Whereas four Tuskegee Airmen, Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., Daniel "Chappie" James, Lucius Theus, and Charles McGee, later became generals in the Air Force;

Whereas, in 2006, a bill to award the Congressional Gold Medal to the Tuskegee Airmen "in recognition of their unique military record, which inspired revolutionary reform in the Armed Forces" was signed into law (Public Law 109-213);

Whereas, in 2008, the Tuskegee Airmen National Historic Site opened at Moton Field in Tuskegee, Alabama, to commemorate and interpret the heroic actions of the share their story of courage and bravery with younger
