of the Department of Justice is responsible for determining and basically giving a license for the production of a specific amount of opioid pills allowed to be distributed to the market each year.

It is the Drug Enforcement Administration—of all agencies—that establishes annual production quotas for opioids that are, effectively, the gatekeepers for pharma. Pharma, of course, wants to produce as much as possible in order to meet a demand that it helped create. The Drug Enforcement Administration is supposed to draw the line. Yet, for all of these years, while we have faced this epidemic, our government—the administration, the agencies—that established production quotas each year for opioid pills.

Between 1993 and 2015, the Drug Enforcement Administration allowed the production of oxycodone to increase in America 39 times—from 3⅓ tons of opioids in 1993 to 151 tons of opioids in 2015. It is the same story for hydrocodone, which increased twelvefold, and for fentanyl, which increased twenty-fivefold.

I pressed those in the Drug Enforcement Administration on this issue. I asked them how they could possibly approve of these ever-increasing quotas while America faced this epidemic. How did they reconcile their decision to flood America with these drugs at a time in which they were being abused and when addiction was leading to death all across our country?

Last year, I passed bipartisan legislation, the Sackler-John Kennedy Act, with Senator JOHN KENNEDY, a Republican from Louisiana, that authorized the Drug Enforcement Administration to deny opioid manufacturers licenses if it could be determined they marketed their opioids in a deceptive manner. Now, if you as police turned out to their attention that they were sending it a letter and will urge it to use its new authority, which we put in this new law that I passed with Senator KENNEDY, to continue reining in Big Pharma’s insatiable demand.

Mr. DURBIN. I believe that you are going through this opioid epidemic, pharma—made up of the people who make the pills—is coming to Washington, to the Drug Enforcement Administration, and is getting permission each year to produce billions of opioid pills to be sold in the United States—enough for every adult American to have a 3-week opioid prescription.

Incidentally, 2 years ago, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention set a notice out, a notice for a public hearing, to read that only in the most extraordinary cases should one prescribe a drug to last for more than 3 days—or only in the most extraordinary cases. Then watch them carefully, in a short period of time, add another 3 days? Pharma was asking for a production of opioid pills so that each adult American could buy 3 weeks’ worth of pills, and the Drug Enforcement Administration was complicit.

To hold all of them accountable, major legal challenges have been brought against the pharmaceutical industry for its role in deceptive promotion and all of the suffering and deaths that have resulted. Over 1,600 lawsuits from States, counties, cities, and victims have been consolidated into one Federal case in Cleveland, OH. This reminds me of another public health scourge we confronted when Americans suffered the consequences of the tobacco epidemic: lawsuits from States, counties, and cities for misleading marketing and false information about the health risks of tobacco. It took the 1998 Tobacco Master Settlement Agreement to finally hold major manufacturers of tobacco responsible for their actions—that of cigarettes that hook adults and youth to lifetimes of addiction and death.

That settlement was estimated to provide States with $266 billion over 25 years ago. Sadly, only a tiny fraction of that amount—only 8 percent of the settlement—was actually dedicated to tobacco prevention and cessation. Instead, $145 billion from the tobacco settlement has gone to fill State budgets and pet projects—roads, bridges, stadiums, even a tobacco museum.

Should today’s opioid litigation result in large monetary settlements from the pharmaceutical companies and their distributors, it will be essential that this funding be dedicated to legitimate public health efforts so as to respond to the current epidemic and prevent the next one.

In the city of Chicago, near an area known as Greektown, there is a drug rehab facility that I have visited many times. It is called Haymarket. It was started many years ago by a Catholic priest who took on a ministry that nobody else wanted. He was the one who prowled every night along skid row and helped those who were addicted to drugs and alcohol turn their lives around. He converted the Haymarket House as a refuge for them in an attempt to get them some help in escaping their addictions and being rehabsed.

Can you imagine what it is like today?

Today, sadly, he is gone, but they continue the Haymarket House. Imagine what they face in trying to deal with a combination of addiction to drugs and alcohol and mental illness on top of it. They are dramatically understaffed. They don’t have the necessary bed space for people who need a helping hand—for folks who realize they need a helping hand.

Should there be a successful outcome of the Cleveland lawsuit, wouldn’t it be best if some of the resources would be dedicated to places just like that all over the United States?

I can tell you, in the city of Chicago, there are many more options than there is in Haymarket House, and there are sparsely populated downstate areas from which I hail. There are some counties in which people wait 6 months—once they have realized their need for help—for any kind of treatment whatsoever, and then they have to travel great distances for that to happen.

Senators BROWN and I recently wrote an opinion piece that was published in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. I confess publicly that I hope those who are party to this lawsuit in Cleveland will read it, which is where the consolidated court case is taking place. In it, we outlined what we thought should happen if we were to have any input in a settlement agreement.

We made the make sure that the money is spent for addiction; treatment; medication; residential and community treatment services; mental health counseling, which is a necessary adjunct to this effort; building on a behavioral health workforce and naloxone distribution; and addressing childhood trauma, which is often the root of addiction.

Wouldn’t it be great if there were to be a settlement here that would be dedicated to this drug epidemic, turning lives around, and saving people from addiction and death?

The diversion of tobacco’s settlement money should be a cautionary tale that guides our efforts to heal from the opioid epidemic. If Big Pharma is held accountable for fueling this crisis, its restitution should be devoted to helping our Nation heal.

This chart shows the dramatic increase in the production of two of the most popular opioid products. I will never be able to explain how the agency of the U.S. Federal Government, which is dedicated to protecting us from drug crime and drug addiction, ended up authorizing these enormous quotas of the production of opioid pills. Yet we know what happened. In tiny Hardin County in southern Illinois, as well as on the streets of Chicago, they were flooded with opioid pills. When the opioid pills became too expensive, they turned to a cheaper alternative—heroin. Heroin was then being laced with fentanyl, and we have today this deadly epidemic that is almost out of control.

I can’t understand what pharma was thinking except for its just looking at the profits and the bottom line that would justify the production of that level of opioid pills into the United States of America. All I can promise is that a number of us—myself included—will be holding the Drug Enforcement Administration accountable in order to make certain that this is not duplicated again in the years to come.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be suspended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF CLIFTON L. CORKER

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, within a few minutes, the Senate will be voting on President Trump’s nomination of Cliff Corker to be the U.S. Federal District Judge for the Eastern District of Tennessee. I am here to strongly urge my colleagues to support Cliff Corker.

Corker has the respect of the people who know him best. He was selected to serve as a magistrate judge by the district court judges of the Eastern District of Tennessee—a very high testament to his qualifications. When Cliff Corker was appointed magistrate judge, this is what he said: It’s a tougher job to be the decision maker rather than the advocate. There’s so much more responsibility in making the decision than advocating for the client because you really want to see justice done.

Prior to his nomination to be magistrate in 2015, Judge Corker had his own law firm in Johnston City, TN. He handled a wide range of cases, from civil litigation to capital murder. He graduated from James Madison University and received his J.D. from the William & Mary Law School.

The American Bar Association rated Judge Corker as unanimously “well qualified,” the highest ranking a nominee can receive. I am sure that is because of his judicial and litigation experience.

Judge Corker has big shoes to fill. He is taking over for Judge Ronnie Greer, a very well respected Tennessean, a friend of mine for many years, who served as a judge in Tennessee’s Eastern District for the last 15 years. Prior to that, he was a State senator in Tennessee.

Cliff Corker demonstrates the qualities that I look for in a judge: good character, good temperament, high intelligence, respect for the law, and respect for those who come before the court.

Tennessee is fortunate that President Trump chose to nominate such a well-qualified candidate.

I urge my colleagues to support Judge Corker’s nomination.

I yield the floor.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF LYNDA BLANCHARD

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I regret that I come to the floor to announce that Secretary of State Mike Pompeo in a letter I sent in June of 2018, shortly after his confirmation.

I explained that a number of nominees before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had demonstrated histories of questionable temperament and judgement, of questionable conduct, of #MeToo issues, just to mention a few, and I expressed my hope that we could work together to find qualified nominees to the U.S. Department of State. I am disappointed that that effort went unheeded.

Ms. Blanchard has a history of using Facebook as a platform to post incendiary, false articles and disturbing statements. For example, she once shared an article titled “The Clinton ‘Body Count’ EXPANDS—5 Mysterious DEATHS in the Last 6 Weeks,” resurrecting the vicious lie and preposterous conspiracy theory that President Bill Clinton and Secretary of State Hillary Clinton have systematically murdered political opponents and associates.

Then, on election day of 2016, she posted on Facebook “Make God our Father paint this country Red with the Blood of Jesus”—inappropriately referencing a gratuitous instrument in a political campaign.

She has also shared articles by the far-right Conservative Tribune, some of which were taken down for failing to meet its “editorial standards” — quite literally, fake news.

What is perhaps most disappointing to me is that 2½ years into the Trump administration, none of this is particularly new. We have had Trump diplomatic appointees call for putting political opponents in prison, such as Kyle McCarter, President Trump’s Ambassador to Kenya, who tweeted on election night of 2016: “Hillary for prison. No, really!”

We have had Trump diplomatic appointments, already at their posts, make totally inappropriate and inflammatory forays into American politics, which is taboo for the Foreign Service, such as in June of this year, when Carla Sands, President Trump’s Ambassador to Denmark, appeared to accuse former President Obama of an “attempted coup d’etat in America” — the U.S. Ambassador in Denmark, June of 2019.

And we have had Trump diplomatic appointments embarrass the country by making false claims and then failing to take responsibility for them.

Pete Hoekstra, appointed by President Trump as Ambassador to the Netherlands, has claimed that there were “no-go zones” too dangerous to enter due to Muslim migration. When asked about these statements, Ambassador Hoekstra claimed they were “fake news” until he was confronted with footage of his own words.

This is not normal. We cannot grow accustomed to this kind of disgraceful behavior. We cannot look at the poor behavior of already-confirmed nominees and conclude that we should lower our standards when it comes to Ms. Blanchard’s nomination.

This is the U.S. Senate — supposedly, the world’s greatest deliberative body. We should examine the fitness and qualifications of every single individual nominated to be the face of America in nations across the world. We should expect our Ambassadors to represent the United States with dignity, respect, and sound judgment, and we should remember that America’s role as a leader of nations rests on our moral standards and greatest values.

Something is wrong if we willingly confirm people to these positions who repeatedly spread fake news, baseless slander, and the most despicable of conspiracy mongering.

For these reasons, I will be opposing the nomination of Lynda Blanchard and urge my colleagues to do the same. I yield the floor.

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will report the nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk read the nomination of Donald R. Tapia, of Arizona, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to Jamaica. The 50th Anniversary of "Apollo 11": Ms.ERNST. Mr. President, July 20 marks the 50th anniversary of the first man took on the Moon. For that brief moment, all mankind stood united, watching a spectacular event that transpired few would have imagined possible just years earlier. It stands as one of the greatest achievements in the history of mankind, and it cemented the United States as the world leader in science, technology, and discovery. In 1961, when President Kennedy boldly challenged the Nation to land a man on the Moon and return him safely to Earth by the end of the decade, the technology needed to do so, for the most part, didn't even exist.

That accomplished this monumental goal is a testament to American ingenuity and innovation. In fact, some of the very technology developed for the Apollo missions is still having a positive impact on the lives of Iowans nearly half a century later. Our first responders wear fire-resistant textiles developed for the use in Apollo space suits. Our communities rely on water purification technology designed for the Apollo spacecraft. Our soldiers in the field depend on the MREs, Meals Ready to Eat, created to safely feed the men and women in uniform. As a former commander who oversaw supply convoys into a war zone, I know personally how important this is.

GPS is a great example of this, especially in Iowa. GPS has its roots in the military and has a strong Air Force stewardship, and its significance only continues to grow with the advancements of satellites and the development of drones. Yet GPS has evolved beyond just military use and it impacts the everyday lives of Iowans. From driving directions in rideshare services to the electric power grid, GPS is utilized by businesses and consumers across the country. This important technology supports new and emerging applications, including water quality, driverless vehicles, and precision agriculture. It is estimated that civilian and commercial access to GPS added $90 billion in annual value to the U.S. economy in 2013.

Examples like these demonstrate why it is so important this body and our Nation as a whole continue to push the envelope when it comes to science, technology, and discovery, and that is what Senate Republicans have been doing.

As chair of the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee on Emerging Threats and Capabilities, I have made it a priority to ensure that the United States remains the leader in the development of artificial intelligence, or AI. From novel defensive capabilities and data analysis to the predictive maintenance of military hardware, there is no over stating the value of AI to our national security.

I also fought to ensure the recent Defense bill prioritized the continued development of advanced manufacturing techniques, otherwise known as 3D printing. Look no further than Rock Island Arsenal, which employs so many of my fellow Iowans. They are doing some truly innovative work in this arena—work that has the potential to transform the way we supply our men and women in uniform. As a former commander who oversaw supply convoys into a war zone, I know personally how important this is.

Of course, there is a consensus on both sides of the aisle that we can do more to get our students—especially our young girls—excited about futures in STEM and STEAM. I hope we can work together to advance that effort in the near future. After all, the Moon landing could have never happened without the contributions of thousands of women from across the Nation. These unsung heroes did everything from developing Apollo's onboard software to weaving the copper wire for the spacecraft's guidance system.

As we mark the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 Moon landing, there will be countless commemorations and tributes to this monumental event. We will look back on President Kennedy's bold call to action, the hundreds of thousands of hard-working American men and women who answered that call, and the three heroes who rode Apollo II to the Moon and back. Then, in that same spirit, we will turn our gaze to the future—to the innovation, to the the Spyglass Inn on the beach. We were vacationing in Florida, at the end of the 1960s.

Through determination, hard work, invention, and innovation, the United States fulfilled President Kennedy’s vision of reaching the Moon before the end of the 1960s.

I remember that time very well, for July 16, 1969, was my dad’s 37th birthday. We were vacationing in Florida, at the Spyglass Inn on the beach. We were so excited that we reserved a Mermaid Island, FL, where Apollo II was being launched. We were in our hotel room, watching the television. That is one vacation I will never forget. As a young girl, I remember watching those first astronauts step foot on the Moon. It was one of the most amazing experiences I have ever had then as they took those first brave steps on the Moon. It was with great pride that I watched them plant the American flag on the Moon.

Those brave NASA astronauts of the Apollo program today continue to serve as an inspiration that we are capable of anything we set our minds to.

Equally important is the reminder that those astronauts could not have reached the Moon without their having the support of the thousands of men and women who were both in NASA and in the aerospace industry. It is a reminder that we are at our best when we work together.

While NASA’s mission has changed and evolved over the last 60 years, the aerospace industry continues to play a vital role in our quest for knowledge and America’s national security mission.

In my home State of Mississippi, we are very proud of the conspicuous roles our citizens play in our Nation’s space exploration and endeavors. Since the earliest days of America’s space program, Mississippi has played an important role in the quest to explore the stars.

For more than 50 years, the John C. Stennis Space Center, in Hancock County, MS, has dutifully tested and approved NASA’s largest rocket engines, including the Saturn V rockets that took our astronauts to the Moon and, later, the engines for the space shuttle program. Stennis is today testing engines and rocket stages for NASA’s Space Launch System, which will again take humans beyond low-Earth orbit. I am pleased, much like in the Apollo days, that Mississippi has an important role in the SLS program. As we are fond of reminding everyone, “The road to space goes through Mississippi.”

However, Stennis isn’t only known for its rocket testing to support NASA missions; it also proudly bears the title of the “Federal City” and is one of the Federal Government’s best places to work. The NASA complex is surrounded by a 125,000-acre buffer zone, it has allowed dozens of our Federal and private sector tenants to take advantage of its unique isolation and security to serve our Nation’s interest.

It was 50 years ago that the United States would send an American to the Moon before the end of the decade. That was the confidence Kennedy had, obviously, as programs had to be funded, as scientific advancements had to be made, and as foreign adversaries had to be kept at bay. As the head of NASA’s Space Task Group said, “Flying a man to the Moon required an enormous advance, not only the scientific short time.” Yet President Kennedy was not deterred. In his ignoring conventional wisdom and the ever-present naysayers, he pressed on, and so did the patriotic Americans who were charged with delivering this hard promise.

A few years later, NASA began its Apollo missions, and the necessary scientific advancements became a reality. In October of 1968, Apollo 7 was the first Apollo mission in space, and it conducted the very first live TV program of a U.S. spacecraft. Apollo 8 launched 2 months later and successfully orbited the Moon. Apollo 9 carried the first lunar module into orbit in March of 1969. We were getting closer. Apollo 10 launched in May. It was a full dress rehearsal for the Apollo 11 mission. It was successful. We were ready.

Fifty years ago yesterday, Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins launched the Apollo 11 mission to fulfill President Kennedy’s promise of landing on the Moon. That week, my 8-year-old self and an estimated 650 million of my closest friends from around the world watched Neil Armstrong land on the Moon and plant our Nation’s flag on the surface of the Moon. That event is often quoted with the phrase: “That’s one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.”

That giant leap was a monumental moment in history, for sure, and it didn’t happen in the abstract. It was really the result of hundreds of years of scientific discovery and decades of work from countless public servants who devoted their lives to this cause. Apollo 10 gave Apollo 11 the confidence that the operation would be successful. Apollo 7 gave us the opportunity to see it happen with the brave astronauts of Apollo 11, in a fatal 1967 tragedy, gave their lives to this mission. That giant leap happened because...
I hope we will use this anniversary as an opportunity to reaffirm our commitment to space exploration and to remind ourselves of the impact investments made today can have on our future, and along the way, perhaps we can renew that unifying American spirit that that 50 years ago and perhaps even give inspiration to aspiration once again.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. President, if the Senator from North Dakota was here to speak about Apollo 11 and got here a moment or two before me, I am happy to yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. President, I thank the good Senator from Mississippi. This weekend, our Nation will mark the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 Moon landing. It was a tremendous feat for our country.

In recognition of this true American triumph, I am cosponsoring a Senate resolution celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Moon landing. Our resolution recognizes the vision of President Kennedy and the hard work and the ingenuity of the men and women of NASA who made it possible for our Nation to achieve what seemed to be an impossible goal at the time.

Like many Americans, I can still remember the moment of seeing the American flag planted on the Moon and hearing Neil Armstrong say the famous line, “That’s one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.”

Truly it was a giant leap. NASA not only helped develop technologies to put astronauts on the Moon, but these technologies have benefited industries, including our military, the medical field, energy, and many others.

We all know NASA is a premier center for scientific and technological advancement, but it is important to remember that NASA’s mission includes not only space but also aeronautics.

As our Nation did during the space race, we are now working to stay at the forefront of new technologies, including unmanned aerial systems. In particular, I want to highlight the research NASA is doing right now in support of unmanned aviation. NASA is developing an air traffic management system that will provide air traffic control for unmanned aircraft operations. This traffic management project is critical to unlocking the potential of unmanned aviation, from package delivery to pipeline inspection.

NASA is at the forefront of this effort to make unmanned flights safe and efficient for a multitude of operators. North Dakota works right along with NASA toward this goal, with a UAS test site that is helping advance all aspects of unmanned aviation. In fact, they were recently selected by the FAA to host an unmanned traffic pilot program and have developed a strong partnership with NASA to research, develop, and demonstrate this technology.

I continue to support funding for unmanned traffic management research because I am confident that NASA, with the help of its leading partners, as well as our test site in North Dakota, will meet this complex technological challenge. By making a relatively small investment in unmanned traffic management research today, NASA is going to help unlock billions of dollars in economic activity in the not-too-distant future.

