The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

MORNING-_HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 4, 2021, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with time equally allocated between the parties and each Member other than the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with time equally allocated between the parties and each Member other than the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, it is an honor to congratulate my friend, Eddie McBride, on 23 outstanding years at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Eddie has served as the president and CEO of the Lubbock Chamber since 1999. Under his leadership, the Lubbock Chamber has received countless awards, including the best chamber in the Nation and numerous star accreditations.

Again, my dear friend is an exceptional leader, even though he attended Texas A&M University. Then he served his Nation in the United States Air Force for 20 years.

Upon moving to Lubbock in 1976, Eddie immersed himself into our community, served on numerous boards, including the Texas Association of Business, Workforce Solutions South Plains, and Covenant Health for decades. Eddie has served with excellence and integrity, always putting our community’s interests above his own.

I congratulate Eddie on an outstanding career, and I thank him from the bottom of our hearts for his service and contributions to Lubbock and to west Texas.

We wish the very best for you and your wife, Debbie; your children, Chelsea and Patrick; and the entire McBride family.

God bless you. And go west Texas.

HONORING EDDIE McBRIDE

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON) for 5 minutes.

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, it is an honor to recognize Sergeant Jerrold Burtnett.

Sergeant Burtnett is a true west Texas hero.

On December 27, 2019, vast fog surrounded Sergeant Burtnett as he investigated a series of crashes due to zero visibility in Lubbock County. After checking on a bystander along the side of the road, a fast-moving tractor-trailer lost control, hitting a number of vehicles, as well as Sergeant Burtnett, causing him serious injury.

Sergeant Burtnett won the Purple Heart for his actions that day, and his experience is a reminder to us all how dangerous the job of being in law enforcement is.

It is an honor to recognize Sergeant Burtnett for his bravery and his steadfastness to enter a dangerous situation to help the people of Texas.

On that cold, foggy day, Sergeant Burtnett exerted the valor, courage, and selflessness that epitomized the men and women in blue.

May God bless Sergeant Burtnett and his family, and all those in uniform who risk their lives to protect ours.

SANCTUARY CITY FOR THE UNBORN

Mr. ARRINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I believe life is a gift from God, begins at conception, and that unborn children have the same right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness as you and I do.

Nothing gives me more joy or sense of purpose than being a champion for the unborn. I know the vast majority of west Texans believe, as I do, that all life is sacred, God-given, and should be protected at all stages.

The Lubbock community recently stood together against the stain of abortion on the fabric of our country by voting to become a sanctuary city for the unborn. Now, whether or not this ordinance is upheld in the courts, I am immensely proud that my hometown has made a statement, not only to Texas, but to the whole country, that as for us, the people of west Texas, we stand for life.

Mr. Speaker, west Texans firmly believe, as I do, that we ought to promote a culture of life and that life at every stage is equally valuable, equally precious, not only in light of the Constitution, but in the eyes of God.

Like the citizens of Lubbock, I will continue to fight for the voiceless, vulnerable, unborn Americans and their constitutionally protected right to life.

God bless America. God bless the unborn. And go west Texas.

OUR BORDERLESS COUNTRY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. YARMUTH). The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCLINTOCK) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCCLINTOCK. Mr. Speaker, last year, we had achieved operational control of our southern border for the first time in generations. Trespassers knew they would be turned back, so they never started the perilous journey.

On his first day in office, Joe Biden canceled the border wall, ordered ICE not to faithfully execute the laws, and canceled the remain-in-Mexico policy for asylum claims. This sent a powerful message throughout the world that America’s borders are wide open. So now we are 4 months into an experiment that will test how long a country without borders can survive.

The numbers speak for themselves. The week of the 2020 election, scarcely 100 family units illegally crossed our border. By the week of the inauguration, 1,100 did. By the last week of March, it was over 14,000 in a week.

The numbers speak for themselves. The week of the 2020 election, scarcely 100 family units illegally crossed our border. By the week of the inauguration, 1,100 did. By the last week of March, it was over 14,000 in a week.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. MCCLINTOCK) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCCLINTOCK. Mr. Speaker, our borderless country has always been a sanctuary for the voiceless, vulnerable, and the unborn. In Arizona, we have the largest number of faith-based pro-life groups in the nation.

Like the citizens of Lubbock, I will continue to fight for the voiceless, vulnerable, unborn Americans and their constitutionally protected right to life.

God bless America. Go west Texas.
In February, the Border Patrol encountered roughly 100,000 aliens illegally crossing our border. That is about the size of South Bend, Indiana. By March, that number had grown to over 170,000. That is about the size of Salem, Oregon. Last month, the number had reached over 180,000, a 900 percent increase over April of last year.

Thirty-eight percent are being released into our country. In April, ICE deported only their lowest number in history. Felons that the law requires to be deported are instead deliberately being released into our neighborhoods.

In the last 2 months, I joined delegations led by Congressmen Jordan and Buggs across the southern border. In the Rio Grande Valley sector, we watched one night as hundreds of aliens from Central America illegally crossed our border with impunity and entered a Disneyland-style medical reserve and fund COVID testing. Simply stated, Americans last. That is the message that no civilization in human history has created, taken from funds Congress has provided to our neighbors.

MMember of Congress, who are themselves here illegally. We saw one group taken into custody after a brief interview, groups in the company of small children were dropped off at transportation hubs to be taken anywhere in the United States they wanted to go without even being given a notice to appear in court. Unaccompanied minors were taken to a holding facility where they were placed in cattle pens. One unit designed for 33 people had over 500 in it. After a few days, they were transferred to HHS facilities.

No effort is made to safely return them to their homes. Every effort is made to place them in the United States, often with family or friends who are themselves here illegally.

The President just transferred $2 billion to accomplish this flood that he has created, taken from funds Congress appropriated to rebuild our emergency medical reserve and fund COVID testing. Simply stated, Americans last. At the Rio Grande and Yuma sectors, we saw the near-completed border wall built by the Trump administration made useless because of small construction gaps that can’t be filled because Mr. Biden has forbidden it. Aliens just calmly walk through them.

We saw one group taken into custody from Romania. Another group of about 20 were from Cuba, Russia, and Armenia. From all over the world, people are flying into Mexico on tourist visas, making their way to border towns, and then walking through the gaps to enter the United States illegally.

In California, one officer told us their orders were to process as many illegals into the country as fast as possible. From its polling, Gallup estimates there are more than 4 million people now living in Latin America and the Caribbean alone who intend to come to the United States if they can. And now they are.

We are witnessing the beginning of a massive proportion of one that no civilization in human history has ever survived. One Border Patrol officer warned us that every community in America is about to become a border town. Every American will feel it as classrooms are filled with non-English speaking students; as gangs proliferate; as criminal illegal aliens are released in our communities; as hospital emergency rooms are overwhelmed; as our healthcare system is broken; as the illegal alien medical market is flooded with low-wage illegal labor, meaning lower wages and fewer opportunities for working Americans.

This is not accidental. This administration has deliberately chosen a deliberate policy to fundamentally change the culture, electorate, and founding principles of our Nation. It is working, and it will continue as long as the people responsible for it remain in public office.

REMEMBERING THE LIFE OF DR. SAMUEL MAGEE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Joyce) for 5 minutes.

Mr. Joyce of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with great sadness to remember the life of my friend, Dr. Sam Magee, who unexpectedly passed away this past weekend.

An exemplary surgeon, Dr. Magee dedicated his life to serving his patients and our Blair County community. Sam, as the son of an Altoona surgeon, proudly carried forth his family tradition. Most recently, Dr. Magee cared for American veterans as the chief of staff of the James E. Van Zandt VA Medical Center. In this new role, Dr. Magee was an instrumental partner in the launch of my Homegrown Health Initiative, which aims to reverse the doctor shortage in rural communities.

Dr. Sam Magee was a champion for solutions to tough problems. Together, we shared a mission to improve Pennsylvanians’ access to quality healthcare, regardless of ZIP Code. In addition to his work at the VA, Dr. Magee spent more than 35 years practicing in Altoona, Pennsylvania, saving lives and improving our local healthcare. For him, the greatest reward was helping someone reach their potential.

As both a fellow Altoona native, and Penn State and Temple Medical School graduates, Dr. Magee and I shared so much in common. More than a colleague, I considered him a very dear friend. As we remember his life and his legacy, I also give thanks for his meaningful contributions to his patients, to our community, and to our medical profession. Even in sorrow, we celebrate Dr. Magee’s life and his indelible contributions to the world.

I extend my deepest sympathy to his wife, Bunny; their children, Rich and Katie; along with their spouses, Desiree and Michael; their beloved grandchildren; and their extended family.

Additionally, I extend my condolences to Dr. Magee’s many patients and to the veteran community that he served with such dedication. This is a profound loss for our medical community, our veteran community, and our community at large.

HONORING THE INCREDIBLE LIFE OF ARNOLD E. PERL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Kustoff) for 5 minutes.

Mr. Kustoff. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise in the memory of my friend and a great Memphian, Arnold Perl.

Arnold was known as a devoted husband, father, grandfather, friend, and strong advocate. While Arnold Perl was born in Texas and raised in Chicago, Memphis was Arnold’s true home. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Illinois and, in 1968, moved to Tennessee. Memphis remained his adopted city until his passing on May 4 of this year.

At Memphis, Arnold served as a member of the well-known Memphis law firm of Young & Perl, a law firm focusing on labor law and labor-management relations. Arnold later served as a member of the Tennessee Air National Guard’s TMA, where he represented some of the biggest Fortune 500 companies.

Arnold also argued cases before numerous State and Federal courts, the U.S. Court of Appeals, and the United States Supreme Court. As a lawyer, Arnold was sought after for his impressive skills, his expertise, and his extensive knowledge of the rules of law. Since 1983, he was listed in each edition of The Best Lawyers in America and even served on its advisory board.

Without a doubt, Arnold was an extremely accomplished lawyer, but his passions went beyond the law.

For over 30 years, Arnold served as a strong and committed member of the Memphis-Shelby County Airport Authority. For 16 of those years, from 1996-2012, he was its chairman. Through his leadership, Arnold played a vital role in making the Memphis International Airport into one of the top hubs in the world. Working in conjunction with FedEx, Arnold helped the Memphis airport become the world’s largest cargo airport. He also facilitated the relocation of the Tennessee Air National Guard’s headquarters, which helped promote growth for Memphis.

Arnold was chairman of the New Arena Public Building Authority, where he oversaw the development of the FedExForum, the home of the Memphis Grizzlies and the Memphis Tigers.
HONORING MARY ALICE WORKMAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RODNEY DAVIS) for 5 minutes.

Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor my wife's grandmother, Mary Alice Workman, who passed away last week at the age of 98.

Mary Alice was born in Decatur. She married her husband, Richard, in 1941. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church in Assumption, Illinois.

Mary Alice will be remembered for her kindheartedness, for the love of her large family, and for living life to the fullest. Mary Alice is now resting peacefully in her kindheartedness, for the love of her large family, and for living life to the fullest.

Mary Alice was now resting peacefully with her husband, Richard; and her favorite dog, Lea. It is a sad loss for our family and everyone who had the pleasure of getting to know her. It is always difficult saying good-bye to someone we love and appreciate, especially when you couldn't see them in person before they passed.

Shannon, Teryn, Griffin, Clark, and I send our thoughts and prayers to her children, Kenneth, Kathleen, and Nancy; and their families; and her other grandchildren, Randy, Kelly, Curt, Ric; and the rest of her great-grandchildren, Treenie, Ryan, Ross, Connor, Sydney, Grace, and Payton.

Mary Alice, may you rest in peace.

HONORING TREVOR HERDEHORST

Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Trevor Herdehors in Highland, Illinois, who died on April 25 after a courageous fight with cancer.

Trevor began his dream of becoming a firefighter in 2005 with the Cahokia Volunteer Fire Department. Later, he graduated from a degree in fire service management, and went on to serve as a Granite City firefighter. In 2018, Trevor started his dream job with the City of Champaign Fire Department in its Operations Division. Trevor loved being a firefighter and was a proud professional, always striving to hone his skills to save lives.

Those who knew Trevor will remember him for his inspirational positivity and his passion for making the world around him a better place and his love for baseball.

My prayers are with Trevor's wife, Tiffany; his children, Chase and Olivia; and all his friends and family spread throughout the communities he made better with his presence. He will truly be missed.

RECOGNIZING KNIGHT'S ACTION PARK

Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Knight's Action Park in Springfield, Illinois, which is celebrating 91 years of business this year.

It was founded in 1930 as a golf driving range by George Knight, Sr., after he spent a few years touring the country as the caddy for four-time U.S. Open champion Willie Anderson. George Knight, Jr., and his wife, Audrey, started the archery range in 1951, and later opened the family entertainment center. Knight's Action Park spans 60 acres and three generations of the Knight family. Over the years, it has added a water park, pub, and drive-in theater.

Like many businesses that rely on large attendance, they faced challenges amidst the coronavirus pandemic. They credit the Paycheck Protection Program for allowing them to survive 2020, so they can continue to provide jobs for 200 seasonal workers, 10 permanent staff, and family fun for me, my family, and my constituents. Hopefully, they will be able to fully reopen soon.

Again, congratulations to the Knights on their 91st anniversary, and I wish them all the best in the years to come.

RECOGNIZING DR. LARRY DIETZ

Mr. RODNEY DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize our friend, Dr. Larry Dietz, the 19th president of Illinois State University, who will retire on June 30 after a remarkable 50-year academic career.

Dr. Dietz began his career as ISU in 2011 as the Vice President for Student Affairs. In 2014, he was appointed Illinois State's 19th president. Prior to coming to ISU, he served as Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs at Southern Illinois University Carbondale, and he held various other leadership positions at the University of Missouri and Iowa State University.

President Dietz's passion for higher education has taken an already highly esteemed ISU to new heights. With his leadership, the university is continues ranked among the top in the Nation for high graduation and retention rates and low student loan default rates. He leaves ISU on a footing that is full of potential.

I have had the pleasure of working with Larry since he became president. A personal testament I have to his success is the fact that all three of my children attend Illinois State University, the institution he leads.

Congratulations on your retirement, Mr. President.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO FRANK FRYBURG

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SMUCKER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. SMUCKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and to pay tribute to a community leader, a veteran, and a vocal advocate, Mr. Frank Fryburg, who passed away last week at the age of 98.

Those of us who had the pleasure to know Frank know that he lived a life of service to others. Frank joined the Navy in 1944 as an electronic technician, and went on to serve 20 years in the Navy Reserves. Frank was a graduate of Penn State University, earning his bachelor's degree in physics on the GI Bill. He later earned his MBA from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School.

Frank served his community for a decade as a commissioner in Manheim Township in Lancaster County. He was an active member of his church, a national leader of his chosen fraternity, and worked to support countless community organizations over the years.

With Frank, you always knew where you stood. He always shared his opinions with you, and they were very well-thought out. He was recently recognized as one of the most prolific letter writers to the editor in the local newspaper.

Frank Fryburg was a man of exceptional character, of boundless energy and determination, a true servant leader, and a community advocate.

Frank is survived by his 6 children, 13 grandchildren, and 20 great-grandchildren.

We will miss him. We wish those who are grieving, comfort. We give thanks for the opportunity to know Frank, who positively impacted so many people during his 94 years.

THANKING ALEX MUNRO

Mr. SMUCKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to give thanks to someone who has positively impacted the lives of a generation of students and untold generations. to come in Pennsylvania’s 11th Congressional District.

Alex Munro has retired after 30 years as executive director of the Thaddeus Stevens College of Technology Foundation and Alumni Association. Thaddeus Stevens College of Technology is known across the State and Nation as a premier 2-year degree-granting institution, which prepares students for today’s in-demand technical jobs.

Prior to serving the college, Alex graduated from the school then known as the Thaddeus Stevens Trade School, and he talked many times about how it changed his life. He studied masonry at the school. After 25 years in the private sector, successfully applying those skills and the lessons that he learned at Thaddeus Stevens, Alex joined the alumni foundation board before becoming the foundation’s executive director in 1990.

Alex has been integral to the advancement of the school, building relationships with elected officials and industry leaders to support expansion of the school’s mission and programs. Alex is known for saying: “Changing lives is not by chance; it is a tradition at Stevens.”

That is a tradition that he has dedicated himself to for the past 30 years. I personally have worked with Alex for a number of years, and I have always appreciated his efforts and candor. I want to thank Alex for all he has done to improve the lives of so many students, and I congratulate him on his retirement.

BIDEN BORDER CRISIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. NEHLIS) for 5 minutes.

Mr. NEHLIS. Mr. Speaker, for months now, our country has witnessed the never-ending horrific images and stories coming from our southern border. We have seen young children thrown over a 14-foot fence like a rag doll. We have seen children wandering alone, abandoned in south Texas. We have seen thousands of children packed like sardines into holding facilities meant for 250. And we have seen countless horrific tales of young women sexually assaulted by coyotes on their trek up here.

When I traveled to the southern border in March and again in May, I saw the Biden border crisis firsthand. I spoke to Border Patrol agents who said they are beyond spread thin trying to juggle securing the border with an inadequate number of agents, while simultaneously babysitting the unprecedented number of migrant children who continue to flood across our southern border daily. While they are busy babysitting, violent criminal aliens are slipping through undetected.

The reality of the situation, Democrats and the Biden administration are downplaying, distracting, and denying. They are downplaying the severity of this crisis by refusing to call it a crisis; saying, instead, it is a challenge. They are denying the crisis by refusing to visit the southern border in person.

It has been 55 days since President Biden tapped KAMALA HARRIS to be the lead on the border, and she still has not visited. And they are distracting from this crisis by talking about anything but the border.

Love him or hate him, under President Trump, we finally had a leader willing to step up and fix the mess at our southern border, a mess our country has failed to deal with for decades, under both Republican and Democrat leadership. President Trump, and the only President who truly took the necessary steps to not only stop the flow of illegal aliens across our borders, but to deter caravans from ever forming.

He instituted commonsense policies, like the remand policy, ending catch and release, and building a big, beautiful wall with beautiful gates because, as we all know, this isn’t about legal immigration; it is about illegal immigration.

We are a nation of laws and law and order, or at least we used to be. Ever since President Biden assumed control of the White House, there has been an outright refusal from his administration to put the American people first and address the growing crisis at our southern border. Their inaction will cost American lives, will cost billions of American taxpayer dollars, and will once again put the responsibility of the Federal Government on individual States.

And I know, I saw it firsthand as a county sheriff for 8 years in Texas. I had to look victims of crime in the eyes after their loved one was killed or their homes were burglarized and tell these individuals: I am sorry for what happened to you, but we caught the guy. And I am sad to tell you that he has been deported four, five, six times.

I had to tell this specifically to dozens of residents in my home county whose homes were burglarized by a burglary ring of illegal aliens from, yes, Honduras and Colombia, many of whom had been deported several times.

In January 2020, I had to tell the family of an elderly Texas woman who was killed in a hit-and-run that the illegal alien who ran his mother over had been deported six times prior. How on earth does anyone ever get deported more than one time? And, there is nobody here. It happens because the Federal Government is failing to secure the southern border.

It is mind-boggling to me that the Democrat Party has accepted that American lives will be lost and billions of dollars will be spent so illegal aliens can flood into our country simply because their home country is corrupt or crippled. Economic hardship or struggle in your home country is not justification for breaking the law and skipping the line of millions of people patiently waiting to legally immigrate here.

We are not the world’s charity. We are not a nation of open borders. We are a nation of laws, and it is past time the current administration wakes the hell up and remembers that fact. But I won’t hold my breath, and neither should the American people. Democrats have demonstrated right to our faces that they don’t care about putting the American people first.

Members of Congress and the American people need to speak up and speak about the Biden border crisis and hold this administration’s feet to the fire until they reverse course.

WE NEED FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CLOUD) for 5 minutes.

Mr. CLOUD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to advocate for fiscal responsibility as Congress seeks to craft a budget.

This past year, our Nation has spent more than $7.6 trillion. That is more than the Federal Government spent in the first 200 years since our founding. With the Federal Government’s debt already clocking in at $28 trillion and rising as I speak, we must face the reality that our grandchildren are going to foot this bill.

On May 12, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that inflation had grown by 4.2 percent over the last year. That is the largest 12-month increase since September 2008. Should we continue to spend at the rate that we are spending, our national debt, debt servicing, and costs for household items will continue to skyrocket, making life unaffordable for millions more.

This is not right. It is immoral for us to continue to fulfill the wants and needs of our generation at the expense of the next. We must do the hard work of meeting our country’s needs responsibly.

The Republican Study Committee has proposed such a budget, a conservative budget, one that provides a roadmap toward a better future for our country. This budget gets us back on track in just 5 years while eliminating the deficit and cutting taxes. This is a conservative budget, one that aims to strengthen our Nation and provide better governance.

I am pleased to report that the RSC budget includes four of my legislative proposals, including my bill to require the Congressional Budget Office to include the cost of debt servicing when preparing cost estimates for proposed legislation. Before legislation passes either the House or Senate, lawmakers should know how much it is going to cost, yet Congress routinely ignores the cost and understates the benefits of new spending.

The American people have to account for the cost of debt servicing in their family budgets, and providing Congress with accurate cost estimates that include the cost of debt servicing is common sense reform that would hold Congress to the same standard, forcing lawmakers to reckon with the actual cost of running our national debt.

Additionally, this budget is pro-life. It includes my bill, the Women’s Public Health and Safety Act, which would help prevent taxpayer dollars from funding abortion providers. This legislation will empower States to end the bankrolling of abortion providers and free up funding for healthcare initiatives for those providers that actually put the well-being of women and babies first.

This budget is pro-Second Amendment. It includes my legislation to prohibit a natural disaster declaration from being used to impose gun or ammo controls.

Finally, this bill is fiscally responsible. It includes my legislation for a Federal sunset commission to monitor the effectiveness of government agencies and prevent wasteful inefficiencies and duplicative programming.

I yield to the RSC Budget Task Force chairman, Congressman HERR, and the chairman of the RSC, Congressman BANKS, for putting forth a bold budget.

We can get our Nation back on track. We just need to put in the time to do what we have to do here in Washington.

WHAT CONSTITUTES AN INSURRECTION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mrs. GREENE) for 5 minutes.

Mrs. GREENE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the commission to study the events of January 6, as well as spending $2 billion in a security supplemental.

The question that comes to mind is this: What are the riots that happened during the summer of 2020 after the death of George Floyd? What about all the damage caused to Federal buildings, churches, people’s businesses, and innocent people that were killed, like David Dorn?

This past summer, Minneapolis city officials estimate 700 buildings were damaged, burned, or destroyed, including 360 local businesses. Riots caused an estimated $55 million in damages in Minneapolis alone.

BLM and antifa established an autonomous zone in Seattle and attempted to burn government buildings in Portland. Is that not an insurrection?

On one Friday night alone in New York City, BLM protesters caused over $100,000 in damages, and 150 people were arrested.

Just one Monday night in Philadelphia resulted in a crowd of 1,000 people looting stores, setting fires in the middle of the street, and 30 police officers injured.

Protests in Kansas City resulted in $2.1 million in damages, mostly over the course of one weekend. Several officers were injured as well.

Protests in Wichita, Kansas, cost the police department about $1.5 million in overtime.

Protests in Salt Lake City cost at least $100,000 in damages.

Protests in Denver cost the city at least $5.5 million in damages and overtime.

BLM protesters in Nashville set a Federal courthouse on fire. The destruction is estimated to have cost $1.2 million in damages. Again, is that an insurrection?

Protesters in Portland destroyed barriers and attempted to burn down government buildings, resulting in $2.3 million in damages, including $1.6 million in damages to the courthouse downtown.

In St. Louis, following a night of violence, buildings were looted, vandalized, and burned.

Protesters in Louisville set the courthouse on fire and shot two cops, resulting in a state of emergency order being declared.

Protesters in Kenosha, Wisconsin, injured police officers, set off fireworks near the police and courthouse, and set at least two city trucks on fire.

In Guilford County, North Carolina, a courthouse was broken into and set on fire, resulting in roughly $200,000 in damages.

Protests in Oakland, California, resulted in a courthouse being set on fire and vandalized.

The LAPD was defunded by $150 million, and some smaller crimes were eliminated entirely.

Studies show 570 protests in 220 U.S. locations turned violent over the summer. Are those not insurrections?

The $1-plus billion in riot damages is estimated to be the most expensive in insurance history. It resulted in up to $2 billion of damages in 20 cities across the U.S., mostly concentrated in L.A., Detroit, Miami, D.C., and New York.

Indeed, we should have a commission to study the violent BLM and antifa mobs that have plagued American cities this past summer, and that is for the American people who, by the way, pay the taxes that fund everything we do here.

Also, we should have a security supplemental to fund all the police departments that have been defunded due to the pressure from radical, violent, and socialist groups. We should back the blue because they certainly back us.

Also, while it is catch-and-release for domestic terrorists, antifa, BLM, the people who breached the Capitol on January 6 are being abused, some even being held for 23 hours a day in solitary confinement.

So, Mr. Speaker, my questions are these: Who placed the pipe bombs at the RNC and the DNC, which is an attack on both Republicans and Democrats? Who was President Trump’s request on January 5 for 10,000 National Guard denied, and who denied it, and what chain of command did they follow? Also, who killed Ashli Babbitt, and why is that not being revealed? Does her family not deserve justice? Lastly, when will the witch hunt of Donald J. Trump come to an end, and all of those who support him?

UNREST IN THE MIDDLE EAST

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. BURCHETT) for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURCHETT. Mr. Speaker, what Hamas and the Palestinian Islamic Jihad are doing to Israel is nothing short of evil and barbaric. Even worse, some of my colleagues across the aisle and in the national media are excusing this violence against our closest ally in the Middle East.

It is a fact that Hamas and the PIJ, if they were to lay down their weapons, there would be peace. But if the threats and the hatred could be extinguished. This is no secret because these two terrorist groups explicitly say their goal is to wipe Israel off the face of the map, and their actions back up their words, Mr. Speaker.

I think a history lesson and global current affair update is in order for Members of Congress and media organizations taking the side of terrorists intent on exterminating Israel and the entire Jewish population.

For starters, nobody should forget that, in 1997, it was President Bill Clinton’s State Department that placed Hamas and the PIJ on the United States’ list of foreign terrorist organizations. Both groups are still on the list today and for good reason.

Israel removed their forces from the Gaza Strip in 2005, but in 2007, Hamas violently forced out Fatah, its rival Palestinian faction, and consolidated its control over the entire Gaza Strip. A terrorist organization controlling territory within mere miles of Jewish communities leaves Israeli civilians vulnerable to violent attacks, Mr. Speaker.

Israel’s military blockade protects its rightful homeland from infiltration by radical jihadi terrorists. The blockade is important for preventing the transfer of weapons from Iran’s Revolutionary Guard, which gives support to Hamas and PIJ. God only knows the devastation recent missile attacks on Israeli communities leaves Israeli civilians vulnerable to violent attacks, Mr. Speaker.

The current affairs update is in order for the Gaza Strip today and for good reason. Despite the blockade, Hamas and PIJ still construct their terror tunnels and manufacture their rockets with dual-use materials like concrete, steel, chemicals, fuel, explosives, and many other things. These materials, which the Israelis allow to pass through their blockade, are meant for infrastructure in Gaza, only to wind up confiscated by the terrorists for their horrific attacks, Mr. Speaker.

If anybody questions the existence of the tunnels or their use, I recommend they go on the next codex to Israel to... see for themselves. I have been there and stood in them. They are, in fact, 100 percent real.

This is a dilemma for Israel. They want to improve civilian life in Gaza by letting these important materials pass through its blockade, but they also know their enemies will steal these materials and try to harm Israelis.

The violence that began last week came as a result of protests regarding an ongoing Israeli court order to evict Palestinian family members from the Sheikh Jarrah neighborhood of Jerusalem. Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas, who is serving his 16th year of what is supposed to be a 4-year term, Mr. Speaker, called for unrest in the streets. Not to be outdone, Hamas and the PIJ recognized a political opportunity to assume the mantle as protectors of all Palestinian people.

These terrorist groups responded by gutlessly and indiscriminately firing over 3,000 missiles since last Monday at hospitals, schools, and other civilian population centers across central and southern Israel.

Thankfully, the United States provides Israel with generous military assistance for the Iron Dome and other missile defenses. This system has intercepted 90 percent of the missiles. However, there have been 10 Israelis killed, including two children.

Israel has the right to defend itself from unprovoked terrorist attacks from Hamas, PIJ, and anybody else. The Israelis responded forcefully, actively trying to limit civilian casualties by calling residents in targeted buildings and deploying "knock on the roof" warnings. This is a courtesy that terror groups like Hamas and PIJ do not and will never return.

Without these important measures, Mr. Speaker, hundreds more Palestinian civilians would be dead because Hamas and PIJ use commercial and residential buildings to house their military operations and ammunition depots. This disgusting tactic is the reason why the Palestinian death toll is higher and why the lives of dozens of innocent Palestinian children have been lost.

These terror groups are more than willing to use their own people as human shields for the sake of vilifying Israel. Unfortunately, the most radical Members of Congress and the American mainstream media have bought this narrative hook, line, and sinker, Mr. Speaker.

Hamas and the PIJ are no friends of ours and want the same fate for Israel that so many terrorists want for the United States: the complete and total destruction of democracy.

If you are going to blame Israel alone for the recent violence, you are being nothing more than a useful idiot and a publicity tool for the two terrorist organizations.

RECOGNIZING TERI TOPPING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. MOONEY) for 5 minutes.

Mr. MOONEY. Mr. Speaker, today, I have the privilege of recognizing one of the millions of hardworking, taxpaying Americans who form the foundation of our Nation’s economy through their employment in small business—in this particular case, the healthcare industry.

Mrs. Teri Topping of Elkins, West Virginia, has served her patients exceptionally well throughout her distinguished career as an orthopedic nurse manager.

As a result, Mrs. Topping is beloved by her community for the conscientious care that she has provided to those in need. Her outstanding performance has helped her local hospital, the Davis Memorial Hospital in Elkins, West Virginia, become one of the best hospitals for joint care in the entire Mountain State.

It is hardly surprising that Mrs. Topping’s patients illustrated their deep appreciation for her incredible efforts when the Inter-Mountain’s 2021 People’s Choice Awards opened balloting to the public. In a heartwarming display, those graced by Mrs. Topping’s skill and dedication voted in droves to grant her this year’s award for Best Nurse. This tremendous honor is well deserved.

I extend my thanks and congratulations to Nurse Topping for her phenomenal service to the people of West Virginia. I encourage everyone, especially young nurses, to follow her extraordinary example.

Teri Topping and her husband, Ret Topping, are the mother and father of three beautiful daughters. They also are grandparents. They have their first grandchild, fortunately, living nearby in West Virginia. I consider them personal friends, and they are pillars of the community.

Congratulations to Nurse Teri Topping for her Nurse of the Year award.

HELP FOR VETERANS FACING STRUGGLES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. CAWTHORN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. CAWTHORN. Mr. Speaker, for eight generations, my family has lived in the mountains of western North Carolina. Many of my family members have served in our Armed Forces. I grew up surrounded by men of courage and patriotism who dedicated their lives and their honor in defense of this American Republic.

I understand, as much as one can without serving, the struggle a veteran faces attempting to reacclimate to civilian life. It is a humbling experience for the American people to work hand in hand with our veterans and streamline their transition back into the workforce.

To that end, I urge support for H.R. 2167, the GI Bill National Emergency Extended Deadline Act. Included in this larger piece of legislation is a program that I am proud to advocate for.

My language in this bill authorizes a pilot program to allow States to use grants or contracts to carry out short-term fellowship programs for unemployed veterans. This program is not some revolutionary concept, but what it does is build off the successes of other pilot programs in the veteran community.

This program would authorize DOL VETS to carry out a pilot program similar to fellowship programs created by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation to allow States to use grants or contracts to carry out a short-term fellowship program.

After the participating States have been selected by the DOL, each State would enter into an agreement with a nonprofit organization to carry out the short-term fellowship program. Participants would be provided a small stipend while they are participating in the program.

This program prioritizes veterans and opens up new and unique pathways toward employment. This new fellowship program will build upon the successes of other fellowship programs across the country, and I am confident that it will empower unemployed veterans to find meaningful work in the post-COVID economy.

The benefits of this program are numerous. It will give eligible veterans the ability to gain on-the-job experience in a field of their interest while earning a monthly stipend.

I will always fight for the veteran community in NC-11, and this program is a bipartisan measure that puts veterans first.

One of the foundational attributes of Americanism is our sense of brotherhood. Those who sacrifice for the good of this Nation are not simply a resource to be utilized and then cast aside. These are our heroes, and they deserve much more than what our Nation currently provides them.

When I left my mountain home to come to Washington, D.C. I promised the veterans in our district that I would be their weapon in Washington, D.C. I will never abandon those who sacrificed their lives and livelihoods in defense of our freedoms.

For too long, we have cast our veterans, these guardians of our Republic, by the wayside and derided their sacrifice. Never forget, America is the land of the free because of the brave. Together, we can show these men and women who dedicated their lives to us that we will not turn our backs on them.

Join me in supporting the new veteran fellowship programs, and let’s take a first step toward supporting our veterans. I urge all of my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 2167, the National Emergency Extended Deadline Act.
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to 15 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

RECOGNIZING JULIANA URTUBEY

(Mr. HORSFORD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HORSFORD. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize and celebrate Ms. Juliana Urtubey, a Nevada teacher whose commitment to joyful and just education has led to her well-deserved selection as the 2021 National Teacher of the Year.

Ms. Urtubey is a first-generation immigrant and bilingual educator who works in special education at Booker Elementary in Nevada’s Fourth Congressional District.

At Booker Elementary, she is known as Ms. Earth for beautifying the community with gardens and murals. She teaches her students to take pride in themselves, their identities, and their strengths.

She is the best of Nevada, the best of our educators, and we are so proud of her.

HONORING ELY BLAISDELL

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. I rise today to honor Ely Blaisdell of South Fork, Pennsylvania. Ely has accepted a fully qualified appointment to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in New York. Ely is a senior at Bishop Carroll Catholic High School. He has two siblings, Eban and Margaret. He is the son of Michael and Karen Blaisdell. He is the grandson of the late Herbert and Carolyn Kessler and Eva Stahr-Kessler, all of Johnstown; and Margaret and the late Mark Blaisdell of Wilmore, Pennsylvania.

Ely is following in the footsteps of two of his uncles, Dan Kessler and Paul Kessler, who graduated from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in 1979 and 1975, respectively.

Madam Speaker, Ely Blaisdell is a dedicated member of his community. His passion for service and his commitment to his education will serve him well as he heads to Kings Point, New York.

Good luck to him as he enters this next chapter of his life, and I thank him for his service to our country.

RECOGNIZING FALLEN SERVICEMEMBERS

(Mr. AUCHINCLOSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. AUCHINCLOSES. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize our fallen servicemembers as Memorial Day approaches.

This weekend, I was proud to join in the dedication of the Fall River Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall, which pays homage to the nearly 60,000 Americans who died in Vietnam. They were always honored as they should have been by their contemporaries, but we honor them now. Liberty, justice, and democracy are ultimately protected by those who are willing to lay down their lives to defend these values. This coming Memorial Day, let us enjoy time with our friends and families, a more acute joy than ever, after this past year. But let us also center ourselves on the true meaning of the day and reflect on the sacrifice and valor of those no longer with us.

REMEMBERING THE VICTIMS OF THE ATTACK ON SANTA FE HIGH SCHOOL

(Mr. WEBER of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WEBER of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today to remember the victims of the heinous attack on Santa Fe High School on this day back in 2018.

Three years ago, Santa Fe, Texas, a salt-of-the-earth town in my district, was confronted with an incomprehensible evil. Instead of revisiting those horrendous acts of violence, today I rise to honor the lives that were tragically cut short:

- 15-year-old Aaron Kyle McLeod
- 15-year-old Angelique Ramirez
- 14-year-old Kimberly Vaughan
- 16-year-old Cynthia Tisdale
- 17-year-old Sabika Sheikh
- 17-year-old Jared Black
- 16-year-old Shana Fisher
- 64-year-old Glenda Ann Perkins
- 15-year-old Christian Riley Garcia
- and
- 17-year-old Christopher Stone, who was adventurous, understanding, and easy to talk to.

Both Christopher and Christian have received medals of honor for the deed they did.

Madam Speaker, it was a solemn day.

CONGRATULATING ABBY CROW

(Mrs. MILLER-MEEKS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MILLER-MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate a young woman from my district for her recent appointment to an important seat in the State of Iowa.

On April 16, Iowa Governor Kim Reynolds appointed Abby Crow, a native of Tiffin, Iowa, and a sophomore human physiology major at the University of Iowa, to fill the student seat on the State Board of Regents.

The Board of Regents, which governs five public educational institutions across Iowa, first established a student regent position in 1973 to give students a say in decisionmaking. Since then, five University of Iowa students have served in this position.

On April 26, Abby was unanimously confirmed to serve on the board, six years since the last Hawkeye student filled the seat.

The student regent seat is incredibly important, and I have tremendous faith that Abby will be an excellent representative for the university and for her fellow students.

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which the yeas and nays are ordered.

The House will resume proceedings on postponed questions at a later time.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

Dear Madam Speaker: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Clerk received the following message from the Secretary of the Senate on May 18, 2021, at 9:50 a.m.:

With best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

CHERYL L. JOHNSON,
Clerk.
Sec. 1002. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON IMPORTANCE OF DEPARTMENT OF STATE’S WORK.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) United States global engagement is key to a stable and prosperous world;

(2) United States leadership is indispensable in light of the many complex and interconnected threats facing the United States and the world;

(3) diplomacy and development are critical tools of national power, and full deployment of these tools is vital to United States national security;

(4) challenges such as the global refugee and migration crises, terrorism, historic famine and food insecurity, and fragile or repressive societies cannot be addressed without sustained and robust United States diplomatic and development leadership;

(5) the United States Government must use all of the instruments of national security and foreign policy at its disposal to protect United States citizens, promote United States interests, and support global stability and prosperity;

(6) United States security and prosperity depend on having partners and allies that share our interests and values, and these partnerships are nurtured and our shared interests and values are promoted through United States diplomatic engagement, security cooperation, economic statecraft, and assistance that helps further economic development, good governance, including the rule of law and democratic institutions, and the development of partnerships to natural and humanitarian disasters;

(7) as the United States Government agencies primarily charged with conducting diplomacy and development, the Department and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) require sustained and increased funding to carry out this important work, which is essential to our ability to project United States leadership and values and to advance United States interests around the world;

(8) the work of the Department and USAID makes the United States and the world safer and more prosperous by alleviating global poverty and hunger, preventing and responding to terrorist threats and other infectious diseases, strengthening alliances, expanding educational opportunities for women and girls, promoting good governance and democracy, supporting anti-corruption efforts, driving economic development and trade, preventing armed conflicts and humanitarian crises, and creating American jobs and exports;

(9) the Department and USAID are vital national security agencies, whose work is critical to the projection of United States power and leadership abroad, and without which Americans would be less safe. United States economic power would be diminished, and global stability and prosperity would suffer;

(10) investing in diplomacy and development before conflicts break out saves American lives while also being cost-effective;

(11) the contributions of personnel working at the Department and USAID are extraordinarily valuable and allow the United States to maintain its leadership around the world.

SEC. 1007. STRENGTHENING FOREIGN LAW ENFORCEMENT AND LAW ENFORCEMENT AFFAIRS.

(a) Sense of Congress.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the Department is a crucial national security agency, whose employees, both Foreign and Civil Service, require the best possible training at every stage of their careers to enable them to defend the United States' national interests and the health and safety of United States citizens abroad;

(2) the Department of State’s investment of time and resources with respect to the training and education of its personnel is considerably below the level of other Federal departments and agencies in the national security field, and falls well below the investments many allied and adversarial countries make in the development of their diplomats; a department whose mission is complex and rapidly evolving challenges, many of which are science and technology-driven, which demand the continual, high-quality training and education of its personnel;

(3) the Department must move beyond reliance on “on-the-job” training and other informal mentorship practices, which lead to an absence in skills and career advancement opportunities, often particularly for minority personnel, and towards a robust professional tradecraft training environment that will ensure equality in career advancement and increase minority participation in the senior ranks;

(4) the Department’s Foreign Service Institute, and other training offices should seek to substantially increase its educational and training offerings to Department personnel, including developing new and innovative educational and training courses, methods, programs, and opportunities; and

(5) consistent with existing Department gift acceptance authority and other applicable authorities, the Department and Foreign Service Institute may accept funds and other resources from foundations, not-for-profit corporations, and other appropriate sources to help the Department and the Institute enhance the quantity and quality of training offerings, especially in the introduction of new, innovative, and pilot model courses.

(b) TRAINING FLOAT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall develop and submit to the appropriate congressional committees a strategy for “training float” to allow for up to 15 percent of the Civil and Foreign Service to participate in long-term training at any given time. The strategy shall identify a plan to ensure implementation of the training priorities identified in subsection (c), sufficient... training capacity and opportunities are available to Civil and Foreign Service officers, equitable distribution of long-term training opportunities to Civil and Foreign Service officers, and any additional resources or authorities necessary to facilitate such a training float, including programs at the George P. Schultz National Foreign Affairs Institute, the Foreign Affairs Security Training Center, and other facilities or programs operated by the Department of State. The strategy shall identify which types of training would be prioritized, the extent (if any) to which such training is already being provided to Civil and Foreign Service officers by programs incentivizing or disincentivizing such training, and why such training cannot be achieved without Civil and Foreign Service officers leaving the workforce. In addition to training opportunities provided by the Department, the strategy shall consider training that could be provided by the other United States Government training institutions, as well as non-governmental educational institutions. The strategy shall consider approaches to overcome disincentives to pursuing training.

(c) Prioritization.—In order to provide the Civil and Foreign Service with the level of education and training needed to effectively advance United States interests across the globe, the Department of State should—

(1) increase its offerings—

(A) of virtual instruction to make training more accessible to personnel deployed throughout the world; or

(B) at partner organizations to provide useful outside perspectives to Department personnel;

(2) offer courses utilizing computer-based or assisted simulations, allowing civilian officers to lead decision-making in a crisis environment; and

(3) consider increasing the duration and expanding the focus of certain training courses, including—

(A) the A-100 orientation course for Foreign Service officers, and

(B) the chief of mission course to more accurately reflect the significant responsibilities and roles.

(d) Other Agency Responsibilities.—Other national security agencies should increase the enrollment of their personnel in courses offered by the Department and other Department of State training facilities to promote a whole-of-government approach to mitigating national security challenges.

SEC. 1009. CLARIFICATION AND AMENDMENT OF FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS. The Foreign Service Act of 1980 is amended—

(1) in section 501 (22 U.S.C. 3961), by inserting—

"(i) if a position designated under this section is unfilled for more than 365 calendar days, such position may be filled, as appropriate on a temporary basis, in accordance with section 309;" after "Positions designated under this section are excepted from the competitive service;"; and

(2) in paragraph (2) of section 502(a) (22 U.S.C. 3962(a)), by inserting ", or domestically, in a position working on issues relating to a particular country or geographic area,", after "geographic area.",

SEC. 1010. ENERGY DIPLOMACY AND SECURITY WITHIN THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE. Section 104 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2651a), as amended by section 1004 of this Act, is further amended—

(1) by designating paragraphs (4) and (5) (as redesignated pursuant to such section 1004) as paragraphs (5) and (6); and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (3) (as added pursuant to such section 1004) the following new paragraph:

"(4) Energy resources.—

(A) Authorization for Assistant Secretary.—Subject to the numerical limitation specified in paragraph (1), there is authorized to be established in the Department of State and the Department of the Treasury an Assistant Secretary for Energy Resources.

(v) coordinating with the Office of Sanctions Coordination on economic sanctions pertaining to the international energy sector; and

(vi) working internationally to—

(1) support the development of energy resources and the distribution of such resources for the benefit of the United States and United States allies and trading partners;

(2) promote availability of diversified energy supplies and a well-functioning global market for energy resources, technologies, and expertise for the benefit of the United States and United States allies and trading partners;

(3) resolve international disputes regarding the exploration, development, production, distribution, and use of energy resources;

(4) support the economic and commercial interests of United States persons operating in the energy markets of foreign countries;

(5) support and coordinate international efforts to alleviate energy poverty;

(6) leading the United States commitment to the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative; and

(7) coordinating energy security and other relevant functions within the Department currently undertaken by—

(aa) the Bureau of Economic and Business Affairs;

(bb) the Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs; and

(cc) other offices within the Department of State."

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuantly to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEKS) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. McCaul) each will control 20 minutes.
THE CHAIR recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 1157, as amended.

Mr. MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1157, the Department of State Authorization Act of 2019, which I have introduced alongside my good friend and ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, MIKE McCaul.

H.R. 1157 is a comprehensive, biparartisan measure that builds on the work of several prior Congresses to broadly authorize the management and operation of the Department of State. This sort of bill should be a regular part of our work.

However, it has been nearly two decades since the State Department authorization bill was enacted into law.
With every passing year, this represents another missed opportunity to ensure the Department of State and our Nation’s diplomats have the comprehensive support they need to advance America’s interests around the world.

While we have made progress over the last couple of years, including in 2019, when the House passed an earlier version of this bill, we must finally seize the historic opportunity to do what we have failed to do in the past 10 Congresses.

Diplomacy and development are critical tools for advancing the United States’ foreign policy and national security objectives, for protecting human rights and the rule of law around the world, for deepening relationships with America’s longstanding partners and allies, and for forging new relationships around the world.

As the COVID-19 pandemic continues to threaten the globe, it has reminded us once again that diplomacy and development are central to solving global congresses and emergencies, keeping us safe and healthy, and enabling our countries and our communities to thrive.

But at the State Department, there are also several vexing management challenges that have gone unaddressed for too long. We have seen the politicization, neglect, and slashing of resources we saw during the previous administration. This has made it harder for our diplomats to do their jobs. We must not only build the State Department back, as President Biden says, we must build it better.

To be clear, diplomacy and development are not just about policy, but about the brave and dedicated public servants who work tirelessly to keep our country safe. Yet, while the Department of State represents the interests of the American people abroad, it has not looked like the America it serves. So, among the many important management-related provisions in H.R. 1157, I am particularly proud of those aimed at ensuring a more diverse, equitable, and inclusive workforce.

This bill mandates disaggregated and transparent data collection and provides for vital tools to improve the ability of the State Department to recruit, promote, and retain personnel. It pushes for greater transparency and inclusivity in filling senior leadership roles and seeks to address the black box of assignment restrictions accompanying some State Department employees. It provides security clearances that have negatively impacted Asian Americans and other people of color.

It also ensures that the Department can pay its interns, exposing many more young Americans from across our great country to the important work that the Department does around the world and ensuring a strong and diverse pipeline of talent over the long term.

By shoring up other institutional accountability and management safeguards, including to ensure cooperation with the inspector general's investigations, the bill will also help to prevent the politicized targeting and impunity that has caused so much harm to the members of the workforce and their morale.

We can, and we must, move this bipartisan legislation forward and get Congress back on track to doing right by our great diplomats, our development professionals, and the American people we all serve.

I urge my colleagues to support this measure so that we can move it one step closer to the President's desk.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCAUL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I want to commend my good friend and colleague, Chairman MEEKS, for his great leadership and hard work that is going to get this thing done and send it over to the Senate. 2002 was the last time. In the nearly 20 years since that authority lapsed, we have seen too many taxpayer dollars wasted on inefficient hirings and procurements, an expanding bureaucracy, and an outdated IT system that left us vulnerable to cyberattacks from our adversaries.

It is a fundamental duty of the Foreign Affairs Committee to pass an annual authorization bill, just like we pass a national defense authorization bill. This is necessary to fulfill our constitutional oversight responsibilities and our obligation to be good stewards of the people's money.

For these reasons I am proud, again, of this bipartisan effort our committee has produced, as we often do. It will address numerous longstanding difficulties. It will fortify the Department and our diplomats with the tools needed to fulfill their missions to promote America's overseas and enhance our security abroad.

Among other important reforms, the bill before us will modernize the State Department workforce, eliminate outdated reporting requirements, bolster embassy and information security, strengthen the State Department’s diplomacy and anticorruption efforts, and reassert the Article I prerogatives of the United States Congress.

As the United States faces growing challenges around the world, we need our Secretary and diplomats to know that Congress supports them, and that is precisely what this bill does.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank, again, Chairman MEEKS, for his great leadership and hard work that is going to get this thing done. This type of collaboration has been a hallmark of our work on this committee, and I know that it will continue to be so.

Again, this bill having lapsed for nearly 20 years, it is long overdue. This bill deserves our unanimous support.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCAUL. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Kim), an esteemed member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Mrs. KIM of California. Madam Speaker, I am proud to stand in support of H.R. 1157, the Department of State Authorization Act of 2021. I want to thank Chair MEEKS and Ranking Member MCCAUL for their efforts to reform the State Department, including offering improved job and skills training opportunities for foreign service officers.

I am honored to have two amendments included in this bill, the first of which I introduced separately as H.R. 1244. Today many foreign service officers and State Department staff spend an outsized amount of their time complying with duplicative and outdated reporting requirements mandated by Congress.

H.R. 1244 repeals those requirements to streamline the flow of information from State Department to Congress and allow our foreign service officers to spend more time working toward accomplishing America’s foreign affairs objectives.

I want to thank Mr. CONNOLLY for also working with me on this initiative, and I urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 1157.

Mr. MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCAUL. Madam Speaker, I am prepared to close, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I think this is a momentous day for the Congress. I want to thank my friend and colleague, Chairman MEEKS, for his great leadership in bringing this long-overdue authorization bill to the floor and what they accomplished for America’s foreign affairs objectives.

I also want to thank former chairman Eliot Engel, who I worked with very closely to get an authorization bill passed out of the House, just to see it fall in the Senate. I hope the Senate will not allow that to happen again. This is really desperately needed. It is a momentous day for the House. It is critical. It is bipartisan. It reclaims our constitutional prerogatives of the Congress and the full oversight role of our Committee on Foreign Affairs. I think it demands our unanimous support.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MEEKS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume for closing purposes.

Let me thank Ranking Member McCaul for his partnership in bringing this bipartisan bill to the floor. I join him in also recognizing former chair Eliot Engel and what they attempted to do in the previous Congress to make this happen. It would not have happened had we not had the work and the continuous cooperation of both of our staffs in putting this bill together, so I am thankful to them.

When we talk about H.R. 1157, the Department of State Authorization Act of 2021, it is going to make the State Department better prepared to conduct diplomacy and meet the challenges that we have of the 21st century.

Congress must make authorizing the Department of State a regular part of its legislative efforts. As the ranking member said, just as much as we pass bills for defense and NDA, we must be sure that we want the passing the State authorization bill.

What happens and will happen by passing this bill, we can ensure that State has the tools that it needs so that it can be more effective, more relevant, and more reflective of the America it represents abroad. This should be, and I hope all of my colleagues join me and Ranking Member McCAUL in supporting this bill in a unanimous way.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEKES) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1157, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. WEBER of Texas. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(e) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion are postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and insert extraneous materials therein.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I thank Representative SCOTT for his leadership on this legislation, the Financial Inclusion in Banking Act.

This bill would direct the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s Office of Community Affairs to identify causes leading to, and solutions for, under-banked, un-banked, and underserved consumers.

The office would be required to share its findings in a report to Congress every 2 years and coordinate with other Federal agencies to increase financial education. Through new requirements, this bill would provide important information about unbanked and underbanked consumers and ultimately help drive solutions that can decrease the reliance on predatory financing products, like payday loans.

According to FDIC’s latest survey from 2019, more than 7 million American households, or roughly 5.4 percent, are unbanked. However, the survey was taken before the pandemic, and the agency noted it would likely result in an increase in the unbanked rate.

Even some individuals and families that may have a bank account still end up utilizing other forms of credit, like a pawn shop or payday loan, which are typically more expensive than bank products. Nearly 5 percent of all households utilize these products, but again, these are pre-pandemic numbers, and we know millions have lost their jobs and may turn to these other forms of credit.

Moreover, access to traditional banking accounts is one way to expeditiously deliver government stimulus deposits to individuals and families that need help quickly.

Access to banking is a racial justice issue, as well. According to the FDIC’s pre-pandemic data, 13.8 percent of Black households and 12.2 percent of Latinx households are unbanked, compared to just 2.5 percent of White households.

Everyone deserves access to safe, reliable, and affordable banking options in order to grow their savings, build credit, and conduct financial transactions in a secure way. This bill would be an important step in achieving that goal.

For these reasons, I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT) for introducing this bill, which has been bipartisan for several Congresses.

According to data from the FDIC’s survey of unbanked and underbanked households, 5.4 percent of U.S. households were unbanked in 2019. This means no one in the household had a checking or savings account. This translates, Madam Speaker, into 7.1 million American households that don’t have that simple, straightforward needed access to a checking or savings account.

While this is the lowest percentage rate since the FDIC began conducting that survey back in 2009, the number of unbanked and underbanked families is still disturbing.

These statistics point to a staggering number of Americans who have limited or no access to traditional banking services. When I was in community banking before coming to Congress, there was nothing more empowering than having connection to and access to that financial system so that you can save for college, buy a home, acquire that first car that you have dreamed of and just conduct your household’s financing.

So, over the years in Congress, I have supported efforts to improve financial literacy, particularly with my friend, Dr. Postle. As a banker, I certainly worked with volunteers, helping families understand the financial system and how they could have banking access. This is a key issue that both the private sector and the public sector work on the underserved, we are working with the Office of Community Affairs to focus its efforts on the underserved, the unbanked and underbanked.

Mr. SCOTT has suggested that the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s Office of Community Affairs continue to engage in these efforts and examine how to improve this situation. The Office of Community Affairs also partnered with the CFPB’s Office of Research and the Office of Fair Lending to examine credit deserts, where we don’t even have access to financial services, and better equip communities with the tools for financial education.

Additionally, the Bureau’s Your Money, Your Goals program offers a variety of materials to help consumers pursue financial empowerment and resources, organizations aimed at helping financially vulnerable individuals and families.

This is a key issue and, particularly in my rural State, a bigger challenge than having connection to and access to traditional banking before coming to Congress, it’s a bigger challenge in my rural State, a bigger challenge, and I think it is something that we need to continue to engage in these efforts and to focus our attention on the underserved, the unbanked and underbanked.

I urge my colleagues everywhere to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIDSON. Madam Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. BARTLETT. Madam Speaker, I appreciate the work my colleagues have done together on this issue of fintech, which I think is very important and has the ability to actually open up doors for underbanked families and underbanked families at a lower cost and a more accessible way through smart technology. I think that is going to be important.

I thank, again, my friend from Georgia for his work on financial literacy. As a great Wharton graduate, he knows that this is something that we need to continue to engage in these efforts and to focus our attention on the underserved, the unbanked and underbanked. But its characteristics of those who have limited or no access to traditional banking services, as well as identify potential solutions to the reliance on predatory financial products, which often lead to predatory lending and cycles of being trapped in debt.

Communities of color have been excluded from the traditional economic system due to historical discrimination. All consumers deserve access to less expensive and more secure mainstream financial products. The House passed identical legislation unanimously by voice vote in October 2019, and I urge Republican and Democratic Members to join me in supporting this bill again.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT. Madam Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIDSON. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(s) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion are postponed.

GHOST ARMY-CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL ACT

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 707) to award a Congressional Gold Medal to the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company, in recognition of their unique and highly distinguished service as a "Ghost Army" that conducted deception operations in Europe during World War II, as amended. The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 707

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Ghost Army Congressional Gold Medal Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, comprised of the 23d Headquarters and Headquarters Company, the 609th Engineer Camouflage Battalion, the 406th Combat Engineer Company, the 3132d Signal Service Company and the Signal Company, Special, 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company were top-secret units of the United States Army that served in Europe during World War II.

(2) The 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, was actively engaged in battlefield operations from June of 1944 through March of 1945. The 3133d Signal Service Company was engaged in support of Operation OVERLORD, from June of 1944 through May of 1945.

(3) The deceptive activities of these units were integral to several Allied victories across Europe and reduced American casualties.

(4) In evaluating the performance of these units after the War, a U.S. Army analysis found that "Rarely, if ever, has there been a group of men which had so great an influence on the outcome of a major military campaign."

(5) Many Ghost Army soldiers were citizen-soldiers recruited from art schools, advertising agencies, communications companies, and other creative and technical professions.

(6) The first four members of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, landed in D-Day and two became casualties while creating false beach landing sites.

(7) The 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, secret deception operations commenced in France on June 14, 1944, when Task Force Mason, a 17-man detachment of the 23d led by First Lieutenant Bernard Mason, landed at Omaha Beach. Task Force Mason conducted Operation ELEPHANT between 1 and 4 July, 1944, to draw enemy fire and protect the 980th Field Artillery Battalion (VIII Corps) from German observation.

(8) Operation ELEPHANT was a prelude to 21 full-scale tactical deceptions completed by the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops.

(9) On or near the front lines, the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, used inflatable tanks, artillery, airplanes and other vehicles, advanced engineered soundtracks, and skillfully crafted radio trickery to create the illusion of sizable American forces where there were none and to deceive the enemy about Allied troop movements.

(10) The 3132d and the 3133d Signal Service Companies, activated in Pine Camp (now Fort Drum), New York, at the Army Experimental Station, Task Force Mason were the only two active duty "sonic deception" ground combat units in World War II.

