

shape the content of media coverage of politics. The media can be the check on misconduct and tyranny by government, expose public officials' errors and abuses, inform public policy, and improve the quality of democracy. The problems with the media should be dealt with by the media and the people rather than the government.

IN HONOR OF THE CLEVELAND
SOCIETY OF POLES

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 28, 1998

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Cleveland Society of Poles on its 75th Anniversary. This non-profit organization is dedicated to financially assisting groups and individuals training in the arts. Members of the Society consist of business people and professionals in the Cleveland area.

The Society is striving to make 1998, its 75th Anniversary year, the best ever. Numerous charitable, civic, and educational groups as well as individuals will benefit from the commitment the Cleveland Society of Poles and its members have made to promoting the arts. In turn, the Cleveland community benefits from the organization's continued support of the arts by seeing its cultural, educational, and economic vitality grow and flourish.

My fellow colleagues, please join me in celebrating the 75th Anniversary of the Cleveland Society of Poles.

HONORING THE COMMUNITY SERVICE OF
SGT. EDWARD D. CARDOZA

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 28, 1998

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize Sgt. Edward D. Cardoza upon his retirement from the Milpitas Police Department which is located in Milpitas, CA, in California's 13th Congressional District.

Sgt. Cardoza began his career in law enforcement in 1968 after receiving an honorable discharge from the United States Air Force and attending college. On October 27, 1969, he was transferred to the Milpitas Police Department. He was promoted to corporal in 1974 and then to the rank of sergeant in 1982.

During his 29 years with the Department, Sgt. Cardoza served in many different areas. He showed interest early in his career in the K-9 program. He was a K-9 officer for several years before becoming the coordinator of the K-9 Department where he has served as coordinator for the last ten years. He was a patrol sergeant for several years. In this capacity he was responsible for supervising other police personnel in their response to the needs of our citizens. He also worked in the detective bureau and the youth service bureau and was instrumental in starting the police reserves program.

For the past 3 years, Sgt. Cardoza has been serving as a traffic sergeant. In this capacity he has worked closely with city traffic engineers to help reduce the traffic accident rate for the city of Milpitas. Recently he was instrumental in the conception, design, and implementation of the Department's DUI enforcement trailer which will be used to assist in the reduction of the incidence of drunk driving.

Sgt. Cardoza has also been an active member of the community—through his service on the youth service bureau of the Department, he became involved in many of our community's youth programs. He coached PAL baseball, YBA basketball, and little league. He has also served on the board of directors for Santa Clara PAL, Milpitas PAL, and treasurer for BMX.

During his years of service, Sgt. Cardoza received over 70 letters of appreciation and commendation from the citizens of Milpitas and from numerous branches of government.

Mr. Speaker, on January 30, 1998, Sgt. Cardoza will be honored by family, friends, colleagues, and members of the community on the occasion of his retirement from the Milpitas Police Department. I applaud him for his 29 years of distinguished public service to our community. His dedication and commitment will be sorely missed and I wish him luck in all of his future endeavors.

IN HONOR OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH

HON. CHARLES E. SCHUMER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in celebrating Black History Month. I would like to take a moment to reflect on the courageous leadership and civic duty that has shaped the communities of New York throughout the years. Now, as we approach the new century, New Yorkers of all ethnic backgrounds will face a new set of economic, social and political challenges. If we stop and recognize the perseverance of African-Americans in times of change, their record of commitment to the pursuit of prosperity, integrity and opportunity for their families and friends and community at-large speaks for itself.

The tireless work of community and religious leaders in guiding African-American communities have done much to improve the quality of life in our city. I am proud to honor this important occasion where African-Americans join hands to acknowledge their accomplishments and contributions to our society and the world.

The level of civic participation in today's culture is depressingly low among average American citizens. I am always inspired by the community spirit and leadership I witness from African-Americans in New York. Our society would be a better place if more Americans emulated the civic duty and moral strength of our African-American counterparts. I hope that Black History Month is recognized and honored by citizens of all backgrounds. I honor the work, vision and courage of my African-American friends and colleagues in Congress and throughout New York. May our city continue to be honored with your leadership.

TRIBUTE TO HOWARD T. ROBINSON, SR.—FIRST EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS

HON. WILLIAM (BILL) CLAY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 28, 1998

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, on November 8, 1997, Howard Theodore Robinson, Sr., the first Executive Director of the Congressional Black Caucus, lost his life in a car accident. His death was a great tragedy for the African-American community. He touched so many lives and was a key participant in the socio-economic movement of minorities.

I vividly remember the day I was introduced to Howard during a congressional trip to the Far East. At that time, Howard was labor attaché for the American embassy in Tokyo. Congressman Gus Hawkins and I met with him. We were so impressed with Howard that we recommended to our colleagues in the Congressional Black Caucus that he be hired as the organization's first executive director. Our instincts proved to be correct. He was a great administrator. The CBC is the powerful organization that is today in part because of Howard's contributions.

Howard worked tirelessly to advance the causes of minorities, particularly African-Americans, and made great sacrifices on their behalf. When he accepted the position of CBC Executive Director, he left a prestigious position at the State Department. But, he was on a greater mission. In his letter of acceptance he stated that he was taking the job "with the full recognition that the Caucus may not, at this time, be in a position to match my current salary. But, because I believe that the purposes and objectives outlined by the Caucus are basic to the future of all Americans, I am willing to abandon my position as a senior Foreign Service office, in order to dedicate the next years of my life to the objectives that you in the Caucus have set out to achieve."

In addition to his foreign service career, which included U.S. Consulate to the French West Indies and Advisor to the U.S. Delegation to the International Labor Organization Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, Howard Robinson had a distinguished career in radio. In 1991, he became the host of "The Creative Entrepreneur", a talk show about small businesses. Later on, he hosted a second show called "Dynamics of Public Policy", a show about policy in southern New Jersey. The title of the second show was changed to "In The Public Interests" when Howard left New Jersey and went solo. The shows were expansions of Howard's efforts to help minority communities. They both proved to be key informational sources in their respective communities and helped many to empower themselves economically and politically.

Howard's sacrifices and contributions will not be forgotten. His work touched people who will always remember how Howard helped them to envision and live up to their potential. The name "Howard T. Robinson, Sr." will be indelibly marked on their journey to economic independence.
