

sages from the House of Representatives or any other source during the period of adjournment between now and Monday next.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10:30 A.M. ON MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1969

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, in accordance with Senate Resolution 7, and as a further mark of respect to the memory of the late Senator BARTLETT,

I move that the Senate do now adjourn until 10:30 a.m. on Monday next.

The motion was unanimously agreed to; and (at 12 o'clock and 53 minutes p.m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, January 6, 1969, at 10:30 a.m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Friday, January 3, 1969

This being the day fixed by the 20th amendment of the Constitution for the annual meeting of the Congress of the United States, the Members-elect of the House of Representatives of the 91st Congress met in their Hall, and at 12 o'clock noon were called to order by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, Hon. W. Pat Jennings.

The Chaplain, Rev. Edward G. Latch, D.D., prefaced his prayer with these words of Scripture:

"Behold," saith the Lord, "I have set before thee an open door."—Revelation 3: 8.

Eternal God, our Father, as we enter the door of a new year and of a new Congress we pause in Thy presence to offer unto Thee the devotion of our hearts and to pray for guidance, strength, and wisdom as we face the crucial days that lie ahead.

In this high hour of a new beginning give to us, the leaders of our people, a deep sense of humility, a broad spirit of understanding, a great attitude of good will, and a real faith in Thee that we may govern well for the good of all and that freedom and justice may live long in our land.

Bless Thou our President as he leaves office ere long and our President-elect as he assumes his responsibilities. In this time of transition may there be a spirit of unity among us and may we go forward together to a greater nation and a better world.

We pray in the name of Him who taught His disciples to pray, "Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen."

The CLERK. Representatives-elect to the 91st Congress: This is the day fixed by the 20th amendment of the Constitution for the annual meeting of the Congress of the United States and for the 91st Congress.

As the law directs, the Clerk of the House has prepared the official roll of the Representatives-elect.

Credentials covering the 435 seats in the 91st Congress have been received and are now on file with the Clerk of the 90th Congress.

The names of those persons whose credentials show they were regularly elected in accordance with the laws of the several States and of the United States will be called; and as the roll is called, following the alphabetical order of the States, beginning with the State of Alabama, Representatives-elect will answer to their names to determine whether or not a quorum is present.

The reading clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk called the roll by States and the following Representatives-elect answered to their names:

The CLERK. The rollcall discloses that 430 Representatives-elect have answered to their names.

A quorum is present.

STATEMENT REGARDING CERTAIN CREDENTIALS

The CLERK. The Clerk will state that credentials are on file showing the election of the Honorable JORGE L. CORDOVA as Resident Commissioner from the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

ELECTION OF SPEAKER

The CLERK. The next order of business is the election of a Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 91st Congress.

Nominations are now in order.
Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI. Mr. Clerk, as chairman of the Democratic caucus, I am directed by the vote of the caucus to present for election to the office of the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the 91st Congress the name of the Honorable JOHN W. MCCORMACK, a Representative-elect from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Clerk, as chairman of the House Republican conference and by authority, by direction, and by unanimous vote of the Republican conference, I nominate for Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Honorable GERALD R. FORD, a Representative-elect from the State of Michigan.

The CLERK. The Honorable JOHN W. MCCORMACK, a Representative-elect from the State of Massachusetts, and the Honorable GERALD R. FORD, a Representative-elect from the State of Michigan, have been placed in nomination.

Are there further nominations? (After a pause.) There being no further nominations, the Clerk will appoint tellers.

The Clerk appoints the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. FRIEDEL), the gentleman from California (Mr. LIPSCOMB), the gentleman from Missouri (Mrs. SULLIVAN), and the gentleman from Illinois (Mrs. REID).

Tellers will come forward and take their seats at the desk in front of the Speaker's rostrum.

The roll will now be called, and those responding to their name will indicate by surname the nominee of their choice.

The reading clerk will call the roll.

The tellers having taken their places, the House proceeded to vote for Speaker.

The following is the result of the vote:

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—2

Ford, Gerald R. McCormack

The CLERK. The tellers agree on their tallies. The total number of votes cast is 423, of which the Honorable JOHN W. McCORMACK, of Massachusetts, received 241 and the Honorable GERALD R. FORD received 187.

Therefore, the Honorable JOHN W. McCORMACK, of Massachusetts, is the duly elected Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 91st Congress, having received a majority of the votes cast.

The Clerk appoints the following committee to escort the Speaker-elect to the chair: the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. GERALD R. FORD), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. ARENDS), the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. ALBERT), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BOGGS), and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. PHILBIN).

The Doorkeeper announced the Speaker-elect of the House of Representatives of the 91st Congress, who was escorted to the chair by the committee of escort.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, and old friends and new friends on both sides of the aisle, I stand before you today as the acknowledged champion among those who have tried to unseat the gentleman from Massachusetts from the Speaker's chair. There is nobody in this room who has tried harder nor oftener than I have, so I speak with the voice of experience when I say it is not an easy task. But I refuse to admit that three times is out.

Ever since the early morning hours of November 6, when like many Americans I had some difficulty getting to sleep, I have been pondering what I might say today that I have not already said on previous occasions about the pleasure of being defeated by our beloved Speaker. It is not an easy task to be gracious and magnanimous in defeat, although I may say in passing that both of our political parties in recent years have produced high examples of good losers in close presidential elections. But, it is an even sterner test of statesmanship and character to be magnanimous and gracious in victory—and for whatever comfort and consolation it may be to any of my colleagues I can testify that the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts has always been magnanimous and gracious to me—every time I have tried to take his gavel from him in the American political arena.

Reserving the right to try again in 1970, Mr. Speaker, may I congratulate you most warmly on behalf of myself and my Republican colleagues who voted against you. I assure you that as far as we are concerned, certainly, you may believe that we hold you in the highest respect and regard. There was absolutely nothing personal in the rolcall just recorded. Naturally, I hope it is not habit forming, but if I have to lose any election, there is nobody I would rather lose to than the gentleman from Massachusetts. In passing, let me add I have gained on him a little every time.

The 1968 election is behind us, the American people have spoken, and the 91st Congress is going through its birth pains. In this body, at least, each new Congress is a new creation of the electorate. It bears a strong family resemblance to its ancestors, but it is also different and unique. It comes, as the late, great Sam Rayburn said, every 2 years fresh from the American people. And the people will, I am sure, be as gratified as I was to read in this morning's Washington newspaper that they, and we, Mr. Speaker, have moved a fraction of an inch into the 20th century.

I did not have time to read the whole newspaper analysis, and I choose to hope that this headline referred to the somewhat increased ratio of Members on my side of the aisle, though I am not certain this was precisely Dave Broder's line of thought.

But I, for one, believe I see the 20th century mirrored in this room today. I can almost feel the tremendous problems and difficult challenges that the old year left upon all our doorsteps. As I see among us today many of our young sons and daughters, through the thoughtfulness of our Speaker, I think that we are not only seized of the 20th century but closing fast upon the 21st. And I think we are all, regardless of age or party or the constituency from which we come, determined to resolve for the 21st century and that generation our pressing national problems and to manfully meet for them the severe challenges of our own 20th century.

Nobody is more dedicated to this monumental task than you, Mr. Speaker, and I pledge myself once again to work with you and with the new administration toward the goal of a better and more unified America. I was delighted to hear the Speaker pledge on television last night that the majority Members in this body will be cooperative and constructive in their attitude toward the new Republican administration which the American people have chosen to lead us in the years ahead. I was delighted, but not surprised, because I know that our Speaker has never been a sunshine soldier or a summer patriot.

My congratulations to all of my colleagues who have successfully submitted their record of service to their constituents, and a very special welcome to the new Members of the 91st Congress on both sides of the aisle. You are embarking upon a most exciting, a most demanding, and a most satisfying job—one which demands an extra measure of energy and judgment and plain hard work—the job of speaking for hundreds of thousands of Americans who have given you their verdict of trust. Never let them and their best interests out of your mind, and you cannot go far wrong in this, the people's House.

Fellow Members, once more it is my profound personal pleasure and distinct honor to present to you an outstanding son of Massachusetts, a distinguished holder of the highest confidence this body can bestow, and above all a great gentleman and a great American, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Honorable JOHN W. McCORMACK. [Applause, Members rising.]

Mr. McCORMACK. My distinguished colleagues, I am deeply moved by the generous sentiments expressed by my good friend, the able and dedicated minority leader, GERRY FORD. His friendship has meant much to me during the years of our service together, and his courtesy and good will toward me have been unflinching.

I appreciate very much the confidence of my colleagues in the caucus and my election in the House again as Speaker of the 91st Congress.

Our relationship is symbolic of the spirit which pervades this historic Chamber. Partisan differences are not permitted to overcome personal respect and mutual regard. Here in the greatest legislative body in the world we meet for the purposes of accommodating differences, of informing ourselves about the problems of our troubled times, of evaluating the merits of proposed solutions to some of these critical issues, of enacting legislation for the good of the American people, and for the national interests of our country, and of offering to the world an example of the way in which a free people goes about the incredibly difficult task of governing themselves.

Each of us represents a different district. We are from different States and different regions of our vast country. We are members of different political parties. We are of different opinions, conscientiously held, on many matters. Yet, for all of these differences, here in this House we strive to achieve accommodations on complex issues. We resolve some of our thorny problems by compromises openly reached after extensive hearings in committee and after debate in the House, and after painstaking consideration of the wishes and the views of the people of our districts and of the best interests of our country.

Reasonable compromise under a precious parliamentary tradition of majority rule is the means by which we preserve our cherished freedom. Compromise and good will, not confrontation, emotionalism, and hate, are the means by which the legislative affairs of the greatest nation on earth are conducted. "Confrontation," a newly popular term for ancient evil, would destroy our freedom.

You, my friends, have chosen me to perform the parliamentary functions of Speaker. I am grateful for that high honor and, as in the past, which I emphasize, I am resolved to conduct this great office impartially and always protecting the prerogatives and the rights of the House of Representatives and its Members. Our parliamentary usages, arrived at after generations of experience, make a legislative assembly of what otherwise would be a crowd—a crowd whose members, however able and patriotic, would be unable to perform their representative functions. Our rules of order, which I have been chosen to apply and interpret, make possible the pooling of the human insight of which we have such rich stores in this Chamber.

Progress in legislation is possible only when there is order in deliberations. Partisanship has no place in insuring that order. There was no middle of the aisle in the applications of the standards of fairness and rectitude through our deliberation.

I welcome the new Members today to their participation in one of the great achievements of the human mind and spirit, to traditions that are the very essence of legislative government. The personal respect that Members of this House have for each other is part of the tradition of procedural fairness that makes possible liberty under law.

I pledge to each of you—to the new and to the experienced Members alike—my utmost exertion and devotion to the responsibilities of the Office of Speaker.

And, may I say a few words about a man who is retiring, or who will retire on January 20 as President of the United States, voluntarily retiring, whom I have known for over 30 years. His life shows the strength of America, his life shows that opportunity is open to everyone to reach the highest possible within the goal of our people. Many of the children of Members who are here today and others of their generation throughout the country who will be leaders of our country tomorrow should have the ambition, the determination and the willingness to make all sacrifices, because the opportunity exists under our form of government.

I have known President Johnson for over 30 years. He served in this House, he served in the other body, he served as the Vice President of the United States and has served as President of the United States. When he first came to Congress he was an Assistant Doorkeeper in the House of Representatives, showing that the doors of opportunity are open to all, to all Americans, not only this generation but all generations to come. And, while there are honest differences about this or that problem, I believe we can all agree that he dedicated himself to the service of our people as our Chief Executive, that his motives were of the highest. He always had uppermost in his mind on the domestic level, the strength and progress of our people, and on the international level the national interest of our country.

When emotionalism of a period has gone by one can be judged with calmness and from a rational angle, particularly when the historians of tomorrow interpret the events which have transpired during the tenure in office of President Johnson as our Chief Executive.

Further, it is my confident opinion that he will go down in history as one of the great Presidents of American history.

Again, I express my sincere thanks to my colleagues and I also want to assert that I had rather be known as the Members' Speaker than any other characterization that could be given to me, because I love this body; I deeply respect every Member of this body.

The greatest tribute that could be paid to me in the years that lie ahead would be that JOHN McCORMACK was a Member's Speaker.

I now ask the dean of the House of Representatives, the Honorable EMANUEL CELLER, of New York, to administer the oath.

Mr. CELLER then administered the oath of office to Mr. McCORMACK, of Massachusetts.

SWEARING IN OF MEMBERS

The SPEAKER. According to the precedent, the Chair will swear in all Members of the House at this time.

If the Members will rise, the Chair will now administer the oath of office.

OBJECTION TO ADMINISTRATION OF OATH

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Iowa rise?

Mr. GROSS. To state an objection to the seating of a Member-elect.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his objection.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, upon my responsibility as a Member-elect of the 91st Congress, I object to the oath being administered at this time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL). I intend at the proper time to offer a resolution to exclude the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL) from membership in the House of Representatives.

The SPEAKER. Under the precedents, the Chair will ask the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL) not to rise to take the oath when the other Members rise, at least for the present.

SWEARING IN MEMBERS

The SPEAKER. The Chair will now administer the oath of office.

The Members-elect, other than the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL) and the Resident Commissioner-elect rose, and the Speaker administered the oath of office to them.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER).

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING AND DIRECTING THE OATH OF OFFICE TO BE ADMINISTERED TO ADAM CLAYTON POWELL

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 1) which I send to the Clerk's desk.

H. RES. 1

Resolved, That the gentleman from New York, Mr. Powell, be now permitted to take the oath of office.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Iowa for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. CELLER. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry, and for that purpose only.

Mr. GROSS. The matter pending before the House at this time is the consideration of a resolution, is that correct?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state, in answer to the inquiry of the gentleman from Iowa, that it is a resolution.

Mr. GROSS. If I may proceed further, is the resolution subject to amendment, or must the previous question be voted down?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state, in reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from Iowa, that the resolution is not subject to amendment unless the gentleman from New York should yield for that purpose during the hour's time and, in the absence of that, then the previous question would have to be voted down.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Minnesota for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. CELLER. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, is it my understanding that under the rules of the House we will have 1 hour of debate on this resolution, the time to be controlled by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER)?

The SPEAKER. In response to the parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from Minnesota, the Chair will state that the gentleman is correct, the gentleman from New York will be recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. MACGREGOR. I thank the Speaker.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues today to support the resolution which I have offered to seat the Member-elect, the gentleman from New York, Mr. ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

Members will recall that on a day similar to today in the 90th Congress the same man who today has been made to stand aside, was made to stand aside pending an inquiry by a select committee into his qualifications for membership in the House of Representatives.

You will recall that after 5 weeks of study, this nine-member committee, of which it was my privilege to serve as chairman, submitted its report on the qualifications of Member-elect ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

The committee found that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL met the qualifications of age, citizenship, and residency and that he had filed a certificate of election from the State of New York.

Despite the careful and laborious efforts of that committee, ADAM CLAYTON POWELL was "excluded" from the 90th Congress.

Mr. Speaker, much water has gone over the dam since then. Time is a mighty healer. It must be remembered, that we are at the threshold here, to decide whether a man shall be admitted to membership. We are solely asked and can only be asked to pass upon qualifications under the Constitution. There are only three qualifications—age, residency, and citizenship. We cannot constitutionally add—we cannot constitutionally subtract from those qualifications.

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL in the 90th Congress satisfied those three qualifications.

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL today is seeking to enter the 91st Congress and satisfies again those three qualifications.

Since the action we took on March 1, 1967, the Member-elect, the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL), has twice been overwhelmingly reelected by his constituency, the 18th Congressional District of New York. The record is manifestly clear. His constituents have repeatedly and forcefully expressed their desires. With the whole record before them, they have again and again made their choice. The district, the State of New York, are entitled to his representation.

If we keep him out of the 91st Congress as we kept him out of the 90th Congress, it would be like piling Pelion on Ossa. We deny indeed the democratic process if we exclude him. If we again deny him his seat, there would be a special election in New York declared by the Governor of the Empire State, and he would again be reelected overwhelmingly, as was the situation in the special election determined previously by the Governor.

In a sense, therefore, if we would exclude him, our action would be abortive, just about as useless as looking through a telescope with a blind eye. We must not, we cannot disregard, as I said before, the choice expressed so often and so clearly by the people of the 18th Congressional District of New York.

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL has been guilty of some derelictions. He has been guilty of some lapses from grace, some departures from the rules. But he has been punished, and in my opinion he has been punished enough. Any additional punishment would be vindictive. Any additional punishment would be Draconian. We have taken away his seniority after 22 years of service. That is real punishment. He starts in as a freshman. That loss of chairmanship as a result of the loss of seniority is a severe blow, a severe blow to any one of us if we were in his position. Think of the power and the prestige and the privileges that go with seniority. Then you realize how serious the loss of chairmanship is, and he has lost his chairmanship. It is indeed a bitter pill for anyone to swallow. He had climbed the greasy pole, as it were, as Disraeli called it, and he ascended to the top. Now he has plunged down below to the very bottom and he must start over anew. That is a wound to his pride. That is injuring his dignity. There is nothing more serious than injuring one's dignity, and that is a very, very serious denigration of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

We discovered in our inquiry, and so indicated in our report, that there were financial irregularities, something in the nature of $40,000. But ADAM CLAYTON POWELL has lost 2 years' salary. The Government paid him in January, February, and 1 day in March 1967, his salary. He therefore had lost not $60,000, but approximately $55,000. He has more than paid up, therefore, the $40,000 to which there has been a charge of irregularity. So the Government in a certain sense is not out, if I may use that term, any sum of money.

He has satisfied the civilian judgments against him in the State of New York, particularly the defamation judgment. He has made himself amenable to the jurisdiction of the New York courts. A grand jury in the District of Columbia has returned no true bill against him—in other words, there could not be substantiated against him any criminal charge growing out of his conduct.

I now read to you a letter which I received from the Attorney General, dated January 2.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN CELLER: This letter is in further reply to the material you transmitted to the Department of Justice by letter dated February 24, 1967, with respect to Mr. ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

This material and other conduct of Mr. POWELL was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and extensive inquiry was made by a Federal grand jury in the District of Columbia. The grand jury which considered the matter expired on December 9. On the recommendation of the Department, the grand jury did not return an indictment. Our recommendation was based on the conclusion that the available evidence did not warrant prosecution.

The Department is continuing to study the matter to determine whether there is civil liability.

Sincerely yours,

RAMSEY CLARK,
Attorney General.

Now, there is no criminal liability apparently. I think that even if there is civil liability, and that is very, very questionable—as a lawyer, I can say it is very questionable—it involves travel, it involves payment to his wife. And he who is without sin in this Chamber, let him cast the first stone. Judge not lest ye be judged—particularly with reference to dear ones on the payroll, with reference to travel, and with reference to travel documents.

The charge is made that when Mr. POWELL left, he took certain personal papers which may not necessarily have been personal papers. They may have been committee papers. Where is the line to be drawn between what is personal and what is committee? I am chairman of a committee. It would take a set of "Jay's Journals" for me to determine in every instance what is a committee paper and what is personal.

Those charges all would fall to the ground. The charges with reference to his wife would fall to the ground. We have many, many imponderables there. The wife could not testify against her husband. The husband could not testify against his wife. The entire matter is replete with legal intricacies, and it is very easy cavalierly to come on in this Chamber and make charges of all sorts—but try to prove them in a court of law. The Attorney General felt he could not prove the charges criminally.

But Mr. POWELL has had a loss of $55,000, which is more than would pay the alleged $40,000 concerning which there have been charges of dereliction.

For those reasons, I do hope that the membership of the House will vote the previous question and then will vote in support of the resolution to seat ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, what is the question of the gentleman?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman from New York knows, I fully supported the recommendations of the select committee which the gentleman chaired in the 90th Congress. We lost. But the gentleman, along with the eight other members of that committee, persuaded me that their findings and recommendations were fair and proper.

I must confess, on January 3, 1969, in light of the remarks just made by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, that I am perplexed as to how he is now drawing the line between the findings of that committee in February of 1967 as to the misappropriation of funds and other matters, and his comments at the present.

Mr. CELLER. Because I had conferences with the Attorney General and the Assistant Attorney General, Criminal Division, and the members of their staff, who had winnowed through these documents which we had sent them, and in addition a great many other documents; and they came to a conclusion different from the one the committee had come to. I was persuaded by the Attorney General and his assistants that the evidence did not support the prosecution of a criminal charge.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Would the distinguished chairman yield for one more question?

Mr. CELLER. Yes, I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Has the gentleman from New York then in effect repudiated the findings of the select committee as shown on pages 31 and 32 of the select committee report?

Mr. CELLER. I am not impugning the findings of the select committee, which I endorsed at that time, but there is a period of time difference. As I indicated a moment ago, I was in conference with Mr. Fred Vinson, Assistant Attorney General, and Mr. Ramsey Clark, Attorney General, and members of their staff who had very carefully gone into all these documents, and in answering questions which I propounded to them they convinced me that there would be great difficulty, as I have indicated.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I concede there is a difference between a criminal indictment and a civil suit to recover. I am primarily interested in this point: Does the gentleman from New York still subscribe to the findings of the select committee, of which he was the chairman?

Mr. CELLER. I subscribe to them with the addenda that to prove successfully the charges would involve considerable difficulty because of the burden of establishing criminal guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York has consumed 18 minutes.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from New York yield me 10 minutes?

Mr. CELLER. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota, a member of the select committee, for whom I have profound respect because he has made a great contribution in that committee.

Mr. MACGREGOR. I thank the distinguished gentleman, the dean of the House, very kindly for those remarks. Would he be so kind as to yield me 10 minutes?

Mr. CELLER. I did not hear the last remark.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Would the gentleman be so kind as to yield me 10 minutes?

Mr. CELLER. I will yield 5 minutes, and we will see what happens.

Mr. ALBERT. Does the gentleman yield for the purposes of debate only?

Mr. CELLER. I yield only for debate, yes.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, there are Members of this body, both new and old, who believe that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL should be seated and all past transgressions should be forgiven. They are entitled to that viewpoint as a matter of individual conscience.

There are Members of this body, Mr. Speaker, who believe that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL should be excluded from membership in the 91st Congress as indeed he was excluded on March 1, 1967, from service in the 90th Congress. Members holding that viewpoint are entitled to it, and I am sure they hold it as a matter of deep individual conscience.

I cannot subscribe to either viewpoint, just as I could not subscribe to either viewpoint when I served as a member of the nine-man select committee in January and February 1967, the select committee headed by the distinguished dean of the House of Representatives and chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, EMANUEL CELLER.

The members of that select committee, composed of five Democrats and four Republicans, recommended unanimously that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, having met the constitutional qualifications for membership in this body, and being the clear choice of the electorate in the 18th Congressional District of New York, be seated but that the House of Representatives exercise its power to punish Members as explicitly set forth in the U.S. Constitution.

We unanimously recommended that he be punished in that he pay a fine in the sum of $40,000.

We recommended as further punishment that he be ranked as a freshman Member of the 90th Congress.

We recommended that he be taken by the Sergeant at Arms into the well of the House to be censured by the Speaker for his conduct.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER), the majority leader of the Democratic Party here in the House (Mr. ALBERT), the very distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. CORMAN), and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. JA-COBS) all argued for the acceptance of the select committee's recommendations. Today the gentleman from New York takes a different viewpoint and he says to you, "Yes, I agree that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL has been guilty of some derelictions, irregularities, and violations, as I found some 22 months ago, but he has been punished enough because he did not serve in this body for 22 months and therefore lost $55,000 in salary."

May I point out to you, although I think it is largely an irrelevancy, that he also did no work as a Representative for 22 months, for which he would be entitled to receive the statutory pay. But, more important than that, I do not think this issue here today turns on the question of how many dollars have been taken out or put back into the Treasury of the United States as a result of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL. If that were a valid argument, if we could offset $55,000 in pay that he did not receive against the some $50,000 of committee funds that he had willfully and wrongfully taken from the Treasury, then we ought to consider that as of the present date the lawsuit which ADAM CLAYTON POWELL has brought against the Speaker and other officers of this House has cost the taxpayers of the United States over $213,000. Now, I do not think this is important. I do not think we ought to try to offset the $213,000 that has been paid out of the Treasury as a result of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL's lawsuit against the $55,000 of uncollected salary.

I find today, as I found 22 months ago, and as our select committee report amply documents, that there have been serious, willful, and wrongful conversions from public funds by ADAM CLAYTON POWELL to his own private and personal uses. If the parliamentary situation presents itself and if I am so recognized, I will offer a resolution, copies of which are at the counsel tables on both the majority and minority sides of the House. May I suggest to you also that copies of the select committee's report are available for your review or, in the case of new Members, are available for your consideration also at the counsel tables.

This resolution I speak of contains the bulk but not all of the "whereas" findings of the select committee as presented by Mr. CELLER on March 1, 1967. It also recommends that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL be seated. It further recommends that he be fined $30,000 and that, if not otherwise paid, the Sergeant at Arms shall deduct $1,250 a month from his pay for a period of 24 months, and that will take care of the cost. It further specifies that his seniority shall rank as of the date when he takes the oath of office in this Chamber, in this Congress. As a final point, consistent with our recommendations of 22 months ago, if the Member-elect from the 18th Congressional District of New York shall not present himself to take the oath of office by January 15, his seat shall be declared vacant.

I urge you to take a middle course. Do not vote for exclusion. Do not vote to deny the will of the people of the 18th Congressional District. Do vote to uphold the Constitution and the dignity of this body.

Thank you.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. FINDLEY) for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. FINDLEY. I thank the distinguished chairman for yielding this time to me.

I agree in part with the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary and disagree in part, and I take the same position with respect to my distinguished friend, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MACGREGOR).

It is my opinion that the proper approach for us today is to seat Mr. Powell, but to keep open the question as to whether he should have further punishment.

