The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. CUellar).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
October 17, 2019.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Henry Cuellar to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2019, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties. All time shall be equally allocated between the parties, and in no event shall debate continue beyond 11:50 a.m. Each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, shall be limited to 5 minutes.

HONORING ELIJAH CUMMINGS
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I have the sad task of announcing what probably most of you already know. We have lost a great American, a decent American, a wonderful Member of this body, ELIJAH CUMMINGS, who died early this morning of illnesses he had been suffering from for a significant period of time.

Members of the House, the people of Maryland, and the people of the United States of America woke up to this sad and shocking news that we had lost this dear friend, a devoted public servant, and a dedicated patriot, who reflected courtesy and respect for all.

At a time of confrontation, disagreement, anger, and, yes, sometimes hate, he was a beacon of civility, of fairness, and of justice. He was chairman of the Oversight and Reform Committee. He passed away too early at 68 years of age.

All of us who served with him knew his passion for justice; his sharp intellect, having graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Howard University, where he was president of the student government association; his wit; and his devotion to the cause of making government work for the people.

It will be surely said of ELIJAH that he worked hard until the very end. He was on a telephone call with all of us on Sunday talking about how we ought to proceed with the heavy duties that confronted him, his committee, and the Congress.

He never wavered in his dedication to the causes he made the hallmarks of his career, even in recent days when, as I said, his health was waning.

Those causes were equality and opportunity for all, the son of a sharecropper who rose to be a great leader in this country. He was concerned about voting rights, civil rights, alleviating poverty, establishing justice, and ensuring that those entrusted with high office are held accountable and carry out their responsibilities lawfully and ethically.

ELIJAH CUMMINGS was, of course, a true son of Baltimore, a city of grit and hope, a city of dreams and hard work. He was loved in the city of Baltimore. At a time of great distress in the city of Baltimore, it was ELIJAH CUMMINGS in the streets bringing calm and peace to that city.

His life will forever be an example to all of us of striving to better one’s community and one’s country, a passion and service to one’s fellow man and woman, and a perseverance in the face of adversity while in pursuit of making this country and the world a better place.

Whenever he believed we were falling short of the vision of our Founders—and many of you will hear this resonate in your ears—he would say to all of us in a loving way, as he said throughout our State at a time of trouble and difference: “We are better than this.”

As we see conflict, as we see people disparaging one another, we want to think to ourselves, “We are better than this,” and think of ELIJAH CUMMINGS, a man of great faith, of great humility, of great humanity, and of great service.

We will miss ELIJAH CUMMINGS. We are a lesser place for losing him. Like the prophet for whom he was named, he was taken from us too young, too soon, too suddenly. We can say, with Shakespeare: He should have died hereafter. Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow.

ELIJAH will not have those tomorrows, and we will not have them with him. We will miss him dearly.

My thoughts are with his wife, Maya, and his three children.

I offer my condolences to the people of Maryland’s Seventh Congressional District, who loved their Congressman. They had confidence in their Congressman, and they knew that he was, in fact, better, and they were better for his service.

May God bless ELIJAH CUMMINGS, his family, all of us, and this great country.

IMPEACHMENT
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) for 5 minutes.
Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, since I joined this body in January, I have done my darnedest to steer clear of the political circus that we see on a daily basis in Washington. Instead, I have worked with so many Members to pass legislation preventing child abuse and legislation that makes it easier for Americans to save for school and for their retirement. We have made progress, and I have been a key part of that progress in USMCA, in welfare reform, and in implementing the farm bill.

But, Mr. Speaker, the impeachment proceedings going on in this Chamber in the last few weeks have given me pause, and they should give pause to every Member of this Chamber and to all American people. I know—we all know—that some Members are for impeachment and others of us are opposed. But we should all admit that, by its very nature, impeachment is emotional, it is taxing, and it is divisive.

You are talking about removing our President from office. This is no small thing. This is changing the trajectory of this country.

Given how contentious and how important that proceeding is, we have an obligation to play by the rules and to have a process that is open, that is fair. Mr. Speaker, we are failing at that special obligation.

First, the Speaker has launched impeachment without a vote by this body, and that is unprecedented. Members have been denied their authority, their voice, their opportunity to be on the RECORD in that matter.

Let us be clear: Under the Constitution, the authority to launch impeachment rests with the U.S. House of Representatives, not with the Speaker and not with the chair of House intelligence.

Second, this proceeding has not been open and transparent. Instead, Members have been denied access to witness testimony and kicked out of preventing trees. There is no live streaming and there is no TV coverage as we have seen in past impeachments. The result is that Americans don’t have access to important facts because they can’t get them.

Finally, this proceeding has not been fair. In the past, Presidents have had an opportunity to have counsel present. Counsel has had an opportunity to cross-examine witnesses, and they have been given an opportunity to review the evidence and to prepare a defense instead of battling secondhand accounts of closed-door testimony selectively leaked to the media.

229 Members of this body have already announced that they are for impeachment even though the evidence is not fully gathered yet, and, in any case, they have not reviewed it. How is that fair?

Mr. Speaker, elections matter; transparency matters; due process matters; and faith in this Constitution, in our Constitution, and in institutions matter.

As I said, it is time that this body lives up to its special obligation. Our country deserves nothing less.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CUNNINGHAM) for 5 minutes.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the heroic actions of Captain Forrest Lampela, Captain Ken Dickenscheidt, Senior Airman Chris Bowers, Airman First Class Timothy Benn, and Technical Sergeant Nick Scarmeas, who broke diplomatic protocol and fought near-zero visibility to save the life of a U.S. Navy sailor who was wounded in combat.

The Joint Base Charleston crew was flying a critically injured sailor to Walter Reed Air Base in Germany. Halfway through their mission, the sailor took a turn for the worse and needed immediate surgery. The commander, Captain Lampela, made the decision to turn around and make an emergency landing in Shannon, Ireland, where the sailor had no diplomatic clearance.

In an incredibly stressful situation, the team fell back on their training and made a life-and-death decision that ultimately saved the life of their fellow service member. I am honored to commend them.

WARREN COUNTY BICENTENNIAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. THOMPSON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Warren County, Pennsylvania’s recent bicentennial.

In March of 1819, the Pennsylvania General Assembly approved legislation to establish Warren County. On October 1, later that year, the legislation became official, and Warren County became a part of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

This occasion was celebrated earlier this month at the Warren County Courthouse, with local leaders and live entertainment, including the Youngsville High School band. In addition to the remarks and performances, a time capsule was buried on the grounds.

As an avid outdoorsman, I am proud to call Warren County a part of my district, particularly for its beautiful natural landscapes. Home to a portion of the Allegheny National Forest, Warren County has beautiful outdoor spaces that rival much of the Commonwealth.

This bicentennial is an exciting occasion. I congratulate the Warren County bicentennial committee and the flowering of its bicentennial celebration.

COLLEGE AFFORDABILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mrs. HAYES) for 5 minutes.

Mrs. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend the chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor for his steadfast leadership of the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, and introduction of the College Affordability Act.

But I cannot do that without further recognizing my colleague and my friend, Chairman ELIJAH CUMMINGS, whose family was from South Carolina, Clarendon County, to be exact, which is the home of the Briggs v. Elliott case, one of the first cases challenging school segregation. He understood the power of a high-quality education, and I know that he would be so incredibly proud of this remarkable piece of legislation that is being introduced this week.

This is an achievement that reflects the priorities of the entire Democratic Caucus to expand opportunities and make college affordable and accessible for all students.

I am proud that this bill embraces and reflects my priorities in Congress, including the Pell Grant Restoration Act, the Teacher Debt Relief Act, the Teacher Diversity and Retention Act, and the Jumpstart on College Act.

These bills would respectively protect student aid of vulnerable students who have been defrauded; provide educators with much-needed student debt relief so that they can stay in the classroom; reinforce critical programs that help develop a diverse educator workforce; and provide robust investment in dual-enrollment classes that will lower the cost of a degree for students who need it most.

This bill is a year-long effort to level the playing field for every demographic of students across the country, from veteran students, to working parents; and from small family farmers, to public servants. It is for students hoping to become the first in their family to go to college and afford it.

This bill is for families who struggle to put enough in the bank for their children’s education. This bill is for students who struggle to fill out the overly complicated FAFSA; who struggle to earn degrees and keep the lights on while working and raising children; who utilize the Pell grant and other Federal aid to make it through, and still find themselves in debt.

My own journey reflects the challenges of navigating a system that simply is not built for everyone, of jumping through untenable hurdles to complete a degree. So it is deeply gratifying today to be part of the change that I so desperately needed as a student, to give a new, more diverse generation of students the supports they need to succeed.

The College Affordability Act would immediately lower the cost of college
Ron Greenleaf has been married to his wife, Dawn, for 47 years, and together, they have two daughters. He is known for his commitment to his family, attending countless practices, games, dance recitals, and plays of his grandchildren.

Following his retirement, Mr. Greenleaf ran for the Hannibal Village board, a position he was elected to in 1994, and served in for 10 years. He then ran for the position of town supervisor where he served seven terms. Leaving this position in 2017, Mr. Greenleaf went on to be elected as the mayor of Hannibal, a role he still holds today.

Of his many accomplishments as an elected official, Mr. Greenleaf has most notably worked to improve infrastructure and promote recreation in Hannibal. He has been praised as a driving force behind the popular Hannibal ramp park, a multiuse park for bikes, skateboards, and Rollerblades.

Aside from his work in public service, Mr. Greenleaf has spent much of his life in community service, donating his skills as an electrician to service, Mr. Greenleaf was recognized for his service to American and Vietnamese forces. Mr. Greenleaf has been a member of the VFW, Hannibal American Legion, and chairman of the 2013 Wounded Warrior Benefit. He has worked to assist and support his fellow veterans and minority-serving institutions.

A deeply patriotic man, Mr. Greenleaf has given several speeches at Memorial Day and Veterans Day ceremonies in and around Hannibal.

On several occasions, Mr. Greenleaf donated his time to assist with repairs for in-need neighbors. Devoted to his faith, for many years Mr. Greenleaf has been an active participant in the Hannibal United Methodist Church, serving as a trustee and youth group leader.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the House to join me in honoring Ronald K. Greenleaf. Serving in the military, contributing as an elected official, and volunteering in central New York, Mr. Greenleaf has spent the majority of his life serving others.

Our Nation and community need more people like Mr. Greenleaf, and we are inspired by and thankful for his commitment to public service.

HONORING THE LIFE OF ELIJAH CUMMINGS

Mr. KATKO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and passing of my friend, Elijah Cummings.

When I first came to Congress a few terms ago, I teamed up with Mr. Cummings to introduce a bill honoring the life and legacy of Harriet Tubman.

When I approached Mr. Cummings about this bill, he didn’t ask me what party I was in. He didn’t ask me what my political philosophies were. He didn’t care about partisanship. What he cared about is the fact that we had a common interest; that being, Harriet Tubman.

I always appreciated that and in the years that have passed since then, we continued to cosponsor that bill and continued to push it.

I am sad to hear of his passing, and I offer my prayers to his wife and family, and I pray that he is united with God right now. And I think going forward, we can all be happy and proud of the legacy he set for us here in Congress.

SECOND CHANCES

The Speaker pro tempore, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Budd) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BUDD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to discuss second chances. Across our Nation, one in three adults have an arrest or conviction that makes it difficult to find a job.

Kevin Miller, for example, who was incarcerated for 8 months in 1992 after a minor altercation with police officers.

Kevin was only 19 at the time, but more than a quarter century later, Kevin hasn’t been able to get a steady job because he must disclose his arrest on every job application.

Michael Mirsky faced similar hardships. He lost his job as a Verizon technician in 2012 after he pled guilty to resisting arrest during a disagreement over child support.

In the years following the incident, he faced foreclosure of his home, and even as the economy improved and more and more jobs became available, Mr. Mirsky was unable to find a permanent job and start rebuilding his life.

Mr. Speaker, stories like Kevin’s and Michael’s are all too common. In fact, more than 70 million Americans have minor criminal records that they must disclose on job applications. As a result, millions of Americans have been turned down from countless jobs for mistakes made decades ago.

The reluctance of employers to hire people with criminal records, combined with job applications that contain check-box measures, has detrimental effects on the economy and prevents millions of Americans from becoming productive members of society.

In addition, excluding people with minor criminal records from the workforce, often results in their return to crime and to drugs.

That is why I am proud to cosponsor the Fair Chance Act, which prohibits the Federal Government and Federal contractors from asking about a job applicant’s prior criminal record before the conditional offer of employment. This process humanizes applicants and gives them a chance to meet employers face to face and explain their past before employers make a sweeping judgment based on one checked box.

Mr. Speaker, America is a land of second chances. Barriers to employment should not follow a person long after they have served time, paid their debt to society, and started a new life.

People deserve the freedom to redeem themselves. Let us work with our colleagues go to conference over the NDAA, I urge them to include this legislation as part of any final deal.
HONORING SENATOR RICHARD LUGAR

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the memory of Senator Richard Lugar. Senator Lugar served Indiana and our country with distinction during his 36 years of service to this great country. He was a true statesman and served as an inspiration to countless others who will continue to carry on his legacy.

Senator Lugar was an essential part of American diplomacy and strove for peace throughout the globe. His last contributions and decades of service to this great country earned him the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Our Nation is stronger and safer because of Senator Lugar, and I thank my colleagues for supporting legislation to honor his legacy.

POSITIVE IMPACT OF U.S.-JAPAN TRADE DEAL

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to highlight the positive impact the new U.S.-Japan trade deal will have on our Nation and on the Hoosier State.

Japan is an important ally of the United States and a critical trading partner that benefits the Hoosier economy. Japan is heavily invested in the Hoosier State and in Indiana’s Sixth Congressional District.

Of the 19 counties in the Sixth District, Japan is currently invested in 14 of them. This trade deal will help increase those investments in our local communities, creating opportunities and jobs for many Hoosiers. In Congress, we must build upon this successful trade agreement President Trump has struck with our American people.

We can and we must pass the USMCA, which will increase opportunities for workers and farmers across the United States.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Rolls-Royce for the great work they are doing for Indiana and the United States.

MOURNING THE DEATH OF THE HONORABLE ELIJAH CUMMINGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland, Ms. LEES, for 5 minutes.

Ms. LEES. Mr. Speaker, today, we have lost an icon, the Honorable Elijah Cummings. His life legacy will be that he always spoke to peace. That is what I believe his life legacy will be, that he always wanted the best for America. He would always say to all of us, no matter what walk of life we were in, what background we came from, and what diverse part of America we represented, he would always say, “We are better than this.”

His faith in a higher power was without question, and that will be the strength that I have today, faith in a higher power.

May God bless him. May he rest and have a soul that is rested. May God bless his family, may God bless all those who loved him and his constituents, and may God bless the United States of America.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE October 17, 2019

CONGRATULATING WINCHESTER NEWS-GAZETTE ON SERVING HOOSIERS FOR 175 YEARS

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate the Winchester News-Gazette on their 175th year as a newspaper.

Previously called the Winchester Patriot, Hoosiers in Randolph County have relied on the News-Gazette for local news since 1844.

Local press is essential to a thriving community and is a prime example of the First Amendment in action.

CONGRATULATING MUNCIE-DELWARE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON 125 YEARS

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize the Muncie-Delaware Chamber of Commerce for celebrating their 125th anniversary.

The chamber has been an integral part of the greater Muncie community since 1894. Their strategy for engaging large, medium, and small businesses has been the driving factor behind the thriving economy in the city of Muncie and Delaware County.

CONGRATULATING THE MUNCIE-DELAWARE COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate the Muncie-Delaware County Chamber of Commerce for having more Rolls-Royce products than anywhere else in the world.

Rolls-Royce employs 4,000 Hoosiers, and in recent years, invested hundreds of millions of dollars to create world-class engines and products that are on the cutting edge of our national defense.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Rolls-Royce for the great work they are doing for Indiana and the United States.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until noon today.
Accordingly (at 10 o’clock and 35 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Langevin) at noon.

PRAYER

Pastor Phil Waldrep, Phil Waldrep Ministries, Decatur, Alabama, offered the following prayer:

Our Eternal God, today, we pause to thank You for Your blessings and to ask that You remind us that with these blessings come responsibilities.

So, we ask that You will quieten our hearts that we might find time to listen to the dreams of a child or the memories of an older adult.

Help us to find time to thank a teacher, or a veteran, or someone who puts their life at risk every day that we might be free.

Help us to find time to assist the families of military personnel and time to pray for the safety of their loved one.

Help us to find time to see the needs, and the gifts, and the worth of others.

O Lord, help us to find time to be Your hands and Your feet in a world that desperately needs love.

In Jesus’ name, amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Speaker pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Speaker pro tempore. Will the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Pappas) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. Pappas led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker pro tempore. Under clause 5(d) of rule XX, the Chair announces to the House that, in light of the passing of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Cummings), the whole number of the House is 432.

WELCOMING REVEREND PHIL WALDREP

The Speaker pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Brooks) is recognized for 1 minute.

There was no objection.

Mr. Brooks of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, it is a great privilege to welcome Reverend Phil Waldrep to the House of Representatives to serve as today’s guest chaplain.

Reverend Waldrep was born in Morgan County, Alabama, near Decatur, and began preaching when he was 14 years old.

He earned his bachelor of science degree from the University of Alabama and completed seminary at Luther Rice Theological Seminary in Georgia.

Through his ministries, Reverend Waldrep connects with audiences of all ages and sizes with his sense of humor, powerful illustrations, and Scriptural insight.

He is a frequent speaker at some of America’s largest churches and conferences and has been a vocational evangelist since 1975.

Phil and his wife, Debbie, live in Decatur, Alabama, and have two daughters who, with their husbands, actively serve in the ministry.

PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

(Mr. Pappas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. Pappas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of individuals across New Hampshire and the country who are struggling to afford the skyrocketing cost of prescription drugs.

Across my district, I hear from individuals each and every day about the significant burden and anxiety caused by the exorbitant costs of these prescriptions. That is why I introduced H.R. 4661, the Advancing Enrollment and Reducing Drug Costs Act, along with Representative Tonko.

This is an important addition to H.R. 3, the Lower Drug Costs Now Act of 2019, to expand seniors’ access to prescription drugs under Medicare part D.

This legislation will automatically enroll individuals in part D’s subsidy program, known as Extra Help, when they have aged out of Medicaid Expansion.

We must continue to ensure that seniors receive access to this earned benefit without having to navigate what can be a complicated process.

When seniors arrive at the pharmacy counter, they shouldn’t have to worry whether they can afford the medications they need to live with health and with dignity. This legislation is a step toward addressing this injustice, and I urge my colleagues to continue to support efforts to reduce the cost of prescription drugs in a bipartisan fashion and pass this legislation.

NATIONAL FARM TO SCHOOL MONTH

(Mr. Thompson of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. Thompson of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize October as National Farm to School Month.

The National Farm to School Network is an organization that strives to strengthen the relationship our Nation’s schools have with fresh, healthy foods from local farms.

The farm to school movement focuses on agriculture education in our schools and even encourages learning opportunities through school gardens, cooking lessons, and farm field trips to better connect students with where their food comes from. It also spurs market opportunities for local farmers and ranchers.

Healthy and nutritious food is important in all stages of life, but particularly for our Nation’s young people. In some unfortunate cases, the meals that students receive at school may be the only meal they eat during the day.

It is important that we do what we can to ensure schools have the resources they need to provide students with delicious and nutritious options.

LOWERING DRUG COSTS

(Mr. Cartwright asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. Cartwright. Mr. Speaker, I rise to say this: Americans are suffering from extortionate, skyrocketing drug prices, and this is unacceptable.

Between 2013 and 2016, 67 percent of Americans who had to file for bankruptcy did so because of enormous medical expenses. That is unacceptable.

Last year, in my home State of Pennsylvania alone, one in four individuals had to forgo medical care so they could pay their rent or put food on the table.

That is not a choice we can, in good conscience, allow them to have to make. It is unacceptable.

I am, therefore, proud to announce my support of the Lower Drug Costs Now Act, H.R. 3, landmark legislation which takes bold strides to lower prescription drug prices for all Americans.

On behalf of the families who demand and deserve drug pricing reform, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to ensure swift passage of this landmark, critical legislation.
HONORING THE LIFE OF WYMAN COPASS

(Mr. COMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the remarkable life led by my friend and former pastor, Dr. Wyman Copass. Wyman passed away on Friday, October 4, having lived an extraordinary life of 80 years. Wyman will live on in the memories of all who have had the privilege to know him.

For me, his influence lives on in the memory of his role in my salvation. As a graduate of Campbellsville University and Luther Rice Seminary, Dr. Copass oversaw a ministry spanning not only the Commonwealth of Kentucky, but also the breadth of the Nation.

While he enjoyed golfing, cooking, and gardening, his greatest passion was his family, whose love and devotion he cherished and returned in kind. His wife, of 62 years, Glenda; his daughter, Susan; and his son, Chris; as well as his five grandchildren undoubtedly consider themselves lucky to have had such an emblematic figure in their lives, just as I do.

Dr. Wyman Copass was a force for good in the First Congressional District of Kentucky, and his example and vision will be missed.

MEASURING REAL INCOME GROWTH

(Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, for years, our country’s prosperity was broadly shared. The difference between rich and poor wasn’t too big. When the economy grew, most Americans benefited. The saying was that “a rising tide lifts all boats.”

But today, income inequality is at its highest level in nearly a century. The top 1 percent take home about 20 percent of all income.

But this story is not being told by economic indicators like GDP. GDP tells us how fast or slow our economy is growing, but not how that growth is spread across income levels.

I am working to change that. The Joint Economic Committee, where I serve as vice chair, held a hearing this week to examine proposed measures to track inequality. These new measures are included in my legislation, the Measuring Real Income Growth Act.

Under my bill, GDP growth will be analyzed by income level. It will tell us who this economy is working for and who is left behind, and it will help us craft policies to start reducing inequality so a rising tide really does lift all boats.

REMEMBERING WES BARR

(Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, this is a tough one today. I rise to remember Sheriff Wes Barr, who passed away on October 1. Wes was a beloved member of the Springfield community, who impacted many through his law enforcement career and charity work.

Wes’ story is one of true American spirit. He lived in the former John Jay house in Springfield until he was 13. After graduating from Southeast High School, Wes enlisted in the United States Marine Corps.

Afterwards, he served as a correctional officer before he began his career in law enforcement. He served as an officer in Loami, Illiopolis, and Chatham before joining the Sangamon County Sheriff’s Office in 1991, eventually serving his one term, where I got to serve with him, as sheriff from 2014 to 2018.

Wes and his wife, Sherry, are well known for their generous hearts and extensive charity work with several organizations. For years, and where I first met Wes, Wes led the local Toys for Tots drive, collecting thousands of toys for children in need.

In every aspect of his life, Wes put others before himself. He lived to serve others and, for so many, he was a role model and a mentor. Wes had a compassion for people and a determination to give back to his community. Words cannot describe how much he will be missed.

The thoughts and prayers of Shannon and me are with the entire central Illinois community and especially his wife, Sherry, during this difficult time.

HONORING ED DIAZ

(Mr. SPANO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SPANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor a great American, World War II veteran Seaman First Class Ed Diaz.

Mr. Diaz, a native of New York, enlisted in the Navy in 1944 and was subsequently assigned to the USS Columbus heavy cruiser. During World War II, he served in the South Pacific and participated in Operation Road’s End, a campaign in which 24 Japanese submarines were sunk and which led to the final destruction of Japan’s submarine fleet.

Mr. Diaz was discharged after the war but continued to serve in the Naval Reserve for another decade. He later worked as a machinist in Pennsylvania until a promotion relocated him to the heart of Florida District 15. In total, he served with Hazleton Pumps for 42 years.

Like many from the Greatest Generation, Seaman First Class Ed Diaz humbly and sacrificially served this country in one of its darkest hours. He looked evil in the eye and stood up to it in the name of democracy and freedom.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Mr. Diaz for his service and his dedication. He showed us how to live and gave our State and Nation a better future. Today I salute him.

IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY

(Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to shed light on House Democrats’ impeachment inquiry, a scheme that has been devised in the dark.

From day one of this Congress, my colleagues have sought to use their new majority to undermine President Trump every step of the way. The majority has chosen to break precedent and violate Republicans of the ability to do our job.

Today, I went down to the SCIF to read the classified Volker testimony for myself, and, sadly, I was turned away. It is remarkable that elected officials have been blocked from reading material, parts of which have already been leaked to the press in selective and incomplete pieces. Simply, this is wrong.

The House of Representatives has been reduced to obstruction over a perpetual Ground Hog Day cycle of re-litigating the 2016 election.

For the sake of our Nation, it is time to remove what the obstacles we face are and return to our constitutional duty of being legislators.

SEC DISCLOSURE EFFECTIVENESS TESTING ACT

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 1815, and to insert extraneous material thereon.

The Speaker [Mr. CARTWRIGHT]. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

The Speaker appoints the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) to preside over the Committee of the Whole.

The Chair appoints the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) to preside over the Committee of the Whole.

GENERAL LEAVE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 1815) to require the Securities and Exchange Commission, when developing rules and regulations about disclosures to retail investors, to conduct investor testing, including a survey and interviews of retail investors, and for other purposes, with Mr. LANGEVIN in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Chair. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered read the first time.

General debate shall be confined to the bill and amendments specified in the first section of House Resolution 629 and shall not exceed 1 hour equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services.

The gentleman from California (Ms. WATERS) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HUIZENGA) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 1815, the SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act crafted by Representative CASTEN from Illinois, a Member of Congress and member of the Financial Services Committee.

H.R. 1815 requires the Securities and Exchange Commission to test its disclosure documents with retail investors through one-on-one interviews and surveys to ensure that these documents are actually understood by their target audience.

The SEC’s approach to protecting retail investors from conflicts of interest and other risks has been based on implementing them through disclosure. This is a problem when those disclosures are written in a way that retail investors don’t understand.

Since at least 2012, when the SEC conducted a financial literacy study, we have known that many of the disclosures intended for retail investors are not well-understood by those investors.

While the public has the opportunity to comment on most rulemakings or new disclosures, these comments are largely from well-funded industry representatives, rather than the mom-and-pop investors who will be receiving these new disclosures.

H.R. 1815 provides that the SEC gets the input it needs from retail investors on disclosure forms by requiring the SEC to test those forms and engage in qualitative one-on-one interviews and nationwide surveys.

Investor testing has been embraced by both Democratic and Republican commissioners at the SEC. In addition, the SEC itself has been engaged in investor testing in several instances, including most recently in 2018, when it tested a proposed disclosure for brokers and investment advisers to provide to retail investors known as Form Client Relationship Summary, that is, CRS.

This proposed five-page disclosure was intended to help retail investors understand the obligations owed and services provided by investment professionals, as well as the fees and costs that could affect their investment accounts.

To ensure that retail investors are able to use Form CRS as intended, the SEC conducted a nationwide online survey of 1,800 individuals and 31 qualitative, in-depth interviews in Denver and Pittsburgh. The mixed results of the SEC’s testing of Form CRS showed that changes and possibly more testing were necessary.

Unfortunately, in that instance, the SEC did not engage in the robust, iterative investor testing that H.R. 1815 would require, and finalized a vague disclosure.

H.R. 1815 would require the SEC to go back and review and test existing disclosures like Form CRS and determine whether changes should be made. This review of existing documents is particularly important as the capital markets, investor behaviors, and investing trends change.

In addition to the SEC, other regulators like the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau and the Federal Trade Commission also engage in usability testing of their disclosures.

H.R. 1815 builds on the efforts of the SEC by requiring the Commission to engage in a similar iterative process for all existing or future disclosure, intended to help retail investors make informed investment decisions.

I thank Representative CASTEN for putting forth this commonsense piece of legislation that will help investors make better, more informed investment decisions regarding their hard-earned earnings.

Mr. Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chair, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chair, I rise in opposition to H.R. 1815, the SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act of 2019.

Mr. Chair, Democrats claim that this bill would “build on” engage in investor testing by requiring the SEC to conduct usability testing of any new disclosure.”

If my friends on the other side really wanted to build on efforts to engage in investor testing, I believe they would have worked with Republicans on the committee and the Securities and Exchange Commission to craft a bill that would actually be signed into law. Unfortunately, this bill is a deliberate effort to not only delay the SEC’s rulemaking on Regulation Best Interest and Form CRS, but it is also an effort to tie the SEC’s hands with regard to future disclosure rulemakings and may have an effect even on past rulemakings.

In fact, what the bill’s author won’t tell you is that the SEC already conducted investor testing on the very disclosure regulation Democrats are targeting with this particular bill. With Reg BI, 1,800 Main Street investors nationwide were surveyed about the regulation. There were 31 one-on-one, in-depth interviews with retail investors.

Seven roundtables were held that the SEC gained input from. Finally, more than 6,600 comment letters were received by the SEC before they actually put together the Reg BI.

The Securities and Exchange Commission collected all this, analyzed the information from all of those sources, and very carefully crafted what had been very contentious and, frankly, outside the bounds of what had normally been accepted with Regulation Best Interest by having the Department of Labor try to drive this rather than the Securities and Exchange Commission. I believe that they have a good product.

The SEC used this information to adopt a workable regulation all without the help—or the so-called help—of H.R. 1815. So what does the final rulemaking package on Reg BI and Form CRS accomplish?

It raises the standard of care owed by broker-dealers to retail investors, and that, at the end of the day, is what this is all about. It is a standard that we always needed to be addressed.

But why make the SEC do it again and further delay a rulemaking that makes significant improvements for Main Street investors? It is a rule that is in place. I can only surmise it is because my friends on the other side didn’t like the outcome and didn’t like what they heard in that investor testing.

Not only did they not like the current rules for Reg BI and Form CRS, but my friends on the other side of the aisle want to tie the SEC’s hands in future disclosure rulemaking. They accomplish this by requiring investor testing for documents and information that are relied on or “substantially likely to be materially relied upon by retail investors.”

Now, I don’t know what that phrase means. Here is why I don’t know what that phrase means: It is because it wasn’t in the version of the bill reported out of the committee. That is a phrase thrown in at the last minute by my friends on the other side of the aisle.

If that weren’t enough, the bill targets the SEC’s previous disclosure rulemaking. H.R. 1815 requires the SEC to retroactively conduct investor testing on similar disclosure rulemakings that were finalized before enactment of this bill. This means disclosure rules finalized 5, 10, 15, maybe even 20 years ago could be captured and will be captured by this bill.

Finally, if subjecting past and future disclosure rulemakings to investor testing weren’t enough, the bill captures the SEC rulemaking. H.R. 1815 creates a bureaucratic loop by requiring the SEC to conduct investor testing if substantive changes are made to a proposed rulemaking, and those changes are uncontested before the rules are finalized.

What does this bill mean for everyday investors? It means more bureaucracy. It means less certainty. Certainly, it does not speed up what all agree is an issue that needs to be addressed. And there is no doubt that investor testing is an effective tool for designing smart, workable regulatory frameworks to benefit the Main Street investor. It can help craft disclosures and information that everyday investors can actually understand and use. It does not have to come in the form of a mandate.

This bill is not only a delay tactic, but it will drastically undermine the ability of the SEC to do its primary job of protecting investors.

Under the last administration, that is all we heard about on the committee. I have been on the subcommittee that handles this, and all we heard was how Congress was under-cutting the Securities and Exchange Commission, that it wasn’t supporting it enough and wasn’t allowing it to do its job.

What are my friends now doing? The exact thing that they were complaining about.

By delaying it or in some cases pre-venting the SEC from finalizing rules intended to protect investors and diverting resources from cybersecurity and enforcement actions, Main Street investors that this bill claims to serve will only be harmed.

I am confident the SEC can and will devote the utmost attention and consideration to help everyday American investors without this particular bill.

Mr. Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chair, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CASTEN), who will correct all the misstatements that were just made by the gentleman from Michigan. Representative CASTEN is the sponsor of the bill.

Mr. CASTEN of Illinois, Mr. Chair, I rise in support of my bill, H.R. 1815, the SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act. I thank Chairwoman WATERS and Subcommittee Chair MALONEY for their leadership on the Financial Services Committee and their unwavering dedication to protecting investors.

We are not here to re-litigate the proper duty that brokers owe to investors. Instead, this bill is about making sure that disclosure documents convey information to investors effectively, much more. It is because those disclosure warning labels in ancient Greek, yet we too often allow disclosure documents—say, for conflicts of interest—to be written in jargon that is unintelligible to anyone without a law degree. Simply relying on a box of disclosure forms is not enough. We have also to make sure that information is understood.

Whether it is buying a house, sending your kid to college, investing in your retirement, or just saving for a rainy day, the American Dream depends on our ability to invest in our future. This bill protects Americans by doing pretty basic market research to ensure that what is required disclosures can be understood by the average investor. Disclosures are already legally mandated to disclose information about fees, comparisons of investment advisory services, conflicts of interest, and much more, but just because those forms are provided to investors doesn’t mean that investors understand them.

As we all know, the biggest lie on the internet is that “I have read and understand the terms and conditions.” So that is why this bill would have companies post warnings labels that say in multiple peer-reviewed papers, scientists have found that prolonged exposure to cigarette smoke increases your risk to certain types of cancers, and those results are less than 5 percent likely to have been the result of sampling error.

Nobody would understand that. We say, “Smoking kills,” because our job is to communicate. We would be delinquent if we weren’t equally clear in this case.

We are talking about disclosures like Form CRS that would require financial professionals to deliver to their retail customers a short and simple disclosure form to clarify the scope of their customers’ relationship and companies who offer them financial services.

A consumer disclosure has to do more than just provide facts. If an investor doesn’t understand what is being disclosed, then we cannot say that anything was truly disclosed. We must make sure that investors know what is being disclosed, and that is what this bill does.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chair, I yield the gentleman an additional 1 minute.

