

to the south where, if they survived, many were raped and put into concentration camps. Prisoners were starved, beaten, and murdered by unmerciful guards.

This was not a case for everyone, though. Not everyone was sent to concentration camps. For example, many innocent people were put on ships and then thrown overboard into the Black Sea.

The atrocities of the Armenian genocide were still being carried out in 1921 when Kemalists were found abusing and starving prisoners to death. In total, approximately 1.5 million Armenians were killed in a 28-year period. This does not include the half million or more who were forced to leave their homes and flee to foreign countries.

Together with Armenians all over the world and people of conscience, I would like to honor those who lost their homes, their freedom, and their lives during this dark period.

Many survivors of the genocide came to the United States seeking a new beginning, my grandfather among them. The experiences of his childhood fueled his desire for freedom for his Armenian homeland in the First World War, so he returned there, where he was awarded two Russian Medals of Honor for bravery in the fight against fascism.

It is important that we not forget about these terrible atrocities, because as Winston Churchill said, those who do not learn from the past are destined to repeat it.

Since the atrocity, Armenia has taken great strides, achieving its independence over 8 years ago. Then it was a captive Nation struggling to preserve its centuries-old traditions and customs. Today the Republic of Armenia is an independent, freedom-loving Nation and a friend of the United States and to the democratic world.

Monday, April 24, will mark the 85th anniversary of one of the most gruesome human atrocities in the 20th century. Sadly, it was the systematic killing of 1.5 million Armenian men and women. Ironically, Mr. Speaker, it was none other than Adolph Hitler who began to immortalize the Armenian atrocities when he, questioning those who were questioning his own determination to commit his own atrocities and his own genocide, he said, After all, who will remember the Armenians?

As we do not ignore the occurrence of the Nazi Holocaust, we must not ignore the Armenian genocide. Many people across the world will concede this is a very tender and difficult event to discuss, but in order for us to discontinue the mistakes of the past we must never forget it happened, and we must never stop speaking out against such horrors.

As a strong and fervent supporter of the Republic of Armenia, I am alarmed that the Turkish government is still refusing to acknowledge what happened and instead is attempting to rewrite history. It is vital that we do not let political agendas get in the way of doing what is right.

Mr. Speaker, I call upon the Turkish government to accept complete accountability for the Armenian genocide. To heal the wounds of the past, the Turkish government must first recognize its responsibility for the actions of past leaders. Nothing we can do or say will bring back those who perished, but we can honor those who lost their homes, their freedom, their lives, by teaching future generations the lessons of this atrocity.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order tonight, which is the Armenian genocide.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today, as my colleagues and I do every year at this time, in a proud but solemn tradition to remember and pay tribute to the victims of one of history's worst crimes against humanity, the Armenian genocide of 1915 to 1923.

This evening my colleagues will be discussing various aspects of this tragedy, including what actually happened, how it affected the victims, the survivors and their descendants, how the perpetrators and their descendants have responded, the reaction of the United States and other major nations, and what lessons the Armenian genocide teaches us today.

Since we are constrained by time limitations, I will also be submitting for the RECORD some additional information.

Mr. Speaker, the Armenian genocide was the systematic extermination, the murder of 1.5 Armenian men, women, and children during the Ottoman Turkish empire. This is of the first genocide of the 20th century, but sadly, not the last. Sadder still, at the dawn of the 21st century we continue to see the phenomenon of genocide. Such is the danger of ignoring or forgetting the lessons of the Armenian genocide.

April 24 marks the 85th anniversary of the unleashing of the Armenian genocide. On that dark day in 1915, some 200 Armenian religious, political, and intellectual leaders from the Turkish capital of Constantinople, now Istanbul, were arrested and exiled in one fell swoop, silencing the leading representatives of the Armenian community in the Ottoman capital.

This was the beginning of the genocide. Over the years from 1915 to 1923, millions of men, women, and children were deported, forced into slave labor, and tortured by the government of the Young Turk Committee, and 1.5 million of them were killed.

The deportations and killings finally ended with the establishment of the Republic of Turkey in 1923, although efforts to erase all traces of the Armenian presence in the area continued. To this day, the Republican of Turkey refuses to acknowledge the fact that this massive crime against humanity took place on soil under its control and in the name of Turkish nationalism.

Not only does Turkey deny that the genocide ever took place, it has mounted an aggressive effort to try to present an alternative and false version of history, using its extensive financial and lobbying resources in this country.

Recently the Turkish government signed a $1.8 million contract for the lobbying services of three very prominent former members of this House to argue Turkey's case in the halls of power here in Washington. While the major focus of their efforts is trying to secure a $4 billion attack helicopter sale, two of these lobbyists and former Congressmen, according to the April 8 edition of the National Journal, were recently here on Capitol Hill trying to persuade leaders of this House not to support legislation affirming U.S. recognition of the genocide.

Mr. Speaker, the sponsors of that legislation, House Resolution 398, the gentleman from California (Mr. RADANOVICH) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR), will also be speaking tonight. I want to praise them for taking the lead on this bipartisan initiative which currently has 38 cosponsors and which has obviously caused some concern within the Turkish government.

I regret to say that the United States still does not officially recognize the Armenian genocide. Bowing to strong pressure from Turkey, the U.S. State Department and American presidents of both parties have for more than 15 years shied away from referring to the tragic events of 1915 through 1923 by the word "genocide", thus minimizing and not accurately conveying what really happened beginning 85 years ago.

This legislation is an effort to address this shameful lapse in our own Nation's record as a champion of human rights and historical fact.

Mr. Speaker, the Armenian people are united in suffering and the spirit of remembrance with the Jewish people, who were, of course, also the victims of genocide in the 20th century. I wanted to cite a letter from Mrs. Rima Feller-Varzhapetyan, president of the Jewish community of Armenia.

In a letter to the Congress of the United States, which I will submit for the RECORD, Mrs. Varzhapetyan wrote, "Had the world recognized and condemned the genocide at the time, it is unlikely that the word Holocaust would have become known to the Jewish people."

She also states, "We believe that what happened to Armenians at the beginning of the century is not an issue
