The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. GRASSLEY).

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:
Let us pray.
Almighty God, we need You more than human help. Restore us to Your favor, surrounding us with the shield of Your mercy. We have been shaken by forces that have come against us and look to You, our redeemer and friend. Lord, we are grateful that, though wrong seems strong, You continue to rule.
Fill our lawmakers with reverence and trust in Your prevailing providence. May that reverential awe keep them on the path of courage, integrity, and wisdom. Lord, remind them that You have invited them to seek and discover Your might. You declare in Psalm 50:15: “Call on me in the day of trouble; I will deliver you.”
We praise Your Holy Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

IOWA’S PRIMARY ELECTION
Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, the House of Representatives has passed a bill that is kind of like a one-size-fits-all for elections, meaning that everything ought to be run out of Washington, DC, which is contrary to what we have done in this country for 240 years, wherein we have had 50 States running the elections. I want to refer to what happens in the State of Iowa.
Last week, Iowans voted in record numbers in our June primary. In most elections, about 40 percent of Iowans choose to vote by absentee ballot. This year, in our primary and, understandably, because of the pandemic, the vast majority cast its votes by absentee ballot—a State decision, a personal decision, not something dictated by Washington.
As I have already referred to, there are those here in Washington, DC—in Congress and maybe outside of Congress—who say that, unless the Federal Government mandates that States adopt a whole new, centralized, non-optional vote-by-mail system before November, Americans will not be able to vote from home.
Iowa’s successful primary election shows that the absentee ballot system that is already in place in our State—and in most States—that is run by our county auditors is up to the task. We have proven that. Every Iowan who wants to vote absentee in November can do so, and those who want to vote in person can also do so safely.
I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER
The President pro tempore led the Recognition of the Minority Leader, as follows:

JUSTICE IN POLICING ACT AND HEROES ACT
Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, as protests over the death of George Floyd continue, House and Senate Democrats came together yesterday to unveil sweeping reforms to our Nation’s police departments.
The Justice in Policing Act was not only a response to the recent protests but a reflection of years of failed efforts to root out injustice and racial bias in our law enforcement. The bill would ban the use of choke holds and other tactics that have left Black Americans dead. It would limit the transfer of military weaponry and equipment to police departments. It would change the legal standard to make it easier to hold police accountable for misconduct when they use deadly force on American citizens, and through increased data and transparency, as well as important modifications to training and practices, it would help prevent police misconduct in the first place. That is a very strong bill, and rightly so. I give tremendous credit to Senators BOOKER, HARRIS, and so many others who contributed, as well as the Black Caucus, led by KAREN BASS and Chairman NADLER of the Judiciary. They put together a very strong bill. The reason is simple. The moment does not call for half measures.

Hundreds of thousands of American protesters are not asking us to chip away around the edges. They want bold reform and meaningful changes to assist them in something that all too often delivers unequal justice for too many Black Americans, and that has existed that way for too, too long. Well, that kind of bold reform and meaningful change is what the Justice in Policing Act delivers—meaningful change. Democrats are going to fight very, very hard to make this proposal a reality.

Now, of course, in the Senate, it is ultimately up to Leader MCCONNELL, to decide if and when, if any, come to the Senate floor. That is his prerogative as majority leader. But for 2 weeks, Leader MCCONNELL has refused to respond to my requests for the Senate to consider a police reform bill before the end of the current work period. I have heard the Republican leader speak to the frustrations that have swept the Nation. I trust he is aware of the many abuses that have been allowed to persist unchecked in our police departments. Where is Leader MCCONNELL on actually doing something about it?

Of course, there is another crisis at the moment, the COVID pandemic. According to reports in the press, Leader MCCONNELL has not called for unity and coming together and doing something about our problems. It was written by one of our great military leaders, former Defense Secretary General Mattis. Every day provides fresh evidence that this country will have to unite in spite of the President, not because of him. I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

PROTESTS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, several times now I have praised the peaceful demonstrations protesting racial injustice and the killings of Black Americans. I am grateful that after several harrowing days of looting and riots, law enforcement restored order and helped these peaceful protests be heard.

Notwithstanding the far-left calls to disband the police altogether, I believe most Americans are ready to consider how the memories of Black Americans like George Floyd and Breonna Taylor can move us to continue combating residual racism.

Today, I need to discuss a different pressing problem that concerns Americans’ constitutional rights. It is becoming clear to many Americans, including many who appreciate and applaud the recent protests, that our national life during this pandemic has slid toward a double standard.

There are other cliffs as well. The 3-month moratorium on eviction expires. Unemployment expires July 31. There are so many cliffs here, and make no mistake about it, COVID is related to racial justice as well. In the HEROES bill, for instance, hazard workers and frontline workers get extra pay—hazard pay. More than 40 percent of them are minorities. These are the people on our frontlines. Rental assistance for people who might be evicted, a large percentage of minority folks cannot afford to own a home or rent, so we must act on that as well.

So the kind of racial justice we are talking about, the kind of inequality that a very solid chunk of it would be relieved if we passed the HEROES Act, COVID 4 bill. Both of these are important to do. Racial justice, civil rights, a global pandemic, and economic disaster—these are not merely issues of the month but of this moment in American history. It is truly a time of historic challenge, and Leader MCCONNELL and the Republican Senate are missing in action. There is no commitment to consider police reform bill on the Senate floor. Work with us on another emergency package that can come to the floor as well before July 4.

For weeks, we Democrats have had to relentlessly pressure our Republican colleagues to even hold the most routine oversight hearings. The Republican minority on the Homeland Security Committee, in particular, has wasted time these past few weeks trying to smear the family of the President’s political opponent instead. Here we have a major crisis—a major crisis on the health front, on the economic front, on the racial justice front, and what are so many of our Republican friends doing? Rush to blame our country relief, despite the upcoming cliffs that are going to be soon upon us. Now there is a full 4 weeks remaining before July 4. I say to Leader MCCONNELL, do it. Get to work on that as well.

As former Defense Secretary Mattis wrote, “Donald Trump is the first president in my lifetime who does not try to unite the American people—does not pretend to try. Instead, he tries to divide us. We are witnessing the consequences of three years of this deliberate effort. We are witnessing the consequences of three years without mature leadership. We can unite without him...”

And do that, we must, as Americans. Those words were not written by some liberal Democrat whom they will call names, cast aspersions on, never discussing the argument. It was written by one of our great military leaders, former Defense Secretary General Mattis.

The President appears too preoccupied trying to emulate Richard Nixon, of all Presidents, and he doesn’t offer even a scintilla of leadership. The President seems too preoccupied with his political precariousness to even try to bring the country together.

Meanwhile, America is still waiting for the President to even acknowledge the issues of police violence and racial justice that are driving protests across the country, including across the street from the White House.

Chairman NADLER of the Judiciary.

There are many cliffs here, and make no mistake about it, COVID is related to racial justice as well. In the HEROES bill, for instance, hazard workers and hospital emergency personnel to this horrible COVID–19 disease. We will never know how many we lost because we weren’t better prepared with the necessary protective equipment. The Trump administration’s failure should be thoroughly investigated so it does not make the same mistake again if there is a resurgence of the disease.
For weeks, State and local leaders put normal American life totally on ice and asked citizens to prioritize fighting the virus. For weeks, the mainstream media heaped scorn on any small citizen protest, outdoor gathering, or even the suggestion that other important values require a reappraisal of certain restrictions.

Well, the American people did their part. They made necessary sacrifices that clearly helped the country, and they are ready to continue doing their part hiring, learning and working outside. But now, many Americans feel they have just seen those fastidious regulations and that puritanical zeal disappear in an instant because a new cause has emerged that powerful people agree with.

A month ago, small protest demonstrations were widely condemned as reckless and selfish. Now, massive rallies that fill entire cities are not just praised but, in fact, are called especially notable of the extraordinary health risk that brought condemnation when the cause was different.

People just spent the spring watching their small businesses dissolve or cancel weddings or miss religious observances for the longest spells in their lives or missing the last days of a loved one’s life and then missing the funeral. Never were the American people told about any exemption for things they felt strongly about.

I have no criticism for the millions of Americans who peacefully demonstrated in recent days. Their cause is beyond righteous. It is the inconsist ent from leaders that has been baffling. The same Governor of Michigan who argued that letting people carefully shop for vegetable seeds—vegetable seeds—would be too dangerous during the pandemic, now poses for photographs with groups of protesters. Here in the District of Columbia, the mayor threatens massive street protests. She actually joins them herself. But on her command, churches and houses of worship remain shut. I believe even the largest church buildings in the District are still subject to the 10-person limit for things the mayor deems unnecessary.

The rights of free speech, free assembly, and the free exercise of religion are all First Amendment rights. They have the same constitutional pedigree. Apparently, while protests are now permissible, prayer is still too dangerous. Politicians are now picking and choosing within the First Amendment itself.

Last week, one county in California’s Bay area seriously attempted to issue guidelines that allowed protests of 100 people but still stipulated that all other social gatherings at 12 people and banned outdoor religious gatherings altogether—banned outdoor religious gatherings altogether. Figure that one out.

These governments are acting like the coronavirus discriminates based on the content of people’s speech, but, alas, it is only the leaders themselves who are doing that. It is now impossible to avoid the conclusion that local and State leaders are using their power to encourage constitutionally protected conduct which they personally appreciate while continuing to ban constitutionally protected conduct which they personally feel is less important.

In New York City, Mayor de Blasio makes no effort to hide this subjectivity. At one point, he recounted our National Constitution with racism, compared that to “a devout religious person who wants to go back to religious services” and concluded, “Sorry, that is not the same question.”

Well, the answer to the people’s constitutional liberties do not turn—not do turn on a mayor’s intuition. Politicians do not get to play red light, green light within the First Amendment. The Bill of Rights is not some a-la-carte menu that leaders may sample as they see fit. It is any rational set of rules by which mass protests should continue to be applauded, but small, careful religious services should continue to be banned.

These prominent Democrats are free to let social protests outrank religion in their own consciences if they choose, but they do not get to impose their ranking on everyone else. This is precisely the point of freedom of conscience. That is precisely the point of the First Amendment.

Weeks ago, citizens sued the mayor of Louisville, KY, when he tried to ban drive-in Easter services while imposing no restrictions on parking lots of secular businesses. A brilliant district judge had to remind him and the whole country that in America, faith can never be shoved into second class. It seems at least a few local leaders still need to learn that lesson. I hope they learn it soon.

The American people’s response to the coronavirus was courageous and patriotic. On the advice of experts, our Nation sacrificed a great deal to protect our medical system. Politicians must not repay that sacrifice with constitutionally dubious double standards.

GREAT AMERICAN OUTDOORS ACT
Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, on an entirely different matter, yesterday our colleagues voted overwhelmingly to advance the Great American Outdoors Act. The guiding leadership of colleagues like Senators DAINES and GARDNER, we have a rare opportunity to take a huge step forward with some of our Nation’s most cherished treasures.

Every corner of America’s national parks, forests, wildlife refuges, battlefields, and public lands draw hundreds of millions of visits from across the country and around the world—hunters and anglers, backpackers and climbers, bird watchers and road trippers, school groups and scientists. Across hundreds of millions of acres, there is room for recreation and conservation alike.

Where our Nation makes its natural wonders possible, local communities thrive. According to the National Park Service, park visitors contribute to more than $40 billion in economic output in adjacent towns. From local hotels and restaurants to the outdoor recreation industry, they supported nearly 330,000 jobs.

So it would be difficult to overstate the importance of our public lands in the lives of the American people. When the Senate passes legislation to secure permanent funding for keeping them safe and accessible, we will be ushering in a bright future for American recreation and conservation.

At the same time—and just as importantly—we will be addressing the areas where decades of funding levels for routine maintenance have not kept pace, leaving some of our parks and public lands inaccessible and potentially unsafe.

This is where the rubber meets the road. This is where all of our love for the great American outdoors needs to be backed up with some sober accounting.

In Senator GARDNER’s backyard, in the U.S. Forest Service’s Rocky Mountain National Park, for example, untreated sewer leaks in past years have restricted access to portions of the largest cave system in the world and even threatened some of its native species.

Today, more than $90 million in maintenance is slated to go to work at that particular park. We are still waiting on funding to rehabilitate cave trails that haven’t seen major investment since the 1930s.

At the Forest Service’s London district office, Kentucky rangers are still waiting for funding for critical security and accessibility updates. Like any prized asset, public lands need regular maintenance. We shouldn’t let key infrastructure languish for decades and then fight uphill to make up for lost time.

This is a familiar problem that is felt in different ways in every corner of our Nation, so the solution will need to be just as sweeping. Fortunately, as last night’s lopsided vote demonstrates, our colleagues have assembled a deeply bipartisan set of solutions that our country deserves.

I am proud the work led by our colleagues from Montana and Colorado have resulted in the endorsement of hundreds of national and local advocates for American recreation and conservation. I urge all Senators to join the experts and support the bill.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

TAXPAYER FIRST ACT OF 2019—MOTION TO PROCEED—Resumed

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to proceed to H.R. 1957, which the clerk will report.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to Calendar No. 75, H.R. 1957, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modernize and improve the Internal Revenue Service, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority whip.

Mr. THUNE. Madam President, as I began this morning, I would like to just briefly comment on the outlandish idea of dismantling police departments that has seen substantial coverage in recent days. While there are exceptions, the vast majority of our Nation's police officers are men and women of character who care deeply about protecting everyone in their communities, and they provide an essential service—a service that we cannot do without.

The idea that any city can exist without a police force is so absurd that it is where anyone is seriously discussing it. We absolutely need to look at policies at the State, local, and Federal levels to ensure that we are holding police officers to the highest standards, and I hope we will be having serious bipartisan discussions on these issues in the coming weeks.

I know at least one Senate Republican has already introduced legislation to require law enforcement agencies to report the use of lethal force. But bipartisan discussions will not be forwarded by extreme and irresponsible proposals like abolishing the police departments that help protect our communities. I hope that such proposals will not gain any traction here in the U.S. Senate.

BUSINESS BEFORE THE SENATE

Madam President, we are very busy—hard at work—here in the Senate. Our main business on the floor this week will be the Great American Outdoors Act, legislation crafted by Senators DAINES and GARDNER and others, that will help address the significant maintenance backlog in our national parks, among other things.

Out of the limelight, Senators will also be discussing how best to respond at the Federal level to the tragedy of George Floyd’s killing.

Responding to the coronavirus continues to be at the top of our agenda. Right now, we are focused on monitoring the implementation of the $2.3 trillion that Congress has provided so that we can identify and act more to what we need to do to fight this virus.

Our committees play a leading role in this, and they have kept up a steady stream of hearings examining implementation and identifying next steps.

This week, we have no fewer than eight—eight—committees hearings on various aspects of the COVID crisis, including unemployment insurance, a Senate Finance Committee hearing later today that I will be participating in, reopening schools, and the Federal Government's procurement and distribution strategies.

The Democratic leader has spent a lot of time on the floor lately, complaining about what is happening in the Senate, notably, not happy that we are in session, and he claims we are not doing anything on the coronavirus.

Well, on the first point, I would just like to say that the majority leader brought the Senate back into session because we have responsibilities that we need to fulfill. One of the issues that we have to respond to, as a matter of our constitutional obligation, is the issue of dealing with nominations, both to judicial and executive branches of our government. We continue to have to do that.

There are important vacancies that we need to fill, some important national security vacancies, judicial vacancies. Last week, we confirmed the inspector general for the pandemic, somebody who was confirmed by a 75-to-15 vote.

Now, it is possible that we could do those and not be here. The Democratic leader has said on occasions he doesn't know why we are here doing these types of nominations. Well, the reason we are here doing these types of nominations is that they insist on it.

Even in cases where the nominee has broad bipartisan support—in some cases, overwhelming support—we continue to have to stay here and go through the procedural roadblocks that Democrats throw up to getting these nominees across the finish line.

In fact, if you look at the historical context of nominations, we are living in unprecedented times. The Democrats have filibustered now—totaled—314 nominees that President Trump has put forward. For all of the previous Presidents combined—17—the previous Presidents combined in our Nation's history—only on 244 occasions did cloture have to be invoked to shut down a filibuster on nominees.

Think about that. In the first 3½ years of President Trump's term, we have had 314 judicial or executive—filibustered. In the rest of the history of the U.S. Senate, even if you go back and say that the advent of the filibuster is only in the last half century or so. Think about that: 244 times, throughout all of the Presidencies combined—combined—in our history, but this President has seen his nominees filibustered 314 times.

So if the Democratic leader wants to know why we can't act, that's why. We have to. It is our job. It is our constitutional responsibility. If the minority continues to make it as difficult as they have and continues to filibuster and force the leader to file cloture on all the nominees, we have to be here to vote. That is our job, and that is why we are here.

Of course, there is also the work, as I said, of responding to the coronavirus. There is also work we have to do that doesn't stop just because there is a pandemic.

If you look at the Paycheck Protection Program, when it ran out of money, it took way too long to convince Democrats to do something as simple as appropriating more funding for pandemic-stricken small businesses.

Funding our government, protecting our Nation, making sure these important positions in the government, as I mentioned, are filled—we just can't imagine the appropriate manner of the coronavirus, and they have made it increasingly difficult—virtually impossible—for us to do anything of this by unanimous consent while the Senate was out of session.

As for the Democratic leader's charge that the Senate hasn't been doing anything on coronavirus, as I pointed out, that is just a simply ridiculous charge to make. Coronavirus has been at the forefront of the Senate activity since we returned in May.

Our committees have held a constant stream of hearings examining implementation of the coronavirus assistance that we have already passed and looking forward to what will be needed in the future.

As I mentioned, last week, we confirmed the nomination of Brian D. Miller to be Special Inspector General for Pandemic Recovery at the Treasury Department, a key position with responsibility for ensuring the coronavirus funding is spent properly.

We also passed last week legislation to update the Paycheck Protection Program to give additional flexibility to small businesses. Clearly—clearly—the Senate has been making coronavirus a priority.

I would argue that much of what we have already done is having the desired result. The jobs numbers that came out last week are encouraging. Obviously, we have a lot of work to do. We have to keep it in perspective. It is no time to be spiking the football. But those job numbers were encouraging.

I think one of the reasons we had those strong numbers is because we have a very resilient economy, No. 1, and No. 2, because of policies we have put in place—tax and regulatory policies that have encouraged businesses to invest, consumers to spend.
The PPP program, the Paycheck Protection Program, obviously, I think has done a lot of good out there. It has kept, literally, millions of businesses in business. It has kept, literally, tens of millions of workers employed, and that is exactly what we wanted to see happen.

Those dollars were among the best spent dollars, I think, of all the several trillion dollars that we put out there. My State of South Dakota is a good example. We have over 21,000 businesses that have signed up from the Paycheck Protection Program, to the tune of about $1.6 billion. I bet, if you look at the numbers in every other State around the country, you would see the same thing. It is one of the reasons, I believe, that we are seeing some encouraging economic numbers and employment numbers. Let’s hope that we can continue to build on that.

I guess that when the Democratic leader complains that the Senate hasn’t authorized anything relating to coronavirus, what he actually means to say is the Senate hasn’t passed another $3 trillion bill. The House of Representatives, the Democratic majority there, in a very partisan way with zero Republican support and, in fact, some Democrats opposing it, passed another $3 trillion.

Well, it is true we haven’t done that here in the Senate. It is because we don’t believe we should be playing fast and loose with the American people’s money like that. As I pointed out, Congress has already provided $2.4 trillion in funding to respond to the virus, which is a staggering amount of money, equal to roughly half of the 2020 Federal budget. It was money we needed to spend, and we were glad to do it. We will probably have to spend more before this crisis is over, but we have to make sure that we are appropriating what is really needed and not just throwing around trillions of dollars. The way we do that is by monitoring the implementation of the funding that we have already put out there, that has already been delivered, which is exactly what we have been doing.

I have to say, for a lot of the funding that has been authorized, some of it hasn’t even been put out there yet. The $175 billion that we have authorized to help healthcare providers—hospitals, nursing homes, those folks on the frontlines—only about $75 billion of that has been made available already. So less than 50 percent of those dollars are even out there yet.

It is pretty hard to decide whether you are going to throw more money at something before you have determined whether the money you have already spent is having the desired effect and whether there is a need for more. So we need to see where that money goes before we decide what else we need to appropriate.

I have said it before, and I will say it again. Every dollar that we have provided to fight the coronavirus is borrowed money, a significant addition to an already massive amount of national debt. Democrats may like to pretend that we can continue to borrow more and more money forever, but the truth is we cannot. The greater our national debt, the greater the interest we have to pay on it, and that means the money we pay in interest is money we do not have to spend on other priorities. The greater our debt, the more money we have to spend on interest. More money forever, but the truth is we cannot. The greater our national debt, the greater the interest we have to pay on it, and that means the money we pay in interest is money we do not have to spend on other priorities. The greater our debt, the more money we have to spend on interest. More money, more money forever, but the truth is we cannot. The greater our national debt, the greater the interest we have to pay on it, and that means the money we pay in interest is money we do not have to spend on other priorities.

Democrats may like to pretend that we can continue to borrow more and more money forever, but the truth is we cannot. The greater our national debt, the greater the interest we have to pay on it, and that means the money we pay in interest is money we do not have to spend on other priorities. Mr. CARPER. Madam President, the bill before us today, the Great American Outdoors Act, is landmark legislation. It would fulfill a longstanding promise to the American people to fully fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

This measure will also make a down payment on deferred maintenance plans of our Nation’s beloved public lands, which includes over 400 national parks. It also includes more than $1 billion to national wildlife refuges that are under the jurisdiction of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee on which I serve as ranking member.

While I am proud to support the Great American Outdoors Act, we would be remiss if we did not put the Senate’s consideration of this legislation in the context of everything else that is happening in our country today. As we have learned in the 15 days since the death of George Floyd, we also have to consider the longer-term pressures to fulfill. Let me mention four of them. The first is a promise of an end to racial violence in this country and a new beginning in the pursuit of racial justice. The second would be the promise of opportunity. The third would be the promise of a more perfect Union called for in our Constitution’s preamble. The fourth, and last, would be the promise of a dream articulated nearly 57 years ago on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial, not far from where we are gathered here today, by the late Martin Luther King.

Our national and State parks have always been places that bring people from all backgrounds together. Our national historic sites and monuments commemorate the events that have forged and tested us as a nation, as well as the sacrifices that we have made in our quest to become that more perfect Union.

There are also places from which people have called on their government, our government, for change and for equality. Yes, our national parks have served as places of protest, protected under the Constitution that Delaware was the first State to ratify on December 7, 1787. In fact, Delaware’s national park, one of the newest in the Nation, was created, in large part, to celebrate that history.

The recent murders of George Floyd in Minneapolis and Breonna Taylor in Louisville have sparked, as we know, widespread civil unrest. From coast to coast, millions of Americans have come together to protest the deaths of unarmed Black Americans and to call for change, to call for justice, and to call for racial equality. In Washington, DC, some of those demonstrations have taken place in our National Park System.

Lafayette Square, the site of gassing and the troubling use of crowd dispersion devices last week in response to a peaceful demonstration, has seen its share of protests and turmoil. In its history, before the marble monuments... it now contains, the square served as a slave market, and it housed troops during the War of 1812 when the White House and the U.S. Capitol—this Capitol—were burned. Today, and nearly every day, people are seen Lafayette Square in front of the White House, calling for action, as we debate the bill before us. But in January and February of 1917, women staged 2 months of protests out of a row house located on Lafayette Square in the pursuit of women’s suffrage and the right to vote, one of our most sacred privileges.

Other national park sites in Washington have been front and center of the calls for racial justice in the last several days: the National Mall, the Lincoln Memorial, and one of our newest national historic sites, the memorial to Martin Luther King, who taught us how to bring our voices to be heard, but they also taught that nonviolence can reframe the adversarial approach to solving our problems. Sometimes when I speak on the Senate floor, I share anecdotes from my morning runs. A number of them over the years have been on the National Mall as I run from the Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial, and then past the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, etched with the names of over 58,000 men and women with whom I served in Southeast Asia. No matter how tired I might be when I get up in the morning, when I begin those runs, as I pass and pause at each of these places, I feel inspired, I feel rejuvenated, and I feel more determined than ever to take up our work in service to the American people who sent us here.

Interestingly, I have heard a similar sentiment from the hundreds of Delawareans who have asked me to support this legislation before us today. Many of our parks provide visitors a place to reflect, to reconnect, and to enjoy the beauties of nature. That is, in no small part, because of the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Many of our colleagues know that Delaware has a proud history as the First State—the First State National Historic Site, which we worked for a decade to create not long ago, tells the story of the role Delaware played in the establishment of our country. Our national park is unique, with historical sites in all three of Delaware's counties. One of the jewels in all three counties of the First State is the Brandywine Creek State Park, just 3 miles from our home. I might add, there is another one, too, from the train station where I caught the train this morning to come down here. There is the Jack Markell Trail that links the riverfront in Wilmington, DE, to New Castle, DE, and Bear, DE. Women were the first to bring with them the deeds to Delaware and Pennsylvania. Those paths that I just mentioned expand horizons; they connect people to each other; and they create common ground in our communities.

The Delaware State Parks Youth Conservation Corps even provides jobs and environmental restoration opportunities throughout our parks for young people from all backgrounds. It is more of a Delaware, State parks offer free summer concerts. These concert series attract different generations and diverse audiences. While the 2020 summer concert series was unfortunately canceled due to the ongoing COVID–19 pandemic, Delaware State parks have remained open, and, get this, our State has waived entrance fees.

As it became clear that physical location was key to preventing the spread of the novel coronavirus, Delawareans, especially those in urban areas, sought solitude in our parks. For us in Delaware, these spaces are places of community. People from all walks of life come to these parks for many different reasons. Some come to fish, others to bike, others to hike, play sports, fly kites, swim, go birding, learn, enjoy picnics, and enjoy concerts. Those are just some of the reasons why people come to our national parks—not just from Delaware, not just from America but from all over the world.

Some of the parks I have just mentioned might exist without the Land and Water Conservation Fund, but without it, they would not be the community cornerstones that they are today. When a park is revitalized, it can become the nerve center of a community. They can become the place where we can bring communities together. In many cases, we have seen just that happen in our State. For example, Brandywine Creek State Park—located not far from our home—has been home to a community garden program for families like my own when our sons were young who may not have a lot of land on which to grow their own fruits and vegetables. In 2017, just 3 years ago, the city of Wilmington was awarded an LWCF grant to improve Father Tucker Park, which had been in disrepair for decades. The park is vital for play, for cultural gatherings, and sports activities. It is now a valuable hub of that community.

Further, the Land and Water Conservation Fund enabled the first public pool in Kent County at the Killens Pond State Park. It is now the Killens Pond Water Park, and it has grown quite popular with residents from across Kent County and well beyond Kent County’s borders.

This legislation also helps us to bring economic activity to our communities, particularly during troubled times. What is more, our Delaware State parks have remained open, and, as it became clear that physical location was key to preventing the spread of the novel coronavirus, Delaware State parks have remained open, and, as it became clear that physical location was key to preventing the spread of the novel coronavirus, Delaware State parks have remained open, and, get this, our State has waived entrance fees.

I want to close my remarks today by sharing one of those stories from a friend, as it turns out, the executive director of Delaware Wild Lands and her name is Kate Hackett. About a year and a half ago, Kate, along with her family and another family, traveled to a place called Big Bend National Park in the State of Texas. This park is on the U.S.-Mexican border, as some of you know. These two families were distressed by what was happening along our borders and wanted to visit border towns to experience their humanity themselves.

As the two families hiked along the Rio Grande River, Kate’s friend sang her favorite lullaby, not in English but in Spanish. Her song echoed in the canyon. When she paused, an unknown woman from across the border emerged with the next verse of the same song. These two strangers—divided by the depths of a canyon—alternated verses, savoring a shared experience, regardless of borders, regardless of race, regardless of languages.

I was moved at the time to hear how Kate was able to use her family’s outdoor experience that day. I am still moved today to hear about how that day taught her children a lesson in compassion, a lesson in humanity, and a lesson in acceptance of us all.

As the soul of our Nation continues to be tested, I hope the legislation before us in the Great American Outdoors Act—might somehow provide similar opportunities for others. In fact, I challenge all of us to make sure that it does just that.

Most importantly, I also sincerely hope we will soon fulfill at least two other longstanding promises—for equality and justice—that are critical for the future of this country and our democracy. Our public lands can be part of a greater, multifaceted solution that brings equity and opportunity to all of our committees from sea to shining sea.

In the midst of all the turmoil we face in America today lies opportunity. It is our job to find that opportunity and to work together to move this country forward, which we love and revere, as imperfect as we are, forward. That is our challenge, and that is our opportunity.

I don’t know a lot of Latin, but I do know two words, maybe a few more. My two favorites are these: Carpe diem, seize the day. This week we have the opportunity on this floor to seize the day. Right over your head where you are sitting are some other Latin words: e pluribus unum—from many, one. I think this legislation—maybe not something we would have thought of—can actually help make those words not just Latin words carved in stone but a reality.

With that, I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GARDNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. LOEFFLER). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GARDNER. Madam President, thank you to my colleagues last night for an incredibly strong vote, 80 to 17, on the motion to proceed to this debate on the Great American Outdoors Act. We have a lot of work ahead of us this week, and a lot more work to take place. But one thing is certain, we have taken the first step toward a historic bill that protects our public lands, that enhances the incredible work that our national parks do and the policies and goals and ideas they represent around this great Nation.

The Great American Outdoors Act combines two long-held values of both our national parks and the Nation’s crown jewel conservation program, the Land and Water Conservation Fund. The bipartisan Great Parks Act, of course, establishes a fund to set aside dollars to catch up with our backlog of projects that needs to be done, the deferred maintenance backlog in our national parks. It sets up about a $1.9 billion a year fund to work on roads and visitor centers and the resources that are being loved to death at parks across the country.

