The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer:

Eternal God, we give You thanks for giving us another day. You endow all Your people with gifts of various designs, meant to be used in service to others. May the pressures that come to bear upon the Members of Congress not obscure honest self-reflection and evaluation of the gifts that each has to bring to the needs of this time in the people's House.

Bless all Members with a sense of their collective responsibility to our Nation and to this assembly so that the American people might have a renewed respect and trust in those whom they have elected.

As the House attends to the farewell of a beloved colleague, may we be truly grateful for the service of Elijah Cummings, that of all who have served since our Nation's inception, and the service and sacrifices of those who serve now in the 116th Congress.

May all that is done today, and in the days to come, be for Your greater honor and glory.

Amen.

Washington, DC, October 24, 2019.

To the Senate:

Chuck Grassley,
President pro tempore.

Mrs. HYDE-SMITH thereupon assumed the Chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

NOMINATION OF JUSTIN REED WALKER

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, later today, the Senate will have the opportunity to confirm another brilliant nominee to the Federal judiciary. In this case, I am proud to say this new lifetime judge will be another fine Kentuckian.

For those of us who know Justin Walker and have seen his work up close, it is clear that President Trump made an outstanding choice to be a district judge for the Western District of Kentucky.

Mr. Walker has sharpened his legal skills at the highest levels, including premier clerkships to then-Judge Brett Kavanaugh of the DC circuit and former Justice Anthony Kennedy.

As a prominent attorney and law professor, he has earned the respect of his peers in the legal world and of the community that he will serve on the bench. For his students, Mr. Walker has been a mentor who helps push them to fulfill their potential in the classroom and throughout their legal careers. His thoughtful and deliberate approach fit the mold of a Federal judge who—imagine this—will uphold the laws and the Constitution as they are actually written, not as he might wish them to be.

So I am confident Mr. Walker will serve our Commonwealth and the country extremely well as a district judge. I look forward to voting to confirm him, and I certainly urge my colleagues to join me.

OPIOID EPIDEMIC

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, on another matter, too many times I have had to come to the floor to speak about the pain inflicted on families and entire communities by opioid addiction and substance abuse.

It is a crisis present in every ZIP Code, one that has wreaked lives throughout our country.

My home State of Kentucky has been hit particularly hard, but I am relieved to say that we are seeing at least a glimmer of hope on the horizon.

This past summer brought news of the first nationwide decrease—decrease—in overdose fatalities in almost three decades. Kentucky saw a nearly 15-percent drop. After so much suffering, this is an indication that the tide may be starting to turn.

The result has been hard-won, after years of coordinated efforts between States, localities, and Washington. It has been a nationwide response, and we in Congress, along with the Trump administration, have been focused on doing our part.

Today marks the 1-year anniversary of one key part of our ongoing efforts. One year ago today, President Trump signed into law our landmark opioid legislation that will hopefully spare more families from the pain of addiction.

This legislation included work from 5 different committees and 70 Senators. Thanks to Chairman LAMAR ALEXANDER and so many of our colleagues, this significant package focused on providing innovative solutions, promoting long-term recovery, and empowering local leaders and first responders out on the frontlines.

A little more than a year ago, it passed the Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support. I am proud that two of my own bills were included in that package. The Protecting Moms and Infant Act safeguards of the addiction crisis from its heartbreaking consequences, and the CAREER Act addresses the major role that stable employment plays in long-term recovery. It encourages treatment facilities to form partnerships with local businesses and short-term housing facilities to “hand up” to those who need it.

We are proud of what we accomplished a year ago, and I am proud that my Kentucky colleague, Representative Andy Barr, is leading the push for the CAREER Act’s companion legislation over in the House.

But we know all too well that, unfortunately, this work is far, far from finished. That is why, this very week, the Senate is moving forward $25 million more for the CAREER Act’s transitional housing pilot program in the domestic appropriations we are advancing here on the floor.

The work will not stop there. This fight has been one of my top priorities since I became majority leader. We have put our edge tools into the hands of healthcare professionals and first responders who face this crisis every single day.

In my State alone, I helped secure an unprecedented $300 million to address the urgent crisis facing Kentuckians—a funding increase of more than 400 percent on this issue for Kentucky since I became majority leader.

We have committed to a comprehensive strategy of prevention, treatment, and enforcement efforts. At my invitation, the White House drug czar, Jim Carroll, saw some of Kentucky’s innovative leadership firsthand when he visited this past April. We have pushed the boundaries of research to find new ways to treat addiction and help families escape its painful consequences.

Earlier this month I joined Secretary Azar, NIH Director Collins, and an all-star research team at the University of Kentucky to celebrate the largest Federal grant in the University of Kentucky’s history. These new resources will fuel UK’s bold commitment to cutting overdose deaths by 40 percent in 16 counties over the coming 3 years. I was proud to help secure those funds.

Kentucky is proud that we are leading the national response, but I know my colleagues each have their own inspiring stories of how States are fighting back.

As said, the work is far from over, but today we take a moment to celebrate the progress of the past year. To help mark this anniversary, the First Lady of the United States joined us here in the Senate yesterday. I am proud to stand with her and the Trump administration and my colleagues in this body as we recommit ourselves to this effort.

SENATE LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, this anniversary also reminds us of how many urgent issues are crying out for substantive, bipartisan, bicameral cooperation for the good of the American people.

I am talking about funding our Armed Forces and the Department of Defense, just as both sides agreed to do but did not follow through on, to a bipartisan, bicameral budget agreement that Democrats have lately sort of wandered away from—just wandered right away from it.

I am talking about passing the USMCA, our most consequential update to North American trade policy in a generation, which Speaker Pelosi has put on ice in order to move Democrats’ impeachment obsession to the front burner, despite the fact that there are 176,000 new American jobs on the line if we pass the USMCA.

The needs of the American people have not been put on pause just because Washington Democrats have decided it doesn’t suit them to get along with the White House. My friends in Democratic leadership insist over and over that their focus on undoing the 2016 election will not keep them from the substantive legislation that American families need. Well, our Armed Forces are still waiting for their funding; our workers and small businesses are still waiting on their new trade agreement.

Our Senate Democratic colleagues have enough time to push partisan resolutions, such as their effort yesterday to enact a new tax cut—listen to this: their effort yesterday to enact a new tax cut for wealthy people in blue States, like New York and New Jersey, at the expense of working families everywhere else.

But so far we have seen little—little indication that they are really ready to put our differences aside and come to the table on significant bipartisan subjects that can actually become law.

I worry that something like the landmark opioid package that we are celebrating today would not have moved through the Congress today, just one year later. I worry it would have been another victim of Democrats’ decision to avoid working with Republicans and the White House on basically anything, to keep all of their focus trained on impeachment.

I hope I am mistaken. I hope we make real progress soon. The American people are waiting on us.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Morning business is closed.
want Ukraine to fight corruption, and, on the other hand, they cut in the budget huge amounts of money aimed at fighting corruption.

No one believes the President these days on so many things, but this issue is proving to be one where the President and his team do not want to fight corruption, you don’t cut the funds to fight corruption and at the same time pick out one country.

The facts are part of the public record. They are deeply troubling, and they are not just about the Ambassador Taylor’s testimony this week. By all accounts, Mr. Taylor’s testimony was explosive and undeniably credible, detailing a pattern of activity that corroborated the account provided by the whistle-blower—this time from a career diplomat, a West Point graduate who has served every administration, Democrat and Republican, since 1985.

Taylor is the kind of person Americans admire—down the road, non-political, sensible, the country, West Point, the State Department, Democratic and Republican administrations ably well. But all of a sudden, of course, he is an anathema because he spoke truth to power. President Trump doesn’t like that, and our Republican friends who cower before President Trump don’t like it, but Americans know what is going on.

Mr. Taylor’s written statement referred to additional documentation for the events he described in his testimony, notes and memos that are in the custody of the State Department. These records are part of a broader set of documents that is under subpoena by the House of Representatives, which the State Department is refusing to turn over to Congress. Yesterday, the House issued a new request for Mr. Taylor’s documents.

What is it, Trump administration? What is it, Republicans? On the one hand, you say you want everything to be public when it comes to the House and Senate are glaring: We don’t want any sunlight when it comes to documents, when it comes to the Department of Justice, when it comes to the ambassador, when it comes to the White House, when it comes to the stonewall. Pompeo will not come and testify. Again, the hypocrisy, the self-interested dealing, is self-evident.

Rather than stomp their feet in a fit of staged political theater, Republicans—all Republicans—should join us in getting all the facts. That is what we ask for in this Chamber. We are not prejudging the facts. We may be a jury, but we want the facts to come out, not some but all. That is our responsibility to report, all of us. Matters as grave as the ones that form the basis of the House impeachment inquiry require us to put country over party. That is what Democrats will do. That is what Republicans must do as well.

All the facts must come out. Those who are attempting to obstruct this fact-finding inquiry may regret the day they said all they want to do is open up the facts. They know all they said they want to do is open up the process. Our Republican friends that they don’t want to open up the process; they want to shut it down. They don’t want to open up the facts and want to suppress them. That is the reason they are storming, trying to create this childish, infantile fuss. They don’t want to open up the process; they want to shut it down.

If the White House and its congressional allies truly wanted an open and transparent process, the White House would provide the documents Congress requested. It wouldn’t defy subpoenas. It wouldn’t forbid executive branch employees from testifying. You can’t just flip a switch—one day, you have evidence, and the next, argue for a transparent and open process. The hypocrisy, the self-interested dealing, is self-evident.

Turkey and Syria

Madani President, yesterday, in an address from the White House, President Trump announced he was canceling proposed sanctions against Erdogan, this time after Assad, Erdogan, and Putin got more than they ever hoped for out of President Trump’s decision to draw U.S. troops from northern Syria. It was another nonsensical and counterproductive foreign policy decision by President Trump. The notion that the United States should trust Erdogan or Assad or Putin to secure ISIS fighters at risk. As Assad, Erdogan, and Putin exert more influence on the region, as the Syrian Kurds are driven from the region and killed, as ISIS-connected... detainees escape and regroup—many of them planning to hurt us here in our homeland—again, President Trump articulates no plan to fix what has broken.

His top officials—Secretary of State Pompeo and Secretary Esper—have canceled two briefings with the Senate, during which they were supposed to update the Senate on the administration’s plan. I think they keep canceling and ducking because they don’t have a plan and wouldn’t know what to say. That is very, very disturbing.

My Republican colleagues, please stand up and speak out about the obvious dangers to our national security that President Trump has invited.

Some, to their credit, have done so, but others have gone so far as to excuse the President’s decision even if it results in the ethnic cleansing of the Kurds, our brave and former partners in the fight against ISIS. That is not right, and Republicans must continue to press the President to correct course in northern Syria and quickly develop a plan of action to contain ISIS and secure its enduring defeat.

NOMINATION OF JUSTIN REED WALKER

Madam President, on one last issue—judges—today the Senate will consider the nomination of Justin Walker of Kentucky to serve a lifetime appointment on the Federal bench. Mr. Walker is less than 10 years out of law school, has never tried a case, has never served as counsel, and it is not clear how much of his 10 years has been spent practicing law. Unsurprisingly, Mr. Walker earned a rare “not qualified” rating by the American Bar Association. Very few are called “not qualified,” but he is one of them.

It seems the only reason Mr. Walker has been nominated for an austere judgeship is his membership in the Federalist Society and his far-right-wing views on healthcare, civil rights, and Executive power.

Unfortunately, Mr. Walker is part of a well-established pattern of Republicans stacking the Federal bench with manifestly unqualified judges. Another brazen example is Steven Menashi, who was slated to be considered in committee today before, thank God, it was delayed. Mr. Menashi’s record of extreme views is well documented. He pushed Betsy DeVos’s anti-student agenda at the Department of Education and worked closely with Stephen Miller at the White House on policies that harm immigrants. His past writings show scorn for LGBTQ Americans and women. Menashi’s conduct before the Judiciary Committee was insulting, his contempt for the Senate reprehensible, and his refusal to be forthcoming about his record should be outright disqualifying. Senators Graham and Kennedy, in the committee, noted that his refusal to answer questions was troubling.

Folks like Mr. Walker and Mr. Menashi have not earned the privilege of a lifetime appointment to the bench.

I am glad that one of my Republican colleagues has said they will oppose Mr. Menashi’s nomination, and other Republicans should follow suit on his nomination and on Mr. Walker’s vote today.

I yield the floor.

RECESS

The Acting President pro tempore, under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 12 noon.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 10:37 a.m., recessed until 12 noon and reassmbed when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mrs. Fischer).

Further, if present and voting, the Senator from Kansas (Mr. Moran) would have voted “yea.”

I announce that the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. BOOKER), the Senator from Delaware (Mr. CARPER), the Senator from California (Ms. HARRIS), the Senator from Virginia (Mr. Kaine), the Senator from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS), the Senator from Massachusetts (Ms. WARREN), and the Senator from Rhode Island (Mr. Whitehouse) are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?
Texas has arguably benefited more than any other State. In 2018, Texas exported nearly $110 billion in goods to Mexico, and we imported $107 billion worth of goods from Mexico.

When you consider actions being taken on both sides of the border, it affects us all. According to the Department of Commerce, the trade deficit through the border is $8 billion. When you take that into account with all the duties and taxes, that is a huge amount of money.

The USMCA is expected to have a positive impact on every industry sector in the U.S. economy. It increases goods market access. It supports small businesses. It boosts digital trade and safeguards intellectual property and supports agriculture. It also keeps jobs here at home.

In short, this trade agreement is a big win for the American people. Some even argue that the USMCA is more important than restoring our normalized trading relationship with China.

Earlier this year, the International Trade Commission provided insight into what we could expect to see once the USMCA is ratified. Within 6 years, they say, we are looking at 176,000 new American jobs and an increase in the gross domestic product by more than $68 billion. That is a bigger impact than the Trans-Pacific Partnership trade agreement.

The USMCA is expected to have a positive impact on every industry sector in the U.S. economy. We can look forward to more than $43 billion in increase in exports and more than $31 billion in imports. That is great news for North American workers, farmers, ranchers, and business men and women who will reap the benefits of this agreement.

When I am meeting with my constituents back home or here in Washington, one of the most common questions I get asked is, “When is the USMCA going to pass?”

