PRAYER

We are grateful, O God, that You have created us with opportunities to be the people You would have us be. We know that we have been given the choices of life and the paths of service to others, to express our love to family and friends, to do the works of justice. Impress upon us, O gracious God, how our small acts of goodness and kindness, combined in unity with others, can make our communities and our world places of understanding and of peace.
In Your name we pray. Amen.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2488, TAXPAYER REFUND AND RELIEF ACT OF 1999

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 274 and ask for its immediate consideration.

H. Res. 274

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution, it shall be the duty of the committee to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 2488) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce individual income tax rates, to provide marriage penalty relief, to provide estate and gift tax relief, to provide for the consideration of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 274 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The rule provides for 1 hour of general debate, divided equally between the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Finally, the rule provides that clause 5(b) of rule XXI, which requires a three-fifths vote on any amendment or measure containing a Federal income tax increase, shall not apply to the question of adoption of the conference report and to any subsequent conference report or to any motion to dispose of an amendment between the houses on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, the growth in Federal tax revenue has consistently outpaced the growth in income of the American people paying those taxes. For the first time in American history, taxes have reached war era levels during peacetime. Budget projections show taxes at above 20 percent of the gross domestic product for the next 10 years. Last year, and at least for the next few, this ratio exceeds the levels of taxation during 1945, when America was involved in every corner of the world during and after World War II.

In short, the American people are paying too much taxes. The American people have given the Federal Government too much of their money, and we have no idea what to do with it. We committed ourselves to a certain cost of government in the 1997 balanced budget agreement. Since then, the American people have grown the economy so much they have paid too much for the government, and it is time to give it back.

That is exactly what the Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act proposes to do, make change for the American people on their tax bill.

On every other bill we get in the mail, for credit cards, the power bill, the phone bill, if we overpay, the company notes a little CR credit on the bill, crediting that amount for the next month. What would we think if businesses one day decided they could spend that overpayment better than we could, and just added it to their income tax bill. We would think if businesses one day decided they could spend that overpayment better than we could, and just added it to their income statement at the end of the year? Why would we let the Federal Government do this to us?

That is what many of our colleagues in the House and the President are trying to do. J ust a few months ago President Clinton said, we could give it all back to you, and hope you spend it right. But of course, he believes that he knows how to spend our money better than we do, and he would rather let the Federal Government decide how to use our overpayment.

We in the majority believe our constituents have overpaid enough and are burdened every day by oppressive taxes. Let us think about what Americans must pay. First we are taxed on... our income, then we are taxed on our savings and investments. Then we are taxed on our business, and irrationally, if we get married, we get a marriage penalty tax.

If that is not enough, there are death taxes and a military payroll tax after we have died. Our tax relief bill begins to change this pattern. This bill entirely eliminates the death tax, which has prevented thousands of Americans from keeping their family-owned businesses or family farms. It provides a 1 percent reduction in the capital gains tax rate, ensuring that every American who has been overcharged for their government will receive a refund. The bill seeks to expand on the investment that has helped to give us this surplus by cutting capital gains.

The Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act also provides $100 billion in relief from the marriage tax penalty, a tangled web of tax provisions that have punished Americans for marrying for far too long.

H.R. 2488 expands opportunities for families to save for their children's education or their retirement, and it allows the self-employed to deduct the full cost of their health care.

In total, this bill provides $792 billion in well-deserved tax relief for the American people. Tax relief is about freedom, freedom to save, spend, or invest, as we see it. It is about returning dollars and decisions back home to the American people and American families.

With this bill, hard-working Americans will not have to work as long to pay the IRS. That means parents will have more time to spend with their kids or take care of an elderly parent. They will also have the financial freedom to do the things they want to do. I trust the American people to make these decisions for themselves.

Mr. Speaker, we are going to hear a lot today about how we are supposedly slashing funds for education, social security, Medicare, and every other program in the Federal budget. Frankly, though, if Congress wants to reduce revenues to the Federal Treasury, cutting taxes is one of the worst ways to do it, because every responsible tax cut in the past has increased revenue, not reduced it. The tax cuts passed in 1981 doubled the revenues to the Treasury because they doubled the size of the economy.

We are not cutting taxes to reduce the size of government, we are doing it because it is the right thing to do, the honest thing to do, and the best way to manage the people's trust and their hard-earned money.

Let us be clear from the start, we are not talking about debt reduction because the Republican budget, calls for $2.2 trillion in debt reduction over the next 10 years. We are not talking about social security, either, because the Republican Congress, enforced by the lockbox legislation passed this year, protects every dollar of the social security surplus.

What we are talking about here is taxing and spending. This bill cuts taxes by $792 billion over 10 years, and the Clinton budget hikes spending by $937 billion over the same period. It is regrettable that the President has chosen to turn this opportunity to refine America's tax code into a political game, but I feel confident that the American people agree that their money is safer in their pocketbooks than in Washington.

I congratulate the gentleman from Texas (Chairman Archer) and the conferees for their hard work on this historic legislation. I urge my colleagues to support the rule so we may proceed with the general debate and consideration of the merits of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) for yielding me the customary half hour, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I realize that Congress is nearing the end of a session. I realize that people are working very late. But this bill is so convoluted I am surprised my colleagues, my Republican colleagues, can keep a straight face.

They say they want the so-called tax bill to become law, but everyone knows it is dead on arrival at the White House. For that reason, my Republican colleagues do not want to send it over there until after the August break.

But for some reason, Mr. Speaker, this so-called tax bill is being rushed through the House at breakneck pace. It was handed to the Committee on Rules after midnight last night. Now 9 hours later, it is here on the House floor. Meanwhile, my Republican colleagues are not planning on showing it to President Clinton for another month.

If I did not know any better, Mr. Speaker, I would say that my Republican colleagues are embarrassed by this bill. They do not want Members of Congress to know what is in it. They do not want members of the press to know what is in it. They do not want the American people to know what is in it. They do not want the American people to know what is in it. They do not want Members of Congress to know what is in it.

Republicans want to raid the Social Security and Medicare Trust Funds and give a huge tax break back to those fat cats.

Democrats, on the other hand, want to save the surplus. They want to protect Social Security and want to protect Medicare.

Because, Mr. Speaker, while my Republican colleagues say they do not want to hand out enormous tax breaks to the rich Americans, the baby boomers are getting closer and closer to retirement which will cause Social Security and Medicare to buckle starting the year 2015.

My Republican colleagues' so-called tax break for the rich is not even much of a tax break after all. It is more of a hoax.

Any tax breaks people would get under this bill are taken away in 8 or 9 years. That is right, Mr. Speaker, these so-called tax breaks vanish into thin air after 8 or 9 years, and they are back where they started.

For the first few years, it will look like individual income tax are being reduced. Then in the year 2008, suddenly they shoot right back to where they were before. Long-term capital gains will start to go down, and then, in the year 2008, they will suddenly shoot back up.

Even the marriage penalty, listen to this, Mr. Speaker, even the marriage penalty will be back before it is fully repealed. So I do not know what it is going to do to the divorce courts.

Mr. Speaker, if my Republican colleagues are so hell bent on giving tax breaks to the very rich, why do they not go ahead and do it. Why do they not go ahead as their plan would indicate and cut taxes for the very rich while Medicare and Social Security follow path.

The reason is very simple, Mr. Speaker, it costs too much. This all-you-can-eat tax break smorgasbord is unbelieveably expensive. So my Republican colleagues decided to do away with it after the year 2009. That is right, Mr. Speaker. After the year 2009, the tax break buffet is over. Income tax rates shoot back up, debt taxes are reimposed, and the marriage penalty is back where it started.

Mr. Speaker, if any of my colleagues doubt that this bill raises rates in the years 2008 to 2009, I would tell them to look at the rule. This rule, once again, waives the required three-fifths vote for tax increases. This is the same party, Mr. Speaker, that wanted to put this in the Constitution, and here they are again waiving the three-fifths need for the tax increase.

So the tax breaks worth thousands of dollars that my Republican colleagues want to give to the richest taxpayers will fade just as quickly as the hundred dollar tax break nearly everyone else will get.

Mr. Speaker, everybody agrees that hard-working Americans deserve tax relief. Democrats have consistently stood for targeted tax cuts that benefit the middle class. Democrats believe that we should shore up Social Security and Medicare and pay down the national debt while providing targeted tax cuts to the middle class.

The Republican tax breaks for the rich will disappear after 10 years; but at that point, Mr. Speaker, after 10 years, Mr. Speaker, the damage to Social Security and Medicare will already have been done.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to oppose this rule and this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Staten Island, New York (Mr. FOSSELLA).
Mr. FOSSELLA. Mr. Speaker, I thank very much the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) that this is about freedom, this debate. I think what was going on for before us, first the rule, and then the underlyin- der legislation, are two arguments. One that wants to strengthen personal freedom, one that recognizes that government has a responsibility to all of the folks that we represent throughout our great Nation. The other side of the argument is we have a responsibility and also want to take as much of one's money as possible to spend it here in Washington.

First of all, what we are doing. We are protecting and strengthening and preserving Social Security and Medicare. There are those who are going to scare seniors, scare women, scare anybody within earshot if they can do it. I think the American people are wise enough to understand that the Republi- can Congress has set aside the Social Security taxes for Social Security. We are strengthening our national defense. We are funding education. We are protecting our environment. That is what we are doing.

Then the question becomes, what do we do with this projected surplus? Our economy over the next 10 years is projected to grow to about $100 trillion. We are talking about tax relief of less than a trillion, which is less than 1 per- cent of our Nation's economy, to send back to the people who generated it.

So if we are committed to continuing economic growth, if we are committed to preserving personal freedom for the people who are working hard every single day, then the question becomes, do we take that projected surplus and leave it here in Washington like leave- ing candy on a table with little kids around, or do we send it back to the folks who earned it?

The question becomes, again, who benefits? Well, under this bill, every American who pays taxes benefits. If one is a small business owner, 30, 40 years or two or three generations, one has been building up one's small busi- ness and one goes to sell it, and one has Uncle Sam there waiting for his part of the pie, this eliminates the death tax. You have got, I would say, the biggest freebie. They got their Christmas list, and they know it never, never, never will become law. But it would seem to me that now is the time to be bipartisan. Once my col- leagues know this thing is going to be vetoed, at least have a small tax bill that they think that they would be able to work with.

But just listen to this, because I want to listen to the distinguished gen- tleman from California (Mr. DREIER) from the Committee on Rules, late into the night, the Republicans give away as much as they can to the other body to see that they can get 51 votes so that they can at least pass it.

With all of this rush, one would believe that they are rushing the bill to the White House. That is the process: House, Senate, conference. White House, Oh, no. They want the bill to turn slowly in the wind at every Repub- lican fund-raiser around the country and to be able to say, "You see, we even turn chicken manure into electricity. It only costs $500 million. But in our bill, we are the only party to take care of chicken manure for the chicken farmers so that we can get a great charge out of it." I tell my col- leagues this.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL).

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANGEL. Everybody wants a tax cut.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that, as we look at the prospect of some kind of tax increase, God forbid, I am convinced that there is no better expert at putting together a tax increase bill than the gentleman from New York standing in the well. I want him to know that, Mr. Speaker, if we ever, ever, ever on this side were to consider any kind of tax increase, the gentle- man from New York is the first person to whom I would look for direction and advice and counsel on doing just that because he is so expert in it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, the gentle- man from California can tell the people that he works with, those shel- ters that "Rangel is coming for you." Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, they are ready for the gentleman from New York.

Mr. RANGEL. Everybody wants a tax cut.

Mr. DREIER. They are ready for the gentleman from New York.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, everybody wants a tax cut. But some of us believe that we are paying off our debts first.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, that is what we are in the next five years by a six to one ratio.
Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, we cannot pay off our debts, take care of Medicare, take care of Social Security.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I tell the gentleman from New York, keep fighting for those tax increases.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished ranking member for yielding me the time, and want to remind one of the previous speakers, who suggested that, I suppose he means Democrats who are working for wages, could buy a couple of shares of Kodak. That would cost them about $160 a month out of their paycheck. Or Coca-Cola, I guess he said. Now, the tax bill is going to give this worker $136 a year. The worker already is not able to pay his or her long-term care insurance, pay the house mortgage and get the kids to college. So I suggest that it is very disingenious to gratuitously say to that worker, go ahead and save $160 a month, and then $136 a year. As a matter of fact, this bill was really designed to help Dr. Kevorkian and the undertakers. Several of my colleagues have already heard from their adult children wondering how we intend to commit suicide so we can escape the inheritance tax.

Everybody has been bleeding on the Republican side for these poor multi-millionaires who are going to have to pay an inheritance tax. Talk about term limits. They have said to the owners of small businesses and the owners of family farms, "Die baby. Die in the next 10 years, and you can give the farm away to your kids tax free." But if you live, it goes right back up, and we sock you for a big inheritance tax. But if you live, it goes right back up, and we sock you for a big inheritance tax.

They change the rules to make funny speeches. We announced here sometime ago about a 60 percent rule, screaming that only the irresponsible people in this House would vote to raise taxes and they needed a supermajority. Well, with this bill they are going to raise taxes, and they have had to waive their own rules.

One of the more serious issues is that they have really decided to turn their back on Medicare, and they are going to let Medicare destroy. They voted in committee against the biggest their own bills.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN).

Mr. LEVIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, one word three times, reckless, reckless, reckless. That is what the Republicans are doing. Fiscal discipline guards our prosperity here, and they are turning their backs on it.

The choice this year is clear. As Chairman Greenspan said, let the surpluses run, pay down the debt, or let the deficits grow again. The Republicans are back at it, letting the deficits grow again. And even if the budget assumptions are correct, and those assumptions are wrong, there would be no money left to strengthen Social Security and Medicare. The chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means has a Social Security plan that would use the same trillion dollars that he is using for the tax cut.

Look, the choice in 8 or 9 or 10 years would be this. Continue the tax cuts that are in this bill and explode the deficit or let the tax cuts expire and we have that increase in the budget increase in history, $175 billion a year, if we let this bill be sunsest.

The Republicans like to talk about the biggest American tax increase in history in 1993, $275 billion over 5 years. This would be under their plan, if there is a sunset, a $175 billion tax increase in a year.

Lastly, this bill is grossly unfair. If the Republicans shed any tears here, they are crocodile tears for middle and low-income families that pay the taxes. Deloitte & Touche says: A couple with an annual income of $50,000 with 2 children would get a tax cut of $265; a couple with $200,000 would get a tax cut of $2,720; and, look, the millionaire would receive a tax cut of $9,881 compared to the family of $50,000, $265.

It is not only excessive it is grossly unfair. Let us turn it down.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to respond to that silliness. The top 1 percent of all the income earners in this country earn 17 percent of all the income and pay 32 percent all the taxes. The bottom 50 percent of the income earners pay 4.8 percent of all the taxes.

We now have 40 million American families that pay no income taxes, and that is who the Democrats want to help. They want to turn this into welfare. If we are going to cut taxes because we have overtaxed in this country, the people who pay taxes are going to get the tax relief. The top 10 percent of the income earners in this country earn 42 percent of all the income and pay 63 percent of all the taxes. If we are going to cut taxes, taxpayers. If they can do it without hurting the economy by taking too much into Washington, the people who pay taxes are going to get the tax relief.

That is what the Democrats cannot stand, because they want this money to stay in Washington so they can dole it out to folks who do not pay taxes.

My biggest fear, my biggest fear is that one day they will be back in charge of this House and pass their tax relief that will take 60 percent of America off the tax roles entirely, and we will have a huge bias in favor of more government, more spending and, ultimately, more taxes because most of America is not paying taxes.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE).

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I stood in the back of the chamber here listening to the debate, and it is somewhat perplexing. I am trying to figure out what it is the gentlemen and the gentlewomen on the other side object to. Is it the reduction in the rates on ordinary income? Is it the provision for the deductibility of health insurance? Is it the credits given for adoptions for special needs children? Are they objecting to these things? Is it the provision allowing for increased savings for the education of our children and grandchildren? Is it the marriage tax penalty relief that the Democrats object to? Is it the private savings that is so greatly encouraged by the revisions to the IRA and other retirement programs? Is it the fact that the President wants to save 62 percent of the Social Security revenue, and want to save it for 10 years.

Exactly what is it the other side objects to? Here it is, in fact, an objective of the other side to defeat this bill, then they should vote against it. They should just tell the people of America why we need these things. I encourage my colleagues to do so.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT).

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I will tell my colleague exactly what we object to. We object to funding tax breaks for special interests by jeopardizing Social Security and Medicare. That is what this bill is all about.

Call it the Financial Freedom Act. Well, it provides a little more freedom for some folks than for others. In the words of Dr. King, some people are "free, free, God Almighty, free at last." And at the top of the list are the chicken manure producers in this country. Down in Texas we have Whataburger. Well, "What a chicken" this is. They have given new meaning to "chicken deluxe," to "chicken special" in this bill by giving hundreds of millions of dollars of tax subsidies for chicken manure producers in this country.

And who do my colleagues think pays for that? I think it is best summed up in this cartoon of a painting that hangs here in Washington. It is entitled "Plucked Clean." And that is exactly what happens to Social Security and Medicare. They get plucked clean. Social Security and Medicare do not enjoy the benefits of the chicken manure producers. They get plucked clean.
the money that hard working men and women across this country are expected to pay into the Social Security System. It is their money; it is there for Social Security. In this bill, Republicans do not add one additional dollar for Social Security. And we know the money, that $2 trillion, is not by itself enough to fund Social Security forever. Likewise, with reference to Medicare, Republicans do not add an additional dollar for Medicare. They are not funding the long-term solvency of Medicare or combating the much-needed prescription drugs.

Why is it that every time that there is some tax cut, it goes to the special interests? And if my colleagues need further verification of the fact that Social Security and Medicare are being plucked clean in order to provide tax breaks for the special interests, examine the phony “trigger” mechanism in this bill. It will supposedly cut off, in certain circumstances, some of the future spending allowed by this bill. But the “trigger” does not apply to the chicken manure producers; it only applies to the section of the bill addressing tax cuts for individuals. Special interests get the special treatment; individuals get left out.

This is wrong. Do not pluck Social Security and Medicare clean to help the chicken manure producers and most every other special interest which has a lobbyist and a political action committee.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume to respond to a couple of things.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that what we are proposing to send back to the American people, $792 billion, the President’s budget proposes to spend, not on chickens and not on manure and not on Medicare but on some 80 new Federal programs.

The question is do we give it back to the American people or does Washington spend it with new bureaucracies?

Having said that, I would also like to finish Mr. Greenspan’s quote. He has been quoted here as saying that his first priority would be to let the surpluses run. He then went on to say this: “As I have said before, my second priority is, if you find that as a consequence of those surpluses they tend to be spent, then I would be more in the camp of cutting taxes, because the least defensible is taxing those surpluses for expending outlays.”

Read the President’s budget. He wants to spend that money.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON).

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in strong support of this rule and the underlying bill providing tax relief for working Americans.

For years, I, as a private citizen, saw the politicians in Washington not only spending all of the money that comes in, in terms of the Federal withholding, but as well spending the Social Security surplus, and additionally then spending even more than that. And as we all know, we ran huge deficits.

All the years that I was working in my medical practice in Florida, I kept seeing the reporting coming back from Washington, $100 billion, $200 billion, $300 billion of red ink. Now, I have been in this Congress for 5 years, and I have been very proud, very proud, to be part of turning things around. We have been able to successfully stop the business of spending outlays that comes in every year and have been able to produce balanced books for the first time in 25 years.

And then we were finally able this year to do something that I have been asking for and fighting for since the day I arrived, which is to set the Social Security funds aside and to not spend those monies as has been done year after year. Unfortunately, our Social Security lockbox is still being played dice with, not by the other body, but, hopefully, we will ultimately get that enacted into law.

And, yes, we are beginning the process today of taking some of the money and saying, no, we do not want to keep this in this city. Let us return it to working Americans. Because, after all, it is their money.

And what are some of the things we have in this bill? Well, tuition tax credits, so that it will be easier for parents to send their kids to college. We have adoption tax credits for special needs kids. In my State in Florida and every State of this country, there are kids with special needs sitting in the social systems waiting to be adopted.

We also have a provision in this bill that would make it possible for people to deduct the cost of having their elderly parents living in the home rather than sending them to nursing homes. And, yes, we have capital gains relief.

I happen to believe that is the best thing to help perpetuate this robust economy and creating new jobs. Because when we cut capital gains, it is the best thing to cause people to invest money in the economy.

And, yes, we have a reduction or an elimination of the death tax or the inheritance tax. In my district, it is causing the break-up of family farms, of large groves, of cattle ranches. These things are being sold off for development or being sold off for agribusiness. And by doing this, we can allow it to stay in the family.

This is a good tax bill, and everybody should be supporting it.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) from the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to ask any of my Republican colleagues if they know how much they are really helping poor Americans? It is only the Republicans who can take a bill full of chicken manure and turn it into a turkey. As soon as the public finds out how to do that, we will solve the homeless-and-the-hungry problem.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule.

In 1998 when I ran for Congress, I promised the people of the 12th Congressional District that I would come to Washington to fight to save Social Security and Medicare, fight for the Patients’ Bill of Rights, fight to improve educational opportunity, and fight to continue debt reduction.

This is my first opportunity to debate a tax conference report. I would not fulfill my commitment to the people of my district if I did not stand in fervent opposition to this report.

My father, a sky captain for United Airlines for 40 years, always said, “Stephanie, never count your chickens before they hatch.”

This conference report does just that. It spends a surplus we do not even have. Domestic priorities are crushed. The seniors in my district want to have a prescription provision in Medicare, not a tax cut. The children in my district want to and deserve to go to schools where the roofs are not leaking, the classrooms are smaller, where they can be linked to the Internet and prepare for the new millennium. They do not want a tax cut.

The working men and women in my district want assurance of health care coverage, not a tax cut. They want an increase in minimum wage that will be fueled by economy that continues to grow wherein there is no tax cut. Veterans in my district want greater assistance, not a tax cut.

The proponents of this bill suggest that this tax cut will put money in the pockets of American people. Working men and women will get no money in their pockets. They are not telling the people that. They are only telling the people that someone will get a tax cut, but they are not telling whom. What they are not telling the people is that the money will come at the expense of Social Security, Medicare, educational opportunities, health care, and that the 10 cents that is put in their pockets, they can go buy the health care, will never buy educational opportunities, will never give them a tuition credit.

I urge my colleagues in this House to vote against this rule, to vote against this irresponsible tax cut, and to vote to protect the people of America.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume to respond to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) who could not have made my case more clearly.

I want to remind my colleagues that we spend money. The Democrats want to spend it on more government. We want to give it back to the American people. In their entire presentation, she had 10 or 15 new spending programs that she wants it used on. We want to give it to the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mrs. Myrick) my colleague on the Committee on Rules.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this rule and also the tax relief bill because I am excited about the fact that we are doing something responsible to help the American people.

This bill is something that people have been waiting for for a long time, to be able to keep more of their money in their own pockets. And it really is possible to do that today through the surpluses that we are going to be looking at. Over the next 10 years, it is projected there will be $3.3 trillion in surpluses.

Now, we are not going out on a limb and saying we are going to spend all of that this year. This is a very responsible bill. It is going to be phased in over a period of time. As the money becomes available, then it will be given back to the people.

But the most important thing we need to remember is 75 cents out of every dollar in this surplus that we are going to be using, this $3.3 trillion, is going to be going back into saving Social Security and preserving Medicare and improving education and our national defense. Only 25 cents of every dollar is going to be given back to the American people.

Now this 25 cents is income tax surplus they are going to be paying, money that is more than we need to run the government. So why should it stay here in Washington and be spent? Why should it not go back to the people? They deserve to have that money to use.

This tax bill is going to provide some marriage penalty relief in the form of people who are married to be able to deduct twice as much money as the individual is so they can be treated fairly and we do not penalize marriage anymore.

We are going to be putting money into extending the research and development tax credits. That also spurs the economy and it helps middle-class Americans. It is not the rich that it helps. It helps all of us when we sell our homes and to be able to save some of that money.

It provides capital for our businesses in the economy. It develops new technologies. It is going to be the Ronald Reagan tax relief bill, the one that the Republicans control this House, they control the Senate, and no money can be drawn except through the appropriations process, which they also control?

I would think they should have more confidence in their party and know that they could use the money well here.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Tierney).

Mr. TIERNEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the soon-to-be chairman of the Committee on Rules for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I recommend a “no” vote on this rule and, obviously, object to the entire Republican risky bill. It is risky because the Republicans who are putting forth this program are endangering our families, our businesses, and our seniors.

This scenario that they are going to have $3 trillion in 10 years is by no means assured by anyone. Two-thirds of that is entirely Social Security monies that should go to protect Social Security.

Nothing in the Republican plan extends Social Security for even one day. Nothing in their plan even addresses Medicare’s needs, in particular, prescription drug needs.

The only way they would get the other third to be able to put for any tax breaks at all is if they design to cut education, cut veterans’ needs, cut research and development, cut a myriad of other programs that Americans depend on every day. That is the only way they get the kind of surplus they are talking about. And already they have shown that they have no intention of doing that.

It is going to be the Ronald Reagan plan again, borrow and spend, borrow and spend until we have trillions of dollars to owe, pay off. And after they have put all of this at risk, who are they putting it at risk for? The wealthy.

One of the gentlemen from the other side said that we object to certain tax breaks and listed off things that he did not find objectionable if they are put in at the right time and if they are in fact the tax breaks that people are getting.

The single biggest manifestation of corporate welfare, including by now the well-known chicken manure credit, but also breaks for three-martini lunches.

As the Washington Post said, the details of this tax ban highlight the Republican predilection for constant breaks for multinational corporations, real estate ventures, and other special interests.

They spend nearly a tenth of their break-to-favorite corporate America. $24 billion over 10 years would benefit multinational corporations. It is a break for foreign oil and gas income that would cost the Treasury more than $4 billion.

This is in fact a plan, as the President recently said, that is risky and plainly wrong. Even Mr. Greenspan says that this is not appropriate in timing and in substance on this particular deal. They are going to raise interest rates over the roof. The American businesses and families, then, they pay their mortgages, are going to suffer.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kasich), the chairman of the Committee on the Budget, reversed the President’s 1993 budget to bring us the surpluses.

If we will recall, by 2001 and 2002, the President’s 1993 budget agreement predicted a $300 billion and $400 billion annual deficit. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kasich) has turned that around.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kasich).

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Speaker, I think we should not miss the big picture in this debate. The debate in America today is about where power ought to be. Should power lie with the government and big institutions in this society; or, conversely, should we attempt to strengthen the individual in America, the family in America, and the community in America.

That is the debate here today. The single biggest manifestation of empowering individuals and families in America is to give them a tax cut. Well, we ought to also give them school choice and individual retirement accounts, the opportunity to have more control of health care.

But fundamentally, the single greatest manifestation of the transfer of power and the building of the individual is when the individual has more money in their pocket and that individual could then share it with those in their communities or with their family members.

The fact is the next model is not about running America from the top down with big bureaucracies, whether... it is big government or big business or big labor or big media, trying to tell us how to live our lives.

The model that I believe we ought to operate with into the 21st century is the fact that power should flow from our families and communities and from the individuals who make up those families. They ought to be strengthened in America. Because once they are strengthened, then they must assume responsibility.

But in America today, we are all worried about Littleton, we are all worried about being islands unto ourselves, we are all worried about the fact that we tend to have to go it alone today in America.

We must break that model. We have got to recover what has made this country so great, and that is a virtue system that says to individual Americans that they have a responsibility not just to themselves and not just to their families but to people who live in their neighborhoods. Because we are all connected.

The reason why we must transfer power to people is because with that power and with that freedom comes a set of responsibilities. The fact is that if they can have more money in their pockets as a family, then they can assume more responsibility for those around them.

Maybe we can begin to end the frustration and the cynicism that so many Americans have today. Because the choice in the 21st century is really are we going to eat the last piece of pizza or are we going to look out for those who live near us and around us and those who are in our families.

My colleagues, do not mix the issue here. Power is a zero-sum gain. If government has more, the individual has less. If government has more, the individual will be frustrated, more cynical, more road-blocked.

What we need to do is to set Americans free, more freedom, more power, more responsibility to connect ourselves again to one another, to connect our hearts and our souls together so we can shine up America and restore its vigor.

Support the tax bill.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, just had the opportunity to visit with a number of seniors who are visiting the United States Congress today. I came back to the floor because I thought this was an important debate on their behalf. And even as I listened to my good friend who chaired the Committee in the 21st century is really about how much power and its distribution, I was disappointed that he did not give us the facts about a tax bill that I plan to enthusiastically oppose.

The corporate welfare in this package is enormous. The power is being transferred from the people who work for a living to the large corporations who take their money for a living.

One lobbyist was quoted as stating, "We got the sun, the moon and the stars in this tax bill." Another lobbyist was quoted as saying, "We've been trying to get these cuts since the beginning of dawn."

It made me reflect upon who really is in charge in this country. If I have to cast my lot anywhere in the United States, it will be with the working people, the senior citizens who understood what the Depression was all about, understood what making ends meet is all about, and they realize that when this tax bill is passed, the mortgage rates on their children will go up $100, the interest rates will go up $100, the ability to secure a loan, to do things like send their children to school and college and remodel their home will be enormous.

They understand in 1981 when the Reagan tax cut came in, there was no financial crisis.

In Houston, Texas collapsed, bankruptcies were at their highest amount, homes were foreclosed on. (Ms. JACKSON-LEE asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

I beg my colleagues on the Republican side, stand with the working men and women, stand with the seniors who understand, the people who want to educate their children, good health care, good environment. This is not taking your money. This is bringing down the deficit. This is bringing down the debt. This is what Chairman Greenspan said. Let the surplus increase so that when you move into the 21st century, you will be able to have a quality of life. Save Social Security and Medicare. Let me tell my colleagues where the power is. It is not with the working people of America. It is with the power-hungry people of America, and I am going to vote against this tax bill.

Mr. MOAKLEY. At the risk of sounding remedial, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out to the gentlewoman from Texas that there were more bankruptcies last year than any other year in history.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire as to the remaining time for my friend from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) and myself?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROEMER). The gentleman from Massachusetts has 9 1/4 minutes and the gentleman from Indiana has 5 minutes.

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. ROEMER).

(Mr. ROEMER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, Thomas Jefferson explained to his Treasury Secretary, and I quote, "I consider the fortunes of our republic as depending in an eminent degree on the extinguishment of the public debt." He later explained to that same Secretary of the Treasury that retiring the national debt would be his highest priority.

The Democratic proposal puts more money into debt reduction and debt relief than the Republicans do. Why is that important for us? They have a $1 trillion tax cut, we have a targeted $250 billion tax cut, but we put more emphasis on Social Security and debt relief. Why? Because if you are a small farmer in Indiana and you are trying to buy a $150,000 combine, that debt reduction can save you $10,000, for all farmers, not just for the wealthy. We say they are all working people who are trying to buy and update the technology and capital equipment. That debt reduction that we put more money into helps them with tens of thousands of dollars in reductions for million-dollar capital equipment. We have targeted estate tax relief in our New Democrat proposal, targeted at small businesses and small farmers and American families that have someone sick with Alzheimer's or Parkinson's disease.

This is not a question of whether Democrats support tax cuts or not. We do. But we pay for them. According to one economic analysis, some 50 percent of the tax cuts would benefit the Republican plan, those earning $300,000 or more. How many of you watching today are in that category in America? We have two choices: A Republican plan on prayed-for projections that answers the plans of the wealthy and the prayers of the wealthy. We have a Democratic plan that gives a tax cut and debt relief to every single American. The choice is easy.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, again at the risk of sounding remedial, I would like to point out that our budget reduces the debt $200 billion more than the Clinton-Gore budget.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I support tax cuts that also support fiscal responsibility. This bill only does the former. We will hear and have heard ad nauseam from the opposition about how this bill protects Social Security and reduces the debt. I guess if you say something often enough, you figure you will make it true, the facts be damned.

This bill cuts taxes by nearly $1 trillion, period. It does not do anything to protect Social Security. And it does not do anything to debt reduction. All it is is a $1 trillion tax cut over 10 years.

Let us look at those numbers that they use to assume they are going to cover all of these promises that they have made. We hear of a $3 trillion surplus over 10 years. Right off the top, $2 trillion of that is in the Social Security surplus. Then we hear that the folks on the majority side are kindly sending Social Security surplus, $2 trillion for Social Security. They do not have to. It is already there. It is in the Social Security trust fund. Furthermore, that $2 trillion regrettably does not do anything.
to help us with the coming shortfalls in Social Security. That is the current system. That is not doing anything for Social Security. That is just covering the existing debts. It does not do anything to help with the coming problem. So the Republicans have taken care of that yet, and it is important that we do that.

Finally, we apply 50 percent of the on-budget surplus to debt reduction. After 29 years of running up $5.5 trillion in national debt, do you not think that we could at least wait 1 year until we have a true on-budget surplus? Apparently the Republicans do not think so. Democrats are voting to lock-box 25 percent for tax cuts, lock-box 25 percent to save Social Security and Medicare, and let us lock-box 50 percent of the on-budget surplus to reduce the national debt so we will not be passing on our children and grandchildren. That is what makes sense for American families. That is what makes sense for America.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman will be as enthusiastic in the other body about the lockboxes as he is in this Chamber.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding me this time.

In looking at the figures that the previous speaker had just put, holding 25 percent of the surplus out to save Social Security, 25 percent for Medicare, as chairman of the Subcommittee on Social Security, that interests me greatly because I want to know where the Democrat plan is. I want to know where that 25 percent figure came from. I think that could be very, very interesting.

But there is another thing that I want to know for those who have spoken before and those to come later. Is it that you do not like about eliminating the limitation on the deduction for the interest on student loans? What is it that you do not like about eliminating and phasing out the death tax where you have to take the undertaking of Social Revenue Service on the same day? What is it you do not like about an across-the-board tax deduction for all American taxpayers? What is it you do not like about reducing the cap on capital gains? What is it about the marriage penalty that you like that you want to hold on to? Why not eliminate it? Why not join with the Republicans? What is it you do not like about deducting health insurance costs? What is it you do not like about increasing the amount you can put into educational savings accounts? Last of all, what is it you do not like about getting a deduction for taking care of your elderly parents?

This bill has been drafted very, very carefully. This bill is a wonderful bill. This bill just uses a small portion of the surplus and leaves plenty, believe me, plenty. By the passage of the Archer-Shaw Social Security plan, members will see that we are going to save Social Security and they will also see that we are going to get many Democrats that are going to join with us. This is the plan that we have and we are going to do it. We are also going to reduce the accumulated debt that is going to pester our descendants so much unless we do something about it. Let us get together. Let us in a bipartisan way do these things that the American people want.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER).

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise to oppose this rule and pass this very fair and very good tax plan.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

They have deliberately left not a single dollar to extend the life of Medicare, which provides healthcare for all of our senior citizens and our disabled citizens, so in the year 2014, Medicare is going to be bankrupt too.

This plan is not just risky, it is reckless. This bill should be rejected.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
We must do everything that we can to provide opportunity for people to succeed, and we also in this country have an opportunity that some people are not realizing that successful. But I find that virtually everyone wants to have the opportunity to succeed, and that is what this tax bill is all about. We want to make sure that we maintain the kind of economic growth and expansion which this Nation has seen for the past several years.

We have today the highest tax rate in 50 years. The American people are paying more in taxes than they have in 50 years. We have been able to see the great benefits of surpluses that have been running, and what we are saying is that to maintain economic growth, we think it is important for people to be able to keep some of their own hard-earned dollars.

Guess what? That, in fact, is what we are going to do, and I hope very much that the President of the United States sees the way, as he has on the Y2K bill, welfare reform, on the National Ballistic Missile Defense bill, on the Education Flexibility Act, to come around to what is the right position, and that is to sign the bill.

I know that there are public opinion polls out there that are saying, gosh, we do not overwhelmingly, as the American people, support a tax cut. But we are proceeding with it. Why? It may not right now be the single most popular thing, but we know it is the right thing to do. That is why we are stepping up to the plate and doing just that. As we look at the fact that 100 million-plus Americans are investing in the market, they are people who are often called “rich” by our friends on the other side of the aisle, but they consist of people who have maybe a few thousand dollars they are investing. What is it we are doing? We are going to allow them to keep more of that so they can choose to save or invest it by reducing that top rate on capital gains from 20 percent to 18 percent, and the very important provision in 203 which allows us to see indexation of capital gains.

Then, extending for 5 years the research and development tax credit, that is very, very important. Forty-five percent of our Nation’s gross domestic product growth in the past 4 years has come in the high-tech industry. Not only have hundreds of thousands of jobs been created by those investors, by new technologies, but we have also dramatically improved the quality of life for people here in this United States and around the world. We must do everything that we can to continue that.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this rule and to support a very, very good bill, and then, Mr. President, please sign it.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken, and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 224, nays 203, not voting 7, as follows:

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 274, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 2488) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to sections 105 and 211 of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk reads the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KOLBE). Pursuant to House Resolution 274, the conference report is considered as having been read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of Representatives, August 4, 1999, at page H7027.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER).

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous matter on the conference report on H.R. 2488.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report keeps our commitment to protect the taxpayers and not the tax takers. This Congress has already secured social security, Medicare, paying down the debt. Now we are ready to provide real tax relief.

Mr. Speaker, the American workers have known for a long time that they are caught in a tax trap. The harder they work, the longer they work, the more they pay; and that is not right.

It is their hard work and success that has provided the resources to give Washington a windfall surplus. That is an amount over and above what the government needs to operate. The amount is projected in the next 10 years to be $3.3 trillion.

The question is, Mr. Speaker, what do we do with that surplus? Republicans said strengthening Social Security and Medicare should happen first. We have already done that with the lockbox that every penny that goes into Social Security and Medicare cannot be spent on any other government programs. We have set aside 100 percent of the Social Security and Medicare surplus to be used only for Social Security and Medicare.

The Archer-Shaw Social Security plan available and publicized in detail has been certified by the Social Security Administration to save Social Security for all time at a cost of only half of that set-aside surplus. So there is plenty of money still there for Medicare.

Out of the surplus, surely we should be able to leave in the pockets of the average people. Some have proposed it, one-quarter of the surplus. Twenty-five cents out of every dollar should be left in their pockets. In the meantime, we are paying down the Federal debt.

As has been mentioned earlier, the Congress and the Budget Office, non-partisan body has said that the Republican budget pays off $200 billion more of the debt than the President's budget. The Democrats' statements that have been made over and over again are just flat wrong, and they know it. But it serves their political purposes to continue to state it over and over again because it employs fear. They know fear is a very, very powerful motivation with many Americans.

They have put every hurdle in the way of tax relief ever since we came into the majority in 1995. They reviled in their largest tax increase in the history of the United States which they passed on a straight party-line vote in 1993. They fight ferociously to keep money in Washington.

It expresses, I believe, Mr. Speaker, the genuine difference between our parties, generally held, that the Democrats believe Washington knows how to spend the people's money better than the people.

The President said this in Buffalo, New York, the day after his State of the Union Address when he said, "We have a surplus. What should we do with it? We might be able to give some of it back to you, but then who would know that you would spend it right." So the Democrats say keep it in Washington, and we will spend it. We know better than the people who have earned it. We disagree. We do not think it is Washington's money. We believe it belongs to the people who earned it.

After we have done all of these things, of saving Social Security, Medicare, paying down the debt, yes, we can use a part of the non-Social Security surplus for tax relief. If we do not get that money out of Washington, politicians will most surely spend it. They always have.

So I ask the President and my Democratic colleagues to reconsider their stance and do something to bring relief to hard-pressed American families and individuals. Do not mock broad-based tax relief to every income taxpayer in this country, I say to my Democratic colleagues.

Do not discourage marriage by blocking marriage penalty relief. Let us help people caring for elderly relatives at home. Do not stop that. Do not block health and long-term care insurance tax deductibility. Do not stand in the way of pension incentives that will help more Americans enjoy retirement security. Do not block education incentives to make college more affordable and to give parents the ability to save for their children's education beginning in kindergarten through high school and college.

