The House met at noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. Dingell).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,

April 21, 2021.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Debbie Dingell to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

Nancy Pelosi,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Margaret Grun Kibben, offered the following prayer:

Be gracious to these, our lawmakers, O God. Shower Your mercy on them as they continue to take on the challenges of their office.

Schedules press on them; obligations pursue them all day long. No one more than You knows the pace they keep, the long days and restless nights, the unrelenting schedule they juggle to master, and the countless and circuitous flights home to their districts.

In You may they find their respite. Keep their consciences clear and their motives pure as You guide their decisions.

In You may they be assured that their worries and concerns are known. Keep them in Your care, that nothing can snatch them from Your hand.

To You, then, may they turn, confident of Your deliverance and sure in the stamina You provide. To You may they offer their praise, and to Your Word may they turn.

In Your saving name we pray.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 11(a) of House Resolution 188, the Journal of the last day’s proceedings is approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from California (Mr. Vargas) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. Vargas led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to 15 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

Mr. CROW. Madam Speaker, it is my honor today to recognize the life of Cody Lyster, son of Kevin and Lea Ann Lyster, of Aurora, Colorado.

Mr. CROW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.

Cody passed away on April 8, 2020, and is Colorado’s second youngest victim to die from COVID–19. He was a criminal justice major at Colorado Mesa University, following in his father’s footsteps to become a law enforcement officer.

Cody was an inspiring law student, set on his career path as a lawyer. A first for Colorado Mesa University history. He helped others through his love for the game and had a knack for bringing people together and could be counted on during times of calm and times of crisis.

Cody made his community better. In his honor, a $1 million scholarship was established at Colorado Mesa University, and a sportsmanship award and scholarship at Arapahoe Little League were dedicated to a life well-lived.

Cody was an inspiration to others, and I can think of few as deserving of this honor today. I honor Cody and thank the Lysters for drawing strength from tragedy to make sure Cody’s story is heard and to save as many lives as they can during this pandemic.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Dripping Springs Tigers women’s soccer team for their outstanding win in the UIL Class 5A final.

Dripping Springs finished the season as the Class 5A State Champion with a record 26 wins. They outscored their opponents this season 104–8.

The team showcased their amazing talent and skills on the field, and I am proud that all of their hard work and dedication throughout the year ultimately paid off.

Congratulations again to the Dripping Springs Tigers. Texas’ 26th Congressional District is extraordinarily proud of their achievement, and we cannot wait to see what they will do next. Go Tigers.

In God We Trust.
While we are all equally susceptible to the coronavirus, we are not all equally impacted by it. Communities of color are disproportionately likely to be in frontline jobs with greater exposure to the virus; have less access to quality health care; and, as a result, have been experiencing higher infection and mortality rates throughout the pandemic.

With over 150 deaths per 100,000 cases, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders have one of the highest mortality groups of all groups from this virus.

That is why we will be introducing a resolution to address this. If we rely on communities of color to get us through this pandemic, then we need to ensure they are provided equitable access to the vaccine so they can stay healthy. We must ensure all Americans have an equal shot to be vaccinated.

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD GOES TO CONGRESSMAN BOBBY SCOTT

(Mr. WITTMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WITTMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate my good friend, Congressman Bobby Scott, on receiving the Lifetime Achievement Award from the L. Douglas Wilder School of Government and Public Affairs at Virginia Commonwealth University on April 15, 2021.

The Lifetime Achievement Award recognizes an individual Virginian whose career represents the highest values of public service and citizenship, and who has made a substantial contribution to the good of the Commonwealth.

Congressman Bobby Scott is incredibly deserving of this recognition and award. He has spent more than four decades in public service, serving in the Virginia General Assembly for 15 years prior to being elected, and now serving Virginia’s Third District in the U.S. House of Representatives, where he has been since 1992.

It is my honor to serve the Commonwealth of Virginia with a servant leadership style, and what would make West Virginia better. He was both a pragmatic and authentic editor, and he cared deeply for the livelihoods of men and women at Virginia’s Wheeling, who passed away earlier this year.

Besides being a loving husband and father, Mike was an incredibly gifted editor at the Ogden newspaper chain and was a personal friend. Over the years, Mike and I had lively discussions on politics, the fossil fuel industry, and what would make West Virginia better. He was both a pragmatic and authentic editor, and he cared deeply for the livelihoods of men and women at Virginia’s Wheeling, who passed away earlier this year.

Out of frustration, Mike would repeatedly ask why Members of Congress would intentionally inflict harm on so many of these families. His passion was his community and the people who lived there.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his wife, Connie, and their two children and two grandchildren as we all mourn Mike’s passing.

Mike, you made a difference. You are already missed.

TRI-CAUCUS RESOLUTION ON COVID-19 VACCINE EQUITY

(Ms. CHU asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. CHU. Madam Speaker, as chair of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus, I rise today to join my colleagues in the Tri-Caucus to ensure equitable access to the COVID-19 vaccine for communities of color.

While communities of color continue to be disproportionately impacted by the ongoing COVID-19 crisis, highlighting longstanding health, social, and economic inequities.

The resolution calls for the prioritization of areas with a high Social Vulnerability Index, SVI, for COVID-19 vaccination efforts and working with trusted community partners to implement culturally and linguistically appropriate strategies, among other efforts.

The resolution is going to be introduced during this month of April, during the National Minority Health Month to promote the health and well-being of racial and ethnic minority communities and to underscore the need for these communities to get vaccinated.

Vaccinate, vacunen. It is very important that they get vaccinated, esa muy importante que se vacunen.

Madam Speaker, vaccinate yourself. It is very important.

I am so proud to support this resolution.

106TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

(Mr. VALADAO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VALADAO. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the 106th anniversary of the Armenian genocide.

From 1915 to 1923, the Ottoman Empire engaged in the systematic and organized murder and deportation of an estimated 1.5 million Armenians.

Around the world, leaders have righteously identified these horrific events as genocide. However, despite both the House of Representatives and the Senate passing resolutions in 2019 recognizing this tragedy, no United States President has ever joined in this acknowledgement.

This week, I and my colleagues in the Congressional Armenian Caucus on Armenian Issues sent a letter to President Biden urging him to formally recognize the Armenian genocide.

Many of the men, women, and children forced to flee Armenia immigrated to the United States and have raised their families and embraced their new communities in our country. They deserve our recognition.

I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring and remembering those whose lives were lost and forever changed by the Armenian genocide.

AFGHANISTAN TROOP WITHDRAWAL

(Mr. AUCHINCLOSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. AUCHINCLOSS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend the President’s decision to end the war in Afghanistan.

Now Congress must ensure that future Commanders in Chief can never again wage failed forever wars. This is also a critical moment to show we can defend America and protect the global commons without a $740 billion defense budget.

We must repeal the Authorization for the Use of Military Force; restrain congres-sional oversight of war powers; and cut the Pentagon’s budget by at least 10 percent as we invest instead in diplo-macy, humanitarian assistance, and solving global challenges like climate change and pandemic preparedness.

The founders cost our country more than $2 trillion, the lives of 2,400 American servicemembers, and credibility at home and abroad. The generation that fought in this war must now govern in light of its mis-takes. Let us resolve to learn from them.

RECOGNIZING GOLD STAR SPOUSES DAY

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recogni-tion of Gold Star Spouses Day. Earlier this month, we honored the spouses who lost a loved one in service and remember their sacrifices.

As the son of a Navy veteran and the proud father of an Army soldier, I rec-ognize the challenges our military fami-lies face. It is important to remember that our freedom is not free. Gold Star Spouses Day reminds us of the cost of war. Each year on April 5, it is impor-tant to take the time to remember, re-spect, and honor the spouses and their families of our fallen servicemembers.

Madam Speaker, Gold Star spouses and their families deserve our grati-tude today and every day. God bless the brave men and women who put their lives on the line to protect us and God bless their families.

RECOGNIZING THE LIFE OF MAJOR GENERAL DAN HELIX

(Mr. DeSAULNIER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DeSAULNIER. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize the life of Major General Dan Helix.

Dan grew up in West Berkeley, Cali-fornia, and enjoyed a distinguished 41-year career with the United States Army and Army Reserve.

On top of his service in the military, he served on the Concord City Council for 8 years before serving as a director of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

After being away for some time, Dan eventually returned to the city council and served two terms as mayor during both of his tenures.

In 1989, Dan retired from the U.S. Army as a major general. As a Korean war veteran, Dan earned numerous recom-mendations including: the Army Distinguished Service Medal, the Sil-ver Star, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star with ‘‘V’’ device, and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Sadly, Dan passed away last month at the age of 91. He was a cherished resident of Concord who dedicated his life to helping others. He was a mentor to me and to many others.

Please join me in honoring Major General Dan Helix for his many con-tributions to my community and to this country.

COMMEMORATING 46TH ANNIVERSARY OF BLACK APRIL

(Mrs. STEEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. STEEL. Madam Speaker, today I rise to commemorate the 46th anni-versary of Black April.

April 30, 1975, marked the fall of Saigon and the end of the Vietnam war. Many Vietnamese Americans who were alive during the war remember this as the day that signified the loss of a country they had called home.

The people left everything they knew to flee communism. Hundreds of thou-sands of Vietnamese people have resett-led in the United States and built vi-brant communities here. California’s 48th District is the proud home of Lit-tle Saigon, which is home to more Vi-etnamese Americans than anywhere else in the United States.

On Black April, I will join the Viet-namese Americans in our community and around the country in honoring those who served in Vietnam, and those who lost their lives attempting to flee Communist rule.

TRI-CAUCUS COVID–19 VACCINE EQUITY RESOLUTION

(Mr. GARCIA of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GARCIA of Illinois. Madam Speaker, as a proud member of the Congres-sional Hispanic Caucus, I rise in strong support of the Tri-Caucus res-olution promoting COVID–19 vaccine equity among communities of color.

I represent a predominantly immi-grant population that has been especially hard hit by this crisis, and now these are the same communities who are still strug-gling to get the vaccine.

Yes, vaccine hesitancy remains an issue, but the reality is that access is an even bigger problem. If we are seri-ous about fighting COVID–19, we need to meet people where they are and bring vaccines to those who need it most, and we can’t do this without en-gaging with trusted community leader-s.

I want to take this opportunity to ac-knowledge one of these leaders in Chi-cago. Illinois Unidos, a coalition of health professionals and community leaders, is one of a kind and stands as a national model. From testing, to the vaccine rollout, to housing and food as-sistance, Illinois Unidos has stood shoulder to shoulder with the Latino community in Chicago.

GREEN NEW DEAL

(Mr. CLINE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLINE. Madam Speaker, there is no denying that we need to support an all-of-the-above solution for energy policy to secure our energy independ-ence. But the Green New Deal which was recently introduced, yet again, seeks to fundamentally change our way of life, cripple American businesses, and explode our national debt—$93 trillion, with a ‘‘T,’’ which is how much their proposal will cost over the next 30 years.

Let’s put that into perspective. $93 trillion is more money than the Fed-eral Government has spent for the en-ire period from 1979 until the present. Madam Speaker, that is absurd. Worse yet, how do they propose we pay for it? By raising the taxes, of course, up to 70 percent. This is outrageous.

It crushes jobs, costs an average American household nearly $700,000 through 2029, provides paychecks for people unwilling to work, abolishes air-planes, cows, and fossil fuels, and would require rebuilding and retro-fitting every building in America. This is a crazy policy.

ENCOURAGING COSPONSORSHIP OF TRI-CAUCUS COVID–19 VACCINA-TION EQUITY

(Mr. RUIZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RUIZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today to encourage cosponsorship of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus-led Tri-Caucus COVID–19 Vaccination Eq-uity resolution.

Hispanic, Black, Asian American, Na-tive Hawaiian, Pacific Islander, and Native American communities con-continue to bear the brunt of the COVID–19 pandemic.

Not only are communities of color suffering disproportionately from COVID–19 complications, but they are receiving vaccines at a lower rate than their White counterparts. These inequi-ties are not new. They highlight long-standing health, economic, and social dispari-ties.

As chair of the Congressional His-panic Caucus, I worked with my Tri-Caucus colleagues to introduce this resolution, promoting equity in COVID–19 vaccinations. The resolution calls for solutions like prioritizing vac-cines to communities with the highest rates of infections and deaths, working with trusted community partners, and implementing culturally, linguistically appropriate strategies.

During National Minority Health Month we must promote vaccine equity to the benefit of all Americans.

INFRASTRUCTURE BILL

(Mr. BAIRD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BAIRD. Madam Speaker, today I rise for the concerns over the President's $2 trillion infrastructure plan. One concern is the steep price tag, but my bigger concern is what the administration is trying to classify as infrastructure.

We are at the point of changing the definition of what that is. We are throwing everything in except the kitchen sink and the kitchen table and calling it infrastructure. I think that is irresponsible.

How can you call this an infrastructure bill when less than 6 percent of it goes to roads and bridges, 5 percent goes to broadband infrastructure, and less than 2 percent goes to the waterways, locks, dams, ports, and airports?

Less than 2 percent of our waterways and ports is unacceptable. This type of infrastructure is critical for Hoosiers in transporting our manufactured and agriculture exports to the global market.

If we are going to ask the American taxpayers to make these critical and substantial investments, it is our duty to make sure our dollars are spent wisely and efficiently on true infrastructure.

GREEN NEW DEAL FOR AMERICA

(Ms. JACOBS of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACOBS of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to call for a Green New Deal for America.

As one of the youngest members of this body, I am proud to represent a generation that is taking on climate change with the urgency that it deserves.

The Green New Deal is a call to action and a blueprint for positive change. It is about choosing justice and progress over scarcity and inequality. It is about choosing to have a plan instead of waiting for a miracle.

San Diegans are all too familiar with how devastating unchecked climate change has been for our community, and those who can least afford it have paid the highest price.

This plan is to mobilize and rebuild our economy around clean energy, empowered workers, and good jobs.

Madam Speaker, my generation knows that we can’t take small steps to solve big problems. We have to think differently and reimagine a better future.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO GERALD CLARK

(Mr. BURCHETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURCHETT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to my good friend, Gerald Clark, a true American hero from my district who passed away on April 19.

Gerald dedicated his life to helping his fellow veterans and their families and patriotically served his country during World War II. Gerald viewed his time with the U.S. Army as an adventure. He fought with the 75th Infantry Division at the Battle of the Bulge and lost his leg defending our country fighting the Nazis.

He was awarded a Purple Heart for his service and sacrifice. He was honorably discharged after being hospitalized over a year. Then he returned to Tennessee; married his wife, Bea; raised five children; and continued to serve his community.

For decades, Gerald held memberships in the American Legion, AMVETS, Disabled American Veterans, Military Order of the Purple Heart, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the belief that his support lent strength to the voice of each organization.

Gerald was also a leading advocate for opening a Tennessee State Veterans’ Home in Knox County. Thanks to his efforts, Ben Atchley Tennessee State Veterans’ Home opened in 2006, and my father actually passed away in that veterans’ home, so I hold it very close to my heart, Madam Speaker.

It is my honor to salute Gerald Clark one final time here on the House floor. He will be greatly missed.

COVID-19 TASK FORCE AND CITIZEN CORPS OF DELAWARE COUNTY

(Ms. SCANLON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SCANLON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the incredible staff of the Delaware County COVID-19 task force, led by Rosemarie Halt, for their amazing work, along with the thousands of volunteers from the DelCo Medical Reserve Corps and the DelCo Citizen Corps who have created and implemented new systems to test, feed, and vaccinate tens of thousands of people in our community.

These folks have been working day and night to help guide the residents of Delaware County through the challenges of a once-in-a-century pandemic. In an ever-changing landscape, they have distributed supplies, coordinated communication, and are now helping to ensure that everyone gets vaccinated.

I am proud to honor them today during National Volunteer Week to celebrate those working behind the scenes to get us back to normal.

Rosemarie, her staff, and the DelCo volunteers have been critical to the response and relief efforts in our district. For over a year, it has been all hands on deck, and we cannot thank them enough for their service.

CONGRATULATING TONY SCHMITZ ON HIS ACCEPTANCE TO WEST POINT

(Mrs. MILLER-MEEKS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MILLER-MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize a young man in Iowa’s Second Congressional District with an incredibly bright future.

On June 28, Pella High School senior Tony Schmitz will enroll as a cadet at the United States Military Academy in West Point, New York.

Everyone knows just how tough it is to get into West Point, with its 12 percent acceptance rate, but getting in is only the beginning. As a 24-year veteran of the Army myself, I can speak firsthand of the challenging, fulfilling, and exciting journey Tony is about to begin.

As the school year starts to wind down, I also want to remind all rising seniors in the Second District to reach out to my office if you have an interest in applying to any or attending one of our four amazing service academies. Once again, congratulations to Tony, and always remember: Go Army, Beat Navy.

WISHING LIEUTENANT COLONEL RETIRED SAM MULRAIN A HAPPY 104TH BIRTHDAY

(Ms. MACE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MACE. Madam Speaker, today I rise to wish a very happy birthday to a South Carolina hero, a community leader and someone who just yesterday turned 104 years young, Lieutenant Colonel Retired Sam Mulrain.

Lieutenant Colonel Mulrain has done so much in his life and I am proud to recognize him today, and I am grateful for his service.

As the school year starts to wind down, I also want to remind all rising seniors in the Second District to reach out to my office if you have an interest in applying to any or attending one of our four amazing service academies. Once again, congratulations to Tony, and always remember: Go Army, beat Navy.
STANDING UP FOR THE VOICELESS

(Mrs. MILLER of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MILLER of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I proudly signed a discharge petition in order to vote on the Born-Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act.

Along with my Republican colleagues, we are standing up for the voiceless to end this ongoing tragedy once and for all. We must end infanticide.

Seventy-seven percent of Americans support protections for babies born alive after a failed abortion, but Speaker PELOSI refuses to bring up the Born-Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act for a vote.

This legislation has been long overdue. It is time to stand up to Speaker PELOSI and the radical Democrats’ lack of regard for human life and pass the Born-Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act.

My heart aches in all instances when the dignity of human life is violated. As a Christian, I believe that the image of God in each one of us gives us intrinsic worth that cannot be assaulted.

This bill simply requires an abortionist to give lifesaving treatment to a child who survives a botched abortion rather than let them die slowly.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 330, I call up the bill (H.R. 1333) to transfer and limit Executive Branch authority to suspend or restrict the entry of a class of aliens, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. JORDAN) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous material on H.R. 1333.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 1333, the National Origin-Based Antidiscrimination for Nonimmigrants Act, or NO BAN Act, is an important step toward reining in executive overreach and preserving the power of Congress to establish our Nation’s immigration laws.

Section 212(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, the INA, authorizes the President to suspend the entry of noncitizens when the President finds that their entry would be detrimental to U.S. interests.

From 1952, when this provision was enacted, until January 2017, Presidents of both parties invoked section 212(f) to exclude only small groups of individuals, such as human rights violators, North Korean officials, and individuals seeking to overthrow governments, for reasons that would clearly serve the national interest.

But former President Trump abused this authority, twisting it in ways that were never intended. He first used it to deliver on his campaign promise to ban Muslims from the United States, an immoral and disastrous policy that traumatized children and families and made us no more secure or competitive.

The former President then used this section to rewrite immigration laws with which he disagreed. For example, the INA expressly provides asylum eligibility to any individual who arrives in the United States “whether or not at a designated port of arrival.” However, President Trump invoked section 212(f) to deny asylum to persons who crossed the southern border between ports of entry. This is conflict with the statute. Fortunately, the judiciary agreed that this was unlawful and stopped the policy from taking effect.

H.R. 1333 will prevent such executive overreach by amending section 212(f) to ensure it is used in a manner consistent with its intended purpose and historical norms.

Although President Biden has repealed the egregious orders of the Trump era, including the Muslim ban, we must pass this Act to ensure that this authority is never abused again. In advancing this legislation today, we uphold our Nation’s founding ideals and reaffirm our commitment to the rule of law.

This should not be a partisan issue. Members on both sides of the aisle should agree that no President, Republican or Democratic, should be permitted to usurp the powers of the legislative branch enshrined in the Constitution. The separation of powers is fundamental to our democratic Republic, and it must be protected.

I would like to thank my friend and colleague, Representative JUDY CHU, for her leadership and her steadfast commitment to this issue. Her efforts led to the introduction of the NO BAN Act, and I urge all of my colleagues to support this important legislation.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCLINTOCK), the ranking member of the Immigration and Citizenship Subcommittee.

Mr. MCCLINTOCK. Madam Speaker, this bill presents a very simple question: Should we all but strip the President of his authority to restrict travel from countries that pose a danger to the United States?

Ronald Reagan and George Bush used this authority to protect our country. So, too, did Barack Obama and even Joe Biden as recently as January 25.

President Trump invoked this authority against countries that were hotbeds of international terrorism and that were not cooperating with the United States in providing basic information about travelers coming from these countries. Now, the left calls it a Muslim ban. What the President’s orders affected only a tiny fraction of Muslim-majority countries and a sizable number of non-Muslim countries.

The Supreme Court cited this obvious truth when it fully upheld the President’s actions. In fact, when a rogue government changed its policy and cooperated with us, the restrictions were lifted.

Without this authority, the President would have been powerless to take significant actions against terrorists and criminals from entering the United States.

The President’s ability to protect against threats, negotiate security protocols, and, when necessary, retaliate against discriminatory actions by other countries depends on his having this power at his immediate disposal.

This bill, instead, forbids the President from taking action until he can show that it is an imminent threat to the United States.

The bill will allow the President to consult with Congress before taking action. This should not be a partisan issue. The bill is sound national security.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 1⁄2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Ms. CHU), the author of this legislation.

Ms. CHU. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of my legislation, the NO BAN Act.

The Muslim ban was always wrong, needless, and cruel. Today, we can make sure it never happens again.

This policy was wrong. America does not ban people because of their religion, and the Supreme Court acknowledged this. When they upheld the third iteration of Trump’s Muslim ban, the Court insisted that, in order to prove this wasn’t just a religious ban, the Trump administration would have to issue waivers to allow those we know not to be a threat to travel here. But that was a process was a sham, with the administration ignoring the purpose of the ban was to keep Muslims out of the country, just as Donald Trump always said it was.

Second, the policy was needless. As the Supreme Court’s waiver requirement, America has the best and strongest vetting system in the world. Many of those stopped by the Muslim ban had been vetted by U.S. officials many times over many years. I have met with many of them myself. These are people who are trying to escape dangerous situations or who simply wanted a chance at a better life. They turned to the U.S., as countless others have done over the generations. But instead of opportunity, they were met with bigotry, sometimes just days before they were supposed to arrive here.

Which is why, thirdly, this ban was about cruelty. Afraid to leave America out of fear they wouldn’t be able to return, they had to visit here at all. Families were intentionally isolated from each other, missing weddings, funerals, births, and graduations.

This past year has shown us what the impact of missing such milestones feels like. To do it deliberately is inexcusable.

Thousands of families were separated by this policy simply because of a lie that Muslims are dangerous, a lie that encouraged bigotry and xenophobia, even as hate crimes are on the rise.

Fortunately, President Biden understood the harm of this policy and rescinded the Muslim bans on his first day in office. But we must make sure that President is ever able to ban people from coming to the U.S. simply because of their religion, which is why I am so pleased that we are voting to pass the NO BAN Act today.

While preserving a President’s ability to respond to national emergencies like pandemics, this bill amends the Immigration and Nationality Act to require that any future travel ban is based on credible facts and actual threats. The bill also requires the President to work in consultation with the Departments of State and Homeland Security to provide evidence of why a ban is needed in the first place. I am so grateful to Chairman Nadler, as well as my House and Senate cosponsors, for their support, and I urge my colleagues to vote ‘yes.’

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. BIGGS).

Mr. BIGGS. Madam Speaker, if this bill passes, the President may act. It is antithetical to the executive powers as set forth in the United States Constitution.

Let me say that again. H.R. 1333 gives the authority to initiate a suspension of entry not to the President but to the Secretary of State in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security.

But it is the President, in whom all executive power vests, who should determine whether to suspend entry and not just in consultation with or the permission of the State and Homeland Security Departments.

While we are discussing this, we have a crisis on our border, a crisis created by this President. For months, he refused to acknowledge the crisis. When he accidentally slapped and said it was a crisis, we were later told he didn’t really mean it was a crisis.

Well, here is the deal. You are housing illegal aliens in hotels. That is the kind of crisis this has become. The situation that the Biden administration has reopened and expanded facilities to house illegal aliens who have surged across the border.

President Biden inherited a secure border and policies that were working and, instead, has created an inhumane border crisis.

If he wants to solve the crisis, he needs to finish construction of the wall; reinstate the migrant protection protocols; reinstate the asylum cooperative agreements with Honduras, Guatemala, and El Salvador; and remove the other incentives to come, like $1,400 from the COVID package that was just recently passed.

He can bring it under control, but the best way to bring it under control is to move immigration judges to the southern border to deal with asylum cases that are occurring today, not the backlog. Those people are already in here. Deal with those cases today.

Getting back to this bill, it represents the essence of this branch that is willing to give over and cede Presidential authority to Cabinet members instead of the President himself. This bill should not be passed. It should not even be considered.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. CICILLINE).

Mr. CICILLINE. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1333, the NO BAN Act.

This legislation would prevent future abuses of power committed by the previous administration through its xenophobic and repulsive policy which undermined one of our Nation’s founding principles, freedom of religion.

My home State of Rhode Island was the first to go to the Court and stand up and tell the President’s boss, that the Secretary of State should not be authorized in statute to tell the President, the Secretary of State’s boss, that the President may act. This legislation will help to preserve that principle.

From the very beginning, former President Trump was clear about exactly what his policy was, an explicit attempt to keep out as many people from Muslim-majority countries as possible regardless of whether they were seeking refuge or asylum. It was never designed to make us safer. It was simply a way to spark fear and hatred among our citizens.

Aside from the first day in office, thankfully, President Biden rescinded this policy.

Yet the impact of the Muslim ban remains. After 4 years of having this policy in place, the time it takes to re-implement normal immigration and travel policies brings delays in otherwise routine procedures, such as obtaining visas, thus delaying the reunion of families.

Thankfully, however, with the Muslim ban rescinded, those families can take comfort in knowing they are a step closer to once again being with their loved ones.

Despite this, it remains necessary to pass this NO BAN Act. Without making the necessary reforms to prevent the abuses of power of the previous administration, they could simply be put back in place by a future President.

The NO BAN Act makes it unequivocally clear that we stand by the American ideal of freedom of religion. It will provide the necessary limitations on the President’s ability to use overly broad terms to inappropriately and indiscriminately target and label entire groups of racial, ethnic, or religious minorities because of who they choose to worship.

We must not tolerate discriminatory actions that undermine our core values and threaten our Nation’s health and safety.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support passage of the NO BAN Act to ensure that families can be reunited by this President without the heart of Democrats’ border security policies is the assumption that Muslim ban had been vetted by U.S. of- fice’s boss, that the executive power vests, who should de- termine whether to suspend entry and not just in consultation with or the permission of the State and Homeland Security Departments.

And, instead, has created an inhumane crisis. It has been clear that the President’s ability to use overly broad terms to inappropriately and indiscriminately target and label entire groups of racial, ethnic, or religious minorities because of who they choose to worship.

We must not tolerate discriminatory actions that undermine our core values and threaten our Nation’s health and safety.

By September, we are on track to enroll 172,000 individuals in one single month.

Mr. MCCARTHY. Madam Speaker, at the heart of Democrats’ border security policies is the assumption that Muslims are dangerous, a lie that the previous administration through its xenophobic and repulsive policy which undermined one of our Nation’s founding principles, freedom of religion.

This legislation will help to preserve that principle.

The surge was directly caused by the actions of the Biden administration. On day one, President Biden issued five executive orders that reversed the common sense immigration policies that were working. Then his administration sent mixed signals to migrants that now is not the time to come, but promising not to deport children and many families.

Now, as Monday’s order demonstrates, the White House is more concerned with policing Border Patrol’s language than it is protecting our border. I am very glad that President Biden finally admitted that there is a crisis at the border, but what we really need is for him to admit that his policies and rhetoric caused the crisis to begin with.

The results of this crisis are as predictable as they are disastrous, for both migrants and American citizens. Just this past weekend, the Biden administration decided to shut down the Houston migrant center for children because of unbearable conditions. Hundreds of unaccompanied minors had to be shuttled somewhere else.

I know everybody in this body understands that this is also a public health risk. That is because the Biden administration is releasing migrants into American cities without negative COVID tests, without court dates, and without a way to track where they will go. Already, that number is up to 15,000.

Now, Madam Speaker, that doesn’t come from me. I saw it on the news today from a Democratic colleague who put this number out and said it was disastrous.

But the border crisis isn’t just a humanitarian and public health crisis. It is also a national security crisis. Last month, I shared some alarming news. When I was down on the border, I was speaking to the Border Patrol agents, and they informed me that individuals on the terrorist watch list were caught trying to enter our country.

Madam Speaker, I know how much you care about protecting this country from terrorism. I thought everybody on your side of the aisle would care just as much. Unfortunately, Congressman GALLEGO accused me of lying. Congresswoman ESCOBAR said I was trying to fuel division, Madam Speaker.

But we border protection agency confirmed that four suspected terrorists had been caught. Since then, more suspected terrorists have been caught at different times and different places, from Yemen, but not on the same day; two different individuals.

Now, I am sure, maybe because of the challenges with COVID and the distance we must keep, that I have not received the apology of being accused of being a liar on a national security issue, but I assume that will come shortly.

The security problem also includes a flow of drugs. When I was on that same border in El Paso, talking to some of those same agents, they told me they have never seen the amount of fentanyl that has come across the border in the last month. Americans are dying because the cartels are exploiting the Biden border crisis to make a profit. Fentanyl overdoses are surging across the country.

Now, in my home State, Madam Speaker, the Speaker’s hometown of San Francisco saw more fentanyl-related deaths last year than COVID-related deaths according to The Wall Street Journal.

Madam Speaker, it is hard to imagine anything more shortsighted than doubling down on Biden’s failed border policies. But, incredibly, as I sit on this floor, the House Democrats want to respond to this humanitarian, public health, and national security crisis by passing recycled legislation from the last Congress.

I know, Madam Speaker, the Speaker doesn’t want to work in committees and wants to do it from afar, but I still think we could have new ideas to a bigger problem created by a new administration.

They want to strip future Presidents of their authority to keep Americans safe. That is what the NO BAN Act does.

They also want to grant foreign nationals access to lawyers. But foreign nationals have never been entitled to this privilege before, and it will cost taxpayers $825 million over the next 5 years. That may not sound like much if you just want to throw trillions out there, but that is hardworking taxpayers’ money. It is a lot of money.

But are Democrats working to repair the crisis its radical policies caused? No.

Are they working to stop the mass flow of illegal migration? No.

Are they working to secure our borders? No.

Vice President Harris has refused to visit the border for 28 days.

By contrast, more than one-third of the House Republicans have been to the border and seen the crisis for themselves. There have even been some bipartisan trips, Madam Speaker. And I was very excited to hear that, in the bipartisan trip, questions were asked.

My understanding was the very first question of our Democrat colleagues asked was: Is it really true we are catching terrorists? And the shock on their face when the border agent said: Yes, from the terrorist watch list, we have caught them.

What is really concerning to me, if you read The Washington Post, is that the thousands of people who come across per day who are not caught.

How many terrorists are in that group? How much fentanyl are those people carrying?

What we have learned led directly to the legislation we have taken here in Congress.

Two weeks ago, Dr. MILLER-MEEKS introduced a bill to require a negative COVID–19 test before any illegal immigrant is released from custody. Madam Speaker, I was shocked that your side of the aisle blocked it.

Last week, Representative CARTER and Representative PETER MELJER offered a motion to combat the trafficking of fentanyl analogues, which are 100 times deadlier than regular fentanyl.

Democrats blocked it, even though 137 of them voted for the same motion last year.

Can you imagine that, Madam Speaker? 137 on your side of the aisle voted just last year for that amendment. I guess things have changed.

Madam Speaker, Congress needs to do the right thing here. We should not be wasting our time on recycled legislation that weakens our national security. We simply need to return to common sense border security policies that work.

We need to finish the wall and deploy technology to the border.

We need to fully reinstate the “remain in Mexico” policy and maintain the robustly implemented Title 42 authority.

We need to require a negative COVID test before releasing migrants. I think that would be common sense. Most Americans have to have that.

We need to send a clear message: Do not come to the United States illegally.

Madam Speaker, if we want to fix the crisis, we need to fix its root cause. But that root cause isn’t only in Guatemala, El Salvador, or Honduras; it is right here in Washington, D.C.

You see, Madam Speaker, before the crisis hit, there wasn’t legislation that was passed. It was just on day one with executive orders. So all they have to do is do the exact same thing they did, take the pen and bring them back. Let’s bring common sense back to solutions.

Madam Speaker, why don’t we bring new ideas to committees? Why don’t we have Members show up for work? And why don’t we have committees actually work instead of just picking old ideas when they have created a new problem that will only expand it further?

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON LEE).

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for his leadership, and I thank Congresswoman JUDY CHU for her leadership.

Madam Speaker, I rise with great enthusiasm for the National Origin-Based Antidiscrimination for Nonimmigrants Act, and that is the NO BAN Act.

I proclaim a breath of fresh air, and that was the election of 2020 and the inauguration of President Joe Biden and Vice President KAMALA HARRIS, who made it very clear what our position is as it relates to those who come to this country.
First of all, they did not turn a blind eye to the Statue of Liberty, which acknowledges the fact that we are a refuge for those who are fleeing persecution. They also understood that we are not a country that discriminates against individuals simply because of their religion. That is what the NO BAN Act represented. It had nothing to do with terrorism.

I wonder why President Trump never said anything about domestic terrorists? Why didn’t they have a structure to handle terrorism at the border? What took him so long to jump this Capitol on January 6th?

I am reminded of a little 15-year-old on the day that the ban was issued. When I was flying in from Washington, I went straight over to the international terminal because my staff had called me and others had called me. This little boy, innocent, with legal documents, a tourist visa, coming to visit his family, innocently indicated who he was. And, of course, by law, those CBP officers had to detain him.

Do you know what was worse? He was not able to see anyone at that time, but more importantly, he wound up in Chicago.

And so I rise to support the NO BAN Act, and I indicate that there is a policy. The border is closed. The Vice President will be working on a broader plan for dealing with the border. The shelter in Houston was a temporary shelter. It was an emergency shelter. It was rightly closed when other beds were found. 130 of those children were reunited with their families. This bill is important.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 15 seconds to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I am delighted that this bill includes an important provision of mine offered last year during the committee markup, which requires the administration to report to Congress on the impacts, positive, negative, and unintended of any action by the President pursuant to executive orders.

We know that banning Nigeria was the wrong thing to do, and I support the NO BAN Act.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEUBE).

Mr. STEUBE. Madam Speaker, this is a dangerous piece of legislation that comes at a time when our national security and our public health are being threatened by a dire crisis at our southern border.

Only Democrats would bring a bill to the floor during a surge at our southern border that would make it easier for terrorists to enter our country. As someone who served in the war on terror and as a Volunteer in Operation Iraqi Freedom, the last thing we should be doing as a Nation is making it easier for terrorists in Iran, Iraq, Syria, and other terrorist-harboring nations to travel to the United States.

Despite the harrowing statistics we see coming from the southern border with record-setting numbers of illegal crossings and unaccompanied minors, my colleagues on the left continue to ignore and downplay the actual facts, while terrorists and COVID-positive illegal immigrants are granted unprecedented access to our country.

The Biden administration has driven illegal crossings up to historic highs by encouraging more illegal immigration and loosening restrictions to give criminals a free pass. These policy reversals, and now this legislation, will be directly responsible for what will go down in history as our biggest failure of border security in our lifetime.

Now, rather than addressing the hundreds of thousands of illegal border crossings this year, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are still spending their time trying to attack the successful policies in the Trump administration that actually drove our border numbers down and kept Americans safe.

Rather than attacking the Trump administration at the expense of the American people on the left should instead think about spending their time trying to reinstate some of his policies that were proven effective, like continuing border wall construction or ending chain migration.

Even more hypocritical, while telling American citizens to stay home from work, school and to refrain from normal life due to a global pandemic, legislation like this keeps sending the message to illegal aliens, even those from dangerous countries, that the United States is open for them to flood our borders and be taken care of by our taxpayers.

At a time when there is a border crisis, a global pandemic, and emerging national security threats, this bill should not be handicapping any current or future President from exercising their executive authority to keep our country safe.

In fact, the Obama-Biden administration used this authority 15 times during their administration. The only reason why my colleagues are pushing this is because of their hatred for President Trump and his actions to restrict entry from certain countries that protected our national security.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN), the distinguished chairperson of the Immigration and Citizenship Subcommittee.

Ms. LOFGREN. Madam Speaker, this is an important step towards the enactment of the NO BAN Act, which would prevent overreach in a President’s authority to suspend the entry of noncitizens into the United States under section 212(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

As a candidate for President, Donald Trump promised to ban "all Muslims" from entering the U.S., and he suggested without any evidence that it would somehow make our country safer.

Immediately after his election and swearing in, he tried to deliver on that promise by using section 212(f), claiming the admission of individuals from specific countries would be detrimental to the U.S. interests.

In court, the Trump administration claimed the ban was necessary to keep our country safe from terrorists. And the vast majority of former national security officials strongly rebuked those claims.

In addition to this ban, President Trump also relied on section 212(f) to circumvent clear statutory requirements related to asylum. Section 208 of the Immigration and Nationality Act specifically allows individuals to apply for asylum ‘whether or not they arrive at a designated port of arrival.’

The law could not be clearer. But apparently unhappy with it, the President invoked section 212(f) to categorically deny asylum to those who cross the border between ports of entry rather than seeking to amend the law by working with Congress.

This was an attempt to rewrite our Nation’s immigration laws in direct violation of the constitutional separation of powers. The power to write the law is ours, not the President’s.

Fortunately, this ban has now been reversed, albeit reluctantly, by the President. This bill is still important. It is important to take action to prevent any future President from trying to usurp the legislative power of the Congress.

I thank Representative Chu for her persistence in pursuing this bill, and I think it is important to note that the President, if this bill passes, retains ample authority to act in the national interests of the United States to protect our security.

We know that President Trump has promised to suspend the entry of individuals or class of individuals if he determines that they would undermine the security of the United States.

To be clear, under the current bill, if the President determines there is a national security issue related to a particular country that is so significant that it could only be addressed by suspending the admission of all nationals of that country, the President could still do so.

It is important that we also address the issue of children at the border. This bill isn’t about children at the border.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEUBE).

Mr. STEUBE. Madam Speaker, this is a dangerous piece of legislation that comes at a time when our national security and our public health are being threatened by a dire crisis at our southern border.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BISHOP).

Mr. BISHOP of North Carolina. Madam Speaker, 172,331 border patrol apprehensions in March, a 233 percent increase in fentanyl seized, the worst crisis is no more. It is not more than that, no peak in sight.

President Biden and the Democratic majority bury their heads in the sand. They have put the United States Government on notice—enforcing the border, in the service of Mexican drug cartels and their criminal enterprises. I have been there. I have heard from the CBP.

And Democrats choose this moment to advance this bill to hobble the authority of the President of the United States to protect the Nation by excluding foreign nationals he or she might identify as posing a danger. Think North Korea.

In fact, they strip the President and transfer to the secretary of state and Homeland Security the President's longstanding authority to protect the Nation in this way.

And in case you would have concluded otherwise by the rhetoric, this is not limited to a religious criteria for entry.

I offered an amendment in the Judiciary Committee to defer the effectiveness of this unwise legislation—to understand—until the current crisis can be brought under control by restoring the Trump administration's successful remain in Mexico policy. But Democrats rejected that and refused to consider it on the floor.

Customs and Border Protection advised us on our tour the week before last that they told the administration revoking the remain in Mexico policy would cause a disaster. But they did it anyway.

And here they have doubled down. Just a few days later, evidence that today's crisis is intentional. There is no intention to control it. There is an intention, yes, there is a plan, but the plan is to build out the capacity for bringing people illegally into the United States. This is a crisis. They serve not the people of America. You can't have a country if you don't have a voice.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. JEFFRIES).

Mr. JEFFRIES. Madam Speaker, I thank the distinguished chair for his yielding and for his leadership.

The foundational model of this country is e pluribus unum, out of many, one. It doesn't say out of many Anglo-Saxons, one. It doesn't say out of many Europeans, one. It doesn't say out of many Confederate sympathizers, one. It doesn't say out of many Christians, one. It certainly doesn't say out of many nations, except Muslim countries.

E pluribus unum. Out of many, one. That is what makes America a great country. And no matter what xenophobic behavior is coming out of the halls of power in this country, we are not going to let anyone take that away from us; not now, not ever.

Vote "yes" on the NO BAN Act so we can continue our country's long, necessary, and majestic march toward a more perfect Union.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. MASSIE).

Mr. MASSIE. Mr. Speaker, wow, the rhetoric is hot today. Bigotry, xenophobia, Muslim ban, racism, discrimination. This is what is coming from the left side of the aisle.

They say that Biden rescinded Trump's Muslim ban—that he has rescinded the Muslim ban. I want to ask them: Which Muslim ban are they talking about? Which one are they talking about? Are they talking about the one Trump was trying to get rid of?

By the way, I think it is inappropriate to call it a "Muslim ban." But let's use their language. Are they talking about the bill that 165 of them voted for, including the chairman of this committee, the author of this bill, and the chairwoman of the subcommittee?

Are they talking about the bill that they all voted for in 2015 that Obama signed into law called the Visa Waiver Program Improvement and Terrorist Travel Prevention Act of 2015? I don't think Trump was President in 2015. Obama signed this bill.

What did it do? It named four countries, not seven. We will get to the seven later. It named four countries to ban.

What were those four countries? By the way, the ACLU was not happy about this when Obama and the Democrats on the other side of the aisle did it. Iraq, Syria, Iran, and Sudan.

And now the Democrats are complaining that the President has too much power to protect this country, and I am feeling a little of this back, but they gave Obama the power to add three more countries. What were the three he added? Libya, Somalia, and Yemen in 2016. Interesting.

So where does that bring us to? It gets us to seven countries. Did they overlap or are they maybe five of the same countries? It is the seven exact same countries that the Democrats voted for that everybody over on the other side of the aisle who is hurling these claims of xenophobia voted for.

Those seven same countries are now in and on the website at the State Department that Joe Biden runs.

Now, what does this do? Again, I want to be clear. It is not a total ban. In fact, and many Trump's ban wasn't either. It was a temporary suspension. But what they have done, and what Joe Biden perpetuates on these same seven countries—is this not a Muslim ban, but he is doing it to the same seven countries, perpetuating the Terrorist Travel Prevention Act of 2015. He is saying you can't get a visa waiver if you are from one of those seven countries.

Now which is worse? I mean, you can say, okay, it is not racist to just make it harder to travel, if we do it for 5 years or do it forever, that is not racist or xenophobic. But if you do it for six months, like Trump proposed, 180 days, well, now that is racist right there.

This is so ridiculous that one can believe they have the audacity to pretend they didn't vote in 2015 to add these seven countries.

Let's just get back to protecting this country. Let's not use these bills and these provisions to say that one side is racist, or one side is xenophobic, or you are a bunch of bigots. President Obama was not xenophobic when he put these seven countries on his list, because they were the seven countries that the Democrats on the other side of the aisle chose. They are the seven countries that Obama chose.

I say, let's protect this country and get back to working together.

Visa Waiver Program Improvement and Terrorist Travel Prevention Act of 2015

Under the Visa Waiver Program Improvement and Terrorist Travel Prevention Act of 2015, travelers in the following categories must obtain a visa prior to traveling to the United States as they are not eligible to travel under the Visa Waiver Program (VWP).

Nationals of VWP countries who have traveled to or been present in Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Iran, Iraq, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, or Yemen on or after March 1, 2011 (with limited exceptions for travel for diplomatic or military purposes in the service of a VWP country).

Nationals of VWP countries who are also nationals of Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Iran, Iraq, Sudan, or Syria.

These individuals can apply for visas using regular appointment processes at a U.S. Embassy or Consulate. For those who require a visa for urgent travel to the United States, U.S. Embassies and Consulates stand ready to handle applications on an expedited basis. If an individual who is exempt from the Act because of his or her diplomatic or military presence in one of the seven countries has or her ESTA denied, he or she may go to the CBP website, or contact the CBP Information Center. The traveler may also apply for a nonimmigrant visa at a U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

U.S. Customs and Border Protection strongly recommends that any traveler to the United States check his or her ESTA status prior to making any travel reservations or travelling to the United States. More information is available on the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) website.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Washington (Ms. JAYAPAL).

Ms. JAYAPAL. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of the NO BAN Act, and I thank Congresswoman Chu for her leadership.

Yes, let's get back to protecting America. That is what we want to do.

Madam Speaker, Anahita is an asylee from Iran. Last week, she was retested to her father, he told her that, when she returned home, he would sit with her on the terrace and talk politics. That never happened. Due to Trump’s Muslim ban, Anahita could not get travel documents to see her dad before he died or to mourn with her family.

Madam Speaker, for 4 years, families remained separated. That is not the America we represent.

American businesses and universities couldn’t recruit top candidates, and our Nation’s doors were closed to people seeking refuge.

President Biden rescinded the bans, but we must pass the NO BAN Act to prohibit any future President from issuing discriminatory bans.

Now, that day, I was in my first month here in Congress, when the Muslim ban was passed. I rushed to the airport, along with our chairman and many other Members of Congress. We worked with attorneys to file the national lawsuits that called for an emergency petition that blocked the President’s order from taking effect.

We were also, at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, to go onto the tarmac and stop a plane from taking off because of an emergency habeas from a judge there that allowed us to get two people back in who should have been here in the first place.

Madam Speaker, just imagine the hearts and souls of people whose lives were thrown into chaos, thinking that they were going to land in the United States with valid travel documents and then were turned away by a President who issued a Muslim ban. The reason we need this bill is to make sure that that can never happen again.

Madam Speaker, yes, we want to protect America’s values. We believe that the way to do that is to pass the NO BAN Act.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker. I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ROY).

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I would note, for all of our friends and fellow citizens who are watching at home on C-SPAN, that you are seeing something go across your screen that says, “Prohibiting Religious-Based Travel Restrictions.”

Well, to C-SPAN, I say: Be better. Don’t take the talking points from my Democrat colleagues about what we are actually debating here on the floor of the House because it is not that.

What we are talking about is a power grab. The President, who, for some reason, want to continue to perpetuate the lie that there was ever a Muslim ban. It is literally not true. It is absolutely not true. No matter how many times they say it, it doesn’t make it more true.

For example, the gentlewoman referred to litigation. Let’s look at what the United States Supreme Court said precisely about what President Trump did to try to secure the United States from terrorists. Let’s remember what we are talking about. The President of the United States, President Trump, working to secure the United States from terrorists, the Court said: “The proclamation is expressly premised on legitimate purposes: preventing entry of nationals who cannot be adequately vetted and inducing other nations to improve their practices. The text says nothing about religion. Plaintiffs and the dissenters improperly assume that five of the seven nations currently included in the proclamation have Muslim-majority populations. Yet, that fact alone does not support an inference of religious hostility, given that the overwhelming majority of the world’s Muslim population is limited to countries that were previously designated by Congress or prior administrations as posing national security risks,” as my friend from Kentucky just laid out.

Madam Speaker, these are the facts. Do not listen to Democrat talking points being thrown on the screen on your C-SPAN. Do not listen to repetition and lies about Muslim bans when it is not that the facts are completely opposite of that.

Let’s also add one more point here. As we talk about this, our borders are wide open. As we talk about this, for example, the ports of entry because Border Patrol is distracted, processing immigrants who come here because Democrat policies entice them to be abused by cartels while cartels have operational control of our border. They create a narco-terrorist state in Mexico, and while they exist in the district that I represent, where children are in cars being driven by American citizens employees of the Cartel de Noreste, being taken to stash houses to be put into the sex trade.

Then, we sit here and listen to this? This is what we are focusing on, taking away the constitutional authority of the President to protect us from terrorists while here we are able to come into our southern border between points of entry because my Democratic colleagues and this administration flat out refuse to do their job to secure the border of the United States?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to direct their remarks to the Chair and not to a perceived viewing audience.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, may I inquire how much time is remaining.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York has 13 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Ohio has 14 minutes remaining.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. CORREA).

Mr. CORREA. Madam Speaker, when the President first announced his Muslim ban, I immediately went to LAX. I saw people who thought they were here for a regular, routine visit approved by the U.S. Government denied—denied on a whim.

This bill is simply about making sure that no future President—Obama or Trump—will ever be able to deny entry into the U.S. based on religion or race. That is what the bill is. It is not about any specific President. It is about doing the right thing.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. BURCHETT).

Mr. BURCHETT. Madam Speaker, I thank the Ranking Member JORDAN for yielding.

Madam Speaker, right now, we have an immigration disaster at the southern border of the Biden administration’s own creation. Instead of putting a stop to this madness, my colleagues across the aisle are encouraging this open borders agenda by bringing the NO BAN Act to the floor today.

The NO BAN Act limits the President’s ability to make executive decisions in immigration and national security crisis his administration has created. If he is not physically or mentally capable of doing this, he should step down.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), the distinguished Speaker of the House.

Ms. PELOSI. Madam Speaker, I thank the distinguished chairman for yielding and for his leadership. What a busy time in the Committee on the Judiciary, bringing two bills to the floor today, with all the work that went into them under Chairman NADLER’s leadership.

Madam Speaker, here we are, under the gaze of our patriarch, George Washington, right there in this Chamber.

Madam Speaker, 230 years ago, our patriarch, George Washington, who watches over us in this Chamber, famously wrote to the Hebrew Congregations of Northwest England. In that letter, he made a promise that would be our Nation’s guide for centuries to come.

He wrote: All possess “liberty of conscience.” It is the privilege of all, that they be not compelled to do, nor restrained from doing, any act of worship, or from adhering to such religion as shall be consistent with the public peace and good order of the country. The indulgence of one class of people that another enjoyed the exercise of their inherent natural rights.”

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

April 21, 2021
He went on to say: “For happily the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens.”

Today, by passing the NO BAN Act, the House is upholding that fundamental promise—“to bigotry no sanction”—by taking action to ensure that no President or administration can ever again abuse its authority by waging discrimination on the basis of religion.

Madam Speaker, thank you to Chair Judy Chu of CAPAC, our sponsor of this legislation and a national champion in combating discrimination and xenophobia, who has helped lead the Congress’ response to recent anti-AAPI attacks.

The NO BAN Act strengthens the Immigration and Nationality Act to prohibit discrimination on the basis of religion, and restores the separation of powers by limiting overly broad executive action to issue future religious bans, which are fundamentally un-American.

As Justice Sotomayor wrote, echoing President Washington, in her dissent in the shameful Trump v. Hawaii Supreme Court case upholding the last administration’s Muslim ban: “The United States of America is a Nation built upon the promise of religious liberty. For that reason, I am honored to take this occasion to restate our promise by embedding the principle of religious neutrality in the First Amendment. The Court’s decision today” to uphold the Muslim ban “fails to safeguard that fundamental principle.”