Mexico and Canada have already ratified the agreement, and Canada is waiting for us to move before acting. The agreement has broad support in the Senate, and clearly the President is on board as well. So the only holdup in the entire process is the House of Representatives.

Up until about a month ago, I told my constituents that I thought the prospects for passage sometime this year were looking pretty good. House Democrats did have some concerns, but Speaker Pelosi was reportedly working in good faith with the administration to work through them. There were indications of productive conversations between Mexico, Canada, and the USMCA to address their concerns as well.

It looked as though we were moving along a path to a deal, but then the House blew up all plans for a productive year in Congress. They marched headlong into 2019 and tossed aside important legislation. Forget working on a trade deal that will benefit every sector of the economy; House Democrats are too busy conducting secret hearings in an effort to force the President—someone they despise—out of office.

Whether they intend to allow the USMCA to receive a vote in the House is unknown, but I sincerely hope that House Democrats have enough good sense to avoid blowing up a vital trade deal over political disagreements with the President. As we all know, the closer you get to an election, the more challenging legislating actually becomes, and the clock is ticking away. It is a shame that the House continues to put politics ahead of good policy that will benefit the entire American people.

The USMCA is good for the economy, good for business, good for workers, and it supports our values. It is time for the House to quit playing games so we can ratify this trade agreement without further delay. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. PAUL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PAUL. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, it has been 2½ weeks since the President announced he was abruptly withdrawing U.S. forces from Syria. He betrayed our Kurdish allies and derailing the international fight against ISIS in Syria.

In the course of one tweet, this President blindsided our allies in the region—yes, the Kurds at the Israelis and Pakistanis as well. He blindsided our diplomats and blindsided our military from the top brass down to our forces who serve on the ground. Frankly, the only one who seemed to know that this was coming was the Turkish President, Mr. Erdogan.

As a result, brave men and women who have fought alongside the United States are now at risk of being slaughtered by Turkish forces. Already, Kurdish fighters and families have been killed by Turkish armed groups—militias. Already, hundreds of ISIS detainees have escaped from prison, and ISIS is being given the space and time to regroup.

Simply put, we may be witnessing one of the most significant counterterrorism setbacks in recent history.

With nowhere else to turn, the Kurds have aligned themselves with the Assad regime. That is good news for one of history’s most brutal dictators—a man who gasses his own people. It is also good news for his allies in Iran.

No one has, perhaps, benefited more from this disaster than Vladimir Putin. Just this week, Russia and Turkey agreed to a new direct strait in Syria, green-lighting Russian and Syrian forces to clear the border region of any of our remaining Kurdish allies and, unfortunately, expanding Russia’s footprint in the Middle East.

And if we believe the President’s sudden withdrawal from Syria without his having a plan and without there being serious consideration for our Kurdish allies is a disaster that may haunt our foreign policy for decades to come.

If this is how the United States treats its allies, how will anyone trust the United States on a going-forward basis?

Frankly, I fear most of the damage may have already been done. No tweet, no press conference, and no personal assurance from Erdogan or anyone else can rebuild the years of trust and progress that have been destroyed. The least we can do—and perhaps, unfortunately, is the most we can do—is to make sure those Kurdish allies who served alongside U.S. forces as translators and in other military support roles are not left to die in Syria.

That is why I have introduced the Syrian Allies Protection Act. This legislation is similar to programs in the past which have granted special immigration visas to Iraqi and Afghan nationals who have served alongside U.S. forces. The truth is that these Kurdish allies and their families are now at risk because of their work with U.S. forces. They are threatened not only by the Turkish incursion but also by freed ISIS fighters and Assad regime forces.

This legislation would provide permanent American residency to Syrian nationals who have worked for the U.S. Armed Forces for at least 6 months, who have obtained a favorable recommendation from a general or a flag officer in the chain of command, and who have passed a thorough background check and screening.

The legislation also directs the administration to evacuate eligible individuals to safety. If their lives are at risk by remaining in Syria, they can either be brought to the United States or to a third country while appropriate vetting takes place.

This legislation will not reverse what we did to our Kurdish allies, but it will show how we worked with our military forces—in many cases, we have heard of translators and others whom the American forces left without having even said goodbye because they had to withdraw so quickly—that the American people appreciate the profound sacrifices they have made in their supporting U.S. forces in the fight against ISIS. It would at least remove part of the sting.

Mr. President, as in legislative session, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged of S. 2625 and the Senate proceeds to its immediate consideration; further, that the bill be considered read a third time and passed; and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, in reserving the right to protest, ironically, the Syrian Kurds may be closer to having some degree of autonomy or homeland than they have been in decades.

With the new arrangement—or rearrangement—of alliances the Persian Kurds now will have an alliance with someone who will remain in Syria. Whether you like him or not, the Assad government is there to stay. There was never going to be a U.S. presence for long enough or one great enough to preserve or to create a homeland for them. I think there is every possibility, in alliance with Assad, that there will be some Kurdish arrangement. It happened in Iraq. In Iraq, the oil proceeds are shared. The Kurdish wanted more in Iraq. I think it gets as much as they wanted, but they got some degree of autonomy within their province.

I think that sort of encouraging the Syrians Kurds to abandon their country is really premature and doesn’t really recognize the fluidity of what is going on on the ground there. There is actually the potential, for the first time in 8 years, to break through to a peace agreement. Peace agreements have been unable to be achieved in the past. Most people have refused to acknowledge that Assad is staying. It is easy to say Assad is all of the things that he likely is, but it is harder to acknowledge that no matter who he is, he is staying and that peace on the ground will, ultimately, for the Syrian Kurds, probably come through an arrangement with Assad’s regime.

There has been a huge diplomatic breakthrough. As much as we have all of the talk of Sturm und Drang—that the world is ending and there is going to be a Kurdish genocide—perhaps the opposite is going to happen. I don’t think we yet know, as no one can predict the future with certainty, but it actually looks as if there has been a somewhat reasonable withdrawal. You have the Syrian Kurdish generals now saying they have agreed to the withdrawal. There is now in place, hopefully, a long-term cease-fire.

So, while nothing is perfect in Syria and things are ever perfect in the Middle East, I think, rather than saying it is the end of the world, we should say that this is a big transition, that this is a big realignment of interests, and that there is a possibility that the Kurds could get a homeland.

The last thing you would want is to say to all of the leaders in the Kurdish community, to all of the intellectuals, to those who speak English, and to those who are open to western ways, “Hey, come over here, and abandon your country.” It would be equivalent to France’s saying to George Washington during or after the war, “Hey, guys, Hey, Founding Fathers. Why don’t we just let the British win?” It is not a good notion to ask the leaders of a country and a movement to leave and abandon their country.

With that, I respectfully object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is held.

The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I disagree with my friend from Kentucky about what may or may not happen. I believe the one thing we agree with him on is that what he did not often had well-organized plans in the Middle East.

The unique thing about our alliance with the Kurds was that after trying in Iraq, Afghanistan, and other places around the region to find allies who would actually stand up and fight, in the Kurds, we found those allies, and they did a remarkable job dismantling ISIS.

Now, the prognostication of the Senator from Kentucky I don’t agree with it, but time will tell. The one area, though, and what my legislation would have done and where I am disappointed we were not able to move forward on, is regardless of the changed circumstances that the Assad regime may have in terms of treating people with more respect or the Turkish militias, which we have already seen evidence of their killing of Kurdish fighters, the one group—the one group I think that is probably safe to say will be the targets of both the Syrians, the Turks—the militias—will be those Kurdish individuals who worked directly for the U.S. military.

Even if the prognostication of the Senator from Kentucky plays out. On a more macro basis, I don’t think anyone with a straight face can say the Kurdish translators, who 2 weeks ago were working for the American forces, will not be victims of—whether it be Turkish, Syrian, Russian, or other—aggression.

I think it would have been the right thing. I am going to continue to try to find ways to bring this legislation to the floor. I know it will be broadly bipartisan supported. I hope we will have a chance to revisit this.

I don’t think we can ever fully reverse the actions this President has taken, but at least in terms of these threats—I am not talking about taking the whole Kurdish leadership—but these, generally, men who 2 weeks ago were working for the American military. I think we owe them a greater debt of obligation than to simply say good luck.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, I think one of the interesting things about the Kurdish situation and about Syria in general is how quickly the Kurds and Assad actually did align. If you watched the war over the last 8 years, the Kurds and Assad have largely not fought each other. There isn’t a great deal of the blood sort of lust or curdling animosity between the two. I think we can agree that Assad has allied with the ideas of radical Islam, and sometimes us would actually be doing best, and we try to do the best we can to do the best with our Kurdish allies, but it will likely have even said goodbye because they would have heard of translators and others whom the American forces left without even saying goodbye because they had to withdraw so quickly—that the American people appreciate the profound sacrifices they have made in their supporting U.S. forces in the fight against ISIS. It would at least remove part of the sting.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, in reserving the right to protest, I think that sort of encouraging the Kurds are willing to help him do it, either from Turkey or from others, and the Kurds actually looks as if there has been a somewhat reasonable withdrawal. You have the Syrian Kurdish generals now saying they have agreed to the withdrawal. There is now in place, hopefully, a long-term cease-fire.

So it is a very complicated situation over there. And, but I think we cannot say with certainty that there will not be a deal that sticks, actually, between Assad and the Kurds.

If the Kurds want a homeland and they believe Assad is staying, it makes all the sense in the world for them to work together. If Assad wants to actually protect that region of north Syria, either from Turkey or from others, and the Kurds are willing to help him do it.
the Kurds have proven they are good fighters.

The Kurds would probably have to acknowledge there is a greater Syria and that they are part of it. If they want to break off from Syria, there will be continual war. If they are able to make an arrangement with Assad, there is a chance that there could be an oil-sharing arrangement like we have in Iraq.

The bottom line is, we sometimes see the world in black-and-white terms and think we can get Thomas Jefferson in Syria or in Libya or in Iraq, but what happens is, time and time again, we topple a dictator; we get chaos, we get more terrorism. ISIS sprang out of the vacuum that was Iraq after a government that was incapable of doing it after we get rid of the same. The same thing happened when we got rid of Qadhafi in Libya. I think we need to rethink our approach to the Middle East.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. I will not belabor the point. My friend from Connecticut is here to raise another issue. I don't agree with the analysis of the Senator from Kentucky. I hope he proves to be right. I would agree with him; sometimes our notion that we are going to find Thomas Jefferson to rebuild these countries has not proven to be the case.

This legislation I am proposing is not broad policy changing; it is simply saying let's look at a very limited universe where we sometimes see things and people 2 weeks ago were working with the American military.

My fear is, at least in terms of how those translators and their families will be viewed by both the Turks and by the Assad forces, that they will not be viewed as Thomas Jeffersons, but they will be viewed as Benedict Arnold, and my fear is their fate will be on our hands.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. 1247

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, I want to thank my colleague from Virginia for his advocacy on this critical measure, and I support him on it and also for his advocacy on the FIRE Act. It is very similar to the measure on which I am going to ask for unanimous consent. He has done wonderful and dedicated work on both measures.

Mr. President, as in legislative session, I ask unanimous consent that the Rules Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 1247; that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration; that the bill be considered as read and passed and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I am concerned that this bill would put an undue burden on anybody who decided to run for office in the sense that you would be burdened with trying to understand everyone you talk to anywhere in the United States—whether or not they are an agent of a foreign government or an agent of a foreign principle, such as a foreign company.

For example, I might run into Hunter Biden in the airport. I know he is an American citizen, but this bill doesn't prevent American citizens from being an agent of a foreign principle. Hunter Biden also worked for a Ukrainian oligarch and a company with mysterious origins that may well have something to do with our foreign policy.

So if I meet Hunter Biden, I am concerned that now it may be against the law or I could be reprimanded or fined by the FEC for talking to Hunter Biden.

The same might also exist—I enjoy going to the Indian New Year in Louisville, and I have 6,000 to 6,000 Indian Americans, but I can't tell you how many of them are brand new to the country, what their visa status is, whether they have a relative from government there who might come up to me.

So I think we need to be very careful about putting forward law, particularly by unanimous consent, that hasn't been scrutinized and might end up having a burden that we don't really agree with.

There has been a certain degree of hysteria over the Russian thing. Some on the other side of the aisle can't get over they lost the Presidential election, and so they continue to blame the Russians for losing the election.

It is so bad that their candidate from the last election, Hillary Clinton, had to go after TULSI GABBARD, a Democratic Member of the Congress, a sitting Congresswoman, the first female combat veteran to run for President, and she has been labeled by Hillary Clinton a Russian asset.

So you can see that the hysteria over Russia is a little bit concerning; that we may be going too far in this hysteria.

Then, once we apply this to the world, is there going to be a hesitancy to talk to someone who looks different than you, who dresses different than you, who has a different color skin than you? And yet, people of color are not worried they might be from a foreign country?

So I think this would have the ability of stifling speech—stifling political speech—and I think it is a reactionary way to look at things, and it really fits in with this unseemliness of Hillary Clinton's thinking everybody is a Russian agent to many of the Democrats saying: Donald Trump is a Russian agent.

We spent $35 million on this notion. This was probably a notion promulgated by people within the intelligence community who already hated Donald Trump before he was elected. I hope we get to the bottom of this, but I am not about to allow, by unanimous consent, an attempt to politicize our election process and make it so absurd that you would have to worry about whom you talk to as you travel the country.

I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, I truly regret the objection by my colleague. I regret even more the reasons for his objection, characterizing the threat of Russia interference as hysteria.

Well, I suggest that my friends from Kentucky spend a little time—it will not take a lot—with members of the intelligence community, any member of the intelligence community, all the members of the intelligence community, who agree unanimously that this bill would put an undue burden on anybody who decided to run for office in the sense that you would be burdened with trying to understand everyone you talk to anywhere in the United States—whether or not they are an agent of a foreign government or an agent of a foreign principle, such as a foreign company.

That is the warning we have received from the CIA, the Director of National Intelligence, and, most pointedly, from the Director of the FBI. They have warned us, in no uncertain terms, that the Russians are interfering now, spreading disinformation, creating false accounts and sites and that they are planning to do it even more intensely. It is not only the Russians but other nations.

