The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

I hereby appoint the Honorable JOHNNY ISAKSON to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2001, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 30 minutes, and each Member, except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) for 5 minutes.

CREATING LIVABLE COMMUNITIES IN THE MILITARY

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I came to Congress committed to having the Federal Government be a better partner in helping our communities be more livable, our families safe, healthy, and economically secure. Among the most important areas for the new Administration to reexamine is the quality of life, the livability of our enlisted people, and the relationship that the military plays in making all our communities more livable.

There are tremendous opportunities to continue some good things that started in the last Administration, and for the President and Secretary Rumsfeld to move even further. The bottom line is that the United States Department of Defense should be a leader at home and abroad, improving the quality of life for the men and women in uniform and their families.

The Department of Defense should be a world leader in building livable communities, whether it is improving environmental protection, sustainable development or partnerships with citizens at all levels.

There are some outstanding examples taking place within a stone's throw of our Nation's capitol.

The Navy Yard renovation is leading the revitalization of the District of Columbia's Southeast waterfront. It is recycling materials and land, developing green buildings, and proving that you can improve the quality of military life while making a difference for the community.

The Department of Defense is managing a massive problem dealing with the same Endangered Species Act that confronts American communities all across the country. To cite just one example, there are 17 endangered species that have been identified at Camp Pendleton, the only large green space remaining between Los Angeles and San Diego.

The Department of Defense is managing 12,000 properties that are listed on or are eligible to be listed on the National Register of Historic Places. This is the largest inventory in the United States and slated to grow even larger because over the next 30 years another 70,000 buildings will reach 50 years of age and require evaluation.

In fact, our military is the largest manager of infrastructure in the world with over $500 billion in bridges, hospitals, roads and docks. One of the most challenging examples is to be found in the area of housing. There are over 300,000 units of military housing; and sadly, as President Bush is discovering today, two-thirds of them are substandard. There is an opportunity to harness new techniques in partnership with the private sector to make sure that we retain valued personnel by treating their families right with homes we can all be proud of.

I hope this Congress will step forward to help the military in other ways to promote livable communities. One of the most important ways would be to increase the necessary funding in order to accelerate the timetable for cleaning up unexploded ordnance, the bombs and shells that did not go off as intended and litter the landscape in over a thousand locations across the United States. There is a legacy of bases, bombing sites, and storage depots from Martha's Vineyard to Camp Bonneville in metropolitan Oregon.

Even around the American University campus right here in Washington, DC there is unexploded ordnance and nerve gas and that has been here since World War I. We cannot wait 500 years to clean these sites up, which is the time that will be required if we follow the current pattern.

The President should include a separate line item in the budget he submits to us, and Congress should focus on it and provide adequate funding. Another simple but powerful step would be for the Department of Defense and, say, the Post Office to obey the same rules as the rest of America. The presumption should be that absent a specific finding of urgent military necessity, our Department of Defense meets the same building codes, environmental standards, and transportation requirements.

Last, but by no means least is the opportunity to keep the mission if not the team intact at the Department of Defense for the military to provide true environmental leadership. There was an outstanding team that was assembled in the last administration: Sherri Wasserman Goodman, Randall Yim, Sandy Apgar, to name just a few. These people have doubtless moved on, but there is a lot to be learned from them, and we need to make sure that the mission and the techniques are retained and enhanced.

Getting and retaining the highest quality fighting force in the world requires that we treat them and their families right. It is important to make the military a partner in our communities using the ingenuity, the brain power, and the sense of mission and devotion to duty that are the hallmark of our armed forces.

PHILIP MORRIS'S CHARITABLE GIVING

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to applaud the excellent efforts of the ABC television network and particularly journalist Dan Harris and John Stossel for demonstrating the tremendous deceit associated with the latest round of Philip Morris advertising.

Philip Morris is a company that is in the business of addiction and death. It markets a product that causes death, disease, and untold human misery. It markets a product that most of its victims would never consume, or certainly not continue consuming, were it not for the highly addictive quality of nicotine, which is an essential ingredient to its future sales.

Hence, in one sense, these advertisements are quite accurate—“the people of Philip Morris” are “working to make a difference.” Indeed, to the 3,000 new children who each day try tobacco, it can be a life and death difference. One thousand of those children will eventually die or suffer from serious disease as a result of their tobacco use. Of course, the “difference” that we hear about on television is not these children but the children who receive Philip Morris scholarships and shelters. We hear not how they addict people but how they feed them, not how they flood the world, but how they flood victims. Indeed, ABC pointed out that Philip Morris has generously contributed $115 million to such charitable activities.

But, wait, there was more that Philip Morris did not want the public to know. Although they spent $115 million for charitable contributions, they spent $150 million to publicize their charity. As John Stossel said, “Give me a break!” If Philip Morris really had such a big heart, why doesn’t it just donate all the money to help flood victims instead of wasting $150 million on ads?

The reason, of course, is quite clear. Philip Morris has taken to heart more than most the old adage that charity begins at home. And for Philip Morris, spending $115 million on charity is charity for itself. As ABC has reported, internal Philip Morris documents show that charitable giving is a key part of its strategy for years. Favorite philanthropies of Philip Morris include those who could “neutralize” women and minority groups, which might otherwise speak out against their being targeted with nicotine. Internal documents also indicate that Members of Congress and legislators around the country have not been forgotten—some of Philip Morris’ favorite charities are the favorite charities of those policymakers that have the power to do something about the addiction and death business that is so critical to this company’s future.

Indeed, I think that Matt Myers at the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids said it best: “These ads are not about charity. These ads are trying to convince Congress and juries that Philip Morris is reformed and responsible, so that the next time they have to walk into a courtroom or the halls of Congress, they can avoid real change.” Of course, when they walk into the halls of Congress, they do not walk into strangers. Philip Morris spent from 1997 to 1999, just a 2-year period, about $120 million on lobbying here in Washington. And it was generous with the Democratic and Republican political parties and to Members of Congress, contributing over $11 million in PAC and soft money contributions during 1998.

At the same time Philip Morris was conducting this advertising campaign about its charitable giving, it was also advertising that it no longer markets to children in ways that will attract 3,000 children to tobacco products every day. Of course, in other countries where Philip Morris markets its deadly products, Philip Morris refuses to abide by any of those restrictions on the marketing to children. Philip Morris continues to play a key role in a worldwide pandemic that will be the largest killer, more than AIDS, more than the combined death toll of a long series of diseases that plague our planet. Philip Morris will be a part of the pandemic that will kill more people in this world than any of these other diseases put together in the decades of years. But I think that for this Congress, it is important for us to realize the financial difference between the good deeds Philip Morris advertises and the amount it spends to promote those good deeds. Congress must react by giving the Food and Drug Administration the jurisdiction it needs over tobacco products, the Justice Department the support it needs to continue its lawsuit against the tobacco industry, and address the problem of Big Tobacco ever so desperately as it circles the globe.

Guam's unemployment rate is a staggering 15 percent, more than three times the national average. It is for this reason that I am asking my House colleagues to sit on the Committee on Ways and Means, to consider proposals that would ameliorate the anticipated loss in revenue, while strengthening both the local economy and providing needed services.

The easiest way, of course, is a direct offset by the Federal Government for the revenue lost that could be targeted for specific social and economic needs, like school construction and health care in Guam, and that could be phased in over the same period that the tax plan is phased in.

The other way would be for the Federal Government to consider several proposals that deal with tax equity for Guam, Federal obligations to Guam that have not been fully paid, or other important issues in this very complex Federal territorial relationship. These include tax equity for foreign investors in Guam; Federal payment for the Child Tax Credit; Federal payment for Earned Income Tax Credit; supplemental security income for U.S. citizens in Guam, a program that is not extended to citizens in Guam; lifting the Medicaid cap for Guam and adjusting the Federal Matching Rate; Compact Impact Aid for Guam; and reimbursement from the Immigration and Naturalization Service for the cost of detaining and housing foreign aliens.

Considering the implications of Federal policy on Guam and the other U.S. Territories, I think it is appropriate and responsible to raise these important issues in the context of the President’s plan.

In the long term, I think it is incumbent upon the Government of Guam, the Guam legislature, and the Guam business community to review Federal tax implications to Guam’s economy and determine whether or not to delink from the U.S. Tax Code. But the immediate issue before us is the impact of the anticipated tax plan.

Last week I wrote to Treasury Secretary O’Neill urging him that special consideration be given for Guam and the U.S. Virgin Islands. I simply want Members of Congress and the White House and Treasury Department officials to understand the implications for any tax cut proposal on the operations of the Government of Guam and the impact to our communities, and I hope that we can work something out.

Recess

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Isakson). Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m.

Accordingly (at 12 o’clock and 47 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 2 p.m.

After Reccess

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LaHood) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

“I love you, O Lord, my strength.” David prays this with such great abandonment.

Often when we pray, O Lord, it is with routine and out of daily concerns. But when overwhelmed with distress and despair, we sometimes approach David’s depths and cry out that You be our strength.

In this age of information and as a powerful Nation, we can easily be caught up in our own agenda and see no further; foolish enough to think that we can accomplish great deeds on our own.

But without You we can do nothing; nothing of lasting value, nothing of true significance, nothing that will touch the people around us and move them deeply.

Help us now, O Lord, as a Nation and as this governing body.

Shield us from moments of crisis and distress. Instead, renew in us the love You have for us. Allow us to be so overwhelmed by Your loving presence today, that with all our hearts we may pray:

“I love You, O Lord, my strength” now and forever. Amen

THE JOURNAL

The Speaker pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces that the House is in regular order.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Speaker pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. Osborne) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance?

Mr. Osborne. Mr. Speaker, I would like to talk about energy as it affects agriculture. Due to high fuel prices, the cost of running farm machinery has skyrocketed. In addition, natural gas is necessary to manufacture fertilizers such as anhydrous ammonia. As the planting season approaches, anhydrous ammonia is almost impossible to obtain and extremely expensive if it can be found at all. As a result, the troubled agriculture industry is under even greater stress today than it ever has been.

As with most crises, there is also an opportunity. At the present time, we have an excellent opportunity to double or even triple the production of alternative fuels like ethanol and soy diesel. If we do this, three benefits will occur:

1. We lessen our dependence on foreign oil, and this will be good for the country.

2. We will reduce undesirable fuel emissions, and this will be good for the environment.

3. We will utilize surplus crops in a profitable manner, and this will be good for agriculture.

SCHOLARSHIP AND MEDICARE

The Speaker pro tempore. The President of the Senate has been requested and has given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, home heating fuel costs have doubled. The companies blame OPEC and the bitter winter. Now if that is not enough to insulate your BVDs, these same companies are now saying, and I quote, they are losing money. Beam me up.

I say it is time to impose a $100 million fine on this bunch of bric-a-brac, ratchet-fratchet, nincompoops who have a license to steal and are stealing from our constituents.

I yield back all of the gas of the beer drinkers association as an in-kind contribution to all of these poor, unprofitable, crying energy companies.

Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Legislation

Mr. GRAVES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, home heating fuel costs have doubled. The companies blame OPEC and the bitter winter. Now if that is not enough to insulate your BVDs, these same companies are now saying, and I quote, they are losing money. Beam me up.

I say it is time to impose a $100 million fine on this bunch of bric-a-brac, ratchet-fratchet, nincompoops who have a license to steal and are stealing from our constituents.

I yield back all of the gas of the beer drinkers association as an in-kind contribution to all of these poor, unprofitable, crying energy companies.
Mr. GRAVES. Mr. Speaker, for over 30 years, the Social Security and Medicare Part A trust funds have been used to distort the budget surplus numbers and mask deficits. This must not continue.

Today we have the opportunity to cast a vote that will end this shortsighted and fiscally irresponsible practice. Today we have the opportunity to lock away all surpluses in the Social Security and Medicare trust funds and ensure that these funds can only be spent to provide the necessary health and long-term care security for our seniors.

Mr. Speaker, the first step to saving Social Security and Medicare is to stop spending it on unrelated government programs. This is an essential first step to preserve and strengthen these programs for current and future retirees.

I urge my colleagues to send a clear message to all Americans and end the raid on Social Security and Medicare.

PROTECTING SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE

(Mr. OTTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001. This measure guarantees that every penny paid into the Social Security and Medicare trust funds will be secure for the millions of seniors, including my 85-year-old mother in Nampa, Idaho, who rely on them today. It is also an important first step in shoring up the funds for young workers who will rely on them in the years to come.

But, Mr. Speaker, there is much more to do. And I look forward to working with the new administration and reforming Social Security to ensure that we keep our promise to those current beneficiaries and to those who are soon to retire, and just as importantly, to guarantee to those younger workers that they will get them when they reach their retirement age.

Mr. Speaker, we should also work to repeal the tax on senior citizens that was placed there by the last administration. H.R. 2 is a much-needed sign that the Federal government is keeping its commitment to senior citizens by creating a Social Security and Medicare Trust Lockbox to buttress these dollars against spending raids.

Our action today sends a strong message that as we Social Security and Medicare is a top priority of this Congress. The senior citizens that have contributed so much of their lives to our country deserve the comfort and the peace of mind that their country is there and will be there for them because we care for us.

It is my hope, Mr. Speaker, that we will move quickly to accept this legislation.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that he will postpone further proceedings today on each motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the rule is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record votes on postponed questions will be taken after debate has concluded on all motions to suspend the rules, but not before 6 p.m. today.

CONGRATULATING PRIME MINISTER-ELECT OF ISRAEL, ARIEL SHARON

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 34) congratulating the Prime Minister-elect of Israel, Ariel Sharon, calling for an end to violence in the Middle East, reaffirming the friendship between the Governments of the United States and Israel, and for other purposes, as amended.

H. RES. 34

Whereas the Governments of the United States and Israel are close allies and share a deep and abiding friendship based on a shared commitment to democratic values;

Whereas since its establishment in 1948, Israel has fulfilled the dreams of its founders, who envisioned a vigorous, open, and stable democracy;

Whereas the centerpiece of Israeli democracy is its system of competitive, free, and open elections;

Whereas on February 6, 2001, the people of Israel elected Ariel Sharon as Prime Minister of Israel; and

Whereas the election on February 6, 2001, is the most recent example of the commitment of Israel to the democratic ideals of freedom and pluralism, ideals that Israel shares with the United States; Now, therefore, be itResolved, That the House of Representa-

(1) congratulates Ariel Sharon on his election as Prime Minister, and extends to him the best wishes of the people of the United States;

(2) commends the people of Israel for reaffirming, through their participation in the election on February 6, 2001, their dedication to democratic ideals;

(3) urges Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat to use his influence and resources to see that violence in the Middle East is brought to an end;

(4) calls upon the countries that neighbor Israel and upon the international community to respect the freely expressed will of the people of Israel and to be prepared to engage in constructive relations with the new Government of Israel;

(5) reaffirms the close bonds of friendship that have bound the people of the United States and the people of Israel together through turbulent times for more than half a century; and

(6) restates the commitment of the United States to a secure peace for Israel.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the request of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE),

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and introduction of the resolution (H. Res. 34), the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 34, a measure which congratulates Prime Minister-elect, Ariel Sharon, of Israel, calls for an end to violence in the Middle East, and reaffirms the friendship between the United States and Israel.

I am pleased to have sponsors of this resolution on behalf of myself and the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), the ranking Democrat member of our Committee on International Relations; and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR), one of our freshmen Members; the gentleman from New York (Mr. GIILMAN), chairman of the subcommittee on the Middle East and South Asia; and the gentleman from New York (Mr. ACKERMAN), the ranking Democratic member of that subcommittee; as well as several other Members.

H. Res. 34 recalls the abiding alliance between Israel and the United States, which is grounded in our shared commitment to democratic values. In over 50 years of Israel’s existence, it has stood as a beacon of democracy in a tension- and trouble-filled region.

On February 6, 2001, the citizens of Israel once again went to the polls to elect a Prime Minister in a competitive, free, and open election. That election was decisively won by Ariel Sharon. Accordingly, by unanimous consent, I congratulate him on his election as Prime Minister and extend to him the best wishes of the people of the United States.

It also commends the people of Israel for reaffirming, through their participation in that election, their dedication to democratic ideals.

Mr. Speaker, the violence that has wracked Israel and the disputed territories for months is indeed deplorable. While H. Res. 34 urges Palestinian Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat to use his influence and resources to see that violence in the Middle East is brought to an end, the legislation also restates the U.S. commitment to a secure peace for Israel.

Our measure calls upon the countries that neighbor Israel and upon the international community to respect the freely expressed will of the people of Israel and to be prepared to engage in constructive relations with the new Government of Israel.

The future will surely bring many new challenges to Israel, including the continued threat of terrorism and the added danger imposed by weapons of mass destruction. It is critical the United States and Israel maintain an unshakeable alliance to further our many mutual interests.

I urge my colleagues to join me in voting for this important resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is the first time that the distinguished chairman of the Committee on International Relations and I, as the new ranking member, jointly bring before this body an important resolution. And as we do so, I want to commend the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman Hyde) for his work on this resolution; and I want to express the hope that we will be able to work on a bipartisan basis on a full spectrum of issues that benefit the national interests of the United States.

I rise, Mr. Speaker, in strong support of the resolution. The resolution has several aspects, and I would like to comment briefly on each of these.

The resolution in the first place congratulates the Prime Minister-elect of Israel, Mr. Ariel Sharon, who won the most recent election a few days ago with a landslide victory. This Congress has congratulated all previous Prime Ministers of the State of Israel, a fellow democracy; and I know that my colleagues will join the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman Hyde) and me in expressing our congratulations to the newly elected Prime Minister.

Our two governments, the government of the United States and the government of Israel, are not only close allies and friends, but we share a deep and abiding commitment to democratic values. As a matter of fact, since the founding of the State of Israel in 1948, that state has fulfilled the dreams of its founders who envisioned a vigorous, open and stable democracy; and the ongoing development of that democracy is its system of free, competitive, and open elections.

I find it particularly amusing that some of Israel's neighbors, who have never had free and open elections, now criticize the people of Israel for having participated yet again in free and open and democratic elections.

Now our resolution urges Mr. Arafat to use his considerable influence and very significant resources to see that the violence in Israel and in the West Bank and Gaza come to an end. Mr. Arafat commands a so-called "police force" of about 10,000 well-armed soldiers, and it defies belief that if he were to truly be determined to put an end to the violence he would be incapable of doing so. Forty thousand well-armed men on that small territory are more than adequate to restore peace and stability in the region.

Our resolution, Mr. Speaker, also calls on all the neighbors of the State of Israel and the international community to respect the freely expressed will of the people of Israel and to be prepared to engage in meaningful and constructive relations with the new government of Israel.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde) and I have just concluded a luncheon with Secretary of State Colin Powell, who is about to leave on a journey to the region. I know I speak for all of us in wishing him good luck in this difficult undertaking. It is critical that Israel's neighbors and the countries of the region display a degree of responsibility, statesmanship, and commitment to move ahead with the peace process.

Clearly, given the current climate, there will be no final resolution of this long-festering conflict; but it is critical for the benefit of all the people in the region—Arabs, Palestinians and Israelis—that peace and stability be restored and the process of sitting down around the negotiating table with the new Prime Minister commence. We here in this body will do our utmost to facilitate this process. I wish the new Government of Israel, yet to be formed, good luck as it attempts to carve out for the people of Israel a permanent, secure, and peaceful place in the Middle East.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR), a new Member of the House and a new member of the committee, brought the idea of this resolution to me as well as to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) and to the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS). It was a helpful suggestion and one which demonstrates the leadership quality the gentleman's constituents have recognized by electing him to the House.

Accordingly, I would like to acknowledge the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR) for his leadership in bringing this resolution to the floor. He has demonstrated the body's strong commitment to a secure and lasting peace for Israel.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this resolution, which celebrates the triumph of Israeli democracy. Israel has been our country's most important and volatile region.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR) will control the time.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the chairman emeritus of the Committee on International Relations and the chairman of the Subcommittee on Middle East and South Asia.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I rise in strong support of H. Res. 34, a resolution congratulating Prime Minister-elect Ariel Sharon of Israel upon his election victory and calling for an end to the violence in the region, underscoring the longstanding friendship between the United States and Israel. I commend the distinguished chairman of our House committee on International Relations, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), and the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), the ranking member of our committee, for cosponsoring this measure. I want to particularly commend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR), who initiated this measure.

Mr. Speaker, few nations could prosper and grow while under siege, on an almost constant state of alert and under attack, as Israel has had to contend with over the past 50-some years. Yet despite the tension and the violence imposed by unremitting forces led by PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat, the Israeli people went to the polls in a free, fair, and democratic election to choose a new Prime Minister.

Colin Powell, who is about to leave on a lunch with our Secretary of State, our new Prime Minister, General Ariel Sharon, won that election by a decisive 25 percent.

We look forward to working with Prime Minister Sharon as he confronts the existential questions that Israel faces daily. We salute his country and his citizens for their courage, their principled leadership and their commitment to democratic ideals and to peace with security. Support for Israel in the Congress reflects a friendship the American people feel for Israel. Those feelings are reflective of this body's strong commitment to a secure and lasting peace for Israel.

Accordingly, I am pleased and proud to lend my support and cosponsorship to H. Res. 34. I strongly urge my colleagues to support this measure.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Before yielding to my next colleague, I want to recognize publicly the 6 years of distinguished service by the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) served as the distinguished chairman of our committee and welcome him in his new role as chairman of the Subcommittee on Middle East and South Asia.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this resolution, which celebrates the triumph of Israeli democracy. Israel has been our country's most important and volatile region.

Surrounded by enemies, plagued by acts of vicious terrorism, which have claimed the lives of countless civilians, many specifically targeted at children and other noncombatants, Israel has nonetheless maintained its commitment to a free, open, and democratic society. Nations facing far fewer and less substantial threats have degenerated into repressive and despotic regimes.

In the wake of the Israeli election, regardless of whether Members of this
Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK), a freshman Member of Congress, who served on our Committee on International Relations and who was once again, again, and again, president of Prime Minister Sharon. Secretary of State Colin Powell recently said that the United States, as Israel’s most important and steadfast ally, honors this commitment of the United States to secure peace in the Middle East. The United States to support Israel, her true partners in peace. The United States, as Israel’s most important and steadfast ally, honors this commitment of the United States to secure peace in the Middle East.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Israel on its free and fair elections and congratulate Prime Minister-elect Ariel Sharon. He is now our partner in peace with this new administration, our President, and a new Congress that must restart the peace process.

I refer to Binyamin Avraham, Adi Avitan, Omer Souad, Elchanan Tannenbaum, Zachary Baumel, Zvi Feldman, Ron Arad and Yehuda Katz. We have once again been reminded of the lesson that Yasser Arafat and his people have shown time and time again in recent months that they simply do not care about finding peace. They chose to press at every alternative. They turned to violence of the worst sort, the type of violence that showed not only the images we were led to believe about Israeli forces holding them down, pinned down; but, in fact, much of the violence that happened was outside of area A, outside of area B where Palestinians were used as human shields and offered the release of these prisoners of war. The current turmoil will find a way to bring lasting peace to the region.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the sponsors for bringing this timely resolution to the floor today, and I encourage all Members of Congress to support this resolution. It is only when Israel risks the image, the Palestinians have been given permission to revise and extend their relationship with the internationally recognized government of Israel. It is only when Israel bears the uniform of IDF and their sons and daughters who must live under the guns of their hostile neighbors and terrorists, and it is their commitment to democracy. I congratulate the people of Israel on their commitment to peace and democracy.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KIRK). Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer my support for House Resolution 34, congratulating Israel on a fair, democratic election containing the notion of violence, preaching the voices of hate. When we hold this in stark contrast to the voice King Hussein used when he was trying to get his people to embrace peace, and what Anwar Sadat did at the same time in Egypt to that role, rich is the wisdom of Mr. KIRK, a freshman Member of Congress, who served on our Committee on International Relations and who was overthrown by the new prime minister of Syria has within his control the ability to release the hostages that are being held. I refer to Binyamin Avraham, Adi Avitan, Omer Souad, Elchanan Tannenbaum, Zachary Baumel, Zvi Feldman, Ron Arad and Yehuda Katz.

We are not unaware that at this time the new President of Syria has been shown, and we hope they have seen, that the honest and real efforts of Israel and of the United States to secure peace in that region have been rebuffed by the Palestinian authorities in their continuous violations of the peace agreement and to proclaim as a condition for the end of that violence demands that, if accepted, would mean the end of the suicide of the Israeli state. Even under these heavy burdens, Israel remains to be the preeminent democracy. I congratulate the people of Israel on their commitment to peace and a free society; and I urge the administration to make clear that we will stand behind Israel 100 percent.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KOENNEBREG). Mr. KOENNEBREG. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments.
Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for his comments.

As a new member of the Committee on Armed Services, I look forward to working with the Committee on International Relations to support this alliance.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to my colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DEUTSCH).

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, this is really an exciting day. I think a great day, for our Congress; and I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR) for bringing this resolution in front of us. It is clearly a bipartisan effort from both sides of the aisle, but it is also an opportunity for the world’s greatest and oldest democracy, the United States of America, through our Chamber, to express our thanks that another democracy exists in a region of the world with too few democracies.

One thing that I think about often in this Chamber is literally right above us is, there is a series of law-givers that look down upon us in this Chamber. And there is only one that has a full frontal relief, and it is Moses literally right in front of us in this Chamber; and it is a world that is linked to as Americans in many direct ways.

To put in perspective, though, for just a couple of seconds what Israel has gone through in the last several months. Over 500 Israelis have died through acts of terrorism since the Oslo Agreements. Over 500 people have died in the most horrendous and horrific circumstance that we have seen and we read about over that period of months.

What would that mean if it happened, God forbid, in the United States of America? What would the equivalent number be? It would be 25,000, 25,000 Americans in our society being killed through acts of terrorism. I do not even think we can contemplate what that would mean as individuals and as a society.

I think many of us understand what the battle is still going on and we thought the battle had ended really of the right of Israel to exist. That is really unfortunately what it seems the battle is still about. It is a battle that is, in a sense, literally not hundreds but thousands of years old. And it is a real thing, there is an existence of Israel’s right to exist from the Palestinian people, or is the thought that this is still a group of people who are like the Crusaders, who are going to last several decades and then leave. I do not think anyone here believes that. I do not think anyone here thinks that. I do not think there is a soul in Israel that believes that or thinks that. But until that acceptance is there, I think the possibility for peace is more problematic and difficult.

We raise the democracy of Israel, and I think all of us look forward to the opportunity that Ariel Sharon has in this moment of time, that all of us know historically, there is a moment in time that he can reach out in terms of a hand of peace and a clear hand of peace that others have not been able to do. And I think the words of this Congress and the deeds of this Congress to offer our utmost effort are complete, united, and 100 percent. I urge adoption of the resolution.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of House Resolution 34 and would like to thank the gentleman from Illinois (Chairman HYDE), the gentleman from New York (Chairman GILMAN) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) for their leadership on this issue. On February 6, the Israeli people went to voting booths. What they said must loud and clear. They said, enough, enough violence, enough of the policy of peace, enough conceding of land and security. And if we listen closely, we will hear the people say they do not want peace at any cost but security.

It is appropriate today that we congratulate the people of Israel in completing a successful and peaceful transition of power through a democratic election. The election of Ariel Sharon as Israel’s Prime Minister, coupled with the new Bush administration, signals a new era for the U.S.-Israeli relationship and a new era for the Middle East.

Peace will not be sought for the sake of a legacy. I believe very strongly that the United States must maintain its commitment to Israel’s security as a fundamental basis of its involvement in the peace process. Any peace deal must come through direct negotiations between Israel and its neighbors without any prerequisites or forced solutions.

As President Bush’s National Security Advisor Condoleezza Rice has said, “We should seek American involvement for the sake of American involvement.” American involvement should occur when we can advance the cause of peace.

We must not impose an artificial deadline on the players in the Middle East. Peace must come on their terms, not ours. Peace must come with security, not in spite of it.

Israel has always made a sincere commitment to peace in the region. Many times their commitment to peace has caused the loss of lives and land. We need to make sure we stand with and support our only Democratic ally in the region.

I join my colleagues today in congratulating Prime Minister Sharon on his election and welcome a continued dialogue about how to best stop the violence and bring about peace and stability in this vitally important region.

Both the United States and Israel are off our assistance in this new era, and I look forward to working toward a solution that brings peace with security.
the resolution also urges Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat to use his influence to end the violence in the Middle East, and reaffirms the historical bond of cooperation between the United States and Israel, and our nation’s commitment to help secure peace in the Middle East. I believe the U.S. is right to press the Palestinian leadership to abide by the terms of the Oslo Accords, which called for renunciation of violence, and the settlement of all disputes through negotiation.

I believe passage of this legislation is an important gesture, because Israel is our only democratic ally in the Middle East. Regardless of how we may view the results of the Israeli elections, it is important for the U.S. to maintain its solidarity with the State of Israel. With the election of a new Israeli Prime Minister, I am hopeful that the Palestinians will choose dialogue over violence, and that Israel can continue its strong relationship with the U.S. to advance peace and stability in the Middle East.

I encourage my colleagues to stand with the State of Israel and support passage of this important legislation.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, as a brand new member of the House International Relations Committee, it is my pleasure to rise today to extend my congratulations to Prime Minister-elect Ariel Sharon on his victory in last week’s elections, as well as to the people of Israel for their commitment to democratic principles of government. I join my colleagues in assuring Prime Minister-elect Sharon of our country’s unwavering support and commitment to the State of Israel. We remain steadfast in our commitment to Israel’s security and look forward to working with him in pursuing regional peace and stability, as well as working to further strengthen U.S.-Israel relations.

It is imperative that we continue the dialogue for peace in the Middle East, and to this end, I call upon Palestinian Authority Chairman Yasser Arafat to demonstrate a commitment to the peace process by calling for an immediate end to the violence.

I also want to acknowledge the work of the House International Relations Committee Chairman Henry Hyde, and the lead sponsors of this resolution, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. ACKERMAN, and Mr. CANTOR, for their work on this resolution. I look forward to working with them in the House International Relations Committee on this and other issues of importance to our national interests and foreign policy.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, a fair, free, and open election took place in Israel on February 6, 2001, to determine the next Prime Minister of that nation. I rise today to support House Resolution 34, which congratulates Prime Minister-Elect Ariel Sharon as the elected leader of the people of Israel. I am a cosponsor of this measure.

The measure commends the people of Israel for reaffirming, through participation in the election, their adherence to democratic ideals; urges the Palestinian Liberation Organization Yasser Arafat to use his influence and resources to secure that violence in the Middle East is brought to an end; and calls upon Israel’s neighbors and the international community to respect the will of the Israeli people and end its obstructive relations with the Israeli government.

Naturally, the resolution also reaffirms the close bonds of friendship that have developed between the peoples of the United States and Israel and restates the commitment of the United States to a secure peace for Israel.

Mr. Speaker, peace is never easy to broker. Prime Minister-Elect Sharon has a formidable task ahead of him, and we need to forge an international community to help bring further stability to the Middle East. As a result, I am pleased to learn that Prime Minister-Elect Sharon is looking to build some consensus within the considerably wide political spectrum in Israel to bridge differences and gain some momentum for the peace process.

This past week, upon Prime Minister Ehud Barak—he is still leading caretaker government in Israel—and former Prime Minister Shimon Peres to join his coalition government. Hopefully, some arrangement can be made for these distinguished individuals to serve together within an Israeli cabinet.

The larger question of peace in the region is predicated on continued negotiations with the Palestinians. I will always be a strong supporter of the Middle East peace process because we can never stop trying. We struggle for peace, Mr. Speaker, because the current wave of violence is unacceptable. It undermines the very basis for peace, the notion that Palestinians and Israelis can trust each other and live together.

Last year, we edged a little closer to establishing a permanent blueprint for peace between the Israelis and Palestinians at Wye River. The principals involved did their best. While a peace agreement did not come to fruition, the Israelis and Palestinians conducted an unprecedented level of negotiations in the pursuit of a permanent peace. They discussed issues and exchanged viewpoints on pivotal matters of dire meaning to the Israeli people and the Palestinian people.

Mr. Speaker, we don’t really know all parties to this ongoing conflict will find everlasting peace and reconciliation. We do know, however, that Chairman Yasser Arafat of the Palestinian Liberation Organization and Prime Minister-Elect Sharon of Israel have an acute sense of what is needed to achieve an agreement, and Prime Minister-Elect Sharon is currently looking into various confidence-building measures between Israel and the Palestinians in order to improve the atmosphere and proceed towards peace.

This is a common sense idea. We have no other alternative. The recent violence in the Middle East underscores the need to get the peace process back on track. We must do so expeditiously. I urge my colleagues to adopt this resolution.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, today I reluctantly rise in opposition to H. Res. 34. This resolution is unclear and, hence, leaves the ability for much mischief. As the resolution’s introductory sentence makes clear, this legislation is considered for “other purposes,” which is to say, unspecified purposes. This has been a longstanding friend to the United States, sharing many of our interests including peace, open trade, and free movement across international borders. It is equally clear that the people of Israel and the Middle East have long been torn by violence and, as such, share our desire to seek peace. We should, in fact, call for an end to the violence and hope all parties will see why this must be achieved. We are also right to congratulate Mr. Sharon, as is customary to be done with the victor of any election. We have all fought those battles ourselves and rightly understand the commitment needed to succeed in that arena.

What then is the problem with this resolution? There are three and they are closely related. The substantive problem here is summed up in that last clause which “restates the commitment of the United States to a secure peace for Israel.” Certainly we wish peace upon all the people of the world, and in this sense, we are committed to peace. However, we must make clear other sorts of commitments are implied here. The vagary of this resolution leaves open the possibility that those who support it are endorsing unwise and constitutionally-suspect financial and military commitments abroad. Moreover, peace will not best be secured for Israel by the further injection of the United States into regional affairs; rather, it will come when Israel has the unfettered sovereignty necessary to protect its own security.

As written, this resolution can be interpreted as an endorsement of unconstitutional acts of aggression upon Israel’s sovereignty. In this I cannot engage. Thus, it is the less-than-clear nature of the resolution upon which we are voting that makes it necessary for me to object.

This brings me to the second problem, the procedural laxity involved here. This resolution was submitted by a number of distinguished members and referred to the Committee on International Relations. The highly-regarded chairman of that committee is the primary sponsor of this legislation and a number of other committee members are among its original cosponsors. Nonetheless, a number of other members of the committee and I were not included in the process. Perhaps, had this bill traveled through the commonly established processes of this institution we would have had the ability to clarify the “commitments” and “other purposes” to which this bill refers. In short, had the committee held a hearing and mark-up, the vagaries could’ve been removed in the markup process. In such an instance, I doubt very likely that we could achieve the kind of unanimous support for these resolutions, for which I often hear personal appeals. In the future, those who are interested in gaining such unanimous support might consider these procedural concerns if they seek unanimity on this floor. In the instant case, I may very well vote “no” for the reasons I have here expressed.

Hopefully these reasons will be considered so that in future instances the opportunity to make clarifications will be offered to those duly-elected members of the committees of the House.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to join in strong support of House Concurrent Resolution 45, congratulating the people and the Prime Minister-elect of Israel on the success of the February 6, 2001 elections.

I also want to commend the authors of this resolution, the distinguished Chairman of the International Relations Committee (Mr. HYDE), the distinguished ranking Democrat on the International Relations Committee and Co-Chairman of the Congressional Human Rights Caucus (Mr. LANTOS), as well as the gentleman from New York (Mr. ACKERMAN) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR).
These individuals should be commended for their leadership and I appreciate their working to bring the important measure to the floor.

On behalf of myself and my constituents in the 9th Congressional District of Illinois, I congratulate the people of Israel and the Prime Minister-elect of Israel, Ariel Sharon, for the successful February 6th election which further demonstrates Israel's commitment to democracy.

This resolution also reaffirms the policy of the United States that there must be an end to the conflict in the Middle East. We in this nation value our close friendship with Israel and are committed to Israel's security. Furthermore, it calls on Israel's neighbors and the international community to respect the outcome of this election, and urges the entire international community to help foster peace in the Middle East.

The ongoing violence that threatens the people of Israel is troubling to me and it is important that the United States be clearly on record in support of Israel and in support of peace.

I remain committed to bringing whatever I can to guarantee a bright future for Israel and continuing United States support for efforts to bring peace and stability to Israel and the Middle East region. Again, I thank my distinguished colleagues for introducing this resolution and urge other members to vote in support.

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise as an enthusiastic cosponsor of House Resolution 34. I want to join with my colleagues here in the House in offering my sincere congratulations to Prime Minister-elect Ariel Sharon as he sets out to lead his country and our close ally, Israel, during this very important moment in our history.

Prime Minister Sharon is faced with many challenges. He must work to form a solid coalition and working government. I join with many others in the hope to see a Unity Coalition form in support of Prime Minister Sharon and his plan for both the internal domestic progress of the Israeli state as well as his vision for the achievement of peace. We must believe that a lasting resolution to the violence and conflict that exists between the Israelis and Palestinians for far too long is possible. I am confident of this and mindful that major issues remain to be resolved.

The Peace Progress is of central importance to the region. I want to applaud Prime Minister Sharon's strong commitment to the absolute cessation of violence in the Middle East. Violence has plagued the Peace Process and it simply must stop. I believe it is important that Congress go on record today with a clear message that we support the discontinuation of the Israeli people, we support Prime Minister Sharon and that we are vitally interested in continuing the close and prosperous relationship that our two countries have worked to foster over these many years. Much work and many monumental decisions remain.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud the sponsors of this bill and urges us to move forward. I ask my colleagues to support this important resolution.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I congratulate Prime Minister-elect Ariel Sharon for his recent victory over Prime Minister Ehud Barak.

Israel is facing a very difficult situation in trying to pursue peace with the Palestinians while at the same time trying to protect the people of Israel from the forces seeking their destruction. I am hopeful that Prime Minister-elect Sharon will continue to explore options for peace with Chairman Arafat, but there must be a secession of hostilities before any new peace negotiations can commence.

The Middle East peace process is at a crossroads. As we look to the future, the American people, the Palestinian people, and the Israeli people do not feel secure in their own homes and communities. Chairman Arafat is responsible for this feeling because it is his followers who are pursuing the course of violence. Prime Minister-elect Sharon will have to confront this matter and means necessary to restore some semblance of order. However, it is my hope that more violence will not be necessary to move the peace process.

Both the Palestinians and the Israelis have the ability to inflict serious damage on one another. but what would that accomplish? I believe Prime Minister-elect Sharon knows this and is willing to restrain his forces if Chairman Arafat will do the same. At this point, the Middle East needs to remember what was accomplished in Camp David and try to rebuild the trust and respect developed there.

Mr. Speaker, I wish him the best of luck as he moves forward trying to form his coalition government.

To Mr. Arafat, the ball is in his court. He will never achieve anything for his people pursuing the path of violence and terror. There has to be a compromise and I hope what Chairman Arafat was not able to reach with Prime Minister Barak, he can bridge with Prime Minister-elect Sharon.

The United States stands with the people of Israel as they struggle forward to make peace with all their Arab neighbors.

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the resolution introduced by my esteemed colleagues, Mr. HYDE, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. CANTOR, Mr. GILMAN and Mr. ACKERMANN. Mr. Sharon, the resolute emphasizes how important it is for the United States to remain engaged in the Middle East and establish a good working relationship with the new government in Israel. I join my colleagues in commending the people of Israel for reaffirming their dedication to the democratic ideals of freedom and pluralism and express my sincere congratulations to Ariel Sharon on his recent election to the position of Prime Minister.

We have reached a critical juncture in the Middle East region. It is imperative for the international community to support and encourage all who seek peace and who wish to end the decades of violence. Killings have become too commonplace. Congress must emphasize peace rather than partisanship and hesitate.

In this ongoing and arduous process, it is crucial that the United States maintain its involvement in the peace process and continue to work diligently with the international community and with the new Government in Israel. Real peace must be achieved and the United States must remain an active partner in the process.

I extend my sincerest congratulations to Mr. Sharon and wish him and his colleagues good fortune in the endeavor.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 34 introduced by my distinguished colleagues from the International Relations Committee, Chairman HYDE, our Ranking Member, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. ACKERMANN, and Mr. CANTOR.

On February 6th, the State of Israel held free and fair elections for the 16th time in its 52 year history. In a region more familiar with long-standing monarchies and dictatorships than democratic institutions, Israel should be commended for setting an example to be emulated by others in the Middle East.

On behalf of the residents of the 7th Congressional District of the great state of New York, I would like to congratulate Ariel Sharon on his election victory.

Since its creation in 1948, Israel has made tremendous strides in an effort to co-exist peacefully with its neighbors. It is my hope, that Mr. Sharon will take the torch once held by Rabin and Ben-Gurion, and lead the people of Israel to a peaceful and prosperous tomorrow.

The United States will continue to stand alongside the State of Israel in its quest for such a future.

I commend my colleagues for spearheading this resolution, and I stand with the men and women of this chamber in support of the new administration in Israel.

Mr. ACKERMANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong support for H. Res. 34, congratulating the Prime Minister-elect of Israel, Ariel Sharon. Mr. Sharon's election in a democratic process speaks volumes about him and the State of Israel. I would add that this resolution says something important about the United States that many countries in the Middle East need to know: Whoever the Prime Minister of Israel may be, that person and the government of Israel are committed to the peaceful resolution of the Palestinian and Israeli conflict.

The bond between the United States and Israel, our longstanding friend and ally, is absolutely unshakable. Whether the prime minister is Ehud Barak or Ariel Sharon, Shimon Peres, or Benjamin Netanyahu, it is absolutely critical that all nations know that Israel will have the full support of the United States of America.

Mr. Speaker, Ariel Sharon's election sends a powerful message that we would be well-advised to heed: Yasir Arafat can't be a negotiator for the 'peace of the brave' by day and a coordinator of cowardly terrorist acts at night. The people of Israel will not tolerate terrorism as a tool of diplomacy, or as an acceptable response when Palestinians believe that Israel's diplomatic offers are inadequate.

It seems to me that in giving this mandate to Prime Minister Sharon, the people of Israel are saying, in a very clear way, that peace initiatives will be met with peaceful responses, and that acts of violence will be met with appropriate responses, rather than further concessions. Mr. Speaker, the Palestinian leadership should be cautioned not to misread Sharon's hardline reputation to mean he is intransigent. This prime minister-elect represents a real opportunity. The Palestinians would be well advised.
not to try to wait out Sharon’s government until the next election; they may lose more than they gain.

As an original cosponsor of the resolution, I want to commend and thank Mr. HYDE and Mr. LANTOS, the Chairman and the Ranking Minority Member of the House International Relations Committee, for their dedication and effort in getting this bill before the House today.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LaHUGG) said: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 34, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The Sergeant at Arms counted the votes, and reported that the yeas and nays were demanded.

SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE LOCK-BOX ACT OF 2001

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2) to establish a procedure to safeguard the combined surpluses of the Social Security and Medicare hospital insurance trust funds, as amended.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Social Security and Medicare Lock-Box Act of 2001.”

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—(i) The levels set forth in the later of the current levels set forth in subsection (a)(2), the current level report on the congressional budget; and

(b) ENFORCEMENT.—(1) General Provisions.—It shall not be in order to make adjustments in budgetary aggregates to be adjusted for legislation, or to the section 302(a) allocation for such fiscal year, resulting from the current level report on the budget or the section 302(a) allocation for such fiscal year, that is not in the House of Representatives, the Senate, or the joint explanatory statement accompanying such conference report.

(c) ADDITIONAL CONTENT OF BUDGET RESOLUTIONS AND OF JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS.—The report accompanying any concurrent resolution on the budget and the joint explanatory statement accompanying such conference report shall include the levels of the surplus in the budget for each fiscal year set forth in such resolution of the surplus of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund, calculated using the assumptions set forth in subsection (b)(2)(A).

(d) DEFINITIONS.—(1) The term ‘social security reform legislation’ means a bill or a joint resolution to save social security that includes a provision stating the following: ‘For purposes of section 318(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, this Act constitutes social security reform legislation.’

(e) WAIVER AND APPEAL.—Subsection (a) may be waived or suspended in the Senate by a two-thirds affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required in the Senate to an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this section.
"(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall cease to have any force or effect upon the enactment of social security reform legislation and medicare reform legislation;"

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Subsection (a) shall cease to have any force or effect upon the enactment of social security reform legislation and medicare reform legislation as defined by section 316(d) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SEC. 4. PRESIDENTS' BUDGET.

(a) PROTECTION OF SOCIAL SECURITY AND Medicare Trust Funds.—If the budget of the United States Government submitted by the President under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, recommends an on-budget surplus for any fiscal year that is less than the surplus of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund for that fiscal year, then it shall include a detailed proposal for social security reform legislation or medicare reform legislation.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Subsection (a) shall control over any other provision of law prohibiting the use of surplus revenue for any fiscal year.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the unanimous consent of the House, Mr. SESSIONS from Texas, Mr. SESSIONS from Ohio, and Mr. HALL of Ohio each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS).

There was no objection.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material on H. R. 2.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in 1999, the Republican Congress led the effort to stop the 30-year raid on the Social Security trust fund. Since then, Republicans have made retirement security a top priority by committing to protect 100 percent of the Social Security surplus.

The Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001 continues this effort by once again protecting every cent of the Social Security and Medicare surpluses.

Under this legislation, we will be honest with the American public and exercise fiscal discipline by locking away all the surpluses from the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

This bill creates a point of order against consideration of any bill, amendment, conference report, or budget resolution that spends any of the Social Security or Part A surpluses.

According to the most recent estimates by the Congressional Budget Office, known as the CBO, $2.5 trillion of the $6.6 trillion total surplus over the next 75 years is attributed to any of the Social Security or Part A surpluses. The Medicare Part A surplus is expected to total $392 billion.

This means that senior citizens and all Americans can count on the fact that the total of these two surpluses, $2.88 trillion over 10 years, will be set aside and will be available to them through these crucial programs.

Under the leadership of the gentleman from California (Mr. HUEY), the House overwhelmingly passed a similar Social Security Medicare Lockbox bill last year by a vote of 420-2. Unfortunately, Senate Democrats eventually stalled the bill and we did not act.

In addition to the overwhelming support it received from this House, we also witnessed former Vice President Al Gore’s efforts to adopt this issue on his own during the Presidential campaign. Though we are all familiar with the television parities of the campaign season regarding the Lockbox legislation, I must recognize that this is no laughing matter. In fact, it is downright serious.

The irresponsible spending practices of the past must not be allowed to happen again. Senior citizens now and beneficiaries in the future who will depend upon these crucial programs must have assurance and guarantee that the surpluses from the Social Security and Medicare trust funds will be used only toward the strengthening and solvency of these programs.

I am proud of this Republican Congress for its efforts to preserve, protect and modernize Social Security and Medicare. This legislation is simply another step in the long line of efforts to restore fiscal stability to our Nation’s retirement systems.

I urge my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL) is recognized.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent after speaking to yield 15 minutes of the 20 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NADLER).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL) recognized to the motion to suspend the rules?

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I am not opposed to the motion to suspend the rules.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent after speaking to yield 15 minutes of the 20 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) recognized to control 20 minutes.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent after speaking to yield 15 minutes of the 20 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LAHOOD) recognized to control 15 minutes.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent after speaking to yield 15 minutes of the 20 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LAHOOD).

There was no objection.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I rise in opposition to this bill. I recognize that I rise in opposition to almost every other Member of this House in both parties. But I think it is time to speak out against this bill and against the nonsense of the lockbox concept which for political reasons has been embraced by Members of both parties at all levels.

It is not true that for the last 30 years we have raided the Social Security system. The fact is the Social Security system when it has a surplus must invest the money in something. The law has always said that it can invest it only in the safest possible investments, namely, government securities. When we have a surplus in government securities, you are lending money to the government. You float bonds, you buy securities, you lend money to the government.

When you lend money to the government, what the government does with that money has no bearing on the security of the Social Security trust fund. If the government spends that money on housing or education or prescription drugs for Medicare or bombers or submarines, what is in the Social Security trust fund is an IOU for that amount of money.

If the government spends that money to pay down the national debt, what is in the trust fund of the Social Security system is the same amount of money. Whether it is wisest and most prudent to spend a given amount of money borrowed by the government from the Social Security system on bombers or missiles or education or housing or paying down the debt is a budget question and a policy question. But it has nothing to do with Social Security.

To say that if you use the proceeds that you have borrowed from the Social Security system for anything other than paying down debt, you are stealing that money from the Social Security system, makes exactly as much sense as saying that your bank is stealing your money when it lends it out as a mortgage loan or a car loan.

The only thing you care about with respect to the money you put in your bank is that the bank has sufficient security when it comes due. And the only thing the Social Security trust fund cares about when it lends the government money is that the government has sufficient funds to pay the interest on time and to pay back the bond, the security, when it comes due in 30 or 40 years or whenever it may be.

To say that we must not use the proceeds of borrowing from Social Security and paying it back with interest for anything other than paying down the debt, well, it is a good excuse on the part of some why we cannot have government spending for things that otherwise the people of this country and the people of this Congress might want to spend it on, like prescription drugs or housing or health education or whatever. And it is a good excuse on the part of others why the tax cut cannot be as big as otherwise other people might want it to be. But it makes no economic sense.

I oppose this bill because although it may make sense this year and maybe next year and maybe the year after to take the entire surplus of the Social Security system in the future and pay down debt because the national debt of the United States is too big, maybe that is the best use of that money this year and next year, it makes no sense to tie the hands of future Congresses and future governments in the future in all circumstances, the best economic choice for the United States, the best policy choice, the best budget choice is to use that money only for paying down debt.

As I said before, what you do with money that the government borrows from Social Security before it pays it back with interest is a budget and policy decision, but it has nothing to do with the Social Security system. The question that I think that question is does the government have the money to pay it back on time, and then you get into the questions of economic growth and the health of the economy and so forth. To generalize about economic growth in future circumstances, it might be that you should pay down debt and another time it might be that you should invest in public works or whatever. We should not tie the hands of future Congresses.

I felt impelled to start raising this topic today because the political imperative to fool the American people on this issue dealing with the Federal budget, spending priorities, and before we even consider tax relief, before we even consider the cosponsor of this legislation.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, today we have an opportunity to reiterate this body’s clear and unmistakable commitment to protecting 100 percent of the Social Security and Medicare trust fund surpluses. Before this body considers tax relief, before we engage in floor debate on even a single issue dealing with the Federal budget, we are here to put the protection of Social Security and Medicare first. Since the beginning of the Social Security programs, over $850 billion in Social Security and Medicare trust fund surpluses have been raided and spent on unrelated areas. Last year, House Democrats and Republicans joined together overwhelmingly to pass a lockbox similar to the one we are considering today.

Unfortunately, it was blocked from consideration by the Democrats in the other body. While we have come a long way in protecting the Social Security trust funds, protection of the trust fund surpluses is still not law. H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001, amends the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to create a point of order against any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion or conference report if the enactment of such legislation would result in a raid of the Social Security or Medicare trust fund surpluses.

This measure ensures that the trust fund surpluses can only be spent on providing retirement and health security, such as reforming Medicare to provide a prescription drug benefit or reforming Social Security to provide more benefits to younger taxpayers. Furthermore, as a result of not spending the trust fund surpluses, the public debt will be paid down by $2.9 trillion over the next 10 years. Our seniors deserve to know that Congress is putting their retirement and health security first.

Among many others, this measure is supported by the United Seniors Association, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and Americans for Tax Reform. I encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting this critical measure.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SHAW. I just want to point one thing out. The lockbox is released as soon as the Congress saves Social Security. So to say that this is going to save Social Security as if we would have declared this month the month in which we would honor Girl Scouts for selling cookies.

It is no relevance at all. If you want to reduce the debt, just do not spend the money. In fact, even if you try to spend the money, one way to overcome it is if in fact you just waive points of order. The real issue, and an issue that needs Republican colleagues, unfortunately refuse to face is the $1.6 trillion tax cut that will probably be coming up in the next month or so. That is the real rub. That is what will endanger Social Security and Medicare in the long run.

The fact of the matter is the President is now talking about retroactively applying it. That will make the $1.6 trillion debt $2 trillion. Plus the loss of interest, we are probably talking about $2.5 trillion in debt paid down on debt over the next decade.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this bill was introduced less than a week ago. The House has held no hearings or committee markups. There has been no chance to discuss or consider alternatives. Bringing up the bill under suspension of the rules further limits the opportunity for debate and amendment. Even though the bill enjoys overwhelming bipartisan support, that is no reason to shortcut the process, especially when it deals with subjects as serious as Social Security and Medicare.

A group of Democratic Members, led by the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. ROSS) and the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MOORE) drafted an alternative lockbox bill. Their bill supports the same goals as H.R. 2 but includes even stronger language to ensure the safety of Medicare and Social Security. By bringing up the bill under suspension of the rules, this substitute cannot be offered. Furthermore, debate is limited to only 20 minutes, not the usual hour minimum for most important bills.

H.R. 2 has worthy aims, which is the protection of Social Security and Medicare. However, it does not take Medicare off-budget which would give Medicare the same protection as Social Security. Moreover, it contains a large loophole in the protection it offers against future congressional actions.

Mr. Speaker, we have an opportunity to protect Social Security and Medicare for future generations. As this bill continues through the congressional process, I hope there will be more of a chance to shape the bill to ensure it is the very best.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Marysville, Virginia (Mr. HINOEN), the cosponsor of this legislation.

Mr. HINOEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Texas for yielding time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINOEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas for yielding time.

Mr. SCHROCK. Mr. Speaker, a brand new Member of this body.
Congress has the ability to state our clear and unmistakable commitment to protect 100 percent of the Social Security and Medicare trust fund surpluses. Social Security and Medicare represents a sacred compact between the people and their government.

During my campaign for Congress, I listened carefully to constituents throughout my district. They told me that they wanted to make sure that when they retired, their Social Security and Medicare was there for them. They also wanted Congress to ensure that Medicare was solvent and would be there to help cover their medical expenses. By placing surplus trust fund moneys in a budgetary lockbox, we can pledge to all of our constituents that these funds will be available for current and future generations and pay down the national debt.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the Social Security surplus will be $2.5 trillion over the next 10 years and the Medicare hospital insurance surplus will total $392 billion. We must lock away this money from congressional appropriators and special interest groups and keep our promise to our senior Americans. We have a duty to protect the money our constituents have paid into Social Security and Medicare.

If you oppose raiding the Social Security and Medicare trust fund and support securing these funds for current and future generations, then please support H.R. 2.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. McNULTY).

Mr. McNULTY. I thank the gentleman for yielding time.

Mr. Speaker, I am concerned. In the year 2000, the national debt was less than $1 trillion. Today it is $5.7 trillion, six times as much. I do not want to go back to the days of deficit spending. Let us look at the figures we are talking about in the budget proposal this year. The administration is estimating we will have a $5.6 trillion surplus in the next 10 years. I do not trust 1-year projections, let alone 10-year projections, but let us assume that that is correct.

Today we are going to vote to subtract from what the Social Security and Medicare trust fund moneys of $2.9 trillion. In other words, we are going to say to the American people, “We are going to stop stealing the money” which we did for many, many years.

I think that bill will get almost unanimous support. So we are making a pledge there. That gets us down to $2.7 trillion, but I want to talk about this tax cut. I have only heard one person say that we will be able to stick to the $1.6 trillion. Almost everyone says it is going to cost a lot more than that. Just take the President’s figure, and only subtracting $1.6 trillion, no implementation costs, nothing else, no retroactivity, and we get down to $1.1 trillion for the next 10 years to do everything.

There are people running around this town saying we are going to eliminate the national debt in 10 years. We are not even going to eliminate one-fifth of the national debt in the next 10 years. If you took the entire balance, and these are the administration figures, if you spent those funds and applied it to the national debt, you would only be able to pay off one-fifth of the national debt, and there would be nothing left for any spending, for the President’s programs or ours.

For the sake of our children and grandchildren, let us reduce the size of this tax cut and stay away from the days of deficit spending.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, it is always wonderful when the opposition agrees with you. I appreciate that support today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GilMAN).

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this measure and urge my colleagues to join supporting it. I commend the gentleman from Texas for bringing the measure to the floor at this time.

Mr. Speaker, this measure amends the 1974 Congressional Budget Act by establishing a lockbox mechanism to make certain that the surpluses in Social Security and Medicare part A surpluses in the House and in the Senate against any resolution, bill, motion, joint resolution, conference report or amendment whose enactment would cause an on-budget surplus to be less than the surplus of the Medicare part A surplus for the same given year.

The legislation makes it out of order in both the House and Senate to consider any budget resolution, bill, joint resolution, conference report or amendment whose enactment would cause an on-budget surplus to be less than the surplus of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund.

Mr. Speaker, for far too long, Congress has proclaimed its desire to protect Social Security for future generations, without following through with any actions to match the proclamations of support. This legislation will provide new budget procedures and parliamentary requirements to make certain that the promises to safeguard Social Security and Medicare will be kept.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Ross).

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I believe H.R. 2 is a good start, but I also do not believe that it goes far enough. I believe we all agree on the need for a lockbox for Social Security and Medicare. This bill has too many loopholes, too many keys, if you will, that can open the lockbox.

There is a lot of talk these days about the surplus, a lot of talk these days about the need for tax cuts. I support a tax cut for working families. There is not much talk, unfortunately, these days, about the debt, some $5 trillion.

Then we talk about the surplus, let us not take Social Security and Medicare into account. Let us take it off the table.

Yesterday I was in southeast Arkansas, the Delta region, one of the poorest regions in the country. People young and old were telling me that they want the politicians to keep their hands off of Social Security and Medicare.

This is a personal issue with me. You see, my grandfather died when I was a year old. My grandmother first learned how to drive a car, she got her GED, and then she went to nursing school. She is 89 now. She is blind, and she lives from Social Security check to Social Security check.

That is why I, along with the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MOORE), have offered an alternative, a meaningful lockbox initiative that protects both the Social Security and Medicare surpluses. It is H.R. 560. It has no loopholes; it has no keys to unlock the box. That is why it is supported by the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, the Nation’s second largest senior advocacy group.

If you truly want to protect Social Security and Medicare, then take the time to compare H.R. 2 with H.R. 560. If you do that, then I am convinced we will join together, like we are here today, and do the right thing by my grandmother and by seniors all across America.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Chairman SHAW).

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to express my support, unconditional support, for H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lock-Box Act of 2001.

Today Social Security protects 45 million Americans and provides one out of three seniors a primary source of retirement income. According to the Social Security Administration, 39 percent of all seniors are lifted out of poverty because of their Social Security benefits. Clearly Social Security is one of the most successful and most important programs ever created that we have today.

But Social Security is in trouble. In less than 15 years Social Security will spend more than it receives in taxes. By the year 2007, the trust funds will be totally empty, and future generations will only pay less than three-fourths of its promised benefits. One of our most important priorities this year is to put Social Security on sound financial footing so it can continue to pay full benefits far into the future and full benefits without increasing taxes to American workers.

H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare reform of 2001, is the first step towards saving Social Security for all time. This legislation prevents Congress from using the Social Security and Medicare surpluses to cut taxes or increase spending. The lockbox ensures that 100 percent of the Social Security surplus and 100 percent of the Medicare surplus are used to reduce the debt, until we enact legislation to save Social Security and Medicare.

Let me repeat: the full amount will go to pay down the debt until such time as a portion of that is used to save Social Security and Medicare.

The lockbox is important for three reasons: first, it ensures that we have the money to pay for Social Security and Medicare reform once reform plans are enacted; second, it promotes fiscal discipline by forcing the Congress to balance the budget, without relying on Social Security or Medicare surpluses; finally, the lockbox reduces our national debt, resulting in higher national savings, faster economic growth, and lower interest costs for our government.

I encourage all Members to show their commitment to Social Security and Medicare by supporting this important legislation. It is very relevant, because Social Security and Medicare money is almost two-thirds of what we spend on the seniors of this country.

We have been spending it on other government programs. But, more importantly, it does not pay the interest on the debt, as the Social Security money and Medicare money have done. It is why I cosponsored H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lock-Box Act of 2001.

I, therefore, ask my colleagues to consider the bill without appropriate clearance. This bill, therefore, is illusionary. Although well-intended, it does allow you to spend the money on other things called “reform.” But, more pressing, is to consider that if you took that of lockbox, took it off the budget, you are assuming you can still spend that, so you say, to the contrary, that you do not want to spend it for tax cuts.

Take $1.6 trillion away from that, that suggestion, and we could not meet the needs of the American people and keep our commitment to lock those security funds aside.

So I urge Members to consider that this is a well-intended but it will not achieve it. It is more illusory than for real.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Royce).

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, retirement security is one of the most important challenges that we in Congress are going to face in the years to come. The amount of benefits provided to seniors in the not-too-distant future is going to exceed the amount of payroll taxes taken in. One of the reasons for that is because Americans are having smaller and smaller families, Americans are living longer and longer, and, under that scenario, protecting Social Security becomes impossible. That is why I cosponsored H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lock-Box Act of 2001.

I, therefore, ask my colleagues to consider the bill without appropriate clearance. I, therefore, ask my colleagues to consider the bill without appropriate clearance.

I think all of us know that for some 30 years we have borrowed out of the Social Security fund. Basically over the last few years, if you will recall, President Clinton said, “Let’s protect 60 percent of the funds in the trust fund.” The Republicans in the House said, “No, let’s protect 100 percent.”

For the last few years, that is what we have done. We have set aside 100 percent of those excess FICA taxes that have gone into Social Security. But setting it aside for the here and now is not the same thing. We had legislation for the long-term, like this bill, to ensure that we put up that firewall so that it is not borrowed again in the future.

Now, in my view, Americans deserve to know that every penny taken out of their paychecks for Social Security and for Medicare will be used to pay for benefits. This legislation will help ensure that.

Furthermore, under this bill the Social Security and Medicare surpluses will be used to pay down the public debt until Social Security and Medicare reform is enacted. This will help lower the burden of debt placed on our children.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to pass this legislation.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, those who introduced H.R. 2 indeed had a good intention. I think all of us want to find a way to lock in the security for both Social Security as well as for Medicare. However, that bill is more illusionary than real, particularly when you compare it with H.R. 560, which the Democrats put in. It does not allow for the loophole.