Madam Speaker, I want to mention that when this happened 4 years ago, and the President came and did his Muslim ban legislation, we had a hearing. It wasn’t an official hearing because there weren’t in the majority and the majority wasn’t interested in having it, but we had a hearing on it.

What we saw in that hearing were leaders of the security community saying that if this stays in place, it is going to hurt our national security because we will not be able to keep promises that we made to those who helped us in Afghanistan and Iraq. We won’t be able to because many of them are Muslim.

Madam Speaker, a thousand diplomats from the State Department—and this is highly unusual—signed on in opposition to what this did to us diplomatically in the world. Our rank- and-file men and women spoke directly to the problem that this would create, the danger it created, in people trusting our word when we asked them to help us and that we would help keep them safe.

Madam Speaker, you have heard me quote, and PRAMILA has heard me quote, again and again in that same hearing because many of the people who come here for asylum and refugee status because of religious persecution where they are from, the National Association of Evangelicals testified the following: “The United States’ refugee resettlement program is the crown jewel of American humanitarians.” They were speaking in terms of religious refugees.

Again, you cannot allow any President to abuse the power of his or her office in this regard.

Madam Speaker, if I may, I would like to also address another piece of legislation, and I thank the chairman for having us consider the Access to Counsel Act, protecting the civil liberties of those who face prolonged detention as they seek legal entry into the United States. Some of them are little children.

This is a commonsense step to close a serious and dangerous gap in our immigration law that too often prevents the vulnerable from accessing not only legal counsel but also medical attention or contact with their families.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I am always proud to salute Representative Pramila Jayapal, the sponsor of the Access to Counsel Act, and a leader in protecting the rights and interests of all newcomers to our Nation—in fact, everyone in our Nation; and I thank her for her efforts.

Passage of these bills, the NO BAN Act and the Access to Counsel Act, would not be to the president’s liking. There are over 400 immigrants’ rights organizations, faith-based organizations, business groups, and civil rights organizations support the NO BAN Act, and many more support the Access to Counsel Act.

These bills are about honoring our Nation’s promise that, as President Washington said, we will give “to bigotry no sanction; to persecution no assistance.”

Madam Speaker, I urge a strong vote for both of these bills honoring the vision of our Founders, and the aspirations of so many people in our country.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON). Madam Speaker, I am from the great State of Texas, and there is nothing great about the crisis at our border. It is unprecedented. It is unmitigated. It is ever-escalating. It is absolutely, absolutely self-inflicted and avoidable.

Because of the actions of our Commander in Chief, whose first job is to protect the American people, and the irresponsible and reckless unilateral actions, we have got chaos at our southern border. 40,000 people are suffering for it. The poor, vulnerable people being abused by the cartels are suffering for it. Endless lists of tragedies because of what is happening and what is coming out of the White House.

The answer, the solution in the midst of this crisis and disaster like we have never seen from my Democrat colleagues is to offer legislation to grant mass amnesty and citizenship; more green lights, more incentives, more welcome mats to continue to violate our sovereignty and to break our laws; not to be detained and deported, but to be released and rewarded, cut in line in front of millions of people. They don’t get a free lawyer paid for by the taxpayers.

I can’t believe this is happening in our great country. I can’t believe my Democrat colleagues are pouring gasoline and inflaming the situation with the NO BAN Act, tying the President’s hands to do his job, to prevent high-risk folks from coming to the U.S., giving legal counsel, giving navigators and people who can help aid and abet the exploitation of our laws.

The Speaker pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, it makes no sense at all. In fact, Madam Speaker, it is insulting. We care about people. This country does more for the immigrant than any in the world. We welcome those who want to make America their home, those God-fearing, freedom-loving families. But they have to respect our sovereignty. They have to respect the safety and security of the American people. They have to respect our laws.

And I am waiting for the Democrats to respect the laws of this land. On this issue, I am waiting. But this is splitting in the face of these families and communities that are terrified. Ranchers are terrified to leave their families in their homes.

And this is the answer? This is what you got? Shameful. It is shameful. I am embarrassed.

Yes, I encourage my colleagues to vote “no” on the NO BAN Act. God bless America.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BEYER).

Mr. BEYER. Madam Speaker, I would like to begin just by correcting the misunderstanding. I think, from the gentleman from Kentucky, who tried to align President Obama’s temporary suspension of the Visa Waiver Program in foreign and southern countries with Donald Trump’s complete suspension of visas.

As one of the two U.S. Ambassadors to serve in this Chamber at the moment, I presided over 4 years of consular affairs. And the Visa Waiver Program is when you are allowed to get into a country without the deep background checks, without going through Homeland Security.

This is not what Donald Trump did. He suspended visas completely.

By the way, this is not about the southern border. I don’t believe there is a single Muslim country south of the Rio Grande in the Western Hemisphere.

Six years ago, then-Presidential candidate Donald Trump argued for a complete and total Muslim ban. Remember, he didn’t specify specific countries; he said no Muslims.

I quickly produced a bill, the Freedom of Religion Act, to prohibit discrimination in our immigration system on the basis of religious belief. And I pushed this bill into law after the inauguration as the previous administration was implemented, and many were stuck in limbo. I never expected that such an openly bigoted policy would be so intentionally executed, especially knowing the economic and reputational effects.

Billions of people around the world were stunned by this destruction of the American ideal as a beacon of freedom.

My bill then became part of Judy Chu’s very thoughtful NO BAN Act, and I am proud to champion it. As reckless and thoughtless and cruel as the Muslim ban is, this bill is the opposite.

It is a thoughtful way to ensure that a future President cannot simply use racism or religions discrimination as a basis for keeping individuals from entering the United States.

We cannot erase the dark stain on our country’s history left by Donald Trump’s Muslim ban, but we can prevent it from happening again.

Mr. Jordan. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Wenstrup).

Mr. Wenstrup. Madam Speaker, there is an ongoing crisis at the border.

President Biden himself had admitted it. Despite his political staff’s best efforts to avoid acknowledging the truth, he has admitted it.

I have served as a doctor in private practice for more than 26 years. I have served on our Board of Health in Cincinnati. I have served in a combat support hospital in Iraq, where we provided outstanding care to thousands of detainees. I have seen quite a few crisis situations in my life.

Two weeks ago, I led a group of healthcare experts and national security experts on a visit to our southern border. What we saw was a very difficult situation. It is a humanitarian crisis. It is a national security crisis. But it is also a national health security crisis.

Our group visited HHS’ Donna Processing Center, which, per COVID guidelines, is supposed to house 250 individuals. That day, it had 3,500. Earlier that week, it housed 5,000.

The sites we visited had seen cases of lice; scabies; meningitis; chicken pox; flu of unknown origin; and, of course, COVID-19. What really stuck out was that we are only testing symptomatic individuals for COVID-19.

We have learned through this pandemic to know better, to know that this is not an effective way to stop COVID from spreading among the camp or fueling surges across our nation.

Worse, we are releasing people into our nation without ever having tested them for COVID. You don’t have to be a doctor to know that is dangerous.

That is why I offer this motion to recommit today and delay this legislation until every migrant released by Customs and Border Patrol produces a negative COVID test before boarding a U.S. domestic flight.

If international travelers are required to show proof of a negative COVID–19 test before they can come into the United States from a foreign country, why are we making an exception this surge of migrants?

American citizens are banned from the U.S. without a COVID test, but not non-U.S. citizens?

That is bizarre.

We risk all the progress we have made in this country to contain this virus by allowing this vulnerability to go unaddressed.

Madam Speaker, if we adopt the motion to recommit, we will instruct the Committee on the Judiciary to consider my amendment to H.R. 1333 to require that migrants released by Customs and Border Patrol show proof of a negative COVID test before they are allowed to board a plane.

Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to include in the RECORD the text of the amendment immediately prior to the vote on the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. Tlaib). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. Schakowsky).

Ms. Schakowsky. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I just want to express my incredible gratitude, first of all, to Congresswoman Judy Chu for her tireless leadership on this issue, and to the Muslim community in my district for their tireless work and advocacy on this issue.

I remember the day well when President Trump issued this Muslim ban right at the beginning of his administration. And I remember running out to the airport immediately, to the international terminal. And shortly after I got there, there ended up being literally thousands of people who had gathered, at the shame on the United States of America.

The people who came that day all had some documentation. They had visas. At first, even people with green cards were being held and oppressed.

Who are we? Who are we as the United States of America?

And I know that, finally, President Biden has said: No Muslim ban.

But we want to make it the law of the land so no other President can do such a thing that, based on religion, people would be banned from the United States of America.

I want to tell you, I take this personally as a Jew, myself. You know, I am a first-generation American. Neither of my parents was born in this country. They were able to emigrate to the United States.

But I also remember the story of our history as Jews, when the St. Louis, a boat that came to protect people from annihilation, was turned away from the American shores; was told to go back to where it came from; and many of those people then perished in the Holocaust.

Who are we?

This bill is about who we are, and I urge a “yes” vote.

Mr. Jordan. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. Dingell).

Mrs. Dingell. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1333, the NO BAN Act.

This legislation prohibits discrimination based on religion and limits the executive branch’s ability to issue future travel bans.

I stand here today during Arab American Heritage Month, a time to celebrate the diversity of our country and remind ourselves that our country is stronger for it.

My district is home to the largest Arab-American population in the United States.

Arab Americans are an integral part of Michigan’s identity and have made enormous contributions to our society. Many of my constituents fled war and violence to seek a safer life—have done it legally—and many of their families still experience the suffering every day.

The former President’s Muslim ban kept these families separated. It inspired fear. It perpetuated hate. And as the Speaker so eloquently stated, national security experts have made it clear that it has made us less safe, not more safe.

I believe that every one of us in this Chamber loves our country, and that it is a priority for all of us to keep this Nation safe.

I would argue that the actions by the previous administration did not. The previous administration called for a total ban on all Muslims entering this country.

We must work together against terrorism, both foreign and domestic. We need to worry about what we witnessed in our own Chamber on January 6.

This bill will not allow people to be targeted because of their religion again. We must work together to restore the faith and trust of the international communities targeted by the previous administration.

Madam Speaker, I urge support for this legislation.

Mr. Jordan. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, there is a crisis at the border. I mean, the President even said so. There is chaos at the border. The crisis and the chaos have been created by policies of this administration.

We were down at the border 2 weeks ago. Every single Border Patrol agent we talked to said the crisis has been created by policy changes made by the Biden administration; specifically, three changes.
They announced to the world that they weren't going to deport anyone. Moratorium on deportation. They announced to the world they weren't going to finish the wall. And, most importantly, they got rid of the remain in Mexico policy.

And what do we have?

In March, we had the highest number of illegal immigrants coming into our Nation since they have been keeping records. So it is definitely a crisis, definitely chaotic.

And what do the Democrats do? What do the Democrats do?

Last month, they passed two bills that we amend to millions of illegal immigrants. You can't make this stuff up. And then, today, they are going to pass a piece of legislation that takes power away from the Commander in Chief, takes power away from the individual who was on the ballot and elected, and gives it to the unelected secretary of state and Secretary of Homeland Security.

I mean, you would think, if they were going to take power away from the President, they would at least give it to the Vice President. After all, she is the one who has been put in charge of this thing. They don't even do that. They don't even do that.

The answer is real simple. What we should be focused on is reinstating the policies that worked. In fact, again, when we were down there 2 weeks ago—by the way, we invited the Democrats to go with us, and they said no. When we went down there 2 weeks ago, every Border Patrol agent said: Reinstate the policies that were working and we don't have the problem, we don't have the crisis.

But, no, we couldn't do something that common sense. We couldn't do something that simple, that basic. They, instead, come with this legislation.

Reinstate the policies that work. Don't take power away from the individual who was elected by the American people, the Commander in Chief. Don't implement crazy policies. Do the things that work. But, no, that is not what we are going to do.

And then after this bill is done, they are going to say, oh, by the way, bring the one who was on the ballot and elected, and gives it to the unelected secretary of state and Secretary of Homeland Security.

I applaud the Biden-Harris Administration for revoking these discriminatory bans. But, now is the time for Congress to deliver to the American people by ensuring that no future administration works to discriminate against vulnerable communities. I urge a yes vote.

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1333, the No Ban Act. This legislation would ensure that no president, Republican or Democrat, would carry the unilateral authority to restrict refugees, asylum seekers, immigrants, and their families from entering the United States based on their nationality or religion.

I hope more than four years ago, I remember watching in horror as the Trump Administration first instituted the Muslim Ban—barring entrance for immigrants at airports throughout the country. But I found solace, and inspiration, in the thousands of demonstrations at the same airports, including at DFW, where the bans separated families across many of our districts. I applaud the Biden-Harris Administration for reversing these discriminatory bans.

Ms. GARCIA of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1333, the No Ban Act. This legislation would ensure that no president, Republican or Democrat, would carry the unilateral authority to restrict refugees, asylum seekers, immigrants, and their families from entering the United States based on their nationality or religion.

I urge my colleagues to consider the potential impact of this bill. The separation of power is fundamental to our democratic Republic and must be protected.

For all these reasons, that is why passage of H.R. 1333 is so vital. I urge my colleagues to vote in support of this bill.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. GARCIA of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the National Origin-Based Anti-Discrimination For Non-Immigrants Act, or No BAN Act, which stops executive overreach by preventing the abuse of the system pioneered by the 45th President with his several abuses of the authority to restrict the entry of non-citizens into the United States under section 212(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA).

Thankfully, it is unnecessary for Congress to repeal the provision which bars the entry of aliens the President identifies as ‘terrorists’ even as the bill ended in conference. As a co-chair of the Congressional Nigerian Caucus, it is important to convey to our colleagues that the United States Congress to ensure that each nation seeks to establish and maintain diplomatic ties to these important African nations and imposing a discriminatory and arbitrary ban would adversely affect foreign relations with a critical continent for decades to come.

Madam Speaker, I strongly support this legislation, and President Biden’s rescission of his predecessor’s executive order which added the countries of Belarus, Myanmar, Eritrea, Kyrgyzstan, Nigeria, Sudan and Tanzania to the President’s new and inclusive Visa Ban.

Madam Speaker, as a co-chair of the Congressional Nigerian Caucus, it is important to convey to our colleagues that the United States Congress to ensure that each nation seeks to establish and maintain diplomatic ties to these important African nations and imposing a discriminatory and arbitrary ban would adversely affect foreign relations with a critical continent for decades to come.

Madam Speaker, in light of the crisis presented by current COVID–19 pandemic, the NO BAN Act contains a provision to ensure that the President can use section 212(f) to protect the United States from the spread of communicable diseases, including COVID–19, by suspending the entry of a class of individuals if the President determines their entry would undermine the public safety of the United States.

However, to remove any perceived ambiguity and to assure the propriety of this presided over abuse delegated authority, the legislation includes language to clarify that the term “public safety” “includes efforts necessary to contain a communicable disease of public health significance.”

Madam Speaker, the NO BAN Act is supported by a bipartisan coalition of the nation’s leading immigrants’ rights organizations, faith-based organizations, and civil rights organizations, including the following: American Civil Liberties Union, Church World Service, U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, Muslim Advocates Immigration Hub, Asian Americans Advancing Justice Association, American Muslims United for Separation of Church and State, Bend the Arc, Center for American Progress, The Public Affairs Alliance of Iranian Americans, Interfaith Immigration Coalition, Human Rights Campaign, Francis Action Network, HIAS, Jewish and Muslims and Allies Acting Together, Religious Action Center of Reform Judaism, National Council of Jewish Women, National Iranian American Council, National Immigration law Center, International Refugee Assistance Project, Friends Committee on National Legislation, Engage Action, Airbnb.

I urge all Members to vote for H.R. 1333 and send a powerful message that this House firmly supports America’s well-earned and long-established reputation of being the most welcoming Nation on earth.

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuant to House Resolution 330, the previous question is ordered on the bill, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill, as amended, shall be debateable for 1 hour, equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary or their respective designees.

Consequently, the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) and the gentlemen from Ohio (Mr. JORDAN) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 1573.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 1573, the Access to Counsel Act of 2021, is an important bill that will ensure that individuals who seek to lawfully enter the United States can contact a family member or an advocate if they are held for an extended period at a port of entry.

Last September, the Judiciary Committee and the Foreign Affairs Committee held a hearing to explore President Trump’s Muslim ban and the chaos that unfolded at airports across the country when it was first announced.

I can personally attest to that chaos, lawyer, CBP will often refuse to speak immediately after the ban was implemented. Refugees, individuals with valid visas, and even lawful permanent residents were detained for hours and were prevented from speaking with attorneys. Some even had their phones taken away and were unable to call their family.

Although the issue grabbed the headlines then, it is, unfortunately, a problem that occurs daily. Due to the complexity of U.S. immigration law and the fact-intensive nature of questions regarding admissibility, it is not uncommon for some people to spend hours undergoing inspection by U.S. Customs and Border Protection, or CBP.

During this time, individuals are often prevented from communicating with those on the outside. And if the individual is lucky enough to have a lawyer, CBP will often refuse to speak to them, even if they can provide critical information or correct the legal error. Moreover, serious consequences can result from being refused admission.

Some have argued that this bill will require CBP to expend significant resources, but I believe they fundamentally misunderstand the substance of the bill. To be clear, H.R. 1573 does not provide a right to counsel, nor does it impose any obligation on the Federal Government to build any additional space to accommodate counsel or hire new staff, nor to pay for counsel.

The bill simply ensures that no one who presents themselves at a port of entry with valid travel documents is subjected to secondary or deferred inspection that counsel and other parties if they are U.S. citizens, to communicate with their family.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 1573.
Madam Speaker, I would like to extend a special thanks to my colleague, Representative JAYAPAL, for her leadership on this issue and for championing this bill. I encourage my colleagues to support it, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. MCLINTOCK), the ranking member on the Immigration Subcommittee.

Mr. MCLINTOCK. Madam Speaker, we are way beyond any question of whether we face a border crisis. The question now is whether we have a border at all.

When I put that very question directly to the president of the Border Patrol, his answer was an emphatic: No, we do not.

By abandoning the border wall, recinding the remain in Mexico policy, and obstructing enforcement of court-ordered deportations, President Biden has produced a mass illegal migration of historic proportions, preying most tragically on young children and making the Mexican crime cartels billions of dollars.

The only border security measure he has not pulled down is the ability of the CBP to stop illicit activity at our official ports of entry, where large volumes of narcotics and other contraband must pass.

Judiciary Republicans recently visited our facility at Hidalgo crossing, where thousands of cars and trucks passing through the port of entry must be inspected daily to protect our country from high-volume cartel smuggling. Our officers are experts at spotting suspicious traffic hidden among the high volume of legal crossings without unduly delaying honest commerce and passage.

Now, to do this, they wave the suspicious traffic to secondary inspections, where they can locate and stop contraband that is often ingeniously hidden.

Now, this has been a tremendous inconvenience to the cartels. We saw millions of dollars of methamphetamines and other deadly drugs, as well as infected fruits and vegetables heading to American markets, recently seized at these secondary inspections.

But H.R. 1573 would grind legitimate trade and travel to a halt by providing that any individual referred to secondary inspection can, within an hour, consult with an attorney and call other third parties. Now, there are more than 17 million secondary inspections conducted each year at our 328 ports of entry.

Can you imagine the effect of this bill? It is not limited to attorneys. A smuggler pulled into secondary inspection could warn confederates behind him that their hiding places have been discovered, turn back.

The officers told me they are already overwhelmed, using antiquated facilities, and suffering manpower shortages. This bill gives the CBP the Johnson's choice of curtailing inspections or routinely backing up traffic for hours on end.

The inspection itself is not a criminal process; it is certainly entirely in their interest and service. It speaks volumes about the attitude of the Democrats on the security of our border, the safety of our citizens, and the sovereignty of our Nation.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN), who is the chairwoman of the Immigration and Citizenship Subcommittee.

Ms. LOFGREN. Madam Speaker, I urge adoption of this bill that allows individuals who are coming legally to communicate with their American family, with their employer, and with their counsel to help provide information. There are many red herrings that have been offered about this bill, but it is really about expediting a process that is practical for the CBP to allow this to occur.

The Immigration laws are very complex and fact-intensive, and for some people who are in secondary inspection for hours, providing a piece of information to the CBP can clear things up.

Madam Speaker, I will give you an example of a researcher coming in with a valid visa and the CBP wonders about that research: Is it true? Being able to communicate with the president of the university where the student is heading to can assure the CBP about the research and would clear the matter up.

This bill does nothing to alter the existing authority of the CBP to alter, to deny entry, or to issue an expedited removal order. It just allows individuals to communicate with their American family, with their employer, and with their counsel to help provide information. It has nothing to do with the inspection of contraband. It has nothing to do with the inspection of contraband.

Madam Speaker, I urge approval of this bill.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ROY).

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio for yielding.

Madam Speaker, 185 years ago today in San Jacinto, Texas, the great State of Texas won its independence from Mexico.

General Sam Houston launched a surprise attack against Santa Anna, routed their forces, and then ultimately was able to negotiate with Santa Anna for his freedom the treaty that resulted in the founding of the Republic of Texas.

As a proud Texan, I am sitting here 185 years later recognizing that my State, the State that I am proud to represent, is under siege. It is under constant siege on a daily basis by dangerous cartels, but worse than being under siege by dangerous cartels, it is under siege by a Democrat President who refuses to do his constitutional duty to secure the border of the United States.

That is the fact, that this President, obligated under the Constitution, literally refuses to carry out and exercise his constitutional duty to defend our borders—our borders in Texas—where our communities are under siege, where our schools are overrun, where our hospitals are being inundated, where our ranchers are having people cross them, and where dangerous narcotics like fentanyl are pouring into our communities.

This is what is happening to my State of Texas on this, the 185th anniversary of the battle at San Jacinto.

One has to wonder whether the agreement that Texas made when encountering this Union remains worth it when the State of Texas is under siege by an administration that refuses to defend our border.

That is a question that we Texans are continuing to wrestle with, because it is the duty of this President and the duty of the Federal Government to secure the borders. I look at Texans who have lost loved ones at the hands of people here illegally, I look at families who have families or friends fighting to stem the overwhelming tide of illegal immigration into our country. The crisis at our southern border represents a serious risk to our national security of the United States and the sanctity of the rule of law. Reports from law enforcement officers fighting to stem the overwhelming tide of illegal immigration into our country emphasizes the lack of resources and misapportionment of funds by the Federal Government. Yet today, we are being asked to vote on a bill that would do nothing to fix the weaknesses at our border but instead would misallocate resources away from our border and leave our country vulnerable.

This little bill would spend $825 million to provide taxpayer-funded legal assistance to individuals crossing our border because my colleagues on the left believe the best way to fix any problem is just to send in more lawyers. This legislation would significantly hamper law enforcement's ability to effectively screen potentially dangerous individuals who have been flagged by other agencies for advanced screening due to their criminal record or status as a person of interest for national security purposes. We should be empowering law enforcement in their effectiveness. Screening passengers who enter our country is a normal part of securing the U.S. ports of entry and is a uniform expectation for all who want to enter the United States. Granting a lawyer to anyone who warrants a secondary screening is like demanding a lawyer every time your bag is checked going through TSA.

This bill does nothing to enhance our border security, and, furthermore, it hampers their ability to carry out their mission.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote "no" on H.R. 1573.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as my friends on the other side have heard that I am not sure how access to counsel helps empower cartelists. I am not sure if my colleagues on the other side have read the bill. This does not fund counsel, and it actually doesn't give a right to counsel. We could debate that in another bill. This gives access to counsel. It brings us one step closer to upholding our country's principles of due process and fairness by ensuring that individuals suspected of being a person of interest for national security purposes have the right to call a lawyer and receive assistance if they are detained at ports of entry or in airports.

So why did this bill come about? The Access to Counsel Act was the very first bill introduced as a Member of Congress in 2017 in response to President Donald Trump's Muslim ban. On the day that Donald Trump announced that ban, I rushed to my local airport in Seattle. What I encountered and what we saw at airports across the Nation was a sham of our democracy.

People from seven Muslim-majority countries—all with legal access to be in the United States—suddenly found themselves held for upwards of 30 hours, deported, and in some cases pressured to sign papers giving up their legal status without even the ability to call an attorney or a family member. I then reintroduced, again, the Access to Counsel Act last term, in January of 2020, after Customs and Border Protection targeted Iranian Americans at ports of entry. As many as 200 Iranian Americans were held in secondary screening in Blaine, Washington.

Negah Hekmati and her two children were detained for nearly 6 hours despite being U.S. citizens and despite having preclearance for expedited processing at the border that is specifically for approved, low-risk travelers. She recalls her small children begging her not to speak Farsi in fear of being detained. At such a young age, her children, U.S. citizens, already recognized that they were being profiled and unjustly held because of their heritage.

Of course, when we raised this in the moment, Border Patrol said: That is not happening. We can't do that. We wouldn't do that. We are not doing that.

Well, it took over a year and suing the government in order to access documents from Customs and Border Protection for us to find out that the total number of people held was 227 people. Half of those people were U.S. citizens and legal permanent residents, half of the 227. The rest of them had legal paper work to come into the country.

So, why were they held? They were held because of their Iranian heritage or ties to the Middle East. Later, we also found out that there was no attempt from Border Patrol to figure out why they were there, whether they should be there, or held with the law that says that your country of origin cannot be the sole purpose that you are held. If Republicans want to talk about wasting Border Patrol resources, let's talk about the fact that 227 people, half of whom were U.S. citizens and legal permanent residents and the rest with valid visas, were held in a Border Patrol station in Blaine, Washington, for almost 12 hours and unable to leave. That is called detention.

You have now turned the Border Patrol stations into detention facilities. That is not what we are supposed to do. Why is it so difficult to say: Yes, a phone call is permissible. That is what this bill is trying to do.

Throughout the last administration, we saw dozens of Iranian students with valid visas having their visas revoked or being deported upon arrival to the United States simply because of their country of origin. The Access to Counsel Act would ensure that people who have already been vetted and granted lawful status have a meaningful opportunity to call an attorney, have a meaningful opportunity to call a relative or other interested party, like a Member of Congress, when they get held for more than an hour in secondary inspection.

This is a commonsense measure. Mr. Speaker, to make sure that our Nation treats people right, I do not think it is going to cost us a dime to do it. I do not think it is going to cost people in the United States; visa holders working, studying, or traveling to the United States; or U.S. citizens who happen to have been identified with a different country of origin for some reason, let’s make sure we treat everybody with dignity and respect.

I am so proud to be passing the Access to Counsel Act today, alongside the No BAN Act, to put an end to some of the most cruel and discriminatory policies adopted by the previous administration and to make sure that they never happen again.

Mr. JORDAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation requires individuals entering our country at points of entry, tens of millions of them, who are referred for secondary inspection to get a lawyer. Yet, Democrats tell us this is not going to cost the taxpayers anything. I mean, this is some kind of miracle.

You have a mandate for tens of millions of people coming into our country, and it is not going to cost Americans a dime, nor have we ever heard such talk. I remember my days in the State legislature. Local governments were concerned about unfunded mandates from the State. This may be the biggest mandate we have ever seen.

But somehow, our agents, who are busting their tails working night and day right now with this crisis on the border, it is not going to cost them anything in time and effort.

I think the American taxpayers are smarter than that.

Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. BIGGS).

Mr. BIGGS. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

When I hear that, oh, this bill simply is just trying to give a phone call, well, then why didn’t it say that? Why didn’t it say that in the bill? It didn’t say that, it goes to an attorney. I am an attorney. I did court-appointed attorney work. I did it all the time.

Mr. Speaker, this may not give someone a court-appointed attorney, but what it does is, you open it up. If Democrats don’t think that consumes our resources, then I just wonder if Democrats have ever been to a port of entry and watched people coming through and seen the secondary inspection process.

This is going to bog down your ports of entry, and it is going to lead to litigation. This is a trial lawyer’s blessing, a trial lawyer’s dream, I can tell you that, because that is what is going to happen. There are going to be mistakes made, and even if there aren’t mistakes made, there are going to be lawsuits.

This is not designed to facilitate border ingress and egress. This is not designed to help commercial traffic. This is going to go to a lawyer.

While that is going on, Democrats say this is not going to be a problem. It will redirect and redeploy Border Patrol agents and Customs agents to deal with this. The mantra is, it is going to really slow things down, as every citizen knows what that means. That means that all the people who are coming are going to have an even wider open field.

In February, over 101,000 aliens were encountered. In March, over 172,000 aliens were encountered at the border. The number is going up. It is not going down. It is going up. Do you know why? Because the policies of this administration draw people in. They have done absolutely nothing to slow this down.

Mr. Speaker, do you know what the number one most important thing would be? How about the President of the United States of America stand up and say: No. We will send you back. Our border is closed. If you want to come into the country legally through the ports of entry.

How about doing that? Well, he has not done that. That is why you see people showing up with Biden campaign T-shirts on the border. That is why the President is dealing with a crisis.

Mr. JORDAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield an additional 30 seconds to gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. BIGGS. Madam Speaker, this individual has not been to the border once, but the solutions are not a mystery.

President Biden has to stand up and make a statement: You have to continue construction of the wall; reinstate the MPP program; reinstate the 12 international agreements that were in place that were slowing this down. That would have stopped it. The last thing is, you have your asylum courts down to the border to deal with current asylum cases.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON LEE).

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York for his leadership.

I thank the gentlewoman from the State of Washington for her grand and superb and astute leadership in understanding the Bill of Rights.

I have watched this debate, and I have seen people go to the microphone and say about “so and so” they didn’t know the Constitution was on the left or the right. I thought the Constitution was a document that our Founding Fathers started with the language “to form a more perfect Union.” And in the Bill of Rights, citizens or noncitizens cannot have access to that because of the basic foundation of this Nation.

For a moment, I am going to pause, but I rise to support enthusiastically the Access to Counsel Act, H.R. 1573.

But let me pause, as a resident and citizen of a border State.

Oh, how interesting it is, the interpretation of those one-time visitors. What about those of us who have been at the border over and over again? Who have been through those nights in the dark of night and saw a 2-year-old or a baby come off the wall.

No, that was not what we wanted. But people fleeing persecution have always sought to come to the place where the Statue of Liberty stands in the harbor. As far as I know, she is not gone. There is an Office of Refugee Resettlement. We have been a refuge for refugees.

Madam Speaker, I can tell you that, in the last 4 years, I saw scenes that I had never seen in my life. Do I need to remind Republicans of the children who died in our custody? No, I don’t blame those Border Patrol or others there, my neighbors. But I blame the policies of the previous administration that did not care and simply left them to their own devices, which was a crowded, unsanitized place with metallic blankets and people not able to move because their idea was: Move them on. Make it happen, short of losing their lives, they will leave.

Then, what about the MPP program? I went to Mexico and saw desperate people in the streets. They had no place to live. They were being taken advantage of. I don’t fault Mexico that, in essence, made an agreement. Maybe they were intimidated by the last administration and didn’t know what else to do. But the MPP program subjected people to very dangerous conditions.

So, the Administration’s policy of a closed border, sending people back who are single adults, but for the ports of entry, obviously; and, as well, those families, still giving them the opportunity to apply for asylum, which was literally cut off—domestic abuse persons couldn’t apply for asylum under the last administration—fleeing bloodshed.

I would rather stand with President Biden and Vice President Harris, who are strategically trying to protect on behalf of the American people, but they have not left their compassion and humanity at the front door of the White House.
This legislation is absolutely in compliance with the Constitution because what it says is that you have access to counsel. We don't pay for it. You have legal entry documents, and it is only when you are in secondary detention that this takes place. And that little Ali, who got detention, and he was shipped back to his native Argentina only did he get detained, but he was subjected to prolonged inspection, as thousands of illegal drugs and weapons pouring into our country.

If the Vice President actually went down there, agents could show her the miles of unprotected border they have been pulled off of to instead act as babysitters. She might be able to understand that the policies put in place under the previous administration actually worked.

We should be focused on securing our border and letting our agents do their jobs. The lack of compassion, the lack of humanity, the lack of integrity under the Biden administration is appalling. The gentlewoman from Washington said we should treat everyone with dignity and respect. Have you seen the conditions that are down at the border right now? It is the exact opposite of dignity and respect. And these words mean nothing if we refuse to follow them with action. The legislation in front of us does nothing to stop the Biden border crisis, and it is just another attempt to prioritize the interests of aliens over the American people.

Madam Speaker, I urge opposition.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island Mr. [Read Mr. Cicilline].

Mr. Cicilline. Madam Speaker, I want to start with responding to a complete misrepresentation of what this bill does. We have heard our friends on the other side of the aisle say that this bill requires that counsel be provided to individuals, and they have even gone so far as to assign a number to it, $800 million.

That simply is not true. At first, I thought maybe it was an honest mistake, but it is being repeated. Now we know it is an affirmative misrepresentation.

What the bill does—and I invite my colleagues to look at the language of the bill. Go to page 3, line 17. A covered individual has a meaningful opportunity to consult with counsel and an interested party; they are required to provide a meaningful opportunity to consult with counsel.

There is no requirement in the bill that counsel be provided or paid for. So that claim is not true. Nor matter how many times it gets repeated by our Republican colleagues, they are making it up. It is not in the bill.

So I rise in strong support of the H.R. 1573, the Access to Counsel Act.

Our legal system rests on the principle that every person is entitled to due process and a meaningful opportunity to be heard. The ability to consult with legal counsel is critical to both of these principles; it is a matter of life and death. In the context of immigration, access to counsel can mean the difference between someone fleeing persecution, being able to remain safely in the United States, or detained or deported back to a war zone.

These are decisions that are often made away from courts. For example, Customs and Border Protection have the power to remove individuals from the United States without a hearing, based on statements made during an initial screening. Nothing in this bill changes that.

Questioning by Immigration and Customs Enforcement can lead to arrest, detention, initiation of removal proceedings, and removal, all done without access to counsel. The time, experience, and other resources associated with many immigration-related detentions could be avoided entirely if counsel were able to sit in during questioning.

H.R. 1573 confirms that the right to access counsel attaches at the time of holding or detention and requires CBP or ICE to provide people detained and questioned with the ability to make a call and notify an attorney of their detention.

H.R. 1573 does not force CBP or ICE to identify and assign lawyers to individuals subject to inspection. It doesn't require them to provide funds to obtain lawyers and support through the inspection process, nor does it create any obligation for the government to pay for counsel.

This legislation simply opens the door to meaningful access to counsel for those who have an attorney ready to assist, and it ensures that people subjected to prolonged inspection are able to communicate with and receive assistance from counsel or other individuals who can facilitate the inspection process.

This is a commonsense proposal that really does ensure that the system will work more efficiently, particularly for U.S. citizens.

I want to applaud the sponsor of this bill, Congresswoman JAYAPAL, for her extraordinary leadership. I thank the chairman of our committee for bringing this to the committee and now to the floor. This is something that everyone should support.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1573.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I include in the Record this cost estimate on H.R. 1573 from the Congressional Budget Office.
Approximately 10.2 million individuals were referred to secondary inspection at the United States’ 328 ports of entry in 2019. Using information provided by Customs and Border Protection (CBP), CBO expects that roughly 8 percent of referrals would request access to counsel each year. Immigration at ports of entry has declined significantly in fiscal years 2020 and 2021 because of the coronavirus pandemic; CBO assumes referrals would return to pre-pandemic levels beginning in mid-2021.

CBO estimates that CBP would need two new full-time officers on average at each port of entry to provide security and transportation services, free lodging, free transportation, and even free healthcare, free education, free social services, free transportation, and even free lodging. Today, it is more of the same, with the continued effort to enable and facilitate illegal entry into our country. Now they want to provide attorneys for illegal aliens and further restrict our ability to refuse entry to those who wish us harm. Come one, come all.

Is it confusion and incompetence on the part of Democrats?
Do they not know the threat to our country? Do they not understand?
Or is it worse and they know exactly what they are doing and they don’t care about the consequences?

Why else would they stop building the Trump wall?
Why else would they reinstate catch-and-release and offer amnesty to illegal aliens?
Why else would they stop MPP and Title 42 restrictions?

The Democrats are destroying our country, and you need to look no further than our own border.

Mr. CLINE, Madam Speaker, our Nation is in a crisis. We are facing a real crisis at our southern border. As I speak, hundreds of migrants are crossing into the United States right now because the Biden administration has made it clear that the border is open and the rule of law will not be upheld.

Now, instead of working on solutions to address the ongoing border crisis, the majority has brought forward legislation that would cripple our Nation’s screening process for individuals entering at U.S. ports of entry.

Currently, a right to counsel does exist, but it only occurs once a screening turns from questions on the admissibility of people or goods to a custodial interrogation relating to a criminal offense.

More efficient, says my colleague from the other side.
Mr. GOOD. Place a significant burden on the men and women of the U.S. Customs and Border Protection, who, prior to the pandemic, processed over 1 million people daily at various ports of entry. The CBP regularly conducts secondary mandatory inspections each year. That is not more efficient with this legislation.

This legislation would severely limit the CBP’s ability to ensure thorough inspections of all travelers, not only those referred for secondary inspection, creating unnecessary delays and significant impacts on daily operations.

This bill misuses taxpayer dollars, puts the interests of foreign citizens above the interests of American citizens.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to oppose it.
Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
Mr. BUCK. Madam Speaker, the gentleman said it wasn’t going to cost anything.
This is straight from the Congressional Budget Office: $385 million over the next 5 years, this is going to cost. This is based on Customs and Border Protection telling the CBO what costs they are going to incur.
So right there it is. He can say it is not true, the CBO says it. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CLINE).
hasn’t visited the border, but she has had time to stop at a Chicago bakery and grab a slice of cake for her plane ride home.

The Vice President’s message to the American communities being overrun with illegal immigrants is, apparently, “Let them in.” When the President rolls out the welcome mat to illegal immigrants pouring over our border, My colleagues across the aisle want to fund lawyers for illegal immigrants and others. They can tell the President that the American people are protected, but they want to make sure their friends in the local bar association get paid to represent criminals flooding into our country.

Democrats don’t have time to fix our broken immigration system, but they have time to visit Minnesota and incite riots.

During the current crisis, immigration backlogs have gotten so extreme that illegal migrants are being housed in convention centers and hotels across the country. My liberal colleagues should recognize the rising problem with Americans rather than placing illegal immigrants in hotels.

Just 2 weeks ago, the CBP announced the arrest of two men on the FBI’s terror watchlist. They tried to cross the southern border. If this legislation is enacted, Americans would have paid for their lawyers to help these terrorists stay in our country.

This is a dangerous precedent that prevents our existing border security apparatus from working properly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore, the gentleman from Ohio has 9 1⁄2 minutes remaining. The gentleman from New York has 6 minutes remaining.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, may I inquire as to how much time is remaining on the clock?

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, the gentlewoman from New York is exactly right. When will the Democrats take it seriously? When will the President go to the border? When will the Vice President go to the border, the person who is supposed to be in charge of dealing with this crisis? When will the press be able to enter the holding facilities and actually show the American people how bad it is, what Ms. MALLIOTAKIS just described?

When will Secretary Mayorkas come in front of the Judiciary Committee? We have asked for him to come, answer our questions, tell us how he is dealing with this crisis.

When are the Democrats going to take this seriously? We do. We have all been down there. We asked them to go. They wouldn’t go with us.

The American people understand what is going on, how bad it is. I just hope the Democrats will deal with it sometime soon.

Madam Speaker, 1 yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GOHMERT).

Mr. GOHMERT. Madam Speaker, I know it seems compassionate to those who support this bill to say we want to give this young child whose parents sent them up by themselves, give them a lawyer, help them out.

But the consequences for those of us that have spent a lot of time on the border are very clear. It means, if you make this law, that the representatives of the drug cartels, which are often gang members, they can tell their parents, look, I know it is a tough decision whether to send your child alone, this little 3-, 5-, 8-year-old child up by themselves, but the good news is that there are people in Congress who have fought for and have gotten you a lawyer and they can call to protect your child.

So with the drug cartels, the truth is this child will likely be an indentured servant for many years, either drug trade or sex traffic, but they are going to be owned by the drug cartel, as far as what they get to do in their freedom. This is not something we should be doing, adding more to lure more unaccompanied children up to our border. We are already in crisis mode.

As a Field Operations Manager at the Border Patrol that I have talked to over the years explained, they are basically working now for the drug cartels. As they have said, we are the logistics for the drug cartels. The cartels send them up, get them here, ship them wherever the cartels want us to send them.

This is not as compassionate as it may seem. This is going to damage millions of people.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 1⁄2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. VAN DREW).

Mr. VAN DREW. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition.

In the midst of an unprecedented and ongoing border crisis, as CBP struggles to keep up, Democrats focus on a bill that will not only be expensive but will continue to hamper and slow down our hardworking women and men with the CBP.

Almost a billion taxpayer dollars—almost a billion taxpayer dollars—provided for by the hardworking men and women in America, both legal immigrants and others, literally to provide access to legal representation to non-citizens. I guess they would call it non-citizen human infrastructure. But really it is just another payday for lawyers.

America is struggling. Our borders are struggling. Our neighbors are struggling. We all want to help. But let’s help America. Let’s love America. Let’s take care of our American people. Oppose this bill.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 1⁄2 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. MALLIOTAKIS).

Ms. MALLIOTAKIS. Madam Speaker, I am the daughter of immigrants. My mother came to this country as a refugee, and we are speaking about those who are seeking refuge in our country.

When my mother came to this country, there was a process. There was an interview, a couple of weeks ago, and there was just absolute disorder and chaos.

It is shocking that this body refruses to take any action, that the Vice President, after 28 days of being appointed to oversee this issue, refuses to go to the border and see what I saw, hear what I heard.

You need to have a discussion with Customs and Border Protection before taking any action on legislation. They will tell you that they are being overwhelmed, that they are taking over the border and making half a billion dollars a month doing it.

The action we are taking here today will do nothing to help the 9-year-old girl that we saw in this facility who was gang raped on her journey here.

How come nobody cares or has the compassion to do anything about those individuals who are being exploited by these drug cartels? That is what we should be discussing here today.

To go into one of these facilities and see these children, sleeping on top of each other—capacity of 290 that they have 4,000 people jammed in there. No COVID testing. Nobody cares about the public health crisis that is creating.

So you have a humanitarian crisis, a public health crisis, and on top of it a national security crisis. Thousands of criminals being caught at the border and nobody is doing a damn thing about it.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, the gentlewoman from New York is exactly right. When will the Democrats take it seriously? When will the President go to the border? When will the Vice President go to the border, the person who is supposed to be in charge of dealing with this crisis? When will the press be able to enter the holding facilities and actually show the American people how bad it is, what Ms. MALLIOTAKIS just described?

When will Secretary Mayorkas come in front of the Judiciary Committee? We have asked for him to come, answer our questions, tell us how he is dealing with this crisis.

When are the Democrats going to take this seriously? We do. We have all been down there. We asked them to go. They wouldn’t go with us.

The American people understand what is going on, how bad it is. I just hope the Democrats will deal with it sometime soon.

Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ISSA).

Mr. ISSA. Madam Speaker, H.R. 1573 provides access to counsel for individuals referred to the secondary inspection station, but there are over 328 ports of entry to the United States. Those field executives, if this is enacted, would, in fact, be handling over 17 million people who might seek assistance.

In the upcoming motion to recommit, we will bring that, in fact, the claim by this bill that there will be no cost for attorneys’ fees is, in fact, likely to not be true.

Last week the Congressional Budget Office estimated it would cost $828 million to implement this legislation if enacted, and that would be without the right to free counsel. We need to ensure that these costs aren’t even higher.

The Democrats have stated that H.R. 1573 will not require the American people to pay for attorneys accessed during the administrative stop. And, again, Madam Speaker, this is an administrative procedure. If, for any reason, somebody is charged with a crime, they immediately do get access to counsel. This is for those 17 million people who will go through secondary inspection and likely then be allowed to move forward.

However, you need to look no further in this act than the repeatedly immigrate immigrant recommit bill of the U.S. Citizenship Act for evidence that Democrats want us to pay for counsel to foreign nationals. This bill specifically removes the current prohibition on government-paid counsel. And yet, in the markup of this bill, we insist that this had no right to counsel. If you want more evidence than this, the American people deserve an assurance in this bill. We will ask in the motion to recommit that we add that specific prohibition in this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield the gentleman from California an additional 15 seconds.

Mr. ISSA. Madam Speaker, in the language of the motion to recommit H.R. 1573, no one will doubt that Congress either does or does not have the intent to make sure that the voters and our taxpayers are protected. I urge my colleagues to support the motion to recommit.

Madam Speaker, if we adopt the motion to recommit, we will instruct the Committee on the Judiciary to consider my amendment to H.R. 1573 to ensure that no taxpayer funds are used.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has again expired.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield the gentleman from California an additional 15 seconds.

Mr. ISSA. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of the amendment in the RECORD immediately prior to the vote on the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, for all the reasons that we have stated here in the last half hour, we urge a "no" vote on this legislation.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield you the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I have heard a lot of nonsense on this floor. I have heard a lot of fiction on this floor today, but not everything the Republicans have said is fiction.

They said, for instance, there is a crisis at the border. Indeed, there is a crisis at the border.

The crisis at the border started under President Trump and has continued under President Biden; the same crisis. The difference is that President Trump tried to deal with the crisis in the cruelest way possible, by tearing babies away from their parents, by tearing families apart, and by doing so, so incompetently—I assume it was incompetence; maybe it was malevolence, I don't know—that they didn't even get the records so that people today can figure out how to reunite these families.

The crisis continues, but at least we are dealing with it. We are trying to deal with it in a humane way.

It is also interesting the fictions we have heard about this bill: This bill will cost money, this bill gives people the right to an attorney, and the Federal government will pay for that attorney. Not true. Not true.

I suspect my Republican colleagues have lost the ability to read a bill somehow. The bill is very clear. The bill simply says that if someone with valid documents—valid documents—no litigation as to whether they are valid or not, they have got to be valid in the first place, a U.S. citizen, a green card holder, someone with a valid visa, that is all we are talking about. The bill simply says that those people, if detained at a border entry point for a period of time for longer than an hour have the right to make a phone call.

A phone call doesn't cost the government anything. They have the right to make a phone call. To whom? To whoever they want. A family member, perhaps an attorney, a friend, whoever they want.

Experience tells us that when people can make a phone call to an attorney in such a situation is under the INA, the Immigration and Naturalization Act, is so complicated, it can often straighten things out, and that saves the government money. Because they don't have to litigate, it saves the government money. So this bill will not cost the government any money. It will save it money.

It will also help people who must be helped—again, I stress, only those people who have a valid document to enter the United States and for some reason are detained at the border.

How long does this last? Eight hours, at most. That is what the bill says, 8 hours.

This bill is limited to a measure that Members on both sides of the aisle, everybody, should embrace. As I said before, this is not a bill about a right to counsel. It is simply a bill about fair process. It ensures that individuals who are seeking to enter the United States with facially valid documents—a visa, a green card, including U.S. citizens who may have a passport—are given an opportunity to call somebody, a family member, counsel, another interested party, whoever they want, if they are subject to prolonged inspection.

Admissibility decisions by Customs and Border Protection can have life-altering consequences. This bill will ensure that CBP has the relevant facts, the prior facts, the relevant facts, and facts that don't cost the CBP anything to get. Well, they do, actually: the cost of a phone call. I take that back. It would cost the CBP the cost of a phone call, although not necessarily, because the person may have their cell phone on him. So, it won't even cost the cost of a telephone.

I urge my colleagues to vote in support of the Access to Counsel Act. It makes sense. It hurts nobody. It imposes no duty on the government. But it does mean that people will not unnecessarily get caught up in bureaucracy. I urge my colleagues to vote in support of the Access to Counsel Act, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, as a senior member of the Committee on the Judiciary, I rise in strong and enthusiastic support of H.R. 1573, the "Access to Counsel Act of 2021", which would ensure that certain individuals who are subject to prolonged inspection by U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) at ports of entry have the ability to communicate with and receive the assistance of counsel and other interested parties at no expense to the government.

The Access to Counsel Act does the following:

- Allows individuals who already have legal status in the United States who are held in secondary immigration inspection to consult with other interested parties at no expense to the government.
- Requires the government to allow individuals to use their own phone or a phone provided by the government to contact counsel or another interested party.
- Provides that any fees charged to individuals or their counsel must be refunded if the individual is later found to be entitled to legal assistance.

This statement, made in the weeks following implementation of the former president's 2017 travel ban, has been characterized by CBP officials as "pitifully inaccurate, an attempt to misrepresent the facts." The reality is that many people who are detained at ports of entry are not entitled to counsel, and when counsel is available, it is often not provided in a timely manner.

Meanwhile, many within the agency interpret and apply the law competently, the position does not require more than a high school degree, and CBP inspectors continue to act as judge, jury and executioner without so much as a whisper allowed during that decision making from an attorney representing the banished.

We are a country of laws, and we hold as a cherished tradition the concept of due process of law.

The need for this bill became apparent after the Trump Administration implemented the Muslim ban in early 2017, resulting in individuals being detained at airports, while others were barred from boarding flights and pulled off planes abroad.

In 2020, we saw additional instances of CBP officers unjustly detaining Latin American citizens for up to 12 hours at the northern border in Blaine, WA and detaining and deporting Iranian students who were attending U.S. universities and people from Iran traveling on valid visas.

Immigrants and civil rights activists have also raised concerns that CBP appears to target individuals for inspection based on racial profiling, and often holds U.S. citizens with proper documentation in secondary inspection without access to an attorney.

For example, three Black CBP officers recently resigned from CBP's Detroit contingent after CBP routinely targets and harasses Black travelers at the Blue Water bridge between Port Huron and Sarnia on the Canada-Michigan border.

A March 25, 2021 report by the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan examined CBP data on apprehensions at the Michigan-Canada border and corroborates these allegations.

The report found that between 2012 and 2019, over 96 percent of the 13,000 documented apprehensions involved people of color, and one-third involved U.S. citizens.

In another example, Tianna Spears, a Black U.S. citizen diplomat working at the U.S. consulate in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico said that she was targeted regularly for inspection over a four month period, despite crossing the border daily, possessing a diplomatic passport and Global Entry approval, and having registered her car in the SENTRI system.

She states that during these encounters, she was unable to contact counsel or State Department colleagues who could verify her identity.

After four months of regular apprehensions, she began to develop symptoms of PTSD, and was forced to transfer to a different post.

She states that during these encounters, she was unable to contact counsel or State Department colleagues who could verify her identity.

I urge all Members to vote for H.R. 1573 and support the message that this House stands firmly behind America's well-earned and long established reputation of being the most welcoming nation on earth.

Owner of NYC Design Gallery Detained at Airports, Denied Re-entry to U.S.

Juan Garcia Mosqueda, founder of New York art and design gallery Chamber and a decade-long legal permanent resident of the U.S., was detained last Friday at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York City and was sent back to his native Argentina, ahead of his gallery's new show—Domestic Appeal, Part III—which opens tonight.

In an open letter titled The Visible Wall released by Mosqueda on Tuesday, he called the experience “dehumanizing and degrading;” and detailed his 36-hours long detainment, questioning, and return to Buenos Aires.

The reaction from the design community was swift and impassioned. Posting Mosqueda’s open letter on Tuesday, Sight Unseen wrote: “We are strongly against this administration’s unfair and un-American targeting of immigrants—and not just those who are important design gallerists, but all those who seek to make a better life here.”

