The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer:

God of love and mercy, thank You for giving us another day.

Look toward us, O God, and have pity on us, for we are much afflicted. Preserve our lives, and rescue us. Let us not be put to shame, for we take refuge in You.

These are such troubling times, with Americans on all sides striving for a great reckoning and readjustment of our norms and habits of society. It is frightening for many; painful for all.

For our leaders, local and national, enlighten them with the wisdom and courage to address injustice where it resides.

Comfort Your people and help us all to grow in faith, hope, and love.

For our neighbors be for Your greater glory.

With best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

CHERYL L. JOHNSON.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The Acting President pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

PAYCHECK PROTECTION PROGRAM

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, on an entirely different matter, today marks the 31st anniversary of the Tiananmen Square massacre in Beijing.

Because of China’s censorship and disinformation, we still do not know how many brave Chinese people were killed by their own government on June 4, 1989. Conservative estimates say hundreds. Others say thousands—a burst of violence against peaceful democracy protesters, weeks of arrests, roundups, and executions, and then total silence.

Never since have the Chinese people been able to freely and openly remember the atrocity. Never outside the oasis of Hong Kong has a single formal gathering on Chinese soil been permitted to commemorate the victims. Now even that oasis of freedom is at risk. We learned this week that, under new pressure from Beijing, Hong Kong is refusing to permit the annual candlelight vigil for the first time ever. This year, the Chinese Communist Party wants no candles lit even in Hong Kong—just more darkness.

It was 31 years ago that brave Chinese flooded that public square and others across their nation in the fervent hope that economic liberalization would also lead to a less authoritarian, more open society. What they got were bodies littering the ground.

A shocked world sanctioned the PRC, but as time passed, the world relaxed somewhat and returned to a strategy of welcoming China into our global public square, bringing the PRC into international institutions in the hope that an included China would actually play by the rules. Time and again, those hopes have been dashed. The last few months have been their own tidy case study in what kind of global actor the so-called People’s Republic has chosen to be.

Their response to the coronavirus pandemic was a start. The world expected China to be a leader in the fight against the world’s greatest threat. But China’s real challenge was its people, its economy, and its internal stability. It needed to show the world it could handle the responsibility.

One month later, Chinese officials gushed over the recent legal defeats of Western companies and nations, including those of the United States. And how could they have given up so quickly? Communist China is still very much alive, and the CCP is still very much in control.

Imagine being so consumed by paranoia and hatred for the West that you overlook the real threat to your own people and the destruction your regime is causing. This is the situation in which China finds itself.

The Chinese government has tried to use the public health crisis as a smokescreen for other aggression. Over there, they have tried to use that catastrophe as a smokescreen for other aggression.

While they thought the rest of the world was distracted, China has cracked down on Hong Kong; conducted provocative military exercises near Taiwan; expanded its bullying into the South China Sea; pressured the Philippines; and literally initiated physical fighting with India in the Himalayas.

But now is not the time for this bloody anniversary. As the recent examples of Chinese behavior show, China is trying to exploit the death of George Floyd to hurt America and divide us among ourselves. Bad actors linked to the CCP elites better high-tech tools with which to undermine the international system.

China and the United States have seen each other’s weak spots and are exploiting them. China is using its economic strength to muscle its way into the world’s supply chain and exploit the United States. China is also using its economic strength to muscle its way into the world’s supply chain and exploit the United States.

One outside report found that the “United States is losing between $400 billion and $600 billion per year in intellectual property theft as a matter of provable losses, and that figure does not account for second-order losses such as jobs and infrastructure.”

President Clinton also said: “China has been trying to crack down on the internet. . . . Good luck!” Back in the year 2000, the transcript says, that was greeted with laughter. Well, no one is laughing now.

China’s leaders have pounced on every inch of economic space the world has afforded them—and then some. They have cheated on trade and have stolen forei...
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session on police reform legislation upon nomination and consideration of the following nomination, which the clerk will report.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of Michael Pack, of Maryland, to be Chief Executive Officer of the Broadcasting Board of Governors for the term of three years.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECOGNITION OF THE DEMOCRATIC LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Democratic leader is recognized.

MOMENT OF SILENCE

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, a short time ago, in conjunction with the memorial service being held today in Minnesota for George Floyd, I joined the rest of the Democratic caucus in Emancipation Hall to recognize a moment of silence in honor of his memory as well as the memory of Breonna Taylor, Ahmaud Aubery, and the unimaginable number of Black Americans who have had their lives ended in police custody.

Standing before the statue of Frederick Douglass, a Black American who fought his whole life for a measure of racial equality, the moment of silence lasted 8 minutes and 46 seconds, the length of time that the White police officer in Minneapolis pressed his knee on George Floyd’s neck. Standing there in silence, you feel the horrifying length of George Floyd’s final 9 minutes. You cannot help but imagine his horror and fear, knowing that his trauma and the trauma of his family and his friends has been felt by so many Black families and Black communities across the country and across the centuries.

Of course, a moment of silence, a moment of solidarity, is no substitute for real action. That is why Senate Democrats are working with our House colleagues on police reform legislation.

That is why we are demanding that the Republican majority leader commit to addressing this issue on the floor of the Senate.

Leader MCCONNELL, why don’t you admit that we have to do something here and now? Well, maybe we will take a look at it, as you did on gun control after the violent shootings and then did nothing? Make a commitment here and now to the American people that we will put on the floor—that you will put on the floor police reform and racial justice legislation this month.

Will our Republican colleagues ever join us in this effort? I know these issues aren’t easy, and we can’t begin to make progress if the Republican leader and the Republican majority will not even let us try or address these issues in a legislative manner.

The Republican leader has said:

The coin of the realm in the Senate is floor time. What invite time to?

Well, it has been 5 weeks since Leader MCCONNELL called the Senate back into session during the height of a pandemic. The Republican majority has yet to put a single bill on the floor of the Senate related to COVID-19.

We passed a much needed extension of PPP reform last night, a very popular and bipartisan program, only after Democrats forced action here on the floor. I don’t believe our Republican majority would have discussed, let alone voted, on a PPP reform bill.

We announced we would UC the bill, and we did, and it was blocked. Then, of course, faced with the public pressure of moving, Leader MCCONNELL came on the floor late last evening and moved the bill.

Make no mistake about it, without the pressure that we Democrats placed on the Republican majority to make these changes, it would certainly have been further delayed and might never have happened.

Now, Leader MCCONNELL has said that another emergency relief bill was likely before July 4, but then on Tuesday, when listing his priorities for the June session, Leader MCCONNELL did not mention COVID legislation.

Republican Senators are starting to say that another relief bill might—might—come in late July—shocking. This past week—just today it was announced—nearly 2 million more Americans filed for unemployment, bringing the total since the start of the pandemic to over 42 million.

The每月 jobs report tomorrow is expected to report over 20 percent unemployment, and we should wait? As people are losing their jobs, as parents are not sure they can feed their kids or stay in their homes, as small businesses, where people put their blood, sweat, and tears over the years and even decades to build them are collapsing—and we should wait? Why? Because the Republican majority is committed to putting a Black man on the Supreme Court and is focused on destroying the gains that Black people have fought fighting for strengthening voting rights and antidiscrimination legislation is very, very tiny. Yet they move forward on him.

Today, toward the end of one of the more tumultuous and painful weeks in recent memory, marked by emotional discussions about racial justice and police violence, Senate Republicans are holding sessions in the Judiciary and Homeland Security Committees related to President Trump’s favorite conspiracy theories about the 2016 election.

I am not making this up. That is what they are doing. American people—not talking about COVID, not talking about racial justice but focusing on some Russian-originated theory that has been discredited by our intelligence agencies. That is what the Republican Senate is doing. No wonder they are in trouble.

The American people are looking for some kind of real help, some kind of real action. That is why Senate Democrats have fought their whole life for a measure of racial equality, might have put the conspiracy caucus on pause, but no—no such luck.

The American people should call their Republican Senators. They should demand action. The Republican Senate is failing to meet this important moment, and the Republican President isn’t doing any better.

In a week marred by unacceptable violence and rioting in some places, the President advocated more violence, more chaos, more disorder, including appalling attacks on the constitutional rights of protesters on his front porch.

I am heartbroken by stories of peaceful protesters being injured when the protests turn ugly. I am heartbroken by our police officers who are doing their job the right way, striving to keep the peace, who have been gravely injured.

The coin of the realm in the Senate is floor time. Leader MCCONNELL, every Senate Republican, what are you going to devote time to?

Today, toward the end of one of the more tumultuous and painful weeks in recent memory, marked by emotional discussions about racial justice and police violence, Senate Republicans are holding sessions in the Judiciary and Homeland Security Committees related to President Trump’s favorite conspiracy theories about the 2016 election.
Three of New York’s finest were injured yesterday while assigned to prevent looting. A New York State trooper in Buffalo was run over the other night. I wish New York State Trooper Ron Ensinger and the Buffalo police officers injured in these disturbances would receive a speedy and full recovery and thank them for their service and commitment to public safety.

Let me state, once again, unequivocally, that the cause of justice and change sought by protesters in and beyond our borders is undermined by lawlessness and violence. President Trump, however, seems to be incapable of acknowledging the fact that the overwhelming number of peace protesters are peaceful and simply advocating change. He seems incapable of turning the temperature down to prevent more violence. Quite the opposite. The President wants Americans to falsely believe that all the people who are protesting are in the cause—equally adorned by racial justice—are violent. Nothing could be further from the truth. The overwhelming majority are doing what our Founding Fathers did: protesting to make this Nation a better nation. They deserve our respect.

In a week marred by unacceptable violence and rioting in some places, the President advocates chaos and disorder, including appalling attacks on constables on his front porch. My goodness, my goodness.

Earlier this week, Americans watched Federal officers, under the direction of the President and the Attorney General, use gas and rubber bullets to disperse peaceful protesters in the park. The Lincoln Memorial was blocked off by rows of camouflaged officers.

There are reports right now that troops from Fort Drum and Fort Bragg are camped outside Washington, DC. I would ask the leaders of our military, if these reports are true, what are they doing there, and what are their orders?

The leader, a few minutes ago, mentioned Lafayette Square. Of course, no one believes that we are China or like China—of course not. We are a democracy, and we are proud of it. Most of us love and praise the right for peaceful protests. But I would remind the Republican leader, when any President, particularly an overreaching one like this, steps over the line, if good people don’t raise their voices, that is the way to erode democracy, which China loves to do.

Where is Leader McConnell’s voice? Instead of spinning these crazy theories, why doesn’t he just speak out against what the President did Monday night? Why did he block our resolution, our simple resolution, which called for this deliberate effort. We are witnessing the consequences of three years without mature leadership. We can unite without him, drawing on the strengths inherent in our civil society. This will not be easy, as the past few days have shown, but we owe it to our fellow citizens; to past generations that bled to defend our promise; and to our children.

That was President Trump’s former Secretary of Defense, President Trump’s former Secretary of Defense, Mattis. Like all former members of the military, I know that Secretary Mattis strives to avoid political statements. He has assiduously avoided them so far. But it was a searing indictment of President Trump’s failures that impounded Secretary Mattis to speak out so strongly about the President’s divisiveness, immaturity, and abuse of power.

Make no mistake about it, General Mattis’s comments were a shot across the bow of the President. Don’t let the President push you into doing things you know that are wrong, that should not be done, and that could very well violate the Constitution.

I yield the floor.

THE PREVIOUS OFFICER (Mr. Scott of Florida). The Senator from South Dakota.

CORONAVIRUS

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, responding to the coronavirus continues to be the top priority for both Republicans and Democrats in Congress. I think, frankly, that yesterday the Senate moved a bill across the floor of the Senate that will be on its way now to the President’s desk for his signature, previously passed by the House, that makes some modifications to the PPP program—things that were sought by both sides, improvements, I think, that enable that program to be used with greater flexibility, extending the amount of time in which those dollars that have been borrowed can be used, and allowing some greater flexibility in how they are used.

So I think that is evidence, again, that this body and both Democrats and Republicans working together can get things done for the American people that address the very direct needs and challenges they face right now as a result of the coronavirus.

I credit the authors of that—Senators Collins and Rubio on our side, along with their Democratic counterparts—for working together to structure a program that has not only helped many businesses stay in business—millions of businesses stay in business—but has kept tens of millions of people in this country employed at a time when we desperately need to keep those jobs.

So, again, I think it is evidence of this body’s and our Senate majority’s focus on the coronavirus and things we can do to help the American people who have been most harmed economically by that, as well as addressing the very real health emergency that we need to continue to focus on in terms of finding those therapeutics and vaccines that will enable the American people to have confidence, once again, that they can go out.

THE ECONOMY

Mr. President, what I want to speak to today is the evidence that we are seeing that the economy around the country is starting to reopen. There is still a lot of work, obviously, that has to be done to defeat the virus and help our economy and the American people recover.

As I mentioned, we have spent the past few weeks focused on monitoring the implementation of the $2.4 trillion in aid that Congress has provided. Our committees are hard at work conducting coronavirus oversight and looking ahead to what else Congress may need to do to combat the virus and to get our economy going again.

We are looking at what more funding Congress may need to provide and what Congress can do that doesn’t involve a lot of new spending. As I said, Congress has already provided $2.5 trillion to fight the coronavirus, and we will absolutely provide more if needed, but we need to remember that every dollar we have provided is borrowed money that our children and grandchildren will have to repay.

Our debt was already very large compared to the size of our economy, even before—before this year’s coronavirus-related borrowing, and that is a very good reason that we can’t just keep borrowing and borrowing ever greater sums without suffering real economic consequences.
So, while we may need to borrow money to meet our needs before this crisis is over, it is crucial that we keep that borrowing as low as possible and only spend that which is absolutely necessary.

That is why the Senate is so focused on conducting oversight of the money we have already provided. Seeing how and where those funds are used will give us a better sense of where we spent sufficiently and where more money may be needed.

We need to make sure what we are doing is making sense, and that what we are doing is working, which means we need to keep an eye on how much money we are spending. We need to make sure that we are not spending more money than we need to, and that we are not spending money on things that are not necessary.

I have three tax bills that I have introduced this Congress that would help Americans during and after the pandemic. One of these bills is my Mobile Workforce State Income Tax Simplification Act, which I introduced last year along with Senator SHERROD BROWN.

In our economy, substantial numbers of workers travel to different States for temporary work assignments on a regular basis, and they end up subject to a bewildering variety of State laws governing State income tax.

Our legislation would simplify things for both workers and employers by creating an across-the-board tax standard for mobile employees who spend a short period of time working across State lines. It would ensure that States receive fair tax payments while making life a lot easier for workers who travel to different States for work.

While this legislation is good tax policy, generally—we have needed clear rules of the road for out-of-State workers for a while—it has particular relevance in the age of coronavirus.

The Governor of New York has made it clear that he is looking to cash in on the Pandemic to provide food and grocery delivery. But these gig economy arrangements stretch the boundaries of current tax law.

During the pandemic, companies who have wanted to provide additional benefits to workers—from personal protective equipment to financial assistance—have hesitated to do so for fear that their actions would accidentally reclassify their workers from independent contractors to employees. That would mean the end of this kind of work for a lot of people who rely on it for the income and flexibility it provides.

My NEW GIG Act updates our tax law to provide clear guidance on the classification of this new generation of workers. It will ensure Lyft drivers, Postmates, Taskers, and others are treated as independent contractors for purposes of tax law if they meet a set of objective criteria.

My bill will allow companies to provide support to workers to help them stay safe during the pandemic without jeopardizing these individuals’ status as independent contractors. And it will ensure that these individuals’ provide will remain available to the Americans who are increasingly reliant on them.

In addition to the NEW GIG Act, I also introduced the Digital Goods and Services Tax Fairness Act last month. This legislation, which I introduced with Senator WYDEN, is designed to prevent consumers from being faced with multiple taxes for downloading digital products.

Over the past few months, I imagine a lot of Americans have purchased new books to read on their Kindle or a new television series to watch. But what many Americans don’t know is that, right now, a digital purchase of a book or television series could hypothetically be taxed in up to three States, depending on the circumstances of the purchase.

With States likely looking to find new revenue in the wake of declining receipts during the pandemic, there is a real danger that Americans could see multiple States’ worth of taxes on their digital purchases. The Digital Goods and Services Tax Fairness Act would provide “rules of the road” for taxing digital goods and services and ensure that digital purchases could hypothetically be taxed in only one State—the State in which the consumer resides.

It would also prohibit States and local governments from taxing digital goods at higher rates than tangible goods. In other words, under our bill, that season of “The Office” you want to buy digitally couldn’t be taxed at a higher rate than if you were purchasing the season on DVD.

These tax bills are just some of the ideas Republicans are putting forward that would help Americans without spending trillions of additional taxpayer dollars. I am working on multiple other measures to help Americans in the wake of the coronavirus. For example, the CARES Act, our largest coronavirus response bill to date, included a temporary version of legislation I introduced with Senator WARNER that would provide a $1,250 tax-free to help pay down their employees’ student loans.

This is a win for employees, who can receive help with burdensome loan payments during a time when multiple Americans’ finances are stretched thin. And it is a win for employers, who have a new benefit to offer to help attract talented employees as they seek to build their businesses back up after the past few months of COVID-related challenges.

I am hoping that we can make this legislation permanent before the end of the year. As I said earlier, if we need to provide additional coronavirus funding, we will. But we need to make sure we are only providing funding that is genuinely necessary because today’s young workers, and our children and grandchildren, will be paying the price for the debt we are amassing.

I am committed to supporting legislation that will help Americans get through this crisis while minimizing the burden on future generations. My tax bills are just one example of this kind of legislation. I look forward to working with my colleagues to advance them in the U.S. Senate.

when police departments have serious abuses. The Civil Rights Division is responsible for enforcing Federal prohibitions on patterns or practices of policing that violate the Constitution or other Federal laws. It conducts investigations of allegations of systemic police misconduct and reaches comprehensive agreements on reforms that are needed to restore effective policing and trust with communities. If it cannot reach an agreement, the Division will bring a Federal lawsuit to compel the needed reforms.

Yes, we have something to do here in Washington. Throughout U.S. history, the Civil Rights Division has played a major role in a number of critical cases, including the prosecution and murders of Medgar Evers and Dr. Martin Luther King.

Yes, we have something to do here in Washington. The Obama administration made policing a priority. The Civil Rights Division was active in helping oversee pattern and practices of police department abuses and entered numerous consent decrees with Seattle, with New Orleans, on Ferguson, with Baltimore, and with Cleveland.

Why? Because we had cases that needed that Federal oversight. We saw that there were abuses of use of force across the country, including even in my home State, that we needed to address.

In 2006, Otto Zehm, a man with developmental disabilities, was wrongly accused of stealing money from an ATM. Mr. Zehm was improperly hog-tied by police, placed on his stomach, and he died from lack of oxygen to his brain. As he was dying, he said, “I was just on my way to get a Snicker bar.”

It breaks my heart that somebody with disabilities was treated this way. There was a Federal indictment in this case and the police officer was found guilty of excessive use of force, lying to investigators about the confrontation. As a result of a civil case, the Spokane police were required to receive special training on interaction with mentally ill suspects and detainees.

In 2010, John T. Williams, a Native American, a seventh-generation woodcarver who used his knife to make street art, was fatally shot seven times in the back by Seattle police. He had hearing and mental health challenges. Literally, he was just carving in one spot and decided to move across the street to another spot. When he didn’t respond to the officer, he was shot and killed. The officer who killed Mr. Williams wasn’t charged, but the U.S. Department of Justice did investigate and found that there was a pattern and practice of abuse by Seattle police.

The U.S. Department of Justice and Seattle agreed on a consent decree, which required a number of reforms.

And now, just recently, an African American named Manuel Ellis died from respiratory arrest due to physical restraint by a Tacoma police officer. This just happened in March of 2020. Meth and an enlarged heart contributed to his death, but the Pierce County medical examiner ruled his death a homicide, and his case is under investigation.

All of these issues in the State of Washington led our citizenry to have a debate about this. In 2018, 62 percent of Washington voters approved ballot initiative 940. It required de-escalation. It requires police officers to understand how to help and deal with the public. It mandated first aid to a victim of deadly force, and it required an outside investigation into the use of that deadly force.

It also removed the requirement that prosecutors prove malice to hold police officers criminally liable for use of deadly force. And that continues to need improvement in our state. This is an oversight role of our police department, but these events in the last several weeks have shown us that it is not time to step back from this issue; it is time to pass new Federal legislation.

Under the Trump administration and Attorney General Barr, the U.S. Department of Justice Civil Rights Division police practices group has been reduced to half. It has not opened a major pattern-or practice investigation of police departments’ violation of civil and constitutional rights. President Trump and his administration have pulled back from Department of Justice’s important oversight role, at a time we can see that we need more of a Federal role, not less.

In November 2018, then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions changed the Department of Justice policy to make it even harder for the Department to perform its oversight role. He made it harder for the Department of Justice to reach dissenting decrees with State and city governments and limited the reforms that they could require.

The Trump administration has shown that it isn’t interested in the community policing programs that have shown success in the past. There are numbers that statistically show that better investment in community policing helps us lower the crime rate.