Now, many Democrats say they are for tax relief. In fact, some of them have cosponsored bills to end the marriage penalty relief to hard-pressed American families and Democrats say keep it in Washington, and it is going to be vetoed, and except if they know that, after they finish all this work, they are not going to take it to the President.

Why would they not put this bill on the President's desk until after Labor Day? And it is a piece of campaign literature. It is a lobbyist's wish list. It is Christmas in July, and the President is supposed to be the scrooge and veto it and deny the Republican contributors the things that they wanted to give them. Give us a break. If my colleagues really wanted a tax bill, they would have found at least one Democrat in the House they could have trusted, one Democrat in the Senate that they could have trusted. They have brought in the administration for a trillion dollars.

It is not a Republican thing; it is something that we should work with in a bipartisan way. So I am suggesting that the Republicans have taken one big political crapsheet in what they have done, and it is my belief that they are going to pay for this with their campaign bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Goodling), chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, improving retirement security is one of the top priorities that Congress has this year. I just improved retirement security by fixing Social Security will not do it.

In this legislation, fortunately, we have 15 provisions from H.R. 1102, which is the Comprehensive Retirement Security and Pension Reform Act that was reported out of our committee in a bipartisan fashion. These reforms will directly improve the retirement security of millions of American workers, particularly low and middle-income American workers.

So I am very pleased that the 60 Republicans and 60 Democrats that co-signed this legislation for pension reform finds that it is part of this very important piece of legislation that we are going to enact today. I would hope that the President looks thoroughly at the entire bill and understands that there is an awful lot here that will help families in the future to save and to have a decent retirement in their golden years.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Cardin), a member of the committee.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the ranking member for yielding me this time.

Quite frankly, Mr. Speaker, if one looks at this conference report and one supports it, one is going back to the days of large deficits for our country. That is why the Democrats want an economic program that will continue our economic prosperity into the future.

We think, and I think the American public will agree, that the approval of this conference report is reckless, and it is an unreasonable risk for our future.

Let me explain why. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Archer), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, explains that we are projecting a $3 trillion, projecting a $3 trillion surplus over the next 10 years. Now two-thirds of that, approximately $2 trillion is generated because of Social Security. Now we have all agreed we should not touch that money. We cannot use that to protect it for Social Security, and I agree.

But that gives us a $1 trillion surplus to work with. We have not gotten one dime of it yet. Yet this conference report would spend just about all of that projected surplus. One dime would be available for Medicare. No money would be available for the programs that already are being spent by calling them emergency spending.

That is why we believe this is reckless and wrong. We think priorities should be set. The surplus should first be used to preserve Social Security and Medicare. Then we should pay down the debt.

The conference report is estimated to provide the average family in this Nation 10 years from now when it is fully implemented a little over $200 a year in tax relief. But, yet, what the proponents are not telling us, is that because of the recklessness of the bill, in fact, instead of being likely to go up, we are going to take away more in increased interest costs to the average taxpayer.

I urge my colleagues to reject the conference report.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Thomas), chairman of the Subcommittee on Health of the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. Thomas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and include extraneous material.)

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I do find it rather curious that this line of argument now comes from the Democrats. In fact, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Cardin), who spoke for the 1997 tax bill, which clearly we were in a much more serious budget situation.

I think perhaps the situational ethics, that the politics of the situation dictates their rhetoric, their concern about our trying to put a budget together for 10 years and how reckless that is.

Let me go back to January 19 when the President was in this Chamber and said, "Now we are on course for budget surpluses for the next 25 years." No concern from them about looking a decade and a half before we are.

The President went on to say that he is going to dedicate 60 percent of the budget surplus for the next 15 years to Social Security. How reckless is that? We do not know what the next 15 years is going to look like. Republicans put 100 percent away.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Neal).

(Mr. Neal of Massachusetts asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NEAL. Mr. Speaker, there are so many reasons to oppose this tax bill it is hard to know where to start.

I have spoken on the floor about the need to save the surplus for Social Security and Medicare. I have spoken about their importance as the premier government programs that keep millions of elderly Americans out of poverty. I have discussed the importance of deficit reduction and the need to maintain on-budget surpluses in the face of unrealistic budget assumptions.

Every day that goes by, it is more and more clear just how unrealistic these budget assumptions currently are. If we hold this bill until September, it will be as clear as a pie in the face.

The Washington Post this morning has a long article about how Republican leaders Alpha-spent the on-budget surplus for next year. If we cannot maintain discipline for 1 year, how on earth will we guarantee that surplus for the next 10 years. We cannot.

The Democratic approach here is entirely different. We want to go slow.

Let us not repeat the errors of the last 18 years and pass a massive tax bill. Let us be for modest, reasonable tax cuts that become clear when the budget surplus really arrives.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Boehner), another member of the conference committee.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I stand in support of this historic tax cut, one that will protect Social Security and Medicare and still put some $800 billion back in the pockets of the American people.

Mr. Speaker, while others dwell on the past, Americans look to the future. We strive, we dream, and we sacrifice.

Today, the question is should we return the $800 billion back in the pockets of the working Americans over Washington excesses, and a lot of them are going to sound the same. Mine will be different in one minor respect. I am not going to attack the other side of the aisle. I am just going to ask what I think is a very salient question. Do we not learn our history?

In the 1980s, the leaders of this country, in a bipartisan fashion, decided to attack the national budget deficits, and a Republican president proposed and this Democratic House of Representatives adopted a plan which called for a massive tax cut. It was bipartisan. So if there is any blame to go around, there is plenty for everyone.

But I hearken back to the words of President Harry Truman again. Let us look at the record. What happened when what is alleged to be the largest budget deficits in the history of the United States of America. In the ensuing 12 years we quadrupled the national debt.

All of the debt accumulated in this country from George Washington to Jimmy Carter was quadrupled in a period of 12 years.

So I do not attack the other side today. I just make a very simple plea. Let us not make the same mistake. Let us not do it all over again. Let us pay down the national debt and stop stealing our children’s money.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Herger), a respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to respond to my good friend from New York, his comment on the 1980s, during the Reagan administration, regarding the tax cut. I would like to state the facts of that time. During that time, the tax rates were cut in half and revenues during the 1980s actually doubled. But the then Democrat Congress tripled the spending, so we ended up spending more.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act. The time has come to allow hard-working Americans to keep more of their money. Mr. Speaker, our plan sets aside three-fourths of the anticipated surplus, 75% out of every dollar for Social Security and Medicare.

Now we must take the next step. The legislation before us today provides all taxpayers with broad-based tax relief by reducing tax rates for all income taxpayers, allows parents to save more for educational expenses, and phases out both the destructive marriage penalty and death tax.

Mr. Speaker, let us side with hard-working Americans over Washington bureaucracy. I urge all my colleagues to support the Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Levin), a member of the committee.

Mr. LEVIN. It is true. The lockbox scheme is what is already coming in. It does nothing for the future.

What the Republican bill does is take money from the future to apply it now. Medicare is in jeopardy. It will run out of money in 2015.

The Republicans say give back some of the money. We Democrats are in lower interest rates. The Democratic program is also trying to save some money to assure Social Security and Medicare.

The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Archer) said his bill is a breath of relief. What it is in the future is a hurricane of red ink. The Republicans were wrong in 1981, they were wrong in 1993, and they are wrong today. Reject this reckless bill.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Camp), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I think the challenge here today is to listen and not to mischaracterize. We are talking about tax relief after we have set aside $2 trillion of our budget surplus for Social Security and Medicare. Locked it away. And by doing so, we begin to pay down our national debt.

Today, the question is should we return what is left to the taxpayer or should it stay here and be spent on big government? This bill is tax relief for the American family. Close to 90 percent of the tax relief in this bill goes to families. The average American family pays double in taxes today what they paid in 1985, and that is just too much.

Let me give my colleagues a few examples of how this bill helps families.

This bill cuts taxes for every taxpayer. It provides tax relief from the marriage penalty, so couples do not have to pay higher taxes just because they are married. And we kill the death tax. We also increase the adoption credit for parents.
with special needs children. We give an extra personal exemption to families caring for an elderly relative in their home. And people can provide more for their retirements in this legislation by saving more in their IRAs and paying less in investment taxes.

This legislation will help American families. Vote for the Tax Refund and Relief Act.

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. TANNER), a member of the committee.

Mr. TANNER. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and simply say this. I think the American people are ahead of the Congress on this. I think they know instinctively that we cannot have debt reduction, save Social Security, save Medicare, take 80 percent of a projection over the next 10 years and cut taxes today. It is called a free lunch, a bridge in Brooklyn, or any way we want to frame it. The American people know we cannot do all that and they are ahead of us on that.

The comment was made earlier in the debate about this, that if we keep the money, any of it, the bureaucrats will spend it. The last time I looked, a bureaucrat cannot spend any money unless we have 218 votes on that board. All my colleagues can well remember the government shutdown. Nobody here can spend money or authorize money but us. So what do my colleagues mean when they say if we keep the money the bureaucrats will spend it? That is patently untrue.

The other thing I would like to do is quote one of the leaders of this tax bill today regarding a comment made in 1996. "It is about our Nation’s debt. Our trillion dollars is funny money."

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Nussle), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means. We have tremendous talent on our committee.

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentlemand yielding me this time.

It is interesting that today we hear lots of slogans on the other side but not one debate point on any provision of this bill. Think about it. They are not against any of the provisions. In fact, they cosponsored half the provisions in this bill.

But not one debate on any provision. Let us just bring up one, the farm accounts, that came back in the conference report that has not gotten much attention yet.

What that does, and I appreciate the assistance of the chairman in getting this into the conference report, what that says to farmers who are struggling right now is we want to be able to carry forward some income so that they can spread out the peaks and the valleys of what is happening in farm country right now.

That combined with the death tax relief, the capital gains relief gives a real shot in the arm to American agriculture, who needs it right now.

Now, I understand there are some quotes on the other side about what the leadership said. Let me remind my colleagues of a quote from the Democratic leadership: "I think we will write off rural America." Well, with their vote today they are writing off rural America. If they say no to death tax relief, if they say no to capital gains relief, if they say no to the farm accounts, they are saying to those farmers they are struggling right now that we can spend their money more wisely than they can.

Well, go right ahead. Because, my colleagues, it is not our money. We have not even gotten the check yet from the American people, and they are already claiming it, saying what they do with it. Well, for the last 30 years they spent the Social Security surplus. We do not want them to spend this surplus.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman has said it all, we have not gotten the check yet and he is putting out the tax cut.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Doggett).

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman that we say "No" to their chicken manure subsidy, and we say "No" to a bill that jeopardizes Social Security and Medicare in order to provide capital gains relief and all other special interests in this country.

This so-called $3 trillion surplus is nothing but a figment of a Republican political imagination. $2 trillion of this supposed surplus is the money that hard-working Americans will be paying into Social Security, and that $2 trillion, as large as it sounds, is not enough to ensure Social Security will be there for future generations of Americans.

Republicans do not provide one new dollar to help Social Security or to help Medicare in this bill. The other trillion dollars is funny money.

The Republicans have already consumed all of this funny money, this projected surplus for next year with the bills that they have under consideration in this Congress. That $1 trillion is as unreliable as a 10-year weather forecast.

But what I really object to is plucking Social Security and Medicare clean in order to provide tax breaks for most every special interest with a PAC and a lobbyist. This is wrong. Reject this bill.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. Dunn), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, over the next 10 years, Americans on average, each American, will pay $5,300 to the Federal Government in income taxes, more than it costs to run the government. This is above and beyond the Social Security surplus which we save in a lockbox. A fair tax policy reverses the Clinton tax increase of 1993 by reducing income tax rates for every single person who pays them and by reducing taxes for lower-income Americans by expanding the 15-percent bracket.

It also will save married couples an average of $1,400 a year by doubling the standard deduction and keeping couples whose combined earnings are up to $50,000 in the 15-percent bracket.

Most importantly, Mr. Speaker, it eliminates the death tax. This unfair tax has caused often tragic hardship for families who are trying to build a legacy to pass on to future generations. We should honor the values of the hard work, not tax them.

I call upon the President to help us roll back the 1993 tax increase, which he himself admitted was too much. Join us, Mr. President. Let us do this bill together. Give something back to the American people. It is their money. Give it back.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. Thurman), a respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, first of all, to answer the questions, we have not written off rural America. For some reason we always remembering that we gave $275 billion in 1997. We gave capital gains. We gave death taxes. We did education. And we did the family tax relief. It is now time to pay down the debt.

However, what I do not understand as well as I am at the 1 percent tax rate today is we could have been having a debate where we would have been on the verge of fixing Social Security. We could have been strengthening Medicare. We could have possibly been providing a drug benefit. But if we were to pass this tax cut and if it was not vetoed, we would be able to do either of these.
While I may disagree with the different Republican Social Security proposals, I applaud them for having the courage to suggest a politically difficult proposal. But today I know more than ever that they just are not serious about it. The reality is that with this tax cut bill they have abandoned any hopes of enacting even their own ideas of how to solve Social Security.

Here is why: the risky tax cut before us today will cost nearly $1 trillion. The Republican Social Security plan requires roughly $1 trillion to fund new private accounts. They will say they have done that. However, this is money already going into Social Security, not new money.

Mr. Speaker, they can do both. The tax cut would use up nearly all of the $1 trillion in projected non-Social Security budget surpluses. Once this money flows out in tax cuts, once it has gone and spent, the only, and I repeat the only, and is left in the Social Security Trust Fund. The only way to fix Social Security, fix Medicare, is by using the non-Social Security surplus.

So today, my colleagues, the Republican leadership has made a choice. It is clear and simple. This is short-sighted and irresponsible.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COLLINS), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, opportunity knocks only once, while temptation will beat down the door.

In 1995, the President and I were at Warm Springs, Georgia, the Georgia home of F.D.R., friend of the little man. As the President and I were departing company that day, I looked at him and I told him, “Mr. President, I want to leave you with one particular thought. That is, we must look after the little man. Because the big man can take care of himself. But every now and then, you have to give the big man just a little something so he will help the little man.”

He was nodding his head in agreement. I said, “Mr. President, that is our tax bill.”

That was the 1995 tax bill. He vetoed that tax bill. He missed his opportunity, because that veto ended that tax bill.

This tax bill today that we are dealing with targets American workers, American families, and American business, American business that provides the jobs for American workers and American families.

I ask my colleagues to resist the temptation of a Clinton-Gore veto. This is an irresponsible special-interest tax giveaway. It is a tax cut for the wealthiest corporations and Americans that is paid for by the middle class. It reflects the upside down values of this Republican-led Congress and does not reflect the values of American families. It is risky. It threatens our economic progress. And it does not pay down the national debt.

Tax cuts are a priority for those that support middle-class families who need a tax break. If we take a look at this chart, the family that makes under $30,000 a year gets $278 in the tax break and the family that makes $837,000 a year gets a $46,000 tax break. Where is the equity in that?

This plan jeopardizes Social Security and Medicare for special-interest tax breaks. Corporations can write off a three-martini lunch. And there is even a tax credit for burning chicken manure. A chicken manure tax break.

Where are our priorities, Mr. Speaker? Higher dollar bills to chicken manure farmers but chicken feed for the rest of us.

Vote “no” on this conference report.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for the opportunity to rise in strong support of the taxpayer refund and relief act.

Let me say, I have trouble believing some of the arguments I am hearing on the other side. Tax cuts for the wealthy, special-interest legislation. This is much-needed tax relief that our middle class, our American families, and especially for the middle class.

For example, it makes the dream of higher education more accessible for millions of students in the struggling middle class. This legislation makes higher education more affordable by extending tax breaks on student loans, by permitting private universities to offer tax-deferred, prepaid tuition plans, and by exempting the earnings of all tuition plans from taxation.

It also eliminates the 60-month limitation on student loan interest deductions. This is critical to college graduates who are struggling to pay off student loans as they begin their careers, and it extends the tax exclusion for employer-provided tuition assistance.

This important legislation to make education more affordable; yet we have heard the demagoguery on the other side.

I hope that my colleagues are persuaded that this legislation is special class tax relief where and when it is needed at a time when we will never again experience those high prices and long gas lines at the pump like we did in the 1970s.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend from Texas for yielding me the time and for his leadership on the Committee on Ways and Means.

Well, despite the pledge not to engage in name-calling, we have heard it again from my dear colleague from Missouri. We even heard claims about chicken manure from my friend from Connecticut and my other friend from Texas.

I just think there is a simple fact we need to point out. The $3.3 trillion in the surplus, for every one of those dollars, this is what we are prepared to do: take 75 cents of that dollar and lock it away to save and strengthen Social Security and Medicare and pay down the $5-trillion debt hanging over the heads of our children. It leaves a quarter. It is nothing irresponsible about giving the American people back their hard-earned money.

For my friends on the left who fancy themselves champions of the working people, here is the challenge: join us with this bill. Because included in it is much needed tax relief for the inner cities, for Indian reservations, to inscribe savings, to offer help for business start-ups, to help those families who feel the brunt of economic pain.

I challenge my friends on the left to join with us, adopt the conference report, real tax relief.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KLECCZKA) a respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means, too, who, too, was excluded from the conference. I might add that all respected Democrats were excluded.

(Pursuant to a subsequent order of the House by unanimous consent of Mr. KLECCZKA, the remarks of Mr. KLECCZKA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, let us sustain economic growth. Vote no on the Republican tax package.

Mr. Speaker, this tax cut is simply too large. It spends almost all of the projected on-budget surplus for the next 10 years.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle have locked on to the quote by Senator KENNEDY in which he said that in an era when we have a budget surplus of $3 trillion, it is not unreasonable to pass a tax cut of $1 trillion. What they don’t tell you is that $2 trillion of that supposed surplus is Social Security money, which and the other side of the aisle has set aside solely for Social Security. That means that money is off the table. So, if you set aside $2 trillion for Social Security and pass a tax cut of $1 trillion, how much does that leave for Medicare, debt reduction, veterans health care, the National Institutes of Health, and other important domestic programs? It’s simple math: 3–2–1=0.

The leadership in this body is in a big hurry to pass this conference report on a tax scheme they know, no chance of going anywhere so they can go home for a month and tell their constituents what they accomplished for them. Of course, they’re not in quite as big a hurry to send it to the president. They don’t want the president to rain on their parade by vetoing their wonderful bill before they have a chance to convince people how wonderful it is. What they don’t realize is that the American people already know that this irresponsible tax cut is a bad deal. When asked what we in Congress should do with this surplus, the American people have consistently said “save Social Security, save Medicare, and pay down the national debt.”

Let’s defeat this ill-conceived, irresponsible tax scheme and get to work on a real tax relief package that will provide relief to those who need it while still allowing us to fulfill our obligations to pay down the national debt, save Medicare and Social Security, and adequately fund important domestic programs that millions of Americans rely on.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN).

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this conference report.

The fundamental problem with this bill is that it bets the future of Medicare and Social Security on economic projections ten years away. If we spend the money today, almost 80% of the projected surplus, on this risky tax scheme, what will happen if the projections fall short tomorrow?

Ten years ago, not a single economist could have predicted how strong our economy is today and has been over the last five years. As best they try, it is a very inexact science.

In fact the Congressional Budget Office, whose numbers the majority is relying on, has been off by billions on one year projections. Now they want to bet the farm on projections over ten years. If this bill becomes law, there will be an insufficient amount of money left over to ensure the long-term stability of Social Security, Medicare, other programs such as veteran’s health. Now don’t get me wrong, there will be enough there to take care of today’s beneficiaries.

But without dedicating portions of the surplus to Medicare and Social Security today, we will force our children and grandchildren to either pay higher taxes or receive significantly lower benefits tomorrow.

Just can’t have it both ways—as much as everyone here would love to eliminate taxes completely, and believe me I would, it just isn’t the responsible thing to do.

Another major problem with the Republican scheme is that it fails to provide any money to pay down our national debt. If this bill becomes law, interest rates on car loans, mortgages, and credit cards could rise.

Our nation’s debt is finally going down—but if we follow the plan of the Republicans, it will go right back up and fall squarely on the shoulders of our children and grandchildren.

We need to reject the Republican’s risky scheme, because it could balloon the debt, send us back to huge deficit spending.

We need to do the right thing and wait for the money to become real, see how much is there, and then decide where it needs to go—and at that time, tax cuts should and would be included in that formula.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to the conference report on H.R. 2488. This is a very serious debate about a serious piece of legislation. If this tax cut were to pass and actually become law, it would set the course of fiscal policy for the next several decades in this country.

And I don’t get it. When a family in western Wisconsin enjoys good times, they see it as an opportunity to take care of existing obligations first. For the Federal Government, this should mean paying down the $5.7 trillion national debt and shoring up Social Security and Medicare for future generations.

What this legislation proposes, however, is the equivalent of my wife Tawni and I going into our local bank and telling our bank officer, “Yes, we would like one of Texas and a car loan and credit card payments. But we would like to restructure those debts so we can enjoy some additional money now and shift these
Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RANGEL), chairman of the Democratic Caucus.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, as we are all aware, the chief complaint of the right wing of the Republican Party over the past few years has been that their leadership lacked real commitment to the core right-wing principles of their conference.

Well, today, Mr. Speaker, the Republican right wing should be pleased, because the true believers have asserted their control over this Republican Congress.

Today, the Republican Congress makes its priorities crystal clear. Today, the Republican Party plainly states its commitment to risking Social Security, Medicare and our economy on fiscally irresponsible, budget-busting tax breaks for the wealthiest that could cost us $1 trillion over the next 10 years.

Why, Mr. Speaker, would Republicans risk blowing the deficit once again, driving up interest rates and hurting an economy that is the envy of the world? Do Republicans believe that Americans want their mortgage payments to go up? Do Republicans believe that Americans want their credit card bills to go up?

Mr. Speaker, I have pointed out before that the record of the Republican Congress makes clear their belief that Congress’ only job is providing red meat for the right-wing extremists controlling their party. Why else would they insist on squandering the surplus on tax breaks for the wealthiest and refuse to devote even a few dollars to saving Medicare?

Nothing speaks more clearly to the priorities of this Congress. Just 16 years from now, Medicare faces a death sentence, but Republicans refuse to use a dime of the surplus to delay that execution by even a day.

Mr. Speaker, Democrats support fiscal responsibility and fiscal sanity. It is a vote for our children’s future, and for creating jobs and increasing productivity. Finally, lowering our national debt would be fair to future generations who would otherwise have to repay an obligation they did not create.

A vote today against this legislation is a vote for fiscally responsible and fiscally sanity. It is a vote for our children’s future, and for continuing economic growth and the promise of prosperity for our kids. I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I want to start by commending the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I want to start by commending the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

A short time ago, before former Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin retired, I had the opportunity to ask him what he felt we, as policymakers, should do to ensure the prosperity of our nation in the next century. His response was two-fold—first, we should pay down the $5.7 trillion national debt, and second, we should not shortchange our investments in education. This legislation fails both of these goals. This tax cut proposal also ignores the words of Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, who has repeatedly testified before us in Congress that the first, best use of any budget surplus is to reduce the debt.

An emphasis on debt reduction would provide real tax relief to all American families, not just the top 1 percent who receive the bulk of the benefits of this proposal. A lower national debt would allow by lowering interest rates. Families who make mortgage, car, credit card, and other loan payments would realize tremendous cost savings, and businesses would be able to invest at lower cost, create jobs and increase productivity. Finally, lower national debt would be fair to future generations who would otherwise have to repay an obligation they did not create.

A vote today against this legislation is a vote for fiscally responsible and fiscally sanity. It is a vote for our children’s future, and for continuing economic growth and the promise of prosperity for our kids. I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I want to start by commending the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), another respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

There are a lot of great provisions in this bill before us today. They have been focused on by others, eliminating the federal estate tax in 2010. The bill recognizes everybody’s opportunities to achieve a good education for themselves and their children, helping Americans afford health care for themselves and for their elderly family members.

I want to focus for a moment on the retirement security provisions. The Financial Freedom Act before us today contains the most comprehensive reforms of our pension laws since ERISA was passed 25 years ago.

By strengthening 401(k)s for all Americans, by strengthening defined benefit plans, the traditional plans and other plans, by allowing workers to save more in their pensions, save more in their IRAs, by making pensions portable so workers can take them from job to job, by providing a catch-up for workers over 50 years old, by modifying section 415 to help union workers and we are going to allow millions of American workers over 50 years old, by modulating section 415 to help union workers to be able to have a better multi-employer plan, by doing all these things, we allow all Americans to save more for their own retirement, to have more peace of mind in their own retirement, and we are going to allow millions of American workers who do not currently have any kind of a pension at all, that is half of our workforce, to be able to come into a system where they have a pension, to be able to provide in their retirement years for their own retirement security.

This, Mr. Speaker, is why this bill makes sense for the American people, why this bill is going to be supported today. I urge the President to sign it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER).

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Taxpayer Relief--and Relief Act of 1999. I want to commend the gentleman from Texas for leading the way to the future by lowering the taxes on our people. The gentleman from Texas will be dearly missed if he leaves us after this Congress.

This bill represents tax relief of $792 billion over the next 10 years, including the elimination of the marriage penalty, 100 percent deductibility for the health insurance of the self-employed, and lowering the capital gains tax. All of this is in a lockbox for Social Security. Let us not put at risk the defense of this Nation. My Republican colleagues talk about just taking $1 trillion of $3 trillion. $2 trillion in a lockbox for Social Security, they say. But the appropriation bills we have been passing belie that lockbox theory because we are about to spend that Social Security revenue. With our friends, reject this risky, riverboat gamble. Enact the tax relief that children’s security is safe. Do not again go on the path of quadrupling the national debt. Rather, let us be fiscally responsible, target tax cuts, give relief to Americans who are most in need, working Americans. Americans we pilfered the children of America deeply into debt, because we did not provide for the spending that our generation votes for.

These plans allow parents to begin paying for tomorrow's college education at today's tuition prices.

This legislation will allow middle-class families to pay for college out of savings instead of paying for it out of debt. This will make a college education more affordable for more people. I thank the gentleman from Texas for including this in his legislation.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Bonior), our distinguished Democratic whip.

Mr. BONIOR. Risky. Dangerous. Deceptive. That is what this Republican bill is. Instead of building on the strongest economy in a generation, they would roll the dice. They would take $1 trillion. They would slap it down on the table; they would spin the wheel, and hope for the best.

What is going is playing Russian roulette with the whole U.S. economy. And it is our money they are gambling, our Social Security, our Medicare, our education, our future.

The Republicans say their tax plan will build America, that it will put money back into their pockets. But if you look at the numbers, the truth comes out.

Under their plan, a family that makes $52,000 a year gets a tax cut of about $1,000 a year. The super-rich, the people who pull in more than $300,000 a year or more, the Republican plan gives them $127 a day, $900 a week, $46,000 a year. So when you compare the numbers, those who really need tax relief, they get chump-change, and those, of course, who do not, get a brand new Cadillac.

After the party is over, what then? What is the long-term cost to the American family? Higher interest rates on our credit cards, on our mortgage payments on our car loans; higher interest rates and payments on the national debt, which already cost the average American family $2,000 a year; and a higher probability that Social Security and Medicare will not be there when Americans need them.

This Republican plan is risky, it is dangerous, and it is deceptive. We need to pay down the national debt, not to drive it up. We need to take care of first things first, Social Security, Medicare. Let us address these national priorities first, and then cut taxes; and, when we do, let us get it to the middle-income people in this country, and not the super-rich.

We need to invest in the future, not gamble it away. This Republican plan is risky, it is wrong, and it will wreck the economy.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. McCrery), a respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I was not going to talk on the conference report today. I spoke on the bill when it was on the floor earlier, but I got tired of hearing some Democrats say that we were jeopardizing Social Security and Medicare by giving a tax cut to the American people. That is just not true.

The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Archer) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Shaw) had a Social Security plan that is fleshed out and demonstrates clearly that we only need $1.2 trillion of the almost $2 trillion Social Security surplus to solve the Social Security problem. That leaves $700 billion with which we can pay down the debt, to help fix Medicare. Speaking of Medicare, what we do not need is to throw more money at it. We need fundamental reform. We also have a plan for that.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Ramstad).

(Mr. Ramstad and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct honor to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Gephardt), the minority leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Kolbe). The gentleman from Missouri is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. GEPHARDT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I want to address my comments to American citizens all over the country and to ask them a simple question, and that is, do they do better with the Republican plan that is on the floor today, or do they do better with our Democratic plan, which is much less revenue cost, but a tax cut that is more targeted to middle-income families?

If one looks at the Republican plan, it offers a family of four earning $50,000 a year a about a $278 a year tax cut. In other words, their taxes would be reduced by about, to make it rough, $280 a year. That comes out to about 76 cents a day. That would not even buy a cup of coffee in most of our modern coffee houses.

On the other hand, the Democratic tax cut would have had an impact on the real budgets of middle-income families. We wanted to provide a $1,000 credit for a family trying to take care of a disabled parent who they are trying to keep at home or a $500 credit for parents who care for an infant at home. In other words, for ordinary families, we could have done a tax cut today that would really have an impact on their lives, not just 76 cents a day.

But it is also worth noting that the real expense cut that we ought to be talking about today is what getting rid of the deficit would do for ordinary American families. The Research Director for the Concord Coalition put it well. He said debt reduction is a tax cut for future generations.

We now pay $218 billion a year at the Federal level on interest on the national debt. That is $960 a year for every man, woman, and child who lives in the United States. Eliminating that debt could put that money back in their pockets or certainly allow us to do some things with Medicare and Social Security that would put money into the future. That is a fundamental decision we are having to make. If we could get that debt down, it would hold interest rates down.

Let us talk about the family out there that has maybe a $100,000 mortgage on their house right now. If we could lower interest rates by 1 percent or, maybe to put it another way, hold them where they are and not let them go up from where they are now, that could mean $2,000 a year that goes right into that family's pocket because we have not gone with this risky tax cut that puts in jeopardy the financial wherewithal of that family of four that is trying to pay off that mortgage. This is not even talking about credit card debt and auto loan debt that they have to pay.

The big tax cut that we ought to be talking about is holding interest rates down so that family out there does not face higher interest rates.

Let me end with a story. When I was a young kid, my mom and dad told me that if I do chores around the house, they would give me an allowance. Usually a quarter or two is what I would earn, carrying out the trash, doing the dishes, cooking dinner, sometimes even cleaning up the basement.

My mother used to always say to me, because she would give me the quarters, usually two quarters, 50 cents, she would always say, "Dick, those quarters are burning a hole in your pocket." Because what I loved to do with those quarters was go up to the corner confectionery and buy a Mars Bar. I loved Mars Bars, it had that soft marshmallow center, chocolate; and I loved to buy baseball flip cards. That is what I really wanted to do. Sure enough, whenever I would get those quarters, I would run up to the corner confectionery and blow all my money and get a Mars Bar that had that soft marshmallow center and buy those flip cards. Instant gratification is what I was looking for.

She used to always say to me, "If you would save those quarters, maybe you could buy that ball glove you have been talking about or that bicycle you wanted to buy, and that would even be better, if you would save for the future so you could really do something important." This is the very same decision we face today as a country. Do we want instant gratification, do we want to hand out candy bars, make people feel good right now with, again, 76 cents a day for that average family, or do we want to save money, pay down the debt, keep interest rates down, give a targeted tax cut that would really mean something to hard-pressed middle-income families? That is the choice we have today.

I urge Members to reject instant gratification and to save this money for the future, pay down the back debt of this country, save Social Security and Medicare, give a targeted tax cut that will really help middle-income families put in jeopardy for the future and future generations of this country.

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time, and I want to compliment him and those on the staff and members of the Committee on Ways and Means and the chairman for crafting this bill as nearly a perfect tax bill as I have seen in the years I have been in Congress.

Mr. Speaker, the minority leader just spoke of targeted tax cuts for people who really need it. Let us talk for just a moment about who really needs the tax cuts in this country. Let us see who we should exclude from that category. Americans who care for their elderly family members at home, with an additional exemption in this bill of $2,750. What is wrong with that?

We allow parents to save up to $2,000, rather than only $500, in Education Savings Accounts. What is wrong with that?

We eliminate the 25 percent contribution limit on pre-tax salary to 401(k)s.

Saving for one's retirement, what do you have against that?

Reducing the capital gains rate by a small percentage, but saving it so that Americans can invest for their future, why are you against that?

Allowing Americans who purchase their own health insurance to deduct 100 percent of the premium, who can be against that?

Cutting the marriage penalty. We now penalize people when they get married where you have got two earners in the family. What in the world can somebody be against in cutting that back, cutting that penalty back?

Permitting private colleges and universities to establish prepaid tuition programs for parents of prospective students. Currently only public universities are allowed to do this. We extend that to private universities. Who could be against that?

Reducing individual income tax rates for all American taxpayers. That is something we should all be for.

Allowing Americans who purchase long-term care insurance, we allow them to deduct the full amount of their premiums from their taxes. That is something we should encourage, and we encourage it by allowing the deduction.

Phasing out the death tax. The death tax is the biggest destroyer of American farms and American businesses in this country today. It is an evil tax that should be eliminated, and this bill would phase it out over a period of time.

Student loans. Right now when you get a student loan, you can only deduct the interest that you pay for 5 years. After that it is not deductible. I can tell you from the young people who work in my office that I have talked to, this is a very important part of their income, and they should be able to at least deduct it. This is important.

Mr. Speaker, during this debate we have heard a lot about Social Security. Interestingly enough, and I have kept score, I do not believe that one person stood up here and said that we are going to do nothing about Social Security has any inkling how to solve the problem, and, if they do, they have not come out and put that down.

The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Archer) and I and the Committee on Ways and Means and many of us are working together and reaching out to Democrats in order to be able to do precisely that. We have come up with a plan that does precisely that, and it is Social Security. Very shortly, that plan will be going to some type of a markup, and I look forward to that. We will continue to reach out across the aisle to the Democrats.

But I can tell you right now, and I think the American people should hold all of us to this standard: Do not talk about saving Social Security on the floor of this House unless you are ready to step forward to do it.
the future stability of Social Security and Medicare.

Enactment of this tax bill would put us right back where we were six years ago, with projected deficits as far as the eye can see—and with a national debt that is growing rather than shrinking.

I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing this unwise legislation.

Mr. SANDLIN. Mr. Speaker, I have heard my friends on the Republican side talk about how their budget sets aside $2 trillion of the $3 trillion projected surplus for debt reduction.
While this certainly sounds appealing to those of us who have been talking about the importance of paying off the national debt, the facts just don’t match the rhetoric.

My Republican friends neglect to point out that they are double-counting the Social Security surplus in order to claim that they are reducing the debt. This body has overwhelmingly voted to exclude Social Security surpluses from budget calculations. These surpluses are essential to meet future obligations so that the Members of both Republican and Democrat alike, have said that Social Security surpluses should only be used for Social Security, and should not be counted for any other purposes. But despite all of the rhetoric about Social Security lockboxes and taking Social Security off-budget, some folks on the other side of the aisle keep counting the Social Security surpluses when it suits their purposes.

Using the Social Security surplus to reduce debt held by the public simply offsets the increased debt held by the Social Security trust fund. Using the Social Security surplus, we won’t reduce the national debt by one dime, and we will have done nothing to reduce the burden we leave to our children and grandchildren. In fact, despite all of the rhetoric from the other side of the aisle about saving money for debt reduction, the national debt will increase by over $200 billion over the next five years under the Republican budget.

The truth is, they don’t want the American people to know the consequences of their massive proposals. They don’t want them to find out that, if we want to be fiscally responsible and stay within the spending caps we agreed to in the 1997 budget, passing their tax cut will require a 38% reduction in spending on important programs—programs like FEMA, class size reduction, and law enforcement. Both parties agree that defense spending needs to increase if we want to preserve military readiness, but if the Republicans pass their tax cuts, our military will suffer as well. While these important programs that benefit ALL Americans will have to be cut, TWO-THIRDS of the benefit only those people who fall in the top income tax bracket.

The fiscal irresponsibility does not stop there.
The new trick in Republican accounting books is the “emergency” spending designation being used to bypass the spending caps. They have even resorted to calling the 2000 census an “emergency”—an outrageous claim considering that the Constitution requires a census every ten years! This “emergency” spending comes straight out of the “projected surplus Republicans want to use to finance their tax cut.

This creative accounting is unacceptable. I am a strong advocate of a sound budget and defiscally responsible tax cuts, but the best tax cut we can give the American people is a promise we will first pay down the national debt by setting aside some of the true surplus—the non-Social Security surplus. The Blue Dogs have put forward a proposal that would lock up half of the true budget surplus to pay down the national debt. This approach will truly reduce the burden on future generations.

I am proud to be an original co-sponsor of this legislation. The Blue Dog’s Debt Reduction Lockbox bill would save 100% of the Social Security surplus and thereby shows that the budget can be balanced EXCLUDING the Social Security surplus. It also helps ensure a fiscally responsible budget by establishing a point of order against any budget resolution that contains a on-budget deficit or any legislation that would result in an on-budget deficit and would prohibit OMB, CBO and other federal government entities from including the Social Security trust fund as part of budget surplus or def-cit calculations.

While the Republican tax cut bill’s debt reduction provisions are merely a rhetorical gesture at best, the Blue Dog bill delivers on debt reduction. It places 50% of the projected on-budget surplus over the next five years in a Debt Reduction Lockbox, away from those who would squander it on irresponsible tax cuts.

The Blue Dog bill also delivers on our promise to save Social Security and Medicare by reserving the Debt Reduction Dividend—the savings from lower interest payments on the debt resulting from its use back into—these two programs. Seventy-five percent of these savings would be reserved for Social Security reform and 25% for Medicare reform.

Mr. Speaker, the fundamental tenet of the Blue Dog proposition—has been recklessly omitted from the Republican bill.

Our primary goal as we debate how to divide the projected budget surplus should be to maintain the strong and growing economy that has benefited millions of Americans. Irresponsible tax cuts, however, are not the means to achieving this end. Using that simple objective as our guide, it is clear that the best course of action this body could take is to use the budget surpluses to start paying off the $5.6 trillion national debt. Reducing the national debt is clearly the best long-term strategy for the U.S. economy.

Economists from across the political spectrum agree that using the surplus to reduce the debt will stimulate economic growth by increasing national savings and boosting domestic investment. Paying down our debt will reduce the tremendous drain that the federal government has placed on the economy by running up a huge national debt. Quite simply, reducing the federal government’s $5.6 trillion national debt takes money that is currently tied depending on debt and puts it back into the private sector where it can be invested in plants, equipment and other investments that create jobs and economic output.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan repeatedly advised Congress that the most important action we could take to maintain a strong and growing economy is to pay down the national debt. Earlier this year, Chairman Greenspan testified before the Ways and Means Committee that debt reduction is a much better use of surpluses than are tax cuts, stating:

The advantages that I perceive that would accrue to this economy from a significant decline in the outstanding debt to the public and its virtuous cycle on the total budget process is a value which I think far exceeds anything else we could do with the money.

We should follow Chairman Greenspan’s advice by making debt reduction the highest priority for any budget surplus.

There has been a lot of discussion here in Washington about a “grand bargain” on the budget that would divide the surplus between tax cuts and higher spending. Our constituents are looking for a very different message. I would encourage my colleagues to ignore this inside the beltway speculation, and listen to the American public. Our constituents are telling us to meet our obligations by paying down the national debt.

The folks I represent understand that the conservative thing to do when you have some extra resources is to pay your debts first. They don’t understand how we can be talking about grand plans to divide up the budget surplus in interest rates we have had as a result of the fiscal discipline over the last few years has put at least $35 billion into the hands of homeowners through lower mortgage payments. Continuing this fiscal discipline and paying down the debt is the best way to keep people’s money in the hands of middle class Americans.

Just as importantly, reducing the national debt will protect future generations from increasing tax burdens to pay for the debts that we have incurred. Today, more than twenty-five percent of all individual income taxes go to paying interest on our national debt. The amount of income taxes the government will have to collect just to pay the interest on the debt will continue to increase unless we take action now to pay down the national debt.

The extra dollar of lower debt saves MORE than one dollar for future generations. These savings that can be used for tax cuts, covering the costs of the baby boomers retirement without tax increases or meeting other needs. We should give future generations the flexibility to deal with the challenges they will face, instead of forcing them to pay higher taxes just to pay for the debt we incurred with our consumption today.