Designers and other supporters took to Twitter to rally behind Mosqueda and decry his alleged treatment.

Of the response from the design community, Mosqueda said this in a statement emailed to Curbed:

“Since issuing the letter . . . I have received tremendous support from not only the design community, but people all over the world. I greatly appreciate everyone’s kind words and concern following this unfortunate incident.

My reason for sharing my experience was to bring to light the situation currently facing immigrants from around the world and to encourage people to contact your local congressmen and push for immigration reform. I am currently in the process of dealing with my reentry into the United States—the nation where I have been legally permitted under the constant surveillance of an officer. . . .

After being escorted to the secondary inspection premises, I was brought down for incoherent reasoning and degrading every step of the way.

The border patrol officer denied me the right to legal counseling, arrogantly claiming that lawyers had no jurisdiction at the border. Shortly thereafter, a statement document was delivered to the chief officer in charge, they informed me that I was not permitted to come into the country and, therefore, would be forced to return flight to Buenos Aires later that evening.

During the following fourteen excruciatingly painful hours, I was prohibited from the use of any communication and had no access to any of my belongings, which were ferociously examined without any warrant whatsoever. I was deprived of food. I was frisked three times in order to go to the bathroom, where I had no privacy and was under the constant surveillance of an officer.

Finally, I was escorted by two armed officers onto the plane and denied my documents until I reached my destination, Buenos Aires.

This thirty-six-hour nightmare is nothing but clear evidence of a deeply flawed immigration system in the United States, carried out by an administration that is more interested in expelling people than admitting them.

I was educated in America, worked at prestigious design entities, and, now, as you all know, own a gallery which employs American-born curators. The gallery supports architecture and design studios in the United States and abroad.

I own several properties in New York and have collaborated with architects, contractors, and construction workers to bring to life projects around the city. We have created a network within the creative industries that span all disciplines and media that help individuals sustain their practices and do what they love.

We proudly carry the New York flag to every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe. We self-publish every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe. We self-publish every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe. We self-publish every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe. We self-publish every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe. We self-publish every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe. We self-publish every fair that we do and every project we initiate across the globe.

We have worked with over 200 artists and designers, from Tokyo to Los Angeles, from Amsterdam to Santiago, in our less than three years of existence and rely heavily on social mobility to get our message across and display the works that we want to show.

To my American friends, I urge you to contact your congressmen and push for immigration reform. Push for a system that does not alienate, intimidate, and bully foreigners but that, on the contrary, welcomes immigrants and citizens from all countries to want to keep investing in and contributing to your wonderful country.

This coming Thursday, I will not be able to celebrate the opening of our newest show, Domestic Appeal, which my team and I worked hard to conceive, and will not be able to meet some of the incredible participants that are traveling to the United States to take pride in displaying their creations in one of the most culturally relevant cities on the planet.

Please come see it, have a glass of wine, and enjoy it on my behalf!

Hope to see you all very soon.

JUAN GARCIA MOSQUEDA, Buenos Aires, Argentina.

EXTENDING TEMPORARY EMERGENCY SCHEDULING OF FENTANYL ANALOGUES ACT

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2630) to amend the Temporary Reauthorization and Study of the Emergency Scheduling of Fentanyl Analogues Act to extend until September 2021, a temporary order for fentanyl-related substances, as amended.

The text of the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SEC. 2. EXTENSION OF TEMPORARY ORDER FOR FENTANYL-RELATED SUBSTANCES.

Effective as if included in the enactment of the Temporary Reauthorization and Study of the Emergency Scheduling of Fentanyl Analogues Act (Public Law 116-114), section 2 of which is amended by striking "May 6, 2021" and inserting "October 22, 2021".

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 2630.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise to seek support for the Extending Temporary Emergency Scheduling of Fentanyl Analogues Act.

As we continue to combat the COVID–19 pandemic, we are also facing a tragic, growing trend of overdose deaths across this country.

We have lost nearly 1 million Americans since the beginning of the Nation’s drug epidemic. These Americans are sons, daughters, mothers, fathers, neighbors, coworkers, and members of our communities. Now, data tells us that the COVID–19 pandemic, increased isolation, and related economic hardships over the past year may be hampering efforts to turn the tide.

Last week, Madam Speaker, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released its data finding that, from August 2019 to August 2020, there were 88,000 overdose deaths reported. That is the highest ever recorded in a 12-month period.

This most recent data represents a worsening trend for synthetic opioids, such as illicitly manufactured fentanyl. This drug is 50 times more potent than heroin and 100 times more potent than morphine. Although fentanyl itself is often used for medical purposes, use of illicitly manufactured fentanyl has increased in recent years, including co-use with cocaine and methamphetamines. As little as 2 milligrams can cause a lethal overdose.

Congress has recognized this unprecedented threat and acted in strong bipartisan fashion to combat it with resources to communities around the country. We passed major pieces of legislation like the Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act, the 21st Century Cures Act, and the SUPPORT for Patients and Communities Act.

At the end of last year, in the final omnibus bill, we included over $4 billion to increase mental health and substance use services and support. Recognizing the worsening trends early this year, we passed the American Rescue Plan last month that provided an additional $4 billion in resources. This critical funding will be used to enhance mental health and substance use disorder treatment for our communities, and we need Democrats in the House and the Senate to wake up and take it seriously. Nearly all States are seeing a spike in synthetic opioid deaths, with 10 Western States reporting a more than 98 percent increase. This pandemic has made it worse.

In my home State of Washington, the fentanyl positivity rate has increased 236 percent, more than any other State in the country. My community lost two teenagers recently from a suspected fentanyl-related death. They had their whole lives in front of them. Just a few milligrams of fentanyl, what can fit on the ear of Abraham Lincoln on our penny—that is a pretty small amount—is lethal.

Fentanyl analogues are oftentimes more potent, and more than a thousand of them have been created over the years to mimic fentanyl’s opioid effects and outreach the law.

With class-wide scheduling, any dangerous variant of fentanyl is controlled under schedule I. According to the DEA, right now, there are 27 new fentanyl-related substances that have been encountered and immediately controlled under the class-wide scheduling order. All of those substances are many times more potent than heroin and pose serious health and safety risks. One recently encountered substance was approximately eight times more potent than fentanyl.

In addition to the ongoing, unprecedented humanitarian crisis at the border, fentanyl and other dangerous opioids are also pouring across our border at an ever-increasing rate. The Border Patrol reported a 29% increase in fentanyl seizures at the southern border just in the last year.

If the class-wide scheduling of fentanyl-related substances is allowed to expire, drug traffickers will be further enabled to smuggle this poison into our communities.

The Trump administration also worked hard to make the Chinese Communist Party accountable for the fentanyl analogues that were being manufactured in China, forcing them to crackdown on what is often referred to as “China fentanyl.” However, if we let this expire and do not make it permanent, we will be sending a clear message to the CCP that it is okay for them to ease up and let this illicit industry continue to grow.

Moving forward, we must work with the DEA and other agencies to make this scheduling permanent, just like Mr. LATTA’S FIGHT Fentanyl Act, while making reforms to improve scientific research on these substances.

I am not under the majority is agreeing with us that we cannot let this expire. I am gravely disappointed that it is only a few months. This extension will buy us far less time than the 1-year extension Republican leader Jim Jordan and I put forward and the 7-month extension that was requested by the Biden administration.

If this 5-month extension is signed into law, I call on Democrats and Republicans to begin working immediately on a longer-term solution. We need to work with the bipartisan work necessary to get a permanent extension signed into law. I am committed to working over the next 5 months to solve this issue once and for all and not just settle on a short-term extension.

Madam Speaker, I urge a “yes” vote on this temporary extension, and I re- serve the balance of my time.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. PAPPAS), the sponsor of this legislation.

Mr. PAPPAS. Madam Speaker, I thank Chairman PALLONE for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I rise today and urge the swift passage of H.R. 2630. This legislation will save American lives by getting deadly chemical fentanyl analogues off our streets and allowing law enforcement to swiftly bring drug traffickers to justice.

The CDC reports that there were more than 50,000 deaths involving synthetic opioids in the 12-month period ending in July 2020—50,000 deaths in 12 months.

The addiction crisis has worsened as a result of this pandemic, and this is not the time to let regulations lapse or to back away from our commitment to get people the help that they need.

My State of New Hampshire, like so many, has been hit incredibly hard by fentanyl and its chemical analogues. Chemical versions of fentanyl are ever-changing, and we know that traffickers intentionally make small variations in substances, knowing that the scheduling process may take months in order to place drugs on schedule I where they belong. This means that traffickers are often one step ahead of law enforcement.

Madam Speaker, this legislation helps prevent that by ensuring all fentanyl analogues are categorized as schedule I.

The DEA first issued a temporary order in February of 2018, and Congress wisely passed legislation extending that order through May 6. Madam Speaker, my legislation, the Extending Temporary Emergency Scheduling of Fentanyl Analogues Act, would extend that order and, again, ensure that constantly changing chemical versions of fentanyl, often smuggled in from Mexico and China, are labeled as schedule I.

The bill would prevent our communities from being flooded with synthetic opioids and will ensure that those trafficking them will be held accountable with jail time.

People are at a fight for their lives right now. Our country continues to be ravished by addiction. To let down our guard at this moment would cause untold harm to our families and our communities.

I am hopeful that we will see swift bipartisan action in Congress to grant this extension.

Madam Speaker, I urge passage of this bill.

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tampa, Florida, (Mr. BILIRAKIS), a leader on the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairwoman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, the United States remains in the grip of an overdose pandemic, unfortunately. I rise today in support of the Extending Temporary Emergency Scheduling of Fentanyl Analogues Act.

Madam Speaker, 3 years ago, DEA temporarily scheduled fentanyl analogues as controlled substances to crack down on China and drug traffickers smuggling fentanyl across the southern border. Last year, Congress passed the temporary extension that continued to criminalize fentanyl analogues until May 6 of this year.

Previously, drug traffickers could slightly change the molecules in the drug, so the formula was not technically considered fentanyl and was not prohibited, although it was still potent, leading to a lethal game of wink.

Madam Speaker, locally, we have seen that fentanyl has been a major problem, even with the scheduling in place. Pasco County, in my district, has already had 48 people die from overdoses since January of this year, and many communities throughout the country are experiencing the same overdose increases as the pandemic has only exacerbated the mental health and addiction crisis in our country.

Madam Speaker, if this scheduling ban expires, we expect far more fentanyl to flood our streets and many more lives to be tragically lost. We cannot allow this to happen.

I urge my colleagues to join us in extending this current ban and to work together in a bipartisan manner on a permanent solution—it must be a priority—a permanent solution to this scourge.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON LEE).

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, just to put on the record that the data shows that there are already significant racial disparities in some of the Federal cases and mandatory minimum sentences involving fentanyl analogues.

I don’t want to put words in the mouth of the chairman, Chairman PALLONE, but I have heard him speak to these issues, and I am grateful for it. I am grateful for his sensitivity. So I wanted to come to the floor knowing the work that has been done, but also to emphasize that the data shows that this is important and we just have to make sure that these communities that cannot speak for themselves clearly are put on the record.

I need not say that the trial that we just had with the George Floyd case and what was trying to be represented in that case, albeit was a very tiny or minute or nonexistent amount. So I want to make sure that we do this right and we get the time to do it.

Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his leadership.

President Joseph R. Biden, Jr., The White House, Washington, DC.

DEAR PRESIDENT BIDEN: We write to express our opposition to the Trump Administration’s temporary class-wide emergency scheduling of fentanyl, a substance that all of us vigorously opposed.

Madam Speaker, I simply want to indicate an acknowledgment of fentanyl and its impact that it has had, and I want to acknowledge the importance of us working together. But I also want to put on the record my concern with the DEA’s temporary order that would group all fentanyl-related substances under a class-wide ban.

You see, what I know we can document is that the recipient, the taker, gets the short end of the criminal justice stick, and with that, I have concerns. But as we take more time to do this, I want to make sure the traffickers, the cartels, the gangs, are put in the eye of the storm where they belong.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington.
Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Georgia (Ms. CAR-TER), the only pharmacist on our committee, and a leader on this issue.

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I am here today to ask my colleagues across the aisle to set aside this weak bill and support permanently—permanently as in forever—scheduling fentanyl and its analogues.

We just heard from the gentlewoman from Texas. We all agree: It is not good. Fentanyl is the problem.

Here, we have an opportunity for us to work together to help stem the flow of deadly fentanyl and its analogues in our country. This is an issue that impacts every one of us—every one of us. Whether we are Republican, Democrat, Independent, it impacts every one of us in our communities.

Just last week, in my home State of Georgia, the Georgia Attorney General announced that he is investigating fatal drug overdoses based on counterfeited medications laced with fentanyl and fentanyl analogues. These individuals bought illegal products they believed to be Xanax, Percocet, and oxycodone.

Overdoses like this happen every day all over the country—all over the country. Yet, some of my colleagues want to go soft on fentanyl analogues and let these products become legal in just mere weeks, or temporarily schedule it for a few months until they can craft another weak plan.

How can anyone seriously argue that a drug 50 times more potent than heroin and which almost always proves fatal when ingested, should ever be legal?

These products are manufactured illegally, and they are largely brought into the U.S. through the southern border. Every year, U.S. agents intercept enough fentanyl and its analogues to kill every single American several times over. In fact, Customs and Border Patrol announced in 2019, they had enough seized fentanyl to kill 800 million people. And that is what they had seized; we don’t know what else came across.

I visited the border last week to see the crisis firsthand. Border patrol agents are so overwhelmed with a 20-year record high number of illegal immigrants that smugglers and cartels are using this as an opportunity to traffic more fentanyl substances.

If the President and Vice President wouldn’t take this order, they would be able to talk to the agents firsthand and see for themselves how serious the issue is.

Instead, they have elected to leave our border wide open. We are inviting drug traffickers to bring fentanyl substances into the country and distribute it in our streets. This should not be a partisan issue. Fentanyl does not discriminate. It does not.

The individuals manufacturing and distributing fentanyl and its analogues are criminals, and they are getting our neighbors killed. This is not an issue that is going away. It is only getting worse. The reports that there were enough overdoses last year than any single year before.

This is the time for us to crack down on fentanyl-related substances, and I hope that we will do that.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington.
Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlemen from Pennsylvania (Mr. JOYCE), a great member and leader on the committee.

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I yield today in strong support of H.R. 2630, to extend the temporary emergency scheduling of fentanyl analogues.

In the rural Pennsylvania communities that I represent, the fentanyl crisis is anything but temporary. Every day, we experience the ramifications of the opioid epidemic, which has only been exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic.

As the Franklin County coroner, Jeff Connor, told me just this week, “Fentanyl is easy to get and fast to kill.”

This is true across our entire Commonwealth. In my home of Blair County, we suffered an 80 percent increase in overdose deaths in 2020. As I have heard directly from our county coroner, Patty Ross, there is no question that the widespread availability of illicit fentanyl is a substantial factor in our region’s drug epidemic.

Fentanyl causes a deadly threat to our communities. If we don’t act to extend the fentanyl import ban before it expires next month, we will invite massive vulnerabilities in our shared fight against the opioid crisis. In Pennsylvania and around the country, we need more accountability for those who bring illicit fentanyl into our communities.

H.R. 2630 is lifesaving legislation that will give law enforcement and the justice system the tools that they need to keep this dangerous illicit drug off of our streets. This temporary fix needs to be the bridge to a permanent solution to protect the American people. We do not have time to waste. By passing this bipartisan legislation, we can protect families, equip those on the front line, and prevent tragedy.

For the health and safety of our communities, I urge a “yes” vote.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington.
Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. FITZGERALD).

Mr. FITZGERALD. Madam Speaker, I rise today to express my disappointment with H.R. 2630.

What is happening down at our southern border is actually a crisis, and it is multiplying a crisis that has plagued this country for many years, and that is the opioid epidemic.

Customs and Border Patrol agents have seized more than 4,900 pounds of fentanyl during the first 5 months of fiscal year 2021, already surpassing the total from last year.

Mexican cartels are increasingly responsible for producing the supply of fentanyl into the U.S. market. China, we forget about China. China remains a key source of supply for the chemicals that the Mexican cartels are using to produce the fentanyl; all of this being smuggled into our western states.

Madam Speaker, I introduced, along with the Senator Johnson, the SOFA Act to permanently designate fentanyl as a schedule I drug, closing a loophole in current law that makes it difficult to prosecute crimes involving some synthetic opioids.

The GAO report released last week on class-wide scheduling of fentanyl-related substances found fewer law enforcement encounters with fentanyl, and reduced incentives for cartels to circumvent the law through new and emerging fentanyl substances.

While I plan to support this bill—I think everybody will—a 5-month extension is not nearly long enough. I urge Democrats to come back to the table to find a solution that will permanently keep fentanyl as a schedule I drug.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington.
Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. VAN DUYNE).

Ms. VAN DUYNE. Madam Speaker, this issue should already have been taken care of.

Last week, my Republican colleagues and I offered an amendment to extend this bill until at least 2022, but it was blocked, only to see Democrats draft this much weaker bill. It is another game and example of why Americans are fed up with Congress.

When House Democrats rejected the Republican-led amendment banning fentanyl last week, they knew that fentanyl causes a massive blight in our communities across the country. They knew that tens of thousands are left dead from overdoses every year, but refused to support it because of the names on the bill. And now they want to extend the ban of this highly addictive, highly dangerous, deadly drug by only 5 months.

Last month, CBP agents seized 639 pounds of fentanyl, adding to the 2,098 pounds seized this year alone. That represents a 233 percent increase of drugs being smuggled across the border.
this year. It is a direct result of Biden’s border crisis.

Vice President Harris was appointed as the so-called immigration czar, but has spent more time in New Hampshire than at the border. And if she were to visit, she would see the toll that the influx of migrants is taking on our border. It is not just a humanitarian crisis, but it is leaving us vulnerable to increased drug smuggling that is ravaging our streets. She would hear directly from the DEA agents, just like my colleagues and I did, why it is so important to schedule fentanyl as a dangerous substance. It is not just a humanitarian crisis, but it is leaving us vulnerable to increased drug smuggling that is ravaging our streets.

A 5-month extension is not long enough. Let’s just stop playing politics. There is no excuse why we are not working toward a permanent ban.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PALLONE. Madam Speaker, I would urge support for this bipartisan bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, H.R. 2630, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: “A bill to amend the Temporary Emergency Scheduling of Fentanyl Analogues Act to extend until October 2022, a temporary order for fentanyl-related substances.”

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

NATIONAL ORIGIN-BASED ANTI-DISCRIMINATION FOR NON-IMMIGRANTS ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the unfinished business is the question on agreeing to the motion to recommit on the bill (H.R. 1339) to transfer and limit Executive Branch authority to suspend or restrict the entry of a class of aliens, offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. WENSTROM), on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk will redesignate the motion.

MEMBERS RECORDED PURSUANT TO HOUSE RESOLUTION 8, 117TH CONGRESS

At 3:40 p.m., the Speaker pro tempore put the question on the motion offered by Mr. AGUILAR. Madam Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

So (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed. Mr. AGUILAR. Madam Speaker, I ask for recognition.

ELECTING THE SERGEANT-AT-ARMS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. AGUILAR. Madam Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That William Joseph Walker of Virginia, having been duly elected by the House of Representatives to serve as Sergeant-at-Arms, be now chosen and appointed to the Office of Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives, for the term of two years, at the Expiration of which Time and the Resignation of any of the present Officers thereof, he shall continue in Office until his successor shall be chosen and qualified.

The resolution was agreed to.

So (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the resolution was adopted.
MOMENT OF SILENCE FOR THE HOOSIERS KILLED AND INJURED IN THE SHOOTING AT THE FEDEX FACILITY IN INDIANAPOLIS

(Mr. CARSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CARSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today, joined by my fellow congressional colleagues from Indiana, as well as our two Senators, to honor the eight Hoosiers we lost in last week’s senseless shooting at the FedEx facility in Indianapolis. We also honor those who were injured and pray that they have a fast and speedy recovery.

The deceased were our friends, family, and neighbors. They had hopes, Madam Speaker, dreams, and plans for the future, only to have their lives tragically cut short. And, sadly, they are part of a much larger group of Hoosiers and Americans we have lost to gun violence.

As our community and our State grieve, and as we seek to move forward, we pledge to never forget those we lost in this shooting and any other senseless act of violence. Their legacies will live on through our efforts to save lives in the future.

Hoosiers are resilient, Madam Speaker, and we will continue working hard to create safer communities across America, always carrying the memory of those we lost in our hearts. We will never forget them.

Please join us for a moment of silence.

CELEBRATING CORPUS CHRISTI ARMY DEPOT’S 60TH ANNIVERSARY

(Mr. CLOUD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLOUD. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the Corpus Christi Army Depot, which celebrates its 60th anniversary today.

CCAD is the premier rotary-winged helicopter repair and maintenance facility for the U.S. Army.

Like a battle-hardened soldier, CCAD remains strong, committed, and dedicated to answering the Nation’s call and keeping the Army flag flying.

The freedom and security that Americans enjoy today are a direct result of the hard work and continuing commitment of CCAD to the mission given by the U.S. Army.

Thousands of military, civilian, and contractor employees have walked the halls, worked in the hangars, turned the wrenches, flown the aircraft, and dedicated themselves to the operation that began in 1961.

The community leaders and citizens of Corpus Christi, Texas, recognize and appreciate the service of all personnel of CCAD, past and present.

We salute this great organization’s unending mission. I wish the Corpus Christi Army Depot a happy 60th birthday today.

CELEBRATING EARTH DAY

(Mr. McCACHIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. McCACHIN. Madam Speaker, I rise today as the proud sponsor of the resolution honoring Earth Day.

For over 50 years, people have come together on April 22, which is tomorrow, to support protections for our air, water, and land, and to increase appreciation for Mother Earth.

But every day, not just on Earth Day, we must commit ourselves to protecting our planet. We must embrace our shared responsibility to preserve our Earth, not only by increasing environmental and climate literacy but by building upon efforts like the Paris Agreement to ensure that future generations inherit a livable, sustainable, and ecologically rich planet.

Throughout the past year, the COVID-19 pandemic has devastated our Nation. However, our natural environment, including parks and green spaces, has been a haven for communities to come together safely.

This past year has reinforced the importance of protecting these natural spaces and ensuring the continued cleaning and greening of all communities.

Like those who celebrated the first Earth Day in 1970, tomorrow we must continue our work to address environmental challenges, large and small, from climate change to litter; to educate friends, neighbors, and elected representatives about the need for year-round action; and to honor the stewardship ethic that serves as the foundation of this special day.

Together, we can protect our planet, public health, and overall well-being of all people and wildlife.

ENACTING GREEN NEW DEAL WILL CREATE JOBS

(Mr. ALLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALLEN. Madam Speaker, just yesterday, the squad and other Democrats reintroduced the socialist Green New Deal.

This dangerous proposal costs over $90 trillion and will destroy thousands of American jobs. But Speaker Pelosi and President Biden have no intention of stopping it. In fact, they are planning to use their partisan infrastructure package as a vehicle to enact several Green New Deal priorities.

While details of what they consider infrastructure, and I use that term loosely, are not finalized, it does not inspire confidence that the Democrats are already turning away from regular order, which requires bipartisanship to get the bill through Congress.

Here is what we know about the package so far. It advances $600 billion to Green New Deal priorities. Only 5 percent will go toward roads and bridges and 2 percent for airways, waterways, and ports. They are planning the largest tax hike since 1968 to pay for their agenda, and an estimate from the National Association of Manufacturers shows that their proposed corporate tax hike would cost 1 million jobs.

RECOGNIZING NATIONAL DAY OF SILENCE

(Mr. PANETTA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PANETTA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the National Day of Silence this Friday, April 23.

It is a day when people around the country and in my community on the central coast of California take a vow of silence in protest against violence and in support of LGBTQ youth.

One of those students will be Lucia Umeki-Martinez. Lucia is a gay woman of color and a student leader at Watsonville High School. As co-class president and member of the Sexuality and Gender Acceptance Club, Lucia works to build bridges between her classmates and community.

She told me that taking the vow of silence for 1 day was her way of paying tribute to those who have been silenced by homophobia and hatred. It also is a way to show solidarity to those, like Lucia, who have ever felt unwelcome or unsafe in an environment where they are supposed to thrive.

Countless students across this country will take the vow of silence on Friday for the same reasons as Lucia. That is why we as leaders must continue to step up every day to ensure that all Americans, whoever they are, are accepted and respected.

VOICING CONCERN ABOUT SOUTHERN BORDER

(Mr. HERN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HERN. Madam Speaker, today, I rise to give voice to the concern of millions of Americans, the crisis at our southern border.

I saw it for myself. Not only are our facilities packed to 10 times beyond capacity, but we’ve heard the crying of infants. Biden revoked Trump’s effective border policies and put nothing in place to make up for it, creating the current crisis that is spiraling out of control.

We need to send immediate aid to our Border Patrol. They need it.

But here is what Congress is doing instead: We are voting to provide legal welfare services to people illegally in our country while millions of Americans are denied help.

We are voting on D.C. statehood, a violation of the constitutional function of our Capital City.

The Speaker pushed 16 bills together in an en bloc last night, preventing Members of Congress from voting on separate pieces of legislation.

The American people are watching what we do here. They see unserious people doing unserious work. It is why our approval ratings are so poor. It is time to stop letting them down and do something real.

PREVENTING DISCRIMINATION

(Ms. LEE of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. LEE of California. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1383, the NO BAN Act, of which I am an original cosponsor and which passed the House earlier today. I thank and salute our good friend JUDY CHU as well as Chairman NADLER and the Speaker for their leadership in bringing this to the floor.

This bill strengthens the Immigration and Nationality Act to prohibit discrimination on the basis of religion and restores the separation of powers by limiting overly broad executive actions.

President Biden’s recent executive order overturned Donald Trump’s racist and discriminatory ban, but we need to ensure that broad, xenophobic policies that are not based on actual national security concerns do not ever go into effect again.

Make no mistake, the NO BAN Act would help ensure that this kind of discrimination ceases, prevent future such discrimination, and promote our Nation’s core value of religious freedom.

The Muslim and African bans were an abuse of Presidential authority and based off of hateful campaign promises. The ban separated parents from their children and spouses from one another. This bill begins to repair the damage of the past 4 years.

OPPOSING BIDEN INFRASTRUCTURE PLAN

(Mr. C. SCOTT FRANKLIN of Florida asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. C. SCOTT FRANKLIN of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the $2.7 trillion boondoggle my colleagues across the aisle are trying to pass off as an infrastructure bill.

Sadly, this bill is a socialist wish list. Less than 8 percent of President Biden’s infrastructure plan goes to roads, bridges, waterways, ports, and airports.

What it does include is $400 billion for home-based caregivers. While that may be a good issue for review, it is not infrastructure.

This comes as no surprise, considering D.C. Democrats are trying to lump a radical, progressive agenda into a so-called infrastructure bill. Still, the leftist fringe that has highjacked this to the floor, let’s focus on the work needed done: highways, bridges, levees, dams for water storage, and broadband. These are the things people need and can actively use. What they don’t need are choking taxes that harm our economy.

ALLOWING CHILD TAX CREDIT TO EXPIRE IS MISJUDGMENT

(Mr. TORRES of New York asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. TORRES of New York. Madam Speaker, according to The Washington Post, the administration proposes only a temporary rather than a permanent expansion of the child tax credit.

Allowing the child tax credit to expire in 2025 is a colossal misjudgment whose consequences we could live to regret.

We cannot and should not be the party that cuts child poverty in half only until 2025. We should and must be the party that champions a permanent breakthrough against child poverty.

Instead of making the most of our FDR and LBJ moment, we are in danger of inexplicably putting an expiration date on our own legacy. Did President Roosevelt put an expiration date on Social Security? Did President Johnson put an expiration date on Medicare? Why should we put an expiration date on the Social Security and Medicare programs?

I urge President Biden to make his greatest achievement a permanent legacy.

REVIEWING DEMOCRATS’ INFRASTRUCTURE PLAN

(Mr. LAMALFA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMALFA. Madam Speaker, with so much talk about infrastructure in the air lately, let’s do a quick review.

The last sizeable infrastructure bill was done in 2015, to the cost of about $300 billion. Now, what we see is a so-called infrastructure plan put out by the Biden administration and the House and Senate Democrats nine times that size, $2.7 trillion.

We can probably find that much infrastructure to do, except there is a whole lot in this bill that is not infrastructure. Much is social spending and other things that might be good in a different bill, but not this bill.

Also, in order to pay for it, they would seek to dismantle the 2017 tax reforms that did so much to promote and boost our economy and bring jobs back to the United States. It unleashed record growth. Instead, we would hurt that economy by what is in the plan.

How about, instead of tax hikes to cover what is essentially socialist spending tucked into a bill labeled as infrastructure, let’s focus on the work needed done: highways, bridges, levees, dams for water storage, and broadband. These are the things people need and can actively use. What they don’t need are choking taxes that harm our economy.

STIFLING PROGRESS WITH FILIBUSTER

(Ms. NEWMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. NEWMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today on behalf of the millions of Americans who are outraged as they witness mass shooting after mass shooting, with no action from their government; the millions of Americans who are struggling to make ends meet every day, while their government hasn’t raised the minimum wage in a decade, so they are struggling more than ever; and, similarly, Americans who are fighting for equality and civil rights while they see nothing being done in Congress.

Every single week, this House passes legislation that is overwhelmingly popular among Americans, yet not one of these bills has seen the light of day because of the filibuster. It is truly a death grip on our democracy.

The filibuster is being used by a handful of people to stifle progress that Americans overwhelmingly want, progress that would ban pay discrimination, progress that would protect our unions, progress that would protect voters’ rights, progress that would literally save lives by passing commonsense gun reform.

It is past time we get rid of the filibuster as it is today. The filibuster...
HONORING DARREN CRUZAN
(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor Assistant Director Darren Cruzan for his outstanding career as assistant director for National Capital Region Training Operations at the Department of Homeland Security, Federal Law Enforcement Training Centers, FLETC, in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Cruzan has had a long distinguished career as a Federal, local, and Tribal law enforcement official. His law enforcement career began in 1992, as a reserve patrol officer with the Joplin, Missouri Police Department. As he rose through the ranks of law enforcement from police officer to criminal investigator, Mr. Cruzan’s service has always focused on the critical needs of Indian Country, especially law enforcement training for police, corrections, and telecommunications officers.

In 2017, the Secretary of the Interior honored Mr. Cruzan with the Department of Interior’s Distinguished Service Award, the highest recognition an employee within the Department can receive for his outstanding contributions.

During his time, he has provided FLETC with tremendous executive leadership and management. Mr. Cruzan has dedicated his life to protecting others, and I thank him for his years of service.

TRIBUTE TO THE FAMILY OF GEORGE FLOYD
(Ms. JACKSON LEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to George Floyd’s family, a family that I have come to know more than the time we spent together in Houston, Texas.

The family grew up in my congressional district, and they lived in what is called Cuney Homes, which stands today proud, as I know they are, of this family. And they, of course, went to the famous Jack Yates High School. Why would I pay tribute to this family?

Because I think America has come to see them as America’s family, and the world has come to admire them for their steadfastness, their compassion, as well as their calm and peaceful understanding of the crisis and the terrible tragedy that has befallen them. They have acted in generosity. They have prayed. They have embraced those who have come to honor them. They realize the symbol that they stand for; yet they were hurting—hurting and hurting.

Thank goodness for the decision yesterday, the judgment, the just justice for them, for they are America’s family; and their commitment is that they will continue to serve this country to bring about justice for all.

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS CELEBRATES THE LIFE OF THE HONORABLE ALCIE L. HASTINGS
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. MANNING). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. BEATTY) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

GENTRAL LEAVE
Mrs. BEATTY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include any extraneous materials on the subject of this Special Order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. JACKSON LEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, with humility, gratitude, and a broken heart, I rise to anchor this Congressional Black Caucus Special Order in remembrance of Congressman Alcee Hastings, senior member of the House on Rules, and celebrated the world leading congressional delegates to defend, protect, and strengthen democracies while serving as Chair of the Helsinki Commission, a highly respected and valued member of the Congressional Black Caucus, one of the first three African Americans elected to this body from Florida since Reconstruction, a member of Congress for 28 years, my mentor, a beloved colleague, and dear friend who died Tuesday, April 6, 2021, at the age of 84.

Madam Speaker, Alcee Hastings was affectionately referred to by his colleagues and constituents as “Judge Hastings.” Was a statesman and strong supporter of equality, economic and social justice, civil rights, Israel, and human dignity for all.

I took to heart “If I lived the admonition he received from his father as a young child” “Be your own boss man,” who through it all was his own man as he blazed trails and pioneered paths to improve the lives and life chances of the was so honored to serve.

Alcee Lamar Hastings was born September 5, 1936, in Altamonte Springs, to Julius Hastings, a butler, and Mildred nee Merritt, a maid.

His parents left Florida to find jobs to earn money for Alcee’s education, during which time he was raised by his maternal grandmother and attended Crooms Academy in Sanford, Florida, which was founded for African-American students, graduating in 1953.

Five years later, Alcee Hastings graduated from Fisk University with dual majors in zoology and botany.

Alcee Hastings started law school at Howard University before transferring to Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University in Tallahassee, from which he received his law degree in 1963.

Always a fighter and foot soldier for justice, Alcee Hastings was involved in early civil rights struggles, including the famous sit-ins in drugstore lunch-counters in North Carolina in 1960.

About those times, he later said: “Those were the early days of the civil rights movement, and the people in Walgreens were breaking eggs on our heads and throwing..."
Madam Speaker, in these days of trial and challenge, I am reminded that our dear departed colleague Alcee Hastings always counseled us to remain steadfast, saying: "Continuing to do nothing in the face of continued threats to our people and our way of life is hardly what the American people elected us to do."

Alcee Hastings, the recipient of numerous honors and awards bestowed on him from organizations both at home and abroad, firmly believed that progress and change can be achieved through mutual respect and appreciation, and that individuals and communities can see beyond the limits of parochialism, enabling them to better understand each other.

And we all know how proud he was to be aNupe, a member of kappa alpha psi fraternity, Inc., and a member of the national bar association.

Alcee Hastings’ commanding presence will forever be missed; we all mourn his loss and extend our deepest sympathies to his wife Patricia Williams; his children, Alcee Hastings II, Chelsea Hastings and Leigh Hastings; his stepdaughter, Maisha; and all the relatives and friends who loved him so dearly.

My deepest sympathies go out to them, and I pray they find consolation in the certain knowledge that the Judge is now resting in the heavenly chorus.

Mr. Scott of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to join my colleagues in honoring the life and legacy of our dearly departed friend and colleague Alcee Hastings, a tireless fighter for justice and equality, a friend and listening to the wisdom he imparted on us. His blunt honesty and brilliance as a legislator were second to none. We even shared our love of colorful socks. The Lord has another one of my fathers on the floor of Congress with him now and I will miss him dearly.

Congressional Black Caucus Celebrates The Life Of The Honorable Alcee L. Hastings

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson Lee) is recognized for the remainder of the hour as the designee of the majority leader.

Ms. Jackson Lee. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairwoman so very much for yielding tonight, and I thank her for establishing the unusualness of this Special Order.

It is a special Special Order in tribute and in remembrance of Alcee Lamar Hastings, a tireless fighter for justice and equality, dean of the Florida Congressional Delegation, former United States District Court judge, first African American elected to Congress from Florida since Reconstruction, vice chair of the Committee on Rules, and former member of the Intelligence Committee, and the Helsinki Commission, Member of Congress for 28 years, mentor, beloved colleague, and dear friend.

And, while he will be deeply missed here in Congress and within our Caucus, we will carry on in his memory by advocating for the causes he dedicated his life to—supporting working families, communities of color, children, immigrants, and all those in need.

His legacy as a civil rights activist, judge, and powerful, passionate advocate in Congress will live on, and be a model for us all.

Mr. PAYNE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Congressman Alcee Hastings.

Congressman Hastings spent more than 30 years in Congress and fought for racial equality during his storied and historic life. At the time of his passing, he was the Dean of the Florida Congressional delegation as the Representative from Florida’s 20th District. Before that, he was Florida’s first African-American federal judge and a strong civil rights advocate.

Congressman Hastings died on April 6, 2021, after a long bout with pancreatic cancer.

Congressman Hastings was a life-long public servant. He served as a Circuit Court Judge in Broward County, Florida, and then became a U.S. District Court Judge for the Southern District of Florida. After his election to Congress in 1992, Congressman Hastings was a leading member of the Congressional Black Caucus and a senior Democratic whip.

He served as a member of the House Rules Committee and a senior member of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, where he was chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations. He was an esteemed member of Congress throughout his time there.

Personally, I am devastated at the loss of my colleague and mentor, the Honorable Alcee Hastings. We would talk about his time spent in Newark as a child and his fond memories of growing up there. While voting, I would spend many days sitting next to him and listening to the wisdom he imparted on me. His blunt honesty and brilliance as a legislator were second to none. We even shared our love of colorful socks. The Lord has another one of my fathers on the floor of Congress with him now and I will miss him dearly.
Ms. JACKSON LEE, Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for those words of reminding us how forthright and direct Alcee Hastings was.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), distinguished majority leader of the House, who gave an eloquent portrayal this morning at our celebration service of his relationship with Congressman Hastings and his understanding of Congressman Hastings’ contribution and value to this House.

Mr. HOYER, Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for her service. I thank Chairwoman BEATTY and members of the Congressional Black Caucus for organizing this Special Order tonight.

Madam Speaker, Alcee Hastings was a dear friend, a close friend, a wonderful supporter, adviser, counselor, a friend who will be greatly missed not only by me, but by so many with whom he served on both sides of the aisle.

Madam Speaker, I stood and I served together in this House for 28 years, almost three decades. Over the course of that time, I came to know him very well. I visited his district. I know his wife. I saw his passion for public service, his dedication, his ability as a legislator, and his kindness and decency as a human being.

Alcee was someone who held strong convictions, as all of us know, and he would impart those to you, and he fought hard for what he believed in. One of those convictions was that all people on this Earth deserve the same basic freedoms and access to democracy as Americans are privileged to enjoy.

Madam Speaker, he and I served together on the U.S. Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe, and Alcee later served, as I once did. He was the first African American to lead that body. And he was also honored, Madam Speaker, by legislators from 57 different nations when he was chosen as president of the Organization on Security and Cooperation in Europe’s Parliamentary Assembly. The only American, the only African American, obviously, to have had that honor, and the only person of African descent to have that honor.

Before the pandemic, Alcee traveled the world to promote democracy and human rights where they were newly enjoyed or not yet achieved. Wherever he went, he brought his deep commitment to constitutionalism, rule of law, equality, justice, and opportunity for all.

In doing so, he was an excellent envoy of this House of Representatives, the people’s House, and the democratic mission it embodies to the nations of the world.

I want to take a moment to speak about a part of Alcee’s life that shows his true character. It is no secret that Alcee faced difficult and painful rebuke earlier in his career. I am not going to go into the specifics. Most people know the outlines.

But what stands out, Madam Speaker, for me and for others more than anything about what happened is that most people, after having been through such an experience, might have turned away from public life. But Alcee bore the weight of a debilitating anger and self-pity. Not our friend Alcee Hastings.

He was determined to continue giving back and serving his State and his country. So he ran for Congress and reconfirmed the imprint of his neighbors and friends and constituents as a person of great worth whom they wanted to represent them. He served his constituents faithfully and with great ability for 28 years and, indeed, prior to that as well.

Those he served and those with whom he served are grateful that he made that choice. We are grateful that he persisted and persevered. And we are so fortunate, Madam Speaker, to have been blessed in our lives by the wonderful life of service and contributions by Alcee Hastings.

I join others in offering my condolences to his wife, Patricia; to his family; to his devoted staff; and to the constituents of southern Florida he represented so skillfully in this House.

Another Representative of southern Florida, my dear friend, DEBBIE WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, will be relating from her personal experience serving with him from southern Florida the extraordinary impact that he had on Florida and that region.

Madam Speaker, I spoke this morning at a memorial service led, again, by the Congressional Black Caucus for Alcee, and I related the story that a few days before his death, I had called Patricia and talked to her about how Alcee was doing, and she said: Not well.

Two days later, I called her back. It was probably 7 o’clock, about this time, in the evening. I said: How are things?

She said: Not good.

I said: Can I talk to him?

She said: I don’t think he will understand and I don’t think he will be able to respond, but I will put the phone to his ear and you can say something to him.

She did that, and I said a few words very briefly, and then I closed with the sentiment that I have today and that is I had for most of the time that I had known him. I said to him: I love you, Alcee.

I said this morning that I don’t know whether he could hear or understand what I said at that point in time, but the good news for me is I knew that he knew that I loved him. He was a man of great worth, of great feelings, of great expectations, of great service, of great vision. I will miss Alcee, my friend.

May Alcee’s memory be a blessing and inspiration to us as we continue to work here in this institution that he loved and served so well.

Ms. JACKSON LEE, Madam Speaker, I thank the majority leader for that personal tribute of the bond of love between his friend, Alcee Hastings, and himself. I thank him for that story and tribute.

Madam Speaker, it is now an honor to yield to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ), the co-chair of the Florida delegation, the cardinal of the Appropriations Committee, but I think this evening what she would most want to be known as, certainly a mentee of earlier years, but a steadfast friend of Congressman Alcee Hastings.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor one of the foremost fighters for justice Florida has ever known, Congressman Alcee Hastings.

Throughout my public service, I have been proud to be associated with and stand alongside this fierce but gentle and courageous statesman. The shadow he casts in my own political life is long. It started at the University of Florida, when I ran for Student Senate side by side with his son, Alcee “Jody” Hastings, II. Twenty years later, I had the honor and pleasure of serving alongside a father, a man who was my dear friend and mentor.

Alcee revered this institution, and he loved his 20th District, from Belle Glade to Broward, and the Sawgrass to Sistrum. Anyone who knew him knew he was Florida through and through, and he brought that to these Halls of power. He valued every part of the cultural and ethnic mosaic that enriches our great State, and he contributed to that through his life.

With his passing, his constituents lost a brilliant, fearless, and giant-hearted advocate for the community he so dearly loved. Our folks back home will miss their “on his mind, on his tongue” firebrand voice in these Halls of power.

The common refrain among anyone unfortunate enough to follow Alcee Hastings on a speaking program was: Well, this is the last place on a program you want to go.

He was a powerful, impactful orator. Here in Congress, as you all know too well, each of us lost a wise, patient, and humane statesman; and our delegation lost a seasoned, thoughtful, forceful leader.

Personally, I lost a treasured friend and trusted teacher. I can’t count the times I leaned on him for his honest, perceptive counsel. Even when I didn’t know I needed that advice, Alcee did, and he provided it generously. Afterwards, I was always grateful for his words of wisdom.

Alcee Hastings devoted his life to fighting the world’s wrong. He championed the most vulnerable, and he himself knew what it meant to overcome. He fought for human rights at home and abroad. Alcee was a champion of the U.S.-Israel relationship, and a steadfast friend to the Jewish community. He knew that Jews and African Americans were much more alike than we were different, and we often joked about the similarities.

Years ago, as police brutality stretched the fabric holding our community together, he and I joined together to ensure that law enforcement and our people would be able to pledge to protect one another and have a safe forum to communicate.

When it came to protecting the world’s most unique tropical wetlands, Alcee always spearheaded our Everglades restoration efforts. In just the last month, he led the delegation in a letter to the President advocating for the Everglades-Record-Breaking battles closer to dearer to me, he poured his own heart in it.

Alcee was one of my most fierce allies in battling breast cancer. These last 10 months, I spoke to him almost every day. It was an honor to cast his proxy vote. Good days or bad, he made sure he personally told me his vote preferences. Some days he might say in his Alcee kind of way: Why are we even voting on this?

And I left out some of the choicer words.

I cherished catching up with him every opportunity. Other days, he would just share his vote, and that call would end far too quickly. No matter how he felt, he always ended these calls by saying: “DEBBIE, thank you for this...”

He was always gracious, always grateful. But it was I who was grateful for the gift of this man.

I was also a personal believer of him into this 117th Congress. He took what he must have known was his final oath with such pride, dignity, and authority.

In our last conversation, he told me he was at peace.

And why shouldn’t he be? He rose from a young man in the orange groves of the segregated South to become the first African-American Federal jurist in Florida and part of a historic 1992 class of the United States Congress. His political life took him as far off as the Parliamentary Assembly in Europe.

Congressman Hastings did it his way, and he leaves an immense personal and political legacy, both in these Halls and in our hearts. I know that I and this hallowed body are better off from having been in Alcee’s midst. And that lasting impression he left behind, we will always carry with us. May his memory be a blessing.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, it is certainly a privilege as well.

I thank Congresswoman WASSERMAN SCHULTZ for the personal stories she has shared with us, and her friendship.

Madam Speaker, it is now my privilege to yield to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BISHOP), known as an expert on all things agricultural; a civil rights leader; as well in this place, in this House, a cardinal himself. But I believe what he will share with us tonight is a personal relationship with Congressman Alcee Hastings, a Kappa. And, yes, Congressman BISHOP is a Kappa.

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Shakespeare wrote: All the world is a stage. And all the men and women, merely players. Each has his entrance and his exit. One man in his time may play many parts.

So it was with our beloved Alcee Hastings. He was a son, father, grandfather, husband, civil rights activist, attorney, judge, Member of Congress, international parliamentarian, colleague, and a steadfast friend to the Jewish community. He was a powerful advocate for marginalized humanity. He did so much for so many for so long. We will miss him, but the world is a better place because of the life of Alcee Lamar Hastings.

My wife, Vivian, and I send our heartfelt condolences to his wife, Patricia, his other family, his staff, and all who mourn his loss.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank Congressman Bishop for letting us know that the world is a better place because of Alcee Hastings.

Now it is my privilege again to introduce another of Congressman Hastings’ dear, dear friends, the chairwoman of the Science, Space, and Technology Committee as well as a proud member of the Divine Nine and a great Texan.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JOHNSON).

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I simply cannot eulogize the life and legacy of Congressman Hastings every single minute, but I will try my best.

Alcee and I came to Congress together in the class of 1992, and almost instantly I knew that I was in the presence of a giant.

Our class doubled the size of the CBC. Alcee let everyone know that he came from humble beginnings. But I can say this: he carved for himself a path to success first in the field of law and ultimately in Congress.

As many have already noted, he was a man of sharp words, and perhaps sharp is an understatement.

Who could forget his infamous declaration that Texas is a crazy State?

We shared so many laughs and quiet whispers. A story that many may not know is that I convinced him to come to Texas and speak in our crazy State, to which he responded, “Y’all may want to hear me speak now, but after I’m done, you won’t ever invite me back.”

Well, it was colorful.

Alcee and I co-founded the Congressional Homeless Caucus and served as co-chairs together until his passing. Because of his tireless advocacy on behalf of the homeless, more constituents in his district and mine and across the country now sleep with a roof above their heads.

His wife and I were close, and we shared many social occasions together.

So I say: So long my dear friend, rest in peace. And kudos from the 30th District in Dallas.

Ms. JACKSON LEE, Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Texas for her recognition of Alcee’s complimentary words about Texas, but he was still our friend. I thank Congresswoman JOHNSON for that tribute.

Again, this is a very special tribute, and I might say special, special tribute to our friend, the late Alcee Lamar Hastings.

To provide another tribute is one of our members of the Congressional Black Caucus, a member of the leadership of the cochair of the Democratic Policy and Steering Committee, a cardinal on the Appropriations Committee, and it is known that often people say: BARBARA LEE speaks for me.

The Honorable Congresswoman BARBARA LEE is from California, a State that loves Texas as well.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

Ms. LEE. I am grateful.

I would like to offer my deepest condolences to Congressman Hastings’ family; his wife, Patricia; his staff; all of his loved ones; his children; and his grandchildren. I know that this loss is deeply felt, and I am praying for the Hastings family and also for his constituents whom I had the honor to meet during my visits to his district.

Congressman Hastings was a trailblazer, and he lived a life of firsts as the first African-American Federal judge appointed to the State of Florida and the first African American to lead the Helsinki Commission.

I have had the privilege to travel with Alcee to Europe several times and to work with him to establish a transatlantic dialogue to improve social and political inclusion of people of African descent in Europe and the United States. This was a visionary idea that Congressman Hastings wanted to see happen in his lifetime, and he has made so much progress toward achieving that goal and his dream.

Alcee’s political and diplomatic acumen was strengthened by his very warm and caring spirit. Many may not be aware, but while he was fighting the fight for human rights and democracy, he was also a devoted caregiver to his ailing mother. When I was struggling with the health challenges of my own beloved mother, he was there to offer comfort and guidance. He made me realize how blessed I was to be able to take care of her during her last years on Earth. For that I will be deeply grateful.

When I first met Judge Hastings back in the 1980s, even before I was an elected official, I knew I had met someone special. He gave me his honest opinion and offered guidance without hesitation even before I was elected to office.

Despite his no-nonsense attitude and direct nature, myself, like all of us, had our own inside jokes. He called me Bob. I loved his socks—like so many of us—so much so that he gave me six pairs for my birthday. They are my Alcee socks which I will always cherish and wear.

Congressman Hastings always supported and guided me when I presented my bills to the Rules Committee, and he encouraged me by always saying: “I’m with you, Bob. I’m with you, Bob.” Even if he disagreed with my progressive bills, he would say: “I’m with you, Bob, I’m with you, Bob. We are going to get votes on this and we are going to win.”

He taught me some colorful words to use during very challenging times.

I feel beyond blessed to have known Alcee Hastings. His loss will be felt not only in Florida, in his district, throughout the country and here in Washington, D.C., but also around the world. He was truly a beloved and brilliant world leader.

I am reminded of 2 Timothy 4:7. I am reminded of Alcee tonight as I think about and read this Scripture: “I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith.”

Yes, our brother, our friend, our colleague, our warrior for justice and for peace fought the good fight, and now may he rest in peace and may he rest in power.

Madam Speaker, I thank Congresswoman JACKSON LEE for yielding and for this Special Order tonight.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. We will be reminded of those colorful socks. That was his trademark, and that is very special. This is a special tribute to Congressman Alcee Hastings.

Our next tribute presenter is Gwendolyn Moore from the great State of Wisconsin. Gwendolyn Moore has been a fighter for the vulnerable and serves on the distinguished and powerful Ways and Means Committee. I thank my colleague and friend on the Helsinki Mission.

Madam Speaker, may I ask how much time I have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas has 25 minutes remaining.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. Moore).

Ms. MOORE of Wisconsin. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Texas for yielding, and I want to thank the chairwoman of the Congressional Black Caucus for pulling this all together.

I am Gwen Moore from the great State of Wisconsin, and I was first elected in 2004. I was so excited about becoming a Member of Congress and especially excited about becoming a member of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Every year the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation hosts a great gala, and I was eager in September of 2005 to march across the stage with the likes of John Lewis, Barbara Lee, and Maxine Waters with my brand new classmates, Cleaver, G.K. Butterfield, Al Green, and Senator Obama. I was ready for the pageantry. All my relatives were coming to see me curtsy in my African outfit made with red and gold African wedding cloth. But then I learned that all but one member of the Congressional Black Caucus would suit up. Then when I discovered that I, commision myself to implore him not to ruin the evening with his recalitrance.