In addition to the thoughts that have been expressed already, I add these few of my own. I feel that the disposition of individual rights in this body is a matter of supreme importance to the Nation and must be undertaken with delicacy, with dispassion, and a sense of history. Otherwise we risk injury not only to present interests but, more important, to those of the future.

If we jealously protect the rights of the minority, even when the minority consists of only one person, we serve as a worthy example to other legislative chambers and also in other places where minority rights may be challenged.

If we do less, we set a bad example for other places and times, and may well set in motion a series of regressive events that will seriously weaken the civil rights so fundamental to everything expressed in the word "America."

The Constitution and history itself place upon us the grave responsibility to protect minority rights even when the act of protection may give the appearance of condoning conduct that we all deplore—conduct that is personally offensive, abusive of public trust, and even legally questionable.

The minority rights involved in the question of seating Mr. POWELL go far beyond his immediate rights as one American citizen among 200 million—important as these rights are.

He acquired additional minority rights on November 5 when citizens of the 18th District of New York—despite charges previously brought against him in this Chamber and elsewhere—made him a Member-elect of the 91st Congress. His constituency even though consisting of less than one-quarter of 1 percent of the total population of this land, nevertheless has the vital right of representation in this body, a right clearly set forth in the Constitution itself.

This district has been without representation in the past for 2 years. As has been mentioned, Mr. POWELL has not received pay and the chairmanship he once held is in other hands. Two grand juries competent to bring indictments against him took no such action. Most important, his constituency not once but twice has reelected him as its Representative.

Now the question before us today, is the denial of seating the proper way to dispose of charges and complaints against him? I say "No." The proper procedure is to accord him his seat. Then the appropriate committee of this body can make inquiry and recommendations as to censure, withholding of pay, or other matters.

This would protect minority rights and our constitutional traditions, while providing for disposition of charges.

I would especially hope that other members of the party of Lincoln, a party which has done so much to establish and advance these traditions, will join me in an affirmative vote on this question.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, we have heard the gentleman from Minnesota say, in a word, that the House should not expend any money for counsel to go to court to defend itself. It would have been just as easy for the House leadership, when the summons was served upon the Speaker, to let the Department of Justice proceed to defend the privileges of the House and the rights of the House of Representatives, but before counsel was retained the Republican leadership was in conference with the Democratic leadership, and it was agreed that private counsel would be retained to defend the rights and the privileges of the House of Representatives in the lawsuit that was brought.

Mr. Speaker, it might be interesting to state that when it comes to expenditures of money, the action of excluding ADAM CLAYTON POWELL in the first instance caused the State of New York to expend over $200,000 in a special election, and if we exclude him again then there will be another special election and another expenditure of some $200,000.

So the Members would be placing a burden of over $400,000, if they were to exclude Mr. POWELL, upon the Empire State of New York.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CELLER. I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL).

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, sometimes there is a difference between what is popular and what is right. I do not have a very large Negro constituency, or a very large civil rights constituency in my district, and I would be perhaps better off politically to sit down and be quiet on this issue. However, I rise to say to my colleagues: Do not close the doors for a third time on the 500,000 constituents of the 18th District of New York. If we do then we will be making a mistake, and we will be violating a sound tradition of 180 years that has served this institution well.

Mr. Speaker, let me make clear that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL is not my idea of an ideal Congressman. He has been guilty of some indiscretions, as the gentleman has described. I heartily deplore Mr. POWELL's prior actions which have been discussed here today.

Two years ago I made the motion in the Democratic caucus to remove Mr. POWELL as chairman of one of our great committees, and the following day I made the motion in the House similar to the motion the gentleman from New York is now making. That was a difficult decision for me, but the decision was based on this: When we send a man to Congress shall he possess these three constitutional qualifications, or shall we permit the Congress to go beyond that and set additional qualifications?

Go back and read the Federalist Papers, and see what the Founding Fathers, Madison and Hamilton, had to say at that time. We could have had a system whereby we would check a man's church attendance, for example, or whether he pays his taxes, or maybe to pass judgment on his personal morals or drinking habits in deciding whether he might possess the standards that a Congressman is supposed to have.

But after considerable thought they made the decision, and that decision was to leave it to the constituency. Each constituency judges the ethics of its representation. This is a kind of an ethics committee which meets in the fall of the even-numbered years, in November, and most of us are kept pretty well in line by that ethics committee that is comprised of the people in each particular area. But once in a while we get an odd case or an unusual case where his constituency does not have the same standards that perhaps our constituencies would apply. I know that I could not do one-tenth of the things that have been charged against this particular gentleman in the last few years and hope to get a third of the votes necessary for election. But this principle is a sound principle. They felt that possibly Delaware might be in an unpopular position some time and its Representative would be excluded by a majority taken from Representatives of South Carolina, Georgia, and New York. Therefore they said in this diverse Federal union leave it to each constituency, and that is where it should be.

This is really a bulwark in the Constitution against oppression by a majority—a white majority in this case—against a minority from determining the kind of character that a Representative of that constituency should have. The issue is not whether POWELL is the kind of a person you or I would vote for in our districts.

Now, under this sound principle we have a fine and a noble membership in this House, and I am proud of the people I serve with, their character and their integrity.

But under this principle, we over a period of 180 years, have seated Confederate generals. We have seated integrationists and segregationists. We have seated in those years men just out of mental institutions, alcoholics, tax evaders, and people who did not go to church—we have seated young men just out of college and old men with one foot in the grave. We have seated the halt, the lame, and the blind—and men with one eye as well as with two and men with one leg and men with none.

We have seated all kinds of characters over these 180 years under this fundamental principle which is, Let the local people decide.

If we violate this principle in this case, we make a martyr out of the man. I suspect that in deciding this, if we let him take his place with us, the people up there may send somebody down one of these days differently.

But as long as we make a martyr out of the man, they will send him back—and back—and back.

My friends, the thread and fabric of this country that binds us all together is getting pretty frayed nowadays.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Arizona has expired.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman 1 additional minute.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Speaker, I want to make one more point.

Our new President said that one of his aims was to bring us together and to unite us. There are about 20 million citizens in this country who have black skins; and rightly or wrongly—and I think wrongly—but rightly or wrongly it is a fact that they see this case as a critical test of the attitude of the majority race in this country toward that minority, compared with other races and other nationalities.

If we close these doors again, I think we are going to fray that fabric even further.

What harm can possibly be done in seating this Member and then if we see fit have an investigation. We can have lawsuits and we can have select committees and we can do as we have done for 180 years—seat him and then take all action necessary to correct any transgressions that have occurred and collect any money due the Treasury.

So I say to my colleagues, do not close these doors again to the people of the 18th District. It is them you punish, not POWELL. This is not the way.

Let us enforce the sound constitutional principle that has served us so well for 180 years. Let us put this matter to rest.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Arizona has expired.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. GERALD R. FORD) 5 minutes for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, all of us are deeply cognizant of the absolute constitutional right that each congressional district has the right to be represented in this body. On the other hand, the Constitution equally says that the House of Representatives, or each body of the legislative branch, shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own Members—article I, section V of the Constitution.

We went through this constitutional debate and discussion back on January 10, 1967. At that time the House worked its will and approved a resolution sponsored by me which established a nine-member committee, five from the majority and four from the minority, which committee had the responsibility of thoroughly investigating all the facts to the best of its ability and to make findings and recommendations to the Members of the 90th Congress.

On March 1, 1967, that bipartisan committee brought to the floor of the House its unanimous recommendations.

I have in my hand a copy of the report of that select committee pursuant to House Resolution 1 of the 90th Congress, first session.

If you will turn to page 31 and page 32 of that report, you will find where there are six findings—findings by a nine-member group—five Democrats and four Republicans—which, as far as I know today, have not changed one iota.

I would ask any one of the members of that committee who signed this report if they have found anything different today from what they said were the findings then. At this time I ask them to rise and give me any new information which would change their previous judgment.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I am delighted to yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CONYERS. I appreciate the opportunity to comment on the findings in this report, of which I was a member of the select committee, as Members of this body will recall, and you will recall that of all the Members that I, alone, signed some additional views which set forth four statements which were critical of the way in which these hearings had proceeded.

I would like to read them at an appropriate time. I shall not take the time that the gentleman has so graciously yielded to do so at this time. But I would like to point out that although this one Member signed the report, he did file an exception to the report. One of the bases for that exception, in addition to the four points raised, was the way in which these findings were reached—and I make this statement fully recognizing that I served and still serve very proudly under one of the most distinguished Members of this House, the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary. But I was very unhappy with the procedure under which we arrived at some of the facts stated.

As Members can see at that time I stated:

Any Member or any Member-elect and his counsel should be afforded the right to cross-examine all witnesses brought before this committee or any other committee inquiring into the qualifications, punishment, final right of a Member to be seated, or other related question.

In other words, I say to my colleague that I was completely disturbed about the way in which we came to these facts, and by signing this report I have not in any way ever attempted to indicate that I support all the facts and every sentence in this report. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. May I reiterate, however, that at the time the report was brought to the floor of the House, on March 1, 1967, other than the additional views expressed by the distinguished gentleman from Michigan, no person from the committee denied the accuracy of the findings in this report and, to my best recollection, no Member of the House on either side of the aisle at that time, March 1, 1967, denied the accuracy of the findings of this committee.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from New York, under the circumstances, yield me 2 additional minutes?

Mr. CELLER. I yield 2 additional minutes to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. In conclusion—and then I shall yield to the gentleman from Minnesota—I believe today we should vote down the previous question in order to give the gentleman from Minnesota the opportunity to submit to the House for approval again the findings of the committee chairman, the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) with some minor modifications to be explained by the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. MACGREGOR. During the remarks of the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) he said the grand jury to investigate ADAM CLAYTON POWELL expired December 9.

I cannot agree that that is an accurate or factual statement.

The Powell grand jury was convened in early October of 1967, and under the then applicable rule 6(g) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure was to run until April 1968. Evidence on the Powell matter was taken by that jury up through March of 1968. The jury then heard some other matters up through May of 1968 after which no more meetings were held until December 9, 1968. On that date a short meeting was held and thereafter the Department of Justice attorneys presented the chief judge of the District of Columbia District Court, Edward Curran, with a draft order dismissing the grand jury. The order was entered that same date. It is set out immediately below:

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

ORDER DISMISSING GRAND JURY

It appearing to the Court that the October Special Grand Jury 1967 has completed the cases pending before it and the public interest no longer requires its continued existence, it is by this Court this 9th day of December, 1968, pursuant to Rule 6(g) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, Ordered that the above named Grand Jury be and it is hereby dismissed from further service.

EDWARD M. CURRAN,

Judge.

Filed Dec. 9, 1968, Robert M. Stearns, Clerk.

The key question is why was the grand jury dismissed—it had not expired—on motion of the Department of Justice without making the determination that it was convened to make. If insufficient evidence to establish probable cause as to the guilt of ADAM C. POWELL with respect to criminal conduct did not exist or could not be found then he is entitled to a "clean bill"—that is a vote of "ignoramus" or no indictment. For the grand jury to make no determination leaves the original question of probability of guilt or innocence still open.

I also include herein a copy of a news report concerning the grand jury investigation of Mr. POWELL that appeared in yesterday's St. Louis Globe Democrat:

[From the St. Louis (Mo.) Globe Democrat, Jan. 2, 1969]

INDICTMENT

WASHINGTON.—Adam Clayton Powell was saved from a Federal indictment by the action of top-ranking Justice Department officials in vetoing a proposed criminal prosecution of the Harlem Congressman for misuse of $38,000 in government funds and removal of Congressional financial records.

Attorneys in the department who worked on the case in connection with its presentation to a special grand jury here recommended an indictment charging Powell with three violations involving possible penalties of 25 years in jail and $25,000 in fines.

But Attorney General Ramsey Clark and others in the high command declined to clear the recommendation for submission to the grand jury when it convened for the last time on Dec. 9.

Late on that day, the department's press office issued a statement saying the department "concluded the available evidence did not warrant prosecution."

"The grand jury which investigated the allegations against Mr. Powell expired today," the statement said.

"The department of justice did not recommend an indictment and none was returned."

The grand jury had convened on Oct. 9, 1967, to consider possible violation of six Federal laws by the flamboyant Congressman when he was riding high as a senior House member and chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, with control over the committee's sizable budget.

Federal court records here do not show that the Powell grand jury "expired," as the press statement asserted.

Court files contain an order signed on last Dec. 9 by Chief Judge Edward M. Curran in which he "dismissed" the grand jury because it had "completed the cases pending before it and the public interest no longer requires its continued existence."

The judge noted he was acting under a court rule providing that the life of a grand jury is 18 months unless the jury is discharged earlier.

When the Powell jury was put out of business, it had been in existence 14 months.

The indictment sought unsuccessfully by the Justice Department lawyers would have accused Powell of misuse of $28,000 in government funds in paying salary to his wife as a Congressional employee when she was actually performing no work, and fraudulent use of $10,000 in government funds in connection with personal travel.

The indictment also would have charged Powell with the crime of obstruction of justice or theft of government property in connection with removal of key House records dealing with his travel vouchers.

A Justice Department spokesman, questioned Wednesday about the handling of the Powell case, said that four attorneys had been involved in the handling of the case and that there had not been any unanimous recommendation from them, although some did favor an indictment.

The spokesman also said that the position of the Criminal Division, headed by Assistant Attorney General Fred M. Vinson Jr., was against indictment and that Clark, who bore final responsibility, agreed.

The indictment sought by the working-level attorneys would have paralleled the unanimous findings on Feb. 25, 1967, by a special bipartisan House committee which investigated Powell's actions at length and concluded he had "wilfully and wrongfully" misappropriated $44,401 in government funds to his own use.

In an unusually hard hitting and explicit report, the committee declared that Powell had filed false expense vouchers with the House, refused to cooperate with the investigation, was "contemptuous," and should be "censored and condemned" for his "gross misconduct."

The committee also demanded "prompt and appropriate action" by the Justice Department and sent its files to the department.

But now, almost two years later, the only possible Justice Department action still hanging over Powell is a sentence in the Dec. 9 statement saying "the department is studying the matter to determine whether there is civil liability."

Following the report of the special House investigation committee early in 1967, the House itself took even stronger action against Powell, voting to exclude him from that Congress.

President-elect Nixon is understood to be alert to the potential dynamite for his Administration and to believe that House Republicans should avoid taking a policy position as a party in opposition to Powell.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has again expired.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, will the distinguished chairman of the Judiciary Committee yield me 1 additional minute?

Mr. CELLER. I yield 1 additional minute to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I am very grateful. I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CONTE).

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to direct my remarks to the gentleman from New York. He was one of the 116 Members of this House who joined in the effort not to exclude ADAM CLAYTON POWELL last March, or March of 1967. But I resent his remarks—and I do not think he intended a blanket indictment of all Members of this House—that all Members of the House have violated the rules of this House with regard to nepotism. I have no relatives on the payroll. Neither have I ever violated a rule of this House in regards to travel. I am sure the gentleman from New York did not mean to indict this House.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONTE. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. CELLER. Of course, there was no such implication in my remarks, and I hope the gentleman did not infer that I intended such. I am sure the gentleman from Massachusetts did not infer from my remarks that all Members of the House were guilty of any such dereliction.

Mr. CONTE. I thank the gentleman from New York.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, I reiterate what I said before. I intend to support a resolution such as the MacGregor resolution because it coincides with what we decided in 1967, based on the recommendations of the gentleman from New York, the recommendations of the majority leader and the unanimous recommendations of the select committee.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. ALBERT).

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that the one issue before the House—and there is only one issue before the House—is a very simple one. That issue is representative government itself. What we are deciding here is whether under the Constitution the people of the 18th Congressional District of New York have the right to decide who shall represent them in this Chamber, subject, of course, to the constitutional requirements of age, citizenship, and residency.

Mr. Speaker, all of these other issues becloud the central issue and should be dealt with under separate proceedings.

We tax the people of the 18th New York District; we draft their sons; and they are entitled to have their representation in this body.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS).

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to try to go over the very excellent argumentation that has gone on, explaining the chain of circumstances that now permits the chairman of the select committee on the seating of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, our distinguished chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and, incidentally, many of the Members who served on that committee, to come now before this new session of Congress and argue in behalf of the seating of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

I have yet to hear a Member argue contrary to the question that we are to examine three qualifications: age, residency, and citizenship. When our distinguished minority leader refers in the Constitution to the statement that each House shall be the judge of its elections and qualifications, I argue now, as many of us argued then, that the qualifications referred to are with respect to age, citizenship, and residency. When the Constitution asks that each House be the judge of its elections, it is referring to a question of dispute in an election.

In both of these instances, ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, in his numerous elections, has had no question raised of fraud of any sort. And there have been no questions ever presented in or out of committee about his qualifications. So unless we are going to go into this old bromide of whether we can add to the three enumerated qualifications I think this House has no further alternative today, even without forgiving him of his transgressions, as my good friend on the committee suggested. Members can vote to seat ADAM POWELL, and they do not have to forgive him of all his transgressions. They can join with those of us who are more worried, as opposed to any individual Member of this House, about the half million citizens of New York in the 18th District who so desperately need representation in this House, perhaps more so than any other congressional district in this Nation.

So I say to you, from the sincerity of being in this case since its inception, join in with those of us who are going to prove to the American people that the House of Representatives is responsive in 1969 to the request for seating of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HAYS).

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, probably the most difficult duty I have had in 20 years in this House was chairing the original inquiry into the Adam Clayton Powell matter. It was a thankless job, as everybody on the committee can testify. We received no encomiums and a good deal of criticism. It would not have mattered what we had done or what we had said. I think the outcome would have been the same; we would have been criticized and not praised.

There was some sentiment on the subcommittee to turn the entire findings of the subcommittee over to the Department of justice with recommendations. I took the position that we were a fact-finding committee, that we were not the judge or the jury or the grand jury or the prosecutor or the whole ball of wax, but we were simply a congressional subcommittee which had set out to find out certain facts.

Subsequently the entire transcript—all of the evidence, all of the vouchers, all the pieces of paper that were accumulated by that committee—was turned over to the Department of Justice, without our telling them what to do or telling a grand jury what to do.

Now, I understand there was a grand jury which studied this matter for about a year, and they apparently have found nothing of a criminal nature for which to indict Mr. POWELL.

This being the case, I intend to vote to seat him, and I intend to vote for the previous question.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. WATSON) 1 minute.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, did the chairman say 1 minute?

Mr. CELLER. One minute.

Mr. WATSON. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CORMAN).

Mr. CORMAN. Mr. Speaker, may I first say I was somewhat surprised that my colleague and fellow lawyer and a gentleman that I greatly respect, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MACGREGOR), took the trouble to find out how many dollars have been spent in court and quickly added that it was very irrelevant to him. I take it he would not have gone to all of that trouble and used some of his precious moments if he thought it was irrelevant to all of us, but I do believe it is irrelevant.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for one question?

Mr. CORMAN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Does the gentleman also believe the $55,000 of his uncollected salary is irrelevant?

Mr. CORMAN. I think it is irrelevant, but I did not bring it up.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Nor did I.

Mr. CORMAN. I think that the great mistake that the 90th Congress made was in failing to seat ADAM CLAYTON POWELL on the day when all the rest of the Members were seated. I voted for that, as did many others. I served on the committee, appointed to investigate and make recommendations to the House in this matter. We did our best in what was admittedly a brief time to get the facts together as best we could and to come up with reasonable findings of fact and conclusions and recommendations to bring back to this House.

I, for one, and I believe all of the other members of the committee, also, felt very shortly after we started meeting, that the most important single thing so far as this country is concerned, so far as our Constitution is concerned, and so far as the integrity of this House is concerned, was that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL be seated as a Member. We recognized that there were divergent views and we recognized that feelings were running rather high as to some of the misconduct that appeared on the record as we had it. I do not think that any one of the nine of us would have come up with precisely the recommendations that we did. It was a compromise and I must say it was a tribute to the able gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) who has been a great compromiser on legislative matters over the years in this House.

I was very disturbed at the severity of the punishment. Yet I felt strongly that ADAM POWELL ought to be seated because I felt so strongly that the people ought to be represented and that we ought to respect the constitutional requirement that he be seated.

In answer to the gentleman from Michigan as to whether any Member would now deny the validity of the findings, I would have to say that based on the knowledge I had then—and I have no more now—I do not refute those findings, but I have to tell the gentleman also that if I served as a member of a petit jury, I would not convict a man of the simplest misdemeanor based on the procedures which we followed. It did not seem to me that that was the paramount issue. It was essential that we bring back to this House a resolution that would be accepted by a majority of the Congress so that the people of the 18th District of New York could be represented. However, the 90th Congress decided that it would not follow our recommendations, and it did not. I do not think it is proper that we try to impose those recommendations on the 91st Congress, which is a different Congress made up in part of different people. I feel today, as I have throughout this case, that the paramount problem is the seating of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL. The House may subsequently decide to appoint a committee or refer the matter to a standing committee to mete out whatever punishment the facts might indicate—that would be proper. I think it would be completely improper to attempt to impose on the 91st Congress the recommendations which were arrived at with poor procedures which were a matter of compromise and which were rejected by the body that appointed that committee.

I urge that the previous question be voted up and the Celler resolution be adopted.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Speaker, the fundamental question before us is the right of the people of a particular constituency to be represented by a person of their choice. It was ably stated by the majority leader (Mr. ALBERT) and by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL).

It is conceded that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL meets the constitutional qualifications of age, citizenship, and inhabitancy. There has been no challenge to the validity of his election; and, therefore, under the Constitution he should be seated.

This is not similar to the Mississippi delegation challenge which I initiated at the beginning of the 89th Congress on January 4, 1965. In that case there was a clear disenfranchisement of a substantial number of voters through the denial of the right to register and vote in violation of the 14th and 15th amendments to the Constitution. Nevertheless, the House voted 276 to 149 to seat them—a marked contrast to January 10, 1967, when ADAM CLAYTON POWELL was not seated and today when again it is proposed to refuse to administer the oath to a Representative-elect who has been duly elected by his constituents.

The people of the 18th Congressional District of New York overwhelmingly elected him in November 1966 and overwhelmingly elected him again in a special election in 1967. They overwhelmingly reelected him in November 1968.

Mr. Speaker, for 2 years 400,000 residents of the 18th Congressional District, residents of the ghetto known as Harlem, have been disenfranchised—disenfranchised at a time when the crises of the cities deepened, at a time when many of their sons were drafted to fight an undeclared war, at a time when questions of war and peace and of race and poverty were paramount issues before the Congress. Those consigned to live in the ghetto, in the subbasement of our society, with inadequate housing and educational opportunity and a lack of job opportunities desperately need their voice in Congress. That voice has been denied them throughout the 90th Congress. It is past time to recognize the right of the people of the 18th Congressional District to representation in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Speaker, it has been said that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL has been punished enough. That is beside the point. The point is that the people of that district have been punished and have been punished long enough.

I understand that, if the previous question is defeated, an effort will be made to condition the administration of the oath of office to ADAM CLAYTON POWELL upon the imposition of a punitive fine and a denial of seniority. As far as I am concerned, this would be an unconstitutional action. The House is neither judge nor jury, and it is in no position today to make findings of fact. If today the House imposes a fine, tomorrow it may impose some other condition upon the seating of a duly elected Member. It would be a dangerous precedent to set.

Let me conclude by saying that to exclude any longer the duly elected Representative of the people of the 18th Congressional District, a large portion of whom are black and Puerto Rican, or other Spanish speaking citizens, would only make more apparent their exclusion from the mainstream of American society.

The House should not again substitute its judgment for that of the voters. It should no longer deprive them of their constitutional right of representation.

Mr. BURTON of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RYAN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. BURTON of California. I thank the gentleman from New York for yielding to me at this time. I commend the gentleman and wish to associate myself with his remarks. I urge my colleagues to vote up the previous question and seat Congressman ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, the Member-elect from the 18th Congressional District of New York.

Mr. RYAN. I thank the gentleman from California.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. MONTGOMERY) for a unanimous-consent request.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Speaker, on March 1, 1967, the House of Representatives voted to exclude Representative-elect POWELL from its membership during the 90th Congress by a vote of 307 to 116. The vote was a repudiation of the recommendations made by a select committee created to study the case of Mr. POWELL pursuant to House Resolution 1, 90th Congress. The resolution was adopted by the House on January 10, 1967, by a vote of 364 to 64. It denied a seat to Mr. POWELL and provided for the special committee, requiring that it report within a 5-week period. It also provided that until the question of Mr. POWELL's right to a seat had been determined he would receive the salary, allowances, and emoluments authorized for a Member of the House.

In addition to an inquiry into Mr. POWELL's age, citizenship, and inhabitancy, the constitutionally stated qualifications for Members, the select committee also conducted an investigation into the status of legal proceedings to which Mr. POWELL was a party in New York State and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico with particular reference to the instances in which he had been held in contempt of court, and into matters of Mr. POWELL's alleged official misconduct since January 3, 1961—the date when he became chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor. The alleged official misconduct involved alleged misuse of Government funds by Mr. POWELL both in his capacity of chairman of the committee during the 87th through 89th Congresses and as a Member of the House of Representatives. Particular attention was given to allegations of use of committee funds to pay for personal travel by Mr. POWELL and others, and to allegations that Mr. POWELL's wife had remained on his clerk-hire payroll until December 1966, although she had allegedly performed no official duties since the summer of 1965 and had not performed any official services in Washington or in Mr. POWELL's district in New York since 1961. Evidence was presented that Mr. POWELL had for several years deposited in his own bank account salary checks issued to Mrs. Powell.

Mr. Speaker, nothing has changed about the circumstances of Mr. POWELL's alleged misconduct since March 1, 1967, when this body voted to exclude him.

The Constitution clearly provides:

Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members.

