Biography

Sonya Miller, HR Director, IBM Security and Enterprise and Technology Security

Sonya Miller is the IBM HR Director for both IBM Security and Enterprise & Technology Security (E&TS) – two distinct divisions within IBM that require workers who have the skills and experience in cybersecurity needed to protect IBM and our clients. IBM Security is an ever-growing business unit and E&TS is responsible for managing the cybersecurity landscape and protecting both IBM internal systems and the delivery of secure products and offerings to our clients. In my position, I am charged with ensuring both divisions have the skilled staff needed to fulfil their important missions.

IBM Security is the largest security vendor in the world. IBM manages over 70 billion security events per day for our clients – one of the largest security intelligence operations in the world. We have 17,500 clients in more than 130 countries, 8,000 employees, including researchers, developers, and subject matter experts focused on security, and more than 10,000 security-related patents.

Since 2015, IBM Security has hired nearly 4,400 additional experts into its Security business and invested more than $2 billion in dedicated R&D.