It provides new access to our parks, of course. It also funds our Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, now headquartered in Grand Junction, CO, and our Fish and Wildlife Service properties, as well as the Bureau of Indian Education.

This act will create jobs; it will create opportunities; but most importantly, it will enhance the resources that this country loves for generations to come.

The second part, of course, of the Great American Outdoors Act is the Land and Water Conservation Fund. You can see here, the monument, the Great Sand Dunes National Park. This one right here shows the Land and Water Conservation Fund along the scenic San Juan Byway.

This is an incredible opportunity for us to preserve the Land and Water Conservation Fund, make it permanently authorized, as we have done through the John D. Dingell Conservation Act, and that’s what holds the sand in place. This is a great opportunity for us to fully fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

That bill that permanently authorized the Land and Water Conservation Fund passed 92 to 8. Last night, the closure on the motion to proceed passed 80 to 17. This is not a red or blue issue. This is not a left or right issue. This is not a Republican or Democratic issue. This is an American people issue, an idea the American people instituted in this country centuries ago and, in the case of our Forest Service, a century ago—over a century ago. The opportunities to protect our public lands is significant this week, historic this week, one of the greatest conservation achievements that this Congress will have had in decades.

I want to turn to a little bit of the work that we have done in Colorado with the Land and Water Conservation Fund. This is an incredibly important opportunity for us because not only will it help with our most precious places, but it also helps provide access to land that we already have, owned by the American people, public lands that are already there, American people, but we have no way to access them.

In fact, it is estimated that we have an area the size of Rocky Mountain National Park, Rocky Mountain National Park is the third most heavily visited park in the country. We have an area of land the size of Rocky Mountain National Park that is held by the public. It is owned by the public, but they can’t get to it. They have no access to it.

So the Land and Water Conservation Fund is a tool that can be used to provide access to those lands for hunting, for fishing, for hiking, for recreating. And if you look at that economy, if you look at what it means to our State, it is billions and billions of dollars in economic activity. It is hundreds of thousands of jobs in the great State of Colorado. It is over $4 million—over $4 million—in deferred maintenance backlog. This bill will help to overcome that.

We need to rehabilitate the Alpine Visitor Center developed area. The highest paved road in North America is...
Trail Ridge Road, going through Rocky Mountain National Park and up to the Alpine Visitor Center, where you have an amazing, expansive opportunity to learn and to recreate. We need to resurface Beaver Meadows Road, to improve the visitor safety and visitor access, and this is a job we need to do.

The passage of this bill is very, very important, and it is going to be funded permanently into the future.

$9.5 billion in deferred maintenance on public lands across our country. Those are not only our national parks, but the areas around our national parks, preserving the legacy of America’s great outdoors for generations to come.

I yield the floor to the PRESSING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. Tester, Madam President, I rise today in support of the Great American Outdoors Act. After yesterday’s vote, where we voted to move to debate this bill at an 80–17 margin, it felt good.

I felt good because some of us have been fighting this fight to fully fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund, in particular, for more than a decade.

Mr. ANDERSON and KING and Senators HEINRICH and CANTWELL have played an incredible role.

We have a lot more votes this week, and I hope my colleagues will continue to support this opportunity to grow our economy, protect the outdoors, and make this beautiful part of our country last for generations more.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT proclaims the American Outdoor Act to the people of the United States, and urges the Senate to pass this bill.

I want to thank my colleague JOE MANCHIN of West Virginia, my colleague STEVE DAINES from Montana for the great work they have done to get this bill to the floor this week.

Obviously, Senator PORTMAN and Senator WARNER and Senators ALEXANDER and KING and Senators HEINRICH and CANTWELL have played an incredible role.

It is a program that Senator UDALL explained yesterday that has worked out so very, very well since his dad introduced it back in the sixties.

But the Great American Outdoors Act does more than just permanently fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund, which is a huge accomplishment in and of itself. It also puts money into our Park Service and areas around our parks that are so important for this country.

President Teddy Roosevelt was truly a visionary. At a time when there were plenty of wild places in this great Nation, he had the good sense to preserve some of them for future generations because he knew they would not be around forever.

Quite frankly, the National Park System encompasses 419 parks, more than 84 million acres, including two crowning jewels in Montana—Yellowstone and Glacier National Park. These are places where Americans come together and experience the scale of America’s natural beauty.

While this is very, very important—$7-billion-a-year outdoor recreation economy, and it has established city parks and open spaces in our more urban communities.

The best of it all is it doesn’t cost the taxpayers a dime because the Land and Water Conservation Fund, as it was set up, was to take money from offshore oil and gas revenue. Well, that hasn’t worked out so well, so today we are just saying that it is going to be funded, and it is going to be funded permanently into the future.

The LWCF is a no-brainer. It has overwhelming benefits for States in which investments are made for pennies on the dollar. We are receiving funds, and we are receiving quality of life. We are receiving the ability to go out and hunt and fish and hike on our public lands.

Unlike any other country in the world, we have these areas where you don’t have to be a millionaire to be able to go out and enjoy the outdoors. But these victories did not happen magically overnight. The fact is, we worked long and hard with local conservation groups and public land enthusiasts around the country to build support where it never existed before, and our years of work finally broke the dam earlier this year when President Trump and Senator MCCONNELL reversed their opposition to this legislation because of overwhelming bipartisan momentum that we had built on the ground. I welcome their change of heart, and I know it didn’t come easy.

There are so many Montanans and folks around the country I want to thank for putting in the work and bringing my colleagues from darkness to light. Your work has inspired me and inspires future generations that are going to benefit from your selfless efforts.

I was at home last night, and I got a text message from one of those folks that said: Thank you. Thank you for...
June 9, 2020

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

your hard work for the last 13 years on LWCF. I sent him back a text that said: I don’t deserve the thank you. You do because, quite frankly, there have been folks that have been working on this much longer than I.

But the vote yesterday, the clock is ticking. Every day we are losing ecosystems in this country, and because of our tardiness in not fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund, we have lost plenty of those ecosystems over the last 10 years, and we will lose even more if we don’t get this funding.

The future of our Nation’s wild places hang in the balance, and we have something to do about it this week. We can fix it. So I would urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote yes on the Great American Outdoors Act so that we can preserve our public lands for future generations, for our kids and our grandkids, just as that visionary President Teddy Roo- sevelt asked me.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sen- ator from Montana.

Mr. DAINES. Madam President, this month will forever mark a historic mo- ment for conservation across this na- tion when the U.S. Senate votes on one of the most important conservation bills in decades.

The Great American Outdoors Act isn’t just about tomorrow, next week, or even this year. This is a vote about the future of our children and grandchildren, about legacy, about their ability to enjoy and access our great outdoors and our public lands.

Standing here today, I can tell you there aren’t too many issues, unfortunate- ly, that bring both Republicans and Democrats together, but protecting our public lands for future generations is something that brings us all here together.

Just last week, we saw a major bi- partisan step forward to getting this bill across the finish line—an 80-to-17 vote to move forward with this important bill.

Today, I am joining my Senate col- leagues on both sides of the aisle to share how important it is that we pass the Great American Outdoors Act as soon as possible.

Many may ask: Well, how is it, then, that we have finally built enough bi- partisan momentum to get this across the finish line? Well, over a year and a half ago, my colleagues and I passed a historic bipartisan public lands pack- age that permanently authorized the Land and Water Conservation Fund—a critical conservation program in Mont- ana and across the country.

In fact, as I am standing here, I am looking across the Chamber at the ranking member of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Senator Joe MANCINi of West Virginia. This is what it is all about in Washington. This is what should be happening more and more. When Senators who sit on opposite sides of the Senate Chamber because of the way we sit, with Demo- crats on one side, Republicans on the other—here we are together. We are not fighting each other right now. We are talking about how we are going to come together and pass this.

This is a vote for our Na- tion—a time when we need to come to- gether—and, once again, it is public lands that are pulling us together in- stead of dividing us.

Back in February, just a few months ago, I sat down in the Roosevelt Room with Senator GARDNER, Leader MC- CONNELL, and President Trump to see what it would take to get full, mandatory funding of the Land and Water Con- servation Fund and how we can fix this maintenance backlog, which is plagu- ing our national parks and our public lands, across the finish line.

In fact, I shared several of Montana’s Land and Water Conservation Fund bills in decades.

The President listened. I remember he sat back in his chair. He commented how beautiful the landscapes were that he saw in these pictures. He said that we need to get this across the finish line, and he said that he would sign it into law as soon as we did so.

Protecting and preserving our public lands play a direct role in our Montana way of life. In fact, this picture is of the Yellowstone River. It is not far from Chico. I remember as a kid, back in the sixties, having church potlucks at Chico.

I remember in 1979 I took the family Griswold station wagon, including the brown veneer on the side of it—wood veneer—with several of my high school classmates. That is where we had our homecoming dance dinner, at Chico, just a few miles from where this pic- ture was taken.

I have spent countless days hiking the Beartooth Wilderness area, fishing the Gallatin and the Yellowstone, shown here, enjoying all of Montana’s great outdoors in every corner of our State with my sweet wife Cindy, our four children, and our dogs Ruby and Reagan.

In fact, take a look at some of these photos. These are photos I have taken on my phone in some of Montana’s pub- lic lands. That is Ruby, and there is Reagan. This was up in the Beartooth Wilderness area.

In fact, I have another picture here, one of Ruby. We like to take our dogs along because this is wild country. This is a country where there are a lot of grizzly bears, and having your dog along gives you a great deterrent, along with some bear spray.

There is Ruby up at what is called the Mount Villard Spires. In fact, Granite Peak, the highest point in Montana, was one of the last summited in 1979, the year it was climbed. Granite Peak is just around the corner. I summited that back dur- ing my college years.

I can tell you, when I talk about public lands and protecting them and mak- ing sure we preserve that for genera- tions to come, this is not some kind of theoretical discussion. This something that I live and breathe personally. Dur- ing the August recess, when we get to leave this town and go and be humid in DC, I get to be up in the wil- derness areas of Montana—we do that every August—where the area is crisp, the air is clean.

That is why, as Montana’s voice in the U.S. Senate, I am standing here today, fighting to bring this vote to the floor and to make the Great American Outdoors Act a reality.

Many folks may not understand the importance of the Land and Water Con- servation Fund and what it means for Montana and States across our coun- try. Let’s go over a few important facts.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund is critical for public access to public lands. As an avid outdoorsman, a hunter, and a fly fisherman, I under- stand the importance of our public lands. This program helps connect trails. It funds over 70 percent of Mont- ana’s fishing access, and it does much more.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund provides certainty to land managers, sportsmen, and conser- vation groups.

The Land and Water Conservation money invests in Montana’s outdoor re-creation economy, Montana contributes over $7 billion and supports 71,000 jobs in Mont- ana alone. In fact, 81 percent of Mont- anans participate in outdoor recrea- tion. In fact, every $1 million invested in the Land and Water Conservation Fund creates between 16 and 30 jobs.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund costs the taxpayers nothing. Let me say that again. It costs the tax- payers nothing, and it promotes energy development. Now, here is the balance we need in our Nation: to continue to develop energy independence and glob- al energy dominance by developing our natural resources, and at the same time the revenues coming off of there are used for the Land and Water Conservation Fund. Here is the balance between the two: promoting natural re- source development and promoting conservation. This program is pri- marily funded by oil and gas revenue, and it makes conservation inextricably linked to a strong energy sector, which means the Land and Water Conserva- tion money is already paid for.

Through the Forest Legacy side of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, we will see the promotion of working forests to get our mills back up and running and help support and create good-paying timber jobs. It will do a much better job of managing our national forests because we will thin them and reduce the risk of wildfires. Perhaps you may have heard otherwise, but this program actually helps promote sound land management.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund acts as an important tool for land managers and agencies to address checkerboard land ownership. I decided today to bring pictures of the beautiful lands in Montana that is landlocked, I could have gotten a little more technical and showed the checkerboard nature of land ownership in a place like Montana and why we need LWCF to provide better access to our public lands. Because we have 1.5 million acres of Federal land in Montana that is landlocked, Montana directly benefits from the Land and Water Conservation Fund projects that work to consolidate land ownership. You will have a private end holding, you will have a State piece, and another Federal piece in this checkerboard nature, and by consolidating it and working with willing sellers, we can make the overall landscape management easier for agencies and private landowners and provide better access.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund supports locally driven solutions from the ground up. These are collaborative projects that have local support. The LWCF is authorized at $900 million annually. However, we aren't seeing nearly that much appropriated from that fund every year. In fact, only twice, since it was enacted going back to 1964, have we seen funding levels at $900 million, and that was the original congressional intent.

Let's be clear. What we are doing here by passing this bill is bringing it back to what Congress intended when it was first originated back in the mid-sixties. Mandatory funding for the Great American Outdoors Act: addressing the maintenance backlog on our public lands, conserving parks, and $12 billion of that is for our national parks, including $700 million in Glacier and Yellowstone National Parks and over $34 million in Montana's smaller national parks. Addressing this $12 billion backlog through the Great American Outdoors Act will play a vital role in getting our national parks back on track. This will create jobs, support our gateway and rural communities, and enhance visitor experience in our national parks.

The restoration of our national parks could generate over 100,000 additional jobs at a time when our economy needs that kind of boost. While this was an issue we have been working on for years, Members on both sides of this infamous aisle, this is needed maybe now more than ever.

Montanans are raised to love and respect the outdoors. Only once in a great while does such a historic piece of conservation legislation come along—perhaps once every 50 years. It is essential to protect and maintain access to these lands for future generations. It is my highest honor to serve the people of Montana in the U.S. Senate. I encourage my colleagues to join us in supporting this great piece of legislation, one that has helped bring a divided government together.

I believe it is a conservative principle to conserve and I will continue fighting for that principle. I know I and my colleagues here today are ready to get this done. Montanans know what it takes to practice conservative principles and work to conserve their public lands. Now it is time for Congress to come together in a bipartisan way and support the Great American Outdoors Act.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. MANCHIN. Madam President, I thank my colleague Senator Daines from Montana and all my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans. Everyone has been so excited about getting up and showing pictures of their beautiful State. All of us—it is the United States of America—every one of us has something to be proud of and show off, and the LWCF and restore our historic parks bills will protect each and every one of them.

I have been in the Senate for almost 10 years. I have not seen any piece of legislation that has brought us together with more enthusiasm than this piece of legislation, the Great American Outdoors Act, because the entire Nation benefits from it. Whether it be in West Virginia, Colorado, or Montana, wherever it may be, our outdoor resources is something that all of my colleagues can enjoy. I can enjoy it all, I can visit and enjoy the great American outdoors, if you will.

The strong support for the Great American Outdoors Act is a testament to the importance of this legislation and what it does. We have never had a financial recovery, an economic recovery without infrastructure investments in spending. We don't have a better piece of legislation that does this. It is a win-win all the way.

More than 150,000 jobs will be created by this bill. I think every county in America—I have 55 counties in West Virginia. Every county in West Virginia, basically, is receiving some sort of financial benefit from this. I believe all have been greatly impacted by this.

Today, I want to talk about the impact that the Land and Water Conservation Fund has had on my home State of West Virginia. Out of the 54 of the 55 counties have benefited, as I said, from the Land and Water Conservation Fund. It is responsible for some of our most cherished outdoor spaces in West Virginia. In fact, since 1965, $243 million has been spent to enhance recreation and conservation in the Mountain State alone.

The LWCF has supported projects at Canaan Valley National Wildlife Refuge, Gauley River National Recreation Area, New River Gorge, New River Gorge—this is the New River Gorge. This is the New River. If you are in the eastern part of the United States and you haven't floated on the New River or the Gauley, you are missing a great opportunity. The scenery is unbelievable, and floating through the rapids is something special. To float through there is an experience. I welcome and recommend everyone to come visit at least once in your life the wild and wonderful West Virginia on the New River and the Gauley River. The Land and Water Conservation Fund has also helped towns like Marlinton, WV. Mayor Sam Felton was able to turn a vacant lot into the Discovery Junction, a multipurpose community gathering space, with the help of $86,000 from LWCF.

The fund is also important for our hunting community. Hunting is a way of life in West Virginia. It is a tradition that we all cherish and value. The Great American Outdoors Act will increase access to all Federal lands for hunting and fishing all across the country. A lack of access to Federal lands is a problem, and I know this has frustrated sportmen for years.

As the Congressman from Montana has said, over 1.5 million acres is owned in his State by the Federal Government, but all of it doesn't have access. We are able to provide access now with the funding that it will take from this legislation.
Another thing that is very important that has been mentioned. LWCF does not use one iota of taxpayer dollars. This is basically coming off of the royalties of our offshore oil and gas revenues.

I want to mention also that we have some of our Senators whom we tried to accommodate in this piece of legislation. There are a few of the Senators whom I want to make a public commitment that I will work, as ranking member on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, to do everything I can to make sure we understand the needs of the coastal States and the restoration and protection of our coastal States as it is impacted by the changing environment. My commitment to them is I will work diligently with my Southern States and also my Northern States for all of my coastal States. The Senator from Rhode Island has my commitment, and the Senator from Louisiana has my commitment. We will work to make sure they have the needed funds it takes to protect their coastline and all the work that they have done and all the assets that they have contributed to our great country and the value, as far as in their coastal State, to make sure they are included. During the committee I will do everything I can to make sure we have the proper hearings and proper attention for the changes that need to be made. We were unable to put that in this piece of legislation, but I am committed to help work through that, and I will do that.

Because Federal lands are surrounded by private lands, they can be essentially inaccessible, and we have to make sure we have access. Hunting in West Virginia is a time-honored tradition. As I have said, I have been a hunter my entire life, and I look forward to opening day in hunting season each year for all different types of game. I also love fishing immensely. I don't like to open the season for all different types of game. I like to spend time on the water, and I love to fish and enjoy being with other and talking about how we can get more of our colleagues involved and having a vote that we had last night, a vote of 80 votes.

I see the Senator from Tennessee who has worked so hard on our national parks and has one of the most beautiful national parks in his State that I am proud of. I just can't tell you how much I think this piece of legislation means to us—100 Senators—in this most challenging time that we have in our country right now.

West Virginia has approximately $62 million in deferred maintenance just for our little national park areas alone. This includes crumbling roads, bridges, outdated wastewater plants, electrical systems, and deteriorating monuments, which I know we are going to be able to start repairing. On average, 1.6 million visitors enjoy our beautiful national parks in West Virginia every year. From New River Gorge National River to Harpers Ferry National Historical Park, visitors to our national parks generate $73 million from the surrounding communities. This act, the Great American Outdoors Act, will ensure our national parks, forests, and other Federal lands are well taken care of and remain accessible for everyone to enjoy.

West Virginians take great pride in our great outdoor playgrounds. We invite all of you—all of you—to come to wild and wonderful West Virginia and enjoy everything we have to offer. We thank you so much. I thank my staff and the staff of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, of which I am the ranking member, for working tirelessly through the pandemic and through the virus to make sure we are able to have a piece of legislation that generations of Americans will be able to enjoy.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam President, while he is on the floor, I congratulate the Senator from West Virginia for his leadership. Sometimes he says too many cooks spoil the pot or whatever the phrase is. There could be too many cooks but not in this case. Senator MANCHIN, because of his senior leadership on the Energy Committee and on this bill, has been really a bulwark in bringing it to this point. I thank him for that. He has been excellent about involving so many of us.

We have an unusual assortment of U.S. Senators, outside sportmen groups, conservation groups, the President of the United States, and all of the former Secretaries of the Department of the Interior from Babbitt to Zinke. It is a real pleasure to work on this kind of legislation—professionally—we all support this bill that came up last night with 80 different votes.

Among those who deserve a lot of credit is another Member of the U.S. Senate who is also on the floor right now, Mr. WARNER from Virginia. He became interested in this bill as soon as anyone. He may have been the first one to put his toe in the water. He and Senator PORTMAN from Ohio, they formed a very strong team to bring this bill forward.

Since then, Senators DAINES, GARDNER, HEINRICH, and KING all have joined in, and then Senators MANCHIN and GARDNER, especially, have added the strength of the Land and Water Conservation Fund. I thank all of them for their leadership.

I will speak just briefly about what we call the Great American Outdoors bill, and I think it helps first to say what we are talking about. We are talking about a campground on Chilhowee Mountain at the edge of the Great Smokey Mountains National Park in Tennessee. It was closed for 2 or 3 years. Why? Because the sewage system didn't work. So 300 families who normally would use that campground in the summer—go up there and have this majestic view of the highest mountains in the Eastern United States—didn't have that possibility.

The Great Smokey Mountains has about 12 million visitors a year. That is three or four times as many as Yellowstone does or any of the western parks because it is in the East. It has $224 million of deferred maintenance like that campground. Its annual budget is $20 million a year. So you don't have to have gone too far in mathematics in the Maryville City School system to understand that it will probably take 15, 20, 25 years, or never to be able to get out of the deferred maintenance in the Great Smokey Mountains National Park, our most visited national park.

Now, that is a massive disappointment to people who consider our national parks as our greatest treasures, to go there and find a campground that couldn't work, a bridge that is closed, a road with a pothole, a trail that is worn out, and visitor centers that are dilapidated, as they are in some of our centers around the country. This is what we are talking about. This is what we are talking about. We are talking about deferred maintenance, things that are broken and... don't work and interfere with the ability of the American people to go outdoors. Of all the times in our recent history when people would like to go outdoors, it would be right now, just to get out of the house and get away. Of all the times when we need extra jobs, it would be right now, when we have 14 percent of the people in Tennessee out of work. Some of them could go to work on the roads and the bridges and the trails and the potholes and the sewage systems and the other things that need to be fixed, if we had the money.

So that is the first thing this bill is about. It is about the deferred maintenance in the national parks—but not just in the national parks. With President Trump's enthusiastic support, we have added to the bill, as it has made its way through the Senate, other public lands; for example, the Fish and Wildlife Service lands, the Bureau of Land Management lands, and the Bureau of Indian Education schools. There are lots of Indian schools that are rundown and need to be fixed.

All of those are part of this bill, which is why, among the 800 organizations—environmental groups—who have called all of us and asked us to vote last night, among the most enthusiastic are the fishermen and the sportsmen—the Ducks Unlimited, headquartered in Memphis. They are really concerned because we use the public lands. We want them preserved. Fishermen want access to their streams. Tourists want to be able to drive to the top of Newfound Gap in the Great Smoky Mountains or to see the Grand Canyon or to visit Pearl Harbor or to walk on the National Mall. All of these are part of our deferred maintenance problem.

So there are two parts to the bill. The first is the Land and Water Conservation Fund. Now, this is a fund that was created in 1964. It was a pretty good idea, I have always thought. You take an environmental burden—drilling offshore for oil and gas—and you create an environmental benefit—take some of the money and use it to buy preserved lands.

Senator Daines of Montana points out that 80 percent of the access to good fishing in Montana comes with funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund. So 64 years ago, when we had some money come through Congress for the Land and Water Conservation Fund, but—the problem is—not all of the money that Congress intended, because in 1964 Congress said, Set aside a certain amount of money, about $300 million, from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, put it in the Treasury, and then spend it for this purpose: half to the States for their land acquisition and half to the Federal Government. But Congress didn’t ever appropriate all that money.

We took that back up in 1985 and 1986 with President Reagan’s Commission on Americans Outdoors, which I chaired and Gf Groeneweg from the National Geographic was the cochairman. The No. 1 recommendation for President Reagan’s Commission on Americans Outdoors was to permanently fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund. We permanently authorized it earlier in this Congress. This year we will permanently fund it.

The second part is to restore our parks and our public lands. In that case, and just the same, whether it is the national parks or the parks or the pond or the bridges or other access roads or the bridges or other rundown and worn-out trails or buildings or sewage systems, at the rate we are going, it will take about 15 to 20 years, maybe longer—maybe never—to finish all that deferred maintenance, but, with this bill, we should reduce that substantially.

The idea is to take about up to $14 billion over 5 years and use it to pay for deferred maintenance. Now, how do we pay for it? We say, pay for it with real money. We pay for it with earnings from energy exploration on Federal lands.

Now, this is not a new concept. As I mentioned, the Land and Water Conservation Fund put that into law in 1964: environmental burden, environmental benefit. It is also not a new concept for all the coastal States in our country because we take money—I think it is 27 percent of the money we get from energy drilling just off the coastal States—and we give it to those States. We also take some money from drilling in what we call an area beyond the 3-mile limit for southern States and give them 37 percent of that money. We also take some money from drilling, say, in Wyoming and give Wyoming 50 percent of that money—or in Alaska, 90 percent of that money.

The difference is, we do all of that before we give the rest to the Treasury. Senator Portman, who was in the Senate when the Office of Management and Budget, calls it using real money to reduce an unpaid debt.

Now, it is absolutely true that the way the Congressional Budget Office looks at that, it is not offset. But there is a difference of opinion here. President Trump looks at it in a different way. He thinks it is real money for deferred maintenance. The Office of Management and Budget disagrees with the Congressional Budget Office. They approve this spending. The President’s budget includes this spending.

We are spending, as I said earlier, money that we already—the same kind of money we spend that we give to States before we give it to the Federal Government.

So, if I am walking down Broadway in Maryville, TN, where I am from, and I am trying to say to them “Where does this come from?” we would say, “Well, in the case of the Land and Water Conservation Fund”—taxes from energy exploration on Federal lands. We are going to use it for 5 years—in the case of everything but the Land and Water Conservation Fund for 5 years. If we don’t have the money, we don’t spend it. If we do have the money, we do spend it.

As a result of that, we are going to be able to fix those broken bridges, those sewage systems, those dilapidated visitor centers, those roads with potholes, those trails that are worn out. Instead of maybe never fixing them or doing them at a rate of 20 or 25 years, we will be able to cut in half that deferred maintenance backlog and reduce substantially the time it takes to make these public lands the kinds of lands that all of us expect when we go to visit.

So I am delighted to be in full support of this. I thank Senator Warner, Senator Portman, and all the others who have worked so hard on it. I hope the vote we had last night with 80 Senators of both parties in support of moving ahead with the bill, signals that, as we go through the other procedural efforts this week, we will have significant bipartisan support, send it to the House where an identical bill is being introduced, and send it to the President.

President Trump is fully in support of it. In fact, without him and his Office of Management and Budget, we wouldn’t have a chance to do it.

More than 2½ years ago, Secretary Zinke, a big fellow from Montana who was the Interior Secretary, came down to Tennessee and asked me if I would get involved in this because it was so important. So I talked to Mick Mulvaney, who was then in the Office of Management and Budget, and to the President and they wanted it done.

So I got involved. I found myself in pretty good company with Senator Warner and a lot of other folks, and here we are today. So I hope we have great success with this bill. I know the people of Tennessee are looking forward to it.

I will be remiss if I didn’t point out—I pointed out that, with the Smokies, our backlog is about $224 million, and our annual budget is about $20 million, so we will never get the backlog fixed if we don’t pass a bill like this or this bill.

This same applies to other public lands in our State. The Cherokee National Forest, which is the largest piece of public land in Tennessee, will get help with their $27 million maintenance backlog to make sure their access roads and trails are kept open for 3 million visitors each year. That is about as many visitors as many of our most popular western parks have.
The Tennessee National Wildlife Refuge will get help with their $8.4 million maintenance backlog to make sure the hunters and fishers can safely use the boat ramps and the boat docks.

I yield the floor.

The SERVING OFFICER (Mr. CRUZ). The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the timing has worked out pretty well. It is great to be able to speak on this piece of legislation after my friend the Senator from Tennessee has just completed speaking.

We were hearing some, I think, classic legislating coming from Senator ALEXANDER. He was very generous in his compliments to Senator MANCHIN, to me, to Senator PORTMAN, to Senator DAINES, and to Senator GARDNER, but we all know that we wouldn’t be here on the cusp of passing the most significant piece of environmental outdoor lands legislation in a generation or, for that matter, in 50 years if it hadn’t been for the leadership of Senator ALEXANDER from Tennessee.

So many of us who have had an opportunity to work with him and become friends with him over his years in the Senate have tried to emulate him at times and listen to him all the time. He is a Senator I wish we had more of and one that I have learned from. So I do want to rise to join all of the colleagues who have come to support this legislation, thank him for the great work that he has done garnering, as well, the over 800-plus environmental groups that have come to support this legislation. I know that my friend the Senator from Tennessee is not going to stand for reelection, and I know he will have many, many legacy items from his tenure in the Senate, but I believe this Great American Outdoors Act will rank in the top three or top five of his legislative accomplishments in that kind of work that he has done. As a matter of fact, a recent study by the National Park Service, has over $700 million in deferred maintenance, and the nearby Petersburg National Battlefield has nearly $9 million in deferred maintenance.

Our legislation would help preserve these important pieces of our heritage while also supporting the local economies. At the Shenandoah National Park, one of the crown jewels of the National Park Service, the maintenance backlog sits at $80 million. Our legislation would help people to work on these overdue repairs, including Skyline Drive and stretches of the Appalachian Trail, which are, again, at the heart of Virginia’s outdoor tourism industry.

As you head further southwest in Virginia, the Blue Ridge Parkway has accumulated over $508 million in deferred maintenance needs. That is over $1 million per mile of the Parkway. The Great American Outdoors Act would put Virginians to work on these repairs and create tens of thousands of jobs across the country and provide a positive economic impact for those gateway communities.

The Senator from Tennessee mentioned Chilhowee in Tennessee. We have a Chilhowee in Southwest Virginia as well. Those gateway communities depend on our national parks.