This bill, therefore, is illusionary. Although well-intended, it does allow for you to spend the money on other things called “reform.” But, more pressing, is to consider that if you took that off of lockbox, took it off the budget, you are assuming you can still spend that, so you say, to the contrary, that you do not want to spend it for tax cuts.

Take $1.6 trillion away from that, that suggestion, and we could not meet the needs of the American people and keep our commitment to lock those security funds aside.

So I urge Members to consider that this is a well-intended but it will not achieve it. It is more illusory than for real.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Lexington, Kentucky (Mr. Fletcher).

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, as we look back over the history of this body for 40 years, since the mid sixties we have been spending the money that individuals have paid in their payroll for Social Security and for Medicare. We have been spending it on other government programs.

I remember 2 years ago, my first year here in Congress, the gentleman from California proposed this and we began the first lockbox to set aside Social Security. I can remember some Members were making light of it and saying it was not a real lockbox, and it had a hole in the bottom of it.

That first year I was here 2 years ago we did not spend one penny of Social Security money. The lockbox worked. It kept us disciplined so we did not spend that Social Security. We did it last year with Medicare, and we are repeating it again this year.

Some folks are concerned that we have allowed the use of this Social Security money and Medicare money to... be used for reform. We have to face the fact that if we do not make some changes in improving and modernizing these programs to meet the needs of an aging population, we are going to run into serious problems. Sticking our heads in the sand does not work. Using rhetoric for political reasons does not solve the problems we are going to be facing in the future.

I am proud we can support and hope we have bipartisan support for this bill to lock up both the Social Security trust fund and the Medicare trust fund for our future generations, and allow us to begin to look at improvements that will preserve these great programs for future generations.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT).

(Mr. HOLT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, this issue is so important to me that on the first day of the new Congress I reintroduced my legislation that the body considered last term. The legislation would prohibit the spending of any projected budget surpluses until Social Security and Medicare are made solid for today's workers and today's children.

The legislation would ensure that the projected surplus associated would be off limits to Congress and used only for retiring the publicly-held debt; no new spending, no new tax cuts until we have dealt with this matter.

I am concerned that H.R. 2 is being brought up to the floor without possibility of amendment to deal with its gaping loophole. What this legislation's loophole is to is allow a tax cut or other bill if it is presented as Social Security reform.

Mr. Speaker, most young workers do not retire in their 60s. They will get a dime from Social Security or Medicare. That is why we must assign the highest priority to shoring up these programs and restoring confidence.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ).

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this legislation. Mr. Speaker, 45,351,200 persons received Social Security benefits just this past year. Over 63 percent of those people were seniors. One must ask, has Social Security had an impact in particular to our seniors? When we take a look at the reasons why Social Security was put in place, it was to help those seniors not be in want. We have record surpluses, we must make sure that we sustain those people and that we do what is right with the surplus. It is going to be impossible to put in a lockbox for Social Security and Medicare, and we should, and at the same time tackle the needs of health care, housing, and other needs, education, that the people of America want.

We need a lockbox. We need a tax cut, but they both must be responsible. We must save Social Security, we must protect Medicare. Let this House act accordingly and take care of the citizens of this country.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Massachusetts (Ms. MARKNEY).

Ms. MARKNEY. Mr. Speaker, this lockbox is leaking because the money can be used for other reform purposes. But I want to stress something else today, an inescapable big truth about the President's economic plan. The big truth is that the President has proposed a Mother Hubbard economic plan, a plan that leaves the cupboard bare.

Here is what I mean. We have an allegiance of the richest in the House will vote to take $2.9 trillion off the table. So that leaves just $2.7 trillion for all the spending and tax relief for the next 10 years.

The President has two priorities for that money: a tax cut that will consist of $2.6 trillion, skewed largely to the wealthy, by the way; and a missile defense system that will cost at least $100 billion.

So that is it. It is all gone before we reach anything else. We have zero surplus for anything else; for prescription drugs, education, health insurance, zero.

Mr. Speaker, it is a Mother Hubbard plan. The wealthy get to take a tax cut picnic while the rest of this country faces an empty cupboard.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, today has been, once again, an exceptional job on behalf of my colleagues in the Democrat party, as well as my colleagues in the Republican party, who have once again approached a very difficult issue with the decision that rather than sticking our heads in the sand, we are going to talk about Social Security, we are going to talk about the things that not only Social Security does for America today and the people who are on Social Security, but also a belief, an abiding belief, that we can do something to make sure it is there for the future of this country.

I would remind my colleagues that the one part about this legislation that is fabulous is that there is an exception to this legislation that any bill that saves Social Security contains this phrase, that if a Member believes that a bill does not save Social Security or Medicare, he or she can always raise a point of order against any part of that legislation.

That is one of the wonderful parts about this bill that is good for all of us. It is a matter of whether we are going to spend the Social Security, or whether we are going to save it.

Mr. SESSHEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill, H.R. 2, be re-referred to the Committee on the Budget, and in addition, to the Committee on House Rules.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LaHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, today I yield support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001. This legislation protects the $2.9 trillion Social Security and Medicare Trust Fund surplus from being used for any other government spending.
More importantly, this legislation reaffirms our commitment to ensuring a safe and secure retirement for current and future generations of Older Americans.

This legislation in effect creates a security “lockbox” to ensure that the FICA or payroll taxes we pay over the course of many years of hard work are exactly as advertised and intended to be used—for Social Security and Medicare. This “lockbox” ensures our money is protected.

When I came to Congress in 1994, taxes were 17 percent of GDP. By 2000, they were out of balance, deficit spending was soaring out of control and the Social Security and Medicare trust fund was being raided to pay for other government programs. To put it bluntly, our fiscal house was in shambles.

But what a difference a few years has made. Today, I am proud that we have balanced the federal budget, paid down over $363 billion dollars of the national debt and cut taxes, all the while protecting and preserving Social Security and Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, as we begin our work in the 107th Congress, the Federal government’s projected cumulative surplus—some $5.7 trillion dollars over the next ten years—presents us with a historic and unprecedented opportunity to continue on a bipartisan course of fiscal discipline. Let’s not look back at this moment as a missed opportunity.

In the coming days and months, there will be plenty of time to debate what to do with the remainder of the surplus. But before we engage in that debate, we must continue paying down the debt and make clear our commitment to ensuring that Social Security and Medicare will be available to current retirees as well as for our children and grandchildren.

That’s three generations of Americans that we will ensure have basic retirement security by preserving and protecting Social Security and Medicare. For the past two years, Congress has put aside Social Security and Medicare taxes so these monies aren’t spent on other federal programs. With this “lockbox” legislation, Congress will be making these actions a permanent part of the budget process.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 2. Let us, today, give future generations of Americans the security of knowing that Social Security and Medicare will be there for them when they most need it.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act.

In this fortunate time of budget surpluses, it is imperative that we use the Social Security and Medicare trust funds to ensure the long-term viability of these critical programs. If we want to prevent Congress from raiding our lockbox budgeting, then these funds should not and cannot be used to pay for other priorities.

I am nonetheless concerned about some of the provisions in the bill. It is my belief that these provisions make this lockbox legislation less than we need. The bill stops the raid on Social Security and Medicare Trust Fund receipts “until such time as medicare and social security reform legislation is enacted.”

What this really means is that once we pass any legislation that constitutes Social Security or Medicare reform, even if the bills do not ensure the solvency of Social Security or Medicare, we are free to use Social Security and Medicare Trust Fund money for whatever we choose.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimates that in the year 2012, there will be a major demographic shift in the United States. The Baby Boom generation will begin to retire and collect benefits under Social Security and Medicare. And, at the same time, the labor force will contract significantly, reducing the amount of revenue and place pressure on these benefit programs. As a result, the CBO projects that instead of the surpluses we now enjoy, we will suffer large budget deficits as we struggle to pay for these programs.

I support this legislation and I support the idea of Social Security and Medicare reform. But all the reform measures we pass won’t mean anything unless we begin to devote resources now to ensure that there will be money available when Baby Boomers begin to retire. This bill is a good start. We need to do much more.

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001, the latest in a string of measures that the House has passed, with my support, to dedicate the Social Security and Medicare surpluses to deficit reduction until such time as the Social Security or Medicare reform legislation is enacted. Like H.R. 5173, which we passed overwhelmingly in September 2000, H.R. 2 would remove the Social Security surplus from the budget totals and limit the amount of money available to pay those benefits.

Mr. Speaker, the Social Security and Medicare surpluses to public debt reduction will be the same story here except that for this “lockbox” the passwords are “Social Security reform legislation or Medicare reform legislation.”

There are the passwords because under this bill the new rules to protect Social Security and Medicare will not apply to any bill that includes them.

If you doubt that it is that simple, just read the fine print in this bill suggesting that this lockbox legislation ‘“shall not apply to social security reform legislation or medicare reform legislation.” And it defines “medicare reform legislation” as a bill that “includes a provision stating the following: For purposes of section 316(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, this Act constitutes medicare reform legislation” and also defines “social security reform legislation” as a bill that “includes a provision stating the following: For purposes of section 316(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, this Act constitutes social security reform legislation.”

So, regardless of what else may be in a tax bill or a spending bill, if it includes those magic words the new rules won’t apply—because those are the passwords that will open the “lockbox.”

Is it any wonder that some of us have our doubts about whether the “lockbox” is real? Is it any wonder that we have some fears about the reliability of this promise to protect Social Security and Medicare? Still, Mr. Speaker, today I will be guided by my hopes, not my fears.

I will vote for this bill, and I will hope that the promise of its title—“The Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act” is not a false one.

But, to rephrase Ronald Reagan, I think that the real policy is to be looking for this bill—but when the tax and spending bills come, to verify by making sure that we fulfill the promise of protecting Social Security and Medicare for the future.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Speaker, The Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act locks away the entire $2.9 trillion Social Security and Medicare surpluses, protecting it from increased government spending and tax cuts. I am proud to be part of the first Congress in thirty years which paid all the government’s bills without raiding the Social Security Trust Fund. This legislation in effect creates a security “lock box” which ensures that the surplus can be used only to pay beneficiaries.
Though the prognosis for the Social Security trust fund has improved with the strong economy, Social Security is still scheduled to begin drawing on the surplus by 2015 and the trust fund will be exhausted by 2037. It is Congress’s duty to ensure that the surplus is there when we need it, while we work to reform the program for future generations. I am proud to support the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox. Senior citizens, as well as all Americans deserve to know that their benefits will be there for them when they retire. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act. This legislation aims to protect the Social Security and Medicare trust funds by establishing points of order against bills that would produce a deficit in the non-Social Security portion of the budget. While this legislation won’t do any harm, it certainly won’t do any good. There are gaping loopholes in the legislation, which allows for raiding the trust funds if it is done under the cloak of “reform.” But this bill is not serious about either reforming or protecting the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

In a few short years the baby boom generation will face retirement. The addition of these 75 million Americans is a looming threat to the Social Security and Medicare programs. Congress must act now to ensure the long-term solvency of these valuable programs. This bill is not a serious, long-term solution for our problems. Congress must make some very careful choices in the coming months about our budget surpluses, and how best to use them.

Anyone reading the papers in the last couple of days knows where the president stands on tax-cuts. Now, I support broad tax cuts. I think that we in Congress can work together to relieve the tax burdens of Americans. But I cannot support a tax-cut plan that endangers our economic stability, or the futures of the Social Security and Medicare programs.

According to some estimates, the president’s plan could cost as much as $2.3 trillion over ten years. That’s almost eighty-five percent of the projected on-budget surplus. This plan leaves almost nothing behind to pay down the national debt, to strengthen our national defense, improve our children’s education, or, as we’re aiming to do today, ensure the solvency of Social Security and Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, I assure you that this legislation will pass almost unanimously. All Members of Congress can agree that Social Security and Medicare funds should be spent only for those purposes, or for the purposes of paying off the national debt. It’s time to make some tough choices about the on-budget surplus. But Congress must strengthen our retiree’s future by protecting Social Security and Medicare. We must do more than pay lip-service to these programs. Its time to put the on-budget surplus money where our mouth is.

Mr. LAFAVOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lock-Box Act of 2001. In the midst of tax cut fever, when the federal government seems to be awash in black ink, this legislation serves as a sobering reminder that we are, in fact, facing a fiscal time bomb within the next twenty years. Before the retirement of the baby boomer generation, we will face an unprecedented fiscal challenge, created largely by the demands on social Security and Medicare.

The Social Security and Medicare Lock Boxes draw a line in the sand, saying that, if we are to fund a large tax cut this year, then we must do so without raiding the Social Security and Medicare Trust Funds. Establishing this imperative for the current tax cut debate is absolutely critical. In recent weeks, some Republicans have moved away from the commitment to protect the Medicare Trust Fund, led by statements from the Administration. But it is clear that Medicare faces the same long-term funding problems that face Social Security. In fact, Medicare will face serious funding shortfalls in the coming years. Raiding the Medicare Trust Fund to pay for tax cuts, then, should be absolutely unacceptable to this Congress.

Some might argue that it is unreasonable to allow concerns of 20 years hence to have too much influence over today’s policies. But this kind of thinking is akin to facing a balloon mortgage payment who nonetheless budgets nothing for it, and worse yet, goes on a spending spree in the years lending up to the balloon payment. Lest any doubt that we are facing a crisis are facing a crisis, consider this: today, the United States has 5 million workers supporting each of its retirees; by 2030, we will have just 2 workers for every retiree. The fiscal implications of this demographic shift are enormous, and easily overwhelm the surplus numbers we have been debating the past few weeks.

Mr. Speaker, today’s legislation is a good first step in acknowledging the true fiscal outlook. I hope we will also recognize the true costs associated with meeting the full obligations of Social Security and Medicare to all of tomorrow’s retirees—costs that are daunting no matter what versions of Social Security and Medicare reform you favor. In recognizing these costs, it should be clear to everyone that the President’s tax plan is simply not affordable.

Mr. CRENshaw. Mr. Speaker, today, I am proud to join my colleagues in strong support of the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act.

We have a surplus of $5.6 trillion. And, $2.9 trillion of that surplus is money that people expect to be there for them when they retire. Congress must not squander this money that people depend on for their Social Security and Medicare benefits.

For the past several years, Congress has locked these trust fund surpluses away through sound fiscal management, despite the absence of a passed lockbox bill. But the American public understands that passage of actual lockbox legislation is a solemn pledge between the Congress and the people that we will not touch those surpluses. And, we should make that pledge to our constituents.

Given the strength of the non-trust fund surplus—$2.9 trillion—$2.9 trillion—is it reasonable to do this and still meet the other needs of our constituents—providing them with much needed tax relief, paying down the debt, and reinvesting in important priorities like defense and education? I am proud to be an original cosponsor of this legislation, and I urge my colleagues to pass H.R. 2 with a strong bipartisan vote.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act. This bill locks up the $2.9 trillion surplus from the Social Security and Medicare trust funds by prohibiting their use for non-Social Security purposes. As a result, it ensures that Congress will always devote 100 percent of the Social Security and Medicare surplus to only those retirement programs.

Today, millions of elderly and disabled Americans rely on Social Security and Medicare to provide them with income, basic health insurance coverage, and retirement security. In fact, Medicare provides significant health insurance coverage for 39 million aged and disabled beneficiaries. Therefore, we need to make sure that our seniors receive these much needed services and benefits in the most efficient manner possible.

Because I believe that every working American should know unequivocally that Social Security and Medicare will be there for them when they retire, I am committed to making a top priority this rethinking of the Social Security program. I believe that the new Administration can work together to safeguard Social Security and Medicare reforms that must be preserved to the best of our abilities. Therefore, I urge you to join me in securing a future for our seniors by voting in favor of the Lockbox.

Mr. HOLT of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join the gentleman from Texas as a cosponsor of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001.

Although today, the Social Security program is able to meet its requirements, we face the problem of fewer workers who pay into the Social Security system, while at the same time, the number of retirees eligible for Social Security benefits continues to increase. I believe Congress and the new Administration can work together to safeguard Social Security and Medicare, and work together to safeguard Social Security and Medicare. I believe that our Nation’s seniors rely on Social Security for approximately 40 percent of their income. Many depend on it for more.

Without a lockbox, approximately $2.9 trillion in projected Social Security and Medicare benefits could be spent on programs and initiatives which may do little, if any, to protect our Nation’s seniors. H.R. 2 will ensure that these surpluses will be used only to strengthen Social Security and Medicare. Furthermore, protecting Social Security and Medicare makes it easier for the Treasury Department to reduce the public debt.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in passing H.R. 2.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001.

For too many years, the Social Security and Medicare Trust Funds have been raided to pay for other government programs. This long-standing practice has jeopardized the solvency of two programs that millions of Americans depend on.

Today this practice will end.

Today, Republicans and Democrats will come together to stop the raid and commit to paying 100 percent of the Social Security and Medicare Trust Fund surpluses, providing retirement and health security for our parents, our grandparents, and hopefully some day for our children.

Our seniors deserve a Medicare and Social Security system that rewards their hard work, increases their independence and secures their future. H.R. 2 is a step toward this important goal.
A February 5 Wall Street Journal article states that, "The Bush Administration also won't walk off Medicare's current surpluses in a 'lockbox'... In fact, Mr. Daniels has said he's told his staff not to talk about a Medicare surplus.

Finally, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott has yet to make a commitment on a Medicare lockbox. A recent BNA Daily Report for Executives, asked him about whether he'd decided to lockbox Medicare and he responded, "We're going to think that through." I will vote for this legislation today. But, I do so with the firm knowledge that my vote—and that of every other member of the House of Representatives—really means nothing about whether we stand for protecting the Medicare and Social Security surpluses for their intended purposes. I hope that the weaknesses of the legislation are not intended and that this vote is a good faith commitment by my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to protect both the Social Security and Medicare surpluses from use for tax cuts or any other new spending. If that commitment is real, if the President expects us to ensure that the upcoming tax cut debate doesn't absorb all available government monies—in addition to the Medicare and Social Security trust funds.

Mr. THOMAS M. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lock Box Act of 2001. I would also like to thank my colleague, Congressman WALLY HERGER, for taking the lead yet again in ensuring that common-sense measures are taken to preserve the Social Security and Medicare Part A programs for our senior citizens. Currently, both the Social Security and Medicare Part A programs take in more revenue through taxes and premiums than they pay out in benefits. This has resulted in large surpluses in both Trust Funds, estimated to be $157 billion for Social Security and $29 billion for Medicare. However, as the Baby Boom generation reaches retirement age, the situation changes significantly. Over the coming years we will see a decrease in the ratio of workers to retirees from 6-to-1 to 2-to-1, causing a precipitous decline in the amounts held in both Trust Funds. By the year 2037, it is estimated that the combined Social Security Trust Funds will be depleted, with revenues only sufficient to pay about 72 percent of benefits. The situation for Medicare is even more dire, with the Part A Trust Fund projected to be depleted by 2025.

We cannot simply put off the difficult decisions for a later day. It is clear that we can enact significant reforms now that are necessary and less likely to be seen as Medicare solvent for the future. It is also evident that while this is a challenging task in and of itself, it will be even more difficult, if not impossible, if we allow the surpluses that we currently have to be raided for other government spending. To this end, H.R. 2 creates a lockbox by creating a point of order against any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that would raid either the Social Security or Medicare Trust Fund. This lockbox ensures that the Trust Fund surpluses will only be used to further pay down our national debt or to strengthen Medicare programs for our children and grandchildren. This is a modest, common-sense step to help preserve social security benefits for future retirees.

We have an obligation to keep our promises to our senior citizens. They have paid into Social Security and Medicare over the course of their working lives in the expectation that these benefits would be there to help support them in their later years. We do them a severe injustice if financial mismanagement on our part robs them of the security they deserve. By approving H.R. 2, we will show the American people that we remain committed to saving these invaluable programs. It is for this reason that I urge my colleagues to lend it their full support.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Social Security and Medicare Safe Deposit Lockbox Act.

Passage of this legislation will make certain that the Social Security and Medicare surpluses are protected in a "lock-box" and are not affected by spending increases and tax cuts. However, the Medicare surplus is not taken off-budget by this bill and therefore is not ensured the same protection as the Social Security surplus under current budget rules. This is a critical flaw in this bill and I do not believe that H.R. 2 alone will solve the long-term challenges facing Medicare. Nevertheless, I support passage of the Social Security and Medicare Safe Deposit Lockbox Act of 2001 and will remain committed to protecting these surpluses.

I believe it is absolutely essential that we maintain our fiscal discipline and continue paying down our debt. We must provide resources to deal with long-term problems facing Social Security and Medicare, while making room for targeted tax cuts and investments in priority programs.

I am also proud to have joined my colleagues, MIKE ROSS and DENNIS MOORE, in introducing H.R. 560, a bill that would take Medicare off-budget, giving it the same protected status as Social Security, and would lock away Medicare surpluses unless they are to be used for current Medicare programs. While I support the bill before us, our bill has a much stronger enforcement mechanism and would be even more difficult, if not impossible, to violate.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Sessions) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postposed.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately 6 p.m.
REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 554, RAIL PASSENGER DISASTER FAMILY ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2001

Mr. GOSS, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 107–1) on the resolution (H. Res. 36) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 554) to establish a program, coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, of assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

CONGRATULATING PRIME MINISTER-ELECT OF ISRAEL, ARIEL SHARON

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The pending business is the question of suspending the rules and agreeing to the resolution, House Resolution 34, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, House Resolution 34 as amended, on which the yeas and nays are ordered.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
February 13, 2001

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ELECTION OF MEMBER TO COMMITTEE ON FINANCIAL SERVICES AND COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Res. 37) and ask for unanimous consent for its immediate consideration in the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time on the legislative day of Wednesday, February 14, 2001, for the Speaker to entertain a motion that the House suspend the rules relating to H.R. 524.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MAKING IN ORDER ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2001 A MOTION TO SUSPEND THE RULES

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time on the legislative day of Wednesday, February 14, 2001, without intervention of any point of order, to consider in the House H.R. 559; that the bill be considered as read for amendment; and that the previous question be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except for 1 hour of debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and one motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

MAKING IN ORDER ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2001 CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 559, RAIL PASSENGER DISASTER FAMILY ASSISTANCE ACT

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time on the legislative day of Wednesday, February 14, 2001, without intervention of any point of order, to consider in the House H.R. 559; that the bill be considered as read for amendment; and that the previous question be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except for 1 hour of debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and one motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

INTRODUCTION OF FEDERAL JUDICIAL FAIRNESS ACT OF 2001

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Federal Judicial Fairness Act of 2001.

This morning, the American Bar Association and the Federal Bar Association released a report detailing a fundamental problem that has been escalating over the past decade, the erosion of fair and adequate compensation for the Federal judiciary.

These two well-respected groups found that the current salaries of Federal judges have reached such a level of inadequacy and quality that the independence of the third branch of the Federal Government is threatened. I agree with these findings.

Since 1993, Congress has granted Federal judges only three of a possible nine cost-of-living adjustments, leaving our judiciary with a one percent decline in purchasing power. Not coincidentally, 54 Federal District Court and Circuit Court judges have left the bench in the 1990s, compared to only three during the entire 1960s.

Yet, the salaries of Federal judges are higher than the average salary in many occupations. But, yes, the salaries that our Federal judges could earn in the private sector could be exponentially higher than what they earn as judges.

No individual agrees to serve in the Federal judiciary because of the pay. Individuals seek and accept nominations to the bench because they want to serve their country. But this does not mean that they should forego fair compensation for their critical work. It should be Congress’ goal to ensure that the judges can afford to commit to public service and make certain that the judiciary is not open only to those with the financial means to do so.

Absent a change in the way we compensate these judges, I fear that the superior quality of our Federal judicial system may deteriorate over time.

This is why I am introducing the Federal Judicial Fairness Act. The bill restores the six cost-of-living adjustments that Congress failed to grant the Federal judiciary in the 1990s, amounting to an immediate 9.6 percent salary increase.

My bill also fixes the annual pay adjustments for Federal judges.

Unlike other Federal employees, Members of Congress and the President’s Cabinet, Federal judges receive a COLA only if Congress specifically authorizes it. Under the Federal Judiciary Fairness Act, Federal judges will receive an annual COLA, subject to the approval of Congress. The size of the COLA would be determined by the Employment Cost Index, but it would not be larger than one received by other Federal employees under the General Schedule pay rate.

Together, these provisions will do much to remedy a problem, disparity in pay between the private and public sectors, that plagues one of the three branches of government. But, Mr. Speaker, this legislation is about more than just fairly compensating the individuals who sit on the Federal bench. We must ensure that our Federal judiciary can attract and retain the brightest. Passing the Federal Judicial Fairness Act is a small but important step in achieving this goal.

I want to thank my colleagues, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. WICKER) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), for agreeing to be original cosponsors of this legislation; and I urge all my colleagues to support the Federal Judicial Fairness Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, many government and Federal Reserve officials have repeatedly argued that we have no inflation to fear; yet those who claim this define inflation as rising consumer and producer prices. Although inflation frequently leads to price increases, we must remember that the free market definition of inflation is increase in supply of money and credit.

Monetary inflation is seductive in that it can cause great harm without significantly affecting government price indices.

THE ECONOMY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, many government and Federal Reserve officials have repeatedly argued that we have no inflation to fear; yet those who claim this define inflation as rising consumer and producer prices. Although inflation frequently leads to price increases, we must remember that the free market definition of inflation is increase in supply of money and credit.

Monetary inflation is seductive in that it can cause great harm without significantly affecting government price indices.

The excess credit may well go into the stock market and real estate speculation, with consumer price increases limited to such things as energy, repair, medical care and other services. One should not conclude, as so many have in the past decade, that we have no inflation to worry about. Imbalances did develop with the 1990s monetary inflation, but were ignored. They are now becoming readily apparent as sharp adjustments take place, such as we have seen in the past year with the NASDAQ.

When one is permitted to use rising prices as the definition for inflation, it is followed by a nonsensical assumption that the cause of rising prices. Foolish conclusions of this sort lead our economic planners and Federal Reserve officials to attempt to solve the problem of price and labor cost inflation by precipitating an economic slowdown.

Such a deliberate policy is anathema to a free market economy. It is always hoped that the planned economic slowdown will not do serious harm, but this never is the case. The recommencement with rising prices, still comes. That is what we are seeing today.

Raising interest rates six times in 1999 to 2000 has had an effect, and the planners are now worried. False, they believe that if only the money spigot is once again turned on, all will be well. That will prove to be a pipe dream. It is now recognized that indeed the economy has sharply turned downward, which is what was intended. But can the downturn be controlled? Not likely. And inflation, by even the planners’ own definition, is raising its ugly head.

For instance, in the fourth quarter of last year, labor costs rose at an annualized rate of 9 percent, the biggest increase in 9 years. What is happening to employment conditions? They are deteriorating rapidly. Economist Ed Hyman reported that 270,000 people lost their jobs in January, a 678 percent increase over the previous year.

A growing number of economists are now doubtful that private growth will save us from the correction that many free market economists predicted would come as an inevitable consequence of the intervention that Federal Reserve policy causes.

Instead of blind faith in the Federal Reserve to run the economy, we should become more aware of Congress’ responsibility for maintaining a sound dollar and removing the monopoly power of our central bank to create money and credit out of thin air, and to fix short-term interest rates, which is the real cause of our economic downturns.

Between 1985 and today, Greenspan increased the money supply, as measured by M2M, by $1.9 trillion, or a 65 percent increase. There is no reason to look any further for the explanation of why the economy is slipping, with labor costs rising, energy costs soaring, and medical and education costs skyrocketing, while the stock market is disintegrating.

Until we look at the unconstitutional monopoly power the Federal Reserve has, we cannot expect a continuation of our problems. Demanding lower interest rates is merely insisting the Federal Reserve deliberately create even more credit, which caused the problem in the first place. We cannot restore soundness to the dollar by debaseing the dollar, which is what lowering interest rates is all about, printing more money.

When control is lost in a sharp downturn, dealing with it by massive monetary inflation may well create some of the stagflation that we experienced in the 1970s; an inflationary recession or depression could result.
THE BUDGET FOR DEFENSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, for the most part, Congress looks at national defense with a bipartisan eye. I am proud to say that I have served with five chairman of the Committee on Armed Services of both parties and of various viewpoints. The number of substantive disagreements on matters of national security have been amazingly few.

That is why so many of my colleagues and I were encouraged to see both candidates for President urging defense with a bipartisan eye. I am confident we demand that our dollar not be cased again because of insufficient resources.

But it is not realistic for him to say, stop the world, America wants to get off. The world will not wait for our strategic reviews. Neither will the creditors, the men and women in uniform to whom the bills are owed. Without the support that it deserves and that was promised, our military cannot do its job. That, Mr. Speaker, makes nobody proud.

It is not partisan to say that we are disappointed. I know the Members on both sides of the aisle would applaud if the President were to reconsider his decision and make our service people whole.

The world is an unstable place, and we need to do their jobs.

That is why President Bush and Vice President Cheney’s declaration that help is on the way sounded welcome to many congressional ears.

I told you so.

The world will not wait for our strategic reviews. Neither will the creditors, the men and women in uniform to whom the bills are owed. Without the support that it deserves and that was promised, our military cannot do its job. That, Mr. Speaker, makes nobody proud.

Only that does not justify supplemental funding. I am not sure what does. I do not believe we can afford any of those consequences. If the President wants to reconsider some of the high-cost programs that interfere with our ability to take care of America’s soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines, that is his prerogative. He has announced a review to do so.

But it is not realistic for him to say, stop the world, America wants to get off. The world will not wait for our strategic reviews. Neither will the creditors, the men and women in uniform to whom the bills are owed. Without the support that it deserves and that was promised, our military cannot do its job. That, Mr. Speaker, makes nobody proud.

It is not partisan to say that we are disappointed. I know the Members on both sides of the aisle would applaud if the President were to reconsider his decision and make our service people whole.

That is not only making good on a promise, it is just the right thing to do.

Publication of the Rules of the Committee on Government Reform 107th Congress

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I am submitting the attached Committee on Government Reform rules for the 107th Congress for publication in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD pursuant to House Rule XI, Clause 2(a)(2). These rules were adopted by the Committee on February 8, 2001.

I. Rules of the Committee on Government Reform

U.S. House of Representatives

107th Congress

Rule XI, clause 1(a)(1)(A) of the House of Representatives provides:

Except as provided in subdivision (B), the Rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as applicable.

(B) A motion to recess from day to day, and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, shall be privileged in committees and subcommittees and shall be decided without debate.

Rule XI, clause 2(a)(1) of the House of Representatives provides, in part:

Each standing committee shall adopt written rules governing its procedures.

In accordance with this, the Committee on Government Reform, on February 8, 2001, adopted the following rules of the committee:

Rule 1.—Application of Rules

Except where the terms “full committee” and “subcommittee” are specifically referred to, the following rules shall apply to the Committee on Government Reform and its subcommittees as well as to the respective chairmen.

[See House Rule XI, 1.]

Rule 2.—Meetings

The regular meetings of the full committee shall be held on the first Tuesday of each month at 10 a.m., when the House is in session.

The chairman is authorized to dispense with a regular meeting or to change the date thereof, and to call and convene additional meetings, when circumstances warrant. A special meeting of the committee may be required by members of the committee following the provisions of House Rule XI, clause 2(c)(2). Subcommittees shall meet at the call of the chairman.

Every member of the committee or the appropriate subcommittee, unless prevented by unusual circumstances, shall be provided with a memorandum at least three calendar days before each meeting or hearing explaining (1) the purpose of the meeting or hearing; and (2) the names, titles, background and reasons for appearance of witnesses. The ranking minority member shall be responsible for providing the same information on witnesses whom the majority may request.

Rule 3.—Quorums

A majority of the members of the committee shall form a quorum, except that two members shall constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, and one-third of the members shall form a quorum for taking any action other than the consideration of a measure.

If the chairman is not present at any meeting of the committee or subcommittee, the ranking member of the majority party on the committee or subcommittee who is present shall preside at that meeting.

[See House Rule XI, 2(h).]

Rule 4.—Committee Reports

Bills and resolutions approved by the committee shall be reported by the chairman following House Rule XIII, clauses 2-4.

A proposed report shall not be considered in committee or subcommittee unless the proposed report has been available to the members of such subcommittee or full committee for at least three calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, unless the House is in session on such days) before consideration of such proposed report in subcommittee or full committee. Any report will be considered as read if available to the members at least 24 hours before consideration, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays unless the House is in session on such days. If hearings have been held on the matter reported upon, every reasonable effort shall be made to have such hearings available to the members of the subcommittee or full committee before the consideration of the proposed report in subcommittee or full committee. Every investigatory report shall be approved by a majority vote of the committee at a meeting at which a quorum is present.

Supplemental, minority, or additional views may be filed following House Rule XI, clause 2(1) and Rule XIII, clause 3(a)(1). The time allowed for filing such views shall be three calendar days, beginning on the day of notice, but excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays (unless the House is in session on such a day), unless the committee agrees to a different time limit on a shorter time shall require the concurrence of each member seeking to file such views.

An investigative or oversight report may be filed after sine die adjournment of the last regular session of Congress, provided that if a member gives timely notice of intention to file supplemental, minority or additional views, the member may not use less than seven calendar days in which to submit such views for inclusion with the report.

Only those reports approved by a majority vote of the committee may be ordered printed, unless otherwise required by the Rules of the House of Representatives.

Rule 5.—Proxies

In accordance with the Rules of the House of Representatives, members may not vote.
Rule 8.—Subcommittees; Referrals

There shall be eight subcommittees with appropriate party ratios that shall have fixed jurisdictions. Bills, resolutions, and other business shall be referred by the chairman to subcommittees within two weeks for consideration or investigation in accordance with their fixed jurisdictions. When the subject matter of the referral involves the jurisdiction of more than one subcommittee or does not fall within any previously assigned jurisdiction, the chairman shall refer the matter as near to the full committee as practicable. Required reports and other matters referred to subcommittees may be reasigned by the chairman. The full committee shall have the authority to alter any assignment. The subcommittee is not able to complete its work or cannot reach agreement therein. In a subcommittee having an even number of members, the chairman shall, so far as practicable, recognize alternately based on seniority of those majority and minority members present at the time the hearing was called to order and others based on their arrival at the hearing. After that, additional time may be extended at the discretion of the chairman.

Rule 14.—Five-Minute Rule

(1) A committee member may question a witness only when recognized by the chairman for that purpose. In accordance with House Rules XI, clause 8(b), each committee member may request up to five minutes to question a witness until each member who so desires has had such opportunity. All subcommittee members, such as the chairman shall, so far as practicable, recognize alternately based on seniority of those majority and minority members present at the time the hearing was called to order and others based on their arrival at the hearing. After that, additional time may be extended at the discretion of the chairman.

(2) The chairman, with the concurrence of the ranking minority member, or the committee by motion, may permit an equal number of majority and minority members to question a specified, total period that is equal for each side and not longer than thirty minutes for each side.

(3) The chairman, with the concurrence of the ranking minority member, or the committee by motion, may permit committee staff of the majority and minority to question a witness for a specified, total period that is equal for each side and not longer than thirty minutes for each side.

(4) Nothing in paragraph (2) or (3) affects the rights of a Member (other than a Member designated by the committee as having the right to question a witness for 5 minutes in accordance with paragraph (1) after the questioning permitted under paragraph (2) or (3). In any extension of the time permitted under paragraph (2) or (3), the chairman shall determine how to allocate the time permitted for extended questioning by majority members or minority members. If the time permitted to the ranking minority member shall determine how to allocate the time permitted for extended questioning by minority members or majority members, or both, the time permitted to the ranking minority member, as applicable, may allocate the time for any extended questioning permitted to staff under paragraph (3) to members.

Rule 19.—Commemorative Stamps

The committee has adopted the policy that the determination of the subject matter of commemorative stamps properly is for consideration by the Postmaster General and the Committee on Government Reform. Members of the committee shall have prompt access to a copy of commemorative stamps issued by the Postmaster General unless closed subject to the jurisdiction of the committee.

II. SELECTED RULES OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

A. 1. Powers and Duties of the Committee—Rule X of the House

House Rule X provides for the organization of standing committees. The first paragraph of clause 1 of Rule X and subdivision (h) thereof reads as follows:

ORGANIZATION OF COMMITTEES

Committees and their legislative jurisdictions

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4.

2. All bills, resolutions, and other matters relating to the subjects within the jurisdiction of the standing committees listed in this clause shall be referred to those committees, in accordance with clause 2 of rule XII, as follows:

(b) Committee on Government Reform.

1. Federal civil service, including intergovernmental relations; and the status of officers and employees of the United States, including their compensation, classification, and retirement.

2. Mail, including the transportation of the mails.

3. Recommendations of any conditions or circumstances that may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation addressing subjects within its jurisdiction; and may make to ensure the most effective coordination of oversight plans and otherwise to achieve the objectives of this clause.

(c) The Speaker, with the approval of the House, shall review and study on a continuing basis the impact of laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction that it intends to be effective during every fiscal year that is within its jurisdiction or other entity (other than the Committee on Appropriations) shall serve as the basis for an increase or decrease in the statutory limit on such debt under the procedures provided by rule XXIII.

Expense resolutions

Whenever a committee, commission, or other entity (other than the Committee on Appropriations) is granted authorization for the payment of its expenses (including staff and travel for a Congress, such authorization initially shall be procured by one primary expense resolution reported by the

2. Each committee to which subparagraph (1) applies having more than 20 members shall establish an oversight subcommittee, or require its committees to conduct oversight investigations, to assist in carrying out its responsibilities under this clause. The establishment of an oversight subcommittee does not limit the jurisdiction of any committees within its legislative jurisdiction in carrying out its oversight responsibilities.

(c) Each standing committee shall review and study on a continuing basis the impact of laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction as described in clauses 1 and 3.

(d)(1) Not later than February 15 of the first session of a Congress, each standing committee shall, in a meeting that is open to the public and with a quorum present, adopt its oversight plan for that Congress. Such plan shall be submitted simultaneously to the Committee on Government Reform and to the Committee on House Administration. In developing its plan each committee shall, to the maximum extent feasible—

(A) consult with other committees that have jurisdiction over related laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction with the objective of ensuring maximum coordination and cooperation among committees working on such laws, programs, or agencies and include in its plan an explanation of steps that have been or will be taken to ensure such coordination and cooperation.

(B) review specific problems with Federal rules, regulations, statutes, and court decisions that are ambiguous, arbitrary, or non-sensical, or that impose severe financial burdens on individuals.

(C) give priority consideration to including in its plan the review of those laws, programs, or agencies operating under permanent budget authority or permanent statutory authority; and

(D) have a view toward ensuring that all significant laws, programs, or agencies within its jurisdiction are subject to review every 10 years.

(2) Not later than March 31 in the first session of a Congress, after consultation with the Speaker, the Majority Leader, and the Minority Leader, the Committee on Government Reform shall report to the House the oversight plans of the committees together with any recommendations that it, or the House leadership group described above, may make to ensure the most effective coordination of oversight and otherwise to achieve the objectives of this clause.

(e) The Speaker, with the approval of the House, may appoint special ad hoc oversight committees for the purpose of reviewing specific matters within the jurisdiction of two or more standing committees.

Special oversight functions

Clause 3 of Rule X also relates to oversight functions. Paragraph (e) reads as follows:

(e) The Committee on Government Reform shall review and study on a continuing basis the operation of Government activities at all levels with a view to determining their economy and efficiency.

3. Additional Functions of Committees—Rule X, Clauses 4, 6 and 7 of the House

Clause 4 of Rule X relates to additional functions of standing committees. Paragraphs (a)(2), (c), and (f) of clause 4 and clauses 6 and 7 as read as follows:

(4. (a) * * * * * *

(2) Pursuant to section 401(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, when a committee reports a bill or joint resolution that Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution may include a reserve fund for unanticipated expenses of committees. An amount from such a reserve fund may be expended only by the approval of the Committee on House Administration. A primary expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered unless a printed report thereof was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of the funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the primary expense resolution; anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity; and

(2) to the extent practicable, contain such general statements regarding the estimated foreseeable expenditures for the respective anticipated activities and programs of the committee, commission, or other entity as may be appropriate to provide the House with basic estimates of the expenditures contemplated by the primary expense resolution.

(b) After the date of adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for a committee, commission, or other entity for a Congress, authorization for the payment of additional funds, including staff salaries, in that Congress may be procured by one or more supplemental expense resolutions reported by the Committee on House Administration. A supplemental expense resolution reported to the House may not be considered in the House unless a printed report thereof was available on the previous calendar day. For the information of the House, such report shall—

(1) state the total amount of additional funds to be provided to the committee, commission, or other entity under the supplemental expense resolution and the purposes for which such additional funds are available; and

(2) state the reasons for the failure to procure the additional funds for the committee, commission, or other entity by means of the primary expense resolution.

(c) The preceding provisions of this clause do not apply to—

(1) a resolution providing for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of sums necessary to pay compensation for staff services performed for, or to pay other expenses of, a committee, commission, or other entity; or

(2) a resolution providing the each of the standing committees in a Congress additional official equipment, airmail and special-delivery postage stamps, supplies, staff personnel, or any other specific item for the operation of the standing committees, and containing an authorization for the payment from committee salary and expense accounts of the House of the expenses of any of the foregoing items provided by that resolution, subject to and until enactment of the provisions of law or regulations (including any permanent law) and (or one-third of the total professional committee staff appointed under this paragraph (f), each standing committee may appoint, by majority vote, not more than 30 professional staff members to be compensated from the funds provided for the appointment of committee staff by primary and additional expense resolutions. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee, as the committee considers advisable.

(e) Funds authorized for a committee under paragraphs (a) and (b) may be expended only by the permission of the permanent chair of the committee involved, signed by the chairman of the committee, except as provided in paragraph (e).

(f)(1) The authority of a committee to incur expenses under this paragraph shall expire upon adoption by the House of a primary expense resolution for the committee.

(2) Amounts made available under this paragraph shall be expended in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Committee on House Administration.

(3) This clause shall be effective only insofar as it is not inconsistent with a resolution of the preceding Congress.

(g) The preceding provisions of this clause shall be effective only insofar as it is not inconsistent with a resolution of the preceding Congress.

(h) (1) A member or employee of a committee shall not receive reimbursement for expenses or travel outside the United States unless the expenses incurred in the activities of the committee.

(2) A member or employee of a committee shall not receive for subsistence in a country for a day at a rate in excess of the maximum per diem set forth in applicable Federal law.

(3) A member or employee of a committee shall not be reimbursed for expenses for a day at the lesser of—

(A) the per diem set forth in applicable Federal law; or

(B) the actual unreimbursed expenses (other than for transportation) he incurred during that day.

(4) A member or employee of a committee may not receive reimbursement for the cost of any transportation in connection with travel inside the United States unless the member or employee actually paid for the transportation.

(5) The restrictions respecting travel outside the United States set forth in paragraph (c) also shall apply to travel outside the United States by a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or employee of the House authorized under any standing rule.

Committee staffs

(9)(a) Subject to paragraph (b) and paragraph (f), each standing committee may appoint, by majority vote, not more than 30 professional staff members to be compensated from the funds provided for the appointment of committee staff by primary and additional expense resolutions. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee, as the committee considers advisable.

(b) Subject to paragraph (f) whenever a majority of the minority party members of a standing committee (other than the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct or the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence) so request, not more than 10 persons (or one-third of the total professional committee staff appointed, whichever is smaller) may be selected whose character and qualifications are acceptable to a majority of the committee. If the committee determines that the character and qualifications of a person so selected are unacceptable, a majority of the minority party may select another person for appointment by the committee to the professional staff until such appointment is made. Each professional staff member appointed under this subparagraph shall be assigned to such committee business as the minority party members of the committee assign.
(b)(1) The professional staff members of any standing committee—
(A) may not engage in any work other than committee business during congressional working hours; and
(B) may not be assigned a duty other than one pertaining to committee business.
(2) A proposed investigative or oversight report under subparagraph (1) with the Clerk at any time, provided that a request is made in writing and the report is not otherwise provided by written rule adopted by the committee.

Adoption of written rules

2. (a)(1) Each standing committee shall adopt written rules governing its procedure. Such rules shall include—
(A) a copy of the report has been available to each member of the committee for at least seven calendar days; and
(B) the report includes any supplemental, minority, or additional views submitted by a member of the committee.

Regular meeting days

(b) Each standing committee shall establish regular meeting days for the conduct of its business, which shall not occur more frequently than monthly. Each such committee shall meet for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or the transmittance of other committee business on all regular meeting days fixed by the committee unless otherwise provided by written rule adopted by the committee.

Additional and special meetings

(1) The chairman of each standing committee may call and convene, as he considers necessary, additional and special meetings of the committee for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the conduct of other committee business, subject to such rules as the committee may adopt. The chairman shall meet for such purpose under that call of the chairman.

(2) Three or more members of a standing committee may file in the offices of the committee a written request that the chairman call a special meeting of the committee. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the committee shall notify the chairman of the filing of the request. If the chairman does not call the requested special meeting within three calendar days after the filing of the request (to be held within seven calendar days after the filing of the request) a majority of the members of the committee may file in the offices of the committee their written notice that a special meeting of the committee will be held. The written notice shall specify the date and hour of the special meeting and the measure or matter to be considered. The committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the committee shall notify all members of the committee that such special meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered. The measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.

In general

1. (a)(1)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), the Rules of the House are the rules of its committees and subcommittees so far as applicable.

(b) A motion to recess from day to day, and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, shall be privileged in committees and subcommittees and shall be decided without debate.

(c) Each subcommittee is a part of its committee and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules, so far as applicable.

(b)(1) Each committee may conduct at any time such inquiries and studies as it considers necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under rule X. Subject to the adoption of expense regulations as required by clause 6 of rule X, each committee may incur expenses, including travel expenses, in connection with such investigations and studies.

2. (a)(1) Each standing committee shall establish regular meeting days for the conduct of its business, which shall not occur more frequently than monthly. Each such committee shall meet for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or the transmittance of other committee business on all regular meeting days fixed by the committee unless otherwise provided by written rule adopted by the committee.

Additional and special meetings

(1) The chairman of each standing committee may call and convene, as he considers necessary, additional and special meetings of the committee for the consideration of a bill or resolution pending before the committee or for the conduct of other committee business, subject to such rules as the committee may adopt. The chairman shall meet for such purpose under that call of the chairman.

(2) Three or more members of a standing committee may file in the offices of the committee a written request that the chairman call a special meeting of the committee. Such request shall specify the measure or matter to be considered. Immediately upon the filing of the request, the clerk of the committee shall notify the chairman of the filing of the request. If the chairman does not call the requested special meeting within three calendar days after the filing of the request (to be held within seven calendar days after the filing of the request) a majority of the members of the committee may file in the offices of the committee their written notice that a special meeting of the committee will be held. The written notice shall specify the date and hour of the special meeting and the measure or matter to be considered. The committee shall meet on that date and hour. Immediately upon the filing of the notice, the committee shall notify all members of the committee that such special meeting will be held and inform them of its date and hour and the measure or matter to be considered. The measure or matter specified in that notice may be considered at that special meeting.
Temporary absence of chairman

(d) A member of the majority party on each standing committee or subcommittee thereof shall be designated by the chairman of the full committee as the vice chairman of the committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, and shall preside during the absence of the chairman from any meeting. If the chairman and vice chairman of a committee or subcommittee are absent, the ranking majority member who is present shall preside at that meeting.

Committee record

(e)(1)(A) Each committee shall keep a complete record of all committee action which shall include—

(i) in the case of a meeting or hearing transcript, verbatim account of remarks actually made during the proceedings, subject only to technical, grammatical, and typographical corrections authorized by the person making the remarks involved; and

(ii) a record of the votes on any question on which a record vote is demanded.

(B) Except as provided in subdivision (B)(ii) and subject to paragraph (k)(7), the result of each such record vote shall be made available for inspection by the public at reasonable times in its offices. Information so available for public inspection shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other proposition to which the vote was directed. Each member and each member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and those members of the committee present but not voting.

(ii) The result of any record vote taken in executive session in the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct may not be made available for inspection by the public without an affirmative vote of a majority of the members of the committee.

(2) Except as provided in subdivision (B), all committee hearings, records, data, charts, and files shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the member serving as its chairman. Such records shall be the property of the House, and each member, Delegate, and the Resident Commissioner shall have access thereto.

(B) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, other than members of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, may not participate in a joint committee respecting the conduct of a Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, officer, or employee of the House without the specific prior permission of that committee.

(3) Each committee shall include in its rules standards for availability of records of the committee delivered to the Archivist of the United States under rule VII. Such standards shall specify procedures for orders of the committee under clause 3(b)(3) and clause 4(b) of rule VII, including a requirement of a record vote, a period longer than the period otherwise applicable under that rule shall be approved by vote of the committee.

(4) A committee shall make its publications available in electronic form to the maximum extent feasible.

Prohibition against proxy voting

(f) A vote by a member of a committee or subcommittee thereof to any measure or matter may not be cast by proxy.

Open meetings and hearings

(g)(1) Each meeting of the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, of a committee or subcommittee thereof (other than the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct or its subcommittee) shall be open to the public, including to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of the meeting on that day shall be in executive session because disclosure of matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or otherwise would violate a law or rule of the House. Persons, other than members of the committee and such noncommittee Members, Officers, or employees, shall be excluded from any committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing on that day shall be closed to the public because disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate a law or rule of the House.

(B) Notwithstanding the requirements of subdivision (A), in the presence of the number of members of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, a majority of those present may—

(i) agree to close the hearing for the sole purpose of discussing whether testimony or evidence to be received would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate clause 2(k)(5); or

(ii) agree to close the hearing as provided in clause 2(k)(5).

(C) A Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner may not be excluded from or denied attendance at a hearing by the committee or subcommittee on the ground that his presence would endanger national security or compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or otherwise would violate a law or rule of the House.

(h)(1) A measure or cooperation on the ground that hearings on such measure were not conducted in accordance with this clause.

(2) A point of order on the ground described in subdivision (A) may be made by a member of the committee that reported the measure if such point of order was timely made and improperly disposed of in the committee.

(3) Each committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, which may not be less than two.

(i) Each committee (other than the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, and the Committee on Ways and Means) may fix the number of its members to constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, which may not be less than one-third of the members.

Limitation on committee settings

(i) A committee may not sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess or joint meeting of the House and Senate in progress.

Calling and questioning of witnesses

(j)(1) Whenever a hearing is conducted by a committee on a measure or matter, the minority members of the committee shall be entitled, upon request to the chairman by a majority of them before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(2) Subject to subdivisions (B) and (C), each committee shall apply the five-minute rule during the questioning of witnesses in a hearing until such time as each member of the committee whose subcommittee has had an opportunity to question each witness.

(B) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting its subcommittee or its majority and minority party members to question a witness for longer than five minutes. The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

(C) A committee may adopt a rule or motion permitting its subcommittee or its majority and minority party members to question a witness for equal specified periods.
The time for extended questioning of a witness under this subdivision shall be equal for the majority party and the minority party and may not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

Hearings procedures

(k)(1) The chairman at a hearing shall announce in an opening statement the subject of the hearing.

(2) A copy of the committee rules and of this clause shall be made available to each witness on request.

(3) Witnesses at hearings may be accompanied by counsel for the purpose of advising them concerning their constitutional rights.

(4) The chairman may punish breaches of order by any member of the committee by any member of the profession of ethics on the part of counsel, by censure and exclusion from the hearings; and the committee may cite the offender to the House for contempt.

(5) Whenever it is asserted by a member of the committee that the evidence or testimony at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person, or it is asserted by a witness that the evidence or testimony at a hearing may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person; and

(A) notwithstanding paragraph (g)(2), such testimony or evidence shall be presented in executive session if, in the presence of the number of members required under those rules of the committee for the purpose of taking testimony, the committee determines by vote of a majority of those present that such evidence or testimony may tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person; and

(B) the committee shall proceed to receive such evidence or testimony only when a majority of the committee, a majority being present, determines that such evidence or testimony will not tend to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person

In either case the committee shall afford such person an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness, and receive and dispose of requests from such person to subpoena additional witnesses.

(6) Except as provided in subparagraph (5), the chairman shall receive and the committee shall dispose of requests to subpoena additional witnesses.

(7) Evidence or testimony taken in executive session, and proceedings conducted in executive session, may be released or used in public proceedings only by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members.

Supplemental, minority, or additional views

(l) If at the time of approval of a measure or matter by a committee (other than the Committee on Rules) a member of the committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views for inclusion in the report to the House thereon, that member shall be entitled to not less than two additional calendar days after the day of the vote (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) to file such views, in writing and signed by that member, with the committee.

Power to sit and act; subpoena power

(m)(1) For the purpose of carrying out any of its functions and duties under this rule and rule X (including any matters referred to it under clause 2 of rule XII), a committee or subcommittee is authorized (subject to subparagraph (2)(A))

(A) to sit at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, and to hold such hearings as it considers necessary; and

(B) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents as it considers necessary.

(2) The chairman of the committee, or a member designated by the chairman, may administer an oath to a deponent.

(3)(A)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (A)(1), a subpoena may be authorized and issued by a committee or subcommittee under paragraph (1)(B) in the conduct of an investigation or series of investigations or activities only when authorized by the committee or subcommittee, a majority of members present. The power to authorize and issue subpoenas under subparagraph (1)(B) may be delegated to the chairman of the committee under such rules and under such limitations as the committee may prescribe. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed by the chairman of the committee or by a member designated by the committee.

(l) In the case of a subcommittee of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, a subpoena may be authorized and issued only by an affirmative vote of a majority of its members.

(B) A subpoena duces tecum may specify terms of return other than at a meeting or hearing of the committee or subcommittee authorizing the subpoena.

(C) Compliance with a subpoena issued by a committee or subcommittee under subparagraph (1)(B) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

Audio and visual coverage of committee proceedings

4. (a) The purpose of this clause is to provide for coverage in conformity with acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, and decorum, by which committee hearings or committee meetings that are open to the public may be covered by audio and visual means.

(1) For the education, enlightenment, and information of the general public, on the average, regarding the operations, procedures, and practices of the House as a legislative and representative body, and regarding the measures, public issues, and other matters before the House and its committees, the consideration thereof, and the action taken thereon; and

(2) for the development of the perspective and understanding of the general public with respect to the role and function of the House under the Constitution as an institution of the Federal Government

(b) In addition, it is the intent of this clause that radio and television tapes and television film of any coverage under this clause may not be used, or made available for use, as partisan political campaign material to promote or oppose the candidacy of any person for elective public office.

(c) It is, further, the intent of this clause that the general conduct of each meeting (whether of a hearing or otherwise) covered under authority of this clause by audio or visual means is not improper behavior of the committee members and staff, other Government officials and personnel, witnesses, televisions, audio, and press media personnel at the committee hearing or meeting, shall be in strict conformity with and observance of the acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, courtesy, and decorum traditionally observed by the House in its operations, and may not be such as to

(1) distort the subjects and purposes of the hearing or other meeting or the activities of committee members in connection with that hearing or meeting or in connection with the general work of the committee or of the House; or

(2) cast discredit or dishonor on the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or bring the House, the committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner into disrepute.

(d) The coverage of committee hearings and meetings by audio and visual means shall be permitted and conducted only in strict conformity with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this clause.

(e) Whenever a hearing or meeting conducted by a committee or subcommittee is open to the public, those proceedings shall be open to coverage by audio and visual means. A committee or subcommittee chairman may not limit the number of television or still cameras to fewer than two representatives from each medium (except for legitimation of positions or number of television cameras permitted by a committee or subcommittee), in which case pool coverage shall be authorized.

(f) Each committee shall adopt written rules to govern its implementation of this clause. Such rules shall contain provisions to the following effect:

(1) If audio or visual coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) The allocation among the television media of the positions or the number of television cameras permitted by a committee or subcommittee chairman in a hearing or meeting room shall be made with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(3) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between a witness giving evidence or testimony and any member of the committee or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.

(4) Television cameras shall operate from fixed positions but may not be placed in positions that obstruct the observer's view of the audience's view of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(5) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media may not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the committee is in session.

(g)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), floodlights, spotlights, strobelights, and flashguns may not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting.

(B) The television media may install additional lighting in a hearing or meeting room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in a hearing or meeting room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of a hearing or meeting at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(7) In the allocation of the number of still photographers permitted by a committee or subcommittee chairman in a hearing or meeting room, no photographs shall be given to photographers from Associated Press Photos and United Press International Newspictures. If requests are made by more photographers than can be covered by a committee or subcommittee chairman for coverage of a hearing or meeting by still photography, that coverage shall be permitted on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(8) Photographers may not position themselves between the witness table and the members of the committee at any time during the course of a hearing or meeting.

(9) Photographers may not place themselves in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing by the other media.

(10) Photographers providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents’ Galleries.

(11) Photographers providing coverage by still photography shall be currently accredited to the Press Photographers’ Gallery.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Pay of personnel

5. Witnesses appearing before the House or any of its committees shall be paid the same per diem rate as established, authorized, and regulated by the Committee on House Administration, the Resident Commissioner, and employees of the House, plus actual expenses of travel to and from the place of examination. Such per diem shall be paid when a witness has been summoned at the place of examination. Such per diem shall not be paid when a witness has been summoned at the time of the hearing.

C. Filing and Printing of Reports—Rule XIII, Clauses 2, 3 and 4 of the House

2. (a) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), all reports of committees (other than those filed from the floor as privileged) shall be delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar under the rules and shall be printed in the Congressional Record.

(b) A bill or resolution reported adversely shall be laid on the table unless a committee to which the bill or resolution was referred requests at the time of the report its referral to an appropriate calendar under clause 1 or unless, within three days thereafter, a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner makes such a request.

(b)(1) It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House a measure or matter that has been approved by the committee; to take or cause to be taken steps necessary to bring the measure or matter to a vote; and in any event, the report of a committee on a measure or matter approved by the committee and to reported promptly to the House a measure or matter approved by the committee and to

2(l) of rule XI do not preclude the immediate filing or printing of a committee report in the absence of any request for the opportunity to file supplemental, minority, or additional views as provided in clause 2(l) of rule XI.

Content of reports

3. (a) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the report of a committee on a measure or matter shall be printed in a single volume that—

(A) shall include all supplemental, minority, or additional views that have been submitted by the time of the filing of the report; and

(B) shall bear on its cover a recital that any such supplemental, minority, or additional views (and any material submitted under paragraph (c)(3) or (4)) are included as part of the report.

(2) A committee may file a supplemental report for the correction of a technical error in its previous report on a measure or matter. A supplemental report only correcting errors in the depiction of record votes under paragraph (b) may be filed under this subparagraph and shall not be subject to the requirements of clause 2(l) of rule X concerning the availability of reports.

(b) With respect to each record vote on a motion to report a measure or matter of a public nature, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, and the names of members voting for and against, shall be included in the committee report. The preceding sentence does not apply to votes taken in executive session by the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

(c) The report of a measure that has been approved by the committee shall include, separately set out and clearly identified, the following:

(1) Oversight findings and recommendations under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X.

(2) The statement required by section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, except that an estimate of new budget authority shall include, when practicable, a comparison of the total estimated funding level for the measure or matter to the appropriate levels under current law.

(3) An estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 if timely submitted to the committee before the filing of the report.

(4) A statement of general performance goals and objectives, including related goals and objectives, for which the measure authorizes funding.

(d) Each report of a committee on a public bill or joint resolution shall contain the following:

(1) A statement citing the specific powers granted to Congress in the Constitution to enact the law proposed by the bill or joint resolution.

(2) An estimate by the committee of the costs that would be incurred in carrying out the bill or joint resolution in the fiscal year in which it is reported and in each of the five fiscal years following that fiscal year (or for the authorized duration of any program authorized by the bill or joint resolution if less than five years).

(3) A comparison of the estimate of costs described in subdivision (A) made by the committee and the cost estimate made by a Government agency and submitted to such committee; and

(4) When practicable, a comparison of the total cost of programs with the appropriate levels under current law.

Availability of reports

4. (a) Except as provided in subparagraph (2), it shall not be in order in consideration in the House a measure or matter reported by a committee until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which each report of a committee on that measure or matter has been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

(b) Subparagraph (1) does not apply to—

(A) a resolution providing a rule, joint rule, or order of business reported by the Committee on Rules considered under clause 6;

(B) a resolution providing amounts from the applicable accounts described in clause 1(i)(1) of rule X reported by the Committee on House Administration considered under clause 6 of rule X;

(C) a bill called from the corrections calendar under clause 6 of rule XV; and

(D) a resolution presenting a question of the privileges of the House reported by any committee;

(E) a measure for the declaration of war, or the declaration of a national emergency, by Congress; and

(F) a measure providing for the disapproval of a decision, determination, or action by a Government agency, or continuing any such disapproval, or to continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress. In this subdivision the term ‘Government agency’ includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or of the government of the District of Columbia.

(b) A committee that reports a measure or matter shall make every reasonable effort to have its hearings thereon (if any) printed and available for distribution to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner before the consideration of the measure or matter in the House.

(c) A general appropriation bill reported by the Committee on Appropriations may not be considered in the House until the third calendar day (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such a day) on which printed hearings of the Committee on Appropriations thereon have been available to Members, Delegates, and the Resident Commissioner.

III. SELECTED MATTERS OF INTEREST

A. 5 U.S.C. Sec. 2954. Information to Committees of Congress on Request

An Executive agency, on request of the Committee on Government Operations of the House or of any member thereof, or on request of the Committee on Government Operations of the Senate, or of any other committee thereof, shall submit any information requested of it relating to any matter within the jurisdiction of the committee.

B. 18 U.S.C. Sec. 1505. Obstruction of Proceeding

Shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

The Comptroller General shall—

(3) analyze expenditures of each executive agency the Comptroller General believes will help Congress decide whether public money has been used and expended economically and efficiently;

(4) make an investigation and report ordered by either House of Congress or a committee thereof having jurisdiction over revenue, appropriations, or expenditures; and

(5) give a committee of Congress having jurisdiction over revenue, appropriations, or expenditures the help and information the committee requests.