Mr. CASTEN of Illinois, do you have a mandate on high to dictate to the SEC what the disclosures should say but rather says that it must do qualitative interviews to confirm that investors understand the disclosure. That is why the AARP has endorsed the bill, as well as the Consumer Federation of America, and the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards.

This is a narrowly tailored bill that applies to a number of disclosures that Main Street retail investors rely on. It does not apply to disclosures that are relied on primarily by sophisticated institutional investors.

In other words, consumers want these disclosures. Qualitative testing shows what they are getting is not informing them properly, and that is why this bill is so important.

The SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act would build on SEC’s investor testing efforts and require the agency to engage in a robust iterative process for any existing or future disclosures intended to help retail investors make investment decisions.

Specifically, the bill anticipates that the SEC will test those documents used by retail investors when selecting an investment professional to work with, assessing an investment recommendation, or deciding to purchase or sell a security. This would include testing of, for example, brokers’ trade confirmation statements and investment advisers’ brochures that detail business practices, fees, conflicts of interest, and a number of other things.

In short, if we are going to rely on disclosures, we need to make sure the disclosures work.

We use market research to convey simple and important messages. Take a box of cigarettes that says that in multiple peer-reviewed papers, scientists have found that prolonged exposure to cigarette smoke increases your risk to certain types of cancers, and those results are less than 5 percent likely to have been the result of sampling error.

Nobody would understand that. We say, “Smoking kills,” because our job is to communicate. We would be delinquent if we weren’t equally clear in this case.

We are talking about disclosures like Form CRS that would require financial professionals to deliver to their retail customers a short and simple disclosure form to clarify the scope of their customers’ relationship and companies who offer them financial services.

A consumer disclosure has to do more than just provide facts. If an investor doesn’t understand what is being disclosed, then we cannot say that anything was truly disclosed. We must make sure that investors know what is being disclosed, and that is what this bill does.

The CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chair, I yield the gentleman an additional 1 minute.

Mr. CASTEN of Illinois, do you have a mandate on high to dictate to the SEC what the disclosures should say but rather says that it must do qualitative interviews to confirm that investors understand the disclosure. That is why the AARP has endorsed the bill, as well as the Consumer Federation of America, and the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards.

This is a narrowly tailored bill that applies to a number of disclosures that Main Street retail investors rely on. It does not apply to disclosures that are relied on primarily by sophisticated institutional investors.
When I was growing up, there was an ad on television for a discount menswear store called Sym's. At the end of every commercial, their president, Sy Sym's, would say, "An educated consumer is our best customer." We old-timers were taught to the American people, and I urge my colleagues to vote "yes."

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chair, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. HOLLINGSWORTH), who is the vice ranking member of the subcommittee.

Mr. HOLLINGSWORTH. Mr. Chair, I rise in opposition to the bill being discussed today. While I appreciate my good friend Mr. CASTEN's effort on the bill, the problem is in the details. While he clearly stated that this is a narrowly tailored bill, the reality is that a casual counting of SEC-promulgated rules yields over 600 rules that this would apply to. At 6 months of testing each, that is over 300 years' worth of testing—300 years. Our Republic hasn't been in existence for 300 years.

What I hear from Hoosiers back home is they are tired of our regulators being distracted and going back and looking at the history, and what they want to be focused on is how they protect investors going forward.

As Mr. CASTEN and I have discussed before, I think we share those laudable aims about ensuring that disclosures truly convey the information we want them to convey, but this bill doesn't do that.

This bill distracts the SEC from the necessary work on regulating our markets and protecting our investors by going back and doing hundreds of investor tests on over 600 different SEC-promulgated rules. Because of that, I will oppose the bill.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chair, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Ms. CAROLYN B. MALONEY), who is the chairwoman for the Subcommittee on Investor Protection, Entrepreneurship, and Capital Markets.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, under Director Cordray, engaged in extensive consumer testing and listened to feedback. It was clear that it was no longer proposing for prepaid cards. It came up with two different proposed disclosure forms and then field-tested the two forms for months before finalizing the prepaid card rule. That is the kind of data-driven approach that helps consumers, investors, and, ultimately, all market participants because it improves trust in the entire financial markets.

Mr. Chair, I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. WAGNER), who has had extensive history and experience with this particular issue at the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Mrs. WAGNER. Mr. Chair, I thank the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HUIZENGA) for yielding his time. He has been a terrific leader on capital markets and has been serving in his capacity as we try and work hard for that low- and middle-income investor, that Main Street investor who is so important that we finally get some regulation and some guidance in place that is going to make sure that they are getting the information they need to help them make good investment and savings decisions that are truly in the best interest of that consumer. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HUIZENGA), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Investor Protection, Entrepreneurship, and Capital Markets, is absolutely right.

Since my very first year in Congress 7 years ago, I have been fighting for that Main Street investor. I have been fighting to make sure that the best interest of the investor is in place. This is not about Wall Street; it is about Main Street. It is about taking care of the low- and middle-income consumer. And the SEC has been dealing with this fiduciary rule and with the best interest standard for years and years and years.

Mr. Chairman, we have studied it. We have had countless comment periods. It has been litigated. The investor testing has been done. Years and years have gone into this moment where the SEC is finally ready and has, in fact, moved forward with the best interest standard.

The difficulty with this piece of legislation, H.R. 1815, is it is, frankly, just a political ploy. Mr. Chairman, a political ploy that is an attempt to stop the rule in its tracks, one that is going to take care of those that need the kind of support from their broker-dealer the most.

It is important that we finally have this issue back in the jurisdiction of the SEC where it belongs. It is time that this rule move forward and that we look out—all of us—for the best interest of our retail investors. Let's let this go forward and stop the political ploys.

Mr. FOSTER. Mr. Chair, I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), the chairwoman, for yielding. Mr. Chair, I rise in support of H.R. 1815, which would simply require the SEC to conduct investor testing when developing rules and regulations about disclosures to retail investors.

Creating effective disclosures is often a difficult task and requires development with consumers. It is a complex and technical task in its nature. These disclosures are meant to be clear and concise so that retail investors understand the scope of their relationships with brokers and investment advisers and important decisions regarding their investments.

The SEC has had evidence since at least 2012, when it conducted a facilitating informed decisionmaking study of the disclosure documents that we currently rely on are not well understood by those investors. This includes cost disclosures that don't clearly convey costs, risk disclosures that don't clearly convey risks, and conflict disclosures that do not clearly convey the nature and the impact of these conflicts.

Effective disclosure testing is imperative for facilitating informed decisionmaking on the part of consumers who are trying to save and invest their hard-earned money, and that is why the AARP and many other groups have endorsed H.R. 1815.

Requiring qualified testing in the form of one-on-one cognitive interviews of investors, it provides a deeper look into how typical retail investors synthesize information. If investors understand key differences in firms' conflicts, obligations, and revenue models, then more retail investors will receive and interpret correctly the professional guidance that is right for them.
The framework laid out here will increase transparency and access to critical and understandable information, as well as facilitate informed decision-making for Americans making investment decisions and saving for their retirement. This should be accomplished without delay.

Mr. Chair, I urge a ‘yes’ vote on H.R. 1815.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I include in the RECORD the following letter:

An October 16, 2019, letter from the SIFMA expressing support for both of my amendments that exempt Regulation Best Interest and Form CRS from the bill’s requirements, and the gentle- men’s amendment, which would make the bill effective beginning on January 21, 2021, and apply only to future rulemaking:

An October 16, 2019, letter from SIFMA opposing H.R. 1815, and also, an October 16, 2019, letter from House and Leader McCARTHY from ACLI, FSI, IPA, IRI, ICI, NAIFA, SIFMA, and the Chamber of Commerce expressing concern with H.R. 1815 and the negative impact it would have on retail investors.

As we are starting to have discussion on these particular amendments, I look forward to my friends across the aisle who are saying that the bill does not change any of the current situation, I look forward to them potentially supporting these amendments.

SIFMA. October 16, 2019.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY: The Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association (SIFMA) appreciates the opportunity to comment on two of the amendments made in order by the Rules Committee to H.R. 1815, the “SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act.” This legislation would amend the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) to establish investor testing requirements for all past and future regulations, with some exceptions, about disclosure to retail investors.

The amendment offered by Representative Huizenga would exempt Form CRS from the bill’s retrospective investor testing requirements. In the development of the Regulation Best Interest rulemaking package (commonly referred to as “Reg BI”), the SEC conducted extensive investor testing from Form CRS. The SEC’s testing involved both a comprehensive national survey to collect information on the opinions, preferences, attitudes, and level of self-assessed comprehension of the Form CRS, as well as qualitative interviews to obtain further insight into individuals’ attitudes toward the Form CRS. We support Rep. Huizenga’s amendment, as further testing of Form CRS would unduly interfere with and delay the implementation process which is already well underway.

Reg BI’s amendment would apply the bill’s investor testing requirements only to applicable disclosure documents developed after January 21, 2021. Based on the heightened need to provide clear and understandable disclosures, and we agree that in many cases, investor testing which have been fully effective since September 10, 2019, with a compliance date of June 30, 2020, SIFMA supports the Wagner amendment. We believe the underlying legislation would appropriately enhance the implementation of a new set of sweeping regulations that would provide strong investor and consumer protections for 43 million households. SIFMA appreciates and shares the interest of Representative Casten and the Committee on Financial Services in advocating for robust investor testing of retail investor disclosures. We agree that in many cases, investor testing is appropriate and makes sense. We believe disclosures are designed to give the investor public the information they need to make informed financial decisions but could be held up in an endless loop of repeated testing if the underlying bill is enacted. SIFMA therefore supports the proposed amendment offered by Representatives Huizenga and Wagner, which improve the legislation and offer a better approach to investor testing.

We appreciate the opportunity to comment and we appreciate your consideration of our views. If you have any questions or require any additional information, please feel free to contact us.

Sincerely,

SIFMA. October 16, 2019.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY: The Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association (SIFMA) appreciates the opportunity to comment on H.R. 1815, the “SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act.” This legislation would amend the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) to establish investor testing requirements for all past and future broker-dealer regulations, with some exceptions, about disclosure to retail investors.

SIFMA appreciates and shares the interest of Representative Casten and the Committee on Financial Services in advocating for robust investor testing of retail investor disclosures. We agree that in many cases, investor testing of retail investor disclosures makes good common sense. In fact, the SEC conducted extensive investor testing of the proposed Form CRS, an important component of the Regulation Best Interest rulemaking package (collectively, “Reg BI”)—the most comprehensive enhancement of standard of conduct rules governing broker-dealers since the enactment of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. The SEC’s testing involved both a comprehensive national survey to collect information on the opinions, preferences, attitudes, and level of self-assessed comprehension of the Form CRS, as well as qualitative interviews to obtain further insights related to the reasoning and beliefs behind individuals’ attitudes toward the Form CRS. Reg BI has been fully effective since September 10, 2019, and has a compliance date of June 30, 2020. Further testing of Reg BI would unduly delay the implementation process which is already well underway. Ultimately, the bill would divert valuable and limited regulatory resources and thereby undermine the roll-out of a significantly strengthened best interest standard of conduct designed to better protect and serve retail investors.

Over the past several months, the SEC and FINRA have been working diligently to assist financial services firms in answering Reg BI’s retrospective questions and developing Reg BI compliance programs. Last month, the SEC published a small entity compliance guide to Reg BI. Just last week, FINRA published its Reg BI compliance checklist and announced additional resources to aid firms in compliance.

Based on our firm belief in the heightened strength of the new Reg BI conduct standard and its value to everyday investors, SIFMA respectfully opposes H.R. 1815. We believe the bill would likely unnecessarily delay the implementation of historically new set of regulations that would provide strong investor and consumer protections for forty-three million households. SIFMA has long supported enhancing the standard of conduct applicable to broker-dealers when providing personalized investment advice about securities to retail investors and we believe the SEC has succeed in accomplishing this important goal through Reg BI.

Further, enactment of the bill as written, despite the carve outs listed in the manager’s amendment, will subject other rules to the same investor testing requirement for all past and future regulations, with some exceptions, about disclosure to retail investors. These disclosures are designed to give the investor public the information they need to make informed financial choices but could be held up in an endless loop of repeated testing under the bill. While we understand and appreciate that this was likely not the Committee’s intent or purpose, we believe that imposing such a requirement would likely result in an unprecedented, costly, resource intensive undertaking by the SEC.

We appreciate the opportunity to comment and we appreciate your consideration of our views. If you have any questions or require any additional information, please feel free to contact us.

Sincerely,

OCTOBER 16, 2019.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI, Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. KEVIN MCCARTHY, Minority Leader, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY: The undersigned associations, representing investment advisers, broker-dealers firms, life insurers and their financial professionals as well as registered investment companies, appreciate the opportunity to comment on H.R. 1815, the “SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act,” which would impose on the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) an investor testing requirement for all past and future regulations, with some exceptions, about disclosure to retail investors.

We appreciate the opportunity to comment and we appreciate your consideration of our views. If you have any questions or require any additional information, please feel free to contact us.

Sincerely,
makes good common sense. However, we are concerned that this legislation will have an immediate negative impact on retail consumers as it would interfere with the implementation of Regulation Best Interest rulemaking package (collectively, “Reg BI”)—the most comprehensive enhancement of standard of conduct rules governing broker-dealers since the enactment of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. This result is nonsensical—as investor testing was part of SEC’s Reg BI rulemaking promulgation. Specifically, the SEC conducted extensive investor testing of the proposed Form CRS, an important component of the Regulation Best Interest rulemaking package. The SEC’s testing was conducted through a comprehensive national survey as well as qualitative interviews with investors.

Reg BI has been fully effective since September 19, 2019 and has a compliance date of June 30, 2020. Financial services firms have spent months developing Reg BI compliance programs, and further testing of Reg BI would unduly interfere with and delay this ongoing implementation process. Based on our firm belief in the heightened strength of the Reg BI conduct standards that will better protect for more than a million households, we respectfully oppose H.R. 1815.

Further, despite the carve outs in the manager’s amendment of the bill, as written will subject other rules regarding disclosure to retail investors to retroactive review and testing. These rules include, among others, disclosure requirements that are designed to give consumers the information they need to make informed investment decisions. Under H.R. 1815, however, these existing rules would be held up in an endless iterative loop of repeated testing.

In addition, with respect to future rulemakings, the SEC is well-positioned to determine the most efficient way to test and support their disclosure related rulemakings. The SEC conducting investor testing may or may not be appropriate, depending on the rulemaking. For each rulemaking, however, the SEC is required to seek public comment; the comment period is intended to get public input, including from investors and entities that represent investors and entities that regularly engage with investors. In this way, the SEC is able to get real insights into what may or may not work well for investors. H.R. 1815 may impede rulemakings intended to provide valuable information to investors, a cost that exceeds its possible benefits.

We urge you to take the opportunity to comment and your consideration of our views. If you have any questions or require any additional information, please feel free to contact us.

Mr. HUIZENGA, Mr. Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. Waters, Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 1815 is a commonsense bill that is supported by our Nation’s seniors, investment advisers, and investor advocates. Here is what they have said about the bill:

According to AARP, they wrote: “AARP, on behalf of nearly 38 million members, is pleased to endorse H.R. 1815, which would require the Securities and Exchange Commission to conduct investor testing when developing rules and regulations about disclosures to retail investors. Investor testing of retail investor disclosures will assist investors in getting the information they need to make informed choices about their hard-earned savings.”

According to the Financial Planning Coalition, “The coalition believes that H.R. 1815 would provide the statutory framework necessary for the SEC to ensure Congress and Main Street investors that disclosures required under existing rules are adequately and reasonably tested by the SEC and are reasonably effective in achieving their intended purpose.”

According to the Consumer Federation of America: “Disclosure is both an important investor protection tool and a regulatory requirement that imposes significant cost on industry. We, therefore, have an obligation to make those disclosures as effective as possible. H.R. 1815 would help to achieve that goal by updating the SEC’s approach to disclosure testing. Those who support commonsense, evidence-based regulation should support this legislation.”

Mr. Chair, before reserving the balance of my time, I include in the record correspondence from the Financial Planning Coalition, the AARP, and the CFA that is the Consumer Federation of America.

FINANCIAL PLANNING COALITION, October 11, 2019.
Re Support for H.R. 1815, the “SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act”.

DEAR MEMBER OF CONGRESS: On behalf of the Financial Planning Coalition (Coalition), we are writing to express our strong support for H.R. 1815, the “SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act.” We encourage you to support the legislation when it is considered on the House floor in the coming week.

A fundamental public policy goal of the federal securities laws is to ensure full and adequate disclosure of “material” information to American investors. The expectation is that the disclosure will assist investors in making an informed investment decision. Given this, we appreciate the work the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission’s (SEC) Office of the Investor Advocate has done to identify and confront the challenges to improve investor disclosure.

Research conducted on behalf of AARP, Consumer Federation of America and the Coalition organizations, as well as separate research conducted by the SEC, all highlight the challenges investors face in developing clear, understandable investor disclosures. Information about financial issues and investments is often complex and technical in nature. Moreover, the quality of this information typically is poor. All too often, mandated disclosures contain technical language and concepts that, as research confirms, are confusing to or misunderstood by investors. Indeed, research studies prove time and again how difficult it is to convey even the most basic financial and investment concepts in a way that typical Main Street investors understand.

To determine whether proposed investor disclosures would be effective at achieving their regulatory purpose of informing investor decision-making, it is not enough simply to survey investors’ general likes or preferences. Thorough and adequate investor testing must go beyond that and, more importantly, must assess investors’ ability to integrate information into a rational evaluation. This involves a more complex and higher-level cognitive skill. Thorough and adequate cognitive testing is the only proven way to determine whether a proposed disclosure document will achieve its intended purpose.

For these reasons, we are particularly pleased that the proposed legislation includes a requirement for qualitative testing in the form of one-on-one cognitive interviews of investors. A deeper look into the way investors analyze and synthesize information is necessary to determine the usefulness and effectiveness of the proposed disclosure document in an investor’s decision-making process.

The Coalition believes that H.R. 1815 will provide the statutory framework necessary for the SEC to ensure Congress and Main Street investors that disclosures required under SEC rules have been thoroughly and adequately tested by the SEC and are reasonably effective in achieving their intended purpose.

The legislation to be considered on the House floor appropriately clarifies that the scope of testing is limited to those disclosures that are intended to be used by retail investors in choosing a financial professional or investment product. The modified legislation to be considered on the House floor makes additional important clarifications that the Coalition supports.

For a ‘Yes’ vote when the legislation comes up for a vote on the House floor.

Sincerely,

KEVIN R. KELLER, CAE, Chief Executive Officer, CFP Board.
LAUREN SCHADLE, CAE, Executive Director/CEO, FPA.
GROFFREY BROWN, CAE, Chief Executive Officer, NAIFA.

AARP® Washington, DC, October 15, 2019.

HOR. MAXINE WATERS, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRWOMAN WATERS: AARP®, on behalf of nearly 38 million members and millions of older Americans nationwide, is pleased to endorse H.R. 1815, which would require the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) to conduct investor testing of rules and regulations about disclosures to retail investors. Robust investor testing of retail investor disclosures will assist investors in making the information they need to make informed choices about their hard-earned savings.

AARP® has a long history of fighting for investor protections and is especially eager to provide clarity and transparency to the often confusing and overly complicated investment world. AARP® has been encouraged by the value of investor testing to provide individuals with meaningful information needed for financial decision-making. In response to the Commission’s Release G37-2019, Summary (CRS) disclosure forms, AARP® commissioned two, independent rounds of research and testing to gauge retail investor understanding. The findings provided valuable information that helped guide our recommendations for design and content modifications, consumer understanding.

AARP believes that such retail testing should be utilized extensively by the SEC for the development of effective, consumer-friendly disclosure requirements. AARP appreciates that creating effective disclosure is often a difficult and daunting task. And that the value of ineffective disclosures can be poor investment decisions and inadequate levels of retirement savings. We believe testing is imperative in improving information on the part of consumers trying to make informed decisions on securities that are often complex and daunting.

We look forward to working with you and your team in the Office of Investor Advocate and access to critical and understandable information that helped guide our recommendations for design and content modifications. The findings provided valuable insights that were devotion to testing the disclosure effectiveness and failure to adopt best practices would help to ensure that the SEC’s approach to disclosure development.

I am afraid that H.R. 1815 here does the exact opposite. It is going to make it even more murky than what it had been previously. I just want to urge my colleagues to consider this through, what they are proposing to do to the Securities and Exchange Commission, the power of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

And again, my first term was spent listening to how the Republicans “were trying to destroy the Securities Exchange Commission” by not funding them enough, by not allowing them to do their job, by not allowing the appointees do what their backgrounds and expertise would allow them to do. I never bought that charge, Mr. Chairman, because it simply wasn’t true.

But we can see clearly, right now, this is a delaying tactic by the opposition; and how we would put not just current rulemaking, not just future rulemaking, but even past rulemaking back into this system would simply be a huge mistake.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to oppose this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.
H.R. 1815

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “SEC Disclosure Effectiveness Testing Act”.

above while maintaining full accessibility by re-this bill, as amended, shall be in order except those printed in part B of House Report 116–237. Each such further amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report as a proper person to offer, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an op-opponent, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. HUIZENGA

The CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as fol-

The CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 629, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HUIZENGA) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, my amendment is very simple. It would add Form CRS to the list of exempted disclosures that would not require SEC investor testing. They have gone through it.

Now, you just heard one of my colleagues talk about why somebody would oppose this. I can tell you why somebody would oppose this: Because we have been doing it for 7 years.

For 7 years Reg BI has been debated.
It has been litigated. It has been confusing. And it is time to move forward.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has done that.

So, as the author of the bill the earerlier had said, Mr. Chair, that he was not interested in relitigating current rulemaking. Now is the time to show that. Now is the time to prove that.

Support my amendment.

So, Form CRS was part of the Regulation Best Interest rulemaking package. The form is a short, plain- language description of an investor-adviser or a broker-dealer’s relationship summary.

It is designed to help retail investors select or determine to remain with an advisory or brokerage firm. They are trying to do that.

Importantly, Form CRS was the result of an extensive deliberative process at the SEC. Beyond the typical comment process—and the SEC did consider 6,000 comments for the Reg BI rulemaking package—the SEC also engaged in substantial investor outreach, including in-person meetings across the country; surveys—1,800 of those surveys—and, importantly, engaged the RAND Corporation to perform one-on-one, in-depth investor testing of the proposed Form CRS.

Now, earlier it was claimed, Mr.
Chair, that the initial form was unchanged. That is not true. The SEC did
too confusing. They streamlined that down to two.

So, that is, the SEC did its work—again, for the last 7 years. And we are now at a critical juncture. We can choose to take this head on or we can choose to turn around and head backward. I, for one, do not want to turn around and head backward. I want to provide that protection to my Main Street investors and my constituents back in my district.

So, the SEC did its job. It did testing that was substantially similar to what was proposed by this bill on Form CRS already. It has been 7 years that we have been going through this process.

And when in the Trump administration, this current administration, the Department of Labor and the Securities and Exchange Commission to agree on how to move forward.

And when in the Trump administration, this current administration, the Department of Labor was trying to assert itself, the Securities and Exchange Commission did its job and stepped in, which it didn’t do under the last administration, and said: Nope. We got it.
We are the lead agency. We will take this, and we will come up with a final product.

And the reason why I oppose this bill, certainly without my amendment, is all this does is it reverts back to what we had before this rulemaking was done by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Confusion, muddiness, and uncertainty will be the rule of law, and we are trying to clear that up. The Securities and Exchange Commission is trying to clear that up.

Mr. Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.
Mr. CASTEN of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Huizenga amendment, and I want to clarify a couple of points.

The bill gives the SEC Office of the Investor Advocate a larger role to prioritize which disclosures to test. The bill also says that once testing is completed and is found to be clear, there is no need to do further testing unless there are substantive changes.

To my knowledge, every single bill that is going to have to be reviewed every single time is not an argument that is made in good faith. The question here on the amendment is simply: Should we exempt one single form from the broad discretion given to the SEC in this rule? It is not clear to me why you would exempt Form CRS from investor testing, unless you don't want investors to understand the fees, costs, or conflicts of interest of investment professionals.

We know, through the testing that was done, that Form CRS appeared to be helpful for investors who had already read similar documents and who had more investing experience. And we know from the testing that was done that Form CRS, as currently written, is not that helpful for investors who haven't otherwise read similar documents.

We can't tie the SEC's hands in determining which disclosure documents need further investor testing. But if we are sitting here and believe that we have an obligation to look out for the best interests of the American people, for investors, for Main Street investors, then the only choice before us is to vote "no" on this amendment, and I encourage all of my colleagues to do so.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Huizenga).

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the nays appeared to have it.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I dem-pand a recorded vote.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. GOTTHEIMER

The CHAIR. The amendment is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in part B of House Report 116–237.

Mr. GOTTHEIMER. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

(v) A consideration of unique challenges faced by retail investors age 65 or older.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 629, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. GOTTHEIMER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. GOTTHEIMER. Mr. Chairman, my amendment is straightforward. It simply requires the SEC to specifically consider the unique challenges senior investors face as part of its overall investor testing.

Since I took office, I have been committed to helping seniors save their hard-earned money for retirement so they can afford to stay in New Jersey and enjoy their lives with their kids and grandkids.

Unfortunately, there are millions of senior investors across the country who have been the victims of financial scammers, Hucksters, and snake oil salesmen who have cheated them out of their right retirement.

That's why, earlier this year, I introduced the Senior Security Act, bipartisan legislation that overwhelmingly passed out of the House to help the SEC protect vulnerable seniors from predatory scams and financial abuse.

This amendment is another critical step in making sure that the SEC continues to do right by our seniors, by making sure there is explicit consideration of senior investors as they proceed with investor testing.

New Jersey seniors have given us so much. I will always have their backs to ensure they have the help they need to stay in Jersey and to protect them from those who would seek to take advantage of them.

I thank my colleague and friend, Mr. CASTEN, for introducing this bill and for his commitment to protecting seniors. I thank the chairwoman also for her excellent leadership. And I urge my colleagues to support this commonsense amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the proposed amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I share my colleague's concerns about the challenges that senior investors face. I have had that with my own parents, who, unfortunately, are no longer with us. But I was a part of those investment discussions and decisions, and I had a brother who was very, very involved in that and a sister who also. We all worked together as a family, trying to figure this all out. This is a concern that all of us had.

The author of the amendment was also the author of the Senior Security Act, which I supported, and massive bi-partisan majorities of both Houses of this House. Many people would be surprised about that, I would bet.

But I am opposed, however, to adding to the already significant requirements of this investor testing bill. I will note that the bill, as drafted, would already require that the SEC do whatever testing it, in consultation with the Office of the Investor Advocate, determines is "appropriate for evaluating the effectiveness of retail disclosures."

It doesn't say for young people. It doesn't say middle-income people. It doesn't say for old people. It says for everyone. This is already covered.

Earlier, you heard my amendment, that I was going to add to an exception. Well, there is already a list of exemptions, that forms are exempted. Mine would have been in addition to that.

The purpose of my amendment and my opposition to this amendment is to clarify, not to simply make it duplicative, not to make it more complicated, not to make it more cumbersome, burdened, and bureaucratic.

As I read it, for the amendment to have any type of meaning, the amendment suggests that testing is either: A, flawed as it currently is; or B, wouldn't consider seniors.

I am assuming that is not what the author is intending to do, to question that.

I just see this as unnecessary, duplicative testing that would add to the bill's cost and expand another layer of bureaucracy that doesn't ultimately help those retail investors. John and Jane 401(k), those mom-and-pop investors, whatever title you put to them, they need to be our focus.

Now, there is a cottage industry of now-congressionally mandated investor testers. I am not really interested in continuing to give them jobs. I want to make sure that we protect those investors, but also give them that protection in a timely manner because timeliness is part of that protection.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOTTHEIMER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to add one thing. Given the gravity of the situation with seniors in this country getting scammed out of billions of dollars or more every year, I don't think we can do enough.

The only thing I would urge my friend here is anything we can do to actually protect our seniors, we should be doing because what we are doing now is not working.

When I go anywhere, I hear from seniors about these awful instances and stories of what happened to them. These calls and getting defrauded. I think anything that we can do to help protect our seniors and do the extra mile to help them is critically important. This is a way to do it that I think is effective, efficient, and will get the backs of our seniors, which, to me, is the least we can do for our seniors who have given so much to us.

Mr. Chair, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CASTEN), the sponsor of the bill.

Mr. CASTEN of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Gottheimer amendment. I would like to thank my friend, Representative Gottheimer, for his amendment and for his longtime support for seniors and their financial health.

This amendment rightfully highlights that the SEC should take into account the unique circumstances that seniors face in making investment decisions when they do their investor testing.

The financial health of seniors is critically important, and I am delighted that this bill has the support of the AARP. The 38 million seniors who represent across our country. I stand with them in making clear that this legislation—not just this legislation—is effective for facilitating informed decision-making for Americans trying to save and invest their hard-earned money.

I urge my colleagues to vote “yes” on the Gottheimer amendment.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chair, I am prepared to close. I am curious on the remaining balance of time on both sides.

Mr. CASTEN. The question before the gentleman from Michigan has 2 minutes remaining. The gentleman from New Jersey has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chair, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOTTHEIMER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to add, just one more time, the balance of my time.

Mr. Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 629, a gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. WAGNER) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Missouri.

Mrs. WAGNER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of my amendment to H.R. 1815, which would apply the bill’s additional investor testing requirements only to disclosure documents developed after January 21, 2021.

If enacted, this legislation would hinder the implementation of important investor protection for Main Street investors, particularly, the SEC’s Regulation Best Interest rule. This rule has been in effect since September 10, 2019, but it has a compliance date of June 30, 2020.

If further and ongoing testing were required, it would onerously roll back and delay further—after 7 years of testing, debate, deliberation, comment periods, litigation. It would only roll back and further delay. Mr. Chairman, all of the SEC’s efforts to better protect those retail investors.

The bottom line is that this legislation is duplicative for rules already under consideration. The SEC has already conducted extensive investor testing of the proposed Form CRS, a component of the Regulation Best Interest rule. This is nothing, Mr. Chairman, but a political ploy, rope-a-dope, more neglect in not doing the work of the people. It does not serve those low- and middle-income investors, those constituents of mine in Missouri’s Second Congressional District.

It makes no sense to go back and conduct repetitive investor testing, leaving broker dealers and their clients—again, there are middle-income investors—without a uniform best interest standard.

That is why I ask all of my colleagues to support this commonsense amendment, and if it is not agreed to, to oppose the underlying bill, H.R. 1815, that does nothing but delay and displease the people that we should be working hard to protect, those low- and middle-income retail investors that are a part of our beautiful and wonderful Main Street districts.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIR. The gentlewoman from California is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

First, let me just say, no matter how many amendments the opposite side can come up with, no matter how many weeks they try to explain why they are not speaking for the retail investors, the small folks, the people with not a lot of resources, the people who depend on good information to be disclosed to them, they can come up with all the amendments they want, but no one thinking clearly about this will understand why they are trying to protect the SEC, our cop on the block, from doing everything they possibly can do to protect our seniors and our most vulnerable people.

So H.R. 1815 seeks, again, to ensure that disclosures specifically designed for the most vulnerable investors, including mom-and-pop retail investors, can actually be used and understood by those intended audiences. Isn’t that a simple request in this bill, that our most vulnerable retail investors understand what they are investing in, that that information should be disclosed to them? Well, I don’t get the arguments against it.

This amendment, however, directly conflicts with the scope of the bill, which covers new as well as existing disclosures. Requiring existing disclosures to be subjected to investor testing makes good sense. Evidence has shown many existing disclosures are not understood. The evidence is there that you and I have discovered that the disclosures are not understood by these vulnerable people. We have information that documents that, that the investors, the small investors, these seniors, don’t understand. This bill is about helping them to understand that they are signing on the dotted line for.

Mandatory disclosures that are unused or not understood impose unnecessary costs on the companies making those disclosures, and importantly, fail to inform retail investors of key risks that they should know when making investment decisions.

However, this amendment that is before you would treat disclosures that are put forth before the next President, after perfection as perfect, without need for further investor input through testing. Such an exemption is inconsistent with the object and purpose of this bill.

This undermines H.R. 1815 and its value to retail investors. So I could say this another 100 ways, they can come up with all the amendments they want to come up with; the fact of the matter is, this bill that is put forward by Mr. CASTEN is to protect the citizens who need the information more because they are so young and so naive. And so having said that, I would urge my colleagues to join me in opposing this amendment. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. WAGNER. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire how much time is remaining?

The CHAIR. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CASTEN), the ranking member of the Investor Protection, Entrepreneurship, and Capital Markets Subcommittee, my friend, to speak in support of the underlying bill.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time.

Mrs. WAGNER. Mr. Chairman, let me just say, I have been working on this issue and fighting for the retail investors for all 7 of my years here in Congress with respect to the rules of legislation to bring this to fruition. And always, always hold that retail investor in the best interest to make sure that we are taking care of them and giving them the best advice, the best access, the best cost, but most of all that we serve as a retirement investment and do everything we can to serve in their best interests. And that is why we must bring this after 7 long years to a close.

It is time that we stop playing rope-a-dope with duplicative rules that have already been under consideration and by conducting extensive investor testing that has already been done. The SEC is the absolute body of jurisdiction. They must harmonize with the Department of Labor, and now we have got a short, two-form page. We have got disclosures and titles that are clear that is serving the best interests of our constituents.

I would ask everyone to consider my amendment to H.R. 1815, and if it is not agreed to, to oppose the underlying bill.

Mr. Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CASTEN of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Wagner amendment. The wealth that Americans hold in their retirement accounts, in their 401(k)s, in their IRAs, all the places that they hold their wealth, the fees they pay on that wealth that they care on that wealth do not care when the law was written, or the form was processed.

We know, we have evidence, that many of the existing disclosure documents intended for retail investors are not well understood by their target audience. So I would ask you: What is the cost to your wealth of another percent a year in asset management fees? What is the cost to you, to your wealth, of another percent a year compounding in the growth of your wealth? Multiply that by all the Americans who make their investments. Billions, trillions of dollars.