I made Alcee Lamar’s prompt and declarative declination was peppered with his famous street vernacular. Even though he was disinterested in the pomp and ceremony of the CBCF gala, he attended punctually. His excellent judgment, powers of discernment, and strategic thinking silenced the room every time and had Members on the edge of their seats as he weighed in on tactics and strategy.

I wondered: Where in the world did this man get his confidence that he exhibited on a daily basis?

Where did he get the courage? His swagger was more than just his socks and his tie. There was something that I wanted to know about him.

Well, fortunately for me, Mr. Hastings drew me in as a mentee. He was familiar with my legislative agenda around equity and justice for women and people of color. So he invited me to accompany him in 2006 to the annual session of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, held in Brussels that year, wherein he was serving his third term as parliamentary assembly president of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe.

He was first elected in 2004. You have heard from other speakers, Madam Speaker, that this is an international organization of 57 member countries, and he is the only person of African descent to ever hold this position and he is the only American to ever hold this position. He would have to whip and get votes and everything, and Alice did that.

When I saw him, I was stunned to witness on this international stage the mastery of his indefatigable leadership. He commanded the political discourse on human rights to take a deeper dive into minority rights, and not just Black versus White, but Jews and other ethnic minorities, gypsies, women, and migrants.

In fact, under his leadership the OSCE broadened its mandate to address human rights to include intolerance, migration, and organized crime.
The global consensus around the plight of Blacks at the hands of police was a topic of this international body. Indeed, I learned that racial oppression was global, and Alcee shepherded this international body through dozens and dozens of resolutions around global racial equity.

I was hooked. I went with Alcee every time. What I found is that language was not a barrier, culture was not a barrier, and even adversarial relations with people like the Russians or some of the other known dictators who attended the meetings did not prevent him from engaging them in side meetings to advance the international dialogue.

Because of his association with Mr. Hastings, I have met around 300 parliamentarians of African descent in Europe, Spain, Italy, Germany, Sweden, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, and Canada just to name a few.

The book with Mr. Hastings—we all knew it was his last trip—we went to London, and we gathered in a circle with parliamentarians from Britain. We talked about the historical relationship of the United States and Britain, and indeed that same connectivity that Mrs. Lee referred to, he made us promise to continue the Atlantic engagement with our brethren. We have to keep that promise to him because he gave birth to those relationships over 30 years.

Do you know what? I figured out where he got his swagger from. He was not concerned with little things and petty things, what people thought, and pomp and circumstance.

He was a universal human rights leader. When I thought about him, I don’t know why I thought of this song that Sarah Vaughan singing. But some of the lyrics in “Universal Prisoner” were:

Most people go around thinking they’re free Believing it’s an easy way to be They run in guilt and fear From all the things they truly hold dear The question is asked, do you give the love that is inside Or do you run in the phony world where most people hide?

Mr. Hastings embodied the universal precepts of equality, equity, and justice. He was a true humanitarian.

Enjoy your flight into the universe, Mr. Hastings.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, let me thank the gentlewoman from Wisconsin for her kind words. Those were memorable times, and the historic nature of his leadership was not only national; it was international.

I am privileged again in this very special tribute to be able to yield to the gentlewoman from Georgia. States are quite close to each other, and of course, her passion matches the deep passion of Congressman Alcee Hastings. That is the obvious reason for her kinship to Congressman Hastings, but also the ability to have suffered in loss but stand up to fight for justice, and that is our friend and colleague, LUCY McBATH, from Georgia.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Georgia (Mrs. McBATH). Mrs. McBATH. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Texas for yielding to me.

Madam Speaker, I rise in celebration of the remarkable life of our dear friend and colleague, Congressman Alcee Hastings, known affectionately as The Judge. People called him that long before I got here. He was the first African-American Federal judge in the State of Florida, appointed by President Jimmy Carter, where he served for 10 years before being elected to Congress in 1992.

I know that a lot of my colleagues and persons in this great Chamber tonight might wonder what kind of a relationship I would have had with Alcee Hastings. I would have only been here for 2 years. But what I do know is that I recognize Alcee truly from his spirit.

He and I were cancer survivors, and oftentimes, here on the floor, every single day, I would come to his side and sit next to him, and I would say: “How are you doing today?” He would say: “Not so good today.” Or he would say: “Today is a great day.”

But I remember his kindness, and I remember his words of wisdom to me, always telling me: “You are doing the right thing. You are standing up. Stay strong. Look forward.”

I am really grateful for even that 1 year that I had to stand and to serve with a giant such as Alcee Hastings.

Alcee and I were both very proud to serve in the House together as fellow members of the Congressional Black Caucus. We talked about it, and often, I said to him: “I still can’t believe I am here. I cannot believe I am here, but I am so grateful to be here to serve with a giant.” As I said, we were also bonded over our shared kinship as cancer patients because I understood what he was going through. I understood the treatment and the pain and the suffering.

But what I admired about him the most is his tenacity, his strength, and his fortitude to come here every single day in spite of it and to push his way through for the sake of this Chamber, for the sake of this body, for the sake of the people he loved so dearly in his community.

He offered me encouragement, telling me to stay the course and to continue to work on behalf of the American people. I remember he said to me: “I may not be here when you pass that gun bill, but you must pass it.”

I will always be grateful to him for his friendship and for the wisdom and leadership that he shared with this body and with me.

I always wish I had the ability to be in this body, to be among some of the most wise, intelligent, compassionate, and driven people I have ever met in my life, particularly those of the Congressional Black Caucus like Alcee Hastings, a giant among us.

Madam Speaker, I am so grateful today to be able to stand here and pay reverence to him, the giant among us.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for that sense of kinship, with her tribute and a reference to his kindness and his wisdom.

I hope everyone knows that we are telling a very special story this evening. To join us in that is a Floridian, the distinguished former chief of police, VAL DEMINGS, a senior member of the Intelligence Committee, a member of the Judiciary Committee and Homeland Security Committee, and a Floridian with deep roots and a friend of Congressman Hastings.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. DEMINGS).

Ms. DEMINGS. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Texas for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and legacy of Congressman Alcee Hastings.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., once said: “The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of convenience and comfort, but where he stands at times of challenge and controversy.”

Madam Speaker, what we all know in this Chamber is that Congressman Alcee Hastings was never afraid to stand during times of challenge and controversy. You see, Congressman Hastings was born in central Florida in Altamonte Springs. He was always so proud to share his stories with me about growing up in a city not far from the district I now represent.

Alcee Hastings was a giant in our State, the dean of the delegation. When I first got here, I was so proud about what it meant for Alcee, being the dean was a lot more than being the longest serving Member.

Alcee Hastings was a giant of a man in Florida, but he was a giant of a man around the Nation and a giant of a man in our world.

As you have heard, he was the first Black person, period, man or woman, appointed as a Federal judge in Florida. We all know the joys and the pain of being a first and paving the way for others to follow, paving the way for other boys and girls and men and women, regardless of the color of their skin, paving the way for them as a first.

I remembered that appointment. I was working at the Orlando Police Department, and I was so proud to know of this giant of a man who was appointed as the first Black man to serve as a Federal judge. We were all so proud of him.

The things I most appreciated about Congressman Hastings, my colleague from Florida—and hear me clearly, there were many things that I loved and appreciated about him. But... one of the things was that he was big enough to share his space with you regardless of whether you were a freshman or you had been here for a considerable amount of time. Congressman Hastings never hesitated to share his space with you. He never hesitated to give you room. He was a gentleman to monitor, and he genuinely wanted you to do well.

Congressman Hastings was a true friend, and it didn’t matter if he agreed with everything you said. He didn’t have to be like his friend, he understood that friends didn’t always agree on everything because, see, Alcee was his own man. We heard the song earlier today, and he did it his way.

He was his own man with his own beliefs, his own principles. He allowed me to be my own woman with my own beliefs. He allowed all of us, in our respective places. That is the kind of man, the giant of a man, that he was.

Congressman Hastings didn’t waste a lot of time fighting over trivial matters. He was on a mission. He was fighting for justice. I really can’t remember a time he was not fighting for justice. He didn’t mind fighting for women’s rights even after he had made it himself. He didn’t mind fighting for equal rights. He didn’t mind fighting for human rights. He didn’t mind fighting for the LGBTQ community. He didn’t mind standing up and fighting for people who were different from him.

Congressman Hastings dedicated his life to fighting for a better Florida and, therefore, fighting for a better Nation.

I say to my colleagues that if you were in a fight, you wanted Congressman Hastings on your side. Madam Speaker, as we know, someone will take his space, but I don’t believe that anyone can ever take his place.

I would like to close with just a short scripture from Psalm 56 that says: “In God I trust; I will not be afraid. What can man do to me? I am under vows to You, O God; I will present my thanks of-the-day, that I may walk before God in the light of life.”

Congressman Hastings was not afraid, and we are forever grateful for his life well lived.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. We are truly grateful for his life.

Madam Speaker, how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas has 4 minutes remaining.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I will bring this Special Order to a close, and I want to remind our colleagues of this very special Special Order led by Chairwoman JOYCE BEATTY. Then, we heard from DEBBIE WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, SANFORD BISHOP, BENNIE THOMPSON, EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON, our Majority Leader HOYER, BARBARA LEE and GWIN MOORE. We also heard from LUCY MCBATH and VAL DEMINGS, and we heard from others in their voices throughout the day and in their statements.

So let me try to summarize this life. This giant of a man was a Federal judge and a tireless fighter for justice and equality. He was the dean of the Florida delegation. He led an international organization never before led by an American, never before led by an African American. But let me tell you what I believe really meant something to Alcee’s life. First, his beautiful wife, Patricia, and all of his family members who we pay tribute to for sharing him with us. But he was Flordia A&M man. He was a Fisk man. After all, I understand that friends didn’t always agree on everything because, see, Alcee was his own man. We heard the song earlier today, and he did it his way.

He was his own man with his own beliefs, his own principles. He allowed me to be my own woman with my own beliefs. He allowed all of us, in our respective places. That is the kind of man, the giant of a man, that he was.

Congressman Hastings didn’t waste a lot of time fighting over trivial matters. He was on a mission. He was fighting for justice. I really can’t remember a time he was not fighting for justice. He didn’t mind fighting for women’s rights even after he had made it himself. He didn’t mind fighting for equal rights. He didn’t mind fighting for human rights. He didn’t mind fighting for the LGBTQ community. He didn’t mind standing up and fighting for people who were different from him.

Congressman Hastings dedicated his life to fighting for a better Florida and, therefore, fighting for a better Nation.

I say to my colleagues that if you were in a fight, you wanted Congressman Hastings on your side. Madam Speaker, as we know, someone will take his space, but I don’t believe that anyone can ever take his place.

I would like to close with just a short scripture from Psalm 56 that says: “In God I trust; I will not be afraid. What can man do to me? I am under vows to You, O God; I will present my thanks of-the-day, that I may walk before God in the light of life.”

Congressman Hastings was not afraid, and we are forever grateful for his life well lived.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. We are truly grateful for his life.

Madam Speaker, how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas has 4 minutes remaining.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I will bring this Special Order to a close, and I want to remind our colleagues of this very special Special Order led by Chairwoman JOYCE BEATTY. Then, we heard from DEBBIE WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, SANFORD BISHOP, BENNIE THOMPSON, EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON, our Majority Leader HOYER, BARBARA LEE and GWIN MOORE. We also heard from LUCY MCBATH and VAL DEMINGS, and we heard from others in their voices throughout the day and in their statements.

So let me try to summarize this life. This giant of a man was a Federal judge and a tireless fighter for justice and equality. He was the dean of the Florida delegation. He led an international organization never before led by an American, never before led by an African American. But let me tell you what I believe really meant something to Alcee’s life. First, his beautiful wife, Patricia, and all of his family members who we pay tribute to for sharing him with us. But he was Flordia A&M man. He was a Fisk man. After all, I understand that friends didn’t always agree on everything because, see, Alcee was his own man. We heard the song earlier today, and he did it his way.

He was his own man with his own beliefs, his own principles. He allowed me to be my own woman with my own beliefs. He allowed all of us, in our respective places. That is the kind of man, the giant of a man, that he was.

Congressman Hastings didn’t waste a lot of time fighting over trivial matters. He was on a mission. He was fighting for justice. I really can’t remember a time he was not fighting for justice. He didn’t mind fighting for women’s rights even after he had made it himself. He didn’t mind fighting for equal rights. He didn’t mind fighting for human rights. He didn’t mind fighting for the LGBTQ community. He didn’t mind standing up and fighting for people who were different from him.

Congressman Hastings dedicated his life to fighting for a better Florida and, therefore, fighting for a better Nation.

I say to my colleagues that if you were in a fight, you wanted Congressman Hastings on your side. Madam Speaker, as we know, someone will take his space, but I don’t believe that anyone can ever take his place.

I would like to close with just a short scripture from Psalm 56 that says: “In God I trust; I will not be afraid. What can man do to me? I am under vows to You, O God; I will present my thanks of-the-day, that I may walk before God in the light of life.”

Congressman Hastings was not afraid, and we are forever grateful for his life well lived.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. We are truly grateful for his life.

and it is a crisis of the administration's creation.

President Biden has stopped construction of the border wall. He re-implemented the catch-and-release policy of the Obama administration. He reversed the remain in Mexico policy of the Trump administration. And he selectively is enforcing immigration laws.

The results are not surprising. Our Border Patrol is now completely overwhelmed. The number of southwest border encounters have reached a 15-year high. I want you to look at these numbers, Madam Speaker. This is the border crisis. The first column here is January of this year. We had 78,323 southwest border encounters. The next month, in February, it goes up to 100,441. Last month, in March, it was 171,700. This is a crisis. We all know the numbers for April are going to be staggering.

I know that there are Members on both sides of the aisle here—I know there are our Democrat colleagues, who want to join us to take action to fix this. But we can't do it without the administration.

Look, here are five simple steps that we can take that would help end the border crisis.

Number one, finish the wall.

Number two, reinstate the remain in Mexico policy;

Number three, turn away high-risk individuals at our border. These are dangerous folks, some of them, coming across, and we know that;

Number four, require negative COVID tests before releasing migrants, illegal immigrants, into the U.S.;

Number five, let's send a clear message to the whole world to discourage illegal immigration.

What a concept. These aren't difficult things. The Trump administration had it all figured out, but now politics has gotten in the way of good policy.

In addition to finally solving the border crisis, there is another item in the news that Americans desperately want us to address, and that is the need for an infrastructure package. That could be a bipartisan solution that we could all work on together. It should be non-partisan, but because it impacts every single congressional district in every State, all of us, every American, wants this to happen.

But the plan that the White House introduced isn't really about infrastructure at all. In fact, only 6 percent of the $2.5 trillion proposal would go towards bridges, highways, and roads. The rest goes to fund Democrat Big Government priorities, like the Green New Deal, and payoffs to liberal special interest groups. What an outrage.

The facts are that the House majority is the slimmest of any House majority since World War II, and the Senate is divided 50-50. Given these facts, we just want our Democratic colleagues and President Biden to end this partisan agenda for the sake of the American people.

I look forward, Madam Speaker, to hearing from my Republican colleagues tonight about both of these issues.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GROTHMAN), who represents the Sixth Congressional District of Wisconsin.

Mr. GROTHMAN. Madam Speaker, I would like to address the Chair with regard to the upcoming infrastructure bill. I am going to talk about some numbers. I don’t mean to bore you with numbers.

When you put together a bill, you don’t want to be an outlier. I am going to address two areas in which I think this bill makes this an outlier in very, very serious ways.

The first one is, you have changes in the tax law. And when you look at the taxes that a business pays in this country, a corporation, you have to look to kind of a double taxation. They will tax you at a corporate rate when the business earns the money; and then when they distribute the money to its shareholders, you will be taxed at a dividend rate.

There is a graph here comparing all of the OECD countries around the world as to where they stand on this corporate tax. The lowest countries, the Baltic countries, Latvia and Estonia, are 20 percent.

Right now, the United States, even after the last tax cut, at 47 percent, is middle of the pack. Actually, a little bit higher than the United States. The definition of the word in the Cambridge Dictionary is: The basic system and services, such as transport and power supplies, that a country or organization uses in order to work effectively.

We all know what it really means: roads, bridges; and, in the 21st century, broadband internet would qualify.

How much of the $2.2 trillion is actually going to infrastructure? $115 billion is set aside for bridges, roads, and highways: just 5 percent. And under a more broad definition, if we include public transportation and broadband, the total grows to $465 billion, which is still just 18 percent of the new spending.

So where does the other 82 percent go?

Democrats across the country have said their definition of infrastructure includes universal pre-K, climate action, climate justice, eradicating white and corporate tax rate. That is an outlier and a dangerous place to be an outlier.

There are a lot of things that go into a decision as to where you put a manufacturing facility, but taxes is certainly one of them. And given one of our goals should be to bring manufacturing back to the country, it is a bad place to be as the highest combined corporate tax rate, plus dividends.

The next area I am going to address is the money supply. To a certain extent, because of previous bills passed during the COVID crisis, we have had a rather dramatic increase in the money supply.

I would suggest you google “M1.” You will see that, in the last 6 months, the amount of money around has gone through the roof. Some people, including me, would say M2 would be a better measurement. But even if you look at M2, we have a 27 percent increase in the money supply over the past year. That is just screaming we are going to have a lot of inflation in the very near future.

It is certainly not the only reason, but we already see the rapid increase in energy prices. This is given what we have already done.

Now, you are going to tell us—or some people are going to say that we are going to raise enough taxes to pay for this spending. But we are going to be raising enough taxes over the next 10 or 15 years. We know around here that when we say we are going to make a pay-for the next 10 or 15 years, a lot of times that pay-for never materializes.

So I am afraid we are going to have another big increase in the money supply when we have already had a 27 percent increase in the last year, and this is going to come back and cause serious concern. I beg the majority to look at a graph of the combined tax rates, us compared to the other OECD countries, and I beg them to look at the money supply and don’t make us any more of an outlier on either.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for that dire warning. I guess if you subscribe to modern monetary theory, none of this is a concern, but it is for those of us who live in the real world.

I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FALLON), who represents the Fourth Congressional District of Texas.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, the Biden infrastructure plan is another classic example of the old bait-and-switch. Much like the COVID relief bill, where only 9 percent of the $1.9 trillion price tag actually went to COVID relief, this plan has very little to do with infrastructure.

The definition of the word in the Cambridge Dictionary is: The basic system and services, such as transport and power supplies, that a country or organization uses in order to work effectively.

So we know what it really means: roads, bridges; and, in the 21st century, broadband internet would qualify.

So where does the other 82 percent go?

Democrats across the country have said their definition of infrastructure includes universal pre-K, climate action, climate justice, eradicating white people, and power supplies, that a country or organization uses in order to work effectively.

We all know what it really means: roads, bridges; and, in the 21st century, broadband internet would qualify.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. I thank the gentleman from Texas. We came here to drain the swamp, but it is really difficult during the current administration. We will get back to it soon, though. I am confident of that.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LATTA), who represents the Fifth District.

Mr. LATTA. I thank my friend for yielding and hosting tonight’s Special Order.

Quite a few of us have gone down to the border in the last several weeks, and, Madam Speaker, we do have a crisis at the border. When I say, a crisis, I mean an unmitigated crisis at the border.

We were at McAllen and going in to see the border crossing that night and the people streaming across, the Border Patrol was probably going to process over a thousand people that night. A thousand people.

The next morning, we were able to go to the Donna facility. And the Donna facility, the best way to describe it, it is a canvas building, you might say, a very nice building. It has air conditioning and all, but it was only built to hold 250 people. The day we were there, there were 3,500 people being housed there, the vast majority being kids.

We went into the pods they have. These pods are only supposed to hold 33 children. One held 42. Another had 450. And a week before there were over 600 in one.

There is a problem; it is a crisis. But it is not being seen as a crisis down at the White House. I implore the President and the Vice President to go down there and see what is happening. It is absolutely essential, because these children that are being held there, according to what they say, they are supposed to only be there for 72 hours. Some are being held for 3 weeks. One little girl was there for over 28 days. Some are being held for 3 weeks. One little girl was there for over 28 days. Some are being held for 3 weeks. One little girl was there for over 28 days.

So we do have a crisis at the border. It has got to be noted, and the President and Vice President have to know it. It is absolutely essential.

Let me just finish with this: The other thing that is happening, when you take 40 percent of our Border Patrol offline and put them into the facilities and also in processing, we have got drugs flowing across the border. Last year we had 88,000 people in this country, overdoses. That is going up exponentially.

So let’s get something done down there, Mr. President. It is essential. We have got to do it today.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. I thank my friend for that compelling eyewitness account. Anyone who is looking at the evidence cannot deny this is a problem.

I would like to yield to the gentlewoman from Arizona (Mrs. LESKO). Being from my State, she knows a whole lot about this.

Mrs. LESKO. Madam Speaker, there is a border crisis. Let’s just face it. President Biden even slipped over the weekend and said it was a crisis. Then the White House had to pull it back. When thousands of people are crossing the border each and every day, it is a humanitarian crisis, it is a health crisis, and it is a security crisis because we now know that at least a couple of the people that they caught were on the terrorist watch list.

Just yesterday, the Governor of Arizona declared a State emergency and sent the National Guard to help with law enforcement in our border communities. You know what the Customs and Border Patrol did under the Biden administration? They dropped off 16 individuals, including kids, in the middle of a park in a small community 80 miles north of the border, Gila Bend, Arizona.

They don’t have a shelter; they don’t have a hospital there. They have nothing. The mayor and his wife had to borrow a van to transport these people to a Phoenix shelter. Now, what kind of President does that?

If this happened, if these unaccompanied children were just left to be handled by a U.S. citizen, that U.S. citizen would be charged with child abuse and be in prison right now. This is unconscionable, and it needs to stop now.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. I thank the gentlewoman for that passion. She is right, she has been there, and she sees it herself.

I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. NEHLS), who represents the 22nd Congressional District, and will bring another border State perspective. He also knows a lot about law enforcement.

Mr. NEHLS. Madam Speaker, for weeks now our country has witnessed the never-ending horrific images and stories from our southern border. We have heard from Border Patrol that they don’t have enough agents to secure the southern border and babysit—yes, babysit—thousands, hundreds of thousands, of migrant children flooding across our southern border. As a result, criminal illegal aliens are slipping through undetected.

We are a nation of laws and law and order, or at least we used to be. Ever since this current administration assumed control of the White House, there has been an outright refusal—yes, refusal—to put the American people first and address the crisis at our southern border.

The administration’s inactions will cost American lives, will cost billions of taxpayer dollars, and once again put the responsibility of the Federal Government on individual States.

I was blessed with the opportunity to firsthand as a sheriff in Fort Bend County, Texas. I had to tell dozens of residents in my home county whose homes were burglarized by a ring of illegal aliens from Honduras and Colombia that many of those illegal aliens had been deported multiple times.

In January of 2020, in my office, I had to sit and tell a son whose mother was killed in a hit and run that the illegal alien that ran his mother over had been deported six—yes, six—times prior. That fellow right there.

Madam Speaker, enough is enough. End this crisis. Put the American people first and secure our southern border.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. I am so grateful for those comments and for the gentleman’s expertise. This passion that you see, Madam Speaker, is deserved. We are so concerned here that the President doesn’t share it, and that is what you are hearing echoed over and over tonight.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TAYLOR), who represents the Third District.

Mr. TAYLOR. Madam Speaker, as I walked through rows and rows of children who had just made a long and dangerous journey to Texas’ southern border, I was struck by the conditions inside this unconditioned room three times the size of the room that we are in right now, it has never been more clear to me than right there that illegal immigration benefits no one.

We witnessed the heartbreaking conditions inside these overcrowded intake sites. In the words of one facility commander, the volunteers and staff that were working there tirelessly, they were operating under a crisis level of care. There is no doubt that we are facing a humanitarian crisis, a health crisis, and a national security crisis, all of great proportions.

We didn’t get here overnight. The Biden-Harris administration made a reckless decision, choosing to overturn policies implemented by President Trump. But those policies were working, and the Biden-Harris administration had no replacement policy, no strategy, no plan to replace it.

During my visit to this facility in north Texas, I listened to the stories of cartels and coyotes advertising that they could get your children across the border over the Texas border. That is right. The cartels are advertising on television that they can get children smuggled across our southern border.

By stopping construction and the strategic importance of the border wall and rescinding the remain in Mexico policy. President Biden and Vice President Harris are sending a clear message: If you come to the United States, we will let you in.

Currently, as cartels are exploiting the administration’s irresponsible open border policies, the cartels are raking in roughly $14 million a day. That is right, you heard me correctly. $14 million a day going straight into the hands of criminals because of the recent policy decisions of the Biden administration.

If that statistic isn’t enough on its own, DHS is projecting 117,000 children this year alone. That is right, you heard me correctly. 117,000 children without their parents will arrive at the border this year alone. That is a 45 percent increase over the highest we have ever had.

Madam Speaker, this is a crisis, and this administration and Democrats in Congress need to call it just that and fix it.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. I thank the gentleman for that perspective from Texas again. So we’ve got Texas and Arizona. Madam Speaker, we are going to move a little further west, all the way west to California.

I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. GARCIA), who represents the 25th District there.

Mr. GARCIA of California. I thank Mr. JOHNSON for hosting this very important Special Order hour.

I rise today to share my concerns about our crisis at the southern border. As a first-generation American, I understand the opportunities that this Nation provides and why every human being on this planet should want to come to the United States. I am a product of the American Dream, but I also value our borders. It is about humanity. No human being here.

The first step in fixing our broken immigration system must be securing our border. In March we saw over 172,000 migrants attempt to illegally cross our border. That is a 71 percent increase from just one month.

The Biden administration continues to fail to address this crisis. This is no doubt a product of the Biden administration’s policy, but make no mistake, this is now our collective problem. It is affecting our local neighborhoods, it is affecting our governments, it is affecting those who have come here legally, who are now being cut in front of by folks who are breaking the law to come here.

Communities in border towns are stretched thin and running low on local resources as more migrants flood their communities. This isn’t just about the border. The crisis impacts all of us across America, including my district, the beautiful 25th District, where we see a rise in crime tied to illegal immigration and human trafficking. This is being aggravated by the defund the police movement.

Threats at our border is about security. It is about safety, and it is about humanity. No human being should be experiencing in their entire lifetime what hundreds of thousands of humans are experiencing right now at our own southern border.

Let me be clear. We can be a welcoming nation, but we can also be a nation that abides by its own laws and enforces them simultaneously. We need to secure the border, provide the resources to Border Patrol agents, and stop incentivizing people to come here illegally. When we do those things, we can address the rest of our problems.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. I thank the gentleman for that compelling testimony from a first-generation American. That is meaningful. We prize immigration, the legal kind. We believe in the rule of law, and that is what maintains order.

I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. CAWTHORN), the youngest Member of Congress, but he is wise beyond his years.

Mr. CAWTHORN. Madam Speaker, if Americans like what Democrats did for Baltimore, then they will love what Democrats will do for the planet.

The Biden infrastructure bill and the stimulus bill before it shows that Democrats are hell-bent in transforming our Nation’s definitions of words than they are our physical infrastructure of roads and bridges. We need to cut government waste, not create more.

And now the left wants to drag the Green New Deal through America’s back door without any regard for the wishes of millions of Americans. Make no mistake, this infrastructure proposal is a wolf in sheep’s clothing. It is a Socialist wish list disguised as a roads and bridges initiative.

This is exactly what Democrats have been doing since the day I was sworn in. They know that America is in desperate need of infrastructure reform, and they know that Republicans and Americans alike would vote for a commonsense infrastructure proposal, but have they proposed such an initiative? Absolutely not.

They will pretend that this legislation deals with infrastructure, and then they will stand on the steps of their multimillion-dollar mansions and decry any votes against their Trojan horse of a bill.

Americans are fed up. Why aren’t we passing legislation that does what it claims to be doing? Why are my colleagues on the left so excited to pretend critical race theory is the same as so-called critical race theory?

Let’s dispense with this false equivalency. Let’s build bridges, not just the physical but actual bipartisan bridges here in Congress. Why aren’t we working together on the pitifully few issues that we still happen to agree on these days?

I am wondering. My constituents are wondering. America is wondering.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank Mr. CAWTHORN for that perspective.

Madam Speaker, I will move briskly because we have a lot of Members, as you can see, who are passionate about these issues and want to weigh in tonight.

I yield to the gentleman from the First District of the great State of Alabama (Mr. CARL), who will take the podium here.

Mr. CARL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to express my concern for the unprecedented crisis at our southern border because of the Biden administration’s reckless open-border policy and failure to enforce our Nation’s immigration laws.

We are seeing thousands of illegal immigrants crossing the border every single day, and there is no sign of letting up. The President and the Vice President are nowhere to be found.

That is not leadership. We need leadership. We have a crisis at the border, and leadership, we are making a call for help, please.

The Vice President was appointed as the border czar weeks ago and has yet to take a single trip to the southern border. That is unacceptable.

We must have strong border protection for the health, safety, and security of American citizens. It is time for this administration and the far left to put America first by enforcing our immigration laws. People expect to enter the country without proper vetting.

Hiding among those massive crowds of people are drug smugglers, child traffickers, and terrorists who have no intention of positively impacting American communities.

We need to know who is coming into our country and why, for the sake of national security.
Ironically, even though Joe Biden and Kamala Harris decried this practice, children are still being packed into overcrowded detention facilities and sleeping in cages. They were outraged about this back when they were campaigning for President, but now they are actually silent on the issue.

We need to get back to the successful border security policies of the Trump administration, including construction of our border wall. I am an original co-sponsor of the Finish the Wall Act, which would resume construction of the border wall and make it more difficult for folks, especially the bad actors, to cross the southern border illegally.

House Republicans are ready to secure the border, and I am proud to join my colleagues on the floor this evening to call out the Biden administration’s ongoing inaction. If President Biden is not physically or mentally capable of addressing this problem, he should step down.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Tennessee for those bold words, and he is right. I think that expresses the sentiment of a lot of Americans.

I yield to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Gimenez), who knows a lot about immigration as well as infrastructure because he is a former fire chief and mayor and now a Member of Congress.

Mr. Gimenez. Madam Speaker, over the past several weeks, I have joined Leader McCarthy and House Homeland Security Committee Republicans on two separate trips to our southern border. What I saw on the ground is heart-breaking: countless unaccompanied minors, often very young girls, left at the hands of international cartels, many of them violated; migrants packed into cramped processing facilities; and seizures of illicit narcotics being trafficked into the United States.

Unfortunately, the Biden-Harris White House has drastically shifted from the previous administration’s policies on immigration and border security through executive order. At no point during the crafting of these executive orders were congressional Republicans consulted, nor have Republicans had a proper venue for input on plans from the White House. The result? Day by day, the crisis along our southern border is getting worse.

It is worth noting since President Biden named our Vice President, Kamala Harris, as the border czar. What have we seen so far? Zero media appearances about the border, no press conferences, no trips to the border, radio silence for the Vice President.

She said she is going to the Northern Triangle to meet with Guatemalans and Hondurans. She doesn’t need to. She can come to the southern border and talk directly to Guatemalans and Hondurans, and migrants from many other countries, while they are illegally crossing the border.

While she is at it, Vice President Harris should speak with Customs and Border Protection agents who are on the ground handling the situation instead of Federal bureaucrats sitting in their offices in Washington.

As an immigrant, I call on Vice President Harris to do her job and fix this crisis.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for speaking with such authority.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania’s Ninth District (Mr. Menges).

Mr. Menges. Madam Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Louisiana, Vice Chair Mike Johnson, for yielding.

Madam Speaker, we can all agree our nation’s transportation and infrastructure system is in need of investment to improve our quality of life and economic competitiveness. Very unfortunately, the Biden administration has thus far chosen a go-it-alone approach to solving this problem with a $2 trillion proposal, whereby less than 8 percent would go toward improving our Nation’s roads, bridges, highways, airports, ports, and waterways, traditional infrastructure.

The rest is filled with provisions that have nothing to do with traditional T&I as we all know it, including $173 billion for electric cars and car electrical ports for powering; $400 billion to expand Medicaid programs, which is not infrastructure; and hundreds of billions of dollars in unrelated legislation provisions of the Green New Deal.

As a means to pay for it, the Biden administration and Democratic leadership plan to raise taxes by over $2 trillion. At a time when our economy is in recovery, and we are supposed to be on the side of American manufacturing and repatriating jobs, bringing these companies back to America, the idea of significant tax increases is another upside-down policy and will certainly not attract businesses but only export them.

Additionally, our infrastructure plan needs to be supplemented by private capital investment. That is where accountability comes from. That is why I plan to introduce the Infrastructure Bank for America Act, which would add to existing government funding with private investment, increasing access to capital for worthy infrastructure projects that deliver on R&D and deliver value to the American people at a fraction of the cost to the taxpayer.

Contrary to the Biden infrastructure plan, IBA investments would not be restricted and would help finance surface transportation projects, grid security, broadband, and revitalization of cities and towns across America and my district.

Thus far, the Biden administration has failed to reach across the aisle in a meaningful way to accomplish anything. We should unite to fix our roads, bridges, highways, airports, and other gateways to growth and innovation, not exploit this opportunity and pass a $2 trillion liberal wish list that will raise taxes, impose Green New Deal mandates, and add trillions to our national debt.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for mentioning just one of the many Republican ideas we have. And as he said, we are not there at all.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee’s Sixth District (Mr. Rose).

Mr. Rose. Madam Speaker, I rise today to call attention to a critical need for infrastructure for all of America, and especially in my home State of Tennessee.

I believe it is past time that we build new transportation systems and structures to accommodate our modern economy and our growing workforce. I am a strong proponent of fixing our crumbling roads and bridges and expanding access to broadband internet in unserved areas.

In Tennessee, over half a million residents only have access to one internet service provider, and 274,000 Tennesseans still have no access at their place of residence. These are real infrastructure projects that desperately need our attention.

Unfortunately, President Biden’s most recent multitrillion-dollar giveaway has little to do with actual infrastructure, with only 6 percent of this bill going to projects that fund roads, bridges, or highways.

Even if we use the most expanded definition of infrastructure, which might include upgrading wastewater and drinking water systems, expanding high-speed broadband internet service to 100 percent of the Nation, modernizing the electric grid, and improving infrastructure resilience, infrastructure in this plan is only 24 percent of its total cost.

President Biden is attempting to redefine infrastructure to include all of the Democratic Party’s pet projects and extreme priorities. In this case, it means enacting Green New Deal-style programs and implementing job-killing tax hikes on Americans and their businesses.

Since this proposal has little to do with infrastructure and grossly inflates the number of jobs it would actually create, we should call this proposal what it really is, a con job.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, it is a con job, indeed.

Madam Speaker, may I inquire how much time I have remaining.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Louisiana has 32 minutes remaining.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan’s First District (Mr. Bergman), who is the highest ranked military officer ever elected to the United States Congress and also my dear friend and classmate.

Mr. Bergman. Madam Speaker, I thank Representative Johnson for yielding. It is an honor to be here on the floor with him tonight.

Our country recognizes leadership at all levels, regardless of party ideology, and I see here on the floor real leadership, committed leadership. I rise today to express deep concern for the state of our Nation’s southern border. Words matter, and it is time we start calling this situation what it really is: a crisis. In simple words, it is what it is. Don’t try to paint it in many different ways.

President Biden has invited this crisis through his words and in his executive actions, including terminating construction of the wall on our southern border. We need real leadership now. Now is not the time to be hiding. We need the leaders to step out and step up. It is time to put up and put out the political gamesmanship, put that all behind us and take a serious look at what is happening on the southern border. When I say a serious look, I mean that literally.

Vice President HARRIS, let alone President Biden, has yet to visit the border. I am charged with addressing the crisis there. The United States is and must always remain a free and welcoming Nation.

We are all immigrants. We are immigrants by generations who came here for one of two reasons, for an opportunity or fleeing persecution. That hasn’t changed.

We are also, and by all standards measured, a Nation of law and order, and our laws must be followed.

Madam Speaker, I urge Congress to take up critical legislation, such as Representative ANDY BIGGS’ Stopping Border Surges Act and Representative JEFF DUNCAN’s H.R. 88, Build up Illegal Line Defenses with Assets Lawfully Lifted Act of 2021. These bills will begin to address the root cause of our immigration issues.

In addition, bureaucratic red tape in Washington, D.C. can play a positive role, such as Department of Labor and DHS. They can help. Because when you look at those who seek to come here legally and work as guest workers, we can bring good people from around the world here through the H2B and H2A programs. They do not seek permanent status; they come here to work, and they go home. The bureaucracies can get involved to help good, legal immigration occur after you separate out the guest worker programs.

Madam Speaker, we can secure our border, protect those wishing to come here legally, and crack down on those who wish to do us harm—and I mean, crack down on those who wish to do us harm. It is time this body gets to work to address this critical issue immediately.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I rise today with serious reservations about the proposed infrastructure policies coming before this body. Every Member in Congress represents a district with infrastructure needs. Urban or rural, conservative or liberal, we all represent communities that have dire infrastructure needs we should be addressing.

That is why President Biden’s recent discussion about infrastructure, along with his commitment to expanding the definition of what counts as infrastructure, is inexcusable and it is irresponsible.

Unfortunately, none of this would come to fruition. We didn’t see a bipartisan push. We didn’t see significant input taken from Members and Senators on the other side of the aisle. We didn’t see a willingness to want to work together.

The $2 trillion plan wasn’t released after significant back-and-forth discussions. No, it was released after development by the White House and then pushed out in a media blitz.

As anticipated, the package was a partisan exercise. Just 5 percent goes to repairing roads and bridges. As the core definition of infrastructure, there is very little attention shown. Only 1 percent goes to airports. Other countries around the world continue to build state-of-the-art airports, as airports here in the United States struggle to keep up with demand. Ports and inland waterways, an issue important to me as the representative of two major seaports, is even more astounding. Just one percent of this bill goes to ports and inland waterways. Ridiculous.

Now is the time for real infrastructure investments, but this isn’t the plan Americans need.

I urge my colleagues to start from scratch and focus on the real issue here: Our Nation’s infrastructure needs.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman so much for that.

Madam Speaker, I am delighted to go back across the country again to the great State of California’s Eighth District. I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. OBERNOLTE).

Mr. OBERNOLTE. Madam Speaker, infrastructure is a bipartisan issue. We all agree that one of the primary functions of government is to provide for the people collectively what they are unable to individually provide for themselves. I am talking about things like highways and roads and dams and harbors and airports. Things that represent long-term investments in the future of our country.

Unfortunately, the infrastructure package we are currently considering only devotes 12 percent of the over $2 trillion of spending to infrastructure projects like those.

To give you some egregious examples, the proposed infrastructure package devotes substantially more money to subsidizing the purchase of electric vehicles than it does to building the roads and highways that those vehicles would drive on.

The proposed infrastructure package devotes over ten times as much money to expansion of Medicaid than it does to the construction of water infrastructure, of dams and of airports put together.

It is not to say that these other projects are without merit, but the problem is that almost every dollar of this spending contributes to our national debt. That means that we need to consider only the projects that represent a true, long-term investment in our country.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to pare this package down to the projects that accomplish exactly that.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for that California perspective.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. THOMPSON), the Republican leader of the House Agriculture Committee.

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.
Madam Speaker, I rise today to discuss the Democrat’s infrastructure bill. We have seen a lot in the news over the last few weeks about President Biden’s not-so-much infrastructure plan. There is so much unrelated pork in this bill that even Washington reporters are hesitant to call it an infrastructure plan.

When we think of the word “infrastructure,” we think roads, bridges, highways. We can expand further and think of ports, waterways, and airports. Democrats so-called infrastructure plan is not really about infrastructure—6 percent is allocated to roads, bridges, and highways, and a mere 2 percent for airways, waterways, and ports. Together, we are just barely getting to 8 percent of the $2.3 trillion plan to focus on infrastructure.

But what is the rest focused on? Well, it is a wish list of Progressive policies and it is an excuse for Democrats to give $600 billion—over half a trillion dollars—of New Deal.

While I believe there is an opportunity for bipartisanship—a successful infrastructure bill must be bipartisan—the majority must be willing to make reasonable concessions to address our reasoning. If we do not do this, it should look like a bill that we wrote together.

This bill has the chance to fix our infrastructure, provide jobs, and jumpstart our economy following COVID-19, but it will only succeed if Democrats choose to include Republicans and bring us to the table.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman. That went so well, I think we will stay in the State of Pennsylvania, going to the 12th District.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KELLER).

Mr. KELLER. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Louisiana for yielding.

Madam Speaker, improving America’s infrastructure should be bipartisan. Revitalizing our Nation’s roads and bridges, delivering broadband to rural America, and working together to build a more connected society are all things we can and should strive to accomplish.

The Biden administration’s so-called infrastructure plan is not infrastructure. It is, yet, not bipartisan. Less than 2 months removed from the last multi-trillion-dollar bill, the American people are about to be saddled with another massive tax-and-spend package—this time with a price tag of $2.3 trillion and a bag of empty promises.

With only a fraction of the $2.3 trillion going toward things like roads, bridges, waterways, dams, airports, and broadband, the majority of the plan is instead filled with non-infrastructure items.

Case in point: Joe Biden spends 74 percent more of your money on subsidies for electric vehicles than it allocates for rural broadband. It is ironic that Washington Democrats talk about improving infrastructure while simultaneously working to dismantle and eliminate American energy jobs. Make no mistake, it takes American energy to build American infrastructure.

While Washington Democrats talk about improvements to American infrastructure, they fail to recognize that Biden’s $2.3 trillion plan is not the answer. Instead, we must embrace America’s domestic energy industry, which has made significant investments in our Nation’s infrastructure than Joe Biden’s wasteful spending plans ever could.

If Joe Biden truly believes this is an infrastructure package, it is evidence that he has been in Washington, D.C., for far too long.

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, there is a common denominator tonight. The crisis at the border and the problems with the infrastructure package were both entirely created by the Biden administration.

They were both thus completely avoidable, yet completely predictable, and they have done and are doing an extraordinary disservice and real damage to the American people.

We ask, again, of all of our Democrat colleagues and President Biden and his administration, please, for the sake of our country, put the partisan-ship aside. Let’s govern with common sense, let’s fix these problems before they become so great that we are unable to do so.

Madam Speaker, we end the Special Order, and I yield back the balance of my time.

UNEMPLOYMENT BY EDUCATION LEVEL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SCHWEIKERT) for 30 minutes.

Mr. SCHWEIKERT. Madam Speaker, this going to be one of those evenings where you have a lot of things to share, but they are actually really about two subjects. And I am going to ask us to try to think about things a little differently. And as is my bad habit, I brought a number of charts to just try to get our heads around it.

Some of what I am going to share tonight—I am going to try to dial back the sarcasm, but we have got to get our heads around facts and reality.

One of the first things I want to go through is what we did employment-wise, who got hurt during this last year.

Our brothers and sisters who have sort of less-than-a-high-school education, if you see this green chart right there, this is sort of talking about the unemployment levels for those who are lower on education.

You have got to understand, this last year was absolutely crushing to our brothers and sisters who really either didn’t graduate high school or barely graduated high school. Their value that they sell in their labor. And the numbers are still just really, really high. Look at the disproportion between those of us who have bachelor's degrees or graduate degrees. We had a blip, but not much of one.

Individuals here who didn’t graduate high school, they are getting their heads kicked in, and they still are. So we are going to talk about some of the policy going around us.

And the next part is, it is beyond just unemployment. For those of us in the Joint Economic Committee, those on Ways and Means, those who actually pay attention to the numbers, the U-6, and all these things put out by the Labor Department, the real number we need to pay attention to is actually something called labor force participation.

What does it mean when someone is not in the labor force with their skill sets, age?

Their attachment to work gets broader and more difficult to react to. Their ability to climb to a supervisor or watch their pay go up gets really damaged.

And on this one, do you see this line down here?

We are right now, seeing some labor force participation by education levels. For those who didn’t finish high school, half of them aren’t in the labor force.

Do you understand what is going on right now with what we would traditionally refer to as the working poor, except they are not working?

Now, part of this is because of the absurd policies we have engaged in. What happens when you make public policy by your heart, by feelings, instead of math, instead of facts, instead of actual compassion that understands what makes someone’s life better?

We just financed keeping people out of the labor force.

Do you understand? Do we understand? As a body, do we understand what we just did to the future earning powers of those individuals that we incentivized not to be in the labor force?

And we are already seeing it.

Was the goal here to make these individuals permanently poor?

Because that is what we are accomplishing right now.

So, obviously, because the rhetoric around here, particularly from the left, is that they care about the working poor, we would be seeing public policy that actually takes care and helps the working poor, makes the value of their labor more valuable.

What is the single number one thing that crushes the labor value of the working poor?

It turns out—and we were a little surprised, but we did a bunch of research—it is when you have an open border policy, because, all of a sudden, you have those who actually—their value economically is selling their labor.

You now have decided you are going to make them compete with those coming across the border. And, on occasion, you will be back on the floor. We will hear arguments about compassion for individuals from around the world who have presented themselves at our border in Arizona. And I just desperately wonder, Where the hell is the compassion for the working poor in our own country?

Here is the math. I mean, you know, the peak pandemic unemployment rate was well over 20 percent for those who didn’t finish high school, for those who basically—their economic value is their labor. But it is worse than that. When you have an open border policy, you have basically crushed their wages. Their future wages go negative.

You know, I know we all just heard an hour of border policy and those things. Maybe I see too much of the world through sort of an economic lens, but I think that is also a fairer lens. It is not meant to be brutality right or left. It is a love and compassion for our society who were being left behind for so long. We are crushing them again.

I mean, the best math we have come up with is if you didn’t finish high school and you have a society that has moved workers, which functionally is the math you have added hundreds of thousands of new moderate-to low-skill workers.

What is the value of the skills or lack of skills of a population who are already with you?

On the chart, it goes down well over 6 percent. They are going to be paid less. We have just created more poverty not by those who have presented themselves at the border, but to our own domestic population here.

This is a type of economic cruelty. I mean, it may be a little rhetorically flamboyant, but it is a type of economic cruelty on the very population that so many of us here talk about we care, talk about we want to help. And what is going on right now to the working poor with the policy, particularly being promulgated by the left, is crushing. And this is just the open border side.

Do we understand what we have also done economically?

Say I came to you tomorrow and said, Hey, here is what we are going to do. We are going to pump stunning amounts of money into the economy, and we are going to look the other way when we start to see inflation on commodity prices, on food prices, and on a lot of the basics. A lot of our constituents are going to shrug, and say, Okay, a little bit of inflation, fine.

Has anyone also talked about what inflation does to the working poor?

The fact of the matter is, when you start to look at the actual data—if you are in the top 10 percent of income, a little bit of inflation actually makes you wealthier because you own real estate, you own assets. They become more valuable. But if you are an individual where a substantial portion of your income just goes to pay your food bill—what we have engaged in is economic policy that is substantively malpractice. We are making their lives miserable. And the solution from the left is, well, we will just subsidize them more.

So let’s talk about that. Do we understand what you have just done?

If I incentivize you by—we are going to send you a check, and then we are going to give you an additional monthly check, an enhanced unemployment benefit, and we will give you maybe some more money for this and that. None of those things incentivize you, saying, we know you need help, we are going to help you get reattached to work so you can gain skills, so you can move up in the organization, so your wages will increase. Wages are actually productivity in the society, so you are actually paying taxes into what is your Social Security and Medicare account, so you have, what is it, your 60 quarters, all of those things that are so important to raising the poor out of poverty.

Instead, we have done just the opposite. We have financially incentivized millions of Americans not to be part of the labor pool. We have incentivized millions of Americans for a year to not gain the skill sets, the labor attachment.

There are some of our economists we are talking to that say we are going to spend decades paying for this. And it is right in front of us. We all knew what we were doing. It was just easy, because creating policy says, hey, we are going to give you this to help you work through the devastation of this last year, but here is the incentive to get back in the labor pool and the market.

So when we actually have our small employers complain to us that they can’t hire anyone, yet at the same time—we go back to my previous slide about labor participation.

Here we have millions and millions and millions of Americans who aren’t working. Unemployment has been going down. It is because these folks have dropped out. They are not counted as unemployed.

We will pay a devastating societal price for doing this to so many people.

And why is this so important and why is it such a contrast to where we were in 2018, 2019, and the first quarter of 2020?

Do you understand what a miracle we were living through a couple of years there? The fact of the matter is, if you look at income and equality, which used to be the harbinger of society fairness after tax reform, as to the regulatory reform, after making labor valuable for our working poor, they got dramatically better and we lost that.

In this last year, we have basically wiped out one of the steepest curves of progress in economic history of the United States. You take a look at this chart and you start to think about the wage gains that Hispanics, African Americans, Asians were having. Their wage gains were going up much faster than Anglos.

This is what we all claim we desire. This makes a much fairer, more egalitarian society. We made the value of our brothers’ and sisters’ talents, skills, labor, much more valuable. And then now we have adopted policies that crush them. We have done everything half-ass backwards.

And you start to take a look at what happened after tax reform, regulatory reform, and many of the things we did before. It really was just stunning. One of the most interesting numbers was the value of female participation in the economy. Remember, before the pandemic, we actually had more females working than males. They had a dramatically faster wage gain. We had one year’s—actually, I think, if I do 2018, 2019, African-American females had double-digit wage gains, finally.

The rhetoric in this place for decades: We need to think and care about the working poor.

Suddenly, economic policy did something for the working poor. It just happened to be making tax policy and regulatory policy that invested in plants and equipment and technology that made those businesses more productive. Meaning—because you all remember your elementary economics class.

What are the two common factors that change your wages?

Inflation. Okay. Well, it doesn’t get you anywhere. Your wages go up just to catch up with buying the same thing with more dollars.

Productivity. Wages go up with productivity. This was a productivity curve because of what was done in tax reform. And it was the beneficiaries—they weren’t rich people. They were poor people, except it is heresy to tell the truth with the math around here.

What breaks my heart is we have come so far and we have lost it. We keep adopting policies, whether it is what is going on at the border, what we have done to subsidize people not to join the labor pool, what we have done to promote inflation. All of these things will crush the working poor.

Once again, if you take a look at just the employment groups of the population that had just amazing growth, Hispanic women and men, White men, down here, White women. It was all the groups that my brothers and sisters on the left claim they care about. In 2018, 2019, these numbers are miraculous. They aren’t little fractions. These are big deals.

So why would this body on one hand be rhetorically—that this is the population they care about, and then turn around and knife them with economic policy that will make the working poor poorer?

Is it they don’t know better? Is it they are just leading with their hearts?
and their feeling instead of some calculator math?
I do this because there is a path. We can be compassionate, but we need to understand what makes poor people less poor. What actually drives income and equality. It is not trying to make rich people less rich. The idea is to make the multitudes of poor people less poor.

And I can give you a sort of a disruptive thinker. In Ways and Means, we have had hearings and discussions of the healthcare outcome differential by populations from COVID. It is absolutely real. If you are a Native American, which I represent a couple of Tribal communities that are good friends; if you happen to be an urban minority, you have had much worse healthcare outcomes.

But if you want to be honest about what you are seeing, is that racist?
Wendy the data says no. What it says is there were precursors in those communities of health presentations that were much worse. So if you take a look at the charts—and we are working on this chart now—the early numbers are fascinating.