(11) Soldiers of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, used inflatable tanks, artillery, airplanes and two became casualties while creating false beach landing sites.

(12) During the Battle of the Bulge, the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, created counterfeigned radio traffic to mask the efforts of General George Patton's Third Army as it mobilized to break through to the 101st Airborne and elements of 10th Armored Division in the besieged Belgian town of Bastogne.

(13) In its final mission, Operation VIERSEN, in March 1945, the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, conducted a tactical deception that drew German units down the Rhine River and away from the Ninth Army, allowing the Ninth Army to cross the Rhine into Germany. On this mission, the 1,100 men of the Ghost Army, with the assistance of other units, impersonated forty thousand men, or two complete divisions of American forces, by using fabricated radio networks, soundtracks of construction work and artillery fire, and more than 600 inflatable vehicles. According to a military intelligence officer of the 79th Infantry, "There is no denying that the Ghost Army was materially assisted in deceiving the enemy with regard to the real dispositions and intentions of this Army.

(14) Three soldiers of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, gave their lives and dozens were injured in carrying out their mission.

(15) In April 1945, the 3133d Signal Service Company conducted Operation CRAFTSMAN in support of Operation SECOND WIND, the successful allied effort to break through the German defensive position to the north of Florence, Italy, known as the Gothic Line. Along with an attached platoon of British engineers, who were inflatable decoy specialists, the 3133d Signal Service Company used sonic deception to misrepresent troop locations along this defensive line.

(16) The activities of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company were classified for more than forty years after the war and were never formally recognized. The extraordinary accomplishments of this unit are deserving of belated official recognition.

(17) The United States is eternally grateful to the soldiers of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company for their proficient use of innovative tactics throughout World War II, which saved lives and made significant contributions to the defeat of the Axis powers.

SEC. 3. CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL.

(a) AWARD AUTHORIZED.—The Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate shall make the award, on behalf of the Congress, of a gold medal of appropriate design to the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, and the 3133d Signal Service Company, known as the "Ghost Army", collectively, in recognition of its unique and incredible service during World War II.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the Smithsonian Institution should make the gold medal awarded pursuant to this Act available for display elsewhere, particularly at appropriate locations associated with the Ghost Army, and that the Smithsonian Institution shall be affiliated with the Smithsonian Institution.

The Secretary may strike and sell duplicates in bronze of the gold medal struck under section 3, at a price sufficient to cover the costs of the medal, including labor, materials, dies, use of machinery, and overhead expenses.

SEC. 5. NATIONAL MEDAL.

The gold medal pursuant to this Act is a national medal for purposes of chapter 66 of title 31, United States Code.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HILL) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 707, the Ghost Army Congressional Gold Medal Act.

I thank the gentlewoman from New Hampshire for her leadership on this bill which honors the creativity and ingenuity of the men of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company in conducting deception operations in Europe during World War II.

The Ghost Army was a 1,100-man unit comprised mostly of individuals recruited from art schools. They were from advertising agencies, communications companies, and other creative fields. They were tasked with using their creative talents to mislead, deceive, and confuse the German Army and lure them away from Allied combat units.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Missouri?

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and to insert extraneous material thereon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There is objection to thegentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 707, the Ghost Army Congressional Gold Medal Act.
Following the D-day landing in France, the Ghost Army undertook a “traveling road show” utilizing fake radio transmissions, inflatable tanks, and theatrical sounds and atmospheric effects to conduct elaborate ruses to deflect German units away from the actual Allied unit location and toward imaginary ones.

The artists, architects, engineers of the Ghost Army were so effective that a later Army analysis of the performance observed, “Barley, if ever, has there been a group of such a few men which had so great an influence on the outcome of a major military campaign.”

The bravery, ingenuity, and patriotic actions displayed by these citizen-soldiers remained highly classified for more than 40 years after World War II and were never formally recognized.

This bill honors their unique contributions to the war effort by directing the Mint to strike a gold medal in honor of the Ghost Army. The gold medal shall be given to the Smithsonian Institution, where it will be available for display and serve as recognition of the noble service of the Ghost Army during World War II.

Madam Speaker, I thank Ms. Kuster for her work on this bill, and I urge Members to vote “yes.”

Mr. HILL. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STEWART. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 707, the Ghost Army Congressional Gold Medal Act.

I thank my friend from New Hampshire, Congresswoman Kuster, for proposing it. I appreciate my good friend from Utah, Mr. Stewart, for cosponsoring and helping bring this to the floor today on a bipartisan basis.

Sun Tzu, in “The Art of War,” stated: “All warfare is based on deception. Hence, when we are able to attack, we must seem unable; when using our forces, we must appear inactive; when near, we must make the enemy believe we are far away; when far away, we must make him believe we are near.

That was the philosophy that led to the formation of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company, known as the Ghost Army.

H.R. 707 will award a Congressional Gold Medal to the U.S. Army’s 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company to honor their bravery displayed during World War II.

The Ghost Army, unlike many other units, was never recognized as a military unit. As my friend from Missouri said, of civilian soldiers who had a proclivity for art, architecture, acting, set design, and engineering. During World War II, the 23d Headquarters Special Troops successfully tricked German forces into believing that there were as many as 100,000 Ghost Army tanks made of steel, the Ghost Army was equipped with tanks made of rubber.

Using inflatable equipment, sound effects, radio trickery, and impersonation, the Ghost Army made it appear that thousands of combat troops where there really were none. In operations throughout the war, their actions were decisive.

In September of 1944, they filled a 25-mile gap in Patton’s line that had opened up after he charged across France. In March of 1945, they impersonated two full divisions to draw enemy attention away from the Ninth Army’s crossing of the Rhine River. Their combat deceptions worked brilliantly.

According to a U.S. Army analysis after the war, the Ghost Army deception saved up to an estimated 30,000 Allied lives. Their tactics were so effective that the Army kept their secret for more than 50 years after the war. And because of this classification, the men of the Ghost Army were never recognized for their heroism and contributions to defeating fascism in Europe.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from New Hampshire.

Ms. KUSTER. Madam Speaker, H.R. 707, the Ghost Army Congressional Gold Medal Act, would right this wrong by awarding the Congressional Gold Medal to the Ghost Army.

I am proud that 75 years after their service, with the help of my colleague from Utah, Mr. Stewart, the Ghost Army will finally get some recognition that it so deserves. I thank my colleagues for their work.

Madam Speaker, I encourage all of our colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. HILL. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. Stewart), the cosponsor of this important legislation to recognize the Ghost Army.

Mr. STEWART. Madam Speaker, I thank the ranking member, Mr. Hill, and my colleagues. I especially thank my cosponsor from New Hampshire for her support and her words today.

Madam Speaker, much has been said, so I will be brief.

I previously stand before you in support of awarding the Ghost Army veterans the Congressional Gold Medal. For more than 40 years, this World War II unit of more than 1,000 soldiers was nothing more than a myth; a bit of a ghost, if you will. More than 20 years ago, their heroic actions were still classified until, finally, we could learn the things that they had done.

Today, I ask my colleagues again, both Democrat and Republican, to join me in recognizing the Ghost Army with the recognition that they really deserve.

During our Nation’s darkest hour, the Ghost Army did not shy away from the flight. They saved thousands of lives. They stood eye-to-eye against the axis of evil. They defeated fascism in Europe. To do so many of them made the ultimate sacrifice.

For those heroes who returned home, no one knew of their courage and sacrifice; neither did many of them know of the great service that they and the Ghost Army had. They kept their top-secret mission and the operations they did even away from their friends and family.
But, still, they have not been yet recognized by the Army or by this Congressional body. We have the opportunity to right that wrong.

Today, there are only 11 members of more than 1,000 of the original Ghost Army who still remain alive. And to this day, they continue to embody the ideals that Americans strive for: Duty, honor, sacrifice, courage, service.

Let’s pass this bill. Let’s give the Ghost Army heroes the highest honor that we can.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILL. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I thank my friend from Utah for his important closing words to support this important bill, H.R. 707.

What better tribute to those families of the 1,000 who served in the Ghost Army, and those 11 who we still celebrate with us today that the recognition they deserve, because those 1,000 saved the lives of thousands more in the Allied force as we completed our task of ridding Europe of fascism.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my friends from Utah, and New Hampshire for their leadership on this bill. I thank Chairman CLEAVER today for guiding our debate, and I encourage everyone in the House to support H.R. 707.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is one of the most amazing things that I have had the opportunity to support since I have been in Congress. And this bill is simply amazing. It ensures official recognition of creativity and innovation displayed by members of the Ghost Army in saving lives, contributing to the defeat of the axis powers during World War II.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Ms. KUSTER for her work in ensuring recognition of this brave and talented group of citizens-soldiers and their unique contributions to the war effort.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. McNERNY). The question is on the motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3146) to amend the Defense Production Act of 1950 to ensure the supply of certain medical materials essential to national defense, and for other purposes.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3146, the Securing America’s Vaccines for Emergencies Act, the SAVE Act. I want to thank my friend from California, Juan Vargas, a colleague on the House Financial Services Committee, for her leadership and for her clear leadership role in this bill. The addition of the Defense Production Act—what we are talking about today—and how we could improve it for better preparing the United States for a global pandemic.

The SAVE Act amends that Defense Production Act to protect medical supplies for Americans by bolstering our supply chain during times of crisis. The Defense Production Act, as my friend, Mr. Cleaver, noted, was first signed into law by President Truman in 1950 in response to a shortage of materials during the Korean conflict.

Designed to incentivize production, avoid inflation, and, as I say, boost goods critical for the national defense, the DPA successfully brought American manufacturing to the forefront at the battle at hand at that time. Initially, the Defense Production Act, as you can tell by its name, was used in response for military needs, but over time the United States Congress has expanded to consider essential to national defense, and those include critical responses to national emergencies.

When President Truman signed the DPA, he shared: It is your fight, the fight of all of us, and it can be won only if all of us in the fight can fight it together. At that time, he was saying that in response to the Korean conflict, but this quote still resonates with us now the same way as it did so long ago.

A little over a year ago, our country faced another nationwide crisis that called on the need for the Defense Production Act to be placed in the American spotlight. In response to a global health crisis, America experienced shortages of necessary medical supplies, basically overnight.

Supply chains were tested like never before, and it became increasingly clear that America needed to do something different in order to respond to the alarming increase in demand for medical gloves, N95 masks, and ventilators.

In my home State of Arkansas, our hospitals had medical materials stacked from floor to ceiling stamped ‘Made in China’.”

Mr. Speaker, the Pfizer vaccine against COVID–19 consists of 268 components sourced from 86 sites across 19 countries. International cooperation makes treatments like this possible. But we must ensure these items don’t fall under the exclusive control of an adversary. My legislation will help prevent that. Mr. Speaker, I urge all my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support the SAVE Act, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield my self such time as I may consume.
Among other things, it requires a detailed plan from the President to secure the medical material supply chain. Additionally, it amends the DPA, the Defense Production Act, to include medical materials among critical materials for which the supply chain is essential.

As my good friend knows, we need to prepare not only for this pandemic, unfortunately, for other medical emergencies that may come. We have heard that we may be entering an era of pandemics and we must be prepared.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend from Arkansas for his leadership, and I urge a "yes" vote on this bill's passage.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from California, Mr. VARGAS. We will be talking about this when we discuss his bill in a few minutes. We have collaborated on this, and it is about planning. It is about being caught at low tide with no bathing suit, and that is what this country needs is a better strategy.

President Bush warned us of that after he studied this issue when he was President. The stockpiles are important. Our medical supply chain and those critical components are critical to the health and safety of our country. It is critical that we look to defend ourselves, and hence an appropriate amendment to the Defense Production Act.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I urge a "yes" vote on both sides of the aisle, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this time last year we watched as our brave healthcare workers struggled all over this country to respond to the mounting COVID-19 crisis, often with inadequate personal protective equipment and limited medical supplies.

This bill ensures that we can direct our significant scientific innovation and industrial capacity towards ensuring essential medical supplies are readily available, and that our supply chains are resilient in the face of threats to our collective health and well-being.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Mr. HILL for his work on this important issue, and I urge all of my colleagues to vote "yes." I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3125.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COVID-19 EMERGENCY MEDICAL SUPPLIES ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2021

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3125) to enhance authorities under the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. 4511 et seq.) during the COVID-19 emergency, to provide additional oversight of such authorities, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 3125
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “COVID-19 Emergency Medical Supplies Enhancement Act of 2021.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HILL) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have their names inscribed on the records which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and to insert extraneous material thereon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3125, the COVID–19 Emergency Medical Supplies Enhancement Act of 2021, introduced by my colleague and friend, Mr. VARGAS.

This legislation would help strengthen the oversight over this issue that we are discussing today of using the Defense Production Act’s authorities during this COVID–19 pandemic. It also would help streamline the use of those authorities so that we ensure that the Federal Government’s response is coordinated effectively with State-led efforts.

I was proud to cosponsor this bill with my friend from California, I think every Member of this House recognized that coordination challenge during the emergency, and it was challenging in some of our States to see surplus of supply in some States and not in others.

So Mr. VARGAS has attempted to focus in during the pandemic on enhancing that coordination when we are using the DPA. That coordination effort would work with private suppliers of medical items for more efficient and essential consideration when the U.S. is facing this kind of a public health emergency.
Although the U.S. appears to be exiting the pandemic now, DPA authorities are still in use to address our critical medical needs. We must be especially vigilant as the coronavirus continues to wreak havoc abroad, giving rise to potential new variants that the medical community will have to monitor closely.
Of course, we are all now far more sensitized to the pandemic risks that may arise with little notice in the future. Mr. VARGAS’ legislation provides a blueprint for deploying the DPA more rapidly should we face a public health emergency in the years ahead, all while allowing for appropriate, active congressional oversight.
I am happy to cosponsor my friend’s legislation to facilitate the bipartisan work that we have shared undertaking this item in the House Financial Services Committee.
Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Caliifornia (Mr. VARGAS).
Mr. VARGAS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the COVID-19 Emergency Medical Supplies Enhancement Act, H.R. 3125, because I agree with my good friend from Arkansas that we don’t want to get caught at low tide with no bathing suit. In fact, that is a very bad idea.
The administration has been exremely effective in using the Defense Production Act to help produce vaccines and PPE. Following these efforts, cases and deaths have declined significantly. My bipartisan bill will support the current use of DPA and facilitate its use to save lives.
This bill amends the DPA to explicitly include public health emergency preparedness as a core activity for national defense, as was mentioned by my good friend from Arkansas.
It also provides guidance to create an outreach representative who would act as the point person for Federal and private engagement to increase production of medically necessary materials.
It also requires the administration to provide more detailed reporting on the conveying the Federal contracts awarded under the DPA authorities.
Finally, it requires additional reporting on the percentage of contracts awarded to small businesses.
I urge the administration to disaggregate data on small businesses awarded the DPA contracts. We need to clearly see the number of contracts going to individuals from underserved communities, including communities of color, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.
I am proud to have introduced this bill with my good friend from Arkansas, Representative HILL; and also my colleagues as cosponsors, Reprepentatives TAYLOR, RAY, and GONZÁLEZ-COLON. In a bipartisan manner, we have recognized the importance of public health emergency preparedness, including PPE and vaccine production.
(English translation of the statement made in Spanish pro tempore. I also want to say that too many people in our Latino communities have died due to this virus. So, please, now that the vaccine is available, protect yourselves and protect our community—vayan a vacunar hoy.
Mr. Speaker, I have no further speaker, so I yield back the balance of my time.
Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time, which will be very short like this bathing suit.
Mr. Speaker, this bill takes the lessons we have learned over the past 14 months and builds on the DPA’s purpose of harnessing our domestic industrial base in the interest of national defense to ensure that we have the medical materials necessary to respond to the COVID-19 pandemic and to future pandemics.
I thank Mr. VARGAS for his vision and hard work in ensuring that our Na-ton can bring together its leadership and scientific innovation and our impressive domestic industrial base to support our collective public health and well-being through access to necessary medical materials.
Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to vote “aye” on the bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.
The SPEAKER pro tempore.
The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr.
CLEAVER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3125.
The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
or guidance, of training meeting the requirements under subparagraph (B) of such section 202(g)(5) (as amended by subsection (a) of this section) shall be considered to fulfill the requirement under such subparagraph; and

(b) providing a method for appraisers to demonstrate such prior completion; and

(c) the expiration of the 180-day period beginning upon issuance of such mortgagee letter or guidance.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HILL) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and insert extraneous materials therein.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3008, the Homebuyer Assistance Act of 2021, which would make a common-sense update to the Federal Housing Administration's requirements governing appraisals to allow licensed appraisers to conduct home valuations for FHA-backed mortgages.

The current requirement to utilize a certified appraiser for all FHA loans is simply outdated as it was put into place at a time when there were no minimum Federal standards for State licensure of appraisers, leaving concerns about consistency in competency across States.

Now that we do have minimum standards for licensure, FHA’s certification requirement is not only out of date and out of alignment with Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, it is also creating market-wide pressures for lenders to require certified appraisers for all loans, even if they are not FHA loans, just in case the mortgage switches to an FHA loan midway through the process.

This, in turn, makes it harder for licensed appraisers to obtain work at a time when certain areas are experiencing mortgage shortages, and we are already struggling to effectively recruit new and diverse appraisers. Licensed appraisers who are perfectly qualified to conduct appraisals for GSE loans should be just as qualified to conduct appraisals for FHA loans.

I would like to thank Mr. SHERMAN for introducing this legislation; and the Republican cosponsor, Mr. VAN TAYLOR, for supporting this all-important bill.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to vote "yes," and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3008, the Homebuyer Assistance Act of 2021, sponsored by my friend from California (Mr. SHERMAN) and cosponsored by my colleague from Texas (Mr. TAYLOR), who are both superb active members of the Committee on Financial Services here in the House.

The committee reviewed many of the issues faced by the appraisal industry. There were two concerns heard loud and clear from the witnesses: the prolonged backlog for appraisals and the decreased quality in appraisals used in transactions involving loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration, the FHA.

H.R. 3008 addresses these concerns in two ways. First, the bill amends current law to expand the pool of appraisers eligible to participate in FHA-insured transactions from being just certified appraisers to include both certified and licensed appraisers.

Additionally, the bill addresses the different training requirements that each must meet. Currently, certified appraisers must have 1,500 hours of supervised experience without any property value or complexity restrictions. Licensed appraisers need only 1,000 hours of supervised experience, and there are some property value or complexity restrictions on licensed appraisers.

So H.R. 3008 sets minimum trending requirements for both types of appraisers in FHA transactions. Certified and licensed appraisers must have at least 7 hours of approved training by The Appraisal Foundation or their State licensing agency. These changes will help break that logjam and bring FHA’s appraisal rules in line with the current appraisal rules used by our government-sponsored enterprises, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, in the secondary market and in the conventional mortgage market.

Moreover, the changes that Mr. SHERMAN and Mr. TAYLOR proposed will help alleviate the appraisal backlog at the FHA and increase the quality of work being performed. That would benefit both homeowners and taxpayers alike.

As a former community banker in Arkansas, I understand firsthand how the appraiser shortage has been a problem in my home State. For example, in Arkansas, there has been a consistent delay in home purchases in rural areas because of the increased burdens that this shortage has brought about. This has created a ripple effect that has had a negative impact on the economies or in those neighborhoods.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my friends, Mr. SHERMAN and Mr. TAYLOR, I urge all Members to support this bill; and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN), who is a sponsor of this legislation.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I thank our colleague from Texas (Mr. TAYLOR) for working with me on this bill, the Homebuyer Assistance Act of 2021. I thank the gentleman from Arkansas and the gentleman from Missouri for doing an excellent job of explaining the importance of this bill to the House, so I will be brief.

There is no more important day in the economic life of a family than when they buy a home, particularly, their first home, and appraisers play an important role in that very important day. So this bill looks to bring into synchrony the rules of the FHA dealing with appraisers, the FHA being the third-largest Federal home loan finance agency, bring those standards into conformity or rough conformity with the two larger Federal home loan finance agencies, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

This will help deal with the shortage of appraisers that we are seeing in various parts of the country. Appraisers are an important part of the home-buying process for both lenders and borrowers to provide assurance that the amount of the mortgage is supported by the estimate property value.

Since 2010, all the State-licensed housing appraisers have been required to meet minimum Federal education experience and examination requirements set by the Appraiser Qualifications Board.

So the standards set by the Appraiser Qualifications Board are fully sufficient for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, and they should be for the FHA as well. Unfortunately, until this bill passes, appraisers for FHA mortgages must meet the higher standard. This creates a shortage of appraisers who can do FHA appraisals.

By helping address the shortage of appraisers that plague many areas, this legislation will provide much-needed assistance for first-time, low-and-middle income home and mortgage buyers who rely on FHA mortgages or rely on mortgages that may become FHA mortgages during the process.

Over 83 percent of the FHA home mortgages made in 2018 were to first-time homebuyers and over one-third of all FHA loans were obtained by minority households. I am pleased to say that with the support of this House, we passed the Homebuyer Assistance Act in 2019 with overwhelming bipartisan support, 419–4.

Today, I hope the House renews that level of wisdom in the Senate.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN), for his hard work on this bill.

I hope that we are able to get it over the finish line and to the President’s desk. I appreciate Senator THUNE working on this in the Senate.

It is an important piece of legislation that will aid, as Mr. SHERMAN outlined, first-time home buyers. A majority of this benefit speeds up that process for the family who is trying to buy their... first home or a home that is low enough in mortgage size to be insured by the FHA. This is something we want to do to speed access to the American Dream for low- to moderate-income families. I thank Mr. SHERMAN for his work, and I encourage all of my friends on both sides of the aisle to support H.R. 3008, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I again want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN) for bringing this legislation forward and for the support of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TAYLOR).

This bill removes unnecessary barriers to the home-buying process, which will help millions of FHA borrowers over time.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this important legislation, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Mr. CLEAVER, the motion to reconsider the rule having been seconded, I will declare the motion to be before the House, and the question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3008.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. NORMAN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HIMES) will control 20 minutes.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion are postponed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
This long-overdue bill creates a clear definition of illegal insider trading under the securities laws so that there is a codified, consistent standard for courts and market participants. This bill will help to better protect the hard-earned savings of millions of American workers and bring legal and regulatory certainty to U.S. securities markets.

For nearly 80 years, the Securities and Exchange Commission has sought to hold corporate insiders accountable for violations of the law through a general statutory antifraud provisions and rules it has promulgated under those provisions. This has resulted in a web of court decisions that generally prohibit insider trading. Notwithstanding, information themselves, even though they knew it was wrongly obtained. But because there isn’t a statutory definition of insider trading, there is uncertainty around who is subject to insider trading prohibitions.

Further, with various court decisions, liability for this type of violation has shifted. For example, in 2014, an appeals court added a brand-new requirement that the tippee must not just know that information was wrongfully disclosed but also must know about the specific personal benefit that the insider received. This decision has severely hampered the SEC’s ability to prosecute insider trading cases.

According to Preet Bharara, the former U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York, this decision “provides a virtual roadmap for savvy hedge-fund managers to insulate themselves from tippee liability by knowingly placing themselves at the center of a chain of insider information and avoiding learning details about the sources of obvious confidential and improperly disclosed information.”

I am pleased that this bill codifies existing case law and overturns this new controversial requirement, creating a clear, consistent standard for the SEC, the courts, and market participants to follow.

Last Congress, the House of Representatives passed this commonsense bipartisan bill, which passed with an overwhelmingly bipartisan vote of 410–13.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to once again support this important bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, stopping and punishing bad actors for illegal insider trading is a top priority for House Republicans. This illegal activity hurts everyday Main Street investors as well as the integrity and efficiency of our markets.

Trading on material insider information in breach of fiduciary duty is currently prohibited by court-made law under the antifraud provisions of the Federal securities laws.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, the SEC, and the Department of Justice have the power to bring insider trading cases, and both agencies regularly bring enforcement actions that are not otherwise available under this law. To be explicitly clear, this legislation’s intent is to codify, and neither expand nor contract, insider trading law as it is currently understood and interpreted by the Federal courts.

Again, the uncertainty around who is subject to insider trading prohibitions is a serious('%d'&n

Third, congressional action is needed to provide a clear, consistent standard for insid
Mr. Speaker, as you know, preventing fraud and abuse within our financial system and cracking down on bad actors for illegal insider trading is a nonpartisan priority. We all believe that this is a good thing. In fact, this kind of fraud and illegal activity hurts everyday Main Street investors. It also makes our capital markets less efficient, accurate, and fair to all investors.

Now, current law prohibits trading on material insider information in breach of a fiduciary duty under the antifraud provisions of the Federal securities laws. Let me just repeat that. Current law prohibits those activities. The Securities and Exchange Commission and the Department of Justice are the Federal agencies tasked with enforcing insider trading laws. Both agencies regularly use their authority to bring insider trading cases against these bad actors who violate our insider trading rules. However, the bill we are discussing here today, H.R. 2655, is flawed and could potentially create even more confusion and uncertainty within the law of insider trading. It could expand liability for good-faith traders, which would weaken investor confidence, chill vital information-gathering, and hurt the efficiency of our markets.

I believe it is important to note that, once again, the SEC is not asking for this bill or, frankly, any other legislative help on this issue. That is, the cop on the beat is not saying we need additional tools. Moreover, Democrats have not identified a problem within the current body of law that inhibits the prosecution of bad actors who illegally trade on material, nonpublic information. Again, the regulators have the tools that they need.

Republican and Democrat SEC chairs alike, with vastly different approaches to enforcement matters, have expressed concerns over Congress codifying a prohibition on insider trading into one single statute, as we are doing. They voiced concerns that Congress would write a law that would be both overly broad, yet too narrow. Now, that is an odd phrase.

Former SEC Chair Mary Jo White, during 2015 testimony—by the way, she was President Obama’s SEC chair—before our Financial Services Committee, when asked whether or not Congress should pursue an explicit statutory prohibition, stated: “I think it is challenging clearly in a way that is both not too broad and retains the strength of the common law.”

Additionally, former SEC Chair Jay Clayton voiced similar concerns that Congress could write an insider trading law that is both too broad and too narrow.

I want to commend the gentleman from Connecticut for his dedicated work over the years on this issue, and I appreciate his efforts to try and codify a specific insider trading prohibition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. Speaker, I yield an additional 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. HUIZENGA. However, codifying very nuanced case law and regulations that have been developed over decades into a single, significant task and undertaking. We all know that case law does oftentimes dictate the nuances. I fear that this bill could add more confusion and uncertainty around insider trading law with the regulators using the language to expand the bounds of insider trading laws.

It was mentioned that this bill passed this body 410-13, and I was one of the 13.

We have to ask ourselves: Why was the bill ignored by the Senate?

There isn’t a compelling problem to solve is why it was ignored. This is a solution in search of a problem. I believe the Insider Trading Prohibition Act, which we are debating today, is both too broad and too narrow, just as former SEC Chair White warned was possible, and I continue to be opposed to the legislation. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. HIMES. Mr. Speaker, I must say, as much respect as I have for Mr. Huizenga—I have been around here a little while—I think this may be the first time I have heard from my colleagues on the other side of the aisle that the regulators deserve deference on this, that the regulators are not asking us to make a statutory change. I have never heard that in this Chamber—this Chamber—which, under Article I of the Constitution, is charged with writing the laws of this country.

Apparently, my Republican friends, who don’t typically defer to regulators, are now saying the SEC is, at best, neutral on this law.

Is there damage?

I would urge anybody who wants to know about the activities of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in the overturning of conviction after conviction of hedge fund managers and others around points of technical complexity.

We make the laws. We don’t ask the regulators whether they would like us to, or whether they would cheer us on in making laws. We make the laws. If we are going to send people to jail, if we are going to stop the confusion of judge-made law, let’s do our job and pass this legislation.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Speaker, let me throw out one name—I guess it is actually, technically, two names: Dodd-Frank.

My friends on the other side wrote a massively expansive bill that did turn over all of that authority to come up and promulgate rules out of whole cloth.

What we are talking about here is a very key word: materiality.

We are having this exact debate about the environmental, social, and governance issues, the ESG of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the boundaries of those rules. This is the balance between making sure that the legislature and our constituents do not abdicate the powers to not dictate the powers that are given to those regulators.

Yet, at the same time, we need to make sure that the regulators, based on case law, based on experience and their authority that they need to go and do a law enforcement action, that they have those tools and that they are not pulled back from them.

If the gentleman’s sort of example was to hold true, then we would have to eliminate all corporate law and every single publicly traded company that incorporates in Delaware. Delaware’s entire corporate structure is based on case law and what has gone on. It is widely accepted throughout the United States that it is solid and positive, and that is what we are trying to do here today.

We are not trying to hand over more power to the bureaucrats. We are trying to make sure that the system that is in place, that everybody understands the rules of the road, that they then are going to be used to be enforced.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, I am prepared to close, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUIZENGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I think this is a good debate. Again, I thank my friend from Michigan and my friend from Connecticut for the quality of that debate.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2655, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time. Mr. Speaker, I think this is a good debate. Again, I thank my friend from Michigan and my friend from Connecticut for the quality of that debate.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2655, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(e) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion are postponed.

COVID-19 FRAUD PREVENTION ACT

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2959) to establish the Consumer and Investor Fraud Working Group to help protect consumers and investors from fraud during the COVID–19 pandemic, to assist consumers and investors affected by such fraud, and for other purposes, as amended. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 2959

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) Duties.—The Working Group shall facilitate collaboration between the Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection and the Securities and Exchange Commission in—

(1) providing resources to consumers and investors to avoid fraud during the COVID-19 pandemic;

(2) providing resources, including information on the availability of legal aid resources, to consumers and investors who have been adversely impacted by such fraud; and

(d) Quarterly Report.—The Working Group shall issue a quarterly report to the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate on the progress of the Working Group and summarizing—

SEC. 3. DETERMINATION OF BUDGETARY EFFECTS.

The budgetary effects of this Act, for the purpose of complying with the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010, shall be determined by reference to the latest statement titled “Budgetary Effects of PAYGO Legislation” for this Act, submitted for printing in the Congressional Record by the Chairman of the House Budget Committee, provided that such statement has been submitted prior to the vote on passage.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rules, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HILL) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on this legislation and to insert extraneous material thereon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There was no objection.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Representative AXNE for her leadership on H.R. 2959, the COVID-19 Fraud Prevention Act.

This bill would create a joint Consumer Financial Protection Bureau and the Securities and Exchange Commission fraud working group to better protect consumers and investors against fraudulent schemes during and after the COVID-19 pandemic.

In the wake of the pandemic outbreak in the United States last year, millions of American families lost work and struggled to keep food on the table, pay their bills, and a roof over their heads. As early as April 2020, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that more than 20 million workers had lost their jobs.

As consumers across the country struggled with their finances and to stay protected against infection, predatory scammers and unscrupulous actors have profited from consumers’ concerns and anxiety.

Scams targeting consumers’ economic stimulus payments and unemployment benefits have delayed or prevented consumers from receiving the resources that they desperately need. At the Subcommittee on Consumer Protection and Financial Institutions hearings entitled “Slipping Through the Cracks: Policy Options to Help America’s Consumers During the Pandemic,” Carla Sanchez-Adams, managing attorney with the Texas RioGrande Legal Aid, shared the story of a client she called Ms. Y, who lost her job because of the pandemic, fell ill from COVID–19, and became a victim of fraud.

Ms. Sánchez-Adams said: “Ms. Y, qualified for unemployment benefits through the Texas Workforce Commission, Ms. Y, a single mom, went to the bank and discovered there was not one single penny left. ‘When she called . . . to inquire about the problem, she was told that someone had called, requested a new card be issued to an address in Michigan, and that someone in Michigan had used all the funds.'”

Ms. Y is, unfortunately, not alone in experiencing this kind of shameless profiteering during a national crisis. Representative AXNE’s bill would help ensure that consumers who have been impacted by fraud can report it and have access to legal resources to combat it. It would also provide coordination between the CFPB and the SEC to combat these fraudulent schemes.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and I reserve the balance of my time.

H.R. 2959 establishes the Consumer and Investor Fraud Working Group. This working group includes representatives from the CFPB, the SEC, and is established to help coordinate and share information across the Federal Government.

The working group will focus on providing resources to consumers and investors and help them avoid falling victim to the fraudsters and scams that have occurred during the COVID-19 pandemic and after.

In addition, the working group will produce a quarterly report to the House Financial Services Committee and the Senate Banking Committee. This will allow Congress to monitor its actions and resources as it is made public.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers and am prepared to close. I reserve the balance of my time until Mr. HILL yields back.
Mr. HILL. Madam Speaker, I thank my friend from Missouri for his leadership today on these House Financial Services Committee bills. I appreciate the hard work on a bipartisan basis on these measures. I have no additional speakers on the Republican side. I urge a "yea" vote.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEAVER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time to close.

Madam Speaker, the COVID–19 Fraud Prevention Act led by Representative AXNE would provide essential resources and support for consumers and investors to protect them against fraudulent schemes that have been rampant during this tragic pandemic.

The House passed this unanimously by voice vote in September of 2020. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me again in supporting these measures. I have no additional time.

The Speaker pro tempore (Ms. CHU). The question is on the motion of

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. CHU). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLEAVER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2959, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds being in the affirmative) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COVID–19 HATE CRIMES ACT

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker. I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (S. 937) to facilitate the expedited review of COVID–19 hate crimes, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

S. 937

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Following the spread of COVID–19 in 2020, there has been a dramatic increase in hate crimes and violence against Asian-Americans and Pacific Islanders.

(2) According to a recent report, there were nearly 3,800 reported cases of anti-Asian discrimination and incidents related to COVID–19 between March 19, 2020, and February 28, 2021, in all 50 States and the District of Columbia.

(3) During this time frame, race has been cited as the primary reason for discrimination, making up over 90 percent of incidents, and the United States condemns and denounces any and all anti-Asian and Pacific Islander sentiment in any form.

(4) A substantial majority of these incidents took place at a business and more than 2,000,000 Asian-American businesses have contributed to the diverse fabric of American life.

(5) More than 1,900,000 Asian-American and Pacific Islander older adults, particularly those older adults who are recent immigrants or have limited English proficiency, may face even greater challenges in dealing with the COVID–19 pandemic, including discrimination, economic insecurity, and language isolation.

(6) In the midst of this alarming surge in anti-Asian hate crimes and incidents, a number of individuals have been killed in the Atlanta, Georgia region, 7 of whom were women and 6 of whom were victims of Asian descent:

(A) Xiaojie Tan.
(B) Daoyou Feng.
(C) Delaina Ashley Yau Ma’Ata’i.
(D) Paul Andre Michels.
(E) Soon Chong Nguyen.
(F) Hyun Jung Grant.
(G) Suncha Kim.
(H) Yong Ae Yue.

(7) The people of the United States will always remember the victims of these shootings and stand in solidarity with those affected by this senseless tragedy and incidents of hate that have affected the Asian and Pacific Islander communities.

SEC. 3. REVIEW OF HATE CRIMES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 7 days after the date of enactment of this Act the Attorney General shall designate a lead agency, to be the Department of Justice, that will be responsible for leading the review of hate crimes (as described in section 249 of title 18, United States Code) and reports of any such crime to Federal, State, local, or Tribal law enforcement agencies.

(b) APPLICABLE PERIOD DEFINED.—In this section, the term “applicable period” means the period beginning on the date of the death of the first victim determined by the Attorney General; and ending on the date that is 1 year after the date on which the emergency period described in subparagraph (B) of section 1128(g)(1)(C) of title 42, United States Code, has ended, except that the Attorney General may extend such period as appropriate.

SEC. 4. GUIDANCE.

(a) GUIDANCE FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—The Attorney General shall—

(1) establish online reporting of hate crimes and incidents, and outreach to vulnerable communities with disabilities as for people without disabilities available in multiple languages as determined by the Attorney General;

(2) collect data disaggregated by the priority agency.

(b) GUIDANCE RELATING TO COVID–19 PANDEMIC.—The Attorney General, with the assistance of the Surgeon General of the United States, shall ensure that guidance issued by the Attorney General regarding the incidence of hate crime through the COVID–19 pandemic.

SEC. 5. JBARRA–HEYER HATE CRIME.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the “Jadbaba and Heather Heyer National Opposition to Hate, Assault, Surveillance, and Terrorism Act”.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The incidence of violence known as hate crimes, or crimes motivated by bias, poses a serious national problem.

(2) According to data obtained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the incidence of such violence increased in 2019, the most recent year for which data is available.

A more complete understanding of the national problem posed by hate crimes is hindered by incomplete data from Federal, State, and local jurisdictions through the Uniform Crime Reports program authorized under section 534 of title 28, United States Code, and administered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Multiple factors contribute to the provision of inaccurate and incomplete data regarding the incidence of hate crimes through the Uniform Crime Reports program. A significant contributing factor is the quality and quantity of training that State and local law enforcement agencies receive on the identification and reporting of suspected bias-motivated crimes.

The problem of crimes motivated by bias is sufficiently serious, widespread, and interstate in nature to warrant Federal financial assistance to States and local jurisdictions.

Federal financial assistance with regard to certain violent crimes motivated by bias enables Federal, State, and local authorities to work together as partners in the investigation and prosecution of such crimes.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) HATE CRIME.—The term “hate crime” means an act described in section 245, 247, or 249 of title 18, United States Code, or in section 901 of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 2000a).

(2) PRIORITY AGENCY.—The term “priority agency” means:

(A) a law enforcement agency of a unit of local government that serves a population of not less than 100,000, as computed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation; or

(B) a law enforcement agency of a unit of local government that—

(i) serves a population of not less than 50,000 and less than 100,000, as computed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and

(ii) has reported no hate crimes through the Uniform Crime Reports program in each of the most recent 10 calendar years for which such data is available.

(3) STATE.—The term “State” has the meaning given the term in section 901 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (34 U.S.C. 10251).

(4) UNIFORM CRIME REPORTS.—The term “Uniform Crime Reports” means the reports authorized under section 534 of title 28, United States Code, and administered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation that compile nationwide criminal statistics for use—

(A) by law enforcement, administration, operation, and management; and

(B) to assess the nature and type of crime in the United States.

The COVID-19 pandemic has taken almost 600,000 lives in the U.S. It has also, unfortunately, deepened existing divisions in our country. Racist, hateful rhetoric blaming the pandemic on Asian Americans fanned the flames of discord and resulted in a disgraceful, sickening rise in hate crimes and violations of violence and discrimination against Asian people across our country.

Stop AAPI Hate has collected reports of over 6,000 anti-Asian hate crimes and incidents since the pandemic began in March 2020. Just this month, they released four more heartbreaking attacks on Asian Americans in New York City alone. These cases are, unfortunately, part of a broader and deeply troubling uptick in hate crimes generally since 2015, with a surge in such crimes in 2019.

This legislation addresses this disturbing trend by helping policymakers determine where critical resources should be focused, identifying trends that can signal an emerging problem and directing public education campaigns.

I thank my good friends, Congresswoman Grace Meng and Senator Mazie Hirono, for championing this bill; Congressman Don Beyer and Senator Tammy Duckworth, for their leadership on the Jabara-Heyer NO HATE Act; Chairman Steve Cohen, for holding an important hearing in his subcommittee on hate crimes and violence against Asian Americans; and Congressman Andy Kim, for your tireless advocacy for the API community.

The Senate passed this bill almost unanimously. I urge my colleagues to do so as well.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Madam Speaker, the COVID-19 Hate Crimes Act is important and timely legislation to address the disturbing rise in violence directed at Asian Americans during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Among other things, this legislation would help DOJ expedite review of reported cases of hate crimes during the pandemic and provide guidance to State and local law enforcement agencies for collecting better and more accurate data.

It also incorporates the Jabara-Heyer NO HATE Act, which includes measures for enhancing the adoption and implementation of the National-Based Reporting System to facilitate the reporting of hate crimes by local police departments to the FBI.
Throughout this pandemic, over 2 million Asian Americans served our Nation as frontline workers, including those in healthcare, and yet some of these same Asian Americans became victims of hate as they were commuting to and from work.

Children as young as my two boys have been attacked on playgrounds in their own neighborhoods across the country in every single State. Elderly are being assaulted, tragically resulting in deaths. This culminated in the worst kind of tragedy, with the mass shootings in Atlanta.

We need to address this hate once and for all. That is why I introduced the COVID-19 Hate Crimes Act. I am proud the Senate companion bill, led by Senator Hirono, passed in the Senate last month with resounding bipartisan support, 94-1.

The COVID-19 Hate Crimes Act is a necessary step to confront the second pandemic of racism and discrimination. We cannot and we do not measure.

I strongly urge my colleagues to stand with me and vote for the passage of this bill.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Kim).

Mrs. KIM of California. Madam Speaker, as one of the first Korean-American women to serve in Congress, I am proud to rise today in solidarity with the Asian American Pacific Islander community and in strong support of the Senate-amended, bipartisan COVID-19 Hate Crimes Act, S. 997. I also note the concerns raised by my colleague, Mr. Jordan.

As we celebrate AAPI Heritage Month throughout the month of May, it cannot be ignored that the hate and bias targeting the AAPI community are on the rise. Hate against any ethnic group is unacceptable. This is not who we are as Americans, and it is not reflective of the country that welcomed me and my family into its fabric.

That is why I am glad Congress is coming together in a bipartisan way to take steps against the hate targeting communities like the AAPI community. However, let’s also recognize that we cannot legislate hate out of people’s hearts and minds. We must treat each other with respect and see each other as Americans. I will continue to do my other with respect and see each other as Americans. We must treat each other as Americans. However, let’s also recognize that we cannot legislate hate out of people’s hearts and minds. We must treat each other with respect and see each other as Americans.

In the past year, the COVID-19 pandemic has not only been a significant threat to public health, in some instances, it has brought out the worst impulses to people. Since the start of the pandemic, there has been a spike in hate crimes and acts of hate against Asian Americans, with thousands of reported hate incidents across this country. Asian Americans have been verbally accosted and frequently told to go back where they came from. Countless Asian Americans have been pushed to the ground, shoved, punched, beaten, and struck with weapons all across our country. We are still mourning the eight innocent victims of the Atlanta spa in March, six of whom were of Asian descent.

Asian Americans are being scapegoated for the ongoing health crisis. It is disgraceful, and we must act.

By passing the COVID-19 Hate Crimes Act, we are sending a message that hatred and bigotry have no place in the United States of America.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. JORDAN. Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Roy), and I ask unanimous consent that he be permitted to control the balance of the Republican time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Steel).

Mrs. STEEL. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I rise today to condemn the discrimination and violence that our Asian-American and Pacific Islander community has experienced.

Between March and December of last year, nearly 4,000 firsthand accounts of anti-AAPI hate crimes were recorded in the United States. It is heartbreaking to read the news stories of these crimes, and my heart goes out to all those who have been victims of this violence.

I have experienced this type of discrimination and racism firsthand. I have been called racist slurs and been treated differently because I am an Asian American.

As a proud American and someone who loves this country dearly, I take this rise in violence against our Asian community very seriously.

That is why, in February, the very first bill I introduced was a bipartisan resolution to condemn these crimes and encourage better coordination between State, local, and Federal governments to track hate against the AAPI community.

Combating hate is a nonpartisan issue, and I am proud that my resolution gained bipartisan support. I am very disappointed that my bipartisan bill was not part of this week’s conversation. It is possible that we haven’t had the opportunity to vote on it yet.

Despite my history of work on this and personal experience, no one in the majority sought out my partnership or input on the anti-Asian hate bills before us today.

I would have welcomed the opportunity for partnership, and I would have thought that my colleagues would seek input from one of only two Republican Asian-American women in the House. Our voices matter in this discussion.

I am proud to be standing here today to condemn these violent acts and support my community to work together for the good of the country.

I will continue to work on behalf of our AAPI community in Congress and condemn hate in all forms because this is not a partisan issue. We are all Americans.

I hope that, moving forward, we have an opportunity to hear from more AAPI voices and that we work together to put an end to hate.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. Jayapal).

Ms. JAYAPAL. Madam Speaker, we are here today for Suncha Kim, Yong Ae Yue, Hyun Jung Grant, Xiaojie Tan, Daoyou Feng, Amarjeet Kaur Johal, Jasvinder Kaur, Jaswinder Singh, Amarij Sektan, and too many others.

This bill is an important step to address and prevent hate crimes as we deal with the root causes of hate and violence. That means providing basic economic security, including housing, social services, education, and healthcare.

A "yes" vote says that we won’t stand by as our children are bullied on playgrounds and our elders are beaten in the streets.

A "yes" vote says to Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders—Chinese, Korean, Indian, Vietnamese, Thai, Pakistani, Japanese, Filipino, Native Hawaiian, Laotian, Hmong, Cambodian, Burmese, Bangladeshi, Bhutanese, Indonesian, Siberian, Tibetan, Tongan, Malaysian, Mongolian, Taiwanese, Fijian, Singaporean, Chamorro, Neapolitan, Samoan, Bruneian, Afghani, Micronesian, and Marshallse— that we are visible and that we matter.

We, too, are America.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, how much time is remaining on each side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas has 12 1/2 minutes remaining.

The gentleman from New York has 14 minutes remaining.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 1/2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson Lee).
Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

The COVID–19 pandemic is no exception, as American citizens, and residents of actual or perceived Chinese descent, have received intense and unjust scrutiny, violence, and harassment as perpetrators associate them with the cause of the pandemic and resulting social and economic turmoil. And the racist practice of the 45th President of always referring to the coronavirus as the “China Virus,” or “Kung Flu” certainly contributed to, and inflamed, an already dangerous climate for persons of Asian descent.

Examples of additional violent physical assaults against the Asian American community over the last year include: A sixteen-year-old boy was sent to the emergency room after being physically attacked at his high school by an assailant who claimed the boy had COVID–19 simply because he was Asian. An 81-year-old woman was punched in the face and hit on fire outside her home. A woman was kicked, punched, and hit with an umbrella in a subway station in New York. A 51-year-old man was beaten with his own cane at a bus stop. His injuries were so severe, he lost part of a finger. A 51-year-old man was beaten with his own cane at a bus stop. His injuries were so severe, he lost part of a finger. A 51-year-old man was slashed across the face with a boxcutter on the subway in New York City. His injuries required him to receive nearly 100 stitches. A woman was doused in a caustic chemical as she took out the trash, resulting in chemical burns on her face, neck, and back. A 52-year-old woman was shoved to the ground and hit her head on a metal newspaper stand. A 51-year-old man was beaten with his own cane at a bus stop. His injuries were so severe, he lost part of a finger. An 81-year-old woman was punched in the face and hit on fire outside her home. A woman was kicked, punched, and hit with an umbrella in a subway station in New York. A 51-year-old man was beaten with his own cane at a bus stop. His injuries were so severe, he lost part of a finger.

For the past year, I have expressed great concern about the increase in violence against Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders. It is outrageous. Madam Speaker, many of us awoke in March to the horrific news that in suburban Atlanta, Georgia, a 21-year old angry white man murdered 8 persons at three massage spas.

Among the innocent victims were 6 young Asian American women who worked in the establishments. The suspected perpetrator of these brutal crimes has been arrested and charged with 8 counts of murder.

According to the Atlanta Police Department, the killer is reported to have told police that he has an issue, what he considers a “sex addiction,” and “sees these [Asian massage spa] locations as something that allows him to go to the shops” and “it is a temptation for him that he wanted to eliminate.”

Madam Speaker, since the beginning of the COVID–19 pandemic in March 2020, there has been a significant increase in harassment and violence against the Asian American community.

Unfortunately, this is not new; there is a long history of racism against Asian Americans, especially during times of social and economic unrest.

Throughout American history, Asian Americans are often blamed for the emergence of pandemics and diseases, even if the sickness originated far outside the Asian American community.
And I think when we think about justice, the reason the blindfold exists on Lady Justice is we are supposed to have blind justice. We all acknowledgewed that we have not had blind justice at many points in the history of our country, but that blind justice is what we’re after when we seek equal justice under law.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. JONES).

Mr. JONES. Madam Speaker, as we near the beginning of the end of the COVID–19 pandemic, it is long past time to confront what my colleague and dear friend, Representative MENG, has described as the additional pandemic of hatred, violence, and discrimination against our Asian American and Pacific Islander communities.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to support the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act today.

I would like to address our AAPI communities directly: I cannot know exactly what you are feeling in this moment, but as a gay Black man in America, I know what it is like to be marginalized and to be harassed because of who you are.

I turned 34 years old today, and while the end product may look okay, there is a lot that I carry with me. I know what it is like to feel both invisible and exposed, both unseen and targeted. I know what it is like to have to fight for rights that you should just be able to take for granted. And I know that in the United States of America one should ever have to feel this way.

So what I want the AAPI community to know is this: As surely as the Earth revolves around the Sun, I will be with you always because we can only get through this together.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, as the gentleman said, as a 34-year-old, the end product may look okay, there is a lot that I carry with me. I know what it is like to feel both invisible and exposed, both unseen and targeted. I know what it is like to have to fight for rights that you should just be able to take for granted. And I know that in the United States of America one should ever have to feel this way.

Perhaps we should spend some time investigating sex trafficking and human trafficking in the form of massage parlors and people who are basically indentured servants or slaves in the sex trade; the cartels that are along our southern border that are forcing young girls into the sex trade; the people who were found in a car in Boerne, Texas, in suburban San Antonio, being forced into the sex trade on route to a stash house in Houston, Texas, because they were being run by the Cartel del Noreste of Los Zetas out of Nuevo Laredo—literally, just occurring in the district that I represent in Boerne, Texas.

Perhaps we can focus on that kind of criminal activity and what that actually means for young women and young individuals in our country.

We talk about is it a hate crime when we have seen data of a young Black male in San Francisco hitting an elderly Asian man on the streets of San Francisco. We have seen that footage. It’s probably a hate crime, but it is a crime. If that guy was a White guy or a Black guy, it is a crime. It is a crime going after this elderly man, an American citizen.

And sometimes, it’s not about being run by the Cartel del Noreste of Massachusetts (Ms. CLARK).

Ms. CLARK of Massachusetts. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

The COVID–19 pandemic has brought with it a deadly public health emergency, an economic crisis, and a disturbing rise in anti-Asian hate.

Unfortunately, discrimination against the AAPI community is not new. From the Chinese Exclusion Act to the internment of Japanese Americans, the U.S. has a long history of discrimination towards AAPI immigrants and their descendants. This new wave of xenophobia has led to fear, threats, and outright violence.

Madam Speaker, by passing the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act today, we are standing up for our neighbors and against discrimination. We take this vote during AAPI Heritage Month, a time to acknowledge incredible contributions of this community and also the interconnection of the American story and our mutual security.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to support this bill today. It is critical and long overdue.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BEYER).

Mr. BEYER. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act, which incorporates my bill with my colleagues, Madam Speaker, Ms. CHU, Representative UPTON and BUCHANAN—the Jabara-Heyer NO HATE Act.

This is a bill my team started back in 2015 to respond to hate crimes in Northern Virginia, but it breaks my heart to hear about African-American friends in this body—Democrat and Republican—have experienced in the last few years. But we are very proud of our bipartisan, bicameral creation of a bill to address underreporting of hate crimes.

I think the families of Khalid Jabara and Heather Heyer for allowing us to use their names and highlight why we are here today.

I thank now-retired Representative Pete Olson and his team for being true partners on this bill, along with Representatives UPTON and BUCHANAN.

I thank Senators BLUMENTHAL and MORAN for leading the fight in the Senate and getting this packaged bill to the House.

Most importantly, I thank JUDY CHU, GRACE MENG, and RAJA KRISHNAMOORTHI. Without their voices, and without the leadership of Chairman NADLER, we would not be here today addressing anti-Asian hate, and we would not be moving this legislation forward today.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, the gentleman from Virginia reminds me—and we have not discussed this—that I first met the gentleman when I was in college at the University of Virginia and he was the Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, and I was an instructor for a golf camp that summer in Charlottesville for his daughter, I believe Stephanie. Pulling out of my minority banks. And that is where I first met him. Again, 20—whatever I was—23 or 22 years old, right out of college.

But he reminds me that one of my college teammates at the University of Virginia was a representative of the name of Lewis Chitengwa. Lewis is not somebody you all would know, but you do know the name Tiger Woods. And Tiger Woods... was asked after his infamous 1997 year when he won the Masters—obviously breaking down the color barrier at Augusta Masters. He was asked if he had ever been disappointed in sports. And he said he was disappointed once when he lost the Orange Bowl, the biggest amateur in South Africa, and being the first Black to win the South African Open, it is a monumen- tally important. It is a milestone event for the nation.

Lewis is the first Black to win the South African Open. It was a monumen-

I raise Lewis just because Lewis, when he went home, he passed away that summer, they had to wait about a month to bury him because of the AIDS epidemic in Zimbabwe, where he was from.

Lewis was the recipient of unspeak-able hate when we were in college around the Charlottesville community in the 1990s. And we would often discuss that and talk about that and about those changing times. But it was fascinating for me to watch a man like Lewis, who came from Zimbabwe and experienced a lot of what was apartheid in South Africa and being the first

The COVID-19 pandemic has unleashed an onslaught of hatred directed against Asian Americans, and other minorities as well. These shared attacks, our fellow citizens, have endured vile words and violent blows. They have been made to feel unsafe and made to feel apart.

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, there is no place in America for hate. Well, at least there should be no place in America for hate. There should be no place in our country for exclusion, for bigotry, or racial violence.

And, frankly, I tell my friend from Texas, it is not enough just to say that we are against that. We need to do something. This bill takes a step to doing something about it.

Disturbingly, over the past few years, we have seen those evils emerge out of their dark hiding places. While we have always struggled as a nation to con-divvying us up by race. That is just how I view it.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

That is how I view it with a number of friends of mine of all walks of life, of all political persuasions, of all racial persuasions; and I think that we should be mindful of that. The minority leader, I think, gave it up a little bit in saying that you know, this vote will be seen either as A or B, right? It will be seen as you are either for hate or you are against hate. The gentleman from South Carolina, Mr. Clyburn, put forth that concept—one of the fundamental problems that we have in this body, is that we can’t engage in a reasonable debate about what we are seeing here and concerns we might have. And being equally opposed to hate, or equally opposed, or wanting to go root out crime, but have a differing view about how we get there; that doesn’t mean it is A or B, you are for hate or you are against hate.

But that is what we do; we drop a $2 trillion, 2,000-page bill on the floor, and you say yes or no, are either with us or against us. Vote for this bill, it is named fill-in-the-blank. Right? Come up with a great name, you can’t oppose that.

Suddenly then, that is what is put out from the headlines, you know, Comp Roy votes for hate, right, instead of having an actual, robust debate here on the floor about how we want to carry the country forward. I think that is what we ought to have.

I actually enjoy this part of our job. I enjoy having numbers of Members on the floor engaging back and forth about these issues that are important, rather than just seeking the headline and running out to the triangle and giving a press conference, divvying us up further in our ideologies, or in the name of a certain or particular bill.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield to the distinguished gentleman from California (Ms. PELOSI), the Speaker of the House.

Ms. PELOSI. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his leadership in bringing this important legislation to the floor. It really is representative of his lifetime of service to our country for liberty and justice for all, the term that our distinguished leader mentioned in his comments—liberty and justice for all.

I want to thank him that and talk about e pluribus unum. When our Founders established that as a principle, as a guide, e pluribus unum, from many, one, they could never have imagined how many we would be or how different we would be from each other, but they knew we had to be one, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Madam Speaker, I thank the leader for framing it in that way, and I thank the chairman for bringing us together around this response put forth by Representative GRACE MENG, a real champion in Congress, who has long led the charge against anti-AAPI bigotry, and all forms of bigotry and violence, and who sees this impact firsthand in her district in Queens. I have visited her there, seeing the beautiful diversity of her community, even diversity within the Asian-American community, as diverse as it is, and the trust that they have that they are safe.

And I salute CAPAC chair, JUDY CHU, an historic leader, who every day is ensuring that the AAPI community has a powerful voice and strong representation in the United States Congress.

Madam Speaker, I was listening to the gentleman’s comments, and I was recalling when this resolution came to the floor last year, and the leader on the other side said: Nobody in the kitchen tables of America is talking about this. Another Member said that I was wasting the Congress’ time, as Speaker, to be addressing this AAPI violence, or any of the hate COVID initiatives. It was ridiculous to say we were wasting time. It is important, it is the work of the Congress, that is an issue for us, it is a value that is reaffirmed by overwhelming vote in a bipartisan way in the United States Senate.

I know that Representative MENG considered it a happy day when we were on the Senate side, in the leadership of CHUCK SCHUMER, with Senator MAZIE HIRONO, Senator TAMMY DUCKWORTH, our colleague, ANDY KIM, and, of course, our lead sponsor, GRACE MENG, as that bill was being brought forward on the Senate side, which, as we all know, received very strong, overwhelming bipartisan support.

So, today, in the House, we see representation in action as we bring to the House floor important legislation to address a grave and growing crisis to the AAPI community and our entire country, the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act.

And, again, I will salute MAZIE HIRONO, Senator TAMMY DUCKWORTH, our colleagues, ANDY KIM, and, of course, our lead sponsor, GRACE MENG, as this legislation passed almost unanimously, a clear sign of the Congress’ unity on this priority.

I, too, am blessed to represent a district that is blessed with a large AAPI population. And I have seen, as have some of our other colleagues, firsthand, the hate crimes exacted against them, intensified since last year. Over 6,600 incidences of anti-AAPI discrimination and violence from March of last year to March of this year, in all 50 States, have been reported: businesses vandalized, seniors attacked, families living in fear, and hundreds more occur unreported in the shadows. This is what we know.

