Consideration of amendments will resume on Tuesday, February 28.

Agreed To the Crapo amendment that defines the term “emergency” as a situation that is immediately impending and extraordinary in nature, demanding attention due to a condition, circumstance, or practice reasonably expected to cause death, serious illness, or severe injury to humans, or substantial endangerment to private property or the environment if no action is taken.

Pages H2285–87

Rejected the Brown of California amendment in the nature of a substitute that sought to require major Federal regulatory agencies (except the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the Army Corps of Engineers and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission) to set regulatory priorities, consistent with existing law, based on the seriousness of the risks involved and the availability of resources; require affected agencies to conduct risk assessments and cost-benefit analyses for major rules, defining a major rule as one with costs of $100 million; prevent provisions to supersede existing health, safety, or environmental laws; require the General Accounting Office to conduct an annual review and report to Congress on each agency’s compliance with provisions; specify that no new right to judicial review be created and that failure to follow procedures would not invalidate any rule; provide that nothing in the provisions create an obligation or burden on State and local governments; and require that agencies provide for independent peer review of risk assessments used for major regulations, but that persons with conflicts of interest be barred from serving on peer review panels (rejected by a recorded vote of 174 yeas to 246 noes, Roll No. 176).
