

As we debate health care reforms in Washington, we have to always remember that the medical personnel are at the heart of any system, and that no matter what we do to health care, it's only going to be as good as those individuals providing it. It is because of these professionals that America has the best health care system in the world. And against that measure, it is why we are all so glad to join in recognizing Bob Mazero as Latrobe's Italian American of the Year.

YOM HASHOAH: REMEMBER,
HONOR, REFLECT

HON. STEVE C. LATOURETTE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 15, 1996

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, this evening at Fairmount Temple in Beachwood, OH, a Yom HaShoah V'Hagvura Commemoration is being held. Had the House of Representatives not been in session this day, I would have joined my friends and constituents at this special community event. I deeply regret not being able to attend the Yom HaShoah Commemoration, and wish to commend those who worked so hard to make the evening a success.

The purpose of this community commemoration is to remember the Holocaust and the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising. This evening's special commemorative event is part of the larger Holocaust Day of Remembrance—an internationally recognized day set aside annually to remember the victims of the Holocaust, including the 6 million Jews murdered by the Nazis and their evil collaborators.

As the member of Congress representing Ohio's 19th District, it has been a profound honor for me to serve on the council of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, DC. This council was created by a unanimous act of Congress in 1980 and was charged with the task of creating the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum. Our mission is to encourage remembrance of the Holocaust—to remember its victims—and to assure that never again in history will we allow bigotry and hatred to run unchecked.

There are some who will assert that the Holocaust was about Jews and therefore any remembrance of the Holocaust will have meaning only to Jews. Those people could not be more wrong. When we remember the Holocaust we remember a historical truth too great for most to fathom, but one that can never be forgotten. If we know anything about history, it is that it tends to repeat itself. The Holocaust, however, must never be repeated. While it is painful to dwell on such a heinous slice of history, it is a pain that should never be far from the hearts and minds of all Americans, for America responded to the horror of the Holocaust in a way that was tragically and regretfully inadequate.

The systematic extermination of European Jews began in June 1941 when the German Army invaded the Soviet Union, yet it would be some time until reports of atrocities would filter back to the United States, and even longer until they were taken seriously. Most Americans, meanwhile, remained unaware of the horror inflicted on European Jews, as reports of atrocities were not widely publicized by the media. American and British Jewish organizations, however, took the reports with the seriousness they deserved, and only at their insistence did the American and British governments decide to act to rescue those European Jews who had fallen victim to the Nazis.

As you commemorate the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising this evening, it is important to remember that at the same time the uprising began—April 1943—the Bermuda Conference opened. This emergency conference was intended to outline a solid plan for rescuing Jews from Nazi atrocities, yet little was accomplished, as both British and American delegates fretted over what to do with those Jews who would be rescued. The United States would not budge on its immigration quotas, and Britain would not even consider the possibility of admitting rescued Jews into Palestine.

The two governments exhibited cowardice and indifference while those staging the revolt displayed unparalleled backbone and heroism. The inaction at the Bermuda Conference, unfortunately, would lead to additional torture and extermination of Jews. This followed, of course, our country's unwise refusal to relax immigration quotas following the Evian Conference in 1938. It hardly seems possible today given our country's leadership in helping others, but of the 33 countries represented at Evian, only the tiny Dominican Republic agreed to accept a significant number of Jewish refugees. The American response to Hitler's Germany is a legacy of shame we can never forget.

Meanwhile, at the same time America and Britain could not agree on what to do about rescuing Jews from Nazi atrocities, Jews in the Warsaw Ghetto residents were carrying out an orchestrated revolt, refusing to report to deportation areas and staging an armed uprising. The Jews fought valiantly against their Nazi tormentors, even as German forces began destroying the ghetto, setting buildings on fire to force out those in hiding. Finally, on May 16, 1943—nearly a month after the heroic uprising began—the Nazis in one last act of horrific bravado destroyed the Great Synagogue to symbolize victory. With the ghetto reduced to rubble, those Jews who survived the monthlong violent Warsaw Ghetto uprising were deported to forced-labor or extermination camps, where Nazi horror, tyranny and hatred continued to reign.

On this day, it is my fervent hope that all Americans will pause and embrace the spirit of the Day of Remembrance, and the tireless efforts of those who seek to make this day resonate with significance—from my friends at Fairmount Temple to all the Jewish, community and civic organizations across the country, to the dedicated staff and council of the U.S. Holocaust Museum. May all Americans make a lasting commitment never to forget the Holocaust, or the moral, spiritual, and ethical questions it raises for those of us blessed to live in a democracy.

HEALTH COVERAGE AVAILABILITY
AND AFFORDABILITY ACT OF 1996

SPEECH OF

HON. JIM KOLBE

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 28, 1996

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I have heard from a number of my constituents from Tucson, some healthy, some with diabetes, multiple sclerosis, or asthma, and many who have a child that has health problems. It is for these people that we will vote on reform of the health insurance market.

Our current health insurance market provides too little protection for individuals and families with significant health problems and makes it difficult for employers—particularly small employers—to obtain adequate health coverage for their employees.

Mr. Speaker we need to ask ourselves what will the Health Care Availability and Affordability Act do for the American people:

The bill will allow workers to move from job to job.

The bill will allow workers who lose their job to maintain their health care insurance, and

The bill will allow workers to maintain their health care insurance if they move to a company that does not offer health care services.

What will the Health Care Availability and Affordability Act do for business community:

The bill will allow small business to join together under the auspices of ERISA to purchase insurance coverage or to cover their employees under self-insured multiple employer health plans.

Mr. Speaker, it is obvious how this will help the American people. Smaller companies will have the opportunities to pool together to purchase health care insurance, therefore, increasing the access of health care services to small business employees while reducing the cost of insurance premiums. It put small and large business in the same playing field.

Mr. Speaker, the Health Care Availability and Affordability Act, in addition to making health insurance more available and portable, addresses an even more pressing issue the affordability of health care services.

The bill will raise the health insurance deductible percent age from 30 to 50 percent for the self-employed.

The bill will allow individuals to include long-term care services as part of their health care expenditures Federal income tax deduction, and most importantly the bill will allow individuals covered by a high deductible health insurance plan or their employer to make a tax deductible contribution to a Medicare savings account.

Mr. Speaker, the working families of this country have demanded changes to the health insurance market, and we have provided the mechanism, in the Health Care Availability and Affordability Act, that will give the American people what they need.

Mr. Speaker I urge my colleagues to join me in voting "aye" on the Health Care Availability and Affordability Act.