These attacks are even more shameful in light of the heroism of our AAPI community during the pandemic, against which 2 million Asian-Americans and Pacific Islanders are fighting on the front lines as healthcare professionals, first responders, police and fire, and other essential workers.

As a Californian, again, I have seen firsthand the pain in my community at an AAPI-serving healthcare clinic in Chinatown last month, and in conversations with the AAPI groups. We have these regular conversations at this time, sadly, taking this form. This epidemic of anti-AAPI bigotry is a challenge really. Madam Speaker, to the conscience of our country, which demands bold, effective, and immediate action.

As the House prepares to pass this legislation today, I also join my colleagues in support of Chair JUDY CHU’s resolution condemning the deadly attack targeting the AAPI community in Georgia last month. These shootings were a vicious and vile act that compounded the terror and pain that Asian-Americans and Pacific Islanders face each day.

This bill that we have on the floor today, the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act, will strengthen our defenses against any anti-AAPI violence, speeding our response to hate crimes, supporting our law enforcement, they will improve reporting, and ensuring that hate crimes information is more accessible to the Asia-American communities.

This legislation also includes bipartisan measures to further improve hate crimes reporting and promote a better response to those hate crimes of any kind.

Madam Speaker, it is really important if we are going to address the matter, if we are going to help solve the problem, we have to have an accounting of what it is. As I said, 6,600 in the past year, a lot of it intensified toward the end of that year.

Madam Speaker, I thank Representative DON BEYER for his leadership in the Jabara–Heyer NO HATE Act, now as an amendment to this bill. This bill also builds on steps taken by President Biden, including his day one executive order to marshal Federal resources to combat xenophobia against Asian-Paciﬁc and Paciﬁc Islander Americans, and his March 30 announcement of additional steps to combat anti-AAPI bigotry.

Together, these steps would make a significant difference to address hate crimes in America, not only during this pandemic, but for years to come. This month, May, is AAPI Heritage Month, and in this month we celebrate the many blessings that the AAPI community has bestowed on our Nation over generations. As we do so, let us honor those contributions with action: ensuring that every Asian-American and Pacific Islander and their families and loved ones can live with safety, dignity, and pride.

Madam Speaker, I urge a strong bipartisan vote for the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act, and ask for the Chair roundly condemning the shootings of Georgians, when that comes up. I look forward to seeing the COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act go directly to the President’s desk, as it has already passed the Senate, and be swiftly signed into law in a strong, bipartisan way.

As we continue this journey, this triumph, this victory, let us take this new moment in history and use it to make a difference in the world, to bridge our differences, and to come together—e pluribus unum.
Madam Speaker, I urge a strong "aye" vote.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, may I inquire how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. PRO-GRESS). The gentleman from Texas has 2¾ minutes remaining. The gentleman from New York has 4½ minutes remaining.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentlewoman from New York (Ms. VELAZQUEZ).

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this legislation, and I thank my dear friends and colleagues, Grace Meng and Judy Chu, for their passionate leadership on this issue, and for leading the charge on this bill today.

Since the start of the COVID–19 pandemic, this country has witnessed a shocking rise in hate crimes against the AAPI communities. I am proud to represent New York City’s Chinatown on the Lower East Side of Manhattan and Brooklyn’s Chinatown around 8th Avenue and Sunset Park.

It goes without saying that my constituents, and every one of our constituents, ought to be able to go to work, walk to the grocery store, or ride public transportation without fear of a bigoted, and even dangerous, attack.

We need to bring justice to all the victims of these heinous crimes. That is why passing this bill is a must. Vote "yes" and let’s lead with action. Let’s send a strong message that hate and bigotry will not be tolerated in the United States of America.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Hawaii (Mr. CASE).

Mr. CASE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize my Senator, Mazie Hirono, a pioneer in her own right, who brought this message to us in an articulate way. I rise today to support the gentlewoman from California earlier made a good point, and I am going to use my own words to paraphrase what she said when she said that we can’t legislate away hate.

The perspective of many of us is that we don’t need new laws, we don’t need more committees, and we don’t need more bureaucracy. We need to give our police the resources they need to do their job. We need to make sure that we are rooting out crime wherever it may exist. And whatever community it may exist, we need more emphasis on family, more emphasis on community, more emphasis on the Lord Almighty, and less reliance on the Federal Government to make our communities better.

As I said earlier, I can get into the intricacies of the bill, but we have already gone over it. The concern of many on my side of the aisle is in this continued sordid business of divvying us up on race and focusing on race.

We have spent the better part of the last year rightfully concerned, focused, and outraged on what we saw with respect to Mr. Floyd. But we have had a continued focus on race over the last year, and I think one can look at the impact on communities and the impact on Black communities throughout the United States’ cities, businesses that have been closed down, and crime sprees that have occurred and wonder what this continued focus on race is doing to better our great Nation.

I would posit that we are a far better country when we follow Lady Justice with the blindfold and that we seek to achieve that recognizing our failure to do so in the past but seeking our desire to achieve that blindfolded justice going forward.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, our country is experiencing a devastating rise in hate, particularly against Asian Americans, throughout this pandemic. The COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act responds to this urgent problem and will help our government position itself to act quickly on reports of hate crimes. It will ensure we have accurate data on the size and scope of the problem. With this information, the Department of Justice will be better positioned to act on reported hate crimes and to prevent future ones.

Madam Speaker, I urge all my colleagues to support this important legislation and to send it to the President’s desk without delay, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, S. 937.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(c) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion are postponed.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 1 hour.

Ms. SCALON. Madam Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Mrs. FISCHBACH), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

General LEAVE

Ms. SCALON. Madam Speaker, yesterday, the Rules Committee met and reported a rule, House Resolution 403, providing for consideration of H.R. 1629, the Fairness in Orphan Drug Exclusivity Act, under a closed rule. It provides 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce and their respective designees, and (2) one motion to recommit.

SEC. 2. Upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order to consider in the House the resolution of May 18, 2021 (as amended by House Resolution 398), pending which I yield my colleagues keep that in mind as we approach two timely and important bills.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The horrific act of gun violence that took eight lives in Atlanta, including six Asian women, is a tragedy unambiguously rooted in hate. It is a tragedy that followed 4,000 reported hate crimes against Asian Americans over the past year, and it is a tragedy that followed decades of bigotry, discrimination, and indifference toward the API community.

We must recognize that physical and verbal attacks against people of Asian descent are not a new phenomenon and that our country has a shameful past of violence and discrimination directed against Asian Americans. From the Chinese Exclusion Act to the internment of Japanese Americans, to the innumerable acts of individual violence that have cost so many lives or livelihoods, a vile and persistent racism has denied many people the basic safety and individual freedoms that some others take for granted.

But we also need to recognize that at a time when we are coming together to recognize and call out racism in all its forms, the hardships caused by the pandemic, Asian Americans have had to deal with additional pain, fear, and loss brought on by the callous and careless rhetoric of opportunistic politicians and bigots. I have heard from my constituents and from scores of members in my office about the pain that the increase in verbal and physical attacks has caused throughout our community.

I admire the incredible work being done by API advocates and organizers in southeastern Pennsylvania and across the Nation to bring attention to anti-Asian discrimination and to call for change. Groups in my district, such as Asian Americans United, Cambodian Association of Greater Philadelphia, Laos In The House, VietLead, and others across the United States, have mobilized whole communities to come together and stand firm against hate and racism.

The anti-hate rallies and vigils organized in response to this year’s shocking attacks are a resounding reminder that hate is not welcome in our cities and towns, but also that standing up to hatred requires more than just thoughts and prayers. It requires all of us to recognize and call out racism when we see it, to work with our neighbors to protect everyone in our communities, and to lift up voices that aren’t always heard.

As we continue to confront the systemic racism that plagues so much of our culture, the passage of this resolution by the House must be part of a greater holistic effort to provide all Americans with prosperity, justice, and freedom from fear.

Congress cannot keep waiting for problems to boil over in order to do something about them. I ask that all of my colleagues keep that in mind as we work to address systemic racism and the other pressing problems of our day.

I thank Congresswoman Chu for her leadership, and I thank her and the Madam Speaker, I also rise in support of H.R. 1629, the Fairness in Orphan Drug Exclusivity Act. This bill is sponsored by my good friend and colleague from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Congresswoman DEAN, who has bravely shared her family's experience with the hardships caused by substance use disorder, and who has been a tireless advocate for Federal solution to this opioid epidemic. This much-needed bill would close a loophole in our Federal drug approval laws, promoting greater competition and lower prices and allowing for more medications to treat opioid use disorder, as well as other diseases, to come to market. Closing this loophole would increase access to low-cost treatments and would prevent pharmaceutical companies from abusing the current laws to falsely drug prices for medications that could be sold by competitors at much lower prices.

In particular, this bill would reduce the price of buprenorphine, a drug that is critically important for medically assisted treatment, or MAT, of opioid abuse disorder, but which has been made more costly and less available due to abuse of the current laws. The opioid epidemic has devastated families in my district and across the country. Too many communities have experienced the terrible toll of opioid addiction, and I am glad this is an issue on which Democrats and Republicans have been able to work together and achieve real results for the American people.

Since 2018, Congress has been able to pass multiple bipartisan bills to increase funding for substance use disorder, provide more treatments and medical care for those suffering from opioid addiction, and improve access to mental health services.

The Fairness in Orphan Drug Exclusivity Act is a straightforward bill with bipartisan support and sponsorship that would close this loophole. Of course, this year the House last Congress, and it was on track to pass this Congress last week before inexplicably being derailed when some of its former sponsors whipped votes against it. I thank my Pennsylvania colleagues, Representatives DEAN and FITZPATRICK, for their bipartisan leadership on this bill, which is so important, not just for Pennsylvanians, but for families across this country who have struggled to obtain effective and affordable treatment for loved ones suffering from substance use disorder. I urge its prompt passage.

Lastly, I want to voice my support for H. Res. 275, a resolution introducing this important resolution. It has been 1 year since this body instituted martial law, as my friend and colleague Ranking Member COLE said during the Rules Committee hearing yesterday. While at the time there was certainly a need for changes to the rules so we could rapidly move legislation at the speed of this pandemic, the landscape has dramatically shifted, and we are more than ready to get back to normal.

Instead, more than 1 year later, we are still being governed by martial law in what has become the least transparent Congress in history. The majority continues to chip away at the rights of the minority. Before we know it, those in the minority will have no rights left at all.

The majority of us in this body are fully vaccinated. The science says that fully vaccinated individuals can and should resume pre-pandemic behavior. So why won't the Democratic majority follow the science and resume regular order in this body? It is the American people who are losing out, and it would behoove the Democratic majority to bring the time-tested processes and transparency back to this institution.

Madam Speaker, I do support the underlying bills. However, I have serious concerns over the continuance of measures in this rule that limit transparency and strip the minority's rights in this body. It is for this reason that I oppose the rule, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The fear of “the other” is nothing new, but it has been chipping away at our social conscience for far too long. This is what we are working to root out. We must stop it at the source with a united front.

Today’s vote is a reminder that our country is capable of growth; that this legislative body will not sit in silence while a community suffers racism and hatred. Future generations are listening, and Americans are standing up and speaking out.

It has been encouraging to see the cohesion amongst Asian Americans and all Americans in the fight against AAPI hate. I have been heartened to see individuals, leaders, and organizations come together to help heal our communities from these historical traumas and move forward united.

I am proud to support this rule and this bill and I urge all of my colleagues to do the same.

Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, if the issue that the majority has with reopening is related to vaccinations, I understand the majority claims that their side is 100 percent vaccinated. I would just say that if that is the case, science says they have nothing to worry about coming to the House in voting in public, but that is not what this is all about. This is about the Speaker holding on to her slim and tenuous majority by any means necessary, even weaponizing the House rules to do so.

If we do defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule to provide for consideration of Representative MAST’s H.R. 261, the Palestinian International Terrorism Support Prevention Act of 2021.

I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of my amendment in the RECORD, along with the extraneous materials, immediately prior to the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Minnesota?

There was no objection.

Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, the Israelis are among our greatest allies and a critical strategic partner in the international fight against terrorism. Congressman MAST understands this better than most.

H.R. 261 sanctions foreign governments and persons who provide support for Hamas and Palestinian Islamic Jihad.

Madam Speaker, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MAST), who represents the 18th Congressional District.

Mr. MAST. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Why at this time should we come together bipartisanly on this vote? That is the question that I am going to attempt to answer.

Members of this body are going to have the opportunity as we move forward to decide whether to support Hamas or to not, to fight against them. The choice will be made. People will decide which direction they want to go.

My bill, H.R. 261, the Palestinian International Terrorism Support Prevention Act of 2021, would make clear that the United States stands with Israel and would sanction those who provide financial support to Hamas. It is that simple.

Now, why do we need to do that? Why is it important to come together on this? To put a fine point on it, this is not one pissed-off Palestinian that picked up a shoulder-fired RPG, put it on their shoulder, and fired it 100 yards over at Israel. That is not what we are talking about here.

Hamas is sophisticated. They are well organized, and there is a complex infrastructure involved in getting them their weapons. They don’t just go down to the Gaza Strip rocket depot in order to pick up these things. They are smuggled across Iraq, Syria, Jordan, into one of the most densely populated areas of the world without anybody noticing or saying anything. That is why we need these sanctions.

Why should we come together bipartisanly on this support our friend and ally Israel to stand against Hamas?

Because the rockets that Hamas smuggles and fires at Israel are not innocent civilians. Many of them are Fajr-5 missiles, 21-plus feet long. That is longer than a Chevy Suburban. There are hundreds of pounds of explosives on the end of that.

The ones that detonated underneath my legs were about 5 pounds to 10 pounds of explosives, to put that into perspective.

Why come together bipartisanly to support this?

Because Hamas is not firing these rockets in order to make a pretty fireworks show. They use these missiles specifically to target large towns and cities with the express hope of killing Israeli civilians, like so many that we have heard about.

Ido Avigal was a 5-year-old boy who was murdered when shrapnel from a rocket ripped through his window in a fortified room that he was hiding in with his mother.

Daniel Tragerman was a 4-year-old Israeli boy who was killed by a mortar shell fired by Hamas in 2014.

Soumya Santosh was killed when a rocket fired on Israel by Hamas on May 11th detonated close to her. She worked as a caretaker to an elderly woman who had been living in Israel for the last 7 years.

Individuals and so many others are not just collateral damage. They and millions of other Israeli civilians are targeted. They are targets of Hamas.

After I was blown up in Afghanistan, I volunteered to serve alongside Israel Defense Forces. There, I served alongside soldiers that were driven by their love for their fellow man, rather than by hatred for their enemies.

I had the honor of getting to know some of the most creative and caring people I have ever met, who adapted to some of the worst situations that anybody could be placed into. Every family that I encountered during my time in Israel shared a desire for their children to grow, like we do, and to be educated safely without the looming threat of war.

I learned at the Shabbat tables of my hosts there just how much each family truly desires peace between every neighbor of Israel, regardless of religion, regardless of history. They don’t want to be attacked. They want to live in peace. They want to see their children grow.

So why support bipartisanly this legislation?

Because Hamas, on the other hand, uses their own people as shields and cannon fodder. They don’t stand for their people. They don’t defend their people. They stand behind their people. They build their command and control infrastructure inside hospitals and schools. They launch their missiles from heavily populated areas.

And this recent round of fighting between Hamas and Israel is exactly that, a round in an ongoing conflict that has back decades. Hamas has consistently launched thousands and thousands of rockets into Israel, killing and maiming hundreds of civilians.

Why come together bipartisanly?

Because in the last week alone, they have fired more than 3,000 rockets into Israel. This didn’t make the news, but in April, over 44 rockets fired into Israel. In January, three rockets fired into Israel. That is just this year.

Why come together bipartisanly?

In 2020, more than 190 rocket attacks. In 2019, 650 rocket attacks. In 2018, 350 rocket attacks.

That is more than one a day. Imagine if that was going on here in the United States.

Why come together bipartisanly?

To make sure that we sanction the enablers of Hamas.

In 2016, Hamas bombed a bus in Jerusalem, killing 2 and wounding 21.

At another time, a Hamas suicide bomber killed one and injured nine.

Another bombing, Palestinian Islamic Jihad claims responsibility for a suicide bombing in a neighborhood bakery.
Another bombing in a shawarma restaurant in Tel Aviv killed 11 and wounded 70. Palestinian Islamic Jihad claimed responsibility, one of the listed sanctioned groups in this bill.

In another bombing, at a vegetable market, the driver was killed. Palestinian Islamic Jihad claimed responsibility.

In another bombing, two commuter buses in Beersheba, 16 people killed and over 100 wounded. Hamas claimed responsibility.

Why is this bill needed? Why do we need to come together?

Because Hamas does not finance terrorism with bake sales. They receive significant support from individual groups and foreign governments, like Iran.

The U.S. Government has estimated that Iran, by itself, has provided as much as $100 million annually to Hamas, the Palestinian Islamic Jihad, and other Palestinian terrorist organizations. These foreign sponsors seek to bring death to the Jewish state. It is that simple.

Under my bill, the United States will sanction these groups that are supporting terrorism. If we do not pass this bill, we will not stand together to sanction these groups that are enabling this terrorism.

This is common sense, which is why it passed the House of Representatives without any opposition last Congress. The bill even includes humanitarian exemptions that Democrats in the Foreign Affairs Committee wrote last Congress, before all voting in favor of this piece of legislation.

Given the ongoing attacks on Israel, and the bipartisan support for this bill last Congress, I have asked that this bill be expedited for consideration again.

Unfortunately, some of our colleagues are now pushing the opposite direction for the United States to withhold American weapons shipments to Israel, but they will not support steps to curtail weapons funding from Iran to Hamas that is killing our Israeli friends. There is a false equivalency that is going on, and there is a rooting for a terrorist organization that is happening as well.

So, Madam Speaker, this is my request. Many of you supported this bill 2 years ago. Support it again now. Stand with our ally, Israel. Stand against Hamas. Stand against their enablers. Pass this bill unanimously.

Ms. SCANLON. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, with all due respect to my colleagues, I must respectfully decline to chase the red herrings that have been lobbed onto the House floor.

A vote on the PQ is strictly a procedural vote to move a bill forward. And as our colleagues know, voting "no" would simply mean that we would hand control of the floor to them, which I decline to do.

As our colleagues know, they are under no obligation to offer any specific amendment, even if they faithfully promise to do so. So let's not distract from the bills that we are here to move forward today.

Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON LEE), the leader sponsor of H. Res. 398, commemorating the centennial of the 1921 Tulsa massacre.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I thank the manager for her leadership. I also thank all of those on the floor who understand the indignity of massacres, racism, and the red-lining histories that our country has faced. We, too, are Americans, and I love this country.

Last night, on the floor of the House, I said that, as a young girl, I knew about the Nina, the Pinta, and the Santa Maria; I knew about Columbus and Abraham Lincoln and George Washington. And that was well, though, obviously, there are challenges to that history, even today. That is what we had. We did not know the history—the slave history or even the fact that there was something called Tulsa, Oklahoma, a bright and shining star of economic opportunity.

This picture shows young girls dancing in the rain. Just like today, with cowboy hats on, the high school dance team, if you will. None of that was taught to any of us, this prosperous place.

And then a community known as Greenwood, in June of 1921, after a series of heinous events that nearly entirely destroyed Greenwood. We knew nothing about this. A hundred years; three living descendants. We will be on our way.

I thank the Congressional Black Caucus for championing this with me, and Chairwoman BEATTY for understanding the validity of telling the truth.

In this story, they saw men, women, and children driven like cattle, huddled like horses and treated like beasts. Over a few hundreds—this is a testimony—of men marched through the main business section with their hats off, their hands up, with dozens of guards marching them with guns and cursing them from everything from a cowboy hat on, with dozens of men. This is what happened. We were murdered.

The attackers looted and intentionally burned an estimated 1,256 homes in Greenwood, America's Black Wall Street, along with nearly all of the district's churches, schools, and businesses.

When others began to say, "Pull yourself up by your bootstraps," these freed slaves, for barely 100 years, developed Greenwood.

Yet this is what happened. This is the body of a charred Negro killed in the riot.

How many were like that?

As I said, the death toll came about because something happened in an elevator. And something like Emmett Till said to a White woman. In a firestorm of hatred and violence, that is perhaps unequal in peace time in the history of the United States, the White mob destroyed almost 40 square blocks, left almost 9,000 Greenwood district residents homeless.

So this is a story from 100 years ago. Look at the smoke coming from the buildings that were industries. People had homes, they had parents, and boarding houses burned to the ground.

We come today to say, the burned-out ruins of Greenwood—there is one door left in Tulsa, to be able to embrace those from Tulsa, Oklahoma. They will be here tomorrow for a hearing in the Judiciary Committee. I am honored this legislation will honor them.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, we will know and history will tell us that embedded in the annals of the Congressional Record will be H. Res. 398 that talks about that story.

Yet we rise above that, not so much to ignore it, but we ask that we condemn the violence in this resolution. We ask for rejection and active opposition to this false ideology of white supremacy. We ask for tolerance and unity. We ask and are calling upon Americans to celebrate ethnic, racial, and religious diversity.

We, too, mourn those who were killed in Atlanta for Asian hate. It says, encompassing all people in our United States to reflect upon all of our history. Yes, we can rise above it, but we must know that the stories that are told say that Tulsa must have some repair, some say reparations.

Finally, as I close, we hear a testimony from the great-granddaughter of Howard and Harriet Ector. They were builders and pillars of Black Wall Street. They were featured in the Smithsonian. As a little girl, their great-grandmother was saved by hiding in a chicken coop at age 9 to dodge bullets. It was a race war. We should not ignore our differences, but we should be unified by who we are.

I am delighted to support this resolution, and I ask my colleagues to vote for it.

Madam Speaker, I include in the Record a report by the Oklahoma Commission to Study the Tulsa Race Riot of 1921.

1921 TULSA RACE MASSACRE FACT SHEET
SOURCE—TULSA RACE RIOT: A REPORT BY THE OKLAHOMA COMMISSION TO STUDY THE TULSA RACE RIOT OF 1921, FEB. 28, 2001

Following World War I, Tulsa, Oklahoma was recognized nationally for its affluent African American community known as the Greenwood District. This thriving business district and surrounding residential area was referred to as “Black Wall Street.” In June 1921, a series of violent events nearly destroyed the entire Greenwood area.

“I saw men, women and children driven like cattle, huddled like horses and treated like beasts. Thus, I fully realized the attitude of the Southern white man when he has you bested. I saw hundreds of men marched..."
through the main business section of “White Town” with their hats off and their hands up, with dozens of guards marching them with guns, cursing them for everything mentioned. Trucks followed the invaders, as they ran the colored people from their homes and places of business. Everything of value was loaded on these trucks and then burned. They burned buildings, burned apartments and burned a Black and a White man, who were seated in a car. I saw machine guns turned on the colored men to oust them from their stronghold.” —Anonymous account

Starting late on the evening of May 31 and continuing into the day of June 1, 1921, a White mob attacked the Greenwood district of Tulsa, attempting to burn it to the ground. The attackers looted and intentionally burned an estimated 1,256 homes in Greenwood—America’s “Black Wall Street”—along with all of the district’s churches, schools, and businesses.

The number of persons killed in the riot may never be known, but a 2001 report by a commission created by the Oklahoma legislature estimated, based on available evidence at that time, that at least 73 to 100 people died in the Massacre, and found that one could locate primary source evidence that the death toll at 300 people. All told, in what the late historian and Tulsa survivor John Hope Franklin described as a “dismayed and frightened display of hatred and violence that is perhaps unequalled in the peace time history of the United States,” the White mob destroyed almost all of the city’s Black neighborhoods and left about 9,000 Greenwood district residents homeless.

As the White invaders moved through the district, a violent pattern of murder, looting, and arson soon followed. Armed Whites would force Black residents from their homes or businesses where they were held at “a growing number of interment centers,” loot what they could, burns homes, and then carry, and then torch the structure. They summarily shot any Black men found in a house with a firearm as well as anyone else who resisted. This pattern was repeated, “House by house, block after block” until all of the city’s Black neighborhoods were engulfed in flames.

Whites engaged in the attack also committed numerous other atrocities. According to one Black eyewitness, White looters murdered a Black elderly disabled man who, despite being unarmed, was foolishly mistaken for an armed person and could not comply with their order to leave his home. According to one White eyewitness, prominent Black surgeon Dr. A.C. Jackson was shot in the forehead with his hands up after attempting to comply with the White rioters. Another Black eyewitness recounted how he and 30 or 40 other men who had surrendered to the rioters were lined up and forced to run with hands over their heads to an interment center located at Convention Hall, all while some of their White captors shot at their heels with guns. A group of White men even ran a car into the group, knocking over two or three of them. In another instance, a terrifying display of brutality, a Black disabled homeless man was tied by his leg to a car and dragged by “white thugs” through the streets of downtown business district where he panicked.

While some might attribute these atrocities to the actions of a few “rogue” officers, the “official” police response to the violence also appears to have been, at best, mired in confusion and, at worst, to have reflected unfounded racial fears of a so-called “Negro uprising.” With the baseline run-up that Blacks who were coming from outside of town, the police chief ordered roughly one-fifth of the officers on duty to setup checkpoints of Black cars leaving into town, and at the railroad station, wasting precious manpower that could have been used elsewhere to prevent the violence and destruction.

Following the Massacre, local authorities did less than nothing to provide justice for the mostly Black victims. Many members of Black residents remained in internment camps in the days immediately following the Massacre.

Local officials actively sought to hinder the Black community’s rebuilding efforts. Within a week of the Massacre, the Tulsa City Commission passed a fire ordinance aimed at preventing Black Tulsans from re-buiding the Greenwood commercial district where it originally stood, and the so-called “Reconstruction Commission” established by White business and political leaders basted away offers of outside aid. Black Tulsans successfully challenged the ordinance, which was lifted down as unconstitutional by the Oklahoma Supreme Court, and managed to rebuild at least parts of the community where it once stood. Many other Black residents left homeless or rightfully feeling fearful and unwelcome left Tulsa. Thousands of survivors were likely traumatized by the violence they witnessed or experienced in the Massacre.

The Massacre also destroyed millions of dollars in Black-owned property. The 2001 US Census estimated that the property damage at 17 million in 1999 dollars, which would be more than 25 million today. Another source estimates the total value of the property destroyed at between 50 and 100 million in today's dollars.

Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida, Mr. MAST.

Mr. MAST. Madam Speaker, I rise in opposition to the previous question and, if defeated, I urge my colleagues to adopt H.R. 261 by my friend and colleague, Representative BRIAN MAST.

This legislation places strict sanctions on individuals who knowingly aid senior members or supporters of terrorist organizations. This legislation, moving forward, is important in light of the terrorist acts conducted by Hamas against the State of Israel.

These horrific scenes coming out of Jerusalem depict countless rockets being launched from Gaza with the intent to massacre innocent civilians. What we have witnessed from the Iron Dome’s ability to intercept this high volume of rockets is really truly remarkable, but it also underscores Israel’s security vulnerability. We are reminded this past week of the importance of the United States’ security cooperation with Israel, Hamas, and Hezbollah, and other terrorist organizations. We are taking an important step in providing Israel and the Jewish people a bold signal of support for their self-defense and their self-determination.

Mr. CLYBURN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to urge unanimous support for H. Res. 398, recognizing the 100th anniversary of the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre. As a former history teacher, I often quote George Santayana, who said, “Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it.”

The Tulsa Race Massacre is a prime example of inflaming issues and ignoring history. They both significantly lead to the inability and failure to learn the lessons that history can teach us.

It was the inflammatory reporting of the chance encounter of a young Black man, Dick Rowland, and a young White elevator operator, Sarah Page, that ignited one of the deadliest episodes of racial violence in our history.

On May 31, 1921, the Tulsa Tribune newspaper printed the headline, and I am quoting here, “Nab Negro for Attacking Girl in Elevator,” and the same edition included a report of a White mob’s plan to lynch Rowland. The newspaper account was based on false claims that Mr. Rowland sexually assaulted the White woman, and is cited as the spark that incited a mob to burn and loot 35 blocks in the Black Greenwood neighborhood of Tulsa and kill an estimated 300 people.

Greenwood was known at the time as Black Wall Street due to its status as one of the most prosperous African-American communities in the country.

The devastation wrought by the mob, many of whom had been deputized and armed by local officials, took the lives and livelihoods of many in the Greenwood community. It caused irreparable damage to so many Black families who never received justice for the horrors they suffered.

This horrific incident was erased from collective memory when the Tulsa Tribune destroyed all original copies of the May 31, 2021, edition of the newspaper and removed all copies from their archives. Scholars later discovered that police and State militia archives about the riot were missing as well.

We cannot overcome the issues of race that have troubled our Nation since its inception by ignoring the failings of our past. To repair our faults, our country must acknowledge past mistakes and work to ensure that we don’t repeat them.
Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SCANLON. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN).

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, the greatest writer and intellectual Carlyle was right, "No lie can live forever."

Kill 300 people? No lie can live forever.

Destroy an entire business district? Try to hide it? No lie can live forever. Hundreds hospitalized, families destroyed. No lie can live forever.

One hundred years later, truth crushed to Earth has arisen, and no lie can live forever.

Mr. HORSFORD. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 398, the resolution recognizing the forthcoming centennial of the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre.

One hundred years ago, the city of Tulsa, Oklahoma, was home to the Greenwood district, a thriving, prosperous community where Black families could pursue the American Dream.

On May 31, 1921, this vibrant community was attacked and destroyed by white supremacists in one of the worst acts of racial violence in American history.

But today, Greenwood is rising again.

H. Res. 398 commemorates the victims of the Tulsa Race Massacre and mourns the loss of Black Wall Street to hatred and bigotry. It celebrates the strength and perseverance of Black Americans, and it calls on all Americans to work toward a more perfect Union, one that will finally fulfill our Nation's promise of liberty and justice for all.

Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SCANLON. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. JOHNSON).

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. Madam Speaker, 100 years ago this month, hundreds of Black men, women, and children were brutally terrorized, brutalized, and murdered in a massacre in the Greenwood district of Tulsa, Oklahoma. Their homes, businesses, and churches were burned to the ground. Their land was stolen from them. The thousands of survivors were locked down and deprived of their liberty without charges.

As the 100-year anniversary of the Greenwood massacre approaches, it is important that we bring a focus to and examine this piece of history that has been swept under the rug lest we be bound to repeat it.

If the events of January 6 showed us anything, it is that we are so close to repeating the actions of our forebears. That is why I, along with my colleagues, am today in full support of passing H. Res. 398, a resolution offered by my good friend, Congresswoman SHEILA JACKSON LEE, that commemorates in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for posterity the 100th anniversary of the Tulsa Race Massacre.

This resolution serves as a reminder that Black people in America to this day continue to fight to end racist violence perpetrated against Black people in America.

H. Res. 398 also heralds a Congressional Black Caucus initiative that CBC chair JOYCE BEATTY, chairman of the Select Committee on BRENDA LAWRENCE and I to co-chair; that is, a commemorative virtual event which will commemorate and examine this horrific massacre. The virtual event we are hosting will take place on Thursday evening, May 27, at 6 p.m., and is entitled, Remembering the Greenwood Massacre: 100 Years from Tulsa to the Insurrection (Reconciliation, Restoration, and Reparations).

Again, this virtual event will be held on May 27, Thursday, from 6 to 9 p.m. This event will be on Zoom, and we are encouraging all to attend. It is meant to both educate the public about this horrific attack on a thriving Black community and the massacre of its inhabitants. It will highlight the relevancy and impact of this race-based attack, especially as it relates to the events of January 6 and the many similarities that exist between these two events.

Anyone interested in attending this virtual event should register. I encourage all to do so within the sound of my voice— they can go to my website, HankJohnson.house.gov to sign up and receive the Zoom information.

It is important that we all participate in this event, even if it is just by listening or hearing from others.

Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SCANLON. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I Yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Ms. SCANLON. Madam Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I want to thank Representative SHEILA JACKSON LEE for reminding us of the difference 100 years make. But, you know, 100 years or so ago, there was a race riot in Searcy, Arkansas. Thousands of African Americans were murdered.

A little more than 100 years ago, there was a riot in Chicago, Illinois, where hundreds of African Americans were injured. But then 100 years ago in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Black Wall Street, a community where people had labored, worked hard, seriously put everything into it that they could, was destroyed.

Yet in my town, there is a John Rogers. Who is a descendant. His great grandfather owned the hotel.

John Hope Franklin, the great historian, his relatives were part of that massacre and the events surrounding it. So Representative SHEILA JACKSON LEE, thank you for reminding us that we can never forget and never go back.

Mrs. FISCHBACH. Madam Speaker, in closing, I just want to reiterate that while I do support the idea of the underlyng bills, I do not support the way the Democrats are running the House.

The Democratic majority continues to move on bills with virtually no input from Republicans and continues to prioritize partisanship over the American people. We are making great progress, but we do not need to consider legislation in this manner.

We have got this rule without a semblance of traditional process, and one of the resolutions contained in this rule was moved to the Rules Committee without any sort of markup, leaving the Members of this body without the means to make amendments or lodge their objections.

That is not the way this body should function. I urge the majority to make the necessary changes to restore regular order to the House of Representatives. I do not believe that it is a healthy nor respectful way to govern.

For this reason, I oppose this rule and urge my colleagues to oppose it as well.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
passage because his feelings were hurt when he wasn’t asked to lead the bill this term.

Our colleagues extol, when convenient, the virtues of unity and bipartisanship, but it is important for them to realize that bipartisanship relies upon trust. And in the wake of January 6, despite having witnessed the carnage created by falsehoods about the election results, the majority of our Republican colleagues voted with no evidence to cancel the electoral votes of several States.

For those of us who represent Pennsylvania, which was ground zero for those falsehoods and the efforts to undermine and overturn our electoral process, it is particularly tough to trust Members who have shown more interest in silencing those who would challenge the lies than in defending the Constitution.

It is a shame that a bipartisan bill to combat opioid abuse needs to be reconsidered under a rule, and I hope this time around my colleagues do what is right and pass the bill to improve access to low-cost medications to combat opioid addiction.

We are here to pass legislation for the American people, not to put our names on things. Stunts like what we saw last week are disrespectful to the House, to its Members, and most of all to the people we are here to represent.

I thank all of our colleagues who helped craft the bills we are considering today. I look forward to supporting this rule, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a “yes” vote on the rule and the previous question.

The material previously referred to by Mrs. FISCHBACH is as follows:

Amendment to House Resolution 463

At the end of the resolution, add the following:

SEC. 6. Immediately upon adoption of this resolution, the House shall proceed to the consideration in the House of the bill (H.R. 261) to impose sanctions with respect to foreign support for Palestinian terrorism, and for other purposes. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. The bill shall be considered as read. All points of order against provisions in the bill are waived. SEC. 7. Clause 1(c) of rule XIX shall not apply to the consideration of H.R. 261.

Ms. SCANLON. I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CUellar). The question is on the previous question.

H2480 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE May 18, 2021
Whereas, at the time, White supremacy and racist violence were common throughout the United States and went largely unchecked by the justice system;

Whereas reports of a segregated and disputed incident on the morning of May 30, 1921, between two teenagers, a Black man and a White woman, caused the White community of Tulsa to believe that they should stand by for a lynching amid a climate of White racial hostility and White resentment over Black economic success;

Whereas, on May 31, 1921, a mob of armed White men descended upon Tulsa’s Greenwood District and launched what is now known as the “Tulsa Race Massacre”, whereas Tulsa numerous county authorities failed to take actions to calm or contain the violence, and civil and law enforcement officials deported many White men who were participating in the violence as their agents, directly contributing to the violence through overt and often illegal acts;

Whereas, over a period of 24 hours, the White mob’s violence led to the death of an estimated 300 Black residents, as well as over 800 reports of injuries;

Whereas the White mob looted, damaged, burned, or destroyed property in approximately 40 square blocks of the Greenwood district, including an estimated 1,236 homes of Black residents, as well as virtually every other structure, including churches, schools, businesses, a hospital, and a library, leaving nearly 9,000 Black Tulsans homeless and effectively wiping out tens of millions of dollars in Black prosperity and wealth in Tulsa;

Whereas, in the wake of the Tulsa Race Massacre, the Governor of Oklahoma declared martial law, and units of the Oklahoma National Guard participated in the mass arrests of all or nearly all of Greenwood’s surviving residents, removing them from Greenwood to other parts of Tulsa and unlawfully detaining them in holding centers;

Whereas Oklahoma local and State governments dismissed claims arising from the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre for decades, and the event was effectively erased from collective memory and history until, in 1997, the Oklahoma State Legislature finally created a commission to study the event;

Whereas, on February 28, 2001, the commission issued a report that detailed, for the first time, the extent of the Massacre and decades-long efforts to suppress its recollection;

Whereas none of the law enforcement officials nor any of the hundreds of other White mob members who participated in the violence were ever prosecuted or held accountable for the hundreds of lives lost and tens of millions of dollars of Black wealth destroyed, despite the Tulsa Race Massacre Commission confirming their roles in the Massacre, nor was any compensation ever provided to the Massacre’s victims or their descendants;

Whereas many of the United States citizens not only abdicated their responsibility to rebuild and repair the Greenwood district in the wake of the violence, but actively blocked efforts to do so, contributing to continued racial disparities in Tulsa akin to those that Black people face across the United States;

Whereas the pattern of violence against Black people in the United States, often at the hands of law enforcement, shows that the fight to end State-sanctioned violence against Black people continues; and

Whereas the year 2021 marks the 100th anniversary of the Tulsa Race Massacre: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the United States can achieve a more perfect union—

RECONCILING THE FORTHCOMING CENTENNIAL OF THE 1921 TULSA RACE MASSACRE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3 of House Resolution 493, House Resolution 386 is hereby adopted. The text of H. Res. 386 is as follows:

H. Res. 386

Whereas, in the early 20th century, de jure segregation confined Tulsa's Black residents into the "Greenwood District", which they built up to a thriving community with a traditionally renowned entrepreneurial center known as the "Black Wall Street";
MOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULES AND PASS CERTAIN BILLS

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SEC. 1. TITLES.

This Act may be cited as the "Supporting Early-Career Researchers Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The Nation’s universities and industrial research labs are facing unprecedented budget pressure as part of the COVID-19 health crisis, resulting in considerably fewer openings for research and teaching positions.

(2) Emergency funding is needed to forestall the loss of research talent likely to occur as researchers are forced to seek employment outside of research due to the sharp economic decline caused by the COVID-19 health crisis.

(3) The future of America’s defense will rely on advanced technologies to maintain its military superiority over its rivals, including China. These technologies will require new levels of scientific and engineering aptitude and understanding. Early career researchers will play a critical role in the development of these technologies, and the loss of an entire generation of researchers due to the COVID-19 pandemic will be detrimental to the United States national security.

SEC. 3. EARLY-CAREER RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM.

(a) In general.—The Director of the National Science Foundation may establish a 2-year pilot program to award grants to highly qualified early-career investigators to carry out an independent research program at the qualified institution of higher education chosen by such investigator, to last for a period not greater than 2 years.

(b) Selection process.—The Director of the National Science Foundation shall select candidates for selection based on the following:

(1) statistical summary data on fellowship awardees disaggregated by race, ethnicity, gender, age, years since completion of doctoral degree, and institution type;

(2) an assessment of feedback from the research community and other sources of information, of the effectiveness of the pilot program for mitigating the loss of research talent due to the pandemic;

(3) if determined effective, a plan for permanent implementation of the pilot program.

SEC. 4. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated to the Director of the National Science Foundation $250,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2021 through 2022 to carry out the activities in this Act.

SEC. 5. MERIT REVIEW.

(a) In general.—The Director of the National Science Foundation shall select candidates for selection based on the following:

(1) statistical summary data on fellowship awardees disaggregated by race, ethnicity, gender, age, years since completion of doctoral degree, and institution type;

(2) an assessment of feedback from the research community and other sources of information, of the effectiveness of the pilot program for mitigating the loss of research talent due to the pandemic;

(3) if determined effective, a plan for permanent implementation of the pilot program.

(b) Qualification of higher education defined.—The term "qualified institution of higher education" means an institution of higher education that has a research program.

SEC. 6. COLLECTION OF DATA ON DEMOGRAPHICS OF FACULTY.

(a) In general.—The Director of the National Science Foundation shall report to Congress and the National Science Foundation by such investigator, to last for a period not greater than 2 years.

(b) Selection process.—The Director of the National Science Foundation shall select candidates for selection based on the following:

(1) statistical summary data on fellowship awardees disaggregated by race, ethnicity, gender, age, years since completion of doctoral degree, and institution type;

(2) an assessment of feedback from the research community and other sources of information, of the effectiveness of the pilot program for mitigating the loss of research talent due to the pandemic;

(3) if determined effective, a plan for permanent implementation of the pilot program.

(c) Findings.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) Many reports over the past decade have found that it is critical to our Nation’s economic leadership and global competitiveness that the United States educates and trains more scientists and engineers.

(2) Research shows that women and minorities who are interested in STEM careers are disproportionately lost at nearly every educational transition and at every career milestone.

(3) The National Center for Science and Engineering Statistics at the National Science Foundation collects, compiles, analyzes, and publishes data on the demographics of STEM degrees and STEM jobs in the United States.

(4) Women now earn nearly 37 percent of all STEM bachelor’s degrees, but major variations persist among STEM fields. Women earned only 20 percent of all bachelor’s degrees awarded in engineering and 19 percent of bachelor’s degrees awarded in computer sciences. Based on Bureau of Labor Statistics data, jobs in computing occupations are expected to account for nearly 60 percent of the projected annual growth of newly created STEM job openings from 2016 to 2026.

(5) In 2017, underrepresented minority groups comprised 39 percent of the college-age population of the United States, but only 18 percent of students who earned bachelor’s degrees in STEM fields. The Higher Education Research Institute at the University of California, Los Angeles, found that, while freshmen from underrepresented minority groups express an interest in pursuing a STEM undergraduate degree at the same rate as all other freshmen, only 22.1 percent of these students, 18.4 percent of African-American students, and 18.8 percent of Native American students studying in STEM fields complete their degree within 5 years, compared to approximately 54 percent of White students and 42 percent of Asian students who complete their degree within 5 years.

(6) In some STEM fields, including the computer sciences, women persist at about the same rate through doctorate degrees. In other STEM fields, women persist through doctorate degrees at a lower rate. In mathematics, women earn just 36 percent of doctorate degrees compared with 42 percent of undergraduate degrees.

The rate of minority students earning STEM doctorate degrees in physics is 9 percent, compared with 15 percent for bachelor’s degree. Underrepresented minority groups accounted for only 11.5 percent of STEM doctorate degrees awarded in 2016.

The representation of women in STEM drops significantly from the doctorate degree level to the faculty level. Overall, women hold only 25 percent of all tenured and tenure-track positions. Women hold only 18 percent of all full professor positions in STEM fields in our Nation’s universities and 4-year colleges. Black and Hispanic faculty together hold only 6.8 percent of all tenure-track positions and 7.5 percent of full professor positions. Many of the numbers in the American Indian or Alaskan Native and Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander categories for different faculty ranks were too small for the National Science Foundation to report, and potentially compromising confidential information about the individuals being surveyed.

(8) The representation of women is especially low at our Nation’s top research universities. Even in the biological sciences, in which women now earn more than 50 percent of the doctorates and passed the 25 percent level of representation, women make up only 15 percent of the full professors at the approximately 100 most research-intensive universities in the United States. In the physical sciences, women are not even 11 percent of full professors, in computer sciences only 10 percent, and across engineering fields only 7 percent. The data suggest that approximately 6 percent of all tenure-track STEM faculty members at the most research-intensive universities are from underrepresented minority groups, but in some fields the numbers are too small to report publicly.

(9) By 2050, underrepresented minorities will comprise 52 percent of the college-age population of the United States. If the percentages of students and faculty members from underrepresented minority groups earning bachelor’s degrees in STEM fields does not significantly increase, the United States will face an acute shortfall in the overall number of students who earn degrees in STEM fields just as United States companies are increasingly seeking students with those skills. With this impending shortfall, the United States will almost certainly lose its competitive edge in the 21st century global economy.

(10) According to a 2014 Association for Women in Science survey of over 4,000 scientists across the globe, 70 percent of whom were researchers, researchers face significant challenges in work-life integration. Researchers in the United States were among the most likely to experience a conflict between work and their personal life at least weekly. One-third of researchers surveyed said that ensuring good work-life integration has negatively impacted their careers, and, of researchers leaving academia, one-quarter cited inability to balance work and life demands.

(11) Female students and students from underrepresented minority groups at institutions of higher education who see few others “like themselves” among faculty and student peers do not experience the same social integration that is necessary for success in all disciplines, including STEM.

(12) One in five children in the United States lives in a rural community. The data shows that rural students are at a disadvantage with respect to STEM readiness. Among STEM-interested students, 17 percent of students in rural high schools and 18 percent of students in town-located high schools meet the ACT STEM Benchmark, compared with 33 percent of students in suburban high schools and 27 percent of students in urban high schools.

(13) A substantial body of evidence establishes that most people hold implicit biases. Decades of social psychology research reveal that most people carry prejudices of which they are unaware but that nonetheless play a large role in evaluations of people and their ideas. Unstated institutional biases and gendered institutional structures are hindering the access and advancement of women, minorities, and other groups historically underrepresented in STEM.

(14) Workshops held to educate faculty about unintentional biases have demonstrated success in raising awareness of such biases.

(15) In 2012, the Office of Diversity and Equal Opportunity of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (in this Act referred to as “NASA”) completed a report that—

(A) is specifically designed to help NASA grant recipients identify why the dearth of women in STEM fields continues and to ensure that it is not due to discrimination; and

(B) provides guidance that is usable by all institutions, including those receiving significant Federal research funding on how to conduct meaningful self-evaluations of campus culture and policies.

(16) The Federal Government provides 55 percent of research funding at institutions of higher education and, through its grant-making policies, has had significant influence on institution of higher education policies, including policies related to institutional culture and structure.

SEC. 2. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are as follows:

(1) To ensure that Federal science agencies and institutions of higher education receiving Federal research and development funding are fully aware of the entire talent pool of the United States.

(2) To promote research on, and increase understanding of, the participation and trajectories of women, members of historically underrepresented minority groups, and the barriers they face, and to coordinate Federal research and development grants to institutions of higher education and Federal science agencies, including Federal laboratories.

RURAL STEM EDUCATION RESEARCH ACT

H.R. 210

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Rural STEM Education Research Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The supply of STEM workers is not keeping pace with the rapidly evolving needs of the public and private sector, resulting in a deficit often referred to as a STEM skills shortage.

(2) According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the United States will need one million additional STEM professionals than it is on track to produce in the coming decade.

(3) Many STEM occupations offer higher wages and greater opportunities for advancement, and a higher degree of job security than non-STEM jobs.

(4) The 60,000,000 individuals in the United States who live in rural settings are significantly under-represented in STEM.

(5) According to the National Center for Education Statistics, nine million students in the United States will need one million additional STEM professionals than they are on track to produce in the coming decade.

(6) Rural areas represent one of the most promising untapped populations, offering opportunities for STEM education to impact workforce development and regional innovation, including agriculture.

(7) The study of agriculture, food, and natural resources involves biology, engineering, physics, chemistry, math, geology, computer science, and other scientific fields.

(8) Employment in computer and information technology occupations is projected to grow 11 percent from 2019 to 2029. To help meet this demand, it is important for rural students to have the opportunity to acquire computing skills through exposure to computer science learning in grades Pre-K through 12 and in informal learning settings.

(9) More than 280,000,000 individuals in the United States use high-speed broadband to work, learn, access healthcare, and operate their businesses, while 19,000,000 individuals in the United States lack access to broadband compared to 1.7 percent of individuals in urban areas in the United States.

H. R. 707

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Ghost Army Congressional Gold Medal Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States Army Signal Corps, and the Ghost Army, comprised of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, 603d Engineer Camouflage Battalion, and 406th Combat Engineer Company, were integral to several Allied victories during World War II. The 3133d Signal Service Company, which served in Europe during World War II, was actively engaged in battlefield operations from June of 1944 through March of 1945. The 3133d Signal Service Company was headquartered at Fort Drum, New York, at the Army Experimental Station in March 1944, was the only unit after the War, a U.S. Army analysis of other units, impersonated forty thousand men, or two complete divisions of American forces, by using fabricated radio networks, soundtracks of construction work and artillery fire, and more than 600 inflatable vehicles. According to a military intelligence officer of the 79th Infantry, "There is no doubt that Operation VIERSEN materially assisted in deceiving the enemy with regard to the real dispositions and intentions of this Army." In its final mission, Operation VIERSEN, in March 1945, the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, created counterfeit radio traffic to mask the efforts of General George Patton’s Third Army as it mobilized to break through to the 101st Airborne and elements of 10th Armored Division in the besieged Belgian city of Dachau.

(12) During the Battle of the Bulge, the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, created counterfeit radio traffic to misrepresent troop locations on the front lines. The 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, used inflatable tanks, artillery, airplanes and other vehicles, advanced engineering structures, smoke, pyrotechnics, and sonar deception to misrepresent troop locations. In March 1944, when Task Force Mason, a 17-man detachment of the 23d led by First Lieutenant Bernard Mason, landed at Omaha Beach, Task Force Mason conducted Operation ELEPHANT between 1 and 4 July, 1944, to draw enemy fire and protect the 900th Field Artillery Battalion (VIII Corps) as part of the Normandy Campaign.

(13) In its final mission, Operation VIERSEN, in March 1945, the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, created counterfeit radio traffic to misrepresent troop locations in the Rhine River and away from the Ninth Army, allowing the Ninth Army to cross the Rhine into Germany. The 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, created "false beach landing sites."

(14) Three soldiers of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, gave their lives and dozens were injured in carrying out their mission. In May 1945, the 3133d Signal Service Company conducted Operation CRAFTSMAN in support of Operation SECOND WIND, the successful allied effort to break through the Nazi defensive position to the north of Florence, Italy, known as the Gothic Line. Along with an attached platoon of British engineers, who were inflatable decoy "soldiers," the 3133d Signal Service Company used sonic deception to misrepresent troop locations along this defensive line.
(16) The activities of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company remained highly classified for more than forty years after the war and were never formally declassified. The extraordinary accomplishments of this unit are serving of belated official recognition.

(17) The United States is eternally grateful to the Soldiers of the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops and the 3133d Signal Service Company for their proficient use of innovative tactics throughout World War II, which saved lives and significant contributions to the defeat of the Axis powers.

SEC. 3. CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL.

(a) AWARD AUTHORIZED.—The Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate shall make appropriate arrangements for the award, on behalf of the Congress, of a gold medal of appropriate design to the 23d Headquarters, Special Troops, and the 3133d Signal Service Company, known as the “Ghost Army”, collectively, in recognition of its unique and incredible service during World War II.

(b) DESIGN AND STRIKING.—For the purpose of amending the award referred to in subsection (a), the Secretary of the Treasury (in this Act referred to as the “Secretary”) shall strike the gold medal with suitable emblems, devices, and inscriptions, to be determined by the Secretary.

(c) SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Following the award of the gold medal in honor of the Ghost Army, the gold medal shall be given to the Smithsonian Institution, where it will be available for display as appropriate and available for research.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the Smithsonian Institution should make the gold medal awarded pursuant to this Act available for display elsewhere, particularly at appropriate locations associated with the Ghost Army, and that preference should be given to locations affiliated with the Smithsonian Institution.

SEC. 4. DUPLICATE MEDALS.

The Secretary may strike and sell duplicates in bronze of the gold medal struck under section 3, at a price sufficient to cover the costs of the medal, including labor, materials, dies, use of machinery, and overhead expenses.

minority participation in the senior ranks.

The strategy shall identify which types of training would be prioritized, the extent (if any) to which such training is already being provided by the Civil or Foreign Service, the training officers by the Department of State, any factors incentivizing or disincentivizing such training, and how the training cannot be achieved without Civil and Foreign Service officers leaving the workforce. In addition to training opportunities provided by the Department, the strategy shall consider training that could be provided by the other United States Government training institutions, as well as non-governmental education and training providers. The strategy should consider approaches to overcome disincentives to pursuing long-term training.

(c) Other Agency Responsibilities.—In order to provide the Civil and Foreign Service with the level of education and training needed to effectively advance United States interests across the globe, the Department of State should—

COMBATING SEXUAL HARASSMENT IN SCIENCE ACT
H.R. 2695

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Combating Sexual Harassment in Science Act”.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 4. Research.

Sec. 5. Data collection.

Sec. 6. Conforming amendments.

Sec. 7. Implementation.

Sec. 8. Authorization of appropriations.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to the report issued by the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine in 2018 entitled “Sexual Harassment of Women: Climate, Culture, and Consequences in Academic Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine”—

(A) sexual harassment is pervasive in institutions of higher education;

(B) the most common type of sexual harassment is gender harassment, which includes verbal and nonverbal behaviors that convey insulting, hostile, and degrading attitudes about members of one gender;

(C) 58 percent of individuals in the academic workplace experience sexual harassment, the second highest rate when compared to the military, the private sector, and Federal, State, and local government;

(D) women who are members of racial or ethnic minority groups are more likely to experience sexual harassment and to feel unsafe at work than White women, White men, or White men who are members of such groups;

(E) the training for each individual who has a doctor of philosophy in the science, technology, engineering, and mathematics fields is estimated to cost approximately $500,000; and

(F) attrition of an individual so trained results in a loss of talent and money. Sexual harassment undermines career advancement for women.

(3) According to a 2017 University of Illinois study, among astronomers and planetary scientists, 18 percent of women who are members of racial or ethnic minority groups and 12 percent of White women skipped professional events because they did not feel safe attending;

(4) Many women report leaving employment at institutions of higher education due to sexual harassment.

(5) Research has shown the majority of individuals do not formally report experiences of sexual harassment due to a justified fear of retaliation or other negative professional or personal consequences;

(6) Reporting procedures with respect to such harassment are inconsistent among Federal science agencies and have varying degrees of accessibility.

(7) There is not adequate communication among Federal science agencies and between such agencies and grantees regarding reports of sexual harassment, which has resulted in harassers receiving Federal funding after moving to a different institution.

CONDEMNING THE HORRIFIC SHOOTINGS IN ATLANTA, GEORGIA, ON MARCH 16, 2021

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 403, I call up the resolution (H. Res. 275) condemning the horrific shootings in Atlanta, Georgia, on March 16, 2021, and reaffirming the House of Representative’s commitment to combating hate, bigotry, and violence against the Asian-American and Pacific Islander community, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 403, the resolution is considered read.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

H. Res. 275

Whereas, on March 16, 2021, a shooter murdered 8 people and injured 1 in the Atlanta, Georgia, region in 3 separate shootings that took place at Asian-owned spas;

Whereas the people of the United States mourn the 8 innocent lives lost, 7 of whom were women, 6 of whom were women of Asian descent, and several of whom were immigrants;

Whereas the victims included Xiaojie “Emily” Tan, a newlywed and mother of 2, was at 1 of the spas to receive a couple’s massage with her wife;

Whereas 44-year-old Daoyou Feng was an employee who recently began working at 1 of the spas and is survived by her daughter and husband;

Whereas 49-year-old Xiaoju “Emily” Tan, a hardworking mother and the owner of 1 of the spas, was a dedicated and caring business owner who is survived by her daughter and husband;

Whereas 54-year-old Paul Andre Michels was an Army veteran who did maintenance work for 1 of the spas to receive a couple’s massage with her husband when her life was cut short;

Whereas 51-year-old Hyung Jin “Jung” Park was a mother of 2 sons who was known for her kindness and generosity and her love of pets Shih Tzu;

Whereas 51-year-old Hyung Jin “Jung” Park was a mother and grandmother who helped manage 1 of the spas and helped to prepare meals for the employees;

Whereas 49-year-old Soon Chung “Julie” Park was a mother and grandmother who enjoyed line dancing and had been married for more than 50 years;

Whereas during an interview with the Cherokee County Sheriff’s Office, the suspect stated that the shootings were not “racially motivated”, but the investigation is still ongoing and authorities ruled out the possibility of classifying the attacks as a “hate crime”;

Whereas the Georgia shooting came in the midst of an alarming surge in anti-Asian hate crimes and incidents, which has caused many Asian Americans across the United States to feel fearful and unsafe;

Whereas the use of anti-Asian terminology and rhetoric related to COVID-19, such as the “Chinese virus”, “Wuhan virus”, and “kung flu”, has perpetuated anti-Asian stigma that has resulted in Asian Americans being harassed, assaulted, and scapegoated for the COVID-19 pandemic;

Whereas anti-Asian hate crimes increased by nearly 150 percent in major cities throughout the United States in 2020;

Whereas according to a recent report by Stop AAPI Hate, there were nearly 3,800 reported cases of anti-Asian discrimination related to COVID-19 between March 19, 2020, to February 28, 2021;

Whereas 62 percent of 2021 reports of anti-Asian hate crimes targeted Asian-American women, a population that has been historically marginalized, sexualized, and stigmatized;

Whereas, on March 19, 2021, President Joe Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris met with Asian-American leaders in Georgia and reaffirmed their strong commitment to condemn and combat racism, xenophobia, and violence targeting the Asian-American community; and

Whereas the people of the United States will always remember the victims of these shootings and stand in solidarity with those affected by this senseless tragedy: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved. That the House of Representatives—

(1) condemns the heinous and inexcusable acts of gun violence that led to the tragic loss of 8 lives in Georgia on March 16, 2021;

(2) condemns any racism and sexism in the choice of the shooter to target Asian-owned businesses and murder 7 women, 6 of whom were of Asian descent;

(3) honors the memory of the victims, offers heartfelt condolences to their families, and recognizes that the healing process will be long and difficult for the Asian-American and Pacific Islander community and all communities impacted by this tragedy; and

(4) reaffirms the commitment of the United States Federal Government to combat hate, bigotry, and violence against Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders and to prevent tragedies like this from ever happening again.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution shall be debatable for 1 hour equally divided and controlled by the chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Oversight and Reform.

The gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FALLON) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognize the gentlewoman from New York.

MRS. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chair and the ranking minority member of the Committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

MRS. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 275, condemning the horrific shootings that led to the tragic loss of eight American lives in Atlanta, Georgia, on March 16. The people of the United States mourn the eight innocent lives lost, six of whom were women of Asian descent, and several of whom were immigrants.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank Congresswoman Judy Chu for her leadership on this issue and for introducing this important legislation.

Over the past year, Asian-Americans have been attacked and harassed because of misinformation and xenophobia that wrongly blamed them for the coronavirus pandemic. And, sadly, incidents of violence against Asian-Americans are on the rise across our country.

The heinous shootings in Georgia was a wake-up call for the public to the reality the Asian-American community is facing each and every day. Acts of violence demonstrate why we must always call out bigotry and hate whenever or wherever we see it. We must all speak out against it.

In New York City, the number of anti-Asian hate crimes reported to the police increased by 683 percent last year, the most out of any major city in America. This is simply unacceptable. By voting to pass this resolution, the House of Representatives will clearly state our condemnation of the heinous and inexcusable acts of gun violence that led to the tragic loss of eight lives in Georgia on March 16.

The resolution also condemns any racism and sexism that contributed to the shooter’s targeting of the Asian-owned businesses and murder of seven women, six of whom were of Asian descent.

This resolution honors the memory of the victims and the loved ones they leave behind. The healing process will be long and difficult for the Asian-American and Pacific Islander community, and all communities impacted by this tragedy.

Importantly, the resolution affirms the commitment of the Federal Government to combat hate, bigotry, and violence against Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders, and to prevent tragedies like this in the future, a commitment I hope all of my colleagues can agree on.

I am proud to stand in solidarity with the Asian-American and Pacific Islander community in calling for an end to the targeted attacks like the one we saw in Atlanta.

Madam Speaker, I strongly support this resolution. I urge all of my colleagues to do the same, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, what happened on March 16, 2021, in Atlanta is a senseless tragedy. It is an unconscionable act of irrational violence. We grieve with the victims’ families, friends, and loved ones as they now must cope with this tremendous loss.

Justice must prevail, and the perpetrator must be held to account for these heinous murders. That is why it is so very unfortunate that this resolution that we are discussing and considering tonight on the floor came up on a rule when it wasn’t even marked up in committee. I want to talk about the process—both the committee process and due process.

Taking the former first, the committee process, I have only spent 4 months here in Washington serving this August Chamber, but I did serve 8 years in the Texas legislature. What I noticed was nearly all legislation becomes better when it goes through the committee process. So if this issue was so important, as my friends on the other side of the aisle state—and it should be, it is very important that Members would have been allowed to offer amendments through the proper committee process, which might have, and most likely would have, greatly improved this resolution as it comes to the floor today and helped gain support.

Our aim should be to send the strongest message possible to the American people that all bigotry is to be condemned and not tolerated.

We are the most diverse nation on the face of the Earth, and our diversity is our strength. We value the priceless contributions of our American brothers and sisters of Asian descent, and that should be the point, not to make this resolution unnecessarily partisan and eventually become specious political talking points.

To the latter point, due process, this resolution threatens the rule of law by assuming facts in an individual case that have yet to be proven. There is no question that the shootings in Atlanta were horrific, but their motivation has yet to be determined under law.

While all illegal violence will and should be roundly and justifiably condemned, it is inappropriate for the House of Representatives to opine on the facts of an individual case when those facts will be decided by an impaneled jury, a jury that will hear all that evidence. A jury should not be pressured into deciding the facts one way or the other based on political spin and partisan pressure directed by this Chamber.

Do my colleagues on the other side of the aisle understand how this resolution could damage the ideal of due process by putting forth an assertion of facts before our justice system has had the ability to function? The trial for this tragedy in Atlanta isn’t over. In fact, it hasn’t even started yet. This resolution sets a dangerous precedent at this time the way it is. It is a possibly reckless path to embark down for such an important legislative body as the United States House of Representatives.

While this resolution threatens some political theater, it is remarkable also for what it seems to be conveniently omitting from this resolution addressing anti-Asian bias.

House Democrats have left out the mentions of explicitly high-profile lawsuits filed by Asian Americans alleging anti-Asian discrimination in schools and universities’ admissions policies. So why would our friends across the aisle ignore these allegations in this resolution?

At the same time, this resolution includes the strange statement that references the Wuhan virus as anti-Asian. There are other elements that are clearly anti-Asian that are in this resolution, and should be. But the Wuhan virus is where this virus originated.

Historically, viruses are often named for their place of origin. A case in point is the West Nile virus. It wasn’t in Montana. It was in the West Nile district of Uganda.

Zika was named after the Zika Forest in Uganda. Ebola was named after the Ebola River in Zaire, in central Africa.

Here in America, we have the Rocky Mountain spotted fever named after a big mountain chain in the West. A disease in my native New England, Lyme disease, was found in Old Lyme, Connecticut.

So is that going to be geographically prejudiced?

Of course not. There are no resolutions condemning the use of the words Ebola, Zika, or West Nile. So not only have we not seen resolutions condemning these names, they have also been embodied in the United States Code many times in reference to the very diseases being combated. It is just descriptive. It is not insulting by any stretch.

I could go on, but I think the point is made.

We should be more cautious in this legislative body with the statements we pass as certainty and the procedural precedents we set here in the context of the judicial system. We should be focused on allowing the due process to play out with justice served, and continue to condemn vile and evil acts of violence against all Americans.

We should say this to our brothers and sisters of Asian descent: We appreciate you, we respect you, we love you, and we grieve with you.

When you break down Americans demographically, Asian Americans are a successful group in our country. Asian Americans, in their journey, epitomize the promise of America.

I thought it was interesting, the U.S. Census Bureau in 2019, the median household income for all Americans was $68,703. That is 43 percent higher. Historically, viruses are often named for their place of origin. A case in point was West Nile. So not only have we not seen resolutions condemning these names, they have also been embodied in the United States Code many times in reference to the very diseases being combated. It is just descriptive. It is not insulting by any stretch.

I could go on, but I think the point is made.

We should be more cautious in this legislative body with the statements we pass as certainty and the procedural precedents we set here in the context of the judicial system. We should be focused on allowing the due process to play out with justice served, and continue to condemn vile and evil acts of violence against all Americans.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. CHU), who is the chairwoman of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus and the sponsor of this important resolution.

Ms. CHU. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of my resolution, H. Res. 275, to condemn the horrific shootings in Georgia and to reaffirm the House of Representatives' strong commitment to combating anti-Asian hate, bigotry, and violence.

As we commemorate Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month this May, the Asian-American and Pacific Islander community continues to be terrified by the alarming rise in anti-Asian hate and violence that have become nearly daily tragedies.

The bigotry and xenophobia were fueled by former President Donald Trump and his followers, who used racial slurs like China virus, Wuhan virus, and Kung flu to direct blame and anger at innocent Asian Americans, who have put lives at risk despite the fact that the CDC and World Health Organization had not named a virus after geographical locations because of the stigma it would cause.

In fact, to date, there have been over 6,600 anti-Asian hate incidents reported in just the past year alone, and two-thirds of those have targeted Asian women.

In March, the fear that many Asian Americans were feeling reached a crisis point when a gunman targeted three Asian-owned spas in Georgia, killing eight people, including six Asian women. This killer, so motivated by hate, intentionally sought out Asian immigrant women.

In response, I organized a congressional delegation to Atlanta to meet with the families, as well as local AAPI leaders. We went there with a purpose: to follow the murderer's steps to show how deliberate he was in targeting three Asian-owned businesses that were nearly 30 miles apart from each other.

Local sheriffs have tried to diminish these crimes by saying that the shooter had a sex addiction and a bad day. But he had plenty of other places to go in that time. Instead, he chose three places where Asian women would be killed.

There is no doubt in my mind that this was a hate crime. That is why I am glad that Georgia prosecutors announced last week they will be seeking enhanced hate crime charges against the murderer.

The victims of these tragic shootings were hardworking mothers and grandmothers, many in their fifties, sixties, and as old as 74. I met with the families of two.

Xiaojie Tan was the owner of one of the spas and a mother, who worked 7 days a week to provide for her family. Her daughter, Jami, spoke to us through tears about how unfair it was that her mother’s life was cut short on her 50th birthday.

Then there was Young Ae Yue, whose son, Robert, told me about his mother and how she adored her children and loved being a Har Mul Ni, or grandmas. She never loved cooking or karaoke, but amid his pain, Robert was angry, too—angry that it happened, angry at a narrative that tried to justify it by victim blaming, and angry that people moved on so quickly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield an additional 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. CHU. Madam Speaker, we will not move on, and that is what today’s resolution is about. We must remember Young Ae Yue, Xiaojie Tan, and other victims of these horrific shootings in Georgia and all of those who have been terrorized by anti-Asian hate and violence.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote “yes” on the resolution.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARRINGTON).

Mr. ARRINGTON. Madam Speaker, I thank my fellow Texan, Representative FALLON, for the opportunity to speak.

To my colleague, JUDY CHU, I have enjoyed working with her and serving with her on the Ways and Means Committee, and I have respect for her.

Let me be clear, Madam Speaker, the Atlanta shootings were heartbreaking and absolutely unconscionable. I condemn, as I imagine all of my colleagues do, all hate and all violence against anyone for any reason. I mourn for all Americans who have lost their lives to any senseless act of violence.

Today, my colleagues have brought forth a resolution that I believe is laced with political jabs and unsubstantiated assertions about labeling a virus by its geographical origin. To say that the term “Wuhan virus” drove this individual to commit unthinkably crimes is both premature and illogical, and it needlessly politicizes this horrible tragedy. It is inappropriate, and I believe it is unwise, for Congress to presume a motive in the murders of the shooting investigation.

For the sake of our country, we must stop politicizing heinous acts of violence committed by sick, evil individuals. We must stop making claims that supersede and ignore personal responsibility. When an individual commits a crime, they are responsible for that crime, and our judicial system is there to ensure that the individual is held accountable and brought to swift and certain justice.

Again, I mourn for the lives lost in Georgia, but today’s resolution does not strike me as simply and only a sincere attempt to highlight injustice or to condemn hate crimes. It reeks, Madam Speaker, of scoring political points. That is my read.

It seems to be a veiled criticism of President Trump. It is needless and more divisive identity politics. We definitely don’t need more of that in this country. I think it is political opportunism. So I urge my Democrat colleagues and my Republican colleagues to reject this and to vote “no” for those reasons.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. MFOUME), who is a distinguished member of the Committee on Oversight and Reform.

Mr. MFOUME. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from California, Ms. Chu, for bringing us to this point.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 275, condemning the horrific shootings in Atlanta, Georgia, on March 16, 2021, and reaffirming this country’s commitment to combating hate, combating bigotry, and combating violence against the Asian-American community and the Asia-Pacific Islander community.

It is consistent with this body’s approach to racism that has affected African Americans, Latinos, and Native Americans.

Madam Speaker, I am a bit lost at some of the comments that I have listened to because, on the other side of the House, someone mentioned that this has everything to do with the trial. This has nothing to do with the trial. This has to do with those innocent people who were murdered. The trial never came up.

This has nothing to do with trying to point fingers. This is about people who got up that day with families and all died because they happened to be in a certain place at a certain time.

Sometimes when I listen to that, I say to myself: Well, you really don’t understand. You really don’t understand. Maybe it is nice to be born male and White when no one has ever attacked you because of your skin color, because of your heritage, because you are male.

I just repudiate all of that. It sickens me to see the level of violence being perpetrated against Asian Americans who represent our friends. They are our neighbors. They are our fellow Americans, our coworkers.

Over 600 cases have dotted the news throughout this Nation in just the first few months of this year, with two-thirds of those cases being against Asian-American women, where they were kicked, and they were beaten, and they were stabbed, and they were hit with bricks.

Doesn’t that sicken us to the point that we really want to just condemn this, as we should?

In an era of smaller vision, rampant apathy, and celebrated mediocrity, we desperately need those who will stand... up for that which is right and to fight like hell against that which is wrong. I urge passage of this resolution.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

My colleague just mentioned that it must be nice to be born male and White. I was born both, and I didn’t choose it. That is the way it happened. And then he went on to say: Must be nice that no one else has ever attacked you because you are male and White.

That is an interesting comment because I have a dear friend who was beaten to within an inch of his life in a section of town that was right outside of Duke University, and he was beaten primarily because he didn’t “belong in that neighborhood.” And do you know who is at fault for that? The very people who beat him. No one else. Unfortunately, hate occasionally fills all hearts, regardless of someone’s shape, size, or shade.

And that comment in and of itself was divisive. On this solemn occasion, when we are discussing condemning hate, it just find that unfortunate and disturbing, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CONNOLLY), a distinguished member of the Committee on Oversight and Reform.

Mr. JOHNSTON of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Madam Speaker, today, I rise in support of H. Res. 275, which is legislation introduced by my friend, Congresswoman JUDY CHU, which puts the House on record condemning the racist shootings in Atlanta and the South are no stranger to theUnited States of America. We must never lose sight of the power of walking in each other’s shoes. And, yes, I have walked in these shoes.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Georgia (Ms. BOURDEAUX), co-leader of this resolution.

Ms. BOURDEAUX. Madam Speaker, I thank Chairwoman MALONEY for yielding.

Across our country, the Asian-American and Pacific Islander community has felt deeply under attack. Over the past year, xenophobic political leaders used dangerous rhetoric to stir up hatred against many immigrant communities, including the Asian-American community during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Soon, words became action, and on March 16, 2021, the Atlanta area saw... the tragic and, in some ways, inevitable result when eight lives were taken from us.

The victims of this attack included mothers and grandmothers, fathers and sons, teachers and veterans. These are lives that cannot be restored, leaving pain that cannot be forgiven.

Today, we honor their memories. Tomorrow, the House will vote on a bipartisan and bicameral resolution that I coauthored with Chair JUDY CHU of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus. It calls on Congress to affirm our commitment to combat hate and bigotry against the AAPI community and condemns the hateful actions taken in Atlanta.

It is a step in the right direction, but only a step. America is and has always been a nation of immigrants, a fact that deserves to be celebrated. I proudly represent one of the most diverse districts in the nation, with about a quarter of my constituents having been born outside our country.

When one group of Americans is hurting, we are all hurting. Watching my son grow up in our diverse community reminds me that none of us are born with hatred in our hearts. Rather, it is something that is taught.

As we vote today, let’s teach compassion, let’s teach acceptance, let’s teach empathy. I rise in support of this resolution.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN), a distinguished member of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Madam Speaker, I thank Ms. Chu for her diligence and her persistence in getting this done.

This is a moment for sober reflection. This is a time for us to understand that there is a lot of pain in the Asian-American community.

There are people who are suffering, and it gives us an opportunity now to let them know that they are not alone, to let them know that liberty and justice for all applies to them, to let them know that we will stand against the hate as we stand with them. It is a time for sober reflection.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker. I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I will close with a statement of principle that no House resolution can come close to matching in its compelling moral clarity. It is the statement of one of the greatest Americans who ever lived, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

I will be honest, it gave me goose bumps as a child and it gives me goose bumps every time I hear it or if I say it.

To quote this great man: “I have a dream my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.” Asian Americans certainly have demonstrated great character with their numerous and countless contributions to this American experiment.

We also recall the victims of this attack, including the family members and community they leave behind.

I join my colleagues in seeking the fullest expression of justice that our system is designed to deliver. That gets us closer to culture, the culture of this Chamber. Sometimes you hear from the mouth of babes. Well, I am a rookie and a freshman. I have only been here 4 months. This is the most hyperpartisan legislative body in this country, and it is awful. I am not saying that my party may not have done something similar in the past. I don’t know; I wasn’t here.

I served in the Texas Legislature, both the House and the Senate, and I was very proud of the fact that almost 90 percent of the time, regardless of that body had at least some bipartisan support because we worked together, for the betterment of our State, to make Texas better.

Why can’t we be like that here, for the betterment of our country?

Not everything has to be partisan. I know it is now, but it doesn’t have to be. We need to work together to change that culture.

I am a back-benching freshman. I don’t have a lot of say. My voice isn’t really heard here yet. That is okay. But if there is ever a day where it is, I pledge to do everything I can to work, when possible, on a bipartisan basis because it is better for this country.

We don’t always have to score cheap political points, looking down the road for the next fundraiser or the next election. We can really do what is best for the country. Not red America, not blue America, America.

We had this opportunity here with this resolution. It could have been written if we had the committee process. The minority party could have contributed to it. We could have worked together on it. We could have pretty much guaranteed a 35-to-nothing vote. Because, at the end of the day, what I can recall in the Rules Committee was talking about sending a strong message that hate will not be tolerated, bigotry will not be tolerated. Yes, this country has had an uglier past. It disgusts me. But when you are raised the right way, you see it for what it is: evil, unacceptable.

We are the greatest country history has ever known. By working together, we can ensure that our children and their children enjoy the fruits and the benefits and the labor and the bounty of this country. I wish that were the case with this resolution, because it could have been.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. CAROLYN B. MALONEY of New York. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Madam Speaker, I thank my distinguished colleagues, Representative CHU, Representative MCBATH, and Representative BOURDEAUX, for their thoughtful and important resolution.

The House of Representatives must stand tall and denounce all acts of bigotry and hate, and condemn the terrible shootings in Atlanta.

H. Res. 275 does just that. I urge every Member on both sides of the aisle to support this resolution.

Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Madam Speaker, millions of people here and around the globe were shocked to learn of the shootings at Atlanta spas last March, an act that killed eight people and injured one. Six of the eight victims were of Asian descent.

Many of us saw a link between the discriminatory and often hateful rhetoric against the Asian-American community during the COVID–19 pandemic and this unspeakable act of violence. In fact, the last year has seen an unacceptable rise in anti-Asian racism and violent attacks, especially against the elderly. There are many such incidents across the nation that are said to be unreported as well.

As the Dean of the Georgia delegation, I strongly condemn these heinous acts of violence against our Asian-American brothers and sisters. They have no place in Georgia or anywhere else in our nation for that matter.

I therefore urge my colleagues to support not only this important resolution to condemn this act of violence and to remember the lives that were so tragically taken from us last March in Atlanta. I also urge them to support the bipartisan COVID–19 Hate Crimes Act to bolster the investigation and prosecution of hate crimes in the United States.

Mr. SABLAN. Madam Speaker, we cannot countenance the culture of hate in our nation that leads to Asian and Pacific Islander Americans being harassed, assaulted, and scapegoated for the COVID–19 pandemic.

Hate rhetoric has deadly consequences. Xiaoje “Emily” Tan, Daoyou Feng, Delaina Ashley Yau Gonzalez, Paul Andre Michels, Yong Ae Yue, Soon Chung “Julie” Park, Hyun Jung Grant, and Suncha Kim were forever taken from their families on March 16 in a shooting fueled by this rhetoric.

These eight victims deserve swift justice for the heinous and inexcusable act of gun violence that ended their lives.

But all Asian and Pacific Islander Americans deserve for this Congress to stand up and condemn the violence, and commit to ending hatred and bigotry. That is why I am a cosponsor of H. Res. 275.

On behalf of the majority Asian/Pacific Islander community I represent, I join my colleagues in expressing our condolences to the families of the victims of the Atlanta shooting.

And I join all those voting for H. Res. 275 in affirming that crimes of hate against Asians, Pacific Islanders, or any racial or ethnic group will not be tolerated.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 403, the previous question is ordered on the resolution and the preamble.

The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that they ayes appeared to have it.
Mr. FALLON. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 3(s) of House Resolution 8, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question are postponed.

CONGRATULATING THERESA MORRIS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. LÉGER FERNÁNDEZ). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2021, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Ms. KAPTUR. Madam Speaker, I rise today in celebration of the achievement and advancement of a longtime member of our Ninth Congressional District team, Theresa Morris of Toledo, Ohio.

Theresa is an intelligent, compassionate daughter born into a working-class family in Toledo. She is a true public servant. Theresa has served as a congressional aide in our office for 27 tireless and honorable years.

She has advanced her capacities across a wide spectrum of duties, such as outreach to small businesses, coordinating the district's efforts on the Congressional Aide Competition, serving as a grants and funding coordinator, and being a dependable project assistant.

She developed firsthand experience on a far-ranging set of issues relating to immigration, the State Department, and Homeland Security. Her service has been invaluable to thousands upon thousands of our citizenry.

Theresa knows and loves our Toledo community as fiercely and as well as anyone. That is why I am thrilled that she was recently appointed to serve on the City Council of Toledo, Ohio, taking her first step into elected office. I could not be more proud of her, her family, and all those who treasure Toledo. She is a true class family in Toledo. She is a true fidante.

Theresa has served on the boards of Toledo Citizens Police Academy, Leadership, and is a graduate of the Toledo Arts Council of Lake Erie West.

Theresa received the 2018 Distinguished Hispanic Ohioan Award. She has a certificate in Minority Executive Leadership, and is a graduate of the Toledo Citizens Police Academy.

Her interests are wide-ranging and unending. Some have observed she may be the longest-serving Hispanic congressional staff member in United States history. Mark that one down for the record.

Madam Speaker, Theresa is made of good humor, tenacity, and grit. She always has a smile. While we are sad to see her go, I can tell you with absolute certainty that no one is better prepared to fight for the working people of Toledo than Theresa.

Along with the entire staff, I wish her family success as she takes her career in public service to new heights on the "Good Ship Toledo." I look forward to working closely with Toledo Councilwoman Morris as she ably steers her craft full steam ahead.

Onward, Councilwoman Theresa Morris. God bless you.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

THERE ARE CONSEQUENCES OF OUR CHOICES IN ELECTIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2021, the State representative from Texas (Mr. ROY) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, right now, we are facing a critical question for our country. It is a question about whether our country wants to be first or last. A lot has been made, obviously, of the former President's agenda, which he referred to as "America First."

I think, unfortunately, we are sitting here right now, and our country is now too often looking at America last.

There are a number of issues that are facing the constituents that I represent, but I believe this is true for people all across the country. I have spoken many times here on this floor about this.

In Texas, our border is under siege. In Texas, it is a very real impact on our life, our communities. I share that with my colleagues all across the country, all around here.

It is very real in Texas, but it is very real in our country about the impact of the broken border. It is very real right now with people who run small businesses and need to hire people and they can't because they can't hire anybody. They are going to make that choice. Some aren't, but many do.

And now, you are owning a restaurant and you are trying to have wait staff or people to bus tables or cooks, and you can't hire them. You are trying to run a landscaping company, you can't hire them. You are trying to run a cleaning business, you can't hire them.

This is real, and it is happening right now in real time. The result, an economy stagnating. We are not taking off with growth. Now we have got inflationary pressures because we just spent $6 trillion. You run the risk of stagflation, low economic growth, higher cost of goods, all while we are now dealing with the uncertainty of a world in chaos.

A year ago, small businesses were thriving. Now, small businesses are getting crushed. A year ago, not too long ago, gas was $1.77 a gallon. Now we are looking at gas over $3 per gallon. As I said, lumber prices are up 478 percent; copper is up, I think, 50 to 70 percent.

My parents right now are trying to get enough building a house, and they are not sure if the dollars they have got set aside to do it are going to work, because all of these prices are going up, up, up at extraordinary rates.

There is a cost to bad leadership and bad economic policy. Our border was well on its way to becoming secure. In April last year, we had 20,000 apprehensions. How many apprehensions did we have this year in April? 176,000. We have had over 530-something thousand apprehensions from January 1 through the end of April. We have had almost 600,000 apprehensions to date, based on the information I have through mid-May. My sources on the border tell me that we have had 300,000 individuals who have gotten away or who have been released.

I went down to the border, one of the many trips I have taken to the border because I represent about 150 miles away. I went down at night, and I met with about 50 different migrants who had just come across the Rio Grande. This was a group that I just met with, and they are driving back down the road. I actually followed them in my truck with the headlights on, so they weren’t just walking in the middle of the darkness to get over to where the processing center is.

America first looks like this. Significant amounts of immigration. Legal immigration has dipped below 1 million per year in some 20 years. America’s doors are open, you-all. The idea that people want to say “Close our doors,” that is not the case. But you want to have operational control of your own yard.

I am going to talk about Israel in a minute. Israel put fences in place because they wanted to control their borders. You know what? They worked. Of course they worked. We have fences in place in southern California. Illegal immigration in the 1990s, which was astronomical, over half a million, dropped to 40- or 50,000. Why? Fences work. In Brownsville-McAllen, there is fences and there is infrastructure around Brownsville. There isn’t in McAllen. Guess where the traffic goes? McAllen.

This is not rocket science. When you are putting America first, you put in infrastructure. Border Patrol wants it, they need it. It works. It works. It works. Some people go around, yes, some people try to go over, but if you have ever spent a minute at our southern border—side note I would offer to the Vice President of the United States, that should she actually wish to do her job in supposedly running this whole border security task force, come on down to Texas. So far she hasn’t. In the 2 months that she has been allegedly in charge, our Madam Vice President could not get instead of secu-ritv, we have utter chaos.

Here is the thing. These are human beings. These are not political pawns. These are human beings, seeking a better life. I don’t begrudge any one of these immigrants who are seeking to come to our country. God bless them. I would try to help any one of them that were coming across to figure out where they needed to go. They are human beings, all of God’s creatures, but they shouldn’t be endangered because they are sending signals that it is a good idea for people like the 7-year-old girl that I talked to on the border who was all by herself coming from Guatemala to America. She didn’t have a parent, didn’t have an uncle, didn’t have an aunt, didn’t have a brother, didn’t have a sister. She was by herself. The young man who was right next to her, I said, “Where did you meet this young girl?” He said, “Midway through Mexico.”

Depending on which nonprofit, non-partisan groups you listen to, we know that upwards of 20 to 30 percent of women that are on this journey get abused. We know the cartels are making massive amounts of money moving human beings for profit.

We know that fentanyl, the most dangerous narcotic that is currently out there, or one of the most, we have now had more in 2021 in this calendar year in 4½ months than in all of 2020. Fentanyl. Our kids are dying. There is an opioid epidemic.

What does this administration do? Hey, I have got a good idea, let’s have processing centers in McAllen, let’s have 100 processing centers down to McAllen and have to run processing centers instead of actually policing our borders between the ports of entry and trying to stop the flow of fentanyl and dangerous narcotics into our country.

There is not doing your job. This administration is not doing its job. This administration, worse than not doing its job, it is purposely harming our country in the false name of compassion. Instead of having secure borders, instead of allowing people to come to our country legally, safely, we endanger immigrants and say that that is somehow being compassionate.

How is that compassionate? How is it compassionate when the Gulf Cartel, the Reynosa faction of the Gulf Cartel is making millions of dollars moving human beings for profit? How is it comp-passionate when the Cartel del Noreste of Los Zetas in Nuevo Laredo is making millions of dollars moving human beings for profit?

When the district attorney in Kendall County, Nicole Bishop, a county I represent, and I visited, and she talked about the nine illegal immigrants found in an automobile being driven by an American citizen employee of that Cartel del Noreste. It had nine illegal immigrants in there, two tied up in the trunk, and they were being taken to a stash house in Houston, Texas, to be put in the human trafficking and sex trafficking that.

America first is about jobs, economic growth, a strong border, standing with our friends in Israel, affordable commodities like gas. America last is a wide-open border in which Americans are endangered, ranchers are overrun, cartels are empowered, immigrants are abused, prices go up, commodity prices go up, businesses can’t hire people, and we abandon Israel.

America first versus America last. I have got to say about this, which will surprise no one. But my friend from Pennsylvania is here, and I would certainly love to turn the floor over to my good friend from Pennsylvania should he wish to opin.

Mr. PERRY. I would, and I thank the gentleman from Texas. I agree with him on the position he is taking, America first versus America last. I am from Pennsylvania. People say, “Well, what do you care? You are a long way from the border.” And I will tell you another great Pennsylvaniaian is now running for governor, Lou Barletta. Lou Barletta is the mayor of Pennsylvania coal country, as far away from the border as you would have thought, but he realized just over the course of a couple years his tax base stayed the same. Chip, stayed exactly the same, but his population in his little town doubled. And the crime in his town doubled. He could no longer afford the police budget.

When a gentleman, one of the residents, confronted a person who was a member of the Latin Kings and said, “Come see me right away,” that young man pulled out his gun and shot that man right in the head right there in front of everybody.

And that started this movement that illegal immigration—it shouldn’t even be called that. Immigration is legal. It is not illegal. It is not immigration. This illegal crossing into our country, it is cultural piracy. It is piracy of our country, of our economy, of our safety.

A lot of attention was drawn in the little town of Hazleton, Pennsylvania, because of Mayor Lou. He said, “I am not going to stand for it, and I don’t agree with the Federal Government’s policies, and we are going to fight right here in our State and end this craziness.” Then, of course, they took him to court. The United States Government fought their own citizen to put American citizens last and these other folks first.

Representative ROY, I just came back from the border. You live close to it. I go from Pennsylvania down to the border. Some things that you know are true, but you have got to see them with your own eyes. Maybe people don’t realyze. They think, Well, this is all poor, downtrodden, fearful people coming from Mexico or Central America. Two-thirds of the people that we saw coming across the border, two-thirds were coming from other than Central America and Mexico.

I have got a news flash for everybody. You can’t come to Mexico with a one-way plane ticket. You have got to get your way in and you have to have a plane ticket to leave. So these people, they are flying into Cancun, they are walking up to the border, and they are discarding their go-home ticket because if the Border Patrol catches them with that ticket, they can return to Mexico. Some of them could have it right there at the border. These people are flying to Mexico to walk across our border. Two-thirds of them.
So the last people I saw before I left that trip, Chip, the Border Patrol was detaining and processing, so to speak, Russian, Azerbaijan, and Cuban. All of them flew into Mexico to cross our border.

And the other thing we found on the other side of the wall because, as you talk about, and I know you have, the breaks in the wall where construction was stopped by the Biden administration, so you can walk right around the other side. And when we actually went and looked at the little shoes, of little shoes of little kids that they leave right there, it is heartbreaking when you see those. I have got children, you have children, those little shoes. That is an indicator of all those kids that walked the whole way up to the border.

But you know what else is heartbreaking? The packages of Plan B left are nowhere in sight. These little girls and those ladies were abused coming up to our border by the cartels.

When I got there, of course we watched people coming across the border, and all the cartel members are standing right on the other side, waving to us, giving us the old one-finger salute, making a joke of all of us in this country and the people they just trafficked into this country.

Mr. ROY. Is the gentleman aware that the Vice President was tagged by the President to take charge of this crisis?

Mr. PERRY. I am aware of that. Of course, when I was there, at the time I think it was 44 days since the Vice President was tagged to take charge of the border.

Mr. ROY. To your knowledge, has the Vice President visited the southern border of the United States in the now almost 2 months that she has been allegedly in charge?

Mr. PERRY. Not unless it was a secret mission.

Mr. ROY. When you think about the various things it is impacting—you represent constituents in Pennsylvania, and I in Texas—you talked about the reach of illegal immigration, narcotics, cartels, and gangs into Pennsylvania.

Does the gentleman agree, when we had the previous administration putting America first, does the gentleman agree that our economic situation and job situation and price of goods and services situation was far better and that small businesses were thriving versus today when small businesses can't hire anybody?

Does the gentleman agree that commodities—gasoline, wood, housing supplies—under the United States in the now it is wide open and being abused?

Does the gentleman agree that we had historic Middle East peace with our friends in Israel, and making our country safer, by the way, in the process in holding the line against Iran and our enemies, and now we have got Israel under attack and an administration saddling up with our stated enemy, Iran?

Does the gentleman agree that all of these are stark contrasts?

Mr. PERRY. I do agree. By the way, while I was at the border, individuals from Iran illegally entered the country. In 4 to 5 months in this country under this administration, we have gone back four to five decades in inflation, gas lines, illegal immigration, and wide open border.

I mean, everything is turned on its head. Everything that was good about America 5 months ago is now turning the other direction just because of these policy changes. These are changes made in this House of Representatives. These are made right at the top by the President unilaterally destroying the opportunity for Americans, importing unskilled, unprepared labor. One of the places that we visited, Chip, was a food bank right on the border.

The Biden administration will say these foreign nationals, these illegal aliens, don't avail themselves to the public largesse, that they don't get money from the American taxpayer. Meanwhile, they wanted to get rid of the public charge requirement. If they didn’t care about it, why was it such a big deal?

Also, your tax dollars go to the food bank. They don’t necessarily go to the illegal foreign national. They go to the food bank, and then the food bank gives the food to the illegal foreign nationals.

They are taking away opportunity. They are taking away the labor that Americans need for their first jobs. When your child gets out of high school, looking for their first job—when I was 13 and got my first job, I didn’t have any skills. Do you know what I could do? I could show up on time with a good attitude. That is what I could do.

Well, if somebody is willing to work for half price and show up on time with a good attitude, guess what? This American citizen doesn’t get a job. That is what is happening in the last 4 to 5 months.

Mr. ROY. I will be mindful of your time whenever you have to go on, but would you agree that if you go back and say, all right, let’s go look at how the tax cuts for the American was performing a couple of years ago, that the unemployment rate in April 2018 was 3.6 percent, that today the unemployment rate is 6.1 percent, that the poverty rate in 2019 was 10 percent, that the poverty rate today is 13.7 percent projected.

The Consumer Price Index in April 2019 was 2 percent, that today the Consumer Price Index is at 4.2 percent and skyrocketing.

If you compare where we were with respect to energy a couple of years ago—and I know that my friend has a heart for energy; obviously, it is very important to his State as it is to mine in Texas—that under the Trump administration for the first time in nearly 70 years, the United States became a net energy exporter, right?

Mr. PERRY. Right.

Mr. ROY. Making us freer, stronger, with more abundant, more affordable energy, we became the number one producer of oil and natural gas in the world, ahead of Russia and Saudi Arabia.

Natural gas production reached a record high of 34.9 quads in 2019 following record production in 2018 and 2017. The average American family saved $2,500 a year in lower electric bills.

Mr. ROY. What do we have? A shutdown Keystone pipeline, and an administration saying we can’t frack in Western lands.

We rejoined the Paris climate agreement to have the United States foot the bill, billions to the United Nations climate fund.

We have suspended the leases on Federal lands. As I said, a complete Federal land ban would increase foreign dependency by 2 million barrels a day. Gas prices are at a 7-year high. I could go on and on.

Does the gentleman agree that there are consequences to an agenda like the previous administration’s that puts the enemy first versus an administration that is perfectly fine putting the country last in order to go achieve some sort of, I don’t know, fealty to the European social welfare state and make yourself seem, I don’t know, welcomed in Davos?

Mr. PERRY. It does make you wonder, the good gentleman from Texas, who these folks that get elected to office represent. Do they represent their constituents, American citizens, or somebody else?

You talked about closing the Keystone pipeline. Now, what does that do? Does everybody think that we don’t get any oil anymore? No. We just pay more for it, right?

We put it on trucks. We put it on trains instead of through a pipeline. Somehow, that makes us feel good.

That costs us all a lot more money, and if you are not making much money—first of all, I remember the days when I couldn’t fill up my gas tank. You would get five bucks, and you would make that last all week. Those were the same days when me and my boss—since I was underage, my boss pumped gas with a firearm on his hip because there were even and odd days. You could only get gas, based on your license plate, on an even or odd day because there wasn’t enough, and prices were going through the roof then. And we are back into it now.

The same time, like I said, you wonder whose constituency is this. Is this America first or somebody else first?
They closed the Keystone pipeline, and then we talk about relieving sanctions for Nord Stream 2. That is the Russian pipeline. Oh, well, I am glad we are happy to support Russia getting all the gas to where they want to get to, to their market, but apparently, America is not allowed to do that. Whether it is inflation—oh, by the way, you don’t see that happening either, as if it were true. There is nothing happening at the border, and inflation is not occurring. Go buy a 2 by 4 right now.

Mr. ROY. Yes, a piece of plywood.
Mr. PERRY. Go by a sheet of plywood, right? Exactly. You are paying $100 for a three-quarter-inch sheet of plywood, and you are paying eight bucks for a 2 by 4, which 5 months ago was two bucks. That is inflation.

They can tell us all they want to that agenda that they have works for America. We are Americans. It is not working for us.

Mr. ROY. I was just explaining, before the gentleman arrived, that my parents are in the midst of building a house. They are beginning to wonder now whether or not they are going to be able to afford the permits to build because of the price of lumber, because of the price of concrete that is going up, because you have to have forms for the concrete and you have to have labor. Now, we are having a shortage of labor because we are paying people more not to work than to work, in the infinite wisdom of my colleagues on the other side of aisle who believe you can throw $6 trillion into the economy and not have consequences.

Is the gentleman aware that it only took us $4.1 trillion in today’s dollars to win all of World War II from beginning to end? Yet, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle felt like it would be a good idea to dump $6 trillion into the economy and believe that it wouldn’t have the consequence of inflation, that it wouldn’t have the consequence of paying people more not to work than to work, and destroy jobs, destroy livelihoods, destroy small businesses.

Now, we see the America First energy policy under the previous administration where we had abundant oil, abundant energy, and now an America last where you have lines. I mean, who is President? Is it Jimmy Carter or Joe Biden?

Mr. PERRY. It is Jimmy Carter, too, right? It is not only the third term of Obama, but it is the second term of Jimmy Carter.

We lived through that energy crisis, and we were told then that we were running out of fuel. But that was yet another lie, and, of course, now we don’t have any jobs, right?

Meanwhile, we closed down the Keystone pipeline. How many jobs was that? And we are told that you can go driving around with a license plate saying: "NO FUEL," right? Does somebody want to go, "Wait. Hold on," producing more of the emissions and CO2 than the rest of the world combined? My colleagues on the other side of the aisle want us to join the Paris Agreement, which we were outperforming without being a part of it. They want to hand every inch of the countryside over to the Chinese and say: "Oh, please let us be a part of this whole exercise," while China is pumping out more actual pollutants and more CO2 than anybody else in the world.

Mr. PERRY. I am aware, and I thank the gentleman from Texas for bringing it up.

We keep hearing about getting to net-zero, net-zero carbon. What is fascinating is, if you take a look at what we could do that. If we actually did that, China would eclipse everything that we just did by going from our current economy to net zero in a few weeks’ time, literally a few weeks’ time. So, we go back to essentially the seventh century, and China would eclipse it in just a few weeks’ time.

First of all, there are not enough critical minerals. There are not enough mines on the planet to transfer this energy economy into a solely wind- and solar-powered economy. There is just not.

So, we have to get real about what this is. I think the pipeline shutdown that you just saw on the East Coast here is indicative of how important and how tied to energy the vitality of this economy is and this America First is. Tinkering with it even just the slightest bit has drastic consequences.

My good friend, the gentleman from Texas, endured it. All of Texas endured it this past winter. Their power grid was frozen up, the electric pump doesn’t work either.

This is insanity. We are choosing this. We are doing this by design.

Mr. PERRY. Is the gentleman aware that human life expectancy, if you track it on a chart, is almost directly correlated to the availability of abundant energy and that we have seen the lifesaving advances that cause human flourishing, the ability to save people’s lives, the advancement of modern technology for medicine, to be able to spread that around the world?

There are still 3 billion people in the world right now who are not living with abundant energy, and what do we want to do as the greatest country in this history of the world to slam the brakes on this great economy with this magic unicorn dust of a view toward how we are going to have our energy policy while we throttle us back, empower China, allow China to be able to continue to pollute what they want to in the atmosphere. Meanwhile, human beings suffer.

Mr. PERRY. It is not only just allowing China to pollute at an unprecedented level. Maybe for people who don’t have respect for the American economy, that is the problem. We are choosing to pollute. America throws its weight around too much, maybe that is China’s business, trying to lift their impoverished people out of poverty and give them power. As you said, not just hundreds of lives, not just hundreds of thousands of lives, but literally millions of lives will be saved with power.

But what is the insult upon the injury is the Paris climate accord, where we literally pay others to take your tax dollars to take your energy away and pay them so that they can pollute even more while you can’t live in the First World, in the 21st century. That is the insult upon injury here.

Mr. ROY. I heard the gentleman who I should thank for his military service, his long career in serving in our Armed Forces. I appreciate your service. I know the gentleman is concerned a lot about national security, as well.

With respect to pipelines, you alluded to the Nord Stream 2 pipeline. I believe today we learned that the administration was backing away from sanctions, which is perfectly fine, having the Nord Stream 2 pipeline tunneling all sorts of fossil fuels to Germany, but forsaking our friends in Ukraine, by the way, in doing so.

You get a twofers out of this administration undermining our national security while having our friends in Ukraine who are trying to push back against Putin. But, oh, by the way, you are advancing a pipeline over there while you refuse to have pipelines in the United States of America.

Mr. PERRY. Yes, the gentleman probably knows this, but Pennsylvania, of course, a great energy State, has been for a long time—Titusville, you know the Drake Well and so on and so forth, it goes back a long time for us. We can't get our natural gas to market in New England because we can't get a pipeline through. They won't allow it.

So, where does New England get its natural gas in the wintertime when times are tough? They buy it from Russia, a nation with a national security issue. Again, more insult to injury.

None of this is based on an America First agenda. It is almost like everybody else other than America is first. These are political leaders and policy-makers about by their American constituency. You would think that they would want to support that constituency first, do what is best for them, ease their concerns when they have to make the bills, pay the mortgage or the gas bill or pay for their child's education. And the prices just keep going up because of decisions that are made based on politics, not based on efficacy and what is good for people in America.

Mr. ROY. I know the gentleman probably has things he needs to do, but before he leaves, I wanted to address one other issue on national security because I know he has a passion for this, as well.

We have talked about the impact on our economy of America First versus America last. We talked about the impact on the border of America First versus America last. We talked about the impact on energy and availability of energy of America First versus America last.

Now, let's talk a little bit about the impact on the stability in the world on Middle East peace, on our national security, on our economy of America First versus America last.

Thank the good Lord above that we have Iron Dome and the ability to protect our friends in Israel and work with them so that we also have strong missile defense technology.

Would the gentleman agree that that is the currency of the 21st century? Mr. PERRY. This is one of the saddest things we have seen in the few short months of this administration. The change of the Abraham Accords and the lowering of tensions in the Middle East between nations and the resolve to be peaceful. The great track that we were on in just a few short months, it goes from that picture to the picture with the rockets being sent to Israel. Of course, being delivered—the explosives being delivered by the technology produced in Iran, by the avowed enemy of Israel, Hamas, who seeks not to find some resolution, but seeks death.

It is in their charter. So if you don't like what I am saying, I am just a messenger as in the charter that their job is to kill every single Jew. That is what they seek to do, in just a few short months. Everyone knew and everyone knows every administration will be tested by these foreign adversaries, and this one is being tested right now. And, of course, in my opinion, and obviously from the photographs, they are failing this test.

Is the gentleman aware that there is a proposal potentially coming to stop the Israelis from purchasing from the United States to rearm their missile defense system? Mr. ROY. I saw the same stories that my friend from Pennsylvania saw about some of our democratic colleagues, I think here in the House and in the Senate, who were starting to say that we needed to back off of that and not provide the hellfire missiles or any one of the resources that we worked in collaboration with our friends in Israel in order to make sure they are protected, and particularly in the use of the Iron Dome, literally protecting millions of people, by the way.

There is 150,000 rockets sitting in Lebanon, sitting and pointing right at northern Israel. By the way, the populated area in that northern part of Israel is about the size of a portion of the district I represent in that stretch between San Antonio and Austin.

I took a helicopter tour going up to Jordan, up the northern side of Israel, back down to Tel Aviv and back down to Jerusalem in a few hours. Can you imagine? That is the size of Israel.

And they have 150,000 rockets in Lebanon, pointing from the north, and they have got Gaza over here firing all these missiles coming in from Gaza. Hamas launching them in at Israel, and they are actually benefiting from the technology we are providing. And now you have got Democrats saying they want to pull that away.

Now, the good news is I also saw a story today with a couple of them starting to walk that back, because hopefully they are starting to feel the pressure the American people want us to do with Israel. The American people want us to stand with our allies who stand with us, and that is what Israel has done.

And I would tell the gentleman, I am sure he has experienced what I experienced when I was in the Sea of Galilee. And I was on the floor the other night with BRIAN MAST, your fellow veteran, who lost his legs in service to our country. He also served 2 years in the Israel Defense Forces. Well, Brian and I were sitting on a pier in the Sea of Galilee, and the Israelis, who were on that pier, stood up and looked at us and they all sang “God Bless America.” And they all stood up and thanked us one by one for what we do in defense of Israel and our partnership with them.

And this administration is walking away from that. This administration is hugging Iran. This administration wants to cut deals with Iran, provide fuel to Hamas in the Gaza Strip, which undermines Israel and undermines our national security. And the American people, when they know this, they don't want it.

Mr. PERRY. I will close with this, as I am sure the gentleman has much more he would like to talk about, and I have kind of interrupted him here a little bit. Mr. ROY. It has been great.

Mr. PERRY. But I've so appreciated hearing from you.

Our relationship with Israel is much closer than just friendship. We depend on one another in so many ways that are unseen and unknown. And just one thing that had crossed my mind on many occasions—when you fly the back seat in a tandem helicopter in the world, the AH-64 Apache.

Mr. ROY. You know something about that?

Mr. PERRY. You have a helmet system that is linked to the camera system, which is linked to the gun, that the placement of your head is followed by those cameras so you can fly the aircraft, is followed by that weapon system so that you can defend yourself at a moment’s notice at all times.

And that following that is done with that helmet—which is very expensive—is made by our friends in Israel, because we are together.

Now what brings my heart, among other things, is that there are people right in this body—I mean, I hate to say it—they might as well be called the Hamas Caucus.

And I shudder to say that, especially in terms of what just said Hamas stands for: The death of every single Jew in Israel. That is what they stand for, by their own accord, by their own account. That we would have people in this body say that Israel is an apartheid government and we should be supporting Hamas and what is happening, what they are doing sending these munitions over. It is an insult.

Arabs in Israel are the freest Arabs in that part of the world. They serve in government. They have their own political parties. They have the right to defense—and I was thankful to hear those words, that they have a right to defend themselves. And I would just be sitting back and saying, well, I mean, I wonder what kind of proportionate response should look like?

Or would you just be responding back with overwhelming force to say under no circumstances do you shoot one rocket into our country, much less 3,300?

Mr. PERRY. That is the fundamental duty of those who take the oath of the Constitution: Defense. Defense of your Nation. Defense of this liberty.

And it can’t be defended if it is under attack from a foreign nation. So, absolutely, Israel has the right to defend itself and to respond to attacks.

And again, it is completely insulting to refer to it as they do, and to take the side of the aggressor in this regard and say that, well, the response is disproportionate.

What is the proportionate response when a innocent family is killed under the barrage of an unwarranted unprovoked missile attack from across the closed border? What is the appropriate response?

If it were your family, I guarantee you, I would want a very robust response to stop—stop the missiles coming in.

Mr. ROY. The gentleman is welcome to stay as long as he wants, but I think he has other places to go. But I would just say that I appreciate the gentleman joining me.

I know he agrees with me that an “America first” agenda that is pro-jobs, pro-affordable prices, pro-border security, pro-Israel, pro-national security is much better than an “America last” agenda in which we abandon our own allies, abandon our own national security, have wide open borders, have skyrocketing prices, inflation going through the roof, and joblessness because people can’t find jobs, because people are getting paid more not to work than to work.

Mr. PERRY. The gentleman from Pennsylvania does completely agree, and thank the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. ROY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Madam Speaker, I would close a little bit here out on Israel by saying just a few things I didn’t get into in terms of the details, because these matters. These details matter.

I said before, in the last 8 days, Hamas has launched more than 3,300 rockets at our friends in Israel. Think about that. We have had 10 people in Israel been killed—both Jews and Arabs.

I read a story of a young Indian woman, who was visiting Israel, who also lost her life.

Iron Dome has intercepted 90 percent of the rockets. Hamas is trying to overwhelm the defense system and destroy Israel.

Madam Speaker, 70 percent of Israeli civilians have run into a bomb shelter every day. Parents and children were being woken up in the middle the night by sirens alerting them that they have 90 seconds to get inside a bomb shelter.

We had Esther Schlesinger huddled with her 1-year-old son on Tuesday. We were speaking about whether I said: I didn’t have time to grab anything. I didn’t have time to grab my phone. We just ran into the shelter and kept hearing explosion after explosion. I feel terrible for these parents who have to try and explain what is going on. I literally was holding my son in the bomb shelter and I am thinking I am grateful he isn’t old enough to understand why I had to quickly grab him. Despite all this, I don’t doubt my decision to live here. Even in these times. It is so important for me to be here as a Jew.

Madam Speaker, we are seeing the result of a failed policy of this administration. When you think about it, President Trump called Prime Minister Netanyahu 2 days after his inauguration. The current President took over a month to call the Prime Minister of Israel—arguably, our closest ally in the world, certainly our closest ally in the Middle East.

I asked, President Biden’s secretary couldn’t even say whether Israel remains, “important ally of the United States.”

The Biden administration has emboldened Iran, the number one state sponsor of terrorism, dedicated to the destruction of Israel in the United States, by restarting negotiations on the failed 2015 Iran nuclear deal. They rewarded the PA by restoring millions of dollars in funding to the UNRWA and rejoining the Israel-hating United Nations Human Rights Council without much-needed reforms.

It is one hit after another. One punch to the gut after another to our friends in Israel, while we are funding Hamas and their ability to fire rockets at our friends in Israel. This is a pattern.

I will just tell my friends on the other side of the aisle, to ask yourself a question for the American people who are watching all of this: Do you want America to be first? Or do you want America to be last?

Because the current administration, the current policies of this body, the current policies of the Senate are taking us down a road which we had long since left behind in the days of the Carter era, in the late 1970s, when you had long lines at the gas pump, skyrocketing gas prices, inability to get jobs, stagnation, inflationary pressures.

Most people today don’t really remember. I remember when my parents got their mortgage rate down from 14 percent, 12 percent, 10 percent—man, when they got to single digits. Today, those rates have been hovering around 3 percent.

People don’t understand what they are facing, and they are going to do it soon. They know they can’t afford gas and they can’t afford housing and they can’t afford basic commodities and goods and services, and they can’t hire people, and their small businesses are going out of business because of the policies of this administration.

America first. People have jobs, businesses thrive, gas is affordable, housing is affordable, our border is becoming secure. A border, by the way, that still allowed people to legally migrate to our country, but to do so in a much safer way; without empowering cartels to be able to move human beings for profit, put them into the sex trafficking trade, the human trafficking trade, make millions of dollars in the process.

America first is putting our friends in Israel first and standing alongside them for their interest, yes, but also for our national security interest.

One or two more thoughts on the border because it has hit so close to home in the State of Texas, which I represent.

Now, I have taken multiple trips to the border, and I have spoken about it many times on this floor and elsewhere. But it is not just some esoteric concept that doesn’t impact our whole country, but that certainly impacts Texas very directly.

I said we had 178,000 migrants apprehended in April, we are now over 600,000 for the calendar year, 300,000 that have been released or got-aways that have gotten into our country. Those are real numbers, they are published numbers. Some of them are—the got-away numbers are numbers you get when you talk to people who know what is going on who work in DHS or work down at the border.

April’s CBP’s numbers show more fentanyl seized in the first 5 months in 2021 than in all of 2020. Fentanyl is a dangerous narcotic. Do we not care? I mean, it is a legitimate question. Do my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, do they literally not care? I have never once heard one of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle address this issue, not once.

I put something out on social media the other day telling the Vice President that I would be happy to meet her anywhere, anytime, to debate the issue of border security. She is allegedly in charge of it. Well, Madam Vice President, I am here on the floor of the United States House of Representatives, Article I in the Constitution; you are the Majority Leader, and I have a few thoughts to share, and so I have a colleague over here that I believe is going to have a few thoughts to share, and so I will wind down here in the next couple of minutes. I will alert my friend.

But I am just going to say, look, we first of all, let me just say, I appreciate the staff who are down here and keep this place running, and you have to sit here, and the stenographer is writing everything down that we are saying and, you know, the clerks that keep everything going. You are here because we are here, and I appreciate it. As a former staffer myself, we very much appreciate being here.

It is an honor to serve in this body, but it is an honor because of what we need to achieve, not what we are doing. It is an honor to serve in the House of Representatives because of where this country can go and what it needs to go on behalf of its citizenry, not because of what we are doing today. Because what we are doing today is undermining the health of this Republic.

I will just close by saying that one of the things that I have been talking to my constituents about when I go home is asking the very simple question: Are we free? Are we actually free? Are we free if we have $30 trillion of debt and we are undermining our economy? Are we free if we can’t hire people in their small businesses in order to survive?

Are we free if we have open borders that are being run by cartels? Are we free if we have our children and our grandchildren taught that America is evil in the schools? I would argue that we are not as free as we ought to be. We are not as free as we need to be. And that we are not as free as we need to be because of our alliances, and, instead, we are standing with some of our enemies?

Are we free if China controls much of our supply chains? Are we free if the unborn never get a shot at life? Are we free if our children are being taught that America is evil in the schools?

I believe we should put America first. I do not believe that we should have America in last place.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

THE DIRE SITUATION IN THE KLAMATH BASIN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 4, 2021, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. LAMALFA) for 30 minutes.

Mr. LAMALFA. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to stand up here with my friend and colleague, Representative CLIFF BENTZ of Oregon, as we both go over in detail the dire situation currently happening in the Klamath Basin, the area bordering northern California and southern Oregon here, upper Klamath Lake.

So this has been an ongoing problem over several decades, really. In March of this year, the Bureau of Reclamation, there, oversee the water in the Klamath Project promised that the growers there in the basin would receive 130,000 acre-feet of water. This on the heels of 2020 with a similar situation where the Bureau promised water to the growers in the amount of 140,000 acre-feet.

Now, this is of a total of a true water right of 390,000 acre feet that is promised in the basin for the project. These are already big cuts to what the original project intent was, with 390,000 acre feet, and the amount that these folks have endured in cuts in recent years.

So when they made that initial March allocation, the Bureau followed up in April, cutting that figure another 70 percent. Remember, 390,000 acre feet cut to 130,000. In April, they cut, additionally, 70 percent more down to 33,000 acre feet. So that is 8 percent of the water they have promised would have been promised initially.

Last week, another cut was made, now down to just 3,000 acre feet. An acre foot, for those scoring at home, is about 326,000 gallons, or the amount of water it takes to cover 1 acre with a foot of water.

At that point, the 3,000-acre delivery, the Bureau has decided, is not worth the effort to deliver into the district into the canals, et cetera.

So basically what this means, in 2021, no water would flow to the Klamath Project, this is for the first time since 1907, the headgates of the A Canal would remain closed.

From June 1907 to May 2021, some amount of water has always flowed into the Klamath project. From the upper lake here to the A canal. I will show you more pictures later, Madam Speaker, on how the A Canal works to feed much of the district.

This area, of course, is populated by Tribes, descenders, men, and veterans of World War I and World War II who quite literally won a lottery to homestead in the footprint of Lake Modoc.

The water hasn’t always been easy enough and a mountain of unpleasantries have been shared over the allocation of this resource, but there has always been water at least. And, so, I would like to start the conversation on the Klamath going back to the early water rights. The first private ditch in the basin was dug in 1868, and the few irrigation projects that were there at the time were quite small. In 1882, the first bit of land within the current project was irrigated. Authorized by Congress in 1905, this is the second oldest project in the West. There are several hundred miles of main canals, lateral canals, and drainage ditches, and 200,000 acres of irrigated farmland across 1,400 farms. Excluding the tributary lands in the lower Klamath, and to the Lake National Wildlife Refuge.

Today, it is over $200,000 worth of value in alfalfa, hay, wheat, and potatoes, including the ones you would get at In-N-Out, Burger French fries as well as pasture.

In 1917, the rock silt between Upper Klamath Lake and the Link River was lowered allowing more flows to agriculture areas and downstream basins. In 1961, the Link River Dam was completed allowing water to be retained during spring peaks and increasing the total amount of water in the lake.
not. There are counter opinions that keeping the river wet and all these flushes actually help propagate the virus instead of drying it out and making the virus dry out basically on the vine.

Then there is a similar debate with the sucker fish in the lake that a high level of water in the lake will cause them to be more subject to predators in the lake where the lower level, since they are bottom feeder fish and it is less conducive for the atmosphere for the predator to be able to target these fish.

So it is seemingly going in opposite directions. But we also have counter purposes for the Federal agencies that are regulating right now. Fish and Game, Fish and Wildlife, that are trying to preserve the deep lake for the sucker and at the same time they want to have the flows go down the river to take care of the C. shasta virus for the salmon—you can’t do both—as well as have any water available for agricultural communities, and for the refuges for the wildlife.