In 2017, the Trump administration led the U.S. Department of Justice to significantly scale back on the Obama-era program called Collaborative Reform Initiative. It also provided support to improve trust between police and communities. And under the Trump administration, it no longer strongly supports consent decrees, which have been so helpful in holding local cities and police departments accountable for civil rights abuses.

The Trump administration tried to defund the Office of Community Policing and Services Program. Thank god our colleagues have resisted that. This provides important funding to help community policing and officers and to provide technical assistance.

I think this stands in stark contrast to President Obama, who requested that the COPS program be funded each year in his budget request.

But all of this brings us to where we are today. What the citizenry of the State of Washington is telling us is that we need better laws on the books. I believe we need to act here. The death of George Floyd has shown us that there is a clarion call and a need for more Federal action.

I believe in these things. I believe that we should have a prohibition on chokeholds and knee restraints that cut off oxygen to the brain.

I believe that we should, just like the State of Washington, provide for more Federal support for de-escalation training.

I believe in establishing a Federal standard for the use of body cameras, and when they should be mandatory, because I think they are an essential tool in making sure that what happens to the video is available, and that the public knows and understands what is happening.

I believe in requiring an independent investigation, just like we did under State statute—and by the way, that initiative that was voted on, with some of these provisions in them, in the State of Washington, and received 60 percent approval from the Washingtonians of our State. Why? Because they believe these things are essential. The Duckworth bill provides for an independent investigation when deadly force has been used, and we should be making this the Federal law of the land.

And we need to provide more support for community policing, and not just the dollars but accountability for when and how the dollars are used, so the citizenry of the country, when they pay their taxes, knows exactly where the dollars but accountability for when and how the dollars are used, so the citizenry of the country, when they pay their taxes, knows exactly what is going on with the Federal dollars for community policing.

And we need to require the Attorney General and Assistant Attorney General to lead the Civil Rights Division, to vigorously identify and end patterns and practices of abuse in police departments and seek penalties for those who haven’t.

I suggest a Federal audit every year where there are practices and patterns of abuse and give us the information so that we in Congress can also help in holding those accountable for not meeting the Federal standards of upholding citizenries’ civil rights.

I need to create a clear Federal standard on the use deadly force, just like the Washington State voters did when they passed legislation. Whether we do it like the Washington voters in ending the defense on malice, or whether we do it like the Washingtonians of our State. Why? Because they believe these things are essential. The Duckworth bill provides for an independent investigation when deadly force has been used, and we should be making this the Federal law of the land.

Let’s not also just be deaf to the plight and fate that our officers are dealing with every day on the streets of America. We need more funding to help our police departments. We definitely, in some cases, need additional pay. But for this to work, we also need to work with our crisis, our mental health crisis, our opioid addiction crisis. So many of our men and women in blue are policing our streets not for crimes but for dealing with the population that is living on the streets. We need more people than we exchange them and to not help—not to help correct these situations that have now become day-to-day tasks in what has never been part of the law enforcement effort.

I ask my colleagues, let’s put our differences aside to get real action on these. There is a Federal role on civil rights enforcement. Let’s take that role seriously, let’s respond to the death, and do something about it. I know that is the best way to honor George Floyd today would be to help pass the laws that help protect the citizenry of our State. We are a great country, and we can do better by meeting this challenge. We can do better.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to complete my remarks before the vote.

RUSSIA INVESTIGATION

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, yesterday the Senate Judiciary Committee held our first oversight hearing to learn more about the origins and evolution of the counterintelligence investigation known as Crossfire Hurricane, opened in July of 2016 against a Presidential candidate and his campaign team. I asked Rod Rosenstein, the former Deputy Attorney General, if he knew of a precedent for active FBI investigations against both nominees of the major political parties for Presidential campaign, and he said: No, there is no precedent. The FBI is not supposed to be involved in our elections and in our politics. Yet you recall what happened on July 5, 2016. Director James Comey held another unprecedented event—a press conference—at which he said that no reasonable prosecutor would prosecute Secretary Hillary Clinton for a crime but then proceeded to detail derogatory information—information that was not his to release but was supposed to be part of a confidential investigation.

Under our system of justice, the FBI is supposed to investigate crime, and then the Department of Justice makes the charging decision. That is when things become public. Yet, when the FBI decides there is not enough evidence to charge, it doesn’t hold a press conference and disparage the character and reputation of the person it is investigating.

I don’t know whether Director Comey had an impact on the 2016 election, but I do know what he did was wrong, and, yesterday, Deputy Attorney General Rosensteel confirmed his memo to then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions that was then attached to Jeff Sessions’ letter to the President, recommending that Director Comey be terminated as the FBI Director. The reason was not because he had made a mistake but because he had failed to protect the investigating team was and was likely to repeat them again.

The Deputy Attorney General is supposed to be the supervisor for the FBI, and while the chain of command is quite clear in the minimal cases, in this species of investigation known as counterintelligence, which is not primarily to investigate crimes but to investigate security threats to the United States, there was no chain of command. The FBI was acting rogue under Director Comey, along with some of the things we have learned about with regard to Director McCabe, Peter Strzok, Lisa Page, and others.

It is really hard that we not only make sure we understand what happened—that it was unprecedented and negatively affected Hillary Clinton’s campaign—but that it also negatively affected Donald Trump and his campaign, and this investigation continued long after he became President. It resulted in the appointment of a special counsel, who ended up with no evidence with which to charge the President with any crime.

We can’t have the FBI interfering with our elections. Yes, it needs to investigate counterintelligence threats to the United States, and it needs to investigate crimes, but it should not be a primary actor in that process, in the public process, by which we elect Presidents. It needs to stay in its particular lane and not become a partisan, in effect, affecting the outcome of Presidential elections, all of which is to say that the appointment of a special counsel by the Committee on the Judiciary began yesterday is very, very important. One thing we must make sure of is that this never happens again, and the only way we can make sure it never happens again is to make clear what did happen and where the train went off the rails.

The last 3 1⁄2 years have been primarily occupied with this so-called investigation into President Trump and his campaign, the appointment of a special counsel, and 2 years of Director Mueller’s investigation as special counsel. Then what followed was that it was impeachment. Think of all of the opportunities costs associated with that, the time we could have and should have been doing the things that would have impacted the quality of life of the American people—improving access to healthcare, creating economic opportunity, enhancing our national security. These are things we were not occupied with, and those involved with these bogo investigations and the media leaks by the people who knew better.

ADAM SCHIFF and the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence took a lot of sworn testimony during their “investigation.” Now that it has been declassified, we know that none of the witnesses—mainly Obama-era officials—had any relevant information, cooperation, or collusion with Russian authorities—none of them. Yet ADAM SCHIFF and others on the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence had the temerity to go to the mainstream media and say they were recommending Mr. Durham, a U.S. attorney, to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, led by Chairman JOHNSON, I think, are very, very important. The facts will come out. We know that Attorney General Barr has depurized Mr. Durham, a U.S. attorney, to whether there is evidence of chargeable crimes, because there needs to be accountability.

AMERICA’S SPACE PROGRAM

Mr. President, let me just on, maybe, on a happier note, talk about another event we need a little good news, a little hope, a little optimism in America these days.

Last weekend, America’s space program made history with the successful SpaceX crew Dragon launch. It was nearly a decade ago that American astronauts in American rockets were launched into space from American soil. I mean, until last weekend, we were literally captives of the Russians in their providing the rockets or the support needed in the International Space Station. Yet that is not the only reason this launch was so significant. It marked the first time that our astronauts launched in a commercially built and operated spacecraft. I must say that it looked pretty slick to me.

As we work to ensure our country remains a leader in human spaceflight, partnerships between the public and private sectors are going to continue to be important. That is why NASA established a commercial crew program to link the brilliant minds at NASA with those innovative companies like SpaceX, and this launch gave us just a glimpse into how those partnerships will lead us in the future.

I remember the launch of the Apollo 11 mission almost 51 years ago, and I remember seeing the photos of the astronauts in the command module. They wore bulky space suits, and the surrounding walls were completely covered with switches and buttons. To be honest, not much changed over the next several decades. Even with the last launch on American soil in 2011, the Space Shuttle Atlantis looked pretty similar. What America saw on Saturday was a glimpse into the future. Astronauts Bob Behnken and Doug Hurley were outfitted in custom-designed and fitted spacesuits and they were seated in front of a sleek touchscreen. It looked like the console of a Tesla, to me, but I am sure it was more sophisticated than that.

After the two astronauts arrived at the International Space Station, Behnken referred to the Dragon as a slick vehicle. Yet things don’t just look like they were made for the future, for they were designed to work better, last longer, and be safer. The Falcon 9 rocket was made with reusable parts to bring down the cost of human spaceflight. As we return American astronauts to the Moon and eventually to Mars, this commercial launch will have marked a new era of space exploration. It gives us hope and excitement, and we know both of those are desperately needed.

I thank and commend the countless men and women who have made this mission possible, especially my fellow Texans at Johnson Space Center—the center of human spaceflight for NASA—and then, of course, Elon Musk, who founded SpaceX. He said this launch was the result of, roughly, 100,000 people’s efforts when you added up all of the suppliers and everybody involved. When you combine that with the work of the brave and brilliant astronauts, physicists, engineers, mathematicians, and scientists of all stripes who have helped us to have met our space exploration goals over the years, it is clear that America’s space program’s best days are ahead.

When the final NASA space shuttle crew departed the International Space Station in 2011, it left behind a small American flag with instructions that it be brought back Earth by the next crew to be launched from the United States. Finally, almost a decade later, it has been united with the astronauts who will carry it home.

On behalf of a proud nation, congratulations to astronauts Bob Behnken and Doug Hurley, to everyone at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and SpaceX on successfully capturing that flag. We welcome you home in the coming months so we can proudly say alongside of you: Mission accomplished.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my remarks be allowed to be concluded in full before the vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF MICHAEL PACK

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the nomination of Michael Pack to be the Chief Executive Officer of the U.S. Agency for Global Media. Yet, before I get into the specifics of the Pack nomination, I need to say a few words about the moment we are in and how we got here.

We are facing two devastating crises. Over 100,000 Americans have died from COVID-19 in just a matter of months, and that number continues to grow. The scale and the speed of the tragedy is almost impossible to comprehend. We certainly stand with all of our families who have lost loved ones, and we cherish their memories. Unlike COVID-19, the second crisis is one of our own making.

Over centuries of injustice, African Americans and other people of color have not been treated like human beings; they have not been treated like every American deserves to be treated, like every person in the world has the right to be treated. No. All too often, they have been treated like George Floyd, with a knee on the neck as they gasped, “I can’t breathe.” Perhaps. As a result, our country has erupted with protests. In this moment, these grievances have met with the petty antics and deplorable, violent tactics of notorious dictators around the world. I am not about to say this. I am shaken to the core that President Trump, with the assistance of his Attorney General, used violence against peaceful protesters—people exercising their First Amendment rights—all for a photo op with a Bible. That is not right. It is not acceptable, and that is not America.

This body has to act. We have to act quickly and effectively to address these twin永恒挑战s for leadership at every level. We all know this, but we are not doing it. Why not? The answer is that President Trump and the Republican majority of this body are focused elsewhere while our gauntlet is set. Perhaps. As a result, our country has erupted with protests. between the work of its networks and grantees and political interference or influence from the White House or any others. People around the world have come to view the products from all of the networks and grantees as being reliable and trustworthy news sources.

As this pandemic has highlighted, people crave reliable, independent, and credible journalism. The networks of the USAGM are sometimes the only independent media a country can rely on to bring free and open media to closed societies. In the past, the agency has made some serious missteps and the board and the agency's head have historically worked with Congress to help to address them.

Sadly, the debate over Mr. Pack has not even ripened to a discussion of his substantive qualifications. No. We are stuck dealing with the nominee's serious background problems despite there being multiple efforts to engage Chairman Risch, the White House, and Mr. Pack himself on these matters. The central issue with Mr. Pack is the way that he used—perhaps abused—his nonprofit organization, Public Media Lab, and how he chose to come clean about it.

As you can see from this chart, Mr. Pack is the president of both the Public Media Lab and his for-profit company, Manifold Productions, LLC, which he owns. It is where Gina Pack, his wife, is the vice president and sole other employee. Mr. Pack created and controls both organizations. Since creating Public Media Lab in 2008, Mr. Pack has used it to raise more than $1 million from private foundations. Some of those grants were earmarked to make specific films while others, like a $250,000 grant from the Charles Koch Foundation, were simply for “general operating support” for Public Media Lab.

As you can see from this next chart, Mr. Pack transferred 100 percent—100 percent—of the tax-exempt grant money Public Media Lab received to his for-profit company Manifold. No grants were given to any other organization—none. The IRS would probably call that operating a nonprofit for private benefit, but I will get to that in a minute.

Some of that grant money was used to make films, but based on Mr. Pack’s financial disclosures, it is possible that up to 75 percent of it—millions of dollars—went straight to Mr. Pack and his wife Gina.

You can see on this chart, as was suggested in the debate the other day, is not normal. It is not normal. This is not the standard. This is not how it is done in the industry. That is why the Office of the Attorney General for the District of Columbia, where Public Media Lab is incorporated, is now investigating Mr. Pack’s nonprofit for possibly breaking the law. The question they are asking is whether Mr. Pack used donations to the nonprofit for his own enrichment—to line his own pockets.

From my understanding, this kind of behavior would normally raise some yellow flags at the IRS as well and they would be curious as to why a nonprofit seemed to be operating for the sole benefit of its creator, but the yellow flag never went up at the IRS because, for many years after he created Public Media Lab, Mr. Pack never disclosed that he was in business with his company—with himself.

The IRS asks nonprofits two key questions to determine whether a situation of private benefit might exist, and for many, many years, Mr. Pack has simply falsified his tax returns and the obvious minimum statement. When the IRS asked Mr. Pack, under penalty of perjury, whether Public Media Lab provided grants to any entity controlled by an officer of the nonprofit, he said no, year after year. But the true answer was yes.

Had Mr. Pack told the IRS the truth, he would have had to make additional disclosures that might have raised that yellow flag, but the IRS was left in the dark by Mr. Pack’s answers.

When the committee confronted Mr. Pack last year with these false statements, he claimed they were “oversights” and that he did not need to amend his filings because his false statements were unintentional, but then he turned around and made false statements to the committee about his taxes.

Unfortunately, given the false statements to the IRS year after year and then to the committee, we have to be concerned that Mr. Pack has a problem with the truth. Mr. Pack needs to come clean with the Senate, and he needs to come clean with the IRS. He needs to tell the IRS what is on this chart, how much gran was transferred from Public Media Lab to Manifold, and that he sent it from himself to himself.

So let’s review what we have learned from these charts. First, Mr. Pack may have conducted unlawful expenditures with his nonprofit and operated it for private gain. Second, the IRS and the Senate don’t know the full truth because Mr. Pack has made false statements and refused to provide documentation. Third, Mr. Pack’s nonprofit is now under investigation by the Office of the Attorney General for the District of Columbia for the very issues that I have been seeking answers from him for 9 months—9 months.

As my friend Senator Murphy solemnly noted yesterday, nominees need to tell the truth to Congress and the executive branch, and if there has been a mistake, the nominee needs to fix it. These are the basic requirements for all nominees who come before the Senate and the absolute minimum standard we used to ask them to meet.

We live in an era where the extraordinary quickly becomes routine, but even by that metric, Mr. Pack’s path to this floor has been a disgrace. If advice and consent means anything, at rock bottom, it means ensuring that the people we confirm are suitable for public service; and if they are not, we should not move forward.

I am aware of the pressure that some of my colleagues face as a result of this nomination. I know that the President has publicly trashed Voice of America, calling it “the voice of the Soviet Union,” which I hasten to say is dangerous nonsense. And I know that the President has spoken both publicly and privately of his intense desire to confirm Mr. Pack, come what may. But the objections I have raised today and have been raising for months are not political or partisan in nature. They go to the most basic and critical question: Is Michael Pack fit to serve? Should he be confirmed while he is under investigation and after having been dishonest with the Senate and the IRS? Given his alleged use of a small nonprofit for self-enrichment, can we trust that he will not use the massive resources of the U.S. Government to line his own pockets?

Colleagues, I implore you to consider these questions. Please put aside what you may have heard or believed. The President has made, and consider the dangerous precedent we are setting here today. If Mr. Pack is confirmed, the new bar for advice and consent is set below that of a nominee who is under investigation by the IRS, who has publicly admitted to an unlawful expenditure and who blatantly provided Congress and the executive branch false information.

This institution has been called the world’s greatest deliberative body. The history of this body guides us, and we make our decisions not just based on the immediate needs of the President but on the example we will set for the future. I ask my colleagues who may be inclined to support Mr. Pack’s nomination today, are you comfortable with the precedent? The answer should be obvious, and I pray that this body has the courage to get there. Let us turn away from Michael Pack, and let us focus on healing the wounds of our Nation and our democracy.

With that, I yield the floor.

TIANANMEN SQUARE

Mr. COTTON. Madam President, today is the 31st anniversary of the Tiananmen Square massacre, when thousands of peaceful students asking for their freedom were gunned down by Chinese Communist tanks and troops. Because of Beijing’s relentless censorship and control over information, we never learned the true death toll of that dark day, but it is certain that thousands of peaceful protesters were murdered in the streets.

Beijing’s savagery was exposed during that massacre, reminding the West that China was the same, unreconstructed Communist Party that killed millions—tens of millions—of its own people without batting an eye in Mao’s Cultural Revolution and Great Leap Forward. A tiger never changes its stripes.

Now the Chinese Communist Party is threatening another atrocity in Hong Kong, a city whose traditions and freedoms it once promised to respect—but that it, secretly and increasingly openly, loathes and is gleefully repudiating. The Chinese Communist Party is threatening another atrocity in Hong Kong, a city whose traditions and freedoms it once promised to respect—but that it, secretly and increasingly openly, loathes and is gleefully repudiating. These are not anarchists trying to tear down the law—as the Chinese Communist Party’s shrill organs falsely claim—but real free citizens fighting to preserve the rule of law they love so much, against a Communist power that knows no law above itself. They are fighting for the very same freedoms we enjoy in the United States: the freedom of religion, speech, and assembly; private property; the rule of law.

The Hong Kong protesters won the battle over the extradition bill, but the war for Hongkongers’ freedom isn’t over. While the world has been distracted by the coronavirus pandemic and other upheavals, the Chinese Communist Party has seized the opportunity to finally enact what it euphemistically calls a national security law but what is, in reality, an attempt to extinguish Hong Kong freedom—a law that will allow Beijing’s agents to take broad action against Hong Kong residents, including those who protested against the extradition bill last year.

Seven million residents of Hong Kong now face the very real possibility of losing their freedom and possibly their lives. Political dissidents risk being jailed arbitrarily—or worse. Hundreds of thousands of Christians, Muslims, Buddhists, Sikhs, and other religious minorities risk being driven underground like their brethren on the Chinese mainland—or perhaps put in a gulag of concentration camps like the Uighurs in China’s Xinjiang Province.

The free world cannot stand by while the Chinese Communist Party sets fire to the venerable laws and freedoms of Hong Kong. Already the administration is moving to revoke Hong Kong’s special trade status, which has allowed Chinese Communist Mandarins to get rich off a free economic system while denying those very freedoms for more than 1 billion of their subjects on the mainland.

And our great ally, the United Kingdom, has announced it will extend visas to 3 million Hongkongers—many of whom took part in last year’s pro-democracy protests so that they can escape the Chinese Communist Party. I highly commend Prime Minister Boris Johnson for striking this bold blow for freedom, but the United States can and should do more.

Today, I call upon the administration to prioritize the admission of persecuted Hongkongers to the United States through the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program. In coordination with our allies, we must help save these brave Hongkongers from a horrific fate under authoritarian Communist rule.

While this refugee program has been abused in recent years, it has always served the noble purpose of allowing those who are truly oppressed by their governments to immigrate safely to the free world. Now it can be used again in this worthy cause to help noble Hongkongers flee the grasp of the Chinese Communist Party before it is too late.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

REMEMBERING OFFICER HOLTER

Mr. HOWEVEN. Madam President, I rise today to honor Grand Forks Police Officer Cody Holte, who died in the line of duty last Wednesday. Both Senator CRAMER and myself are here. We attended the funeral. It was truly a moving event. Today we are here to honor him on the Senate floor as well and honor his service and honor his life.

Officer Holte is a Hendrum, MN, native, a 2010 graduate of Normandy County West High School, and a 2015 graduate of Minnesota State University Moorhead, with a degree in criminal justice and minors in Sociology and military science.

Officer Holte led a life of service, dedicating himself to serving his community, state, and nation by always putting the people he served first. Not only was Officer Holte an exceptional police officer, he also served as a first lieutenant in the North Dakota Army National Guard. For 10 years, I was Governor in North Dakota, and I can’t tell you how much we relied then and, of course, how much we rely now on our National Guard. As you can see, Cody was a first lieutenant in the National Guard, and he did a fabulous job. Here he is in his guard uniform and, of course, how much we relied on him in that incredible service as a police officer in Grand Forks.