As a matter of fact, a recent study by the National Park Service indicates that the Great American Outdoors Act will actually support over 100,000 jobs and contribute $17.5 billion in total economic output through this legislation. In Virginia alone, that means over 10,000 jobs could be created by eliminating this maintenance backlog. This also give you a hint that are a more parochial basis of what that will mean in Virginia. Here in the national capital region, the George Washington Memorial Parkway, which is managed by the National Park Service, has over $700 million in deferred maintenance. As a matter of fact, anyone who travels on that road knows that, north of the Theodore Roosevelt Bridge, we actually had a sinkhole appear in the parkway within the last year—an enormous safety threat as well as a huge inconvenience to the traveling public.

Our legislation would help rebuild this critical transportation route between Virginia, Washington, and Maryland—again, reducing traffic and creating jobs.

I mentioned that in Virginia we are blessed with a number of historic battlefields. The Richmond National Battlefield Park has the largest—if not the largest—investments in infrastructure in our national parks in the over-100-year history of the National Park Service.

In addition to preserving our national treasures for future generations to enjoy, this legislation will also create tens of thousands of jobs across the country and provide a positive economic impact for those gateway communities.

Our legislation would help rebuild this critical transportation route between Virginia, Washington, and Maryland—again, reducing traffic and creating jobs.
I will just give you one final example—the Colonial National Historical Park, which is home to Historic Jamestowne and the Yorktown Battlefield. At this park, containing some of our Nation’s most significant sites—beginning our Nation and the birth of our Nation’s capital—there are deferred maintenance needs totaling over $433 million.

With this legislation, the wait on these repairs is over. We are going to create jobs and make sure this important part of our history is around for years to come.

In addition to securing these funds for the Park Service and other public lands, the Great American Outdoors Act also provides the full mandatory funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

LWCF is the most important tool the Federal Government and States have to conserve natural areas, water resources, and cultural heritage, and expand recreation opportunities to all communities.

Over the past four decades, Virginia has received over $360 million in LWCF funding that has been used to preserve critical places in the Commonwealth, like the Chickahominy River Battlefield Natural Area Reserve, the Shenandoah River State Park, and the Appalachian National Scenic Trail.

With full funding from the LWCF, we will be able to conserve additional critical lands in the Commonwealth and provide more recreational opportunities for Virginians from the coalfields to the Chesapeake Bay and everywhere in between.

In closing, I urge my colleagues to support this historic legislation that will help restore our national parks and public lands, create tens of thousands of jobs across the country, and expand recreation opportunities for millions of Americans. This bipartisan piece of legislation, which also has the support of the administration, is legislation whose time has arrived. I look forward to its successful passage later this week.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The roll call proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the previous recess be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that if my remarks go over the time for the recess at 12:30 that they be allowed to extend beyond that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF CHARLES Q. BROWN

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. President, this is going to be a historic day for the U.S. Senate, as we come to the floor after the recess, after lunch here, to be voting on the confirmation of Gen. Charles Q. Brown, Jr., to be the Chief of Staff of the U.S. Air Force—Gen. C.Q. Brown. I will be voting for General Brown because he is the right man, at the right time, for this very important job. Let me explain why.

General Brown has an impressive academic record and a sterling record of service to our Nation and, of course, to the U.S. Air Force. He is a distinguished graduate of the Armed Force Reserve Officer Training Corps, with a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from Texas Tech—the University that I went to, of course—as well as a master’s degree in aeronautical science from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University.

Currently, General Brown is the commanding officer—the four-star general—in charge of Pacific Air Forces, all Pacific Air Forces. Of course, Mr. President, you know that is really important because he is literally on the frontlines in implementing the national defense strategy, which has a focus on great power competition, particularly China, as the pacing threat to our Nation for the next 50 to 100 years. General Brown is in that battle right now, frontlines, every day, in his current billing. That is really important.

Prior to being commander of the Pacific Air Forces, he was the deputy commander of U.S. Central Command for 2 years. He knows all about the national security challenges that we have from that region of the world, which are still very significant—particularly violent extremist organizations, like al-Qaida and ISIS—that continue to threaten the United States.

From 2015 to 2016, he served as the U.S. Air Force’s Central Command Combined Force Air Component Commander, where he oversaw the strategic bombing campaigns against ISIS in Iraq and Syria, as well as operations against insurgent groups in Afghanistan.

With a record like that—pretty remarkable—he understands the threats we are currently facing. He understands the big challenges we are seeing over the horizon with regard to China. And he is ready to lead the Air Force to take on those threats as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The Secretary of the Air Force, Barbara Barrett, said of General Brown:

He has unmatched strategic vision and operational expertise. His leadership will be vital as the Air Force continues to focus on the capabilities and talent we need to implement the National Defense Strategy.

That is the Secretary of the Air Force on Gen. C.Q. Brown.

In my conversations with him, I certainly believe these qualities, these characteristics, the Secretary of the Air Force describes to certainly be true. I have had many good conversations with him on strategy, on strategic basing, including in the Asia-Pacific region, and I am very confident that, again, that is the right person for the right job at this moment.

I also want to mention that he will be the first African-American to serve as a chief in our military’s history. I have known General Brown for some time, but I was actually surprised when I realized this. Colin Powell was Chairman of the Joint Chiefs and did an amazing job, but we have not had an African-American serve as chief in any other services in the history of the United States.

I think that is very important right now. In many ways, this is a historic nomination, particularly, as our country is roiling over the killing of George Floyd and the protests that are taking place—peacefully now, which is great—to demand justice for him and his family, and as we look at some of the challenges we have in our Nation with regard countering racism across America.

In a very moving video address last week, General Brown recently talked about what is on his mind in terms of some of these challenges. He talks about many of the things that are on his mind, many aspects of his career. It is very powerful. I would recommend that people who care about these issues take a look at that very powerful speech. He said that he was thinking about the conversations his wife of 31 years, Sharene, and his two sons, Sean and Ross, have had on these times recently but, also, the immense responsibility that comes from his historic nomination. He was thinking, of course, about how he could make our country better for others from a national security standpoint and with regard to other issues.

Think about that. That is a tremendous weight for anyone to carry, but I firmly believe that General Brown’s shoulders are broad and strong enough to carry this weight.

I am going to be voting enthusiastically with regard to the vote we are going to take at 2:15 this afternoon. I want to encourage all of my colleagues to vote yes, to have a 100-to-0 vote for this important, impressive nomination to be the Chief of Staff of the U.S. Air Force.

I yield the floor.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:32 p.m., recessed until 2:15 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mrs. CAPITO).

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

The VICE PRESIDENT. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to consider the following nomination, which the clerk will read:

The senior assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of General Charles Q. Brown, Jr., for appointment as Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, and appointment in the United States Air Force to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., sections 601 and 9033: to be General.

Thereupon, the Senate proceeded to consider the nomination.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Under the previous order, the question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of General Charles Q. Brown, Jr.?

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) and the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY) are necessarily absent.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote or to change their vote?

The result was announced—yeas 98, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 115 Ex.]

YEAS—98

Alexander  Bailey  Baldwin
Barstow  Barr  Barrett
Blackburn  Blumenthal  Blunt  Booker
Boozman  Brown  Brown  Burr
Cassidy  Cramer  Crapo  Cruz
Daines  Duckworth  Durbin  Enzi
Ernst  Feinerman  Fischer  Gardner

NOT VOTING—2

Cardin  Markay

The VICE PRESIDENT. On this vote the yeas are 98, the nays are 0, and the historic nomination of Gen. Charles Q. Brown, Jr., as the U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff is confirmed.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Under the previous order, the motions to reconsider is considered made and laid upon the table, and the President will be immediately notified of the Senate’s action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. ALEXANDER. Madam President, U.S. Senator Tim Scott, who is an African-American Republican from South Carolina, once told our Bible study that in his hometown he had stopped several times for being a “Black man in the wrong place” even though, at the time, he was serving as chairman of the Charleston City Council.

During these last few days, I have been thinking a lot about what Tim Scott told us, and I wondered how many White Americans know things like that happen—White Americans like me. I wondered how I would feel if I were stopped for being a White man in the wrong place in my hometown, especially if most of the people in the town were Black. Would I feel hurt? Scared? Disillusioned? Angry? Weary? Disappointed? Intimidated? Probably all of those things.

One result of George Floyd’s killing is that Black Americans are telling more stories like Tim Scott’s. A professor of religious studies in Nashville wrote The Tennessean that he carries a licensed firearm with him when he goes for a run. A columnist remembers that, as a 6-year-old, a White woman outside a Dallas gas station restroom said to him: Now, you don’t belong here.

Well-educated Black businessmen count the times they have been profiled because of their race. One of my friends in Memphis, who is now vice president of Memphis’s largest hospital, told me that when he went to Memphis State in the 1960s, it was clear to him that almost everyone thought that he didn’t belong there.

During my lifetime, I have seen profound changes in race attitudes. In 1958, when I enrolled at Vanderbilt University, I had no Black classmates. African Americans couldn’t sit at lunch counters in Nashville. Blacks driving across Tennessee couldn’t stay in most motels; they couldn’t eat at most restaurants; they couldn’t ride at the front of most public buses.

Then, in 1962, in the spring, the Vanderbilt University Board of Trustees changed its policy and admitted Black undergraduate students.

In August of 1963, I remember standing in the back of a huge crowd late that month. I was an intern in the U.S. Department of Justice, and I heard a booming voice—which was Dr. Martin Luther King’s voice—say: “I have a dream.”

In 1968, I was a Senate aide here, and I remember being in the room, which is today the Republican leader’s office, where Senators were around a big table, and Senator Everett Dirksen and then-President Lyndon Johnson were writing the Civil Rights bill.

During the 1980s, I saw Tennessee adopt a Martin Luther King holiday and swear in its first Black supreme court justice. In the 1980s, the University of Tennessee hired its first two Black vice presidents, and it hired its first Black basketball coach who, as a teenager in Alcoa, had sat in the “colored” section at UT football games.

I saw the Voting Rights Act help to elect thousands of African-American public officials, including President Barack Obama by Senator Tim Scott. Last week, I asked Senator Scott if I could tell the story that he told us privately in the Bible study. He said: Sure. It happened again just last month.

So despite a half century of profound change, an African-American U.S. Senator is stopped again by police for being a Black man in the wrong place in his hometown. So what do we do now? Bringing those who killed George Floyd to justice will help. Dealing firmly with looters and violent criminals will help. Some new laws and government actions will help, such as criminal justice reform and permanent funding for historically Black colleges that became law in this Congress. It will also help to open schools and colleges in August and to open them safely because a good education is the surest ticket to a better future for minority students, and those students will suffer more from schools being closed.

Benjamin Hooks, the former NAACP president from Memphis—he was the national president of the NAACP; he lived in Memphis. He taught students this. Dr. Hooks said: America is a work in progress. We have come a long way, but we have a long way to go.

That long way to go, I would say, will not be as easy as passing laws. It will take changing behavior. One way to do that could be last week’s peaceful protest organized by Snowflakes and Harriets, which was a textbook example of First Amendment citizenship, and it hopefully will encourage more victims of racism to tell their stories and more White Americans to adjust our attitudes.

I am grateful that Tim Scott gave me permission to tell his story. Perhaps a good first step to changing attitudes toward racial discrimination would be for each of us who is White to ask ourselves this question: How would I feel if police in my hometown repeatedly stopped me for being a White man or a White woman in the wrong place, especially if most of the other people in the town were Black?

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. INLAD. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. HEINRICHI. Madam President, during these past months, in the midst of a pandemic that has kept most of us inside our homes, Americans have grown to appreciate, in new ways, how critical each moment of fresh air can be to maintaining both our physical health and our mental well-being.

More people are getting outside than ever before, whether for a quick walk in their local neighborhood park or by seeking solitude on the many public lands across our country. Each and every American citizen. Coming from a State that is blessed with expansive skies and remote open spaces, I am convinced that investing in the future of our parks and our public lands will be a key path for our Nation to recover from the challenges we currently face.

That is why I am so proud that we are coming together this week to bring the Great American Outdoors Act to the Senate floor for a vote. Our bipartisan legislation will permanently and fully fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund and finally dedicate real resources to begin tackling the multibillion dollar infrastructure backlog in our national parks, our national forests, and our wildlife refuges. If you like to hike, you can enjoy some of our most treasured public lands—places like the Valles Caldera National Preserve with its trout streams, its high altitude meadows, and its massive elk herd. I know it is hard to tell, but this is actually me not catching a trout in the Valles Caldera National Preserve, but it is OK because any day in the preserve is a good day.

It also helped us establish the Valle de Oro National Wildlife Refuge in Albuquerque’s South Valley, a place where young people will be introduced to nature, many for the first time in a really meaningful way, in a place that is at the heart of the local community now.

It purchased and protected the entirety—the entirety—of Ute Mountain, which is now a centerpiece of the Rio Grande del Norte National Monument. It almost boggles the mind to think about the scale of that, but this entire mountain used to be private, and there was no public access. Today, it is one of the most treasured places in Taos County, a rural county that relies on recreation and fishing and boating and camping to drive its economy.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund is also our most effective tool for opening up public access to our public lands. Just recently, the Land and Water Conservation Fund helped the Bureau of Land Management acquire land parcels that finally opened up public access to the rugged Sabinoso Wilderness in Northeastern New Mexico. This is Sabinoso, with its narrow mesas and spectacular canyon walls, which had previously been completely off limits to the public despite being part of the public lands. It had become entirely surrounded by public land, so there wasn’t a legal trail or a legal road to be able to enjoy this place. Today, that landscape is something that the local community and visitors from afar share on a daily basis.

LWCF also funds recreation areas in neighborhood parks, sports fields, and community ballfields across our State and all across the Nation.

Last year, I was proud to be part of a successful bipartisan effort here in the Senate to permanently reauthorize LWCF. However, without guaranteed funding, LWCF is simply not enough for our parks and the other critical needs in our national parks, our national forests, and our wildlife refuges. That doesn’t account for the long-term growth in the outdoor recreation sector and the sector of recreation among our young people.

Teddy Roosevelt once said: “Conservation means development as much as it does protection.” I believe that this type of investment in conservation is exactly what President Roosevelt meant.

Now, to the second leg of our landmark Great American Outdoors Act: We all know how important it is to rebuild the infrastructure in all of our national parks. You can’t enjoy visiting these iconic American places if the bathrooms don’t work, if the trails and the campgrounds aren’t open, and if the roads are in disrepair. These are places that we are so proud of, that we cherish. From our oldest national parks like Yosemite and Yellowstone to our Nation’s newest national park—one I am particularly close to—White Sands National Park in New Mexico, they all deserve better.

I am proud that the Great American Outdoors Act also includes dedicated funding to address similar infrastructure needs in our national forests, our wildlife refuges, and our Bureau of Land Management lands. We have also included dedicated funding to address the unacceptable maintenance backlog at schools that educate our land grant students. There are many BIE schools that serve students across Indian country that are in truly dangerous states of disrepair.

Through this legislation, we are finally going to make major progress on providing these students the kinds of safe schools and educational facilities that they truly deserve.

In the wake of our current economic crisis, rebuilding all this critical infrastructure will provide tens of thousands of new jobs across the Nation. It is estimated that just investing in fixing the National Park Service’s infrastructure alone would generate nearly 110,000 new jobs. These investments will also create a lasting heritage that will grow the outdoor recreation economy and provide us all with more opportunities to get outside. We know this can work.

This is the time we as a nation faced an economic downturn on the scale of what we are experiencing today, Americans turned to our public lands. At the height of the Great Depression, Franklin Delano Roosevelt understood well that out-of-work Americans were not without worth but, rather, that they could leave an indelible mark on our country.

Now, over the years, I have been lucky to have met many of the men and women who served in the New Deal’s Civilian Conservation Corps, or “CCC boys,” as they often referred to themselves as. While most of these men have now passed away, sadly, the trails, the visitor centers, and the other important structures they had created during a restoration of America, they had so much pride in building almost a century ago continue to serve this Nation.

Throughout our long recovery, we will be a stronger nation if we can provide new opportunities for Americans to enjoy our public lands with meaningful opportunities to serve their country and leave their mark. There is so much work we need to do to rebuild our country.

In the midst of a real national reckoning on race over these recent weeks and as we continue to face the most severe economic and public health crises in generations, we should all be thinking about how we can rebuild our country in a way that includes all of us.

I firmly believe that this urgent goal is intertwined in our efforts this week in the Senate to grow opportunities in our great American outdoors. That is because our public lands and outdoor spaces are fundamental to who we are as Americans, where we can each find a real sense of belonging in this great country of ours. I think we must frankly acknowledge the uncomfortable truth that the outdoors has not always seemed like such a welcoming and accessible place for all Americans. Many of our national parks have a fraught history with the Tribal nations whose ancestral lands they are. In New Mexico, many of our national forests were established on the very same lands that were deeded as land grants to families by the Spanish Crown.

Our public lands agencies have not always recognized that history, and there remains much more hard work ahead to provide meaningful seats at the table in the management of these landscapes to the communities whose heritage and living cultural ties date back hundreds and, in some cases, even thousands of years on these lands.

We must also recognize that the outdoor economy, which is the heart of our future, is being affected by the economic downturn on a scale we have never seen before, and we must ensure safety measures are in place so we can safely get outside and protect our health and our mental well-being. In the midst of a real national reckoning on race over these recent weeks and as we continue to face the most severe economic and public health crises in generations, we should all be thinking about how we can rebuild our country in a way that includes all of us.
When you see all of these names and images left behind on El Morro’s Inscription Rock, you begin to appreciate how varied and also how messy the history of just this one place in our Nation is. You begin the process of learning that we have always been a country filled with good people but also a country riddled with conflicts and shortcomings. That is why it is so important to protect our parks and to protect our public lands.

These are the places where new generations of Americans will learn about both our natural and our human history. It is where they will go to find inspiration to chart new paths forward for our great Nation. For all of these reasons, I am so proud that we have come together on this legislation. We can all understand why investing in restoring and expanding opportunities in our parks and public lands has to be part of our national recovery. These are the places where all of us belong. These are where all of us can. These lands are our lands, and they heal us in a way that few things can.

I think of all the generations of Americans who have cared for these places and enjoy them and learn from them today. With this historic legislation, the Great American Outdoors Act, we are going to help do our part to, literally, pay it forward.

We often invoke Teddy Roosevelt around here when working on conservation legislation. That legislation rarely measures up to the level of accomplishment that you see written in the story of his Presidency.

While I am not superstitious, I have to admit that I always visit his bust here in the Capitol just outside this Chamber before an important conservation vote. This bill—this bill—is the first time in my career that we have done something on the scale of Teddy Roosevelt’s work, and I stand here proud to be a part of it. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CORNYN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEM

Mr. CORNYN. Madam President, if you were to approach a random person on the street in any city in America today and say: Who is George Floyd, I could all but guarantee you that you would be met with a quick response. They would tell you about their horror at seeing this video of him being killed at the hands of a Minneapolis police officer; that, sadly, he was not the first victim of a police killing; and that his death has now mobilized Americans of all races, ages, and backgrounds to demand action.

A friend of Mr. Floyd’s for more than 35 years said:

Everybody in the world knows who George Floyd is today. Presidents, Kings, and Queens—they know George Floyd.

It is true. His name and face are everywhere. He is the subject of incredible discussion, and dinner table conversations. He is the reason for marches and demonstrations in the cities from Houston to Minneapolis, to London, to Sydney. And today, after 2 weeks of grieving, the Floyd family will say their final farewells to their beloved brother, father, and friend to rest in his hometown of Houston, TX.

Over the past 2 weeks, I have joined the chorus of voices calling for justice for Mr. Floyd. The first step is underway now that the officers have been charged, but this alone is not enough. Our country has a responsibility to do the best we can to prevent another family from burying their son or daughter as a result of excessive force by a police officer.

People of all races are now actively engaged in a national conversation about the racial injustices that exist in our country—one that is deeply needed and long overdue.

I believe one of the best ways for kids—really all of us—to learn about that complex history of our country is by visiting our public lands. Let me share just one example. When you visit El Morro Monument in western New Mexico, you walk up to a massive sandstone rock wall that dominates the high desert landscape around it. As you approach the cliff face, you begin to clearly see etchings and markings carved into the stone. These inscriptions give physical form to the history of many, many generations of people who have come to our State or called it home. There are petroglyphs that complex history of our country is imprinted on our skin. As you approach the cliff face, you begin to clearly see etchings and markings carved into the stone. These inscriptions give physical form to the history of many, many generations of people who have come to our State or called it home. There are petroglyphs that are based on an honest appraisal of our deep-seated history—the good and the bad, the inspiring and the painful.

Our public lands are places we should all be able to access regardless of how thick or thin our wallets are, where we grow up, or the color of our skin. To learn about the natural wonders all around us, to really learn about our history by exploring the stories that reside in these places, I don’t know of any easy answers to the numerous historic challenges we are facing as a nation today, but I do know that the right answers will come only if they are based on an honest appraisal of our deep-seated history—the good and the bad, the inspiring and the painful.

think of anything more urgent, at this particular time, than we demonstrate we can come together and rise above our partisan differences and address this very real need.

Of course, there is nothing we can do to undo what has happened in Minneapolis, but there is a lot that can be done to prevent the name of another Black person in America from becoming a trending hashtag. A former classmate of Mr. Floyd’s at Jack Yates High School said he’d visited last year and would say “I’m going to change the world.” While this is certainly not the way he or anyone could have fathomed, his story is sure to have a lasting impact on our country’s history.

Today, I would like to offer, once again, my condolences to the entire Floyd family for their loss. I had the privilege of speaking with them on the telephone yesterday. Rodney Floyd reminded me that the family was from Houston, TX, and he said: We want Texas-facing justice.

I said: Mr. Floyd, you will have it.

In the wake of this tragedy, I hope we can come together and deliver that change. I appreciate Senator SCOTT and Leader McCONNELL leading the charge in the Senate and look forward to sharing more details of this proposal soon.

PAYCHECK PROTECTION PROGRAM

Madam President, on another matter, since the CARES Act was signed into law more than 2 months ago, millions of small businesses—I think 4.5 million businesses—have gotten loans from the Paycheck Protection Program. This program has allowed restaurants, retailers, manufacturers, farmers, and small businesses from virtually every sector of the economy to stay afloat and keep their employees on payroll.

Dr. Nora Walker operates a pulmonary practice in San Antonio—which experienced a near stop in patient visits once COVID-19 began to soar in March. Payroll is her largest expense. Without that source of revenue, she and her husband were worried they wouldn’t be able to pay the practice’s three employees, but then the lifeline came in the form of the PPP loan. They applied for a $26,000 loan, and they received the funds 2 weeks later. Because of that funding, these three employees could stay on the payroll as Dr. Walker continued her practice via telemedicine.

Her is great example of PPP beneficiaries who don’t receive enough attention—the small employers who took out small loans to help with a small number of workers in a very big way. From the truly small businesses to those that have grown their footprint in our State, the PPP has been essential to the survival of these businesses and to the livelihood of their employees.

As I have written to small businesses throughout the State, I have repeatedly heard how vital the PPP has been, but that praise has been coupled with requests to make improvements in the program to ensure that it delivers the most efficient and maximum benefit.

Last week, we took the first step in making some of those changes through the Paycheck Protection Flexibility Act, which was signed into law by the President on Friday. It extends the amount of time businesses can use these funds from 8 weeks to 24 weeks and reduces the portion of the loan that must be used on payroll in order to be forgiven from 75 percent to 60 percent. Many of our restaurants and other small employers feared that after their doors closed and they saw that their doors said there is no way they can spend our PPP loan on payroll when our business isn’t even open. This provides flexibility for them and for others. In a nutshell, it gives small business owners the ability to use these loans when and where they are needed.

In the short term, these changes will be critical to protecting jobs and supporting small businesses as they reopen their doors following the coronavirus-induced shutdown. The jobs report we got this last week provides great hope and promises that this recovery will come soon.

In the longer term, we need to ensure that these loans don’t end up creating any more burdens for small businesses down the road. Under normal circumstances, businesses can deduct their expenses from their taxable income. Of course, the Paycheck Protection Program covers the cost to many of these expenses, and there is some confusion—particular, at Treasury—with how businesses should handle their taxes.

I believe the intent of Congress was to allow businesses to continue deducting those expenses. Basically, we were trying to get the money where it was needed most the fastest. By allowing them to continue to deduct those expenses, we do that, but the guidance recently issued by the IRS said the opposite.

While it is fair to say this has led to confusion and frustration among many, Congress needs to take action to eliminate the misunderstanding. Last month, I introduced a bill to make clear that small businesses can still deduct their expenses that were paid for with a forgiven Paycheck Protection loan for their taxes. I know this is an unusual circumstance, but isn’t the pandemic the most unusual circumstance we’ve experienced in our lifetime? It calls for extraordinary measures, and I believe, under the circumstances, trying to get money to these small businesses is necessary.

Our goal with this loan program was to help them remain open and keep their employees on payroll so they can recover as soon as possible. Without this change, the PPP loan will fail to deliver the maximum on this most basic objective. The bipartisan Small Business’s Expense Protection Act will ensure that small businesses have the cashflow they need to survive today and prosper in the future. After all, we are not interested in handing out meals now only to slap people on the hands later for taking free food.

The bill has bipartisan support in the Senate. In fact, I introduced it with the chairmen and ranking members of the Finance Committee, Senators GASSLEY and WYDEN, as well as Senator RUBIO, who chairs the Small Business Committee, and Senator CARPER. It has gained the support of organizations that advocate for small businesses, including the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers of Manufacturers, and the National Federation of Independent Businesses. It also has been endorsed by groups in the financial services industry, including the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, the American Institute of CPAs, and the Independent Bankers of Texas. Most importantly, this bill is an answer to the real concerns that businesses owners are facing.

As we work to strengthen our coronavirus response and recovery, that should be the guiding principle in the Senate—figure out what is working, what isn’t, and act appropriately. The PPP is big central to the approach we are seeing from our House colleagues. A few weeks ago, they passed a bill that was chock-full of ideological policy proposals they know has absolutely no chance of gaining traction in the Senate. They didn’t seem to care. They did a driveby vote on a Friday and left town and haven’t been back since.

Tax breaks for blue State millionaires—they actually want to cut taxes on the richest people in America by reducing or raising the cap on the State and local tax deduction. They want to support marijuana banking, environmental justice grants, soil health studies, changes to election laws, and more. They are about solving a problem at hand. Our Democratic colleagues in the House, with this so-called Heroes Act, are attempting to use this pandemic as an opportunity to slip their liberal wish list into must-pass legislation. They are eager to stick taxpayers with another $3 trillion tab. This isn’t going to happen. It has no chance of passing in the Senate, and they actually know it.

These unwanted, unaffordable, and, frankly, laughable proposals are not the types of solutions America needs to recover from this crisis. Indeed, I think it would be wise for a number of folks in the House Democratic leadership to start listening to their constituents for a change rather than try to figure out how do you posture and position your wish list into must-pass legislation.
shared their feedback with me to help me do a better job on their behalf and who will no doubt continue to point out the gaps that need to be filled in the months ahead, particularly when it comes to the next installment of COVID–19 legislation.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BOOZMAN). The Senator from Florida.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I rise to speak today about the growing threat from Communist China.

Xi, the General Secretary of the Chinese Communist Party, is a dictator and human rights violator who is denying basic rights to the people of Hong Kong, cracking down on dissenters, militarizing the South China Sea, and imprisoning more than 1 million Uighurs in internment camps simply because of their religion.

General Secretary Xi is interested in one thing—global domination. It is time for our eyes. Communist China despises the freedoms Americans cherish.

The threat we face from Communist China is the new Cold War. This is a Cold War created by General Secretary Xi. It is a Cold War fought with technology, misinformation, and political persuasion. And Communist China’s latest weapon of choice is the coronavirus.

Communist China lied about what they knew and spread misinformation around the world, costing hundreds of thousands of lives, millions of jobs, and creating massive economic impact.

All freedom-loving nations around the world need to come together to hold Communist China accountable and financially liable.

One thing we can do today is make sure Communist China can’t steal or sabotage American COVID–19 vaccine research. We know Communist China steals U.S. research and intellectual property. We have seen this at our universities; we have seen it at our research institutions and hospitals.

U.S. officials have been warning American firms to safeguard their research against China and others known for stealing U.S. technology. The FBI and the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency recently warned organizations researching COVID–19 of likely insider threats, targeting, and network compromise by Communist China.

Communist China wants to be first in vaccine development, and unlike the United States and other freedom-loving countries, Communist China will not be quick to share.

Communist China wants to be the dominant world power, and they have made clear they don’t care who is harmed in the process. That is why I led my colleagues in introducing the COVID–19 Vaccine Protection Act, which will require a thorough national security evaluation and clearance by the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of State, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation of all Chinese student visa holders taking part in activities related to COVID–19 vaccine research.

We need to know who in our country is working on vaccine research so that we can make sure American efforts are protected. The United States and all Americans need to get serious about the threat from Communist China.

The COVID–19 Vaccine Protection Act is a first step, and I look forward to all of my colleagues supporting this effort.

I am also urging everyone to buy American products. It is the single most important thing we can do to send a message to Communist China that their behavior is unacceptable.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 3897 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered read a third time and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER is there objection?

Ms. DUCKWORTH. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois?

Ms. DUCKWORTH. Mr. President, none of us in this body is naive enough not to understand the challenges the People’s Republic of China represents to our country and to the world. But this bill, which I am only referring to in the context of the tensions already tearing at the fabric of our Nation—this time targeting Asians and Asian Americans—is not the answer.

Yes, we know about how the PRC has targeted our intellectual property and stolen U.S. research and technological insights from all over the world.

But taking advantage of this moment to sabotage American COVID–19 vaccine research will not hesitate to use any tool necessary to achieve its ends. Communist China desires a world where only one voice is heard.