Take a look at an urban minority population, my diabetes, my hypertension, the still use of tobacco products, and you line that up with the bad outcomes from COVID, they almost line up exactly.

Madam Speaker, if you give a damn about poor people, minority populations—and my Native Americans who are suffering in remarkable numbers from diabetes, which actually turns out to be the key precursor for why they have had such horrible outcomes during COVID—then it is time to step up and say that we can basically do the typical vision of the left which will put in some more health clinics, because we are going to try to make your misery more tolerable, or we can do a disruption and end the misery.

It is for something like an Operation Warp Speed for diabetes. Instead of patching over the misery, let’s find a way to cure it. I understand type 1 autoimmune, type 2 lifestyle, these are just stuck somewhere decades ago that we are just going to make the misery more tolerable. My passion is let’s make it go away.

As a body and as Members, we talk about how much we love and care about the minority populations we represent, and then we are not willing to think disruptively on what ends the misery. We seem to have our heads stuck somewhere decades ago that we are doing right now where we are going to do a patchwork quilt of a couple more healthcare centers.

So, Madam Speaker, I am inordinately distressed that the Democrat policies adopted so far this year, when you lay them out, brothers and sisters who are on the sidelines, because they have been able to financially live—survive, if that is what you want to call it, and they are out of the workforce, what is their economic skill set, a year from now when the rug is pulled out from underneath them, when we go back to something semi more normal? What violence have we done to their futures?

I hope someone out there is listening and thinking about this.

One of the other things I want to walk through is: my understanding is, over the next couple weeks we will talk infrastructure, we will talk the environment, we will talk global warming, and we will talk greenhouse gasses.

Can I beg of some of the folks around here to actually read? The amount of folklore that is spewed at these microphones is just intensely frustrating.

Madam Speaker, can I give you a simple, simple example?
I have used this one before, but it is sort of the hallmark of the thought experiment.

Madam Speaker, if I came to you tomorrow and asked you: Do you care about plastic in the oceans?

Yes. Should we get rid of plastic straws in Washington, D.C., in your community? Of course.

How many plastic straws are in the ocean from North America? None.

We do an amazingly good job in our waste management, so why is there so much plastic floating in the ocean?

It doesn’t come from the U.S. straws. There are 10 rivers in the world. Nine of them are in Asia and two are in Africa that account for 90 percent of the plastic in the oceans.

Getting rid of your plastic straws is called virtue signaling. Hey, look at me, I care. Except that caring doesn’t do anything. It may make you feel better, it may give you a selfie you can put up on your social media, but it didn’t do anything.

Madam Speaker, if you actually cared about plastic in the ocean—and we have dozens of variations of this type of thing where we have folklore around the environment.

We need to start doing the math. Go to the 10 rivers—eight in Asia and two in Africa—and finance the collection of the plastic. Create the recycling. Yes, it is a type of foreign aid. Yes, it is the adoption of technology. But if you want to deal with 90 percent of the plastic in the oceans then go to where the plastic in the ocean is coming from, and it is not straws in your community. That is theater. This place rewards theater. We get campaign contributions from theater. We get behind these microphones so we can do theater.

If you actually give a darn, Madam Speaker, then do something where the math actually says it has an actual impact.

One of the other proofs—and oddly enough, we relate this to tax policy. One of the really neat things that has been happening the last several years—and this goes back to the Obama administration and the last administration—do you see this line here, Madam Speaker?

That is GDP growth. This curve coming down, particularly after tax reform where the curve dramatically steepens—we are still working on our 2019 numbers, we believe it steepens even more now—this is greenhouse gasses going into the environment.

Do you notice something, Madam Speaker?
We were growing as a society and economy, yet environmental pollutants were crashing. We believe some of this inflection had to do with tax reform, the expensing portion where a company can say, I get to deduct 100 percent of the new, cleaner, better, faster, cheaper and fundamentally sensitive equipment, and we saw massive capital expenditures where productivity went up and greenhouse gases came down.

It is a demonstration that if you get the regulatory and the tax policy right, you can grow economic growth. People can have those opportunities. It doesn’t have to be a Malthusian world where you crush people.

Some of this is new. If I came to you right now and said, hey, here is a ton of carbon, here is a ton of methane, the math is changed. So that is why a lot of the environmental calculations have changed the last couple years.

My best guess is, from the latest things I am reading, methane has about a 9-1 ratio as a greenhouse effect. But also its half-life has been cut back dramatically in some of the formulas. If you wanted to have a remarkable impact on greenhouse gases, then stop the flaring and design a way to go collect the methane where we are producing natural gas.

It turns out we now have the technology where you pull up a truck, it super chilled, compresses it, takes it away, and it is usable fuel; and it has a remarkable calculus.

We actually did a thought experiment—actually, it was more of a math experiment. I was blessed to have a Ph.D. of nuclear physics on staff, so his experiment. I was doing a thought experiment. If I could run a major pipeline through west Texas capturing methane, did you know you basically come within a fraction of hitting the Paris accords, Madam Speaker?

What I proposed that to a number of my Democrat colleagues who are my friends, they said, DAVID, I love the math. This is exciting. But you have to understand, I can’t support a pipeline, because pipelines are herey on our side.

I said, if we would basically find the tax regulatory policy to make a pipeline work like this that collects methane where you compress it and make it a usable fuel, it turns out you could get all the way to the Paris accord by a single major project.

Yes, DAVID, but you don’t understand. It is actually not about hitting the numbers. It is about surviving politically.

I am going to beg of us to start using actual math and science instead of worrying about our next campaign contribution or our feelings.

The last one on this—and when we come back, we have a stack of these. There is a revolutionary technology that is happening at this moment. Remember that curve we showed where we were having economic growth, GDP growth, yet greenhouse gases, particularly carbon, were going down for the United States? We can make that curve dramatically steeper.

This is a facility that is about to be built by Occidental Petroleum in west Texas. There has also been a remarkable improvement in the technology. MIT, about a year ago, had a major breakthrough and almost doubled the capacity of taking ambient air and pulling carbon right out of it. It is almost carbon mining out of the air.

This is a really big facility about to go in. They are going to take the carbon and shove it back into the ground. It is a negative calculator. We should be finding joy as conservatives and liberals that technology has brought us these types of opportunities.

If we get the regulatory, if we get the Tax Code, and we update our thinking to this century, we can stop arguing about greenhouse gases and how much of the economy and how many people you want to unemploy or, you know, green jobs don’t pay as much, and say: Let’s just have the disruption in the economic system that promotes the things that make our world cleaner, healthier, more prosperous.

Then, if we do things like this, maybe we end the economic violence on the working poor.

Maybe this could be a really amazing decade instead of what I see going on right now, where we are pandering to local communities. They may be passionate, but their math is really, really bad.

Madam Speaker, I think I have had far too much caffeine today. I yield back the balance of my time.

PUBLICATION OF BUDGETARY MATERIAL

STATUTORY REPORT ON CURRENT SPENDING LEVELS OF ON-BUDGET SPENDING AND REVENUES FOR FY 2021

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, April 21, 2021,

DEAR MADAM SPEAKER: To facilitate application of sections 302 and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I am transmitting an updated status report on the current levels of on-budget spending and revenues for fiscal year 2021. This status report is current through April 2, 2021. The term “current level” refers to the amounts of spending and revenues estimated for each fiscal year based on laws enacted or awaiting the President’s signature.

Table 1 compares the current levels of total budget authority, outlays, and revenues to the overall limits filed in the Congressional Record on February 25, 2021 for fiscal year 2021 and for the 10-year period of fiscal years 2021 through 2030. These comparisons are needed to implement section 311(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, which establishes a rule enforceable with a point of order against measures that would breach the budget resolution’s aggregate levels. The table does not show budget authority and outlays for years after fiscal year 2021 because appropriations for those years have not yet been completed.

Table 2 compares the current status of appropriations for fiscal year 2021 with the limits filed in the Congressional Record on February 25 for fiscal year 2021 for the Committee on Appropriations. The comparison is needed to enforce section 302(f) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. It prohibits the consideration of measures that would breach the section 302(a) allocation of new budget authority.

Table 3 compares the current levels of budget authority and outlays for legislative action completed by each authorizing committee with the limits filed in the Congressional Record on February 25 for fiscal year 2021, and for the 10-year period of fiscal years 2021 through 2030. These comparisons are needed to enforce the point of order under section 302(f) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. It is also needed to implement section 311(c), which provides an exception for committees that comply with their allocations from the point of order under section 311(a).

Table 4 displays the current level of advance appropriations in fiscal year 2021 appropriations bills. This table is needed to enforce a rule against appropriations bills containing advance appropriations that (i) are not identified in the statement of the Chairman published in the Congressional Record on May 1, 2020 or (ii) would cause the aggregate amount of such appropriations to exceed the level specified in section 203 of the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2019, as continued in effect by the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 2021.

In addition, a letter from the Congressional Budget Office is attached that summarizes and compares the budget impact of legislation enacted after the adoption of the budget resolution against the budget resolution’s aggregate in force.

If you have any questions, please contact Jennifer Wheelock or Raquel Spencer.

Sincerely,

JOHN YARMUTH,
Chairman.

Hon. John Yarmuth,
Chairman, Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: The enclosed report shows the effects of Congressional action on the fiscal year 2021 budget and is current through April 2, 2021. This report is submitted under section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act, as amended.

that cleared in the 116th Congress as previously enacted and therefore this current level letter only itemizes the legislation that cleared beginning with the 117th Congress. The Congress has cleared and the President has signed the following legislation that has significant effects on budget authority, outlays, and revenues in fiscal year 2021 for the 117th Congress:

American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 (Public Law 117-2); and

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Eternal God, we thank You for Your great blessings. Lord, we are grateful that though the arc of the moral universe is long, it bends toward justice. Continue to use our lawmakers to permit justice to roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

May our Senators trust Your prevailing providence as they realize that behind the dim unknown, You stand within the shadows, keeping watch above Your own.

Lord, be with all the families affected by the Derek Chauvin trial. Be also with the many brave men and women who faithfully serve You in law enforcement.

We pray in Your merciful Name. Amen.

communities knew a George Floyd of their own. Names of friends and colleagues who were tragically killed or suffered the brutal sting of racism sprang to their tongues. They still do.

Phladelia Castillo, Ahmad Arbery, Breonna Taylor, Trayvon Martin, Eric Garner, Donald Pinklee, Sandra Bland—names that still do not go unheeded. Names of friends and colleagues whose innocent suffering in each circumstance different, the underlying tragedy much the same. Their names, and countless others, serve as a reminder that a single verdict in a single trial will never be enough.

It is especially true that excessive force by police was never caught on iPhones or body cameras. It was out of sight and often beyond the reach of the law, which gave almost reflexive deference to police officers who were brought to trial, if they were ever brought to trial.

So this was an important event for the American justice system. Not only were the events concerning George Floyd caught on camera, but the offensive act was tried and convicted in a court of law. Let it serve as the proper deterrent—a deterrent that should have existed long ago—to the kind of egregious misconduct that led to George Floyd’s death.

However, certainly, we should not mistake a guilty verdict in this case as evidence that the persistent problem of police misconduct has been solved or that the divide between law enforcement and so many of the communities they serve has been bridged. It has not.

We must remain diligent in our efforts to bring meaningful change to police departments across the country, to reform practices and training, and to legal protections that grant too great a shield to police officers guilty of misconduct.

We also must remain diligent in striving to root out the racial bias in our society: in our healthcare system, in jobs, in housing, in the economy, in the boardroom and at the ballot box, on our streets, and in our schools.

This goes way beyond party or political faction. Racism strikes at the very core of this country. Justice—true justice—will not come until we finally banish the ancient poison of racism from the American soul.

The Senate will continue that work as we strive to ensure that George Floyd’s tragic death will not be in vain. We will not rest until the Senate passes strong legislation to end this systemic bias in law enforcement.

SCHUMER. Mr. President, now on a related subject, part of that effort, though modest, is installing committed, experienced, compassionate civil rights leaders in positions of power in the Justice Department, our Nation’s top law enforcement Agency. It just happens that today, the Senate will vote on the confirmation of Ms. Vanita Gupta to be the next Associate Attorney General.

Not only is Ms. Gupta the first woman of color to ever be nominated to the position, she is the first civil rights attorney ever to be nominated to the position—the third ranking official in the Justice Department. That is shocking, really. We never have had a former civil rights attorney serving in such a position of prominence at the Justice Department. In that sense alone, Ms. Gupta would bring a long overdue perspective to our Federal law enforcement Agency.

Just to name Ms. Gupta’s commitment to civil rights and racial equity, in her very first case after law school, she won the release of several African Americans who had been wrongfully convicted by all-White juries in Texas. Her clients later won a full pardon from Texas Governor Rick Perry.

At a time when our country needs to make strides against racial injustice, how can we not install Ms. Gupta as the third ranking official at the Department of Justice? How can our colleagues not rise to the occasion—our colleagues on the other side of the aisle—and vote for her? I am so, so troubled by the fact that they are virtual strangers unanimously against such a person who is needed so much at this time.

Yes, but, unfortunately, Ms. Gupta might be the first nominee in this Congress where the vote falls entirely down party lines. I hope it doesn’t stay that way. The desire to elevate highly qualified civil rights attorneys like Ms. Gupta should be bipartisan.

I urge my colleagues—all of them, and particularly my friends on the other side of the aisle—to vote in favor of Ms. Gupta’s nomination today.

ENDLESS FRONTIER ACT

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, on a different matter here, for nearly a century, America’s national security and economic security has been grounded in our scientific and technological superiority, often supported by smart investments by the Federal Government. But in recent years, countries like China have closed the gap with the United States. If we fail to respond, they will overtake us, with drastic consequences for our workers, businesses, allies, and partners around the world.

It is long past time for the United States to make the next wave of investments to fix dangerous weak spots in our economy and preserve our place as the world leader in science and technology, which then leads to millions of good-paying jobs here in this country.

So, today, I again stand with my friend the Republican Senator from Indiana, Senator Young, and several of my colleagues from both sides to reintroduce the Endless Frontier Act. It is a big, bold, and bipartisan initiative to propel American science and technology into the 21st century. Let me stress that last point. This bill is bipartisan.

As Senator Young and I have worked on the bill over the past several months, several Senators from both sides have been added as original cosponsors: six Democrats and six Republicans. That is because there is a bipartisan recognition that America must invest in the technologies of the future to outcompete China. Whichever nation develops new technologies first, be they democratic or authoritarian, will set the terms for their use. The stakes for personal freedoms, personal liberties, as well as for national security, economic security, and minority rights around the globe, are simply enormous.

So at the center of this legislation is a $10 billion investment in research, commercialization, and workforce training in the kinds of technology that will play an outsized role in the future—semiconductors, artificial intelligence, quantum computing, and more.

Another $10 billion would foster the development of technological hubs around the country. We want to see Silicon Valleys across the country, from my home State of New York and upstate to communities in the South, to the Midwest, to other places that rarely get the attention they merit despite the potential of their workforces, their institutions, and their links to the global economy.

Technological growth in jobs should not be limited to a few centers in America, and this bill attempts to spread it to other communities as well. It will also strengthen the critical supply chains in the United States to make the next wave of investments, to ensure America, and this bill attempts to spread it to other communities as well. It will also strengthen the critical supply chains in the United States to make the next wave of investments, to ensure America, and this bill attempts to spread it to other communities as well. The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.

BIDEN ADMINISTRATION

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, early on, a major theme of the Biden administration has been false advertising. We have the so-called COVID relief bill that broke a long bipartisan streak on pandemic response and only spent 1 percent of the money on vaccinations.

We have the reintroduction of a sprawling election takeover bill that Democrats wrote years ago under the guise that it is a commonsense voting rights bill.

We have a President who ran on protecting norms flouting with proposals to hot-wire the Senate rules and pack the Supreme Court. And then we have the latest example, where even one Ivy League expert says Democrats’ spin “does a bit of violence to the English language.” They have assembled a patchwork of leftwing social engineering programs and want to label it “infrastructure.”

Now, as I pointed out before, the first notable thing about the Biden administration’s plan is what it doesn’t focus on. Less than 6 percent of the alleged infrastructure bill would invest in roads and bridges. The total amount of funding it would direct to roads, bridges, ports, waterways, and airports combined—all together—adds up to less than what it would spend just on electric cars.

The far left sees a strong family resemblance between these proposals and their socialist Green New Deal. Yesterday, the House and Senate authors of that manifesto reintroduced it, while noting and boasting that the DNA of the Green New Deal is all over President Biden’s legislative proposals. No wonder that White House’s document rolling out the President’s bill mentioned the words “climate” and “union” more often than “roads” and “bridges.”

It would pick winners and losers in automotive manufacturing. It would force-feed the electrical grid some of the least reliable forms of energy. It would herd school cafeterias to stop using paper plates and force new standards and mandates on family homes.

And the relative pittance this proposal does allocate to actual infrastructure would have to creep through a tangled environmental review process. Without serious permitting reform, it won’t build back better; it will build back never.

But at least some of these bad ideas have a tangential relationship to the actual concept of infrastructure, not so for some other statements we have heard from actual Democrats in recent days:

Climate action is infrastructure.

Police accountability is infrastructure.

Caregiving is infrastructure.

Supreme Court expansion is infrastructure.

Now, unsurprisingly, this liberal omnibus is not exactly an efficient engine for driving our economy. The White House’s inflated claims of expected job creation have been fact-checked and received Pinocchios from the Washington Post.

Even under the rosier scholarly assumptions—the rosier assumptions—the White House’s own favored estimates, taxpayers would pay more than $800,000 for each job the plan might create. Now, I know a lot of small businesses that could create more than one job if we handed them $800,000.

And then there are the tax hikes. This proposal is a Trojan horse to roll back the historic 2017 tax reform plan that helped spur big-time wage growth and the best in a generation before COVID-19. So the administration’s proposal bears little resemblance to the bipartisan infrastructure bill Americans need and deserve. It just reads like customer service for the radical fringe.

NOMINATION OF VANITA GUPTA

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, now on another matter, over the past few months, Senate Republicans have made clear we believe a President is entitled to choose qualified, mainstream nominees to staff the executive branch and receive prompt and fair treatment from the Senate. I would say the 50 Senate Republicans have treated President Biden’s nominees considerably more fairly than Senate Democrats treated the last President’s, but the nominee we are considering this week is way outside the mainstream.

I will strongly oppose confirming Vanita Gupta to serve as Associate Attorney General, and I would urge colleagues to do the same. Ms. Gupta has spent her career, in large part, as an activist for leftwing causes. Her work for high-profile liberal interest groups and the Obama Justice Department have left a record of astounding radical positions. Those far-left positions were loud and proud until this prospect of promotion seemed to change the nominee’s tune.

Previously, this nominee stated that “states should decriminalize simple possession of all drugs.” She said “states should decriminalize simple possession of all drugs.” Ah, but now Ms. Gupta claims her position has “evolved.” At her confirmation hearing, she refused to say she would accept any—any—limitation on abortions, up to and including partial-birth. That puts her at odds with nearly 70 percent of Americans across the political spectrum.

Recently, Ms. Gupta has insisted she can be trusted to oppose efforts to defund law enforcement, but she told the Judiciary Committee just last year that State and local leaders should “heed calls” from groups demanding that they decrease—decrease—police budgets.

This nomination has revealed a lengthy trail of radical claims and hasty backtracks, but there are also questions of temperament. The nominee has repeatedly amplified leftist fearmongering toward judicial nominees and sitting Federal judges. She has levied ad hominem attacks on Members of this body. And during the confirmation process, she employed the loosest possible interpretation of her oath to deliver honest testimony, even drawing the ire of the liberal Washington Post for transparent flip-flops and misleading Senators about her own public statements.

This nominee contrasts sharply—sharply—with the resume and reputation of Attorney General Garland, whom I voted to confirm, The White House needs to make a better choice for this key post. The Senate should create that opportunity by voting no today.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, before making a comment related to Vanita Gupta, which is before the Senate, I would like to respond briefly to the minority leader Senator McConnel’s remarks.

The Senate is a venerable institution, but when it comes to defining infrastructure in the 21st century, what we are hearing from the other side of the aisle is not venerable thinking. It isn’t even old-fashioned thinking. It isn’t in tune with the times in America. It doesn’t reflect reality.

For the Republicans to argue that unless it is bricks and mortar, the government shouldn’t be involved in building it for the good of the economy and the safety of citizens and good-paying jobs really is sinking their head deep into the sand.

And I think we ought to make a record, at least for the moment, that in the last 4 years of the last Presidential administration, there were no infrastructural improvements. After all the promises of the Trump campaign and what he would bring, nothing happened—nothing. So to be lectured by the Republicans about what infrastructure is all about is to suggest to them that they missed a golden opportunity to help America, and we are not going to miss it.

To think that the Republican definition of infrastructure in America does not include the expansion of broadband coverage across this Nation—what are they thinking?—their minds are back 10 and 20 years ago.

Is broadband coverage for all Americans in every corner of this country a socialist idea to the Republicans? I think it is a commonsense idea to the people of America. They know it when their kids have laptops, and they have to sit in the parking lot of a library or next to a McDonald’s or Starbucks in order to get access. They know what that means to their child, to their student in terms of their progress. Businesses know it too.

Try to advertise some section of America without access to broadband coverage to locate a new business. It is a laughing matter, and we know it.

So when President Biden suggests that broadband is part of infrastructure in America and then he is mocked as being a socialist by the Republicans, we have a clear definition of where the party values are today.

When it comes to other basic things, the Senator from Kentucky just doesn’t empathize with what families go through to put people on the job. It isn’t just a matter of finding a good job and being qualified to fill that job. There is also a family concern—a family concern that can literally make a difference as to whether you take that job.

The Democrats believe that childcare—affordable quality childcare—is part of the equation in terms of good-paying jobs being filled by Americans, where families want to be sure their kids are safe.

Is that socialism? Is that another example of socialism for the Republicans—quality daycare, affordable for families? It is not socialism in my book. It is a family value. That is why I think the efforts of the Republicans to not support President Biden’s attempts to strengthen this economy really are antiquated and perhaps not in the best interest of this country.

Mr. President, we will be voting in a few minutes on Vanita Gupta.

Yesterday was a day that many Americans will never forget with the decision in a trial in Minnesota, carefully watched across America and around the world. The death of George Floyd was a stark moment, when one piece of videotape has been emblazoned in the minds of people in the United States and around the world.

Under the knee of Officer Chauvin, George Floyd lost his life on a street in Minneapolis. Whether there would be accountability and justice as a result was an unanswered question until yesterday, and the answer came through loud and clear. The jury spoke, and justice was served. And now we have a responsibility to move forward.

The reason I make reference to that in light of the nomination of Vanita Gupta is the fact that the path to civil rights advocacy is often difficult and, for those who try to lead, often a lonely battle.

Gupta has taken more than her fair share of criticism from the Republican side of the aisle. I sometimes find it bewildering that there is an amaz ing, outstanding, remarkable young woman is being degraded by so many Republicans when she comes to the floor for consideration by the Senate.

She has a record that is incredible. She is the right person for this job in the Department of Justice as Associate Attorney General. She is unquestionably well-qualified. She would be the first civil rights attorney and the first woman of color to be an Associate Attorney General. And, you know, I think that is at the heart of the problem as far as some Republicans are concerned.

They are just not ready for that kind of change. Well, they should be.

Anybody who has turned on the news in the last week has seen that we need police reform in this country. We need to repair the relationship between law enforcement and the communities they serve.

Vanita Gupta has a proven track record of doing just that. As head of the Justice Department’s Civil Rights Division, she led efforts to reform police departments across the Nation, and she did it in a way that brought people together: civil rights advocates, community leaders, and police and law enforcement. As a result, she has incredibly broad support.

When I hear them talk about defunding the police and how she is anti-police, how in the world do the Republicans expect?> ended up pardoning every one of these criminal defendants and authorized the payment of millions of dollars in compensation for their damages.

And so when we hear from the Republicans that she is not ready for prime time, that she is too radical, she can’t handle this job, we will all go back on her—and they have—you think to yourself: Did they ever take a minute to read what she has done with her life, time and time again?

I will tell you this: It is incredible to me that we are at this moment in history that a woman of color with an extravaciant civil rights record wants to make history in the Department of Justice, wants to continue to serve this Nation, representing our government and prosecuting cases for the American people, that she is prepared to take her experience and expertise and sit down and try to help us solve these monumental challenges we currently face and can’t get a single Republican to stand in support—not one. It is hard to imagine.

Well, as I mentioned before, she has tackled tough assignments before successfully in the cause of the name of justice. The Justice Department, her career, is all about her. The many don’t want to talk about, has been true throughout her career. She is guided by an unshakable belief in upholding the rule of law and vindicating the rights of those who are too frequent disadvantage of, marginalized, and forgotten.

To Vanita Gupta, the people who have suffered discrimination in this country matter. She has dedicated her life to that. It troubles some. It wrangles them. It makes them angry, but the fact of the matter is, she is an extraordinary, essentially amazing woman in my estimation.

She has demonstrated already what kind of leader she is, what kind of courage. Just the other day, I came down to the floor to talk about the supposed crisis of confidence in the Supreme Court that requires us to immediately add four additional Democrat-chosen Justices.

Today, I want to talk about another manufactured crisis, and that is the supposed election crisis that requires us to pass H.R. 1, a Democrat piece of legislation designed to increase Democrats’ chances of maintaining their majorities in Congress and the story changed. Now we are told that we need this bill to address profound electoral problems in our democracy—in other words, Democrats didn’t like the results of the 2016 elections.

Then, of course, last year, we had an election with record voter turnout—the highest voter turnout since 1900—an election that only needed to turn out majorities in Congress, and the story changed. Now we are told that we need to pass H.R. 1 and federalize elections because legislatures around the country are passing “voter suppression” laws.

The honest answer is she is not. She is a quality individual with remarkable credentials and a remarkable wealth of experience that she wants to continue to bring to our government. I hope the Senate will give her that opportunity.

I yield the floor.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, it is another day and another manufactured crisis. Just the other day, I came down to the floor to talk about the supposed crisis of confidence in the Supreme Court that requires us to immediately add four additional Democrat-chosen Justices.

Today, I want to talk about another manufactured crisis, and that is the supposed election crisis that requires us to pass H.R. 1, a Democrat piece of legislation designed to increase Democrats’ chances of maintaining their current tenuous hold on power.

H.R. 1 is not new legislation. Democrats introduced a nearly identical version of this bill in the last Congress as well. Back then, we were told that we needed this bill to address profound electoral problems in our democracy—
in other words, Democrats didn’t like
the results of the 2016 elections.

The honest answer is she is not. She is a quality individual with remarkable credentials and a remarkable wealth of experience that she wants to continue to bring to our government. I hope the Senate will give her that opportunity.

I yield the floor.
Democrats, of course, present voter ID laws as an attempt to suppress votes by forcing people to go through a challenging process of obtaining a government-issued ID. I have to ask if Democrats also think laws requiring ID to drive are discriminatory. It is difficult to understand how requiring identification to vote is so outrageous. The American people don’t seem to think so. Polls show that a majority of Americans support voter ID laws.

In addition to effectively eliminating State voter ID requirements, H.R. 1 also requires that States allow ballot harvesting, the controversial practice of allowing political operatives to collect and submit ballots. Needless to say, this opens up a lot of questions about voter fraud and election integrity, but the Democrats’ bill would require it.

As I mentioned, Democrats introduced an identical version of H.R. 1 in the last Congress, and—get this—the ACLU opposed it. The ACLU opposed it. That is right. The American Civil Liberties Union opposed it. Why? Because the bill would “unconstitutionally burden speech and associational rights.” Unconstitutionally burden speech and associational rights. H.R. 1 would impose a vast new array of restrictions on political speech and issue advocacy, and it would impose disclosure requirements for organizations that would open up donors to retaliation and intimidation.

I could fill up several speeches with a discussion of all the bad provisions in this bill. H.R. 1 would turn the FEC, the Federal Election Commission, into a partisan body. It would require taxpayer funding of political campaigns. Taxpayer dollars would go to fund bumper stickers and political ads. It would allow the IRS to deny tax-exempt status to organizations whose positions don’t like and organize on.

Then there is the fact that on a purely practical level, this bill would be a disaster. A recent Daily Beast article highlighted the onerous and impossible-to-meet requirements the bill imposes on conducting elections. To quote the Daily Beast, another media outlet not exactly known for its favoritism toward conservative Republicans, the bill “was written with apparently no consultation with election administrators, and it shows . . . it comes packed with deadlines and requirements election administrators cannot possibly meet without throwing their systems into chaos.”

The article goes on to say:

“The dissolution of the bill relating to voting systems . . . show remarkably little understanding of the problems the authors apply alarmingly prescriptive solutions to. Many of the recommendations for how elections administrators are literally impossible to implement.

That, again, is from the Daily Beast. Like the Democrats’ Supreme Court power grab, H.R. 1 is a solution in search of a problem. Protecting the right to vote and preserving the integrity of our election systems are essential. While we are fortunate that our election systems and large seemingly to be operating well, there are certainly measures that we can take up to further enhance election integrity. H.R. 1 is not one of those measures. This legislation is an unacceptable Federal takeover of elections that would undermine election integrity and substantially curtail First Amendment rights. Every single Member of Congress should be opposing it.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. The major oversight.

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent that the mandatory quorum call with respect to the Gupta nomination be waived.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on the nomination of Executive Calendar No. 62, Vanita Gupta, of Virginia, to be Associate Attorney General.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, as my friend the Republican leader likes to remind us, the Senate is not just a legislative body; we are also in the people’s business. One of the Senate’s core responsibilities is to provide advice and consent for the President’s nominees for a range of important jobs throughout the Federal Government. In fact, it is a constitutional duty of the Senate to perform that function.

When the President is of the opposing party, there is all but a guarantee that you will not see eye to eye with every nominee, but the process isn’t just about politics or judging nominees based on whether their opinions align with your own. As I see it, we are charged with evaluating these individuals to see if they are qualified not only to carry out the duties of their position but will also do so with honor and integrity.

Take Attorney General Merrick Garland, for example. When the Senate considered his nomination, it became clear that he had both the experience and the temperament to lead the Department of Justice. Do we agree on everything? No. But he committed to do everything in his power to keep politics out of the Department of Justice, and I have no reason to doubt his credibility.

The same could be said of the President’s nominee for Deputy Attorney General, Lisa Monaco, who previously served for 15 years at the Department of Justice. Throughout her career, she has earned the respect of folks on both sides of the aisle, and I believe she will bring a wealth of experience and institutional knowledge to the Department. So my point is, I have supported the majority of President Biden’s nominees thus far, and every single nominee has received bipartisan support at some level. But unfortunately, it looks like we are about ready to break that record of bipartisanship.

Today, the Senate will vote on the nomination of Vanita Gupta to serve as Associate Attorney General, the third highest official at the Department of Justice. Unlike previous nominees who have received bipartisan support, there is not a single person on this side of the aisle who believes that Ms. Gupta is fit for this third-in-command at the Department of Justice.

I can’t predict what the final vote will be. It will be at 2:30. But I hear nobody on this side of the aisle saying she is an exemplar of the type of person who should serve in the Department of Justice.

As I said, this is not about politics; nor are those of us who are opposed to her nomination opposed because of her gender or race. To the contrary, those are irrelevant. Instead, the lack of support for Ms. Gupta is a result of her radical record far outside the mainstream and her career as a partisan activist. In fact, she has championed radical policies basically all of her professional career.

In question, throughout the confirmation process, Ms. Gupta was asked about the long, long list of controversial, misleading, and sometimes outright false public statements that she has made in the past—her statement before the Senate before the Supreme Court last summer for example, that we should effectively defund the police; her op-ed that argued we should effectively revoke qualified immunity for law enforcement in civil lawsuits; but worst of all were her prior statements on drug policy.

In 2012, Ms. Gupta wrote in an op-ed in the Huffington Post that “States should decriminalize simple possession of all drugs.” “All drugs.” This is obviously an incredibly controversial statement and way out of step with most Americans’ views, for good reason.

What she said is, as long as they were small amounts, she would legalize heroin, fentanyl, cocaine, ecstasy, methamphetamine—she name it.

When Ms. Gupta tried to distance herself from these previous positions that are published in black and white, here is what the Washington Post Fact Checker said:

For this tango of previously unacknowledged flip-flops, Gupta earns an Upside-Down Pinocchio.

Now I have seen a one Pinocchio, two Pinocchios, three Pinocchios, even a four, but I have never seen an upside-down Pinocchio for a “tango of previously unacknowledged flip-flops.” The Fact Check examined Ms. Gupta’s confusing then and now statements on police budgets, qualified immunity, and drug policy, and that is what they found.

Now, I understand and respect the fact that people’s opinions can change over time. As we learn new information or have different experiences in life, we all understand that one’s views can change. But there is a big difference between forming a new opinion and undergoing a confirmation conversion to bury radical views on controversial subjects. After all, how could anyone support a nominee who advocated the decriminalization of all drugs, especially for the No. 3 spot at the Department of Justice? I am not sure anyone in this Chamber, Republican or Democrat, could support someone in the upper echelon of the Justice Department who argued for the legalization of heroin, fentanyl, and other dangerous street narcotics. That is why she attempted to whitewash it. She knew she couldn’t get nominated, much less confirmed, if she didn’t.

But here is what we know about drug abuse in America. This is a map of national opioid death rates in America. As you can see, they go from the dark colors, which is where the death rate is 29 to 43 per 100,000 population, to the slightly lighter range, which is 20 to 29, roughly, people per 100,000, and then the lighter ones, obviously, until you get to the lowest one, which is 3.5 to 10.9.

Every community in America has felt the pain and anguish from the opioid crisis. In 2019, there were more than 70,000 overdose deaths in America. There were 70,000 Americans who lost their lives. We are still waiting on complete figures from 2020, but preliminarily, it appears that these numbers are trending in the wrong direction. From June 2019 through May 2020, more than 81,000 Americans have died from drug overdoses.

Fighting the opioid epidemic is a cause that each and every person in this Chamber can get behind because, as you can see, each of our States has been impacted. In 2016, thanks to the hard work of a bipartisan group of Senators, we passed what became known as the CARA Act—the Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act—to help more Americans break this devastating cycle of drug use, drug abuse, and overdose, and we appropriated tens of billions of dollars to fight this scourge.

As I spoke about it, you can see, no State has been spared the pain and suffering from the opioid epidemic, but we do know some have been hit harder than others. For example, one of the States, with the darkest color, with the highest rate of overdose deaths is Ohio. And we can see here what had happened in the period, roughly, from 2009 to 2019.

From 2009 to 2019, 10 years, there were more than 33,000 drug overdoses and deaths in Ohio alone—33,000 Ohioans, each with their unique value, contribution, and story. It is an absolutely heartbreaking number of deaths that should have been prevented.

Another one of those States with the worst problems with opioids was New Hampshire. In 2013, the drug overdose deaths per capita were slightly above the national average, at 15 deaths per 100,000. In New Hampshire, in 2016, just 3 years later, the death rate increased 156 percent.

First responders across New Hampshire experienced a dramatic increase in the calls they got for overdoses so they started carrying Narcan, a medication used to reverse an overdose if you get there in time before the overdosed individual dies. They carry them in their emergency gear because these overdose calls became so common.

Another one of those States hit particularly hard is West Virginia. In 2019, West Virginia had the highest overdose deaths per capita. For every 100,000 population, more than 52 were from an overdose, double the national figure. That is 21.6 per 100,000 that went up—that is the national—and the West Virginia number is twice what you can see.

Our friend Senator CAPITO has been a tireless advocate for West Virginia families, many of whom have felt the pain of this crisis firsthand. She recently wrote an op-ed about this nominee and the contradictory and confusing statements she has made in the past, particularly on drug policy.

Senator CAPITO wrote:

It’s hard to imagine the level of devastation that we would see if all of these drugs were legalized. It would be harder to imagine that a nominee for a critical law enforcement position would hold this view.

I completely agree with our friend from West Virginia. Given the ruin that the opioid epidemic has inflicted in communities across the country, I can’t even begin to imagine how much worse it would be had the States heed ed Ms. Gupta’s call to decriminalize all drugs for personal use. If fentanyl, heroin, meth, and vaccines were legalized, how many more Americans would become addicted? How many more would have died? How many more families would suffer the loss of a child? a sibling? a parent?

I am profoundly concerned by Ms. Gupta’s prior statements on drug policy, as well as her radical statements on defunding the police, disarming the police in civil lawsuits by eliminating qualified immunity, abolishing the death penalty for the most heinous crimes, and so much more.

Worse, though, is her inability to be honest about her position on issues that would directly fall within her purview at the Department of Justice. The American people deserve to know that leaders at any government Department or Agency—but especially the Department of Justice—they deserve to know that these public servants are honest and will tell them the truth. As Ms. Gupta’s upside-down Pinocchio indicates, no Senator can have the confidence that Ms. Gupta would be honest with them or tell them the truth.

We hold hearings. We put witnesses under oath promising to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me God, and we don’t expect people will come into those hearings and lie. We ask followup questions. Perhaps there was some misunderstanding that you would like to clear up.

Believe it or not, Ms. Gupta answered a written question under oath stating that she had never advocated for the decriminalization of all drugs, even though in 2012, in an op-ed she published in the Huff Post, she did exactly that. But then, for some reason, she decided to lie about it under oath to the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee. If she would lie to us, she would lie to you. And I do have the motivation of the fact, you think she will change the way she acts or behaves or improve her standard of behavior when it comes to honesty and truthfulness. We hold these hearings and ask these questions to understand the opinions and the character and the motivation of these nominees. But based on what the Senate has learned about Vanita Gupta, I don’t believe she is fit to serve as the Associate Attorney General.

The Department of Justice, perhaps more than any other Department or Agency, must be led by men and women of honesty and integrity, people like Merrick Garland and people like Lisa Monaco who received overwhelming bipartisan votes here on the Senate. High-ranking public officials at the Department of Justice cannot be motivated by partisanship. They must pursue no other agenda other than fair and impartial justice.

In contrast, Ms. Gupta has shown she is a partisan activist with a penchant for skirting the truth. If confirmed as Associate Attorney General, I believe she has the potential to use the powerful tools at the Department of Justice to wage partisan warfare that has been part of her professional career to this point.

I cannot support her nomination, and I would urge all of my colleagues to do likewise.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority whip.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, it has been many years ago that I went to law school, and I still remember some of the cuts suffered by the teachers and certainly some of my grades. One of the most interesting courses that should have been required of every student in every law school in America basically was about this document, this Constitution, because in its simplicity, you could put her to being honest, that there is real wisdom behind the words, and applying them in real life can take twists and turns. I found one way, a quick course in constitutional law, where average people come to understand the Bill of Rights better than most, and I found this when I was practicing law in Springfield, IL.

I would get a telephone call from a parent who would say to me: Durbin, you have got to help me. They arrested my 17-year-old son for possession of marijuana. What are his rights under the Constitution? Did they give him a Miranda warning?

I started bringing things from parents coming back to me about this document, which I was surprised—surprised to hear. The point I am trying to make is this: The many years ago when I was practicing law in Springfield, IL, we were going through a learning process about drugs and addiction, and it has continued to this day. In fact, I don’t believe there is a single Senator on either side of the aisle who would say: You know, I have been here 20 years or plus, and I have never changed my views on drugs. I think some feel that way, I am not one of them.

There have been dramatic changes in the American attitude toward drugs. I think we know that, obviously. There have been changes in many States. I think I am the only Senator in my left hand who has a parent who called so many years ago—in a State where the sale and possession of marijuana and products made with marijuana is now legal and taxed.

Things have changed dramatically when in fact there are very few people who hold to the old school, which says: Simple possession of one marijuana cigarette, and we are going to put you in jail and throw away the key.

No, it has changed a lot. In fact, it has changed in Washington so much so that there was a bill called the FIRST STEP Act. The FIRST STEP Act was a bill that I worked on with Senator Grassley and Senator Lee and Senator Booker today, that basically said: We are changing our attitude toward drugs. Simple possession of a small amount of drugs will not require a mandatory minimum sentence because we have seen the terrible outcome otherwise.

We put that bill together on a bipartisan basis, and President Donald Trump signed the bill into law. He not only signed it but came before us in the State of the Union Address and was proud of the fact that he had changed and perhaps some feel that way.

So when I hear the arguments made on the floor that perhaps some nominee coming before us may have changed her or his opinion on drugs as, say, America has, by and large, think about what has happened with this opioid crisis now than it is no longer just an—I say ‘just,’ underlined—an inner-city crime but a crime that affects families who live in wealthy suburbs. We now are looking at addiction so differently.

So let’s go to this issue of Vanita Gupta and her positions on drugs. In questions for the record, Senator Cornyn, the senior Senator from Texas, asked Vanita Gupta what research, books, studies, and other material did you rely on before concluding that “all drugs should be legal”?

Gupta said that she has never said that all drugs should be legal and completely decriminalized.

In his floor speech last week, Senator CORNYN claimed 15 times that Gupta had lied in response to this question. Senator CORNYN helped purportedly showing that Gupta had denied ever making a 2012 statement in favor of decriminalizing the simple possession of small amounts of drugs. The Senator said: If you publish an op-ed saying the sky is blue and now you say the sky is blue, don’t tell us you never thought the sky was purple.

Senator CORNYN’s claim, I am afraid, is false. Vanita Gupta was completely honest and forthright. Cornyn’s poster shows a picture of Gupta with words, and applying them in real life that there is real wisdom behind the words.

dishonest,” and “mainly notable for the magnitude of lies and distortions it crams into 30 seconds.”

And listen to the response and the source. The executive director of the National Fraternal Order of Police, Jim B数据中心, testified this morning that Gupta wanted to defend the police—do you know what he called it?—“partisan demagoguery.” And yet we still hear it on the floor of the Senate as if it is gospel truth.

The Fraternal Order of Police supports Vanita Gupta’s nomination to this position in the Department of Justice, and they aren’t the only ones. Virtually every major law enforcement group supports Vanita Gupta. You wouldn’t know that, would you, when you hear on the floor that she wants to legalize all drugs and take the money away from police. Those simplistic statements belie the truth and the fact that these organizations support her.

The Republicans, starting with Senator Ted Cruz, and Republican colleagues, at the moment, will not acknowledge the obvious. These are hard-nosed organizations that don’t give their endorsement out easily, and they weren’t fooled by Vanita Gupta. They know Vanita Gupta.

In a letter to the Senate endorsing Gupta’s nomination, the president of the Major County Sheriffs’ Association of America—that is a pretty hard-nosed group. Here is what they wrote: “During our meetings, Ms. Gupta emphasized that she does not support efforts to defund the police.” They addressed it directly. They didn’t beat around the bush. You don’t expect them to; do you?

During her tenure at the Justice Department, Vanita Gupta worked closely for law enforcement, which is why the Senate has received numerous letters of support for her nomination from law enforcement groups. I can go through those letters one by one, but there is a lot more that people need to know. I can’t imagine Vanita Gupta, fresh out of law school, heading down to this town of Texas and tackling this. How about that for your first assignment? Most new lawyers are stuck in a library looking up footnotes and cases. She didn’t waste any time but to go down there.

The reason I raise that is, at this moment today, not even 24 hours after the verdict in the trial in Minneapolis, we are about to need people just like her who have the courage to stand up for civil rights, against what seem to be insurmountable odds, to bring back this Nation of ours—Black and White and Brown—together in moving forward.

I don’t believe she should be discredited, dishonored by what is said on the floor of the Senate. She should be praised for her courage and determination.

She went on to serve in the Department of Justice as the head of the Civil Rights Division. She took that responsibility, and that is not an easy assignment. Many times, that division is called on to deal with police departments and law enforcement and to tell them the bad news that sometimes they had done things that are just plain wrong and unacceptable. She did it. She did it with class, with integrity, and the same law enforcement organizations have endorsed her.

The Republicans who criticize her and they have come to the floor and called her a “radical cultural warrior”—“radical cultural warrior.” Recently, she was just called on the floor “a clear-and-present danger.” I find it hard to imagine that anyone could read or know of any section of what she did in this book and describe her as a “radical cultural warrior.”

She brought justice to a situation where few people could have done it and will not treaties people just roll. She is an extraordinary person. She is a courageous person. She is a person of integrity and honesty and dedication to public service. I am happy to support her nomination.

I will yield for a question.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I yield for a question.

Mr. CORNYN. This is the quote from the article that Vanita Gupta wrote on November 4, 2012. It says: “States should decriminalize simple possession of all drugs, particularly marijuana, and for small amounts of other drugs.”
And then in her sworn testimony, in response to written questions, she said: “I have never advocated for the decriminalization of all drugs, and I do not support the decriminalization of all drugs.”

In 2012, support for the decriminalization of all drugs; in 2021, “I have never” supported “the decriminalization of all drugs.”

I wonder if my colleague—I just simply can’t reconcile those two statements, both given under oath to the Judiciary Committee.

Can you reconcile those statements? Mr. DURBIN. Thank you, Senator.

I will reconcile it in the words of Vanita Gupta: “In 2012, I coauthored an article that advocated for states to decriminalize and defelonize simple possession of all drugs, particularly marijuana, and for small amounts of other drugs.”

How much more clarity do you need? Now do I know that we live by our words. And many times, even as Senators, people find statements and speeches that we have made and come back and challenge us. And I would just say, her statement is not only clear, it is a mainstream statement. To argue that this woman is for legalizing all drugs, as someone has suggested, is ridiculous. She has never said that, and she had made it clear what her position is, and it is a position which most Americans share.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I would ask the Senator to yield for one last question.

We can all understand how people’s views change over time, but there is no way to reconcile these two statements, 2012 and 2021, which is the reason I believe that Ms. Gupta, for some reason lost to me, decided to tell the Senate Judiciary Committee two inherently conflicting statements under oath.

She could have gotten out of it the easy way and said: “Well, I made a mistake” or “I forgot” or “My views changed over time.” I would have accepted that. But to come back on questions for the record and to state something that is 180 degrees opposed to her views in 2012—I have not heard her. I have not heard the distinguished majority whip, I have not heard anybody be able to reconcile those two statements.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I reclaim my time, if the Senator is finished.

So do you believe that the Fraternal Order of Police thinks that she wants to decriminalize and legalize all drugs? Do you think the county sheriffs association believes that? Do you think they ever would have endorsed her nomination if they believed that for 1 minute?

They don’t. I don’t. Her words are clear.

The Senator from New Jersey had a question.

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, I appreciate that. I want to acknowledge my speaking time was far earlier. I am supposed to be presiding right now, but I did not want to get between. I am but a mouse in the U.S. Senate, as a junior person. Those are two elephant titans over there.

Mr. DURBIN. Let me stipulate, Mr. President, I have very, large mouse.

Mr. BOOKER. I appreciate the indulgence of the Presiding Officer. I wanted to just give general remarks about Vanita Gupta, but I would love to weigh in and may enjoyable exactly where Senator DURBIN left off.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I will tell you what, let me end my remarks, then, and just say to the Senator from New Jersey, I am here to listen to him carefully and briefing this extraordinary woman is presenting her credentials for approval by the U.S. Senate at exactly the right moment in history.

We need in the Department of Justice, Vanita Gupta, who has given a lifetime of courageous service in the pursuit of justice and in the pursuit of civil rights.

Is there a lesson from Minnesota that we should bring to the floor of the Senate? It is the fact that we need people like her who can communicate effectively with law enforcement and civil rights groups and resolve our differences, more at this moment in history than ever.

If you can still remember that verdict—and I will remember it for a long, long time, as others will—when you cast your vote on the Senate floor today, vote for Vanita Gupta to be part of this Department of Justice team.

At this moment in American history, never have we needed a person with her qualifications more than at this moment.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, I appreciate Senator DURBIN quickly wrapping up his remarks and indulging me. I had some prepared remarks, but I want to break away from them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. BOOKER. Mr. President, thank you very much for the recognition.

I think—I am not sure, but I think I am the only Senator here who lives in a low-income, Black and Brown community in the U.S. Senate. I live in a beautiful neighborhood in the beautiful Central Ward of Newark, NJ.

I don’t mistake wealth with worth. In fact, I went off to get a fancy education, I mean my B.A. from Stanford, but I got my Ph.D. on the streets of Newark, learning from some of the most incredible people I have ever encountered in my life.

If there is one lesson that I have learned early in my days in the 1990s, living in the Central Ward of Newark at the height of the drug war, it is that this War on Drugs was not a War on Drugs; it was a war on people—and not all people but certain people. It was a war on poor people. It was a war on Black people.

And it was destroying lives. People were getting criminal convictions for doing things that two of the last four Presidents admitted to doing—simple possession, getting criminal convictions for it.

And here is what is even more anguishing at a time in the opioid addiction epidemic we have. There is the same page that people who are addicted deserve to have treatment. Back in those days, churned into the criminal justice system were African Americans, for simple possession, who were in desperate need of compassion and could and love and treatment.

And this gets me to Vanita Gupta. I watched the two statements that my friend and colleague from Texas put up, there—screaming—the difference between those two statements: I don’t support the legalization of all drugs, but I do support the decriminalization of small amounts of drugs and getting people help and not a lifetime scarlet letter of being a convicted criminal.

She does not support the decriminalization of all drugs. I am glad to see that she is looking at the challenge that we have in this country of arresting people who need help.

And my friend Senator DURBIN, with great patience and not relying on raising his voice like I do, was a gentleman, said it simply: Vanita Gupta is not a partisan. She is a patriot.

Look at her career. I mean, my mom used to tell me: Who you are speaks so loudly I can’t hear what you say. In other words, judge a person by what they have done in their life, how they have lived, where they have sacrificed, what commitments they have made.

You chart Vanita’s career, from her activism in law school to defend the Constitution, from her very first assignment as a lawyer in Texas defending an outrage of injustice—and winning. Where are the people lining up to criticize her in those days working in her nonprofit work?

And then, for the great high salaries of Department of Justice workers, she goes to lead the Civil Rights Division. Are there people coming forward from their experiences? Are there police officers, are there police agencies, are there police groups coming forward to say: When she had that high and vaunted position in the Department of Justice, did she do something that so showed her partisanship?

Not one. In fact, quite the contrary to her group after her organization is coming forward and saying: She is not a partisan; she is a patriot. I stand by her. She is not a Democrat or a Republican; she is an honest broker, a fair actor who pursues justice and civil rights.

She has conservatives who are partisans supporting her. I mean, that is the thing that gets me. We see partisan appointees all the time in here, but here is a woman who actually got people—Mark Holden from the Koch brothers organization is supporting her.

So I understand that maybe people are taking words and twisting them. There is not a Member of this body who hasn’t had that experience, when the intention, the good will, the honesty behind the words is distorted and twisted by millions of dollars from outside organizations that somehow want to destroy this woman.

I know Vanita Gupta. She is not just somebody I have a professional relationship with. I confess to the floor of the U.S. Senate, she has been my friend for years. I had occasion to talk to her dad, not during this time when she was nominated—months ago.

God—it terrifies me related about her, the pride that beamed through the telephone about her, about how he came from India with $8 in his pocket, with an immigrant’s dream, and now he gets to see his daughters living lives of service, and how his children were wired this way, to so appreciate this Nation as immigrants, to know that this Nation was formed around the highest ideals of humanity, and to see his two daughters pursuing the cause of our making this a perfect Union around the ideals of liberty and justice. That is Vanita Gupta’s life.