I urge my colleagues to vote AGAINST the unwise legislation. Join me in supporting the Blue Dog Debt Reduction Lockbox bill and let’s eliminate our debt.
Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, let me say, first off, that a tax cut would be appropriate if we could afford it, if it would stimulate further economic growth, and if it were fair. Our first priority should be to use most, if not all, of the projected on-budget surpluses to pay down the $3.6 trillion publicly held by the public.

The tax cut considered this morning is contingent upon maintaining the spending caps, which we have broken, although nobody is willing to admit this fact. It is contingent on maintaining a reasonable level of emergency spending, although emergency spending is now an escape hatch to avoiding the caps. Above all, it is contingent upon projected on-budget surpluses. But, there is no on-budget surplus and if there ever was, it disappeared this week. In fiscal year 2000, the Congressional Budget Office projects a $14 billion on-budget surplus. But, Farm relief and the $4.5 billion price tag for the Census have been categorized as emergency spending. Yesterday's votes in the House and Senate ate up $12 billion.

Here is a more realistic scenario. If the caps are lifted so that overall discretionary spending remains at FY 1999 levels, adjusted only for inflation and emergency spending stays at the historical average of fiscal years 1991 though 1998, the surpluses would equal $112 billion over the next 10 years. Some 89 percent of the projected on-budget surplus would disappear.

If these surpluses do not materialize, the consequences could be severe. It took us 15 years to climb out of the deficits created by the 1980's tax cuts and spending increases. In 1981 we passed broad based tax relief. The consequences were catastrophic. Publicly held debt quadrupled between 1981 and 1993. Interest on the debt doubled and as a share of the federal budget form seven to 15 percent. Interest on the debt is now the third most expensive government program behind Social Security and defense spending. Adding to that debt is the height of fiscal irresponsibility. Why would we want to repeat that scenario?

I know that it is unpopular for Democrats to talk about the distributional consequences of tax relief. But fairness and progressivity are critical elements of our tax code. I believe we have an obligation to find the fairest and most equitable way to distribute the tax relief. Tax relief, as the definition of relief would indicate, is for those who need relief. There has been such little discussion in this body and in the press on the distributional effects of this cut. Just because we talk about the distributional benefits of a tax cut does not mean that we are promoting class warfare. But, we ought to tell it like it is. I understand that the wealthiest in this country pay a large share of taxes collected. They also earn the greatest benefits from the policies in place that helped create this unparalleled prosperity. But, the middle class does not fare as well as the upper end in the bill before Congress today. The Treasury Department estimates that the average tax cut for the richest one percent of Americans would be $37,000 a year when the tax cuts are fully in place. The average tax cut for the bottom 60 percent of the population would be $134.

What about intergenerational fairness? Let me quote Herbert Stein, a conservative economist, writing on the Wall Street Journal's op-ed page yesterday.

"The argument about fairness is complicated...The government's revenue is really the taxpayer's money, but the government's debt is the taxpayer's debt too—and one can say in fairness that they should repay it. Is it fair for today's generation to leave the debt burden to its children?"

No, of course it isn't. This tax cut is another river boat gamble. Again, our first priority should be to pay down the $3.6 trillion debt held by the public.

Tax cuts are difficult undo. In the 1980's, the nation spent a decade undoing the across the board tax cuts on everything else, such as airline tickets, luxury boats, and foreign cars. Deficit reduction is painful. Debt reduction is easy. If we need to stop because of a recession or a war to raise capital, no problem. We can always go back to it.

As Alan Greenspan has repeatedly said, paying down the debt would create more wealth for all Americans. He favors reducing the debt because with less debt, interest rates decline. That makes it easier for American families to buy a house...to buy a car...to start a business. Now, he went on to say that he would prefer a tax cut to spending. But, that's because he is an economist and a conservative who believes in a less activist government.

He also pointed that there is a "shadow cost" to not paying down the debt. A tax cut without offsets will add more debt, raise interest costs and interest rates. Our new Treasury Secretary, Larry Summers said today that for every one hundredths of a percentage point in reduced interest rates on the total debt, the Government ultimately saves $1 billion a year in interest costs.

Less debt means that there is less competition between the private sector and the government in the bond market. As government growth and the debt double, less risk should decline. A two percent dip in interest rates, from eight to six percent, would decrease mortgage payments on a $115,000 home by $155 a month. That is a better tax break than anything Congress could put together.

With lower interest payments, government can make crucial investments to improve productivity. If productivity is one percent a year, it would increase the annual dollar surplus, the people have paid too much. Responsibly, 75 cents of each dollar of the surplus will go toward strengthening Social Security, reforming Medicare, paying down the public debt, rebuilding our military, improving public education and other vital programs. Far too many of the remaining 25% is returned to the people who earned it: the hard-working American taxpayer.

Instead, the Democrats and the President propose a risky scheme of $937 billion in new spending. I guess the President really did mean what he said that he didn't trust the American people to spend their money correctly that "we could give it back to you and hope you spend it right."

The Republican tax relief plan follows a fair, responsible commonsense principle. It returns dollars and decisions home. Rather than viewing the wallets of the American People as ATM machines, the Republican tax relief plan remembers whose money this really is and who, in the end, is in charge: the hard-working American people.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I strongly support tax relief for all Americans. As Governor of Delaware, I reduced income taxes three times. As Delaware's representative in Congress, I supported the significant tax relief for families and businesses in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997. I hope to have the opportunity to vote for significant, broad-based tax relief in 1999. However, in the past each time I signed or voted for legislation to reduce taxes I worked to ensure it was as part of a comprehensive balanced budget plan. Unfortunately, this legislation, at a cost of $792 billion over ten years—80% of the projected budget surplus—does not allow for a complete plan to preserve the surplus and a balanced budget.

When this legislation was considered by the House, I proposed an alternative tax relief plan that would have provided 100% action in tax relief. My proposal would preserve $482 billion of the projected surplus for debt reduction, emergencies and other needs. Unfortunately, the House was not permitted to vote on that alternative. I hope when Congress and the President finish staking out political positions on this issue, we can come together in the fall and reach a comprehensive agreement that provides for solid tax relief and sets aside funds for debt reduction, potential emergencies and a realistic plan to fund defense, education, Medicare and other important priorities.

The size of this tax legislation is the most serious issue. The bill would commit $792 billion of a projected $996 ten-year surplus to tax reduction. It just does not make sense to commit 80% of a surplus we have not yet achieved to one purpose. It leaves very little margin for error. Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan testified just last week that ten-year economic projections are not reliable.
The surplus the $996 billion in tax relief the economy remains strong and if there are no other changes in tax or spending policy. If we spend more or have less revenue, interest payments on the debt will be larger and the surplus will be smaller. If we commit $792 bil-ion to tax reductions, virtually all of the rest of the $996 surplus will be needed to pay higher interest costs on the debt. If we experience an economic downturn, these surpluses could easily turn to deficits. The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) which made these predictions stated that they could very by as much as $100 billion in any year.

The assumptions necessary for a $792 bil-ion tax cut leave no room for the unplanned, but almost certain expenses like natural disasters and other emergencies. Over the past ten years, emergencies have averaged at least $8 billion per year. It is a fact: hurricanes, floods, droughts and military emergency happen virtu-ely every year. This year, Congress has already spent $15 billion in emergency funds for Kosovo. Just yesterday, the Senate passed a $7.4 billion emergency disaster relief package for families in Delaware, and virtually every state in the eastern U.S. is suffering from one of the worst droughts of the century. The billions in emergency aid now in the Senate will almost certainly be followed by the need for more drought assistance.

Those funds will come straight from the surplus. There will be emergencies every year and those likely costs must be factored into our calculations of what size tax cut is possible. Furthermore, while Medicare is currently fundamentally sound, there are growing problems in the area of home health care, HMO’s and rural and teaching hospitals. Correcting those problems may require additional funds.

Finally, important programs like defense, education, and veterans must be adequately funded. The size of this tax legislation is based on complete assumptions that domestic programs can be drastically reduced. Congress is already avoiding those cuts this year. We can and should limit spending, but cuts of 10 percent or more are just not realistic.

My second concern is the need for debt reduction. The federal debt is $5.6 trillion and requires 15 percent of the annual federal budget to service. If we do not take the opportunity to pay down this debt during strong economic times, then when will we? Tax relief is important, but it should be balanced with the economic cushion for the inevitable emergencies and other budget problems that will occur over the next ten years. When Congress returns in September, I hope we can engage in serious negotiations with the leadership of President Clinton and the Senate on how to utilize the good proposals for broad-based tax relief in this legislation but at a more affordable level.
I look forward to working with all members of Congress and the Administration to ultimately produce legislation to give every American sigificant tax relief.

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of common sense tax relief for American families and small businesses. I also rise in support of saving Medicare and Social Security, two programs critical to today’s seniors and future generations.

Unfortunately, the tax conference report before us today is fiscally irresponsible. It would threaten our ability to ensure the long term solvency of Medicare and Social Security. It would also restrict our ability to pay down national debt and to make needed investments in national defense, education and environmental protection.

By using virtually the entire projected surplus for permanent tax cuts, this bill would leave no money for modernizing Medicare or reforming Social Security. This is simply unconscionable. Medicare is desperately in need of modernization—specifically, the lack of prescription drug coverage is a gaping hole in this critical safety net for seniors that must be fixed. And while Social Security is fiscally sound for the near future, the coming retirement of the baby boom generation will strain the system beyond its limit. We owe it to future generations to act now to reform these programs while there is still plenty of time to do so.

I strongly support tax relief for middle income families, which this bill unfortunately fails to provide. For example, the across-the-board tax cut in the measure will cost almost $300 billion, but would give someone on the Central Coast making $30,000, a tax cut of only 37 cents per day! That’s not even enough to buy a cup of coffee in my home town.

The tax plan I voted for earlier this year would have fixed the marriage penalty and ensured middle class families can take full advantage of the various per-child, education and child care tax credits. It would also have increased the per-child tax credit by $250 for families with children under age five.

The bill I supported would have helped families by providing $25 billion in school construction bonds to modernize our overcrowded pub-lc schools and make employer-provided assistance tax free for undergraduate and graduate education. This measure would institute a $1,000 long term care credit and make health insurance fully deductible for the self-employed. We also included in this legislation what would make permanent the R&D tax credit, so critical to ensuring future economic growth on the Central Coast, as well as credits to help move people from welfare to work.

I have also supported cutting the estate tax for small businesses and farmers like those on the Central Coast of California who are imperiled by the death of the head of the family. We must increase the exemption for businesses like those above the current $1.3 million. The high value of Central Coast land, for example, can result in a modest sized farm or ranch impossible to pass down without being subject to high estate taxes that can force the sale of the property.

By increasing this exemption, we would keep farm families and businesses in the family and out of the auction block.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my profound disappointment in the partisan handling of this tax bill. I believe there is general agreement among the vast majority of Members that we can and should provide tax relief this year. But the House leadership has pursued a partisan course designed to make political points and not to pass meaningful legislation. How sad it was that Democratic members were literally locked out of the conference committee that wrote this legislation.

The leadership knows this bill will not become law. By seriously sitting down and negotiating a common sense tax bill we could easily pass legislation this year and give families and businesses the tax relief they deserve. I hope that we can put the partisanship aside and work together on formulating real tax reform this year. Our constituents deserve nothing less.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Conference Report of H.R. 2488, the Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act of 1999.

I’d like to commend our Ways and Means Committee Chairman BILL ARCHER and our Majority Leader DICK ARMSTRONG for their leadership, not to mention the wise counsel of Representative HASTERT, whose red ink relief pack-package for all Americans. I was honored to be named a conferee for the Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act and am proud of the product of labor.

Mr. Speaker, during my long service in this body, I have had too few opportunities to cut taxes for the American people. I had to wait 12 years, until 1981, for the first major tax cut provided by the leadership of President Reagan. It was another 16 years, in 1997, before I could vote for another major tax cut. However, this Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act of 1999 is far and away my favorite. Not only is it the largest, providing $792 billion in tax relief, but it does so from budget surpluses provided by taxpayers. In effect, we’re giving taxpayers a refund for overtaxing them. At the same time, we will be using the remaining surplus to pay down the national debt—as much as $2 trillion over the next decade—as we lock away $1.9 trillion to preserve and protect Social Security and Medicare.

However, talking about all those numbers is the stuff of Washington policy works. Let me tell the American people what this tax cut means for them.
Our Republican tax plan will give all taxpayers a cut in their income tax rates. In addition, 28 million working married couples will see a substantial reduction in their marriage penalty. Our bill also repeals the alternative minimum tax on individuals that will save taxpayers money, while simplifying their tax returns. The provision is similar to legislation I introduced in this Congress to abolish the alternative minimum tax.

For farmers, small business owners and older Americans, our bill will reduce, then abolish, the estate tax over the next 10 years. This confiscatory tax, with rates as high as 55 percent, has forced families to sell the fruits of a lifetime of labor to pay the taxman instead of passing it on to the next generation.

The growth of the capital markets has given investors from all walks of life an opportunity to invest and save for the future. To further spur growth in these investments, H.R. 2488 will reduce tax rates on capital gains from 20 percent to 18 percent and from the lower rate of 10 percent to 8 percent. In the future, capital gains will be indexed so that investors won't be paying taxes on artificial gains from inflation. I am also pleased that my provision to cut capital gains taxes on the settlement funds which pay beneficiaries of class action lawsuits was included in the final package.

To further assist Americans saving for retirement, H.R. 2488 also includes $35 billion in incentives for saving with individual retirement accounts, or IRAs. Savers will be able to contribute much more—up to $5,000—to their IRA accounts. Also included among these incentives is my provision to allow IRA holders to rollover their annuities to a charity of their choosing. This bill has a good tax policy than I have time to mention. I do, however, want to say how pleased I am that my provisions to simplify the tax returns of affiliated groups of life insurance companies and another to encourage more foreign investment in U.S. mutual funds were also included in the final product.

I urge all my colleagues to support this tax relief package so that we may start to return the tax overcharge to the American taxpayers. Furthermore, I believe the President will not stand in the way of needed tax relief by vetoing this measure.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the conference report on H.R. 2488. Let me just highlight a few of this bill’s flaws:

The Republican tax bill would spend $792 billion over the next 10 years out of a budget surplus that will never occur. This tax cut is based on a false premise: without enacting spending cuts, the surplus simply won’t occur. But we don’t really have to look at tax cuts, this bill raids the Social Security surplus and endangers Medicare. It pulls a fast one today’s workers who’s payroll dollars are going to the national debt soars.

For example, the estate tax repeal is not fully phased in until January, 2009. By October 1, 2009, the tax law reverts back to today’s rates and provisions. What kind of incentive does a nine month tax-free window for estates create for families?

The Republican tax bill expands retirement savings accounts to the expense of average workers. How many working couples can afford to increase their IRA contributions from $2,000 to $5,000 per spouse? The Republican bill does nothing to help those who barely make enough to fund IRAs at current contribution levels. Lower and moderate income taxpayers to save, this bill helps those who have already made the maximum contribution under current IRAs and 401(k) plans save even more.

Worse than just helping those in the upper brackets, this bill harms lower-wage workers depending on pensions. The Republican tax bill guts the “top heavy” rules enacted to assure that tax-favored pensions would be available to all workers and not skewed to help mainly those at the top. The “top heavy” rules are gutted just as the contribution amounts and benefits are increased. This bill does not bolster pension security; it increases pension insecurity for rank and file workers.

There is a gesture to assist with health expenses but this, too, is flawed. The prescription drug benefit is what the Republicans call a “place holder,” not a real benefit for real people who today are making hard choices about whether to fill their prescriptions or to buy food and pay their rent and utilities. Our seniors need prescription drug help now, not a promise to deal with drug costs in some undefined way at some future time.

The Republican bill is flawed in the ways it throws money at special interests. Business tax breaks, unlike the rate reduction for individuals, will be in effect no matter how high the national debt soars.

The Republican tax bill throws $24 billion in tax breaks at the multinational corporations. These are the same folks who move American jobs overseas.

It throws about $650 million at the oil and gas industry which has a hand out in hard times but never gives credit due consumers in good times.

There is even a tax break to produce power from chicken droppings, a real turkey of a provision if there ever was one.

Timber growers get over $275 in taxpayer assistance for reforestation, something timber growers already do.

Life insurance companies get a billion dollar tax break which allows them to file consolidated returns with their affiliates to shelter income. By the time we receive this money from these insurance companies, this bill does nothing to help those who barely make enough to fund IRAs at current contribution levels.

Another billion goes to nuclear power plant stockholders with the taxpayers picking up the tab for the decommissioning costs.

The Republican tax bill spends close to $4 billion raising business meal deductions but average workers won’t be at the table for that perk. They don’t get to take clients out for steak and martinis. The Republican sponsors boast that their bill returns money to American families but they don’t even do that in a fair way. Sixty percent of the taxpayers in the middle income quintile (annual income of $23,800 to $38,200) would receive an average tax cut of $278 a year, less than 8% of the total money to be given back to families.

Compare that to the best off one percent of taxpayers—those making more than $301,000—who would get an average tax reduction of more than $46,000 a year under the Republican bill.

The bill does nothing to shore up Social Security and Medicare. It precludes paying down the debt with any surplus that occurs.

Although the Republicans have the votes to pass this turkey of a bill, they won’t have my support for it. I will vote NO on H.R. 2488.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I vehemently oppose the Republican tax bill to give money to the richest from a phantom surplus. Our surplus comes from Social Security funds and cuts in essential programs in housing, community oriented policing, legal services, anti-discrimination, research, environmental protection, and a host of other programs essential to America’s families.

Sixty percent of taxpayers of middle income and below would receive less than 8% of the total tax cuts. An average tax reduction would be only $138 a year.

The top 1/10th of taxpayers would receive 69% of the tax reductions and get an average annual tax cut of $7,600.

Those making more than $300,000—would get an average annual tax reduction of more than $46,000 a year.

Let’s look at the other 85% of our people. Personal savings are at an all-time low and 1/3 of the people have no assets at all. Another 20% have negligible assets. Almost half of all American children live in households with no financial assets. More than 10 million Americans don’t even have a bank account.

We are leaving too many behind. The rich have indicated they don’t need the tax cut. The goodness they want a society with excellent schools, a skilled and healthy labor force, safe towns, all the things that the rest of us want.

The Republican tax bill for the rich who don’t want it is an awful bill and will be rejected by the people.

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, I favor cutting taxes. We all do.

But the Republican tax bill offers pie-in-the-sky, campaign promises that will give most Americans nothing but pocket change.

By failing to attack the $6 trillion national debt, Republicans will give all Americans higher interest rates and higher prices for everything they buy, every day, for years to come.

We need a coherent fiscal policy, not feel-good election year across-the-board tax cuts. We can reduce taxes, but we need reasonable tax cuts and incentives that really help working families and small businesses. Cutting capital gains and estate taxes, and the marriage penalty, are a good start. But we should not squander this opportunity to cut the debt.

The Republican sponsors boast that their bill returns money to American families but they don’t even do that in a fair way. Sixty percent of the taxpayers in the middle income quintile (annual income of $23,800 to $38,200) would receive an average tax cut of $278 a year, less than 8% of the total money to be given back to families.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 2488, the Republican tax bill. This legislation reminds me of the favorite books of my youth. I enjoyed reading the Hardy Boys series which always dealt with some mystery, usually the disappearance of something. This legislation would be a classic Hardy boys case—they would call it “The Case of the Disappearing Tax Cut.”

The story would unfold with the Republican Leadership going around the country touting the major tax break for working families and how families would be able to take this tax break and meet all of their needs. And lo and behold, the next year when families were actually filing their taxes, that tax break would be gone. It would have vanished into thin air. At that point, Speaker HASTERT and Majority Leader DELAY would call in the Hardy Brothers to find out what happened to the tax breaks that they had promised.

Mr. Speaker, it won’t take the Hardy Boys to solve this mystery. There will be no generous tax break in 2000 because it was never there. Under this legislation, families with an income of $30,000 will receive an average $278 tax cut—that’s a cut of 76 cents a day when the bill is signed into law. That’s not a lot that can be done with that windfall.

As with every Republican tax bill, this legislation overflows with tax breaks heavily skewed towards special interests and the very rich while giving working families minimal assistance. Bragging that working families will take home less than $300, families earning more than $301,000 will get an annual $46,389 bonus from uncle Sam. That is $127 in new tax breaks per day and it is more than most of my constituents earn.

On top of that imbalance, this legislation provides all sorts of goodies for the special interests. The GOP tax bill phases out the corporate minimum tax, gives special tax breaks to utilities to close nuclear power plants and special tax treatment for multinational giants. Who knows what other goodies are tucked away in this package? Certainly not the House Action Reports upon which many of us rely. The GOP Leadership and their staff gave them less than $650 billion of the $792 billion in ten year tax breaks. Well what’s $150 billion in tax breaks mean to my friends: “Don’t worry, be happy.” These facts won’t come out until this package has been forced through the House.

In their rush to reward their friends, the Republican majority refuses to set aside even one dollar of the on-budget surplus to extend the solvency of the Medicare Trust Fund or the Social Security Trust Fund. And at the same time, it will threaten to send us back to the days of deficits.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. KOLBE) said that all time for debate on the conference report has expired. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report. There was no objection.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit this bill to the conference, hoping that Democrats this time will be included so we can clean up this bill.

The Speaker pro tempore. Is the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) opposed to the conference report?

Mr. RANGEL. Yes, in its present form, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk reads as follows: Mr. RANGEL moves to recommit the conference report to the House. H.R. 2888, to the committee on conference with the following instructions to the managers on the part of the House:

1. In order—

A. To preserve 100 percent of the Social Security Trust Fund surpluses for the Social Security system. And to provide 50 percent of the currently projected non-Social Security surpluses for purposes of reducing the publicly held national debt, and to insure that there will be adequate budgetary resources available to extend the solvency of the Social Security and Medicare systems, and to provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit, the House managers shall, to the extent permitted within the scope of conference, insist on limiting the net 10-year tax reduction provided in the conference report to no more than 25 percent of the currently projected non-Social Security surpluses (or if greater, the smallest tax reduction permitted within the scope of conference).

B. The House managers shall, to the extent permitted within the scope of conference, insist on including in the conference report any provision which would constitute a limited tax benefit within the meaning of the Line Item Veto Act.

The Speaker pro tempore. The motion to recommit is not debatable.

Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The Speaker pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit. The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the votes appeared to be by voice. Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The Speaker pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will recess to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device, if ordered, will be taken on the question of agreeing to the conference report.
The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 215, nays 221, not voting 8, as follows:

The managers recognize that the cost sharing for the Howard Hanson Dam project could appropriately be affected by the recent listing of the Puget Sound Chinook Salmon as a protected species under the Endangered Species Act. The United States Department of Commerce, National Marine Fisheries Service, has stated its intent to consult with both the Army Corps of Engineers and the City of Tacoma concerning responsibilities under the Endangered Species Act as it relates to the Howard Hanson Dam project and the City of Tacoma water diversion project.

One of the purposes of the project being authorized is to develop a fish passage for downstream migration of salmon. When this consultation is completed, the appropriate cost sharing allocation for the project may be different from that stated in the report of the Chief of Engineers. Therefore, it is the understanding of the managers that the Secretary, after consultation with the Secretary of Commerce, will, if appropriate, revise the allocation of cost sharing found in the final report of the Chief of Engineers to reflect the responsibilities under the Endangered Species Act for the protection of the threatened Puget Sound Chinook Salmon.

Bud Shuster, Don Young, Sherwood Boehlert, Richard H. Baker, John T. Doolittle, Don Sherwood, James L. Oberstar,
The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. TRUMOND].

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Today's prayer will be offered by our guest Chaplain, Rev. Michael Coleman, Park United Methodist Church, Hannibal, MO.

We are pleased to have you with us.

PRAYER

The guest Chaplain, Rev. Michael Coleman, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, Your justice has shown us that the righteous observance of Your sacred law is necessary for an abiding and purposeful life. Your mercy has taught us that none stand before You in this life free of the influence of sin upon our natures. So today we call ourselves in humble obedience to this Chamber, for this session along with its purpose of caring for the welfare of Your people.

We stand here today, as a government of leaders—as well as a land of various peoples—united under Your Word. May we be inspired by Your words from II Chronicles 7:14: ‘If my people which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.’

Divine Creator, we humbly request these things, in the spirit of all that is holy, and in the power of Your creative influence. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable JOHN ASHCROFT, a Senator from the State of Missouri, led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senate leader, I shall address the Senate momentarily about the calendar of events for the day, but I see my distinguished colleague from Missouri, Mr. ASHCROFT, who had the great foresight and wisdom to invite the Reverend Coleman as our guest Chaplain.

GUEST CHAPLAIN MICHAEL COLEMAN

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Virginia. I thank the Senate today to call us to our highest and best. He prayed about justice and he prayed about mercy, he prayed about the components of attitude and spirit that will help us achieve that which the people have sent us to do. The real opportunity we have is to live at the maximums of our existence rather than to perform at the minimums. When we invite the presence of the Almighty as we begin these proceedings, we equip ourselves to point toward the maximums instead of to dwell on the minimums.

So as we approach this day, I thank Rev. Mike Coleman for coming from Hannibal, MO, hometown of Mark Twain. I think it was Mark Twain, the philosopher, who said there is nothing quite so embarrassing as a good example. Well, I do not think the Reverend is embarrassing to us, but he does set a good example as he calls us to our highest and best, and it is the prayer of all of us together with him that today we would serve the people with compassion and dignity and with justice and mercy.

I thank the Chair and I thank the Senator from Virginia for allowing me to make these remarks.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I thank my colleague. It is a great pleasure for those of us who join in the opening of the Senate to have the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag. I have been here 21 years, and at long last I think it is the right moment to celebrate all of America every day, particularly in the schools, and so forth, is now observed in the Senate.

The words of our guest Chaplain today were very stirring because this could be one of the final days in our Senate life before we go on a recess, which will enable us to join our families and spend some time with our constituents and others.

I thank the Senator.

Mr. BIDEN. Will the Senator yield for a brief comment?

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mr. BIDEN. I would like to welcome the guest Chaplain as well and say, in light of Mark Twain's reputation, Rev. Coleman could have helped him a great deal in his attitude with a little enlightenment in spiritual matters.

I think Hannibal could have used the Reverend back in the time of Mark Twain. It might have been a little bit different. I love Mark Twain, but he was a little wry. And I just want everyone to know I recognize the irony of the guest Chaplain being from Hannibal, MO, the home of Mark Twain.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BIDEN. I would be delighted.

Mr. ASHCROFT. It might have been that Mark Twain got that education after he moved out East. He did end up more in the territory of the east coast, but his roots were solid and good, nourished by the right values.

Mr. BIDEN. I have no question about that.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if I may just add a little to that colloquy, it is my recollection that Mark Twain had some fairly pithy remarks on the Congress of the United States from time to time. Perhaps we should include some of those in the Record.
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, by previous order, the Senate will begin 30 minutes of debate on the Holbrooke nomination; that is, the Honorable Richard Holbrooke, to be Ambassador to the United Nations, with a vote to occur at approximately 10 o'clock today. Following disposition of the Holbrooke nomination, the Senate will resume consideration of the Interior appropriations bill with amendments expected to be offered and debated. In addition, when the Senate receives the tax reconciliation conference report from the House of Representatives, it is expected that the Senate will begin consideration of that legislation. Therefore, Senators should expect votes during the day and into the evening during today’s session of the Senate.

I thank my colleagues for their attention.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HAGEL). Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will go into executive session to consider en bloc Executive Calendar Nos. 135 and 140, which the clerk will report.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Richard Holbrooke, of New York, to be a Representative of the United States of America to the Sessions of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there shall be no less than 30 minutes of debate equally divided to be followed by a vote en bloc on the nominations.

The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I thank the Senate leadership with respect to this nomination. It has been a unique one for various reasons. The elements of that uniqueness are well known to my colleagues. I shall not speak in detail about the tradition of “holds” but I think much of the general public is somewhat perplexed about the procedures in the Senate.

There has been discussion as to the procedure on this nomination and the use of what is referred to as a “hold.” There is a diversity of views within this body on the use of a “hold,” but, in my judgment, it is an important and proper procedure utilized by Senators in conjunction with the balance of power established by the Constitution in the coequal branches of the Government: the executive branch, the power of nomination by the President, and the Senate and its power of advice and consent.

The use of the hold is an exercise of that balance of power between the two branches. In this instance, I thank the distinguished majority leader and, of course, the minority leader, and others who have worked hard upon this nomination to this point where today the Senate will render its advice and consent on this very important nomination.

Mr. SARBAKES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. WARNER. Yes. I thank many other Senators who have worked with me—Senator Hagel, Senator Grassley, Senator Voinovich, and my distinguished colleague from Delaware, Mr. Biden who will be speaking momentarily. I yield for the comments of the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. SARBAKES. Mr. President, I want to put a question to the Senator on the hold because I have been reading newspaper reports that I think have completely misinterpreted how the hold process operates. These reports have alleged that the Senate rules contain a provision that allows any Member of the Senate, in effect, to hold up any nomination action upon either a nominee or on legislation and sort of that is that. That is not the case.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the Senator is correct. It is, in fact, Mr. SARBANES. It is a courtesy that is extended to a Member when he places a hold. The leadership can move ahead if the Member is being recalcitrant. Of course, it is up to Members to exercise a hold with some self-restraint. They may get the extra time they need, but, in my judgement, it ought not to be used as a weapon that completely submerges the nomination or the legislation.

I believe it is important that the Senate be represented by Mr. Grassley.

The point is that my concern about this nomination and its timeliness is because of the fact that we now have in Kosovo a force under the NATO Command of General Clark, Operation Joint Guardian, which we had hoped would have had a smooth operational history, in fact it has encountered many unforeseen problems, problems where our troops and the troops of other nations had to perform all types of duties. Many of these young men and women who are courageously participating in this operation have had no formal training in the military with respect to many of the responsibilities they are now undertaking.

The United Nations, under a force known as United Nations Mission in Kosovo, referred to as UNMIK, has had a very slow start getting organized and into the field to perform duties that are currently being performed by the NATO military.

One of the reasons for working to accelerate the consideration of this nomination is that in knowing Mr. Holbrooke and having read his background, he, I believe, is better qualified than anyone else I know of today to take on this important post and to accelerate the functions of the United Nations in this region.

The sooner they get in, the less risk to the men and women of the Armed Forces currently undertaking many missions which they are doing quite well, despite the fact they have had lit- tle or no formalized training in operating civil, local governments in the village of Kosovo. Fortunately, this force is under the command of the NATO Commander General Clark. General Michael and Ambassador Holbrooke have known each for many years. They have worked together. They participated in the Dayton accords, for which Ambassador Holbrooke deserves great credit, and I will have further comment on that later.

Also, Ambassadors, when they report for their duties, may be fortunate to have a spouse who is quite interested in those duties and perform as a team. This is going to be an extraordinary husband and wife team of Richard Holbrooke and Kati Marton, his wife. She is a noted author. She has roots in central Europe. She is a beautifully educated and cultured woman. I have had the privilege of knowing her for a number of years. They will be an extraordinary team in this important post.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD a biography of Richard Holbrooke. The following is a summary of the material ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

RICHARD C. HOLBROOKE

Richard C. Holbrooke was the chief negotiator for the 1995 Dayton Peace Accords, which established peace and an end to human rights abuses in Bosnia, while serving as Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs, from September 1994 to February 1996. Beginning June 1997, Holbrooke served as Special Presidential Envoy for Cyprus, and in 1998 he was Special Presidential Envoy for Kosovo. Prior to becoming Assistant Secretary of State, he was U.S. Ambassador to Germany.

President Carter appointed him in 1977 as Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, a position he held until 1981. During his tenure, among other major events, the United States established full diplomatic relations with China. He is the only graduate ever to hold two Regional Assistant Secretary of State posts.

Holbrooke began his governmental career in 1960 joining the Foreign Service immediately after graduating from Brown University. After studying Vietnamese, he was sent to Vietnam and, in the following six years, served in a variety of posts related to Vietnam—first in the Mekong Delta as a provincial representative working on rural development, for the Agency for International Development, then as a Special Assistant to Ambassadors Maxwells Taylor and Henry Cabot Lodge. In 1966 he was reassigned to the White House, working on the Vietnam staff of President Kennedy. During 1969, he wrote one volume of the Pentagon Papers, served as a special assistant to Undersecretaries of State Nicholas Katzenbach and Eliot Richardson, and was a member of the American Delegation to the Paris Peace Talks on Vietnam, headed successively by Averell Harriman and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Following assignments in Vietnam, Holbrooke spent a year as a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University. From 1970 to 1972 he was Peace Corps Director in Morocko, leave from Foreign Service to become Managing Editor of the quarterly magazine Foreign Policy, a position he held until 1976. During 1974-75 he also served as a consultant to the President’s Commission on the Organization of the Government for the Conduct of Foreign Policy, which under the chairmanship of Ned was considered a magazine’s International Edition. In 1976 he coordinated National Security Affairs for the Carter Mondale presidential campaign.

In 1980 he made a career change, forming a consulting firm, Public Strategies, with James A. Johnson. He became a Managing Director at Lehman Brothers in 1985. Holbrooke has traveled to over 100 countries, including over 65 trips to China alone. He covered both domestic and foreign clients at Lehman Brothers, working on a wide variety of financial issues.

In 1992 he chaired the Bipartisan Commission on Reorganizing the Government for Foreign Policy. His most recent position in the private sector has been as Vice Chairman of Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation, based in New York.

Holbrooke has had long involvement in the non-governmental organization community. He is current Chairman of Refugees International; Chairman, American Academy in Berlin; Chairman of the National Advisory Council of the Harriman Institute, and a member of numerous Boards of directors and committees.

Holbrooke adds the Eleanor Roosevelt Val-Kil Medal to a long list of distinguished awards and honorary degrees already received. He was twice named on Time’s list of “The 100 most influential people” and received a Cold War Hero from the Foreign Policy Institute. He is noted author and has two sons, one also a television producer. He is married to Kati Marton and lives in New York.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, that concludes my opening remarks. I may have further remarks about this nominee, but I want to share the time now with my distinguished colleague from Delaware. I yield the floor.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I am pleased the Senate is finally considering the nomination of Richard C. Holbrooke to the post of United States Representative to the United Nations.

Before stating my reasons why I strongly believe that Ambassador Holbrooke should be confirmed, let me briefly review the process which led us to this day.

In June 1998, the President announced his intention to nominate Ambassador Holbrooke for the job of UN Ambassador. The formal nomination was delayed, however, until February of this year by an investigation into alleged ethical violations by Ambassador Holbrooke.

That investigation culminated in a settlement with the Department of Justice in which Ambassador Holbrooke agreed to pay five thousand dollars in civil penalties.

Once the Senate received the nomination in February, the Committee on Foreign Relations conducted its own inquiry, reviewing in great detail the investigation conducted by the State Department Inspector General and the Department of Justice.

In June, the Committee conducted three separate hearings on Ambassador Holbrooke’s nomination, reviewing first the ethical matters, then reviewing issues related to the United Nations and UN reform, and then reviewing Ambassador Holbrooke’s involvement in United States policy toward the Balkans.

On June 30 the Committee voted unanimously—on a voice vote—to report Ambassador Holbrooke’s nomination to the full Senate.

Since the Committee reported Mr. Holbrooke’s nomination, it has been subject to a variety of reported “holds” by several senators, only one of which, as I understand it, had anything to do with Mr. Holbrooke’s qualifications to be ambassador.

This delay is quite extraordinary for a position of this importance. The last two UN ambassadors were confirmed on the same day that the Committee voted, and in the last two decades, the Senate has, on average, voted within four days of the Committee’s vote.

I have mentioned all those and we are here today, for which I am grateful to the Majority Leader and the Chairman.

I believe the Senate should confirm Ambassador Holbrooke for a simple reason: he is highly qualified for the job.

There are few people who have had the kind of diplomatic experience that Ambassador Holbrooke has had. Ambassador Holbrooke had been in public service since the early 1960s, when he entered the Foreign Service. Since then, he has served in a wide variety of diplomatic positions—in each case with distinction.

In the Carter administration, he served as Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs. Appointed at the age of 37, at the time he was the youngest person ever appointed as assistant secretary.

In 1993, Ambassador Holbrooke re- turned to government service as Ambas- sador to Germany.

In September 1994, he became Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs. Again, Ambassador Holbrooke established a prece- dent: he became the first person to serve as assistant secretary of state for two different geographic regions.

A key challenge facing him upon his return to the United States was the conflict in Bosnia, which by then had been raging since the early 1990s. As Assistant Secretary, Mr. Holbrooke helped design and implement a strategy that culminated in the signing of the Dayton Accords in November 1995, which brought an end tothe Bos- nian war.

Of course, several people in the U.S. government deserve credit for the suc- cess at Dayton. But it cannot be denied that Ambassador Holbrooke—and the creativity and tenacity he brought to the task—was critical to bringing about this diplomatic achievement.

In February 1996, for personal rea- sons, Ambassador Holbrooke resigned from full-time government service. At the request of Secretary of State Christopher, he remained available to undertake special missions and to advise senior officials in the State Department. In 1997, President Clinton also asked him to become special President.

Throughout the three and one-half year period since leaving full-time govern-ment service, Ambassador Holbrooke has never been paid a dime for his efforts.

Mr. President, I daresay that there are few people with the diplomatic experience that Mr. Holbrooke will bring to the job of UN ambassador. He has significant experience at high levels of government. He has deep experience in two regions. And he has recently supervised and managed a major diplomatic conference that culminated in the end of a tragic war.

Let me state it as bluntly as I know how: we need Dick Holbrooke in New York and we need him there now. It has been nearly a year since we have had a UN ambassador.

The agenda facing the next UN ambassador is a long one.

The United Nations is taking the lead in establishing a civilian administrat-ive structure. We need someone with Dick Holbrooke's knowledge and experience to develop a program for restructuring UN personnel decisions to be made by this administra-tion. The United Nations is taking the lead in establishing a civilian administra-tive structure. We need someone with Dick Holbrooke's skill and knowledge to make sure it gets done right.

The United Nations is great in need of reform. We have promised the UN that we will pay nearly one billion dollars in back dues if these reforms are made. Ambassador Holbrooke promised that UN reform will be his “highest sustained priority.” We need someone with Dick Holbrooke's negotiating skills to help bring them about.

The UN Security Council remains seized with the issue of dismantling Iraq's arsenal of mass destruction. We need someone with Dick Holbrooke’s toughness to carry that task forward.

In sum, I believe Ambassador Holbrooke has all the qualities necessary to be an excellent UN ambassador. He has deep experience in government. He has been nearly a year since we have had a UN ambassador. The agenda facing the next UN ambassador is a long one.

The first investigation culminated in a civil settlement between Ambassador Holbrooke and the Department of Justice in which Ambassador Holbrooke agreed to pay five thousand dollars to settle allegations that he violated Section 207(c) of Title 18 of the United States Code.

To this day, Ambassador Holbrooke denies that he violated the law, but he has admitted that he later settled without admitting further delay of the nomination. The second investigation was closed almost as quickly as it was opened, with no punishment imposed against Ambassador Holbrooke.

The Committee obtained the thou-sands of pages of documents that were produced in the investigations of Ambas-sador Holbrooke, and has reviewed them independently.

I have reviewed all these matters closely, and I do not believe that they even begin to rise to the level where they should be considered disqualifying.

I do not make this statement lightly. I am a strong supporter of the ethics laws, and believe they must be rigor-ously enforced. Government employ-ees, as Ambassador Holbrooke stated in his first hearing before the Committee, must maintain the public trust.

I have known Richard Holbrooke for two decades, and am presumptuous enough to believe that he is an unethical person, and I find totally inconsistent with his character any suggestion that he is.

On the contrary: Dick Holbrooke is a dedicated public servant who, as the Committee has demonstrated, willingly devoted doz-ens—if not hundreds—of hours to assis-ting the government in the past sev-eral years, to the detriment of his com-mitment to his private employer. Every senator can be assured that the Committee has left no stone unturned.

The Committee sought and received access to every document reviewed by the investigators, and received access to internal documents of the White House, the Department of State, and the Department of Justice, including the memorandum setting forth the rea-sons why a criminal prosecution of Mr. Holbrooke was not warranted.