This amendment was offered as a way to protect people. It is protecting people, but it isn’t protecting investors. I strongly urge my colleagues to vote “no” on this amendment.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered in the name of the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. WAGNER).

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.
So we have a problem here. Mr. Chairman. We have undeclared terms. We have muddied, not clear goals and objectives here, and so, I would rhetorically ask, what is an institutional investor? Is it a small-town investment manager who is a sole practitioner, but has amassed simply a large amount of money investing millions or a whole bunch of smaller investors, who don’t have millions, banding together and now they are suddenly institutional investors.

So let’s just not make H.R. 1815 more confusing than it already is. I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CASTEN of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I encourage my colleagues to vote for the amendment, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Chairman, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 has been a living, breathing document; but in those subsequent years from 1934, there has never been a definition of either “retail investor” or “institutional investor,” and to hang an amendment on those terms which are undefined legally is simply a mistake.

Mr. Chairman, I do not support this unnecessarily confusing amendment, and I urge a “no” vote on this amendment.

The Chair, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. CASTEN.

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in page 116-237 of House Report 116-237 on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

Amendment No. 1 by Mr. HUIZENGA of Michigan.

Amendment No. 2 by Mr. GOTTHEIMER of New Jersey.

Amendment No. 3 by Mrs. Wagner of Michigan.

The Chair will reduce to 2 minutes the minimum time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

The CHAIR. The CHAIR. The Chair will redesignate the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The Chair. A recorded vote has been demanded.

The result of the vote was announced as above reported.

The Acting CHAIR (Mr. RICHMOND). There being no further amendments under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Ms. PRIEST) having assumed the chair, Mr. RICHMOND, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that the Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 1815) to require the Securities and Exchange Commission, when conducting investor testing, including a survey and interviews of retail investors, and for other purposes, and, pursuant to House Resolution 220, he reported the bill, as amended by that resolution, back to the House with sundry further amendments adopted in the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill will be ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HOYER was allowed to speak out of order.)

MOURNING THE PASSING OF THE HONORABLE ELIJAH CUMMINGS

Mr. HOYER. Today, Mr. Speaker, is a sad day. It is a sad day for us; it is a sad day for this institution; and it is a sad day for America. We have lost a wonderful human being, a good and decent human being, a human being who made a difference for this institution, for all of us who knew him and were his friend, for his constituents, and for all Americans. All of us in this House lost a respected colleague. Many of us lost a dear, longtime, and good friend. Mr. Speaker, in this body, and every time I ran for a leadership position, my friend ELIJAH CUMMINGS nominated me. The passing this morning of Chairman ELIJAH CUMMINGS of the Committee on Oversight and Reform was painful for all those who have served with him, more, of course, to his family, Dr. Rockeymoore Cummings, his wife, and his three children.

Elijah was a prophet of God whose name means ‘my God is the Lord.’ ELIJAH CUMMINGS was a man of his name. He was a leader for our country and for our State of Maryland, and we have the Members, including our favorite daughter. He was a leader for our State. He was a leader, like his brother JOHN LEWIS, for principle, for comity, and for civility.

He was a quiet man who did not seek the limelight, but he was not afraid to step out into the arena and fight hard for the causes in which he believed strongly. As I have said, those causes were justice, equality, opportunity, civil rights, education, and children. He liked to say that children are the message we send to a future that we will never see. His parents sent ELIJAH into the future, and how much better the future was.

He was beloved by his constituents, both those in the city of Baltimore and those in its suburbs. Indeed, ELIJAH was probably better loved in my district than by any of the lawmakers who will understand that, of course.

He worked hard, even in his final days. The Speaker is going to speak, and I am sure she will say something about the telephone call she had with him just days ago, doing the people’s business. As his heart faltered, his passion for his work did not.

In the days ahead, we will have many opportunities, of course, to speak about our friend, ELIJAH, about his passion for service, his many contributions to Maryland and our Nation, and his deep convictions as a moral leader and a man of decency and love for his neighbor.

Some of you recall ELIJAH at the time of great distress in Baltimore—anger, outbursts. ELIJAH walked among them as a man of peace and, like no other person in our State, brought peace where there was no peace. We will have opportunities to remember that. And we have the chance to reflect on the love he had for his wife, Maya, and his three children.

Today, in remembering ELIJAH CUMMINGS, we have a chance to promote the vision he held of the people’s House coming together in unity and purpose. Sadly, today, that purpose is to mourn his passing and remember a dear friend who will no longer be with us as we continue his work to which he gave his all. But, hopefully, his example will be with us.

ELIJAH used to say, when he saw conflict and confrontation, when he saw things he thought were not up to the standards we had set for our country and for ourselves because of our faith, our Constitution, and our Declaration, he would say, “We are better than that.”

As we human beings do things, from time to time, that are not kind to one another, not thoughtful, and not respectful to one another, let us say to ourselves: We are better than that. That is what ELIJAH said to himself.

Mr. Speaker, in that spirit of unity, I will be yielding shortly to the Republican leader to share his reflections. But first, as I referred to her as Maryland’s favorite daughter, I am honored to yield to the Speaker of the House, NANCY PELOSI D’ALESDANDRO. Now she would say NANCY D’ALESDANDRO PELOSI. I understand that. We are so proud of our Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, it is a very disconcerting day for so many of us here.

I thank Mr. HOYER for bringing us together to mourn the loss of our dear friend and colleague, ELIJAH CUMMINGS. I thank my friend for his beautiful statement calling forth so many of the beautiful attributes of ELIJAH CUMMINGS.

As the gentleman spoke, I was reminded of how he always was a calmer of the waters. No matter how rough and tumble things would be, he would always just calm the waters and reach out, whether it was across the aisle, across the issue, across the Capitol, or down Pennsylvania Avenue.

I know that the people of Baltimore, the U.S. Congress, and America have lost the voice of the unsurpassed moral clarity and truth of our beloved Mr. Chairman, ELIJAH CUMMINGS. I am personally devastated by his passing, as I know many of us are.

We have flowers in his place where he sat, with love and that counsel, learned more, or calmed down and were lifted up by the wisdom, the graciousness, and the goodness of ELIJAH CUMMINGS.
Constitution, worthy of the vision of our Founders establishing this institution, and worthy, again, of the aspirations of our children, his words: "We are better than this."

His leadership made a difference in strengthening our democracy. Again, during difficult times, let us draw strength from his righteous words that the leader has been reminding us of all day: "We are better than this."

In the Congress, we will miss his wisdom, his dignity, the brilliance of his mind, the kindness of his heart, the friendship that meant so much to us and that we could all call upon.

In Baltimore, we will miss him as a champion.

May it be a comfort to his wife, Maya, to whom I conveyed the good wishes of the Congress this morning, that it may be a comfort to Maya, to his three children and Chairman Cummings’ entire family and, I want to add to that, his dedicated and devoted staff, in every capacity—as a Member, as a chairman, as a member of the committee, I would say to such fairness and respect, his staff—may it be a comfort to them all that so many mourn their loss and are praying for them at this sad time and that he will always be inside of our hearts as we make decisions about our responsibilities and how we will be accountable when we are dancing with the angels.

God bless you, darling Elijah. We all love you. We miss you, but we will never forget you, and your legacy will live in the Congress of the United States in this House of Representatives.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), Speaker of the House, for her remarks.

I know Elijah felt very strongly about her and his support of her and her leadership and how proud he was that she was from the city of Baltimore that he loved so greatly.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCARTHY), my friend, the minority leader, and another good friend of Elijah’s.

Mr. MCCARTHY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding. I thank him for his words, and also thank the Speaker.

We lost more than just a Member of Congress when we lost Elijah Cummings. As the Speaker spoke of his life, she talked about him bringing calmness, I want you to reflect for one moment, when have you ever served in this body that we have been this calm and this quiet and this reflective? Elijah’s work is still good with us right now.

Chairman Cummings had enormous presence. As many times he would be an adversary, he was a respected adversary because he was tough. He had such a presence on this side of the aisle and an impression that, when we would sit inside our steering committee—and maybe I am breaking the rule; we are never supposed to talk about what we say in there. When we would select a chair or a ranking member, this is the committee we weighed who we went against.

And every time we spoke of selecting an individual who can rise to the occasion, to be in debate with him, we would look for somebody who was tough, in every iteration. When he was selected, they would come back to be a very best friend of Elijah Cummings. It is a tough committee. It is a committee of accountability. It is a committee of debate. I can’t tell you how many friends would call me and be in fear because they got a letter from Cummings. But he was a man of fairness.

You will know this because, in committees, at times, you have these debates, but it’s not about who as a chair and ranking member, what we would talk about is Elijah would share with us the life lessons, you know what he would say privately to the chair or the ranking member on the other side, we would call it JIM JORDAN, what he would say to Trey Gowdy.

Trey shared with me today, he never stopped talking, even though he left Congress.

Jim Jordan shared with me today that he was talking to Elijah just last week about committee business.

Trey talked about a story.

Trey was pretty tough on one person. And Trey is good; that prosecutor in him can get to the point. Elijah turned to him and said: She is not a government employee. She has a family, and she has children. You can be a little softer next time.

And that hit on his heart.

And what I fear in the world today, then when they look at us, they get this persona through cameras and social media, but it doesn’t show our character. We are the only ones who get the window into one another’s character of how we act. We are the ones who should share the message.

Because he was so strong in his beliefs, I am afraid some people in America won’t know what type of character he actually had, not as a Member of Congress and not as a political figure, because that is how I knew Elijah. He was a fighter. So many times in his life people told him no, and he would say, yes, he could.

He was a leader, but not in the sense that America probably thinks as a Member of Congress. His entire life he wanted to overturn racial injustice.

A Member shared with me the first time he got to know him was on a codal down in Mexico. Most of the people on the bus were asleep because it was a long trip, and Elijah sat and talked to him. This Member was from the South, and he talked about how his grandparents were there, but his grandparents moved him away because they felt he would have a better chance just because of the color of his skin, that he would get a better education.

ELIJAH was not upset by that. He felt this country gave him the opportunity. That he needed to serve—yes 229, nays 186, not voting 16, as follows:

PRAYER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Today's opening prayer will be offered by Dr. Robert Lewis, of Fellowship Bible Church, Little Rock, AR.

The guest chaplain offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Heavenly Father, we give thanks for this new day and the hope that lies within it. We have been a blessed nation, not by accident but by this: In You, God, we trust. Thank You for the men and women of this distinguished body, who will again rise to face the immense challenge that will mark this day along with the special opportunities that it holds for good. I pray You will make this body ready for both.

In these turbulent times, empower their work with Your Spirit. Give them a difference making wisdom only You possess. Protect them from small ambitions. Call each heart here up to the higher ways of humility, understanding, and much needed unity. Help these leaders seek what is right and best for all in this Nation: the weak and the strong, the rich and the wanting, the great and the small; and let their work here today end tonight as a credit, not a deficit, to our Nation's life-giving legacy of liberty and justice for all.

Bless this Chamber, Father. Make us better through them, and lead us all forward in the ways of righteousness for Your greater glory.

We pray this in Jesus' Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Presiding Officer led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. GRASSLEY).

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable JOHN BOOZMAN, a Senator from the State of Arkansas, to perform the duties of the Chair.

CHUCK GRASSLEY, President pro tempore.

Mr. BOOZMAN thereupon assumed the Chair as Acting President pro tempore.

WELCOMING DR. ROBERT LEWIS

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam President, I would like to take a moment, first of all, to thank Chaplain Black for all that he does here. The Senate is a much better place as a result of having him around.

I would also like to take a moment to thank Dr. Robert Lewis for delivering the opening prayer in the Senate today.

Robert and I had the opportunity to play football together at the University of Arkansas. He was a very good football player and had the gift of smack. He would hit you. He had a tremendous work ethic and character, and we all knew that he would do well in whatever he decided to do.

Robert is, today, a renowned pastor, a best-selling author, a passionate speaker, and a Christian visionary. He has developed a curriculum that has reached over 1 million men worldwide in churches, on college campuses, in corporate boardrooms, and in correctional facilities.

Robert’s program, the Men’s Fraternity, provides men with an encouraging process of teaching them how to live lives of authentic manhood, as modeled by Jesus Christ and directed by the Word of God. The program was designed to help men come together and strengthen each other through weekly sessions that combine biblical teaching and small group interaction.

For 21 years, Robert served as the directional leader of the Fellowship Bible Church of Little Rock. During that time, the church grew from a few hundred members to over 5,000, and it was widely recognized as being one of the most innovative and influential churches in America.

Robert helped to bring Downline, which is a citywide discipleship ministry, to Little Rock, where he continues to serve as a part-time instructor. He continues to be involved in his local church and beyond, and he ministers nationally and across the world.

Robert and Sherard, his wife, have been married for over 40 years. They have four children and three grandchildren.

Serving as the guest chaplain is an incredible honor. I am thankful for Robert’s ministry, and I am so pleased that he could be here to offer an invitation of asking God to guide and bless the efforts of Congress and America’s leaders.

I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, first, this morning, I join colleagues on both sides of the Capitol in expressing our grief and sadness at the passing of our House colleague, Chairman ELIJAH CUMMINGS.

In his over more than two decades in the House of Representatives, CUMMINGS became a living legend in his native Baltimore. By all accounts, he was a powerful and passionate voice on the national stage and was a strong advocate for his neighbors, his district, and his values. He counted close friends and admirers from all across the political spectrum.

The Capitol will lower its flags today to mark this significant loss and remember a life well lived. The Senate unites our prayers with those in the House for Maya, ELIJAH’s wife; for his children; and for all of the colleagues, friends, and staff who will miss him greatly.

TURKEY AND SYRIA

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, on an entirely different matter, I was encouraged to see yesterday’s display of bipartisan concern in the House of Representatives for sustaining America’s global leadership and, specifically, for continuing a U.S. military presence in Syria. It is so narrowly drafted that it contemplates what action to take, but, overall, a huge bipartisan consensus, but, overall, a huge consensus for something even stronger than the House of Representatives, CUMMINGS.

Back in January, I led a forward-looking debate here in the Senate on these very issues. I sponsored an amendment to S. 1 that earned the support of 70 Senators. We went on the record as opposing a premature exit from Syria or Afghanistan and emphasized the need for sustained American leadership in the fight against terrorism.

I was disappointed when a number of leading Democrats, including my counterpart, the Democratic leader, and most of our colleagues who are running for President, voted against this bipartisan amendment, but, overall, a huge majority of the Senate spoke up strongly.

I know many of us are keen on engaging in these important issues further in light of recent events. As the Senate debates our Middle East policy and contemplates what action to take, I believe it is important that we make a strong, forward-looking, strategic statement.

For that reason, my preference would be for something even stronger than the resolution the House passed yesterday, which has some serious weaknesses. It is so narrowly drafted that it fails to address the plight of imperiled Sunni Arab and minority Christian communities in Syria. It is backward-looking, and it is curiously silent on the issue of whether to actually sustain a U.S. military presence in Syria, perhaps to spare the Democrats from having to go on the record on this key question.

So my first preference is for something stronger than the House resolution. I look forward to continuing to engage with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle as we chart the right course, and I expect many of us will have much more to say on the subject very soon.

S.J. RES. 53

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, on one final matter, this week. I have been discussing how Washington Democrats have fought for 3 years to effectively nullify President Trump’s executive power. They have tried to cancel out the voters’ decision in 2016 and dodge the consequences of Secretary Clinton’s defeat whether it be through the 3-year-old impeachment parade that the House Democrats have been leading or through the unprecedented delays and obstruction that has been visited on the President’s nominations here in the Senate.

Well, our Democratic colleagues will today mount yet another effort to fire up the time machine. They want to move forward with legislation that would undo a major regulatory reform success story of the Trump administration’s and reopen the Obama administration’s War on Coal. Specifically, they want to try and revive the so-called Clean Power Plan, which is a dangerous, misguided policy that the Trump administration has rightly done away with. We will be voting on this resolution later today.

The basic facts haven’t changed since this job-killing scheme was first put forward back in 2014. This relic of the Obama administration would have further buried the idea of affordable American energy under a mountain of stifling redtape. It would have created overlapping local, state, and federal standards, unrealistic compliance deadlines, and would have set up a Washington bureaucracy that would effectively root for American energy to fail. It is no wonder, by one analysis, that 125,000 jobs would have been on the chopping block had President Obama gotten his way.

The workers in my State know better than anyone the true costs of the last administration’s misguided War on Coal. Kentucky workers know what happens when plants that create jobs and generate affordable electricity at the same time are simply shut down.

That is why I have been proud to lead the fight in ending the regulatory War on Coal. It is why I wrote every Governor in the country in 2015 and raised my concerns about the Obama administration’s dangerous Clean Power Plan scheme, because, even today, nearly 3 years into an administration that is not at war with American energy, Kentucky miners continue to feel the effects of the previous administration’s policies.

We also know that the full effects of the Clean Power Plan would have stretched far beyond coal country. The ripples of this harmful proposal would have been felt across the country by Americans in paying their power bills. One independent report predicted that consumers in 40 States, including Kentucky, would have seen double-digit percentage increases in their electricity costs, and by the Obama officials’ own admissions, the proposal would have hit low-income and minority communities the hardest. Let me say that again: Low-income and minority communities would have hit the hardest by the double-digit electricity bill increases in four out of every five States. That is quite a rap sheet for a Federal policy.

In a nation in which carbon emissions have already been trending downward, this proposal would have sold off our economic edge to overseas competitors whose emissions are, actually, steadily climbing. It would have taken the legs out from under American job creators while some of the world’s leading polluters would have continued to roar right past us. It would have literally shipped our economic competitiveness to places like China and India.

Here is how experts estimated the effects of all of this economic damage on the climate: a one-hundredth-of-1-degree difference by 2050. Here is the impact estimated to have happened if it had gone forward—a one-hundredth-of-1-degree difference by 2050. Think how deeply you would have to be in the grip of leftist ideology for that trade-off to sound like a good deal for American families.

Today’s effort to revive this bad policy is being pushed by the same Senate Democrats who, overwhelmingly, could not bring themselves to vote against something as absurd as the Green New Deal back in March. Unfortunately, we know there is a considerable appetite among Democrats to inflict huge economic harm on American workers and American families just so we can better comply with this new green religion.

But here is the good news for my constituents in Kentucky and for hardworking Americans across the Nation: Senate Republicans have the case, and we will not let far-left fashions take precedence over the common good of our country.

The American people have elected an administration and a Senate majority that trusts workers and job creators, not Washington bureaucracies. We have spent years cleaning up the mess of overregulation that the Obama era has left behind, and we will continue to stop the Democrats from reenacting that damaging history of self-inflicted economic harm on American workers and American families just so we can better comply with this new green religion.

REMEMBERING ELIJAH CUMMINGS

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, we woke up this morning to learn with profound sadness that our friend and colleague Congressman ELIJAH CUMMINGS, the son of sharecroppers who became the chair of the House Oversight Committee, passed away last night at the age of 68.

It was the first thing I saw when I read the paper this morning, and it hit me like a punch in the stomach. We will not soon forget the many who knew him well. In his 23 years in Congress, ELIJAH was revered by his constituents. He was an expert. ELIJAH was revered by his constituents and indeed by the entire State of Maryland. Liberal or conservative, Democrat or Republican, Black or White, you went to ELIJAH CUMMINGS for advice. His loss is an enormous one for his constituents, for his staff and, above all, his family. I pray for them this morning, as I pray for our country when people like ELIJAH CUMMINGS of the world are no longer with us.

TURKEY AND SYRIA

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, on Syria, yesterday, the U.S. military carried out airstrikes against what the Pentagon said were Syrian troops evacuated so it didn’t fall into Syrian or Turkish or even Russian hands. That one thing encapsulates the absurdity, the awfulness of President Trump’s lack of policy and erratic, impulsive, and whimsical movements on the Syrian front.

Yesterday the President said this withdrawal was a “strategic move.” It certainly is not that because this is not the action that carried out a deliberate withdrawal. It is the action of a military that was given a fly-by-the-seat-of-his-pants decision of the President contrary to the recommendations of the commanders on the ground.

Donald Trump has the nerve, the gall, to think he knows more about the military than these generals who have served our country for decades. It is appalling. How does America put up with this? When a commander in chief makes a decision that has no support of the generals. What a blunder, and it seems to be the result of the President’s inability to say no to dictators. He seems to like a Putin and an Erdogan and even a Kim more than our allies. This is a clear demonstration of the President’s recklessness and recklessness, both, or as my colleague Senator LINDSEY GRAHAM, and one of the President’s staunchest allies in Congress, said, a fear that this is a complete and utter national security disaster in the making."

Yesterday afternoon, congressional leaders went to the White House, at its request, to meet with the President about the rapid disintegration of the situation in northern Syria. Speaker PELOSI and I talked about it ahead of time, and we talked about it with Senators REED and MENENDEZ as well. We had a common purpose to find out if the President actually had a plan to contain ISIS and fix the mess precipitated by his decision to green-light Erdogan’s military incursion into Syria.

It is alarmingly—alarmingly—President Trump had no plan. The greatest insult that occurred in that room was not any of the name-calling that Trump did. A far greater insult to America, to all of us, was the lack of any policy guidance, any policy decisions, any direction from the President and his top national security advisers on how to contain ISIS.

I reminded the President that as two New Yorkers, we probably knew better than the rest of the world. A band of terrorists can do, even from a half a world away. I asked: What is your plan to prevent ISIS from regrouping and resurging? He didn’t have one. Secretary of Defense Mark Esper didn’t have a plan.

After we pushed them and pushed them, I said: Who is going to take care of all these prisoners? The President said there were 70,000 ISIS prisoners and their families. Who is going to take care of them, make sure they don’t escape, as some have already? They finally said: Well, the Syrians and the Turks will do that. So I asked them: What if they had any intelligence or assurances that the Turks and Syrians would do a decent job. Secretary Esper himself said there was no evidence of that.

This is amazing. Terrorists whom we have spent a decade fighting—we have spent billions of dollars and lost lives to fight them—are finally in prison. The Kurds are guarding them. The Kurds are leaving, understandably, because they have to fight the Turks now. This is the policy, except to rely on Turks, who have not even close to the interest we have in curbing ISIS.

Assad is much more interested in gaining back his Syrian homeland. Erdogan is focused on hurting the Kurds, whom he is fanatically against. So they are not going to pay much attention to ISIS.

It was appalling, just appalling. President Trump has stepped aside for Putin, Assad, and Erdogan. Our allies, the Kurds, are being slaughtered as a result of our betrayal. Most importantly, as Secretary Mattis said, “If we don’t keep the pressure on [in Syria], it will result in the Russians resuming a role that Taiwan is already a given that they will come back.”

The President didn’t like hearing Mattis’s words, but all of America should. He is one of the most respected military minds, one of the most respected leaders on both sides of the aisle—liberals, Independents, conservatives. Here is what he said, again repeating:
So make no mistake, the President’s incompetence, his impulsiveness, his erraticness has made Americans less safe—here in our homeland. Congress, today, must make the fact clear to the President in a bipartisan fashion.

We have the opportunity, my colleagues. The House passed a resolution condemning the President’s decision by an overwhelming vote of 354 to 60. That means the vast majority of House Republicans—129 to be exact—condemned the President’s decision in Syria. Leader McCarthy, Whip Scalise, and No. 3 Cheney all voted for it. They are as loyal to President Trump as anybody, but they saw the danger, the real danger. Today the Senate should, and I hope will, follow suit. We can quibble about the language, but I have no doubt we can agree on the basic message, and that is the President. The greatest ability to make him reverse is an overwhelming vote in the Senate. The choice is theirs.

Time is of the essence. To say, well, I would like to add this word or add this sentence, as Kurds are being slaughtered, as ISIS terrorists are escaping, as no, no, no. No, no, no. We should move to the House bill immediately because we all know there is only one person who can reverse this, and that is the President. The greatest ability to make him reverse is an overwhelming message from the Republican side—House and Senate—that this is wrong. He doesn’t hear that publicly too often from our Republican friends. He has heard it from the House, correctly and courageously.

Please, my friends, my Republican friends in the Senate, let’s put politics aside. Today let’s vote the House bill passed yesterday by them. There is no time to waste. Time is of the essence because the President still doesn’t get it. Over the last 2 1/2 years in a single phrase, it would be this: broken promises to working people.

When Candidate Trump ran for office, he promised to drain the swamp, but after 1,000 days as President, this place is the swampiest it has ever been, with connections, it has been a great few years, but for everyone else, it has been a string of disappointing, broken, and heartbreaking promises. Come next year, the American people will have a chance to vote for real change.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until noon is equally divided.

The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, as the senior Senator from Maryland, I want to comment on the remarks by Leader SCHUMER about the great loss we had that we learned about early this morning—the death of Congressman Elijah Cummings. I found out about this as I awoke this morning. It is a sad day for Baltimore, for Maryland, and for our country.

Two days ago, I had a chance to talk with Maya Rockeymoore Cummings, Congressman Cummings’ wife, to inquire as to how the Congresswoman was doing. She explained to me that he was still in the hospital but he was using every ounce of energy he had to carry out his responsibilities as chairman of the Oversight Committee and as a Member of the House of Representatives. We all know that he used his energy every day on behalf of the people he represented.

Our Nation has lost one of the great champions for social justice. What a powerful voice he was for those whose voices would otherwise not have been heard. It is a great loss. It is a great loss for the people of Baltimore—his record of accomplishment on behalf of our city and our region is well known—and it is a personal loss for me.

I first got to know Elijah Cummings when he was elected to the Maryland General Assembly. I was speaker of the house. I recognized that here was a person coming in with incredible talent. I gave him an opportunity to use that talent, and he used it so effectively on behalf of the people of his district as a member of the Maryland General Assembly.

Congressman Cummings and I have a lot in common. We both attended the same public high school in Baltimore City, Baltimore City College High School—different years. He graduated from the University of Maryland Law School, and I also graduated from the University of Maryland Law School. We served together in the Maryland General Assembly, and we served together in the House of Representatives.

He represented in Baltimore and the State of Maryland, and we served together in the House of Representatives. I was speaker of the Assembly.

It is a sad day for Baltimore, for Maryland, and for our country. It is a great loss. It is a great loss for the people he represented.

What a legacy he has left for all of us. We can’t fill the void that has been created by Congressman Cummings’ passing, but all of us need to step up and help carry the public service. It is a terrible loss for the people of our community and a terrible loss for our Nation.

Our prayers go out to Maya Rockeymoore Cummings and his family in this incredibly difficult time. We will commit ourselves to carrying on the legacy of a great American, our friend Elijah Cummings.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. THUNE. Madam President, before I begin, I, too, want to join with my colleagues who have preceded me and just say how sad I was to hear of the death of Elijah Cummings. We joined the House together. He got there a little before I did in a special election in 1996. I came in January of 1997. I always admired his fire and his dedication. He was a fierce advocate for his constituents and for the causes he believed in, and he will be a lesser place for his absence.

Our prayers are with his family and all those who had the opportunity to know him, his constituents, those he represented in Baltimore and the State of Maryland who are going to mourn his loss today and miss his presence for many, many days in the future.

UNITED STATES-MEXICO-CANADA TRADE AGREEMENT

Madam President, farmers and ranchers have gotten good news on trade front in recent weeks with the signing of a trade deal with Japan.

U.S. farmers depend on access to the Japanese market. It is the fourth largest market for U.S. agricultural producers. This agreement will remove barriers to the sale of a variety of products, from cheese to sweet corn, beef, pork, and wheat.

While this is very good news for farmers and ranchers, we have a lot more work to do on the trade front to help our ag community and to increase demand for American agricultural products around the world, and we should start by passing the United States-Mexico-Canada Free Trade Agreement. Canada and Mexico are the No. 1 and No. 2 markets for American agricultural products, and preserving and expanding access to these markets is key to improving the economic outlook for American farmers.

One year ago, the administration finished negotiating a strong deal with these countries that will help boost our struggling agricultural economy: the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement will provide farmers with certainty about what these important markets are going to look like going forward. One of the biggest challenges facing farmers on the trade front right is uncertainty about what markets around the world are going to look like. The United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement will give farmers and ranchers clarity on what trade is going to look like with these two key trading partners.

In addition to providing certainty and preserving American access for American farmers and ranchers, the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement makes a number of improvements to the status quo. Of particular interest to South Dakota are the agreement’s dairy provisions. If you drive the I-29 corridor north of Brookings, SD, you can see firsthand the major dairy expansion South Dakota has experienced over the past several years.

The U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement will preserve U.S. dairy farmers’ role as a key dairy supplier to Mexico, and it will substantially expand market access in Canada. The U.S. International Trade Commission estimates that the agreement will boost U.S. dairy exports by more than $277 million.

The agreement will also expand market access for U.S. poultry and egg producers. It will make it easier for producers to export wheat to Canada and much more.

I have just focused on the benefits for farmers. In fact, the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement will benefit almost every sector of our economy, from the automobile industry to digital trade and e-commerce. It will create 176,000 jobs, and it will raise wages for workers.

Given the major benefits not only for farmers but for the economy as a whole, why hasn’t Congress passed this agreement yet? That is a good question and the answer is quite simple. By law, the House of Representatives has to take up the agreement first, but the House has unfortunately been more focused on political theater of late than on collaborating on measures that would actually help American families, and unfortunately it doesn’t look like that is going to change.

I heard the Democratic leader down here earlier sort of attacking the current administration for not doing enough on this or that. Well, the fact is, if you look at the economic statistics over the past couple of years, they are pretty remarkable. Unemployment is at a historically low rate—3½ percent. Those are numbers we haven’t seen in a very long time—about 50 years, as a matter of fact. The number of jobs that have been created since the President took office is about 6.4 million in a very short period of time. I would argue that if they would take that up and send it to the Senate, we would vote on it here. We would pass it. We would send it to the President. He would sign it into law and farmers and ranchers in places like South Dakota and other agricultural States across this country would get the benefit from that. And it is not just farmers and ranchers. As I mentioned earlier, it is pretty much every sector of our economy. It is manufacturing. It is digital.

There are benefits in this trade deal that translate into a stronger, more robust economy that will keep this expansion going forward and will continue to create these good-paying jobs and higher wages and create that better standard of living and quality of life for people in this country. The reason it hasn’t moved is because it is up to the House of Representatives. They have all the control on this. The Speaker of the House can move this whenever she wants to. What they are trying to do now is renegotiate the deal all over again. Unfortunately, they are very much obsessed at the moment with other types of activities in the House. If you look at what is happening over there right now, it doesn’t look like that is going to change anytime soon. With even the Speaker of the House joining the far left’s now impeachment crusade, I don’t think it is likely that Democrats are going to wake up one morning and decide they should spend less time on partisan politics and more time working with Republicans to pass real American people. But I do hope they will not destroy this trade agreement. There are thousands of farmers in my State of South Dakota and around the country who are waiting for the relief that the United States-Mexico-Canada Free Trade Agreement would bring.

Irrespective of what the distractions are in the House of Representatives at the moment and much of the partisan rush toward impeachment that is underway, they will figure out a way to multitask and will do what they should have done a long time ago, and that is to pick up this free-trade deal, pass it through the House of Representatives, send it to the U.S. Senate, where we can pass it, and send it to the President, where it can be signed into law, and the American people can continue to see the benefits of policies that are good for this economy, that will create more growth in our country, faster growth in the future, and a better quality of life for people not just in South Dakota but all across America.

I yield the floor.

DEFENSE SPENDING BILL

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I come to the floor today to discuss the current partisan blockade. It is a blockade of our ability to pay better wages, and to send it to the President. The reason it hasn’t moved is because it is up to the House of Representatives. They have all the control on this. The Speaker of the House can move this whenever she wants to. Kosovo, up near the Serbian border. In service to our country, these soldiers now find themselves far from home, and we owe it to them to give them the raise that they have earned and that they deserve.

You know, before I left, I gave every one of our soldiers a challenge coin. It is a challenge coin for me, as a Senator, and it is something I learned about through the military. It is something you give to somebody for camaraderie and a job well done. The coin shows a wooden horse with an icon of a cowboy sitting on a bucking bronco. I gave it to each one of them saying: You are from Wyoming, you are a cowboy, and cowboys never quit and never complain, and neither will the U.S. military.

So when it comes to a raise, they are not quitting, and they are not complaining. It seems to me that it is the Democrats who have quit. The Democrats have quit. They have gone back on their word to approve the pay raise that they approved a couple of months ago and now are blocking us moving forward with this piece of legislation.

You know, the troops I met invited the cowboy spirit. They love to see it. They don’t need to see it for long because they are not too long ago and are working 7 days a week, 24 hours a day, and 365 days a year. They wanted to talk about what is happening at home. They wanted to talk about the heat. They wanted to talk about the weather at home, where we have already had snow. The day I was in one of the locations, it was 108 degrees, and the heat index was higher than that, and they are, of course, in full uniform. They are there doing the job of keeping us safe and keeping us free, and they deserve the pay raise that they have earned.

They are on the frontlines. They are defending our freedoms. They are doing it every day.

I had a meal with them, as you see here right now, visiting with these men and women. It is a time for camaraderie. We talked about the challenges they are facing overseas.

I toured each of their bases. They know that the world is a very dangerous place in which they are living and serving, and they know what is happening in the threats to Iran, which to this group was only a little over 100 miles away, across the Strait of Hormuz.

Look, clearly, the best way to protect Americans at home is to keep up the pressure on our enemies abroad. Our presence there is restraining evil and serving, and they know that they are entitled to, and let’s give our troops the state-of-the-art tools they need to protect the American people in a dangerous world. It is time for Democrats to lift their hold on this blockade that they have had on our Defense Fund. And together, in a bipartisan way, to complete the regular Defense appropriations process and fully fund our military, as our Nation demands and our troops certainly deserve.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SCOTT of Florida). The Senator from New Mexico.