I have had private conversations with her for years about these issues that now are under way. And she is not some radical partisan. She has a heart and a compassion for human beings that, to me, inspires my actions.

And this is what hurts the most because somehow I have seen it in our society, even a woman stands up and is strong and defiantly dedicated to ideals that are not made real in reality, they are attacked again and again and again. I have seen it in my own party between Presidential candidates. The treatment that the public and the press gives one who is the woman is far different than the same standards they put to the man.

And then—God bless America—there is something about women of color that we simply get the violent and outrageous attacks. I have seen it through my culture’s history. They hunted Harriet Tubman. They despoiled Sojourner Truth. They belittled Rosa Parks.

There seems to be something about strength, something about talent, something about being willing to tell the truth that generates something, that tries to relegate Black women and women of color to be hidden figures in history. I see it in every element of our country—even in the medical profession, for God’s sake. Even when you control for income and education, Black women giving birth, their pain is not attended to; they are underestimated for the struggles they are in; and they die four times more often than White women.

So with this woman I have known for years, I have seen her in private and public. I have seen her go to work with Republicans, join arm in arm with them in bettering our country. I have seen her serve from her twenties and thirties. I have seen her be, in every step of her career, committed to our country, sacrifice for it.

Here we stand on the Senate floor. And I tell you, on the day after the verdict of George Floyd, where I saw other patriots tell the truth on the stand, police officers break with the waves of history, the streams and currents, to tell the truth, this is a moment that I have to tell.

This is a good American, a great American, honest, committed, who has sacrificed for her country. And in a time of injustice still, who our jails and our prisons are filled with people who deserves to be there; the ones who are free, have one out of every four incarcerated people and, get this, one of out of every three incarcerated women on the planet Earth in our jails and prisons—where almost 90 percent of them are survivors of sexual assault—this is the time we need more compassion; this is the time we need more empathy; this is the time we need more civic grace toward one another.

And Vanita embodies that. She stands up without filter of her being. Her career echoes with that spirit. Should we confirm her to this position, I promise you here on the Senate floor before the flag of my country, she will do this Nation proud, committed. She will represent her community for that purpose. She will never be distracted by the partisan games going on in the Capitol. She will be committed to the higher calling.

I ask my colleagues to step back for a moment, for a moment whom she is, who police organizations say she is, who prominent conservatives say she is, to see the person her dad says she is and elevate this incredible person, this incredible woman of color, to a position that desperately—to a nation that desperately needs this kind of leader.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I didn’t have the floor to speak to this nominee who is before us this afternoon, but following the very impassioned comments by my colleagues, in fairness, on both sides of the aisle and recognizing the vote that I just took about an hour ago to advance Vanita Gupta to this position, I will take just a moment to explain where I am coming from and why I will be supporting her final confirmation in just an hour.

I have looked at her record. I have had a recent meeting with her. I am impressed with not only her professional credentials but really the level of experience, but more to the comments that we just heard on the floor, the passion that she carries with her in the work that she performs.

I think it is fair to say we will all agree her confirmation has been very challenged. She has had significant back-and-forth in committee. She has been elevated with very strong rhetorical words in favor and, equally, words of condemnation.

I asked her point blank: Why do you want this? Is this worth it? Because this has been, clearly, very hard on her as a nominee. She paused and reflected a moment and just spoke to how she feels called to serve in a very personal way that I thought was impactful.

We had a long discussion about some of the issues that I care deeply about in her State as they relate to justice, access to justice, public safety, and the real tragedy that we face when it comes to women, primarily our Native women, who experience rates of domestic violence and sexual assault that are shocking, disturbing, and wrong. Despite all the resources that we have, we have not been able to turn the corner as we have needed to in confronting what I believe is a true scourge.

It is going to take more than resources. Jurisdictionally, it is very complicated in Alaska. We don’t have reservations. We don’t have similar law enforcement presence in many parts of the State that you might have in the lower 48.

We have a great deal of work to do as a State. But as we discussed these issues, I felt that I was speaking to a woman who had not only committed a professional life to try to get to the root of these injustices, but not just direct a little bit of money, put a program in place, walk away, and call it a day, but to truly try to make a difference.

So there are some statements that she has made in some other areas that, in fairness, I find troubling and concerning, and part of my job will be to ensure that she understands clearly how this translates into issues in my State and with our particular issues. But I am going to give the benefit of the doubt to a woman who I believe has demonstrated through her professional career to be deeply, deeply committed to matters of justice. So I will be casting my vote in support of her in about an hour here.

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I came to the floor today to talk about something that has been top of my mind for a period of time, and I wanted to bring it to Members’ attention today because of some recent articles of late as it relates to national security and global competitiveness, particularly as they relate to domestic resource development.

And quite since the beginning of this administration, I have spoken out in concern at the direction that I have seen the new administration take with regard to energy security and how that relates to Alaska. I have spoken out length about my opposition to several of these Executive orders that were very early on relating to leasing and permitting moratoria in my State. In fact, there were eight specific orders that were directed to one State and to one State only. That was a pretty hard hit for Alaska.

In other areas, I don’t believe that additional Federal lands and waters in Alaska should be placed off-limits. We already as a State hold more public lands than any other State, and by considerable degree. I don’t believe our public land order removal process should be paused.

This was an announcement that just came out the Interior last week. They say they might be pausing it, but effectively, it could be delayed or abandoned not just for these next 2 years going forward but permanently. What this effectively does is it creates almost a facto wilderness. If you will pause because you have placed land in a limbo, in a purgatory for decades. Nobody can do anything with it as these PLOs, these public land orders remain in place.

I note—no great secret around here—like most Alaskans, I strongly support our resource development industry and the men and the women who work within it. They are my friends. They are my neighbors. I fish with them. I recognize the importance and the value of what they do on a daily work. We have seen this in the Senate and for a long time to ensure that the industry’s continued centrality is allowed to prosper, not only because of them, the people I know, but because of what it means for our economy, our State’s budget, our prosperity, and also for our environment.

After years of lagging behind, the United States has come to a better place on energy in recent years. We have seen some domestic production rises. We have seen our emissions falling. We have created jobs. We have generated revenues. We have changed the world geopolitically even as we have lessened our impact on the climate. But these kinds of gains can’t be taken for granted. They can’t be actively ignored. They certainly should not be discarded.

We have to acknowledge that this energy renewal has not been even across the nation. Our largest—we import more from Canada than anywhere else, and they have greater capacity to help us out here so that we don’t have to take it from Russia. But, instead, we haven’t been able to develop production in the United States to fill in that gap because of pipeline capacity. So what happens is, we are sending more of our money to Russia at a time when we are not on very good terms with Russia. Need we say elections? Need we say SolarWinds? Need we say what we are seeing from Putin?

This is what is happening: We are sending more of our dollars to Russia, and they are sending us more of the resources that we could produce here at home and we should support them from some friendlier nations.

U.S. crude oil production fell from an average high of 12.2 million barrels per day in 2019 to an average of 11.3 million in 2020. According to the Energy Information Administration, this loss in domestic production will return the United States to being a net petroleum importer in 2021 and 2022. By all accounts, a sizable chunk of this will come from Russia.

What is going to happen is, we are going to move from this position where we have been in these past few years where we have had some real energy security here because we have been producing, and we have been producing to the point that we have been able to even supply to our friends and allies. But now, with policies that are taking us in a different direction and still knowing that we need the resource, we are turning to Russia.

This is what really galls me so much: In 2020, the United States imported 536,000 barrels of oil per day from Russia. In Alaska—we recognize Alaska is a great producing State. Despite our immense potential and desire to bring it to market, in 2020, we were producing an average of 448,000 barrels per day.

It just begs the question: Is what we really want? Is this what we really want, for Russia to account for much of America’s energy needs? We both have similar environments, both big, but oil production goes on in areas that are tough to produce in. I will hold Alaska’s environmental record over that of Russia any day—in fact, the countries and even most States any day.

One article put it this way. They said: “America’s increasing reliance on Russian oil is at odds with U.S. energy diplomacy.”

Let’s kind of put it in context. The position that we have taken with Nord Stream 2—basically what we have said is that we are asking those in Europe who need Russia’s gas—we are saying we need to be tough on this. We need to talk about policy toward Russia, and to the Nord Stream 2—we are saying we need to step up our imports from Russia on oil.

I do recognize that this discussion on Russia and how Russia has supplemented Venezuelan crude—I recognize that most of the oil that is being imported is heavy and that this is a situation with our gulf coast refineries that are specifically geared for that. I do recognize that they have fewer options right now, but I do think this is a conversation that we need to be talking about. We just can’t sit back and say: Well, this is just the way it is.

Congress and the administration need to be taking the steps necessary to ensure that we in this country have a strong, stable supply of domestic energy to meet our current demand, our future demand, and also as the world continues to flex their muscles when it comes to energy exports in order to achieve their goals.

So we have been saying on Nord Stream 2: Europe, you guys, don’t go there. Yet we have to look at ourselves here because we are telling Europe “Limit your reliance on Russia for gas.” We have to do this ourselves.

The President has just recently imposed tougher sanctions on Russia, as he absolutely should, but I think we need to be eyes wide open here, folks, in terms of what it means when we need that resource.

I do recognize that much of this discussion on Russia and how Russia has supplemented Venezuelan crude—I recognize that most of the oil that is being imported is heavy and that this is a situation with our gulf coast refineries that are specifically geared for that. I do recognize that they have fewer options right now, but I do think this is a conversation that we need to be talking about. We just can’t sit back and say: Well, this is just the way it is.

Congress and the administration need to be taking the steps necessary to ensure that we in this country have a strong, stable supply of domestic energy to meet our current demand, our future demand, and also as the world continues to flex their muscles when it comes to energy exports in order to achieve their goals.

The least that we can do here at home is to support our own responsible production from States like Alaska, so that we have our supply—our own supply—and can provide a diversified commercial alternative.

Moving from oil and gas briefly here, Alaska is also ready to help in another increasingly crucial area and that is with mineral development. Our history of tectonic events has created a geological environment that fosters deposits of a wide variety of minerals that are critical to both our current and our future economies.

Back in June, the Department of the Interior designated 35 “critical” minerals based on their importance to our economy and security, as well as their susceptibility to supply and disruption. These minerals are essential for everything. They can be found in batteries, solar power, missiles, rockets, cell phones—everything. Our military is certainly aware of this. They recognize the vulnerable position that we are in. Our manufacturers recognize the vulnerability. These are products that we use on a daily basis.

Right now, the United States is import-reliant on 31 of the 35 minerals designated as “critical.” We have relatively no domestic production. We rely on imports to meet our demand for 14 of these. And, of course, most of where we are importing these materials are from China. That is not OK. That shouldn’t be acceptable to us. I think we all should agree on the need to restock domestic mineral supply chains. There has been good, positive conversation about what we can do.

I feel this is one of those areas that is a growing vulnerability. It used to be that we would talk about our vulnerability on the Middle East for our oil, and then policies changed and we reduced our reliance on that. That is why I am anxious. I am concerned about what I am seeing translate going forward. But I think we need to be, again, with eyes wide open when it comes to our mineral dependence and our reliance on these important materials for what we need to be a strong nation.

I think this is a pressing and long-term security threat that we face in this situation. I have seen it played out in light of the COVID pandemic. We have seen the vulnerability of international supply chains. I thought it was great. It was so important that the administration really focused in on this. The new administration is focusing on this in a good way, and I appreciate that.

When President Biden released the first part of his infrastructure proposal, focusing on international domestic supply chains, there was a lot of talk there about electric vehicles. In the White House fact sheet, it says the plan “will enable automakers to spur domestic supply chains from raw materials to parts, retool factories to compete globally, and support American workers to make batteries and EVs.”

This is the type of policy that we should all want to get behind, broadened out to every industry, not just to a select few. But the question here, though, is: whether the administration is willing to accept what is going to be necessary in order to achieve this goal to have these secure supply chains, especially when it comes to expanding our domestic supply of raw materials. It is going to require approval of mining projects, and that has been a challenge for us. That has been a challenge for everyone.

This is where I go to another article that came up a few weeks back. This is from Reuters. It appears to me that rather than looking within our own borders, the administration is looking beyond. In this article from Reuters, it states that the United States looks to Canada for minerals to build electric vehicles. It provides:

The U.S. Government is working to help American miners and battery makers expand into Canada, part of a strategy to boost regional production of minerals used to make electric vehicles and counter Chinese competitors. It goes on further to talk about the different ways that the Department of Commerce is discussing with many how we can boost Canadian production of EV materials. It goes on further to say:

But Washington is increasingly viewing Canada as a kind of “51st State” for mineral supply purposes. I am a big fan of Canada. They are our neighbor, but if we are going to be adding Canada as a 51st State to help us with our minerals and access to minerals, let’s not forget the 49th State, because Alaska has good, strong resources. Where we seem to have problems is in gaining access, whether it is in the permitting process or just the ability to move forward with some of our mineral potential.

Again, I am suggesting that we shouldn’t be looking to our friends to build these alliances, particularly with our neighbors directly to the north and to the south. This is good. I am not suggesting: Let’s not be talking to Canada. That is an important part of how we really work to build these secure supply chains. All I am suggesting is that we here in America need to also look to the strong natural assets.

There are some—again, the issue of mining in this country sometimes can be a controversial one. I am going to suggest to folks that if we really want to do more to build out not only our national security but if we want to build out our clean, diverse energy infrastructure, moving toward the President’s vision of greater renewable opportunities, which I want to do, let’s acknowledge that we are going to need these minerals. We don’t really have a choice here.

The World Bank recently released a report looking at “The Mineral Intensity of the Clean Energy Transition.” They found that “large relative increases in demand for nearly 500 percent are estimated for certain minerals, especially those concentrated in energy storage technologies, such as lithium, graphite, and cobalt.” The report also found that “even with large increases in recycling—including, say, 100 percent of end life recycling is achieved—there is still likely to be strong demand for primary minerals.”

I have kind of taken that—actually, it is not something new. In the beginning of the 116th Congress, I prepared a white paper. We called it “The American and Global”—well, what we called it was a pretty cool title. It is a great little publication that should have gotten more notice, but like a good wine, it comes with time: “With Powers So Disposed,” America and the Global Strategic Energy Competition.”

I outline in this a strategic energy initiative designed to sharpen and direct our tools of energy related to economic statecraft and to enhance the geopolitical position of the country.

From that or as a jump-off from that, I am introducing my Strategic Energy and Minerals Initiative Act, which we call the SEMI Act. This legislation will enable U.S. companies to better compete in global markets, and it promotes the responsible domestic production of our oil, gas, and minerals. I think these are initiatives that are good for us to be doing critically at this time, as we move forward with this administration’s priorities on not only how we can build infrastructure—build it better, build it cleaner, build it with a renewable future—but we have to recognize as we build things, we need base elements.

Know that Alaska is ready, willing, and able to play a role on all of these fronts. We have tremendous stores of... resources, but equal to those tremendous stores of resources is the responsibility that I believe Alaskans feel to be good stewards as we access those resources to allow for a level of sustainability, whether it is with our fisheries or with those who own the subsistence, the livelihoods of those who rely on the food and animals on the land. We believe that we can contribute to our national security and our global competitiveness, while at the same time working to protect the environment, but what we need is a chance to be able to do that.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Booker). The Senator from Iowa.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Ms. ERNST. Mr. President, when you hear the word “infrastructure,” what comes to mind? For folks across Iowa, it is roads; it is bridges, locks and dams, ports, waterways, and broadband. But according to the Biden administration, infrastructure is now a buzzword that encompasses just about every item on the progressive wish list. As a result, the President’s infrastructure proposal takes a very sharp left turn by including everything from elements of the socialist Green New Deal to high-speed rail on American workers.

Some of my Democratic colleagues are even urging the President to include a pathway to citizenship for millions of undocumented immigrants in the infrastructure package. How do we make the wall on our southern border infrastructure?

Probably to no one’s surprise, once again, the Senate majority leader is plotting to pass the bill in a totally partisan process. Folks, we really need to pump the brakes. The Democrats are steering us the wrong way on this issue. Infrastructure is an issue that has always enjoyed broad bipartisan support in Congress.

We may disagree on how much to spend or how to pay for the costs, but we all agree that maintaining and improving our roads, bridges, ports, and waterways is one of the most important roles of the Federal Government’s. There is no reason to drive us apart on such an important issue that typically brings us together and impacts all of our States.

But President Biden is on a one-way street to more gridlock. Only about 5 to 6 percent of the $2.2 trillion of the Biden proposal is dedicated to roads and bridges. The Biden plan spends less fixing potholes and repairing roads than it does on promoting electric vehicles and perks for the coastal elites who drive them, and you had better believe that this could have a devastating impact on Iowa’s ethanol and biodiesel industries, which support our States’ local economies. Even the liberal Washington Post is taking issue with the Biden administration’s claim that 19 million jobs will be created by the proposal. The real number is less than 3 million. Each job created by this so-called American Jobs Act will cost our taxpayers $865,000, and because American workers will bear the brunt of the higher taxes in the Biden plan, that will mean lower wages. These costs are sure to give taxpayers road rage.

There is no reason to take this radical left turn. Last Congress, the Democrats and the Republicans on the Senate’s Environment and Public Works Committee, which I serve on, worked together to unanimously pass important infrastructure bill to help fix our roadways. This highway bill provides us with a great starting point to move us forward in the right direction—toward a bipartisan infrastructure plan. This 5-year, $287 billion bill was the largest highway bill in history, and it was supported by Senators from across the political spectrum who represented States from Vermont and New York to Alabama, Mississippi, and, of course, Iowa.

In hailing from a very rural part of Iowa, I am all for looking at ways to invest in broadband expansion, to support our roadways, and to make sure we have the right infrastructure in place to help those of us living in Iowa and in the Midwest. Those are true infrastructure needs and are the ones that I believe would get strong bipartisan support in a 50-50 Senate, but by throwing in progressive policy wish list items and non-infrastructure-related provisions, the Biden plan is headed down a dead-end street.

The President needs to do a U-turn and start working with the Republicans on a bipartisan roadmap for America. By putting aside the partisan pet projects—projects like the Honolulu High-Capacity Transit Corridor Project—and picking up where we left off, with the unanimously bipartisan highway bill, we can steer the infrastructure bill into the passing lane under the Senate’s regular order. So, folks, let’s come together and literally start building some bipartisan bridges.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. President, I want to talk also about infrastructure and associate myself with the interest that the country has in infrastructure.

In fact, our plan, that the government has done the longest has been roads and bridges and canals. I think, initially, the term “internal improvements” was in the early 19th century, what they would have talked about when they talked about what we began to talk about later as “infrastructure.” During almost the entire history of the country, there was an understanding of what “infrastructure” meant in America.

Infrastructure is a very popular, and infrastructure is definitely something that you generally can’t do for yourself. You can’t, on your own, provide the waterline that connects your house to the next house. On your own, you can’t provide the road that gets you from home to work. On your own, you can’t do a lot of things that we did early on and up until right now and call them infrastructure. Normally, they were seen as things like roads and bridges and dams—big projects that sometimes crossed State lines—or big projects that sometimes were just too big for a State or a town to handle, like water systems that needed to be improved.

I don’t think we did that—and I will talk later about the way we did that—the bipartisan agreement also largely led to figuring out ways that infrastructure would pay for itself, in that the people who used the infrastructure would pay for the infrastructure, and we looked at that in a number of different ways.

Now, in the package that the administration has proposed, the $2.3 trillion package, there are lots of things in the package that I don’t think the Senate should debate or I don’t even rule out of hand that the country might want to do. Yet I think they are not infrastructure, and the funding way to get to them makes it harder to get the kind of commitment I think that, I think, we could have in an infrastructure bill. The Republicans are for it, and the Democrats are for it in the House, in the Senate. Let’s talk about how to get there.

Let’s also make the point, of the $233 billion in this plan that is for Green New Deal building makeovers, there may be a place to do that, and it is something that we could clearly debate, but it is not the same thing as infrastructure. I was, at one time, the chairman of the Missouri Housing Development Commission. We did a lot of things to make it possible for people to have houses or for people to have buildings that they could have an opportunity to be a part of, but we never really called it infrastructure, and we did it in a different way.

On surface transportation, generally, for decades, that was paid by the highway trust fund. How did you fund the highway trust fund? You funded the highway trust fund by people pulling up to service stations and putting fuel in their cars, and when they did that, they paid into the highway trust fund.

The more miles you drove, the more they paid into the highway trust fund. You could get service breakdowns, street light failures, and Americans thought that was fair. We haven’t raised the highway gas tax since 1993, and that could very well be a debate we should have as part of an infrastructure package. If not the gas tax, what other kind of user fee could there be? Lots of people use the highways, the roads, the bridges, and the Interstate Highway System who don’t pay a gas tax now because they are transitioning to vehicles like electric vehicles that don’t fill up at that gas pump.

That is a debate I think we should have as part of an infrastructure debate. Just last year, it was predicted that the highway trust fund would run out of money before the year was over, and it did. Because we collect less money every year than we spend every year, we decided to subsidize that out of general revenue, but nobody in that debate thought that it should be the permanent solution.

For other kinds of projects, we look for ways to help the end user make a project possible both in urban communities and rural communities. There are programs in which you can replace your water system or your stormwater system with something that works and price it appropriately. What we have done there is say: Well, we are going to figure out how we can either guarantee your bonds or write down your loans or both so that the users in those systems over, maybe, 30 years would pay back in amounts they could afford—what happened when you turned the lead water pipe into an appropriate water pipe. I am in favor of replacing every lead water pipe in America, but I think you can do that in a way that the users of those systems pay for those systems just like all of their neighbors in neighboring communities are paying for their systems. We could help them do that, perhaps, where some have proven we can help them do that.

We could also create an infrastructure bank. Senator WARNER and I have worked on that for years. I think we are going to reintroduce the REPAIR Act, which would create a bipartisan, non-partisan financing authority whereby the government guarantees a certain amount of that money, and maybe government assistance in putting together a public-private partnership creates another way that a little bit of Federal money creates a lot more infrastructure activity.

You could look at these and other issues like asset recycling, where the government leases or sells some existing public assets to private companies, and use the proceeds of that to fund new projects. In Australia, they used that system to help pay for an expansion of subway systems and other things. In fact, the Federal Government would encourage local governments to privatize one of their local government assets that had customers. Then they would take that money, maybe, and build sidewalks that don’t have customers, and the water systems that would have customers in the future who would have helped to build the sidewalks as it would be managed by a private company, but all of those private companies would be regulated in a way that people who would be customers would know they were protected.

We have had a lot of bipartisan infrastructure bills over the last decades and more than decades. Infrastructure bills are not new to America. Figuring out how you have an infrastructure bill that meets the definition of “infrastructure” and a system where the infrastructure goes as far as it possibly can to pay for itself by those people who use it has always involved Republicans and Democrats reaching an agreement. I don’t know that there has ever been a bipartisan infrastructure bill. It has always involved reaching agreement on what would be in the bill and reaching agreement on finding ways to pay for it.

New definitions can really confuse ideas that the American people think they understand. People are for infrastructure. They think that is something the government should do. They can pass a test on what they believe infrastructure means if they have ever watched an infrastructure debate before. Let’s find a way that we can move forward in a bipartisan way with an infrastructure bill that meets the standards of doing everything we can to be sure the system is fairly paid for by the people who use it and can afford to pay for it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Rosen). The Senator from Wyoming.

Mrs. LUMMIS. Madam President, I rise to echo and augment the remarks of the gentleman from Missouri and to call on President Biden and the Democrats in Congress to work with the Republicans on a bipartisan, non-partisan infrastructure bill. As the only Senator in the Senate to have joined the Senate, and everyone agrees that we have real infrastructure and transportation needs that must be addressed. The American Society of Civil Engineers recently gave our roads a D-minus rating, noting our $786 billion backlog on roads and bridges’ capital needs. They gave our bridges a C-minus rating and a repair tab of $27 billion. We also need to take another look at how we fund our highway system. Right now, we have a highway trust fund that we can’t actually trust. Since 2008, we have been relying on general fund transfers to pay for our roads and bridges instead of fixing our user fee model to keep the trust fund solvent. User fees give users the benefit of seeing where their money is going, and they allow those people deriving benefit from the system to give the most in support. This is a very fair, American way of doing things, and the certainty we get from a functioning user fee model is important for rural States, like my home State of Wyoming.

While much divides Congress these days, infrastructure, as that term is understood by most Americans, is a bipartisan issue. As such, one would assume that President Biden would want to find some common ground in order to build relationships, work with businesses and address the needs of every citizen. So it is perplexing that President Biden, who campaigned on bringing our Nation together, is now pushing a blatantly partisan infrastructure bill.

Let me show you why partisanship is unnecessary in the infrastructure space. I recently helped my Democratic colleagues on the Environment and Public Works Committee develop a bipartisan water and wastewater infrastructure bill out of committee with unanimous support. This is clear evidence that Democrats and Republicans can come together on infrastructure issues when they put the country above politics, and I have been working with the EPW Committee, under the leadership of my fellow Senator from Wyoming, JOHN BARRASSO, unanimously passed a bipartisan 5-year highway funding bill. This would be a great place to start for any infrastructure bill in Congress.

But this barely scratches the surface of bipartisan infrastructure legislation. Honestly, I am hard-pressed to remember a time when infrastructure was not bipartisan. The American Water Infrastructure Act of 2018? Bipartisan. The Water Infrastructure Improvements for the Nation Act of 2016? Bipartisan. The Highway Transportation Funding Act of 2015? Bipartisan. The Fixing America’s Surface Transportation Act of 2015? Bipartisan. The Water Resources Development Act of 2014? Bipartisan. This isn’t even a full decade of congressional action, and all of these things happened in partisan environments, yet Americans were united on a host of issues. But despite our divisions, we have always come together to address American infrastructure. In 2021, this should be no different.

If President Biden wants to truly unite the Nation, he can start by working with Republicans on the most basic bipartisan issues, and he might be surprised which Members of Congress are there to join him.

I will use myself as an example. I have opposed many of President Biden’s actions to date, but I support his decision to bring our troops home from Afghanistan, and I am doing so publicly. I have also supported several of President Biden’s nominees, including Secretary Buttigieg.

I can promise President Biden that if he comes in good faith to work with Republicans and Democrats on a bipartisan infrastructure bill, I will be there to work with him every step of the way. I know my colleagues feel the same. All we are asking is for the “unity” President to come to the table.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CRAMER. Madam President, I am pleased to have joined my Republican colleagues on the Floor today. I agree with all of their comments, especially the speech just delivered by my friend from Wyoming, and demonstrate my strong support for a significant investment in America’s infrastructure.

You know, as my colleagues have said, infrastructure has been one of the most bipartisan policy areas in Congress over the decades, and rightfully so, I mean, we are obligated to provide for the national infrastructure.

As the lead Republican on the EPW Subcommittee on Transportation and Infrastructure, I am committed to doing my part. I am confident we can accomplish this on a national level and in a strong bipartisan fashion.

As has been said, 2 years ago, under the leadership of Chairman Barrasso, EPW unanimously passed America’s Transportation Infrastructure Act. It was the most substantial highway bill yet in our history. It authorized hundreds of billions of Federal dollars to maintain and repair America’s roads and bridges, and it made reasonable regulatory changes—very important regulatory changes—so that projects wouldn’t get derailed by endless bureaucracy.

It also maintained the current formula for deciding how States will receive their Federal funds. This funding formula ensures that States with small populations but expansive road systems, like North Dakota and Wyoming and Oklahoma, receive sufficient resources to update their roads and bridges, whereas States like ours that feed and fuel the country. So not only does the traditional funding formula protect the interests of rural America, it protects all of America.

The movement of goods and services in support of our economy and the consumers cannot reserve a few thousand miles here and there of interstate for gravel. Interstate commerce requires a transportation system that is safe and sufficient for every mile. The pavement can’t end in Minneapolis and get picked up in Seattle. For food to get to your table requires thousands of miles of safe, reliable roads, bridges, rails, and waterways.

My State of North Dakota is literally the center of the North American continent and is a top producer of dozens of crops and other food items. For example, we are the very top producer—by a lot, by a lot—a lot—of durum. Durum is the wheat that is ground into semolina flour, which is the main ingredient in pasta. So if you love cooking spaghetti in your kitchen or ordering penne at your favorite restaurant, you have to get the durum off the field in North Dakota to the elevator, where a train or a truck will pick it up and take it to the mill, where it will be ground into semolina before getting on another truck or train to the pasta plants, then to the grocery warehouse in another State, where it catches a ride to a distribution company or a retailer before it gets put into a pot of boiling water on its way to your plate in your Manhattan apartment or your favorite Los Angeles restaurant.

That is why we included the formula in the last highway bill when I was in the House. It is why we kept it in the highway bill at the committee level last Congress. And there is every good reason why we ought to include it now.

Under the leadership of Chairman Carper and Ranking Member Capito, EPW has had two hearings reiterating the importance of investing in America and dealing with the solvency of the highway trust fund.

It was disheartening to read a news story earlier this week and see how many of my colleagues are urging the President to not work with Republicans and to go it alone on infrastructure. One even said he was worried that Republicans would “never show up.” Well, here we are. We have shown up. Like Chairman Barrasso just last week, I believe we should go big. We should aim high. This is a tremendous opportunity to pass a major bill that will benefit our country as a whole and the States we represent. We cannot let one of the most bipartisan policy areas in Washington get derailed now because a narrow majority in the Senate decided to pursue a partisan, shortsighted goal instead.

I am committed to advancing an infrastructure package that is bold, bipartisan, and meets the demands of the moment, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. Lankford. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the PRESIDING OFFICER. I yield the floor.

Mr. Barrasso. Madam President, we have a major infrastructure proposal. In fact, it was done. In every direction that you look—whether it is airlines or whether it is trains, you see an infrastructure; we have had multiple. I remind people around my State that every time you are driving around my State and you see an orange construction zone and a flashing sign, that is a previous infrastructure bill that was done. In every direction that you go in my State, you are going to see infrastructure that is already happening and working because working on infrastructure is a common part of what we do.

Republicans have stepped to the table and have said: Let’s work on infrastructure together. In fact, it was interesting—President Trump overweighted and over again talked about working on infrastructure and tried to be able to get a major infrastructure proposal.

Our definition of “infrastructure,” though, doesn’t include school lunch trays. We would like to work on highways. This particular package that the White House has sent us, we have just raised our hands and said: We have a few questions before you want to be able to move this forward.

This particular proposal spends $174 billion for electric vehicles but only $115 billion for the highways that they will drive on. We just believe we need to spend more on highways. We don’t mind incentivizing electric vehicles, but quite frankly, there are a lot of incentives out there already.

Every Tesla that you pull up next to, when you turn over and see them at a stoplight, you should ask for your turn to drive because every one of those with Tesla vehicles, the Federal taxpayers also kicked in $7,800 in Federal tax subsidies for that beautiful $60,000 automobile that someone else is driving.

There have been tax incentives that have been out there for electric vehicles; we just believe we need to spend more on actually dealing with our roads and bridges because they have major problems.

So let’s actually talk about this, and let’s work on infrastructure together, but let’s actually work on what is truly infrastructure.

I yield the floor.
Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I come to the floor today to associate myself with the remarks from the Senator from Oklahoma.

We are two Republicans who believe in free markets, and so do the American people. The Democrats, on the other hand, are running a 100-yard dash towards socialism. They have decided to redistribute America’s wealth. President Biden has made a call this “spreading the wealth around.” Democrats are taking the weight of our Nation and they are gathering it up in Washington, DC, and deciding then how they want to spend it.

In March, President Biden signed a big payoff to the people who run the Democratic Party—the union bosses, the DC bureaucrats, and bankrupt blue States. He said it was a coronavirus relief bill. Yet only 9 percent of the money was for healthcare. Just weeks later, President Biden came back again, now requesting $2.7 trillion under the name of “infrastructure.” When you read through it, it looks like once again he is trying to spread the wealth around, gathering it not for what we consider traditional infrastructure—roads, bridges, ports, highways, airports, waterways, all of those things, dams, reservoirs, you name it. It seems that once again it is going for the Democratic elites. It looks to me to be a slush fund for liberal spending, going to union bosses, climate activists, and the Silicon Valley contributors to the party.

Where is the money coming from? The last bill went on the credit card. The next one is coming out of the wallets of the American people. President Biden is proposing the largest tax increase in a generation. Working families and small businesses are going to be on the hook. They will put the American worker at a disadvantage.

Look, there hasn’t been a proposed tax increase of this size in this century. It is going to affect everyone in this country, and it is going to be a rude awakening for the many small businesses that are finally reopening after living the past year with the coronavirus pandemic. Now, in addition to the struggle they have been through, they are going to be hit with a big tax increase. Now, in addition to the struggles they have been through, they are going to be hit with a big tax increase.

Now, I know who is going to end up footing the bill for the President’s tax hikes. He may say that it is just corporatons. The American people are going to be hit with this tax increase. You can call it a tax hike on corporations and absolutely just rich cheta back onto the people who work for those businesses and who buy the products of those businesses.

President Biden is going to try to spin it another way, but the highest costs of all of this is going to be borne by American families.

Higher taxes, of course, mean fewer jobs. One estimate says that the bill is going to kill a million jobs. These aren’t CEO jobs. These are middle-class jobs. These are the jobs of hard-working families in my state of Wyoming and in States all around the country.

Prices across the country are already going up. President Biden. The cost of energy went up 9 percent just last month. Gasoline prices are up over 50-cents a gallon since President Biden took office and started his Executive orders attacking American energy. If this bill is enacted and it is proposed now under the name of infrastructure becomes law, well, we will know that the price increases are just beginning. Because of President Biden, more wealth is about to be taken from places all across middle America and certainly in my home State of Wyoming. It will be sent to the Democrat elites in Manhattan and Silicon Valley and, of course, here in Washington, DC.

Democrats are focused on redistributing our wealth. They want to take it from working families and give it to their liberal donors. It is a bad law. It is bad economics. And I urge my colleagues to stand for jobs, for higher wages, and for the working men and women of our Nation, who know what infrastructure means and the kind of infrastructure they need for their communities.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam President, I join my colleagues today to address the ongoing discussions taking place in Congress among the executive branch and in communities across the country about the state of our Nation’s infrastructure and how to improve it to propel our economy forward and enhance the quality of life in Arkansas and every State.

As a member of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, I understand the need for infrastructure investment. I have been a constant advocate for water resources development, surface transportation investments, and the expansion of rural broadband.

President Biden recently released a plan that claims to rebuild America, claims to rebuild its crumbling infrastructure. While I agree that infrastructure investment must be a top priority, I have serious concerns about this plan. In fact, the President should look to the successful example of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee as a starting point for this critical bill. There are a number of bipartisan infrastructure-related bills in the Senate which have been thoroughly vetted and are ready to be passed. Instead, the administration is trying to reinvent the wheel.

My advice to President Biden is simple. The path to achieve long-term infrastructure improvement is through bipartisanship. Just weeks ago, the Environment and Public Works Committee unanimously passed the Drinking Water and Waste Water Act.

Last Congress, the Committee unanimously passed America’s Transportation Infrastructure Act to provide resources and long-term certainty for States and local governments to build safer and more modern highways, railroads, and bridges.

These bills are just two examples of the good work the Senate has been doing to invest in our Nation’s crumbling infrastructure. I am pleased to hear this Chamber may begin consideration of the Drinking Water and Waste Water Infrastructure Act this month.

Unlike the House of Representatives and the Biden administration, which continue to undermine bipartisanship by developing and advancing a progressive policy agenda, the Senate has been working in a bipartisan manner to find solutions for our transportation challenges.

If President Biden is listening, my message to him is this: Work smarter, not harder. There is no reason we need to have trillions at the bottom of the barrel. The Senate EPW Committee has done the work which can and should be the basis for any infrastructure proposal.

I have always said that if you take the “E” out of EPW, we actually get a lot done in our committee. For a good example of the type of cooperation that can be achieved, look no further than the work of Senator INHOFE and former Senator Boxer. These two colleagues had literally built their committee from the ground up. They agreed on the importance of infrastructure investment, and they were able to usher major legislation through Congress through a collaborative and deliberative process.

The same is true for Chairman CARPER and Ranking Member CAPITO. While these two have ideological differences, they have demonstrated their ability to work together to create a bipartisan product.

I look forward to working with the Biden administration on infrastructure to update basic public services, such as safe roads and bridges. With innovative financing and private sector investment, we will be creating jobs and keeping commodity prices low while remaining competitive in the global marketplace. However, we will not tolerate a partisan process where only one side gets to offer input with the end result being a liberal wish list of projects and priorities that have nothing to do with infrastructure investment.

Infrastructure is about as ripe as any area that we have to actually get something done of a major nature in a bipartisan, cooperative way.

I am back in Arkansas almost every week, and I can tell you what Arkansans want. They want us to be able to disagree while also being able to create a good commonsense policy. A bipartisan infrastructure bill is a way to demonstrate the President’s willingness to work across the aisle. I am ready to create a path forward to update and modernize our Nation’s infrastructure needs as well as make wise injections in our water systems, energy grids, and broadband deployment, where there is bipartisan agreement on the urgent need to act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. MARSHALL. Madam President, simply stated, President Biden's so-called infrastructure plan helps China and hurts hard-working Americans. Let me say it again. This bill helps China—will be the hard-working Americans. Let me say it again. This bill helps China and hurts hard-working Americans. Let me say it again. This bill helps China and hurts hard-working Americans. Less than 5 percent—that is how much of this $2 trillion infrastructure proposal actually goes toward building roads and bridges in the United States. Instead, this partisan proposal is loaded with Green New Deal pet projects and an abundance of spending that stretches far beyond recognition of what hard-working Americans define as infrastructure.

This is not the first time we have seen attempts to redefine the traditional meaning of words. In recent weeks, the White House has also moved to change how people perceive bipartisanship in Congress. No longer do our colleagues across the aisle need to secure Republican votes in order to succeed. It is now a so-called "bipartisan" bill. One obscure poll with cleverly worded questions that helps to garner bipartisan support from the respondents will do the trick. It is a manipulation of words that would allow President Biden to try to run of this radical agenda and sell it to the American people as fulfilling his campaign promise of unity.

President Lincoln once said: "You can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time."

The American people won't be duped by Washington doublespeak. I hosted five townhalls this past weekend, and Kansans have their eyes open to what is in this bill. Kansans understand that while this bill provides $115 billion for roads and bridges, more than half of over $2 trillion is devoted to green energy projects and the elimination of fossil fuels.

Among these green provisions is $170 billion for electric car chargers and tax incentives for purchasing electric cars. It also calls for electrifying one-fifth of the Nation's school buses and all 650,000 of the Service's delivery trucks, which will result in driving up costs to Americans.

When unveiling this infrastructure plan, President Biden mentioned China six times as he attempted to sell it as a way to compete with China. However, this rapid jump to electric vehicles does the opposite and will benefit China more than many hard-working Americans. That is because China leads the world in manufacturing 80 percent of the materials needed for batteries and will continue to do so. Of the 136 lithium-ion battery plants in the pipeline between now and 2029, 101 are based in China.

China mines 64 percent of the world's silicon and makes 80 percent of the world's polysilicon with coal-generated electricity—the key component to solar panels. This bill will serve as a boon for China while decimating our domestic oil and gas industry, which has helped us to reach our goal of energy independence in 2019.

This bill will harm our general economic output by taking $2 trillion out of the private sector. We should really be calling this package the "grab your wallet and get into line" bill.

The legislation calls for the largest corporate tax increase in decades and will put the tax burden on American companies toward the top of the developed world list. This will make American companies less competitive in the global market. It is a recipe to kill the economy at a time when our Nation is still recovering from COVID. It will also negatively impact our economy in the long-term.

According to projections from the Penn Wharton Budget Model, as a result of this partisan legislation, overall GDP will be decreased 0.9 percent lower in 2031 and 0.8 percent lower in 2050. Hourly wages would be down by 0.7 percent in 2031 and 0.6 percent in 2050.

Perhaps what is most disappointing is that this bill demonstrates that gone are the days when infrastructure packages were an opportunity to build bipartisan bridges. Thanks to Republicans' control of the Senate and reaching across the aisle, the two most recent bills governing spending on roads and bridges both passed with overwhelming bipartisan support before they were signed into law.

So in case there is still an opportunity for bipartisanship, let me tell you what I am for. I am for a package that, No. 1, reaches across the aisle and rebuilds our aging roads and bridges; next, incentivizes innovation, invests in high-speed internet for all Americans, and reforms our permitting process so that when we say "shovel-ready," we really mean shovel-ready, as opposed to going through years of permitting and driving up the cost of the project.

Look, pre-COVID, we had the strongest economy in my lifetime, thanks to Republican-led policies put in place over the last 4 years. Lower taxes and deregulation resulted in historically low unemployment rates as well as energy independence and affordable energy costs. We need to get back to these policies and not continue the onslaught of harmful redtape, proposed tax increases, and unprecedented spending spreep.

The future of our children and grandchildren depends on it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority whip.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I would guess if the American people could give us a word of advice in the Senate, they would suggest that we do our best to work together and to try to establish priorities and meet them, and that we try to bring to the new administration of President Joseph Biden the most competent and qualified people that we can to help our Nation through this pandemic and our economic recovery in that I close the debate on Vanita Gupta to be the next Associate Attorney General of the United States.

Yesterday's verdict in Minnesota certainly caught the attention of many in America and across the world. The killing of George Floyd was resolved in a court of law. Sadly, he will not be with us, but his legacy lives on, and it depends on us to use that legacy to make America a better nation.

Can we really come together and put law enforcement at the table with community leaders and civil rights leaders and find common ground?

Can we keep our streets and communities and neighborhoods safe and do it without discrimination against any person or group in the world?

These are big challenges—tough challenges. But to meet them, we need the right people in positions of leadership. Vanita Gupta is one of those people.

As a former civil rights advocate, she did extraordinary things—in Tulsa, TX, and many other places—to show progress in the area of civil rights.

As a former acting Assistant Attorney General in charge of civil rights, she worked with law enforcement organizations to try to resolve the very problems that we have seen in Minnesota and Illinois and virtually in every other State. She is a dedicated professional with an extraordinary resume who wants to continue to serve this Nation.

Will she be able to work with law enforcement groups? Well, they think so because they support her. There is a long litany: National Sheriffs' Association, Major County Sheriffs of America, International Association of Chiefs of Police, Major Cities Chiefs, 53 former police chiefs, the Police Executive Research Forum, the Federal Law Enforcement Officers Association. The list goes on and on.

But the simplest statement that was made comes from a pretty hard-nosed group, the Fraternal Order of Police, and those who are in politics know you have to work to earn their support. Here is what they said about Vanita Gupta: "Gupta always worked with us to find common ground, even when that seemed impossible."

Isn't that exactly what we want at this moment in American history as we cope with the civil rights challenges of our age? This is our chance. I hope the Senate, with its vote—I hope it is a bipartisan vote—will give Vanita Gupta the chance to serve America again.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All postcloture time is expired.
MOTION TO DISCHARGE

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, pursuant to S. Res. 27, the Committee on Armed Services being tied on the question of reporting, I move to discharge the Committee on Armed Services from further consideration of the nomination of Colin Hackett Kahl, of California, to be Under Secretary of Defense for Policy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the provisions of S. Res. 27, there will now be up to 4 hours of debate on the motion, equally divided between the two leaders or their designees, with no motions, points of order, or amendments in order.

Mr. SCHUMER. I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally divided during the quorum call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally divided during the quorum call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, I move to discharge from further consideration of the nomination of Colin Hackett Kahl for Under Secretary of Defense for Policy.

Mr. INHOFE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The senior Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. SCHUMER. Let my start by urging my colleagues in the Senate to vote against the motion to discharge from the Senate Armed Services Committee the nomination of Colin Kahl for Under Secretary of Defense for Policy. This is not a decision I take lightly. I have always felt that any new administration should have his team or her team, and I have generally been very supportive. When President Biden nominated Dr. Kahl for this position, my expectation was that if confirmed, he and I would often disagree on policy, but we would actually get along together; we could coexist together. I quickly learned that this would really be impossible with Dr. Kahl. I don’t think I have ever said that about any nominee for any position that I can recall.

My Republican colleagues in the Senate Armed Services Committee—all 12 of them—reached the same conclusion. We opposed his nomination unanimously. That is why we are faced with this vote today.

I also want to clear up a common misunderstanding. Republicans on the committee did not vote against Dr. Kahl simply because we disagreed with his policy views. That is not the case. It is the position policy of the Pentagon. This should be obvious to anyone who paid attention to the confirmation of President Biden’s nominees for Secretary of Defense and Deputy Secretary of Defense so fast. We got through both of them quickly. I don’t remember a time when any new administration got the two very significant positions of Secretary of Defense and Deputy Secretary of Defense so fast. We got them in record time. There are some things that we disagree with policywise, but we supported their confirmation, as did most of my Republican colleagues, for one reason: They were eminently qualified. I am talking about the Secretary of Defense and the Deputy Secretary. Both of them were eminently qualified, with long track records of bipartisan cooperation and strong professional judgment, I have dealt with both of them for many years, and I have generally been very supportive.

In fact, we expedited the nomination to give the President his national security team just about as quickly as we could. Republicans may disagree with him, but we can work with them very well.

Unfortunately, the same cannot be said of Colin Kahl. The national security problems we face are wicked and complex. We wrestle with them constantly on this committee. If the Senate Armed Services Committee was ever bipartisan, that was coexisting. I was chairing that committee with Ranking Member Jack Reed. We got along famously. We got things done that other people couldn’t get done.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has always been bipartisan. We have disagreements, of course, but Republicans and Democrats on the committee have a legacy of consensus. National security and taking care of our troops are bipartisan concerns. This is how we succeeded in passing the National Defense Authorization Act.

The National Defense Authorization Act is the largest bill every year. It is the one where it sets out the guidelines for the coming year, and it is the one where we always have gotten along. We passed it every year for 60 consecutive years. It shows and demonstrates very clearly how well we get along.

The Department of Defense needs a nominee with bipartisan credibility. You have to keep in mind this position is the No. 3 position in the Pentagon. It represents our shared bipartisan vision of effective national security and healthy civil-military relations.

This position demands a nominee who can carry out the President’s policies while engaging those who disagree in good faith. That isn’t the case with this nominee. That is why we are faced with this vote today.

Mr. SCHUMER. The nomination was confirmed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Hyde-Smith). The majority leader.

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, first I just want to say, before I move on a motion to discharge, it is really so good to have Vanita Gupta now installed as Associate Attorney General. To have someone with such a background in civil rights at this time in American history is so important and so vital to the country.

I am so glad that the Senate has now approved her and she can do her vital job, including dealing with the systemic bias we have seen in policing and in law enforcement throughout the country. So it is very good news for the forces of equality and justice in the country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. SCHUMER. Madam President, I ask that the motion to reconsider be made and laid upon the table with no intervening action or debate and that the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
Good and kind people can disagree with each other. They don’t have to resort to name-calling and accusations of war crimes.

That is not an isolated example, as we discovered during our review of Dr. Kahl’s writings and public statements. He often embraces conspiracy theories. For example, he alleged a “Kushner-Kremlin quid pro quo” referring to the President’s son-in-law. And when given the opportunity to correct this type of conspiracy theory during his confirmation hearing, he refused to do so. He stood by those statements.

Dr. Kahl also has a long history of claiming every policy decision with which he disagrees will lead to war. Thankfully, he has never been right.

Dr. Kahl predicted that President Trump’s decision to withdraw from the Iran deal would lead to war. It didn’t. He said by sanctioning Iran’s Foreign Minister, President Trump was boxing “himself into war.” There was no war. It didn’t happen.

At one point, Dr. Kahl suggested that President Trump might “start a war with Iran for political diversionary purposes.” This is a ridiculous claim. Obviously, it didn’t happen.

According to Dr. Kahl, the strike on Iranian terrorist leader Soleimani, the appointment of John Bolton as National Security Advisor, and the events of the Korean Peninsula, among others, were going to lead to war. And none of the wars happened.

His public declarations and policy judgment are consistently partisan and consistently wrong. The Under Secretary of Defense for Policy serves as the Defense Secretary’s top national security advisor. It requires a leader with sound judgment and even temperament, and Colin Kahl simply doesn’t possess either one of these qualities.

Even worse, Dr. Kahl has a long track record of aligning people whom he disagrees with. I mentioned the Syrian example earlier. He also said that the Republican Party has a “death cult” fealty to Trump. That is seriously what he said.

The bare minimum for the Defense Department’s top policy position is good judgment and even temperament. Dr. Kahl lacks both of these qualifications. It would set a terrible precedent if we confirmed someone like him for the job.

I have a history of working so well with people on both sides, which is why I can and have supported many nominees whose policy views differ from mine. That goes with the job.

We have someone who is elected President of the United States. I disagree with him on many of the issues having to do with our defense policy, but because I trust that while we may disagree, they understand that we are all trying to do the right thing for our Nation, I kid them and our grandkids. Unfortunately, I don’t have that trust in Dr. Kahl. Confirming him would create a real political challenge for the Department over the years to come.

Every time DOD lays down a new policy or makes a critical military decision, we will have to wonder: Was this the decision informed by the Department’s skilled professionals or by the partisan conspiracy theorist that happens to run the Department? That is why all 13 Republicans on the Armed Services Committee voted to reject this nominee. This is why I urge my colleagues to resist the motion to discharge and urge President Biden to consider another nominee—one who can work productively with both sides of the aisle, even when we disagree. Mr. President, I would like to have you consider these things to make your job and my job a lot easier.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order of business be suspended for the purpose of bringing up a matter of some urgency.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to engage in a colloquy with my friend and colleague Senator Scott from Florida.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Madam President, I am honored to be on the Senate floor with my colleague Senator Scott from the great State of Florida. We are here to talk about an issue that really matters to both Alaska and to Florida and, I would say, that actually matters to the whole country.

Let me begin by saying that, like all States, my State, the great State of Alaska, struggled through the pandemic. There were a lot of challenges. I was proud of our communities in Alaska and the health challenges of the pandemic. I am very honored and privileged and proud to represent a great group of Americans, my fellow Alaskans, who came together on the health side despite our huge challenges in terms of being a giant State with a dispersed population.

We worked together, and on so many indicators of health that were directly related to the pandemic, Alaskans did very well. We were the No. 1 per capita in terms of testing throughout almost the entire pandemic. Remarkably, we have been the No. 1 State per capita in terms of vaccine distribution, which is a mini miracle, if you know Alaska, given how big it is. We had vaccines going out, machines, dog sleds—you name it. We were getting it out to everybody in a more efficient way than in any other State in the country and, importantly, thank God, with one of the lowest per capita death rates in the country. We are proud of that.

Yet our economy—like many but I would say almost uniquely—is getting hammered, and people are suffering economically, first by the pandemic, of course, and now, unfortunately, by our own Federal Government. Let me just give a couple of examples.

The energy sector is very important to Alaska and very important to America, and, yes, we still need energy. Oil and gas, we need them. We have some of the greatest workers in the world in my State, but the Biden administration thinks we don’t need them. It has been crushing my State with nine Executive orders directed solely at the State of Alaska to shut us down—nine by this administration. There is no State in the country that is getting that kind of attention. We don’t want that attention.

Regarding commercial fishing, our State has been what I like to call the superpower of seafood. Over 60 percent of all seafood harvested in America comes from Alaska. This has been hurt by the pandemic.