We have worked hard to ensure that North Dakota is an important part of exploring this new NASA frontier, and we are thrilled to help realize the wide variety of benefits that unmanned aviation will bring, making our Nation more prosperous and secure, and we can only imagine where we will be 50 years from today.

I yield the floor to the great Senator from the great State of Mississippi.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. President, I thank my friend from North Dakota, and I thank all of the people who have arranged for this special recognition.

Mr. INHOFE. Will the Senator yield for a unanimous consent request?

Mr. WICKER. I am delighted to yield to my friend from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at the conclusion of the remarks of the Senator from Mississippi, I be recognized for such time as I may consume.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. President, it is really hard to believe that the first Moon landing was 50 years ago, but, in fact, 50 years ago today, three Americans were on their way to the Moon—Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins.

I had the honor of actually meeting with Buzz Aldrin just the other day, shaking his hand, and being able to listen to his perspectives about what has happened in the last 50 years. What a great American.

At this moment, I would also honor the names of Neil Armstrong and Michael Collins. We thought we could do it, and indeed we did, but it was not a given.

Michael Collins wrote during that lonely flight while his two colleagues were walking on the face of the Moon: I am absolutely isolated from any human influence.
Those are the words of American hero Michael Collins.

These three men were separated from the rest of humanity, but they certainly were not alone. Hundreds of millions of people watched and prayed and gave their money to this.

It is hard to believe—and I still have to pinch myself—that I was a freshman in college for this Moon walk, and that was 50 years ago. How could 50 years have passed by so quickly?

Many women have always looked up at the night sky and seen their heroes in the constellations. Now we still look up at the sky, and we see our heroes, but among them are astronauts who go to the stars and return and will go to the Moon and to Mars and return.

I want to salute the people who have done it before and the people who are making plans to put a man and woman on the face of the Moon within 5 years.

I was so honored to chair a hearing just last year featuring NASA Administrator Bridenstine, who has put forward a bold proposal from the Trump administration, which has moved the deadline up from 10 years to 5 years. Indeed, I can tell you, it is the goal of NASA and it is the goal of this Member of the U.S. Senate and the committee that I chair to facilitate making this go and actually putting a man and a woman back on the face of the Moon in 5 years and then, beyond that, on Mars.

There are two ambitious goals, which match and rival the ambition of President Kennedy, who announced this plan in 1961. Credit goes to President Johnson, who took up the cause after the assassination of President Kennedy, and President Nixon, a Republican succeeding two Democrats, who saw it to fruition in 1969.

I am proud to salute all of the people—some nameless, faceless people who are not famous—for their role in this magnificent accomplishment.

I am proud to say that Mississippians were among the first to answer President Kennedy’s call. After all, the government began testing our rocket in Mississippi.

There is a saying that people have always looked up at the sky, and we see our heroes in the constellations. Now we still look up at the sky, and we see our heroes, but among them are astronauts who go to the stars and return and will go to the Moon and to Mars and return.

We have people like Tom Stafford. I talk to Tom Stafford almost on a daily basis. He is still around. He is still active. He still rejoices in the fact that we are reaching our position, and we are very excited about that.

I wasn’t going to talk about that today. I think that is going to be tomorrow.

There is another area in which President Trump and the Republican Senate have had great success, and that is in remaking the Federal judiciary. As of this week, we have confirmed 43 appellate judges. That is more at this 2½-year point in any other President in the history of this country. That is what we have done, and it goes unnoticed. These judicial confirmations have real impact.

Here is a great example. This week, the Ninth Circuit—the notoriously liberal appellate court in California—ruled that portions of President Trump’s “Project Life” rule can—not can—go into effect. This is a commonsense rule.

All it says is that in States that receive Title X funding, it cannot be used by clinics providing abortions. We calculate that this would have the result of defunding Planned Parenthood by about an initial $60 million annually. It is a great start to defunding the abortion-on-demand culture, and it is possible only because President Trump and Leader McConnell have rightly made remaking the Federal judiciary a top priority.

I want to talk about is something we need to talk about now because it has not been called to the attention of the American people, and that is about the great work being done in this administration to better our environment.

When you say that perhaps it can be argued that the Trump administration may go down as one of the truly great environmental administrations, nobody will believe that. In my lifetime and in my history, I have never seen a President so detested by members of the media. So people, consequently, don’t know, with the exception of a few tweets. I admit that I cringe a little bit when I hear a new tweet coming out.

But, look, if that is the only way you can measure it, it is something that that has worked, and it has been very effective.

We have a White House dedicated to clean air, land, and water by cutting excessive, duplicative regulations. Because that is what we are doing, and it is something that the American people understand. If you would think this President turned his back on the environment, but it has been just the opposite. We are seeing significant progress in environmental protection that we have not seen in any other administration. Americans should know the truth about how this administration is leading the world in environmental gains, all the while growing the economy.

People say: Well, you can’t do that. That can’t be done. You can’t increase economic activity at the same time as making environmental gains.

But that is actually happening.

Look at the chart behind me. There are a couple facts most Americans really do know. They had no way of knowing, until now. Since 1970, combined emissions of the six common pollutants—we are talking about the recognized six common pollutants out there—dropped by 74 percent while the U.S. economy grew by 275 percent.

Is it possible that could happen? It did happen because there it is right there—all this economic activity, all this growth. The bottom line is the aggregate emissions of the six common pollutants. There they are, going down. That is because this administration knows what it is doing and has the commitment that other people are not aware of.

Now look at CO2. We have had debates over the years about whether or not CO2 is one of the pollutants. It is not one of the six common pollutants, but nonetheless it is one that people seem to be looking at.

Since 2005, the United States’ energy-related CO2 emissions fell by 14 percent while global energy-related CO2 emissions increased by over 20 percent. We are talking about all the emissions increased, and still we had a reduction.
Despite this drop in emissions, in 2018 the United States became the world’s leading producer of oil and natural gas and a net exporter of oil and natural gas fossil fuels for the first time in 75 years. I am particularly proud of this. I am from an oil State, the State of Oklahoma, and I know how much our State has benefited from this energy revolution. I know what has happened to our economy, and a lot of that can be attributed to using the proper energy sources that we have available to us.

This administration has proven that we do not need to impose massive tax increases or regulatory burdens on American families in order to reduce pollution. We are reducing pollution, clearly. Democrats often say the United States is failing to properly reduce carbon emissions, and this just isn’t true.

Look at chart No. 2. The reality is our CO₂ emissions have been falling. In 2017 the United States led the world in the largest increase of CO₂. Now, China has the largest increase of CO₂, followed by India and China, they are responsible for more than one-fourth of all CO₂ emissions. At that time, their obligation was to continue doing what they were doing with coal-fired plants until 2025. Then, they will consider reducing their emissions. What a contrast that is. It defies everything else we read about, and yet there it is. That is the truth.

A lot of people are not aware that there is a big party which takes place every December. It has happened now for more than 40 years. It is called the Paris accord, this President wisely took our Country out of.

What kind of a commitment is that? A lot of people are not aware that scientists like MIT’s Richard Lindzen have been calling out this climate alarmists for years on this conspiracy to control our lives. This flawed plan doesn’t take into account that over 80 percent of the United States’ energy comes from fossil fuels—80 percent. If you eliminate coal, gas, and oil, you still have 20 percent of our energy, and that isn’t going to change anytime soon.

We had a vote in the Senate on this radical Green New Deal plan, but not a single Democrat was willing to vote for it. A lot of them voted present. They didn’t want to get on record voting for it, and yet that is what they are promoting over in the House. They know their plan will not work and is extremely unpopular. So they weren’t going to join it. Anytime you don’t want to vote for or against something, what do you do? You vote present.

I didn’t think Democrats could be more radical than under the Obama administration, but I was wrong. At least I give the Obama administration credit for being honest about its radical war on fossil fuels. For 8 years, President Obama targeted oil and gas producers in States like my State of Oklahoma. box President Obama lost that fight, and Oklahoma energy producers continue to create hundreds of jobs to fuel this machine called America.

I think back to 1990. I was here in 1990, and that is when we passed a landmark piece of legislation called the Clean Air Act. I cosponsored that act, and that succeeded in reducing acid rain, air pollution, and harm to our ozone layer. It has gone down in history as one of the true great successes that has happened in this country in terms of the environment. We are all a part of this, and we have been successful.

Many of today’s Democrats are virtually unrecognizable compared to those back in 1990. I urge my Democratic colleagues to reject radical socialist environmental policies, come back to reality, and support our President’s very effective approach.

I am proud of President Trump and his administration’s record on improving our Nation’s environment while streamlining government overreach. It is possible to have a thriving economy while safeguarding our air and water.

 Again, I ask you to look at this chart. Just look and see what we have done and where we are. In spite of what you hear, we are leading the country, under this administration, which is going to go down as one of the truly great environmental administrations. I am very proud of that. I think it is time that people know it.

I yield the floor.
from them. This time around, it was Westmoreland Coal Company and Mission Coal Company that both declared bankruptcy approximately at the same time in 2018.

For those of you who think this is another reorganization program, let me share a little history with you.

In 1946, due to the horrendous working conditions our miners faced every day, there was a nationwide strike. It brought our Nation’s economy to its knees. Truman directed the Secretary of the Interior, Julius Krug, to meet with the president of the United Mine Workers of America, John L. Lewis. They ended that strike by signing the Krug-Lewis Agreement, which created a retirement fund and healthcare benefits for our Nation’s miners and their families that had the full backing of the U.S. Government.

It was not coming from government tax dollars. It did not come from the people of the United States paying for this reorganization plan and healthcare. It came from every ton of coal that was sold. From that time forward, there would be a certain amount of that set aside. So they worked for it, and they paid for it. It was part of their compensation. Unfortunately, over 70 years later, we are still fighting to make good on that promise.

Then, in the 1980s, with the bankruptcy laws changing the way they did, people were basically walking away. This bankruptcy plan and healthcare. It came from every ton of coal that was sold. Usually, through the bankruptcy, it was dispersed to the creditors and not to the miners who had earned it. That is what we are really talking about.

We have the chance today to pass my bill, the American Miners Act, along with all of my colleagues who worked so hard with us on that, to ensure that once and for all these coal miners in Southwest Virginia who have contributed so much to our country and basically worked very closely with the miners in West Virginia. We are proud to have them here.

So without further conversation from me, I am going to now turn it over to my good friend and colleague Senator Tim Kaine from Virginia.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. Kaine, Madam President, I thank my colleague from West Virginia because this is a matter of the heart for him. He has worked so hard on the American Miners Act and as a U.S. Senator. It has been my honor to work together with him on this and so many other issues.

I will begin with a little bit of history. We are right in the midst of Virginian’s 30th anniversary of the Pittston Coal strike. It began on April 5, 1989, in Southwest Virginia. The Pittston Coal Company, which was headquartered in Pennsylvania, terminated all healthcare benefits for approximately 2,000 retirees, widows, and disabled miners. That anniversary is being celebrated right now. When these healthcare benefits were terminated, it led to a strike. It lasted from April of 1989 until February 20 of 1990—nearly 10 months.

Then-president of the United Mine Workers Union, Rich Trumka, who is now the president of AFL-CIO, was asked during this time period as the miners and their families and the retirees were striking: How long can you hold out? They were seeing the benefits they were getting as strikers—instead of a $600-a-week strike benefit, which was the original plan, the funds had dwindled down, and they were getting $200 a week. That was all they were getting during the strike, and when Rich Trumka was asked “How long can the miners hold out?” he said: We can hold out one day longer than the Pittston Coal Company.

That is, in fact, what happened. In February, they reached an agreement. It was a historic labor strike that was because of healthcare benefits and because of the need of the people who do one of the toughest jobs in this country—a job that will rack its pain on your body in a physical way, unlike any other kind of work. Losing healthcare is tough for anybody, but for people working underground in a mine, it is absolutely catastrophic.

As my colleague mentioned, we are here to talk about the American Miners Act, which he is leading and I am proud to cosponsor. The UMWA Pension Plan is projected to become insolvent by 2022, and this could be advanced and come even sooner if there is another major bankruptcy.

My colleague talked about the history of this pension plan. During the Presidency of President Truman and in the aftermath of that strike, there was an agreement that there would be employer contributions into the pension plan based on every ton of coal that was sold.

The employer contributions have declined significantly in recent years as coal companies have gone out of business and other companies have creatively used the bankruptcy laws, as my colleague indicated, to skate out of their obligations to these hard-working miners and their families and retirees. If we do not intervene, if we do not pass the American Miners Act or something essentially identical, 1,200 miners and their families, largely widows and others, are slated to potentially lose healthcare coverage very soon. That would include 800 Virginians who could lose health coverage by the end of the year.

I remember when my colleague was leading the successful effort in 2017. To fix one of the issues with healthcare benefits for these families, I attended a roundtable session with many of them in Castlewood, VA, at the UMWA field office there. I went in at a midweek, midafternoon time when you wouldn’t normally expect a lot of people to attend a meeting, and the room was absolutely packed with people so very, very frightened. They were slated, at that point, to lose health coverage.

Remember, this was at the end of April. It was about April 20 when I was there. They were coming at me with fear in their eyes, asking what they should do: Should I go out and buy insurance on my own? But who is going to cover me? Look at my age. Look at my physical condition. Look at the conditions my wife is dealing with.

It wasn’t uncommon to be dealing with a working or recently retired miner with a spouse who had cancer, and the threat of losing health insurance in that circumstance was existential. I could look him in the eye, and I couldn’t really promise him anything except that we would try.

We would get a fix at that point that saved healthcare for thousands and thousands of miners, and we did that with our colleagues in this body—Democratic and Republican—and in the House as well. Well, it is time for us to step up again.

Here is what the American Miners Act would do. It would shore up the pension plan to ensure that workers receive the benefits they have earned. The bill would also safeguard healthcare coverage for workers who are projected to lose their coverage because of the Westmoreland Coal Bankruptcy. It builds on the bill that we passed in a bipartisan way in 2017.

Lastly—and this is really important. I am so happy that in working on the bill, Senator Manchin and I decided to do this. The bill is going to ensure financing for medical treatment and basic expenses for workers suffering from black lung because we are extending the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund. There is another result of a revenue source that was sort of sunset—scheduled to be stopped, and then the trust fund will dwindle down, and those suffering from black lung will also lose the protections that they have. I commend and salute the work of the American Miners Act not only protects pensions and not only protects folks who are having their healthcare bankrupted by Westmoreland but would extend the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund that is so very, very important.

The best news is that the bill is fully paid for. We are not asking to increase the deficit. We are not asking to increase tax rates. The bill is fully paid for. We would simply extend an existing fund, the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund, and then we would utilize an existing source of revenue that we used before—mine reclamation funds that are currently oversubscribed and are not being used to help backstop healthcare needs.

So this is a bill that would do an awful lot of good for an awful lot of people, and we are not coming here just asking without paying for it. We have a solution on the table so that we can pay for this.

My hope is that the body will come together the same way we did in 2017 to protect these hard-working people and their families and their widows who have done the hardest work that just about anybody does in this country and whose bodies are more suffered as a result, and they need to have us having their back.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. MANCHIN. Madam President, if I could, first of all, thank my colleague from West Virginia, my dear friend Senator Kaine. I just want to touch on one thing before we have Senator Casey speak on behalf of all the coal miners he represents in the State of Pennsylvania.

On the Black Lung Fund, a lot of people don’t know, the House of Representatives basically, 2 years ago, passed a bill reducing the fund from $10 billion to $10 billion. I called to my friends and colleagues in the House, and I said: You would think we don’t need the money anymore because we have cured black lung—but it is just the contrary. We have more diseases and more younger people getting black lung, and I will tell you the reason why.

When mining coal, you are cutting through a lot of rock, and you get silica coming out from that. We are cutting into more rock than ever before. We have even more younger miners contracting black lung. We need to fund more now than ever before, and this is not the time to cut it. That 55 cents a ton makes a difference between solvency or not, curing people or the Federal Government having to step in.

The coal miners have been proud to pay their own way. They paid for their healthcare. They didn’t take money home because when they negotiated, this was a much-stayed-in-the-fund. Basically, somebody received that money, the benefit, but not the people who worked for it. Now they are willing to try to fix that with the coal they mined from the abandoned mine land in West Virginia. And money. And money. We will take care of our own problems.

We are begging the majority leader of this respected body to please put this bill on the floor and let the body vote on it because we have good bipartisan support. Everybody respects the person providing the energy who protected this country, and that is all we are asking for.

There is no one who has fought harder and worked harder on this than Senator Casey and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as well as throughout the Nation. Tens of thousands of pensions of Pennsylvanians could be at risk, including—and these are just some of the numbers—11,831 coal miners and 21,460 Teamsters.

Despite the challenges ahead, the good news is, we have bipartisan legislation to deal with this pension crisis through the legislation known as the Butch Lewis Act. The bill creates a loan program for troubled pensions. It also renews the Unemployment Compensation for Coal Workers—mine reclamation funds the public and private sectors together to address this crisis.

We must also pass legislation so we can address coal miner health and pension benefits. Senator MANCHIN, as I referenced earlier, has led—led leadership throughout this process. We want to thank all the Senators who are with us today and others who are not with us on the floor, necessarily, but are with us by way of supporting this legislation.

We have a long way to go and a mountain to climb for several reasons. There are a number of Senators around this Chamber who, on a regular basis, when a multinational corporation needs help, will pull out all the stops. They will overturn any stone. They will surmount any barrier. They will fight through any wall of opposition or resistance. That is the same kind of persistence and determination and rese—resilience for workers—in my case, whether it is a coal miner or a Teamster or a bakery and confectionery worker.

It is long past due that we bring the same sense of urgency to the issues that involve workers as some here brought to corporate taxes. Just by way of one example, we were debating the 2017—November 2017 and December 2017 tax bill. My God, there were lobbyists all over town and people scurrying from one end of the Capitol to the other, and the corporate tax rate came down, to make sure the rate a corporation was paying was lowered substantially. In the end, they got more than they asked for, in my judgment. What was supposed to flow from that was an abundance of jobs, a rushing current of jobs, and wage growth was supposed to come from that legislation. Of course, it didn’t. Some of us are right about our prediction—a prediction that we would not want to be right about, but we were.

So if that kind of determination and concerted action and then the legislative result that flowed from that can be undertaken to help huge, multinational corporations. I think the same effort should be undertaken on behalf of workers who earned these pension benefits.

This isn't something extra. This isn't something else. This isn't something other than an earned benefit, and for some of them, they earned it in the most difficult way possible, by going underneath the ground to mine coal year after year and, in some cases, decade after decade.

Stephen Crane, the great novelist, wrote an essay in the early 1900s or just around the turn of the century. I should say, about a coal mine in my hometown of Scranton. He described all of the horrors, all of the darkness. He described the ways a miner could die. He referred to it as the “hundred perils”—life-threatening. He described the mine in a very moving way. He talked about the mine being a place of inscrutable darkness, a soundless place of tar and loneliness because you can't see your hand in front of your face and loneliness, of course, if you were injured on the job, or if you had an injury that debilitated you, or if you, in fact, lost your life. Tens of thousands of people lost their lives in mines.

I know that is a long time ago. I know we have made advancements, but it is still hard work just as it is to do the other jobs I mentioned, whether you are a nurse or a bank teller or a confectionery worker. Just pick your particular work area or union.

So we have some work to do here, and we are going to have to fight through a lot, but we are grateful we have some momentum and some sense of urgency that may not have been there only weeks ago.

With that, I will yield the floor to my colleague from the State of Ohio.