BORDER SECURITY

Mr. UDALL. Mr. President, last month, both the House and the Senate of Representatives resolved, on a bipartisan basis, to terminate the President’s declaration of a national emergency along our southern border. I was proud to lead the charge before this body to demonstrate that declaration—a declaration the President is using to raid congressionally appropriated military construction funds to build this border wall. Plain and simple, the President’s emergency declaration is an end-run around Congress’s spending powers and the Constitution.

Last week, a Federal district judge agreed and concluded that the President’s declaration is “unlawful.” Article I, section 9, of the Constitution could not be clearer. It reads: “No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law. . . .” The Founders gave Congress the power to appropriate—the power of the purse. This is one of the most consequential powers. Congress has this power to make sure that decisions about how public dollars are spent have widespread support and are not the product of an extreme minority, let alone one man.

Our power to appropriate is part of the system of checks and balances built into our Constitution. The Founders made sure that the three branches of government exercised their own separate and limited powers, and they made sure that no one branch or no one person could exercise too much power, especially over the use of taxpayer money.

The President’s emergency declaration is an unconstitutional power grab. Congress has not fully funded his requests for border wall funding. We set different budget priorities. Our priorities include the $3.6 billion worth of military construction projects, but we are one of four States that borders Mexico. We are ground zero for the President’s border wall and the havoc it will wreak on our communities and our way of life.

Congress has not fully funded his requests for border wall funding, and he has used the emergency declaration to ignore the wishes of the people of New Mexico and Mexico share a 180-mile border. This border passes through 23 States, 3 Territories, and 20 counties. The President’s emergency declaration is an exercise of power that is just not his under the Constitution.

Our system of checks and balances only works if each branch has the will to check the other branch if there is a constitutional or statutory problem. We have seen some good bipartisan pushback, but this is the point where we need more of that. It is up to Congress, the legislative branch, to guard our constitutional authority and to exercise the will to do so.

The President has now vetoed Congress’s resolution, and it is up to this body to assert our constitutional authority and override that veto. Not only is a constitutional principle at stake, but the President’s emergency declaration has real life impacts—impacts to our national security and impacts to the 23 States whose projects are now gone.

My home State of New Mexico is one of those 23 States. We are home to two military bases that will be hit by the President’s emergency declaration. The President has now vetoed the military construction projects to fund his wall.

Scuttled is an $85 million project at Holloman Air Force Base that would improve drone pilot training facilities that are aging, have sinkholes, and bat problems. Training our military to pilot drones is mission critical in this day and age. The Air Force is battling a shortage of these pilots.

At White Sands Missile Range, a $40 million project designed to replace an aging and damaged information systems facility has been cut. This project was to prepare the range to take on the next generation of missiles and weapons testing, including future hypersonic testing.

Twenty-two other States are losing military construction projects, from Alabama to Arizona, North Carolina to Texas, and Maine to Florida. In Utah, the Air Force has sought a new control center at Hill Air Force Base to replace two obsolescent and dilapidated World War II-era warehouses for mission control. In Louisiana, the Air National Guard sought to replace an aircraft parking ramp in a New Orleans facility that exposes the public to an “unacceptable risk” of being impacted by an explosive accident.

In Indiana, Army servicemembers have worked in violation of safety standards for handling explosives and need additional space for munitions. In Kentucky, the military seeks to repair “substandard, deficient, inadequate, and undersized facilities” at a middle school at Fort Campbell that “impair the overall education program” for the children of servicemembers.

Not only is New Mexico one of the States hit by the President’s canceling important military construction projects, but we are one of four States that borders Mexico. We are ground zero for the President’s border wall and the havoc it will wreak on our communities and our way of life. New Mexico and Mexico share an 180-mile border. This border passes... through three counties—Dona Ana, Luna, and Hidalgo—that are home to 11 percent of our State’s population. A majority of the population in those counties is Hispanic. We have vibrant communities along the border and near the border, including our second largest city, Las Cruces, 45 minutes from Mexico.

We have two ports of entry—in Columbus and Santa Teresa—that are bustling with commerce, international trade, and hundreds who cross the border daily to visit family and friends, to go to school, and to shop. I know our border communities. I can tell you for a fact, there is no justification for the diversion of military construction funding away from our troops and to this wall.

Now, I support smart border security and have voted many times to fund smart investment. New Mexico knows what real border security is: well-funded, well-trained, adequate resources; mobile assets; surveillance technology enhanced, well-trained, adequate resources; mobile assets; surveillance technology combined with well-staffed ports of entry that welcome commerce, visitors, and also asylum-seekers seeking refuge from horrific persecution.

The President’s wall, at upward of $25 million, is not a smart investment. It is antiquated and is not designed for today’s challenges. This wasteful approach contrasts to the sound investment we made in the Columbus port of entry. Commerce, personal vehicles, and commercial traffic have increased exponentially over the years. Customs and Border Protection needed more secure facilities. We pushed to expand and update this New Mexico port. For $50 million, we greatly enhanced border security and added to economic growth. Now, that is a wise investment of taxpayer dollars.

In New Mexico, we are concerned about the land grab underway by this administration. They are pushing to express their desire for private lands for the President’s wall, and there are lots of landowners who don’t want their lands cut in half or made unusable.

We can’t get answers from the administration about what they are doing, and so Senator HLeINRIC and I, along with Senator SCHUMER and Senator DURBIN, requested the Government Accountability Office to investigate the number of citizens who could have their land seized, the cost of property, and the time it would take. I am pleased the GAO has opened an inquiry. Not only is there concern that the Trump administration will skirt eminent domain laws, but there is a real threat that environmental laws will be tossed out the window in the administration’s rush to fulfill the President’s campaign promise to build 500 miles of wall.

The wall would run through hundreds of miles of untouched, pristine lands that are home to wildlife like antelope, deer, and javelina. A wall will tear up these lands and their vegetation, cause erosion and flooding, and cut off migratory paths for wildlife.

The Department of the Interior is set to transfer 500 acres of lands in New Mexico, Arizona, and California to the Army for the President’s wall, and 213 of those acres are in my State. The Department of the Interior is supposed to protect our natural resources, not endanger them. A border wall that will compromise their ecological value, destroy habitat connectivity, and harm wildlife.

The President’s wall and his divisive rhetoric toward immigrants is deeply offensive to New Mexicans. We have strong family, cultural, and economic ties to Mexico. We are a proud multicultural State. Our diversity does not divide us; it defines us. It is our strength.

This body holds the power of the purse, not the President. Now is the time to affirm this constitutional power and affirm the appropriations decisions we have made for our own States and the Nation.

We should use the President’s veto and make sure that legitimate national security interests are protected by seeing that the 127 military construction projects go forward on schedule and that we fund the National Defense Authorization Act. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. President, the next vote, the vote we will take in less than an hour, is a vote we would exercise an hour, is a vote we would exercise. The Congressional Review Act, of which I am a supporter. The idea that we should use the Congressional Review Act is a good thing for us to look at what any administration does and determine if that is the right way to go. Today, I certainly intend to vote to maintain the position that the administration has had on the affordable clean energy rule. This is a rule that will have a very positive impact on our State, just like the rule that it replaces would have a very negative impact. We are in the top five coal-using States for energy in our State.

With the Obama administration’s rule, the massive energy regulations would have imposed billions of dollars in compliance costs that would have been passed along every single time that someone harvests a crop, flips on a light switch, shops for groceries, or walks into the door at work. Under the Obama-era rules, families in Missouri have written their utility bills, and similar things all over the country, what I said was, the next time you write your utility check, just write it down for the Trump administration. walking away from the clean power rule, will make a difference for those families. It makes a difference in the utility bill at home, and it makes a difference in the utility bill at work. Lots of jobs simply just don’t work at twice the cost of today’s utility bills. It is a foolish rule and has been properly re- placed with a rule that makes sense. I urge my colleagues to maintain the rule we are headed to, rather than the one we are running away from.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I come to the floor today because our Nation is at a crossroads that strikes at the heart of our democracy. The increasingly brazen actions of this President and his administration have brought us to this moment where we, as a nation, must make a decision about who we are, what we stand for, and what kind of behavior we will allow at the highest levels of our government.

As we continue down this road paved by the President’s reckless actions and his complete disregard for our Nation’s laws and democratic norms, I want to take a moment to step back and talk about how we got here and how much is truly at stake for our country and our democracy if we don’t get this right.

Let’s start by considering what we know for sure. The President has repeatedly sought foreign interference in our elections, which we should all find appalling. We know that President Trump and his associates pressed the Ukrainian Government to meddle in our democratic process, pushing them to launch an investigation without basis into the President’s political opponents in an effort to help his election.

We know that he has made overtures to China—out in the open—to do the same. This is important. We don’t have to take anyone else’s word for it. We saw President Trump’s call record with the Ukrainian President, and we all heard the President and his associates admit to the surreptitious actions from their own lips on camera.

These facts are indisputable and can’t be spun. President Trump and his circle of friends have been clear about their actions and their intentions, and it is clear they are unacceptable, but even more seriously, there are still many questions about the extent of President Trump and his associates’ actions and their potential impact on our democracy, questions for which the American people undoubtedly deserve answers.

That is why the House is right to begin impeachment proceedings to determine if President Trump has committed high crimes and misdemeanors, and why months ago I, too, called on the House to open an inquiry to investigate the President’s deeply distressing actions because, for me and for so many other people across the country, this is not about partisan politics or any politics. This is about maintaining our Constitution by defending the rule of law. It is about nothing less than the future of our democracy. Let me be clear: Because of President Trump, all of this is on the line. That is how serious this is.

I have a message for my Republican colleagues: As much as you would like to stay silent on this, it is not an option. Our forefathers warned us against the power of foreign interference to undermine the foundations of our democracy, and their cautions echo as clearly and as strongly today as they did more than 200 years ago.

As Members of Congress, as representatives of the American people, we took an oath to defend our Nation’s Constitution and our democracy. That is why the Constitution gives authority to Congress and the immense responsibility to provide oversight of the President’s actions. Based just on what we know, it would be a dereliction of duty for us to not do all we can to stop the grave threats to our country’s safety and to our democratic institutions.

If President Trump and his administration have nothing to hide, they should stop obstructing. Let Congress do its job and find the facts. Furthermore, if Congress fails to investigate these issues, it would set its own dangerous new precedent, essentially green-lighting this President’s unethical behavior and his attacks against our democratic institutions for future generations of our Nation’s leaders.

That is a frightening notion. We are now at the crossroads, and we have to make a decision. Over the coming weeks, the actions of the House and possibly the Senate will in large part determine which path we take. Will we allow foreign actors to interfere in our elections and undermine our security or not? Will we stand by it and allow this President and perhaps future Presidents to ignore our Constitution and mangle our democratic norms or not? Will we be a nation of laws or not?

I believe that this country is a country of laws, that our elections must be imbued with the power of foreign interference, and that every elected official should ensure that these fundamental principles come before party or partisanship as this process moves forward.

There are other priorities Congress needs to focus on, important work we have to continue doing to secure our elections, which is all the more paramount given this President’s actions. We will, of course, continue, as well, to focus on lowering healthcare costs and bridging the soaring costs of gun violence and more, but we cannot ignore what President Trump and his associates have done and said and the impact their actions can have on our elections, our democracy, and the future of this country.

I sat in this Chamber as a juror in an impeachment trial before. It was a deeply serious undertaking, and one each Member took seriously before rendering a decision. That is why the seriousness that is required in this moment at this crossroad. If and when the House elects to accuse the President of an impeachable offense or offenses, the Senate right here will host the trial, and we, as Senators, will serve as jurors. If and when that time comes, I know I will approach it seriously, and I deeply hope each of my colleagues will, as well. Each of us will have to put aside every other consideration beyond the facts and focus solely on preserving the integrity of our democracy and upholding our solemn obligation to defend the Constitution. History will record where we all stand.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, there is very little question today that our democracy is under attack. The threat is not only from outside our borders, but from the possible each individual in this body of Congress and the immense responsibility to provide oversight of the President’s actions.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.
threat to our national security because, again, it invites interference. In fact, it pressures interference in our democracy. It validates and strengthens Vladimir Putin, not this Nation.

That is why the impeachment inquiry is being conducted by the House and why it is so important. Impeachment is not a remedy we take lightly or happily; it is a serious, last-resort remedy for the worst abuses of power and an unchecked, rogue President who cannot be held accountable in any other way. But the President has given us no choice. He may not be upholding his oath of office, but we must uphold ours.

The most powerful proof here comes from the words of the President himself in that July 25 conversation. There is no Member of this body who is unfamiliar with those words inviting, soliciting, in fact extorting the President of a foreign nation to interfere in our democracy. He involved officials at the highest levels of government to cover it up, who now have a whistleblower complaint, as well as those call notes between President Trump and President Zelensky that repeat the President's own words. The transcript of that chilling and frightening, almost beyond words.

When Mr. Zelensky mentioned that Ukraine was "ready to buy more Javelins from the United States for defense purposes," President Trump responded with, "Do us a favor through...I would like to do you a favor through..." That is a quote: "I would like you to do us a favor through..." And the favor was, of course, interference in our election.

That kind of invitation emboldens not only the President of Ukraine but every other autocrat and tyrant who might seek similarly to interfere. Let us remember that what the Founders feared most was exactly that kind of interference, whether it was from the imperialists that we have fought and successfully won our freedom or dictators like Vladimir Putin or other nations that will be emboldened to interfere.

My Republican colleagues' silence will not age well. Not only are they unwilling to stand up to this President's abuses and threats to our democracy, the majority leader has refused to put those bills on the floor. He has outright refused to give us a vote on security legislation.

My bill, the duty to report bill, would require campaigns, candidates, and family members to immediately report to the FBI and Federal Election Commission any offers of illegal foreign assistance. It codifies into law what is already known about the President. It is basic common sense. The law already forbids soliciting and accepting that kind of foreign assistance during a campaign; this measure, very simply, would require it to be reported. I have told this body—and I have repeated it numerous times—that when FBI Director Wray came before the Senate Judiciary Committee, he warned that the Russians are still actively trying to interfere in our election. But President Trump just said that if offered foreign assistance, "I'd take it."

Congress must pass this Duty to Report Act, along with other commonsense measures that support election security. Not only can we do it while we are considering impeachment, we must do it because the impeachment offense, in fact, involves foreign interference measure that these election security measures would help to stop. Likewise, I want to mention gun violence protection. Senator Graham and I and others in this body have worked hard over months on negotiating emergency risk protection order legislation. It could be passed along with background checks, and the two should go together.

The bill is in the White House's court. The President has shifted ground again, whether, unpredictably and uncertainly, but I feel we can muster a consensus here. Even as we consider impeachment, we can move forward on a comprehensive set of measures that would help make America safer.

My goal, eventually, is to save as many lives as possible and as quickly as possible through those kinds of measures that would include not only background checks made universal and emergency risk protection orders, but also, in the states with the incentives we would provide with this bill but also a ban on assault weapons and safe storage in honor of Ethan Song, a young man who was killed in Guilford, CT, because of improper storage of a gun that he and a friend were playing with. They would include a ban on high-capacity magazines and a reversal of the sweetheart deal that gave the gun manufacturers near-complete immunity. These commonsense measures can be done even as we consider impeachment.

Likewise, to take another guarantee of our values and the rule of law, forced arbitration clauses cause harm to millions of Americans every year. These clauses are often tucked into the fine print of lengthy consumer contracts and employee handbooks, with workers and consumers having no meaningful choice but to consent to the terms. These forced arbitration clauses, like the ones that manufactured, denies basic justice. They deny Americans their day in court, and they deny public accountability. Consumers and workers are forced into unfair arbitration clauses where corporations can write the rules. They write the rules. Everything can be done in secret, and there is no meaningful judicial rebuke. In many cases, these clauses are paired with provisions that block Americans who have suffered similar harm from banding together in seeking accountability together in a class action lawsuit.

At the start of this Congress, 34 Senators joined me in sponsoring the FAIR Act. This bill would render invalid or unenforceable any arbitration agreement between workers and consumers and corporations that governs employment, civil rights, consumer, or anti-trust disputes. It has an exception for those arbitration agreements that are deemed to serve public interest and a collective bargaining agreements. It is hardly a radical proposal; it is a reform to give Americans access to the justice system again. Yet Senator McConnell regretfully has blocked this bill and others like it. Senator McConnell said: "As long as I am majority leader of the Senate, I get to set the agenda." Meanwhile, corporations are cheating workers, consumers, children, and families out of their day in court.

We need to move forward on these matters: gun violence protection, election security, the FAIR Act. We can do it because America wants it. We will go back to our constituents in this next election, and my colleagues who will ask the President, what will you do? What will you do? What will you do? We are asking the United States to give up a very good, responsible, and Affordable Clean Energy Plan and replace it with the old, Obama-era, illegal, and unconstitutional Clean Power Plan.

Prior to being elected to Congress, I spent nearly 10 years in North Dakota as an energy regulator and oversaw both economic and environmental policies and regulations in our State. I know something of this issue. For the Americans, the people, and they implemented Obama-era Clean Power Plan would result in much higher electricity costs, less money in their pockets, fewer well-paying jobs, and just a lot less freedom. Across the country, their plan would reduce household spending by $78 billion. It would increase electricity prices in my State of North Dakota by 43 percent, and it would cost over 125,000 jobs over the next decade.

Perhaps one of the most disturbing things about the Plan that was presented by the Obama administration—one of the reasons, frankly, that it was deemed to be unconstitutional and illegal and had a stay put on it by the U.S. Supreme Court—was that in my State, under the proposed rule, we had a CO2 reduction target of 11 percent. Yet, in the classic bait-and-switch maneuver, the final rule increased that 11 percent by 400 percent. The 11 percent, while illegal, was doable, but the 400 percent was ridiculous.

So make no mistake, right now, here in the United States, the Democrats are asking us to vote to eliminate good
We cannot let this happen today, and I urge my colleagues to join me in voting no.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Mr. President, I rise to express my outrage with regard to President Trump’s decision to withdraw U.S. troops from northeast Syria. This decision is dangerous, premature, and wholly inconsistent with what the facts on the ground in Syria and the advice from everyone—from our diplomats to our military advisers.

In just 1 week, President Trump has managed to undo 5 years of hard-fought stability in Syria. Just 1 week ago, over 10,000 ISIS fighters, including high-value prisoners who targeted American victims, were secured in prisons throughout northeast Syria. We face, today, a very different picture. Several ISIS prisons are already unmanned and in Turkey’s jurisdiction, and it is estimated that over 100 ISIS prisoners have been released already. We don’t know what will happen in those other detention centers that have housed ISIS prisoners.

One week ago, there was a limited U.S. troop presence of 1,000 Special Forces stabilized a population that was once terrorized by the Syrian regime and later by ISIS. These forces secured a region of Syria that controls over two-thirds of Syria’s natural resources. American troops have, today, either left or are preparing to leave this area, and the Syrian regime is moving in.

Russian troops have moved into U.S. military bases, and over 160,000 Syrian civilians have fled their homes as a result of the spike in violence that has been instigated by Turkey. It is so hard to watch the videos on television that show Turkey-affiliated fighters assassinating Kurdish forces—Kurds with their hands tied behind their backs.

I traveled to Syria a year ago last summer. LINDSEY GRAHAM and I saw firsthand the work of the combined joint task force, Operation Inherent Resolve. We saw the Kirkuk及其 partners, the Syrian Democratic Forces, were doing, and it was truly remarkable. The United States owes a huge debt of gratitude to the men and women of the SDF who sacrificed over 11,000 of their own lives in fighting ISIS so we didn’t have to sacrifice our own.

Because of this sacrifice, when we were in northeast Syria last summer, we witnessed communities like Manbij already started to rebuild after 3 years under ISIS’s brutal occupation, and the widespread appreciation of the U.S. presence among local, multiethnic residents was a testament to the importance of our partnerships and our willingness to lead in times of crisis. As we drove down the roads, we saw kids flashing victory signs at our troops. When we were in the marketplace, we had people come out and tell us how grateful they were that the United States was there to help ensure that peace was being kept. We saw local governance taking place on the ground.

So it is incredibly difficult now to see images coming out of Manbij and the other places we visited in northeast Syria. The Syrian regime has already moved troops back into this region, and Turkey’s proxies, who are seemingly undeterred by the Syrian presence, continue to move into the city of Manbij with heavily armed vehicles. Meanwhile, Russia has spent the last few days touring and posting videos of abandoned, taxpayer-funded U.S. bases.

What is taking place in Manbij and in so many cities across northeast Syria is a direct result to the thousands of American servicemembers who have risked their lives to help stabilize that region and support the fight against ISIS, and it could have all been avoided.

This really began in December of 2018 when President Trump announced his intent to withdraw troops from Syria. That was after holding up for months the stabilization dollars that could have been used to make it very clear that we were committed to the region—to ensuring that ISIS couldn’t rebuild there and that there would be stability in northeastern Syria. We were committed to making sure the United States was at the table when Russia and Iran and Assad moved in and carved up Syria.

I ask unanimous to have printed in the RECORD the recommendations on the best way forward in Syria that were issued last month by the bipartisan Syria Study Group, which I helped to create.

The being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The United States cannot avoid or ignore the conflict in Syria. From the outset of hostilities, minimizing American involvement in the war and safeguarding U.S. national security interests have proven to be incompatible goals. This will remain the case for the foreseeable future. The essential question before American policymakers is not whether the United States should keep or withdraw its forces in Syria, but what strategy and mix of tools will best protect the United States from the conflict’s reverberations and advance American interests. This report sets out such a strategy.

THE SYRIAN CONFLICT AND AMERICAN INTERESTS

From the conflict’s beginning in 2011 as a peaceful domestic uprising, experts warned that President Bashar al-Assad’s brutal response was likely to have serious, negative impacts on U.S. interests. Given Syria’s central location in the Middle East, its ruling regime’s ties to terrorist groups and to Iran, and the incompatibilities in its authoritarian rule with the aspirations of the Syrian people, many worried about the conflict spilling over Syria’s borders. These concerns are now a reality. The Syrian conflict spawned a refugee crisis that has encumbered Syria’s neighbors and roiled European politics. The conflict also stoked the United States’ and its Turkish relations in the point of crisis, led to direct hostilities between Iran and Israel, provided a vector for Russia’s resurgence in the Middle East, and complicated American military intervention. Eight years in, the conflict has not been meaningfully contained, nor has the United States been sheltered from its impact.

Events on the ground dispute the narrative that the conflict has been won by the Assad regime. The Syrian war, far from ending, is entering a new phase. As of this writing, the Assad regime and its patron Russia are pressing an offensive against Idlib that could spur a new humanitarian catastrophe and costly foreign intervention. The conflict is not a binary confrontation between the Western and Russian spheres of influence; it is now a war among multiple factions for the leverage to address those threats and the leverage to allow Iran to consolidate its land routes from Iraq to Lebanon. All of these scenarios pose—that terrorism directed against the United States, ISIS itself, down but not defeated, is already resurfacing as an insurgency and may yet attempt to re-take territory in both Syria and Iraq. Iran and Iraq, already locked in a low-level conflict in Syria, may escalate to open conflict, especially in the Golan Heights. The Assad regime, the Russian and Iranian offshoots offshoots, is seeking to cross the Euphrates River, which could in turn breathe life into the ISIS insurgency and allow Iran to consolidate its land routes from Iraq to Lebanon. All of these scenarios become more likely without U.S. forces in Syria and without committed U.S. leadership to avert these scenarios.

The Syria Study Group uncovered no easy solutions in Syria; optimal outcomes were left behind long ago. Yet the Group determined that, as both the security and political landscapes in Syria pose—of terrorism directed against the United States and its allies and partners; of an empowered Iran; of an energized Russian Federation; of refugees and displaced persons, and other forms of humanitarian catastrophe; and of the erosion of international norms of war and the Western commitment to the region’s security—there is a determined response from the United States. The United States and its allies retain tools to address those threats and the leverage to promote outcomes that are better for American interests than those that would prevail in the absence of U.S. engagement. Using those tools effectively, however, will require better leadership and more backing, and former leaders must be more realistic and the U.S. investment of the latter increased—as well as closer and more high-level engagement with American policy, and the failure of senior U.S. government officials to prioritize the issue with their counterparts, have undermined the credibility and the effectiveness of U.S. policy.

ASSESSMENT OF THE CURRENT SITUATION IN SYRIA

While the conflict in Syria is often characterized as winding down, it is the assessment of the Syria Study Group that this is incorrect; in fact, the conflict remains dynamic and will not resolve in the near future.

The liberation of ISIS-held territory does not eliminate the group’s threat to the United States. ISIS no longer holds significant territory in Syria or Iraq, but it is not defeated. The group has morphed into an insurgency with the will, capability, and resolve to conduct attacks against the United States. ISIS will seek to take advantage of any opening, whether a reduction in U.S. counterterrorism pressure or disinterest in an ongoing conflict, to recruit new fighters and mount attacks. ISIS’s terrorist ideology, or “brand,” continues to hold appeal.

The ISIS detained population is a long-term challenge that is not being adequately addressed. Although ISIS has suffered significant losses in the caliphate, including thousands of foreign fighters—remaining under U.S. kidnapping and terror attacks in Iraq and Syria. The SDF has custody of both groups but lacks the resources and outside support to hold them indefinitely. U.S. intelligence and allied efforts to deal with this problem have suffered with a lack of political will. Al-Qaeda and other terrorist groups remain active in Syria and threaten the United States. Although ISIS has received far more attention than Al-Qaeda, the active Al-Qaeda offshoot offshoot, and the region, especially in Idlib, Al-Qaeda offshoots have formed a government in Idlib, which remains a threat to the maintenance of Syria’s sovereignty. The SDF has been a highly effective partner in the fight against ISIS, it regarded by the U.S. military as a highly effective partner in the conventional military campaign against ISIS. That partnership faces new challenges with the shift from fighting to governing. The SDF remains under threat from ISIS, which may yet prompt a third Turkish incursion into Syria, which could severely complicate the U.S. military campaign against ISIS, as well as the SDF’s ability to use Syria as an arena for regional influence. The United States underestimated Russia’s ability to use Syria as an arena for regional influence. Russia’s intervention, beginning in 2015, has accomplished the preservation of the regime in defiance of U.S. calls for Assad to “go”—at a relatively low cost. Russia has enhanced its profile and status in the Middle East.

The extent of Russia’s success in Syria is debatable—it has yet to translate Assad’s military victory into the region’s politics for the first time in decades.

U.S.-Turkey relations are strained in Syria by starkly diverging views of the SDF. A Turkish incursion into northeastern Syria could compromise U.S. aims in Syria and a new crisis for the U.S.-Turkey relationship. The United States regards its decision to partner with the SDF in the campaign against ISIS as having been necessitated by the lack of credible and timely Turkish alternative; Turkey regards the SDF as a grave security threat due to its perceived alignment with the Syrian Kurdish Workers’ Party (PKK), a threat made more dangerous by U.S. training and equipping of the SDF. This dispute has placed a significant role in the evolution of U.S.-Turkish relations and may yet prompt a third Turkish incursion into Syria, which could severely complicate the U.S. military campaign against ISIS, as well as the SDF’s ability to use Syria as an arena for regional influence.

burden on host countries, especially Syria’s neighbors; pressure is increasing, particularly within Lebanon and Turkey, for non-voluntary returns. Inside Syria, a large proportion relies on humanitarian aid, over which the regime seeks to exercise control in order to enhance its power.

Despite these challenges, the United States maintains leverage to shape an outcome in Syria that protects core U.S. national security interests. The Group identified several key players held by the United States, particularly if used in coordination with allies and partners: influence over northeastern Syria; sanctions against the Assad regime; the withholding of reconstruction assistance desired by Assad and Russia; and the ongoing diplomatic isolation of the Assad regime.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR U.S. POLICY

Despite its daunting assessment of the situation in Syria, the Group believes that the United States is still able to exercise influence over the conflict’s trajectory, and that it must do so given the threats the conflict poses to American interests. The Group believes that the best end state in Syria is one in which a Syrian government is viewed as legitimate and populated with those it will and capability to end Syria’s dependence on foreign forces and to prevent terrorist groups from thriving on Syrian territory. This is a conditional prospect, in which Syrian citizens live free from fear of the Assad regime and of Russian, Iranian, and ISIS brutality and within an updated political and social compact based on decentralization, governance and equitable resource allocation.

Recognizing that such an outcome is a distant prospect, the Group recommends a strategy that makes a negotiated political settlement in Syria more likely yet also allows the United States to defend its interests even in the absence of a solution. None of those consulted by the Group believe that withdrawing U.S. forces would make ISIS less likely to regroup, Iran less likely to entrench itself, and the United States less likely to face war crimes investigations of a political settlement and, absent such actions, should avoid making concessions.

Concurrently, the United States should press Moscow, in part by highlighting Russian complicity in war crimes. Remain focused on driving Iranian forces and proxies from Syria but recognize that this is best accomplished in phases. The key near-term goal should be to prevent further entrenchment of Iran and its many partners and proxies while raising the cost to Iran for its actions in Syria. To this end, the United States should continue air strikes; enforce sanctions aimed at undermining Iran’s ability to fund its proxies and partners in Syria, Lebanon, and Iraq; maintain the U.S. military presence at the Al-Tanf military base; and support efforts to expose Iranian influence efforts in Syria. The United States should insist that any political settlement require the withdrawal of Iranian forces and proxies from Syria.

Seek areas for cooperation with Turkey and address legitimate Turkish security concerns while pressing Turkey to avoid any incursion into northeastern Syria and to improve conditions in the Afrin and Euphrates Shield areas. U.S. efforts to reach agreement on a security zone or security mechanism along Turkey’s border with northeastern Syria should continue, and every attempt should be made to isolate Syria from other problems in the U.S.-Turkey relationship. The United States should encourage the resumption of Turkey-PKK peace talks, which hold the best possibility of leading to a negotiated settlement between the SDF. The United States should press Turkey to improve conditions and access in the areas of Syria it controls.

Seek to avert a humanitarian catastrophe in Idlib while addressing the presence there of terrorist groups. The United States should explore avenues to increase the pressure on terrorist groups in Idlib that may be plotting external attacks. At the same time, the United States should seek to deter the Assad regime and its partners from continuing to target civilians in the territory. In preparation for a renewed humanitarian and refugee crisis in Idlib, the United States should press Turkey to coordinate with NGOs and with other stakeholders, including the United Nations and other humanitarian and stakeholder organizations (NGOs) serving the population.

Engage efforts to address the humanitarian assistance crisis and to take steps to shore up countries hosting Syrian refugees. The United States should work to ensure the continued provision of humanitarian aid to vulnerable populations inside and outside Syria. The United States should press for the renewal of the UN “cross-border” humanitarian mechanism to enable other states to fund humanitarian appeals for Syria, and work with international financial institutions to support refugee-hosting countries. The United States should stand by Syria’s efforts to forcibly repatriate Syrian refugees and should resume accepting Syrian refugees in the United States.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. The report read that the United States should make the most of its gains and hold on to a critical piece of land until a negotiated settlement was reached between all parties. Moreover, the report, which was bipartisan—that had Representatives appointed by Members of Congress and by the administration—read that withdrawing U.S. troops would not make ISIS less likely to regroup or Iran less likely to entrench itself.

President Trump’s ill-informed and hasty decision will not only breathe new life into the terrorist groups—into ISIS, which is really just al-Qaida by another name—and cede America’s hard-fought gains in the region to Russia, Iran, and Assad, but it will erode U.S. credibility in the long term. It will cede America’s hard-fought gains in the region.

I wish there were alternatives that we as a country could pursue. Sadly, I don’t think we can put the genie back in the bottle. Here in Congress, though, I hope we will look at ways to hold Turkey and President Erdogan accountable for his actions.

I certainly hope President Trump will revoke his invitation to President Erdogan to visit the United States. President Erdogan needs to hear an unequivocal message of opposition to this incursion from the United States, and it makes no sense to extend hospitality and niceties during this moment of crisis.

Republicans and Democrats must come together and ensure that the administration understands the consequences of its actions. We have to do more to ensure that such mistakes never happen again.

I yield the floor.

S.J. RES. 53

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the resolution of disapproval sponsored by Senator Cruz that would block the Administration’s harmful Affordable Clean Energy Rule.

In Maine, our economy is inextricably linked to the environment. Our State, which is situated at the end of the Nation’s air pollution tailpipe, has made substantial progress in reducing harmful emissions by increasing energy efficiency, adopting clean energy technologies, and improving air quality and public health. While I am pleased by the progress our country has already made in reducing air pollutants, the administration’s rule to repeal and rewrite the Clean Power Plan is a step in the wrong direction.
Climate change is a significant risk that threatens Maine’s working forests, fishing, and agricultural industries, as well as tourism and recreation and our coastal communities. I will continue to work in Congress to support realistic, responsible solutions that help reduce harmful emissions and protect our environment and the health of our citizens.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to complete my remarks prior to the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I rise in strong opposition to the Congressional Review Act resolution that has been put forward by the Democrats on which we will soon be voting.

The Democrats’ resolution would eliminate President Trump’s affordable clean energy rule, an energy policy that was passed with overwhelming bipartisan support. This commonsense policy protects our air, and it allows our economy to grow at the same time. The affordable clean energy rule would replace the Obama administration’s so-called Clean Power Plan. The punishing plan would have damaged our economy, and where I have here is a map to go over some of that. It would have closed powerplants. It would have put energy workers on unemployment. It would have reduced the reliability of our electricity. It would have raised electricity bills for American families and for small businesses.

The results would have been dramatic. There would have been dramatic increases in electricity bills all across the country. The plan would have devastated communities, certainly in my home State of Wyoming. It would have raised electricity bills by 42 percent in the State of Wyoming, and they would have gone up in every State.

Wyoming is America’s leading producer of coal. It supports thousands of good-paying jobs all across the State. Across Wyoming, the punishing power plan would put hard-working men and women out of work. The rule would be a massive roadblock for States. Instead of working collaboratively with State governments, it would put the EPA in the driver’s seat of setting a national energy policy.

