The Senate met at 3 p.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. GRASSLEY).

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:
Let us pray.
Our Father, as we think of those so desperately in need of legislative action, give our lawmakers the wisdom and courage needed for these challenging times. Use them to empower all Americans, particularly those on life’s margins.
Lord, help our Senators today to discern Your voice as they seek Your will in all they do. Give them the ability to differentiate Your guidance from all others, permitting You to lead them to Your desired destination. Speak to them through Your word. Guide them with Your Spirit, and sustain them with Your might.
We pray in Your great Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HAWLEY). The Senator from Iowa.
Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 1 minute in morning business.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM
Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, everybody now in the Senate remembers Senator Hatch. I want to tell you how he is still on the job, reminding Americans of our traditions.
Recently, my friend from Utah, former Senator Orrin Hatch, wrote about American academia and our so-called cancel culture. I encourage all Americans to read his essay that was published in the Wall Street Journal. Senator Hatch calls for a “renewed commitment to intellectual diversity” and for a “radical overhaul of campus culture.”
I agree with Senator Hatch.
Our institutions of higher learning need to wake up and welcome the open exchange of ideas in the classrooms and across campuses, and if that isn’t what universities and colleges are for, I don’t know what they are for. Silencing or shaming students from sharing divergent views is antithetical to the American way.
Our next generation of leaders deserves better. As colleges begin the school year, they should focus on keeping their students safe from the virus, but—and a big “but”—they shouldn’t worry one bit about keeping students safe from the free exchange of ideas or prevent professors from teaching different schools of thought. The herd mentality limits intellectual curiosity, and that is bad for freedom, particularly academic freedom.
I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES
THE NAVY-MARINES TRAGEDY
Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the Senate mourns the tragedy that we now know took place Thursday, off the coast of Southern California.
According to official reports, nine American servicemembers—eight marines and one sailor—died during a training exercise. These young servicemembers were all between the ages of 19 and 23. It is absolutely heartbreaking. The units involved are among our most unique and specialized amphibious forces. Their training is what allows them to deploy at a moment’s notice, under the harshest conditions, in the most remote and unsupported locations.
As the search for survivors turned into a recovery mission, the Nation was reminded that even what our men and women in uniform may consider to be routine still involves serious risk and personal sacrifice.
I extend the Senate’s sympathies to the families of those lost and our gratitude to the Marine Corps, Navy, and Coast Guard personnel who are searching to bring their comrades home.

ELECTION SECURITY
Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, on an entirely different matter, this week, officials from the intelligence community, the FBI, and the Department of Homeland Security will brief us on foreign efforts to influence our politics and elections and how the administration is defending us. Every one of our colleagues should attend one of these sessions.

Sharing sensitive threat information with Congress is just one of the ways this administration has outperformed its predecessor. The intelligence community kept Congress much more closely informed about these threats in 2018 and now in 2020 than it did in the runup to 2016. I am sure these briefings will contain details that might seem ripe for cherry-picking and partisan leaks from both sides, but it is essential that Congress remain a place where the word “classified” actually means something. Leaking intelligence jeopardizes sources and methods.

If we learn from studying Russian interference in 2016, it is that our adversaries’ ultimate objective is to leave America more divided and less confident in our institutions. Members of Congress must take special care not to feed our adversaries’ mission. Foreign adversaries have long sought to interfere in our politics and elections. That didn’t start in 2016, and it will not end in 2020, but this administration has put us in a far better position than in 2016. There is, simply, no comparison. The intelligence community is better aware of the threat. Government agencies are more transparent with Congress, the State and local jurisdictions that actually run elections, the private sector, and the public.

In 2016, the Obama-Biden administration had to lean on congressional leadership to act as a bridge to the States because the States distrusted their Department of Homeland Security. Over the last 4 years, this administration’s DHS has developed its own deep relationship with State officials. In 2016, only 14 State or local jurisdictions had received funding for Election Infrastructure Information Sharing and Analysis Center, with participation from more than 2,600 local jurisdictions and counting.

This administration has imposed real, on election interference and Russia’s other misdeeds: shuttering the Kremlin’s consulates in San Francisco and Seattle; kicking out intelligence officers; sanctioning oligarchs; helping European partners defend elections against Russia; and sending weapons to Ukraine and Georgia, which the Obama-Biden administration did not supply.

This administration has also confronted China for what the State Department described as “massive espionage and influence operations,” including closing Beijing’s consulate in Houston.

As the Democratic vice chairman on the Senate Intelligence Committee stated in 2016, “We were caught flat-footed.” Not anymore. Congress has provided more than $300 million for States and localities to shore up election infrastructure. This is not a number in some new law. Since foreign political interference is so often aimed at private sector platforms, like social media sites, we have encouraged those businesses to step up vigilance as well. Through a freestanding Digital Threats Act, Congress has put us in a far, far better position—period. Our lack of a one-size-fits-all national system isn’t just constitutionally appropriate; it also acts as a further safeguard. We lack a single point of failure.

So, in closing, urging all of our colleagues to attend these important briefings with an eye toward our real adversaries—not our fellow Americans but the foreign agents who love to see us at one another’s throats. In just a few days ago, it was reported that a leading Democratic strategist who was war-gaming this election decided to experiment with what would happen if Vice President Biden were to lose the election but were to, simply, fail to concede.

Once again, this kind of recklessness achieves our adversaries’ missions for them. So I urge my colleagues to listen to the civil servants who are defending our democracy. Let’s stay united, focus on the real dangers posed by foreign interference, and resist the urge to politicize these vital subjects.

HEALS ACT

Mr. MCConnell. Mr. President, on one final matter, last week, the Senate Democratic leader brought an end to the additional Federal benefit for unemployed workers. The Republicans tried multiple times to extend the money, including at the same dollar level that our colleague himself said he wanted, but the Democratic leader blocked it all.

This is the dynamic on the Democratic side that killed the subject of police reform back in June, and it has now jeopardized more coronavirus relief as well. The Democratic leaders insist publicly that they want an outcome, but they work alone, behind closed doors, to ensure a bipartisan agreement is, actually, not reached.

We are about a week into the Speaker’s and the Democratic leader’s discussions with the administration—a week into the Democratic leadership’s election security and have passed a number of targeted new laws. Since foreign political interference is so often aimed at private sector platforms, like social media sites, we have encouraged those businesses to step up vigilance as well. Through a freestanding Digital Threats Act, Congress has put us in a far, far better position—period. Our lack of a one-size-fits-all national system isn’t just constitutionally appropriate; it also acts as a further safeguard. We lack a single point of failure.

So how is it going? Well, the Democratic leader is still refusing to let struggling Americans get another dime unless he gets a massive tax cut for the wealthy people in blue States that has nothing to do with the coronavirus. It is his position. There is nothing for schools, nothing for kids, nothing for the PPP, nothing for the healthcare fight. Nobody gets a dime unless the Democratic leader gets a massive tax cut for the rich people in New York and California. That is what he is saying.

The Speaker of the House and the Democratic leader are continuing to say “our way or the highway” with the massive wish list for leftover lobbyists they slapped together a few weeks ago and called a coronavirus bill—stimulus checks for illegal immigrants, diversity studies for the legal pot industry, and on and on.

Can’t they even put out this proposal, even the media and their fellow Democrats pronounced this thing dead on arrival.

Here was one report: “Neither this bill nor anything resembling it will ever become law—it’s a Democratic wish list filled up with all the party’s favored policies.”

Remember how Speaker PELOSI’s own Members felt about this absurd proposal: “Privately, several House Democrats concede their latest bill feels like little more than an effort to appease the most liberal members of the caucus.”

But now, with the additional unemployment benefit disappearing, with families still struggling, they are going back to this unserious position and refusing to budge.

I can’t imagine this is how Democratic colleagues really all want this to play out.

In March, we built the CARES Act by Republicans and Democrats working together at the committee level. This time, again, Republicans introduced a serious proposal written by our own chairmen and our own Members. But this time, the Democratic leader has cut Senate Democrats out entirely. He has forbidden their committees from even talking to Republicans. He is digging in on a House messaging bill, written with no input from his own Members, that even House Democrats themselves called absurd.

These are the tactics that would be on a bipartisan result. These are not the tactics that will get more cash in Americans’ pockets, more help to the unemployed, more assistance for schools to reopen.

We need for the Democratic leadership to get serious about making a law—making a law—for the American people.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.
need more teachers. These are very important things we need to do to open schools safely, but they demand more dollars. As we sat in a room today, we discussed our views as to how many dollars are needed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CORNYN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CORONAVIRUS

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I just heard the Republican leader speak out on the floor. Leader McConnell is busy giving partisan speeches while for the last 2½ hours Speaker Pelosi, myself, Secretary of Treasury Mnuchin, and Chief of Staff Meadows were sitting in a room, trying to narrow our differences and come to an agreement. We all want to come to an agreement. We know the gravity of the situation demands it. We will continue to work and work at it.

We had a productive meeting. We narrowed some differences. Frankly, there are many that remain, but we must not give up. We must not resort to stark partisanship. We must come together and find a solution.

If I characterize the major difference between our side and the Republican side, we believe the gravity of the situation—the economic problems, the health problems—demands a bold, strong, vigorous solution by the Federal Government. We believe we must meet those needs. And it will cost money, but mark my words—if we spend less money now, it will cost us more money later.

We hear from our schools. They very much want to reopen. We hear from the parents of children. They very much want their kids to go back to school, but they want to do it safely. It costs a lot of dollars to make a school safe in this COVID crisis—not only the money for masks and PPE, but you can’t sit two kids next to each other on a bus, so there have to be many more bus routes. Because some of the learning will be distant, you need hotspots, and a lot of the kids don’t have them in their homes. You may need new ventilating systems because COVID demands it for a healthy environment. You may need to convert gymnasiums and cafeterias into new classrooms. Teachers may have to teach longer, and we may even are trying to figure the best way to keep their students safe but, at the same time, provide a quality education for all their students. As we have seen, there is no one-size-fits-all to the coronavirus when it comes to health. Our country is very diversified, with some highly concentrated populations with multigenerational families and an international travel hub, like New York City, and more rural areas where we, fortunately, have not seen the same sort of impact that we have seen in some of these concentrated areas.

So, in a country as big and diverse as ours, there has been no one-size-fits-all handbook or rubberstamp response. With COVID-19 surging in some parts of my State and declining in others, decisions, I think, should continue to be made flexibly, which means they should be made locally. Each school district or college knows their challenges, their needs, their capability, and they are closer than anyone else from the outside—certainly from Washington, DC—and they should be the ones, at the local level, to make the decisions how best to safely proceed.

Whether the school year kicks off with a hybrid, online or some combination of the two, one thing that has become abundantly clear is that additional Federal support is needed so these schools can safely reopen with the proper protections in place. Congress has already provided $20 billion in emergency relief for education, including more than $2.6 billion for Texas alone, which has helped our school districts, colleges, and universities prepare for the start of the new year while filling some holes left by gaps in tuition that has not been collected because students have not been studying in person.

Now, this funding can be used to support things like cleaning services and equipment, students and staff returning to the classroom. It could be used for laptops or hot spots for virtual learning.

What we really need is a restoration of confidence that people can continue to get on with their lives, as we all have learned to do, by socially distancing, masking, handwashing, and staying home if you are sick. That is what each of us can do as individual Americans, and that is what students can do in their classroom, as deemed appropriate by local authorities and parents.

Well, we had a strong start in the response to the coronavirus with the legislation that we passed, the repeated bills we passed on a bipartisan basis, virtually unanimously, but now it's time to take our foot off the gas. The Senate must move quickly to pass additional relief, not only for our students and teachers but for the workers and the industries hit hardest by this pandemic.

Think about our healthcare heroes. These were the truly essential workers who didn't have the choice to work remotely; they had to be on the frontline treating the people with the virus. We have unemployed workers—people who, through no fault of their own, continue to not earn a paycheck—and small businesses that are struggling. Many of our banks and grantees have worked hard and now have continued to see their businesses harmed by lack of customers. Then there are farmers and ranchers and other producers, so many of whom need us to act and act quickly.

