The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Patrick J. Conroy, offered the following prayer:

Loving God, Father of us all, thank You for giving us another day.

As the numbers of those infected by coronavirus continue to rise throughout our country, send us Your spirit of healing and comfort. Healthcare workers tire with the unrelenting burden of caring for so many who are ill. Strengthen them. May all Americans be sincere in their appreciation of heroic efforts to tend to those in need.

As Members return to their districts, may the work of building and rebuilding our communities show signs of progress and hope. These are difficult days, when impatience and frustration are dangerous temptations. Give us faith, hope, and, perhaps most importantly, love, that we might together build toward a newly thriving commonwealth.

May all that is done throughout our country this day be for Your greater honor and glory.

Amen.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

O God of light, as we approach Independence Day, we thank You for giving us the gift of true freedom. You have blessed us with freedom from sin, guilt, and shame. You have redeemed us. You have given us freedom from fear, providing us with peace in the midst of the storms.

Today, please guide our lawmakers so that they will fulfill Your purposes as they face the challenges of these times. Lord, awaken them to Your inescapable presence. Keep them from thinking that You are absent from our world or disinterested in it. Enable them to feel You in their midst as they grapple with the problems of our time.

We pray in Your strong Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Boozman). The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. Grassley. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 1 minute in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. Grassley. Mr. President, the Department of Defense is the only agency that can’t get a clean audit. Sometime around 1990, there was an audit law passed directing Department of Defense to get to a point where they could get a clean audit. Department of Defense is still the only one that hasn’t.

Sometime around 2010, I believe, we laid down a requirement that the clean audit must be met by 2017.

Well, that wasn’t met. So, for decades, Department of Defense has been saying that they are almost there. Now they say it will be at least another 5 years before a clean opinion can be reached.

One reason they haven’t been able to do that is the outdated mess of hundreds of financial management systems. Yet the Department of Defense still wants to spend almost $200 million on an annual audit.

I urge my colleagues to support my amendment to pause the audit effort that is doomed to fail anyway and, instead, invest that $200 million in updating the Department of Defense financial management system because, until they get the financial management systems right, Department of Defense will never be capable of having a clean audit.

I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

ISSUES FACING AMERICA

Mr. McConnell. Mr. President, before I discuss the legislation before the Senate, I need to spend a moment on something broader. Our country needs to confront the Democratic Party’s willingness to threaten our governing institutions themselves.

Earlier this year, as the Senate disposed of the least fair, least thorough, and most rushed impeachment in modern history, I offered a broader warning. I said: “Leaders in the opposite party increasingly argue that if our institutions don’t produce the outcomes they like, our institutions themselves must be broken.”

No longer do disappointments for Democrats mean that Democrats need better arguments. Now disappointments for Democrats are claimed as proof—proof—that our country is fundamentally broken or that James Madison messed something up.

So while we have far-left mobs attacking statues of our Founding Fathers from coast to coast, we have far-left politicians attacking the institutions those Founders left us.

Now, step back and look at the landscape of fundamental changes that leading Democrats or their close allies are demanding: amending the First Amendment to restrict its protections, ending the electoral college, packing the Supreme Court with new Justices, packing the Senate with new States, and, to accomplish all this, destroying the Senate’s distinguishing feature that makes radical change hard by design.

We have an entire political movement that is telling us—literally out loud—that they have lost patience with playing by the rules and may well declare war on the rule book itself. A coalition of left-wing special interests are explicitly campaigning for “51 for 51.” They want Senators to vandalize the rules to pass legislation with a simple majority and then use that ill-gotten power to cement a presumed advantage by awarding the District of Columbia two Senate seats.

They want to nuke the Senate to pack the Senate. This is naked politics. No neutral principle could explain why all these special interests prioritize this cause which most Americans oppose. No neutral principle explains why Democrats want the 20th most populous city to get two Senators all to itself when retrocession to Maryland would satisfy their own slogans more cleanly.

No neutral principle explains why House Democrats wasted floor time on a potentially unconstitutional show vote.

This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.
Just days after Democrats used the filibuster power to block Senator Scott’s police reform bill, even colleagues who recently defended this important tradition have now bowed to the pressure to flint with ending it. On a similar note, you may remember the story of King Lear without modern precedent in modern memory took place a few months ago. The Democratic leader stood by the steps of the Supreme Court and directly threatened Justices if they ruled the wrong way in the June Medical Services case. This display aligned with a whole new tradition of Senate Democrats threatening judges. A year ago, several wrote Justices saying the ‘Court is not well’ perhaps the Court can heal itself before the public demands it be restructured.’"

In other words, nice judicial independence you have got there. It would be a shame if something happened to it.

Right on cue, a number of leftwing groups are agitating to revive the discredited notion of court-packing. Now, following the Democratic leader’s display, the Court ruled the way it wanted on the very case. They handed it down on Monday of this week. Our colleague took to the floor cracking jokes, giddy—giddy—he had gotten his way, but just moments later the Democratic leader picked right up where he left off, impugning and pressuring one Justice whose vote he disliked.

So you see, the improper pressure and the accusations of illegitimacy will never end. No amount of rulings the Democrats like would be enough because the fundamental respect for an independent judiciary is simply not there.

This is about outcomes, not institutions, and there is no limit to how far left the goalposts will move.

Well, it is not going away, but for today I will leave it there. This weekend, July 4, Americans will celebrate our founding. We will celebrate the Framers and the traditions and the institutions that they left us.

We cannot let radicals tear down their likenesses or their legacies. We must preserve the gifts and the institutions we celebrate so our grandchildren and their grandchildren can celebrate them as well.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. MConnell. Mr. President, on an entirely different matter, the Senate continues to consider the National Defense Authorization Act. I understand we are close to a bipartisan structure for amendments, and if our Democratic colleagues will let us, I hope we can move forward today.

All week I have discussed how the 60th consecutive NDAA will help our Nation protect its people, stand with our allies, and keep pace with our competitors. This legislation has global reach, but, as all my colleagues know, the NDAA is also a profoundly local bill for communities in all 50 States.

My home State is proud to support three Army installations and the men and women of the Kentucky Air and Army National Guard. Last fall, I hosted Secretary of the Army Mark Esper in Kentucky to speak with the Fort Knox community. He called for a renewed commitment to supporting our all-volunteer force, including military spouses and their families.

The NDAA advances that goal. It will authorize a new elementary school at Fort Knox. This construction, paired with progress toward a new middle school at Fort Campbell, will continue making Kentucky’s installations a welcoming home for military families.

This project comes on the heels of Fort Knox’s selection for the new V Corps headquarters. This mission brings more than 600 additional soldiers to Kentucky in support of U.S. operations over in Europe. They will join Fort Knox’s already impressive list of significant commands, including the Army’s Recruiting, Cadet, and Human Resources Command. The V Corps will find a premier installation in the Bluegrass State. Our bill also authorizes the construction of a new headquarters for the Kentucky National Guard. The facility will consolidate the Guard’s operation to a central location.

Just remember, our citizen soldiers and airmen have stepped up to combat COVID–19. I am glad this legislation will deliver for them.

At the Blue Grass Army Depot, the NDAA will advance the disposal of legacy chemical weapons. Families in Madison County have lived for generations with these deadly agents practically in their backyards. For years, I have fought alongside them to support safe and responsible demilitarization. In just the first year of chemical destruction activities, the depot has already completed a campaign ahead of schedule. An entire type of munition has been completely deleted from the U.S. stockpile. Our legislation will help us safely consign more of these weapons to the ash heap of history.

Now, I have also spoken this week about the growing boldness of our Nation’s adversaries and the evolving threats our servicemembers face. The men and women of Fort Campbell, including the 101st Airborne, are among those our Nation turns to first to handle serious challenges. Their recent deployments to Europe, Afghanistan, and to support the COVID–19 response in New York and New Jersey show their importance to our country.

Pursuant to the national defense strategy, this NDAA will encourage new capabilities so elite fighting forces like the 101st are equipped for success under any circumstances.

The Senate is grateful for the courage of our Armed Forces. The bipartisan legislation before us honors their sacrifices and authorizes the resources to carry out their missions. Its impact will not be felt just by our adversaries overseas but by our service-members and communities right here at home.

I would like to once again thank Chairman Inhofe, Ranking Member Roy Blunt, and our colleagues on the Armed Services Committee for their serious and thoughtful work.

Let’s get this bill moving toward completion.

CORONAVIRUS

Mr. MConnell. Mr. President, two numbers sum up the state of America today: 52,788, the number of confirmed COVID–19 cases yesterday; and 1.4 million, the number of unemployment claims filed this week. In the next few months, these numbers will be far more important than the job numbers released this morning in determining the long-term health of our economy and the health of this country. The statistics I mentioned would have been harrowing during February, March, April, or May, during the initial surge and rapid spread of the disease. They would have been distressing even then, but here in the beginning of July, 6 months into the crisis, long after other countries have experienced a rapid decline of COVID–19, it is shocking that the United States is hitting ever grimmer milestones.

There is no doubt that much of the responsibility for this debacle—the COVID debacle—falls on the shoulders of President Trump, who failed to prepare our Nation for the initial surge, failed to organize a national supply chain of PPE, failed to develop a national strategy for testing and contact tracing, and thus failed to mitigate the depth of the challenge our country faces. And much of this still proves true today.

The Washington Post reported this morning that Arizona, which has experienced a huge surge in cases, still doesn’t have enough testing supplies they need because of a national supply chain failure.

Even after 2.6 million infections and 120,000 American fatalities, the President has been out to lunch since March. It has been over 3 months since we are today.

I think we’re going to be very good with the coronavirus. I think at some point that’s going to sort of just disappear.

Can you imagine the bubble this man is in? He is only concerned about scratching and stroking his own ego and making sure he is going to continue to govern this country, so he can just dismiss the seriousness of this—the most serious health and economic crisis we have had in decades. It is amazing.

That is what President Trump said yesterday—"We’re going to be very good with the coronavirus"—on the same day the United States reported the most new cases of coronavirus in a single day ever. The President is so eager to declare victory and pat himself on the back and then move on that he is ignoring reality completely.

The June jobs report showed modest growth, but we know conditions have worsened since the survey was completed in the middle of the month. Experts believe 10 percent of the workforce has lost their job permanently, with Americans of color counting for a disproportionate share.

Again, in terms of the long-term health of the economy, the most concerning statistic is the number of new COVID cases. The number of COVID cases, health-related, is the No. 1 effect on the long-term health of the economy. President Trump seems oblivious to the fact that almost everyone who studied this issue knows. The President’s own CDC Director says that the number of cases may be 10 times higher than reported. Imagine that. We could have 26 million people infected and likely many, many more to come, but the President assumes that the coronavirus—and the economy—will just take care of itself.

If President Trump reacted to the jobs report like he has reacted to COVID and says, “We’re in the clear; we don’t have to do anything;” then we will still be in even worse trouble than we are today.

Here in the Senate, the Republican majority has been out to lunch since we passed the CARES Act way back in March. It has been over 3 months since the Republican Senate has considered major COVID relief legislation. Weekly unemployment claims are measured in the millions. States are shedding public service jobs in the tens of thousands. The number of new cases is accelerating in nearly half our States.

Still, the Republican majority, in the words of its majority leader, “has yet to feel the urgency of acting.” Still, the Republican Senate has passed a bill that would let the President—"has yet to feel the urgency of acting." Still, the Republican Senate has passed a bill that would let the President—yet to feel the urgency of acting." Still, the Republican Senate has passed a bill that would let the President—yet to feel the urgency of acting.

Go out to where the real people are.

Over 700,000 people live and work in the District of Columbia, 46 percent of them are Black. They hold jobs just like everyone else. They teach, deliver groceries, care for our sick, and work in our restaurants and churches. Many of our work heroes, providing essential services to some Senators who, obviously, don’t consider them “real people.”

My friends on the other side of the aisle would have you believe that every member of this city is a lobbyist or defense contractor or a reporter. Not only is that comically false, but I don’t remember the part of the Constitution where it says your rights as American citizens only apply if Republican Senators approve of your line of work.

I have noticed that it has become fashionable for elements of the political right to accuse Democrats of ignoring “real Americans.” It seems that the political right has a clear idea of which Americans are real and which Americans are not.

When Republican Senators are outright dismissing the personhood of thousands of American citizens—most of whom are Black—it is time for the political right to look in the mirror.

DC residents fulfill all the obligations of citizenship. They pay Federal taxes. They can be summoned for jury duty. They have served in every war since the Revolutionary War. But they are denied real representation in Congress.

We can have a real conversation about Statehood without denigrating or dehumanizing these citizens, but the far right is so afraid of losing political power and so unwilling to appeal to anyone who doesn’t already agree with them that their strategy has become: restrict voting rights and deny equal representation in Congress to hundreds of thousands of Americans.

Self-governance and equal representation aren’t Democratic issues or Republican issues. Voting rights shouldn’t be a Democratic issue or a Republican issue. These are issues of fairness, of equality. It is not about right or left. It is about right and wrong.
Mr. President, governing is a matter of priorities. In this moment of national crisis, as the COVID-19 pandemic rages on, economic hardship deepens and the centuries-old struggle for racial justice continues, our national priorities have never been clearer to everyone, it seems, but President Trump.

This week has been one of the most out-of-touch weeks of an out-of-touch Presidency. As the citizens of ruby red Oklahoma voted to expand Medicaid, President Trump threatened to veto the national defense bill that he himself had signed. Soon after we were submitting amendments to the bill. In the Armed Services' markup on the bill, as protesters continued to march in the streets for racial justice, President Trump, this week, attacked a program designed to end racial segregation in housing. As the State of Mississippi decided to take down the Confederate flag, President Trump threatened to veto the national defense bill to maintain a pay raise for our troops, in the name of protecting the Confederacy.

This week, the President of the United States seemed more concerned with protecting the names of dead Confederate generals than doing anything to help living American citizens. The President is so out of touch that it is as if he was dropped into the Oval Office from another planet, unaware and uncaring of anything going on around him. What is the presumptive COVID killing Americans, a faltering economy, a righteous movement for racial justice, or Putin's malign actions endangering our troops, President Trump has the same reaction: stroke his own ego, then stick his head in the sand and do nothing.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. KAINET. Mr. President, I rise to briefly discuss a matter that is contained within the NDAA bill that is currently pending before the Senate, a matter for which I sponsored as an amendment, in the Committee on Armed Services' markup on the bill, that received the unanimous voice vote of my colleagues, and I just wanted to stress its importance.

A few weeks back, on a Monday in May, peaceful protesters assembled in Lafayette Park to protest against police violence. They were peaceful, and they were in full compliance with a curfew ordinance that was in place. It was before the curfew. Federal law enforcement officials fired tear gas at them to disperse them, which I found very, very troubling, as, I know, many others found troubling. I think the Framers of the Constitution got some things wrong, but they also got some things right.

One of the things I have always been interested in is that, while elections are important—and elections and campaigns are in the Constitution as being every 2 years for the House, every 6 years for the Senate, and Presidential elections—federal election law elections wouldn't be enough to protect this great democracy. If they had thought elections would have been enough, they wouldn't have said that people need to be able to peacefully assemble and that people need to be able to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

If elections had been enough, they would have said: Well, if you are mad, just wait 2 years, and then you can vote out somebody bad and bring in somebody good.

The Framers had been through the experiences of things like the Boston Tea Party and other events. They knew that to have a more perfect Union and really preserve the democracy, they needed to have elections, but they also needed to give people the room and the space to be able to peacefully assemble and say: Hey, I don't like this. Can we make these changes?

It is a value that is so important, like the freedom of religion and the freedom of the press, and were put in the First Amendment for a reason.

Those in the military, just as Senators, take vows to support and defend the Constitution of the United States. Yet, in particular today, 2020, we have a significant issue that I see cropping up sometimes, which is, thank goodness, that we as civilians appreciate the military—that the "thank you for your service" attitude, I think, is widely shared. There is often a gulf between the military and the people, but in the time of an all-volunteer military, only 1 percent of people serve in the military. That means, for those of us who haven't served, often, we might have a general appreciation, but we don't really have an understanding, and there can start to be a gap, or a gulf, between civilians and the military.

Former Secretary of Defense Mattis has commented about this a lot, about this gap that can grow. I am not challenging that an all-volunteer military is a good thing, but there can be a gap of misunderstanding. We would never say that was widening that gap, and we should always do things to narrow that gap. There would be nothing that would widen the gap more than if people were to perceive that the military were now being arrayed against them, against the civilian population. It would not only endanger important First Amendment rights, but it would also potentially lead to a wider canyon between the civilian and the military, and we should not do that.

There can be uses of military assets in some different situations. A sort of standard way of thinking about it, for example, would be to use Guard troops. The Guard is often called up to protect protesters, and then local law enforcement is used to police bad actors. One would imagine the legal group like the protesters, to keep them safe, and to make sure they are not doing things to or are being harmed by others, but the law enforcement activity should be carried out by police and not by the military.

This is something we promote in the Committee on Foreign Relations all the time. I see my colleague from Wyoming who is here, who is on the Committee on Foreign Relations with me and does such a good job there. We are often encouraging foreign nations: Don't use your military to do police work. Have a professional police department. Use your military to defend the country. The professionalizing of our military is an important cause that is not what a military should do.

That was the reason I introduced the amendment. It was not solely to protect First Amendment rights, which are really important, but it was also to not allow a gulf that exists between civilians and the military to get even worse if civilians feel like the military is arrayed against them.

The last thing I will say—and then I will conclude—is that I lived in a military dictatorship when I was young. I took a year off in the middle of law school to go to Honduras and work with Jesuit missionaries in 1980 to 1981. It was a military dictatorship, and people could not vote for anything. It was a shock to me, my seeing a society where people could vote and maybe, sometimes even choose not to vote, and then my going to a society where people couldn't vote. People prayed for the day that they might be able to finally vote for their leaders, but they couldn't because the military was running the country at the time.

There I saw the reaction that the people had toward the military, and the reaction that they had toward the military and to that form of government was not "thank you for your service." It was "you scare me to death." There was military on every corner with automatic weapons. There were roundups, and they would do an organized draft. Sometimes they would just surround a movie theater, and as young men would come out, they would commandeer them to go into the military.

I experienced something so different from what I experience here, which was a society in which your first reaction when you see somebody in uniform—in the military—is fear. You are afraid of him. We would never want that to be the prevailing attitude here. We would want our attitude here to be "thanks for your service."

I believe my amendment, now incorporated in the NDAA, will preserve the important roles that the military plays, preserve the important principles of peaceful assembly, petitioning government, First Amendment, but we will also make sure that we as a society don't find, by pitting the military against civilians, that we will be led to a situation where we will not be able to fully appreciate the sacrifices they make and the work they do for us.

I am excited that the bill on the floor now contains this provision and hope my colleagues will promptly and quickly pass the NDAA. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SCOTT of Florida). The Senator from Wyoming.

JOBS REPORT

Mr. BARRASSO. Mr. President, as I come to the floor today, we have just seen incredible record-setting job numbers. It is wonderful news for American workers, for families all across the country. It is a stellar June jobs report.

The U.S. economy added 4.8 million jobs, shattering all expectations. It is the largest monthly jobs gain in our Nation's history.

So if you flip through the channels this morning, Mr. President—and I did see you on one of the morning shows, doing a wonderful job, as you always do, talking about your home State, talking about our Nation—but these were some of the comments today about the jobs numbers:

CNBC's Jim Cramer said: "There's an optimism in the country... people are hiring."

Ed Lawrence at FOX Business said: "This is amazing. A good report anywhere you look at it."

Becky Quick, CNBC, said it was a "trend from across the board of pretty strong numbers."

Stephanie Ruhle of NBC said it was a "big positive."

Charles Payne, FOX Business, said: "Even though the economists keep saying it's impossible, the numbers are terrific."

Steve Liesman, CNBC, said: "Bringing a lot of folks back."

Christine Romans of CNN: "Big hiring."

Rick Santelli of CNBC: "Really solid numbers."

So good news. Americans are getting back to work, and we need to make sure that we reopen responsibly, smartly, safely—the sorts of things you were talking about—knowing what to do, how to do it, how to do it right because the health and safety, as you mentioned, of our men and women is important, and it includes economic health as well, and we have that report today with a stellar jobs report.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Mr. President, I also want to point out today that yesterday the Democrats in the House passed their 100-percent partisan version of a highway infrastructure bill. They co-opted a bipartisan issue, completely cut out Republicans—completely cut them out of the conversation.

Not only that, but House Democrats added a laundry list of really leftwing proposals in what they passed yesterday in the House.

In a sense, it is "Groundhog's Day" for the Green New Deal. This far-left fantasy has become a recurring nightmare, and we saw it yesterday on the floor of the House of Representatives.

The Democrats must be taking their cue from President Biden's campaign promoting the Green New Deal, as he said, a "crucial framework."

Biden has put the Green New Deal author, Representative ALEXANDRIA OCASIO-CORTEZ, in charge of his climate task force. This is where the Democrats want to take the country.

The truth is, Joe Biden has just now become the Trojan horse for the far, far left.

House Democrats' partisan highway bill, to me, is a road to nowhere. It is going to see no light of day in the U.S. Senate.

Infrastructure must be bipartisan, especially now. The House should follow the Senate's lead. Senate Republicans, in the majority, have worked across the aisle with our Democratic colleagues to make this serious issue into policy that is good for all of America, and our bipartisan bill is ready to go.

America's Transportation Infrastructure Act passed the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, the committee I chair, unanimously, 21 to 0. The landmark legislation will fix our Nation's roads, bridges, and tunnels.

Now, we invest but $237 billion in our highways over 5 years. That is a 27-percent increase over current highway funding, and it is important. It is especially critical to our economic recovery today.

We still have close to 20 million Americans out of work due to the coronavirus-related lockdowns. Jumpstarting highway projects is going to speed the recovery, and it will help fuel job creation.