So the irrigators despite their receiving no water, the Bureau still plans to send 375,000 acre-feet downstream for salmon.

Now, let’s get to what the water rights look like. In 1975, shortly after NEPA and the Endangered Species Act went into effect, the Oregon Water Resources Department began the process of detailing and adjudicating the water rights of irrigators. Under Oregon law, Chapter 539, it lays out the process of determining water rights before 1909, when the water rights code in Oregon was initiated, and a large part of this is on the Oregon side of the lake.

This process culminated in the 2013 Findings of Fact and Order of Determination, which were then amended in 2014. Oregon water laws uphold the rights of the irrigators and distributes water based on the seniority of the claims.

So what are the ramifications for failing to deliver the water?

Now, there is still work to be done in reaffirming these property rights, which at the time seemed to be ironclad, but everything is fudgeable these days. So securing the property and water rights of the basin will still continue to be a battle.

While we continue that fight, we must highlight the dire straits of the basin’s water. The ditches, the canals, the irrigation districts are drying up. This will cause permanent damage to the ditches and the irrigation system there. Basically it is kind of like a wooden boat. They need to be taken wet, they need irrigation system. Also, the groundwater pumping provide for the people and the nearby neighbors with their domestic wells.

Every year the project goes dry or loses water the costs of returning to standard operations will increase. As I mentioned, apart, the first water that needs to go in them is actually absorbed by the canals to get them back into shape.

So when I mention the 3,000 acre-feet that are cut down to and the Bureau decided that is not even worth delivering, at least that could be positively used, to some extent, for those systems, as well as I mentioned the groundwater damage without the recharge.

So, most of the basin has to plan and plant, based on what the Bureau tells them in April will be their allocation. For example, one grower there, a fellow named Scotty Fenters, notes that the paradigm of a revised allocation down their allocation last year in May 2020. He had already bought seed, already paid the rent, and already put the fertilizer in fields.

Can you imagine, you have something halfway done and committed, and they say, No, you are not going to have the inputs anymore to finish? So in total, about $75 million had been spent planning and preparing.

Now, last year again in 2020 after the Bureau’s drastically reduced their allocation, the basin community rallied. There was a convoy of tractors and trucks that stretched 30 miles to say, You have to keep your word, Federal Government.

So, indeed, it was an impressive turnout.

So we come back to the water rights being upheld.

Last year, Klamath irrigation took the Bureau of Reclamation to court over its decision to increase downstream flows for salmon in the Klamath River. The State ultimately agreed with KID stating that the Bureau had the right to store water in the Upper Klamath Lake, but it does not own that water. It only has the right to move the water on behalf of the growers and the intent of the project. They do not have the right to take the water for salmon or suckers—salmon in the rivers and suckers in the lake.

Madam Speaker, may I ask how much time remains.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman has 17 minutes remaining.

Mr. LAMALFA. Now, there is still much ground we need to cover here tonight, but I think I have set the table for what we are looking at and the devastation.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BENTZ) for his presentation.

Mr. BENTZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank Congressman LAMALFA for his years of work on the extraordinary problems in the Klamath.

Let me, again, by talking briefly about drought and what it means. I select this as a starting place because so many out here in the East have the opposite problem—too much water.

Sadly, to those of us in the West, the term drought is all too familiar. We know what the word means because we have lived in drought conditions for many years for a century. It means bankruptcy. It means catastrophe. It means the death of trees, plants, animals, and dreams. In anticipation of drought, out in the West, we have developed means of surviving when droughts occur. We have built reservoirs, dams, canals, pipelines, drains, wells, and legal systems to deal with the supply and allocation, legally and practically, of water—this most precious, essential, and life-giving resource.

These systems, legal and hydraulic, provided the essential and irreplaceable foundation of communities in the West. These laws, and the water divided under them, provided a reliable and dependable system upon which futures were planned, families were raised, and rural towns with churches, schools, and hospitals were built. Droughts were expected, but Western communities were prepared—or at least they thought they were. But change has come. Change has come in the form of the Endangered Species Act and in the form of even hotter and drier weather. This law and these waters—hotter and wetter—some would say, destroyed—the systems that entire communities have relied upon for well over a century.

Let me be clear: The Endangered Species Act is the law, and I am not suggesting we break or violate it. Recently, I called for unity in the Klamath basin urging calm and cooperation in the face of this incredible and damaging challenge. But if ever there was an example of the need to refine and better implement the Endangered Species Act, what is happening to the Klamath basin this year is that reason.

But it is simply not possible to change the way the ESA is implemented in time to help this year. As I mentioned, and all of us know, there is another thing happening: It is getting hotter and drier, and all of our systems, manmade and natural, are under stress—the stress of severe drought and an ever-increasing demand for water: demand from fish, demand from wildlife, demand from water. We need to improve, and demand, soon, from rural homes which rely on wells for their water.

What can we do?

First, we must do our best to tell the Nation that some 60 to 70 million people across the Western United States will be suffering this year from the cost and the loss of severe drought. The Klamath basin in Oregon and California unfortunately is the poster child for this issue.

Secondly, we must call out clearly and loudly that our laws, as written and enforced, when faced with the choice of instream use for ESA purposes on one hand or the community on the other, will allocate all of the water to instream use, letting other needs go begging.

It must be noted that the water being given by the law and the means of enforcing it operates to give all of the water to the instream interests, even though this allocation is in excess of that which would have naturally flowed down the river during summer months.
Once again, I want to be clear that this allocation of stored water for instream purposes is a choice of what to save and what to let go. That choice has costs—incredible costs.

Next, it is not my goal today to attack the science, the need for the Department of the Interior, or the Bureau of Reclamation. It is my goal to call out that this country has, through its government and its laws—the Endangered Species Act—made a decision to take water from a community and to use it for a purpose that, placing the burden of that choice on people and other less fortunate creatures not protected by the ESA.

What is that cost? Some have said at least $400 million will be lost in the Klamath community this year. But that hardly tells the story. So let me elaborate.

The average farmer has mortgage payments, property taxes, irrigation district assessments, equipment payments, and most important of all, the need to house and take care of his or her family. Without water, there are no crops, no income, and no ability to pay the bills all families have.

Many producers in the basin have supply contracts that they have worked for years and years to achieve and retain. If producers cannot deliver on those contracts, for example, with Safeway and Whole Foods Market, those contracts are lost to other competitors and to other countries, such as Mexico, Chile, Australia, and Brazil. Oftentimes, these contracts can never be recovered.

Beef and dairy producers lack grass for cattle because there has been no rain and they cannot irrigate. Hay is in short supply and prices for hay have increased dramatically. Beef and dairy producers are forced to sell their cattle because they cannot afford the cost of buying hay. Rebuilding these herds will require years and years and much more debt. In addition, the increased supply of cattle to market causes immediate reduction in prices, adding insult to injury.

Then there are jobs. Thousands of agriculture-related jobs will be lost. People who have been employed in the farming area for years will move away, and many will never return.

Then there are farms. This is the second consecutive year of what may be many years of too little water to meet the many needs of the community. As the level of uncertainty regarding the future becomes ever more pronounced, more and more young people raised on farms lose faith in the future of farming and ranching and choose other careers. The average age of the American farmer is now late fifties, and it keeps going up. This trend means that we will become more and more dependent upon foreign countries to sell us food. But everyone agrees, in principle, that we should be here at home. The pandemic and more recently the shipping crisis have shown us that a global supply chain is not always dependable.

This choice, along with many others, to treat farmers and ranchers as though they are expendable, is bad for our Nation and bad for our future. When we talk about infrastructure, let’s not forget that those who know how to operate farms and ranches are critical to the infrastructure of our Nation. These choices that don’t balance the needs of our environment and the community are driving food production into other countries, putting us all at risk.

In addition, this drought will create and is creating extraordinarily negative environmental, public health, and safety impacts. The waterfowl, reptile, and amphibians mentioned by Congressman LA MALFA that rely on our rivers and streams—think dust bowl. And this is no exaggeration. Two national wildlife refuges rely exclusively on the Klamath Project for water. They will receive no water for those wetlands and habitats this year. They will dry up. The waterfowl that use them will be hurt.

There are 1,800 domestic water wells in Oregon within the geographic area served by the project. These will be affected.

The drought comes with another side effect, increased wildfire risks. Last summer, my district was devastated by once-in-a-generation, supposedly, fires that burned over a million acres in Oregon, destroyed thousands of homes and businesses, wiped away towns and entire towns, and killed 11 people. Dry vegetation and forests, combined with poor management, are the perfect storm for out-of-control wildfires. Those fires will damage the Klamath watersheds, making this bad situation worse.

What can we do? In the short term, Representative LA MALFA and I are proposing a $47 million critical aid package to help those hit hardest by the drought in the Klamath. Congressman LA MALFA and I are going to work to get this through the House in more detail.

Long term, we strongly believe there are critical legal issues that need to be addressed. Farmers in irrigation districts have strong objections to the reallocation of water. Dams and reservoirs were built to capture water during the wet time of year to have water available during the dry time of year. We have done that in the Klamath Project, and irrigation districts pay for the infrastructure that provides that storage. But now the government is requiring that we direct the release of stored water away from farms to artificially increase the amount and flow in the Klamath River.

During the irrigation season, the Klamath Project will be providing much more flow in the Klamath River than ever before would have occurred naturally before the project existed. This is a legal problem, and it needs to be addressed.

More water storage is needed. A future of hotter, drier summers means this problem is not going to go away. In the Klamath and across the West, we need to better manage a long-term plan so we have enough water for farms, cities, fish, and refuges. As snowpack decreases, and it is, water storage is critical, to have a reliable store of water when these droughts occur.

For long-term stability, we need the community to come together and figure out how to escape the zero-sum game that gives all the water to one use, ignoring others. There are critical parties to make this happen, and we need support of that work from the State, the Federal Government, and our community. Agreement can be reached. This has been done elsewhere.

To address these extraordinarily difficult problems, we must work together toward a long-term solution because this situation is not sustainable. Next year’s weather may well be worse than what we are facing now. Everybody is being harmed. There are no winners in this situation. Fish populations are not recovering; farms are not receiving enough water; refugees are going dry.

In the short run, perhaps, we can get through this year with the government’s help. But in the long run, the Klamath community will have to decide what kind of future they want.

Congressman LA MALFA and I stand ready to work with everyone in the Klamath Basin to come up with real long-term solutions. It is time to sit down together and figure this out. Congresswoman LA MALFA and I appreciate us being able to team up on this dire situation up in our common area like that.

Let me just touch on this part here. Going into the wildlife refuge aspect and the areas there in the basin that have sustained much wildlife and waterfowl over the years, this is 2020, when deliveries were already inadequate. There may be a discussion here, but this is a photo of part of the duck kill and the birds that were plucked out of the Tule Lake area here. You can see some of the dots here that indicate dead ducks.

I volunteered one day to go out and help retrieve some of that, to get this problem out of the water there. They become infested with maggots, and they help spread disease and all that. So this is what this really looks like, the waterfowl infrastructure is being devastated even when it had some water. There were 44,000 acre-feet delivered then. Sixty thousand waterfowl are estimated to have died in 2020.
2020. This year, if zero acre-feet are delivered, what is that number going to look like? What is that going to mean for the fly away?

This is one duck we managed to rescue. They had an operation up there to take them back and pluck the live ones that a month later we take them to a nursery and spiff them up and release them once again. That was one small positive. Indeed, part of the bill package that Mr. BENTZ and I will be working on, we will have funding for that.

Let me go to the bottom line here. What do we have that we could be doing this year? This chart indicates the Klamath Project water, what it brings to the table. This is stored water from the 4,143 mark here down to 4,136. This is what mankind can have influence over, and actually, it can be used for a lot of things. I think a lot more of this needs to go back into agriculture and be used for the wildlife refuges as well.

Currently, the lake sits at 4,140. That is 307,000 acre-feet of available water, down to the level where you can’t control it anymore. It becomes what they call dead pool.

This is what the suckerfish need here in this zone. This is deemed by U.S. Fish and Wildlife, the additional 2 feet, 134,000 acre-feet, as the suckerfish number that they want to see.

So if we look at this total number, we still have available, between the current level and the 4,136, 173,000 acre-feet in this lake that could go right now to help keep those canals going, whatever agriculture still could use at this late date in mid-May, and go into the refuges. And it still conceives the 2 feet of surface water, 134,000 acre-feet, to the suckerfish, which is above what is really their right as the Klamath Project is designed and intended and dedicated to agriculture when it was built over 100 years ago.

So, 173,000 acre-feet above this arbitrary U.S. Fish and Wildlife number for suckerfish that we could use and put into play.

Will that happen? It is hard telling. It is probably going to take more litigation up there to back up what the Oregon courts have already ruled does belong, under the Federal law, to the growers, to the project.

Will we see water going down this A canal here, the initial canal coming out? I don’t know.

Do we see it coming through this river dam to get to these end needs? Who knows. Things have gone a different direction under this administration right now.

It is tragic. Tragic what is going to be happening to the wildlife I showed you, to agriculture, to the products that we still need.

In the interim, Mr. BENTZ mentioned that, We are going to be introducing legislation, total package of about $7 million; $40 million will help to fill in what is going to be lost to agriculture and irrigators there; $2.5 million for refuges, which will include the botulism assistance for the disease that is going to be out there for all the dead ducks that are going to happen; $2.5 million for residential wells, as some of them could be going dry if a canal and others are not recharging and replenishing the groundwater supply; for the additional 2 feet for commercial fishermen; $4 million to repair the inevitable damage that is going to happen to these canals if they don’t get wet like my wooden boat analogy; $5 million for food aid through USDA and the BIA, Pueblos, the Tribes and Tribal governments and their food aid.

Also, at this same time, the Bureau of Reclamation has an expansion and construction of a new headquarters in Klamath Falls that the growers get the bill for in order to get no water this year. We are setting aside, in this legislation, the concept that they need a new building up there to house who knows how many personnel that aren’t doing the original goal of the project.

It is probably going to take yet more litigation up there to back up what the Oregon courts have already ruled does belong, under the Federal law, to the growers, to the project.

DELETIONS OF SPONSORS FROM PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were deleted from public bills and resolutions, as follows:

H.R. 3287: Mr. LaMalfa.
The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable Raphael G. Warnock, a Senator from the State of Georgia.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Eternal God, do not permit negativity to triumph over us. Use our Senators to remind us with their faith and works that the best is yet to be. As they remember that Your mighty power is at work in our Nation and world, may their optimism create a contagion of hope.

Lord, continue to accomplish in our lives infinitely more than we request or imagine. We exult You, for You continue to rescue us. We trust You to save us though the storms may rage.

We pray in Your glorious Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Presiding Officer led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Leahy).

The senior assistant legislative clerk read the following letter:

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule 1, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Raphael G. Warnock, a Senator from the State of Georgia, to perform the duties of the Chair.

Patrick J. Leahy, President pro tempore.

Mr. WARNOCK thereupon assumed the Chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SENATE LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, a landmark report from the International Energy Agency says countries need to move faster and more aggressively to cut planet-warming pollution.

That is from the New York Times this morning. The International Energy Agency, for the first time, is recommending specific steps to accomplish the drastic cuts in carbon emissions that nearly every developed country has pledged to achieve. One of the principal recommendations is “the rapid phase-out of gasoline-powered vehicles.”

It just so happens that this report lands on the same day that President Biden is in Michigan to celebrate the release of a new line of electric pickup trucks. As one of the best-selling cars in America, replacing gasoline pickups with electric pickups could save us huge amounts of carbon.

But we shouldn’t stop there. Transportation still accounts for roughly one-third of America’s carbon output. There is no way the United States can reduce its greenhouse gas emissions without looking out how Americans drive.

So I have put forward an ambitious, comprehensive proposal to accelerate our country’s transition to zero-emission vehicles. We call it Clean Cars for America. The goal of that plan is that by 2040, all vehicles on the road should be clean. The International Energy Agency, by the way, recommends the world reach that target by 2050. So we beat them by 10 years, if this proposal goes into effect.

My plan would help us get there 10 years ahead of time. It is one of the many reasons that President Biden put Clean Cars for America at the heart of his American Jobs Plan, something I hope and expect he will discuss today in Michigan.

I want to thank the Biden administration. They have been open to many new ideas: the American Competitiveness Innovation Act that we will be debating today and Clean Cars for America, which they have more or less adopted in whole and put into their Build Back Better plan.

The benefits would be far-reaching, far beyond the subject of climate change. For a long time, critics have been saying you can’t help the environment without hurting the economy or costing jobs. Not so, it is actually the reverse.

We negotiated the Clean Cars for America proposal with the unions, with the environmental groups, and with the auto companies, and all three are onboard. The good news is that Clean Cars for America would create tens of thousands of good-paying union jobs in battery manufacturing, construction, and auto making. Through targeted investments, it would put Americans to work all across the country building charging stations for a new fleet of electric cars. Right now, China leads the world in the electric vehicle market, overtaking us in 2015. We need to take back the initiative and create thousands upon thousands of good-paying jobs as we do.

I am very glad that the Biden administration has taken this proposal and adopted it. We worked, as I said, long and hard, for the first time on a major environmental proposal to bring our friends in the union movement onboard so that workers saw that their future—a bright future, a prosperous future—was with clean energy, that we weren’t excluding them but including them.

That is why, unlike many proposals in the past, the American proposal unites the environmental community, the labor movement, and major automakers. The Sierra Club, UAW, Ford, and GM are all supportive. Isn’t that amazing? Isn’t that great? What is it going to take to get something done in Washington, you need to build a broad and powerful coalition for support. That is what we did with Clean Cars for America. The Senate and the country should prioritize it this year.

ENDLESS FRONTIER ACT
Mr. SCHUMER. Now, on the Endless Frontier Act, last night the Senate voted to proceed with the Endless Frontier Act with a vote of 86 to 11. It is likely that today the Senate will take another step to begin debate on the bill. It is my intention to have an open, bipartisan amendment process.

The Endless Frontier Act already includes more than 20 bipartisan amendments from the Commerce Committee, under the leadership of Senator CANTWELL and Ranking Member WICKER. I will expect we will consider several more here on the floor of the Senate.

Later today, I will file a substitute amendment that pulls together more bipartisan legislation from across Senate committees into our comprehensive bill that we are now calling the U.S. Innovation and Competition Act.

In addition to Chairwoman CANTWELL and Ranking Member WICKER, I want to thank Chairman MENENDEZ and Ranking Member RISCH of Foreign Relations; Chairman BROWN and Ranking Member TOOMEY of Banking; Chairman PETERS and Ranking Member PORTMAN of HSGAC; Chairwoman MURRAY and Ranking Member BURR of HELP; and Chairman DURBIN, Ranking Member GRASSLEY, and Senator KLOBUCHAR of Judiciary.

Finally, I want to thank the bipartisan group of Senators working on the CHIPS and 5G proposals throughout the process—not only Senators CANTWELL and WICKER but Senators WARNER, KELLY, CORNYN, COTTON, LEAHY, and STABENOW.

Restoring America’s competitive edge should unite Senators from both sides of the aisle. The foundation of the past century of American prosperity has been our leadership in science, technology, and innovation. If we are going to win the next century, the United States needs to be the one discovering the next groundbreaking technology.

We need that opportunity, for instance, with tech, and we need the world because of early investments by NSF and DARPA. We have the opportunity now to set our country on a path to outinnovate, outproduce, and outcompete the world in emerging industries of the 21st century, with profound consequences for our economic and national security. If we don’t lead in science and innovation, we will fall behind. If we don’t lead in science and innovation, millions of good-paying jobs that will be available to this generation and the next one will go poof—gone. We have no choice. We have no choice.

We have always led, and now we have fallen behind. Other countries are investing more than we are. They are not as good at it as we are. They are not as innovative as we are. But if they put in the dollars and we don’t, woe is us. Woe is us.

So when you ask Americans why they are upset and they say: We are not sure about our future. We are not sure if our children will have better jobs than we will. We are not sure that our jobs will grow. This is the way to do it.

This is the way to ensure our future to a bright, sunny America, the way we have always had, but we may have lost in the last few years, at least to some extent.

I am so glad that this legislation, which we worked so hard on, has bipartisan support. It is a place where we can unite America and say we will stay No. 1, and we are giving our country, our universities, our businesses, our workers tools to do it.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION
Mr. SCHUMER. Next is the EEOC CRA. Today, the Senate will vote to overturn yet another terrible regulation approved during the final days of the Trump administration, a rule that actually makes it harder for victims of employment discrimination to get justice.

For decades, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, or EEOC, has protected employees against workplace discrimination. If a worker believes they were targeted by their employer because of their age, their sex, their religion, their disability, or any other unlawful basis—their race—the EEOC can conduct an investigation and begin a conciliation process.

Rather than force employees to sue in court, where well-heeled corporations can afford high-priced lawyers and the plaintiff almost has no chance of winning, conciliation gives the EEOC the power to fight on workers’ behalf against discriminatory behavior and win some speedy and effective results.

So, of course, the Trump administration, in another example of their callousness, another example where they talk about working people but don’t care about them and do things to help them, sort of basically almost viciously changed the rules on conciliation at the EEOC to put a large thumb down on the scale in favor of corporations and against individuals who were discriminated against or at least who allege discrimination, making it easier for corporations to slow down investigations and even retaliate against workers.

Today’s vote will use the Congressional Review Act power to immediately repeal this rule change.

At every opportunity, the Trump administration seemingly relished in making life harder for working Americans, while stacking the deck in favor of unscrupulous corporations. Now that Donald Trump is President no more—thank God, I say—we have a chance to undo this terrible rule and give workers the confidence that the Federal Government is in their corner.

COVID–19 HATE CRIMES ACT
Mr. SCHUMER. Finally, on Asian hate crimes, I am delighted the House will pass the Anti-Asian hate crimes bill today, which passed the Senate last month with overwhelming bipartisan support. Once the legislation is approved by the House, it will go directly to the President’s desk. I expect it will be signed into law later this week.

Discrimination against Asian Americans is, sadly, not a new phenomenon in our Nation’s history, but the pandemic brought old biases and prejudices back to the forefront.

This legislation will strengthen law enforcement’s ability to detect, deter, and prosecute hate crimes of all varieties, especially hate crimes involving Asian Americans. It sends a powerful message of solidarity to all our friends in the Asian American community. It is so important, so vital, so strong, and an important piece of the puzzle of how we build a better future in America.

I thank my colleagues from both Chambers, from Senators Hirono and Duckworth in the Senate to Representatives Hirono and Duckworth in the House and all those who improved the legislation through the amendment process here in the Senate.

Today, we are another step closer to making progress in the fight against racial discrimination and violence aimed at Asian Americans in recent months. The Senate can be proud it took the lead.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.
Mr. MCCONNELL. Now, Mr. President, on an entirely different matter, yesterday, the Senate took a step toward considering wide-ranging legislation that would touch on multiple parts of the U.S. economy in the name of increasing innovation and competitiveness.

A secure, productive, and innovative America that can outcompete China is something that all 100 Senators want. Of course, in a place like the Senate, you are guaranteed to find a wide variety of different ideas about the best ways to encourage that. A number of our colleagues have assembled a proposal that touches on a long list of subjects—everything from funding universities, to regional economic development, to Indo-Pacific geopolitics, to artificial intelligence, to cyber security, and beyond. Legislation this broad needs a thorough, robust, and bipartisan floor process, including a healthy series of amendment votes.

As one of my Republican colleagues on the ranking member on the Commerce Committee—explained, as he supported moving the legislation out of committee, the current draft is “not ready for prime time” yet and deserves a robust process here on the floor.

I understand this bill has come to the floor with a bipartisan understanding and the Democratic leader’s assurances that there won’t be an effort to close debate on amendments prematurely. So I look forward to the Senate’s considering these important issues, and I hope all of this interest in our competition with China will lead our Democratic friends to rethink President Biden’s intention to cut our defense spending after inflation. The single best thing we can do to stay competitive with China is to give our Armed Forces the resources they need to stay competitive with China.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, on one final matter, sometime soon, we also expect to vote on a Democratic resolution to overturn a rule put in place by the previous administration. Under Republican leadership, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission—a Washington regulator of the American job market—issued modified marching orders that increased transparency and decreased the odds of expensive lawsuits.

Several years back, one investigation found the EEOC had become very aggressive and was perpetrating a kind of legal harassment on job creators, often leaving American taxpayers on the hook for court cases which the Commission had actually lost. Taxpayers were paying to sue job creators and lose in court, so the Republicans updated their guidance. It was the first substantial update of the way the EEOC handles disputes and conciliation since 1977. It said that the employer in question deserves a written summary of the facts behind a complaint, a written explanation of the legal justification, a few other details, and 14 days to respond. Sounds pretty reasonable. This helps ensure the Commission is making an effort to see if the dispute can be settled outside of court before beginning a costly, adversarial process.

Apparently, even these modest steps were too much for my friends on the Democratic side, leaving Republican taxpayers on the hook for court cases which the Commission had actually lost.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

ENDLESS FRONTIER ACT—MOTION TO PROCEED—Resumed

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

ENDLESS FRONTIER ACT—MOTION TO PROCEED—Resumed

The Acting President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to proceed to S. 1260, which the clerk will report.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to Calendar No. 58, S. 1260, a bill to establish a new Directorate for Technology and Innovation in the National Science Foundation, to establish a regional technology hub program, to require a strategy and report on economic security, science, research, innovation, manufacturing, and job creation, to establish a critical supply chain resiliency program, and for other purposes.

The Acting President pro tempore. The Republican whip.

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS APRIL JOBS REPORT

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, Ronald Reagan once said that the nine most terrifying words in the English language are “I’m from the government, and I’m here to help.”
He was partially joking, of course, but what he was getting at is that government is not always the solution, and the government can sometimes do more harm than good, and we are definitely seeing some evidence of that right now.

On May 7, the Bureau of Labor Statistics released the April jobs report. With businesses desperate to hire and vaccinations increasing daily, the report was expected to be big, with a good chance that a million or more workers would be hired.

But that is not what happened. Just 266,000 workers were hired, despite the fact that there were 8.1 million job openings as of the end of March, and the unemployment rate ticked up.

That is right. Despite the fact that businesses are desperate to hire workers, the unemployment rate actually increased, and it turns out that we don't have the total air for one of the reasons—Democrats’ massive, partisan spending bill, which, among other things, extended the expanded unemployment benefits to September of this year, to the point where many workers are not going home because they would be going back to work.

Increasing unemployment benefits was the right thing to do early in the pandemic. Businesses were closed, workers were being forced to stay home, and the landscape was bleak. But even last year it became clear that our economy was starting to rebound.

That didn't mean it was time to eliminate all government help, but it did mean it was needed to help the worker to actual need.

But Democrats consistently rejected that line of thinking, and despite the fact that we had passed our fifth bipartisan COVID relief bill in December—brining the total amount of COVID funding the Federal Government had provided to $4 trillion—weeks later, Democrats announced that we needed another massive COVID relief bill.

Rep. BACHMANN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, over the weekend, Israeli fighter jets demolished an office building in Gaza that housed the members of Hamas, the terrorist organization dedicated to wiping Israel and its people off the map, and they are actively pursuing that mission as we speak by firing thousands of rockets and missiles indiscriminately into Israeli cities.

To minimize civilian casualties, the Israeli Defense Forces gave persons in the building 1 hour advance notice the building was coming down. Everyone evacuated safely, including, one sadly assumes, Hamas fighters. When the airstrike came, there were no reported civilian casualties.

Certain activists in the press seem to meet every Israeli airstrike against terrorists with outrage, but this one elicited even more self-righteous indignation than usual. It quickly came to light that the Associated Press and Al Jazeera both had new bureaus in that very building. The AP had lost prime real estate in the strike—real estate with a rooftop terrace. Some even lost their cameras.
The AP’s top newsmen said he was “shocked and horrified” by an airstrike that caused no casualties. He also disclaimed any knowledge of Hamas’s presence in the building, despite “actively checking.” Many other journalists and analysts of media bias charge that mainstream U.S. news organizations also mounted up on their moral high horses against Israel.

But the AP story just didn’t add up. So I asked a few basic questions in a speech right here yesterday afternoon: namely, why the Associated Press was sharing a building with Hamas in the first place? Did it knowingly allow its journalists to be used as human shields by a U.S.-designated terrorist organization? Did the AP pull its punches and decline to report for years on Hamas’s misdeeds?

One would think that these are simple and reasonable questions, but I directed them to a media organization. So the other thing, yes, it’s called a station, expressing more outrage at my audacity to question AP’s leadership than they do at Hamas for trying to kill Jews by the thousands.

Keith Obermann called me an “anti-Semitic fascist.” One Slate reporter wrote that I was making “deranged insinuations” and going to “bat against civilians in a war-zone,” even though no civilians had been harmed in this airstrike.

The consternation of their criticism was that I was attacking the brave reporters of the Associated Press’s Gaza bureau. My claims were baseless, reckless, “without evidence,” they claimed. But, in fact, there is plenty of evidence that some media outlet station in Gaza allowed themselves to be used as pawns by Hamas.

According to an article from the Atlantic magazine in 2014, written by none other than a for-rent-outlet station report, a former Associated Press reporter, the AP had abundant reason to suspect Hamas’s presence years before the IDF informed them by telephone last weekend. According to the article, Hamas fighters burst into the Gaza bureau during a previous conflict and threatened the staff. Hamas also launched missiles right outside the AP’s office. In each case, somehow the intrepid reporters of the Associated Press’s Gaza bureau didn’t even report these incidents.

The AP instead turned a blind eye to terrorism and embraced a culture of silence on behalf of murderers who actively endangered its own reporters and discussed them as if they were safe. The AP continued to locate their offices in a building they knew was dangerous. The AP had been in that building for 15 years. Hamas fighters had threatened AP staff and its offices and had launched missiles right outside on the street. In 15 years did no one ever say: Gosh, I wonder why Hamas keeps running around our office building? Did no one in AP’s leadership think: You know, maybe we should move our people to a safer building in a better neighborhood?

Under the circumstances, I am not sure what is worse, that the AP knew they shared their building with Hamas or that they didn’t know.

Instead of uncovering the truth, the AP concealed it. Then, when the IDF carried out its fully justified and wholly appropriate airstrike, the AP condemned Hamas, instead of giving credit to their neighbors from Hamas.

Now, one would think that this episode might result in some soul-searching. The AP’s leadership might see it as a humbling moment, instead of an opportunity to self-aggrandize and play the victim. But the AP’s willingness to double down on their Hamas apologism raises yet again, some more uncomfortable questions. Would the AP allow its reporters to share a building with al-Qaeda? What about ISIS? Because there are little differences between these U.S.-designated terrorist organizations and Hamas.

Some prestigious news outlets have fallen pretty far from the heights they once occupied. Being a reporter, and, certainly, a war correspondent, can be honorable work. Great men and women, including Winston Churchill, have dedicated themselves to the profession. But Hamas fighters have gone to the frontlines and reported on some of the deadliest conflicts in human history with courage, commitment to truth, and patriotism.

During the Second World War, for example, a great American named Ernie Pyle marched alongside GIs in North Africa, Italy, Normandy, and the Pacific, reporting right up until the moment he was killed by Japanese machine-gun fire. He did some of his very best work for none other than the Associated Press.

Ernie Pyle was the farthest thing from an old press hack. He described the fighting up close and advocated for better pay and conditions for the troops. He championed the soldiers when they were wrong, but he never forgot whose side he was on, and he never gave up his commitment to telling the stories of normal people and the hard-working troops on the front-line.

Before America’s entrance into the war, Pyle reported from the streets of London during the Blitz, recounting the terrifying scenes for readers back home in the States. He told the story of a resolute people under siege and forced into bombshell shelters by an indiscriminate and evil attacker—a people unbent and unbroken by terror, dedicated to victory, no matter the adversity.

We often learn from reporting like that, but you may not read it these days in the Associated Press. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, on another matter, I have heard from a large number of Iowans convinced that our Republic is effectively lost with the election of President Biden. This seems to be like the Flight 93 election theory in the 2016 election, where some conservatives felt that, if Clinton won, the country would never happen again.

When there is a shortage of oil, then biofuels can be an easy substitute that can be subbed in, but again, government redtape is getting in the way.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. I yield the floor.

be lost for good. So, like the Flight 93 passengers who rushed the cockpit in a last-ditch attempt to avert a catastrophic outcome that probably would have hit this Capitol Building, they argued that any alternative to Clinton was just as bad.

The left, then, felt the same way after Trump won. When President Trump was elected, I received an outpouring of messages expressing a truly startling degree of fear and anguish. It is as if we had just elected an evil King or dictator.

Understanding human nature, the Framers of our Constitution set up a system of separation of powers, knowing it was too safe to just treat the character of individual public officials. The President is supposed to, as the Constitution said, “see that the laws be faithfully executed,” not to be some all-powerful, elected King.

The American Presidency shouldn’t be and was never supposed to be so important or so powerful that Americans ought to feel that their entire future is at stake every 4 years. Yet many Americans do feel that way, and it isn’t just a misunderstanding.

Presidential power has grown beyond its proper bounds intended by the Constitution. Why is that? That “Why is it?" lies right here with the Congress of the United States because, over time, Congress has delegated too much authority piece by piece, in countless bills, and failed to this very day to do much to take back that authority.

During the Trump administration, I worked to reclaim some delegated powers over tariffs, emergency declarations, and regulations but lacked sufficient bipartisan support to get the job done. I have no illusions that a Democratic Congress will limit President Biden’s powers, but perhaps we could agree to hold those powers for Congress with some future effective date.

So much focus on one person, whether it is a Republican or a Democrat, and one election every 4 years, like we worried for people are still worrying about 2020—that is not a healthy environment for a democracy. Restoring the proper balance between the Presidency and the Congress can help restore some balance to our fiscal discourse.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

S. 1260

Mr. SASSÉ. Mr. President, Winston Churchill is often credited with the apocryphal quote that “we sleep soundly in our beds because rough men stand ready in the night to visit violence on those who would do us harm.”

This is still true, but the 21st century has gotten more complicated. We live in an era of hybrid wars. There are fewer D-days on enemy beaches and more zero-day exploits in enemy servers.

Americans sleep soundly at night because, in addition to these tough men, there is also a misunderstanding that work around the clock to develop national security technology that defends our interests and undermines our enemies. DARPA—the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency—is on the frontlines of that work. They are racing against others.

Our technology struggle against the Chinese Communist Party is the defining national security challenge of our time. Chairman Xi and his technocratic-authoritarian regime are fundamentally opposed to not just American values but American interests all around the globe.

Our citizens watching this Chamber on most days might think that most of their political leaders are content to ignore this reality, but I assure my colleagues in this Chamber that the CCP is not asleep at the switch.

Beijing is aggressively investing in machine learning and artificial intelligence and in quantum computing. They are racing and handling America’s research and America’s intellectual property. The Chinese Communist Party is on a mission, and they make no attempt to hide it. They want to become the world’s preeminent superpower, and they think that by claiming first-mover advantage in the cyber domain, they can achieve this. We can’t let that happen.

My amendment to today’s legislation is simple: It doubles DARPA’s budget, $3.5 billion to $7 billion a year for each of the next 5 years. The work of the National Science Foundation is important as well, and I support that work. I support that research. But the NSF’s research is broad. DARPA’s research is directly apposite to our national security challenges.

Cutting-edge, classified tech development is in DARPA’s DNA. When we talk about identifying and disrupting the CCP’s AI-enabled cyber and information campaigns, we want DARPA to be leading that work. When we talk about developing new technological tools to push back on the CCP’s cyber warfare, we want DARPA to be leading that work.

If we want American democracy to outlast Chinese technocratic-authoritarianism, we can make this investment. Doubling DARPA’s budget is a cost-effective investment that bolsters that work, and it bolsters the work of the Endless Frontier legislation we are debating this week, and I encourage all of my colleagues to support this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. LUJAN). The Senator from Florida.

Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, a year ago Saturday, the previous administration, the Trump administration, launched something called Operation Warp Speed. At that time, it was a $10 billion program by the government, and it was designed to incentivize pharmaceutical companies to invest in developing, researching, and producing effective treatments and a vaccine for a disease that was ravaging and continues to ravage the world today.

Less than 4 months later, a new antibody treatment was beginning to save American lives and improving the outlook of patients here in America. And less than 7 months after that Operation Warp Speed program began, Americans began receiving the first dose of two different and highly effective vaccines.

Why did the government have to step in? Why did the government have to provide the money? Wouldn’t the market have solved this? There was certainly a demand. There was certainly a need for it. In fact, I would argue that probably we would have had whatever it took to get their hands on a vaccine and on new treatments given the level of desperation that existed in May of last year here and around the world.

Yes, the market would have eventually developed the antivirals, would have developed the antibody treatments, and would have developed the vaccine. The market would have eventually done it without the government stepping in, in this dramatic way. But it wouldn’t have done it in the timing that we needed it. We needed it right away. Our economy was shut down. Children were not going to school. Workers had no job. Small businesses were being wiped out. Hospitals were being overrun, and people were dying.

We were facing a global crisis and a national emergency. It was a moment that required urgent attention and the fastest results possible. So it is not the case that the government was stepping in some apocryphal way. It was a matter of common good of our country, our government partnered with the private sector to reach a targeted end, one that served the interest of our country and our people. In short, we pursued “industrial policy” and we are closer to the winter of 2020 to the very day, it was announced that life in America is, slowly but steadily, returning to normal.

I first spoke about the need for a 21st century American industrial policy well over a year before the pandemic hit. Let me tell you that for much of my adult life, much of the time I even paid attention to policy. “Industrial policy” was generally sort of a dirty phrase for me. Politically, I was raised capitalist orthodox. It is an economic faith grounded in the belief of less taxes and less government and more freedom.

I believe in less taxes and less government and more freedom, and my faith in capitalism has only grown because, unlike socialism, the market always produces the most efficient outcome and, usually, generally, invariably, the result of that is prosperity that was ravaging and continues to ravage the world today.

I first spoke about the need for a 21st century American industrial policy well over a year before the pandemic hit. Let me tell you that for much of my adult life, much of the time I even paid attention to policy. “Industrial policy” was generally sort of a dirty phrase for me. Politically, I was raised capitalist orthodox. It is an economic faith grounded in the belief of less taxes and less government and more freedom.

I believe in less taxes and less government and more freedom, and my faith in capitalism has only grown because, unlike socialism, the market always produces the most efficient outcome, and, usually, generally, inevitably, the result of that is prosperity and a better quality of life. The free market—capitalism—has eradicated more poverty than all the socialist programs in the world combined.
But the market is agnostic. It doesn’t take into account the impact that an efficient outcome, a market outcome, would have on its people. Thus the market does not take into account its national interests. It is agnostic.

We in public policy cannot be agnostic. The job of those of us who serve in the American Government is to make decisions that are in the best interests of America and the people that we serve. I believe that, generally and invariously, means supporting a vibrant system of free enterprise in which private businesses invest and innovate and produce, and government makes it easier for them to do that and gets out of the way.

But what do we do, what should we do, when the market reaches the most efficient outcome and the most efficient outcome is one that is bad for America, bad for Americans, or doesn’t meet a crisis at hand fast enough? What do we do when we face a crisis, when we must address one that has to be addressed faster than the market’s ability to do it?

This is not a hypothetical question. It describes what we faced in May of last year when the Chinese Rare Earths War Operation was announced, and it describes many of the important challenges we face today.

Over the last 20 years—maybe 25 years—the market sent American factories and other factories in other countries. This was the most efficient decision to make because workers in other countries cost less, and so it lowered labor costs and increased profits. It was the market’s decision. It was the efficient decision, but it destroyed the jobs of Americans. It shattered families. It gutted once-vibrant communities.

Major American corporations headquartered here in the United States—multinationals—have allowed China to steal our trade secrets and cheat on trade because, for them, gaining access to even a small sliver of the growing Chinese market of over a billion people led to profits. This, indeed, did create short-term profits and extravagant wealth for some, but in the process it began transforming America from a country that invents and makes everything in between to one that increasingly just buys.

It was cheaper to buy rare-earth minerals from China—it still is—than to depend on them for almost 90 percent of our medicines from China because they are nationalists. None of this is an accident. China has a plan. It has a plan to overtake America as the world’s leading economic, technological, geopolitical, diplomatic, and military power. I don’t say this to you based on some supersecret intelligence documents or an educated guess. They put it in the public record. They have written this out for everyone to see in 2015. The Chinese Communist Party laid out a plan with a title called “Made in China 2025.”

It basically is a plan to invest in and overtake us in 10 of the industries that will define the 21st century economy—biomedicine, advanced technology, air and space, artificial intelligence, quantum computing, telecommunications, 5G, rail systems, ship building. They list it all out. We are executing on all of these areas, and they are executing on a plan to carry that out, and we have been complacent and distracted.

So while China channels every element of their national power, every element of their legislation—while they channel all of it—to dominate these key industries and to do it at our expense, we assume that our position in the world will continue on its own without having to do anything to maintain it.

While China is pursuing economic and technological dominance, we find ourselves here busy canceling people, demanding the use of the right pronoun to describe people, or claiming that requiring a photo ID to vote is the return of a Jim Crow era.

We have placed ourselves on the road of decline and humiliation, headed toward a world in which a totalitarian regime—one guilty right now, as we speak, of committing genocide against the Uighur Muslims—becomes the leading power on the planet and relegating our country, America, into the status of a once great nation in decline.

We do not need to abandon capitalism and embrace socialism to take on this challenge. I believe socialism would only accelerate the damage our decisions are doing to our country. We need capitalism, but it must be a capitalism geared toward promoting the national interest and the common good, where the private market drives our economic decisions. And in those instances where the market outcome is bad for our country, in those instances in which the market’s most efficient outcome is one that is bad for our people, for our national security, for our national interests, bad for America—in those instances—what we need is targeted industrial policy to further the common good and to protect our people, our country, and our future. We need new actors, not the Chinese government, to every industry or to the one who hires the right lobbyist. No, we need an industrial policy like Operation Warp Speed, targeted to urgent national needs: policies like my Medical Manufacturing, Economic Development, and Sustainability Act, which would help bring back our ability to make medicines in this country again, including in places like Puerto Rico that need them. Even as we make these sorts of targeted industrial policy decisions, we need to make sure that we are protecting them from being stolen from us. One of the changes we need to make in the China bill that is now before the Senate is we need to have stronger protections against the research that we are funding from being stolen.

First, more of this money should be invested through agencies like DARPA, as an example, which has very good safeguards in place.

Second, we should prohibit any entity from receiving the funds called for in this bill if they receive China-based financial or in-kind support, or if they otherwise failed to disclose foreign funding in the past 10 years.

Third, we should require certification that a potential recipient of the funding has sufficient protections in place to guard against IP theft and other threats from foreign governments before they were giving them the money. It would be something if we appropriate all this money for industrial policy, we invest it, and then we see it stolen.

Fourth, we should prohibit Federal employees and contractors from participating in any foreign government talent recruitment program, and we should require Federal contractors to disclose any commercial ties they might have to the Communist Party in China.

And, fifth, we should establish a system of outbound investment screening. Even if we are successful in preventing adversarial actors from acquiring Federal research dollars or intellectual property developed by it, there is nothing to stop nationless corporations from simply buying the IP and using it to develop capacities to benefit China and hurt our interests.

This is an important moment. I think, one that will define the remainder of the century. When the book about the 21st century is written, it will have a few chapters about a lot of different things. But that book is going to have a chapter about the relationship between China and the United States and what happened, and what happened is in very many ways being decided right now.
We must ensure that our public policies are aligned to the urgent challenges of our time. Our job here is to promote the common good and to defend the national interest. By and large, that is a free enterprise, capitalist economy that will produce the innovation and investments, among all of the things necessary to make that possible.

Yet, in those instances in which a national need is urgent, in which the outcome of American market has delivered is harming our country and its long-term future, we have an obligation to act on the common good. We should not allow orthodoxy or policies that made a lot of sense in the 1980s—a very different world from today—to stand in the way of the sorts of targeted government-private partnerships needed: the kinds of partnerships that gave us a vaccine that is bringing us back to normal; the kind of partnership that will allow us to tackle the challenges we face now so that they will allow us to be an American century and so that our leadership in these key industries that will define the century is neither endangered nor lost.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT proclaims.

The Senator from Texas.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, one of the topics of discussion right now here in Washington, DC—actually, there are many different topics of discussion, but one of those is infrastructure. Depending on who you ask, you are likely to get different answers on what exactly people mean when they say the word “infrastructure.”

When I and my constituents in Texas think about infrastructure, we think about our highways and bridges. Now, those are two of the big things that come to mind. We are home to the largest network of highways in the Nation, as well as the largest number of bridges, and these structures are supporting more and more Texans by the day. It is no secret that, in the last decade, Texas has grown by nearly 4 million people—roughly the population of our neighbor to the north, Oklahoma. If we want to get all 29 million Texans and our visitors and our crucial commercial cargo around the State safely and efficiently, we need a reliable network of transportation infrastructure, and there is a lot of room for improvement over the status quo.

Every year, the American Society of Civil Engineers evaluates America’s infrastructure and issues a report card that lets us know how we are doing. Well, America is barely passing with a C-minus, it is facing only slightly better than the rest of the class with a C. There is no doubt about it—it is time for an investment in our infrastructure. Now more than ever, that investment must be made responsibly.

We just spent trillions of dollars to help the American people and our economy get through a pandemic, and our national debt is at its highest level since World War II. I have told my friends back home that this is the domestic equivalent to a world war. We didn’t ask in World War II: How much money can we spend? We needed to defeat our enemies, and we did. Then we needed to come together responsibly and figure out how to pay for it. We don’t need to quit spending altogether, but we surely must take a closer look at what is necessary and what is desirable and what is something we would like to have but that could be put off for another day. Think of the Goldilocks principle: not too hot, not too cold. In this case: not too small, not too big. We need to find the right size, and we need to agree on what that means.

The most recent highway and transit funding bill that became law was the FAST Act of 2015. That bill came in right around $300 billion. Last Congress, before the pandemic hit, it looked like we were poised to pass a bill that was 15 percent of the same size. I think we can all agree that, now, something of that size is probably too small. We need to invest in our infrastructure—repair our roads, our bridges, our airports, our levees, and other critical infrastructure that is long overdue.

The pandemic has highlighted the need to expand that definition, though; for example, to strengthen broadband and internet access. For many Americans, the daily commute to work or to this place to school have been replaced by virtual classrooms and telework. Our 21st-century economy and society depend on internet connections, and we need to do more to improve access, especially in rural areas, where the big internet companies don’t find it commercially advantageous to offer service.

Republicans and Democrats agree that, this time around, we need a larger investment in our Nation’s infrastructure. The proposal that came from President Biden is far too big. The nonpartisan Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget estimates it would cost an additional $2.65 trillion—roughly nine times the recent highway bill that became law—and that is on top of the $1.9 trillion that the Senate majority and the House and the President just passed into law purportedly for additional COVID-19 relief, although only about 10 percent of it actually funds the President’s priorities in our country. Ports and waterways, broadband, and airports, drinking and waste water, roads and waterways, broadband, and some of the most urgent infrastructure priorities in our country.

Last week, Senator CAPITO and five of our Republican colleagues met with Vice President HARRIS and President Biden to discuss a path forward. They, apparently, had a productive meeting, and the President seemed to be receptive to many of the ideas that were put forward. In this case: not too small, not too cold. In this case: not too hot, not too small, not too big.

Fortunately, Mrs. CAPITO, the Senator from West Virginia, is leading the way to find that Goldilocks just-right formula that our colleagues have outlined to President Biden and our Democratic colleagues a framework to improve our Nation’s infrastructure. The plan they have proposed comes in at $568 billion—more than we have spent in the past but far less than the President’s proposal.

When we talk about the need for bipartisan compromise, this is a great place to start. The Republican plan includes nearly $300 billion for roads and bridges—2½ times the President’s plan for all the roads and bridges in our country. It also includes $30 billion for ports and waterways, drinking and waste water, broadband, and some of the most urgent infrastructure priorities in our country.

There is an infrastructure that almost nobody wants to talk about, but thanks to Senator RON Wyden of Oregon and Senator MIKE CRASHO of Idaho, we actually had a virtual hearing on this this morning in the Senate Finance Committee to answer the taboo question that nobody really wants to talk about, which is, How do we pay for it? Mrs. CAPITO, the Senator from West Virginia, told the Senate Finance Committee hearing this morning, and I am sure some of the ideas that were put forward will begin to start to take traction and, hopefully, lead us to a way to responsibly pay for this infrastructure bill.

In the past, funding for infrastructure bills has come from the highway trust fund, but for years, it has faced severe shortfalls. To a serious degree, my constituents in Texas have footed the bill for the shortfalls. We are one of the few States, for example, that receives less than it contributes to the highway trust fund. In other words, we are a donor State. For every dollar we put into the highway trust fund, we get 95 cents back. Well, that is not the sort of treatment that is starting to get. In fact, we have a lower rate of return than every other State. If we want to have any long-term success in maintaining our roads and bridges, we have to bring this formula up to date, and it has to be equitable.

The smart spending, though, can’t stop there. We need to repurpose the mountain of unused Federal funds from the so-called COVID-19 relief bill. States are awash with cash that they, frankly, don’t know how to spend. The massive $1.9 trillion bill became law without the support of a single Republican because it was so extravagant and poorly targeted. Of note: the blue State bailout. The legislation included billions in additional dollars to State and local governments, many of which were not facing any budgetary shortfalls.

We have started to see a flurry of news stories in the past few weeks that have demonstrated exactly why we were opposed to this reckless spending. For example, California has reported a $75 billion budget surplus—a massive amount of money. Governor Newsom says this will be used to pay down past State debts, send direct checks to Californians, and add to its rainy day fund. In addition to California, you have New York, Colorado, Michigan, Minnesota. Each of these States is expected to have more than a $1 billion surplus—again, because of the massive shuffling of cash out of Washington, DC, into the States that was not targeted to COVID-19 relief.

This is exactly why we advocated against this tidal wave of funding for States that were not even operating on the red. Taxpayer dollars shouldn’t be spent to erase the debts of mismanaged States or to add to their rainy day funds. They have the ability to raise revenue themselves, so it shouldn’t be the role of the Federal government to bail out or to provide them with this huge cash cushion with their looking to try to find responsible ways to spend it.

Tens of billions of unused dollars from this legislation should be repurposed to help cover the costs of these investments without driving our national debt even higher. It is common sense, and I actually believe that there is a way to incentivize the States to use this additional cash for infrastructure purposes, whether it is through modifications and cost sharing between State and local governments. Many of those States are struggling to find a way, within the guidelines and guardrails that we have provided for COVID-19 relief, to spend it anyway, so why not spend it for infrastructure? Maybe there is a win-win there.

There are a number of ideas now on the table about how to pay for this infrastructure and I hope we can all agree that the massive tax hike that President Biden is proposing is not the answer. This would constitute the largest set of tax hikes in more than half a century, and these increases would do serious damage to our economy just as we are coming out of a pandemic-induced recession.

At a time when our economy is already on fragile footing, the tax burden on Americans would be greater than that of our biggest trading partners and competitors, and this would have far-reaching consequences for our competitiveness and our economy as a whole. After all, we know these tax hikes won’t be reflected in lower earnings for CEOs. The brunt will be borne by consumers, who will pay higher prices, and by workers, who will earn lower wages, and let’s not forget those whose jobs have disappeared entirely. We are already seeing some price hikes on some of our most used consumables: products, covering everything from cereal, to diapers, to lumber, and to cars.

This is not the time to increase taxes and drive inflation across our economy, which is, actually, a tax increase on middle-income people. We need to find responsible ways to fund an investment in our infrastructure without hurting our economy and the people we represent. Right now, it appears that bipartisan progress is being made toward that just-right-sized policy and for it to be paid for in a responsible way or, at least, that is my optimistic hope.

So I want to thank Senator CAPITO for her leadership on this effort and all those who have been working with our Democratic colleagues and the administration and encourage them to continue to work with folks on our side of the aisle so we can get this done on a timely basis.

I yield the floor.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 2:15 p.m. Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:30 p.m., recessed until 2:15 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer. (Ms. SINEMA).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic whip.

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, yesterday marked the deadline for filing personal income taxes in America. I am sure many people spent the past weekend surrounded by 1099 forms and shoe boxes full of receipts, hoping to claim a well-deserved tax refund after a year of financial stress due to the pandemic.

That is another reason why the American Rescue Plan that Congress passed earlier this year was such a major accomplishment. It included, that plan, included the largest, single-year tax cut for middle- and low-income earners in the history of the Nation. Let me repeat that. This year’s American Rescue Plan included the largest, single-year tax cut for middle- and low-income earners in America’s history.

But for a privileged few, those tax cuts are pennies compared to the deductions they enjoy every year because the Republican tax proposals like the Trump tax plan that Republicans signed into law in 2017, just 4 years ago. Over the next few years, it is estimated that more than 80 percent of the benefits from this Trump tax plan will go exclusively to the top 1 percent of American earners—the top 1 percent. It is nothing more than welfare for the wealthiest.

Perhaps the most egregious aspect of the Trump tax plan is the billions of taxpayer dollars it will give to the world’s wealthiest individuals and corporations over the next decade. We are already feeling the devastating impact this corporate giveaway has had on America’s economy.

Listen to this now, if you just turned in your taxes. Last year, 55 of the largest companies in America paid zero—zero dollars in Federal taxes despite making more than $80 billion in profits. Forty billion dollars in profits; zero taxes. It is a glaring example of the imbalance in our tax system.

I don’t think there is any rational explanation for having schoolteachers and janitors pay more in taxes than the largest, single-year tax cut for middle- and low-income people. We need to put some money in our infrastructure. That photo tells it all. A bridge that is dangerous. It can happen and will continue to happen unless we do our part. That is not just bad policy; it is outrageous.

I guess this is the picture that I brought to show what was happening with this bridge in Tennessee. You can see the crack in the steel girders there and the reason they closed the bridge. God forbid some other bridge is in that same shape and we haven’t discovered it or we won’t discover it soon enough. We need to put some money in our infrastructure. We count on it every day. People rely on the safety of these bridges and roads to get to and from work and to send their kids to school. It is our job to make sure they are kept up. That is not just bad policy, saying no tax increases for corporations if it means paying for infrastructure that way; it is dangerous.

Take a look at what happens when we fail to adequately invest in our infrastructure. That photo tells it all. A "structural crack" they called it. That was found in a bridge in Memphis, TN, last week. Tens of thousands of vehicles drive over that bridge every day. It connects commuters and commercial traffic between Arkansas and Tennessee. If not for a scrupulous engineer who caught the crack, local authorities said it would have led to a “catastrophic” result. Luckily, the catastrophe was averted.

But now the people of Memphis and across America have a different problem. Repairs take time. That means the economic damage caused by the bridge’s closure is going to last for months. And it means that shipping and transportation networks will have to reroute for the foreseeable future.
So it has a national impact on the economy.

Is this what we have come to in terms of infrastructure in America?
Are we supposed to accept bridges hanging by a thread?

This closure happened the same week that cyber criminals shut down one of the largest petroleum pipelines in the United States. Did you see the newscast? Did you see the lines of people and their panicked buying? They didn’t know if the infrastructure that get to get to work, to get the kids to school, or in emergencies, so they went and and filled their tanks, and we had a real mess on our hands. We saw the chaos that was created by that ransomware attack. The situation was bad in people actually filling—and this is dangerous—plastic bags with gasoline.

While it may have been a bridge in Memphis or a pipeline on the east coast last week, what is next?

According to the American Society of Civil Engineers, 43 percent of our public roadways are in poor or mediocre condition. Maybe that just means potholes and banging up your car or slowing down the traffic, but it could be worse.

All of these signs point to the same conclusion: We are living on borrowed funds from a previous generation. We are using infrastructure that they paid for because we don’t want to create our own infrastructure.

Cutting corners is simply not an option. That is exactly where we are going. The Senator from NOMINATION OF KRISTEN M. CLARKE

Mr. LEE. Madam President, I rise today to oppose the nomination of Kristen Clarke to be the Assistant Atorney General for the Civil Rights Division.

As I have said multiple times, I am not here to call into question Ms.
Clarke’s motives, nor am I here to call into question whether she is a good person. In fact, I am willing to assume and even concede, for purposes of our conversation today, that she is a good person and that her motives are good.
It is not my job as a Member of the Senate to go beyond that, but I do have some very serious concerns reflected in

If we want to rebuild America, we need to invest in America. To do that, we need the wealthiest Americans and massive corporations to step up and pay their fair share.

If you think you paid your fair share or more yesterday, how about the corporations that paid zero on $40 billion of profit?

President Biden understands this.
That is why he has proposed the American Jobs Plan. It is going to grow our economy by putting millions of people work rebuilding roads and bridges, like the Hernando de Soto Bridge. And it would make our crucial infrastructure more resilient to 21st-century threats like ransomware and cyber criminals.

President Biden also has a plan to pay for these investments, unlike the Trump tax plan. To start, the President’s plan would raise hundreds of bil-ions of dollars by holding tax cheats accountable androlling back the tax breaks that encourage corporations to ship jobs overseas.