Lieutenant Holte enlisted in the Army Reserve in 2010, and in 2015 he was commissioned into the North Dakota Army National Guard. He was last assigned to the 815th Engineer Company out of Lisbon, ND, where he served as a detachment commander, preparing his unit for upcoming missions.

Today, as an officer in Grand Forks and a first lieutenant in the North Dakota National Guard, Officer Holte served our Nation on multiple fronts. Through his leadership, courage, and work ethic, he displayed the very best the State of North Dakota has to offer while also helping to ensure our safety and security.

You realize how important it is today not only here at home but abroad. Here is someone respected in both capacities. What a life of service.

My wife Mikey and I extend our deepest condolences to the Holte family—especially his wife Amanda, his son Gunnar, his parents Bret and Tracy, sisters who wear the badge don’t seem like we can ever be the same just as criminals are. In fact, the restrictions and the restraint that our heroes exercise in carrying out their duties, the vast majority of them, are really rarely, if ever, highlighted.

Yet we could say that the life of Cody Holte—29 years old, the father of a 10-month-old son and a husband to Mandy. It is just really important that we stand in this Chamber today and give Cody the respect and the honor that he earned here in these hallowed halls and tell his story to a nation that is intrigued and fixedated, in many respects, on those that Cody protects us from.

It was a great honor to be there with his family and with hundreds—thousands, perhaps—of other law enforcement officers to pay tribute to a real hero. I think it is important to note that this hero is also a real person. I thought that his chief of police gave an absolutely marvelous speech, and I want to just reiterate a couple of things that the Grand Forks chief of police said about Cody at the funeral. Chief Mark Nelson said that he and Cody had formed a close bond—and I remember that there were photos, the chief’s of his grandchild and Cody’s of Gunnar, his son. He recalled that Cody was a friend to all. Now, who doesn’t want a cop who is a friend to all and with a grin that could brighten anyone’s day? More importantly, he said that Cody was a cop’s cop, whose heart was bigger than his courage and who had passion and an unwavering dedication for protecting and serving his community. He said, when Holte was on duty, there was never any need to worry.

So we pay tribute today to this hero, but we are reminded that he was also a husband to Mandy and a father to Gunnar. He was a son to Bret and Tracy. I know Bret and Tracy very well. I have known Bret nearly all of my life. He was a brother to Brady and Alexis, as Senator Hoeven said. Brady is his twin brother and a police officer in Fargo, which is just an hour down the interstate from Minneapolis, paying tribute to a hero, and yet that hero doesn’t seem to get the same attention that a criminal gets. That hero and his brothers and sisters who wear the badge don’t seem to be as respected by our media as criminals are. In fact, the restrictions and the restraint that our heroes exercise in carrying out their duties, the vast majority of them, are really rarely, if ever, highlighted.

Yet we could say that the life of Cody Holte—29 years old, the father of a 10-month-old son and a husband to Mandy. It is just really important that we stand in this Chamber today and give Cody the respect and the honor that he earned here in these hallowed halls and tell his story to a nation that is intrigued and fixedated, in many respects, on those that Cody protects us from.

It was a great honor to be there with his family and with hundreds—thousands, perhaps—of other law enforcement officers to pay tribute to a real hero. I think it is important to note that this hero is also a real person. I thought that his chief of police gave an absolutely marvelous speech, and I want to just reiterate a couple of things that the Grand Forks chief of police said about Cody at the funeral. Chief Mark Nelson said that he and Cody had formed a close bond—and I remember that there were photos, the chief’s of his grandchild and Cody’s of Gunnar, his son. He recalled that Cody was a friend to all. Now, who doesn’t want a cop who is a friend to all and with a grin that could brighten anyone’s day? More importantly, he said that Cody was a cop’s cop, whose heart was bigger than his courage and who had passion and an unwavering dedication for protecting and serving his community. He said, when Holte was on duty, there was never any need to worry.

So we pay tribute today to this hero, but we are reminded that he was also a husband to Mandy and a father to Gunnar. He was a son to Bret and Tracy. I know Bret and Tracy very well. I have known Bret nearly all of my life. He was a brother to Brady and Alexis, as Senator Hoeven said. Brady is his twin brother and a police officer in Fargo, which is just an hour down the interstate from Minneapolis, paying tribute to a hero, and yet that hero doesn’t seem to get the same attention that a criminal gets. That hero and his brothers and sisters who wear the badge don’t seem to be as respected by our media as criminals are. In fact, the restrictions and the restraint that our heroes exercise in carrying out their duties, the vast majority of them, are really rarely, if ever, highlighted.

Cody’s short 29 years of life, with his last 3 years as a police officer and his several years as a member of the North Dakota National Guard—his testimony in his life and now in his death—reminds us to never take for granted our own safety. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. CARDIN. Madam President, as the ranking Democrat on the Small Business and Entrepreneurship Committee of the U.S. Senate, I take this time to share with my colleagues on the implementation of the CARES Act.

I think all of us know that the CARES Act contained major, new provisions to help small businesses, and I was proud to be part of a bipartisan working group with Senator SHAKENY and Senator COLINS, that helped to craft three new programs to help small businesses as a result of COVID–19.

We recognize the importance of small businesses to our economy, to job growth, to innovation, but we also recognize that small businesses are more vulnerable to an economic downturn. They don’t have the resiliency. They don’t have the deep pockets. They don’t have the liquidity that larger companies have. If we are going to get our economy back on track, we have to preserve small businesses and their workforces.

We suggested and the Congress passed three new programs to help small businesses—the Paycheck Protection Program, the Economic Injury Disaster Loan Grant Program, and a loan forgiveness program for existing and new loans taken out under 7(a), 504, or microlending.

We recognize that all three of these tools were important. They were not exclusive. They worked together. PPP provides help to keep payrolls together. It buys 8 weeks of payroll. The EIDL Loan Program provides working capital for small businesses. The grant program provides immediate cash, and the forgiveness program allows a business to be able to get through those next 6 months without the burdens of having to pay their loans. All of that works together to keep small businesses viable in our community.

Let me first talk about the Paycheck Protection Program because that has certainly gotten the most attention. It provided 8 weeks of payroll relief, plus other expenses, for small businesses in this country. It has been very, very popular. In fact, the original amount of money that we authorized for loans—about $350 billion—has quickly used up, and we authorized an additional $310 billion of loan authority. There have been 4.4 million loans issued under the PPP program for a total of $310 billion. These loans were issued rather quickly considering the standing up of the program and the volume of interest.

I acknowledge the hard work of the Small Business Administration and its workers, as well as of the Treasury, in standing up this program and getting the money out quickly to save many, many small businesses in our communities.

When we passed the PPP program, we would have hoped that 8 weeks later our economy would have been in a position in which the large number, would not have needed additional help or that the program’s parameters would have been adequate. That was not the case.

Yesterday, this Chamber acted in a responsible manner by legislation that Senator HUO and I and others recommended, along with our House colleagues who had recommended this to our colleagues, that would give small businesses that have existing PPP loans the ability to take funds over a 24-week period rather than an 8-week period, recognizing that many of these businesses could not get up to full payroll during this 8-week period. We also gave greater flexibility on the allocation of the funds.

Even with these changes, there have been major challenges in bringing forward the PPP program. First and foremost, we found—as we had, unfortunately, thought might happen—that the underserved communities would have a much more difficult time in getting access to 7(a) loans under the PPP program. Quite frankly, we put language in the CARES Act so that the SBA would give special attention to the underserved and underbanked communities.

Quite frankly, the SBA did not follow our direction. The SBA’s IG said that the Small Business Administration did not fully align with the congressional intent to underserve the underserved and rural markets. So we responded. We replenished the PPP funds, and we allocated a certain amount of those funds directly to smaller lending institutions, recognizing that they have greater contact with the underserved communities that did help.

Now, at our request, the Treasury has allocated an additional $10 billion to the CDFIs, the community development financial institutions, that have better ties to the underserved community. Each one of these steps helped.

Allocating funds to smaller lenders and allocating funds to the CDFI will help us get to minority small businesses. It will help us get to women-owned small businesses. It will help us get to the smaller of the small businesses. It will also help us get to rural small businesses, but we need to do more.

That is why I have authored legislation with Senator BOOKER. We have put out a plan on what needs to be done through a discussion document, and it recognizes that we have to provide greater help for businesses in underserved communities for startup capital, for technical training, and for mentorship. All that will help so that, when we come out of COVID–19 and when we have the next economic downturn, we will have the financial institutions and knowledge in all of our communities to be able to take advantage of the tools that we make available in a timely way.

Yesterday, we had our first oversight hearing with regard to COVID–19 and the tools of the Small Business Administration. That hearing was outside of private sector witnesses. Next week, we will have the Secretary of the Treasury as well as the SBA Administrator before us. What we heard from one of our witnesses yesterday, Connie Evans, of the Association for Enterprise Opportunity, was about COVID–19. Its economic consequences are projected to erase decades of minority enterprise growth in underserved markets.

She continued: ‘‘To prevent this, we believe policymakers must acknowledge the existing disparities in our small business ecosystem and take the necessary steps to create equitable legislation that will help us get to the smaller of the small businesses. It will help us get to women-owned small businesses. It will help us get to veteran-owned small businesses. It will help us get to the smaller of the small businesses. It will also help us get to rural small businesses, but we need to do more.’’

I couldn’t agree more. That is why Senator BOOKER and I have issued our discussion document that includes many ways in which we can bring about systematic changes to really help the underserved and rural businesses.

We saw, tragically, 2 weeks ago or close to 2 weeks ago, the tragic death in Minnesota. We have all talked about how we are going to help to make sure this country gives equal opportunity to all of our citizens, including under our criminal justice system. We also need to recognize that, if we are going to deal with the wealth gap in America, we have to deal with entrepreneurship, and this is one way we can do it—by building up these types of opportunities.

Now, there is some good news in my State of Maryland that I want to share with my colleagues. Maryland had a very active women’s business center. As you know, our resource partners are critically important in helping underserved and underbanked communities. Women-owned businesses are clearly in that category. We have a very effective women’s business center that is headquartered in Rockville that helps women owned companies in Montgomery Counties and Frederick. It is doing a great job on behalf of women-owned businesses.
Maryland, though, is a big State, and we needed more help. So I thank the Small Business Administration in its announcement of two additional small business centers in the State of Maryland. One will be in Baltimore. It will be housed at Morgan State University, a historic HBCU. That will provide, I think, tremendous help for women-owned businesses and minority women-owned businesses. We are also opening up a center in Salisbury, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland—rural Maryland—to help women’s businesses. This is critically important in dealing with the gap in our communities. Resource partners are of critical need.

So, as we applaud the work we have done with the PPP program and as we recognize we need to improve it, let’s also recognize we need to deal with making sure there is a fair opportunity for all businesses to qualify. We are also going to have additional need for bridge small businesses in addition to the PPP initial grant. There needs to be a second round, and let me tell you why.

We thought 8 weeks would be enough with the PPP program, but we know that for some of the original small business loans that were taken out under the PPP program that, within the next 2 weeks, the 8-week period will expire, but we know that businesses are not open at full capacity. Restaurants cannot open at full capacity. Catering establishments cannot open at full capacity. Health clubs cannot open at full capacity. Entertainment centers cannot open at full capacity. Museums and, yes, zoos are still very much hurt, so we are going to need additional help.

Yesterday, we heard from a small business owner whose company was helped by the PPP loan. He told us that for some of the original small businesses that were part of the PPP loan, they were able to get the money out quickly. They did get the money out quickly. They did not get the money out quickly. They got the money out quickly. They did not get the money out quickly. They did not get the money out quickly. They got the money out quickly. Pack to head up the U.S. Agency for Global Media. This typically is a job that doesn’t get a whole lot of attention here on the Senate floor, but this time, I believe it should.

This is yet another Trump nominee who is in the thick of it, another one of a whole array of sketchy financial wheeling and self-dealing, and apparently my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are just looking the other way, not interested.

So here is the short version of the story. For more than a decade, Mr. Pack ran two entities—a nonprofit film organization and a for-profit production company. His nonprofit raised millions of dollars under its tax-exempt status, and it pumped that money into his for-profit production company, nowhere else. At a minimum, this looks to me like a serious, flagrant abuse of a taxpayer subsidy. Mr. Pack made false statements about this arrangement to the IRS. So as the ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, I care greatly about that matter if one were to look at nothing else.

When he was first nominated in the previous Congress, Mr. Pack got caught in these false statements by staff on the Foreign Relations Committee. When he was renominated in this Congress and submitted new paperwork, he made false statements about having made false statements. Truly astounding.

Now there are a host of unanswered questions about Mr. Pack’s murky financial dealings. Fortunately, Ranking Member MENENDEZ is still trying to get to the bottom of this. Now, Ranking Member MENENDEZ is doing his job by bringing in the Foreign Relations Committee, and I care greatly about that matter if one were to look at nothing else.

Mr. Pack announced his for-profit production company, no-longer, is going to get confirmed because apparently, with the majority’s support, the Federal Government doesn’t need any oversight. It has been said here before that the Senate is just going to do nothing about it, because what goes around comes around.

I think as we move to the vote here in the Senate, we ought to start talking about one question, and that is: What has changed in the Senate about the vetting process of these nominees? What happened to the old bipartisan commitment to advise and consent, to fully vet nominees? The majority has just rubberstamped and rubberstamped and rubberstamped the same nominees. Trump’s nominees show a blatant disregard and disdain for the oversight process that historically has been central to the bipartisan work of this body.

Now the President might be totally indifferent to the role and duties of the Senate, but I don’t see any reason why Senators here, Democrats or Republicans, have to agree with that. It underlines the role of this Senate and the Congress as a coequal branch of government.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GARDNER. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. RISCH. Mr. President, I would like 3 minutes to close the debate on Michael Pack.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF MICHAEL PACK

Mr. RISCH. Mr. President and fellow Senators, we are about to do the final vote on Michael Pack. This man is uniquely qualified to hold this position. He has done an outstanding job. Everyone should look at the most recent documentary he did on the Supreme Court. It was just outstanding.

There has been a political fight over him for 2 years and 1 day. Today is the moment of truth. It is time to vote on Mr. Pack. Debate is closed.

I yield the floor.

VOTE ON PACK NOMINATION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, all postcloture time has expired.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the Pack nomination?

Mr. RISCH. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

Mr. GRASSLEY held up one nominee before all the facts are known. Furthermore, the financial web of Mr. Pack is under investigation by the Attorney General of the District of Columbia. Why not wait to get the results of that investigation? Why rush to confirm him over whether a nominee broke the law?

When Democrats on the Senate committee of jurisdiction tried to investigate it, Mr. Pack told everybody to just go pound sand. So once again, we have a nominee making a mockery of the Senate constitutional responsibility, and as far as I can tell, the Senate is just going to do nothing about it.

(Mr. YOUNG assumed the Chair.)

For my last few minutes, I just want to remind colleagues of the way things used to be. The way it used to be is both sides of the Senate took advice and consent seriously. For example, in 2009, Chairman Baucus and Ranking Member Grassley held up one nominee and wrote an exhaustive 12-page memo over a matter of $53 in local tax late fees and some sloppy paperwork. Another 2009 nomination, Ron Kirk, to be the U.S. Trade Representative, was held up for months over a tax matter involving some basketball tickets and a television he donated to his local YMCA. In 2010, another nominee was grilled in his hearing before the Finance Committee over a tax debt of $800.

Senators on both sides of the aisle—both sides of the aisle—always tried to do a thorough vetting and tried to work it out together. In all three of these cases, which I remember as a member of the Finance Committee, the nominees answered the Senate’s questions, paid what they owed, and that was that. The Senate did its job, and it worked.

children. In the tragedy of lynching, the author writes that one woman even held her little girl up so high so she could better see the victim who was “blazing on the roof.” Sickenimg and grotesque, these images

In the summer of 1955, 14-year-old Emmett Till was visiting family in Money, MS, when he went to a country store and bought some candy. While in there was accompanied by a White woman, and for that offense, Emmett Till was kidnapped in the middle of the night and bludgeoned so badly that, afterward, his body was unrecognizable. He could only be identified by the ring he was wearing. After seeing her son’s remains, his mother insisted on having an open casket funeral so the whole world could see what the killers had done to her son.

We must remember the murders of Emmett Till, Raymund Gunn, Sam Hose, and the thousands of others whose lives were destroyed by the barbarity of the lynching mob, but this bill will not do that. This bill would expand the meaning of “lynching” to include any bodily injury, including a cut, an abrasion, or a bruise, physical pain, illness, or any other injury to the body, no matter how temporary.

Words have meaning. It would be a disgrace for the Congress of the United States to declare that a bruise is a lynching, that an abrasion is lynching, that any injury to the body, no matter how temporary, is on par with the atrocities done to people like Emmett Till, Raymund Gunn, Sam Hose, who were killed for no reason but because they were Black. To do that would demean their memories and cheapen the historic and horrific legacy of lynching in our country. As Congressman Ralph Metcalfe stated, “To be clear, the bill does not make lynching a new Federal hate crime. Murdering someone on account of their race or conspiring to do so is now illegal under Federal law. It is already a Federal crime, and it is already a hate crime.”

He is right. We have had Federal hate crime statutes for over 50 years, and it has been a Federal hate crime to murder someone because of his race for over a decade. Additionally, murder is already a crime in 50 States. In fact, rather than considering a good-intentioned but symbolic bill, the Senate could immediately consider addressing qualified immunity and ending police militarization.

We can and must do better. That is why no one in the Senate has been more involved in criminal justice reform than I have. No one has introduced more justice reform bills. In my time in the Senate, I have authored or cosponsored at least 22 unique criminal justice reform bills. I am acutely aware of the injustices perpetrated year in and year out in our cities, but reform needs to be more than window dressing.

That is why I am on the floor today to offer the expedited passage—pass it today—of the Emmett Till Antilynching Act, as amended. Lynching is a particularly vicious kind of murder, and a Federal law should treat it as such. For these reasons, the Emmett Till Antilynching Act should be adopted with my amendment, which would apply the same penalties for lynching only and not for other crimes.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 35, which was received by the House. I ask unanimous consent that my amendment at the desk be agreed to, that the bill, as amended, be considered read a third time and passed, and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from California.

Ms. HARRIS. Mr. President, in reserving the right to object, the idea that we would not take this issue of lynching seriously is an insult, an insult to Senator BOOKER, to Senator TIM SCOTT, to me, and to all of the Senators, past and present, who have understood that this is part of the great stain of America’s history.

To suggest that anything short of pulverizing someone so much that the casket would otherwise be closed except for the heroism and courage of Emmett Till’s mother, to suggest that lynching would only be a lynching if someone’s heart was cut out and produced and displayed to someone else is ridiculous—and on this day, the day of George Floyd’s funeral and a day that should be a day of national mourning.

In 2018, the Senate unanimously passed bipartisan antilynching legislation, which I proudly introduced with the only other Black Members of this body—Senator CORY BOOKER and Senator TIM SCOTT. It was a historic moment. It marked the first time in the history of our country that Federal antilynching legislation had been passed by the U.S. Senate. It passed again by unanimous consent in 2019.

Senator PAUL is now trying to weaken a bill that was already passed. There is no reason for this. Senator Paul’s amendment would place a greater burden on victims of lynching than is currently required under Federal hate crimes laws. There is no reason for this. There is no reason other than its being cruel and deliberate obstruction on a day of mourning.

On this very day, at this very hour, there is a memorial service to honor the life of George Floyd, who was murdered on a sidewalk by a police officer, with a knee on his neck. For 8 minutes 46 seconds, George Floyd pled for his life, called for his late mother, and said he could not breathe. The pain experienced not only by that man, that human being and his family and his friends, but the whole of the people of America witnessing what we have witnessed since the founding of this country, which is that the Black lives have
Mr. BOOKER. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, I want to thank Senator HARRIS for her words.

I also want to thank Senator Tim Scott of South Carolina, who has shown extraordinary commitment to this legislation as well. On the House side, I want to thank BOBBY RUSH, former Black Panther. I want to thank him for his leadership and generational commitment to racial justice in America.

I also want to recognize the tireless advocacy of Airicka Gordon-Taylor, who is the actual relative of Emmett Till and founder of the Mamie Till Mobley Memorial Foundation. She was here the last time this bill was before this body. She is dead now. I know she is looking down and hoping that we don’t disappoint her.

In February of 2019, this body did something historic—and I don’t mean to be emotional. I am raw this week. But I stood here with KAMALA and I swept. We talked about hundreds of years—over a century, excuse me, of effort to pass legislation which was brought up and defeated time and again by this body by avowed segregationists. How proud I was that at a time when partisanship is high in this country we gathered together in one voice, 100 Senators, to pass this exact same bill, because there are good people in this body on both sides, and we were correcting a wrong of history.

Nobody in this body needs a lecture on lynching and how horrible it is. Everybody in this body abhors racism and believes that this violence is unjust. There are friends of mine here. Unanimously, we passed that legislation. We made history.