Our bill benefits the entire country—both urban areas and rural areas. That is why we worked together in a bipartisan way. I will tell you, when I say it is overwhelmingly bipartisan, it is because we have both BERNIE SANDERS and President Trump supporting it. In fact, President Trump called on Congress to pass the NDAA bill in his State of the Union Address.

No question, it is the right medicine for our roads. It cuts redtape to speed up construction. It makes our roads safer, stronger, actually, as well, because the reparations are paid, and it sends money directly to States so people can get back to work.

Americans deserve a safe, reliable, efficient transportation system. So the Democrats in the House of Representatives need to get serious. Their 100-percent partisan bill is going nowhere.

It does seem that the Democrats in the House are all about politics and nothing about progress—the progress we need to make as a country. They are out there pushing socialism, and right here we are pushing solutions.

The country needs less grandstanding, and it needs more governing. So I am going to come to the floor today to show to the Senate's lead. Senate Republicans, in the majority, have worked across the aisle with our Democratic colleagues to make this serious issue into policy that is good for all of America, and our bipartisan bill is ready to go.

The bill supports $741 billion in fiscal 2021 defense funding, and that is in line with the bipartisan Budget Act.

The Senate Armed Services Committee adopted 229 bipartisan amendments before approving the legislation this month by a vote in committee of 25 to 2.

The NDAA will ensure a smart, strong, strategic defense for our Nation, and it will maintain America's dominance in a dangerous world.

Russia also poses a growing threat. China and Russia will not put their ambitions on hold for coronavirus or anything else. They will not wait for us or for them to recover from the coronavirus crisis and resolve our domestic disputes.

America must keep China and Russia both in check. The NDAA promotes a winning strategy. It modernizes our nuclear defenses. It maintains our high-tech edge over China and Russia. The NDAA honors our commitment to our dedicated men and women in uniform.

It delivers a well-earned pay raise for our troops, as well as high-quality housing, healthcare, childcare services for military families at home as well as abroad. The NDAA ensures our force is ready to fight and to win. That means to fight and to win today's wars, as well as the wars in the future.

It puts the best equipment and tools our troops need to defend America all around the world. The NDAA will help spur innovation. It invests in new technologies: artificial intelligence, hypersonic weapons, bio-tech, AI, cybersecurity.

The bill modernizes our Pentagon's financial management system. It provides for greater accountability and transparency at the Defense Department. This works to protect taxpayer money.

The NDAA also includes innovative legislation that promotes a cleaner environment. Now, in saying that, I mean that my bipartisan bill with Sheldon Whitehouse, Lisa Murkowski, Richard Blumenthal, and Tom Carper of Delaware—we have included as part of the NDAA the Environment and Public Works Committee-approved legislation unanimously. It is called the USE IT Act. The USE IT Act’s acronym in the NDAA: “USE IT” is short for utilizing significant emissions with innovative technologies. That is why I am saying we are doing more to clean the environment.

The USE IT Act will help researchers find commercial uses for captured carbon dioxide emissions. It supports the use of carbon capture technology, including direct air capture. This groundbreaking research is already happening in my home State of Wyoming. It is taking place at the Integrated Test Center outside of Gillette. The USE IT Act will further this important work.

It will apply our Nation’s brightest minds to take carbon from the air, trap it, and transform it into valuable commercial products. Captured carbon can be used to extract oil from wells—wells that would not otherwise be profitable. It is also used to make building materials and carbon fibers. It can also be used for medical purposes.

The goal of the legislation is to innovate our way to a cleaner environment without onerous overregulation. So I want to thank the Armed Services Committee chairman, Jim Inhofe, for bringing the USE IT Act one step closer to becoming law.

For the past 4 years, Congress has been able to pass the NDAA with strong, top-line defense funding. The bipartisan Budget Act sets overall defense funding levels for fiscal year 2021. Longer term funding is necessary, but it is uncertain.

Democrat have opposed stronger defense funding in the past, especially during the Obama-Biden administration. This history suggests that if Democrats win the election, they will slow our Nation’s critical defense investments.

The NDAA strengthens America’s hand to stand up to foreign aggressors, to stand up against those people who are against American values.

Our NDAA will protect American leadership in the world. It will enhance our standing with adversaries and allies alike. Above all, it sends a clear message to our enemies: You cannot defeat the United States so don’t even try.

Every Senator should support this smart, strong, strategic approach to America’s defense.

Let’s honor this proud tradition; let’s support our troops; and let us once again pass the NDAA, this, for the 60th time.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

story to prevent more teens from going down the same path, what she told me in Fort Worth not that long ago is that these e-cigarettes and vaping devices are everywhere. They are everywhere and can be easily purchased even though you are not supposed to use tobacco products or nicotine when you are under the age of 21.

So all this bill requires, and it is really rather modest—it is unbelievable that it took us this long to get it here today, as modest as it is. At the time of delivery, if you buy a product online, the buyer has to sign and show an ID proving their age. It is the same requirement you would have if you made a physical purchase at a retail establishment or if you were buying tobacco online. For some reason, e-cigarettes and vaping devices have been operating on a different playing field, but no longer. That is why I am so pleased to be here with Senator Feinstein to pass the Prevent Online Sales of E-Cigarettes to Children Act.

To summarize, this legislation would put the same safeguards in place for e-cigarettes as there are for traditional cigarettes purchased online.

For those who think that we can never do anything on a bipartisan basis, that we can’t pass laws because we are hopelessly polarized and dysfunctional, maybe this will provide some source of encouragement to the American people, but it also demonstrates that we are doing our best to try to protect children’s health, particularly against addictive substances that are delivered through e-cigarettes and vaping devices.

Thank you, Senator FEINSTEIN, for your leadership on this and for your partnership. I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I am delighted to be here today with my friend, the Senator from California, with whom I have worked so closely on so many issues. We are both members of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary and the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, and it is always a pleasure to work with her and her staff.

Today is really an important day. It has been long in coming, and finally the Senate has now passed legislation that requires the same proof-of-age requirement that is needed for tobacco products to e-cigarettes and vaping products, particularly those that are sold over the internet. That is what we are focused on.

Last December, I met a 16-year-old young woman named Anna Carey, who is one of my personal heroes. She was one of the students at her high school who became addicted to e-cigarettes.

E-cigarettes are nicotine delivery devices. The only difference between it and smoking a cigarette is the fire, the products of combustion, but it is just as addictive as cigarettes.

Anna started experiencing symptoms that are uncommon in an otherwise healthy teenager. She became extremely lethargic. She experienced random and severe chest pains. Two initial x-rays came back clear, so doctors released her, but her health struggled. Eventually, she was admitted to the hospital and diagnosed with a chemically induced pneumonia in both of her lungs.

While I am glad to report that she is fully recovered and is now using her health insurance to pay for her care, this story should be a warning to others that vaping is not a safe alternative to smoking.

This bill would help prevent children who become addicted to e-cigarettes to transition to traditional cigarette smoking, it is critical that we close the legal loopholes that allows underage youth to use e-cigarettes. Studies show that one of the easiest ways for underage users to purchase e-cigarettes is online. Our bipartisan bill would require e-cigarette retailers to meet the same requirements as those that sell traditional cigarettes.

I believe we have 27 cosponsors equally divided between our two parties, so I am very pleased about that.

By applying the same safeguards we have worked on with online sales of traditional cigarettes, our bill would ensure that online e-cigarette sellers are verifying the age of their customers, properly labeling packages, and checking identification at delivery.

While there is limited research on the effects that vaping has had on coronavirus patients, the virus is known to attack the lungs. People with underlying conditions are particularly susceptible. Last year, we saw a mysterious lung illness sicken thousands of people that had a history of vaping. So it stands to reason that any damage already caused by vaping may further compromise a person’s ability to fight off the coronavirus.

I want to thank Senator CORNYN for working with me on this important legislation and our 26 colleagues who joined as cosponsors to address the epidemic of e-cigarette use among American youth.

I yield the floor.
Mr. SASSE. Mr. President, I rise today with a heaviness in my heart for what we have seen happening in the past 36 hours in Hong Kong.

Freedom-loving people in Hong Kong for the past 23 years have been fighting for basic fundamental human and natural rights, and we see the Communist Party of China coming in and trying to steal their dignity and to steal their freedom. They live in real and tangible fear of what is going to happen tonight and this weekend and next week.

Yesterday was July 1. July 1 is the anniversary 23 years ago of Hong Kong’s return to Chinese sovereignty under the Sino-British Joint Declaration. Under that agreement, the Communist Party of China made a pledge not just to Hongkongers and not just to the British but to the watching world, and they said that it would guarantee—they would guarantee—a certain level of autonomy and freedom to the Hong Kong community and that Hong Kong would not be forced to live under the kind of despotism that the mainland Chinese are forced to experience.

The Communist Party announced to the world, in signing that declaration, that Hongkongers would be retaining a lot of freedom. Well, since that handover in 1997 and, especially since 2003, when there was another attempted national security law debated, the people of Hong Kong have been holding pro-democracy protests and celebrations every year on the July 1 holiday. Annually, on July 1, they have reminded the world of what the pledge was of the Communist Party in that agreement of July 1997.

Yesterday, though, protesting and demanding basic human rights and freedoms in Hong Kong became a crime. Under the new national security law, to speak out, to exercise freedom of assembly, freedom of speech, or freedom of the press issues is considered an act of secession, subversion, and terrorism. That is what the new national security law that the Chinese have forced on Hong Kong stipulates.

Thousands of people—the hands of brave freedom lovers—flooded into the streets anyway, and they celebrated yesterday that anniversary, and they demanded that their representatives who have sold them out to Beijing would level to testify to the pledges that were made 23 years ago yesterday. At the end of yesterday, several hundred of these freedom-loving protesters were arrested, and 10 of them were charged with suspected violations under the new national security law.

Chinese Government officials now seem to be saying that these folks, these 10, are going to be extradited to mainland China and face their charges there. Remember, the protests that we have seen in Hong Kong over the last 15 or 16 months were specifically because of an extradition law where Hongkongers were facing the threat of being extradited to mainland China, and, supposedly, according to the government officials in Hong Kong, this rule, this intended legislation was going to be suspended. Well, instead, it looks like it is, in fact, connected to this new national security law.

Yesterday really marks the beginning of a new reign of terror in Hong Kong. With the implementation of this national security law, it is abundantly clear that the Communist Party seeks to turn Hong Kong into a police state as the authorities for Xinjiang, and the Hong Kong Government no longer derives any power from the consent of the people who govern, but rather it seeks to rule solely by its cooperation with the CCP’s security apparatus.

We are witnessing the signs of the coming crackdown. Even before this law was signed, democracy activists and lawmakers, including Martin Lee, who is Hong Kong’s father of democracy and the drafter of Hong Kong’s basic law, had already been rounded up. Many are expecting the same fate for themselves in the coming days. Many folks have begun to say goodbye to their families in anticipation that they are going to be rounded up and hauled off into another one of the Chinese reeducation camps or whatever Orwellian euphemism we want say for the new mental human thing to be able to say or do or talk about or plead for. Like in mainland China, Twitter will undoubtedly become a tool that is reserved only for the oppressors, no longer for the oppressed.

I fear that Joshua’s request—’If my voice will not be heard soon, I hope that the international community will continue to speak up for Hong Kong and step up concrete efforts to defend our last bit of freedom’—I fear that Joshua’s request will be met with silence.

I fear that we will fail Ronald Reagan’s challenge to us that we would be a staunch in our conviction that freedom is not the soul prerogative of the lucky few, but [rather, it is] the unalienable and universal right of all human beings.” We are all created in God’s image, and our rights come to us from God via nature, not because of the beneficence of some man or woman.

I fear that we in the United States and those in the international community will just simply move on from the kind of imminent crackdown in Hong Kong that we are going to see that is taking place. We have echoes of what happened in Tiananmen Square in June of 1989 and that so many people just decide to allow the Chinese Government to whitewash and pretend never happened. We must not allow that to happen.

I pray that we in the U.S. will live up to our convictions and that we will speak out about what the Communist Party is going to do to the freedom-loving people of Hong Kong.

Thank you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, first, let me make a comment about the remarks from my friend from Nebraska. It happens that I was in Hong Kong when that happened, and I saw the people, knowing what was going to happen to them after all the promises that were made. Everything that we suspected and dreaded has now happened. I appreciate the fact that there is somebody who cares enough to bring all of this to the American people.

Mr. SASSE. Mr. President, if the chairman would yield for just one moment.

Mr. INHOFE. Yes.

Mr. SASSE. I would also like to praise the chairman for the work he does. Flying around the world can be hard on bodies. When you have all the work you have to do at home and you go around the world and you encourage freedom-loving people—I know that many, many wonderful folks in Taiwan who are watching me right now, they see happening in Hong Kong know that we have had an advocate in the chairman of the Armed Services Committee for many, many years.

To the people in Taiwan who are also scared at this moment, JIM INHOFE is a heroic speaker. I just want to thank him for the work he has done there.

Mr. INHOFE. Thank you very much. Thank you. I appreciate that.

It has been a tough time here. I would say that he has made my day.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Over the past few days, we have been working on this national defense authorization bill. It is one that we pass every year and have passed every year for 60 years.

My colleagues have done good work on this bill so far. We took requests very seriously. We put hundreds of them in this bill. We actually did. Over 700 of the papers and amendments have been put in this bill. One of the reasons we work this is because we didn't use to do it, but we actually did this time. A problem that existed last year didn't exist this year. There is resistance on the floor to getting amendments. That resistance has gone now, and I think we are going to be able to do it.

This bill was written by the Democrats and Republicans in the U.S. Senate, and they did a very good job. When you stop to consider that we have as many—we actually have over 700 amendments that are now a part of this bill. This was made by the Members here, not by any other group. It is not the way it has always been done.

We had a great markup. In fact, our markup ended up—I call it unanimous because it was passed by 25 to 2, and the 2 who voted against it are not big on the military anyway. I call it unanimous. That is unusual—unusual—to get a bill this size to pass unanimously out of a committee to the Senate floor.

This is going to happen today. I feel very good about the progress we are making. When we come back from this Fourth of July recess, we are going to be able to finish it, and it should be in good shape.

In a few moments, I will be asking for unanimous consent on adoption of the managers' package and to make six amendments in order. By my estimation, this is the first time in at least the last few years that we have really considered and voted on this many individual amendments on the floor.

I have to say something about Senator REED. Sure, we differ on some things, but it has always been that we have reached agreement on virtually every issue. I was glad we had agreement on amendments. We were pushing hard to have even many more amendments. We wanted to consider as many as possible. We wanted every Member to have a say in this bill, and that is exactly what happened. I am glad we were able to reach a bipartisan path forward to complete consideration of this bill right after the recess, and that is exactly what we are going to do.

I have from the reasons this bill is so important over the past week, so I will keep it simple. Here is why we need to pass this bill:

First of all, it gives our troops a needed and deserved release. It is out there.

It authorizes more than 30 kinds of special pay for our troops at various levels of hazard—things that haven't been done before.

It makes sure our military families—this is the big thing. I have a very close friend in here who was talking about the fact that—on the floor—the main problem we are facing in our Nation as a threat is China and Russia. He made the comment and observation that, yet again, the military was doing more than the two of them put together. That is true, but I did want to remind him—and I did on the floor yesterday—that there is a reason for that. The reason for that is the most expensive thing we have to deal with every year are people. We take care of people.

I remember last year that one of the main thrusts of our bill was to get all of those housing things that were privatized years ago and hadn't been performing very well—to take care of our troops and their families. We spent time doing that. You take a Communist country like China or Russia—they don't care about the military and they deal with every year are people. We take care of people.

There are countries out there that hate our freedoms. America stands for freedom and want to do us harm. We know that is right. I sometimes get tickled when I hear people talking about, well, we don't want to do this because that is going to upset them. We don't want to keep Gitmo open because that might upset the terrorists. Well, welcome to the real world.

So this gives our troops the equipment, the training, and the resources they need to defend this Nation.

I never want to put ourselves in the position where we have a fair fight in America. We don't want fair fights. We want to go into combat with a clear advantage over our adversaries, and this bill does that.

It makes sure that the Pentagon is situated to support our troops whenever they are, but it also protects taxpayer dollars and ensures accountability to the taxpayers. That is very important, and this bill does that.

This bill also does a lot of good things we all support. That is why we are passing the bill today. It is a no-brainer. It is not a matter of if we are going to pass it; it is a matter of when.

It is now down to the hours. It will be set up so that when we come back from the recess, we will be able to pass this bill.

Keep in mind, we pass it, and that is not the end because the House has to pass their bills, and then the President will sign the bill. We go into conference with the House and the Senate, and before the President signs the bill, we have to have not just a conference, but very likely it will go to the Big Four. If it does that, that is another process. Very likely, it could be November when we actually end up passing this bill. Our absolute deadline has always been December 31. We will be well in advance of that.

I know the President has strong feelings about one of the provisions of the bill. He says if that is in there, he will veto the bill. We all know what that is. It is controversial. It is the Warren amendment that was put in. I have to say this: All but one Republican oppose that. I have to say that so people will hear it and understand it because that is true of it.

Anyway, passing the bill is not a matter of if; it is going to pass. This is a very good bill. It is a must-pass bill. One of the things that happen with a must-pass bill is that everyone who can't get their bills on other interest areas passed—they know this bill is going to pass, so they try to put in amendments. We have taken a lot of the amendments that have nothing to do with defense, but nonetheless we know it is necessary to have been necessary for 60 years. This is nothing new.

I would remind our colleagues that we have a long way to go yet. We will make sure that the conference report is a bipartisan one when we get to that point so that both parties can support it. It is exactly what we have right now. I have to say, with Senator REED—we very carefully weighed our portion of the bill, as well as amendments, to make sure we were fair to both sides—both the Republicans and Democrats—and that is the product we have in front of us.

From the brave patriots who fought for our Nation nearly 250 years ago to the 2.1 million who serve today, this bill is by them and for them.

This weekend, as you celebrate Independence Day, this holiday stands for. Think about what it means to you. Think about what it means to the 2.1 million who serve today, this bill is by them and for them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. TOOMY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.
Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. President, I am here on the Senate floor with my colleague from Maryland. I am here this morning, in part, to condemn the Chinese Communist Party’s actions, their efforts to swallow Hong Kong into the mainland and silence the dissent of the people of Hong Kong, but I am also here to do something about that.

For decades, Hong Kong has been one of the most successful, thriving societies on the planet. An indispensable part of their success has been their freedom. Hong Kong has enjoyed a vibrant free press, free speech, freedom to worship. They have had an independent judiciary and a partially democratic electoral representative system of government for a long time now.

Hong Kong is one of the freest places in Asia and, because of these freedoms and the Hong Kong people’s natural entrepreneurial spirit, Hong Kong is just one of the most successful and vibrant cities there has ever been.

Yet for years—maybe because of this—the Chinese Communist Party has pursued a systematic campaign to snuff out these basic freedoms in Hong Kong and bring the Hongkongers who live there into line. The intensity of the Chinese Communist Party’s aggression appears to be growing by the day.

Their campaign shouldn’t be very surprising. Just look at the recent actions: the genocidal action toward the Uighurs in Xinjiang or the aggressive action toward neighboring countries in the South China Sea—or toward the entire world, since the COVID-19 virus was first detected in Wuhan and the Chinese Government lied to us about its nature.

Fundamental principles, such as freedom and transparency, the just rule of law—these ideas are entirely antithetical to the core of the Chinese Communist Party’s mission. I think that, several years from now, we are going to look back on July 1 of 2020 as a milestone in the Chinese Communist Party’s aggression and hostility toward Hong Kong.

Yesterday was the first day that the Chinese Communist Party’s new so-called national security law went into effect. News reports described the law as “tailor-made to bring Hong Kong’s massive pro-democracy movement to heel.”

This picture was taken within the last 48 hours—thousands and thousands of people of Hong Kong taking to the streets to simply demand their freedoms—peacefully—to protest, to insist that they continue to have the freedoms that help make their society such a great society.

Tragically, 300 of these people were arrested last night simply because they were protesting the Chinese Communist Party. Some of the arrests were made because Hongkongers possessed items that called for Hong Kong’s independence. That is right—people arrested simply for holding a sign, arrested for holding a flag. Among them was a 15-year-old girl—a 15-year-old girl! He created a flag that is said “Hong Kong independence.” Another was a 19-year-old young man. His crime was that he had a pro-democracy sticker on his phone. Imagine—imagine the nerve of wanting to have self-determination and autonomy and expressing that with a sticker on your phone. So he was arrested.

His parents attempted to visit their son in jail and bring him dinner, and the police refused their visit. It is not at all clear if this young man will be able to get out even on bail.

So the Chinese Communist Party has very rapidly started enforcing this new law, and I think it is because they realize what is at stake. They know that the people of Hong Kong fervently believe in the importance of an open and free society. They believe in and they want the ability to practice liberal values, and they want a system of transparent, accountable government, one that is elected by and responsive to the people.

See, the vision of the people of Hong Kong for their own city, for their society, is anathema to the Chinese Communist Party because the Chinese Communist Party’s deepest fear is that mainland Chinese citizens will demand the freedoms that Hongkongers enjoy, and that quest for freedom on the mainland would pose an unacceptable risk to the authoritarian control of the Communist regime.

So the Chinese Communist Party is cracking down. We have been witnessing it just in recent hours. This new so-called national security law was unilaterally imposed on the people of Hong Kong not from the people of Hong Kong, and that is in direct contravention to Chinese commitments to Hong Kong and the international community. The law was also purposefully written in a very vague and ambiguous manner, designed to essentially criminalize any behavior or speech on the part of a resident of Hong Kong that the Chinese Communist Party does not approve of.

Now, the law may be ambiguous, but the messages being sent toward Hong Kong are not. If a 19-year-old can now be imprisoned for having a sticker on his phone or a 15-year-old girl can be imprisoned for having a flag, then no one is safe, and that is the message that Beijing wants to send to the people of Hong Kong: We can arrest you. We can imprison you if you misbehave. So think twice about what you say, where you go, with whom you meet, what you read, what you write. Maybe even think twice about what you think.