Now, Congress is not known for acting with speed and dispatch, and at most times that is actually probably a good thing because you make mistakes when you get in a big hurry, but there is no reason we can't come together and reach an agreement this week and get relief on the way to those who need it most.

The Senate should not recess—we should not go back home for the August break—until the next coronavirus bill will really have a choice. We can do this the hard way or we can do it the commonsense and easier way, which is simply to sit down, come together, and work our way through our differences. We know how to do this. We do it all the time, and it is the only way anything gets done.

So we need to put the grandstanding differences out and come together and respond to that need.

Despite the immense challenges presented by the pandemic, millions of our essential workers have continued to go to work each day because their communities depend on them. We all depend on them. Right now, our country is depending on us to do our job, and we cannot let them down.

As school leaders make tough decisions today and continue to assess the situation, we need to ensure that they have the resources they need to keep their students healthy and their education on track.

This is not a zero-sum game. It is not one or the other. We have to do both.

The HEALS Act that was introduced by a number of colleagues on this side of the aisle included $105 billion for education, more than tripling the investment made in the CARES Act, which we passed late in March. The majority of that funding goes to K-12 schools and will support safety measures for students and also provide better access to those studying remotely at home through the Higher Education Emergency Relief Fund with an additional $29 billion to ensure that colleges and universities can make accommodations not only for learning on campus but also the living, eating, and the range of other activities that occur on university campuses.

At least 10 percent of that funding is dedicated to historically Black colleges and universities and minority-serving institutions.

Keeping Texas children healthy and their education on track is a top priority. It should be a top priority here and for all of us, and the next relief bill should provide the funds for students and teachers that they need as they head into this new territory this fall.

In addition to supporting our children going back to school, another issue that has reared its head is childcare because, for many parents, if their children are not studying in classrooms, they are studying at home, and they need supervision. Many parents who would like to go back to work, if they can do so safely, need to have childcare available for them to be able to do so.

In 2018, 60 percent of Texas children under the age of 6 had their available parents in the workforce—60 percent. And prior to COVID-19, many of those working were working childcare in daycare so they could go to work.

Of course, the pandemic has changed childcare arrangements for many families. Those who have been able to telework have often pulled double duty as employees and caregivers at the same time, and those who, unfortunately, lost their jobs or were laid off have stayed home with children until they have been able to return to work. But, really, childcare will be a huge limiting factor for many, many people who want to and can safely return to work. Now that more businesses are reopening, parents are increasingly in need of safe, reliable childcare, and Congress needs to step up and provide relief for childcare providers.

The HEALS Act authorizes short-term assistance to help them so they can safely reopen their doors and parents can safely return to work. This is, I believe, a key to getting more people back to work so we can begin to recover and rebuild our economy.

This legislation builds on another provision in the CARES Act that provided students student loan relief for the more than 43 million Americans who were student loan borrowers. It lets students defer student loan payments for up to 6 months with no penalty. I have gotten a lot of positive feedback on that provision from Texans across nearly every part of the State.

With so much economic uncertainty, we can't allow that provision to expire. Student loan debt is a real and growing problem in our country, and families should never be in the situation where they are sacrificing their basic needs just to make those student loan payments, especially during the time of a global emergency.

As we try to find consensus on the next coronavirus response package, there is no room to compromise on support for our children and teachers.

Another critical provision of supporting our schools is liability protections. As I mentioned, schools are weighing whether and they go by a long list of considerations. The number of cases of COVID virus in their community, new case trends, the risk to student health and teachers, the ability to implement relevant health guidelines—masks, hand sanitizer, reduced class sizes, and cohorting students. They have made changes to the bus routes, classroom seating, and lunch schedules to accommodate social distancing. They have talked to parents to identify the symptoms of COVID-19 and have planned for what they should do if a student or staff member tests positive.

Despite taking every precaution and closely following guidelines, the schools could still be sued for COVID-19 exposure. If a child contracts the virus, a parent could file a lawsuit blaming the school. Even though it would be extremely difficult—if not impossible—to prove the school was at fault, the district could be drawn into a costly court battle to defend itself, taking money and time away from classrooms needed to teach our children.

In Arizona, this has arisen as a major issue. The largest insurer for schools announced it will not provide liability coverage for COVID-19 claims. Without action from Congress, many schools may choose not to reopen their doors because the risk of expensive litigation is simply too high.

It is not just litigating and losing that is such a burden. By litigating, you actually can lose even if you win the case because of the cost associated with defending these cases and the time and energy it takes that could be expending our children.

That is why the legislation I have introduced, known as the SAFE Act, which is included in the HEALS Act, is so important. It will prevent schools that make a good-faith effort to protect the health and safety of students and staff, they can still face a mountain of lawsuits.

Let’s say a district has carefully considered all of these factors and made the decision to reopen. They are prepared to implement the CDC guidelines and mitigation strategies—things like social distancing, masks, handwriting, reduced class sizes, and cohorting students. They have made changes to the bus routes, classroom seating, and lunch schedules to accommodate social distancing. They have talked to parents to identify the symptoms of COVID-19 and have planned for what they should do if a student or staff member tests positive.

COMMUNICATIONS DECENCY ACT

Mr. WICKER. Madam President, for almost 25 years, the internet has grown and thrived under the light-touch regulatory framework established by the Communications Decency Act. As we can continue that, I think some changes need to be made.

Passed in 1996, the law that the Communications Decency Act is a part of helped create the internet. Section 230 of that law prohibits liability for decisions to interactive computer services, such as Facebook, Twitter, and other social media platforms. This provision protects online platforms from being held liable for content posted by their users.

This is a unique protection for online platforms, and not everyone in our country enjoys those protections. For example, newspapers do not enjoy this important protection. But we have done it for internet platforms.

At the same time, section 230 of the Communications Decency Act allows online platforms to censor content that they—the platforms—consider obscene, lewd, harassing, along with several other categories, including the term "otherwise objectionable."

I am concerned that this term, "otherwise objectionable," is too broad and ends up protecting online platforms when they remove content that they simply do not like or dislike or find distasteful personally.

I fear section 230 has enabled big tech companies to censor conservative views and voices, and I am joined by a lot of Americans in that view. As such, this provision has become a loophole for censoring free speech, and it risks negating the values at the very heart of our First Amendment.

In the last few years, reports of online censorship of conservative viewpoints have grown more frequent. In early 2018, for example, an undercover report exposed Twitter for systematically "shadow banning" conservative profiles—meaning users were blocked from the platform without being notified.

More recently, Google threatened to demonetize a conservative news site, The Federalist, for not removing offensive content in their comment section. Based upon information I received, the company told them it was derogatory and unacceptable. But what is noteworthy is that Google’s threat to the Federalist was hypersensitive and a bit hypocritical. Google held the Federalist accountable for comments made by the Federalist readers, but Google does not want to be held responsible for the posts or comments by users on Google’s platforms, including YouTube—a double standard imposed by Google itself. This selective scrutiny reveals what most Americans already believe—that tech companies are politically biased.

According to a 2018 Pew study, 7 out of 10 Americans believed social media companies censor political viewpoints that they find objectionable. That was 2 years ago. It has only worsened in the 2 years since then.

These concerns come at a time when tech companies wield unprecedented power over our media and our culture at large, and no one can deny that. A bipartisan chorus of committee members from the other side pointed this out just last week. More and more of our daily business is taking place online, and that trend is only accelerating during the pandemic.

As we near the 2020 election, Americans have serious concerns about whether online platforms will treat campaigns on both sides of the aisle fairly and equally. Those concerns are warranted. I have those concerns. Americans are right to be worried about interference by politically homogenous tech firms that hold unprecedented sway over our Nation’s political discourse.

After 24 years, it is time for Congress to revisit section 230 of the Communications Decency Act and start with refining—perhaps narrowing—the scope of what counts as otherwise objectionable content subject to censors. There must be a way that it would be better, but I think it is time for Congress and the committee that I chair to revisit this section of the law.

Last week, the Commerce Subcommittee on Communications, Technology, and the Internet convened a hearing to consider exactly this issue, and it was a very good hearing. As chairman of the Commerce Committee, I intend to pursue this matter thoroughly and evaluate what changes are needed to section 230. Congress needs to ensure that the internet remains a forum for a “true diversity of political discourse” that promotes competition and innovation.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BOOZMAN). The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CHINA

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. President, last week, journalists at ESPN published reports on their investigation into human rights violations at NBA training academies in China.

When you think about a basketball camp, you probably think of shooting drills or running sprints, but these camps look much different. The investigation focused on training camps located in Xinjiang. This particular region in western China has achieved a certain level of notoriety in recent months for the horrific political violence its government officials inflict on the Uighur minority. So it is no surprise that the stories told by trainers, coaches, and other NBA employees who helped to run these camps employ disturbing and familiar imagery.

According to the ESPN investigation, one former league employee compared the atmosphere at the Xinjiang camp to “World War II Germany.”

An American executive who visited a similar facility, described it as a “sweat camp for athletes.”

Now, according to the investigation, almost immediately after the NBA suspended this program in 2016, multiple coaches who were staffing the camps reported to high-ranking organization officials that they had witnessed Chinese coaches beating and berating student athletes. Bear in mind that these reports were made in 2016. They also reported that the Chinese Communist Party officials who were in charge of the camp were denying students an education.

In coming to this elite camp, they were to receive both an education and elevated sports training, but the reports, going back to 2016, said the children were being abused, beaten, berated, and denied the education. So why then did the NBA maintain these programs?

Money.

Communist China plays host to an estimated $4 billion NBA market. They say that China is basketball-obsessed, and NBA execs have used every avenue they can to take advantage of that, and they jealously protect these relationships.

Last October, when Houston Rockets’ General Manager Daryl Morey tweeted in support of the Hong Kong Freedom Fighters, multiple league all-stars, stakeholders, and well-connected employees lashed out in a panic—terrified of retaliation from Beijing.

Team owner and Alibaba co-founder Joe Tsai not only sided with the Chinese Communist Party as it retaliated against the entire league, but he characterized the Hong Kong protesters as leading a separatist movement. The over-the-top reactions are proof enough of how fragile the NBA’s relationship with China actually is and who is really in control of this relationship. The control is not with the NBA.

In June, I sent a letter to the NBA, expressing my concerns about the training camps in Xinjiang and the league’s entanglement with the Chinese Communist Party. In their response, they announced that they had closed their facilities in the region and that they had severed their ties to any programs there.

The problem is that the ESPN report I referenced previously disputes that and America can reach, who for clarification on that matter, but in their response, I hope NBA officials express clarity regarding all—each and every one—of their business relationships with China because the NBA and other organizations that maintain close ties with China believe that they are merely taking advantage of a growing consumer market—or that is what they say. To them, it is the smart, savvy play. That is what they believe. In reality, what they are doing is giving the ball away. They are playing right into Beijing’s hands, and those hands are controlled by the Chinese Communist Party. Since 2001, China’s CCP has operated under a grand strategy to stretch its influence across Europe, Africa, and Asia. This strategy is known as—quite elegantly, they think—the Belt and Road Initiative. It involves making interlocking investments over land and sea, which has formed the beginnings of a modern day Silk Road.

The Chinese Communist Party uses energy and transportation infrastructure development, as well as access to resource investment capital and trade opportunities, to force its way into the good graces of comparatively poor and still-developing nations.

I have seen this influence and its effects firsthand. Last year, I traveled to the Horn of Africa and spent some time in Djibouti—a country that welcomed China and the Belt and Road Initiative investments with open arms.

China owns somewhere in the neighborhood of 60 percent of that country’s national debt. This is 80 percent of its debt that is held by Communist China. The government in Djibouti, in turn, agreed to accommodate China’s first overseas military outpost, grant access to a crucial sea lane, and implement the Orwellian smart city program.

Now, I will tell you, if I asked you to picture a modern day surveillance state, if I asked you to picture the picture that would pop into your head would come pretty close to being what is happening right now in Djibouti City.