The issue we are here to talk about today is tourism, which is so important to Alaska and so important to Florida, and it is what I want to talk about with my good friend Senator Scott. It is about bringing relief to our fellow Americans, Alaskans—and working to immediately pass the CRUISE Act. That is our bill, which would provide relief to coastal communities in our country—in Alaska and in Florida—and would enable a responsible return of cruise ship activities, which are so important to the small business owners in our States, whose livelihoods depend on having a robust tourism sector.

I just very quickly mention one thing. Alaska is open for tourism—one of the most beautiful places in the world. In fact, America, if you want to come and have a great vacation, come on up to Alaska this summer. Not only will you have an amazing experience, but you will have a few days ago that you can get a vaccine. Come on up. If your State is too inefficient for you to get a vaccine, have a great vacation in Alaska, and you will get a vaccine in Alaska as well. You can do both. You can see the most beautiful State in the country. You can fish, see glaciers, wildlife, climb mountains, whale watch. If you do that, it is going to help our economy and help the small businesses—fishing guides, hotels. I am proud to be a part of the west coast. We care about each other. That is what we have been doing for the last year. We want you to come up, stay safe, and get a vaccine.

But here is what we need. To enable that to happen in Alaska and in other parts of the country, we need the CDC to better understand its job, its mission, and its role. This particularly relates to the issues of cruise ship passengers and the ability for cruise ship vessels to start to return to America’s waters as they are doing throughout Europe and Latin America, people are cruising safely right now, but the CDC is dithering.
I have been meeting and my staff has been meeting with them, certainly, weekly. I have met twice with the CDC’s Executive Director, but all we get is foot-dragging. All we get are excuses. All we get is guidance that is muddled, confusing, and simply unworkable.

Here is the thing: In my State, communities are dying, and no one seems to care. At the CDC, the bureaucrats there don’t seem to give a damn about what Americans are suffering through right now. I don’t know how many times we can be on calls with them wherein we get no response. When people lose jobs and lose businesses, that has a health impact too.

Here is what our simple bill does, the CRUISE Act.

First, it will require the CDC to issue recommendations for how to mitigate the risks of COVID–19 to passengers and crew on board ships. This will be in addition to what the industry has already done. Like so many times and there are over 70 recommendations.

Second, our bill will establish an interagency working group that will develop recommendations to facilitate the resumption of passenger cruise ship operations in the United States—in Florida and Alaska. The recommendations will facilitate the resumption of passenger cruise ship operations no later than July 4, 2021. Our bill will require the CDC, on no later than that same day, Independence Day, to revoke the order entitled “Framework for Conditional Sailing and Initial Phase COVID–19 Testing Requirements for Protection of Crew.”

Our bill, finally, ensures that the HHS and CDC retain all appropriate authorities to make and enforce the regulations necessary to prevent the introduction, transmission, or spread of communicable diseases on individual cruise ships.

This is a commonsense bill. We need the CDC to continue to work with us, certainly, but to recognize that by dragging its feet, tens of thousands of Americans are going to continue to suffer when they don’t have to.

We can do this responsibly. My State and the State of Florida want to do this responsibly, but we can’t wait any longer. Our tourism season in Alaska is very short. Our businesses need to know that they can open again, and our citizens need help.

I yield to my colleague from Florida, whose citizens are experiencing some of the same devastating impacts that my fellow Alaskans are.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Madam President, I do want to compliment my colleague. He comes from a beautiful State. While I would like all of the tourists to come to Florida, Alaska is a great State to take a vacation. I have had the opportunity to do that a few times, and it is a beautiful State.

I thank my colleagues Senator SULLIVAN and Senator RUBIO for working on this bill that is so important to all of our States but, for sure, Florida and Alaska.

Many States rely on the success of our ports, our cruise lines, and our maritime industries. Throughout my time as the former Governor of Florida, we proudly welcomed more than 10 million visitors every year and shattered annual tourism records each year. Every visitor to our State supports small businesses, fuels job growth, and boosts tax revenue, helping to create State and local investment in the environment, transportation, public safety, and education.

And it is not just Florida and Alaska. Tourism, including our all-important cruise industry, has huge impacts for States across our Nation and the thousands of jobs that rely on its success.

On the chart you can look at this. So, first off, the cruise industry shutdown is just killing a lot of jobs—jobs across this country. Before the COVID–19, we had 450,000 jobs—450,000 American jobs—and $55 billion in GDP every year in our economy.

Unfortunately, due to the suspension of cruises caused by the CDC inaction, more than 200,000 jobs have been lost. So this is all across our country.

As we continue to work to recover from the coronavirus and get our economy back on track, I remain committed to doing everything I can to support our tourism industry in Florida, Alaska, and all across the country in a safe manner.

Unfortunately, while many sectors of our economy have been safely operating for months under CDC guidelines, Floridians and those across the Nation who rely on the cruise industry for work, continue to wait, wait, wait, wait for updated guidance from the CDC.

For months, I have heard from small business owners who have shared just all their stories about how important tourism is to them and, specifically, that the cruise industry is to their livelihood and how much the CDC’s decision here has hurt them.

Let me give you an example. Omar Otero, founder and owner of VOK Protective Services, says:

As a business owner, I’ve been dependent on the cruise industry for my livelihood for 20 years, and this pause has been devastating. What many people don’t see behind the scenes is that cruising has a significant impact on our local economy and employs hundreds of thousands of people in America. Resuming cruising is critical to my business and would allow me to work again and support my family.

Jeannette Pineiro, president of Cruiseport Destinations, says:

The uncertainty we’ve been living with the last year is probably the most devastating mentally for a business owner. I have former employees that are still unemployed. They want to get back to work, and there has been nothing I could do. The cruise industry needs to be treated on par with other sectors of the travel industry. Small businesses need a plan to safely resume cruise operations.

I thank my colleagues Senator SULLIVAN and Senator RUBIO in introducing the CRUISE Act, which says we are not waiting on the CDC any longer.

In March, President Biden announced the effort to vaccinate all Americans—his plan to vaccinate all Americans by July 4.

As of this week, all adults will be eligible for COVID–19 vaccines. Our Nation has made enormous progress in fighting COVID–19. Yet the CDC has continued to act like we are still in March 2020. Meanwhile, as my colleague from Alaska said, there is cruising all over the rest of the world.

My colleagues and I are simply asking the CDC to provide a timeline of when the cruise industry can begin to resume safely. And the CRUISE Act ensures they can do that in a safe manner.

The CDC is treating the cruise sector unfairly, while other industries are open for business. There is no reason why America’s cruise industry and the thousands of jobs that rely on its success should continue to suffer.

Cruises can and should resume, and we are going to do everything we can to bring back cruising safely.

I yield to my colleague from Alaska.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The junior Senator from Alaska.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Madam President, as if in legislative session, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions be discharged from further consideration of S. 1105 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered read a third time and passed, and that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The SENATOR from Washington, Mrs. MURRAY, Madam President, reserving the right to object. I understand the position of my colleagues from Alaska and Florida who want to see a return to cruising by July 4. I am there with them. The cruise industry in my home State supports over 5,500 jobs and creates $900 million in annual local business revenue. Those jobs and that impact on the local economy have been severely disrupted, but we have to ensure the safety of our friends and our families on these cruises before they dumbbark.

We have seen firsthand how devastating COVID outbreaks on cruise ships can be. Just last year, we saw thousands of passengers stranded on cruise ships—people put in quarantine and unable to leave or returned entry to ports as borders closed.

Over 31 million Americans have contracted COVID, and 560,000 have died. from this disease. Cruise ships require specific focus and protocols in place to prevent future outbreaks.

While I am as eager as anyone else to see a return to travel, we cannot cut corners. Doing so risks lives and will only further delay returning to normal, hurting our economy more in the long run.

We must trust the science, and we must allow the CDC to continue its work to help us return to what we love as safely as possible. So I will continue to work with the CDC and the administration as they develop the next phase of their cruising guidance, but for now, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The junior Senator from Alaska.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Madam President, to my colleague from Washington, whom I have the utmost respect for, it is true that at the beginning of the pandemic, there were all kinds of challenges with the cruise ship industry. There is no doubt about that. We saw that, but that was over—well over—a year ago.

We didn’t know anything about the virus then, we didn’t have vaccines then, and we didn’t see the economic devastation then. It is a very different virus than we didn’t have vaccines that was over—well over—a year ago. There were all kinds of challenges with the cruise ship industry, and otherwise in America by mid-July. That is what I was told by the Director 3 weeks ago. They need to keep that commitment.

I yield to my good friend from Florida.

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Madam President, well, I am clearly disappointed that my colleague from Washington would object to this commonsense proposal.

The cruise industry impacts thousands of jobs, not just in Florida and not just in Alaska but in the State of Washington and body here I know that wants to make sure that we can start cruising again in a safe manner.

Let’s remember what my colleague was talking about. She was talking about what was going on in March and April in 2020. But today, hotels are open, restaurants are open, tourism sites are open, and amusement parks are open. They are all open, but for whatever reason, the CDC has made the decision to not allow cruising to happen, and I know that my friend from Alaska is focused on this industry and cannot tell any of us why they singled this out.

All we are asking for is the CDC to provide a timeline of when the cruise industry can begin to reopen. The cruise industry wants to do it safely. It is a lot of American jobs, including—I think it is about 23,000 jobs and a billion dollars in economic impact in the State of Washington.

So I know everybody says they want to get this done, but the only way this is going to happen is if we make sure that we force the CDC to finally make a decision and allow the cruise industry to get open again in a safe manner.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. COTTON. Madam President, Colin Kahl is President Biden’s nominee to be the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy. This is the top strategic planning position at the Department of Defense. No position at our Department of Defense. The role is critically important to the national security of our country and the safety of our allies around the world.

Unfortunately, Mr. Kahl is temperamentally and dispositionally unable to hold this—or, for that matter, virtually any other—job at the Pentagon. He is impulsive, intemperate, offensive, and has consistently demonstrated terrible judgment.

For the past several years, Mr. Kahl has endeavored, for some inexplicable reason, to be something of a Twitter celebrity—not exactly aiming his sights high. In pursuit of this goal, he has personally attacked the character and reputation of virtually every Republican Senator, as well, I would say, with lots of Democratic Senators.

He has tweeted that Members of both parties who opposed the withdrawal from the terrible Iran nuclear deal “won’t be satisfied until they get the war they pushed for decades.”

He wrote that 45 Senators who supported weapon sales to Saudi Arabia and its cult of oil was “the party of the worst humanitarian crisis.” This claim, in which he referred to the war in Yemen, of course, ignores the role of Iran’s murderous, terrorist proxies, something, of course, that Colin Kahl repeatedly turns a blind eye to everywhere in the world—Iran’s evil malignancy.

On a separate occasion, Mr. Kahl said that every Republican who supported an end to combat operations in Syria and those who opposed the war in Afghanistan is “pro-terrorism” and “the party of terrorism.”

Joe Biden has nominated a man to be the No. 3 official at our Department of Defense who has a track record of two main political parties in our country as being “the party of ethnocentrism.”

It is hard to imagine an uglier or more vicious accusation than that.

Perhaps Mr. Kahl could ask Bill Clinton and Susan Rice, on whose watch the unethical cleansing in Rwanda happened.

When John Bolton was about to become the National Security Advisor, Mr. Kahl, quite reasonably, stated on social media: “We are going to die.”

To my knowledge, we are not dead, and Mr. Kahl is very much alive, despite John Bolton being appointed as a staffer in the U.S. Government. He also claimed that the Republican Party had a “death cult fealty” to former President Trump.

These statements and many more make it difficult to conceive of a circumstance in which this nominee could successfully forge a productive relationship with Members of the Republican Party in the Senate or the House or anywhere else, for that matter.

Mr. Kahl’s ranting and raving on social media in 2017 may have even gone from offensive to criminal on several occasions. It appears that several of Mr. Kahl’s tweets divulge or confirm classified and sensitive information. I recently joined 17 of my fellow Senators in requesting a full FBI investigation into this very serious and troubling matter. No vote should occur until that important inquiry takes place.

Now, the nominee’s transgressions on social media are somewhat reminiscent of Neera Tanden’s foolish statements on a left social media platform. I think this Committee set a reasonable standard when it rightfully rejected her nomination, and we ought to maintain that standard with this nominee.
In many ways, though, Mr. Kahl’s behavior is worse than Ms. Tanden’s because his poisonous partisanship, his narrow-mindedness, and his short temper will directly affect his job. He is up for a post that is less partisan and more cooperative in nature than was Ms. Tanden’s. His behavior will not allow him to be under extreme stress, where he will need to listen to a full range of options, engage in careful deliberation, and regularly make life-and-death decisions. I have to say, his auditions as a social media celebrity over the last 5 years don’t inspire confidence in his ability to do so.

When I asked him about this at his hearing, he said he may have gotten caught up in the passions of the moment or that these were stressful, trying times. Some of these social media statements, I would point out, came in the middle of the night when Mr. Kahl was presumably sitting on his couch at home watching his news feed. If he thinks it was stressful or trying much of the time, what is he going to do when he is sitting in the Pentagon and Vladimir Putin is invading southern Ukraine?

Talking about foreign policy decisions, I would point out that Mr. Kahl has hallucinated—wrongly—how nearly every important foreign policy decision over the last decade. In 2010, Mr. Kahl said that concerns about a rapid withdrawal from Iraq were “exaggerated” and it was “very unlikely to trigger a dramatic uptick in violence.” He was wrong by just a little bit because soon thereafter, 30,000 radical Islamic extremists conquered a quarter of Iraq, and ISIS carried out horrific terrorist attacks on multiple continents.

In 2012, he ridiculed then-Candidate MITT ROMNEY’s, now-Senator MITT ROMNEY’s assertion that Russia was a major geopolitical threat. Of course, 2 years later, Russia invaded Ukraine and conquered Crimea. It has since been the catalyst of the Democratic Party, even though Joe Biden has once again reverted to the Democrats’ traditional dovishness on Russia, something presumably Mr. Kahl would support.

In 2017, he predicted that recognizing Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, where the seat of Israel’s Government is located, would result in a “third Intifada.” Instead, Israel has signed multiple historic peace deals.

In 2018, when President Trump warned Iran that it was not pursuing nuclear weapons, Mr. Kahl wrote the “war drums are already sounding.” But no war happened.

That same year, when President Trump withdrew from the terrible Iran nuclear deal, Mr. Kahl said Mr. Trump had “wowed the world with Iran in Iraq.” Yet again, no war happened.

Mr. Kahl’s inability to accurately assess these events almost defies probability. After all, even a broken clock is right twice a day.

On issues of war and peace, Mr. Kahl is reliably unreliable and consistently wrong. This is not a fault that one of the chief strategic planners, the No. 3 official at the Pentagon, and one of the leaders in the Government ought to have. No Pentagon nominee should be this partisan, this divisive, and this controversial.

Republicans have given every Defense Department and Intelligence nominee a fair hearing, and most have passed this Chamber with healthy bipartisan majorities and in some cases unanimously. Mr. Kahl is different. Mr. Kahl is different because his toxic statements and reputation would inhibit the workings of the Department of Defense.

Every time, as Secretary Austin and senior Pentagon personnel testify before the Senate, Members of this body will wonder if the policies they are presenting are products of hard-headed serious planning or the workings of a political hack.

A man of Mr. Kahl’s judgment and temperament and his record of disastrous policy judgments is unfit to be the most powerful policy advisor in the Government. As every Senator should.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HICKENLOOPER). The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. TUBERVILLE. Mr. President, you know, the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy serves as the national security advisor to the Secretary of Defense. This position requires even temperament, sound judgment, and a willingness to work with both sides of the aisle to protect and advance our national security.

As many of my colleagues have noted, President Biden’s nominee for this important position severely lacks these qualities.

Colin Kahl has promoted conspiracy theories on social media. He makes outrageous claims against those who disagree with him, like when he called Republicans “the party of ethnic cleansing.” And he views the threats of our Nation solely through the lens of partisan politics.

Dr. Kahl blatantly downplayed the threat of Russia when our colleague Mr. Trump warned about it during the 2012 Presidential campaign but then promoted numerous lies about President Trump and Russia after the 2016 election. This is not—and I repeat—not the kind of person who should serve in the Pentagon’s No. 3 position.

But today I want to address another issue. Dr. Kahl presents himself as an academic, but he often makes claims that are not grounded in data. That is especially true when it comes to the situation along our southern border. As everybody knows, the illegal immigration crisis is not new. As of 2017, according to the Pew Research Center, there were an estimated 10.5 million unauthorized immigrants in this country. And according to Pew, over 77 percent of those unauthorized immigrants came from within the Western Hemisphere. President Trump came into office in 2017 promising to do something about this challenge: enforce our immigration laws and promote national security along our border. Dr. Kahl disagreed with his policy, and that is certainly his right, but rather than explain why he disagreed, he promoted baseless lies.

In October 2018, a migrant caravan surged toward our southwestern border. President Trump deployed approximately 5,000 U.S. members of our service to support the Department of Homeland Security at the border. This was not, as some in the media claimed, a “show of force.” This was the defense support to civil authority’s mission, the type of mission that the DOD also does to support FEMA during hurricanes.

Kahl is different because his toxic statements and reputation would inhibit the workings of the Department of Defense. After all, even a broken clock is right twice a day.

Far from being a “fake crisis,” as Dr. Kahl would have it, this was a crisis that was not being properly addressed until President Trump took action.

Today, we have another crisis at the border. We have seen a record number of illegal crossings and arrests in recent months as illegal migrants anticipate a more welcoming environment under President Biden’s administration.

The Biden administration has made detrimental changes to our border policy, including ending the “Remain in Mexico” policy. But it is worth noting what has not changed: U.S. troops are still deployed in support of DHS along the border. They are still there. Anyone who has taken the time to visit our southern border, as I was there just a few weeks ago, understands that if our troops were not in this region, the crisis at the border would only grow worse.

Colin Kahl saw the deployment as a "stunt" under President Trump. I suspect he sees it a little differently under President Biden, that is exactly the problem: Colin Kahl's judgment is often based on partisan politics, not data.

We cannot accept the risk of having someone so partisan in the Defense Department's No. 3 position. This position requires someone who bases his recommendations on data and not on the top trending hashtag. I urge my colleagues to vote against the motion to discharge.

Let Colin Kahl keep tweeting and let the administration send us another nominee. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO CHRIS MAIER

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I rise today, on behalf of Oregonians in every nook and cranny of our wonderful State, to thank my friend Chris Maier for more than three decades of stellar public service.

Chris is retiring this month as a superhero who has been cutting through redtape and defeating bureaucracy for so many Oregonians who turned to her nights and weekends and all hours. She helped with emergency immigration and State Department needs, passports, visas, immigration questions, and so much more.

As a casework manager and constituent services representative in my office for 30 years, Chris brought an unflinching professionalism, determined follow-through, and "Oregon Way" focus on smart solutions when tackling all of those duties.

Chris came to our Portland office in 1989, after a decade of working for my friend Senator Gordon Smith. Before that, she had worked a total of 11 years in the offices of Senator Mark Hatfield, Congressman Denny Smith, and State Representative Chuck Carpenter. If those names that I just mentioned were an answer on jeopardy, the question would be: Who are four prominent elected Republicans in Oregon history? The Senate heard that one right.

Chris is retiring after a career of working for elected officials from both political parties. On one level, she worked for all of us as elected officials, but on a larger level, she worked for everybody in Oregon, regardless of their politics. And on that larger level, Chris epitomizes so many other public servants and our country whose names just never get celebrated in headlines or tweets or news coverage.

The word "bipartisan" gets tossed around a lot, but Chris lived that ethos every single day of her public service career. When she was responding to the uncounted number of calls and email inquiries she got over the years, she never said: So tell me a little bit about your politics. Her response was always: How can I help? And she always applied her common sense and the deep reservoir of good will she earned nationwide to move the levers of government to get results and successfully.

So today we are very grateful for her "Chris Maier" brand of tenacity with a smile, because she was steering so many Oregonians through the unprecedented trials of the past year. I have been thinking about all the challenges she has been helping Oregonians with over her entire career, and she was helping all those people when she was in our office every single day, bringing relentless good cheer, an overflowing candy bowl, and a love bordering on obliviousness for Oregon football. We Ducks take our football seriously, but certainly nobody more than Chris Maier.

I am going to close with a final thought as I send Chris off to a very well-earned retirement with her husband Brad and their daughter Katherine, back home on the east side of my hometown, Portland. As Chris's fellow Oregon football fans know, the pregame pageantry at home games in Eugene always included the tradition of one joyful shout in unison: "It never rains in Autzen Stadium."

If I may paraphrase that thought today in talking about her impact, her optimism and her legacy of success means that all of us are joyful because "It never rains in Chris Maier's world."

So, Chris, on behalf of Oregonians and communities small and large, we are so grateful for all the time you went to bat for the people of our State and for the people of this country. For that we say thank you.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MANCHIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. MANCHIN. Mr. President, I rise today to call on my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join Senator PORTMAN and myself—and Senator PORTMAN will come in later and express his desire for this also—in taking action to permanently schedule fentanyl and deadly fentanyl analogs.

Fentanyl is 100 times more potent than morphine, 50 times more potent than heroin, and according to the DEA, 2 milligrams—just 2 milligrams—of fentanyl can cause a lethal overdose.

In February 2018, the Drug Enforcement Administration issued a temporary scheduling order to schedule fentanyl-related substances, which has allowed Federal law enforcement authorities to bring charges against individuals who manufacture, distribute, or handle fentanyl-related substances.

A year ago, this body extended the scheduling order through May 6, 2021, via unanimous consent. The House extended it by a vote of 320 to 88. This should not be controversial at all.

In 2019, 36,359 people died because of fentanyl. That is 51 percent of all overdose deaths that year—51 percent. Over half of the people who were killed by overdose were by fentanyl. We know 2020 was a record year in drug overdoses, mainly driven by fentanyl-related substances and the COVID-19 pandemic. We can safely assume that there were at least 44,000 deaths last year—think about that—44,000 deaths related to fentanyl last year. In total, that is over 80,000 people who have died because of fentanyl in just the last 2 years. It is heartbreaking to lose so many Americans to preventable overdoses.

The time to permanently schedule this deadly substance is now. That is why Senator PORTMAN and I reintroduced the bipartisan FIGHT Fentanyl Act to permanently schedule fentanyl and fentanyl analogs. I am saying permanently schedule fentanyl and fentanyl analogs.

The FIGHT Fentanyl Act is a proactive overdose prevention bill. It stops the creation of these drugs and removes incentives for people to bring these deadly chemicals into our country, reducing the harm to our fellow Americans.

We know that fentanyl is deadly. It is killing Americans at record rates. West Virginia, my home State, has the highest overdose rates per capita in the Nation, and every West Virginian is familiar with the horrible impacts of the drug epidemic on our family, friends, neighbors, and our entire economy. I recognize there are concerns about mandatory minimums that do more harm than good. But permanently scheduling fentanyl and fentanyl analogs was never about locking people up; it is about keeping our fellow Americans alive. Don’t take my word for it. We asked the GAO to study it—the General Accounting Office—to study it. In the last 3 years since the rescheduling was put in place, the GAO found only eight prosecutions occurred related to fentanyl analogs, four of which were associated with drug cartels. If that is not enough, our bill also explicitly prohibits new mandatory minimums associated with fentanyl analogs. Here are the facts: 80,000 deaths compared to 8 prosecutions—800 deaths compared to 8 prosecutions. Here is my point: We simply don’t have the support in Congress today to pass the FIGHT Fentanyl Act right now. It is hard to believe. We must pass another short-term extension this week to ensure the essential temporary protection does not lapse. I hope my colleagues will at least support that effort. I also urge my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans, to join Senator PORTMAN and me in this effort to permanently reschedule this deadly, deadly drug. We cannot afford to keep kicking the can down the road as we have for far too long.

Thank you, Madam President. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. SMITH). The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PORTMAN. Madam President, I ask for your unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PORTMAN. Madam President, my good colleague Senator MANCHIN from West Virginia and I are on the floor today to talk about this issue of fentanyl. This is a deadly synthetic opioid that is killing more people in our States than any other single drug. Unbelievably, Congress has only 15 days to act, and if we don’t, some of these illegal fentanyl products are going to be legal forever. We cannot afford to keep kicking the can down the road as we have seen it work, and it saves lives. It is a miracle. I have seen it work, and it saves lives.

Here is why we have to act. Fentanyl, a synthetic opioid, is more than 15 times more powerful than heroin, and it is incredibly addictive. For years, this has been coming to our shores from China, almost all of it through the mail, until it did. Frankly, pass legislation to cut down on mail deliveries, and instead, now much is coming through Mexico, our southwest border.

It is a big reason overdose deaths in the United States surged to record highs during this COVID–19 pandemic, with more than 87,000 Americans—think about that—87,000 Americans died during the 12-month period between September 2019 and September 2020. That is a record. It is a terrible record.

When we have the actual numbers from 2020, it is going to be even worse. We just got these numbers from September 2019 until September 2020. When we have the numbers from January 2021 until the end of 2021, it will be even worse. That is what everybody says, and it makes sense. When you look at this data, the worst months are the months during the pandemic in 2020.

Again, we are very sadly, after several years of progress, looking at once again an increase in these overdose deaths. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, CDC, synthetic opioids like fentanyl are the biggest increase. Let me address the issue, we can project that more than half of these deaths are from this class of drug based on what we know from the 2019 data. That is the latest information we have. In 2019, there were 70,630 deaths, and more than half of those—36,539—involved fentanyl. Experts believe that fentanyl, sometimes mixed with other drugs like cocaine or crystal meth or sometimes heroin, continues to be the No. 1 killer.

It is such an enormous crisis because these drugs are so incredibly dangerous. It takes only 2 milligrams of fentanyl to kill an adult, which is why the DEA, Drug Enforcement Administration, permanently classified fentanyl as a schedule II drug. In order to avoid prosecution, drug traffickers started making slight modifications to fentanyl. You have some evil scientist in China or in Mexico who makes a slight modification to fentanyl so that it is a single molecule and creating what are called fentanyl analogs. In other words, it is not precisely pure fentanyl, and so unfortunately, it has the same narcotic properties as fentanyl, these tiny variations allow these traffickers and these scientists to evade prosecution. Oftentimes, by the way, these analogs, like carfentanil, are even more deadly, believe it or not, than fentanyl itself.

In response, in 2018, the DEA temporarily scheduled fentanyl analogs, but under law, that designation expires after May 6—again, only 15 days from now. If that deadline lapses, evil scientists and criminals who run labs in China and Mexico will be able to avoid law enforcement as they flood the United States with unlimited slight variations of this deadly drug. That is why Senator MANCHIN and I are pushing for Congress to do the sensible thing: Pass the FIGHT Fentanyl Act to make these dangerous substances permanently illegal. That is what law enforcement wants, that is what our communities demand, and that is what we deserve to give them. It is long overdue that we make this designation permanent.

China, by the way, implemented classwide controls over fentanyl analogs in 2019. China’s law defines fentanyl-related substances more broadly than the U.S. Government defines fentanyl-related substances. How ironic. Here is China, a country sending us this poison and actually making these drugs illegal in China, and they are not illegal here. How could that be? It is so ironic. Here is China, a country sending us this poison and actually making these drugs illegal in China, and they are not illegal here. How could that be? It is so ironic.

While from 2017 to 2018, overall opioid-involved overdose fatalities decreased through 2019—the data we have—overdoses from opioids among Black Americans, particularly Black men, have actually accelerated. From 2011 to 2016, while fatalities decreased through 2019—the data we have—overdoses from opioids among Black Americans, particularly Black men, have actually accelerated. From 2011 to 2016, Black Americans had the highest increase in synthetic opioid-involved overdose death rates compared to all populations. So it is getting worse, not better, in these same minority communities.

While from 2017 to 2018, overall opioid-involved overdose fatalities decreased—remember we were making progress for the last several years. Overall, it decreased by just over 4 percent. Rates among Black and Hispanic Americans actually increased.

Another issue my colleagues have raised, again, is concern that permanently scheduled fentanyl and its analogs somehow hinders research in treating addiction. First of all, I agree that we need this research and need it badly. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up.

One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up. One example of this is coming up.
Researchers have told me there are barriers to being approved to legally research schedule I substances. There is also a stigma to conducting this kind of research even though we know that it could lead to development of new treatments. I am open to working with my colleagues to address this problem, and I believe we can do that through legislation creating flexibility in the registration system for scientists. But we cannot let these deadly fentanyl drugs become legal in the meantime, and certainly we can’t allow this to happen in the next 15 days.

Just before we came to the floor this afternoon, the House of Representatives passed a temporary measure. It is a 5-month extension of the ability to schedule these deadly drugs. Why would we do it for just 5 months? Let’s do it permanently.

Now I am told: Well, we have a take-it-or-leave-it from the House. I hope that is not the case. If so, of course I will support it rather than having it expire in 15 days. But let’s act. Let’s act responsibly. Let’s act now.

The U.S. Senate should be taking the lead here in saying let’s permanently classify these substances as everybody agrees they should be classified in the sense that they are dangerous narcotics that are killing literally tens of thousands of our fellow citizens every year.

Let’s do the right thing for those communities. Let’s do the right thing for law enforcement. Let’s be sure they have the predictability and certainty in law enforcement to know that they can prosecute these criminals—these traffickers. We need to act now to address the threat of these deadly fentanyl drugs coming into our communities, and I urge the Senate to pass the FIGHT Fentanyl Act this week.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Ms. ERNST. Madam President, I rise to speak in opposition to the nomination of Mr. Colin Kahl to be Under Secretary of Defense for Policy.

The position of Under Secretary of Defense for Policy is essentially the third most senior leadership position in the Department of Defense. It requires a leader of tremendous experience and real, qualifying experience to a position that believes a limited strike is viable and meaningful experience and has only a sparse record of thought on China or anything in the broader Indo-Pacific region, for that matter. The United States cannot afford this lack of knowledge and experience in a top Pentagon official.

Now, folks, we can also look to his judgment as a matter of concern. Mr. Kahl has a record of leniency toward Iran—the world’s leading state sponsor of terrorism—and belligerence to Israel.

On Iran, I would note that this administration is already not taking seriously the threat Tehran poses. Iran flauntly continues to enrich its uranium and inch closer and closer to obtaining a nuclear weapon. We, the American people, cannot afford for this administration to play footsie with Iran and kowtow to its demands of sanctions relief.

Based on his record, he would be one more advocate at the table pushing to get the United States back into the failed Iran nuclear agreement. Frankly, when it comes to Iran and Israel, Mr. Kahl couldn’t be more wrong in his understanding of who our friends are and who the real threats to America are.

If I am honest, I am deeply dismayed that we are even to this point in consideration. The Under Secretary of Defense for Policy must be a steadfast, knowledgeable, and deliberate leader. It needs a leader that understands who our friends are and who the real threats to America are.

I yield the floor.
Doesn’t it encourage further disclosure of classified information? Doesn’t it play right into our adversaries’ hands by showing that our internal political divisions can be exploited to obtain the most sensitive information that our government keeps?

My Senate colleagues and I explained in our letter to FBI Director Wray:

The Under Secretary of Defense for Policy plays a key role in matters crucial to America’s national security and should be held by a person of sound judgment and temperament—who understands and respects the need to safeguard classified information and to keep national security affairs distinct and separate from partisan political activities.

Kahl’s growing record of apparent mishandling of classified information and his evasive response regarding this issue fall far short of the standards required for holding one of our nation’s top national security positions.

By apparently soliciting or otherwise receiving classified information from U.S. government officials serving in national security roles and repeatedly posting such information on social media . . . Kahl demonstrates disregard for security protocols that are designed to protect our national security interests.

Kahl has shown that he is unfit to serve and his nomination should not move forward until the FBI has completed the investigation requested by me and 17 of my Senate colleagues.

I hope that all of my colleagues want to see answers to these important questions, as well, before we begin to advance his nomination.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I welcome the Vice President, the President of the Senate, to our Chamber this evening.

I am here this evening to discuss the infrastructure plan that has been proposed by President Biden and the plan along with it for massive tax increases.

The Senate’s infrastructure plan totals a massive $2.3 trillion, but only about 20 percent of it actually goes towards funding anything that Members of either party have ever considered infrastructure. I support more infrastructure investment, as do I believe, most if not all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

The question is, What is infrastructure, and how do you pay for it? Roads and bridges, as an example in this proposal, are only about 5 percent of the plan. In fact, it provides more money for long-term care than it does for roads and bridges, more money for electric cars than it does for roads and bridges, and more money for schools and daycare than it does for roads and bridges. Many of these noninfrastructure ideas are worthy ones, and they should be debated and they should be considered but not as part of a self-described infrastructure bill, in part because the funding sources should be paid for differently.

The price tag, $2.3 trillion—soon to be $2.7 trillion, we are told—and also the scope of the bill are bad enough, but what I want to talk about tonight is the equally concerning way the Biden administration plans to pay for this massive new legislation. They want to pay for the bulk of it by completely reversing the progress we made over the past few years in making America competitive again and making our workers competitive again.

In the 2 years before COVID-19, we saw record growth in jobs and wages, in large part thanks to the pro-growth policies we put in place through the 2017 tax cuts and reforms. The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office has found that 70 percent of the savings from the 2017 corporate tax cuts went into the form of lost jobs and lower wages. Seventy percent, they say, went into workers’ pockets. It is one reason that, leading up to the pandemic in February, a year and a couple of months ago, we had the 19th straight month—19th straight month—of wage growth of 3 percent or more—unusually. That was great news in my home State of Ohio. We hadn’t had wage growth like that in over a decade, maybe two decades. Most of that benefit, by the way, went to middle and low-income workers—exactly what you want.

During that time period a couple of years before the pandemic hit, we tied the 50-year low in unemployment at 3.5 percent and lowest unemployment ever for Blacks and Hispanics. In fact, before the pandemic, we had reached the lowest poverty rate—10.5 percent—since we started recording this data back in 1959. It was the lowest poverty rate on record.

Importantly, tax reform also stopped these corporate inversions. You will remember this. Companies were actually becoming foreign companies so they could get from under our Tax Code. This was happening during the Obama administration and during the first year of the Trump administration. We also ended the so-called lockout effect, caused by a Tax Code that made it too expensive to bring foreign earnings back home. So people kept their earnings overseas. In fact, during those couple of years, the $1.6 trillion in overseas earnings has now come back home to invest and create jobs here—$1.6 trillion. We want that kind of American investment.

As a result of those changes, the largest U.S. companies increased domestic research and development spending by 25 percent to $707 billion, and capital expenditures went up by 20 percent to $1.4 trillion. The Biden plan would throw all of that positive progress out. It would change our competitiveness to put us back where we were before or worse.

The Biden administration’s corporate tax increase raises the combined Federal and State corporate rates from an average of 25.8 percent to 32.8 percent. It would put us, again, as having the highest rate in the developed world. These changes would, of course, include the international tax hikes, are actually five times as large as the corresponding cuts in 2017, based on the analysis that has been done. By the way, this would also, of course, give us not just the highest tax rate among the developed countries but also a far higher tax rate than countries like China with whom we are trying to compete.

It also changes the international tax code to make it much more costly for U.S. companies to operate outside of the United States, punishing American workers who have jobs here supporting international sales. I use the example of Procter & Gamble of Cincinnati. They are headquartered in Ohio, but they do business all over the world. They have told me that it will be far more expensive for them to do that, even uncompetitive for them to be working globally. That will be the only developed country in the world that will charge them a tax to do that, and that will hurt the jobs in Cincinnati, OH, that support international sales.

If this is really a serious policy piece or a serious policy piece, why would we want to go back to that and have that lockout effect where profits are kept overseas and where companies actually become foreign companies?

Inmates, it eliminates the so-called foreign-derived intangible income provision. This was a carrot that we put in the law very deliberately, a carrot for companies to bring their intellectual property back here, the purest un-American thing. So did Cisco. So did Qualcomm. So did Synopsys. So did Facebook. They actually brought valuable intellectual property back home, creating high-paying high-tech jobs here in the United States. Why would we want to change that?

The bottom line is that this tax plan that has been proposed would make us uncompetitive again in the global economy, and the Biden administration knows it.

That is why, when Treasury Secretary Yellen announced the proposal to increase these taxes, she actually asked other countries around the world to raise their own corporate taxes, to actually bring the tax rates up globally. She pleaded with them. We are going to raise ours. You need to now raise your taxes.

Of course, when she said we need to do that to create a more level playing field, one world, one global one world, she said, “This is great. We are going to get more American investment and more business for our companies. In fact, right after she made that announcement, the Minister for Finance in Ireland was asked the question. He said he had no interest in joining America in raising taxes—or do others. China is not going to raise its taxes. In fact, these countries are continuing to do what they have been doing, which is to knock down barriers to jobs and investment in their economies, and that makes sense from their points of view.

It makes sense from our point of view to continue to be competitive also. Taxes are taxes. We are one America standing alone atop the corporate tax rate chart. Studies by the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office and others have shown that, again, it is American workers who will bear the brunt of these corporate tax hikes in the form of lost jobs and lower wages. Because of the tax hikes, the University of Pennsylvania’s Penn Wharton model, in analyzing this Biden plan, actually projects that we will see a nearly 1-percent decrease in the GDP and a 0.7-percent decrease in wages by 2031 over current projections. Now, this is extraordinary to me because that is despite the economic benefit—we are going to get from this infrastructure spending. So, despite all of that benefit, we are still going to see a reduction in our economy, or economic growth, and a reduction in wages. This harms American workers, particularly those toward the bottom of the economic ladder.

The bottom line is that the $2.1 trillion tax hike used to pay for this infrastructure bill will harm middle-class families, our businesses, and I believe the American people get that. They recognize that this is not the way forward for our economy or for our infrastructure.

Instead, let’s follow the proven bipartisan model on infrastructure. Let’s keep the plan to real infrastructure. Let’s agree to what it is. Let’s do it generously. Let’s include broadband. Let’s include water projects. Let’s make it work. Let’s do it generously. Let’s agree to what it is. Let’s do it generously. Then let’s come up with sensible payers, including user fees. That is what the American people want, and that is what they deserve.

I yield the floor.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. President, legislation called the Judiciary Act of 2021 was introduced last week that would immediately expand the Supreme Court to 13 Justices.

If this is serious in its intent, it is foolish. There is no need to expand the Court in order to meet the demands of its workload. After the peaking in 2006, when President George W. Bush was in office, the number of cases on the docket has now plummeted.

In 2019, the late Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, a liberal icon appointed by Presidents Carter and Clinton, said the Court’s authority depends on the number of Justices, how many cases come before it, how fast it can handle them, and how it functions. When there is no need to expand the Court, saying: “Nine seems to be a good number.”

With that established, this is a transparent play for power that would undermine trust in the fair application of law and delegitimize the highest Court in the land.

If this is really a serious policy piece of legislation, we certainly wouldn’t change the number of Supreme Court Justices. And if we were to do so, we would not be doing it as a partisan policy. But if we were to do so, we would not be doing it as a partisan policy. But if we were to do so, we would not be doing it as a partisan policy. But if we were to do so, we would not be doing it as a partisan policy. But if we were to do so, we would not be doing it as a partisan policy. But if we were to do so, we would not be doing it as a partisan policy.

Instead, let’s follow the proven bipartisan model on infrastructure. Let’s keep the plan to real infrastructure. Let’s agree to what it is. Let’s do it generously. Let’s agree to what it is. Let’s do it generously. Then let’s come up with sensible payers, including user fees. That is what the American people want, and that is what they deserve.

I yield the floor.
political influence can only feed that latter perception, further eroding that trust.”

If the public sees any judge and Supreme Court Justices as politicians in robes, the public’s confidence in the court and the rule of law itself can only be diminished, diminishing the Court’s power, including its power to act as a check on other branches of government.

Last August, Gallup found that 58 percent of Americans approve of the job the Supreme Court is doing. In fact, the Supreme Court’s approval ratings have actually increased in the last several years. Polling from February of this year finds that 35 percent of Americans approve of the job that we in Congress are doing, and that is up from 15 percent not many days ago.

I raise this data to demonstrate that the Supreme Court is an institution which a majority of Americans continue to place its trust in. That is a significant circumstance in today’s polarized world, but a majority of Americans still believes it can trust the Supreme Court. If we in Congress inject ourselves into the size of the Court’s composition, Justice Breyer is exactly right—it would be to trust the American people have that the rulings will be delivered on a fair reading of the law will be further undermined.

On the Republican side of the aisle, we have seen our share of defeats in recent years. When the Republican Party controlled Congress and had the White House there efforts to expand the Supreme Court. Can you imagine how the left or the media would react if President Trump had attempted to expand the Court to 13 Justices and add 4 Republican-nominated Justices during his tenure?

We have not attempted to expand the Court because the Supreme Court should not serve as another legislative body. We need to do much better than we do today so that more than one-third of the American people can place their confidence in us as we pass laws.

We have had the same number of Supreme Court Justices for more than 150 years. Perhaps the Judiciary Act of 2021 is less an effort to expand the Supreme Court than it is an effort to intimitate Justices to deliver rulings favorable to the ideology of my colleagues who are proposing the legislation from gun to abortion, to religious liberties, to other hot-button issues, my colleagues are threatening the Justices either to deliver favorable rulings or to not take up divisive cases at all. If this is what my colleagues seek to accomplish, I am confident that the independence and integrity of our Justices will prevail. Indeed, this must prevail to preserve the American people’s confidence in the institution of the courts, in the judicial system, in the Supreme Court.

I am disappointed because, rather than working with each other across the aisle—across this aisle right here—to pass legislation, the Democrats are more interested in pursuing a larger Supreme Court and more interested in eliminating the filibuster to pass their agenda—to stack the Court to prevent their legislation from being struck down as unconstitutional.

The process we have ordered here. We have to get to the point at which we utilize the process to get a fair and just result, wherein all people’s voices are heard, wherein all Members of the Senate have the opportunity to express their views and have an opportunity for that to be voted on, but we don’t skew the process to get a desired outcome. We all need to do our jobs to convince our colleagues that we are right in our positions, that our legislation is meritorious. We don’t and we shouldn’t change the process to get our way.

The checks and balances of our Constitution work. They have worked for a long time. They are important to this country. When we talk about how divisive things are on the Senate floor and in this country today, the solution to that is not to change the rules in the middle of the game. It is to abide by the rules that protect our freedoms and liberties.

I implore my colleagues to have the same faith in these constitutional guardrails as I do, to have the same faith in the independence and fairness of the Supreme Court that a majority of Americans has, and to believe that we can work together, that you and I can work together on behalf of the Americans we serve, the Americans we represent, without resorting to acts that will damage us all today and for generations to come.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate resume legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the cloture motions with respect to amendment 1445 and S. 937 be withdrawn; that when the Senate resumes consideration of S. 937 on Thursday, April 22, the following amendments be reported by number and they be the only amendments in that order. Cruz-Kennedy on S. 937, Lee No. 1425, Blackburn No. 1458; further, that at 11:30 a.m., the Senate vote in relation to the amendments in the order listed; that amendment No. 1445, as amended, if amended, be agreed to; the bill be considered and read a third time; and the Senate vote on passage of the bill, as amended, with 60 affirmative votes required for adoption of the amendments and passage of the bill, with not more than 30 minutes of debate equally divided prior to each vote, all with no intervening action or debate; and, finally, that the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table with no intervening or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO JOE GROSSMAN

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, my friend Joe Grossman has accomplished his work for the last 35 years with a head for numbers and a heart for people. As an accountant turned CEO of the largest healthcare organization in Southeastern Kentucky, Joe’s experienced leadership has helped improve the quality of life for hundreds of thousands. This summer, Joe will close his chapter leading Appalachian Regional Healthcare, ARH, and a career of excellence and accomplishment. As he begins a well-deserved retirement, I would like to share my congratulations and gratitude for his many contributions to the Bluegrass.

For nearly two decades, Joe has been entrusted with key financial and operational positions at ARH. At each step, he has helped the system grow and thrive. When the position opened, Joe was the obvious choice to take over as president and CEO. He pushed ARH to continue growing in service to its patients, employees, and communities.

Today, the system operates 13 hospitals in Kentucky and West Virginia as well as 80-plus clinic locations. With a team of more than 6,000 dedicated professionals, ARH serves nearly 400,000 individuals across the region. The system’s extensive reach makes a transformative impact on rural Kentuckian communities every day and helps make the area a destination for top-tier medical talent. Joe’s leadership even contributed to a national magazine naming ARH one of the Top 10 Employers in Kentucky.

Overseeing an organization of ARH’s size and importance would be a remarkable feat in any year, but Joe exceeded expectations once again during the pandemic. Last month, I visited the system’s extensive facility to speak with Joe and his team about the roll-out of the multiple safe and effective COVID-19 vaccines. At that time, three of the five counties in Kentucky with the top vaccination rates were in ARH’s service area. I was proud to congratulate Joe and his team of healthcare heroes who were getting shots in arms to beat this virus.

Joe’s contributions to Kentucky extend beyond the hospital doors. He has gone to great lengths to personally partner with the communities he serves. His work with organizations like One East KY, the Hazard-Perry County Economic Development Alliance, and One Harlan County has helped encourage new growth and opportunity. Joe developed a vision for a healthy and successful Kentucky, and he worked tirelessly over the years to bring it closer to reality.

So, we are all going to miss working with Joe. But now he gets to spend more time on his most important roles, husband to Leigh, father, and grandfather. Along with Joe’s colleagues and friends, we extend our best wishes for a fulfilling retirement. On behalf of the Senate, I would like to congratulate Joe on all of his success and thank him for his leadership in Kentucky.

NOMINATION OF COLIN HACKETT KAHL

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. President, here we are again, teeing up another discharge motion for another不合格的 Biden administration nominee.

If there is one good thing I can say about Colin Kahl, the nominee for Under Secretary of Defense for Policy, it is that you never have to wonder where he stands on the issues. He is very consistent.

Unfortunately, he has been consistently wrong on some of the last decade’s most important foreign policy questions.

In 2019, when disaster struck all along our southern border, he labeled the situation “Trump’s fake border crisis” and “a phony terrorism threat.” That is a take that aged well, to be sure.

His judgment calls on the actions and motivations of our most dangerous adversaries have also been particularly terrible.

When President Trump warned the Iranian regime not to resume their nuclear activities, Kahl declared that “war drums” were already sounding. We know that wasn’t true.

When President Trump made the decision to remove the terrorist leader Soleimani, Kahl was positive that the strike had started a war. It hadn’t. When I questioned Kahl during his confirmation hearings, he equated Iranian proxies killing Americans with our singlehandedly start wars with Iran and North Korea. Another miss.

He also predicted that Trump would jump into Syria and start a war with Assad and the Russians, which also didn’t happen.

Those hot takes earned him a lot of ink in Foreign Policy magazine but not a lot of respect. I don’t know if he wrote those things because he wanted to put President Trump in the hot seat or because he honestly believed them, but I don’t think the answer to that question matters.

If he believed them, then it is proof of his terrible judgment.

If he believed them to inflame the progressive base, it is proof he is willing to trivialize the prospect of armed conflict for clicks.

How in the world can President Biden expect us to trust him in a know-in-the-bone terrible policy decisions.

He opposed bipartisan legislation that would have imposed sanctions on the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps.

He staffed the effort to condemn Israel at the United Nations Security Council.

He is “open” to moving away from nuclear triad.

Perhaps worst of all, when he served in the Obama administration as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for the Middle East, he dropped the ball on a status of forces agreement that would have allowed U.S. forces to remain in Iraq.

That failure led to the rise of ISIS.

I have examined Mr. Kahl’s record and found nothing but a history of bad policy judgment, fatal disposition, and a terrible temper that manifests in inflammatory rhetoric.

That might be a great resume for a pundit, but it is not the body of work I want to see from someone who will be responsible for developing national security and defense strategy.

I oppose this discharge motion. I oppose this nomination, and I urge my colleagues to spend a few minutes with Mr. Kahl’s resume before placing him in such a powerful position at DOD.

250TH ANNIVERSARY OF VASSALBORO, MAINE

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today to commemorate the 250th anniversary of the Town of Vassalboro, ME. Vassalboro was built with a spirit of determination and resiliency that still guides the community today, and this is a time to celebrate the generations of hard-working and caring people who have made it such a wonderful place to live, work, and raise families.

The year of Vassalboro’s incorporation, 1771, was but one milestone in a long journey of progress. For thousands of years, the land along the great Kennebec River was the home of the Abenaki Tribe, who hunted, fished, and tilled the fertile soil. The reverence the Abenaki had for the natural beauty and resources of the region is upheld by the people of Vassalboro today.

Vassalboro’s roots run deep into American history. It originally was part of the lands granted to the Pilgrims of the Plymouth Colony in the 1600s. Later, the town became home to a large settlement of Quakers and a center of the movement to abolish slavery. The Society of Friends continued to be a significant presence in the town today. The statue of the Union soldier in Monument Park stands in silent tribute to the many patriots who have stepped forward to serve the cause of freedom.

With the mighty Kennebec River providing power, Vassalboro was home to many lumber, grain, and textile mills. Built in 1850, the Old Mill on Main Street was one of the largest mills in New England and world famous for the quality of the cashmere it produced. The wealth produced by hard work and determination was invested in schools and churches to create a true community.

Today, visitors and residents alike enjoy Vassalboro’s quiet parks, beautiful historic buildings, and exciting outdoor recreation opportunities. The energy and planning that are going into the town’s 250th anniversary celebration demonstrate the pride townspeople have in their town.

Mr. President, Vassalboro’s 250th anniversary is not merely about the passing of time, it is about human accomplishment. We celebrate the people who, for longer than America has been a nation, have pulled together, cared for one another, and built a great community. Thanks to those who came before, Vassalboro, ME, has a wonderful history. Thanks to those there today, it has a bright future.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION
By Mr. PADILLA (for himself, Mr. WARNock, Ms. SMITH, Mr. SANDERS, Mrs. FIRNSTEIN, Mr. MARKET, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. MERKLEY, and Ms. STABENOW):
S. 1271. A bill to reauthorize the Clean School Bus Program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.
Ms. FeINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise to speak in support of the "Clean Commute for Kids Act," which I introduced today.
I know firsthand how outdated diesel school buses expose our children to harmful and unnecessary pollution. I grew up in the San Fernando Valley and for many years, I rode a bus to school. I can still smell the diesel exhaust that my classmates and I would breathe in on our way to and from school.
Before the COVID-19 pandemic, nearly 25 million American children were exposed to this same diesel exhaust when they rode in over 500,000 predominantly diesel buses to school nationwide. This pollution not only harms our children’s health, but it also impacts student achievement. Studies show that transitioning to cleaner bus fleets can spur both health and academic improvements.
As we work to build back better and combat climate change, we must help school districts accelerate the deployment of zero-emission buses to reduce the exposure of our children to pollutants and cut greenhouse gas emissions.
That is why I am proud to introduce this bill together with Senator WARNock to authorize $25 billion for a new grant program to help school districts replace existing buses with clean, zero-emission buses.
This funding represents an essential aspect of building more equitable, sustainable transportation infrastructure, and it represents an investment in our children, our environment, and our future.