This law looks like it means the end of Hong Kong’s autonomy and the freedoms which underpin its social and economic vibrancy. And we are seeing the effects: As I said, hundreds of arrests that occurred just yesterday as tens of thousands of courageous Hongkongers—here we see some of them—poured into the streets to shout and chant and demonstrate peacefully, to tell the Chinese Communist Party that they are not going to back down.

We have also seen Hongkongers who have been forced to scrub their social media history, booksellers who were intending to remove books from their shelves Hong Kong pro-democracy political figures saying that they have to lessen their activism and rethink their strategy.

How can you blame them? How can you blame them? They could face years in prison if the Hong Kong authorities, at the bidding of the people in Beijing, choose to target them.

I think we can fully expect independent media voices in Hong Kong to be silenced and Beijing’s censorship and surveillance apparatus to flourish in the coming months and years.

The fact is, Hong Kong’s vibrancy is being throttled by the Chinese Communist Party.

So I am on the Senate floor today to request passage of a piece of legislation that responds to this. I am pleased to report it has already received unanimous support from both Chambers of Congress. I introduced this legislation with my colleague Senator VAN HOLLEN of Maryland to create real penalties on those responsible for this campaign by the Chinese Communist Party to end Hong Kong’s free way of life.

It is called the Hong Kong Autonomy Act, and the bill would impose mandatory sanctions on anyone involved in taking action to attack the basic freedoms that were promised to the people of Hong Kong.

Critically, our legislation also takes another step. It penalizes banks that choose to finance the erosion of Hong Kong’s autonomy, banks that would put marginal profits ahead of the basic human rights of the people of Hong Kong.

I am really pleased that we are here this morning. I think we are on the verge of sending this legislation to the President’s desk because America needs to take meaningful steps like this to push back on the Chinese Communist Party.

We should remember that this aggression toward Hong Kong is not limited to Hong Kong. The Chinese Communist Party is intent to spread its influence and power worldwide, and in the process, it is meant to simultaneously undermine and challenge free and open societies. I should point out that the spread of the Chinese Communist Party influence around the world poses a very real threat to us, to Americans, to our national and economic interests.

That is part of why the Hong Kong Autonomy Act is so important. It is not only an effort to shield freedom-loving Hongkongers from this continuing escalation of aggression by the Chinese Communists, but the bill is a larger signal to China. It is a message that the United States and the free world are no longer willing to look past some of the worst behavior that has been occurring. It is a message that our patience has run out.

China is being warned to expect stiff resistance—stiff resistance to stealing American intellectual property, to committing genocide against religious minorities like the Uighurs, to militarizing artificial islands and infringing on other sovereign waters, and trampling on the basic freedoms of the people of Hong Kong.

I could go on, but suffice it to say that this is occurring in the context of a great battle—the great battle about what model the world is going to pursue. Will the citizens of the United States and other democratic nations around the world continue to foster the liberal democratic model that spread around the world after World War II, with its respect for human rights, the rule of law, greater economic freedom underpinned by respect for private property, basic human rights like the freedom of speech and the freedom of a free press and the freedom to worship?

All of that, and the elevation of human dignity that comes from human freedom and democratic values from our model—that is the model that is up against the dark shadows of the authoritarian governments that around us, pushing us to a technically erode, corrode, and warp the values and freedoms that we cherish. Through this bill, the U.S. Senate makes clear which side we are on.

At this point, I would like to yield to the Senator from Maryland.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I want to salute my friend and colleague, the Senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. TOOMEY, for his remarks and for his leadership on this very vital issue of standing up for the rights and freedom of people in Hong Kong and, as he said, sending a signal to others around the world who would seek to stamp out human rights and political freedom.

When Senator TOOMEY and I saw that the Chinese Communist Party was taking its more recent steps to crack down on freedom in Hong Kong, we introduced the Hong Kong Autonomy Act. That passed the U.S. Senate unanimously last week and was sent to the House of Representatives.

This is a very fast turnaround from either of the Chambers in the U.S. Congress. I want to thank Speaker PELOSI and her Republican partner and all the Democrats and Republicans in the House of Representatives for coming together so quickly on this legislation.

The legislation before us made a technical fix to the bill that Senator TOOMEY and I introduced in which this Senate passed last week a technical fix to comply with the constitutional requirements as to where a bill that might generate revenue begins.

With that technical fix, Speaker PELOSI and the Republican leadership sent it right back. Why did they send it right back so quickly? Because this is an urgent moment. In fact, our timing could not be more critical. On Tuesday, President Xi imposed a national security law on Hong Kong by fiat. It was only after the law was passed that Beijing unveiled its provisions. Even Hong Kong’s Chief Executive and President XI loyalist, Carrie Lam, said she hadn’t been allowed to see a draft before the law’s passage.

As Senator TOOMEY indicated, this law is written broadly enough that it will criminalize speech and peaceful assembly. Anybody who publishes anti-Beijing viewpoints could be punished by life in prison. Saying anything seen to be undermining the ruling Communist Party’s authority would be a violation.

This is consistent with mainland China’s approach, which has virtually eliminated independent journalism and severely restricted NGOs.

Here are some highlights of the law that just passed—I should say, imposed. It now mandates that the Hong Kong Government undertake “national security education” in school, social organizations, and media outlets. The law mandates that anyone entering public office in Hong Kong swear allegiance to Beijing.

What is more, the law applies to anyone, anywhere. It can even apply to offenses committed outside the region by a person who is not a permanent resident of the region. That means a U.S. citizen penning an editorial that advocates sanctions against China could technically fall afoul of the new law for “inciting hatred” against Beijing. Legal experts believe this is even broader than the Chinese criminal law applied in mainland China.

Senator TOOMEY said, despite this description, the passage of a law that would punish people for up to life imprisonment for expressing their views, thousands of protesters took to the streets yesterday and staged the largest rally in Hong Kong this year. Hundreds of Hong Kong police officers moved in swiftly to quash dissent and implement the law. Police fired tear gas, pepper spray, and water cannons to disperse the protesters.

The police then issued a statement that noted some protesters were chanting “the Hong Kong police are the only way out.” The statement said such slogans are “suspected to be inciting or abetting others to commit succession” and may violate the new law.

The United States must stand with the people of Hong Kong. That is what this bill says. This bill says we stand with the people of Hong Kong.

As Senator TOOMEY indicated, it would impose mandatory sanctions on individuals who violate China’s obligations to the people of Hong Kong under the joint declaration and the basic law—rights of freedom of speech and equality before the law, freedom of association, and the right from arbitrary or unlawful arrest, detention, and imprisonment. It goes beyond that to impose mandatory sanctions on banks that do business with individuals who are complicit in undermining these freedoms and the rights of the people of Hong Kong.

I am glad we acted quickly. As you can see, the Government of China is moving by the day to squash the rights and freedoms of the people of Hong Kong. We need to move with urgency to send a statement that we stand with the people of Hong Kong.

In a moment, I am going to be joining my colleague, Senator TOOMEY, in asking for unanimous consent. Before I turn it back over to him, let me just say, assuming we get that—and it looks like we will—I hope President Trump will sign this immediately—immediately.

As a country, Republicans and Democrats together need to send a strong signal that we will not stand for the actions of Beijing, undermining their own agreements—agreements under international law, which they are bound to, and we will not stand still in silence and do nothing while they crack down on freedom in Hong Kong.

I yield to Senator TOOMEY from Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. President, again, let me stress how grateful I am for the persuasive, effective advocacy of Senator VAN HOLLEN throughout this entire effort. I am very grateful to him, as I am to other colleagues who helped make this happen.

As in legislative session, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 7440, which was received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will report the bill by title.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 7440) to impose sanctions with respect to foreign persons involved in the erosion of certain obligations of China with respect to Hong Kong, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered read a third time and passed and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 7440) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

OFFICE OF NET ASSESSMENT

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I have made a career in the Senate fighting against waste, fraud, and abuse. Most recently, I have found this waste in an office within the Department of Defense called the Office of Net Assessment. Its purpose is to produce an annual net assessment, which is a long-term look at our military’s capabilities and those of our greatest adversaries.

I am here to say to my colleagues that that office has lost its way. When I began a review of Stefan Halper’s contracting work at the Office of Net Assessment, something didn’t look right. So I asked the inspector general to look into it.

For those who are unaware, Stefan Halper was a central figure in the debunked Russia collusion investigation. Stefan Halper secretly recorded Trump campaign officials during Crossfire Hurricane. Halper also received over a million taxpayer dollars from the Office of Net Assessment for several “research” projects, but the inspector general found some problems with that contract.

The Office of Net Assessment didn’t require Halper to submit evidence that he actually talked to the people he cited, and which included Russian intelligence officers.

Secondly, the Office of Net Assessment couldn’t provide sufficient documentation that Halper conducted all of his work in accordance with the law.

And, third, the Office of Net Assessment didn’t maintain sufficient documentation to comply with all Federal contracting requirements and Office of Management and Budget guidelines.

The inspector general also found that these problems were not unique just to Halper’s contracts, which indicates, then, systemic issues within the Office of Net Assessment. Moreover, it has been reported that some of the individuals that Halper cited as sources in his research have denied contributing to Halper’s work.

Oddly, Office of National Assessment Director James Baker has repeatedly told me that Halper’s deliverables were “high quality” and “conformed to the requirements set forth in the contract.”

What planet does the Office of Net Assessment live on?

The office spends almost $30 million a year of taxpayers’ money to every year. Yet according to a deposition of Mr. Baker, the Office of Net Assessment hasn’t performed any annual net assessments since 2007.

A net assessment is the Office of Net Assessment’s core mission. It even says so in the title. Its purpose of doing net assessments got lost along the way.

Moreover, after I began my oversight work at the Office of Net Assessment, a Department of Defense directive regulating the Office of Net Assessment was changed to provide cover for the unit’s lackluster performance. Isn’t that convenient? When your work is to do net assessment and you have been in existence for decades, and since 2007, you haven’t been doing your net assessment, why change what the purpose of the Office of Net Assessment is all about. They did it pretty simply.

On April 14, 2020, the word “shall” was removed from the December 13, 2009, version of the directive that required the Office of Net Assessment to produce what their title said—“net assessments.” The new version also changed the Office of Net Assessment’s research scope to generic research, seemingly unrelated to a net assessment—how convenient.

This swamp needs to be drained.

Last week, I introduced an amendment to the Defense bill that does several things. First, it reduces Office of Net Assessment’s budget to $10 million, a year instead of $20 million a year. Second, my amendment requires the Secretary of Defense to create a comprehensive plan to ensure that the Office of Net Assessment performs what the title of the agency says it is supposed to do—an annual net assessment—and complies, at the same time, with every dollar they get with Federal contracting requirements. This would take it back to the reason why it was first created decades ago.

Third, the amendment would require the Department of Defense inspector general to study and report on the Office of Net Assessment’s contracting failures and determine if the net assessment can be done for less than $10 million.

And, fourth, it requires the Government Accountability Office to perform an audit of the effectiveness of the comprehensive plan.

Right now, it is pretty clear that the Office of Net Assessment lacks leadership and discipline, and it is also pretty clear that it has wasted tens of millions of dollars over the years. Congress must take a stand. That is why I am here to encourage my colleagues to support my amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. RES. 645

Mr. PRESIDENT. Mr. President, before we break for the Fourth of July recess, I think it is important for the Senate to go on record condemning the rising tide of mob violence that we see across the country and the increasingly prevalent mob mentality that is fueling it.

Violence structures. This week when one of my constituents was shot after an armed mob surrounded his vehicle in Provo, UT.

This resolution is not controversial. Even in these divisive times, it is constitutional. I think we can all agree on, and I want to read through some highlights right now so you get a feel for it.

The United States of America was founded in 1776 on universal principles of freedom, justice, and human equality.

Throughout our nation’s history, Americans have struggled to realize those ideals . . . but nonetheless [have made] greater progress toward them than any [other] nation on earth.

[The United States is a diverse nation] committed to cultivating respect, friendship, and justice across all such differences, and protecting the God-given equal rights of all Americans under the law.

America’s law enforcement officers do an extremely difficult job, extremely well, and despite the inexcusable misconduct of some, the overwhelming majority of such officers are honest, courageous, patriotic, and rightfully honored public servants.

In recent weeks, people across the United States have organized legitimate, peaceful, and protected demonstrations against instances of police brutality and racial inequality.

[Of some of these Americans have organized peaceful protests calling for investigations into serious problems meriting investigation and reform.]

Some Americans, unsatisfied with peaceful and respectful demonstrations, have engaged in acts of vandalism and indulged in mob violence and criminal property destruction, not in service of any . . . coherent cause, but simply as an arrogant, bullying tantrum of self-righteous illiberalism and rage.

These mobs have demonstrated not only contempt for public safety (as evidenced, among other crimes, by an unprovoked physical assault on a Wisconsin State Senator and the [more recent] shooting of a motorist in Provo, UT) and common decency (as evidenced by their organized burning of law enforcement officers standing their posts to protect their communities), but also their manifest ignorance and historical illiteracy (as evidenced by their destruction of public memorials to historical heroes like Ulysses S. Grant, St. Junipero Serra, Miguel Cervantes, George Washington, Hans Christian Heg, and a reported plan to target a statue of Abraham Lincoln financed in 1876 entirely by private donations from freed African-American slaves).

It is the sense of the Senate that the rising tide of vandalism, mob violence, and the mob mentality that feeds it—including its cruel and intolerant “cancel culture”—should be condemned by all Americans.

Confronting these demonstrations and mob violence are different in kind; [that] physical assault and property destruction are not forms of political speech but violent crimes whose perpetrators should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law; and (that) the innocent law enforcement officers, public officials, and private citizens who suffer the mob’s violence and endure its scorn while protecting our communities from those deserve (every American’s appreciation)

As I say, it is very straightforward.

As we saw in Seattle this week, these mobs are not going to stop until they are stopped. A nonbinding resolution is the tiniest first step of a response—the mere recognition of the Senate’s acknowledged institutional muscles. We need to do much, much more, and I look forward to working with colleagues on both sides of the aisle to develop the legislation to do it.

Yet, in this divided political moment, heading into the 244th birthday of the greatest, freest, most tolerant, and prosperous nation the world has ever known, I think showing that Senate Republicans and showing that Senate Republicans work together and speak with one voice against woke mob violence and in defense of equal justice and civic peace would be a welcomed step.

Therefore, Mr. President, as if in legislation united, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 645, submitted earlier today. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to; that the preamble be agreed to; and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid on the table with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, look, there are nuggets in the Senator’s resolution—certainly recognizing that, overwhelmingly, law enforcement does an honorable and valuable job in our society. The bad ones make it difficult for all the good ones. I would agree with that. But I have to be honest with you. There are also elements of this resolution that are not as straightforward as the gentleman would have you believe.

First of all, the very first paragraph says that we were founded on universal principles of freedom, justice, and human equality. Of course, slavery existed at the time. There is no mention of America’s sin, which is slavery. Certainly we cannot think of slavery as human equality.

Then, to go on to suggest in his third paragraph that we are morally committed to justice “across all such differences, and protecting the God-given rights of all Americans under the law,” well, I can tell you, in my home State of New Jersey and across the Nation, there are many Americans who clearly do not believe that we are morally committed to justice across all such differences. And, in the matter of fact, we saw that in how the majority responded to the George Floyd death and others across the Nation—a lot of rhetoric; very little reform. So we would be hard-pressed to believe that paragraph has legitimacy as well.

Then the resolution reeks of supremacy, self-righteous illiberalism, manifest ignorance, and historical illiteracy. It reeks of a supremacist view: We know better.

Even with all of those problems and even with the fact that it has come at the last moment, there was no effort to work with anybody to offer maybe a bipartisan proposal that would capture all of this. Even though it seeks to mischaracterize overwhelmingly what has been the peaceful protests of people in the Nation, I would consider not objecting to the Senator’s request if he also recognized and added to his resolution the fact that we have a President of the United States who ultimately provokes inciteful language and inciteful violence.

I mean, we have a President who retweets a video of people saying “White power. White power.”

We have a President who retweets a video of White citizens with arms, pointing at peaceful protesters—those who—at the end of the day, it is their right to peacefully protest.

We have a President who said that there were good people on all sides, including the White supremacists, in Charleston.

We have a President who used violence—the armed force of the State and violence against peaceful protesters in Lafayette Park, who were doing none of what the Senator suggests in his resolution.

Despite all of that, if the Senator would modify his request to include the following language: Insert at the end of his last line, line 15, section—make a new section (5): “Our elected officials, especially the President of the United States, should not incite violence or legitimize those who engage in hate-fueled rhetoric or who incite the law enforcement to move forward and not objecting to it.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRUZ). Does the Senator so modify his request?

Mr. LEE. Reserving the right to object, as I look at the language proposed by my colleague from New Jersey, I would accept the rest of it except for the words “especially the President of the United States.” The rest of it is unobjectionable.

The point here is that without point—point, as I look at the language proposed by my colleague from New Jersey, I would accept the rest of it except for the words “especially the President of the United States.”

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, it is especially the President of the United States—the person who leads our Nation—who should be a unifying force, not one who incites violence; therefore, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, what is happening here? This is the U.S. Senate. Just to let everyone know that we are bat guano-inspired insanity we just witnessed, I just proposed a nonbinding resolution condemning mob violence, and Senate Democrats objected. I don’t know whether to be outraged or embarrassed for them. This isn’t even a bill; it is just a statement that says mob violence is bad. Democrats can’t say mob violence is bad without simultaneously taking a jab at the President of the United States?

By the way, what about the mayor of Seattle? What about the city council of Minnesota? What about the countless other people who have perpetuated or enabled or facilitated or coddled mob violence across the Nation?

It is one of the reasons why we are not going to engage in this task of making it a political tit-for-tat. It is not that. People are being shot. Businesses are being looted. Innocent Americans are being attacked and threatened. Lives are being ruined. Communities are burning—literally burning.

Whose side are you on? This resolution was designed to be unifying. It avoided controversial subjects.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. SCHATZ. Mr. President, may I ask the Presiding Officer to remind us of rule XIX?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will remind Senators of both parties that rule XIX provides that no Senator in debate shall directly or indirectly, by any form of words, impute to another Senator or to other Senators any conduct or motive unworthy or unbecoming of a Senator.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, the resolution was designed to be unifying. It avoided controversial subjects. All it asks of us is basic dignity and respect. As long as we are on the topic of rule XIX, it is unbecoming to accuse a colleague of using language that is supremely simply by reflecting on language that acknowledges the incivility and intolerability of mob violence. But apparently that is too much to ask today. I guess we should be thankful for clarity. And now we know. We don’t have to tell the American people how they feel about this resolution.

You can’t really oppose this, it seems to me, without being on the side of the mobs, of mob violence, of mob mentality, of cruelty and intolerance and violence. Therefore we understand what this resolution is about. I don’t think one can oppose this without being comfortable with those things. These mobs are not progressive. These mobs are not enlightened. These mobs are not edgy. They are not hip. They are frauds. They are dim-witted, phony, drama addicts—
Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry. Is this line not in direct violation of rule XIX?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair concludes that pointing out that mob violence is dangerous to our Na- tion is not contrary to rule XIX or any other rule of the Senate.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, further parliamentary inquiry. There is not a question of mob violence. The question is that imputing to Members who did not agree with the framework and language of this resolution that they are supporting mob violence—that must be in violation of rule XIX if this is going to be a deliberative body.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is more than entitled to express his views in the course of debate, but other Senators will likewise express their views in the course of debate.

Mr. LEE. Failed by an education sys- tem organized by a social media cul- ture that taught them to be victims ine- stead of citizens. A privileged, self-ab- sorbed crime syndicate with participa- tion-trophy graduate degrees, trying to find meaning in empty lives by de- stroying things that other Americans have spent honest, productive lives building.

Today we learned—today we learned—that there are those who are comfortable with this. There are those who are not inclined to vote for this resolution, which simply con- demns mob violence. Now we know. Now we know.

I want all my colleagues to know that when we return from recess, we are coming back to the Senate floor and we are not just going to be debat- ing nonbinding resolutions. It is long past time to expose the shiftless idocy of the anti-American, anti-science, anti- Constitution mob and remove their snouts from the Federal trough.

Colleges and universities that punish free speech and discriminate against conservative and religious students; city councils that defund their police departments and refuse to protect pub- lic safety; States that force doctors to mutilate confused children without their parents' consent; school districts that embrace the ahistorical nonsense of the anti-American, anti-science, anti- Constitution mob and remove their snouts from the Federal trough.

As long as we are calling each other out on casting aspersions on each oth- er's intentions, no one's intention here is to shield anyone from anything, as evidenced by the fact that, as my pro- posed modification would have pro- vided, it would have said that "our elected officials should not incite vio- lence or legitimize those who engage in hate-fueled acts." Last I checked, the President of the United States was and is an elected official. This would apply to him. My counter in no way insul- ated—not him, not any elected official, not any of us from this resolution, which simply condemns mob violence.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, all I asked in my counter was that we remove the words "especially the President of the United States." Why? Because it is dif- ferent than the entire approach taken by the resolution.

We have a problem in this institution of the uneven enforcement of rule XIX, of the so-called "woke" ideology—de- pends on Federal money.

The mob hates America on America's dime. The mob is off the taxpayer's allowance. I think the American people would be very interested to know who stands for them and who stands for subsidizing the mob. I intend to show them.

Mr. President, this debate is not end- ing today; it is only the beginning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sen- ator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, we have learned something today. We have learned that my colleagues are unwill- ing to call out the President of the United States when the President of the United States uses language that incites violence; says that White su- permen are no good as everybody else; retweets a video of White Americans saying "White power;" retweets a video of two indi- viduals with guns pointed at peaceful protesters; uses the force of the State to clean out protesters in La- fayette Park; goes and says, in fact, "when the looting starts, the shooting starts." That has a historical context to it, and the "liberate Virginia. It is under siege," and so, so much more.