States would be told what energy sources were allowed within their borders, and where they were not.

Worst of all, the so-called Clean Power Plan would have barely reduced carbon emissions, it would have crippled our economy, and done very little, if anything, to help the environment.

President Obama’s plan wasn’t just bad policy, it was illegal. Twenty-seven States, including Wyoming, filed a lawsuit to stop the regulation. The Supreme Court ruled that Obama’s EPA went way beyond its legal authority. The Court blocked the overreach.

Now President Trump has put forward a commonsense replacement to protect America’s air. The affordable clean energy rule follows the law, and it is good news for the people of Wyoming and the rest of the country. It recognizes that the EPA is not supposed to pick winners and losers.

Under the new rule, powerplants can make energy that is more efficient. The rule promotes the use of new cleaner technologies to generate electricity so energy companies can modernize their powerplants without having to shut them down completely.

The rule also respects the role of States under the Clean Air Act. It gets rid of “Washington knows best,” which is an approach we deal with—a top-down approach of untested, unaccountable, heavy-handed bureaucrats. States understand how to protect the air their citizens breathe. They know it is an important thing to do. The end result will be cleaner air and more affordable energy for America’s households.

Now Senate Democrats want to play politics once again and uproot the affordable clean energy rule. Democrats want to resurrect a rule that the Supreme Court found unprecedented action to stop. That would be bad for our environment, bad for our economy, and bad for our country.

Under the Congressional Review Act, if Congress reapplies the affordable clean energy rule, the administration couldn’t replace it with a similar rule.

The administration put forward a commonsense rule to protect our air quality, and now Democrats want to kill it. That is the proposal on the floor today.

Democrats have become hostages to the far-left agenda, even when it doesn’t make any sense. It is not good policy, and we have seen this before.

The Environment and Public Works Committee, which I chair, recently passed legislation to help reduce the amount of plastic pollution in our oceans. The bipartisan bill follows up on the groundbreaking work we did in the Ocean’s Act that passed and was signed into law last Congress.

Instead of supporting the legislation, extreme environmentalists oppose the bill—a bipartisan bill we got passed out of the House committees, as well as the House of Representatives waiting for a vote.

Mr. BARRASSO. It reflects what I introduced along with Senator WHITEHOUSE, who gives speeches each week on climate change on the floor of the Senate. We have worked together. It has passed our committee unanimously. It has received overwhelming bipartisan support in the Senate, it is still being blocked in the House. The bill has bipartisan support in the House as well, but it hasn’t gone anywhere. It is being stopped because Democratic leaders in the House refuse the commonsense bill that would lower carbon emissions and help address carbon climate change.

They are climate alarmists. They want things done drastically, unilaterally, immediately, when we are trying to take commonsense steps in the right direction.

Killing commonsense policies, like the affordable clean energy rule and the USE IT Act, makes no sense to me.

President Trump’s rule respects the law, and it helps the environment. It is a win-win for our country. Americans deserve clean air. They also deserve clear rules, and the affordable clean energy rule gives us both.

I urge every Senator to oppose the resolution that is coming up to the floor.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. FISCHER). All time is expired.

The clerk will read the title of the joint resolution for the third time.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the joint resolution pass?

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays are ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. THUNE. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Tennessee (Mr. Alexander); and the Senator from Georgia (Mr. Isakson).

Mr. DURBIN. Further, if present and voting, the Senator from Tennessee (Mr. Alexander) would have voted ‘aye’ and the Senator from Georgia (Mr. Isakson) would have voted ‘nay.’
the Senator from California (Ms. Harris), the Senator from Minnesota (Ms. Klobuchar), and the Senator from Vermont (Mr. Sanders) are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

RELATING TO A NATIONAL EMERGENCY DECLARED BY THE PRESIDENT ON FEBRUARY 15, 2019—VETO

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the pending business.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Veto message to accompany S.J. Res. 54, a joint resolution relating to a national emergency declared by the President on February 15, 2019.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.J. RES. 77

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, I am going to speak for a minute before I make my unanimous consent request.

Now, we have a crisis here in this world and here in America. Because of the President’s precipitous action to take a small number of American troops out of northern Syria and green-light Erdogan’s invasion, we are in real trouble. We are in trouble in a whole lot of ways.

Most importantly, we, in New York, know that a small group of bad people can cause terrible terrorism with huge loss of life, even when they are 7,000 miles away. There are about 70,000 ISIS prisoners and their families now being guarded by the Kurds, but because of the President’s action, they will no longer be guarded.

When we went to the White House yesterday and asked the President and his military folks what is the plan to prevent mass of these ISIS would-be terrorists from escaping, they didn’t have one. They didn’t have one because the Kurds have left, and the only people who might guard them are the Syrians or the Turks, and neither of them has any desire to guard ISIS.

In fact, I asked the Defense Secretary Esper: Is there any intelligence that shows that either the Syrians or the Turks would do a good job at guarding the ISIS prisoners and preventing them from escaping?

No, there was no intelligence to that effect. As a result, ISIS prisoners are escaping, will continue to escape, and America will pay an awful price—an awful price. The Kurds will pay an awful price. They have fought alongside our soldiers. They are our allies.

I talked to my friend from Kentucky who said the Kurds are better off with the Syrians. Well, the Kurds sure don’t think so. They would rather be back to the status quo ante with the leaders. Certainly, America will not be better off at all with ISIS prisoners escaping.

Who did this? The President. The President’s incompetence has put America in a dangerous danger—simply, startlingly put but accurate. In New York, as I said, we know well how a small group of fanatics halfway around the world can do incredible damage and kill thousands of Americans here on our soil.

It should shake every Member of this body, regardless of their ideology and regardless of their views on Turkey, that the President made this decision so abruptly without heeding the advice of our commanders on the ground and now has a plan to manage the consequences.

After meeting with the President yesterday, it was clear to both Democrats and Republicans in the room that he does not grasp the gravity of the situation. He doesn’t understand it. The most important thing we can do right now is send President Trump a message that Congress, the vast majority of Democrats and Republicans, demand he reverse course.

I am asking this as a unanimous consent to not go through a long regular process because the bottom line is, the longer we wait, the more Kurds will die—our allies—the more ISIS prisoners will escape, and the greater danger, hour by hour, day by day, America falls into. We should move this resolution. We need unanimous consent.

I spoke to my good friend from Kentucky. He said he wanted to put a resolution on the floor about military aid to Turkey, something many on my side were sympathetic to. I offered him the ability of moving his resolution—we would have to, of course, get permission of all Members, but I would work through that—in return for us moving our resolution. He still said no. He still said no. I think that is a horrible decision. I think it could well risk the lives of Americans down the road. I think it will certainly risk the lives of many Kurds, our allies.

We will return to this issue. I wish we could pass it now—the same bill that passed the House with the vast majority of Republicans, 2 to 1, with Leaders McCarthy and Scalise and Cheney voting for it—and go forward. I understand the motivations of my friend from Kentucky are sincere and real. He has had these positions consistently. They are not the positions of the majority on his side nor on our side on many issues. On some, we have worked together and agreed, but I think it is so wrong not to move forward. It is so wrong to let the man, both Democrats and Republicans saw in the White House yesterday, stay in control without pressuring him to do better—without pressuring him.

There is no better, quicker, or more powerful way to pressure the President to undo the damage he has caused than to pass a bipartisan joint resolution that will go directly to his desk. We will come back to this issue. It will not go away. It cannot go away for the safety of America, for the safety of the Kurds, for some degree of stability, not chaos in the Middle East that the President, President Trump, precipitously caused.

I plead with my colleague from Kentucky and anyone else who might object to let us have the vote. Let us make our arguments and prevail. We are willing to do debate time. Let us not say it has to be my way or the highway when so many lives and such danger is at risk.

I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 216, H.J. Res. 77, that the Resolved be read a third time and the Senate vote on passage with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. PAUL. Madam President, reserving the right to object. The Constitution is quite clear on this subject. If the minority leader wishes to engage in the civil war in Syria that has been going on for nearly a decade, we should obey the Constitution. He should come to the floor and say we are ready to declare a war, we are ready to authorize force, and we are going to stick our troops in the middle of this messy, messy five-sided civil war, where we would be ostensibly opposed to the Turkish Government that has made an incursion. We would then be opposed to our NATO ally. It would be the first time in history that we would be inserting ourselves militarily against a NATO ally.

None of this is to excuse Turkey’s action. In fact, today I will offer a resolution that would actually do something.
The resolution that is being offered is simply a way to have petty, partisan criticism of the President infect this body. Mine, actually, would have the force of law and would prevent any arms from being sold to Turkey, which would be a serious rebuke to what they are doing in Syria.

The Constitution is quite clear. No authorization has ever been given for the use of force in Syria. There was no authorization of declaration of war and no permission to be there at all. So if they are going to hurt themselves in this civil war, by all means, let’s have a debate. Let’s have a constitutional debate, but I, for one, am not willing to send one young man or one young woman, one soldier over there without a clear mission.

There is no clear mission. There is no clear enemy. In fact, the war is largely over. Assad is going to remain, for better or worse. So we have a despot on one side, Erdogan. We have another despot on the other side, Assad. Here is the deal: The Kurds have to live there. It is desiring that they have to live there, but you know what, their best chance for survival is having an ally inside of Syria.

If they become allied, and it appears they are—if they become allied with Assad, you know what, there is a possibility of a Kurdish area within Syria. There may well be an opportunity for a Kurdish area similar to what has happened in Iraq.

So I object to this resolution because this resolution does nothing to fix the problem. My resolution would stop arms sales to Turkey, so I will object to this resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. YOUNG). Objection is heard.

Mr. SCHUMER. I believe history will show that the country, the Senate, and even the Senator from Kentucky will regret this blocking of this resolution. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. 2624

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, at this time I want to ask unanimous consent that we introduce S. 2624, Turkey arm sales, which would eliminate any further sale of arms to Turkey and, instead of sending a false message or a sense of the Senate resolution, would actually be a binding resolution and would tell the Turks: Yes, we are serious. We object to this resolution because this resolution does nothing to fix the problem. My resolution would stop arms sales to Turkey, so I will object to this resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. RISCH. Reserving the right to object, colleagues, this is a very fluid situation, as we all know, and, certainly, Americans who are watching this from home are confused about the parties. Then, when laying politics on top of it, where you have a level of animus toward the Commander in Chief that there is at this point, it becomes very difficult to sort this out. So as chair of the Foreign Relations Committee, I want to try to lay out some fundamentals that we need to deal with.

As has been pointed out by everyone—and I think everyone agrees—the situation on the ground in Syria is an incredibly complex situation. It is difficult for me to manage at some point because of the fact that there are dozens and dozens of tribal entities that share religious or cultural or tribal affiliations either together or in opposition. The result of that is the mess that we have had in Syria for so long.

On top of that, in northern Syria we have a situation where the Kurds and the Turks are at odds with each other. This has happened just recently, and as described by the ranking member of the Senate, Republicans, Democrats—knows, it is a very serious situation, but this is not new. The animosity and fight between the Turks and the Kurds have been going on for centuries. This fight between these groups has been going on for centuries.

Who are these two groups? First, we have the Turks on one side, on the north of the border, who are members of NATO and are at the very least theoretical allies of the United States, although in recent years that alliance has been strained, and that is an understatement of what the situation is.

Recently, they negotiated a deal with the Russians to buy S-400 missiles, which is a horrendous problem for a member of NATO. NATO was formed, of course, to push back against the Russians, and now you have a member of NATO that is engaging with the Russians in this fashion. This has caused us real grief.

Those of us who deal with it have dealt with it for months. We have been pressing the Turks as hard as we can about the mistake they have made and the consequences it is going to have. They have an order for F-35s. They make a number of parts for the F-35. We have told them clearly, in no uncertain terms, for months that they can have the F-35s or they can have the S-400s, but they cannot have both. They insisted that they can. That is simply not going to happen, and I think they are starting to believe that.

Fast forward to where we are now. The Turks have amassed about 30,000 troops on the border with Syria and are ready to come in and take on the Kurds, who had moved north of the northern part of Syria due to the failed-state status of Syria.

To say that the President of the United States is responsible for this is simply a political statement that isn’t true. You can dislike the Commander in Chief, you can dislike the calls that he makes, but this is a war that has been going on between these two groups for centuries. It was going to happen.

The fact that Erdogan had amassed 30,000 troops on the border was a clear indication that it was going to go forward. We had about 28 troops between the two standing armies and admittedly the President of the United States pulled those 28 troops out of harm’s way.

In any event, you can argue about what got us here. The triggering factor was, whether it was or wasn’t going to happen anyway, but what you can’t argue about is what the situation is today. There isn’t anyone in this body that would disagree that this is a very serious situation.

Turkey is alone on this, by the way. With the possible exception of the Qatars, they are alone on this. The world has been watching this, condemning what Turkey is doing. They issues with Turkey. It addresses the issues with Turkey. It addresses the issues with the Kurds. It addresses the issues that the minority leader addressed regarding the ISIS prisoners who are being held. It is a good piece of legislation.

It is going to have numerous—and I mean numerous—cosponsors to the bill from both sides of the aisle. So with that in mind, I am going to enter an objection to Senator Paul’s piece of legislation, not because I object to it as it stands by itself but because we have a comprehensive piece of legislation that does address this that is the result of consultation between both the majority and the minority and the administration to get us a bill that could actually become law.

From my own standpoint, I am always at a point where I want to reach an objective and want to get to a result. Senator Paul’s and the other legislation cannot become law. This bipartisan piece of legislation, Risch-Menendez, which addresses this very, very serious issue can become law. As a result of that, Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I applaud President Trump for the restraint, the resolve, and the commitment to constitutional principles that he demonstrated when he decided not to have the United States go into Syria, not to continue to involve our troops in a looming conflict in Syria.

I agree that it is a horrible situation. I agree that we have people running both Syria and Turkey who are not our friends and who have shown significant hostility toward us. It is precisely because of that and not in spite of it that we shouldn't be there, especially when you look at account that we do not have a declaration of war relative to Syria. We do not have an authorization for the use of military force with regard to Syria. Under our system of government, the U.S. Constitution placed the power to declare war or otherwise authorize the use of military force in Congress. This was no accident. It is the branch of the Federal Government most accountable to the people at the most regular intervals.

The great break from our previous system of government—the one that was based in London. In Federalist No. 69, Alexander Hamilton explained that this was no accident, that under the British model, the King, as the one executive, had the power to take the country to war. It was Parliament's job, then, to follow along, to figure out what to do about it and how to fund it.

This would not be the case in the American Republic. This is not the case under our Constitution. Yet, sadly, for decades we have had a Congress consisting of Republicans and Democrats, Senators and Representatives who have allowed the legislative muscle to atrophy, who have refused and declined to exercise the power to declare war.

In that context, I have heard Republicans and Democrats, Senators and Representatives alike, defer again and again to Presidents of every conceivable partisan combination, saying: Let the President decide what we do. Throughout our inaction, we have essentially relinquished the power to declare war.

Why does this matter? This is the only connection the American people have to the power to declare war. When we send their brave sons and daughters into harm's way, we owe it to them to have an open, public robust debate and discussion in which we make a deal with them, in which we outline the terms for our engagement.

We don't have that in Syria. There are those who are upset that we don't, and I understand that they are upset that we don't. If they are upset that we don't, it is not as though we are a victim. We are the actor, not the acted upon. We have the power right here and right now to bring up a proposal. If they want to declare war with regard to Syria, let's have that discussion.

I am not a fan of war. I am not a fan of war starting on behalf of the United States anywhere in the world right now, but if somebody wants to make that discussion, let's have it, and let's debate it.

But what people shouldn't be doing is criticizing President Trump, who has shown restraint and shown deference to Congress, the American people, to protect our sons and daughters who would be protecting us. He is saying: Maybe, just maybe, when you have a bad guy in Turkey, wanting to do some things in Syria with regard to the Kurds, when you take into account the fact that Turkey is, in fact, a NATO ally and we have a NATO article 5 obligation to do something about that, that is going to lead to full-blown war. We should therefore respect him. We should be grateful to him for taking that step of restraint.

This President has been unique in modern history in not blindly deferring to the military industrial complex. I thank him for that and salute his willingness to stand behind our brave men and women.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. BROWN. I rise to speak today because I just finished up visiting all 92 counties in our home State, and every one of them, especially at the tail end, have backed what we have been doing here, especially following the lead of President Trump.

When it comes to the particular issue of Syria, I think it begs the question when people say it green-lighted what occurred there. What would the reaction have been had we not gotten out of harm's way in guessing it would have been a bigger fiasco in many different dimensions.

The minority leader indicated that Mr. PAUL's idea was horrible. I want to make the point that, collectively, over the last 40 to 50 years, we have been engaged all the way back to the Vietnam war, where we have been adventure-some and have done it where we have not paid for it, and we are now in a pickle. This is what the President decided to do. You cannot continue being engaged like this when running trillion-dollar deficits—$22 trillion in debt. Hoosiers understand that, and most Americans do as well.

So I am going to support RAND PAUL's amendment, and I am glad that the President finally had the guts to do what most Americans have been for, and I am disappointed that the other side in any other situation would have been for exact action.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator for Wisconsin.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. 2086

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. President, I rise today to stand with nearly 25,000 workers and retirees in Wisconsin who have paid into the Central States Pension Fund. More than 4 years ago, thousands of Wisconsinites started receiving letters in the mail telling them that the plans they had worked for, planned on, and earned—would not be paid out in full as was promised to them.

Instead, those letters said their pensions would be slashed by 50 percent, 60 percent, or sometimes 70 percent. Since then, those retirees have organized. They have organized at home. They have called on their Members of Congress. They have come to Washington time and time again to remind us of the promises that were made when they earned their pensions and to fight for a solution to the pending crisis.

I have been proud to work side-by-side with these Wisconsin workers and retirees, and with my colleague Senator BROWN to introduce the Butch Lewis Act.

This legislation will put failing multiemployer pension plans, including Central States, back on solid ground, and it does so without cutting the pensions that retirees have earned. It does so without cutting the pensions retirees have earned. This is not just good policy for workers and retirees because putting these pensions back on strong financial footing would also save small businesses that employed them from the threat of closing their doors if these plans are allowed to fail.

Compounding this looming crisis is the reality that the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, the PBGC—the government's insurance for multiemployer pension plans like Central States—is on its own path to insolvency by 2025. This week, I reintroduced legislation to help address the financial challenges of the PBGC. The Pension Stability Act would add funding to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation's multiemployer program by imposing a fee on financial firms convicted of financial crimes.

This weekend, I was in Endeavor, WI, with retirees who meet once a month at the fire station to update one another on our progress here in Washington. I have been to many, many such meetings like that across the country in the months since the House passed the Butch Lewis Act, there hasn't been much other progress to speak of. The Senate hasn't taken up the bill, no other proposals have been offered, and all the while, retirees and workers in the Central States Pension Fund continue to doubt their retirement security.

Today, I am asking my colleagues in the Senate to join me and pass my Pension Stability Act and to help generate a renewed and renewed commitment to the retirement security of millions of Americans. If Washington does not act, workers and retirees will face massive cuts to the pensions they have earned over decades of hard work. I have come to the floor many times to remind this body about the retirees—some of whom stand to lose more than 50 percent of their pensions—and still, nothing has been done. So I am here once again to remind my colleagues that this is about a promise that must be kept.

Mr. President, To remind us of the consent that the HELP Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 2596 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration; further, that the bill be considered read a third time and passed and the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I thank and commend my friend and distinguished colleague, the Senator from Wisconsin, for her work on this effort. I am not familiar with this legislation. I don’t serve on the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee. I have friends who do. I have friends who couldn’t be here today but who have asked me to voice objection on their behalf.

On behalf of the senior Senator from Tennessee, Senator ALEXANDER, I object.

The Senator from Wisconsin.

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. President, my message to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle today is simple: If you will continue to object to my proposal to help our colleagues to pass this legislation, then please bring up your plan. Bring your ideas to the table, and let’s work together to solve this pension crisis and protect the retirement security of Americans because just objecting to our plans is not an option for the 25,000 workers and retirees I am representing here today. Doing nothing is not an option. If we don’t act, we will be breaking a promise made to 1.5 million workers and retirees nationwide. Pension promises must be kept.

Once again, I will say Washington needs to act, and we need to do it now. I yield back.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 1041

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I rise yet again today to speak about an issue near and dear to my heart and an issue that has become the focus of many of my passions here in the Senate, and that is the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act. This is an important and overwhelmingly bipartisan piece of legislation. It is a piece of legislation that passed in July by an overwhelming vote of 365 to 65.

Two of these things should strike the American people as remarkable: No. 1, that something with that much of a bipartisan margin passed in the House of Representatives, and No. 2, that it deals with immigration, and it was still that overwhelmingly bipartisan.

As I explained in this Chamber before, the concept of this legislation is simple. Our current method for allocating green cards caps the total number of green cards that any one country may receive. In practice, this results in severe de facto discrimination on the basis of country of origin. Immigrants from countries with large populations are restricted to receiving the same number of visas as immigrants from smaller countries. Their wait times have ballooned, in some cases stretching out literally for decades. The problem compounds over time and it is even more unfair than it was many decades ago when it was first enacted into law.

I repeat, this happens for absolutely no reason other than the country in which an immigrant was born. Let’s say that two immigrants—one from India and the other from Germany—with the exact same skills, the exact same degrees, and the exact same job experience apply at the same hour of the same day for an employment-based green card. The German might wait maybe 12 months to receive a green card. Well, the Indian applicant will almost certainly wait a decade or far more. This kind of system is antithetical to American values and to the interests of other countries. What was the very best and the very brightest from around the world irrespective of race, religion, or country of origin.

It is simply unacceptable that in 2019 our immigration system still contains a country-of-origin cap as a defining feature. The per-country caps simply must go. They are wrong. They were never good policy. Whatever policy they might have had in mind decades ago, it escapes me—except, in fact, that they are probably right to be wrong at the outset. It has become more wrong over time as these problems have compounded.

The obviousness of the moral error embedded within this legislation is more profound and easily visible today than it has ever been. If you were to describe this to anyone, they would scratch their head and say: Why would you want to do that unless you are engaging in some type of discrimination that we are as a country understandably abandoned a long time ago and should no longer embrace?

The harm inflicted by any kind of invidious discrimination, whether it be on the basis of race or sex or country of origin, does not exist simply in the abstract, in the ether; the human suffering caused by it happens to be real and heartbreaking.

Although, in the time we have here this afternoon to discuss this, I am not sure how close we are to doing justice to all the people who are being harmed by the per-country cap system, I would like to share at least a few of their stories so that you understand how this law operates. I find that when you tell stories about a law, people understand the law and they understand what needs to change about the law a lot more than they would have otherwise.

Agna Hingu is a registered nurse who received the same degree, and the exact same job offer in the exact same field, as a result of that, she cannot receive the same number of visas as her training with her, depriving Utah’s residents of a smart, skilled, kind, and caring nurse.

Ashish Patel first came to Utah legally in 2005 on a temporary high-skilled work visa. Since that time, he has worked hard at his job, paid taxes, followed the law, got married, and had two kids, both of whom were born as American citizens. In February of 2011, Mr. Patel’s petition to earn a green card was approved. Despite this and despite the fact that 8, going on 9 years have now elapsed, his green card remains unissued. Why? Well, solely because of the arbitrary, wrong, discriminatory per-country caps. Ashish Patel is still in the backlog even as immigrants from other countries who have applied years and years after he did and years and years after he received his approval have already been granted permanent resident status. If Mr. Patel had emigrated from any country in the world other than India, he would already have his green card today.

Dr. Chaitanya Mamillapalli is an endocrinologist who has been serving in central Illinois for the past 9 years. He came to the United States in 2007. He will likely not receive his green card for at least another decade. His daughter was 1 year old when she came with her parents to this country. In a few years, she will age out of her temporary visa, and Dr. Mamillapalli will face a decision that confronts many people stuck in the backlog community: Does he separate from his daughter as she loses her temporary status, or does he abandon his life in the United States in order to keep his family together?

Dr. Priya Shamugam lives in Louisiana and is an aerospace engineer who studied at the University of Alabama and at UCLA. She dreams of working for NASA. After 13 years in the backlog, she is still waiting for a green card. As a result of that, she cannot fulfill her dream of joining America’s space team and helping put the first person on Mars. Until she finally gets her green card, our country will continue to lose out on talented engineers.

Dr. Krishnendu Roy is a professor of computer science and head of the Department of Computer Science at Valdosta State University in Georgia. He studied for his degree in Louisiana and has lived in the United States for over 16 years. During that time, he shaped the lives of countless students in Georgia through the classes he teaches by organizing computing camps for K-12 students and by mentoring the robotics team in his community. He has followed the law a lot more than they would have otherwise.
backlog, with no end to his wait in sight.

Dr. Sri Obulareddy is an oncologist working just outside Dickinson, ND, who came to the United States in 2006. She moved to North Dakota because the area needed doctors specializing in oncology. Her impact on the community has been invaluable. Recently, she tried to return from a trip to India, but approval for her visa was delayed for 6 weeks, forcing her patient to travel 200 miles as they scrambled the find a temporary physician. The pain this caused her patient would never have come about if she had not been subjected to an arbitrary, discriminatory cap based on her country of origin and had already received her green card.

Ash Kannan lives in Oklahoma. Her story is a heartbreaking example of the devastating effects of the long wait for a green card and the effects that a family can endure under this system. Ash and her husband’s toddler died from a congenital disease about 3 years ago. The illness that took their son could have been treated had they been able to move to a different home, one closer to the medical facility that provided the treatment. They were unable to do so, and their son was thus unable to receive the care he required, that he needed, because Ash was forced to remain with the same employer while he waited in the green card backlog and, consequently, was unable to move.

These are just some of the names and stories of some of the hard-working, law-abiding immigrants who have come to the United States to build lives and to contribute to our communities but who have been told that because of the countries in which they were born, they have to wait decades in the green card backlog before they can start living the American dream. These are just some of the names and stories of some of the hard-working, law-abiding immigrants who have come to the United States to build lives and to contribute to our communities but who have been told that because of the countries in which they were born, they have to wait decades in the green card backlog before they can start living the American dream. These are just some of the names and stories of some of the hard-working, law-abiding immigrants who have come to the United States to build lives and to contribute to our communities but who have been told that because of the countries in which they were born, they have to wait decades in the green card backlog before they can start living the American dream.

I understand and recognize that while the per-country caps themselves are completely indefensible—and they are—some people have concerns about how eliminating the caps might impact a single country that we punish, that we exclude uniquely against other countries of origin in the context of employment-based immigrant visas.

To address those very concerns in this Congress, I have negotiated with Senator Grassley an amendment to the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigration Act that ensures that all immigrants—whether they come to the United States to build lives and to contribute to our communities but who have been told that because of the countries in which they were born, they have to wait decades in the green card backlog before they can start living the American dream—are treated even-handedly. The amendment does three things. First, the Grassley amendment would strengthen the Department of Labor’s ability to wage labor investigations. In addition, it reforms the labor condition application process to ensure the complete and adequate disclosure of information regarding the employers’ H–1B hiring practices. Finally, it closes off loopholes by which employers could otherwise circumvent the annual cap on H–1B visas.

These are important and worthy reforms that I was happy to add to the bill. Just last month of the positive impact these reforms would have. In September, Immigration and Customs Enforcement announced a $2.5 million settlement with an Indian consulting firm for H–1B visa fraud. That firm was exploiting the so-called “B–1 in lieu of H–1B” loophole. One of the new provisions we added to the bill this Congress would help close that specific loophole.

Importantly, the Grassley amendment, like the bill, consists of provisions that have long enjoyed support from Members of both sides of the aisle. They are drawn primarily from an H–1B reform bill that has been championed by both Senator Grassley and Senator Durbin. They are also modeled on legislation on an amendment to the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act that Senator Schumer negotiated with Senator Grassley in a previous Congress.

I am grateful that Senator Grassley was able to come to the table and work with me and others in good faith on a reasonable compromise to this bill. I believe the deal we struck is a fair and even-handed way to address long-standing concerns about our H–1B system, while eliminating country-of-origin discrimination in how we allocate skills-based green cards.

As I have said in the past, there is no question that the single most politically fraught issue is one of the most politically fraught issues in Congress right now. That makes it all the more important for us to at least come together to get something in place. We should try to find common ground. It is a little bit like eating an elephant. You can’t swallow the whole thing at once, either the elephant or the donkey. You have to do it one bite at a time. Why not start with an area in which there is broad-based, bipartisan agreement? That is what this bill is. The Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act is an important step toward common ground.

Unquestionably, there are broader debates on immigration policy being had in Congress and across the country right now. Some wish to reform our immigration system by increasing the number of green cards we issue while others wish to move to a more merit-based system. That is almost certainly not going to be resolved this day, today, or this month or this year or, perhaps, even during this Congress. Notably, however, many Senators on both sides of that debate—ardent champions of both liberal and conserv-ative immigration reforms, who ordi-narily could not be farther apart when it comes to immigration policy—are cosponsors of the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act. The reason this is the case is that they recognize that regardless of what else we might do to reform our immigration system, country-of-origin discrimination is outdated, outmoded, immoral, morally indefensible, and inconsistent with our values. This is also a problem that we can solve right now.

The other reason the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act has been so successful in attracting support from both sides of the aisle and from every end along the political con-tinuum is that we have scrupulously avoided the typical poison pill provi-sions that so often doom attempts at immigration reform. We have also quite carefully avoided this becoming about so many things that it is going to become controversial no matter what.

This bill is not comprehensive immi-gration reform. It is not anything close to that. That is, in fact, why this bill is something that we can get done right now. It is the Real Liberal and Real Conservative immigration law system, it is a great and important step toward reform. If we are ever going to have a chance at modernizing and repairing our immigration laws, we need to recognize that we cannot necessarily solve all of our problems at once. The fact that this is the case should not stand in our way of starting the work the American people sent us here to do.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 1044 and that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration. I ask unanimous consent that the rule be suspended at the desk be agreed to, that the bill, as amended, be considered read a third time and passed, and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, in reserving the right to object, as I understand it, we have only 6 minutes until the end of the day and I don’t want to inconvenience my colleagues.

I would like to ask permission from the Senator from Utah to make my unanimous consent request the first item of business after the rollcall vote is announced.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, in reserving the right to object, I want to make sure I understand that the Senator wants to make his live UC request after the rollcall vote.

Mr. DURBIN. That is correct.

Mr. LEE. There is no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Is there objection to the original request?

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, in reserving the right to object, I would say the following: I have been on the floor of the Senate more often than any other Senator to ask for immigration reform. Our system is broken. As we debate this important issue, the Galleries are filled with people who are following this debate personally because it literally affects their lives and their families and their futures. This Senate has been willing to move forward on comprehensive immigration reform. Sadly, the Senate on the other side has not supported that. I hope they are doing it.

In the meantime, though, what are we going to do about the current issue of an annual quota of no more than 140,000 EB immigrant visas and more than 500,000 applicants of Indian descent who are asking for permission to move forward with EB-2 green cards and their lives?

What the Senator from Utah has suggested is that we shouldn’t increase the 140,000 annual cap. I think that is wrong. If you follow Senator LEE’s proposals, then what he says—give these visas only to those who are waiting in line who are of Indian descent and give no visas to the rest of the world—in 10 years, there will still be over 165,000 people of Indian descent waiting in line, and the rest of the world will have been excluded. This is unfair. It doesn’t make sense.

I will offer a unanimous consent request to lift that 140,000 cap. If we don’t lift that cap in 5 years, all who are waiting in line will get their chances for green cards—5 years—but not at the expense of the rest of the world. Let’s do this in a fair fashion. While we are at it, it is unfair that your spouses and children are being counted when it comes to the 140,000. My bill exempts that. They are no longer going to be bound by any quota.

Secondly, if your children are aging out, if they are reaching the age of 21—a new legal status and new worries for you and your family—I eliminate that problem completely. My approach is one that will solve the problem by lifting the legal immigration for talented people like many who have gathered here today.

The Senator from Utah says he can’t support that. I hope he will reconsider. Lifting that cap is what we need to do—lifting the country quotas, making certain that those in line finally get their chances. This is all within 5 years, which is something the underlying bill does not do. So I hope the Senator from Utah will agree to my bill that I will be offering as an alternative after this rollcall vote.

I object to this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I will be brief.

Just as the per-country cap system is a quintessential example of the poorly designed broken system looks like, the objection that we have heard today is, I fear, emblematic of the broken state of affairs that we face when it comes to the immigration process.

I mentioned earlier that one of the reasons this bill has been able to achieve as much support and as many cosponsors as it has and why it was able to pass the House of Representatives with 365 votes is that we have avoided poison pill efforts. The adjustment of the overall numbers that my friend and distinguished colleague from Illinois has proposed would doom this bill. He knows that it would doom this bill.

To what avail? To what end? What good would it do to doom this bill?

The fact still remains that regardless of where we put the overall number for employment-based green cards, we still have a problem in that we are treating people from India unfairly, arbitrarily, and discriminatorily. This has impacts everywhere. In Illinois today, there are over 40,000 green card applicants, plus their spouses and children, who are stuck in an interminable green card backlog that is morally indefensible. We must change this. I hope and I encourage my colleague to change his mind. We can pass this today. We could make our country a better place as a result.

Thank you.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, is there any time remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is no time remaining. to support it by voting to override the President's veto.

VOTE ON S.J. RES. 54

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Shall the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 54) pass, the objections of the President of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding?

The yeas and nays are mandatory. The clerk will call the roll. The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. THUNE. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I asked unanimous consent to have the rollcall to be recognized to make a unanimous consent request. I would like to take that opportunity now, unless there is some other item of business before the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is none.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, let's start with math, basic math. Andrew Yang math. Here is what it boils down to. Each year, we have 140,000 employment-based visas issued in the United States—140,000. A decision was made several years ago that politicians were playing favorites, picking countries that would get more of one and more of another country. To the contrary, what country would have quotas, country caps?—7 percent. I will do the math, being a liberal arts lawyer. It is about 10,000 per year, per country—no more than 10,000 per country, per year, if 7 percent of the total is our cap.