(e) The Comptroller General shall report on analyses carried out under section 712(3) of this title to the Committees on Governmental Operations and Appropriations of the Senate, the Committees on Government Operations and Appropriations of the House, and the committees with jurisdiction over legislation related to the operation of each executive agency.

(i) On request of a committee of Congress, the Comptroller General shall explain to the committee or committee staff a report the Comptroller General makes that would help the committee—

(1) evaluate a program or activity of an agency within the jurisdiction of the committee; or

(2) in its consideration of proposed legislation.

(d)(1) On request of a committee of Congress, the Comptroller General shall help the committee—

(A) develop a statement of legislative goals and ways and means to assess and report program performance related to the goals, including recommendations as to ways to improve the program, information to be reported, responsibility for reporting, frequency of reports, and feasibility of pilot testing; and

(B) assess each evaluation prepared by the committee.

(2) On request of a member of Congress, the Comptroller General shall give the member a copy of the report for which the material was compiled.

F. 51 U.S.C. Sec. 1113. Congressional Information

(a)(1) When requested by a committee of Congress having jurisdiction over receipts or appropriations, the President shall provide the committee with assistance and information.

(2) When requested by a committee of Congress, the Comptroller General shall submit to the committee—

(a) a statement of legislative goals and ways and means to assess and report program performance related to the goals, including recommendations as to ways to improve the program, information to be reported, responsibility for reporting, frequency of reports, and feasibility of pilot testing; and

(b) an evaluation prepared by the committee.

(3) Before March 2 of each year, the Director shall maintain the file and an index through data processing and communications technology.

(4) In evaluating performance, the Comptroller General shall—

(A) assist committees of Congress in developing their information needs;

(B) assist committees of Congress in developing their information needs;

(C) the extent to which reporting by the executive branch of the United States Government currently meets the identified needs of the Senate; and

(D) the changes to standard classifications necessary to meet congressional needs;

(E) the extent to which reporting by the executive branch of the United States Government currently meets the identified needs of the Senate; and

(F) the extent to which reporting by the executive branch of the United States Government currently meets the identified needs of the Senate; and

(5) provide a program evaluation carried out or commissioned by an executive agency.

(c) On request of a member of Congress, the Comptroller General shall—

(1) establish and maintain a current directory of sources of, and information systems for, fiscal, budget, and program information and related information of the committee, the Comptroller General, or the Director of the Congressional Budget Office.

(2) when requested, provide assistance to committees of Congress and members of Congress in obtaining information from the sources in the directory; and

(3) when requested, provide assistance to committees of Congress and members of Congress in obtaining information from the sources in the directory; and

(d) To the extent they consider necessary, the Comptroller General shall, in connection with the Director of the Congressional Budget Office individually or jointly shall establish and maintain a file of information to meet recurring needs of Congress and shall make such program information to carry out this section and sections 717 and 1112 of this title.

The Speaker pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York (Mrs. Maloney) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow is a significant day in the history of our Republic. For only the second time since the Constitution charged with the constitutional mandate to conduct a decennial census will report to the Nation on the preliminary results of their work. The Census acting director appears before Congress, and he will give us the first report on the quality and completeness of that count, under oath.

Rumor has it that the results are good, I think. I say that because there is still quite a bit we do not know. Apparently, the net national undercount from the 2000 census is about 1 percent. These results are a significant improvement over 1990. The 2000 census may well be the best ever conducted.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

It is also my obligation to report to this House that all may not be well with the census. If what I read in the papers is right, there is an ongoing plan by the Republican leadership to stop the Bureau from completing its job by blocking the use of modern scientific methods to achieve the most accurate picture of America.

This is not a charge that I make or any Democrat makes; it is a charge made by the investigative staff of none other than the Wall Street Journal in a story last Thursday quoting Republican sources that such a plan is afoot.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the Record this issue of the Wall Street Journal.

[From the Wall Street Journal, Feb. 8, 2001]

BUSH'S NEXT RECOUNT BATTLE: SHOULD CENSUS TALLIES BE ADJUSTED?

By Jim VandeHei

WASHINGTON—Amid warnings of protests from minorities, President Bush must decide soon whether to release census data to redraw congressional boundaries and to divvy up roughly $185 billion a year in federal funds if it becomes clear that the revised figures, which the GOP argues is unconstitutional.

'Ve need to be able to make the final call on whether to use sampled data. The courts have ruled that only unadjusted data could be used to determine how many House seats each state gets, but they left open the question of whether sampling could be used to redraw districts. Mr. Bush would have to overturn the rule before the new figures are released, which gives him a month to act."

Or the president could appoint a new Census Bureau director who could make the final call on release of sampled data and possibly provide cover to Mr. Bush. Kenneth Perritt, the bureau's director under former President Clinton, has been an advocate of sampling, left last month. Career civil servant William Barron, the acting director, would not hesitate to release the sampled data if it showed a noticeable difference, observers say. But it would be nearly impossible for Mr. Bush to get a new director in place in time.

"There is still a slim chance that Mr. Bush won't have to make a decision at all. If the Census Bureau finds that the 2000 person-by-person head count was nearly dead-on, there would be no reason to use revised numbers. That is unlikely, but Mr. Perret will do the 2000 census was the most accurate count ever taken. Democrats concede that it was probably far more accurate than the 1990 count, which they say underestimated the U.S. population by a net of about four million, mostly poor people from big cities."

GUARDING 'THEIR CIVIL RIGHTS'

But Rep. Maloney says it is likely that 2000 census, at the very least, missed huge poches of people of inner cities that "must have their civil rights.

It is impossible to determine what effect the sampled data will have on the distribution of federal funds until the numbers are released. But the 1990 census is any indication, it could boost government spending by billions of dollars over 10 years in cities such as New York and Chicago, according to varriaous studies. Without it, they also would not allocate much of its funds based on population. Rep. Thomas Davis of Virginia, chairman of the GOP's congressional committee, accecss that last week the funding issue to try to scare people" and mask their true intent, which is to pick up House seats. "Every seat counts," when a swing of five seats could sway either party's control of the House, he says. Instead, experts predict that sampling could significantly increase the number of Democratic voters as in many as 12 House districts currently held by Republicans.

Most of these seats are swing districts on the shoulders of the country's largest cities. Congress has the power to control the entire redistricting process, which is done by the governor and the state Legislature. If the Census Bureau's sampling data finds that minorities inside Los Angeles were undercounted, it could correct the problem by adding thousands of residents, presumably Democrats, to its original count. When the state redraws its congressional districts, Democrats then could simply draw pockets of minority-rich neighborhoods into GOP districts next neighborhoods.

In California alone, Republicans worry that this could cost them at least two House seats. Sampling, says Rep. Blunt, could "change" the control of the House.

In the end, it is likely that the courts will decide this dispute. Indeed, both sides have promised to file lawsuits if they lose.

Mr. Speaker, as we all learned in high school, no single action by this government other than the census does more to reapportion political power here and in our State legislatures and local communities. No single action, other than the census, does more to fairly distribute billions in Federal, State, and local tax dollars or private investment. No single act does more to recognize who we are as individuals, or together as communities assembled in a single Nation.

The impact of each new census is far-reaching because each occurs only once every 10 years. We have just completed our 22nd decennial census. Indeed, our fighting men and women have been sent abroad to defend liberty more times than we have conducted a full count of our own people to ensure that liberty is guaranteed.

A successful effort to interfere with a modern scientific count would have a purely partisan advantage of one political party over the other, as the Wall Street Journal suggests is under way, denies liberty and disenfranchises the unrepresented for an entire decade. That is why many call this moment in our history the most important civil rights issue of this decade.

Mr. Speaker, I remind this House of the recent election process in Florida. Those who felt denied access to the polls, disenfranichased, or whose ballots set aside, or those stripped of their right to choose their political leadership, they still have recourse. Next year they can go to the polls again in local, State, and Federal elections and make their voices heard. Believe me, the whole world will be watching.

To those left out of the census, however, those that are disenfranichised by a purely partisan intervention to ensure that they are not represented, or recognized or represented, to them there is no recourse, not for 10 long years. Billions of dollars in Federal funding will be unfairly spent, private investment will be redirected to those less deserving, local planners and school boards will overlook again those unrepresented, unless we do everything we can to improve the census and ensure that it is as complete and accurate as possible.

What we are likely to hear tomorrow is that the net national undercount is better than it was in 1990. It may be 3 million people missed instead of 4 million. In any case, we know that they are most... likely, most probably, minorities and children who are undercounted, the urban and rural poor. Mostly affluent whites have been double-counted. Mr. Speaker, we cannot make up for not counting minorities by double-counting whites.

There are those in the administration rushing to prejudge the results without having all the facts. They claim this is the most accurate census in American history. We hope so, but the whole story is not known.

The key to this challenge is not just how many were missed, but who was missed? Where do they reside? Were some groups missed at higher rates than others? What if we learn that really a net of 3 million residents were missed, but that one million were in Florida. Would Florida not insist on an adjustment?

Equality of outcome, for all types of communities and for all population groups, is what we need to ensure the fair allocation of resources to areas most in need, as well as the obvious, equal representation for everyone in our democracy.

This is my pledge to the Members of the House to represent. Through my position on the Census Subcommittee, through whatever power I can muster, we will ultimately learn if any political influence by this administration is used to interfere with the scientific process of a complete and accurate Census. I led the fight to ensure that career professionals at the Census Bureau would make this decision when the prior Democratic administration was in power. The same process should apply to the new administration. I want to ensure the Secretary of Commerce and the President are watching us.

We are on the verge in this Nation of redrawing every political jurisdiction in every state from congressional districts to state legislatures to city councils and school boards and even local taxing districts. Only the Census Bureau can give us the most complete picture of our residents. If we are double-counting whites, we can no more unseemly act than the one suggested in these press accounts. To have the very government elected to serve the people use its power to block the exercise of every political right on the part of millions of Americans is beyond reasonable to me.

Rule 5. Waiver of Agenda, Notice, and Lay-Over Requirements. Requirements of rules 3, 4(a), 4(v), 5, 6, and 11, or waiver by a majority of those present and voting (a majority being present) of the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, may be waived.

Rule 6. Testimony. Testimony may be taken and evidence received at any hearing at which there are present not fewer than two members of the Committee or subcommittee in question. A majority of the member of the Committee shall constitute a quorum for the purposes of reporting any measure or matter, or for the purpose of reporting, portion of a subcommittee as specified in the proceeding committee, one-third of the members of the Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum.

Rule 7. Official Committee Records. (a)(1) Journal. The proceedings of the Committee shall be recorded in a journal which shall, among other things, show those present at each meeting and proceedings held by the Committee or subcommittee, including the date of any action so taken. Records made within the preceding sentence, one-third of the members of the Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum.

(a)(2) Records. A record vote may be demanded by one-fifth of the members present or, in the absence of a quorum, by any one member. No demand for a record vote shall be made or obtained except for the purpose of procuring a record vote or in the apparent absence of the quorum. The result of each record vote in any meeting of the Committee shall be made available in the Committee office for inspection by the public, as provided in Rule XI, clause 2(e) of the Rules of the House.

(b) Archived Records. The records of the Committee at the National Archives and Records Administration shall be made available for public use in accordance with Rule VII of the Rules of the House. The chairman shall notify the ranking minority member of any decision, pursuant to clause 3(b)(3) or clause 4(b) of the Rule, to withhold a record otherwise available, and the matter shall be presented to the Committee for determination on the written request of any member of the Committee. The chairman shall consult with the ranking minority member on any committee action related to the withholding of records. In the absence of a quorum, the United States or the Clerk of the House concerning the disposition of noncurrent records pursuant to clause 3(b) of the Rule.

Rule 8. Subcommittees. There shall be such standing subcommittees with such jurisdiction and size as determined by the majority party caucus of the Committee. The jurisdiction and size of each subcommittee shall be determined by the majority party caucus prior to the start of the process for establishing subcommittee chairmanship.

Rule 9. Powers and Duties of Subcommittees. Each subcommittee is authorized to meet, hold hearings, receive testimony, mark up legislation, and report to the Committee on all matters referred to it. Subcommittee chairmen shall set hearings and meeting dates only upon the approval of the chairman of the Committee with a view to ensuring the availability of meeting rooms and avoiding simultaneous scheduling of Committee and subcommittee meetings or hearings whenever possible.

Rule 10. Reference of Legislation and Other Matters. All legislation and other matters referred to the Committee shall be referred to the subcommittee of appropriate jurisdiction within two weeks of the date of receipt by the Committee unless action is taken by the full committee within those two weeks, or by majority vote of the members of the Committee, consideration is to be by the full Committee of the jurisdiction or other matter within the jurisdiction of more than one subcommittee, the chairman of the Committee may, in his discretion, refer the matter to one or more subcommittees for concurrent consideration, or may designate a subcommittee of primary jurisdiction and also refer the matter to one or more additional subcommittees for consideration in sequence (subject to appropriate time limitations), either on its initial referral or after the matter has been reported to the Committee by the primary jurisdiction. Such authority shall include the authority to refer such legislation or matter to an ad hoc subcommittee appointed by the chairman, with the approval of the Committee, from the members of the subcommittee having legislative or oversight jurisdiction.

Rule 11. Ratio of Subcommittees. The majority caucus of the Committee shall determine an appropriate ratio of majority to minority members for each subcommittee and the chairman shall negotiate that ratio with the minority party, provided that the ratio of party members on each subcommittee shall not be less than the majority than that of the full Committee, nor shall such ratio provide for a majority of less than two majority members.

Rule 12. Subcommittee Membership. (a) Selection of Subcommittee Members. Prior to any organizational meeting held by the Committee, the majority and minority caucuses shall select at least one member from each caucus as a member of the standing subcommittee.

(b) Ex Officio Members. The chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee shall each select one or more additional members of the standing subcommittee.

Rule 13. Managing Legislation on the Floor. The chairman, in his discretion, shall designate which member shall manage legislation reported by the Committee to the House.

Rule 14. Committee Professional and Clerical Staff. (a) Delegation of Staff. Whenever the chairman of the Committee determines that any professional staff member appointed pursuant to the provisions of clause 8(f) of Rule X of the House of Representatives, who is assigned to such member and not to the ranking minority member, by reason of such staff member's expertise or qualifications will be of assistance to one or more subcommittees in carrying out their assigned responsibilities, he may delegate such member to such subcommittee or subcommittees. A delegation of a member of the professional staff pursuant to this subsection shall be made after consultation with subcommittee chairmen and/or the subcommittee chairman or chairmen involved.

(b) Minority Professional Staff. Professional staff members of the minority party of the Committee may be delegated to any subcommittee or subcommittees for the purpose of providing advice to the subcommittee or subcommittees for such purpose. A delegation of a member of the professional staff pursuant to this subsection shall be made after consultation with subcommittee chairmen and/or the subcommittee chairman or chairmen involved.

Rule 15. Supervision of Majority Staff. The professional and clerical staff assigned to the Committee shall be under the supervision and direction of the chairman who, in consultation with the chairmen of the subcommittees, shall establish and assure the duties and responsibilities of such staff members and delegate such authority as he determines appropriate.

Rule 16. Supervision of Minority Staff. The professional and clerical staff assigned to the minority shall be under the supervision and direction of the minority members of the Committee, who may delegate such authority as they determine appropriate.

Rule 17. Committee Budget. (a) Preparation of the Committee Budget. The chairman of the Committee, after consultation with the ranking minority member of the Committee and the chairmen of the subcommittees, shall for the 105th Congress prepare a preliminary budget for the Committee, with such budget including necessary amounts for professional and clerical staff, travel, investigation, equipment, and other expenses of the Committee and the subcommittees, and which shall be adequate to fully discharge the Committee's responsibilities for organization and oversight. Such budget shall be presented by the chairman to the majority party caucus of the Committee and thereafter to the full Committee for its approval.

(b) Approval of the Committee Budget. The chairman shall take whatever action is necessary to have the budget as finally approved by the Committee and the House. No proposed Committee budget may be submitted to the Committee on House Administration unless it has been presented to and approved by the majority party caucus and thereafter by the full Committee. The chairman of the Committee may authorize all necessary expenses in accordance with these rules and within the limits of the Committee's budget as approved by the House.

Rule 18. Biennial Expenditure Reports. The Committee members shall furnish a copy of each monthly report, prepared by the chairman of the Committee on House Administration, which shows expenditures made during the reporting period and cumulative for the year by the Committee and subcommittees, to the appropriate subcommittee or subcommittee, if any, of the Committee. The Committee, on any action on such reports, shall be submitted to the Committee on House Administration for concurrence.

Rule 19. Committee Program and Detailed Information on Travel.
Rule 17. Broadcasting of Committee Hearings. Any meeting or hearing that is open to the public may be covered in whole or in part by radio or television or still photography, subject to the rules and regulations of clause 13 of Rule XI of the Rules of the House. The coverage of any hearing or other proceeding of the Committee or any subcommittee thereof by television, radio, or still photography shall be under the direction of the chairman of the Committee, the subcommittee chairman, or other member of the Committee voting in the case of a hearing, and shall be terminated by such person in accordance with the Rules of the House.

Rule 18. Comptroller General Audits. The chairman of the Committee is authorized to request verification examinations by the Comptroller General of the United States pursuant to Title V, Part A of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (Public Law 94-163), after consultation with the members of the Committee.

Rule 19. Subpoenas. The Committee, or any subcommittee, may authorize and issue subpoenas under the authority of the House, if authorized by a majority of the members of the Committee or subcommittee (as the case may be) voting, a quorum. Authorized subpoenas may be issued over the signature of the chairman of the Committee or any member designated by the Committee, and may be served by a person designated by the chairman or member. The chairman of the Committee may authorize and issue subpoenas under such clause during any period for which the House has adjourned for a period in excess of 3 days when, in the opinion of the chairman, authorization and issuance of the subpoena is necessary to obtain the necessary information. The subpoena shall report to the members of the Committee on the authorization and issuance of a subpoena during the recess period as soon as practicable but in no event later than one week after service of such subpoena.

Rule 20. Travel of Members and Staff. (a) Approval of Travel. Consistent with the primary expense resolution and such additional expense resolutions as may have been approved, travel shall be reimbursed from funds set aside for the purpose by the Committee for any member or any staff member shall be paid only upon the prior authorization of the chairman. Travel may be authorized by the chairman for any member and any staff member in connection with the attendance of hearings conducted by the Committee or any subcommittee thereof and meetings, conferences, and investigations which involve activities or subject matter under the general jurisdiction of the Committee. Before such authorization is given there shall be submitted to the chairman in writing the following: (1) the purpose of the travel; (2) the dates during which the travel is to be made and the date or dates of the event for which the travel is being made; (3) the location of the event for which the travel is being made; and (4) the names of members and staff seeking authorization.

(b) Approval of Travel by Minority Members and Staff. In the case of travel by minority party members and minority party professional staff for the purpose set out in (a), the prior approval, not only of the chairman but also of the ranking minority member, shall be required. Such prior authorization shall be given by the chairman only upon the representation by the ranking minority member in writing setting forth those items enumerated in (1), (2), (3), and (4) of paragraph (a).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. HOOLEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOOLEY of Oregon, Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the strength and compassion of Woodburn, a small town in my district, when they faced a tragedy.

On December 4, 2000, Karina Gonzalez, a high school student, and her mother, Martina Meza Gonzalez, were walking home after receiving an outstanding report in her parent-teacher conference. While the mother and daughter were crossing the busy Highway 214, they were hit and killed. This was a senseless tragedy that could have been avoided by a proper crosswalk and lighting of this popular crossing area.

The community recognized for 5 minutes. It is important to recognize that an accident such as this had happened on that same stretch of highway. In response to the accident, students conducted a survey of students who cross that busy highway in order to get to school.

They wrote letters to State leaders, testified before State legislative committees to encourage change. Because of the students demanding a solution, improvements have been made to the highway by creating a pedestrian island with a promise of lighting and other solutions.

The action the community took proves that when people work together, they can make positive changes.

Mr. Speaker, in light of the tragic death of two special people, the Woodburn community banded together to make their voices heard and to prevent this kind of accident in the future.

I commend the courage of the students at Woodburn High School, the Woodburn community and the family of Karina and Martina Gonzalez for their activism in face of this tragedy and their willingness to be involved in the democratic process to make positive change. My congratulations to them.

PUBLICATION OF THE RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE, 107TH CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. YOUNG) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, attached is a copy of the Rules of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the U.S. House of Representatives. These Rules were adopted by the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure by voice vote on February 7, 2001. We are submitting these Rules to the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for publication in compliance with Rule XI, Clause 2(a)(2).

RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

(Adopted February 7, 2001)

Rule I.—General Provisions

(a) Applicability of House Rules.—(1) The Rules of the House are the rules of the Committee and shall be applicable, except that a motion to recess from day to day, and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, are non-debatable privileged motions in the Committee and its subcommittees.

(2) Each subcommittee is part of the Committee and is subject to the authority and direction of the Committee and its rules so far as applicable.

(b) Authority to Conduct Investigations.— The Committee is authorized at any time to conduct such investigations and studies as it may consider necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its responsibilities under Rule X of the Rules of the House, and is subject to the authority and direction of the Committee and its subcommittees.

(c) Authority to Print.—The Committee is authorized to have printed and bound testimony and other data presented at hearings held by the Committee and its subcommittees, and to authorize the printing and binding of graphic services and transcripts in connection with any meeting or hearing of the Committee shall be paid as provided in clause 3(b) of Rule X of the Rules of the House.

(d) Activities Report.—(1) The Committee shall submit to the House, not later than January 2 of each odd-numbered year, a report on the activities of the Committee under Rules X and XI of the Rules of the House during the Congress ending on January 3 of such year.

(2) Such report shall include separate sections summarizing the legislative and oversight activities of the Committee during that Congress.

(3) The oversight section of such report shall include a summary of the oversight plans submitted by the Committee pursuant to clause 2(d) of Rule X of the Rules of the House, a summary of the recommendations made with respect to each such plan, and a summary of any additional oversight activities undertaken by the Committee and any recommendations made or actions taken thereon.

(e) Publication of Rules.—The Committee’s rules shall be published in the Congressional Record not later than 30 days after the Committee is elected in each odd-numbered year.

Rule II.—Regular, Additional and Special Meetings

(a) Regular Meetings.—Regular meetings of the Committee shall be held on the first Wednesday of every month to transact its business unless such day is a holiday, or the House is in recess or is adjourned, in which case the Chairman shall determine the regular meeting day of the Committee for that month. The Chairman shall give each member of the Committee, as far in advance of the day of the regular meeting as the circumstances make practicable, a written notice of such meeting and the matters to be considered at such meeting. If the Chairman believes that the Chair is considering any bill or resolution before the full Committee and that there is no other business to be transacted at a regular meeting, the meeting may be deferred until such time as, in the judgment of the Chairman, there may be matters which require the Committee’s consideration. This paragraph shall not apply to meetings of any subcommittee.

(b) Additional meetings.— The Chairman may at any time call a joint or subcommittee meeting to consider matters of which notice has been given to the members.”

g) meetings of the Committee shall be open to the public, except for records and documents as provided in paragraph (c).

(2) Survey investigation of a proposed project for navigation, flood control, and other purposes by the Corps of Engineers (section 4 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1943).

(3) Construction of a water resources development project by the Corps of Engineers with a total Federal cost not exceeding $15,000,000 (section 201 of the Flood Control Act of 1965).

(4) Deletion of water quality storage in a Federal reservoir project where the benefits attributable to water quality are 15 percent or more but not greater than 25 percent of the total project benefits (section 63 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974).

(5) Authorization of a Natural Resources Conservation Service watershed project involving any single structure of more than 4,000 acre feet of total capacity (section 2 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974).

(6) Other purposes by the Corps of Engineers (section 65 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1943).

(7) Opposition to any bill or resolution returned to the House of Representatives and the Senate by the President.

Rule VII.—Hearing Procedures

(a) Announcement.—The Chairman, in the case of a hearing to be conducted by the Committee, and the appropriate subcommittee chairman, in the case of a hearing to be conducted by a subcommittee, shall make public announcement of the date, place, and time of such hearing at least one week before the hearing. If the Chairman or the appropriate subcommittee chairman, as the case may be, is not present to begin the hearing sooner, the appropriate subcommittee chairman shall promptly notify the Daily Digest Clerk of the Committee of the date, time, and place of such hearing. The Daily Digest Clerk of the Committee shall promptly enter the appropriate information into the Committee scheduling service of the House Information Resources as soon as possible after such public announcement is made.

(b) Written Statement; Oral Testimony.—So far as practicable, each witness who is to appear before the Committee or a subcommittee shall file with the Clerk of the Committee or subcommittee, at least 2 working days before the day of his or her appearance, a written statement of proposed testimony, which shall be transmitted to the Chairman of the Committee or subcommittee, and the Clerk of the Committee or subcommittee, at least one day before the hearing.

(c) Minority witnesses.—When any hearing is conducted by the Committee or any subcommittee upon any measure or matter, the minority party members on the Committee or subcommittee shall be entitled, upon request to the Chairman by a majority of those minority members before the completion of such hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(d) Summary of Subject Matter.—Upon announcement of a hearing, to the extent practicable, the chairman of the Committee or subcommittee shall make available immediately to all members of the Committee a concise summary of the subject matter (including legislative reports and other material) under consideration. In addition, upon announcement of a hearing and subsequently as they are received, the Chairmen of the Appropriations Committee and the other committees of the House may request the Chairman of the Committee of any official reports from departments and agencies on such matter.

(e) Questioning of Witnesses.—The questioning of witnesses shall be directed by the Chairman, followed by the ranking minority member and other members alternating between the majority and minority parties. In recognizing members to question witnesses in this fashion, the Chairman shall take into consideration the ratio of the majority to minority membership on the particular project or hearing, the potential to establish the order of recognition for questioning in such a manner as not to disadvantage the members of the minority nor the members of the minority. The Chairman may accomplish this by recognizing two majority members for each minority member recognized.

(f) Transcripts of Hearings.—(1) Clause 2(k) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House (relating to additional rules for hearings) applies to hearings of the Committee and its subcommittees, and to hearings of the subcommittees of the Committee.

(2) A subcommittee may not begin a major investigation without approval of a majority of the members of the Committee.

(g) Participation of Members in Subcommittee meetings and hearings.—All members of the Committee who are not members of a particular subcommittee may request, by unanimous consent of the members of the such subcommittee, participate in any subcommittee meeting or hearing. However, a member who is not a member of the subcommittee may not vote on any matter before the subcommittee, be counted for purposes of establishing a quorum, or raise points of order.

Rule VIII.—Procedures for Reporting Bills and Resolutions

(a) Filing of Reports.—(1) The Chairman of the Committee shall report promptly to the House any measure or matter approved by the Committee and take necessary steps to bring the measure or matter to a vote.

(2) The report of the Committee on a measure or matter which has been approved by the Committee shall be filed within 7 calendar days after the filing of the measure in the House (including the time during which the House is not in session) after the day on which there has been filed with the clerk of the Committee a written request signed by a majority of the members of the Committee, for the reporting of that measure or matter. Upon the filing of any such request, the clerk of the Committee shall transmit immediately to the Chairman of the Committee notice of the filing of that request.

(b) Quorum; Record Votes.—(1) No measure, matter or recommendation shall be reported from the Committee unless a majority of the Committee was actually present.

(2) With respect to each record vote on a motion or matter the committee shall, upon request of any member of the public, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, and the names of those members voting for and against, shall be included in the Committee report on the measure or matter.

(c) Required Matters.—The report of the Committee on a measure or matter which has been approved by the Committee shall include the items required to be included by clause 3(b) of and 3 of Rule XIII of the Rules of the House.

(d) Additional Views.—If, at the time of approval of any measure or matter by the Committee, any member of the Committee gives a dissenting vote or recommendation, whether of the majority or minority, or additional views, that member shall be entitled to not less than two additional calendar days after the day of such view (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays) in which to file such views in accordance with clause 2(l) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House.

Rule IX.—Oversight

(a) Purpose.—The Committee shall carry out oversight responsibilities as provided in this rule in order to assist the House in analyzing, appropriating funds for, and monitoring the implementation of (A) the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of the laws enacted by the Congress, or (B) conditions and circumstances in which there may be necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation, and

(b) Oversight Plans.—Not later than February 15 of the first session of the Congress, the Committee shall adopt its oversight plans for that Congress in accordance with clause 2(d)(1) of Rule X of the Rules of the House.

(c) Review of Laws and Programs.—The Committee and the appropriate subcommittees shall cooperatively review and study, on a continuing basis, the application, administration, execution, and effectiveness of those laws, or parts of laws, the subject matter of which is within the jurisdiction of the Committee, and the recommendations of the Federal agencies and entities having responsibilities in or for the administration and execution thereof, in order to determine whether the laws and programs thereunder are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of the Congress and whether such programs should be continued, curtailed, or eliminated. In the addimade annually to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the nature, requirements, and objectives of the programs and activities involved.

(d) Review of Tax Policies.—The Committee and the appropriate subcommittees shall cooperatively review and study any conditions or circumstances which may indicate the necessity or desirability of enacting new or additional legislation within the jurisdiction of the Committee, whether or not any bill or resolution has been introduced, written or proposed, and shall on a continuing basis undertake future research and forecasting on matters within the jurisdiction of the Committee.

(b) Biennial Budget.—The Committee shall review, from time to time, each continuing program within its jurisdiction and shall report to the Congress each two years on such program with respect to all matters to be set forth in the subsequent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year which are within its jurisdiction or function.

(c) Views and Estimates.—The Committee shall, on or before February 25 of each year, submit to the Committee on the Budget (1) its views with respect to all matters to be set forth in the subsequent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year which are within its jurisdiction or function, and (2) an estimate of the total amount of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions which the Committee shall be available in the Committee office for review by members of the Committee on the Budget (1) its views with respect to all matters to be set forth in the subsequent resolution on the budget for the ensuing fiscal year which are within its jurisdiction or function, and (2) an estimate of the total amount of new budget authority, and budget outlays resulting therefrom, to be provided or authorized in all bills and resolutions which the Committee shall be available in the Committee office for review by members of the Committee on the Budget.

Rule XII.—Travel of Members and Staff

(a) Approval.—Consistent with the primary expense resolution and such additional expense resolutions as may have been approved, the provisions of this rule shall govern travel of Committee members and staff. Before such authorization is sought.

(c) Intention Regarding Staff.—It is intended that the dates during which the travel is to be made and the days or dates of all members of the Committee staff shall be available to all members of the Committee.

Rule XIII.—Travel Members and Staff

(a) Approval.—Consistent with the primary expense resolution and such additional expense resolutions as may have been approved, the provisions of this rule shall govern travel of Committee members and staff. Before such authorization is sought.

(c) Intention Regarding Staff.—It is intended that the dates during which the travel is to be made and the days or dates of all members of the Committee staff shall be available to all members of the Committee.

Rule XIV.—Establishment of Subcommittees; Size and Party Ratios; Conference Committees

(a) Establishment.—There shall be 6 standing committees. These committees, with the following sizes (including delegates) and majority/minority ratios are:

Committee on Aviation (6 Members: 2 Majority and 4 Minority)
Committee on Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation (11 Members: 6 Majority and 5 Minority)
Committee on Economic Development, Public Buildings, and Emergency Management (11 Members: 6 Majority and 5 Minority)

(b) Ex Officio Members.—The Chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee shall serve as ex officio voting members on each subcommittee.

(c) Ratios.—On each subcommittee there shall be a ratio of majority party members to minority party members which shall be no less favorable to the majority party than the ratio for the full Committee.

(d) Conferences.—The Chairman of the Committee shall recommend to the Speaker as conferences the names of those members (1) of the majority party selected by the minority party members which shall be no less favorable to the majority party than the ratio for the Committee.

(e) Ratios.—On each subcommittee there shall be a ratio of majority party members to minority party members which shall be no less favorable to the majority party than the ratio for the Committee.
on all matters referred to it or under its jurisdiction. Subcommittee chairmen shall set dates for hearings and meetings of their respective subcommittees after consultation with the Chairman and other subcommittee chairmen with a view toward avoiding simultaneous scheduling of full Committee and subcommittee meetings or hearings whenever possible.

(b) Disclaimer.—All Committee or subcommittee reports printed pursuant to legislative study or investigation and not approved by a majority vote of the Committee or subcommittee, as appropriate, shall contain the following disclaimer on the cover of such report:

"This report has not been officially adopted by the Committee on (or pertinent subcommittee thereof) and may not therefore necessarily reflect the views of its members."

(c) Consideration of Concurrent Bills.—Each bill, resolution, or other matter favorably reported by a subcommittee shall automatically be placed upon the agenda of the Committee and of the subcommittee of proper jurisdiction within two weeks. All bills shall be referred to or initiated by the full Committee and referred to the subcommittee of proper jurisdiction. A subcommittee shall not be considered by the Committee unless it has been delivered to the offices of all members of the Committee at least five days before the meeting. The Chairman determines that the matter is of such urgency that it should be given early consideration. Where practicable, such matters shall be accompanied by a comparison with present law and a section-by-section analysis.

Rule XVI.—Referral of Legislation to Subcommittees

(a) General Requirement.—Except where the Chairman of the Committee determines, in consultation with the majority members of the Committee, that consideration is to be by the full Committee, each bill, resolution, or other matter which relates to a subject listed under the jurisdiction of any subcommittee established in Rule XIV shall be referred by the full Committee to that subcommittee. Each bill, resolution, or other matter favorably reported by a subcommittee shall be referred by the Chairman to all subcommittees of appropriate jurisdiction within two weeks. All bills shall be referred to or initiated by the full Committee and referred to the subcommittee of proper jurisdiction without regard to whether the author is or is not a member of the subcommittee.

(b) Recall from Subcommittee.—A bill, resolution, or other matter referred to a subcommittee in accordance with this rule may be recalled therefrom at any time by a majority vote of the members of the subcommittee voting, a quorum being present, for the Committee's direct consideration or for reference to another subcommittee.

(c) Multiple Referrals.—In carrying out this rule with respect to any matter, the Chairman may refer the matter simultaneously to two or more subcommittees for concurrent consideration or for consideration in sequence (subject to appropriate time limitations in the case of any subcommittee after the first), or divide the matter into two or more parts (reflecting different subject matter within the same subcommittee and jurisdictions) and refer each such part to a different subcommittee, or make such other provisions as he or she considers appropriate.

MENTAL HEALTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to encourage President Bush to move forward on his recent commitment to create a national mental health commission. In fact, I would recommend to the President that he move it immediately and ask the leadership of our institution to move the bill on suspension so the commission can begin its critical work.

As proposed, the commission part of a larger new freedom initiative would be charged with studying and making recommendations for mental illness treatment services and improving the coordination of Federal programs that serve individuals with mental illness. I have long supported the creation of such a National Commission on Mental Illness. When Russell Weston, Jr., a diagnosed paranoid schizophrenic, fatally shot two U.S. Capitol Police officers, Gibson and Chestnut, in July 1998 right outside this Chamber, a bipartisan group of Members called upon our leadership to create such a commission to investigate the serious national dimensions of mental illness, including the lack of access to proper treatment and the violence that can result. But our plea for a National Commission on interjurisdictional mental health advisory committee fell on deaf ears.

It is tragic that despite the high number of major profile cases like Russell Weston, Jr., John Hinckley, Jr., Theodore Kaczynski, and most recently, Robert Pickett, the man who fired his gun outside the White House just 2 weeks ago, that our mental health delivery system has largely been neglected.

Mr. Weston, for example, received Federal Social Security insurance benefits but was not expected to check in to assure that he was receiving his proper medication. Indeed, it is strangely disturbing that a technological society that is smart enough to land people on the moon cannot see what is staring us in the face right here on earth.

Today, the mentally ill face huge barriers to proper treatment. For many, help is simply too difficult to surmount. Many more fall victim to the gaping holes and lack of follow-up in our system. Since the deinstitutionalization of the mentally ill began decades ago, our Nation has spawned growing homelessness and neglect as well as violence. Now our local jails and Federal prisons become the primary domiciliaries for our Nation's mentally ill. It is sad. It is tragic. It is wrong.

It is now estimated that over a third of our Nation's homeless population are mentally ill, and a 1999 Department of Justice study that we commissioned here showed that even at the Federal prison level, nearly a fifth of those housed have a serious mental illness. And I know that in our local jails, it can be as high as two-thirds.

Dorothea Dix, the great social and political activist who worked on behalf of the mentally ill, precipitated major prison reform beginning in the 1840s, nearly two centuries ago, she would be horrified by our Nation's regression. It is wholly unacceptable that over 50 years later our prisons remain the primary home for our Nation's mentally ill.

The situation is urgent, and that is why I would forcefully urge our new President to act swiftly on his commitment to create this commission. He would have the support of this Member, and I know other Members in this Chamber who understand the dimensions of this problem.

The commission's establishment will be an important step toward what must be a greater role for the Federal Government in addressing this wide and growing crisis.

THANKING CONGRESS FOR HELPING THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA GET OUT OF THE HOLE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I come to the House to report periodically when significant events occur in the District of Columbia.

I know for new Members, the first impetus you might have is that it is not none of my business, Congresswoman. It really should not be, but it turns out to be because matters affecting the District of Columbia which, for every other district, would not be seen on this floor do come here.

Today's Washington Times has a headline of interest to the Members of the House, Control Board Prepares to Reinstate Local Fiscal Authority. This matter is of interest to the House, because the control board was formed pursuant to a statute passed by this House when the District of Columbia encountered fiscal problems in the mid-'90s. It encountered those problems, because it is the only city in the United States that had to bear State, city, and municipal functions.

I am pleased that this House offered some relief when it took over the most costly State functions, the rest of it was hard work from the District of Columbia, and, of course, the good economy.

The Times reports that on tomorrow, the control board will certify that the District has had its last of four clean audits, meaning that the control board period is over, and the control board itself will go out of existence on September the 30th. It is a phased-out mode.

The District has had nothing short of a spectacular turnaround. It had to dig itself out of the worst kind of fiscal crisis. Any city in the United States that had to pay for State functions would have been in that kind of crisis long ago. Philadelphia had a control board. New York had a control board. Cleveland had a control board long before the District did, and they have a State to back them up.

The District is an orphan city all by itself carrying those functions with the kind of diminishing tax base that every large city in the United States has. What the control board now finds is that the District has had 4 years of balanced budget with a surplus and a large reserve, and this has occurred 2 years ahead of time. At the same time, the District is in the throes of a complete overhaul of its city government, including every form of service delivery. We have surpassed the wildest expectations of this body.

The same page of the Washington Times reports, Hill Chairman To Keep Rider Out of D.C. Budget. This will be very good news to most Members of the House who have had to consider the D.C. appropriation year after year.

I appreciate that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT) who helped me get the smallest budget in the House weeks ago ahead of time. This should not have come here in the first place. This is the taxpayers' money raised by the District's taxpayers. This is a terrible anomaly that that the budget comes here.

The hard work that both sides of the aisle put in still makes the Congress look bad because it takes so long to get the matter out. The District of Columbia has shown that it is prepared to uphold this end of the bargain with balanced budgets, with surpluses.

We recognize that the work is not done. This is a city that has had to put itself together again like Humpty Dumpty. I appreciate very much what the Mayor of this city and the revitalized city council has done to make this happen. Nevertheless, this is a city without a state.

I will have not some revenue, but bills on the floor for Members, but rather some notions that allow the District to build back its own tax base. Among the payment solutions I will put forward will be a tax credit that will allow the District to pay for the services that commutes use. Eight out of 10 cars in the District of Columbia come from Maryland and Virginia and outside the District. They tear up our roads and leave a diminished tax base to pay for them.

They call our fire. They call our police. They use our water and do not leave anything here. A tax credit based on the services commutes use which cost commutes nothing is the way to approach this. My colleagues do not want the District to go back down the drain, even given all the streamlining and hard work it has done to pull itself out simply because, unlike your cities and counties, we have no State to back us up.

We are not out of the woods yet, but we are way out of the hole. I come to the floor this evening to thank the Congress for what they have done to help the District get out of the hole. I think that the Congress would want to thank Mayor Anthony Williams and would want to thank the counsel of the District of Columbia for pulling themselves up by their own bootstraps.

COURT RULING ON CLASS ACT LAWSUIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. SHOWS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, in a major legal development this past Thursday, a U.S. Court of Appeals ruled in favor of a lawsuit filed by the class act group of the military retirees.

In the case of Schissel versus the United States, the court found that there is, in fact, a broken promise between the United States Government and thousands of military retirees and their families.

This suit was filed on behalf of military retirees who were recruited into the service with a promise that lifetime health care would be provided to them if they served a career of at least 20 years.

The class act represents retirees who entered the service prior to June 7, 1956. That was the day Congress enacted the first military retiree health care plan, which we know it as Champus or TRICARE.

Enactment of those health care plans actually stripped away health care that had been promised to these recruits and which had been routinely delivered.

After June 7, 1956, statutes no longer obligated the government to provide health care to military retirees, but health care that is now provided at military bases on a space-available basis is out of reach for many retirees, due to base downsizing, and that is assuming that space is available which is not always the case.

Here are a few choice quotes from the appeals court decision. The retirees entered active duty in the Armed Forces and completed at least 20 years of service, on the good faith that the government would fulfill its promises.

When the Texas legislature passed Managed Care Reform in 1997, it included an external appeals provision allowing patients to appeal the decisions of their health care plans. These appeals are not brought through expensive and time-consuming litigation, but through quick reviews by State-certified independent review organizations called IROs.

IROs are made up of experienced physicians who have the capability and authority to resolve disputes for cases involving medical judgment. Their decisions are binding on both the patients and the plans.

These provisions have been successful, not only because they protect patients, but also because they protect the insurers. Plans that comply with the IRO’s decision cannot be held liable for punitive damages. So if a decision goes against the patient, that patient can still go to court. But we will talk about that later on the lack of litigation under the Texas laws since 1997.

This plan has worked real well. Since 1997, more than 1,000 patients and physicians have appealed the decisions of the HMOs. The independence of the process is demonstrated by the fairly even split in the decisions resulted. In 55 percent of the cases, the independent review organizations, the IRO, fully or partially reversed the decision of the HMO. So in 55 percent of the cases, they were found for the patient or the physician than the original decision.

Now, during the debate on HMO reform in Texas, there was concern that managed care reform would be very costly and would lead to a flood of unnecessary and expensive litigation. But that has not been the case in Texas. To my knowledge, less than five cases have been filed since patients’ protection became law in 1997. I believe that the external appeals process has been instrumental in the success of the Texas plan and has given patients what they really want, access to timely quality medical care while protecting insurers from costly litigation.

The process works so well that, despite the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that the external appeals were in violation of the ERISA, Aetna and other HMOs agreed to voluntarily submit disputes to the IROs for resolution.

Finally, Mr. Speaker. I would like to point out that these protections have not lead to dramatic premium increases as some of our naysayers said. In fact, in Texas, the premium increases have been consistent with, and in many cases, actually lower than premium increases in other States with substantially weaker patient protections.

Mr. Speaker, it is time for Congress to enact a Bipartisan Patient Protection Act. Our President is supporting it. Hopefully we will be able in the House and the Senate to put a plan together that will give patients the protections that they need. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting it.

Mr. Speaker, I include the article from the magazine “Texas Medicine” that I referenced earlier as follows:

(From Texas Medicine, Jan. 2001)

SECOND-GUESSING THE INSURERS INDEPENDENT REVIEW PROCESS APPEARS TO BE WORKING

(By Walt Borges)

Since late 1997, more than 1,000 Texas patients and physicians have challenged decisions of health maintenance organizations (HMOs), insurance companies, and third-party administrators (TPAs) to deny payments for treatments that the insurers deemed medically unnecessary or inappropriate. The challenges were not brought through expensive and time-consuming litigation, but through quick reviews conducted at no cost to patients and physicians by three state-certified entities known as independent review organizations (IROs). A Texas Medicine analysis of Texas Department of Insurance (TDI) statistics covering the first 2 years of the IRO system’s operation found that the IROs reversed insurers’ decisions in whole or in part in more than 57 percent of the 1,907 cases that were reviewed.

HMOs’ decisions were reversed or modified in 55 percent of the 535 reviews, while decisions by insurance companies and TPAs were overturned in 60.5 percent of 481 reviews. Eleven other reviews were for health care entities that did not have an identifiable status in the TDI databases. Even though the TDI databases can be analyzed to show how individual insurers fared in independent review, the findings offer limited insights into the quality of care and decision-making because of large variations in the number of reviews of each health care entity. Attempts to index the reversals to claims or covered lives failed because of variations in enrolment over the three-year period and because TDI does not track the number of policyholders for health insurance companies.

HOW IT WORKS

Texas was the first state with external review of medical necessity decisions. Thirty-seven new have a review process. Under Texas law, a patient may seek review by an IRO if a health insurer refuses to pay for treatment it considers to be medically unnecessary or inappropriate. Patients or their physicians also may request IRO reviews of denials of coverage are recommended but not yet performed. Doctors cannot authorize the release of the medical records needed for the review, however. Only the patient or a guardian may sign the release form.

In most cases, the health plan’s internal appeals process must be used before requesting an IRO appeal. Denial of treatment for of 515 of the HMO reviews resulted in full- and partial reversals, for a mixed reversal rate of 60.5 percent.

The overall reversal rates and those listed for individual companies say little about the overall quality of medical care or of individual decisions to deny treatments, IROs and insurers agree.

The relatively small number of external appeals, when compared with the millions of members and claims that go through the system, reaffirms that there is no large-scale problem with how plans apply their medical policy or how the internal mechanism for reviewing member appeals works,” said Dr. Clanton. “The principal conclusion is that the quality of care remains very high in HMOs. Only 515 appeals were filed, compared with millions of claims that were paid according to member contracts. Further, only half of the number appealed were reversed.”

The numbers “would probably not provide statistically significant conclusions,” Mr. Dunne said.

“It is important to note that IRO review is not a quality-of-care review,” Mr. Dunne wrote in a response to Texas Medicine’s questions. “The IRO is asked to determine if the care is medically necessary, medically appropriate for the setting of care, and/or timely (e.g., determining if other, less invasive clinical interventions should be exhausted prior to implementing the treatment plan that is being appealed).”

GODD COMPANIES AND BAD COMPANIES?

Texas Medicine’s review of the IRO appeals outcomes did not analyze how each of the Texas IROs handled the reviews of individual insurers, TPAs, and HMOs. But Ms. McGiffert suggested that annual trends sometimes show wide disparities in reversals from the 50-50 rate the insurers and regulators agree to cite.

TDI also puts some faith in the outcomes of reviews. “We monitor reversal rates along with the complaint statistics of individual companies,” said Mr. Brodersen. “On occasion, a high reversal rate has been one of the factors that led us to perform quality-of-care examinations on particular companies.”

But he also noted, “When you consider the huge number of medical necessity decisions that HMOs make each day, approximately 600 reversals over a three-year period suggests that, overall, the quality of care provided by HMOs is very good.”

Officials with Envoy, which receives one of every three referrals from TDI, say that a short-term analysis gives a different picture than a long-term statistical analysis.
Daniel Chin, managing director of Envoy, and his administrator, Ms. Block, say they were initially asked to review large numbers of physical medicine cases during the year-plus period they have conducted reviews.

"Then all of a sudden, it was all psychological treatment cases," said Mr. Chin.

"Now it seems we’re getting physical medicine cases again."

IRO CONSISTENCY

One analysis conducted by Texas Medicine was of the reversal rates of the IROs. (See "Reversal Rates of IROs," page 31.) TMP had a reversal rate of 33 percent when both full and partial reversals were taken into account. Envoy reversed 64 percent of the decisions, and Independent Review Inc. reversed partially or fully 70 percent of the insurers’ decisions.

Does this suggest that the IRO process is inconsistent? Not more than is expected when physicians exercise their independent judgment on clinical problems, say regulators and IRO officials.

"The IROs, by definition, are independent, said Mr. Bordenker. “However, each must do its review in conformity with TDH requirements. We monitor processes, not results, and at the present time we are satisfied that each IRO is doing its work in accordance with our rules.”

Mr. Dunne points out that the larger number of reviews conducted by TMP could account for the discrepancy in reversal rates.

Ms. McGiff says the discrepancy in reversal rates is not unexpected, as physicians will make judgments that differ. She says that "TMP, which tends to have a more clinical approach than the other two IROs, sometimes suggests other alternatives for treating conditions that led to denied claims, which is helpful to patients. TMP officials say they may mention more conservative treatment options in the clinical rationale they provide in upholding insurer decisions, but they do not suggest treatment alternatives.

Dr. Handel says TMP's approach is appreciated. "My sense is that the patient may be benefitting from their suggestions. A purely administrative type of appeal may not benefit the patient as much."

Ms. Block noted that Envoy uses doctors who exercise clinical judgment in their reviews, but they do not propose treatment alternatives because that is not the function of the review process.

Mr. Prudhomme says physicians who conduct the reviews for Independent Review Inc. are encouraged to refrain from suggesting alternatives, unless it is obvious from the records that another course of action would benefit the patient.

CENSUS DATA MUST BE ACCURATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to voice my concern regarding the story, which appeared in last Thursday's Wall Street Journal titled “Bush’s Next Recount Battle: Should Census Tally’s Be Adjusted”. The story relays President Bush’s assurances to House Republicans to put the “fix on the Census” by not including sampling figures in those numbers used to redraw Congressional District lines.

This nation has already gone through one trauma related to the lack of accuracy in counts and the struggle to include every American's vote in last year's election. Now, we are faced with inaccuracy in one of the few, Constitutionally mandated, functions of Federal Government the enumeration of our nation's residents.

Unfortunately the House Republicans re-reported the latest Street Journal that this issue has been settled without any discussion with the Democratic minority. The vast majority of undercounted residents in our nation are found in densely populated urban areas or vast tracts of sparsely populated rural communities.

This issue is larger than the drawing of lines for Congressional Districts, it effects how much federal dollars will go to those communities where the undercounted can be found. We know that children in poverty are among the hardest hit by an inaccurate census. In the 1990 census at least 532,769 and as many as 2,099,620 poor children were missed. In the City of Houston, according to the Census Monitoring Board, of the 128,602 children living in poverty about 8,906 were not counted.

The count of vital government resources such as education, health care, fire protection, and infrastructure.

Less fortunate residents of our nation cannot afford not to be counted. I ask that my Colleagues join me in demanding that sampling be part of the final Census figures for the year 2000.

URGING THE PRESIDENT TO COUNT THE NEEDIEST CITIZENS WHO WERE UNDERTOUNTED

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, the census figures are now out. As we feared, it looks as though the undercount is going to be 3 million or more people. It is 3 million of the most needy; 3 million who are home-less, helpless, hopeless, in many instances people who live in disadvantaged communities; people who live in rural America, in inner-city areas, in ghettos and barrios; people who need the resources of government the most; people who are sick, do not have access to health care; children who need day care; seniors who need Meals on Wheels or just a place to go, just a place to sit, place to be; people who need nursing homes, the most needy people in our country, Mr. Speaker, are those who are undercounted, those who need the resources of education, of health care.

So, Mr. Speaker, I urge President Bush to make use of adjusted figures; that is, to use statistical sampling as the basis for the allocation of resources based upon population needs in those various communities.

Now, I can understand the Supreme Court decision that said we are not going to use sampling for apportionment. So there is nothing political about what I am asking. There is nothing political about what I am urging. I urge the President to please take into consideration these points as he makes the decision about the use of adjusted numbers.

PUBLICATION OF THE RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES 107TH CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. STUMP) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. STUMP. Mr. Speaker, I am submitting the rules of the Committee on Armed Services for the 107th Congress as required by clause 2(a)(2) of rule XI.

RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES 107TH CONGRESS

RULES GOVERNING PROCEDURE

RULE 1. APPLICATION OF HOUSE RULES

(a) The Committee shall be authorized to meet, hold hearings, receive reports, and report to the Committee on all matters referred to it. Insofar as possible, meetings of the Committee and its subcommittees shall not conflict. A subcommittee chairman shall set meetings dates after consultation with the Chairman, the other subcommittee chairmen, and the ranking minority member of the subcommittee with a view toward avoiding simultaneous scheduling of committee and subcommittee meetings or hearings wherever possible.

RULE 2. FULL COMMITTEE MEETING DATES

Each committee is authorized to meet, hold hearings, receive reports, and report to the Committee on all matters referred to it. Insofar as possible, meetings of the Committee and its subcommittees shall not conflict. A subcommittee chairman shall set meetings dates after consultation with the Chairman, the other subcommittee chairmen, and the ranking minority member of the subcommittee with a view toward avoiding simultaneous scheduling of committee and subcommittee meetings or hearings wherever possible.

RULE 4. SUBCOMMITTEES

The Committee shall be organized to consist of five standing subcommittees with the following jurisdictions:

Subcommittee on Military Installations and Facilities:军事 construction; real estate acquisitions and disposals; military family housing and support; base closure and realignment; and related legislative oversight.

Subcommittee on Military Personnel: military forces and authorized strengths; integration of active and reserve components; military personnel policy, compensation and related legislative oversight.

Subcommittee on Military Procurement: the annual authorization for procurement of military weapons systems and components thereof, including full scale development and systems transition; military application of nuclear energy; and related legislative oversight.

Subcommittee on Military Readiness: the annual authorization for operation and maintenance; the readiness and preparedness requirements of the defense establishment; and related legislative oversight.

Subcommittee on Military and Developmental Research: the annual authorization for military research and development and related legislative oversight.
RULE 5. COMMITTEE PANELS

(a) The Chairman may designate a panel of the Committee consisting of members of the Committee to inquire into and take testimony on a matter that fall within the jurisdiction of more than one subcommittee and to report to the Committee.

(b) No panel so appointed shall continue in existence for more than six months. A panel so appointed and the expiration of six months, be reappointed by the Chairman.

(c) No panel so appointed shall have legislative jurisdiction.

RULE 6. REFERENCE AND CONSIDERATION OF LEGISLATION

(a) The Chairman shall refer legislation and other matters to the appropriate subcommittee or to the full Committee.

(b) Legislation shall be taken up for hearing only when called by the Chairman of the Committee or subcommittee, as appropriate, or by a majority of those present and voting.

(c) The Chairman, with the concurrence of a majority of a quorum of the Committee, shall have authority to discharge a subcommittee from consideration from any measure or matter referred to it and have such measure or matter considered by the Committee.

(d) Reports and recommendations of a subcommittee may not be considered by the Committee without the intervening period of three calendar days from the time the report is approved by the subcommittee and available to the members of the Committee, except by a majority vote of those present, to be waived by the Chairman.

RULE 7. PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT OF HEARINGS AND MEETINGS

Pursuant to clause 2(g)(3) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Chairman of the Committee or of any subcommittee or panel shall make public announcement of the time, place, and subject matter of any hearing or subcommittee meeting at least one week before the commencement of the hearing. However, if the Chairman of the Committee or of any subcommittee or panel so determines by majority vote, a quorum being present for the transaction of business, such chairman shall make public announcement at the earliest practicable date. Any announcement made under this rule shall be promptly published in the Daily Digest, promptly entered into the Committee Information Resources, and promptly posted to the internet web page maintained by the Committee.

RULE 8. BROADCASTING OF COMMITTEE HEARINGS AND MEETINGS

Clause 4 of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives shall apply to the Committee.

RULE 9. MEETINGS AND HEARINGS OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

(a) Each hearing and meeting for the trans- action of business, including the markup of legislation, conducted by the Committee or a subcommittee shall be open to the public except when the Committee or subcommittee, in open session and with a majority being present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing or meeting is in open session because of disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger the national security, would compromise law enforcement investigation, or would violate any law or rule of the House of Representatives. Notwith- standing the requirements of the preceding sentence, a majority of those present, there being in attendance no less than two members of the Committee or subcommittee, may vote to proceed to receive such testimony in open session, if by a majority vote of those present, there being in attendance no less than two members of the Committee or subcommittee, the Chairman, under subparagraph (a) of the preceding sentence, determines that such evidence may tend to defame, degrade or incriminate any person. A majority of those present, there being in attendance not less than two members of the Committee or subcommittee, may also vote to close the hearing or meeting for the sole purpose of discussing whether evidence or testimony to be received would tend to defame, degrade or incriminate any person. The Committee or subcommittee shall proceed to receive such testimony in open session only when authorized by a majority vote of those present, there being in attendance not less than two members of the Committee or subcommittee, the Chairman, under subparagraph (a) of the preceding sentence, determines that such evidence or testimony will not tend to defame, degrade or incriminate any person.

(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing, and with the approval of the Chairman, each member of the Committee may designate by letter the member or members of that member’s personal staff with Top Secret security clearance to attend hearings of the Committee, or that member’s subcommittee. If a member designates more than one member of that member’s personal staff with Top Secret security clearance to attend hearings of the Committee, or that member’s subcommittee, provisions of this paragraph shall be applicable to all such designees.

(c) The Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for any purpose to which a majority of the Committee or subcommittee being present, there being in attendance not less than two members of the Committee or subcommittee, may vote to proceed.

RULE 10. QUORUM

(a) For purposes of taking testimony and receiving evidence, two members shall constitute a quorum.

(b) One-third of the members of the Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for taking any action, with the following exceptions, in which case a majority of the Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum: (1) Reporting a measure or recommendation; (2) Closing committee or subcommittee meetings and hearings; (3) Issuance of subpoenas; and (4) Authorizing the use of executive session material.

(c) No measure or recommendation shall be reported to the House of Representatives unless a majority of the Committee is actually present.

RULE 11. THE FIVE-MINUTE RULE

(a) The time any one member may address the Committee or any other subcommittee on any measure or matter under consideration shall not exceed five minutes and then only when the member has been recognized by the Chairman or subcommittee chairman, as appropriate, except that this time limit may be exceeded by unanimous consent. Any member, upon request, shall be recognized for not to exceed five minutes to address the Committee or subcommittee on behalf of an amendment which the member has offered to any pending bill or resolution. The five minute limitation shall not apply to the Chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee or subcommittee.

(b) Members present at the beginning of a meeting of the Committee or subcommittee when a hearing is originally convened shall be recognized by the Chairman or subcommittee chairman, as appropriate, in order of seniority. Those members present subsequently shall be recognized in order of their arrival. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Chairman or the ranking minority member of the Committee or subcommittee, may also vote to close the hearing or meeting for the sole purpose of discussing whether evidence or testimony to be received would tend to defame, degrade or incriminate any person.

RULE 12. POWER TO SIT AND ACT: SUBPOENA POWER

(a) For the purpose of carrying out any of its duties and functions, the Committee and XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee and any subcommittee is authorized (subject to paragraph (b)(1) of this paragraph):

(1) to sit and act at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, and to hold hearings, and

(2) to require by subpoena, or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of any witness, and the production of any books, papers and documents, including, but not limited to, those in electronic form, as it considers necessary.

(b) (1) A subpoena may be authorized and issued by the Committee, or any subcommittee with the concurrence of the full Committee or a subcommittee, pursuant to the procedure designated in this rule for closing hearings to the public. The Committee or a subcommittee, through its Chairman or by a majority of its members voting by the same procedure, to meet in executive session for up to five additional consecutive days of hearings.

(b) (2) Pursuant to clause 2(m) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, compliance with any subpoena issued by the Committee or any subcommittee under subparagraph (a)(2) may be enforced only as authorized or directed by the House.

SECTION 8. STATEMENTS
(a) Any prepared statement to be presented by a witness to the Committee or a subcommittee shall be submitted to the Committee or subcommittee at least 48 hours in advance of presentation and shall be distributed to all members of the Committee or subcommittee at least 24 hours in advance of presentation. A copy of any such prepared statement shall be submitted to the Committee chairman or subcommittee chairman, as appropriate, no later than the time of his or her appearance. A written statement shall be made available in the Committee rooms to all members of the Committee or subcommittee at least 24 hours in advance of presentation; however, no such statement shall be removed from the Committee offices. The requirement of this rule may be waived by a majority vote of the Committee or subcommittee, a quorum being present.

(b) The Committee and each subcommittee shall require each witness who is to appear in public hearing to submit, by 5 p.m. on the business day before his or her appearance, a written statement of the proposed testimony and to limit the oral presentation to such appearance to a brief summary of his or her argument.

RULE 14. ADMINISTERING OATHS TO WITNESSES
(a) The Chairman, or any member designated by the Chairman, may administer oaths to any witness.

(b) Witnesses, when sworn, shall subscribe to the following oath: "Do you solemnly swear (or affirm) that the testimony you will give before this Committee (or subcommittee) in the matters now under consideration will be the truth, whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?"

RULE 15. QUESTIONING OF WITNESSES
(a) When a witness is before the Committee or a subcommittee, members of the Committee or subcommittee may put questions to the witness only when recognized by the Chairman or subcommittee chairman, as appropriate, for that purpose.

(b) Members of the Committee or subcommittee shall have not to exceed five minutes to interrogate each witness until such time as each member has had an opportunity to interrogate such witness; thereafter not to exceed one minute for questioning witnesses by members of the Chairman or subcommittee chairmen, as appropriate.

(c) Questions put to witnesses before the Committee or subcommittee shall be pertinent to the measure or matter that may be before the Committee or subcommittee for consideration.

RULE 16. PUBLICATION OF COMMITTEE HEARINGS AND MARKUPS
The transcripts of those hearings and markups conducted by the Committee or a subcommittee that are decided by the Chairman to be officially published will be published in verbatim form, with the material requested by the record inserted at that place requested, or at the end of the record, as appropriate. Any requests to correct any errors, other than those in transcription, or disputes regarding transcription, will be referred to the record, and the appropriate place where the change is requested will be footnoted.

RULE 17. VOTING AND ROLLCALLS
(a) Voting on a measure or matter shall be by record vote, division vote, voice vote, or unanimous consent.

(b) A record vote shall be ordered upon the request of one-fifth of those members present.

(c) No vote by any member of the Committee with respect to any measure or matter shall be cast by proxy.

(d) In the event of a vote by proxy, when a member is in the Committee, subcommittee, or conference committee meeting during that time, the necessary absence of that member shall be so noted in the record of votes cast with timely notification to the Chairman by that member.