Mr. President, my friend from Vir-ginia is very diplomatic. My friend from Virginia is a man of grace and elegance. My friend from Virginia is a man who is able to get things done not merely because of his intellect but because of his brawn.

I am not as elegant as my friend from Virginia, so I will just say it out loud. This would not have happened without my friend from Virginia. The truth of the matter is, it took a Republican of stature, seniority, and influence in this area to break this loose. He is going to get mad at my saying this, but I think it is a shame that was required, but I thank him for it because he was relent-less over the last 5 months in trying to get us to move it forward.

I will ruin his reputation here, but the President owes him a debt of grati-tude, the Nation owes him a debt of gratitude, the Senate owes him a debt of gratitude, and Mr. Holbrooke, I know, is grateful for his effort. Because as the Senator from Virginia indicated, there is a significant agenda facing our next Ambassador to the United Na-tions.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if the Senate will yield, I appreciate his thoughtful remarks, but, again, it was a team effort by a number of us, including the Senator from Delaware.

I want to make the point here, the distinguished chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Mr. HELMS, and Senator BIDEN's colleagues on that committee held a hearing. There was a unanimous vote, and Mr. HELMS reported this nomination to the floor. It did pass through there with the approval of the committee on which the Senator serves.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I never had a doubt, nor did any of my col-lleagues, that if we ever got any forum in which we could discuss the qualifica-tions of Richard Holbrooke he would win unanimously. We never doubted that. But it took a lot to get it to the Foreign Relations Committee, to get a vote in the Foreign Relations Com-mittee, and once it got to the floor, to move it forward.

I want to say something about these holds. I have been here 27 years. I have been a sitting Senator longer than the Senator from Virginia. There are only seven people who have been in the en-tire time that the Senator is at home lost our sense of proportion. Holds have nothing to do with—nothing to do with—the balance of power here when used in the fashion they were used.

Let me explain what I mean by that. It is one thing to say, I am going to hold up that bill from passing because the bill left out two bridges in my State that are critical to the commerce of my State. There is a correlation between the spending of money and the impact on my State—a sense of proportion.

If I say that I am going to hold up the next Director of NASA because I want answers on how the space pro-gram is going to work, that is reason-able. There is a sense of proportion. There is a relationship between NASA and the head ofNASA.

But when I was chairman of the J udi-cy Committee for several years, or were I to become chairman of the For-ign Relations Committee, I would say: By the way—and, by the way, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee did not do this—were I to say: You know, I realize the Presi-dent's nominee for the Supreme Court may be a good guy, a good woman, but I'm going to hold her up because the Dover Air Force Base is being closed, that is no sense of proportion, that is an abuse of power—an abuse of power. That is totally unreasonable.

I want to say something about this was about. We held up one of the single most important foreign policy per-sonnel decisions to be made by this ad-ministration. And not a person in this
Mr. Holbrooke, One, in all my years in the Senate, no one in the Senate who has come before our committee is more qualified to do the job for which he has been nominated than this man—none; not one.

Second, this is an ethical man. This man’s ethics have been questioned under what I believe to be an aberration. We put in the law—and I voted for inspectors general, but guess what? The law can be triggered by an article in a newspaper. That can hold up a nomination for months, requiring an intensive investigation. This is the most investigated man we have had for the United Nations, and there is not an unethecal drop of blood in this guy’s veins.

So I think there are three things we have to do.

Let’s put this man in place. Let this incredible energy and intellectual horsepower that this fellow has go to work on behalf of America. Two, let’s do it with a modicum of proportion. No, not any proportionality here in holding up. And three, I would ask my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to consider joining with me and going back and relooking at the way in which the inspector general’s office is triggered and worked so we avoid this kind of thing in the future.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield 2 minutes?

Mr. BIDEN. Yes.

Mr. WARNER. If I might just advise my colleagues, the previous order is that the Senate will vote at 10. I ask unanimous consent that that be extended to, say, 10 minutes after 10, to afford other colleagues an opportunity to contribute their remarks. I am sorry, but the leader is very anxious, given the heavy calendar of work today, and I think it is important we proceed to this nomination. So if each of the remaining Senators can take 1 or 2 minutes, that would be helpful.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Yes. I object. Mr. Chair.

Mr. WARNER. We will just accommodate the 5 minutes, then. I ask unanimous consent so that that be extended to, say, 10 minutes after 10, to afford other colleagues an opportunity to contribute their remarks. I am sorry, but the leader is very anxious, given the heavy calendar of work today, and I think it is important we proceed to this nomination. So if each of the remaining Senators can take 1 or 2 minutes, that would be helpful.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Yes. I object. Mr. President, I am sorry, but I would like to have up to 5 minutes, and I did not realize I would be shut off.

Mr. WARNER. We will just accommodate the 5 minutes, then. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Texas have 5 minutes. What are the requests of the other Senators? Two or three minutes? So I ask unanimous consent so that that be extended to, say, 10 minutes after 10, at which time we then, hopefully—have the yeas and nays been ordered, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes, they have.

Is there objection to the unanimous consent request?

Without objection, it is so ordered. Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the nomination of Richard Holbrooke to be the United States representative to the United Nations with the rank of Ambassador. Ambassador Holbrooke has rendered superb service to our Nation during the course of his career. His diplomatic experience makes him an ideal choice for this very important position.

We need good, strong leadership at the United Nations. We have been without a permanent representative now for an extended period of time. An able, competent, skillful diplomat can make a big difference in terms of serving the national interests of our country.

Dick Holbrooke has had an illustrious career. He joined the Foreign Service in 1962. He had assignments in Vietnam, where he worked closely with Ambassador William Porter; Ambassador Maxwell Taylor; and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. From the very beginning he was right in the middle of the decisionmaking arena and was recognized for his extraordinary talents. He was the Director of the Peace Corps in Bangladesh. He then served in the government for a while and was managing editor of Foreign Policy magazine, one of our leading foreign policy think magazines, where he did an outstanding job. In the mid-1970s, he was a consultant to the President’s Commission on the Organization of the Government for the Conduct of Foreign Policy.

This is a man who has committed his entire career to analyzing and enhancing the foreign policy of the United States in the name of serving our national security interests. He held two assistant secretariats within the Department of State: Assistant Secretary for East Asian and Pacific Affairs and Assistant Secretary for European and Canadian Affairs. He has also served in a very distinguished way as our Ambassador to Germany.

I have worked closely with him in his capacity as Presidential Special Envoy to Cyprus, where he has been mightily to try to move that issue forward.

He will do a terrific job at the United Nations. He has done an excellent job in every government position he has held. His commitment and dedication are obvious for all to see. I think the Senator from Delaware was right in saying that there were attacks on Dick Holbrooke’s character which were extremely unfortunate and without basis or justification. To his credit, he stood all of that. A lesser person might have been frightened away. He did not.

I urge my colleagues to support the nomination of Dick Holbrooke to be our Ambassador to the United Nations. He will serve our Nation and, indeed, the world well in this position.
I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ROBERTS). The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, today we consider the nomination of Richard Holbrooke to the position of United States Representative to the United Nations. I would say that this debate is long overdue.

The United Nations is a very important tool in America's foreign policy arsenal and our ambassador to the U.N. is the key to exercising that power. For the past ten months, however, that post has stood vacant, thereby degrading our influence at the U.N. Today we have an opportunity to correct that omission and restore some of the United States' leadership in that world body.

There are few things the United States as a nation holds more dear than the ideals our country was founded on nearly 223 years ago. We continue to lead the global fight for freedom, for democracy, for peace, and for respect for human rights. For the past five decades, it has been the United States' strong, clear and persistent voice in both the Security Council and the General Assembly which has convinced other nations to support those same ideals.

Looking back on those fifty years, it is clear that our work at the United Nations has, by and large, been a success. Today, the United Nations is one of the most powerful champions of human rights, freedom and peace around the world. The U.S. has used the United Nations to support our foreign policy in places as far flung as Korea, Libya, Iraq, and Bosnia.

Without the United Nations, the two suspects in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 would probably never have faced a judge to account for their actions. Similarly, Saddam Hussein would still be free to terrorize both his neighbors and his own citizens. If it were not for the United Nations sponsored Implementation Force in Bosnia, war, bloodshed and genocide would still rule that nation. Today, the United Nations is engaged in helping to implement certain aspects of the peace settlement in Kosovo—which we all hope and pray will put an end to the bloodshed there as well.

While we are all familiar with United Nations peace keeping efforts in Bosnia and how we cannot forget the men and women wearing the U.N.'s signature blue helmets are keeping the peace in places as disparate as Angola and Tajikistan. In all, there are currently 16 different on-going peace keeping operations on four continents.

As a symbol of the next stage of involvement in Kosovo—one in which the United Nations will have an important role—it is tremendously important that we are represented in that world body. We must not allow any additional delay to further erode our leadership.

Last fall, President Clinton tapped an exceedingly qualified diplomat to head our delegation to the United Nations. Richard Holbrooke has served our nation well in a wide variety of posts—from Assistant Secretary of State for two different regions to Ambassador to Germany.

Today I would like to focus on the Balkans and this first real chance to bring peace to Kosovo. It is particularly fitting, therefore, that among Ambassador Holbrooke's greatest achievements are the Dayton Peace Accords which ended the civil war and genocide in Bosnia.

Five years ago, it was the war and ethnic cleansing in Bosnia, not Kosovo, that captured the world's attention. Innocent civilians were murdered and raped simply on the basis of their ethnicity. Venturing into the market to buy food entailed the risk of instant death at the hands of snipers or soldiers with a mortar on a nearby hilltop. Each day was a fight for survival.

Today, however, Bosnia is rebuilding. In 1995, talks held thousands of miles away from the battlefields—in Dayton, Ohio—silenced the sounds of gunfire and ended the massive human rights abuses. The man who brought the Serbs, Bosnians and Croatians together to work toward to achieve a settlement is sitting before us today.

As Ambassador Holbrooke well knows, it is often easier to wage war than to make peace. In spite of the daunting odds, however, Ambassador Holbrooke did make peace and for that he deserves our praise.

Following his return to the private sector in 1996, Ambassador Holbrooke continued to serve his country. Without any compensation from the government, Ambassador Holbrooke focused his efforts on trying to end the dispute on the island of Cyprus and the bloodshed in Kosovo.

The success or failure of the Kosovo agreement will be determined by whether the United States, our NATO allies and Russia stay the course together. The job of bringing this broad coalition together and keeping it together will not be an easy one, but it is one with which Ambassador Holbrooke has experience—experience we need at the United Nations at this critical juncture.

It is important to mention the other critical issue which is damaging our reputation for effectiveness at the U.N.: our failure to pay our dues. The funds we owe the U.N. are formal treaty obligations, not optional contributions. Today, we are in grave danger of losing our vote in the General Assembly. Imagine the irony, if the United States, one of the founders of the United Nations, loses its vote in that organization's primary decision making body. The compromise Chairman HELMS and Senator BIDEN worked out with respect to our dues will be a long time away, if we are able to convince our colleagues in the House to refrain from attaching poison pills to this bill. We already missed one opportunity to pass that compromise, namely the emergency supplemental appropriations bill. I remain hopeful, however, that the compromise, which is a part of the Senate passed State Department Authorization bill and now in conference with the House will become law before the end of this session of Congress.

Now is the right time to confirm a new ambassador to the U.N. He has the requisite experience for the job and, even more importantly, is a proven peacemaker.

Mr. President, in conclusion I add my voice to those who have already spoken expressing their gratitude to Senator HELMS and Senator BIDEN, who are the chair and ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, for the leadership that my friend and colleague from Virginia, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, has shown on this nomination, and for many others who have spoken on behalf of Richard Holbrooke, in many cases, not because they agree with the politics of Richard Holbrooke or necessarily agree with every position he has taken on various public matters, but because there is an understanding that in our country, regardless of administration and politics, we need good, talented people, who analyze issues well and bring an energy and a passion and a commitment to public policy.

One of those reasons, I am particularly grateful to our friends on the other side who may not agree with Richard Holbrooke but understand he is a talented human being.

I underscore the point that Senator SARBANES made. Too often we discourage good people in this country from serving their Nation because we have created a gauntlet that one has to go through prior to confirmation that will discourage other people from even thinking about going through this process. What you expose yourself and your family to to take on positions to serve your country is becoming far too much. I think as a body we ought to take a closer look at what we ask people to go through whom we ask to serve their Nation.

Richard Holbrooke has a distinguished career, as Senator SARBANES and Senator WARNER and others have pointed out, going back more than 30 years. He has been through an awful lot over the last year and a half, almost 2 years now.

I particularly am concerned about the inspector general at the State Department, as my colleagues on the Foreign Affairs Committee know. I have written an amendment, which was adopted, that requires that those people in the State Department who are accused of wrongdoing have a right—I know this sounds like a radical thought—to know what they are accused of and have an opportunity to respond to the accusation before the reports are written. That is not the case today.
Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DODD. I am glad to yield.

Mr. SARBANES. Does the Senator mean that at the moment you are not permitted to find out what the charges are all about or the actual facts of the accusations?

Mr. DODD. That is absolutely correct. In the case of Richard Holbrooke, he was not allowed to find out what the charges were against him for well over a year. A common criminal accused of a felony can get that much information. It seems to me if we have a system inside our government where a mere accusation of someone can result in months and months of delay or public retribution, not to mention legal costs to defend yourself, something is terribly wrong with that process. We are trying to correct it.

Again, I don't want to spend the time talking about the problems we have but to commend one individual for persistence, who wants to serve his country, and do it well. In my view, a remarkably fine job for all of us. I am sorry it took so long for him to arrive at this point, but I am grateful he has. Again, for those who made it possible, I thank them and am confident that Richard Holbrooke will serve our Nation well.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I will speak about why I am going to vote against the Holbrooke nomination. I start by saying, I have never put a hold on this nomination. I thought the process should go forward in due course. I think Richard Holbrooke is a principled man. I think he is a committed public servant. I admire his tenacity, his dedication. I have nothing personal against Richard Holbrooke. I am voting against him because I disagree with his policy. I think put forward in the Balkans, I just can't, in good conscience, vote for someone who I think is taking our country in the wrong direction.

This is his policy: that the United States should spend billions of dollars, wear and tear on our equipment and our troops, stretching our military for our own national security by over-deploying our military troops, by wear and tear on our equipment, by not having a sense of proportion in looking for a solution, not looking at all of our commitments in the world, but instead trying to force an American model that I think is unrealistic today. I think there are other options to try to help the people in the Balkans create a more stable Europe and then, eventually maybe, they would be able to live closer together in harmony.

Mr. President, I want to say I am only voting against Mr. Holbrooke on his foreign policy principles, not on him as a person. I will say again that I think he is a committed public servant. I think he is tenacious in his beliefs, and I admire that in a person. I just believe that our foreign policy is going in the wrong direction in this country. I think we are going to pay a high price for it, and I think Richard Holbrooke is one of the architects of this policy that I believe is quite erroneous. So, for that reason, I will vote against Richard Holbrooke.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I have had a chance to discuss the role of the U.S. at the United Nations with the nominee on a number of occasions and am pleased with the qualifications to this position. He has a long and distinguished record of public service and foreign service.

Richard Holbrooke has a long and distinguished record of public service and is an outstanding diplomat. He clearly has the necessary experience, background, and skills to ably represent America's interests at the United Nations.

Richard Holbrooke has served with great distinction in many previous capacities, and all of us who know him have great respect for his ability and judgement. He has served as the President's Special Envoy to Bosnia-Herzegovina, as Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs, as U.S. Ambassador to Germany, as Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, and as a Peace Corps Director.

Of his many extraordinary accomplishments, he is best known for his skillful work in presiding over the long and difficult negotiations to achieve the Dayton Peace Accords in 1995, which ended the war in Bosnia. The United Nations is a complex institution involving many international interests, and I'm confident that Richard Holbrooke will represent our country in that role. Our representative might be an exceptional negotiator. Richard Holbrooke is a skilled negotiator with the ability to articulate clearly our country's ideals and persuade other members of the international community to support those ideals as well. He's an outstanding choice for this very important foreign policy position, and I'm proud to express my strong support.

Mr. SPECTER. I am pleased to vote for the confirmation of Ambassador Richard Holbrooke to be United States Ambassador to the United Nations and even more pleased to see the Senate vote on this important nomination in advance of the August recess so that Ambassador Holbrooke can start on his important assignment.

Ambassador Holbrooke brings unique qualifications to this position. He began his government career in 1962 joining the Foreign Service, graduating from Brown University. Among the many posts he has held are Special Presidential Envoy for Cyprus in 1997, Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and Pacific Affairs, Peace Corps Director in Morocco and U.S. Ambassador to Germany. Ambassador Holbrooke was the chief negotiator for the Dayton Peace Accord in Bosnia.

I had occasion to evaluate Ambassador Holbrooke's work in some detail when I served as Chairman of the Intelligence committee which undertook a Mr. LIEBERMAN addressed the Chair.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise to strongly support the nomination of Richard Holbrooke to be this country’s Ambassador to the U.N. I was thinking the other day when we were engaged in the Foreign Relation Committee’s fourth hearing on Mr. Holbrooke—four hearings on Mr. Holbrooke. We looked rather closely and thoroughly at his policies, his background, his professional qualifications. He did not come up short in all of those areas. But I was thinking, I don’t know if there has been an individual who has been more probed and investigated for this very important position than Mr. Holbrooke.

I believe the President of the United States deserved his team. As he nominates his team for the Senate to pass judgment on, give advice and consent, as constitutionally is our responsibility, if that individual possesses the high moral quality and qualifications, and the high professional standings, qualifications, and experience, then the President needs his team.

I echo much of what has been said this morning about how important it is that we get our Representative of the United Nations. Now, we have differences of opinion in philosophy and policy, and I appreciate that. Every Senator has his or her own position, as he should. But I will say this as my last comment about Mr. Holbrooke. I hope and I believe he will make every effort to bring some bipartisanship to foreign policy. It seems to me that we have allowed bipartisanship in foreign policies, national security affairs to erode and come undone to the point where it is dangerous.

I believe both sides are responsible. I think the President hasn’t reached out enough, and I think we in the Congress have made foreign policy and national security affairs a more brittle, raw political dynamic. If we don’t come back together, as bipartisanship needs to be sewn back together in these very important issues for the future of our country and stability of the world, we will pay a high price. I hope that Mr. Holbrooke will lead that effort.

I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the distinguished Senator. He has been very helpful throughout the nominating process.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded. I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the distinguished Senator. He has been very helpful throughout the nominating process.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time yielded is now reyielded to the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the distinguished Senator. He has been very helpful throughout the nominating process.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is now reyielded.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the distinguished Senator. He has been very helpful throughout the nominating process.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

S10275

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, before I yield the floor to the distinguished chairman of the Interior Appropriations subcommittee, I confirm again we are going back to the Interior appropriation bills. We hope to and plan to have amendments beginning right away. We could have a recorded vote on one of the amendments within the next 15 to 30 minutes. We will continue working on the Interior appropriations bill until we get an agreement as to exactly when to proceed to the reconciliation conference report.

I will not propose a unanimous consent request at this time, but it is my hope we can get an agreement to begin at 1 o'clock on the consideration of a reconciliation conference report, and we debate it for 6 hours, of course, equally divided in the usual form, and the vote then would occur around 7 o'clock.

We do not have that worked out yet. If we require more time, if we have to be in later, then of course the vote would go later in the night, perhaps 8 o'clock or, if we cannot get that worked out, I go however long we need to go tonight and we would vote on Friday morning sometime. But we hope to get an agreement where we could complete that and have a vote around 7 o'clock tonight.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Washington is recognized.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, in just a moment, I will have several agreed-upon amendments to propose and hopefully they will be agreed to very quickly.

Then Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire is here with the first contested amendment. I hope we can finish as many as three amendments that are likely to require rollcalls between now and 1 o'clock. After the Smith amendment that deals with the National Endowment for the Arts, I will have an opportunity to go to an amendment by Mr. GRAHAM of Florida and Mr. ENZI, relating to Indian gambling. While I have not found the Senator yet, I would like, after that, to go to an amendment by the Senator from Nevada, Mr. BRYAN, on forest roads. Others may intervene.

We also have a number of amendments that will be agreed upon from time to time. My own reading of our list is that these are reasonably limited, even at this point. Several require votes. I hope none will require a long and extensive debate. The majority leader wants, as early as possible, to get an agreed-upon list of amendments. I suspect we will be asking for unanimous consent to say all amendments must be filed by, say, sometime this afternoon. So Members who have amendments about which they have not notified the managers are encouraged to do so as promptly as possible.

I believe the majority leader wishes to finish this bill, as well as the reconciliation bill on taxes, before the recess begins sometime tomorrow.

AMENDMENT NOS. 1563 THROUGH 1568, EN BLOC

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside and that we consider six amendments en bloc which I send to the desk. I will explain each of these amendments, sponsored by a Senator and relating to projects within that Senator's State or the two Senators' State, and simply shifts money among projects within the States.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Washington [Mr. GORTON] proposes amendments numbered 1563 through 1568, en bloc.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendments be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The two Senators from Florida, Senators MACK and GRAHAM: A very similar land acquisition offset.

And Senator Reid of Nevada: A shift of $150,000, again, within the State of Nevada.

I ask unanimous consent that all six amendments be considered en bloc and accepted en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendments are agreed to.

The amendments (Nos. 1563 through 1568) were agreed to.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.
The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 1569

(Purpose: To eliminate funding for the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities)

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, on behalf of myself and Senator ASHCROFT, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to laying aside the pending amendment? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. SMITH], for himself and Mr. ASHCROFT, proposes an amendment numbered 1569.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

On page 107, lines 3 and 4, strike “National Endowment for the Arts” and substitute “National Endowment for the Humanities”.
On page 107, lines 8 and 9, strike “for the Arts” and substitute “for the Humanities”.
On page 108, beginning with line 12, strike all through page 110, line 11.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, my amendment to the Interior appropriations bill is a very simple one. It eliminates all funding for the National Endowment for the Arts. This amendment has been considered by the Senate in the past, unfortunately unsuccessfully. I know where the votes are, but I believe it is important we make a statement about this because I do not believe the Federal Government should be spending money for this.

This amendment does not try to reform the agency. This amendment does not try to restructure the agency. It simply shuts it down in fiscal year 2000.

I want to take a little different tack on this. Many who have spoken in the past on the National Endowment for the Arts, as far as elimination of funding, have focused heavily on some of the reprehensible and repulsive, frankly, types of material that has been displayed and called “art.” I am not going to do that this morning. Most Members are fully aware of the kinds of things that have been funded by this agency.

I remind every Member that we took an oath to support the Constitution. All of us at one point stood right where the page you are now sitting and said that we would bear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution of the United States of America. I certainly believe that every Member took that oath seriously. That is why I am hopeful I might be able to persuade my colleagues to support this amendment because, frankly, whatever opinion you may have of it, is unconstitutional to have the National Endowment for the Arts funded by the Federal Government. A constituent challenged me on this one time and wrote:

“Where in the Constitution of the United States does it say that the Federal Government is authorized to fund art?”

Let me repeat:

“Where in the Constitution of the United States does it say that the Federal Government is authorized to fund art?”

I challenge any of my colleagues to show me that in the Constitution, and I will reconsider my amendment.

I offer this amendment because I have not been able to find this in the Constitution. The authors of our Constitution envisioned a government of limited powers, and if it does not say that you do, in fact, that the Federal Government is reserved to the people and the States. If the State or the people want to fund a State endowment for the arts, I would not have a problem with that. That is entirely within their parameters.

The framers made it clear—very clear—that unless the Constitution explicitly granted a power to the Federal Government, that power would be reserved to the States, to the localities, to civil society, or to the people.

I know there are many—and this is the frustrating part for me—too many in this body who reject that vision. I have been here going on 9 years, and it is very frustrating for me to watch the Constitution of the United States being trampled time after time. I just a week or so ago, we passed more gun controls and sent it to conference. Gun control, however you may feel about the need for gun control, is unconstitutional because it is an amendment that says we have the right to keep and bear arms. Whatever you may feel about that issue, we did not come here to pass laws about our personal beliefs.

We came here to pass laws that support the Constitution of the United States of America.

When we swear to uphold that document, we agree to live by that vision whether we like it or not. Whether we disagree or agree, we should live with that vision. If you do not always do that here,

This amendment is my effort—just a small effort—to move a little closer to the founders, move a little closer to that vision of limited constitutional government. It is interesting that I have to say move a little closer.

Do we have to move closer to the vision of the founders when we are supposed to uphold the Constitution and enforce that vision, not move a little closer to it. We should be there.

It is a bad idea to use taxpayers’ funds to subsidize art. But it is unconstitutional.

Whether it is a good idea or bad idea, it is unconstitutional, and that is the point I am making.

Most of my colleagues will recall the controversies in which this agency has been embroiled. I referenced them briefly at the beginning of my remarks. I am not going to get into all of it because we have heard it before. But funding the exhibition of sadomasochistic photographs, funding the exhibition of a photograph of a crucifix submerged in human waste, funding the exhibition of a performance “artist” who smeared chocolate across her naked torso, and a man who exposed his audience to HIV-infected blood—all of these things were funded by the taxpayers of the United States in the name of art.

Let me repeat that. Funding of sadomasochistic photographs, funding of a photograph of a crucifix submerged in human waste, funding of a so-called performance artist who smeared chocolate across her naked torso, and a man who exposed his audience to HIV-infected blood, all funded by the taxpayers of the United States of America.

I ask you to reflect, if you are a taxpayer, the fact that it is pretty hard for those dollars, and when you pay those taxes every April 15 to Uncle Sam, you probably hope it is used to preserve and protect and defend the United States of America, perhaps to educate the next generation of Americans. But do you really want your money to go to this kind of so-called art?

The question is, is it constitutional to fund art? Even more so, is it constitutional to fund this kind of stuff? Do you want your taxpayer dollars being spent for this? The sad part about this—we have seen this in debate after debate, in amendment after amendment, year after year, as we tried to stop this. Senator HELMS has been involved in this many times, to rise to his feet in trying to expose this agency. Senator ASHCROFT, who is my original cosponsor, has also been involved in this and has been a leader on this.

But the defenders of the NEA, the National Endowment of the Arts, always tell you—you will hear it after the vote on this amendment, I am sure, if not before—that they believe these outrages are a thing of the past, that all of the things I just cited about the outrageous things have been involved in this and has been a leader on this.
Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that this New York Times article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the New York Times, Mar. 10, 1999]

U.S. CANCELS GRANT FOR CHILDREN'S BOOK

WRITTEN BY MEXICAN GUERRILLA

BY JILLIA PRESTON

MEXICO CITY.—A macaw with scarlet and violent plumage soars across the cover of a book called "The Story of Colors," inviting children to read a folk tale about Mexican gods who took a gray world and filled it with brilliant hues.

There are a few surprises, though, in this eye-catching children's book just published by a small publisher in El Paso, Texas, which won a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Its author is Subcomandante Marcos, the political mastermind and military strategist of the Zapatista guerrillas of southern Mexico. On the inside flap, he appears in a photo with a black ski mask hiding his face and bullet-laden ammunition belts slung across his chest.

On Tuesday, the chairman of the Endowment, William J. Ivey, who is working to rebuild the agency after its recent reappraisal of a death sentence issued by congressional Republicans—abruptly canceled the grant for the book, Ivey said, overruled a multilayered, year-long grant approval process, acting within hours after the book was brought to his attention by a reporter's phone call.

He said he was worried that some of the Endowment's funds might find their way to the Zapatista rebels, who led an armed uprising in 1994 against the government of Mexico.

Ivey's decision stunned the Cinco Puntos Press, a shoestring operation that had laid out $15,000 to print 5,000 copies of the book, to be distributed and carry the Endowment's logo on the back. "This book is essentially about diversity, and tolerance, everything the NEA is about," said Rafael Sebastian Guillen Vicente, who runs the publishing company with his wife and shares a Children's Book called "The Story of Colors," inviting Mexican Americans who fund this agency.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. This grant to a publisher for a children's book, Ivey said, was a grant to a publisher for a children's book, paid for by the taxpayers under the National Endowment of the Arts, at a time—recently—when we had been told that the agency had cleaned up its act and that there was no longer a problem that the Endowment's support for art was regarded as offensive and vowed to eliminate the agency. But the House moderate its views under election year pressures and overwhelmingly in July 1998 to keep the agency alive.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. This grant had to do with a grant to a publisher for a children's book. Listen carefully, a children's book. This was a grant to a publisher for a children's book, paid for by the taxpayers under the National Endowment of the Arts, it was a grant to a publisher for a children's book, paid for by the taxpayers under the National Endowment of the Arts, it was a grant to a publisher for a children's book, paid for by the taxpayers under the National Endowment of the Arts, at a time—recently—when we had been told that the agency had cleaned up its act and that there was no longer a problem that the Endowment's support for art was regarded as offensive and vowed to eliminate the agency. But the House moderate its views under election year pressures and overwhelmingly in July 1998 to keep the agency alive.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. This grant to a publisher for a children's book had been approved at every level of the NEA's review process. Somebody might say: Well, there you go. It worked. They stopped this grant for a children's book, it wasn't appropriate for children. What is your argument, Senator?

Let me finish. Why did they cancel at the last minute? Because the Chairman of the NEA found out that the book's author was a Mexican guerrilla leader. The chairman was afraid that the royalties would benefit the Mexican guerrillas. So the reason for the grant cancellation was because of the Mexican guerrilla group, not because of the content.

Let's take a look at the content. The New York Times reported that this children's book contained sexually explicit illustrations and text; in other words, this children's book, with sexual content, would have received the NEA support. If this year—I submit there is an inherent flaw in the peer review process that led to this circumstance, and all the other outcomes over the years. The peer review process does not reflect the values of the decent, hard-working, tax-paying Americans who fund this agency.

I just find out about this grant from the New York Times, which I have entered into the RECORD.

I want to remind you, again, that this grant was canceled because the chairman would go to a Mexican guerrilla group, and there was no reference whatsoever to the content.

This is a children's book. I would ask my colleagues and the American people to ask yourselves whether you want to see tax dollars used for this kind of stuff for a children's book:

The illustrations are bright, broad-stroked paintings of gods with horns and bug-eyes -

Byrd said he made it clear in his grant proposal that no part of the grant would go to the author, Subcomandante Marcos, because the guerrilla leader has declared he believes in violence and formally waived his rights in talks with the Mexican press. Byrd said that rights would be paid to the Guadalajara Press for the use of the artwork.

When Republicans gained control of the Congress in 1995, they were frustrated with the Endowment's support for art that was regarded as offensive and vowed to eliminate the agency. But the House moderated its views under election year pressures and overwhelmingly in July 1998 to keep the agency alive.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. I yield to my friend, the distinguished Senator from Washington.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. I yield the floor and appreciate the chairman's consideration in offering the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, my friend, the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire, argues for his amendment by saying the National Endowment for the Arts is unconstitutional and should be eliminated. I yield to the Senator from New Hampshire that Members of the Senate of the United States have a responsibility, just as do sworn members of the Government.
In 1995, when this debate was at its height, the proponents of the arts severely restricted the ability of the National Endowment for the Arts to make individual grants, and many of these highly criticized expenditures were made to groups and organizations. Overwhelmingly, today, money for the National Endowment for the Arts goes to States' arts agencies and through grants to a wide range of cultural institutions, many of them. In the past, much more than was the case in the past, though perhaps not quite enough—to organizations in the smaller communities of the United States, outside of major metropolitan areas, either to bring various forms of music, dance, theater, the visual arts to those smaller communities, or to support the creation of such art in those communities in a way that I think is highly enthusiastic. And it becomes increasingly difficult for the critics of the Endowment to say that what goes here is not used on matters that are not artistic or are totally and completely inappropriate.

The present Chairman of the Endowment and the predecessor Chairman of the Committee worked diligently and, I think, quite successfully in seeing to it that that was not the case. We created congressional nonvoting members of the National Endowment. The Senator from Alabama, who is one of those members, has the floor. He has expressed to me his frustration frequently with the way in which some of his advice has been ignored. But I think his very presence has a salutary effect on the way in which the Endowment is managed.

As a consequence, there was a bitter division between the Senate and the House of Representatives in which the House, on at least one occasion—and I think two—did defund the National Endowment. A substantial majority in the Senate. This year, it has disappeared. The House of Representatives has funded the Endowment. If my memory of the bill is correct, there is only a $1 million, or 1 percent, difference between this bill and the bill that passed the House of Representatives.

For me, perhaps the most significant and weighty argument in favor of this appropriation is an argument I have heard over and over again—that programs that involve partnerships among the Congress of the United States, State governments, and the private sector. That is the fact that I do not believe there is a single arts group or institution in the United States of America that receives all of its funding from the National Endowment for the Arts.

As a matter of fact, there may not be any that receives 10 percent of the the money that goes to an individual that receives funding from the National Endowment for the Arts. Overwhelmingly, its grants are modest in amount. They are sought eagerly by far more applicants than can possibly receive those grants, because the very fact that the National Endowment for the Arts has given $20,000, or $30,000, or $100,000 to a particular organization adds a degree of prestige and imprimatur to the activities of that organization that make its efforts to secure private sector funding—generally, in every case, the great majority of the funding of these organizations comes from the private sector—makes securing that funding easier. Whether it is right or not, contributors seem far more likely to contribute to the organizations that have been recognized by the National Endowment for the Arts than they are willing to do so with respect to the thousands of other arts organizations and groups that don't receive such funding.

So the appropriation here is considerably less than 1 percent of the money in this appropriations bill that goes to the National Endowment for the Arts and multiplied many times over by the amount of money actually getting into the field for this purpose, instead of taking on something that would otherwise be wholly and completely a responsibility of the Government of the United States.

So, Mr. President, I believe the serious debate over the future of the National Endowment for the Arts has passed. I think it has passed because the National Endowment is reformed. I think it has passed because they are now doing what I believe the Endowment was originally intended to do, and doing it in almost every case with a remarkable degree of thoughtfulness and good sense. What we come up with here, representing only a tiny percent of the money that goes in the arts activities in the United States, is nevertheless very important in that support and vitally important in securing the private sector support for the arts, and that has been in the past and will be in the future a primary source of the money.

Regrettably, I oppose the amendment of the Senator from New Hampshire in this connection. If he wishes to speak again, I am going to yield the floor now. I note the presence of the Senator from Florida and Wyoming, and I know the Senator from Missouri, Mr. Ashcroft, wants to speak on this issue. So we are not going to bring it to a vote now. When the Senator from New Hampshire has made his comments, I will ask unanimous consent to go on to the next amendment.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Was the Senator from Florida seeking to respond to the amendment?

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, he is here on his own amendment.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I have just a few brief responses to my colleague.
I believe it would be a fallacy to equate Government funding, its own activities, legitimate functions of the Government, to fund those activities such as the Library of Congress and the Smithsonian, which obviously are document preservation, arts, and historical things that is legitimate in my view; but to equate that with the Government funding of private activities is where I have my differences. I think that is the difference—the Government funding its own activities versus the Government funding private activities.

I believe that art, in terms of the examples I gave, is and should be funded privately because there is a matter of what is art and what is not art, which is a matter of personal opinion. I don't believe taxpayers should fund somebody else's view of what art is or is not. I also think it is wrong for us to act without explicit constitutional authority, whether it is in the arts, or education, or anything else.

The Senator from Washington is correct. I misspoken when I said education. I should not have used that term because, also, the Federal Government, in my view, does not have a legitimate role in determining the education of our children. I believe that is a local matter that ought to be done by the States, the local communities, and parents.

Finally, to say it is a good thing for a Federal agency to provide a "seal of approval" for the arts so that the private sector will know what to support, that is a threat to art.

I think that threatens the legitimate issue of art in that government has no business telling people what good art is or what bad art is. I don't think there is any room for the government in art. Frankly, it is very interesting when you pick out the platform of the Republican Party and read it. Some don't believe we should read our platforms. But I happen to believe we should.

In the Republican Platform, there is a quote of Senator Bob Dole of March 10, 1995, in which he said:

"On November 8, 1994, the American people sent a message to Washington. Their message is my mandate to rein in government, reconnect it to the values of the American people, and that means making government a whole lot smaller, a lot less arrogant and getting it out of matters best left to the States, cities, and families across America. That is all I am trying to do. What I am trying to say is if there is some family out there—I can't believe there would be, but there may be—who would like to have a children's book show them a naked man and naked woman embracing in the act of sex, if they want to show that to their children, as I said before, I guess that is up to them, but I don't think we ought to be funding it.

Furthermore, finally, what the Republican Platform said at that time was:

"As a first step in reforming government, we support the elimination of the departments of Commerce, Housing and Urban Development, Education, Energy, and the elimination, defunding, or privatization of agencies which are obsolete, redundant, of limited value, or too regional in focus. Examples of agencies that we seek to defund or to privatize are the National Endowment for the Arts, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, and the Legal Services Corporation."

I am quoting out of the platform. Finally:

In addition, we support Republican sponsored amendments which would require the original sponsor of proposed Federalization to cite specific constitutional authority for the measure.

If you are going to offer something as an amendment or a bill which ultimately may become law, then cite constitutional authority for it because, after all, we are here to protect and defend the Constitution.

That is the only point I am trying to make. I understand that the votes have never been here to eliminate this agency. I don't expect them to be here this time.

I don't mean to argue, other than to say that I ask my colleagues to try to move back to a constitutional issue because I believe that is what this is all about. If you make an exception, even if this was art that was pleasing to me, if it was art that I liked, that I approved of, it would be the same argument—that it has no business being funded. It is not constitutional. I don't believe that we should be funding it.

I see my colleague from Missouri. I know he is an original sponsor of this amendment.

Mr. President, at this time I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I rise today in support of this amendment offered by Senator Bob SMITH of New Hampshire.

This amendment, which eliminates the $99 million appropriated to the NEA, gives Senators the opportunity to decide whether the Federal Government should be in the business of judging and funding art.

There are only two ways a Federal government could be involved in funding art: either by judging it or by funding it randomly. I don't think either of those is a good alternative for the Federal Government.

I hope a majority of my fellow Senators will agree with me that the Federal Government should resign from its role as a national art critic—telling us what to enjoy or what not to enjoy, and spending our money to tell us that this is good or that is bad.

It seems to me that to have the Federal Government as an art critic to determine what type of art is superior to another type of art is not something that a free nation would want to encourage. Government should not be in the business of subsidizing free speech, putting its so-called "Good House-keeping Seal of Approval" on certain pieces of so-called art.

When the government funds art, it will always have to make value judgments on what is art and what it is not. I don't think that is an appropriate function of the Federal Government. The only way to get out of this business is to stop government from funding art.

I guess you could fund art randomly—spin the wheel, and whichever artist's name comes up, give them the money. But you would have to decide who got to be part of the lottery.

For those who say this is an issue of free speech, my view is that speech is not free if government funds it. As a matter of fact, it is funded speech, and not free speech.

When we tax people, we take their dollars coercively. We simply say that if you do not give us the money, you go to jail. Try not paying your taxes and find out whether it is enforced or not. You will find out that the IRS can be very convincing and very persuasive because they have this independent capacity to coerce the dollars.

Government subsidies, even with the best intentions, are dangerous because they skew the market toward whatever the government grantmakers prefer. The National Endowment for the Arts grants place the stamp of official U.S. Government approval on funded art. This gives the endowment enormous power to dictate what is regarded as art and what is not.

A number of art critics and people in the arts community, have observed this.

Jan Breslauer, Los Angeles Times art critic said in 1997 that, "The endowment has quietly pursued policies rooted in identity politics—a kind of separatism that emphasizes racial, sexual and cultural differences above all else. The art world's version of affirmative action, these policies... have had a profoundly corrosive effect on the American arts—pigeonholing artists and pressuring them to produce work that satirically corrects an agenda rather than their best creative instincts."—The Washington Post, March 16, 1997.

I would like to call myself an artist because I like to engage in musical performances. I like to engage in the writing of music, and the writing of poetry. But I feel a little below par, so I can't really call myself an artist. There have been some who have said that some of the art I like to engage in music and the arts community, have observed this.

I am quoting out of the platform. Finally:

The concept of pressure and art is a very difficult concept to reconcile. I think of Michelangelo painting on the Sistine Chapel and the Pope demanding one thing and another. I don't know if it is true, but it is said that in response to that pressure, Michelangelo painted certain words in the ceiling saying that he would resist the pressure.