Yet the other thing I saw while in Djibouti was its vital strategic importance. The United States is the picture that would pop into your head when you think about the power of the purse, but Congress seems to think: Print more money. We can keep growing. We can afford it. All the while, China is making money off of our debt. Then, with those profits, what is it doing? It is investing in countries around the globe.

As I said, with what we know now about the Belt and Road Initiative—the digital Silk Road, its push in the great power competition—it has now spent somewhere between $1 trillion and $8 trillion around the globe. Some of these countries, like Djibouti, are being held in debtors’ prison in exchange for locating a military post, for having a naval base, for building out its spy network globally. This is what it is up to.

The lowest interest loans China offers leads these countries into unsustainable debt burdens. Some countries’ overall debts to China are well above 20 percent of their GDPs, and many of these loan recipients exist on the brink of a debt crisis. When you get in a debt crisis—when your debt is more than your income—what happens? The person holding your debt does what? We know. The person owns you.

In short, China has set a series of “debt traps” for smaller, struggling countries so they will just go tumbling over the cliff. For China, everything is going according to plan because that dependency translates to control over key strategic positions all over the globe.

Yet, pretty soon, if they are not careful, organizations like the NBA, the National Basketball Association, will be the “National Beijing Association.” What is it doing? It is ignoring this. Holding its nose, it is ignoring it. Why is it convenient? The profits look good. It is making money.

China is basketball-obsessed. Do we really think that makes it OK? I have to say that it is not OK.

What the NBA is doing is ignoring horrific human rights abuses—absolutely horrific. It is ignoring speech repression. It is ignoring political persecution. It is ignoring religious persecution. It is doing it all in the name of profits without understanding it is counterproductive, it is not sustainable, and it remains willfully blind to the manipulation tactics China uses to hide these abuses.

Whether we are talking about debt diplomacy or enthusiastic access to a willing market, all of it is offered up by the Chinese Communist Party as a distraction.

I have said repeatedly that the United States must take immediate steps to unravel our relationships with China. The necessary spread of COVID–19, caused by the Chinese Communist Party’s reckless attitude in the early days of the pandemic, is proof enough of how dangerously vulnerable we are to the Chinese influence, but this unraveling cannot occur if governments and organizations alike refuse to acknowledge what the American people know to be true, which is that we had a real chance to keep China in check, but we missed the opportunity.

The only way that we can retake control of our interactions with Beijing is to retake control of our economy and set our own parameters for engagement with what has become one of the most dangerous and powerful nations on the planet.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record the previously referenced article from ESPN, dated July 29, 2020.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

ESPN INVESTIGATION FINDS COACHES AT NBA ACADEMY'S CHINA CAMP ACCUSED OF PLAYER ABUSE, LACK OF SCHOOLING

(By Steve Fainaru and Mark Fainaru-Wada)

Long before an October tweet in support of Hong Kong democracy protesters led the NBA’s complicated relationship with China, the league faced complaints from its own employees over human rights concerns inside an NBA youth-development program in that country, an ESPN investigation has found.

American coaches at three NBA training academies in China told league officials that they were frequently harassed and surveilled in Xinjiang, the sources said. One American coach was detained three times without cause; he and others were unable to obtain housing because of their foreign status.

A former league employee compared the atmosphere when he worked in Xinjiang to World War II Germany.

In an interview with ESPN about its findings, NBA deputy commissioner and chief operating officer Mark Tatum, who oversees international operations, said that NBA is “reevaluating” and “considering other opportunities” for the academy program, which operates out of sports facilities run by the Chinese government. Last week, the league acknowledged for the first time it had closed the Xinjiang academy, but, when pressed, Tatum declined to say whether human rights were a factor.

“We were somewhat humbled,” Tatum said of the academy project in China. “One of the lessons that we’ve learned here is it: We do need to have more direct oversight and the ability to make staffing changes when appropriate.”

In October, Houston Rockets general manager Daryl Morey’s tweet in support of pro-democracy protesters led the Chinese government to pull the NBA from state television, costing the league hundreds of millions of dollars. The controversy continues to reverberate, as the NBA prepares to resume play this week after a 4 ½-month hiatus because of the coronavirus pandemic. China Central TV recently said it still won’t air NBA games, and U.S. lawmakers have raised questions about the league’s business ties to China.

The ESPN investigation, which began after Morey’s tweet, sheds new light on the lucrative China relationship and the costs of doing business with a government that suppresses free expression and is accused of cultural genocide. It illustrates the challenges of navigating in a society with markedly different approaches to issues such as discipline, education and security. The reporting is based on interviews with several former NBA employees who have knowledge of the league’s activities in China, particularly the player-development program.
The program, launched in 2016, is part of the NBA’s strategy to develop local players in a basketball-obsessed market that has made NBA China a $5 billion enterprise. Most of the NBA’s future stars spent one condition of anonymity because they feared damaging their chances for future employment. NBA officials asked current and former players to speak with ESPN for this story. In an email to one former coach, a public relations official added: “Please don’t mention that you have been advised by the NBA not to respond on this story.”

One American coach who worked for the NBA in China described the project as “a sweat camp for athletes.” At least two coaches left their positions in response to what they believed was mistreatment of young players.

One recipient of a transfer received a transfer after watching Chinese coaches strike teenage players, three sources told ESPN. Another American coach left before the end of his contract because he found the lack of education in the academies unconscionable: “I couldn’t continue to show up every day, looking at these kids and knowing they would be drivers,” he said.

Not long after the academies opened, multiple coaches complained about the physical abuse and lack of schooling to Greg Stolt, the league’s president for international operations for NBA China, and to other league officials in China, the sources said. It was unclear whether the information was passed on to NBA officials in New York, they said. The NBA declined to make Stolt available for comment.

Two of the former NBA employees separately told ESPN that coaches at the academies regularly speculated about whether Silver had been informed about the problems. “I said, ‘If [Silver] shows up, we’re all fired because of the performance of the coaches,’” said one source.

Tatum said the NBA received “a handful” of complaints that Chinese coaches had mistreated young players and immediately informed local authorities that the league had “zero tolerance” for behavior that was “antithetical to our values.” Tatum said the incidents were not reported at the time to league officials in New York, including himself or Silver.

“I will tell you that the health and well-being of our athletes and everyone who participates in our program is of the utmost priority,” Tatum said.

Tatum identified four separate incidents, though one was not formally reported in writing by an NBA employee. On three of the occasions, the coaches reported witnessing or hearing about physical abuse. The fourth incident involved a player who suffered from heat exhaustion.

“We did everything that we could, given the limited oversight we had,” Tatum said.

Three coaches who worked for the NBA in China told ESPN the physical abuse by Chinese coaches was much more prevalent than the incidents Tatum identified.

The NBA hired elite coaches and athletic trainers with experience in the G League and Division I basketball to work at the academies. One former coach described watching a Chinese coach fire a ball into a young player’s face at point-blank range and then “kick him in the gut.”

“I’m a 38-year-old dad who’s 13, 14 years old, and you’ve got a grown coach who is 40 years old hitting your kid,” the coach said. “We’re part of that. The NBA is part of that.”

It is common for Chinese coaches to discipline players physically, according to several people with experience in player development outside the NBA. Most of the former coaches, even my grandparents, they take corporal punishment for granted and even see it as an expression of love and care, but I know it might be criticized by people living outside of China,” said Jimming Zheng, an assistant professor of sports management at Northumbria University in England, who grew up in mainland China and has written extensively about the Chinese sports system. “The older generation still sees it as an integral part of training.”

In 2012, the NBA hired Bruce Palmer to work as a technical director at a private basketball school in Dongguan in southern China, a program that predates the academies. The school has a sponsorship agreement that pays the NBA nearly $200,000 a year and allows the school to bill itself as an “NBA Training Center.”

Palmer spent five years in Dongguan and said he repeatedly warned Chinese coaches not to hit, kick or throw balls at children. When a player, now in his 20s, said he encountered no more issues after filing a report, but the others said the abuse continued.

“The issue was so prevalent in the NBA’s academies that we now have a zero tolerance for behavior that was antithetical to our values,” Tatum said. “We didn’t have oversight of the local coaches, but we had oversight of the program and we were trying to protect the kids.”

 Palmer said his interactions with NBA officials suggested the league might not have the authority to dismiss coaches. “NBA Training Center.”

The coaches were told to file written reports on how to handle what they saw as physical abuse and lack of schooling to Greg Stolt, for direction on how to handle what they saw as physical abuse, according to three sources.

The coaches repeatedly asked the NBA for support on how to handle what they saw as physical abuse and lack of schooling. When the players—some as young as 13—weren’t training, eating or sleeping, they were often supervised. At least two coaches left their positions in response to what they believed was mistreatment of young players.

One coach said league officials who visited China seemed to be caught off-guard when they learned that players in the NBA academies did not attend school. The NBA was able to work out an arrangement by which players at the academy in Zhengjiang would be educated at a local international school. But efforts in Xinjiang and Shandong were unsuccessful.

Tatum said Chinese officials told the NBA that players at the academies did not attend school. The NBA training center. If you really feel like take him off campus, but not here, because the NBA does not allow this.”

With a population four times the size of the U.S., China is an exploding market for the NBA. The league’s soaring revenues were propelled in part by the success of former Rockets center Yao Ming, who retired in 2011.

Tatum said the league sought advice from Yao and other experts in China on the development of the program. He also said NBA China officials, including Stolt, for direction on how to handle what they saw as physical abuse, according to three sources. When the players—some as young as 13—weren’t training, eating or sleeping, they were often supervised.

One coach said league officials who visited China seemed to be caught off-guard when they learned that players in the NBA academies did not attend school.
In recent years, the Chinese government has escalated its use of high-tech surveillance, restricted freedom of movement and erected mass internment facilities, which the government calls vocational training centers and critics describe as concentration camps holding ethnic minorities, particularly Uighur Muslims. The government claims that these centers are meant to combat terrorism. In September, the United States joined more than 30 countries in condemning “China’s horrific campaign of repression against the Uighurs. Reports of separatist violence and Chinese government repression in Xinjiang go back decades.

Tatum said the NBA wasn’t aware of political or human rights issues in Xinjiang when it announced it was launching the training academy there in 2016. In the U.S. secretary of state began considering sanctions against China over human rights concerns there, and the issue became the subject of increasing media coverage within the United States. In August 2018, the NBA’s Xinjiang academy was closed amid a Chinese government crackdown that also targeted NBA employees, including coaches and writers. Pressed by ESPN, Tatum repeatedly avoided questions on whether the widespread human rights abuses in Xinjiang played a role in closing the academy.

Tatum said the NBA “had no idea” about the status of the facility until last week. Sometimes shortly after Morey’s October tweet, the academy webpage was taken down.

Pressed by ESPN, Tatum repeatedly avoided questions on whether the widespread human rights abuses in Xinjiang played a role in closing the academy, instead centering “many factors.”

“My job, our job is not to take a position on every single human rights violation that I’m not an expert in every human rights situation or violation,” Tatum said. “I’ll tell you what the NBA stands for: The values of the NBA are about respect, are about inclusion, are about diversity. That is what we stand for.”

Nury Turkel, a Uighur American activist who has been heavily involved in lobbying the U.S. government on Uighur rights, told ESPN before the NBA said it had left Xinjiang that he believed the league had been indirectly legitimizing “crimes against humanity.”

One former league employee who worked in China wondered how the NBA, which has been outspoken on other issues around Black Lives Matter and been criticized for its lack of coverage regarding the mass arrests in Hong Kong, could operate a training camp amid a Chinese government crackdown that also targeted NBA employees.

“The security restrictions, foreigners were told they were not allowed to rent housing in Xinjiang; most lived at local hotels. Tatum said the league wasn’t aware any of its employees had been detained or harassed in Xinjiang.