We should work with the world to come together to protect American citizens from the Government of Communist China, which has decided to become our adversary.

This bill isn’t about race. This is a commonsense bill to protect American citizens from the Government of Communist China, which has decided to become our adversary.

This is about protecting Americans from a regime that is actively trying to sabotage our efforts to create a vaccine. We have evidence from our intelligence community that China is trying to do this.

My bill would help identify who in our country is trying to steal or, more importantly, delay, sabotage our success of a vaccine, and that is Communist China’s goal.

I am clearly disappointed my colleague’s own resolution recognizing the importance of vaccinations and immunizations in the United States, and we all agree with her, so blocking my proposal today makes absolutely no sense. Why would my colleague not want to save American lives and make sure we have a vaccine done as quickly as possible? American lives are on the line and depend on the success of a vaccine.

As long as our vaccine research remains vulnerable, Communist China will not hesitate to use any tool necessary to obtain this sensitive information.
I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine.

H.R. 1957

Mr. KING. Mr. President, someday, 100 years from now, a family will camp on a mesa in Arizona. The next generation will visit that spot and will understand that they are benefiting from the sacrifices that were made by the Governor named Percival Baxter to preserve that land. They will not know who it was, but they will know what we did.

In Maine there is a wonderful mountain, Mount Katahdin. It was the legacy of a lifetime. Baxter State Park, one of the gems in Baxter State Park, one of the gems in Maine, a sunset on a mesa in Arizona.

When I was Governor, I used to go to Baxter State Park, and it will be because of the work that we are going to do this week in this Congress.

Thank you, Senators Daines or Alexander or Portman or Warner or MANCHIN or GARDNER or all the others who are going to support our efforts. Our names will be long forgotten, but what we do will be benefiting this country for generations.

There are very few things we can do in our work here that are permanent. Bills can be repealed. Programs can be amended. Times change, and all can change with it.

What we are talking about this week in the Great American Outdoors Act is making a gift to our fellow Americans. Setting aside special places, setting aside opportunities for outdoors and recreation is a sacred trust, and it is one that goes back to the beginning of this country.

As I said, there is very little we can do that is permanent, but this is one of those things. It is the right thing to do, but it also makes sense from the economy’s point of view in all of our States.

Acadia National Park in Maine generates more than $300 million a year in economic activity in the surrounding communities. Our new Katahdin Woods and Waters National Monument is already generating economic activity in the area where it is located. A visit to Maine to see the seacoast and the forest at those two sites would be rewarding for any family.

What are we doing today will enable families to continue to make these kinds of journeys—the next generation and the next and the next. That family will see a sunrise on the coast of Maine, a sunset on a mesa in Arizona. They will not know who it was, but they will know what we did.

And today, this week, we are going to correct that historic error and make a commitment not only to the people of the United States today but to people we don’t even know—the children and grandchildren of today’s children.

The other thing this bill will do is begin to fund the backlog of maintenance at our national parks, bureau of public lands, and other public lands across the country. This sounds pretty boring, pretty mundane, and some of my friends are going to say: Well, you can’t do this. We are going to raise a budget point of order.

This is money, again, coming from excess funds in the generation of minerals, oil, and gas. But they are going to say: No, no. You can’t do that.

What we are doing here is paying a debt. Deferred maintenance is a debt.

When I was Governor, I used to go to New York City. Let me say it again. Liberal Democrats across the country are asking all of us to defund law enforcement in America. If we did that—crime would go through the roof, school safety would cease to exist, and the most vulnerable in our society would have no one to turn to or call in case of an emergency. Yet Democratic mayors across the country seem to be on board.

Leading Democrats—radical leftwing lawmakers like ALEXANDRIA OCASIO-CORTEZ—are pushing these very dangerous ideas. Let me say it again. Liberal Democrats across the country are asking all of us to defund law enforcement in America if we did that—crime would go through the roof, school safety would cease to exist, and the most vulnerable in our society would have no one to turn to or call in case of an emergency. Yet Democratic mayors across the country seem to be on board.

Last week, the Democratic mayor of LA said that he had planning to slash the LA Police Department’s budget. New York City Mayor de Blasio has vowed to cut funding for the New York Police Department. The Minneapolis City Council announced Sunday that it would vote to disband—disband—the city police department and said they had a veto-proof majority.

House Democrats have now just released a new bill that supposedly seeks police reform. This is from a party that just last month pushed a trillion dollars in the Heroes fund to support the police. Well, now funding for police has purposefully been left out of the bill.

That is a big number. It is a really big number. When you realize that more than twice the population of our whole State comes to visit this one small, beautiful, incredible spot on the coast of Maine on Mount Desert Island. So when we are talking about paying a debt, it is paying a debt, it is making a contribution to the well-being of the American people for generations to come.

When Baxter completed the acquisition of Katahdin and the area that is now Baxter State Park, he had an amazing quote that I think applies to what we are talking about today. He said:

‘Man is born to die. His works are short-lived. Buildings crumble, monuments decay, and wealth vanishes, but Katahdin in all its glory forever shall remain the mountain of the people of Maine.

Areas across our country in all their glory will forever be part of the legacy for the people of America. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be suspended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, I come to the floor today at a time that we are hearing from Democrats across America. This comes on the heels of a previous battle cry: Abolish ICE. That is what the Democrats are calling for today.

The problem is that the fund that was created in 1965 has been systematically looted by the Congresses in successive years. There have been only 2 years since then that it has been fully funded with the funds that are available.

Today, this week, we are going to correct that historic error and make a commitment not only to the people of the United States today but to people we don’t even know—the children and grandchildren of today’s children.

Last week, the Democratic mayor of LA said that he had planning to slash the LA Police Department’s budget. New York City Mayor de Blasio has vowed to cut funding for the New York Police Department. The Minneapolis City Council announced Sunday that it would vote to disband—the city police department and said they had a veto-proof majority.

House Democrats have now just released a new bill that supposedly seeks police reform. This is from a party that just last month pushed a trillion dollars in the Heroes fund to support the police. Well, now funding for police has purposefully been left out of the bill.
As our economy begins to recover—and I will tell you the jobs numbers are very promising—we need to make sure that our communities are safe. This starts at the local level with Governors and mayors in cities like Minneapolis and New York and Los Angeles.

Last week, the Wall Street Journal had an editorial that was titled “Liberal Cities, Radical Mayhem.” Democratic mayors and Governors seem unable to stop the lawlessness. It included a warning:

This isn’t merely about damage to property. It’s about destroying the order required for city life.

They went on to say:

Non-criminals are afraid to go into these cities in order to make a living.

Now you have seen New York Governor Cuomo blaming Mayor de Blasio, as well as the New York Police Department, for failing to stop the violence in New York City. The Manhattan Institute says that the riots likely caused New York businesses tens of millions of dollars last week alone. This is in damages.

Nationwide, at least 12 people have been killed in the riots last week, including police officers. The rioters have many acts of violence against police officers, as well as against innocent bystanders. In New York City alone, 292 officers have been injured last week. One New York police officer was stabbed in the neck, and two others had shots fired at them Wednesday night in Brooklyn. In Los Angeles, 27 officers were injured during just one night of rioting. One officer suffered a fractured skull and another a broken knee.

On Thursday, Attorney General Bill Barr gave a briefing on the administration’s efforts to end the violence. The Attorney General also said that President Trump has directed him to spare any police officers who do their job.

The States has filed criminal charges against the four officers, and Federal authorities are investigating civil rights violations. The Attorney General is claiming and now has said that there is clear evidence that extremist groups like antifa were inciting the riots. The lawlessness, he said, must and will stop.

Our free society depends on the rule of law, and the Attorney General has said that the rule of law will prevail. We need to continue to focus on social, economic, educational, and police reforms. Still, no sensible reform involves defunding the police. Police are civil servants. Their job is difficult, and their job is dangerous.

They may need more resources, not fewer, as Democrats across the country are calling for defunding. I am saying they may need more. They may need more training. They may need more resources for body cameras. They may need more resources to help recruit officers who match their communities.

There is much more that needs to be done, and defunding is not part of it. We can never abandon those who protect us. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Cassidy). The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. RUBIO. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

RACISM

Mr. RUBIO. The murder of Mr. Floyd at the hands of law enforcement officers was an outrageous crime that has shocked this Nation, but it would be a mistake to conclude that the unrest of the last 2 weeks are only about his death or are only about relations with the police.

At its core, what this unrest is about is the question of what kind of society we are and what kind of society do we want to be.

A society is a voluntary agreement, by people, to live together. For a society to thrive, those in it must believe that their interests are protected and their voices are heard, but when a substantial minority in society come to believe that they are not valued; that they do not matter; or that they are not wanted, then that society will have big problems.

For decades, African Americans have complained that they feel their voices are being ignored, their problems not being addressed, and their lives not valued.

Given our Nation’s history with race, this is an uncomfortable grievance—one many would rather avoid. Like a bad debt that must eventually be paid, it is a grievance we can no longer ignore.

Like before, the latest unrest has given rise to voices arguing that the foundations of our Republic are built on systemic racism and must, therefore, be brought down. The only difference is that, this time, claims like these don’t just come from the fringes of our politics. Like before, we also have voices that say that, today, race is only a factor in individual cases, distinct from our society at large. Both of these views are wrong.

The foundations of our country are not irredeemably racist. Abolition, women’s suffrage, desegregation, the civil rights movement—these were not appeals to overthrow our values; these were demands that we fulfill them.

The Constitution that once considered slaves three-fifths of a human being was ultimately the vehicle that was used to free them and, eventually, to secure their most basic rights.

It is also true that we have made tremendous progress on racial equality over the last 50 years, but there remain shocking racial disparities on health, on education, in housing, on economic and criminal justice, and there remains the fundamental truth that any society in which a substantial percentage of the people believe that they are treated unjustly is a society that has a problem, a society that can never fulfill its full potential unless those grievances are addressed.

None of this excuses radical, violent extremists setting fires, looting buildings, and hurting innocent people, but it also shouldn’t lead us to stupid ideas like defunding the police.

And this is not going to be fixed by endless emails from corporation after corporation trying to prove how woke they are, even as they outsource your job to China.

It is also not going to be fixed by pretending that race is no longer an issue and by accusing everyone who disagrees and says it is of hating America. Yes, there are still vile racists among us, although few of them will ever openly admit it, but in 21st century America, few people consider themselves racist.

The primary reason why race remains relevant today is that the African-American community faces a unique set of challenges that far too few people in positions of power and policy fully understand.

If a child is raised in a stable home, in a safe neighborhood, attends a good school, and they have a private tutor to help them with the SAT, while another child 2 miles away is raised by one parent, or maybe even a grandparent, they live in a neighborhood, in a dangerous neighborhood, they attend a school that is failing, or failing them, and they don’t have a private tutor for the SAT—on most days they don’t have access to Wi-Fi—do these two kids really have an equal opportunity to go to the same college?

If one college student has the connections or the money to do unpaid internships in the summer or to study abroad and another student has to work in the summer just so they can afford to go back to school in the fall, do they really have an equal opportunity to get hired when they graduate?

If one young adult does something stupid and gets arrested, but his parents hire good lawyers, and he is able to avoid having a criminal record, but another young adult who does the exact same thing has to use a public defender, pleads guilty to a lesser charge but now has a criminal record, do they really have an equal opportunity when they apply for the same job?

When policymakers encourage sending manufacturing jobs that once employed African-Americans to overseas in an effort to benefit those employed in technology and finance, how can we truly expect widespread prosperity for all Americans?

When a disproportionate number of those with these disadvantages comes to Congress and the Senate, the number of those with the advantages comes from another, the result is a racial disparity.
Some suggest that these disparities are the result of institutionalized racism or of a deliberate effort designed to harm African Americans.

What I truly believe is that it is the product of something far less sinister but sometimes equally damaging. It is the result of racial indifference, of the fact that many in positions of power and influence are oblivious—are unaware—of the unique challenges that disproportionately face African-American communities across this country.

We acknowledge these challenges and address these disparities that they create because, when disparities go unaddressed, they become grievances. When grievances are ignored, it leads to friction and division and, ultimately, unrest.

By no means do these disparities alone fully capture the entirety of the challenge before us. There still remain points of friction, more reminiscent of a different and shameful era in our history.

Here, too, we can also suffer from indifference because the vast majority of Americans simply do not personally know the sting that comes from implicit and sometimes explicit reactions to the color of your skin, which is why true progress requires that we listen to the viewpoints of those who do.

Listen to the young man I know who sees reports of a young man who looks like him—like his uncles, like his grandfather—being murdered by vigilantes in a case of mistaken identity. Who knows, had they had not taken video of themselves doing this, they would have gotten away with it.

Listen, and he will tell you that he feels his life wouldn’t matter either if it wasn’t because he played professional football.

Listen to the police officer I know who was pulled over while off duty at least seven times by his own department, and he will tell you of the humiliation of having to explain this to his teenage son.

Listen to what it feels like to see on the news that, when a mother in Miami was arrested while off duty at a different and shameful era in our history.

Here, too, we can also suffer from indifference because many in positions of power have decided other with the empathy and respect required of the people who have decided to share a nation and a future.

This may not be your fault, but this is our problem because, until we heal this divide, we will never ever have the kind of society we want, and we will never fulfill the full promise of our Nation.

There is reason for hope, even in a deeply divided country where the political and cultural lines that divide us continue to harden.

A clear consensus has emerged that we cannot let matters of race in America, but it is a fragile consensus, already being tested by loud voices appealing to our most basic fears or those who see the opportunity to advance divisiveness and extreme ideas.

If this is the path we choose, we will all look back at this time with profound regret, and we will be left with a society that is even angrier and more divided than it is now. We will be left with an America that no longer resembles the one we honor when we stand during the National Anthem.

Ironically, we will ultimately be left with an America even further away from the one some kneel to demand.

The only way to treat each other with the empathy and respect required of the people who have decided to share a nation and a future.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the presence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I am here tonight on the floor to talk about a historic opportunity for our country and for our national parks—a true treasure of this country. When Teddy Roosevelt started the national parks, he wanted us to leave some of the most beautiful, pristine lands in America for public use.

It was a good decision. Now we have 84 million acres of parkland all around the country. Some of them are historical parks, battlefields, or Presidents' homes. Some of them are like Yosemite or Yellowstone. The Tetons are known as spectacular, beautiful vistas. Others, like Cuyahoga Valley National Park in Ohio, are really suburban parks. It sits between Cleveland and Akron, OH. It is the 13th most visited park in the United States of America. It is a fantastic park—for fishing, for hiking, for bicycling, for going on a scenic railroad.

People go to the parks. There is a good reason for that—because they are spectacular. In fact, visitation at the parks is up. During the 10 years just before the park centennial, which was in 2016, we had almost 58 million increase in visitors to our national parks.

As the coronavirus begins to fade—thank goodness—more and more people are wanting to be outside, do things with their family, do something that is not expensive but is fun and healthy. Our national parks are the perfect place. As our parks begin to reopen, we are going to get more and more visitors to those parks.

The problem is, when they go to these parks, they are going to find that there are some issues. These issues are that our national parks over the years have not kept up with their maintenance, with the basics of what you see each day—road, the water systems, the roads, the bridges, the bathrooms, the visitor centers, the trails. Many of these are now closed in some of our parks because they haven’t had the funding to do the capital improvements, the things you would think about in deferred maintenance at your home. For instance, if your roof starts to leak, you want to fix it because if you don’t, your wall begins to get moldy or your floor begins to leak. That is what is happening in our national parks.

Not only has Congress not provided the money for these more expensive infrastructure changes in our parks, but that has caused additional damage. Essentially it is causing more and more damage. It is the biggest challenge we have in the parks.

I was a member of what is called the Centennial Commission for the national parks, which is a private sector group that was formed when I was not in public office a few years ago, and it was working up to the 2016 centennial. The top issue was this deferred maintenance.

I have been on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and have been passing legislation related to the parks. The Centennial Act we passed in 2016. That was very important because it provided more funding for the parks.

Frankly, we could not come up with enough money through the appropriations process to deal with these long-term problems. Why? Because they are so expensive. In the parks, it is believed there is now a $12.5 billion shortfall—a $12.5 billion deferred maintenance project.

We fund the parks every year, but we fund them for the rangers, for the naturalist programs. We fund some of the good work that is being done with schoolchildren and so on, but these big expenditures, like a new road or a new bridge or, in the case of Cuyahoga Valley National Park, a new railroad system because the rails themselves need to be improved and replaced—those things are too doggone expensive for annual appropriations.

Several years ago, some of us came up with an idea of providing more public-private partnerships with the parks. The Centennial Act, which I authored, does that. In fact, we have been able to provide a match of greater than 1 to 1 for money that is put into what is called our Centennial Challenge Fund.

The money goes in from the Federal Government, and it has been matched more than 1 to 1 by private sector money. That is helpful, but it cannot again handle these huge expenditures.

Another idea—Senator MARK WARNER of Virginia actually came to me on this several years ago and said: Why don’t we of the revenue that is coming from our oil and gas and other energy projects that are on Federal land, both onshore and offshore, and take some of those royalties—the revenue the Federal Government derives which is not going to another purpose—and say that a part of those revenues, not all but a part of it, should be focused on this issue of infrastructure, of this deferred maintenance, that is growing and growing in our parks and getting more expensive every year if we don’t fix it.

I love that idea because that is exactly what the oil and gas revenue money ought to be used for—to help in terms of our natural resources. It is not everything. The $12.5 billion has about some immediate projects that need to be handled right away. These are the priority projects. Those are the ones we focus on. For the next 5 years, in our legislation, we are requiring that enough of those resources from the royalties come in to handle that $6 million, assuming that the royalties are there. Right now, the cost of oil is so low that it would be tough to meet that. We think, over time, that will even out, and we will have enough. If there is the money, we will be there, but if it is, the money will be there to do exactly what we ought to do, which is, in the end, to save taxpayers’ money by fixing some of these problems before they get worse.

Some people say: Well, it is better to do it with an annual appropriation in Congress. I would say to that, in many respects, this funding for our park is a debt unpaid. In other words, it is money that we should have been paying all along to keep up with the roads, the bridges, the buildings, the railway systems, the seawalls—which I will talk about in a minute—but we haven’t. We have allowed this to build up.

In a way, this is a debt that is on our books that we have to deal with. Think about it in your family or in your business, if you allow these deferred maintenance problems to continue to grow, you end up having additional costs. We need to take care of it. This is a great way to do it, taking these revenues and applying it to these immediate problems.

By the way, there was a lot of discussion in Congress over the years about shovel-ready projects. When you do infrastructure needs and to ramp them up to be shovel-ready. These are shovel-ready because they have been vetted. We require the Park Service to provide us every year what their infrastructure needs are, what their priority infrastructure needs are and to rank them.

For every single national park property in America, we know what it is. As an example, this is the William Howard Taft birthplace in my hometown of Cincinnati, Ohio. As you can see, the ceiling is leaking. What happens is, the ceiling leaks. And then, the walls are getting damaged, the floor is getting damaged, and some beautiful furniture from the Taft era is getting damaged. This is a big expense. It is the entire roof that has to be repaired.

Their annual budget is not nearly enough to do that. They have an annual budget of $1 billion. This is a budget of the rangers who are naturalists and interpreters. They have a lot of school kids who come through, as an example, and others who want to see the history of William Howard Taft’s upbringing, who was a Chief Justice as well as President of the United States. There is no way the annual appropriation from Congress able to do something like that. It needs these additional resources.

Here we are at the Cuyahoga National Valley National Park. This is one of the most beautiful places. As you can see, it is not in great repair. They don’t have money to take it down and not enough money to repair these kinds of buildings. All they want to do with this building, by the way, is to take it down and make it safe. As you can imagine, it is attracting crime and drug use and other issues. They have several buildings like that.

Here is another one. This is the rail trail I talked about at the Cuyahoga Valley National Park. I am here with the park director. This ranger is a guy who has been all around the country. He told me that in every single one of our parks, he has had to work through this issue. How do you take our budget and make sure you have the rangers, have the naturalist programs, and keep things in order but then don’t have enough to pay for these big expenses?

We are right near a bridge here that is also falling down. When the bridge is falling down, you will not be able to access the trail and the bike trail. It is a big expense. You have to do it.

Here I am at the Perry Monument. This is on Lake Erie. For those of you who have been to Put-in-Bay, you know it is a great place to go. The Perry Monument is awesome. It not only talks about William Perry and his history and legacy but the War of 1812 and all of the veterans of that war and the relationship between Canada and the United States and the UK, now being our great allies. That was not always so. The War of 1812 was essential for the United States and something as part of a historical park to be remembered.

The seawall that protects that memorial is crumbling. The seawalls don’t last forever. This one is not lasting forever, particularly as the Lake Erie water level is increasing. You can see that not only is the seawall crumbling, but there are potholes behind me that cause sinkholes, they call them. People are not allowed to go out on the lakefront here in many places because of that. That is a huge expense to do a seawall. They have to do it to protect the monument itself. The visitor center there is not ADA compatible, the Americans with Disabilities Act. They need funding to do that, which is a major expense.

These are the kinds of things we are talking about. This is not just my home State of Ohio. This is about $100 million that needs to come out of this fund just for the State of Ohio. Again, there are other States that have bigger national parks and more needs and more infrastructure and more roads and bridges that need help, but for us this is really important. We have to be sure that we are protecting this incredible treasure from future generations.

That is what this legislation is about. It is going to be on the floor this week and voted on as part of the Great American Outdoors Act. This includes, also, money for the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

I will say, with regard to the national park funding, this funding is directed at stewardship. Not a single penny of the money we are talking about with Restore Our Parks Act that I have been describing can go to expansion of a park—not one penny. All of it has to go toward restoring the parks toward stewardship of the parks.

I think that is important because whether you are a Republican or a Democrat, I think you should agree that to the extent we have these parks and have this land, we need to take better care of them. We have the responsibility. We are the stewards. Our generation is the steward for future generations. We have not done it. This is an opportunity to right that wrong. We need to get back on track.

I hope is that we continue to see support for this on both sides of the aisle, both sides of the Capitol. It is really important. We saw on Monday night there was a first trial vote to be able to proceed to that date on this bill. That vote was overwhelming—80 Senators voted for it out of 100. That is unusual around here. That shows, again, the bipartisan nature of this and the fact that this is carefully thought out. We spent a lot of time on it. We got it out of committee not once but a couple of times. We have done a lot of research on it. We made sure the parks are providing us with good data to know what these projects are, what are the highest priorities. It is our responsibility.

There is a lot of discussion in this Chamber about putting more money into infrastructure, and maybe that will be done as part of the next legislation. They have been talking about it, a dollar back if you do the right kind of smart economic infrastructure.

There are two problems with it. One, often it is not merit-based if Congress
Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, this week, my State of Illinois is saying a fond and final farewell to a deeply loved and respected public servant, Larry Walsh. He devoted 50 years of his life to serving, as he called them, the folks back home. He won his first election to the school board about 3 weeks before his first child was born. Three years later, he was elected to the local board of supervisors. He was elected to the Will County board in 1974 and again in 1992. From 1997, until the year 2005, Larry served in the Illinois State Senate in Springfield. His Senate district—the 43rd—included most of Will County, parts of Kankakee and Iroquois Counties.

There were cities, suburbs, and farms. In Springfield, he sat in the back row of the chamber. He became good friends of another senator who sat in the seat right next to him. To some, it was an amazingly odd couple to see the two of them. Larry the moderate and conservative Democrat and his seatmate, a very liberal, left-leaning lawyer from Hyde Park in the city of Chicago.

Both men had an ability that is all too rare in today's brand of politics. They could see beyond labels. They were both passionate about building coalitions and finding common ground, and they both liked a good game of poker. So they became good friends. In 2004, when his friend decided to run for the U.S. Senate, Larry Walsh was the first Senator to endorse him. Larry took his seatmate to meet the farmers and other folks in small towns in Will and Kankakee Iroquois counties.

Four years later, that seatmate of his was elected President of the United States, and Larry Walsh was right here in Washington to see Barack Obama inaugurated as the leader of our great Nation.

Larry Walsh was a fine and decent man. He was thoughtful and witty, loyal and trustworthy. He seemed to radiate joy, and his joy would fill a room. He was grounded in reality and modest. He had a big booming voice—his friends included a President, Cabinet members and Governors and men and women who swept the floors in his office.

In 2007, Will County Democrats created a new award to honor those working to promote progress and the common good. They named the award after the man who exemplified those qualities—the Larry Walsh Lifetime Achievement Award.

Well, fittingly, the first recipient of the Larry Walsh Lifetime Achievement Award was Larry Walsh. I laughed at the President's announcement.

Fondly, the first recipient of the Larry Walsh Lifetime Achievement Award was none other than Larry Walsh. about that so many times and never let him forget it. Every time he visited my office, I would remind him that he was the first recipient of the Larry Walsh Award.

Larry’s admirers transcended party labels. George Pearson, chairman of the Will County Republican Party, told a reporter that Larry “greeted me each time we met with a handshake, a smile, and a pat on the shoulder. You would never have known we were on opposite sides of the political aisle, and that is what made Larry popular with Will County residents.”

The other thing that made Larry Walsh so popular with the people of his county was that he was just incredibly good at his job.

As county executive, Larry worked hard to professionalize and modernize county government and make it more responsive. He built a strong financial foundation for the county government, but thanks to Larry Walsh and his buddy George Sangmeister and many others, it became a showpiece for the rest of the United States to see how this piece of Federal real estate had a bright, bright future.

Larry was most proud of his family. My wife Loretta and I offer our deepest condolences to Irene, Larry’s wife of 50 years, and the love of his life. I called her on the phone just the other day when he wasn’t around, he leaves an awful hole, doesn’t he?

Many of us are feeling an awful hole today with the passing of Larry Walsh—this good man and devoted public servant.

Even though we can’t schedule the kind of Irish wake that Larry so richly deserved, there is something we can do. Besides his family, his faith, his community and public service, there was something that Larry was also fond of. After a hard day of work, Larry was known to enjoy a Pabst Blue Ribbon beer. In his honor, if you are so inclined, may we raise a PBR to Larry and a life well lived, and may we resolve to fill the hole he has left by following his uncommon example.

Mr. President, this past weekend, I went back to Illinois and visited with two different groups—one on Friday, another on Saturday. They were young African Americans on the South Side of Chicago and in my hometown of Springfield.

I wanted to sit down with these young people, some just barely high school students, who had been engaged in protests and demonstrations in their hometowns and ask them what it was about, what it meant to them. I wanted to hear it firsthand.

They talked about the killing of George Floyd in Minneapolis and how it changed the conversation about justice in America, and it moved them to stand up and speak up.

I am proud to say that those I met with have engaged in peaceful demonstrations consistent with American values and our Constitution.

When we met, I asked questions of some of them, I wanted to know a little bit more about them and their lives and what brought them to this moment.

I asked each of them about the conversations—they had with parents and conversation when young people are called in by their parents and warned about the perils and challenges of being Black in America.

One young woman remembered her mother cautioning her to always ask for a receipt with every purchase to prove, if ever challenged, that the item had not been shoplifted. Many talked about hairstyles and clothing that they learned to be dangerous in the eyes of some White Americans.

They were even worried about the danger of any contact with the police and how their tone of voice and every move had to be carefully considered—every one of them.

Every one of them remembered the first time they were called the “N” word.

That graphic video of the last moments of George Floyd’s life, when he was pleading “I can’t breathe” and the cold stare of the policeman, with his hand on George Floyd’s neck, ignoring the pleas for mercy—those images touched the conscience of America and the world, and these young people were touched by it.

They know and we all know, sadly, that what happened to George Floyd was not an exception.

Since 2015, the Washington Post has been following the number of people shot and killed by police. Through 2019, the total number has hovered near 1,000 annually. Ninety-four percent of the victims were armed.

The Post reports:

The number of black and unarmed people fatally shot by police has declined since 2015, but whether armed or not, black people are shot and killed at a disproportionately higher rate than white people.

They note in their newspaper this morning the death rate by race in unarmed shootings was 7.3 percent for Whites, 10.7 percent for Hispanics, and 30.3 percent for Blacks.

The anger and pain that we have seen on the streets in recent days is a reflection of generations of trauma. People are fed up with racism that has led to this injustice, and many of these young people leading this protest are determined not to live in its shadow any longer.

There are hundreds of thousands of police officers in our Nation. Most will never use their firearms. Many who do must make split-second, life-or-death decisions. I know many of them personally. I believe the ones I know are professional and humane.

If we are honest, we know that within their ranks are police officers who do not have the training or temperament to be entrusted with the authority and power they have been given. We need an honest conversation with police chiefs and law enforcement leaders.
on inherent bias, use of force, training, and accountability for unjust actions.

Prosecutors and judges need to join us in the pursuit of real justice, and legislators like myself need to undo the damage of a criminal justice system rife with racial disparity.

The Obama Task Force on 21st Century Policing released a report in 2015 to strengthen community policing and restore trust between law enforcement and the communities they serve. The Trump administration shelved this effort in 2017. It is time to take it off the shelf.

This week, I join Senators Booker and Harris in cosponsoring the Justice in Policing Act of 2020—a comprehensive approach to bring accountability to policing, change methods and practices, and build trust. It draws the line on odious police practices and sets goals and standards for recruitment, training, and retraining.

Even that is not enough. Justice in America means more than improving law enforcement. We cannot put racism behind us until we invest in opportunities for quality education, medical care that meets the highest standards, jobs with livable wages, opportunities, and safe and affordable homes.

The young people I met with want an America that is more just. Let them lead us into a future where we can all breathe more easily.

I held hearings on race in America when I was chairman of the Subcommittee on the Constitution and Civil Rights—one in December of 2014. The hearing was held just a month after the death of Tamir Rice, a 12-year-old boy shot and killed by a police officer in Cleveland while he played with a toy gun.