This is something that boils my blood. Here is a corporation—and many of these headquartered in my State—doing well, making a handsome profit, and expanding their business.
They sit down with their counsel, lawyers, and come up with a brandnew idea: Well, let’s just move our headquarters out of the United States, down the State of Illinois, and put it in some foreign country. Think of how much we will save by not paying our shares of taxes in the United States.
We get all the benefits in this country.
We use its infrastructure. We locate here. We actually live here. But we take a post office box in some faraway place and skip paying taxes to America.

What a grand idea that is for some.
For me, it is just deception and fraud.

The only people who would see their taxes increase under President Biden’s proposals are those making over $100,000 a year. Now, if you are making $100,000 a year and you are sick and tired of DELAHUNT’s speech, get up and leave at this point. But if you are making under $400,000 a year, stick around because President Biden has made sure these tax increases will not affect you.

Let me put it another way. We can fund President Biden’s infrastructure plan without raising a single tax on actual working families in America. How about that? Frankly, it is about time we balance the scales of our tax sys-

DURING THE PANDEMIC, HOW DID THE RICHEST 1 PERCENT OF AMERICANS DO?

Mr. LEE. Madam President, I rise today to oppose the nomination of Kristen Clarke to be the Assistant Atorney General for the Civil Rights Division.

As I have said multiple times, I am not here to call into question Ms.
Clarke’s motives, nor am I here to call into question whether she is a good person. In fact, I am willing to assume and even concede, for purposes of our conversation today, that she is a good person and that her motives are good.
It is not my job as a Member of the Senate to go beyond that, but I do have some very serious concerns reflected in
Ms. Clarke’s record, concerns that, regrettably, she has failed to rebut. First, given the importance of the Civil Rights Division to the enforcement of our Nation’s anti-discrimination laws, I am concerned about past instances in which she has publicly pushed the Department of Justice to not pursue egregious instances of voter intimidation.

Ms. Clarke criticized the Department of Justice’s decision to prosecute Ike Brown for voter intimidation and suppression. As a reminder, in that case, the case involving Ike Brown, a Mississippi Democratic official engaged in rampant vote manipulation and absentee ballot fraud.

Rather than praising the Justice Department’s successful prosecution of the case, she criticized the decision, stating that some of the claims were “weak.” When asked to point-blank whether she considered DOJ’s decision to prosecute two members of the New Black Panther Party to be, by the way, showed up to a polling place wielding a billy club, she demurred, saying:

I believe the leadership of the Justice Department is progressive to bring the cases that it deemed appropriate to bring.

Well, that is a completely nonresponsive answer. It is a little like saying Congress has the prerogative to pass the legislation that it deems appropriate to pass.

In short, Ms. Clarke was unwilling to decry outrageous voter suppression and intimidation when Democrats were implicated. She showed no corresponding hesitancy in challenging commonsense election security laws, like voter identification requirements, passed by Republican State legislatures.

Indeed, she has frequently challenged State election laws attempting to paint ballot security measures as categorically racially discriminatory, which raises the question: Does Ms. Clarke, in fact, oppose all voter intimidation or just voter intimidation against certain groups? When the position the Department is applying for involves being the head of the Civil Rights Division at the U.S. Department of Justice—the very division that is responsible for overseeing voter rights laws—that is not a question that you want to have to ask.

Second, Ms. Clarke has shown a troubling disregard toward certain constitutional rights. A few years ago, she decreed the Trump administration’s creation of a Religious Liberty Task Force, saying that the goal was “to make it easier for people to use religion to mask their discriminatory goals. Shameful.”

I would remind Ms. Clarke that the very first purpose of the Bill of Rights safeguards the very religious freedoms that she accuses of “masking discriminatory goals.”

Again, late last year, Ms. Clarke attacked the Supreme Court’s decision to publicly Roman Catholic Diocese v. Cuomo, saying the Court’s ruling wrongly privileged “religious freedom above all else.”

Now, by way of reference here, just to set the context straight, that decision in the Supreme Court’s ruling in Roman Catholic Diocese v. Cuomo simply stated that commonsense proposition—one that is, in my view, unremarkable—that the government must treat mosques and synagogues and churches the same way that it treats liquor stores and acupuncture clinics.

Statements like these give religious Americans like myself pause. Why is it that Ms. Clarke will defend the civil rights, including the religious rights of all Americans, not just those with whom she happens to agree?

Finally, I am worried about Ms. Clarke’s failure adequately to address her troubling history of inflammatory statements and irresponsible activism. In college, she wrote an article stating that “Melanin endows Blacks with greater mental, physical, and spiritual abilities—something which cannot be measured based on Eurocentric standards.”

She showed up to a polling place wielding a billy club, she demurred, saying: I believe the leadership of the Justice Department is progressive to bring the cases that it deemed appropriate to bring.

In college, she wrote an article stating that “Melanin endows Blacks with greater mental, physical, and spiritual abilities—something which cannot be measured based on Eurocentric standards.”

Not surprisingly, she was asked about this at the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing. And when she was asked about it at her hearing, she claimed to want to remain nonresponsive. But at no point—not during the hearing, not in connection with followup questions for the record—did Ms. Clarke ever acknowledge the obvious: that these statements were unacceptable, regardless of whether she intended them to be satirical.

Likewise, rather than express regret for her decision to participate and assist in a conference defending cop killers and domestic terrorists in law school, she merely said that she “provided logistical support.” That contradicts the statements made by numerous speakers at the conference who personally thanked her for her efforts.

In preparation for that same conference, Ms. Clarke advocated for an article entitled “Mumia Lynn Law, and Imperialism” be included in the conference newspaper and discussed in connection with one of the panels.

That article contains some of the most inflammatory anti-police rhetoric I have ever seen. Here is a quote from it, an actual quote: “The Klan is now the Police, with Blue uniforms replacing the sheets and hoods. The corrupt racist Judges, are petty Klan administrators.” When pressed about her promotion of this article in her questions for the record before the Judiciary Committee, Ms. Clarke stated that she “had no independent recollection of that email.”

Now, once again, we have here a complete nonanswer. Ms. Clarke declined to explain, much less take responsibility for, associating herself with extraordinarily dangerous rhetoric.

Moreover, if Ms. Clarke were to be confirmed, she would be responsible for overseeing pattern and practice investigations of law enforcement agencies, which makes her unexplained, inexcusable involvement with anti-law enforcement activities all the more troubling.

I would also point out that the article’s author, Amiri Baraka, was—for Professor Martin Monk—formerly anti-Semitic. On one occasion, he wrote, in reference to Jews, that he had “the extermination blues.” So, again, we have Ms. Clarke casually associating herself with a virulently anti-Semitic thinker.

I also relied on the record that she had served on the editorial staff of a college journal with Amiri Baraka. But a simple Google search of “Kristen Clarke” and “Amiri Baraka” shows that when she was an assistant editor of that journal, Amiri Baraka was a contributing editor. Her denial of this easily verifiable fact is hard to understand.

Now, let’s be perfectly clear. I don’t bring any of this up to suggest that all of it unforgivable. Everyone has, from time to time, said or done things that they later come to regret, but let’s keep in mind what we are looking at here. Ms. Clarke, herself, is asking us to apply a very different standard for herself than she has applied to others—a different standard, in many ways, than she has asked be applied to others.

In 2019, her name appeared on a letter sent by the Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights, where she sat on the board of directors of that organization, opposing the nomination of a lawyer named Ryan Bounds, who had been nominated to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. That letter stated that, “[w]hile [Bounds] recently apologized for those comments”—comments that had come up in connection with his confirmation proceedings—“the timing of that apology suggests it is one of convenience rather than remorse, offered in a last-ditch effort to salvage his nomination.”

In her hearing testimony, Ms. Clarke provided no explanation for why we should overlook her extraordinarily controversial activities and statements while she was a student. Rather, she attempted to minimize or, in some cases, even evade her actions.

Ms. Clarke’s history of irresponsible actions and words didn’t end with law school. In 2019, she signed a letter deploring “unfair” treatment of former Ambassador to Libya, a woman who stated that “white Jews” “uphold white supremacy” and associated herself with Louis Farrakhan.

When pressed on this point, she gave no explanation for her statement of support, other than the论证 that the letter “denounce[d] . . . antisemitism.”

Now, I am confused. How can a letter defending a woman accused of making anti-Semitic statements actually be a condemnation of anti-Semitism? Either anti-Semitism or it is not. You can’t have your cake and eat it too. The way I read that letter, I don’t see the letter as saying, yes, Justice. The Senate should work expeditiously to consider and confirm these nominees. We have already confirmed Attorney General Merrick Garland, Deputy Attorney General Lisa Monaco, and Associate Attorney General Vanita Gupta. The next one in the order of the administration’s priority on hiring in the Department of Justice is Kristen Clarke. President Biden has nominated her to lead the Justice Department’s Civil Rights Division.

Ms. Clarke is the right person to reestablish the Civil Rights Division. Under the previous President, the former Attorneys General Sessions and Barr, that Division was warped into a target and a tool to discriminate against marginalized Americans. During that previous administration, the Division rescinded guidance that strengthened protections for transgender students. They prohibited the use of consent decrees with local police departments that engaged in systemic misconduct. And they abandoned the principle of defending Americans’ right to vote. Now we have an opportunity for a course correction in the Civil Rights Division by confirming a proven civil rights leader to head that Division.

As a former trial attorney in the Division’s Voting Section and as a prosecutor in its Criminal Section, Ms. Clarke has clearly played in the big leagues. She personally understands the role that the Division’s line attorneys play in defending Americans’ right to vote. Now we have an opportunity for a course correction in the Civil Rights Division by confirming a proven civil rights leader to head that Division.

Ms. Clarke knows that these career attorneys must be independent from political pressure in order to carry out the mission to defend the civil rights of all Americans, and her diverse background as a legal expert will serve her well.

As the former director of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund’s voting rights group, Ms. Clarke confronted assaults on voting rights and ballot access, like those we are seeing in States across the nation today. As the chief of the New York Attorney General’s Civil Rights Bureau, she helped establish the Office of Religious Rights Initiative, defending the First Amendment rights of workers throughout the State. Ms. Clarke has clearly played in the big leagues. She personally understands the role that the Division’s line attorneys play in defending Americans’ right to vote. Now we have an opportunity for a course correction in the Civil Rights Division by confirming a proven civil rights leader to head that Division.

In each of these roles throughout her history as a professional prosecutor at the highest levels in the United States of America, Ms. Clarke has earned the respect and trust of members of law enforcement, reflected in their strong support for her nomination.

Ms. Clarke’s critics would come to stand them. They would have us believe that she has this mystical power to take people in law enforcement and delude them because secretly she is a radical, a Socialist radical. Not true. The partnership she has had with law enforcement began when she prosecuted hate crimes in the Civil Rights Division, and it continues to this day through her work on the Lawyers’ Committee James Byrd Jr. Center to Stop Hate. This center is comprised of organizations that serve as a guide to police departments to better identify, investigate, prosecute, and report hate crimes.

In each of these roles throughout her history as a professional prosecutor at the highest levels in the United States of America, Ms. Clarke has earned the respect and trust of members of law enforcement, reflected in their strong support for her nomination.

Ms. Clarke is the right person to redefine the work that the Civil Rights Division does. She has the support of Women in Law Enforcement; the Hispanic American Police Command Officers Association; over 50 prominent police chiefs and sheriffs; and Sheriff David Mahoney, who just this month stepped down as president of the National Sheriffs’ Association.

She has the support of Women in Law Enforcement; the Hispanic American Police Command Officers Association; over 50 prominent police chiefs and sheriffs; and Sheriff David Mahoney, who just this month stepped down as president of the National Sheriffs’ Association.

Well, it is not true. And it is not true, and they know it. I think the Senators on the other side of the aisle should know it as well.
Ms. Clarke has the support of a bipartisan group of former Justice Department officials who wrote to the committee and said: “Ms. Clarke’s experience, in addition to her high character, make her a superior choice to lead” the Civil Rights Division. People who worked with her have endorsed her for promotion.

Although Ms. Clarke’s record demonstrates that she has devoted her life to advancing the civil rights of all Americans, in recent weeks, she has been subject to an incredible amount of baseless, vitriolic attacks. I don’t understand what is going on around here sometimes when I look at these nominations and wonder how people like her—Kristen Clarke, Vanita Gupta, and others—really engage people on the other side of the aisle, to the point where organizations are making concerted efforts to really twist and distort their life’s work, their values, and the talents that they bring.

Like these attacks that was just made again on the floor of the Senate. The attack is that she personally defended Mumia Abu-Jamal, who was convicted in 1982 of the murder of a Philadelphia police officer named Daniel Faulkner.

The attack is missing one key point. Ms. Clarke never—never—worked on the Abu-Jamal case. You wouldn’t know that from the charges made.

But perhaps the most vicious attack against her is the false accusation of anti-Semitism.

Now, I am not Jewish, and the Senator who suggested that she was anti-Semitic in some of the things that she had said and done is not Jewish either, but those who are of the Jewish faith have considered the charges made against her. Let me tell you what they found.

They found these accusations couldn’t be further from the truth. Ms. Clarke has spent much of her career defending the rights of Jewish Americans.

At the New York State attorney general’s office, she repeatedly defended Jewish employees’ right to observe the Sabbath in the workplace.

Does that sound like someone who is negative on the issue of freedom of religion or anti-Semitic?

She has also been at the forefront of confronting the growth of anti-Semitic hate on-line, and has taken on the task of working with the Lawyers’ Committee for instance, she helped shut down a virulent White Supremacist and anti-Semitic website called Stormfront.

Several Jewish groups have emphatically denounced the baseless attacks, which continue to be made, even to this day, against this woman.

Notably, the Union for Reform Judaism, the Nation’s largest Jewish denomination, last week to the Judiciary Committee to voice unwavering support for Ms. Clarke’s nomination.

Let me tell you what they said.

“We’ve heard the voices who have hurled accusations of antisemitism at Ms. Clarke, and we reject them. They do not comport with the career and record of the committee we have worked with throughout her career.”

These attempts to smear Ms. Clarke’s record are a last-ditch effort to discredit a nominee with exemplary qualifications.

The bottom line is this: Ms. Clarke is the right person to lead the Civil Rights Division. It is a difficult assignment. At any time in our history, it is difficult, but those who are of the Jewish faith and who are Semitic in some of the things that she has done, would know that from the charges made.

I look forward to supporting her nomination on the floor, as we continue this process, and I urge all of my colleagues to vote to discharge her nomination from this committee and ultimately confirm her to this critical position at the Justice Department.

My assignment on the Senate Judiciary Committee is a challenging one. The committee is evenly divided 11 to 11. There are some of the fiercest and strongest partisans from the other side of the aisle as part of this committee structure.

I marvel sometimes at things that are said in the committee. When I look at the evidence—certainly when it comes to Ms. Clarke, her actual life, her career, her experience, and what she has done—it belies some of the baseless criticism that is made.

I just wonder, What is it about this woman that drives some Members into a rage? I have met her. I have heard her questioned in the committee. I believe she has proven throughout her life that she is the right person to move up into this critical position at this moment in history.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

LOUISIANA

Mr. CASSIDY, Madam President, I rise today to bring attention to an ongoing situation in South Louisiana.

Heavy rains are hammering our communities. A state of emergency exists across the area, with more rain expected today.

It has been a difficult 2 years, pandemic aside. Eight months ago, Lake Charles was devastated by Hurricanes Delta and Laura, one of the few times in history in which a hurricane followed upon a hurricane, almost identically tracking.

Yesterday areas got anywhere from 8 to 15 inches of rain in 12 hours. It was heartbreaking to see Lake Charles hit again by natural disaster.

And this is 18 to 15 inches in 12 hours, and there you can see the impact of cars flooded up almost to their window. There is a home in the background, and you can see where the water level is relative to that home.

And here we have another example of vehicles flooded, to give you an idea of how much rain occurred in a short period of time.

Now, other floods and disasters in parts of the country—often floods and disasters in parts of the country, other times by hurricanes and storms, get overlooked. I am here to make the case not to overlook. We cannot ignore the pain and destruction left in the wake of these storms.

Overnight, 80 people were rescued from flash flooding in Lake Charles. On top of the rain and submerged roads, there were warnings for possible tornadoes, prompting shelter-in-place precautions.

I heard from constituents that students were kept in schools until late into the night.

Now, it is not just Lake Charles; Baton Rouge flooded as well. In Baton Rouge, more than 250 people were rescued after the city got a deluge of over 13 inches of rain on Monday night.

And this is Baton Rouge—not as bad as Lake Charles in that picture, but even more people had to be rescued.

This morning, at least 15,000 homes and businesses were without power in East Baton Rouge Parish.

The number of homes and businesses flooded in Lake Charles and Baton Rouge combined is not known, but I can promise we will continue to hear distressing and saddening stories about the loss of both life and property throughout South Louisiana in the coming days.

Now, through firsthand accounts, social media posts, and local news coverage, we have already heard emotional stories in Lake Charles, a resident and her newborn had to swim to safety as water levels rose. In Baton Rouge, a body was found submerged in a vehicle that had gone into a canal.

Water rescues and emergency evacuations have been underway for the last 24 hours, but Americans are at our best when we help those in need, and folks in Louisiana are resilient.

So I give thanks to all the brave men and women of local fire and police departments for their work in saving lives. We will get through this together.

When I was in Lake Charles after the last hurricane, Hurricane Delta, I picked up a bracelet that read “Lake Charles Strong.” We are Lake Charles Strong, we are Baton Rouge Strong; we are Louisiana Strong.

While some outside of our State have already forgotten about the natural disasters of 2020, Louisiana has not. Many have yet to return to their homes.

Just 2 weeks ago, President Biden visited Lake Charles, talking about infrastructure in front of the Calcasieu...
River Bridge. Well, when I met him, I raised the issue of a disaster relief package.

Our State was hit by hurricanes and winter storms, as well as the pandemic. A record five main storms made landfall in our State. The strongest was Laura, a category 4 hurricane, hitting Lake Charles, followed by Hurricane Delta, a category 2, just a month later.

Louisiana farmers were also hit with catastrophic damage to livestock, crops, and structures during unprecedented winter storms.

We need a disaster supplemental legislation to help local officials struggling to recover. We cannot afford to allow the impact of an entire year's worth of natural disasters to go unaddressed.

Our best line of defense for these natural disasters is coastal resiliency, which in our State is funded through what is called GOMESA. That is revenue from offshore oil and gas development.

And folks wonder why I fight so hard to preserve that funding for GOMESA. GOMESA allows Louisiana to rebuild our coastline so if there is a hurricane coming onshore, there is the resiliency from a coastline which is built out with wetlands to absorb the strength of that hurricane.

We need to preserve GOMESA to continue having dollars flow not just to Louisiana but to other Gulf Coast States to protect against natural disasters.

It will be raining today and maybe longer but to those—oh, one more thing to mention.

There is a portion of the President—a portion of the President's infrastructure bill which has not attracted a lot of notice but which I would be happy with. It is called natural resiliency—using the natural structures of our coastlines in order to increase resiliency against water events and other events.

And in a spirit of bipartisanship, but once seeing the necessity of it, I would support that provision as I now understand it.

So for all those in South Louisiana, please stay safe, listen to local officials for further instructions.

I will continue to monitor the situation and help, as possible, with recovery efforts. My office is in contact with the White House, ensuring the full support of the Federal Government is there to help now and then to help recovery.

Our prayers are with those experiencing flooding and other hardships.

We thank the American people for their support.

I yield to the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.
aren’t enough open jobs out there. That is not the problem now. Adequate number of jobs is not the problem. The jobs are available. But if the President and Congress don’t change course, that could become a problem. If steps aren’t taken to dismantle some of the disincentives, some of these record number of available jobs we talked about are going to go away.

Let me give an example. There is a restaurant called Geordie’s in Columbus, OH. They have closed down. Geordie’s is closed down. They can’t find workers. That is the reason. The owner was quoted as saying something like: You know, COVID–19 didn’t take me down. He got the PPP loan. He kept going, and he struggled through, and he was staying open. He said: My own government has taken me down, because he can’t compete with unemployment insurance at that level.

We have lots of other businesses in Ohio. Here are some. Your Pizza Shop, Madeo’s Donatos—all in Wooster, OH—have told me that they are closing down 1 day a week or more because they are understaffed. Facing no alternative, other businesses are figuring out ways to permanently move forward with fewer employees.

This concerns me. In some cases, they tell me they are just downsizing their business. If you can’t find those 60 employees and you are the manufacturer right now, what do you do? You are running your business. You are not opening new markets, and you are closing down maybe even some existing customers because you can’t serve them. So these jobs are going. Others are figuring out ways to do it with fewer people. Again, some might say that is a good thing—using technology and using automation to displace workers. I don’t think it is a good thing. I would rather have more people working. That is what they want, too, but they can’t afford it, so they are going the automation, technology, all me, going to anything they can do to do it with fewer workers.

This is a problem, and again, Washington is creating this problem. Why would we do that? Again, I understood it and supported it when we had the COVID–19 crisis. People were losing their jobs through no fault of their own. But the opposite is happening now.

We have to change gears. We are at a crossroads. We can continue to have this economy stagnate, continue to hurt working families, or we can get people back to work and create robust and sustained economic growth.

I would take the $300 a week, by the way, and shift it to a 6-week temporary bonus of $100 a week to go to work, a work bonus. You could do that immediately even while keeping the $300 in place for a short period of time because, right away, you could help people get back to work. It would happen.

By the way, some States have decided on their own just to get rid of the $300 because they know it is not working for the small businesses; it is not working for the economy; it is not working for individuals who are not getting back to their career track, who are losing training and losing the ability to pay for childcare. They are being forced to go at work because they are, again, given this disincentive to go back.

It is working. There was a hotel, I am told, in the first State that decided to do this, which was Montana—did it yesterday where they were offering every week to hire more employees. They were looking for more employees. They were getting 1 person a week to show up; last week, 60 people—60 people—because they are not offering the $300 anymore. They are giving the money back.

The Biden administration, as you know, would like to spend a lot more money on a lot of different things—that is too many people predicting, including Democratic economists and former Secretary of Treasury Larry Summers. A lot of us on the Republican side were concerned about this. Well, it is happening. And we are seeing more and more proposals for more and more stimulus. Inflation is not what we need.

By the way, that spending of $6 trillion is about six times what the government spent during the New Deal in the 1930s, and that is inflation-adjusted. I mean, this is a lot of money. Instead of us helping to get help people back to work and encourage them and let this economy grow on its own, which it is going to do. During the COVID–19 discussion, the Congressional Budget Office—a nonpartisan group here in Washington—told us that the economy is going to recover to its pre-COVID level by mid-year if we do nothing, no more stimulus. Yet people insisted on more and more stimulus and that supplement than they would in their jobs, businesses just can’t compete.

Think how tragic this is. A small business owner works tirelessly to keep the lights on through COVID–19—again, maybe uses the PPP or otherwise and stays in business—and finally, after more than a year, reaches a point where the virus is in retreat—we are doing all the things we should be doing to protect our workers—and now they might have to close because they just can’t find people to work.

The same story is being told all over the country and certainly all over my home State of Ohio, have decided to give the $300 back. But we shouldn’t here in Washington, continue to provide that $300 to everybody else.

Governors in these States understand that encouraging workers to return to the job market is essential to the economy, but it is also good for the workforce to get back to work, get back to what happens when you go to work, is you have that sense of fulfillment, that dignity and self-respect that come with work, and you are keeping up with whatever the technological changes at work are and getting back to our career track.

Guidance from the Biden administration, the CDC, says we can move forward with getting back to normal. It is time for President Biden to follow that advice and to end the disincentive to work which is holding back the economic recovery.

These are simple steps we can take. Again, I would do a $100 bonus to go back to work for 6 weeks. But the most important thing is to end the $300 and to let people once again have the opportunity to pursue their American dream, which is not unemployment; it is getting a job. With 8.1 million jobs being offered—a historic number, the most ever—it is time to make that change.

I urge my colleagues and I urge the administration to change course.

I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

NOMINATION OF KRISTEN M. CLARKE

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I will not be voting to discharge the nominee Kristen Clarke to run the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice, so I come to the floor to explain to my colleagues why I feel this way.

While Ms. Clarke may be a very good attorney—in fact, I don’t think there is any doubt that she is—she continues the trend of politicized nominees to the Justice Department under this President. While I disagree with her strongly on some of her views, especially when it comes to defining the police, my issues with Ms. Clarke go beyond that.

The Justice Department and especially the Civil Rights Division need to be committed to impartial and equal justice. In the wrong hands, the Civil Rights Division can be used to target and harass the President’s political opponents. It can threaten law enforcement, school choice advocates, religious schools, red States, and proliferators.

This isn’t a hypothetical. Under Ms. Gupta, the Civil Rights Division defended an effort to take over Louisiana’s school choice program. Now, can you imagine that? Luckily, a group of African-American mothers stopped them in the Fifth Circuit. Just think—african Americans stopped an obvious injustice by the Justice Department.

The fact is that our civil rights laws are broad, and the mere threat of their enforcement can chill legitimate political opposition. Because of that, I think that the head of the Civil Rights Division needs to be more than a political choice. I think it needs to be a professional, one who is not committed to partisan politics.

Unfortunately, Ms. Clarke is a liberal partisan. She has opposed the enforcement of the law against Ike Brown, a Mississippi voter suppressor, either because of the color of his skin or because he was a Democrat. Neither answer is acceptable. She has disparaged religious freedom groups like the Alliance Defending Freedom. She has opposed important Supreme Court decisions protecting religious liberty, individual Supreme Court Justices, and even some of my colleagues. She has held Republican nominees to a standard she didn’t want to apply to herself.

Ms. Clarke has run away from her record. She asked her at the hearing whether Mumia Abu-Jamal, the country’s most notorious cop killer, was a political prisoner, like someone said at a conference that she helped organize. She wouldn’t answer, telling me she was unfamiliar with the case. Given her youthful activism, I find that very hard to believe. Last summer, she wrote an article in Newsweek advocating for defunding the police, but she insists the words on the page aren’t hers. I am sorry, but if it is not what she meant, then she shouldn’t have said it.

I don’t think she is the right person for this job at this time. A nominee to head the Civil Rights Division should be nonpartisan, should be independent, and should be upfront about her beliefs. Unfortunately, I think Ms. Clarke misses all three marks.

As I have said, I don’t want to return to the Eric Holder days, so I will vote no.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MARKEY). The majority leader.

MR. SCHUMER. Good afternoon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Good afternoon.

MR. SCHUMER. I am adding a little stability and friendship to these august proceedings. I hope you realize.

VOTE ON MOTION

Mr. President, I know of no further debate on the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no further debate, the question is on agreeing to the motion to proceed.

The motion was agreed to.

ENDLESS FRONTIER ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1260) to establish a new Directorate for Technology and Innovation in the National Science Foundation, to establish a regional technology hub program, to require a strategy and report on economic security, technology, and job creation, to establish a critical supply chain resiliency program, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the committee-reported substitute amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The committee-reported amendment in the nature of a substitute was withdrawn.

AMENDMENT NO. 1502

(Purpose: In the nature of a substitute.)

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I call up amendment 1502.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New York (Mr. SCHUMER) proposes an amendment numbered 1502.

(The amendment is printed in today’s Record of Proceedings and is available as Amendment 1502.)

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I am going to speak on this amendment for a minute, then we will move to the motion to discharge Kristen Clarke.

Mr. President, I have just filed a substitute amendment to the Endless Frontier Act that will pull together bipartisan legislation from across the Senate committees into a single comprehensive bill to restore America’s competitive edge.

This new bill will be called the U.S. Innovation and Competition Act, and it will include bipartisan legislation from the Foreign Relations Committee to strengthen our alliances and hold China accountable; bipartisan trade practices; bipartisan legislation from the Homeland Security committee to invest in AI, cyber security, and policies to make sure American taxpayer money is used to buy American products; bipartisan legislation from the HELP Committee to protect our research and invest in STEM; bipartisan legislation from the Judiciary Committee to bolster antitrust enforcement; bipartisan legislation from Banking to sanction predatory behavior from the Chinese Communist Party.

And, very importantly, the substitute amendment will now include a historic $52 billion investment to make sure the United States stays on the cutting edge of chip production—which is essential for this country’s economy, including our auto industry, our tech industry, and our military.

Again, this legislation will now include a historic and immediate infusion of Federal money in the semiconductor industry to boost domestic production and shore up critical supply chains.

This is a very big deal. It fits in with the concept of the Endless Frontier Act, and I am very pleased it will be in the bill.

American manufacturing has suffered rather dramatically from a chip shortage. We have all heard about auto plants in our States that are closed or operating in reduced capacity because they can’t get the chips. The shortage in our tech industry shows how vulnerable our supply chains are.

We simply cannot rely on foreign processors for chips. This amendment will make sure we don’t have to.

America invented the semiconductor chip. We are still at the cutting edge of research, but fewer than 12 percent of them are made in America. And if this bill doesn’t pass, it will go down to 6. Other countries—notably, China—will become the leaders, not just in chip manufacturing and chip production but in the many industries that depend on chips. We cannot let that happen.

The best way to do that is to add this amendment to the bill, which I have just done, and make sure it passes.

The amendment is dramatic not only in terms of chips but in terms of American investment in research, in science, and in innovation. When we invest in research and science and innovation, millions of good-paying jobs follow, and the American economy leads the world. Our failure to invest will displace us from that position and all too soon.
All told, the substitute amendment will mean that the legislation we are about to debate is the product of a half a dozen Senate committees, with input from just about every Member of the Senate. This legislation, I am proud to say, is thoroughly bipartisan, and it shows that our colleagues will work with us, we want to work together whenever we can.

Now, these policies may sound complicated, but they are propelled by a simple motivation—making sure the United States stays the global economic leader. In the 20th century, American prosperity was anchored in our unmatched capacity for innovation and invention. Researchers at American universities and laboratories fashioned marvels that changed the way we work, the way we communicate, and the way we live. American workers and businesses brought those innovations to a global market, producing the largest middle class in the world and an almost innate optimism about the future.

Here, unfortunately, in the 21st century, America is falling behind. Other countries are investing more in their economies and training their focus on beating the United States to the key technologies of the future. If we don’t step up now—not, not 2 years from now—and if we don’t step up in a big and bold way, we risk missing out on a generation of good-paying jobs, millions and millions of them. We risk ceding the mantle of global economic leadership to our adversaries. We risk losing the sunny optimism that has defined the American character for generations.

This is an issue where we can unite our country behind the goal of keeping America No. 1 in science and technology, and this bill puts us a giant step closer to keeping America one step ahead for decades to come.

PROVIDING FOR CONGRESSIONAL DISAPPROVAL UNDER CHAPTER 8 OF TITLE 5, UNITED STATES CODE, OF THE RULE SUBMITTED BY THE EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION RELATING TO “UPDATE OF COMMISSION’S CONCILIATION PROCEDURES”—Motion to Proceed

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, right now, Democrats are hard at work building back an economy that works for everyone, not just those at the top. We are committed to fighting for workers. And we have big, bold ideas to do that, like establishing national paid sick, family and medical leave policies; rebuilding our childcare infrastructure; raising the Federal minimum wage to $15 an hour; ending the wage gap; and strengthening our nation’s laws.

But after 4 years of nonstop attacks on workers’ rights, it is also critical that we undo the damage done by the Trump administration. So I am urging my colleagues to join me in voting to overturn the Trump administration rule that imposed strict limits on the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission’s ability to address workplace discrimination.

The EEOC is a critical Agency. It is responsible for holding employers accountable for following workplace discrimination laws. And when they don’t, it is one of the few places a worker can go to make sure they get a fair hearing, accountability, and justice. And in January, the Trump administration’s Republican Commissioners voted to finalize a rule that tipped the scales in favor of employers in EEOC’s process to settle discrimination cases.

That rule gave employers access to information about a worker’s case, but not the other way around. It made it easier for employers to demand the identity of victims and witnesses, increasing the risk of retaliation. And it was set to worsen the backlog of cases at the EEOC, forcing workers to wait longer for justice. Put simply, that rule was designed to make it easier for employers to delay or deny justice to workers who have experienced discrimination on the job.

We cannot accept a system that is designed to let employers get away with violating workers’ rights. So we absolutely cannot let this rule stand. Let’s overturn this rule and restore a fair settlement process for the tens of thousands of workers who file discrimination charges with the EEOC each year.

This is a small but important step in the fight to build a more fair and inclusive economy for all workers, and I believe every one of us who thinks workers deserve to do their jobs free from harassment and discrimination can support this.

Thank you.

Mr. President, I move to proceed to S.J. Res. 13.

IDAHO GOLD STAR FAMILIES MEMORIAL MONUMENT

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, along with my colleagues Senator JIM RISCH and Representative MIKE SIMPSON, I congratulate all those who worked on the completion of the Idaho Gold Star Memorial Monument to honor Idaho’s fallen servicemembers and commemorate the enormous cost of our freedoms shouldered by their families.

We commend the members of the Idaho Gold Star Families Memorial Monument Committee on their work to see this project through to completion. Bringing together the partners, volunteers, and many supporters to make the monument happen was no small undertaking. We extend a special thank you to the committee’s chairperson, Gold Star mother Rebecca Webb, for leading the establishment of the memorial. You have turned your profound sorrow for the loss of your son, MSA Christopher Webb, and the grief of all Gold Star Families, into a profound tribute to the great strength and dedication of your service-members and their families.

How great it is to reach the final stage in the transformation of a piece of Idaho into an enduring memorial. From the memorial’s large, central gold star symbolizing the great loss experienced by loved ones of fallen servicemembers, to the inherent recognition of the service of those who laid down their lives for our country, the depth of your love is clear in every thoughtful detail. You honor not only the memories of your loved ones but also the lives of the servicemembers and families who served our country before them and those who will follow in their eternal footsteps.

We are blessed to have this outstanding tribute in Idaho and to be part of the network of Gold Star memorials nationwide. You have created a beautiful place of tribute to Gold Star Families, who give far more to our country than we can ever reciprocate. The Idaho Gold Star Families Memorial stands as a lasting place for all Americans to remember fallen service-members and the great sacrifice of the families who stood with them and will always love them.

NATIONAL LUPUS AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. SCOTT of Florida. Mr. President, I rise today in recognition of National Lupus Awareness Month.

This is an important time to pause to reflect on what more we can do to solve the cruel mystery of this disease, while providing caring support to those across our Nation who suffer from its impact. I want to thank the Florida Chapter of the Lupus Federation of America for their work to raise awareness, support research, and conduct education programs so every Floridian affected by lupus can have an improved quality of life.

I also want to thank the volunteers that generously give their time throughout the year to educate and help patients with lupus, including two outstanding Floridians: Anne Bright and Denise Brown.

Anne Bright, who suffers from lupus herself, is one of the founding members of the Florida chapter and has dedicated her life to growing the organization and providing help to so many Floridians struggling with lupus. Anne leads the Butterfly Bash committee, which has raised over half a million dollars over the past decade. As a spirited lupus advocate, she touches countless lives, providing hope, resources, and comfort to those affected by lupus.

Denise Brown lost her 18-year-old daughter, Brooke, to lupus in 2017. Brooke had been diagnosed with lupus at the age of 12, and her courageous battle with lupus inspired her dreams to become a nurse. Unfortunately, Brooke never got to pursue those dreams. Denise honors Brooke’s memory every day by dedicating her life to raising awareness of lupus and its effects on people of all ages, especially children, and helping those going through the unimaginable stress and hardship of this disease.

This Lupus Awareness Month, I thank the brave and hard-working volunteers like Anne and Denise and the wonderful organizations in Florida and across the Nation working hard to improve the quality for those struggling with lupus and getting us closer to a cure.

HONORING SEAMAN SECOND CLASS HOWARD SCOTT MAGERS

Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, during Memorial Day weekend in my home community, a fleet of cars will depart a local funeral home and make the 25-mile trip to Merry Oaks United Methodist Church Cemetery in neighboring Smiths Grove, KY. This will be the final leg of a journey that began over 6,000 miles and nearly 80 years ago.

U.S. Navy Seaman 2nd Class Howard Scott Magers was one of the 429 crew members who perished aboard the USS Oklahoma on December 7, 1941. Scott was 18 years old. The tragedy of his death was made one unbearable because he was buried in a mass grave alongside those of his shipmates who were also unable to be identified.

Thankfully, beginning in 2015, new dental, anthropological, and mitochondrial DNA analyses were employed to identify those who had fallen...
But Sheriff Mahoney is perhaps best known for his efforts to expand community engagement and rebuild trust between communities of color and law enforcement. Under his leadership, the sheriff’s office partnered with the Justified Anger Coalition, a local initiative designed to address racial disparities and create opportunities for African Americans. He also served on the county’s Criminal Justice Council, which pursues reform across both the legal and penal systems.

While Sheriff Mahoney is retiring from the Dane County Sheriff’s Office, he is not retiring from his dedication to safety and security. He will continue his leadership in his new role as the director of Strategy and Support in the Protective Services Division of American Family Insurance, and he will remain a strong voice in the community’s pursuit of racial justice reform.

I am proud to honor Sheriff David Mahoney’s four decades of protecting Dane County citizens with respect and dignity, and I am grateful to call him my friend.

TRIBUTE TO MAJOR AIMEE A. MACK

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I am pleased to recognize MAJ Aimee A. Mack, U.S. Army, on the conclusion of her current assignment. Since May 2020, MAJ Mack has been serving with great distinction as the legislative liaison for the Countermeasures Acceleration Group, which was previously known as Operation Warp Speed. Throughout the development, production, and distribution of the various coronavirus vaccines, Major Mack has been an outstanding source of information for my staff and me, helping us understand a fast-moving and game-changing program that is saving millions of American lives.

I think we all need to pause and marvel at the miracle that Operation Warp Speed fostered. Today, based on the successful foundational work of Operation Warp Speed, it is extremely easy for any eligible American to receive a coronavirus vaccine. So it might be hard to remember just how far-fetched that objective seemed when Operation Warp Speed was launched during the height of the pandemic, approximately 1 year ago. At the time, many in the mainstream media doubted that a coronavirus vaccine could be produced so quickly. President Trump’s plan to make a coronavirus vaccine available by the end of 2020 was repeatedly “fact checked,” and leading political and medical figures viewed the program as either a low-odds gamble or a political stunt.

This was the very difficult information environment that Major Mack confronted when she was appointed as Operation Warp Speed’s legislative liaison in May 2020. Her role was uniquely suited for the assignment. Like all of her colleagues, she faced a high-stakes mission and had to ensure her information reached the right people.

In the months that followed, as attention shifted from the development of the vaccines to their production and delivery, Major Mack continued to provide regular and detailed updates for Members and staff. Again, I think we need to admire Operation Warp Speed’s achievement here: For the first time in history, vaccines are effectively going from conveyor belts to arms within days. Major Mack’s deep knowledge of the process and her outstanding work in sharing it with us bolstered congressional confidence in the program. To put a finer point on it, when our State health departments needed the latest information on vaccine allotments and projections, we knew who to call—MAJ Aimee Mack.

Major Mack will soon depart for Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, KS, and she will be greatly missed. I want to thank her for her exceptional service and thank her family as well—her husband, MAJ Jamaal Mack, and her children, Daunte and Alisa. I wish her every success in the future and sincerely hope we get to work with her again soon.

TRIBUTE TO LIEUTENANT COLONEL ANTHONY V. SANTINO

Ms. ERNST. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a great American and an exceptional member of the United States Air Force. On this occasion, I believe it is fitting to recognize Lt. Col. Anthony “Tony” Santino’s distinguished service and dedication to fostering the relationship between the U.S. Air Force and this Chamber.

Lieutenant Colonel Santino has distinguished himself through his professional character and leadership by this Nation’s service. A leader and expert communicator, he has provided exemplary service to our country while assigned to the Air Force Senate Liaison Office. Tony is a senior missileer, operating at the highest levels of America’s nuclear enterprise. His leadership and its allies are strategically prepared to defend this great nation from external threats.
Prior to his current assignment, Tony had the privilege of being an Air Force fellow for Representative Liz Cheney. In addition to his numerous and impressive professional accomplishments, it is worth noting he flawlessly balanced his duties, evidenced by his ability to personally write and sign over 50 letters to families of deployed personnel to selflessly volunteer as local neighborhood math tutor, where Tony’s enthusiastic service empowered DC youth and inspired community partnership. His passion for not only the organization he works for but also the community of those he serves is unrivaled.

As a legislative liaison in the Air Force Senate Liaison Office from November 2019 to May 2021, Lieutenant Colonel Santino expertly performed his duties without reservation. His strategic thinking and strategic foresight helped to strengthen and improve our national security. Tony accomplished this by utilizing his in-depth Air Force knowledge with numerous engagements between Congress and the Department of the Air Force. During this assignment, Tony conducted congressional engagements to provide Members of Congress and staff insights into the Air Force we need and Air Force required to support the national defense strategy. Tony transformed congressional engagement norms amidst coronavirus limitations, leading more than 40 remote and virtual engagements between Air Force senior leaders and U.S. Senators, exponentially increasing trust and mutual understanding.

Tony’s innovative efforts and trusted credibility on Capitol Hill enabled the passage of foundational legislation in support of Air Force priorities, securing mission inOperations and Maintenance through multiple fiscal year budgets. Following the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, Tony spearheaded bipartisan efforts to include $155 million in the budget, which supported the Air Force’s critical need to conduct flight testing. Additionally, Tony is credited with a unanimous passage of the National Defense Authorization Act of 2020, which included $1 billion in emergency supplemental funds for the Air Force’s flight operations, allowing the Air Force to concurrently support multiple programs.

Tony is eternally thankful for Tony’s selfless service and superb work with my office and the Senate over the past 18 months on issues important to the State of Iowa and the great Nation. I salute this American patriot whose selfless service has kept our country safe and strong.

REMEMBERING ERNEST EDISON WEST

- Mr. PAUL. Mr. President, Ernest Edison West not only served his country in the U.S. Army during the Korean war but embarked on a lifetime of service, consistently demonstrating courage, selflessness, and, above all, brotherhood. Orphaned at an early age, Mr. West was raised in a children’s home that stressed this important concept—value that was repeatedly put to the test. In the Korean War, when he lost an eye under intense enemy gunfire, he retreated and saved two wounded fellow soldiers and carried his injured patrol leader to safety while killing three enemy combatants. In the immediate aftermath, he had no idea that he was even wounded and that his fellow soldiers would have done the same for him.

President Dwight Eisenhower was set to award Ernest the Medal of Honor. His sense of brotherhood on full display, West initially declined, asserting that everyone was doing his duty and that all were equal to him. He reluctantly accepted the Medal of Honor and was later awarded a Purple Heart.

For more than 50 years, Mr. West’s service did not end with his enlistment. In 1954, he married Gwendolyn Stafford in a nationally televised ceremony on an episode of the CBS show “Bride and Groom.” He and Gwen moved back to Wurtland, KY, along the Ohio River in beautiful Greenup County. There, Ernest would later serve as mayor and play a huge part in creating a State veterans cemetery, where he is now buried.

Mayor West was admired for his willingness to get his hands dirty—quite literally—like digging water lines along county roads. He coached youth basketball and football and used sports to pass along his strong sense of brotherhood. How can we even measure the impact he made on all of those young lives?

Ernest Edison West, who was born in Russell, KY, on September 2, 1931, died this year on May 1, at the age of 89. While his daughter, Amy Hogsett, his many grandchildren, his great grandchildren, and the community of Wurtland, KY, are left with a powerful example of brotherhood lived out.

(1) provide the court with the comprehensive and objective information the court needs to make the most well-informed decisions and help ensure positive outcomes for children; and,
(2) take time to build meaningful and authentic relationships with such children and youth; Whereas CASA and GAL communities across the country remain committed to the recruitment and retention of volunteers who reflect the diversity of the children they serve; Whereas research shows that when a caring and consistent adult like a CASA or GAL volunteer is assigned to a case, outcomes are strengthened for children and families, a higher number of services are ordered, and children are significantly less likely to reenter the child welfare system, perform better academically and behaviorally, and have higher levels of hope; Whereas, in January 1974, Congress enacted the Child Abuse Prevention Treatment Act (42 U.S.C. § 5116 and following) to provide federal assistance to States for the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect, and includes a requirement that in every case a GAL must be appointed to represent the best interest of the child; Whereas such GAL requirement was subsequently amended to provide that the GAL may be an attorney or a court-appointed special advocate; and,

SENATE RESOLUTION 220—CALLING UPON THE UNITED STATES SENATE TO GIVE ITS ADVICE AND CONSENT TO THE RATIFICATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS CONVENTION ON THE LAW OF THE SEA

Ms. HIRONO (for herself, Ms. Murkowski, and Mr. Kaine) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. RES. 220

Whereas the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) was adopted by the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea in December 1982 and entered into force in November 1994 to establish a treaty regime to govern activities on, over, and under the world’s oceans;
Whereas the UNCLOS builds on four 1958 Law of the Sea conventions to which the United States is a party, namely the Convention on the Territorial Sea and the Contiguous Zone, the Convention on the Continental Shelf, and the Convention on Fishing and Conservation of the Living Resources of the High Seas;
Whereas the UNCLOS and an associated 1994 agreement relating to implementation of the treaty’s provisions, including those relating to the Continental Shelf and the Exclusive Economic Zones (EEZs), were transmitted to the Senate on October 6, 1994, and, in the absence of Senate advice and consent to ratification, the United States is not a party to the treaty or the associated 1994 agreement;
Whereas the treaty has been ratified by 167 parties, which includes 166 countries and the European Union, but not the United States: Whereas, like most other countries, maintains that coastal States under the UNCLOS have the right to regulate economic activities in their Exclusive Economic Zones (EEZs), but do not have the right to regulate foreign military activities in their EEZs;
Whereas the treaty’s provisions relating to navigational rights, including navigational rights in EEZs, reflect the diplomatic position of the United States on the issue dating back to the adoption of the UNCLOS in 1982;
Whereas becoming a party to the treaty would codify the United States’ current position of recognizing the provisions within the UNCLOS as customary law;
Whereas becoming a party to the treaty would give the United States standing to participate in discussions relating to the treaty and thereby enable the United States to intervene as a full party to disputes relating to navigational rights and to defend United States interpretations of the treaty’s provisions during those relating to whether coastal States have a right under the UNCLOS to regulate foreign military activities in their EEZs;
Whereas relying on customary international norms to defend United States interests in those issues is not sufficient, because customary law is not universally accepted and is subject to change over time based on state practice;
Whereas relying on other countries to assert claims on behalf of the United States at the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague is woefully insufficient to defend and uphold United States sovereign rights and interests;
Whereas the Permanent Court of Arbitration, in the July 12, 2016, ruling on the case in the Matter of the South China Sea Arbitration: The Tribunal, forward, to the Parties for their comment a Note Verbale from the Embassy of the United States of America, reiterates its statement to the Tribunal’s president of the Tribunal’s comments and the interpretation of the Tribunal’s comment to the Parties for their comment a Note Verbale from the Embassy of the United States of America, reiterates its statement to the Tribunal’s president of the Tribunal’s comments and the interpretation of the Tribunal’s comment to the Parties for their comment a Note Verbale from the Embassy of the United States of America, reiterates its statement to the Tribunal’s president of the Tribunal’s comments and the interpretation of the Tribunal’s comment to the Parties for their comment a Note Verbale from the Embassy of the United States of America, reiterates its statement to the Tribunal’s president of the Tribunal’s comments and the interpretation of the Tribunal’s comment to the Parties for their comment a Note Verbale from the Embassy of the United States of America, reiterates its statement to the Tribunal’s president of the Tribunal’s comments and the interpretation of the United States on the issue dating back to the adoption of the UNCLOS in 1982, whereas the permanent chief of naval operations, Admiral Michael Gilday, stated that “becoming a party to the Convention would reinforce freedom of the seas and the navigational rights vital to our global force posture in the world’s largest maneuver space. Joining the Convention would also demonstrate our commitment to the rule of law, and strengthen our credibility with other Convention parties”, in response to advance policy questions on July 30, 2019, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate;
Whereas the current Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Michael Gilday, further stated that “accession would allow the U.S. to portray itself as safeguarding access for the purposes of maritime traffic, resource exploitation, and other human activities, while ensuring other countries engaging with the Convention itself, in response to advance policy questions on July 30, 2019, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate;
Whereas the current Commander of the United States Indo-Pacific Command, Admiral John C. Aquilino, stated that “there’s really two main reasons [to ratify the UNCLOS] as the global situation stands today, it would be certainly beneficial if we had a seat at the table when there were discussions occurring as it applied to potential joint activities and the interpretation of international law and the second reason is it puts us in an increased position of credibility . . . we adhere to the UNCLOS treaty in our own operations, and it would make us much more stronger if we were signatories”, on March 23, 2021, at his nomination hearing before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate;
Whereas the Commander, North American Aerospace Defense Command and United States Northern Command, General Glen VanHerck, stated, “I believe the interests of the United States to accede to the UNCLOS because it gives us a better posture, a seat at the table, more credibility with our allies and partners, and potential competitors”, on March 15, 2021, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate;
Whereas the Commander, North American Aerospace Defense Command and United States Northern Command, General Glen VanHerck, stated, “I believe the interests of the United States to accede to the UNCLOS because it gives us a better posture, a seat at the table, more credibility with our allies and partners, and potential competitors”, on March 15, 2021, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; and gape”, on March 16, 2021, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the Commander, North American Aerospace Defense Command and United States Northern Command, General Tod Wolters, answered in the affirmative when questioned by Senator Cornyn about whether General Wolters supported the United States becoming a full participant to the UNCLOS, on April 15, 2015, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Commander of United States Indo-Pacific Command, Admiral Philip S. Davidson, stated that “our accession to the UNCLOS would help our position legally across the globe and would do nothing to limit our military operations in the manner in which we are conducting them” on April 17, 2018, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Commander of United States Pacific Command, Admiral Harry B. Harris, stated “I think that by not signing onto it that we lose the credibility for the very same thing that we’re arguing for”, and “which is, ‘accepting the rules’” on June 22, 2016, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; and Whereas the past Secretary of the Navy, the Honorable Ray Mabus, stated that “the UNCLOS treaty guarantees rights such as innocent passage through territorial seas; transit passage through, under and over international straits; and the laying and maintaining of submarine cables”; and “the convention has been approved by nearly every country in the world and all the permanent members of the UN Security Council, except the United States”; on February 16, 2015, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Secretary of the Navy, the Honorable Ray Mabus, further stated, “Our notable absence as a signatory weakens our position with other nations, allowing the introduction of expansive definitions of sovereignty on the high seas that undermine our ability to defend our mineral rights along our own continental shelf and in the Arctic.” and that “the Department strongly supports the accession to UNCLOS, an action consistently recommended by my predecessors.” on February 16, 2015, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Joseph F. Dunford, stated, “The Convention provides legal certainty in the world’s largest maritime domain and is the legal foundation for our ability to transit through international straits and archipelagic waters; preserve our right to transit through other countries’ Exclusive Economic Zones (EEZs) without notice or permission; reaffirm the sovereign immunity of warships; provide a framework for recognizing maritime claims; and preserve or operations and intelligence-collection activities”, and “joining the Convention gives us our commitment to the rule of law, strengthen our credibility among those nations that are already party to the Convention, and allow us to retain the competitive advantage in challenging excessive maritime claims” on July 9, 2015, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral John M. Richardson, further stated that “by remaining outside the Convention, the United States remains essentially to itself in such countries as Senegal, South Korea, North Korea, and Syria” and “by failing to join the Convention, some countries may come to doubt our commitment to act in accordance with the law” on July 9, 2015, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past President and Chief Executive Officer of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Thomas J. Donahue, stated that “we support joining the Convention because it is in our national interest—both in our national security and our economic interests”, “becoming a party to the Treaty benefits the U.S. economically by providing American companies the legal certainty and stability they need to hire and invest”, and “companies will be hesitant to take on the investment risk and cost to explore and develop the resources of the sea—particularly on the extended continental shelf (ECS)—without the legal certainty and stability access to LOS provides” on June 28, 2012, before the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate; Whereas the past President and Chief Executive Officer of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Thomas J. Donahue, further stated that “the benefits of joining cut across many important industries including telecommunications, mining, shipping, and oil and natural gas”. “Joining the Convention will provide the U.S. a critical voice on maritime issues—from mineral claims in the Arctic to the International Seabed Authority (ISA) funds are distributed”. on June 28, 2012, before the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate; Whereas the Commandant of the United States Coast Guard, retired Admiral Paul Zukunft, stated on February 12, 2016, “With the receding of the icepack, the Arctic has become the new national security interest.” “All Arctic states agree that the Law of the Sea Convention is the governing legal regime for the Arctic Ocean . . . yet, we remain the only Arctic nation that has not ratified the very instrument that provides this accepted legal framework governing the Arctic Ocean and its seabed. . . . and ‘Ratification of the Law of the Sea Convention supports our economic interests, environmental protection, and safety of life at sea, especially in the Arctic Ocean.’” on February 12, 2016, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General John M. Richardson, stated that “acceding to the Convention would strengthen our credibility and strategic position.” on January 9, 2017, before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Joseph F. Dunford, further stated that “becoming a part of [the UNCLOS] would give us a great deal of credibility, and particularly as it pertains to the unfolding opportunities in the Arctic”, and “this provides a framework to adjudicate disputes” on July 30, 2015, in his nomination hearing before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate; Whereas the past Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral John M. Richardson, further stated that “becoming a party to the Law of the Sea Convention, the U.S. is at a significant disadvantage relative to the other Arctic Ocean coastal states”. “Those States are parties to the Convention, and are well along the path to obtaining legal certainty and international recognition of their Arctic extended continental shelf” and “becoming a Party to the Law of the Sea Convention would allow the United States to fully secure its rights to the continental shelf off the coast of Alaska, which is likely to be over 600,000 square miles”, on December 10, 2014, before the Subcommittee on Europe, Eurasia, and Emerging Threats of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives: Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the Senate— (1) affirms that it is in the national interest for the United States to become a formal signatory of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS), done at Montego Bay December 10, 1982, (2) urges the United States Senate to give its advice and consent to the ratification of the UNCLOS; and (3) recommends the ratification of the UNCLOS remain a top priority for the Federal Government, the importance of which was most recently underscored by the strategic challenges the United States faces in the Asia-Pacific, the Arctic, and the Black Sea regions. SENATE RESOLUTION 221—RECOGNIZING THE CULTURAL AND HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF THE CINCO DE MAYO HOLIDAY Mr. MENENDEZ (for himself and Mr. Cruz) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations: S. RES. 221 Whereas May 5, or “Cinco de Mayo” in Spanish, is celebrated each year as a date of importance by Mexican and Mexican-American communities; Whereas the Cinco de Mayo holiday commemorates May 5, 1862, the date on which Mexican forces defeated the French at the Battle of Puebla, one of the many battles that the Mexican people won in their long and brave fight for independence, freedom, and democracy; Whereas the victory of Mexico over France at Puebla represented a historic triumph for the Mexican government during the Franco-Mexican war fought between 1861 and 1867 and bolstered the resistance movement; Whereas the success of Mexico at the Battle of Puebla reinvigorated the spirits of the Mexican people and provided a renewed sense of unity and strength; Whereas the French army, which had not experienced defeat against any of the finest troops in Europe during half a century, sustained a disastrous loss at the hands of an outnumbered and ill-equipped, but CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S2577 May 18, 2021 highly spirited and courageous, Mexican army;
Whereas the courageous spirit that Mexican General Ignacio Zaragoza and his men displayed during that historic battle can never be forgotten;
Whereas, in a larger sense, Cinco de Mayo symbolizes the right of a free people to self-determination, just as Benito Juarez, the president of Mexico during the Battle of Puebla, once said, “El respeto al derecho ajeno es la paz”, meaning “respect for the rights of others is peace”;
Whereas the sacrifice of Mexican fighters was instrumental in keeping Mexico from falling under European domination while, in the United States, the Union Army battled Confederate forces in the Civil War;
Whereas Cinco de Mayo serves as a reminder that the foundation of the United States was built by people from many countries and diverse cultures who were willing to fight and die for freedom;
Whereas Cinco de Mayo also serves as a reminder of the close ties between the people of Mexico and the people of the United States;
Whereas Cinco de Mayo encourages the celebration of a legacy of strong leaders and a sense of vibrancy in communities; and
Whereas Cinco de Mayo serves as a reminder of the importance for future generations: Now, therefore, be it
Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) recognizes the historic struggle of the people of Mexico for independence and freedom, which Cinco de Mayo commemorates; and
(2) encourages the people of the United States to observe Cinco de Mayo with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