This is why I am confused because this bill has been passed unanimously, and here we are on a day of a memorial service for another person whose murder was condemned by people on both sides of the aisle. I have sat where the Presiding Officer is sitting, and I have watched the differences between the Republican leader and the Democratic leader. I don’t go back that long in this body, but I have watched Harry Reid, Chuck Schumer disagree so deeply and again, but, God, we came together and passed the bill unanimously. MITCH MCCONNELL let the bill come to this floor, didn’t try to block it.

Our country has waited too long for a reckoning on this issue of lynching, and I believe no Senator should stop the full weight of the law in its capacity to protect these human beings and human life.

Senator BOOKER and I are working on a comprehensive bill to address this hurt and the tragedy at the heart of this national day of mourning, and I object to Senator PAUL’s efforts to weaken this legislation.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to Senator PAUL’s request?
NAACP is wrong. If this bill is wrong, then the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law is wrong. If this bill is wrong, then the Urban League of America is wrong, legal organizations, civil rights organizations, Democrats and Republicans. Tell me another time when a single Congressmen, Democrats, Republicans, House Members, and Senators came together in a chorus of conviction and said that now is the time in America that we condemn the dark history of our past and actually use anti-lynching legislation.

And now one man—and I do not question his motives because I know his heart—one man—one man is standing in the way of the law of the land changing because of a difference of interpretation.

This doesn’t talk about bruising someone. It is a difference of interpretation.

Does America need a win today on racial justice? Do the anguished cries of people ring true?

I have had children break down with me this week wondering if this would be a country that values their lives as much as White people’s lives. I had to explain to grown men this week that there is hope in America; that we could make change in America; that we could grow and heal in America; that we could make this a more perfect Union.

Well, today is a day we can do it—to have our country yield for once, like he did in February of 2019, yield for 1 day and give America this win. Let us pass this piece of legislation today of all days. Let’s give a headline tomorrow of something that will give hope to this country that we can get it right. It may not cure the ills that so many are protesting about, but, God, it could be a sign of hope.

So, Mr. President, I object to this amendment. I object. I object. I object on such a thing. I object on the law. For my heart and spirit and every fiber of my being, I object for my ancestors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator for Kentucky.

Mr. PAUL. I think it is important to know and let the record show that I have been working with Senator Booker’s office for 3 months on the amendment of this bill; that I am willing to have unanimous passage of the bill today. It is incredibly important that we get this right.

A Black woman in New Jersey assaulted three Jewish women and slapped them. It was terrible. She uttered racial epithets about these Jewish women. She was charged with third-degree misdemeanor assault with up to 1 year in prison, which to me sounds pretty significant for slapping, but she was then charged with a hate crime in addition to that, which was 4 years in addition.

If a white someone and hurling racial epithets gets you 10 years in prison, this is exactly what we have been fighting about in criminal justice reform. We set up a system and didn’t pay attention to the penalties, and all of a sudden things we didn’t intend happened. So we have to be smart about this.

I am willing to pass the bill today, as amended, to reassure everybody that even hate crimes, when they are attempted murder, you have to attempt to harm them, but it has to be an attempt to harm them.

So all the discussion about bruising while trying to Lynch someone—yes, it is attempted murder. It would be covered by this bill. Nothing in the bill would stop or prevent the prosecution of heinous behavior. That is what it is intended for.

What I am trying to do is to make sure we don’t get unintended consequences. We fought the battle against mandatory minimums for a decade now because we tie up people in sentencing that makes no sense. Ten years for slapping someone would be an abomination, and it could happen to a woman and a woman who slapped three Jewish women in New Jersey to get 10 years in prison? If there is a group of them, it is now a conspiracy to Lynch.

We have to make some common sense here. We should not have a 10-year prison sentence for anything less than, at the very least, an attempt to do bodily harm. The statute lists what bodily harm is, but it could still be an attempt. It doesn’t mean you actually have to do it. The statute precludes when somebody shoves somebody in a bar and they fall down and have an abrasion and they say: ‘‘He did it because of a racial animus toward me,’’ and then you have a 10-year penalty. That is not right.

All of us are advocates on the same side of criminal justice reform. We have all argued on the same side that the law is screwed up and has incarcerated too many people unfairly. That is what we are trying to prevent here. So the point is, I understand the emotions about this. Do you think I take great joy in being here? No. I am the sponsor of 22 criminal justice bills. Do you think I am getting any good publicity on this? No. I will be excoriated by simplen minded people on the internet who think I don’t like Emmett Till or appreciate the history and the memory of Emmett Till. I will be lectured to by everybody that I have got no right to have an opinion on any of these things, and I should shut up quick.

But we cannot just not read our bills. I have worked in an honest way with Senator Booker’s office for 3 months on the amendment of this bill. We have gone back and forth. We gave them some language. We came back to us and said it wouldn’t work, and I said: What about this, and we haven’t gotten any more responses. We haven’t gotten responses back in a month or more.

The situation now is they are litigating in the press and trying to accuse me of being in favor of something so heinous that it makes my skin crawl and makes me sick to my stomach to even read the accounts about what happened.

But we also ought to be fair and honest about this. Lynching is illegal. People who say there is no Federal law against lynching are not telling the truth. That law says that if you kill somebody and you have racial animus, under the hate crimes statute, it is illegal. You can’t do that. It is also illegal in all the States. This bill does not make lynching illegal. So for all the discussion of that, this bill creates a new criminal conspiracy to Lynch. Oh, yes, I am for it. If there is a crowd, let’s arrest the whole mob. All four policemen should be responsible for what happened to Mr. Floyd.

The thing is, when we do that, we have to be careful that we don’t then put a crowd of people in where someone pushed into someone or someone slapped someone.

There has to be justice. People are chanting “Justice.” Justice has to have some substance and has to have visibility, and we can’t be hamstrung into something that could give someone 10 years in prison for a minor crime.

This is a very minor attempt. Everything we left in here we have worked with Senator or Booker or whoever, make sure it is inclusive. They came back and said: What about attempted? We said: Let’s change the language. So we have in there “attempt to cause serious bodily harm.”

There could be no injury, but someone will have to have a discussion of whether there was an attempt and it was an attempt that looked like it would be serious. So I think slapping someone isn’t, but under the current statute as is—people say: Ah, nobody will ever do it. Maybe, but we are putting it on the books.

The mandatory minimums have kept people in jail for decades. There are people who have life for nonviolent crimes. All of us have worked on the same side of that issue.

I am asking for a very minor change. I will pass it right now. I am completely out of the way. I am for the bill. I am asking unanimous consent to pass the bill today. I have amendments that just says let’s be careful not to arrest people for slapping someone or not arrest somebody for pushing into someone and get them 10 years in prison.

There isn’t about someone trying to kill another person or someone attempting bodily harm. Those people would be included in this language even if they did not have a mark on the person. But if they were rounding him up, tying him up, and they had thrown a rope over a tree, that is attempted murder. They would still be included under this bill, even without a mark on them.

What we have to preclude and what we are trying to preclude is that the bill doesn’t get used for the wrong purposes. We are all on the same side about whom we want to punish and whom we should prevent. We are also on the same side on the symbolism of this, but we can’t pass laws that do exactly what all of us have said is wrong with our penal system, all of the unintended consequences. There is one here, and I ask, in a very polite way—have been amending for 3 months—imagine a small change and I will let the bill go today, on this day, if we can have it.

The changes have been out there. They are not brand-new. They have been in Senator Booker’s office for 3 months. We have tried to, as he has had objections, work with him on his objections.

So I would ask unanimous consent, once again, to pass the bill, as amended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BOOKER. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, this is a bill that has already passed this body. Same bill, same language. There was no objection. Only four Members of the House of Representatives objected. Same bill, same language.

I have heard this objection. We disagree with this. The truth is, what is being proposed is not just opposed by me, but our Republican colleagues who are sponsoring this bill, in this body, oppose these corrections as well.

In addition to that, changes to this bill now would send it back to the House of Representatives. This is a tactic to send this bill back over to the House, where again it would have to be voted on.

This idea that somehow someone would be brought up on lynching charges for a slapping is absurd, especially as you see, with hate crime legislation, how difficult that is even to prove.

So I am deeply disappointed by the objections we have heard that were not made manifest last year, in 2019, but somehow, one 3 months—imagine a small change and I will let the bill go today, on this day, if we can have it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Object is heard.

The Senator from Alaska.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, before my colleagues exit the Chamber, I want to acknowledge their words. I want to say thank you. The passion, the emotion, the true rWWness in your words are words that I think all of us, as Members of the Senate, should hear, reflect, and respect. I just want you to know I am thankful I was on the floor in person today. Because we can print words, we can read words, but it is when we have the ability to hear and to feel those words that their true meaning comes out, so I appreciate and I thank you for that.

PROTESTS

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I had asked to come and speak on the floor of the Senate on this day, June 4. I have been actually looking forward to it and planning speaking time for months now.

June 4 is a significant day in the fight for women’s suffrage. It was on June 4 of 1919 that Congress approved the amendment and sent it to the States for ratification, and then it was in 1920 that the 19th Amendment was ratified by the States.

So this was to be a time of celebration, of recognition, of women’s suffrage, this centennial event.

Since that time, I first looked to schedule this, my, how the world has changed. We have been in the midst of a pandemic—over 100,000 American lives lost to the COVID–19 virus. We are in the midst of an economic crisis. We are seeing?

Why haven’t we—fixed what we are seeing?

And, just a week ago now, we witnessed the killing of George Floyd on our streets, in broad daylight. And today, June 4, is not only a recognition of women’s suffrage, but it is the funeral of George Floyd.

So before I speak to the matter I intended to speak on today, I want to just briefly comment on where I believe we are as a nation right now.

I was walking into work this morning, and in my neighbor’s yard is a placard, a yard sign. It has been there for some years, actually, now. It is a partial quote of Martin Luther King that states: “We can’t be silent about the things that matter.”

You think about those things that matter: equality, justice, the fundamental truth that all human beings are created equal and endowed by God with certain rights. And when those rights are denied, when they are violated, it is our responsibility to address the injustice. It is not our responsibility as elected Members of the U.S. Senate; it is our responsibility as fellow humans, as Americans who believe in these principles of justice and equality.

President Bush had some words this week that I found very direct, very comforting at a difficult time when it is hard to be comforted, when our spirits are so agitated and agitated right now. But he reminded us that achieving justice for all is the duty of all. It is the duty of all.

And we are hurting now as a nation. We have wounds from racism that have never been allowed to heal—and those words were just shared here on this floor moments ago—wounds that have never been allowed to heal, wounds that are still so open and raw. And healing can’t take place until the hurt and the anger and the anguish that so many in this country still feel, so many African Americans, so many—so many who feel that the system is meant for somebody but not them; that there is not equal justice under the law; that it must be the law for somebody else.

This has been hard—hard on all of us, as we have seen the protests, many of them peaceful. In my home State, Alaskans are coming together with a shared sense of duty and responsibility to speak up about things that matter more to us, not so much so in a way that brings us together rather than divides.

We must condemn the violence we see on the street with the looting, but stopping the looting is not going to close this wound. We heal when we acknowledge our weaknesses, when we acknowledge our failures, and when we vow to address the things that matter, like equality and justice.

What we say and how we say it truly matters. I have been challenged by some very close friends who have said: You are silent, Lisa. Why are you silent? Why haven’t you—you—fixed what we are seeing?

And I have struggled. I have struggled with the right words. As a White woman born and raised in Alaska with a family who was privileged, I can’t feel that openness and rWWness that I just heard expressed by my friends CORR and KAMALA. I haven’t lived their life.

But I can listen, and I can educate myself. And I can try to be a healer at a time when we need to be healed. That is my commitment and my pledge going forward to those I serve in Alaska and to those I serve in this country. This is challenging for us. We know this, but we are an extraordinary country. We are an extraordinary people with extraordinary resilience.

WOMEN’S SUFFRAGE

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, let me turn to the fight—the century fight... for women’s suffrage, the right to vote, the right to be treated equally, the right to be heard. It is a history that is long and interesting, sometimes very colorful.

I have had an opportunity these past couple of weeks to read two collections of stories about how women in the West worked to really be the vanguard, if you will, on the suffrage movement. You don’t necessarily hear them spoken to with great frequency, but, in fairness, it is many of those Westward bound stories that was Wyoming that was the first mover.

So reading some of their stories was a good reminder—a good reminder—of the role that many in Alaska have also played. We have been relatively progressive when it comes to women’s rights—so progressive that many Alaskan women received equal voting rights with men in 1913. This was 7 years before the 19th Amendment was ratified. Alaska was still a territory and was only to be a territory for a long time going forward.

The sorry and the sad part of that history, though, was that not all Alaskan women were given that right to vote. Alaskan Native women were excluded from voting and would be a territory for a long time going forward. We recognize through a State day of observation and recognition the work of Elizabeth Peratrovich, an Alaska Native woman from Southeastern Alaska, who was the driving force behind our first antidiscrimination law. This was back in 1945, nearly 20 years before Congress passed the Civil Rights Act.

This year, on the 75th anniversary of the bill’s passage, the U.S. Mint has actually created a gold coin in her honor. As you look at that coin and reflect on her story on the significance of that proud, strong, fierce Native woman leader, you can’t help but be proud of her.

The fight for women’s suffrage was waged, as we know, for decades and decades. But again, the women in the West led the way.

As I was reading the recount of the Alaska suffrage initiative, it was reflected that the women in Alaska didn’t really have to work that hard to get it. Then I read that, “the provision of women’s suffrage was simply given to them. I think there is more to that history than that, but a newspaper publication at the time, The Daily Alaskan, in 1904, argued that while women’s suffrage might be disfavored as a general proposition, the merits were different in Alaska.

And he says the women there “are brave and noble helpers in the development of a frontier country” and “not the pampered dolls of society.”

So today it still probably holds true that we have some pretty strong women in Alaska. We own and operate fishing vessels. We work as oil rig operators, diesel mechanics. We have some extraordinary Alaskan women, industry leaders leading our Alaska Native corporations, leading our oil companies. We are leaders in education and advocates for children and seniors and victims of domestic violence. They truly have helped not only our State but our country.

The 100th Anniversary of Women’s Suffrage is a reminder of the progress that we have made as a nation. But we know that we have more to do and that inequities remain whether in the workplace or within the family. Claiming that work is a matter that we have not relaxed on. That work includes getting the Equal Rights Amendment signed into law.

The Equal Rights Amendment was first written and introduced by Alice Paul at a conference commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Seneca Falls Convention in 1923. But it wasn’t until 1972 that the ERA passed through Congress and was sent to the States for ratification. That amendment that was eventually extended until 1982.

It is a pretty simple amendment. It is pretty short. “Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.” That is the Equal Rights Amendment, in addition to the implementing provisions following that. But that is the context.

In Alaska, I am proud to say that we were one of the early adopters, having ratified the Equal Rights Amendment on April 5, 1972. More recently, Virginia became the 38th State to have ratified the amendment, which brings us to the three-fourths threshold needed for ratification. Unfortunately, it had already expired, so Senator CARDIN and I have introduced a resolution, S.J. Res. 6, which would remove the time limit from the joint resolution that passed the Congress in 1972.

I have asserted time and again—and Senator CARDIN, so many—we have said that you cannot put a time limit on women’s equality. It has been 100 years since women were granted the equal right of voting. Women’s equality is fundamental to the American way of life, and it is far past time to be expressly recognized in the Constitution.

I thank Senator CARDIN for his leadership in working on this resolution with me and all the Members of Congress who fought with us in support of the ERA. I thank the advocates who continue to call their Senators, call their Congressmen, who lift their voices to support this important cause. We have work to do. We will continue that work.

I want to note that my colleague Senator CARDIN was here on the floor, planning to speak on this matter today, but our time schedules got compressed, so his statement has been included as part of the RECORD. I want to acknowledge the good work and the partnership that we have on this.

With this, I yield the floor.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, in this time of renewed interest for fairness and equality for all men and women and nationwide and worldwide protests, I urge my colleagues to think about how they can do to support just society. Indeed, one of the founding documents of our country, the Declaration of Independence, provides that “all men are created equal,” in the famous words of Thomas Jefferson.

I want me remind about our story here as the Continental Congress met to debate independence of the United States from Great Britain. In a letter dated March 23, 1776, Abigail Adams wrote to her husband, the future President John Adams, urging him and the other Members of the Continental Congress not to forget about the Nation’s women when fighting for America’s freedom.

I urge my colleagues to think about how they can do to support just society. Indeed, one of the founding documents of our country, the Declaration of Independence, provides that “all men are created equal,” in the famous words of Thomas Jefferson.

Alice Paul, leader of the National Women's Party, recognized the need for further laws in order to provide full legal equality to women in all activities, not just voting. Her proposal for an amendment for equal treatment under the law regardless of sex marked the beginning of the ERA. U.S. Senator Charles Curtis would introduce this proposal for the first time in October 1921. Over the years, both the Democratic Party and the Republican Party would include the ERA in their platforms. Elliot Richardson and Kennedy both indicated their support for the ERA. Needless to say, the ERA has a long history, and throughout that time, it enjoyed the notable bipartisan support.

The ERA has been able to count on such support precisely because of the widespread need recognized by both sides of the aisle for equal treatment under the law. What is at stake here is simply the issue of putting women on an equal footing with men. It is not about empowering one demographic group over another, but ensuring that discrimination on the basis of sex is no longer an obstacle to prevent women from enjoying the same rights and protections that men enjoy.

As the late Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia articulated: “Certainly the Constitution does not require discrimination on the basis of sex. The only issue is whether it prohibits it. It doesn’t.”

When Congresswoman Martha Griffiths introduced her ERA in Congress in the 92nd Congress, the House of Representatives passed the measure by a vote of 354 yeas to 24 nays. Five months later, the Senate passed it by a vote of 84 yeas to 8 nays. It received an immediate endorsement from President Richard Nixon upon its passage. While the ERA would in time become ratified by most States, it fell just three short of the required 38 votes. The fight requirement of 38 states proved to be a major obstacle for the ERA aims to fill this gap in the law.

The fight requirement of 38 states proved to be a major obstacle for the ERA aims to fill this gap in the law.

When Senator MURkowski and I came together to introduce S.J. Res. 6 on January 26, 2019, we committed ourselves to advancing this nearly century-long fight for equality between men and women. Our measure would remove the deadline for ratification.

Remember that the Constitution contains no deadline for the ratification of constitutional amendments, and in 1992 Congress declared the 27th Amendment ratified after more than 200 years, which prohibits Congress from changing its own pay before an intervening election. And the States have recently woken up when it comes to the ERA, with Illinois, Nevada, and, most recently, Virginia ratifying the ERA, reaching the number of 38 State ratifications, or three-quarters of the States.

I would note that our companion House resolution introduced by Congresswoman JACKIE SPEIER was passed by the House earlier this year, and so this issue is awaiting final action in the Senate.

As Congress looks to what it can do to create a more just society, ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, ERA, would finally give women the legal protection consistent with ideals of our Nation. sprinted towards the finish line, and we have partnered with Republican Senator LISA MURKOWSKI of Alaska in introducing a joint resolution that would remove the deadline for ratification of this crucial amendment.

And here is a historic day to discuss it, as the Senate approved the women’s suffrage amendment—the 19th Amendment to our Constitution—on June 4, 1919.

I ask unanimous consent to include in the RECORD a joint editorial that I wrote with my colleague and friend, Senator MURkowski of Alaska, talking about why it is time to finally ratify the ERA.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, Jan. 23, 2019]

IT’S TIME TO FINALLY PASS THE EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT

(By Ben Cardin and Lisa Murkowski)

Men and women should be treated equally under the law. It seems pretty basic, right? As we approach the 196th anniversary of women’s suffrage, it comes as a shock to so many that the U.S. Constitution does not guarantee women the same rights and protections as men.

We come from different ends of the political spectrum, but we agree that this needs to change. Women compose a majority of the American population but continue to be underrepresented in government, elected office, the courts and business world. A level playing field should not be a euphemism but rather a reality for women (and men) from Anchorage to Annapolis and everywhere in between.

“Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.”

This is the full substance of the Equal Rights Amendment. It is a little less than a tweet, but it will make a positive difference in the lives of millions of women.

Why is this still necessary? During a 2011 interview, Justice Antonin Scalia summed up the need for an Equal Rights Amendment. He said: “Certainly the Constitution does not require discrimination on the basis of sex. The one issue is whether it prohibits it. It doesn’t.”

On the other side of the spectrum, Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg laid out the rationale for the ERA in February of 1992, just five years before the Constitution wrote it out of the joint resolution proposing the amendment. This is to say the amendment itself has no arbitrary deadline attached.

As we approach the 100th anniversary of women’s suffrage, we must remove the deadline for ratification.

The states finally ratified the 27th Amendment in 1992 regarding congressional pay raises. But more than 200 years later, Congress can do its part by explicitly removing the deadline it once set.

Article V of the Constitution contains no time limits for ratification of amendments. The states finally ratified the 27th Amendment in 1992 regarding congressional pay raises. But more than 200 years later, Congress can do its part by explicitly removing the deadline it once set.

The original deadline for ERA ratification was not in the amendment itself, but only in the text of the joint resolution proposing the amendment. This is to say the amendment itself has no arbitrary deadline attached.

We are proud to work together on a bipartisan basis to move this essential legislation over the finish line and finally make the ERA part of the Constitution—guaranteeing equality under the law for women.