Mr. BROWN. I thank Senator CASEY for his work on behalf of workers during his whole 13 years in the Senate and his work especially for mine workers and teamsters with the Butch Lewis Act and with pension and healthcare. That is so important.

Senator KAINES has been stalwart for these retirees and particularly in southwest Virginia, where he has worked as Governor, and also Senator MANCHIN who was speaking earlier.

We need to remind this body that 86,000 UMW union mine workers are facing a looming threat of massive cuts to the pension they have earned. What people don't understand is that these miners and their widows aren't getting rich from these pensions. These pensions are $300 or $600 a month. Also 1,200 miners and their families can lose their healthcare by the end of the year because of the Westmoreland and Mission Coal bankruptcies.

The bankruptcy court can allow these corporations to shed their liabilities. That sounds familiar. So often big companies go to court, and these lawyers and judges don't really understand what collective bargaining is and don't understand the sacrifices these workers made to earn these pensions. Shedding their liabilities is a fancy way of saying walk away from paying miners the healthcare benefits they earned.

Two years ago, we worked to save the miners' healthcare. We have to do it again. We can't leave these workers behind just because of the date their company filed for bankruptcy. We have to make sure they don't lose retirement security. That is the work we need to do.

All 86,000 UMW union mine workers are facing crippling pension cuts. They aren't alone. The retirement security of hundreds of thousands of teamsters in Virginia and Pennsylvania and ironworkers in Cleveland and carpenters in Dayton and Cincinnati—are many retirees and so many workers' pensions are at risk.

Congress tried to ignore these retiree issues. The miners, the black. Workers rallied. They called, they wrote letters, and they rallied outside the Capitol on 90-degree days in July. They rallied outside the Capitol in 15-degree days in February.

We have seen those Camo UMW T-shirts around the Capitol. They are persistent. They don't give up. Many of them are veterans. They left the mines to serve their country. They went back into the mines. Now, as they fought for us, we need to fight for them.

It comes back to the dignity of work. When work has dignity, we honor the retirement and security people earn. We honor work. We respect work. The dignity of work is absolutely about their retirement, about their healthcare. It is about safety in the workplace. That is why I wear this pin. It is a depiction of a canary in a birdcage. The miner worked the canary into the mine. If the miners fought for us, we need to fight for them.

And this is why I am committed to these miners. I know my friend TIM KAIRN is committed to these miners. To these workers, to these small businesses. For their success and their livelihood, they depend on getting these pensions they have earned.

We will continue to work for a bipartisan solution. If you love this country, you will fight for the people who make it work—people like these miners.

yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. KAINES. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAMER). Without objection, it is so ordered.

FACEBOOK CRYPTOCURRENCY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, yesterday the Banking Committee heard from one of Facebook's executives about, if we can believe this—it almost can't be—how Facebook wants to create its own monopoly money. That is right, after scandal after scandal with Facebook, where they betrayed the public trust, with the damage they have done to journalism and the damage they have done to democracy, the compromising and betrayal of people's privacy.

Again, believe it or not, even the United Nations said what Facebook did to contribute to the humanitarian disaster in what we call Burma, Myanmar, where literally hundreds of people died—the United Nations said Facebook contributed to the genocide. That almost doesn't sound believable, but they contributed to the genocide, a U.N. report said, in that part of the world.

Now, after scandal after scandal, Facebook expects Americans to trust them with their hard-earned paychecks. It is pretty breathtaking.

When you think about it, in this body, you know what happens when corporations want something. They always get it. With the leadership in this body and with the White House looking like a retreat for Wall Street executives and the big banks, they always get what they want.

When have big corporations ever been held accountable? Look how the majority leader and President Trump treated Wall Street banks. Of course Facebook thinks they can get away with how Facebook contributed to the genocide. Facebook expected Americans to trust them with their hard-earned paychecks. It is pretty breathtaking.

colleagues seem to forget that Wall Street did to our country 10 years ago. I have said this on the floor before, and I will say it again: My ZIP Code in Cleveland where Connie and I live is 44105. That ZIP Code had more foreclosures in 2007 than any other ZIP Code in the United States of America. I still see the remnants of those foreclosures—high levels of lead-based paint, homes abandoned, property values going down. Yet this Congress and President Trump want to do more for Wall Street.

The big banks ask for weaker rules, even though it put millions of families at risk—job losses, the expropriation of retirement plans, people losing their jobs, people losing their homes. President Trump said: OK. Let’s do what the banks want.

The year before that, Congress passed and President Trump signed a $1.5 trillion tax cut for corporations, big banks, and the richest Americans. Since the Republican tax bill passed, corporations have moved jobs overseas. They spent hundreds of billions of dollars on stock buybacks because the executives apparently weren’t making enough money with their record compensations. Corporations have spent $1 trillion in these stock buybacks. Of the eight companies with the most stock buybacks last year, half of them were on Wall Street.

The big banks and the big investment houses have done very well with this Trump economy. They have done very well because of the goodies this body continues to bestow on them.

One thing we also know is that Wall Street can never get enough handouts. They always want one more. Not too long ago, a bank lobbyist said: “We don’t want just a seat at the table, we want the whole table.” That is so brazen and arrogant. Unfortunately, this Congress and this President seem to want the whole table.

They let hags haggle over their stress test results. We require these banks to take a stress test, but before they take the test—they imagine getting to do this in high school or college. Before you take the test, we will tell you a little more about what will be on the test.

They take away consumers’ right to have their day in court when banks scam them.

They are easy on foreign megabanks. You could name them. So many of the foreign banks have gotten their way so often in this body and done damage to our economy.

We gave them breaks in the rulings that the Federal Reserve made. Last month, we saw the Fed once again go easy on Wall Street banks during their annual stress test. They basically gave them extra credit for even submitting to these tests at all. What does that mean for the giant banks? The Fed will let them still move their stock buybacks up to $1 trillion in these stock buybacks. The Fed ought to understand that megabank CEOs are not playing T-ball, where everyone gets a participation trophy just for showing up; they are playing with family’s lives.

We know all over the country what happened to people’s retirement, what happened to their jobs, what happened to their homes. People in this town who have lost their jobs and have forgotten the financial crisis and housing crisis, but families who lost their homes and jobs and retirement savings and their college funds haven’t forgotten what happened. This town has forgotten what happened 10 years ago, and it could happen again.

The move we roll back these rules and look the other way when corporations want to take big risks—not with their money but with other people’s money—the higher the chance one of these big risks doesn’t pay off. You know who pays the price. You remember who paid the price 10 years ago when the economy tanked because of Wall Street greed and Wall Street overreach. When bets don’t pay off, it is workers, families, taxpayers, and people in my neighborhood who pay the price. It is your money they are gambling with.

Hard-working Americans face real consequences of these laws, and so should Wall Street executives.

BORDER SECURITY

Mr. President, this past weekend, my wife Connie and I went to El Paso, to the U.S.-Mexico border, to bear witness to this humanitarian crisis. We met with children and families coming to our country to flee violence and persecution. These are families just like our own who only want a safe place for their kids to lay their heads at night.

I underscored the inhumanity and coldness of President Trump’s family separation policy—something I still can’t believe our country is doing. In fact, the leader of our country is almost gleeful and bragging about this family separation policy of taking their children away from their parents.

We talked to one mother from Honduras. She and her teenage son and 6-year-old daughter were fleeing violent gangs who already murdered her brother. She choked back tears as she told her story. She arrived in the United States and was sent back to Juarez, Mexico, where she and her children slept outdoors on rocks and were given no access to even basic hygiene. She told us how hard it was to see her daughter all the time in CBP custody and how hard it was for me seeing her treated as if she was a criminal.” We are talking about a 6-year-old little girl. That is something no Member of this body would stand for if it were their child, but it happens to be a child from somewhere else who wants to be able to live a decent, safe life.

This story is a reminder of why the policy the Trump administration announced yesterday makes no sense for the American people and is so dangerous for those families. The President wants to require refugees to apply for asylum in the first country they pass through. For refugees like this mother, that country would be Guatemala, but people are fleeing Guatemala too.

I talked to one volunteer at Annunciation House, the shelter we visited that takes in refugees after they are released from CBP custody. She said their numbers at the shelter were down recently. That has her worried because she knows that when families make it to the Annunciation House, they will be safe and well cared for. The staff are overwhelmingly volunteers, people in their churches and neighborhoods who want to help their fellow human beings. Now she is terrified that even more families are trapped in Juarez and other dangerous cities.

It is despicable how little compassion the President and his administration have. It is mind-boggling. It is not who we are as a country. It is not what people in Ohio think we should do. Yet this government thinks it is proper to separate children from their families.

As I said, I met a mother and her son in El Paso, throughout the day, what went over and over in my mind was Matthew 25: When I was hungry, you fed me. When I was thirsty, you gave me drink. When I was sick, you visited me. When I was a stranger, you welcomed me.

I have read a lot of translations of that, and some translations say: When I was thirsty, you gave me drink. When I was hungry, you fed me. What you did for the least of these, you did for me. That is the translation that I like more than that: When I was hungry, you fed me. When I was thirsty, you gave me drink. When I was a stranger, you welcomed me. What you did for those less important, you did for me.

I have read many translations, but do you know what translation I have never read? When I was hungry, you fed me. When I was thirsty, you gave me drink. When I was in prison, you visited me. When I was a stranger, you welcomed me but only if I had the proper paperwork.

That is not in Matthew 25. Only this administration that splits up families will say: When I was a stranger, you welcomed me but only if I had the proper paperwork.

These are families whose lives are in danger. They are victims of drug violence and sexual violence. They are people who came hundreds of miles—just because they want so much to come to America, but they want to get away from the violence and the chances of death.

As I said, I met a mother and her daughter. Her brother was murdered by these gangs. She came north. And President Trump has no empathy, not caring about other human beings—especially if they look like they might be from Honduras or Guatemala or El Salvador—calls them names. He says: Go back to the country you came from. And President Trump has no empathy, not caring about other human beings—especially if they look like they might be from Honduras or Guatemala or El Salvador—calls them names. He says: Go back to the country you came from. And President Trump has no empathy, not caring about other human beings—especially if they look like they might be from Honduras or Guatemala or El Salvador—calls them names. He says: Go back to the country you came from. And President Trump has no empathy, not caring about other human beings—especially if they look like they might be from Honduras or Guatemala or El Salvador—calls them names. He says: Go back to the country you came from.

Despite seeing the inhumanity of this administration’s policies—when we were there, we weren’t even allowed to see the worst. Frankly, government employees who were there were mostly doing their best. But the people who make these decisions—the people in the White House, the people at Mar-a-Lago, the people who don’t have any idea what people who can see, they didn’t want us to see the worst of the worst. They were denying me, as a representative of 12 million people in my State—they don’t want people to see what they are doing to these kids. It is truly heart-wrenching. Ohio tax dollars are paying for them, and they are denying it to the people. How can they sleep at night? It makes you wonder what else the administration is hiding.

Despite all that, so many parts of this trip were inspiring. We saw the passion and dedication of advocacy groups. So many people in Texas, in Ohio, in Iowa, in Minnesota, and in Wyoming had traveled on their vacation time to these border communities to try to help these refugees, people whose lives are in danger. They were trying to help them and clever them and visit with them and heal them. They were trying to help because they know our government hasn’t. They know our government—President Trump and the people around him—have abandoned them.

I saw the Border Network for Human Rights shining a light on migrants’ mistreatment and abuse to hold our government accountable. We saw the generosity and kindness of the volunteers at Annunciation House. All of those volunteers and volunteers represent the best of American values.

I remember seeing a bus of refugees who arrived at Annunciation House holding babies and children, smiling and waving at us. You could see the relief on their faces because they saw people who remembered: When I was a stranger, you welcomed me. They saw American citizens who love this country, Americans who understand our values, Americans who know we are a nation of immigrants. Those children knew they were welcomed. Their families knew their children were safe.

We saw the innocence of those children who find joy through play even at the darkest times, after witnessing horrors many of us can only imagine.

Connie held a smiling baby. I picked up a Wiffle Ball bat and handed it to one of the children, and then I picked up a ball. I was told this little boy had probably never held a baseball bat because in Centroamerica and Guatemala and El Salvador, they mostly play soccer. I pitched to him, and he was kind of a natural. It is a reminder of our common humanity—something I hope my colleagues will keep in mind as we think about and actually fix our immigration system.

One place where we ought to be able to start is on something so many of us in both parties agree on—that we have to find a solution for the Dreamers who are living in every sense but the paperwork.

Let me tell you a story. I was in Toledo, OH, 2 months ago. I met a young woman who is probably in her midtwenties. She is married with a small child. She works full time. She has been in this country since she was 4. Her parents brought her from Central America. She doesn’t remember Central America; she was 4. She is from Toledo, OH. She is from Guatemala anymore. Her parents speak Spanish. She speaks Spanish at home, but in every other way, she is as American as just about anybody else in Toledo. She said that she and her husband have one car. She goes to work, she drops off, and she takes the car to work and then picks him up at the end of the day. She said: Senator, when I go to work every day, I go outside and I check my turn signal and I check my brake lights. When I stop at a stop sign, I count to three because I am terrified I am going to get picked up for a traffic violation and deported.

She works hard. She pays her taxes. She does what we ask her to do. She is contributing to our country and actively helping us, all the things that Italian and French immigrants coming to the United States have done.

In fact, I was talking to a gentleman who works downstairs in this body. He was in the Senate. He has worked here for 40 years. He came from Italy when he was 10. He said he was discouraged and unhappy about President Trump’s comments about sending them back to where they came from. He said: When I was a kid, my parents were Italian. Their English isn’t as good as mine. I was 10 years old. People told us to go back where we came from.

That is just wrong.

I hope my colleagues will keep in mind the comments from a young activist in El Paso, Senaida Navar. She is a Dreamer. She was raised in El Paso. She is a faculty member at the University of Texas at El Paso. She has dedicated her life to fighting for immigrant and refugee families. She is a Dreamer for over 10 years. She said: "I don’t know what it means to be without anxiety. That is not a dignified way to live." She is always worried. She is worried like that young woman in Toledo.

We share a common human dignity. It is dispicable that this administration tries to rob people of that. I hope my colleagues think about that. We know the way we solve our complex immigration problem isn’t by locking up families and children in cages. It is not by tearing apart families or by throwing out hard-working, law-abiding teachers and workers and students and families of servicemembers. Many of these Dreamers end up in the military. They have known no other home but America. We can’t abandon our values—the same values that have made the United States a beacon of hope around the world for generations. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDENT pro tempore will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.
more intense. We are seeing that now on our gulf coast, where we have seen 20 inches of rain in parts of Louisiana.

Americans are witnessing this firsthand across the country with the historic flooding and with the tornadoes that have torn across the South and the Midwest. These extreme weather events not only endanger families and homes and businesses, but they increase the strain on our Nation’s overburdened water systems. They take water treatment plants offline. This means debris is discharged into our rivers and streams, which affects our water quality.

These extreme weather events are particularly dangerous for coastal communities. I see my colleague from Maine here, Senator KING. They face this in Maine with its long coastline. In New Hampshire, we have 18 miles of coastline, but we still see it at our coastline.

Accelerated sea level rise, which is primarily driven by climate change, is worsening tidal flooding conditions and imperiling coastal homes and businesses.

According to a 2018 study from the Union of Concerned Scientists, projected flooding in the United States will put as many as 311,000 coastal homes that are collectively valued at $117 billion at risk of chronic flooding within the next 30 years. That is the lifespan of a typical mortgage. By the end of the century, the report estimates that 2.4 million homes and 107,000 commercial properties that are currently worth more than $1 trillion will be at risk for chronic flooding. This includes properties in towns like Hampton Beach, which is located in New Hampshire’s Seacoast Region.

For those who haven’t had a chance to visit Hampton Beach, it is beautiful. It is a perfect vacation destination. It is a barrier island town with the Hampton River on one side of the city and the ocean on the other. Unfortunately, this makes Hampton Beach one of the State’s most at-risk towns from rising sea levels.

In this photograph, we can see the impact of rising sea levels. This was taken in November of 2017. We see what is happening. All of these homes should not be underwater here. Yet that is what we are seeing.

A 2010 report from Columbia University and the Brookings Institution found that Hampton Beach lost $7.9 million in home value due to tidal flooding between 2005 and 2017. In total, increased tidal flooding has cost New Hampshire homeowners $15 million in lost property value. This is just in recent years, and the problem is only going to get worse.

The impact of climate change will get worse if we don’t act now to reduce harmful greenhouse gas emissions. I am proud that in New Hampshire, we understand the need for climate action. We have implemented policies that reduce carbon emissions, that help us transition to a more energy-efficient, clean economy, but New Hampshire can’t do this alone, and the United States can’t do this alone. International cooperation is key to reducing global greenhouse gas emissions. That is why the Paris Agreement is so critical in mitigating the worst effects of climate change.

With a delegation from the Senate, I had the opportunity to attend the 2015 U.N. climate summit, and we participated in discussions that led to the Paris climate accord. During the summit, I was impressed by the leadership and the determination that was shown by the United States to encourage other nations to reach ambitious emissions reduction goals. Unfortunately, when President Trump announced his intention to withdraw from the Paris Agreement, the United States forfeited this leadership to other countries.

In the absence of leadership from the White House, the majority leader should allow the Senate to consider the International Climate Accountability Act, which would keep the United States in the Paris Agreement. Let’s take up the bill that has been sent over by the House. Let’s take up the Senate bill. I have heard that bill to the floor and let’s have a debate. If people don’t support it, they can debate it, but we should be talking about this. The threat to New Hampshire and to this country is in doubt, and until we act, it is only going to get worse.

We have a number of our colleagues who would like to come to the floor and speak to this issue, and I am pleased that Senator KING from Maine, my colleague, is here to talk about these impacts.

Yet, before my colleagues speak, I ask unanimous consent to show a banner that was delivered to my office by the Moms Clean Air Force.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senator from Maine.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Let me just show everyone this. This was made by the mothers who came to our office. What they have written is: “Please protect the families of New Hampshire from air pollution and climate change. Moms Clean Air Force.” You are able to see all of the folks who were with the delegation and who visited my office to sign this because everyone is concerned about what the impact is going to be on their families and on their communities if we don’t address climate change.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I am happy to join my colleague from New Hampshire and other colleagues tonight to talk about one of the most serious threats to ever face this Nation or, in fact, this world.

A few years ago, Tom Brokaw, the television news anchor, wrote a wonderful book called “The Greatest Generation.” He was writing about the generation of our parents and grand-last 50 to 75 years, when it has become a hockey stick. We are now at over 400 parts per million, the highest it has been in 3 million years, and, by the way, the last time it was at 400 parts per million, the oceans were 60 feet higher.

CO₂ in the atmosphere is our responsibility. It didn’t come from volcanoes. It came from the consumption of fossil fuel, which developed and built the wonderful economy that we have and the economy around the world. Nobody can question that.

The question is, Now that we are seeing the consequences, don’t we have a responsibility to do something about it? Has there been a gigantic increase in CO₂ in the atmosphere? Check. Yes. Unquestionably.

No. 2, how about Arctic ice? Here we are. In the last 30 years, two-thirds of the Arctic ice has disappeared—two-thirds.

I was at a conference this morning on the Arctic. The Arctic Ocean is open for the first time in human history. The conference was about shipping and mineral exploration and Native peoples losing their habitat and their way of life. Two-thirds of the Arctic ice is gone in 26 years. This is a place that has been covered with ice for thousands of years—as long as we have any memory, but now the Arctic ice is going.

Every time I see a prediction of where it is going to be in 10 years, 50 and here, it is there in 2 or 3 years. It is opening up. That is telling us something.