A select committee has reviewed the case and determined that Mr. POWELL is a fugitive from the justice of his own State, that he has wrongfully and willfully appropriated $46,228.48 of public funds for his own use, and that his refusal to cooperate with two investigative committees authorized by the House of Representatives was contemptuous and was conduct unworthy of a Member.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is a solemn duty of the Members of this body to vote down the previous question and adopt a substitute excluding ADAM CLAYTON POWELL from the 91st Congress.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. JOELSON).

Mr. JOELSON. Mr. Speaker, when I was elected last November I believe I was elected to be a legislator and not a judge or a collection agency. I believe the courts are able to do that.

Today we are talking about a man who has been elected by his constituency to a seat representing the 18th Congressional District of New York, not only on one occasion but upon many occasions. I urge that it would be arrogant on our part, and patronizing on our part to say to the people of the 18th District of New York, "We know better than you do what is good for you." If we so stated, we would be declaring that we do not believe in democracy. Such a declaration would be a denial and a perversion of democracy itself. We should not say to the voters of New York's 18th District that we will refuse to seat the Representative of their own choosing.

I know it is easy to be smug and self-righteous. It is tempting to parade one's self-righteousness. But I say the overriding issue here is whether we are going to have democratic processes or not. Therefore, I would ask you to forgo this demagoguery and vote for democracy.

We have been elected to be legislators. There are pressing problems facing this Nation of ours. Let us get on with the business of solving them.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield one-half minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. SCHEUER).

Mr. SCHEUER. Mr. Speaker, our colleague, Mr. POWELL, has won three elections in 2 years. We have been through this debate for the second time in 2 years. Nothing has changed in that 2-year period. Yet 400,000 people in the 18th Congressional District continue to be unrepresented.

Mr. Speaker, the people in my district just reelected for the third time a candidate perhaps deemed out of tune by many—yes, a harmonica player. Yet they voted for, and had seated, the candidate—yes, the cacophonous scoundrel—of their choice.

Having seated me, the House may dampen my rhythms or mute my reeds, if they like not my musical style. But seat me they must.

I do not suggest that all districts must—or even ought—to be represented by harmonica players. I do suggest that all districts are entitled to the Member of their choice.

For too long the voters of the 18th District in New York—having voted overwhelmingly for a candidate meeting the three constitutional requirements for office—remain unrepresented.

Mr. POWELL should be promptly seated.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of the time to myself.

Mr. Speaker, there is a great constitutional question involved here, and that must be made as crystal clear as possible, and that is that the only issue at this point is in determining whether or not ADAM CLAYTON POWELL fits the qualifications laid down in article I, section 5 of the Constitution; namely, inhabitancy, age, and citizenship.

He satisfies those three conditions. He therefore should be admitted to membership in the House of Representatives. Any other qualifications are illegal as far as this House is concerned at this time.

It is true that article I, section 5, of the Constitution provides that the House shall be the judge of the qualifications of its Members.

But we have no right at this juncture to add to the qualifications of article I, section 5 of the Constitution. Make him a Member and then offer a resolution to make inquiry as to his conduct and as to his fitness. That resolution will be referred to an appropriate committee by the Speaker, and inquiry can be made. But what does the MacGregor resolution do?

Mr. CAREY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I refuse to yield at this time.

The MacGregor resolution says that in addition to the three qualifications there shall be another qualification, a judgment shall be entered against ADAM CLAYTON POWELL in the sum of $30,000. In other words, in addition to the three qualifications, the MacGregor resolution adds sanctions, adds punishment, and adds a judgment. We have no right to do that, and I am certain the Supreme Court when it makes a decision on ADAM CLAYTON POWELL will so decide.

We have no right, none whatsoever, to enlarge the constitutional qualifications at this juncture, at this time.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I hope that the Members will vote for the resolution, the simple resolution that I have offered.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The SPEAKER. All time has expired. The gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) has moved the previous question on the resolution.

The question is in ordering the previous question.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Arrington, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed a concurrent resolution in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. Con. Res. 1. Concurrent resolution to provide for the counting on January 6, 1969, of the electoral votes for President and Vice President of the United States.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed sundry resolutions, as follows:

S. RES. 1

Resolved, That a committee consisting of two Senators be appointed by the Vice President to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled and that the Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

S. RES. 2

Resolved, That the Secretary inform the House of Representatives that a quorum of the Senate is assembled and that the Senate is ready to proceed to business.

S. RES. 6

Resolved, That the House of Representatives be notified of the election of Hon. Richard B. Russell, a Senator from the State of Georgia, as President of the Senate pro tempore.

S. RES. 7

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow and deep regret the announcement of the death of Hon. E. L. Bartlett, late a Senator from the State of Alaska.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate these resolutions to the House of Representatives and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Resolved, That, as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the Senate, at the conclusion of its business today, do adjourn.

The message further announced that the Vice President, pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 1, appointed Mr. MANSFIELD and Mr. DIRKSEN, on the part of the Senate, to join such committee as may be appointed by the House of Representatives to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that a quorum of each House is assembled and that the Congress is ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING AND DIRECTING THE OATH OF OFFICE TO BE ADMINISTERED TO ADAM CLAYTON POWELL

The SPEAKER. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 177, nays 248, not voting, 4, not sworn, 6, as follows:

SUBSTITUTE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. M'GREGOR

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, I have at the Clerk's desk a resolution in the nature of a substitute which I offer as an amendment for House Resolution 1.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MACGREGOR as a substitute for the resolution offered by Mr. CELLER:

Whereas Adam Clayton Powell possesses the requisite qualifications of age, citizenship and ineligibility for membership in the House of Representatives and holds a certificate of election from the State of New York.

Whereas as a member of this House, Adam Clayton Powell improperly maintained on his clerk-hire payroll Y. Marjorie Flores (Mrs. Adam C. Powell) from August 14, 1964 to December 31, 1966, during which period either she performed no official duties whatever or such duties were not performed in Washington, District of Columbia or the State of New York as required by law;

Whereas as chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, Adam Clayton Powell permitted and participated in improper expenditures of government funds for private purposes; and

Whereas the 1967 and 1966 refusal of Adam Clayton Powell to cooperate respectively with the select committee and the Special Subcommittee on Contracts of the House Administration Committee in their lawful inquiries authorized by the House of Representatives was contemptuous and was conduct unworthy of a Member: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved—

(1) That the Speaker administer the oath of office to the said Adam Clayton Powell, Member-elect from the Eighteenth District of the State of New York.

(2) That as punishment Adam Clayton Powell be and he hereby is fined the sum of $30,000 said sum to be paid to the Clerk to be disposed of by him according to law. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the House is directed to deduct $1,250 per month from the salary otherwise due the said Adam Clayton Powell and pay the same to said clerk until said $30,000 fine is fully paid.

(3) That as further punishment the seniority of the said Adam Clayton Powell in the House of Representatives commence as of the date he takes the oath as a Member of the 91st Congress.

(4) That if the said Adam Clayton Powell does not present himself to take the oath of office on or before January 15, 1969, the seat of the Eighteenth District of the State of New York shall be deemed vacant and the Speaker shall notify the Governor of the State of New York of the existing vacancy.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) rise?

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota to the simple resolution offered by myself to seat ADAM CLAYTON POWELL is not in order, and it is not germane in that it provides for a fine or judgment in the sum of $30,000 against ADAM CLAYTON POWELL and in that sense it is irrelevant, immaterial, and not germane to the resolution originally introduced.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MACGREGOR) desire to be heard?

Mr. MACGREGOR. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I must confess I am at a loss to understand the use of the word "judgment" by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER).

Nowhere in my proposed resolution does the word "judgment" appear. A reading of the proposed resolution makes it clear that no judgment is contemplated and, indeed, this House has no power to enter judgment in any court, to my knowledge.

What the resolution does contain, Mr. Speaker, is in substance the same as contained in the resolution presented by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER), as chairman of the 1967 select committee to this House on March 1, 1967.

I call the attention of the Members and the attention of the Speaker and of the Parliamentarian to page 34, House Report No. 27, in re ADAM CLAYTON POWELL—the report of the select committee pursuant to House Resolution 1 of the 90th Congress.

On page 34 there appears the text of the resolution offered to this House as punishment of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) on March 1.

That resolution, and I quote from the indicated report, reads as follows:

Now, therefore be it resolved,

(1) That the Speaker administer the oath of office to the said Adam Clayton Powell, Member-elect from the 18th District of the State of New York.

Then, Mr. Speaker, skipping to the third item of the Celler resolution, I quote:

(3) That Adam Clayton Powell, as punishment, pay to the Clerk of the House to be disposed of by him according to law, $40,000. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the House is directed to deduct $1,000 per month from the salary otherwise due the said Adam Clayton Powell and pay the same to said Clerk, said deductions to continue while any salary is due the said Adam Clayton Powell as a Member of the House of Representatives until said $40,000 is fully paid.

It is resolved in the resolution to which the gentleman from New York now objects that:

(2) That as punishment Adam Clayton Powell be and he hereby is fined the sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00), said sum to be paid to the Clerk to be disposed of by him according to law. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the House is directed to deduct One Thousand Two Hundred Fifty Dollars ($1,250.00) per month from the salary otherwise due the said Adam Clayton Powell, and pay the same to said clerk until said Thirty Thousand Dollar ($30,000.00) fine is fully paid.

Mr. Speaker, the only differences, other than differences of style, between the indicated portions of the Celler resolution of March 1, 1967, and the resolution that I have now offered, are that I have reduced to $30,000 the $40,000 proposed punishment by way of fine and that I have increased from $1,000 per month to $1,250 per month the amount authorized to be deducted by the Sergeant at Arms from the salary of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL if he is seated.

Mr. Speaker, the power of the House of Representatives to punish by way of a fine is amply established by the precedents.

May I, for the benefit of the Members of the House as well as the Chair, read respectfully from page 24 of the select committee's report, House Report No. 27, of late February 1967:

The power of each House of Congress to punish its Members "for disorderly behavior" is found in article I, section 5, clause 2 of the Constitution.

The nature of the power of the House to punish for disorderly behavior has been described as follows:

... the power of the House to expel or otherwise punish a Member is full and plenary and may be enforced by summary proceedings. It is discretionary in character, and upon a resolution for expulsion or censure of a Member for misconduct each individual Member is at liberty to act on his sound discretion and vote according to the dictates of his own judgment and conscience. This extraordinary discretionary power is vested by the Constitution in the collective membership of the respective Houses of Congress, restricted by no limitation except in case of expulsion the requirement of the concurrence of a two-thirds vote.

Mr. Speaker, referring to page 27 of the select committee's report, permit me, in conclusion, to quote the previous authorities with respect to our power to punish by way of a fine. On page 27 of the Celler committee's report:

Although, there has been a divergence of views concerning the power of a House to expel a Member for acts committed during a preceding Congress, the right of a House to censure a Member for such prior acts is supported by clear precedent in both Houses of Congress—namely, the case of Ames and Brooks in the House of Representatives and the case of Senator McCarthy in the Senate. In Ames and Brooks the acts for which censure was voted occurred more than 5 years prior to censure and two congressional elections had intervened.

Mr. Speaker, a reading of the precedents and authorities set forth in House Report No. 27, the report of the Celler select committee, amply demonstrates the proven power of the House to exercise its constitutional power by the levying of a fine such as is recommended and contained in my resolution.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, I ask to be heard on the objection of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler).

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I think it is highly important and extremely significant that at this point in time in the House of Representatives, in 1969, the House has not adopted any rules for parliamentary procedure whatsoever. So we are not operating under any rules upon which a previous precedent must be used for decision. The House should, and I hope, will work its will on this issue on the basis of its judgment today not predicated on any rules of the past.

Mr. Speaker, if that is the case, we must turn, of course, to the Constitution of the United States, which is the basis upon which the House of Representatives and the legislative branch exist. What does the Constitution provide? In article I, section 5, the provision appears that the House shall, among other things, be the judge of the qualifications of its own Members. Using that as the foundation from which I shall argue, it means, then, that the House under the resolution offered by the gentleman from Minnesota is passing judgment on the qualifications and says that the gentleman from New York, the elected Representative from the 18th District, may be seated providing he meets the test of qualifications of having paid a fine.

Therefore, it seems to me, based on the previous precedents cited by the gentleman from Minnesota, where the House has censured and the House has taken other comparable or similar actions, we now have the right to act outside of any rules of the past, but on the rules we establish right now. The parliamentary precedents predicated on the rules are not binding. The precedents we must follow are in the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Celler. Mr. Speaker, may I be heard further?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from New York.

Mr. Celler. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the arguments offered by the gentleman from Minnesota and the gentleman from Michigan, I wish to state that there is a great difference between the resolution we acted upon in the 90th Congress and the resolution we are called upon to act on today. The resolution in the 90th Congress was a formal and complete resolution which set forth the matter of seating and set forth in detail the matters of punishment. I think the matters of punishment were of four or five categories. The question of fine was one of the categories in that 90th Congress resolution.

The resolution I offered today is a very narrow resolution. It provides only for seating and the administration of the oath. The resolution in its wording says nothing about punishment, it says nothing about sanctions, it says nothing about a judgment, and it says nothing about a fine. Just as oil does not mix with water, just so a fine will not mix with seating, and a fine, therefore, is not germane to seating. For that reason, I hope the point of order will be sustained.

Mr. MacGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, may I be heard briefly in rebuttal?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. MacGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, may I say in response to the argument made by the gentleman from Michigan, that my resolution is patterned after the resolution authorized by our select committee presented to the House on March 1, 1967. There is no call for a judgment in my resolution. Rather, there is a call for punishment by way of the fine, as there was in the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, although rarely exercised, the power of the House to impose upon a Member—and I propose to seat ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, so that he will be a Member—punishment other than censure, but short of expulsion, seems to be established.

There is little reason to believe that the framers of the Constitution would empower Members to punish a Member for disorderly behavior, and to expel a Member if they intended to limit punishment to censure. Among other types of punishment mentioned by the authorities are fine and suspension.

Mr. WAGGONER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to be heard on the point of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. WAGGONER. Mr. Speaker, the substitute resolution offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MacGREGOR) clearly sets forth that the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL) meets the constitutional requirements for seating. But as another very vital part of this resolution, it imposes punishment for actions previously committed. It is just that simple. This House does have that right. It did the same thing 2 years ago. The point of order is a mistake.

Mr. JOELSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to be heard on the point of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. JOELSON. Mr. Speaker, with regard to the point of order, the resolution offered proposes to find Mr. POWELL in contempt. It specifically says that his actions were contemptuous.

The gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MacGREGOR) said censure is not involved here. I would like to urge the support of the point of order, that this is an attempt to hold Mr. POWELL in contempt, and as such he is entitled to a hearing and all the other protections of any other Member of this Congress before he could be censured and held in contempt of Congress.

I reiterate that the words in this resolution are that Mr. POWELL will be held as in contempt of Congress.

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Speaker, may I be heard on the point of order?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Speaker, it occurs to me what we have here before us now in the substitute resolution really is composed of two provisions.

The first provision finds that the gentleman from New York meets the constitutional qualifications of age, of residency, and of citizenship, and should be seated.

It is the second part of the resolution that is creating the question here.

There are two ways this House can punish a Member. One: it could have voted up the previous question on the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler) and proceeded to seat the Member, and then any Member could offer a resolution, which would go through the normal legislative process, to impose whatever punishment this House wanted upon that Member. That would be one way of doing it.

Obviously, what the gentleman from Minnesota is attempting to do is to apply two principles in a single resolution, totally unrelated. The resolution offered by the gentleman from Minnesota has a separability clause clearly dealing with two distinct actions in one resolution. The first part of that resolution states that the gentleman from New York meets the constitutional requirements for serving in Congress, that is of age, residency, and citizenship. It instructs that he be seated because he does meet those constitutional requirements.

The second portion of this resolution chooses not to wait for the parliamentary procedures and machinery set by this House for punishing a Member and instead, provides for punishment after the Member-elect from New York has been seated. The second part in no way disturbs or sets any precedent for future qualification of Members of the House. The gentleman from Minnesota does not address himself to disturbing the constitutional provision that the basic qualifications for serving in the House are age, citizenship, and residency. He provides a second paragraph, or a second provision in the same resolution, totally unrelated to the first, saying that for previous acts committed against this Government, against this Congress, the gentleman from New York is to be punished to the tune of $30,000 but only after he has been seated as a Member of Congress.

The two actions have no relation to each other; are clearly two separate provisions; and in no way affect the Constitution. By adopting this resolution and by overruling the point of order the Chair does not in any way disturb the constitutional provision, which clearly spells out the qualification of a Member. Those constitutional qualifications were properly established by the Founding Fathers. As has been said in previous debate, they have been stated that way for a definite purpose and the substitute offered by the gentleman from Minnesota in no way changes or modifies these basic constitutional requirements.

I do not construe the MacGregor amendment to in any way disturb the basic constitutional requirement of only three things; age, residency, and citizenship. Therefore, it occurs to me that the point of order should be overruled. The proposal by the gentleman from Minnesota would provide the people of the 18th District Representation in Congress but it would also provide restitution to the Federal Government for the acts of the Member-elect after he is sworn in as a Representative. Those of us who believe there should be restitution would hope the point of order is overruled.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is prepared to rule.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler) has offered a resolution providing that the gentleman from New York (Mr. Powell) be now permitted to take the oath of office.

The previous question was moved and defeated by a vote of 176 ayes to 248 noes.

The gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MacGregor) has offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the Celler resolution.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler) raises a point of order against the substitute on the ground that it is not germane to the resolution.

The Chair has examined the proposed substitute. It provides in part:

(1) That the Speaker administer the oath of office to the said Adam Clayton Powell, Member-elect from the Eighteenth District of the State of New York.

(2) That as punishment Adam Clayton Powell be and he hereby is fined the sum of $30,000 said sum to be paid to the Clerk to be disposed of by him according to law. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the House is directed to deduct $1,250 per month from the salary otherwise due the said Adam Clayton Powell, and pay the same to said clerk until said $30,000 fine is fully paid.

(3) That as further punishment the seniority of the said Adam Clayton Powell in the House of Representatives commence as of the date he takes the oath as a Member of the 91st Congress.

(4) That if the said Adam Clayton Powell does not present himself to take the oath of office on or before January 15, 1969, the seat of the Eighteenth District of the State of New York shall be deemed vacant and the Speaker shall notify the Governor of the State of New York of the existing vacancy.

The Chair will state in relation to the remarks made by the distinguished minority leader that while we are operating under general parliamentary law, which is correct, that volume VIII, section 3384 of Cannon's Precedents states:

While the House is governed by general parliamentary usage prior to the adoption of rules, the Speakers have been inclined to give weight to the precedents of the House in the interpretation of that usage.

The Chair anticipated that the question of germaneness would be raised and has had the precedents of the House thoroughly researched.

The Chair might state there was no comparable case that the Chair can ascertain as a result of research in the annals of the House. However, it appears to the Chair that the punishment of Mr. Powell for acts committed in the 88th or 89th Congresses, or declaring his seat vacant in the 91st Congress, is not germane to the proposition that he be now sworn in.

The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. Celler. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, the House just a few moments ago defeated the previous question on the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York, and under the rules of the House and under the discretion given to the Speaker, the Speaker has the right to recognize the principal opponent of the resolution for 1 hour.

At the time the Chair recognized the gentleman from Minnesota, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MacGregor), sought to offer a resolution, but the Chair has just now ruled against the germaneness of the resolution. I ask the question does the gentleman from Minnesota under this set of circumstances lose the right to offer a substitute and also to have 1 hour's time?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state in response to the parliamentary inquiry that at this point the motion on the previous question takes precedence over the motion to amend, and if the House wants to consider further amendment, the House can vote down the previous question.

Mr. Celler. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

Mr. WAGGONNER. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Louisiana will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WAGGONNER. Mr. Speaker, the Chair has sustained a point of order against the substitute resolution, the point of order having been made by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler). The point of order was that the substitute was not germane. I listened carefully to the decision of the Chair, and I found nowhere in that decision from the Chair a clarification as to why it was not germane.

A statement has been made but no explanation has been given. I would like to know in what way it is not germane.

The SPEAKER. The Chair feels that in making the ruling on the point of order that the Chair stated the reasons upon which the point of order was sustained. The Chair has gone into that question in the ruling already made.

Mr. WAGGONNER. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, is the Celler resolution now not subject to a substitute?

The SPEAKER. Not if the previous question is ordered.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a substitute which I have at the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler) has moved the previous question and the question now pending is on ordering the previous question.

Mr. MacGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. MacGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, as the distinguished Speaker was pronouncing judgment in favor of the gentleman from New York and against the gentleman from Minnesota, the gentleman from Minnesota—

The SPEAKER. The Chair has not done that.

Mr. MacGREGOR. I did not imply, Mr. Speaker, that you did.

The SPEAKER. The Chair had made a ruling which was justified.

Mr. MacGREGOR. Then, Mr. Speaker, I ask to revise my remarks to state that the Chair ruled in favor of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler) and against the gentleman from Minnesota. Should the gentleman from Minnesota be on his feet seeking recognition for the purpose of offering a substitute to the resolution which I have offered and which was ruled out of order and should there be a rollcall vote and should it be identical to the earlier rollcall vote, is it correct that I might be looked upon favorably as being recognized if I am on my feet once again?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota is well aware of the fact that the Chair cannot make any commitments before the fact. All the gentleman from Minnesota can rely upon is the fairness of the present occupant of the chair.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, perhaps I may be alone in my lack of understanding as to exactly what is transpiring at the moment, but, perhaps, there may be some others who might be in a similar situation.

My parliamentary inquiry is this: Once the previous question has been rejected as it was a moment ago on the original Celler resolution, is it not in order for a substitute resolution to be offered by another Member of this body?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state in response to the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry that an amendment in the nature of a substitute was offered and a point of order was made against it. The Chair sustained the point of order, and at this point a motion to move the previous question is again in order.

Mr. WATSON. Further, Mr. Speaker, there having been no further business having transpired between that vote which we took a moment ago, and by a vote of almost 2 to 1 rejected the previous question, is it not in order for another substitute to be offered?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that business has been transacted during that period of time.

Mr. WATSON. But a point was raised, Mr. Speaker, and the Speaker sustained it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will protect the gentleman. The gentleman from Minnesota had been recognized to offer his amendment in the nature of the substitute and a point of order was made and the Chair has made its ruling. Now a motion has been made to order the previous question.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, could I be recognized at this time to offer an amendment in the way of a substitute?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state in reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from South Carolina that the gentleman could not be recognized unless the previous question is voted down. It then becomes a matter of discretion on the part of the Chair, if it is voted down, as to who would be recognized.

Mr. WATSON. In other words, Mr. Speaker, we must again vote down the previous question and then it would be in order for a Member of this House, such as myself, to offer an amendment in the way of a substitute?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that the gentleman is correct in his statement.

On the question of recognition, if the gentleman is recognized, or any other Member is recognized, it would be in order to offer a germane amendment.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, there are some Members who are prepared to offer such a substitute amendment.

Mr. CELLER. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from New York were to withdraw his motion moving the previous question, would it then be within the province of the Speaker to recognize a Member to offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute?

I understand that there is some area of agreement whereby there will be a motion offered to refer to a standing committee of the House this matter, so that it may be determined.

But my question is this: If the motion for the ordering of the previous question were withdrawn, would not the Speaker have the right to recognize a Member, any Member whom he chooses, to offer such an amendment?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that if the motion ordering the previous question were withdrawn, then we would be back to the situation that existed prior to that motion being made.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, pursuing the point made by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HAYS) should the gentleman from New York withdraw his motion ordering the previous question, would an amendment then be in order that the question of the amount of any fine as punishment assessed against the said ADAM CLAYTON POWELL be referred to the House Committee on Administration with instructions to report back its recommendations to the House of Representatives within 30 days?

The SPEAKER. Would the gentleman from Oklahoma kindly repeat his parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, the parliamentary inquiry is this:

Should the gentleman from New York withdraw his motion on the previous question, would an amendment be in order to the original resolution of the gentleman from New York to the effect that the question of the amount of any fine as punishment assessed against the said ADAM CLAYTON POWELL be referred to the Committee on House Administration with instructions to report back its recommendations to the House of Representatives within 30 days?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state in reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from Oklahoma that the Chair does not wish to pass upon any question prior to the question being presented. Further, the Chair does not feel that it should give an anticipatory opinion.

Mr. WAGGONER. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WAGGONER. The gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) has moved the previous question. Has the Chair ordered the previous question?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman that the gentleman from New York has moved the previous question.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question and insist upon the previous question.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 172, nays 252, not voting 4, not sworn, 6, as follows:

SUBSTITUTE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MAC GREGOR

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, I have pending at the Clerk's desk a resolution which I offer as a substitute for the resolution ruled out on the point of order, as an amendment to House Resolution 1.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MACGREGOR as a substitute for the resolution offered by Mr. CELLER:

"Resolved, That the question of the right of Adam Clayton Powell to be sworn in as a Representative from the State of New York in the Ninety-first Congress, as well as his final right to a seat therein as such Representative, be referred to a special committee of nine Members of the House to be appointed by the Speaker, four of whom shall be Members of the minority party appointed after consultation with the minority leader. Until such committee shall report upon and the House shall decide such question and right, the said Adam Clayton Powell shall not be sworn in or permitted to occupy a seat in this House.

"For the purpose of carrying out this resolution the committee, or any subcommittee thereof authorized by the committee to hold hearings, is authorized to sit and act during the present Congress at such times and places within the United States, including any Commonwealth or possession thereof, or elsewhere, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, to hold such hearings, and to require by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memorandums, papers, and documents, as it deems necessary; except that neither the committee nor any subcommittee thereof may sit while the House is meeting unless special leave to sit shall have been obtained from the House. Subpenas may be issued under the signature of the chairman of the committee or any member of the committee designated by him, and may be served by any person designated by such chairman or member.

"Until such question and right have been decided, the said Adam Clayton Powell shall be entitled to all the pay, allowances, and emoluments authorized for Members of the House.