Women should not be held back or provided less opportunity, respect or protections under the law because of their gender. This is not a partisan issue but one of universal human rights. Gender equality should be an economic, basic principle that we all agree on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BRAUN). The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I want to thank the Senator from Alas- ka for her eloquent remarks, and I am glad I was here to have a chance to listen to them, both on equal rights, rea- lly, for all Americans. It is not possible for us to speak on any subject today without recognizing what is going on in the country.

A couple of comments that come to my mind is how I think what happened as a result of the incident in Minneapolis, where George Floyd in Minneapolis were, first, the comment of the leader of the peaceful protest in Nashville. There were more than 100,000 there, and I am glad the next day that she was disappointed by the riot- ers and looters because they dishonor- ed the memory of George Floyd and dishonored the peaceful protest against racial discrimination. I thought she did a great job and expressed the feeling of most Tennesseans.

The other comment I thought about was that of our colleague Senator Tm
Scott of South Carolina, who is one of three African-American Members of the U.S. Senate. He told us a couple of years ago in a private Bible study—and I asked him later if I could mention it—that he was stopped 7 times—an African-American man—in his hometown. Charleston, SC, for being a Black man in the wrong place, even while he was the vice mayor of his hometown. I asked him about that again this week. He said: Yes, it happened again last month. I think most of us don’t know how to think about the fact that those of us who aren’t African American, aren’t Black. To think about that, I think, helps us begin the process of understanding the feelings that are going on in the country right now, most of which can’t be solved by laws. They will have to be changed by attitudes.

GOING BACK TO COLLEGE SAFELY

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to make comments on two other subjects. The first is about a subject that is concerning about 70, 75 million American families; that is, going back to college and going back safely. The question on the minds of many Americans: Will we be going back to college? Will our children be going back to school?

We finished a hearing today—the Presiding Officer was present; the Senator from Indiana. We had the Vice President. We had the Federal Government can provide advice. The Federal Government, as it is doing through the Shark Tank, as we call it, can provide advice. The Federal Government can provide additional funding for campuses, as we did in the CARES Act. Those are some of the things we can do from here. But the things we ought not to try to do from here are to order California to open its campuses if California doesn’t want to do or to tell Purdue and Notre Dame and Brown and the University of Tennessee and Vanderbilt that they can’t open their campuses. We ought to be careful about telling everybody exactly what to do. We had a very big event here 4, 5 years ago when we fixed No Child Left Behind. Everybody wanted it fixed—Democrats, Republicans, labor unions, Georgetown teachers. Why? Because after a while, everybody got tired of Washington, DC, telling 100,000 public schools exactly what to do, what teachers to hire, what curriculum to have—all of these things. The same is true with our colleges and universities.

Our system of colleges and universities is the best in the world. Everybody wants to go to college. I think the students to come back. Of course, wise leadership can address that. But I think, as all of us have looked at our colleges, wise leadership can make colleges among the safest communities to live and work in because of the size, because colleges have certain advantages. In the first place, most of the campus community is young. While we can’t be cavalier about the effect of COVID–19 on young people, as Dr. Fauci has warned us, the fact is that COVID–19 seems to hurt the young much less.

The second reason it would be easier to go back to college is that there is a lot of space in colleges that isn’t used. Colleges are the most notorious watershed in America; it is rare that a class is taught in the early morning or late evening or on Saturdays or in the summers. There is plenty of room to spread out on most college campuses. As we learn more and more about COVID–19, it looks like there are three things we really need to do: Keep 6 feet apart, wash our hands, and wear a mask. Do those three things, and we can probably go back to school, back to work, and most of the things we would like to do.

At a college, as President Daniels says, he intends to develop a culture of masks. Vanderbilt University is going to require a mask to be worn in all indoor situations. Then they are taking a number of other steps. Concerts and parties and large gatherings are out. Flu shots and grab-and-go meals are in. There will be systematic testing, and testing will be done in different ways. They are not going to test every student, she said in an article in the New York Times a few weeks ago.

The president of Purdue said: Well, maybe systematic testing. There will be different strategies for testing, but the goal of testing is two things. One is containing the disease; that is, identifying the sick and the exposed so that they can be quarantined so the rest of us don’t have to be, and the other is to build confidence. I think that when I took a test last week after I was exposed to COVID–19, I went home for 2 weeks of self-isolation, as the attending physician said I should do. That should have been it, but I went to my local public health department and took a test, which turned out to be negative, for peace of mind. It gave me more confidence to go back home and be with my family.

The anticipation is that there will be plenty of testing. Admiral Giroir, the Assistant Secretary of Public Health, has told our committee, we are, in the United States, doing about 10 million tests a month now. States are submitting to the Federal Government a plan each month about their testing needs. The Federal Government is helping fill in any gaps. Over the next 2, 3 months, the number of tests will go from about 10 million a month to 40 or 50 million tests a month. That is a lot of tests. We will be testing more than any country in the world.

My guess is that colleges and universities—even though there are 6,000 of them, 127 different institutions in Tennessee—if they will be in touch with their Governor and be a part of the State testing plan, they can have adequate tests, not only to contain the disease and isolate those who should be isolated but to give peace of mind to other students and faculty and members of the community who come onboard.

Finally, we talked a little bit about the role of the Federal Government. We have a classic discussion about that here. Some want to say Washington has some kind of power over this. Some want to say the State should do it. Generally, our friends on the Democratic side trust Washington, DC; generally, we on the Republican side trust the States. But there is a role for both. The Federal Government can order California to order California to open its campuses. But the things we ought not to try to do from here are to order California to open its campuses if California doesn’t want to do or to tell Purdue and Notre Dame and Brown and the University of Tennessee and Vanderbilt that they can’t open their campuses. We ought to be careful about telling everybody exactly what to do.

While the Federal Government needs to create an umbrella in which individual campuses can go back to school safely, we need to stop the kind of thinking that is needed to be careful about telling everybody exactly what to do.

We had a very big event here 4, 5 years ago when we fixed No Child Left Behind. Everybody wanted it fixed—Democrats, Republicans, labor unions, Government teachers. Why? Because after a while, everybody got tired of Washington, DC, telling 100,000 public schools exactly what to do, what teachers to hire, what curriculum to have—all of these things. The same is true with our colleges and universities.
there by Washington ordering what it should do, and Washington shouldn’t order what it should do about this disease. It should advise; it should help; it can help send money. But the autonomy of each campus ought to be respected.

One other thing about the colleges and universities have asked for from us is liability protection.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION

Chairman, Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. Patty Murray,

Ranking Member, Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN ALEXANDER AND RANKING MEMBER MURRAY: On behalf of the American Council on Education, the undersigned chair and ranking member of the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, we are writing to you to request emergency funds to support our nation’s higher education institutions, whose bottom lines have been devastated by the COVID-19 pandemic.

It is hardly necessary to describe the challenges in procuring and providing the extensive amounts of personal protective equipment and making the physical modifications needed to assure the ongoing safety of the campus community. As colleges and universities prepare to open in the fall, they will be doing so under conditions and circumstances that will dramatically complicate the ability of many campuses to reopen.

Institutions are not asking for the federal government to make them whole, but they need support if they are to have any chance at returning to something resembling normal operations.

While institutions will be taking extensive measures such as those noted above in combination with existing public health education programs and outreach—encouraging safety measures such as the wearing of masks, hand washing, and social distancing and expectant shared responsibility for behavior—it will be impossible to completely eliminate the transmission of this highly contagious virus. It is not only possible, but perhaps very likely that any campus reopening will result in some COVID-19 infections within the campus community.

As a result, institutions are facing enormous uncertainty about COVID-19-related standards of care and corresponding fears of possible litigation, even when they have employed reasonable decision-making and done everything within their power to keep students, employees, and visitors as safe as possible. In addition to providing critical financial support for institutions that have been hard-hit during this crisis, we believe Congress should pass legislation providing a timely, temporary, and targeted federal safety harbor from liability for illness or the spread of illness when good faith efforts are made to comply with applicable local, state, and federal public health standards. These protections should preserve recourse for those injured by the bad acts of those engaged in egregious misconduct or gross negligence.

Thank you again for your willingness to examine these important issues during today’s hearing. We look forward to working with you and your colleagues on this urgent matter.

Sincerely,

Ted Mitchell,

President.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

OPENING STATEMENT

COVID-19: GOING BACK TO COLLEGE SAFELY—THURSDAY, JUNE 4 AT 10 A.M.

Introduction

The question for administrators of 6,000 colleges and universities is not whether to reopen in August, but how to do it safely.

Most are working overtime to get ready for one of the surest signs that American life is regaining its rhythm: 20 million students going back to college.

Our witnesses today are here to tell us their strategies for reopening safely: Mitch Daniels, President of Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN; Christina Paxson, President of Brown University, Providence, RI; Logan Hampton, President of Lane College, Jacksonville, TN; Georges Benjamin, MD, Executive Director of American Public Health Association, Washington, DC.

Best health practices

Purdue University, the University of South Carolina, Rice University, Creghtton University, and The University of Notre Dame will finish in-person classes before Thanksgiving to further spread of COVID-19 during flu season.

Vanderbilt will require face masks in classrooms.

To make social distancing easier, colleges are rescheduling classrooms usually empty in early mornings, evenings, weekends and summer. Concerts and parties are out. Grab and go meal options, flu shots and temperature checks are in. Campuses will offer more online courses.

I recently was on a phone call with about 90 presidents of Tennessee’s 127 institutions of higher education, and almost all of them are planning to resume in-person classes in the fall, but they want governments to create liability protection against being sued if a student becomes sick.

Bucking the trend, California’s state university system will offer most of its courses online.

College testing strategies

All roads back to college lead through testing.

The availability of widespread testing will allow colleges to track and isolate students who have the virus or have been exposed to it, so the rest of the student body doesn’t advantage in providing a safe environment for students and faculty:

Testing is the key to providing this peace of mind that they, and their loved ones, are heading back into a safe environment. Testing is the key to providing this peace of mind.

COVID–19 plans should last for at least the full school year. Testing is the key to providing this peace of mind.\n
There are several reasons colleges have been less hurt by COVID–19.

For example: In Tennessee, nursing homes account for 50 percent of cases of COVID–19 infections but 36 percent of COVID–19 deaths.

Compare that with Tennesseans under the age of 5 today. Of the 101,712 COVID–19 deaths, at least 5 percent of deaths.

Still, there is much we are still learning about this virus. Dr. Anthony Fauci has warned against “cavalierly” assuming that young people are not at risk.

Second: Colleges are notorious wasters of space. As I wrote for Newsweek in 2009 to encourage colleges to embrace 3-year degrees: Former George Washington University president Stephen J. Trachtenberg estimates that if a typical college uses its facilities for academic purposes a little more than half the calendar year. “While college facilities sit empty, the college can also invest in student, energy, and debt-service expenses that contribute to the high cost of running a college,” he has written.

Students six feet apart will be a lot easier if colleges embrace a new efficiency and use more of their classrooms and spaces throughout the day and throughout the year.

Maybe that’s a lesson that will last beyond this virus crisis.

Third, tracking and tracing the virus will be easier to do at colleges—we know what classes students attend, and what dorms they live in. If colleges take it a step further and, for example, assign seats in class, infections will be even easier to track.

Fourth, a college can require students to wear masks. Campuses can make mask-wearing part of the student culture.

But environments pose a couple of challenges as well.

First, we know that 19 and 28-year-olds don’t wear masks the way that older people do. For example, the 2018 National Survey on Drug Use and Health found that a third of college students admitted to binge drinking in the past month. So a social-distanced, mask-wearing culture in class may not always extend into the evenings and weekends.

And second, 86 percent of undergraduate students are returning to campus according to the National Center for Education Statistics. That statistic includes big variations: 26 percent at public 4-year institutions, 2 percent live on campus at community colleges. Nearly half of undergraduates live within 10 miles of campus.

That means many students will leave and return, potentially exposing themselves and others to the virus—making social distancing and CDC-recommended health status checks all the more important.

Federalism

What should the federal government’s role be in helping colleges and universities safely reopen? Providing advice from the CDC about best practices

Funding for innovation, such as the shark tank I mentioned, so there’s an ample supply of rapid tests on campus.

Encouraging colleges and universities to work with states and get included in their testing plans, and then help states get supplies they need for testing.

Funding, such as the nearly $14 billion in CARES Act to address lost revenue due to COVID–19 and help students disrupted by the crisis.

Federal government can provide liability protections

Beyond that, decisions should be left to the individual campuses and local communities.

Federalism and a host of other things.

Conclusion

We know that a single lost year of college can lead to a student not graduating from college and set back career goals.

Already, disruption of university research projects has erased much of the progress that was being made with the record levels of research funding Congress has provided over the past decade.

Colleges and universities are microcosms. College presidents and administrators can make them among the safest small communities in the U.S. to live and work the rest of this year.

In doing so, they will help our country take its surest step toward normalcy.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Next week in our committee we will take a look at going back to school safely, K–12. That is a lot more families—20 million college students, 75 million children in K–12. And in every one of those families, in every one of those homes, I can tell you those families are worried about whether those children can go back to school and whether they can go safely.

I believe they can, and all across the country, Governors, classroom teachers, mayors, principals are working, just as we heard today from the college presidents, to make sure they go back safely.

GREAT AMERICAN OUTDOORS ACT

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, if I may switch gears to another subject, but on Monday, I believe, we will be casting the most important vote on conservation legislation, outdoors legislation, that we have had in 50 years.

That is quite a statement to make because we do lots of legislation in the U.S. Senate. I am not exaggerating when I say that. This is a piece of legislation that will do more for our public Federal lands—our national parks, our fish and wildlife lands, our Bureau of Reclamation Lands, the lands that hunters and fishermen use—any piece of legislation considered in at least 60 years. In addition, it will create permanent funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund, which has been a goal of Congress since it was passed first in 1964 and reaffirmed by Reagan's Commission on American Outdoors, which I chaired in 1985 and 1986. Finally, we are getting around to doing both of those things.

The United States is home to 6,000 colleges and universities—arguably the best system of higher education in the world because institutions have maximum autonomy and maximum direction from Washington on everything from their curriculum, tuition, admission policies, health care plans for students, and compensation for faculty. They set their own mission policies, health care plans for students, and compensation for faculty. They set their own tuition, admissions, and student aid.

It is ironic that the great universities of America are often the first to take action on pressing social needs, and that was being made with the record levels of research funding Congress has provided over the past decade. That statistic includes big variations: 26 percent at public 4-year institutions, 2 percent live on campus at community colleges. Nearly half of undergraduates live within 10 miles of campus.

The legislation that I am describing has broad support of President Trump. In fact, it couldn't happen without President Trump because the Office of Management and Budget has to approve the method of funding we are doing. They have approved it, and it is in the President's budget. It has the support of 59 cosponsors in this body—Democrats and Republicans—who are working together on it in a remarkable way.

People say that we are divided. Well, we are in lots of ways, but in other ways we are not. Ask Senators Burr, Cantwell, Daines, Gardner, Heinrich, King, Manchin, Portman, and Warner. They are all in the middle of this. They will all take credit for it, and I will give credit to them. But everyone recognizes it takes all of us.

Why are we all in the middle of it? We have more than 800 sportsmen and outdoors groups who have endorsed this bill—more than 800. You tell me the last time you saw President Trump, 800 outdoors environmental groups, and 59 U.S. Senators on both sides of the aisle in favor of a piece of legislation that has a policy of what I believe is the most important piece of policy that would use it for an environmental benefit, which is the Land and Water Conservation Fund. It is a very simple idea that was recommended by President Johnson's Rockefeller division in 1964. It said this: Let's set aside a certain amount of money every year—$900 million. Half will go to the States, and half will go to the Federal Government and buy land that ought to be protected. It might be a city park or it might be an inholding in a national park. It could be either of those things. This has been going on all that time. Yet what the agreement was in 1964 was that we would get the money from offshore drilling in order to pay for it. We would create an environmental burden—that is, allow offshore drilling—and we would use it for an environmental benefit, which is the Land and Water Conservation Fund. That made a lot of sense.

So, every year, Congress has appropriate money for that, but the idea was that the amount would be certain. It would be $900 million every year, and that has never happened. In 1985 and 1986, President Reagan appointed a commission to look at the American outdoors. I was the chairman of it. The principal recommendation was to make the Land and Water Conservation Fund permanent and have permanent funding. So, for 60 years, Presidents and Congresses have been trying to do this, but it hasn't gone done. Monday is the day to get it done.

My hope is that all Members of the U.S. Senate will be back here for votes on Monday. Some of us have been a little delinquent in our attendance on the Monday votes, but we need 60 votes on Monday to advance the bill. Then we will need 60 votes a couple of more times to pass the bill. Then it can go to the House of Representatives to where an identical bill has been introduced.

To me, it would seem that a bill like this, at a time like this, would be something we would all welcome and want to support. There is nothing any other issue is more urgent than to get outside of our homes and get in the fresh air, and these lands are where we go. Some of them are city parks, and some of them are big parks, like Yellowstone and Yosemite and the Great Smokies. Yet they are all treated as though they are run down. They are run down. The bathrooms leak. The sewage systems have closed camp grounds. In some cases, the visitors' centers are embarrassing. The roads have potholes, and the access roads aren't built for the fishermen. This is a chance for us to take care of that.

I look forward to the vote on cloture on Monday. I hope we get a big vote and send a strong signal to the American people that we in Congress have heard them and that, even in a time of crisis like this, we can work together and do important work.

There is one more aspect to it. This is an infrastructure bill, and infrastructure means lots of jobs. There are various numbers that have been thrown around—40,000, 100,000—but anytime you spend $14 billion over 5 years on projects that are ready to go in our cities and towns all over the country, especially in rural areas, it is going to help a country that has such a high unemployment rate. This is the most important conservation and outdoors legislation in 50 years. In addition to that, it is an infrastructure bill. That sounds like a pretty good value for Monday.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD after my speech this morning on Going Back to College Safely as well as the letter from American Council on Education.

Mr. McConnel. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TIANANMEN SQUARE MASSACRE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, today marks the anniversary of the 1989 Tiananmen Square Massacre, when students led demonstrations for greater accountability, constitutional due process, democracy, freedom of speech. One million people participated in these historic protests.
Tragically, the Chinese Communist Party responded with ruthless force, killing demonstrators and bystanders. Troops with assault rifles and tanks fired at demonstrators and those trying to block the military’s advance into Tiananmen Square. Several hundred thousand people were killed that day.

China has been ruled by a brutal, authoritarian regime, a communist regime, since 1949.

This regime has not changed its nature, and we see that today in the South China Sea, Hong Kong, against Taiwan, and in its response to the COVID–19 pandemic.

REMEMBERING ITALIA MARIE KELLY

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, on Sunday, a young Iowan from Dav-enport set out to exercise her constitutional rights by peacefully protesting the death, animating death of George Floyd. But when agitators turned things violent, Italia Marie Kelly decided it was time to go. As she was trying to leave, she was struck and killed by a bullet. She was only 22.

Italy was protesting against violence, but she couldn’t escape it.

We must stand up against violence, racism and abuses by law enforcement. We must also stand up against those who hijack peaceful protests. More death and destruction is no way to honor the legacies of those lost.

REMEMBERING JEANNETTE PRIEBE

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I am sorry to note the passing of Jeannette Priebé, a longtime friend and an instrumental part of my team when I was Jefferson County judge-executive. Jeannette was a skilled public servant, animated with a fierce spirit for our work. Today, I would like to pay tribute to her life and her many contributions to our Commonwealth.

Jeannette’s work embodied President Reagan’s notion that “personnel is policy.” A great deal of her career was dedicated to putting the right individuals into positions of consequence, regardless of political affiliation. Jeannette became the first female personnel director of the Louisville Civil Service Board and later ran Jefferson County’s personnel office. Her unyielding diligence made local government more effective for the families we served.

Take, for example, Jeannette’s transformative impact on the city’s police force. To address a serious under-representation of African Americans in the department, she intentionally placed a strong emphasis on giving qualified, minority candidates a fair shot. She helped create a police force that better represented the community it protected.

Jeannette joined my team when I was the newly elected Republican judge surrounded on all sides by skeptical Democrats. Almost everything we did brought an uphill climb. As a result, my staff and I developed a deep bond and a collective sense of purpose.

In professionalizing the personnel office, Jeannette forever let the bureaucracy bow down. She did away with political patronage, insisting on merit in the county’s policymakers. She knew the rules governing her position and used them to shake the malaise off local government. If I told Jeannette where I wanted to end up on a particular policy, she could chart the course to get there. She was absolutely critical to our accomplishments for the people of Jefferson County.

There is perhaps no better example than the hiring of Norma Fletcher as the consumer protection division director. Norma might not have been the conventional choice among the stack of 60-plus resumes. She was a 26-year-old attorney who had only recently joined the Defense Justice Project. In Jeannette’s characteristic way, however, she saw Norma’s initiative and drive. Norma got the job and would prove an invaluable asset to Jefferson County over the coming years in several of her roles. I am grateful that Jeannette recognized the potential of Norma and several other talented individuals who made our administration better as a result.