Is there an indication from the Arctic ice that something drastic is happening to our climate? Yes. Check that box.

No. 3 is the increased intensity of fires. We have seen the most intense wildfires in this country in the last 10 years that we have ever seen—more acreage, more intensity, more lives lost, more property lost. This is caused by drought that changes in the climate, all wrought by our activity.

Increase in fires and wildfires? Check.

Sea level rise. Here is the background on the sea level. We tend to think of the sea level as being a fixed quantity. We walk out in the ocean, and it always looks pretty much the way it is, whether it is off the Maine coast or the New Hampshire coast.

Well, it turns out that back here, 24,000 years ago, when the glaciers were covering most of North America, the sea was 390 feet shallower than it is today. Chesapeake Bay was dry land. It was 390 feet shallower than it is today. Chesapeake Bay was dry land. It was 390 feet shallower than it is today. Gloucester Harbor in Massachusetts is what was 200 feet deep. Fifty miles south of Boston, it is 212 feet of sea level rise stored in the Antarctic ice sheet, and they are going.

I have been to Greenland. You can see it. The Jakobshavn Glacier has retreated as much in the last 10 years as it retreated in the prior 100 years.

The only thing slower than a glacier, by the way, is the U.S. Congress. We make glaciers look like they are moving fast, and, in fact, the Jakobshavn Glacier is moving fast.

Sea level rise is happening. In Norfolk, VA, they have seen a foot and a half in the last decade. They are having sunny day floods. They are having sunny day floods in Miami. They are spending millions of dollars to build up their roads.

People say dealing with climate change is too expensive. Not dealing with it is too expensive. In not dealing with it, the expense is going to be astronomical.

By the way, if you talk about sea level rise in Norfolk, VA, it is a national security risk. With the number of bases that we have on the East Coast, it is going to be an enormous task and a very expensive one to protect those assets.

There is another national security issue involved in this that we are ignoring, and that is the displacement of peoples. During the Syrian civil war, there were 4 to 6 million Syrian refugees. A few came here, not many. Most went to Western Europe, and, as we know, that refugee flow turned the politics of Western Europe upside-down. Call it 5 million people.

The estimates for refugees from climate change over the next 100 years is between 200 and 400 million people. Imagine what that is going to do to the geopolitics of this world—200 million people on the march, looking for water, looking for a place that is habitable, looking for relief from drought, from fires. This is a national security threat.

Is it a national security threat? Yes. Check that box.

What is it going to take? What is it going to take?

Intense storms. We don’t need to tell people about the intensity of storms. We have seen them. We have lived through them. I once made a joke in Maine that I am 300 years old, and somebody said: Why? I said: Because, according to the news, I have lived through three storms of the century.

We keep having storms of the century or 500-year storms, and they are happening more and more frequently.

Now, here is why we aren’t paying attention. The last 6,000 years, it has been pretty flat. It has been pretty level. The sea level has plateaued, in effect, and, therefore, that happens to be recorded human history, that 6,000 years.

So how is it that just where the ocean has always been.

But do you know what? The last remnant of the glaciers are in Greenland and Antarctica, and they are going. They are going. There is 20 feet of sea level rise in the Greenland ice sheet and 212 feet of sea level rise stored in the Antarctic ice sheet, and they are going.

I have been to Greenland. You can see the Jakobshavn Glacier has retreated as much in the last 10 years as it retreated in the prior 100 years.

We keep having storms of the century or 500-year storms, and they are happening more and more frequently.

The heat. Nine out of 10 of the hottest years on record occurred in the last 15 years. This past June was the hottest June since records were kept—the hottest June since records were kept.

Now, there is a difference between weather and climate. I understand that, and I am not going to say that the heat wave that the Midwest is suffering this weekend is a reflection of climate change. It may or may not be. Climate is what happens in the long term, and we know that we have already increased global climate by about 1.5 degrees Celsius. In many cases, it is causing irreversible damage.

When we get to 2 degrees Celsius, which we are headed for, it is going to be catastrophic for coral, for farms, for animals, and for people.

What is it going to take? What is it going to take?

Intense storms. We don’t need to tell people about the intensity of storms. We have seen them. We have lived through them. I once made a joke in Maine that I am 300 years old, and somebody said: Why? I said: Because, according to the news, I have lived through three storms of the century.

We keep having storms of the century or 500-year storms, and they are happening more and more frequently.
He said two things toward the end of that speech that I think are profoundly instructive for us today. The first is how to deal with this change. And this is a change. This is new. I understand that, and dealing with change is difficult.

Abraham Lincoln uttered what I think are the most profound words about change that I have ever encountered. Here is what Abraham Lincoln said:

The dogmas of the quiet past, are inadequate to the stormy present. The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise—with the occasion. As our case is new, so must we think anew, and act anew.

And here is the punch line:

“We must disenthrall ourselves,” and that means to think in new and different ways, to see reality as it is, “and then we shall save our country” and, in this case, the world.

The other admonition from Lincoln that I think is very important for us, puts the responsibility directly on us right here. He was talking to Members of Congress.

He said:

Fellow-citizens, we cannot escape history. We must either learn to live together as brothers or else try to kill one another. What we must henceforth think is calculated to contribute either to the light or to the darkness. In the latter case, our country can never become a great power, and I do not shrink from the responsibility of the most arduous task which the Providence of the Almighty has thrown upon the American people.

Of course he was talking about the Civil War, and we are talking about a fiery trial of our generation.

The fiery trial through which we pass, will light us down, in honor or dishonor, to the latest generation.

The fiery trial through which we pass will light us down, in honor or dishonor, to the latest generation.

I want to meet this responsibility. I want this Congress to be remembered, as we will be, either way, but I want this Congress to be remembered as people who met the fiery trial, who met our responsibility, who thought about others more than ourselves and made a difference in the life of this country and the world.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. President, I rise with my colleagues to talk about this urgent issue that faces us: climate change.

Climate disruption is an existential threat to our planet—an existential threat. Scientists recognize this, so do the American people, and so does the international community. One hundred ninety-four countries and the European Union have signed the Paris Agreement, and so did the United States.

Quite frankly, we shouldn’t even have to argue this anymore, but for those who still don’t see the evidence of climate change, it is all around us: a warming climate; recordbreaking hurricanes off the Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico, and in the Caribbean; unprecedented flooding in the Midwest; Native villages in Alaska actually falling into the sea; and drought and the most severe wildfires in the West we have ever seen.

This is from a 2003 fire near the Taos Pueblo in New Mexico. We in New Mexico are now at risk every fire season now. We don’t know what disaster will hit us. We know this climate catastrophe is caused by human activity. Report after report tells us we don’t have any time to waste; that we need to act now.

Even this administration’s most recent climate analysis finds that global warming “is transforming where and how we live and presents growing challenges to human health and the quality of life, the economy, and the natural systems that support us.” The report concludes we must act now “to avoid substantial damages to the U.S. economy, environment, and human health and well-being over the coming decades.”

That is coming from an administration of a climate change-denying President. Yet this administration has slashed and burned every protection, program, and measure aimed at combating climate change it can find, from the Clean Power Plan to methane control regulations, to the Paris Agreement. I can tell you who in this Congress is the administration’s No. 1 accomplice: the majority leader of the Senate. The leader’s legislative graveyard is littered with legislation the American people want and deserve, from improving healthcare to reforming our democracy, to commonsense measures to prevent gun violence.

Climate change threatens the land, the lives, and the livelihoods of homeowners, small businesses, farmers, ranchers, fishers, and so many others across the Nation. The majority leader’s refusal to take up climate action is about as bad as congressional malfeasance gets.

In May, the House of Representatives passed the first major climate legislation in nearly a decade—the Climate Action Now Act. H.R. 9 aims to decrease greenhouse gas emissions by about one-quarter by 2025. The bill ensures the United States stays in the Paris Agreement.

This bill is not extreme, but it does respond to the dire situation we face. The Senate should debate this bill and pass it, but we will not. We all know the majority leader will continue to stand in its way.

Due to this negligence and inaction, States are filling the void and taking it upon themselves to act. My home State of New Mexico passed legislation this year aimed at transitioning to 100 percent carbon-free electricity. Our largest utility says they can do this by 2040. It is an approach that is consistent with the renewable electricity standard bill I introduced last month. That legislation is designed to achieve at least 50 percent renewable electricity nationwide in 15 years, putting the United States on a path for a zero carbon power sector by 2050.

The fact is, no American is immune from the threats of climate change, and many of our most underrepresented and vulnerable communities are at the greatest risk. For example, the most recent National Climate Assessment finds that Tribes and indigenous peoples are being disrupted in disproportionately and uniquely. Many Native people’s way of life is intimately tied to the land and water. These natural resources—that they have depended on for hundreds or even thousands of years—are being disrupted in unprecedented ways.

Look at the proximity of this fire to the Taos Pueblo. It is not only sacred to the Taos people, but it is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Last week, Senator SCHATZ and I wrote to American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian leaders seeking their input on how climate change is affecting their communities. We want to foster a dialogue about what actions Congress and Federal agencies should take to mitigate the impacts.

I am the vice chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee. Senator SCHATZ is the chair of the Special Committee on the Climate Crisis, and we were joined by all Democratic Senators on the Indian Affairs Committee. This effort should have been bipartisan—climate change is blind to political party—but it wasn’t because too many Republican members just follow President Trump and the majority leader, killing anything aimed at progress.

The majority leader jokes that he is the grim reaper, sounding the death knell on legislation, but climate change is no laughing matter and neither is access to healthcare for millions of Americans, or our broken campaign finance system, or the safety of American schoolchildren. We must do our duty to the American people and tackle these most pressing problems. This does not mean rubberstamping legislation sent to us by the House. The Senate has a storied tradition of debate and compromise. Let’s return to that tradition, have a real climate debate, and pass some real bipartisan solutions.

We all came to the Senate to solve problems—problems like climate change. We didn’t come here to spend time in a legislative graveyard. We don’t want to be a place where good ideas come to die.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. SCHATZ. Mr. President, Leader McCONNELL may, in fact, be proud that he has turned the Senate floor into a legislative graveyard, but that doesn’t mean we Senators have abandoned our effort to make this body work for the American people.

President Eisenhower’s special committee on the climate crisis held its very first hearing, where we heard from five mayors from cities across the United States.
They told our committee that the average temperature in Atlanta has already increased 2 degrees since 1980; that 3 of St. Paul’s 10 biggest floods ever recorded have happened in the last 10 years. So it is clear to them that climate change is not something that will happen in the future. It is happening now. It is happening in realtime.

That is why these mayors are not waiting for Leader MCCONNELL, or for the Trump administration, or anyone else to tell them something about it. Honolulu, St. Paul, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Portland and cities and towns across the Nation are working to transition to 100 percent clean energy.

Atlanta is converting an abandoned quarry into a reservoir to increase the city’s emergency drinking water supply. Portland, OR, has designated more than $50 million for a green jobs and healthy homes initiative.

The experience of these mayors stands in contrast to some of the rhetoric we hear on the Senate floor and elsewhere about how climate action is somehow economically unwise.

The Portland mayor, Ted Wheeler, pointed out that his city’s investments in reducing carbon emissions are the very things that make people want to live in Portland. He said in his testimony that “failing to take meaningful action to address climate change is bad for the economy.”

This is why Senate Democrats are not going to wait for Republican colleagues—because the cost of climate inaction is so much higher than the cost of action. The damage that is being done to our cities, our farmers, our fisheries—and the risks that are threatening our workers, our small businesses, our financial industry, and our taxpayers—are too high for us to wait any longer. The benefits of action are way higher than the cost of inaction.

The Pittsburgh mayor, William Peduto, said today that if you want to turn a coal miner into an environmentalist, then give them a paycheck. If you want to turn a coal miner into an environmentalist, then give them a paycheck.

Hawaii isn’t a coal mining State, but his words rang true to me because they illustrate the basic point, which is that climate action can, should, and will work for everyone.

So we are not going to let Majority Leader MCCONNELL stop us from taking action. He is certainly slowing us down, but he is not going to stop us.

Over the coming months, the Senate Democrats’ special committee on the climate crisis will establish the predicate for climate action. Through hearings both in Congress and out in the field, we are going to build the record and the coalitions needed to move forward.

We are also going to keep an open door for our Republican colleagues to join us. There is a way to address the climate crisis that is consistent with conservative principles. Senator WHITEHOUSE and I have introduced a carbon pricing bill that aligns with traditional conservative principles and has the support of Republicans outside of the U.S. Senate, and as long as Leader MCCONNELL keeps standing in the way of the Senate doing anything, as long as he has turned this body into a legislative graveyard—not just on climate but on healthcare, on prescription drug costs, on the cruelty shown to children and families on the southern United States—then we are going to have to find other ways to act without it.

All of this stuff should be bipartisan, and one day it again will be, but right now we cannot wait. We will not wait. The severity of the climate crisis and the urgency for action are just too great.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, I join my colleagues in bringing up the challenges of climate change and our responsibility to do something about it.

Climate change is real. It is putting our communities at risk. Our activities here on Earth are affecting climate change, and we can do something about it. By reducing carbon emissions, we can make a real difference in the trajectory of the catastrophic impact of climate change. I just want to give a couple examples.

Last Monday, we had record flash flooding in this region. In less than 1 hour, we had 1 month’s worth of rain. That is becoming typical as a result of climate change. In our region, we saw streets that were flooded, sinkholes that developed, water pouring into our Metro stations, and roads that literally ripped apart.

This shows one major road in Potomac, MD—not very far from here—that is critically a community to be connected. The road was destroyed by the record rainfall during that period of time.

We had CSX and Amtrak put highspeed restrictions on the rail service. In Baltimore, we had 1.3 million gallons of sewage from the Jones Falls river flow into the Inner Harbor, which produced a sight in the Inner Harbor of Baltimore that is truly regrettable.

This photo I think shows beautiful downtown Potsdam didn’t look very beautiful. That was just this past Monday and was as a result of the high amount of water flow and the inability of our sewage treatment facilities to treat that amount of runoff. We are just not prepared for it. It is another example of why we need to act.

We need to act now. Climate change is here. The catastrophic impacts are here, and we can do something about it.

Let me just make a couple of suggestions. We need to upgrade our stormwater systems in this country. We have a 21st-century problem with 20th-century infrastructure. It can’t handle it. We need to invest in adaptation and deal with the realities of the new weather systems we are confronting every day.

Yes, we have to act on climate change. As I said, it is real. Our activities impact the planet and do something about it. There are many examples I could give that are affecting our lives. I have already shared some about some water. We have wildfires in the West. We have extreme weather conditions. We have unprecedented concentration and frequency of rainfall in the mid-Atlantic, driven by climate change.

Studies have shown that tropical storms move more slowly, with much more precipitation. We saw that with Hurricanes Harvey and Irma in 2017 and Florence in 2018. All those were slower moving hurricanes, dropping a lot more water, saturating our inlands, and we have seen that with the next weather condition. We have warmer ocean temperatures that are making these storms more costly to our communities. We have what is known as compound flooding as a result of climate change. We have charges that hit our shorelines, which are already saturated by inland precipitation.

After Tropical Storm Barry, FEMA said: “Given [the] unprecedented magnitude of natural disasters over the past two years and the current projected path of the storm, a hurricane making landfall is likely to impact communities still working to recover from the previous event.” That is how frequent we are going through flooding.

I will give another example of how much flooding we have had. In my re-

This is an issue that is with us today. Thanks to climate change, Baltimore may feel more like the Mississippi Delta than Chesapeake Bay country.

Professor Matt Fitzpatrick at the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science published a study in February in the journal Nature Communications with Robert Dunn, an ecologist at North Carolina State Uni-

Like all States, Maryland has a very important agricultural community. As a farmer, it is difficult to make ends meet today, but with these extreme weather conditions, it becomes even more difficult.

S4900 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE July 17, 2019
It is in our economic interest, our environmental interest, as well as our security interest for us to deal with the climate issues. Unchecked, the sea level in Maryland coasts will rise. If we don’t do anything about it in the next century, it is projected to be at least 16 inches as high as 4 feet. We know the catastrophic impact to our coastal communities if we do not take action to prevent that from happening.

Our activities of reducing carbon emissions can make a difference, and we should do that now to reduce our use of fossil fuels.

Our States have acted. I am very proud of the actions we have seen from local governments and from the private sector. Nine Northeastern and Mid-Atlantic States, including Maryland, announced an intent of a new, regional, low-carbon transportation policy proposal. All are members of the Transportation and Climate Initiative. This is great. Our States are doing what we need to do.

But I just want to underscore what many of my colleagues have said. President Trump made the egregious decision to withdraw us from the Paris climate agreement. I was there when U.S. leadership was indispensable in bringing the world community together to take action. Every country in the world joined us in making commitments to reduce our carbon emissions. It was leadership. The President has withdrawn us from that agreement—or is attempting to do that. We can act. We are an independent branch.

I applaud the action of the House in passing H.R. 9, the Climate Action Now Act, but it has been 76 days since the House has taken action on this very important climate issue.

Senator SHAHEEN was on the floor earlier and has introduced S. 1783, the International Climate Accountability Act. It is important that the United States should meet its internationally determined contributions. We determine our own contributions. We should meet those contributions and join the international community in doing something about climate change.

So, yes, I do ask the majority leader to let the Senate do what we should do. Let us consider climate legislation. Let us debate and act on climate legislation. We shouldn’t be the graveyard on these issues. The Senate must stop denying action on important issues and do the right thing to meet the threat of climate change. It is real here today. I urge my colleagues to bring this issue up so that we can, in fact, do the responsible thing.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

ORDER OF PROCEEDURE

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at 2:10 p.m. on Thursday, July 18, the Senate vote on the Corker and Blanchard nominations and that if confirmed, the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table and the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action; further, that following disposition of the Blanchard nomination, the Senate resume consideration of the Tapia nomination; finally, that at 4:56 p.m., the Senate vote on the Corker nomination and that if confirmed, the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table and the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to legislative session and be in a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

S. U.S. VICTIMS OF STATE SPONSORED TERRORISM FUND

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I commend my colleague from New York for his tireless work to ensure that the brave men and women who selflessly responded to the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001, receive the compensation and care they deserve. Out of respect for his work and their sacrifice I do not want to hold up the passage of this bill. However, I think it is also important that we remember the other Americans who have suffered and lost loved ones at the hands of foreign terrorists. In 1979, a group of Americans were taken hostage from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran.

In 1981, after 444 days of torture, 52 of them were finally released. Years later, I had the opportunity to meet with several of these brave Americans who reside in my State. In 2015, I worked with my colleagues in this body to ensure that these victims, their families, and other victims of international terrorism were able to receive compensation through the creation of the U.S. Victims of State Sponsored Terrorism Fund. Congress was clear that this fund was created to help the Tehran hostages and other victims of state-sponsored terrorism who were not eligible to participate in other compensation funds.

However, due to a misinterpretation of the statute, the fund has become overwhelmed. This year will mark the 40th anniversary of the Iran Hostage Crisis. Time is not on our side. People who have been waiting for decades are now dying without the compensation they were promised.

Will Senator SCHUMER work with me and Chairman GRAHAM to secure a solution to this problem in the next appropriate vehicle so that the Tehran hostages and other victims of state-sponsored terrorism can finally receive their due?

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I promise to work with Senator ISAKSON to ensure that the Tehran hostages receive the compensation they deserve for their violated treatment for all victims of terrorism.

AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, on October 22, 2018, the Departments of Health and Human Services and the Treasury issued a document, entitled State Relief and Empowerment Waivers, relating to section 1332 of the Affordable Care Act and its implementing regulations.