So, I look forward to that debate because I have legislation to deal with the rising tide of White supremacists' actions that, at the end of the day, have even been recognized by some of our law enforcement entities as a grow- ing national threat. So I look forward to having that debate, look forward to having that legislation on the floor, and we will see how our colleagues act then.

But it is totally unacceptable to cast aspersions that do not equal those of the person who leads our country, and we should recognize that. What it shows me is that I guess President Trump is right—he could shoot some- one on Fifth Avenue and get away with it, and certainly my colleagues here would not hold him responsible.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. LEE. Mr. President, all I asked in my counter was that we remove the words "especially the President of the United States." Why? Because it is dif- ferent than the entire approach taken by the resolution.

As long as we are calling each other out on casting aspersions on each oth- er's intentions, no one's intention here is to shield anyone from anything, as evidenced by the fact that, as my pro- posed modification would have pro- vided, it would have said that "our elected officials should not incite vio- lence or legitimize those who engage in hate-fueled acts." Last I checked, the President of the United States was and is an elected official. This would apply to him. My counter in no way insul- ated—not him, not any elected official, not any of us from this resolution, which simply condemns mob violence.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. SCHATZ. Mr. President, I will be very quick. I understand we have work to do on the Defense authorization and the vote coming up, but I am glad the majority leader is on the floor, and I am glad so many Members are on the floor.

We have a problem in this institution of the uneven enforcement of rule XIX, and it is in this Chamber.

I have just by happenstance been on the floor for various violations being called by the Presiding Officer, usually with the advice of the Parliament- tarian. It is very clear to me that the rules are not being applied equally to each party, and I think that is some- thing we are going to have to wrestle with if we are going to continue to be worthy of the moniker "the world's greatest deliberative body."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, could I ask my colleagues to yield mo- mentarily? I would request that Senator INHOFE be able to lock in an agreement on the NDAA, and then the discussion could resume.

So, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator INHOFE be recog- nized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

public, to have the discussion about renaming our military bases and about the future of these war memorials in public, to conduct open hearings where military families and veterans and the local community can be heard and where we can see and find common ground together. That is all I am asking for. And all I am asking for is a vote on this.

Yet, here today, on the floor of the U.S. Senate, I have been told that we cannot even have a vote. We can’t even call the roll on this. No, we just have to swallow it and move on as the woken cancel culture moves on, steamrolling our history and our traditions, and, yes, our best traditions as Americans.

You know, our military bases are more than walls and fences. They are more than lines on a piece of paper in a 1,000-page bill. Our bases are full of life and history. They are hallowed ground for the soldiers and veterans who have trained and served at them. They connect local communities with their legacy. They form fond memories, and they help relationships endure. They have meaning that transcends any one person or even a place, and that history belongs to all of us. So all of us should debate this together and move forward together. I am sorry that we have been denied an opportunity to do so today.

I yield the floor.

HONG KONG AUTONOMY ACT

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, what is happening at this moment in Hong Kong is a tragedy, a crime, an affront to the civilized world. In a year in which so much has happened, we may look back in the near future and view this moment in Hong Kong as the single biggest moment of the year. It is not getting enough attention, though, because the Communist Party is using the pandemic as cover for its crimes against Hong Kong.

Under the cover of night, the Communist Party’s puppets in Hong Kong have enacted a security law that threatens to sweep aside the traditions and freedoms that have made that city such a special place. While the Chinese Communist Party hasn’t yet rolled in tanks, as it did in Tiananmen Square, the effects of this law are no less chilling to democracy.

The security law imposes broad prohibitions on what it calls subversive activities. What kinds of activities? All forms of protest and dissent, maintaining a slogan like “Hong Kong independence” or “Hongkongers, build a nation.” In other words, the security law criminalizes basic elements of peaceful protests and democratic change that Hongkongers have used for years and that set apart their fellow citizens on the mainland.

The new law also erodes the rights of the accused that are essential to a fair legal system. The Chinese Communist Party isn't interested in fair- ness. It is interested in control—total control—and this law exerts total control over the people of Hong Kong.

Under the new law, protesters accused of such vague crimes as separation and collusion can be smuggered away to mainland China to be tried in Communist courts. The so-called crimes don’t even have to be committed in Hong Kong in order to be punished; the new law could encompass exemplaries with foreign citizenship living overseas—even here in America. So simply meeting with a U.S. Senator, like me or Senator McConnell or Senator Schumer or Senator Van Hollen, could land a Hongkonger in prison for a lifetime.

The Chinese Communist Party thus is extending its iron rule beyond its own shores to our free soil. Those convicted under the new law could face life imprisonment, alongside the many underground church leaders, Uighurs, Tibetans, government mem- bers, and other persecuted individuals. The Chinese Communist Party has already “disappeared.”

Indeed, the crackdown is already under way. The Chinese Communist Party’s agents in Hong Kong rounded up as many as 300 protesters this week for what it called unlawful assembly. Some of the protesters were arrested under the supposed authority of the new security law. Their fate at this moment is unknown.

The takeover of Hong Kong may seem like an event far away, especially when we have so many problems at home. But the same could have been said after the Second World War when Stalin and the Soviet secret police dropped an Iron Curtain over Eastern Europe. Czechoslovakia and Poland were far away, too, but the brutal repression of their people showed the world what was at stake in the titanic struggle between freedom and communism.

We face the same sort of titanic struggle today, and it is not limited to Hong Kong. All across the periphery, the Chinese Communist Party is acting aggressively. It has essentially invaded India and killed 20 Indian soldiers. In the South China Sea, it has attacked or otherwise threatened vessels from Vietnam, Malaysia, and the Philippines and has repeatedly and increasingly encroached on Taiwanese and Japanese airspace.

But in Hong Kong, the security law proves most clearly that the Chinese Communist Party will not abide by its commitments to its own people or to foreign nations. Through actions this week, Beijing has effectively torn up the joint declaration it made with Britain to govern the peaceful handover of Hong Kong just as cynically as China has broken its commitments to the United States, to the World Trade Organization, to the World Health Organization, and others.

And, of course, this law exposes once again the hideous nature of communism, which is so paranoid and insecure, it can't tolerate even a tiny outpost of freedom within its borders. No wonder. Freedom is an attractive, precious, and contagious thing. The way of life enjoyed by the citizens of Hong Kong could give the wrong ideas to the 1 billion Chinese yearning for freedom. The way of life enjoyed by the citizens of Hong Kong could give the wrong ideas to the 1 billion Chinese yearning for freedom. They will be doing it this weekend, the Fourth of July—24/7, 7 days a week, the news, and we have been debating whether to its own people or to foreign nations. When the Russians fly their Bear bombers and fighter jets into or near American air space, these intrepid Americans are on duty to ensure that our F-22s are there to intercept and don't hear our aircraft who threaten to move into our defense identification zone, or ADIZ, as we call it. They are there waiting and intercepting Russian bombers. These airmen keep us all safe. As I mentioned, they are all worthy of the great Alaskans of the Week.

Before I get into exactly what these men and women do to guard our Nation—and they do it round the clock; they are doing it right now, by the way—and it is the Fourth of July, by the way—I would like to talk a little about Russia and Alaska and our close geography. I want to give a little geography lesson. There are actual places in Alaska where you really can see Russia from your house.

Russia and Alaska are divided by the Bering Strait, which is about 55 miles at its narrowest point. In the middle of the Bering Strait sit two islands, Big Diomede, which is actually Russian territory, and Little Diomede, which is part of Alaska, part of America. They are less than 2 1/2 miles apart from each other, nearly touching. In the words of a New York Times reporter, it is the place where “the two great continental powers reach across the map and all but touch, like the outstretched figures in Michelangelo's The Creation of Adam.” It is a little dramatic, but you get the point—Little Diomede and Big Diomede.

On a clear day, you can see Russia from St. Lawrence Island, which is also Alaskan, and even from our mainland, in Wales, AK. During the Cold War, the Alaska-Siberia frontier was called not the Iron Curtain but the “Ice Curtain,” which we needed to stay closed.

Much preparation was put into keeping Russia from invading or infiltrating the United States from its northern flank—from the Arctic, from Alaska. In the early Cold War years, the United States trained its military to keep the northern flank of our great Nation.

There were the great Eskimo scouts of the Alaska National Guard, who knew the land better than anyone else could. They were so patriotic with their love of this Nation.

It is still unclear how many Russians were able to get to our lands, but stories do abound in Alaska about strangers speaking Russian showing up in small communities, and today, you will still hear such stories.

Something that is very clear and very well known is that between 1961 and 1991, the U.S. military intercepted thousands of long-range Soviet bombers and reconnaissance aircraft when they were moving into American airspace. We used our aircraft back then, the F-102s, F-106s, and later, F-4s, F-15s. Then, like now, our aircraft were superior to the Russians and that was certainly one of the reasons we won the Cold War.

This is still going on today. This is still a threat. The Russians continue to flex their military muscle, from Ukraine to Siberia, and they have added new Blackjack bombers to their SU-33 fighters. They still come close to American airspace via flights near Alaska. That is where our F-22 pilots and those who support them come in.

Just in the last 6 months, our Alaskan F-22s, shown here, have intercepted 10 Russian Bear bombers. We are starting to see Cold War levels of intrusions into American airspace and, of course, our patriotic men and women—young men and women, by the way—are flying that great aircraft, going after these big Bear bombers. There were 10 missions already, and it is just July 2. What are they up to?

Air Force Gen. Terrence O'Shaughnessy, who commands NORAD and these forces, ultimately, the U.S. Northern Command, linked the uptick in Russian military flights off Alaska's coast to the ongoing coronavirus pandemic and Russia's testing of its military readiness. They are testing us, but we are ready for them.

In essence, that is what we have been doing all week—debating and getting ready to vote on final passage of the to intercept the Russians and to top off the 600-gallon F-22 fuel tanks when they are in the air and then refuel them on the way back. This is all part of one big mission. That is what they are doing.

As I mentioned, it is happening a lot—twice a month in the last half year.

Patriotic young men and women are always prepared to defend our country in the sky—24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

One thing I want to do for this “Alaskan of the Week” is remind Americans when they are celebrating the Fourth of July—which is a great thing to do—to remember that these dedicated warriors will be on guard protecting our Nation. When everybody is barbecuing, celebrating America, think about what they are doing.

If you have seen any video of the F-22s flying, it is impressive, but we also have to remember there are real pilots in those planes. Look how close they are in this mission. It can be very dangerous.

Think of this to get a sense of how this all works. It is the middle of the night and the klaxon goes off. It is winter in Alaska. It is dark and 20 below zero. The pole is dropped, you see the klaxon sign is “On Guard.” Maybe that is because he is an F-22 stealth fighter pilot, able to sneak up on Bear bombers like this without being seen and even heard. But I have also heard that maybe it is because when it is time to pay the tab at a bar, he doesn’t seem to be around. Just kidding there, Colonel Deptula, Ghost. I can’t think of a better call sign for an F-22 stealth fighter pilot in Alaska, and we are very, very proud of Ghost in the Sullivan Senate office.

Here is how it works. Here is what these brave young men and women in the U.S. Air Force do to protect our Nation. We have 15 long-range radar sites across the great State of Alaska, which are constantly feeding information to the 176th Air Defense Squadron, which analyze that information.

By the way, I have the honor and pleasure next week of hosting the Secretary of the Air Force in Alaska. She will be able to see our great military members, and we will go out and actually see some of these radar sites.

When our military note troublesome activity, they send out a bone-rattling alarm—what is called the KLAXON—to alert our country. I was trying to think of where in the world to go on my 50th birthday, and I went to Anchorage, AK, to go fishing at Halibut Cove. I had a wonderful time and have a great memory. So the Senator represents a really terrific State.

Mr. President, I thank my good friend from Tennessee for those kind comments.

CORONAVIRUS

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, just 3½ months ago, a sneaky, dangerous virus turned our country and the world upside down. It is hard to believe that it was just 3½ months ago—mid-March—that we were headed toward March Madness in basketball; that our economy was roaring; that unemployment rates for about every category were as low as they had been in a long, long time. America felt really good about itself. By the time we would have gotten to the Fourth of July, it would have been a terrific celebration except that here came this dangerous virus that turned our lives and those in countries all over the world upside down.

I want to comment this afternoon on some aspects of where we are in terms of COVID–19 based upon five congressional hearings that I have either chaired or attended in our HELP Committee or the one I participated in today in Senator BLUNT’s Appropriations Committee on Health. Of course, Senator MURRAY, of Washington State, is the ranking Democrat on both of those committees.

Of course, much of the talk is about vaccines. Even though we have appropriated $3 trillion and another astonishing $3 trillion in credit, that is not going to really solve the problem. The only cure for this disease, this virus, will ultimately be through testing, treatments, and vaccines. It is appropriate that we talk about vaccines because our country is moving more rapidly than it ever has in producing a safe and effective vaccine for a new virus.

As Dr. Francis Collins—the head of the National Institutes of Health—told our subcommittee this morning, it usually takes, historically, 5 to 10 years to create a vaccine. Here, the goal of the administration’s warped speed effort to create a vaccine is to have 300 million doses ready by the first of this coming year—in other words, 6 months from now. National goals in engineering are not standards in biology. You don’t have to ship them off. You would probably do this with saliva. So you might put a lollypop in your mouth and let that saliva on the lollypop indicate, one way or another, whether you have a positive or a negative result.

Dr. Collins’ goal—and he said this is a very aspirational goal—is to be able to produce a million of those tests a day by Labor Day. This would change the way we do things in many ways. This would mean that Brown’s president could surely test all students, not just once when they go back but more often. It would mean many sports teams could test every player every day if that is what it required. It would mean that we would probably have more tests than we would need.
What would that do? It would, one, help to contain the disease so we could identify who has this disease so we could quarantine them and the people they have exposed instead of quarantining all of us and keeping us from going back to school, out to eat, and going to work.

It would contain the disease, and it would build confidence. If you are working in a plant with 500 people and you know that 6 people have had to be tested because they had been tested and were found to have been positive, you are going to worry about that. Yet, if you know that you could get a free test today and any time you wanted and could get the result in an hour, I believe you would have more confidence in going to work or in going to school or in going out to eat or even in playing on a football team whether you are in college or in high school.

So we are pulling for Dr. Collins’ shark tank and his effort to produce these new ways of testing. They have had an unprecedented outpouring of applications. He said most of them come from smaller companies. They are down to 26, I believe is the number, and they are putting them through this rigorous test. His goal is a million new tests a day.

That is important for principals to know and teachers to know and those who are hoping to play a little football and watch a little basketball this fall—that there might be plenty of quick, reliable tests to help contain the disease in your community and to be confident that you are in a safe place.

And then what is the second thing we could expect?

We heard about treatments. As Senator Kennedy says in his inimitable way, people aren’t scared of the virus because they are afraid they might get sick; they are afraid they might die. And they might, particularly if they are in a vulnerable population or older age.

There is no medicine for this virus, or at least there wasn’t until recently. Now there is one, Remdesivir, which the United States has bought a huge amount of, which has been shown to reduce by 32 percent—according to Dr. Fauci, who testified at our hearing yes—reduce by 32 percent the amount of time it takes you to recover from COVID-19. According to the experts, there are three plasma medicines and steroids that have shown to be helpful. That exists today.

So if you are a parent or a grandparent or a teacher or administrator worried about children going back to school, you are probably not very worried about the children catching COVID—19 because, generally speaking, they haven’t seemed to get sick from COVID-19—all around the world. It has been older people who do. But the children don’t go home and hurt the parent or the grandparent. As I said, this is a sneaky, dangerous virus. You can give it to somebody without showing any symptoms of having it. But if you get it, there are already two or three treatments that your doctors, your hospital can prescribe to shorten the time that you recover and to reduce the chance that you might die.

Dr. Collins said that by the time we get to the fall, he expects there will be more of these treatments approved by the FDA. There are different kinds of treatments, and he didn’t go into all the specifics, but one kind he mentioned is called antibody cocktails. This was developed during the time of Ebola, and it was approved by the FDA. It helped us get rid of the Ebola disease before it came to the United States and caused a lot of trouble here.

This antibody cocktail—“monoclonal antibody” is the longer name of it—is not approved yet. It is not proved to be safe or effective yet, but because it was one before, there is a cautious optimism that it will be approved for COVID—19—a version of it—and that those will be ready by the fall.

If it does work out that this treatment is safe and effective and approved by the Food and Drug Administration, there are several companies that have these antibody cocktails, and they should be able to manufacture large numbers of them.

I guess my point is, we talk a lot about vaccines. We spend every day hearing about the deaths, the hospitalizations, and what is going on, and this spike or that spike, but as we think about 75 million students going back to school and college, going back to work, whether we will see some football or maybe basketball later, the two aspects that are needed to determine that are tests and whether the shark tank will produce enough of them and both seem to have a good possibility of being there for us in the fall.

We had a hearing last week that focused on this question: How do we sustain what we have built in this pandemic? Can we sustain what we have built or are we going to lose it, or are we going to let it drop off once more?

Our State and local public health. Almost all of our public health efforts in this country are State and local. We are working with a small Federal Government where everything is centralized. We are a great big, complicated, diverse country where parts of Indiana are very different from parts of Tennessee and Alaska and New York or wherever we are from, and as Governor Leavitt, who testified before us, said, for 30 or 40 years, we have gradually disinvested in our public health system. We are not building that up, but are we going to sustain it?

So that is my hope, that when it comes to building up this manufacturing capacity here in the United States, increasing our stockpiles to the levels they should be, beginning to collect the data in the way it needs to be collected, preparing our hospitals to receive patients, building up our State and local public health—are we going to sustain that while we have our eye on the ball, or are we going to do what we have done in the last 20 years and slide off into a short memory?

Senator Bill Frist, who was majority leader of this body, said that he made 20 speeches in 2005 and 2006 about what we needed to do to be prepared for the next pandemic, which he said is surely coming. They did some things, but most of the things that he said needed to be done weren’t done. We could do them today if we would just have the resolve to do them.

Governor Leavitt said that before a pandemic, those who do what he and Senator Frist did, which was to say we need to do all these things, are called alarmists, and then after a pandemic or in the middle of it, they are called inadequate to the task.

Then there is the last point I would like to make, and it is about politics. The COVID—19 virus—this sneaky, dangerous enemy—is a science matter, not a political matter, but it has become too much of a political matter.

Take the issue of masks. We have gotten into a situation where whether...

LY GETTING BACK TO WORK AND BACK TO SCHOOL—JUNE 30, 2020
All of our witnesses today are participating in-person. Attorneys are participating by videoconference.
I’d like to say something about masks:

The Office of the Attending Physician has advised that senatorial offices may remove their masks to talk into the microphone since our chairs are all six feet apart.
So that’s what I’ll do as a senator because I’m six feet away from everyone else. But like many other senators on this committee, when I’m walking the hallways or on the Senate floor, I wear a mask. People wear masks because the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention advises the use of “simple cloth face coverings to slow the spread of the virus.”

Unfortunately this simple lifesaving practice has become part of a political debate that says: If you’re for Trump, you don’t wear a mask. If you’re against Trump, you do.
That is why I have suggested the president should require anyone who should catch the disease; Democrats were more likely to be able to go back to school, back to college, back to work, eat, and maybe even watch a little football.

Every expert who testified in the six hearings this month and this hearing, there are three things to do: Wear a mask, wash your hands, and stay 6 feet apart when you can. If all of us do those things, we are much more likely to be able to get back to school, back to college, back to work, eat, and maybe even watch a little football.

Vanderbilt University did a survey in the middle of May, and what they found was surprising. Most of the attidudes of people in Tennessee weren’t about male versus female or east versus west or any other difference; it was about Republican or Democrat.
Republicans didn’t want to wear a mask
very much; the Democrats mostly did.
Republicans were eager to go out to eat; Democrats were a little slower.
Republicans weren’t as worried about catching the disease; Democrats were pretty worried. The debate got too politicized.

I thank President Trump for what he said yesterday. He has 70 or 80 million people as his social media followers. If they get the idea that wearing a “Make America Great Again” mask is good for the country, I bet millions will wear it.
If they do, the country will be safer, the economy will be better, and we will be able to go back to school and do the other things we want to do.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to print in the Record my opening statement from our hearing yesterday.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

While states and communities continue to take action to keep people safe, nothing was more disruptive to American life—and nothing would head it back toward normal—than closures for those who did not have the resources to afford private schools and 6,000 colleges to reopen safely this Fall.

Earlier this month, I announced plans for opening my hearing room to hear from college presidents and school leaders about their plans for safely reopening this fall. This hearing is an opportunity for an update to that hearing in October.
This hearing is an opportunity for a more in-depth discussion on the concerns they raised, and to share some preliminary thoughts from those precautions.

In addition to the Łańcuchowice Maternity Hospital in Poland, one of the other countries that has established a vaccine bank, the United States is one of the countries that is considering this approach.

I’d like to share some thoughts with you about the current situation in the United States and the global situation.

The United States is in the middle of a very concerning rise in COVID-19 cases and hospitalizations in many states, and the experts in front of us today have told us to wash our hands, stay apart and wearing a mask are three of the most important ways to slow the spread of the virus.

I am grateful to those who have made the sacrifices of social distancing and self-quarantining for the sake of our country. I am grateful to all of the healthcare workers who continue to work on the front lines.

Among the casualties of COVID-19 are the 75 million students who were sent home from schools and colleges in March.

Do you know where they are now?

Many American colleges—overall considered the best in the world—will be permanently damaged or even closed if they remain, in Brown University president Christina Paxsons words, “ghost towns.”

So today, in addition to hearing more about the concerning rise in cases and hospitalizations in some states in the U.S., I would like to hear testimony before their statements and answers to questions to put themselves in the place of a superintendent of one of America’s approximately 14,000 school districts, or the principal or headmaster of one of the 135,000 schools, or the president or chancellor of one of the 6,000 colleges, asking the question of how to reopen schools safely.