"The committee shall report to the House within three weeks after the members of the committee are appointed the results of its investigation and study, together with such recommendations as it deems advisable. Any such report which is made when the House is not in session shall be filed with the Clerk of the House."

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I will yield to the gentleman for a question.

Mr. CELLER. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield for the purpose of asking a question.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, do I understand—if I may ask the gentleman from Minnesota—that this amendment to my original resolution provides that the entire matter, including the question as to whether or not ADAM CLAYTON POWELL shall be seated as a Member, shall be referred to a committee?

Mr. MACGREGOR. The answer in substance is, "Yes."

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield for a parliamentary inquiry to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, this proposition, which apparently was drafted during the last rolcall is somewhat lengthy.

Mr. MACGREGOR. No—let me interrupt, if I may, so that I may save the time of the Members—and of course I mean no disrespect to my colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey.

This amendment was not drafted during the rolcall. I endeavored to accomplish an honorable compromise and the effort was not successful. The resolution that the Clerk has just read is identical with the resolution offered by the distinguished minority leader, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. GERALD R. FORD), on January 10, 1967, and was adopted in the 90th Congress by this body by an overwhelming vote.

I have said that it is identical. Obviously, there are two very minor changes. Instead of 90th Congress, it reads 91st Congress. Instead of providing 5 weeks for the select committee to deliberate and report, that period is reduced to 3 weeks.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. The gentleman has answered what I was about to attempt to propound in a parliamentary inquiry. In other words, except for those two minor changes, we are going through the same process again, if this is approved, as we did the last time around; is that correct?

Mr. MACGREGOR. You mean by "the last time around"—2 years ago?

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Yes.

Mr. MACGREGOR. The gentleman is substantially correct.

I deeply regret that is so. I deeply regret that the House did not have the opportunity on the resolution offered earlier, to which the distinguished gentleman from New York made a successful point of order, to settle this matter today. Hopefully, it would have settled the matter today, but since it has not seen fit to do so at least insofar as my resolution is concerned, I thought it might advance this matter to an honorable and expeditious conclusion, if we took the Ford resolution which was overwhelmingly approved by this body 2 years ago and apply it to our present situation.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the distinguished gentleman from New York.

Mr. CELLER. In other words, your resolution now is similar or identical to the so-called Ford resolution except with respect to the time within which a report shall be made?

Mr. MACGREGOR. The gentleman from New York is correct.

Mr. CELLER. As a result of the passage of the Ford resolution, a select committee was formed of which you and I were members and we made a report. That report was not acceptable to the House.

Now you offer a resolution which would set up another committee to go over the same ground as did the committee which was selected as a result of the Ford resolution. Am I correct in that?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I would not agree that the proposed select committee would be confined to going over the same ground.

The gentleman well knows that almost 2 years have passed since the Celler select committee studied this question. Events have occurred in this period and circumstances have changed which a new committee might well wish to consider and evaluate.

Mr. CELLER. Is it not rather unusual to traverse this ground all over again and go over what the first committee did and all its labor that we have done and trod this same path again?

Mr. MACGREGOR. May I say to the distinguished gentleman from New York that it is unusual. In fact, in the words of the Speaker of the House, no case like this has ever been presented to this Chamber before.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for the purpose of a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the gentleman for a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, is the Celler resolution as proposed, if amended by the MacGregor amendment, subject to substitution at this point?

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman inquire whether or not it is in order to offer an amendment to the MacGregor amendment?

Mr. GROSS. Whether it is in order to offer a substitute, Mr. Speaker, for the Celler resolution and the pending amendment.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that such an amendment is not in order at this time unless the gentleman from New Jersey yields for that purpose, or unless the previous question is defeated.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. THOMPSON) only for the purpose of a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, in the event that, following the hour's debate on the MacGregor motion, the previous question is defeated, would there not be another opportunity for another Member to offer an amendment to the Celler resolution?

The SPEAKER. The answer is that it would be in order, assuming that those things happened, to offer another amendment to the Celler resolution.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. If the previous question on the MacGregor amendment is defeated, could a Member be recognized for the purpose of offering a simple substitute to the Celler amendment directing that the House do seat the gentleman from New York?

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not want to pass on any further questions before they actually arise. But in making an observation it would seem to the Chair that if the previous question should be defeated, that could be accomplished by adopting the Celler resolution.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio for a question.

Mr. HAYS. Did I correctly understand your resolution when it was read that the Member in question, Mr. POWELL, would not be seated in the interim?

Mr. MACGREGOR. That is correct. Matters would be held in abeyance. But Mr. POWELL's case would not be prejudged. He would, as he did 2 years ago, receive the pay and emoluments of his office until the select committee whose formulation is envisaged by the resolution made its recommendations and the House determined the matter.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a further question?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio for a further question.

Mr. HAYS. Would the gentleman be inclined to yield for an amendment stating that the gentleman be seated, and the matter be referred to a select committee to determine what his punishment, if any, should be, and the matter reported back to the House in a stated time?

Mr. MACGREGOR. The gentleman from Minnesota respectfully declines to yield for that purpose.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for one more question?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I will yield to the gentleman from Iowa, who was on his feet before the gentleman from New York, for the purpose of asking a question.

Mr. GROSS. For the purpose of a question.

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield for the purpose of a question.

Mr. GROSS. Would the gentleman yield to me to offer a substitute?

Mr. MACGREGOR. It is the intention of the gentleman from Minnesota, without being rude to any of his colleagues, to move very promptly the previous question on the substitute and on the amendment.

Mr. GROSS. The answer is "No." Is that correct? He would not at this time yield to me to offer a substitute?

Mr. MACGREGOR. The gentleman from Iowa is correct.

I indicated I would yield to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary (Mr. CELLER).

Mr. CELLER. Do I correctly understand that there is a clause in your resolution that is identical with the clause in the so-called Ford resolution to the effect that until such question has been decided, ADAM CLAYTON POWELL shall be entitled to all the pay, allowances, and emoluments authorized to Members of the House?

Mr. MACGREGOR. The gentleman is correct. When the point of order was raised against my previous resolution, there was no time to prepare a new text, and we therefore took from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of January 10, 1967, the exact text of the then Ford resolution with the exception of the change from the 90th to the 91st Congress, and from 5 to 3 weeks. The gentleman from New York may be assured that the resolution which is now pending is identical with the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD report of the resolution offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. FORD) and adopted by this House on January 10, 1967.

Mr. CELLER. One more question: Would he be permitted to assemble a staff and have the staff paid by the Government?

Mr. MACGREGOR. He would be permitted exactly and precisely those things which he was permitted for the period from January 10, 1967, until March 1, 1967. The precise details of what he enjoyed during that period are not within my memory.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACGREGOR. The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. WATSON) wishes me to yield for what purpose?

Mr. WATSON. For a question.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman for a question.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman help me to understand, since the gentleman's resolution provides that the Member-elect from New York is to receive all pay and emoluments of the office during this period of 3 or 5 weeks—I believe it is 5 weeks?

Mr. MACGREGOR. Three weeks.

Mr. WATSON. Since it provides that, under what constitutional authority or under what logic can we as a House authorize the payment of the salary to a person who is not a Member of this House?

Mr. MACGREGOR. As the gentleman from South Carolina is a distinguished lawyer, and he has been kind enough in the past to say that I am, I will respond. The principle of stare decisis is an important principle in the field of law, and I think it has a place in this body.

Two years ago, the House in its wisdom saw fit to act as I now urge it to act today. That is my response to the gentleman.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, one further comment. I believe someone said that a wise man will change his mind when he sees the error of his ways, but a fool never will.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, I sought to bring about an opportunity where this House could exercise the wisdom it has acquired over the past 2 years, but I was thwarted in that effort.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Minnesota yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. MACGREGOR. I yield to the gentleman from New York for a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Speaker, in the event the previous question—which the gentleman from Minnesota has just said he intends to move very shortly—is voted down, would it then be in order to recognize some Member of this House to move that the gentleman from New York be seated and that the question of any possible disciplinary action against the gentleman from New York be referred to an appropriate committee of the House? Would that, may I ask the Chair, be in order and would it also be germane?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state if the previous question is voted down, any germane amendment would be in order.

On the question the gentleman is asking as to whether the proposition he refers to would be germane, the Chair would not express an opinion on that, because the matter is not raised and before the Chair for an opinion.

Mr. STRATTON. I thank the Speaker.

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, may I say to the gentleman from Illinois, it is my strong desire to bring this colloquy at least to a temporary resolution and to final decision within a short period of time. With that in mind, I will be pleased to yield to the gentleman from Illinois for a question or for a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. PUCINSKI. For a question. Mr.

Speaker, the gentlemen on both sides of the aisle have established throughout the afternoon that the gentleman from New York is qualified within the Constitution in that he is old enough, he is a resident, and he is a citizen.

The question is now one of judgment. I do not understand how this House can now, when both sides of the aisle have agreed he is qualified under the Constitution, deny the people of the 18th District of New York representation in this Congress as of today. I do not understand how we can say the gentleman is qualified constitutionally, but we will not seat him. Will the gentleman please address himself to that question?

Mr. MacGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, if we had unlimited time, I would. But I have already responded to that many times. The gentleman knows my view in this matter by reason of my service on the select committee, and by reason of the fact that I helped to write the report of the select committee, and by reason of my participation in the debate today.

Mr. Speaker, I now move the previous question on the amendment and the resolution.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota moves the previous question on the amendment and the resolution. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MacGREGOR).

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 131, nays 292, not voting 6, not sworn, 6, as follows:

NOT SWORN—6

Hanna	Mosher	Reid, N.Y.
Lukens	Powell	Taft

So the substitute amendment was rejected.

Mr. WHALLEY changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question recurs on the adoption of the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER).

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Iowa rise?

Mr. GROSS. I have a substitute at the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that the previous question has been ordered not only on the amendment but also on the resolution. Therefore, a substitute is not in order at this time.

The question is on the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER).

The resolution was rejected.

RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR ADMINISTERING OATH OF OFFICE TO ADAM CLAYTON POWELL

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 2

Resolved—

(1) That the Speaker administer the oath of office to the said Adam Clayton Powell, Member-elect from the Eighteenth District of the State of New York.

(2) That as punishment Adam Clayton Powell be and he hereby is fined the sum of $25,000, said sum to be paid to the Clerk to be disposed of by him according to law. The Sergeant at Arms of the House is directed to deduct $1,150 per month from the salary otherwise due the said Adam Clayton Powell, and pay the same to said Clerk until said $25,000 fine is fully paid.

(3) That as further punishment the seniority of the said Adam Clayton Powell in the House of Representatives commence as of the date he takes the oath as a Member of the 91st Congress.

(4) That if the said Adam Clayton Powell does not present himself to take the oath of office on or before January 15, 1969, the seat of the Eighteenth District of the State of New York shall be deemed vacant and the Speaker shall notify the Governor of the State of New York of the existing vacancy.

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER. The question is on ordering the previous question.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were refused.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, in the event this vote on the previous question is again voted down, will it be in order for the Speaker to give consideration to the recognition of a Member who wants to propose a resolution to exclude the Member-elect from New York?

The SPEAKER. If the previous question is voted down, any amendment or an amendment in the nature of a substitute that is brought up would be in order.

Mr. WATSON. It would be in order.

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Michigan rise?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. To propound a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Is this yeand-nay vote on the previous question?

The SPEAKER. It is.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I thank the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 249, nays 171, not voting 8, not sworn, 6, as follows:

So the previous question was ordered. Messrs. ECKHARDT, CULVER, and ASHLEY changed their votes from "yea" to "nay."

Mr. BURKE of Massachusetts changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER).

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I assume that the ordering of the previous question would preclude an amendment designed to fix the price of a seat, would it not?

The SPEAKER. It excludes all amendments.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, since those of us who were against the resolution as offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CELLER) had such an extended time during which to debate the issue, I wonder if it would be appropriate to ask unanimous consent that at least the resolution be read again so that the Members may be apprised of its contents?

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the Clerk will report the resolution.

There was no objection.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I believe most of the Members of the House are acquainted with the history of this case. It was fully debated here nearly 2 years ago and the will of the House was that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL was not fit to sit in this body.

Mr. Speaker, nothing has changed in the intervening time. ADAM CLAYTON POWELL is as unfit to enjoy the privilege of being a Member of the House of Representatives today as he was unfit on March 1, 1967.

Let me remind Members of the conclusions reached by the select committee which investigated his flagrant misconduct while a Member of the House.

This committee, having pored over the voluminous records detailing the utter disregard of the law, of the House, of the people of this country, and of even basic public morality, found that his conduct had brought "discredit" and "disrepute" to this body and "was contemptuous and was conduct unworthy of a Member."

What had he done?

Actually, it is a question of how much is known about what he has done. The evidence strongly suggests that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL has taken the American people and this House for a far greater ride than anyone yet knows.

For example, the committee found that POWELL, by fraud and forgery, obtained well over $40,000 of Government funds.

His so-called staff members included one woman who was introduced onto the payroll of his Education and Labor Committee when POWELL knew that her only duties were service as a cook and cleaning woman at his house on the island of Bimini.

Further, the select committee investigating his contemptible conduct found that:

First. He used an assumed name on many airline tickets purchased with Education and Labor Committee credit cards, thus deceiving the approving authority as to the number of trips made by him as an individual.

Second. That a staff member—Miss Corrine A. Huff—made a number of similar trips using an assumed name, and for the same purpose.

Third. That he favored at least one member of his staff with personal vacation trips, the transportation for which was procured by using committee credit cards.

Fourth. That for years, POWELL kept his wife on his payroll when, in fact, she was living in Puerto Rico and doing little, if any, work in connection with his congressional office. Mrs. Powell herself testified that for 6 years, with possibly a few exceptions, she did not receive the salary checks made payable to her as a member of his congressional staff.

Moreover, when the select committee showed her photocopies of some of these checks she stated that the endorsements were not in her handwriting.

This, Mr. Speaker, is open and shut forgery.

Now, Mr. Speaker, much was made 2 years ago of the contention that ADAM CLAYTON POWELL had somehow been deprived of his rights by the action of the House in, first, refusing to seat him until the select committee had finished its work and, second, in excluding him from the Congress.

This contention was soundly rejected by the Members, and for good reason. POWELL not only has a long history of flagrantly flouting the law and the courts established to administer the law, he flatly and contemptuously refused to appear before the investigating authorities of this House to answer the charges against him. He had every opportunity to do so; every conceivable chance.

Mr. Speaker, it is this man's unbelievable disregard—no, contempt—for law, that is perhaps most appalling of his characteristics.

As Members will recall, POWELL has a lengthy history of ignoring those courts and those laws which he chooses to ignore. He has set himself above the law time and again. Perhaps no other man—and certainly no other public official—has displayed such disdain of the very laws and the principles of morality that are the foundations of this Nation.

I do not make this statement on my own authority alone. Let me quote a few of the statements of men who have had occasion to know him best on this score. I speak of the justices of the courts of the State of New York where, since 1960, this man has been involved—at arm's length, to be sure, since he chose to appear before these courts rather less often than he appeared in the well of this House during his membership—in protracted litigation involving a libel case and a fraudulent transfer of assets case.

Extensive civil and criminal contempt proceedings have resulted there because of his calculated disobedience to court orders. These are no light charges, unless you happen to be ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, to whom the whole thing appears a huge joke.

On November 4, 1966, New York Supreme Court Justice Matthew Levy presented a summary of the remarks concerning POWELL that had been made by his colleagues and by justices of the New York appellate division.

In December of 1965 one justice said:

It seems to me that the blatant cynicism on the part of Mr. Powell, his disregard for the law, for the ministry and for justice and decency, as far as I can see, is monstrous defiance of everything that is decent in this community, sets a very bad example for the youth of this city and this country.

The blatant, cynical disregard for the law on the part of a U.S. Congressman is detrimental to the law, to the ministry, and to democracy.

This man is supposed to be a Member of the Congress, which makes laws, yet he seems to show rank and monstrous defiance to the law. I don't understand it at all.

Another justice of the New York Court said this in August of 1966:

Considering the disdainful and demeaning and despising attitude of (Powell) toward the authority and dignity of the court, as reflected by the voluminous files of this court which include several civil adjudications of contempt, on a proper and satisfactory jurisdictional basis there is no doubt nor would there be any hesitancy to adjudge the alleged misconduct criminal.

In October 1966, commenting on the unusual appearance of POWELL in his court, still another justice commented:

This marked departure from his hitherto elusiveness was not, unfortunately, accompanied by a similar departure from his policy of ignoring, evading or abusing legal procedures in a campaign of relentless defiance designed to frustrate and impede the judgment creditor in the lawful collection of her judgment.

It was merely another ploy in the seemingly endless series of maneuvers and dilatory tactics by which (Powell) manifests his distaste and disrespect for our judicial processes.

On October 25, 1966, the appellate division of the court said this:

As the long and ugly record in this matter shows, this failure to obey is consistent with (Powell's) cynical refusal to honor his own promises together with a total disregard of any and all process that has been served upon him.

Mr. Justice Levy himself, decrying POWELL's "willful flouting" of the law, commented upon the "attendant deleterious and corroding impact upon the judicial system as a whole and its serious consequential effect upon the general maintenance of law and order in our community."

He went on to observe:

What the defendant (Powell) presumes to do with impunity cannot go unpunished. Else the average person may rightly assume that he may do the same, and feel that when not permitted by the courts thus to act, there is discrimination against the less powerful persons, who rely, and justly rely, upon the courts for the due and impartial administration of justice.

The comments of these judges are even more interesting in the light of the spineless refusal of the Justice Department to press for a decision from the grand jury in the Powell case.

It is inconceivable that any panel of jurors would, of their own volition, refuse to act on the massive evidence supplied them by this House unless blinders were put on them by the Justice Department or its attorneys were under orders to sit on their hands and do nothing.

The House of Representatives found ADAM CLAYTON POWELL guilty of the charges against him before this grand jury was in existence. If he was guilty then—and there is no argument that he was—he is just as guilty now, the nonfeasance of the Justice Department notwithstanding.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that the people of this Nation have had enough of scofflaws such as POWELL. They have had enough—more than enough—of men who choose to obey only those laws they find convenient to obey. They have had enough of those who openly brazenly flout the rules under which all others are expected to live.

For too long have they heard the shrill exhortations to the young minds of this country to damn the law. To put themselves above the law as if it did not apply to them but only to those who choose to obey it.

And in ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, who stands condemned by the New York courts for precisely this type of advocacy, the scofflaw has his champion and his hero.

Mr. Speaker, there are those who have argued, and may well do so again today, that POWELL has already been sufficiently punished and humiliated by his exclusion from the 90th Congress. Where is the proof of this?

Has anyone heard POWELL express regret for his fraudulent acts?

Has anyone seen any evidence of contriteness on his part for his monstrous conduct?

Has he made the slightest show of repaying the $40,000 he was found to have fraudulently obtained?

And why not?

The reason is plain. It is because the morality of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL is not the morality of the vast majority. This man has shown time and time again that he thinks himself above the law, and certainly as being above the rules of this House. It was true in the years that he was a Member. It is every bit as true now.

Does anyone in this Chamber really believe that POWELL has been humiliated by his exclusion? There is not a shred of evidence to support such a belief. There is not a cell in his body capable of humiliation. So I hope that no one will try to use that specious argument for seating him.

It has been argued that POWELL's punishment would consist, in part, in the select committee's recommendation that the $40,000 be docked from his pay. There is no punishment in this, of course.

In the first place, the return of money fraudulently taken is not a punishment. And in the second place, by docking his pay, the taxpayers of this country would be replacing the money taken by POWELL.

I do not believe for a minute that the people of this Nation are ready to pay for POWELL's wrongdoings.

I do not believe for a minute that the people of this Nation want a man helping to write their laws who has proved himself a scofflaw.

If there had been the slightest evidence of contrition on his part, if he had been willing to admit his guilt, if he had even been willing to contest the charges against him, I am sure the Members of this House would feel more willingness to forgive.

But POWELL is manifestly unable or unwilling to see any wrong in what he has done, despite the great weight of the unrefuted evidence to the contrary, and despite the overwhelming judgment of his peers to the contrary.

He would, on the other hand, have the people of this Nation believe that he did nothing that all the rest of us here in this Chamber have done and are still doing—lying, cheating, and stealing.

If POWELL thinks every Member of this House is a crook, he has presented the best argument that can be made for excluding him from the 91st Congress.

Mr. Speaker, if a Member of this body can by the process of fraud and forgery convert $40,000 to $60,000 of Government funds to his own use and that of his friends and escape punishment then there is little integrity left in the House of Representatives. To seat ADAM CLAYTON POWELL today, on the basis of the evidence against him, will make a sham and a pretense of any ethics committee and will be an act that is inexplicable to the public.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, those who argue that time has erased POWELL's guilt are indulging in camouflage of the worst sort. No one should be misled into believing that POWELL has had a change of heart or that he is now prepared to seek the forgiveness of the American people and the House of Representatives which he has so grievously wronged.

The issue before us is whether one Member of Congress has the right to set himself above the law while his colleagues look the other way. If we choose to look the other way, representative government will have been dealt a severe blow. The average citizen of this country in the past few years has been subjected to some rather adverse publicity about the House. By seating ADAM CLAYTON POWELL, the House will be justifying that bad publicity.

No one has advanced any argument or shown any evidence to refute the charges brought against ADAM CLAYTON POWELL. The select committee appointed to investigate his activities in 1967 clearly showed that he misappropriated public funds. How far would a Government clerk get if he so much as misused $400 in public money? Why, of course—the Justice Department would prosecute with all possible speed. Yet ADAM CLAYTON POWELL illegally spent $40,000 belonging to the Government, and there are those who would welcome him with open arms in our midst.

What kind of double standard is this? What manner of hypocrisy? Are we to say to the American taxpayer that $40,000 of his hard-earned money goes as a gift to a flamboyant Congressman who happens to enjoy the good life while at the same time warning that taxpayer not to fudge on his deductions?

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL is not on trial here. The House of Representatives is on trial. A mere slap on the wrist, a directive to pay back the $40,000—all of these efforts at making a haughty man atone for past sins are absolutely superfluous.

The great majority of our constituents know full well that POWELL has no feeling of guilt. For the past 2 years he has arrogantly turned his back on the House. Repentant? There is not a repentant bone in his body. If anything, the past 2 years have made him more adamant in his disdain for the Members of this body, his own constituency, and every loyal, dedicated, and patriotic American.

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL does not deserve to sit in the House of Representatives. His very presence here is an affront to the House and representative government everywhere. Two years ago we courageously stood up and showed POWELL the exit. Surely we have not become so indifferent, so insipid in 2 years' time that we now have a change of heart. POWELL is still guilty in the eyes of the American people. By accepting him we too must share that guilt. When the votes are counted people only want to know how you voted on the question of seating POWELL. They only want to know if you compromised what is right and proper. I want to be able to say that I stood for exclusion of a man who defrauded the American taxpayer.

Mr. WIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to speak to the following question: Is the "fine" imposed by House Resolution 2 to be allowed as an offset against any sum which may be determined in a subsequent proceeding to be owed by Mr. POWELL to the people of the United States?

The answer to this query is not explicit in the text of the resolution, but it is implicit from a review of the history of that resolution. The answer is, "No."

The point of beginning must be the report of the select committee created in the 90th Congress to investigate the conduct of Mr. POWELL. That committee recommended the imposition of a fine of $40,000 as a penalty against Mr. POWELL. Both the resolution proposed by that committee and its report to the House specified that the fine imposed would be considered as partial payment of any civil liability of Mr. POWELL to the United States.

The present resolution is silent on that question. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the silence of the resolution on the issue is pregnant with meaning.

The power of Congress is to punish a Member. We are told that this power—short of exclusion—is plenary and may be exercised by majority vote. We are told that the power includes the imposition of a fine as punishment.

And now I ask, Mr. Speaker, "Have we punished Mr. POWELL by requiring him to pay a just debt?" Of course not.

Should this question arise at any time in the future—and I suspect that it will—I wish the record to reflect that in voting to support House Resolution 2 it was my intention that:

First. The $25,000 fine is not a compromise settlement of all money claims against Mr. POWELL;

Second. The $25,000 fine is not intended as partial payment of any liability which may be determined at a later time; and Third. It is intended as a fine to punish Mr. POWELL for his well-documented misdeeds, and is imposed in addition to any civil liability of Mr. POWELL to the United States.

Mr. HUNGATE. Mr. Speaker, were this Russia or Czechoslovakia, the decision on the seating of ADAM CLAYTON POWELL would be a simple one. Those of us who disapprove of his behavior could simply deny him a seat. However, this is not Russia, and the 18th Congressional District of New York is not Czechoslovakia. Its constituents have not once, but three times, indicated ADAM CLAYTON POWELL as their choice to represent them.

A statement of Voltaire frequently found on the mastheads of our newspapers is:

I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.

This is our opportunity to demonstrate whether we really believe this proposition—or merely think it sounds good.

A final point depends on your view of crime and punishment. I supported the motion in the 90th Congress which excluded, properly I think, Mr. POWELL from membership in this body for 2 years. The present motion requires a fine of $25,000, a not insubstantial amount. Appropriate punishment is in order. Further retribution would be vindictive, and vengeance does not become the Congress of the United States.

Mr. KOCH. Mr. Speaker, I should like to take a moment to comment on the matter of the seating of Mr. ADAM CLAYTON POWELL and my position on his right to be seated without prior conditions being imposed by this body.

The Constitution has only three requirements for Membership in the House of Representatives; they are age, residency, and citizenship. Mr. POWELL qualifies with respect to all of them. The judgment as to whether or not a person is "fit" to represent the people is left to the voters, and rightly so. Mr. POWELL was duly elected by the people of New York's 18th District, not once but twice since the charges against him were reported to the public. There has not been any question about the propriety of the ballots cast in his behalf nor about the majorities given him.