RULE 18. COMMITTEE REPORTS
(a) If, at the time of approval of any measure or matter, any member of the Committee gives timely notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, additional or dissenting views, that member shall be entitled to not less than two calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays except when the House is in session on such days) in which to file such views, in writing and signed by that member, with the staff director of the Committee. All such views so filed by one or more members of the Committee shall be included within the report filed by the Committee with respect to that measure or matter.

(b) With respect to each record vote on a motion to report any measure or matter, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for and against, the names of those voting for and against, and a brief description of the question, shall be included in the committee report on the measure or matter.

RULE 19. POINTS OF ORDER
No point of order shall lie with respect to any measure reported by the Committee or any subcommittee on the ground that hearings on such measure were not conducted in accordance with the provisions of the rules of the Committee; except that a point of order on that ground may be made by any member of the Committee or subcommittee which reported the measure if, in the Committee or subcommittee, such point of order was (a) timely made and (b) improperly overruled or not properly considered.

RULE 20. PUBLIC INSPECTION OF COMMITTEE RECORDS
The result of each record vote in any meeting of the Committee shall be made available by the Committee for inspection by the public at all times that any member of the Committee is in session. The information so available for public inspection shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other proposition and the names of each member voting for and each member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition and the names of those members present but not voting.

RULE 21. PROTECTION OF NATIONAL SECURITY INFORMATION
(a) Except as provided in clause 2(g) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, all national security information bearing a classification of secret or higher which has been received by the Committee or a subcommittee shall be deemed to have been received in executive session and shall be given appropriate safekeeping.

(b) The Chairman of the Committee shall, with the approval of a majority of the Committee, establish such procedures as in his judgment may be necessary to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of any national security information received classified as secret or higher. Such procedures shall, however, ensure access to this information by any member of the Committee or any other Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner of the House of Representatives who has requested the opportunity to review such material.

RULE 22. COMMITTEE STAFFING
The staffing of the Committee, the standing committees, and any panel designated by the Chairman shall be subject to the rules of the House of Representatives.

RULE 23. COMMITTEE RECORDS
The records of the Committee at the National Archives and Records Administration shall be made available for public use in accordance with rule VII of the Rules of the House of Representatives. The Chairman shall notify the ranking minority member of any decision, pursuant to clause 3(b)(3) or clause 4(b) of rule VII, to withhold a record otherwise available, and the matter shall be presented to the Committee for a determination on the written request of any member of the Committee.

RULE 24. HEARING PROCEDURES
Clause 2(k) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives shall apply to the Committee.

NIGHTSIDE CHAT
The Speaker pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. McNinns) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. McNinnis. Mr. Speaker, I thought I would spend a little time this evening in another night-side chat. There are three areas I would like to address my colleagues about.

First of all, we have heard a lot of news in the last couple of weeks about the pardon that former President Clinton granted to an individual named Marc Rich, and I thought tonight I would take time to clarify that with my colleagues because it appears that this pardon will go down as the most egregious, most offending pardon in the history of this country. And in our study of American history have we seen a pardon that so flagrantly violated the principles of our Constitution and against which the citizens of this country expected a President to follow before he issued a pardon.

When I go through this, I think you will be appalled, be stunned by the amount of money that traded hands, by where that money went, for example to the Clinton library, about the coordination and the coincidence of that money going to the Clinton library and the money going to close Clinton friends, and all of a sudden what would be a usual pattern of oversight on a pardon by the Department of Justice and other agencies was avoided, and then one of the world’s most sought-after fugitives all of a sudden, after bilking the American taxpayers, after trading with the enemy during a war, and then bilking the American taxpayers of hundreds of million of dollars when you consider the penalties, now can walk free on American soil. He will have more freedom as a result of this pardon from Clinton, more freedom than one of our constituents who walks... into a Wal-Mart and steals a 50-cent candy bar.

As every day goes by, we find out that there is more and more under-the-surface threat of the Marc Rich pardon.

The second thing that I think is important to discuss this evening is the energy crisis in California. The State of California is very important to the economy of this Nation, but the State of California is going to have to stand up on its own two feet to help itself when it comes to this energy crisis. California is going to have to abandon the long-adopted concept in California “not in my backyard, let somebody else build it and let me have the benefits.”

I think we will have an interesting discussion this evening about the energy crisis in the State of California.

Finally, we will take a look at the economy. I had the opportunity and the privilege to listen to the Honorable Secretary of the Treasury. Over on the Senate side, Alan Greenspan spoke. Look, we have a lot of concerns about our economy; and every citizen in this country, every constituent of ours needs to worry about the future of this economic part of that economy is, number one, the Federal interest rate and how the Feds deal with it; number two, how the President deals with it; and number three, how the Congress deals with it.

Also, by now, for example, the rate by 1 percent last month. The President has stepped forward and said here is a tax cut proposal, and this evening I want to go into some of the details about that tax cut proposal because I think that is one arm of our strategy to keep this economy from collapsing on us. It is not near collapse right now, but it is headed toward a significant slow down. We have to be able to throw some water on this small fire before it becomes a bonfire. If it is left without attention, I assure you that fire will only grow.

I think that President Bush has extended a very well-thought-out plan that will work in a very efficient manner through the tax cut, which will first of all reduce the debt that this country has incurred over years and years of some, in great part, mismanagement, as my colleagues know.

But first of all let us go to the pardon of Marc Rich. I’ve been reading some of the articles about Marc Rich. I’ve been reading in the Wall Street Journal, speaking about Marc Rich, “This story,” speaking about Marc Rich, “This story will go down as an extraordinary feat in the annals of Washington lobbying, illustrating in a dramatic fashion how money begets access, access begets influence, and influence begets results.”

Marc Rich and his partner, Mr. Green, were fugitives from American justice. Marc Rich was, I think, the sixth most sought-after fugitive in the world. Marc Rich bilked the American taxpayer, the citizens of this country, the Federal, the State, and the local authorities, of hundreds of millions of dollars. It was Marc Rich when our American citizens were being held hostage in Iran, when we were trying to put a blockade around the country of Iran, when we were trying to go right to the heart of the economy of Iran to force them to release our hostages, i.e. stop the sale of oil with Iran, Marc Rich was trading with the enemy.

A U.S. citizen who subsequently re-nounced his U.S. citizenship, Marc Rich was trading with Iran while Iran was holding American hostages; and this is the man that Clinton has given a pardon to.

We are going to track about how that occurred. I think of some merit, I would like to read an article called “The Clinton Indulgences” from today’s “Washington Post,” Tuesday, February 13.

“The more that is learned about some of the pardons former President Clinton granted on his final day of office, particularly the pardon of financier Marc Rich, the more it appears that they constituted a major abuse of power. To be sure, that is true of the Rich pardon, if not facilitated, at least preceded by gifts of nearly a half a million dollars from Mr. Rich’s former wife to the Clinton Presidential Foundation and Library Fund. Ms. Rich was also a major campaign contributor, not just to the President but to the President’s wife in her Senatorial campaign.

The Rich pardon has been thoroughly denounced by almost everyone, except of course the lawyers who were paid by Mr. Rich to lobby for it. Leaving the article for a minute, that would be Mr. Quinn. Right down here, Mr. Quinn. So let me go through this again.

The Rich pardon has been thoroughly denounced by almost everyone except the lawyers who were paid by Mr. Rich to lobby for it. The public has a legitimate interest in determining the extent of the abuse. The question is how to conduct the necessary inquiry without, at the same time, weakening the prerogative if only by undercutting the public sense of its legitimacy. Mr. Clinton could solve the problem by being forthright in granting an explanation of granting the questionable pardon and a full list of contributors to his foundation; but he will not, or so far has not.

The issue is whether the public trust was violated. Enough valid questions should have been raised about some of those pardons to warrant a full accounting. Mr. Clinton should volunteer it and not force the country to extract from him. I ask my colleagues to follow with me a little this evening as we go through some of these points and they can make their own decision of how legitimate this looked; about what kind of prerogative was abused in the granting of the pardon. And keep in mind, as I said earlier in my comments, that Marc Rich will walk a freer man in the United States than will one of our constituents who might steal a 50 cent candy bar from Kmart or Wal-Mart.

Let us take a look at the pardon. Denise Rich. Who is Denise Rich? Denise Rich is a very, very wealthy individual in this country. She also happens to be the ex-wife of Marc Rich. Apparently, is on very, not too good terms with her ex-husband. In addition, Denise Rich has refused to testify in front of a congressional committee, invoking the fifth amendment against self-incrimination.

Denise Rich has given over $1 million in donations to the Democratic National Committee. I thought she gave $190,000 to the Clintons in gifts; but every day that goes by, this figure becomes more and more inaccurate. We know now, for example, that to the Clinton library this amount of money: $450,000 was given to the Clinton library by Denise Rich. We also know that Denise Rich said other friends who were solicited say Clinton fund-raisers pressed Denise Rich for a much greater amount, as much as $25 million for the library fund.

A source familiar said that it is at this point $650,000, although a lawyer, Carol Elder Bruce, told committee staff that Rich had contributed “enormous” amounts of money to the Arkansas foundation seeking to raise some $200 million to build the Clinton Presidential library.

In addition that, of course, on the gift registry, before the President’s wife became a Senator, there was $7,800 in furniture she bought for one of their homes, $7,000 for furniture for another home, and the public saxophone to the President.

If this goes back to that Wall Street statement, and let me read the Wall Street article again about this influence and money. Let me read the quote again. The story will go down as an extraordinary feat in the annals of Washington lobbying illustrating in a dramatic fashion how money begets access, access begets influence, and influence begets results. That is exactly what happens.

Do my colleagues think, as Bill Clinton now says when he made the statement, that politics did not play a part in this? Oh, yes; right. I am sure that that is a very solid statement, considering the fact that a request was made to Denise Rich to donate $25 million to the Clinton library; that in fact she gave $450,000; that in fact she wrote a personal letter to the President asking the President to pardon Mr. Rich; that in fact Mr. Rich is one of the most sought-after fugitives in the history of this country and, until recently, until he got the pardon, but prior to President Clinton’s acting, he was one of the most sought-after fugitives in the world.

How interesting that this is one of those pardons, one of those suspicious pardons that goes around. Supposedly it is supposed to go to the Justice Department, to the Securities Exchange, and to the other parties involved for an assessment of whether or not that pardon should be granted. For example, Milken. Milken, by the way, refused a request to make a donation to the Clinton Presidential library; and as a result, he refused to do that and the consequences may have been that he did not get a pardon.

We know for some odd reason in the last few hours that this pardon for Marc Rich has been made sort of like a monopoly through the customary channels; that it was handled in a highly unusual fashion. In fact, we have e-mails from one lawyer to another that says keep it secret; it would not be to our benefit to find out what we are asking from the President.

We also know that the lawyer representing Marc Rich is a close friend and confidant of then-President Clinton. We also know that the attorney received tens of thousands of dollars from Marc Rich to help Marc Rich get this pardon. We also know this attorney represented the President on other matters of the President.

So we put the combination together and see what we have. We have Denise Rich, who is lobbying very hard for the pardon for Marc Rich. She gives well over $1 million. We may find out more than that, much more than that, on the National Committee. She donates $450,000 that we know of so far, and we suspect there is a lot more. She was asked for $25 million. She helps furnish two Clinton homes; she provides other gifts for the Clintons.

Then we combine that with one of the Clintons’ close confidants, who previously represented Bill Clinton, who has been paid hundreds and hundreds of thousands of dollars to represent Marc Rich. On top of that, we combine some of the organizations overseas that Marc Rich contributed to, charities and so on, who then sent letters, lobbying letters, to the President to grant this pardon to this fugitive and I have reminded my colleagues of before and I remind them again because it really leaves a bitter taste on my tongue, traded with the enemy.

What does that all add up? Well, that all goes over to the Clintons. And look what happens. Here they go. In 65 counts they granted a pardon. Where is the fairness?

It was interesting to hear the Democrats talk about this pardon. Every Democrat in these House Chambers that I have heard speak about it, every Democrat I have heard on national talk shows speak about it deprecates what has occurred here. I am not saying they are wrong because I have not heard from all of my Democ- ratic colleagues; but the ones I have heard from and the talk shows I have seen, they all deplore this. There is no way that this can be justified.

What does this all spell? Well, that this sounds kind of fundamental. It is supposed to go to the Justice Department; it is supposed to go to the Justice Department; and I remind them again because it is supposed to go to the Justice Department; and I remind them again because it is supposed to go to the Justice Department.

How interesting that this is one of the most sought-after fugitives in the history of this country and, until recently, prior to President Clinton’s acting, he was one of the most sought-after fugitives in the world.

So let us start to put the combina- tion together and see what we have. We have Mr. Quinn, who was paid hundreds of thousands of dollars from Marc Rich to help Marc Rich get this pardon. We also know this attorney represented the President on other matters of the President.

And by the way, some of the best testimony that has come in this case from the former prosecutors, the U.S. attorneys who spoke the other day in front of the committee. One of the prosecuting attorneys, former U.S. Attorney, stated clearly that he voted twice for Bill Clinton as President. I wish my colleagues had heard that testimony. I felt that testimony was extraordinary. It was right on point.

He broke down in significant detail, detail that is far and above any kind of explanation I could give this evening from the House floor. He broke down in significant detail and rebutted every possible point made by this attorney, Mr. Quinn, who was paid hundreds of thousands of dollars.

This thing stinks. Now, that sounds like a strong word to use on the floor of the House of Representatives, but somebody needs to stand up on this floor, as I am doing right now and many of my colleagues have done in their own followings, and talk about just how wrong that is. This pardon should not have been granted.

Let us move on to the next issue. There are two other issues I want to address this evening. One of them, of course, is that the question of whether or not that statement. California, if it were a state in the United States about one-sixth of our economy. It is huge. I need to correct that statement. California, if it were a state in the United States about one-sixth of our economy. It is huge. I need to correct that statement.

So part of that is gross negligence on the part of the city of Denver. But this is to point out that this is not isolated to the ratepayers and the taxpayers in the State of California, this spreads across the Nation. It is to point out that this is the city of Denver.

Now, on the private marketplace, we have a seller and a buyer. Now, I know that this sounds kind of fundamental.
But as my colleagues walk through this with me, they will understand where I am going with this.

Now, the buyer over here knows exactly what they are looking for. The seller is trying to meet this demand. The seller wants to sell to the buyer at a mutually-agreed price. That price is negotiated. Every one of us goes through those transactions. We started out selling a piece of bubble gum when we were young. That is what we call a bargain, an agreement, a consent, an acceptance.

So we have got the seller and the buyer. Now, the seller tries to determine what it is he or she can provide to the buyer and at what cost. The buyer, of course, knows what they want.

Well, then we have the next transaction, which is the closure of the agreement. Let us call it consumption. On the consumption part of it, the money that comes from the consumption, the buyer gets the service of the product and the seller gets some type of compensation, generally cash.

Now, what does the seller do with the cash? That is very important. One, the seller has to do with the cash is it has to make a profit. If the seller cannot make a profit, the seller will not be in business and the buyer will not get what they need. It is to the seller’s interest to have the buyer in business as much as it is to the seller’s interest to have the buyer in business or in the marketplace.

So what happens is the seller has to have a profit. Now, what happens with the power? That is the system balances out. The seller has a cost to the product. So they have got the product, in this case, electricity. They have got the cost. The seller did not get the product, the electricity, free of charge. The seller had to either buy the electricity, free of charge, or generate the power. So it has a cost involved.

So, in order to pay for the power, the seller has to recover from the buyer at least that amount of money to cover cost. That is called “break even.” But if the seller wants to be able to continue to sell this power in the future, especially if the buyer demands more and more from the seller, then the seller has got to reinvest in its ability to produce what the buyer desires. And that is one of the important aspects of profit.

The seller also has to have willing investors in the seller, which means that there is some type of enticement to bring people in the marketplace to invest in the capital structure of the seller.

Well, this all begins to work well. And, by the way, and I heard this in California and said, hey, we have got something that defies the private marketplace. We have got something that never in the history of capitalism, never in the history of a free economy has it worked. But we in California have figured it out. We do not have to build any more power plants in our State, or we can make it so tough or miserable on them that nobody will want to build a power plant in California. We will go ahead and let the sellers in some of those power companies in California walk away or have some time to make a profit, we will let them sell the power producers, the generation facilities to out-of-state providers, and to the buyer we are going to give the sweetest deal of all. To our consumers of electricity in California, we are going to freeze the price. In fact, not only are we going to freeze the price just as an act of goodwill, we are going to reduce the price 10 percent.

That is exactly what the elected officials in California did. We will reduce the price 10 percent, buyer; and, guess what, use all of the money you want because in the future, the price that you are going to have to pay is frozen.

Well, what happened to it? Well, it led to a shipwreck. I will tell my colleagues what happened. The seller agreed, those power companies in California agreed because they made a lot of money on this transaction. The buyers agreed because they got a sweet deal. The consumers in California were persuaded by the politicians that, in effect, at some point they were going to get something for nothing, that they

Let us look at an example. Let us say we have a hamburger stand in our community and that hamburger stand sells a hamburger for 50 cents and the cost of the product is 5 cents. So the hamburger stand makes 45 cents. And then at the outside temperature being 40 degrees and finding out there are a lot more customers that want those hamburgers, so they raise the price to a dollar, then pretty soon they raise the price to $2. Then pretty soon they cannot buy a hamburger at this place for $5 and the seller is going to the cost for making a hamburger, everybody knows, is five cents.

What is going to happen in the private marketplace? They are going to compete. Somebody else is going to come in and say, wait a minute, Joe over there is selling his hamburgers for $5 apiece. He is taking advantage of the public. His profits are excessive. I can go in and sell a hamburger for $2 apiece and I still make a handsome product. I make enough money to reinvest into the capital that I have to make that hamburger, so I am going to go into competition. I am going to go into competition with Joe and I am going to lower the price from $5 to $2; and if he does not, I am going to force him out of business. That is the private marketplace working. That is not what happened in California.

What has happened in California, in my opinion, is their State-elected leaders, including State legislators and including the Governor of California, do not have enough gumption to stand up to the consumers in California and say a couple of things.

Number one, look, we cannot have it both ways. We cannot say anymore “not in my backyard,” but I want power to my house when I want electricity.

It was interesting, I read a Wall Street Journal article the other day that talked about Cisco Systems, Cisco Corporation. Many of my colleagues are investors or have constituents who own Cisco stock and know about how Cisco did not want to power a plant. Even though they are a large consumer of power, they did not want to power a plant and they objected to a power plant being built near their facility because it partially obstructed their view of the ocean.

Do they know what? Face reality. We need power and all of us take advantage of power. Tonight, here in Washington, here in California, the best temperature we can get in the Senate and the House is probably 70 degrees. But the temperature in those Chambers is probably 40 degrees. But the temperature in California, we are going to freeze the price of all. To our consumers of electricity in California, we are going to freeze the price. In fact, not only are we going to freeze the price just as an act of goodwill, we are going to reduce the price 10 percent.

That is exactly what the elected officials in California did. We will reduce the price 10 percent, buyer; and, guess what, use all of the money you want because in the future, the price that you are going to have to pay is frozen.

Well, what happened to it? Well, it led to a shipwreck. I will tell my colleagues what happened. The seller agreed, those power companies in California agreed because they made a lot of money on this transaction. The buyers agreed because they got a sweet deal. The consumers in California were persuaded by the politicians that, in effect, at some point they were going to get something for nothing, that they could use all the power they wanted, they could waste power regardless of what they did, power would always be sold with a cap on it, they could not raise the power.

Then they made a mistake. They brought in a new way of generation. They sold the generation facility to out-of-state producers and they expected these power generators to always come back to the State of California and say, California, because you are such a nice pal, we are going to go ahead and sell you electricity for just a little tiny bit more than what it cost us to produce it, not for what the marketplace would bring us, but for a little over what it could cost us to produce it.

Well, they did not want to play that game, these power generators. They were in the marketplace. In other words, what will the market bear? They charged what the market would bear.

California, in the meantime, goes on this binge of not allowing power plants in its State. I would love to have the opportunity to debate the Governor of the State of California, Mr. Governor, I plead upon you to stand up to the ratepayers of California and say, look, we got a problem here. We have got to bring more power plants on-line. And I think, by the way, the Governor is edging that way. But more important than that, you have got to be frank with your ratepayers. You have got to be straightforward and say to them, look, if we are going to have investment, we have got to have profit.

Now, I think instead what the answer of many elected officials in the State of California is going to be, let the Government take over. Let us let the Governor be the power supplier in California. Let us let the Government run this operation.

Take a look. Without exception, take a look at any point in history. What happens when we allow the Government to enter into the private marketplace and run business? Government cannot do it. Look at what we do with the Federal Government, my colleagues. Take a look at how inefficiently the Social Security system is run. Take a look at how inefficiently Medicare is run. I mean, we have huge inefficiencies.

Why? Why are the inefficiencies higher at the Government power generation plant than they are in the private marketplace? Because the Government does not have competition. In the private marketplace, efficiencies come as a result of the market because they have got competition.

Remember the hamburger guy I was talking about? That guy or gal decided to come in and he or she cannot sell those hamburgers for $5 for very long because they have got competition that will come in and sell it for $2.

I speak to some of my colleagues from California, do not let your constituents buy off on the proposition that they are going to be able to get power at a capped price. Do not let them buy off on the proposition that they are not going to have to pay for an increase.

Let me talk about what I think is the solution for the State of California and a big part of it. Number one, in California and across this country, we have got to conserve. And conservation really is pretty easy.

My wife and I, for example, in our home in Colorado, we live high in the Rocky Mountains, in our home, except for the area that we are working in, the area we are working in we leave at 70 or 72 degrees. The rest of the house is at 55 degrees.

In California, they have got to begin to conserve. They cannot conserve when they cap the price that the user is going to pay.

Let me give my colleagues an example. Colleagues, if any one of you ever rented a place from a landlord and the landlord agreed to pay all of the utilities, and by the way, that does not happen very often in the Government, what incentive would you have to shut off the air conditioning during the summer or reduce the heat during the winter if the landlord paid the bill regardless of the usage you had on the air-conditioning or the heat? There is no incentive to conserve.

California has got to take this price cap off.

California has got to say to the electrical users in its own State, and I know politically it is not popular to do, but it is going to take some courage and some guts to stand up to the consumers in California. And frankly I think a lot of consumers will agree with this. Look, we have got to put a price. The more you use or if you are going to waste it, there is going to be a price to pay. We cannot cap it at $55, especially when the place you hire, there is selling it at $1,000, and that is what happened at points during this energy crisis.

So conservation is issue number one. All of us can conserve energy. I feel an obligation to conserve it in Colorado. And for gosh sakes in California you need to be led by your State political leaders to conserve.

The second thing that you have got to do in California is you have got to build production facilities. You have got to provide for generation. The days of looking to your neighbors to the east and saying, well, put the power plants in Oregon or put the hydropower plants over in Arizona or let Colorado put the power generation plants in their State. We do not want power generation plants because it has an impact on the environment.

It does have an impact on the environment. You have got to balance that out. Having lights in here this evening, having 70 degrees on the House floor, it is not just an environment. We are using energy to provide this. But, California, you are going to have to carry a fair share of that. Or if you want to depend on out-of-State suppliers, then you are going to be subject to the price variations of the market. And if the market knows that you do not have the capability to provide your own power, the market will be very punishing to you. The market has its own checks and balances. You cannot defy through political movement the marketplace or the punishment of the marketplace for ignoring the basic concepts of supply and demand. It will not work. You have tried it and it has been a disaster.

You have hit a brick wall in California. The elected officials in California need to stand up and understand the private marketplace, stand up and conserve and take that price cap off so that you have got some kind of incentive to build generation. And for gosh sakes, I urge the electrical users in California, do not buy into this dream argument is the structure of. We of California can run an electrical system more efficiently than the private marketplace. Oh, temporarily it will be like that 10 percent discount you got when they first deregulated. They will not sound as sweet as sugar and honey. But down the road, you will pay the price because the government cannot operate an electrical facility with efficiency.

Let me move on very briefly about the next subject that I think is critical and we are going to hear a lot about and that is the tax plan from President Bush. I think it is very, very critical that we put in a tax cut.

I think our first priority, colleagues, has to be to reduce the debt. So the argument here on the Bush tax cut is not about reduction of the debt. I think most of my colleagues out here agree that we need to reduce the debt. The argument is the structure of. You have got to go about it. Now, frankly some of the people opposed to this, i.e., the left wing of the Democratic Party, the more liberal element, and I say this with due respect, the liberal philosophy appears to be to keep the money in the government. I will tell you any time you keep money within reach of these Chambers, it is in high danger of being spent or dedicated to a new spending program.

Do not kid yourself. Money sitting in Washington, D.C. is like setting a piece of pie in front of somebody that has not eaten for a long time. It is going to get eaten up very quickly. It is going to be committed.

We need to reduce that debt, put that money back in the pockets of the people that made it. That is exactly what President Bush is focusing on. That theory is a theory that has been proved time and time and time again. Give them the money now, reinvest because, remember, the government does not create capital. The government transfers capital. Those men and women out there, working away, they are the ones that create the stuff. It is up to you to reach into their pockets and transfer their hard-earned money to Washington, D.C.
Frankly as you know as a result of this surplus, you have had a lot more money than we need transferred out of a worker's pocket to Washington, D.C. You have got a lot of people that did not have to earn that money that have great ideas on how to spend your money. They will use it to influence Washington. This new program, this new program, more for this program.

President Bush has it right. We have got an economy that faces a heck of a challenge. We have got an economy that threatens millions and millions of jobs. We have got an economy that just in the last month we have seen tens and tens of thousands of people lose their jobs.

We have got to come up with a recovery plan. The recovery plan is not to keep that surplus in Washington, D.C. for more spending. That recovery plan is to get that money quickly back out to the people who earned it. Get that money back out to the people who made it. And let them create capital. And when you create capital, you create more taxable transactions. And when you create more taxable transactions, you reduce the Federal debt.

Today in the Committee on Ways and Means, I sat and listened to the Secretary of Treasury and heard a questioner imply that a tax cut was going to add to the national debt. A tax cut if appropriately put into place will reduce the national debt. Because you are putting money out and it creates capital out there in the free marketplace. I also heard out there today about how this is a rich man's tax cut. Let us take a look at some hard facts here very briefly. This is who pays Federal income taxes. By the way, as you can tell, this is my homemade chart, colleagues, so forgive me for it but I think you can get the basics of it.

All taxpayers, of course, pay 100 percent. All taxpayers pay 100 percent of the taxes. The top 1 percent of the taxpayers in the country pay 34 percent of the taxes. The top 5 percent pay 53 percent of the taxes. The top 10 percent of taxpayers in the country pay 65 percent of the taxes. Right down here, the top 50 percent, half of the taxpayers in this country, pay 95 percent of the taxes. The bottom 50 percent pay less than 4 percent of the taxes. I will go ahead and leave this up so you can take a look at it.

The bottom half pays less than 4 percent of the taxes. So if you are going to have an impact, if you are going to put dollars back out there, number one, the principle of a tax cut should go to people who pay taxes. Bush's plan is not a welfare plan. President Bush's plan is to go to the people who pay taxes, every taxpayer out there, regardless of their wealth and reduce marginal rates, get those dollars out here where they are going to work. Get those dollars out there in the community. Get them out where it is going to be reinvested under President Bush's income tax cut.

Under President Bush's income tax cut, there are several key issues. One in five tax-paying families with children will no longer pay any income tax at all. So out of every five families out there that are paying income taxes today, out of every five, they are paying. In 2005, two of them after this program will no longer have to pay those taxes. By the way, all five of them will have their taxes reduced. A family of four who make $35,000 a year will pay no Federal income taxes under this plan. So if the constituents out there, colleagues, who have a family of four, mom and dad, boy and girl, and they are making $35,000 a year, under President Bush's plan they will no longer pay Federal income taxes.

What do you think happens to that money, colleagues? They do not go take the money that they are no longer transferring to Washington, D.C. and bury it in the ground. They go out and use that money to save or they go put it up as a down payment or they go buy a washer or a dryer. That money begins to circulate in the environment that creates capital, that also creates taxable transactions, that also helps reduce the Federal debt.

Let me go on. A family of four making $50,000 a year, so if you have mom and dad and boy and girl, and they are making $50,000 a year, their taxes will be reduced by $4,500 with a 9 percent tax cut. A reduction of $1,600. And a family of four who makes $75,000 a year will receive a 25 percent tax cut.

On top of that, there are some other important issues that are being reduced and addressed by President Bush's tax plan. Let me start with one that hits me right in the heart and hits a lot of American families out there. And that is the elimination of the death tax.

Death should not be a taxable event in a country like the United States of America. Our forefathers never intended for a family to be taxed because of the tragedy of a death. What happened and where that tax was created was around the early 1900s as a tool to punish the Rockefellers and the Carnegies and so on and so forth, the Morgan Stanleys, those are the people they wanted to penalize, so it was put in purely as a penalty, as a punitive measure by the government, completely contrary to the philosophy of our government, that is, those who work hard should be able to save something for future generations.

What the Bush plan does is over an 8-year period of time, it eliminates that death tax. It actually goes out and says, wait a minute, the government is going the wrong way. What President Bush says the government should be doing is encouraging family business to go from one generation to the next generation.

President Bush says we should not have a government that discourages business and family farms and family ranches from going from one generation to the next generation. This should be a government that encourages it. This should be a government that goes out there and says death is not a taxable event. President Bush does not believe there should be a taxable event. This deserves the support of everybody in here.

Now, I hear some people say, well, all it does is support the wealthy. I am so sick of hearing that when you do something, if you go out there and you work hard and you save a few bucks, all of a sudden, some of my colleagues in here call you rich and for some reason despite the fact you worked for it, despite the fact you did something that brought that to you, you do not deserve it or somebody else who did not work quite as hard, who did not come up with a better mousetrap should have it from you. This tax plan is what a President who has proposed a tax cut.

I will tell you what else President Bush does in this tax plan. And finally, finally, we have got somebody that will talk about the death tax and say death is not a taxable event. Why we have got a President who incorporates within his tax cut plan an elimination, or a significant downsizing of the marriage penalty. Do you think that our forefathers ever imagined that this government would go to the point in time where it would tax a family for a marriage? Do you think that they thought that this government would go so far as to say, "We'll tax you when you get married, and we'll tax you when you die." That is where the hell that is.

Finally, we have got a President who is standing up to this and saying, look, every taxpayer deserves a tax cut. Death is not a taxable event. Marriage is not a taxable event. We have also got a President who has proposed a tax cut that is not aimed at business. This is not aimed at big business. This is aimed at individual taxpayers, regardless, every taxpayer in America, every taxpayer in America will benefit from this tax cut because of marginal rates. President Bush in his tax cut, he does not go out and pick a special, heavily lobbied organization or group or business to get the tax cut at the expense of every other taxpayer. He does not do that. President Bush goes out there and puts together a plan that benefits every taxpayer. That is what is beautiful about this tax plan. This country needs a significant tax cut.

If we do not do that, then it will not help reduce the national debt. It will not work. It will not help give a jump-start to that economy. By the way, the tax cut alone will not jump-start the economy. It takes a combination of strategies and so on and so forth. One of the strategies is you have a government that incorporates a tax cut alone will not jump-start the economy.
some significance. It has got to be large enough to have some kind of impact on the economy. That is what has to happen. You put those two strategies in there and you have got one other one you have got to think about, and that is our responsibility on this House floor.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker. I did want to indicate that I only plan to use about 20 minutes of the hour this evening, and then I would like to turn over the rest of the hour and yield to the gentleman, one of my colleagues from Ohio, who will be out here later, who is going to talk about Black History Month, I believe.

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to take to the floor, to the well, this evening, to talk about health care, and essentially to make a case that in this session of Congress we have an opportunity, hopefully on a bipartisan basis, to enact some health care reforms that will ensure more access to health insurance to more Americans, many of whom, about 40 million, do not have any kind of health insurance right now; and, secondly, that we enact a true HMO reform, along the lines of the Patients’ Bill of Rights, a bipartisan bill that passed the House of Representatives last session, unfortunately, to be vetoed. Now it is our job to try to reform HMOs. Third, I think that we should enact a Medicare prescription drug benefit for all Medicare beneficiaries.

I believe very strongly, Mr. Speaker, that these measures can pass in this Congress on a bipartisan basis. I have to say I was a little concerned, I did not plan to talk about tax cuts tonight, but when I heard my colleague on the other side of the aisle was talking about this, I became more concerned that if the tax cuts that are being proposed by the President become too large, so that the entire surplus, or most of the surplus that we now have, is used up, we not only face the potential of having a deficit situation again, with all the bad ramifications for its economy, but it would make it impossible for the types of things that I am talking about tonight, a Medicare prescription drug benefit, with all its cost savings, for many who do not have it, these types of things would be impossible to pass.

So I would ask my colleagues, when they look at these tax cuts, which all of us support tax cuts, and I certainly would like to see one passed, that it not be so large that it puts us back into a deficit situation or does not allow us to implement some of these needed health care reforms.

What I want to do, if I could, Mr. Speaker, is by saying that when I talk about expanding health insurance and access to health insurance, I think you know in previous Congresses we have worked, for example, to expand health insurance for children, the so-called CHIP program which not only allows children whose parents make more than would be eligible for Medicaid, and who mostly are working, are now allowed in their individual States to enroll in a Federal program so their kids are covered by health insurance. However, during the course of the last campaign it was quite clear that the Democrats felt very strongly and still feel strongly that the CHIP program needs to be expanded to include adults, the parents of those children who are in the CHIP program.

It was very interesting, because during his confirmation hearings the new HHS Secretary, Tommy Thompson, really said that he would like to see parents whose children are in the CHIP program be allowed to enroll in the program as well.

I mention that because I think even though this is a Republican plan, it is something obviously that is supported by the current Health and Human Services Secretary, who is a Republican. So, again, I hope that we see some of our Republicans coming along with this proposal. The other thing the Democrats have been championing for some time is the idea that people between the ages of 55 and 65 who are not eligible for Medicare now be able to buy into Medicare, the so-called “near-elderly.” I would like to see, Mr. Speaker, that if you were able to enroll all the kids that are now eligible for CHIP, and then expand the CHIP program to include all the parents whose children are in CHIP, and then expand Medicare so that the near-elderly, 55 to 65, could sign up, we would go a long way towards solving the problem of those 40 million Americans who work but who have no health insurance. I would like to see that done on a bipartisan basis.

Let me also mention the Patients’ Bill of Rights, the HMO reform. It is abundantly clear to me that in the last Congress, even though the Patients’ Bill of Rights was a Democratic initiative, the HMO reform, we had a number of Republicans who came forward and voted for it here in the House; and we had some very prominent Republicans who took the lead on it, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSKE) and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD), who were the real champions.

Why can we not pass that bill? We should be able to in this Congress. I know that most of the Republicans did not vote for it in the last Congress in the House, but there is no reason why we cannot do it.

President Bush comes from the State of Texas. Texas has a Patients’ Bill of Rights, or an HMO reform, very similar to the Democratic Patients’ Bill of Rights proposal. Let us see what we can do to get it passed on a bipartisan basis.

Finally, let me talk about the prescription drug benefit. I know when I go home and talk to my constituents, the seniors in my district, the biggest concern they have is the fact that Medicare does not cover prescription drugs, and many of them cannot sign up for Medigap programs or cannot get into an HMO where prescription drugs are covered, or may have been in such an HMO and had their coverage dropped as of January 1 of this year.

So we need to enact a prescription drug program under Medicare. Everyone in Medicare should be eligible for prescription drug coverage, regardless of income, regardless of age, regardless of disability.

I wanted to talk if I can tonight, again I said I want to limit the amount of time that I took, because I want to yield the company of my colleagues, but just want to develop a little more what the Democrats have been saying with regard to HMO reform and the Medicare prescription drug benefit.

What the Democrats have been saying is there is a strong enforceable Patients’ Bill of Rights. This strong legislation with regard to HMO reform should include protections for all Americans and in all health plans. It should assure access to all emergency room care when and where the need arises. It should guarantee access to specialists when patients need it. It should guarantee access to a fair and timely internal and independent external appeals process, so patients can address disagreements with their health plans. It should have meaningful enforcement for patients who have been harmed as a result of health plan decisions. It should assure access to clinical trials and assure patients can keep their health plans.

If I could summarize what the Democrats have been saying about HMO reform and the Patients’ Bill of Rights, basically we are saying we want medical decisions no longer made by the insurance company, but the actual decisions made by the patients and their physicians. We want to switch it so that now those medical decisions are made by the patients and their physicians. And we want it that if the health care plan, if the insurance company, denies you care, that you have a right, either internally or through some arbitration, to review and to appeal that decision and have it reviewed by somebody who is not part of the insurance company.

Finally, that you have the right to sue if all else fails. This is the basic test of what we think is important for HMO reform.

Now, I have to say I was a little disappointed, because many of us, both Democrat and Republican, both House and Senate Members, most prominently Senator McCaIN as a Republican, Senator Ted Kennedy a Democratic, leaders on health care issues, just a week ago we had a press conference, I was there along with some House Republicans, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell), the lead sponsor among the Democrats in the House in the last session, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Ganske), one of the lead sponsors on the Republican side in the House, and we put forward a new Patients’ Bill of Rights that is very similar to what was on the law in Texas, is on the law now, was there when President Bush was the governor, and very similar to the Patients’ Bill of Rights that passed the House last session. It actually is a little further to the left because some of us would have liked by limiting punitive damages that patients can recover.

That was introduced last week on a bipartisan basis; and we were hopeful that President Bush, who talked about what existed in Texas during his campaign and how good it was, would go along with it. But, unfortunately, very quickly President Bush, in a letter to the President’s spokesman saying that this new bill, very similar to Texas law, very similar to the Patients’ Bill of Rights in the last Congress, was not acceptable. In fact, I had a quote here from a letter that was sent, that the President wrote to the Senate Majority leader, and he said he does not believe any bill currently before the Congress meets his principles.

So, again, I do not know what kind of games the President is playing. It seems to me that he should get on board this bill, with so many Republican Senators, so many Republicans in the House, on a bipartisan basis, and support it, because we need HMO reform and we need it now.

I am going to have to speak out every night or as often as I can here on this issue, because I think it is important and should pass and it should pass.

Let me just talk a little bit, for about 5 minutes, about the Medicare prescription drug benefit. The Democrats have certain principles, and I am just going to go through them very quickly.

We are saying the Medicare prescription drug benefit should be accessible and affordable to beneficiaries. Everybody in Medicare should be eligible for it, not just low-income people, not just certain people, everyone. It should be affordable to beneficiaries, it should be competitive and have efficient administration, because we do not want any waste, and it should provide high-quality and needed medications.

Let me develop those a little more. When we talk about accessible and voluntary, we say it should be an option for all beneficiaries, not limited to low-income beneficiaries, and provide an option to those with few or no choices.

It should be also available, whether or not you are in a traditional fee-for-service Medicare or you are in an HMO. Managed care. It should not matter. You are still eligible for the prescription drug benefit. It should ensure adequate access to pharmacists.

Just as an idea, just to give you a little more detail about what we propose, who is going to get the drug plan, we don’t know exactly how to pass it in the last Congress, we are talking about $26 per month in the first year that covers 50 percent of total premium costs, no lower premiums for low-income beneficiaries. I mean, if you are below a certain income, you would not pay any premium, is what we are saying. And there would be privately negotiated discounts gained by pooling beneficiaries’ purchasing power, so we can keep the costs down.

I am not going to get into all the details, because I just wanted to give you an idea of what the Democrats have been proposing and why it is so different, unfortunately, from what President Bush proposed just a few weeks ago.

This disturbs me a great deal, because during the course of the campaign, President Bush said, gave the impression, I thought, that he wanted a universal Medicare prescription drug benefit that everyone would be eligible for and all Medicare beneficiaries would have access to. But he is not proposing that.

If I was, I guess, on January 31, just a few weeks ago, he unveiled his prescription medicine proposal called Immediate Helping Hand. It establishes block grants for States to provide prescription coverage for some low-income seniors and some seniors with catastrophic drug costs.

His plan limits the prescription coverage to Medicare beneficiaries with incomes up to 35 percent above the poverty level; in other words, $11,600 for individuals, $15,700 for couples, and seniors with out-of-pocket prescription spending of over $6,000 per year. That is catastrophic coverage.

What does this mean? Most Medicare beneficiaries will not be able to get this prescription drug plan. It is not universal. I think that is a terrible thing because I think I can use my own home State as an example, in New Jersey if one is below these guidelines that the President has proposed, they automatically get what we call a FAAD program financed with catastrophic fund, which pays about $5 for prescription drugs. It is the people above that are the hurting, middle-income people that have no access to a prescription drug plan, in most cases.

Just to give an example about how few people the Bush plan would cover, for example, a widow with $16,000 in annual income and $5,000 in annual drug spending would be eligible for no help at all, because she is below the income line, but she is not getting to that $6,000 catastrophic coverage for the rest of the year.

Also, administering through the States, through block grants, it is not going to work. A lot of the States are not going to do it. The National Governors Association actually opposes it. Already some of the Senators have opposed the Bush plan. Senator Grassley, the chairman of the Finance Committee, who is going to get so much input on this, he called the proposal dead before its arrival. I say, good, I think it should be dead before its arrival, because I think the bottom line is that we have to come up with a prescription drug plan into Medicare that covers all Medicare beneficiaries and is not just limited to low-income individuals, and that is not basically run by the States but run like Medicare, just like the Medicare program, throughout. That is what we need.

Another, we are going to be here on a regular basis, the Democrats, talking about why this is necessary, not because we want to be partisan, because I do not think there is anything partisan about Medicare prescription drugs or HMO reform or coverage for more people who do not have health insurance.

The bottom line is, the Democrats believe in protections for people. We know some of the Republicans will come along with us, but we need to have more come along with us, and we need the support of President Bush if we are ever going to get anywhere with this.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), one of the co-chairs of our Health Care Task Force, who has been outspoken on this issue and many others.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey for yielding to me, and I appreciate his leadership ever since he has been in the Congress on these issues, and everything that he has done.

As most people know, last year’s Presidential race was the closest in history. The Senate is evenly divided, the House is very closely divided. I do not believe that the close elections give a mandate to gridlock. The American people expect us to get something done, and they should.

Health issues are certainly among the most hotly debated issues in the campaign. Both sides promised to advance a Patients’ Bill of Rights legislation that will ensure that every American with private health insurance has basic guaranteed protection.

While some HMOs behave responsibly, the legislation is desperately needed to protect the vulnerable from insurance bureaucrats who place profits above all else. I encourage President Bush to come to the table and work with us to ensure a meaningful legislative package is enacted this year. For the sake of thousands of patients who are inappropriately denied health care daily, time is of the essence.

I want to also speak just a minute about prescription drugs. No single issue places a greater toll on our senior citizens than the outrageously high prices that pharmaceutical companies charge for prescription medicine. It is absolutely time that we do something about it. Drug spending over recent years has been climbing steadily at 15 to 20 percent a year. According to a study released last year by Families U.S.A., from January of 1994 to January 2000, the prices of prescription drugs most frequently used by older Americans rose an average of 30.5 percent. This increase was twice the rate of inflation.

In order to meet the needs of America’s seniors, Congress should take immediate action to create a Medicare drug benefit and reform the pharmaceutical marketplace to be sure that it is fair to all Americans and all people.

It only makes sense that the government use its purchasing power of 40 million Americans on Medicare to win prescription drug discounts and not break the bank in creating a prescription drug benefit under Medicare.

I am encouraged that President Bush sent a prescription drug plan to Congress last week. However, I am disappointed that after an election in which the prescription drug issue was front and center, that the White House chose to unveil it in such a low-profile manner.

I agree with the concerns raised by members of both parties that instead of putting an emphasis on block grants to States that only attempt to help low-income seniors, a much more comprehensive approach should be taken that gives all seniors the opportunity to receive a prescription drug benefit under Medicare.

I look forward to working with members of both parties and the new administration to get the legislation into seeing that meaningful HMO reform and Medicare prescription drug benefit is enacted in time to help all Americans who desperately need that help today.

I have been in this people’s House now for a little over 4 years. We had these same problems when I came here. It is very distressing to think that we yet allow this to go on when it is a very simple thing to stop it and to help our seniors, and to be sure that people do not get mistreated by insurance companies that are willing to put their health and safety second behind profits.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for coming down here and joining me, as he has on so many other occasions.

Quickly, the gentleman is absolutely right, we have been talking about this for 4 years. I think we were very hopeful during the campaign when we heard President Bush then talk about these issues, the HMO reform, prescription drug benefit, that we were going to see quick action on it. Even in the beginning of the Congress, at the time of his inauguration a month ago, it seemed like this was going to be a priority.

We have heard very little about it. We have heard about the tax cuts, about defense spending, we have heard about a lot of other issues. When he unveiled his prescription drug benefit, it was almost like it was not even important. I just hope that that turns around, but we are certainly going to make sure that turns around. I thank the gentleman.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CULBERSON). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) is recognized for 40 minutes, the remainder of the time, as the designee of the minority leader.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE). He has stood up on this issue. Last year was my first term in the U.S. Congress, and there was not a greater voice on the issue of health care than that of the gentleman from New Jersey.

I appreciate the gentleman yielding the balance of this hour as we celebrate Black History Month this year, and I thank the gentleman, who should let me know when he needs a speaker and I will be there for him.

Mr. Speaker, Black History Month is an excellent time for reflection, assessment, and planning. A full understanding of our history is a necessary and crucial part of comprehending our present circumstances as we chart our futures. An understanding of our history helps illuminate and inform the present discussions concerning voter rights, particularly the travesty we recently witnessed in Florida, a social, political, and legal catastrophe, ultimately sanctioned by the United States Supreme Court.

At this time, the subject matter of our special order is black history. We are going to be talking about voting rights, and historically, the disenfranchisement that occurred through the years.

It gives me great pleasure to yield to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON), the chairwoman of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio for yielding to me. I also thank her for her leadership in bringing this series of speakers tonight here on Black History Month.

Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to open the Congressional Black Caucus’ annual Black History Month special order. This is the year that we will focus on a very important area for every black American; that is, voting rights and election reform.

We do this in the spirit of Sankofa. In Africa, Sankofa is more of a philosophy than a single word. It means that we turn from the past, work in the present, and prepare for the future. So in the first year of this new millennium, it is fitting that we honor African-American heroes and heroines, on whose broad shoulders we stand.

Mr. Speaker, we must mention those who paved the way to freedom in thought and deed, such as W.E.B. DuBois, Harriet Tubman, Booker T. Washington, Mary McLeod Bethune, Sojourner Truth, Malcolm X. As Members of Congress, we must also take note of those who led the political realm, such as Dr. Martin Luther King, Junior, Ralph Bunche, Barbara Jordan, Fannie Lou Hamer, Adam Clayton Powell, Marcus Garvey, Shirley Chisholm, I could go on.

These African-Americans and countess others whom I have not mentioned by name are the reason that I am standing here today in the well of the United States House of Representatives as chairperson of the Congressional Black Caucus. They paved the way for me and for many of my colleagues in Congress.

However, when I look at the past, we cannot forget essential elements of political representation and the right to vote. African-American men were first granted the right to vote as a result of the 15th amendment to the Constitution. That post-Civil War amendment to the Constitution guaranteed that newly-freed slaves would not be denied the franchise simply because they had been held captive.

As a result of the 15th amendment and the use of Federal troops in the formerly Confederate States, black people were able to enjoy the fruits of liberty. They were able to vote, and their votes were counted.

Between 1870 and 1900, there were 22 African-Americans who served in the U.S. Congress, and countless more served in State and local governments. However, this era of reconstruction began to fade away, and in State after State the right to vote and to participate in democracy was whittled away by oppressive means such as the poll tax, the grandfather clause, and the literacy test. The right to participate was brutally wrenched away by the intimidation of the night-riding Ku Klux Klan and the questionable imprisonment of large numbers of black men on trumped-up vagrancy and other minor charges.

We have to recall this history and be mindful, because we do not want to repeat it. But for most black Americans, the right to vote was a withdrawn promise, a stain on America's soul, a blot on American democracy.

By 1900, segregation was firmly established. Jim Crow was the law of the land, and terrorism and lynching ruled the South. Between 1929 and 1965, only eight black Members were elected to Congress. It was the passage of the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1965 to begin to restore African-Americans to the right to participate in representative government that every other racial and ethnic group in this country had freely enjoyed.

This was under a Texas President. The President was Lyndon Baines Johnson. We stand here today with another Texan as President, and I know that he can do no less.

Today, the Congressional Black Caucus has 37 strong, dynamic, informed, and committed leaders. But here we stand, almost 40 years after the landmark 1965 legislation, and again are confronted with the question of whether African-Americans will be allowed to vote and whether their votes will count. In the words of the great Santayana, “Those who do not remember the past are condemned to repeat it.”

We have read the past. We remember many of the past. All of us that are here remember the march from Selma to Montgomery. And Mr. Speaker, for all of these reasons, I believe it is imperative that the first thing we address in the 107th Congress is election reform.

As far as I am concerned, the entire integrity of our democracy is at stake for voting, and having one’s vote counted is the very crux of any democracy. And our reputation and standing in the world is on the line. The world is watching to see if America, the matriarch of democracy, will right the wrongs of the election system which was so badly exposed in the last Presidential election, not just in Florida, but many other States around the country, including my home State of Texas.

Mr. Speaker, last week, at the Democratic Caucus retreat in Pennsylvania, we were visited by our President, and when I was able to ask him a question, I asked him to support comprehensive election reform for this fiscal year 2002. In his budget he supported it partially.

Election reform must be a part of the national discussion now, and we must solve the inadequacy of our system in time for the 2002 election cycle. But in order to do that, we would like to pass election reform legislation, not later than the 4th of July of this year. That is the anniversary of the United States claim of independence from the British system which refused to allow American colonists representation.

We do not want any American to be refused representation by the enact legislation by this date, State and local officials should have sufficient time to implement uniformity of our election system that it so critically needs. However, they must also be given adequate resources and incentives to ensure the blessings of liberty for all Americans.

Now, our critics may say why is the Congressional Black Caucus talking about election reform? Why are they not talking about education reform, tax policy, the budget, maintaining a strong national defense, health care reform, fighting the scourge of AIDS in the U.S., and in Africa where this dreaded disease is killing entire villages and societies, to them I say we will address these issues, and the Congressional Black Caucus plans to be at the forefront of all of these issues and many others.

But we strongly believe that our liberty and our democracy will not be free until we fix our election system such that the public and the world must have faith that in any election held in the United States, that the true winner wins, then the confidence that the world has in our great democracy will be damaged beyond repair. If we do not do it, our reputation will be damaged beyond repair.

We cannot allow this to happen. I must tell you, Mr. Speaker, the world is watching. And as a result, the rest of the world has not raised the question about this election.

So it is over, and it has been decided by the Supreme Court, but we cannot move on. And so in this month of black history, as we reflect and as we celebrate our history and think about our African American mothers, fathers, ministers, teachers, officers, firemen, nurses, doctors, lawyers, painters, maid, maintenance people and any other community worker, I say to them that your vote is as important as a vote of the Supreme Court, for it is us who must elect a President, and we cannot do it until we are assured that our election system is not one that is watching. And as I have visited outside this country since that election, the question has been posed, would not the American people go to the UN and ask for election to be overturned if they did not feel that it was a fair election?

Mr. Speaker, in 1901, the last black to leave Congress as a result of the Jim Crow laws was George Henry White from North Carolina, who stood up on this floor and decried the Jim Crow system. He said, “You have excluded us. You have taken away the right to vote, and so I am the last one to leave.”

This, Mr. Speaker, is perhaps the Negro’s temporary farewell to the American Congress. But let me say, Phoenix-like, he will rise up some day and come again. These parting words are on behalf of an outraged heart-broken, bruised and bleeding, but God-fearing people, fateful, industrious, loyal people, rising people, full of potential force.

The Congressional Black Caucus, 37 strong, are the Phoenix that have risen up, just as George Henry White said back in 1901.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. Jones) for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my illustrious sister and colleague who has given us a chance to help America understand what Black History is all about and what it means to all of us and to my colleagues.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have this opportunity to stand with my colleagues tonight to celebrate, educate and share the rich culture and accomplishments of African Americans. God has been good to us. The 37 Members of us who have been able to now reach the pinnacle of success in the United States Congress. To date, we not only celebrate African American history month, but American history as well.
Mr. Speaker, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from the great State of New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE).

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentlewoman from the great State of Ohio for conducting this annual black history hearing. Congresswoman Stokes did it so many years, and she has certainly filled in the gap.

Mr. Speaker, as we celebrate Black History Month, I must join my colleagues in reaffirming our strong commitment to voting rights and our determination to ensure fairness in the electoral process. Of course I was active during the civil rights struggle of the 1950s and 1960s, when I watched the blood spill in the South and Selma and other places and welcomed Dr. Martin Luther King to my hometown of Newark. I am keenly aware that many people gave their lives so that future generations could freely exercise their right to vote: Medger Evers, Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, and others.

During the Presidential election dispute in Florida, we heard many reports of voter intimidation and irregularities in the voting process in predominantly African-American precincts. Fortunately, this is not new and it is not confined to Florida or the South in general.

In my home State of New Jersey, during the recent Senatorial election, where voters began receiving phone calls in the middle of the night between midnight and 4 a.m. on election morning telling them that African Americans were urging them to vote and to vote Democratic. Of course the process was to anger voters, waking people up in the middle of the night, as a way of disrupting the flow.

In New Jersey, Republicans actually have to seek preclearance from the Department of Justice under a consent decree before they can hold elections outside of the ordinary because of past widespread election abuses. Their voter intimidation tactics have included hiring off-duty police officers as so-called “ballot security” police; videotaping of voters at African-American polling places; the posting of threatening signs warning that potential voters could be arrested and sent to jail.

There was a high profile incident in New Jersey which gained national attention when a top campaign official in the gubernatorial race bragged about paying African-American ministers to keep minority voters from the polls, at all lies.
As members of the Black Caucus, we are here to say that we will stand up for the right to vote guaranteed by the Constitution and reinforced by the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

At the top of our agenda for this Congress was having a thorough review of voting problems and an investigation into the disenfranchisement of thousands of voters. Combating voting abuses and ensuring fairer elections in the future is the best way for us to honor the memory of those heroes that I mentioned before.

It is ironic. In 1981, we had an election for governor that was only a few thousand votes out of the 3 or 4 million votes cast in New Jersey; decided the outcome. At that time, it was this ballot security group that came out and intimidated voters and so forth.

In Florida, we heard the Supreme Court decide the future of this country by stopping the vote and freezing the election to the now-President George Bush. The Supreme Court used the 14th Amendment involving the equal protection under the law, an amendment stating that you cannot have different standards in different counties or looking at votes. But it is very ironic that the 14th Amendment came about after the Dred Scott case where Judge Taney said that Dred Scott, who was a slave and was taken from his slave State to a free State, that the owner could not continue to have him as a slave, but Judge Taney said, yes, blacks have no rights that white men have to observe.

The 14th Amendment was passed in the middle 1860s to say that there is equal protection under the law and therefore the Dred Scott decision was overturned by the 14th Amendment. It is ironic: Florida the 14th Amendment is to ensure that every American, has the right to vote guaranteed by the 14th Amendment, an amendment that has been made, there is no question that the 14th Amendment of African Americans to this country is so immense and so extraordinary it cannot be recorded in its entirety anywhere in the pages of American history. It is just that vast. But when we think of the manner in which African Americans went to the ballot box, we do not think of slaves. We think of someone who had no freedom. We think of someone who was physically restrained and in many cases physically incarcerated.

But the loss of freedom is not just being physically restrained or physically incarcerated.

When a person mentally sets up a defense because of rejection or because he is treated differently, that also is the form of slavery.

When a person is denied the right to vote, when a person’s vote is not counted, that also is a loss of freedom. It is a shame and an unpardonable sin that in the year 2001 African Americans still do not have rights and freedoms that all other Americans enjoy because of the views of this country and its majority.

In the past election, African Americans were encouraged to vote. Every manner and every medium of communication were used to get them to vote, to get them to the polls. And all the while we were making those plans, there were those who were making plans to minimize that effort. We were talking of ways of getting people to the polls and poll tax, “white primaries,” and other schemes. Southern States did all in their power to continue to subjugate their former slaves. Only when the Federal Government stepped in and sent Federal troops into the South were blacks able to vote.

Nevertheless white Southerners continued their efforts to recapture political control of State governments. Recognizing the vote as the great equalizer, they immediately set about undermining the 15th Amendment. In “From Freedom to Slavery,” noted historian John Hope Franklin cataloged a number of tactics used during that period that are disturbingly similar to some of the things that we saw in Florida: “Elaborate election schemes, complicated balloting processes, and highly centralized election codes were all statutory techniques by

So when we look at all of the great things that African Americans have done for this country, all of the great things that have been done to build this country to where it is now, we must recognize that in that greatness is the right of freedom, the right of freedom, and the right of citizenship. So as we celebrate black history of African Americans this month, we must recognize that this is free until every citizen is afforded all of the freedoms that every other American enjoys.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, as we proceed on this, I want to know why we have chosen to focus in on the electoral forum and to replay what happened in Florida. It is history. It is history that many of us lived through. It is a history that we do not want our young people in this country to forget. It is a history where we want to encourage those who are out listening to us to remember how precious the vote is, to not be discouraged, and not feel that we cannot talk about this, to not think that their vote does not count.

We should be more encouraged that now more than ever we must bring all of our people to the polls. We must turn out as many as we can. We must educate our people on the issues that are coming to the ballot box. We do not have a Presidential election again for 4 years, but there will be elections in every city and State over the next 4 years and we must have our voice heard.

Following the Civil War, the Federal Government made numerous efforts to expand suffrage rights to blacks. Southern States intimidated and blocked newly freed slaves from voting by using literacy tests, the grandfather clause, poll taxes, “white primaries,” and other schemes. Southern States did all in their power to continue to subjugate their former slaves. Only when the Federal Government stepped in and sent Federal troops into the South were blacks able to vote.

Nevertheless white Southerners continued their efforts to recapture political control of State governments. Recognizing the vote as the great equalizer, they immediately set about undermining the 15th Amendment. In “From Freedom to Slavery,” noted historian John Hope Franklin cataloged a number of tactics used during that period that are disturbingly similar to some of the things that we saw in Florida: “Elaborate election schemes, complicated balloting processes, and highly centralized election codes were all statutory techniques by which blacks were disenfranchised,” he wrote.

Sounds familiar, does it not. The Hayes-Tilden deal of 1876 sold out blacks and signaled that the Federal rights to protect the former slaves would pass into the hands of hostile State governments. That deal nullified the 15th Amendment and restored exclusive political controls to whites.

The ingenuity of opponents of the franchise for black Americans is what prompted the United States Supreme Court, in a series of voting rights cases, to remind the Nation that “The 15th Amendment nullified sophisticated as well as simple-minded modes of discrimination.” Nonetheless, efforts at disenfranchisement continued throughout the first half of the century necessitating Congress to enact the 1957 Voting Rights Act and the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Those laws aimed at protecting the voting rights of African Americans passed after a shameful orgy of lynchings, capped by the assassinations of Harry T. Moore in Florida, Medgar Evers, Michael Schwerner, James E. Chaney, Andrew Goodman and Viola Liuzzo in Mississippi.

There is one major difference, however, between past disenfranchisements and what we saw in Florida. Traditionally, we could generally count on the Federal Government, particularly the Supreme Court, to step in and stop the rampant violations of minority voting rights in this country. Sadly, that is no longer the case.

In our last election, our U.S. Supreme Court not only failed and refused to protect voting rights, it used a ludicrous constitutional argument to actively thwart voting rights, and in so doing validated the obnoxious tactics we watched with such horror. Knowing this, why are people so surprised that so many of us look at the Florida situation not as a fluke but as a continuation of a pattern of disenfranchise?

No one looking at this in the context of the history of voting rights in this country would understand why we will not just get over it. We will not just get over it. We will not just get over it.

I thank my colleagues for listening and participating in this Special Order on high stakes and voter reform and the history of voting in our country.

SOCIAL SECURITY REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CULBERTSON). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, what is facing the United States Congress right now is a decision of where do we go to help make sure that the economy keeps growing. What do we do in terms of President Bush’s suggestion on tax cuts? How far should we go on those tax reductions to achieve tax fairness? How do we make sure that what we do is going to help make the economy stronger in the long run?

I would like to start with a chart that would middle class American Gov- ernment spends money. This chart represents the spending of the Federal Government. And as we see from this pie, the largest expenditure is Social Security. So Social Security takes 20 percent of the Federal Government’s budget. The next largest, of course, is the domestic discretionary budget. That is what this Congress, this body, the House and the Senate, with the White House, debate and argue on every year in 13 appropriation bills is the discretionary spending, in addition to defense. Defense spending is 17 percent; interest is 13 percent. That is why paying down the debt and continuing to do that is very, very important.

Today, this House made a decision that we were not going to spend any of the surplus coming in from Social Security taxes or Medicare taxes. I think that is a good start. Our goal has got to be to try to reduce the increase in spending of the Federal Government because in the history of that everybody in this Chamber needs to ask, the question that America needs to ask is how high should taxes be. Is there a point where taxes are so high that it discourages some people from going out and starting a new business and hiring more people? Is it possible that taxes become so high that people do not get that second job to do well for their family because government takes most of the money?

Mr. Speaker, I ask everybody that might be listening to make an estimate of how many cents out of every dollar the average American taxpayer earns goes to pay for government. The answer is a little over 41 percent. Forty one percent. And that an individual earns goes for local, State, and Federal Government. And it would be my suggestion that we lower that. So I support President Bush’s suggestion that we have greater tax fairness; that we leave a little more money in the pockets of those individuals that earn it.

One of the challenges, probably two of the biggest challenges that face this Congress, that face this country in this current program, is Social Security and Medicare. When Social Security started, Franklin Rooseveld said, coming out of the Depression, that we need some alternatives except going over the hill to the poor house. So we started a Social Security system.