So Dr. Fauci, I hope that in your opening statement or in answers to questions you will provide a road map to how to reopen safely and how we can begin to reopen safely and begin to fully reopen for the fall.

Dr. Hahn—Will there be treatments or medicines this fall that will help speed recovery or reduce the risk of death or severe illness? I believe the fear of going back to school—or going anywhere these days—is in large part because of the fear of severe illness that can be lessened by new treatments, it should increase confidence in going back to school.

I would also like to commend Dr. Hahn and the work the FDA did to get tests on the market as quickly as possible to help understand the spread of the virus. Since then, FDA has worked out which tests have not worked as well as others. Would you like to take steps to get them out of the market? What are the prospects for the “shark tank” at NIH that will be new, reliable and inexpensive tests available for more people?

Dr. Redfield—you are continuing to work on additional guidelines about going back to school and college safely. Are CDC employees at states working with school districts or college administrators to develop their plans? And what advice do you have about the arrival of the flu season this fall at the same time as COVID–19?

This is a lot to discuss but there will be time during the next two and half hours to answer most of those questions.

Let me highlight three areas that have come up in our four earlier hearings this month that I think need clarification.

First, contact tracing is crucially important to identify anyone who might have been exposed so that person doesn’t, in turn, expose someone else. According to an NPR report on March 6 that went out to states for nearly $755 million from the first emergency contact tracing. This is in addition to the $3.5 billion for 100,000 contact tracers. So Congress has already sent to states enough money to hire all the contact tracers that are needed.

Second, in the CARES Act, Congress voted to make all COVID–19 tests available to patients at no cost. That meant insurers would cover diagnostic tests for someone with COVID–19. But given that the CDC specifically recommended that only some people were in need of COVID–19 tests, the law may need to provide more money to states to cover that.

If an automaker wants to test all its employees at a plant every two weeks, perhaps the automaker should pay for that testing or become a part of the state testing program using funds already provided by the federal government.

Third, flu shots. CDC has said more people need to get flu shots this fall so health care workers can better distinguish between COVID–19 and the flu. CDC says a priority is for all health care workers to be vaccinated for the flu so they don’t become sick and pass it to more vulnerable populations who could have more severe consequences.

On January 24, Sen. Murray and I hosted our first bipartisan briefing on coronavirus at a time there were only 4 cases in the U.S. Since then this committee has held 4 more briefings. This is our 8th hearing and 4th part of the state testing plan, making all tests free to students and teachers. Congress may need to provide more money to states to cover that.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I am on the floor today to talk about the annual National Defense Authorization Act to support our servicemembers and their families. This is one of the few things that the Senate actually passes and does so on a bipartisan basis, and I am hopeful we will do that again. It is because Republicans and Democrats alike recognize it is imperative to give our men and women serving in our Armed Forces the resources and support they need to carry out their critical missions for all of us.

This year, I am pleased to recognize the importance of ensuring that our troops get compensated properly for the hard work and sacrifices they make. It has an across-the-board 3 percent pay increase in it. They deserve it. On July 4, as we celebrate 244 years of freedom, I think it is appropriate that we demonstrate our support for the brave men and women in uniform whose sacrifices have ensured the liberty we are celebrating.

I am also pleased that there is a lot in this bill that is really important to the people I represent in Ohio. At Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio, which is our State’s largest single-site employer, the bill authorizes $23.5 million for important work on a new hypersonic fuel system for the Defense Logistics Agency. It will make a big difference to our airmen and Air Force civilians and to the troops around the nec
we to do the work that needs to be done.
OPIEDICD

Mr. President, I am here on the floor today to talk about some recent troubling statistics that ought to serve as a call to action for every single one of us. Last Friday, in observance of World Opioid Day, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime released its annual world report detailing the impact of drug use and trafficking across the world. Frankly, the report paints a grim picture that reminds us that America has a unique addiction crisis, especially as it relates to opioids.

The report says that in recent years the United States has lost more men, women, and children to drug overdose deaths—60,000 to 70,000 per year—than the next 20 countries combined.

Let me say that again. The United States has lost more people to drug overdose deaths than the next 20 countries combined. That is unacceptable. This sad comparison of the United States to other countries is a reminder that we have to do better and we can do better.

Even more concerning to me is the recent data we are now receiving about what is happening as a result of the current coronavirus pandemic. It was bad enough, as the world drug report showed, but during the last few months, during this pandemic, things have gotten worse.

The Overdose Detection Mapping Application Program is a collaborative Federal organization that tracks overdose data from more than 3,500 emergency agencies. According to data that has been obtained by the Washington Post, fatal and nonfatal overdoses were 18 percent higher in March of this year as compared to March of 2019. They are 29 percent higher in April. A year ago, this was 42 percent higher this May than they were a year ago, in 2019. These are overdoses that are being tracked through EMS, ambulance, hospital, and emergency rooms. This is really concerning.

One of the findings of this U.N. report was that the most dangerous class of drugs worldwide were opioids, including prescription pain killers, heroin, and the synthetic opioids like fentanyl. These drugs were the cause of about two-thirds of the overdose deaths in the world in recent years, according to the U.N.

The recent data shows that fentanyl use, in particular, has gone up in the United States during this pandemic, especially when it is laced with other drugs, such as heroin, meth, and cocaine. As many of my colleagues know, one of my top priorities in Congress over the last few years has been to combat this opioid addiction crisis that has hit communities in my home State of Ohio so hard. This new information about the resurgence of addiction is particularly discouraging because in recent years we have made great progress. We had actually, finally, after years and years of increased overdose deaths every single year—finally, in the last few years, we had begun to see a reversal of that, and here we have, during this pandemic, the opposite happening.

In 2017, Ohio’s opioid overdose death rate was almost three times the national average. We were one of the top three countries in more than 3,500 cases of overdose deaths. Nearly a dozen Ohioans are dying from these drugs every day, surpassing car crashes as our country’s top killer among young people and, for Ohio overall, the State’s No. 1 killer. But that next year, in 2018, it increased every year, and finally we saw a reduction. In Ohio it was a significant reduction.

Over the last couple of years, prior to the coronavirus, we continued to make steady progress—not 22 percent, but we made steady progress in declining. We achieved these strides, in part, thanks to legislation we passed in this Congress—significant commitment of new resources by the Republicans and Democrats on this floor and by the administration. The CARA Act and CARES Act provided local and State governments and nonprofit groups with additional resources to support prevention treatment and recovery programs effectively.

I was the author of the CARA legislation. We spent 4 years putting it together, with national forces coming in from all over the country helping us, and we put together something that made sense and that was actually working.

We have also ensured that our first responders had to radically change the way this crisis had the resources they need, including the miracle drug Naloxone, which reverses the effects of an overdose.

This kind of continued support was critical for our communities making the progress in combating the disease of addiction, and I have been proud to help lead the effort at the Federal level, although at the State level and local level everybody has kicked in, including so many volunteers and so many families, and it has made a difference.

But these new reports show that now we are going the other way. We have a long way to go in this fight against the addiction crisis in America, and I am afraid we are in danger now of taking a step backward.

Thanks to the coronavirus, our lives have changed in so many ways. Many individuals who have lost their jobs have had nowhere to turn to get the help they need, and I am glad we were able to provide some provisions both in the CARES legislation that was passed about a month ago but also the other legislation we passed around that time. We have done a number of things to cut redtape and the regulatory relief to expand telehealth and telehealth options specifically for opioid treatment, as well as increasing the number of alternate delivery methods for patients who are dependent on opioids.

These reforms have been helpful in offering a lifeline for those working hard to stay sober and clean, and, in some instances, according to addiction and mental health leaders from across the State, these reforms have even allowed addiction specialists to reach new patients who were hesitant to come into the doctor’s office in the first place, sometimes due to the stigma that attaches to addiction.

These aren’t perfect solutions. Of course, because the numbers show that overdoses are up, ultimately, they have been helpful. We are going to have to find a way to get a handle on this coronavirus in a way that we can care for those suffering from addiction, and one of the reasons we see this uptick is that some of the resources that were available have been rolled back.

Some have fallen off their treatment plans, and some have relapsed.

Unfortunately, this is happening right now as we talk. If we combine the number of things that have happened in March and April—people were not able to get elective procedures in hospitals, and there was a shift toward more telehealth to help preserve the personal protection gear, the PPEs, for frontline workers. Many patients and caregivers who relied on face-to-face interaction and around-the-clock care to be able to stay the course on recovery from drug addiction and from mental health issues have not had the in-person care. This is one of the reasons we see this uptick. Some have fallen off their treatment plans, and some have relapsed.

Unfortunately, this is happening right now as we talk. If we combine the number of things that have happened so far in the coronavirus pandemic, so many people feel being quarantined or being isolated, the feeling of frustration, the feeling of despair many Americans have felt with these dual healthcare and economic crises, you have a perfect storm for the resurgence in opioid deaths. That is exactly what has happened in Ohio and around the country.Officials in Hamilton County, which is Cincinnati, OH, where I am from, stated there were 42 overdose deaths in May and that at least 23 people died in June. In Cuyahoga County, our State’s most populous area and the home of Cleveland, the medical examiner’s office and the coroner reported that overdose deaths and drug overdoses so far in 2020 and at least 66 fatal heroin, fentanyl, and cocaine overdoses in May alone. Those figures, by the way, match the deadliest months for overdoses on record in the country and that would be 2017.

Remember, we talked about how the deaths are going up year after year, and 2017 was the peak, and then they went down in 2018. Well, this year already, in Cleveland, we are back up to where we were in 2017. The Columbus coroner’s office has had to move to a space three times larger than its old office to accommodate the increases in overdoses and overdose deaths. We are not alone in this uptick. According to the Center for Optimal Living, 30 States have seen an increase in overdose deaths during this pandemic.

The Federal response to the coronavirus pandemic has included certain measures to ensure those suffering from addiction can continue to get the care they need, and I am glad we were able to provide some provisions both in the CARES legislation that was passed about a month ago but also the other legislation we passed around that time. We have done a number of things to cut redtape and the regulatory relief to expand telehealth and telehealth options specifically for opioid treatment, as well as increasing the number of alternate delivery methods for patients who are dependent on opioids.

the flexibility to continue to offer alternative forms of care via telehealth to people when this pandemic is over so that the providers can readily adapt in the event that another pandemic or another disaster forces us to shift health care back to virtual care. We need to continue telehealth now and provide the reimbursement but also ensure that it is going to be there for the future because it is working.

I am committed to working with my colleagues on bipartisan solutions to the challenges we talked about today. Yesterday, I introduced legislation called the Telehealth Response for E-prescribing Addiction Treatment Services Act, or TREATS Act, to make permanent a number of temporary waivers for telehealth services and bolster telehealth options for addiction treatment services. Specifically, the bill is going to do a couple of things.

First, it will allow for a patient to be prescribed scheduled drugs like Suboxone or buprenorphine through telehealth on their first visit. Current law requires you to go to an in-person visit when needing any controlled substances, but this has been a deterrent to patients in crisis and an urgent need of treatments from schedule II, III, IV, and V drugs.

Our bill is important. By the way, it also limits abusive practices by limiting telehealth visits to those who have both audio and video capability to be able to interact with the treatment providers to reduce fraud and abuse when it is your first visit. It would also prohibit prescribing schedule II drugs like opioids that are more prone to being abused through these telehealth visits. So we have provisions in there to avoid abuse, but it is important to continue this telehealth when the other options aren’t there.

Second, our bill would allow for Medicare audio-only or telephone telehealth visits if it is not the patient’s first visit. In-person visits or telehealth visits with video components are important, and I think it is important to have that on the first visit because they can allow for more robust checkups and evaluations.

Due to distance or access to broadband, these types of appointments aren’t always possible. We still need to focus on safety and robust treatment in order to balance the needs of patients, we have proposed to allow our Nation’s seniors to use phones for subsequent behavioral health visits when they do not have access to the internet.

There is no question that the greatest priority facing our country at this moment is this unprecedented coronavirus pandemic, but this new U.N. report and the rising number of overdose deaths in Ohio and around the country show that there is even more at stake here than we realize. We know now of the direct impacts of the coronavirus pandemic, but losing ground on addiction and behavioral health is one of the indirect casualties. Not only must Congress ensure our addiction health services have the resources they need to adapt to this new reality, but we also have to redouble our efforts to slow the spread of the coronavirus so we don’t lose ground on this addiction crisis just as we are making progress and that we don’t keep more Americans from achieving their God-given potential.

Mr. President, I hadn’t planned to talk about this, but I was watching the floor earlier today when there was a heated discussion on the Senate floor about the chaos and violence we have seen on the streets in many of our great cities.

The peaceful demonstrations, which developed really spontaneously after the tragic death of George Floyd and other injustices, delivered a powerful message about the need to address racial disparities and about the need for police reform.

The right to demonstrate peacefully must be protected, but the looting, the desecration of monuments, the arson, and the destruction of property, including small businesses in some of these communities of color—it breaks my heart to see some of these small business owners talk about what they are going through; the injuries to our law enforcement officers who are just doing their jobs, doing what they are asked to do in a professional way; and, of course, the self-appointed statists do not want to be there to help this lawlessness, in too many instances, must not be tolerated. Those who have exploited the situation and the peaceful demonstrations to foment this violence are undermining the cause of the peaceful marchers and further dividing an already polarized country.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MR. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to discuss what I believe is an important and consequential matter at this moment: the way ahead for U.S. relations with our friend and partner, Israel.

The pending legislation before us includes a plan to codify and extend a multiyear commitment of American security assistance to Israel. Specifically, it would codify a memorandum of understanding reached during the Trump administration to provide $38 billion over 10 years in security assistance to Israel. That is $3.8 billion a year. That is a significant promise. In fact, $38 billion represents over half of current U.S. foreign military funds around the world.

It is a big commitment, especially at a time when we are struggling to invest in supporting our workers, our businesses, and our economy here at home during this global pandemic.

While it is a sizable commitment, it is one I have supported because Israel and the United States have a variety of shared interests. Most importantly, in my view, the United States has an enduring obligation to support a secure homeland for the Jewish people after the horrors of the Holocaust.

Under normal circumstances, I would not even come to the Senate floor today. I have consistently supported the security assistance, and I still do. So why am I here today?

It is here because while I remain strongly committed to the security of Israel and providing security assistance, I am also strongly opposed to Prime Minister Netanyahu’s declared intention to unilaterally annex parts of the West Bank.

The unilateral annexation of parts of the West Bank would totally undermine what has been, at least until the Trump administration, bipartisan American policy in support of a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and for the security and the rights of both Israelis and Palestinians.

Under the leadership of President Harry Truman, the United States championed the establishment of the State of Israel as a homeland for the Jewish people, and that remains a steadfast American commitment. But of course, to a secure homeland for the Jewish people does not include the right to unilaterally annex territories to the West Bank and deny the Palestinian people a viable state and homeland of their own.

So I will say it again: The United States should support and continue to support the legitimate security needs of Israel, but we also need to stand up for a just two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and for the rule of law and international order that the United States has championed ever since the end of World War II. As I said before, the bill before us would codify and extend the memorandum of understanding between the United States and Israel on security assistance signed on September 14, 2016. You can be sure that that memorandum of understanding for security assistance never contemplated Israel’s annexing parts of the West Bank.

In fact, the opposite is true. Part of the American rationale for providing Israel with robust military assistance has been to give Israel the confidence to seek a secure peace based on a two-state solution.

Here is what National Security Advisor Susan Rice said in the Treaty
Room at the White House at the time of signing that MOU. She first pointed out that it represented “the single largest pledge of military assistance to any country in U.S. history.” She reinforced the message that the United States remains absolutely committed to Israel’s security.

Then she said this:

That’s also why we continue to press for a resolution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict—two states for two peoples living side by side in peace and security. As the President—

She was referring to President Obama—has said, the only way for Israel to endure and thrive as a Jewish and democratic state is through the realization of an independent and viable Palestinian state.

That is what she said at the signing of the same MOU that we would be codifying in the bill before us.

Leak that was simply the position of a Democratic President and a Democratic administration, it was not.

Susan Rice and Condoleezza Rice have more in common than just their last names. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice attended the signing ceremony for the previous memorandum of understanding that took place on January 16, 2009, and, on that occasion, she too highlighted the need to achieve “a two-state solution building upon previous agreements and obligations.” She said: “...two-state solution, which is the only way, ultimately, to secure a future for Israelis and Palestinians alike over the ... long term.”

So the Bush administration and the Obama administration, at the signings of the memorandums of understanding for security assistance, both said the only way forward was through a viable two-state solution that recognized the right to self-determination, and aspirations of both peoples.

Now, the unilateral annexation of West Bank land that Prime Minister Netanyahu has proposed would blow away, would destroy, any real prospects for a viable two-state solution. It would make a mockery of the statements made by both National Security Advisor Susan Rice and Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice. It would make a mockery of the tenets of a bipartisan U.S. foreign policy up until the Trump administration.

Make no mistake, those most in favor of unilateral annexation are those most opposed to any viable two-state solution.

Now, I am under no illusions that a viable two-state solution is a near-term prospect. It is not right around the corner. The Palestinian Authority has been weak, and, until recently, because of the one-sided actions of the Trump administration, has decided not to negotiate. But even though the near-term chances of a negotiated two-state solution remain remote, we must preserve—we must preserve—that option, and preserving that option means strongly opposing the unilateral annexation of West Bank territory.

Now, the unilateral annexation by Israel of all or any part of the West Bank will unleash a cascade of harmful consequences.

One, if we become complicit in this action, it will harm our national security interests and credibility by undermining the fundamental principles of international law that we in the United States have championed since the end of World War II.

Two, it will further isolate Israel in the international community, and many countries—including in Europe—are likely to respond with different forms of sanctions. Some are already moving in that direction.

Three, it will harm both our position and Israel’s interests in the Middle East, by weakening allies like Jordan, and threaten to unravel the warming relationships Israel has built with the Sunni Gulf states.

The bottom line is that unilateral annexation will greatly strengthen the hand of our common enemies—Iran, Hamas, and Hezbollah—and hurt friends like Jordan.

Four, it will harm Israel’s security by completely undermining the credibility of the Palestinian Authority and its capacity to effectively govern the Palestinian areas on the West Bank.

Five, unilateral annexation will ultimately lead to one of two outcomes. Either all the people in the annexed areas will be extended equal democratic rights and Israel will risk losing its Jewish identity, or Palestinians on the West Bank will be relegated to small, disconnected enclaves with no viable future—what two former Israeli Prime Ministers have warned is “slipping toward apartheid.”

Six, if the current Netanyahu government heads down the road of permanent apartheid, the Palestinian people will lose their right to self-determination and denies them their basic human rights, then Israel will increasingly alienate itself from America. That is not in the interest of either of our two countries.

So those are at least six of the harmful results of unilateral annexation. I am going to elaborate on each of those points.

No. 1, any American acceptance of unilateral annexation will undermine the rules-based international law that we have fought to uphold in the international community since the end of World War II. The United States has been the architect of the rules-based international order, as reflected in the U.N. Charter of 1945, as well as in the Declaration on Principles of International Law, based on the U.N. Charter, that were signed in 1970 and found in many other universally agreed-to documents and commitments.

It is well established that one country cannot unilaterally regain from another in war. Now, I know the Trump administration has done all sorts of mental and verbal gymnastics to aban-
'peaceful means' or proper means to achieve justice and conformity with international law.'

This is a well-established principle that the United States has championed in the international arena.

No further unilateral annexation of parts of the West Bank will further isolate Israel in Europe and across the world. The EU’s foreign policy chief, Josep Borrell, said recently that annexation inevitably have significant consequences' for the EU’s relationship with Israel, and already an array of European parliamentarians are preparing responses, including sanctions.

In a joint statement issued on June 24 by the current and incoming EU members on the U.N. Security Council—that is Germany, Belgium, France, Estonia, and Ireland—together with the UK and Norway, they together said: 'We also share the Secretary-General’s view that unilateral annexation of the Occupied West Bank—however big or small—is implemented, it would constitute a clear violation of international law.'

They went on to say ‘that following our obligations and responsibilities under international law, annexation would have consequences for our close relationship with Israel and would not be recognized by us.’

None of this should be surprising. Unlike the Trump administration, they are being consistent in how they react to violations of international law, applying the same standards to adversaries and friends alike.

Israel has often been unfairly singled out and unfairly treated and criticized at the United Nations, and the United States has, on many occasions, properly exercised its veto to defend Israel against unfair treatment. But in this case, if Israel moves forward with unilateral annexation, strong opposition at the U.N. would not be the result of the world treating Israel differently or unfairly; it would be a self-inflicted wound. Again, the Trump administration—Prime Minister Netanyahu’s government from U.N. action, but don’t count on future administrations to defend illegitimate actions.

Three, unilateral annexation will undermine the security interests in the Middle East and those of Israel. It will put our friends in the region in great jeopardy and weaken our coordination with Gulf States against Iran.

King Abdullah of Jordan very recently the current that annexation is ‘unacceptable’ and recently warned the Senate of a ‘massive conflict’ if unilateral annexation proceeds.

Here is what the widely respected retired Israeli Defense Force Major General Tal Greenberg said on June 8 when asked about annexation:

'It is a disaster. Why do we need to do it? It is unnecessary. It is a threat to Israel. We might endanger our security cooperation with them that is so valuable that most Israelis can’t even imagine.

Arab leaders from the Gulf States, who have been strengthening cooperation with Israel in recent years, issued similar warnings. The Ambassador of the United Arab Emirates to the United States, Ambassador Al-Otaiba, headlined a recent article, ‘It’s either Annexation or Normalization.’

He added: ‘Of course, if there is no longer a realistic chance of a viable, sovereign state of Palestine being created, it becomes more difficult for Arab leaders to justify publicly their plans to further develop strategic co-operation with Israel.’