I said then, and, sadly, I must repeat today, when unarmed African-American men and boys are killed in our streets, there is much work to be done to fix this.

This followed a hearing I had held the previous year where we heard heartbreaking testimony from Sybrina Fulton, the mother of Trayvon Martin, and LUCY McBATH, the mother of Jordan Davis. Lucy has been elected to the U.S. House of Representatives from Georgia since.

Both of these innocent young Black men were gunned down by violent White vigilantes.

Now we are grieving the lives of two Black men and a Black woman—lives cut far too short in incidents of inexplicable and inexcusable violence—Ahmaud Arbery out for a jog; Breonna Taylor at home in her bedroom; and George Floyd on a curb side in Minneapolis.

Once again, those gut-wrenching words ‘I can’t breathe’ bring tears to our eyes. How many more names of Black men, women, and children will we cry out in protest before things change? We need to have an honest American conversation with law enforcement officers about training, inherent bias, use of force, and consequences for wrongdoing. We need to prohibit police misconduct that is discriminatory and deadly. We must recruit and train the next generation of law enforcement to protect and serve everyone in America. We need to invest in social services instead of expecting law enforcement to clear crises that they are not equipped to deal with.

This will require us—Senators, other legislators—to continue to undo the damage of a criminal justice system that is unfair, in many respects—most importantly, require those of us with privilege and power to step back and listen to African Americans affected by pervasive, systemic racism.

What can we do? A good place to start is President Obama’s task force. As I mentioned earlier, it was that administration’s response to deal with community policing and trust in the community. It was shelved by the Trump administration, and I think it would be a great bipartisan start—for the Trump administration to bring it down from the shelf and start a conversation.

We have an important role to play right here in Congress. Unfortunately, since President Trump took the Senate majority in January 2015, the Senate Judiciary Committee has rarely addressed issues of racism in our Nation.

The last hearing on policing in the Judiciary Committee was actually considered a bill on the subcommittee where we heard compel-lations and all of the statements that we heard from the 115th Congress, but the bill never had a hearing in the full Senate.

Our bill will establish a National Police Misconduct Registry to prevent officers who have engaged in misconduct from simply moving to another department without accountability. It will ensure that individuals whose constituencies and communities have strict qualifications for quality education, medical care that meets the highest standards, jobs with livable wages, opportunities, and safe and affordable homes.

The Justice in Policing Act will end this. This is a doctrine created by judges and never approved by Congress.

I call on Senator McConnell to do more than just join in speeches about George Floyd. I call on him to bring the Justice in Policing Act to the floor of the Senate as soon as possible.

Wouldn’t it be amazing, with all the protestations and all of the statements made by all of the people in the streets, by representatives administrated by the Department of Justice who came before our committee today, and each and every one standing up and saying they are concerned about George Floyd, if we in the U.S. Senate actually considered a bill on the subcommittee’s right as violated by police officers can recover in court.

After the Civil War, the Congress passed the Civil Rights Act of 1871 to ensure that any person acting in official capacity who deprives another of a constitutional or legal right can be held liable in court. However, judges have strictly limited the use of this statute to recover damages for police misconduct by creating what is known as qualified immunity for police officers.

The Justice in Policing Act will end this. This is a doctrine created by judges and never approved by Congress.

I yield the floor.
Ms. MURKOWSKI. Madam President, last night, I had the opportunity to join probably more than 80 of my colleagues in voting for a motion to proceed to S. 3422, the Great American Outdoors Act.

The act is strongly supported by a strong group of Senators here—Senator GARDNER of Colorado, Senator Daines of Montana, and Senator MANCHIN have been working very hard on the LWCF piece.

Senator ALEXANDER, Senator PORTMAN, and Senator WARNER are working on the parks' deferred maintenance aspect of this measure. There has been lot of work from a lot of Members and a lot of good thought that has gone into it and some good policy behind it, but I would like to share with colleagues some of the reservations I have, albeit this is good policy, solid policy in so many areas.

As with much of everything that we can do on the Senate floor, we can always seek to improve. With some of my colleagues, I think we have some pretty neat ideas in areas where we can improve our Great American Outdoors Act.

I come from a State where we know a little bit about our great outdoors. I know we all like to advertise our scenery, the wildlife that we have, but back in Alaska we have some pretty unrivaled scenery. We have the mountains. We have got the glaciers. We have some of our State's most important natural features that have been conserved in some world-famous national parks, from Katmai and Denali to the Kenai Fjords, Wrangell-St. Elias, Glacier Bay—names that so many Americans know and have visited or hope to one day visit before they die.

We actually had an advertising campaign: See these majestic landscapes before you die.

Americans recognize the importance of preserving our very best lands and making the most of our ability to experience their natural splendor. We are not worried about visitors this year in a very different time, as we are dealing with COVID, but we have no doubt that the tourism industry will be back. It will be back better than ever before. In fact, in yet another advertising campaign, we remind people that Alaska waits for you, and we would welcome you at any time.

We have more than 223 million acres of Federal lands in total. Included within that are more than 76 million acres that are managed by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, more than 71 million acres managed by the Bureau of Land Management, more than 52 million acres managed by the National Park Service, and more than 22 million acres managed by the Forest Service.

So we have a lot. We have a lot of Federal land, and that means that the Federal Government has a major responsibility to help us maintain it and preserve it, just like in every State.

So I would like to take a few minutes to discuss how the policy that we will be considering can help us do just that.

The Great American Outdoors Act combines two bills, again, that we reported from the Energy and Natural Resources Committee last year. The first one is S. 500, the Restore Our Parks Act, as I mentioned, led by Senators PORTMAN, ALEXANDER, WARNER, and KINZI, which aims to tackle the Park Service's $12 billion deferred maintenance backlog.

The second one is S. 1081, from Senators MANCHIN, GARDNER, and DAINES, to provide full and mandatory funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

To tackle deferred maintenance needs, the Great American Outdoors Act establishes a new National Parks and Public Land Legacy Restoration Fund. That fund will provide up to $1.9 billion per year into WPA-like to DC, to address deferred maintenance needs, the Great American Outdoors Act also expands the list of agencies that can receive funding beyond the Park Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, BLM, and the Bureau of Indian Education, which also has significant maintenance needs. This was something we recognized within the Energy Committee as we were looking at a situation on the maintenance of national parks. It begs the question, What about our other public lands?

In Alaska, our forest lands are great sources of recreation and opportunity, but they, too, have seen a maintenance backlog just continue to accumulate. When you visit Denali, the Grand Canyon, or Yosemite, you may not necessarily notice immediately the deferred maintenance issues. Likewise, as our road trips or adventures within the Energy Committee as we were looking at a situation on the maintenance of national parks. It begs the question, What about our other public lands?

In Alaska, our forest lands are great sources of recreation and opportunity, but they, too, have seen a maintenance backlog just continue to accumulate. When you visit Denali, the Grand Canyon, or Yosemite, you may not necessarily notice immediately the deferred maintenance issues. Likewise, as our road trips or adventures through the annual appropriations process despite the considerable best efforts we have made. The longer they last, the more they jeopardize the visitors’ ability to safely enjoy our national treasures.

In Alaska, the National Park Service has $106 million in deferred maintenance. When you think about what I just outlined to you in terms of the number of acres we have in Federal land and parks and BLM refuge, $106 million out of $76 billion doesn’t seem like that much. It is a lot to us back home, and $33 million of that is considered critical.

Within Denali National Park we have a pretty significant visitor center, the Eielson Visitor Center, and the roof and the furnaces in various buildings need to be replaced there. We have a water treatment center at the Wrangell-St. Elias headquarters that need to be replaced there. It is important for people to realize because those are not things you are going to notice. You are not going to notice that the road is in disrepair or you don’t have restroom facilities, but when you are going into the park toward the end of the summer—in early September—and there is no heat in the visitor center, you are probably going to notice that.

I think it is important to recognize that the current list of deferred maintenance does not account for some of the very major challenges we are facing in Alaska, such as the situation with the Denali route. It is the only route in and out of the park. It needs substantial improvements due to ongoing subsidence. The estimates are all over the map, but, in fairness, we are talking tens of millions, perhaps in excess of $100 million, to help repair or to perhaps even reroute that access.

When thinking about deferred maintenance in Alaska like we can account for only a fraction of that system. Recreation is the biggest user of our national forest system lands, but our forestlands, trails, and campgrounds need about $5 billion in repairs. In Alaska, we have about $105 million in backlog up there.

BLM manages nearly 50,000 buildings and structures—bridges, trails, and roads mostly in Western States, but they also have a growing backlog. In total in the Department of the Interior, we have about $17.3 billion in deferred maintenance in fiscal year 2019. When combining that with the Forest Service, their maintenance backlog is $22.5 billion in our Federal land management agencies.

The Great American Outdoors Act is attempting to remedy the issue by providing a down payment to upgrade and to improve the aging infrastructure on our public lands. I kind of outlined the need for why we are here today. I indicated that I support funding to address the maintenance backlogs, making sure visitors are able to enjoy our landscapes and have the safest, most enjoyable experience as they see America’s beauty. That is important. I think it is important and important to be cognizant about how we pay for this maintenance, how we address that.

As I mentioned, I am on the Appropriations Committee. We are trying to get ahead of this by making sure we are not seeking to add more to the account without making sure we are correcting for the lands already under our jurisdiction.

The second part of the Great American Outdoors Act is the Land and Water Conservation Fund. LWCF provides for both Federal and land acquisition and financial assistance for States’ recreation development. You will hear me talk a lot about LWCF stateside programs because I think it recognizes the role that States play in facilitating recreational access and leverages funds to build out those opportunities.

We have certainly seen the benefits in Alaska. Providing a few local examples, the State of Alaska has used LWCF matching funds to build fields in Utqiaġvik, an accessible urban playground in Anchorage, and a ski area in Cordova.

I do, for as an important for us to remember how LWCF was established, the core purpose of why it came about in the first place. Congress established this program in 1965 to build a national recreation system primarily in the East. To accomplish that, the Federal Government determined that it needed the ability to acquire this private land.

So our predecessors provided LWCF with the authority and financial means to do so through revenues from offshore resources. We had a lot of discussion in the Energy and Natural Resources Committee about the Land and Water Conservation Fund. I was a proud sponsor of last year’s land package, which made permanent the provision and debt provisions in the LWCF and put an end to years of uncertainty and lapses in those deposits. I was pleased to be able to help offer a series of commonsense reforms, which included a requirement that 90 percent of the funding go to stateside programs every year.

I also believe that LWCF’s ability to acquire new Federal lands should be focused on the eastern States where the proportion is dramatically lowered. I also believe that it is better—much better—to decide LWCF’s funding in the appropriations process each year, in the context of the rest of our Nation’s conservation and budgetary priorities, as opposed to mandatory funding.

I hope that we should have an opportunity to discuss these priorities related to our obligations to our parks and to our conservation efforts. Again, I believe it is only fair and honest, as we debate this subject, that we recognize there are areas where we can improve this bill.

I come to this debate from a very constructive place. I think I have some very commonsense ideas to expand the bill to include conservation-related priorities for Alaska. I want to ensure that our States across the country, priorities such as offshore revenue, which I am going to be speaking to in just a moment. There are some pretty simple, commonsense things; for example, if we are going to allow for deferred maintenance, we are going to hold up additional lands into the Federal account in Alaska, but what we need do is to help preserve those lands we have now but that are subject to aggressive erosion. To be able to use funds from the LWCF account to deal with a coastal resilience initiative is something my colleague from Louisiana and my colleague from Rhode Island—we have been talking about how we can help improve that.

I think these discussions are not only timely but smart policy. I think it would be unfortunate if the Senate chooses not to allow good ideas to be incorporated.

I would like to address the amendment that my colleague from Louisiana, Senator Cassidy, has filed and that I am cosponsoring. This is an initiative that he has worked on, and he has heard from many of his constituents of equity. It is a matter of equity and fairness as to how revenues are shared with the coastal States that enable offshore energy development.

Adding key portions of the COASTAL Act, S. 2418, which I am proud to cosponsor and was reported out of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee—to the measure we have in front of us, I think, makes sense. Senator Cassidy has spoken to how this would expand offshore revenue sharing for States along the Gulf of Mexico, which post and support some of the most impressive and expensive coastal facilities anywhere in the world. If any of our colleagues have not had the opportunity to see what happens in the offshore areas of Louisiana, it is a trip that should be a priority.

Senator Cassidy has spoken to the Gulf of Mexico piece of it. I want to speak to what the amendment would do for Alaska because it includes provisions that have been written by myself and by Senator Sullivan to establish a revenue-sharing program specific to our State, which has prolific offshore resources that we hope, one day, to be productive use for conservation and energy. I am particularly pleased, because I think there is so much rhetoric and concern that we can’t be doing further development in Alaska. I just shouldn’t happen. Well, let me share with you, again, we are seeing coastal impact. We are seeing levels of erosion. We would like to be able to address the expenses that are associated with it.

So within the amendment that Senator Cassidy has filed, in the Alaska provisions, we are authorizing purposes—coastal protection, conservation, restoration, and assistance, including relocation for communities that are directly affected by coastal erosion, melting permafrost, and climate change related lawsuits.

Another authorized use is mitigation of damage to fish, wildlife, and natural resources. Adaptation planning, vulnerability assessments, emergency preparedness to build healthy and resilient communities, and the installation and operation of energy systems to reduce energy costs and greenhouse emissions, and then programs at institutions of higher education, these are the primary prescriptions that Alaska would use its shared revenues for.

If you support the Great American Outdoors Act, you will be able to support offshore revenue sharing and the significant environmental benefits that it would provide to the Gulf of Mexico and to the State of Alaska, but we can only get there if we have an opportunity for the good ideas—substantive ideas—that Senator Cassidy is leading with his COASTAL Act that I have introduced with regards to concerns that I brought up here, and that I know the other Members have raised and shared as well.

I appreciate the support that we have received for offshore revenue sharing within the committee process itself. We are now asking for the full Senate to support the coastal States in equitable sharing of revenues. I think this is a key step, and I would urge that we have an opportunity to adopt that as we move forward.

With that, I yield to my friend, the Senator from Louisiana, I thank him for his leadership on this initiative. I have been so impressed not only by his advocacy when it comes to addressing the fairness and the equity issues that are associated with revenue sharing and what we need to do to lift the cap, but also to his commitment to ensure that his State and other coastal States that are seeing impact from climate change and seeing impact from erosion, that the conservation purposes that we have will still have an opportunity to be addressed. I am thankful to be able to work with him and to follow his lead on this.

I yield the floor.

Mr. Cassidy. Madam President, the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. Cassidy. Madam President, first, I thank the Energy Committee chair for her kind words and for her advocacy. I may be speaking for a bit, and probably the majority leader comes, I will interrupt and allow him to close, and then I ask unanimous consent to finish my speaking, if that is OK.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. Cassidy. Madam President, first, I thank the Energy Committee chair for her kind words and for her advocacy. I may be speaking for a bit, and probably the majority leader comes, I will interrupt and allow him to close, and then I ask unanimous consent to finish my speaking, if that is OK.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Cassidy. Madam President, I am on the Senate floor today to talk about the protection and restoration of the Gulf Coast, an issue extremely important to those I serve in Louisiana in the 6th congressional district. And I have come to talk to my colleagues about the importance to the rest of the Nation, whether the rest of the Nation knows it or not. I will explain why that is.

In the coming days, the Senate will vote on whether or not to pass the Great American Outdoors Act. This bill dedicates funding over 5 years towards deferred maintenance. We have spoken about it at length. It adds an additional $900 million to the Land and Water Conservation Fund, an amount which has already authorized but never funded. This would make it mandatory that it is funded.

Many will say that this is a good thing or even a great thing. I will tell you, for Louisiana, for the Gulf Coast, and for a lot of other States, this is not a great thing in its current form. In fact, I will show how this bill currently benefits only certain States at the expense of others.

First, the United States would almost entirely fund with money from the Gulf of Mexico oil and gas production. So 50 to 60 percent of the dollars go to five States. So we are going to put up about $9.5 billion, and 50 to 60 percent of it goes to five States. Need I even say, that lacks equity? I would argue that the way this bill could make this bill better in terms of benefiting many more Americans than it currently does.

First, let's speak about where the revenue comes from. Again, about $1.9 billion a year comes from energy production, redistributing that across the country, as we mentioned, to deferred maintenance programs. About 90 percent of that revenue from which this money will be extracted comes from oil and gas production in the Gulf of Mexico. This will be about $4.3 billion coming from the Gulf of Mexico. Now, this makes the Gulf of Mexico the primary revenue source for this whole project. It adds $900 million to what is already revenue shared from the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Now, some of the advocates, by the way, just for a point of clarity, will say or imply that these dollars are not otherwise allocated. Let's just be clear. The dollars are allocated. Right now, or otherwise allocated. Let's just be clear. The dollars are allocated. Right now, the dollars that will be used for this fund come to the U.S. Treasury and are used for the priorities of the American people, and they are allocated for you name it, higher education, debt service, paying troops, defense, et cetera. This would make it mandatory that a certain amount of the money would go towards both deferred maintenance and the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Now, the Land and Water Conservation Fund is supposed to be a fund that functions to benefit, kind of, all Americans, but I would argue that it really benefits select regions of America. If you look at this map, where the dollars are spent are not where the people live. Take national parks. The coastal States, and here are the inland States. As it turns out, the areas that are most benefited by this funding are not on the coast. And, yet, as you will see in a second, that is where the people live.

If you live in a coastal State, on a per capita basis, your State receives about $7.53 per person. If you live in one of these inland States, from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, you get $17.66, more than two times plus. In fact, from about 2011 to 2015, if you live in these inland States, you got a return of almost 8-1 in terms of the dollars spent in the coastal States. If you take out Washington, DC, and Virginia and maybe New York, then this $7.53 is going to go far lower. If you are not one of those three States and you are on the coast, you are not doing very well on a per capita basis.

To make that point, in 2015, about 40 percent of the population lived in a county or parish that was directly on a coastline, and 82 percent of people live in a State which has a coastline. So 82 percent of the people live in one of these yellow States, and yet, on a per capita basis, two plus times is not what those living in States which are inland.

Now, my point is that the dollars are not spent relative to where people live. This disparity disproportionately impacts States such as South Carolina, Georgia, North Carolina, Maine, and other coastal States. Now, I am a person who would rather have a solution, and the solution I am going to propose does not take money away from the Great American Outdoors Act. They continue to receive, in relatively sparsely populated States, a significant sum of the money.

I worked with Senator Whitehouse on a bipartisan solution that would at least add some equity for those States that are not coastal. It is consistent to being inland. Now, that said, we acknowledge national parks have deferred maintenance. At the end of fiscal year 2018, this was estimated at roughly $12 billion, but those parks are not uniformly distributed.

I mentioned earlier how a disproportionate amount of the money is going to go to five different States. According to the Park Service data, if you just looked at deferred maintenance, which will presumably guide where this money is spent, California; Washington, DC; Virginia; New York; North Carolina; Wyoming; Arizona; and the State of Washington make up nearly 60 percent of the deferred maintenance nationally. If you live in one of those States, you are doing well, but if you are living in a State other than those, not so well.

Now, some will say that even though almost 60 percent of the money is going to seven States, everyone in the country benefits because you might visit the park, or we are all in it together, so why shouldn't I support a national park in a State which is far away from my hometown? Uniformly there is something to be said to that. On the other hand, if the person saying that lived in one of the States, which is getting just a tiny fraction of the total sum of dollars, and, yes, the people in their State will probably say, I live in Washington and go spend their money in Montana, and for example, that will be great. People in Montana, on a per capita basis, get far more than anybody else.

We are in it together, I suppose, but you probably wouldn't reverse it. You probably wouldn't say, Wait a second, we think it is unfair that seven States get almost 60 percent of the dollars. We actually think it is better to be more equitably spread, or maybe you would. I hope that you would.

States like Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska see almost no benefit. Collectively, the deferred maintenance in these three States—Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska—creates a deferred maintenance backlog. It is the same for Connecticut, Delaware, Minnesota, and New Hampshire. Again, while there is deferred maintenance in Gulf Coast States, the real benefit to our States is investing in the coastline, which has a direct impact on sustainability.

To be fair, by the way, the Gulf of Mexico States do currently benefit. The Gulf of Mexico Energy Security Act shares revenue with the four Gulf Coast States. We use this revenue, by State constitution, for coastal restoration. There is a little bit of irony, as the Senator from Alaska pointed out, that those who strongly support this bill oftentimes strongly disapprove of drilling for oil and gas, particularly in coastal areas, but they are now reliant upon that drilling in order to fund the Great American Outdoors Act.

I do believe that we can address this inequity, which has been highlighted. I put to the Committee, I mentioned earlier, with Sheldon Whitehouse, called the COASTAL Act. We are working with other colleagues. We passed it out of the Energy Committee.

Actually, by that, Senator W hitehouse was an amendment to that bill, but we passed the COASTAL Act out of the Energy Committee with a bipartisan vote. The junior Senator from Alabama is my cosponsor. He should cosponsor, and he did. Alabama benefits exponen- tially more from the GOMESA Act than anything that the Great American Outdoors Act has to offer.

So all of this is to say that the Gulf Coast just wants equity. We want a more general benefit, not almost 60 percent of the revenue going to Gulf Coast States, and we also want the money to be distributed nationwide where people live, as opposed to where they might go on a 1-week vacation every 5 years.

I will speak just very briefly about the COASTAL Act. It is a bipartisan bill, again, passed by the Senate Energy Committee, committing more dollars towards environmental protection, reducing flood risks to businesses and industries along the Gulf Coast, protecting our shoreline for public recreation—we talked about recreation elsewhere. But committing dollars for all coastal States for environmental protection, once more, does not take money away from the Great American Outdoors Act.

Colleagues have heard me talk about the importance of revenue sharing for environmental protection. Again, the COASTAL Act passed out with bipartisan support, and its goals are consistent with the Great American Outdoors Act. By the way, the recent flood event in Louisiana—crystal ball—flooded homes in Mandeville and property in Grand Isle. If we have flooding now, this bill would help prevent that flooding.

The COASTAL Act also places millions of dollars in a coastal fund, which benefits all coastal States, including those along the Great Lakes, putting money directly where people live.

Once more, let me just show this. This is where people live, and 82 percent of the people live in a State with a coastline. Yet, where the money is going is, yes, to the coast, if you consider Washington, DC, and Virginia the coastline, but typically, it is going to five or six places, not to the places which have had the most flood events.

I walked around barrier islands in Georgia. Those barrier islands in South Carolina are similarly under great duress. In Louisiana, as I already mentioned, we just had a flood event this past week. The COASTAL Act would put money for resiliency in States where there have been population losses. I just don’t understand what is the objection to spending money to protect where people live. Why must we only do something nice for places where people vacation. If you put it to a referendum, people would vote yes first. I mentioned earlier, and then they would take care of the place where they vacation.

I am not saying, by the way, don’t take care of where they vacation, but I am saying say no some dollars to where people live. Now, I will quote a statistic once more: 42 percent of Americans live in a parish or county that is directly on a shoreline. Why don’t we something to protect that shoreline where 42 percent of Americans live, not taking any dollars away from those sparsely populated places where people vacation?

By the way, when the COASTAL Act passed the Energy Committee, environmental groups such as the Energy Defense Fund, the National Wildlife Federation, Audubon Society, and Louisiana-based organizations such as the Lake Pontchartrain Basin Foundation and the Coalition to Restore Coastal Louisiana signed a letter saying:

As we move to address the significant land, water, and wildlife conservation funding needs in our Nation, it is important that our coastlines are also equipped to confront the unique challenges that climate change presents. GOMESA has been a critically important funding stream for Louisiana and other Gulf Coast States, and expanding upon this success will protect national economic assets, providing better protection from storms, and enhance coastal habitat.

Now, bill sponsors will, rightly, say that the Great American Outdoors Act does not impact revenues flowing to GOMESA States but—let’s face it—it does cannibalize these dollars in Louisianna, so sooner or later you run out of money.

So if we are going to take all these dollars that could be spent elsewhere and put them in sparsely populated States where people vacation but not spend it in States where people actually live, not spend it in counties where 42 percent of the people live, which are directly upon a coastline, sooner or later you run out of money. And we are going to—just like a vacuum cleaner—suck those dollars down to these sparsely populated areas where people love to vacation.

So my point is that, in Louisiana, for example, we have a $50 billion, 50-year master plan to protect our coastline, reducing flood risk to communities and assets so important to the rest of the Nation. The Great American Outdoors Act does not make it so to secure future dollars for this gulf coast restoration.

Now, as I mentioned before, a lot of people live in coastal communities, in counties and parishes, and from 2000 to 2016, the Gulf of Mexico region grew by almost 25 percent, more than any other coastline region.

Harris County, TX, and areas in Florida and New York also accounted for substantial growth along our Nation’s coastline, where people vacation. But to the Gulf Coast, the proposal commits dollars to these coastal States so that they can have a sustainable revenue stream now and in the future for needed investments.

If you asked the people in New York, and Hurricane Sandy, if they would like to have dollars in New York to protect against a future flood event, they would say yes.

Houston and Galveston have really borne the brunt of major flood events, of hurricanes striking their coastline. Do we think that they could use more money for coastal resiliency? Yes—as well as Lake Charles, LA, after Hurricane Rita, Calcasieu Parish and Cam- eron Parish. We talked about Lou- isiana with Hurricane Katrina, the gulf coast of Mississippi and Alabama, devastated after Hurricane Katrina. Would it be wise, as a nation, to put dollars there in order to have coastal resiliency to prevent, if you will, more damages in the future so as to actually save more relief dollars that might be needed?

There are people, there are regions, battling rising sea levels, and I am mindful about their concerns and how we can address those.

I am told recently, by the way, that the Army Corps of Engineers has proposed a $3.5 billion flood wall for Miami. Think about that—$3.5 billion. This is in response to rising sea levels. But we are passing legislation now in which folks refuse to consider spending money for coastal resiliency. Instead, we are going to spend money on a $3.5 billion seawall because we don’t want to spend the money on other forms of coastal resiliency.

I recently spoke to one of my House colleagues, Donna Shalala, who repre- sents the Miami-Dade region, and she speaks about the rising sea levels and the investments they need to make around South Beach. It is something that folks there love to live, not where people vacation. I am not sure why we emphasize where people vacation over where people live.
To pay for this bill, again, we are taking dollars from an area of the country greatly impacted by coastal erosion, so these Gulf funds actually play a role in restoring or maintaining—

You will see a poster later on which shows the oil and gas development taking place off the coast of Louisiana, the oil and gas development that funds the Great American Outdoors Act.

Louisiana’s coast is a working coast in which people from this working coast go out to maintain that source of revenue, but look what is happening to Louisiana’s predicted land loss. Over the next 50 years, in a reasonable scenario, all of this red spot will be lost to erosion.

By the way, look what happens to New Orleans. It is now directly along the Gulf of Mexico. The next hurricane comes, and there goes the port structure. There goes the ability for people in the Midwest to get their grains to the international market and the ability of this working coast to support the oil and gas drilling and, therefore, to support the source of revenue required and relied upon by the Great American Outdoors Act. It will be lost.

It is not me saying it. Of course, I am the Senator. I love my State. I am going to do whatever I can. You may not believe me, but on the other hand, the State’s land loss has been highlighted in countless feature stories, including the New York Times and National Geographic, to name two.

By the way, Google Maps can’t keep up. When looking at the Louisiana coastline, Google Maps will show an area with land that has now been replaced with open water. Louisiana loses about, oh, a football field of land, I think it is, an hour. Whenever I say it, I can’t believe it, it is so fast. It is so rapid. So not only does this pose a risk to the energy assets, a risk to communities, and a risk to port assets; it poses a risk to our national livelihood.

Now, folks in Louisiana are going to look at this and say: How is the Great American Outdoors Act going to help us? We are going to work to produce all this oil and gas, and we are not going to get any of the benefits.

Senator Kennedy and I recently had a call with more than 20 Louisiana parish presidents. They are, very understandably, upset about the lack of equity. “Concerned” is diplomatic. “Ticked off” is how better to describe it.

I had another call with close to 100 businesses. They, too, are pleading for equitable treatment along the gulf.

So what I think about the Great American Outdoors Act cannibalizing dollars from the Gulf of Mexico to spend money in places where people don’t live as opposed to protecting my coastline, which, in turn, ensures that we can continue to have the source of revenue—but also coastlines around the Nation in counties and parishes where people actually live as opposed to going to places where people only visit—I am trying to make a case for those people.

Will you show the energy assets. I have been speaking about these energy assets that are required. It is one of the key things as opposed to another thing to look at. All of these are part of the Gulf coast energy infrastructure that the rest of our Nation relies upon.

I am a doctor. I think like this. If you saw a map of the Nation, you would see pipelines coming out of this region across the rest of the Nation, and in my mind, as a doctor, I think of this as being a heart. If we need energy to fuel our lives, the heart is right here, and it beats here. The aorta, if you will, the pipelines that flow out, taking gasoline to Philadelphia, taking natural gas to another part of our country, taking the refined fuel products to Atlanta, GA, in the case of jet fuel—you name it, they come out of this area.

If this area cannot be sustained, we cannot sustain that part of our energy economy. We will not have jet flights to Hawaii or jet flights from Atlanta around the world, as the hub, or for New Orleans, people coming in for Mardi Gras, to Breaux Bridge for a crawfish festival. It will not happen because this pipeline structure cannot be sustained with a coastline which is eroding.

Some of the things I just speak—yes, we are losing sites, natural gas market centers, processing facilities, liquefied natural gas export facilities, strategic petroleum reserve, major working ports, such as Port Fourchon. I could go on. These assets and companies then employ hundreds of thousands of men and women contributing billions of dollars in government revenues with an even greater impact on our annual GDP.