Although it was not submitted to Congress for review under the Congressional Review Act, CRA, this so-called guidance document seemed to me to be a substantive rule that should be subject to review under the CRA. Accordingly, I wrote a letter, along with Chairman PALLONE of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, asking that the U.S. Government Accountability Office, GAO, to determine whether the CRA applied.

This week, I received a reply, in which the GAO general counsel concludes that the 2018 guidance “is a rule under the CRA, which requires that it be submitted to Congress for review.” I ask unanimous consent that the letter from GAO, dated July 15, 2019, be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD following my remarks. The letter I am now submitting to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD is the original document provided by GAO to my office. I will also provide a copy of the GAO letter to the Parliamentarian’s office.

Based on Senate precedent, my understanding is that the publication of the GAO legal opinion in today’s RECORD will start the “clock” for congressional review under the provisions of the CRA.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Subject: Department of Health and Human Services and Department of the Treasury—Applicability of the Congressional Review Act to State Relief and Empowerment Waivers

Hon. Ron Wyden,
Ranking Member, Committee on Finance, U.S. Senate.

Hon. Frank Pallone, Jr.,
Chairman, Committee on Energy and Commerce, House of Representatives.

This responds to your request for our legal opinion as to whether guidance issued by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the Department of the Treasury (Treasury) on October 22, 2018, entitled “State Relief and Empowerment Waivers” (2018 Guidance), is a rule for purposes of the Congressional Review Act (CRA). Letter from Ranking Member of the Committee on Finance, United States Senate, and Chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, House of Representatives, to Comtroller General (Feb. 6, 2019). The 2018 Guidance also related to section 1332 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA) and cussed below, we conclude that the 2018 Guidance is a rule under the CRA, which requires that it be submitted to Congress for review.

BACKGROUND

PPACA requires that fires States citizens and legal residents maintain health coverage that meets minimum requirements.
42 U.S.C. § 18082. It also regulates the estabishment of exchanges in every state so that dividuals and small businesses can purchase such coverage and contains require-mental mandates to the States, such as maintaining web portals for individuals and small businesses to access the exchange and call centers to provide customer service. 42 U.S.C.
§ 18021. Further, PPACA provides for premium tax credits and cost-sharing reductions for eligible individuals, among other things. 26 U.S.C. § 36B.

Section 1332 of the statute permits states to seek federal approval to waive certain key requirements under the law. See 42 U.S.C.
§ 18082. For example, section 1332 authorizes HHS and Treasury to approve state proposals to waive PPACA requirements related to, among other things, the maintenance of insurance exchanges, the selection of insurance functions, and subsidies for exchange coverage. 42 U.S.C. § 18052(a)(2). PPACA requires that state 1332 proposals meet four approval criteria. If the states demonstrate that the waiver will result in coverage that is at least as comprehensive, at least as affordable, and available to at least a comparable number of residents as would have been provided without the waiver, and that the waiver will not increase the federal

PPACA required that the Secretaries of HHS and Treasury promulgate rules relating to waivers under section 1332 of PPACA (PPACA section 1332 waiver regulations). Requisitions were required to include processes for
(1) public notice and comment at the state level sufficient to ensure a meaningful level of public participation in the submission of an appllication that ensures the disclosure of the provisions of law that the state involved seeks to waive, (2) additional public notice and comment after the application is received, (3) a process for the submission of periodic reports concerning implementation of the program under the waiver, and (5) periodic reviews of the program under the waiver. Id. HHS and Treasury issued such regulations on February 27, 2012. Application, Review, and Reporting Process for

On December 16, 2015, HHS and Treasury issued guidance prescribing what a state needs to demonstrate for a waiver proposal to meet the statutory criteria under section 1332 of the statute. The 2015 Guidance will be evaluated. Waivers for State Innova-Guidance). For example, the 2015 Guidance provides that the proposal meets the coverage and affordability criteria must take into account effects across different groups of state residents, such that even if a state could demonstrate that the waiver would provide coverage to a comparable number of residents overall, it would not be adequate coverage for vulnerable groups, like low-income or elderly individuals. Id. at 78132.

In 2018, the Departments issued new guidance revising the agency’s policies implementing section 1332 of PPACA and how the proposed waiver Guidance. For example, the 2015 Guidance changed the analysis of comprehensiveness and affordability articulated in the 2015 Guidance. For example, as noted above, the 2015 Guidance prohibited approval of a section 1332 waiver that was less comprehensive or affordable for vulnerable groups of residents; whereas, the 2018 Guidance provides that while analysis will continue to consider effects on all categories of residents, the revision gives states more flexibility to decide that improvements in comprehensiveness and affordability for state residents as a whole offset any small detrimental effects for parcular residents. 83 Fed. Reg. at 53578. In ad-inition to providing new interpretations for certain waiver requirements, like the 2015 Guidance, the 2018 Guidance explains how the Departments will evaluate each of the statutory requirements for a section 1332 waiver. The Guidance must include and demonstrate in its waiver proposal to comply with each criterion.

CRA, enacted in 1996 to strengthen the congressional oversight of agency rulemaking, requires all federal agencies, including independent regulatory agencies, to submit a report of the action of Congress and to the Comptroller General before the date of the 2018 Guidance. Finally, the Guidance meets the APA definition of a rule upon which the CRA relies. First, the 2018 Guidance is an agency statement, as it was issued by HHS and Treasury announcing supplementary information about the requirements that must be met for the approval of a 1332 waiver under PPACA. Second, the Guidance is of future effect, as the Departments state in the 2018 Guidance that the document will be in effect on the date of publication and will apply to 1332 waivers submitted after the publication date of the 2018 Guidance. Finally, the Guidance is designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy as it pertains to waiver proposals that HHS determines are likely to assist in promoting the objectives of TANF.

We next consider whether the 2018
Guidance falls within one of the exceptions enumerated in CRA. 5 U.S.C. § 804(3)(A)–(C). In the 2018 Guidance, HHS did not (1) purpose law or policy or describing the organization, procedure, or practice requirements of an agency.” 5 U.S.C. § 804(3). CRA concludes that the agency has a rule of general and not particular applicability, as it applies to all states. Additionally, the Guidance is not a rule relating to agency management or personnel. In that regard, our 2012 opinion regarding HHS’s Information Memorandum is instructive. See B-323772, at 4. There, we found that the Information Memorandum did not relate to agency management or personnel since it applied to the states.

With respect to the final exception—for rules of agency organization, procedure, or practice that do not substantially affect the rights or obligations of non-agency parties—the Guidance issued by HHS and Treasury provides requirements that a state must meet for a waiver proposal to be approved. For that reason, these requirements affect the obligations of states, which are non-agency parties. Our 2012 opinion is again instructive. There, we determined that because the Information Memorandum set out the criteria by which states may apply for waivers from certain obligations of the states, the Information Memorandum affected the rights and obligations of third parties and therefore did not fall under CRA’s third exception. We similarly find here that the 2018 Guidance does not fall under CRA’s third exception.

We requested the views of the General Counsels of HHS and Treasury on whether the 2018 Guidance is a rule for purposes of CRA. Treasury deferred to HHS’s response. HHS letter dated March 22, 2019, stating that the 2018 Guidance is not a rule under CRA because it is not binding and if it were rescinded, it would not alter or affect the rights or obligations of any state or other stakeholder under PPACA. HHS also noted that it informally notified member offices, the Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pension, and Senate Finance Committees, and the House Ways and Means and Education and Labor Committees of the 2019 Guidance. See HHS Letter at 1.

HHS’s similar response when we requested its views on its Information Memorandum concerning the TANF program. See B-323772, at 5. As we noted in our 2012 opinion, the definition of rule is expansive and specifically includes documents that implement or interpret law or policy, whether or not the agency characterizes the document as non-binding. Id. (citing B-281575, January 20, 1999). Finally, as we have stated previously, informal notification does not meet the requirements of CRA.

CONCLUSION

The 2018 Guidance sets forth what a state needs to provide to demonstrate that its proposal meets the four criteria for a waiver under section 1332 of PPACA and how the proposals will be evaluated. The 2018 Guidance meets the APA definition of a rule and therefore does not fall under an exception as provided in CRA. Accordingly, given our conclusions does not meet the APA definition of a rule and proposals will be evaluated. The 2018 Guidance also meets the four criteria for a waiver proposal under section 1332 of PPACA and how the proposal meets the four criteria for a waiver provision for a waiver proposal to be approved. For that reason, these requirements affect the obligations of states, which are non-agency parties. Our 2012 opinion is again instructive. There, we determined that because the Information Memorandum set out the criteria by which states may apply for waivers from certain obligations of the states, the Information Memorandum affected the rights and obligations of third parties and therefore did not fall under CRA’s third exception. We similarly find here that the 2018 Guidance does not fall under CRA’s third exception.

Senator Leahy’s 16,000th Vote

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, I congratulate my friend and the senior Senator from Vermont, PATRICK LEAHY, for casting his 16,000th vote in the U.S. Senate. Since he was first elected in 1974, Senator Leahy has worked tirelessly for the people of Vermont, bringing to Washington, DC, Vermont values: a belief in justice, civic engagement, and the importance of community. Senator Leahy has been a champion of human rights, a steward of the environment, and his efforts have brought important Federal resources to our State. I join with his wife Marcelle, his children and grandchildren, and Vermonters throughout our State in congratulating him on this milestone vote and thanking him for his 44 years of dedicated service. I look forward to continuing to work together to represent the people of Vermont.

WELCOMING PRESIDENT TSAI IN-WEN TO COLORADO

Mr. GARDNER. Mr. President, today I wish to welcome President Tsai Ing-wen of Taiwan to my home State of Colorado.

On Friday, July 19, President Tsai will land in Denver as she transits through the United States on her way home from official visits with diplomatic allies in the Western Hemisphere.

President Tsai will be the first sitting Taiwan head of state to visit the beautiful State of Colorado. It will indeed be a historic occasion.

This visit to Colorado will highlight the special relationship that our State shares with Taiwan. Colorado exports $222.7 million in goods to Taiwan, making it the 10th largest export market for the Centennial State, the sixth largest in Asia. It is estimated that over 2,400 jobs in Colorado support the export of services to Taiwan.

Our relationship extends well beyond trade. Denver recently became the new home for the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in 2015. Colorado Springs and Kaohsiung City have been sister cities since 1983.

The shared values of freedom, democracy, and prosperity provide for the strong basis of the longstanding friendship between our two nations. Taiwan is a shining example to its neighbors. In 2019, Taiwan was ranked the second freest country in Asia by Freedom House. It was also ranked the 10th freest economy in the world by the Heritage Foundation.

The strength and vitality of Taiwan’s democratic and economic system has made it a beacon of democracy in the Indo-Pacific and throughout the world. The relationship between our two countries is critical for the United States, as we continue to advance the goal of a free and open Indo-Pacific and to promote our shared values in this region.

This is why, during my time in the Senate, I have championed the ties between the United States and Taiwan.

On December 31, 2018, President Trump signed into law the Asia Reassurance Initiative Act, which declares that it is the “policy of the United States to support the close economic, political, and security relationship between Taiwan and the United States.”

Welcome, President Tsa, to the Centennial State, and may we continue to strengthen the bonds of friendship between our nations and our peoples.

TRIBUTE TO PHIL AND JODY SCHMIDT

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I rise today in celebration of Phil and Jody Schmidt, the Boys and Girls Club of Central Wyoming’s 2019 honorees.

Since 1978, the Boys and Girls Club of Central Wyoming has committed itself to making a positive difference in the lives of children. Their mission is to inspire all youth, especially those who need them most. The goal is to help these children to reach their full potential as productive, responsible, and caring citizens. Their activities provide the children in our community a sense of dedication, purpose, and belonging.

The Boys and Girls Club will host its annual recognition breakfast on August 28, 2019. This event celebrates the outstanding efforts by individuals who have made remarkable and significant contributions to the Boys and Girls Club mission and to the City of Casper.

Phil and Jody Schmidt will be honored at this year’s breakfast. Their lifelong commitment toward bettering the lives of youth in the Casper community is remarkable. Their dedication to Wyoming’s young people embodies the Boys and Girls Club of Central Wyoming’s charge to better the lives of children in Casper.

Phil is a devoted family man, successful businessman, and selfless community member. After graduating from high school, Phil attended Black Hills State University, earning a bachelor’s degree in business administration with an emphasis in accounting. Phil and Jody moved to Casper in 1982, immersing themselves in the community. Phil began his career as a CPA. In 1988, he became the president and owner of Greiner Motor Companies. Under his guidance, Greiner Motors grew from one dealership to three, employing almost 300 people. Phil received the Ford Motor Company’s Salute to Dealers award in 2009. The award commends dealers “exhibiting unparalleled dedication to their communities.” Phil was one of six recipients, selected from almost 6,000 dealers.

Remarkably, Phil’s hard work and contributions to the Casper community extend far beyond his business successes. Phil and the employees of Greiner Motor Companies led a cleanup effort of Casper Skate Park in 2004. Phil recognized a clean, safe park was crucial for youth in an area where they could safely socialize and develop athletic skills. Greiner Motor Companies also helped to host the “Fill-A-Ford” food drive, parking Ford pickups at various bank branches to collect canned good and donations for food banks. They raised $26,000 and collected enough canned goods to fill up three pickup trucks.

Phil also devotes much of his time and energy serving on the boards of many outstanding organizations. Any group lucky enough to have Phil on its board is destined for success. The Boys and Girls Club of Central Wyoming, Casper Family YMCA, Wyoming Medical Center, Wyoming Auto Dealers, the Natrona County Library Foundation, and the Wyoming Transportation Commission have all benefited from his servant leadership. Phil credits Jody for his great success. Her support and strength during times of both hardship and good fortune allowed Phil to thrive with his ventures.

Jody is a dedicated mother and caring wife. Raised in Fruitdale, SD, alongside five siblings, Jody learned the value of hard work and community involvement from her parents. They ran the family’s beekeeping business, McIntire Honey. Her father, Russel, served on the board of directors for their local hospital, delivered Meals on Wheels to neighbors in need, and served as a member and Grand Knight in their local council of the Knights of Columbus. Her mother, Betty, served in the local community club and was honored for her work as a hospital auxiliary. Their values of kindness and generosity were instilled in Jody, who then brought them to the Casper community.

Jody also supports their neighbors and community with volunteer work and service efforts. She serves on the boards of the National Alliance on Mental Issues and Interfaith of Natrona County. She volunteers at Holy Cross Center with the food bank ministry and helps St. Anthony Tri Parish with Meals on Wheels in Casper, including coordinating charity runs and auction galas. Like my wife Bobbi, Jody is a strong, resilient breast cancer survivor. She is a pillar of courage and perseverance.

Phil and Jody have been married 37 years and were blessed with six children: Allyson, Madelyn, Reid, Evan, James, and Nathan. The family persevered through tremendous pain; their sons Evan and Reid passed away at the ages of 11 and 29, respectively. In the wake of this tremendous personal challenge, Phil and Jody chose to continue their commitment to others. They looked past their pain, turning tough times into a means to assist and help care for those in need. They believe their difficult experiences give them the ability to come alongside others who face similar challenges. This mindset of perseverance demonstrates just how deserving they are of this award.

There is no doubt the work and endless hours given by Phil and Jody will continue to shape and improve countless lives for years to come. Together, the couple represent Wyoming’s characteristic strength, resilience and determination. Their generosity is exceptional. In the midst of enormous challenges the pair find the courage to not only push on, but to help others do the same.

It is with great honor that I recognize these exceptional members of our Wyoming community. My wife, Bobbi, joins me in extending our congratulations to Phil and Jody Schmidt for this special acknowledgement.

In 2015, General Berry was given his most distinguished assignment when he was appointed adjutant general for the Arkansas National Guard.

Throughout his time in Arkansas, I have worked closely with General Berry to ensure our National Guard not only meets but exceeds the standards needed to protect our State and country. During times of crisis or disaster in the State, General Berry made certain the National Guard was prepared and able to respond quickly and effectively. He has represented himself, the Arkansas Guard, and our Armed Forces with consistent professionalism, diligence, and honor. Whether it was nothing but respect and gratitude for the job he has done as the leader of our State’s National Guard.
Major General Berry has received numerous awards and recognitions for his service to the United States during his career, including the Legion of Merit for exceptional conduct in the performance of his duties to our Nation, and has left a lasting impact on the lives of many servicemembers, peers, and superiors. His accomplishments reflect highly not only on himself, but also on the men and women of our Nation’s military. As his time in uniform comes to an end, I commend General Berry for his dedicated service to our country and his invaluable service to the U.S. Air Force and Arkansas National Guard.

It was a genuine pleasure to have worked with MG Mark Berry throughout his years serving his country and our State. I commend General Berry for his exceptional service and decorated career and greatly appreciate his friendship of many years. We wish him all the best as he begins his retirement from the U.S. Armed Forces.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petition or memorial was laid before the Senate and was referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

H. RES. 701. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Maine urging the President of the United States and the United States Congress to enact legislation allowing the importation of prescription medications from Canada and other Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development nations; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

HOUSE PAPER NO. 1194

Whereas, Maine residents have a high median age and a low median income and are especially vulnerable to high prescription drug costs; and

Whereas, in Canada, with walking distance of Maine’s border, the same medications used by Maine residents, manufactured by the same companies in the same factories, are available for a fraction of the price charged in the United States; and

Whereas, Maine has followed the personal importation of safe prescription medications, which saved residents and businesses as much as half the cost of their medications, significantly decreasing their health care insurance costs; and

Whereas, Maine’s ability to import such medications has since been blocked by federal law; thus inserting the Federal Government between Maine people and potentially lifesaving medications while also preventing free-market competition from working to benefit consumers; and

Whereas, in 2014, Americans spent $1,112 per person on prescription drugs while Canadians spent $772 and Danes spent $325, and that in three of the four countries the patient has been unable to afford the medicine they were prescribed at some point in their lives; and

Whereas, multiple members of Congress from both major political parties, including Maine’s delegation, have introduced legislation to allow wholesalers, pharmacies and individuals to import qualifying prescription drugs from licensed sellers in Canada and other member nations of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, using standards for the approval and sale of medications comparable to those in the United States, that are purchased from an entity certified by the United States Food and Drug Administration and that have the same active ingredient, strength and route of administration as drugs approved in the United States; and

Congressional Record — Senate
July 17, 2019
Whereas, the President’s health care proposal prior to his election read as follows: “Congress will need the courage to step away from the special interests and do what is right for Americans . . . Allowing consumers access to imported, safe and dependable drugs from overseas will bring more options to consumers”; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That We, your Memorialists, on behalf of the people we represent, take this opportunity to respectfully request that the President of the United States and the United States Congress enact legislation to allow the importation of safe, affordable prescription medications from Canada and other Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development nations; and be it further

Resolved, That suitable copies of this resolution, duly authenticated by the Secretary of State, be transmitted to the Honorable Donald J. Trump, President of the United States; the President of the United States Senate; the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States; and each Member of the Maine Congressional Delegation.

By MS. COLLINS (for herself, Ms.
SINEMA, Mr. HAWLEY, Mr.
PETERS, Ms. MCSALLY, and Mr.
SCOTT of Florida):
S. 2147. A bill to double the existing penalties for the provision of misleading or inaccurate caller identification information, and to extend the statute of limitations for forfeiture penalties for persons who commit such violations; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the ‘‘Anti-Spoofing Penalty Modernization Act of 2019,’’ with my colleague, Senator SINEMA, who serves with me on the Senate Committee on Aging, which I chair. I am also pleased that Senators HAWLEY, PETERS, and MCSALLY have joined as original cosponsors.