Joseph Parisi, editor of Poetry Magazine, the nation's oldest and most prestigious poetry magazine, has said that discussing American literature and values is a question of political correctness. Parisi has said that this is not the case. He has stated that literature and values are important and that the United States should subsidize the arts. This is a point of view that I agree with.

In short, the government should not pick and choose among different points of view and value systems, and continue politicizing the arts. Garth Brooks fans pay their own way, while the NEA canvases the nation for politically correct art that needs a government seal of approval. It is bad public policy to subsidize free enterprise. I would not affect his agency's day-to-day operations, but for the life of me, I cannot understand why the Federal Government would not affect his agency's day-to-day operations. But for the life of me, I cannot understand why the Federal Government would subsidize the arts in the United States.

Charles Pinckney introduced a motion calling for the Federal Government to subsidize the arts in the United States. Although the Founding Fathers were culturally individualistic who knew firsthand of various European systems for public arts patronage, they overwhelmingly rejected Pinckney's suggestion because of their belief in limited constitutional government. Accordingly, nowhere in its list of powers does it delegate to the Federal Government the Constitution specify a power to pick jazz masters over guitar pickers.

It is noteworthy what the Constitution does provide. Article I, section 8, states: "The Congress [of the United States] shall have Power . . . To promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries;"

We can protect the work of artists from unlawful and inappropriate appropriation by those who would steal those works and profit from them. In other words, our Founding Fathers established the noble goal of protecting intellectual property of those who are involved in science or the arts. The Founding Fathers did not think the way to protect the rights was to subsidize them or contaminate them or to prefer one over the other. Instead, they believed government protection should extend to protecting their initiative, their creativity, and their discovery.

Some have taken comfort in the recent Supreme Court decisions that have upheld the Federal statute directing the NEA to take into consideration "general standards of decency and respect for the diverse beliefs and values of the American public" in making grants. While some have said this ruling will appropriately address the concerns over the type of art the NEA will fund, I don't think that is the case. Moreover, in response to the Finley decision, Chairman Ivey said the ruling was a "reaffirmation of the agency's discretion in funding the highest quality of art in America" and that it would not affect his agency's day-to-day operations. That was a quote from the New York Times.

These court cases do nothing to solve the underlying issue of whether Government should fund and decide what is art. Suffice it to say the time has come to end the Federal Government's role of paying for and thereby politicizing art. Art should be pure, not politics, and it shouldn't ever become pure politics; it can, when art is elicited, shaped, and coerced in order to comply with Federal guidelines. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise in objection to this amendment. In a way, I am grateful this amendment has come to the floor. I think this Senate should go on record: Will we decide to go on the course suggested by Senator Ashcroft of Missouri and Senator Smith of New Hampshire and say there will be no funding of the arts in America, that we have decided now at this moment in our history that we will walk away from governmental assistance to the artists across America who are starting out and trying to develop their own skills?

I think that is an important question. I know as well as those listening to the debate that over the last 10 or 12 years there has been a lot of controversy about the National Endowment for the Arts. There have been some controversial grants, grants for art projects which I personally found reprehensible.

The bottom line is, it is as wrong to condemn the National Endowment for the Arts because of one or two grants as it is to condemn any Member of the Senate for one or two votes. Each Member can make a mistake. Each Member can do something unpopular. Each Member can do the wrong thing in the eyes of the public. Yet to condemn Members as individuals is just not fair, just, or American. Nor is it fair for Members to condemn the National Endowment for the Arts for things that were done many years ago.

Over the last several years, it has been my good fortune to be a non-voting member of the National Council of the Arts; it can, when art is elicited, shaped, and coerced in order to comply with Federal guidelines. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment.

Listening to the speeches on the floor, one would think that these are Members of the National Council of the Arts; it can, when art is elicited, shaped, and coerced in order to comply with Federal guidelines. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment. I yield the floor.
Let me tell Members about one particular program. I am sorry the Senator from Missouri cannot hear this because I think he would appreciate it since he was born in the city of Chicago. I think he would understand the importance of some of the programs that I am going to speak about.

In my home State of Illinois there is a program called the Merit Music Program. The Merit Music Program is an exceptional effort inspired by one lady who decided that she would try to reach the poorest of the poor, the children in the city of Chicago and find those kids who had music potential. What she has done over the years is literally bring in hundreds of kids each year who learn how to play a musical instrument. These are kids who live in some of the poorest housing in Chicago, and their most prized possession will be a violin, a clarinet. They will develop musical skills.

Each year, I try to attend their recital on Saturday with kids from kindergarten on up. Sometimes there are 400 kids from kindergarten on up who play their musical instruments. It is an amazing performance from kids who come from the poorest families. It is a performance that is made possible by the National Endowment for the Arts.

The chance to learn to play a musical instrument. One might say, well, that is a nice hobby; what can it mean? When we follow these kids through their music education, what do we find? Every single one of these kids, when they go to college. These kids give them a chance at artistic expression, not only have wonderful fulfillment, they have ambition. They decide they can rise above what they have seen around them in their neighborhoods. That is what art and music can do.

I am almost at a loss for words—which is something to say for a Senator—when I hear those on the other side of the aisle stand and say: Well, what good is this? Why would we encourage this? When I hear those on the other side of the aisle stand and say: Why would we encourage this? Why would we encourage a Symphony Orchestra? My guess is, if not this year, then at some year in the past, the National Endowment for the Arts has helped that symphony orchestra. Does your school system have an art program that encourages kids and moves them along? Many of those programs across America receive assistance from the National Endowment for the Arts.

The National Endowment for the Arts last year received $98 million out of a Federal budget of about $1.7 trillion. We took $98 million to give to the National Endowment for the Arts. That is a lot of money; I will concede that point. In the context of the big Federal budget, though, it is a very tiny piece. But it is a piece of Federal spending that is used to encourage artistic creation and expression.

Of what value is that expression to those of us who are simply art consumers? Let me tell you a personal story. My mother was an immigrant to this country. She came at the age of 2 from Lithuania with her mother and grew up in East St. Louis, Ill. She remembered in the evenings that is when she had to stop and go to work as a switchboard operator at a telephone company. She raised me and my two brothers, and she was a woman who was always trying to learn and to appreciate things. Should I tell the Senator from Missouri, Mr. Ashcroft, she used to put us in the family car on a Sunday afternoon and we would go across the bridge to the St. Louis Art Museum, and my mother and I would walk through there looking at paintings. She had no knowledge of art, but she knew what she liked and appreciated. How many Sunday afternoons we walked through there and I looked at those paintings. As a kid, I was totally bored. As I got a little older, I came to appreciate them. But here she was, a simple woman, immigrant woman, a blue-collar worker, who thought it was important her son see art and what it stands for.

So when I hear the arguments made that this is a minor effort; this is a blue-collar workers across America, to ask them to take a tiny fraction of their Federal taxes and devote it to the arts, I think those critics miss the point. Visit museums on The Mall here in Washington or in any city across America, and I guarantee you will see a cross-section of American life, the rich and the poor, the educated and the uneducated, all appreciating what art can bring to our lives. This is not something for which we pay taxes; it is something we should be proud of. The legacy we will leave in America for future generations is not just a legacy of concrete and steel; it is a legacy of art as well.

Those who visit countries around the world, wherever they may be, usually stop first at the art museums because they want to see the collections. It says something about the value of art when it comes to civilization. To think we would take a step backwards on the floor of the Senate today and decide we will not provide assistance and money for the arts is unthinkable. It is unthinkable. In a way, I appreciate the opportunity to have this amendment. Let's have a record vote. Let's see how many people here want to join a group which basically says that the United States of America, with all of its richness, with all of its diversity, cannot afford $98 million to encourage the arts.

Let me tell you about another art project that received a decoration, an award from the National Endowment for the Arts. It is called Street Level. It is an art program that is in the city of Chicago again. Two young men who worked for advertising agencies decided they just didn’t quite like going to work 9 to 5 every day. They wanted to do something more. So they gathered together equipment and put their plates into getting new versions of computers and videotape machines and the like. They put it in a little storefront on Chicago Avenue, and they invited kids from junior high and high school across Chicago to come after school to learn how to make documentary films and do animation for cartoons.

There was a young lady there who lived on the south side of Chicago who literally had to take three buses after school to get to the Street Level Art Program, but she was so excited at the prospect of developing her skills, her creativity in art. This is another group that received an award from the National Endowment for the Arts. For Senators to come to the floor and say get Government out of this business is to basically say do not get the seed money to Street Level, don’t give the seed money to Merit music. If we did, if we said we are going to close the door and turn out the lights on Government involvement for the arts, would we be a better nation for that? I do not think so.

I think, frankly, the National Endowment for the Arts has done an excellent job. It has learned some valuable political lessons over the last several years. It is fortunate to say that this amendment do not concede that point and they cannot join the other Members of the Senate to come with me to these meetings twice a year to see what is involved because not only education programs but children’s festivals, literary programs, orchestras, museums, dance companies, all receive a helping hand from this National Endowment for the Arts.

I also have a Senator on the floor. He has joined me at meetings of the National Endowment. The President has proposed a program. It is called “Challenge America.” A point made by Senator Sessions from Alabama on the floor here. He has joined me at meetings of the National Endowment. The President has proposed a program. It is called “Challenge America.” A point made by Senator Sessions at one of our meetings, and a valid one, was that the National Endowment for the Arts should reach out into communities which have not traditionally been served and helped by the National Endowment, and they are doing that. I think that is the right thing to do because it can encourage an artistic expression in the rural areas of Alabama and the rural areas of Illinois. I think we will be better for it.
Unfortunately, this bill does not provide a great deal of funding for that, but the bottom line is that it is a concept we should pursue in this country. As it stands, this is still in the concept stage, but it is an important concept, particularly when it comes to encouraging and reaching out to young people at risk of dropping out of school or becoming delinquent or abusing drugs.

We spend so much time here on the floor wrestling with problems that American families are worried over, not the least of which was the shooting at Columbine High School in Littleton, CO. We are trying to read and study and speak among ourselves and say: What is going on in the minds of these children that they would come so violent, grab a gun, and shoot at their classmates?

Even though I am a parent and proud of the three children my wife and I raised, and our grandchild, I do not consider myself a specialist in this area. But I do remember from my own life experience, watching my kids grow up, if you give a young person a chance for fulfillment, that young person somehow knows you that chance has not been squandered and will make something good of it. Some of them will be the best students in the class. Others may not be great when it comes to grades, but they may turn out to be excellent artists or excellent musicians.

If we close down the NEA and turn out the lights, as this amendment suggests, we are turning out the lights on a lot of young children in America who just need an opportunity to express themselves, to prove themselves. Without that opportunity, they will certainly be frustrated; I hope not worse. But it really would be a loss for this Nation.

I sincerely hope this amendment is defeated, and I hope it is defeated overwhelmingly because I believe, in defeating this amendment, we will make it clear that when it comes to freedom of expression, encouragement of arts, even though our investment is relatively small in terms of the larger Federal budget, it is still important because it says what we are about in America. We are about encouraging diversity of opinion, encouraging artistic expression, encouraging our young people to fulfill themselves.

I hope my colleagues will join me in defeating this amendment, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. GORTON. Will the Senator from Minnesota yield for just a moment?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I will not yield my time, if you give a young person a chance for fulfillment, that young person somehow knows you that chance has not been squandered and will make something good of it. Some of them will be the best students in the class. Others may not be great when it comes to grades, but they may turn out to be excellent artists or excellent musicians.

If we close down the NEA and turn out the lights, as this amendment suggests, we are turning out the lights on a lot of young children in America who just need an opportunity to express themselves, to prove themselves. Without that opportunity, they will certainly be frustrated; I hope not worse. But it really would be a loss for this Nation.

days. Teachers did not get paid much, but they were highly dedicated teachers.

The principal of the high school was a man by the name of William Jennings Bryan Cormany. And his wife, Margaret, was an excellent music teacher. Mr. Cormany was a strict disciplinarian. He was the kind of high school principal we should have all across this country these days. We paid attention in his class. He taught physics. He was an excellent teacher.

I started playing a high school orchestra and a band. She wanted me to be in the band. I was the bass drummer. The bass drum was larger than I was, but I was the bass drummer. She also talked me into taking lessons on the violin. My foster father was a coal miner, and through the heat of his brow, he bought me a violin. I can remember the Saturday afternoon when we piled into a large flat-bed truck and went from Stotesbury to Becky Lee, about 15 miles away.

I went back home that night. I had a violin case tucked under my arm with a violin in it. My dad paid all of about $28 or $29 for this violin, violin bow, and violin case. I went home that night and hollered to my dad that I was becoming a Schubert or a Chopin. I could see myself being one of the great artists. Those were dreams.

How great it is to believe the dream
As we stand in youth at the starlit stream,
How great it is to believe the dream
Our hearts, all golden,okin.'

But I did it nevertheless. So, I came to learn to play “by ear,” as they say.

Well, now, my boyhood without that music would have been an empty boyhood. I started out in life where the bottom rungs of the ladder were not there. They were missing. There was not the first rung or the second rung. As I say, I grew up in the Depression, which was a hard, hard life at best.

But the music did something for me. It did a lot for David. David’s music did a lot for Saul when he appeared before King Saul. Music through the ages has come from the depths of the soul of man. It has been an inspiration to him Michelangelo and the Sistine Chapel; Leonardo da Vinci and the Mona Lisa; Phidias, who was a great sculptor at the time of Pericles. Pericles lived in the latter half of the 5th century. I remember the Peloponnesian Wars lasted from 431 to about 404 BC. Phidias was a great sculptor of the time. All through the ages men have had this desire to use their talents. We read about seeing the forms of animals or persons carved into the caves of ancient mankind and on the obelisks in Egypt. We know about the cuneiform pictures. We know about the Hittites, the ancient Chinese. The ancient peoples drew word pictures before they learned to write.

There is something about man that is above the animal. Do not tell me that man and animal know they teach that in school, but they are all wrong. They are 100 percent wrong. Man is not an animal. An animal cannot draw a picture. An animal cannot paint a picture. An animal cannot play a violin. An animal cannot memorize the multiplication table. Man is not an animal.

God created man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life. There is a spark of the divinity in man. A man is a little lower than the angels, but there is that spark of divinity. There is something in mankind that tends to lift his spirit in the lofty flights of song and poetry. Music is one of those talents that is ingrained in the genes of man.

I can certainly understand the feelings of Senators with respect to some of the recipients of funds from the National Endowment of the Arts in years gone by. They were absolutely foolish, a thousand and worlds away. It was colossal stupidity on the part of the Endowment to award grants to people who had such motives and objectives as a few of them had. But they were a tiny few. I think it would be a very serious mistake here to strike this from the bill.

Who knows, there may be a little Michelangelo, there may be a little Benjamin West. Benjamin West said that one day he took to his mother some childish drawings of birds, and his mother took him up on her knee, kissed him, and said: “Son, you will grow up to be a great painter.” Benjamin West said that it was a mother’s kiss that led him to become a great painter. The encouragement that his mother gave him after seeing the childish drawings and paintings that he had made caused him to aspire to do greater things.

I do not remember that my dad was very poor, the man who raised me. At Christmastime, he never gave me a cap buster or a cowboy suit. In saying this, I do not denigrate those things. But he gave me a watercolor set or a drawing tablet or a book. He never wanted me to be a coal miner, as he had been.

So here we are today. In a sense, we can feel that in passing this legislation, as we are passing it, and providing funds—and funds are hard to come by—but we are in a sense providing a little watercolor set or a drawing tablet—we can put it down to that level—to some talented, ambitious, deserving achieving person.

T’clock with this poesy, if I can recall it, which tells the story. Who knows, out of these funds there may not be just one, but there may be many masters—masters—as they develop the talents that are borne within their genes. Many people have those talents and never have the opportunity to develop them. So, where we can, I think, provide the opportunity and the encouragement, we ought to do it. That is a side of life—a side of our culture that is uplifting. We should not attempt to dampen it down, or discourage or put it beyond the reach of those who cannot otherwise afford it.

I inherited some of that talent for music. I loved it. And so my coal miner dad, who was my uncle, bought this violin for me. I started taking lessons in it. My natural father was a musician. He had a natural talent for the banjo, the guitar, the Autoharp, he never put his hands on—the organ, the harp. He could play almost any instrument he ever put his hands on. Many people have those talents and never have the opportunity to develop them. So, where we can, I think, provide the opportunity and the encouragement, we ought to do it. That is a side of life—a side of our culture that is uplifting. We should not attempt to dampen it down, or discourage or put it beyond the reach of those who cannot otherwise afford it.

And find at the end that the dream is true.

I dreamed of being a great musician.

My natural father was a musician. He was not an educated man. He never took a music lesson in his life. I never knew him very well. I only lived with him about a week in my life. He was my natural father.

I lost my mother when I was less than a year old. She died with the influenza in 1918. But she wanted my father, and she died with the influenza, to give me to one of his sisters who had married a Byrd. She died the next day or so after she came down with the flu.

And find at the end that the dream is true.

My father just had a natural talent for many things. When he went out to pick the beans in the garden, he would be memorizing chapters from the Bible. He could play almost any instrument he ever put his hands on—the organ, the banjo, the guitar, the Autoharp, and so on. He had a natural talent for music.

I inherited some of that talent for music. I loved it. And so my coal miner dad, who was my uncle, bought this violin for me. I started taking lessons when I was in the 7th grade in school. When I graduated, of course, I was still in the orchestra and in the band.

By that time, I had also learned to play many of the old mountain tunes. My music teacher, Mrs. Cormany, did not take very well. She was not very happy that I was good enough to extend the orchestra and play “Old Joe Clark” on my fiddle or “Arkansas Traveler” or “The Mississippi Sawyer” or “The Chicken Reel.” She did not ap-
By the touch of the Master’s hand.

Let us defeat this amendment and reject it overwhelmingly let us continue to make it possible for some future masters to lay their talented hands upon the culture of our own civilization and thereby benefit all of posterity.

Mr. REID addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID, Mr. President, the only reason I sought recognition is to speak before the motion to table is made. I apologize to my friend, the manager of the bill, recognizing how badly he wants to move on. I feel inclined to speak on this amendment.

I say to the Senator from West Virginia, my friend, I have had many inspirational times on the Senate floor, and most of them have been directly attributable to the Senator from West Virginia. If what we just listened to, was not inspirational, then someone wasn’t listening.

I had the honor a week ago to participate in a parliamentary exchange with the British Parliament. I was able to meet with a small group of British parliamentarians with a number of Senators in West Virginia. The hosts of that event were Senators BYRD and STEVENS. It was a wonderful weekend where we talked issues.

One evening we were able to meet and I even saw a place called Kate’s Mountain in West Virginia. I had been there only once before. I came to realize, on my first trip to West Virginia at Kate’s Mountain, that what song, those West Virginia hills where I was born, means to someone from West Virginia because Kate’s Mountain is part of those West Virginia hills. I appreciate those hills, even though I wasn’t born in those West Virginia hills. Part of the entertainment that night, just a few days ago, was a bluegrass band playing. Senator BYRD participated in the entertainment. He took the microphone and proceeded to sing. It was a wonderful, fun, entertaining evening.

Well, Mr. President, I can’t sing. I can’t play a musical instrument. But there is no one in the world that enjoys music more than I enjoy music. I have tried to play music. I have tried to sing. I can remember as a young man in high school, I wanted to sing. I went to try out for the choir at Basic High School in Henderson, NV. I can still remember the choir director, Chapman Wooten, a wonderful man, but he could understand talent when he saw it. He didn’t see it in me. He said I should continue to play football and baseball and pass on the choir.

I didn’t make the choir. In fact, I was there a few minutes. But I still love music. I can’t paint a picture. I have tried. My grandchildren paint better than I do, but I love to paint a picture. I have in my home paintings that may not be very valuable, but they are valuable to me. They are paintings I have bought because I loved those paintings. I can remember the first painting I ever bought. I was just out of law school. I went to the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas, and a man by the name of McCarthy had an exhibit there. If he hadn’t made a living painting, but I gave him $75 for a painting that I still have. If you come in my home, there is the first painting that I ever bought. I bought that painting because it reminded me of my wife. It is a painting of a woman. I bought it when she was young.

I was born and raised, as most of you know, in a little place called Searchlight, NV. We had very little entertainment in Searchlight. There wasn’t a church to go to. I never went to a church until I went to high school. There wasn’t one to go to. In the whole town there was one person who played a piano. I don’t know how well she played it, but she played the piano for Christmas programs. That is about all she could do. I remember many, many songs of some note. She was not noted for playing her piano. She had been married 34 times. I knew that because she was married to a few of my uncles. But she played the piano. She was our music in Searchlight. Any program we had, she was part of it.

I am sure in that little town of Searchlight there were people who could have played, if there had been someone there to give them a lesson, to explain to them how to paint a picture. In the entire time that I was growing up in Searchlight, I don’t remember a single person playing a musical instrument because they didn’t play one. I don’t remember a single person painting a picture because they didn’t paint a picture. There was no one there to help us, to encourage us.

The National Endowment for the Arts is part of that which I envision as helping kids like HARRY REID growing up in rural America, rural Nevada. It also helps kids in urban America, but I think of it as to what I can relate to. The National Endowment for the Arts is a program that is important for people in this country.

I can remember first becoming acquainted with the National Endowment for the Arts because Senator BYRD allowed me to conduct some of the hearings of the Subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee. I conducted the hearings. I loved doing that. We conducted hearings relating to the National Endowment for the Arts. I became so impressed with the work that they do that I have been a fan ever since.

In Elko, NV, we benefit from the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. There is a great program; it is the cowboy poetry that should be preserved. This is a cowboy poetry festival. It took years to get off the ground. A man by the name of Cannon got it started. He started off in Utah, and he did everything he could because he had this idea that there was cowboy poetry that should be preserved and perpetuated. He couldn’t get it off the ground. He went to private foundations. He did everything he could. They didn’t think his idea was very good. He went to Elko, NV, and talked to the National Endowment for the Humanities, the National Endowment for the Arts helped him get this program started. Now it is world famous. You can’t find a motel or a hotel room when you come to this festival is occurring. People recite poetry. They read the books of western American history that are written and talked about and presentations made. It is because of these programs, the National Endowment for the Arts, National Endowment for the Humanities.

In Nevada, we benefit all the more. There are so many things. I have a spare of papers here talking about how great these programs are. One from Delores Nast. She doesn’t teach art. She is not a teacher. She loves art, though. She wrote a book on western American art, strongly that part of our tax dollars should be directed towards support of our Nation’s cultural and educational initiatives.

What an understatement. The most powerful Nation in the entire world can’t spend a few dollars on helping kids from Searchlight, NV, learn to paint a picture or play a musical instrument. Yes, we can do that. We must do that.

I am not going to, as I say, hold up the manager of this bill. I only want to say that we in Nevada believe in the National Endowment for the Arts. There are some people who criticize it, but they criticize anything dealing with government. I am proud of supporting the National Endowment for the Arts. I am proud of supporting a motion to table this amendment. It should be tabled overwhelmingly because we, the most powerful Nation in the world, need to spend more, not less, on the arts.

NOT VOTING—4

With that, if the majority leader is prepared to give that verbal understanding his concurrence, I will not object.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I give my concurrence in that. We intend to return to the Interior appropriations bill. I believe the distinguished manager of this legislation would be glad to agree we would go to this issue immediately upon return, with a vote if one is required.

Mr. GORTON. If the majority leader will yield, I would be delighted to have the first item to be dealt with, with respect to the Interior appropriations bill, immediately after the vote on the tax bill, be the point of order the Senator from Virginia wishes to raise.

Mr. ROBB. Will the majority leader include that particular provision in his unanimous consent request?

Mr. LOTT. I am glad to make that additional request in my unanimous consent request.

WATER RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1999—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, to my absolute surprise and delight, I understand the water resources development bill has been completed in conference. I extend my hearty congratulations to the managers and to the distinguished chairman of the committee, Senator CHAFEE, for his efforts in getting that conference report put in place.

I yield the floor to him for a consent request with regard to that conference report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate now proceed to consideration of the conference report to accompany S. 507.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee on conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 507), have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses this report, signed by a majority of the conference.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the conference report.

The conference report was printed in the House proceedings of today.)

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the conference report be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statement relating to the conference report be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The conference report was agreed to. Mr. CHAFEE. I thank the majority leader for moving this legislation along, and I thank all concerned.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, as a member of the minority who had the honor to be a conferee, may I say that this legislation of great importance could not have happened in the absence of our chairman. Our chairman did a superlative job. It was not an easy one with the other side. But here it is before us and I am deeply grateful.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. President, Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from New York. He has headed many of these conferences. I particularly recall some of the transportation conferences he has headed in which he did landmark work. Wording kind words coming from him and praises is doubly important to me. I greatly appreciate them. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, today the Senate is considering the conference report to accompany S. 507, the Water Resources Development Act of 1999. The measure, similar to water resources legislation enacted in 1986, 1988, 1990 and 1992, is comprised of water resources project and study authorizations, as well as important policy initiatives, for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

This bill was introduced by Senator WARNER at the beginning of this year. In previous years, the Senate from Virginia had been the chairman of the Transportation and Infrastructure Subcommittee of the Senate. In that role he guided a similar bill through the Senate during the previous Congress. We are very grateful for his hard work on this legislation and sticking with the project considering the new mandate, new chairmanship of the Armed Services Committee.

Unfortunately, the House was unable to pass a companion measure last year because of a dispute over flood control and water supply in the State of California. So, this WRDA bill is somewhat overdue.

This year, S. 507 was adopted unanimously by the Senate on April 19, 1999. On April 29 of this year, the House of Representatives adopted its version of the legislation by a vote of 418 to 6.

Since that time, we have worked together with our colleagues from the House and the Senate and the administration to reach bipartisan agreement on a sensible compromise measure. Because of the numerous differences between the Senate- and House-passed bills, completion of this conference report has required many hours of negotiation.

To ensure that the items contained in this legislation are responsive to the nation's most pressing water infrastructure and environmental needs, we have amended requirements established in previous water resources law. Mr. President, let me take a few moments here to discuss these criteria—that is, the criteria used by the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee to determine the merit of proposed projects, project studies and policy directives.

In 1986 Congress enacted and President Reagan signed a Water Resources Development Act that broke new ground. Importantly, the 1986 Act marked an end to the sixteen-year deadlock between Congress and the executive branch regarding authorization of the Army Corps Civil Works program.

In addition to authorizing numerous projects, the 1986 Act resolved longstanding disputes relating to cost-sharing between the Army Corps and non-federal sponsors, waterway user fees, and the Corps' traditional mission of the civil works program. That milestone, along with the work done on that legislation and included in the Water Resources Development Act of 1998, has been carried forward into this measure.

Mr. President, the conference report is an important policy initiative, the types of projects in which federal involvement is appropriate and warranted.

Each flood control, navigation, environmental restoration, or other project requires a level of federal involvement that is applied uniformly across the nation.

Second, projects are not authorized until various reports and studies have been completed to assure that the projects are justified from economic, engineering and environmental perspectives.

Third, projects must fit within the traditional mission of the civil works program of the Army Corps. That mission includes flood control, improvements to navigation, shoreline protection, and environmental restoration.

These are the precepts that we have applied to the provisions contained in the pending conference report. Although there are special circumstances that justify exceptions to every rule, I believe that this bill does a good job of adhering to the fundamental purposes and principles of the WRDA program.

Water resources legislation has been enacted on a biennial basis since 1986, with the exception of 1994.

The bill we are bringing back from conference today includes scores of projects with a total federal authorization of approximately $4.3 billion. Importantly, more than $1.5 billion of this amount will go toward environmental mitigation and restoration and water cleanup projects for sewage discharges, stormwater retention, and the control of combined sewer overflows.

A bill like this takes hard work by many parties. I would like to salute our Senate conferees, Senators SMITH, BAUCUS, MOYNIHAN, VOINOVICH, and BOXER. As I said earlier, Senator Warner has been the key sponsor on this bill as its author, manager and member of the conference committee.

Senator Dixon playing a key role on this bill included Ann Loomis for Senator WARNER and J Ellen Darcy for Senator BAUCUS. On my staff, first Dan Delich and, after he left us, Abigail Kinnison and Chelsea Henderson, have worked many hours to make this bill possible.

On the House side, the chairman of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, Congressman SHUSTER, and minority leader OBERSTAR and Congressman BOEHLERT deserve high praise for their work. We thank them very much for the spirit of compromise they brought to the conference and for their efforts to complete this task before the recess.

I am pleased to bring this conference report to the Senate. I trust that those who every day depend on the fine work of the Corps of Engineers to protect their lives and their livelihoods will benefit greatly from the legislative work that has been done.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I rise today to support the adoption of the Conference Report to accompany S. 507, The Water Resources Development Act of 1999, WRDA.

As we all know, the Water Resources Development Act of 1998 passed this Chamber last year, but was never enacted. This Conference Report builds upon the work done on that legislation and includes some additional projects and programs for the Army Corps of Engineers. With the adoption of this conference report, we wrap up some unfinished business from the 105th Congress and are back on course for development of a Water Resources Development Act for 2000.

S. 507 authorizes projects for flood control, navigation, shore protection, environmental restoration, water supply storage and recreation, as well as several studies which will be the basis for future Corps projects. The projects have the support of a local sponsor willing to share the cost of the project with the Federal Government.

Many of the projects contained in this bill are necessary to protect the nation's shorelines, along oceans, lakes and rivers. Several of the navigation projects need timely authorization in order to keep our ports competitive in the global marketplace. The projects will be reviewed by the Army Corps of Engineers and must be in the federal interest, technologically feasible, economically justified and environmentally sound in order to go forward. In other words, these are projects worthy of our support.

Furthermore, the bill authorizes spending on the comprehensive, cumulative impact study of the Yellowstone River in my home state of Montana, that need to get underway so that we can make informed decisions about the future use and management of these precious resources.

In this regard, the conference report contains a new continuing authorities program, known as Challenge 21. This program, proposed by the Administration and supported by the conferees, emphasizes non-structural flood damage reduction measures and riverine and wetland ecosystem measures that conserve, restore and manage the natural functions and values of the floodplain. We hope that this new program will integrate needed flood damage reduction ecosystems in a natural way than traditional brick and mortar. Programs like Challenge 21 will help move the traditional Corps' mission into the next century.

I am pleased the conference report has been adopted.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am pleased that the Senate today will enact the Water Resources Development Act of 1999. This important legislation continues the Corps of Engineers civil works critical mission to provide flood control, hurricane protection, river and harbor navigation improvements, environmental restoration of our nation's waterways and other water resource infrastructure improvements.

Since 1963 when the Congress and the Executive Branch reach agreement on landmark cost-sharing principles that apply to the preparation and construction of these projects, the Congress has endeavored to make this reauthorization bill on a two-year cycle.

As the former Chairman of the Environment and Public Works Subcommittee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the Congress enacted a water resources reauthorization bill in 1996. Regrettably, due to the complexities involving a project to provide flood protection for the Sacramento, California area, the House and Senate were unable to resolve the differences concerning the project in 1998.

Today, the conference report before the Senate includes those projects in last year's bill along with other construction projects that the Corps of Engineers has reviewed and judged to be successful in leveraging non-Federal costs and they have ensured that only those projects with the greatest merit, economic benefit and local support move forward.

It was my view, along with Chairman CHAFFE and the Ranking Member, Senator BAUCUS, that we must insist on the cost-sharing requirement for projects authorized in this bill. I regret, however, that the conference report does not apply the cost-sharing principles in all cases.

I would have liked to see the House and Senate colleagues to remember the 10-year stalemate that existed between the Congress and the Executive Branch from 1975 to 1986. At that time no water resource projects moved forward because the Executive Branch insisted on some level financial contribution from those who would benefit from these projects. By 1986, the Congress and the Administration had reached an agreement on a fair allocation of costs and since that time there has been an orderly process for planning, designing and constructing water resource projects.

We must not abandon cost-sharing rules elsewhere there is the very real possibility of again triggering a halt to Federal funding for these important projects. I will continue to work to follow the requirements of the 1986 bill and stand ready to work with my colleagues on this issue.

Mr. President, this legislation, which was three years in the making, involved a great deal of staff time and commitment. I want to express my appreciation to the staff of the Environment and Public Works Committee—particularly to the Staff Director, Dan Delich, Abigail Kinnison, Chelsea Henderson, Jo-Ellen Darcy, Ellen Stein and Peter Washburn for all of their efforts. Also, the professional expertise of the Corps of Engineers was invaluable. I particularly want to thank Larry Prather, Gary Campbell and the many dedicated professionals at the Corps of Engineers Headquarters for their technical evaluation of the many projects that came before the Committee for consideration.

Mr. President, I urge the adoption of the conference report.

THE SAVANNAH HARBOR DEEPENING PROJECT

Mr. COVERDELL. Mr. President, I rise to request that the Chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee help me to clarify the intent of the Savannah Harbor Expansion Project that appears in Section 102 of the 1999 Water Resources Development Act. It is my understanding that this legislation authorizes a project to deepen the Savannah River channel to a depth of up to 48 feet subject to a favorable report by the Chief of Engineers and a favorable recommendation of the Secretary by December 31, 1998.

Mr. CHAFFE. The senior Senator from Georgia is correct.

Mr. COVERDELL. It is my understanding as well, that both the Chief of Engineers' Tier I Environmental Impact Statement and Feasibility Report provide for the establishment of a stakeholders' evaluation group which will have early and consistent involvement in the project, and as part of the process, the EIS requires the development of a mitigation plan to fully and adequately address predicted and potential adverse impacts on, among other things, the Savannah National Wildlife Refuge; striped bass population; short-nose sturgeon; salt water and fresh water wetlands; chloride levels; dissolved oxygen levels; prison; and historical resources. Is that correct?

Mr. CHAFFE. That is correct.
Mr. COVERDELL. It is my further understanding that before this project is carried out, the Secretary, in consultation with affected federal and nonfederal entities, must develop a mitigation plan addressing adverse project impacts and that the plan must be implemented in advance of or concurrent with project construction and must ensure that the project cost estimates are sufficient to address all potential mitigation alternatives. Is that correct?

Mr. CHAFEE. That is correct.

Mr. COVERDELL. I thank the Chairman for his assistance and look forward to working with him on this important matter.

Mr. CLELAND. Will the Chairman yield for two additional questions on this project?

Mr. CHAFEE. I would be happy to answer any questions the Senator may have.

Mr. CLELAND. As the Senator recalls, during the Senate's consideration of the Water Resources Development Act in the 105th Congress, we discussed the matter of whether the bill authorized the Secretary or the Georgia Ports Authority to proceed with construction of the project without the respective department heads concurring on an appropriate implementation plan and mitigation plan and that it was our understanding that the bill did not provide such authority. In this current version, is this still your understanding?

Mr. CHAFEE. The Senator's understanding is correct.

Mr. CLELAND. Further, is it still the Senator's understanding that any funds to be appropriated by Congress for the project must be allocated in a manner that ensures that project impacts are fully and adequately mitigated and are otherwise consistent with the mitigation plan developed by the Secretary and the stakeholder evaluation group?

Mr. CHAFEE. That is correct.

Mr. CLELAND. I thank the Chairman for the opportunity to clarify these understandings.

HOWARD HANSON DAM

Mr. GORTON. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the Committee for its efforts to help resolve several very important and contentious issues affecting the Howard Hanson Dam project in Washington state.

I applaud the Howard Hanson provision in the Managers' Statement accompanying this legislation, which recognizes the ongoing negotiations between the Corps of Engineers and the National Marine Fisheries Service with respect to the Corps' responsibilities under the Endangered Species Act for the protection of threatened Puget Sound Chinook Salmon. These fish runs are directly impacted by the Corps of Engineers' operation of Howard Hanson Dam and, as a consequence, the Corps will be asked to bear responsibility for these impacts under the ESA.

I appreciate the Committee's acknowledgment that the requirements of ESA might force a revision of the cost allocation for the Howard Hanson project. Given the urgent need to have mitigation measures in place as soon as possible to protect salmon runs in the Puget Sound region, is it the Committee's intent that the Corps provide a proposal for a cost reallocation to the Committee for consideration in the Water Resources Development Act for the year 2000?

Mr. CHAFEE. It is the Committee's intent that the Corps and the National Marine Fisheries Service to complete their ESA consultation expeditiously so that a cost share adjustment can be considered by the Committee in a timely manner.

Mr. GORTON. I thank the Chairman.

Mr. VOINOVICH. I will be happy to respond to the Senator from California.

the future health of the Port of Baltimore and of Maryland’s environment.

First the bill authorizes nearly $28 million for needed improvements to Baltimore Harbor Anchorages and Channels. Many of the existing anchorages and branch channels within Baltimore Harbor were built in the first half of this century and are no longer deep enough, wide enough or long enough to accommodate the vessels now calling on the Port of Baltimore. Many of the larger vessels anchor off 15 miles south of Baltimore in naturally deep water, resulting in delays and increased costs to the shipping industry. Also, the narrow widths of some of the branch channels result in additional time for the pilots to maneuver safely to and from their docking berths. In June 1996 the Chief of Engineers approved a report which recommended a number of improvements including: (1) widening and deepening Federal anchorages 3 and 4; (2) widening and providing flared corners for state-owned East Dundalk, Seagirt, Connecting and West Dundalk branch Channels; (3) dredging a new branch channel at South Locust Point; and (4) dredging a turn of the creek at the head of McHenry Channel. The report identified the project as “technically sound, economically justified and environmentally socially acceptable.” This project has been a top priority of mine and Port Administration and of the shipping community for many years and I am delighted that this legislation will enable us to move forward with this important project.

Second, the legislation directs the Corps of Engineers to make critically needed safety improvements to the Tolchester Channel in the Chesapeake Bay. The Tolchester Channel is a vital link in the Baltimore Port system. It was authorized in the River and Harbor Act of 1947, designed to tap the water of the Potomac River and of the Chesapeake Bay, along Maryland’s Eastern Shore. This alignment, which is shaped like an “S,” has posed a serious navigation problem and safety risks for vessels. Ships must change course five times within three miles, often beginning a new turn, sometimes in the opposite direction, before completing a first turn. With vessels nearly 1,000 feet in length, it is difficult to safely navigate the channel, particularly in poor weather conditions. The Corps of Engineers and the Maryland Pilots Association have expressed serious concerns over the safety of the area and have long recommended straightening of the channel due to the grounding and “their misses” which have occurred in the area. The cost for straightening the Tolchester “S-turn” is estimated at $12.6 million with $1.3 million coming from non-federal sources. This authorization enables the Corps to proceed expeditiously with these improvements and address the serious concerns of those who must navigate the treacherous channel. With $5.8 million already included in the fiscal 2000 Energy and Water Appropriations bill, this provision will ensure that these improvements will be undertaken in the near future.

Mr. President, the Port of Baltimore is one of the great ports of the world and one of Maryland’s most important economic assets. The Port generates $2 billion in annual economic activity, providing for an estimated 62,000 jobs, and more than $500 million a year in State and local tax revenues and customs duties. These assets will help assure the continued viability of the Port of Baltimore into the 21st Century.

In addition to port development and improvement projects, the measure contains a provision which will help significantly to enhance Maryland’s environment and quality of life and help achieve the goals and vision of the Potomac American Heritage River designation.

It authorizes $15 million for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to modify the existing flood protection project at Cumberland, Maryland to restore features of the historic Chesapeake and Ohio Canal adversely affected by construction of the project. Mr. President, the C&O Canal is widely regarded as the Nation’s finest relic of America’s canal building era. It was begun in 1828 as a transportation route between commercial centers in the East and the West. It reached Cumberland in 1850 and continued operating until 1924 when it succumbed to floods and financial failure. In the early 1960’s, a section of the Canal and turning basin at its Cumberland terminus was filled in by the Corps of Engineers during construction of a local flood protection project. Portions of the Canal were proclaimed a national monument in 1961 and it was officially established as a national historical park in 1971. Justice Douglas described the park “ * not yet marred by the roar of wheels and the sound of horns.   The stretch of 185 miles of country from Washington to Cumberland, Maryland, is one of the most fascinating and picturesque in the Nation.”