SENATE RESOLUTION 222—OFFICIAL TITLE NOT AVAILABLE
Mr. SCHUMER submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 222
Whereas the Senate is committed to the awareness, prevention, and deterrence of sexual violence affecting individuals in the United States;
Whereas, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (referred to in this preamble as the “CDC”), 1 in 4 women and 1 in 10 men experience sexual violence and stalking by an intimate partner;
Whereas, according to the 2019 Child Mal- treatment Report of the Department of Health and Human Services, child protection service agencies throughout the United States substantiated, or found strong evidence to indicate that, 60,927 children under 18 years of age were victims of sexual abuse that year;
Whereas children and young adults are at significant risk of experiencing sexual assault, as up to 89 percent of sexual assault victims are under 34 years of age;
Whereas sexual violence is a burden for many individuals who serve in the Armed Forces, and the Department of Defense estimates that approximately 21,500 members of the Armed Forces, including approximately 13,000 women and 7,500 men, experienced some form of contact or penetrative sexual assault during 2018;
Whereas, due to the unprecedented challenges of Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) pandemic, including mandatory stay-at-home orders, the needs of sexual assault victims have become even more complex and challenging;
Whereas, according to a March 2020 survey by the National Alliance to End Sexual Violence, 62 percent of rape crisis centers have a waiting list for counseling services, 35 percent lack a therapist on staff, and 40 percent of programs have an increased demand for services since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic;
Whereas the American Journal of Emergency Medicine reported a 10 to 30 percent increase in sexual assault cases since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic;
Whereas sexual assault does not discriminate on any basis and can affect any individual in any part of the United States;
Whereas sexual violence may take many forms, including acquaintance, stranger, spousal, and gang rape, incest, child sexual abuse, elder sexual abuse, and exploitation of disabled persons and members of the LGBTQ community, commercial sex trafficking, sexual harassment, and stalking;
Whereas studies have suggested that the rate at which American Indians and Alaska Natives experience sexual violence is significantly higher than for other populations in the United States;
Whereas, according to a 2010 CDC survey, approximately 1 in 8 lesbian women (13 percent or 214,000) and 1 in 16 bisexual women (46 percent or 1,500,000), and 1 in 6 heterosexual women (17 percent or 19,000,000) have been raped in their lifetime;
Whereas, according to the National Alliance to End Sexual Violence, in addition to the immediate physical and emotional costs, sexual assault has numerous adverse consequences, which can include post-traumatic stress disorder, substance abuse, major depression, homelessness, eating disorders, and suicide;
Whereas, according to the National Crime Victimization Survey, an average of only 34 percent of rapes or sexual assaults in the United States were reported to law enforcement agencies;
Whereas many sexual assaults are not reported to law enforcement agencies, and many States have restrictive criminal statutes of limitations, which enable many perpetrators to evade punishment for their crimes;
Whereas advances in deoxyribonucleic acid (commonly known as “DNA”) technology have enabled law enforcement agencies to identify and prosecute the perpetrators in tens of thousands of previously unsolved sexual assault cases;
Whereas incarceration of sexual assault perpetrators can prevent perpetrators from committing additional crimes;
Whereas States, territorial, and Tribal coalitions, community-based rape crisis centers, and other organizations across the United States are committed to:
(1) eliminating sexual violence through prevention and education; and
(2) increasing public awareness of sexual violence and the prevalence of sexual violence;
Whereas important partnerships have been formed among criminal and juvenile justice agencies, health professionals, public health workers, educators, first responders, and victim service providers;
Whereas thousands of volunteers and staff at rape crisis centers, State coalitions against sexual assault, and nonprofit organizations across the United States play an important role in making crisis hotlines and other services available to survivors of sexual assault;
Whereas free, confidential help is available to all victims and survivors of sexual assault through—
(1) the victim service programs of the Rape, Abuse & Incest National Network (commonly known and referred to in this preamble as ‘RAINN’), including the National Sexual Assault Hotline—
(A) by telephone at 800–656–HOPE; and
(B) online at https://hotline.rainn.org; and
(2) more than 1,500 sexual assault service providers across the United States;
Whereas the victim service programs of RAINN, including the National Sexual Assault Hotline, helped a total of 60,437 victims receive help in May and June of 2020, up 18 percent from the same time period in 2019; and
Whereas the Department of Justice provides the Safe Helpline, Safe HelpRoom, and Safe Helpline mobile application, each of which provide support and help to members of the Department of Defense community—
(1) by telephone at 877–995–5247; and
(2) online at https://SafeHelpline.org;
Whereas individual and collective efforts reflect the dream of the people of the United States—
(1) for individuals and organizations to actively work to prevent all forms of sexual violence; and
(2) for no victim of sexual assault to be unserved or feel that there is no path to justice;
Whereas April 2021 is recognized as “National Sexual Assault Awareness and Prevention Month”; Now, therefore, be it

Mr. HENRICH (for himself, Mr. WHITEHOUSE, Mr. BOOKER, Mr. PADILLA, Mr. MERKLEY, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. BLUMENTHAL, Ms. KLOBUCHAR, Mr. BENNET, Mr. VAN HOLLEN, Mr. WYDEN, Ms. ROSEN, Ms. WARREN, Mr. LIUJAN, and Mr. KING) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources:

S. RES. 224

Whereas the United States enjoys an abundance of clean energy resources, world-class research facilities, cutting-edge industrial capabilities, and an unrivaled culture of entrepreneurship and technological innovation; Whereas, as of the date of adoption of this resolution, technology exists to power the majority of energy systems in the United States with zero-emission electricity; Whereas achieving widespread electrification— (1) will reduce the overall energy needs of the United States economy by up to 50 percent; (2) can substantially decrease overall consumer energy costs while maintaining the same or better lifestyles for individuals and families in the United States; Whereas national and subnational economies around the world, including in the United States, are engaged in a fundamental transition away from energy systems based on fossil fuels to zero-emission energy systems; Whereas the United States has the opportunity— (1) to become a net exporter of bulk zero-emission electricity and of products made with zero-emission electricity; (2) to capture new and expanding power and technology markets; (3) to benefit from the ongoing global transition away from fossil fuel energy towards widespread electrification using zero-emission electricity; and (4) to become an international leader in the production and adoption of zero-emission vehicles; Whereas climate change caused by human activities, especially by greenhouse gas emissions from fossil fuel combustion, represents a serious, present, and growing threat— (1) to human health, security, and economic well-being; and (2) to the environment; Whereas low-income communities and communities of color are disproportionately impacted by the harmful effects of climate change and air pollution, including being at a higher risk of experiencing— (1) severe floods, droughts, and wildfires; (2) economic dislocation; and (3) significant health problems, including pneumonia, asthma, bronchitis, heart attacks, strokes, and lung cancer; Whereas transitioning the energy systems of the United States to zero-emission electricity would— (1) drastically reduce net greenhouse gas emissions in the United States; (2) improve energy access and energy cost equity throughout the United States; and (3) improve numerous health conditions associated with the burning of fossil fuels for millions of individuals in the United States; Whereas the work required to electrify the economy of the United States would produce millions of high-paying, sustainable jobs that would— (1) be created throughout the United States, including in urban, rural, suburban, and Tribal communities; and (2) require directly translatable skills from individuals who, as of the date of adoption of this resolution, hold jobs in— (A) the fossil fuel industry; (B) the construction and building industry; (C) the electricity industry, including residential and commercial electricians; and (D) the automotive industry; Whereas whereas the average household in the United States spends, as of the date of adoption of this resolution, approximately $4,500 per year on energy, including $2,000 per year on vehicle fuel; Whereas, with supportive policy, households in the United States can save up to half of their annual energy costs by electrifying their household energy systems, including through— (1) the installation of— (A) rooftop or distributed photovoltaic solar and home battery systems; (B) electric heat pumps and electric heat pump water heaters; and (C) electric household appliances; and (2) the purchase of electric vehicles; Whereas many low- and moderate-income families in the United States lack access to the credit and financing options that would enable those families to install money-saving electrified household energy systems; Whereas reaping the benefits of electrification could be made more accessible and cost-effective for individuals in the United States, so that the access and costs compare more favorably with other countries, by— (1) reducing the up-front capital outlays typically required; and (2) decreasing the cost of local permitting and grid infrastructure and renewable solar and other distributed renewable energy generation in the United States; Whereas investments in energy efficiency programs of— (1) reduce the size and cost of electric heating systems; (2) help increase systemic resiliency to periods of extreme temperature; and (3) in addition to other investments in infrastructure, help improve the ability of the electric power grid to serve peak electric demand; Whereas utility-scale wind and solar installations are a low-cost, zero-emission source of energy available in the United States; Whereas additional interregional high-voltage direct-current electricity transmission capacity— (1) is critical to the development of new clean energy generation; and (2) can help ensure reliable and consistent electricity supply; and Whereas supporting rapid electrification and innovation in all sectors of the United States economy while transitioning to zero-emission electricity production using proven generation technologies is one of the fastest, most efficient ways to reduce United States greenhouse gas emissions, reduce the average energy bills of people of the United States, and create millions of good-paying jobs to put individuals in the United States back to work in response to the COVID-19 pandemic: Now, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that— (1) the United States must seize the opportunity to create millions of jobs, become a net exporter of clean energy, and secure a better, more equitable future by accelerating the electrification of households, buildings, and businesses in the United States, modernizing the United States electric grid, and continuing on the path towards decarbonizing electricity generation in the United States by 2050; (2) the goals described in paragraph (1) are consistent with, and should be achieved through, efforts that prioritize the objectives of— (A) creating millions of good-paying jobs, with collective bargaining agreements, and advancing a thriving, equitable economy with an expanded middle class; (B) maintaining the global leadership of the United States in innovation; (C) ensuring that not less than 40 percent of the benefits of Federal investments in electrification efforts flow to historically marginalized communities and individuals disproportionately affected by the health and environmental impacts of fossil fuels; (D) ensuring through place-based policies, retraining, and certifying, for electrification and clean energy jobs, individuals that, as of the date of adoption of this resolution, hold jobs in the fossil fuel industry (referred to in this resolution as “energy veterans”); (E) advancing strong labor and safety standards throughout the supply chain by using certain Federal provisions, including— (i) chapter 83 of title 41, United States Code (commonly known as the “Buy American Act”); and (ii) chapter IV of title 41 of part A of subtitle II of title 40, United States Code (commonly known as the “Davis-Bacon Act”); (F) decreasing the harmful health and environmental impacts of climate change, which fall disproportionately on low-income people and communities of color in the United States; (G) ensuring access to low-cost, reliable electricity for individuals, families, and businesses, while recognizing and addressing structural challenges in rural and Tribal communities; (H) modernizing the electric power grid of the United States and its operations to increase the grid’s security, reliability, fairness, and flexibility of the electric power grid;
(I) transforming existing industries in the United States into 21st century industries that use and produce clean energy; and

(J) enhancing the national security of the United States, including through cybersecurity of the electric power grid; and

(3) to succeed, the goals described in paragraph (1) and the objectives described in paragraph (2) and efforts to accomplish those goals shall be accomplished through efforts that—

(A) electrify the activities of high-emissions sectors, such as the residential and commercial space heating, transportation, and industrial sectors, including by—

(i) supporting and incentivizing the residential deployment of electric technologies, including battery storage systems, electric heat pumps, electric induction stoves, electric vehicle chargers, and electric water heaters;

(ii) supporting the expansion of residential, commercial, and public electric vehicle charging infrastructure, including in rural areas and low- and moderate-income communities;

(iii) supporting the widespread electrification of public transportation systems, including an expansion of public transportation systems in rural and suburban communities; and

(iv) investing in research, development, demonstration, and deployment programs for electrification of key industrial processes;

(B) increase the deployment of zero-emission electricity resources, including by—

(i) expanding investment in zero-emission electricity generation;

(ii) lowering the permitting and hardware costs, and streamlining the processes of installing distributed energy systems;

(iii) improving the permitting and leasing processes for zero-emission electricity generation, such as through the expansion and cooperation of Federal, State, and local building, electric, and other codes to encourage the adoption of low-cost zero-emission electricity resources, including through grant and technical assistance programs;

(iv) improving the permitting and leasing processes for zero-emission electricity generation, such as through streamlined permitting and new generation, such as through distributed solar and renewable energy technologies;

(K) pursue a Federal Government-wide approach to zero-emission electricity;

(L) increase understanding of the health impacts of indoor and outdoor air pollution created by fossil fuel appliances and electricity generation, especially on the most vulnerable members of society;

(M) invest in research, development, and demonstration on the efficient use, recycling, and waste management of materials used in clean energy technologies, including critical mineral sourcing and recycling of critical minerals used in the technologies; and

(N) increase research, development, and demonstration on new generations of cutting-edge zero-emission electricity resources, deployment techniques, and grid modernization technologies.

(2) The large and complex innovative and environmental capabilities of global supply chains and manufacturing economies, which are influenced by international and national manufacturing and innovative relevance, require appropriate attention, including long-range inclusive planning and more impactful program development, to encourage and support private manufacturing growth in the United States and participation in the public decision-making process.

(3) The innovative and manufacturing capabilities of business in the United States, with Federal funding support, can effectively assist in improving the quality of life for people in the United States, in anticipating and addressing emerging international, national, and local problems, and strengthening the international economic engagement and pioneering leadership of the United States.

(4) Just as Federal funding for science and technology represents an investment in the future, strategically addressing gaps in the innovation pipeline of the United States would—

(A) contribute to converting research and development investments into high-value, high quality, job-creating product production and capture domestic and global markets; and

(B) strengthen the economic posture of the United States.

(5) The capabilities of the United States at both the Federal and State levels need enhanced strategic planning and influence over policy formulation for industrial innovation and technological capabilities as a means to ensure an adequate workforce.

(C) Strengthening the technical, financial, and educational commons and assets necessary for the United States to be the best positioned nation for the creation and production of advanced technologies and products emerging from national research and development investments.

(D) Capitalizing on the scientific and technological advances produced by researchers and innovators in the United States by developing and implementing policies and strategies focused on advancing the technology and manufacturing readiness levels of those advances.

(E) Supporting the discovery, invention, start-up, ramp-up, scale-up, and transition of new products and manufacturing technologies to full-scale production in the United States.

(F) Addressing the evolving needs of manufacturers for a diverse set of workers with the necessary skills, training, and expertise as manufacturers in the United States increase high-quality, high-wage employment opportunities.

(G) Capitalizing on and expanding manufacturing engineering and technology offerings within institutions of higher education, including 4-year engineering technology programs at polytechnic institutes and secondary schools, to be more closely aligned with the needs of manufacturers in the United States and the goal of strengthening the long-term competitiveness of such manufacturing.

(H) Working collaboratively with Federal agencies, State and local governments, Tribal governments, and other entities to leverage the knowledge, resources, applied research, experimental development, and programs to foster manufacturing opportunities that so as to anticipate and prepare for emergencies and global, national, and regional supply chain disruptions, including disruptions brought on and exacerbated by changing environmental and other circumstances.

SEC. 3002. FINDINGS

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The People’s Republic of China (PRC) is leveraging its political, diplomatic, economic, military, technological, and ideological power to become a strategic, near-peer, global competitor of the United States. The policies increasingly pursued by the PRC in these domains are contrary to the interests and values of the United States, its partners, and much of the rest of the world.

(2) The current policies being pursued by the PRC—
   (A) threaten the future character of the international order and are shaping the rules, norms, and institutions that govern relations among states;
   (B) will put at risk the ability of the United States to secure its national interests; and
   (C) will put at risk the future peace, prosperity, and freedom of the international community in the coming decades.

(3) After normalizing diplomatic relations with the United States in 1979, China actively worked to advance the PRC’s economic and social development to ensure that the PRC participated in, and benefited from, the fast-growing international order.

The United States pursued these goals and contributed to the welfare of the Chinese people by—

(A) increasing the PRC’s trade relations and access to global capital markets;

(B) promoting the PRC’s accession to the World Trade Organization;

(C) providing development finance and technical assistance;

(D) promoting research collaboration;

(E) educating the PRC’s top students;

(F) permitting transfers of cutting-edge technologies and scientific knowledge; and

(G) providing intelligence and military assistance.

(4) It is now clear that the PRC has chosen to pursue state-led, mercantilist economic policies, an increasingly authoritarian governance model at home through increased repressions on political freedoms, and an aggressive and assertive foreign policy. These policies frequently and deliberately undermine United States interests and are contrary to the codified United States values and the values of other nations, both in the Indo-Pacific and beyond. In response to this strategic decision of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), the United States has been compelled to reexamine and revise its strategy towards the PRC.

(5) The General Secretary of the CCP and the President of the PRC, Xi Jinping, has elevated the “Great Rejuvenation of the Chinese Nation” as central to the domestic and foreign policy of the PRC. His program demands—

(A) strong, centralized CCP leadership;

(B) concentration of military power;

(C) a strong role for the CCP in the state and the economy;

(D) an aggressive foreign policy seeking control over broadly asserted territorial claims; and

(E) the denial of any values and individual rights that are deemed to threaten the CCP.

President Xi suggested that the CCP time has come, “socialism with Chinese characteristics”, as superior to, and at odds with, the constitutional models of the United States and other democracies. This approach to governance is lauded by the CCP as essential to securing the PRC’s status as a global leader, and to shaping the future of the world order. President Xi said, “We firmly believe that as socialism with Chinese characteristics develops further . . . it is . . . inevitable that the superiority of our system as a whole is increasingly apparent. . . . and our country’s road of development will have increasingly greater influence on the world.”

(7) The PRC’s objectives are to first establish regional hegemony over the Indo-Pacific and then to use that dominant position to propel the PRC to become the “leading world power,” shaping an international order that is conducive to the CCP’s interests. Achieving these objectives require turning the PRC into a world power, rejecting the legitimacy of internationally recognized human rights, and seeking to co-opt the leadership and agenda of multinational organizations.

The PRC and other authoritarian regimes at the expense of the interests of the United States and the international community. In December 2018, President Xi said that China has achieved the “CGIP” views Chinese characteristics as not only to govern China, but also to profoundly influence global governance to benefit the CCP.

(9) The PRC is promoting its governance model and attempting to weaken other models of governance by—

(A) undermining democratic institutions;

(B) subverting financial institutions;

(C) coercion businesses to accommodate the policies of the PRC; and

(D) using disguise to disguise the nature of the actions described in subparagraphs (A) through (C).

(11) The PRC is close to its goal of becoming the global leader in science and technological development. It is said that the PRC for the PRC to reach “prosperity and rejuvenation”, it needs to “endorse to be a major world center for science and innovation”. The PRC has invested the equivalent of billions of dollars into education and research and development, and has established many scientific research centers and science universities.

(12) The PRC’s drive to become a “manufacturing and technological superpower” and promote “innovative characteristics” is coming at the expense of human rights and longstanding international rules and norms with respect to economic competition, and presents a challenge to United States national security and the security of allies and like-minded countries. In particular, the PRC advances its economic, political and social policies through mass surveillance, social credit systems, and a significant role of the state in international governance, through these means, the PRC is leveraging to develop new military capabilities.

(13) The PRC and the CCP are committing crimes against humanity and are engaged in an ongoing genocide, in violation of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, done at Rome November 12, 1948, against the predominantly Muslim Uyghurs and other ethnic and religious minorities groups in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region, including through campaigns of imprisonment, torture, rape, and coercive birth prevention policies.

(14) The PRC is using legal and illegal means to achieve its objective of becoming a manufacturing and technological superpower, pursuing industrial policies in anticompetitive ways to ensure the dominance of PRC companies. The CCP engages in and encourages actions that actively undermine a free and open international market, such as intellectual property theft, forced technology transfers, regulatory and financial subsidies, and mandatory CCP access to proprietary data as part of business and commercial agreements between Chinese and foreign companies.

(15) The policies referred to in paragraph (14) are designed and implemented by the PRC and other foreign firms out of the PRC market, while eroding competition in other important sectors of the global economy. The Chinese companies include potential violators of its World Trade Organization commitments. In May 2018, President Xi said that the PRC aims to “deepen the ‘initiatives of innovation and development security . . . in [China’s] own hands’”.

(16) The PRC is advancing its global objectives through a variety of avenues, including its signature initiative, the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), which is enshrined in the Chinese Constitution and includes the Digital Silk Road and Maritime Silk Road. The PRC describes BRI as a straightforward and wholly beneficial plan for all countries. However, it increasingly seeks to advance an economic system with the PRC as its center, making it the most concrete geographical representation of the PRC’s global ambitions. BRI increases the economic influence of state-owned Chinese firms in global markets, enhances the PRC’s political leverage with government leaders around the world, and enshrines greater access to strategic assets and ports through BRI. The PRC seeks political deference through economic dependence.

(17) The PRC is executing a plan to establish a non-commercial hegemony in the Pacific and displace the United States from the region. As a Pacific power, the United States... has built and supported enduring alliances and economic partnerships that secure peace and prosperity and promote the rule of law and political pluralism in a free and open Indo-Pacific. In contrast, the PRC uses economic and military coercion in the region to secure its own interests.

(18) The PRC’s military strategy seeks to keep China the military force from operating in the Western Pacific and to erode United States security guarantees.

(19) The PRC is aggressively pursuing exclusive control of critical land routes, sea lanes, and air space in the Indo-Pacific in the hopes of eventually exercising greater influence over the region. This includes lanes crucial to commercial activity, energy exploration, transport, and the exercise of security operations in areas permitted under international law.

(20) The PRC seeks so-called “reunification” with Taiwan through whatever means may ultimately be required. The CCP’s insistence that so-called “reunification” is Taiwan’s only option makes this goal inerently coercive. In January 2019, President Xi stated that the PRC “make[s] no promise to renounce force and reserves the option of taking all necessary means”. Taiwan’s embodiment of democratic values and economic liberalism challenges President Xi’s goal of unification. The PRC plans to exploit Taiwan’s dominant strategic position in the First Island Chain and to project power into the Second Island Chain beyond.

(21) In the South China Sea, the PRC has executed an illegal island-building campaign that threatens freedom of navigation and the free-flow of commerce, damages the environment, bolsters PLA power projection capabilities, and coerces and intimidates other regional powers to adopt an effort to advance its unlawful claims and control the waters around neighboring countries. Despite President Xi’s September 2018 speech, in which he said the PRC did not intend to militarize the South China Sea, during the 2017 19th Party Congress, President Xi announced that “construction on islands and reefs in the South China Sea have seen steady progress”.

(22) The PRC is rapidly modernizing the PLA to attain a level of capacity and capability superior to the United States in terms of the effectiveness of modern military operations by shifting its military doctrine from having a force “adequate [for] China’s national defense” to having one “commensurate with China’s international status”. Ultimately, this transformation could enable China to impose its will in the Indo-Pacific through the threat of military force. In 2017, President Xi established the following developmental benchmarks for the advancement of the PLA:

(23) The complete modernization of China’s nation and region.

(24) The full transformation of the PLA into a world-class force by 2050.

(25) The PRC’s strategy and supporting policies described in this section undermine the United States interests, such as:

(27) The complete modernization of China’s nation and region.

(28) The full transformation of the PLA into a world-class force by 2050.

(29) The PRC’s strategy and supporting policies described in this section undermine the United States interests, such as:

4. The hope that such rules, norms, and standards are in alignment with the values and interests of the United States, its allies and partners, and the free world.

5. The United States assures that the CCP does not:

(A) subvert open and democratic societies;

(B) distort global markets;

(C) manipulate the international trade system;

(D) coerce other nations via economic and military means; or

(E) use its technological advantages to undermine individual freedoms or other states’ national security interests.

SEC. 3004. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

(1) OBJECTIVES.—It is the policy of the United States, in pursuing strategic competition with the PRC, to pursue the following objectives:

(2) The United States global leadership role is sustained and its political system and major foundations of national power are preserved through long-term political, economic, technological, and military competition with the PRC.

(3) The balance of power in the Indo-Pacific remains favorable to the United States and its allies. The United States and its allies maintain unfettered access to the region, including through freedom of navigation and the free flow of commerce, consistent with international law and practice, and the PRC neither dominates the region nor coerces its neighbors.

(4) The allies and partners of the United States—

(A) maintain confidence in United States leadership and its commitment to the Indo-Pacific region;

(B) can withstand and combat subversion and undue influence by the PRC; and

(C) align themselves with the United States in setting global rules, norms, and standards that benefit the international community.

The combined weight of the United States and its allies and partners is strong enough to demonstrate to the PRC that the risks of attempts to dominate other states outweigh the potential benefits.

(5) The United States leads the free and open international order, which is comprised of resilient states and institutions that uphold and defend principles, such as sovereignty, rule of law, individual freedom, and human rights. The international order is strengthened to defeat attempts at destabilization by illiberal and authoritarian actors.

(6) The key rules, norms, and standards of international engagement in the 21st century are maintained, including:

(A) the protection of human rights, commercial engagement and investment, and technology; and

(B) that such rules, norms, and standards are in alignment with the values and interests of the United States, its allies and partners, and the free world.

The United States assures that the CCP does not—

(A) subvert open and democratic societies;

(B) distort global markets;

(C) manipulate the international trade system;

(D) coerce other nations via economic and military means; or

(E) use its technological advantages to undermine individual freedoms or other states’ national security interests.
The United States deters military confrontation with the PRC and both nations work to reduce the risk of conflict.

Policy. — It is the policy of the United States, consistent with the objectives set forth in subsection (a),

(1) to strengthen the United States domestic focus on research and development-based economic growth, education, scientific and technological innovation, democratic institutions, and other areas that improve the competitiveness of the United States to provide its vital economic, foreign policy, and national security interests;

(2) to pursue a strategy of strategic competition with the PRC in the political, diplomatic, economic, development, military, informational, and technological realms that maximizes the United States’ strengths and increases the challenges to the PRC of harming United States interests and the values of United States allies and partners;

(3) to lead a free, open, and secure international system characterized by freedom from coercion, rule of law, open markets and the free flow of commerce, and a shared commitment to security and peaceful resolution of disputes, human rights, and good and transparent governance;

(4) to strengthen and deepen United States alliances and partnerships, pursuing greater engagement in the Indo-Pacific and Europe, by pursuing greater bilateral and multilateral cooperative initiatives that advance shared interests and values and hold partners and countries committed to the United States and its values, even in the face of other great powers that seek to undermine United States alliances and partnerships.

(b) Malign Influence.—In this section, the term “malign influence” with respect to the Chinese Communist Party should be construed to include acts conducted by the Chinese Communist Party or entities acting on its behalf that: (1) undermine a free and open international order; (2) advance an alternative, repressive international order that bolsters the Chinese Communist Party’s hegemonic ambitions and is characterized by coercion and dependency; (3) undermine the national security or sovereignty of the United States or other countries; or (4) undermine the economic security of the United States or other countries, including by promoting corruption.

SEC. 3133. FINDINGS ON CHINESE INFORMATION WARS AND THE MALIGN INFLUENCE OPERATIONS.

(a) Findings.—Congress makes the following findings: (1) In the report to Congress required under section 1261(b) of the John S. McCain National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2019 (Public Law 115–232), the President laid out a broad range of malign activities conducted by the Government of the People’s Republic of China and its agents and entities, including— (A) propaganda and disinformation, in which “Beijing communicates its narrative through state-run television, print, radio, and online organizations whose presence is proliferating in the United States and around the world;” (B) malign political influence operations, particularly “front organizations and agents which target businesses, universities, think tanks, scholars, journalists, and local state and Federal officials in the United States and around the world, attempting to influence discourse;” and (C) malign financial influence operations, characterized as the “misappropriation of technological and intellectual property, failure to appropriately disclose relationships with foreign government sponsored entities, breaches of contract and confidentiality, and manipulation of fair and merit-based allocation of Federal research and development funding.”

(2) Chinese information warfare and malign influence operations are ongoing. In January 2019, then-Director of National Intelligence, Dan Coats, stated, “China will continue to use both traditional and cyber tools to pursue its interests, particularly those related to the Belt and Road Initiative, and is characterized by coercion and dependency.” In February 2020, the Director of National Intelligence, the Secretary of State, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and the Director of National Intelligence outlined China’s malign influence efforts as targeting “economic, political, and security areas” to “shape the information environment in which we operate.” (3) In February 2020, then-Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Christopher Wray, testified to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives that the FBI has “identified efforts to use disinformation to suppress viewpoints it deems politically sensitive.”

(4) In February 2020, then-Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Christopher Wray, testified to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives that the FBI has “identified efforts to use disinformation to suppress viewpoints it deems politically sensitive.”

(5) The PRC’s information warfare and malign influence operations continue to adopt new tactics and evolve in sophistication. In May 2020, then-Special Envoy and Coordinator of the Global Engagement Center (GEC), Lea Gabrielle, stated that there was a convergence of Russian and Chinese narratives surrounding COVID-19 and that the GEC had “uncovered a new network of inauthentic Twitter accounts” that it assessed was “created with the intent to amplify Chinese narratives and disinformation.” In June 2020, Google reported that Chinese hackers attempted to access email accounts of the campaign staff of a president and her spouse.

(6) Chinese information warfare and malign influence operations are a threat to the national security, democracy, and economic systems of the United States and its allies and partners. In October 2018, Vice President Michael R. Pence warned that “Beijing is pursuing an information warfare approach, using political, economic, and military tools, as well as propaganda, to advance its influence and benefit its interests in the United States.”

(7) In February 2018, then-Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Christopher Wray, testified to the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate that the People’s Republic of China is taking advantage of and exploiting the open research and development environments of United States institutions to enhance the international influence of high-level scholars, including government officials, scholars, and students, as “nontraditional collectors” of information.

(b) Presidential Duties.—The President shall— (1) protect our democratic institutions and processes from malign influence from the People’s Republic of China and other foreign adversaries; and (2) consistent with the policy specified in paragraph (1), direct the heads of the appropriate Federal agencies to implement Acts of Congress to counter and deter PRC and other foreign information warfare and malign influence operations without delay.

(A) section 1039 of the John S. McCain National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2019 (Public Law 115–232), which authorizes the Director of the National Security Council for countering malign foreign influence operations and campaigns; (B) section 228 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2020 (Public Law 116–92), which authorizes additional research of foreign malign influence operations on social media; and (C) section 847 of such Act, which requires the Secretary of Defense to modify contract regulations regarding vetting for foreign-made military equipment which is used by foreign militaries in order to mitigate risks from malign foreign influence;
SEC. 3136. SUPPORTING INDEPENDENT MEDIA AND COUNTERING DISINFORMATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The PRC is increasing its spending on public diplomacy including influence campaigns, advertising, and investments into state-sponsored media publications outside of the PRC. These include, for example, more than $10,000,000,000 in foreign direct investment in communications infrastructure, platforms, and properties, as well as bringing journalists to the PRC for training programs.

(2) The PRC, through the Voice of China, the United Front Work Department (UFWD), and UFWD’s many affiliates and proxies, has obtained unfettered access to radio, television, and digital dissemination platforms in numerous languages targeted at citizens in other regions where the PRC has an interest in promoting public sentiment in support of the Chinese Communist Party and expanding the reach of its misleading narratives and propaganda.

(3) Even in Western democracies, the PRC spends extensively on influence operations, such as a $25,000,000 advertising campaign to attract cable viewers in Australia and a more than $23,000,000 campaign to influence United States public opinion via the China Daily newspaper supplement.

(4) Radio Free Asia (RFA) (referred to in this subsection as “RFA”), a private nonprofit multimedia news corporation, which broadcasts in 9 East Asian languages including Mandarin, Uyghur, Cantonese, and Tibetan, has succeeded in its mission to reach audiences in China and in the Central Asia region despite China’s censorship efforts—

(A) efforts to practice “media sovereignty,” which restricts access to the free press within China; and

(B) the Director to spread disinformation to countries abroad.

(5) In 2019, RFA’s Uyghur Service alerted the world to the human rights abuses of Uyghur and other ethnic minorities in China’s Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region.

(6) Gulchehra Hoja, a Uyghur journalist for RFA, received the International Women’s Media Foundation’s Award for Investigative Journalism Award and a 2019 Magnitsky Human Rights Award for her coverage of Xinjiang, while the Chinese Government detained and harassed Ms. Hoja’s China-based family and the families of 7 other RFA journalists in retaliation for her reporting.

(7) In 2019 and 2020, RFA provided widely disseminated print and digital coverage of the decline in freedom in Hong Kong and the student-led protests of the extradition law.

(b) In March 2020, RFA exposed efforts by the Chinese Government to underreport the coronavirus outbreak in Wuhan Province, the Chinese Government to underreport the number of fatalities from the novel coronavirus, and crimes against humanity with respect to the People’s Republic of China’s activities in Xinjiang, including the ongoing genocide and crimes against humanity with respect to Xinjiang’s Muslim communities, including through strategic amplification of Radio Free Asia’s coverage, in its news programming in majority-Muslim countries.

(c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated, for each of fiscal years 2022 through 2026 for the United States Agency for Global Media, $100,000,000 for ongoing and new programs to support local media, build independent media, combat Chinese disinformation inside and outside of China, invest in technology to support censorship, tools, and countermeasures to counter and evaluate these programs, of which—

(1) not less than $70,000,000 shall be directed to a grant to Radio Free Asia language services;

(2) not less than $20,000,000 shall be used to support populations in China through Mandarin, Cantonese, Uyghur, and Tibetan language services; and

(3) not less than $5,500,000 shall be used for digital media services—

(B) to counter propaganda of Chinese populations in China through “Global Mandarin” programming.

(C) the impact of Open Technology Fund tools on piercing Chinese Communist Party censorship, as measured by the metrics used to measure that impact and the trajectory of that impact over the previous 5 years.

(2) FORM OF REPORT.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

(e) SUPPORT FOR LOCAL MEDIA.—The Secretary of State, acting through the Assistant Secretary of State for Democracy, Human Rights, and Labor and in coordination with the United States Agency for International Development, shall support and train journalists on investigations necessary to ensure public accountability related to the Belt and Road Initiative, the PRC’s surveillance and digital export of technology, and other influence operations abroad directly supported by the Communist Party or the Chinese government.

SEC. 3222. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The People’s Republic of China aims to use its growing military might in concert with other instruments of its national power to displace the United States in the Indo-Pacific and establish hegemony over the region.

(2) The military balance of power in the Indo-Pacific region is growing increasingly unfavorable to the United States because—

(A) the PRC is rapidly modernizing and expanding the capabilities of the PLA to project power over contested areas across the entire Indo-Pacific region;

(B) PLA modernization has largely focused on areas where it possesses operational advantages and can exploit weaknesses in the United States suite of capabilities; and

(C) current United States defense structure and presence do not sufficiently counter PRC ambitions and can exploit weaknesses in the United States suite of capabilities; and

(3) This shift in the regional military balance and erosion of conventional and strategic deterrence in the Indo-Pacific region—

(A) presents a substantial and imminent threat to the United States and its allies, bases, and forces at sea in the Indo-Pacific; and

(B) limiting the PLA’s ability to project power beyond the First Island Chain, including to United States territory, such as Guam and Hawaii;

(C) defending the territorial integrity of Japan;

(D) preventing the PLA from diverting military planning, resources, and personnel to broader military ambitions; and

(E) retaining the United States credibility as a defender of the democratic values and free-market principles embodied by Taiwan’s people and government;

(7) The PRC capitalized on the world’s attention to Ocean’s 1986 and its military objectives in the South China Sea, intensifying and accelerating trends already underway. The PRC has sent militarized survey vessels into the Malaysian Exclusive Economic Zone, announced the establishment of an administrative district in the Spratly and Paracel Islands under the Chinese local government of Sansha, aimed a fire control radar at a Philippine navy ship, encroached on Indonesia’s fishing grounds, sunk a Vietnamese fishing boat, announced new “research stations” on Woody and Subi Reef, landed special military aircraft on Fiery Cross Reef to routinize such deployments, and sent over 200 military vessels to Whitsun Reef, a feature within the exclusive economic zone of the Philippines.

(8) On July 13, 2020, the Department of State announced policy on the South China Sea and stated that “Beijing’s claims to offshore resources across most of the South China Sea are completely unlawful”.

(9) These actions in the South China Sea enable the PLA to exert influence and project power deeper into Oceania and the Indian Ocean. In 2019, Admiral Phil Davidson, Commander of Indo-Pacific Command, testified in 2019, “In short, China is now capable of controlling the South China Sea in all scenarios short of war with the United States.”

(10) The PLA also continues to advance its claims in the East China Sea, including through a high number of surface combatant patrols and frequent entry into the territorial waters of the Senkaku Islands, over which the United States recognizes Japan’s administrative control. In April 2014, President Obama stated, “Our commitment to Japan’s security is absolute and article five of the U.S.-Japan security treaty covers all territory under Japan’s administrative control, including islands.”

(11) On March 1, 2019, Secretary of State Michael R. Pompeo stated, “As the South China Sea is part of the Pacific, any armed attack on Philippine forces, aircraft, or public vessels in the South China Sea will trigger mutual defense obligations under Article 5 of the Mutual Defense Treaty.”

(12) The PLA also continues to advance its influence over the Korean Peninsula, including through a series of joint air exercises with the Russian Federation and the Republic of Korea’s Air Defense Identification Zone.

(13) The PLA is modernizing and gaining critical capability in every branch and every domain, including—

(A) positioning the PLA Navy to become a great maritime power or “blue-water” navy capable of controlling the South China Sea and projecting power beyond it with a fleet of 425 battle force ships by 2030;

(B) limiting the PLA’s ability to project power over the First Island Chain, including to United States territory, such as Guam and Hawaii;

(C) the PRC is rapidly modernizing and expanding the capabilities of the PLA to project power over contested areas across the entire Indo-Pacific region; and

(D) making critical investments in new domains of warfare, such as cyber warfare, electronic warfare, and quantum technology.

(15) The United States lead in the development of science and technology relevant to defense is eroding in the face of competition from the PRC. United States research and development spending on defense capabilities has increased sharply, but can be overtaken by the PRC in the near future.

(16) The PRC has vastly increased domestic research and development expenditures, supported the growth of new cutting-edge industries and tapped into a large workforce to invest in fostering science and engineering talent.

(17) The PRC is increasing exports of defense and security capabilities to build its defense technology and industrial base and improve its own military capabilities, as well as its influence over allies and partners in the South China Sea.

SEC. 3308. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON TREATMENT OF UYGHURS AND OTHER ETHNIC MINORITIES IN THE XINJIANG UYGHUR AUTONOMOUS REGION

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:
(1) The Uyghurs are one of several predominately Muslim Turkic groups living in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region (XJUAR) in the northwest of the People’s Republic of China (PRC).

(2) Following Uyghur demonstrations and unrest in 2009 and 2010, Chinese Government security personnel and other violent incidents in subsequent years, PRC leaders sought to stabilize the XJUAR through large-scale arrests, intrusive security measures, under the pretext of combating alleged terrorism, religious extremism, and ethnic separation.

(3) In May 2014, the PRC launched its “Strike Hard Against Violent Extremism” campaign, which placed further restrictions on human rights in the Xinjiang region.

(4) In August 2016, Chinese Communist Party (CCP) Politburo members Chen Quanguo, former Tibet Autonomous Region (TAR) Party Secretary, known for oversights on human rights abuses and security measures, under the pretext of fighting terrorism.

(5) Beginning in 2017, XUAR authorities have sought to forcibly assimilate Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities into Chinese society through a policy of cultural erasure known as “Sinicization.”

(6) Since 2018, credible reporting including from the BWC, Financial Times, and New York Times has shown that the Government of the PRC has built mass internment camps in the XUAR, which it calls “vocational training” centers, and detained hundreds of thousands of ethnic minorities in and other groups in them and other facilities.

(7) Since 2015, XUAR authorities have arbitrarily detained an estimated 1,500,000 Uyghurs—12.5 percent of the XUAR’s official Uyghur population of 12,000,000—and a smaller number of other ethnic minorities in the “vocational training” centers and other detention and pre-detention facilities.

(8) In 2017, the XUAR accounted for less than two percent of the PRC’s total population but 21 percent of all arrests in China.

(9) The Atlantic, Radio Free Asia, and other sources have revealed that detainees are forced to renounce many of their Islamic beliefs and customs and repudiate Uyghur culture, language, and identity.

(10) Investigations by Human Rights Watch and other human rights organizations have detailed how detainees have been subjected to political indoctrination, forced labor, crowded and unsanitary conditions, involuntary bio-medical interventions, and intrusive medical interventions, food and water deprivation, beatings, sexual violence, and torture.

(11) A 2019 Australian Strategic Policy Institute report suggests that, since late 2019, many detainees have been placed in higher security facilities and convicted of fictional crimes abuses.

(12) Human Rights Watch has reported that the PRC uses data collection programs, including facial recognition technology, to surveil and discriminate against Uyghurs in the XUAR and identity individuals whom authorities may detain.

(13) PRC authorities have placed countless children whose parents are detained or in exile in state-run institutions and boarding schools without the consent of their parents.

(14) New York Times reporting revealed that numerous local PRC officials who did not agree with the policies carried out in XUAR have been fired and imprisoned.

(15) Associated Press reporting documented widespread and systemic efforts by PRC authorities to force Uyghurs to take contraceptives or to subject them to sterilization or abortion, threatening to detain those who do not comply.

(16) PRC authorities have prohibited family members and advocates inside and outside China from having regular communications with relatives and friends imprisoned in the XUAR, such as journalist and entrepreneur Epkar Asat.

(17) PRC authorities have imposed pervasive restrictions on peaceful practices of Islam in the XUAR, to the extent that Human Rights Watch asserts the PRC “has effectively outlawed the practice of Islam”.

(18) It is not only the centers of re-education are trying to achieve ideological re-education, but 10 campies have been forced to attend political indoctrination sessions, subjected to movement restrictions, mass surveillance systems, and intrusive data collection, and other human rights abuses.

(19) International media, nongovernmental organizations, scholars, families, and survivors reported on the systemic nature of many of these abuses.

(20) On June 26, 2020, a group of 50 independent human rights activists and researchers expressed grave concern over China’s deteriorating human rights record, including its repression in Xinjiang, and called on the international community “to act collectively and decisively to ensure China respects human rights and abides by its international obligations”.

(21) On October 6, 2020, 39 United Nations member states issued a public statement condemning human rights violations by PRC authorities and calling on the PRC to allow the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights access to Xinjiang.

(23) The United States Congress passed the Global Magnitsky Human Rights Accountability Act (subtitle F of title XII of Public Law 114–328; 22 U.S.C. 2656 note), which has been used to sanction PRC officials and entities for their activities in the XUAR.

(24) The United States Government has implemented targeted sanctions against Xinjiang and imposed visa and economic sanctions on PRC officials and entities for their activities in the XUAR.

(25) The United States Government has documented human rights abuses and violations of individual freedoms in the XUAR, including in the 2019 Department of State Report on International Religious Freedom.

(26) On January 19, 2021, then-Secretary of State Michael Pompeo “determined that the PRC, under the direction and control of the CCP, is responsible for systemic and extensive human rights abuses”.

(27) On January 19, 2021, during his confirmation hearing, Secretary of State Antony Blinken testified that “forcing men, women, and children into re-education camps, trying to in effect reeducate them to be adherents to the Chinese Communist Party—all of that speaks to an effort to commit genocide”.

(28) On January 19, 2021, Secretary of the Treasury Janet L. Yellen, during her confirmation hearing, publicly stated that China is guilty of “horrendous human rights abuses”.

(29) On January 27, 2021, in response to a question from the press regarding the Uyghurs, Secretary Blinken stated that his “judgement remains that genocide was committed against the Uyghurs’”.

(30) On March 10, 2021, in response to a question on Xinjiang during his testimony before the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, Secretary Blinken reiterated, “We’ve been clear, and I’ve been very clear, that we view it as genocide and other egregious abuses of human rights, and we’ll continue to make that clear”.

(31) The 2020 Department of State Country Reports on Human Rights Practices expressed concern that states that “genocide and crimes against humanity occurred during the year against the predominantly Muslim Uyghurs and other ethnic and religious minority groups in Xinjiang”.

(32) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress—

(1) the atrocities committed by the CCP against Uyghurs and other predominantly Muslim Turkic groups in Xinjiang, including the PRC’s unlawful persecution of over 1,000,000 individuals, and other horrific abuses must be condemned;

(2) the President, the Secretary of State, and the United States Ambassador to the United Nations should speak publicly about the ongoing human rights abuses in the XUAR, including in formal speeches at the United Nations and international fora;

(3) the President, the Secretary of State, and the United States Ambassador to the United Nations should appeal to the United Nations Secretary-General to take a more proactive and public stance on the situation in the XUAR, including by supporting calls for an investigation and accountability for individuals and entities involved in abuses against the people of the XUAR;

(4) the United States should continue to use targeted sanctions and all diplomatic tools available to hold accountable for the atrocities in Xinjiang to account;

(5) United States agencies engaged with China on trade, climate, defense, or other bilateral issues should take into account human rights abuses in the XUAR as a consideration in developing United States policy;

(6) the United States supports Radio Free Asia Uyghur, the only Uyghur-language service in the world independent of Chinese government influence; and

(7) the United States recognizes the repeated requests from the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights for unfettered access to the XUAR and the PRC’s refusal to comply, and therefore—

(A) PRC authorities must allow unfettered access by the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights to the XUAR;

(B) the United States should urge collaborative action between the United States Government and international partners to press PRC authorities to allow unfettered access to the XUAR;

(C) the President, the Secretary of State, and the United States Ambassador to the United Nations should simultaneously outline the suffering of human rights abuses and crimes that have taken place in the XUAR, collect evidence, and transfer the evidence to a competent court; and

(D) United States partners and allies should undertake similar strategies in an effort to build an international investigation of the PRC if PRC authorities do not comply with a United Nations investigation in the XUAR.

TITLE IV—INVESTING IN OUR ECONOMIC STATECRAFT

SEC. 3401. FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE PRC’S INDUSTRIAL POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The People’s Republic of China, at the direction of the Chinese Communist Party, is advancing an ecosystem of anticompetitive economic and industrial policies that—

(A) distort global markets;

(B) limit innovation;

(C) unfairly advantage PRC firms at the expense of the United States and other foreign firms; and

(D) unfairly and harmfully prejudice American choices.

(2) Of the extensive and systemic economic and industrial policies pursued by the PRC, the mass subsidization of PRC firms, intellectual property theft, and forced technology transfer are among the most damaging to the global economy.

(3) Through regulatory interventions and direct financial subsidies, the CCP, for the purposes of advancing national political and economic objectives, directs, coerces, and influences in anti-competitive ways the commercial activities of firms that are directed, financed, influenced, or otherwise controlled by the state, including state-owned enterprises, and ostensibly independent and private firms; and thereby pursue global dominance of key sectors.

(4) The PRC Government, at the national and subnational levels, grants special privileges and status to certain key sectors designated as strategic, such as telecommunications, oil, power, aviation, banking, and semiconductors. Enterprises receive state preferences in the form of favorable loans, tax exemptions, and preferential land access from the CCP.

(5) The subsidization of PRC companies, as described in paragraphs (3) and (4)—

(A) enables these companies to sell goods below market prices, allowing them to outbid and crowd out market-based competitors and thereby pursue global dominance of key sectors;

(B) distorts the global market economy by undermining longstanding and generally accepted market-based principles of fair competition, leading to barriers to entry and forced exit from the market for foreign or private firms, not only in the PRC, but in markets around the world;

(C) creates government-sponsored or supported de facto monopolies, cartels, and other anti-market arrangements in key sectors, limiting the availability or removing opportunities for other firms; and

(D) leads to, as a result of the issues described in paragraphs (A) through (C), declining employment, profits, and revenue needed by foreign and private firms for research and development.
(6) The CCP incentivizes and empowers PRC actors to steal critical technologies and trade secrets from private and foreign competitors operating in the PRC and around the world. In areas that the PRC has identified as critical to advancing PRC objectives, the PRC, as directed by the CCP, also continues to implement anti-competitive policies and practices to coerce the handover of technology and other property or sensitive data from foreign enterprises to domestic firms in exchange for access to the Chinese market.

(7) Companies in the United States and in foreign countries compete with state-subsidized and state-directed firms in market sectors globally. The advantages granted to PRC firms, combined with significant efforts to access and monopolize the PRC market itself, severely hamper the ability of United States and foreign firms to compete, innovate, and pursue the provision of best value to customers. The result is an unbalanced playing field. Such an unsustainable course, if not checked, will over time lead to depressed competition around the world, reduced innovation and harm to both producers and consumers.

(8) As stated in the United States Trade Representative’s investigation of the PRC’s trade policies under section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2411), conducted in March 2018, “When U.S. companies are deprived of fair returns on their investments in IP, they are forced to lower their investments necessary to reinvest in innovation. In this sense, China’s technology transfer regime directly burdens the innovation ecosystem that is an engine of economic growth in the United States and similarly-situated economies.”

(9) In addition to forced technology transfers described in this subsection, the United States Trade Representative’s investigation of the PRC under section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2411) also identified requirements that foreign firms license products at less than market value, government-directed and government-subsidized acquisition of sensitive technology for strategic purposes, and cyber theft as other key PRC technology and industrial policies that are unreasonable and discriminatory. These policies place at risk United States intellectual property rights, innovation and technological development, and jobs in dozens of industries.

(10) Other elements of the PRC’s ecosystem of industrial policies that harm innovation and distort global markets include—

(A) policies that encourage local production over imports;

(B) continuation of policies that favor unique technical standards in use by PRC firms over those defined by globally accepted standards, which often force foreign firms to alter their products and manufacturing chains to compete;

(C) requirements that foreign companies disclose proprietary information to qualify for the adoption of their standards for use in the PRC domestic market; and

(D) maintenance of closed procurement processes, which limit participation by foreign firms, including by setting terms that require such firms to use domestic suppliers, transfer know-how to firms in the PRC, and disclose proprietary information.

(11) The Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and associated industrial-policy efforts under this initiative, including the Digital Silk Road, are key vectors to advance the PRC’s mercantilist policies and practices globally. The resulting challenges do not only affect United States firms in the European Union; the Secretary of Commerce reported in a January 2020 report, the combination of concessional lend-
(D) assesses whether each company engaged in the activities described in subsection (a) is using or has used the stolen intellectual property in commercial activity in Australia, Canada, the European Union, Japan, New Zealand, South Korea, the United Kingdom, or the United States;

(2) FORM.—The report published under paragraph (1) shall be unclassified, but may include a classified annex.

(B) subsequently consents to the release of such information.

(b) SUBSIDIES AND DISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT DESCRIBED.—In compiling the report under subsection (a), the Secretary of State shall consider—

(1) statutory and other policies enacted or promoted by the PRC government that—

(A) discriminate in favor of enterprises in the PRC at the expense of foreign market participants;

(B) shield centrally administered, state-owned enterprises from competition; or

(C) otherwise suppress market-based competition;

(2) financial subsidies, including favorable lending terms, from or promoted by the PRC government or centrally administered, state-owned enterprises that materially benefit PRC enterprises over foreign market participants in contravention of generally accepted market principles; and

(3) the report also meets the definition of subsidy under article 1 of the Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures entered into in section 101(d)(12) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 3511(d)(12)).

(c) CONSULTATION.—The Secretary of State, in coordination with the Attorney General, Treasury, and the Trade Representative, may, as necessary and appropriate, consult with—

(1) other Federal agencies, including independent agencies;

other purposes relevant to advancing the success of the mission of the economic defense response team; (B) the United States Agency for International Development for the purposes of providing technical, humanitarian, and other assistance, generally; (C) the Department of the Treasury, for the purposes of providing advisory support and assistance on all financial matters and fiscal implications of the crisis at hand; (D) the Department of Commerce, for the purposes of conducting economic analysis and assistance in market development relevant to the partner country’s response to the crisis at hand, technology security as appropriate, and other matters that may be relevant; (E) the Department of Energy, for the purposes of providing advisory services and technical assistance with respect to energy needs as affected by the crisis at hand; (F) the Department of Homeland Security, for the purposes of providing assistance with respect to digital and cybersecurity matters, and assisting in the development of any contingency plans referred to in paragraphs (3) and (6) as appropriate; (G) the Department of Agriculture, for providing advisory and other assistance with respect to responding to coercive measures such as agricultural market closures that affect the partner country’s agricultural sector; (H) the Office of the United States Trade Representative with respect to providing support and guidance on trade and investment matters; and (i) other Federal departments and agencies as determined by the President. (4) Development within the United States Government of— (A) appropriate training curricula for relevant experts identified under paragraph (1) and for diplomatic representatives working or detailed non-Department of State personnel identified under paragraph (1). (B) appropriate contracts or appropriate protocols of assembly of such experts into one or more teams for deployment to a country actually or potentially threatened by coercive economic measures; and (C) procedures for ensuring appropriate support for such teams when serving in a country actually or potentially threatened by coercive economic measures, including, as applicable, logistical assistance, office space, information support, and communications. (5) Negotiation with relevant potential host country representatives and methods for ensuring the rapid and effective deployment of such teams, and the establishment of appropriate liaison relationships with local public and private sector officials and entities. (b) Collective commitments. (1) The President may make commitments on behalf of the United States Government to provide economic defense assistance with respect to economic defense activities that support the successful response to a country actually or potentially threatened by coercive economic measures that may involve the United States. (2) The United States has long taken tangibles steps—such as effective, verifiable, and enforceable arms control and non-proliferation agreements that support United States and allied security by— (A) promulgating the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons; (B) placing limits on the production, stockpiling, and deployment of nuclear weapons; (C) decreasing misperception and miscalculation; and (D) avoiding destabilizing nuclear arms competition.

(3) In May 2019, Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency Lieutenant General Rob Kehler stated, “China is likely to at least double the size of its nuclear stockpile in the course of implementing the most rapid expansion and diversification of its nuclear arsenal.” In China’s heyday, the PLA is building a full triad of modernized fixed and mobile-ground-based launchers and new capabilities for nuclear-armed bombers and submarine-launched ballistic missiles. (4) In June 2020, the Department of State raised concerns in its annual “Adherence to and Compliance with Arms Control, Non-Proliferation and Disarmament Agreements and Commitments” report to Congress that the PRC is not complying with the zero-yield nuclear testing ban and accused the PRC of “locking the door to the future of arms control” in its annual “Adherence to and Compliance with Arms Control, Non-Proliferation and Disarmament Agreements and Commitments” report. (5) The Department of Defense 2020 Report on Military and Security Developments Involving the People’s Republic of China states that the PRC “intends to increase peacetime readiness of its nuclear forces by moving to a launch-on-warning posture with a triad-of-platforms-based-force.” (6) The Department of Defense report also states that, over the next decade, the PRC’s nuclear stockpile—currently estimated in the low 300s—is projected to at least double in size as the PRC expands and modernizes its nuclear force. (7) The PRC is conducting research on its first potential early warning radar, with technical cooperation from Russia. This radar could indicate that the PRC is moving to a launch-on-warning posture. (8) The PRC plans to use its increasingly capable space, cyber, and electronic warfare capabilities against United States early warning systems and critical infrastructure in a crisis scenario. This poses great risk to strategic security, as it could lead to inadvertent escalation. (9) The PRC’s nuclear expansion comes as a part of a massive modernization of the PLA which, combined with the PLA’s aggressive actions, has increasingly destabilized the Indo-Pacific region. (10) The PLA Rocket Force (PLARF), which was established in 2015 to become a separate branch within the PLA, has formed 11 new missile brigades since May 2017, some of which are capable of carrying conventional and nuclear strikes. Unlike the United States, which separates its conventional and nuclear capabilities, the PLARF appears to merge both offensive and defensive nuclear forces, including dual-use missiles like the DF-26, but to task the same unit with both nuclear and conventional missions. Such flouting of the nuclear taboo could lead to inadvertent escalation in a crisis. The United States Defense Intelligence Agency determined in March 2020 that the PLA tested more ballistic missiles than the rest of the world combined in 2019. (11) A January 2021 report from the Institute for Defense Analysis found that many United States and international observers viewed China’s no-first-use policy with skepticism, especially in the wake of the expansion and modernization of its nuclear capability.

(12) The long-planned United States nuclear modernization program will not increase the United States nuclear weapons stockpile, but it predicates the modernization of our conventional military and nuclear expansion, and is not an arms race against China. (13) The United States extended nuclear deterrence: (A) provides critical strategic security around the world;
SEC. 3501. COOPERATION ON A STRATEGIC NUCLEAR DIALOGUE.

(a) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States:

(1) to pursue, in coordination with United States allies, arms control negotiations and sustained and regular engagement with the PRC—

(A) to enhance understanding of each other’s respective nuclear policies, doctrine, and capabilities;

(B) to improve transparency; and

(C) to help manage the risks of miscalculation and misperception;

(2) to formulate a strategy to engage the Government of the People’s Republic of China on relevant bilateral issues that lays the groundwork for bringing the People’s Republic of China into an arms control framework, including—

(A) ground-launched cruise and ballistic missiles;

(B) integrated air and missile defense;

(C) conventional nuclear weapons;

(D) intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance;

(E) space-based capabilities;

(F) missile defense systems; and

(G) command, control, and communications;

(3) to pursue relevant capabilities in coordination with allies and partners to ensure the security of United States and allied interests in the face of the PRC’s military modernization and expansion, including—

(A) a concrete plan for arms control talks, whether on a bilateral or multilateral basis; and

(B) if a trilateral arms control dialogue does not arise, what alternative plans the Department of State envisions for ensuring the security of the United States and its allies from Russian and Chinese nuclear weapons;

(4) to maintain appropriate missile defense capabilities to protect against threats to the United States homeland and our forces across the theater from rogue intercontinental ballistic missiles from the Indo-Pacific region and North Korea.

(b) FINDINGS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the People’s Republic of China became a full participant of the Nuclear Suppliers Group in 2004, committing it to apply a strong presumption of denial in exporting nuclear-related items that a foreign country could divert to a nuclear weapons program.

(2) the People’s Republic of China also committed to the United States, in November 2000, to abide by the foundational principles of the 1986 Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) to not “assist, in any way, any country in the development of ballistic missiles that can be used to deliver nuclear weapons (i.e., missiles capable of delivering a payload of at least 500 kilograms to a distance of at least 300 kilometers)”.

(3) the United States requires the People’s Republic of China, as a full participant of the Nuclear Suppliers Group, to provide assurance to Congress of its full participation in the Nuclear Suppliers Group.

(4) the United States Department of State envisages for ensuring the security of the United States, its allies, and partners if the United States is faced with two nuclear-armed peer competitors and any likely corresponding implications for regional security architectures.