By Mr. THUNE (for himself and Mr. BROWN):

There being no objection, the text of the bill to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1274
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

There are many reasons why American households struggle to save for retirement, including the shift away from employer-based “defined benefit” plans and rising health care and long-term care costs. Longer life spans increase the risk of outliving retirement savings. According to the Georgetown University Center for Retirement Initiatives, nationwide only about 54 percent of private sector workers had access to a retirement plan through their employer in 2020. In Maine, the percentage is a bit higher: approximately 59 percent of private sector employees had access to a retirement plan at work. But that still leaves more than 200,000 employees without access to a plan.

In December 2020, provisions from my bipartisan Retirement Security Act were signed into law as part of the Setting Every Community Up for Retirement Enhancement or “SECURE” Act. These provisions will help to expand access to employer-provided retirement plans by reducing their cost and complexity, especially for small businesses. This law represents an important step forward, but more is needed.

Congress established SIMPLE (Savings Incentive Match Plan for Employees) retirement plans in 1996 to encourage small businesses to provide their employees with retirement plans. These plans are less costly and easier to navigate than traditional 401(k) plans and provide an alternative approach for employers to help their employees save for retirement.

The SIMPLE Plan Modernization Act, which I am introducing today with my colleague Senator Maggie Hassan, would make small employers more competitive in offering retirement savings Incentive Match Plan for Employees—eligible for a tax credit of up to $500 per year per military spouse. The credit would be available for three years per military spouse. The amount of the credit would be equal to $200 per military spouse, plus 100 percent of all employer contributions for that spouse, up to $300.

To receive the tax credit, small employers must make a military spouse immediately eligible for retirement plan participation within two months of hire. Upon plan eligibility, a military spouse must be eligible for any matching or non-elective contributions that are available to similarly situated employees—eligible for a tax credit of up to $500 per year per military spouse. The credit would be available for three years per military spouse. The amount of the credit would be equal to $200 per military spouse, plus 100 percent of all employer contributions for that spouse, up to $300.

The SIMPLE Plan Modernization Act, which I am introducing today with my colleague, Senator Mark Warner, would provide greater flexibility and access to employees and employers seeking to save for retirement by using SIMPLE plans.

This legislation would expand access to SIMPLE plans by increasing the contribution limit for most small businesses. In addition, the bill includes incentives to encourage small businesses to move from a SIMPLE plan to a 401(k) plan when they are able to make this change.

Like many Americans, spouses of active duty service members often face challenges when it comes to saving for retirement. Military spouses also face one hurdle that many others do not: frequent moves and changes in employment.

According to the Department of Defense, about one-third of military service members experience a permanent change of station move every year. When a service member moves, their spouse usually relocates with them. The military spouse may face periods of unemployment, where they are not able to participate in an employer-sponsored retirement plan. When they do find a new job, they often work part-time, despite seeking full-time work, or are only able to spend a few years with their employer before moving again. These factors often preclude them from being eligible to receive employer contributions to their retirement plan or from being fully vested in their plan.

The second bill I am introducing today focuses on helping to address this need by providing a tax credit to small employers who provide military spouses with accelerated eligibility for retirement plan participation and vesting.

In particular, the Military Spouses Retirement Security Act, which I am introducing with my colleague Senator Maggie Hassan, would make small employers—those with up to 100 employees—eligible for a tax credit of up to $500 per year per military spouse. The credit would be available for three years per military spouse. The amount of the credit would be equal to $200 per military spouse, plus 100 percent of all employer contributions for that spouse, up to $300.

SEC. 5. JABARA-HEYER NO HATE ACT.

(a) This section may be cited as the “Khalid Jabara and Heather Heyer National Opposition to Hate, Assault, and Threats to Equality of Act” or the “Jabara–Heyer NO HATE Act”.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The incidence of violence known as hate crimes, or crimes motivated by bias, poses a serious national problem.

(2) According to data obtained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the incidence of such violence increased in 2019, the most recent year for which data is available.

(3) In 1990, Congress enacted the Hate Crimes Statistics Act (Public Law 101–276; 28 U.S.C. 534 note) to provide the Federal Government, law enforcement agencies, and the public with data regarding the incidence of hate crimes; the Criminal Justice Statistics; the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd, Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act (division E of Public Law 111–84; 123 Stat. 2633) has enabled Federal authorities to understand and, where appropriate, investigate and prosecute hate crimes.

(4) A more complete understanding of the national problem posed by hate crime is in the public interest and supports the Federal interest in eradicating bias–motivated violence referenced in section 249(b)(1)(C) of title 18, United States Code.

(5) However, a complete understanding of the national problem posed by hate crimes is hindered by incomplete data from Federal, State, and local jurisdictions through the Uniform Crime Reports program authorized under section 534 of title 28, United States Code, and administered by the Bureau of Justice Statistics.

(6) Multiple factors contribute to the provision of inaccurate and incomplete data regarding the incidence of hate crimes through the Uniform Crime Reports program. For example, a significant contributing factor is the quality and quantity of training that State and local law enforcement agencies receive on the identification and reporting of suspected bias–motivated crimes.

(7) The problem of crimes motivated by bias is sufficiently serious, widespread, and interstate in nature as to warrant Federal financial assistance to States and local jurisdictions.

(b) Federal financial assistance with regard to certain violent crimes motivated by bias that would otherwise not be reported.

(1) REQUIREMENTS OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.—

(A) collect and analyze the information provided by States and units of local government under subsection (e) for the purpose of developing policies related to the provision of accurate data obtained under the Hate Crime Statistics Act (Public Law 101-275; 28 U.S.C. 534 note) by the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and

(B) for each calendar year beginning after the date of enactment of this Act, publish and submit to Congress a report based on the information collected and analyzed under subparagraph (A).

SA 1458. Mrs. BLACKBURN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 1445 proposed by Mr. SCHUMER (for Ms. HIRONO (for herself, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, and Mr. WARNOCK)) to the bill S. 957, to facilitate the expedited investigation of hate crimes during the COVID–19 pandemic.

SEC. 5. JABARA-HEYER NO HATE ACT.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the “Khalid Jabara and Heather Heyer National Opposition to Hate, Assault, and Threats to Equality Act of 2021” or the “Jabara-Heyer NO HATE Act”.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The incidence of violence known as hate crimes, or crimes motivated by bias, poses a serious national problem.

(2) Accurate data obtained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the incidence of such violence increased in 2019, the most recent year for which data is available.

(3) In 2019, Congress enacted the Hate Crime Statistics Act (Public Law 101-275; 28 U.S.C. 534 note) to provide the Federal Government, law enforcement agencies, and the public with reliable data regarding the incidence of hate crime. The Hate Crime Statistics Act and the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd, Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act (division E of Public Law 111-34; 123 Stat. 3953) have enabled Federal authorities to understand and, where appropriate, investigate and prosecute hate crimes.

(4) A more complete understanding of the national problem posed by hate crime is in the public interest and supports the Federal interest in eradicating bias-motivated violence as evidenced by Section 248(b)(1)(C) of title 18, United States Code.

(5) However, a complete understanding of the national problem posed by hate crimes is hindered by inaccurate and incomplete data re-

(6) Multiple factors contribute to the provision of inaccurate and incomplete data regarding the incidence of hate crime through the Uniform Crime Reports program. A significant contributing factor is the lack of data regarding hate crime provided by local law enforcement agencies. Law enforcement agencies receive on the identification and reporting of suspected bias-motivated crimes.

(7) The problem of crimes motivated by bias is sufficiently serious, widespread, and interstate in nature as to warrant Federal financial assistance to States and local jurisdictions to work together as partners in the investigation and prosecution of such crimes.

Ambassador to the United Nations, Samantha Power worked through back channels to trigger a Treasury review of ISRA’s sanctioned status in an effort to have them delisted.

In an effort to have these emails un-redacted, I have written letters, but understood Ms. Power’s involvement in what could be an alarming abuse of power. I sent a letter to Ms. Power and USAID requesting information on February 18, 2021. Ms. Power responded to my letter on March 23, 2021, the date of her committee hearing, failed to answer the questions or provide the un-redacted versions of these emails. On March 31, 2021, I sent a second letter to Ms. Power urging her to fully respond to my initial letter. I have yet to receive a response.

Unfortunately, due to Ms. Power’s lack of transparency, I must object to any consideration of this nomination. I cannot in good conscience vote for Ms. Power until I receive a full response to the questions posed in my letters, reviewed the un-redacted versions of these emails, and confirmed that she did not attempt to utilize her office to delist ISRA through back channels.

HONORING THE CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY OF THE MORNINGSIDE ASSOCIATION

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO
OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Ms. DeLAURO. Madam Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to rise today to join the families of the Morningside community and the City of Milford in marking the 100th Anniversary of the establishment of the Morningside Association—a very special milestone for this unique organization. Chartered by the Connecticut legislature in 1921, Morningside Association created a tight-knit, welcoming community where families have flourished for generations.

Nestled along the shores of Long Island Sound, the Morningside property has had a rich history. The parcel was included in the original land purchase from the Paugussett Tribe and for the first several hundred years was known as “Merwin’s Farm” at Pond Point and was both a working farm and home to sixteen generations of the Merwin family. In the mid-1860’s, the land was purchased by New England industrialist Henry G. Thompson. Mr. Thompson built a manor house of twenty-two rooms, surrounded by wide expanses of lawn, rare, beautiful trees and elaborate flower gardens. The Morningside moniker was quickly given to his new home by Mr. Thompson because it faced the rising sun. In 1912 the property was offered for sale. Specialists in developing small residential communities, the owners of the Yale Land Company, Milton T. Yale and Will, recognized an ideal opportunity for a shorefront development. After dividing the land into building lots, they laid out and constructed Morningside Drive on the shore front and Ridgwood Drive bordering the woodland, with nine roads running due west to connect these drives and provide settings for homes.

By 1921 the majority of the lots had been sold and the Yale Land Company had gradually withdrawn its policy of active maintenance. It was then that the Morningside property owners decided to form an association and seek a charter from the state which would enable them to preserve the unique character of the Morningside neighborhood. They successfully lobbied the state legislature for the charter, designating the community as an improvement district. Over the course of the last century the Morningside Association has guided the community through a multitude of challenges including the transition from a summer to year-round residential community, the installation of a private storm drain and sewer line system, and the expansion of the community’s borders. The Association has also worked closely with the City of Milford, particularly with the installation and maintenance of the Morningside revetment—a granite wall made necessary due to the damage and erosion caused by hurricanes that hit the area in the early half of the 20th century.

Beyond the physical maintenance of the property, the Association is also responsible for the special sense of community that is Morningside. From the annual July 4th celebration to the shared enjoyment of the water and nature, the Association makes every effort to ensure that the families who call Morningside home are proud to do so. I am honored to have this opportunity to extend my thanks and appreciation to the members of the Morningside Association, past and present, who have and continue to work so diligently to create and enrich such a vibrant community. My heartfelt congratulations to them as they mark their centennial anniversary. As we say in Italian—C’ent Anni—to another hundred years.

PAYCHECK FAIRNESS ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, April 15, 2021

Ms. McCOLLUM. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Paycheck Fairness Act (H.R. 7). I am a proud cosponsor of this legislation which seeks to end the wage gap once and for all. Women in America, especially women of color, make far less than their male counterparts. While we have made progress closing this gap in recent years, this past year has the potential to set this movement back by decades.

The COVID–19 pandemic has disproportionately affected women. Unstable childcare and disruptions to school schedules have forced millions of mothers to leave the workforce. Additionally, women disproportionately work lower wage hourly jobs that have been slashed across the country due to store closings and other pandemic-related restrictions. This has resulted in the majority of pandemic-related job losses. Women also hold a greater share of frontline essential jobs that have faced greater risks of exposure such as nurses, teachers, home health care providers, flight attendants, transportation workers, grocery store clerks, child care providers, and countless other positions. Simply put, we are getting through this pandemic and are on the brink of beating COVID–19 because of the tireless work of American women—and they deserve tangible support.

While we are encouraged by the passage of the American Rescue Plan Act, we must immediately support the provisions that help protect working women, we also encourage our colleagues to consider this package as a down payment. We need transformative, structural change to fight against the economic, financial, gender, and racial injustices. We need massive investments in our child care infrastructure, including universal child care and early learning, $15 minimum wage, and paid leave programs; without these, women will be set back a generation by this pandemic.

For decades, women have unionized and joined forces to fight for fair hiring practices, workplace protections, and our ongoing fight for equal pay. We simply cannot turn this clock back and we must continue to protect our right to organize and in doing so, fight to narrow the income gap. It will take all of us to deliver the energy and resources to ensure that our daughters and grandchildren do not need to acknowledge Equal Pay Day in future years to come.

Sincerely,

Betty McCollum, Lucille Roybal-Allard, Grace Meng, Congresswoman Brenda Lawrence, and 32 other Democratic women in Congress highlighting the disproportionate effect COVID–19 has had on women and calling for structural change that would like to include in the RECORD that statement.

Again, I rise in strong support of the Paycheck Fairness Act (H.R. 7) and I urge my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

Today is Equal Pay Day, the day in 2021 where women’s earnings finally caught up to what men earned in 2020. While strides have been made to close this earnings gap, this past year has the potential of erasing years of progress because of the disproportionate impact the COVID–19 pandemic has had on women.

The pandemic has dealt an unprecedented blow to every aspect of American society, taking more than half a million lives and costing our economy trillions of dollars. Our nation is facing multiple crises: the COVID–19 virus, economic uncertainty, and a caregiving shortage. As such, while the pandemic has caused virtually every American to struggle in some fashion, the brunt of this disaster has been felt by women—especially women of color.

Due to unstable child care and disruptions to school schedules, millions of mothers have been forced to leave the workforce to care for a child. Roughly 10 million working mothers have had a younger, and many of these women have been forced to leave their jobs to care for their children. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, 865,000 women left the labor force in September 2020 alone—more than four times the number of men who left the labor force that month.

Women are being forced out of the workforce for other reasons as well. Women disproportionately work lower wage hourly jobs that have been slashed across the country due to store closings and other pandemic-related restrictions. This has resulted in women suffering the majority of pandemic-related job losses, totaling more than 3.4 million net jobs, or 55 percent of the overall net job loss since the start of the crisis. This is especially true for Black, Latina, Asian American, and Pacific Islander and Native American women who are significantly more likely to work hourly jobs that have either been eliminated or had their hours greatly reduced over the last year.

Even women who have maintained their job during this crisis have disproportionately been affected. Women hold a greater share of frontline essential jobs that have faced greater risks of exposure, such as nurses, teachers, home health care providers, flight attendants, transportation workers, grocery store clerks, child care providers, and countless other positions. Simply put, we are getting through this pandemic and are on the brink of beating COVID–19 because of the tireless work of American women—and they deserve tangible support.

While we are encouraged by the passage of the American Rescue Plan Act, we must immediately support the provisions that help protect working women, we also encourage our colleagues to consider this package as a down payment. We need transformative, structural change to fight against the economic, financial, gender, and racial injustices. We need massive investments in our child care infrastructure, including universal child care and early learning, $15 minimum wage, and paid leave programs; without these, women will be set back a generation by this pandemic.

For decades, women have unionized and joined forces to fight for fair hiring practices, workplace protections, and our ongoing fight for equal pay. We simply cannot turn this clock back and we must continue to protect our right to organize and in doing so, fight to narrow the income gap. It will take all of us to deliver the energy and resources to ensure that our daughters and grandchildren do not need to acknowledge Equal Pay Day in future years to come.

NAVALNY RESOLUTION INTRODUCTION

HON. MARCY KAPTUR
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I rise to introduce a bipartisan resolution condemning... the Kremlin’s brutal treatment of Russian opposition leader Alexei Navalny. I am thankful to Congressman BRIAN FITZPATRICK for co-leading this resolution with me. I am also thankful to Chairman MECKES, Europe Subcommittee Chairman KEATING, Ranking Member MCCaul, Congressman QUIGLEY, Congressman PFUIGER, and Congressman MIEIER for their leadership, support, and original cosponsorship on this measure. Mr. Navalny has been a leader in uncovering gross corruption at the highest levels of the Kremlin that sustain that country’s brutal regime. His willingness to regularly face the dangers of social media, his ability to reach out to and organize Russian citizens has been admirable. Tragically on August 20, 2020, Vladimir Putin’s thugs poisoned Mr. Navalny with the nerve agent, Novichok that nearly ended his life.

After making a recovery in Germany, Mr. Navalny bravely returned to Russia where he was detained and transferred to a modern-day gulag where he faced torture.

To protest these despicable conditions, he has been on a hunger strike for close to three weeks, and is now in critical condition.

Russia has a deeply disturbing history of violence and assassinations to silence dissent leaders like Boris Nemtsov, Sergei Magnitsky, Alexander Litvinenko and many more.

In response, this resolution strongly condemns the Kremlin’s gross mistreatment of Mr. Navalny, calls for him to receive adequate medical care, and urges the Biden Administration to take all appropriate actions to secure his release, including through increased sanctions.

Additionally, the resolution expresses gratitude for the critical work of Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty in shining a light on these issues, and urges the State Department to take greater action to protect the broadcaster’s physical presence in Moscow in face of the Kremlin’s disturbing attacks on it.

I urge all my colleagues to support this legislation.

INTRODUCTION OF THE REBUILDING AMERICA’S AIRPORT INFRASTRUCTURE ACT

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, today I introduced the Rebuilding America’s Airport Infrastructure Act of 2021. This legislation makes a long-overdue update to the Passenger Facility Charge (PFC) by increasing the maximum-allowable PFC by just $1.00/year, starting in 2023, for four years and then indexes the fee to inflation every year thereafter. This increase to $8.50 by 2026 would restore the value of the PFC to when it was last increased in 2000.

Airports are an essential part of American infrastructure and economic competitiveness, supporting $1.4 trillion in annual economic output and 11.5 million jobs. The COVID-19 pandemic has devastated airports’ finances with a combination of lower passenger levels and a higher demand for health infrastructure improvements to keep the flying public safe.

These challenges come on top of a 5-year $115 billion infrastructure backlog that is a result of the federal government’s failure to modernize one of the main funding mechanisms for airports: the PFC.

The PFC a locally imposed, per-passenger user fee that improves capacity and allows for airport upgrades, reduces noise, or increases competition among airlines. PFC revenues complement grants from the Airport Improvement Program (AIP) for eligible capital projects. But under current law, the maximum PFC amount airports can collect is capped at $4.50 per passenger per flight segment. Congress last adjusted the PFC to $4.50 in 2000, but with inflation and the rising cost of construction the purchasing power of the PFC has declined 40 percent. As a result, many aging airports have reached their debt capacity and either cannot finance new projects or have had to stretch them over a longer timeframe, increasing the costs and delaying the benefits for passengers.

Modernizing the PFC would raise tens of billions of dollars for airport infrastructure improvements while requiring zero taxpayer dollars, not increasing the national debt, and adding billions of dollars to U.S. Gross Domestic Product.

The Rebuilding America’s Airport Infrastructure Act will ensure that airports are safe, economically competitive, and the envy of the world.

TRIBUTE TO THE HON. WALTER F. MONDALE, FORMER VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Madam Speaker, I rise in tribute to the Honorable Walter F. Mondale, former Vice President of the United States of America, upon his death this week at age 93. Vice President Mondale was a global statesman, a national political leader, a remarkable legislator, a proud Minnesotan, a devoted hus- band, a wonderful father and grandfather, and a friend to people from all over the world.

Growing up in Elmore, Minnesota, Mondale never forgot his small-town roots. Generations of Minnesotans hold him in deep affection, because of his unique ability to connect through his humor, humility and firsthand which was nurtured by his beloved wife Joan. Together from their marriage in 1955 until her death in 2014, Walter and Joan were a team who represented Minnesota and our country with grace, class and dignity.

I am inspired and reinforced by Joan, Walter Mondale’s life in public service was extraor- dinary. He served in the United States Army, was the Minnesota Attorney General, and represented Minnesota in the United States Senate. One of his most important roles was rede- fining the Vice President’s role in the United States as a partnership with the President. He also earned the 1984 Democratic nomination for President and broke a barrier by naming Ger- aldine Ferraro to be the first woman Vice Presidential candidate on a major party ticket. And while serving as Ambassador to Japan, Walter and Joan deepened and nourished their commitment to the power of American diplomacy.

Vice President Mondale’s deep and abiding dedication to civil rights, children, health care and the environment have left a profound legacy for current and future generations of Americans. His pioneering leadership in protecting our air, land and water reflected his un- derstanding that our precious lands and waters are the heart of who we are as Min- nesotans and Americans, and that requires us to be responsible stewards of our planet.

His authorship of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act in 1968 was a watershed moment in the environmental movement, bringing much-needed attention to these beautiful but threat- ened rivers across the country, including the Saint Croix National Scenic Riverway in Min- nesota and Wisconsin. He was also among the first and most steadfast champions for the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness, be- cause he understood that our biodiversity and clean water require permanent protection.

I am deeply grateful for Vice President Mon- dale’s kind and wise counsel to me in Con- gress as I have worked to build on the suc- cess of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, the Clean Air and Clean Water Acts, to ensure we are protecting our air, land and water for our children and grandchildren.

Madam Speaker, please join me in rising to honor the life of this extraordinary leader, and in extending sincerest condolences to the Mondale family. Walter Mondale and the United States was blessed to have Walter F. Mondale provide us with a lifetime of service.

SECURE AND FAIR ENFORCEMENT BANKING ACT OF 2021

SPEECH OF
HON. BARBARA LEE
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, April 19, 2021

Ms. LEE of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1996, the Secure and Fair Enforcement Banking Act, or the SAFE Banking Act, of which I am an original cosponsor. I want to thank my friend Congressman PERLMUTTER as well as Chairwoman WATERS and Chairman NADLER for their leadership on this issue.

This bill creates protections for financial institutions to be able to provide financial services to state-legal cannabis businesses and ancillary businesses. This would allow these businesses to access the banking system instead of relying on cash transactions.

Marijuana is currently legal in 36 states, 4 territories and the District of Columbia for medical or recreational use. This is an important issue as financial institutions prohibit dealing with cannabis businesses because of its current Schedule I, federal status. We need to ensure that these legitimate businesses have access to banking services as more states have medicinal and adult use cannabis programs. Many of these businesses are operating as cash only, which has created many issues for business owners and employees and has led to safety concerns for our communities.

I look forward to continuing to work with my colleagues on this and other marijuana related issues as they relate to racial and economic inequality. The SAFE Banking Act helps provide a solution to this financial issue, but we must not forget the larger systemic injustice of cannabis prohibition, which has disproportionately impacted Black and brown communities through the war on drugs. We must work together to end federal cannabis prohibition and to pass the MORE Act.

HONORING THE LIFE OF FLOYD LITTLE

HON. JOHN KATKO
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Mr. KATKO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of legendary Syracuse University Football Player and treasured member of the Syracuse community, Mr. Floyd Little, who passed away on January 1, 2021.

Floyd Little played for the Syracuse Orange Football Team from 1964 to 1966 and donned the number 44. This iconic jersey number was assigned to some of the most accomplished Syracuse University running backs including Jim Brown and Ernie Davis. Like these legendary athletes, Little achieved great success during his college playing career, earning three All-American Titles and was later inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame. After leaving Syracuse, Little was drafted by the Denver Broncos in the 1967 and quickly emerged as a star in the National Football League (NFL). In his nine seasons in the league, Little was selected to five Pro-Bowls, amassed over 12,000 all-purpose yards, was the league’s rushing leader in 1971, and was later inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame in 2010.

Outside of football, Floyd Little was a compassionate and kind-hearted man who dedicated much of his life to community service. He leveraged his success to give back to others and empower his neighbors. Little became a distinguished speaker for charities and fundraisers across the country and frequently donated his time to numerous philanthropic endeavors. He was particularly proud to support the annual Tom Coughlin Jay Fund fundraiser, which raises money to fight childhood cancer, and worked extensively with the Walter Camp Football Foundation, which provides athletic opportunities to youth across the country. Like his success in football, Little earned countless accolades for his generosity and commitment to serving others. Little and his family returned to the Central New York region in 2011 out of a desire to serve his alma mater and the community he loved. Central New York has undoubtedly benefitted from his presence over the past decade, and we all join his friends and family in mourning this loss.

Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues in the House join me in honoring Mr. Floyd Little. Little’s athletic legacy is one that is permanently cemented in record-books and Syracuse culture, and his crowning achievements will live on for generations to come. More importantly, however, Little will be remembered as an incredibly generous man who lived his life in service to others. His charitable work remains in the hearts of the thousands of people he helped throughout his life, and he will be remembered as a towering figure who came to be admired wherever he went.

REMEMBERING JOSEPH “JOE” R. MERLO

HON. TIM RYAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Mr. RYAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of Joseph “Joe” R. Merlo, who passed away on December 22, 2020.

Joe was born on June 8, 1945 and was beloved by many people in our community. He was a husband, father, uncle, great uncle, grandfather, great grandfather, cousin, and friend.

Like many who grew up in Niles, Ohio, Joe was a legend. If you didn’t get your haircut by Joe at some point in your life, then you weren’t really a resident of Niles.

I will always remember Joe for providing me with sage advice early in my political career. Anyone that knew Joe knew he was always fun to be around and was a true Northeast Ohioan.

My deepest sympathies go out to Joe’s family and to all whose lives he touched.

HONORING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF CONNECTICUT’SOMICRON CHAPTER OF DELTA KAPPA GAMMA

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO
OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Ms. DELAURO. Madam Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to join the members of Connecticut’s Omicron Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma as they celebrate their 50th Anniversary—a remarkable milestone for this very special organization.

The Delta Kappa Gamma International Society is a unique organization whose membership includes tens of thousands of women educators from across the globe. Members focus on promoting their professional and personal growth—striving for excellence in education and dedicating themselves to making a difference in their students’ lives, in their communities, and in the world. Over the course of the last fifty years, the members of Connecticut’s Omicron Chapter have done just that.

One of sixteen chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma in the state, members of the Omicron Chapter work throughout the Naugatuck Valley. They have made it their mission to provide unique programs to the communities of the Valley that blend education and service. The have distributed books to newborns, young children, children of prisoners, and adult education students. Many of their members have knitted afghans and hats for both babies and cancer patients. They have helped to raise funds for UN-sponsored charities, the Ronald McDonald House, and the Umbrella, a shelter for victims of domestic abuse.

Perhaps most inspiring are Omicron’s efforts on behalf of the next generations of educators. They understand the importance of nurturing those that will follow them in their professional pursuits. The Omicron chapter has sponsored the tuition for more than one-hundred fifty young women to attend Laurel Girls State, a one-week program rooted in civic education where they learn about how state and local government functions through a hands-on approach with state and local officials guiding the way. In addition, they also sponsor annual college scholarships to high school students planning to pursue careers in education.

From dedicating their professional careers to providing our young people with the strongest of foundations on which to build their future success to developing educational programs that enrich the education of children outside the classroom, the Omicron chapter and its members have left an indelible mark on countless lives. I am proud to stand today to extend my heartfelt thanks and sincere appreciation to Connecticut’s Omicron Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma as they celebrate their 50th Anniversary. As we say in Italian—C’ent Anni—to another one hundred years.
Ms. Fryar had an incredible ability to connect with people and was my MVP (most valuable proponent) in Colleton county. She believed strongly, just as I do, that we must all find something to do for which we are not paid. Her volunteer efforts were extensive, and all were focused on serving her beloved Colleton County. Her commitment to the community includes serving as a member of the S.C. Department of Education Personal Pathways Committee, the Keep Colleton Beautiful Committee, the Clemson University Cooperative Extension Futures Task Force Committee, the Lawton Cooper Food Bank Board, and many other boards and commissions. She was the former Director for Youth Leadership Colleton and the former Coordinator for Backpack Buddies in Colleton County. She held leadership offices with the Colleton County Branch of the NAACP, Colleton County Improvement Collaborative, the HCA Hospital Board of Trustees, the Colleton County School Board of Trustees, the American Cancer Society (Colleton County), the American Cancer Society Rehabilitation Committee (Colleton County), and the South Carolina Association of Cooperative Extension Secretaries. Ms. Fryar remained dedicated to her alma mater and served as the liaison for Ruffin High School and the Colleton County Vocational Center. She also served on the Colleton County Transition Committee for the merger of Ruffin High School and Walterboro High School. She was also devoted to her church and served as several capacities including as a minister to the congregation.

She was married to David L. Fryar, and they are the parents of three daughters, Katrina Fryar of Columbia, South Carolina, Ronda Cropp (Jeffrey) of Charlotte, North Carolina, and Muriel Fryar of Atlanta, Georgia. She also had two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Madam Speaker, I ask you and my colleagues to join me in celebrating the life and legacy of Lynette Fryar. Her passion for Colleton County’s people and places was unparalleled and her impact on her community will endure forever.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE EL DORADO SPRINGS PATRIOT PARKWAY

HON. VICKY HARTZLER OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Mrs. HARTZLER, Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and celebrate the community project of Patriot Parkway in El Dorado Springs, Missouri, which will be the adornment of 48 American flags along U.S. Highway 54 within city limits.

In a time of division, the El Dorado Springs Chamber of Commerce and members of the community have come together in an act of patriotism and unity. These flags will be displayed every year from Memorial Day to Veterans Day to commemorate our veterans and to show some American pride.

This project was a vision years ago by Jack Tough, a dedicated member of his community who unfortunately passed before he could see it through. However, his dream came true by the efforts of his son, Jackson Tough, and his fellow members of the El Dorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, who raised funds in the community to bring Patriot Parkway to life. Please join me in celebrating this act of patriotism and community pride.
ER MCCARTHY: On behalf of the American Bankers Association, I am writing to express our strong support for H.R. 1996, the Secure and Fair Enforcement Banking Act (SAFE Banking Act) of 2021 introduced by Representatives Ed Perlmutter (D-CO), Steve Stivers (R-OH), Warren Davidson (R-OH), Nedly Velázquez (D-NY) and over 150 bipartisan cosponsors.

This legislation, scheduled for consideration on this week’s suspension calendar, addresses the conflict between federal and state law and whether banks can serve cannabis and cannabis related businesses. This issue has become a challenge for so many of our nation’s communities and the banks that serve them. We were pleased to see this legislation passed the House of Representatives last Congress with over 300 bipartisan votes. With more states legalizing some form of cannabis use, we are hopeful that H.R. 996 will once again receive a favorable and strong bipartisan vote.

Since 1996, voters across the country have determined that it is appropriate to allow their citizens to use cannabis for medical purposes and, since 2012, for adult use. Currently, 36 states have legalized cannabis for medical or adult use and that number continues to grow. Nevertheless, current federal law prevents banks from safely banking cannabis businesses, as well as the ancillary financial services to cannabis-related legitimate businesses. This places banks in an untenable position in dealing with these state-authorized businesses.

Currently, the only direction available to financial institutions in connection with cannabis-related accounts comes from guidance issued by the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) in 2014. That guidance, which references a now rescinded memorandum from the U.S. Department of Justice (the “Cole Memo”), describes how financial institutions must report cannabis-related business activity consistent with their Bank Secrecy Act obligations. It does not create a safe harbor or otherwise modify federal monetary, civil or criminal law. If not properly enforced, it merely creates a system for reporting activity that is illegal under federal law but otherwise legal under state law.

While some financial institutions have weighed the prevailing climate of non-enforcement and have decided to shoulder the risk in order to serve the needs of their communities, the majority of financial institutions will not take the legal, regulatory, or reputational risk associated with banking cannabis-related businesses without congressional action. As a result, state-legal businesses are being excluded from the mainstream financial system.

The problems, though, are not limited to those businesses that have direct contact with the marijuana plant, such as growers and dispensaries. The impact of the divide between state and federal law extends to any person or business that derives revenue from a cannabis firm—including real estate owners, security firms, utilities, vendors and employees of cannabis businesses, as well as investors. As the legal state-cannabis industry continues to grow, the indirect connections to cannabis revenues will also continue to expand. Without greater clarity, that entire portion of economic activity in legal cannabis states will continue to be marginalized from the banking system.

The problem is that the SAFE Banking Act would be an important step toward enabling financial services for cannabis-related businesses. The bill specifies that proceeds from a legitimate cannabis business cannot be considered unlawful under federal money laundering statutes or any other federal law, which is necessary to allow the provision of financial services to cannabis-related legitimate businesses as well as any ancillary businesses that derive some portion of their income from those businesses. The bill would also direct FinCEN, and the federal banking regulators through the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council, to issue guidance and exam procedures for banks doing business with cannabis-related legitimate businesses. Explicit, consistent direction from federal financial regulators will provide needed clarity for banks and help them better evaluate the risks and supervisory expectations for cannabis-related customers. The SAFE Banking Act is not a cure all for the cannabis banking challenge, but it is a measure that helps clarify many issues for the banking industry and regulators.

ABA is pleased to support the SAFE Banking Act and urges members of the House of Representatives to vote in favor of this legislation when it is brought up on this week’s suspension calendar.

Sincerely,

ROB NICHOLS.

ning to address the significant challenges to public safety, as well as regulatory and tax costs (and is in some states subject to tax, which is necessary to allow the provision of financial services for cannabis-related businesses.

As we noted in our May 2019 letter to the congressional leadership, passage of the SAFE Banking Act or similar legislation, in no way constitutes an endorsement of any
use. Currently, forty-seven states, the Disand territories have legal marijuana with laws that are the regime form of recreational or medical cannabis use (including CBD/low THC).

During the November 2020 election, voters in multiple states approved ballot measures to regulate cannabis for medical and/or adult
use. Currently, forty-seven states, the Dis-
District of Columbia, and four U.S. territories have legalized marijuana in some form.

In forty-seven states, the District of Co-and four territories, cannabis is regulated. In states where it is legal, small financial institutions to provide banking and other financial services to cannabis-related businesses operating lawfully under state regulations. Without access to traditional fi-businesses, these businesses operate exclusively or primarily in cash, making those businesses targets for criminal activity and hindering efforts to ensure regulatory and tax compliance and track financial flows.
This status quo—a rapidly expanding, multi-billion-dollar national marketplace without access to the national banking systems—is untenable.

As we noted in our May 2019 letter to the
congressional leadership, passage of the SAFE Banking Act or similar legislation, in no way constitutes an endorsement of any state or territory’s specific approach to the legalization of marijuana-related transactions, and the Act is in no way an endorsement of the legalization of medical or retail marijuana in those jurisdictions that choose to pursue such an approach. But regardless of how individual policymakers feel about states permitting the use of medical or recreational marijuana, the reality of the situation requires federal rules that permit a sensible banking regime for legal businesses.

We further emphasized that passage of this legislation “reflects a recognition of the re-

SECURE AND FAIR ENFORCEMENT BANKING ACT OF 2021

SPREECH OF

HON. WARREN DAVIDSON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, April 19, 2021

Mr. DAVIDSON. Mr. Speaker, I include in the RECORD the following letters of endorsement for H.R. 1996, the SAFE Banking Act of 2021.

ARIZONA DISPENSARIES ASSOCIATION, 17 March 2021,
Hon. Ed Perlmutter,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE PERLMUTTER: The Arizona Dispensaries Association would like to thank you for your leadership as you move forward with the reintroduction of the Secure and Fair Enforcement (SAFE) Banking Act of 2021. The SAFE Banking Act, sponsored by Representatives Ed Perlmutter (D-CO), Nydia Velázquez (D-NY), Steve Stivers (R-OH) and Warren Davidson (R-OH), had strong bipartisan support in the 116th Congress with 206 cosponsors, and passed the House 321–103. This legislation includes an important provision of the previous SAFE banking provision, Choke Point. Specifically, it prohibits a federal banking agency from ordering a bank to terminate a banking relationship with a legal business unless there is a valid reason that is not based solely on reputational risk.

The ostensible intent of Choke Point program was to prevent criminal fraud. However, in actuality, federal officials pressured banks to close accounts of businesses operating within state and federal law without legal recourse or due process solely because the officials perceived the businesses’ existence. Under Operation Choke Point, businesses that were operating legally suddenly found banks terminating their accounts, typically for reasons that the business had had for years, without explanation. While the program was targeted at gun dealers and payday lenders, other businesses, such as medical marijuana businesses, were also affected. No legal business should be targeted solely based on the political bias of a particular administration.

Even after Operation Choke Point officially ended, its effects remained. Financial services companies that are licensed and regulated still had their accounts closed with very little explanation. Legitimate bank customers, like traditional installment lenders, who have provided safe and affordable small-dollar credit to consumers in their communities for over a century, deserve fair access and fair treatment by federal banking agencies.

Limiting the availability of lawful goods and services to consumers in an attempt to punish politically disfavored businesses harms consumers and sets a bad precedent. Government initiatives must be carried out on a sound, nonpolitical basis. We strongly urge members of the House of Representatives to support the SAFE Banking Act.

Sincerely,

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE PERLMUTTER: I am writing on behalf of the Bermuda Insurers and Reinsurers (ABIR), which represents the public policy interests of Bermuda’s leading insurers and reinsurers and makes up over 25% of the global reinsurance market based on property & casualty net premiums earned. ABIR members employ over 43,000 Americans in the U.S. and protect consumers around the world by providing affordable and accessible insurance protection and peace of mind.

ABIR writes in support of H.R.1996, the SAFE Banking Act, and to thank you for your leadership on this issue.

As you know, the current lack of harmonization between federal and state laws on cannabis banking deeply affects insurers and reinsurers. We support Congress addressing this important issue for all financial services providers and specifically and applaud the inclusion of insurance and other financial products or services insurers in the SAFE Banking Act.

Similar to other financial services providers, insurers are being forced to restrict providing insurance and other financial products or services to people working in state-legal cannabis jobs simply due to the source of their paycheck. The SAFE Banking Act would allow the financial services industry to grow, thereby contributing to the cannabis industry and will result in greater transparency for the state-legal operators.

Thank you for your leadership on this narrow, tailored yet profoundly important issue, and we look forward to working with you and your colleagues as legislation moves forward.

Sincerely,

John M. HUFF
President & CEO

DEAR CONGRESSMAN PERLMUTTER: The Cannabis Business Association of Illinois (CBAI) would like to thank you for your re-introduction of the Secure and Fair Enforcement or SAFE Banking Act. We again are in full support of this measure.

In 2019, Illinois signed into law groundbreaking cannabis social equity standards to ensure the diversity and inclusion of minority operators within the newly legalized adult-use cannabis industry. These standards have quickly become the national template for other states seeking to develop social equity programs tied to their cannabis legalization efforts.

Illinois’ social equity applicants have been significantly hindered due to their limited access to private capital and are prevented from obtaining capital due to the regulatory uncertainty in the cannabis industry. The SAFE Banking Act will not only resolve these financial challenges but also help to bolster the success factor for many of these social equity applicants.

The SAFE Banking Act would also be a great boon to the existing Illinois cannabis industry; their employees, their communities, their customers, and of greater importance, their patients. The Illinois cannabis industry has paved the way for other states, bringing in over $1 billion in cannabis sales in 2020, a sum of money that is difficult to move without access to traditional banking services. This lack of access to normal banking services, available to every other legal business in Illinois, is unfair and inequitable. The attack on ATM machines located in every Illinois dispensary during the Chicago August mass looting is a perfect example of the industry’s vulnerability because of cash insistent transactions. Several of our association’s members were targeted several times and sustained massive physical damage as well as product theft.

Even Illinois’ Treasurer, Michael Frerichs, is a staunch supporter of the SAFE Banking Act’s passage. He has gone on record stating the need to provide normal financial banking services to the cannabis industry creating more transparency and accountability within this nascent industry. Allowing electronic payments between businesses promotes a healthier, safer economy. Currently financial institutions prohibit these transactions inhibiting everything from inventory to specialty equipment purchases to software maintenance contracts even association dues payments!

CBA would like to thank you for your efforts on behalf of the industry. This is a very important piece of legislation and we are grateful for your leadership in putting together a bipartisan advocacy team. If our statewide association can help in moving this legislation forward, please let us know.

Regards,

PAMELA J. ALTHOFF

DEAR REPRESENTATIVES, PERLMUTTER, STIVERS, VALEZQUEZ, AND DAVIDSON: It is with great enthusiasm that we support the re-introduction of the Secure and Fair Enforcement Banking Act of 2021 ("SAFE Banking Act"). The California Cannabis Industry Association ("CCIA") is the largest and most influential trade association in the state of California representing the diverse interests of the cannabis industry: retail, cultivation, manufacturing, delivery, distribution, testing, insurance, packaging, and various ancillary services. Our membership includes nearly 5,000 businesses and represents nearly 15,000 employees across the state. SAFE Banking is not only critical to the economic success in California, but could also have a transformative impact in improving public safety and making the cannabis industry more equitable.

I. SAFE BANKING CREATES OPPORTUNITY FOR CANNABIS BUSINESS SUCCESS

While cannabis is one of the fastest growing sectors in the United States, BIPOC individuals (Black, Indigenous, People of Color) have struggled to participate due to systemic economic exclusion to access to capital. While some cities such as Oakland, San Francisco and Los Angeles have developed social equity programs with varying degrees of success, without access to capital, licenses obtained under these frameworks continue to be associated with high costs. Unfortunately, even in states like California that have equity programs written into their cannabis statutes, BIPOC owners fall prey to predatory business arrangements where a larger cannabis company will be effectively paying for a minority owner’s management services agreement while the minority owner becomes a figurehead.

SAFE Banking would allow more banks, including community banks, to participate with the cannabis industry providing more opportunities for potential business owners. Additionally, SAFE Banking would make traditional financial instruments—like lines of credit—available to small operators. That capital is often the difference between success or failure for a small business. Currently, most cannabis businesses are funded through private generational wealth or investment, areas in which BIPOC individuals lag when compared to their peers. Every year women of color get less than 1% of total venture capital funding. Further, data from 2019 indicates that only 20% Latino and Black individuals nationwide, in all industries, were able to raise over $1 million in venture capital, making cannabis ownership all but unattainable when start-up, operations costs, and licensing fees are considered.

While SAFE Banking would not resolve the issues of systematic economic racism, the potential to establish relationships with traditional lenders is a critical step in mitigating the damage done by the War on Drugs.

II. SAFE BANKING ENHANCES PUBLIC SAFETY

During the summer of 2020, over three dozen cannabis businesses in California were the target of robberies and break-ins, adding to a long string of criminal activity in the state. Cannabis businesses known to have cash on hand become easy targets for petty and organized criminals. In most cases from last summer’s burglars were caught on security footage stealing cash registers, safes, and ATMs. The looting and robberies were so problematic that California’s Bureau of Cannabis Control’s state’s top regulator for cannabis activity, removed all cannabis businesses from their website.

Without question, an act of vandalism is distressing to any business, but cannabis businesses are faced with unique challenges due to lack of access to traditional financial services. In 2020, the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration (CDTPA) because of CO VI D-19, many cannabis businesses who regulate cannabis in California who have Excise taxes in cash, were sitting on excise tax payments, waiting until the local branches to reopen. These excise tax payments were looted along with other cash and inventory.

The reduction of cash on site at cannabis businesses will help reduce the chances of robbery, burglary, and theft, but could also improve public health. Like many other states, over the course of the last year California designated cannabis businesses as essential and our operators saw many businesses to buy medicinal and adult use cannabis. However, all cash transactions require significantly more face-to-face interaction than bank deposits. This is contrary to a Centers for Disease Control recommendation to limit cash sales.

III. SAFE BANKING IS A JOB CREATOR

California has the largest cannabis economy in the country, but it is also imperative in improving public safety and making the cannabis industry more equitable. SAFE Banking could increase economic growth by ensuring that cannabis business could conduct regular payroll and deposit marijuana business deposit into out-of-state banks.

SAFE Banking would allow more banks, including community banks, to participate with the cannabis industry providing more opportunities for potential business owners. Additionally, SAFE Banking would make traditional financial instruments—like lines of credit—available to small operators. That capital is often the difference between success or failure for a small business. Currently, most cannabis businesses are funded through private generational wealth or investment, areas in which BIPOC individuals lag when compared to their peers. Every year women of color get less than 1% of total venture capital funding. Further, data from 2019 indicates that only 20% Latino and Black individuals nationwide, in all industries, were able to raise over $1 million in venture capital, making cannabis ownership all but unattainable when start-up, operations costs, and licensing fees are considered.

While SAFE Banking would not resolve the issues of systematic economic racism, the potential to establish relationships with traditional lenders is a critical step in mitigating the damage done by the War on Drugs.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the safety of our employees and our communities we urge quick action on this critical piece of legislation. Removing federal and state barriers to banking services for state-level cannabis businesses, would catalyze economic growth in our state and around the country. Banking reform is essential to the diversity of the cannabis industry. CCIA is proud to support this bipartisan bill and looks forward to supporting the efforts to passage.

Sincerely,

LINDSAY ROBINSON
Executive Director, Colorado Cannabis Industry Association.
safety risk and is our primary reason for advocating the SAFE Banking Act. Additionally, financial institutions that provide banking services to state-legal marijuana businesses are currently subject to criminal prosecution for “aiding and abetting” a federal crime and money laundering allegations due to the Controlled Substances Act. Banking services such as accepting credit card payments, depositing revenues, and writing checks to pay employees, vendors and taxes are needed by licensed and regulated cannabis businesses that are now cut off from such banking services.

The SAFE Banking Act creates the ability to access the banking system and make our communities safer. The bill removes violations of money laundering laws for any proceeds derived from state-legal marijuana businesses. The result is to get cash off the streets and into the financial system which is built to identify and block or report fraud and illicit activity. This bill also contains needed protections for hemp and hemp-derived CBD related businesses, which still struggle in accessing financial services despite the legalization of hemp in the 2018 Farm Bill.

The Colorado Bankers Association is pleased to support this needed change in federal law. Please contact us with any questions.

DON A. CHILDERS, Chief Executive Officer, Colorado Bankers Association.

CUNA, March 18, 2021.

HON. ED PERLMUTTER, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. STRIVE STIVERS, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. NYDIA VELÁZQUEZ, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. WARREN DAVIDSON, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVES PERLMUTTER, STIVERS, VELÁZQUEZ, AND DAVIDSON: On behalf of America’s credit unions, I am writing in support of the Secure and Fair Enforcement (SAFE) Banking Act of 2021, which would permit credit unions in states where marijuana is legal to safely serve their members’ related needs. The Credit Union National Association (CUNA) represents America’s credit unions and their more than 120 million members. Credit unions exist to serve the financial services needs of their members, but the disparate treatment of production, distribution, sale and use of cannabis under federal law and state state laws has discouraged them from providing services to businesses throughout the supply chain in states where cannabis is legal. In recent years, as various states have legalized cannabis for medicinal and recreational use, participants in the market have sought out credit unions to provide safe and affordable financial services. In recent years, 36 states, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands have approved medical marijuana and cannabis programs.

CUNA takes no position on legalizing or decriminalizing medicinal or recreational cannabis at either the state or federal level. However, credit unions operating in states where cannabis is legal are members and member businesses involved in the cannabis market who need access to traditional depository and lending services, the absence of which creates a significant public safety issue.

A 2015 analysis found that, in the absence of being banked, one in every two cannabis dispensaries were robbed or burglarized—with the average theft walking away with anywhere from $20,000 to $50,000 in a single theft.

Additionally, even financial institutions that choose not to bank the cannabis industry still risk unknowingly serving those businesses in states where cannabis is legal. Indirect connections are often difficult to identify and avoid because like any other industry, those offering cannabis-related services work with vendors and suppliers. These are Main Street businesses like the printing company that makes a business card, the landlord that rents office space, and even the utility company that provides water or electricity. Under the existing statutory quo, a credit union that does business with any one of these indirectly affiliated entities could unknowingly risk violating federal law.

The SAFE Banking Act of 2021 would offer narrowly targeted federal protections for credit unions and other financial institutions accepting deposits, extending credit, or providing payment services to an individual or business engaged in cannabis related commerce in states where such activity is legal with a safe harbor, so long as they are compliant with all other applicable laws and regulations. Furthermore, the SAFE Banking Act provides safe harbor to credit unions and their employees who are not aware if their members or customers are involved in this business.

Many credit unions operate in states where their voters or legislators have made cannabis legal in one form or another. Therefore, CUNA believes that financial institutions should be permitted to lawfully serve businesses that engage in activities authorized under their state laws, even when such activity may be inconsistent with federal law.

For that reason, CUNA has long supported the SAFE Banking Act and we look forward to working with you to advance this legislation into law. On behalf of America’s credit unions, thank you for your leadership on this important issue.

Sincerely,

JIM NUSSLE, President & CEO, CUNA.
celebrating. The tradition that the whole City looks forward to community, and the Feast remains an annual heartbeat of Middletown’s Italian-American traditions.

By 1921, the annual Feast of Saint Sebastian had become a major event in the Sicilian community, attracting participants not only from Middletown but surrounding towns as well. It was in 1921 that the first official feast committee was formed and when the first statue of Saint Sebastian, a gift designed and sculpted by local laborer Sebastiano Marcone, was presented to the community. It was also from this first major Feast and its collection of funds, that the first steps toward the creation of the Saint Sebastian Church and Parish were taken. Just over a decade later, after approval from the diocese and the purchase of properties for the church and rectory, the cornerstone was placed and construction of Saint Sebastian Church was completed within a year. Today, Saint Sebastian Church, which almost mirrors its companion of the same name in Melilli, continues to be the heartbeats of Middletown’s Italian-American community, and the Feast remains an annual tradition that the whole City looks forward to celebrating.

The Feast of Saint Sebastian, whose festivities now span three days, is a celebration of the Melillesi culture. Booths provide food and drink, games and carnival rides entertain adults and children, and the main stage provides musical entertainment where many gather to sing and dance. Special masses are held and upon entering the Church one can view the statue of “Santo Sebastiano” often hearing chants of “Santo Sebastiano” as those gathered pray to the patron saint. And on the Sunday of the Feast, hundreds dressed all in white with red sashes attend the “I Nuri” running—the procession of Saint Sebastian. It is a remarkable sight to behold. People across the town come together in struggle to create a sense of community—a sense of belonging.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, April 21, 2021

Mr. GOMEZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today in memory of Juana Sequeira Solis who passed away on April 6, 2021 at the age of 94. She was born in 1926 in Nicaragua and was the eldest of five children.

In 1945, at the age of 18, she immigrated to the United States in search of a better life. In 1950, she moved to Los Angeles where she met her late husband, Raul S. Solis, while taking citizenship classes. The couple then married in October of 1953.

Mrs. Solis and her late husband raised seven children in the unincorporated area of La Puente, California.

She enjoyed cooking for her family and friends and was an avid gardener. The family was her focal point where she taught her children to give back to their community; stressed the importance of achieving a higher education; and preserving the environment.

Mrs. Solis was a devout Roman Catholic.

Mrs. Solis worked hard to provide for her children and was employed for over 20 years as an assembly line worker at Mattel Inc. until her retirement in 1991. She was an active union member with the United Rubber Workers.

Mrs. Solis is preceded in death by her beloved husband of 58 years, Raul S. Solis, who was a proud Teamster and her beloved daughter, Beatriz M. Solis, who served as the Director for Healthy Communities at the California Endowment.

She is survived by her children: Irma Rincon, Raul Solis, Jr., Hilda Solis, Victor Solis, Anna Solis, Leticia Solis and their spouses; 10 grandchildren, and 23 great-grandchildren.

She will be remembered for her kindness and fighting spirit. She will be deeply missed by all who knew her.