I know it is reasonable in some places these days to discount these warnings from Arab leaders. After all, it is true, they have cried wolf before when it comes to following through on their warnings about certain Israeli actions. We are told: Don’t worry. Don’t worry, they don’t really mean it; they are just making these pronouncements to placate the Arab street.

Maybe so, but there is a point where the Arab street will rebel, when it will realize that the day when Israel signals that it will unilaterally annex territory in the West Bank and eliminate any prospects for a peaceful two-state solution.

What will be the result? The result will be: annexation of the Occupied West Bank, however big or small—illegitimate, it would constitute a clear violation of international law.'

As former IDF Major General Gilead Arbel pointed out, the leader of the Palestinian Authority, President Abbas, ‘believes that terror does not serve the best interests of the Palestinians.’

He went on to say: ‘We have a very satisfactory security cooperation relationship with the PA.’

He predicts: ‘The moment there is unilateral annexation, the PA will lose its legitimacy. If they do, sooner or later they will not be able to show their faces in the Palestinian street. And who will pay the price? Our soldiers.’

A respected group known as the Commanders for Israel’s Security—a group of over 220 retired Israeli generals and equivalent ranked individuals—expressed similar fears, saying that the prospect of unilateral annexation, like the coronavirus, was an ‘ominous development’ and spelling out the risk of the full collapse of the Palestinian Authority and its security agencies.

Hamas has always argued that the Palestinian Authority had been playing the fool when it recognized Israel’s right to exist. They argued that Israel would never agree to a just settlement if Palestinians first gave up armed resistance and first recognized Israel. If Israel proceeds with unilateral annexation, the legitimacy of the Palestinian Authority will be diminished and Hamas will be the beneficiary.

Five, unilateral annexation and the abandonment of any viable two-state solution will lead to one of two possible outcomes, neither of them meeting the goals of the parties. Those two different paths have been described by Israeli leaders themselves.

One is the way former Israeli Prime Minister and Defense Minister Ehud Barak explained the situation in a Haaretz interview in June 2017.

‘If we keep controlling the whole area from the Mediterranean to the river Jordan where some 15 million people are living—5 million Israelis, 5 million Palestinians—if only one entity reigns over this whole area, named Israel it would become inevitably—that’s the key word, inevitably—either non-Jewish or non-democratic.’

That is from a former Israeli Prime Minister.

In the event of a scenario in which Palestinians living in an annexed West Bank are given full rights and allowed to vote, Barak predicted Israel would quickly become a bi-national state with an Arab majority and civil war.’

The second option, if you abandon a two-state solution, according to the former Prime Minister, the second option is the current path, he said, ‘a slippery slope toward apartheid.’

Because those two outcomes are undesirable, he pointed out that Israel has a ‘compelling imperative’ to pursue a solution of two states for two peoples.

Another former Israeli Prime Minister, Ehud Olmert, has also repeatedly warned that Israel is on a path to apartheid if the two-state solution collapses. He said, if that happens, Israel will ‘face a South African style struggle for equal voting rights, and as soon as that happens, the state of Israel is finished.’

Just recently in the New York Times, former Israeli Ambassador to the United States Sallai Meridor said: ‘If we take steps that make separation from the Palestinians impossible, we may destroy the very root of the entire Zionist enterprise.’

Six, I believe unilateral annexation will have all the harmful impacts I discussed today and many more that so many Israelis have warned about. I hope Prime Minister Netanyahu will pull back from the brink. But hope and prayer are not a policy. In normal times, an American President from either political party would have made clear that such action is unacceptable to the United States of America, but these are not normal times. We actually have an American Ambassador to Israel now who is promoting this unilateral move and he opposes a two-state solution. Here is what Ambassador Friedman said in November 2016:

"If we keep controlling the whole area from the Mediterranean to the river Jordan where some 15 million people are living—5 million Israelis, 5 million Palestinians—if only one entity reigns over this whole area, named Israel it would become inevitably—that’s the key word, inevitably—either non-Jewish or non-democratic.”

We actually have an American Ambassador to Israel now who is promoting this unilateral move and he opposes a two-state solution. Here is what Ambassador Friedman said in November 2016:
There has never been a “two state solution” only a “two state narrative.”

He describes it as:

an illusion that serves the worst intentions of both the United States and the Palestinian Arabs. It has never been a solution, only a facade. Even the narrative itself now needs to end.

That is from the current U.S. Ambassador in 2016.

In 2016, our current ambassador also said that he is in favor of extending permanent Israeli control and sovereignty over the entire area from the Jordan River to the Mediterranean Sea, clearly snuffing out any prospects for a two-state solution and the viable way forward.

Ultimately, of course, the government of Israel will make its own decisions, and then, we here in the United States will have to make ours. The United States must have a position that reflects our values and our ideals of democracy, human rights, of equal justice and rule of law and self-determination.

God knows we are far from perfect here, and we can see that clearly during this moment of national reckoning around justice and equity. But we have set those principles as our goals, as our North Star, and until this Trump administration came along, we have also made human rights and the right of self-determination a key pillar of our bipartisan American foreign policy.

It is those principles that have led us to support a secure and democratic Israel as the home for the Jewish people and the establishment of a separate viable state as the homeland for the Palestinian people.

The American people support a two-state solution and significantly the American Jewish community in the 2019 survey of American Jewish opinion shows overwhelming support for a two-state outcome. The American Jewish community and a large majority who say Israel should be willing to dismantle all or some of the settlements as part of a peace agreement.

The next generation — this younger generation — of Americans and of American Jews is even more focused on issues of human and political rights for all peoples, Israelis and Palestinians.

There are many who have said that the possibility of a two-state solution disappeared, with the expansion of settlements and outposts and the network of roads and checkpoints.

They have called the prospects for a two-state solution a delusion, a mirage; yet, even as the facts on the ground have made a two-state solution harder to realize, many of us continue to see that as the vision for the future, one that brings hope to both peoples.

Make no mistake the unilateral annexation of parts of the West Bank would be the final nail in the coffin of that idea. So what happens then? What do we do? Once any remaining hope for that vision is extinguished, I think we are in uncharted territory. As President Obama noted in one of his speeches, “The situation for the Palestinian people is intolerable.” And he drew parallels to the struggle of African Americans for full and equal rights.

Secretary of State John Kerry has said that the only viable one state solution Israel can either be Jewish or democratic; it cannot be both. “You would have millions of Palestinians permanently living in segregated enclaves in the middle of the West Bank, with no real political rights, separate legal, education, health systems, vast income disparities, under a permanent military occupation that deprives them of the most basic freedoms. Separate and unequal is what you would have.”

Nelson Mandela often talked about the need to ensure a secure State of Israel as a homeland for the Jewish people and the rights of the Palestinian people. He said: “We know too well that our freedom is incomplete without the freedom for the Palestinians.” There is a memorial statue to Nelson Mandela in Ramallah.

What do we do? What do we do — those of us who are committed to a vibrant, secure, and democratic Israel that is a home for the Jews but are also concerned about the abandonment of the vision of a two-state solution that also respects the aspirations and rights of the Palestinians?

As I said at the beginning of these remarks, I have strongly supported security assistance for Israel, and I continue to do so. I also pointed out that National Security Advisor Susan Rice and Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice both indicated in their comments at the signing ceremony of the MOUs for security assistance that a viable two-state solution was the only — their words — only way to permanent peace.

For all the reasons I have stated today, I do not believe that the U.S. Government, the U.S. taxpayer should be aiding and abetting Prime Minister Netanyahu’s plan to unilaterally annex the West Bank. The American Government and the American taxpayer must not facilitate or finance such a process.

That is why today a group of 12 Senators has filed an amendment to the bill to make that position clear — the position that we fully support the robust $38 billion security assistance to Israel but also make it clear that those funds should not be used to facilitate or promote unilateral annexation.

There are many who say that this does not go far enough, and there are others who oppose annexation but say: Pass the security assistance without making any statement about annexation or without taking any action. To them, I am reminded of former Israeli Defense Minister and Commander Moshe Dayan’s statement saying: “Our American friends offer us money, arms, and advice. We take the money, we take the arms, and we decline the advice.”

“We are friends, the United States and Israel. We have many common interests, but we will also have our differences. This is a moment when, yes, we should provide the security assistance, the military assistance. Yet, in doing so, we should also make clear that it should not be used in any way to promote unilateral annexation.”

Our view in filing this amendment is that the only way to reconcile our strong support for a safe and secure Israel and our commitment to establishment of two states for two peoples living side by side is what we proposed. I hope and pray that Prime Minister Netanyahu will not move forward with his unilateral annexation plan. I hope we can continue to say that the U.S.-Israel relationship is built not only on shared interests but also on shared values.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I am grateful to Chairman INHOFE and Rank-
I also cosponsored an amendment led by Senator Udall making clear that Congress has not given the executive branch any authority to go to war against Iran.

We also cannot continue to let this President raid national defense funds for his ridiculous and racist border wall effort—remember, the one that the President promised Mexico would pay for. Every dollar diverted has been at the expense of our men and women in uniform, especially hurting our National Guard. This bill does nothing to address that. Even when the Ninth Circuit court ruled last Friday that the money grab was illegal, the Department of Defense informed us on Monday that it would not stop construction of the President’s campaign promise. That is why I filed an amendment that would keep the President from transferring defense funds outside of DOD for the wall. We need a robust debate on the proper, effective way to respond to the humanitarian crisis at our border, one approved by Congress.

In addition, I filed an amendment that would disapprove of Russia participating in the G7 or being re-admitted into a reconstituted G8. Not only does Russia maintain its occupation of Ukraine, but it has continued its interference in the U.S. and other democratic nations. And just last week, The New York Times reported that Russian intelligence secretly offered bounty payments to Taliban-linked militants to kill American troops in Afghanistan. Apparently, the White House has known about this for months and did nothing. It is unacceptable. My amendment makes it clear that the U.S. should not support Russia’s participation in this international summit.

The FY21 NDAA also doesn’t go far enough to address the toxic class of chemicals known as PFAS, which have been linked to serious and devastating illnesses.

That is why I am pleased to cosponsor Senator Shaheen’s amendments to designate PFAS as hazardous substances and boost DOD cleanup efforts, provide blood testing for servicemembers and their families, and increase funds to study the impact of PFAS on health. In addition, I support Senator Gillibrand’s amendment that would extend antidiscrimination protection to prevent service members who bravely make sacrifices for our country. I also am a cosponsor of Senator Schatz amendment to limit the transfer of equipment under the DOD 1032 program to militarize police forces across the country and provide transparency to the program.

I hope that we may be able to debate all of these important issues during consideration of this bill, all of which will only help improve this legislation and provide for our national defense. In the meantime, I reiterate my thanks to Chairman Inhofe and Ranking Member Reed for their work on this bill.

FOURTH OF JULY
Mr. CARDIN. Mr. President, July 4 is a day to recognize our Nation’s Declaration of Independence 244 years ago. On this day, we collectively pause to honor the values that make this Nation great.

July 4 is also a day of shared reflection to see how well we have made more tangible the ideals of our founders “to create a more perfect union.” As we look across the landscape of our country today, these words ring with even greater resonance. Our Nation and our people continue to strive to overcome the then-unknown moment of our history to continue the fight against racial injustice, an injustice that has limited the freedom of too many for too long.

The collective ideals to which Thomas Jefferson gave voice in the Declaration’s promise of “Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness” still echo through the American experience—from Alexander Hamilton’s immigrant dream, birthed before our Nation, to the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.’s July 4, 1963 sermon at Atlanta’s Ebenezer Baptist Church. As Dr. King said, “If we are going to make the America Dream a reality, we are challenged to work in an action program to get rid of the last vestiges of segregation and discrimination.”

America has been and will be a leader in the world. The American people historically have cherished and spearheaded this role. Leadership at any level comes with responsibility, and, in this case, it must look to put our own house in order, where we must address domestic injustices.

We must continue our tireless work to create a more perfect union. The struggle will not stop until all men, women, and children can live the American Dream as Dr. King envisioned. To do this, we must continue to assess the true meaning of liberty and freedom. As we begin to acknowledge fundamental elements of our Nation’s history, we must recommit to ensuring freedom for all.

Our country’s strength lies in the diversity and equality of our people. Through this diversity and this equality, today we may celebrate the unity described in the very declaration of our Nation’s freedom and independence.

On this historic day, we must also celebrate our country’s capacity to change. We have overcome monumental challenges before. The majority of our Founders did not comprehend that Black Lives Matter. Today, we work to ensure actions that back up those important words.

Still, as we reflect on the Nation’s founding, we recall our past, honor that which is great, and effect the change we perpetually hear to make our Nation a more perfect union.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT
Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. President, I voted against the motion to table Senator Paul’s amendment to the National Defense Authorization Act not because I support his amendment as written, but because I believe this Senate has a responsibility to fully debate the question of our policy, strategy and plans for Afghanistan. Tabling an amendment cuts off all debate on this important matter. We should not be ducking these decisions. We should confront our policy directly, take stock of where we are, and set a responsible course for the future.

I strongly support ending the war in Afghanistan and the responsible withdrawal of our men and women in uniform. However, I believe that mandating the total unconditional withdrawal on a 1-year timeline will result in the further destabilization of an already volatile region. Unconditional withdrawal divorced from a diplomatic process to achieve political reconciliation between the warring parties will make it harder to achieve a peaceful resolution that serves our national security interests.

Despite my disagreement with much of the substance of the Paul amendment, the Senate should deliberate on these matters, not run away from them. The decision not to allow the Paul amendment prevented the Senate from performing this essential function.

75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE
Mr. HEINRICH. Mr. President, as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and as the Senator from the great State of New Mexico, it is my honor to recognize all of the patriotic Americans who have contributed to 75 years of accomplishments and history at White Sands Missile Range, WSMR.

In the final months of America’s engagement in World War II and as the Manhattan Project’s unprecedented scientific mission achieved its secret goal of harnessing nuclear power, the U.S. Army established the White Sands Proving Ground on July 9, 1945, in New Mexico’s Tularosa Basin. Seven days later, the detonation of the first atomic bomb at the Trinity Site ushered in the nuclear era and began what would become three-quarters of a century of major scientific breakthroughs, critical weapons testing and evaluation, and military technology.

We must acknowledge the sacrifices New Mexicans have made over the years that contributed to both the establishment and the enduring missions at WSMR. That includes the families whose historic homes and ranches were taken to create WSMR’s land base. It includes local residents in the Tularosa Basin who were downwind from the Trinity test and whose lives continue to be impacted. It includes the local communities in southern New Mexico who play a vital role in supporting WSMR’s success today.

WSMR is a landmark of technological advances for all branches of the military. Following World War II, White Sands was where German scientist Werner Von Braun conceived, developed, and tested the long-range V-2 rockets, initiating America’s space program. Since then, White Sands has continued to support essential defense and aviation needs for the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, alongside other important scientific research.

Today, WSMR, which spans 3,200 square miles of the Tularosa Basin, is the Department of Defense’s largest, fully-instrumented test range. It provides our Armed Forces, our allies, and defense technology partners with unrivaled terrain for research, testing, evaluation, experimentation, and training that ensures our defense readiness. WSMR executes an average of 5,000 tests each year. These tests, in emerging technologies such as swarming autonomous and unmanned systems, joint integrated air and missile defense, nuclear weapons effects, and space-based capabilities, will keep WSMR at the forefront of our national defense for years to come.

As part of the Army Test and Evaluation Command, WSMR is the Army Center of Excellence for Air and Missile Defense Test Bed and Precision Fires Rockets and Missiles. White Sands supports key capabilities in the National Defense Strategy and modernization priorities, including directed energy systems such as laser and high-powered microwave systems, kinetons, electromagnetic pulse, hypersonic and long-range precision fires, U.S. Space Program test support, nuclear weapons effects, and autonomous systems.

While it is a U.S. Army installation stewarded by the Army, WSMR is chartered as a tri-service installation, home to elements of the U.S. Army, U.S. Air Force, and other organizations conducting operations at WSMR include NASA, National Reconnaissance Office, Defense Threat Reduction Agency, the Research and Analysis Center, Center for Countermeasures, and Combat Capabilities Development Command (Data and Analysis Center and Army Research Laboratory).

WSMR also hosts the Bataan Memorial Death March each year, a large and successful recognition of heroism and sacrifice of the New Mexicans and others who endured and in many cases lost their lives to the horrors of World War II’s Bataan Death March. I have had the distinct honor of joining this incredible event on a few occasions and have personally benefitted from the valuable lessons it imparts on everyone who participates.

I want to extend my sincere appreciation and congratulations to everyone who works hard every single day at WSMR to keep all of us safe. President John F. Kennedy stated it best, when he stood before your predecessors at WSMR during a visit on June 5, 1963.

President Kennedy said: “What you do here far and away from Washington, far away from our great capitals, far away from so many countries which depend upon us, what you do here, what progress you make, what dedication you demonstrate, is of significant difference to the security of our country and those who depend upon us.” I could not agree more. I wish everyone at WSMR a happy 75th anniversary and will continue to support WSMR’s critical work in defense of our great Nation.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO ROBERT J. HALSTEAD

• Ms. CORTEZ MASTO. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the career of Robert J. Halstead, or as most of us know him, Bob. To some, this name might sound familiar. He has appeared before Congress on a number of occasions on behalf of the State of Nevada to provide expert witness testimony on nuclear waste storage and transportation. His name graces the archives at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Department of Energy, and he has been a fierce and dedicated partner in the fight against the Yucca Mountain project.

In 1988, the year after the “screw Nevada bill” recklessly designated Yucca Mountain as the Nation’s sole high-level nuclear waste repository site, Bob brought his knowledge of Federal radioactive waste programs and activities to help arm Nevada in its fight against the broken and misguided processes that led to the Yucca Mountain designation. At the time, he may not have known how long of a fight he was signing up for, but Bob never looked back.

He threw himself into helping Nevada, learning every aspect of the complex nuclear waste disposal issue, analysis that involved the geography of the site, and leaving no stone unturned when reviewing proposed transportation routes that would ship one of the most dangerous materials known to man across the country to Nevada. For more than 30 years, he helped guide the State on nuclear transportation matters, poured over environmental impact statements, submitted contentions to the Yucca Mountain application, and represented the State in technical proceedings that involved the proposed repository. These are just a few of the things we have to thank him for.

Since 2011, Bob served as the executive director of the Nevada Agency for Nuclear Projects, always making himself available to assist the Governor. Before coming to the Senate, I had the pleasure of working alongside Bob during my time as the Nevada Attorney General. No matter the day or hour, Bob always had the materials and provide well-informed, robust responses not just to me, but to my staff.

It was comforting knowing someone with his exceptional experience was at the helm, guiding the State on an issue that is so important to Nevadans and trying to right the wrongs of the Federal Government’s reckless mismanagement of nuclear waste. Today, I want to extend my sincere appreciation and gratitude for his decades-long commitment to helping Nevadans as they have worked to bring fairness, reason, and respect into the repository site designation process.

It is my understanding that Bob will be returning to his home in Wisconsin, where he will live with his wife, Margaret, Bob is looking forward to having more time with his two grown children and finally having time for one of his favorite past times: fishing.

As he casts a line in one of the many beautiful lakes Wisconsin has to offer, I hope he knows how much the State of Nevada and I appreciate the sacrifices he has made to protect the safety of Nevadans and the time he has dedicated to one of our State’s greatest fights.

TRIBUTE TO JESSICA COCHRAN

• Mr. DAINES. Mr. President, this week I have the honor of recognizing Jessica Cochran of Blaine County for her entrepreneurship and creativity during these challenging times. The COVID–19 outbreak has impacted so many Montana small business owners and local communities. During these challenging times, it is tougher than ever for new entrepreneurs to open up shop.

Jessica, a sixth grade teacher at Harlem Elementary School, however took the initiative to start up her own ice cream truck business this summer to spread some cheer to her community during these challenging times.

Jessica started Bliss Ice Cream, after acquiring and renovating a 1985 Chevy Astro van. Jessica also secured all the necessary permits and licenses as an independent contractor and food vendor for the summer. Owning an ice cream truck has been a dream of hers since a child. She has taken the initiative to purchase all the necessary supplies and decorations for the children of Harlem and the Fort Belknap area.

I would like to recognize Jessica for taking the bold initiative to pursue her dream and bring some much needed joy to the children of her community. As a teacher and a new entrepreneur,
Jessica is a great role model for all of her students and the folks of Blaine County.

TRIBUTE TO RAY PETERSEN

Mr. ROMNEY. Mr. President, I rise to congratulate Mr. Ray Petersen on a remarkable career of indispensable service to the great State of Utah. By virtue of Ray's enduring commitment to overseeing proper land management practices, Emery County flourishes with beauty and opportunity. The residents of Emery County and the countess visitors who enjoy the region have Ray to thank for his 18 years as Emery County's Public Lands Administrator and his lifetime of public service to rural Utah.

Ray has dedicated his career to addressing critical rural issues. As a fourth-generation resident of Emery County, Ray understands well the challenges facing rural communities and the profound impact that Federal, State, and local policy decisions have on the livelihoods of so many. In his role as Emery County Public Lands Administrator, Ray was consequent in assisting policymakers, from the county commission to the Federal Government, reconcile differences and find solutions for the county's land management, whose expansive plans fall heavily under State and Federal domain.

Sustained opportunity and access to Emery County's lands are paramount for its economic vitality, particularly to its agriculture, recreation and tourism industries, and its local mining, gas, and oil development. Ray has helped these key local industries navigate the challenges and opportunities of land management issues, to find compromise and success.

A fitting final accomplishment to his career, instrumental in helping Utah's congressional delegation secure a victory for Emery County and the State's public lands as the Emery County Public Lands Management Act was signed into law. This legislation marked the culmination of years of collaboration and cooperation with local partners and officials, ensuring ongoing uses will be enjoyed in Emery County without fear of a potential national monument designation from DC and consolidation of Utah trust lands that will generate millions in revenue for our school kids. It also included long-sought local land transfers to meet city government needs while expanding Goblin Valley State Park, a truly unique place that will now be better managed for future generations.