(5) the interest level of the Government of the People’s Republic of China in joining arms control talks, whether on a bilateral or multilateral basis; and

(6) the People’s Republic of China’s bid to build two reactors in Saudi Arabia to generate 2.9 Gigawatt-electric (GWe) of electricity.

(c) APPROPRIATE COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS DEFINED.—In this section, the term “appropriate committees of Congress” means—

(1) the Committee on Armed Services, and the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives;

(2) the Committee on Foreign Affairs, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 3503. REPORT ON UNITED STATES EFFORTS TO ENGAGE THE PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF CHINA ON NUCLEAR ISSUES AND BALLISTIC MISSILE ISSUES.

(a) REPORT ON THE FUTURE OF UNITED STATES-CHINA ARMS CONTROL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State, in coordination with the Secretary of Defense, shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report that examines the approaches and strategic considerations of the People’s Republic of China on arms control and risk reduction, including—

(1) areas of potential dialogue between the Governments of the United States and China, including on ballistic, hypersonic glide, and cruise missiles, conventional forces, nuclear, space, and cyberspace issues, as well as other new strategic domains, which could reduce the likelihood of war, limit escalation if a conflict were to occur, and constrain a destabilizing arms race;

(2) how the United States Government can incentivize the Government of the People’s Republic of China to engage in a constructive dialogue with the People’s Republic of China, including on ballistic, hypersonic glide, and cruise missiles, conventional forces, nuclear, space, and cyberspace issues, as well as other new strategic domains, which could reduce the likelihood of war, limit escalation if a conflict were to occur, and constrain a destabilizing arms race;

(3) how the United States Government can incentivize the Government of the People’s Republic of China that the United States Government is most concerned with regarding these capabilities, which may benefit United States and allied security interests;

(4) mechanisms to avoid, manage, or control nuclear, conventional, and unconventional military escalation between the United States and the People’s Republic of China;

(5) the personnel and expertise required to effectively engage the People’s Republic of China in strategic stability and arms control dialogues; and

(6) opportunities and methods to encourage transparency from the People’s Republic of China.

(b) REPORT ON ARMS CONTROL TALKS WITH THE RUSSIAN FEDERATION AND THE PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF CHINA.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Energy, shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report that describes—

(1) a concrete plan for arms control talks that includes both the People’s Republic of China and the Russian Federation; undisclosed uranium yellowcake extraction facility in Saudi Arabia allegedly constructed with the assistance of the People’s Republic of China, which if confirmed, would indicate significant progress by Saudi Arabia in developing the early stages of the nuclear fuel cycle that precede uranium enrichment.

(b) Saudi Arabia’s outdated Small Quantities Protocol and its lack of an in-force Additional Protocol to its International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Comprehensive Safeguards Agreement severely curtails IAEA inspection and has led the Agency to call upon Saudi Arabia to either resubmit or update its Small Quantities Protocol.

(b) MTCR TRANSFERS.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a written determination, and any documentation to support that determination detailing—

(2) the sanctions the President has imposed or intends to impose pursuant to section 112(b)(1) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. 4612(b)) against any foreign person who knowingly engaged in the export, transfer, or trade of that item or items.

(c) THE PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF CHINA’S NUCLEAR PROGRAM.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report detailing—

(1) whether any foreign person in the People’s Republic of China engaged in cooperation with any other foreign person in the previous three fiscal years in the construction of any nuclear-related fuel cycle facility or activity that has not been notified to the IAEA and would be subject to complementary access if an Additional Protocol was in force; and

(2) the policy options required to prevent and respond to any future effort by the People’s Republic of China to export to any foreign person an item classified as “plants for the separation of isotopes of uranium” or “plants for the processing of irradiated nuclear reactor fuel elements” under Part 110 of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission export licensing authority.

(d) FORM OF REPORT.—The determination required by subsection (b) and the report required under subsection (c) shall be unclassified with a classified annex.

Title I—ENSURING DOMESTIC MANUFACTURING CAPABILITIES

Subtitle A—Build America, Buy America

Sec. 4010. Short title.
PART I—BUY AMERICA SOURCING REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 4111. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—
(1) the United States must make significant investments to install, upgrade, or replace the public works infrastructure of the United States;
(2) with respect to investments in the infrastructure of the United States, taxpayers expect that their public works infrastructure will be produced in the United States by American workers;
(3) United States taxpayer dollars invested in public infrastructure should not be used to reward companies that have moved their operations, investment dollars, and jobs to foreign countries or foreign factories, particularly those that do not share or openly flout the commitments of the United States to environmental, worker, workplace safety, and responsible investments to install, upgrade, or replace the public works infrastructure of the United States in accordance with the high ideals embodied in the environmental, worker, workplace safety, and other regulatory requirements of the United States;
(4) in procuring materials for public works projects, entities using taxpayer-financed Federal assistance should give a preference to companies that have moved their operations, investment dollars, and jobs to foreign countries or foreign factories, particularly those that do not share or openly flout the commitments of the United States to environmental, worker, workplace safety, and regulatory requirements of the United States;
(5) common construction materials used in public works infrastructure projects, including steel, iron, manufactured products, nonferrous metal, and polymers produced in the United States (including polyvinylchloride, composite building materials, and polymers used in fiber optic cables), concrete and other aggregates, glass (including optical glass), lumber, and drywall are not adequately covered by a domestic content procurement preference, thus limiting the impact of taxpayer purchases to enhance supply chains in the United States;
(6) the benefits of domestic content procurement preferences extend beyond economics;
(7) by incentivizing domestic manufacturing, domestic content procurement preferences are an effective lever to help the United States in common sense approaches to prevent climate change and processes using the highest labor and environmental standards in the world;
(8) strong domestic content procurement preferences can provide significant improvements in production to countries that rely on production practices that are significantly less energy efficient and far more polluting than those in the United States;
(9) for over 75 years, Buy America and other domestic content procurement preferences have been part of the United States procurement policy, ensuring that the United States can build and rebuild the infrastructure of the United States with high-quality American-made materials;
(10) before the date of enactment of this Act, a domestic content procurement preference requirement may not apply, may apply only to a portion of products and materials, or may be limited by waiver with respect to many infrastructure programs, which necessitates a review of such programs, including programs for roads, highways, and bridges, public transportation, water systems, electrical transmission facilities and systems, utilities, broadband infrastructure, and buildings and real property;
(11) Buy America laws create demand for domestically produced goods, helping to sustain and grow domestic manufacturing and the millions of jobs domestic manufacturing supports throughout product supply chains;
(12) as of the date of enactment of this Act, domestic content procurement preference policies apply to all Federal Government procurement and to various Federal-aid infrastructure projects that receive Federal financial assistance program; and
(13) a robust domestic manufacturing sector is a vital component of the national security of the United States;
(14) as procuring operations of the United States have moved offshore, the strength and readiness of the defense industrial base of the United States has been diminished;
(15) domestic content procurement preferences—
(A) are fully consistent with the international obligations of the United States; and
(B) together with the government procurements to which the laws apply, are important levers for ensuring that United States manufacturers can access the government procurement markets of the trading partners of the United States.

(i) the manufactured product was manufactured in the United States; and
(ii) the cost of the components of the manufactured product that are produced, or manufactured in the United States is greater than 55 percent of the total cost of all components of the manufactured product, unless another standard for determining the minimum amount of domestic content of the manufactured product has been established under applicable law or regulation; and
(C) in the case of construction materials, that all manufacturing processes for the construction material occurred in the United States.
(7) PROJECT.—The term "project" means the construction, alteration, maintenance, or repair of infrastructure in the United States.

TITLE I—FINANCIAL SERVICES

SEC. 5101. FINDINGS ON TRANSPARENCY AND DISCLOSURE; SENSE OF CONGRESS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) More than 2,000,000 corporations, limited liability companies, and other similar entities are formed under the laws of the States each year whose 2,000,000 entities are formed by persons outside of the United States, including by persons in the People’s Republic of China.

(2) Most or all States do not require information about the beneficial owners of the corporations, limited liability companies, or other similar entities formed under the laws of the States.

(3) Malign actors seek to conceal their ownership of corporations, limited liability companies, or other similar entities in the United States to facilitate illicit activity, including money laundering, the financing of terrorism, proliferation financing, serious tax fraud, human and drug trafficking, counterterrorism, piracy, securities fraud, financial fraud, economic espionage, theft of intellectual property, and acts of foreign corruption, which harm the national security interests of the United States and allies of the United States.

(4) National security, intelligence, and law enforcement investigations have consistently been impeded by a lack of ability to reliably and promptly obtain information identifying the persons that ultimately own corporations, limited liability companies, or other similar entities, especially entities engaged in illicit activity, as documented in reports and testimony by officials from the Department of Justice, the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of the Treasury, the Government Accountability Office, and other agencies.

(5) In the National Strategy for Combating Terrorist and Other Illicit Financing, issued in 2020, the Department of the Treasury found the following: “Misuse of legal entities to hide a criminal beneficial owner or illegal source of funds continues to be a common, if not the dominant, feature of illicit finance schemes, especially those involving money laundering, predicate offences, tax evasion, and proliferation financing.”

(6) Federal legislation, including the Anti-Money Laundering Act of 2020 (division F of Public Law 116–283) and the Corporate Transparency Act (title LXIV of division F of Public Law 116–283), combating the crime of money laundering and providing for the collection of beneficial ownership information by the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network of the Department of the Treasury (referred to in this section as “FinCEN”) with respect to corporations, limited liability companies, or other similar entities formed under the laws of the States has recently been enacted to:

(A) set a clear Federal standard for incorporation practices;

(B) better enable critical national security, intelligence, and law enforcement efforts to identify and counter money laundering, the financing of terrorism, and other illicit activity; and

(C) bring the United States into compliance with international standards with respect to anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism.

(7) Providing beneficial ownership information to FinCEN is especially important in cases in which foreign firms, including those in the People’s Republic of China or subject to the jurisdiction of the People’s Republic of China, seek to acquire United States firms and the valuable intellectual property of those firms in a manner that poses a threat to the national security of the United States.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the Secretary of the Treasury should implement the Anti-Money Laundering Act of 2020 (division F of Public Law 116–283), including the Corporate Transparency Act (title LXIV of division F of Public Law 116–283), within the timelines required under those Acts, including the elements of those Acts designed to enhance the ability and financial regulators to adopt and implement anti-money laundering best practices, mitigate burdens on small businesses, ensure the security of beneficial ownership information as provided for by those Acts, and address specific concerns relating to abuses of anonymous shell companies by Chinese entities and the Government of the People’s Republic of China.

(1) the pharmaceutical and medical devices industry;

(2) the renewable energy industry;

(3) the steel and aluminum industries; and

(4) such other industries as the task force considers appropriate.

SEC. 5103. EXPANSION OF STUDY AND STRATEGY ON MONEY LAUNDERING BY THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA TO INCLUDE RISKS OF CONTRIBUTING TO CORRUPTION.

DISCHARGED NOMINATION

The Senate Committee on the Judiciary was discharged from further consideration of the following nomination by yea-nay vote Vote and the nomination was placed on the Executive Calendar:

KRISTEN M. CLARKE, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE AN ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL.
Fund transportation infrastructure in the very communities you scrutinize for gang violence, help the children get home safely.
Create and support more after school programs and activities.
Provide students with mentors and examples of a life alternative to the poverty and violence that many of us are facing.
Support mental health experts and trauma experts of color, who are specifically trained to deal with the unique trauma they face.
I listened to young people share the heart-wrenching truths of encounters with gun violence, the broken juvenile justice system, and improperly trained mental health professionals—if they are afforded the opportunity to be in proximity to these professionals at all.
Suicide prevention starts with recognizing the warning signs of suicide and taking them seriously, and talking openly about suicidal thoughts and feelings can save lives.
Although suicide has long been a serious public health problem, the recent and sudden change ushered in by COVID–19 threatens to increase the incidence of people for whom suicide seems the only viable solution.
By looking out for one another, matching people with the help they need, and helping those who are hurting feel more connected, people who are contemplating suicide have an opportunity to recover and live lives of meaning and purpose.
For this reason, I ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote in support of H.R. 2862.

IN SUPPORT OF H.R. 2862 CAMPAIGN TO PREVENT SUICIDE
HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE OF TEXAS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021
Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2862, the “Campaign to Prevent Suicide Act,” which creates an educational campaign recommended by suicide prevention advocates and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to raise awareness for a three-digit suicide lifeline phone number, suicide prevention resources, and more effective discourse on how to prevent suicide.
This bipartisan legislation is designed to help change the culture around suicide so that all Americans know to engage rather than ignore individuals who might be experiencing suicidal thoughts, and it would:
Fund campaigns to share information about suicide prevention resources like the suicide prevention lifeline, which has been shown to save lives; and Create new media tools to help television and social media know how to shape the national conversation we need to reduce suicide.
America and Texas face a suicide crisis, and we must come together to fight this tragic epidemic.
Each day in Texas there are more than 6 suicide deaths and nearly 30 hospitalizations for attempted suicide.
Suicide is the 11th leading cause of death for Texans and the third leading cause of death among youth ages 15 to 24.
60 percent of Texas suicide deaths occur among people 25 to 64 years of age.
Rates of suicide among Whites increased 12 percent since 2000, particularly among females; rates among Blacks and Hispanics have remained stable during the same time.
Estimated medical costs of Texas hospitalizations for suicide attempts average $8,849 per patient, or more than $95.6 million annually.
We need to start talking about suicide, and we need to keep talking.
For this reason, in 2019, I convened a panel to discuss mental health and suicide and an all-youth panel to account for how students handle their mental health and what policies they want to see come from Congress.
It was a beautiful and absolutely necessary convening of young people.
They shared with us and tasked us with the solutions and measures they know will positively impact their communities and their generation.
One problem was raised time and time again during the course of this panel: There are far too few resources available to our young people, especially our young people of color, to truly support the staggering prevalence of mental health ailments and effectively combat the growing number of youth suicide.
Matthew 21:16 says: from the mouths of babies shall come praise, and on that day from the mouths of babies came solutions:

IN RECOGNITION OF QUIRISTIN WALKER
HON. LAUREN UNDERWOOD OF ILLINOIS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021
Ms. UNDERWOOD. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize Quristin Walker for her service in my office in Washington, D.C.
Quristin joined our team as a staff assistant on my very first day in office in January of 2019. She was one of just three original staff members charged with setting up a Congressional office, a task which those who have done know is not for the faint of heart. Quristin played an integral role in setting up systems and ensuring every constituent, whether by walk-in, call, or tour request, was responded to in a timely, courteous manner that was demonstrative of my commitment of service to the people of the 14th Congressional District of Illinois. She went above-and-beyond in her role as intern coordinator, often giving life advice to young people with hearts for service that extended far past the walls of my office. She was a listening ear and source of support through moves, graduations, next career steps, and more, as an accessible mentor to so many who came through our internship program.
Quristin’s respect for all who entered or called the office, cheery demeanor, and frequent pick-me-up treats and Beyoncé music for the team proved to be invaluable assets that kept our team smiling through all the joys and challenges of our work the past two-and-a-half years. Although Quristin may be leaving our office, our community in northern Illinois and my entire staff will always consider her Team Underwood.
Prior to joining my staff, Quristin earned a Bachelor’s degree from Northern Illinois University and she currently is pursuing a Master’s degree from American University. She is a proud alumna of the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation Fellowship Program. Our office will miss her.
Madam Speaker, I would like to formally thank Quristin Walker for her service to my office, to Illinois’s 14th Congressional District, and to our country.

STEM OPPORTUNITIES ACT
SPEECH OF
HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON OF TEXAS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 17, 2021
Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, our economic competitiveness and national prosperity depend in large part on our capacity to lead the world in science and innovation. We need a STEM workforce that is equipped with the knowledge and skills to meet the needs of today’s industries and make breakthrough discoveries that will launch future industries. We are having a spirited debate in Congress about how to ensure ourselves to maintain our leadership position in science and innovation, especially with respect to China. In debating how much we invest, at what agency, and in what form, we cannot lose sight of a key advantage of ours—our diversity.

Research provides compelling evidence that diversity unlocks innovation, yet we have failed to fully leverage the diverse talent available to us. Of particular concern is the underrepresentation of women and minority researchers in STEM faculty positions. According to the National Science Foundation’s recently released report entitled, Women, Minorities, and Persons with Disabilities in Science and Engineering, women hold only 25 percent of full professor positions in STEM. The numbers are even more striking for faculty in racial and ethnic minority groups. Black STEM faculty represent only 2.5 percent of full professors across all science disciplines, while only 4.6 percent of full professors are Hispanic. In some fields, the disparity is particularly stark. Women make up only 19 percent of full professors in computer science and 11 percent in engineering. The number of Black and Hispanic professors in computer science are so small, they cannot be reported without compromising their privacy. In engineering, 2.5 percent of professors are Black and 4.3 percent are Hispanic. This lack of diversity in the academic workforce is holding us back. It is critical to ensure STEM faculty resemble the students they are teaching. When students see someone who looks like them in a career they want to pursue, they are more likely to see it as an achievable goal. Diversity of perspectives also advances research and leads to new lines of inquiry. Without diverse STEM faculty, we cannot grow the STEM workforce and advance the research and innovation we need to take on the pressing challenges ahead and to compete around the world.

The STEM Opportunities Act would empower Federal agencies and universities to identify and lower barriers to the recruitment, retention, and advancement of women, minorities, and other groups underrepresented in STEM studies and careers. The bill promotes an evidence-driven approach to these challenges. It requires agencies to collect comprehensive demographic data on the grant review process and on STEM faculty at U.S. universities. The bill supports research on participation of women in STEM careers and the implementation of best practices for increasing the recruitment and retention of minority students and faculty.

This bill also pushes Federal agencies to do more to ensure all researchers have a fair shot at receiving funding for their work. The Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) is directed to develop consistent federal policies for recipients of federal research awards who have caregiving responsibilities. The bill also requires consistent federal guidance to grant reviewers and program officers on best practices to minimize the effects of implicit bias in the review of federal research grants. It requires OSTP to develop guidance for universities and Federal laboratories to aid them in identifying any cultural and institutional barriers limiting the recruitment, retention, and achievement of underrepresented groups in academic and government STEM research careers, and in developing and implementing current best practices for reducing such barriers.

I have been working on a version of this legislation for nearly 15 years. I thank Ranking Member Lucas for joining me last Congress, and again this Congress, in making this a bipartisan bill. I also thank the 25 organizations and institutions that have endorsed this legislation.

After the year we have just gone through, it is undeniable that science, and scientists, are critical to ensuring we are poised to handle the challenges ahead. We must act now to ensure we have the STEM workforce we will need. The STEM Opportunities Act is an important step in that direction. I look forward to working with my colleagues in both bodies to get this legislation over the finish line.

HONORING FIREFIGHTER JEFF KALP
HON. JOHN JOYCE
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Firefighter Jeff Kalp for his 16 years of service with the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Department in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

Firefighters’ commitment and service to our community are invaluable. Volunteer firefighters often are called on to respond to emergencies of all types. From battling structures fires to conducting search and rescue operations, volunteer firefighters respond immediately whenever disaster strikes. These heroes often go above and beyond—they teach first aid, educate students about fire and other dangerous hazards, and even install car safety seats for children. Through their diverse and often-difficult work, volunteer firefighters provide lifesaving services and are a staple of our local community.

Firefighter Kalp has worked throughout his career to serve the people of Somerset County. On behalf of Pennsylvania’s 13th Congressional District, I thank him for his work to protect life and property in our community and wish him continued health, safety, and success.

WASTEFUL GOVERNMENT SPENDING
HON. DON YOUNG OF ALASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. YOUNG. Madam Speaker, I would like to take this time today to warn my fellow lawmakers that the passage of any infrastructure legislation must hold contractors and project sponsors who receive federal dollars accountable for their performance or risk another round of failed government projects, financed or bailed out at taxpayers’ expense.

Too often, ventures financed by the federal government have failed to be completed or simply never worked and, in the end, it’s the taxpayers who are typically the big losers.

I will be working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to make sure that language is included in any infrastructure legislation that ensures that previous projects utilizing major federal assistance, that have defaulted and driven taxpayers out of pocket, cannot be eligible to reapply and do the same thing again.

The now-famous Solyndra solar energy project—the first major alternative energy infrastructure project launched by the Obama Administration as part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act—cost taxpayers over $500 million, but the solar panel manufacturer went bankrupt within a few years leaving taxpayers on the hook for almost all of a $535 million loan guarantee.

Later in the Obama Administration, in what can only be described as Solyndra 2.0, the Department of Energy committed $737 million to the development of the Crescent Dunes solar energy project in Nevada, also in the form of loan guarantees. That project still doesn’t produce electricity and taxpayers are out as much as $229 million of the outstanding DOE loan balance if not more. This is after the project received an additional $275 million in taxpayer money under Treasury’s Section 1603 program in 2017.

Only in Washington, DC does this scenario make sense. It is crucial that any energy infrastructure projects funded going forward, especially now that Congress is considering a much broader definition of infrastructure, should build in the kind of oversight and accountability measures that will minimize the potential for more boondoggles.

If we fail to do this, taxpayers will once again be left holding the bag and we will have failed to do our duty in terms of overseeing the programs we support while protecting taxpayers.

COMBATING SEXUAL HARASSMENT IN SCIENCE ACT
SPEECH OF
HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 17, 2021

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the United States has made great strides in recruiting more women to study science and engineering and pursue research careers. Despite this progress, women researchers remain underrepresented in many STEM fields, particularly in senior positions. For a long time, many assumed that as the number of women earning STEM degrees increased, the disparity at the top would narrow. But that has not been the case. Unfortunately, we continue to lose talented women at every stage of their research careers.

In 2018, the National Academies released a consensus report examining the consequences of sexual harassment on the careers of women in STEM. The report found that sexual harassment is pervasive in the sciences and it is banning women’s careers and driving talented researchers out of the field altogether. The report committee found that policies currently in place, such as Title IX, are ineffective at protecting individual researchers. The committee called on Federal science agencies, universities, and scientific societies to transparently examine the workplace climate, and to go beyond a culture of compliance by taking proactive steps to foster a safe and welcoming research environment.

The Combating Sexual Harassment in Science Act addresses key recommendations in the Academies report. This legislation directs the Office of Science and Technology Policy to issue uniform guidance to all Federal science agencies to implement reporting requirements for all grantees. I commend the National Science Foundation, the National Institutes of Health, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for their leadership in establishing such reporting requirements ahead of any mandate to do so. The bill also supports research to inform updated policies in the future, it seeks to incentivize culture change at universities, provide training for researchers, and it makes clear that sexual harassment should be considered as important as research misconduct, as recommended by the National Academies.

I want to thank Ranking Member LUCAS for his partnership in developing and introducing H.R. 2695. I also want to thank the 24 organizations that endorsed the legislation and the universities that provided input. I recognize that many universities continue to have concerns with some of the details even as they support the overall goals. I believe we arrived at a good compromise that protects the most vulnerable. I also believe some of the concerns are based on a misreading of the legislation. H.R. 2695 does not interfere with due process. It simply requires transparency while protecting privacy.

While sexual harassment in science is not a problem that can be solved with legislation alone, H.R. 2695 helps ensure that the Federal science agencies are doing their part. No researcher should be forced to choose between her passion for science and her right to protect her privacy.

H.R. 2695 helps ensure that the Federal science agencies are doing their part. No researcher should be forced to choose between her passion for science and her right to protect her privacy. I look forward to working with my colleagues in both bodies to send this legislation to the President’s desk.

HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Ms. JACKSON LEE, Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2981, the “Suicide Prevention Lifeline Improvement Act of 2021,” which bolsters aid for local suicide crisis centers.

This bipartisan legislation fully funds overburdened crisis centers, so that they can meet rising call volumes, and takes steps to alleviate call wait times and make support resources available to friends and family of those in crisis.

Specifically, the Suicide Prevention Lifeline Improvement Act:

- Significantly increases authorized funding for the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline;
- Requires HHS to develop and implement a plan to increase quality assurance, eliminate call wait times, implement evidence-based practices like follow-up, ensure resources are available to friends and family of those in crisis, and create guidelines to carry out periodic testing of the Lifeline;
- Requires increased coordination and data sharing between the Suicide Prevention Lifeline and the CDC;
- Creates a pilot program to research and employ innovative technologies for suicide prevention;
- Requires a study and report to Congress from both HHS and GAO on the plan implementation, the Lifeline’s services and data, as well as other recommendations for improvement to the Lifeline’s operations;
- America and Texas face a suicide crisis, and we must come together to fight this tragic epidemic.

In Texas, crisis centers handle the majority of local calls to the Suicide Prevention Lifeline. But in recent years, rising rates of suicide and limited funding for call centers have made it nearly impossible to consistently provide quality and timely support for Texans in need. Making matters worse, the COVID–19 pandemic has added constraints and elevated rates of mental illness.

Each day in Texas there are more than 6 suicide deaths and nearly 30 hospitalizations for attempted suicide.

Suicide is the 11th leading cause of death for Texans and the third leading cause of death among youth ages 15 to 24.

60 percent of Texas suicide deaths occur among people 25 to 64 years of age.

Rates of suicide attempts increased 12 percent since 2000, particularly among females; rates among Blacks and Hispanics have remained stable during the same time.

Estimated medical costs of Texas hospitalizations for suicide attempts average $8,849 per patient, or more than $95.6 million annually.

We need to start talking about suicide, and we need to keep talking.

Suicide prevention starts with recognizing the warning signs of suicide and taking them seriously, and talking openly about suicidal thoughts and feelings can save lives. Although suicide has long been a serious public health problem, the recent and sudden isolation, unemployment and precipitous change ushered in by COVID–19 threatens to increase the incidence of people for whom suicide seems the only viable solution.

By looking out for one another, matching people with the help they need, and helping those who are hurting feel more connected, people who are contemplating suicide have an opportunity to recover and live lives of meaning and purpose.

For this reason, I ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote in support of H.R. 2981.

REMEMBERING THE HONORABLE OTTO BEATTY, JR.
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. RYAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of the Honorable Otto Beatty, Jr., of Columbus, Ohio, who passed away May 14, 2021 at the age of 81.

Mr. Beatty, the husband to our distinguished colleague, Congresswoman JOYCE BEATTY, was an attorney and former state lawmaker, a leading figure in the fight for racial equality in Ohio. The couple married in 1992.

As a lawyer, Otto was able to successfully use his Columbus law firm to fight discrimination and fight for a more even playing field for Black and minority-owned businesses.

A true public servant, Mr. Beatty was first elected to the Ohio House in 1979, spending the next 18 years advocating for the disadvantaged, as well as for health care access and reform. He also served as special counsel to the Ohio attorney general, counsel to what would become the Ohio Legislative Black Caucus, and chair of the Ohio Commission on Minority Health.

Mr. Beatty was born in Columbus and received bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Howard University and a law degree from the Ohio State University. His grandmother, Mayme Moore, was a civil-rights activist who stood alongside the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. and helped found the Columbus NAACP.

Otto and his family have been trailblazers and strong advocates in many ways—true inspirations to us all. Besides his wife and my friend, Congresswoman JOYCE BEATTY, Otto is survived by two children: daughter Laurel Beatty Blunt, a judge on the 10th District Court of Appeals, and son Otto III, a Columbus attorney.

There is no doubt that Mr. Beatty was an absolute giant, a man deep with integrity and great business and political skills. I will remember him for his wonderful sense of humor and how much he adored JOYCE. I was very sad to hear of his passing and my prayers go out to the gentle lady, Mrs. BEATTY, and to all of Otto’s family and friends. He has left behind a tremendous legacy in Central Ohio and for the entire state.
Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the COVID–19 pandemic has created enormous disruptions to the scientific enterprise. The Committee on Science, Space, and Technology held two hearings to explore the challenges and learn what is needed to help the scientific community recover. Researchers and their students were kept away from the lab, significantly slowing progress on the research and limiting opportunities for mentoring. Research facilities were shuttered and conferences cancelled. Travel restrictions resulted in missed field campaigns and kept international students from joining their research groups on campus. These setbacks affected researchers and students across all scientific disciplines. Women and historically underrepresented groups were particularly affected. While the full cost of the pandemic in terms of lost research is not yet known, the Director of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) estimates that NIH alone lost $16 billion of research and the Director of the National Science Foundation (NSF) put the figure at $3 billion for NSF-funded research.

I am deeply concerned that these disruptions will have long-lasting consequences for the research ecosystem. One of the most urgent challenges we face is the potentially irreversible loss of research talent. The financial pressures of the pandemic forced many universities to institute hiring freezes for faculty positions. The STEM faculty job market contracted as much as 70 percent in 2020. Early career researchers are the most vulnerable to this contraction, even if it is not permanent. Too many are currently in limbo. After years of hard work and an enormous investment of resources to train these scholars, we simply cannot afford to let them slip through the cracks. If we are to keep ahead of our global competitors and ensure our security and prosperity, we must act now to mitigate a loss of human capital that would take decades to recoup.

The Supporting Early-Career Researchers Act provides a bridge to help recent Ph.D. graduates stay on their chosen career path as they weather this turbulent period. The legislation establishes a two-year, $250 million agency-wide early career fellowship pilot program at NSF. This will enable two cohorts of 1,600 fellows working in all STEM disciplines to carry out their research at the U.S. institutions of their choosing.

More than 30 organizations have endorsed H.R. 144. I want to thank Ranking Member LUCAS for joining me in introducing this bill and bringing it to the House Floor. I look forward to working with my colleagues in both bodies to see it enacted and funded quickly.

PUPPIES ASSISTING WOUNDED SERVICEMEMBERS FOR VETERANS THERAPY ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, May 12, 2021

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1448, the “PAWS for Veterans Therapy Act,” which is bipartisan legislation that directs the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to carry out a pilot program on dog training therapy, and to amend title 38 of the United States Code to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to provide service dogs to veterans with mental health illnesses who do not have mobility impairments. This legislation will reduce veteran suicide connected to mental health conditions by partnering veterans experiencing symptoms of PTSD and other post-deployment issues with service dogs through a Department of Veterans Affairs pilot program.

Dog therapy programs have a track record of reducing symptoms associated with PTSD, and through this pilot program, veterans are expected to experience an improved quality of life and abilities that promote safety as well as increased chances of survival. Many veterans have had their lives changed—in some cases, saved—by service dogs, and this bill would expand this treatment by launching a pilot program to make veterans with mental health issues such as depression eligible to receive service dogs.

According to a report from the Department of Veteran Affairs:

the number of veterans with mental health conditions such as post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and substance use disorders increased from 27 percent in 2001 to more than 40 percent in 2014, and an average of 20 veterans per day died by suicide in 2014; and 11 to 20 out of every 100 veterans (or between 11 and 20 percent) who served in operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom have PTSD in a given year; and 12 out of every 100 Gulf War Veterans (or 12 percent) have PTSD in a given year; and 18 percent of veterans suicides.

PTSD symptoms can include crying spells, anxiety, emotional control issues, fear of public spaces, drug abuse, and, most tragically, suicide.

A recent study led by the Purdue University College of Veterinary Medicine, found that veterans with service dogs produce more cortisol, a biomarker used as a metric of the effects of chronic and acute stress, than military veterans without a service dog in the home.

Moreover, veterans with service dogs reported having lower levels of anxiety, anger, sleep disturbances, and less alcohol abuse compared to veterans without service dogs.

We must do everything possible to combat veteran suicide, including innovative treatments like service dog therapy that address post-deployment mental health conditions.

Our veterans deserve every tool in the toolbox when it comes to their mental health, which is why I’m proud that this legislation encourages dog training therapy for veterans.

Congress can, and must, give veterans the opportunity to utilize the treatments that work best for them.

In Recognition of Landon Bailey

Hon. Lauren Underwood
Of Illinois
In the House of Representatives
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Ms. UNDERWOOD. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize Landon Bailey for his service in my office in Washington, D.C. Landon joined our office as scheduler at the beginning of the coronavirus pandemic. As our office transitioned to maximum telework status in March 2020 and we learned to serve Illinois' 14th District remotely, Landon played an integral role. He enthusiastically rolled up his sleeves and demonstrated patience, perseverance, and dedication to learning a new job, integrating with a new team, and serving the people of the 14th District of Illinois, all without the benefit of ever working in a physical office environment or meeting his colleagues face-to-face. While taking on that particular challenge is an experience shared by more than a few Americans during the coronavirus pandemic, the grace, humor, and kindness with which he approached the challenge sets him apart.

During his tenure, Landon shifted our external and internal scheduling processes from a primarily in-person operation to a primarily virtual operation. He learned and taught others how to Zoom, use Teams, and participate in hearings via WebEx—and often navigate multiple virtual events simultaneously. He liaised with hundreds of constituents and made sure each of them was able to connect with our office. Without his efforts, our District would not have been as well-served during this challenging time.

Landon's collegiality, get-it-done attitude, and grace under pressure were invaluable assets as we worked to keep our community safe, healthy, and informed in this unprecedented year.

Prior to joining my staff, Landon earned a Bachelor's degree in Political Science from Delaware State University, and his ability to narrate an impromptu team-building holiday fashion show like a pro.

Madam Speaker, I would like to formally thank Landon Bailey for his service to my office, to Illinois' 14th Congressional District, and to our country.

Recognizing the Retirement of Dr. Debra A. Draper

Hon. Mark Takano
Of California
In the House of Representatives
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. TAKANO. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to honor the service of Dr. Debra A. Draper, a Director of Health Care at the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), on the occasion of her upcoming retirement. Dr. Draper spent 14 years of her career at GAO, primarily overseeing evaluations of federal health care services for veterans and military service members. Dr. Draper brought with her to GAO more than 25 years of experience in health care administration, health services research, and health care consulting, as well as a Ph.D. in Health Services Organization and Research.

As she retires, Dr. Draper will leave a lasting legacy—not only at GAO, but at the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) and here in Congress. As Chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs, I am especially grateful for the work Dr. Draper and her team have done for this committee. As a Director at GAO, Dr. Draper has issued at least 80 written products, more than 45 of which were reports or written testimony prepared at the request or mandate of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs. Dr. Draper and her team have made hundreds of recommendations to improve the delivery of health care services to our nation's veterans, the majority of which have been implemented. Since 2010, Dr. Draper has testified at 12 hearings convened by the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs or its Subcommittees. She has been a trusted voice and provided meaningful insights on numerous issues within the Committee's jurisdiction. However, Dr. Draper's most significant contributions as a hearing witness have been on the topic of veterans' wait times for appointments at VA medical facilities, an issue that captured nationwide media attention in 2014. Dr. Draper's testimony and subsequent reports on this topic has been invaluable to helping the Committee understand VA's appointment scheduling processes and the lack of transparency in VA's reported wait times. Dr. Draper's body of work will continue to guide the Committee's oversight in this area, even after her retirement.

In 2015, GAO added VA health care to its biennial High Risk List, which focuses attention on federal programs and government operations that are vulnerable to waste, fraud, abuse, and mismanagement. In designating VA health care as a high-risk area, GAO identified five areas of concern: (1) ambiguous policies and inconsistent processes; (2) inadequate oversight and accountability; (3) information technology challenges; (4) inadequate training for VA staff; and (5) unclear resource needs and allocation priorities. Since 2015, amid significant leadership instability at VA, Dr. Draper has diligently monitored the Department's response to GAO's high-risk designation, engaging in countless meetings with VA officials and providing ongoing feedback on the Department's plans for addressing GAO's five areas of concern. While VA still has a significant amount of work to do to meet GAO's criteria for removal from the High Risk List, Dr. Draper has established a solid foundation for evaluating VA's future progress.

Please join me in thanking Dr. Draper for her many years of dedicated GAO service, which will have a lasting impact on veterans, VA, and the Congress. Throughout her time at GAO, she has been a highly respected leader, supervisor, mentor, and colleague, and she will undoubtedly be missed by those who have worked closely with her. My House Committee on Veterans' Affairs colleagues and I, and our staffs, congratulate her and wish her well in her richly deserved retirement.

R.H. 210, Rural STEM Education Research Act

Hon. Eddie Bernice Johnson
Of Texas
In the House of Representatives
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I was proud to join Ranking Member Lucas in introducing his Rural STEM Education Research Act. Access to high-quality STEM education has too long been place-based. For students who grow up in rural areas of this country, even in states that boast some of the world's best research universities, a STEM career may seem unattainable. Many rural students have never met a practicing scientist or engineer. Their teachers often struggle with limited resources for the STEM curriculum. It is unlikely that their schools have well-equipped science laboratories that may provide hands-on experiences that are known to inspire scientific curiosity and a love of STEM at an early age. The nearest science museum may be too far for a field trip, if the district can even afford to transport them. And broadband access remains an urgent challenge.

Yet we know with certainty that talent for science has nothing to do with where one is born, any more than it has to do with the color of one's skin or one's gender. Our country is filled with smart young people from all backgrounds who may one day contribute to our science and innovation leadership. In fact, we need them to contribute to our science and innovation future if we are to continue to compete on the global stage and develop solutions to our most pressing challenges. But these young people must first see it as a possibility for themselves, and that starts with access to high-quality STEM education and hands-on research experiences in their local schools.

The Rural STEM Education Act provides for research and development to increase access to STEM education opportunities in rural schools and to provide teachers with the resources they need to teach more effectively. The bill also directs the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) to develop a prize competition to advance research and development of creative technologies for expanded broadband access. This bill further provides for assessments of Federal investments in rural STEM education to be conducted by the National Academies and the Government Accountability Office.

H.R. 210 is a good, bipartisan bill. I am pleased that the House passed it today along with a series of other bills focused on growing, diversifying, and strengthening our STEM workforce for the future. I look forward to working with Ranking Member Lucas and colleagues in both bodies to enact all of these bills.
Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Firefighter Justin Blubaugh for his 16 years of service with the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Department in Somerset County, Pennsylvania. Firefighters’ commitment and service to our community are invaluable. Volunteer firefighters often are called on to respond to emergencies of all types. From battling structure fires to conducting search and rescue operations, volunteer firefighters respond immediately whenever disaster strikes. These heroes often go above and beyond—they teach first aid, educate students about fire and other dangerous hazards, and even install car safety seats for children. Through their diverse and often-difficult work, volunteer firefighters provide lifesaving services and are a staple of our local community.

NATIVE AMERICAN CHILD PROTECTION ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, May 12, 2021

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1688, the “Native American Child Protection Act,” (“NACPA”) which authorizes three programs aimed at ensuring that Tribes have the tools they need to treat, prevent, investigate, and prosecute instances of family violence, child abuse, and child neglect involving Native American children and families.

The original version of these programs passed as part of then-Senator John McCain’s Indian Child Protection and Family Violence Prevention Act, but the programs were never fully funded and have not been reauthorized by Congress. This legislation would do the following:

Establish a new National Indian Resource Services Center to provide tribes with technical assistance, advice, and training on addressing child abuse, family violence, and child neglect.

Support efforts to improve intergovernmental coordination between federal and tribal personnel responding to these issues.

Authorize grants through the Indian Child Abuse Treatment Grant Program to establish treatment programs and culturally appropriate services for the victims of child abuse and neglect in Indian Country.

Authorize formula grants to Tribes under the Indian Child Protection and Family Violence Prevention Program to support the hiring of caseworkers and the establishment and expansion of tribal programs that investigate, prosecute, and prevent incidents of child abuse, child neglect, and family violence in Indian Country.

American Indian and Alaska Native children and their families who experience child maltreatment or family violence often have few opportunities to access culturally-appropriate services to help them address the trauma from these events.

Furthermore, prevention funding is almost non-existent for this population, removing opportunities to prevent trauma—before it happens and avoid families and children slipping into crisis.

The federal government has a solemn responsibility to ensure that the most vulnerable members of Indigenous communities—children—are protected.

Guarding against crimes committed against our Native communities will always be one of my highest priorities, and this bill is a strong step in the right direction.

Native communities must have the support and resources necessary to help children learn, grow, and live healthy lives.

In Texas and across the country, too many Indigenous children have been victims of violence, abuse, and neglect.

The Federal government has an urgent responsibility to these children, and we should be doing all that we can to help them secure a bright future.

This legislation fulfills a promise made years ago to address the impact of abuse of Native children in federally-run boarding schools and prevent anything like it from ever happening again.

This promise was never fulfilled because these programs were never funded, and the Tribes never received the support they needed.

This is why we must pass this bill: to finally uphold our responsibility to help Tribes ensure that Native American children are safe and healthy.

This legislation will help ensure that the Federal government is upholding its commitments to help tribes and tribal organizations protect the next generation.

Every Native child must have access to community-based, culturally appropriate services that help them grow up safe, healthy, and spiritually strong—free from abuse, neglect, sexual exploitation, and the damaging effects of substance abuse.

For this reason, I ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote in support of H.R. 1688.

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Firefighter Rick Sanner for his 26 years of service with the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Department in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

MSI STEM ACHIEVEMENT ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 17, 2021

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the United States is facing grave challenges on many fronts. We are only beginning to emerge from a global pandemic, with the outlook still uncertain. Our critical infrastructure, our Federal agencies, and companies across all sectors are being hacked. We are racing to mitigate the destructive effects of climate change. Our economic competitiveness is threatened as competitors like China invest heavily in science and technology.

To solve these problems, we need a cadre of trained scientists and engineers pushing the boundaries of what we know and what we can achieve. So far, we have led the world in science and innovation with a STEM workforce that does not come close to representing the diversity of our nation. When a Black woman, Dr. Kizzmekia Corbett, is at the center of developing the mRNA vaccine that is helping us conquer the pandemic, we treat it as exceptional, instead of expected. If we maintain such a narrow perspective on who should be a scientist, if we continue to leave behind so much of our nation’s brainpower, we cannot succeed.

The good news is, we have highly successful models for increasing the diversity of STEM graduates. Minority serving institutions have long played a critical role in training and educating students of color in STEM fields. Student bodies at Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs), Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCUs), and Hispanic Serving Institutions (HSIs) are the most diverse in the nation. These and other minority serving institutions (MSIs) offer access to STEM education and a pathway to research or other STEM careers to students who might otherwise have limited opportunities. MSIs employ tailored initiatives, policies, and practices that meet students where they are, academically, financially, and socially, while moving students toward higher levels of academic achievement.

For this reason, I ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote in support of H.R. 810. The bill authorizes the Department of the Interior to conduct a feasibility study of the Chief Standing Bear National Historic Trail. From his birth on the banks of the Niobrara River in Nebraska until his death in 1908, Chief Standing Bear spent his life in a constant struggle to gain equality and justice for Native American people. Chief Standing Bear and the Ponca Tribe were forced in 1877 by federal treaty to leave their homeland in Nebraska for Indian Territory. The hardship of travel and the conditions of Indian Territory caused the deaths of many members of the tribe, including Chief Standing Bear’s son.

As a result, Chief Standing Bear became the first Native American recognized as a person in a federal court decision rendered in Omaha at the trial following his return. Chief Standing Bear’s case, United States, ex rel. Standing Bear, v. George Crook, started in 1877. The U.S. government argued, “that [Standing Bear] was neither a citizen, nor a person, so he could not sue the government.” Standing Bear’s lawyers argued that under the Fourteenth Amendment, Standing Bear and his fellow Ponca were both citizens and people and entitled to the same constitutional rights as other citizens of the United States.

The court fundamentally agreed with Standing Bear, writing, “That an Indian is a PERSON within the meaning of the laws of the United States . . . .” Following the decision, the judge released Standing Bear and his people, and they returned to their lands at the Niobrara where Standing Bear finally buried his son.

The Chief Standing Bear National Historic Trail tracks the 550-mile path traces the journey the native Poncas were forced to make in 1877 to Indian Territory in present-day Oklahoma. The trail also marks the route the tribe took in 1879, when they returned to their homelands in present-day Nebraska.

The court fundamentally agreed with Standing Bear, writing, “That an Indian is a PERSON within the meaning of the laws of the United States . . . .” Following the decision, the judge released Standing Bear and his people, and they returned to their lands at the Niobrara where Standing Bear finally buried his son.

Chief Standing Bear National Historic Trail Hence, the Chief Standing Bear National Historic Trail is one of the most important steps in the ongoing goal to educate the public about Chief Standing Bear and the Ponca tribe’s forced relocation to Oklahoma. This story transcends race, ethnicity, culture, and serves as a starting point to bringing about a greater understanding of tribal sovereignty, tribal rights, human rights, and equality for all peoples.

The establishment of this trail will increase the general public’s knowledge and awareness of the story of Ponca Chief Standing Bear, including his journey to Oklahoma and back and the historic court case in Omaha. For this reason, I ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote in support of H.R. 810.

HONORING FIREFIGHTER RANDY DIRIENZO

HON. JOHN JOYCE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Firefighter Randy Diriengo for his 36 years of service with the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Department in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

From battling structure fires to conducting search and rescue operations, volunteer firefighters respond immediately whenever disaster strikes. HONORING ROBERT STENSRUD AS IOWAN OF THE WEEK

HON. CYNTHIA AXNE
OF IOWA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mrs. AXNE. Madam Speaker, as Mental Health Month begins, I rise to ask the House of Representatives to join me in honoring Drake University Graduate Professor of the School of Education’s Department of Leadership, Counsel, and Adult Development, Robert Stensrud.

Professor Stensrud has been serving Iowa and its residents since he moved from Minnesota in 1970. He has dedicated his career to serving those with mental health needs and disabilities. He began his post-college career working with the Iowa Department of Education’s Rehabilitation Education and Services Branch. It was here where he provided vocational rehabilitation at the State Mental Health Institute serving inpatients experiencing acute psychosis, substance abuse, and related disorders. In this position, he began to understand the importance of having a solid, dependable, and loving community. Most people who were released from his care did not have a community to return to, so they often struggled to survive in society.

Professor Stensrud has since dedicated his career to ensuring that all people feel important and seen. Some of his recent research highlights the childhood to prison pipeline and school to prison pipeline, where without a sense of community and belonging, many individuals find themselves in less than ideal circumstances to combat their feeling of being an outcast. Professor Stensrud understood that in order to make a difference, it is essential to work with students from a young age to help combat these issues. Professor Stensrud has done research through a LAUNCH Grant funded by Drake Head Start and the Iowa Department of Public Health on how mental health consultation can help improve coordination services for kids and their families, as well as how to train teachers and first responders to identify signs of trauma in children and act accordingly.

Professor Stensrud’s next project will center around documenting the history and current operations of legacy farms in Iowa. Maintaining long-standing legacy farms is no easy task, and the pressures often become too much for farmers. These stressors have been a large contributing factor to the increasing rate of suicide among farmers. Professor Stensrud wants to ensure that farmers in Iowa feel seen and appreciated while honoring their family’s legacy and incredible accomplishments.

If Professor Stensrud’s had one message to leave people with, it would be to show kindness and compassion to others. It is essential that we take care of those around us who struggle with their mental health or who are in a tough situation. His greatest joy is the motivation he has for being a professor is watching his graduates go on to positively impact others and make the world a better place. As Professor Stensrud would say, you may not be able to change the world, but you can change a life that goes on to save another life, and another after that. Making people feel loved and wanted is the first step, and one I believe we should all strive to achieve. We should not allow people to suffer in silence, rather be an ear for them. It is my honor to recognize Professor Robert Stensrud as our Iowaan of the Week.

IN RECOGNITION OF JOHN CARLSON’S CAREER IN PUBLIC SERVICE

HON. MIKE GALLAGHER OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. GALLAGHER. Madam Speaker, today I rise in honor of the career and service of Hobart, Wisconsin resident, Mr. John Carlson.

Mr. Carlson’s notable Transportation Security Administration (TSA) career began in 2002, serving as the Assistant Federal Security Director (AFSD) for the Outagamie County Regional Airport, where he played a major role in the start-up of several TSA activities and assumed responsibility for day-to-day aviation security. In 2006, he was reassigned as the AFSD-Generalist at the Austin Straubel International Airport (GRB) Hub and Spoke Federal Security Director (FSD) staff where he handled compliance oversight, customer service, property accountability, safety, and model workplace strategies.

Given his extensive knowledge and leadership skills, Mr. Carlson would go on to assume roles where he was trusted to oversee a majority of TSA operations in four separate airports in northern Wisconsin: Austin Straubel International Airport, (GRB), Central Wisconsin Airport, (CWA), Rhinelander-Oneida County Airport (RHI) and Appleton International Airport (ATW formerly Outagamie County Regional Airport).

Before beginning his career of service with TSA, Mr. Carlson served the United States honorably for twenty years in the U.S. Army as an infantry and military intelligence officer until his retirement in 1995 as a Lieutenant Colonel. Mr. Carlson’s dedication and leadership in the state of Wisconsin are incredibly valuable, and the service he provides to Northern Wisconsin and his country is remarkable.

As we look back on Mr. Carlson’s career, there is no doubt that he dedicated his life and career to making the world around him a safer, better place. Mr. Carlson’s continued service to both his country and his community is worthy of our highest admiration.

HONORING FIREFIGHTER CRAIG NOLTE

HON. JOHN JOYCE

VA TRANSPARENCY & TRUST ACT OF 2021

SPEECH OF
HON. MARK TAKANO
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 17, 2021

Mr. TAKANO. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support Representative Bost’s bipartisan legislation, the “VA Transparency and Trust Act,” or H.R. 2911, and for which Representative Pappas, Representative Mann, and I are original co-sponsors. This bill provides additional oversight for the funds Congress made available to VA through the Families First Coronavirus Response Act and the CARES Act in 2020, as well as the American Rescue Plan which we passed earlier this year.

The purpose of H.R. 2911 is to direct the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to submit to Congress a detailed plan for obligating and expending coronavirus pandemic funding made available to the Department of Veterans Affairs by the Families First Coronavirus Response Act, the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security, or CARES Act, or the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021. H.R. 2911 also requires the VA Office of Inspector General to report to Congress semi-annually on VA’s actual expenditures and obligations, comparing it to its congressional budget and on other subjects. Finally, H.R. 2911 requires the Comptroller General of the United States to report to Congress twice—in 2022 and 2024—on VA’s process for developing its funding request, among other subjects.

Since the beginning of the coronavirus pandemic in early 2020, Congress has provided over $36 billion dollars in supplemental funding—that is, funds that are in addition to VA’s annual budget—to fund various pandemic-related operations and programs at VA.

Specifically, Congress provided to VA:
$60 million in the Families First Coronavirus Response Act in March 2020 to support medical services and medical community care;
$19,5695 billion in the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act in March 2020 to support medical services, community care, medical facilities, informational technology systems, general administration, and other purposes; and $16.694 billion in the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 in January 2021 to support medical care and health needs, supply chain modernization, the VA Office of Inspector General, a COVID–19 veteran rapid retraining assistance program, and other purposes.

With these significant investments in VA operations and programs, legislation is needed to ensure that VA efficiently and effectively ob-ligates and spends these funds to achieve Department goals. The legislation provides ongoing oversight opportunities for relevant Congressional committees until all funds have been expended for the VA Office of Inspector General and the Government Accountability Office to provide intermittent reviews of VA’s spending and allocation process, similar to prior reporting.

H.R. 2911 adds to the existing oversight on VA’s spending. It will enable greater transparency for Congress and the public to ensure that these funds are spent wisely to support critical VA programs and services as we recover from the COVID–19 pandemic.

IN MEMORY OF JAMES FRALEY

HON. ANDY BARR OF KENTUCKY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. BARR. Madam Speaker, I would like to honor a special Kentuckian, Mr. James Fraley, from Bath County, Kentucky.

Mr. Fraley was born May 7, 1928 in Midland, Kentucky to World War I veteran Burns Fraley and Austa Fraley. He graduated from Salt Lick High School in 1948. After graduation, he enlisted in the United States Air Force, where he served in Korea, Japan, and stateside for 4 years. He was honorably discharged in October 1954.

Following his military service, Mr. Fraley worked as one of the early Texas Eastern Transmission Pipeline employees in Wyoming for 35 years. After retiring, he drove a bus for Bath County Schools for 20 years, worked at Keenebank, was a 30-year member of the University of Kentucky’s 101 Club, and served on the Owingsville City Council. He was a 71-year member of the Free and Accepted Masons of Kentucky, where he served in several leadership roles. Mr. Fraley was also a mem-er of the Scottish Rite, the York Rite, Oleka Shrine Temple, and the Royal Order of Scotland. In 2018, Mr. Fraley received the Bath County Community Service Award in recognition for all the help and support he provided to an untold number of children in need of med-cal assistance through the Shriners Hospital.

Mr. Fraley was a servant leader who believed in helping others, particularly children.

Mr. Fraley was married to his late wife
Becky for 65 years and they had four children.
Through his service to his country and to his local community, Mr. Fraley certainly left a positive mark on this world. Mr. Fraley, a great American, passed away on March 19, 2021. I am humbled to honor the memory of Mr. James Fraley before the United States Congress.

HONORING THE LIFE OF REVEREND E. BAXTER MORRIS

HON. BARBARA LEE
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Ms. LEE of California. Madam Speaker, today I rise to pay tribute to Reverend E. Baxter Morris, the ninth and longest-serving pastor of the iconic First Baptist Church in Montgomery, Alabama.

Rev. Morris was a graduate of Selma University with a Bachelor of Theology Degree.
He studied at the University of Kentucky, Samford University Extension Division, and the National Baptist Congress of Christian Education. When he was still in school at Selma University, Rev. Morris was selected as First Baptist Church’s newest pastor in 1972.

The First Baptist Church was founded by 700 newly freed Black citizens after the Emancipation Proclamation was recognized in Montgomery in 1866. Church members completed the first church in 1867 on Columbus Street. The Columbus Street Church was destroyed by a fire, but was painstakingly rebuilt brick by brick using any bricks the parishioners could find. Completed in 1915, it became affectionately known as the “Brick A Day” Church.

The First Baptist Church played a pivotal role in the civil rights movement. Under the pastorship of Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, it became a meeting place for historic civil rights leaders. In 1961, it served as refuge for Freedom Riders who were subjected to mob violence at the Montgomery Greyhound Bus Station and was the target of a Klu Klux Klan attack when Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and other civil rights icons were worshiping inside.

For almost 50 years, Rev. Morris led the Brick A Day congregation and made it his mission to acknowledge and preserve its rich history, while also continuing the church’s legacy of progress and social change. In addition to shepherding his own congregation, Rev. Morris served in various roles at several other religious organizations, including the Montgomery-Antioch District Association of Baptist Churches and Missionary for the Alabama Baptist South East District State Convention.
He also dedicated more than 20 years of servces to the Montgomery Police Department as chaplain.

Rev. Morris was a pillar in his community and the true epitome of a servant leader.

Buoyed by the strength and example of his predecessors, Rev. Morris lived his life to give, support, and be a friend to many. Every year,
I bring young people from the Martin Luther King Jr. Freedom Center in Oak-ard, CA on the Faith and Politics Congressional Civil Rights Pilgrimage. Rev. Morris always recked them with enthusiasm, kindness, and appreciation. Upon learning of his passing, they were heartbroken because he taught them so much and had earned their respect and admiration.

Along with my youth leaders, I send our heartsfelt condolences and love to Rev. Morris’ family, the First Baptist Church family, loved ones, friends, and community.

Please join me in honoring Rev. E. Baxter
Morris and his many contributions to First Baptist Church, and the community of Montgomery, AL.

HONORING FIREFIGHTER CHRISTOPHER ALBRIGHT

HON. JOHN JOYCE
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. JOYCE of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Firefighter Christopher Albright for his 5 years of service with the Meyersdale Volunteer Fire Department in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

Firefighters’ commitment and service to our community are invaluable. Volunteer firefighters often are called on to respond to emergencies of all types. From battling structure fires to conducting search and rescue operations, volunteer firefighters respond immediately whenever disaster strikes. These heroes often go above and beyond—they teach first aid, educate students about fire and other dangerous hazards, and even install car safety seats for children. Through their diverse and often-difficult work, volunteer firefighters provide lifesaving services and are a staple of our local community.

Firefighter Albright has worked throughout his career to serve the people of Somerset County. On behalf of Pennsylvania’s 13th Congressional District, I thank him for his work to protect life and property in our community and wish him continued health, safety, and success.

HONORING ROBERT J. FINE, JR., OF ADMIRAL FARRAGUT ACADEMY

HON. CHARLIE CRIST OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 18, 2021

Mr. CRIST. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the outstanding contributions of Robert J. “Bob” Fine, Jr., Headmaster of Admiral Farragut Academy in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Mr. Fine is retiring from Admiral Farragut Academy after more than 30 years of service as an educator, administrator, coach, and leader in our local community. He first joined the school as a math teacher in 1989 and has served as Headmaster for more than two decades, beginning in 1998.

Mr. Fine is admired and beloved by hundreds of Farragut families and leaves an extraordinary legacy in the K–12 school’s history.
Under his exceptional leadership, the unique naval preparatory mission of Admiral Farragut Academy has endured since 1933, inspiring young leaders in military and civilian service. Under his tenure, the school also became co-educational and expanded to create a lower school for young children.

Mr. Fine is a pillar in the 13th Congressional District of Florida, having served on numerous nonprofit boards, including the St. Petersburg College Board of Trustees (where he served as Vice Chairman and Chairman), St. Petersburg College Foundation Board of Directors, Bayfront Medical Center Board of Directors, Florida Council of Independent Schools, Florida High School Athletic Association, and the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States.

Madam Speaker, it is my great honor to recognize the exemplary accomplishments in education and community service by Mr. Bob Fine before the U.S. House of Representatives.