This is what powers our country. This revenue stream is coming from for the Great American Outdoors Act. This revenue stream will not be sustainable if we don’t at least have some consideration of how to restore this.

The Senator from Ohio had spoken about a leaky roof and the leaky roof increased its leak and now all those assets are being damaged within a park. That is great. People like to visit parks, and we should take care of leaky roofs. But there is more concerned about a coastline that is dissolving, and, as it dissolves, you lose the energy infrastructure, which is required to pay for that park building to be fixed.

I will also point out the flooding risk for the folks in my State. Again, I spoke about the communities at risk. This is predicted future flooding from a 100-year flood event, without action. Let’s just say, if it is colored, it is bad, where you are going to get 0.5 to 5 feet of water north of New Orleans.

If you want to speak about something that should be done now to prevent future problems, I have bigger issues than a leaky roof in a park building. I have entire communities washed away into the ocean, at risk for great flooding. I am speaking of New Orleans, I could be speaking of Miami, of Houston, of New York.

Why don’t we spend money where people have more at stake? Getting money spending it only where people vacation?

Now, you might be sitting in Iowa or Kansas or Nebraska thinking: Well, I am only getting 0.2 percent of this money. I am not getting any benefit whatsoever, but why does it matter to me to have a coastline? Why does it matter to me at all?

Well, let’s look at how investing in the coast impacts our Nation economically. Let’s look at what happened after Hurricane Katrina. After Hurricane Katrina, the flooding took out the port structure in South Louisiana; therefore, the in place for all the goods coming from the Ohio, Missouri, Mississippi, and other rivers for export to the rest of the world—the rest of the United States—was terribly impacted. If you look at this—if we have a lack of coastal investment—corn exports were down 23 percent post-Hurricane Katrina; barley, down 100 percent; wheat, down 54 percent; soy, down 25 percent; and that is just for a few.

If that port system in South Louisiana and in the lower Calcasieu River in Houston is damaged by flooding—that is going to happen under current scenarios—then our farmers are not able to ship to international markets. Their livelihood is damaged.

In moving goods across our country for export, one coalition committed to ensuring future navigation on the Mississippi said that the lower Mississippi has an estimated annual impact of $735 billion to the Nation’s economy and is responsible for 2.4 million jobs. That starts with being able to navigate through the various locks and port complexes near the mouth of the river.

The USDA recognizes this. It says in a report on the importance of inland waterways that farm products are 14 percent of total commodities moved along inland waterways. Further, processed flour, animal feed, milled grain products, and fertilizers add another 5 percent to agricultural related products.

And it is important to remember, the Mississippi River Valley encompasses almost 60 percent of our country, so many major rivers connect with the Mississippi to deliver those products around the world. If we are going to have a port system that is going to take this—Goods and allow them to be transported around the world, it has to be a sustained, reinforced coastline.

In my State, we have some of the largest barge and container ports in the country. The Port of South Louisiana is the largest grain exporter in the country. The Port of Baton Rouge is home to the largest grain operator in the State. Ports farther to the south in Mobile and Texas are, likewise, important.

If we are going to have rising sea levels and spend all of our money on the inland areas—not where people live but where people visit on vacation—as opposed to the coastlines, which have the ports, where people trade and sustain the vitality of those in the heartland, we are being foolish with our public policy.

The same USDA report highlighted the consequences of an inadequate infrastructure along the waterways, saying that inadequate infrastructure leads to reduced transportation capacity, raising shipping rates, meaning less income to the farmers who are shipping—which reduces U.S. economic activity—and a loss of global competitiveness.

I could go on. I will just say that associated industries impacted by the Iowa grain exports support business from agriculture, forestry, real estate, restaurants, and pesticides, to name a few. This is just in Iowa.

The ports in the gulf coast support those folks in Iowa, and we should support what we should support the ports, which support Iowa.

To summarize, my colleagues and I are fighting for fairness and equity. That is what this is about. I have highlighted obvious inequities both in how the gulf region is treated and how other States are treated—spending money not where people live but where people visit.

I am pointing out the consequences to midwestern farmers. They don’t benefit very much at all—if you live in Iowa, Kansas, or Nebraska—from the Great American Outdoors Act, but they would benefit from a sustainable port system, which means that those ports they rely upon to ship goods around the world will be there even as sea levels rise.

Now, I am all for, by the way, taking care of deferred maintenance in parks, but I think, in the relative hierarchy of what we should do, we should take care of where people live. And I will repeat once more: 42 percent of the people live in a parish or county that is directly on a coastline; 82 percent of Americans live in a coastal State. That is not where the bulk of these dollars are spent.

We have a bipartisan group of Senators supporting; we have environmentally focused groups supporting as well, and what they are supporting is an amendment which would actually help create this equity that would allow dollars to be put into a fund to help coastal States—where people live—but would be part of a bill to take care of where people visit.

I wish it were the other way around, but those are not the priorities of the people who are promoting the Great American Outdoors Act. I thank you for this time. I yield the floor. spearheaded the purchase of a building at 405 Pine Street that now houses the organization's art studios. Kraft and her team need to find $5 million to renovate it.

"She's a great communicator. She's always overscheduled. But she's a marvelous fundraiser," said Pat Robbins, co-founder of the Church Street Marketplace and former BCA board chair, who started the group.

Kraft was on the board for 25 years, working out of a closet-size office. Soon, Kraft was teaching classes at a local high school and met Robin Lloyd, who was teaching in nearby Rochester. Lloyd was making films, which Kraft had never done before. But they started working together, and Lloyd taught her the medium. They both moved to Burlington, into the house on Church Street, where they did their first film. Today, Kraft and Lloyd went back to school at the University of Vermont, studying film production in the communications department. (She also did a residency at Nova Scotia College of Art and Design and Hampshire College.)

Kraft and Lloyd were both influenced by the work of Maya Deren, an experimental filmmaker whose work focused on Haitian voudou. In 1973 the two took the first of many trips to Haiti, where they made a short film about the country's colorful painted buses.

Lloyd and Kraft have a friendship that needs to be done, I could see Doreen doing it.

Robins credited BCA's long-running success with Kraft's ability to take risks and, more importantly, pull them off. If this story were a documentary, there'd be short takes of nearly a dozen Burlington leaders all saying the same thing: BCA would not exist today without Kraft, despite her attempt to step away from the spotlight. Kraft is praised, Kraft's name is attached. When she criticized, she is often targeted personally.

"This particular arts job also comes with political perils. BCA is an arm of city government and whoever happens to be running it, and Kraft is, technically, an annual appointee of the mayor. She navigates it all with a highly developed sense of direction and diplomacy.

"I'm here to engage and engage with people who believe that the arts are central to community life," Kraft said. "And if I can be a part of that process and move that forward and make that more possible and attainable, then my heart sings." She's deeply loyal to the organization.

"Doreen will put out the food trays, will sweep the floors," Posley said. "Every job that needs to be done, I could see Doreen doing it.

“Having done a lot of fundraising myself recently,” he added, it taught him that “you have to believe passionately in the mission. And if you believe strongly enough in the mission, you’re willing to ask anybody for anything.”

SOUTH END ‘PLAN’

Kraft has often been compared to another local woman who built a thriving arts organization, Geralyn Radcliffe. She was the founding executive director of the Flynn, instrumental in transitioning it from a moribund movie theater to a restored art-deco performing arts center. Rogers ran the Flynn for 29 years before retiring in 2010.

BCCA focused on the visual arts because it was underrepresented in Burlington’s arts scene. In the early days of the SEAD, performing arts programming and classes was helpful to what Rogers described as a “good working relationship” with BCCA, citing their collaboration in producing the annual Burlington Discover Jazz Festival.

“We were both dedicated to our own institutions,” Rogers said. “There’s no question about that. And I think, because we were early leaders of our institutions, the both of us could be charged with being too protective of our own kingdoms. I’m sure I was considered that, and she probably has, too.”

It’s a diplomatic way of acknowledging that Burlington’s arts community has seen some upheaval over the years. BCCA has run into resistance from the artists and business owners along the Pine Street corridor—later dubbed the South End Arts District—who were protective of their neighborhood and fiercely opposed to any development that might threaten scarce, affordable studio space. They rallied behind the South End Arts District Association, which created and still organizes Burlington’s annual South End Art Hop.

Whether or not it was warranted, some believed that BCCA—and, by extension, Kraft—wanted to stake a claim in the South End, perhaps because of the organization’s city department status. That came to a head with planHTV. In June 2015, the city released a draft of a plan to redevelop the South End—the postindustrial area of Burlington along Pine Street and avenue. BCCA, with the help of a National Endowment for the Arts grant, recruited artists to create works that would make public and solicit comments on the proposed plan.

But in August, many of those artists became disenchanted with the process and didn’t think their voices had been heard. They worried that a proposed zoning change to allow more housing in the area would displace them, and they believed BCCA was complicit.

Amey Radcliffe, one of the artists who received funding for a community engagement project, put it this way in a recent email to Seven Days: “I’d really like to feel that the artist/activists that emerged at that time were fully heard or fully understood. If BCCA was less under the purview of the Mayor, we might be in a better position for taking more independent actions and decisions—in step with the Mayor’s development agendas for the area.”

Signs began to appear around the neighborhood, according to local media reports, including ones that read, “BCCA: Will you stand with the arts community to preserve integrity of the SEAD?” That year’s South End Art Hop in September, artists built a temporary cardboard house across the street from ArtsRiot that was dubbed “Miroville.”

Kraft was also the subject of some Art Hop protest art. One of the buildings in the How ard Space—the warren of artist studios at Pine and Howard streets—was topped with a large sculpture depicting Weinberger holding puppet versions of Kraft and the city’s director of planning and zoning. “I tried to buy it,” Kraft said of the artwork. “I stood there that night, and I realized I’d better get [Radcliffe] to understand it, you know? I’ll take the criticism. But I also felt that BCA was misunderstood, and our role in that planning.”

Relations since then, SEABA’s current executive director, Christie Mitchell, said, she’s excited to have another organization with a stake in the South End and sees BCCA getting new signage and pointing tourists to Pine Street. Radcliffe said she thought the perception of BCA in the area was generally positive and that the purchase of the building on Pine Street could provide new opportunities for South End artists.

Steve Conant, owner of Conant Metal & Light and the Soda Plant—and an early member of SEABA—said he’d been aware of a “turf war” between the two organizations. “I don’t think that our programs are all that different. It’s hard to complain about an organization that anchors 30,000 square feet of real estate and commits it to the arts,” Conant said. “That’s the case of the South End, the loss of real estate that supports the arts.”

BCCA’s relationship with the city is a double-edged sword. On one hand, it provides the organization with a significant portion of its budget, covering staff and overhead costs. It also provides essential connections with other city departments and a larger stake in city decision making. On the other hand, the public money opens the organization up to criticism about how those funds are used. Dissatisfaction with Weinberger generally casts a shadow on his appointees.

Kraft, one of the original members of the Sanders administration, sees another challenge: walking a line between the passionate, activist tendencies of the community and the bureaucratic nature of city government. John Franco, once Sanders’ assistant city attorney, has represented opponents of the BCA focused on the visual arts because it was underrepresented in Burlington’s arts community and sees BCA as a potential ally in getting the loss of real estate that supports the arts.

In 2000, he was elected to the first of two terms as a Crowley County Commissioner, and in that role, he was selected as chairman of the Southern Colorado Economic Development District to represent the interests of the 14 counties in the region. In 2007, my predecessor, Ken Salazar, asked Dwight to join my office. I was fortunate that Dwight agreed to continue his service in my office in 2009.

Dwight employs a formidable array of skills to serve the southeast region of Colorado effectively. He builds strong relationships with people; he possesses a deep knowledge and respect for the heritage of Colorado; and he provides a constant presence when the issues demand it. He has engaged in the battle for Federal funds to build the long-promised Arkansas Valley conduit. He was witness to the important preservation of our national heritage at Camp Amache and Sand Creek.

Dwight has been a steady presence and road warrior as he has advanced the manufacturing, from the decommissioning of the Pueblo Chemical Depot to establishing good neighbor relations at Fort Carson’s Pinon Canyon Maneuver site. Dwight has been a steady presence and road warrior as he has advanced the common good across hundreds of miles of beautiful southern Colorado.

Going forward, I will miss Dwight’s humor, humility, and his keen understanding of what it means to be a son of rural America, attributes so needed as we work our way toward a better future. I am comforted to know that the next generation, represented by his grandsons Noah, Devlan, and Gatlin, have the benefit of his guidance. Colorado is grateful for his service.

TRIBUTE TO DWIGHT GARDNER

Mr. BENNET. Madam President, I rise to honor the career of Dwight Gardner, who recently announced his retirement after providing decades of service to the State of Colorado. He most recently served on my staff as the regional director for southeast Colorado. Dwight has been a tireless advocate for the farmers, ranchers, and communities across our State. For decades, he has worked on behalf of communities throughout the region, from Pueblo to Raton Pass on the New Mexico border, and from the headwaters of the Arkansas River in Leadville, high in the Rockies, to the town of Holly in Prowers County.

Early in his career, Dwight worked alongside his brother to support the farmers of the Arkansas Valley as a crouposter. Living through the era of “buy and dry” land purchasing as a diverts the needs of a growing Front Range, Dwight understood early the value of advocacy for rural Colorado.

This Presidential Cybersecurity Education Award was established on May 2, 2019, by President Trump’s executive order on America’s Cybersecurity Workforce. The Department of Education was charged with creating this award within 1 year and in consultation with the Deputy Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and Counterterrorism at the National Security Council and the National Science Foundation.

Because the demand for STEM careers continues to grow in my State, our Nation, and around the world, students to prepare for careers in the field of cybersecurity. I thank her for her passion for cyber education and for being an inspiration to what can be done to successfully create this level of excellence in schools across the Nation.

TRIBUTE TO KARA FOUR BEAR

Mr. CRAMER. Madam President, I want to congratulate Kara Four Bear, the principal at the New Town, ND, Middle School, for being one of two educators in the Nation to be presented with the Presidential Cybersecurity Education Award.

The U.S. Department of Education received nominations for 43 educators from 23 States for this inaugural award. Kara Four Bear’s selection was based on her passion for developing digital literacy and safety skills in her students and then helping them make real-world connections with what they learn.

She has led her school in establishing robust, global, and relevant education programs using curriculum provided from the National Integrated Educational Research Center. This curriculum challenges students to put into practical use their lessons in topics such as cyber ethics and cyber law.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

RECOGNIZING GOOD SHEPHERD HOUSING AND FAMILY SERVICES

Mr. KAIN. Madam President, the formation, development, growth and success of Good Shepherd Housing and Family Services, GSH is a story that exemplifies the very best in people-to-people programs. Started in 1974 as a “volunteer hand” organization by members of the Mount Vernon community, including several churches and local businesses, the founders of GSH established a volunteer board of directors to steer the organization’s efforts to help those experiencing homelessness in the Greater Mount Vernon community.

Today, GSH is a vital affordable housing and services provider with a 10-person professional staff and a $2.7 million operating budget. GSH remains true to its founding vision and mission. GSH works every day to reduce homelessness and enable self-sufficiency by... providing permanent affordable rental housing, emergency financial services, budget counseling, and case management to hundreds of working families in Fairfax County. Then, as now, GSH helps struggling families create and sustain a better way of life for themselves and their neighbors.

In 1975, GSH acquired its first property on Holland Road, built and furnished a home, and moved in a struggling refugee family of nine and began providing them ongoing support services, assisting the family in their transition towards self-sufficiency and housing stability. Two months later, several Laotian and Vietnamese refugee families received housing assistance upon their arrival in the community. For the next several years, GSH continued to serve families and individuals needing housing and emergency financial assistance. Under the leadership of its board, GSH functioned solely with the support of volunteers and individual donations.

Today, with its affordable rental housing portfolio of 100-plus leased and owned units, as many as 120 struggling families are housed and supported every year in GSH housing. GSH’s emergency financial assistance programs provide an additional 200-plus households each year, housing one family per household to prevent evictions or providing security deposits. GSH case managers also provide service referrals to another 200-plus households each year to receive community services to address their healthcare, transportation, and food needs.

Additional support services and programs are offered to move resident households to greater self-sufficiency. The Children’s Resources Program supports the 110-plus schoolchildren residing in GSH affordable housing units and ensures their educational needs are met. Various financial counseling programs help low-income female heads of household create a healthy consciousness of money and empower them to begin to establish financial security. A president/chief executive officer, vice president/chief operating officer, financial manager, and development director lead the day-to-day operations of GSH. They are assisted by staff of six full– and part-time employees. A 16-member board of directors oversees its work, while a leadership council of 23 key community stakeholders in the service area provides advice and guidance. Their feedback reflects the community’s trends within the community and the impact of GSH programs in meeting those needs.

The current service area lines within the Mount Vernon and Lee Districts of southeastern Fairfax County, mainly along Richmond Highway from Alexandria to Lorton, where many low-income workers live. The deepest pockets of poverty in Fairfax County are here. For example, according to 2016 U.S. Census Bureau data, 66,616 people 5.9 percent 1 in 17 in the county live in poverty, i.e., below the Federal poverty level of $24,600 per year for a family of four. Based on census data disaggregated at the ZIP code and neighborhood level, several of the neighborhoods in the GSH service area report that 10 to 15 percent of their households live in poverty.

For more than 45 years, Good Shepherd Housing and Family Services has had one outcome in mind: to ensure that the households it serves reach housing stability, build financial resources, and never face the possibility or reality of homelessness. Every year, GSH programs stretch and grow to accommodate a reality for its residents. Recently, several local Northern Virginia and Metropolitan Washington, DC, agencies recognized the affordable housing contributions of GSH through grant awards that help finance the programs. As the need for its services unfortunately continues to grow at a staggering pace, GSH will continue to step up, lend a helping hand, and empower its clients to do the same.

RECOGNIZING PINCEREEST BAKERY

Mr. RUBIO. Madam President, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I have the honor of recognizing one of our local businesses that exemplifies the American entrepreneurial spirit at the heart of our country. It is my privilege to recognize a family-owned small business that is not only a Miami staple, but has helped feed those in their community and impacted by the coronavirus pandemic. This week, it is my pleasure to honor Pinecrest Bakery, of Pinecrest, FL, as the Senate Small Business of the Week.

In 2012, Efrain Valdes and Joel Rodriguez founded Pinecrest Bakery. Years earlier, these longtime friends met in Miami’s Little Havana and formed a bond over their shared Cuban heritage and love for its cuisine. When Efrain’s family moved to Pinecrest, he noticed a lack of Cuban restaurants in their new neighborhood. Seeing this as an opportunity, Efrain and Joel opened the original Pinecrest Bakery in December 2012. Their welcoming atmosphere and delicious food proved a hit, with lines regularly forming out the door. Soon, Pinecrest Bakery expanded its hours to become Miami’s premier 24-hour Cuban bakery.

Eight years later, Pinecrest Bakery expanded to 17 locations, with 3 more opening in early 2020. Their original menu of Cuban coffee and pastries now includes meal and catering menus and a food truck. Pinecrest Bakery is earning accolades for its delicious cuisine and emerging as a leader in the local business community. The business remains family-owned, with several members of the Valdes and Rodriguez families serving in key leadership and food production roles. Additionally, their strong sense of family has built a tight-knit and supportive team.

Like many other small businesses, Pinecrest Bakery stepped up to help their community during the coronavirus pandemic. The shortage of essential goods in stores prompted them to sell their bulk supplies of milk and eggs directly to customers. In mid-March, Pinecrest Bakery ramped up their existing partnership with Farm Share, a nonprofit organization that connects Floridian farmers with surplus food to local food banks and organizations for distribution. Using its Pinecrest location as a distribution center, Pinecrest Bakery provided approximately 200,000 pounds of free food to nearly 10,000 families in south Florida and exceeded Farm Share’s demand. Additionally, Pinecrest for donating hot meals to healthcare workers and first responders.

When the U.S. Small Business Administration launched the Paycheck Protection Program—PPP—Efrain and Joel applied immediately. The PPP provides forgivable loans to impacted small businesses and nonprofits who maintain their payroll during the COVID–19 pandemic. Recently, Pinecrest Bakery received their PPP loan, which has enabled them to keep their employees paid and continue their work to feed south Florida.

Pinecrest Bakery is a remarkable example of how small businesses can leverage local connections to support their communities in times of crisis. I commend their work with Farm Share and leadership in the Miami area.

Congratulations to Efrain, Joel, and the entire team at Pinecrest Bakery. I look forward to watching your continued growth and success in south Florida.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, and were referred as indicated:

EC–4750. A communication from the Director of the Regulatory Management Division, Economic Research and Statistics Standards and Rulemaking, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled “Autographa Californica Multiple Nuclear Polyhedrovirus Strain R3; Exemption from the Requirement for a Pesticide” (FRL No. 10005–93–OCSPP) received in the Office of the President of the Senate on May 18, 2020; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC–4751. SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (incorporated in the Journal), as indicated:

By Mrs. LOEFFLER:

S. Res. 612. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the tragic death of George Floyd was unjust and the perpetrators must stand trial and be brought to justice, the First Amendment of the Constitution guarantees individuals the right to peaceably assemble and protest, groups like Antifa and the individuals who took over peaceful protests with violence, chaos, looting, and destruction should be held accountable for their actions, the attacks on law enforcement, individuals, small businesses, and communities are causing death, injury and millions of dollars in damage, the vast majority of men and women in law enforcement work tirelessly and risk their lives to protect the people of the United States without prejudice, police departments are the cornerstone for maintaining a society of order, calls to defund the police threaten the safety and security of the people of the United States, Congress will continue to appropriate funding to local law enforcement agencies that bolster police efforts, and the Nation must come together in healthy, compassionate, and prayer to reaffirm that every life is sacred, our society must strive for equality, and that we will work to ensure a tragedy like George Floyd’s never happens again in the United States; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

S. 3918
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Paycheck Protection for Producers Act’’.

SEC. 2. CALCULATION OF MAXIMUM LOAN AMOUNT FOR FARMERS AND RANCHERS UNDER THE PAYCHECK PROTECTION PROGRAM.

(a) In general.—Section 7(a)(36) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(a)(36)) is amended—
(1) in subparagraph (E), in the matter preceding clause (i), by striking ‘‘During’’ and inserting ‘‘Except as provided in subparagraph (T)’’; and
(2) by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(T) CALCULATION OF MAXIMUM LOAN AMOUNT FOR FARMERS AND RANCHERS.—
(i) DEFINITION.—In this subparagraph, the term ‘covered recipient’ means an eligible recipient that—
(I) operates as a sole proprietorship or as an independent contractor, or is an eligible self-employed individual;
(II) reports farm income or expenses on a Schedule F (or any equivalent successor schedule); and
(iii) was in business during the period beginning on January 31, 2020 and ending on June 30, 2019.

(ii) NO EMPLOYEES.—With respect to a covered recipient without employees, the maximum covered loan amount shall be the lesser of—
(I) the sum of—
(aa) the product obtained by multiplying—
(A) the gross income of the covered recipient described in subparagraph (T), during the period beginning on January 31, 2020 and ending on April 3, 2020, by 2.5; and

(II) $100,000.

(iii) WITH EMPLOYEES.—With respect to a covered recipient with employees, the maximum covered loan amount shall be calculated using the formula described in subparagraph (E), except that the gross income of the covered recipient described in clause (i) of paragraph (A) of this subparagraph, as divided by 12, shall be added to the sum calculated under subparagraph (E)(i)(I).

(iv) RECALCULATION.—A lender that made a covered loan to a covered recipient before the date on which this subparagraph may, at the request of the covered recipient—

‘‘(I) recalculate the maximum loan amount to which the formula described in clause (ii) or (iii), as applicable, if doing so would result in a larger covered loan amount; and ‘‘(II) provide the covered recipient with additional covered loan amounts based on that recalculation.’’.

By Mr. DURBIN.

S. 3924. A bill to provide tax credits to low- to moderate-income individuals for certain computer and education costs, to direct the Federal Communications Commission to modify the requirements for the Lifeline program to provide increased support, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3924
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Computer and Internet Access Equity Act’’.

SEC. 2. INCREASED LIFELINE SUPPORT.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) COMMISSION.—The term ‘‘Commission’’ means the Federal Communications Commission.

(2) TERMS DEFINED IN REGULATIONS.—The terms defined in section 54.400 of title 47, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor regulation), have the meanings given those terms in that section.

(b) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 14 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall promulgate regulations to modify the requirements for the Lifeline program set forth in part E of part 54 of title 47, Code of Federal Regulations (as in effect after the date of enactment of this Act) to provide for the following:

(1) The amount of Lifeline support that a provider of Lifeline service may receive for providing such service to each qualified low-income consumer shall be increased by the lesser of—
(A) $83.33 per month; or
(B) the amount needed to make the amount of Lifeline support received by the provider equal to the cost of providing such service, except that such cost may not exceed the cost to the provider of providing an equivalent level of voice telephony service or broadband internet access service (as applicable) to a consumer who does not receive Lifeline service.

(2) The percentage of the Federal Poverty Guidelines (as specified in section 54.490(a) of title 47, Code of Federal Regulations) below which a consumer’s household income must be in order for the consumer to constitute a qualifying low-income consumer on the basis of income shall be increased to 495 percent.

(3) A provider of broadband internet access service shall not be required to be designated as an eligible telecommunications carrier under section 214(e) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 214(e)) in order to receive Lifeline support for providing such service to a qualifying low-income consumer.

(c) DURATION.—The modifications made by the regulations promulgated under subsection (b) shall cease to have any force or effect on the date that is 12 years after the date on which the regulations are promulgated.

(d) CONSUMER PROTECTIONS.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—A provider of broadband internet access service that receives Lifeline support for providing such service to a qualifying low-income consumer—
(A) shall provide such service to the consumer at a minimum speed of 25 megabits per second for downloads and 3 megabits per second for uploads, which minimum speed shall be reevaluated and, if appropriate, increased by the Commission not less frequently than once every 3 years; and
(ii) may partner with State agencies responsible for the provision of social assistance and service programs in conducting advertising under clause (i).

(2) DESIGNATED SERVICE AREA.—A State commission or the Commission, as applicable, shall establish a designated service area for a provider of broadband internet access service described in paragraph (1) for purposes of that paragraph in the same manner as the State commission or Commission establishes a designated service area for a common carrier under paragraph (5) or (6), as applicable, of section 214(e) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 214(e)).

SEC. 3. INTERNET EDUCATION AND TRAINING GRANT PROGRAM.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) COMMISSION.—The term ‘‘Commission’’ means the Federal Communications Commission.

(2) COMMUNITY-BASED ORGANIZATION.—The term ‘‘community-based organization’’ has the meaning given the term in section 3 of the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (29 U.S.C. 3312).

(3) DIGITAL LITERACY.—The term ‘‘digital literacy’’ means the skills associated with using technology.

(4) ELIGIBLE ENTITY.—The term ‘‘eligible entity’’ means—

(A) a nonprofit organization;

(B) a for-profit social welfare organization;

(C) a community-based organization.

(6) HOUSEHOLD.—The term ‘‘household’’ has the meaning given the term in section 54.400 of title 47, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor regulation).

(7) INCOME.—The term ‘‘income’’ has the meaning given the term in section 54.400 of title 47, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor regulation).

(8) NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION.—The term ‘‘nonprofit organization’’ means an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code.
(b) GRANTS AUTHORIZED.—Not later than 100 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall establish a program to make grants on a competitive basis to eligible entities to develop and carry out an internet safety education or training program.

(c) APPLICATIONS.—An eligible entity that wishes to receive a grant under this section shall submit an application to the Commission at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Commission may require.

(d) USE OF FUNDS.—An eligible entity that receives a grant under this section shall use grant funds to—

(1) develop a program to provide internet education and training, which may address cyberbullying, online privacy, cybersecurity, and digital literacy, to individuals living in households with an income at or below 435 percent of the Federal Poverty Guidelines for households of the applicable size; and

(2) provide such education or training to such individuals through such program.

(e) REPORTS.—

(1) REPORTS TO COMMISSION.—Not later than 3 years after the date on which an entity receives a grant under this section, the entity shall publish and submit to the Commission a report that—

(A) summarizes the progress of the grant by the entity, including the number of individuals served by the entity using grant funds;

(B) describes the progress of the entity toward meeting the objectives for which the grant was awarded; and

(C) includes any additional information required by the Commission.

(2) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall publish and submit to Congress a report that—

(A) summarizes the data from the reports that the Commission has received under paragraph (1); and

(B) assesses the effectiveness and cost-efficiency of the grant program established under this section.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

SEC. 4. CREDIT FOR COMPUTER COSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart C of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting after section 36B the following new section:

"SEC. 36C. CREDIT FOR COMPUTER COSTS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an eligible individual, there shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by this subtitle for the taxable year an amount equal the lesser of—

(1) the amount of qualified computer costs paid or incurred by the taxpayer during such taxable year,

(2) $2,000, or

(3) an amount equal to $10,000 ($20,000 in the case of a joint return) minus the sum of—

(a) the amount allowed to the taxpayer under section 36B for the taxable year in which the adjusted gross income of the taxpayer for the taxable year is reduced by 5 percent of so much of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income as exceeds—

(1) $150,000 in the case of a joint return,

(2) $122,500 in the case of a head of household, and

(3) $75,000 in the case of a taxpayer not described in paragraph (1) or (2),

(b) QUALIFIED COMPUTER COSTS.—For purposes of this section, 'qualified computer costs' means amounts paid or incurred for computers, printers, and other equipment related to computer technology.