Jeannette’s job came with many serious responsibilities. But she never took herself or her colleagues too seriously. She was quick to break the tension with a joke and a smile. Her deep reservoir of faith helped give us all strength, even on the most grueling days. I will warmly remember the times she invited me to her home for dinner. Jeannette was a wonderful cook, and I enjoyed the chance to spend time with her, her husband Victor, and their family.

Throughout my career, I have been lucky to work with some of the most capable and trustworthy staff around. Much of my early team was directly attributable to Jeannette’s influence. After she left the county courthouse, I wasn’t certain I would ever find another person quite like her. Then, about a decade ago, Jeannette’s daughter Angie joined my staff. As my director of State operations, Angie has been tireless in helping me represent Kentucky in the Senate. She is so impressive in her own right and my wonderful reflection of her mother. I am grateful that brilliance happens to run in this particular family.

It was a sincere privilege to call Jeannette a friend for so many years. I am forever grateful for her impression on my life and on lives around Jefferson County. I join with her family in remembering this remarkable Kentuckian.

PROTESTS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, on Monday I watched the shameful scene a
And neither of these pursuits will be made easier or safer by an overly aggressive use of our military, active duty or National Guard. The United States has a long and, to be fair, somewhat checkered history of using our armed forces to enforce domestic laws. The issue for us today is not whether this authority exists, but whether it will be wisely administered.

I remain confident in the professionalism of our men and women in uniform. They will serve with honor and with compassion. They will obey lawful orders. But I am less confident in the soundness of the orders they will be given by this commander in chief, and I am not convinced that the conditions on our streets, as bad as they are, have risen to the level that justifies a heavy reliance on military troops. Indeed, we have not crossed the threshold that would make it appropriate to invoke the provisions of the Insurrection Act.

Furthermore, I am deeply worried that as they execute their orders, the members of our military will be co-opted for political purposes.

Even in the midst of the carnage we are witnessing, we must endeavor to see American cities and towns as our homes and our neighbors as our fellow citizens—not “battle spaces” to be dominated, and must never become so.

We must ensure that African Americans—indeed all Americans—have rights under the Constitution, the same justice under the law, and the same considerations that we witnessed in Lafayette Park. We are witness to the consequences of three years of this deliberate effort. We are witnessing the consequences of our nation’s elected leaders and their country. We know that we are better than that.

We can come through this trying time stronger, and with a renewed sense of purpose and respect for one another. The pandemic has shown us that it is not only our troops who must offer the ultimate sacrifice for the safety of the community. Americans in hospitals, grocery stores, post offices, and elsewhere have put their lives on the line in order to serve their fellow citizens and their country. We know that we are better than the abuse of executive authority that we witnessed this week. We must reject and hold accountable those in office who would make a mockery of our Constitution. At the same time, we must remember Lincoln’s “better angels,” and listen to them, as we work to unite.

Only by adopting a new path—which means, true to the original path of our founding ideals—will we again be a country admired and respected at home and abroad.

(At the request of Mr. Durbin, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the Record.)

Mr. TESTER. Mr. President, I was absent when the Senate voted on vote number 112 to invoke cloture on Executive Calendar #697, Michael Pack of Maryland, to be Chief Executive Officer of the Broadcasting Board of Governors. On vote number 112, had I been present, I would have voted no on the motion to invoke cloture on Mr. Pack.

On vote number 113, had I been present, I would have voted no on the motion to confirm Mr. Pack.

BUDGET SCOREKEEPING REPORT

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise to submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report for June 2020. This is my first scorekeeping report since I filed the deemed budget resolution for fiscal year 2021 on May 4, 2020, as required by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2019, BBA19. The report compares current-year figures for lending and revenues with the amounts agreed to in BBA19. In the Senate, this information is used to determine whether budgetary points of order lie against pending legislation. The Republican staff of the Budget Committee and the Congressional Budget Office, CBO, prepared this report pursuant to section 308(b) of the Congressional Budget Act (CBA). The information included in this report is current through June 1, 2020.

In general, my filing of May 4 established the following enforceable budgetary levels: (1) allocations for fiscal year 2021 for the Committee on Appropriations; (2) allocations for fiscal years 2021, 2021 through 2025, and 2021 through 2030 for committees other than the Committee on Appropriations; (3) aggregate spending levels for fiscal year 2021; (4) aggregate revenue levels for fiscal years 2021, 2021 through 2025, and 2021 through 2030; and (5) aggregate levels of outlays and revenue for fiscal years 2021, 2021 through 2025, and 2021 through 2030 for Social Security. Allocations and aggregates for fiscal year 2020 are not over the caps, and continue to be enforced under the fiscal year 2020 deemed budget that was filed on September 9, 2019.

The figures underpinning the new enforceable levels are based on the discretionary spending limits set forth in the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2019 and CBO’s March 2020 baseline, adjusted to reflect legislation enacted between the publication of the baseline and my May 4 filing. Enforceable figures in this filing exclude the direct budgetary effects of provisions in legislation enacted after the release of the baseline that were designated as an emergency pursuant to section 412 of the fiscal year 2019 congressional budget resolution, H. Con. Res. 71, 115th Congress.

Budget Committee Republican staff prepared Tables A-G.

Table A gives the amount by which each Senate authorizing committee exceeds or falls below its allocations for budget authority and outlays under the fiscal year 2020 and fiscal year 2021 deemed budget resolutions. This information is used for enforcing committee allocations pursuant to section 302 of the CBA. To date, eight committees are out of compliance with their allocations for fiscal year 2020, however no committees have breached their newly released allocations this cycle.

Tables B and C provide the amount by which the Senate Committee on Appropriations is below or exceeds the statutory spending limits. This information is used to determine points of order related to the spending caps found in sections 312 and 314 of the CBA. The tables show that the Appropriations Committee is compliant with spending limits for fiscal years 2020 and 2021. The figures included in Table C reflect advanced and permanent appropriations that have already been enacted but will become available for obligation in fiscal year 2021.
Tables D and E display figures related to limits on the use of changes in mandatory programs. CHIMPs in appropriations bills. These $15 billion limits, found in the fiscal year 2018 budget resolution for fiscal year 2020 and section 307 of BBA19 for fiscal year 2021, currently show the Appropriations Committee in compliance.

Tables F and G provide the amount of budget authority enacted for 2020 and 2021, respectively, that have been designated as either for an emergency or for overseas contingency operations (OCO), pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended. Funding that receives either of these designations results in caps adjustments to enforceable discretionary spending limits. There is no limit on either emergency or OCO spending; however, any Senator may challenge the designation with a point of order to strike the designation on the floor.

In addition to the tables provided by the Budget Committee Republican staff, I am submitting CBO tables which I will use to enforce budget totals approved by Congress.

Because legislation can still be enacted that would have an effect on fiscal year 2020, CBO provided spending and revenue reports for both fiscal year 2020 and fiscal year 2021. This information is used to enforce aggregate spending levels in budget resolutions under CBA section 311. CBO’s estimates show that current levels of spending for fiscal year 2020 exceed amounts in last year’s budget resolution by $56.6 billion in budget authority and $55.1 billion in outlays, 2020. Tables 1–2. Revenues are $114.8 billion below the revenue floor. As well, Social Security outlays are at levels assumed for 2020, while Social Security revenues are $16 million above levels assumed in budget.

For fiscal year 2021, the current law levels are $1,180.0 billion and $667.8 billion in budget authority and outlays, respectively, below allowable levels, 2021. Tables 1–2. This spending room will be spent down as regular appropriations bills are enacted for fiscal year 2021. Revenues and Social Security levels are at the levels assumed by the fiscal year 2021 deemed budget. CBO’s report also provides information needed to enforce the Senate pay-as-you-go, PAYGO, rule, 2021. Table 3. This rule is enforced under section 4106 of the 2018 budget resolution. The scorecard stands at zero for all enforceable levels consistent with the filing of newly deemed budget levels.

This submission also includes a table tracking the Senate’s budget enforcement activity on the floor since the enforcement filing on May 4, 2020. Since that filing, no points of order have been raised.

All years in the accompanying tables are fiscal years.

I ask unanimous consent that the accompanying tables be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

REMEMBERING MILELE CHIKASA ANANA

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. President, today I wish to honor the life and legacy of Milele Chikasa Anana, who passed away on May 6, 2020, at the age of 86. An activist, businesswoman, public servant, publisher, mentor, and change-maker, she was a dynamic force in Madison for over 50 years, helping to shape her community for the better and light the torch of many young leaders working to improve the lives of the city’s African-American community.

Milele was born and raised in Oklahoma in a family from Alabama and Indiana, and lived in Boston before making Madison, WI, her home in 1968 with her husband Jim. By that time, she had started a career in computer technology and worked for the NAACP, organizing in Boston for the educational rights of Black students.

Milele continued to develop her civic engagement and leadership in her early years in Madison when she was elected to the Madison School Board in 1974. She served as the first African American to serve on a school board anywhere in the State.

In another first—also in 1974—Milele became the first African-American affirmative action officer for the city of Madison, a post she would hold for 5 years. Under her determined and steadfast advocacy, the city made significant changes to its hiring practices to better recruit and hire candidates of color, particularly in the police department. She also addressed the lack of diversity on the city’s boards and commissions, bringing new perspective to bodies that were at the time dominated by White men. Milele established the Women’s Issues Committee and the Minority Affairs Committee, giving employees of color and female employees a greater voice. She was known to call out city leaders when she saw injustice or inadequate progress and kept them focused on the mission of her agency. Her impact as affirmative action officer is far-reaching to this very day.

Later in her career, Milele worked as interim director of the Madison Equal Opportunities Commission and was a founder of the Madison Black Chamber of Commerce, building its directory of Black-owned business and establishing Black Restaurant Week. She has been an active member and mentor to many organizations including the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Alumni Chapter, the Greater Madison Urban League, NAACP of Dane County, and Mt. Zion Baptist Church.

Milele Chikasa Anana is perhaps best known for her leadership of UMOJA Magazine, Wisconsin’s oldest black magazine. From 1990 to 2018, Milele served as editor and publisher, growing it from a 2-page monthly to a 52-page publication. Milele used UMOJA to celebrate the accomplishments and showcase the good deeds of Black leaders, community members, business owners, and youth.

Yet, despite these significant accomplishments, “Ms. Milele” or “Mother Milele,” as many called her, will be remembered most dearly as a dedicated mentor. Many influential African Americans have credited her with demonstrating the passion and persuasion that led to their success as leaders. Countless others looked to her as a role model who inspired them to join the fight for equal rights.

While small in stature, Milele leaves behind an enormous legacy. As a mother of 5, grandmother of 13, and great grandmother of 4, her character lives on as the matriarch of a loving family. Her tenacity and determination live on in each young person she encouraged and each leader she challenged to do better. I know I will think of Milele every time I see the pride of accomplishment in a young African-American woman’s eyes.

I consider myself lucky to have known Milele, and I am grateful that the depth of her spirit will continue to guide Madison toward a brighter, more just future.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO JEN COCO-MOLINA AND JAQUELYN LARA

• Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, I would like to have printed in the RECORD an article that was published in the Miami Herald. “These Miami special ed teachers brought the party to students on the last day of school.” I commend Ms. Coco-Molina and Ms. Lara for their dedication to Florida’s students, and the memories they created that will never be forgotten.

The material follows:

THESE MIAMI SPECIAL ED TEACHERS BROUGHT THE PARTY TO STUDENTS ON LAST DAY OF SCHOOL

(By Colleen Wright)

Special education teachers Jen Coco-Molina and Jacquelyn Lara couldn’t have their last day of school party at South Miami Senior High as usual, so they brought the party to their students.

They pulled up in front of Cristin Baez-Alvarez’s apartment building blasting Cristin’s favorite song. From the “mobile party” in Coco-Molina’s trunk, the teachers pulled out a goody bag just for 15-year-old Cristin: M&Ms, a daisy pen, a Disney Puppy Dog Pals coloring book and a smile balloon on a stick.

“It’s a happy balloon, like you, always smiling,” said Lara.

Cristin took the goody bag and a bite out of a red frosted Publix cupcake. She’s non-verbal, but her unflinching frosting-stained smile said it all. And what she couldn’t express, her mother said in Spanish.

“She’s emotional. She’s afraid that when she goes back upstairs, she’ll start crying,” mom Cristina Baez told Lara.

Like Coco-Molina and Lara, teachers everywhere have been adapting since the coronavirus pandemic catapulted them into online distance learning March 13. Wednesday was unceremoniously the last day of school for Miami-Dade County Public Schools. But the pair couldn’t let the school year end like this. Coco-Molina teaches math and Lara teaches English and science to 11th and tenth-graders with varying disabilities. All but one of the students they visited Wednesday will have a different pair of teachers next year.

“We’re their second moms,” said Coco-Molina. “We’re not just their teachers.”

Coco-Molina’s trunk was draped with a green plastic tablecloth. There were turquoise and pink paper lanterns, shiny streamers, and a letter board read “Enjoy your summer.” Next to the goody bags were cupcakes for the students, mini cupcakes for their families.

TEACHERS GET A SURPRISE

Max Ortiz waited on his front porch for his teachers with a surprise of his own. His mother made summer-themed gift bags for each teacher with beach bags, metal tumblers and makeup wipes. And he had assignment packets to turn in to each teacher.

The 16-year-old dashed up to the car. “Hi miss! How you doing?” she said as he took a vanilla cupcake. “I’ve been good, miss. It’s been a while.”

“You have been an ideal student,” Lara said through tears. “I wish I could have you as a student for the rest of your life.”

Cozy-Shea couldn’t hold back, either. “He came to us as a boy, and now he’s a freaking man,” she said. “He always needed our approval and now he’s so independent.”

TRIBUTE TO LAYLA EICHLER

Mr. DAINES. Mr. President, this week I have the honor of recognizing Layla Eichler of Jefferson County for her passion for helping others build better lives.

Layla Eichler is a treatment coordinator for the First Judicial District Treatment Court. Layla travels all across Montana to work with judges and their staff to create positive life changes for those who are suffering from substance dependency and substance abuse.

Layla has been a passionate leader of her team since 2015, providing activities, resources, and kindness for participants in her program. Most importantly, she dedicates her time building a community for those impacted by the vicious cycle of addiction. Layla sacrifices her personal time and money to create activities for participants to enjoy and try something new. For example, every week she hires a new location with the participants.

Since December of 2019, the number of graduates through her program has reached close to 40. The number of drug-free babies born has increased from 11 to 13. Four GEDs have been obtained. Seven have enrolled in college or graduated.

The lives Layla has touched have been made better by her unrelenting dedication to see her participants succeed.

It is my honor to recognize Layla for her selfless efforts to support her fellow Montanans to build better lives for themselves, their families, and their communities.

SENATE RESOLUTION 608—EXpressing the Sense of the Senate Condemning Threats to Hong Kong’s Freedoms and Autonomy on the 31st Anniversary of the Violent Repression of the Peaceful Protests Centered in Beijing’s Tiananmen Square

Mr. Rubio (for himself, Mr. Merkley, Mr. Gardner, Mrs. Fein- stein, Mr. Daines, Mr. King, Mr. Scott of South Dakota, Mr. Peters, Mr. Cornyn, Mr. Hawley, and Mr. Young) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res. 608

Whereas the 31st anniversary of the Tiananmen Square massacre is an especially poignant milestone, particularly as the autonomy of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region of the People’s Republic of China (“Hong Kong”) is guaranteed to the people of Hong Kong are currently under threat by possible national security legislation from the Government of the People’s Republic of China (“China”);

Whereas, during the spring of 1989, an estimated 1,000,000 people engaged in Tiananmen Square protests, and citizens in over 400 Chinese cities staged similar protests, including among many others, students, workers, academics, journalists and government employees;

Whereas the peaceful demonstrations of 1989 called upon the Government of China to eliminate corruption, accelerate economic and political reform, and protect human rights, particularly the freedoms of expression and assembly, issues that remain relevant in United States-China relations 31 years later;

Whereas, on June 4, 1989, troops of the People’s Liberation Army, at the behest of Chinese Communist Party leadership, attacked Tiananmen Square to repress demonstrators, causing the deaths of hundreds or possibly thousands of individuals;

Whereas, since June 4, 1989, the Government of China censors any mention of Tiananmen Square and imposes and harasses its own citizens who attempt to discuss or commemorate Tiananmen Square protests and their violent suppression; and

Whereas the Tiananmen Mothers—a group in China composed of parents and family members of individuals killed on or around June 4, 1989—have annually called upon the Government of China to reveal the truth of the events;

Whereas people of mainland China and Macau are again barred this year from commemorating the lives lost and the legacy of the victims;

Whereas the Government of China continues to view the demands of the Tiananmen protesters, including democracy, transparency, rights protections, and freedom of expression, as threats to the legitimacy of the Chinese Communist Party’s hold on political power;

Whereas the people of Hong Kong have commemorated the Tiananmen massacre each year faithfully in large numbers;

Whereas the Hong Kong Police Force has blocked the annual candlelight vigil to commemorate Tiananmen this year;

Whereas Hong Kong’s guaranteed freedoms and the rule of law have allowed it to be a prosperous bridge between mainland China and the global community;

Whereas Hong Kong’s autonomy and freedoms have been eroded by the actions of the Government of the People’s Republic of China and the Government of Hong Kong, particularly over the past several years, with disqualifications of elected members of Hong Kong’s Legislative Council, blocking citizens from running for office, failing to address the petitions of the Hong Kong people, banning a political party advocating Hong Kong independence, and failing to address police excessive use of force;

Whereas the political turmoil in Hong Kong is primarily the result of actions of the Government of the People’s Republic of China and the Government of Hong Kong, including the arbitrary arrests of peaceful protesters, including well-known democracy advocates such as Martin Lee, Jimmy Lai, Lee Cheuk Yan, Margaret Ng, Albert Ho, Leung Kwok-hung, Au Nok-hin, Pigo Chan, and others;

Whereas China’s National People’s Congress has failed to pass national security legislation with respect to Hong Kong;

Whereas the implementation of that legislation signals a severe blow to Hong Kong’s autonomy, and the absorption of the British-Led Asian Regional Development of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Government of the People’s Republic of China on the Question of Hong Kong, done at Beijing on December 19, 1984;

Whereas Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, pursuant to the United States-Hong Kong Policy Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-383), has determined that Hong Kong no longer manifests a “high degree of autonomy” distinct from mainland China;

Whereas various national security laws are used widely in mainland China to imprison or arbitrarily detain dissidents, rights defenders, civil society advocates, religious leaders and their adherents, and persons from ethnic minorities;

Whereas human rights, democracy, and religious freedom advocates have been imprisoned and detained under vague national security laws in mainland China, including Wu Gan, Qin Yongmin, Zhou Shifeng, Yu Wensheng, Wang Yi; and Nobel laureate Liu Xiaobo, who died in state custody nearly three years ago;

Whereas the United States Congress, particularly in recent years, has passed numerous measures articulating the longstanding commitment of the United States to human rights and the bipartisan commitment to human rights in China, including—

(1) the Global Magnitsky Human Rights Accountability Act (subtitle F of title XII of Public Law 114-328; 22 U.S.C. 2656 note);
(2) the North Korean Human Rights Accountability Act (Public Law 115-196);
(3) the Reciprocal Access to Tibet Act of 2018 (Public Law 115-330);
(4) the Hong Kong Human Rights and Democracy Act of 2019 (Public Law 116-76); and
(5) the Uyghur Human Rights Policy Act (S. 3744, 116th Congress).

Whereas, on this day, we stand in solidarity with human rights lawyers, labor and free speech advocates, religious groups, and ethnic minorities in China, such as Tibetans, Uighurs, and other predominately Muslim ethnic minorities who face mass internment and surveillance, forced labor and family separations, and who are often forced to renounce their faith;

Whereas, on this day, we remember the words of the late Nobel Laureate Liu Xiaobo, who said there is “no force that can put an end to the human quest for freedom, and China will in the end become a nation ruled by law, where human rights reign supreme”; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) will commemorate the Tiananmen protesters and their violent repression at least once per year and continue to be free to do so publicly and everywhere across their country;
(2) expresses sympathy to the families of those killed, imprisoned, or exiled for their participation in the pro-democracy demonstrations during the spring of 1989;
(3) calls on the Government of China to allow those demonstration participants currently living in exile in the United States and other countries to return to China without risk of repercussions or retribution;
(4) condemns the use of violence, torture, and arbitrary detention as a means to repress the legitimate aspirations of the people of China to speak and associate freely, including to petition the government and challenge the policies and ideology of the Chinese Communist Party;
(5) calls on the Government of China to release all prisoners of conscience, including prisoners detained because of their participation in peaceful demonstrations or actions calling for the type of political reforms and rights protections pursued by those who gathered in Tiananmen Square in 1989 and including one million Uighurs and other predominately Muslim ethnic minorities in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region;
(6) condemns any forced imposition of national security legislation with respect to Hong Kong;
(7) calls upon the United States Government and the Secretary of State to use all available authorities to protect United States interests in Hong Kong and the freedoms of the Hong Kong people, including—

(A) encouraging the Standing Committee of the National People’s Congress of China “to work with the Hong Kong [Special Administrative Region] Government and the people of Hong Kong to mutually acceptable accommodation that will honor China’s international obligations under the UN-filed Sino-British Joint Declaration,’ as called for in the Joint Statement of the Governments of the United States, Australia, Canada, and the United Kingdom; and

(B) using all available diplomatic means and tools, including the repeal of the national security legislation adopted by the Standing Committee of the National People’s Congress of China on May 28, 2020;

(8) calls upon the President to encourage an international coalition to demand that China adhere to its international agreements and human rights obligations; and

(9) calls upon Hong Kong Chief Executive Carrie Lam to allow the Hong Kong people to exercise their “freedoms of speech, of the press and of publication; freedom of association, of assembly, of procession and of demonstration,” as guaranteed in Article 27 of the Basic Law of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region of the People’s Republic of China.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO OBJECT TO PROCEEDING
I, Senator Chuck Grassley, intend to object to the proceeding to the nomination of Marshall Billingslea, of Virginia, to be Under Secretary of State for Arms Control and International Security, vice Andrea L. Thompson, re-nominated (PN1732).