The problem is obvious. There are some 520,000 people of Indian descent in the United States who came here legally on H-1B visas, for example, who have worked here for a period of time, and who now want to stay in the United States. From this Senator's point of view, you are welcome. We need you. You brought extraordinary skills that we need to our country. I want you to stay, but many have found that they get into a queue that is so long, and because of the limitations of the cap, they can't even imagine living long enough to ever get the green card they are waiting for, the green card that can ultimately lead to citizenship.

Senator LEE comes to the floor with a bill, and his bill says as follows: We are going to take care of those waiting in line, which is primarily over half a million of Indian descent, and we will close down immigration from other countries during this period of time, EB-2 visas. So it would be to the benefit of those of Indian descent, who are the vast majority of those waiting in line, but at the cost of every country in the world that has anyone who can come in and qualify for an EB-2 visa. Even his bill, they that in country quotas, country caps—7 percent. I will do the math, being a liberal arts lawyer. It is about 10,000 per year, per country, per year, if 7 percent of the total is our cap.

The third point: When you make application, it freezes in place, for legal reasons, the status of your dependents. So if it takes 2 or 3 years, and that daughter of yours becomes 21 years of age, it is no different—she is still going to come in with you based on your application.

To me, that is a reasonable way of approaching it. I have said to my friends in the Indian-American community, in the Indian community in Illinois, I am not against your being here. I want you to be here. I have an approach that will allow you to be a part of our future. You have been an important part of America to this point. I want you to continue to be, and my approach will allow it.

Senator LEE of Utah comes to the floor and says: DURBIN, if you lift that 140,000 cap, you will doom this bill. I have just spoken to him, and I have several times. I will doom this bill if he wants to support it. If he, as a Republican, will gather support for this bill, we can lift the number of people who will be eligible under these skilled immigrant visas to be part of America's future. We can do that together. I am prepared to. One of them told me a story. He is a physician from my hometown of Springfield, IL. He brought his 12-year-old daughter along with him, a beautiful young girl.

He said: Senator, I am waiting in line, don't know if I will ever get a green card. What is going to happen to my daughter when she reaches age 21? She can no longer be my dependent and stay in the United States. What is going to happen to her? Is she supposed to go back to India? In the meantime, how is she going to go to college? What is her status in this country?

These are perfectly legitimate questions. I have an answer for all of these questions, and I will tell you what it is. First, we lift the 140,000 cap. That is what is holding us back here. Why is 140,000 of these EB visas a year a magic number? It is not. We are a nation of 350 million people. We have at least a million legal immigrants coming in every year. To expand those to those who are seeking the EB visas beyond 140,000 to people with skills who are already living in the United States and who want to stay here and continue to work is perfectly reasonable to me.

That is what my bill does. It does two other things. This bill also says that we are not going to count your dependents when it comes to the annual quotas. So if it is 140,000, we are talking about the actual broad winners: 140,000. If you talk to your colleagues here, who feel we need to open up the skilled visa opportunities for legal immigration,
The sentiment is growing, and it should. I want people who have real skills that they either learned in the United States or earned in the United States to be part of the growth of our economy and the future and part of America. When it comes to diversity, count me in.

My mother was an immigrant to this country, brought here at the age of 2. Her son stands right here with a full-ride scholarship at Harvard, a graduate of the University of Texas. His children will have a chance they and certainly their family sacrifices so that they and certainly their children will have a chance they never would have had where they were born. That is the key to what is different about this country and why we should honor it.

Let’s not apologize for increasing legal immigration, particularly of people with proven skills. Let’s celebrate that they want to be part of America’s future.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from S. 2603 and that the Senate proceed to consider it immediately; further, that the bill be considered read a third time and passed without intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection?

The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, the request the Senator is describing is not one that can pass the body and certainly is not one that can pass this body unanimously.

He is absolutely right. My friend and distinguished colleague from Illinois is correct in noting that I have had conversations and negotiations with Republicans and Democrats. I have been working on this for nearly 9 years. At every moment, we have made concessions to push both sides of the debate.

I wish the sentiment is growing, and it should. I want people who have real skills that they either learned in the United States or earned in the United States to be part of the growth of our economy and the future.

The second point I want to make is that I would also say to him—in the course of bringing this measure to the floor, Senator LEE has been negotiating with Members of his own political party. That is all right. I understand that. I have been in this business for a while. But he should be talking to people on both sides of the aisle. What he has given are so-called carve-outs to the 140,000. I probably wouldn’t argue with any single carve-out in substance if he wants to give them to nurses or medical professions, but each time he makes carve-outs to the 140,000, he lengthens the long waiting period for those of Indian descent.

As far as I am concerned, the real answer is to increase legal immigration to the United States. My bill would do that. It will take the country caps off, take the 140,000 cap off. It would open the door for those who have been waiting in line—and many have for years, if not decades. Stop discriminating against their children. Through no fault of their own, they have been stuck in the line with them. Their legal status shouldn’t change. And don’t count the dependents—the spouses and children—against the quota, whatever the number might be, in the future.

I think that is a reasonable way to do this, but to do that, you have to accept one premise: that immigration is good for America. I believe it is. I believe it always has been. I think the diversity of this country is its strength. People come from all over the corner of the Earth, ready to make great personal and family sacrifices so that they and certainly their children will have a chance they out of their temporary visas, and they are forced to return to a country they left behind long ago—a country that, in many cases, their children don’t know and have never known.

To repeat, the amendment that I offered today and that is the subject of some of my colleague’s remarks this afternoon in his unanimous consent request consists of nothing more than the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act, of which my colleague from Illinois was once a leading sponsor. That is a series of reforms that he himself has long sought to enact. If passed, it would provide relief to many hard-working families from both his State and mine. Yet he objects. As he objects, he offers up something else that he knows cannot possibly get close to passing this body by unanimous consent. Yet we can do that today. We can do that right now if he would lift his objection. He knows that I cannot, and I will not, and on that basis I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I would like to make two points regarding the controversy from my friend from Utah. I know he has to leave for another appointment.

I hope that shows my good faith and intent when it comes to this issue. I am not just thinking of something that has happened today that has never been considered on the Senate floor. It has passed on the Senate floor in a previous Senate, and I think it can pass again with your active support.

The second point I want to make is that I would like to have dualing unanimous consent requests and both to object in this debate is really unfair to the people who have gathered in this Gallery today, as well as those who are following this debate on television with literally the fate of their family and future again in our hands.

I would like to ask you a favor to consider the following. When Senator KENNEDY objected on your behalf yesterday, or the day before, in a similar manner, he suggested that we push this issue forward for a hearing in the Subcommittee on Border Security and Immigration of the Committee on the Judiciary where we both serve. That committee is not overworked. It considered one bill this year and no amendments.

So let us try to prevail on the chairman of that subcommittee to have a hearing on this subject and to bring out all the facts before the subcommittee and the full committee in the hopes that we can find some sort of compromise. If Senator KENNEDY does not, I will join him in that request. I hope we can prevail on Senator GRAHAM and Senator CORNYN.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I thank my colleague for his constructive observations there. With respect to the Gang of 8 legislation, yes, it passed through this body, and it was passed by a large majority, but it was doomed at the outset for failure because the message of that bill and of those who were pushing it was essentially you either pass all of this bill and all of its reforms—a large number of which and the majority of which I agreed with—or you pass nothing. We were literally told that. It is either this entire package or it is nothing. We spent weeks in the Committee on the Judiciary debating it and discussing it. I personally proposed dozens of amendments to that.

What emerged at the end of that from the committee was a—this has been 6 years, so my colleague will forgive me if I don’t remember the exact numbers, but a 700-page bill. When we got to the floor, what we debated and discussed was substituted out at the last minute. What we ended up getting was another bill that was, as I recall, 1,200 pages long. It was a different bill.

The message was the same with both of them. This is a package deal. You either reform all of what this bill reform and do it at once or you get none of it. And the sponsors of that legislation made clear that they would oppose any smaller effort.

I believe this is exactly the opposite of the type of solution that will work. What is going to work here is if we start with incremental, step-by-step legislation. If we start with something the Senator from Illinois has himself in the past sponsored, both as to the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act itself and as to the substance, the nuts and bolts of the Grassley amendment, he has been on the cutting edge of supporting both of those things. If not here, where? If not us, who? If not now, when? This is what we need to do. I am going to continue to come to the floor. I am going to continue to seek unanimous consent and to pass this every way I can.

As to my colleague’s suggestion with regard to a committee hearing. This hasn’t been the topic of committee hearings in the past, and it has been fully discussed. I would, of course, welcome any further committee action that the chairman might choose to hold, and I would be happy to have any further action pages. Of course, isn’t mine to offer or give, but I would always prefer more consideration of the Fairness for High-Skilled Immigrants Act than less. So if that is what we have to do, great, but I don’t believe any further factual development is necessary here.

Just for the record, I want to state this bill is ready to pass right now.

This bill has 365 votes on the House floor right now. This bill would become law right now, would pass out of the Senate and would pass out of the Senate in a form that would be passed out of the House of Representatives, ultimately, right now but for this objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. The Senator from Utah is my friend, and we have worked closely together on legislation. I just trust him and respect him, though we disagree on some of the merits on this issue.

What I think I heard was an offer, which I am going to accept, of a good-faith, bipartisan request of the Committee on the Judiciary to have a hearing on this measure. It will be the first hearing on it, and I think it is long overdue.

In terms of the comprehensive immigration reform, I don’t want to dwell on that. We went through a thorough history, hundreds of amendments in Judiciary and scores of amendments on the floor. Everyone had their day in court and their opportunity to come up with a good idea, and, yes, it did come down to one bill at the end for high votes or no. I voted yes, and he voted the other way.

This bill is not even close to it in terms of deliberation and in terms of amendments and that process. So let’s start the right way. Let’s have a hearing. You have the majority party on the committee, so I am not going to pull anything over on you, but let’s do it.

For the people who are following this and saying: Well, how did that end? Let us say to them it ended by both of us agreeing to pursue a committee hearing on this important subject as soon as possible and appealing to the chair of the Committee on the Judiciary to ask for the hearing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I thank my friend, the Senator from Illinois, and I appreciate his dedication to detail and to the hard work he has put into the area of immigration and reform.

Yes, you are right. That was a difficult process. It went through 6 years ago, and I commend you, even though you and I reached different conclusions as to the ultimate outcome of that legislation.

My point there is simply to say: It is, and properly should and always is, going to be the case that it can be easier to get something done that is more narrowly focused. In this case, we have a bill the Senator from Illinois has himself cosponsored in the past. It has been modified by another provision that he has also sponsored in the past. We should be able to do this one.

It is not my place to comment on behalf of the Judiciary or its chairman whether we are going to have hearings. I reiterate my view that no further factual development of this is necessary. I don’t believe a hearing is necessary.

I am never going to object to simply holding more hearings on it, and if that is what the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary is inclined to do, I am not going to object, but I will be ready for that. In the meantime, I am going to continue to do everything I can to get this thing passed. It is ready to pass it. It is ready to pass right now. I am going to continue to find every way possible to get this the consideration it deserves.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am coming to the floor to speak on a different subject, but I do want to acknowledge that this is an issue I follow as well. I actually cosponsored Senator Lee’s bill. I do hope what my friend from Illinois proposed, in terms of a process—that that process will take and that we go through the same thorough history, a variation thereof, sought through the Senate; that we deal with this issue is something I hear a lot from my constituents in Virginia—specifically, Northern Virginia.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, I thank my colleague for his constructive observation.

Mr. WARNER. What I think I heard was an offer, which I am going to accept, of a good-faith, bipartisan request of the Committee on the Judiciary to have a hearing on this important subject as soon as possible and appealing to the chair of the Committee on the Judiciary to ask for the hearing.

Mr. WARNER. My point there is simply to say: It is, and properly should and always is, going to be the case that it can be easier to get something done that is more narrowly focused. In this case, we have a bill the Senator from Illinois has himself cosponsored in the past. It has been modified by another provision that he has also sponsored in the past. We should be able to do this one.

Mr. WARNER. It is not my place to comment on behalf of the Judiciary or its chairman whether we are going to have hearings. I reiterate my view that no further factual development of this is necessary. I don’t believe a hearing is necessary.

Mr. WARNER. I am never going to object to simply holding more hearings on it, and if that is what the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary is inclined to do, I am not going to object, but I will be ready for that.

security, as well as to global peace and human rights. We are indebted to them for their contributions, and I congratulate them again for their much deserved recognition as finalists.

Unfortunately, none of this year’s winners were from Virginia. Still, I want to congratulate the 2019 Federal Employee of the Year, Victoria Brahm from Wisconsin. Ms. Brahm is a career public servant who has spent more than 37 years working in the VA system.

Since 2015, she has served as the director of the Tomah VA Medical Center. When she arrived, the center was struggling with unsafe medical practices, high staff turnover, and other issues impacting the quality of care that veterans were receiving. In the years since her arrival, there has been a rise in patient satisfaction and a dramatic drop in the use of opioids and other prescription pain relievers.

Under Director Brahm’s leadership, preventable inpatient complications have also dropped significantly, and the center has risen from one of the worst ranked hospitals in the VA system to the top 10 percent. This remarkable turnaround is that making life better is possible in many ways to the work of Ms. Brahm. Congratulations, Ms. Brahm, and thank you for your service.

Congratulations, as well, to all of this year’s Federal Winners who hail from around the country, not just Washington, DC. While the Federal workers we recognize today are exceptional, the truth is they are not the exception. Federal employees across the country dedicate their lives to serving the country, to protecting its people, and to making sure our tax dollars are properly spent.

Unfortunately, this commitment has not been honored by the Trump administration. In addition to the longest government shutdown in history, Federal workers have endured pay freezes, hiring freezes, bad-faith collective bargaining, and other efforts to dismantle our nonpolitical civil service. This is wrong. It is also unsustainable, and ultimately it will be everyday Americans who suffer the consequences of this administration’s actions. If you drive out and drive down the morale of our workforce, the American people end up with a less good product.

I can tell you that I will continue fighting in the Senate to ensure this country is keeping its commitment to Federal workers because they deserve so much better than the treatment they have received recently.

FUTURE ACT

Mr. President, let me now, for a couple of moments, turn to another important issue where I fear we are not keeping our commitments, and that is our commitment to our Nation’s historically Black colleges and universities, also known as HBCUs.

I will talk briefly in support of legislation introduced by my colleague from Alabama, Senator Jones, and my
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, recent developments in the House passed this important legislation on a bipartisan basis. Now it is time for the Senate to do the same. Let’s pass the FUTURE Act without further delay and then work together on a comprehensive reauthorization of the Higher Education Act.

As Dr. Harry Williams, president of the Thurgood Marshall College Fund, said, America’s HBCUs “simply do not have the time to wait for Congress to work out a deal.” So let’s put our broader policy differences aside for now and honor the commitments we made to HBCUs and other minority-serving institutions before Congress’s inaction harms students in Virginia and around the country.

With that, I yield the floor.

Sincerely,

HAKIM J. LUCAS, Ph.D.
President & CEO.

The Senate scorekeeping report which I filed this week in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. The CONGRESSIONAL RECORD is available to anyone online. This report should show overspending by committees and a number of other things. This is the first time the Senate has filed a current law budget for the fiscal year 2020 as authorized by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2019.

This week’s filing tracks the Senate’s adherence to that current law budget and provides an opportunity to ask questions about the Federal Government for Congress and for the public. For the first time, a copy of the scorekeeping report can be found on the Senate Budget Committee’s website to allow the American people to better track Congress’s fiscal decision making.

Let me repeat that. For the first time, a copy of the scorekeeping report can be found on the Senate Budget Committee’s website to allow the American people to better track Congress’s decision making.

Since this is the first time the committee is posting the scorekeeping report online, we want to take this opportunity to explain the report for those taxpayers who are concerned, as I am, about our country’s fiscal health and want to learn more.

I hope that the report will look at the future months and each monthly report.

A current-law budget allows the Senate to enforce the budget spending levels projected under current law. While it will not put us on a path to stabilizing our debt and deficits, like the levels approved by the Senate Budget Committee earlier this year would do, it tells the Congress to stop making our fiscal situation worse—to stop making our debt and deficits worse.

The scorekeeping report covers six primary areas. First, it shows whether authorizing committees are sticking to their allocation, which is just a fancy term for each committee’s spending allowance. We track that for the 1-year, 3-year, and 5-year timeframe in this report.

Second, the report tracks whether the Appropriations Committee is adhering to the discretionary spending limits imposed by the most recent Bipartisan Budget Act. For fiscal year 2020, the limit on regular discretionary spending for accounts in the defense and nondefense categories is $621.5 billion, and for the accounts in nondefense category, it is $621.5 billion. Since full-year appropriations measures for this fiscal year have not yet been enacted, the only budgetary effects reflected are for advanced appropriations made through our prior law.

Third, the scorekeeping report tracks changes in mandatory programs. We call that CHIMPS, which is used by the Appropriations Committee. That is so we are not using the very important wording of “changes in mandatory programs,” actually making changes in mandatory programs without people knowing. The Appropriations Committee uses these mandatory programs to offset new discretionary spending each year.

This year’s total limit is $15 billion—that is extra spending—and the report tracks the Appropriations Committee’s adherence to that limit thus far. I know that many of my colleagues share my desire to finally end the practice of using the mandatory programs to inflate spending.

Fourth, the report tracks the amount of emergency and overseas contingency operations spending in appropriations bills. Emergency spending is not constrained by discretionary spending limits that I talked about, but it has the potential to cost trillions of dollars each year. To date, for fiscal year 2020, there has been $8 million worth of emergency budget authority adjustments. These adjustments are the result of agriculture provisions and the humanitarian and disaster relief provisions for the Disaster Relief Act of 2019. Emergencies don’t count against the budget, but they do go to increased debt. There is no requirement to adjust the budget to pay for emergencies.

Fifth, included in the report is information provided to me by the Congressional Budget Office. It compares topline spending and revenue amounts, known as aggregates, to the current-law budget levels. The report shows there is currently enough room on the spending aggregate to accommodate all outstanding regular appropriations and new supplemental requests or adjustments. Finally, the report includes the current balances of the Senate’s pay-go scorecard. Pay-go stands for “pay as you go,” a unique concept around here. In other words, was it paid for? If not, the report shows it on the scorecard. The Senate’s pay-go scorecard, which is based on the Senate’s pay-go scorecard due to the filing of new budgetary levels just last month.

As chair of the Senate Budget Committee, I try to come to the floor regularly to sound the alarm about our country’s unsustainable fiscal course. We are on a perilous path with the Congressional Budget Office projecting our debt and deficits to skyrocket in the coming years. Debt is the cumulative amount. Deficits are the annual amount.
The deficit for the fiscal year that ended September 30 reached $984 billion. While revenues were up $133 billion over the previous year, or 4 percent, compared to fiscal year 2018, spending was up $338 billion, or 7 percent. Of the prior year, I can say that again. We overspent $984 billion. Revenues were up $133 billion, but spending was up $338 billion. The Congressional Budget Office projects the budget deficit for the current fiscal year to top $1 trillion. That is another trillion dollars added to our high debt. That is overspending in spite of increased revenues.

We are long overdue for an honest conversation about the country’s finances. I hope the Senate scorekeeping report can contribute in a small way to that conversation. I believe the more we allow the public to follow the dollars, the more pressure there will be on all of us to finally address our overspending problem. I truly hope all Members view this report and come to see it as a valuable tool for getting our book in order.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, our Democratic colleagues insist that despite their political differences with President Trump, they are still prepared to tackle important legislation and do our work for the American people.

Well, next week they will have an opportunity to prove it. Congress has fallen badly behind schedule on appropriations. It has been a month since my Democratic colleagues filibustered government funding on the floor, blocking defense funding and a pay raise for our servicemembers. We need to get moving. The country is watching. It is time to make progress.

So in just a moment, I will file a cloture motion on the Senate’s fiscal year 2020 spending package, which we will vote on next week.

In order to meet Democrats halfway, the first House shell we will vote on will be a package of domestic funding bills. If we can get bipartisan support to take up that domestic funding bill, we will stay on it until we complete it. I hope Chairman Shelby and Senator Leahy can work together to craft a bipartisan substitute amendment.

Afterward, we will turn to a second package, including the defense funding that our Armed Forces and commanders need, especially in this dangerous time and considering current events, plus resources for other priorities such as the opioid epidemic. So we will be voting next week, and I urge all of our colleagues to move in that direction. Let’s make good on all the talk about bipartisanship and finally make progress toward funding the government.

TURKEY AND SYRIA

Mr. ROMNEY. Mr. President, I rise today to address the current situation in Syria.

First, I welcome the Vice President's announcement of a cease-fire, which will prevent further loss of life. I hope the agreement is honored. But at the heart of this matter is a central question of why these terms and assurances were not negotiated before the President consented to withdraw our troops.

Let me briefly recount what has happened in the past 7 days since the United States announced our withdrawal. The Kurds, suffering loss of life and property, have allied with Assad, Russia has assumed control of our previous military positions, and the United States has been forced in many cases to bomb our own facilities to prevent their appropriation by Russia and Turkey.

The announcement today is being portrayed as a victory. It is far from a victory. Serious questions remain about how the decision was reached precipitously to withdraw from Syria and why that decision was reached.

Given the initial details of the cease-fire agreement, the administration must also explain what America's future role will be in the region, what happens now to the Kurds, and why Turkey will face no apparent consequences. Further, the cease-fire does not change the fact that America has abandoned an ally. Adding insult to dishonor, the administration speaks cavalierly, even flippancy, as our ally has suffered death and casualty. Their homes have been burned, and their families have been torn apart.

We know the truth about our Kurd allies. They lost 11,000 combatants in our joint effort to defeat ISIS. We dropped bombs from the air and provided intelligence and logistics beyond the lines. The Kurds lost thousands of lives, and 86 brave Americans also lost their lives so tragically.

It is argued that the Kurds were fighting for themselves. Of course they were. That is the nature of an alliance. We fight together, each pursuing our own vital interests. America leaves no man behind, often at great cost in blood and treasure. We recover our dead and our wounded, and we free our men and women who are held captive. This is a matter of American honor and promise. So, too, is the principle that we stand by our allies, that we do not abandon our friends.

The decision to abandon the Kurds violates one of our most sacred duties. It strikes at American honor. What we have done to the Kurds will stand as a blood stain in the annals of American history.

There are broad strategic implications of our decision, as well. Iranian and Russian interests in the Middle East have been advanced by our decision at a time when we were applying maximum pressure on Iran. By giving them a stronger hand in Syria, we have actually weakened that pressure, Russia's objective to play a greater role in the Middle East has also been greatly enhanced. The Kurds, out of desperation, have now aligned with Assad. So America is diminished, and Russia, Iran, and Assad are stronger than ever.

So I ask how and why this decision was reached. I serve on the Foreign Relations Committee, and given the Syria decision taken by the administration, I might be forgiven for wondering why our committee even exists. I say this because apparently the decision to leave Syria was made without consultation with the committee or even with the committee chairman and ranking member.

Just 3 weeks ago, our subcommittee held hearings to receive an extensive analysis of the conditions and the way forward in Syria. It was presented to us by the Syria Study Group, a bipartisan, congressionally mandated commission tasked with providing an in-depth assessment of the conditions in Syria and to provide recommendations for American strategy going forward. So far as I am aware, the administration made no effort to contact those who attended that hearing or to speak with the Syria Study Group to be able to understand the content in their extensive published report.

I ask whether it is the position of the administration that the Senate—a body of 100 people representing both political parties—is to be entirely absent from decisions of the magnitude just taken in Syria.

Some argue that we should not have been in Syria in the first place because there was not a vote taken by the Senate to engage in war there. I disagree. Congress has given the President legal authority and funding to fight against terrorists in Syria.

However, for purposes of argument, even if one believed that no authorization had been given, that is really irrelevant to the decision as to the withdrawal once we have allied with a people—the Kurds—committed to defend them, and together defeated ISIS. Once you jump in the ocean to save a drowning person, you don't turn around with the excuse that you didn't have to jump in in the first place. It is a matter of commitment.
Others argue that we should just get out of a messy situation like this. Middle East, they say, has had wars going on forever; just let them have at it. There is, of course, a certain logic to that position, as well, but again, it applies only to the original decision as to whether we should have gone into Syria. Once we have engaged and made the commitments we made, honor, as well as self-interest, demands that we not abandon our allies.

It has been suggested that Turkey may have called America’s bluff—telling the President they were coming no matter what we did. If that is so, we should know it, for it would tell us a great deal about how we should deal with Turkey now and in the future.

Some have argued that Syria is simply a mess, with warring groups, subgroups, friends and allies shifting from one side to the other, and thus we had to exit because there was no reasonable path for us to go forward. Are we incapable of understanding and solving complex situations? Russia seems to have figured it out. Are we less adept than they, and are our principles to be jettisoned when we find things get messy?

The administration claims that none of these reasons are accurate. Instead, the President has said that we left to fulfill a commitment to stop endless wars, to bring troops home, to get them out of harm’s way, and perhaps to save some of these people to square. Why? Well, we withdraw 1,500 troops in Syria, but we are adding 2,000 troops in Saudi Arabia. All totaled, we have some 60,000 troops in the Middle East.

Assuming for the sake of understanding that getting out of endless wars was the logic for the decision, why would we take action so precipitously? Why would we not warn our ally, the Kurds, of what we were about to do? We did not give them time to also withdraw or perhaps to dig in to defend themselves? Clearly, the Turks had a heads-up because they were able to start bombing within mere hours. I simply don’t understand why the administration did not explain in advance to Erdogan that it is unacceptable for Turkey to attack an American ally. Could we not insist that together we develop a transition plan that protects the Kurds, secures the ISIS prisoners, and fulfills the legitimate concerns of Turkey, as well? Was there no chance for diplomacy? Are we so weak and so inept diplomatically that Turkey forced the hand of the United States of America—Turkey? I believe it is imperative that public hearings be held to answer these questions, and I hope the Senate will be able to conduct those hearings next week.

I note in closing that I also hope the cease-fire agreement is honored and that Turkey ends its brutal killing, but I note that lives are already lost and American honor has already been tarnished. We have abandoned a redline; now we abandon an ally. We need answers. What has happened in Syria should not happen again. And we, the Senate, must take action to make sure that it does not.

Yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore of the Senate said, Mr. President, I rise this afternoon to discuss the situation in Syria. Let me commend my colleague, Senator ROMNEY, for his very thoughtful and very timely and very important comments.

We all recognize that the situation in Syria is highly fluid. I think it is important to state the case with respect to the President’s decision to acquiesce to President Erdogan’s offensive against the Kurds. The President’s decision is a disaster for our partners in the fight against ISIS and United States foreign policy more broadly.

While a temporary cease-fire announced a short time ago and hope that a permanent cease-fire can be achieved, it does not absolve President Trump of his responsibility for his betrayal of our Kurdish partners and his role in unleashing instability in northern Syria. It is not clear whether Turkey made any concessions as part of the deal struck with the U.S. delegation or whether Kurdish forces will comply. If not, I am concerned that Erdogan is likely to follow and we will have little leverage to prevent it. In fact, there is a quote attributed to the Turkish Foreign Minister, Mevlut Cavusoglu, by the White House reporter for CNN. She quotes the Turkish Foreign Minister as saying:

This is not a cease-fire. We will pause the operation for 120 hours in order for the terrorists to leave. We will only stop the operation if our conditions are met.

So, indeed, even this supposed cease-fire may not materialize as a cease-fire.

But the reality is that the blood of many Kurds is on President Trump’s hands, and thousands of hardened ISIS prisoners could be let loose as a result of his hasty and uninformed decision.

President Trump’s decision to abandon our close partners also strengthens the hand of Erdogan, Putin, Assad, and Khamenei. Those are not friends; they are, in many cases, adversaries and antagonists.

Members of the administration claim that the U.S. Government opposed the Turks in the beginning, but President Trump’s own actions and statements make clear that he gave Erdogan a green light. The President ordered our military to begin a phased withdrawal from Syria last December—a decision that prompted the resignation of former Secretary of Defense Mattis and that surely gave the Turks the impression that he would fold when pressed by Erdogan. Not surprisingly, he did. In that phone call, Erdogan was pushing against an open door. He knew it. The President knew it. Why did the Turks walk across the border?

Stating that we should let the Kurds and Turks fight it out because of their longstanding grievances, as the President has said repeatedly, betrays both our national security interests in the Middle East and our own American ideals.

It is shameful that the White House’s statements that were released after the President’s call with Erdogan did not even criticize the planned Turkish incursion or warn of potential consequences if it went forward. It wasn’t until the following day, after a bipartisan and international outcry, that the President had any concerns about Turkish plans while at the same time reiterating his invitation for Erdogan to visit the White House next month. It is impossible to read the President’s initial statements as anything but acquiescence.

Furthermore, the President’s statements over the following days have sought to distance the United States from the Kurds and the foreseeable consequences of his decision with respect to ISIS, not the humanitarian challenges in northern Syria.

The violence we have witnessed over the last few days in northern Syria has been the direct result of an impulsive President who has made decisions that counter to the advice of our national security experts. President Trump has often expressed disdain for the career military, diplomatic, and intelligence professionals our Nation relies on to develop and implement sound national security policy. We are once again seeing the ramifications of his incompetence.

The President’s stunning ignorance of the complexities in the Middle East was on full display over the weekend in a tweet in which he seemed not to have an understanding of the location or identity of the separate Kurdish groups with whom we have partnered in Syria and Iraq.

The Secretaries of Defense and State both insist they were consulted by the President on this decision. Maybe so, but it is clear that he didn’t heed their advice or that of our national security experts. I am not aware of any security experts who advocated for standing by our national security interests in the Middle East and our own American allies.

In fact, on October 2—just 4 days before the phone call between Presidents Trump and Erdogan—the State Department’s Special Envoy for Syria, Joel Rayburn, publicly warned: We certainly think that a conflict along the Turkey-Syria border would serve the interests of all the bad actors in the conflict and in the surrounding region—whether that is ISIS or al-Qaida or the Iranian regime or what have you. That was President Trump’s Special Envoy.

The President’s capitulation to Erdogan runs directly counter to all of the administration’s stated objectives in Syria. The administration’s stated strategy is to, No. 1, defeat ISIS; No. 2, force the removal of Iranian-aligned foreign forces from Syria; and No. 3, achieve a negotiated political settlement to the Syrian civil war in line with the United Nations’ resolutions.

The security and humanitarian catastrophe that President Erdogan has unleashed with the Trump approval will make it near impossible to achieve any of these former gains. The violence in northern Syria over the last few days has led to the displacement of at least 160,000 people, the suspension of humanitarian assistance into affected areas, and the destruction of areas including the territory that was formerly controlled by ISIS. The Trump administration’s shortsighted abandonment of the Kurds is a strategic disaster that raises grave concerns about the United States under its standing in the world and has shaken the confidence of our allies and partners. We are losing our national community. Despite the Trump’s fateful call with Erdogan, the interception of more than 10,000 ISIS detainees, and the horrific killings of unarmed civilians, including incidents that Secretary of Defense Esper has described as potential war crimes.

Just weeks ago, we were urging the U.S. military to support our Kurdish partners in line with the joint opposition to ISIS and our shared objective of containing and defeating such violent groups. In fact, the Kurd’s partnership with the United States should be viewed as a model of how to leverage an “economy of force” commitment of U.S. military capabilities to achieve strategic effects, thereby obviating the need for large numbers of U.S. personnel to be put at risk. In Syria, relatively small numbers of U.S. forces on the ground controlled and Arab ground force of approximately 60,000 personnel known as the Syrian Democratic Forces, or SDF. With our help, the SDF liberated millions of innocent civilians from the violent oppression of ISIS and restored Syrian physical and political caliphate. Some have estimated that the SDF lost more than 10,000 fighters taking on ISIS.

It is true that many who joined the SDF did so to liberate their homes from ISIS; however, it is also true that even after their homes were liberated, the SDF—Kurds and Arabs alike—continued to pursue ISIS all the way through the Euphrates River Valley, where the last remnants of the physical caliphate were ultimately defeated earlier this year.

Those in the SDF were not only fighting for themselves; they were also fighting for us. They were fighting to help ensure that there were no more ISIS-inspired attacks like those carried out in Paris, Brussels, Istanbul, Orlando, and San Bernardino. After the SDF successfully liberated the territory that was formerly controlled by ISIS, it also maintained custody of ISIS detainees—including more than 2,000 foreign fighters—when many of their home countries refused to take them back. Given the sacrifices of the SDF in the fight against ISIS, it was particularly insulting for President Trump to imply that the SDF may now be releasing ISIS detainees to get us involved, in his words, in the ongoing violence in northern Syria.

As our military leaders will tell you, our partnership with the SDF was not only built on our shared opposition to ISIS but also on the trust established between our forces in their fighting shoulder to shoulder against a common enemy. They deserved more from the United States and President Trump in the face of demands by Turkey’s autocratic leader. Given all the SDF has sacrificed in furtherance of the fight against ISIS and our partnership, our betrayal of their trust is nothing short of appalling.

Again, last days before President Trump’s fateful call with Erdogan, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for the Middle East publicly stated: “We, quite frankly, could not carry out our national defense strategy if it weren’t for partners like [the SDF].” I fear that the President’s impulsive abandonment of the Kurds has done significant and lasting damage to the standing of the United States in the world and has shaken the confidence of our allies and partners. Losing our most valuable partners in a region where the United States has critical national security interests.

Congress and the international community must send a clear, bipartisan signal to the President that we do not condone the Turkish incursion into northern Syria or the President’s decision to abandon the Kurds.

The President should rescind the invitation to President Erdogan to visit the United States in November. We should not welcome an autocrat who is responsible for endangering our troops on the ground in Syria, the release of dangerous ISIS fighters, the displacement of hundreds of thousands of civilians, and violence against non-combatants, which, if reports are true, may amount to war crimes.