Most of the players who trained at the NBA’s Xinjiang academy were Uighurs, but it was unclear to league employees who spoke with ESPN if any were impacted by the government crackdown. After returning from Xinjiang last fall, Corbin Loubert, a strength coach who joined the NBA after stints at the IMG Academy in Florida and The Citadel, posted a CNN story on Twitter describing how the nation’s reporters faced surveillance and intimidation in Xinjiang.

“I spent the past year living in Xinjiang, and I can confirm every word of this piece is true,” Loubert tweeted. “One of the biggest challenges was not only the discrimination and harassment I faced,” he added, “but turning a blind eye to the discrimination and harassment that the Uighur people around me faced.”

Loubert declined several interview requests following the tweet.

In a bipartisan letter to Silver last October after Morey’s tweet, eight U.S. legislators— including Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, D-N.Y., and Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas—asked the NBA to “accurately understand from the NBA’s point of view why they wouldn’t want to make an announcement.”

I am also confident that Mr. Menezes is qualified for the position. He has earned his undergraduate and law degrees at Louisiana State University. He has, as I mentioned, considerable experience in the energy sector and here on Capitol Hill. He previously served as chief counsel on the Environment and Commerce Committee, Chief Counsel for Energy, and in that role, he has helped many of the issues. Mr. Menezes has served as Chief Counsel for Energy, and in that role, he has been responsible for many programs that help drive the innovation within the Department, including for renewable energy, as well as nuclear energy.

Mr. Menezes also helped create the Department’s cybersecurity office, which is dedicated to protecting our energy infrastructure from what has become very sophisticated and near-constant threats.

As Members may recall, the Senate confirmed Mr. Menezes to his current role by voice vote. I believe he has excelled as the Under Secretary of Energy. He has helped to set the policy direction of the Department. He has worked with many of us on issues that are important to our States and to the country as a whole.

I am also confident that Mr. Menezes will be a great second-in-command for Secretary Brouillette. We held Mr. Menezes’ nomination hearing back on May 20. This was our first hearing that we had held after several months lost due to the pandemic.

Mr. Menezes did, not surprisingly, very, very well. He demonstrated his knowledge of the issues; he showed us that he understands what it takes to help lead the Department; and that enabled us to report his nomination to the full Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support.

As we are sitting here now—it has been nearly a 2-month delay—and I am very pleased that we are about to vote on Mr. Menezes’ nomination. It is really key. It is very important that Secretary Brouillette has his leadership team in place, and Mr. Menezes has demonstrated that he has the knowledge and the experience needed to succeed as Deputy Secretary.

So I appreciate, and I have shared this with the President and his willingness to serve our country in a new and a higher capacity, particularly as we seek to harness the Department’s capabilities to overcome and recover from the COVID-19 pandemic.

I thank the majority leader for bringing up his nomination. I would urge every Member to vote in favor of it on cloture today and on confirmation tomorrow.

CORONAVIRUS

Mr. President, before I yield the floor to my friend and colleague, the ranking member on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, I want to take just a very, very, very brief moment and turn to the COVID-19 pandemic. As we have been compacting, where the expectation from people from Alaska to West Virginia and all points in between is that this Congress is going to come together to be responsive to the needs of the most vulnerable in this country right now—the vulnerability that has come about because of a global health pandemic and the ensuing economic crisis that we see now.

I spent the weekend back home in Alaska. I heard the concerns and the fears of so many for whom things are not getting better. Things are looking worse, and it is bleak. As of today, in the State's largest city, the mayor has recognized that with the numbers increasing as they are, we need to go back to the hunker-down mode. So restaurants and bars are shutting down again—just after they thought, with some level of optimism, that that is not on the horizon for them.

So that economic picture in our largest community is bleaker and bleaker. And for those who wake up and know that today is the day that they have to pay the mortgage, they have to pay the rent, and they don't know what level of assistance is going to be coming from their Congress—they do know, though, that the unemployment benefits that they had received, the plussed-up amount, that that is not on the horizon for them.

They do know that school is opening up in 20 days, and there is uncertainty with how the schools are going to safely open up for the children and for the faculty, the janitors, and the janitors of how they are going to make that work. And, oh, by the way, if this is a schedule where the kids are only in class for a couple days a week, for a shorter time period, how do I deal with the struggles and the challenges of childcare?

The folks at the food bank whom I met with over the weekend who are so concerned about the food security issues, for them, recognizing that a plus-up in SNAP may be—may be what gets that family through from week to week.

This is not the time for us to figure out what every one of these wants because this is the must-pass bill in this Congress. It is a must-pass bill. But we have to recognize that this can't be about what we need, what I might need for my election, or what I might want to advance as a legacy piece. This needs to be about the anxiety and the—just the awful place they are in right now; that they know we have been responsive to them; that we are addressing the immediacy of now, plays a role.

So whether it is what we do with unemployment insurance, whether it is what we do with food security, childcare, a longer term PPP program that will help our businesses, the short-term assistances—but understand what means for the long-term—the delay here only hurts the most vulnerable.

So I am urging all of us, let’s come together, let’s work with our colleagues on the other side of the aisle, let’s work with our colleagues here in the House, because people in my State are hurting, and they are expecting us to respond.

With that, I know that Senator MANNINCHIN wished to speak to the nomination of Mr. Menezes. I appreciate his good work on the committee.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. MANCHIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous to be able to complete my remarks.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NOMINATION OF MARK WESLEY MENEZES

Mr. MANCHIN. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Mark Menezes nomination to be Deputy Secretary of Energy.

I agree wholeheartedly with our chairwoman for Energy and Natural Resources. We have a great working relationship, and we have a good friendship that means more than anything to me.

But, basically, every now and then you get a person who comes before you that you know they are there for the good of the public. They are truly public servants, not for private service.

So this person comes across with so much expertise. That is going to play an important role in our national defense and our energy and economic security and our science and research and even in fighting the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic and helping to rebuild our economy.

The Deputy Secretary plays a central role in all of these efforts, and I believe that Mr. Menezes is up to the task.

The Deputy Secretary is the second highest-ranking officer in the Department of Energy and the Department’s chief operating officer on top of that. He is responsible for managing the Department’s wide-ranging mission and a budget of over $35 billion dollars—$35-billion-dollar budget.

The DOE and its labs can also play a vital role in supporting the scientific research and development needed to rebuild our economy.

In addition, the Department is responsible for maintaining the Nation’s nuclear weapons stockpile, overseeing the four power marketing administrations, and ensuring our energy security and protecting the Nation’s energy sector from cyber attacks, among other things.

As the Department’s second highest ranking officer and its chief operating office, the Deputy Secretary necessarily plays a critical role in all of these important functions.

Mr. Menezes brings an impressive background to the job. Thirty years ago, he was counsel to our former colleague Senator John Breaux; 15 years ago, he was chief counsel to the House Energy and Commerce and played a major role in shaping the Energy Policy Act of 2005.

He has held senior posts at the American Electric Power Company, the Hunton and Williams law firm, and Berkshire Hathaway Energy.

Most importantly, though, for the past 3 years, he has served as the Under Secretary of Energy. As the Under Secretary of Energy, Mr. Menezes has shown he is up to the task and capable of holding the job of Deputy Secretary.

I think that he truly, clearly, demonstrated his knowledge and his firm grasp of the wide range of important issues before the Department during the confirmation hearing, and I am happy to support his nomination in the most bipartisan way.

CORONAVIRUS

Mr. President, I would also like to make a few comments on what my good friend Senator MURKOWSKI from Alaska said.

People are depending on us. This is not time to have political battles. People are hurting in West Virginia; they are hurting in Arkansas; they are hurting all over. The uncertainty hurts them more than anything else. We have to make sure that we understand this is a health crisis. A health crisis needs to have its attention. We can’t be closing hospitals in the middle of a health crisis. I have three rural hospitals that closed. We have to make sure that they stay open to fight the fight. Also, I am certain of one point. Unemployment is not going to come back full force until people know they have a vaccine or an antibody that will protect them from a fatal disease. They are concerned and worried about that.

With that being said, right now they are asking us to continue on for the next 2 months. We don’t have connectivity. You talk about telework, distance learning, telehealth. They can’t have any of this if they can’t connect. So we have to make sure that one major infrastructure project has to be connectivity—broadband and high speed. We have been working on hot spots just to get through these 5 months.

There are things we agree on. Democrats and Republicans are coming together as Americans. We agree. We would like to help. They are just arguing over amounts and this that and the other.

The bottom line is that we have agreed and that we can agree on and meet the needs of the people on the frontlines. That is the most important thing. So I wholeheartedly engage in any type of bipartisan cooperation or bipartisan talks that we can move along to show people that we can put the needs of the public above the partisan divide that we have here and have had for a long time—since I have been here—and for decades.

I am happy to support Mr. Menezes, and I appreciate the bipartisan support we have for him.

I yield the floor.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move that a quorum be seated and proceed to the nomination of Mark Wesley Menezes, of Virginia, to be Deputy Secretary of Energy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived.

The question is, Is it in the sense of the Senate that debate on the nomination of Mark Wesley Menezes, of Virginia, to be Deputy Secretary of Energy, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THUNE. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. Burr), the Senator from Mississippi (Mrs. Hyde-Smith), the Senator from Kansas (Mr. Moran), the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. Tillis), and the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. Toomey).

Further, if present and voting, the Senator from Kansas (Mr. Moran) would have voted "yea."

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico (Heinrich), the Senator from Vermont (Leahy), and the Senator from Vermont (Sanders) are not present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Sullivan). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 78, nays 14, as follows:

ROLLCALL VOTE NO. 154 EX.

YEAS—78

Alexander—Enzi
Balbini—Ernst
Barrasso—Feinstein

Crabo—McSally
Cruz—Murkowski
Daines—Murphy
Duckworth—Murray
Durbin—Paul

NAYS—14

Burr—Leahy
Heinrich—Moran
Hyde-Smith—Sanders

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas are 78, the nays are 14.

The motion is agreed to.

The majority leader.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to legislative session for a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to five minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. McCONNELL, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD:

TRIBUTE TO THOMAS L. BOWLIN

Mr. TILLIS. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Thomas L. Bowlin, Colonel, USAF, Ret., who in addition to a distinguished career in the U.S. Air Force, has served as the first Director of Government Affairs for the North Carolina National Guard. I am glad that the Senate was able to come together on a bipartisan basis to pass this legislation to support our servicemembers, strengthen our national security, and invest in critical projects in my home State of Maryland. While there are parts of this legislation that I do not support and will seek to change in conference, I believe that, on balance, this bill serves our national interest.

In particular, I am pleased that this NDAA grants expanded acquisition authority for U.S. Cyber Command.
headquartered at Fort Meade. I echo the comments of the Armed Services Committee in its report, which finds that Cyber Command’s expanded mission and responsible use of its acquisition authority justify the removal of the constraints imposed by the FY16 NDAA. I appreciate that my colleagues on the Senate Armed Services Committee adopted Senator Warren’s amendment directing the Pentagon to begin the process of relocating military bases named for Confederate soldiers. No American military installations should be named in honor of those who led the fight against the union to defend slavery.

I also want to note my gratitude to Chairman Inhofe and Ranking Member Reed and their staffs for working with me to include relief for the family of Lieutenant Richard W. Collins III. Lt. Collins’ tragic death was made even more painful for his family through the challenge of being denied in recent years the proper benefits and recognition for their son. Nothing will ever fill the void of their loss, but I am hopeful that this provision brings the Collins family some peace of mind.

Admittedly, it is worth highlighting for the record that the House NDAA included a provision extending the review period of the World War I valor medals review authorized by section 584 of last year’s NDAA. The Valor Medals Review Task Force was charged with identifying the service records of World War I veterans who may have been passed over for the Medal of Honor on the basis of race or ethnicity. Unfortunately, the COVID–19 pandemic has limited their access to research materials and necessitated an extension for them to complete their work. I encourage the conferees to retain the House’s provision granting this extension.