Social Security was supposed to be one leg of a three-legged stool to support retirees. It was supposed to go hand in hand with personal savings accounts and pension plans. One-third, today, a lot of people depend, over 50 percent, on just their Social Security check. So it is understandable during this last Presidential election that some seniors became concerned when Vice President Gore suggested that they might be losing benefits if we hired this other Governor Bush to be our next President.

I think the challenge much greater than that is not doing this to Social Security. So I would encourage this administration to move ahead as aggressively as possible to try to make sure that we do not just talk about putting Social Security first but we actually do put Social Security first.

We recognize for 60 minutes.

Social Security is recognized for 60 minutes.

The ingenuity of opponents of the franchise for black Americans is what prompted the United States Supreme Court, in a series of voting rights cases, to remind the Nation that “The 15th Amendment nullified the 15th Amendment and restored exclusive political controls to whites.” Nonetheless, efforts at disenfranchisement continued throughout the first half of the century necessitating Congress to enact the 1957 Voting Rights Act and the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Those laws aimed at protecting the voting rights of African Americans passed after a long tradition of voting in our country.

In our last election, our U.S. Supreme Court not only failed and refused to protect voting rights, it used a ludicrous constitutional argument to assert that everybody in this Chamber needs to ask, the question that America needs to ask is how high should taxes be. Is there a point where taxes are so high that it discourages some people from going out and starting a new business and hiring more people? Is it possible that taxes become so high that people do not get that second job to do well for their family because government takes most of the money?

Mr. Speaker, I ask everybody that might be listening to make an estimate of how many cents out of every dollar the average American taxpayer earns goes to pay for government. The answer is a little over 41 percent. Forty one percent. And that an individual earns goes for local, State, and Federal Government. And it would be my suggestion that we lower that. So I support President Bush’s suggestion that we have greater tax fairness; that we leave a little more money in the pockets of those individuals that earn it.

One of the challenges, probably two of the biggest challenges that face this Congress, that face this country in this current program, is Social Security and Medicare. When Social Security started, Franklin Rooseveld said, coming out of the Depression, that we need some alternatives except going over the hill to the poor house. So we started a Social Security system.

Social Security was supposed to be one leg of a three-legged stool to support retirees. It was supposed to go hand in hand with personal savings accounts and pension plans. One-third, today, a lot of people depend, over 50 percent, on just their Social Security check. So it is understandable during this last Presidential election that some seniors became concerned when Vice President Gore suggested that they might be losing benefits if we hired this other Governor Bush to be our next President.

I think the challenge much greater than that is not doing this to Social Security. So I would encourage this administration to move ahead as aggressively as possible to try to make sure that we do not just talk about putting Social Security first but we actually do put Social Security first.

We recognize for 60 minutes.

Social Security is recognized for 60 minutes.

The ingenuity of opponents of the franchise for black Americans is what prompted the United States Supreme Court, in a series of voting rights cases, to remind the Nation that “The 15th Amendment nullified the 15th Amendment and restored exclusive political controls to whites.” Nonetheless, efforts at disenfranchisement continued throughout the first half of the century necessitating Congress to enact the 1957 Voting Rights Act and the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Those laws aimed at protecting the voting rights of African Americans passed after a long tradition of voting in our country.

In our last election, our U.S. Supreme Court not only failed and refused to protect voting rights, it used a ludicrous constitutional argument to assert that everybody in this Chamber needs to ask, the question that America needs to ask is how high should taxes be. Is there a point where taxes are so high that it discourages some people from going out and starting a new business and hiring more people? Is it possible that taxes become so high that people do not get that second job to do well for their family because government takes most of the money?

Mr. Speaker, I ask everybody that might be listening to make an estimate of how many cents out of every dollar the average American taxpayer earns goes to pay for government. The answer is a little over 41 percent. Forty one percent. And that an individual earns goes for local, State, and Federal Government. And it would be my suggestion that we lower that. So I support President Bush’s suggestion that we have greater tax fairness; that we leave a little more money in the pockets of those individuals that earn it.

And of course we know that a CD at the local bank will do much better than that. The question before the United States, before the American people, is should some of this money go into the stock market. Should some of the money be put into bonds? And how risky is some of this money going into equities? And I think that is what I sort of want to discuss, what the history of equities is.

First, let me say, to make it absolutely clear, Social Security is not solvency. We really, if it is going to be solvency, it is going to be less money coming in than we need. So, then we look at the Social Security trust fund and we say to the House and the Senate and the President, look, we borrowed this money for other spending for the last 40 years, now it is time to pay it back.

So what does Congress do to pay back the money that it has borrowed? What does Congress do to pay back the funds in the so-called Social Security trust fund? Probably one of three things: they either say, look, so that we do not have to pay back so much, we are going to again lower benefits; or we reduce spending on other programs to come up with the money for Social Security; or we increase taxes. Those are the three options.

If there was no such thing as a trust fund, but we have a law that says these are benefits, what would government do to get the extra money to keep its promise to pay these benefits? Same three things: we either reduce other spending, or we reduce the benefits going out to retirees, or we increase taxes on current American workers. So, in reality, we should not look to the trust fund as the savior of Social Security.

What is happening is on two fronts with Social Security. It is a pay-as-you-go program. Since 1934, when we started this system, it requires workers paying in their taxes that went immediately out to current retirees. So a pay-as-you-go program, but what is happening is fewer and fewer workers in relation to the number of retirees. Our pay-as-you-go retirement system will not meet the challenge of demographic change.

In 1940, there were 17 workers for every one retiree. By 2000, there were only 3 workers. Today, there are only three workers in the system and that immediately goes out to pay a retiree's benefits. And the estimate is that by 2025 there will be two workers paying in their Social Security tax. So a tremendous extra burden on those two workers, and the threat of increasing the tax on those two workers is even greater if we do not step up to the plate and make some changes now.

So now is the time. We have surplus coming in. We have a surplus this year of $236 billion. We have a total surplus for the last year, the budget that we are now working on, of $281 billion. The following year the surplus is $303 billion, and we have heard $5.5 trillion surplus over the next 10 years. So I suggest, Mr. Speaker, I suggest that we take some of that surplus now and we fix Social Security and we fix it in such a way that it can stay solvent, that our kids are not burdened with the threat and the probability of those higher future taxes.

This chart represents the short-term good times over on the top left in blue, and then when we hit 2012, with less money coming in than is needed to pay benefits. We have a huge challenge of future finances. In the chart, in today’s dollars it is an unfunded liability of $9 trillion. If we take it in tomorrow’s dollars, as we need the extra money over the years, in those future years up till 2075, it is going to take $120 trillion. But if we can fix the problem today with a couple trillion dollars of that surplus and start getting a better return on the money that is invested, then we can keep Social Security solvent.

A lot of people I talk to around the country on Social Security have the feeling that somehow there is a Social Security trust fund. Let me clear that up for you. I quote from the Office of Management and Budget. “These trust fund balances are available to finance future benefit payments and other trust fund expenditures but only in a bookkeeping sense.” Then the Treasury that when redeemed will have to be financed, like I said, either raising taxes, borrowing from the public, or reducing benefits or reducing some other expenditures.

It is interesting to note that the Supreme Court, now on two decisions, has said there is no entitlement to Social Security, that simply because you paid in taxes all of your working life and your employer paid in those taxes, there is no entitlement to Social Security. It is simply another tax that Government has imposed on workers of America, and the benefits are simply additional legislation that can benefit retirees. So no promise that you are going to get any benefits.

So I think there is some good justification for putting some of that money in accounts of individuals, to put it into the safe kind of investments where we can guarantee that it will earn more than what Social Security will pay under the current program, where we can guarantee, if you will, that individuals that decide that they want to stay with the old system will have that option, or they can have the option to have the kind of what in Federal Government we call a thrift savings account where there are limited, if you will, safe investments that everybody that works for the Federal Government can choose the different investments that they think will give them the maximum return on their investment.

Now is a difficult time to maybe convince some people that they should have part of that investment in equities, in the stock market. Yet, if we just look at last month, last month there was almost a 3% percent increase in the money invested in the stock market.

Since the 1800s, there has never been a 12-year period where there has been a greater percentage of money invested in equities in the stock market.

I want to make mention of the public debt versus Social Security shortfall. Right now we are talking about paying down the debt held by the public. We have a debt in this country of $5.7 trillion. If that $5.7 trillion is what I call the Wall Street debt, or the debt that is lent out by the Treasury in Treasury paper, Treasury bills, U.S. Government bonds.

That totals 3.4 trillion. But over the next 75 years, we are looking at a Social Security shortfall in today’s dollars, not in tomorrow’s dollars, of $46 trillion. So it is just in that time period we are looking at $46 trillion needed up until 2075.

Economic growth will not fix Social Security. Some people have suggested, well, if we can make the economy strong enough, if we can keep growing like we have been, that will help Social Security. Not so, because of the fact that Social Security benefits are indexed to wage growth, in other words, they are indexed to how strong the economy is. So the stronger the economy is, the higher the wages. The higher the wages, the more benefits that are paid out. When the economy grows, workers pay more in taxes but also will earn more in benefits when they retire.

So, in the short-term, a strong economy helps out the problem because individual workers are paying more money in, but when they retire, because there is a direct relationship between what the government is going to get and the money that they paid in, in taxes, in the long-run, it is not going to solve the problem.

Growth makes the numbers look better now but leaves a larger hole to fill later. I think the past administration did a disservice to us when President Clinton said, we have got to put Social Security first. At least it brought it to the consciousness of the American people that it was important.

I am disappointed that we have not done anything on Social Security for the 8 years that I have been in Congress. I urge this administration to move ahead with the Social Security proposal that will keep Social Security solvent, because the biggest risk is doing nothing at all.

Social Security has a total unfunded liability of $9 trillion. The Social Security trust fund contains nothing but IOU’s. To keep paying promised Social Security benefits, the payroll tax will have to be increased by nearly 50 percent or benefits will be cut by 30 percent. Neither one, Mr. Speaker, is acceptable to the American people.

So again, it is important we move ahead with solving Social Security.
This chart that I made represents the diminishing return of your Social Security investment. The real return of Social Security is less than 2 percent for most workers and shows a negative return for some compared to over 7 percent return in the marketplace for any period over a period.

Social Security’s real rate of return, this is Black History Month, minorities, because a young black worker dies at an earlier age, receives a negative return on the money that they pay into Social Security.

We need changes there. If they are average, then they get about a 1.7 percent return. But that is going down to just a little over one percent within the next 15 years. And the market is showing a return of 7 percent. So are there some safe investments?

Insurance companies testified before the Social Security Task Force that I chaired for the last couple years and said we can guarantee a return because we have the public now. We can guarantee you a return of 4.8 percent, or different companies have different percentages.

So it seems reasonable that if we are comparing a system that has a return of around 1.1 percent to something else that we can invest the money in CDs or Government bonds or many other investments that would have a guaranteed return much greater than that, then at least part of the option that American people would choose would say, well, what is going to make me better off when I retire? And, obviously, as we are going to show in a minute, it is going to be some of those private investments.

And the private investments are not only a greater return, but it is the security of knowing it is your money, not having politicians in the future reach into that pot and say, well, times are tough in America. We are going to have to have you reduce benefits or we are going to have to increase taxes on American workers.

This is a chart I made up on the years that it is going to take to get back your Social Security tax. If you happen to retire in 1940, then it took 2 months to get back everything that you and your employer paid into Social Security. By 1980, it took 4 years to get it back.

Look what it takes to get it back today. If you were only 20 years old when you retire to break even to get back the money you and your employer paid into Social Security.

I have been trying to preach that increasing payroll taxes again is not the answer. And everybody in this Chamber agrees. They said, right, we cannot increase taxes on those American workers. Too many American workers already pay more in the Social Security tax, the FICA tax, the payroll deduction than they do in the income tax.

However, that is not the history in this country. Even though past Congresses have said the same kind of promises, what we have done over the years is continue to increase the tax on Social Security.

In 1940, the tax was one percent on the employee, one percent on the employer for the first $3,000. That made a maximum benefit of $60 per worker. By 1960, it grew to two percent, and the base went up also to $25,900. That made a maximum annual tax of $2,631. Today we have increased the tax to 12.4 percent. We did that in the 1984 legislation. And we increased the base and indexed it to inflation.

So this year it is approximately $80,000 that you pay the 12.4 percent on, or approximately this year $10,000 for those workers that make that $79,000 a year.

So, again, I suggest that it is not out of reach, that if push comes to shove, if we keep putting off the solution to this problem, we are going to end up with some people saying, well, there is no other way, we need more revenues, let us increase taxes on our kids and grandkids so that we have enough money to pay benefits.

What is interesting is that we think the senior population is strong politically today. When the baby boomers start retiring in 2008, we are going to have a huge retirement population and they are living longer and the political power of that retired population is apt to demand that their benefits be increased, not reduced; and so, the only alternative, if we do not fix it today, is the threat of tremendously increasing taxes on our kids.

In an earlier chart, I showed that taxes would have to increase up to 50 percent, an increase in taxes of 50 percent, if we are going to continue to pay those benefits if we do not do anything to try to fix Social Security.

Seventy-eight percent of families now pay more in the payroll tax than they do in the income tax.

The six principles of saving Social Security, one, protect current and future beneficiaries, two, allow freedom of choice. So you can either stay in the current system or you can have flexibility if you are sure you can get more than that 1.1 percent return on the money you are paying in. Should part of that, at least part of that, be allowed for you as individual workers to have it in your own name, in your own account, and protect the safety net.

Look, this is a country where we are not going to allow anybody to go hungry or to go without clothing or without lodging. So we do have a safety net to make sure in essentially every proposal that has been introduced in Congress on fixing Social Security, and most of those have some private investments. In the base case, there is a safety net. We make Americans better off, not worse off. We create a fully-funded system and no tax increases.

Personal retirement accounts. They do not come out of Social Security. They become part of your Social Security retirement benefits. I suggest that, if it is necessary to reach into the surplus over and beyond the surplus that is coming in from Social Security, if we have to raise payroll taxes, Social Security, now is the time to do that, that we use some of these surpluses to make sure that we keep the program solvent and we do that by getting a better return on the investment than the 1.1 to 1.7 percent the average retiree is going to make.

A worker will own his or her own retirement account, and it is going to be limited to safe investments that will earn more than this says, 1.9 percent paid by Social Security. 1.9 percent is the high rate of return that you can make on your Social Security investment. And as we saw by that other chart, a lot of individuals have a negative return from what they put into Social Security.
and Ted Kennedy sent to President Clinton. They said, “Millions of our constituents will receive higher retirement benefits from their current public pensions than they would under Social Security.” That is the truth.

The U.S. and other countries in saving its retirement system. In the 18 years since Chile offered PRAs, 95 percent of Chilean workers have created accounts. Their average rate of return has been 11.3 percent per year. Among other countries, Britain and Switzerland offer workers PRAs. Many of the industrial countries of the world and many of the developing countries are now ahead of the United States in allowing individuals to have their own passbook that increases every year to give greater assurance in their retirement.

British workers choose PRAs. Ten percent returns on British workers. Two out of three British workers are enrolled in the second-tier Social Security, the Social Security earnings limit. It does not increase taxes. It repeals lockbox provisions. That is what we did in that legislation today. It is a surplus coming in than we know what to do with. The danger, of course, is the body finds it to their political advantage, most Members find it to their political advantage to come up with new programs, to take credit for this work, and get their picture cutting a ribbon on the new library or the new jogging trail or whatever. So the tendency has been over the years to increase spending. That is the challenge: How do we discipline ourselves to hold the line on increased spending?

I am encouraged by what I have seen this new President do in terms of his aggressive enthusiasm to search out and find out where the weaknesses are in Federal spending, to find out where the abuse is, where the fraud is, where the inefficiencies are. It is extremely important we do that. We have got a very inefficient Federal Government. If we divide $1.9 trillion out by every Member of this Congress, it is still is such a huge amount of dollars that it is difficult to keep track of.

The Social Security Solvency Act for 2000 takes a portion of the on-budget surpluses over the next 10 years; it uses capital market investments to increase the Social Security rate of return above the 1.8 percent workers are now receiving and over time PRSAs grow and the Social Security fixed benefit is reduced. It indexes future benefit increases to the cost of living increases instead of wage growth.

There are only two ways to fix Social Security, either bring in more revenues or you reduce the amount going out. What we are suggesting is one way to bring in more revenues is real investments. It could be a CD at your local bank, or it could be a United States savings bond. Or it could be the kind of investments that are indexed to maximize safety over the long run in those investments. Everybody should start thinking in terms of what I could invest money better than what the government is doing in terms of what they give back in Social Security?
Can I get a better rate of return on some of that money that would exceed the 1.1 percent return that we are expecting in the future on Social Security benefits? I think the answer is yes.

Mr. Speaker, I am encouraged and excited about a President that is suggesting that we pay down the debt, a President that is suggesting giving back some of this surplus and letting it stay in the pockets of the people that earned it.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

- Mr. ACKERMAN (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today and February 14 on account of medical reasons.
- Mr. BECERRA (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of business in the district.
- Mr. ORTIZ (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of travel problems.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

- The following Members (at the request of Mr. SCHIFF) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:
  - Mr. UNDERWOOD, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Mr. SKELTON, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Mrs. MALONEY of New York, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Ms. KAPTUR, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Ms. NORTON, for 5 minutes, today.
  - Mr. SHOWS, for 5 minutes, today.

    - Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, for 5 minutes, today.
- The following Member (at the request of Mr. McINNIS) to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material:
  - Mr. STUMP, for 5 minutes, today.

SENATE BILL REFERRED

A bill of the Senate of the following title was taken from the Speaker’s table and, under the rule, referred as follows: S. 235. An act to provide for enhanced safety, public awareness, and environmental protection in pipeline transportation, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, in addition to the Committee on Energy and Commerce for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such legislation as is within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly, at 9 o’clock and 58 minutes p.m., the House adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, February 14, 2001, at 10 a.m.

OFFICE OF COMPLIANCE REPORT

As required by the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995, the following report is submitted:

HON. J. DENNIS HASTERT, Speaker of the House, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER:

Section 102(b) of the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 (CAA) mandates a review and report on the applicability to the legislative branch of federal law relating to terms and conditions of employment and access to public services and accommodations.

Pursuant to section 102(b)(2) of the CAA, which provides that the presiding officers of the House of Representatives and the Senate shall cause each such report to be printed in the Congressional Record and each report shall be referred to the committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate with jurisdiction, the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance is pleased to transmit the enclosed report.

Sincerely yours,

SUSAN S. ROBBEG, Chair of the Board of Directors.

Enclosures.

OFFICE OF COMPLIANCE

SECTION 102(B) REPORT

Section 102(a) of the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA) lists the eleven laws that shall apply, as prescribed by this Act, to the legislative branch of the Federal Government.

Section 102(b) directs the Board... legislative-branch coverage. In setting its priorities for making recommendations from among the categories of statutes that the Board had identified for analysis and review, the Board focused on the private-sector laws of the CAA. Because legislative history suggested that the highest priority of the CAA was the applicability of the private-sector laws to congressional employees where those employees had little or no protection, the Board focused its recommendations in its first report on the private-sector laws not currently applicable to the legislative branch.

The Board also determined in its 1996 Section 102(b) Report that, because of the CAA’s focus on coverage of the Congress under private-sector laws, the Board’s next priority should focus on the inapplicable provisions of the nine private-sector laws generally made applicable by the CAA. In December 1998 the Board set forth the results of that review in its second biennial report under Section 102(b) of the CAA (1998 Section 102(b) Report or 1998 Report).

"T"hich focused on applicable laws was divided into three parts. In Part I the Board reviewed laws enacted after the 1996 Section 102(b) Report, resubmitted the recommendations of the 1996 Section 102(b) Report, and made additional recommendations as to laws which should be made applicable to the legislative branch. In Part II the Board analyzed which provisions of the private-sector CAA laws did not apply to the legislative branch and recommended which should be made applicable. In Part III of the 1998 Report, although not required by section 102(b) of the CAA, the Board reviewed coverage of the General Accounting Office (GAO), the Government Printing Office (GPO), and the Library of Congress (the Library) under the laws made applicable by the CAA and made recommendations to Congress with respect to changes to that coverage. The Board noted that the study mandated by Section 230 of the CAA which was submitted to Congress in 1996 did not include recommendations to Congress with respect to coverage of these three instrumentalitys.5 The Board concluded that the 1998 Section 102(b) Report, which focused on applicable laws, provided the opportunity for the Board to make recommendations regarding coverage of GAO, GPO and the Library under those laws.6 As discussed in Section IV.C below, the Board Members identified three principles on which the Board conducted its work but were divided in their recommendation as to which option was preferable.

In the first of this 2000 Section 102(b) Report, the third biennial report issued under section 102(b) of the CAA, the Board has reviewed new statutes or statutory amendments enacted after the Board’s 1998 Section 102(b) Report was prepared. The Board’s resubmitted version of the 1998 Section 102(b) Report was issued in 1996 and 1998 and the analysis and recommendations contained therein.

II. Review of laws enacted after the 1998 section 102(b) report

After reviewing all federal laws and amendments relating to terms and conditions of employment or access to public accommodations and services, the Board has determined that the rights and protections against discrimination in this basis should be applied to the legislative branch.

(D) Titles II and III of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. §§2000a–5, 2000a–6, 2000b–3). These titles prohibit discrimination in the areas of education, employment, public accommodations, and public service on the basis of race, color, religion, or national origin. The Board has concluded that the rights and protections against discrimination on this basis should be applied to the legislative branch.

IV. 1998 Section 102(b) report

A. Part I of the 1998 report (new laws enacted and certain other inapplicable laws) branch. Employees subject to these provisions are generally protected against retaliation for having disclosed any information the employee reasonably believes evidences a violation of a law, regulation, rule, or order, or management or abuse of authority, or substantial danger to public health or safety. The Office has continued to receive a number of inapplicable branch employees' concerns about protection against possible retaliation by an employing office for the disclosure of what the employee perceived as such information. For the reasons set forth in the 1998 Section 102(b) Report, the Board has determined that whistle-blower protection comparable to that provided to executive branch employees under 5 U.S.C. §2302(b)(8) should be provided to legislative branch employees.

(3) Form of special-purpose study commissions. Certain special-purpose study commissions include members appointed by Congress or by officers of Congressional instrumentalities. They are not expressly listed in section 101(9) of the CAA in the definition of "employing offices" covered under the CAA. For the reasons set forth in the 1998 Section 102(b) Report, the Board recommends that Congress specifically state inapplicable provisions, whether the CAA applies to special-purpose study commissions, both when it creates the commissions and when it amends them already in existence."

In the second part of the 1998 Section 102(b) Report, the Board considered the specific exceptions created by Congress from the nine private-sector laws made applicable by the CAA. The Board found a number of recommendations respecting the application of currently inapplicable provisions, focusing on enforcement, the area in which Congress made the most significant departures from the private-sector provisions of the CAA laws.11 The Board noted that it intended those recommendations "should further a central goal of the CAA to create parity with the private sector so that employers and employees in the legislative branch would experience the benefits and burdens as the rest of the nation's citizens."

The Board of Directors has reviewed the 1998 Report and resubmitted each of the following recommendations made in Part II of the 1998 Report:

(1) Authority to investigate and prosecute violations of §207 of the Act, which prohibits intimidation and reprisal. Enforcement authority to investigate and prosecute violations of §207 of the Act is provided to the agencies that administer and enforce the CAA laws10 in the private sector. For the reasons set forth in the 1998 Report, the Board has concluded that the Congress should grant the Office the same authority to investigate and prosecute allegations of intimidation or reprisal as each implementing Executive Branch agency has in the private sector.

(2) Authority to seek a restraining order in district court in the case of imminent danger to health or safety. Section 215(b) of the CAA provides the remedy for a violation of the substantive provisions of theOSHAct made applicable by the CAA. Among other things, the OSHA Act authorizes the Secretary of Labor to seek a temporary restraining order in district court in the case of imminent danger to health or safety. The Office has continued to receive a number of inapplicable branch employees' concerns about protection against possible retaliation by an employing office for the disclosure of what the employee perceived as such information. For the reasons set forth in the 1998 Section 102(b) Report, the Board has determined that the CAA be amended to clarify that the Board should provide the restraining order under the CAA. (The Board here took as its model the authority to require that records be kept and notices posted in the same manner as required by the agencies that enforce the provisions of law made applicable by the CAA in the private sector.)

(4) Other enforcement authorities. For the reasons set forth in the 1998 Section 102(b) Report, the Board has concluded that the Office should be granted the authority to enforce the provisions of law made applicable by the CAA in the private sector.

C. Part III of the 1998 report (options for coverage of the three instrumentalities)

In the third part of the 1998 Report, the Board listed in Part I.B. of Section 230, exhaustively re-examined the current coverage of GAO, GPO and the Library under the CAA laws, and identified and discussed three principal options for coverage of these instrumentalities:

(A) CAA Option—Coverage under the CAA, including the authority of the Office of Inspector General to enforce the provisions of law made applicable by the CAA. (The Board here took as its model the CAA as it would be modified by enactment of the recommendations made in Part II of its 1998 Report.)

(B) Federal-Sector Option—Coverage under the statutory and regulatory regime that applies generally in the federal sector, including the authority of executive-branch agencies as they administer and enforce the laws in the private sector.

(C) Private-Sector Option—Coverage under the statutory and regulatory regime that apply generally in the private sector, including the authority of the executive-branch agencies as they administer and enforce the laws in the private sector.

The Board noted that other hybrid models could be developed or, it could "be possible to leverage existing inapplicable coverage and omissions currently in place at the three instrumentalities and fill serious gaps in coverage on a piecemeal basis." The Board compared the three options against the current regimes at GAO, GPO and the Library, as well as against each other, and identified the significant differences among the options. The Board unanimously concluded that coverage under the private sector model was not the best of the options. However, the Board was divided as to which of the remaining options should be adopted. Two Board Members recommended that the three instrumentalities be covered under the CAA, with certain modifications, and two other Board Members recommended that the three instrumentalities be fully subject to the laws and regulations generally applicable in the executive branch of the federal government.

A review of the analysis, discussion and recommendations contained in the Section 230 Study and Part III of the 1998 Section 102(b) Report demonstrates the complexity of the existing statutory regime, but also the practical effects of any recommended changes, as well as the mandates of the CAA, including Section 230. Indeed, the degree of the differences and potential challenges in determining how the coverage of the instrumentalities might be modified is evidenced by the fact that after three years of study and experience, the Members of the Board in 1998 were unable to arrive at a consensus on the manner in which the CAA laws should be applied and enforced at GAO, GPO and the Library.

While the current Board Members are mindful of the institutional benefits of providing Congress with a clear recommendation on coverage of the instrumentalities, the Board is of the view that further study and consideration of the questions presented is warranted in light of the complexity of the issues and the substantial impact that any modification would have on the instrumentalities and their employees.

The Board believes that Congress, and the instrumentalities and their employees, would derive greater benefit from a recommendation based upon further study, consideration and experience on the part of Board Members. Therefore, the Board has determined not to make any recommendations with respect to coverage of GAO, GPO and the Library under the CAA laws at this time.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, before us is a brand new day filled with opportunities to live out our calling as servant leaders. We trust You to guide us so that all that we do and say today will be for Your glory.

Since we will pass through this day only once, if there is any kindness we can express, any affirmation we can communicate, any help we can give, free us to do it today. Help us to be sensitive to what is happening to people around us. May we take no one for granted, but instead, be communicators of Your love and encouragement.

We express gratitude for all the people who make this Senate function effectively. Especially today, we thank You for the caring, servant leadership exemplified by Loretta Symms who has just retired as Deputy Sergeant at Arms. We praise You for her commitment to excellence, her 22 years service to the Senate, and her friendship to Senators and staff alike. Bless her as she moves on to the next phase of Your strategy for her life.

Now, Lord, You have richly blessed this Senate so that You may bless this Nation through its inspired leadership. In Your Holy Name we pray. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable Lincoln Chafee led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Thurmond).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable LINCOLN CHAFEE, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island, to perform the duties of the Chair.

STROM THURMOND,
President pro tempore.

Mr. CHAFEE thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The acting majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, today the Senate will be in a period of morning business until 12:30 p.m. At 12:30, the Senate will recess for the weekly party conferences. When the Senate reconvenes at 2:15 p.m., there will be an additional period for morning business. This afternoon the Senate may begin consideration of any executive or legislative items available for action. Senators will be notified as votes are scheduled for the week.

I thank my colleagues for their attention.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 12:30 p.m.

Under the previous order, the time until 11 a.m. shall be under the control of the Democratic leader or his designee.

Mr. NICKLES. I thank the Chair.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New York.

Mrs. CLINTON. I yield myself 15 minutes of the time controlled by the Democrats.

HEALTH INSURANCE

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, yesterday I was in Rome and Watertown, NY, to speak with members of the Rotary Clubs and chambers of commerce about the upstate New York economy and how we can work together to promote investment and job creation in these communities. I will carry their concerns about the economy to the Budget Committee on which I am pleased to serve and where we are fashioning the framework for the next Federal budget.

We are hearing about surplus projections and words of caution, about how much faith to place in them. We are hearing about President Bush’s tax cut plans and words of caution from colleagues who voted for big tax cuts in the early 1980s, cuts which helped contribute to the ruinous deficits and high interest rates that hobbled our Nation’s capacity to create jobs, invest in people, and pay down our national debt. The budget resolution we create sets the stage for how much we can invest in health care, schools, and the other pressing needs of families throughout our country. Later this week, I will return to the floor to talk about the budget in greater detail.

Today I would like to discuss a topic that transcends party, geography, and ideology. It is an issue that is important to the people in Rome and Watertown, Rochester and Brooklyn, and everywhere I have been in recent weeks. It will be foremost in my mind as the outlines of the 2002 budget take shape; that is, improving access to quality, affordabe health care for New Yorkers, for all Americans, and especially for our children.

In this session of Congress, we will need to look at as many aspects of health care, medical privacy, Medicaid funding, genetic discrimination, providing prescription drug coverage for our seniors, and long-term care for our families, among others. Today I will talk about the need for more Americans, particularly our children, and protecting the rights of those who are insured.

In all corners of New York, I have met countless people who have told me the powerful stories of the cruel inequities of our health care system. Last August, at the Dutchess County Fair, a single mother told me how hard it was to keep her family afloat because her medical bills totaled more than $30,000. She was worried she would become impoverished and forced to go on welfare.

In Massena, an uninsured woman suffering from cancer told me how much trouble she had finding a doctor who would treat her as she deserved free. In the MonteFiore Children’s Emergency Room in the Bronx, I saw children who had come there for asthma treatments because they had no health coverage and, therefore, no doctor of their own. From Buffalo to the Bay Area, the people of New York have urged me to go to the Senate to fight for better health care.

Many of my colleagues will remember when I came to this Capitol Hill 7 years ago with an idea or two about how to improve health care in our country. At that time, I was privileged to work with the Acting President pro tempore's father, who served not only as the President of the United States but also as the President of the Senate. I particularly appreciate Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, whose legacy of service to New York and our Nation is unparalleled and who has always been a source of inspiration, not only to me and my colleagues but to people literally around our world.

Finally, I am so grateful to the people of New York who have given me this extraordinary opportunity to serve them. Over the course of the next 6 years, I will work hard each and every day to listen to their concerns and to fight for their futures.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT PRO Tempore. The Senator from New Mexico.

Sen. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I congratulate the Senator from New York on her first official speech here in the Senate. I particularly appreciate her presence here, and I appreciate the subject about which she knows a tremendous amount. Of course, she will make a great contribution in the Senate.

Even with such progress, however, there are still 40 million Americans who are uninsured. Adults with health insurance are three times more likely to receive care when they need it. People with no health insurance are 50 to 70 percent more likely to be hospitalized for pneumonia. Children with no health insurance are twice as likely to be hospitalized for illnesses such as asthma and ear infections. Americans without health insurance are 4 times more likely to seek care in their own homes. It has only been 3 months since my election and 6 weeks since I was sworn in, but already I have received hundreds of letters from New Yorkers urging me to help them, their families, and their neighbors get the care and coverage they need. One such letter is from Kevin Pispisa, a Boy Scout from Troop 207 in North Babylon, whose parents are nurses. Kevin wrote to me:

'It seems that the poor working class do not have the resources to gain health care. Some of them cannot afford to go to the doctor or pay for medication that they need.'

Elsie Doetsch from Binghamton wrote to tell me about her friends who are dairy farmers. She is concerned about them, as she writes in her letter to me:

'They work every day to help put the food we eat and enjoy on our tables, yet cannot afford the insurance that I am forced to have, which I feel is a necessity for anyone in their hazardous occupation.'

These letters serve as an important reminder to us all as we think about President Bush's tax cut plans and as we deliberate over the shape of our new budget. We must not forget to invest in the people we represent. We must help them find affordable quality health care. Health insurance should not be a luxury; it should be a fact of life for Americans everywhere.

Let me be specific. We should expand the Children's Health Insurance Program. If we change the poverty threshold to include children and families with annual incomes up to 300 percent of the national poverty level and extend the program to parents of eligible children, we can provide health care to more than 5 million parents and nearly 2 million more children. Merely expanding CHIP, however, is not enough. We need to do more to encourage the enrollment of the 7 million children who are eligible for CHIP, or Medicaid.

I am very pleased that in New York, CHIP outreach efforts include radio PSAs in a number of languages, from Greek to Russian to Albanian to Creole to Chinese. We should provide a financial bonus to States that meet CHIP enrollment targets and reduce the CHIP-enhanced matching rate for States that fail to do so.

There are other creative ideas to provide greater access to health care for all Americans. Medicaid, Medicare, and SCHIP are all programs that allow people to seek relief in the reality of accomplishment by embracing this bipartisan patient protection act. Across this aisle and across our country, Democrats and Republicans are joined together in support of this Patients’ Bill of Rights.

I appreciate the opportunity to speak today, and I look forward to working with my colleagues on improving the health of our Nation in the context of a budget that is balanced and prudent. I would also like to take this occasion to pay special thanks to my predecessor, Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, whose legacy of service to New York and our Nation is unparalleled and who has always been a source of inspiration, not only to me and my colleagues but to people literally around our world.

Finally, I am so grateful to the people of New York who have given me this extraordinary opportunity to serve them. Over the course of the next 6 years, I will work hard each and every day to listen to their concerns and to fight for their futures.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE. The Senator from New Mexico.

SENATOR CLINTON’S MAIDEN SPEECH

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I congratulate the Senator from New York on her first official speech here in the Senate. I particularly appreciate her presence here, and I appreciate the subject about which she knows a tremendous amount. Of course, she will make a great contribution in the Senate.
THE TAX CUT

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I want to take a few moments to talk about the proposed tax cut that is, of course, the main focus of a lot of our attention in the Congress since the President sent us the tax cut proposal this last week, and give some thoughts as to how I view it at this point. I am sure that perspective will evolve as we get closer to actual consideration of the bill on the Senate floor. But I wanted to talk about how I see it at this point.

I think there are four obvious questions we need to ask about this tax cut proposal. First, should we have a tax cut? That may be the easiest question for all of us, but it is a legitimate question. Second, is the President’s proposal the right size of tax cut in total, his $1.6 trillion proposal? Third, is it structured appropriately in order to accomplish what we want to accomplish for our economy? The fourth obvious question is, does the President’s proposal constitute a fair distribution of the benefits from this proposed tax cut?

Let me take a few minutes to deal with each of these. First of all, should we have a tax cut at this point in our Nation’s history? To me, the answer is clearly yes. We can afford to have a tax cut because we are now projecting substantial surpluses, whereas most of the time I have served in the Senate, we have been dealing with deficits, not with surpluses. But we now have a surplus and a projected surplus; therefore, we can afford a tax cut.

Second, if we do properly structure this tax cut and do it quickly, pass it quickly and send it to the President for signature, it could stimulate the economy at a time when our Nation may need a real stimulus, perhaps as early as this summer or early this fall.

Those are reasons why I believe a tax cut is appropriate.

The first question I posed was, was the President’s proposed $1.6 trillion the right size of a tax cut at this time? I have some real doubts about that. And my answer has to be at this stage yes. We should downsize the proposed cut to the point that I have served in the Senate, we have a tax cut, whether we will have the funds necessary to pay down the debt.

The remaining actions people in my State tell me they would like to see us take, if we have a tax cut, are prescription drug benefit and increased defense spending.

President Bush is going to military installations this week talking about how we need to put more into national defense. Then we ask, is it affordable? If we go with this large tax cut, whether we will have the funds necessary to pay down the debt.

The second question I posed was, was the President’s tax cut proposal the right size of tax cut in total, his $1.6 trillion proposal? My answer to the second question has to be that we cannot afford this size tax cut.

The third question that I posed is what the President’s proposed tax cut should be to accomplish what we want for our economy.

Again, I think the answer has to be no. The reality when you look at the President’s proposal is that this tax cut is not intended or designed or structured to provide tax relief to anyone in the near future. It is instead intended and designed and structured to provide tax relief in the distant future.

The administration has argued that we need this tax cut to give the economy a boost at a time when we most need it, and when our economy most needs it. The truth is, it provides absolutely no tax relief in 2001. It provides only $21 billion of tax relief in the year 2002.

The tax cut proposal we have been sent by the President is backloaded. It is a much, much larger tax cut in future years—5 or 10 years from now—than it is this year. In fact, there is no tax cut this year as proposed by the President. In my view, the structuring of this tax cut as well as its size is flawed.

The final question that I believe needs to be asked, and undoubtedly will be asked and answered many times in different ways by all of us, is, is the President proposing a fair distribution of the benefits of the tax cut?

Again, my answer has to be no. The proposal the President sent us is heavily weighted to help those with higher incomes.

I was reading a magazine that arrived at our house last night—the U.S. News & World Report. They had a chart depicting how benefits from the Bush tax plan stack up. I was just trying to analyze that chart.

They take a single person, with no children, with a $25,000 adjusted gross income and then they go up to $300,000 adjusted gross income, and a married couple with one spouse working and two children. They go through a variety of possible taxpayer situations and try to analyze how much actual tax relief will be available.

According to their calculation, under the Bush plan, an individual who is earning $25,000 a year adjusted gross income would get $60 in tax relief the first year that this is in effect. That would be 2002. You get a $60 cut in your taxes.

If you take the person who has a $300,000 income, what about their situation? They would get $25,679 in tax relief that first year.

You say: Well, what is wrong with that? A person with an income of $25,679 in tax relief that first year.
$25,000 is earning one-twelfth of what the person with an income of $300,000 is earning. The tax cut for the person earning $25,000 would be one forty-second as large as the tax cut the person earning $300,000 would receive.

Thus, at the very figures 5 years out after their tax cut really begins to substantially impact, the person earning $25,000 would get a $300-per-year tax cut. The person earning $300,000 would get nearly $10,000 in tax cuts, or 32 times as much tax of a cut as the person earning $25,000.

I have tried to get some statistics also on the impact of the President’s proposal in my State, to work those up and try to understand how the people whom I represent would be affected. Of course, some of it is not that clear. But if you look at the demographic breakdown of the Bush tax cut as it affects the New Mexico taxpayers, the inequity is fairly stark.

Based on the statistics that were supplied in the Wall Street Journal last Thursday, while only roughly 4 percent of the Bush tax cut will be going to the bottom half of the people who file tax returns in my State, nearly half the benefits of the tax cut will go to fewer than 2 percent of the wealthiest individuals in my State.

On the issue of eliminating the estate tax—part of what the President has proposed is to have no estate tax in the future—in 1998, in New Mexico, to give a clear impression as to whom this benefit is realized this year, a significant number of estates that would be 26 of those estates that would have paid estate tax in my State in that year under that changed law.

At a time when the administration is asking charities and private citizens to do more in the communities, we are eliminating one of the largest tax advantages for charitable contributions by wealthy individuals, if we, in fact, eliminate the estate and gift tax.

There is serious doubt as to whether this proposed tax cut is fair in its distribution of benefits, and we need to study that. We need to try to come up with something that is more fair, something that will benefit average working families in the country. We should try to try to turn this tax cut because that will help us economically, but we should not move so quickly that we do not take the time to change what has been sent to us by the President and come up with the right size tax cut, which, as I say, would be substantially less from this benefit, the $1.6 trillion. We should take the time to be sure it is structured in a way that the benefit is realized this year, a significant portion of the benefit, so Americans can take money home this year and see benefits in their own checking accounts.

We should alter what the President has sent us to make it more equitable.

We should see to it that average working families and individuals get their fair share of whatever tax cut is enacted. This tax cut is not designed to appropriately distribute those benefits. It is something that will require substantial work to do that. One of the unfortunate things about our political process is that oftentimes candidates for public office make proposals and get locked into political positions long before they are elected to the office and in a position to actually try to work for the enactment of those positions. That is what has happened in this case. President Bush adopted his proposal for a $1.6 trillion tax cut well over a year ago when he was in the primaries running against Steve Forbes. There was a lot of competition within the Republican Party to see who could propose the larger tax cut.

President Bush proposed a very large one, and he has stuck to that in spite of the fact that our circumstances have changed. In spite of the fact that the economy today is not the robust economy we had a year ago, and in spite of the fact that there are real uncertainties about where we are going.

I hope we will take the time to analyze what the President sent. I hope we will also take the time to revise it so that we can better serve the people of this country by giving them a tax cut from which they can benefit quickly, a tax cut that most Americans will consider fair. I believe that is in the best interest of the country and that is clearly what our constituents have sent us here to do.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of objection.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMAS). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak in morning business for 15 minutes, after which I ask unanimous consent that Senator BOXER be recognized for 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time of the Senator is under the control of the Democratic leader until 11 o’clock, and at such time, for those who wish to use it, the time is allocated to the Republican leader.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask—if no one is here at 11—whether the Democrats could speak until the Republicans come at that time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you so much.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I withdraw my request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak until 11 o’clock.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ECONOMIC POLICY AND TAX CUTS

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, there is now a great deal of debate about economic policy, about tax cuts, and a range of issues surrounding President Bush’s proposal for a $1.6 trillion tax cut that he sent to the Congress last week.

I would like to speak for a bit on that subject and talk specifically about what I think are the most important issues about what I think we are facing. I know it is running down hill to be talking about tax cuts and politics. It is not exactly a tough political position to say I support tax cuts; in fact, the larger the better. But I think it is also important for us to understand what we need to do to make sure we retain a strong and growing economy, one that provides jobs and economic opportunities for American families. We have had times in the past in this country where tax cuts have been proposed that are so large that we then see significant Federal deficits occur, increases to the Federal debt, the slowdown in the economy, and increases in interest rates. I think it is important that we think about the impact of what are the most important things to the interests of American families.

There have been a number of things written about tax cuts recently that I wanted to share with my colleagues.

The Wall Street Journal article dated February 8, entitled “A Tax Cut That Redistributes to the Rich,” by Albert Hunt:

The gist of the Bush tax plan to be formally presented today is analogous to a familiar baseball ritual: Which brothers hold the major League record for the most home runs? Answer: Hank Aaron, who hit 755, and his brother Tommy, who hit 13.

The wealthy are the Henry Aarons of the Bush tax plan, while working-class taxpayers are the Tommys. But the president packages the cut as equally generous to all.

Most appalling in the Bush plan, however, is who’s left out. The president talks about helping the $25,000-a-year waitress with two kids, but the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a liberal advocacy that conducts widely respected research, reported yesterday that under the Bush plan, 12 million lower- and moderate-income families, supporting 24 million children, would get nothing. Over half of African-American and Hispanic kids wouldn’t benefit from the Bush initiative.

Let me show you another piece by the Wall Street Journal, written by Jackie Calmes, published yesterday:

As President Bush promotes his $1.6 trillion, 15-year income-tax cuts here, back in Texas, state legislators are so pinched after two tax-cut plans he won as governor that they are talking of tapping a state rainy-day fund or even raising taxes.

* * * * *

“He got elected president, yet we were left holding the bag here,” said Carlos Truan said last week as the Senate Finance Committee began grappling with the fiscal need.

Mr. Truan is a Democrat, so what was more attention-grabbing was the comment of a Republican, Senate Finance Committee Vice Chairman Chris Harris. “We made tax cuts because we thought we had this huge surplus,” he said, adding, “I might have voted a little differently on all those tax cuts” had he realized just the Medicare pressures ahead.

* * * * *

“It will work,” Mr. Junell says of the budget-balancing. But Mr. Coleman, watching the tax-cut bidding in Washington, suggests the Texas experience “should give people pause.”

Next, the Washington Post:

The bigger problem for middle-income Americans often overlooked in this economic expansion is that income isn’t being shared. In 1982, Fed Chairman Arthur Burns expected the nation’s average aftertax income to grow 2.4% a year. Seventeen years later, average aftertax income is growing only 1.2% a year, or less than 1% a year in real terms.

The Wall Street Journal:

We are told, however, that we can see 20 years ahead. President Bush says that’s too much. “We need to slow it down,” he said. He couldn’t see people growing too rapidly. “We need to slow it down,” he said.

Mr. Greenspan said that his strongest feeling was that the American economy was growing too fast that he increased interest rates 50 basis points. Seven years ago, he felt so strongly that our economy was nervous and is taking quick action to avoid a recession.

The bigger problem for middle-income Americans often overlooked is that income isn’t being shared. In 1982, Fed Chairman Arthur Burns expected the nation’s average aftertax income to grow 2.4% a year. Seventeen years later, average aftertax income is growing only 1.2% a year, or less than 1% a year in real terms.

Meanwhile, although it’s now clear that even the $500 billion tax cut has failed to push the economy towards the 2% growth rate it was designed to stimulate, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan didn’t cut short-term interest rates another half-percentage point to try to keep the economy from tanking.

Five years ago, the economists were trying to predict what would happen this year. This whole tax cut is based on our projections into the future of 5 and 10 years. Five years ago, economists—the same people to whom we are turning—suggested that we would face a $320 billion deficit this year. This whole tax cut is based on the economist’s projections, I heard a statistic last week which I think the Senator might also have heard.

Five years ago, the economists were basing our projections on for 5 and 10 years missed it by $590 billion in this year. The 4 years previous to that, when we had growing deficits, higher interest rates, and economic trouble all around us, all sorts of the worst perils of job growth in history.

There are weeks when you have to wonder whether the American economic attention span is longer than a sand flea’s. Consider last week’s two big economic stories: The Congressional Budget Office increased the projected 10-year budget surplus by $1 trillion, and the Federal Reserve Board cut short-term interest rates another half-percentage point to try to keep the economy from tanking.

To me, the real story isn’t either of these events. It’s their connection. The Fed is cutting rates like a doctor trying to revive a cardiac patient because as recently as last fall, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan didn’t foresee today’s economic woe. Meanwhile, although it’s now clear that even the smart, savvy, data-inhaling Greenspan couldn’t see four months ahead, people are treating the 10-year numbers from the Congressional Budget Office as holy writ.

Why is this important? Because we are now somewhere in the process of the longest economic expansion in the history of this country, with an economy that is growing sufficiently fast so that the Federal Reserve Board is very nervous and is taking quick action to try to stem this weakening economy. In fact, 7 months ago, Alan Greenspan felt so strongly that our economy was growing too fast that he increased interest rates 50 basis points. Seven months ago, he felt the American economy was out of control and was growing too rapidly. “We need to slow it down,” he said. He couldn’t see 7 months ahead.

We are told, however, that we can see 10 years ahead. President Bush says it’s lock in a permanent tax cut the cost of which in 10 years, he says, is $1.6 trillion. But, in fact, the cost is much more than that—about $2.6 trillion. Then he says despite the fact that the top 1 percent only pay 21 percent of the federal tax burden—the burden of income taxes, payroll and other taxes—they will get 43 percent of the tax cut that is projected. Mr. Greenspan says we can’t have a tax cut but only take one portion of the tax system and measure our burden by that. And in that circumstance he says let’s provide 43 percent of my tax cut to the top 1 percent. Mr. Greene’s final chart: This is the income tax to show what is happening with this tax cut proposal. Eighty percent of the population would get 29 percent of the benefit, and the top 1 percent would get over 40 percent of the benefit.

There are a couple of things wrong here. One, it would be very unwise to risk this country’s economy, risk jobs and opportunity that comes from it, risk Social Security and Medicare, risk education and health care investments that are needed by believing we can see 5 or 7 or 10 years out, and that we ought to lock in a large tax cut, the bulk of which is going to go to the very highest income people.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question? I thank the Senator for his presentation. Now that we are in the national debate over tax cuts, and the question of projections, I heard a statistic last week which I think the Senator might also have heard.

Five years ago, the economists were basing our projections on for 5 and 10 years missed it by $590 billion in this year. The 4 years previous to that, when we had growing deficits, higher interest rates, and economic trouble all around us, all sorts of the worst perils of job growth in history.

This is a very important economic decision we are making. The debate about it ought not be partisan. It is just a debate in which we have different ideas and beliefs. My feeling is, proceed cautiously. Let us provide a tax cut. Let us do it in a way that is fair to working families. Let us have a trigger so that in the event the economy goes sour, we will not sink back into big deficit cuts.

Let us also be concerned about the other things we must do. We ought not dip into Social Security or Medicare trust funds. We ought to have enough money available to provide prescription drug benefit through the Medicare program. We ought to invest in schools that are crumbling and reduce classroom size. We ought to pass a Patients’ Bill of Rights and help people who are dealing with health care needs. There are a series of things we can and should do that represent a set of priorities that are also important to us.

Mr. DURBIN. If the Senator will yield for another question, I know in the Senator’s home State of North Dakota there are many areas that are conservative, as there are in downstate Illinois. I speak to a lot of business groups with generally conservative people when it comes to politics. I ask the Senator from North Dakota what kind of reaction he finds from these same conservative businessmen when talking about the surpluses and the tax cut.

Mr. DORGAN. The first reaction is, we ought to pay down the Federal debt. That ought to be part of the original priority. If you run up the debt during tough times, then you ought to pay it down during good times.

Second, they feel very strongly that most important is we ought to keep this economic expansion going. We don’t want to sink back into budget deficits once again. Almost all of them would say we can’t see 2, 3, or 5 years ahead. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENZI). The time of the Senator from North Dakota has expired.
The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. May I inquire if there is a unanimous consent on the order of speakers?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is a unanimous consent. The time from 11 until 12 p.m. is granted for the control of the Senate from Alaska or his designee.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Idaho.

STRENGTHENING OUR NATIONAL SECURITY

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I am waiting for one of our associates to come. In the meantime, I want to begin some conversation and discussion about the topic of the week, which the President has been working on certainly, and that is strengthening our national security.

I suspect most people would agree that the responsibility for defense is perhaps the No. 1 responsibility of the Federal Government. It is the activity that no other government at any other level can handle. It is the thing that, of course, all of us are very aware of. We are constantly grateful for the kinds of things that have been done to preserve our freedom by the military over the years. For more than 200 years, the military has been that arm of Government that has preserved our freedom. Many people have sacrificed, including the soldiers, sailors, and the marines, over the years.

So as we face the question of defense and the military, that is one of the things with which we are obviously most concerned. The President has put this one of his high priorities, and I think properly so. Clearly, over the last 8 years, specifically, the military has not been supported to meet the kinds of needs they have had.

I think it is very clear that there are at least two kinds of questions to be answered as we go about funding the military. One has to do with improving the quality of life for military personnel. The other, then, has to do with the idea of examining the structure, examining where we are in terms of the military and how it meets today's needs and the changing needs that obviously have happened around us.

I think the President has been very wise to commit himself to some payments soon to help with the quality of life for the military. I think equally as important has been his request for some studies, bottom-up analyses, of the military prior to making any substantial changes in the way the military is structured, the kinds of weapons that are ready and the things that will deal with that aspect of it.

With regard to quality of life, certainly one of the things that is important, obviously, is that the military is built around personnel, around the idea that you have men and women willing to serve. We now have a voluntary military, of course, so that it has to be made somewhat attractive for people to be interested in joining the military, so that they will be kept up. Equally as important, of course, is after the training that takes place in the military, it is necessary to have the kind of arrangement where people can stay there once trained, whether it be airplane mechanics, pilot, or whatever, to leave the training and their training goes unused.

So the President has, I believe yesterday, gone down to Georgia and committed himself to some things to improve the lives of our troops—to raise military pay, renovate substandard housing, to improve military training, and take a look at health care, as well as some deployments in which we have been involved.

The President will announce, as I understand it, about a $5.76 billion increase, which will include $1.5 billion for military pay, which is in the process and should be in the process of causing these folks to be able to come closer to what is available with the private sector; about $400 million for improving military housing; and almost $4 billion to improve health care for the military.

I believe these things are very necessary and should happen as quickly as possible. I have had the occasion and honor over the last month or so to visit a couple military bases, Warren Air Force Base in my home State, a missile base in Cheyenne, WY, and Quantico, Va., the Marine Corps base close to D.C., here, where I went through training for the Marine Corps many years ago. It is an interesting place. In both instances, the first priority on these bases was housing, places for enlisted NCOs, officers, to live on base.

As to the housing in both instances, it is interesting. As different as these two bases were, and as far as they were apart, the problems in housing were very similar. Housing that had been built back in the thirties was still being used. It really had gone to the extent that rather than being renovated or repaired, it wasn't worth that; it had to be destroyed and replaced. Some, of course, could be fixed up but for very similar reasons for enlisted with families, No. 1, find a place to live, particularly at a place such as Quantico, but more importantly to have it economically reasonably attractive for these folks. As we move toward this, I hope the President will maintain—and I want to comment on this later—his commitment to doing something immediately for the personnel, and then to go through this study. I think there is a great deal that needs to be done in terms of how the military is structured. It is quite different now.

Obviously, our big problem now is terrorism. There are problems around the world in smaller units. We are not talking about ships full of divisions of troops with tanks landing somewhere. We are talking about something that can move quickly and is available to move and sustain itself without logistical support for some time. These are things that I think are very important. I intend to come back later this morning and talk more about this. In the meantime, I yield to the Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Wyoming for his interest in the subject of national defense. As he noted, this is a week in which the President is announcing several initiatives in that regard. One of his primary objectives, he said, is to strengthen the military so we can meet the challenges of this new century.

He is beginning, naturally, with the support for the troops, which is the right place to begin, but he has also noted there are a lot of other challenges. We in the Congress have been working with them over the years to appreciate the warnings of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the immediate past Secretary of Defense who have noted we are going to have to spend a lot more on defense in order to bring our defense capabilities up to the level where they need to be to deter threats around the world.

One of the threats that has received a lot of attention in recent weeks on which I want to focus today is the threat of an attack by an adversary delivering a weapon of mass destruction via missile. Of course, there are other ways of creating problems for the United States. We try to deal with each of these different threats.

As chairman of the Subcommittee on Terrorism of the Judiciary Committee, for example, I have worked hard to ensure we can both detect and deter terrorism, whether in the form of delivery of a weapon in a suitcase that people like to talk about or in the case of an attack directly against an installation or U.S. assets, such as the attack on the U.S.S. Cole. In all of those situations, we have plans and we have made some progress in meeting that threat of terrorism.

Where we have been lacking is in a commitment to deal with the other equally ominous threat of weapons of mass destruction delivery, and that is via the intercontinental ballistic missile or a medium-range missile. Why would countries all over the globe that mean us no good be spending so much money on the development of their missile capability and weapons of mass destruction warheads that could be delivered by the missiles? And by that, the WMD—there are biological weapons, chemical warheads, or nuclear warheads. Why would
During the Yom Kippur war, Egypt launched Scud missiles at Israel.

The so-called “War of the Cities” during the 8-year Iran-Iraq war saw almost 300 Scud missiles exchanged between combatants, with little or no anticipation that such actions would facilitate victory.

In 1986, Libya, in response to U.S. air strikes that were in themselves a response to Libyan-sponsored terrorist acts, launched two Scud missiles at a U.S. facility in Italy. That they landed harmlessly in the Mediterranean Sea does not diminish the significance of the event in the context of the use of hostile regimes.

While we try to deter countries from launching these kinds of missiles, we know that sometimes deterrence fails and these missiles will be launched. In that case, there is only one thing that is sensible, which is to try to have some kind of defense in place to protect our citizens and our troops deployed abroad or our allies.

The sad truth is, unfortunately, the United States today cannot defend itself from a hostile missile attack. In fact, we have a very hard time defending against the kinds of missiles launched a decade ago in the Persian Gulf war. Remember the single largest number of casualties in that war: 28 American soldiers died because of a Scud missile attack at our base in Saudi Arabia that we could not stop. Yet in the years between that event and today, we have made precious little progress in fielding a system which can defend against that kind of threat.

I just returned from a trip the weekend before last to Munich, Germany, the so-called Veracunda, a conference of primarily NATO defense ministers, the Secretary General of NATO, as well as representatives of the U.S. Senate and other parliamentarians—primarily of the NATO countries—to talk about the future of NATO and the United States-allies cooperation, among other things, in the development of ballistic missile defenses. The U.S. delegation was led by my colleagues John McCain and Joseph Lieberman. All of us, including Secretary Rumsfeld who was in attendance, made the point to our allies that the United States had no option but to move forward with missile defense, that our interests were threatened around the world, and that we need to move forward, but that we wanted to consult with our allies so, first of all, they would understand what we are doing, why we are doing it, and perhaps they would have some participation in how it would evolve, at least as to how it impacts them.

In the interim, however, we have put together the coalition that we have sea-based components and the radars we would have constructed at Chiniak Island and the on-board radars, to take literally anywhere in the world to provide defense in theater, both against threats that are medium-range threats today and in the not-too-distant future, to be able to actually provide some strategic defense to protect the United States, or most of it.

As I say, this technology is probably the most advanced but it will be up to the administration to do the planning to integrate that funding into the testing program, the development program, and the fairly early deployment of that limited kind of missile defense program.

At the same time, we should be pursuing the existing plans with respect to land-based systems because I suspect that at the end of the day we are going to want to have layered systems where we have sea-based and land-based components and the radars that facilitate the effectiveness of each. These will be details of plans emerging through the administration review, recommendations of the Department of Defense, and the funding that will be required to come from the Congress. Again, I will get into more detail on that later.

The point I make this morning is we are beginning the conversations with our allies that should have taken place some years ago. This administration is committed to that. I am convinced, because of the fine statement that Secretary Rumsfeld made at the Munich conference, that our allies are now going to be willing to work with us and will be supportive of us at the end of the day. It will be up to us to follow through with the support that only the Congress can provide.

Let me begin by going back to the point with which I started. There are basically two reasons to have defense. The first is to deter action by would-be aggressors, and you deter not only the use of missiles but also the threat of their use, because the threat of their use is frequently the foreign policy tool of these rogue nations, to keep you out of their way while they engage in their nefarious activities. So you deter the threat and you also deter the actual use.

But the second reason is in the event deterrence fails to actually defend yourself—in some cases we know that, especially with regard to these rogue nations which can have very irreligious leaders, deterrence does not work—and the missiles launched at you, you don't have a way of defending yourself, you will suffer extraordinarily large casualties.

It would be immoral for leaders of the United States today—and this is a point we discussed in Munich and over—it would be immoral for the President, for the Secretary of Defense, and those in the Congress not to do everything we can to facilitate the deployment of these defenses on our watch.

If American citizens are killed because we failed in that duty, we have no one to blame but ourselves because the technology is at hand, we have the financial capability of doing it, there is no longer any question about the threat, and we can work with our allies. All that is left is the will to move forward to do this.

The final point I wish to make is this: There are those who say we already have a deterrence; it is our nuclear deterrence; and no one would dare mess with the United States because of that.

There are two problems with that. The first is that we need an option to annihilating millions of people on the globe. If our only reaction to an attack against us is to respond in kind—in fact, more than in kind—and annihilate, incinerate, literally, millions of people, most of whom are totally innocent, in countries least some kind of irrational rogue dictator—if that is our only response, it is an immoral response when we have an alternative, and that is a defense that can protect the United States and deter that aggression in the first place.

Secondly, it is much more effective to have this additional response, because at the end of the day there gets to be a point where people wonder whether that nuclear threat is even credible. It is certainly credible against a massive nuclear attack against the United States, but is it credible against a limited attack by some irrational dictator, against the United States or our allies, that we would, then, in turn, annihilate all of the citizens of his country? That is something we have never been able to answer and we don't want to answer because we want to leave out there the notion that we might respond with that kind of nuclear deterrent, but it becomes less and less likely as time goes on.

That is why we need this alternative—another option, a moral option, the option of defense—not just the option of massive nuclear retaliation.

Mr. President, I appreciate this opportunity to address the Senate today on the threat to the United States from the proliferation of ballistic missile technology and the debate on deployment of a national missile defense system.

I recently had the pleasure, Mr. President, of attending the annual Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe, Munich, Germany. This conference, for those unfamiliar with it, is a gathering of U.S., European and Asian foreign and defense ministers, miscellaneous civilian defense experts, and prominent members of the media. Senators McCain and Lieberman led the U.S. delegation. Of particular note, Defense Secretary Rumsfeld utilized the conference to make his first major address in his capacity as head of the nation's military establishment. The main topic of his address, not surprisingly, was the Bush Administration's intention to proceed with deployment of a National Missile Defense system, in consultation with our NATO allies.

The Munich Conference, as has been evident in the plethora of news stories that have appeared since, illustrated the scale of opposition among our allies as well as among countries like Russia and China. Fears of precipitating an arms race with Russia and China while driving an irreparable wedge between the United States and Europe were palpable. They were, however, equally misplaced.

Few issues within the realm of national security affairs have been as divisive and prone to alarmist hyperbole than the development of ballistic missile defenses. It really is, in a sense, almost surrealistic to contemplate a country that will spend hundreds of billions of dollars to launch a missile defense while conceding to its adversaries the freedom to destroy our cities if only they develop long-range ballistic missiles. And in anticipating the usual rejoinder that our military superiority will surely deter such adventurism, we should remember that the very same nuclear-armed missiles in our direction, let us focus a minute to two on the history of warfare in the missile age. It really is quite illuminating.

Deterrence, Mr. President, is a concept. And certainly, defensive or potential adversary will refrain from taking an action or actions detrimental to our national interest if it fears a debilitating retaliatory attack. The history of man, however, is the history of war, and the history of war is the history of deterrence—and diplomacy—failing. A nation at war will rarely refrain from employing those means at its disposal, especially when regime survival is at stake.

