A BILL

To permit employees to request changes to their work schedules without fear of retaliation and to ensure that employers consider these requests, and to require employers to provide more predictable and stable schedules for employees in certain occupations with evidence of unpredictable and unstable scheduling practices that negatively affect employees, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

1 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; FINDINGS.

2 (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the 3 “Schedules That Work Act”.

4 (b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

5 (1) The vast majority of the United States
6 workforce today is juggling responsibilities at home 7 and at work. In families with children, 45 percent of 8 mothers are primary breadwinners and 25 percent
9 are co-breadwinners.

10 (2) Despite the dual responsibilities of today’s 11 workforce, many workers have little notice of their 12 work schedules and lack the ability to make changes 13 to the work hours in such schedules, which under-14 mines their ability to accommodate family respon-
15 sibilities.

16 (3)(A) Mothers working in low-paid jobs are 17 more likely to be the primary or sole breadwinner for 18 their families than mothers working in higher-paid 19 jobs. For example, almost 90 percent mothers in the 20 $\frac{1}{5}$ of households in the United States with the low-
21 est incomes bring home all or most of their families’
22 income, which is almost 3 times higher when com-
23 pared to counterparts in the highest-income quintile.

24 (B) At the same time, low-paid workers often 25 have the least control over their work hours and face
26 the most unpredictable schedules. In some indus-

1 tries, “just-in-time” scheduling practices, which base 2 workers’ schedules on perceived consumer demand to 3 minimize labor costs, are particularly common. Em-
4 ployers using these practices often post work sched-
5 ules with little notice, vary work hours widely from 6 week to week, cancel shifts at the last minute, and 7 schedule employees for “on call” shifts (requiring an 8 employee to call in to work to find out whether the 9 employee will have to work later that day) or 10 “clopening” shifts (requiring an employee to work a 11 closing shift at night followed by an opening shift a 12 few hours later). For example, national survey data 13 show that—

14 (i) about $\frac{2}{3}$ of hourly retail and food serv-15 ice workers receive their work schedules with 16 less than 2 weeks’ advance notice and about $\frac{1}{3}$
17 receive their schedule with less than 1 week’s 18 notice;

19 (ii) more than 1 in 5 hourly retail and food
20 service workers have been scheduled for on-call 21 shifts, and more than 1 in 3 have worked 22 “clopening” shifts; and

23 (iii) 65 percent of hourly retail and food 24 service workers would like a more stable and 25 predictable schedule.

1 (4) Unfair work scheduling practices make it
2 difficult for low-paid workers to—

3 (A) provide necessary care for children and 4 other family members, including securing and 5 maintaining stable child care;

6 (B) access and receive needed care for the 7 workers' own serious health conditions;

8 (C) pursue workforce training;

9 (D) get or keep a second job, which many 10 workers need to make ends meet;

11 (E) plan for and access transportation to 12 reach worksites; and

13 (F) qualify for and maintain eligibility for 14 needed public benefits and work supports, such 15 as child care subsidies, Medicaid, and benefits
16 under the supplemental nutrition assistance
17 program, due to fluctuations in income and 18 work hours.

19 (5) A growing body of research demonstrates 20 that unstable and unpredictable work schedules have 21 significant detrimental impacts on sleep quality, 22 mental health, and happiness, and are associated 23 with unstable child care arrangements and negative 24 health and behavioral outcomes for children. And 25 impacts are likely to be the most severe for workers

1 of color and their families, as workers of color are 2 more likely than their White counterparts—even 3 compared to White coworkers at the same com-
4 pany—to experience unstable work schedules. Unsta-
5 ble and unpredictable work schedules are also associ-
6 ated with higher rates of turnover, which creates 7 further instability for employers and workers. Some 8 examples of the detrimental impacts of unstable and 9 unpredictable work schedules are as follows:

10 (A) Unstable work schedules lead to more
11 household economic strain and time conflicts 12 and undermine the well-being of parents, all of 13 which can negatively impact children’s health
14 and behavior.

15 (B) Workers with the most severe insta-
16 bility in their work schedules also face the high-
17 est risk of negative behavior and health out-
18 comes for their children.

19 (C) The exposure of a parent to on-call
20 shifts and last-minute shift changes are associ-
21 ated with more unstable child care arrange-22 ments and with the use of siblings to provide 23 care.

24 (D) Work schedule instability causes more
25 work-family conflict, which increases the chance

1 that a worker will be forced to leave his or her
 2 job, and is associated with downward mobility
 3 of the earnings of the worker.

4 (E)(i) Relative to White workers, workers
 5 of color are more likely to—

6 (I) have cancelled shifts;

7 (II) have on-call shifts;

8 (III) be involuntary part-time work-
 9 ers;

10 (IV) have trouble getting time off;

11 and

12 (V) work “clopeneing” shifts, as de-
 13 scribed in paragraph (3)(B).

14 (ii) The statistics described in clause (i) re-
 15 main true after controlling for demographics,
 16 human capital, worker power, firm segregation, 17 and discordance with the race or ethnicity of 18 the worker and the manager. Race gaps in job
 19 quality are greater for women of color.

20 (F) Workers who receive shorter advance
 21 notice, who work on-call shifts, who experience
 22 last-minute shift cancellation and timing
 23 changes, or who have more volatile work hours
 24 are more likely to experience hunger, housing

1 insecurity, and greater overall economic hard-2 ship.

3 (6) Unpredictable and unstable work schedules
4 are common in a wide range of occupations, with 5 evidence of particular concentration in food service,
6 retail, cleaning, hospitality, and warehouse occupa-
7 tions. These occupations are critically important to 8 the United States economy.

9 (7) Since 2015, ten municipalities in the United 10 States and the State of Oregon have enacted laws
11 requiring employers to implement fair scheduling
12 practices. Research from 3 municipalities affirms
13 that workers in jobs covered by these laws report
14 significantly better outcomes than their peers in un-
15 covered positions, including more predictable sched-
16 ules and compensation for employer-driven schedule
17 changes. Survey research also indicates that covered 18 workers experience improvements in well-being and 19 financial security.

20 (8) Scheduling practices that benefit employees
21 can benefit employers, too. Relative to their peers
22 with lower-quality schedules, workers with more
23 input, stability, and predictability in their work
24 hours report greater job satisfaction and less work
25 family-conflict, which can also improve productivity

1 and reduce turnover. For example, a randomized ex-
2 periment demonstrated that improving schedule sta-
3 bility and predictability for hourly employees at Gap
4 Inc. stores increased store productivity and sales.

5 (9) This Act is a first step in responding to the 6 needs of workers for a voice in the timing of their 7 work hours and for more predictable schedules.
