

cutting back from prior levels, as many people are afraid we are. We are simply talking about holding down the increases, increases that in many cases, as I say, are double what they were last year, which seems to me in many cases that is enough.

To my colleagues who say, no, these problems are so pressing that even a doubling of the money is insufficient to solve the needs, I share with you my perspective from the experience I have had in the business world, which is that many times the worst thing you can do to a promising program or a business circumstance, product development activity, is to give it too much money too fast. There are many times the temptation to say, "Oh, this problem is not solving itself fast enough. Let us give it more money. This problem is not moving as rapidly. Let us fully fund it." And you push money at a problem at such a rate that the managers of the program simply cannot absorb it and spent it intelligently.

I served, Mr. President, in the executive branch. I can tell you the most hectic day in the life of anyone who serves in the executive branch is the last day of the fiscal year because on that day the spending authority expires, and all effort is exerted to get the money spent before the year ends. And money is being pushed out the door as rapidly as it possibly can be because they live on a use-it-or-lose-it circumstance. They say, "If we do not spend the money this year, we will not get the same appropriation next year." Then the managerial data come back. And they say, "You know. We had to spend it so fast that we had to take care of this artificial requirement that we do it by the end of the fiscal year that we spent it badly, we spent it sloppily, in many cases we spent it in a fashion that was counterproductive to the program we were supporting."

That is the real reason for these rescissions, Mr. President. As a Member of the Appropriations Committee I can assure you and the American people that we went through these programs, and said, "Where is the money that is not likely to be fenced in 1995 for intelligent management reasons? And, if we can find money of that kind, let us rescind the budget authority and only give them the amount of money they can intelligently and properly spend as good managers." And for that we are being accused of cutting vital programs and throwing people out into the snow, and all of the other rhetoric that has come along on this floor.

I hope, Mr. President, that the information developed by my staff and available to readers of the RECORD following my remarks will make it clear that in many programs, we are not cutting, we are simply rescinding money that could not be intelligently spent and properly spent during this fiscal year, and, in fact, in the programs listed we are funding at a level equal to, or in some cases double, that of the level of fiscal year 1994.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I further ask that the cloture vote scheduled for Thursday occur at 2 p.m. and the mandatory quorum under rule XXII be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, the two leaders with several other Members have been working in good faith all day to reach a compromise with respect to the consideration of the Daschle and Dole/Ashcroft amendment. I hope to reach a unanimous-consent agreement early tomorrow which would allow us to complete action on this bill by noon or shortly thereafter with no further amendments in order. Therefore, Members should be on notice that votes can be expected to occur during Thursday's session of the Senate including final passage of the rescissions bill.

Also, the Senate is expected to consider and pass the paperwork reduction conference report, H.R. 1345, D.C. financial board. I understand there may be some amendments. They are trying to work those out. I also understand it is very important we do this before the recess. Then if we complete action on the defense supplemental conference report, H.R. 1240 regarding child pornography, executive calendar nominations, and I think we are working together on all those, we hope to get them all done by tomorrow.

Mr. DASCHLE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I concur with the information that has just been provided by the distinguished majority leader. Let me say, as I understand it, at some point he will be putting into the RECORD the summary of our progress so far in our negotiations.

I think it certainly accurate to say that there is complete agreement on the add-backs. We have a number of issues that we have to raise with our caucus. That caucus will take place at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and I urge all Senators to be there for this very important discussion. Whether or not we have any amendments will be dependent upon our discussion there.

We have come a long way in the last day or so, and as the distinguished majority leader has indicated, there have been a lot of good-faith discussions on both sides of the aisle. I am pleased with our progress, but I think we are now at a point where this ought to be subject to a good discussion within our caucus. And we will be prepared to talk more about the specifics of this compromise as soon as that caucus is complete.

But I do hope we can finish our work as a result of our negotiations. And I am confident that, as a result of our progress, we are much closer tonight.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Democratic leader.

Mr. President, I will place in the RECORD at this point a description of the Daschle-Dole compromise, which includes the add-backs and the offsets and the total cost of the add-backs, plus total deficit reduction, in addition to paying for the add-backs.

So my colleagues will have notice, it will appear in the RECORD tomorrow morning and they will have a chance to go over it. If there are any questions, they can contact either myself or Senator DASCHLE. Hopefully, they will not have any questions.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