(c) LIMITATION BASED ON ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME.—The amount of the credit allowed by subsection (a) (determined without regard to this subsection) shall be reduced by 5 percent of so much of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income as exceeds—

(1) $150,000 in the case of a joint return,

(2) $122,500 in the case of a head of household, and

(3) $75,000 in the case of a taxpayer not described in paragraph (1) or (2),

(d) ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUAL.—The term 'eligible individual' means any individual other than—

(1) any nonresident alien individual,

(2) with respect to a deduction under section 151 is allowable to another taxpayer for taxable year beginning in the calendar year in which the individual's taxable year begins, and

(3) an estate or trust.

(b) QUALIFIED COMPUTER COSTS.—This section shall only apply to qualified computer costs incurred by the taxpayer after December 31, 2019, and before—

(1) an estate or trust.

(c) ADVANCE PAYMENT OF CREDIT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 77 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting after section 7725 the following new section:

"SEC. 7725A. ADVANCE PAYMENT OF CREDIT FOR COMPUTER COSTS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—As soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall establish a program for making advance payments of the credit allowed under section 36C (determined without regard to subsection (e) of such section), after the date of enactment of this section, for qualified computer costs paid or incurred by the taxpayer after December 31, 2019, and before—

(1) the aggregate amount of advance payments made under section 36C (determined without regard to subsection (a) of such section) for the taxable year of the taxpayer for which such advance payment is made,

(2) the amount of such advance payment, and

(3) the amount of such advance payment that is required to be included in gross income under section 1324(b) of title 26 (as amended by section 11013 of the CARES Act).

(b) QUALIFIED COMPUTER COSTS.—For purposes of this section, 'qualified computer costs' means amounts paid or incurred by—

(1) an eligible entity, and

(2) an eligible individual, for qualified computer costs.

(c) LIMITATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amount of the credit allowed under this section for any taxable year shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the aggregate amount of the qualified computer costs paid or incurred by the taxpayer during such taxable year.

(d) RETURN REQUIREMENT.—If the tax imposed by this section is not reduced under paragraph (1), the taxpayer shall file an amended return for the taxable year for which the reduced credit is claimed.

(e) RECONCILIATION OF CREDIT AND ADVANCE PAYMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the aggregate amount of advance payments made under section 7725A for any taxable year exceeds the amount of the credit allowed under section 36C for such taxable year, the amount of the credit allowed under section 36C for such taxable year shall be increased by the amount of such excess.

(2) RETURN REQUIREMENT.—If the tax imposed by this section is not reduced under this paragraph, the taxpayer shall file an amended return for the taxable year for which the reduced credit is claimed.

(f) E EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(g) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to costs incurred in taxable years beginning after December 31, 2019. law enforcement officers engage in conduct inconsistent with equal treatment, justice, and the Constitution of the United States;

Whereas since the death of George Floyd, peace advocates by thousands of citizens exercising their First Amendment rights across the Nation have taken place;

Whereas unfortunately in a number of cities, masses have used the peaceful protest as a means for rioting, looting, and arson should not be tolerated; and

Whereas radical protesters defaced the Lincoln Memorial, the place where the March on Washington began, that momentous occasion in the history of civil rights;

Whereas radical protesters burned St. John’s Church, a church that supported the civil rights movement of the March on Washington;

Whereas these actions taken by radical protesters do not honor the legacy of George Floyd nor further a rational cause, and those acting as violent anarchists and members of Antifa are taking advantage of the pain of people and the pain of the peaceful protesters;

Whereas protests are a normal and healthy part of democracy, while acts of violence, looting, and destruction leading to the damage of lives and property of all individuals, in consistent with equal treatment, justice, and protection under the law; and

Whereas the vast majority of police officers do their job bravely and righteously and are committed to ensuring that racism plays no part in law enforcement and that everyone receives equal protection under the law; and

Whereas the United States has a moral and constitutional obligation to protect the life, liberty, and property of all individuals, including from abuse from those we entrust to defend public safety and from domestic terrorists and violent, anti-democratic activists; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that it is the policy of the United States—

(1) to commemorate the life of George Floyd through official recognition and remembrance;

(2) that the First Amendment guarantees every individual citizen the right to peacefully assemble and protest;

(3) to urge an immediate end to the violence leading to the damage of lives and businesses across United States so that the Nation can come together in healing, dialogue, reconciliation, and prayer;

(4) to urge leaders at every level of government to ensure that protestants and enhance the training of law enforcement to ensure equal treatment and protection under the law; and

(5) to urge States and local governments to provide the training and support necessary for law enforcement and first responders to protect the life, liberty, and property of every individual in the United States regardless of the race, color, or nationality.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 1599. Mr. KENNEDY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill H.R. 1957, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modernize and improve the Internal Revenue Service, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ______. ELIMINATION OF LIMITATIONS ON AMOUNT OF DISTRIBUTED QUALIFIED OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF REVENUES.

SA 1600. Ms. CORTEZ MASTO submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill H.R. 1957, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modernize and improve the Internal Revenue Service, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, add the following:

SEC. ______. ENHANCED MULTIPLE USE MANAGEMENT OF FEDERAL LAND AND NATIONAL FOREST SYSTEM LAND.

(a) POLICY.—In accordance with Federal multiple use land management goals, it is the policy of the United States that—

(1) the Secretary—
(A) shall not, absent exceptional circumstances, offer for lease any Federal land that has low or no potential for the development of oil and gas resources;
(B) shall discourage speculation in the Federal onshore oil and gas leasing program;
(C) by not offering for lease Federal land described in subparagraph (A), shall conserve limited Federal resources that can be better applied elsewhere; and

Whereas the policies described in paragraph (1) are in keeping with, and are not detrimental to, the energy security of the United States.
(b) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) Drainage.—The term ‘‘drainage’’ means the migration of hydrocarbons, inert gases (other than helium), or associated resources from the Federal land caused by production from another well.

(2) Federal land.—The term ‘‘Federal land’’ means—

(A) public land; and

(B) National Forest System land.

(3) Land use plan.—The term ‘‘land use plan’’ means—

(A) a land use plan required under sections 201 and 202 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1711, 1712), including the national land use plan (as defined in section 1601.5–5 of title 43, Code of Federal Regulations (or successor regulations)); and

(B) a land and resource management plan developed by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to section 6 of the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 (16 U.S.C. 1604).

(5) Reasonably foreseeable development scenario.—The term ‘‘reasonably foreseeable development scenario’’ means—

(i) a reasonable foreseeable development scenario issued on or after the date on which the Federal land is offered for leasing.

(ii) the lease is issued for the purpose of preventing drainage from the adjacent land; or

(iii) the Federal land is adjacent to land currently producing oil or gas; and

(iv) the lease is issued for the purpose of preventing drainage from the adjacent land.

(6) Secretary.—The term ‘‘Secretary’’ means the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Director of the Bureau of Land Management.

(c) Federal land covered by reasonably foreseeable development scenario issued before date of enactment.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—With respect to Federal land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) or the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) that is covered by a reasonably foreseeable development scenario issued before the date of enactment of this Act, except as provided in paragraph (2), the Secretary shall not offer the Federal land for lease until the reasonably foreseeable development scenario for that land includes an assessment of the oil and gas development potential of that land that specifically identifies the potential for all acres subject to decisional availability for leasing.

(2) EXCEPTION FOR DRAINAGE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may offer for lease any Federal land described in paragraph (1) without meeting the requirements of that paragraph if—

(i) the Federal land is adjacent to land currently producing oil or gas; and

(ii) the lease is issued for the purpose of preventing drainage from the adjacent land.

(B) REQUIREMENT.—A lease issued under subparagraph (A) shall be consistent with the applicable land use plan and all other applicable law.

(d) Federal land not covered by current reasonably foreseeable development scenario.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), if the Secretary determines that Federal land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) or the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) is not covered by a reasonably foreseeable development scenario issued in accordance with this paragraph or subsection (c)(1), the Secretary, in cooperation with the Secretaries of Agriculture and the Interior with respect to National Forest System land, shall complete such a reasonably foreseeable development scenario.

(B) REQUIREMENTS.—Any reasonably foreseeable development scenario issued on or after the date of enactment of this Act shall—

(I) assess and designate all Federal land covered by the reasonably foreseeable development scenario as having low, moderate, high, or very high potential for development of oil and gas resources; and

(II) publish a map depicting the covered Federal land and the development potential for that Federal land designated under clause (I).

(C) FACTORS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—In considering a reasonably foreseeable development scenario for Federal land, the Secretary shall take into consideration—

(I) past and present exploration and development activity in the vicinity, including historic trends;

(II) for each lease in the vicinity, the number, location, and types of wells drilled, the representative depth of wells drilled, the number and location of dry holes, the success ratio for wells drilled, and the location, production history, and life expectancy of producing fields;

(III) geological, geophysical, and geochemical information for the Federal land, including information from the United States Geological Survey, the Department of Energy, State agencies, industry, professional societies, academic sources, and the public;

(IV) structural and stratigraphic data and information relating to basins, fields, and plays on the Federal land; and

(V) data and information on the likelihood that economically recoverable oil and gas resources are present in a given area, including information submitted by experts and the public.

(ii) EXPLANATION OF FACTORS.—The Secretary shall document how each factor described in clause (I) and in cooperation with the Secretary of Agriculture with respect to National Forest System land, shall complete such a reasonably foreseeable development scenario covering Federal land.

(B) PROHIBITION.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), the Secretary shall not offer for lease any Federal land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) or the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) unless the Secretary has updated the reasonably foreseeable development scenario covering that Federal land in accordance with subparagraph (A).

(3) EXCEPTION FOR DRAINAGE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may offer for lease any Federal land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) or the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) without completing or updating a reasonably foreseeable development scenario for that Federal land under paragraph (1) or (2), as applicable, if—

(i) the Federal land is adjacent to land currently producing oil or gas; and

(ii) the lease is issued for the purpose of preventing drainage from the adjacent land.

(B) REQUIREMENT.—A lease issued under subparagraph (A) shall be consistent with the applicable land use plan and all other applicable law.

(e) Land having no or low development potential under a reasonably foreseeable development scenario.—

(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraphs (1) and (2), the Secretary shall not offer for lease any Federal land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) or the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351 et seq.) if the Federal land is designated in the applicable reasonably foreseeable development scenario as having low or no potential for development of oil or gas resources.

(2) Exception for drainage.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may offer for lease any Federal land described in paragraph (1) if—

(i) the Federal land is adjacent to land currently producing oil or gas; and

(ii) the lease is issued for the purpose of preventing drainage from the adjacent land.

(B) REQUIREMENT.—A lease issued under subparagraph (A) shall be consistent with the applicable land use plan and all other applicable law.

(f) Variance process.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—An entity seeking to lease Federal land described in paragraph (1) for purposes other than the purpose described in paragraph (2)(A)(i)(II) may submit a variance request to the Secretary for a variance under which the applicant shall bear the full burden of establishing and documenting that providing a variance for the Federal land would—

(i) be consistent with decisions contained in the land use plan in effect for the Federal land; and

(ii) affect only areas designated for multiple uses; and

(iii) where impacts to those values arising from the variance can be resolved.
(iii) optimize the use of existing infrastructure and avoid duplication of infrastructure and disruption of public land;
(iv) minimize adverse impacts on fish and wildlife migration and movement corridors in nearby areas;
(v) cause no significant effects on species listed as endangered species or threatened species under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.), or the habitats of those species;
(vi) cause nocumulative impacts on air or water quality or on a matter of concern that cannot be avoided or minimized;
(vii) cause no adverse impacts on:
(1) units of the National Park System;
(2) units of the National Wildlife Refuge System;
(3) areas of critical environmental concern;
(IV) components of the National Wildlife Refuge System; or
(V) other special status areas, including State and local parks and wildlife and recreation areas; and (viii) allow the Federal land to be developed in the public interest.

(2) OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC PARTICIPATION.—

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:
(i) IN GENERAL.—On receipt of an application for a variance under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall:
(I) promptly notify the public that the application has been received; and
(II) provide the public with an opportunity to review and comment on the application, including any supporting documents, for a period of not less than 60 days.

(b) RESPONSE.—The Secretary shall consider and respond in writing to any public comments received under clause (i)(II) before making a determination under subparagraph (C)(i).

(C) GRANTING OF VARIANCE.—The Secretary may grant a variance for Federal land described in paragraph (1) pursuant to an application submitted under subparagraph (A), and offer that Federal land for lease, if—

(i) the Secretary publishes in the Federal Register a determination that—

(A) the requirements under section 202(c) of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1712(c)) that prior to offering for lease any public land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mining Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), the Secretary of the Interior issued to the applicant a determination that—

(B) the requirements of subsections (b) and (e) of section 6 of the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 (16 U.S.C. 1604-4c) that prior to leasing any National Forest System land otherwise available for leasing of oil and gas resources pursuant to the Mining Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) or the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351 et seq.), the Secretary shall consider and weigh the multiple use and sustained yield values of the public land; and

(C) any other applicable requirements of law.

(ii) NEPA.—Nothing in this section modifies, alters, or impacts the applicability of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) to the leasing of Federal land by the Secretary.

SEC. 1601. Ms. CORTEZ MASTO submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill H.R. 1957, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modernize and improve the Internal Revenue Service, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, add the following:

SEC. 1601. WITHDRAWAL OF CERTAIN NATIONAL FOREST SYSTEM LAND.

(a) DEFINITION OF MAP.—In this section, the term "Map" means the Forest Service map entitled "S. 258 Ruby Mountains Protective Act" and dated December 5, 2019.

(b) WITHDRAWAL.—Subject to valid existing rights, the approximately 309,272 acres of Federal land and interests in the land located in the Ruby Mountains subdistrict of the Humboldt-Toiyabe National Forest within the area depicted on the Map as "National Forest System Lands" are withdrawn from all forms of operation under the mineral leasing laws.

(c) APPLICATION.—Any land or interest in the National Forest System Lands subject to subsection (b) is available for use as a national cemetery in accordance with title 36, United States Code.

SEC. 1602. Ms. CORTEZ MASTO submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill H.R. 1957, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modernize and improve the Internal Revenue Service, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, add the following:

SEC. 1602. TRANSFER AND WITHDRAWAL OF BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT LAND FOR USE AS A NATIONAL CEMETERY.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) FEDERAL LAND.—The term "Federal land" means the approximately 15 acres of Bureau of Land Management land in Elko, Nevada, that is more particularly described as NE¼ SW¼ NW¼, N½SE¼ SW¼ NW¼, sec. 8, T. 34 N., R. 55 E., of the Mount Diablo Meridian, as depicted on the map prepared by the Bureau of Land Management, entitled "Proposed National Cemetery-Elko Nevada," and dated September 9, 2006.

(2) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Interior.

(b) TRANSFER AND WITHDRAWAL OF BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT LAND FOR USE AS A NATIONAL CEMETERY.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to valid existing rights, the Secretary shall transfer the Federal land to the Secretary for use as a national cemetery in accordance with chapter 24 of title 38, United States Code.

(ii) EFFECT.—A legal description published under subparagraph (A) shall have the same force and effect as if included in this section, except that the Secretary may correct any clerical or typographical errors in the legal description.

(c) AVAILABILITY.—Copies of the legal description published under subparagraph (A) shall be available for public inspection in the appropriate offices of—

(1) the Bureau of Land Management; and
(2) the National Cemetery Administration.

(3) COSTS.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall reimburse the Secretary for the costs incurred by the Secretary in carrying out this paragraph, including the costs of any surveys and other reasonable costs.

SEC. 1603. Ms. CORTEZ MASTO submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill H.R. 1957, to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modernize and improve the Internal Revenue Service, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end, add the following:

(A) water management infrastructure in existence on the date of enactment of this Act; or
(B) any future infrastructure necessary for the development or exercise of water rights decreed before the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) APPLICABLE LAW.—Section 3(e) of the James Peak Wilderness and Protection Area Act (Public Law 107–216; 116 Stat. 1058) shall apply to the Recreation Management Area.
(i) REGIONS OF THE WILDLIFE CONSERVATION AREA.—Nothing in this section precludes the Secretary from authorizing, in accordance with applicable laws (including regulations), the use of Federal land within the Recreation Management Area for—
(1) a regional transportation project, including—
(A) highway widening or realignment; and
(B) construction of multimodal transportation systems; or
(2) any infrastructure, activity, or safety measure associated with the implementation or use of a facility constructed under paragraph (1).

(ii) THERAPETAL TRANSFRED CONSERVATION AREA.—Except as provided in clause (i), the use of motorized vehicles or mechanized transport for administrative purposes;
(III) constructing temporary roads or permitting the use of motorized vehicles or mechanized transport to carry out pre- or post-fire watershed protection projects;
(III) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles or mechanized transport to carry out activities described in subsection (d) or (e); or
(IV) responding to an emergency.

(g) APPLICABLE LAW.—Nothing in this section affects the designation of the Federal land within the Recreation Management Area for purposes of—
(1) section 138 of title 23, United States Code; or
(2) section 303 of title 49, United States Code.

(h) PERMITS.—Nothing in this section alters or limits—
(1) any permit held by a ski area or other entity; or
(2) the acceptance, review, or implementation of associated activities or facilities proposed or authorized by law or permit outside the boundaries of the Recreation Management Area.

SEC. 215. PORCUPINE GULCH WILDLIFE CONSERVATION AREA.
(a) DESIGNATION.—Subject to valid existing rights, the approximately 8,297 acres of Federal land located in the White River National Forest, as generally depicted as "Proposed Porcupine Gulch Wildlife Conservation Area" on the map entitled "Porcupine Gulch Wildlife Conservation Area Proposal" and dated June 24, 2019, are designated as the "Porcupine Gulch Wildlife Conservation Area".

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of the Wildlife Conservation Area, consistent with—
(1) to conserve and protect a wildlife migration corridor over Interstate 70; and
(2) to conserve, protect, and enhance for the benefit and enjoyment of present and future generations the wildlife, scenic, roadless, watershed, and ecological resources of the Wildlife Conservation Area.

(c) MANAGEMENT.—
(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall manage the Wildlife Conservation Area—
(A) in a manner that conserves, protects, and enhances the purposes described in subsection (b); and
(B) in accordance with—
(i) the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 (16 U.S.C. 1600 et seq.);
(ii) any other applicable laws (including regulations); and
(iii) this section.

(ii) USES.—
(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall only allow such uses of the Wildlife Conservation Area as the Secretary determines would further the purposes described in subsection (b).

(iii) MECHANIZED TRANSPORT.—Nothing in this section precludes the Secretary from authorizing, in accordance with applicable laws (including regulations), the use or leasing of Federal land within the Wildlife Conservation Area for purposes of—
(1) a regional transportation project, including—
(A) highway widening or realignment; and
(B) construction of multimodal transportation systems; or
(2) any infrastructure, activity, or safety measure associated with the implementation or use of a facility constructed under paragraph (1).

(iv) APPLICABLE LAW.—Nothing in this section affects the designation of the Federal land within the Wildlife Conservation Area for purposes of—
(1) section 138 of title 23, United States Code; or
(2) section 303 of title 49, United States Code.

(v) WATER.—Section 3(e) of the James Peak Wilderness and Protection Area Act (Public Law 107–216; 116 Stat. 1058) shall apply to the Wildlife Conservation Area.

SEC. 216. WILLIAMS FORK MOUNTAINS WILDLIFE CONSERVATION AREA.
(a) DESIGNATION.—Subject to valid existing rights, respectively 3,528 acres of Federal land in the White River National Forest in the State, as generally depicted as "Proposed Williams Fork Mountains Wildlife Conservation Area" on the map entitled "Williams Fork Mountains Proposal" and dated June 24, 2019, are designated as the "Williams Fork Mountains Wildlife Conservation Area".

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of the Wildlife Conservation Area are to conserve, protect, and enhance for the benefit and enjoyment of present and future generations the wildlife, scenic, roadless, watershed, recreational, and ecological resources of the Wildlife Conservation Area.

(c) MANAGEMENT.—
(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall manage the Wildlife Conservation Area—
(A) in a manner that conserves, protects, and enhances the purposes described in subsection (b); and
(B) in accordance with—
(i) the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 (16 U.S.C. 1600 et seq.);
(ii) any other applicable laws (including regulations); and
(iii) this section.

(ii) USES.—
(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in clause (i), the use of motorized vehicles in the Wildlife Conservation Area shall be limited to designated roads and trails.

(ii) NEW OR TEMPORARY ROADS.—Except as provided in clause (iii), no new or temporary road shall be constructed in the Wildlife Conservation Area.

(iii) EXCEPTIONS.—Nothing in clause (i) or (ii) prevents the Secretary from—
(1) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles for administrative purposes;
(2) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles to carry out activities described in subsection (d) or (e); or
(3) responding to an emergency.

(iv) BICYCLES.—The use of bicycles in the Wildlife Conservation Area shall be limited to designated roads and trails.

(v) COMMERCIAL TIMBER.—
(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), no project shall be carried out in the Wildlife Conservation Area for the purpose of harvesting commercial timber.

(ii) LIMITATION.—Nothing in clause (i) prevents the Secretary from harvesting or selling a merchantable product that is a byproduct of an activity authorized under this section.

(vi) FIRE, INSECTS, AND DISEASES.—The Secretary may carry out any activity, in accordance with applicable laws (including regulations), that the Secretary determines to be necessary to prevent, control, or mitigate fire, insects, or disease in the Wildlife Conservation Area.

(vii) REGIONAL TRANSPORTATION PROJECTS.—
(1) A regional transportation project, including—
(A) highway widening or realignment; and
(B) construction of multimodal transportation systems;

(2) any infrastructure, activity, or safety measure associated with the implementation or use of a facility constructed under paragraph (1).

(3) APPLICABLE LAW.—Nothing in this section affects the designation of the Federal land within the Wildlife Conservation Area for purposes of—

(iv) FIRE, INSECTS, AND DISEASES.—The Secretary may carry out any activity, in accordance with applicable laws (including regulations), that the Secretary determines to be necessary to prevent, control, or mitigate fire, insects, or disease in the Wildlife Conservation Area.

(iii) EXCEPTIONS.—Nothing in clause (i) or (ii) prevents the Secretary from—
(1) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles for administrative purposes;
(2) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles to carry out activities described in subsection (d) or (e); or
(3) responding to an emergency.

(vii) COMMERCIAL TIMBER.—
(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), no project shall be carried out in the Wildlife Conservation Area for the purpose of harvesting commercial timber.

(ii) LIMITATION.—Nothing in clause (i) prevents the Secretary from harvesting or selling a merchantable product that is a byproduct of an activity authorized under this section.

(viii) GRAZING.—The laws (including regulations) and policies followed by the Secretary in issuing and administering grazing permits or leases on land under the jurisdiction of the Secretary shall continue to apply with regard to the land in the Wilderness Conservation Area.

(ix) COMMERCIAL TIMBER.—Except as provided in clause (iii), no new or temporary road shall be constructed in the Wildlife Conservation Area.

(x) COMMERCIAL TIMBER.—The Secretary shall only authorize the use of motorized vehicles in the Wildlife Conservation Area for the purpose of harvesting commercial timber.

(xi) COMMERCIAL TIMBER.—Nothing in this section precludes the Secretary from—
(1) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles for administrative purposes;
(2) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles to carry out activities described in subsection (d) or (e); or
(3) responding to an emergency.

(xii) CATEGORIES.—Nothing in clause (i) or (ii) prevents the Secretary from—
(1) authorizing the use of motorized vehicles for administrative purposes;

(a) WATER.—Section 3(e) of the James Peak Wilderness and Protection Area Act (Public Law 107–216; 116 Stat. 1058) shall apply to the Wildlife Conservation Area.
SEC. 217. CAMP HALE NATIONAL HISTORIC LANDSCAPE.

(a) DESIGNATION.—Subject to valid existing rights, the approximately 28,676 acres of Federal land in the White River National Forest in the State of Colorado, as generally depicted as "Proposed Camp Hale National Historic Landscape" on the map entitled "Camp Hale National Historic Landscape Proposal" and dated 2009, are designated the "Camp Hale National Historic Landscape".

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of the Historic Landscape are—

(1) to provide for—

(A) the interpretation of historic events, activities, structures, and artifacts of the Historic Landscape, including with respect to the role of the Historic Landscape in local, national, and world history;

(B) the historic preservation of the Historic Landscape, consistent with—

(i) the designation of the Historic Landscape as a national historic site; and

(ii) the other purposes of the Historic Landscape;

(C) additional opportunities, with an emphasis on the activities related to the historic use of the Historic Landscape, including skiing, snowshoeing, snowmobiling, hiking, horseback riding, climbing, other road and trail-based activities, and other outdoor activities; and

(D) the continued environmental remediation and removal of unexploded ordnance at the Camp Hale Formerly Used Defense Site and the Camp Hale historic cantonment area; and

(2) to conserve, protect, restore, and enhance for the benefit and enjoyment of present and future generations the scenic, watershed, and ecological resources of the Historic Landscape.

(c) MANAGEMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall manage the Historic Landscape in accordance with—

(A) the purposes of the Historic Landscape described in subsection (b); and

(B) any other applicable laws (including regulations).

(2) MANAGEMENT PLAN.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall prepare a management plan for the Historic Landscape.

(B) CONTENTS.—The management plan prepared under subparagraph (A) shall include plans for—

(i) improving the interpretation of historic events, activities, structures, and artifacts of the Historic Landscape, including with respect to the role of the Historic Landscape in local, national, and world history;

(ii) conducting historic preservation and veteran outreach and engagement activities;

(iii) managing recreational opportunities, including the use and stewardship of—

(I) the road and trail systems; and

(II) dispersed recreation resources;

(iv) the conservation, protection, restoration, or enhancement of the scenic, watershed, and ecological resources of the Historic Landscape, including conducting the restoration and enhancement project under subsection (d); and

(v) environmental remediation and, consistent with subsection (e)(2), the removal of unexploded ordnance.

(d) CAMP HALE RESTORATION AND ENHANCEMENT PROJECT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall conduct a restoration and enhancement project in the Historic Landscape—

(A) to improve aquatic, riparian, and wetland conditions on the Eagle River and tributaries of the Eagle River;

(B) to maintain or improve recreation and interpretive opportunities and facilities; and

(C) to conserve historic values in the Camp Hale area.

(2) COORDINATION.—In carrying out the project described in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall coordinate with—

(A) the Corps of Engineers;

(B) the Camp Hale–Eagle River Headwaters Collaborative;

(C) the National Forest Foundation;

(D) the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment;

(E) the Colorado State Historic Preservation Office; and

(F) units of local government; and

(G) other interested organizations and members of the public.

(3) ENVIRONMENTAL REMEDIATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may remove unexploded ordinance (as defined in section 101(e) of title 10, United States Code) from the Historic Landscape, as the Secretary of the Army determines to be appropriate in accordance with applicable laws; or

(2) REMOVAL OF UNEXPLODED ORDNANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may remove unexploded ordinance under subsection (c)(3), the Secretary of the Army may remove the unexploded ordinance in accordance with—

(i) the program for environmental restoration of formerly used defense sites under section 2701 of title 10, United States Code; and

(ii) any other applicable provision of law (including regulations).

(2) ACTION ON RECEIPT OF NOTICE.—On receipt from the Secretary of a notification of unexploded ordinance under subsection (c)(3), the Secretary of the Army may remove the unexploded ordinance in accordance with—

(A) the program for environmental restoration of formerly used defense sites under section 2701 of title 10, United States Code;

(B) the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.); and

(C) any other applicable provision of law (including regulations).

(4) INTERAGENCY AGREEMENT.—The Secretary and the Secretary of the Army shall enter into an agreement—

(A) to specify—

(i) the activities of the Secretary relating to the management of the Historic Landscape; and

(ii) the activities of the Secretary relating to environmental remediation and the removal of unexploded ordnance in accordance with subsection (e) and other applicable laws (including regulations); and

(B) to require the Secretary to provide to the Secretary of the Army not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act and periodically thereafter, as appropriate, a management plan for the Historic Landscape for purposes of the removal activities described in subsection (e).

(e) EFFECT.—Nothing in this section—

(1) affects the jurisdiction of the State over any water law, water right, or adjudication or administration relating to any water resource;

(2) affects any water right in existence on or after the date of enactment of this Act, or the exercise of such a water right, including—

(A) a water right under an interstate water compact (including full development of any apportionment made in accordance with such a compact); and

(B) a water right decreed within, above, or below, or through the Historic Landscape;

(3) prevents the Secretary from closing the Historic Landscape, including conducting the restoration and enhancement project described in subsection (d); and

(4) alters or limits—

(A) a permit held by a ski area;

(B) the implementation of activities governed by a ski area permit; or

(C) the authority of the Secretary to modify or expand an existing ski area permit;

(5) prevents the Secretary from clearing portions of the Historic Landscape for public safety, environmental remediation, or other use in accordance with applicable laws; or

(6) affects—

(A) any special use permit in effect on the date of enactment of this Act; or

(B) the renewal of a permit described in subparagraph (A).

(f) FUNDING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established in the general fund of the Treasury a special account, to be known as the "Camp Hale Historic Preservation and Restoration Fund";

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Camp Hale Historic Preservation and Restoration Fund $10,000,000, to be available to the Secretary until expended, for activities relating to historic interpretation, preservation, and restoration carried out in and around the Historic Landscape.

(3) DESIGNATION OF OVERLOOK.—The interagency site located beside U. S. Route 24 in the State, at 39°43′N 106°32′W, is designated as the "Sandy Treat Overlook".

SEC. 218. WHITE RIVER NATIONAL FOREST BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The boundary of the White River National Forest is modified to include the approximately 120 acres comprised of the SW1⁄4, the SE1⁄4, and the NE1⁄4 of section 1, T. 12 S., R. 80 W., 6th Principal Meridian, in Summit County in the State, at 39°43′1″N 106°32′23″W, as designated by an individual or entity holding any other applicable provision of law (including regulations).