That was the warning of Robert Mueller when he said that the Russians' interference in our last election was sweeping and systematic and that they were doing it again and we need to pay attention to it.

That is exactly what my colleagues and I have been doing for the past few days, raising for floor consideration various election securities bills. We have done it not only in the last few days but for months—the PAYE Act, the Honest Ads Act, the SHIELD Act, but my colleague from Kentucky says it is hysteria.

Well, it is a well-founded fear based on fact. As one of our former colleagues, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, once said: People are entitled to their own opinions; they are not entitled to their own facts. The facts here are indisputable, set forth in numbing detail by the Mueller report but also by the intelligence community, independent, in the hearings that have been conducted by various of our committees, in open and public, in Armed Services and Judiciary, behind closed doors. Some of them the intelligence community—which produced a report, most recently by the Senate Intelligence Committee, a bipartisan report, showing how the Russians scan every single State to penetrate them, seeking to disrupt them, and that is an absolutely chilling fact-based, evidence-founded prospect that we need to counter, and that is the reason my colleagues and I have come to the floor for these measures. A number of them I would be proud to cosponsor and helped to lead.

The one that brings me here now is the Duty to Report Act, S. 1247, and it very simply says there is a duty to report. If there is an illegal offer of assistance, if anyone knows of an illegal acceptance of assistance from a foreign leader or foreign national or foreign government, there is a duty to tell the FBI or some other law enforcement official.

The plain fact is our elections are under attack, and 2016 was only a dress rehearsal.

Just this week, talk about hysteria. Facebook banned dozens of fake Russian and Iranian accounts attempting to spread misinformation and disinformation to Americans—the purpose: to disrupt the 2020 election.

It isn’t necessarily an ad for one candidate or another. It may be an ad that seeks to suppress the vote. The point is, that attack will continue, and opposition to it is based on hysteria about the potential political implications.

What saddens and angers me is that our Commander-in-Chief—not just some of our colleagues—refuses to believe that our elections were attacked and will be again. He is actively working to undermine our democracy.

The President’s attempts to invite a foreign leader, the Ukrainian President, in our democratic elections was a betrayal of his oath of office and an abuse of power. It is an impeachable offense. But it will occur again by others, as well as him, if we do not pass measures like the Duty to Report Act.

It started with a whistleblower complaint, but now we have call notes between the President and Ukraine President Zelensky, the corroborating statements of multiple witnesses in the government, and President Trump’s own statements—his own words—on live television, admitting that he did this. The transcript of his call chillingly shows how he literally pressured and extorted the Ukrainian President, using the threat of a cut or elimination of military aid vital to Ukrainian lives and Ukrainian defense against an ongoing Russian attack, not to mention the visit to the White House, also used as leverage with these 10 powerful words: “I would like you to do us a favor, though.” The favor was digging dirt on a political opponent through a full investigation to favor himself over that opponent.

The invitation to interfere in our elections goes to the core of our democratic institutions. It is literally condoning and, in fact, inviting and encouraging an attack on our democratic institution, and the President has said, when he was asked, that if he were offered foreign assistance, he would take it. His son, during the last campaign, was offered Russian assistance, and his response was: “I love it.”

That is not the appropriate response for the offer of an illegal act of assistance. It should be to go to the FBI or another law enforcement agency.

Every Republican should be asked to answer the question—in fact, forced to answer this question: Is it acceptable to solicit or accept the assistance of a foreign power to win an election?

We cannot allow this kind of practice to become the new normal. It is already illegal to accept or solicit such an assistance from a foreign government or leader, and we want to do is make it illegal to fail to report it.

Finally, as for my colleagues’ objection that it would inhibit somehow an active and honest campaign, someone who has reason to know that there is an illegal offer of assistance and someone who knows that that assistance is being solicited by his or her campaign or a member of their family, certainly, should feel a duty to report as a matter of simple patriotism and moral obligation, not to mention legal responsibility.

With the 2020 Presidential election looming, we must stop this kind of foreign interference. We must take active and effective measures against it. We must ensure that the American people—not Russia or China or Iran, and they are all gunning for our democratic institution—decide who the leaders of this country will be and what direction our democracy will take.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICIAL. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with. The PRESIDING OFFICIAL. Without objection, it is so ordered.

VOTE ON WALKER NOMINATION

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to commence with the prearranged vote.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is, Will the Senate adopt and consent to the Walker nomination?

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 2486

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I am on the Senate floor now, where in a moment I will be asking for unanimous consent for the Senate to take up and vote on a House-passed bill that would provide full mandatory funding for historically Black colleges and universities and other minority-serving institutions.

The reason I am here is that the authority for this mandatory spending expired 24 days ago, and we have it in our power to act on that remedy that situation. We can take up a vote on what is called the FUTURE Act. We have a bipartisan Senate bill that is urgency to the current situation. Their ing to dispel the myth that there is no agreement and support for this bill now. But just this past Saturday, I met with board members of the Thurgood Marshall College Fund. That is the organization that represents our Nation’s public HBCUs.
He has introduced it. But he and the president, Dr. Harry Williams, wrote:

When they asked me why, when there is so much agreement and support for the House wants to do that. I spoke earlier to the Members of Congress that passed the House unanimously on a voice vote. So while we all would like to work toward comprehensive reform and reauthorization of higher education, there is no need to wait on this provision that is sitting in the Senate.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letters we received from the Thurgood Marshall College Fund and from the UNCF, both organizations that advocate on behalf of HBCUs.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Re Title III Part-F Funding to HBCUs and MSIs

THURGOOD MARSHALL COLLEGE FUND, Washington, DC, October 14, 2019.

Hon. MITCH MCCONNELL, Majority Leader, U.S. Senate.

Hon. LAMAR ALEXANDER, Chair, U.S. Senate HELP Committee.

Hon. CHUCK SCHUMER, Minority Leader, U.S. Senate.

Hon. PATTY MURRAY, Ranking Member, U.S. Senate HELP Committee.

Dear Senators: We are sincerely disappointed that the Senate did not pass the FUTURE Act prior to the September 30th deadline to prevent the Title III Part-F program from expiring.

While it is true that Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) are funded through the academic school year ending in April 2020, the expiration of this program is worth noting in the plain language of 20 U.S.C. §1067q, means that no more grants will be made available to HBCUs going forward and, as such, our institutions will be without the ability to preserve the status quo as it relates to the student programs and jobs supported by this funding.

In fact, the expiration of this program is already having real consequences on the campuses of the publicly-supported HBCUs that we represent. Despite having expired only two weeks ago, we already have examples of campuses notifying employees that their positions and programs will be terminated as of September 30, 2020, if not sooner. These are real jobs, held by people who interact with students everyday, in programs that play a critical role in graduating and retaining students in the STEM fields, among other disciplines. The longer we wait to give certainty to these universities, the more institutions will be left with no choice but to begin winding-down programs that materially benefit students and employees alike, and strip away the institutional knowledge bases that our schools have built over time with the support of Title III, Part F.

While we welcome a potential long-term or "permanent" solution to Title III, Part F, what Senator from our campuses is clear—they simply do not have the time to wait for Congress to work out a deal, particularly on bills that have an uncertain future in the House of Congress. Therefore, the Thurgood Marshall College Fund (TMCF) strongly encourages the Senate to finally take-up the House-passed, bi-partisan and bicameral FUTURE Act immediately and pass the bill before permanent damage is done to our campuses. This course of action is the cleanest and most expedient way to provide immediate certainty to our nation's HBCUs and MSIs.

Following the Senate's passage of FUTURE Act, TMCF looks forward to working with Members on both sides of the aisle to develop a longer-term solution for Title III, Part F, and for other HEA-related issues in a broader bill like the Student Aid Improvement and Reform Act of 2019 (SAIR) of 2009. SAFRA extended funding for the historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs), Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCUs), Hispanic-Serving Institutions (HISIs), and other Minority-Serving Institutions (MSIs) to receive $255 million annually in mandatory funds for Fiscal Year (FY) 2008 and FY 2009. These mandatory funds were directed in the Higher Education Act of 1965 to be used solely for science, technology, education, and mathematics (STEM) education, among other uses largely centered on STEM education. Instead of allowing this funding stream to expire, Congress continued to recognize the need of these institutions to offer quality STEM education on their campuses and continued this funding stream in the Student Aid Fiscal Responsibility Act (SAFRA) of 2008. SAFRA extended funding for these institutions from FY 2009 to FY 2019 at $255 million annually and was included in the Health Care Reconciliation Act of 2010 that ultimately passed both the House and Senate to become law. Every vote taken on the mandatory funding stream for these institutions has been bipartisan, and it is our desire to have the same outcome for H.R. 2486.

It is imperative that the Senate pass the FUTURE Act because funding for HBCUs, TCUs, HISIs, and other MSIs expires September 30, 2020. While the Senate has approved a permanent extension of mandatory funding, H.R. 2486, due to its passage in the House of Representatives, is the surest way for these institutions to maintain funding for FY 2020 and FY 2021. We strongly believe that passing this bill now will address the immediate funding needs of our institutions and allow Congress to consider a permanent extension of this funding moving forward.

Should you have any additional questions regarding this letter, please feel free to reach out to Emmanuel Guirley, Director of Public Policy and Government Affairs.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL L. LOMAX, PH.D.,
President and CEO.

Mr. MANCHIN. Mr. President, I am undeterred by the facts, with respect to the chairman, that the best judge of what is good for HBCUs, I think, is HBCUs. They are worried because they are already having to provide notice to their professors and their staff that funding might not be available next year. I know, in the Senate, sometimes we think that no one needs to plan ahead, but most of the world needs to plan ahead.

We will be back on this floor in the future again, asking that we pass this urgent matter.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

REMEMBERING CHARLES T. JONES

Mr. MANCHIN. Mr. President, I am here to recognize an unbelievable individual who contributed so much to my home State and to our country.

My home State of West Virginia has lost a beloved family man, a noble veteran, a legendary businessman, a very proud West Virginian, and a very dear friend.

President John Kennedy, when visiting our State during our centennial in 1963, said: 'The sun does not always shine in West Virginia, but the people always do.'

Charles T. Jones, whom we called "Captain Charlie," exemplified this, and his light will forever shine through the many people who knew and loved him best. He was truly one of a kind. He was one of the most warm, kind people I ever had the privilege of knowing.

Last year, I had the privilege of submitting a Congressional Record statement for Charlie's 100th birthday. He credited his longevity to good genes, good luck, a great wife, and very supportive family, colleagues, and friends.

Charlie was an innovator. He always had ideas for how to make something better or run more smoothly, making him a joy to work with and to work for.

There is no greater reward in life than to be in a position to give back to the place that made you who you are. While he grew up on the banks of the Kanawha River in West Virginia, Charlie attended school in New Jersey, later earning a degree in business from Babson Institute in Massachusetts. He then went on to his country in the U.S. Navy during World War II with the Navy Seabees in Guadalcanal and on a minesweeper as an engineering officer off the coast of Japan and the Philippines.

After the war's end, Charlie came home to West Virginia and went to work for his family's coking coal business—Star Coal and Coke Company—which later became Amherst Coal Company. Charlie and his grandfather started in 1893.

Due to the downturn in production of and demand for coking coal, out of necessity, the company ventured into river transportation. In 1951, the family bought the Hatfield-Campbell Creek Coal Company, a business that operated steamboats, barges, and river terminals along the Kanawha and Ohio Rivers. He took over the river operations and owned them Amherst Barge Company. Along the way, the company became Madison Coal & Supply Company and is now known as Amherst Madison and still specializes in marine services like towing, construction, shipping, and equipment repairs. Amherst Madison and its affiliated companies have proudly employed thousands of Virginians over the past 70 years.

Charlie was one of the most hardworking, humble, and giving people the Mountain State has ever known and was a longtime supporter of many business, charitable, and community organizations throughout the Kanawha Valley. Over the years, he served on numerous boards and committees, including the Yeager Airport Authority Board, Board of Trustees for the University of Charleston, Chairman Emeritus of the Inland Waterways Users Board, Emeritus of Barbour, the Western Virginia Chapter of the Nature Conservancy, Director Emeritus of the Mariners' Museum, past Chairman of the West Virginia Mining and Reclamation Association, former Director of the Charleston Area Medical Center Foundation, and Chairman of the Pocahontas Corporation, Ohio Valley Improvement Association, and so many more.

In recent years, Charlie was honored as a Distinguished West Virginian by the Governor, entered into the Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels by the people of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, inducted into the West Virginia University College of Business and Economics Business Hall of Fame, and recognized as a West Virginia ‘Who’s Who’ by the State Journal.

Additionally, he received previous honors, such as the Charleston YMCA’s Spirit of the Valley Award, induction into the Coal Mining Hall of Fame, Charleston Gazette-Mail’s West Virginia ‘Who’s Who’ of the Year, Seamen’s Church Institute Lifetime Achievement Award, and the National Rivers Hall of Fame Achievement Award, to name only a few.

Put simply, Charlie was a regular Renaissance man. What stands out about Charlie’s character was he that he was beloved by those who worked with him and knew him. He was compassionate and considerate and was also a strong leader and motivator with an unparalleled work ethic. It was an honor to call him a friend.

Once again, Gayle and I send our deepest condolences to his children, Laura Jones Pray, C. Tandy Jones, and Jennifer Jones. I am honored to join each of you in remembering Charlie’s legacy, as well as the unwavering love he had for his loved ones, community, and, most importantly, our home state.

I know he and Mary Ellen and their son Nelson are looking down on each of them fondly today.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

VENEZUELA

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the crisis in Venezuela, a defining human rights issue of our time. Nicolas Maduro is starving his own people, and innocent children are dying. What is happening in Venezuela is pure genocide. With every day that passes, the situation in Venezuela grows more dire.

I will not stand by and let Maduro continue terrorizing his people. I will not let Democrats in Congress use the Venezuelan people as a political prop. I will not allow the inaction to continue.

Americans have always stood up for freedom, and today is no exception. That is why I am here today again to ask unanimous consent to pass my amendment to H.R. 549, granting temporary protective status for Venezuelans fleeing their oppressive regime. Even though Senate Democrats blocked the same proposal last month, I refuse to give up. I stand with the proud Venezuelans.