I would like to make it clear, Mr. Speaker, that I have disapproved of many of Mr. POWELL's actions while a Member of the Congress and particularly those violations found by the special committee created to study the case of Mr. POWELL. But, I am not one of his constituents, and the final judgment should be theirs.

In my opinion, any punitive action taken in Mr. POWELL's case should have come only after his immediate seating and upon the recommendation of a special committee established for such purposes.

Therefore, the record shows my voting for Mr. CELLER's resolution, House Resolution 1, providing for Mr. POWELL's seating. But, my vote, unfortunately, was in the minority on this rollcall.

Despite my feelings about the imprudence of attaching a condition to Mr. POWELL's seating, I believed it to be of paramount importance that he be seated and that the people of his district again be represented in the House, an axiomatic right of all people in this country. And so, on the final vote on House Resolution 2, providing for Mr. POWELL's seating with a fine and loss of seniority, I first voted "yea." But, when it was established that there were sufficient votes to have him seated—and that my vote was not necessary for this purpose—I joined five others in voting "present" to indicate my opposition to the $25,000 fine and other sanctions.

Mr. SCHWENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to further comment on, and explain my position on the seating of ADAM POWELL.

Any scholarly analysis of this question must begin with a review of the pertinent constitutional provisions.

Article I, section 2, of the U.S. Constitution provides in part:

No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

Article I, section 5, of the U.S. Constitution provides in part:

Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own Members, . . .

Section 2, quoted above, clearly sets forth the only qualifications for membership in the U.S. House of Representatives. It is my position that any person presenting a duly certified certificate of election from his State, and meeting the constitutional requirements set forth in section 2, to wit, age, residence, and citizenship, must be seated by the House of Representatives. Mr. POWELL presented the required certificate of election, and no serious question has been raised with respect to his meeting the qualifications of age, residence, or citizenship. Thus it is my opinion, that from a legal standpoint, there was no basis for excluding Mr. POWELL from the 91st Congress. For this reason I voted to seat Mr. POWELL. But, to fully explore this question, we must look to still another constitutional provision.

Article I, section 5 further provides:

Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its Members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a Member.

It is under this provision of the Constitution that the House must control the conduct of its Members. There is little doubt that Mr. POWELL has been guilty of a good number of indiscretions in his personal life, and in respect to his official duties. It is my feeling that it was incumbent on the House to "punish" Mr. POWELL for this "disorderly behavior" pursuant to the provisions of section 5, article I.

It is for this reason that I urged a $40,000 fine be imposed. When this motion was unsuccessful, I agreed to support a fine of $30,000. It should be made clear that the $30,000 fine was imposed pursuant to the punishment provisions of article I, section 5, and not as an additional qualification for seating superimposed on the requirements of article I, section 2, of the Constitution. The failure to make this distinction has resulted in a good deal of the confusion on this question.

Mr. POWELL was further "punished" by being relegated to so-called freshman status, and being stripped of all seniority. Mr. POWELL had served 22 years in the House, and was chairman of the powerful Education and Labor Committee. This additional punishment is far from being inconsequential. Mr. POWELL also lost approximately $55,000 in salary during the years he was excluded. It should also be clear that the action of the House does not bar civil litigation to recover any moneys which may be found to be due the Congress from Mr. POWELL.

And, it would be my hope that the new administration will carefully review the actions of the Justice Department, and if the facts warrant to reopen the criminal aspects of the case, it would further be my position that the House has a duty to continue to "police" the behavior of Mr. POWELL, just as is the case with all other Members. If Mr. POWELL's conduct in the future is such as to be classified as "disorderly behavior," he would still be subject to punishment by the House, and if the circumstances warranted, he could be expelled.

We must not confuse the question of Mr. POWELL's fidelity to his constituents with his fidelity to the U.S. House of Representatives. The people of his district have reelected him twice since he was originally excluded from the House. It would be unconscionable to deny the people of his district representation under the circumstances. In this respect he has settled his legal problems within his district, particularly the defamation judgment. Although I question some of the actions of the Justice Department in this respect, Mr. POWELL has apparently been cleared of all criminal charges. To this end, I quote from a letter to Congressman CELLER from the Attorney General dated January 2:

DEAR CONGRESSMAN CELLER: This letter is in further reply to the material you transmitted to the Department of Justice by letter dated February 24, 1967, with respect to Mr. Adam Clayton Powell.

This material and other conduct of Mr. Powell was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and extensive inquiry was made by a Federal grand jury in the District of Columbia. The grand jury which considered the matter expired on December 9. On the recommendation of the Department, the grand jury did not return an indictment. Our recommendation was based on the conclusion that the available evidence did not warrant prosecution.

The Department is continuing to study the matter to determine whether there is civil liability. (Emphasis added.)

Sincerely yours,

RAMSEY CLARK,
Attorney General.

I would also like to emphasize the fact that my action in voting to seat Mr. POWELL was based in part on the advice of some of the most respected attorney Members of the House.

For the foregoing reasons, I feel the House was correct and fair in the action taken with respect to the seating of Mr. POWELL.

The Clerk reread the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 2

Resolved—

(1) That the Speaker administer the oath of office to the said Adam Clayton Powell, Member-elect from the Eighteenth District of the State of New York.

(2) That as punishment Adam Clayton Powell be and he hereby is fined the sum of $25,000, said sum to be paid to the Clerk to be disposed of by him according to law. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the House is directed to deduct $1,150 per month from the salary otherwise due the said Adam Clayton Powell, and pay the same to said clerk until said $25,000 fine is fully paid.

(3) That as further punishment the seniority of the said Adam Clayton Powell in the House of Representatives commence as of the date he takes the oath as a Member of the 91st Congress.

(4) That if the said Adam Clayton Powell does not present himself to take the oath of office on or before January 15, 1969, the seat of the Eighteenth District of the State of New York shall be deemed vacant and the Speaker shall notify the Governor of the State of New York of the existing vacancy.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. Speaker, paragraph No. 3 of the resolution relative to seniority, it is not clear to me what the intent of this action is. What about the 24 years of seniority? Would this resolution, if adopted, place the gentleman from New York (Mr. POWELL) at the same starting point as a freshman that is taking over today?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state to the gentleman what is in the resolution:

(3) That as further punishment the seniority of the said Adam Clayton Powell in the House of Representatives commence as of the day he takes the oath as a Member of the 91st Congress.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MYERS. Does this apply to office space and so forth and does he take his position along with the other freshmen today for office space?

The SPEAKER. The Chair has read the resolution to the gentleman. Does the gentleman wish the Chair to repeat what is in the resolution?

Mr. MYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have read the resolution.

The SPEAKER. The resolution states: "as of the date he takes the oath as a Member of the 91st Congress."

The question is on the resolution.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 254, nays 160, answered "present" 6, not voting 10, not sworn 6, as follows:

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to extend their remarks on the subject matter of the resolution just passed.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

SWEARING IN OF A MEMBER

Mr. POWELL appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office.

MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Democratic caucus, I have been directed to report to the House that the Democratic Members have selected as majority leader the gentleman from Oklahoma, the Honorable CARL ALBERT.

MINORITY LEADER

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Republican conference, I am directed by that conference to officially notify the House that the gentleman from Michigan, the Honorable GERALD R. FORD, has been selected as the minority leader of the House.

MINORITY WHIP

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Republican conference, I am directed by that conference to notify the House officially that the Republican Members have selected as minority whip the gentleman from Illinois, the Honorable LESLIE C. ARENDS.

MAJORITY WHIP

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I have the honor of advising the Members of the House that the distinguished gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Boggs) has been selected to serve as majority whip during the 91st Congress.

ELECTION OF CLERK OF THE HOUSE, SERGEANT AT ARMS, DOORKEEPER, POSTMASTER, AND CHAPLAIN

Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 3) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 3

Resolved, That W. Pat Jennings, of the Commonwealth of Virginia, be, and he is hereby, chosen Clerk of the House of Representatives;

That Zeake W. Johnson, Jr., of the State of Tennessee, be, and he is hereby, chosen Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives;

That William M. Miller, of the State of Mississippi, be, and he is hereby, chosen Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives;

That H. H. Morris, of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, be, and he is hereby, chosen Postmaster of the House of Representatives;

That Reverend Edward G. Latch, of the District of Columbia, be, and he is hereby, chosen Chaplain of the House of Representatives.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I have a substitute to offer to the resolution, but before offering the substitute I request that there be a division on the question on the resolution so that we may have a separate vote on the office of Chaplain.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Illinois demands a division in relation to the election of the Chaplain.

The question is on agreeing to that portion of the resolution providing for the election of the Chaplain.

That portion of the resolution was agreed to.

SUBSTITUTE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANDERSON OF ILLINOIS

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I offer a substitute amendment for the remainder of the resolution.

The Clerk read the substitute amendment, as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois as a substitute for House Resolution 3:

"That Harry L. Brookshire, of the State of Ohio, be, and he is hereby, chosen Clerk of the House of Representatives;

"That Richard T. Burrell, of the State of Maryland, be, and he is hereby, chosen Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives;

"That William R. Bonsell, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, be, and he is hereby, chosen Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives;

"That Tony Lee Winebrenner, of the State of Indiana, be, and he is hereby, chosen Postmaster of the House of Representatives."

The SPEAKER. The question is on the substitute amendment.

The substitute amendment was rejected.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI).

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. Will the officers elected present themselves in the well of the House?

The officers-elect presented themselves at the bar of the House and took the oath of office.

NOTIFICATION TO SENATE OF ORGANIZATION OF THE HOUSE

Mr. MILLS. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 4) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 4

Resolved, that a message be sent to the Senate to inform that body that a quorum of the House of Representatives has assembled; that John W. McCormack, a Representative from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has been elected Speaker; and W. Pat Jennings, a citizen of the Commonwealth of Virginia, Clerk of the House of Representatives of the Ninety-first Congress.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMITTEE TO NOTIFY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF THE ASSEMBLY OF THE CONGRESS

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 5) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 5

Resolved, That a committee of three Members be appointed by the Speaker on the part of the House of Representatives to join with a committee on the part of the Senate to notify the President of the United States that a quorum of each House has been assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication that he may be pleased to make.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints as members of the committee on the part of the House to join the committee on the part of the Senate to notify the President of the United States that a quorum of each House has been assembled, and that Congress is ready to receive any communication that he may be pleased to make, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. ALBERT), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BOGGS), and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. GERALD R. FORD).

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 6) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 6

Resolved, That the Clerk be instructed to inform the President of the United States that the House of Representatives has elected John W. McCormack, a Representative from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Speaker; and W. Pat Jennings, a citizen of the Commonwealth of Virginia, Clerk of the House of Representatives of the Ninety-first Congress.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RULES OF THE HOUSE

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 7) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 7

Resolved, That the Rules of the House of Representatives of the 90th Congress, together with all applicable provisions of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended, be, and they are hereby adopted as the Rules of the House of Representatives of the 91st Congress, with the following amendment as part thereof, to wit:

In Rule XV, clause 1, strike out "voting;" and all that follows and insert in lieu thereof the following: "voting. Members appearing after the second call, but before the result is announced, may vote or announce a pair."

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMPENSATION OF CERTAIN MINORITY EMPLOYEES

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 8) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 8

Resolved, That pursuant to the Legislative Pay Act of 1929, as amended, six minority employees authorized therein shall be the following-named persons, effective January 3, 1969, until otherwise ordered by the House, to-wit: Harry L. Brookshire and Richard T. Burress to receive gross compensation of $28,000, respectively; William R. Bonsell to receive gross compensation of $22,757.86 per annum; Tommy Lee Winebrenner, to receive gross compensation of $19,508.27 per annum; Walter Patrick Kennedy (minority pair clerk), to receive gross compensation of $22,184.85 per annum; and Robert T. Hartmann (legislative assistant to minority leader) to receive gross compensation of $21,792.12 per annum.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMITTEES ON APPROPRIATIONS AND ARMED SERVICES

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 9) and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. RES. 9

Resolved, That during the Ninety-first Congress the Committee on Appropriations shall be composed of fifty-one members and the Committee on Armed Services shall be composed of forty members.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The resolution was agreed to.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

HOURLY OF MEETING OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 13) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 13

Resolved, That until otherwise ordered, the daily hour of meeting of the House of Representatives shall be at 12 o'clock meridian.

The resolution was agreed to.

RESIGNATION AS MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication, which was read:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D.C., December 17, 1968.
Hon. JOHN W. MCCORMACK,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

MY DEAR MR. SPEAKER: In view of my election as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, I hereby tender my resignation as a Member of the House of Representatives from the 24th District of New York, effective December 31, 1968.

It has been a great honor and privilege for me to have served in Congress. The 16 years that I spent in the House have been rewarding and I shall never forget them.

I am grateful to you, Mr. Speaker, and all of my colleagues who have extended their kindness, consideration and friendship during those 16 exciting years.

With warmest regards, I am
Sincerely yours,

PAUL A. FINO.

PROVIDING FOR A JOINT SESSION TO COUNT ELECTORAL VOTES

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I call up a Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 1) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the Senate concurrent Resolution, as follows:

S. CON. RES. 1

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the two Houses of Congress shall meet in the Hall of the House of Representatives on Monday, the 6th day of January 1969, at 1 o'clock postmeridian, pursuant to the requirements of the Constitution and laws relating to the election of President and Vice President of the United States, and the President pro tempore of the Senate shall be their presiding officer; that two tellers shall be previously appointed by the President of the Senate on the part of the Senate and two by the Speaker on the part of the House of Representatives, to whom shall be handled, as they are opened by the President pro tempore of the Senate, all the certificates and papers purporting to be certificates of the electoral votes, which certificates and papers shall be opened, presented, and acted upon in the alphabetical order of the States, beginning with the letter "A"; and said tellers, having then read the same in the presence and hearing of the two Houses, shall make a list of the votes as they shall appear from the said certificates; and the votes having been ascertained and counted in the manner and according to the rules by law provided, the result of the same shall be delivered to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who shall thereupon announce the state of the vote, which announcement shall be deemed a sufficient declaration of the persons, if any, elected President and Vice President of the United States, and, together with a list of the votes, be entered on the Journals of the two Houses.

The Senate concurrent resolution was concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of Senate Concurrent Resolution 1, the Chair appoints as tellers on the part of the House to count the electoral votes on January 6, 1969, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. FRIEDEL) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LIPSCOMB).

AUTHORIZING SPEAKER TO DECLARE A RECESS ON MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1969

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that on Monday, January 6, 1969, it may be in order for the Speaker to declare a recess at any time subject to the call of the Chair.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURATION

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I offer a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 1) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. CON. RES. 1

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That effective from January 3, 1969, the joint committee created by Senate Concurrent Resolution 73, of the Ninetieth Congress, to make the necessary arrangements for the inauguration of the President-elect and Vice President-elect of the United States on the 20th day of January 1969, is hereby continued and for such purpose shall have the same power and authority as that conferred by such Senate Concurrent Resolution 73, of the Ninetieth Congress.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of Concurrent Resolution No. 1, 91st Congress, the Chair appoints as members of the joint committee to make the necessary arrangements for the inauguration of the President-elect and the Vice President-elect of the United States on the 20th day of January 1969, the following Members on the part of the House: Mr. GERALD R. FORD, of Michigan; Mr. McCORMACK of Massachusetts; and Mr. ALBERT of Oklahoma.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS AND SUBCOMMITTEES THEREOF TO SIT DURING SESSIONS AND RECESSES OF 91ST CONGRESS

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 14) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Res. 14

Resolved, That the Committee on Appropriations and the subcommittees thereof be authorized to sit during sessions and recesses of the Ninety-First Congress.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS UNDER PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 15) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Res. 15

Whereas by the privileges of this House no evidence of a documentary character under the control and in the possession of the House of Representatives can, by the mandate of process of the ordinary courts of justice, be taken from such control or possession except by its permission: Therefore be it

Resolved, That when it appears by the order of any court in the United States or a judge thereof, or of any legal officer charged with the administration of the orders of such court or judge, that documentary evidence in the possession and under the control of the House is needful for use in any court of justice or before any judge or such legal officer, for the promotion of justice, this House will take such action thereon as will promote the ends of justice consistently with the privileges and rights of this House; be it further

Resolved, That during any recess or adjournment of the Ninety-first Congress, when a subpoena or other order for the production or disclosure of information is by the due process of any court in the United States served upon any Member, officer, or employee of the House of Representatives, directing appearance as a witness before the said court at any time and the production of certain and sundry papers in the possession and under the control of the House of Representatives, that any such Member, officer, or employee of the House, be authorized to appear before said court at the place and time named in any such subpoena or order, but no papers or documents in the possession or under the control of the House of Representatives shall be produced in response thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That when any said court determines upon the materiality and the relevancy of the papers or documents called for in the subpoena or other order, then said court, through any of its officers or agents shall have full permission to attend with all proper parties to the proceedings before said court and at a place under the orders and control of the House of Representatives and take copies of the said documents or papers and the Clerk of the House is authorized to supply certified copies of such documents that the court has found to be material and relevant, except that under no circumstances shall any minutes or transcripts of executive sessions, or any evidence of witnesses in respect thereto, be disclosed or copied, nor shall the possession of said documents and papers by any Member, officer, or employee of the House be disturbed or removed from their place of file or custody under said Member, officer, or employee; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted by the Clerk of the House to any of said courts whenever such writs of subpoena or other orders are issued and served as aforesaid.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ALBERT. I will yield briefly.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I am not sure how brief it will be, but if we are going to pass this by unanimous consent, it would be in order to have some explanation.

My question is simply this: Mr. Speaker, would the effect of this resolution blanket in all authority which previously we have considered as far as individual cases are concerned for subpoenas of Members or subpoenas duces tecum as affects documents of individual Members of the House or of the House of Representatives itself?

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, of course, the resolution, as the gentleman knows by its reading, refers to any case that might take place during the recesses or adjournment of the Congress. It has no application in any other case. It is a standard resolution which has been used, as far as I know. The only reason for the resolution is to protect Members of the House.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield further, what he is saying is that this is only in cases where subpoenas were served while the Congress was in recess?

It is the blanket form of resolution we have adopted in the past?

Mr. ALBERT. The gentleman is correct, but this is not a blanket resolution. This is a resolution to cover the situation if subpoenas had been issued, so that the papers and privileges of the House would be protected against the process of the court. It is a protection of the House.

Mr. HALL. This is exactly the basis for my query, the coequal legislative branch vis-a-vis the judicial branch and their rights and demands on this House of Representatives. Am I assured by the distinguished gentleman from Oklahoma that if such a subpoena would be applied by any branch of the judiciary in the future, it would be considered individually when we are in session?

Mr. ALBERT. The gentleman is correct. This is only to protect in those instances which might occur during adjournment.

Mr. HALL. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

INTRODUCTION AND REFERENCE OF BILLS TODAY

The SPEAKER. The Chair would like to make a statement concerning the introduction and reference of bills today.

As Members are aware, they have the privilege today of introducing bills. Heretofore on the opening day of a new Congress, several thousand bills have been introduced. It will be readily apparent to all Members that it may be a physical impossibility for the Speaker to examine each bill for reference today. The Chair will do his best to refer as many bills as possible, but he will ask the indulgence of Members if he is unable to refer all the bills that may be introduced. Those bills which are not referred and do not appear in the RECORD as of today will be included in the next day's RECORD and printed with a date as of today.

APPOINTMENT AS MEMBERS OF HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING COMMISSION

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of title 40, United States Code, sections 175 and 176, the Chair appoints the gentleman from New York (Mr. Celler), and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Cramer) as members of the House Office Building Commission to serve with himself.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM FOR NEXT WEEK AND AUTHORITY FOR SPEAKER TO DECLARE A RECESS ON JANUARY 9, 1969, TO RECEIVE APOLLO 8 ASTRONAUTS

(Mr. ALBERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I should like to have the attention of the distinguished acting minority leader.

Mr. Speaker, I take this time to give Members as much notice as I can of the business contemplated for next week.

Monday, of course, is the regular day for the counting of the electoral votes. That will take place on Monday.

Monday also is suspension day. There is one suspension—the bill to increase the per annum rate of compensation of the President of the United States.

Also on Monday, for the information of Members, all Members have received, I believe, invitations from the Speaker and myself regarding the reception to be held in the Longworth Building cafeteria at which the President of the United States will be the guest of Members of the House. That will be on Monday at 4:30 or immediately following the adjournment of the House. All Members on both sides of the Capitol, on both sides of the aisle, are invited.

Mr. Speaker, may I advise we also intend on Thursday to honor the astronauts, the Apollo 8 astronauts.

In that regard, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it may be in order at any time on Thursday, January 9, 1969, for the Speaker to declare a recess for the purpose of receiving in joint meeting the Apollo 8 astronauts: Col. Frank Borman, U.S. Air Force; Capt. James A.

Lovell, Jr., U.S. Navy; and Lt. Col. William A. Anders, U.S. Air Force.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROBERTS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma? There was no objection.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ALBERT. I yield to the distinguished Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. I believe a little explanation should be made to my colleagues on the bill which is coming up Monday under the suspension of the rules procedure, and the necessity for it.

In connection with the recommendations from the Commission to the President about increases in salaries, all Members of the Congress and the judiciary and the other officers in the executive branch are covered, except that the Vice President, the Speaker, and the leaders of both branches do not come within the purview of the proposal, because the Commission did not feel it had jurisdiction to make recommendations with reference to the Vice President, the Speaker, or the leaders of both branches.

However, if later any increase in salary is provided for them, that can be done and it would not prevent the increase from taking effect during their term of office. That is the information we have received. However in the case of the next President of the United States, unless something is done with reference to increasing his salary on or before January 20, even if we pass the bill later, he could not take advantage of it during his term of office for a period of 4 years.

We are faced with a very practical situation here with respect to the organization of the committees. This will take time, and 12 o'clock January 20 is the deadline. So, if we are going to take any action in connection with an increase in salary for the next President of the United States, it has to be done on or before noon of January 20. If we took action afterwards, then during his term of office he could not take advantage of the increase in salary that the Congress might provide. We feel it is only fair and just.

This action was initiated by the majority leader and myself in conference with the minority leader and the whip and the chairman of the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and the ranking member of that committee. It was decided that every effort should be made to try to put a bill through before January 20 providing for an increase in salary for the President of the United States.

The last increase for the President was almost 20 years ago, if I remember correctly. Is that correct?

Mr. ALBERT. 1949.

Mr. McCORMACK. So it is simply a matter of justice. That is the reason why the bill was introduced by the majority and the minority leaders and the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and its ranking member. It was introduced and sponsored by all of them. Now, next Monday is the only suspension day that we could take advantage of. So the leadership and I felt that we should do so at this opportunity. Otherwise, in spite of every effort we might make, the chances are it would be difficult to get a bill through before January 20.

I thought that I should take my colleagues into complete confidence as to the reason for this action that we are taking.

Mr. GROSS. Will the distinguished gentleman yield?

Mr. ALBERT. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. Will this be a simple bill, simply changing the money figure?

Mr. McCORMACK. Yes. It will have to be, because he is the only one, as I understand it, whose salary must be increased on or before January 20 in order to take advantage of the increase during the next 4 years. It would not apply to the Vice President or to the Speaker or to the leaders of both branches of the Congress. They can be picked up later in a separate bill if an increase goes through for the Members of Congress and others covered by the Commission's report and the President's recommendation. Our information is that if an increase is provided for us we would not be precluded from receiving it during our term of office.

Mr. GROSS. I can say to the distinguished Speaker that my only concern, really, is that this will be used as a lever to pry loose outlandish pay increases for the other officials of the Government.

Mr. McCORMACK. I am sure the gentleman would not impute such a motive to my distinguished friend from Oklahoma and the distinguished minority leader and the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service or its ranking member. I am not going to defend myself against that charge. You will have to prove me guilty.

Mr. ARENDS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ALBERT. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ARENDS. Is it contemplated that we will go over from Monday to Thursday next week?

Mr. ALBERT. I should think so, but that is not definite yet.

Mr. ARENDS. I thank the gentleman.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, JANUARY 6

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

GLARING AND GROWING DEFICIENCIES IN OUR NAVY

(Mr. RIVERS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, to revise and extend his remarks and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. RIVERS. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Armed Services has long been pointing out the glaring and growing deficiencies in our Navy. It is not enough to say that two-thirds of our fleet is now over 20 years old. What must be pointed out is that some of the ships we are now using in the seas of Southeast Asia are so old that they are kept in operation only by the hard work and devotion to duty of the men who are on board them—often working over 80 hours a week. When the ships return for overhaul and are sandblasted to remove the barnacles, the sandblasting sometimes goes right through the hull. If this happened to a commercial ship, there would be an immediate Coast Guard investigation. With the Navy ships, it is so usual that a plate is just welded over the hole and the ship is sent back to the battle. How long can we continue to rely on such ships? How long can the rest of the ship be depended upon if the hull is showing these effects of age?

At the same time that we are relying upon our sailors to keep these old hulks running, they are being asked to live in quarters which are unbearably overcrowded and uncomfortable. Air conditioning is a sometime thing on ships which have to man battle stations in tropical weather. Ship by ship, as the crews make do, air conditioning is being installed in space after space—but the living quarters are usually the last to get it. Other crew facilities are often inadequate. Recently we found a ship where three of only six toilets provided for 144 men were out of use because there were not enough shipfitters to fix them and repair the boilers on the ship at the same time. The boilers, of course, received priority.

The exact status is classified, but let me tell you that our recent examinations of the readiness of our Atlantic fleet and of our Mediterranean fleet is shocking. Nor do we have any cause to be satisfied with the readiness of our Pacific fleet. The basic cause is overaged ships which have not been able to get the necessary upkeep and maintenance.