Ray Petersen has championed rural lands. His extraordinary leadership was instrumental in helping Utah throughout his esteemed career. Our great State owes him a debt of gratitude for three decades of selfless public service.

Thank you, Ray.
accusations, and found no connection to autism in vaccines. Another complaint isolated the mercury in vaccines. Vaccines contain small amounts of mercury to form thimerosal, a preservative. These small amounts aren’t any more than the amount in 3 ounces of tuna fish. Nonetheless, the FDA attempted lowering the amount of mercury in vaccines, but still saw no relief in rising autism numbers. In 2004, 10 out of the 13 authors on Wakefield’s paper retracted their hypothesis (Mayor). Then in 2010, the medical journal “The Lancet” retracted Wakefield’s paper, calling several elements incorrect. America can now agree vaccines should be made mandatory (Dyer).

Medics have continued to raise humanity to higher levels of immunity, causing fatal diseases to go nearly extinct. These include measles, mumps, rubella, polio, chickenpox, and smallpox. However, they still remain only “nearly extinct.” Modern day preventable diseases have yet to fade from America due to anti-vax. One study performed in 1992, watched 25 vaccinated and 25 unvaccinated children for the first 5 years of their lives. The result? One vaccinated child had mild measles but didn’t die, while the unvaccinated children saw 14 deaths by measles and one of tetanus (Epoke). The Center for Disease Control and Prevention reports that 2018 has had more measles outbreaks than any year this decade, and they typically start in unvaccinated groups (CDC).

Vaccines should be mandatory. Schools have begun to act on this already by requiring their students to be vaccinated to attend. In Australia, parents will be charged every 2 weeks A$28 (roughly 20 USD) for having unvaccinated children, per child (Parkinson). These laws are something that should be present in the United States. The flu shot is already absolutely free with most health insurances, showing how recommended it is. This science has been around for a long time, and only recently, thanks to the internet’s easily accessible misinformation, has it been verbally contested. We must make vaccines mandatory to protect our country from preventable diseases. Yours or someone else’s life may depend on it.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Roberts, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

AMENDMENT NO. 2396

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself, Mr. MANCHIN, and Mr. BOOZMAN):

S. 4155. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to provide or assist in providing an additional vehicle adapted for operation by disabled individuals to certain eligible persons; to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.
Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, today, I am pleased to be joined by my colleague from West Virginia, Senator JOE MANCHIN, in introducing the Advancing Uniform Transportation Opportunities for Veterans Act. Our bill, known as the AUTO Act, would lessen the financial burden for severely disabled veterans who require special adaptive equipment to drive a motor vehicle by increasing the access to the Department of Veterans Affairs automobile grant program.

The VA is currently authorized to provide eligible veterans with a one-time grant of approximately $21,400 to be used to purchase a new or used automobile and necessary adaptive equipment, such as specialized pedals or switches. This grant is often used together with the VA special adaptive equipment grants, which help veterans purchase adaptive equipment, such as powered lifts, for an existing automobile or van to make it safe for a veteran to drive.

Although veterans can receive multiple special adaptive equipment grants over the course of their lives, they are, for some reason, limited to a single grant for the vehicle. The current limitation would not take into account that a disabled veteran will need more than one vehicle in his or her lifetime. In fact, the Department of Transportation reports that the average useful life of a vehicle is 11.5 years, and a vehicle that has been modified structurally tends to have a shorter useful life.

According to the VA Independent Budget prepared by the Disabled American Veterans, Paralyzed Veterans of America, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the average cost to replace modified vehicles ranges from $40,000 to $65,000 when the vehicle is new and $21,000 to $35,000 when the vehicle is used. These are significant costs for a severely disabled veteran to bear to replace a primary mode of transportation. That is why veterans should be eligible to receive an automobile grant once every 10 years.

Our bipartisan bill would do exactly that.

One disabled veteran in Maine, Neal Williams, from Shirley, used a VA automobile grant in 1999 to purchase an adapted vehicle—a Ford Econoline van. He has had to purchase several adaptive vehicles since 1999, with each one lasting 250,000 miles, until they were no longer roadworthy. Two hundred and fifty thousand miles is a lot of miles, particularly over Maine’s roads and highways. Neal’s current vehicle now has over 100,000 miles, and he probably only has a short time before he will need a new one. He told me that purchasing a new van, which he uses for his wheelchair, and then he transfers to the driver’s seat—he is such an extraordinary person in what he is able to do, but he has told me that new van will cost him well over $50,000, which is more than he paid for his home in rural Maine.

This is an enormous burden on veterans like Neal who need to purchase expensive adaptive vehicles in order to drive safely and also, in order to maintain their independence.

Our Nation owes American veterans our deepest gratitude. We must continue to honor that commitment to our veterans by supporting their needs, including the needs of disabled veterans who need adaptive technology for their vehicles long after they are discharged or retired from Active Duty. The AUTO for Veterans Act is an important step in helping those who have served our Nation so honorably and have sacrificed so much for our freedom.

I urge all of our colleagues to join Senator MANCHIN and me in honoring and supporting our Nation’s disabled veterans.

I send the bill to the desk. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be received and appropriately referred.

S. 4174. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a credit to small employers for covering military spouses under retirement plans; to introduce the Military Spouses Retirement Security Act. This bipartisan bill would help spouses of active duty service members save for retirement by expanding access to employer-sponsored retirement plans.

According to the Employee Benefits Research Institute, American households face a retirement savings gap of $3.7 trillion. The Center for Retirement Research estimates an even larger gap of $7.1 trillion. When asked about their retirement preparedness, only 57 percent of Americans believe they will be able to live comfortably in retirement.

There are many reasons why American households struggle to save for retirement, including the shift away from employer-based "defined benefit" plans and rising health care and long-term care costs. Longer life spans increase the risk of outliving retirement savings. The economic and health impacts of the COVID–19 crisis are also posing a threat to retirement security.

Spouses of active duty service members face an additional hurdle to saving for retirement. According to the Department of Defense, about one-third of military spouses experience a permanent change of station move every year. When a service member moves, their spouse often relocates with them, putting their own career on hold.

Following a move, a military spouse may face periods of unemployment, where they are not able to participate in an employer-sponsored retirement plan. A 2017 survey found that the unemployment rate for active duty military spouses was 24 percent, more than five times the rate for the U.S. population as a whole at that time.

When military spouses find a new job, they often work part-time, despite preferring full-time work, or are only able to spend a few years with their employer before moving again. Their limited hours and short tenure often preclude them from being eligible to receive employer contributions to their retirement plan or from being fully vested in these contributions.

Increasing access to employer-sponsored retirement plans would improve the financial security of many military spouses. The bill I am introducing today would help address this need by providing tax credits to employers who provide military spouses with accelerated eligibility for retirement plan participation, employer contributions, and vesting.

My bill would allow small employers—those with up to 100 employees—to claim a tax credit of up to $500 per year per military spouse. The credit would be available for three years per military spouse. The amount of the credit would be equal to $200 per military spouse, plus 100 percent of all employer contributions for that spouse, up to $300.

To receive the tax credit, small employers must make a military spouse immediately eligible for retirement plan participation within two months of hire. Upon plan eligibility, a military spouse must be eligible for any matching or non-elective contribution available to a similarly situated employee with at least two years of service, and must be 100 percent immediately vested in all employer contributions.

Military spouses are the unsung heroes of our country’s national defense. They often put their professional lives on hold, threatening their long-term retirement security. The Military Spouses Retirement Security Act would help by encouraging small employers to provide military spouses with accelerated access to retirement plans and employer contributions. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Thank you, Mr. President.

S. 4174. A bill to provide emergency appropriations to the United States Postal Service to cover losses related to the COVID–19 crisis and to direct the Board of Governors of the United States Postal Service to develop a plan for ensuring the long term solvency of the Postal Service; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Postal Service COVID–19 Emergency Assistance Act. I am pleased to be joined by my colleague, Senator FEINSTEIN, in sponsoring this legislation that would ensure the United States Postal Service survives the COVID–19 pandemic and advance the conversation needed to put it on a path to long-term solvency. I would also like to recognize Senators DAINES, JONES, and TESTER, who have joined as original cosponsors.

Throughout its 245-year history, the United States Postal Service has played a vital role in bringing our country together and moving our economy forward. The Postal Service allows us to remain connected with family and friends and helps small businesses reach their customers around the country.

The Postal Service is also the linchpin of a $1.6 trillion mailing industry that employs more than 7.3 million people. These jobs are as varied as postal manufacturers, print companies, catalog companies, online retailers, and transportation providers.

The COVID–19 pandemic has changed our daily lives in fundamental ways, and the Postal Service is needed now more than ever. USPS is a lifeline for Americans across the country, particularly seniors and others living in rural areas. In a Harris poll conducted in May, Americans ranked the USPS as the most “essential” company amid the pandemic.

The agency’s dedicated employees, like the rural letter carrier in Columbus Falls, go to work each day, facing increased risk as they continue to ensure reliable delivery of needed prescriptions, benefits, and other critical services that might otherwise be unavailable.

While COVID–19 has underscored the essential nature of the Postal Service, it has also caused significant declines in first-class and marketing mail revenues and increased costs, as the Postal Service has taken additional steps to protect its employees and the public from the virus.

Even with substantial increases in package volumes during the first phase of the pandemic, USPS estimates that COVID–19 will increase net losses and accelerate its cash crisis. If Congress does not act, the Postal Service warns it could run out of money for payroll by the end of the month, which would threaten its ability to continue providing essential services to the public, as well as support its 630,000 employees, including 3,300 in Maine.

I am committed to ensuring this vital institution survives the COVID–19 crisis and is positioned to support economic recovery. The legislation we are introducing today would provide the Postal Service with up to $25 billion in emergency funding to cover COVID–19-related losses and other operational expenses.

The legislation also includes several safeguards to ensure these funds are used only for their intended purpose. The funds would be appropriated to a separate “Postal Service COVID–19 Emergency Fund” rather than the general Postal Service Fund, and these funds would only be available until September 30, 2022. Prior to accessing these funds, the Postal Service would be required to certify in its quarterly financial reports that it is making regulated by the Postal Service Regulatory Commission that the expenditure of any such funds is necessary to cover losses or expenses resulting from... the COVID–19 pandemic. The Postal Service would also be required to prioritize the purchase of personal protective equipment for its employees and conduct additional cleaning and sanitizing of its facilities and delivery vehicles.

In addition to providing emergency relief, this legislation would clarify the terms and conditions of the $10 billion loan that Congress provided to the Postal Service as part of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security or CARES Act. Although the COVID–19 emergency is contributing to the Postal Service’s financing challenges, it did not cause all of its financial problems. According to the Government Accountability Office, USPS lost about $7 billion from fiscal year 2007 through 2019. This is why the legislation we are introducing today would also require the new Postmaster General and the Board of Governors to present to Congress a plan to ensure the long-term solvency of the Postal Service.

Growing up in Aroostook County, I experienced the essential nature of the United States Postal Service every day. As Chairman of the Senate Aging Committee, I have also seen the indispensable role that the Postal Service plays for our nation’s seniors. The Postal Service Emergency Assistance Act would ensure the Postal Service is able to continue fulfilling its essential mission, while also providing for responsible use of taxpayers’ funds and laying the groundwork to put the Postal Service on a path to long-term viability. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Thank you, Mr. President.

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. BROWN, Mr. BOOKER, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Mr. UDALL, Mr. CARDIN, Ms. WARNEN, Mr. WHITEHOUSE, Mr. HEINICH, Mr. VAN HOLLEN, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mr. WYDEN, Ms. HIRONO, and Mr. MARKEY):

S. 4181. A bill to establish a Library Stabilization Fund to respond to and accelerate the recovery from coronavirus; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, to help libraries respond to and recover from the COVID–19 pandemic and continue providing communities with needed services, resources, technology, and broadband access, I am introducing the Library Stabilization Fund Act along with Senators BROWN, BOOKER, BLUMENTHAL, UDALL, CARDIN, WARREN, WHITEHOUSE, HEINICH, VAN HOLLEN, MENENDEZ, WYDEN, HIRANO, and MARKEY. Our bill would provide the $2 billion the American Library Association has estimated is necessary for a library stabilization fund under the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS).

COVID–19 has wreaked havoc on every aspect of our daily lives. Libraries, which anchor our local communities, are no exception. Local budget shortfalls have left libraries to grapple with severe cuts, furloughs of staff, and reduced operations just when communities need their services the most. In addition to providing additional resources to enable schools to reopen safely, close the homework gap, and strengthen the social safety net, we need to invest in libraries to help our communities recover.

Libraries are a critical piece of our education, economic development, and social infrastructure. Although many libraries remain closed or have limited hours, libraries are meeting urgent community needs by increasing technology access (including boosting WIP1 and lending hotspots, tablets, and computers), offering digital content, providing books and materials for delivery or pick-up, and hosting online story times, classes, and discussion groups. In this way, libraries are providing enrichment to students, ensuring that students can connect to remote and summer learning, enabling those with jobs to telework, helping job seekers find employment and receive training, and offering a lifeline to vulnerable adult learning, and health information, a portal to government services, and ways to avoid social isolation.

To strengthen the ability of libraries to serve communities affected by COVID–19, our bill would provide funding to states on a formula basis, with a minimum allotment of $10 million; to tribes; and on a competitive basis. The funding could be used to support general operations, including paying staff and ensuring the safe handling of library materials; to offer greater access to technology, including expanding digital networks and enabling the purchase and lending of hotspots, laptops, and digital resources; to strengthen services and resources, including those relating to literacy, distance learning, adult education, workforce and economic development, and health information; and to link patrons to government, community, and cultural resources.

This legislation will help ensure libraries can continue to find new ways to bridge the digital divide and safely provide information, programming, and services that people of all ages need to stay engaged and informed. This smart investment in our libraries will keep people and communities connected and contribute to our economic recovery.

I thank the supporters of the bill, including the American Library Association; Association for Rural & Small Libraries; Association of Research Libraries; Chief Officers of State Library Agencies; Common Sense Media; International Dyslexia Association; National Association of Elementary School Principals; National Association of Secondary School Principals; National Coalition for Literacy; National Digital Inclusion Alliance; National Humanities Alliance; National League of Cities; Reach Out and Read; Reading Is Fundamental; and Urban Libraries Council. Companion legislation is being introduced on a bipartisan basis in the other body by Congressmen ANDY LEVIN.

I urge our colleagues to join us in pressing for the inclusion of the Library Stabilization Fund Act in the next COVID–19 response package.

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself and Mr. MERKLEY):

S. 4189. A bill to provide for drought preparedness and improved water supply reliability; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Water for Agriculture and Conservation Act to help expand critical water conservation infrastructure, protect wetland resources, increase water use efficiency, fish and wildlife habitat, and agriculture productivity.

Throughout the West, communities are experiencing high levels of drought that have hurt agriculture and conservation efforts. The Water for Conservation and Farming Act aims to help communities better plan and prepare for the increased demand for clean water by funding projects that improve dam safety, create more resilient watersheds, and benefit agricultural and urban water users.

States, Tribes, and local communities are working diligently to upgrade crumbling water infrastructure that are hurting agriculture and conservation efforts. The Water for Conservation and Farming Act would provide $120,000,000 over three years for disadvantaged communities to increase environmental protections, support agriculture, and make significant steps to improve the water supply for their communities.

The Water for Conservation and Farming Act would create a Bureau of Reclamation fund of $300 million to support water recycling projects, water-use efficiency projects and dam safety projects, as well as expanding existing programs, like WaterSMART, to get more bang for the conservation buck.

The bill would establish several new programs at the Bureau of Reclamation, which are designed to help disadvantaged communities plan and implement water conservation projects, a program to help farmers improve migratory bird habitat, and programs to implement aquatic ecosystem restoration projects.

At a time when the nation is suffering from increased droughts, with farmers and ranchers asked to do more with less, and critical habitats are suffering from less and less water, this bill will make needed investments in water conservation infrastructure that reduces demand for water, improves biodiversity and habitat, and helps farmers and ranchers plan and prepare for droughts. I look forward to getting this bill across the finish line.
By Mr. GRASSLEY (for himself, Mr. PORTMAN, Mr. CASSIDY, Mr. DAINES, Ms. COLLINS, Ms. ERNST, Ms. MCSALLY, Mr. BRAUN, Mrs. HYDE-SMITH, and Ms. MURkowski):

S. 4198. A bill to amend titles XI, XVIII, and XIX of the Social Security Act to lower prescription drug prices in the Medicare and Medicaid programs, to improve transparency related to pharmaceutical prices and transactions, to protect patients’ out-of-pocket costs, and to ensure accountability to taxpayers, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Prescription Drug Pricing Reduction Act of 2020.

This is a bill that I have been working on for the past 18 months. I made lowering prescription drug costs one of my top priorities as I assumed the role of Chairman of the Finance Committee at the beginning of this Congress.

I made it my priority as it’s a top concern for Iowans and all Americans. My constituents throughout the state voice concern about being able to afford their prescription medications. I hear about this issue as much as any other. Poll after poll shows that the concern I hear in Iowa is shared across the Nation. The need for Congress to act to provide patients with much-needed relief is also a consistent conversation that I’ve had with colleagues on the other side of the aisle. This bill would ensure that patients have access to the treatments that they need and deserve.

I believe that lowering prescription drug costs is a bipartisan issue. It’s something of which we should all be proud.

So why is the bill only being introduced with Republicans as co-sponsors?

The reason, unfortunately, is that the Democrats recently walked away from the bill. They walked away from the good faith negotiations that produced this bipartisan product. They did so for political reasons. They put politics, and the desire for re-election, ahead of patients. From conversations I have had with colleagues on the other side of the aisle, this was a leadership-driven decision. Maybe the thinking is that they’ll block Senate Republicans from securing outcomes that they’ll be able to say that President Trump hasn’t followed through.

They can say that, but it doesn’t make it true. The introduction of this bill, with a number of my Republican colleagues, shows that Republicans are the ones on the side of patients. And to question the commitment of President Trump to lowering prescription drug prices is outlandish.

President Trump campaigned on expanding patient drug affordability and fairness. He released a comprehensive plan that included numerous policy ideas. He and his Administration have taken bold regulatory action. And when my colleagues and I were fighting in the courts by stakeholders that support the status quo. Some have been opposed by Congressional Democrats.

As the Administration’s ability to act through regulation can only take us so far, we need to know that Congress will pass an overhaul of the drug pricing system. In fact, he mentioned my work on this specific bill in his State of the Union address earlier this year, and he called on Congress to send a bipartisan bill to his desk.

We should be celebrating the introduction of this bill today as another key step closer to responding to President Trump’s call for bipartisan action. It remains the most prominent reform bill that contains bipartisan policy solutions, today’s introduction reveals that Democrats are more interested in positioning for elections than producing results. This is disappointing but not unexpected. It is a top priority for American people that they can count on Republicans to take action on the issues that are important to them.

President Trump has worked harder to lower prescription drug prices than any President in memory. He has stood up to special interests. I, along with my colleagues cosponsoring this bill, and other Republicans, stand with him. I only wish my colleagues on the other side of the aisle were as committed.

I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan legislation and work in a bipartisan way to deliver the relief that Iowans and all Americans deserve. I yield the floor.

Whereas the United States is today, as ever, an ethnically, racially, religiously, and culturally diverse nation, morally committed to cultivating respect, friendship, and justice across all such differences, and protecting the God-given equal rights of all Americans under the law.
Whereas America’s law enforcement officers do an extremely difficult job extremely well, and despite the inexcusable misconduct of the overwhelming majority of such officers are honest, courageous, patriotic, and rightfully honored public servants;
Whereas in recent weeks, people across the United States have organized legitimate, peaceful, constitutionally protected demonstrations against instances of police brutality and racial inequality, serious problems, and theft of our laws and reform.
Whereas some Americans, unsatisfied with peaceful and positive demonstrations, have instigated and indulged in mob violence and criminal property destruction, not in service of any just or coherent cause, but simply as an arrogant, bullying tantrum of self-righteous illiberalism and rage; and
Whereas these mobs have demonstrated not only contempt for public safety (as evidenced, among other crimes, by an unprompted physical assault on a Wisconsin State Senator and the shooting of a motorist in Provo, Utah) and common decency (as evidenced by their routine harassment and obstruction of duty of law enforcement officials standing their posts to protect their communities), but also their manifest ignorance and historical illiteracy (as evidenced by their demonstrations of public officials and historical heroes like Ulysses S. Grant, St. Junipero Serra, Miguel Cervantes, George Washington, Hans Christian Heg, and a reported plan to target a statue of Abraham Lincoln financed in 1876 entirely by private donations from freed African-American slaves): Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that—
(1) the rising tide of vandalism, mob violence, and the mob mentality that feeds it—including its cruel and intolerant "cancel culture"—should be condemned by all Americans;
(2) peaceful demonstrations and mob violence are two different things;
(3) physical assault and property destruction are not forms of political speech but violent crimes whose perpetrators should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law; and
(4) the innocent law enforcement officers, public officials, and private citizens who suffered the mob’s violence and endured its scorn deserve the thanks and appreciation of every American.