Following my bipartisan letter to the President on April 8, 2020, regarding the removal of the Intelligence Community Inspector General (IC IG), I sent a separate letter to the President regarding the removal of the Director of the Office of Inspector General of State Inspector General (State IG). My letter echoed the IC IG letter to the President and reminded him of his requirement under the Inspector General Reform Act to provide clear reasons for removal of inspectors general. I also raised concerns regarding the inherent conflicts of interest stemming from individuals holding political positions within the overseen agency as acting inspectors general. After a delay, the White House promised me a response to both the IC IG letter and my State IG letter that fulfilled the statutory requirement by providing substantive reasons for the removal. On the evening of May 26, 2020, I received a response from the White House, but it contained no explanation for the removal of the State IG and made no comment regarding the conflicts of interest issues that I had raised.

Though the Constitution gives the president the authority to manage executive branch personnel, Congress has made it clear that should the president find reason to remove an inspector general, there are a good reason for doing so. The White House’s response failed to address this requirement, which Congress clearly stated in statute and accompanying reports. I don’t dispute the President’s authority under the Constitution, but without sufficient explanation, the American people will be left speculating whether political or self-interests are to blame. That’s not good for the presidency or government accountability. This is only compounded when the acting IG maintains their presidially appointed position within the overseen agency.

Further, the White House’s response states that the President was acting in a manner that comport with the precedent that began under the Obama administration. The letter states that the President’s letter mirrors the one sent by President Obama when he removed IG Walpin. What that letter fails to mention is that President Obama, at the demand of myself and other members of this Chamber, eventually did send several letters explaining in much greater detail the reasons for the removal of Mr. Walpin. They were inadequate responses that continually changed and eventually resulted in a bicameral investigation into the matter, but reasons were provided.

I have attached copies of these letters and the aforementioned report for their consideration. I intend to hold until the notice requirement in the Inspector General Act of 1978, 5 U.S.C. app. 3(b) is met and the reasons for the IC IG removal are provided.
NOTICE OF INTENT TO OBJECT TO PROCEED

I, Senator Chuck Grassley, intend to object to the nomination of Christopher C. Miller of Virginia, to be Director of the National Counterterrorism Center, Office of the Director of National Intelligence dated June 2, 2020.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I intend to object to any unanimous consent request relating to the nomination of Christopher C. Miller, of Virginia, to be Director of the National Counterterrorism Center, Office of the Director of National Intelligence (PN1741).

On April 8, 2020, I sent a bipartisan letter to the President cosigned by seven of my colleagues regarding the removal of Intelligence Community Inspector General (IC IG) Michael Atkinson. That letter reminded the President of his requirement under the Inspector General Reform Act to provide clear reasons for such removal. After a delay, the White House promised me a response to my letter that fulfilled the statutory requirement by providing substantive reasons for the removal. On the evening of May 26, 2020, I received a response from the White House, but it contained no explanation for the removal of the IC IG.

Though the Constitution gives the president the authority to manage executive branch personnel, Congress has made it clear that should the president find reason to fire an inspector general, there ought to be a good reason for it. The White House’s response failed to address this requirement, which Congress clearly stated in statute and accompanying reports. I don’t dispute the President’s authority under the Constitution, but without sufficient explanation, the American people will be left to wonder whether political or self-interests are to blame. That’s not good for the presidency or government accountability.

Further, the White House’s response states that the President was acting in a manner that comported with the precedent that began under the Obama administration. The letter states that the President’s letter mirrors the one sent by President Obama when he removed IG Walpin. What that letter fails to mention is that President Obama and of myself and other members of this Chamber, eventually did send several letters explaining in much greater detail the reasons for the removal of Mr. Walpin. They were inadequate responses that continually changed and eventually resulted in a bicameral investigation into the matter, but reasons were provided.

I have attached copies of these letters and the aforementioned report for the Record, I intend to maintain this hold until the notice requirement in the Inspector General Act of 1977, 5 U.S.C. app. § 3 (b) is met and the reasons for the IC IGs removal are provided.

CONFIRMATION

Executive nomination confirmed by the Senate: June 4, 2020:

MICHAEL PACK, OF MARYLAND, TO BE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE BROADCASTING BOARD OF GOVERNORS FOR THE TERM OF THREE YEARS.
Mr. HARRIS. Madam Speaker, as Co-Chair of the Congressional Hungarian-American Caucus, I rise today on the occasion of the 100th Anniversary of the Treaty of Trianon with Hungary signed on June 4, 1920, at the Paris Peace Conference at the end of the First World War.

The non-negotiable treaty cost Hungary over 70 percent of her territory and one-third or three million of her indigenous ethnic-Hungarian population. For the last one hundred years, these ethnic Hungarian minorities have had to live in neighboring countries, with their cultural and political lives suffering at times. The Hungarian-American Caucus is a bipartisan group of distinguished House members, which speaks to represent the interests of Hungarian American constituencies; foster bilateral relations between Hungary, a strong NATO ally, and the United States; and protect the rights of Hungarian minorities in Europe.

To that end, I include in the Record the following statement by the American Hungarian Federation, the oldest American Hungarian association in the United States, founded in 1906 in Cleveland, Ohio, and based in Washington, D.C., on the occasion of this 100th Anniversary of the Treaty of Trianon.

THE TREATY OF TRIANON: A HUNGARIAN TRAGEDY

"Ancient poets and theologians could not imagine such devastation which Trianon brought to the innocent. In their eyes, that was for the damned in Hell."—Sir Winston Churchill

One hundred years ago, June 4, 1920, the Hungarian delegation to the Paris Peace Conference was forced to sign the punishing Treaty of Trianon, arguably the most severe of all the post-World War I settlements concluded at the conference. Led by the Big Four—the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy—those treaties were collectively designed to conclude the First World War and make the “world safe for democracy,” according to President Woodrow Wilson.

The “peacemakers” instead concocted a hazardous brew. The ostensibly “peace” turned out to be only an armistice as World War II erupted merely 20 years later. Tens of millions of civilians and members of the military died in that war; the Holocaust devastated the European Jewish community; a murderous Stalin occupied Central and Eastern Europe; and the world was thrust into a costly and dangerous Cold War. Supposedly in the name of national self-determination, Trianon dismembered the thousand-year-old Kingdom of Hungary, a self-contained, geographically and economically coherent and durable formation in the Carpathian Basin, boasting the longest lasting historical borders in Europe.

The resulting non-negotiable treaty cost Hungary over 70 percent of her territory and one-third or three million of her indigenous ethnic-Hungarian population. Add to this the loss of all her mineral wealth; her vast natural resources, industry, railways, and other infrastructure. Millions of Hungarians woke up one morning and saw borders arbitrarily redrawn around them without plebiscites, ignoring Wilson’s lofty goal of national self-determination. Wilson later referred to it, was never ratified by the United States; ignored a millennia of nation building and age-old cultural affiliations; created new and enlarged countries; and produced millions of new minorities who today struggle for survival of their ethnic identity. To this day, these minorities have been subjected to discrimination, intolerance and violence. Schools in the successor states limit students from studying in their native languages, Hungarian church properties have been confiscated; and cemeteries and cultural monuments have been vandalized. The “peacemakers” did insist that the new successor states, Romania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, sign various international instruments that included provisions for the protection of minorities. But those promises were kept.

Despite these promises and the fact that Romania obtained Transylvania from Hungary under the Treaty, Romania, two NATO allies. The Hungarian historical communities in those successor states were denied a range of rights that threaten their cultural existence. Hungarians in Serbia, Slovakia, Romania, and Ukraine have a right to self-determination by peaceful and democratic means. Such local governance would ensure democracy to beleaguered Hungarians, fulfill promises made to them one hundred years ago, and strengthen the democratic process by serving as a model of how majorities and minorities can work together to redress past wrongs.

Considering the far-reaching implications of discrimination, intolerance, and animosity directed at the Hungarian minorities, the response from the European Union and the United States to date has been tepid. Stronger measures must be taken to remedy the ongoing abuses of minority rights that contravene numerous European Commission standards.

Together, the European Union and United States must ensure that democratic principles and international norms and practices relating to national minorities will finally prevail in Central and Eastern Europe and that the twentifive years since the end of the war, the Holocaust devastation, and the Treaty of Trianon have not been in vain. This year marks the 100th Anniversary of the Treaty of Trianon.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a remarkable student, Mr. John McCall III.

John William McCall, III was born to Gladys McCall and John McCall, Jr. He is a native of Jackson, Mississippi, and the eldest of three siblings. His two brothers are Jamarkus and Jeremiah McCall. McCall aspires to live a life filled with gratitude. He is grateful to God for life and His direction, which he finds in His Word. Moreover, he is grateful to his parents for all the days and nights they have worked hard to put food on the table and to ensure that he and his brothers were well taken care of. He is also thankful for the ways they’ve nurtured him through life and for the prayers they have sent up on his behalf. Lastly, he is grateful for his family, church, and friends for their unwavering love and support.

Upon graduating this May 2020, John plans to attend graduate school to further study film and acting. John is a firm believer that
HONORING THE LEGACY OF DR. CASSANDRA "MELODY" MONTGOMERY

HON. RASHIDA TLAIB
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Ms. TLAIB. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the hard work and service of Dr. Cassandra Montgomery on behalf of the community in Detroit.

Over the years, Dr. Montgomery has taken on many roles, working in different capacities, but she has always remained steadfast in the pursuit of social justice. Dr. Montgomery first moved to Detroit from Alabama as a young child. She grew up in the beautiful city of Detroit in its golden age of growth. She experienced Motown's musical scene and enjoyed her youth spent in neighborhoods where goods and services could be found without even leaving the community. Dr. Montgomery also witnessed Detroit in the midst of the 1960s civil rights movement. She knew the pain of segregation through her childhood visits to Alabama, but she also bore witness to one of the most important speeches delivered by Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. at a speech at Cobo Hall in 1963.

These memories instilled in Dr. Montgomery that social justice is a need worth fighting for, something she carried through in her work. Dr. Montgomery built the foundation of her professional life in service to others, whether in social work, advocacy, or in counseling, she was a friend to the people of the City of Detroit. Those of us who knew her capacity at People's Community Services in Southwest Detroit know her particularly for her tenacity in preserving the culture of the neighborhood of Delray.

I therefore ask you to join me in tribute to Dr. Cassandra Montgomery, a beautiful soul and fighter for justice.

THANKFUL FOR THE GENEROSITY OF AIKEN CITIZENS

HON. JOE WILSON
OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TRIBUTE IN HONOR OF THE LIFE OF BARBARA ALLEN BABCOCK

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Ms. ESHOO. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor the life and extraordinary work of Barbara Allen Babcock. Born on July 26, 1938, in Washington, D.C., to Doris Moses and Henry Allen Babcock, she died at her Stanford, California home on April 18, 2020.

Barbara graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Pennsylvania and Yale Law School, where she was one of only 13 women in a class of 175. At Yale, she was an editor of the Law Review and graduated Order of the Coif. Her first job was a clerkship for Judge Henry Edgerton of the U.S. Court of Appeals District of Columbia Circuit, after which she was a criminal defense associate at Williams and Connolly. She left private practice in 1968 to become the first Director of the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia.

Barbara Babcock joined the faculty of Stanford Law School in 1972, became its first tenured woman professor, and was the Judge John Crown Professor of Law, Emerita, at the time of her death. At Stanford she was beloved by her students, and four times was the recipient of the John Bingham Hurlbut Award for excellence in teaching. She left Stanford for two years during the Carter Administration to serve as Assistant Attorney General for the Civil Division in the Department of Justice, and while in that position she advocated for the appointment of Ruth Bader Ginsburg to the United States Court of Appeals. Justice Ginsburg said later, “I would not hold the good job I have today were it not for Barbara.”

Barbara Babcock was a strong and effective advocate for women and minorities, and an inspiration to thousands of her students and others aspiring to legal careers. So many described her as warm, graceful, a great raconteur and a true friend. She was a leader, a pathbreaker, trailblazer and role model. She was an advocate for the importance of lawyers in society and for clinical education in law school, and helped to found Stanford’s first law clinic, now the Stanford Community Law Clinic.

Barbara Babcock was the author of many legal articles and several text books. She also wrote a memoir, Fish Raincoats: A Woman Lawyer’s Life, and Woman Lawyer: The Trials of Clara Foltz, about the first woman lawyer in California.

Madam Speaker, I ask the whole House of Representatives to join me in extending our condolences to Barbara Allen Babcock’s family and honoring her extraordinary life. Because of her lifetime of shaping generations to practice and love the law, create a more just society, and an unswerving commitment to see that women advanced in our nation, Barbara Babcock betted our country immeasurably and will forever be a national treasure.

Mr. MAST. Madam Speaker, I missed votes on May 27, 2020 due to being in Florida in anticipation of the SpaceX launch.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor a remarkable church, Samuel Chapel United Methodist Church.

Samuel Chapel United Methodist Church, originally named Samuel Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church, had its beginning in 1880 under the leadership of Rev. McBeth. With the help of God and a few members, a one room frame building was erected in the Southwestern section of Itta Bena.

Following the leadership of Rev. McBeth, Rev. Grant Orange was assigned to pastor the few members of Samuel Chapel. As time elapsed, Rev. E.C.F. Troupe. As the church grew under the leadership of Rev. Troupe, it became necessary to choose a new site which was in the Western section of Itta Bena, its current location. In 1911, the frame structure was replaced by a brick structure as Rev. Troupe’s vision for growth emerged.

Rev. H.B. Hart was the next pastor who lead the members in purchasing a parsonage, a house bought from Mrs. Nellie Mitchell. His leadership encompassed the organization of the church choir and securing pews and other serviceable facilities for the church.

During Rev. M.J. Stallings tenure, the membership diminished because of mass migration from the Itta Bena area. Under Rev. Stallings’ leadership, a decision was made to rebuild Samuel Chapel and the old structure was demolished and a new church was rebuilt in 1968. The dedication of the new Samuel Chapel United Methodist Church was February 20, 1977. Rev. Stallings Pastorage extended into 1982. The church, a brick building, was drawn up to resemble a cross. Samuel Chapel and the old structure were demolished and a new church was rebuilt in 1968.

Through it all, Dave has displayed a remarkable mix of traits that are rarely found rolled up in one person. Flat-out smarts. Intellectual curiosity. Practically—a groundedness in how things might actually work in the real world. Maybe that’s the health and safety guy in him. Humility. A willingness to speak truth to power and not to tell leaders what they want to hear, somehow without alienating them and indeed engendering their loyalty. A wry sense of humor, sometimes bleeding into bad jokes. Compassion, especially for his fellow travelers along the road to justice, person to person. How lucky I have been to have acquired Dave as an adopted-without-permission big brother so many years ago and, I might add, to have acquired a big sister in his life partner, Carol Regan. That’s the best two-for-one deal I ever got, all by signing up to help nursing home workers find a little power over their own work lives.

Now Dave says he is laying down his tools. If we’re honest, we often have mixed feelings about friends retiring as a reflection of our own mortality. But I have to admit, I can’t think of anyone who has earned a bit of rest from relentless labor more richly than Dave Snapp.

He always looked at work organically, as how best to organize something that needed to be accomplished, and thus seemed to own what he was doing so completely. Thank goodness he chose to labor on behalf of America’s workers.

Madam Speaker, happily, there is no retiring from adopted big brotherhood. I will continue to seek Dave’s advice and counsel on life’s journey. And to take inspiration from his example of doing things well for all the right reasons.

Ms. Cashoney Carter believes in her students and believes that the student’s growth is the most important aspect of learning. INTRODUCTION OF THE GEORGE FLOYD LAW ENFORCEMENT TRUST AND INTEGRITY ACT OF 2020

HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 4, 2020

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I rise to announce to the House that I have introduced the George Floyd Law Enforcement Trust and Integrity Act of 2020 (LETIA) to modernize law enforcement training, practices and procedures, and to address the issue of police accountability and build trust between police departments and the communities they serve.

Over the past two decades, tensions between police and communities of color have grown as allegations of bias-based policing by law enforcement agents, sometimes supported by data collection efforts and video evidence, have increased in number and frequency.

This legislation is designed to provide incentives for local police departments to voluntarily adopt performance-based standards to minimize incidents of misconduct, improve operations and enhance community accountability.

Since the tragic police-involved shooting of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri, there has been public outcry for Congressional action to address police accountability and public safety issues through the adoption of substantive law enforcement policy reforms.

Despite the fact that the majority of law enforcement officers perform their duties professionally and without bias, the relationship between the police and some of minority communities has deteriorated to such a degree that federal action is required to begin addressing the issue.

With recent Washington Post reports of more than 1000 reported police-involved shooting fatalities in the last year, the time is long past for change.

The George Floyd Law Enforcement Trust and Integrity Act of 2020 provides incentives for local police organizations to voluntarily adopt performance-based standards to ensure that incidents of deadly force or misconduct will be minimized through appropriate management and training protocols and properly investigated, should they occur.

The legislation authorizes the Department of Justice to work cooperatively with independent accreditation, law enforcement and community-based organizations to further develop and refine the accreditation standards, and authorizes the Attorney General to make grants to law enforcement agencies for the purpose of obtaining accreditation from certified law enforcement accreditation organizations.

Beyond the human toll created by law enforcement misuse of power issues, there remains the fiscal impact created by the high cost of litigation settlements for police abuse claims.

Currently, there are no federally recognized minimum standards to follow for operating a police department.

The widespread nature of police management has left many officers and agencies in the dark about how to cope with changes in their communities.

While most cities fail to systematically track the cost of litigation, the cost reports for major cities can prove staggering.

In New York City alone, during Mayor Michael Bloomberg’s three term tenure, NYPD payouts were in excess of $1 billion dollars for policing claims.

For small departments, the cost of a single high-profile incident could prove crippling in its impact on public safety.

While the Department of Justice has a range of criminal and civil authority to address policing issues, the Civil Rights Division will never have the resources necessary to investigate more than a small fraction of those departmental incidents in issue, there remains the fiscal impact created by the high cost of litigation settlements for police abuse claims.

For small departments, the cost of a single high-profile incident could prove crippling in its impact on public safety.

The ad hoc nature of police management even with the enhanced funding and task force authority granted by this legislation.

Through the support of a robust accreditation regime, like that existing for the healthcare industry, Congress can ensure that all communities have the best trained and managed police departments.

Only by establishing acceptable police operations standards can we begin to address issues like use of force before they occur and heal the rifts within our communities.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to observe a moment of silence in memory of George Floyd and for all Members to join me in sponsoring the George Floyd Law Enforcement Trust and Integrity Act of 2020 (LETIA).

RECOGNIZING ALMA LEE LOY

HON. BILL POSEY
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. POSEY. Madam Speaker, on April 10, 2020, Vero Beach said good-bye to its First Lady and prolific community leader, Alma Lee Loy, who passed away at 90 years old of pneumonia-related complications. As a personal friend and beloved member of our community, I would like to take this time to recognize the countless contributions Alma has made to Indian River County and celebrate a small glimpse of extraordinary personal achievements.

Alma Lee Loy was born in Vero Beach on June 10, 1929 and from a very young age dedicated her life to the betterment of Indian River County, the community she so loved and revered by the Vero Beach Resident if they knew of her, and they would surely say yes, with mentions of fond memories and stories.

Throughout her life she wore many important hats that made her into the iconic woman that our community grew to respect and love. Alma was a compassionate neighbor, a philanthropist, accomplished athlete, successful businesswoman, historian, and a mentor to our community’s youth, just to name a few.

For the first 42 years of her career, she operated and ran a children’s clothing store in downtown Vero Beach, Alma Lee’s Clothing Center, alongside her close friend Lucy Auxier. It was here that the community first befriended her, as they shopped for years for back-to-school clothes and dresses and came to know her giving heart. But in more than one way, Alma was compelled to further serve her community.

Her civic engagement spans many sectors. She became a founding member of the Vero Beach City Recreation Board, the Vero Beach Downtown Merchants Association, Education Foundation of Indian River County and the Indian River Community Foundation. Her altruistic spirit drove her to volunteer and lead several philanthropic organizations including what is now the Vero Beach Museum of Art and the Gifford Youth Orchestra. From 1968 to 1980, Alma served on the Indian River County Board of County Commissioners, serving as Chairman and Vice Chairman.