The National Park Service, as part of its General Management Plan for the Park, has long sought to rebuild and re-water the Canal at its Cumberland terminus. The NPS entered into a Memorandum of Agreement, MOA, with the Corps to undertake a study of the feasibility of reconstructing the last 2200 feet of the canal to the terminus, through and adjacent to the Corps’ flood protection project. The Corps conducted this study in July 1995 and determined that “it is feasible to re-water the canal successfully; the canal and flood protection levee can co-exist on the site without compromising the flood protection for the City and the Park.” The MOA provides for full and partial operation of the locks is feasible; and, based on the as-built information available, underground utility impacts can be mitigated at reasonable cost to allow construction of the canal and turning basin in basically the same alignment and configuration as the original canal.” A subsequent Re-watering Design Analysis estimated the total project cost at $15 million. This authorization will enable the Corps to proceed with construction of a 1.1 mile stretch of the C&O Canal and re-water the area as a major hub for tourism and economic development.

The conference agreement also authorizes the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to undertake a study for control and management of waterborne debris on the Susquehanna River. The Susquehanna River is the largest tributary of the Chesapeake Bay, draining an area of about 27,500 square miles. It is also one of the most flood prone river basins in the nation. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers operates several reservoirs for flood control and other purposes and there are three large hydroelectric dams on the lower Susquehanna, during high water events, enormous amounts of debris, including trees, branches and manmade materials, are carried downstream and ultimately into the Chesapeake Bay. Most recently, the flood waters of January 1999 deposited tremendous amounts of debris as far as Anne Arundel County, Maryland, creating hazards to navigation, damaging boats and bulkheads, aggravating flooding and clogging beaches and shorelines. This legislation will enable the Corps of Engineers to evaluate the economic, engineering and environmental feasibility of potential measures to control and manage the amount of waterborne debris as well as determine if new and improved debris removal technologies can be utilized in the Susquehanna.

Finally, the conference agreement includes several other provisions which will help address important water resource needs in Maryland and nearby communities including the flood protection project for the District of Columbia, and the studies for the West View Shores Community of Cecil County, Maryland, creating hazards to navigation, damaging boats and bulkheads, aggravating flooding and clogging beaches and shorelines. This legislation will enable the Corps of Engineers to evaluate the economic, engineering and environmental feasibility of potential measures to control and manage the amount of waterborne debris as well as determine if new and improved debris removal technologies can be utilized in the Susquehanna.

I want to compliment the distinguished chairmen of the Committee and the Subcommittee, Senators CHAFEE and WARNER, and the ranking member, Senator BAUCUS, for their leadership in crafting this legislation and I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this measure.

TAXPAYER REFUND AND RELIEF ACT OF 1999—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on the bill (H.R. 2488) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to sections 105 and 211 of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000, and ask for its consideration at the present time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be stated.

The Legislative clerk read as follows:
The committee on conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2488), have agreed to recommend and do recommend to the House of Representatives this report, signed by a majority of the conferences.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report. (The conference report is printed in the House proceedings of the Record of August 4, 1999.)

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, the fundamental question before Congress these past few weeks, as we have debated the Taxpayer Refund Act of 1999, is quite simple: Is it right for Washington to take from the taxpayer more money than is necessary to run the Government?

The issue of tax relief is not any more complicated than that, and the outcome of the conference between the Senate and House makes it clear that we believe Government is not automatically entitled to the surplus that is, in large part, due to the hard work, thrift, and risk-taking of the American people.

Individuals and families are due a refund, and that is exactly what we do with this legislation. We give the people a refund. We do it in a way that is fair, broad based, and empowering. We do it in a way that will benefit nearly every working American, a way that will help restore equity to the Tax Code, and provide American families with the relief and resources they need to meet pressing concerns.

This tax refund legislation will help individuals and families save for self-reliance in retirement. It will help parents prepare for educational costs. It will give the self-employed and under-insured the boost they need to pay for health insurance, and it will begin to restore fairness to the Tax Code by addressing the marriage tax penalty.

How do we accomplish all of this? We begin by reducing our marginal income tax rates by a point. In other words, the 15-percent tax bracket will drop to 14 percent, and the 39.6-percent top rate will drop to 36.6 percent. The new 14-percent bracket will be extended upward to include millions of Americans who are now paying taxes in the 28-percent bracket.

These changes will benefit individuals and families across the economic spectrum. For example, an individual with $40,000 of income will save over $700. An individual earning $50,000 will save over $800. Under this bill, a taxpayer with $70,000 of income will save over $1,000.

This is significant tax relief. When fully phased in, a middle-class family of four with an adjusted gross income of $80,000 will save almost $3,000 a year. This is real savings, money that can be used by individuals and families to meet their pressing needs and objectives.

To restore equity to the Tax Code, this legislation also meets a bipartisan objective by providing relief for the marriage tax penalty, and it does this by doubling the standard deduction and the 15-percent tax bracket for married couples filing jointly.

We can all agree on how important this is. For too long, husbands and wives who were paying the same individual and joint taxes have been penalized by their dual incomes. This plan will address that inequity by giving working American couples greater relief.

Let me give an example. Two individuals, each with a $35,000 a year, face a penalty of almost $1,500 when they marry. Under this legislation, that penalty will be addressed in two ways: first, by doubling the standard deduction and, second, by doubling the 15-percent tax bracket to include their combined income.

The marriage penalty relief offered in this bill retains the Senate position on the amount of relief received, and it even provides relief for people receiving the earned income tax credit.

To help families with their education expenses, the legislation before us allows taxpayers to increase their contributions to education IRAs, or what will—under the provisions of this bill—the new called education savings accounts. Allowances and withdrawals will rise from $500 to $2,000 annually.

And these funds will be available to meet expenses for all students, from kindergarten through college. Beyond that, the savings IRAs will save for education, this Tax Relief Act also makes interest earned on qualified State and private school higher education tuition plans tax-free—a most important development, in my judgment. It also extends employer-provided educational assistance for undergraduate studies, and it repeals the 60-month rule on student loan interest deductions. This will allow individuals to claim tax deductions on interest that they pay on their student loan, without the imposition of the impossible.

To help families meet health care and long-term care needs, this legislation makes interest earned on qualified State and private school higher education tuition plans tax-free—a most important development, in my judgment. It also extends employer-provided educational assistance for undergraduate studies, and it repeals the 60-month rule on student loan interest deductions. This will allow individuals to claim tax deductions on interest that they pay on their student loan, without the imposition of the impossible.

To help families meet health care and long-term care needs, this legislation provides a 100 percent above-the-line deduction for those who pay more than 10 percent of their health insurance premiums. This, of course, includes the self-employed. The plan also provides an additional personal exemption for those who care for an elderly relative in their home.

As you can see, this legislation is, indeed, addressing the pressing concerns that are vitally important in the lives of our families, coast to coast. It provides across-the-board tax relief. It addresses the marriage tax penalty.

It makes education more affordable for all students—kindergarten through college. And it helps our families meet their health care and long-term care needs. But it doesn't stop here; it does much more.

The legislation before us phases out the alternative minimum tax. It provides capital gains tax relief, simplifying the rate structure, and reducing the individual capital gains tax rate from 20 percent to 18 percent, beginning with the current 1999 tax year. For those individuals taxed at the lowest individual rate, their capital gains tax rate is reduced from 10 percent to 8 percent.

In addition, the tax basis of certain assets will be increased by an "inflation adjustment," so that any capital gain attributable to inflation is not subjected to tax. Also, we have maintained the 2 percent capital gains rate differential that is imposed on long-term capital gains. This helps preserve the value of a depreciable real estate, by reducing that rate from 25 percent to 23 percent.

Another very important measure is the treatment of estate taxes. This legislation completely phases out and ultimately repeals the Federal estate, gift, and generation skipping taxes. It also corrects technical problems in the House provision.

Each of these will be a powerful tool in the hands of taxpayers and families who will use these changes—their relief—to meet the needs that are unique to their situation. However, a couple of major provisions in this bill that I would like to outline in some detail will—like the across-the-board tax rate cut—benefit everyone, enabling individuals and families to prepare for self-reliance and success in retirement.

These, of course, include the expansion of individual retirement accounts and pension programs. Under the bill, IRA contribution limits will be increased over the next 7 years until they reach $5,000. And taxpayers who are close to retiring will be allowed to make catchup payments in their plans. These changes will in my judgment, be incredibly beneficial. For example, an individual without an employer-provided pension plan, who contributes the maximum amount allowable, as it increases over the next 7 years—with the magic of compounding interest—will be able to put away over $300,000 for retirement in year 7 and beyond. He or she will be able to put away the full $5,000 annually.

With the catchup provision—applicable for people over the age of 50—if those 7 years pass just prior to the taxpayer's retirement, the amount, for example, he or she could save in those 7 years under this bill would be over $44,000. This bill also increases the income threshold for those who can take full advantage of Roth IRA accounts up to $200,000 for a couple filing jointly.

For employer-provided plans, this bill increases the maximum amount an individual can contribute to a 401(k) plan, a 403(b) plan or a 457 plan. Starting next year, an employee may contribute increasing amounts to his 401(k), and in 2005, he will be able to contribute a full $11,000 to his employer's 401(k) plan. In each year thereafter, he could contribute increasing amounts to his 401(k), and in 2005, he will be able to contribute a full $15,000. To show you how empowering this is, if John, a 35-year-old, contributes the maximum amount allowable over the next 30 years, his 401(k) plan benefit at retirement would increase by over $1.2 million.
In addition, if John’s employer established a newly added Plus Account program under its 401(k) plan, that amount would be nontaxable when John receives it at retirement. The Plus Account program—as addressed in this bill—would allow businesses to establish a retirement plan for their employees. The contribution limits for a SIMPLE plan—a defined contribution plan only for small businesses—have been increased in this bill to encourage small business owners to establish such plans. The incentive to establish a SIMPLE plan is easy to understand. Small business owners who offer SIMPLE plans will be able to save up to $10,000 in the plans they establish this year. This will be a great benefit to them, but in order to save their own money, as part of the SIMPLE plan—they will have to provide their employees with a contribution to their own plans of up to 2 percent of their salary.

At the same time, under this plan the employer could also receive a matching contribution from their employer of up to 3 percent of compensation if they decide to contribute to the SIMPLE plan.

Now, I believe this is good policy. It will encourage Americans to take advantage of these opportunities and provide for their retirement future. As with almost every provision in this Taxpayer Refund Act, the catalyst is the individual and the family, using tax relief to meet their needs. Every measure I have outlined as part of the Taxpayer Refund Act of 1999 is important, as each rightfully returns resources that Americans can use to meet their current needs, and the refund comes from surplus funds. In other words, this broad-based tax relief package can be passed, signed into law, and, indeed, still leave sufficient resources that Americans can use to meet their current needs, and the refund comes from surplus funds.

For those who are concerned that this major relief package may be too big, please be reminded that there are important trigger mechanisms included in this bill. If we don’t continue to reduce the payment on the interest on the national debt—let me repeat that—if we don’t continue to reduce the payment on the interest on the national debt, then the tax relief included here will be reduced to compensate accordingly.

Well, the bottom line is that this is a tax relief in which we can have confidence. It meets the criteria we established before who bang. It is fine. It restores equity to the Tax Code and makes education more affordable. It helps taxpayers prepare for self-reliance and retirement. This legislation will help families keep their homes, their farms, and businesses safe from death taxes. It makes health care more affordable. I believe these are objectives that are shared by everyone. They are objectives that can be embraced by Senators and Congressmen on both sides of the political aisle.

Mr. President, I encourage my colleagues to vote for passage, and I yield the floor.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I might also say that the chairman stated that this bill, which we will vote on at 7:06 this evening, is a clean bill; there is no provision in it that was not in the House as well as the Senate version of the reconciliation bill. I have a copy of the conference report, as addressed in the Senate. That is something we have not been able to do.

This is not the way to handle the second largest tax decrease in history. There was no conference on this matter. We met formally for 20 minutes, and the negotiation was entirely between party leaders of the majority. It is an age-old practice of the Congress to, at the end of a conference, distribute the signature papers that the conferees sign or do not sign. I was the conferee for this side of the aisle; no signature paper could be drawn up.

There was no participation of any kind from this side of the aisle. I think that would be true in the House as well as in the Senate. That is something we have to watch in terms of our procedures. It was not the way the Senate conducted itself in such a manner when I first came here and became a member of the Finance Committee.

During the debate last week on the Senate version of the reconciliation bill, I attempted to put the debate in a different perspective. I traced the development from the 1960s of an intellectual movement which holds that the only way to restrain the growth of Government is to deliberately create a protracted fiscal crisis. This was disarmingly put by then President-elect Reagan. It was just 16 days before his inauguration in 1981. He said:

There were always those who told us that taxes could be raised until spending is reduced. Well, you know, we can discourse our children about extravagance until we run out of voice and breath. Or we can cut their extravagance by simply reducing their allowance.

So in 1981 to 1983, the allowance of the Federal Government was reduced. While other intervening events—a sharp recession in 1981-82—impacted on revenues, nonetheless, there was a precipitous drop in revenues from 19.0 percent of GDP in 1980 to 17.5 percent of GDP in 1983. Simultaneously, the recession and defense buildup conspired to increase outlays from 20.2 percent of GDP in 1979 to 23.6 in 1983. The result, a huge drop in the percent of GDP—between revenues and outlays, and deficits of $200 billion or more “as far as the eye could see,” to quote the former Director of OMB, David Stockman, and with this huge gap, the national debt quadrupled from under $1 trillion to $4 trillion between 1980 and 1992.

In August of 1993, with a deficit of $290 billion, we chose to confront that, to raise taxes and reduce outlays by a little more than a half trillion dollars. More than 20 percent of GDP—between revenues and outlays, and deficits of $200 billion or more “as far as the eye could see,” to quote the former Director of OMB, David Stockman, and with this huge gap, the national debt quadrupled from under $1 trillion to $4 trillion between 1980 and 1992.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Somehow we have to come to terms with this whole assumption. Perhaps something like the Hoover Commission on the organization of the executive branch needs to be done. Some of us have the assumption that we really aren’t that serious. We stoop to this kind of posturing for a quarter century—BILL ARCHER said in his opening remarks:

We don’t need full-time Government and part-time families; we need part-time Government and full-time families.

In no way to cast any suggestion that he is anything but absolutely sincere, I don’t think the proposition would survive close inquiry. I asked him: Sir, don’t you feel that if we could get all the part-time Marine Corps, or a part-time Federal Bureau of Investigation? No, you don’t mean that.

I, for one, very much share the view that the Federal Government has taken on too many matters and needs to be cleared out a very great deal. Our Federal system makes that possible, and the world situation in which we are now finds ourselves makes it necessary but not through the illusion that it will happen simply by reducing revenues.

I wish to make the point that we can’t afford this tax cut. We may want one in 5 years time or in 3 years, but not at this time. That is why the fate of this measure has already been settled.

According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, tax expenditures are projected to cost about $672 billion in 2003. When we have not yet spent the money, we should be required to calculate the gain or loss on common transactions. The New York State Bar Association stated that:
Congress should reject any proposal to adjust or "index" the basis of capital assets for inflation. [An] indexing regime would create intolerable administrative burdens for taxpayers and tax administrators as well as foster numerous tax arbitrage and avoidance opnortunities for aggressive tax planners.

The Joint Committee on Taxation wrote at that time that "[i]ndexing would be a significant amount of record keeping" and that it "would substantially increase the number of calculations necessary to calculate taxable gain for many common transactions."

Even if this bill did not risk a return to protracted fiscal crisis, and even if its 589 pages did not add to the complexity of the code, it should be rejected because most of the benefits accrue to those already well-off.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle argue that the bill justifiably provides most of the tax relief to those who pay most of the taxes. But their analysis is incomplete since it is based solely on the distribution of income taxes.
Taxpayers earning less than $50,000 pay 36 percent of payroll taxes; while those earning over $200,000 pay only 7 percent of payroll taxes.

The conclusion is very different if the analysis is based on the distribution of all federal taxes—income, excise, and payroll. Those earning less than $50,000 pay almost a quarter of the taxes, which is the same percentage as those earning over $200,000. So, why is it that the President may have worked before us out only provides 14 percent of the tax cut to those earning less than $50,000 while providing 78 percent of the tax cut to those earning over $80,000? Even worse, why does 45 percent of the tax cut go to the top 5 percent of income earners, those earning over $155,000? Should we not provide a more equitable tax cut?

We might also consider heeding the advice of Herbert Stein, Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in a Recent report. In an op-ed in yesterday's Wall Street Journal Mr. Stein had this to say:

"I have come to the conclusion that we should not make a large tax cut at this time. But my purpose here is not to sell that conclusion. What I am trying to do is to sell the idea that we need a more systematic, ex-PLICIT and thorough public discussion of the tax issue and to illustrate what some of the elements of such a discu-sion would be.

We have not had that debate.
I see that my learned friend, the galant Senator from Nebraska, is here, and I think he would like to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr.
Voinovich). The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield such time as he may require to Senator Kerrey.

Mr. KERREY. I thank the Senator from New York very much.

I am sorry I didn't wear the same necktie as you. Other than that, we are deeply matched.

Mr. President, first I want to compliment Chairman Roth. I believe all through the Finance Committee deliberations and last week on the Senate floor he held true to two ideas that I share. The first is that we can cut taxes. The second is we must do so fairly. Including the President, there are few taxing by nearly $800 billion over ten years is to give the American people an $800 billion increase in their after-tax income. I think we can do it safely. We have $3 trillion in surpluses forecast over the next ten years. I believe that cutting taxes will generate inflation if done correctly.

In his original package, the Chairman held true to the idea that some standard of fairness must be applied in how the income tax cuts would be distributed. He attempted to do that. Doing that caused him a little grief on his side of the aisle. I appreciate very much what the chairman attempted to do.

Accordingly, I voted for the package enthusiastically on the floor. I believe it was a good proposal. I may have written it a little differently if I were the one who was doing the writing. But I thought it was a good proposal and a good proposal, and I was fully supportive of it. I was one of four Democrats to do so.

Thus, I come to the floor with some regret. I say to my friends on the other side of the aisle that you should know that people like me took a position that said we were prepared to vote for a tax cut of $800 billion. The Chair-man's original package received 57 votes in this chamber and the other side has been working all night to get the votes to pass the package we have before us and I suspect the most cut this package will receive is 52. So I say to my friends on the other side of the aisle, if you are trying to get a piece of legislation passed to try to break. I think it is very important for us to take a look at America and try to discern which taxpayers are most in need of help. It is, it seems to me, a fair question for us to ask. And to try to apply a standard of fairness, it seems to me, is something we ought to do.

Under last week's proposal, a single Member of Congress, I would have gotto cut a tax rate on a single person with $26,000 of income. But under this proposal, by decreasing the taxes for everyone at higher rates as well, a Member of Congress, a single Member such as myself, I am going to take a tax cut of $1,185. I get over $900 more under this proposal. And if I get married, I would do even better.

I can make an argument that because I am paying more taxes I ought to get more of a tax cut. But look at household $46,000 a year. That family of four with $46,000-worth of income probably ought to have a larger tax cut than I do. At the very least, I should not receive more than they do. That is what I mean when I say that this bill, when it passed here last week, met the minimum standard of fairness.

I say to my friends on the other side of the aisle that if you are trying to
not fewer, you have now figured out how to get fewer. You have just 55 votes on this side of the aisle. The high water mark today, in my view, is likely to be 52. I understand that the conference report had to be reopened in the later hours of yesterday evening and some provisions had to be put in to woo some votes for a bare majority. I know there were some concerns that the Vice President might be sitting up there at the end of business today and there might be over 50 votes. The standard deduction. All of that should be a sign. You had 57 votes. Yesterday you did not have 50. Something is going in the wrong direction.

I believe a majority of Democrats and Republicans in chamber, want to apply a standard of fairness. The distinguished junior Senator from Texas, offered an amendment on this floor last week that would increase the standard deduction for a married couple. Why did she want to eliminate the marriage penalty for people who are using the standard deduction? It got a lot of Democratic votes and a lot of Republicans votes. Indeed, I think it was the only amendment that actually broke the 60-vote requirement. That is a clue. That it is a fairness issue and the junior Senator wanted that fairness applied to married people who take the standard deduction, people who do not itemize, people who are generally not in the upper reaches of income in this country.

I am not talking about crafting a social engineering package. What I am talking about is applying a standard of fairness.

As I said, I have great respect for the chairman of the Finance Committee. I believe he attempted to apply a standard of fairness, and, in my judgment, his package of last week passed that test. I voted for it enthusiastically. But the conference committee report does not pass that test. It does not pass the test of fairness.

So I enthusiastically and confidently will vote "no" on it. I do so regretfully because I believe there was an opportunity this year not just to do this but to get this issue on an equal footing for social care and to get a bipartisan solution on Social Security. The package before us today does not bode well for future bipartisan efforts to come up with those solutions.

This bill had 57 votes last week. As I said, were it not for the sort of last-minute work to try to have some changes to get some additional votes, it might not have even 50 votes later today when we will have a vote on final passage.

I talk to my Republican friends, if you want to cut Americans’ taxes, listen not just to what Democrats are saying but also listen to what Republicans are saying. They want a standard of fairness applied. It is a legitimate concern. I don’t know how many Members of the Senate believe that $800 billion is too much. I believe the distinguished occupant of the Chair does. He fought very hard as mayor and Governor, and I think he is doing his best in this Congress to get us to say that. I am careful not to spend the surplus and lose all the progress that we have made. Fine. Make that argument.

But for the majority of us who believe that $800 billion is not too much, if we want to persuade our reluctant colleagues to support cutting taxes for American families, then you have to apply a standard of fairness, a test of fairness. You may believe your ideology tells you that you should do something else. But if you want to change the law and get this done, you had darned sure better do it, because not only will you not get the votes on this, you will have no votes, but you will never, in my judgment, get the President of the United States to sign a piece of legislation that doesn’t attempt to measure and apply some test of fairness.

Again, I appreciate very much the work that the distinguished chairman did, Senator Roth of Delaware, as well as the ranking Democrat, Senator Moynihan. I appreciate very much the leadership of both of them. Senator Moynihan led the Democrats in the committee to come up with a $300 billion tax cut proposal. It had a very key component in there, which was to increase the standard deduction for individuals. That takes a number of people off the income tax rolls, reduces the top tax rate for many and simplifies tax filing for millions.

I suggest to my Republican colleagues on the other side of the aisle that if you want a bill, that is the kind of proposal that you should have included in this package and it is unfortunate that you did not. It is unfortunate that the centerpiece of the tax proposal that we voted for last week—the reduction of the 15 percent tax rate to 14 percent—was not left alone. If there is a second chance to consider a tax bill this year, I hope we will work harder to pass a bill that will get significant support from this side of the aisle and the way to do that is to make the assurance a bill means a basic standard of fairness.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I thank the Chair. Mr. ROTH. I yield 10 minutes on behalf of the minority to the distinguished Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I thank the Senator from Delaware. Let me start out by saying I also appreciate the work of Senator Roth as the chair of the Finance Committee. However, I am in profound disagreement with this reconciliation bill. The tax cut bill, that comes before the Senate—$792 billion in tax cuts, aggregate amount.

According to Citizens for Tax Justice, the top 1 percent of taxpayers would receive 42 percent of the benefits, while the bottom 60 percent would receive only 7.5 percent of the benefits. Regarding distributional effect, my colleague from Nebraska talked about a standard of fairness: 60 percent of all taxpayers would get an average tax cut of $65; the middle 10 percent would get an average tax cut of $1,322; the wealthiest 1 percent would get an average tax cut of $5,281.

This tax cut bill that the Republicans bring to the floor of the Senate is “Robin Hood in reverse” economics. Even worse, I think it represents a politics of illusion.

Not that long ago others, I think former President Bush, talked about the voodoo economics. According to a set of proposals in the early 1980s that said we could have massive tax cuts, increase Pentagon spending, make the investments we needed to make as a nation, and continue to reduce the deficit. That is not what happened.

It is pretty simple, I say to the people in Minnesota, and to the the people in the Nation. We are in agreement, I hope, that of the $3 trillion of surplus, $2 trillion is Social Security. It is not touched. It is to make sure that system will be solvent. Of the other $1 trillion, three-quarters of it is in assumed cuts—assuming we have the economic growth in discretionary domestic spending.

We find this proposal before the Senate that the Republicans bring to the floor of the Senate, not only do we have tax cuts and benefits to people in inverse relationship to need, a “Robin Hood in reverse” economics, but we have a politics and an economics of illusion. We are going to explode the debt. We are going to build the debt up again. In addition, we are not going to be making the investments that we in our speeches on the floor of the Senate say that we are for.

I heard my colleague from Delaware talk about health care, talk about education, talk about children, talk about tax cuts. One more time, to use the old Yiddish proverb: “You can’t dance at two weddings at the same time.”

We are not going to be able to have this amount of tax cuts, $792 billion in tax cuts, and at the same time continue to pay down the debt and make the kind of investments we need to make. We are going to see, America, is cuts in Head Start, cuts in low-income energy assistance, cuts in community policing, cuts in environmental protection, cuts in veterans’ health care, and cuts in Pell grant programs. We are not going to make any of the investments to which we say we are committed.

I think this tax cut legislation before the Senate is in many ways more serious than bad economics. And it is bad economics. It is bad economics because it will build up the debt rather than pay down the debt. It is bad economics because it could very well lead to higher interest rates. It is bad economics because it is the last thing we ought to do in an expanding economy. In addition, it is bad economics because we are not going to be able to make the investments that my colleague from Delaware says we are committed to at the time we are doing all these tax cuts.

It is also an illusion. It will put this country in a straitjacket where we are not going to be able to do one positive thing to make sure we have equal opportunities for every child in this country. We are not going to increase Head Start benefits; we are going to cut them. We are not going to increase health care benefits for our citizens; we are going to do nothing about the acute shortage of affordable housing; we are going to cut housing programs. We are not going to get it right for veterans in health care; we are going to cut. We are not going to do anything about the shame of senior citizens with $100 a month in Social Security who are going to cut programs that are going to cut programs that are going to cut programs.

There is not one Senator who can come to the floor of the Senate and debate me on the argument I have just made. That is exactly what we are going to do.

This is also an ideological debate. If Members believe—or maybe this is what they believe, let me now believe—that we cannot have any of these kinds of investments in Pell grants, or affordable child care, or Head Start, or community policing, or veterans' health care, or health care, or affordable housing, then you would be for this conference report. What this will do is put this country in a straitjacket where any kind of an investment that any Senator will talk about to expand opportunities for our citizens will be, by definition, fiscally irresponsible because we won't have any of the revenue.

I conclude this way. The political argument behind these tax cuts is a pretentious one. The political argument behind these tax cuts is a pretentious one. The political argument behind these tax cuts is a pretentious one. The political argument behind these tax cuts is a pretentious one.

What we owe our children is to make sure that every child in the United States of America—regardless of color of skin, regardless of urban or rural, regardless of high income or low income or middle income—has the same chance to reach his and her full potential. These tax cuts will make that impossible.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. O'LEARY. Mr. President, just so the record is clear, we have 6 hours, 3 hours to a side. The two managers have agreed we will go back and forth from one side to the other when people are present. But that is not the case now.

So I yield the balance of my time to the distinguished Senator from North Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, this is an editorial that appeared in the New York Times on August 2. It says: “Here we go again.” That is exactly what this tax bill is all about. Here we go again.

Back in 1980 Ronald Reagan assured one and all that he could cut taxes sharply, increase defense spending substantially and balance the federal budget. That is the promise he made. It did not work out that way. The deficits exploded. George Bush at the time: “Mental derided Mr. Reagan’s supply economics.”

We all remember that. The veteran Washington Post reporter Lou Cannon, in his book “President Reagan, the Road Not Taken,” described the reaction of James Baker, Mr. Reagan’s own chief of staff, to the transformation of economic fantasy into national policy. He wrote:

Though not particularly well-versed in economics, Baker suspected there was something screwy about the idea that massive tax cuts would increase government revenues. He would privately express regrets that the deficits had ‘‘gotten away’’ from the administration and wished he had paid more attention to the consequences of the tax cuts.

Here we go again. Again, we have the fantasy being held out to the American people that somehow you can have a massive tax cut, you can have a big defense buildup, domestic needs will not be hurt, and somehow it is all going to add up. The problem is, it is highly unlikely to happen. Let’s just check the record. It shows very clearly what happened in the Reagan administration when they had this fantasy that they were going to cut taxes dramatically, have a big defense buildup. Somehow it was all going to add up. It did not add up and this plan does not add up.

This is what happened back then. President Reagan inherited a deficit of over $80 billion. He promptly shot it to $200 billion. That is what happens when we just put our head in the sand and get wedded to an ideology and do not care about the economic results, or the economic fallout. This plan is a disaster. I do not know how else to say it. It is risky; it is radical; it is reckless. We would make a profound mistake to pass it today.

We then went into the Bush administration and the deficits went up, up, and away again. It went up to $290 billion in 1990.

In 1993, President Clinton came into office and we passed a 5-year budget plan to cut spending and, yes, raise income taxes on the wealthiest 1 percent. That plan worked. Each and every year of that 5-year plan the deficit came down until finally we have achieved a balanced budget. Why would we ever want to go back? Why would we ever want to repeat the incredible mistakes this country made in the 1980s that saddled the economically insecure children of this country, that put this country’s economy in a ditch, that led to recessions, that led to job loss, that led to an extinguishing of economic growth? Why would we want to repeat that tragic mistake? Yet here we are. “Here we go again.” Goodness knows, don’t we have more common sense than this?

This is not just my view. This is the view of economist after economist who have looked at this proposal. Mr. Samuelson, the columnist, wrote: “The wonder is that the Republicans are so wedded to a program that is dubious as to both policy and politics.”

He went on to say: “As Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan noted the other day, tax cuts might be justified if they were achieved in a way that increased economic growth, but if we are at the beginning of a recession or if we are trying to recover from a recession or to improve the prospects of a sweeping program of tax simplification, this would be very problematic.”

That is what this is. These are plans based on projections of what might CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

August 5, 1999

The same is true for a family of four earning $35,000 in 1999. Again, the respected accounting firm of Deloitte & Touche went out and looked at their tax burden: 1979, 11.2 percent. That has been reduced to 10.5 percent in 1999. It is also true for a family earning $85,000. In 1979, they had a total tax burden of 17 percent; in 1999, 16.3 percent.

Does that mean there should not be any tax relief? No. We should have tax relief, but we ought to have a responsible package of tax relief, not one that threatens to put us back in the economic ditch of deficits and debt. Unfortunately, that is what the Republican plan does.

On the question of the fairness of this proposal, if this is fair, I do not understand fairness. They are going to give to the top 1 percent in this country with an average income of $837,000 a $46,000 tax cut. They are going to give to the bottom 60 percent of the income earners in this country, the vast majority of people on average, a tax reduction of $138. That does not strike me as very fair.

Let’s check their math. We have heard over and over they are just giving 25 percent of the money that is available in surplus back in a tax cut. That is interesting math they are using. Let’s check it.

The total surplus is $2.9 trillion. That is the CBO estimate.

I ask for 3 additional minutes.

Mr. ROTH. I yield 3 minutes on behalf of the minority.

Mr. CONRAD. Look at what CBO is projecting—and I emphasize projecting—as the surplus over the next 10 years, $2.9 trillion. But $1.9 trillion of that is Social Security. If you take that out, you have $1 trillion left. Republicans are proposing nearly $800 billion of tax cuts. When you do that, you add interest costs of $141 billion. That other $63 billion is a primary deficit reduction, for strengthening Medicare, for domestic needs. They are using not 25 percent of what is available; they are using 94 percent of what is available, because we have all agreed that none of the Social Security money is available.

The only way they get this number of 25 percent being used for a tax cut is when they include Social Security in the balance. Are they proposing we are going to use 25 percent of the Social Security money for a tax cut? No. So they are using phony statistics. They are applying this 25 percent to two-thirds of the money that is Social Security money. They are taking 94 percent of the money that is truly available for this risky tax cut.

Here are the choices: Republicans say $800 billion of tax cuts; nothing to strengthen Medicare; nothing for domestic needs; they have $63 billion unneeded.

Our proposal in the Senate was balanced. We said save every penny of Social Security for Social Security and then one-third for tax relief; one-third to strengthen Medicare—and, by the way, this money is not needed immediately so it can be used for the next 15 years to pay down debt—and one-third of the money for high-priority domestic needs such as education, defense, and agriculture.

That leads our friends on the other side to say: There go the Democrats again; they just want to spend money.

Let’s examine that notion. This blue line is constant buying power of what we do with Federal spending now for domestic needs. That is what would happen if we had constant buying power. The Democratic plan is represented by this red line. It is a cut from current buying power. Here is the Republican plan down here. They have a massive cut, $770 billion over the next 10 years from what current buying power would permit.

They do not want anybody to talk about this, but the reality is, they are advancing deep cuts in education, in defense, in agriculture, and in all the rest—parks, law enforcement—because there is no way to avoid this mathematical reality. They came to this Chamber with a chart that said, yes, you can accommodate this tax cut if you froze all domestic spending for 10 years. It has never been done. What is amazing about it is that it is not what they are doing in the Appropriations Committees that meet every day. They are spending additional money.

I ask for 1 additional minute.

Mr. ROTH. On behalf of the minority, I yield 1 minute.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, let’s be honest with the American people. This plan does not add up. It threatens to take us back to a period of growing debts. It fails to meet high-priority domestic needs such as education and agriculture and defense. It does not do anything to secure Medicare for the future. It is not real. It is not balanced. It is not responsible. This plan is not conservative.

It is radical; it is risky; it is reckless. It ought to be rejected.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from North Dakota be granted 2 additional minutes from the minority time so he might be able to respond to a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, last year we learned a very satisfying and important lesson. That is that there are rewards for fiscal discipline. After almost three decades of deficits and mounting national debt, we finally were able to eke out a small surplus. The very prospect of that small surplus has been a major contribution to one of the longest and most expansive periods of economic growth in our Nation’s history. This fiscal discipline helped us to achieve favorable economic and fiscal conditions to address our long-term national challenges, especially our long-term comm itments in Social Security and Medicare.

This, frankly, is a time of national celebration. The question is, What kind of celebration? Will it be a prudent and patriotic celebration or will it be a wanton and reckless celebration? Because our success, our opportunity to celebrate, did not give us license to return to the free spending, free period of increased indeptness of the recent past. Mr. We owe it to our children and our grandchildren to save this money, to save this money until we have dealt with our future obligations to them.

Unfortunately, several major legislative actions in the 105th, now the 106th, Congress have made a mockery of our promise to maintain fiscal discipline. As an example, in February of this year, the Senate passed a military pay bill, with great enthusiasm and with great acclamations from the Republican majority, who would be particularly benefited and who hoped that it would strengthen our national security. The problem is, we did not provide a means of paying for it. So we were, in essence, saying we will pay for it out of our surplus.

If last February’s legislation was just an aberration, a momentary lack of judgment, an inadvertent haste to turn from impeachment to legislation, it might have been forgiven. Sadly, it cannot be so characterized. In fact, it was part of a pattern of a continued lack of fiscal discipline. It was the sec-dent, in fact, within 8 months that we had proven ourselves unwilling to take the hard decisions and too willing to sacrifice the well-being of future generations on the altar of expediency.

It was in October of 1998, in the waning hours of last fall’s budget negotiations, that we passed a $532 billion omnibus appropriations bill. In fact, the bill that was signed into law that fall was $21.4 billion in so-called emergency spending. Since that $21.4 billion of emergency spending could be approved without the necessity of finding any way to pay for it, that funding came right out of the surplus. It took $3 billion out of the fiscal 1998 surplus. It took $13 billion out of the 1999 surplus. It will take $5 billion out of this year’s surplus.

The action would have been even mildly palatable had all of the supposed emergency funds been allocated to true emergencies. But, in fact, many of the items that were funded out of the $21.4 billion were items which had in the past been considered normal, regular obligations of the Federal Government. Foreseen, sudden, temporary needs that are supposed to be the hallmarks of real emergencies.

In June, we made our third raid on the Social Security surplus, a supplemental appropriations bill that was cloaked many nonemergency spending items in emergency designation under the title of Kosovo. With all the negative public attention that had been focused on our previous raids, one would have thought that we might have at least been embarrassed back into fiscal responsibility. But, again, I am sorry that was not the case. So another $4 billion was taken out of the surplus through emergency spending for 1999 and $7 billion will be taken out in the year 2000.

What have we done thus far? We started with a total surplus for 1999 of $137 billion, of which $124 billion was Social Security. But after we had taken $13 billion of the emergency surplus in 1998 and $4 billion for the emergency of 1999, we have reduced our surplus down to $120 billion. So we have spent every penny of the off-budget surplus, and we have spent $4 billion of the Social Security surplus to fund these emergencies.

Now, what is the chart for the year 2000? We started out with a total surplus of $173 billion, of which $147 billion was Social Security. We have the $5 billion that was in 1998, we have the $7 billion cloaked Kosovo emergency expenditure, and just last night, we voted yet another emergency expenditure of $8 billion for agriculture. Today we have on the floor a tax bill that will cut the revenue for the year 2000 by $5 billion. So what started out as a $173 billion surplus has already shrunk to $148 billion. Every dollar of that surplus is Social Security save $1 billion, which, as I will point out in subsequent remarks, is highly in danger.

The action yesterday relative to agriculture represents the difficulty of the dilemma. Certainly American farmers are facing distressful circumstances. I happen to be an American farmer. I think I understand something of their plight. But the way to deal with this problem is not by temporary emergency fixes. The way to deal with this problem is to look at the underlying causes, which might be that we haven’t been appropriately dealing with fundamental issues such as crop insurance reform or that we have not been sufficiently aggressive in our trade policy in order to ensure there are open markets for American agricultural goods.

Those of you who say that we ought to be directing our attention, not through emergency spending to deplete our surplus.

The budget resolution says that emergency spending must meet five criteria. It must be necessary, sudden, urgent, unforeseen, and it must not be permanent. I suggest that many of these expenditures we have made over the last 2 years fail to meet those standards of emergency.

Our fiscal irresponsibility, however, is not limited just to emergency appropriations. We have defined the surplus as the difference between estimated revenue and estimated expenditures. Yet in arriving at those estimated expenditures, we have used unrealistic standards. We have created expenditure expectations that no one in this Congress believes are, in fact, going to be met; thus, the necessity to resort to these kinds of emergency measures.

While I am critical of the methods we have used in the past as we are left fundamentally deceiving the American people as to what our Federal Government’s policies will be.

Let me use one example. I asked unanimous consent at the end of my remarks to have printed in the RECORD an article from the New York Times of July 25, “National Parks, Strained by RECORD Crowd, Face a Crisis.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. GRAHAM. There is no better time than in early August to talk about the state of our national parks, because this is a time of the year when hundreds of thousands of our fellow citizens are taking advantage of one of America’s great treasures—its national park system. But it is a treasure which we have been systematically looting through indifference. It is stated in an assessment made last year, the Park Service estimated it would cost $3.54 billion to repair maintenance problems at national parks, monuments, and wilderness areas, maintenance that has been put off for decades, in some cases, because of lack of money.

Mr. President, while we may deceive ourselves into the statement that we have this significant surplus, it is a surplus which is being derived by a systematic underfunding of important national priorities, priorities which we know eventually are going to be met, but which we are now deceiving ourselves into the false illusion that there is an unrealistic surplus, a surplus which we can now use to fund these massive tax cuts.

The time is now to provide some honest leadership for the American people, not hollow statements and false promises.Unless we agree that leadership and honesty are not to be found in the tax bill before us today.

I think we need to do is to put first things first. As Ecclesiates says: There is a time for all things. There is a time to plant and there is a season to harvest.

What is the season today, in this time of national celebration of the results of fiscal discipline? I suggest the season for today is to deal with the challenges of our children and our grandchildren, starting with two critical national programs.

We should provide for the solvency of Social Security for our children and our grandchildren, and we should strengthen Medicare into the 21st century by providing it with the tools necessary, not just to deal with illness but to do what Americans want—to provide for their health and well-being. We should be funding those medical services that will prevent disease before it comes to our American people in their highest state of health. Unfortunately, when we have spent the resources that would be necessary to fund this tax cut before having dealt with Social Security and Medicare, the beneficiaries, the taxpayers, the American people are going to have to deal with Social Security and Medicare.