This morning, the Senate Aging Committee held its 23rd hearing in the past six years to examine scams targeting our Nation’s seniors. Scams the Committee has examined include the infamous IRS scam, which Amercian老年人常遇到的 scams include tech support scams, grandparent scams, elder financial exploitation, identify theft, and the notorious ‘‘Drum Mule’’ scam—where seniors are tricked into unwittingly serving as drug couriers.

Two things are central to nearly all of these scams: first, the scams are initiated by scammers who cast a wide net in their hunt for potential victims, and second, the scammers ‘‘spoof’’ the victim’s Caller-ID to mask their identity, a key to the success of these merciless frauds. When victims see the ‘Internal Revenue Service’’ or the ‘‘local Sheriff’s Department’’ pop-up on their Caller-ID, they are understandably worried, scared, and often easily hustled into doing whatever the scammers demand.

Last year, robocallers generated more than 26 billion unwanted calls that reached American mobile phones.
When landlines are included, the number soars to 48 billion. In Maine alone, our residents received an astonishing 93 million robocalls last year. That averages out to 73 calls to every person in Maine. So far this year, scammers are on pace to generate more than 58 billion unwanted, illegal robocalls tar-getting Americans.

Putting a stop to these illegal robocalls requires a coordinated approach from all levels of our government, working in coordination with the private sector. Recently, this body overwhelmingly passed the bipartisan ‘TRACED Act,’’ which makes a number of important changes to our law that will help make it easier to fight illegal robocalls, such as increasing civil penalties on robocallers and extending the statute of limitations for violations to three years. The TRACED Act also requires telecommunications carriers to implement the so-called SHAK-EN/STIR technology to verify whether Callers-IDs that appear on incoming calls are authentic. When fully implemented, this technology will be a major advance against illegal spoofing.
I am pleased to be a cosponsor of the TRACED Act, and I am hopeful it will soon become law.

The bipartisan bill we are introducing today complements the TRACED Act by doubling the penalties on illegal spoofing. Except for inflation adjustments, the penalties on illegal spoofing have not been updated since they were first passed into law through the Truth in Caller ID Act of 2009. Our bill also extends the statute of limitations to three years for spoofing violations to match the extension for robocalling violations included in the TRACED Act.

Mr. President, putting an end to the sorge of illegal robocalls will take an aware public, aggressive action by regulators and law enforcement agencies, and a coordinated effort at every level of our telecommunications industry.
These new penalties called for by the ‘Anti-Spoofing Penalty Modernization Act’’ are an important tool in the fight. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

such as children, the elderly, and individuals with pre-existing disabilities and health conditions;

Whereas individuals and families on the frontlines of climate change across the United States, including territories, living with income inequality and poverty, institutional racism, inequity on the basis of gender and sexuality, poor infrastructure, and lack of access to health care, housing, clean water, and food security are often in close proximity to environmental stressors, including toxic pollution, particularly in minority communities of color, indigenous communities, and low-income communities, which—

(1) experience outsized risk because of the concentration of critical community resources, environmental hazards and stressors, in addition to colocation with waste and other sources of pollution;

(2) are often the first exposed to the impacts of climate change; and

(3) have the fewest resources to mitigate those impacts or to relocate, which will exacerbate preexisting challenges;

Whereas, according to Dr. Robert Bullard and Dr. Beverly Wright, "environmental and public health threats from natural and human-made disasters are not randomly distributed," therefore a response to the climate crisis must instantiate the spirit of just community transition policies and processes available to all communities, which include policies and processes rooted in principles of racial, social-economic equity, self-determination, and democracy, as well as the fundamental human right of all people to clean air and water, healthy food, health care, adequate land, education, and shelter;

Whereas climate change holds grave and immediate consequences not just for the population of the United States, including territories, but for communities across the globe, particularly those in the Global South on the frontlines of the climate crisis, which are at risk of forced displacement;

Whereas communities in rural, urban, and suburban areas are all dramatically affected by climate change, though the specific economic, health, social, and environmental impacts may be different;

Whereas the United States Department of State, Department of Defense, and intelligence agencies have identified climate change as a threat to national security, and the Department of Homeland Security views climate change as a top homeland security risk;

Whereas climate change is a threat multiplier—

(1) with the potential to exacerbate many of the challenges the United States already confronts, including conflicts over scarce resources, conditions conducive to violent extremism, and the spread of infectious diseases; and

(2) because climate change has the potential to produce new, unforeseeable challenges in the years ahead;

Whereas, in 2018, the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change projected that the Earth could warm 1.5 degrees Celsius above preindustrial levels as early as 2030;

Whereas the climatic changes resulting from global warming above 1.5 degrees Celsius above preindustrial levels, are projected to result in irreversible, catastrophic changes to public health, livelihoods, quality of life, food security, water supplies, human security, and economic growth;

Whereas, in 2018, the United Nations Intergovernmental Science-Policy Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services found that human-induced climate change is pushing the planet toward the sixth mass species extinction, which threatens the food security, water supply, and well-being of billions of people;

Whereas, according to climate scientists, limiting warming to no more than 1.5 degrees Celsius above preindustrial levels, and later 1.9 degrees Celsius above preindustrial levels, the planet is projected to experience—

(1) a significant rise in sea levels;

(2) extraordinary loss of biodiversity; and

(3) intensifying droughts, prodigious floods, devastating wildfires, and other extreme weather events;

Whereas, according to climate scientists, addressing the climate emergency will require an economically just and managed phase-out of oil, gas, and coal to keep fossil fuels in the ground;

Whereas the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change has determined that limiting warming through emissions reduction and carbon sequestration will require rapid, immediate, acceleration and proliferation of "far-reaching, multilevel, and cross-sectoral climate mitigation and adaptation actions" to urban and rural infrastructure (including transport and buildings), and industrial systems;

Whereas, in the United States, massive, comprehensive, and urgent governmental action is required immediately to achieve the transition of those systems in response to the severe and existing and projected economic, social, public health, and national security threats posed by the climate crisis;

Whereas the scale and scope of action necessary to stabilize the climate will require unprecedented levels of public awareness, engagement, and deliberation to develop and implement just, equitable, and suitable policies to address the climate crisis;

Whereas failure to mobilize to solve the climate emergency is antithetical to the spirit of the Declaration of Independence in protecting "unalienable Rights" that include "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness";

Whereas the United States has a proud history of collaborative, massive-scale Federal mobilizations of resources and labor in order to solve great challenges, such as the Interstate Highway System, the Apollo 11 Moon landing, the construction, the New Deal, and World War II;

Whereas the United States stands uniquely poised to substantially grow the economy and attain sustainable development from massive mobilization of resources and labor that far outweigh the costs of inaction;

Whereas millions of middle class jobs can be created by new federal standards through project labor agreements and protecting and expanding the right of workers to organize so that workers in the United States and elsewhere are guaranteed a strong, viable economic future in a zero-emissions economy that guarantees good jobs at fair union wages, with quality benefits;

Whereas frontline communities, Tribal governments and communities, people of color, and labor unions must be equitably involved in planning, implementation, prioritization and prioritized through local climate mitigation and adaptation planning, policy, and program delivery so that workers in the United States and communities of those workers, are guaranteed a strong, viable economic future;

Whereas a number of local jurisdictions and governments of the United States, including New York City and Los Angeles, and across the world, including the United Kingdom, the Republic of Ireland, Portugal, and Canada, have already declared a climate emergency, and a number of State and local governments are considering declaring a climate emergency, to address the massive challenges posed by the climate crisis;

Whereas State, local, and Tribal governments must be supported in efforts to hold accountable actors whose activities have opened and accelerated the climate crisis and who have benefitted from delayed action to address the climate change emergency and to develop a fossil fuel-free economy;

Whereas a collaborative response to the climate crisis will require the Federal Government to work with international, State, and local governments, including with those governments that have declared a climate emergency, to reverse the impacts of the climate crisis; and

Whereas the United States has an obligation, as a driver of accelerated climate change, to mobilize at emergency speed to restore a safe climate and environment not just for communities of the United States, including territories, but for communities across the world, particularly those on the frontlines of the climate crisis who have least contributed to the crisis, and to account for global and community impacts of any actions it takes in response to the climate crisis; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

1. the global warming caused by human activities, which increase emissions of greenhouse gases, has resulted in a climate emergency that

(A) severely and urgently impacts the economic and social well-being, health and safety, and national security of the United States;

(B) demands a national, social, industrial, and economic mobilization of the resources and labor of the United States at a massive-scale to halt, reverse, mitigate, and prepare for the consequences of the climate emergency and to restore the climate for future generations; and

2. nothing in this concurrent resolution constitutes a declaration of a national emergency for purposes of any Act of Congress authorizing the exercise, during the period of this declared emergency or other type of declared emergency, of any special or extraordinary power.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, for a long time, people opposed to climate action said that tackling climate change would be too costly, would harm economic growth, would be bad for American businesses, and would kill jobs. It turns out these were phony arguments peddled by fossil fuel interests. It turns out they are flat wrong. It turns out that actually the true economic hazard is not climate action but climate inaction.

We have recently seen an explosion of warnings from economic regulators, central bankers, investors, insurance firms, and risk analysts that we face economic peril if we fail to address climate change. These are not green groups; these are neutral business and economic experts—the people whose job it is to protect us from risks to financial stability and the people who make a business calculation about what we stand to lose from unabated climate change. Their warnings are many, and their warnings are serious. One example: Just last month, Moody’s warned that climate change will increasingly disrupt and damage critical infrastructure and property and will hurt worker health and productivity across the globe. Moody’s, the credit rating giant, estimated—hang on—$60 trillion. We talk about millions around here pretty readily. We talk about billions when we are talking about really big money. Moody’s estimated $60 trillion of economic damage globally by 2100, even if we limit warming to only 2 degrees Celsius. The Presiding Officer and I are probably not going to pay a lot of that. The pages will. We are not currently on track for only 2 degrees Celsius; we are currently on track for around 3 degrees of warming, which Moody’s said would put us at further risk of hitting tipping points beyond which lurk far larger, more lasting, and more ominous dangers.

Here is another example: In May, the European Central Bank warned that climate change presents significant economic risks to the economy, to asset values, and to financial stability. The longer we wait, the longer we fiddle around in this Chamber not doing anything, the more risks will pile up and protect ourselves in the future. That old saying about a stitch in time saving nine applies here as well.

The ECB said that these risks could cause what they called “systemic issues” especially where markets do not price the risks correctly. “Systemic issues” is a bland term. It is central banker-speak. What it means is something pretty serious. Systemic issues means this is so bad that it could take down the entire economy. The European Central Bank is not alone. The Bank of England has been warning of systemic risk from climate change or from not doing anything about climate change for some time now. I think there are over 30 sovereign banks that have made or adopted such warnings.

Just last week, Senator SCHATZ asked Federal Chairman Powell whether he sees climate change as a risk due to climate change. Powell did not equivocate. He said simply: “I believe it is, yes.” That is the leader of the most influential bank in the world accepting without hesitation a major threat to our financial system, echoed also by a Federal Reserve report out of California. Climate change, they point out, is a major threat to our financial system, to everything from coastal real estate values, which Freddie Mac predicts will crash, to stock market share prices, about which there are numerous adverse predictions if this goes unchecked.

America’s biggest financial institutions see what is coming. In the House Financial Services Committee hearing in April, CEOs from six of America’s biggest banks agreed that climate change is a serious risk to the financial system, and they said they are trying to take action to address that risk. There is an unfortunate sidebar, however: Big American banks that claim to support climate action include four of our biggest banks: JPMorgan Chase, Wells Fargo, Citigroup, and Bank of America. These banks all supported the Paris Agreement. In 2017, the CEOs of JPMorgan Chase, Citigroup, and Bank of America even signed a letter urging President Trump not to withdraw from the Paris Agreement.

These banks are all trying to reduce their own emissions, and all have commitments to get to 100 percent renewable electricity—all good steps. But the biggest direct impact these banks have on climate is not through the promises they make but through the investments they make. On that score, these four banks are steering us to climate calamity.

A group of environmental organizations released a report in March adding up fossil fuel financing by 33 large, private sector banks from around the world. JPMorgan Chase, Citigroup, Wells Fargo, Citigroup, and Bank of America, which all support the Paris Agreement and are all reducing their own carbon emissions—they are the four largest funders of fossil fuel projects. Combined, they invested over $360 billion in new fossil fuel projects over the past 3 years. JPMorgan was the worst, with $196 billion of fossil fuel funding in 3 years. JPMorgan was also the top U.S. funder of tar sands, Arctic oil and gas, and coal mining—the most emissions-intensive fuels.

The big American banks accounted for over a third of the surveyed global fossil fuel financing since the Paris Agreement was signed in 2015. Worse, their investment in fossil fuel projects actually increased after the Paris Agreement. Wells Fargo nearly doubled its fossil fuel financing from 2016 to 2018. Obviously, these investments in fossil fuel projects do not align with the banks’ stated support of the Paris Agreement. The math doesn’t work. The Paris Agreement aims to limit warming to well below 2 degrees Celsius and to try to limit warming to 1.5 degrees Celsius.

A study just published by Nature shows that the world’s existing fossil fuel infrastructure will emit enough carbon pollution to blow us past 1.5 degrees of warming. The authors wrote that little or no additional CO₂-emitting infrastructure can be commissioned. Little or no additional CO₂-emitting infrastructure can be commissioned if we are to meet the Paris Agreement climate goals.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the article titled “How Much Global Warming Is Infrastructure Locking In?” from Inside Climate News be printed in the RECORD at the end of my remarks.

That is the math. If the banks are true to their stated support of the Paris Agreement, they should not finance any new fossil fuel projects—less of course, they also finance capturing all the carbon emissions, and they are not doing that.

It is true that these banks have announced goals to increase their financing of clean and sustainable projects, but they are only goals, and combined, even their goals only amount to around $72 trillion per year, which is about half of what they have actually invested in fossil fuel projects each year since Paris.

Citi even released a report finding that maintaining our current fossil fuel-heavy economy would cost more than moving to clean, low-carbon economy—cost more to stay in the fossil fuel economy than to move to a clean economy—enough so that is not including factoring in the economic damage from climate change, which Citi reckons could total $2 trillion—$72 trillion under business as usual. Citi projects that transitioning away from the projects they are investing in to a low-carbon economy will save money on its own and it will help avoid tens of trillions of dollars in further economic damages. Yet they aren’t investing consistent with their principles.

According to the International Monetary Fund, fossil fuels are subsidized to the tune of $650 billion per year in the United States. So there is no question that this massive subsidy—probably the biggest subsidy in the history of the planet—makes investing in fossil fuel projects profitable. But the contradiction remains. These banks all say they support the Paris Agreement. They all recognize that it is economically vital to reach the goals of the Paris Agreement. Yet their investments would ensure that the Paris Agreement fails.

It would help banks change their ways if companies had to disclose their climate risks better. I just joined Senator Schatz on a bill we have deemed to require publicly traded companies to reveal their exposure to climate-related risks.

But we have a proposal—Senator Schatz, Senator Heimisch, and I—to help resolve the very root of the banks’ contradiction: that Congress put a price on carbon emissions and an end to fossil fuel subsidies. Indeed, JPMorgan Chase CEO Jamie Dimon recommended this in the House Financial Services Committee hearing in April. When asked whether his bank will phase out fossil fuel funding and align its investments with the goals of the Paris Agreement, he said: “If you want to fix this problem, you are going to have to do something like a carbon tax.”

So, bankers, help us do that. If these bankers think climate is a serious problem—and they say they do—and that putting a price on carbon pollution is the solution, which virtually every economist agrees with—hello, you need to come here and fight to make it happen. Banks have political influence. Lord knows, they never stop throwing their influence around here when it comes to financial regulations or tax breaks. Where are they in Congress on climate? It is a long pause waiting for them to show up. So, guys, talk is cheap. Come on. Put a little effort into this. Pretend it is a financial regulation.

The carbon fee bill of Senators Schatz, Heimisch, and Gillibrand would help these banks align their investments with their stated goals. Our bill meets the key standards of being effective on carbon emissions, driving fair pricing, and being friendly to CC Power Plan, revenue neutral in the economy, and border adjustable for trade. It meets all three. Plus, it will help avoid the dreadful economic warnings now so frequently heard from very responsible sources about doing nothing—warnings of coastal property values collapsing, warning of a carbon asset bubble crash, even warnings of big storms breaking the bank of the insurance system.

To be fair, it is a member of the newly formed CEO climate dialogue group which will, I hope, become a strong advocate for a Federal price on carbon pollution. That is the place where essentially every economist—huge numbers of Nobel Prize winning economists, N.W. and Nobel Prize winning economic advisers to Presidents, former Treasury Secretaries, former EPA Administrators, former Members of Congress—have all come down.

It is pretty clear what the solution is: It is a price on carbon that is revenue neutral and border adjustable and will reduce emissions enough to keep us under 1.5 degrees. That is not hard to figure out. It is getting there that is hard because, so far, the net pressure of corporate America in Congress remains hostile to climate action, whether from indifference by companies themselves or, worse, from the hostile presence of corporate trade associations like the U.S. Chamber and the National Association of Manufacturers, two leading business lobby groups recentlyouted asthe two worst climate obstructors in Congress.

The last I checked, a clean and green economy involves the whole of commerce. And building a new clean grid and new clean technologies, whether wind or solar or batteries or storage or distributed generation, was a lot of manufacturing.

We still await the explanation from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers why they are 100 percent aligned with the denial and obstruction of the fossil fuel industry and 0 percent aligned with the Chamber, in the last two cases, leaning in to climate action. There is a separate flotilla of front groups doing the dirty work of the fossil fuel industry. The fossil fuel industry doesn’t want to show up and identify itself with the fossil fuel industry; then the game is too obvious. So they put up all these front groups with ridiculous names about Heartlands and Heritages and famous figures, and they are front groups for fossil fuel. All the Chamber’s pressure against climate action comes from the Chamber and from NAM.

So for banks like these, who claim to take climate change very seriously, it would really make a difference if they would take an interest in climate change, not just on their websites, not just in their talking points, but in their investments in the market and steered away from fossil fuel and into clean energy and in their influence here in Congress.

We have to crack this nut here in Congress. There is no pathway to avoiding climate calamity that does not require Congress to act. Congress must act if we are going to get ahead of this problem. It is not optional. You can’t shrug as a business leader who cares about climate and say: No, we are just going to do our thing; we don’t need to worry about what happens in Congress.

There is no pathway to avoiding the climate crisis without action in Congress. The fossil fuel industry knows that. That is why they are here, red in tooth and claw. The sensible, honorable parts of the business community that want to do something about climate change need to show up and push back because, otherwise, the hydraulics are against us.

At this point, the science is clear. The economics are clear. The warnings are serious—cliometric risks—and they are our responsibility as the planet that our economy can afford massive investments in new fossil fuel projects, not by them, not by anybody. Time is short.

We can no longer afford corporate America to be AWOL on climate in Congress.

It is time for these banks and the rest of corporate America who want to see progress and avoid what all those who are telling us to wake up and to show up. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

How Much Global Warming Is Fossil Fuel Infrastructure Locking In?

(By Phil McKenna)

All the power plants, vehicles and other fossil fuel-burning infrastructure operating today will lock the world into 1.5 degrees Celsius of global warming, exceeding the Paris climate agreement goals, unless the biggest polluters are shut down early or are retrofitted to capture their carbon emissions, a new study shows.

And that’s just the infrastructure already built. When the researchers factored in the future emissions of this power and industrial infrastructure that are currently planned or under construction, they found the total lifetime emissions would shoot past 7°F warming and push the world on pace to burn through two-thirds of the remaining carbon budget for staying under 2°C of warming compared to pre-industrial levels.