The United States does not need to stand alone in condemning the violence in northeastern Syria. Our partners in the counter-ISIS coalition share our concerns about the damage the Turkish incursion has caused to our efforts to defeat ISIS and the potential humanitarian costs. The United States should take the lead within the United Nations and NATO to organize efforts to denounce Turkey’s actions and restrain the strategic consequences. We must also redouble diplomatic efforts to seek a negotiated settlement to the Syrian civil war that is consistent with U.N. Security Council Resolution No. 2254 and that protects the equities of the SDF and civilians who are living under their protection.

Unfortunately, the greatest impediment to securing our national security interests in northern Syria and bringing about an end to the conflict there appears to be President Trump’s inability to grasp the strategic significance of his actions.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Ms. Ernst. Mr. President, I rise to call attention to the dire situation that continues to unfold in northern Syria.

Turkey embarked on a reckless and brutal intervention on October 9, 2019, ostensibly to clear northern Syria of terrorist elements. It has ironically dubbed this operation “Peace Spring.” The departure of U.S. forces in the days just prior to this incursion left nothing between Turkish military forces and the predominantly Kurdish militia, known as the Syrian Democratic Forces, or SDF. Up until the cease-fire agreement that was announced today, the SDF bore the brunt of the Turkish assault.

The Kurds are deeply stung by what they see as America’s abandoning them—this after a long, hard, and successful fight against ISIS.

Contrary to President Trump’s assertions, we are not engaged in an endless war in Syria. In fact, the Kurd’s partnership with the United States should... opposed ISIS’s corrupt interpretation of Islam. Examples of these atrocities are the heartbreaking stories of so-called Yazidi brides who were forced into marriages with ISIS fighters. They were raped and brutalized repeatedly and threatened to give birth to children they did not want. The terrified women were warned to abandon their children or to make an escape. There are multiple stories of ISIS’s terror that has been inflicted on those with disabilities, such as babies being suffocated simply for being born with Down syndrome.

The United States, together with a coalition of over 30 countries, engaged in a campaign to rid the world of ISIS and to restore peace and stability to that region. Yet it was not a nation-state that bore the brunt of the fighting against ISIS. The Kurds and the Arabs who made up the Syrian Democratic Forces took the fight to the heart of the caliphate. With the help of U.S. Special Operations Forces and air-strikes, numbers of ISIS fighters were killed by the terror group, imprisoned thousands of terrorist fighters, and restored hope to hundreds of thousands who suffered under ISIS rule.

In a fast-moving and quickly changing world, it is easy for some to forget the terrible threat ISIS once posed while they were at their most powerful, but it would be wrong to think we can now allow ourselves to take our foot off of our enemy’s throat. Even now, ISIS cells are seeking to take advantage of the chaos in northern Syria to reconstitute and once again pose a direct threat to Americans right here in our homeland.

You know what is unfolding in Syria without being fundamentally concerned about the security of our friends and our neighbors. A recapitalization of ISIS is a threat to us all.

It is for this reason that I have introduced a resolution which calls on the Department of Defense and the Department of State to provide a plan within 30 days which will outline a strategy to ensure ISIS will never again threaten Americans or our allies now or in the future.

This strategy will address the ongoing threat that ISIS poses regionally and globally and will outline the plan to prevent an ISIS resurgence, contain ISIS expansion, mitigate the threat ISIS poses to the United States and our allies, and describe how our gains against ISIS since 2014 will be further protected.

We cannot afford to take our eyes off of the vital task of ensuring the lasting and irreversible defeat of ISIS. We must consolidate our gains to rid the world of this terrible organization and insist on a sound strategy to ensure our success to that end.

Too many of our partner forces and indeed American brothers and sisters in arms have fought and died in this fight, and we must ensure that those sacrifices were not made in vain. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The call will come to the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

SAUDI FUGITIVE DECLASSIFICATION ACT OF 2019

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I have come to the floor to fight for answers—answers that are long overdue.

In 2018, my hometown newspaper, The Oregonian, identified a handful of cases where Saudi nationals accused of serious crimes in the United States, like manslaughter and sexual assault, fled the country and escaped American justice.

Since then, The Oregonian has identified numerous similar cases—in fact, almost two dozen such cases across the United States. That includes 19 in just the last 7 years.

Today I want to tell the Senate about just one of those cases.

Three years ago, not far from my home in Southeast Portland, a young woman had her life taken from her. Fallon Smart was then a rising sophomore at Franklin High School, and she was aspiring to be a teacher. By all accounts, she would have been a terrific teacher.

She was 15, and according to everybody who knew her, Fallon was warm and smart and friendly. She had her whole life ahead of her.

According to police, she lost her life when she was crossing the street in front of stopped traffic, and a vehicle illegally swerved into the left-hand lane and hit her at 55 or 60 miles per hour. Her mom was in a car half a block away and ran to her daughter. Fallon died in her mother’s arms, and the car that hit her just sped away.

A Saudi Arabian college student named Abdulrahman Sameer Noorah later returned to the scene and was arrested. He was eventually charged with manslaughter, whose passport was $100,000 bail, according to The Oregonian newspaper.

In the United States, in our country, there was every expectation that Mr. Noorah would get a fair shake from the justice system. Our justice system was working the right way here until 2 weeks before Mr. Noorah was scheduled to go to trial. His tracking bracelet was somehow cut, and he disappeared. Mr. Noorah has never stood trial for Fallon Smart’s death.

Eventually, this spring, the State Department confirmed in a letter to me that Mr. Noorah had returned to Saudi Arabia.

I felt then, and I do today, this raises an important and a serious question: How does the United States without a trace? How does this person escape the country and make it thousands of miles back to Saudi Arabia with there being no record of his doing so?

News reports in 2018 suggest that the Saudi Arabian Government knew about Mr. Noorah and these other fugitives and potentially helped them flee justice.

I have five children. I cannot imagine the grief I would feel if one of them was taken from me, and the person responsible somehow managed to evade the justice system. It is almost impossible to comprehend the anger and the helplessness and the frustration any parent would feel in a situation like this.

I met with Fallon’s mom Fawn, and while she and all of Fallon’s loved ones have borne this miscarriage of justice with extraordinary grace, they are just heartbroken.

In addition to being heartbroken, they are angry. They are outraged by the notion that the person charged with killing their daughter may have just been able to escape scot-free and face no consequences for his action.

For some time, I have been demanding information from the Trump administration. In my view, the victims of these crimes, their families, and the American people are owed some essential answers. How did this happen? What is the U.S. Government doing about it?

I have written the Department of Justice. I have written the State Department. I have written the U.S. Marshals Service. I have written to the Department of Homeland Security. As far as I can tell, I would have gotten better answers from the Saudi royal family themselves.

In fact, when I asked Secretary of State Mike Pompeo what he was doing to try to return the Saudi fugitives to the United States, he replied that his Department did is that we just got a collective shrug of the shoulders. I sent the Secretary of State a letter last December. He didn’t respond.

So I sent another letter in February. I said: The State Department needs to use all its resources and all the tools at its disposal to hold the Saudi Government accountable. I asked whether our Ambassador pressed the Saudi Government about this disturbing, shocking pattern of Saudi nationals skipping bail.

The State Department finally did respond to my second letter. What I got was a whole bunch of nothing. One of Mr. Pompeo’s aides said that without an extradition treaty, there wasn’t anything they could do about it. This is from a Secretary who tried to rebrand Saudi Arabia as the “Center of Stability.” That swagger was nowhere to be found when it was time to protect innocent Americans.

Today, I am not writing any more letters. I am here on the Senate floor asking for action—action today. I am pending the Saudi Fugitive Declassification Act of 2019. My bill requires the FBI Director, in coordination with the Director of National Intelligence, to quickly—quickly—declassify any and all information relating to the issue of whether the Government of Saudi Arabia helped any Saudi nationals escape the country when those Saudi nationals were awaiting trial or sentencing for a criminal offense.

Let me repeat that so there is no confusion. The bill requires that the FBI Director and what is called the DNI, or the Director of National Intelligence, would quickly—quickly—declassify any and all information on the issue of whether the Government of Saudi Arabia helped any Saudi nationals escape the country when those Saudi nationals were awaiting trial or sentencing for a criminal offense in the United States.

I believe what I am asking for today must happen in the name of justice immediately. The American people deserve answers. The people I represent at home in our neighborhoods in Southeast Portland want answers. These are not academic matters. This is about a series of victimless crimes. This is about manslaughter. It is about rape. It is about a whole array of ugly offenses. This is about real people, real families—families who have suffered immeasurable pain. They deserve to see justice served. When individuals who are charged with violent crimes—no victimless crimes here, violent crimes—manage to escape and when the United States fails to do much of anything about it, it undermines public safety and it harms the U.S. justice system.

If, as some of the press stories have suggested, the Saudi Government has helped these alleged criminals escape justice, the American people have the right to be doubly concerned. Is the public image of Saudi Arabia a higher priority than the safety of American citizens?

Any action by a foreign government to thwart our criminal justice system would be an attack on our national security and our sovereignty. If that is what has happened, then, all Americans deserve to know.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered read a third time and passed and the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WYDEN. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill (S. 2635) was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, was read the third time, and passed, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the "Saudi Fugitive Declassification Act of 2019".

SEC. 2. DECLASSIFICATION OF ANY AND ALL INFORMATION RELATING TO ACTIONS BY GOVERNMENT OF SAUDI ARABIA TO ASSIST PERSONS IN DEPARTING UNITED STATES WHO WERE AWAITING TRIAL OR SENTENCING IN UNITED STATES.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, parliamentarily inquiry. With that action, has this bill now been passed?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It has. Mr. WYDEN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

TURKEY AND SYRIA

Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, it is interesting. When we come here, we seem to think that everybody in America is reading the blogs and all the major newspapers every morning. A lot of people do, but some people have lives. They get up early. They go to work. They listen to the news from time to time, but they don't follow it closely. That is what they hire us to do and they hire us to deal with as policymakers. On this issue of Syria, it strikes me, and it really did earlier this week when I visited this gas station close to my home that I frequent. It also has a little convenience store with a coffee stand inside. A gentleman comes up to me and basically says: Why do we care about all the stuff that is happening there? You know, it is thousands of miles away. These people have been fighting forever. Let them figure it out. Why do we have to be involved in all of this?

I will tell you that there is appeal to that argument. There really is. I understand why Americans feel that way. Since September of 2001, we have lost countless young men and women abroad in combat. We have seen families who have been ripped apart. We have seen the injuries that people come home with, not to mention the amount of money that has been spent on all of this as well. At a time when we face so many challenges, a lot of people are saying to themselves: Well, why do we have to be everywhere? Why do we have to care? These people have been fighting for a billion years and it is not our problem. We need to focus on issues here at home.

I do understand the appeal of that argument. I want to tell you that despite how much I focus on these issues and spend time on them, from time to time, those arguments appeal to me. But then you have to analyze why we are there to begin with and what it would mean in the short to long term to our security and our sovereignty. If that is what has happened, then, all Americans deserve to know.

The first is that you have to tell people why we are there to begin with. Let me tell you what this is not. This is not about an endless war or being somewhere for the rest of our lives. Frankly, it is not even about committing thousands of troops. The U.S. force presence in Syria was quite small. It actually achieved an extraordinary amount with such a few number of people.

There were 2,000 special operators imbedded alongside thousands of Kurds and our international partners. Basically, it is an area that ISIS once dominated. They literally controlled the cities. The capital of the caliphate was once there at one point. They were driven out. There was tremendous success, a real example of the sort of counterterrorism that these missions have successfully pursued.

The stated goal was, first and foremost, to stamp out and eliminate ISIS. The second was that our presence would provide leverage when the time came for a Syrian peace settlement—a settlement that would reflect our national interests, which are primarily three things.

The first is limiting Assad's power. This is a stone-cold criminal. This guy has gassed and murdered his own people. There has to be some limits and constraints to his power.

The second is to safeguard the Kurds. As you have heard others come to the floor and talk about all the people fought with us. We told them: If you will do the ground-fighting and we will help you from the air and with logistics, we are going to be here with you. They did, and they lost over 10,000 people in that fight. They have been great partners in that endeavor. We had a moral obligation, not to mention a promise that we made.
The third is to limit Iran’s influence. Iran would love nothing more than to completely dominate Syria because it links them directly into Lebanon to supply and support Hezbollah. It allows them to pivot over into Iraq to become the dominant power there.

Just imagine a Middle East in which Iran is the dominant power in Lebanon, in Syria, and, of course, in Iran, and, eventually, in Iraq, and, God forbid, in Bahrain, and with a growing influence in Yemen through the Houthis. They not only control Israel. They enthrone Saudi Arabia. It would be a nightmare.

We are engaged in a campaign of maximum pressure against Iran, and the last thing you want to do is to do maun maximum-pressure campaign to alleviate pressure, and giving a greater influence in Syria would alleviate a lot of pressure for Iran. That is the purpose of our presence there.

The administration’s and the President’s decision has undermined every single goal. That is the only way to talk about it. I think it has done so in ways we are going to regret for a long time.

The first is the ISIS mission. There are still 20,000 ISIS killers being held in jalls and camps across northern Syria. The guards at those camps are not Americans. They are Kurdish guards. What happens when someone invades the citites that your family lives in? You send people to go meet that enemy. That means that they have been removing guards from the prisons to the frontlines.

There are less and less guards in these camps. Estimates are already that a large number of ISIS killers have already gotten out, and they anticipate more to get out soon. Just imagine 10,000 killers running loose, not to mention efforts by ISIS to break them out with less security.

By the way, this is a problem not just in Syrian problem in Iraq. About 200,000 refugees have already amassed at the border. There is no way Iraq can go through every single one of them and determine who is an ISIS killer and who is a refugee who is coming back. So you can suddenly see this resurgence of ISIS spread and destabilize Iraq. So, suddenly, this evil movement that we had on the ropes and had become an insurgency—and, frankly, was already reemerging as an insurgency—has just been given fuel to operate in one, and now in two, countries.

How about the goal of providing leverage for a future settlement to reflect our interests? First of all, in restraint on Assad’s power, think about it this way. Literally, overnight, when the Turks came in and the Kurds didn’t have us anymore, they were forced to cut a deal with Assad. So, suddenly, the Kurds are basically telling Assad’s troops: Come up to the cities that we once controlled. You can do what you want here to back us up. You take control of them. That is what they had to do to avoid being slaughtered.

In practical terms, what it means is that Assad, literally, overnight, has captured a third of the land of Syria at no price and no concession. He had to make no concessions, pay no price, do nothing other than just send people up to take it.

To me, this doesn’t sound like we have imposed restraints on Assad. It sounds like he has just literally been gifted control over a third of the national territory at no concession and no price. He had to do nothing. How does that serve Kurdish interests? I think that is self-explanatory.

The Kurds have now been forced to align themselves with Assad, who, in the short term, may be fine, but once this is all over, I doubt very seriously whether the Kurds will be treated well, not to mention the Yazidi and the Christian communities that the Kurds were protecting, who now are also under Assad’s rule. Suffice it to say that nothing here has safeguarded their interests.

There is news today that the Vice President and the Secretary of State were able to go to Turkey and work out what is being called a ceasefire. I think they deserve praise, along with the President, that this is a concession because anytime that human lives are spared from death in a war, that is cause for celebration.

With all due respect, it does not appear to me, however, that this is really a ceasefire. It is more of an ultimatum because what Erdogan is basically saying is this: Here is land that I intend to take. I intend to drive every Kurd out of this area, and I intend for Turkey to control this area in northern Syria as a security zone, as he calls it. The only thing he has agreed to as an ultimatum is that the Kurds can leave this area voluntarily in the next 5 days, or he will move in and take it and kill them. You can call it a ceasefire, but, frankly, it does appear to have changed the strategic objective that Erdogan has for that region.

I certainly think that while it is good news that it made some lemonade out of this lemon, nonetheless, these are cities in which not just Kurdish troops but people and families are going to have to leave now, and we are going to have to be involved in helping to coordinate and guarantee that, which runs its own risks.

Ultimately, it is an ultimatum by him saying: You have 5 days to leave before I move in and kill you.

How about limiting Iran’s influence? First of all, clearly, Iran will now have more operating space in Syria. The lack of a U.S. presence there means that Iran and its affiliated groups, particularly these Hezbollah shoots that are now in Syria, will have much more operating space. The stronger Assad is, the stronger Iran will be. Assad is a very close ally of the Iranians, and the more space they have, the more space they have to operate.

Embedded in this, as you have noticed, is that Iran has developed this ability to conduct attacks against the United States, sometimes using third groups that they control, to either blame the attacks on, to claim credit for the attacks, or, in some cases, to conduct them, because what this does is it allows them to conduct attacks against the United States without facing international condemnation for the attack—enough deniability—especially from countries that are looking to not blame Iran anyway because it would force them to get into deals—get a deal. And they have gotten away with it.

But one of the things that Iran has calculated in these attacks—one of the things they have taken into the calculation—is this: We believe the United States is trying to get out of the region; meaning, if we attack them, we can hit them much harder than we ever had before because they don’t want another war. They are not going to hit us back as hard. We can get away with more.

I submit to you that I am pretty confident that this decision has strengthened that perception, not weakened it. I fear what that can mean next. It has also increased Iranian influence in Iraq. If you are an Iraqi politician right now, whether you are a Shia or a Sunni, and you have just seen this decision, you are thinking to yourself: We are next. And when the Americans leave here at some point—at some point we will have to—the Iranians are going to become the most important group on the ground.

In fact, there were reports yesterday that there were more contests on the street and there were Iranian-linked militias with snipers on the rooftops operating in Iraq. These were not elements of the army or the police force. These were Iranian elements operating in Iraq. This has increased their influence in Iraq and their ability to determine the future of Iraq in a way that is terrible for us, terrible for our allies, like Israel, and a great benefit to the Iranians, not to mention that Syria could become an extraterritorial and Iranian rogue team that the Iranians can now use to increasingly continue to supply Hezbollah in Lebanon and to increasingly supply their own militias just across the Golan Heights.

The irony in all of this, ironically, is that I fear this decision actually makes it likely that there is going to be a war. I will tell you why. As I pointed out first, there is the Iranian attack calculation. This further strengthens their belief that by getting out of Iraq with even more brazen attacks because the threshold for a U.S. military response is higher than it has ever been because we are looking to get out, and they proves it.

What that can mean is they can miscalculate it, and we are going to have to respond. Then, all of a sudden, you are in a real shooting war—not a 2,000 person on the ground, working with the Kurds’ war, a real regional conflict.

The other point is that all of our alliances around the world are built on security guarantees. In Eastern Europe, the NATO security guarantee in many of these countries is a 300-, 400-, 500-man force—a tripwire. It is not enough to stop a Russian incursion, but they are there because if they were confronted by Russians, that would trigger a broader conflict.

You could say the same about South Korea, our presence in Japan, the com-mittments we have made to Israel, and the troop presence we have now in Saudi Arabia and on and on.

ances be more or less confident of our assurances? I will tell you this. Less than 48 hours before this withdrawal decision was made, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff gave an unequivocal assurance that we were not going anywhere. The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a general, General Milley, said: We are there and we are not going anywhere. These are all rumors. Forty-eight hours later, this withdrawal announcement was made.

With all due respect, this is not his fault. I don't blame him, if he believes that. I would warn our enemies not to view it that way—but I can tell you it certainly hasn't been strengthened by this. One last point on this. You know, Russia and China are going all over the world trying to come up with a U.S. alternative—a coalition of countries that are sanctioned—to try to get around the dollarization of the global economy, a coalition to fight against the impediments against Chinese spyware and technology, and a coalition to limit our presence in one part of the world or another. The argument they make to these countries is, Why are you aligned with America? They are unreliable. They are unreliable partners. They will cut you on as soon as it makes sense to them to do so. Somebody else gets elected and has a different opinion.

Well, ask yourselves, has that argument been strengthened or weakened? Have we made it easier or harder for Russia and China to make that argument, including the countries that we have basing agreements with now and including the countries that we are meeting with every single day and asking the Russian military forces to leave because while this may be popular when first pre-mitted to people, when you view it in its totality and entirety, sometimes what is popular in the short term is not good for America's national security in the long term, and it is my fear that this is one such example.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, the purpose of my speaking today is to remind my colleagues about some history as it relates to the adoption of Part D of Medicare back in 2003 and the importance of considering that history in regard to the importance of passing legislation this year in regard to high drug costs. The reminder goes to my colleagues who are up for election, based on the fact that the history of the last three elections can have important consequences for people who weren't aware of the grassroots support for doing something for prescription drugs and Medicare, as Part D turned out to be.

ple—the grassroots of America—are expressing the need to do something about prescription drug prices, so I am going to spend my time doing what I just summarized for you going through the history of 20 years ago versus now.

I want to lower the cost of prescription drugs for American seniors. I have spoken on this topic many times before, and in my previous speeches years and years ago, I said that we were determined to move on the promises of the last three elections in a bipartisan manner to help seniors who had waited far too long for relief, and that relief came out as Medicare Part D.

That speech was more than 15 years ago. We have been here before. In 2003, I was leading the last piece of bipartisan entitlement reform, the creation of the Medicare Part D Program that was entitled the “Medicare Modernization Act of 2003.”

Now here we are again on the cusp of meaningful, bipartisan action in regard to prescription drugs. This action would fulfill the promises that I and many of my colleagues and the administration, meaning the Trump administration, made to the American people that we are going to do something about prescription drug pricing. We should be reminded that promises made ought to be promises kept.

I want to remind my colleagues that history does not have to repeat itself. Hopefully, this will help rid the grid-lock that delayed us from delivering Medicare Part D nearly two decades ago.

As we all know, the Medicare Modernization Act was signed into law in November of 2003, but the process of creating Part D began long before the President actually signed the bill. We could go back more than a decade—but that is not the most important part of it—but Congress was voting on what would become prescription drug coverage as early as 1988. Obviously, it didn't become law.

Suggestions for how to help seniors with prescription drugs came from both parties and had bipartisan support. Hopefully, this will help rid the gridlock that delayed us from delivering Medicare Part D nearly two decades ago.

So going back to the Clinton administration as part of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, Congress created a forum to bring more attention to the prescription drug program under Medicare. That was called the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare.

After a year’s worth of work and research, the Commission voted on three recommendations in 1999, including a prescription drug benefit. However, the recommendations failed to receive the mandated supermajority of members’ votes, so no formal recommendations were ever submitted to Congress because that was the rule of the Commission at the time. It had to be a supermajority of the members of the Commission.

Facing mounting pressure from public in anticipation of the 2000 election, all of the major Presidential candidates presented plans. President Bush had suggested a new Federal subsidy and low-income beneficiaries against catastrophic expenses. Yet the Congress still couldn’t reach a compromise, even though it was very much discussed during that Presidential election, and it was in a lot of discussions in Senate races as well.

At that time, the country was united behind Medicare reform, but Congress was divided on how or even if it should act, and it did not act.

In the Finance Committee, the person that preceded me when I took over the chairmanship of the Finance Committee, a person by the name of Bill Roth of Delaware, proposed two plans to committee members in hopes that a consensus could be reached. The first plan worked to fundamentally change the Medicare Program. The proposal included a universal drug benefit for the Medicare Program with several major contracting reforms. The reforms would have permitted pharmacy benefit managers, insurers, and other qualified firms to compete to manage the government drug benefit in a cost-effective way.

Then-Chairman Roth also proposed a scaled-back plan which would extend prescription drug coverage to low-income seniors and on the State level to those seniors facing catastrophic levels of spending. This second piece of the Roth proposal was meant to be a backstop—just a short-term, bipartisan bandaid on a gaping wound while negotiations continued to find a longer term solution.

Despite the support from then-President Bill Clinton and the Republican majority leader, Trent Lott, compromise was elusive, and the Finance Committee did not act before the November election. So then we had the 2000 election. Prescription drug coverage was a big issue, and it was a big issue probably more for Republicans because we controlled the U.S. Senate. We lost five incumbent Republican Senators because people didn’t pay attention to this being a major issue. I don’t want to be known at the end of time with, I don’t want Senators making that same mistake this year.

The American people were obviously disappointed in the lack of action back then, as in 2000, and what I have seen is that there is no way to do when there is grassroots support like there was then, we marched on to find a path forward, but building consensus was not easy.

I was chairman during part of that time between the years 2000 and 2003. I wasn’t chairman all that time because the Senate flipped to a Democratic majority when Senator Jeffords of Vermont changed from Republican to Democrat. Between the years 2000 and 2003, I went to reach a compromise but what have I seen is that there is no way to do when there is grassroots support like there was then, we marched on to find a path forward, but building consensus was not easy.

I was chairman during part of that time between the years 2000 and 2003. I wasn’t chairman all that time because the Senate flipped to a Democratic majority when Senator Jeffords of Vermont changed from Republican to Democrat. Between the years 2000 and 2003, I went to reach a compromise but what have I seen is that there is no way to do when there is grassroots support like there was then, we marched on to find a path forward, but building consensus was not easy.

As a result of the 2002 elections, Republicans were back in the majority, and I retook the gavel as chair of the Finance Committee. At that time legislation that would address seniors’ concerns and be bipartisan so it would pass an almost evenly split Senate. That was my goal. In the Finance Committee, we went through the important and wide-ranging process of creating what eventually became the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003.

I worked across the aisle, the Capitol, and down Pennsylvania Avenue to find a prescription drug reform that was passed in 2003, called Part D of Medicare. It should have to wait 5 years this time. Congress has been here before. We want to make sure history doesn’t repeat itself. I want to make sure that we are resistant to compromise. Once again, I am leading a bipartisan effort to enact much needed entitlement reform, and once again some of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle are resisting compromise. Once again, medicine has changed since the last entitlement reform I led. Let me remind you, prescription medication was not much of a part of the cost of medicine in 1965 when Medicare was created. By 2003, it had become a significant portion of the cost of medicine. That is why people needed Medicare Part D. Pharmaceuticals are even more a part of the practice of medicine today. Scientific advances have brought new and more effective treatments. However, they are often accompanied by very high costs. That means prescription drug prices have skyrocketed, and Americans want Congress to act now so they can afford their lifesaving medications.

Our seniors deserve better than the over 5-year delay in action we put them through last time—in other words, 5 years before we passed something in 2003 called Part D of Medicare. They shouldn’t have to wait 5 years this time. Congress has been here before. We want to make sure history doesn’t repeat itself. I want to make sure that we are resistant to compromise. Once again, I am leading a bipartisan effort to enact much needed entitlement reform, and once again some of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle are resisting compromise. Once again, I am leading a bipartisan effort to enact much needed entitlement reform, and once again some of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle are resisting compromise. Once again, I am leading a bipartisan effort to enact much needed entitlement reform, and once again some of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle are resisting compromise.

We have another opportunity to deliver meaningful reforms to help the Part D program adapt to new innovations in the healthcare world. The bill that came out of my committee 19 to 9, titled the “Prescription Drug Cost Reduction Act of 2019,” builds on the successful programs we created in 2003. It includes incentives for manufacturers to make lower beneficiary premiums by $6 billion and lower out-of-pocket costs by $25 billion. The bill will implement an out-of-pocket cap, eliminate excess payments, cap taxpayer subsidies, and permanently repeal the doughnut hole in Medicare Part D. It uses market forces. Those market forces will incentivize manufacturers to lower list prices and report more accurate calculations of their rebate obligations.

In short, this is the right bill at the right time. We should have the opportunity to support actions that Americans need now, not 5 or 10 years from now.
I want to give credit to Senator Wyden of Oregon, the ranking Democcrat on my committee and my partner on this issue.

Thank you for working with us in the tradition of the Finance Committee in the same way that Senator Baucus and I worked together 15 years ago on Part D legislation.

I ask all of my colleagues to join Senator Wyden and me in our bipartisan effort to lower the cost of prescription drugs.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

S.J. RES. 53

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss S.J. Res. 53, the resolution of disapproval under the Congressional Review Act on the Environmental Protection Agency’s Affordable Clean Energy, ACE rule. I fully support passage of the resolution.

Every week seems to bring fresh evidence of the damage climate change is causing to our environment and economy. Increasing floods, heatwaves, droughts, hurricanes, and snowstorms have wreaked havoc on communities across the country. We cannot continue to ignore that climate change is already taking all around us. We must take immediate action.

The Obama administration’s Clean Power Plan established Federal standards for emissions of carbon dioxide from fossil fuel-fired power plants. The plan set achievable carbon emissions reduction targets of 32 percent from 2005 levels by 2030 to be reached by reducing emissions from coal-fired power plants, shifting energy generation from fossil fuels to renewable sources, and promoting energy conservation. The Clean Power Plan not only helped drive the transition of our energy generation to cleaner sources, it also served as the centerpiece of U.S. efforts to lead the world in addressing climate change through the Paris Climate Agreement.

The administration’s rule would have dire implications for our air quality and public health. For these reasons, I oppose the administration’s rule and support passage of Senator CARDIN’s resolution—S.J. Res. 53—to disapprove of it.

VOTE EXPLANATION

Ms. HARRIS. Mr. President, I was absent for vote No. 324 on S.J. Res. 53, providing for congressional disapproval under chapter 8 of title 5, United States Code, of the rule submitted by the Environmental Protection Agency relating to “Repeal of the Clean Power Plan; Emission Guidelines for Greenhouse Gas Emissions From Existing Utility Generating Units; Revisions to Emissions Guidelines Implementing Regulations.”

Had I been present, I would have voted yea on the resolution.

Mr. RISCH. Mr. President, section 36(b) of the Arms Export Control Act requires that Congress receive prior nolates that, in the Senate, the notification of proposed sales shall be sent to the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In keeping with the committee’s intention to see that relevant information is available to the full Senate, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the notifications which have been received. If the cover letter references a classified annex, then such annex is available to all Senators in the office of the Foreign Relations Committee, room SD–423.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

POLICY justIFICATION

Republic of Korea—AIM–120C Advanced Medium Range Air-to-Air Missile (AMRAAM)

The Republic of Korea (ROK) has requested to purchase, one hundred twenty (120) AIM–120C–7/ C–8 Advanced Medium Range Air-to-Air Missiles (AMRAAM). Also included are containers; weapon support and support equipment; spare and repair parts; U.S. Government and contractor engineering, technical, and logistics support services; and other related elements of logistical and program support. The total estimated program cost is $253 million.

This proposed sale will support the foreign policy and national security objectives of the United States by ensuring security and defense needs of one of the closest allies in the INDOPACOM Theater. The Republic of Korea is one of the major political and economic powers in East Asia and the Western Pacific and a key partner of the United States in ensuring peace and stability in that region. It is vital to U.S. national interests to assist the Republic of Korea in developing and maintaining a strong and ready self-defense capability.

This proposed sale will improve the ROK capability to meet current and future threats by increasing its stocks of medium range missiles for its F–15K, KP–16, and F–35 fleets for its national defense. The potential sale will further strengthen interoperability between the United States and the ROK. The ROK will have no difficulty absorbing these additional missiles into its armed forces.

The proposed sale of this equipment and support will not alter the basic military balance in the region.

The principal contractor will be Raytheon of Waltham, MA. There are no known offset agreements proposed in connection with this potential sale. Any offset agreement will be defined in negotiations between the Purchaser and the prime contractor.

Implementation of the proposed sale will not require the assignment of any additional U.S. Government contractor representatives to the ROK.

There will be no adverse impact on U.S. defense readiness as a result of this proposed sale.

TRANSMITTAL NO. 19–51

Annex Item No. vii

(vii) Sensitivity of Technology:
1. The proposed sale will involve the release of sensitive technology to the Republic of Korea, related to the AIM-120C-7/6-8 Advanced Medium Range Air-to-Air Missile (AMRAAM). The AIM-120C-7/6-8 AMRAAM is a supersonic, air-launched, aerial intercept, guided missile featuring digital technology and micro-miniature solid-state electronics. Purchase includes the AMRAAM Guidance Sections. AMRAAM capabilities include look-down/shoot-down, multiple launches against multiple targets, resistance to electronic countermeasures, and interception of high- and low-flying maneuvering targets. The AIM-120C-7 is a form, fit, function refresh of the AIM-120C-7 and is the next generation product. The capabilities of the AIM-120C-7 and C-8 are identical. The AMRAAM All Up Round is classified CONFIDENTIAL, major components and subsystems range from UNCLASSIFIED to SECRET.

2. If a technologically advanced adversary were to obtain knowledge of the specific hardware and software elements, the information could be used to develop countermeasures to reduce weapon system effectiveness or be used in the development of a system with similar or advanced capabilities.

3. A determination has been made that the Republic of Korea can provide substantially the same degree of protection for the sensitive technology as released and as controlled by the Government. This sale is necessary in furtherance of the U.S. foreign policy and national security objectives outlined in the Policy Justification.

4. All defense articles and services listed on this transmission have been authorized for release and export to the Republic of Korea.

INDUCTION OF BROOKS & DUNN, RAY STEVENS, AND JERRY BRADLEY INTO THE COUNTRY MUSIC HALL OF FAME

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. President, in Nashville, we have a saying: it all starts with a song; but a song is just the beginning of the story.

This Sunday, Nashville's unbroken circle of elite artists, producers, entertainers, and musical masterminds will welcome four new members into the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Kix Brooks, Ronnie Dunn, Ray Stevens, and Jerry Bradley represent different sectors within the music industry, but all contributed to country music's evolution.

Kix Brooks and Ronnie Dunn—we know them as Brooks & Dunn—began their careers as solo singer-songwriters but rocketed to stardom as a duo. Their fusion of classic rock composition and heartfelt songwriting spoke to country music fans craving an edge to the genre's traditional "Nashville Sound." Nearly three decades after their first album dropped, their music still inspires emerging generations of fans.

From the beginning of his career, audiences and fellow artists alike were drawn to Ray Stevens' wonderful sense of humor and talent to entertainment as an art form. Known for his work in musical comedy, Ray stretched his legs and also made a name for himself as a studio musician, producer, songwriter, publisher, label owner, gospel singer, and country star.