(b) LAND AND WATER CONSERVATION FUND.—For purposes of section 200306 of title 51, United States Code, the boundaries of the White River National Forest, as modified by subsection (a), shall be considered to be the boundaries of the White River National Forest as in existence on January 1, 1965. and the associated property located within Rocky Mountain National Park in Grand County in the State.

(b) BOUNDARY ADJUSTMENT.—Section 192(b)(2) of the Omnibus Public Land Management Act of 2009 (Public Law 111–11; 123 Stat. 1070) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(b) No Buffer Zones. —

(1) IN GENERAL.—Nothing in this subtitle or an amendment made by this subtitle establishes a protective perimeter or buffer zone around—

(A) a covered area;

(B) a wilderness area or potential wilderness area designated by section 213;

(C) a Wilderness Management Area;

(D) a Wildlife Conservation Area; or

(E) the Historic Landscape.

(2) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—The fact that a nonwilderness activity or use on land outside of a covered area can be seen or heard from within the covered area shall not preclude the activity or use outside the boundary of the covered area.

(c) MAPS AND LEGAL DESCRIPTIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—As soon as practicable after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall file maps and legal descriptions of each area described in subsection (b)(1) with—

(A) the Committee on Natural Resources of the House of Representatives; and

(B) the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate.

(2) FORCE OF LAW.—Each map and legal description filed under paragraph (1) shall have the same force and effect as if included in this subtitle, except that the Secretary may correct typographical errors in the maps and legal descriptions.

(3) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—Each map and legal description filed under paragraph (1) shall be available for public inspection in the appropriate offices of the Forest Service.

(d) ACQUISITION OF LAND.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may acquire any land or interest in land within the boundaries of an area described in subsection (b)(1) only through exchange, donation, or purchase for public use.

(2) MANAGEMENT.—Any land or interest in land acquired under paragraph (1) shall be incorporated into, and administered as a part of, the Wilderness Management Area, Recreation Management Area, Wildlife Conservation Area, or Historic Landscape, as applicable, in which the land or interest in land is located.

(e) SUBJECT TO VALID RIGHTS.—In existence on the date of enactment of this Act, the areas described in subsection (b)(1) are withdrawn from—

(1) entry, appropriation, and disposal under the public land laws;

(2) location, entry, and patent under mining laws; and

(3) the leasing of the mineral leasing, mineral materials, and geothermal leasing laws.

(f) MILITARY OVERFLIGHTS.—Nothing in this subtitle or an amendment made by this subtitle, including an amendment made by this subtitle, including military overflights that can be seen, heard, or detected within such an area;

(2) flight testing or evaluation over an area described in paragraph (1); and

(3) the use or establishment of—

(A) any new unit of special use airspace over an area described in paragraph (1); or

(B) any training or transportation over such an area.

(g) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that military aviation training on Federal public land in the State, including the training conducted at the High-Altitude Army National Guard Aviation Training Site, is inconsistent with the national security of the United States and the readiness of the Armed Forces.

Sneffels Wilderness" and dated September 18, 2018, to be known as the 'McKenna Peak Wilderness'."

SEC. 223. SPECIAL MANAGEMENT AREAS.

(a) DESIGNSATION.—

(1) SHEEP MOUNTAIN SPECIAL MANAGEMENT AREA.—The Federal land in the Grand Mesa, Uncompahgre, and Gunnison and San Juan National Forests in the State comprising approximately 21,663 acres, as generally depicted on the map entitled "Proposed Sheep Mountain Special Management Area" and dated September 19, 2018, is designated as the "Sheep Mountain Special Management Area".

(2) LIBERTY BELL EAST SPECIAL MANAGEMENT AREA.—The Federal land in the Grand Mesa, Uncompahgre, and Gunnison National Forests in the State comprising approximately 792 acres, as generally depicted on the map entitled "Proposed Liberty Bell and Last Dollar Additions to the Mt. Sneffels Wilderness, Liberty Bell East Special Management Area" and dated September 6, 2018, is designated as the "Liberty Bell East Special Management Area".

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the Special Management Areas is to conserve and protect the benefit and enjoyment of present and future generations the geological, cultural, paleontological, natural, scientific, recreational, wilderness, wildlife, riparian, historical, educational, and scenic resources of the Special Management Areas.

(c) MANAGEMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall manage the Special Management Areas in a manner that—

(A) conserves, protects, and enhances the resources and values of the Special Management Areas described in subsection (b);

(B) subject to paragraph (3), maintains or improves the wilderness character of the Special Management Areas and the suitability of the Special Management Areas for potential inclusion in the National Wilderness Preservation System; and

(C) is in accordance with—

(i) the National Forest Management Act of 1976 (16 U.S.C. 1600 et seq.);

(ii) this subtitle; and

(iii) any other applicable laws.

(2) PROHIBITIONS.—The following shall be prohibited in the Special Management Areas:

(A) Permanent roads.

(B) Except as necessary to meet the minimum requirements for the administration of the Federal land, to provide access for abandoned mine cleanup, and to protect public health and safety—

(i) the use of motor vehicles, motorized equipment, or mechanical transport (other than as provided in paragraph (3)); and

(ii) any other applicable laws.

(C) AUTHORIZED ACTIVITIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may allow any activities (including helicopter access for research and maintenance) and authorize any use or activity as necessary to meet the minimum requirements for the administration of the Federal land and to protect public health and safety.

(B) PERMITTING.—The designation of the Special Management Areas by subsection (a) shall not affect the issuance of permits relating to the activities covered under subparagraph (A) after the date of enactment of this Act.

(C) BICYCLES.—The Secretary may permit the use of bicycles in—

(i) the portion of the Sheep Mountain Special Management Area identified as "Ophir Valley Area" on the map entitled "Proposed Sheep Mountain Special Management Area" and dated September 19, 2018; and

(ii) the portion of the Liberty Bell East Special Management Area identified as "Liberty Bell Corridor" on the map entitled "Proposed Liberty Bell East Special Management Area" and dated September 6, 2018.
(d) APPLICABLE LAW.—Water and water rights in the Special Management Areas shall be administered in accordance with section 8 of the Colorado Wilderness Act of 1976 (30 U.S.C. 1782(c)); and section 2(a) of the Colorado Wilderness Act (16 U.S.C. 1133(d)(1)), the Secretary with jurisdiction over a wilderness area designated by paragraphs (27) through (29) of section 2(a) of the Colorado Wilderness Act of 1993 (16 U.S.C. 1132 note; Public Law 103-77) (as added by section 222) and the Special Management Areas with—

(A) the Committee on Natural Resources of the House of Representatives; and

(B) the Office of Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate.

(2) FORCE OF LAW.—Each map and legal description filed under paragraph (1) shall have the same force and effect as if included in this subtitle, except that the Secretary or the Secretary of the Interior, as appropriate, may correct any typographical errors in the map or legal description.

(3) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—Each map and legal description filed under paragraph (1) shall be on file and available for public inspection in the appropriate offices of the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service.

(d) ACQUISITION OF LAND.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Interior, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Forest Service with the concurrence of the Director of the National Park Service, may acquire any land or interest in land within the boundaries of a Special Management Area or the wilderness described under paragraphs (27) through (29) of section 2(a) of the Colorado Wilderness Act of 1993 (16 U.S.C. 1132 note; Public Law 103-77) (as added by section 222) only through exchange, donation, or purchase from a willing seller.

(2) MANAGEMENT.—Any land or interest in land acquired under paragraph (1) shall be incorporated into, and administered as a part of, the Special Management Area in which the land or interest in land is located.

(e) GRAZING.—The grazing of livestock on covered land, if established before the date of enactment of this Act, shall be permitted to continue subject to such reasonable regulations as are considered necessary by the Secretary with jurisdiction over the covered land, in accordance with—

(1) section 4(d)(4) of the Wilderness Act (16 U.S.C. 1135a(d)(4)); and

(2) the applicable guidelines set forth in Appendix A of the report of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs of the House of Representatives accompanying H.R. 2570 of the 106th Congress (101st Cong., 2nd Sess. 101-495) or H.R. 5487 of the 96th Congress (H. Rept. 96-617).

(f) FIRE, INSECTS, AND DISEASES.—In accordance with section 4(d)(1) of the Wilderness Act (16 U.S.C. 1135a(d)(1)), the Secretary with jurisdiction over a wilderness area designated by paragraphs (27) through (29) of section 2(a) of the Colorado Wilderness Act of 1993 (16 U.S.C. 1132 note; Public Law 103-77) (as added by section 222) may carry out any activity in the wilderness area that the Secretary determines to be necessary for the protection of fish and wildlife and plants and for the control of fire, insects, and diseases, subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(g) WITHDRAWAL.—Subject to valid rights in existence on the date of enactment of this Act, the covered land and the approximately 6,590 acres generally depicted on the map entitled “Proposed Natura Canyon Mineral Withdrawal Area” and dated September 6, 2018, is withdrawn from—

(1) entry, appropriation, and disposal under the public land laws;

(2) location, entry, and patent under mining laws; and

(3) operation of the mineral leasing, mineral materials, and geothermal leasing laws.

Subtitle C—Wolf Creek Divide

SEC. 231. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this subtitle are—

(1) subject to valid existing rights, to withdraw certain Federal land in the Thompson Divide area from mineral and other disposal laws; and

(2) to promote the capture of fugitive methane emissions that would otherwise be emitted into the atmosphere.

(A) to reduce methane gas emissions; and

(B) to provide—

(i) new renewable electricity supplies and other beneficial uses of fugitive methane emissions; and

(ii) increased royalties for taxpayers.

SEC. 232. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle—

(1) FUGITIVE METHANE EMISSIONS.—The term “fugitive methane emissions” means methane gas from the Federal land in Garfield, Gunnison, Delta, or Pitkin County in the State, as generally depicted on the pilot program map as “Fugitive Coal Mine Methane Use Pilot Program Area”, that would leak or be vented into the atmosphere from an active, inactive, or abandoned underground coal mine.

(2) PILOT PROGRAM.—The term “pilot program” means the Greater Thompson Divide Fugitive Coal Mine Methane Use Pilot Program established by section 234(a)(1).

(3) PILOT PROGRAM MAP.—The term “pilot program map” means the map entitled Greater Thompson Divide Fugitive Coal Mine Methane Use Pilot Program Area and dated June 17, 2019.

(4) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of the Interior.

(5) THOMPSON DIVIDE LEASE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term “Thompson Divide lease” means any oil or gas lease in effect on the date of enactment of this Act within the Thompson Divide Withdrawal and Protection Area.

(B) EXCLUSIONS.—The term “Thompson Divide lease” does not include any oil or gas lease that—

(i) is associated with a Wolf Creek Storage Field development right; or

(ii) before the date of enactment of this Act, has expired, been cancelled, or otherwise terminated.

(6) THOMPSON DIVIDE MAP.—The term “Thompson Divide map” means the map entitled “Greater Thompson Divide Area Map” and dated June 13, 2018.

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Great American Outdoors Act.”

SEC. 2. NATIONAL PARKS AND PUBLIC LAND LEGACY RESTORATION FUND.

(a) In General.—Subtitle II of title 54, United States Code, is amended by inserting after chapter 2002 the following:

"CHAPTER 2004—NATIONAL PARKS AND PUBLIC LAND LEGACY RESTORATION FUND"

"§ 200401. Definitions.

"(a) In general.—The term ‘asset’ means any real property, including any physical structure or grouping of structures, landscape, trail, or other tangible property, that—

"(A) is owned or operated by the Secretary of Agriculture; (B) is owned by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service; and

"(C) is owned by the Bureau of Land Management.

"(b) The term ‘covered agency’ means—

"(A) the Service; (B) the United States Fish and Wildlife Service; (C) the Forest Service; (D) the Bureau of Land Management; and

"(E) the Bureau of Indian Education.

"(c) The term ‘Fund’ means the National Parks and Public Land Legacy Restoration Fund established by section 200402.

"(d) Project.—The term ‘project’ means any activity to reduce or eliminate deferred maintenance of an asset, which may include resolving directly related infrastructure deficiencies of the asset that would not by itself be classified as deferred maintenance.

(a) Establishment.—There is established in the Treasury of the United States a Fund to be known as the ‘National Parks and Public Land Legacy Restoration Fund’.

(b) Deposits.—

"(1) General.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), for each of fiscal years 2021 through 2025, there shall be deposited in the Fund an amount equal to 50 percent of all energy development revenues due and payable to the United States from oil, gas, coal, or alternative or renewable energy development on Federal lands and water credited to the Fund or declared in the absence of a bond, lien, mortgage, or other security, as the case may be, and held and deposited in the Fund; and

"(2) Maximum amount.—The amount deposited in the Fund under paragraph (1) shall not exceed $1,900,000,000 for any fiscal year.

(c) Plan.—Any deferred maintenance project that is to be funded from the Fund shall be subject to an approved plan for such project that includes a detailed description of the project, the estimated expenditures from the Fund that includes a detailed description of the project, and the estimated expenditures from the Fund that includes a detailed description of the project.

(d) Use of funds.—The Secretary may request the Secretary of the Treasury to invest amounts in the Fund for each fiscal year shall be used to—

"(1) for land acquisition; (2) to supplement discretionary funding made available for annually recurring facility operation and maintenance, and construction needs; or

"(3) for bonuses to employees of the Federal Government that are carrying out this section.

(e) Submission of Priority List of Projects to Congress.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Energy and Natural Resources and Appropriations of the House of Representatives a list of projects to be funded for fiscal year 2022; and

"(4) are identified by the Secretary and the Secretary of Agriculture as priority deferred maintenance projects; and

"(5) as of the date of submission of the list, are ready to be implemented.

(f) Submission of Annual List of Projects to Congress.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Energy and Natural Resources and Appropriations of the House of Representatives a list of projects to be funded for fiscal year 2023; and

"(g) Submission of Priority List of Projects to Congress.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Energy and Natural Resources and Appropriations of the House of Representatives a list of projects to be funded for fiscal year 2024; and

"(h) Submission of Annual List of Projects to Congress.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Energy and Natural Resources and Appropriations of the House of Representatives a list of projects to be funded for fiscal year 2025; and

"(i) Alternate Allocation.—

"(1) General.—Appropriations Acts may provide for alternative allocation of amounts made available under subsection (c) in accordance with the allocations to covered agencies under subsection (e)(1).

"(2) Alternate Allocation.—If Congress has not enacted legislation establishing alternate allocations by the date on which an Act making full-year appropriations for the Department of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies for the applicable fiscal year is enacted, amounts made available under subsection (c) shall be allocated by the President.

"(B) Insufficient Alternate Allocation.—If Congress has not enacted legislation establishing alternate allocations by the date on which an Act making full-year appropriations for the Department of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies or the applicable fiscal year is enacted, amounts made available under subsection (c) that are less than the amount appropriated under that subsection, the difference between the amount appropriated and the alternate allocation shall be allocated by the President.

"(j) Public Donations.—

"(1) General.—The Secretary and the Secretary of Agriculture may accept public cash or in-kind donations that advance efforts—

"(A) to reduce the deferred maintenance backlog; and

"(B) to encourage relevant public-private partnerships.

"(2) Credits to Fund.—Any cash donations accepted under paragraph (1) shall be—

"(A) credited to, and form a part of, the Fund; and

"(B) treated as a credit to the Fund.
“(B) allocated to the covered agency for which the donation was made.

“(3) OTHER ALLOCATIONS.—Any donations allocated to a covered agency under paragraph (1) or (2) shall be made available for expenditure for activities under subsection (a) to a covered agency independently of the allocations under subsection (e)(1).

“(k) REQUIRED CONSIDERATION FOR ACCESSIBILITY.—Any amounts made available from the Fund, the Secretary and the Secretary of Agriculture shall incorporate measures to improve the accessibility of assets and accommodate visitors and employees with disabilities in accordance with applicable law.”.

(b) CLERICAL.—The table of chapters for subtitle II of title 54, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to chapter 2003 the following:

(c) GAO STUDY.—Not later than 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall:

(1) conduct a study on the implementation of this section and the amendments made by this section, including whether this section and the amendments made by this section have effectively reduced the priority deferred maintenance backlog of the covered agencies (as that term is defined in section 200401 of United States Code); and

(2) submit to Congress a report that describes the results of the study under paragraph (1).

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 200303 of title 54, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Any amounts deposited in the Fund under section 200302 for fiscal year 2003 and thereafter shall be made available for expenditure for fiscal year 2003 and each fiscal year thereafter, without further appropriation or fiscal year limitation, to carry out the purposes of the Fund (including accounts and programs made available from the Fund pursuant to the interagency Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2020 (Pub. L. 116-94; 133 Stat. 2534)).

“(b) ADDITIONAL AMOUNTS.—Amounts made available under subsection (a) shall be in addition to amounts made available to the Fund under section 105 of the Gulf of Mexico Energy Security Act of 2006 (48 U.S.C. 1331 note; Public Law 109-412) or otherwise appropriated from the Fund.

“(c) ALLOCATION AUTHORITY.—

“(1) SUBMISSION OF COST ESTIMATES.—The President shall submit to Congress detailed account, program, and project allocations of the full amount made available under subsection (a).

“(A) for fiscal year 2021, not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of the Great American Outdoors Act; and

“(2) ALTERNATE ALLOCATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Appropriations Acts may provide for alternate allocation of amounts made available under subsection (a), including allocations by account, program, and project.

“(B) ALLOCATION BY PRESIDENT.—If Congress has not enacted legislation establishing alternate allocations by the date on which the Act making full-year appropriations provides in the Department of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies for the applicable fiscal year is enacted into law, amounts made available under subsection (a) shall be allocated by the President.

“(ii) INSUFFICIENT ALTERNATE ALLOCATION.—If Congress enacts legislation establishing alternate allocations for amounts made available under subsection (a) that are less than the full amount appropriated under that subsection, the difference between the amount appropriated under that subsection and the amount of the alternate allocation shall be allocated by the President.

“(3) RECREATIONAL PUBLIC ACCESS.—

Amounts expended from the Fund under this section shall be consistent with the requirements for recreational public access for hunting, fishing, recreational shooting, or other outdoor recreational purposes under section 200401 of United States Code.

“(4) ANNUAL REPORT.—The President shall submit to Congress an annual report that describes the final allocation by account, program, and project of amounts made available under subsection (a), including a description of the status of obligations and expenditures.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 200302(c) of title 54, United States Code, is amended by striking paragraph (1).

(2) Section 200306(a)(2)(B) of title 54, United States Code, is amended by striking clause (iii).

(c) CLERICAL.—The table of sections for chapter 2003 of title 54, United States Code, is amended by striking the item relating to section 200303 and inserting the following:

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that it stand adjourned under the previous order, following the remarks of Senator LEE.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it stand adjourned under the previous order, following the remarks of Senator LEE.

Mr. LEE. Madam President, to most Americans, the so-called Great American Outdoors Act is a mistake. It is expensive, shortsighted, and it is wrong; but to those of us who live in the American West, it is a disaster. Despite its rosy claims, this legislation combines two bills that will only tighten the Federal stranglehold on our lands and drive us deeper into debt, to the detriment of our economy, our environment, and the livelihoods and the freedom of the American people.

So just how, you might ask, does it do that? Well, let me explain. The first title containing an expanded version of the Restore Our Parks Act attempts to address the roughly $19.3 billion maintenance backlog on our Federal lands, concentrated primarily in national parks projects, which approach a $12 billion maintenance backlog just on their own, but it seeks to do so by spending $9.5 billion of Federal offshore energy revenues over 5 years, without any means whatsoever of offsetting these extra funds.

Now, that, to be clear, is money that is currently going to the U.S. Treasury to pay for a number of other costs, a number of other expenditures—from aircraft carriers to Federal courts and everything in between—and will only add to our already ballooning national debt.

It is, we have to remember, Congress’s job to set priorities for the funds in the Treasury. If we prioritize something—if we prioritize one thing—we must either proportionately decrease the funding for something else or find another way to generate new revenue.

This bill does neither. Furthermore, without any measures to prevent it, it guarantees that a similar backlog will only reemerge in the future. There are better ways to address this problem. For example, there are much better ways in a proposal that has been introduced by Senator Enzi in a bill called the REAL Act. The REAL Act would modestly increase park visitor fees by $5, businesses and tourist visa fees by $25, and a visa waiver program fee by $16—creating an additional $5.5 billion in revenue over the next 10 years.

This, the REAL Act, introduced by Senator Enzi is a reasonable, practical solution to sustainably address the maintenance backlog on our National Parks, which is a problem. It is a problem that needs to be dealt with, and the REAL Act does it in a very responsible, sustainable fashion. What is more, the REAL Act would create a permanent, independent way of supplementing the funding for our National Parks and do so without adding to the national debt.

The second title of this bill—the Great American Outdoors Act—creates almost $1 billion of mandatory spending every single year on new Federal land acquisition through the Land and Water Conservation Fund. In other words, it adds a new entitlement, adding to our already unaffordable system of entitlements. It puts it on a level playing field with things like Social Security and Medicare, other entitlement programs, the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Now, why would we do this when we are already on a collision course with our ability to fund Federal programs, including and especially those programs that America’s seniors have paid for, for years, and come to rely on? Why would we do that for this program, mandate new spending and thus convert it into yet another unaffordable entitlement program?

Let’s talk a little bit about the Land and Water Conservation Fund, or LWCF, as it is known. This was originally put in place pursuant to a law passed in 1964, and the LWCF, as it was created and enacted into law back in 1964, was put in place in order to promote and preserve access to recreational opportunities on Federal public land. It was created in fact. So the fund was set up to be the principal source of money for Federal land acquisition and to assist States in developing recreational opportunities on their own.

Originally, it directed 60 percent of its funds to be appropriated for State purposes and 40 percent for Federal purposes. Unfortunately, the program has lost its original moorings and far from its original intent, and it has been rife with abuse. In 1976, the law was amended to remove the 60-percent State provision, stating simply that not less than 40 percent of the funds must be used for Federal purposes, while continuing silent on whether a State would receive a penny.

Now, just over the last year or so, not less than 40 percent of the funds are dedicated to State purposes, so that still means that up to 60 percent of the funds can still be used for Federal land acquisition. The result? Well, it hasn’t been good. It has been used more for Federal land acquisition than for improving access to or care of the vast Federal lands that we already own and manage—or in many cases, fail to manage.

Sixty-one percent of the funds have historically been used for acquisition, compared to the 25 percent that have been allocated to State grants, spending now $2 billion to purchase new Federal lands.

Now, despite people’s images of charm, ribbon cuttings at local parks and scenic wildlife, the LWCF has functioned as the Federal Government’s wild spending spree, diverting more than $12 billion to purchase new Federal lands.

So despite people’s images of charming ribbon cuttings at local parks and scenic wildlife, the LWCF has functioned as the Federal Government’s wild spending spree, diverting more than $12 billion to purchase new Federal lands, resulting in a massive, restrictive, and neglected Federal estate.

The Federal Government now owns 640 million acres of land—more than 640 million acres—within the United States. To put this in perspective, this amount—the more than 640 million acres of land currently owned by the Federal Government within the United States—is a total larger than the entireties of France, Spain, Germany, Poland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, and the Netherlands combined.

Now, I am not talking about the government-owned lands or the parklands within those countries. I am talking about the entirety of the countries themselves. The Federal Government owns more land than that. That is 28 percent of the total acreage within the United States, and more than 50 percent of the land in the West. This has probably more to do with the provision to pull Federal land than the Federal Government is capable of managing responsibly. The condition of the vast Federal estate ranges from fair to poor to dismal. These lands face problems with rampant wildfires, soil erosion, mismanagement, and littering. With a staggering code-named maintenance backlog of nearly $20 billion.

Resources are only being spread thinner as they are being stretched to serve more and more lands—more and more lands that are now going to be bought with the LWCF. What is going on is that we are putting in place with this bill should we enact this ill-conceived legislative proposal.

On top of that, many of the LWCF funds have been diverted to a vague “other purposes” category that has, in many instances, little to do with access to outdoor recreation at all. In fact, many of the programs it has funded have, instead, aimed to pull land from Federal ownership. The land in question, why is that? Well, there are a number of reasons, but one of the things that has to be taken into account is... the fact that, without property taxes, schools are underfunded, local governments are crippled, fire departments are, ironically, depleted and, therefore, unable to properly take care of the lands they are charged to protect in the first place. This, by the way, says nothing of the blight that property tax revenue as a whole. I am just talking here about the lack of property tax revenue.

Now, there is a Federal program for this, the Payment in Lieu of Taxes Program, also known as the PILT Program. The abbreviation refers to this program that was intended to address this disparity by compensating counties and local communities for their loss of property taxes—that is the loss from property taxes that comes about as a result of significant Federal land ownership and the Federal Government’s declaration, by law, that its lands may not be taxed. But PILT payments have provided only a pittance of what would be due to local governments on their lands not exempt from property taxes.

In 2018, the Utah Legislature commissioned a state-of-the-art evaluation of 32 million acres of Federal land in Utah, excluding roughly 3 million acres of National Parks and Wilderness Areas. Now, this May, that same commission found that appraising these BLM and Forest Service lands according to their lowest use value would result in an annual property tax bill of $584 million, by the way. In addition to excluding National Parks and Wilderness Areas from that equation, was a study that involved only those Federal lands extending to within 1 mile of any municipal boundary or of any city or town in Utah. So this fraction would produce $534 million annually in property tax revenue, even if it were taxed at its lowest value.

In 2019, the PILT payments to Utah statewide totaled just $41 million, just 7.7 percent of what the state would have received from property taxes. Again, we are not talking about the National Parks or their National Wilderness Areas, nor are we talking about the lands outside of 1 mile beyond any municipal boundary.

And while States and localities are the ones carrying the unfair economic burden, Washington only pours salt in these wounds by neglecting its oversight responsibilities. In May 2019, a GAO report found that the BLM and Forest Service have been chronically underfunded and, therefore, unable to properly take care of the lands they are charged to protect in the first place. This, by the way, says nothing of the blight that property tax revenue as a whole. I am just talking here about the lack of property tax revenue.

These two issues are not a coincidence. The fact that they appear in the same land mass is not coincidental; it is causal. The Federal Government is the cause for the impoverishment of this county and other communities in Utah and throughout the United States. Why? Because people can’t own the land, can’t develop the land, can’t tax the land to fund their schools, their search and rescue services, or any other government priority. Nor can they access it for most economic purposes.

Finally, all of my other observations about this legislation notwithstanding, this is the Senate, and just like church is for sinners, the Senate floor isn’t for perfect, hermetically sealed, finished bills. We are supposed to bring imperfect bills to the floor to debate and deliberate and amend and discuss and, ultimately, find consensus. That is why I and many of my colleagues have been trying to do exactly that in this very situation with this very bill.

I have a number of amendments. Many western State Senators do as well. Several Gulf State Senators have their own concerns about this bill in its current form. The way the process is supposed to work is that we bring this and other bills like it to the floor, and we offer up changes and see where the Senate is, see where the process goes, using reason, gentle persuasion, and awkward improvements to each piece of legislation as our guide. That is how it is supposed to work.

There are a number of Senators from western States, from Gulf States, and from States that really aren’t in the West or the gulf that don’t really have that much to do with Federal public land, but they can see the procedural and substantive defects of this bill. That is why many of us who really would like to make improvements to this bill have come together from different parts of the country.

The process of actually legislating has gone out of fashion in Washington and, quite regretfully, out of this Chamber in recent years, but it is something that I think the whole Senate would like to get back to—and I mean the whole Senate, Democrats and Republicans alike. This is an issue that is neither Republican or Democratic; it is not liberal or conservative; it is not Libertarian. It is not an ideological viewpoint. I know people within this Chamber on virtually every point along the ideological political continuum who would very much like to see the Senate working as an actual legislative body rather than as a rubberstamp for whatever small handful of people happen to write out behind closed doors and decide must be the finished, perfect, hermetically sealed object of our vote. This is wrong. It is an insult, not just to the 100 Senators who are here. It is that to be sure, but nobody cares about that. It is more about those we represent, those who elected us. Those election certificates don’t belong to us. They belong to the voters of our various States who expect us to represent them. Regardless of how we might vote on any particular piece of legislation, they expect us to have read it; they expect us to do our job by showing up and by offering to make it better where we see flaws and we see defects. There is no perfect bill, but we can still make legislation a lot less bad. We can make it better. We bring about actual consensus. Consensus is not found by ramming something through without an opportunity for amendment, debate, or discussion.

This is wrong. It has gone on for far too long. I have seen it under the leadership of Democrats and Republicans alike in this Chamber, and it has to end. The question is, How long is it going to take us and how much misery will the American people have to endure while most of their Senators are effectively locked out of meaningful legislative debate, discussion, and amendment? This is wrong, and it has to end.

The debate on this bill has now been extended by a whole extra day. There is no earthly reason why we can’t use that extra day to work through a handful of 15-minute votes on a handful of amendments. It is just not that hard. In the amount of time that I have been speaking tonight, we could have processed a couple of amendments. In the amount of time that will be devoted only to hand-wringing and dismissal of legitimate concerns with this legislation, we could process any amendment that anyone wants to introduce, and this legislation could still be passed weeks before the House of Representatives is even poised to return. So why are we not doing this? There is no persuasive answer here.

We have to start doing our job. I look forward to working with our colleagues to get an agreement on some amendments so that we can give this legislation the due consideration and the careful deliberation that it deserves, that we deserve, that those who elected us deserve, and then move on to the important nominations pending before the Senate and to the National Defense Authorization Act that are next in line. In the meantime, I hope Democrats and Republicans alike can unite behind the fact that we can’t skate forever under the mantra that the Senate is the world’s greatest deliberative body when it does not deliberate. The good news is, it is entirely within our power to reclaim use of that title justifiably and with dignity.

I yield the floor.