My proposal has the support of all Senate Republicans that the President will sign this into law. It is the only solution that stands a chance of becoming law. We have to act. We also need to be responsible. The courts have, basically, made a temporary program permanent, which is not sustainable. Despite what some confused Democrats, including Speaker Pelosi may say, the ‘T’ in TPS actually does mean ‘temporary.’

In addition to protecting Venezuelan people right now, my amendment makes much needed reforms to our TPS program and returns the program to its intended purpose. We want those seeking refuge from war and oppressive regimes to have a safe haven in our country, but a system that works and is truly temporary. We need to act now to save the Venezuelan people.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to address the Senate in Spanish. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. (English translation of the statement made in Spanish is as follows:)

We need TPS. I stand with the people of Venezuela, and I will continue to fight for freedom and democracy in Latin America.

It is time for Maduro and his thugs to leave power.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 549

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from further consideration and that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 549, I ask unanimous consent that my amendment at the desk be agreed to, that the bill, as amended, be considered read a third time and passed, and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from further consideration and that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 549. I ask unanimous consent that my amendment at the desk be agreed to, that the bill, as amended, be considered read a third time and passed, and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my unanimous consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 549

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 549 and that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration; further, that the bill be considered read a third time and passed and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening action other than its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from Florida.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, in preserving the right to object, I appreciate the opportunity to work with my colleague from Maryland, and I look forward to working with him again in the future. It would be great if we could work together to try to figure out how to provide temporary protected status for Venezuelans and also to fix the program so it continues to work not just for Venezuelans but for people all over the world.

The Democrats know their proposal cannot become law. It lacks support in the Senate, which is why I proposed an amendment to the Senate's support and that can actually become law immediately.

My amendment grants TPS to Venezuelans for 18 months. It requires congressional approval for TPS extensions of no more than 18 months at a time. My amendment includes provisions to distinguish that TPS status does not count as an admission for purposes of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Under my amendment, TPS recipients cannot return to the TPS country during the period of designation. Finally, the amendment requires that current TPS designations come up for congressional review 2 years after the enactment of this amendment.

My amendment is the only way to help Venezuelan people. It is the only proposal that can become law. There is no path forward for the Democrats' plan, and, unfortunately, they know it.

It is clear, now more than ever, that, unfortunately, the Democrats don't want to get anything done on this issue. That is why they are standing in our way. All Republican Senators have signed off on this. Unfortunately, the Democrats have decided to use the Venezuelan community as a political prop. Instead of working with us to find a solution.

We cannot lose sight of the fact that Nicolas Maduro is killing his citizens. It is a genocide. Who will we be if we turn our backs on a genocide right here in our hemisphere? We must help Venezuelan families.

It is also time to reform TPS in this country. Temporary protected status was never meant to be endless. It was meant to help families in need. So let's get the program to work. I look forward to working with my colleague from Maryland and with all of my colleagues to help the families in Venezuela and to finally create a long-term solution to TPS. I will not rest until we do.

My colleague Senator RAND PAUL asked that I object to the Senate Democrats' proposal. On behalf of Senator PAUL, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CARPER). Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—H.R. 3055

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order to offer the following amendments: No. R-961, No. 1019, and No. 1067. I further ask unanimous consent that no second-degree amendments be in order to these amendments prior to the votes and that at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, October 28, the Senate vote in relation to these amendments in the order listed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAMER). Without objection, it is so ordered.

TURKEY AND SYRIA

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I want to take the next 15 or 20 minutes today to talk about the ongoing situation in Syria and the region surrounding that country.

It is a part of the world that some folks might not be all that familiar with. Let's take a look at the area that I will be discussing today: Syria, the Mediterranean, with Greece up here.

Just north of Syria, we have Turkey. To the southeast of Syria, we have Iraq. Further to the east of Iraq, we have Iran. To the south-southwest of Syria, we have Lebanon, Israel, and Jordan. South of Jordan is Saudi Arabia. Over here we have Egypt, the Red Sea, and Georgia—not the State, the country. That gives us just a little bit of the focus of my remarks today will be on Syria.

Three years and 4 months ago, when I stood here on the Senate floor, progress was actually being made in securing ISIS's growing U.S.-backed Kurdish forces had recaptured Manbij, sending ISIS recruitment tumbling, from about 2,000 fighters a month down to 200. I will say that again. They were recruiting 2,000 a month, and they were down to about 200.

We had found where they kept a lot of their money, not all of it, but we destroyed about one-third of it. ISIS had previously held the strategically important Sunni Tristate in nearby Iraq. But when I spoke on the floor, right here, 3 years ago, in 2016, Iraqi forces recaptured the cities of Tikrit, Fallujah, and Ramadi, and we were poised to make additional gains in the months that followed in the battle against ISIS.

Just over a year later, in 2017, Raqqa was recaptured from ISIS control. Around that time, and in the months that followed, ISIS's sphere of influence was undoubtedly diminished by about two-thirds.

I referred to that map already, but we will look at it again. This is where they were about 3 years and 4 months ago. That is basically where they were. In short order, from there, they lost about two-thirds of the land they were controlling and are down to this point right here.

October 24, 2019

When I speak of the progress we made, I am not just referring to U.S. forces or the United States alone or one or two of our allies. I am speaking of a coalition—get this—of over 60 nations that would come together to fight the rise of ISIS and prevent it from emanating the caliphate that I referred to earlier.

Each member of the coalition found that it was in their own naked self-interest to join this fight as part of a bigger coalition. Among the forces that contributed the most, though, were—believe it or not—the Syrian Kurds.

If you asked most people, who are the Kurds, where are they from, tell us something about the Kurds, they would have no idea. It turns out, the Kurds are one of the largest ethnic groups in the world without a nation of their own to call their own home. There are 30 million of them. They are largely divided across four countries: Syria, Turkey, Iran, and Iraq.

For decades, the Kurds have sought self-determination and basic rights, something we all want for ourselves and our families. But too often, instead, they have been victimized, attacked, and slaughtered, including by President Erdogan's Turkey.

Over the last several years, though, Kurdish soldiers trained and fought against ISIS alongside some of our soldiers as part of the Syrian Democratic Forces. They call themselves the SDF, or the Syrian Democratic Forces. The Kurdish soldiers put their lives at risk to stop ISIS from successfully establishing a caliphate from which to wreak even more havoc around the globe and even here in the United States.

In fact, the Kurdish SDF fighters were the ones carrying out most of the ground operations, while U.S. troops provided support. Their willingness—the willingness of the Kurdish fighters—to risk their lives and shed their blood likely meant that countless American lives were spared.

I am going to say that again. The willingness of Kurdish fighters to risk their lives and shed their blood likely meant that countless American lives were spared.

Some 11,000 Kurdish fighters have been killed in combat while fighting ISIS. Compare that to the four American lives we have lost during the same campaign. Think about that. Eleven thousand Kurdish fighters laid down their lives. Four Americans lost their lives. That is too many, but what an imbalance. We have heard it said oftentimes: They laid down their lives to spare ours. And that is exactly what happened.

Earlier this month, President Trump abruptly announced that he would be pulling the remaining coalition forces from Syria, effective immediately. He did not do so after thoughtful consideration of the risks involved to U.S. interests. He did not consult with our allies. As far as I know, he did not consult with our military leadership—certainly not those who are speaking up, raising their voices. Rather, he did so after a weekend phone call with Turkish President Erdogan.

In the process, he left our Kurdish allies hanging out to dry.

As someone who has actually served this Nation in uniform at a time of war, I have served with coalitions before. Two of the most important factors in building a successful coalition are communication and trust.

Our abrupt abandonment of Kurdish forces and their people will not serve to encourage other countries around the world to risk the lives of their soldiers and join a coalition led by us, the Americans. In fact, what we have done in abandoning the Kurds is going to discourage other nations from deciding to join a coalition with us in the future—certainly in the near future and maybe longer.

The decision to abandon our Kurdish allies isn't just morally wrong—and it is. It is not just harmful to our credibility with allies around the globe—and it is harmful to a gift to several of our greatest adversaries.

Here is what President Trump's abrupt decision to pull U.S. ground forces from Syria has achieved. He has created almost overnight a power vacuum in which ISIS can regroup and wreak havoc again. According to recent news reports, ISIS fighters are cheering the loss of the American troops there. It has also given Putin a leg up in the region without a plan for exit, Mr. President. Here is what President Trump's abrupt decision to pull U.S. ground forces from Syria has achieved. He has created almost overnight a power vacuum in which ISIS can regroup and wreak havoc again. According to recent news reports, ISIS fighters are cheering the loss of the American troops there. It has also given Putin a leg up in the region without a plan for exit, Mr. President.

The Kurds, whom I have just described as our friends, are now left to fend for themselves, with Erdogan and Putin as their new masters. To add insult to injury, I understand that Putin is allowing the escaped ISIS fighters to go to Europe.

Of course, it was critical to degrade and destroy ISIS extremists overseas on the battlefield, but, unfortunately, in today's day and age, ISIS's message of hate doesn't need a visa and doesn't need a plane ticket to reach our shores. It has been just as important to find ways to counter their twisted messages in order to prevent the radicalization of American citizens right here at home, in the United States of America.

We worked tirelessly during the Obama administration to reach out to communities across our country and worked with local officials, with faith leaders, and with family members to combat terrorist groups' efforts to radicalize and recruit our own citizens—our own citizens who might be vulnerable to their hateful ideology.

ISIS fighters never have to step foot on American soil to spread their hate and inspire unspeakable violence. For our President to brush off the escape of these dangerous criminals and say it is not our problem because they will go to Europe I think is callous. I think it is thoughtless. It is foolish, and it demonstrates a fundamental lack of understanding of the ever-evolving terrorist threats we face in this world today.

President Trump's decision to pull out of Syria without a plan to protect our gains hasn't just energized ISIS fighters there. It has also given Russian President Vladimir Putin a long-sought foothold in the Middle East. Just yesterday, President Putin and Erdogan announced that their forces will jointly establish and patrol a 20-mile-wide safe zone along the Syrian-Turkish border.

I don't know what we can do about this. Here is Syria. Turkey is up here. Close to the Euphrates, there is an area there, about a 20-mile safe zone, that will be patrolled not by the Syrian Kurds but by the forces from Russia and the soldiers from Turkey.

If the Kurds want help fighting Erdogan's ethnic cleansing and chemical attacks, instead of turning to the United States, they now have only another dictator to turn to, and that is Vladimir Putin. And because we left the region without a plan for exit, Mr. Putin has secured an important public relations win of his own.

At least one base where American forces used to work side by side with Kurdish forces in Syria to gather and share critical intelligence regarding ISIS's movements—now it is not in our hands, not in the hands of the Syrian Kurds, but it is in Russian hands. You know what that is going to do? It is just another example of how Putin has exploited our military retreat in Syria, which has emboldened ISIS fighters with new terror capabilities they can use against the U.S. and our allies.

In the end, it's not really about Syria or Turkey for the President. Putin has secured an important public relations win of his own.

If empowering Russia, Erdogan, and ISIS wasn't enough, President Trump's decision to withdraw American troops that have been fighting ISIS alongside Kurdish fighters in Syria also creates a golden opportunity for Iranian hardliners to achieve a long-desired goal of their own—that is, to establish a land bridge across the Middle East in order to further antagonize our allies the Israelis.

President Trump has repeatedly promised to fulfill his campaign promise to end what he calls America’s endless wars, and I applaud him for that. Not one war has ended during his Presidency. In fact, more troops have actually been deployed to the Middle East than have come home.

Today, roughly 200,000 U.S. troops are deployed around the globe. Some of those troops are in war zones, in places like Iraq, Afghanistan, Somalia, and a small number remain in Syria. Even more troops remain overseas from legacy missions, in places like Japan, Germany, the Philippines, and Australia. For instance, right now more than 28,000 U.S. troops are stationed in South Korea. Just 2 weeks ago, President Trump announced that he would be sending an additional 3,000 troops to Saudi Arabia.

Prior to President Trump’s reckless withdrawal from Syria, there were roughly 1,000 American troops stationed in the northeastern corner of that country. Compared to America’s military presence elsewhere, that is a small number. But ask about that small number: roughly 200,000 American troops are spread around the world. Roughly 1,000 of them, which is less than one-half of 1 percent, were serving in this part of the world, in Syria.

In spite of that strategic presence, President Trump chose to abruptly pull a small number of troops out of Syria. As it turns out, with the death of John McCain, I am the last of the Vietnam veteran serving in the U.S. Senate. I know well what it is like to come home from a long deployment. When I was with my squadron, we deployed overseas 6 months three times to Southeast Asia. I agree that we cannot afford to entangle our men and women in uniform in endless wars around the globe. Some fit is not fair to them, and it is not fair to their families. But what Donald Trump has achieved is not a carefully negotiated cease-fire to shore up the gains we have made against ISIS and to fulfill our commitments to the allies who helped us along the way. Oh, no, make no mistake, this is a retreat.

The last thing I will say is this: I am not alone. In fact, I am far from alone in criticizing this administration’s decision with respect to the withdrawal of a small number of troops from Syria. In the past week, I have been joined by some unlikely colleagues to warn about the dangers of Mr. Trump’s Syria policy. We have also heard from top national security officials, past and present, in uniform and out of uniform—who have extensive experience when it comes to American foreign policy and military policy.

Just last week, a senior member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee described the Trump administration’s decision to pull American troops out of Syria as— in his words— “out of line” and also as “dangerous.”

That Senator also warned that— these are his words— “ISIS is the biggest beneficiary.” That is what he said. “ISIS is the biggest beneficiary.” Of what? Of the administration’s abrupt decision to pull U.S. troops out of Syria and leave our Kurdish allies open to predictable invasion and, unfortunately, likely slaughter by the Turks. You might be surprised to learn those remarks were made by a Republican colleague from South Carolina, someone who was also in uniform in his life, Lindsey Graham.

Another one of our colleagues stood right here on the Senate floor this last week and said that President Trump’s decision to abandon our Kurdish allies “strikes at American honor.” He went on to say that the ceasefire deal described last week by Vice President Pence as a victory—and these are the words of our colleague— “does not change the fact that America abandoned an ally, adding insult to dis-honor.”