Alma’s unwavering commitment to preserving her community’s natural beauty and tranquility, in addition to a public about its’ historical significance, has long helped spread awareness of important issues in Indian River County. She played an important role in raising the awareness that saved the 18-acre McKee Botanical Garden from housing development, serving twice as President of the garden. She served on the board of the Veterans Memorial Island Sanctuary Committee, served two terms as President of the Indian River Land Trust, and received the “Love Your Lagoon” award for her dedication to cleaning up our waterways.

Many of Alma’s achievements succeed her in the form of local buildings and awards, including the Alma Lee Loy Bridge on 17th Street and the Alma Lee Loy Indian River County Chamber of Commerce, where she served as the first female board member. There have been many contributions and awards made in her honor and through them, she will be revered and dearly missed as a leader in our community.

I ask my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in recognizing Alma Lee Loy. May her dedication to our community serve as a reminder of what it means to be a public servant, a good neighbor, a mentor, and leader. Her impact and legacy will Ray Lee Wood was born in Patrick County on December 14, 1927. He served in the Army after World War II. In the early 1950s, he joined his brothers Glenn, Clay, Delano and Leonard in forming the team that still bears their name. They famously worked on their cars in the shop on a beach trout line in their family’s property, using its limbs to help pull engines with a chain hoist. Ray Lee was responsible for maintaining the Fords the team raced and changing the front tires, not driving, although Leonard recalled a day in 1958 when Ray Lee hit 142 miles per hour on the measured mile at Daytona Luminaries. During Mr. Wood’s time with the team, it won at the 1963 Daytona 500, the 1965 Indianapolis 500, and the 1965 American 500 at North Carolina Speedway. At Daytona and Indianapolis, he made the call after checking the tires to continue driving rather than changing them, contributing to the victories. At the 1965 Indianapolis 500, Mr. Wood also decided that the season would be his last. After the season ended at Rockingham with the victory at the American 500, he went home to Stuart. While still following the sport and supporting his brothers who continued racing, he never attended another NASCAR race. Instead, he filled his life with his church, Pentecostal Holiness, and his garden, where he grew flowers, tended to his honeybees, and kept goats. I offer my condolences to Ray Lee Wood’s loved ones on their loss.

REMEMBERING MADELYNE “MADDI” MISCHELOFF

HON. ERIC SWALWELL
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. SWALWELL of California, Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize the life of Madeleine “Maddi” Misheloff, on the occasion of her passing after a two year long battle with cancer on Saturday, April 11, 2020. Maddi was a native of Neptune, New Jersey and a student of biology and medical technology at American University in Washington, DC. She met her husband, Mike, while both were spending spring break in California. They remained in touch and were married in 1971. Thereafter they moved to Nebraska where their three children were born before settling in the Bay Area. Maddi was a serial volunteer and could frequently be found working at community events.
David credits his commitment to Judaism and Jewish education to a photograph in his Polish grandparents’ home in the Bronx, of their families in Poland. All except those who had gone to America or Israel, including David’s father, were killed by the Nazis. Also in that home was an inscription that asked “What have you done today on behalf of your people and your land?”

David Waksberg said “For me, Jewish thought, tradition and wisdom from the last few thousand years really helped me be a better husband, father, son, brother, friend, neighbor and citizen. All this wisdom contributed to what some would call happiness. It helped me lead a good life. And that’s the point of it all.”

Madam Speaker, we ask the entire House of Representatives to join us in honoring the extraordinary leadership and legacies of David Waksberg. His mission of promoting and furthering Jewish education has bettered our communities and made our nation stronger because of all he has chosen to do.

THANKING TURKEY FOR ASSISTANCE

HON. JOE WILSON
OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize the efforts of one of our allies to assist with our coronavirus response. Recently, the Republic of Turkey sent two separate planeloads of medical supplies to the United States. One arrived on Tuesday and a second on Thursday. The Turkish government sent 500,000 surgical masks, 4,000 overalls, 1,500 sets of goggles, civilian masks, face shields, hazmat suits, and a generous supply of disinfectants.

This is the type of cooperation that we need to see on every level in order to effectively address this pandemic. I understand that U.S. Ambassador to Turkey, David Satterfield, was on hand to watch the second shipment depart Turkey. I am pleased to see our governments working closely together. I understand that Turkey made deliveries of medical supplies and equipment to more than 50 countries around the world and I commend them for such generosity. It is in our common interests to continue to find constructive ways to work together.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE JONES ACT

HON. FILEMON VELA
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. VELA. Madam Speaker, this week we celebrate the 100th Anniversary of the Jones Act and its century of fostering our domestic maritime industry and supporting our national security. Named in honor of its author, former Senator Wesley Jones, the Jones Act has helped provide economic benefits in times of peace and has safeguarded resources to expand our military maritime capacity for times of war.

For the Department of Defense, maintaining a U.S. flagged fleet is critical to ensuring we have sufficient U.S. sealift capacity, available at a moment’s notice, to defend our nation. For example, during Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom from 2002 to 2010, U.S.-flag commercial vessels transported nearly 60% of all military cargoes into Afghanistan and Iraq.

Not only does the Jones Act support this vital national security requirement, it also provides an economic benefit to our nation. Currently, there are about 40,000 vessels in the American domestic fleet. The domestic maritime industry supports nearly 650,000 jobs and has a gross economic output of $154 billion annually, generating $41.6 billion annually in income with a $16.8 billion tax impact.

In my state of Texas, the domestic maritime industry is a major economic driver. According to a study by PricewaterhouseCoopers for the Transportation Institute, Texas ranks No. 3 among all U.S. states for jobs related to the American domestic maritime industry. The state is home to an estimated 56,000 Jones Act-related domestic maritime industry jobs, and the domestic shipping industry contributes approximately $14 billion in annual economic impact and $4 billion in worker income to the Texas economy.

In the 34th Congressional District, which I have the honor to represent, there are 1,100 Jones Act-related jobs. This translates into over $174 million in economic impact to my Congressional district.

On March 16th, I was scheduled to participate in an event at the Port of Brownsville in my district, highlighting the importance of our domestic maritime industry and the Jones Act. As with so many activities throughout our nation and the world over the past several months, this event was postponed due to COVID-19, but I am pleased to have this opportunity today to express my support for this important industry and its workforce.

At the Port of Brownsville, Keppel AmFels is currently constructing two ‘Ohauna Class containerships for Pasha Hawaii, an American shipping company. These ships will be used to transport containers of goods between Hawaii and the U.S. mainland.

It was just a few years ago that Keppel AmFELS decided to invest over $30 million to start this new industry at the Port of Brownsville. We worked with the U.S. Department of Commerce’s Economic Development Administration to secure nearly $2 million in federal funds for the vessel assembly pad to help make this happen.

I look forward to the time when we can celebrate the building of these two ships—the MV Jean Marie and the MV George III—in person.

RECOGNIZING THE HARD WORK AND DEDICATION OF ZACHARY K. OSTRO

HON. ROBIN L. KELLY
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 4, 2020

Ms. KELLY of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I rise today to thank my departing Legislative Director, Zachary K. Ostro, for his hard work and dedication.

Zach joined my team as a Legislative Fellow shortly after completing his JD at the University of Maryland School of Law. As a fellow, one of his largest contributions came as Chief Content Editor of the 2014 Kelly Report on Gun Violence in America, the first-ever Congressional analysis of the nation’s gun violence epidemic. He quickly became an indispensable part of the team and transitioned into a full-time role as a Legislative Assistant. In 2016, he became Legislative Director and helped me enact a number of bills including the Connected Government Act and Action for Dental Health Act into law.

While leading my legislative team, Zach also continued his education and obtained an MBA from Georgetown University in 2018. His family also grew while part of Team Kelly with the birth of his beautiful daughter, Sophie.

Originally from Cleveland, Zach is a diehard Indians fan and avid bowler. As he departs for a new opportunity, I wish him and his family all the best.

Again, I thank Zach for his years of service to the 2nd Congressional District of Illinois.

HONORING DR. TAMMY TEREI TAYLOR

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON
OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. Tammy Terel Taylor.

Dr. Tammy Terel Taylor was born to the late NR Taylor and Alberta Smith-Taylor. She is the third youngest of fourteen siblings. She entered the world during very troubling and uncertain times. Dr. Martin Luther King had just been assassinated a few months before her arrival and Senator Robert Kennedy was assassinated on the exact same day she was born. She believes her passion for social freedom and equality to all humankind started in utero. Her parents instilled into her and her other siblings the importance of the Golden Rule, “Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.” She grew up in a traditional family structure where her father was the sole provider while her mother took care of home. Dr. Taylor was raised up on the family’s farm and refers to her family as the “Black Walton’s” and often says “Although money was not plentiful her family had an abundance of love and fortitude when faced with adversity.” Dr. Taylor credits her perseverance and strong work ethics to her late father and her undeniable faith and endurance to her mother.

Dr. Taylor was born and grew up in Sardis, MS. She attended and graduated from North Panola High School in 1987. She attended Northwest Community College following high school and later transferred to the University of Mississippi majoring in Sociology with a minor in Psychology; she graduated in August of 1993. After graduating from the University of MS, Dr. Taylor began her nursing career at Northwest Community College (NWCC) in Senatobia, MS. NWCC had the reputation of producing some of the best registered nurses (RNs) and if you successfully completed their very rigorous nursing program you were well prepared for the challenges ahead.

Dr. Taylor started her nursing career at Baptist Memorial Hospital (BMH) in Oxford, MS and worked at this facility for 7 years as the Charge Nurse. While working at BMH full-time, she traveled once a week to Alcorn State University (ASU) nursing campus for the next 2 years. She earned her Master of Science as a Nurse Educator graduating with highest distinction and inducted into the Sigma Theta Tau National Honor Society of Nursing. She accepted an Assistant Professor position in their Associate Degree Nursing at ASU. Dr. Taylor possessed not only a passion for learning but immensely enjoyed teaching and sharing her knowledge and clinical experience. While teaching full-time at ASU, Dr. Taylor earned her Post Master’s as a Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP). This was a very difficult time in her life because her sister and best friend, Renetha, was diagnosed with a terminal cancer and lost her battle on October 6, 2002.

In January of 2004 a unique opportunity arose and Dr. Taylor was invited to join a team of dynamic African American women with a diverse background in the nursing profession to start the first Associate Degree Nursing Program at Coahoma Community College in Clarksdale, MS. Dr. Taylor and other faculty referred to themselves as the “Dream Team” and was determined to create one of the best nursing programs for those aspiring to become registered nurses in the state of MS. Although this dream was short-lived, her dynamic team laid the groundwork and this RN program is thriving today. Dr. Taylor has dedicated years of service into almost all areas of nursing from the hospital setting to academia to correctional setting just to name a few.

On March of 2009, Dr. Taylor accepted a position in the MS Delta at a private Cardiology practice. This in many ways for her was surreal because now she would be providing care to patients with heart disease, a disease that abruptly ended her own father’s life at the age of forty-six. She was eager to accept this challenge knowing that she would give her full opportunity to help others combat heart disease and save lives, something she was not able to do for her very own father. Dr. Taylor knew this had to be fate, a higher power orchestrating this only-for-her opportunity.

On January 2010, Dr. Taylor pursued her highest level of education in her profession. While working full-time as a Cardiology Nurse Practitioner, she began her doctoral degree at the University of Alabama Capstone College of Graduate Nursing. Her scholarly project explored prevention of coronary heart disease among women of color in the MS Delta. She graduated with a 4.0 GPA and again inducted into the Sigma Theta Tau National Honor Society for Nursing, the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi and the Golden Key International Honor Society. Dr. Taylor earned her Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) and her Hooding Ceremony was on the former President Barack Obama’s birthday August 4, the year 2012.

Dr. Taylor still practices in the MS Delta specializing in heart disease and managing other chronic diseases such as hypertension, diabetes, hyperlipidemia, etc. She is an advocate for change and currently serves as the Lead Volunteer in the state of MS for the National Patient Advocate Foundation (NPAP) out of Washington, DC. Dr. Taylor has attended the last three Patient Congress in DC to be the change agent and voice for her patients. Dr. Taylor was selected by the Patient-Centered Outcomes Research Institute (PCORI) and National Institute of Health (NIH) to serve as one of 72 to review a new funding opportunity: Testing Multi-Level Interventions to Improve Blood Pressure Control in Minority Racial/Ethnic, Low Socioeconomic Status, and/or Rural Populations.

Dr. Taylor is an entrepreneur and recently started a Community Advisory Board member for Panola County for the Risk Underlying Rural Areas Longitudinal Study (RURAL). She is an active member of the Mississippi Nurses Association. She is an active member of the distinguished ladies of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Incorporated, Iota Iota Omega Chapter. She is also an active member of the NAACP Panola County Branch. And lastly and more importantly, she is the doting aunt to her nieces and nephews and the loving wife to her soulmate, Mr. Whittington Bufford, Jr.

Dr. Taylor wants you to know that this is her 20th year as a Nurse Educator graduating with highest distinction and inducted into the Sigma Theta Tau National Honor Society of Nursing, the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi and the Golden Key International Honor Society. Dr. Taylor started her nursing career at Baptist Memorial Hospital (BMH) in Oxford, MS. Although this dream was short-lived, her dynamic team laid the groundwork and this RN program is thriving today. Dr. Taylor has dedicated years of service into almost all areas of nursing from the hospital setting to academia to correctional setting just to name a few.

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. LAHOOD. Madam Speaker, on Thursday, May 28, 2020, I missed votes due to my oldest son’s high school graduation. Had I been present, I would have voted NAY on Roll Call No. 115; YEA on Roll Call No. 116; and NAY on Roll Call No. 117.

Military Spouse Career Education Act

HON. GREGORIO KILLI CAMACHO SABLAN

OF NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. SABLAN. Madam Speaker, today, I introduce the Military Spouse Career Education Act to help military spouses access the education they need to enter and excel in careers that require government-recognized credentials.

I want my bill would help military spouses achieve their career goals by covering the costs of exams awarding college credit and continuing education units needed to maintain professional licenses and certifications.

Military spouses participating in the My Career Advancement Account (MyCAA) Scholarship Program would be able to finish their degrees faster by earning credit through exams such as the College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) and DANTES Subject Standardized Tests (DSST), CLEP and DSST award credit recognized by thousands of schools for a wide range of courses needed for degrees in health care, education, business, technology and other in-demand fields. Access to these alternatives to traditional classes provides the ability to achieve their educational goals at their own pace while saving limited MyCAA funds for other expenses.

Maintaining licenses and certifications would also be easier for MyCAA participants and spouses moving with their service member under permanent change of station orders. The Defense Department currently covers the cost of spouses’ relicensing fees when relocating with their families. States and territories that do not recognize credentials from other jurisdictions may also require additional training. The Military Spouse Career Education Act reimburses spouses for the costs of continuing education units needed to keep their credentials and continue careers in their new place of residence.

The gentleman from Indiana, Mr. BANKS, is an original cosponsor of the bill. I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan legislation.

A Fresh Start

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today, to recognize the 20th anniversary of a local small business in Lakewood, Colorado—A Fresh Start.

A Fresh Start is a prime example of the American Dream—owned and operated by Tom Bogeljic, a Bosnian refugee who came to the U.S. in 1997, and shortly after settling into the Denver suburbs, opened his own small business. A Fresh Start has grown substantially in the last 20 years, and Tom has been at the forefront of its growth.

A Fresh Start opened its doors in Lake- wood, Colorado on December 1, 1999 and has provided commercial and residential cleaning to places across the 7th Congressional District and Denver Metro area. It has survived quite a few challenges over the last 20 years, surviving the Great Recession as well as being designated an essential service during the current COVID–19 public health crisis.

During Small Business Month, I want to recognize Tom and his business as examples of a true entrepreneurial spirit and his contribution to our community by using eco-friendly materials and putting his employees first.

I extend my congratulations to Tom and A Fresh Start on its achievement of 20 successful years in our community. Keep up the good work.

Honoring the Career of Armond “Skip” Scibione

HON. JOHN KATKO

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. KATKO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the career of Mr. Armond “Skip”
Mr. Scipione in recognition of his retirement from the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Northern District of New York after more than 40 years in public service, as the USAO NDNY Law Enforcement Coordination Manager. Mr. Scipione has demonstrated a profound commitment to his community and country during his long career in law enforcement and service in the U.S. Air Force and New York Air National Guard.

A graduate of East Syracuse-Minoa High School and Onondaga Community College, Mr. Scipione began his career in law enforcement in 1980 as a police officer for the Town of DeWitt Police Department. He subsequently went on to serve as an Investigator for the Onondaga County District Attorney’s Office, where he prepared cases for over 100 homicide trials. In 2004, he was hired by the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Northern District of New York as the Law Enforcement Coordination Manager. Mr. Scipione served in this role for 16 years, working to facilitate and support law enforcement efforts to increase safety and enhance the quality of life for our community.

In addition to his service in law enforcement, Mr. Scipione served his country in the U.S. Air Force and in the New York Air National Guard. During this time, he was deployed overseas on several occasions, and notably, supported efforts in Kuwait during Operation Desert Shield.

Outside of public service, Mr. Scipione is a devoted husband to his wife, Cindy, and a dedicated father to their three children. He is a proud grandfather to four grandchildren and dog owner to his German Shepherd, Amish.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the House to join me in recognizing Mr. Armond “Skip” Scipione. As a dedicated public servant, I wish Mr. Scipione the best in his retirement.

OPPOSING THE GROW ACT’S INCLUSION IN THE HEROES ACT

HON. MARCY KAPTUR
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I am very pleased the House took important action to support the pensions of millions of Americans in the HEROES Act. Action to secure the retirement benefits of workers and retirees in troubled multiemployer plans and the long-term solvency of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC) remains a top priority of mine. Despite this positive effort, I am troubled by inclusion of provisions that impact healthy multiemployer pension plans. The inclusion of the GROW Act, which possesses significant conflicting support and opposition on important, must pass legislation is deeply troubling. The GROW Act will hurt workers, retirees, employers, and the PBGC, and should not become law.

Composite plan legislation would create two plans—an existing plan and a new “composite” plan—out of a single, finite pool of assets. This places added burden on the ability to fund each adequately, increasing the odds of failure. Existing plans could refinance their obligations over 25 years—more than 10 years longer than current law allows. This reduces available funds for benefits under existing plans, making them vulnerable to funding shortfalls—and thus at risk for draconian benefit cuts in times of market volatility. For example, if Congress had already passed the GROW Act and it was law during the market volatility COVID inflicted on the stock market, the benefits composite plan participants expected to earn would be cut 70 percent, and the vested benefits they already earned would be cut 25 percent. At the same time, the vested benefits of participants in the existing plan would be cut 21 percent.

In addition to using accounting gimmicks to weaken existing multiemployer pension plans and place Americans’ retirement security at risk, composite plans would also make it easier for employers to withdraw from existing multiemployer pension plans altogether, without paying their fair share of obligations to participants. Under current law, employers withdrawing from a pension plan must pay a “withdrawal liability” based on their contributions to the plan. Provisions of the GROW Act would eliminate withdrawal liability for composite plans, and it would dramatically reduce the cost of withdrawing from an existing plan.

Moreover, composite plans would not be insured by the PBGC and would be exempt from paying PBGC premiums. This erodes the PBGC premium base significantly. When combined with plan failures that composite plans would accelerate, the PBGC will face new liabilities that will drive it to a new solvency crisis. Because of the grievous harm the GROW Act imposes on workers, retirees, the PBGC, and the entire multiemployer plan system, I strongly oppose its inclusion in the HEROES Act.

JONES ACT 100TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. JOHN GARAMENDI
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 4, 2020

Mr. GARAMENDI. Madam Speaker, tomorrow June 5 marks the 100th anniversary of the Jones Act, our nation’s federal law guaranteeing a fleet of U.S.-built, flagged, crewed, and owned vessels ready to serve the American people.

The current coronavirus global pandemic has reminded us all the critical importance of this foundational federal law and having a vibrant US-flagged maritime industry. The global maritime trade ground to a halt due to quarantine, and countries like China ordered their government-sponsored enterprises to stop all exports of critical medicine and medical supplies, including personal protective equipment for healthcare workers and first responders.

The Jones Act ensures that our nation can remain self-reliant during peace time and times of conflict. In California alone, the US-flagged maritime industry supports more than $12.2 billion annually in economic impact related to the American domestic shipping industry and over 51,000 good-paying jobs. Nationally, the domestic maritime industry supports 648,220 American jobs with approximately 40,000 vessels in the American domestic fleet.

Madam Speaker, most major developed countries including the European Union have cabbages laws like the Jones Act. Congress must continue to support our nation’s maritime workforce by upholding the Jones Act and opposing deeply misguided efforts to undermine it. As a member of both the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Armed Services, I plan to continue to do just that.

I hope all members of Congress will join me in that important work. In closing, I wish to mark this important milestone for the Jones Act by thanking the thousands of Americans working in our nation’s maritime industry. I thank them for their invaluable work, day in, day out.
