

and you say, now, would you like to have this wonderful program that is going to cost $100 for your family? Most people would probably say, yes, I would like to do good things. Sure, I would like to have that program. But if the choice is for you to keep the $100 on your kitchen table and spend that money for what you want to spend it for for your family, what is going to be your choice? Are you going to send the $100 to Washington to spend on a program that sounds very good or are you going to want to keep that $100 to make the decisions for your family yourself. We are going to try to keep that $100 on the table for your family, so that you can decide what your priorities are rather than letting someone in Washington, DC, you have never met make those decisions for you.

Two economists developed a model for the future called generational accounting. This model calculates how much short-term budget policies will cost future generations. It looks beyond 5-year budget projections and was developed from the help of the President's Office of Management and Budget.

These two prominent economists have produced some shocking forecasts. On the day a child is born, that child owes $19,000 in Federal debt. When that child's sibling is born in 4 years, the baby brother or sister will be $24,000 in debt. There will be fewer jobs available for that child. And when it comes time to take out a personal loan to buy a new car or to own a home, our children that are being born today will find that Federal deficits have driven the interest rates up 2 percent. But borrowing money for a home will be just a dream for those children. If we continue at the rate we are going right now, what we are really going to give our children is not the ability to buy a home at all. They will not be able to buy a home because their tax rate will be 82 percent—82 percent is what we will be giving to our children and grandchildren if we do not take steps right now to correct the runaway spending that this Congress has had for the last 40 years.

And yet, this administration has refused to abandon the practices of Congresses for the last 40 years. In fact, this administration has dealt itself out of this debate. The President submitted a budget but it does not balance. It does not balance in the year 2000 or the year 2002. The President abdicated that responsibility and has left it to Congress.

Now we are going to get a chance to vote on the President's budget that does not balance. In fact, the President's press secretary said on Tuesday that that will be a good place for us to begin.

In fact, Senator DOMENICI has decided that that is indeed a good place to begin. So, when I finish my remarks, on behalf of Senator DOMENICI, I am going to submit the President's budget. That will be the first vote of this bud-et debate and we will get a chance to see if people want to vote for a budget that may have fewer decreases than increases, but does not balance at the end. We will see who is willing to cross the line that will be drawn in the sand to say, we will take the responsible course for this country and we will do what the people asked us to do last November.

In fact, we are in the toughest debate that we may ever have. No one, probably even Senator DOMENICI, agrees with everything in this budget resolution. I do not agree with everything in it. Not one person in this country probably agrees 100 percent with everything in it. Because, you know, Senator DOMENICI compromised. He tried to work with people and their priorities. He may not have liked everything that is in this resolution even though he is the prime author of the resolution. But we are going to rise above our small differences. We are going to try to set the priorities. We are going to have amendments.

We may vote for some of those amendments, but in the end, Mr. President, the people who are doing what is responsible for this country are going to vote a balanced budget out of the Senate just as they have done in the House today. And we are going to make history. We are going to begin to turn the ship of state that started going in the wrong direction in the 1930's when we started building up spending and big Government until in 1994 the people said, "I know I'm going to have to sacrifice. I'm ready." The people of this country said that. They understood what they were doing.

And when I go home, people say to me, "You hang tough. Don't back down now."

This is our chance to save our country. And if we miss it, the people of America know that we will not have this chance again maybe ever but certainly not in the near future.

There is a new spirit in this country. The spirit of the Americans who went to the polls in 1994 and caused a revolution in the way that our Founding Fathers provided them to have a revolution. And that was the ballot box. The people had a revolution and they took their Government back. They have experienced the right of democracy. And now the people of America have said, "We want you to do what is right. We understand that it will be tough. We understand that we will have to sacrifice. But we are ready. We are ready to do what is right for our children and our grandchildren."

Mr. President, it is time for us to look to the future, not to the next election.

If we do what is right, everything else will take care of itself and we will create the jobs and the future for our children and that is what we are going to do.