Jerry Bradley, this year's inductee, may not have invented country music, but no one on Music Row would deny the impact his work has had on generations of country stars. Jerry began his career in Nashville when the country industry was on the brink of a major transformation. He drove the format into a new era defined by rebels, outlaws, and crossover superstars.

Today, I encourage my colleagues to take a moment to think of their favorite song and to remember how it made them feel the first time they heard it. Kix, Ronnie, Ray, and Jerry are responsible for making millions of people feel that exact same way about their favorite song.

Their body of work represents more than just a series of accomplishments. It represents the best of Music City.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO JOHN ROBERTSON

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize my friend John Robertson, a dedicated servant to the great people of West Virginia and native of our State capital, Charleston. After a 41-year career, John is retiring as the general manager of the Charleston Coliseum and Convention Center.

Throughout these past four decades, John's leadership has transformed the facility, turning it into one of the cultural epicenters of our State.

In August of 1978, with a bachelor's degree from the University of Charleston under his belt, John began his career as an assistant manager for the Charleston Civic Center. At the time, the building wasym in its fledgling stages, having just broken ground the month before. For John, it was all hands on deck, and he hit the ground running, assisting in structural related duties, as well as the concession stand operations. Two years later, in August of 1980, the Charleston Civic Center was host to its first big concert—the band Queen.

With John's vision and leadership at the helm, this was just the beginning for the Charleston Civic Center. Soon after the center was completed, the necessary renovations to turn the civic center into exhibit and meeting facilities were well under way. Through additional construction, two parking structures were placed contiguous to the Civic Center, creating an entirely different complex by 1982.

John's greatest of many accomplishments has come within the past few years, when approval of a city sales tax appropriated the proper funding to build the state-of-the-art facility that he had always dreamed of creating for his home town. John worked tirelessly with the mayor and Charleston city council, civic center board members, his staff, city planners, and consulting firms to complete the new Charleston Coliseum and Convention Center in the fall of 2018. This achievement is underscored by the fact that the center was continually operated during the entire construction period.

The Charleston Civic Center is held so fondly in the memories of so many West Virginians. For some, it is where they saw their favorite band perform live for the first time. For others, it was where they were able to bring home a State basketball title. From Garth Brooks concerts, to oldtime car shows, West Virginia versus Marshall basketball games or the West Virginia Book Festival, one thing has remained the same; that is, John's dedication to the citizens of Charleston through his tireless work to make sure that every detail of every event, no matter how big or small, held at the Charleston Civic Center was in place.

In retirement, John will now have more time to spend with his loving wife Kimberly, his daughters Bethany and Allyson, and his grandchildren Lucy and Henry, but the lasting effects of what he did for our State and the city of Charleston will continue on for generations to come. I wish John all the best as he continues to make a difference in his community with his unwavering diligence and kind soul. It is truly an honor to call you friend and fellow West Virginian.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS ON JUNE 13, 2019

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself and Mr. MANCHIN):

S. 1868. A bill to provide support to States to establish invisible high-risk pool or reinsurance programs; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, rising health care costs are a major concern for millions of Americans—whether it’s expensive health insurance premiums, high out-of-pocket expenses, or soaring prescription drug costs. In the individual market, where 11.5 million Americans who do not have employer-sponsored insurance have to go to buy their insurance—including the 78,000 individuals in Maine—premiums continue to rise exponentially.

With this in mind, I am introducing the Premium Reduction Act of 2019 with my good friend and colleague, Senator JOE MANCHIN. Leading health care experts at Oliver Wyman indicate that our legislation would lower average health insurance premiums for consumers in the individual market by as much as 30 percent. In addition, more than a million more individuals would have health insurance that they now lack.

Data from the Kaiser Family Foundation show premiums for the benchmark “silver” plans under the Affordable Care Act (ACA) are nearly 75 percent higher than they were when the ACA went “live” in 2014. While individuals who are eligible for the ACA’s premium tax credits are shielded from these increases, the price of these silver plans is unaffordable for millions of Americans who are not eligible for these tax credits.

Even “bronze plans”—the lowest cost individual market policies available through the ACA exchanges—have become unaffordable for those without subsidies. Bronze plan premiums have gone up so much that they now exceed those charged for silver plans in 2014, despite the fact that these bronze policies have far higher deductibles and out-of-pocket expenses.

Individuals who make 400 percent or less of the federal poverty level get a federal tax credit to help defray the monthly premium cost. But individuals who make just one dollar over that level get no help at all, and must pay the full premium on their own. These premiums are unaffordable for middle-income families.

The difference in premiums is shocking for many families. For example, in Aroostook County, Maine, a 60-year-old couple enrolled in a silver plan will pay about $500 if they earn 400 percent or less of the federal poverty level; in other words, as long as they earn less than roughly $66,000. But if they earn just a dollar more, they will lose their eligibility for a premium tax credit, and will have to pay the entire premium themselves—an incredible $36,500!

One step Congress could take to help alleviate the rising cost of premiums in the individual health insurance market is to provide States with additional flexibility and support to design State-based stabilization programs that would help offset the costs of covering consumers with high medical expenses. Once these costs are covered, the premiums that the government provide insurance to the rest of the population can be set at a much lower level. Thus far, seven states—Maine, Alaska, Maryland, Minnesota, New Jersey, Oregon, and Wisconsin—have established such programs. According to the health care experts at Avalere, the programs in these seven states have reduced premiums in the individual market by 20 percent compared to what they otherwise would have been, and saved the federal government nearly $1 billion in funding in the first year, which was returned to the states in the form of “pass through” funding.

Under the Premium Reduction Act, $5 billion would be available annually over three years to support states that seek to operate stabilization programs under section 1332 of the Affordable Care Act. In addition, $500 million is provided to assist states with planning the design of their own stabilization program, and there is a “federal fallback” for 2021 to help cover the costs of waivers under section 1332. It is important to note that our proposal does not change in any way the ACA’s essential benefits requirements or its protections for individuals with pre-existing conditions.

The bill provides three options for expedited review so that states could quickly stand-up their own programs using the existing waiver process under section 1332 of the Affordable Care Act.

First, a state can demonstrate that their program is an “invisible high-risk pool” in keeping with the design pioneered by Maine early in this decade and used as a template by Alaska more recently.

Second, a state can show that its program fits within the parameters of the ACA’s transitional reinsurance program, which expired at the end of 2016; or Third, a state can submit what can be described as a “copycat” application based on another state’s program that has already received approval.

Any of these program components can be approved through an expedited process. The bill provides the state with a federal fallback provision. If a state does not wish to establish their own stabilization program, they can receive up to $3 billion in funding through the “federal fallback” that I described a few moments ago.

Finally, the bill would also extend the section 1332 “feedback effect” to states that receive funding through the federal fallback provision. This will ensure that the benefits of lower premiums are felt in all states as quickly as possible, giving states ample time to seek and obtain approval of their own programs under the waiver process.

In a recent letter to me endorsing our bill, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners stressed that “[a]ction must be taken to make coverage more affordable or we will see even higher uninsured rates, and people move to less regulated plans and sicker individual market pools.” The NAIC’s letter goes on to note the success of stabilization programs at the state level, stating that such programs are “a cost-effective way to significantly reduce individual market premiums” that can expand coverage and make it more affordable for unsubsidized individuals and families. The NAIC closed its letter with a call to implement such programs nationwide.

Also, a consortium of health care providers, insurers, and stakeholders—joined by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce—circulated a letter recently to Senate Finance Committee and House leadership urging them to adopt a proposal like the one we are introducing as a “commonsense solution to significantly lower premiums.” In their letter, they stressed that premium reduction programs can “help cover the costs of people with serious health conditions, provide greater financial stability for states, and improve the affordability of health care coverage,” especially for those who are not eligible for subsidies.
Mr. President, I ask that these letters be entered into the RECORD immediately after my remarks.

Efforts at further reform of America’s health care system have been the source of frustration and division in this chamber. At the same time, many members of both parties are committed to reducing health care costs and expanding access to quality, affordable coverage. The programs adopted by seven pioneering states have a proven track-record in reducing premiums for consumers and would make policies in the individual market more affordable. The bill Senator MANchin and I are introducing today would help extend and fund these successful models to every state that chooses to participate, helping to reduce premiums for the 11.5 million Americans who get their insurance in the individual market nationwide. I urge my colleagues to support our bill.

DEAR LEADERS MCCONNELL AND SCHUMER, SPEAKER PELOSI AND LEADER MCCARTHY: As providers of health care and coverage to hundreds of millions of Americans, we write to you to urge prompt action to lower health insurance premiums. The individual market is a critical source of coverage for millions of Americans, helping them to access care. Unfortunately, however, individual market premiums are often unaffordable for many middle class families who do not receive any financial assistance. With health insurers finalizing their premium rates for 2020, the time is now for us to establish a federal premium reduction/reinsurance program to help cover the costs of people with significant health care needs and improve the affordability of health care coverage.

A reinsurance program is a commonsense solution to significantly lower premiums, which would greatly improve access to coverage and care. Independent analyses, including ones by Oliver Wyman and Avalere Health, show that a premium reduction/reinsurance program could reduce premiums by up to 20% while preserving the comprehensiveness of coverage and primarily helping those who are not subsidy eligible.

We understand that there are numerous efforts in Congress underway to establish a premium reduction/reinsurance program, and we are happy to work with all parties towards a final bill that will improve the individual market for 2020 and beyond. We urge you to deliver on the promise to reduce premiums for millions of deserving Americans and their families so they can access the care they need. We look forward to working with you in support of this promise.

Sincerely,

AMERICA’S HEALTH INSURANCE PLANS, AMERICAN ACADEMY OF FAMILY PHYSICIANS, AMERICAN BENEFITS COUNCIL, AMERICAN HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION, AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, BLUE CROSS BLUE SHIELD ASSOCIATION, FEDERATION OF AMERICAN MEDICAL COLLEGES, U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INSURANCE COMMISSIONERS AND THE CENTER FOR INSURANCE POLICY AND RESEARCH, Hon. SUSAN COLLINS, Senator, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR COLLINS: On behalf of the members of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) we write to express our support and continued efforts to help improve the individual health insurance markets in our states through the funding of state stabilization programs. Numerous studies have shown that more stable premium rates and carrier participation over the past two years, the fact remains that in all states premiums continue to be significant for those who do not receive federal subsidies. This has resulted in shrinking individual markets and less stable risk pools. Action must be taken to make coverage more affordable or we will see even higher uninsured rates, more people move to less-regulated plans, and sicker individual market pools.

This is why commissioners from across the political spectrum have contacted their congressional delegations to testify before House and Senate committees, and urged federal policymakers to take immediate action to stabilize the individual health insurance market. In particular, we support your proposal to provide federal funding for state stabilization programs, as well as for grants to help states develop innovative solutions through Section 1332 waivers. We also support the creation of a federal program to assist consumers in states unable to implement their own program quickly.

State reinsurance programs and invisible high-risk pools have already proven their effectiveness. According to a recent Avalere study, the seven states that have already implemented a program through a Section 1332 waiver using state funds have reduced premium by almost 20%. Additional federal funding, as provided in your bill, would provide even more benefit to consumers, and extend the benefits to all states.

Creating a federal market stabilization program is a cost-effective way to significantly reduce individual market premiums, thus making coverage more affordable to unsubsidized individuals and families and growing the individual market pool. We have seen it work in the handful of states that have implemented such programs; it is time to implement it nationwide.

Sincerely,

ERIC A. CIOPPA, NAIC President, Superintendents of Insurance, RAYMOND G. FARMER, NAIC President-Elect, Director, South Carolina Department of Insurance, DAVID ALTMAIER, NAIC Vice President, Commissioner, Florida Office of Insurance, DEAN L. CAMERON, NAIC Secretary-Treasurer, Director, Superintendent of Insurance.

HONORING THE LIFE OF TRISHA MARTINEZ
HON. NORMA J. TORRES
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mrs. TORRES of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of Trisha Martinez of the City of Montclair, and her tireless dedication to serving the Inland Empire community.

A resident of Montclair since 1992, Trisha was elected to the Montclair City Council in 2014 and re-elected in 2018. Throughout her tenure, Trisha was a fierce advocate for the City she dearly loved. As a Council member, she fought for Montclair’s award-winning Montclair to College Program which provides free tuition and books to graduating Montclair High School students who attend Chaffey College for up to two years.

Trisha also remained committed to Montclair’s seniors, working to ensure the elderly community continues to receive free or reduced-cost services, including micro-transit and discounted refuse services. Trisha also continued to volunteer with the Senior Nutrition Program at the Montclair Senior Center for over 10 years.

In April 2019, Trisha was diagnosed with cervical cancer. Despite spending most of these past months in hospitals, Trisha still dedicated herself to attending City Council meetings and other local and regional board meetings. This rare kind of commitment and devotion to the people of Montclair is worthy of admiration.

For her exemplary life of service, Madam Speaker, it is my honor to recognize Montclair City Council Member Trisha Martinez on the House floor. Her decades of commitment and contributions to the city she loved are exemplary, and her memory will live on through the countless lives she impacted. May she rest in peace.

TRIBUTE HONORING LATHRAN J. WOODARD
HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. CLYBURN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding South Carolinian and a proven health care champion for the people of South Carolina and the nation. Lathran Johnson Woodard has devoted her career to promoting the health and well-being of South Carolinians, especially those who struggle to access quality health care.

A native of Columbia, South Carolina, Ms. Woodard received her primary and secondary education in Richland County public schools, graduating from C.A. Johnson High School in Columbia. She received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration from Southern Wesleyan University and began her career at the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control (DHEC). Over the course of her fourteen-year tenure, she was promoted to various positions at the agency. Her hard work and dedication earned her the position of Deputy Director for the Division of Maternal Health. While at DHEC, Ms. Woodard helped write and initiate the state’s Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) program and led initiatives to ensure access and improvement of services and equipment to mothers and children in South Carolina.

Ms. Woodard has achieved over 30 years of service in the health care field. In 1987, she became the Assistant Director for the South Carolina Primary Health Care Association (SOPHCA), where she now serves as the Chief Executive Officer. As CEO of SOPHCA, Ms. Woodard has worked relentlessly to ensure the strength and capacity of the state’s primary care safety net, focusing primarily on assistance to those health care centers that provide vital services to medically underserved communities. Her other interests are community systems design, the development of integrated systems of healthcare, and youth self-enforcement.

Beyond her work in South Carolina, Ms. Woodard has promoted health care on a national level as well. She is currently the Chair-Elect of the National Association of Community Health Centers. She holds membership in the National Association of Female Executives, the National Rural Health Association, the American Society of Association Executives, and the South Carolina Public Health Association. She has earned several awards and honors. Most recently, Ms. Woodard was a recipient of the Order of Palmetto, the highest honor a civilian can receive in the State of South Carolina.

Madam Speaker, I ask that you and my colleagues join me in offering congratulations and sincere gratitude to Ms. Lathran J. Woodard for her unwavering service to the people of South Carolina and the nation. Her many contributions have improved the quality of life for so many South Carolinians and helped advance healthy communities throughout the country. I am pleased to honor her for exemplifying what it means to be a true public servant.

CONGRATULATING SENATOR MAGGIE HASSAN ON RECEIVING THE 2019 NEW ENGLANDER OF THE YEAR AWARD
HON. CHRIS PAPPAS
OF NEW HAMPSHIRE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. PAPPAS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate my friend and colleague, Senator MAGGIE HASSAN, for receiving the 2019 New Englander of the Year award from the New England Council. This award recognizes New Englanders who make our region such a wonderful place to live, learn, and grow.

Senator HASSAN epitomizes all that we should strive for as public servants. Her call to public service is deeply rooted in her belief that everyone, no matter their ability or background, should be able to fully participate in their communities. Senator HASSAN knows that when we lift up and empower all members of our community, we can collectively rise higher.

First as a New Hampshire State Senator, then as Governor, and now as a United States Senator, Senator HASSAN has been a committed public servant and champion in making our communities stronger. During her tenure as governor, I was honored to work under her leadership to expand access to health care and deliver additional resources for treatment and recovery. Now in Washington, I am proud to work with her to address the opioid crisis, foster a more inclusive future, and build a New Hampshire economy that works for everyone.

Senator HASSAN’s steadfast advocacy for our state and region may only be surpassed by her other thing—her passion for our great New England sports teams.

I could not think of a better recipient of such an award than my colleague, Senator MAGGIE HASSAN. On behalf of our constituents in New Hampshire’s First Congressional District, I want to congratulate Senator HASSAN on this well-deserved honor.

PHARMACEUTICAL INDEPENDENCE LONG-TERM READINESS REFORM ACT OF 2019
HON. JOHN GARAMENDI
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. GARAMENDI. Madam Speaker, today I introduce the “Pharmaceutical Independence Long-Term Readiness Reform Act.” I want to thank Congresswoman HARTZLER for her support as an original cosponsor.

Our legislation would require the Department of Defense to acquire and purchase only American-made raw materials, medicines, and vaccines for our military. It would also require the Department of Defense to identify the national security vulnerabilities caused by our country’s current dependence on Chinese pharmaceuticals.

As a result of the Chinese government’s chokehold on the generic pharmaceutical market, our military servicemembers have been left vulnerable. China is a principal creator of generic prescriptions, which account for approximately 90 percent of the global pharmaceutical market.

The reality is that if the Chinese wanted to cripple the United States, they could sabotage or cut off our supply of generic medications and antibiotics used by our military. This simply is a vulnerability that we cannot let continue to exist. We need to reinvigorate the
HON. RASHIDA TLAIB
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Ms. TLAIB. Madam Speaker, I rise today in honor of the Yemeni American Benevolent Association, an outstanding service organization in Wayne County, Michigan, for its fifty years of service.

The Yemeni American Benevolent Association was founded in 1969 to promote empowerment of people, environmental protection, and respect for cultural diversity. They have worked to cultivate community leadership, as well as providing education and other services to the surrounding community. Aside from language classes, translation services, and tutoring, the Yemeni American Benevolent Association has grown its annual scholarship program to help young people achieve their dreams of pursuing higher education. The scholarship program is an amazing achievement that has provided a pathway to a better future and encourages young people to give back to their community.

I ask you to please join me in tribute to the Yemeni American Benevolent Association as they celebrate this milestone.

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to ask the House of Representatives to join me in recognizing The Washington Blade on the occasion of its 50th anniversary.

On October 5, 1969, Richard M. Nixon was President, John W. McCormick was Speaker of the House, Richard Russell, Jr. was Senate President pro tempore, Americans were listening to “Sugar Sugar” by The Archies, and the 91st Congress was in weekend recess. However, a few LGBTQ Washingtonians read the first edition of The Gay Blade, created by Nancy Tucker and Lilli Vincenz.

Since its inception, The Blade continued as a monthly one-sheet newsletter until it expanded to four pages in June 1972. By April 1974, it grew to eight legal-sized sheets, and in July of the following year, The Gay Blade moved to newspaper.

During the 1970s, The Gay Blade changed its name to The Blade, Don Michaels became the editor. Michaels took The Blade out of the closet by prohibiting pen names, and he increased its frequency to biweekly. By the decade’s end, the newspaper added “Washington” to its masthead.

The Washington Blade entered the 1980s with headline, “Rare, Fatal Pneumonia Hits Gay Men,” one of the earliest newspaper articles on the disease that became AIDS. The Blade promoted Don Michaels to publisher, a position he held for two decades. By the decade’s end, the newspaper adopted computer layout that led to its online edition in 1995.

That Monday, Window Media filed Chapter 7 bankruptcy. The Blade’s staff found its offices locked. Former staff volunteered to produce a new publication, DC Agenda, by the following Friday.

Publisher Lynne Brown, editor Kevin Naff, and prominent Syracuse sports supporter, Mr. Don Waful will be dearly missed. I ask my colleagues to keep him and his family in mind as we remember the life and legacy of Mr. Don Waful, a lifelong Syracuse University sports fan, and for his tenure as the President of the Syracuse Sky Chiefs baseball team.

Mr. TAYLOR. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate thirteen Plano ISD schools on receiving the National PTA Schools of Excellence award.

Mr. CATO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and legacy of Mr. Don Waful, who passed away at the age of 103 on September 12, 2019. Mr. Waful was known in Central New York as a decorated World War II veteran, prominent Syracuse University sports fans, and for his tenure as the President of the Syracuse Sky Chiefs baseball team.

Mr. Waful survived as a POW in camps in Italy, Poland, and Germany before finally returning home. While in Tunisia, Mr. Waful and his unit encountered a German tank company, which subsequently took him as his prisoner. Mr. Waful survived as a POW in camps in Italy, Poland, and Germany before finally returning home.

Following World War II, Mr. Waful returned home to Central New York to pursue a career in insurance and to serve as the President of the Syracuse Sky Chiefs baseball team. In his role with the Sky Chiefs, Mr. Waful contributed to the design and construction of NBT Bank stadium, which opened in 1997. Along with his contributions to the Sky Chiefs, Mr. Waful was known for his unwavering support of Syracuse University sports. As a lifelong Syracuse University football fan, Mr. Waful was a mainstay at home games, missing only three contests since 1945.

Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues in the House join me in honoring the life and legacy of Mr. Don Waful. As a longtime member of our Central New York community and prominent Syracuse sports supporter, Mr. Waful will be dearly missed.

Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. GREEN of Tennessee, Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 64th Anniversary of the Clarksville, Tennessee chapter of the NAACP.

CALLING ATTENTION TO AN IMPRESSIVE PROGRAM THAT ORIGINATED IN POCATELLO, IDAHO

HON. MICHAEL K. SIMPSON OF IDAHO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. SIMPSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 2019 Idaho Career & Technical Education Week (CTE) Special Program Award recipient, the Construction Combine.

At the Construction Combine, program participants learn to demonstrate their construction skills to builders who are potential employers. The program recruits local contractors to teach construction skills to interested high school students and contracts with materials suppliers such as Home Depot generously provide the necessary supplies and tools to facilitate building sheds for this two-day event. The completed sheds are donated to deserving veterans at no cost.

The Construction Combine is the brain-child of Mr. Scott Stevens. As a staff member in Idaho State University’s (ISU) Continuing Education and Workforce Training Program (CEWT), Mr. Stevens recognized the need to attract more skilled workers to the construction industry and to increase the housing stock in order to promote economic growth. He teamed up with Brad Landon, the Pocatello/Chubbuck Home Depot Store manager, to execute his vision—one that helps home builders, veterans and students. There was extensive additional support from the surrounding high schools; local contractors; Gary Salazar, the Director of ISU’s CEWT; and others in ISU’s CEWT Program.

The first Construction Combine event took place at the Pocatello/Chubbuck Home Depot, in the Spring of 2018 with 54 participants, producing eight sheds. The following year, in 2019, the Construction Combine hosted six events in Idaho and Oregon with 228 participants, producing 41 sheds. I am eager to see the continued growth of this program in years to come.

Madam Speaker, I would like to join the ICTE Awards Selection Committee in recognizing the Construction Combine as an innovative solution to the construction and low housing stock issues associated with Idaho’s very low unemployment rate and our booming economy. I would like to recognize ISU’s CEWT, the Home Depot, and the local contractors for their efforts to make the Construction Combine a success and to give back to their communities. Congratulations.

RECOGNITION OF WOOD COUNTY, OHIO’S 200TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. ROBERT E. LATTA
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. LATTA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the Bicentennial of Wood County, Ohio. This Crossroad of America was established by the Ohio State Legislature on February 12, 1820. Wood County has historical ties to the earliest days of Ohio history, gaining its name from Colonel Eleazer D. Wood, the planning engineer of Fort Meigs in 1813.

Wood County was once home to the Great Black Swamp. This made settlement of the area extremely difficult, but the pioneering spirit of early residents produced an extensive system of ditches which drained the swamp and revealed the rich farmland beneath. There are still more than 3,000 miles of drainage ditches keeping the county dry to this day.

The oil and natural gas industries were the first to enter Wood County in the late 1800s. This caused a large spike in population as people migrated to the county in hopes of obtaining riches. Wood County currently covers nearly 620 square miles of land and water which provides evidence of the rural traditions and history of the area, while fostering agricultural ingenuity, manufacturing developments, and educational success.

The celebration of the 200th Anniversary of Wood County is a meaningful reminder of the heritage we hold, and provides an opportunity upon which Wood County, Ohio and the United States of America were founded. Congratulations to Wood County in celebration of its Bicentennial Year.

300TH ANNIVERSARY OF GARRETSON FORGE AND FARM

HON. JOSEPH GOTTHEIMER
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. GOTTHEIMER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Garretson Forge and Farm, a national historical landmark in Fair Lawn, New Jersey. This year marks the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Garretson in 1719. Thanks to the extraordinary efforts of the volunteers of Garretson Forge and Farm Restoration, Inc., this special property has been preserved and kept open to the community.

In recognition of Garretson’s anniversary, I would like to include in the RECORD the poem ‘A Heritage to Keep,’ by William F. Haywood which captures the long history of Garretson Forge and Farm, a Bergen County treasure.

Around the bend that holds this place
In gentle curves where time has flown
And countless passers it has known.

The gentle step of moccasin,
The echoing of forge’s din,
A gangling pine saw all of these,
New homes replacing other trees.

The continental soldier came,
Lone hunter seeking wary game,
A gangling pine saw all of these,
Where the river turns its coil.

So generations came and went Through seasons ill and fairly spent.
The Garretsons had built to last. While time has added to the past, a heritage for here and now—To keep it whole should be our vow.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Garretson Forge and Farm’s 300th anniversary, I know that we will continue to enjoy Garretson for many generations to come.

Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. BOST. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Lyle Endicott of Mt. Vernon, Illinois, for his selfless service to our country during World War II and for his upcoming 98th birthday. Mr. Endicott served his country with honor, started multiple successful businesses, and is a staple in his community.

Mr. Endicott was born in Mt. Vernon on December 7, 1921. Twenty years later, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, he enlisted in the United States Navy and became a fighter pilot. As a naval aviator, Mr. Endicott deployed to the Pacific on the Steamer Bay Aircraft Carrier, where he supported the invasions of Iwo Jima and the Okinawa Islands. After his honorable discharge, he married Elizabeth “Annie” Piercy and started a family. Upon settling in Woodlawn, Illinois, the two opened a grocery store and Endicott Interiors, a furniture business that still operates today. Mr. Endicott later became the head pilot for Self Oil Company in Mt. Vernon and was renowned as one of Southern Illinois’ finest aviators. Those who know Mr. Endicott say that he is fun-loving and fearless in his approach to life. As a father, grandfather, and now great-grandfather, he is a true family man who has touched countless lives.

Madam Speaker, please join me in honoring Lyle Endicott for his unwavering patriotism and celebrate his birthday. On behalf of Southern Illinois, happy 98th.

MISSING AND MURDERED INDIGENOUS WOMEN SPEECH OF
HON. DAN NEWHOUSE
OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, October 16, 2019

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD the following letter regarding the Special Order on Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women on October 17, 2019.

NEZ PERCE, TRIBAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
Lapwai, ID, September 18, 2019.

Hon. Jerrold Nadler,
Chairman, House Committee on the Judiciary,
Washington, DC.

Hon. Raúl Grijalva,
Chairman, House Committee on Natural Resources,
Washington, DC.

Hon. Doug Collins,
Ranking Member, House Committee on the Judiciary,
Washington, DC.

Hon. Rob Bishop,
Ranking Member, House Committee on Natural Resources,
Washington, DC.

Dear Chairmen Nadler and Grijalva and Ranking Members Collins and Bishop:

As Congressmen Newhouse stated in his June 6 letter, Native American and Alaska Native women face a murder rate ten times higher than the national average, with 84% experiencing some form of violence in their lifetime. Still, the tools and resources to document and address this issue are severely lacking in Indian Country due to outdated databases and a lack of coordination between law enforcement agencies. In addition to the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2019 (H.R. 1585), legislation such as Senator Baldwin’s Act the Nation’s Youth and Tribal Officer Protection Act (H.R. 958), and the Bridging Agency Data Gaps and Ensuring Safety for Native Communities Act (H.R. 4289) are each distinctly designed to provide an array of solutions to some of these unique problems.

To fully understand the need for this type of legislation and the federal resources and programs necessary to combat violence against women and the resulting issues, it is important to hear directly from communities to learn how reservations, families, and law enforcement are impacted by this crisis. The Nez Perce Tribe has suffered the loss of a number of our tribal citizens as a result of violence for this reason, and because Washington State encompasses some of the Tribe’s treaty-reserved homelands, that the Nez Perce Tribe supports Congressman Newhouse’s request that either one or both of your committees host field hearings in the state of Washington to examine issues relating to missing and murdered Indian women.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Shannon F. Wheeler,
Chairman.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF LOUIS M. CHIBBARO, JR.
HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 17, 2019

Ms. NORTON. Madam Speaker, during the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Riot, it is my honor and pleasure to rise today to ask the House of Representatives to join me in recognizing my friend, Ward 6 neighbor and Washington institution Louis M. Chibbaro, Jr. Chibbaro is the Senior News Reporter for our nation’s LGBTQ newspaper of record, The Washington Blade.

Washington, D.C. contains one of the largest LGBTQ communities in the United States. Among the thousands of LGBTQ Washingtonians, for the name you ought to know Dr. Franklin Kameny, who made the headlines, and Lou Chibbaro, Jr., who wrote the bylines. Chibbaro is a native New Yorker who came to D.C. in 1971 as a college student with the State University of New York at Brockport Washington Semester Program. Upon graduation, he returned to work for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. He continued his studies at American University before beginning his career as a reporter for several Washington-based independent newsletters, Environment Report, Energy Today and Science Trends.

Chibbaro became a public information representative for the American Public Power Association in 1975. Chibbaro volunteered as a freelance news writer and co-host for the then D.C. gay radio program “Friends.” He soon began freelancing for The Washington Blade. The Blade hired him in 1982 part-time and later promoted him to full-time staff in 1984. Chibbaro pounds the LGBTQ beat. He has covered the panoply of national and local LGBTQ interests of social, religious, and governmental institutions: the White House, Congress, the U.S. Supreme Court, the military, law enforcement agencies and the Catholic Church. Chibbaro began reporting on D.C. local politics with the 1978 mayoral and council elections. He commenced his chronicles of the Democratic and Republican conventions as a credentialed reporter in 1984.

Chibbaro has covered HIV and AIDS since the 1980s. He reported on the Matthew Shepard trial from Laramie, Wyoming. Chibbaro filed radio news reports on LGBTQ developments at NPR’s “OutQ News” program from 2013 to 2019.

Chibbaro has received accolades for his contributions to journalism. The Office of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia presented him with the 1998 Justice for Victims of Crime Award. The Office cited his “outstanding service to crime victims and their families” through his news reporting. His colleagues at Society of Professional Journalists
We must pass the BADGES Act, which Rep. Haaland sponsored and I cosponsored. The BADGES Act improves BIA law enforcement recruitment and retention. The bill also improves federal law enforcement reporting mechanisms for missing and murdered Indigenous women. In addition, it expands tribal access to federal crime databases. Congress must honor the trust relationship and pass this crucial legislation.

HONORING THE NEW MEMORIAL PARK IN THE TOWN OF SARATOGA DEDICATED TO THE HISTORIC SURRENDER OF BRITISH GENERAL BURGOYNE TO AMERICAN GENERAL GATES ON OCTOBER 17, 1777

HON. ELISE M. STEFANIK OF NEW YORK IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 17, 2019

Ms. STEFANIK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the new memorial park in the town of Saratoga dedicated to the historic surrender of British General Burgoyne to American General Gates on October 17, 1777.

242 Years ago, the first and second battles of Saratoga marked a crucial turning point in the American Revolutionary War. The courage and effectiveness of American troops during the battles broke the British Army’s air of invincibility and led to the Franco-American alliance that proved crucial to winning the war. Today, that famous battle is memorialized in the rotunda of the Capitol with the famous painting by John Trumbull depicting General Burgoyne surrendering his sword to General Gates. That image was used to create a bronze relief that is displayed at the new memorial park.

On behalf of New York’s 21st Congressional District, I want to thank the Friends of Saratoga Battlefield, Open Space Institute, the Hudson-Hoosic Partnership and Saratoga National Historical Park for their hard work making this memorial a reality. It is crucial that we honor the achievements and sacrifices of those Americans who came before us as we chart our path forward. I look forward to this memorial serving as a space for all Americans to come and reflect on our history while we contemplate the future.

COMMEMORATING THE 50 YEAR ANNIVERSARY OF COMMUNITY HUMAN SERVICES

HON. JIMMY PANETTA OF CALIFORNIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, October 17, 2019

Mr. PANETTA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues in the House join me in congratulating Community Human Services on the occasion of their 50th Anniversary. Throughout the last half-century, Community Human Services has not only brought attention to, but also alleviated the hardships that middle and low income individuals and families in Monterey County face on a daily basis.

Under the leadership of Chief Executive Officer Robin McCrae, the agency has grown from three programs, 55 employees, and a $1 million budget to a multi-million dollar organization with a workforce that has doubled and operates twelve programs throughout Monterey County.

Community Human Services’ mission is to address the tribulations that can be associated with addiction, mental illness, emotional health, domestic violence, child abuse, homelessness, and any other issue individuals may have trouble solving on their own. The institution allows people of all ages access to the tools necessary to overcome these challenges, creating lasting and sustainable changes on the central coast of California.

A key aspect of Community Human Services’ mission involves connecting with individuals in our community and ensuring them that help is available to them without insurance or monetary compensation. Information regarding programs and corresponding issues are widely distributed to schools, civic groups, churches, and service organizations.

Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in recognizing and congratulating the commitment that Community Human Services has provided the Central Coast. As the organization celebrates its 50th anniversary, I am proud to recognize Community Human Services for its continued work to address the challenges of individuals and families on the Central Coast. We are fortunate to have an institution like Community Human Services call the 20th Congressional District of California home.