That Senator went on to say: “The administration speaks cavalierly, even flippantly, even as our ally has suffered death from casualty. Their homes have been burned and their families have been torn apart.

Again, those are the words of not a Democrat. Our colleague from Utah, Senator Mitt Romney. Just this past weekend, we were jolted by a highly decorated, retired U.S. Marine Corps general, one who served in the war in Afghanistan, one who served in the Persian Gulf war, one warned by a highly decorated, retired Army general, that decision to abandon our Kurdish allies. I am not describing a misguided foreign policy here today. I am describing an abandonment of the values that we as Americans have embraced since the founding of our democracy. I am going to say that again. I am describing a misguided foreign policy here today.

That Senator also warned that— you might be surprised to learn— that the Trump Doctrine is—it goes something like this: Barack built it. I, Trump, broke it. You fix it.

I want to turn the Trump Doctrine on its head and say: No, no, no, Mr. President. You broke it. It can be fixed, and you need to do the fixing.

For, with that, I yield the floor. The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Mr. SULLIVAN). The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. KAINE, Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Delaware for his comments.

I rise to continue to speak about the U.S. retreat from Syria and our alliance with our Kurdish allies.

The hasty withdrawal of the United States from northern Syria produced vivid and painful pictures of U.S. troops being pelted with stones and rotting vegetables as they walked away from the Kurdish allies they had stood alongside in the fight against ISIS for years—those Kurdish allies who had fought so valiantly with the United States—our best battlefield partners— in the defeat of ISIS.

The Trump retreat has been pitched by the President as a great victory for American foreign policy. It isn’t. It is a grave failure that will ultimately cost the country you serve losing a pipeline to keeping the way for potential ethnic cleansing. That has been testified to by administration officials.

In the last 2 weeks, 176,000 Kurds— more than half of them children— have been displaced.

President Trump claims that the Kurds understand we are doing them a great service. That is just flatly wrong.

The Trump retreat empowers Russia, empowers Iran, empowers the Syrian dictator, Bashar al-Assad, who is an international pariah because he is responsible for human suffering at an unimaginable scale, and it also empowers Turkish forces continue to attack Kurds outside of the agreed-upon safe zone and continue to commit possible war crimes. But even strong sanctions such as those contained in our bill, if passed, would not solve the urgent crisis of the President that was created by abandoning our Kurdish allies.

Here is what the President said in the last week or two: “I alone can fix it.”

Well, Mr. President, for once, that might be true. You alone can fix it. After a single phone call with an authoritarian leader, you created this mess, and maybe you alone can reverse that decision. I urge you to do so. In fact, I think we urge you to do so. Don’t turn your back on the Kurds. Don’t give up on the gains against ISIS that our service men and women, along with our allies, fought for so bravely.

That would be leadership. That would protect our national security. And that is what the American people and our allies look to the President of the United States to do.

Tom Friedman, a noted author and columnist for the New York Times and someone who has been here in the Capitol a number of times, has something he calls the Trump Doctrine. He said the Trump Doctrine is—it goes something like this: Barack built it. I, Trump, broke it. You fix it.

I want to turn the Trump Doctrine on its head and say: No, no, no, Mr. President. You broke it. It can be fixed, and you need to do the fixing.

With that, I yield the floor.
Turkey, which, despite being a NATO member, has undergone a troubling slide toward authoritarianism.

The Trump retreat has led us to abandon a steadfast U.S. ally, the Syrian Kurds. It is more than just abandoning our friends in that region; it is abandoning our allies globally. According to the testimony of the special ambassador who has been charged to be the envoy for the region, Ambassador Jeffrey, the President declared that they had been largely recaptured, but when Ambassador Jeffrey was asked yesterday about the President’s claim, he stated: “We do not know where they are.”

Based on testimony from military leadership and diplomats—testimony which was just read by Senator Carper—there is clear evidence that the President has increased the likelihood of a resurgence of ISIS with this move. We hope that does not happen, but it has largely been predicted by our defense leaders.

What is the grand strategy here? If you look at this highly consequential decision, which is literally a life-and-death decision, and you look at how it was made, it becomes pretty clear to me that there wasn’t a grand strategy.

President Trump encouraged a career State Department diplomat, Ambassador Jim Jeffrey, who spent his whole life in this region, to come out of retirement and take a portfolio of responsibility for Syria and the anti-ISIS campaign. Ambassador Jeffrey was charged directly with this task, but Ambassador Jeffrey testified before the Foreign Relations Committee the other day that he was not even asked or consulted about the cause of action that this is, which is a life-and-death decision about the Syrian mission and does not even ask you for your advice about it. This speaks volumes about the chaotic nature of the retreat.

Imagine how that would make you feel. You have retired. You are recruited by the President to come and lead the coalition against ISIS, to be responsible for the Syrian portfolio. The President makes a life-and-death decision about the Syrian mission and does not even ask you for your advice about it. This speaks volumes about the chaotic nature of the retreat.

In July, Ambassador Jeffrey announced good news—that he and the team had convinced Britain and France to add troops to the mission—the anti-ISIS mission in Syria—to deal with this ISIS threat. That was announced 2 to 3 months ago. But what we heard after President Trump’s announcement was that he did not consult with Britain and France, the nations that had made commitments and then bulked up their troop strength in the area. President Macron of France said he heard of President Trump’s decision "by tweet." So when neither the U.S. Ambassador charged with the responsibility of this mission, nor the British and French allies, who are also together with us on the battlefield, were consulted about this, that adds to the sense of chaos.

I believe this: If the administration had come to Congress 3 months ago or 3 weeks ago and said: Here is our proposal for the country about Russia, Turkey, Iran, and Assad. We want to raise the risk of ISIS reconstituting. We want to walk away from the Kurds. We want to make other allies wonder about whether we will be loyal to them. We would send the message that protecting oil wells is more important than protecting allies—if the administration had come to the Armed Services or Foreign Relations Committee and said “We have an idea. This is what we want to do. What do you think?” I know what we would have done. I think virtually everyone in the body would have asked questions but would have laughed the strategy out of the room.

But the President didn’t come to Congress. Didn’t come to the relevant committees to share his thought or his idea about what should be done. Instead, he took the unilateral action, and now we are seeing the consequences of the Trump retreat.

The Trump retreat was promoted at a press conference by the President yesterday with a branding, and the branding was “Mission Accomplished and Promise Kept.” That branding sent a very bizarre, chaotic, and contradictory message: We are protecting oil fields but not our allies from ISIS. We are pulling out of the region, but we are also putting thousands more troops in Saudi Arabia. We are pulling out of the region, but we have, in fact, added 14,000 more troops to the gulf since May. We are pulling back from the safe zone that we spent months trying to implement, just to put Russia in charge of that safe zone. We are empowering dictators, but we are abandoning the signal to Russia in Saudi Arabia that the reason we are putting troops there is, as the President said, because they will pay for it, sending the message that our military are now mercenaries, that we would go to the country where the country will pay for it regardless of the human rights situation in that country.

The withdrawal has made it very difficult for anybody to think about partnering with us in the future against ISIS. The Syrian Kurds and the Iraqi Kurds, by the way, are both very, very strong partners in the battle against ISIS. If ISIS does resurge, the normal reaction would be to go to our best battlefield partners and ask them if they would help us to defeat ISIS. The President has made it virtually impossible for us to go back to the Syrian Kurds and say: OK, well, now can you help us defeat ISIS again? And I think the President’s actions this week have demonstrated as well that when the United States asks you to get on the battlefield, you have to be worried about whether the United States will abandon you when it has decided your time is up.

I want America—and I know the President has done as well because of his background—to be the country that tells the world “You can count on us,” when people—ours allies—wonder: They are mandatory. Yet we refrain from implementing the mandatory sanctions. Why not?

For some reason that has not yet been explained, the administration has refrained from implementing the mandatory CAATSA sanctions against Turkey following Turkey’s purchase of the S-400 missile system from Russia. These are mandatory sanctions. By law, the President was supposed to have implemented them by now.

We have heard from Brett McGurk, who is working in the region, that Vladimir Putin called American officials and said: Hey, look, Turkey bought our system, and you guys haven’t sanctioned Turkey yet, so you are a paper tiger.

The actions of these sanctions are noticed in the region, and the region is wondering: They are mandatory. Yet the United States isn’t implementing the sanctions. Why not?

I call on the administration to reverse this decision and immediately implement the sanctions to send an important message to both Turkey and Russia.

I call on Congress and the administration to be focused on the need for increased humanitarian assistance in the region. The 176,000 Kurds who have been displaced from their land already are likely to be followed by tens or hundreds of thousands more, and we should focus on what we might do in the humanitarian space to assist them. I believe that humanitarian assistance to the Kurds is as important as these other things and, also, I would argue, humanitarian assistance to the KRG—to the Kurdistan Regional Government.
Naturally, as the Kurds leave the space in northern Syria under attack from Turkey, one of the places they are likely to go is to Kurdistan and northern Iraq. In the first 10 days, nearly 9,000 Kurdish refugees from Syria have crossed the border into Iraq.

So as we are looking to humanitarian assistance to deal with the scope of this crisis created by President Trump’s action, I hope we will consider humanitarian support to the KRG as Kurdish refugees arrive. I call on Congress to pass the bill that has been introduced by Senators Warner and Blumenthal, which would provide special immigrant visas for the Kurds who have worked alongside our military. This is something we have had a good track record of doing with people who supported our troops in Iraq and supported our troops in Afghanistan, and we shouldn’t be leaving the Kurds to fight on their own because of that support. Those on the Kurdish side who have worked together with our troops in northern Syria, I think, should be extended the same special immigrant visa status.

The reason should be extended to come to both Houses of Congress and testify about the plan to prevent a resurgence of ISIS. This is something Americans should be afraid of. Maybe the administration has a plan about how they will try to protect against that happening, but whether they have a plan or not, they should come to Congress, and we should ask them about it.

Finally, I want the White House to release the transcript of the call between President Trump and President Erdogan in which this deal was hashed. When I heard the testimony of Ambassador Jeffrey at the hearing yesterday—the testimony was public—that he was consulted and that the British and French, who have just recently put in troops, weren’t consulted, I still have real questions about why this decision was made. I believe those questions would largely be answered if the transcript was released. I understand that President Erdogan and Trump were delivered, whether in a classified or other context to Congress, so I call on the White House to release the transcript.

I am going to conclude with this: Along with many of our colleagues today, I gathered here in the Chamber at 10:30 to go over to the memorial service for Elijah Cummings, and it was a powerful one. It was a powerful one. Not many Members of Congress have just moved into their new office in the Capitol, and it was a moving occasion. I knew Elijah Cummings pretty well, being kind of a next-door neighbor of Virginia and Maryland. Over the years, we docked events together.

One of the things that Representative Cummings used to say in one of these voices that sounded like it was coming out of the Old Testament—you know, it was a fire-and-brimstone voice—was this powerful, powerful statement: “We are better than this.”

He would say that, and when he would say it, he would say it about a number of circumstances. He said it probably most recently, most vividly, when pictures emerged of children in cages at the border. But he would often say it, and he would say it to criticize actions. It would sound like a tough criticism.

But as some of the eulogists today were mentioning that statement of Representative Cummings, I thought about “We are better than this,” what it means, and it suddenly struck me as not a critical statement. It suddenly struck me as an optimistic and positive statement. I hadn’t really thought of it that way until I heard it earlier today.

Why do I say it was optimistic and positive? The statement “We are better than this” says that whatever the imperfections of the day, we are really more defined by our ideals than our imperfections. We are more defined by our values than our vices. And, sure, when he would use that statement, he would be criticizing an imperfection of the day—a bad decision or bad policy—but he would be criticizing it by saying that we as a country, we as a Congress, we as a Senate, even as individuals are actually better than this. Our ideals are better than the way we are acting right now.

If you look at reality, you can define it by its imperfection or you can try to define it by its ideals, and I would like to have a judge who looked at me and judged me more by my ideals than my imperfections, even while calling me to live up to my ideals.

The fact that an Elijah Cummings, who had suffered throughout his life many kinds of second-class treatment of discrimination, even being routed into special ed classes as a kid because people thought he was slow when he was actually really, really gifted, the fact that he would go through life and still believe so strongly that our country’s values were more a accurate reflection of who we are than our imperfections and vices is something that I found pretty inspirational as I thought about his life.

I do believe we are better than this with respect to this particular issue. I think we are better than abandoning battlefield allies. I think we are better than empowering authoritarian dictators. I think we are better than suggesting we care more about oil than we care about people. I think we are better than being ethnically cleansing of a proud population, including kids. I think we are better than this.

So in the spirit of Representative Cummings, I am going to define us as a nation, us as a Senate, us as individuals more by our ideals than by our imperfect actions and then call us to live up to it. There are concrete steps we can take—some of which I have outlined—that I think will be more in tune with who we actually are and the ideals we hold.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll. Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

VOTE EXPLANATION

Ms. HARRIS. Mr. President, I was absent, but had I been present, I would have voted no on rollcall vote No. 332, the motion to invoke cloture on consideration of confirmation of Executive Calendar No. 457, Justin Reed Walker, to be U.S. District Judge for the Western District of Kentucky.

CUBA

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, the travel section of the New York Times on Sunday, October 6, 2019, included a lengthy article about the extraordinary music of Cuba and the rich culture that has developed over many generations around the creation and performance of music in that country. The article is too long to insert into the Record, but I encourage all Senators to read as it describes in colorful detail the unique creativity, ingenuity, and complexity of Cuban music that derives from the infinite variety of sounds, instruments, artistry, and talents of Cuban musicians drawing on the African, Haitian, and European heritage.

I mention this because it is illustrative of the many aspects of Cuban society today that Americans should be able to experience for themselves. The Cuban people, who endure many hardships, are as resilient, ingenious, and hard-working as any people I have met. Despite an economy broken by mismanagement that discourages private initiative, a one-party political system that punishes dissent, racial, and gender inequality, and only dreams for a better future, they know how to enjoy life’s pleasures and to make strangers feel welcome.

Unfortunately, rather than encouraging Americans to travel to Cuba to experience Cuban society and build relations with the Cuban people, as we do with people living under other autocratic governments, President Trump has slammed the door.