While I am pleased with many of the provisions in this bill and voted for its passage, I do have significant reservations. I am deeply disappointed that this bill authorizes full funding for the President’s misguided and wasteful nuclear weapons programs while taking no action to preserve the New START treaty, the last standing agreement capping U.S. and Russian nuclear forces. For more than half a century, successive administrations have linked arms reductions to nuclear materials diversion efforts as a way of promoting stable deterrence and heading off an unconstrained arms race. Failure to extend New START will unravel this linkage, freeing Russia of limits on its nuclear arsenal and sparking a costly, destabilizing arms race.

I also strongly oppose the authorization of funds to prepare for an explosive underground nuclear test, an act that would prompt our nuclear-armed adversaries to conduct their own tests and would undermine long-standing arms control and nonproliferation objectives. I applaud the House’s passage of an amendment to bar nuclear testing in its NDAA, and I urge my colleagues to uphold this prohibition in conference negotiations.

I also believe that this bill fails to tackle the long-term budget challenges facing our country, which is why I was unfortunately unable to support Senator Sanders’ amendment to reduce defense spending by 10 percent and invest that money into healthcare, education, and poverty reduction in communities with a poverty rate of 25 percent or more. In the midst of the worst economic downturn since the Great Depression, a pandemic that has taken the lives of more than 150,000 of our fellow Americans and shows no signs of slowing down, and the impending crises of homelessness and joblessness that we face if the Congress fails to provide relief, we simply cannot afford to continue this level of investment in defense at the expense of other critical national priorities.

I regret that the Senate was not given an opportunity to vote on my amendment, cosponsored by 13 other Senators, prohibiting the use of U.S. security assistance to support the unilaterally annexation of all or parts of the West Bank, security assistance which the United States provides to Israel is an important element of the relationship between our two countries and one that I strongly support. As I explained in my floor statement at the time of its introduction, the amendment to the NDAA would not have reduced U.S. security assistance to Israel by a single penny. It would simply have ensured that no U.S. security assistance could be used for the purpose of unilaterally annexing territory in the West Bank. Furthermore, nothing in this amendment would have prohibited Israel from using U.S.-financed missile defense systems such as Iron Dome to defend against attacks in any territories that could be unilaterally annexed by the Israeli Government.

Likewise, I am troubled that the majority leader would not permit a vote on Senators Wyden and Merkley’s amendment to end the President’s unconstitutional attacks on Americans exercising their First Amendment rights in Portland. Portland is not the first city to experience these tactics; President Trump sent unidentified Federal police onto the streets of our Nation’s Capital to threaten peaceful protesters with tear gas and then threatening to send them to other American cities, including Baltimore. We must require Federal agents to wear visible identification and ban them from making arrests or detentions using unmarked vehicles. The Senate’s failure to act quickly to respond to the President’s unconstitutional behavior is shameful.

Finally, Majority Leader McConnell, at the behest of the Trump administration, once again blocked the inclusion of the bipartisan DETER Act, which I introduced with Senator Rubio, to deter future Russian interference in U.S. Federal elections. The DETER Act sends a clear message to Russian President Putin or any other foreign adversary: If you attack American elections, you will face severe consequences. Leader McConnell blocked this measure from the last NDAA, even though the Senate had unanimously passed a resolution instructing the conferees to support its inclusion.

The decision of the Trump administration, working through Senator McConnell, to continue to block the DETER Act effectively green-lights Russian interference in future U.S. elections. It is a gift to Russian President Putin and a subversion of the clear desire expressed by both Chambers of Congress to hold Russia accountable for future interference. It reinforces Putin’s belief that the costs of attacking our democracy are low and the rewards are great. I will continue fighting for the passage of the DETER Act. The Presidential election is less than 4 months away, and we must make clear to Putin that Russia will pay a steep price if they interfere in another election.

While I am opposed to some of the provisions in this bill and disappointed by the omission of others, I believe that, on balance, the NDAA will strengthen our national security and the rewards are great. For that reason, I voted in support of final passage.

VOTE EXPLANATION

Mr. Tester. Mr. President, I was absent when the Senate voted on vote No. 152 to confirm Executive Calendar No. 770, Derek Kan, of California, to be Deputy Director of the Office of Management and Budget. Mr. Kan’s tenure at OMB and his responses to questions from the Senate Budget Committee raise serious concerns about a lack of transparency and a failure of leadership in responding to the coronavirus pandemic.

While Mr. Kan was the Executive Associate Director at OMB, the agency illegally withheld security assistance for Ukraine in furtherance of President Trump’s corrupt scheme to pressure Ukraine to interfere on President Trump’s behalf in the 2020 election. On August 12, 2019, OMB General Counsel Mark Paletto sent an email to Mr. Kan and other top OMB officials regarding concerns from the Department of Defense about this withholding, an email that made headlines when it was revealed publicly. While I specifically asked Mr. Kan about this email in the confirmation hearing, Mr. Kan claimed during the hearing that he was not familiar with the email in question.
The Government Accountability Office found that OMB violated the Impoundment Control Act by withholding security assistance from Ukraine, and GAO also stated that OMB’s stonewalling of their inquiry had “constitutional significance” due to the underlying legislative branch oversight. Mr. Kan, like OMB Director Russell Vought during his confirmation hearing, refused to even provide a reason for why OMB did not turn over any documents in response to GAO’s request for documents to substantiate OMB’s claim that a policy process was the reason for withholding aid to Ukraine. In response to my questions following the hearing, Mr. Kan referred the matter to the office of OMB General Counsel Mark Paletto, the same official whose response to GAO’s inquiry failed to turn over any such documents in the first place.

I am also concerned about Mr. Kan’s leadership as a member of the President’s Task Force on Combating Child Exploitation. On February 5, 2020, Mr. Kan told Senators that the Trump administration did not need additional resources to address the coronavirus, which contributed to the deadly lack of preparation as the pandemic spread in the United States. During the confirmation hearing, Mr. Kan would not say whether he agreed with President Trump about reducing testing for coronavirus or whether President Trump was setting a good example by holding large indoor rallies at which masks were not required.

For those reasons, I voted against Mr. Kan’s confirmation to be Deputy Director at OMB.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO OBJECT
Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, in 2008, Congress responded to rising reports of child sexual abuse material—CSAM—online by passing the PROTECT Act to direct the Department of Justice to combat these heinous crimes. However, in the decade that followed, DOJ failed to request the manpower, funding, and resources to combat this scourge, leaving both the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children—NCMEC—and law enforcement agencies uncoordinated, understaffed, and underfunded. As a result, though tech companies reported more than 45 million instances of CSAM to NCMEC in the last year alone, just a fraction were investigated and even fewer were prosecuted and convicted.

Yet, rather than confronting this failure by Congress and the executive branch, my colleagues on the Senate Judiciary Committee have put forth the Eliminating Abusive and Rampant Neglect of Interactive Technologies—EARN IT—Act, a deeply flawed piece of legislation that would revoke online platforms’ intermediary liability protections with regard to not only Federal wire law, but also any State law broadly related to CSAM.

The EARN IT Act will not protect children. It will not stop the spread of child sexual abuse material, nor target the monsters who produce and share it, and it will not help the victims of these evil crimes. What it will do is threaten the free speech, privacy, and security of every single American. This is because, at its core, the amended EARN IT Act represents a collateral damage of the effort to Stop Enabling Sex Traffickers Act—SESTA—and its House companion, the Fight Online Sex Trafficking Act—FOSTA. Experts believe that SESTA/FOSTA has done nothing to help victims or stop sex trafficking, while creating new harms for marginalized communities and the speech of all Americans. A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of FOSTA on First Amendment grounds is proceeding through the courts, and there is bicameral Federal legislation to study the widespread negative impacts of the bill on marginalized groups.

Yet, the authors of the EARN IT Act decided to take this kind of carveout and expand it further to State civil and criminal statutes. By allowing any individual to sue companies for internet content, this bill would create massive uncertainty, both for strong encryption and constitutionally protected speech online. What is worse, the flood of State laws that could potentially arise under this bill would create additional, inedible collateral damage for the speech of all Americans. A lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of FOSTA on First Amendment grounds is proceeding through the courts, and there is bicameral Federal legislation to study the widespread negative impacts of the bill on marginalized groups.

I am concerned about Mr. Kan’s leadership as a member of the President’s Task Force on Combating Child Exploitation. On February 5, 2020, Mr. Kan told Senators that the Trump administration did not need additional resources to address the coronavirus, which contributed to the deadly lack of preparation as the pandemic spread in the United States. During the confirmation hearing, Mr. Kan would not say whether he agreed with President Trump about reducing testing for coronavirus or whether President Trump was setting a good example by holding large indoor rallies at which masks were not required.

For those reasons, I voted against Mr. Kan’s confirmation to be Deputy Director at OMB.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH CAMP
Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I am pleased to recognize Cynthia Barrettt, the Highlands County Teacher of the Year from Avon Park High School in Avon Park, FL. Cynthia believes teaching is more than just a job. She holds her students to high expectations, knowing they are in advanced classes and will soon become leaders throughout their communities. Cynthia appreciates this award is more than just a recognition of her hard work, but also an acknowledge-ment of the hard work her students put in each day.

Cynthia teaches AP world history and economics/honors at Avon Park High School. She has taught in High-lands County since 1994 and previously taught in Leon County from 1989 to 1994. Cynthia is a graduate of Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University.

I offer my sincere gratitude to Cynt-hia on her dedication to teaching stud-ents throughout the school year. I look forward to hearing of her continued good work in the coming years.

TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH CAMP
Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize Elizabeth Camp, the Sumter County Teacher of the Year from Wildwood Elementary School in Wildwood, FL.
Elizabeth believes that teachers hold several roles in the lives of their students. For example, they are responsible for imparting knowledge, as well as providing guidance and leadership related to many of life's skills. She often considers teachers to be surrogate family members for their students.

Elizabeth's philosophy for teaching is one that states all students can learn and grow, no matter their background. She embodies the principle that having enthusiasm and love is required to propel students, as well as others in the learning community, and makes for a more positive educational environment.

Elizabeth teaches fifth-grade math and science at Wildwood Elementary School and has been a teacher for 21 years. She graduated from the University of Central Florida with a bachelor's degree in elementary education.

I extend my best wishes to Elizabeth on the decade she has devoted to teaching her students. I look forward to hearing of her continued success in the coming years.

TRIBUTE TO JENNIFER DIXON

- Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize Jennifer Dixon, the Pasco County Teacher of the Year from Gulf High School in New Port Richey, FL.

Jennifer is excited to come to work every day because of her students. She finds it a great honor to work with them, to understand them, to teach them, and to help them grow throughout the school year.

High school was not Jennifer's favorite time in her life, and she believes other students should not have a similar experience. She credits teachers she had throughout her educational career for making a difference, helping her to become the first person in her family to graduate from college.

Jennifer teaches economics, financial literacy, and psychology at Gulf High School. She became a teacher in 2003 and is certified to teach art K–12, exceptional student education K–12, business education for grades 6–12, and social studies for grades 6–12. She received her master's degree in education from Eastern New Mexico University and is currently pursuing a doctorate degree in educational leadership policy from Texas Tech University.

I extend my best wishes to Jennifer and look forward to hearing of her continued success in the coming years.

TRIBUTE TO CHRISTINE O'HARA

- Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize Christine O'Hara, the Charlotte County Teacher of the Year from Peace River Elementary School in Charlotte Harbor, FL.

Christine enjoys sharing her passion for math with teachers and students and believes everyone is a math person at heart. She enjoys utilizing the learning experience to make math enjoyable and successful for her students. In 2016 and 2017, Christine was identified as a High Impact Teacher by the Florida Department of Education. Her fourth-grade students' growth on State testing was among the most positive in the State.

Christine is a math coach at Peace River Elementary School, teaching in Florida for 13 years, with 6 of them in Charlotte County. Last year, she became an instructional math coach and is a member of the District Elementary Math Framework committee. She graduated from Central Michigan University in 2005. Outside of her classroom, Christine teaches group fitness classes and enjoys fishing in Charlotte Harbor with her fiancé, Travis.

I congratulate Christine on her hard work for her students over the years. I extend my best wishes and look forward to hearing of her continued success in the years ahead.