Moreover, a point of particular relevance to discussions of missile defenses, is the tendency of defeated regimes to strike out irrationally. A defeated Nazi German fired over 2,400 V-1 and 500 V-2 rockets at London, causing over 67,000 casualties, including 7,600 deaths. During the 1973 Yom Kippur War, Egypt launched Scud missiles at Israel. The so-called "War of the Cities" during the eight-year Iran-Iraq War saw almost 300 Scud missiles exchanged between combatants with little or no anticipation that such actions would facilitate victory. In April 1986, Libya, in response to U.S. air strikes that were in themselves a response to Libyan-sponsored terrorist acts, launched two Scud missiles at a U.S. facility in Italy. That they landed harmlessly in the Mediterranean does not diminish the significance of the event in the context of the use of missiles by hostile regimes.

While deterrence should remain a fundamental tenet of our national security strategy, it is not enough. Clearly, we cannot assume, nor base the security of our population, on our own estimations of the calculations occurring in the minds of hostile dictators, especially during periods of heightened tensions. The historical record should be sufficient to convince all of us that missile proliferation is a serious problem—certainly, on that, we all agree—and that those missiles can and may be used, either in the throes of defeat or as the result of a failed attempt to deter the United States from acting in defense of our vital national interests in regions like the Middle and Far East. As recent as the mid-eighties, in the book "Saddam's Bombmaker," written by the former chief engineer of Iraq's nuclear weapons program, includes a passage suggesting, based upon the author's personal observations of Saddam Hussein, that the Iraqi dictator fully intends to launch nuclear-armed missiles against Israel in the event he becomes convinced that his personal demise is inevitable. Should he attain the capability to launch an intercontinental range weapon, I think it is no stretch of the imagination to add the United States to that list.

The case of Iran is equally worrisome. Last Fall, we undertook a rather impromptu debate on the nature of security arrangements between the United States and Iran. The case of Iran is equally worrisome. Last Fall, we undertook a rather impromptu debate on the nature of security arrangements between the United States and Iran. the text of the law, on conventional arms transfers from Russia to Iran. Something of a given, as far as the Clinton administration’s posture was concerned, with that the Russian-Iranian military relationship had been largely counteracted by the presence of a former vice president’s diplomatic skills.

Putting aside the subsequent abrogation of the Secret Gorbachev-Deng Xiaoping Pact and the emergence of a more open and vibrant conventional arms trade between Russia and Iran, the issue of missile and nuclear-technology transfers was clearly presumed to be under control. Secret diplomacy and bilateral informal points to the contrary. More disturbing, the relationship is unquestionably above the government-to-government level. The Clinton administration’s arguments that individual Russian entities were circumventing good-faith Russian efforts at stemming the flow of nuclear and missile technology to Iran, the basis of its veto of the Iran Non-proliferation Act, were wholly without merit. The issue of Russian assistance to Iran’s most prominent defense analyst, Pavel Felgenhauer, was recently quoted as stating, “We are brothers-in-arms, and have long-term interests together.” And Eugene B. Raisanen, the Soviet ambassador to Moscow, characterized Iran’s December 2000 visit to Iran to conclude the new arms agreement was trumpeted by Sergeyev as ushering in a “new phase of military and technical cooperation.”

A February 13, 2001 CIA report act on foreign assistance to Iran’s weapons of mass destruction, missile and advanced conventional weapons programs, submitted pursuant to the requirements of the fiscal year 2001 intelligence authorization act, includes the following:

Cooperation between Iran’s ballistic missile program and Russian aerospace entities has been a matter of increasing proliferation concern. Russia is second half of the year. Iran continues to acquire Russian technology which could significantly accelerate the ballistic missile development program. Assistance by Russian entities has helped Iran save years in developing the Shahab-3, a 1,300-kilometer-range missile. Russian assistance is playing a critical role in Iran’s ability to develop more sophisticated and longer-range missiles. Russian entities have helped the Iranian missile effort in areas ranging from training, to testing, to components. Similarly, Iran’s missile program has acquired a broad range of assistance from an array of Russian entities of many sizes and many areas of specialization.

Similarly, the Department of Defense’s January 2001 report, Proliferation: Threat and Response, states with respect to Russian-Iran nuclear cooperation, that:

Although [the Iranian nuclear complex] Bushehr [which is receiving substantial Russian assistance] will fall under IAEA safeguards, Iran is using this project to seek access to more sensitive nuclear technologies from Russia and to develop expertise in related technologies. Any such projects will help Iran augment its nuclear technology infrastructure, which in turn would support Iran’s intent to acquire nuclear weapons research and development.

Finally, and not to belabor the point, the Director of Central Intelligence George Tenet recently testified before the Intelligence Committee that Russian entities “last year continued to supply a variety of ballistic missile-related goods and technical know-how to countries such as Iran, India, China, and Libya.” Mr. Tenet emphasized this point several times in his testimony, stating, “the transfer of ballistic missile technology from Russia to Iran was substantial last year, and in our judgment will continue to accelerate Iranian efforts to develop new missiles and to become self-sufficient in production.”

The significance of this relationship is concerning. Opponents of missile defenses have argued both during and after the cold war that the dynamics of warning and response have changed; that we will have sufficient strategic warning of serious threats to our national security to take the necessary measures in response. The entire basis of the Rumsfeld Commission report, and of much of DCI Tenet’s testimony, on the threat from foreign missile programs, particularly Russian and Chinese, indeed, tactical—warning can be severely diminished in the event suspect countries succeed in attaining large-scale technical assistance or complete ballistic missile systems. For example, Russian assistance accomplished by its purchase of Chinese CSS-2 medium-range ballistic missiles and Pakistan did in the case of the Chinese M-11 missile program. That is clearly the case with Iran.

The impact on the proliferation of ballistic and cruise missile technology, as well as of so-called weapons of mass destruction, should not be underestimated. Presidents of either party and their military commanders will undergo a fundamental transformation in their approach to foreign policy commitments and the requirement to project military power in defense of our allies and vital interests if they possess the knowledge that American forces and cities are vulnerable to missiles. We have pondered the scenario wherein our response to an invasion of Kuwait by a nuclear-armed Iran would have been met with the response the 1990 invasion precipitated. Similarly, the oft-cited threat against the United States by Chinese officials in the event we come to the defense of Taiwan should be cause for sober reflection—although the commitment to Taiwan’s security should be equally absolute. The point, Mr. President, is that the development or acquisition by rogue regimes of long-range ballistic missiles will alter our response to crises in an adverse manner. Secretary Rumsfeld summed up the situation well in his speech in Munich when he stated, “Terror weapons don’t need to be fired to threaten the hands of people who would threaten their use.”

The need for continued development and deployment of systems to defend against missiles is real. We lost eight precious years during which the previous administration stood steadfast in opposition to its most fundamental requirement to provide for the common defense. No where in the Constitution is there a qualification from that responsibility for certain types of threats to the American population, and I doubt one would have been proposed by the framers if they had been in office. Furthermore, if they were unlikely, I believe, to have supported a policy wherein the United States would defend itself against most threats, but deliberately leave itself vulnerable to the most dangerous.

We can research missile defenses in perpetuity and not attain the level of protection some have projected; however, deploy viable systems to the field intent on improving them over time as new technologies are developed. We do it with ships, tanks, and fighter aircraft. The value of having fielded systems both as testbeds and for that measure of protection they will provide, while incorporating improvements as they emerge, is the only path available to us if we are serious about defending our cities against ballistic missile attack.

Yes, I know that a multibillion dollar missile defense system will not protect against the suitcase bomb smuggled in via cargo ship. But let us not pretend that we are not talking actions to defend against that contingency as well. Arguments that posit one threat against another in that manner are entirely specious. As I’ve noted, the history of the missile age is not of static displays developed at great expense for the purpose of idol worship. It is of weaponry intended to deter other countries from acting, and to be used when militarily necessary or psychologically expedient. We can’t wish them away, and the fact of proliferation is indisputable. The deployment of a National Missile Defense system is the most important step we can take to protect the people we are here to represent. They expect nothing less.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Iowa.

DEFENSE

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I was hoping Thursday afternoon to be on the floor with Senator BYRD as he spoke about some issues dealing with the Defense Department. I ask my fellow Senators and on behalf of those who are interested in defense matters to read Senator BYRD’s speech on page 1236 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of February 8. I will comment, not as comprehensively as he did, about some problems I have with the Department of Defense. I will read one paragraph from his speech. It is related to a lot of work that I have been doing in the Senate for quite a few years on the lack of accountability in cost management and investment some demand. We can, generally, the condition of the books in the Defense Department, which is also the basis for my remarks today.
I quote from Senator BYRD's speech: So here's the question I have. If the Department of Defense does not know what it has in terms of assets and liabilities, how on Earth can it know what it needs?

We have to take the position where the new President of the United States is making a judgment of how much money he should suggest over the next few years to increase defense expenditures.

The President this week is highlighting an issue that I think the President needs to be complimented. He has put off for a while until the new Secretary of Defense can do a study of Defense Department needs and missions before making the specific judgment of how much money should be spent.

This is somewhat different than what President Reagan did in 1981 when the judgment was that just spending more money on defense automatically brings you more and a better defense. Obviously, at that time more money needed to be spent—exactly how much needed to be spent was not so clear. A lot more money was appropriated, creating a situation where an Assistant Secretary of Defense at that particular time said there was so much money allocated and the moneybags on the steps of the Pentagon and said to them: Defense contractors, come and get it.

I think we look back and know some of that money probably was not wisely spent, but we do give credit to President Reagan for spending more, and in a sense challenging the Soviets in a way so they had to call a halt to the cold war. That saved the taxpayers a lot of money in the long term. Now we have a President who has time to think about what should be done and is giving it the proper consideration.

So I want to start out by complimenting President Bush for his approach to ramping up defense expenditures. In our history, there is a general consensus among both political parties that more ought to be spent. Since we are going to spend more, it ought to be spent very wisely. President Bush deserves the thanks of the American taxpayers for being very careful.

He has stated there is a need for an immediate increase in pay and housing for military people to enhance their morale and keep dedicated people who are already trained, give them a financial incentive for staying in instead of getting out and going into the private sector—he is moving ahead on those few things. But on the larger question of increasing expenditures, particularly for enhanced weaponry and new weapons, he is waiting until there is a study completed. I thank him for doing that.

Regardless, as Senator BYRD said, we ought to have a set of books, an accounting system, at the Defense Department that is not only such that we know what the situation is, how much we have in inventory, how much is actually being paid for a weapons system, but when we have a bill to pay, we ought to know what we got for that bill. What goods and services were received? The point is, we do not now have that information. That was the point of Senator BYRD's question. It is the point of my question to the Department.

But my questioning points I have been raising with the Defense Department now for a period of probably 4 or 5 years or longer.

I am truly honored to have an opportunity to ask the Secretary of Defense to testify today on the point that Senator BYRD spoke on last Thursday. I am hoping the Secretary will report to West Virginia and this Senator from Iowa can team up this year in a search for a solution. As many of my colleagues know, I have been wrestling with this problem for a number of years, and, candidly, without a whole lot of success in getting the Defense Department to change their bad accounting, and not having a basis, then, on which to ask for further increases into the military budget, I have to come to the floor of the Senate and speak about this many times. I have raised these same concerns during hearings before the Budget Committee.

As chairman of the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Administrative Oversight, I have investigated this problem and held hearings on it. I have offered legislation on it and some of that legislation has been incorported, thanks to Senator BYRD and Senator STEVENS, with the ranking minority on the Appropriations Committee, in various Department of Defense appropriations bills.

The General Accounting Office and the Pentagon's inspector general have issued report after report after report exposing these same problems. In fact, their investigative work has been the basis for some of my remarks in the past.

So here we have, again, last week, this issue being raised by the Senator from Iowa. I am happy to have somebody of Senator BYRD's stature asking pertinent questions because then people pay attention. People listen up. That also applies to my listening and reading what the Senator from West Virginia had to say last week.

Senator BYRD started his inquiry maybe months and years ago, for all I know, but it came to my attention when he was participating in a hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee. It was on the nomination of Mr. Rumsfeld for Secretary of Defense. My gut sense tells me Senator BYRD's question sent shock waves through the Pentagon. When I read about it in the newspaper the next day, I asked my staff to get the transcript and fax it to me because I was home in my State of Iowa. I studied the exchange between Senator BYRD and Secretary designate Rumsfeld very carefully. What I heard was music to my ears.

In a nutshell, Senator BYRD was talking about the Pentagon's continuing inability to earn a clean opinion under the Chief Financial Officer's Act audit. That act was passed in 1990. So we have been down this road, now, for 10 years. I hope in most departments of Government we have accomplished something. It does not seem as if we have in the case of the Pentagon.

In the Chief Financial Officer's Act, the Pentagon must prepare financial statements each year. Those are then subjected to an independent audit by the General Accounting Office and the Inspector General. Senator BYRD, on January 11, questioned Mr. Rumsfeld about the report of the latest Chief Financial Officer's audit by the inspector general. Senator BYRD stated at that time, and I quote from the transcripts:

DOD has yet to receive a clean audit opinion in its financial statements.

Senator BYRD went on to quote from a recent article in the Los Angeles Times about the Pentagon accounting mess. Again, I quote from the transcript of a statement of Senator BYRD:

The Pentagon's books are in such utter disarray that no one knows what America's military actually owns or spends.

As Senator BYRD knows, this quote contains a very powerful message. This is the message that I glean from that quote: The Pentagon does not know how much it spends. It does not know if it gets what it orders in goods and services. And the Pentagon, additionally, does not have a handle on its inventory. If the Pentagon does not know what it owns and spends, then how does the Pentagon know if it needs more money? We, as Senators, presume already that the Pentagon needs more money—because there is kind of a bipartisan agreement to that, and President Bush won an election with that as one of his key points. We need to know more, and a sound accounting system is the basis for that judgment.

Of course, that is the logic that was the foundation of Senator BYRD's next question to Mr. Rumsfeld. I will quote again from January 11:

I seriously question an increase in the Pentagon's budget in the Defense Department in the Department's recent [inspector general] report. How can we seriously consider a $96 billion increase in the Defense Department budget when the [Department of Defense's] own auditors—when DOD's own auditors—say the department cannot account for $2.3 trillion in transactions in 1 year alone.

I agree with Senator BYRD's logic 100 percent. Rampaging the Pentagon budget when the books are a mess is highly questionable at best. To some it might seem crazy. And, of course, as I said about President Bush, and I compliment him for it, he appears to be reacting cautiously to pressure to pump up the defense budget, at least to do it now. He will do it in his own deliberate way, and hopefully with the adequate information to make a wise decision of how much the increase should be.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

S1251

... until the Pentagon has completed a top-to-bottom review of its long-term needs. I think this was reiterated by the President yesterday in his message to our men and women in uniform when he was down at Fort Stewart. So this sound of change is welcome and I only hope that the President is asking for a searching examination on the need to clean up the accounting books. This brings me to the bottom line, Senator BYRD’s very last question on January 11:

What do you plan to do about this, Mr. Rumsfeld?

This is where the rubber meets the road. What do we do? What does the Secretary of Defense do, because he is in the driver’s seat on this, to clean up the books? As I said a moment ago, I have been working on this problem for a long time and I am not happy with the Pentagon’s response today, even though I am happy with the response of people such as Senator STEVENS and Senator GRASSLEY. They have helped us get some language in appropriations bills to bring some changes in this behavior.

I think the Pentagon has a negative attitude about fixing the problem.

The bureaucrat in the Pentagon says that this is the way it has always been. And it ain’t going to change—at least not in our lifetime. It’s just too hard to do.

The former CFO at the Pentagon, Mr. John Hamre, compared it to trying to change a tire on a car that was going 100 miles per hour.

Well, I just can’t buy that. That is not acceptable to me.

This reminds me of the football team that loses one game after another. If I were the coach, I might say: Hey, it’s time to go back to basics—like blocking and tackling drills every day.

I think the Pentagon needs to do the same thing—go back to basics—like accounting 101.

I will be the first to admit that I lack a full and complete understanding of the true magnitude of this problem.

Bookkeeping is a complicated and arcane field. And it’s very boring. So it does not command much attention around here.

But over the years, I have learned one important lesson about government bookkeeping. Bookkeeping is the key to controlling the money, and making sure that the taxpayers money is well spent.

Bookkeeping is the key to CFO compliance.

If the books of account are accurate and complete, it’s easy to follow the money trail. That makes it hard to steal the money.

But, contrary to bookkeeping is sloppy—just like the Pentagon today—then there is no money trail. That means financial accounts are vulnerable to theft and abuse.

And that is exactly where the IG and GAO say that the Pentagon is today.

Every one of their report shows that bureaucrats at the Pentagon fail to perform routine bookkeeping functions day in and day out.

The IG and GAO reports show that financial transactions are not recorded in the Pentagon’s books of account as they occur—promptly and accurately.

They show that some payments are deliberately posted to the wrong accounts. Some financial transactions are not recorded in the books for months or even years and sometimes never.

They show that the Pentagon regularly makes underpayments, overpayments, duplicate payments, erroneous payments, and even fraudulent payments. And in most of the time, there is no follow up effort to correct the mistakes.

These reports show that DOD has no effective capability for tracking the quantity, value, and locations of assets and inventory.

Double-entry bookkeeping is needed for that, but double-entry bookkeeping is a non-starter at the Pentagon. It doesn’t exist.

In sum, Mr. President, these reports show that DOD has lost control of the money at the transaction level.

With no control at the transaction level, it is physically impossible to roll up all the numbers into a top-line financial statement that can stand up to scrutiny and, most importantly, audit.

Sloppy accounting generates billions of dollars in unreconciled mismatches between accounting, inventory, and disbursing records.

Bureaucrats at the Pentagon regularly try to close the gap with ‘phony figures, but the IG is not fooled by that trick.

Billions and billions of dollars of unreconciled mismatches make it impossible to audit the books.

As a result, each year the Pentagon gets a failing grade on its annual financial statements required by law. Each year, the IG issues a ‘disclaimer of opinion’ because the books don’t balance.

This brings me back to where I started.

Senator BYRD shined a bright beam of light on this very problem at Mr. Rumsfeld’s hearing.

I thank him from the bottom of my heart.

By asking a few simple questions, the distinguished Senator from West Virginia has stirred up a hornets nest.

I am hoping that his interest will encourage the new leadership in the Pentagon to move in the right direction.

I hope the new leadership will help the bureaucrats find some old time religion.

What I am hoping is that we can find a way to convert this inertia into a long-term solution.

But Mr. Rumsfeld has to find the will to do it.

If the will is there, the way will be found.

When I talk about going back to basic accounting 101 stuff, I am not suggesting that DOD break out old-fashioned ledger books.

Today, bookkeeping and inventory control is done electronically, using highly integrated computer systems. Large companies like Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. are famous for doing it with ease. Wal-Mart has a transaction-driven system. It is updated instantaneously when a transaction occurs at a cash register anywhere in the system.

Why can’t the Pentagon do it?

I made an all-out effort to fix it two years ago.

With the help and support of the Budget and Armed Services Committees, I crafted what I considered to be a legislative remedy.

Those provisions are embodied in Sections 933 and 1007 of the FY2000 defense authorization act—Public Law 106–55.

I thought my legislative remedy would move the Department of Defense towards a clean audit, and that they would get an OK under the Chief Financial Officers Act from the inspector general and the General Accounting Office within 2 years. That was the point of my amendment.

Well, guess what. We are two years down the road, and the clean opinion is nowhere in sight.

And there is nothing coming down the pike or on the distant horizon that tells me that we will get there any time soon.

DOD simply does not have the tools in place to get the job done.

So I am hoping that the Senator from Iowa and the Senator from West Virginia can put their heads together and find a solution.

I am hoping we can work together to craft a more successful approach.

For starters, I have a recommendation to make to my friend from West Virginia.

In the near future, I would expect Secretary Rumsfeld to nominate a person to be his Under Secretary for financial management—the Comptroller and Chief Financial Officer.

This is his CFO.

The person responsible for cleaning up the books and bringing the Pentagon into compliance with the CFO Act.

I would like for us to sit down with this individual immediately after nomination—and long before confirmation.

I would like to ask the same question that Senator BYRD asked Mr. Rumsfeld: Mr. Secretary, what do you plan to do about this?

First, I would expect this person to make a firm commitment to financial reform and to Chief Financial Officer’s Act compliance. Second, I would not expect a final solution on the spot. However, prior to confirmation, I would expect this individual to provide us with a general framework and a timetable for reform. When can we expect to see a clean audit opinion? I will want the nominee to provide a satisfactory answer to that question.

I hope the Senate from West Virginia can put that is a good thing for us to ask the next CFO of DOD. As the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, I am deeply troubled by... the Pentagon’s negative—I don’t care—attitude towards bookkeeping. I see good bookkeeping as a constitutional responsibility of every department of Government. Taking cash out of the pockets of hard-working Americans and appropriations to an agency that fails at it is just not acceptable. That must change.

Now, in my new position on the Finance Committee, the Senator from Iowa is responsible for legislation that authorizes the Government to reach deep into every citizen’s pocket to get this money. I want to be certain that money is spent wisely. No. 1, and No. 2, I want to be sure that there is an audit trail on that money for all of us to see. That audit trail, that accounting system, that information in that accounting system on past expenditures is a very necessary basis for President Bush and Mr. Rumsfeld to make a decision of how much more the Defense Department budget should be ramped up.

I think the Senator from West Virginia for his willingness to work on this issue. Trying to solve the bookkeeping problem at the Pentagon, earning a clean audit opinion, would restore accountability to bookkeeping at the Pentagon. This is a worthy cause. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

THE MILITARY BUDGET

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I will continue on with a few more comments about military security issues, which is being highlighted this week, of course, by the President.

We have talked about the most obvious issue dealing with the military; that is, having to do something for personnel. Without that, we can’t have a military. We can’t have defense. Furthermore, it is very unfair. We ask people in the military to serve the country, and they do that willingly. We have a responsibility to ensure that they are reasonably reimbursed and their living conditions are kept as high as possible.

Obviously, the military budget is one of considerable concern. It is the largest item in discretionary spending. We have discretionary spending of about $630 billion. Nearly half of that, $300 billion, is defense. It is very large. On the other hand, when we ask our country to defend against threats around the world—and this is not necessarily a peaceful world at this time—then we have to do it. It will be expensive. We are faced with, of course—at least in the notion of many—what has been a period somewhat of neglect over the last 8 years where the military has not had the highest priority, has not had as high a level of support as many believe it should have.

Last year the uniformed Service Chiefs testified to a requirement of between $450 and $500 billion in additional funding above the 5-year projected budget. That is the impression, that is the notion from the military leadership of the amount of dollars that are essential. One of the things that may be obvious is that in terms of needs is that while the military has not been supported as highly and as strongly as it might be, this administration that just passed has deployed more troops overseas than at any previous time during the same length of time. In the past decade, our active duty manpower has been reduced by about a third, active Army divisions have been cut by almost 50 percent. Not all that is bad, of course.

As the Senator from Iowa indicated, there are things that need to be made. Certainly the economic accounting, the management of the economics in the military could stand some strengthening. I am sure that is the case. We ought to expect that kind of expenditure in dollars. However, we do find ourselves in a state where we do need to change things.

The lack of spare parts for aging systems has forced the military to take parts off of other vehicles and other airplanes to make things work. It is so widespread that personnel in the Air Force apparently spent $178,000 man-hours over 2 years removing parts from bombers and fighters and transports, some of those kinds of things, that certainly do not bode well for the kind of military we, indeed, want to have.

Obviously, there are needs for change. Often bureaucracies—and frankly, the military has its share of bureaucracies—can make change: We have always done it that way so we are going to continue to do it that way. Certainly that can’t be the case with the military, as things have changed fundamentally.

I heard testimony this week before one of the committees that indicated there could be a good deal more cooperation and unification among the branches of the military to make it more economic. That is probably true. One of the things that is considered is the national missile defense. There is a great deal of interest in that. It is not a new idea. It has been around for about 20 years. It certainly has merit. If we thought we could develop some kind of an overall network of defensive mechanisms that would be a wonderful thing to do. On the other hand, there is a substantial question about the costs. I think there is substantial question even about the technology. It has not yet been designed in a way so that even if we are ready to sacrifice some of the other things that we do because we are talking about doing a national missile defense.

First of all, as I mentioned, it is very expensive. We don’t really know the cost. I have been to Space Command in Colorado Springs, CO. They indicated that even though they are enthusiastic about it and doing experiments, we haven’t reached the technological level where it would work. I think there is a legitimate role for the missile defense system. However, if we are going to run into, No. 1, the cost; No. 2, technology; and No. 3, certainly we are going to have difficulties dealing with some other countries in terms of the agreements that we have.

I think we need to understand that, at least from what we know about it now, it is going to be a relatively limited defense system, probably based on the islands of Alaska. It will be designed to deal with rogue states that have very limited capacity but certainly have the capability to shoot a missile in the United States, even though certainly that would not win a conflict for them. But it would do a great deal of damage to us.

I think the Space Command is working on the kind of system that would be there in case something came from a couple of the countries that are likely to be out of control in doing these kinds of things. They would be limited to defending against a limited number of missiles. They would be able to deal with the whole issue of a major missile attack, of course.

I guess what I am saying is that we now have a nuclear capacity of our own, probably the strongest in the world. We have had it for a good long time. We deal in three areas, of course, land-based missiles, ship-to-ground missiles, and ground-to-air missiles. They constitute a very important part of our defense in terms of a deterrent. I think it is very necessary to continue to do that.

The President has talked about reducing the number of nuclear weapons. I think that makes sense. We are in the process of doing that now. We are in the process of removing some of our missiles under START I, and we are moving toward the restrictions that will be there in START II, in terms of the land-based missiles we have had over time, of course, the peacekeepers that have been multiple warhead missiles. These are being changed and replaced by the Minuteman III missiles, which would be a single warhead. We can do a good deal of reduction through this ongoing arrangement. There are needs, in my view, however, to be the time START II or even START III was agreed to with the Russians, a minimum of 500 missiles that we would have, which brings us down to that 2,000 missiles that we talked about—those missiles we talked about in START I and II. We would have that.

There is some talk about the idea of a hair trigger alert. There was something on TV last weekend, taken from command room in one of these missile silos. I have been through this, and the fact is, there is a real system for ensuring that is not a hair trigger kind of a thing. It doesn’t happen unless there is approval from three different areas before it is done. But more importantly than anything, I think it does really take from us the day-to-day deterrent that is out there, and the idea, of course, that if you only had a few missiles, you put your missiles in that place and do not move with those—when you have them spread as we do now, basically about three different places land-based, then it is possible to do that.

I guess I am encouraged that we are talking about a missile defense system, that it would be there to augment the idea of maintaining our capacity to have this deterrence. I think it is terribly important that we do that as part of our strategy. We can move forward to reduce those numbers and get down to a START II agreement. I hope we do that.

We are going to be going forward, of course, on a number of things that all have to do with budgets, all have to do, then, with surpluses and taxes. These things are all related, of course, and should be handled frankly, factually, that the standpoint of the budget, that the President pursues the idea that we ought to be able to have a budget that is basically inflation increases, which we were happy with year substantially.

Occasionally, there are areas certainly in health care—where we are going to want to expand. But I think regardless of the surplus it is important that we try to keep Government spending under control in some way. We seem to think if there is money, we ought to spend it. I think when you go into the country and talk to people, they are very concerned about having a Federal Government that is continuously growing, that is more and more going to affect our lives. And when you would like to see these kinds of activities shifted back to the States, counties, and local governments, where Government is closest to the people being governed.

So when we talk about budgets, we have to look at that in terms of the tax reductions. We are finding from the other side of the aisle a good deal of resistance to returning the money that people have overpaid in taxes to the people who paid it. That is a pretty stiff argument to undertake. We need, of course, to set up spending to pay down the debt. I think we have an opportunity to deal with these things in a balanced way so we can come out of this session of Congress—if we are really persuaded as to what we want to do, I hope we may give some thought, individually and collectively, to what we want to have accomplished when this session of Congress is over. What do we want to have accomplished? What do we want to say we have been able to do in terms of controlling spending? What are our goals in terms of paying down the debt?

I think these are some of the things we talk about a great deal. We talk about them kind of independently and, obviously, everybody has a different idea, and that is legitimate. It seems to me that we are able to establish fairly and collectively some goals, some vision of where we want to be, what we want to have accomplished when these 2 years are over, and then be able to measure the things we do again against those goals.

Unfortunately, I am afraid that, from time to time, it is not always the measurement of individual actions as to how they contribute to overall attainment. Will there be agreement on all of those things? Of course not. That is the nature of this place, the nature of any group that makes decisions. They don’t all agree. They have different views and values, and we have to deal with that. There is nothing wrong with that. But we want to be able to move toward accomplishing those things that we believe are good for the country, good for the long-term merits, and that, it seems to me, is our challenge.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I understand there have been speeches given this morning with respect to the military and the decision by President Bush to send more troops overseas. I want to look at what is happening in the military—a pause, if you will, in the funding and planning until we get our hands around exactly where things are.

I want to comment about the wisdom of that particular approach. If I may, I want to go back to the most inconsequential military career perhaps in the history of America—my own. It will demonstrate what happens in the military and demonstrate the power of inertia. Having finished first, once again the program that was established would expire before the next class would convene.

I spent the remainder of my time in the day room, or at the post library, or doing other things because there was absolutely nothing for me to do. At the time I wondered: Doesn’t anybody review these things? Doesn’t anybody look at this and say: Wait a minute, this is a program that has long since ceased its usefulness. It should be stopped, and we should just forget this? No, nobody did. I got so bored, I went in and volunteered to teach other classes and had to go back to school, if you will, on my own time to learn logarithms because I was a collateral graduate; the others were draftees who were high school graduates; and if I had not finished first, it would have been a disgrace.

Having finished first, once again the inertia is such that the military decreed that I should become an instructor and that the next sound ranging course that would go through Fort Sill, OK, would be taught by me. This is very flattering, except that my time on active duty with the National Guard would expire before the next class would convene.

I and my fellow classmates were put through a program on sound ranging. I got so bored, I went in and volunteered to teach other classes and had to go back to school, if you will, on my own time to learn logarithms because I was a collateral graduate; the others were draftees who were high school graduates; and if I had not finished first, it would have been a disgrace.

As I was going through the airport, flying back for this week's session, a book caught my eye. Tom Clancy is the author. We all know Tom Clancy. The reason it caught my eye was his mention of a military officer who had helped him respect to the Gulf War, a man named Chuck Horner. I met Chuck Horner when he was the commander of the U.S. Space Command, a four-star general located in Colorado Springs. He was the commander of the air war in the Gulf. He was the top Air Force officer who was in that war. And I found him fascinating, and when I saw his name on the cover of this book written by Tom Clancy, I decided to buy the book because I wanted to learn more about General Horner.

The reason I found him fascinating, among other things, was this statement he made to me during the time I spent with him. He said: The Gulf War was the first war fought from space. Tanks got positioned by virtue of instructions that came from space. Colin Powell said this was the war where the infantryman goes into the field with a rifle in one hand and a laptop in the other. Even that is now obsolete because he would take a palm pilot instead of a laptop; a laptop would be too cumbersome.

The Army, with its current advertising campaign, is beginning to talk about that. I am not sure it is the right advertising campaign—every soldier is an army of one—but it demonstrates how vastly changed things are.

Against that background where those things not only have changed but are changing, doesn’t it make sense for the Secretaries of Defense to say it is time for us to pause in the direction we are going in our procurement, in our threat assessment, in our strength establishment, and look toward the kind of military we are going to need in the future? Isn’t it time for us to take a break now and have an immediate military threat and reassess from top to bottom everything we are doing?

I think it demonstrates the maturity of the Bush administration that Secretary Rumsfeld is engaged in this kind of activity. I think it demonstrates that the Bush administration has a very long-headed view of life; that they are not looking to this week or next week; they are not looking to the current polls; they are not looking at what, in terms of special interest groups, that has an attitude toward the military; they are saying: What does America need for the next decade? What kind of long-term decision can we make that will make America prepare for the different kind of threat we are facing? I think it means a military that will very quickly say we don’t need any sound ranging classes, and we don’t need any people sitting around with nothing to do. There is far too much to do in terms of planning and getting the dedicated part of the military, so I applaud President Bush for this decision, I applaud Secretary Rumsfeld for carrying it out, and I wish to make it clear that this Senator will do everything he can to support and sustain this effort.

I yield the floor.

RECESS UNTIL 2:15 P.M.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 12:30 having arrived, the Senate will now stand in recess until the hour of 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:31 p.m., recessed until 2:14 p.m.; whereupon, the clerk reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. INHOFE).

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until 2:45 p.m. shall be under the control of the Senator from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, or his designee.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to address the Senate in morning business for no longer than 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The remarks of Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire and Mr. KYL pertaining to the introduction of S. 305 are located in today's Record under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the time until 3:15 shall be under the control of the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. THOMAS, or his designee.

The Senator from Arizona.

NEED FOR MILITARY IMPROVEMENTS

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I would like to turn my attention this afternoon to something a little bit more immediate in terms of the Senate's actions. We all saw the news yesterday of the President's visit to Fort Stewart in Georgia. In fact, I spoke with a colleague of ours who has been with the President on that trip. She talked about the rather sorry state of the military barracks she visited, and the need for improvements to the military quality of life all around the country, exemplified by the President's visit to Fort Stewart.

As a result of his visit, the President has made some very forward-leaning announcements about improvement of the quality of life, including $5.7 billion in new spending—$4 billion for military pay increases, $400 million to improve military housing, $3.9 billion to improve military health benefits, $5.7 billion on new spending for the people in our military. I am certain that part of that will have to come from a so-called supplemental appropriations bill.

For those who are not totally familiar with the work of the Senate, ordinarily about this time of the year, the Senate has to provide some infusion of cash to the military because of unforeseen expenditures and some that really were not so unforeseen but which were not budgeted for. For example, we know we will have to be in Bosnia and Kosovo and some other places in the world. Unfortunately, the previous administration never budgeted for those operations in advance, so the military had to pay for those operations out of hide.

They had to not buy certain spare parts, not sail ships during certain hours, not provide for maintenance of facilities and installations, deferring the purchase of new equipment. Instead of doing that, they had to make do.

Each year, we have had, therefore, a supplemental appropriations bill. Basically, the bill comes due. It has to be paid one way or another, sooner or later. We will have to do that same thing this year.

The President has decided to wait a little bit to make sure he knows exactly how much is needed. By the way, I hope President Bush will say to the Congress: I found out that we needed exactly—and then give us the number. Let's assume it is $5 billion, for the sake of argument—I would like the Congress to provide $5 billion in supplemental appropriations to get our military into shape, to get our military ready. That is how much we need, and I will veto a bill that is a dollar less or a dollar more.

In other words, this should not become a Christmas tree for everyone's favorite project. I urge the President to give us an exact figure and tell us it is on our shoulders to pass that supplemental appropriations bill for him, for the military, and to reject any change we may make, therefore, removing the temptation some of our colleagues have to load those bills up with things that don't really pertain to necessities for the military.

I also want to suggest that we are going to need that supplemental appropriations bill not just for the quality of life of our military but for readiness. Certainly, the President knows this better than almost anybody in this body. Readiness has suffered during the last several years. The justification of two primary circumstances. One, we are deploying troops far more frequently and far-flung around the world than in the past. Two, we have cut the spending year after year, so we don't have the equipment in top shape to send where we need to send it, when we need to send it. Our troops are overstressed. The net result is readiness.

For those who are not familiar, the Senate has to provide some infusions to the military because of unforeseen expenditures. Those expenditures were not budgeted for. Unfortunately, the previous administration never budgeted for those operations in advance. The military had to pay for those operations out of hide. They had to not buy certain spare parts, not sail ships during certain hours, not provide for maintenance of facilities and installations, deferring the purchase of new equipment. Instead of doing that, they had to make do. Each year, we have had, therefore, a supplemental appropriations bill. Basically, the bill comes due. It has to be paid one way or another, sooner or later. We will have to do that same thing this year.

The President has decided to wait a little bit to make sure he knows exactly how much is needed. By the way, I hope President Bush will say to the Congress: I found out that we needed exactly—and then give us the number. Let's assume it is $5 billion, for the sake of argument—I would like the Congress to provide $5 billion in supplemental appropriations to get our military into shape, to get our military ready. That is how much we need, and I will veto a bill that is a dollar less or a dollar more.

In other words, this should not become a Christmas tree for everyone's favorite project. I urge the President to give us an exact figure and tell us it is on our shoulders to pass that supplemental appropriations bill for him, for the military, and to reject any change we may make, therefore, removing the temptation some of our colleagues have to load those bills up with things that don't really pertain to necessities for the military.

I also want to suggest that we are going to need that supplemental appropriations bill not just for the quality of life of our military but for readiness. Certainly, the President knows this better than almost anybody in this body. Readiness has suffered during the last several years. The justification of two primary circumstances. One, we are deploying troops far more frequently and far-flung around the world than in the past. Two, we have cut the spending year after year, so we don't have the equipment in top shape to send where we need to send it, when we need to send it. Our troops are overstressed. The net result is readiness.
That said—and we all understand the need for this review—it is also true that at the same time we are doing that review, we can and should be doing things to improve our military, things we know need to be done; and whatever we are going to be doing in 5, 6, 8, 10 years, we need additional funding to support the troops during the next 5, 6, 8, 10 years.

So it is not a matter of either/or, or first we do a review and then decide how much to spend. We know we need to spend some money now and we also need to reevaluate our long-term strategy so we can better fix our spending for the future.

For those who say we can't do anything until all of that is done, I say listen to those who are expert, who have testified to this in the past, the Joint Chiefs and staff and others, who understand our military requirements right this minute. We are not talking about buying new weapons systems that have to be purchased now. We can't wait to do that. The challenge is that, "more and more, forward operating bases are being put in Iraq, the Philippines, the western part of the Phoenix area not long ago and was told of the 100-plus planes they had there—roughly 10 percent were F-16s, by the way, the top of our fighter line—were being used for cannibalization. That has gotten some better. That illustrates we are cannibalizing our equipment, and we know what the beginning of the end in terms of readiness.

The Navy, the same thing. We could go through all the different services. I won't take the time to do that. These cannibalization rates, not only in the Navy but in the Army, in the Air Force, in the last 4 years, but the problem is most acute among the jet aircraft that are most in demand.

I think there is a broad consensus that we need to be improving our readiness and that those are bills that need to be paid now, equipment that needs to be purchased now. We can't wait until the beginning of the next fiscal year, which is not until October, this fall sometime. I hope when the President sends his supplemental appropriations to us, it will include both the personnel quality of life needs he has already announced, which I think all of us will support very strongly, and in addition to that some immediate needs to improve our readiness, that was going to say "ensure" our readiness, but the fact is, we can't do enough in supplemental appropriations to ensure readiness. We can just begin to get to the point where we have the state of readiness we really desire.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Congressional Budget Office, and various independent analysts from groups such as Brookings Institution and the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessment, and former secretaries of defense, such as Harold Brown and Jim Slessinger—all of these groups and individuals, and many more, have come to the conclusion that we are going to need to increase defense spending over the next several years, and we are going to have to do it fairly dramatically.

I applaud the administration's efforts to examine what we really need, what we can do without, and how we are going to structure our forces to meet the new challenges of the 21st century. It is time to get out of the old thinking and keep putting money into the same old weapons projects.
That is an area where we are going to have to spend money into the budget to ramp those missile defense programs back up to where they should be. We are not going to be able to deploy the Navy portion of the missile defense system as we should. The irony is that if we put the money into the budget—and it takes a relatively small amount; my guess is over 4 years about $1.5 billion as an add-on will do the trick—if we were to put that kind of money into the budget, we could actually deploy this missile defense system sooner and more effectively than a land-based system. In any event, we have the two to complement each other. The bottom line is we are going to have to put more money into the missile defense system.

Finally, there has been a suggestion the Department of Energy’s defense weapons component of the budget is going to have to take a big hit. That, too, is a huge mistake because when the proponents of the Comprehensive Nuclear Test-Ban Treaty said we really have a substitute for testing, it is called the Stockpile Stewardship Program. I raised several questions. First, how are we not going to spend money on it than a decade whether it is going to produce results.

Second, I predicted Congress’ desire to continue funding for this program would wane over time. I have been the second staunchest supporter of the way, of funding after our colleague, Pete DOMENICI from New Mexico. Sure enough, now there is a suggestion that the Stockpile Stewardship Program should be shelving.

You cannot have it both ways. You cannot argue on the one hand we do not need to do any testing and on the other hand we need to change the Stockpile Stewardship Program. These are two issues because when I mentioned: the need for research and development, the need for proceeding with the sea-based missile defense system, and the need for stockpile stewardship, all of which are going to require more, not less funding of the defense budget.

That is why at the end of the day, we are going to have to be willing to add money to the defense budget, and if that means it is prior to the administration’s determination that funding is not necessary, it is going to be necessary. Then we are going to have to get behind the President and support his long-term projects, which I know will, in the end, provide a very robust defense for the United States but which, in the meantime, we are going for to have to be very watchful of with respect to the readiness both today and the preparation for that day that the new force of the 21st century has been developed.

These are all matters we will discuss further in the future, but I think they are an important element in discussing this week the President’s plan to strengthen our national security to ensure that we remain the strongest in the world, capable of doing everything we ask of it. I know the President would demand no less.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. KYL. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I know our time is to run until 3:15 p.m. I ask unanimous consent that I be given 15 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I have been listening with a great deal of interest, you, the Arizona, as well as the Senator from New Hampshire. I do, as you mentioned, chair the Armed Services Subcommittee on Readiness. The Subcommittee on Readiness has jurisdiction over training, military construction, the BRAC process, and a few other things.

It is important during this debate that we say it in terms of reality to get the attention of the American people. Since 1996, I have been saying that we in the United States of America are in the most threatened position we have been in in the history of this country. Many people do not believe that. Many people shrug their shoulders and say: This is not true, we are the strongest in the world.

Yes, we may be the strongest in the world at this given time, but with the number of threats, it is questionable whether or not we would be able to defend ourselves adequately, certainly not the millions of the American people, which is defend America on two regional fronts.

When I make this statement that we are in the most threatened position— we had before our committee less than a year ago George Tenet, who is the Director of Central Intelligence and the man who knows more about threats than anyone else in this Nation who was, incidentally, appointed by President Clinton. I asked George Tenet that question: Is it true what I have been saying since 1996, that we are in the most threatened position we have been in as a nation? He said: That’s exactly right. That is from George Tenet.

The reasons we are are threefold. It has been said on the floor but not put together in one thread.

First of all, the obvious is that we are at one-half the force strength we were in 1991 at the end of the Persian Gulf war. What I am saying is we are one-half the force strength—that can be quantified— one-half the Army divisions, one-half the tactical air wings, one-half the ships.

Talking about ships, we were cut down from a 600-ship Navy to a 300-ship Navy. We saw the ship that took place in Yemen with the U.S.S. Cole.

When you stop and think about it, some of the ships that were taken out when we downsized the Navy were the oilers, the tankers that refuel our ships at sea.

We send our fleets from the Mediterranean, through the Suez Canal, down the Red Sea, turn left and go up the Arabian Sea to the Persian Gulf. That is 5,000 miles. We have to have refueling capability.

After the Yemen tragedy, I could not find one vice admiral who did not say if we had not taken out of service at least two of those refuelers, we would have refused at sea, and those sailors would be alive today. We are at one-half force strength. At the same time, we have more than tripled our number of deployments around the world. I might add, these are places where I contend we don’t have national security strategic interests at stake.

In November of 1995, in this Chamber, we were debating whether or not to go into Bosnia. We said on this floor, it is easy to go in; it is hard to get out. We had a poll of disapproval. It wasn’t until President Clinton said: I guarantee if you vote down that resolution of disapproval, we will send the troops over there and they will all be home for Christmas, 1996. Guess what. They are still there.

It will be very difficult to get them out if the same thing happened in Kosovo. Regarding the threat in the Persian Gulf, just to handle the logistics of a war if it should break out in the Persian Gulf, we would have to be 100-percent dependent upon our Guard and Reserve to take care of the defense of this Nation. This is very difficult because the Guard and Reserve components also are down in numbers because of the retention problems we have.

That is serious. When you take that and the number of deployments, along with one-half force strength, the third component is we don’t have a national missile defense system. Sometimes, I say it is handy not to be an attorney in this body because when I read the ABM Treaty that was passed, introduced by the Republicans, back in 1972, between two great superpowers, the U.S.S.R. and the United States, I contend that doesn’t exist anymore. Yet that is the very thing that has been used for the last 8 years by our previous President to keep us from deploying a national missile defense system.

In 1983, we made the decision we were going to do one into effect. We were online to do that until this last administration came in.

Next, I think it is important to realize this euphoric assumption that many have—and the press does not discourage this notion; it might be our force strength is down, our deployment are up—we don’t have a national missile defense system, but there is no threat out there in terms of a national missile defense. Virtually every country on the planet owns or is trying to, try out there has weapons of mass destruction.

Many countries have missiles that will reach the United States of America.

Take China, for example. If they fired a missile, it would take 35 minutes to get here. We have nothing in our arsenal to stop that missile from hitting an American city. Compare my State of Oklahoma and the terrible disaster, the tragedy that took place. The smallest nuclear warhead known to man is 1,000 times greater in explosive power. Think what China has missiles that can reach here. Do other countries besides Russia, North Korea, and China have the missile? We don’t know for sure. They are trading technology and trading systems with countries such as Iran and Iraq, Serbia, Libya, Pakistan, and others. The one thing they have in common is they don’t like us. We have a serious problem.

We don’t have the modernization people think. I heard people say: At least we have the finest equipment in the world.

I was proud of Gen. John Jumper not too many months ago when he came out and sat. Right now we don’t have anything in our arsenal as powerful in terms of air-to-air combat as the SU–27 and the SU–37. It is my understanding, if we go on with the SU–22, it is not as good as the SU–37 they are building today.

Look at our training and retention. We see our pilots leaving. We see our midlevel NCOs leaving. I talked to pilots at Corpus Navy. Forty pilots said: It is not the competition outside; it is not the money. This country has lost its sense of its mission. We are not getting the training we need.

Our Air Force pilots cannot go into the desert and have red flag exercises because we don’t have the money to do it. The Senator from Arizona talked about not having bullets, ammunition. We don’t have bullets and ammunition. RPM accounts, the maintenance accounts, are supposed to be done immediately.

I was at Fort Bragg the other day in a rainstorm. Our troops were covering up equipment with their bodies because we don’t have the money to put a roof on the barracks down there. Our equipment is old. We found some M915 trucks had a million miles on the chassis. They were in bad repair.

We see the cannibalization rate at Travis—C–5s sitting in the field with rotting parts. It is very labor intensive to get the parts back on and to uncrate new parts and replace them. In many areas our mechanics are actually working 14 to 16 hours a day. Our retention is down.

I can think of nothing more significant at this time than to start doing exactly what our new President said he would do when he was on the campaign trail; that is, assess the problems we have now and how can we put ourselves back into position, where, No. 1, we can adequately protect America from an incoming missile.

As the Senator from Arizona said, we might have tried the same thing with the sea-based AEGIS system. We have $50 billion invested in 22 AEGIS ships, but they cannot reach the upper tier. It costs little to get them up to knocking down incoming missiles and they are protecting the troops in North Korea and both coasts in America. The opportunity is there.

I wish we had proceeded with this 10 years ago. I believe we are on the right step. The single most significant thing we can do as a Senate and Congress and the President of the United States is to rebuild our defense system, to satisfy the minimum expectations of the American people; that is, to defend America on two regional fronts.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. I thank the Chair.

THE RETIRED PAY RESTORATION ACT OF 2001

Mr. REID. Mr. President, each day in America 1,000 World War II veterans die. Seven days a week, every day of every month, thousands of World War II veterans die. It is with this background that today I am going to be talking about legislation which I introduced a short time ago.

On January 24th I sponsored S. 170, the Retired Pay Restoration Act of 2001. This bill addresses a 110-year-old injustice against over 450,000 of our nations veterans. Congress has repeatedly forced the bravest men and women in our nation—retired, career veterans—to essentially forgo receipt of a portion of their retirement pay if they happen to also receive disability pay for an injury that occurred in the line of duty.

We have a law in America, a law that says if you are a career military person and you also have a disability you receive while in the military, when you retire you cannot draw both pensions. If you, however, retire from the Department of Energy, or you retire from Sears & Roebuck, you can draw both pensions, but not our dedicated service men and women. They cannot draw both pensions. That is wrong. That is what this legislation is trying to correct.

The reason I did it on the background of this amendment every day is because we have to do something before it is too late for those people. We have many World War II veterans who spent a career in the military. They were in the military and received a disability. In all of these years, they have only been able to, in effect, draw one pension. That is wrong.

S. 170 permits retired members of the Armed Forces Concurrent Retirement and Disability Pension Act of 2000. I was extremely disappointed that we did not take the opportunity to correct this long-standing inequity in the 106th Congress.

Out of 100 percent of what we should have done last year, we did 1 percent. We did very little.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation. Memorial Day is just over one hundred days away. There is no better time for us to take a close look at how upon our nations veterans who have sacrificed so much, than to pass this legislation before Memorial Day.

We are currently losing over one thousand WWII veterans each day. Every day we do not act on this legislation is a disservice to them. In my opinion, the most fundamental fairness to thousands of men and women. They will never have the ability to enjoy their two well-deserved entitlements.

Given the tax and budget debate we are now in, I am greatly concerned that we will not have the resources that will be needed to properly fund this legislation and honor those who served our nation—our veterans.

President Bush rightfully this week is focusing attention on the U.S. military. It is very important that he do that. I think the way he is approaching things appears to me to be very reasonable. He is saying we are going to keep Clinton’s budget in effect this year. This was a chance to really understand what is happening. But he ordered Secretary Rumsfeld to take a close look at it.

One of the things I want him to take a close look at is not only the readiness of the military and what happens to those people who have already served in the military, but I also say that it is very important that everyone recognize we do need and deserve and will have some kind of a tax cut. But we have had the fact that we should be basing these proposed tax cuts on uncertain forecasts. We are forecasting 10 years in the future.

A few days ago here in Washington they forecast morning temperatures in the midforties. Most mornings I get up and take a little run. So I was kind of happy that we were going to have a break in the weather. The forecast was it would be kind of warm. I got up, put on shorts and a T-shirt. Out I went. It was 93 degrees. There is a lot of difference between 40 and 33. I was real cold. I say that because people can’t forecast very well the weather 1 day ahead. I think we who are depending on the economists to forecast 10 years ahead must approach this with caution. I know we will do that.

We also have to be sure this tax cut is properly size. We have to make sure we do not take away from debt reduction and the need of the Social Security and Medicare.

Also, in addition to these projections, and the size that we are talking about with this tax cut, we want to look at fairness. Are we approaching this in the right way? Is it really appropriate? This is in the form of a question and not a statement. Is it really appropriate that the top 1 percent and the wealthiest 1 percent get 43 percent of the tax cut? They pay a lot of the taxes—about 20 percent of the taxes. I think there has to be a debate, once we determine the projections, about the size of this tax cut—what we are going to do and how we are going to distribute that?

I was really disappointed this past weekend. More Americans—in fact 80 percent of American—pay more in withholding taxes than they do in income taxes.

I also say this: The business community is concerned the tax cuts are not directed at them but, rather, individual. We have to be sure the tax cut we come up with is fair. As I said, this Senator supports tax cuts for all Americans. I think we have to make sure these tax cuts protect Social Security and Medicare and that we have some money left to invest in health, education, and things such as my taking care of veterans.

Of course, for me, the biggest tax cut the American people can get is to recognize if we pay down that debt, everybody gets a tax cut. The magnitude of the tax cut that President Bush is pushing we hope will not eliminate any ability of increased funding for veterans. This is going to cost money, but it is going to cost money that is one of the fairest ways we could spend some of the surplus.

I say to President Bush: We should not leave our veterans behind. I say to Members of this Congress: We should not leave our veterans behind. Our veterans have earned this and now is our chance to honor their service to our Nation in a different way. I will work very hard to ensure that our Nation’s veterans receive the dividend of our current surplus. Specifically, we have to have a fiscally responsible tax cut that allows us to protect Social Security, provide a prescription drug benefit, fund education, ensure a strong and stable military, and continue to pay down the debt.

Today, over a million and a half Americans dedicate every minute of their lives to the defense of this Nation. The U.S. military force is unmatched in the history of the world in terms of power, training, and ability, and this Nation is recognized as the world’s superpower, a status which is largely due to the sacrifices our veterans made during this last century. So rather than honoring their commitment and bravery by fulfilling our obligations, the Federal Government has chosen instead to perpetuate a 110-year-old injustice. Quite simply, this is wrong. It borders on being disgraceful.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say to my friend from Kansas, how long does he wish to speak?

Mr. BROWNBACK. Five minutes or less because I preside at that point in time.

Mr. REID. Senator Boxer has made a request through me and I ask this of the Chair. I ask unanimous consent that she be allowed to speak at 4:20 p.m. for 25 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to Senator Boxer speaking for 25 minutes?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Kansas is recognized.

(The remarks of Mr. BROWNBACK pertaining to the introduction of S. 315 are located in today’s RECORD under “Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

SUPPORT FOR THE DEFENDERS OF OUR NATION

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, on July 4, 1929, in a speech before the Republican national convention in Chicago accepting his party’s nomination for Vice President, Massachusetts Governor Calvin Coolidge exclaimed, “The nation which forgets its defenders will be itself forgotten.” With these striking words, Coolidge chastened the convention delegates to never take lightly the sacrifice of American soldiers, who during World War I, left freedom’s shores to defend democracy abroad. But then, Coolidge recognized that a great country must honor its guar- dians, lest it be forgotten.

This week, President George W. Bush has come forward under the same ban- ners as Coolidge did in 1929, to declare that America must not forget its de- fenders. In a speech before the brave men and women of the United States Army’s 3rd Infantry Division at Fort Stewart Georgia, President Bush proposed $5.7 billion in new spending for the military retirement and health care of the Armed Forces. Specifically, the Presi- dent has proposed dedicating $400 mil- lion for across-the-board pay raises, $1 billion for re-enlistment bonuses, $3.9 billion for improving military health benefits, and $400 million to improve military housing. I applaud the President on this brave and honorable proposal.

I find it appalling that before the President announced this proposal many were criticizing his decision to temporarily freeze program spending at last year’s appropriated levels. When the President ordered the Secretary of Defense to send a thorough review of Pentagon weapons programs, before proceeding with any requests for supplemental funds, he was attacked in the press for breaking his campaign promise to “bolster our national defense.” I find such assertions to be not only mean-spirited, but also misguided.

Make no mistake, newer and better weapons systems are crucial toward maintaining our national defense. We live in a world where we face real and present hostilities. Rogue nations are becoming increasingly capable of striking America's shores, and I look forward to the debate we will have in the Senate this year about building ballistic missile defense systems, and other “next generation” weapons to counter these threats. However, I fully realize that without qualified men and women trained in the use and support of these systems, we are merely left with empty threats to counter these real hostilities.

Humbled by those who die defending our country, I am the first to support our military. I am the first to support the President when he ordered the Secretary of Defense to send a thorough review of Pentagon weapons programs, before proceeding with any requests for supplemental funds. I did this to ensure that we are spending our money wisely, to ensure that our nation’s military is properly protected.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the roll call to be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BROWNBACK). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I wonder if you would be so kind as to tell me whether the 91 minutes remaining in my 25 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will do so.

TAX CUTS

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, we are faced with a tremendous choice in America, and that is whether we want to continue with policies that led to an 8-year recovery of our economy which was significantly undermined by policies of fiscal responsibility and fairness and investment. We must go back to the days of what was called trickle-down economics, where the very wealthy got the most, the rest of us got very little, the deficits soared, the debt soared, our country was in trouble.

I represent, along with Senator FEINSTEIN, the largest State in the Nation. We have 34 million people. We had a recession that was second to none. It was the worst recession since the Great Depression. We have a long time to come out of it. We had double-digit unemployment. We had a terrible situation. But because we followed, in this Government, finally, a policy of fiscal restraint, we got back on our feet and people have done very well. That is why this discussion about the proposed tax cut by our new President, versus the tax cut that will be supported by the Democrats, is such an important consideration.

Last week, President Bush submitted a tax cut plan to the Congress. It was not detailed, but it was a plan. It was like a brochure in which he laid out his vision of a tax cut. He outlined in it a $3.4 billion in new tax cuts for the middle class. He said, and I hope people will listen, this tax cut is not compassionate and it is not conservative.

We remember when President Bush ran as a compassionate conservative. So we get this very first proposal—and it wasn’t his first. His first one was to interfere with family planning throughout the world and put a gag rule on international family planning groups that help poor women become responsible. But let me say, it is certainly his first fiscal policy. It is neither compassionate nor is it conservative. What do I mean by that?

First, it is not compassionate because it benefits the very wealthy instead of the 99 percent; that is, those in the middle class, either lower or upper. It helps the very wealthy.

His plan is not conservative because it does not do the smart, conservative thing of being cautious with the projected surplus. I said “projected surplus.” As Democratic leader DASCHLE has said, these projections are like the weather forecasts: Don’t count on them because they change. They are not dependable. So the conservative thing to do is to have a rainy day fund, if you will.

Let me go into detail on why I say this plan is not compassionate. I have told you it benefits the wealthy. Mr. President, 31 percent, but for all families with children would receive nothing. If you are among the bottom 20 percent of Americans in terms of income, you get an average cut of $42. This is the way the tax cut of President Bush breaks down, and you tell me if it is compassionate. If you are in the lowest 20 percent of earners; that is, earning less than $13,600, you will get an average tax cut of $42. Let me make that even worse. The income range averages at $8,600, so at $8,600 a year, you get back $22 in your pocket on average.

The next quintile is $13,600 to $24,400. That is an average of $18,800 a year. They get an average tax cut of $187.

A person earning $31,000 gets $453 back. If you earn an average of $50,000, you get back an average of $1,176. Between $64,000 and $130,000, you get back $1,400. Then, if you earn an average of $163,000, you get back $2,200, approximately. But hold on to your chairs. Hold on to your chairs. If you earn $201,000 or more—the average income is $285,000—you get back $46,000 every year.

So how can anyone say that is compassionate? A person earning $50,000 gets $876 back. A person earning $319,000, average $915,000, gets back $46,000. I don't know how anybody could say that is compassionate.

We are going to show you another way to look at what people get back because I think it is a startling thing to see. If you are in that bottom bracket, here is a beautiful new kitchen. It really is quite nice. You can get this kitchen for $50,000. That is about what you would get back if you earned that $900,000. It is beautiful. It has a granite top, wood; it is quite lovely—a new kitchen. But what happens if you don't earn that? You could afford a pan. It is a nice pan. What do we figure this costs? This is a $200 pan. It is a very nice pan. But this person can get a kitchen; you can get a pan. This is not compassion, and it is not fair and it is not right.

Let's show some other examples. We had the Lexus and the muffler, and I thought that was good, but I thought we might show you there is a beautiful swimming pool. We are told a swimming pool such as this costs about $46,000.

With the Bush tax cut, when it phases in, if you are in that million-dollar bracket, you could invest $2 million in babies in your house every year, by the way. But if you are at that bottom level, the bottom 60 percent, average that out and that is under $39,000, you could get an inflatable bathtub.

How's that compassion? How is that fair?

We have some more to show you. This looks pretty good. This is a yacht. According to our figures, $45,000 gets you this yacht. It looks very good.

If you get $1 million a year, you are going to get that kind of tax cut. But if you are in the bottom 60 percent, you can get this little rowboat. I don't even know if you get the oars with it. This costs $195.

Do we have any more of those? I think you get the idea. But we are going to show it to you in a different way.

If you are in that top bracket of 1 percent, which is the one that gets 43 percent of the benefits of Bush's tax cut, you get 43 percent of the benefit. Every single day when this tax cut is phased in, you get $126. That is pretty good. If you are in the bottom percent with an average of $30,000, you get 62 cents every day. This is another way to show how compassionate this tax cut is.

I figure we will make it even a little more stark for you. If you get back $126 a day in a tax cut, you and your significant other can go to a beautiful restaurant, have a little candlelight, order a day in a tax cut, you and your significant other can go to a beautiful restaurant, have a little candlelight, order a barrel of California wine, I hope. It is pretty neat. If you are in that bottom 60 percent, it is tomato soup. There is nothing wrong with tomato soup. But it is not fair. This is not fair.

You say: Well, wait a minute. Didn't the President say the people at the very top pay most of the taxes? Yes. They are getting back 43 percent in the tax cut of George Bush. But don't they pay most of the taxes? Wrong. It is 21 percent of the taxes. The wealthy top 1 percent pay 21 percent of the taxes. They are getting 43 percent of the benefit of the Bush tax plan.

I just don't imagine how someone who runs as a compassionate person can come up with a situation where you can get a can of tomato soup if you earn $30,000, and take your significant other to the restaurant every single night and make fun of the kitchen versus the pan, and all of the rest. No. This is not compassionate, nor is it conservative.

We see that this is done for a reason. The stated reason is we are going to stimulate this economy.

As I understand it, there was a hearing today on that. There is a lot of dispute about whether or not a tax break to the wealthiest people actually stimulates the economy. It was tried back in the 1980s. What is stimulated? Deficits as far as the eye could see.

The next time I come out on the floor I will have some charts that show what happened to the deficit when trickle-down theory took hold in the 1980s. It was a failure, an abject failure. Do you know what trickled down? Misery, recession, and we had terrible unemployment. We were paying so much interest on the debt that we didn't have any money to invest in our people.

Yet we have a plan from someone who says he is compassionate and conservative that just will, in fact, set us up for failure. If I have anything to say about it in this Chamber, I want to talk about it. And the Democrats are going to talk about it.

Do we want a tax cut? Yes. As CHARLIE RANGEL on the other side said, we want the biggest tax cut we can afford. Do we want to make sure the people who need that tax cut the most get it? Yes. That is the kind of proposal we are going to have.