Egged on by a handful of Cuban-American hardliners in the White House, the State Department, and Congress—few, if any, of whom have ever set foot in Cuba—the President has adopted a bankrupt approach toward the country that is steeped in hypocrisy.

These are the same people who for years have unreservedly supported... spending hundreds of millions of dollars on TV and Radio Martí, despite abundant evidence that they were little more than anti-Cuba propaganda broadcasts masquerading as objective journalism. Finally, thanks to a recent investigation, the Office of Cuba Broadcasting and the Department of State have revealed that the drastic cutbacks to their budgets, which many believe were intended to function with a skeleton staff, and the State Department has done nothing to try to mitigate the adverse impact this is having on our relations with Cuba.

Under President Obama, negotiations designed to lift the continuing, un-American, authory issue of expropriated property claims. The Trump White House summarily abandoned that process and has instead encouraged lawsuits against American companies that want to do business in Cuba, if doing so involves property confiscated during the Cuban revolution 60 years ago. Airports, seaports, warehouses, hotels, homes, and restaurants, many of which were once owned by Cuban elites who profited off the spoils of the U.S.-supported Batista dictatorship, are now off limits. This is a legitimate issue that needs to be addressed, but tying up U.S. courts for years and hurting American companies is not the way to do it.

The White House has consistently insisted that each of these and other punitive actions is designed to bring democracy to Cuba and human rights to the Cuban people. And I have little doubt that creative minds in the White House will conjure new sanctions in the coming months. None of them will achieve those goals or anything positive for Cuba or its people. Anyone who knows Cuba, and who knows the Cuban Government, understands the fallacy of the White House’s approach. I wish it were otherwise, but human rights have not improved since President Trump announced his punitive policy 3 years ago. In fact the situation is worse, as the recent re-arrests in Cuba by Jose Daniel Ferrer, and other dissidents illustrates. As access to the Internet in Cuba has increased, so has persecution of critics of the government. With only a handful of staff at our Embassy in Havana, there is no one to regularly interact with the Cuban dissident community or their families.

Cuba is no closer to being a multiparty democracy than it was 3 years ago, nor is the Cuban Government any more responsive to the needs of its people than it was under President Raúl Castro. Instead, Cuba has executed a number of its objectives, while it is harming the American people. And if we are serious about controlling the spread of deadly viruses; mitigating the effects of climate change; combating organized crime, drug trafficking, and human trafficking; protecting fisheries and other marine resources; addressing the causes of migration; expanding export markets for American companies; and countering the influence of Russia and China in this hemisphere, we need to engage with every one of our neighbors whether or not we agree with their policies or not.

And if we are serious about pursuing a policy that has failed for more than half a century is nonsensical, indefensible, and wrong. It has achieved none of its objectives, while it is harming the Cuban people and infringing on the rights of the American people.

No one is saying that we should exculpate Cuba’s support for Maduro or for the corrupt and repressive Ortega Government in Nicaragua.

What we are saying is that pursuing a policy that has failed for more than half a century is nonsensical, indefensible, and wrong. It has achieved none of its objectives, while it is harming the Cuban people and infringing on the rights of the American people.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today is World Polio Day, and I want to comment briefly about the funding to support global polio eradication efforts in the Senate version of the fiscal year 2020 Department of State and Foreign Operations appropriations bill, which was reported unanimously by the Appropriations Committee on September 26.

Polio is a highly infectious, crippling, and potentially fatal disease. While there is no cure, there are safe and effective vaccines. The global strategy to eradicate polio, therefore, focuses on interrupting the transmission of the virus by immunizing every child until transmission stops and the world is polio-free.

Through the U.S. Agency for International Development, USAID supports the United States provides financial support and technical leadership around the world to support the eradication strategy. USAID focuses specifically on recognizing and raising the importance of identifying and reaching mobile populations, cross-border coordination, communications, and the need for more women vaccinators and community-based disease surveillance.

While significant progress has been made, polio remains. Cases of polio persist in insecure areas and in countries with porous borders. Additionally, migratory populations pose considerable obstacles to eradication. However, while there have been setbacks, the goal and the path continue to change, complacency is not an option.

To that end, the Appropriations Committee has recommended $61 million in fiscal year 2020—an increase of $2 million over last year—for USAID’s polio eradication activities. Increased resources are necessary to get over the finish line in Afghanistan, Nigeria, and Pakistan, and to demonstrate the commitment to polio eradication. It is our hope that this increase will cause other donors to follow our example.

I am not alone in my support for these activities. The State and Foreign Operations Subcommittee heard from these activities. The State and Foreign Operations Subcommittee heard from these activities.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, my heart is heavy today as we mourn the loss of Congressman Elijah Cummings. He was a powerful voice for the people of Baltimore, a champion of justice for our country, and a dear friend to me and so many others.

I first met Elijah when he was elected to the Maryland House of Delegates, where I was the speaker, but our lives had intersected in formative ways even before that. We both grew up in Baltimore, attending public schools and abolitionist churches. And while we both loved the city, we went to the same high school—Baltimore City College High School—and we both earned law degrees from the University of Maryland before balancing private law practices with public service in the Maryland General Assembly.

So when I met Elijah, I couldn’t help but feel a kinship with him, but I think that was perhaps just Elijah’s power—the ability to build kinship with anyone and everyone. He was constantly searching for common ground, always looking to make human connections. As a result, he developed meaningful friendships with people all over the political, social, religious, and geographic map.

Elijah’s talent for building consensus, as well as his work ethic and dedication to his constituents, propelled him early on to positions of leadership in the Maryland House of Delegates. By the time he became the youngest ever chairman of the Legislative Black Caucus and the first African American to be named speaker pro tempore. He served in that chamber for 14 years, during which he worked tirelessly to advance the rights and opportunities of Maryland residents.

Then, in 1996, Elijah was elected to represent Maryland’s Seventh District, including our home of Baltimore, in the U.S. House of Representatives. He filled a seat once occupied by civil rights legacies Parren Mitchell and Kweisi Mfume, and, let me tell you, there was no person more prepared to carry on their fight for equality and freedom.

Elijah was the son of sharecroppers who worked the same land in South Carolina where his ancestors had been enslaved. His parents moved to Baltimore to build a better life for their family, but the city was rife with racism and prejudice. Elijah faced prejudice and discrimination. He attended a segregated elementary school, and he was pelted with bottles, rocks, and jeers when he and other children integrated the local public swimming pool.

In the face of all that hatred, he found the hope and determination to overcome every obstacle set before him so that he could rise up and lift others up too. He worked diligently, excelling as an undergraduate at Howard University, and then, though people told him he could never become a lawyer, successfully practicing law, and then launching a career of public service that led him to the U.S. Congress. Elijah continued to climb until he was elected Chairman of the House Oversight Committee.

All the while, he remained firmly based in his community. He lived in the same house in West Baltimore for more than 30 years—in the inner city, as he put it—and he returned home every night after a long day of work in DC. He was known to sit on the stoop of that house and feed the neighborhood pigeons. And every Sunday, he went to church where he often met by a line of people waiting to share their concerns, and he would listen to them and try to help them all.

Elijah never for a moment forgot that his purpose was to represent the folks back home in his district, to be a voice for the many who were silenced. He once said that while it was his “constitutional duty to conduct oversight of the executive branch,’ it was his “moral duty” to fight for his constituents and the American ideals, so he held us to the highest moral standards. In moments of moral crisis, he would famously remind whoever was listening, “We are better than this!”

He was passionate about rooting out corruption, protecting our democracy, and achieving equality and freedom for all. As chairman of the Oversight Committee and in life, he fought for what was right simply because it was right. And Heaven forbid anyone should stand between Elijah Cummings and justice, because, while Elijah was always calm and respectful, he was never afraid to hold someone’s feet to the fire.
He gave every ounce of himself, up until his last day on Earth, to defending the honor of our Republic. We have lost a booming voice for truth, fairness, and liberty that can never be replaced.

I give for a nation without Elijah’s leadership. I know that we will hold his legacy close to our hearts and that we will strive to follow his example of moral clarity, but the loss of Elijah Cummings has ripped a hole in the fabric of our country that cannot be fully mended.

My thoughts and prayers are with Elijah’s wife Maya, his three children, and all of his loved ones. Know that we are mourning alongside you.

And to Elijah—you left this world a better place than how you found it. Now it is time to rest.

HONORING RADIOMAN 2ND CLASS FLOYD A. WELLS

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the life and patriotism of Radioman 2nd Class Floyd A. Wells. A native of ND, he answered the call to defend his country during World War II. At the age of 24, he made the ultimate sacrifice on December 7, 1941, along with 2,402 other soldiers and sailors during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

It was not until earlier this year that his remains were positively identified, and on October 1 he was brought home to be buried at the North Dakota Veterans Cemetery. Attending this burial were members of his family who traveled from across the Nation to pay their respects to this beloved member of their family. Even though most of them had never met him, together they mourned the lost blessings of Floyd not only being a part of their family for the past 78 years.

He was remembered as a generous man and a gifted athlete who had a full life ahead of him. Floyd’s life could have included competing in sports at college and having a family and home of his own.

Floyd’s burial service was a poignant reminder of how the sacrifice of heroes defending our country has an impact on those who knew and loved them far and wide, and it brought to mind the words of the hymn "Be Not Afraid"

"We have lost a hero and a legend but not a legacy. Tommy was somebody who always led by example. Even though he is no longer here with us, his example lives on. It lives on in the blossoming Baltimore that he cultivated. It lives on in the generations of future public servants that he inspired. And it lives on in the quest for justice that he championed."

Nevertheless, this loss is a painful one. My heart and prayers are with Tommy’s wife, children, grandchildren, and all of his loved ones as they grieve and heal.

TRIBUTE TO SARA MEDALEN

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize a remarkable woman who has been named North Dakota’s Teacher of the Year. Sara Medalen is a reading and math interventionist at Sunnyside Elementary School in Minot.

While working with students to improve their reading and math skills, she has also implemented other innovative programs helping Sunnyside students gain greater self-esteem. Girls arrive mornings before school for Books and Braids, so she can braid their hair while they read to her. The Girl Power group does charitable projects and hears from local women in various professions around the world. On Saturdays bring students together to collaborate on science, technology, engineering, arts, and mathematics projects, and Strides for Sunnyside is a running group encouraging students to embrace healthy habits and physical fitness. Through these programs and her genuine love for teaching and learning, Ms. Medalen has made a profound difference at Sunnyside School. She is an inspiration to her students, teachers, and fellow educators across North Dakota.

Mr. President, I congratulate Sara Medalen on this well-deserved recognition. We all remember favorite teachers from our own schooldays, and no doubt they shared good qualities that Ms. Medalen brings to her classroom. WalletHub recently ranked North Dakota as one of the best States for teachers, and my State has many top quality educators who are just as remarkable as Sara Medalen. We cannot thank them enough for the positive impact they have every day on North Dakota students.
TRIBUTE TO JOCELYN TAYLOR, MICHAELA OSBORNE, AND ADDISON EVANS

Mr. DAINES. Mr. President, this week I have the honor of recognizing Jocelyn Taylor, Michaela Osborne, and Addison Evans of Cut Bank Middle School in Glacier County for their extraordinary impact on the local community.

Jocelyn, Michaela, and Addison all had grandparents who suffered from cancer. Because of that, the three young women wanted to do more in their community to raise awareness for cancer with hope to help detect the disease early.

Jocelyn’s mom, Cherie, suggested that the girls aim their fundraising efforts towards upgrading the Winkley Women’s Center mobile mammography unit that visits Cuthank often. Kalispell Regional Health Care had been working to raise the funds for a new unit.

Jocelyn, Michaela, and Addison joined Kalispell Regional Healthcare at the Lewis and Clark Festival in July to bake goods for a bake sale. They managed to raise $109.50 and donated all proceeds to the cause.

Kalispell Regional Healthcare Foundation shared the story of the girls’ efforts with their supporters, and the story caught fire. The message about their donation kept spreading, and on October 1, $750,000 was raised because of their dedication and work.

Thanks to the extraordinary efforts of these inspirational young women, they were able to make a tremendous impact on their local community and raise funds for a cause that can save Montana lives.

It is my honor to recognize Jocelyn, Michaela, and Addison for their amazing endeavor. Montanans across our State are proud of the work they achieved, and I look forward to following the future accomplishments of these bright young women.

TRIBUTE TO MICHIGAN’S VETERANS

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, today I wish to pay special tribute to the more than 580,000 Michigan residents who have proudly served in our Nation’s Armed Forces.

For as long as Michigan has been a State and even before, our people have heard the call to serve and bravely stepped up. From the War of 1812 to Vietnam, from the Civil War to today’s fight against terrorism, time and again the people of Michigan have proudly worn the uniform and proven their deep sense of patriotism.

Sergeant Don Burgett of Howell was one of these people. His story really could be a major motion picture.

Imagine landing in Normandy on D-Day as a 19-year-old, parachuting into the Netherlands for Operation Market Garden, fighting behind German lines for 72 days, surviving the Battle of the Bulge, and helping to capture Hitler’s retreat in Germany.

Sergeant Burgett lost two rifles when they were shot out of his hands, was wounded three times, and wrote four highly acclaimed books about his experience, which received rave reviews from both President Dwight D. Eisenhower and historian and author Stephen E. Ambrose.

Of 200 soldiers in his original company, only 11 made it home. Sergeant Burgett was one of these 11. He was born in Michigan. He returned to Howell and kept on serving his fellow veterans and his community as an active member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, and the Military Order of the Cooties. He passed away in 2017 at age 91.

I was so honored to champion the legislation that renamed the Howell Post Office after Sergeant Burgett and to be there during the renaming ceremony. I think to this day it was one of the most touching things I have ever done. I think it is so important to see just how big of an impact one veteran can have on an entire community.

Sergeant Burgett isn’t alone. His story is just one of so many examples all across the country of veterans serving their communities.