At the same time that our fleet is being run to exhaustion, the Soviets are building a new modern navy with fast ships and modern equipment. Recently I asked the American Security Council to examine this situation in the unclassified literature. Its report was recently published by our committee as a committee print entitled, "The Changing Strategic Naval Balance, U.S.S.R. versus U.S.A." Part of the report says:

Thus, if the United States fails to maintain a clear lead in all significant forms of naval power, if the strategic naval balance is not in its favor, the United States will be unable to fulfill its role as leader of the free and independent nations emphasizing strategic naval forces—shifting much of their increasing missile power to sea—it is imperative that the United States have superior naval forces with which to deal with the new Soviet threat.

In recent years, despite the tremendous growth of the Soviet naval and maritime establishment and the continuing growth that the U.S.S.R. has planned for the Soviet Navy, there continues to be inadequate U.S. response to the new Communist challenge on and under the seas. The inadequate level of response to challenge gives cause for concern in view of the ample evidence of increasing Soviet naval capabilities and the bold employment of Soviet naval forces in crisis situations.

Much of the free world could not retain its security and independence without U.S. support. In a military sense, particularly, there is no other present source for this support. Thus, a burden in defense of world freedom is thrust upon us whether we wish it or not. The Soviets already have a fleet of several ships in the Indian Ocean, moving to fill the vacuum left by the withdrawal of the British. We now have only one or two small ships in this area. In the Mediterranean, the Soviets are not only maintaining a sizable fleet, but they are building naval bases there as the British leave.

The time has come to do more than merely talk about the sad shape of our Navy—and the immensity of the task which it must perform. The time has come to do something about it. Therefore, I am today introducing a bill which would be the start of a program for the construction of a new Navy.

The bill I am introducing will authorize the construction of Navy ships costing $3.8 billion in fiscal year 1970. In fiscal year 1969 the naval shipbuilding program was only $1.3 billion. Only with a new program can we begin to replace old ships at an adequate rate. Only with such a program can we begin to have a Navy with adequate modern equipment. Only with such a program can we really begin to have a nuclear Navy—the way that the Congress, the Navy, and the Joint Chiefs have been demanding for years.

Since the Navy must have ships able to go into any part of any ocean on a moment's notice, the necessity of having nuclear propulsion in our Navy is greater than ever before. While it may cost more, the necessity of being free from the black oil logistics train is an overwhelming requirement.

Hence in the new shipbuilding program there will be one nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, two nuclear-powered guided missile frigates, and three nuclear-powered attack submarines.

I want to make special mention of the nuclear attack submarines. Since World War II, the Soviets have built up a submarine fleet of 350, of which over 50 are nuclear powered. The first line of defense against these submarines is our own attack submarine, of which we now have only about 100, and of which only about 40 at this moment are nuclear powered. Up until the past few months there was a ceiling of 69 nuclear attack submarines arbitrarily imposed by the systems analysis group in the Pentagon upon the Navy. Now that limit has been broken. The new submarine construction program will begin to bring our nuclear attack submarine capability up to the range which has been requested by the Navy and approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The new program will also permit the construction of eight new escort destroyers of nonnuclear propulsion. This part of the program may begin to give the Navy some experience with gas turbine engines—a powerplant that other navies have begun to find useful and flexible for their ships.

The program would also look to the construction of 17 support ships and the conversion of 21 present ships, including the conversion of six Polaris submarines to carry the Poseidon missiles. There will also be included in the program the necessary additions to round out the program, such as the provision of spares.

With the enactment of this kind of a program, the shipbuilding industry will be able to make such plans as may be needed to complete the modernization of its plant.

More importantly, it will be able to make better long-range plans for utilization of its working force—a working force which is as highly skilled as any in the country. With long-range plans, it will now be able to attract and retain the kind of talent which is needed to design and build the highly complex ships required by our Navy.

And the Navy will be better able to attract and retain sailors and officers who have the skills and talents needed by our career forces.

Mr. BATES, the ranking minority Member, and I recognized the need for a re-examination of the full problems involved in seapower last fall. Consequently I designated a Special Subcommittee on Sea Power, chaired by the Honorable CHARLES E. BENNETT.

I hope that the Members of Congress will study this program seriously—a study which will result, I am sure, in overwhelming legislative support.

To sum up, the bill I am introducing would provide for 19 new warships including one nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, two nuclear-powered guided missile frigates, three nuclear-powered attack submarines, and eight destroyers of the new class; 17 new support ships, 21 conversions including six Polaris submarine conversions, and modernization of three missile escorts.

The funds will also cover necessary spare parts and design efforts, as well as the purchase of long lead time items for further nuclear attack submarines and nuclear frigates. This is but a start for a new modern Navy.

WILLIAM M. McMILLAN—A DEDICATED PUBLIC SERVANT

(Mr. BROOKS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. Speaker, last evening, January 2, 1969, I, along with colleagues from both sides of the aisle in this House, joined with a host of friends and fellow workers to pay tribute to one of the great career public servants of this Nation—William Marvin McMillan, Assistant Postmaster General for the Bureau of Operations of the Post Office Department.

On December 30, 1968, Mr. McMillan retired from our great postal service after a long and distinguished career of more than two score years. A career that spanned—

More than one-fifth of the independent existence of this great Republic of ours;

The administration of seven Presidents—Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, and Johnson;

The tenure of 11 Postmasters General—New, Brown, Farley, Walker, Han-negan, Donaldson, Summerfield, Day, Gronouski, O'Brien, and Watson; and

The period from July 1, 1927, through December 30, 1968.

The career of William Marvin McMillan is a living example of the great American dream—the limitless opportunity to succeed. His is a story of a career public servant who entered the postal service as a substitute postal clerk in Albany, Tex., and subsequently rose through the ranks of that great Department of our Government to become a postal inspector, inspector-in-charge of the Fort Worth Division, regional director of the Wichita and then the Dallas region and finally to be nominated by President Johnson and confirmed by the Senate to be Assistant Postmaster General for Operations.

Mr. Speaker, needless to say I am proud that such a man comes from my native State of Texas. Such men as William Marvin McMillan are the kind of leaders that this Nation has produced over our long history.

I can think of no better words to describe the kind of dedication, loyalty, integrity, and service as demonstrated by Bill McMillan than the lines of Josiah Gilbert Holland, who wrote:

God give us men! A time like this demands Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;

Men whom the best of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking!

Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above
the fog
In public duty and in private thinking.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that William Marvin McMillan is such a man.

"HE SERVED US ALL"

(Mr. GERALD R. FORD asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the Record and to include an editorial.)

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, the man who helps his friends and neighbors and seeks constantly to improve his community renders a great service to mankind. C. H. Runciman, of Lowell, Mich., a constituent of mine, was just such a man. He gave unstintingly of his time and energies to the betterment of the community of Lowell and the State of Michigan. It was altogether fitting, therefore, that the Grand Rapids, Mich., Press should have eulogized Mr. Runciman after his recent death. Mr. Runciman's death left a void in his community and his State. The Grand Rapids Press editorial follows:

HE SERVED US ALL

The death of Carlton H. Runciman Sr. of Lowell has been ruled a suicide. But the circumstances of his death cannot alter the fact that in life he devoted a large share of his immense energy and zest for living to public causes, especially social welfare.

Carl Runciman was a charter member of the State Welfare Commission and he served on it longer than any other person. Although a Republican, he was appointed to the commission by Democratic as well as Republican governors, in plain recognition of his valuable leadership. He worked in harness with the other commission members regardless of their party affiliation. As long as they were devoted to improving the lot of the state's less fortunate citizens that was good enough for him.

His contributions to his community and to education were proportionately as large. Though he was immersed in his own business interests and took great pride in his business operations, he seemed always to have time to spare to work for the betterment of his community, his neighbors and his state. He never was too busy to turn away anyone with a problem or any person who wanted help in improving the school system, making the community a better place to live or looking after the needs of others.

Mr. Runciman was not well in late years, and it was obvious when one talked with him. But the grin was as broad as ever, the handshake as firm as it had been, and the desire to be of help to others as strong and instinctive as always. He lived a full life and a good one. And that is what all of his relatives, friends and acquaintances always will remember.

LEGISLATION INTRODUCED TO MODERNIZE OUR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION PROCESS

(Mr. ULLMAN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. ULLMAN. Mr. Speaker, today I have introduced legislation which will modernize our presidential election process. One part of my proposal would amend the Constitution to abolish the electoral college, provide for the direct election of the President, and call for a national presidential primary election. This is supplemented by a bill which outlines the procedures for doing this.

I make these proposals because I believe that in the wake of the events of the 1968 presidential election, the American people are ready for a complete reform of the electoral process. Several piecemeal approaches which would partially update the electoral system have been offered, but I believe it is necessary that we make a complete revision while we are addressing ourselves to the need for reform.

The violence of dissenters in Chicago; the circus atmosphere which surrounded the Republicans at Miami; the sizable protest vote for George Wallace; and the near miss on election night when it appeared that a deadlock in the electoral college was in the making were all highlights of the presidential election of 1968. These are also indications of the troubled state our antiquated presidential election procedures have helped to create.

The time for academic discussion and rhetorical debate is past. We must act now to alter the dangerous and unresponsive institutions which have allowed this situation to grow. Abolition of the electoral college and providing for the direct popular election of the President is a good beginning, but it does not go far enough. We must supplement such reform by abandoning the convention method of nominating candidates and instituting a direct national presidential primary election.

Those who are backing the abolition of the electoral college admit that it will start a trend of bringing the people more directly into all steps of the election of the President. If we intend to do an honest job of making the people the source of electoral power, we must extend direct democracy to the nomination process. I think that we can trust the people to register their mood in the selection of candidates as well as in the election of the President. For this reason, I have included the provisions for a national presidential primary election in my proposed constitutional amendment.

By including it in the amendment, we also will avoid the possibility of facing months of litigation which could stall the use of the new system indefinitely. The constitutionality of the primary would possibly be questioned if it were provided completely by statute, but if it is built into the Constitution, it will have a solid legal base.

There are many reasons for bringing the people more directly into the electoral process. Most important, it would help curb the alienation which many of our citizens feel for our existing political institutions. This sense of remoteness breeds suspicion and apathy. It manifests itself in violence by some, in protest votes for minority candidates by others, while others fail to vote at all. All of these attitudes are equally corrosive to our society. There has been much discussion that the key to ending these destructive forces in the country is to give the people a stake in society. They must have effective means of registering their dissatisfaction peacefully but effectively so that they will want to preserve the system rather than destroy it. Alterations in the electoral system which would give the voter an actual voice in the selection of candidates and in the election of the President would certainly help to achieve this. In addition, if the President were actually more responsible to the people for his election, acceptance of his election and unification of the factions in society would be more easily achieved.

The legislation which I have introduced addresses itself to achieving this and to the difficulties Congress may face when it ventures into the electoral process. My bill would establish a national presidential primary election to be administered by a National Presidential Elections Commission. Safeguards for the States' right to conduct elections are included in this proposal. Candidates wishing to participate in the election must qualify in at least two-thirds of the States. They do this either by fulfilling the qualifications laid down in State law for getting on the ballot, or if no such law exists, they must file a petition containing at least 25,000 signatures of qualified voters in that State. The bill does nothing to interfere with the States' rights to conduct the kind of primary they wish, to outline voter qualifications, or to hold elections for other offices in the accustomed manner. The States' machinery will be used to conduct the national primary.

Nothing in this act would weaken the viability of our two-party system. Provisions have been included to discourage the proliferation of splinter movements but still provide a vehicle for serious new party movements. To participate, a political party must show that it has sufficient backing in two-thirds of the States, either by having received 25 percent of the vote in the previous election or by filing a petition containing signatures of at least 5 percent of the voters in each of those States. Candidates must declare their affiliation with one of these qualified parties to appear on the ballot.

Only the names of those who have met the candidate qualifications and are affiliated with qualified parties will appear on the primary ballot in all the States on the third Tuesday of September. A candidate must receive a plurality of the vote cast nationwide for the party's candidates to be nominated. The parties retain the right to nominate the vice-presidential candidate by any means they wish.

The names of the qualified nominees and their running mates would appear on the ballot for the general election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. Because the modern President assumes one of the most difficult jobs in the world, and therefore, I believe, he must have substantial public support when he goes into office, my proposal requires that a candidate receive a plurality of at least 45 percent of the vote to win. It is possible that, if more than two parties were competing in the general election, no party's candidates would receive this plurality. In this case, there would be a runoff election 2 weeks later between the two slates receiving the highest vote. The winner would only have to receive a simple plurality in this race to be elected.

I know that we must be careful and thoughtful before we enact these electoral reforms, but I firmly believe that we must act before the next presidential election. The arguments for changes have a long history, and there is no need to continue to stall the issue with endless debate. Since its conception, the electoral college has been questioned. Congressional committees to study the possibility of abolishing it date back to the last century. Likewise, the first proposal for a national presidential primary election was made by President Woodrow Wilson early in this century. Many Congresses have studied proposals since then. I think that we have had enough discussion and should start looking for practical means of implementing these reforms now.

With today's unprecedented tensions at home and abroad, we should never again risk the possibility of experiencing the chaos that threatened our system this year. Public opinion polls show that the people are anxious for this change; nearly 80 percent now favor the abolition of the electoral college and would like to bring the people more directly into the selection of the President. We should listen to this public opinion and respond by making the needed changes as soon as possible.

COMMITTEE ON URBAN AFFAIRS

(Mr. RYAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, to revise and extend his remarks and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Speaker, today I have reintroduced my resolution to create a standing Committee on Urban Affairs in the House of Representatives. Eight Members of Congress have joined me in sponsoring this measure: Representative JOHN CONYERS, of Michigan; Representative JOHN DUNCAN, of Tennessee; Representative DON EDWARDS, of California; Representative JACOB GILBERT, of New York; Representative WILLIAM HATHAWAY, of Maine; Representative BERTRAM PODELL, of New York; Representative CLAUDE PEPPER, of Florida; and Representative CHARLES WHALEN, of Ohio.

I believe it is urgent that a Committee on Urban Affairs be established early in the 91st Congress.

During the past 4 years the Congress has given increasing recognition to the severity of the crisis in our urban areas. During the 89th Congress the Department of Housing and Urban Development was created to provide a more integrated approach to the multitude of problems confronting the cities. I supported and fought for that legislation throughout my tenure in Congress. During the 90th Congress the landmark Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 was passed, which provided new programs to make decent housing available to low- and moderate-income Americans. I supported that legislation and several amendments of mine were included to expand the scope of the 1968 act's provisions.

The passage of these two acts has enabled the executive branch to develop a more integrated approach to the problems of the cities. However, at a time when conditions in our cities grow worse daily, we cannot afford to rely upon the executive branch to provide solutions, particularly when we recall that the incoming administration showed remarkably little interest in urban problems during the recent presidential campaign. The Congress must develop an adequate affirmative program for combating urban problems on its own initiative. If the House is to exert the kind of leadership that the future will require, it should be organized to do so.

The present outmoded congressional committee structure is wholly inadequate to the task of creating a coordinated and imaginative attack on the problems of our cities. During the period in which we have struggled with a system that scatters interrelated urban issues throughout several standing committees of the House, our cities have been poisoned by pollutants in the air and water, clogged by traffic, and plagued by inadequate housing for low- and middle-income residents. Slums have made the inner city a nightmare for millions of black and Spanish-speaking Americans, and rising crime rates have terrorized both black and white. In spite of these difficulties, 130 million Americans live in urban or metropolitan areas, and that figure will rise to an even greater total by the end of this decade. It is apparent that the future welfare of America will depend on the welfare of her cities.

Congress must confront these pressing problems. In order to do so effectively, there should be a single committee which can comprehensively consider the multitude of urban problems facing us. The jurisdiction of the Committee on Urban Affairs, which I am proposing, would parallel the activities of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. It would consider public and private housing, air and water pollution, water supplies and sewage facilities, and urban mass transit. Under the present system, these issues are distributed throughout several congressional committees, where they are considered piecemeal. By utilizing a single committee, the Congress could more effectively supervise the numerous Federal programs which already deal with urban issues. Once a standing House Committee on Urban Affairs is operating, then it would be logical for the Committee on Appropriations to set up a parallel subcommittee which would deal with urban matters. Additionally, cities in need of Federal assistance would no longer have to negotiate the maze of several committees with overlapping responsibilities but could instead make their needs known to a single committee familiar with urban problems.

There is no more crying need in the Congress today than for a coordinated and creative approach to interrelated problems of the cities. In several vital areas the Committee on Urban Affairs would facilitate the development of that kind of coordinated approach. It would consider the related programs of urban renewal, slum clearance, code enforcement, and the model cities program. Bad housing is the constant reminder to the slum dweller of his condition of poverty.

Transportation planners must give greater attention to the need for rapid systems of urban mass transit. Urban highway projects and urban mass transportation would be considered by the same committee in an effort to develop a greater degree of coordination between these two transportation programs.

Air and water pollution, which have had disastrous effects upon the environment of my own city of New York, and other cities, must receive a high priority on the list of problems most in need of immediate attention. For if we do not soon act to stem the escalating pollution of our atmosphere and water supplies, we may soon find our cities totally unlivable places. Again, the Committee on Urban Affairs would more effectively give systematic attention to waste disposal and sewage which threatens to poison our metropolitan river systems.

Mr. Speaker, all of these problems require well-coordinated and creative planning on the part of the Congress. If we are to develop the kind of concentrated effort necessary, we need new internal mechanisms that will better facilitate a coordinated attack on urban problems. The establishment of a Committee on Urban Affairs will assist the House of Representatives in confronting effectively the growing crisis in our cities.

CATV: WHAT IS CONGRESS GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

(Mr. VAN DEERLIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VAN DEERLIN. Mr. Speaker, a revolution is taking place in the world of communications, and Congress is sitting idly on the sidelines. I refer to the great advances in community antenna television—CATV—perhaps the most significant development in communications since the discovery of television itself.

We are just beginning to have an inkling of the full potential of CATV. Its capabilities in providing information and entertainment to the American public appear almost unlimited. Yet we in Congress have been largely ignoring our responsibilities to set policies for this potent new medium. We have been leaving all the big decisions to the courts and the Federal Communications Commission, while, ironically, a city such as New York has been able to produce a well-formulated CATV code of its own.

Lacking legislative guidance, the Federal rulemakers outside Congress have surrounded CATV with a mishmash of occasionally conflicting decisions. The cable systems have been allowed to expand freely in some areas, and hobbled in others. Because of regulations issued in fits and starts, we now have glaring inconsistencies which appear ridiculous on their face and can be infuriating to the viewing public. Take the South San Diego Bay area, in my own congressional district: Residents of most parts of the city of Chula Vista are entitled to unlimited CATV; yet in National City—separated only by a dry riverbed from Chula Vista—and in neighboring Imperial Beach, FCC orders last June effectively blocked new hookups.

I hear a great deal from my constituents who can neither understand nor sympathize with the fiasco now governing the growth of cable television. I share their resentment, but I also recognize where much of the blame for the current confusion rests.

As a member of the Communications Subcommittee, and as a former broadcaster, I have often been less than enchanted by the way the FCC tackles its work. In assigning frequencies, awarding broadcast licenses, and carrying out other statutory chores, the Commission has sometimes seemed to place private interests ahead of those of the public. But it is not fair to rap the Commission for the CATV actions. I personally doubt that the Commission wanted to plunge as far as it has into the CATV thicket without guidelines from Congress. In fact, in its second report and order of March 6, 1966, the Commission implored Congress to act on a wide range of matters directly affecting the future of cable television. When Congress failed to act, the U.S. Supreme Court finally stepped in to uphold the Commission's authority to regulate CATV.

Like it or not, the FCC, an appointive body, is today writing substantive laws by issuing rules and regulations for CATV.

It is not, however, too late for Congress to act.

Accordingly, I have introduced today a simple resolution calling for a thorough investigation by the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the Federal CATV regulations promulgated thus far. At the conclusion of this study, the committee would make appropriate recommendations to the House.

I personally do not pretend to know all—or even any—of the answers to the CATV dilemma. The technical and legal problems surrounding CATV are enormously complex, and it would be presumptuous of me to attempt to spell out solutions before these problems have been properly defined by expert witnesses in testimony to the Commerce Committee.

Under my resolution, the committee's probe will focus on the highly controversial CATV rules proposed by the FCC last December 12. Some of these rules would further restrict the carriage of distant signals by CATV, require the cable systems to originate their own programming and bar cross-ownership of cable systems and television stations in the same market area. The reaction of cable and conventional television interests to these proposals has been distinctly mixed, with factions inside both industries registering a variety of claims as to the impact.

Now it may be that the FCC, in attempting to chart a long-range program for the cable industry, has prescribed exactly what is needed to permit CATV and broadcasters not only to coexist, but actually to complement each other and in the process provide new benefits to the viewing public.

The FCC suggestions might also be inequitable—they might well be weighted against either the broadcasters or the cable operators.

A penetrating look by the Congress at the rulemaking and inquiry proposed by the FCC could well be just a necessary preliminary to a thorough revision—by Congress—of the Communications Act to cover the potent new medium of cable television.

We must regain the initiative—really our constitutional responsibility—to control, guide, and direct the destiny of CATV—which is already a fixture in some 3 million American homes.

To do less would be to renege on our sworn obligations to the public we serve.

NOT YOURS TO GIVE

(Mr. HALL asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the Record and to include pertinent material.)

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, every Member of the 91st Congress, both new and old, will sooner or later have to face up to the questions of how far he or she can go in appropriating funds from the Public Treasury for nonpublic uses. I suppose every Congress and every Congressman must wrestle with their own conscience in determining the constitutional limitations on their right to appropriate public funds. I suggest that there is no better precedent to abide by in this regard than the one established by a former Member of this House, the Honorable Davy Crockett.

Davy Crockett's dilemma and the manner in which he resolved it are poignantly portrayed in an article distributed by the Foundation for Economic Education, Inc., entitled, "Not Yours To Give," and taken from "The Life of Colonel David Crockett." I hope every Member of this House, both veterans and freshmen, will take a few minutes of their time to read the article, which I insert at this point in the Record:

NOT YOURS TO GIVE

One day in the House of Representatives, a bill was taken up appropriating money for the benefit of a widow of a distinguished naval officer. Several beautiful speeches had been made in its support. The Speaker was just about to put the question when Crockett arose:

"Mr. Speaker—I have as much respect for the memory of the deceased, and as much sympathy for the sufferings of the living, if suffering there be, as any man in this House, but we must not permit our respect for the dead or our sympathy for a part of the living to lead us into an act of injustice to the balance of the living. I will not go into an argument to prove that Congress has no power to appropriate this money as an act of charity. Every member upon this floor knows it. We have the right, as individuals, to give away as much of our own money as we please in charity; but as members of Congress we have no right so to appropriate a dollar of the public money. Some eloquent appeals have been made to us upon the ground that it is a debt due the deceased. Mr. Speaker, the deceased lived long after the close of the war; he was in office to the day of his death, and I have never heard that the government was in arrears to him.

Every man in this House knows it is not a debt. We cannot, without the grossest corruption, appropriate this money as the payment of a debt. We have not the semblance of authority to appropriate it as a charity. Mr. Speaker, I have said we have the right to give as much money of our own as we please. I am the poorest man on this floor. I cannot vote for this bill, but I will give one week's pay to the object, and if every member of Congress will do the same, it will amount to more than the bill asks."

He took his seat. Nobody replied. The bill was put upon its passage, and, instead of passing unanimously, as was generally supposed, and as, no doubt, it would, but for that speech, it received but few votes, and, of course, was lost.

Later, when asked by a friend why he had opposed the appropriation, Crockett gave this explanation:

"Several years ago I was one evening standing on the steps of the Capitol with some other members of Congress, when our attention was attracted by a great light over in Georgetown. It was evidently a large fire. We jumped into a hack and drove over as fast as we could. In spite of all that could be done, many houses were burned and many families made homeless, and, besides, some of them had lost all but the clothes they had on. The weather was very cold, and when I saw so many women and children suffering, I felt that something ought to be done for them. The next morning a bill was introduced appropriating $20,000 for their relief. We put aside all other business and rushed it through as soon as it could be done.

"The next summer, when it began to be time to think about the election, I concluded I would take a scout around among the boys of my district. I had no opposition there, but, as the election was some time off, I did not know what might turn up. When riding one day in a part of my district in which I was more of a stranger than any other, I saw a man in a field plowing and coming toward the road. I gauged my gait so that we should meet as he came to the fence. As he came up, I spoke to the man. He replied politely, but, as I thought, rather coldly.

"I began: 'Well, friend, I am one of those unfortunate beings called candidates, and—'

"'Yes, I know you; you are Colonel Crockett. I have seen you once before, and voted for you the last time you were elected. I suppose you are out electioneering now, but you had better not waste your time or mine. I shall not vote for you again.'

"This was a sockdolager . . . I begged him to tell me what was the matter.

"'Well, Colonel, it is hardly worth-while to waste time or words upon it. I do not see how it can be mended, but you gave a vote last winter which shows that either you have not capacity to understand the Constitution, or that you are wanting in the honesty and firmness to be guided by it. In either case you are not the man to represent me. But I beg your pardon for expressing it in that way. I did not intend to avail myself of the privilege of the constituent to speak plainly to a candidate for the purpose of insulting or wounding you. I intend by it only to say that your understanding of the Constitution is very different from mine; and I will say to you what, but for my rudeness, I should not have said, that I believe you to be honest. . . . But an understanding of the Constitution different from mine I cannot overlook, because the Constitution, to be worth anything, must be held sacred, and rigidly observed in all its provisions. The man who wields power and misinterprets it is the more dangerous the more honest he is.'

"I admit the truth of all you say, but there must be some mistake about it, for I do not remember that I gave any vote last winter upon any constitutional question."

"No, Colonel, there's no mistake. Though I live here in the backwoods and seldom go from home, I take the papers from Washington and read very carefully all the proceedings of Congress. My papers say that last winter you voted for a bill to appropriate $20,000 to some sufferers by a fire in Georgetown. Is that true?"