The findings imply profound changes for the planet and many of its inhabitants in this century. As global temperatures rise, heat waves continue to intensify, extreme precipitation increases, and an additional 10 million people face greater risks from sea level rise in just the half degree between 1.5°C and 2°C warming compared to pre-industrial levels.

The infrastructure is locked in by its very design. All the power plants, vehicles and other fossil fueled infrastructure that are being built today are locking the world into more than 1.5°C of warming over pre-industrial levels.

We still await the explanation from the Chamber and from NAM.

We have already built enough to take us over 1.5°C, said Ken Caldeira, an atmospheric scientist at the Carnegie Institution for Science and a co-author of the study. “For these 1.5 scenarios you would either need to retire CO2 emitting infrastructure early or have carbon dioxide removal strategies which are generally thought to be expensive.”

Nine years ago, Caldeira co-authored a similar study that found the planet had already locked in about 496 gigatones of carbon dioxide with existing infrastructure, emissions that would result in about 1.3°C of warming above pre-industrial levels.

Since then, China and India have been on planet construction overdrive as the average age of their coal-fired power plants are 11 and 12 years, respectively, compared to nearly 40 years in the United States, according to a new study. The historical average lifespan of a power plant, and the age used for calculations in the study, is about 40 years. “What we see now is a lot more carbon emitting infrastructure than we saw a decade ago,” Caldeira said. “The trajectory is not going to where we would like it to go to.”

FUTURE EMISSIONS LIKELY TO BE EVEN HIGHER

The new study found that existing energy infrastructure would emit about 658 gigatons of carbon dioxide over the rest of its existence. This would lock the world into 1.5 degrees Fahrenheit of warming under 1.5°C, the world would need to limit emissions from all human activities to about 580 gigatons of carbon dioxide.

The future emissions are likely even higher than the study estimates. It does not take into account future emissions from other sectors including shipping, aviation and heavy industry that will be hard to wean off fossil fuels. Nor does it account for emissions from fossil fuels extraction and pipelines or non-energy emissions such as from agriculture.

Emissions from yet-to-be-built ships, airplanes or other fossil fuel-powered infrastructure will likely outweigh emissions saved from the early retirement of existing fossil fuel power plants, said Gunnar Luderer, head of the Energy Systems Group at the Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research in Germany, who reviewed the study.

For the new study, the researchers used detailed datasets of fossil fuel-burning energy infrastructure operating in 2018 or planned. They found some progress, including "substantial" cancellations of proposed fossil fuel power plants in the past two years, which cut the expected emissions from future power plants as much as half from studies conducted just a few years earlier.

In the U.S., utilities have been announcing plans to shut down coal-fired power plants and add more renewable energy as the costs of solar and wind power generation fall, but other types of fossil fuel infrastructure have been expanding—particularly natural gas drilling and pipelines to carry oil and gas, both for domestic use and for export to other countries. On June 20, for example, Energy Transfer LP announced it planned nearly double the capacity the Dakota Access oil pipeline, a project that was highly contested.

Other studies have used different methods to estimate emissions growth.

One study, published in Nature Communications in January, determined there was a 64 percent chance that existing energy infrastructure wouldn’t commit the planet to passing 1.5 °C warming, provided construction of additional fossil fuel energy infrastructure was halted immediately and other measures were taken to dramatically reduce emissions from all other sectors of the economy.

Such measures would have to happen in the immediate future, said Joeri Rogelj, a lecturer at the Grantham Institute at Imperial College London and a co-author of the January study.

"Both studies are really clear," Rogelj said. "If we wait another 5 to 10 years with being serious about emissions reductions and addressing climate change then indeed we will have no discussion anymore whether we can still make it to 1.5. It will be very clear and obvious that we will run past it."

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

STOP CRUELTY TO MIGRANT CHILDREN ACT

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, tonight I am going to talk about a legislation that has introduced that now has 40 Senators sponsoring it. It is called the Stop Cruelty to Migrant Children Act.

I think all of us in America have seen so many stories of refugee children being treated in a horrific manner at the border or beyond the border in a system of child migrant prisoners.

Just recently, we have had the story about Tania and her parents—Tania and Joseph—proceeded to experience horrific circumstances in which a gang killed Tania’s mother and her sister-in-law. A note was posted on the door that they would be killed, that they had 45 minutes to leave. I imagine all of us would feel with our children under those circumstances.

They made it to the border of the United States. They did get through an initial hearing which is designed to determine if there is credible fear of return, and that sets the stage then for an asylum hearing.

But we are shipping folks back into Mexico to await that asylum hearing. In this case, the little girl in the family—she has a heart problem, and she had surgery for a 3-year-old girl—yet we sent that family back into Mexico without friends, without family, without funds.

It is only because a Member of Congress heard about it—a Member in the House of Representatives—and intervened, that the little girl was allowed to remain in the United States. Even then, the administration said you—the little girl, the 3-year-old—you have to choose between which parent she will be with. Which one will be sent back without funds, family, and friends into Mexico with the rest of the children.

It is a horrific situation to split the family in this process, horrific to ask a little girl to have to decide who would be in the safety of the U.S. and which one will be sent back without funds, family, and friends into Mexico with the rest of the children.

We are too crowded. It is too much for us to continue the vision of treating those fleeing war and those fleeing famine, those fleeing conflict and violence—is it too much for us to imagine all of us would flee with our children?

President John F. Kennedy said: "This country has always served as a lantern in the dark for those who love freedom but are persecuted, in misery, or in need."

If President Kennedy were speaking today, he couldn’t say those words because today our country, under the current leadership, is not conducting itself in a manner that serves as a "lantern in the dark for those who love freedom but are persecuted, in misery, or in need."

Instead, we have a new policy. It is a policy that was articulated by John Kelly just weeks after the administration took office. The policy was that if we inflict pain and suffering on refugees, it will deter immigration. The strategy of deliberately inflicting pain on refugees is not supportable under any moral code, under any religious tradition, or under any system of ethics.

Shortly after John Kelly, who was then head of Homeland Security, expressed this, there was a reaction. This was in the early months of 2017. As a result, they took the program under...

ground for a little more than a year, until June of 2018, when then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions gave a speech called "Zero Tolerance." Six months out from an election, it is not unusual to have an Attorney General give a speech which gets media attention and is emphasized. But as you read the details of that speech, you realize this wasn’t about getting tough on crime. This was about returning explicitly to the vision that John Kelly had laid out ourociety in which getting tough in order to discourage immigration.

That is a whole different thing. It is not zero tolerance; it is zero humanity.

Every one of us can picture relatives coming to this country and this border and would want them to be treated with respect and decency as they pursue asylum.

Most people do not win their asylum hearings. The rate of success is difficult to establish, so most people do not succeed if they do not have extensive documentation to make their case on the fear of return.

The initial hearing is easy in the sense that you simply have to assert that you have a credible fear based on your story, but in the asylum hearing, you have to prove it. You carry the burden of proof. Is it too much for us to continue the vision of treating those fleeing war and those fleeing famine, those fleeing conflict and violence—is it too much for us to love to treat them with decency and respect as they go through the adjudication process for asylum? It is not. In fact, that has been the vision of America; that has been the process in America; that has been the vision that John Kelly had laid out.

This was about returning explicitly to that administrative strategy of deliberately inflicting pain on refugees. It is not zero tolerance; it is zero humanity.

I cannot understand how it is possible that the administration persists in this administrative strategy of treating children. It starts at the border, where Customs and Border Protection has been instructed to set up a blockade and block children who arrive right at the line on the middle of the pedestrian bridge or the pathway and then block them from entering while they call up Mexican officials to come and drag them away.

I saw this down in McAllen a year ago. Three CBP officers were stretching across the bridge. Anyone who did not have a passport or a visa was sent back into Mexico in violation of international law and our domestic law. I asked why we would do this to refugees fleeing persecution. Basically, the answer was this: We were too busy. We are too crowded.

The only thing was, there was no crowding. Not at that time. There were no interview rooms. The interview rooms were empty. The processing center at McAllen was empty. It was simply a strategy of slamming the door shut.
For these families sent back across the border without friends and family and extension funds to support them, it is very dangerous across the border. This is happening with children at Tijuana. I was told of numerous circumstances where unaccompanied children would come to the border, and they would be blocked at the entry, and then the CBP would say: Well, we can’t let you step across that line until we consult with the manager. Then the U.S. side would call up the Mexican side. Very often that went nowhere. We have three French-speaking children on the border in Tijuana. They are at the line with the U.S. gate, and the U.S. Customs and Border Protection officer is blocking them from stepping across that line, and they are very worried they were your own and facilitate their passage across that line to safety and not leave them stranded in Tijuana.

I got a phone call. I was in my office here, working late at night. I think it was about 11 p.m. at night. I got a phone call from a group that has helped escort children. They said: We have three French-speaking children on the border in Tijuana. They are at the line with the U.S. gate, and the U.S. Customs and Border Protection officer is blocking them from stepping across that line, and they are very worried they were your own and facilitate their passage across that line to safety and not leave them stranded in Tijuana.

I spoke to the phone. Hold your phone up so that they can hear what I am saying. I told them the same thing—that I had met with their supervisors for the sector, and their bosses had said: These are the guidelines. Your guidance is to treat these children who are in front of you as if they were your own and to facilitate their passage across that line to safety and not leave them stranded in Tijuana.

Recognize that being stranded in Tijuana for any child is horrific. Imagine it is your child. Whether your child is 17 or whether your child is 5, Tijuana is an incredibly dangerous place. There are all kinds of sex industry operators here, which we see these kids and teenagers into that sex industry. Do you want your child there with no friends and family or funds on the street in that setting? There are gangs who prey on the children who are on the street. Do you want your children in that setting? No, of course you would never want them left in that situation.

This border blockade is the first piece of traumatizing children to disrupt the normalcy of their daily lives. This is morally wrong, and it needs to end.

Then there is the metering program. Basically, metering says that if you come to the border, we will not let you cross. But if you come the following day, on the phone, there is a phone number—will be a book, and you can put your name in the book and get on a wait list. That is called metering.

So I went to the square in Tijuana where he is do to watch the metering process. People arrive with the book, and they place it on a little table under a little canopy. They start calling out names. That day, the United States was taking about 30 people, and when all of the spaces were full, that was it.

Then everyone else on the wait list is waiting. If I recall right, the wait had been about 6 or 7 weeks for people to be able to get just a credible fear interview, which is the very first step. Realizing metering? This is not complicated. It can be done expeditiously. It means 6 to 7 weeks with no money on the streets of some hostile city across the border.

I want to show you a picture that perhaps you have seen. It is a picture that deeply, profoundly disturbs me. This is a father and little girl swimming the Rio Grande. They didn’t just try to swim the Rio Grande. They came to a port of entry of the United States of America. They did what the President of the United States, President Trump, said to do. They came to the port of entry, and they asked for asylum. They were metered and sent back to Mexico to fend for themselves for who knows how long—as long as the wait list ends.

They did what the President of the United States, President Trump, said to do. They came to the port of entry, and they asked for asylum. They were metered and sent back to Mexico to fend for themselves for who knows how long—as long as the wait list ends.

It is dangerous to have a mother, a little girl, or a father on the streets of a hostile city. If you wouldn’t send your child into that, if you wouldn’t send your sister and your sister’s child into that, then you shouldn’t be sending others into this perilous circumstance. It is so perilous there, and you have no way to even buy food. You certainly don’t have money for a hotel. You have been stripped of your funds during your journey. You fled suddenly to begin with and probably didn’t have resources on the front end of the journey. So what do you do? You say: Well, I can starve and be beaten up—or who knows what horrific treatment here—or I can go and cross between the ports of entry and ask for asylum.

That is what they did. It was because they were rejected at the port of entry—the very place President Trump says is incredible. They lied to get in the banks of the Rio Grande, trying to get out of the incredibly hostile situation across the border. This is the deliberate infliction of trauma, and for every situation like this, there are life-and-death decisions.

This is not the end of it.

Let’s say they had made it across the border and had been taken into a processing center. What would happen in those processing centers? Well, in the fill, I went to McAllen, there wasn’t room to sit down. There certainly wasn’t room to lie down. You had little kids in there who were crying and mothers who were crying, and the fathers were in cells that were jammed. We heard the reports of all of this. McAllen, there were holding these Mylar blankets. There were no cushion on the ground, and there were lights left on all night long.

We have heard the reports of all of the various things we have done to children in these processing centers—of our not providing diapers, showers, soap; of our making it difficult for them to go to the bathroom; of our making it difficult for them to get water; of our not providing medical aid.

What kind of country treats children in this manner? Who does this with our tax money, on our land, and by our government? This is more than wrong. This is cruel. This is evil. This is the depth of darkness to treat children in this fashion. That is why 40 of us have introduced this Stop Cruelty to Migrant Children Act. The processing center isn’t the end of it.

Then we have a for-profit prison in Homestead that is paid $750 a day on a no-compete contract. Who is on the board of that? He is the same John Kelly who started the child separation strategy in March of 2017 and who then served as the President’s Chief of Staff. He is paid to be on the board of a for-profit. He is paid to lock up children. It is the largest child prison in American history.

Now, if some other country had wanted to throw children back across the border into hostile circumstances, if some other country had set up a metering program that had left children vulnerable for weeks before their initial credible hearings, we would demand that country had proceeded to put children into holding cells and kept the lights on all night and had given them no mattresses to lie on and had not supplied...
diapers, hygenics, food and water, or medical treatment as appropriate, and if some other country had locked up children in a child prison that had been built to a capacity of 3,200 children at a for-profit and had had no incentive to pass the children on to State-licensed care to sponsors with homes, we would have 100 Senators down here on this floor, saying we have to stop this because we stand up for children in the United States of America.

So what I want to know is: How come there aren’t 100 Senators down here today, standing up against this type of treatment? I invite all 100 of my colleagues to join this bill to stop cruelty to migrant children.

I was struck by some of the comments by the kids who were being held down in Clint.

A 12-year-old boy said: ‘I’m hungry here at Clint all the time. I’m so hungry that I awaken in the middle of the night because there isn’t enough food. Sometimes I wake up at 4 a.m. and sometimes at other hours.’

A mother recounted that when she asked for medicine for her son’s fever, an agent retorted: ‘Who told you to come to America with your baby anyway?’ How about, instead, we get help for the child who has a fever.

There are children being held in cages, children being marched in single lines between Army-style huts, children who have been inflicted with trauma through child separation, children who have been locked up in a for-profit prison that has no incentive to move children to State-licensed facilities. In fact, it is the opposite. It is by a company that got a no-competitive contract. Who is on the board? He is the former Chief of Staff to President Trump.

So what does this bill do?

It ensures that children are not thrown back across the border when they come up to the border of the United States. It ensures that children receive prompt medical assistance. Many children have died from fever. By just using a simple device to check the fever, it would enable you to know if this child needs additional help. It would ensure that basic hygiene and three meals a day are provided. It would allow for more caseworkers to be hired to help children to be moved quickly to State-licensed facilities or to homes that are really safe and where they should be while they await asylum. Children belong in schools and homes and on playgrounds, not behind barbed wire in a for-profit prison that is designed to hold 3,200 people down in Homestead, FL. This bill would prohibit that devilish, misdirected strategy of paying for and incentivizing the imprisonment of children.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., said: ‘Our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter.’ I heard a lot of aloud toward the children in that Chamber on the horrific treatment of children. Let’s have a little less silence and a little more advocacy. Let’s have 100 Senators sign up for the Stop Cruelty to Migrant Children Act. America is better than the way we have been treating these children. I give thanks to all 40 Senators who have signed on to this legislation.

In our hearts, I think it is fundamentally wrong to deliberately traumatizing children in order to discourage immigration is wrong. We have a responsibility to end it.

Thank you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

TRIBUTE TO AVES THOMPSON

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. President, it is that time of week again. It is the time when I get to recognize a special person from a special place—the great State of Alaska—in what we call our ‘Alaskan of the Week.’ It is one of the best times of the week for me because I get to talk about community and its individuals. I think we have new pages here, but I think the pages unanimously agree every year that this is the most exciting speech of the week. I will not disappoint because you get to learn about the wonderful things that it is summer—right now—or winter, you get to learn about what people are doing in Alaska.

I recognize Mr. Aves Thompson today. He is one of the many people in my State who has worked diligently to ensure that Alaska runs well and that goods get properly transported from one place in Alaska to another place. We are a big State. He ensures that when delivering things, the systems that make a functional State and a functional society are in working order in Alaska. Now, I will get to what Aves has done in a minute here and will talk about him. What I always like to do is talk a little bit about what is going on in Alaska right now.

The weather is gorgeous, and the fishing is great. A couple of weeks ago, I was up on the mighty Yukon River, which is way up north. I was with my wife and three daughters and a bunch of family members. We were fishing for one of the most iconic fish on the planet—the Yukon River king. It is a time of festivals and parades all across the State.

Last week, I was at Eagle River, which is about 15 minutes north of Anchorage. It is really celebrative. Among other things, many Alaskans—myself included—partook in the Slippery Salmon Olymics. I am not going to describe exactly what happened, but as you can imagine, it involved running and obstacles with salmon. It was a lot of fun. So it is a great time to be in Alaska, and I encourage everybody who is watching on TV to come on up. You will love it. I guarantee it will be the trip of a lifetime.

As you know, events like these reflect our culture, larger about a place. They reflect ties and commitment and, importantly, people and community. They reflect people who help each other and spend their lives working to make things better. So let me introduce you to Aves Thompson, our Alaskan of the Week. He is someone who has definitely spent his life making Alaska better and, more fundamentally, making Alaska work well and efficiently.

I will admit it. Alaska is not the easiest place in which to live. For one, it is really far away from the rest of the lower 48. I am going to get on a plane. I try to get home every weekend. I will go home in the afternoon. It will be about 11½ hours door-to-door, one way, to get to my home in Anchorage. That is pretty far. The winter weather, of course, can be brutal. Our mountains and our tundra are beautiful, but it can be challenging, to say the least, to build on that terrain.

Getting goods in and out of Alaska is particularly vexing in a State the size of Alaska. Now, my colleagues from Texas don’t always like to hear about it, but I like to say if you were to split Alaska in half, then Texas would be the third largest State in the country because we are 2½ times the size of the State of Texas. More than that, we are a continental-wide, expansive State.

If you look at the map, you look at Ketchikan, which is down in the southeast, at communities like Barrow, which is in the north, and all the way out west to the end of the Aleutian Islands chain, you will literally cover the distance from San Francisco, that is the size of Alaska. So it is a challenge to move things.

Aves Thompson is currently the head of the Alaska Trucking Association. He has spent his entire career working to make sure Alaskans get the goods they need not only to survive but to thrive. He has also worked to ensure that the goods are measured properly and that people aren’t overpaying for them. This is very important.

And Phyllis, his wife, came to Alaska in 1970. First, it was to visit friends, then to build a life. They love the State. They love the weather. They love the people. They love the community. Phyllis taught elementary school, and eventually Aves worked for a small trucking company. Then he worked for the State as, first, the division director of the Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Program and then as the director and the chief of the Alaska State Division of Measurement Standards. Now, this is a mouthful, but it is a really important job.

What does it mean?

It means that he was in charge of all of the scales in Alaska—everything running from the scales to weigh your fruit at the grocery store and your gas at the pump to the scales that weigh huge shipments of goods that come into our State.