In this particular proposal, the compassionate President Bush does not make the child care credit refundable. If you really are at the bottom of the barrel, you are earning maybe $20,000, or even less, you don't pay any income taxes. You don't get any help with your child care. If we are going to give a credit, which a lot of us want to do, let's make it refundable so people can have that effect and ease the burden.

I have an interesting commentary I would like to read.

Mr. President, this is a Republican named Kevin Phillips. He is very respected. As far as I know, he has been a Republican all of his life. He is the editor and publisher of the American Political Report. He is a best selling author who worked for the Nixon administration; I want to stress that I am about to read to you did not come from BARBARA BOXER, a Democrat from California, but it is coming from Kevin Phillips, a Republican who worked for the Nixon administration. I think he has some good credentials to criticize or comment on their Bush tax cut. Let's see if he thinks it is compassionate and conservative.

I am quoting every word directly from his editorial:

Although president less than a month, George W. Bush has already achieved a historic first. He has become the first president elected without carrying the popular vote, to propose a far-reaching giant tax-cut bill on behalf of his supporters and his big campaign contributors.

Parenthetically, let me note that Kevin Phillips is calling this Bush tax cut "a far-reaching giant tax-cut bill on behalf of his supporters and his big campaign contributors."

None of the three previous presidents elected without a popular margin, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Harrison, had the temerity to try anything like this kind of revenue reduction. It hasn't bothered Bush, though. It hasn't bothered him that a majority of Americans cast their vote for the two candidates, Al Gore and Ralph Nader, who mocked his tax package. Indeed, both did more than oppose it. Gore argued righteously for a massive giveaway, and that 30 to 40 percent of the dollar benefits went to the top 1 percent of US taxpayers, to just one million families.

I am worried about the other 270 million of families.

To quote Mr. Phillips further:

This is an illegitimate tax bill for two reasons. The first is that a president selected in the manner he has managed to undertake such far-reaching legislation. The second illegitimacy, which would tar this legislation even if it was offered by a president with a full claim to office, is the extent of revenue that it gives away—not at first, but as its $1.6 trillion worth of provisions unfold over the next decade. That's more than a trillion dollars than are Congresses could spend on debt reduction, on payroll tax reductions, Social Security, education or prescription drug coverage.

In steadt, these dollar benefits are not by recipients in considerable measure on $100,000 cars, $5 million homes and $10 million financial speculations. Indeed, one of the biggest individual tax giveaways is particularly ironic. Here I'm talking about the Bush proposal to phase out the federal inheritance tax, which in earlier days owed much of its introduction to a pair of Republican presidents picked by voters, not by a 5-to-4 Supreme Court decision, whose names were Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. The now end the inheritance tax, opposed to increasing its exemption to $2 million or $3 million, threatens a cost not only in billions of dollars but in the weakening of American democracy.

In the wake of the American Revolution, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and many others agreed that U.S. law would and did end the British legal provisions that allowed the great landed estates to descend intact from generation to generation. The new United States would not, they say, have an aristocracy of inheritance.

The Bush tax bill raises exactly that prospect. It threatens to perpetuate the $8-trillion wealth buildup of the 1990s through a new aristocracy of inheritance on a scale that Washington and Jefferson could never have imagined. For such a proposal to come from a President who claims one stance to inheritance rather than popular election is the crowning illegitimacy of them all.
Kevin Phillips commentary I just read ator has 5 minutes remaining.

Given the euphoria surrounding the surpluses, it is not difficult to imagine the hard-earned fiscal restraint developed in recent years rapidly dissipating. We need to resist these policies that could readily resurrect the deficits of the past and the fiscal imbalances that followed in their wake.

So today I have quoted two Republicans I admire—Alan Greenspan, telling us the Bush tax plan could lead to a country that isn’t one we will be that proud of because it will transfer so much of what we have to the very top of the income scale, forgetting about the great middle class.

So I am very hopeful we can come together as the Senate, as compassionate people, as fiscally responsible people, and that we can fashion a budget that includes spending priorities our families need, that thinks about our kids, that takes about our kids, that takes the burden of debt off their shoulders. I think if we can do that, we can add a tremendous amount to this debate.

I think President Bush has said he is interested in working with the Senate. I think he has reached out to us and said let’s work together. Well, I am ready to do that. I tell him, if he would come up with a budget that is compassionate and conservative, I will be there right at his side. If he does not, I will work to make it so.

I yield the floor. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk procceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, could you tell me, is there an unanimous consent pending concerning speaking order?
The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is not.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to be recognized in morning business.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROPOSED TAX CUT

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, thank you for this opportunity to address the issue of the moment, which is the tax cut. It is an issue many of us have followed closely for a long period of time. Some of us who have served here for a period of time that wasn't that long ago we were dealing with a terrible deficit on an annual basis that started accumulating a national debt in record numbers. What was the beginning of this national debt? Well, you have to go back to, I guess, President George Washington when we started spending more than we had. Over the years, the debt accumulated.

In the early 1980s, the national debt in America started skyrocketing. We started adding more deficits each year than at any time in our history. In a short period of time—10 or 12 years—we ended up finding the national debt of this country at the highest levels in our history. It caused great alarm, as it should have, not only in Congress, but across the nation, and a concern among people as to whether or not this would have a negative impact on our economy. Of course, if the Government spends more than it brings in, it has to borrow the money to spend and then pay interest on the money borrowed. We found ourselves, each year, paying more and more interest on this old debt.

The mortgage on America was getting larger and larger and larger. Today, it is at $5.7 trillion. That is a frightening number which, when I came to Congress 20 years ago, would have been unthinkable. Yet it has happened in that period of time. But the good news to be delivered is that we have finally turned the corner. For the first time over the last several years, we have been generating annual surpluses. Our economy is strong. More people are working and they are building homes and buying cars and buying appliances. Businesses are more profitable. Individuals have done well with investments, and America is a more prosperous place. For the last 10 years, we have seen unparalleled economic prosperity. But we have to recall, as we sit here in the year 2001, that this is a recent turn of events. Only a few years ago, 4 years ago, my Republican colleagues came to the floor asking to amend the Constitution of the United States with a balanced budget amendment because they thought it was impossible for Congress to get the deficits under control.

We as policymakers in Washington have a responsibility to deal with it in a sensible way. We have to remind the families across America that though things are going very well in this country, we literally collect $1 billion a day in taxes from families, individuals, and businesses across our country just to pay interest on old debt—$361 billion a year collected in taxes by the Federal Government, taken from hard-working Americans, not to build a classroom, not to hire someone to be part of our national space program, not to make a stronger national defense or to build a highway, but to pay interest to the bondholders of America's debt.

I do not excuse me if I do not make this point clear, but if you had a surplus, wouldn't you want to retire the mortgage first before you decided you were going to put another addition on the house or buy a new house or have a big party? That is part of this debate. If we are going to deal with the surplus in America and the good times in America, let us do it in a sensible and sane way, and let us dedicate ourselves to paying down this national debt.

I have given you a great gift to give to our children, a tax cut. That is a great gift to give to a child, but isn't it a greater gift for us to retire America's mortgage, to say that this national debt should be taken care of? I think it is.

Secondly, if we do that, it is a sensible commitment of the surplus on an annual basis. If we have the surplus, as we hope we will, we will retire the debt with it. If we do not have it or go into a recession or bad times, then clearly we have not made a commitment with which we cannot live. But if we pass a tax cut, change our Tax Code, I can tell you from having served in the House and Senate, it is extremely difficult to change. Once it is in place, we can find ourselves a few years from now facing new deficits, more red ink, and adding to the national debt.

I do not want America to go down that road again. I believe we should have a policy which has a focus on paying down the national debt. I believe, even if we do that, we will still have resources over the next 10 years for a tax cut.

I support a tax cut. I think it makes sense. The question is, how large a tax cut. When we take a look at the proposal from President Bush of a $2.6 trillion tax cut, after we figure out how much of a surplus we are likely to have over the next 10 years, we find that the President is committing 96 percent of this projected surplus to a tax cut. One can argue as to whether there will be a surplus, but assuming for a moment that every penny of the surplus which we imagine and prophesy today is there, the President wants to take 96 percent of it and put it in a tax cut.

That leaves 4 percent of the surplus—only 4 percent of this projected surplus—for a variety of other things which Americans believe, and I believe, are absolutely important to our country. Let me go through them so there is no doubt that when we talk about spending in the future, we are talking

That leaves 4 percent of the surplus—only 4 percent of this projected surplus—for a variety of other things which Americans believe, and I believe, are absolutely important to our country. Let me go through them so there is no doubt that when we talk about spending in the future, we are talking about investments that most American families understand should be part of our national budget. I talked about debt reduction. Frankly, $100 billion over 10 years dedicated to debt reduction—long-term debt reduction—just isn’t enough. We need to put enough into it so that national debt is reduced as close to zero as humanly possible.

I thought both parties agreed on a prescription drug benefit for the elderly and vulnerable in this country. President Bush’s tax cut plan leaves us no resources to do that; in other words, helping people who are senior citizens who need prescription drugs to stay healthy, independent, strong, and out of the hospitals and nursing homes, which everybody in the last campaign said we agreed on, when it comes to the President’s proposal for a tax cut, and find there is no money left for prescription drugs, and no money left for education.

The President has had some great speeches and great public appearances over the past several weeks talking about new Federal commitments to education, I applaud those remarks. It is sound policy. If America is going to be strong in the 21st century, our schools have to be strong, our kids have to have the best education to come out in a very global, competitive economy.

Let’s take a look at what the President leaves from the surplus for education. Hardly anything. When it comes to education, frankly, he is shortchanging kids in the future to provide a tax cut today.

He is talking about increasing spending for defense. The national missile defense is a multi-billion-dollar program to protect America, and yet the President does not leave money from the surplus for that purpose.

Expanding health care, with over 40 million Americans lacking health insurance coverage, is the national disgrace that so many people do not have the security of a good health insurance plan—the President leaves no money from this surplus to even address that issue.

I had a conversation with my wife over the weekend. We were talking about the problems and perils of people who are trying to move from job to job and wonder if they will have health insurance coverage. In a nation this prosperous with such a rich tradition of caring for others, how can we continue to ignore the millions of people who have literally no health insurance coverage. In a nation this prosperous, how can we continue to ignore the millions of people who have literally no health insurance coverage. In a nation this prosperous, how can we continue to ignore the millions of people who have literally no health insurance coverage.

Heartbreaking stories are received in my office from my home State of Illinois, across the Nation. We have responded to them. The President leaves no money in anticipation of those even occurring over the next 10 years. I pray they will not, but I bet they will. And if they do occur, we had better have the resources so that America’s agriculture, its farmers, can sustain a bad year and live to plant again.

Medicare reform, Social Security reform, the President does not provide for these. For him it is the tax cut, 96 percent of all the surplus for the tax cut, is part of an axiom, to the detriment, of many other things.

When we take a look at the surplus projections of the Congressional Budget Office, we also realize that we are not going to see most of it until 5 years out, if it is going to cost us $2.6 trillion for the total tax cut. Take a look at when the money starts coming in. It is not until 2007 that we see most of this projected surplus appearing. We are talking 5 or 6 years from now. So all of the guesses about whether we will have to raid Social Security and Medicare surpluses. He should be talking about privatization or a plan for Social Security. If he goes forward with that, it is going to cost us another $1.3 trillion over the next 10 years, taking more money from Social Security.

There is also a very serious question as to who will be receiving the President’s projected tax cuts, and this is one about which I feel very strongly. I believe we should have a tax cut. It should be fair to all Americans. It should be a responsible and honest budget that balances priorities across the spectrum for America’s families, and, most of all, it should be a tax cut that strengthens our economy, not weakens it. It should be a tax cut that will allow America’s families to succeed.

Yet when we take a look at the kind of tax cuts proposed by President Bush, we find, again, they are lopsided. The President has proposed if we are to pay down the national debt in a responsible way, we should part of a responsible and honest budget that balances priorities across the spectrum for America’s families, and, most of all, it should be a tax cut that strengthens our economy, not weakens it. It should be a tax cut that will allow America’s families to succeed.

The same thing is true for agriculture. Over the last 3 years, we have had agricultural crises across the Midwest and across the Nation. We have responded to them. The President should be sensible, it should be one that is not dangerous or risky to the economy, and it should focus the tax assistance to the families who need it the most, those who are in the middle-income category, struggling to pay the bills. For the benefit of the wealthy will do just fine. We have to focus on families struggling to make ends meet and struggling to realize that American dream.

In addition to that, we can never overlook our obligation with this surplus with each year’s budget to Social Security and to Medicare, to health care, and to education. It would be a sad commentary if, after all we have been through over the last 20 years, we found ourselves once again entertaining the thoughts of a tax cut that this Nation cannot afford, at a level which we cannot sustain, based on promises we cannot prove. That is exactly what we are doing now.

The President’s tax cut is music to the ears of many voters. But those who step back and take a look at the situation say to most Members of Congress: Of course I want a tax cut. If you are going to give a tax cut, give it to me and my family. We can figure out how to spend it. And if you give a tax cut more important to you than eliminating and retiring our national debt once and for all, most Americans say: No, put that debt behind us. If this is a chance to do it, get rid of America’s national debt.

If you give citizens another choice: Would you prefer a tax cut for your family or would you rather see us invest in education in America, to make sure that our schools are modern, the technology is up to date, and your kids are taught by the very best men and women available to teach in America, that is an easy choice for most families: Put it in education first.

What about health care? Should we focus on prescription drug benefit under Medicare or a tax cut of $6,000 a year for the upper 1 percent of American wage earners? That is an easy call for most families: Put it in a prescription drug benefit that is universal and affordable, under Medicare.

When you bring it down to the real choices we face, not just a tax cut or nothing, but a tax cut that is sensible and one that accommodates retiring the national debt, investing in America’s families, making sure they can continue to succeed, I think the choice is going to be clear.

We made a mistake in 1980 with the new President Reagan supply side economics, the aptly named Laffer curve. All of the things suggested—if you just kept cutting taxes, America would prosper—didn’t work. As a consequence of that bad decision and the beginning of that Presidency with all the euphoria of the Reagan years, we started a chain of deficits which literally crippled Social Security and to Medicare, to health care coverage, Medicare reform, and Social Security reform.

Alan Greenspan is a man I respect very much. He came to the Hill last week and made a statement about the future of this economy. He has made some good predictions in the past. He suggested we need a tax cut, I think he is right. But he also said, if you read his statement very carefully: Don’t get carried away; do it in a sensible fashion; do it in a way that will keep America moving forward.

It is now up to this Chamber, and the 99 other men and women who will gather here and debate over the next several weeks, to be honest with the American people. Perhaps not the most popular statements but the most sensible statements. If a tax cut is not the be all and end all, not the goal for everything in America. What is most important is that we create an economy where American families can succeed. I think we have that opportunity. I hope we don’t lose it.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH of Oregon). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

NATURAL GAS PRICES

Mrs. CARNAHAN. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about an issue that I know is of great concern for all of my constituents the significant rise in natural gas prices in Missouri. As we are all aware, recent brutal temperatures and energy shortages have contributed to a dramatic rise in home heating bills.

In Missouri, regulators recently approved a 44 percent rate increase for natural gas purchased from one Missouri utility. The increases range from $6.81 to $9.82 for a thousand cubic feet of natural gas, is expected to continue into the summer and has posed serious problems for consumers.

Imagine your gas bill doubling almost overnight. People tell me that they are putting off needed purchases because they don’t have any extra money—it’s all going to pay the gas bill. I am especially worried about the impact of high heating bills on our retirees who already have tight budgets.

My phone lines have been barraged with distraught constituents who don’t know how to make ends meet this winter. Just yesterday I heard from James Baldwin, an Army veteran and retired autoworker from Independence, MO. Mr. Baldwin, father of four and grandfather of five, worked at the Ford Assembly Plant in Kansas City for almost 36 years. Like most constituents, Mr. Baldwin has tried to cut down on energy usage by dressing warmer and weatherproofing his home, but on a fixed income and doesn’t have much room in his budget to accommodate large increases. Mr. Baldwin paid $99 for his gas bill in December 1999. He was shocked, however, when, one year later, he received his final winter bill and realized that his heating costs had almost tripled to $269. The skyrocketing increases continued last month as well. He doesn’t know what he will do if increases of this size continue. Mr. Baldwin called my office to let me know about the hundreds of neighbors and autoworker retirees he hears from every day about this problem. He worries that many will fall through the cracks.

The Mid-America Assistance Coalition, an agency that coordinates emergency assistance for the Kansas City metro area, where Mr. Baldwin lives, has reported getting 100 to 200 calls per day. Many of the calls are from single moms, the elderly and the “working poor,” or those who earn too much to qualify for standard energy assistance but cannot afford to pay their bills. According to the Coalition, this is the first time most of the callers have ever had to ask for assistance with their utility bills.

Another constituent, Mrs. Doris Hill from Albany, Missouri, recently wrote to share her plight. Mrs. Hill is a low-income, 83-year-old widow. She wrote that she cannot afford to call even her own family’s long-distance service. She lives on $460 a month from Social Security and a small interest income from savings. She struggles month-to-month and cannot afford large increases in her utility bills.

This problem is not just limited to certain geographic areas or segments of our population. One letter I received was from Jeremy Lynn, a Boy Scout from Silkeston in Southeast Missouri. Jeremy wrote to share his concern about the effect that the high cost of gas is having on his family. Jeremy states that his father and other farmers are struggling to cope with fuel and natural gas price increases at a time when the prices they are being paid for their crops are the lowest they have received in 14 years. He is worried that many farmers will be forced out of business as a result.

These and many other stories I have heard over the last couple of months have touched me deeply. Unfortunately, these stories are much too common in Missouri.

We hear that the cause of these record increases are due to problems associated with supply, demand, industry deregulation and, possibly, price gouging. But this is a complicated issue, and I have yet to meet anyone who has an easy solution. The only thing that is clear right now is that we need to learn what has caused these sharp increases and quickly develop an appropriate response.

This is why I have decided to cosponsor Senator BOXER's amendment that would require the National Academy of Sciences to report to Congress within 60 days on the causes of the recent increases in the price of natural gas, including whether the increases have been caused by problems with natural gas supply or by problems with the natural gas transmission system. The study would identify federal or state policies that may have contributed to the recent spike in prices and determine what federal action would be necessary to improve the reserve supply of natural gas.

We don't know what the results of this study will be, but I am hopeful that they will help us to determine a course of action at the federal level to relieve the current crisis that is harming so many people in so many ways.

NOMINATION OF GALE NORTON

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I would like to briefly explain my recent vote to support the nomination of Gale Norton to be Secretary of Interior. At the outset, let me say that I did so with serious reservations. In fact, I find many of Ms. Norton's past positions, statements and actions most troubling.

Gale Norton built a successful career advocating for the mining, timber, and oil industries. Her record in this respect has led many to question whether she can strike an appropriate balance between conservation and development. She has argued that several fundamental environmental laws are unconstitutional, including the Endangered Species Act and the Surface Mining Act, two laws that the Secretary of Interior is tasked with enforcing.

She has advocated opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, ANWR, in Alaska to oil drilling. This vital ecosystem supports hundreds of thousands of caribou, bears, wolves and oxen and 160 species of birds. Is it prudent to destroy this pristine land for what the U.S. Geological Survey estimates is a 6-month supply of oil? I believe not.

As Attorney General of Colorado, she was a proponent of the State's self-audit law that allows mining companies to escape fines if they report their violations and make efforts to correct the problem. Unfortunately, the Summitville Mine in Colorado was not as vigilant as it should have been and continued to operate even though it still had serious environmental problems. Only when the mine leaked cyanide into a local river did Ms. Norton's office step in. While she worked vigorously to clean up the damage and billed Summitville for the cost, it was the federal government who had to step in and prosecute the offenders. A Secretary of Interior must be vigilant, quick to respond to disaster, and proactive in policy-making. I am troubled by Ms. Norton's slow response at Summitville and unable to articulate at the confirmation hearing what she might do to reduce the chances of a similar disaster.

Many have urged me and my Senate colleagues to reject this nomination and instead send Ms. Norton to former Interior Secretary James Watt. I am one of several current Members of the Senate who was here in 1981 and I remember James Watt. During his confirmation hearing, he remarked on his devotion to development and extractive industries. That intractable stand, coupled with his past statements and actions, led me to vote against James Watt for Secretary of Interior. In fact, I am one of six current members of the Senate who cast a vote in opposition to Mr. Watt's nomination.

I did not detect such a divisive tone during Gale Norton's confirmation hearing before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. I take some comfort from statements she made, under oath, specifically her intention to enforce the laws as written and interpreted by the courts, including the Endangered Species Act. Ms. Norton gave assurances to several committee members that she would uphold the current moratorium that exists on offshore oil and gas leases in California and Florida. She further stated that she was willing to work with other States to develop results regarding offshore oil and gas leases.

I was pleased to hear Gale Norton's strong support for our National Parks, including eradicating maintenance backlogs. I look forward to working with her and members of the Senate to ensure proper funding levels in the fiscal year 2002 appropriations for this and other environmental protection efforts. Finally, I was pleased that Ms. Norton supports fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund. I trust she will work with Congress to achieve that goal and to enact the Conservation and Reinvestment Act, a bill that had broad bipartisan and bicameral support in the 106th Congress. Land and Water Conservation funds and the matching grant program have been very important to the ability of Connecticut and other States to acquire land and enhance recreation areas and public lakes.

I am mindful that some of Ms. Norton's testimony reflects a stark change in policy beliefs. Do I think these newly stated positions make her an environmentalist? No. Do I think positions she has taken in the past could pose harm to our public lands? Yes, I do. However, the entirety of Ms Norton's record, including testimony given at the hearing, demonstrates a sensitivity and an understanding of the role of the Secretary of Interior.

The Secretary of Interior has enormous responsibility over our Nation's public treasures. That person must be a steward of the people. I believe Ms. Norton is one of those people.

In many instances Gale Norton has demonstrated a willingness to advocate Federal interests and be an honest and fair broker. As Associate Solicitor for the Department of Interior, she upheld federal interests including habitat restoration at the Combaconnection Project and the Endangered Species Act on behalf of the California Condor. While Colorado Attorney General, Ms. Norton ensured that the Rocky Mountain Arsenal was sufficiently cleaned up and urged Congress to establish a wildlife refuge there.

I respect people's strong feelings regarding the nomination of Gale Norton, and in fact, I share some of their deeply rooted concerns. I did not cast this vote lightly or without a heavy degree of concern. I am not ignorant of the fact that Gale Norton is a nominee who represents the views of our President and that any nominee for Interior Secretary would share those views. Nor do I agree in signing a message by voting against a nominee. This is an individual, a Cabinet nominee, not a piece of legislation. The President is entitled to a degree of deference in assembling his Cabinet, a bipartisan tradition that most members follow.

I have spent a quarter century in Congress fighting for measures to protect air, drinking water, rivers and public lands. I prefer sending a message by enacting legislation that will strengthen our quality of life and opposing policy that would weaken or destroy our natural resources. Working together, Democrats and Republicans have enacted such lasting laws as the Clean Air Act, the Endangered Species Act, the National Environmental Policy Act and the Clean Water Act.

Gale Norton is undertaking an enormous responsibility, but one that affords an opportunity to bring people together. She has given me and my colleagues her word to uphold and enforce... our laws. I trust she will remain true to her word, and I look forward to working with her.

NATIONAL DAIRY FARMERS FAIRNESS ACT OF 2001

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I am pleased to rise today and join my colleague Senator RICK SANTORUM of Pennsylvania to reintroduce legislation to provide much needed assistance to our Nation’s dairy producers who continue to face the lowest milk prices in over two decades.

Due to the failures of the Federal order reform process and the lack of a meaningful dairy price safety net, this legislation is an appropriate and necessary response to the ongoing regional milk pricing inequities and the dairy income crisis affecting all producers. In the past, the divisive and controversial dairy compact system has hindered Congress’s efforts to achieve a fair and equitable national dairy policy. I am pleased to join with Senator SANTORUM and reintroduce this legislation to create a regionally equitable plan that will provide a safety net for small and medium size producers regardless of location.

The National Dairy Farmers Fairness Act of 2001 has two major goals: (1) To create a dairy policy that is equitable for farmers in all regions of the country; (2) provide stability for dairy producers in the prices they receive for their milk. To accomplish these goals, this legislation creates a price safety net for farmers by providing supplemental income payments when milk prices are low. A “sliding-scale” payment is made based upon the previous year’s national average for Class III milk. In essence, the payment rate to farmers is highest when the national Class III average is the lowest. To participate in this program, a farmer must have produced milk for commercial sale in the previous year. Payments under the program are also pro-rated under this scenario.

After rescuing 12 workers, in three dangerous trips, the helicopter crew was forced to leave the scene to refuel while Petty Officer Green remained behind to keep lowering people to the safety boat in groups of four. As the helicopter began its first evacuation flight, Petty Officer Green began lowering rig workers to a rig supply boat in groups of four using a crane and gondola. After rescuing 12 workers, in three dangerous trips, the helicopter crew was forced to leave the scene to refuel while Petty Officer Green remained behind to keep lowering people to the safety boat and safely. He lowered 36 workers that way before another Coast Guard rescue helicopter arrived on the scene and landed to pick up the four men who remained on the platform. When told the helicopter could only take three more people, Petty Officer Green courageously volunteered to stay behind. Alone on that platform as the helicopter took the workers to safety, in the distance he could see his own helicopter take off into the smoke while his crew mates began the difficult task of ferrying the rig workers to another group of four.

Today people say we live in a world without heroes, one in which cynicism and selfishness rule the day. I am pleased to say we are not in that case in our United States Coast Guard. Guardsmen and Guardswomen like Lieutenant Commander Moore, Lieutenant Beshears, Petty Officer Bouch and Petty Officer Green put their lives on the line to keep others safe. In this case, 51 men owe their lives to these four heroes who lived up to the Coast Guard’s motto of “Semper Paratus—Always Prepared.” On behalf of those 51 men, their families, the state of Louisiana and Americans everywhere, I am proud to stand here today and say “Thank you—job well done!” to these extraordinary heroes.

TRIBUTE TO COAST GUARD HELICOPTER AIRCREW

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I stand here today to pay tribute to four great Americans—Lieutenant Commander Brian Moore, Lieutenant Troy Beshears, Petty Officer First Class Mike Bouchard and Petty Officer First Class John Green serving in the United States Coast Guard.

Last July, these four extraordinary Guardsmen were conducting a night flight over the Gulf of Mexico when they heard from the oil rig “Ocean Crusader.” Immediately flying to the rig, they arrived to find it engulfed in flames from a natural gas fire. Placing themselves in imminent danger, they landed on the rig to rescue the crew of 51. To expedite the rescue, Petty Officer Green left the helicopter to coordinate rescue efforts while his crew mates began the difficult task of ferrying the rig workers to another group of four. As the helicopter began its first evacuation flight, Petty Officer Green began lowering rig workers to a rig supply boat in groups of four using a crane and gondola.

Committing to rescuing their crew mate, Lieutenant Commander Moore decided to fly rescue Petty Officer Green. With Petty Officer Bouchard hanging out of their aircraft trying to spot the landing platform in the smoke, he flew the helicopter into the middle of the inferno the Ocean Crusader had become, setting down amidst the flames to pick up Petty Officer Green.

Today people say we live in a world without heroes, one in which cynicism and selfishness rule the day. I am pleased to say we are not in that case in our United States Coast Guard. Guardsmen and Guardswomen like Lieutenant Commander Moore, Lieutenant Beshears, Petty Officer Bouch and Petty Officer Green put their lives on the line to keep others safe. In this case, 51 men owe their lives to these four heroes who lived up to the Coast Guard’s motto of “Semper Paratus—Always Prepared.” On behalf of those 51 men, their families, the state of Louisiana and Americans everywhere, I am proud to stand here today and say “Thank you—job well done!” to these extraordinary heroes.

TRIBUTE TO NORM BISHOP

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a dedicated member of the U.S. Forest Service as he concludes his 38-year career to service to his country. We are proud to have had this man serve on the Medora Ranger District in Dickinson, ND for the past 35 years.

Mr. Norman G. Bishop deserves this honor. North Dakotans are grateful for his contributions to the wise and sustainable use of our national grasslands. Norm Bishop’s personal and professional career accomplishments are as diverse as they are noteworthy. His loyal service and sacrifices for nearly four decades, working in the communities of western North Dakota, are a testament to all who use and appreciate our public lands.

In 1962, Norm moved to Dickinson, ND where he was an Airmen First Class at the Dickinson Radar Installation. His very first night in Dickinson, Norm met Karen Ridl, who he married a year later. After the Air Base closed in Dickinson, Norm began his Forest Service career.

During the oil crisis of the mid-1970s, Norm was instrumental in developing what is now the largest, most productive oil and gas program in the entire National Forest System. In fact, Norm became the first person in the entire Forest Service to be certified as an “Oil and Gas Resource Specialist.” For more than 20 years, Norm worked tirelessly to ensure that oil development on the grasslands was accomplished in a manner that was sensitive to the needs of natural resources. My staff and I had the privilege of working with Norm Bishop on the Kinley Plateau/Bullion Butte Minerals exchange. Norm’s professionalism and knowledge were instrumental in making that exchange a tremendous success.

It is with great honor for me to present these credentials of Norm Bishop to the Senate today. It is clear through all of his accomplishments that he has dedicated himself to furthering the benefits we enjoy on public lands. All of his actions reflect a true leader with a sense of purpose, commitment, and conscience.

As Norm departs from public service I ask my colleagues to join me in delivering an appreciative tribute from a grateful nation, and best wishes to he and Karen for a productive and rewarding retirement.

TRIBUTE TO PC CONNECTION

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. TRIBUTE TO THE MEN AND WOMEN OF MALMSTROM AIR FORCE BASE

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I rise today to compliment and honor the men and women of Malmstrom Air Force Base in Great Falls, MT. I recently visited the base to congratulate the personnel at Malmstrom for receiving an “excellent” rating during their Combat Capability Assessment.

After two weeks of evaluations for technical proficiency and mission effectiveness, the 341st Space Wing’s operations, security, maintenance, communications personnel and equipment were given an “excellent” overall rating. A very high mark for this type of test.

Col. Thomas Deppe is the leader of Team Malmstrom. He was absolutely correct when he said, “It takes a championship team to accomplish our mission across 23,500 square miles of flight line on a daily basis, and we do it well.” Indeed, they do it well. And they make Montanans and Americans extremely proud.

In addition, Col. James Robinson, who is the Combat Capability Assessment Program Director, said that the CCA is one of the “toughest tests a wing will ever experience.” He also said that in the three years he has been administering the test, he has “never seen results this good.”

The 20th Air Force Combat Capability Assessment Team discovered what we have known in Montana for years—that Malmstrom is “excellent.” Mr. President, I can tell you from my recent visit to Malmstrom that those folks are very proud of this accomplishment, as they should be. I’m proud of them, too.

That is why today I want to recognize them in this great Senate Chamber. And so I say congratulations to Col. Thomas Deppe and the 341st Space Wing, and to all the men and women who work so hard to make Malmstrom Air Force Base what it is—“excellent.”

TRIBUTE TO TIM BOUCHER

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Tim Boucher of Deerfield, New Hampshire, for being honored as “Business Person of the Year” by the Merrimack Chamber of Commerce.

A hard working and dedicated member of the Board of Directors, Tim has been an enthusiastic volunteer and committee chairman. He has worked diligently for the Chamber Golf Tournament and other fund raising events, selflessly serving the citizens of Merrimack.

Tim is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and New England Law School graduate who was admitted to the Bar in 1991 and specializes in real estate and probate law. He is an active outdoors man who enjoys skiing and camping. He resides in Deerfield, New Hampshire, with his wife, Wendy.

Tim Boucher has proven himself to be an outstanding citizen and volunteer in his community and is a role model to us all. It is an honor and a pleasure to represent him in the U.S. Senate.

RECOGNITION OF MATTHEW HUENERFAUTH

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize an exemplary young man from the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Matthew Huenerfauth of Springfield, has been selected from among 200 applicants as a George J. Mitchell Scholar for 2001, and will have the opportunity to study in either Ireland or Northern Ireland in the fall. The recipients are those who have demonstrated intellectual distinction, leadership potential, and commitment to community service.

Matthew will graduate from the University of Delaware in May, 2001 with an Honors B.S. degree in Computer Science. During his tenure at Delaware, he has proven to be a tremendous asset to the college community outside the classroom as well. Using his computer knowledge to help others, Matthew developed a tutoring system for deaf students learning English. He spent the summer of 2000 as a Program Manager Intern at Microsoft in Redmond, Washington, and has completed extensive research in the field of Nickle Intelligence. Matthew was also president of a virtual literary magazine at Delaware, was a founding member of an a capella ensemble, and participated in the school’s competitive computer programming team. While in Ireland, Matthew will study for an MSc degree in Computer Science at University College Dublin.

I ask my colleagues to join with me in recognizing Matthew Huenerfauth as he heads across the globe to represent the United States in Ireland. I am confident that he will make us proud.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. SHELBY:
S. 302. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce the maximum capital gain tax rate for gains from property held for more than 5 or 10 years; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that would reduce the capital gains tax for property held for more than 5 or 10 years. Such legislation is needed to help increase investment and to decrease inefficient economic behavior.

Under current law, people holding capital property are often discouraged from selling their property because of the large anticipated tax liability. Such a “lock-in” of assets is economically undesirable. Economists have estimated that perhaps as much as 7.5 trillion dollars are “locked-in” the portfolios of American taxpayers. By reducing the tax on certain long term capital gains, we would decrease the “lock-in” effect and allow investors to liquidate or hold capital assets based on market factors rather than the tax code.

Opponents to lower taxation of capital gains argue that reducing capital gains tax rates would result in a revenue shortfall. Such an argument fails to recognize the effect that reduced taxes will have on investment behavior. By lowering taxes on capital gains, we will encourage, rather than discourage, capital investment. I believe the resulting situation would be a rise in the number of investment transactions and in the amount of gain realized in each taxable year which will in turn lead to an increase in tax revenue. This trend has been well-documented as evidenced by the fact that every capital gains tax reduction in the last forty years has resulted in increased federal revenue. In addition to increasing federal revenue, a cut in the capital gain tax rates would benefit individual states, as a vast majority of them also tax capital gains.

The current capital gains tax disincentivizes investment and economic growth. By lowering the capital gains tax rates, my bill would help lower the cost of capital and spur economic growth. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of the bill. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 302

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. REDUCTION IN MAXIMUM CAPITAL GAIN TAXES FOR 5- AND 10-YEAR GAINS.

(a) In General.—Paragraph (2) of section 1(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to maximum capital gains rates) is amended to read as follows:

"(2) REDUCED CAPITAL GAIN RATES FOR QUALIFIED 5-YEAR AND 10-YEAR GAINS.—

"(A) REDUCTION IN 10-PERCENT RATE.—In the case of any taxable year beginning after December 31, 2001, the rate under paragraph (1)(B) shall be—

"(i) 8 percent with respect to so much of the amount to which the 20-percent rate would otherwise apply as does not exceed qualified 5-year gain,

"(ii) 5 percent with respect to so much of the amount to which the 10-percent rate would otherwise apply as does not exceed qualified 5-year gain,

"(iii) 20 percent with respect to the remainder of such amount.

"(B) REDUCTION IN 20-PERCENT RATE.—The rate under paragraph (1)(B) shall be—

"(i) 10 percent with respect to so much of the amount to which the 20-percent rate would otherwise apply as does not exceed the lesser of—

"(I) the excess of qualified 5-year gain over the amount of such gain taken into account under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, or

"(II) the amount of qualified 5-year gain (determined by taking into account only property the holding period for which begins after December 31, 2001),

"(ii) 15 percent with respect to so much of the amount to which the 20-percent rate would otherwise apply as does not exceed the lesser of—

"(I) the excess of qualified 10-year gain over the amount of such gain taken into account under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, or

"(II) the amount of qualified 10-year gain (determined by taking into account only property the holding period for which begins after December 31, 2001), and

"(iii) 20 percent with respect to the remainder of such amount.

For purposes of determining under the preceding sentence whether the holding period of property begins after December 31, 2001, the holding period shall be determined pursuant to the exercise of an option (or other right or obligation to acquire property) shall include the period such option (or other right or obligation) was held.”.

(b) QUALIFIED 5-YEAR AND 10-YEAR GAIN.—

Paragraph (9) of section 1(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended to read as follows:

"(9) QUALIFIED 5-YEAR AND 10-YEAR GAIN.—

For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) QUALIFIED 5-YEAR GAIN.—The term ‘qualified 5-year gain’ means the aggregate long-term capital gain from property held for more than 5 years but not more than 10 years.

"(B) QUALIFIED 10-YEAR GAIN.—The term ‘qualified 10-year gain’ means the aggregate long-term capital gain from property held for more than 10 years.

"(C) DETERMINATION OF GAIN.—The determination under subparagraph (A) or (B) shall be made without regard to collectibles gain, building depreciation under paragraph (7)(A)(i), and section 1232 gain.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

By Mr. LIEBERMAN (for himself, Mr. BAYH, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. KOHL, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. BREAUx, Mr. KERRY, Mrs. PEINSKER-NOOP, and Mr. NELSON of Florida):
S. 303. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, to reauthorize and make improvements to that Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to join with several of my colleagues in offering a comprehensive education reform proposal that I believe can serve as the foundation for building a bipartisan legislative consensus and ultimately a better future for our children. It is a common-sense strategy that we believe can be the basis for a common ground solution—reinvest in our public schools, reinvent the way we administer them, and redefine what we mean by the children we are supposed to be serving.

Hence the title of our bill: the Public Education Reinvention, Reinvestment, and Responsibility Act, or the Three R’s for short.

Our Senate New Democrat Coalition originally proposed this plan, which seeks to bring together the best ideas of both parties into a whole new approach to federal education policy, during the debate last year on the reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. We drew significant interest from Members on both sides of the aisle, as well as from a number of voices in the education reform community, but not enough to overcome the partisan tensions of an election year.

We return to this cause now, at the start of this new session, with the same sense of urgency and a new sense of optimism. Our urgency is driven by the growing public concern about the state of public schools and the consequences of continued inactions. Our optimism is driven by the growing policy consensus about how we in Washington can help our public schools meet the new challenges of this new age and help every student learn at a high level.

We feel strongly that we cannot afford to wait any longer to craft a serious national response to what is a serious national problem, not when millions of other children are being denied the education they deserve and the New Economy demands. International math and science tests indicate that our students, even the best of the best, are struggling to keep pace with children in other countries. In fact, the most advanced American 12th-graders ranked 15 out of 16 on the advanced math test and 16th out of 16 on the physics test.

Far more troubling, millions of poor children, particularly children of color, are failing to learn even the most basic of skills, which is to say we are failing them. Thirty-five years after we passed the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) specifically to aid disadvantaged students, black and Hispanic students are reading and doing math on average at the same level of white 8th-graders. This pernicious achievement gap cannot be allowed to persist in this land of opportunity. It is not only a matter of equity but as we simply cannot compete in a knowledge-based global marketplace if so much of our future labor force doesn’t know how to read, write, and reason. As one report states, “Students are being unconstantly, and not only from the candidate pool of Information Technology, IT, workers by the knowledge and attitudes they acquire in their K–12 years. Many students do not learn the basic skills of reasoning, mathematics, and communication that provide the foundation for higher education or entry-level jobs in IT work.”

We also have to acknowledge that we have not done a very good job in recent years in providing every child with a well-qualified teacher, which goes a long way toward explaining why this achievement gap persists. Specifically, we are failing to deliver teachers to the classroom who truly know their subject matter. One national survey found that one-fourth of all secondary school teachers did not major in their core area of instruction. What is particularly troubling is that we are failing those children who need our help the most—in the school districts with the highest concentration of minorities, students who are more than 50 percent chance of getting a math or science teacher who has a license or a degree in their field.

We are far from alone in feeling strongly about this problem. Mr. President, and we are writing to you to suggest that we need to broadly and innovative reforms that many states and local districts are pursuing to raise standards and expectations and improve the quality of education our children are receiving. They are helping to show us what works and how we in Washington can help.

This is not something we talk enough about, in large part because we do have some serious problems with our schools, but there are in fact plenty of positive developments to highlight in public education today. Over the past year, I have visited a broad range of schools and programs in Connecticut and around the country, and I can tell you that there is much happening in our public schools that we can be heartened by, proud of, and learn from.

There is the exemplary Kennedy School in Hartford, Connecticut, which serves a high-poverty, high-mobility student population, but through intervention programs has had real success improving the reading, writing and math skills of many of its students. In addition, there is the Side by Side Charter School in Norwalk, one of 17 charter schools in Connecticut, which has created an exemplary multi-racial program in response to the challenge of Sheff v. O’Neill to diminish racial isolation. Side by Side is experimenting with a different approach to choosing classroom assignments. What they have found is that students stay with teachers for two consecutive years to take advantage of the relationships that develop, and by all indications it is working quite well for those kids.

And there is the nationally-recognized BEST program, which, building on previous efforts in Connecticut to raise teacher skills and salaries, is now targeting additional state aid, training, and mentoring support to help local districts raise teachers’ pay and prepare them to excel. The result is that Connecticut’s blueprint is touted by some, including the National Commission on Teaching and America’s Future, as a national model for others to follow.

A number of other states, led by Texas and North Carolina, are moving in this same direction—refocusing their education systems not on process but on performance, not on prescriptive rules and regulations but on results. More and more of them are in fact adopting a simple formula—investing in reform, and insisting on results. They are setting high standards, dedicating more resources to help schools meet those new demands, providing more flexibility to experiment with innovative practices, and holding schools responsible for improving their performance.

We as New Democrats believe the best that we can do is to courageously and accelerate this movement, and spur every state to pursue these bold reforms, is to adapt this new approach to the federal level—which is to say, to lead by example. And that is just what our Three R’s proposal aims to do. We want to redefine the federal role in education and refocus it on helping states and local districts raise academic achievement, putting the priority for federal programs on performance instead of process, and on delivering real results instead of developing rules.

In particular, our plan calls on states and local districts to enter into a new compact with the federal government to work together to strengthen standards and improve educational opportunities, particularly for America’s poorest children. It would provide states and local educators with significantly more federal funding and significantly more flexibility in targeting those dollars to meet their specific needs. In exchange, it would demand real accountability, and for the first time impose consequences on schools that continue to fail to show progress.

Part of changing our focus means narrowing our focus. We agree with many critics of the status quo that the current maze of federal education programs is too unwieldy, too bureaucratic, and ultimately too diffuse. That is why we eliminate dozens of federally microtargeted, micromanaged programs that are redundant or incidental to our core mission of raising academic achievement. But we also believe that we have a great national interest in promoting broad national educational goals, chief among them delivering on the promise of equal opportunity. It is not only foolish but irresponsible to hang our federal dollars on questions asked and no thought of national priorities. That is why we carve out separate titles in those areas that we think are critical to helping every child learn at a high level.

The first of our restructured titles would strengthen our longstanding commitment to providing additional aid to disadvantaged children through the Title I program. It would increase funding by $8 billion annually, and, perhaps more importantly, target those new funds to schools with the highest concentrations of poverty. The second would combine various teacher training and professional development programs into a single teacher quality grant, increase funding to $2 billion annually, and challenge each state to pursue the kind of bold, performance-based reform that my own state of Connecticut has undertaken with great success.

The third title would reform the Federal bilingual education program and hopefully defuse the ongoing controversy surrounding it by making absolutely clear that our national mission is to help immigrant children learn and master English and ultimately to meet the same high academic standards as other students. We want to recognize the limited English proficient students are not being served at all today, we call for dramatically increasing our investment in English acquisition programs, doubling funding to $1 billion a year. The third title would do that and distribute to states and local districts through a reliable formula, based on their LEP student population. As a result, school districts serving large LEP and high poverty student populations would get guaranteed funding, and would not be penalized because of their inability to hire savvy proposal writers for competitive grants.
The fourth title would respond to the public demands for greater choice within the public school framework, by providing additional resources for charter school start-ups and new incentives for expanding local, intradistrict choice programs. And the fifth would radically realign the remaining ESEA programs and provide local districts broad flexibility to address their specific needs. We consolidate more than 20 different programs into a single High Performance Initiative title, with a focus on supporting and encouraging bold new ideas, expanding access to summer school and after school programs, improving school safety, and building technological literacy. We increase overall funding by more than $200 million to $3.5 billion, and distribute this aid through a formula that targets more resources to the highest poverty areas.

The boldest change we are proposing is to create a new accountability title. As of today, we have plenty of rules and requirements on inputs, on how funding is to be allocated and who must be served, but little if any attention to outcomes, on how schools ultimately educate children. This bill would reverse that imbalance by linking Federal funding to the progress states and local districts make in raising academic achievement. It would call on state and local leaders to set annual performance-based goals and adopt rigorous assessments for measuring how each district is faring in meeting those goals. In turn, states that exceed those goals would be rewarded with additional funds, and those that fall repeatedly to show progress would be sanctioned. In other words, for the first time, there would be consequences for poor performance.

In considering how exactly to impose those consequences, we have run into understandable concerns about whether you can penalize failing schools without also penalizing children. The truth is that we are punishing many children right now, especially the most vulnerable of them, by forcing them to attend chronically troubled schools that are accountable to no one, a situation that is just not acceptable anymore. We believe there must be consequences for failure, but we make a concerted effort through this bill to minimize the potential negative impact to children. It requires states to set annual performance-based goals and put in place a monitoring system for gauging how local districts are progressing, and also provides additional resources for states to help school districts identify and improve low-performing schools. If after three years a state fails to meet its goals, the state would be penalized by cutting its administrative funding by 50 percent. Only after four years of under-performance would dollars targeted for the classroom be put in jeopardy. At that point, protecting kids by continuing to subsidize bad schools becomes more like punishing them.

Although money alone won’t improve the quality of our public education, we must invest significantly more resources if we expect to close the achievement gap and truly “leave no child behind.” That is why we would boost ESEA funding by $35 billion over the next six years. But we also believe that the impact of this funding will be severely diluted if it is not better targeted to the worst-performing schools and if it is not coupled with a rigorous and vigorous demand for accountability. That’s why we narrowed the federal focus to a few select national priorities, all of them tied to raising student achievement, and match our investment in reform with an insistence on results.

Judging by what President Bush has said to date, along with Congressional leaders, we believe that there is a lot of room for collaboration and a lot of reason to be hopeful that we can reach bipartisan agreement on a bold, progressive, comprehensive education reform bill this year. We still have some serious differences with the President—not just on vouchers, but also on the targeting of federal dollars to the nation’s poorest communities, which is critical to our hopes of closing the achievement gap. But we do share a commitment to closing that gap as a national goal, just as we share a commitment to strengthening accountability, broadening flexibility for local schools, spurring innovation, and promoting public school choice. And as some of our colleagues have noted, the framework of our plan shares much in common with the reform blueprint President Bush recently unveiled.

Our bottom line is principles, not programs. We believe we have some good new ideas to realize some great old ideals, chief among them the promise of equal opportunity. But we don’t pretend to have a monopoly on them and we are eager to work with both our fellow Democrats and Republicans to find that right balance. There is no one roadmap to reform. But we believe the third way we have charted with our Three R’s plan is a good place to start—and hopefully end.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 303

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Public Education Reinvestment, Re-invention, and Responsibility Act” or the “Three R’s Act”.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents of this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents. Sec. 2. References. Sec. 3. Declaration of priorities.

TITLE I—STUDENT PERFORMANCE

Sec. 101. Heading.
Sec. 503. Extension of authorization of appropriations.
Sec. 504. Repeals, transfers, and redesignations.

TITLE VII—PERFORMANCE AND QUALITY EDUCATION INITIATIVES
Sec. 601. High performance and quality education initiatives.

TITLE VII—ACCOUNTABILITY
Sec. 701. Accountability.

TITLE VIII—GENERAL PROVISIONS AND APPROPRIATIONS
Sec. 801. Repeals, transfers, and redesignations regarding title XIV.
Sec. 802. Other repeals.

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.
Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.).

SEC. 3. DECLARATION OF PRIORITIES.
Concerning the national educational priorities are to—
(1) introduce real accountability by making public elementary school and secondary school performance information available to the public rather than a guaranteed source of revenue for States and local educational agencies;
(2) require State educational agencies and local educational agencies to establish high school performance objectives, and provide the State educational agencies and local educational agencies with flexibility in using Federal resources to ensure that the performance objectives are met;
(3) concentrate Federal funding on a small number of central education goals, including providing targeted funding for disadvantaged children and youth, improving teacher quality and providing professional development, providing programs for limited English proficient students, public school choice programs, and innovative educational programs, and promoting student safety and the incorporation of educational technology into education;
(4) concentrate Federal education funding on impoverished areas where elementary schools and secondary schools are most likely to be distressed schools;
(5) sanction State educational agencies and local educational agencies that consistently fail to meet established benchmarks; and
(6) reward State educational agencies, local educational agencies, and elementary schools and secondary schools that demonstrate high performance.

TITLE I—STUDENT PERFORMANCE
Sec. 101. HEADING.
The heading for title I (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) is amended to read as follows: “TITLE I—STUDENT PERFORMANCE”.

SEC. 102. FINDINGS, POLICY, AND PURPOSE.
Section 1001 (20 U.S.C. 6302) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 1001. FINDINGS, POLICY, AND PURPOSE.
“(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

“(1) Despite more than 3 decades of Federal assistance, a significant achievement gap remains between economically disadvantaged and affluent students.

“(2) The 1994 reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 was an important step in focusing the Nation’s priorities on closing the achievement gap between economically disadvantaged and non-disadvantaged students.

“(3) States can help close the achievement gap by developing challenging curricula and content and student performance standards so that all elementary school and secondary school students perform at an advanced level. States should implement rigorous and comprehensive student performance assessments, such as the National Assessment of Educational Progress, so as to measure fully the progress of students.

“(4) In order to ensure that no child is left behind in the new economy, the Federal Government must better target Federal resources on those at most risk for falling behind academically.

“(5) Funds made available under this title (referred to in this section as ‘title I funds’) have been targeted on high-poverty areas, but not to the degree the funds should be targeted on those areas, as demonstrated by the following:

“(A) Although 95 percent of schools with poverty levels of 75 percent to 100 percent receive title I funds, 29 percent of schools with poverty levels of 50 to 74 percent do not receive any title I funds;

“(B) Only 64 percent of schools with poverty levels of 35 percent to 49 percent receive title I funds;

“(C) Title I funding should be significantly increased and more effectively targeted to ensure that all economically disadvantaged students have an opportunity to excel academically.

“(7) The Federal Government should provide greater decisionmaking authority and flexibility to schools and teachers in exchange for requiring the schools and teachers to assume greater responsibility for student performance. Federal, State, and local efforts should be focused on raising the academic achievement of all students. The Nation’s children deserve nothing less than a policy that holds accountable those responsible for shaping the children’s future and the Nation’s future.

“(b) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to ensure that all students receive a high-quality education by holding States, local educational agencies, and elementary schools and secondary schools accountable for increased student academic performance results, and by facilitating improved classroom instruction.

“(c) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this title are as follows:

“(1) To eliminate the existing 2-tiered educational system, which sets lower academic expectations for economically disadvantaged students than for affluent students.

“(2) To require all States to have challenging content and student performance standards and assessment measures in place.

“(3) To require all States to ensure adequate yearly progress for all students by establishing annual, numerical performance objectives.

“(4) To ensure that all students receiving services under this title receive educational instruction from a fully qualified teacher.

“(5) To support State educational agencies and local educational agencies in identifying, assisting, and correcting low-performing schools.

“(6) To increase Federal funding for programs carried out under part A for economically disadvantaged students in proportion to the increase in Federal funding for increased academic performance of all students.

“(7) To target Federal funding to local educational agencies serving the highest percentages of economically disadvantaged students.”.

SEC. 103. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.
Section 1002 (20 U.S.C. 6302) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 1002. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.
“(a) LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY GRANTS.—For the purpose of carrying out part A, other than section 112(e), there are authorized to be appropriated $13,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

“(b) BROAD-Based.—For the purpose of carrying out part B, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2002 and each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

“(c) EDUCATION OF MIGRATORY CHILDREN.—For the purpose of carrying out part C, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2002 and each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

“(d) PREVENTION AND INTERVENTION PROGRAMS FOR YOUTH WHO ARE NEGLECTED, DELINQUENT, OR AT RISK OF DROPPING OUT.—For the purpose of carrying out part D, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2002 and each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

“(e) CAPITAL EXPENSES.—For the purpose of carrying out section 112(e), there is authorized to be appropriated $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2002.

“(f) FEDERAL ACTIVITIES.—For the purpose of carrying out sections 1501 and 1502, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2002 and each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.”.

SEC. 104. RESERVATION FOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT.
Section 1003 (20 U.S.C. 6303) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 1003. RESERVATION FOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT.
“(a) STATE RESERVATIONS.—Each State educational agency shall reserve 2.5 percent of the amount the State educational agency receives under part A for fiscal years 2002 and 2003, and 3.5 percent of that amount for fiscal years 2004 through 2006, to carry out subsection (b) and to carry out the State educational agency’s responsibilities under sections 1116 and 1117, including carrying out the State educational agency’s statewide system of technical assistance and support for local educational agencies and collaborative efforts among States.

“(b) USES.—Of the amount reserved under subsection (a) for any fiscal year, the State educational agency shall make available at least 50 percent of the amount directly to local educational agencies for school improvement and corrective action.”

Subtitle A—Improving Basic Programs Operated by Local Educational Agencies
Sec. 111. STATE PLANS.
Section 1111 (20 U.S.C. 6311) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 1111. STATE PLANS.
“(a) PLANS REQUIRED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each State educational agency desiring a grant under this part shall submit to the Secretary a plan that—

“(A) is developed in consultation with local educational agencies, teachers, pupil services personnel, administrators (including administrators of programs described in other parts of this title), local school boards, parents, and other entities in the community involved such as institutions of higher education;

“(B) satisfies the requirements of this section;

“(C) coordinates activities with other programs carried out under this Act, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, the Perkins Vocational and Technical Education Act of 1998, and the Head Start Act; and
(2) CONSOLIDATED PLAN.—A State plan submitted under paragraph (1) may be submitted as part of a consolidated plan under section 8302.

(b) STANDARDS, ASSESSMENTS, AND ACCOUNTABILITY.—

(1) CHALLENGING STANDARDS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each State plan shall demonstrate that the State has adopted challenging standards for challenging student performance standards that will be used by the State, and the local educational agencies, and elementary and secondary schools, within the State to carry out this part.

(B) DEFINITION.—The State shall define the measure of adequate yearly progress shall be based on the State in a manner that—

(i) applies the same high standards of academic performance to all students in the State;

(ii) takes into account the progress of all students in the State and served by each local educational agency and school served under section 1114 or 1115;

(iii) includes a timeline for ensuring the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress described in paragraph (4) and in section 612(a)(17)(A) of the Education Amendments of 1994; and

(iv) provides for the identification of schools or local educational agencies receiving funds under this part that for 3 consecutive years have exceeded such schools' or agencies' adequate yearly progress goals so that information about the practices and strategies of such schools or agencies can be disseminated to other schools served by the local educational agency and other schools in the State and the schools and agencies that have exceeded the goals can be considered for recognition by State educational agencies.

(C) SUBJECTS.—The State shall specify that the State have such standards for full and the State's challenging student performance standards; and

(D) STANDARDS.—Standards adopted under this paragraph shall include—

(i) challenging content standards in academic subjects that—

(II) describe 2 levels of high performance, proficient and advanced levels of performance, that determine how well students are mastering the material in the State content standards; and

(III) encourages the teaching of advanced skills; and

(ii) challenging performance standards that—

(A) aligned with the State's content standards;

(B) describe 2 levels of high performance, proficient and advanced levels of performance, that determine that all students are mastering the material in the State content standards; and

(C) describe a third level of performance, a basic level of performance, to provide complete information about the progress of the lower performing students toward meeting the proficient and advanced levels of performance.

(E) ADDITIONAL SUBJECTS.—For the academic subjects in which students will receive services under this part, but for which a State is not required under subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) to develop, and has not otherwise developed, challenging content and student performance standards, the State plan shall address the strategy for ensuring that economically disadvantaged students acquire the same knowledge, are taught the same skills, and are held to the same expectations as are all students.

(F) SPECIAL RULE.—In the case of a State that is not required under subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), (D), (E), and (F) to adopt more rigorous standards than the standards set by the State, local educational agencies shall be allowed to implement such rigorous standards.

(2) ADEQUATE YEARLY PROGRESS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each State plan shall demonstrate what constitutes adequate yearly progress on assessments described in paragraph (4) of—

(i) any school that receives assistance under this part toward enabling all students to meet the State's challenging student performance standards; and

(ii) any local educational agency that receives assistance under this part toward enabling all students to meet the State's challenging student performance standards.

(B) MEASURES.—The State shall include the same specifica- tion of the Public Education Reinvestment, assessment described in paragraph (4) not described in the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress.

(C) ACCOUNTABILITY.—Each State plan shall—

(i) provide for the identification of schools or local educational agencies receiving funds under this part that for 3 consecutive years have exceeded such schools' or agencies' adequate yearly progress goals so that information about the practices and strategies of such schools or agencies can be disseminated to other schools served by the local educational agency and other schools in the State and the schools and agencies that have exceeded the goals can be considered for recognition by the Secretary;

(ii) be the same as the accountability system the State uses for all schools or all local educational agencies in the State, if the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress for all the schools or all the local educational agencies include the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress.

(D) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR SCHOOLS.—

(A) 90 PERCENT REQUIREMENT.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

(B) MODIFICATION.—If the application of the 90 percent requirement described in clause (i) would require a fractional number of local educational agencies to meet the criteria, the Secretary shall issue an order modifying the requirement, to the minimum extent necessary, and shall require a substantial number of the agencies to meet the criteria.

(E) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—

(A) 90 PERCENT REQUIREMENT.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies within the State shall meet the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress.

(B) MODIFICATION.—If the application of the 90 percent requirement described in clause (i) would require a fractional number of schools to meet the criteria, the Secretary shall issue an order modifying the requirement, to the minimum extent necessary, and shall require a substantial number of the schools to meet the criteria.

(F) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR SCHOOLS.—Each State plan shall specify that, for an eligible school funded under this part, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

(G) PUBLIC NOTICE AND COMMENT.—The Secretary shall submit information in the State plan demonstrating that the States in developing such plans take into account the input of a range of institutions and individuals in the State with an interest in improved student performance; and

(H) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR SCHOOLS AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

(I) MODIFICATION.—If the application of the 90 percent requirement described in clause (i) would require a fractional number of local educational agencies to meet the criteria, the Secretary shall issue an order modifying the requirement, to the minimum extent necessary, and shall require a substantial number of the agencies to meet the criteria.

(J) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—

(A) 90 PERCENT REQUIREMENT.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies within the State shall meet the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress.

(B) MODIFICATION.—If the application of the 90 percent requirement described in clause (i) would require a fractional number of schools to meet the criteria, the Secretary shall issue an order modifying the requirement, to the minimum extent necessary, and shall require a substantial number of the schools to meet the criteria.

(C) MODIFICATION FOR SCHOOLS.—Each State plan shall specify that, for an eligible school funded under this part, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

(D) PUBLIC NOTICE AND COMMENT.—The Secretary shall submit information in the State plan demonstrating that the States in developing such plans take into account the input of a range of institutions and individuals in the State with an interest in improved student performance; and

(E) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR SCHOOLS AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

(F) MODIFICATION.—If the application of the 90 percent requirement described in clause (i) would require a fractional number of local educational agencies to meet the criteria, the Secretary shall issue an order modifying the requirement, to the minimum extent necessary, and shall require a substantial number of the agencies to meet the criteria.

(G) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—

(A) 90 PERCENT REQUIREMENT.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies within the State shall meet the State's criteria for adequate yearly progress.

(B) MODIFICATION.—If the application of the 90 percent requirement described in clause (i) would require a fractional number of schools to meet the criteria, the Secretary shall issue an order modifying the requirement, to the minimum extent necessary, and shall require a substantial number of the schools to meet the criteria.

(C) MODIFICATION FOR SCHOOLS.—Each State plan shall specify that, for an eligible school funded under this part, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

(D) PUBLIC NOTICE AND COMMENT.—The Secretary shall submit information in the State plan demonstrating that the States in developing such plans take into account the input of a range of institutions and individuals in the State with an interest in improved student performance; and

(E) ANNUAL IMPROVEMENT FOR SCHOOLS AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—Each State plan shall specify that, for a local educational agency, a school, or a school district, if any of the schools or all the local educational agencies so identified have the resources, skills, and knowledge needed to carry out their obligations under sections 1114 and 1115 and to meet the requirements for adequate yearly progress described in this paragraph; and

standards, assessments, and the State accountability system is widely known and understood by the public, parents, teachers, and school administrators throughout the State.

(II) Effort.—The effort described in clause (i)(II), at a minimum, shall include annual publication of such information and explanation in a public thorough and transparent means as the Internet, the media, and public agencies. Languages other than English shall be used to communicate the information and text to parents in appropriate cases.

(III) State Authority.—If a State educational agency provides evidence that is satisfactory to the Secretary that the State educational agency is fully qualified not later than December 31, 2006, that neither the State educational agency nor any other State government official, agency, or entity has sufficient authority under State law to adopt and implement student performance standards, and assessments aligned with such standards, that will be applicable to all students enrolled in the State’s public schools, the State educational agency may meet the requirements of this subsection by stating in the State plan that the State is—

(A) adopting content and student performance standards, and assessments that meet the requirements of this subsection, on a statewide basis, and limiting the applicability of such standards and assessments to students served by this part; or

(B) adopting and implementing policies that ensure that each local educational agency within the State that receives assistance under this part will adopt content and student performance standards and assessments that—

(i) are aligned with the standards described in subparagraph (A); and

(ii) that meet the criteria in this subsection and any regulations regarding such standards and assessments that the Secretary may publish and that are applicable to all students served by each such local educational agency.