"Well, my friend; I may as well own up. You have got me there. But certainly nobody will complain that a great and rich country like ours should give the insignificant sum of $20,000 to relieve its suffering women and children, particularly with a full and overflowing Treasury, and I am sure, if you had been there, you would have done just as I did."

"It is not the amount, Colonel, that I complain of; it is the principle. In the first place, the government ought to have in the Treasury no more than enough for its legitimate purposes. But that has nothing to do with the question. The power of collecting and disbursing money at pleasure is the most dangerous power that can be intrusted to man, particularly under our system of collecting revenue by a tariff, which reaches every man in the country, no matter how poor he may be, and the poorer he is the more he pays in proportion to his means. What is worse, it presses upon him without his knowledge where the weight centers, for there is not a man in the United States who can ever guess how much he pays to the government. So you see, that while you are contributing to relieve one, you are drawing it from thousands who are even worse off than he. If you had the right to give anything, the amount was simply a matter of discretion with you, and you had as much right to give $20,000,000 as $20,000. If you have the right to give to one, you have the right to give to all; and, as the Constitution neither defines charity nor stipulates the amount, you are at liberty to give to any and everything which you may believe, or profess to believe, is a charity, and to any amount you may think proper. You will very easily perceive what a wide door this would open for fraud and corruption and favoritism, on the one hand, and for robbing the people on the other. No, Colonel, Congress has no right to give charity. Individual members may give as much of their own money as they please, but they have no right to touch a dollar of the public money for that purpose. If twice as many houses had been burned in this county as in Georgetown, neither you nor any other member of Congress would have thought of appropriating a dollar for our relief. There are about two hundred and forty members of Congress. If they had shown their sympathy for the sufferers by contributing each one week's pay, it would have made over $13,000. There are plenty of wealthy men in and around Washington who could have given $20,000 without depriving themselves of even a luxury of life. The congressmen chose to keep their own money, which, if reports be true, some of them spend not very creditably; and the people about Washington, no doubt, applauded you for relieving them from the necessity of giving by giving what was not yours to give. The people have delegated to Congress, by the Constitution, the power to do certain things. To do these, it is authorized to collect and pay moneys, and for nothing else. Everything beyond this is usurpation, and a violation of the Constitution.

"So you see, Colonel, you have violated the Constitution in what I consider a vital point. It is a precedent fraught with danger to the country, for when Congress once begins to stretch its power beyond the limits of the Constitution, there is no limit to it, and no security for the people. I have no doubt you acted honestly, but that does not make it any better, except as far as you are personally concerned, and you see that I cannot vote for you."

"I tell you I felt streaked. I saw if I should have opposition, and this man should go to talking, he would set others to talking, and in that district I was a gone fawn-skin. I could not answer him, and the fact is, I was so fully convinced that he was right, I did not want to. But I must satisfy him, and I said to him:

"Well, my friend, you hit the nail upon the head when you said I had not sense enough to understand the Constitution. I intended to be guided by it, and thought I had studied it fully. I have heard many speeches in Congress about the powers of Congress, but what you have said here at your plow has got more hard, sound sense in it than all the fine speeches I ever heard. If I had ever taken the view of it that you have, I would have put my head into the fire before I would have given that vote; and if you will forgive me and vote for me again, if I ever vote for another unconstitutional law I wish I may be shot."

"He laughingly replied: 'Yes, Colonel, you have sworn to that once before, but I will trust you again upon one condition. You say that you are convinced that your vote was wrong. Your acknowledgment of it will do no more good than beating you for it. If, as you go around the district, you will tell people about this vote, and that you are satisfied it was wrong, I will not only vote for you, but will do what I can to keep down opposition, and, perhaps, I may exert some little influence in that way.'

"If I don't," said I, "I wish I may be shot; and to convince you that I am in earnest in what I say I will come back this way in a week or ten days, and if you will get up a gathering of the people, I will make a speech to them. Get up a barbecue, and I will pay for it."

"No, Colonel, we are not rich people in this section, but we have plenty of provisions to contribute for a barbecue, and some to spare for those who have none. The push of crops will be over in a few days, and we can then afford a day for a barbecue. This is Thursday; I will see to getting it up on Saturday week. Come to my house on Friday, and we will go together, and I promise you a very respectable crowd to see and hear you."

"Well, I will be here. But one thing more before I say good-by. I must know your name."

"My name is Bunce."

"Not Horatio Bunce?"

"Yes."

"Well, Mr. Bunce, I never saw you before, though you say you have seen me, but I know you very well. I am glad I have met you, and very proud that I may hope to have you for my friend."

"It was one of the luckiest hits of my life that I met him. He mingled but little with the public, but was widely known for his remarkable intelligence and incorruptible integrity, and for a heart brimful and running over with kindness and benevolence, which showed themselves not only in words but in acts. He was the oracle of the whole country around him, and his fame had extended far beyond the circle of his immediate acquaintance. Though I had never met him before, I had heard much of him, and but for this meeting it is very likely I should have had opposition, and had been beaten. One thing is very certain, no man could now stand up in that district under such a vote."

"At the appointed time I was at his house, having told our conversation to every crowd I had met, and to every man I stayed all night with, and I found that it gave the people an interest and a confidence in me stronger than I had ever seen manifested before."

"Though I was considerably fatigued when I reached his house, and, under ordinary circumstances, should have gone early to bed, I kept him up until midnight, talking about the principles and affairs of government, and got more real, true knowledge of them than I had got all my life before."

"I have known and seen much of him since, for I respect him—no, that is not the word—I reverence and love him more than any living man, and I go to see him two or three times every year; and I will tell you, sir, if every one who professes to be a Christian lived and acted and enjoyed it as he does, the religion of Christ would take the world by storm."

"But to return to my story. The next morning we went to the barbecue, and, to my surprise, found about a thousand men there. I met a good many whom I had not known before, and they and my friend introduced me around until I had got pretty well acquainted—at least, they all knew me."

"In due time notice was given that I would speak to them. They gathered up around a stand that had been erected. I opened my speech by saying:

"Fellow-citizens—I present myself before you today feeling like a new man. My eyes have lately been opened to truths which ignorance or prejudice, or both, had heretofore hidden from my view. I feel that I can today offer you the ability to render you more valuable service than I have ever been able to render before. I am here today more for the purpose of acknowledging my error than to seek your votes. That I should make this acknowledgement is due to myself as well as to you. Whether you will vote for me is a matter for your consideration only."

"I went on to tell them about the fire and my vote for the appropriation and then told them why I was satisfied it was wrong. I closed by saying:

"And now, fellow-citizens, it remains only for me to tell you that the most of the speech you have listened to with so much interest was simply a repetition of the arguments by which your neighbor, Mr. Bunce, convinced me of my error."

"It is the best speech I ever made in my life, but he is entitled to the credit for it. And now I hope he is satisfied with his convert and that he will get up here and tell you so."

"He came upon the stand and said:

"Fellow-citizens—it affords me great pleasure to comply with the request of Colonel Crockett. I have always considered him a thoroughly honest man, and I am satisfied that he will faithfully perform all that he has promised you today."

"He went down, and there went up from that crowd such a shout for Davy Crockett as his name never called forth before."

"I am not much given to tears, but I was taken with a choking then and felt some big drops rolling down my cheeks. And I tell you now that the remembrance of those few words spoken by such a man, and the honest, hearty shout they produced, is worth more to me than all the honors I have received and all the reputation I have ever made, or ever shall make, as a member of Congress."

"Now, sir," concluded Crockett, "you know why I made that speech yesterday."

"There is one thing now to which I will call your attention. You remember that I proposed to give a week's pay. There are in that House many very wealthy men—men who think nothing of spending a week's pay, or a dozen of them, for a dinner or a wine party when they have something to accomplish by it. Some of those same men made beautiful speeches upon the great debt of gratitude which the country owed the deceased—a debt which could not be paid by money—and the insignificance and worthlessness of money, particularly so insignificant a sum as $10,000, when weighed against the honor of the nation. Yet not one of them responded to my proposition. Money with them is nothing but trash when it is to come out of the people. But it is the one great thing for which most of them are striving, and many of them sacrifice honor, integrity, and justice to obtain it."

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE FOR HEALTH AFFAIRS

(Mr. HALL asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I am reintroducing a bill that would create an Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs.

Briefly, this bill would amend the provisions of existing law relating to the organization of the Department of Defense to provide that one of the assistant secretaries would have to be the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs, whose principal duty would be overall supervision of health affairs of the Department of Defense. The bill also provides that within the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs there would be a Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Dental Affairs who would have to be appointed from civilian life by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the other body. The Deputy Assistant Secretary would be subject to the supervision and control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health Affairs and would be responsible for all matters relating to dental affairs within the Office of the Assistant Secretary.

Mr. Speaker, this bill came before the House as an amendment to the military procurement bill last year. It passed both the House and the other body. However, its youthful and untimely demise came when it did not survive conference last fall. The bill has gained the endorsement of a large segment of the medical profession and has been staffed with the three surgeon generals of the armed services. Finally, this legislation will provide the armed services the needed supervision and coordination that is required in this technical and professional field, so as to give our fighting men quality health and dental care.

WILSON'S CREEK BATTLEFIELD NATIONAL PARK

(Mr. HALL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I am introducing a bill that would authorize funds for the development of Wilson's Creek National Battlefield Park, located near Springfield, Mo. Similar legislation was endorsed at the 58th annual meeting of the Advisory Board on National Parks, Historical Sites, Buildings, and Monuments last spring.

The State of Missouri has completed the land acquisition of this joint Federal-State project. Therefore, Federal funds would be earmarked for further development of the park so as to accommodate the increasing number of park visitors.

The second section of the bill would change the name of the park from Wilson's Creek Battlefield National Park to Wilson's Creek National Battlefield. The purpose of this change is to conform with uniform nomenclature for all national parks.

Mr. Speaker, as one of the major engagements west of the Mississippi River during the Civil War, Wilson's Creek merits the fullest development in the preservation of our great heritage.

ORDERLY TRADE IN TEXTILES

(Mr. BROYHILL of North Carolina asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. BROYHILL of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, today I am reintroducing legislation to provide for orderly trade in textiles. Except for some updating and revisions in the definitions section, this is essentially the same bill which almost 200 of us sponsored in the last Congress.

I feel certain that most of us are familiar with President-elect Nixon's pledge to restore reason into our textile trade picture. My purpose in offering this legislation now is twofold: First, it is intended to support Mr. Nixon in his efforts to obtain international arrangements providing for reasonable restraints on U.S. textile imports. Second, I think it important that our major trading partners understand that this Congress retains its interest in seeing this growing problem solved equitably. And, it is a problem that has become much more alarming.

For the first 10 months of 1968, total textile imports reached almost 2.8 billion square yards—an annual rate of 3.3 billion square yards. This would exceed the previous record volume for any year by 500 million square yards or a huge 18 percent. Our textile trade deficit in 1968 will be more than $800 million.

Why does this situation exist? Stripped of all rhetoric, it boils down to this: There is a large and growing wage gap between the United States and the major trading nations of the world. Added to this is another factor that compounds the seriousness of the situation—a narrowing of the technology gap. Through the years, American industry, in large measure, has relied upon technological superiority to offset the wage gap. But it was, and still is, inevitable that other nations will gain on us in technology. This is made even more certain by the fantastic revolution taking place in the communication of information and ideas and in the transportation of people and materials.

In the textile industry this widening of the wage gap and narrowing of the technological gap has had an enormous impact. What is happening in the textile industry is also occurring in various degrees to a number of other major American industries. Yet, so far as I can see, those people currently in Government who are responsible for planning and executing trade policy either are unaware of, or choose to ignore, these facts. It is time that we recognize that our trade policies are both unrealistic and unresponsive to the needs of our economy.

It is inconceivable that we should continue to slavishly accept an unrealistic trade policy that undermines our other efforts to create job opportunities for so many of our people. There is no doubt that the textile industry has a far-reaching potential for contributing to sound economic advancement in areas of this country and among people where such advancement is most needed. How well it can achieve this potential will depend to a great extent on the growth of imports.

It is time, Mr. Speaker, that we took account of the fact that importing goods with a high labor content and exporting products with a low labor content, must inevitably mean the exportation of American jobs. It is against this development that we should all seek to protect.

Unless positive steps are taken, we will, by our inaction, continue the policy of self-destruction which our Nation has been following for the past several years. Employment opportunities in the textile industry will be lost and we will encourage American textile plants to move abroad. If this occurs, we will have ourselves to blame for failing to take reasonable steps to preserve one of the largest and most important industries in our domestic economy.

What we are seeking is not a subsidy. It is asking only that it be allowed to operate in a competitive environment of fair trade. We ask that international agreements already made be honored by the nations which voluntarily entered into them.

Certainly, as the new administration takes office, the textile industry can well see a spark of optimism that a solution to its problem can be found using administrative authority the White House possesses and through legislation of the kind I have introduced today.

The 2.5 million employees of this great industry deserve to know if their future is on the trading block. There is surely only one satisfactory answer. This demands action without further delay.

STUDENT SPEAKS OUT

(Mr. BROYHILL of North Carolina asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. BROYHILL of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the past year was one that held few high spots for our Nation. The emphasis seemed to be on the grave problems facing our country. Every day from the morning paper through the late night news program, we were constantly reminded of our rising crime rate, a war that showed no promise of ending, and turmoil in our cities and on our campuses. Deeply involved in these problems is the youth of our country.

These problems and the constant publicity they received made us stop and wonder if this is the total picture or if somewhere there is stability and understanding of our institutions by the young people of the country. Recently, I had an opportunity to have a look at the brighter side.

I wish to commend to the Congress an essay written by Bobby Smith, a 10-year-old student, in Hudson, N.C. This young man's observations are an affirmation that there is a deep awareness in the youth of this country of our proud history and the heritage that is their legacy. I hope that this bright spot on the somewhat gloomy horizon will make us more mindful of our own responsibilities and obligations to our young people.

The essay is as follows:

STUDENT SPEAKS OUT

I'm proud that I am an American. It strikes me that today some people seem so ungrateful to the many lives that were given so there could be a country as great as America. Think of the battles of the War for Independence, the battles of Lexington and Concord, Bunker Hill, Saratoga and Yorktown, just to name a few.

It took brave men to go into those battles. But as many as were lost, our fight for freedom was won. Think of the lives that were given during the War of 1812, just so that all nations could have use of the high seas.

We must not forget the Civil War and the terrible four long years it raged, but we came out of the conflict united. Think also, my friends, of the Alamo, when 200 Americans held off the Mexican army for 12 days. We finally lost this battle, but soon the cry went up, "Remember the Alamo," and the Mexicans were defeated, giving new land to America.

Also, remember the First and Second World Wars. Our men died by the hundreds of thousands, but our friends are yet free. Then also there was the Korean War. Thousands of our young men were killed, but South Korea is yet free.

Now during the Vietnam War, more brave men are dying so that South Vietnam may be free.

Now remember again the handful of patriots who laid the footstones for our great nation and the millions who have died so that we may live. I think we should pause and pay honor to our servicemen. But, above all, we should not forget God, the One who has allowed the song of freedom to yet ring in our ears.

And now, as it is unsafe to walk on our city streets and in our parks, I say stand up for your country and let us work to keep America united so that ever we may live. For this is your land as it is my land.

Let us keep it free so the lives given will not have been given in vain.

TRIBUTE TO THE MOON ASTRONAUTS

(Mr. REINECKE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. REINECKE. Mr. Speaker, on Friday, December 27, three American space pioneers splashed down in the Pacific Ocean after a fantastically successful voyage around the moon.

Their motivations can be attributed to man's constant search for knowledge even at the risk of his life. But in today's world of security-seeking men, astronauts Borman, Anders, and Lovell are rare indeed.

These men trained for months to prepare for their historic mission. Their performance was not spur-of-the-moment heroism against an enemy that leads to a heroic deed. The three astronauts were not required to risk their lives under orders as are men in combat, yet risk them they did, willingly, courageously, splendidly.

Nor do men in combat have to face the awesome and fearful infinity of outer space. Human fear is greatest, after all, when man faces the unknown. This fear our moon astronauts conquered without flinching.

Borman, Anders, and Lovell believed that man's ability and knowledge could conquer the dangers of a trip to the moon. Now others will follow and land on the moon's surface.

Their courage, their dedication to man's progress, their tenacity in the face of overwhelming odds deserve recognition.

I have today introduced legislation calling for the awarding of the Medal of Honor to the three moon-flight astronauts.

I realize that the medal has, in the past, been awarded only to those who have distinguished themselves in wartime combat.

However, the astronauts' deed was of such a daring nature that I feel certain all Americans wish to recognize their gallantry by awarding them the Congressional Medal of Honor. The American people should grant our highest honor to those who have furthered the knowledge and humane pursuits of mankind.

I urge my colleagues to join me in this effort to award our three brave astronauts the Medal of Honor.

A BILL TO STABILIZE THE PUBLIC DOMAIN

(Mr. REINECKE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the Record.)

Mr. REINECKE. Mr. Speaker, today I have introduced a bill specifically designed to help solve some of the problems we face in the management of our public domain and other Federal lands. The bill provides for procedures by which the Federal Government would not own, in the aggregate, more public domain and acquired land value than that owned by the United States on the effective date of the proposed act. The bill would make it the policy of the Congress that land be acquired and disposed of in the same real estate taxing jurisdiction to insure equitable treatment under this act. This simply means that the Federal Government would sell out of its land inventory an amount of land value equal to the cost of land to be acquired for any purpose.

The amount of land already in Federal ownership is 770 million acres, or about one-third of the Nation's total area. It is time that the public domain and other Federal lands be stabilized. It is for this reason that I again introduce this same bill that I introduced in the previous session of Congress on August 1, 1968.

As I see it, this proposed legislation would have several advantages to city planners, conservationists, and taxpayers. To the city planners, this means that land taken off the tax rolls of his county due to Federal procurement will be replaced in equal value, and hence approximately equal tax base will be added back onto the tax rolls. If land is not available in the immediate tax jurisdiction, then the bill instructs the Secretary of the Interior to dispose of land in the same State first, and only in another State as a last resort.

To the conservationist, this bill offers the possibility of solving the massive financial problem of funding the authorization for new national parks, new national recreation areas, new wilderness areas, and other Federal land acquisitions. Essentially, this proposal will provide an automatic safeguard against inflation which has stalled the progress on so many fine parks and recreation areas.

To the taxpayers, this bill offers a relief from additional taxation by simply selling off some of the untaxed Federal land and putting it on the local tax rolls.

This bill in no way duplicates or conflicts with Public Law 90-401, the new law passed last year which provides up to $200,000,000 annually from offshore revenues to be placed in the land and water conservation fund. Revenues from the sale of Federal property will be placed in the same fund but will act to relieve the necessity of using offshore revenues that would otherwise be placed in the general funds of the Treasury. Thus the land assets will simply be converted from a given status to a more desirable status with little or no cost to the taxpayer.

ON REVENUE SHARING

(Mr. SCHWENGEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHWENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I have today introduced a bill for revenue sharing. This has been prompted by my conviction of long standing that we ought to find other and better means of resolving the problems that the many Federal programs, in cooperation with the State, envision resolving. The bill I have introduced is a copy of a bill that was introduced by Congressman MELVIN LAIRD, of Wisconsin, in the last session. The Members of the House, and all students of government finances, will know, of course, that Mr. LAIRD has pioneered in this area, and has given much time in research and study to this matter.

The chapter entitled, "The Case for Revenue Sharing," published in the Republican Papers, is one of the best arguments for the bill and for this new approach that I have seen. I commend its reading to every Member of the House.

I think it is clear today that there is a need for rethinking basic, realistic, sound approaches to problem solving. As the record shows, the enormous increase of financial commitments of the Federal Government toward solving the problems of hard-core poverty, education, housing, and crime, it becomes clear that the present programs, at best, put us in a position where we are actually making no progress, and in some instances, I think we are losing ground.

Detroit has become the classic example of a city held up as a model both in terms of the amount of Federal aid provided, and in terms of the use to which that Federal aid was put. Yet Detroit experienced what has been described as the worst riot in our Nation's history. New Haven—another model city—Newark, Watts, and a host of others experienced similar turbulence in varying degrees during the past three summers.

There is a growing interest in revenue sharing, as evidenced by the many articles, some books and much discussion on the subject. This has focused a great deal of attention on ways and means of meeting our goals. This has been good, for it means that we are departing finally from the irrational debate over which side cares more about the many important and complex problems that are presented to us. Fortunately, it means that emphasis has shifted to the more relevant confrontation on how best to attack commonly recognized problems. We fortunately are finally recognizing that there are more than just one answer to our problems. For far too many years American leadership has seen our domestic problems as a series of many little problems and so we have evolved a program of what some have called "shin plasters for sore spots," rather than treating the basic causes. Now, I hope, we will start thinking more about getting at the basic and total problem.

The passage of the revenue-sharing bill such as I propose will aid and abet our thinking and our willingness to find some new and better approaches to the solution of serious domestic problems.

It is my feeling that with the instituting of a revenue-sharing program, we can look forward to replacement for the many existing categorical grants and to a time when we will be less tempted to create many new programs, and hopefully encourage us to do a lot more studying before we launch out on new programs and into new areas.

It behooves us all to recognize that we have some tremendous problems before us. The programs we suggest must be broad ones and focus on the total problem. We must use all the talent available at every level of government. But we cannot focus just on the cities and ignore the other problems outside the metropolitan centers. The revenue-sharing idea is designed to help with the solution of the basic problem and the total problem by enlisting the talents, the capabilities, and the resources of local, State, and Federal governments.

It is timely also to consider this type of approach because the one-man, one-vote principle in government at the State level, has been adopted in the future the State legislatures are going to be more sensitive to the problems and needs of their people. They will be confronted however, with the problem of financing the cost of these programs, that they want to implement, and will be able to implement, more effectively if they have the financial resources. The revenue-sharing idea will give them a large percentage of the resources they need.

The legislation I am introducing today combines percentage rebates with tax credits for State and local taxes paid, could and should be implemented in the immediate future. It would return 5 percent of the income taxes collected by the Federal Government to the States. Ten percent of the total rebate in any given year would be distributed among the poorest one-third of the States in the form of supplementary grants. Ninety percent would be distributed on the basis of a tax effect ratio which is the ratio between the sum of all taxes collected by the State and its subdivisions and the total personal income for the State.

The tax credit portion of my bill would work in the following way: beginning with a 10-percent credit for State and local taxes paid in the first year of operation, it would increase each year by 10 percent until a full 40-percent credit is available in the fourth year.

The distinction between a tax credit and a tax deduction is a simple one. The tax deduction permits an individual to lower his net income for computing his Federal income tax liability. A tax credit, on the other hand, is applied to the total tax obligation of an individual and is treated in the same manner as if it were a cash payment on the Federal income tax which an individual must pay.

The tax credit portion of my bill is primarily designed to return additional tax sources to the States and localities by reducing the Federal tax burden on individual taxpayers. Under the provision of the bill, the decision to utilize the tax credit in place of the deduction is an optional one for the individual taxpayer.

It is indicated that at 10 percent, no matter what the level of income, every taxpayer would be better off taking the deduction provided under existing law. This was done in order to preclude any drain on the Federal Treasury the first year, both because of the Vietnam war and in order to provide time for the States to plan their own tax programs after the legislation is enacted.

The revenue-sharing package is designed to provide an orderly transition to a more rational and effective fiscal arrangement among the various levels of government. It will: first, stop or greatly slow the creation of large numbers of new categorical programs; second, provide additional tax sources to State and local governments; and third, maintain the present flow of Federal dollars to the States, but in a combination that gradually removes the Federal strings on many of these programs. Such a package implemented immediately would provide a rational framework for the longer range actions to follow.

Mr. Speaker, in the days ahead I will be commenting further on this proposed legislation and will show how the revenue-sharing idea could be helpful and how it could more effectively save money for the taxpayer in the long run, while at the same time improving and upgrading most of the present programs.

It should be made clear at this point, Mr. Speaker, that the basis for my statement and argument today came largely from the material I have collected from the office of Congressman MELVIN LAIRD and others who have given special study to this matter, as well as from my own convictions about this matter.

To aid and abet this total program, especially in the field of education, I think we ought to give serious consideration to a tax-credit program for education.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMISSION ON LIBRARIES

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). Under a previous order of the House the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. STEIGER) is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. STEIGER of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I want to take this opportunity to call to the attention of my colleagues on this first day of business for the 91st Congress a matter which I believe should receive early consideration and positive action: The recommendations of the National Advisory Commission on Libraries.

As you know, the report of the Library Commission was submitted to the President on October 15, 1968, the day after Congress adjourned—too late for us to take any action. The text of the report was included in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of October 21, 1968, pages 31717 to 31730.

For the benefit of our new Members, I should say that my interest in the quality and availability of essential library resources and services for all our citizens has been a longtime and continuing one. Those on the House Education and Labor Committee know that I supported an amendment to the Vocational Education Act to provide adequate library materials and personnel to serve our young people enrolled in vocational schools.

In addition, when the House considered the bill to extend and amend the Higher Education Act, I offered the amendment to make new institutions of higher education eligible for basic grants for the acquisition of books and other library materials under the HEA title IIA library program in the fiscal year preceding the first year in which students are to be enrolled. I am proud to say that this amendment was approved without any opposition. We were unanimous in our recognition of the fact that it is in this developmental stage—before students arrive—that money is most needed, when the core of the library is being built and when the expenditures are probably greater than will ever be required again at any one time.

Another important amendment to the Higher Education Act, "Title VIII—Networks for Knowledge," will encourage colleges and universities to enter into cooperative arrangements for a variety of programs. First, to share classroom, laboratory, library facilities, and the necessary books, materials and equipment, and second, to afford access to specialized library collections through the preparation of interinstitutional catalogs. In addition, this program is designed to encourage the establishment of jointly operated closed circuit television facilities and, also, to establish and provide for the joint operation of electronic computer networks for such purposes as financial and student records and student course work and the transmission of library materials.