When she was a little girl, Kristin, who is Aves’ daughter, remembers how her father used to always check the scales at the grocery store. So she told her friends that her father weighed cheese for a living. That is a family and he is still leading on it and he is absolutely determined to finish—let me explain what this is. Like so many Alaskans, Aves is a veteran. I like to brag about Alaska. We have more veterans per capita than any State of the United States of America. He is one of them. He served in the Army from 1964 to 1966, in the 2nd Infantry Division. He was stationed at the DMZ in Korea. Like so many of our veterans in America and Alaska, these experiences never left him.

In 2002 he read about a 2nd Infantry Division reunion, and he thought he would go. He found kinship among his fellow veterans and got talked into becoming an officer, eventually becoming the chair of the 2nd Indianhead Division Association and chair of the association's Memorial Foundation Board of Trustees.

As I said, this guy is a doer and a leader. Among other things, he has raised and raised money for two trips for veterans from the Korean conflict and who have served in Korea to go to Korea, and he has been working diligently to update the U.S. Army 2nd Division Memorial, which was at 17th and Constitution in Washington, DC. The memorial was first erected in 1936 to honor the 2nd Division fallen soldiers in World War I. It was then modified to honor the 2nd Division fallen soldiers in both World War II and Korea. This is a very highly decorated Army division.

Aves and other veterans of the 2nd Division thought that the memorial should be expanded even further to honor even more of the members of the 2nd Division who have lost their lives and to leave space for future modifications of this important memorial for soldiers from the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Like much of what happens here, none of this was easy. When he first started to work on the memorial, he went to the Park Service, which gave him a firm “No, we are not going to help you. We are not going to let you move it. We are not going to let you expand it.”

Eventually, he came to us, his congressional delegation from Alaska, and we gave him a firm “Yes, we will help.” We were able last year to include a provision in the 2018 National Defense Authorization Act to allow for the expansion of the 2nd Division Infantry Memorial.

Aves has been working hard at this ever since—working with agencies, raising private money for this memorial, and getting design approval.

Aves has been married to Phyllis for almost 51 years. Kristin is a wonderful daughter who has two sons of her own. Aves is proud of his grandsons, Logan and Aves Jr. I am all very grateful for his work on the economy of Alaska, on the logistics, on the supply, and for his work for veterans. He is someone who cares so much and so deeply about his State, about his community, about his industry, about his country.

So, Aves, happy retirement, although we know you are going to continue to work hard. Thanks for all you have done for Alaska, for America, and thank you for being our Alaskan of the Week.

I yield the floor.

CONGRATULATING MICHELE KEARNS, KELLY GENOVA, AND THE STUDENTS OF FESTUS’ QUEST K-8 GIFTED PROGRAM FOR RECEIVING THE EPA’S PRESIDENTIAL ENVIRONMENTAL YOUTH AWARD

HON. BLAINE LUETKEMEYER OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. LUETKEMEYER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Festus, Missouri teachers, Michele Kearns and Kelly Genova and the students of Festus’ Quest K-8 Gifted Program for receiving the Environmental Protection Agency’s Presidential Environmental Youth Award.

Long before receiving this prestigious award, it all started last year with two teachers, Michele and Kelly deciding to come together and apply for a grant from the Innovative Technology Education Fund in St. Louis, Missouri. The pair successfully received $22,000 for their students. Unaware to them, with this grant, it was the start of a great journey for the students of Quest.

Michele and Kelly challenged their students to apply their knowledge and skills in the STEM fields to come up with uses of the grant funds that would be beneficial to the Festus community. The students identified a problem, came up with a plan to solve it, and worked together to execute their project perfectly.

The students of Quest noticed that their city park had an awful mosquito infestation during warmer weather. Their goal was to eliminate the problem for park goers in an environmentally friendly way, and they did that with the invention of Pollinator Paradise. With Pollinator Paradise, the students of Quest designed, built, and installed homes for Indiana bats, mason bees, purple martins, hummingbirds, and monarch butterflies, all of which are natural pest controls, and pollinators. The end result was a more diverse makeup of wildlife and a more pleasant setting at the park.

Mr. Luetkemeyer. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Michele, Kelly, and all the students of Quest on this distinguished award and for a job well done.

HONORING THE LIFE OF ARTHUR “ROY” THOMAS

HON. DEBBIE WAESSERMAN SCHULTZ OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Ms. WAESSERMAN SCHULTZ. Madam Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I rise to honor the life of Arthur “Roy” Thomas and extend my condolences to his family. Roy was an integral part of the International Union, United Automobile, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) Region 8.

Roy, a dedicated champion for union rights, tragically passed away on July 13th after a battle with stage 4 cancer.

He was a dear friend and embodied the best of what it means to give back to your country and community. Born in 1952, Roy dedicated his entire life to helping others. He began working at Fleetguard in 1970 and was employed there for 47 years. Roy started working for UAW in November 1995 as a union organizer and became UAW Community Action Program Representative in October 2002 until his retirement in December 2017.

Roy embodied UAW’s mission of social justice and action, and his passion truly inspired so many of the union sisters and brothers that he fought for every day.

He was warm, loyal and devoted to his friends and allies. He was the type of person who through his affable personality and his approach to advocacy on the issues important to auto workers drew devotion, respect and affection simultaneously.

I personally was a recipient of his unwavering friendship and am eternally grateful for his leadership in support of so many.

Roy Thomas was truly one-of-a-kind whose joy for life is the imprint he left on the hearts of those who knew him well.

He will be tremendously missed, but never forgotten.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a tenacious couple, Brian and Candi Crawford.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE CITY OF DEARBORN FOR ITS 90TH BIRTHDAY

HON. DEBBIE DINGELL OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mrs. DINGELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the City of Dearborn, which is celebrating its 90th birthday. Dearborn is a vibrant city with an immense history and diverse community.

Originally established as the Detroit Arsenal and coined the “Dearbornville” United States Military installation in 1864, Dearborn housed and supplied Union soldiers during the Civil War. Situated on the River Rouge in southeast Michigan, Dearborn was officially incorporated as a city in 1927. The birthplace of manufacturing pioneer Henry Ford, Dearborn rapidly industrialized in the early 20th century. The city is home to the River Rouge Complex and now-closed Ford Airport, which were once the largest integrated factory and most advanced airport in the world, respectively.

A melting pot of races, ethnicities, and religions, Dearborn embodies the diversity of our nation. During the 19th and 20th centuries, immigrants from across the world flocked to Dearborn in pursuit of safety, tolerance, and economic opportunity. Similarly, during the Great Migration, African Americans moved to the city to escape racial violence and discrimination. This tradition of heterogeneity continues today, as Dearborn has the highest per capita Muslim population of any city in the country and is home to both the Arab American National Museum and the largest mosque in the United States. We recognize and thank the Dearborn community for their commitment to economic and cultural excellence. They have built a vibrant, inclusive, diverse community that serves as a role model across the nation.

Dearborn Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the city of Dearborn for its 90th birthday. I wish Dearborn a successful 90th birthday. I wish Dearborn a successful

CELEBRATING THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF LAW LIBRARIES’ LEGISLATIVE ADVOCACY PROGRAM

HON. MIKE QUIGLEY
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today in celebration of the 30th anniversary of the American Association of Law Libraries’ legislative advocacy program. The American Association of Law Libraries (AALL), representing more than 4,100 members, is the only national association dedicated to the legal information profession and its professionals. Founded in 1966 on the belief that everyone—lawyers, judges, students, and the public—needs timely access to relevant legal information to make sound legal arguments and wise legal decisions, AALL members are problem solvers of the highest order.

In 1989, the AALL Executive Board appointed AALL members Robert L. Oakley of Georgetown University Law Library and Joanne Zich of American University Washington College of Law Library as the first Washington representatives for the Association. Since that time, AALL’s advocacy efforts ranged from the creation and dissemination of government information to copyright to the privacy of library users. Its successes include ensuring permanent public access to official, authentic government information by advocating for the essential work of the Library of Congress, the Law Library of Congress, and the U.S. Government Publishing Office; contributing to the enactment of transparency laws including the E-Government Act of 2002 (P.L. 107–347) and updates to the Freedom Information Act; and, most recently, supporting my own legislation to provide public access to Congressional Research Service reports that resulted in language included in the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2018 (P.L. 115–141) directing the Congressional Research Service to make its nonconfidential reports available to the public on the internet.

The AALL Executive Board and its members celebrated the 30th anniversary of the Association’s legislative advocacy program by convening on Capitol Hill on July 12, 2019 for AALL Day on the Hill. AALL members met with their elected officials about the Association’s legislative priorities that include greater access to government information, access to justice, government transparency, balanced copyright laws, and privacy for library users.

I congratulate AALL on three decades of effective advocacy and wish them many more years of success.

Most recently, the Terre Haute Chamber of Commerce was awarded the 2019 Indiana Chamber of the Year award under David’s leadership.

SARAH STOUT EARNED GIRL SCOUT GOLD AWARD

HON. PETE OLSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. OLSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Sarah Stout from Seven Lakes High School in Katy, Texas for earning her Girl Scout Gold Award.

The Gold Award is the highest achievement a Girl Scout can earn. To earn this distinguished award, Sarah had to spend at least 80 hours developing and executing a project to benefit the community, as well as have a long-term impact on girls. For her Gold Award project, Sarah chose to redecorate a youth room in her church, Epiphany of the Lord Catholic Church. She prepared the room for painting, designed window covers, painted a wall mural and created youth group signs. Sarah has been involved in her church for many years, serving as a Vacation Bible School lead, altar server and participating in summer mission trips. Sarah chose this as her project so she could give back to the church she loves and help provide a space for church and school related programs.

On behalf of the Twenty-Second Congressional District of Texas, congratulations again to Sarah Stout for earning her Girl Scout Gold Award. We are confident she will have continued success in her future endeavors. We are very proud of her accomplishment.

COMMEMORATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MOON LANDING

HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, since I have been in Congress, I have wondered about our place in the cosmos for as long as we have been able to look out into the night sky and see the stars. And of course, we have been dared by our own sense of imagination and possibility to try to breach our gravity and the heavens.

It is with an awe of that sense of exploration that I rise to commemorate the 50th Anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing on July 20, 1969, when Neil Armstrong became the first human to set foot on the moon. We should be proud of our men and women who have contributed to this historic achievement.

On May 25, 1961, President John F. Kennedy stood in this chamber, before Congress, and declared that the United States would send a man to the moon and return him safely to the Earth.

He implored us to do so, not because it was easy, but because it was hard.

In one-fell swoop, he harnessed our competitive drive and merged it with mankind’s relentless pursuit of discovery and information and knowledge.

It was a bold proposition, not because of this challenge, but also because of our standing in the Space Race.
Just four years earlier, the Soviets had released Sputnik into orbit, as the first unmanned satellite, and in the process taken the leading the global space race. Our confidence shaken, we set out to work on the mission before us.

Before we could celebrate the triumph of the Apollo 11 crew and the valor of Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, Michael Collins, we mourned the crew of Apollo 1, who died shortly after their capsule lifted off of Terra Firma. Before we could walk on the moon, it was necessary first to orbit the earth.

Indeed, the journey to Mare Tranquillitatis was long, and a collective, national endeavor. The pursuit would be the pursuit of three presidents until, on July 20, 1969, the crew of Apollo 11 touched down on the Moon's surface.

The words uttered by Neil Armstrong were instantly immortalized, because, indeed, it was one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.

This moment was definitely a moment for joy and celebration for our entire nation. But for those of us from Houston, this moment is an occasion for particular and unique pride.

The flight to the Moon, and indeed all manned flights, have been guided by the brilliant and hardworking men and women of Houston, who, for close to 60 years, have been the steady hand, guiding manned space exploration. I thank them for all that they do.

As I conclude my remarks, I urge all within earshot of my voice to maintain that same sense of discovery and exploration, and wonder what lies next for us.

And, I urge President Kennedy's admonition to us from 58 years ago, that we should not be motivated simply by what is easy, but that we should meet the difficult challenge and savor what can be accomplished by our collective efforts.

I congratulate all from NASA who have made the endeavor of space flight their life's work.

HON. JOE WILSON OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I am grateful to our talented colleague, Congressman Rob Woodall of Georgia, who stood up for what is right. Yesterday on the House Floor, Congressman Woodall promoted the Military Surviving Spouses Equity Act, the Widows Tax elimination.

"We had an opportunity under the new consensus calendar . . . to bring bipartisan legislation to the floor. What they [Democrats] said was if you bring enough Democrats and Republicans to support your bill, we will give you a special pathway to get that bill to the floor for those ideas that we want to celebrate together."

"Congressman Joe Wilson has such a bill . . . to support the widows of our fallen servicemen and women. Widows and widowers."

Because Democrats subverted this by removing it from the calendar, they did not follow their own rule. It is now legislative day four for a stand-alone vote, with now 371 co-sponsors, bringing over 86 percent of Members of Congress as supporters.

In conclusion, we lost our Troops, and we will never forget September 11th in the Global War on Terrorism.

INTRODUCTION OF A RESOLUTION FORMALY CONDEMNING THE TRUMP ADMINISTRATION'S SYSTEMATIC CRUEL AND INHUMANE TREATMENT OF MIGRANTS, PARTICULARLY CHILDREN, AT THE SOUTHERN BORDER

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, today I introduced a resolution formally condemning the Trump Administration's systematic cruel and inhumane treatment of migrants, particularly children, at the southern border.

This resolution was introduced with the support of more than fifty of our Democratic colleagues who agree that the House of Representatives needs to go on the record in their condemnation of the human rights crisis perpetrated by the Trump administration.

While Congress has voted to send billions of dollars in humanitarian aid to improve the conditions of detainees, the House of Representatives has yet to reject Trump's inhumane and harassing policies. With thousands of children separated from their families, more being denied asylum at the border, and far more languishing in detention facilities without the basic necessities to sustain a dignified life, this body must take a stand. The first step toward combating evil is giving it a name. As the branch of government closest to the American public, we must formally condemn Trump's intolerant and hateful policies against some of the world's most vulnerable individuals.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2020

SPEECH OF
HON. ELIOT L. ENGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 11, 2019

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2560) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2020 for military activities of the Department of Defense and for military construction, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes:

Mr. ENGEL. Madam Chair, I rise to support the amendment offered by Mr. Khanna, which I was proud to co-sponsor.

If the President wants to go to war, he needs to come to Congress first. The Constitution gives Congress—not the President—the power to declare war.

This is about checks and balances. It does not prevent the President from defending America, it simply enforces current law exactly as it is written in the war powers resolution.

There's no special category for Iran that allows the President to skip the critical step of coming to Congress.

Iran is dangerous. I am not blind to the threat it poses to our alliances and our interests, but addressing these threats need not lead us into another war.

We need to de-escalate heightened tensions in the region, so we don't stumble into a conflict with Iran. Now is the time for Congress to step up and assert our constitutional authority.

I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment.

TRIBUTE TO MR. MUNIR MUHAMMAD CO-FOUNDER COMMITTEE FOR THE REMEMBERANCE OF THE HONORABLE ELIJAH MUHAMMAD (CROE)

HON. DANNY K. DAVIS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. DANNY K. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, to every man, there is a way and a way. The high souls take the highway, and the low souls take the low, while all the rest on the Mistry flats drift to and from. To every man there is a way, a way and a way, and each man decideth which way his soul will go.

Ever since I have known Mr. Munir Muhammad, he has been focused on helping people understand the work and the value of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad. Munir became acquainted with the teachings of Elijah Muhammad in 1972, and never stopped learning. In 1974, he became a member of the nation of Islam and spent much of the rest of his life extolling the virtues and the teachings of the life and works of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad.

To further and expand his efforts, Munir became an accomplished journalist and community leader. He hosted a regular television show, documentaries, forums and came up with other creative ways to keep the Honorable Elijah Muhammad in the forefront.

Mr. Munir Muhammad will be sorely missed, and may he rest in peace.

CATHOLIC CHARITIES OF SOUTHERN MISSOURI

HON. BILLY LONG
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. LONG. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the decade of service that Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri has provided to its local communities as it celebrates its 10th anniversary this year.

When Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri was founded in 2009, there were just two offices and two employees focused on family and mental health counseling. However, its role drastically changed in May 2011, when a powerful tornado struck the city of Joplin. Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri raced into action and became a vital lifeline for those
Mr. OLSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Becky Adams, Damon Brownd, Ron Fawcett, Brenda Frye, ConnieGuyton, Tony Manna, Gabriel Rodriguez, Carmen Suarez, Trudy Thompson and Michael Voegtline for being named Volunteers of the Year by the Sugar Land City Council.

These ten dedicated volunteers are part of the Serve Sugar Land program that contributed 27,853 hours of volunteer service to the city in 2018. Each was nominated and selected by a different city department, from accounting to the municipal court to the animal shelter. Their dedication to our community exemplifies “the Sugar Land way,” and we are lucky to have so many amazing folks who strive to use their skills to give back to our community.

On behalf of the Twenty-Second Congressional District of Texas, congratulations again to these stellar community leaders for being named Volunteers of the Year by the Sugar Land City Council. I thank them for their dedication to making Sugar Land the best place to live, work and raise a family.

RECOGNIZING FEDEX-SAFE KIDS PARTNERSHIP

HON. STEVE COHEN OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. COHEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today in praise of a 20-year partnership between Memphis-based FedEx and Safe Kids Worldwide and to congratulate FedEx for receiving the 20th Anniversary Award at this Thursday’s Childhood Prevention Convention Awards Luncheon here in Washington, D.C. For 20 years, FedEx has worked with Safe Kids to advance pedestrian safety for children in school zones around the country, reaching 17 million children and improving safety at 13,000 schools with educational outreach and infrastructure improvements. I especially want to call attention to the dramatic improvements this partnership has produced in my own district. Between 2003 and 2011, Treadwell Elementary School in Memphis saw 16 pedestrians hit in its zone under the age of 15, resulting in serious injuries. With a $40,000 contribution from FedEx, Safe Kids and the City of Memphis created a safe zone and there has not been a single crash in that zone in the eight years since the intervention.

Treadwell’s safe zone became a model and has resulted in upgrades to the safety zone at Grahamwood Elementary, also in my district. I’d also like to applaud Tennessee’s proud legacy in promoting child safety as the first state to pass a child passenger safety law in 1978. I would also like to commend Safe Kids Mid-South, part of the Tennessee network of Safe Kids coalitions, supported by Memphis-based LeBonheur Children’s Hospital. FedEx, with more than 100,000 vehicles on the road, understands the importance of protecting pedestrians. I want to commend its leadership for the forethought that has brought the FedEx-Safe Kids partnership to this 20-year milestone.

OPPOSING THE MOTION TO TABLE H. RES. 498

HON. JERROLD NADLER
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, July 17, 2019

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, today, I voted against the Republican motion to table the article of impeachment offered by Congressman Al Green of Texas. To be clear, President Trump has consistently invoked nativist and racist tropes that have a long and shameful history in this country. His recent vile and hateful comments were not just an attack on our colleagues, they were an attack on all immigrants and minorities, and on our fundamental values as a nation.

I opposed this procedural motion because this article of impeachment should have been referred to the House Judiciary Committee. One resolution related to impeachment has already been referred to the Committee. The subject matter of Congressman Green’s resolution was one of those issues that did not go directly to the issues of obstruction, corruption, and abuse of power at the core of our investigation—but it, too, should have been referred to us. My hope is that future impeachment resolutions be referred here as well, so that they can also be considered as part of the Committee’s overall response to clear allegations of presidential misconduct.

Today’s vote has no effect on that important work. Our investigation will continue, and we will hear directly from Special Counsel Mueller one week from today. I very much doubt that today will be the last action we must consider to hold President Trump accountable.