Whether it is North Oakland VFW Post 334 donating more than $13,000 to the VFV National Home for Children in Eaton Rapids, which serves the children and families of veterans; or the Grand Haven American Legion Squadron 28’s annual Salmon Boil Dinner, which supports local charities and events, including Boys and Girls State; or Amvets members hiking 22 miles from Howard City to Big Rapids to bring awareness to veterans suicide and to connect veterans with services and support organizations; or Disabled American Veterans in Detroit hosting a job fair to help veterans and their spouses find jobs; or veterans who understand their sacrifice; or the Student Veterans of America University of Michigan chapter’s dedication to volunteering, including at Food Gatherers Community Kitchen in Ann Arbor, when Michigan veterans hang up their military uniform, they often put on another, whether as coach, teacher, police officer, paramedic, firefighter, elected official, or community volunteer. These patriots understand that service isn’t something you do just once. Instead, it is a way of living, and this way of living benefits us all.

Today and every day, we salute Michigan’s veterans and thank them for their service, both in our military and in our communities. They truly are what makes America great. Thank you.

REMEMBERING WILLIAM S. WHITE

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, today I wish to pay tribute to someone who spent his career in service to others, from his Flint neighbors, to communities across the country, to people around the world, someone whom I was proud to call my friend.

William S. White may not have been a native of Michigan—he was born in Cincinnati in 1897—but he was Michigan through and through, and his devotion to service during his adopted State was truly inspiring.

Bill earned his bachelor of arts from Dartmouth University in 1959, his master’s degree in business administration from the Tuck School of Business the next year, and then spent 2 years in the Army. During that time, he also had the good sense to fall in love with and marry a Michigander, Claire Mott of Flint, whose grandfather, Charles Stewart Mott, cofounded General Motors and created the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation.

Claire’s father, C.S. Harding Mott, was impressed by Bill’s hard work and business skills. He brought him on as a consultant to help modernize the foundation in the wake of the Tax Reform Act of 1969. Bill did well and by 1971, he was named vice president and secretary of the foundation and elected to its board of trustees.

Over the years, Bill’s role grew and so did the foundation. What started out as a small organization that mainly supported local causes in southeastern Michigan became a philanthropic powerhouse, a $3 billion foundation that is internationally recognized for its good work around the globe, from the Tuck School of Business to helping veterans and veterans’ families make a positive change in the communities they were raised in, to seeing just how big of an impact one veteran can have on an entire community.

Bill was compassionate. I know just how hard the Flint water crisis hit him and how hard he worked to help his hometown recover. He showed that same heart whether providing families with access to clean drinking water, promoting peace and reconciliation in post-apartheid South Africa, supporting our Nation’s Historically Black Colleges and Universities, protecting our Great Lakes, or helping Gulf Coast communities rebuild after Hurricane Katrina.

That’s not all Bill’s doing, of course; he was fortunate to be supported by his wonderful family and an amazing team. However, Bill possessed a number of qualities of leadership that helped make the Mott Foundation what it is today.

Bill was creative. He was willing to think big and take big risks to solve big problems. Offering $5 million to help launch the Federal Government’s 21st Century Community Learning Centers initiative sounded crazy at the time, but Bill saw a need and a way to meet it. Today, this program provides 1.7 million children every year with activities that strengthen their academic skills to help them succeed in the classroom and beyond.

Bill was passionate. I know just how hard the Flint water crisis hit him and how hard he worked to help his hometown recover. He showed that same heart whether providing families with access to clean drinking water, promoting peace and reconciliation in post-apartheid South Africa, supporting our Nation’s Historically Black Colleges and Universities, protecting our Great Lakes, or helping Gulf Coast communities rebuild after Hurricane Katrina.

Above all, Bill was dedicated. He served as chairman of Mott’s board of trustees until the day he died. And just 2 days before, he gave an emotional speech at the Council of Michigan Foundations’ annual conference inspiring philanthropic leaders to keep doing good works and sharing their successes.

(7) Senate Resolution 213, 114th Congress, agreed to September 23, 2015;

(8) Senate Resolution 560, 114th Congress, agreed to November 17, 2015;

(9) Senate Resolution 314, 115th Congress, agreed to October 30, 2017; and

(10) Senate Resolution 862, 115th Congress, agreed to October 11, 2018;

Whereas a time capsule for a national day of remembrance has been crossing the United States, collecting stories and artifacts of workers and families of programs that relate to the nuclear defense era of the United States, and a remembrance quilt has been constructed to memorialize the contributions of those workers;

Whereas the stories and artifacts reflected in the time capsule and the remembrance quilt reinforce the importance of recognizing the workers of the nuclear weapons program of the United States; and

Whereas those patriotic men and women deserve to be recognized for the contributions, services, and sacrifices they have contributed to the defense of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates October 30, 2019, as a national day of remembrance for the workers of the nuclear weapons program of the United States, including the uranium miners, millers, and haulers of the United States;

(2) encourages the people of the United States to support and participate in appropriate ceremonies, programs, and other activities to commemorate October 30, 2019, as a national day of remembrance for past and present workers of the nuclear weapons program of the United States.

SENATE RESOLUTION 378—EXPRESSION OF THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD, CONSISTENT WITH LONG-STANDING PRACTICE AND PRECEDENT, PRIOR TO PROCEEDING ANY FURTHER WITH THE IMPEACHMENT INVESTIGATION INTO PRESIDENT DONALD J. TRUMP, VOTE TO OPEN A FORMAL IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY AND PROVIDE PRESIDENT TRUMP WITH FUNDAMENTAL CONSTITUTIONAL PROTECTIONS

Mr. GRAHAM (for himself, Mr. McConning, Mr. Grassley, Mr. Thune, Mr. Blunt, Mr. Inhofe, Mr. Crapo, Mr. Cornyn, Mr. Burr, Mr. Barrasso, Mr. Wicker, Mr. Risch, Mr. Boozman, Mr. Paul, Mr. Lee, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Scott, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Cruz, Mr. Capito, Mr. Cassidy, Mr. Lankford, Mr. Cotton, Mr. Daines, Mr. Perdue, Ms. Ernst, Mr. Tillis, Mr. Rounds, Mr. Young, Mr. Kennedy, Mrs. Hyde-Smith, Mrs. Blackburn, Mr. Cramer, Mr. Shelby, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Moran, Mr. Hoeven, Mr. Rubio, Mr. Braun, Mr. Hawley, Mr. Scott of Florida, Mr. Sasse, Mr. Toomey, Ms. McSally, and Mr. Sullivan) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration:

S. Res. 378

Whereas one of the cornerstones of the American Constitution is due process; the right to confront your accuser, call witnesses on your behalf, and challenge the accusations against you;

Whereas the House of Representatives is alleging more than a century’s worth of precedent and tradition in impeachment proceedings and denying President Trump basic fairness and due process accorded every American;

Whereas, in our nation’s history, the House has on three occasions moved to formally investigate whether sufficient grounds exist to impeach a President, and in all three of these cases, the full House voted on a resolution authorizing the House Judiciary Committee to determine whether to impeach the President;

Whereas, in the case of President Trump, a formal impeachment process involving debate and a vote by the full House prior to taking each step in the process has been replaced by a press conference by the Speaker of the House;

Whereas, the proposition that the Speaker acting alone may direct committees to initiate impeachment proceedings without any debate or a vote on the House floor is unprecedented and undemocratic;

Whereas the House is denying President Trump due process within the “inquiry” itself;

Whereas, for the impeachment investigations of President Richard M. Nixon and President William J. Clinton, the House Judiciary Committee adopted rules of procedure to provide due process rights and ensure fairness;

Whereas these rights included—

(1) allowing the President to be represented by counsel;

(2) permitting the President’s counsel to be present at all hearings and depositions;

(3) permitting the President’s counsel to present evidence and object to the admission of evidence;

(4) allowing the President’s counsel to call and cross-examine witnesses; and

(5) giving the President’s counsel access to, and the ability to respond to, the evidence adduced by the Committee;

Whereas, by contrast, the House’s current impeachment “inquiry” ignores the procedural rights and protections of both houses of Congress, including by giving the investigating committee’s minority in previous Presidential impeachments, including granting equal subpoena power to both the chair and ranking member of the committee;

Whereas, the House is denying President Trump the same basic pre-impeachment rights afforded to President Clinton;

Whereas the Whitewater Investigation involved nearly five years of painstaking investigative work by a special counsel and an independent counsel before the House even voted to have the Judiciary Committee open an impeachment inquiry;

Whereas President Clinton vigorously fought that investigation, including by raising multiple privilege claims and he was permitted to fully litigate those claims through the courts;
Whereas President Trump, by contrast, fully cooperated with Special Counsel Robert S. Mueller’s investigation; whereas, during the course of the Mueller investigation, President Trump never raised privilege claims, he turned over more than one million pages of documents, he directed senior aides to testify freely, including making the United States available to testify for more than thirty hours, and he agreed to answer written questions on penalty of perjury; and whereas, rather than giving President Trump the same due process rights that President Clinton had to raise and litigate claims of constitutional privilege, House Intelligence Committee Chairman Adam Schiff has repeatedly threatened to use President Trump’s assertion of his constitutional rights as evidence of obstruction and to impeach President Trump for trying to litigate those claims: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) calls on the House of Representatives, prior to proceeding further with its impeachment investigation into President Trump, to vote to initiate a formal impeachment inquiry;

(2) calls on the House of Representatives to provide President Trump, like every other American, with due process, to include the ability to confront his accusers, call witnesses he believes and have a basic understanding of the accusations against him that would form any basis for impeachment; and

(3) calls on the House of Representatives to provide members of the minority with the ability to participate fully in all proceedings and have equal authority to issue subpoenas and other compulsory process.

SENATE RESOLUTION 379—SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF NATIONAL RETIREMENT SECURITY WEEK, INCLUDING Raising Public Awareness of the Various Tax-Preferred Retirement Vehicles, Increasing Financial Literacy, and Engaging the People of the United States on the Keys to Success in Achieving and Maintaining Retirement Security Throughout Their Lifetimes

Mr. YOUNG, Mr. JOHNN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. ALEXANDER, Ms. HASSAN, Mr. MURRAY, Mr. JONES, Ms. COLLINS, and Mrs. MURRAY submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 379

 Whereas the theme for National Alcohol and Drug Addiction Recovery Month in 2019 is “Join the Voices for Recovery: Together We Are Stronger”: whereas an estimated 68,000 people in the United States suffered a fatal overdose in 2018, with an average number of 186 fatal overdoses per day;

 whereas there are roughly 23,000,000 people in the United States in recovery from alcohol and drug addiction;

 whereas the estimated total cost to the economy of prescription opioid misuse is $78,500,000,000 annually, and includes the cost of healthcare, lost productivity, and involvement of the criminal justice system;

 whereas people with substance use disorder may face stigma from health professionals and loved ones;

 whereas it has been demonstrated that stigma can be a barrier for people with substance use disorder to access treatment and engage in recovery; and whereas peer-supported communities offer people with substance use disorder better success in recovery by addressing the personal and social effects of addiction and easing reintegraction: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the importance of education for the substance use disorder; and

(2) supports efforts to explore how integrated care, community, and sense of purpose can lead to effective and sustainable treatment; and

(3) shows appreciation and gratitude for family members, friends, and other individuals who support individuals in recovery.

SENATE RESOLUTION 380—SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF NATIONAL RETIREMENT SECURITY WEEK, INCLUDING Raising Public Awareness of the Various Tax-Preferred Retirement Vehicles, Increasing Financial Literacy, and Engaging the People of the United States on the Keys to Success in Achieving and Maintaining Retirement Security Throughout Their Lifetimes

Mr. ENZI (for himself, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. ALEXANDER, Ms. HASSAN, Mr. YOUNG, Mr. JONES, Ms. COLLINS, and Mrs. MURRAY) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 380

 Whereas people in the United States are living longer and the cost of retirement is increasing significantly;

 Whereas Social Security remains the bedrock of retirement income for the great majority of the people of the United States but was never intended by Congress to be the sole source of retirement income for families;

 Whereas recent data from the Employee Benefit Research Institute indicates that, in the United States—

 (1) 40.6 percent of households in which the head of household is between the ages of 35 and 64 are likely to run out of money in retirement; and

 (2) the amount that workers have saved for retirement is much less than the amount those workers need to adequately fund their retirement years;

 Whereas the financial literacy of workers in the United States is important for those workers understand the need to save for retirement;

 Whereas saving for retirement is a key component of overall financial health and security during retirement years and the importance of financial literacy in planning for retirement must be advocated;

 Whereas math education in school—

 (1) be aware of the various options in saving for retirement; or

 (2) have focused on the importance of, and need for, saving for retirement and successfully achieving retirement security;

 Whereas, although many employers have access through their employers to defined benefit and defined contribution plans to assist the employees in preparing for retirement, many of those employees may not be taking advantage of those plans at all or to the fullest extent allowed by Federal law;

 Whereas saving for retirement is necessary even during economic downturns or market declines, which makes continued contributions all the more important;

 Whereas all workers, including public and private sector employees, employers of tax-exempt organizations, and self-employed individuals, can benefit from developing personal budgets and financial plans that include retirement savings strategies that take advantage of tax-preferred retirement savings vehicles; and

 Whereas effectively and sustainably withdrawing retirement resources throughout the retirement years of an individual is as important and crucial as saving and accumulating funds for retirement; and

 Whereas the week of October 20 through October 26, 2019, has been designated as “National Retirement Security Week”:

 Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

 (1) supports the goals and ideals of National Retirement Security Week, including raising public awareness of the importance of saving adequately for retirement;

 (2) acknowledges the need to raise public awareness of a variety of tax-preferred retirement vehicles that are used by many people in the United States but could be used by more; and

 (3) calls on States, localities, universities, nonprofit organizations, businesses, other entities, and the people of the United States to observe National Retirement Security Week with appropriate programs and activities, with the goal of increasing the retirement savings and personal financial literacy of all people in the United States, thereby enhancing the retirement security of the people of the United States.
(3) calls on the people of the United States to reflect on the service of those members of the Armed Forces, wherever the members serve, past, present, and future; and

(4) encourages the people of the United States to observe the Day of the Deployed with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

SENATE RESOLUTION 382—RECOGNIZING THE MONTH OF OCTOBER 2019 AS “NATIONAL PRINCIPALS MONTH”

Ms. SMITH (for herself, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. MANCHIN, Mr. BRAUN, Mr. CARDIN, Mr. KOZLOWSKY, Mr. KING, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. CARPER, Mr. BOOKER, and Ms. HIRONO) submitted the following resolution, which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 382

Whereas the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the National Association of Elementary School Principals, and the American Federation of School Administrators have declared the month of October 2019 to be National Principals Month; and

Whereas principals are educational visionaries, instructional and assessment leaders, disciplinarians, community builders, budget analysts, policymakers, and managers, and judicial administrators of legal and contractual obligations; and

Whereas principals work collaboratively with teachers and parents to develop and implement clear missions, high curriculum standards, and performance goals; and

Whereas principals create school environments that facilitate great teaching and learning and continuous school improvement; and

Whereas the vision, actions, and dedication of principals provide the mobilizing force behind any school improvement effort; and

Whereas the celebration of National Principals Month would honor elementary school, middle school, and high school principals and recognize the importance of principals in ensuring that every child has access to a high-quality education: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the month of October 2019 as “National Principals Month”; (2) honors the contributions of principals in elementary, middle, and high schools in the United States; and (3) supports the goals and ideals of National Principals Month.