TRIBUTE TO JESSICA PRICE

- Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I am pleased to recognize Jessica Price, the Citrus County Teacher of the Year from Lecanto High School in Lecanto, FL.

Although she never planned to become a Spanish teacher, Jessica's passion for sharing a love for language makes her an excellent educator. Jessica loved learning as a student in Citrus County, focusing on Spanish and chorus as her favorite classes. She had originally planned to become a music teacher, but Spanish captivated her to teach the language to each year. In college, she studied in Mexico, living with a family and immersing herself in Spanish culture, furthering her love of the Spanish language.

Jessica teaches Spanish at Lecanto High School and has been a teacher since 2011. She majored in Spanish and English, with minors in linguistics and teaching English as a second language from the University of Florida. Jessica also oversees her school's honor society.

I extend my best wishes to Jessica and look forward to hearing of her continued success in the years to come.

TRIBUTE TO KATRINA RODDENBERRY

- Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize Katrina Roddenberry, the Pasco County County Teacher of the Year from Wakulla Middle School in Crawfordville, FL.

Katrina finds it incredibly rewarding to see students motivated by science experiments and researching on their own about careers in science. She strives to spark their interests, which helped to raise Wakulla Middle School's average science proficiency on the Florida Science Assessment for eighth grade by 23 percent, which is 21 percent above the State average.

Katrina created and sponsors her school's science, technology, engineering, and math club, is an Odyssey of the Mind coach, Fellowship of Christian Athletes cosponsor, and is a teacher coach. She believes the ultimate measure of her success as a science teacher is when her students leave her classroom with strong foundational knowledge of science concepts and renewed curiosity and love of learning about the world around them.

Katrina is in her third year of teaching middle school science and high school credit integrated science and integrated science honors to eighth graders at Wakulla Middle School. Previously, she taught third and fifth grade at Riversink Elementary School and is in her 12th year of teaching. She received her bachelor's degree in elementary education from Flagler College, earned certifications in exceptional student education, middle grade integrated science, and sixth through ninth grade. She received her master's degree from American College of Education in curriculum and instruction with a concentration in teaching science and is an adjunct professor at Flagler College Teaching Science. Katrina, a NASA Space Foundation Teacher Liaison, is on the Space Educators Expedition Crew, and is a member of the National Space Foundation Teacher Liaison.
Science Teachers Association and the Florida Association of Science Teachers.

I offer my sincere gratitude to Katrina for her years of hard work. I look forward to hearing of her continued good work in the years to come.

TRIBUTE TO DEVAN ROULHAC
• Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I am pleased to recognize Devan Roulhac, the Calhoun County Teacher of the Year from Blountstown High School in Blountstown, FL.

Devan’s inspiration as an educator is to learn more about his students. He does this because what typically do not know the realities some students endure after leaving the classroom or how deeply those negative experiences affect their mental health and personal well-being. His inspiration comes from his own personal experience as a student.

Devan knows some students have it worse than what he experienced and has realized the students he teaches today mimic the same front he put on when he was a student. In 2017, teaching career in 2017 teaching those students who need it the most.

Devan is an English I teacher at Blountstown High School. He began his teaching career in 2007 teaching English and at Wewahitchka Jr./Sr. High School. Currently, Devan is developing a curriculum for teaching freshman English courses that meet Florida standards, focusing on informational text analysis, argumentative writing, and grammar mechanics.

I extend my deepest gratitude to Devan for his commitment to teaching and making a difference in the lives of his students. I look forward to hearing of his good work in the years to come.

TRIBUTE TO JERRY WEBB
• Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize Jerry Webb, the Taylor County Teacher of the Year from Taylor County Elementary School in Perry, FL.

Jerry dedicates himself as an educator by putting his students first. He teaches them on subjects they are struggling with and makes himself available to talk about anything they need to discuss. Jerry works to make a difference in the lives of his students in any way that he can.

Superintendent Dr. Danny Glover, Jr., notes Jerry’s innovative teaching style is something not easily replicated and is a part of the reason he won this important award. Dr. Glover noted how fortunate the Taylor County School District is to have Jerry.

Jerry has taught fourth and fifth grades at Taylor County Elementary School for the past 6 years. Previously, he worked as a paraprofessional at the school before becoming a grade school teacher.

I extend my best wishes to Jerry and look forward to hearing of his continued success in the years to come.

TRIBUTE TO CARRIE WILSON
• Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I am pleased to recognize Carrie Wilson, the Hernando County Teacher of the Year from Challenger K-8 School of Science and Mathematics in Spring Hill, FL.

Carrie wants students to feel their school is like their home and to know they are cared for, and valued when coming to class. She is very grateful to receive this important recognition as it represents the many passionate professionals who work in the Hernando County School District.

Carrie has been a school counselor since 2001 and is in her 21st year working in elementary education. She is a graduate of the University of South Florida and earned her graduate degree in counseling and psychology from Troy State. She works to raise awareness to students’ mental health and encourages others to see themselves as a partner in helping those who need that support.

I offer my sincere gratitude to Carrie for her more than two decades of helping students. I look forward to hearing of her continued good work in the years to come.

TRIBUTE TO HEATHER YOUNG
• Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize Heather Young, the Sarasota County Teacher of the Year from Venice Elementary School in Venice, FL.

Heather has been a teacher for 22 years and is in her first year of teaching visual arts at Venice Elementary School. Previously, she taught gifted students in elementary school through middle school in Sarasota County Schools.

Heather makes her art room a great venue for teaching her students, whether they are gifted or intellectually disabled. She uses art to teach innovative ways to facilitate problem-solving, risk-taking, and creative decision-making skills.

Heather believes there is no better way to spend her day than having a classroom that is a creative outlet for students. She tries to get them to stop questioning whether they can do something and, instead, empowers them to be creative on their own.

I offer my sincere gratitude to Heather for the good work she does for her students. I look forward to hearing of her continued success in the years to come.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 2503. Mrs. Loeffler (for herself, Ms. Ernst, and Mr. Cruz) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2499 proposed by Mr. McConnell to the bill S. 173, to condemn gross human rights violations of ethnic Turkic Muslims in Xinjiang, and calling for an end to arbitrary detention, torture, and harassment of these communities inside and outside China; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 2603. Mr. GRASSLLEY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2999 proposed by Mr. MCCONNELL to the bill S. 178, to condemn gross human rights violations of ethnic Turkic Muslims in Xinjiang, and calling for an end to arbitrary detention, torture, and harassment of these communities inside and outside China; which was ordered to lie on the table.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS
SA 2503. Mrs. LOEFLER (for herself, Ms. ERNST, and Mr. CRUZ) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2999 proposed by Mr. MCCONNELL to the bill S. 178, to condemn gross human rights violations of ethnic Turkic Muslims in Xinjiang, and calling for an end to arbitrary detention, torture, and harassment of these communities inside and outside China; which was ordered to lie on the table.

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 3. TAX INCENTIVES FOR RELOCATING MANUFACTURING OF PHARMACEUTICALS AND MEDICAL SUPPLIES AND DEVICES TO THE UNITED STATES.

(a) ACCELERATED DEPRECIATION FOR NONRESIDENTIAL REAL PROPERTY.—Section 168 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(a) ACCELERATED DEPRECIATION FOR NONRESIDENTIAL REAL PROPERTY.—For purposes of this section, the term "qualified nonresidential real property" means any property which—

"(1) is sold or exchanged by a qualified manufacturer in connection with a qualified relocation of manufacturing, and

"(2) was used by such qualified manufacturer in the trade or business of manufacturing a qualified medical product in the foreign country from which such manufacturing is being relocated.

"(b) QUALIFIED MANUFACTURER.—For purposes of this section, the term "qualified manufacturer" means any person engaged in the trade or business of manufacturing a qualified medical product.

"(c) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

"(1) ACCELERATED DEPRECIATION.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to property placed in service after the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(2) EXCLUSION OF GAIN.—The amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to sales and exchanges after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SA 2504. Mr. GRASSLLEY submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2999 proposed by Mr. MCCONNELL to the bill S. 178, to condemn gross human rights violations of ethnic Turkic Muslims in Xinjiang, and calling for an end to arbitrary detention, torture, and harassment of these communities inside and outside China; which was ordered to lie on the table.

At the end, add the following:

SEC. 3. ADDITIONAL 2020 RECOVERY REBATES FOR INDIVIDUALS.

(a) In General.—Subchapter B of chapter 65 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting after section 65B the following new section:

"Sec. 6428A. ADDITIONAL 2020 RECOVERY REBATES FOR INDIVIDUALS.

"(a) In General.—In addition to the credit allowed under paragraph (1) of section 32D, there shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by subtitle A for the first taxable year beginning in 2020 an amount equal to the sum of—

"(1) $1,200 ($2,400 in the case of eligible individuals filing a joint return), plus

"(2) $500 multiplied by the number of dependents (as defined in section 152(a) of this title).

"(b) Treatment of Credit.—The credit allowed by subsection (a) is determined without regard to section 32D(b)(2) and shall be reduced by (but not below zero) 5 percent of the amount of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income in excess of—

"(1) $150,000 in the case of a joint return,

"(2) $121,500 in the case of a head of household,

"(3) $75,000 in the case of a taxpayer not described in paragraph (1) or (2).

"(4) Eligible Individual.—For purposes of this section, the term "eligible individual" means any individual who is not described in paragraph (2) and who was deceased prior to January 1, 2020.

"(5) Exceptions.—An individual is described in this paragraph if such individual is—

"(A) a nonresident alien individual,

"(B) an individual with respect to whom a deduction under section 215(a) is allowable to another taxpayer for a taxable year beginning in the calendar year in which the individual's taxable year begins, or

"(C) an estate or trust.

"(c) Coordination With Advance Refunds of Credit.—

"(1) In General.—The amount of credit which would (but for this paragraph) be allowable under this section shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the aggregate refunds and credits made or allowed to the taxpayer under subsection (f). All failure to so reduce the credit shall be treated as arising out of a mathematical or clerical error and assessed according to section 6213(b)(1).

"(2) Joint Returns.—In the case of a refund or credit made or allowed under subsection (f) with respect to an eligible individual filing a joint return, half of such refund or credit shall be treated as having been made or allowed to each individual filing such return.

"(3) Advance Refunds and Credits.—

"(A) In General.—Subject to paragraph (5), each individual who was an eligible individual for such individual's first taxable year beginning in 2019 shall be treated as having made a payment against the tax imposed by chapter 1 for such taxable year in an amount equal to the advance refund amount for such taxable year.

"(B) Advance Refund Amount.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the advance refund amount is the amount that would have been allowed as a credit under this section for such taxable year if this section (other than subsection (e) and this subsection) had applied to such taxable year.

"(C) Timing and Manner of Payments.—

"(A) Timing.—The Secretary shall, subject to the provisions of this title, refund or credit any overpayment attributable to this section as rapidly as possible. No refund or credit shall be made or allowed under this section after December 31, 2020.

"(B) Delivery of Payments.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may certify and disburse refunds payable under this section electronically to the extent permitted by law.

"(I) any account to which the payee received or authorized, on or after January 1, 2018, a refund of taxes under this title or of... a Federal payment (as defined in section 3332 of title 31, United States Code),— (ii) any account belonging to a payee from which that individual, or on after January 1, 2020, made a payment of taxes under this title, or
(iii) any Treasury-sponsored account (as defined in section 208.2 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations).

(C) WAIVER OF CERTAIN RULES.—Notwithstanding section 3323 of title 31, United States Code, or any other provision of law, with respect to any payment of a refund under this subsection, a disbursing official in the executive branch of the United States Government, with the authorization of the Secretary of the Treasury, may make payments, notwithstanding any provision of law, with respect to any overpayment attributable to a payment made pursuant to paragraph (3), has not filed a tax return for the year described in paragraph (1), the Secretary may—
(i) waive any requirement of this section for the year 2019; and
(ii) use information with respect to such individual for calendar year 2019 provided in—
(I) Form SSA–1099, Social Security Benefit Statement, or
(II) Form RRB–1099, Social Security Equivalent Benefit Statement, or
(iii) use information with respect to such individual which is provided by—
(I) in the case of a specified social security beneficiary or a specified supplemental security income recipient, the Commissioner of Social Security,
(II) in the case of a specified railroad retirement beneficiary, the Railroad Retirement Board, and
(III) in the case of a specified veterans beneficiary, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs (in coordination with, and with the assistance of, the Commissioner of Social Security).

