

It is a wounded and declining nation. It has an uncompetitive economy. Senator McCain used to joke that Russia is a gas station pretending to be a country. Its declining population, of course, contributes to its decline. Nations in decline may lash out, and that is what we have seen time and again.

This is a time not to give a gift to Russia but to show solidarity with our dear friends, like the people of Germany.

One final reason: Germans welcome American troops in their country, and our presence there is of enormous aid to our own military. In Landstuhl, we have a hospital that cares for some 250,000 military personnel and their families across Europe. We also care for those who come in injured from Afghanistan or Iraq. It is a staging area for training exercises that are done with NATO. It is a central hub for our troops in the EU and the Middle East and Africa. In Stuttgart, the European Command, the African Command, and the Special Ops Command are there. Ramstein Air Base is the largest in Europe for our Nation. It also hosts extensive infrastructure of schools, housing, hospitals, and airport maintenance. Moving from those facilities—it would be expensive and wasteful to abandon them.

Finally, we are so welcomed by the German people that the leaders of their various states—their state premiers wrote a letter to the Senate, and it said this: “Do not sever the bond of friendship” between the United States and Germany. I also got a personal letter from leaders in Germany saying: Do not do this. This sends exactly the wrong message at the wrong time.

To slap an ally, a great friend, and a great country like Germany and at the same time give a gift to a malevolent adversary like Russia is ill-conceived and ill-considered. I implore the Senate to consider an amendment to slow this process down and to study it.

There is a real question as to whether there will be a chance for a vote of such a nature. In my view, the Senate needs to speak on something of such magnitude. This is a matter of extraordinary significance to American foreign policy. How could we possibly allow the administration to make a decision like this without the input of the Senate?

We must vote on this. I will be satisfied if we come together as a body and vote no. People say: No, let the President take out the 10,000 troops. But I won't be satisfied if we don't get a chance to even vote on this.

We have a national defense authorization amendment coming forward. This is the time for this amendment to be seen on the Senate floor or in the managers' package. Barring that, I don't see how I can support the managers' package. I don't see how I can support, as a Senator, proceeding without taking up this vital provision of our support for our friend Germany, of our support for our interests in NATO, the interests of our military, as well as our desire not to give Russia a gift, particularly at a time when America has been silent as Russia has been supporting the Taliban and potentially even paying hostages to kill Americans.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

COMMISSIONING OF THE USS “ST. LOUIS” (LCS-19)

● Mr. BLUNT. Mr. President, today I stand to recognize a historic milestone for the U.S. Navy and for the remarkable city of St. Louis, MO. I am proud that the brandnew USS St. Louis (LCS-19) will be commissioned August 8, 2020, and begin service as the Navy’s newest littoral combat ship.

The USS St. Louis will be the seventh U.S. Navy ship named for the city of St. Louis, which is known as the Gateway to the West and serves as an enduring symbol of our country’s westward expansion. From the early days of American expansion through the Cold War, ships carrying the name St. Louis have supported U.S. naval operations in many major conflicts. Historic ships named for the city of St. Louis include an ironclad gunboat in the Civil War, a troop transport and protected cruiser during World War I, a light cruiser during World War II, and an amphibious cargo ship during the Cold War era.

It seems only fitting that the very first USS St. Louis, which dates back to 1828, was a sail-powered sloop-of-war designed to protect the United States in its littoral zone. Similarly, today’s USS St. Louis, a Freedom-Class littoral combat ship, boasts the unique capability to operate in near-shore littoral environments as well as blue-water missions. In addition to her operational flexibility, the USS St. Louis has reconfigurable payloads known as mission modules that can be quickly changed to adapt to shifting requirements. These mission modules, in combination with crew detachments and air assets, make littoral combat ships like the USS St. Louis the Swiss Army knives of the Navy. This ship’s innovative technological advances will enhance our Navy’s ability to project power into the littoral regions of the world in defense of U.S. interests. President Truman, a Missouri native, once said, “Carry the battle to them. Don’t let them bring it to you.” The USS St. Louis will enable the Navy to do just that.

The USS St. Louis also reflects the extraordinary amount of time, expertise, and craftsmanship necessary to produce this great marvel of technology and symbol of American freedom. The defense industrial base,