SENATE RESOLUTION 383—SUPPORTING LIGHTS ON AFTERSCHOOL, A NATIONAL CELEBRATION OF AFTERSCHOOL PROGRAMS HELD ON OCTOBER 24, 2019

Ms. COLLINS (for herself, Ms. SMITH, Mr. BRAUN, Mr. MANCHIN, Mr. ROBERTS, Mrs. SHAHEEN, Mrs. HYDE-SMITH, Mr. KANE, Ms. WARREN, and Mr. PETERS) submitted the following resolution, which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 383

Whereas more than 30,000,000 children in the United States have parents who work outside the home; and

Whereas high-quality programs that expand learning opportunities for children, such as afterschool, before-school, summer, and expanded learning opportunities, provide safe, challenging, engaging, and fun learning experiences, including experiences that encourage the study of science, technology, engineering, and math, that help children and youth develop social, emotional, physical, cultural, and academic skills; and

Whereas high-quality afterschool programs and high-quality expanded learning opportunities provide students with hands-on, engaging lessons that are aligned with the school day; and

Whereas high-quality afterschool programs complement regular and expanded school days and support working families by ensuring that the children of those families are safe and productive during the hours parents are working; and

Whereas high-quality afterschool programs engage families, schools, and diverse community partners in advancing the well-being of children and youth in the United States; and

Whereas high-quality afterschool programs that partner with high-quality community-based organizations build stronger communities by integrating schools with the larger community; and

Whereas Lights On Afterschool, a national celebration of afterschool programs held on October 24, 2019, highlights the critical importance of those high-quality programs and the families and communities of those children: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate supports Lights On Afterschool, a national celebration of afterschool programs held on October 24, 2019.

SENATE RESOLUTION 384—TO AUTHORIZE TESTIMONY IN UNITED STATES V. MARGARET MURPHY

Mr. MCCONNELL (for himself and Mr. SCHUMER) submitted the following resolution, which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 384

Whereas, in the case of United States v. Margaret Murphy, Case No. 2018CM018331, pending in the Superior Court for the District of Columbia, the Senate has subpoenaed testimony Jason Covey, an employee of the Committee on the Judiciary; and

Whereas, by the privileges of the Senate of the United States and Rule XI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, no evidence under the control or in the possession of the Senate can, by administrative or judicial process, be taken from such control or possession but by permission of the Senate; and

Whereas, when it appears that evidence under the control or in the possession of the Senate is needed for the promotion of justice, the Senate will take such action as will promote the ends of justice consistent with the privileges of the Senate: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That Jason Covey, an employee of the Committee on the Judiciary, is authorized to testify in the case of United States v. Margaret Murphy concerning matters for which a privilege should be asserted.

Mr. MCCONNELL, Mr. President, on behalf of myself and the distinguished Democratic leader, Mr. SCHUMER, I send to the desk a following resolution authorizing the production of testimony and ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. President, this resolution concerns a subpoena for testimony in a criminal action pending in Superior Court in the District of Columbia. In this action, a defendant is charged with demonstrating during a Subcommittee hearing of the Judiciary Committee and continuing to demon
Whereas Soviet forces brutally repressed demonstrations against repressive communist governments in Hungary in 1956, Czechoslovakia in 1968, and Poland in 1980;

Whereas the United States Congress played a crucial role in the founding of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, independent and uncensored news outlets that broadcast behind the Iron Curtain and have been credited by former Russian President Boris Yeltsin and former Czech President Vaclav Havel with playing a significant role in the ending the Cold War;

Whereas, in West Berlin in 1967, President Ronald Reagan, standing at the Brandenburg Gate, symbolically referred to both the physical wall and the divided state of the world and implored Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev to “tear down this Wall!”;

Whereas President Reagan stated, “As long as this gate is closed, as long as this scar of a wall is permitted to stand, it is not the German question alone that remains open, but the question of freedom for all mankind.”;

Whereas, on August 23, 1989, several million people across the Baltic States of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, which were illegally annexed in 1940 by the Soviet Union, demonstrated for the right of their peoples to self-determination, daring handers to form a 500-kilometer long human chain to peacefully demand their independence;

Whereas, at midnight on November 9, 1989, the Berlin Wall symbolically fell, and East Berliners were allowed to cross into the West;

Whereas, that night, East Berliners took pickaxes to this hated symbol of oppression, and during the following three days more than 2,500,000 people visited West Berlin from the East;

Whereas, on November 13, 1989, the United States Senate welcomed “the opening of the Berlin Wall as symbolic of the beginning of the process of reform taking place in the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) and throughout Eastern Europe”;

Whereas, after the fall of the Berlin Wall, a wave of democratic governance swept the world;

Whereas, by the summer of 1990, democratically elected governments had been formed in all former Warsaw Pact countries;

Whereas the reunification of Germany was officially declared on October 3, 1990;

Whereas German reunification faced significant economic, structural, cultural, and political challenges both within Germany and in Europe and took dedicated political leaders and citizens, with the support of allied nations, over a decade to achieve;

Whereas, on December 25, 1991, the Soviet flag was removed from over the Kremlin for the final time, replaced by the Russian flag;

Whereas Mr. Gorbachev later said, “The Soviet model was defeated not only on the economic or military levels: it was defeated on a cultural level. Our society, our people, the most educated, the most intelligent, rejected that model on the cultural level because it trapped the man, oppresses him spiritually and politically.”;

Whereas, since its reunification, Germany has become the world’s fourth largest economy, has served as a leading voice in the European Union (EU), the Group of 7, and the United Nations, and has been consistently rated by Freedom House as one of the world’s freest states;

Whereas the United States and Germany share a close and multidimensional relationship, including security cooperation and an economic partnership;

Whereas the United States and Germany share values of freedom, democracy, and human rights and work in tandem to support and uphold these three pillars globally;

Whereas the 30th anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall coincides with the 70th anniversary of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and the 50th anniversary of the European Union “Big Bang,” when 10 mostly post-communist countries joined the EU’s community of democracies;

Whereas many former Soviet and communist countries are prospering as a result of their democratic and economic reforms, reflected in their memberships in the EU and NATO; and

Whereas the fall of the Berlin Wall signified the end of the division of Europe and, ultimately, the triumph of democracy over communism: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the 30th anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall as the start of German reunification and democratic change in Eastern Europe and much of the rest of the world;

(2) values the significant efforts made by German and European citizens to reunify and reinvigorate a united Germany;

(3) recognizes Germany for its steadfast alliance and friendship with the United States, its leadership within the European Union, its commitment to democracy, rule of law, and market-based economies, and its efforts to support these values around the world;

(4) congratulates the former communist countries of Europe for their substantial progress over the past 30 years towards strengthening their democracies, protecting human rights, combatting the corruption endemic to communist regimes, transitioning to market-based economies, and resolving longstanding disputes; and

(5) reaffirms the United States commitment to supporting democratic reform, and urges these countries to continue promoting these values and policies. Democratic and market economies can thrive and their people can prosper.

Mr. GRAVES of Missouri, Madam Speaker, today I wish to recognize the American Bus Association (ABA) and its Bus Industry Safety Council or “BISC.” This year BISC will be celebrating its 20th anniversary as the only private motorcoach safety organization in North America. In 2000, ABA had the foresight and dedication to establish BISC for the sole purpose of enhancing the safety of commercial passenger-carrying motor vehicle operations. Initially, the group was made up of 30 passionate and dedicated bus industry safety directors but has since grown into a vital network of highway safety advocates, including members of the motorcoach industry, federal and local safety oversight and enforcement officials, research entities, and international organizations. I would like to congratulate ABA and the Bus Industry Safety Council on this auspicious occasion and recognize BISC’s 20 years of commitment to improving bus and motorcoach safety.

In response to the horrific events of a bus crash that claimed 23 lives just outside New Orleans on May 10, 1999, Mother’s Day, and a year that saw a high-water mark of 32 motorcoach passenger fatalities, ABA supported the formation of BISC. The founding goal of the Council was, and remains today, to continually raise the level of safety in the intercity bus and motorcoach industry through collaborative efforts with industry, government officials, and other safety professionals in a workshop and educational environment. To its credit, BISC has and continues to successfully meet this goal.

Through BISC’s education and outreach efforts, onboard motorcoach passenger fatalities have continued to decrease since its establishment, annually providing nearly 500 million passengers with safe transportation. The BISC has played a critical role in assisting the industry to adopt safety technology and practices. Growing from that initial core of 30 founding members, BISC now counts over 400 individuals among its membership, representing every aspect of the motorcoach industry. BISC members provide expertise in areas such as security, mechanical, safety, and operational and maintenance responsibilities, with leadership from across the entire North American motorcoach industry. The group meets regularly to discuss issues and innovations in areas of safety, regulatory compliance, mechanics, technology, and passenger security, to address the transportation safety needs not only of today but for the future of the national transportation system. I would like to join with ABA and the entire motorcoach industry in saluting this safety organization. We recognize the many contributions BISC has made to highway safety and the success in bringing the traveling public safely to their destinations. Congratulations to the Bus Industry Safety Council on 20 years of dedication and commitment to bus and motorcoach safety. Keep up the good work, as we look forward to the next 20 years.

RECOGNIZING THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL

HON. G.K. BUTTERFIELD
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 24, 2019

Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the first college football game ever played on November 6, 1869, and to recognize the importance of college football in our country today. Since the initial game 150 years ago, more than 5.33 million Americans have played college football and millions more have become devoted fans of the game. Over the past 150 years, college football has become woven into the fabric of our society and the lives of countless Americans.

Many Americans have had the joy and privilege to participate in college football, including many of our nation’s greatest leaders—representing all different backgrounds—who often cite their experiences as college football players as critical factors in their development and their long-term success. College football players have become U.S. Presidents, Rhodes Scholars, actors, activists, chief executives of major businesses, successful entrepreneurs, academics and elected officials. The game promotes camaraderie among players which has translated into lifelong friendships for so many and has grown throughout the years with almost 80,000 student-athletes taking to the field every fall.

In North Carolina’s First Congressional District, I represent a number of schools across several divisions within the NCAA Collegiate Athletics Association (NCAA): the Duke University Blue Devils, the East Carolina University (ECU) Pirates, the North Carolina Central University (NCCU) Eagles, the Chowan University Hawks, and the Barton College Bulldogs who will field a team in 2020. College football allows us, as participants and spectators, to put our differences aside and celebrate a game, that in many ways, embodies the spirit of what makes us great as a country—our diversity. It brings together a diverse pool of participants with different backgrounds, experiences, and creeds. On November 6, 2019, we celebrate college football for the stories and memories that it has helped create over these last 150 years.

Madam Speaker, college football is special to so many, and I am honored to recognize such a significant milestone and achievement in the history of this game.

COMMEMORATING THE LIFE OF PRIVATE WILLIAM BLOUNT

HON. ADRIANO ESPAILLAT
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, October 24, 2019

Mr. ESPAILLAT. Madam Speaker, I rise to commemorate the life of Private William Blount, a resident of New York’s 13th Congressional district who recently passed away. Private Blount grew up in the neighborhoods of Manhattan and proudly answered the call of his country, when he was drafted into the United States Army on February 14, 1968, and was assigned to the HHD 523rd Signal Battalion. Private Blount was deployed to fight in Vietnam for 11 months with his combat tour ending on April 10, 1969.

For his 11-month deployment and combat in Vietnam, Private Blount was awarded the National Defensive Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Parachutist Badge, and for his marksmanship, a Sharpshooter Badge for the M-14 Rifle. While Private Blount was overseas, he was given orders to join another unit. However, record of this order and Private Blount’s transfer was lost or unaccounted for in the midst of the Vietnam War. Like many soldiers, Private Blount was designated as “AWOL” for nearly 75 days by the U.S. Army. This inaccurate representation of Private Blount’s service, like many other Vietnam War veterans, is an error both President Ford and President Carter recognized, and both submitted Amnesty of Par- dons for Vietnam veterans under AWOL or Deserter Status.

Private Blount’s record was never cleared and was discharged Under Conditions Other Than Honorable. While this design permitted Private Blount to receive health care services through the VA, he and his family had been prevented from receiving many veterans’ benefits while he was alive. It is with great sadness that Private Blount passed away late last month on September 29, 2019, and due to his designation was not permitted to receive a military burial. Private Blount’s circumstance is not abnormal from other Vietnam veterans whose discharge from active service on ambiguous grounds and have been denied the benefits and dignity they deserve.

Private Blount’s death is a reminder of the sacrifices required to defend our country. But to recognize Private Blount only from his passing is a diminution of his life and career following his active service. Private Blount was an active member of the United States Army Garrison Ft Hamilton’s Equal Opportunity Program and has countless volunteer hours logged. He received numerous Garrison Commander’s Certificate of Appreciation for outstanding service and dedication to the Equal Opportunity Program.

Private Blount’s unwavering patriotism, invaluable knowledge of military tactics as a combatant and lifelong student, and ardent representation of combat as a tireless sacrifice • This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

for his brothers in arms, inspired four of his nephews to enlist in active service as well as his niece, Ret. Sergeant First Class Ramona Gamble who is a proud 26-year veteran of the U.S. Army. His story highlights our obligation to honor the veterans who secure the freedoms we all enjoy. Private Blount will not be forgotten. I thank him for his bravery and dedication to his country. May he rest in peace.