Unfortunately, this program with such potential was not funded in the last session. But when it is, it will permit universities to enter into compacts and agreements to exchange the wealth of knowledge that they have in their respective libraries. It will add another dimension to the library-information-media resources of our country.

Consider the fantastic breakthrough we will make for our students—indeed, for all our people, whatever their informational or library needs—when all of the intellectual resources of this Nation and of the world are linked into one coordinated informational media resource network to transmit knowledge. I see this as a reciprocal system; the network will benefit the local library user, and the input from the local library will benefit the network.

I am proud to say that in my own State of Wisconsin a good deal of effort is going to planning programs to encourage comprehensive interlibrary cooperation. A splendid example of the sort of work necessary for the establishment of a network can be found in a recent—1968—report of the Wisconsin Library Association, "Public Library System Development for Wisconsin: An Action Program." Of course, public libraries are only one component in the network we envision, but they are a vital part.

For the information of my colleagues, I will insert in the RECORD at this point an explanation of the Wisconsin action program for public library systems as a part of a statewide network:

SYSTEMS AS PART OF A STATEWIDE NETWORK

Wisconsin has long recognized its responsibility "for the extension and improvement of library services throughout the State in order to bring within the reach of all the people of the State increased opportunities for reading, study, and free inquiry (Wis. Stats. 43.09). If present inadequacies and inequities in public library service are to be removed, all citizens of the State must be served by a network of public library systems. The State's responsibility may be met by development of a statewide plan and by commitment of funds made available through a combination of planning grants, operational grants for approved public library systems, and grants to resource libraries for serving as state-level resource centers for public library systems.

According to the Wisconsin Division for Library Services' Service Record of 1966, 3,626,182 of the State's population live in communities with public library service. Using the 1960 adjusted census figure of 3,952,765 for Wisconsin's total population, this would leave 326,583 persons without legal access to library service in 1966; allowance for population growth might, of course, increase that figure. This means that slightly over 8 percent of the population has no access to legal library service.

The additional number of residents receiving only marginal service cannot be readily ascertained, but it is probably substantial. Only by establishment of systems that will provide complete coverage of the State, will the objectives of the present plan be achieved.

No public library system can be an isolated unit, but must be backstopped in both materials and specialized services by statewide resources. The information and reference service network must inevitably involve libraries of all types within the State: school, public, college and research libraries. The handicaps that Garrison noted for the Wisconsin Valley Library Reference Service are typical library problems: lack of adequate backstopping service at the State level, and lack of access to academic and special library resources.

If the public libraries are to make their most effective contribution to the most efficient use of such a developing network, their organization into systems is a prior step. The chain of book resources designed for public library users must have its sound development within the public library structure, from local community, to system area, to statewide and national resources. Without such a network, which will link the local library user to the State and national resources, questions remain unanswered, curiosity unsatisfied, and general information ill-disseminated.

Wisconsin cannot afford to limit the growth of competence of its citizens in their economic, civic, or personal interests. It must assure not only appropriate local library resources but full access to the specialized and technical resources which the human enterprise requires.

Wisconsin's library needs and present resources have been assessed: the need for major collections, specialized services, and adequate materials and information networks is clear. The concept of library systems, and of participation through these systems in a statewide library network, has become central in Wisconsin's library planning.

System development has begun in several rural areas of Wisconsin. The beginnings of rural multi-county systems have been made in the counties surrounding Wausau, in the Southwest area with its processing center, in the northwestern six counties served out of Ashland, and in the multi-county demonstration cooperatives among libraries in the La Crosse and Eau Claire areas.

Various system patterns are developing in the more populous areas of the State, as well, notably in the Milwaukee, Dane County, and Fox Valley areas. Milwaukee Public Library extends its services by contract to a number of neighboring municipalities, both within and outside Milwaukee County. It also provides bookmobile service to rural areas in the County. The Dane County Library Service, supported by a variety of tax sources and working through contracts with all public libraries in the County, supplies direct service through bookmobile and supports local library service with materials and consultant services. In the Fox Valley, municipal libraries are cooperating in a program of library collection development, while the Type I libraries offer professional reference and training services by contract to smaller libraries in the area.

Such developments as these are the first steps in the direction of adequate public library service for these areas and have begun to structure public library service in Wisconsin within systems.

Now a statewide plan for systems is proposed to provide the citizens of Wisconsin greater equality in access to library resources and services, so that education, the economy, and the culture may prosper.

ORGANIZATION AND FINANCING OF SYSTEMS

Public library systems represent total coverage of broad geographic areas with adequate library service, differentiating the functions of community libraries, system headquarters, and statewide library networks. Planning and administration of such systems require library boards representative of the total system area. With such boards, full coverage and adequate adaptation to local communities is assured.

Because public library system service enables differentiated function and specialization, the system structure must be viewed as a whole. Each part of the system—whether community library, interlibrary information network, or specialized children's service—has its unique role within the system. Policy for each area of system function must be planned within the system framework. Planning has been shown to be the key to proper growth of public library systems.

"Fair share" financial contribution as a basis for "full share" in library resources and services is a key element in financing of systems. County and local "fair share" effort must inevitably be supplemented by State and federal funds. No one of these sources alone is sufficient to develop an adequate minimum level library service program. Local support (by county and municipality) will continue to be the essential base of support. State and federal support are needed to provide breadth and depth of materials and services in a library network that assures an adequate library program for library users wherever they may live.

With all this background, I am sure that you can understand my profound interest in the findings and recommendations covered in the report of the National Advisory Commission on Libraries. You may recall that it was in September of 1966 that the President formed the National Advisory Commission on Libraries "to appraise the role and adequacy of our libraries, now and in the future, as sources for scholarly research, as centers for the distribution of knowledge, and as links in our Nation's rapidly evolving communications networks."

After 2 years of research and regional hearings on the role and needs of libraries as a national resource, the Commission transmitted its report to the President, and it was released on October 15, 1968. But those of you who have given even cursory attention to this report will be quick to agree—the study is only a beginning. We cannot stop with that; the needs of our people in all walks of life for library, information, and media services are already enormous and they are increasing daily.

In order to maintain and improve the resources and services of school, college, public, research and special libraries, national assessment and long-range planning are needed. Although libraries have traditionally been locally controlled, and should remain so, they are nevertheless national resources to be shared as necessary by all who need them.

In order to implement the basic recommendations of the Commission, I am introducing today a bill to establish a National Commission on Libraries and Information Science as a continuing Federal planning agency. I would like to emphasize the words "planning agency." This Commission will not control or direct the activities of State and local libraries.

At this time I urge you to join me by lending your support to this important legislation which is designed to benefit all our people. The rationale for such action may be found in the report itself:

We should look at the value to our people and our culture that accrues from the activities of the user whose functions are to be enhanced by improved availability of library and information services. A library can be understood only as it enhances a socially valuable function, one of which—and one that all libraries can enhance—is the personal intellectual and ethical development of every individual in our society. The variety of the other socially valuable functions determines the need for variety in kinds of libraries.

In order for all our people to benefit from the information in our libraries, there must be some evaluation of the needs of users, the effectiveness of present-day libraries in meeting those needs, and the impact of Federal legislation on library development. Once the strengths and weaknesses are identified in the areas of resources, manpower, program development, interlibrary cooperation, and so on, recommendations can be made regarding ways to correct the deficiencies. To this end, the Commission would be able to recommend legislation to the proper authorities concerning new legislation.

TAX RELIEF FOR AMERICA'S HARD-PRESSED MIDDLE-INCOME TAXPAYERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. DANIELS) is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. DANIELS of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, during the 90th Congress I introduced a bill, H.R. 12681, to provide tax relief for America's hard-pressed middle-income taxpayers.

As I see it, individuals who are in the middle-income tax bracket are paying a grotesquely unfair part of the total tax load. And anyone who is even reasonably fairminded would have to assume that a tax system which requires an underemployed person to pay 14 percent of his taxable income and, on the other hand, permits persons with a gross income of $1 million or more to pay no income tax at all richly merits the word "grotesque."

It is for this reason that today I have reintroduced my tax reform bill which would obviate the necessity for continuing the 10-percent surcharge and possibly might lead to a meaningful tax cut for almost all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, during the interval between the end of the 90th and the beginning of the 91st Congress, I have talked with hundreds of persons in the 14th District of New Jersey on legislative matters. I have found that the greatest interest is in the area of tax reform.

I think my constituents in the 14th District are typical Americans in that they are willing to pay their fair share of taxes but are reluctant to pay more than persons with far greater incomes.

I assure all Members of this House, Mr. Speaker, that our present Tax Code is riddled with exemptions in favor of the very rich and against our middle-income taxpayers.

What my bill proposes is that nine of the most outrageous tax loopholes be closed.

The tax loophole which screams the loudest for action is the 27.5 percent oil depletion allowance. There can be no question in anyone's mind that this figure is nothing short of an outrage and is totally unrelated to any national need.

I propose cutting the oil depletion allowance to 15 percent and pegging the depletion allowance for other minerals at this same figure.

I would like to end the unlimited charities deduction and the stock option gimmick which are devices giving a tax break to some but by no means all Americans.

In addition, my bill would eliminate the provision in the Internal Revenue Code exempting property passing by probate from the 25 percent capital gains tax and the so-called $100 dividend exclusion which provides a large tax break for the rich and a tiny one for small investors.

Another tax dodge which ought to be curbed is the gimmick whereby a large corporation splits into several smaller units each of which is eligible for a lower tax rate than a single entity would be.

Similarly, Mr. Speaker, the tax-exempt status given to municipal bonds is designed to assist our hard-pressed local governments raise money. In practice, many municipalities are floating bonds for private firms well able to compete on the bond market. This ought to be forbidden.

My bill also would set the same rate for gifts passing inter vivos and those which pass by probate proceedings.

Similarly, I think that we ought to forbid the payment of estate taxes by the redemption of Government bonds at par value.

This Mr. Speaker, is my proposal to the Ways and Means Committee. Perhaps it is not the final answer but it certainly is worthy of study and I hope that the Committee on Ways and Means will give top priority to tax reform during this 91st Congress.

ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

(Mr. KASTENMEIER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. KASTENMEIER. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation to abolish capital punishment and replace it with life imprisonment for all Federal crimes punishable by death.

Capital punishment is not consistent with the moral and humane goals of our society. There is no moral justification for a government to take a life regardless of the crime committed. Human life is sacred and deliberately destroying it in the name of the state is as much a moral offense for the Nation as it is for an individual.

The assumption on which capital punishment is based, that it acts as a deterrent to crime, has been proven false by numerous statistical studies. As a matter of fact, States in which the death penalty has been abolished reflect a lower homicide rate than the national average.

We should also take into consideration the probability of error, for the death penalty makes it impossible for society to correct life-and-death mistakes once they are made. Furthermore, the victims of this barbarous form of retribution disproportionately tend to be the uneducated, the poor, and minority group members.

Fortunately, modern penology is now moving away from a system seeking retribution for crimes to one rehabilitating the offender. This is emphasized by the dramatic decline in the use of the death penalty in recent years. Although Federal law still includes capital punishment, no Federal prison maintains the means to carry out the death penalty, and 1968 became the first year on record in which no executions took place in the United States.

Thirteen States have abolished capital punishment completely or have severely limited its application. My own State of Wisconsin abolished it in 1853. However, it is shocking that it is still countenanced in the courts of the United States.

Mr. Speaker, Congress must outlaw the death penalty, thus putting the Federal Government in the vanguard of this reform so that it can help in leading the way to a heightened respect for the sanctity of human life.

APOSTLE ISLANDS NATIONAL LAKESHORE

(Mr. KASTENMEIER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. KASTENMEIER. Mr. Speaker, I am introducing a bill today to establish an Apostle Islands National Lakeshore in northern Wisconsin.

My bill would create a 57,500-acre national recreation area in Wisconsin's Ashland and Bayfield Counties, including 30 miles of Lake Superior shoreland, 21 wild islands, and a 10,000-acre wild rice marsh.

This is the only area of the Great Lakes region that combines shorelines, islands, marshes, and highlands in one complex. This beautiful and unspoiled backyard of our great Midwest, only hours away from heavily populated areas, is readily accessible to millions of Midwesterners and offers the visitor a complete variety of recreational opportunities, such as hunting, fishing, boating, camping, hiking, and nature study.

The designation of this site as a national lakeshore, with its magnificent white sand beaches and wild islands, will be a fitting recognition of the unique character and beauty of Wisconsin's magnificent outdoor resources. The prospect of preserving this treasured lake-shore and island resource now is within our reach. At the initial hearings held last year by the House Interior's Subcommittee on National Parks and Recreation, Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall warmly endorsed the Apostle Islands proposal, and it has the support of numerous conservation groups, as well as the Governors of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

The 91st Congress now has an excellent opportunity to preserve the precious assets of one of America's most scenic areas. In addition, the recreational activities of such a national lakeshore will stimulate the tourist industry in the economically depressed upper portions of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

The Apostle Islands also are part of our American heritage for their earlier pages form one of the most interesting chapters in the history of our Nation. It was on these Lake Superior shores that the early French explorers, in 1665, planted the seeds of the great Northwest empire.

Mr. Speaker, at a time when the problems of congestion and pollution, man-made noise and dirt are a national concern, the Apostle Islands area still retains its striking wild beauty. We must act to preserve this valuable asset.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

Mr. STEIGER of Wisconsin (at the request of Mr. McCloskey), for 15 minutes, today; to revise and extend his remarks and to include extraneous matter.

Mr. DANIELS of New Jersey (at the request of Mr. ALEXANDER), for 15 minutes, today; to revise and extend his remarks and to include extraneous matter.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

By unanimous consent, permission to extend remarks was granted to:

Mr. BROOKS and to include a copy of a bill.

THE LATE HONORABLE E. L. BARTLETT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. POLLOCK).

Mr. POLLOCK. Mr. Speaker, on this the 10th anniversary of our achievement of statehood for Alaska—the 10th birthday for our 49th State—Alaskans look with pride upon our great accomplishments in so short a period of history; and we look with confidence and courage toward the future, notwithstanding the substantial problems yet to be resolved. But our task will indeed be far more difficult, for we have lost an invaluable friend and advocate, Alaska's most beloved citizen, Senator E. L. "BOB" BARTLETT, a man who served in this body with distinction for seven terms as the delegate for the territory of Alaska, and thereafter for 10 years as the senior Senator for Alaska. Senator BARTLETT died on Wednesday, December 11, 1968.

It was my privilege, my honor, to have served with this outstanding gentleman, to have had the opportunity to know him well and to have become his friend despite our political differences. BOB BARTLETT was Alaska's most revered citizen, and I will urge the Governor and the Legislature of Alaska to authorize a statue to be cast and placed in Statuary Hall of this U.S. Capitol in honor of this man who enjoyed more frequent and more solid support than any public figure in Alaskan history.

No words of mine would be adequate to sufficiently honor BOB BARTLETT on this occasion, nor to assuage the anguish of bereavement which his widow, Vide, and his family and friends have sustained in his loss.

Mr. Speaker, I insert in the RECORD two very fine editorials from two of Alaska's largest newspapers, the Anchorage Daily Times of December 12 and the

Fairbanks Daily News-Miner of December 14:

[From the Anchorage (Alaska) Daily Times, Dec. 12, 1968]

BOB BARTLETT

The book was closed on a life that was beloved in Alaska when Senator Bartlett died Wednesday following heart surgery in Cleveland, Ohio.

We know of no one who was as loved by Alaskans as was Senator Bartlett. We know of no one who has ever been recognized, trusted and revered as was he.

The people of this state who loved him are known for their individualism, divisiveness, sectionalism, arrogance and clannishness. Yet he held them united behind him for 24 years—a longevity in public office that is unequalled. On 10 different occasions the stubborn, unmanageable, belligerent and politically erratic populace of Alaska handed him the crown with election returns as much as 81 per cent in his favor.

No one in all the state's history has ever enjoyed such frequent and solid support from Alaskans.

That approbation was no gift to the Senator because he earned it.

He earned it by hard work, sincerity, consistency, enthusiasm, and loyal devotion. His service to Alaskans went far beyond the normal duties of a public official.

He had the unique quality of humility that graced him with an enduring warmth and friendliness for mankind. He was sought after by Alaskans whether or not they needed his help or wanted him to do something.

Indeed, every Alaskan who came near him found him a warm human being.

There was no limit to the time and energy that Senator Bartlett was willing to expend in behalf of an Alaskan.

It was as though every one of us was a member of his closest family and he was concerned for the total welfare of each.

Alaskans mark the death of Bob Bartlett with sorrow but historians will note it as the end of an era.

It is the end of an era of transition, one of the most thrilling chapters in Alaska history—one that is virtually a summary of the life and public service of Bob Bartlett.

The transition involved Alaska's change from territorial status—that of the misunderstood, red-haired stepchild of the nation—to acceptance as a full-fledged, first-class member of the family of states.

Senator Bartlett played a key role before, during and after the attainment of statehood. Without his dependable and constant efforts in winning special measures from Congress and the Chief Executive in Washington, the revolutionary changes experienced by Alaskans would have been more difficult.

The loss of our friend is overwhelming. We are so blinded by our sorrow that we tend to overlook the great victory that his life exemplifies and our good fortune in having him so long.

[From the Fairbanks (Alaska) News-Miner, Dec. 14, 1968]

BOB BARTLETT, ALASKAN

Wednesday night in Cleveland, Ohio, a long ways from the land he loved so well, death stilled the weakened heart of Alaska's most revered citizen, Edward Lewis (Bob) Bartlett.

It is not often that a man, especially a politician, can reach the plateau of devotion that Alaskans held for Sen. Bob Bartlett. It was a devotion, however, that was well-founded, and returned in kind.

For Bob Bartlett was that kind of man. He never received for what he gave many times over. He devoted the last quarter of a century of his life to his fellow Alaskans. This was 25 years virtually in exile as he was far away from his beloved Alaska in the nation's capital.

In 1933 as secretary to the late Delegate Tony Dimond he gave Washington, D.C., a try for a year and found it wanting. There was no place like home. But 10 years later he was again called into service against his every wish and ran for Dimond's seat as delegate. He won this, and six succeeding elections, and when statehood came 10 years ago he became Alaska's senior senator.

The cold, hard facts of the matter may be that he lived well as a congressional figure—for 14 years the lone voice of Alaska in the give-and-take world of professional politics at the highest level in the country—and for the next 10 years as a member of the U.S. Senate, the most exclusive deliberating body in America. But what are material things when your heart and every thought are in a far distant place?

Financially, Bob Bartlett was a virtual pauper in the land of wealthy U.S. senators. His total worth can probably be summed up as a recently purchased home in Washington, a mail box in Juneau, and two plots of ground he bought some years back in the North Star cemetery in Fairbanks which will be his final resting place.

But Bob Bartlett had more than this—things that few people, living or dead, ever enjoyed. He had the unending devotion of his beloved Vide, and his daughters, Doris Ann and Sue. He had the complete respect of his colleagues in Washington where he served so ably since 1944. He had close personal friendships with presidents. His staff, if it is possible to love one's employer, did this to Bob Bartlett—dozens of whom he has launched on their own successful personal careers.

What one rarely has, however, in his particular field of endeavor, was the respect of those he served in Washington. No problem was too small, or too large for Senator Bartlett to consider, or to do his utmost to overcome.

His overwhelming victories were an expression of the esteem his fellow citizens showed Bob Bartlett the only way they knew how—at the polls. The triumphs were not necessarily because he was the greatest U.S. senator who ever walked the halls of Washington, but because Alaskans knew they had a true friend representing them.

The son of a pioneer miner and mail carrier, Bob Bartlett probably would have been more than satisfied to have lived out his life as his father did—as a miner on the creeks of the Circle area.

Mining was where he found his true happiness. This was evident in May of 1965 when all Alaska saluted Senator Bartlett for his then 20 years of service in Congress. The leading people of the state were in attendance that night in Anchorage—people from all walks of life, but seated at the two tables reserved for his special guests were his old mining partners and his life-long friends, regardless of their station in life.

Much to his own chagrin, Bob Bartlett was born of Alaskans, Edward and Ida Bartlett, in Seattle. However, Alaska has always been his home and not far from his thoughts.

This is expressed in what he once wrote:

"I love Alaska. My attachment for it, my concern for it, is so deeply imbedded that it is a very part of me. There I have grown, studied, married and worked. I have toiled in her beautiful natural setting as a gold miner. I have learned the life of her towns as a reporter. I have met her people as an appointed administrator and again as Delegate and Senator. As years pile upon years there is a greater personal insistence in drawing upon memory's treasure trove."

To his last breath it can be assured that Bob Bartlett drew upon this "memory's treasure trove."

man and most important a respected revered and beloved friend of us all.

BARTLETT REFLECTED PEOPLE OF STATE

As the son of pioneer Alaskans, E. L. "Bob" Bartlett became a living example, even as a U.S. Senator, of the rugged individualism of his Arctic frontier constituency.

His dress, on most occasions in Alaska, was strictly informal.

He was not a man of eloquent speech, yet he was a man to whom Alaskans listened, because he seldom spoke unless he felt he had something he deemed important to say.

With 35 years of public life behind him, Bartlett knew, personally, literally thousands of Alaskans.

Rarely did he forget a name or a face, regardless of whether it was one first met in a large city or one first encountered in a remote village.

On his frequent trips to Alaska, Bartlett could most commonly be found contacting Alaskans in their own environment, most of the time wearing the wool shirts he favored.

He was at his best talking with individuals or to small groups. To all, he was simply Bob Bartlett.

As the Territory of Alaska's delegate to Congress and later as one of its two senators, Bartlett commanded national attention on rare occasions, preferring to direct his efforts to the problems of Alaska and her people.

Though he was a staunch Democrat, his wide circle of friends included many Republicans, who were candid in admitting, privately, that he was unbeatable at the polls.

The results of the 1966 election, when Bartlett received his second six-year term in the U.S. Senate, serve to illustrate the point.

In that election, with 65,250 votes cast, Bartlett ran up more than 75 per cent of the vote, one of the most lopsided election victories in Alaskan history.

Born Edward Lewis Bartlett in Seattle on April 20, 1904, Bartlett was the son of Ed and Ida Bartlett, Klondike pioneers.

A native of Texas, father Ed Bartlett followed the gold rush to Dawson, Y.T., where he operated a firm using mule pack trains to freight goods to the gold fields.

In Dawson he married a Wisconsin girl who had come north for adventure. Their first child, a daughter, was born in San Francisco. Following Bob's birth in Seattle, Ed Bartlett moved to Fairbanks and his family joined him there the following year.

Bob Bartlett attended elementary and high school in Fairbanks and later attended both the University of Alaska and the University of Washington.

During the tenure of W. F. "Wrong Font" Thompson as editor of the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner, Bartlett joined the reporting staff as a summer vacation replacement, becoming a full-time reporter in 1927.

In 1930, he married the former Vide Marie Gaustad, a native of Dawson who also attended Fairbanks schools and the University of Alaska, where they first met.

Bartlett remained with the News-Miner until 1933, when he was appointed congressional secretary to Anthony J. Dimond, elected the previous fall as Alaska's delegate to Congress.

Bartlett stayed with Dimond until 1934, when he returned to Alaska to become assistant territorial director of the Federal Housing Administration.

Bartlett's father died in 1935 and during the next three years he operated the small placer gold mine his father had worked near Miller House, in the Circle District.

In January of 1939, Bartlett left active mining for good when he received an appointment from Franklin D. Roosevelt as secretary of the Territory of Alaska, at Juneau.

In 1944, Bartlett sought and won election as territorial delegate to Congress from Alaska, after Dimond announced he would not seek re-election. Bartlett was re-elected delegate for six subsequent terms.

After Congress approved statehood for Alaska in 1958, Bartlett entered the race for U.S. senator and won handily, picking up more than 81 percent of the total votes cast for himself and two opponents.

When Alaska was formally admitted to the union in 1959, he became the state's senior senator by the toss of a coin. He drew a two-year term and the other U.S. senator elected in 1958, Ernest Gruening, also a Democrat, became junior senator from Alaska, with a four year term.

In 1960, Bartlett went before the voters again and was elected to a full six-year term in the U.S. Senate, defeating Republican Lee McKinley, the man he again faced in 1966, by a vote of 38,041-21,937.

Although Bartlett did not win an academic degree from the University of Washington or the University of Alaska, he did hold, among others, an honorary doctor of law degree from Union College, at Schenectady, N.Y.

This is the same college from which graduated William H. Seward, the man who negotiated Alaska's purchase from Russia in 1867, and Dr. Sheldon Jackson, the pioneer Alaska missionary whose name is being perpetuated by a high school and junior college at Sitka.

As a member of the Senate, Bartlett served on the Appropriations Committee, the Commerce Committee and the Select Committee on Small Business.

Bartlett and his wife had two daughters, Doris Ann, now married to Burke Riley, chairman of the Interior Department's Alaska Field Committee, and Sue, a nurse.

MAN TO MATCH MOUNTAINS

Alaska's Bob Bartlett was a man to match the state's mountains.

President Johnson saw this, according to a wire he sent when Bartlett was feted in May 1965 for having served Alaska in Congress for 20 years.

"Bob Bartlett, working quietly, gets things done," wired the President. "His accomplishments in both houses of Congress match the high mountains and broad plains of Alaska."

Mr. Speaker, I have a resolution at the desk on the death of Alaska's most beloved citizen, the distinguished Senator E. L. "BOB" BARTLETT.

H. RES. 16

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Honorable E. L. Bartlett, a Senator of the United States from the State of Alaska.

Resolved, That the Clerk communicate these resolutions to the Senate and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased Senator.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect the House do now adjourn.

The resolutions were agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ADJOURNMENT

Accordingly (at 8 o'clock and 14 minutes p.m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until Monday, January 6, 1969, at 12 o'clock noon.