(D) SPECIFIED INDIVIDUAL.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘specified individual’ means any individual who—
(i) in the case of a specified railroad retirement beneficiary, or a specified railroad retirement beneficiary, or a specified veterans beneficiary,
(ii) a specified supplemental security income recipient,
(iii) a specified railroad retirement beneficiary,
(iv) a specified veterans beneficiary.

(C) SPECIFIED SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFICIARY.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘specified social security beneficiary’ means any individual who, for the last month that ends prior to the date of enactment of this section, is entitled to a monthly annuity or pension payment payable (without regard to section 5(a)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 (45 U.S.C. 331a(k)(1))) under—
(i) section 2(a)(1) of such Act (45 U.S.C. 331a(a)(1)),
(ii) section 2(c) of such Act (45 U.S.C. 331a(c)),
(iii) section 2(d)(1) of such Act (45 U.S.C. 331a(d)(1)), or
(iv) section 7(b)(2) of such Act (45 U.S.C. 331b(2)) with respect to any of the benefits described in subparagraph (C).

(F) SPECIFIED VETERANS BENEFICIARY.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘specified veterans beneficiary’ means any individual who, for the last month that ends prior to the date of enactment of this section, is entitled to a compensation or pension payment payable (without regard to section 5(a)(ii) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 (45 U.S.C. 331a(k)(1))) under—
(i) section 1110, 1117, 1121, 1131, 1141, or 1151 of title 38, United States Code,
(ii) section 1310, 1312, 1313, 1315, 1316, or 1318 of title 38, United States Code,
(iii) section 1513, 1521, 1533, 1536, 1537, 1541, 1542, or 1562 of title 38, United States Code, or
(iv) section 1805, 1815, or 1821 of title 38, United States Code, to a veteran, surviving spouse, child, or parent as described in paragraph (2), (3), (4), (4A)(ii), or (5) of section 101, title 38, United States Code.

(G) SUBSEQUENT DETERMINATIONS AND REDETERMINATIONS NOT TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT.—For purposes of this section, any individual’s status as a specified social security beneficiary, a specified supplemental security income recipient, a specified railroad retirement beneficiary, or a specified veterans beneficiary shall be unaffected by any determination or redelegation of any entitlement to, or change in, the benefit, payment, or compensation, if such determination or redelegation occurs after the last month that ends prior to the date of enactment of this section.

(H) PAYMENT TO REPRESENTATIVE PAYEES AND FIDUCIARIES.—
(i) In general.—If the benefit, payment, or compensation referred to in subparagraph (C), (D), (E), or (F) with respect to any specified individual is paid to a representative payee or fiduciary, payment by the Secretary under paragraph (3) with respect to such specified individual shall be made to such individual’s representative payee or fiduciary and the entire payment shall be used only for the benefit of the individual who is entitled to the payment.

(iii) APPLICATION OF ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS.—
(D) In the case of a payment described in clause (i) which is made with respect to a specified social security beneficiary or a specified supplemental security income recipient, section 1129(a)(3) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320a–3(a)(3)) shall apply to such payment in the same manner as such section applies to a payment under title II or XVI of such Act.

(II) In the case of a payment described in clause (i) which is made with respect to a specified railroad retirement beneficiary, section 13 of the Railroad Retirement Act (45 U.S.C. 2311) shall apply to such payment in the same manner as such section applies to a payment under such Act.

(III) In the case of a payment described in clause (i) which is made with respect to a specified veterans beneficiary, sections 5502, 6610(e), and 6619(a) of title 31, United States Code, shall apply to such payment in the same manner as such sections apply to a payment under such title.

(6) NOTICE TO INDIVIDUALS.—Not later than 15 days after the date on which the Secretary distributed any payment to an eligible individual pursuant to this subsection, notice shall be sent by mail to such individual’s representative payee or fiduciary, if any, and to such individual as provided in section 6111. This notice shall indicate the method by which such payment was made, the amount of such payment, and a phone number for the appropriate point of contact at the Internet Service to report any failure to receive such payment.

(g) IDENTIFICATION NUMBER REQUIREMENT.—
(I) In general.—No credit shall be allowed for any payment made pursuant to subsection (a) to an eligible individual who does not include on the return of tax for the taxable year—
(A) such individual’s valid identification number as defined in subsection (e), and
(B) in the case of a joint return, the valid identification number of such individual’s spouse, and
(C) in the case of any dependent taken into account under subsection (a)(2), the valid identification number of such dependent.

(2) VALID IDENTIFICATION NUMBER.—
(A) In general.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term ‘valid identification number’ means a social security number (as such term is defined in section 6109).

(B) ADOPTION TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBER.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(C), in the case of a dependent who is adopted or placed for adoption, the adoption taxpayer identification number shall include the adoption taxpayer identification number of such dependent.

(3) SPECIAL RULE FOR MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES.—Paragraph (1)(B) shall not apply in the case where at least 1 spouse was a member of the Armed Forces of the United States at any time during the taxable year and at least 1 spouse satisfies paragraph (1)(A).

(4) MATHEMATICAL OR CLERICAL ERROR AUTHORITY.—Any omission of a correct valid identification number required under this subsection shall be treated as a mathematical or clerical error for purposes of applying section 6013(e)(2) to such omission.

(5) SPECIAL RULES WITH RESPECT TO PRISONERS.—
(1) DISALLOWANCE OF CREDIT.—
(A) In general.—Subject to subparagraph (B), credit shall be allowed under subsection (a) to an eligible individual who is, for each day during calendar year 2020, described in clause (i), (ii), (iii), (iv), or (v) of section 221(e)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 402(x)(1)(A)).

(B) JOINT RETURN.—In the case of eligible individuals filing a joint return where 1 or more is described in subparagraph (A), subsection (a)(1) shall be applied by substituting "$1,200" for "$2,400".

“(2) DENIAL OF ADVANCE REFUND OR CRED-ITT.—No refund or credit shall be made or allowed under subsection (f) with respect to any individual whom the Secretary has known to have failed or attempted to fail to carry out the purpose made pursuant to paragraph (3) of such subsection, described in clause (i), (ii), (iii), (iv), or (v) of section 202(x)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act.

“(i) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations or other guidance as may be necessary or advisable to the enforcement of this subsection, including any such measures as are deemed appropriate to avoid allowing multiple credits or rebates to a taxpayer.

(b) DEFINITION OF DEFICIENCY.—Section
6211(b)(4)(A) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by striking “and 6426” and inserting “and 6426A,” and 6426A.

(c) TREATMENT OF POSSESSIONS.—Rules similar to the rules of subsection (c) of section 2201 of the CARES Act (Public Law 116–190) shall apply for purposes of this section.

(d) EXCEPTION FROM REDUCTION OR OFF-SET.—

   (1) IN GENERAL.—Any credit or refund allowed or made to any individual by reason of section 6228A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by this section) or by reason of subsection (f) of section 6228 of such Code shall not be—

   (A) subject to reduction or offset pursuant to section 3716 or 3720A of title 31, United States Code,

   (B) subject to reduction or offset pursuant to subsection (d), (e), or (f) of section 6402 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or

   (C) reduced or offset by other assessed Federal taxes that would otherwise be subject to levy or collection.

   (2) ASSIGNMENT OF BENEFITS.—

   (A) IN GENERAL.—The right of any person to any applicable payment shall not be transferable or assignable, at law or in equi-ity, and no applicable payment shall be subject to execution, garnishment, or other legal process, or the operation of any bankruptcy or insolvency law.

   (B) ENCODING OF PAYMENTS.—In the case of an applicable payment described in subparagraph (D)(iii)(A) that is paid electronically by direct deposit through the Automated Clearing House (ACH) network, the Secretary of the Treasury (or the Secretary’s delegate) shall—

   (i) issue the payment using a unique iden-tifier that is reasonably sufficient to allow a financial institution to identify the payment as an applicable payment, and

   (ii) further encode the payment pursuant to the same specifications as required for a bene-tified payment described in section 212.3 of

   (C) GARNISHMENT.—

   (1) ENCODED PAYMENTS.—In the case of a garnishment order that applies to an account that has received an applicable payment that is encoded as provided in subparagrah (B), a financial institution shall follow the procedures set forth in part 212 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations, except a financial institution shall not, with regard to any applicable payment, be required to follow the notice procedures set forth in sections 212.6 and 212.7 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations. This paragraph shall not alter the status of applicable payments as tax refunds or other nonrefund payments that have been served by a Federal, State, or local child support enforcement agency, that has been recieved by a financial institution and that ap-pplies to an account into which an applicable payment that has not been encoded as provided in subparagraph (B) has been deposited, without notice, the amount of the applicable payment that has been deposited by check on any date in the lookback period, the financial institution, upon the request of the account holder, shall provide the account holder a copy of the account at the time of the request, to up to the amount of the applicable payment (in addition to any amount otherwise protected by subpart 212 (title 31, Code of Federal Regulations), as exempt from a garnishment order without requiring the consent of the party securing the garnishment order or the judgment creditor.

   (iii) LIABILITY.—A financial institution that acts in good faith in reliance on clauses (i) or (ii) of section 212.6 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations, is not, with regard to any applicable payment, liable for a garnishment order or for regulationary interpretation for actions concerning any applicable payments.

   (D) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this paragraph—

   (i) ACCOUNT HOLDER.—The term ‘account holder’ means a natural person whose name appears in a financial institution’s records as the direct or beneficial owner of an account.

   (ii) ACCOUNT REVIEW.—The term “account review” means the process of examining deposits in an account to determine if an applicable payment has been deposited into the account during the lookback period. The financial institution shall perform the account review following the procedures outlined in section 212.5 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations and in accordance with the requirements of section 212.6 of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations.

   (iii) APPlicable PAYMENT.—The term “aplicable payment” means—

   (I) any advance refund amount paid pursuant to subsection (f) of section 6228A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as so added).

   (II) any payment made by a possession of the United States with a mirror code tax system (as defined in subsection (c) of sec-section 2201 of the CARES Act (Public Law 116–190)) pursuant to such subsection which corresponds to a payment described in subclause (I), and

   (III) any payment made by a possession of the United States with a mirror code tax system (as so defined) pursuant to section 2201(c) of such Act.

   (iv) garnishment.—The term “garnishment order” means—

   (I) a writ, order, notice, summons, judgment, levy, or similar written instruction issued by a court, a State or State agency, a municipality or municipal corporations, or a State child support enforcement agency, and any order arising by operation of law for overdue child support or an order to freeze the assets in an account, to effect a garnishment against a debtor.

   (v) LOOKBACK PERIOD.—The term
“lookback period” means the two month period that begins on the date preceding the date of account review and ends on the corresponding date in the month two months earlier, or on the last date of the month two months earlier if the corresponding date does do not exist.

   (e) PUBLIC AWARENESS CAMPAIGN.—The Secretary of the Treasury (or the Secretary’s delegate) shall conduct a public awareness campaign, in coordination with the Commissioner of Social Security and the heads of other relevant Federal agencies, to provide information regarding the availability of the credit under section 6228A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by this section), including information with respect to individuals who may not have filed a tax return for taxable year 2018 or 2019.

   (f) APPROPRIATIONS TO CARRY OUT RE-BATES.—

   (1) IN GENERAL.—Immediately upon the enactment of this Act, the following sums are provided, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2020:

   (A) DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY.—

tment of the Treasury—Internal Revenue Service—Operations Support”, $236,548,000, to remain available until September 30, 2021.

   (iii) For an additional amount for “Department of the Treasury—Internal Revenue Service—Enforcement”, $54,425,000, to remain available until September 30, 2021.