The statement will be made that Social Security is off the table; we have already dealt with it; that by placing all of the Social Security surplus into a lockbox to protect it for Social Security, we have discharged that responsibility. Well, first, I say that we have a very leaky lockbox. Willie Sutton was once asked: Why do you rob banks? The answer was: That is where the money is. Well, the lockbox assumes the money has already gotten to the bank. But Jesse James figured out that if he could rob the train before the box got to the bank, he could get the money before it could be placed in the vault. That is essentially what this emergency spending loophole is allowing us to do. We are looting the lockbox before the money arrives.

Even if we put the full amount of the Social Security surplus into the Social Security program, we would only have extended its solvency for our children to the year 2034.

The Greenspan Commission of the early 1980s had recommended that we ought to fund Social Security on a three-generation time program, which would mean through the year 2075. We have not completed our task if the only thing we have done is to secure the solvency of Social Security to the year 2034.

Mr. President, we have an opportunity to lead the Nation in the way in which I believe thoughtful Americans wish to go. They wish to be prudent at this time. They wish to celebrate the successes of fiscal discipline and to continue those successes. They want to take care of today's season of business first. They do not want us to embark upon a reckless course which would dissipate our resources with our future needs and place us in the precarious position of depending upon unrealistic estimates of future revenues and a totally unrealistic expectation of future national needs.

So the issue is not the details of this tax proposal. I think I believe an examination of that detail would indicate this plan is woefully lacking in basic principles of fairness and equity to all Americans. But the fundamental deficiency of this tax bill is its lack of timeliness. We should not be considering any tax cut until we have taken care of priority business—protecting Social Security for three generations and strengthening Medicare. We should not be considering any tax measures until we have the projections of revenue and the estimates of future needs are based on realistic, not political, assessments.

After we have carried out those first tasks, then if there is funds left available—and I suggest there probably will be—then we could consider what would be an appropriate form of returning that measure back to the American people through a tax cut. But, for today, the answer must be no to the measure that is before us. I hope that soon we will be answering yes to the measure back to the American people.

I want to express some of my concern about the responsibility we have to do America's future needs.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from Delaware to yield me 20 minutes.

Mr. ROTH. I am happy to yield 20 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, first, I wish to compliment my colleague, the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator Roth, for his leadership in bringing the bill to the floor. In addition, I compliment Senator LOTT and Senator DOMENICI because they helped make this happen.

The Senate, earlier this year, passed a budget resolution that says let's use most of the surplus that is projected to pay down the national debt. As a matter of fact, let's use over two-thirds of it to pay down the national debt. I have heard complaints from colleagues on the Democrat side saying we don't do enough. Frankly, we pay down the national debt more than the Democrats have proposed and more than the President has proposed. Maybe that is not enough for them, but it is more than they have proposed.

I compliment Senator DOMENICI and Senator LOTT, as well as Senator ROTH, for laying the groundwork to say let's... take at least one-fourth of the surplus projected and let the people keep it. Some people say give it back to them. Well, I don’t think they should ever have to send it to Washington, DC, in the first place; it is their money.

Then, are we going to allow the taxpayers to keep one-fourth of the surplus, or are we going to insist on that money going to Washington, DC, and Washington spending it? Obviously, there is no limit on the number of demands we have on people’s money. We can spend it all just like that. It is quite easy, in fact it is the easiest thing to do. Now, we finally have an opportunity, as a result of the significant surplus, to allow people to keep more of it.

We do that in this bill. We have come up with a bill that I believe is fair, balanced, and I think is a good tax bill, a tax bill for taxpayers. I will go into some of the benefits. First, I want to repudiate some of the comments that were made against it. One Senator said it was too much. It is one-fourth of the surplus.

I don’t think that is too much. We have given tax cuts in the past when we didn’t even have a surplus. I happen to hate those. We gave a tax cut in 1991—strong majority of Congress passed it. We didn’t have a surplus then. I think it was the right thing to do. We gave a tax cut because, in some cases, rates were too high. We said let’s have a tax cut, it will stimulate the economy and raise more money. Guess what. That is what happened.

We cut the capital gains tax both in 1995 and in 1997. The President vetoed it in 1995. He signed it in 1997. When I say “we,” I am talking about Republicans because we didn’t have any support in 1995 from our Democrat colleagues—maybe with one or two exceptions. We passed it in 1997. We cut capital gains from 28 to 20 percent. It helped the economy and raised a lot of money. It beat the expectations by the CBO and the Treasury Department. Why? We reduced the taxes on transactions by about $60 billion and ended up having more financial transactions. As a result, you have more income and more taxes. It helped the economy. Many of us said that would happen, that it would have a very positive impact.

Let me touch on one other thing. A couple of colleagues said you can’t have this tax cut because it benefits high-income people. Heaven forbid, somebody making $50,000 is going to get a greater benefit than somebody making $30,000. Let me just step back a little bit. Is this tax cut too high? Is this tax cut too generous for high-income people? I don’t think so.

Let me talk about rates. I believe marginal rates impact on whether or not somebody is going to do other work. I have been in the private sector. I used to have a janitorial service, and marginal rates kept me from doing more work. I had a situation where I was making enough money to combine income and Social Security taxes. I was working about 40 percent of the time for the Government, and I said that is enough. I am not going to work more if the Government is going to take almost half of everything I make. It destroyed the advancement and expansion of my business—a small business.

I might mention, that small business is where most additional new employees are starting. Somebody says, wait a minute, this tax cut is unfair, it benefits the high income. Let’s look at what we do for high income. We reduce every single income bracket by 1 percent. The low end is 15 percent and we reduced it to 14 percent. The high income is 39.6 percent, and we reduced it to 38.6 percent, and so on. There is a 28 percent bracket; we moved that to 27.

Somebody says, that benefits the high income. Wait a minute. We reduce it in every single bracket by 1 percent. We forgave the 15 percent bracket, to move down 1 point, that is a 7 percent reduction. If you move a 39.6 percent down to 38.6, that is a 2.6 percent reduction—less than half of a percentage reduction of the 15 percent bracket. It happens that the low-income taxpayer. So I don’t think this is tilted in any way. If anything, if one really looks at this, it makes the system more progressive.

So the argument that this benefits upper income, it doesn’t fly, and it doesn’t fly with history. Look at what the tax cut rates were when President Clinton was sworn into office. The maximum rate in 1992 was 31 percent. After the Clinton tax increase—or maybe I should say the Democrat tax increase because it only passed by Democrats, with the Vice President breaking the tie vote twice in this Chamber—it increased the maximum rate from 31 to 39.6 percent. Actually, it went higher than that because they also took the Social Security tax off. And said you have to pay Medicare tax on all income, all salary, and all wages. So you have payroll taxes and Federal income taxes and Social Security taxes, and no limit, no base, no cap on Medicare taxes.

Medicare tax is 1.45 percent of payroll, plus your employer’s contribution; that is 2.9 percent. So a person in the maximum bracket pays actually 39.6, plus 2.9 percent, which is 42.5 percent. Total, it is 42.5 percent. When Bill Clinton was sworn in, the maximum rate was 31 percent. One year later, it was 42.5 percent on all income, all wages, on everybody in the country.

That is a massive tax increase. That is a 37 percent increase.

What are we doing in this bill? We are reducing that by one point. We reduce it from 39.6 to 38.6. 38.6 is a whole lot more than 31.

So, the tax cut that we are proposing is just a small fraction of the tax increase President Clinton and the Democrats passed in 1993—a small fraction. Yet some of my colleagues are saying we can’t do that. It might deny us the ability to spend more money. We have a whole laundry list of people parading to Washington, DC, saying: Give me some more money because we want to spend it. We want more of your money because we can spend it better than you can.

Finally, I want to address the comments of one of our colleagues who says we favor a tax cut, but we don’t believe now is the time to do it. Wait a minute. When are you going to do it, if not now?

We have estimates of a $3 trillion surplus over the next 10 years. And we are not going to do it now? Will we only give you a tax cut if it is $4 trillion, or $5 trillion? At what point would our colleagues say it is time to let people keep more of their own money? We are taking too much from them. If my colleagues are not going to agree to a tax cut that is only one-fourth of the surplus, they will never agree to one.

It absolutely amazes me how our Democrat colleagues all marched in step in 1993 and said: We are going to support this tax increase because Bill Clinton wants it.

I don’t know. But we cut taxes in 1997. We reduced capital gains from 28 to 20 percent—very positive things. They might think that was a bad thing to do. No one offered an amendment saying let’s bring capital gains back up to 39.6 percent, saying it was terrible. A lot of people debated against it in 1997. But it was the right thing to do.

Then in 1997, he eventually agreed to a tax cut and everybody seemed to favor it. I guess whatever Bill Clinton says the Democrats march in line to.

I don’t know. But we cut taxes in 1997. We reduced capital gains from 28 to 20 percent—very positive things. They might think that was a bad thing to do. No one offered an amendment saying let’s bring capital gains back up to 39.6 percent, saying it was terrible. A lot of people debated against it in 1997. But it was the right thing to do.

A family of four with an income of less than $30,000 has $2,000 per year that they can keep. A family with four kids gets to keep $2,000 more per year because Republicans in Congress said we are going to pass it. We promised to act on it.

We established the Roth IRA.

We did some good things in 1997. Guess what? We didn’t have the projected surplus in 1997 that we have in 1999. We can live off the dollars of anticipated surplus. Let’s give one-fourth of it back to the American people. Let’s let them keep it. They shouldn’t have to send that much to Washington, DC. Their taxes are too high. I will go through a couple of examples that we correct in this bill to show why their taxes are too high and what we do about it. There are too many people who feel too much to Washington DC. Let me address a couple of those examples.

I mentioned a self-employed person. A self-employed person, an individual, makes $25,000. They are taxed at the margin bracket of 15 percent on everything they make up to $25,000. Above that they are taxed at 28 percent. If somebody has a painting service in rural Delaware, and paints houses and works for himself, that individual has a taxable income of $25,000, and probably is not considered wealthy by most people's standards. Any additional contract that person makes, any additional income that person makes, is taxed at 28 percent. He also has to pay Social Security and Medicare tax. That is 15.3 percent on top of the 28 percent. Add those two together, and it is 43.3 percent. He has to pay State income tax. In my State that is 6 or 7 percent. For any additional dollar that individual makes painting houses or doing work for himself, half of it goes to the government, if they are self-employed.

That is too high. That is far too much.

For a married couple right now that makes $43,000, it is the same thing. For any additional dollar they make, half of it goes to the government, if they are married.

That is too high. So we cut that.

We provide marriage penalty relief and several other positive things. Let me go through some more of the changes.

I mentioned that we cut all brackets by one percent. That benefits the lower more than the upper brackets. The lower brackets get a seven-percent reduction, and the top bracket drops from 39 percent to 33 percent. That is not stacked towards the higher income people. It is a tax cut for all taxpayers, and it benefits, percentage-wise, the lowest income taxpayers first. The lowest-income taxpayer gets the break first.

Again, for somebody who says this is weighted towards the wealthy, it is absolutely totally and completely false.

We widen the 15 percent bracket. We make $2,000 to $5,000. We haven't increased it. We ship $3,000 more income of the 14-percent bracket instead of the 28-percent bracket.

That is a very positive change for an individual with an income up to $25,750. That means they get to save $900. That is fairly significant. I think that is very significant.

For a couple you are talking about double that amount. So they get to save a significant amount as well.

Marriage penalty relief: What on earth do we do? Some people do not understand what we did. We said we would double the bracket by increasing the standard deduction—basically doubling the standard deduction for an individual. If you look at the income tax forms, and say you are filing as individuals, or joint. If you file as married, you don't get twice the individual deduction. So, frankly, it would be better off if a married couple filed as individuals. They are penalized heavily.

Does it make any sense for our Tax Code to penalize people for being married to the tune of $1,400 per family? That is wrong. This bill eliminates that for most couples.

What do we do? We said, Let's double the standard deduction. It should be twice as much for those who are married or it is for individuals.

We do that with this legislation because the biggest hit is on married couples, and the marriage penalty is that individually they are taxed at 15 percent. For joint income tax they are taxed at 28 percent—almost twice as high. We move those rates to 14 and to 27 percent. We are saying for all of the income over $15,000 that is 14 percent they should have twice that bracket amount for a couple. That is not the way the tax code is right now.

Let me explain it.

Individuals today are taxed at 15 percent, and they paid $7,000 that they are taxed at 15 percent up to $50,000. But that is not the present law. The present law says above $43,000 they are taxed at 28 percent. So they have $7,000 that they are taxed at a higher rate, twice the rate as what they should be. We eliminate that. We double the 15 percent bracket for married couples.

So if it is $25,000 at 15 percent for an individual, it would be $50,000 for a couple.

What does that mean in savings to a couple that makes $50,000? It means $900 a year that they will be able to keep. We are not going to penalize couples because they happen to be married and because they happen to file joint returns.

I want to compliment the chairman, because he has worked very hard in supporting this.

We have $100 billion in tax relief for married couples by eliminating the marriage penalty in this legislation—that is one eighth of this bill. When we debated this legislation on the floor of the Senate last week, no one said take out the marriage penalty.

The marriage penalty tax elimination is one of the most important aspects of this bill and we are going to make it happen.

The upper rate reductions that I mentioned move one percent down.

That may not happen, because we have a trigger mechanism that says if we don't meet the deficit reduction targets the tax cut doesn't happen.

What else did we do in this bill? We reduce capital gains taxes. We have proven time and time again, going back to the time of John F. Kennedy, reduce taxes and we generate more money to Government, particularly with marginal rates and capital gains rates. We reduced the capital gains rate in 1997 from 28 to 20 percent, and it raised a lot of money for the Federal Government. In this bill, immediately going back to January 1 of this year, we reduce the capital gains rate from 20 percent to 18 percent.

Beginning January 1 of next year we index capital gains. What does that mean? It means we will quit taxing inflation. If someone has a home and that home is escalating in price through inflation, they won't have to pay taxes on that inflated gain because the home really hasn't increased in value, it is just staying up. That is a very positive provision and I compliment the authors of the bill for their hard work.

We increase IRA deductions from $2,000 to $5,000. We haven't increased it that we have added.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record a couple of tables showing the distributional effects. Changes that we are making will show the greatest percentage of reductions are certainly pushed towards the lower income. For example, on married filing jointly, the rate reduction is 7 percent but the biggest reduction actually is for incomes of $40,000 to $60,000, receiving significant reductions, up to 17 and 22 percent, because of the marriage penalty relief that we have added.

I ask unanimous consent to have these tables printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

EXENSIONS OF REMARKS

ALICE TENNISON
HON. HEATHER WILSON OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mrs. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to bring to your attention the outstanding work of Alice Tennison.

Alice lives in Albuquerque, New Mexico, and is a constituent of mine. Recently, Alice won the Education’s Unsung Heroes Award for mentoring students and founding the Student Mentorship in Education Project. The Student Mentorship in Education Project gives high school students hands-on experience in leading elementary school classrooms.

I would also like to thank ReliaStar Financial Corporation and Northern Life Insurance Company for sponsoring the event.

A good education helps students achieve their career and life goals. Alice Tennison has helped provide a quality education in New Mexico. Her work touches the lives of our next generation of teachers.

Alice Tennison continues to contribute to New Mexico education and I hope she will continue to do so well into the future. Mr. Speaker, I ask that we recognize and thank Alice Tennison for her achievement.

INNOVATIVE RESPONSES TO YOUTH VIOLENCE AND SCHOOL DROPOUTS RATES

HON. ROBIN HAYES OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, educators in communities across the country are searching for innovative methods to assist families in combating the threats that plague so many of our nation’s high schools. Drugs, juvenile violence, high school students dropping out of their education: schools have a responsibility to partner with parents in safeguarding our children from these hazards.

In 1997, the last year for which we have reliable statistics available, there were 706,000 violent crimes involving teenagers. To reduce this number, we have to start early: as former Winston-Salem, North Carolina police chief George Sweat has said, “the fight against crime needs to start in the highchair, not wait for the electric chair.”

Nationwide, 5 percent of students drop out of school. Only 40 percent of high school dropouts are employed. Dropping out often leads students to drifting, trouble and sometimes crime and time in jail. As the demands of the workplace grow more dependent upon high levels of literacy and technical skill, high school dropouts will increasingly face problems in getting and keeping jobs.

The American family is the bedrock of hope for instilling values in children that can keep them on the right path. But our schools can help as well. The use of innovative methods to educate and encourage young people to respect themselves, to stay in school and out of trouble is essential. One such method is a public-private partnership by which over 40 percent of American schools belong. These schools work with the Channel One Network, an in-school news analysis program that reaches eight million American students daily.

Studies have shown that public service announcements by this programmer for military recruitment and drug prevention have been extraordinarily effective. Students in Channel One Schools have more negative impressions of drug use. They are also more likely to consider enlisting in their nation’s armed services.

I believe that schools must increase such effective programs in the areas of juvenile violence and high school dropout prevention. I intend to work hard to ensure that our government expands its support of our schools’ efforts in this direction.

TRIBUTE TO OFFICER MICHAEL LEWELLEN

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor Officer Michael Lewellen for his commendable service to the United States Armed Forces. It is with great pride that I present Mr. Lewellen with seven prestigious military awards and decorations including the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart, the Air Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal, the Combat Medical Badge, and the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Ribbon with Device.

Our nation is graced with many treasures, though none so precious as the peace we enjoy in our prosperous country. I am honored to commend Mr. Lewellen for his contribution to safeguarding that peace. It is one of our nation’s great strengths that men and women have answered our country’s call, and continue to heed it today to prevent the devastation we have witnessed too often this century.

Fortunately, our society has been blessed with many leaders who learned the values of leadership—responsibility, accountability and loyalty—while wearing the uniform of their country. For without their dedication to duty, we would not enjoy the many freedoms a fortunate America has to offer.

Again, I offer Mr. Lewellen my sincerest congratulations. I join together with everyone in this room to celebrate Mr. Lewellen’s patriotism and to pay tribute to his service to our great nation.

BRINGING SMILES TO FLORIDA

HON. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer my warmest congratulations to the dental community in Florida for their great success with Project: Dentists Care (PDC), which facilitates access to dental care for indigent or underserved populations throughout the State.

In a typical year, over 700 dentists donate more than 10,000 hours to treat 6,000–7,000 patients, providing close to a million dollars worth of dentistry, all at no charge.

Project: Dentists Care Began in Palm Beach County in 1992, and now enjoys success throughout the State. Money raised from fund raisers such as the annual Dentist’s Day in October, including the ball, the silent auction and art sales, helps buy supplies and equipment needed for the programs.

I am pleased to support the efforts of Project: Dentists Care, and I urge my colleagues to join me as I extend my support and best wishes for a successful Dentist Day.

COMMANDER JACKIE W. KYGER

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend a gentleman who does an outstanding job commanding a Coast Guard Station in my district, Commander Jackie W. Kyger.

Commander Kyger is an absolutely superb man. He commands the South Padre Island Coast Guard Station in Port Isabel, Texas, in my district and he will be leaving Friday, August 6, for the private sector. If he carries the same gung-ho, can-do attitude that he has employed in his service to our country into the private sector, I have no doubt he will retire a millionaire.

The Port Isabel station has a very tough mission, which centers largely on drug interdiction. They have quite a small station, with a tremendous amount of space to cover. In the last Congress, it came to my attention that the station desperately needed new equipment. They were making do with surplus equipment in their quest to interdict drug smugglers along a large chunk of South Texas coast. We ask our Coast Guard to do so much: search and rescue, boat safety, drug interdiction and fishing regulation enforcement, among others.

It is just not right to give them that enormous responsibility without the equipment to do the job. In the next Coast Guard Authorization bill, I made sure to include committee report language stressing the need for new equipment, and as a result, the Port Isabel Coast Guard station recently got two new utility vehicles that are currently being fitted. This speaks to Commander Kyger’s leadership ability, ensuring that his people had the proper equipment to accomplish their mission.

Mr. Speaker, Commander Kyger will be greatly missed by the larger South Texas community, as well as the Coasities he commands. He is a devoted family man who is also committed to helping the community. He was of great help to a community project known as “Save Our Children,” a non-profit group that targeted young people in the Valley, encouraging them to stay away from violence and drugs, and reassuring them that they are indeed loved and are a valuable resource to South Texas. He was also instrumental in forming a partnership with the Boys Scouts of America to create a U.S. Coast Guard Explorers Post, an activity that provides a positive focus for young people after school.

I ask my colleagues to join me today in commending Jackie Kyger, an outstanding patriot, officer and family man on his departure from Coast Guard Station South Padre Island this week.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

SPEECH OF
HON. ROBERT WEXLER
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, August 2, 1999

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2606) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes:

Mr. WEXLER. Mr. Chairman, I strongly oppose the Burton Amendment to H.R. 2606, the Foreign Operations Appropriations bill, which would limit U.S. foreign aid to India.

This amendment, which cuts essential aid to India, sends the wrong message to the government in Delhi. U.S./India relations have significantly improved since the end of the cold war. In reaching out to the United States and the international community, India has undertaken dramatic economic policy reforms to become a market-oriented economy. As of today, the United States is India’s largest trading partner and largest investor.

The Indian government has also taken constructive steps to improve its human rights record. We must recognize the Indian government’s efforts and progress, and assist them in taking further steps to reduce human rights abuses in their country.

Although the Indian government has made progress with respect to economic reforms and human rights, they face a much tougher goal of providing for a population of close to a billion people with a rapid population growth of 1.7 percent per year. Forty percent of India’s urban population and half of the rural population live below the poverty level. The Burton amendment would cut crucial U.S. humanitarian aid to India that is desperately needed for disease control, population control, malnutrition, and rural development.

India which is an important strategic ally of the United States borders Iran and Communist China. Like the United States, India has many security concerns, including the direct threat of terrorism. Radical terrorist outfits trained in Afghanistan and Pakistan, including that of Osam Bin Laden, have targeted and executed innocently.

I believe that the United States and India have already begun to see the benefits of improved bilateral relations. Unfortunately, this amendment reverses the gains made between our two democracies and denies humanitarian assistance to a desperately impoverished India. I urge my colleagues to defeat this amendment.

INTRODUCTION OF THE MEDICARE PARAMEDIC INTERCEPT SERVICE EQUITY ACT

HON. SUE W. KELLY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Medicare Paramedic Intercept Service Equity Act, legislation which will provide reimbursement for critically needed ambulance intercepts, no matter where they occur.

In the past, paramedic ambulance companies have billed Medicare for services administered to beneficiaries during an intercept. In May 1995, the Health Care Financing Administration discontinued the paramedic ambulances to bill Medicare, stating that they only grant payment for services provided by the transporting ambulance, which under an intercept would be the non-billing volunteer ambulance. This policy precludes paramedic ambulances from receiving Medicare payment for their services.

According to the providers this policy has proven to be a nightmare. It creates a situation in which the volunteer personnel might choose to not call paramedic personnel, even if it is against their best judgment, because the patient may not be able to afford the cost of the paramedic care. The billing of the patient could also be avoided, if the patient is physically transferred from the volunteer ambulance to the paramedic ambulance, thereby making it the transporting ambulance but, in the process, wasting time that could be critical to the well being and survival of the patient. However, if the volunteer company does choose to call paramedic personnel, then the cost is passed on to the patient.

Although carriers have begun billing patients for their services, they often waive the charges for seniors who cannot afford to pay the bill. As a result of this policy, many paramedic ambulance companies are experiencing serious financial losses and may have to go out of business, which jeopardizes emergency care. Additionally, many areas have taken to calling paramedic providers to describe their conditions to see if they would require their services, before calling the volunteer ambulance.

In 1997, Congress addressed this issue in the Medicare provision of the Balanced Budget Act. This provision amended the Social Security Act to provide coverage in rural areas for paramedic intercept services under Medicare Part B. This change was intended to allow paramedic ambulance companies to bill Medicare for their services despite the fact that they were not the transporting vehicle. Yet under the Health Care Financing Administration’s proposed methodology, many areas which would commonly be thought of as rural are not considered as such under the rule. Thus, these areas have all the problems of being rural, yet have none of the protections that Medicare reimbursements for paramedic intercept services would provide.

As a result, one town with the fortune of being classified as rural has paramedic intercept coverage, while the town directly next door has the same basic rural nature, but a few more residents has no coverage. This leaves seniors stuck in the middle, confused as to what areas are covered, and scared to call for an ambulance for fear they will be charged with a bill they cannot afford. The policy of only reimbursing ambulance intercepts that occur in rural areas geographically discriminates against Medicare beneficiaries by arbitrarily setting standards for reimbursement that will help only those seniors with the luck of living in a federally defined rural town.

Paramedic intercepts should be covered by Medicare no matter where a senior lives. If a senior is in medical need of an intercept, then Medicare should pay for it. The Medicare Paramedic Intercept Service Equity Act takes the debate over coverage out of rural vs. urban and towards one of medical necessity. Specifically, this bill strikes the word “rural” from the ambulance intercept provision of the Balanced Budget Act. In doing this, all intercepts are covered whether they are in a rural area or not.

Please join me in providing seniors with the critical emergency services they need and co-sponsor this important bill.

COSTELLO HONORS 300TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE VILLAGE OF CAHOKIA

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of the 300th Anniversary of the Village of Cahokia.

As we begin to near the end of this millennium, I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the history of the small towns within all of our districts. Throughout this year, Cahokia, a village in my district, continues to celebrate its tricentennial anniversary, with reflection on its vital place in American history.

The Village of Cahokia derives its name, which means “Wild Geese”, from the Cahokia Indian tribe. Today, it is recognized not only as a wonderful, thriving community of Southern Illinois but also as the site of the Cahokia Mounds, which is both an Illinois State Historic Site and a World Heritage Site. The Cahokians, members of the Illini Confederation, along with their relatives, the Tamarao, were the first people known to inhabit this small and beautiful region in the Mississippi Valley. While the Cahokian tribe continues to provide a vital, unique character to Cahokia, the history of Cahokia, as the Cahokia Mounds Site and as part of the Cahokia tribe, continues to provide a vital, unique character to Cahokia, the history of Cahokia, as the Cahokia Mounds Site and as part of the Cahokia tribe.
As the 18th century progressed, Cahokia also took pride in its role in winning a battle of the American Revolution. Captain Joseph Bowman and George Rogers Clark negotiated peace agreements in Cahokia at Fort Bowman with the tribes of the Illini Confederation, and then launched an attack on British occupied Vincennes. Both their soldiers and ammunition were primarily supplied by the residents of Cahokia.

Cahokia has long been recognized as a significant force in Illinois politics. In the 18th and 19th centuries, the Cahokia Courthouse served as an important center of activity in the Northwest. At one point it was both the judicial and administrative center for a massive area which rose up to the borders of Canada.

Today, I am honored to represent Cahokia, which has embraced its heritage of both Native-American history, as well as the influx of French and other ethnicities, spurred by westward expansion. This close community of churches, civic groups, and businesses inspires us to remember the legacy of our forefathers, while also celebrating the future.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the Village of Cahokia this month in commemoration of its 300th Anniversary!

MUSEUM FOR AFRICAN ART

HON. JERROLD NADLER
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to recognize one of New York City's premier cultural institutions, the Museum of African Art, and to invite my colleagues to visit the Museum over the August recess. Founded in 1984, the Manhattan-based Museum is the only independent museum in the United States devoted exclusively to historical and contemporary African art.

The Museum for African Art is dedicated to increasing public understanding and appreciation of African art and culture. Through exhibitions and catalogues of the highest aesthetic and scholarly merit, the Museum offers definitive research and scholarship on African cultural groups and their regional influences.

The Museum provides thematic comparison and exploration of artistic ideas reflected in the great variety of cultures in Africa, innovative methods of display and interpretation of African art to involve audiences directly in the exhibition process, and programs that stimulate lifelong learning and appreciation of African art and culture.

In April 1999, the Museum opened a groundbreaking exhibition entitled "A Congo Chronicle: Urban Art and the Legend of Patrice Lumumba." Consisting of 50 paintings by famed African artist Tshibumba Kanda-Matulu and several other urban artists of the time, this exhibition offers a uniquely personal encounter with the African independence movement as it was born and took hold among the population.

African art aficionados are looking forward to the September unveiling of the exhibit, Liberated Voices: Contemporary Art from South Africa. Featuring close to 100 works, including paintings, sculptures, installations, photographs, and videos made since Apartheid ended in 1994. This exhibition highlights major trends in contemporary South African artistic practice. The exhibit will focus on the diverse works of young artists in today's South Africa. Through their personal experiences Museum visitors will gain a greater insight into this dynamic country.

Mr. Speaker, the Museum for African Art is a unique resource. I hope all of my colleagues will have the opportunity to visit the Museum to learn more about African art and its influence and significant contributions to our culture and society.

IN CELEBRATION OF THE BIRTH OF MORGAN JULIAN TAYLOR

HON. DAVID M. MCINTOSH OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Speaker, last Wednesday, July 28, 1999, Morgan Juliann Taylor was born. She is the daughter of Jeff Taylor and his wife Julie. God blessed them with a beautiful, healthy child. When we debate issues on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives which will impact the lives of children, I like to think of children I know, especially my own daughter, Ellie. From this time forward, I will also keep Morgan Juliann in my mind and heart as this great body works to make this country a better place to live for Ellie, Morgan and all of our children and grandchildren.

TRIBUTE TO ISAAC DARCO

HON. JOSÉ E. SERRANO
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to once again congratulate and to pay tribute to Mr. Isaac Darco, a constituent of mine and a distinguished student at Columbia University in my chief of staff, Jeff Taylor and his wife Julie. God blessed them with a beautiful, healthy child. When we debate issues on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives which will impact the lives of children, I like to think of children I know, especially my own daughter, Ellie. From this time forward, I will also keep Morgan Juliann in my mind and heart as this great body works to make this country a better place to live for Ellie, Morgan and all of our children and grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, theUGSP on August 5, 1999 for the second year in a row.

Isaac graduated from the Health Professions and Human Services High School in 1997 and has just completed his first year at Columbia University. This summer he has been working at the NIH Department of Molecular Biology under the supervision of Dr. Alfred Johnson. He has been working on the epidermal growth factor receptor (EGFR), which is expressed in such cancers as breast and prostate cancer and in other cancer cell lines.

Mr. Speaker, theUGSP scholars search is highly competitive and nationwide. Currently, the program has 24 scholars from all over the nation, from institutions such as Columbia University, MIT, Harvard, Georgetown, U.C. Davis, and Stanford. In order to participate in the program, a Scholar must either have a 3.5 Grade Point Average or be in the top 5 percent of his/her class. Candidates must also demonstrate a commitment to pursuing careers in biomedical research and must be from a disadvantaged background. The current group is composed of 32 percent Hispanics, 32 percent African Americans, 21 percent Asians, 10 percent Caucasians, and 5 percent Native American, with a balance between the genders of 52 percent female and 48 percent male.

Mr. Speaker, being selected for this program for two consecutive years indicates that Isaac has demonstrated that he has the ability and the desire to be an asset and a role model in our community. We are proud of his accomplishments and I know he is taking full advantage of the opportunity presented to him.

He is a terrific example for future participants in this program and others like it. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating once again Mr. Isaac Darco for his outstanding accomplishments and also in commending the National Institutes of Health Undergraduate Scholarship Program for Individuals from Disadvantaged Backgrounds for offering opportunities to students like Isaac.
America is now the most economically stratified country in the industrialized world. So there's a lot of issues that also tie in with livable wage. I mean, you have welfare, which is one issue. And one of the incentives perhaps for a lot of people who are on welfare would be a higher minimum wage. I think the answer to the problem would be to require companies, I think, to raise the minimum wage to something that is easily livable. I, ideally, I would have said $9 an hour or so. Cut back working hours, so require the company to make, to hire a certain number of workers, also based on their expenses, which would help unemployment rates.

Other issues that are, a large part of having an unbalanced budget can be attributed to having stagnated wages. College education prices have gone up 80 percent over the past two decades. I think, as far as the cost of real value. And it is going to be harder and harder for people who are making minimum wage, now to send their kids to college or to support their families.

Congressman Sanders: Jenn?

Jenn Donohue: As a senior in high school, the thought was to go out and find a job and employment. And, as Dan was saying, it bothers me in both respects, that there are people out there who are making minimum wage, helping some kids, trying to buy necessities, basic things that people need, and they are getting welfare; and there are other people out there who don't work, who don't come to work every month, and that's what they live on, have no initiative to get up, get out, and get a job. Welfare was established for people in need, to help them get up on their feet until the time came where they were okay, and then they were all set, and they didn't need it as much as they do now. I think now there is a problem where people are using it as their basic income. They have no desire to get up and get a job. And it is not the case with all people who are on welfare. Some people need it intensely. They are working two jobs, their spouse is working two jobs. Their kids are going to school, they need food and products all kids need.

I just think that something has to be done to change the way that welfare is going, because it is unfair to people who really need the welfare of the money. When it is going to people who are just using it—I mean, there are women who get pregnant so they will not work. They want to keep their kids in the door, it is sick and it is twisted, and something needs to be done to reform welfare, so that the people who need it are getting it, and the people who need it and aren't doing anything to get it do something about that.

Congressman Sanders: Thanks for tackling a very, very important issue.

ZERO TOLERANCE FOR ALCOHOL

(On behalf of Laura Megivern)

Laura Megivern: My name is Laura Megivern, and I am from South Burlington High School.

In all 50 states, it is illegal for anyone under 21 to purchase and possess alcoholic beverages. Following this logic, it should therefore be illegal for anyone under the age of 21 to have a blood alcohol concentration of anything over .00. However, this is not the case. In Vermont, anything under a .02 alcohol level is legal for someone under 21 years old, who is trying to buy alcohol or possess any alcoholic product.

It is required that all states have a zero tolerance law for people under the legal age to have a blood alcohol concentration of anything more than .02, .01 or .00. In 1994, according to the National Highway Safety Administration, motor vehicle crashes cost the United States more than $150 billion in economic costs. Crashes involving 15- to 20-year-olds cost the United States years more than $21 billion in 1994. Although they may be effective, there is a bit of a disparity, in that fact that, although youth are not permitted to purchase or possess alcohol, it is all right for them to have some alcohol in their blood. One reason behind the legal limit is, I believe, because of problems with the calibration of instruments, and because of the margin of error that may exist in the use of a Breathalyzer. Other reasons brought up while the law was being created were that some foods may raise the alcohol level in breath, and that wine consumed in church as part of communion may raise the blood alcohol to an illegal level. The amount of wine ingested during communion would most likely be immeasurable, unless the Breathalyzer test was administered just afterwards. Also, an average high school student taking one dose of Nyquil would be under this limit, as the alcohol level would barely be measurable—although, in my opinion, if you feel bad enough to take Nyquil, a cough syrup advertised as helping you get sleep, you probably shouldn't be driving anyway. Some yeast products may also raise the alcohol content, but not to a measurable level, according to Dan Steenberg of One Program, an outpatient rehabilitation program.

He also says that, a beginning drinker without a high tolerance to alcohol, like a teenager, would be shown as .06, 16 ounces of hard liquor, and that, especially if slurred speech and impairment of judgment, at a .02 blood alcohol concentration.

For a .02 blood alcohol concentration, you, would need to drink a can of beer, 12 ounces, or 6 ounces of wine. In fact, for a 150-pound male, one can of beer, 5 ounces of wine, or 1.5 ounces of hard liquor puts the blood alcohol concentration above the legal limit even for someone over 21. However, if the male waited two hours to drive, he would be below it.

The rationale for zero tolerance is clearly understandable. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 21 people of age 15 to 20 are involved in fatal crashes had some alcohol in their blood in 1994. In the same year, an estimated 896 lives were saved by the minimum-age drinking laws, and another estimated 16,513 lives have been saved by these laws since 1975.

Although there is a discrepancy in the legal limit and what one would hope would be the legal limit, I see the reasoning behind it, although I hope that, one day, equipment will be in use in Vermont that has no margin of error, so that we can have an actual zero tolerance law, rather than a .02 tolerance law, because zero should mean zero.

MAXINE DEAMOS

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, let me take this opportunity to recognize Maxine Deamos upon her retirement from the Lafayette Regional Health Center in Lexington, Missouri. Maxine Deamos first served as a nurse in the former Lexington Memorial Hospital 34 years ago. During her tenure, she worked as a nursing aid in various departments of the hospital, including surgery, obstetrics, and the operating room. At the time of her retirement, Ms. Deamos was employed in the sterile central supply, the part of the hospital that provides sterile processing for surgical instruments and equipment. A standout employee during her 34 years, she was named Lafayette Regional Health Center Employee of the Year in 1967 and given the Smile Award, recognizing her cheery attitude, in 1997.

Maxine Deamos is an outstanding citizen of the Lexington community, and her wonderful personality will be missed by all at Lexington Regional Health Care Center. During her quieter times, Ms. Deamos plans to travel, work on her crafts, and spend time with her grandchildren. Mr. Speaker, I am sure that our colleagues join me in recognition of this outstanding Missourian.

I believe that it is incumbent upon the President and the United States government to acknowledge this dark chapter of our nation’s history. Italian Americans who were victims of persecution are entitled to no less, and America needs to acknowledge the truth. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2442.

A TRIBUTE TO LULAC

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, August 4, 1999

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor one of the most influential Hispanic civil rights organizations in the United States. The League of United Latin American Citizens is celebrating its 70th anniversary of service to the Latino community.

In 1929, LULAC was formed in Corpus Christi, TX. Formed as a grassroots self-help organization, LULAC has a distinguished record of fighting for Hispanic education, employment and civil rights. Today, LULAC’s 250,000 members make it the largest Hispanic organization in the U.S. Its 600 councils nationwide have been significant in empowering Latino communities in Texas, New Mexico, California, Florida, Washington, DC and New York.

Education has always been a chief priority for LULAC, providing more than half a million dollars in scholarships for Latino students. LULAC National Educational Service Centers serve over 18,000 students with counseling and dropout prevention programs. At the same time, its commitment to the assurance of equal access has been fundamental in LULAC’s fight for affirmative action and women’s rights.

In the Hispanic business community, LULAC has been important in furnishing training and management expertise, while also providing support for economic development. LULAC has also made great strides in combating Hispanic unemployment through the development of programs like SER-Jobs for Progress and Vocational Training Centers.

I am proud to represent the city of Santa Ana, which is the home of the first LULAC council in California. Its work in my community is indispensable. I applaud LULAC for its 70 years of service to Hispanics in the United States. Its outstanding work should be an inspiration to other elected officials, especially those here in Congress. I applaud LULAC’s on its anniversary, and give thanks for all its good work.

I congratulate LULAC for its 70 years of service to Hispanics in the United States. Its outstanding work should be an inspiration to other elected officials, especially those here in Congress. I applaud LULAC's on its anniversary, and give thanks for all its good work.
My legislation requires states to conform their EBT standards to a national, uniform operating system that the states themselves choose. The clear choice, the Quest operating system, has already been adopted by 33 states.

Pilot studies have been conducted to determine cost and other efficiencies that might be realized by EBT interoperability. The pilot program determined my bill would only cost the Food Stamp Program $500,000. That's not a lot of money for an $18 billion program. Also, the State of Missouri found around $32 million in abuse of the program that they never would have found if their EBT system couldn't talk with neighboring state systems.

Mr. Speaker, the bill I introduce today is simple. It returns the national redemption convenience to the beneficiaries of the program, gives the states the guidance they are looking for, and provides another tool in the fight against fraud, waste and abuse in the Food Stamp Program. Thank you for this time and I urge support from the membership for the Electronic Benefit Transfer Interoperability and Portability Act of 1999.

SPEECH OF
HON. MICHAEL P. FORBES
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to a bill that jeopardizes America's future prosperity by endangering the protection of our nation's independent inventors. HR 2654 seeks to extensively reform the patent process, which should only occur after deliberative discussion and with the opportunity for amendment. This bill will pass this body without even the courtesy of open debate. Such an important matter demands a thorough dialogue.

