THE MORRIS K. UDALL PARKINSON'S RESEARCH ASSISTANCE AND EDUCATION ACT OF 1995

● Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, if you want to know more about Parkinson's disease all you have to do is read the newspaper or watch the nightly news. You don't even have to read the whole paper, the information is usually on page 1. Prestigious and international papers such as the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal believe that the news is worthy of front page coverage. "Prime Time" had a feature on Parkinson's, and our very own Washington Post devoted three pages to promising new developments. What has caused the media fervor is the exciting new and dramatic medical discoveries in the field of neurology and neurosurgery. As I speak, scientists are uncovering new important data on nerve cell function and repair. Our biomedical research teams are on the cusp of breaking the code to nerve regeneration.

In these times of exciting new developments, we are unfortunately encountering a financial impediment. Last year, the Federal funding for Parkinson's disease at the NIH was $26 million. To put that number in perspective, the annual Federal budget for Alzheimers is $300 million, $1 billion each for cancer and heart disease. Our commitment to eradicating Parkinson's disease is minuscule in comparison. I cannot understand the lack of financial support for a disease that affects over 1 million Americans and costs our society over $6 billion a year. This disease is so widespread that each one of us has a close friend or loved one who is facing the challenge of life with Parkinson's. We must change our message to the American public and declare that increased Federal funding for Parkinson's disease research is a worthy investment in the future health of our Nation.
