

One of our Nation's resounding successes is our vaccination policy. By age 6, almost 95 percent of children in the United States have received their recommended vaccinations. It is no less than amazing that we have been able to curtail such childhood diseases as polio, mumps, whooping cough and diphtheria—diseases which once killed hundreds of thousands in the United States.

But, if we are to continue to protect our children from such deadly diseases, we cannot let our guard down. Many may remember the 1990 U.S. measles outbreak which killed 89 people. Measles is a prime example of a disease that is completely vaccine preventable which continues to hospitalize and kill people in the United States. In fact, it is estimated that over a million people die worldwide from measles every year, with tens of millions of cases reported.

We simply cannot become lackadaisical about vaccinating against diseases, such as measles, which remains a potent killer in the rest of the world. That is why I authored a provision in last year's Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act to require incoming immigrants to receive certain immunizations before entering the United States. That provision took effect as of July 1, 1997.

Soon thereafter, I heard from numerous parents of internationally adopted children that the foreign immunization requirement posed a unique risk for young orphans adopted from abroad.

After carefully reviewing their concerns, and taking into consideration the fact that these adoptive parents are not familiar with the foreign medical community or with the medical histories of these young orphaned children, I introduced H.R. 2464 to exempt internationally adopted children under age 11 from the immigration vaccination requirement.

In addition, these adoptive parents will sign an affidavit stating that they will have their adopted children immunized within 30 days of entering the country or as soon as medically appropriate. This affidavit will primarily serve to remind parents of the vital importance of having their children immunized once they arrive in the United States. Since most children in the United States receive their vaccinations by age 6, it is essential that these adopted children receive their vaccinations as soon as possible and I am confident that these American parents will responsibly honor the affidavit.

Mr. Speaker, I am hopeful that enactment of H.R. 2464 will serve the dual purpose of protecting internationally adopted children from foreign vaccination risks while ensuring that these children receive vaccinations once in the United States. I urge all my colleagues to support H.R. 2464.

TRIBUTE TO SERGEANT DEREK DANIEL DIAZ

HON. BRAD SHERMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 21, 1997

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor bravery and to congratulate Sergeant Derek Daniel Diaz on his reception of The Citizens' Choice Award. This award is presented to America's finest officers who have gone beyond the call of duty to ensure that our communities are secure and our children are safe. The following story illustrates Sergeant Diaz's heroism and serves as an extraordinary example of his dedication to our community.

Danger is always a heartbeat away for police officers, and May 24, 1996 was no exception for Sergeant Diaz. At 4 a.m., a woman called 911 and reported that she had just been shot and gave descriptions of the suspects and their vehicle. Sergeant Diaz volunteered to handle the call with the assistance of five other units. He quickly spotted a car fitting the description, and followed it until the two suspects jumped out of the moving vehicle which then crashed.

The suspects who were now on foot split up and Sergeant Diaz chased the driver and tackled him in an alley. Officer Byron Joseph then arrived on the scene, and despite the combined strength of the two officers, a violent struggle ensued with all three falling to the ground. Suddenly, the suspect produced a pistol and shot Sergeant Diaz in the base of the neck and Officer Joseph in the arm.

Sergeant Diaz, wounded and on the ground, looked up to see the suspect preparing to shoot Officer Joseph again. Fearing for the life of his fellow officer, Sergeant Diaz prevented the suspect from killing Officer Joseph and with a single shot, fatally wounding the suspect. Sergeant Diaz then collapsed to the ground.

Sergeant Diaz's courage and will to survive undoubtedly saved the life of Officer Joseph as well as his own. But in spite of this heroic act and countless others, Sergeant Diaz refuses to accept The Citizens' Choice Award only for himself. Rather, he is a custodian of this award for all police officers who put their lives on the line every night and every day.

Mr. Speaker, distinguished colleagues, please join me in honoring Sergeant Diaz for his bravery and heroism and upon reception of The Citizens' Choice Award. This recognition is long overdue.

TRIBUTE TO MARY CLARDY

HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 21, 1997

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize Mary Clardy, an extraordinary young woman whom, I am proud to say, is a constituent of the 18th Congressional District of Texas. I want to congratulate Ms. Clardy for her selection as the 1997 Peter J. Salmon National Blind Employee of the Year by National Industries for the Blind.

The Peter J. Salmon Award is given annually by the National Institute for the Blind to a blind employee working at one of the institute's 87 associated agencies throughout the country. The award recognizes outstanding achievement at work by a blind employee and this year is given to Ms. Clardy for her desire to, in her own words, "make it on her own."

Mary Clardy is dedicated and determined. Blind since birth, Ms. Clardy, age 37, has excelled professionally as a telecommunications operator at the Veteran's Affairs Medical Center in Houston, TX.

Ms. Clardy's supervisor at the VA says that Ms. Clardy represents everything that a good employee should be. Her exemplary performance at work, and her dedication and enthusiasm for her job are an inspiration.

Ms. Clardy has said, "I found out that, despite a misdiagnosis that I was mentally retarded, despite the fact that I have epilepsy, and despite the fact that I can not see, I can learn and I can work. It's that simple."

At an early age, Mary Clardy was told that she would be lucky to land a job as an assembly line worker. Today, however, she handles up to 70 calls an hour at the VA's switchboard, many requiring emergency response techniques.

Mary Clardy was born prematurely in Hobbs, NM in 1960. She developed retrolental fibroplasia at birth from a high level of oxygen emitted from an incubator and lost her sight. She graduated in 1978 from the School for the Blind in Muskogee, OK, moved on to Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind in Little Rock, AR, and then attended the Crisis Cole Rehabilitation Center in Austin, TX.

In 1983, the Lighthouse of Houston hired Ms. Clardy to work on contract assembly jobs. She says, "I worked for almost 10 years at a job that everyone thought I was suited for, but it wasn't what I wanted."

When a clerical program started at the Lighthouse, Mary Clardy convinced her counselor at the Texas Commission for the Blind to enroll her. Over the next year, she learned to type and operate a computer. She then pushed to be one of the first students at the Lighthouse's customer service training program. That led her to her current position at the Lighthouse as one of six telecommunications operators working at the VA Medical Center. Ms. Clardy credits the Lighthouse for helping her to develop the skills for this job, which she views as another step toward competitive employment. "If you want something bad enough, there is always a way to achieve it," she says. This is a winning attitude and one that has carried Mary Clardy to great success.

Congratulations, Mary Clardy, on your receipt of this award. I commend you for your hard work, your dedication, and your strength of spirit.

TRIBUTE TO BRONX COMMUNITY COLLEGE ON ITS 40TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. JOSÉ E. SERRANO

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 21, 1997

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Bronx Community College, part of the City University of New York and an invaluable Bronx institution, which will celebrate its 40th anniversary on October 22.

Back in 1957, thanks to the efforts of some civic-minded groups in the Bronx to meet the need for increased higher education facilities in the "Borough of Universities and Progress", Bronx Community College was established. An energetic president, Dr. Morris Meister, launched an enterprise that was ultimately to help tens of thousands of ambitious people find a place an advance in the business world. Classes began in February 1959 at the former site of the Bronx High School of Science at Creston Avenue and 184th Street.