Mr. GARDNER (for himself and Mr. CARDF) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. RES. 646

Whereas the Kingdom of Thailand and the United States of America first established relations in 1818 and entered into the Treaty of Amity and Commerce in 1833; Whereas the Fulbright Program is sponsored by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the Department of State; Whereas the Fulbright Program currently operates in over 150 countries; Whereas the Thailand-United States Educational Foundation (TUSEF) was established by a formal agreement in 1950; Whereas 2020 is the 70th anniversary of the Fulbright Program partnership with the Kingdom of Thailand; Whereas, recognizing the value of bilateral exchange, the Government of Thailand has financially contributed to the binational TUSEF annually since 1989; Whereas nearly 2,000 Fulbright students and scholars from Thailand have studied, conducted research, or lectured in the United States since TUSEF’s founding; Whereas over 1,300 Fulbright grantees from the United States conducted research or gave lectures in Thailand since TUSEF’s founding; and Whereas the United States Government supports additional programs in Thailand in the areas of education, rule of law, and internationally recognized human rights: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) recognizes and commends the 70th anniversary of the Fulbright Program in Thailand; and

SENATE RESOLUTION 647—RECOGNIZING THE FORTHCOMING CENTENNIAL OF THE 1921 TULSA RACE MASSACRE

Ms. WARREN (for herself, Ms. BALSWIN, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Mr. BOOKER, Mr. BROWN, Mr. CASEY, Mr. COONS, Ms. DUCKWORTH, Mr. DURBIN, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mrs. GILLIBRAND, Ms. HARRIS, Mr. KAIN, Ms. KLOBuchar, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. MENENDEZ, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. SANDERS, Ms. SMITH, Mr. VAN HOLLEN, Mr. WARNER, and Mr. WHITEHOUSE) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 647

Whereas, in the early 20th century, de jure segregation confined Tulsa’s Black residents into the “Greenwood District”, which they built into a thriving community with a nationally renowned entrepreneurial center known as the “Black Wall Street”; Whereas the time, white supremacy and racist violence were common throughout the United States and went largely unchecked by the justice system; Whereas a reported, alleged and disputed incident on the morning of May 30, 1921, between two teenagers, a Black man and a white woman, caused the white community of Tulsa, including the Tulsa Tribune, to call for a lynching amidst a climate of white racial hostility and white resentment over Black economic success; Whereas, on May 31, 1921, a mob of armed white men descended upon Tulsa’s Greenwood District and launched what is now known as the “Tulsa Race Massacre” and launched what is now known as the “Tulsa Race Massacre”; Whereas Tulsa municipal and county authorities failed to take actions to calm or contain the violence, and civil and law enforcement officials of more white men who were participants in the violence as their agents, directly contributing to the violence through overt and often illegal acts; Whereas, within 24 hours, the white mob’s violence led to the death of an estimated 300 Black residents, as well as over 800 reports of injuries; Whereas the white mob looted, damaged, burned, or otherwise destroyed approximately 40 square blocks of the Greenwood district, including an estimated 1,256 homes of Black residents, as well as virtually every other structure, including churches, schools, businesses, a hospital, and a library, leaving nearly 9,000 Black Tulans homeless and effectively wiping out tens of millions of dollars in Black prosperity and wealth in Tulsa; Whereas, in the wake of the Tulsa Race Massacre, the Governor of Oklahoma declared martial law, and units of the Oklahoma National Guard participated in the mass arrests of all or nearly all of Greenwood’s surviving residents, removing them from Greenwood to other parts of Tulsa and unlawfully detaining them in holding centers; Whereas Oklahoma local and State government dismissed claims arising from the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre for decades, and the event was effectively erased from collective memory and history until, in 1997, the Oklahoma State Historical Society sponsored a commission to study the event; Whereas on February 28, 2001, the commission issued a report that detailed, for the first time, the extent of the Massacre and decades-long efforts to suppress its recollection; Whereas none of the law enforcement officials nor any of the hundreds of other white mob members who participated in the violence were ever prosecuted or held accountable for the hundreds of lives lost and tens of millions of dollars in Black wealth destroyed, despite the Tulsa Race Massacre Commission confirming their roles in the Massacre, nor was any compensation ever provided to the Massacre’s victims or their descendants; Whereas government and city officials not only abdicated their responsibility to rebuild and repair the Greenwood community in the wake of the violence, but actively blocked efforts to do so, contributing to continued racial disparities in Tulsa akin to those that Black people face across the United States; Whereas the pattern of violence against Black people in the United States, often at the hands of law enforcement, shows that the fight to end State-sanctioned violence against Black people continues; and Whereas the year 2021 marks the 100th anniversary of the Tulsa Race Massacre: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) recognizes the forthcoming centennial of the Tulsa Race Massacre; (2) acknowledges the historical significance of this event as one of the largest single instances of State-sanctioned violence against Black people in American history; (3) mourns the estimated 300 Black individuals who were killed during the Massacre and the nearly 9,000 Black individuals who were left homeless and penniless; (4) condemns the participants of the Tulsa Race Massacre, including white municipal and county authority who actively participated in or who aided and abetted the unlawful violence; (5) condemns past and present efforts to cover up the truth about the community, and especially State and local officials, from accountability for the Tulsa Race Massacre and other instances of violence at the hands of law enforcement; (6) condemns the continued legacy of racism, including systemic racism, and white supremacy against Black people in the United States, particularly in the form of police brutality; (7) encourages education about the Tulsa Race Massacre, including the horrors of the massacre itself, the history of white supremacy that fueled the massacre, and subsequent attempts to deny or cover up the Massacre, in all elementary and secondary education settings and in institutions of higher education in the United States; and (8) recognizes the commitment of Congress to acknowledge and learn from the history of violence against racial violence in the United States, including the Tulsa Race Massacre, to reverse the legacy of white supremacy and fight for racial justice.

SENATE RESOLUTION 648—DESIGNATING AUGUST 2020 AS “NATIONAL WOMEN’S SUFFRAGE MONTH”

RES. 648

Whereas Congress passed the 19th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, as provided for by the Nineteenth Amendment, which shared the historical role of women in the civic life of the Nation; Whereas the ratification of the 19th Amendment was the culmination of decades of work and struggle by advocates for the rights of women across the United States around the world; Whereas the ratification of the 19th Amendment ensured women could more fully participate in the democracy of the United States and fundamentally changed the role of women in the civic life of the Nation; Whereas August 18, 2020, marks the centennial of the ratification of the 19th Amendment; Whereas the ratification of the 19th Amendment represents a historical milestone to be lauded and celebrated: Now, therefore, be it
Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates August 2020 as “National Women’s Suffrage Month”; (2) honors the role of the ratification of the 19th Amendment in further promoting the core values of the democracy of the United States, as promised by the Constitution of the United States;
(3) commits to and empowers the effort for people in the United States to learn about and commemorate the efforts of the women’s suffrage movement and the role of women in the United States democracy;
(4) reaffirms the desire of Congress to continue strengthening democratic participation in order to inspire future generations to cherish and preserve this historic precedent established by the 19th Amendment;
(5) recognizes and supports the effort to persevere through these unexpected times to celebrate the suffragists, educate new generations about this critical chapter in the history of the Nation’s democracy, and create a legacy that will last for the next 100 years; and
(6) encourages the people of the United States to observe National Women’s Suffrage Month and commemorate this milestone of the National Woman Suffrage Movement by ensuring that the untold stories of women’s decades-long battle for the ballot are recognized and celebrated across the United States.

SENATE RESOLUTION 649—EXPRESSING SUPPORT FOR THE DESIGNATION OF JULY 2020 AS “AMERICAN GROWN FLOWER MONTH”

Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Ms. HARRIS, and Mr. SULLIVAN) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 649
Whereas cut flower growers in the United States are hard-working, dedicated individuals who bring beauty, economic stimulus, and pride to their communities and the United States;

Whereas the people of the United States have a long history of using flowers and greens grown in the United States to bring beauty to important events and express affection for loved ones;

Whereas consumers spend almost $27,000,000,000 each year on floral products, including cut flowers, garden plants, bedding, and indoor plants;

Whereas, each year, nearly 30 percent of households in the United States purchase fresh cut flowers and greens from more than 16,000 florists and floral establishments;

Whereas the people of the United States increasingly want to support domestically produced foods and agricultural products and would prefer to buy locally grown flowers whenever possible, yet a majority of domestic consumers do not know where the flowers they purchase are grown;

Whereas, in response to increased demand, the “Certified American Grown Flowers” logo was created in July 2014 in order to educate and empower consumers to purchase flowers from domestic producers;

Whereas, as of April 2017, millions of stems of domestically grown flowers are now “Certified American Grown Flowers”;

Whereas domestic flower farmers produce thousands of varieties of flowers across the United States, such as peonies in Alaska, Gerbera daisies in California, lupines in Maine, tulips in Washington, lilies in Oregon, and larkspur in Texas;

Whereas the five flower varieties produced in the United States in the largest quantities in the United States are tulips, Gerbera daisies, lilies, gladiolas, and irises;

Whereas people in every State have access to domestically grown flowers, yet only one in five flowers sold in the United States is domestically grown;

Whereas the domestic cut flower industry creates almost $42,000,000 in economic impact daily and supports hundreds of growers, thousands of small businesses, and tens of thousands of jobs in the United States;

Whereas more people in the United States are expressing interest in growing flowers locally, which has resulted in an increase of approximately 28 percent in the number of domestic cut flower farms between 2007 and 2012;

Whereas most domestic cut flowers and greens grown in the United States within 24 to 48 hours after harvest and last longer than flowers shipped longer distances;

Whereas flowers grown domestically enhance the ability of the people of the United States to festively celebrate weddings and births and honor those who have passed;

Whereas flower giving has been a holiday tradition in the United States for generations;

Whereas flowers speak to the beauty of motherhood on Mother’s Day and to the spirit of love on Valentine’s Day;

Whereas flowers are an essential part of other holidays such as Thanksgiving, Christmas, Hanukkah, and Kwanzaa;

Whereas flowers are used to commemorate the service and sacrifice of members of the Armed Forces on Memorial Day and Veterans Day;

Whereas the Senate encourages the cultivation of flowers in the United States by domestic flower farmers: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) supports the designation of July 2020 as “American Grown Flower Month”;
(2) recognizes that purchasing flowers grown in the United States supports the farmers, small businesses, jobs, and economy of the United States;
(3) recognizes that growing flowers and greens in the United States is a vital part of the agricultural industry of the United States;
(4) recognizes that cultivating flowers domestically enhances the ability of the people of the United States to festively celebrate holidays and special occasions; and
(5) urges all people of the United States to proactively showcase flowers and greens grown in the United States in order to show support for the flower farmers, processors, and distributors of domestic flowers as well as agriculture in the United States overall.

SENATE RESOLUTION 650—DESIGNATING JULY 10, 2020, AS “COLLECTOR CAR APPRECIATION DAY” AND RECOGNIZING THAT THE COLLECTION AND RESTORATION OF HISTORIC AND CLASSIC CARS IS AN IMPORTANT PART OF PRESERVING THE TECHNOLOGICAL, ACHIEVEMENTS AND CULTURAL HERITAGE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. TESTER (for himself and Mr. BURN) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 650
Whereas many people in the United States maintain classic automobiles as a pastime and do so with great passion and as a means of individual expression;

Whereas the Senate recognizes the effect that the more than 100-year history of the automobile has had on the economic progress of the United States and supports wholeheartedly all activities involved in the restoration and exhibition of classic automobiles;

Whereas the collection, restoration, and preservation of automobiles is an activity shared across generations and across all segments of society;

Whereas thousands of local car clubs and related businesses have been instrumental in preserving a historic part of the heritage of the United States by encouraging the restoration and exhibition of such vintage works of art;

Whereas automotive restoration provides well-paying, high-skilled jobs for people in all 50 States; and

Whereas automobiles have provided the inspiration for music, photography, cinema, fashion, and other artistic pursuits that have become part of the popular culture of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates July 10, 2020, as “Collector Car Appreciation Day”; (2) recognizes that the collection and restoration of historic and classic cars is an important part of preserving technological achievements and cultural heritage of the United States; and
(3) encourages the people of the United States to engage in Collector Car Appreciation Day events and commemorations—
(A) that create opportunities for collector car owners to educate young people about the importance of preserving the cultural heritage of the United States, including through the collection and restoration of collector cars; and
(B) in accordance with applicable public health guidelines.

SENATE RESOLUTION 651—EXPRESSION OF THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT, WHILE THE UNITED STATES FINDS VALUE AND USEFULNESS IN THE WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION IN FULLFILLING THE NEEDS OF THE UNITED STATES AND OTHER FREE AND OPEN ECONOMIES IN THE 21ST CENTURY, SIGNIFICANT REFORMS AT THE WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION ARE NEEDED AND THE UNITED STATES MUST THEREFORE CONTINUE TO DEMONSTRATE LEADERSHIP TO ACHIEVE THOSE REFORMS

Mr. PORTMAN (for himself and Mr. CARDIN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

S. Res. 651
Whereas the United States had led the formation, as well as reform, of rules governing the multilateral trading system since World War II;

Whereas the United States is a founding member of the World Trade Organization (in this preamble referred to as the “WTO”) and a key architect of the organization;

Whereas the United States secured important commitments in the WTO to facilitate trade in goods and services, to prevent the application of non-scientific restrictions on United States agriculture, and to protect United States intellectual property;

Whereas the United States uses the rules of the WTO to benefit farmers, ranchers, and businesses in the United States by facilitating access to the 90 percent of the world’s consumers who live outside the borders of the United States;

Whereas the fundamental purpose of the WTO is to create space for members to negotiate new rules less subject to jurisprudential drift; and the WTO’s dispute settlement function, including in particular the Appellate Body, has increasingly failed to enforce the rules of the WTO in a timely manner, and has usurped the negotiating prerogative of members by creating new obligations and rights that are inconsistent with the rules negotiated by members;

Whereas the creation of those obligations and rights undermines—

(1) the WTO’s negotiating function by discouraging members from making concessions;

(2) the WTO’s dispute settlement function by encouraging overuse of the process and undermining its legitimacy, including by preventing free market economies from responding to globally trade distorting practices by nonmarket economies; whereas the WTO does not have sufficient rules to discipline the distortive economic policies of nonmarket economies, such as policies relating to excess capacity and forced technology transfer, the special treatment members afford to state-owned enterprises, and their massive and opaque industrial subsidies;

whereas there is long-standing bipartisan support for the United States Congress to reform the WTO to address those failings;

whereas the current presidential administration, as well as prior administrations, raised concerns about the failings described in this preamble and have made reform of the WTO a top priority of United States trade policy;

Whereas the United States urges WTO members to work constructively with the United States to assess the reasons why the existing WTO rules have proven inadequate in order to realign the atmosphere within the WTO that is conducive to the development of new rules less subject to jurisprudential drift;

whereas the guiding principle for reform of the WTO, and the lens through which WTO members should consider specific reform proposals, is the restoration of the WTO’s capability and capacity for negotiation between members; and

whereas, given that the United States has achieved its trade policy objectives through active participation in the WTO, and that an absence of that leadership would be filled by nonmarket economies that are hostile to member rights or obligations; and

(b) dispute settlement function so that it transparently, efficiently, and fully enforces outcomes negotiated by members rather than usurping its primacy by creating new rights or obligations; and

(c) rules for special and differential treatment to ensure those rules promote development for truly disadvantaged countries, rather than becoming tools for globally competitive countries to engage in protectionism and market distortions;

(3) the efforts to reform the negotiating function of the WTO should revitalize the negotiating function by providing confidence to members to negotiate according to the rules as negotiated and adopted by members;

(4) a revitalized negotiating function must include new rules that reflect the 21st century economy, further combat anticompetitive and protectionist barriers, and ensure disputes are efficiently resolved;

(5) the United States Trade Representative should continue to lead efforts to work with WTO members to pursue reforms at the WTO that—

(a) ensure the dispute settlement mechanism that is adopted by members, including by undertaking measures to ensure the WTO’s Appellate Body does not create new rights and obligations;

(b) improve public confidence in dispute settlement by increasing transparency and efficiency in the conduct of proceedings;

(c) redress the consistent failure by certain members to satisfy their notification obligations under various WTO agreements, including through measures that strengthen accountability;

(d) ensure new rules and structures that are appropriately reserved for countries whose state of development and global competitiveness actually warrants such flexibility;

(e) create new rules and structures that can serve the interests of the United States while promoting peace, prosperity, good governance, transparency, effective operation of legal regimes, the rule of law, and free enterprise; and

(f) expand upon the trilateral negotiations currently underway with Japan and the European Union; and

Whereas the United States Trade Representative should explore and assess specific reform proposals, including—

(1) while the United States finds value and usefulness in the World Trade Organization (in this resolution referred to as the “WTO”) in order to fulfill the needs of the United States and other free and open economies in the 21st century, significant reforms are needed;

(2) the United States must therefore continue to demonstrate leadership in achieving reforms that restore the effectiveness of the WTO’s—

(a) negotiating function;

It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Armed Forces Institute for Regenerative Medicine (in this section referred to as “AFIRM”) delivers critical regenerative-based technologies that lead to functional and aesthetic restoration from injuries incurred during service in the Armed Forces;

(2) AFIRM is a highly rated, nationally respected public-private consortium leading the development of restorative therapeutic battlefield trauma as part of several research and development programs directed to meet defined medical technology gaps for warfighter, first responders, and civilian communities;

(3) the efforts by AFIRM span from research and development to clinical translation, implementation, and commercialization, and are developed for extremity and craniofacial trauma, skin and genitourinary injuries, and transplantation;

(4) each AFIRM project specifically addresses the unmet needs or the unmet warfighter, which has helped guide research projects toward partnerships with industry and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table.

that can be reviewed for approval and entered into clinical trials for eventual placement in the marketplace;

(5) technologies developed by AFIRM include cell technology that will result in the ability to generate and integrate functional composite tissue, neural pathways, vascularization, aesthetic skin, bone, and muscle;

(6) despite the technology challenges, the public-private teaming approach to medical research and development used by AFIRM has resulted in more than 24 products reaching clinical trials;

(7) it is essential that Congress continue to provide the necessary resources to sustain the technology exploration, maturation, and transition in regenerative medicine set forth by AFIRM; and

(8) the Senate highly encourages allocation of additional funds to AFIRM from the undisbursed medical research funds provided in this Act to facilitate the continued implementation model used by AFIRM that has a proven track record of success.

SA 2422. Mr. RUBIO (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. COTTON, Mr. Sasse, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. BENNET, and Mr. BURR) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2301 as follows:

DISADVANTAGED BUSINESS ENTERPRISE PROGRAM

HON. STEVE COHEN
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 2, 2020

Mr. COHEN. Madam Speaker, in this historical moment, we are all working to find ways to eliminate racial injustice and the disparities it causes. Certainly, people of color must be treated with fairness and respect by law enforcement. But it will take far more than that to begin to make a dent in the race and sex discrimination that keeps far too many people locked out of the American dream. In this context, the Disadvantaged Business Enterprise or DBE Program, which is reauthorized in this legislation, is essential. As we have over the past decades since the DBE program was originally enacted in 1983, this Committee has received enormous amounts of evidence demonstrating that discrimination continues to plague the industries that make up the surface transportation market. One of the studies referenced in our Committee Report involves the Nashville and the surrounding metropolitan area. The numbers are devastating—especially in prime contracting. Firms owned by African Americans earned 2 cents on the dollar of what we would expect them to earn given their availability in Architecture and Engineering markets. For Asian Americans the number was 18 cents on the dollar and for Hispanic Americans it was 47 cents on the dollar. That is simply unacceptable. In construction contracting, African Americans did better, but Hispanic Americans did much, much worse—and none did as well as white males. In prime construction contracts, African American owned firms earned 55 cents on the dollar of what we would have expected given their representation in the availability for prime construction contracting. Asian Americans earned 25 cents on the dollar and Hispanic Americans earned 1 cent on the dollar. Metro Nashville Tennessee Disparity Study Final Report, Griffin and Strong, P.C., August 2018, at 83 through 84. These numbers make clear that minority business owners in this country are trapped in a cycle of discrimination from which escape is close to impossible. We cannot permit this situation to continue.

RECOGNIZING THE RETIREMENT OF BRIAN DAVIS AND HIS THIRTY-FIVE YEAR CAREER WITH THE CATTARAUGUS COUNTY SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

HON. TOM REED
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 2, 2020

Mr. REED. Madam Speaker, today I rise to recognize the retirement of Brian Davis, Cattaraugus County Soil and Water Conservation District Field Manager. Brian dedicated thirty years of his life to serving as the district field manager and oversaw a considerable amount of projects that ranged from agriculture to wildlife issues, as well as forest issues and streambank protection. Previously, he served as a technician with the conservation district for five years.

His dedication to the cause of conservation has been evidenced by his hard work, successful projects over the years and his enthusiasm for the task at hand. He has overseen millions of dollars of projects over the years that have aided businesses, farmers and highway superintendents across the area. These efforts have had a considerable impact on the district and have improved the environment in various ways.

Brian has provided dedicated leadership during his tenure at the Cattaraugus County Soil and Water Conservation District and he will be missed by all. He leaves behind a legacy of service and commitment that will be difficult to replace, however, he has certainly earned his retirement. We hope his next steps on this new path will be rewarding and bountiful, as his contributions have been to the communities he has served.

Given the above, I ask that this Legislative Body pause in its deliberations and join me to congratulate Brian Davis of the Cattaraugus County Soil and Water Conservation District on his retirement.

RECOGNIZING THE RETIREMENT OF JAMESTOWN POLICE CHIEF HARRY SNELLINGS

HON. TOM REED
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 2, 2020

Mr. REED. Madam Speaker, today I rise to recognize the retirement of Jamestown Police Chief Harry Snellings.

Chief Harry Snellings has been with the Jamestown Police Department in Jamestown, New York since 1996. He began as a police officer, was promoted to Sergeant in 2004 and later, Lieutenant in 2009. In 2010, Harry took over as Chief of Police and Director of Public Safety. From 2001 to 2009, Harry was a member of the Special Weapons and Tactics team (S.W.A.T.), serving as a team leader and a team commander during that time. In 2011, he attended and graduated from the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy. Prior to his service as a police officer, Harry served in the United States Army for twenty-three years and was deployed three times. He selflessly dedicated his life to public service and public safety throughout his career, and has certainly earned his retirement. We applaud his efforts and wish him the best in the next chapters of his life.
