

seemed to be natural qualities. "Piece of cake," he would say to someone who felt that a task was too great. "Hang in there."

Born and raised in New York, he was ordained a priest in the Pallotines of the Immaculate Conception Province in Brooklyn, NY in 1969, seven years after entering the order. He served as chaplain and teacher of religion at Bishop Eustace Preparatory School in Pensauken, NJ, in 1969. Father Rusty came to Baltimore in the 1970's, serving as vocation director and novice master for his order. He also was the director of the Pallotine Seminary in Hyattsville, MD, and he also served for a time as a Provincial Superior of the Pallotine Fathers.

Cardinal William Keeler, Archbishop of Baltimore, called him "a truly great pastoral leader. He spoke to the people in a way which was at once witty and humorous and also quite profound." Reflecting on his avid reading, the Cardinal added, "If I had to name one person who was knowledgeable about the Bible, who was in tune with today's current problems and was compassionate, it was Father Rusty."

Rev. Peter Sticco, SAC, the Pallotine Provincial at the time, told the mourners in his eulogy, "He was your pastor, he was your hero, he was your friend."

The Rev. Oreste Pandola, SAC, is a worthy recipient and exemplifies the great spirit of Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr. in whose name this award is presented.

IN HONOR OF GEORGE AND HELEN DUDAS

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 25, 1998

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the anniversary of the marriage of George and Helen Dudas fifty years ago, May 22, 1948. These two people truly exemplify a bond that can stand the test of time.

George and Helen Dudas entered the covenant of marriage at a time when the future was uncertain. World War II had just concluded, an economic boom was prevailing over the nation, and two young persons chose to take the first step on a long and successful life together. Their marriage saw many events in its fifty years, both joyous and challenging, that strengthened their bond and their love for each other.

George and Helen Dudas have clearly maintained a close bond with each other that has survived the test of half a century. Their marriage covenant, a beacon for all of us in these unstable times, exhibits a true love for each other and an ability to cope with the tests of marriage.

My fellow colleagues, join me in saluting George and Helen Dudas, two fine persons who have maintained a loving and devoted relationship for fifty years and we hope for fifty more.

THE DO-NOTHING CONGRESS

HON. LEE H. HAMILTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 25, 1998

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I insert my Washington Report for Wednesday, March 25, 1998, into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

THE DO-NOTHING CONGRESS

1965, my first year in Congress, was extraordinary in its legislative accomplishments. In that year Congress enacted Medicare, aid to education, and voting rights legislation, just to name a few examples.

1998, my last year in Congress, has been extraordinary so far for the opposite reason. Each week, Congress wants to get out of town as quickly as it can, come back as late as possible and spend a minimal amount of time in session. The legislative schedule for this year calls for Congress to meet for fewer than 90 days—including Mondays and Fridays, when virtually no real business gets done. That's the shortest schedule in history. At this time, Congress has only about 50 serious legislative days remaining before it adjourns in October. The biggest bill enacted so far was the renaming of Washington National Airport in honor of Ronald Reagan.

Congress is doing a bare minimum to get by. Members feel that the less we do here the better. They want to go home more often to remind the public of their accomplishments—most notably, last year's balanced budget agreement—and want to avoid the high-profile errors of the recent past, like the government shutdowns in 1995 and 1996 and the delay in passing a disaster relief bill for flood victims last year.

So far, the "recess strategy" employed by the congressional leadership seems to be working. For the first time in 25 years, a majority of Americans approves of the way Congress is doing its job. Congress, one of the most criticized institutions in America, has rarely gotten above a 40% job approval rating in recent years. Today it's at 56%. The standing joke here is that Congress is never more popular than when it is in recess. There isn't any doubt that the nation's soaring economy and the mellow political mood in the country have contributed to these high ratings, but it's also true that voters are pleased with the balanced budget agreement and this year's anticipated budget surplus, and those two achievements will certainly define this 105th Congress. When people feel better about the performance of government it helps everybody in the government.

OUTLOOK

Much of the remaining time is going to be taken up with measures that simply have to be passed, like the budget and the appropriation bills, and very popular legislation, like the highway bill.

The parties are at loggerheads over a long list of major issues including a minimum wage increase, education initiatives, campaign finance reform, Medicare expansion, tax policy, and the terms of any new funding for the United Nations and the International Monetary Fund (IMF). In addition, some of the legislative possibilities have already been foreclosed. There will not be a campaign finance bill this year, must to my distress. It is unlikely there will be a significant environmental legislation, and it's beginning to look now as if we will not address the long-term problems of financing Social Security and Medicare. Those items will not be taken up until the next Congress, if then. The tobacco legislation is very much in doubt and a great deal of work needs to be done on a code of conduct for the managed care industry and increased support for child care.

All of which is not to say that there aren't any high-stakes battles ahead in the remainder of the legislative year. Education will be one. Members of Congress are very much aware that across the country parents and business leaders want more done to improve the quality of education. Congress has before it competing proposals, including more funding for repairing and modernizing schools, increasing the number of teachers, providing more money directly to states through block grants, tax-free savings accounts, voucher programs, and additional money for teacher education. Some significant education legislation is a real possibility in this Congress.

There is strong interest in taxes. There is talk of a flat tax or a national sales tax or eliminating the current tax code, and, of course, a long list of tax cut proposals. But it is quite clear that Congress will not enact comprehensive tax reform this year.

Expanding health care coverage for those approaching retirement age and regulating HMOs will certainly be seriously considered, as will child care initiatives. There is also a lot of concern in Congress about values. Many bills have been introduced to address this concern, including bills to crack down on drunk driving, to discourage smoking, to ban online gambling, and to restrict access to pornography on the Internet. The values concern is also reflected in debates on re-vamping the bankruptcy laws and even on providing new money for the IMF.

There is, of course, a lot of debate on what to do about a possible federal budget surplus. Some want to return the money to the taxpayers, others want to spend the money on highways and bridges, others want to put the money toward Social Security reform.

CONCLUSION

Members frequently comment that the populist anger that dominated the political environment in the early 1990s is on the wane. We do not construe that as being a newfound, overwhelming respect for Washington, but it does reflect contentment with the status of the economy and a growing feeling that politics is irrelevant to the lives of most people. Public approval of Congress is hardly sky high but it has been consistently higher in 1997 and 1998 than at most times in the previous decades.

One of the positive things about the present mood is that Congress is focusing more on governance rather than simply rhetoric, which marked, for example, much of the early 1995 period. I really do not think the American people are telling us to do nothing. I think they want us to focus on the areas that are very tangible to them: health care, education, child care. What they are telling us is to work together and to avoid producing bad legislation.

This Congress is not going to make any big waves. But Congress can do a lot in a short time when it wants to, and I would expect the pace of activity in Congress to pick up in the next months.