   (2) REPORTS.—No later than 15 days after enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit a plan to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate detailing the expected use of the funds provided by paragraph (1)(A). Beginning 90 days after enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit a quarterly report to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate detailing the actual expenditure of funds provided by paragraph (1)(A) and the expected expenditure of such funds in the subsequent quarter.

   (g) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

   (1) Paragraph (2) of section 1324(b) of title
31, United States Code, is amended by inserting “6426A,” after “6426.”.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to individuals who begin work for the employer after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 7. SAFE AND HEALTHY WORKPLACE TAX CREDIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an employer, there shall be allowed as a credit against applicable employment taxes for each calendar quarter an amount equal to 50 percent of the sum of—

(1) the qualified employee protection expenses,

(2) the qualified workplace reconfiguration expenses, and

(3) the qualified workplace technology expenses, paid or incurred by the employer during such calendar quarter.

(b) LIMITATIONS AND REFUNDABILITY.—(1) OVERALL DOLLAR LIMITATION ON CREDIT.—(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of the credit allowed under subsection (a) with respect to any employer for any calendar quarter shall not exceed the excess (if any) of—

(i) the applicable dollar limit with respect to such employer for such calendar quarter, over

(ii) the aggregate credits allowed under subsection (a) with respect to such employer for all preceding calendar quarters.

(B) APPLICABLE DOLLAR LIMIT.—The term “applicable dollar limit” means, with respect to any employer for any calendar quarter, the sum of—

(i) $1,000, multiplied by the average number of employees employed by such employer during such calendar quarter not in excess of 500, plus

(ii) $750, multiplied by such average number of employees in excess of 500 but not in excess of 1,000, plus

(iii) $500, multiplied by such average number of employees in excess of 1,000.

(2) CREDIT LIMITED TO EMPLOYMENT TAXES.—The credit allowed under subsection (a) with respect to any calendar quarter shall not exceed the applicable employment taxes (reduced by any credits allowed under subsections (e) and (f) of section 3301 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) paid or incurred by the employer during such calendar quarter.

(3) REFUNDABILITY OF EXCESS CREDIT.—(A) IN GENERAL.—If the amount of the credit allowed under subsection (a) exceeds the limitation of paragraph (2) for any calendar quarter, such excess shall be treated as an overpayment of employment taxes that shall be refunded under sections 6402(a) and 6413(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(B) TREATMENT OF PAYMENTS.—For purposes of this section, 1324 of title 31, United States Code, any amounts due to the employer under this paragraph shall be treated in the same manner as a refund due from a credit provision referred to in subsection (b)(2) of such section.

(c) QUALIFIED EMPLOYEE PROTECTION EXPENSES.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘‘qualified employee protection expenses’’ means amounts paid or incurred by the employer for—

(1) testing (including on a periodic basis) employees and customers of the employer for coronavirus disease 2019, hereafter referred to in this section as ‘‘COVID–19’’ (including antibodies related to COVID–19),

(2) equipment to protect employees and customers of the employer from contracting COVID–19 (including masks, gloves, and disinfectants), and

(3) cleaning products or services related to preventing the spread of COVID–19.

(d) PLACE OF WORKPLACE RECONFIGURATION EXPENSES.—For purposes of this section—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘‘qualified workplace reconfiguration expenses’’ means amounts paid or incurred by the employer to design and reconfigure retail space, work areas, break areas, or other areas that employees or customers regularly use in the ordinary course of the employer’s trade or business if such design and reconfiguration—

(A) has a primary purpose of preventing the spread of COVID–19,

(B) is with respect to tangible property (within the meaning of section 168 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) which is located in the United States and which is leased or owned by the employer,

(C) is commensurate with the risks faced by the employees or customers, or is consistent with recommendations made by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the Occupational Safety and Health Administration,

(D) is completed pursuant to a reconfiguration (or similar) plan that was not in place in the United States and which is leased or owned by the employer,

(E) is placed in service by the employer before March 13, 2020, and

(E) is completed before January 1, 2021.

(2) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations and other guidance as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this subsection, including guidance defining primary purpose and reconfiguration plan.

(e) QUALIFIED WORKPLACE TECHNOLOGY EXPENSES.—For purposes of this section—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘‘qualified workplace technology expenses’’ means amounts paid or incurred by the employer for technology systems that employees or customers use in the ordinary course of the employer’s trade or business if such technology system—

(A) has a primary purpose of preventing the spread of COVID–19,

(B) is used for limiting physical contact between customers and employees in the United States,

(C) is commensurate with the risks faced by the employees or customers, or is consistent with recommendations made by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the Occupational Safety and Health Administration,

(D) is acquired by the employer on or after March 13, 2020, and is not acquired pursuant to a plan that was in place before such date, and

(E) is placed in service by the employer before January 1, 2021.

(2) TECHNOLOGY SYSTEMS.—The term ‘‘technology systems’’ means computer software (as defined in section 12491(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) and qualified technological equipment (as defined in section 12491(c)(2) of such Code).

(f) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

(1) APPLICABLE EMPLOYMENT TAXES.—The term ‘‘applicable employment taxes’’ means the employment taxes imposed under chapter 21 of subchapter A of subpart III of subtitle A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(2) COVID–19.—Except where the context clearly indicates otherwise, any reference in this section to COVID–19 shall be treated as including a reference to the virus which causes COVID–19.

(3) SECRETARY.—The term ‘‘Secretary’’ means the Secretary of the Treasury or such Secretary’s delegate.

(4) OTHER TERMS.—Any term used in this section which is also used in chapter 21 or 22 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall have the same meaning as when used in such chapter.

(g) CERTAIN GOVERNMENTAL EMPLOYERS.—This section shall not apply to the Government of the United States, the government of any State or political subdivision thereof, or any agency or instrumentality of any of the foregoing.

(h) RULES RELATING TO EMPLOYER, ETC.—

(1) GENERAL.—All persons treated as an employer under subsection (a) or (b) of section 52 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or subsection (m) or (o) of section 414 of such Code, shall be treated as one employer for purposes of this section.

(2) THIRD-PARTY PAYORS.—Any credit allowed under subsection (a) shall be treated as a credit described in section 3511(d)(2) of such Code.

(i) TREATMENT OF DEPOSITS.—The Secretary shall waive any penalty under section 6656 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for any failure to make a deposit of any applicable employment taxes if the Secretary determines that such failure was due to the reasonable anticipation of the credit allowed under subsection (a).

(j) CREDIT FOR SELF-EMPLOYED INDIVIDUALS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a self-employed individual, there shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by subtitle A of such Code any failure to make a deposit of any applicable employment taxes if the Secretary determines that such failure was due to the reasonable anticipation of the credit allowed under subsection (a).

(2) LIMITATION.—The amount of the credit allowed under paragraph (1) with respect to any self-employed individual for any taxable year shall not exceed $500.

(3) RECONCILIATION.—Any credit allowed under paragraph (1) shall be treated as a credit allowed to the taxpayer under subsection C of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of such Code.

(k) TREATMENT OF PAYMENTS.—For purposes of sections 3111(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, any refund due from the credit determined under paragraph (1) shall be treated in the same manner as a refund due from a credit allowed under subsection (a) of section 3511 of such Code.

(l) SELF-EMPLOYED INDIVIDUAL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘‘self-employed individual’’ means an individual who regularly carries on any trade or business within the meaning of section 1402 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, other than any such trade or business which is carried on by a partnership.

(2) DOCUMENTATION.—No credit shall be allowed with respect to any expense for which a credit is allowed under this section unless the individual maintains such documentation as the Secretary may prescribe to establish such individual as an eligible self-employed individual.

(m) SPECIAL RULES.—

(1) DENIAL OF DOUBLE BENEFIT.—For purposes of this section—

(A) ANY deduction or other credit otherwise allowable under any provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 with respect to the credit for which a credit is allowed under this section shall be reduced by the amount of the credit under this section with respect to such expense.

(B) BASIS ADJUSTMENT.—If a credit is allowed under this section with respect to any property of a character which is subject to the allowance for depreciation under section 167 of such Code, the basis of such property shall be reduced by the amount of such credit so allowed, and such reduction shall be taken into account before determining the amount of any allowance for depreciation with respect to such property for purposes of such Code.

(2) EXPENSES NOT TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT MORE THAN ONCE.—The same expense shall not be treated as described in more than one subparagraph of subsection (a) or more than one paragraph of subsection (a) or more than one subparagraph of subsection (b), whichever is applicable.

(3) EMPLOYER OR SELF-EMPLOYMENT CREDIT ALLOWED.—The credit under subsection (a) and the credit for self-employed individuals under subsection (b) shall not apply to the same taxpayer.

(4) ELECTION NOT TO HAVE SECTION APPLY.—This section shall not apply with respect to any employer for any calendar quarter, or with respect to any self-employed individual for any taxable year, if such employer or self-employed individual elects (at such time and in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe) not to have this section apply.

(5) TRANSFERS TO CERTAIN TRUST FUNDS.—There are hereby appropriated to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund, the Federal Black Lung Benefit Trust Fund and the Federal Railroad Retirement Account established under section 101(a) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 (45 U.S.C. 231n–1(a)) the amount of any credit otherwise allowed under this section.

(6) REGULATIONS AND GUIDANCE.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations and other guidance as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section, including—

(A) rules relating to employer, etc., to ensure that any failure to make a deposit of any applicable employment taxes is chargeable to the employer, and

(B) rules relating to employees or customers, or to any failure to make a deposit of any applicable employment taxes if the Secretary determines that such failure was due to the reasonable anticipation of the credit allowed under subsection (a).

(C) FORMS AND DOCUMENTS.—The Secretary may prescribe such forms, reports, and documents as may be necessary or appropriate, including such forms, reports, and documents for establishing such individual as an eligible self-employed individual.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 2202(b) of the CARES Act (Public Law 116–136) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(4) JOB LOSS.—The plan administrator may rely on an employee's certification that the following conditions are satisfied in determining whether the employee is a qualified individual for purposes of this subsection:

(i) The employee is an employee who is laid off, or the employee is terminated, from an employer plan, or

(ii) the form of the certification includes a statement that the employee is qualified as a qualified individual for purposes of this subsection;.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall take effect as if included in the enactment of the CARES Act (Public Law 116–136).

SEC. 12. ELECTION TO WAIVE APPLICATION OF CERTAIN MODIFICATIONS TO FARMING LOSSES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 2303 of the CARES Act is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(e) SPECIAL RULE WITH RESPECT TO FARMING LOSSES.—

(1) ELECTION TO DISREGARD AMENDMENTS MADE BY SUBSECTIONS (A) AND (B).—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If a taxpayer who has a farming loss (within the meaning of section 172(b)(1)(B)(ii) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) for a taxable year beginning in 2018, 2019, or 2020 makes an election under this paragraph, then—

(i) the amendments made by subsection (a) shall not apply to any taxable year beginning in 2018, 2019, or 2020; and

(ii) the amendments made by subsection (b) shall not apply to any net operating loss arising in any taxable year beginning in 2018, 2019, or 2020.

(B) ELECTION.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in clause (ii), an election under this paragraph shall be made in such manner as may be prescribed by the Secretary. Such election, once made, may not be revoked for such taxable year.

(ii) TIME FOR MAKING ELECTION.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—An election under this paragraph shall be made by the due date (as defined in section 6631(a)) of the taxpayer’s return for the first taxable year ending after the date of the enactment of the Coronavirus Relief Fair Unemployment Compensation Act of 2020.

(II) PREVIOUSLY FILED RETURNS.—In the case of any taxable year for which the taxpayer has filed a return of Federal income tax before the date of the enactment of the Coronavirus Relief Fair Unemployment Compensation Act of 2020 which disregarded the amendments made by subsections (a) and (b), such taxpayer shall be treated as having made an election under this paragraph un-

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS
Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate of February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled and any cancellations or changes in the meetings.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Tuesday, August 4, 2020 may be found in the Daily Digest of today’s RECORD.