Small inventors, like the industrious citizens of Eastern Long Island, provided sparks of inspiration that helped build this nation. The Constitution ensures that inventors have the constitutionally granted rights to a patent. Remarkably it is doing so without even a written bill informing the affected parties or even their Representatives what the bill contains. Even more remarkably it is doing it over the prospect of losing their constitutionally granted rights of independent inventors everywhere.

I would like to place that letter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD at this point.

Mr. Speaker, as Mr. Damadian has written, Congress determined my bill would only cost the U.S. Patent Office from the purview of Congressional oversight to eroding cherished Constitutional guarantees.

Mr. Speaker, I know that all of our colleagues in the House will join me in celebrating the tenth anniversary of the most revolutionary design in bombing aircraft since World War II.

INVOCATION

IT'S TIME TO CONSIDER A PATIENTS' BILL OF RIGHTS

HON. DENNIS MOORE OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, the people of Kansas' Third District sent me to Washington, D.C., to represent their concerns and do all I can to address major, pending federal issues. For this reason, I was very disappointed when it became apparent in the last few days that the House would not be considering proposals to enact a Patients' Bill of Rights.

One of my first actions as a freshman Member of Congress was to join as an original co-sponsor of H.R. 358, the Patients' Bill of Rights. This important legislation will ensure basic rights for patients and give them the protections they deserve. While the majority was unable to reach the consensus necessary within their caucus to bring a proposal in this area before the House for consideration this week, I am pleased that the Committee Ranking Democrat JOHN DINGELL has continued active discussions with three members of the majority who are physicians—Doctors GANSE, COBURN and NORWOOD—in an attempt to reach a bipartisan consensus on a proposal to provide meaningful protections for managed care patients and physicians.

I also want to bring to the attention of my colleagues a recent newspaper column by Steve Rose, the chairman of Sun Publications, which publishes the Johnson County Sun and several other newspapers that serve my congressional district. I commend to everyone Mr. Rose's commentary regarding the real-world problems that indicate a need for enactment this year of a Patients' Bill of Rights.
CHILDREN'S ASTHMA RELIEF ACT OF 1999

HON. HENRY A. WAXMAN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join my colleague, FRED UPTON, in introducing the Children's Asthma Relief Act of 1999.

Asthma is one of the most significant and prevalent chronic diseases in America. Children with asthma suffer from chronic inflammation of the airways that leads to episodes of chest tightness and shortness of breath. The disease affects an estimated 6.4 million American children, and it is the leading cause of emergency hospital visits among children under 18 years old. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports that 6.4 percent of the population, or 17.3 million Americans, report having asthma. This represents a dramatic 75 percent increase in self-reported cases from 1980 to 1994.

Asthma is disproportionately hurting children. Today, it is the most common childhood chronic disease. Five million American children have asthma. As and Surgeon General David Satcher recently concluded, the United States is "moving in the wrong direction, especially among minority children in the urban communities." The most devastating indicator of our Nation's loss of progress is the news that, from 1980 to 1993, the mortality rate for children and teens with asthma rose a staggering 78 percent.

Just a few days ago, Dr. Philip Landrigan reported in the Journal of Asthma that higher asthma hospitalization rates are associated with children, communities of color and the poor. The potential causes for the disproportionate impact of asthma are wide ranging, from the lack of preventive care, poor housing conditions and increased exposure to indoor allergens, to sedentary lifestyles and the siting of polluting commercial facilities.

Our country can and must do more to prevent and treat asthma. I am pleased to introduce the Children's Asthma Relief Act of 1999, which was originally introduced by Dick DURBIN and Mike DEWINE in the Senate. This legislation provides $50 million for pediatric asthma prevention and treatment programs, allowing states and local communities to target and improve the health of low-income children suffering from asthma. The Act would also increase the enrollment of these children into Medicaid and state Children's Health Insurance Programs (CHIP), such as California's Healthy Families. I am also pleased that the Act includes mobile "breathmobiles" among the community-based programs eligible for funding. These school-based mobile clinics were developed by the Southern California chapter of the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, in conjunction with Los Angeles County, Los Angeles Unified School District and the University of Southern California.

This legislation has the support of leading child health and asthma organizations, including the American Lung Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, Association of Maternal and Child Health Programs, the National Association of Children's Hospitals, the American Academy of Chest Physicians and the Children's Health Fund. As an honorary co-chair of Asthma Awareness Day, I urge my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring the Children's Asthma Relief Act of 1999.

HON. DON YOUNG
OF ALASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to introduce a bill to expand Alaska Native contracting of Federal land management functions and activities and, promote hiring of Alaska Natives by the federal government within the State of Alaska.

This bill was developed in response to my request to the Alaska Federal of Natives at their retreat in August of 1998. Pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act, tribes are authorized to enter into contracts with the Department of the Interior to directly administer programs previously administered by that agency. Congress strongly advocated this change to allow tribes to provide direct and improved services to their members.

The bill entitled "Alaska Federal Lands Management Demonstration Project" would direct the Secretary of the Interior to enter into a demonstration project in fiscal years 2000 and 2001 with no less than six eligible Alaska Native tribes or tribal organizations to manage a conservation unit or other public land unit within the closest proximity of that tribal organization.

The bill further directs the Secretary to fully fund these demonstration projects in the same manner he would have funded the programs if they were still being managed by the Department of the Interior.

It has always been my strong belief that Alaska Natives can manage conservation units or national park systems units as well or even better than the federal government. Alaska Native Natives have demonstrated their reliance of the land, the conservation of its bounty and great respect for the cautious management of its resources to preserve for future generations. I believe that Alaska Natives should be given the opportunity to manage federal conservation units that are in close proximity to their own lands.

The Alaska regional non-profits worked long and hard to carefully draft a bill which would have the support of the Alaska Federation of Natives and all of the Alaska regional non-profits. I believe it is time that we authorize Alaska Native entities to manage federal conservation units in the manner consistent with the lands that have carefully preserved and utilized for thousands of years. This bill does exactly that.

BROOKFIELD ZOO'S SALT CREEK WILDERNESS EXHIBIT

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to announce that on August 14th Brookfield Zoo will celebrate the grand opening of its newest attraction, the Salt Creek Wilderness exhibit. Representing a northeastern Illinois wetland, Salt Creek Wilderness includes the existing Indian Lake, the Ellen Thorne Smith nature trail, and a new demonstration wetland exhibit called Dragonfly Marsh. Guests will be able to hike along a wood-chipped trail that circles the 4-acre lake to see stunning swans and several other waterfowl species. At the north end of the lake, the trail is paved and leads onto a wheelchair-accessible boardwalk that overlooks Dragonfly Marsh.

Support for the Salt Creek Wilderness project comes from the Chicago Zoological Society, Forest Preserve District of Cook County, the Children's Asthma Relief Act of 1999, and the Children's Health Fund.
A BILL TO REPEAL THE SPECIAL OCCUPATIONAL TAX (SOT) ON THE SALE OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

HON. DAVE CAMP OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, along with several of my colleagues on the Ways and Means Committee, Ms. THURMAN, Mr. NUSSE, Mr. MATSUI, Mr. MCNINNIS, and Mr. JOHN LEWIS, I am introducing a bill today to repeal the Special Occupational Tax (SOT) on the sale of alcoholic beverages.

We are introducing this bill to alleviate a problem that many of our constituents have raised with us. I know that many of our colleagues have also heard from convenience store owners, innkeepers, restaurant owners, vintners, wholesalers and other small business owners complaining about the burden of the Special Occupational Tax on the sale of alcoholic products.

The SOT is an annual tax imposed on all businesses that manufacture, distribute or sell alcoholic products. Whether it’s a seasonal restaurant, an Elks Lodge, convenience or grocery store, or even a campground or florist that delivers wine with flowers—no one is spared from the tax.

However, it is especially burdensome for small retail stores. Over 90 percent of all SOT revenue comes from retailers. In addition, small producers—especially wineries—have a difficult time meeting the obligations of this tax.

A recent General Accounting Office study, which conceded that the alcohol industry is a heavily taxed and regulated industry already, illustrated the problems caused by this tax, particularly on small business owners. This tax is an unnecessary burden and should be eliminated.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill to repeal this unfair tax on small businesses.
and the Administration are already aggressively encouraging responsible online businesses to provide comparable disclosures regarding their privacy policies. The lack of licensing and privacy information at an online pharmacy should provide a clear warning of caveat emptor.

Nor does this legislation pose a technical barrier to e-commerce. It only asks online pharmacies to provide the same licensing information as brick and mortar pharmacies do when they hang framed licenses on the wall. It is a simple matter to add a few new links to online pharmacy sites. In fact, any person with rudimentary knowledge of HTML could write up the necessary information and upload it to a website in a matter of minutes.

The Internet Pharmacy Consumer Protection Act of 1999 is a simple and commonsense way to help federal and state authorities enforce existing consumer and public health protections. Responsible online pharmacies are likely already in compliance with the legislation, or could be in a matter of minutes. But illegal, unprofessional or questionable online pharmacies will be exposed to greater scrutiny and more susceptible to the enforcement of essential legal protections and State licensure requirements.

I urge my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring the Internet Pharmacy Consumer Protection Act of 1999.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO AMEND THE ALASKA NATIVE CLAIMS SETTLEMENT ACT

HON. DON YOUNG

OF ALASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation that would address several matters of concern to Alaska Natives through an amendment to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA).

As my colleagues know, ANCSA was enacted in 1971, stimulated by the need to address Native land claims as well as the desire to clear the way for the construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline and thereby provide our country and the petroleum resources of Alaska's North Slope. As the years pass, issues arise which require amending that Act. The Resources Committee as a matter of course routinely considers such amendments and brings them before the House.

Consequently, I am introducing this bill containing several such amendments to ANCSA in order to facilitate having its provisions circulated during the upcoming Congressional recess through the Congress and the Administration as well as the State of Alaska for review and consideration.

This bill has nine provisions. One provision would allow common stock to be willed to Alaska Native Veterans who served in the military or other armed services during the Vietnam War. Alaska Natives have faithfully answered the call of duty when asked to serve in the armed services. In fact, American Indians and Alaska Natives generally have the highest record of answering the call to duty.

Under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, Alaska natives were allowed to apply for lands which they traditionally used as fish camps, berry picking camps or hunting camps. However, many of our Alaska Natives answered the call to duty and served in the services during the Vietnam War which they would have applied for if they had not gone to war. This provision allows them to apply for their native allotments and would expand the dates to include the full years of the Vietnam War. The original dates recommended by the Administration only allowed the dates January 1, 1969 to December 31, 1971. Our Alaska Natives veterans should not be penalized for serving during the entire dates of the Vietnam conflict. This provision corrects that inequity by expanding the dates to reflect all the years of the Vietnam War—August 5, 1964 to May 7, 1975.

SECTION 8. ELIM NATIVE CORPORATION LAND RESTORATION

In 1917, the Norton Bay Reservation was established on 350,000 acres of land located on the north side of Norton Bay southeast of Nome, Alaska for the benefit of Alaska Natives who now reside in the village of Elim, Alaska. The purpose of the establishment of the reservation included providing a land, economic, subsistence, and resources base for the people of that area.

In 1929, through an Executive Order, 50,000 acres of land were deleted from the reservation with little consultation and certainly without the informed consent of the people who were to be most affected by such a deletion. After passage of ANCSA, only the remaining 300,000 acres of the original Reservation were conveyed to the Elim Native Corporation. This loss of land from the original Reservation has become over the years a festering wound to the people of Elim. It now needs to be healed through the restoration or replacement of the deleted fifty thousand acres of land to the Elim Village Corporation authorized by ANCSA to hold such land.

As I am sure my colleagues will agree, the history of our nation reflects many examples of injustices to Native Americans. As hearings will confirm, this is one of those calls out to be sensibly remedied and can be with relative ease as outlined in this section of the bill.

Again, I am introducing this bill today to facilitate having its provisions circulated and reviewed during the August recess by the Department of the Interior, the State of Alaska and Alaska natives.

TRIBUTE TO THE U.S. ASIATIC FLEET AND U.S.S. TRINITY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute the bravery and valor exhibited by the veterans of the U.S. Navy Asiatic Fleet.

From 1910 to 1942, the Asiatic Fleet protected American interests and promoted American ideals in the Far East. At the time, the fleet was comprised of 3 cruisers, 13 World War I vintage destroyers, 29 submarines and a small number of gunboats and patrol aircraft. Following the declaration of war against Imperial Japan, the outnumbered and outgunned Asiatic Fleet courageously fought against a vastly superior Japanese armada comprised of 10 carries, 28 cruisers, 113 destroyers, and 63 submarines.

The fleet participated in the first surface U.S. naval engagement of World War II. Fighting with little aircover, the brave men and women of the fleet fought against all odds, but in the end they suffered staggering losses. The fleet lost 22 ships, 1826 killed, and 518 POWs.

The U.S.S. Trinity was one of the few surviving ships.

From September 1 to September 4, the surviving U.S.S. Trinity crew and their families will hold a reunion in Chicagoland. Although I will not be able to join them, I wish them all the best as they gather together to fellowship, renew their friendships, and cherish the thoughts of their fallen comrades.

Protecting freedom and democracy has a price, and many of the brave Americans in the Asiatic Fleet paid the ultimate price. As Americans, we are truly blessed to have had so many extraordinary men and women serve in our armed forces. Their sacrifices enable us to live in the world we live in today.

So let us not forget their deeds. Let us not forget their blood, sweat, and tears. Let us remember the sacrifices they made, so that we may live in freedom instead of tyranny.

I submit that the many untold stories of the Asiatic Fleet and the U.S.S. Trinity are all profiles of courage.

Mr. Speaker, I salute them all today.
reacted calmly because he knew Judie was only doing her job because he had failed to do his.

Judie’s supervisor describes her as a consummate team player, a role model for novice officers and a source of amazement for veterans who cannot figure out how she maintains her enthusiasm. A former social worker, Judie says she finds great satisfaction in protecting her community while helping felons to lead productive lives after being imprisoned. “It doesn’t happen very often, but when you see someone’s life turn around, it’s an extremely rewarding experience,” Judie recently told her local newspaper.

I am proud to say that Judie Sedell not only is an outstanding constituent, she and her husband Mike, Simi Valley’s city manager, are also my friends. I urge my colleagues to join me in wishing her many more years of continued success.

MARV VALENTINE
HON. DAVE CAMP OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to draw the attention of my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives and my constituents in the 4th Congressional District to the distinguished career of a man I am proud to represent in Congress, Mr. Marv Valentine of Clare, Michigan.

Mr. Valentine is retiring after having dedicated 30 years of his life to Camp Rotary in Clare, and serving on the Lake Huron Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Through dedication, perseverance, and selflessness, Mr. Valentine and his wife, Justine, have built Camp Rotary into one of the finest scouting establishments in the Nation. Scouting troops from the Midwest, and those from as far away as West Virginia, have experienced the wonder of Michigan’s natural beauty at Camp Rotary. Located on 1,100 acres off Old Highway 27 in Clare, the camp is nestled in a woods of whispering white pines, next to a sparkling lake where deer and wild turkeys roam.

Besides serving as a home for scouts, Camp Rotary has also hosted football and band camps. Years ago, Mr. Valentine initiated an outdoor educational program for public and private schools.

Over three decades, more than 60,000 young people have learned new skills and made lifelong friends at Camp Rotary under Mr. Valentine’s guiding hand and watchful eye. On behalf of the campers and my constituents, I would like to thank him for his dedication to shaping so many lives and giving these young people priceless memories of their carefree days as a child at camp.

RECOGNIZING THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF SUE AND ED SMITH
HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, in 1972 Sue Weinreb and her three children Kara, Dana and David, and Edmund Smith and his three children, Corrie, Peter and Eddie moved to thirteen acres in Sonoma County, California to begin a life together. She was 29, he was 37. Together they had little money, no electricity, no running water, no house, and six kids between the ages of three and nine. Three boys and three girls. The original Brady Bunch.

That summer they began the first of many do-it-yourself projects—building a home which would eventually take eight years to complete. Meanwhile, during that first year together, the 8 of them lived in a 24’ trailer, a tent, and a Datsun, and took baths once a week at the neighbor’s house down the road. Two years later, on June 29, 1974, they left the kids with a babysitter and snuck off to a rare weekend alone to get married. They planted eight redwood seedlings in the yard, to honor the new family.

In 1976 Sue and Ed started an environmental consulting business which they ran out of the barn. Over the next 12 years they grew the business into a full service analytical testing laboratory which employed 50 people in an 11,000 sq. ft. building in Santa Rosa. Other ventures followed. Meanwhile, they somehow managed to attend every one of their children’s swimming meets, awards ceremonies, dance concerts, football games, and school plays. They made Halloween costumes and birthday crowns, helped with science fair projects, and joined in the wooden spoon duels in the kitchen. They volunteered when the community, built a playground, and they were involved in local politics. Because of their busy schedules, they made sure the family ate dinner together every night. And, they made sure to pass on some interest to their children: sewing, woodworking, fishing, photography, science, art and travel.

Later, after the youngest had left home and they’d sold their business, they traveled to Africa, Australia, and Europe. No lazy around fancy hotels for them. Pictures show them kayaking with orca whales, riding donkeys, carving wooden masks, scuba diving, feeding giraffes and monkeys, and rock climbing.

This summer, Sue and Ed Smith will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary with friends and family under those same eight redwood trees, which now tower over the house they built. Those 25 years haven’t always been easy. There were especially terrible times—a separation, the death of Peter at age 28. But, there were especially joyful times—the births of their grandchildren Nick Smith Shafer and Scott Anderson Shafer (with their oldest son recently announcing that a third is on the way).

Sue and Ed’s marriage is a testament to what can be accomplished when a couple has a shared vision and a commitment to do whatever needs to be done to do the job right. They have always provided support for each other, their community, and their kids, to help, to listen, and to do.

Their greatest accomplishments thus far? The creation of a family, not without its strains and difficulties like all families, but a family where the grown children—now a teacher, a legislative assistant for a member of Congress, a stay-at-home mom/sex educator, an accountant with a fledgling business, and a lighting designer—who are truly happy, and care for each other and their parents. And, after 25 years of marriage, Sue and Ed Smith are truly best friends who treasure each other’s company. They are a wonderful example of family values and an inspiration to all of us.

HON. DAVID D. PHELPS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. PHELPS. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 342, I was very surprised to discover that my vote for final passage of H.R. 2605, the Energy and Water Appropriations Act, was not recorded. I was definitely present for all the preceding votes on amendments and for final passage.

Although I do not understand why my vote on final passage was not recorded, I know I was present on July 27 and intended to vote for passage of H.R. 2605, The Energy and Water Appropriations Act, on Tuesday, July 27. Please let it be noted that I support The Energy and Water Appropriations Act, as amended. I would have voted in favor of passage.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to wish The Honorable Lloyd Welch Pogue, a member of the Provincial Families of Maryland, who has resided in Maryland more than 60 years, a happy 100th-year birthday anniversary on 21 October 1999. I also wish to make special mention of his appointment by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as a Member and Chairman of the United States Civil Aeronautics Board. The US CAB rendered valuable services in the World War II program throughout the period of this Nation’s involvement in that War. His professional career culminated in his being named Partner in a large law firm.

AMERICAN INVENTORS PROTECTION ACT OF 1999
SPEECH OF
HON. PATSY T. MINK OF HAWAII
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 1907, the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999. My position on this legislation is a result of my deep concern for the rights of those whom the bill claims to protect, the small, independent inventors whose ideas have revolutionized our country from its very inception. Along with these concerns, I object to the speed, secrecy, and convoluted method by which this bill has been slipped onto the floor late at night under suspension of the rules. The process by which H.R. 1907 comes to the House floor for a vote is an example in how not to proceed with a piece of legislation that not only attempts to constrain citizens’ Constitutional rights, but has vital importance to our nation’s economy in this era of furious, global competition in technology.

I find the manner with which this bill was brought to the House floor unacceptable. The fundamental question to this or her intellectual property lies at stake in this situation. This is not a bill which should be passed without meaningful, in-depth investigation and debate. Far from a lengthy, informed process, H.R. 1907 make its way to this chamber following a slippery, silent path which featured name changes, number changes, unpublished documents, and finally, this evening, an unpublished bill, finished only minutes before being called up for approval. This is deplorable.

Why must this bill be taken up in such a circuitous way? If it is a wonderful piece of legislation that protects the rights of the small inventor, why is it not open to more than the minimum debate and why can’t we hold hearings on this final version, whose ink is not yet dry?

The Judiciary Committee marked up H.R. 1907 without the benefit of hearings; providing no public forum for the stakeholders involved. This stark omission comes despite extensive controversy surrounding this issue in the 105th Congress. There is no published committee report on H.R. 1907 and, until this evening, this House was scheduled to consider a patent bill almost half the length of H.R. 1907. I was expecting to debate H.R. 2654, and was shocked to find that H.R. 1907 was resurrected and had usurped its place. This is an appalling way to manage legislation embodying such an expansive scope and consequences.

H.R. 1907 provides for the publication of patent applications before the patent is granted if the inventor also applies for a patent in a foreign country. This leaves open the possibility that large companies may prey on the unprotected ideas of the small inventor to be difficult for the Park District to replace. His dedication to recreational opportunities will mean that was the model for present-day Universal City of Simi Valley. The agency manages administrative officer for the Rancho Simi Open Space Corriganville Park, an old-time movie ranch that was the model for present-day Universal Studios.

In addition, Jerry established a volunteer program with a core of more than 200 volunteers who clear trails, clean parks, perform clerical work and help run youth programs. He also established a fundraising program that has raised more than $40,000 in cash and gifts to help support special events for Simi Valley’s youth.

Apparently he had too much time on his hands and accepted the position of chief administrative officer for the Rancho Simi Open Space Conservation Agency, a joint powers authority between the Park District and the City of Simi Valley. The agency manages Corriganville Park, an old-time movie ranch that was the model for present-day Universal Studios.

Not surprisingly, Jerry has won numerous awards for his hard work, dedication and success.

Jerry and his wife, Donna, have three children and four grandchildren. When time permits, he enjoys woodworking and restoring cars. He is also still learning to golf. It is unknown if more time on the greens will actually improve his game.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in recognizing Jerry L. Gladden for his decades of dedicated service and in wishing him and his family Godspeed in his retirement. His dedication to recreational opportunities will be difficult for the Park District to replace.

IN TRIBUTE TO JERRY L. GLADDEN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor my good friend Jerry L. Gladden, who will retire this month after 30 years, 1 month, 2 weeks and 6 days with the Rancho Simi Recreation and Park District.

For more than 20 years, Jerry has served as general manager for the district and clerk of the board, leading the district capably and efficiently through several financial crises as he continued to see that Simi Valley and Oak Park, California, has superb parks and recreational programs.

Jerry has contributed to the community in many other ways as well. He was president of the Simi Valley Noontime Lions Club from 1976 to 1977. Since 1979, he has been a member of the Simi Valley Rotary Club, for which he has chaired several committees. He is a former member of the Simi Valley Chamber of Commerce and served on the United Way Allocations Committee for seven years.

But Jerry’s greatest legacy will be the recreational opportunities he created and maintained.

A general manager’s greatest challenge is to keep his agency solvent. When money became tight, Jerry helped the Rancho Simi Foundation, a nonprofit organization with the responsibility of raising funds to help support recreation programs. He pushed for a continuing grant program, which has brought in more than $6.2 million to the Park District during the last 10 years. The State of California has provided a grant program that has brought in more than $1 million for the district each year. He also found ways to cut insurance premiums for the district.

In addition, Jerry established a volunteer program with a core of more than 200 volunteers who clear trails, clean parks, perform clerical work and help run youth programs. He also established a fundraising program that has raised more than $40,000 in cash and gifts to help support special events for Simi Valley’s youth.

Apparently he had too much time on his hands and accepted the position of chief administrative officer for the Rancho Simi Open Space Conservation Agency, a joint powers authority between the Park District and the City of Simi Valley. The agency manages Corriganville Park, an old-time movie ranch that was the model for present-day Universal Studios.

Not surprisingly, Jerry has won numerous awards for his hard work, dedication and success.

Jerry and his wife, Donna, have three children and four grandchildren. When time permits, he enjoys woodworking and restoring cars. He is also still learning to golf. It is unknown if more time on the greens will actually improve his game.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in recognizing Jerry L. Gladden for his decades of dedicated service and in wishing him and his family Godspeed in his retirement. His dedication to recreational opportunities will be difficult for the Park District to replace.

JUDICIAL CORRUPTION IN ARGENTINA

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following testimony of Dr. Federico Westerkamp, founder of the Center for Legal and Social Studies.

First of all, thank you very much for inviting me, as a founding member of the Center for Legal and Social Studies (CELS) of Buenos Aires, to act as a witness in this Members Briefing on Judicial Corruption in Argentina.

In my view, the judiciary of my country is in a delicate state. This exception have proliferated in the last years. Several judges are under legal processes although they move with the certain slowness. Various judges are currently under scrutiny. Some of them are being submitted to the so called impeachment under the old system where the House of Representatives makes the accusation and the Senate decides if removal is fitting or not.

With few exceptions, mainly for ethical corruption, the system of impeachment failed and the new 1995 constitution replaced with the Council of the Magistracy, a method which just recently started. Many hopes have been placed on the new system, which in its first cases will let the Senate decide or not so it will fulfill the hopes of the citizenry.

There are some courts which have being charged of prevarication, abuse of authority, incompetency of the judges and ideological falsehood. These are the most common charges against the bad judges, and we hope that the Council of Magistrates proceeds with decision and courage so that the new institution does not fail.

In the last decade one case has precisely demonstrated the working of these authorities already mentioned and I do not hesitate signaling that it is the case of the three judges: Mariano Bergers, Roberto Murature and Julio Caesar Corvalan de la Colina, who have all acted as lower court judges in the case of the Buenos Aires Yoga School (BAYS). The case was initiated in December 1998 under the command of the first judge named above, storming the school headquarters and also various private properties of their members, and putting two distinguished ladies in prison without any proof of having committed crimes on the basis of false information, created a sense of hysteria in the population of the country, which incredulous, did not know whether to believe or disbelieve the information from the judge, his secretary and various employees and chaperones.

The authorities of the Yoga School were threatened with imprisonment. Former judge Bergers pronounced serious anti-Semitic expressions against the president of BAYS Dr. Percowitz, and several of his advisors wrote similar expressions on the walls during the searches.

As time passed and the facts appeared in the real image, many people—myself among them—realized that everything was a bluff, probably due to the ideological background of the court, and as the truth began to be revealed, the public began to disbelieve the charges against the school, in including its students. Judge Bergers opted for giving up the case, as he knew that the House impeachment Committee was going to accept the charges before the Senate, in order to remove him.

A new lower court judge, Roberto Murature took over; the campaign against the Yoga school was all promoted but at this time it was obvious that the process was weakening, so the second judge was relieved...

The process has revealed that the charges against the Yoga school were promoted by three families whose daughters were suffering bad treatment before entering the Yoga school, from their mothers and fathers. (In the first case the woman was charged by her stepfather of showing strange behavior, that he ascribed to the Yoga School and it's alleged "brain washing" by members of the school).

The stepfather, with his so-called "expert" in cults Mr. Silletta started a virulent campaign against the Yoga School, through the media. Last March, the third judge started the so-called process against the yoga school (double jeopardy, "non bis in idem"), victimizing three women, Veronica Cane, Valeria Llamas, and Carla Paparella and under petition of their parent declared them mentally "incapable" without taking into consideration their psychiatric reports compulsory ordered by the first judge Berges. The three women, hopeless, came to my home in order to ask me, as a well known human rights defender, for help.

That is the reason why I am here. I have tried to speak with Judge Corvalan de la Colina, and with the Secretary of the Court, but it was useless, the judge never received myself or the three women. It seems he is accustomed to ignoring the arguments of anyone who knows what is happening in his court.

This is why I have decided to present my testimony as a witness at this briefing, in order to protect the above mentioned women, and to carry over my experiences as a member of human rights NGO's, such as the Assembly of Human Rights, The Center for Legal and Social Studies, and the Movement for Life and Peace.

Thank you very much Honorable Representatives.

A TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN LOUIS "DEAK" CHILDRESS

HON. CALVIN M. DOOLEY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Captain Louis "Deak" Childress, who is leaving his post this month as the Commanding Officer of Naval Air Station Lemoore, in Lemoore, California. For the past three years, Captain Childress has dedicated himself to improving the quality of life of the Lemoore community and expanding the base's military capabilities.

Captain Childress began his Naval career in 1973. He has held numerous assignments, including flying the F-4 Phantom from the decks of the USS Nimitz and USS Forrestal in Oceana, Virginia, serving as an instructor pilot at NAS Miramar in San Diego, and serving in the Persian Gulf as Senior Naval Representative to the United Arab Emirates. In 1992, he was named deputy planning cell in Dhahrwan, Saudi Arabia. In March of 1995, he was promoted to his current rank of Captain, and reported as the Commanding Officer of Naval Air Station Lemoore in July of 1996. While serving as Commanding Officer of the base, Childress has played a major role in improving the facilities and quality of life at NAS Lemoore. Responding to the concerns of his sailors and pilots regarding living conditions on the base, Captain Childress facilitated visits to the base by members of the defense committees in Congress and high-level Navy officials. He has led efforts to build the base's infrastructure, which resulted in the 1998 announcement that five squadrons of the new F/A-18E/F Super Hornet Fighter aircraft will be based at Lemoore, bringing an additional 6,800 personnel to the base.

Captain Childress' continued efforts to improve conditions at the base is exemplified by the changes that have been made over the last three years under his leadership. Some of these accomplishments include his implementation of the innovative Regionalization Business Analysis, facility renovations in anticipation of the new F/A-18E/F program, and brand new housing facilities.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in congratulating Captain Childress for his devoted service to the Navy and the Lemoore community. He has distinguished himself as an innovative leader and dedicated Navy Captain. We wish him the best as he leaves Lemoore to continue his service to the Navy.

WILBUR "PONY" WILSON: AN ATHLETE'S FRIEND

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness that the Rutgers University-Camden community is informed about the passing of Wilbur "Pony" Wilson. Pony Wilson served the Rutgers-Camden campus as athletic director for almost 30 years. He passed away this past Saturday evening. Few will deny Pony's true legacy is his commitment to encouraging students to pursue their studies and their dreams. He believed that education, not sports, was the driving force for young men and women who competed in athletics at Rutgers-Camden.

In an interview prior to his retirement, Pony noted "What's most rewarding is that kids now—since the late 60's and early 70's—are graduating. When you talk about the percentage of the kids that played [sports], we had a high rate on the basketball teams who got their degrees."

To many, Pony was not only a colleague or a coach, he was a friend to professionals and students alike who passed through the Rutgers-Camden campus. The current Athletic Director, Ed Cialella, who was Pony's first hire in 1969 when he joined the college as an Assistant Instructor of Physical Education, reflects, "We lost a friend of athletics, and an athlete's friend.''

During his tenure at Rutgers-Camden, Pony developed the athletic department from a five-sport program—with no on-campus facilities and no women's teams—to one that boasts as many as 14 teams with ample competition for both genders. He was known throughout the NCAA Division III conference for his belief that education, not sports, was the priority of the men and women at Rutgers-Camden.

Pony believed that "student athletes are students first.” On behalf of all those lives that Pony Wilson touched, I would like to convey my most sincere condolences to his family. May his unfailing commitment to university athletics and education continue to live on in every one of us.

SAN FRANCISCO BOARD OF SUPERVISORS ASKS BAY AREA RAPID TRANSIT (BART) TO AVOID STEEL PRODUCED BY STRIKE BREAKERS

HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues to join me in commending the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco for their adoption of a resolution, which was unanimously adopted on Monday, urging Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) refrain from purchasing steel rails produced by strikebreakers at Oregon Steel's Rocky Mountain Steel Mill in Pueblo, Colorado. This principled action reflects the Supervisors' deep concern for the safety of Bay Area public transport consumers, as well as their commitment to defending fair labor practices in San Francisco and across our nation.

The Rocky Mountain Steel Mill in Pueblo, Colorado, illegally replaced 1,100 striking steelworkers in 1997. This outrageous and illegal action is only the most recent in a long record of that company's reckless disregard for the welfare of its own employees. This rogue corporation has been charged by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) with over 100 violations of federal laws, and has been found guilty by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) of 62 willful and serious health violations, resulting in the second largest OSHA fine in the history of the State of Colorado. Communities have both the right and the obligation to expect higher standards of conduct from the entities that do business with them.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the Supervisors' request that BART refuse to purchase rails for the San Francisco Airport expansion project from the Rocky Mountain Steel Mill.
This vital transportation project cuts through the heart of my congressional district, and I strongly believe that the safety of my constituents should not be put at risk by the shoddy work of inexperienced strikebreakers and the corporate recklessness of Rocky Mountain's executives.

Since the decision to terminate its workforce eighteen months ago, Rocky Mountain Steel has reportedly encountered serious quality problems with its manufactured products. Under no circumstances should the well-being of BART's hundreds of thousands of regular commuters be jeopardized by this corporation's careless and irresponsible behavior.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud the initiative taken by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors to urge BART to end its purchases of Rocky Mountain Steel. The company's striking steelworkers deserve better, and the safety of Bay Area commuters demands no less.

TRIBUTE TO BARBARA AND JAY VINCENT

HON. GEORGE MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute two very special individuals: Barbara and Jay Vincent of Richmond, California. Barbara and Jay each deserve recognition in their own right for the countless hours they have individually given to their community. From Barbara's leadership with the PTA, League of Women Voters and the Richmond Planning Commission, to Jay's involvement with the YMCA, Richmond Farmers' Market and the East Brother Light Station restoration, the Vincents' commitment has touched every corner of the City.

Yet, perhaps the greatest contribution Barbara and Jay have made to the future of Richmond is their tireless efforts to preserve our region's open space and natural resources. Long appreciating the beauty of the San Francisco Bay and its habitats, the Vincents have worked to ensure that the Richmond shoreline will continue to be accessible and enjoyed by generations to come. It is indeed fitting that the City of Richmond recently honored these efforts by dedicating the Barbara and Jay Vincent Park, a spectacular bayside site with sweeping vistas of San Francisco, the Golden Gate Bridge, Angel Island, and Mt. Tamalpais.

It has been my distinct honor and pleasure to know and work with the Vincents during my tenure in the U.S. Congress. Their personal dedication to community service has always been an exceptional source of inspiration. I know my colleagues join me today in celebrating their many accomplishments, and in expressing our deepest appreciation.

COLUMBINE HIGH SCHOOL

HON. THOMAS G. TANCREDO OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise with a heavy heart, but a heart that is buoyed by thoughts of hope and inspiration. In a little over a week, the first day of school begins at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colorado, which is located in my district.

We can all remember the first day of school and the excitement that went along with it. The anticipation for the year ahead and what it would bring. The exhilarating feeling of seeing old friends and making new friends, being a part of teams, and being a part of something special.

I doubt that many of us would ever trade our experiences in high school for anything.

Tragically, more than 2,000 students will begin school at Columbine without twelve of their classmates, and one teacher. These individuals are not among them because they graduated and gone on college or moved to another town and now attend another school. They are not pursuing passions such as being a Navy pilot, fishing, singing, playing football, traveling to France, acting, playing music, working as a missionary, playing volleyball, praying, or being a father. They are not with them, because they were the victims of a senseless and destructive act that took place April 20, 1999.

Among these students will be twenty-two individuals who were wounded during the events of April 20th and are hoping to return to school this year. These students and teachers face challenges in the coming days and beyond that no one should have to face in the future. Richard Castaldo, Sean Graves, Anne Marie Hochhalter, Lance Kirklin, Kasey Ruegsegger, Patrick Ireland, Mark Taylor, Jennifer Doyle, Makena Hall, Mark Kington, Nicole Cannon, James Stephen, Brian Anderson, Stephen Austein Eubanks, Nicholas Foss, Joyce Jankowski, Adam Kyler, Stephanie Munson, Patricia Nielsen, Charles Simmons, Evan Todd, and Michael Johnson are strong enough to stand up and begin another chapter in their lives, a chapter that we will help them write by giving them every opportunity to have a year of safe and enjoyable memories. Three of the wounded, Valeen Schnurr, Lisa Kreutz, and Jeanna Park, received their diplomas last Spring, and have now begun the important step of continuing on with life after such a tragic event.

This tragedy has caused us as Americans to reevaluate and reflect on our own moral and social values and to reexamine the role that we play as parents, relatives, and family members in the lives of our nation's children. This tragedy has driven many of us to work to bring not only healing, but also a reformation of our way of life. Everyone who lives in America felt what happened to those students. The phrase, “it can't happen in my backyard” is now gone for the residents of the Sixth District.

I do, however, feel hope and inspiration today. I feel a sense of hope when I see and hear the determination and genuine concern that individuals have when discussing our schools and a desire to make them a safe and prosperous environment. I feel a great sense of inspiration in these students and teachers who are walking back through the same doors they ran out on April 20, 1999. In fact, as of August 13th, so far three students and two teachers applied for a transfer from Columbine. We are witnessing real courage.

I ask that my colleagues in the United States Congress, any my fellow citizens, pray for the students of Columbine High School as they start a new year. Pray that the smiles of youth return to these students. Pray that we have the power and the faith to do our part to ensure that this horrible violation of innocence is never repeated again.

And, most of all, pray for the families of: Cassie Bernall, Steven Curnow, Corey DePooter, Kelly Fleming, Matthew Kohler, Danel Mauser, Daniel Rohrbough, Rachel Scott, Isaiah Shoels, John Tomlin, Lauren Townsend, Kyle Velazques, and Dave Sanders, the twelve students and one teacher who will not be starting school this year.

HONORING ST. BARTHOLOMEW SCHOOL ON ITS 75TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. JOSEPH CROWLEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to honor the St. Bartholomew School in Elmhurst, Queens on the occasion of its 75th Anniversary.

St. Bartholomew has been in the forefront of providing a quality value-based education to the children of the community for three-quarters of a century. The School, the third largest Catholic parochial school in the entire Diocese of Brooklyn and Queens, currently has an enrollment of some 650 students and is accredited by the prestigious Middle States Association.

St. Bart's, as it affectionately known, first opened its doors in 1923, and has since then been an integral and significant element in the life of the Elmhurst community. Elmhurst was recently identified in the September issue of National Geographic magazine as “Elmhurst 11373, the most ethnically diverse zip code in the United States.” Affiliated with St. Bartholomew Roman Catholic Parish, St. Bart's School ably reflects that rich diversity of heritage in a most enthusiastic way, welcoming students of many religions and national origins to participate in its outstanding academic program.

In addition to a full schedule of academic subjects, students in all grades receive instruction in computer skills, physical education, and library science, and participate in a host of interesting and informative clubs and extracurricular activities. But most importantly, the religious and lay faculty cooperate in striving for the utmost creativity in education, emphasizing values and excellence in an atmosphere of healthy academic discipline.

Finally, I would like to commend Sister Augusta Conter, O.P., Principal, and Mr. Thomas Straczymski, Social Studies teacher and Chairman of the 75th Anniversary Committee, as well as all of the committee members whose tireless efforts made the anniversary and its many events a tremendous success.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in paying this 75th Anniversary tribute to a superb institution of learning and to the people who help make it all possible.
IN HONOR OF PRIVATE HARRY H. MARGOLIS
HON. JERROLD NADLER
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, August 5, 1999
Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the Albanian American Women's Organization (AAWO). "Motrat Qiriazi." The AAWO is a nonprofit group committed to the advancement of Albanian Women within their families, communities, and society. The Albanian American Women's Organization was founded in 1993 by a small group of Albanian immigrants in New York City. "Motrat Qiriazi" is named for sisters Qiriazi, the first Albanian women educators who dedicated their lives to the empowerment of Albanian women. The organization is composed entirely of volunteers and numbered more than 1,200 in 1998. When the situation deteriorated in Kosova, the AAWO began to focus its attention on helping the people in crisis. In 1999, the AAWO raised $54,000 and developed strong ties with organizations like the International Rescue Committee. The leadership of the AAWO met with First Lady Hillary Clinton at the White House on August 2, 1999. They are currently involved in giving support to recent immigrants and refugees, including providing host families and job placement.

Once again, I offer my most heartfelt commendation to the AAWO for their hard work and commitment to helping people both in the United States and throughout the Balkans.