(4) Assessments.—Each State plan shall demonstrate that the State has implemented a set of high quality, yearly student assessments that includes, at a minimum, assessments in mathematics, science, and English language arts, that will be used, starting not later than the 2002–2003 school year as the primary means of determining the yearly progress of local educational agencies and school served by the State under this title in enabling all students to meet the State’s challenging content and student performance standards. Such assessments shall—

(A) be the same as the assessments used to measure the performance of all students, if the State has assessments that measure the performance of all students;

(B) be aligned with the State’s challenging content and student performance standards, and provide coherent information about the local educational agency’s contribution to the student attainment of such standards;

(C) be used only for purposes for which such assessments are valid and reliable, and be consistent with relevant, nationally recognized professional and technical standards for such assessments;

(D) measure the performance of students against the challenging State content and student performance standards, and be administered not less than once during—

(i) grades 3 through 5; and

(ii) grades 6 through 9; and

(iii) grades 10 through 12; or

(E) include multiple, up-to-date measures of student performance and the local educational agency’s contribution to student performance, that measure higher order thinking skills and understanding;

(F) provide for—

(i) the participation in such assessments of all students;

(ii) the reasonable adaptations and accommodations required for students with disabilities as such term is defined in section 602(3) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, that are necessary to measure the performance of such students relative to State content and student performance standards;

(iii) in the case of a student with limited English proficiency, the assessment of such student in English if such a native language assessment is more likely than an English language assessment to yield accurate and reliable information on what that student knows and is able to do; and

(iv) notwithstanding clause (iii), the assessment of—

(a) English language arts of any student who has attended school in the United States (not including the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico) for 3 or more consecutive school years, except that if the local educational agency determines, on a case-by-case basis, that assessments in another language likely yield more accurate and reliable information on what such students know and can do, the local educational agency may assess such students in the appropriate language for an additional consecutive year beyond the third consecutive year;

(b) English and Spanish that are present in the English language arts of any student who has not demonstrated grade-level literacy in English and Spanish that are present in the English language arts of any student who has been taught in schools for improvement; and

(c) the extent practicable, use rigorous criteria.

(5) First Grade Literacy Assessment.—In addition to implementing the assessments described in this subparagraph, each State shall provide funds under this part that are necessary to ensure that the State’s challenging content standards are fully qualified not later than December 31, 2006, and

(A) the participating in such assessments of all students;

(B) hold each local educational agency accountable for the State plan that the State has sufficient authority under State law to adopt and implement student performance standards, and assessments aligned with such standards, that will be applicable to all students served by each such local educational agency.

(6) Language Assessments.—Each State shall identify the languages other than English that are used in the schools participating student populations in the State, and indicate the languages for which yearly student assessments are not available and are needed. The State may request assistance from the Secretary in identifying assessment measures in the needed languages.

(7) Development and Implementation.—Each State plan shall provide that the State shall develop and implement, at a minimum, the assessment described in paragraph (4) in mathematics and English language arts by the 2002–2003 school year.

(8) Requirement.—Each State plan shall describe—

(A) how the State educational agency will assist each local educational agency and school in the State to develop the capacity to comply with each of the requirements of sections 1116(b), 1116(c), and 1116 that are applicable to such agency or school;

(B) how the State educational agency will—

(i) hold each local educational agency accountable for the State plan that the State has sufficient authority under State law to adopt and implement student performance standards, and assessments aligned with such standards, that will be applicable to all students served by each such local educational agency.

(ii) identify local educational agencies and schools that are for improvement; and

(iii) assist local educational agencies and schools identified as described in subsection (l) to address performance problems, including providing thorough descriptions of—

(aa) the amounts and types of professional development to be provided to instructional staff; and

(bb) the amount of any financial assistance to be provided by the State under section 1116(e)(2)(C) that are necessary to ensure that such funds are provided through the State and to the activities to be provided with those funds; and

(iv) implement corrective action if the assistance is not effective;

(C) how the State educational agency is providing additional academic instruction, such as before- and after-school programs and summer academic programs, to low-performing students;

(D) such other factors as the State considers to be appropriate to provide students with the opportunity to obtain the knowledge and skills described in the State’s challenging content standards;

(E) the specific steps that the State educational agency will take to ensure that—

(i) all teachers in the State, in school-wide programs and targeted assistance programs, are fully qualified not later than December 31, 2006; and

(ii) economically disadvantaged students and minority students are not taught at higher rates than other students by inexperienced, uncertified or unlicensed, or out-of-field teachers;

(F) the measures that the State educational agency will use to evaluate and publicly report the State’s progress in improving the quality of the agency’s programs and services in the schools served by the State educational agency and local educational agencies receiving funds under this Act.

(9) Other Provisions To Support Teaching and Learning.—Each State plan shall contain assurances that—

(A) the State educational agency will work with local educational agencies, including educational service agencies, or local consortia and institutions to provide technical assistance to local educational agencies, educational service agencies, or local consortia and institutions to provide technical assistance to local educational agencies, including educational service agencies, or local consortia and institutions to provide technical assistance to local educational agencies; and

(B) the State educational agency will carry out the State educational agency’s responsibilities under this part, including providing technical assistance concerning providing professional development under section 1119A and technical assistance under section 1117;

(2)(A) where educational service agencies exist, the State educational agency will consider providing professional development and technical assistance through such agencies; and

(2)(B) where educational service agencies do not exist, the State educational agency will consider providing professional development and technical assistance through other cooperative arrangements, such as through a consortium of local educational agencies;

(3) the State educational agency will use the directory of the standards assessments required under subsection (b)(4), and other measures or indicators available to the State, to review annually the progress of each local educational agency and school served under this part in the State to determine whether each such agency and school is making the annual progress necessary to ensure that all students will meet the State’s proficient level of performance on the State assessments described in subsection (b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, and, upon determining that the State has in place challenging content standards and State student performance standards, new assessments, or a new definition of adequate yearly progress, the State shall submit information on such significant changes to the Secretary; and

(4) the Secretary shall periodically review and revised by the State, as necessary, to reflect changes in the State’s strategies and programs under this part.

(5) the State educational agency will encourage local educational agencies and secondary schools to consolidate funds from other Federal, State, and local sources for schoolwide reform in schoolwide programs under section 1114;

(6) the State educational agency will modify or eliminate State fiscal and accounting barriers so that elementary and secondary schools can easily consolidate funds from other Federal, State, and local sources for schoolwide reform in schoolwide programs under section 1114;

(7) the State educational agency will provide technical assistance in order to assist the State to meet the requirements described under subsections (a), (b), and (c); and

(8) the State educational agency has involved the committee of practitioners established under section 1703(c) in developing the State plan and will involve the committee in monitoring the implementation of the State plan; and

(9) the State educational agency will inform local educational agencies of the local educational agencies’ authority to obtain waivers under title VIII and, if the State is an Ed-Flex Partnership State, waivers under the Education Flexibility Partnership Act of 1999.

(d) Review.—

(1) Peer Review and Secretarial Approval.—The Secretary shall—

(A) establish a peer review process to assist in the review of State plans;

(B) only approve a State plan meeting each of the requirements of this section;

(C) if the Secretary determines that the State plan does not meet each of the requirements of subsections (a), (b), and (c), immediately notify the State of such determination and the reasons for such determination;

(D) not disapprove a State plan before—

(i) notifying the State educational agency in writing of the specific deficiencies of the State plan for not meeting the requirements of subsections (a), (b), and (c); and

(ii) offering the State an opportunity to revise the State plan;

(2) Additional Funds.—Based on the extent to which educational agencies and systems described in paragraph (1) are not in place, the Secretary shall withhold from the State, in addition to any amount withheld under paragraph (1), additional administrative funds under section 1703(c). The Secretary shall withhold such additional administrative funds if the Secretary determines to be appropriate, except that if the State fails to meet the deadlines for a second or subsequent fiscal year, the Secretary shall withhold for the fiscal year after the failure, not less than 1⁄5 of the amount of administrative funds the State received under section 1703(c) during the first year in which the State fails to meet the deadlines.

(3) Waiver.—

(A) In General.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the State plan does not meet each of the requirements of this section, but shall not have the authority to require a State, as a condition of approving a State plan, to delete from, such plan 1 or more specific elements of the challenging State content standards or to use specific assessment instruments or programs under this part.

(B) Exception.—A waiver granted pursuant to this paragraph (A) shall not apply to the requirements described under subsection (h).

(4) Special Rule on Science Standards and Assessments.—

(A) In General.—The Secretary may not grant a waiver of the requirements of this section, but shall not have the authority to require a State, as a condition of approving a State plan, to delete from, such plan 1 or more specific elements of the challenging State content standards or to use specific assessment instruments or programs under this part.

(B) Exception.—A waiver granted pursuant to paragraph (A) shall not apply to the requirements described under subsection (h).

Sec. 112. Local Educational Agency Plans, Amendments.—(a) In General.—(1) the State educational agency will submit a revised State plan that meets the requirements of this section to the Secretary for approval not later than 1 year after the date of disapproval; and

(2) review.—The Secretary shall review information from the State on the adequacy of programs and schools required under subsection (b)(2) for the purpose of determining State and local compliance with section 1116.

(3) Duration of the Plan.—

(1) in general.—Each State plan shall—

(A) remain in effect for the duration of the State plan for not meeting the requirements described under subsections (a), (b), and (c); and

(B) be periodically reviewed and revised by the State, as necessary, to reflect changes in the State’s strategies and programs under this part.

(2) Additional Information.—If the State makes significant changes in the State plan, such as the adoption of new challenging State content standards and State student performance standards, new assessments, or a new definition of adequate yearly progress, the State shall submit information on such significant changes to the Secretary.

(3) Limitation on Conditions.—Nothing in this part shall be construed to authorize an officer or employee of the Federal Government to mandate, direct, or control a State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specified challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

(4) Penalties.—

(1) in general.—If a State fails to meet the statutory deadlines for demonstrating that the State has in place challenging content standards and student performance standards required under section 1111(b)(6), as in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, assessments, and a statewide State accountability system required under section 1703(c), the State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specific challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

Sec. 113. Provisions Related to Low-Performing Schools.—(a) In General.—Each local educational agency shall—

(B) be periodically reviewed and revised by the State, as necessary, to reflect changes in the State’s strategies and programs under this part.

(2) Additional Information.—If the State makes significant changes in the State plan, such as the adoption of new challenging State content standards and State student performance standards, new assessments, or a new definition of adequate yearly progress, the State shall submit information on such significant changes to the Secretary.

(3) Limitation on Conditions.—Nothing in this part shall be construed to authorize an officer or employee of the Federal Government to mandate, direct, or control a State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specified challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

(4) Penalties.—

(1) in general.—If a State fails to meet the statutory deadlines for demonstrating that the State has in place challenging content standards and student performance standards required under section 1111(b)(6), as in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, assessments, and a statewide State accountability system required under section 1703(c), the State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specific challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

Sec. 114. Additional Provisions.—(a) In General.—Each State plan—

(B) be periodically reviewed and revised by the State, as necessary, to reflect changes in the State’s strategies and programs under this part.

(2) Additional Information.—If the State makes significant changes in the State plan, such as the adoption of new challenging State content standards and State student performance standards, new assessments, or a new definition of adequate yearly progress, the State shall submit information on such significant changes to the Secretary.

(3) Limitation on Conditions.—Nothing in this part shall be construed to authorize an officer or employee of the Federal Government to mandate, direct, or control a State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specified challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

(4) Penalties.—

(1) in general.—If a State fails to meet the statutory deadlines for demonstrating that the State has in place challenging content standards and student performance standards required under section 1111(b)(6), as in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, assessments, and a statewide State accountability system required under section 1703(c), the State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specific challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

Sec. 115. Federal Award.—The Secretary shall—

(A) remain in effect for the duration of the State plan for not meeting the requirements described under subsections (a), (b), and (c); and

(B) be periodically reviewed and revised by the State, as necessary, to reflect changes in the State’s strategies and programs under this part.

(2) Additional Information.—If the State makes significant changes in the State plan, such as the adoption of new challenging State content standards and State student performance standards, new assessments, or a new definition of adequate yearly progress, the State shall submit information on such significant changes to the Secretary.

(3) Limitation on Conditions.—Nothing in this part shall be construed to authorize an officer or employee of the Federal Government to mandate, direct, or control a State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specified challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

(4) Penalties.—

(1) in general.—If a State fails to meet the statutory deadlines for demonstrating that the State has in place challenging content standards and student performance standards required under section 1111(b)(6), as in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, assessments, and a statewide State accountability system required under section 1703(c), the State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specific challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

Sec. 116. School Improvement.—(a) In General.—Each State plan—

(B) be periodically reviewed and revised by the State, as necessary, to reflect changes in the State’s strategies and programs under this part.

(2) Additional Information.—If the State makes significant changes in the State plan, such as the adoption of new challenging State content standards and State student performance standards, new assessments, or a new definition of adequate yearly progress, the State shall submit information on such significant changes to the Secretary.

(3) Limitation on Conditions.—Nothing in this part shall be construed to authorize an officer or employee of the Federal Government to mandate, direct, or control a State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specified challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.

(4) Penalties.—

(1) in general.—If a State fails to meet the statutory deadlines for demonstrating that the State has in place challenging content standards and student performance standards required under section 1111(b)(6), as in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, assessments, and a statewide State accountability system required under section 1703(c), the State’s, local educational agency’s, or elementary school’s or secondary school’s specific challenging content or student performance standards, assessments, curricula, or program of instruction, as a condition of eligibility for funds under this part.
“(B) the strategies the local educational agency will use to ensure that economically disadvantaged students and minority students are not taught at higher rates than other students in a different class, grade, or separate school, and are not concentrated in classes, grades, or schools with unlicensed or out-of-field teachers; and

“(C) measures the agency will use to evaluate and publicly report progress in improving the quality of instruction in schools served by the local educational agency and receiving funding under this Act.

“(c) ASSURANCES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each local educational agency shall provide assurances that the local educational agency will—

“(A) reserve not less than 10 percent of the funds the agency receives under this part for high quality professional development, as described in section 111A, for professional instructional staff;

“(B) provide eligible schools and parents with information regarding schoolwide program authority and the ability of such schools to consolidate funds from Federal, State, and local sources;

“(C) provide technical assistance and support to schools participating in schoolwide programs;

“(D) work in consultation with schools as the schools develop school plans pursuant to section 1114(b)(2), and assist schools in implementing such plans or undertaking activities pursuant to section 1114(c), so that all such schools can make adequate yearly progress toward meeting the challenging State student performance standards;

“(E) use the disaggregated results of the student assessments required under section 1111(b)(4), and other measures or indicators available to the agency to review progress by the progress of each school served by the agency and receiving funds under this title to determine whether or not all of the schools served by the local educational agency can make adequate yearly progress necessary to ensure that all students will meet the State’s proficient level of performance on the State assessments described in section 1111(b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act;

“(F) set, and hold schools served by the local educational agency accountable for meeting, annual numerical goals for improving the performance of all groups of students based on performance standards established by the State under section 1111(b)(1)(D)(ii);

“(G) fulfill the local educational agency’s school improvement responsibilities under section 1111(b)(4) by taking corrective actions under section 1116(c)(10); and

“(H) provide the State educational agency with—

“(i) an annual, up-to-date, and accurate list of all schools served by the local educational agency that are identified for school improvement and corrective action;

“(ii) each school described in clause (i) identified for school improvement or corrective action; and

“(iii) specific plans for improving student performance in each of the schools described in clause (i), including specific numerical performance goals for each school, for the 2 school years after the school is identified for school improvement or corrective action, for each group of students identified in section 1111(b)(2)(B)(iv) enrolled in the school;

“(I) provide services to eligible students attending private schools and secondary schools in accordance with section 120, and provide timely and meaningful consultation with private school officials regarding such services;

“(J) take into account the experience gained from model programs for the educationally disadvantaged and the findings of relevant scientifically based research when developing technical assistance plans for, and delivering technical assistance to, the local educational agency or agencies that are receiving funds under this part and are in school improvement or corrective action status;

“(K) in the case of a local educational agency that chooses to use funds under this part to provide early childhood development services to economically disadvantaged children below the age of compulsory school attendance, ensure that such services meet the performance standards established under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 616(b)(1) of the Head Start Act; and

“(L) comply with the requirements of section 1119 regarding the qualifications of teachers and paraeducational professionals;

“(M) inform eligible schools served by the local educational agency of the agency’s authority to obtain waivers on such schools’ behalf under title VIII and, if the State is an Ed-Flex Partnership State, under the Education Flexibility Partnership Act of 1999; and “(N) coordinate activities and collaborate, to the extent feasible and necessary as determined by the local educational agency, with other agencies providing services to children, youth, and families.

“(2) MODEL PROGRAMS; SCIENTIFICALLY BASED RESEARCH.—For purposes of enabling local educational agencies to implement paragraph (1),—

“(A) the Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Health and Human Services on the implementation of such paragraph, and shall establish a schedule established by the State under section 1111(b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act.

“(B) The Secretary shall disseminate to local educational agencies the performance standards issued under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 616(b)(1) of the Head Start Act, on the publication of such standards; and

“(C) local educational agencies affected by such paragraph (1)(J) shall plan for the implementation of such paragraph (taking into consideration State and local laws and local teacher contracts) to assist local educational agencies to comply with such paragraph;

“(D) the Secretary shall disseminate to local educational agencies the performance standards issued under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 616(b)(1) of the Head Start Act, on the publication of such standards.

“(3) INAPPLICABILITY.—The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to preschool Start programs.

“(d) PLAN DEVELOPMENT AND DURATION.—Section 1112(d) (20 U.S.C. 6322(d)) is amended to read as follows:

“(1) PLAN DEVELOPMENT AND DURATION.—

“(A) the reasons for the identification of the student as being in need of English language instruction;

“(B) the student’s level of English proficiency at the time such assessment was assessed, and the status of the student’s academic performance;

“(C) how the English language instruction educational program will specifically help the student learn English and meet age-appropriate standards for grade promotion and graduation;

“(D) the specific exit requirements of the English language instruction educational program;

“(E) the expected rate of graduation from the English language instruction educational program into mainstream classes; and “(F) the expected rate of graduation from secondary school of participants in the English language instruction educational program, if funds under this part are used for students in secondary schools.

“(2) PARENTAL RIGHTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The parents of a student participating in an English language instruction educational program under this part—

“(B) shall have the option of selecting among methods of instruction, if more than 1 method is offered for the program; and “(ii) have the right to have their child immediately removed from the program on their request.

“(B) RECEIPT OF INFORMATION.—The parents of a participating student of limited English proficient status may have the right to receive a written notice describing the policy of the educational agency to be implemented under this section, including—

(‘‘B) the reasons for such identification;

(‘‘C) a description of the data on which such identification was based;

(‘‘D) an explanation of what the local educational agency or State educational agency is doing to help the school address the performance problems, including an explanation of the amounts and types of professional development being provided to the instructional staff in such school, the amount of any financial assistance being provided by the State educational agency under section 1003, and the activities that are being provided with such financial assistance;

(‘‘E) an explanation of the right of parents, pursuant to paragraph (7), to transfer their child to a higher performing public school, including a public charter school or magnet school that is not in school improvement or corrective action status, and how such transfer will be carried out;

(‘‘F) public school choice option.—(A)(i) In the case of a school identified for school improvement on or before the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, a local educational agency shall, not later than 18 months after such date of enactment, provide all students enrolled in the school an option to transfer (consistent with State and local policies and practices related to public school choice and local pupil transfer) to any higher performing public school, including a public charter or magnet school, that—

(‘‘I) is not in school improvement or corrective action status;

(‘‘II) has not been in school improvement or corrective action status at any time during the 2 academic years before the identification; and

(‘‘III) is not at risk of being identified for school improvement or corrective action during the academic year after the identification.

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(‘‘B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).

(B) If all public schools served by the local educational agency to which a student may transfer under clause (i) are identified for school improvement or corrective action, or, if public schools in the agency’s jurisdiction that are not in school improvement or corrective action cannot be immediately identified for the academic year after the date on which the local educational agency identifies the school for school improvement, provide all students enrolled in the school with the transfer option described in clause (I).
educational agency and that has been identified under paragraph (1); and

(ii) shall identify for corrective action and take corrective action with respect to any school served by the local educational agency that fails to make adequate yearly progress, as defined by the State under section 1111(b)(2), at the end of the second year after the school year in which the school was identified under paragraph (1); and

(iii) shall continue to provide technical assistance while instituting any corrective action under this part until such time as the corrective action is complete or the agency will provide written notification to the State educational agency that such corrective action has not resulted in sufficient progress in increased student performance, the State educational agency shall take such action as the agency finds necessary, including designating a school or component of the educational agency's responsibilities under this section.

(D) In the case of a school described in subparagraph (C)(ii), the local educational agency shall, at a school—

(i) withholding funds from the school;

(ii) making alternative governance arrangements, including reopening the school as a public charter school, as a public charter school;

(iii) reconstituting the relevant school staff; or

(iv) instituting and fully implementing a new curriculum, including providing appropriate professional development for all relevant staff, that is tied to scientifically based research and offers substantial promise of improving student performance for low-performing students; and

(ii)(I) authorizing students to transfer (consistent with the requirements of paragraph (8)) to higher performing public schools served by the local educational agency, including public charter and magnet schools;

(ii)(II) providing to such students transportation services, or paying for the cost of transportation, to such schools (except that the funds used by the local educational agency to provide the transportation services or pay for the cost of transportation shall not exceed 10 percent of the amount allocated to the local educational agency under this part).

(E) A local educational agency may delay, for a period not to exceed 1 year, implementation of corrective action only if the school's failure to make adequate yearly progress was justified due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances, such as a natural disaster or a precipitous and unforeseen financial disaster.

(F) The local educational agency shall publish and disseminate information regarding—

(i) the reasons for such identification; and

(ii) how the parents can participate in upgrading the quality of the local educational agency.

(G) Each local educational agency identified under paragraph (2) shall, not later than 3 months after being so identified, develop or revise a local educational agency plan, in consultation with parents, teachers, and other school staff, the local school board, and others, for approval by the State educational agency. Such plan shall—

(i) identify specific annual numerical academic performance objectives in at least the areas of mathematics and English language arts that the local educational agency will meet, with such objectives being calculated in a manner so that their achievement will ensure that each group of students enrolled in each school served by the local educational agency will meet the State's proficient level of performance on the State assessment described in section 1111(b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act; and

(ii) provide an assurance that the local educational agency will—

(I) reserve not less than 10 percent of the funds made available to the local educational agency under this part for each fiscal year for schools that are conducting targeted assistance programs and that are directly addressing the academic performance objectives described in section 1111(b)(4); and

(II) identify how the local educational agency will use such funds for the purpose of providing the high quality professional development that—

(aa) directly addresses the academic performance problem that caused the local educational agency to be identified for improvement; and

(bb) meets the requirements for professional development activities under section 1111(b)(1)(A) and (B) and (C) to improve the quality of the local educational agency.

(H) Not later than 30 days after a local educational agency makes an initial determination using the procedures described in subparagraph (D) with respect to a school served by the agency and receiving assistance under this part, the local educational agency shall make public a final determination of the status for the purpose of providing to teachers and principals at schools served by the agency and receiving assistance under this part—

(i) the reasons for such identification; and

(ii) evidence before making a final determination.

I. Time limits.

(6) Time limits. Not later than 45 days after the State educational agency makes an initial determination using the procedures described in subparagraph (D) with respect to a local educational agency within the State and receiving assistance under this part for improvement, the State educational agency shall provide written notification to the parents of each student served by a local educational agency identified for improvement, in a format and to the extent practicable, in a language the parents can understand, of—

(A) the reasons for such identification; and

(B) how the parents can participate in upgrading the quality of the local educational agency.

(7) Notification to parents. The State educational agency shall promptly notify each student served by a local educational agency identified for improvement, in a format and to the extent practicable, in a language the parents can understand, of—

(A) the reasons for such identification; and

(B) how the parents can participate in upgrading the quality of the local educational agency.

(8) Local educational agency plan. Each local educational agency identified under paragraph (2) shall, not later than 3 months after being so identified, develop or revise a local educational agency plan, in consultation with parents, teachers, and other school staff, the local school board, and others, for approval by the State educational agency. Such plan shall—

(I) incorporate scientifically based research strategies that strengthen the core academic subjects in schools served by the local educational agency; and

(II) provide an assurance that the local educational agency will—

(a) reserve not less than 10 percent of the funds made available to the local educational agency under this part for each fiscal year for schools that are conducting targeted assistance programs and that are directly addressing the academic performance objectives described in section 1111(b)(4); and

(b) identify how the local educational agency will use such funds for the purpose of providing the high quality professional development that—

(aa) directly addresses the academic performance problem that caused the local educational agency to be identified for improvement; and

(bb) meets the requirements for professional development activities under section 1111(b)(1)(A), (B) and (C) to improve the quality of the local educational agency.

(J) Federal review.

(9) Federal review. The Secretary shall annually review the progress of each local educational agency that receives assistance under this part and the adequacy of the corrective action taken by the local educational agency to ensure that each group of students enrolled in each school served by the local educational agency will meet the State's proficient level of performance on the State assessment described in section 1111(b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act; and

(10) Compliance.

(11) State educational agency improvement. —(A) Integration of local educational agency improvement. —Section 1111(d) (20 U.S.C. 6317(d)) is amended to read as follows:

"(1) IN GENERAL. —A State educational agency shall annually review the progress of each local educational agency within the State receiving funds under this part to determine whether such agencies and receiving assistance under this part are making adequate yearly progress, as defined under section 1111(b)(2), toward meeting the State's student performance standards and to determine whether each local educational agency is carrying out its responsibilities under sections 1116 and 1117.

"(2) IDENTIFICATION OF LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY FOR IMPROVEMENT. — A State educational agency shall identify for improvement any local educational agency that—

(A) for 2 consecutive years failed to make adequate yearly progress as defined in the State's plan under section 1111(b)(2); or

(B) was in improvement status under this section on the day before the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act.

"(3) TRANSITION. —The 2-year period described in paragraph (2)(A) shall include any continuation permitted immediately before the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act during which a local educational agency was in improvement status for the purpose of providing to teachers and principals at schools served by the agency and receiving assistance under this part high quality professional development that—

(aa) directly addresses the academic performance problem that caused the local educational agency to be identified for improvement; and

(bb) meets the requirements for professional development activities under subparagraph (C).

"(4) STATE EDUCATIONAL AGENCY IMPROVEMENT. — (A) STATE REVIEW AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY IMPROVEMENT. —

"(1) IN GENERAL. —A State educational agency shall have the authority to—

(I) authorizing students to transfer (consistent with the requirements of paragraph (8)) to higher performing public schools served by the local educational agency, including public charter and magnet schools;

(II) providing to such students transportation services, or paying for the cost of transportation, to such schools (except that the funds used by the local educational agency to provide the transportation services or pay for the cost of transportation shall not exceed 10 percent of the amount allocated to the local educational agency under this part).

"(2) IDENTIFICATION OF LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY FOR IMPROVEMENT. — A State educational agency shall identify for improvement any local educational agency that—

(A) for 2 consecutive years failed to make adequate yearly progress as defined in the State's plan under section 1111(b)(2); or

(B) was in improvement status under this section on the day before the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act.

"(3) TRANSITION. —The 2-year period described in paragraph (2)(A) shall include any continuation permitted immediately before the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act during which a local educational agency was in improvement status for the purpose of providing to teachers and principals at schools served by the agency and receiving assistance under this part high quality professional development that—

(aa) directly addresses the academic performance problem that caused the local educational agency to be identified for improvement; and

(bb) meets the requirements for professional development activities under subparagraph (C).

"(4) TARGETED ASSISTANCE SCHOOLS.—To determine if a local educational agency that receives assistance for secondary schools that are conducting targeted assistance programs under section 1115 should be identified for improvement under this section, the State educational agency may choose to review the progress of only the students in such schools who are served, or who are eligible for services, under this part.

"(5) OPPORTUNITY TO REVIEW AND PRESENT EVIDENCE.—(A) Before identifying a local educational agency for improvement under paragraph (2), a State educational agency shall provide the public educational agency with an opportunity to review the local educational agency data, including assessment data, on which the proposed identification is based.

"(B) If the local educational agency believes that the proposed determination is in error for statistical or other substantive reasons, the principal may provide supporting evidence to the local educational agency, which shall consider such evidence before making a final determination.

"(6) TIME LIMITS.—Not later than 45 days after the State educational agency makes an initial determination using the procedures described in subparagraph (D) with respect to a local educational agency within the State and receiving assistance under this part for improvement, the State educational agency shall provide written notification to the parents of each student served by a local educational agency identified for improvement, in a format and to the extent practicable, in a language the parents can understand, of—

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
February 13, 2001

(including a revised plan) expeditiously, but not later than the beginning of the school year following the school year in which the agency was identified for improvement.

(ii) the State educational agency shall approve the plan if the plan meets the requirements of this paragraph.

(iii) [paragraph text repeated]

(iv) the consistent academic failure of schools served by a local educational agency that caused the State educational agency to take such action with respect to the local educational agency; and

(v) any underlying staffing, curriculum, or other organizational problems served by the local educational agency; and

(vi) is designed to increase substantially the likelihood that students enrolled in the local educational agency identified for corrective action will perform at the State’s proficient and advanced levels of performance on the State assessment described in section 1112(a) and provide the local educational agency with notice and a opportunity for a hearing, if State law provides for such notice and opportunity.

(2) Prior to determining whether to take a corrective action with respect to a local educational agency under this paragraph, the State educational agency shall provide the local educational agency with notice and notice and an opportunity for hearing, if State law provides for such notice and opportunity.

(3) Not later than 45 days after the State educational agency makes an initial determination regarding taking a corrective action concerning a local educational agency inputs to State and regional agencies under this part, the State educational agency shall make public a final determination on the status of the local educational agency.

(4) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘charter school’ has the meaning given in section 4210.

SEC. 116. STATE ASSISTANCE FOR SCHOOL
PORT AND IMPROVEMENT.

Section 1117 (20 U.S.C. 6317) is amended to read as follows:

(a) SYSTEM FOR SUPPLEMENTAL FUNDS DESCRIPTION.—Each State educational agency shall develop a Statewide system of intensive and sustained support and improvement for local educational agencies, elementary schools, and secondary schools receiving funds under this part, in order to ensure that all groups of students in section 1111(b)(4) and attending such schools meet the State’s proficient level of performance on the State assessments described in section 1111(b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act.

(b) PRIORITIES.—In carrying out this section during an academic year, a State educational agency shall—

(i) first, provide support and technical assistance to local educational agencies identified for corrective action under section 1116, and assist elementary schools and secondary schools in accordance with section 1116(c)(11), for which a local educational agency has failed to carry out its responsibilities under paragraphs (9) and (10) of section 1116(c);

(ii) second, provide support and technical assistance to local educational agencies and schools identified for improvement under section 1116; and

(iii) third, provide support and technical assistance to local educational agencies and schools participating under this part that are at risk of being identified for improvement during the subsequent academic year.

(c) PROCEDURES.—In order to achieve the objective described in subsection (a), the State educational agency shall ensure that the Statewide system will provide support and technical assistance through approaches such as—

(i) using school support teams, composed of individuals who are knowledgeable about scientifically based research, about teaching and learning practices, and particularly about strategies for improving educational eresults for low-performing students; and

(ii) directly involving and using distinguished educators, who are chosen from schools served under this part that have been especially successful in improving academic per-fomance.
“(1) devise additional approaches to providing the support and technical assistance described in subsection (c), such as providing assistance through institutions of higher education, other service agencies, or other local consortia; and

“(2) seek approval from the Secretary to use funds under section 1003(b) for such approaches, consistent with the State plan.

“(e) Funds.—The State educational agency—

“(1) shall use funds reserved under section 1003(a), but not used under section 1003(b), to carry out this section; and

“(2) may use State administrative funds authorized under section 170(c) to carry out this section.”.

SEC. 117. PARENTAL INVOLVEMENT.

(a) Local Educational Agency Policy.—Section 1118(a) (20 U.S.C. 6318(a)) is amended—

“(1) in paragraph (1), by striking “programs, activities, and procedures” and inserting “activities and procedures”;

“(2) in paragraph (2), by striking subparagraphs (E) and (F) and inserting the following:

“(E) conduct, with the involvement of parents, an annual evaluation of the content of the parental involvement policy developed under such section and the effectiveness of the policies in enhancing the academic quality of the schools served under this part;

“(F) involve parents in the activities of the schools served under this part; and “(G) ensure that the environment within the local educational agency and schools served under this part is—

“(i) family friendly environments within the local educational agency and schools served under this part; and

“(ii) to the extent practicable, in a language, that the parents can understand.”;

(c) Parental Involvement.—Section 1118(c)(4) (20 U.S.C. 6318(c)(4)) is amended—

“(1) by redesignating section 1119 (20 U.S.C. 6320) as section 1119A; and

“(2) by inserting after section 1118 the following:

“SEC. 1118. QUALIFICATIONS FOR TEACHERS AND PARAPROFESSIONALS.

“(a) In General.—

“(1) Plan.—Each State educational agency receiving assistance under this part shall develop and submit to the Secretary a plan to ensure that all teachers teaching within the State are fully qualified not later than December 31, 2006. Such plan shall include an assurance that the State educational agency will require each local educational agency or school receiving funds under this part publicly to report on annual progress with respect to the local educational agency’s or school’s performance in increasing the percentage of classes in core academic subjects (as defined in section 2202) taught by fully qualified teachers.

“(2) Special Rule.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the provisions of this section governing teacher qualifications shall not supersede State laws governing public charter schools (as defined in section 4210).

“(b) New Paraprofessionals.—Each local educational agency receiving assistance under this part shall ensure that each paraprofessional hired after December 31, 2004, and working in a program assisted under this part—

“(1) has completed at least the number of courses at an institution of higher education in the area of educational certification, or in the academic subject in which the paraprofessional is working, for a minor in elementary education or that subject at such institution;

“(2) has obtained a associate’s (or higher) degree; or

“(3) has met a rigorous standard of quality, through formal state certification (as described in subsection (b)), that demonstrates, as appropriate—

“(A) knowledge of, and the ability to provide tutorial assistance in, reading, writing, and mathematics; or “(B) knowledge of, and the ability to provide tutorial assistance in, reading readiness, writing readiness, and mathematics readiness.

“(c) Existing Paraprofessionals.—Each local educational agency receiving assistance under this part shall ensure that paraprofessionals hired before December 31, 2004, and working in a program assisted under this part shall have satisfied the requirements of subsection (b).

“(d) Exclusions For Translation and Parental Involvement Activities.—Subsections (b) and (c) shall not apply to a paraprofessional—

“(1) whose duties consist solely of conducting parental involvement activities consistent with section 1118 or other school readiness activities that are noninstructional.

“(2) Authorized Responsibilities.—A paraprofessional described in paragraph (1) may be assigned—

“(A) to provide 1-on-1 tutoring for eligible students under this part, if the tutoring is something at a time when the student would otherwise not receive instruction from a teacher;

“(B) to assist with classroom management, such as organizing instructional and other materials;

“(C) to provide assistance in a computer laboratory;

“(D) to conduct parental involvement activities or school readiness activities that are noninstructional;

“(E) to provide support in a library or media center;

“(F) to act as a translator; or

“(G) to provide assistance with the provision of instructional services to students.

“(3) Limitations.—A paraprofessional described in paragraph (1)—

“(A) shall not perform the duties of a certified or licensed teacher or a substitute; and

“(B) shall not perform the duties described in paragraph (2) except under the direct supervision of a fully qualified teacher or other appropriate professional; and

“(C) may not perform the duties described in subsection (b) unless the State educational agency receiving assistance under this part has a plan that ensures that the paraprofessional has the ability to effectively provide the assistance.

“(e) Uses of Funds.—Notwithstanding subsection (b)(2), a local educational agency receiving funds under this part may use such funds to support ongoing training and professional development to assist teachers and paraprofessionals in satisfying the requirements of this section.

“(f) State Certification.—Each State educational agency receiving assistance under this part shall—

“(1) ensure that the State educational agency has in place State criteria for the certification of paraprofessionals by December 31, 2005; and

“(2) ensure that paraprofessionals hired before December 31, 2004 who do not meet the requirements of subsection (b) are in high-quality professional development activities that are aimed at assisting paraprofessionals in meeting the requirements of subsection (b) as soon as possible.
“(1) Verification of Compliance.—

“(1) in general.—In verifying compliance with this section, each local educational agency, at a minimum, shall require that each elementary school and secondary school operating a program under section 1114 or 1115 annually attest in writing as to whether the school is in compliance with the requirements of this section.

“(2) Availability of Information.—Copies of the annual attestation described in paragraph (1) shall be maintained at each elementary school and secondary school operating a program under section 1114 or 1115 and at the main office of the local educational agency; and “(B) shall be available to any member of the general public on request.’’.

SEC. 119. PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT.

Section 1119A (as redesignated by title II, section 111(e)(1)) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (a) and inserting the following:

“(a) Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to assist each local educational agency receiving assistance under this part in increasing the academic achievement of eligible children (as identified under section 1115(b)(1)(B) (referred to in this section as ‘eligible children’)) through improved teacher quality;”.

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by amending paragraph (1) to read as follows:

“(1) required activities.—Each local educational agency receiving assistance under this part shall provide professional development activities under this section that shall—

“(A) give teachers, principals, and administrators the knowledge and skills to provide eligible children with the opportunity to meet challenging State or local content standards and student performance standards;

“(B) support the recruiting, hiring, and training of fully qualified teachers;

“(C) advance teacher understanding of effective instructional strategies, based on scientifically based research, for improving eligible children achievement in, at a minimum, English language arts, mathematics, and science;

“(D) be directly related to the curricula and academic subjects that a teacher teaches;

“(E) be designed to enhance the ability of a teacher to understand and use the State’s standards for the academic subject that the teacher teaches;

“(F) be tied to scientifically based research that demonstrates the effectiveness of such professional development activities in increasing the achievement of eligible children or substantially increasing the subject matter knowledge, teaching knowledge, and teaching skills of teachers;”.

(2) in subsections (d) and (g), by redesigning subparagraphs (E), (F), (H), and (I), as paragraphs (D), (E), (F), and (G), respectively;

(3) by striking subsections (f) through (i); and

(4) by adding after subsection (e) the following:

“(f) CONSOLIDATION OF FUNDS.—Funds provided under this part that are used for professional development purposes may be consolidated with funds provided under title II and other sources.”.

SEC. 120. FISCAL REQUIREMENTS.

Section 120B (20 U.S.C. 6222(a)) is amended by striking “section 14501” and inserting “section 8501”.

SEC. 121. COORDINATION REQUIREMENTS.

Section 1210B (20 U.S.C. 6223) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking “to the extent feasible” and all that follows through the period and inserting “in coordination with local Head Start agencies and, if feasible, entities carrying out other early childhood development programs.”.

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (3), by striking “and” after the semicolon;

(B) in paragraph (4), by striking the period and inserting “;” ; and

(C) by adding at the end, the following:

“(5) linking the educational services provided by such local educational agency with the services provided by local Head Start agencies.”.

SEC. 122. LIMITATIONS ON FUNDS.

Subpart 1 of part A of title II (20 U.S.C. 6311 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 1212B (20 U.S.C. 6225) the following:

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, a local educational agency shall use the funds received under this part only to provide academic instruction and services directly related to the instruction to students in preschool through grade 12 to assist eligible children to improve their academic achievement and to meet achievement standards established by the State.

“(b) PERMISSIBLE AND PROHIBITED ACTIVITIES.—In this subpart, the term ‘academic instruction’ includes—

“(1) the employment of teachers and other instructional personnel, including providing teachers and instructional personnel with employee benefits;

“(B) the extension of instruction described in this subsection beyond the normal school day and year, including during summer school;

“(C) the provision of instructional services to pre-kindergarten children to prepare such children for the transition to kindergarten;

“(D) the purchase of instructional resources, such as books, computers, other instructional equipment, and wiring to support instructional equipment;

“(E) the development and administration of curricula, educational materials, and assessments;

“(F) the implementation of—

“(i) instructional interventions in schools in need of improvement; and

“(ii) corrective actions to improve student achievement; and

“(G) the transportation of students to assist the students in improving academic achievement, except that not more than 10 percent of the funds made available under this part to a local educational agency shall be used to carry out this subparagraph; and

“(2) does not include—

“(A) the purchase or provision of janitorial services or the payment of utility costs;

“(B) the construction or operation of facilities;

“(C) the acquisition of real property;

“(D) the payment of costs for food and refreshments; or “(E) the purchase or lease of vehicles.”.

SEC. 123. GRANTS FOR THE OUTLYING AREAS AND THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

Section 1211 (20 U.S.C. 6331) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any appropriation for payments to States for any fiscal year under section 1002(a), the Secretary shall reserve a total of 1 percent to provide assistance to—

“(B) the outlying areas on the basis of their respective need for such assistance according to such criteria as the Secretary determines will best carry out the purposes of this part; and

“(2) the Secretary of the Interior in the amount necessary to make payments pursuant to subsection (c).”.

SEC. 124. LIMITATIONS ON FUNDS.

Subsection (a) of title II, section 124 (20 U.S.C. 6331) is amended by striking “section 14501” and inserting “section 8501”.

SEC. 125. GRANTS FOR THE OUTLYING AREAS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, the Secretary shall make grants to local educational agencies in the outlying areas (other than the outlying areas assisted under paragraph (2)).

SEC. 126. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this subpart—

“(a) residence.—The term ‘residence’ means—

“(1) in general.—Residence means the State in which a child resident in the State resides; and

“(2) in the case of an eligible child in the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Commonwealth;”.

SEC. 127. IMPLEMENTATION.

Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, the Secretary shall by regulation implement the provisions of this subpart.
“(2) COMPETITIVE GRANTS.—(A) For each fiscal year through 2001, the Secretary shall reserve $5,000,000 from the amounts made available under subsection (a) to award grants on a competitive basis, to local educational agencies in the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, and the Republic of Palau. The Secretary shall award such grants according to the recommendations of the Pacific Region Educational Laboratory which shall conduct a competition for such grants.

(B) An amount equal to 5 percent of the amount described in subparagraph (D), grant funds awarded under this part only may be used for programs described in this Act, including teacher training, curriculum development, educational materials, or general school improvement and reform.

(C) Grant funds awarded under this paragraph may only be used to provide direct educational services.

“(D) The Secretary may provide 5 percent of the amount made available for grants under this paragraph to pay the administrative costs of the Pacific Region Educational Laboratory regarding activities assisted under this paragraph.

“(E) ALLOTMENT TO THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The amount allotted for payments to the Secretary of the Interior under subsection (a)(2) for any fiscal year shall be, as determined pursuant to criteria established by the Secretary, the amount necessary to meet the special educational needs of—

(A) Indian children on reservations served by elementary schools and secondary schools for Indian children operated or supported by the Department of the Interior; and

(B) out-of-State Indian children in elementary schools and secondary schools in local educational agencies under special contract arrangements of the Department of the Interior.

“(2) PAYMENTS.—From the amount allotted for payments to the Secretary of the Interior under subsection (a)(2), the Secretary of the Interior shall make payments to local educational agencies, upon such terms as the Secretary determines will best carry out the purposes of this part, with respect to out-of-State Indian children described in paragraph (1).

The amount of such payment may not exceed, for each such child, the greater of—

(A) 40 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in the State in which the agency is located; or

(B) 48 percent of such expenditure in the United States.

SEC. 1124. BASIC GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.

Section 1122 (20 U.S.C. 6332) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 1122. AMOUNTS FOR GRANTS. Deemed

“(a) IN GENERAL.—For fiscal years 2002 through 2012, all appropriations for this part equal to the appropriation for fiscal year 2001 for section 1124 shall be allocated in accordance with section 1124, and any general appropriations for fiscal year 2001 for section 1124A shall be allocated in accordance with section 1124A. Any additional appropriations under section 1002(a) for any fiscal year, after application of the preceding sentence, shall be allocated in accordance with section 1125.

(b) ALLOTMENT.—The Secretary shall allocate such amounts according to the needs of local educational agencies, subject to subsections (c) and (d).

“(2) ADDITIONAL FUNDS.—If additional funds become available for making payments under sections 1124, 1124A, and 1125 for such fiscal year, allocations that were reduced under paragraph (1) shall be increased on the same basis as they were reduced.

“(c) HOLD-HARMLESS AMOUNTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For each fiscal year, except as provided in subsection (d) and subject to subsection (e), the amount made available to each local educational agency under each of sections 1124 and 1125 shall be not less than 40 percent of the previous year's amount if the number of children counted for grants under section 1124 is at least 30 percent of the total number of children aged 5 to 17 years served by the local educational agency, 90 percent of the previous year's amount if this percentage is between 15 percent and 30 percent, and 85 percent if this percentage is below 15 percent.

“(2) SUFFICIENT FUNDS.—If sufficient funds are appropriated, the hold-homeless amounts described in paragraph (1) shall be paid to all local educational agencies that received grants under section 1124, 1124A, or 1125 for the preceding fiscal year, regardless of whether the local educational agency currently meets either of the eligibility criteria provided in section 1124(b), 1124A(a)(1)(A), or 1125(a), respectively, except that a local educational agency which does not meet either of the eligibility criteria for 5 consecutive years shall no longer be eligible to receive a hold-harmless amount.

“(3) CALCULATION.—In any fiscal year for which the Secretary calculates grants on the basis of population data for counties, the Secretary shall apply the hold-harmless percentages in paragraph (1) to counties, and if the Secretary determines for a county that it is not sufficient to meet the hold-harmless requirements of this subsection for every local educational agency within that county, then the Secretary shall reallocate funds proportionately from all other local educational agencies in the State that are receiving funds in excess of the hold-harmless amounts specified in this section.

“(4) RATABLE REDUCTIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the sums made available under this part for any fiscal year are insufficient to meet the total amounts that all States are eligible to receive under subsection (c) for such year, the Secretary shall ratable reduce such amounts for such year.

“(2) ADDITIONAL FUNDS.—If additional funds become available for making payments under subsection (c) for such fiscal year, amounts that were reduced under paragraph (1) shall be increased on the same basis as such amounts reduced.

“(e) DEFINITION.—For the purpose of this section and sections 1124, 1124A, and 1125, the term ‘State’ means each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

SEC. 1125. BASIC GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES

“(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the 2 Secretaries shall publicly disclose the reasons for their determination in detail; and

(2) paragraph (3) shall apply.

“(b) Allocating grants to local educational agencies under title I funds, the Secretary shall allocate grants under this section to local educational agencies in the States on the basis of population data.

“(1) title I funds are distributed so broadly that many of the Nation’s elementary schools and secondary schools with high poverty rates are not receiving on title I funds; and

(2) the Federal Government is not living up to the original intent of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, which was passed to ensure Federal funds in poor student have equal access to a quality education;

“(3) it is the role of the Federal Government to provide targeted funding for school districts in which the Nation’s poorest students live, while holding States and localities accountable for raising the academic performance of all students in the United States to a higher level; and “(4) the Federal Government must take a firm stand to better focus Federal funds on the Nation’s poorest school districts through a new formula for the title I funds that will ensure that the funds are targeted so that elementary schools and secondary schools in high-poverty urban and rural areas get the Federal resources for education that the schools need and deserve.

“(c) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—Section 1124 (20 U.S.C. 6332) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 1124. BASIC GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.

“(a) AMOUNT OF GRANTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For each fiscal year, the Secretary shall calculate grants under this section to local educational agencies in the States on the basis of population data for counties, the Secretary shall allocate funds proportionately from all other local educational agencies in the State that are receiving funds in excess of the hold-harmless amounts specified in this section.

“(c) DEFINITION.—For the purpose of this section and sections 1124, 1124A, and 1125, the term ‘State’ means each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

SEC. 1125. BASIC GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES

“(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the 2 Secretaries shall publicly disclose the reasons for their determination in detail; and

(2) paragraph (3) shall apply.

“(b)(1) For any fiscal year to which this paragraph applies, the Secretary shall calculate grants under this section for each local educational agency under section (c) of this subsection on the basis of population data for counties, the Secretary shall allocate funds proportionately from all other local educational agencies in the States on the basis of population data.

“(2) of the amounts determined by the Secretary under this section for each local educational agency, the Secretary shall apply to local educational agencies in the States that are eligible to receive a hold-harmless amount.

“(3) 9 out of every 10 school districts receive some title I funds; and

“(4) use would be otherwise inappropriate, in which case—

“(i) the 2 Secretaries shall publicly disclose the reasons for their determination in detail; and “(ii) paragraph (3) shall apply.

“(b)(1) For any fiscal year to which this paragraph applies, the Secretary shall calculate grants under this section for each local educational agency under section (c) of this subsection on the basis of population data for counties, the Secretary shall allocate funds proportionately from all other local educational agencies in the States on the basis of population data.

“(2) of the amounts determined by the Secretary under this section for each local educational agency, the Secretary shall apply to local educational agencies in the States that are eligible to receive a hold-harmless amount.

“(3) 9 out of every 10 school districts receive some title I funds; and

“(4) use would be otherwise inappropriate, in which case—

“(i) the 2 Secretaries shall publicly disclose the reasons for their determination in detail; and

“(ii) paragraph (3) shall apply.

“(b)(1) For any fiscal year to which this paragraph applies, the Secretary shall calculate grants under this section for each local educational agency under section (c) of this subsection on the basis of population data for counties, the Secretary shall allocate funds proportionately from all other local educational agencies in the States on the basis of population data.
that the State educational agency determines best reflect the current distribution of children in poor families among the State's small local educational agencies that meet the eligibility criteria of subsection (c).

(V) If a small local educational agency is dissatisfied with the determination of its grant by the State educational agency under clause (IV), it may appeal to the Secretary, who shall respond within 45 days of receiving it.

(VI) As used in this subparagraph—

(1) the term 'small local educational agency' means a local educational agency serving an area with a total population of 20,000 or more; and

(2) the term 'local educational agency' means a local educational agency that more accurately target poverty.

(3) ALLOCATIONS TO COUNTIES.—(A) For any fiscal year to which this paragraph applies, the Secretary shall calculate grants under this section on the basis of the number of children counted under section 1124(c) for counties, and State educational agencies shall suballocate county amounts to local educational agencies, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

(B) In any State in which a large number of local educational agencies overlap county boundaries, or for which the Secretary believes it necessary to tailor target funds than are allocated by county by the Secretary, the Secretary may apply to the Secretary for authority to make the allocations under this paragraph for a particular fiscal year directly to local educational agencies without regard to counties.

(C) If the Secretary approves a State's application under subparagraph (B), the State educational agency shall provide the Secretary an assurance that those allocations are made—

(i) using precisely the same factors for determining a grant as are used under this part; or

(ii) using data that the State educational agency submits to the Secretary for approval that more accurately target poverty.

(D) The State educational agency shall provide the Secretary an assurance that a procedurally fair and transparent process is established through which local educational agencies that are dissatisfied with its determinations under subparagraph (C) may appeal directly to the Secretary for a final determination.

(4) PUERTO RICO.—For each fiscal year, the Secretary shall determine the percentage that the average per pupil expenditure in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico is of the lowest average per pupil expenditure of any of the 50 States. The grant that the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico shall be eligible to receive under this section for a fiscal year shall be the amount arrived at by multiplying the number of children counted under subsection (c) for the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico by the product of—

(A) the percentage determined under the preceding sentence; and

(B) the average of the per pupil expenditure in the United States.

(5) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'State' does not include an outlying area.

(b) MINIMUM NUMBER OF CHILDREN TO QUALIFY.—A local educational agency is eligible for a basic grant under this section for any fiscal year only if the number of children counted under subsection (c) for that agency is—

(1) 10 or more; and

(2) more than 2 percent of the total school-age population in the agency's jurisdiction.

(c) CHILDREN TO BE COUNTED.—

(1) CATEGORIES OF CHILDREN.—The number of children to be counted for purposes of this section is the aggregate of—

(A) the number of children aged 5 to 17, inclusive, in the local educational agency from families below the poverty level as determined under paragraph (2); and

(B) the number of children aged 5 to 17, inclusive, in the school district of such agency from families above the poverty level as determined under paragraph (4); and

(2) DETERMINATION OF NUMBER OF CHILDREN.—For the purposes of this section, the Secretary shall determine the number of children aged 5 to 17, inclusive, from families below the poverty level on the basis of the most recent satisfactory data, described in paragraph (3), available from the Department of Commerce. If a local educational agency contains 2 or more counties, then each county will be treated as if such county were a separate local educational agency for purposes of calculating grants under this part. The total of grants for such counties shall be allocated to such a local educational agency, which local educational agency shall suballocate county amounts to local educational agencies in each county within such agency a share of the local educational agency's total grant that is no less than the county's share of the population counts used to calculate the local educational agency's grant.

(3) POPULATION UPDATES.—In fiscal year 2002 and every 2 years thereafter, the Secretary shall use updated data on the number of children, aged 5 to 17, inclusive, from families below the poverty level for counties or local educational agencies, published by the Department of Commerce, to determine the Secretary's most recent data for use in the calculation of grants under this section. If the Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, or the Secretary of Labor finds that the data used to determine the Secretary's most recent data are not current, the Secretary shall determine the number of children based on a recent estimate of poverty.

(4) DETERMINATION OF NUMBER OF CHILDREN.—For purposes of this section, the Secretary shall determine the number of children aged 5 to 17, inclusive, from families below the poverty level, the Secretary shall consider all children who are living in institutions for delinquent children.

(5) ESTIMATE.—When requested by the Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce shall provide an estimate of the number of children, in families below the poverty level, from families above the poverty level as determined under paragraph (1) in each school district of such agency. The Secretary shall use the criteria of poverty and the form of such criteria required by such sentence which were determined for the calendar year preceding such month of October (in the case of children described in the preceding sentence) or the criteria of poverty and the form of such criteria required by such sentence which were determined for the calendar year preceding such month of October in the case of children described in the preceding sentence but that were not available to the Secretary before January of the calendar year in which the Secretary's determination is made, then on the basis of the most recent reliable data of the Secretary at the time of such determination. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall collect and transmit the information required by this paragraph to the Secretary not later than January 1 of each year. For the purposes of this section, the Secretary shall consider all children who are in correctional institutions to be living in institutions for delinquent children.

(6) STATE MINIMUM.—Notwithstanding section 1122, the aggregate amount allotted for all local educational agencies within a State may not be less than the lesser of—

(1) 0.25 percent of total grants under this section; or

(2) the average of—

(A) one-quarter of 1 percent of the total amount available for such fiscal year under this section; and

(B) the number of children in such State who are in foster homes, in institutions for delinquent children, in correctional institutions, or being supported by the State for the collection of additional census information.

For purposes of this section, the Secretary shall consider all children who are in correctional institutions to be living in institutions for delinquent children.

SEC. 1126. CONCENTRATION GRANTS.

Section 1124A (20 U.S.C. 6334) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 1124A. CONCENTRATION GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.

(a) ELIGIBILITY FOR AND AMOUNT OF GRANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—(A) Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, each local educational agency, in a State other than an outlying area, which is eligible for a grant under section 1124 for any fiscal year is eligible for an additional grant under this section for that fiscal year if the number of children counted under section 1124(c) for the agency exceeds either—

(i) 6,500; or

(ii) 15 percent of the total number of children aged 5 through 17 in the agency.

(B) Notwithstanding section 1122, no State may receive under this paragraph a grant (A) which shall receive less than the lesser of—

(1) 0.25 percent of total grants; or

(2) the average of—

(iii) 0.25 percent of the sums available to carry out this section for such fiscal year; and
(1) In general.—The amount of the grant that a local educational agency in a State or that the District of Columbia is eligible to receive under this section for any fiscal year shall be the product of—

(A) the weighted child count determined under subsection (c); and

(B) the amount in section 1124(a)(1).

(2) Puerto Rico.—In each fiscal year, the amount of the grant for which the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico is eligible under this section shall be equal to the number of children counted under subsection (c) for Puerto Rico, multiplied by the amount determined in section 1124(a)(4).

(c) Weighted Child Count.—

(1) Definitions for All States.—(A) For each fiscal year in which the Secretary uses county population data to calculate grants, the weighted child count used to determine a county’s allocation under this section is the larger of the 2 amounts determined under clause (i) or (ii), as follows:

(i) This amount is determined by adding—

(I) the number of children determined under section 1124(c) for that county constituting up to 12.20 percent, inclusive, of the county’s total population aged 5 to 17, inclusive, multiplied by 1.75;

(II) the number of such children constituting more than 12.20 percent, but not more than 17.70 percent, of such population, multiplied by 2.5;

(III) the number of such children constituting more than 17.70 percent, but not more than 22.80 percent, of such population, multiplied by 3.0;

(IV) the number of such children constituting more than 22.80 percent, but not more than 29.223 percent, of such population, multiplied by 3.25; and

(V) the number of such children constituting more than 29.223 percent, but not more than 36.538 percent, of such population, multiplied by 4.0.

(ii) This amount is determined by adding—

(I) the number of children determined under section 1124(c) constituting up to 575, inclusive, of the agency’s total population aged 5 to 17, inclusive, multiplied by 1.0;

(II) the number of such children between 576 and 1,870, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 1.5;

(III) the number of such children between 1,871 and 6,910, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 2.0;

(IV) the number of such children between 6,911 and 20,199, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 2.5; and

(V) the number of such children in excess of 20,199, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 3.0.

(B) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the weighting factor for Puerto Rico under this paragraph shall not be greater than the total number of children described in section 1124(c), without application of a weighting factor, multiplied by the weighted child count used to determine Puerto Rico’s allocation under section 1124(c) multiplied by 1.72.

(d) Calculation of Grant Amounts.—Grants under this section shall be calculated in accordance with paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 1124(a).

(e) State Minimum.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section or section 1124 for that fiscal year to carry out this section, each State shall be allotted at least the lesser of—

(1) 0.25 percent of total appropriations; or

(2) the average of—

(A) one-quarter of 1 percent of the total amount available to carry out this section; and

(B) 150 percent of the national average grant under this section per child described in section 1124(c), without application of a weighting factor, multiplied by the product of—

(1) the number of children in each State based upon the number of children aged 5 to 17, inclusive, of such State multiplied by the product of—

(I) the number of such children described in section 1124(c), without application of a weighting factor.

SEC. 125. EDUCATION FINANCE INCENTIVE PROGRAM.

Section 1125A (20 U.S.C. 6336) is amended to read as follows:

(a) Grants.—The Secretary is authorized to make grants to States from the sums appropriated pursuant to subsection (e) to carry out the purposes of this part.

(b) Distribution Based Upon Fiscal Effort and Equity.—

(1) In general.—Funds appropriated pursuant to subsection (e) shall be distributed to each State based upon the number of children aged 5 to 17, inclusive, of such State multiplied by the product of—

(I) the State’s effort factor described in paragraph (2); and

(II) the number of children in each State described in paragraph (1).

(b) Effort Factor.—(A) Except as provided in paragraph (B), the effort factor for a State shall be determined in accordance with the succeeding sentence, except that the effort factor shall be equal to 1.0 for each State if the number of children in each State described in paragraph (1) is less than 1⁄4 of 1 percent of the total amount appropriated pursuant to subsection (e) for such fiscal year.

(B) State Minimum.—(1) The number of children described in section 1124(c) constituting up to 1,917, inclusive, of the agency’s total population aged 5 to 17, inclusive, multiplied by 1.0.

(2) The number of such children between 1,918 and 5,939, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 1.5.

(3) The number of such children between 5,940 and 20,199, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 2.0.

(4) The number of such children in excess of 20,199, inclusive, in such population, multiplied by 2.5.

(C) National Average.—(1) The number of children described in paragraph (1) constituting up to 15.7 percent of the total amount available to carry out this section; and

(2) the average of—

(A) the product of—

(I) the number of such children; and

(II) the number of such children constituting up to 15.7 percent of the total amount available to carry out this section, multiplied by 1.0.

(3) The number of such children in excess of the national average described in paragraph (1) constituting up to 1⁄4 of 1 percent of the total amount available to carry out this section; and

(4) the product of—

(I) the number of such children; and

(II) the number of such children constituting up to 1⁄4 of 1 percent of the total amount available to carry out this section, multiplied by 1.0.

(4) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the weighting factor for Puerto Rico under this paragraph shall be greater than the number of children described in section 1124(c), without application of a weighting factor, multiplied by the product of—

(I) the number of such children described in section 1124(c); and

(II) the number of such children constituting up to 90, inclusive, of the agency’s total population aged 5 to 17, inclusive, multiplied by 1.0.

(D) Calculation of Grant Amounts.—Grants under this section shall be calculated in accordance with paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 1124(a).
the numerator of which is the product of the 3-year average per-pupil expenditure in the State multiplied by the 3-year average per capita income in the United States and the denominator is the product of the 3-year average per capita income in such State multiplied by the 3-year average per-pupil expenditure in the United States.

"(B) The factor for the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico shall be equal to the lowest effort factor calculated under subparagraph (A) for any State.

"(3) Paragraph (1)(A)(i) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall determine the equity factor under this section for each State in accordance with clause (ii).

"(ii) For each State, the Secretary shall compute a weighted coefficient of variation for the expenditures of local educational agencies in accordance with subclauses (I), (II), (III), (IV), and (V).

"(I) In computing coefficients of variation, the Secretary shall weigh the variation between per-pupil expenditures in each local educational agency and the average per-pupil expenditures in the State according to the number of pupils in the local educational agency.

"(II) In determining the number of pupils under this paragraph in each local educational agency in each State, the Secretary shall multiply the number of children from economically disadvantaged families by 1.4 under this paragraph.

"(III) In computing coefficients of variation, the Secretary shall include only those local educational agencies with an enrollment of more than 10,000 students.

"(V) The Secretary shall compute separate coefficients of variation for elementary, secondary, and unified local educational agencies and shall combine such coefficients to a single coefficient for the State by multiplying each coefficient by the total enrollments of the local educational agencies in each group, adding such products, and dividing such sum by the total enrollments of the local educational agencies in the State.

"(B) The equity factor for a State that meets the disparity standard described in section 222.63 of title 34, Code of Federal Regulations (as such section was in effect on the day prior to enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act) or a State with only 1 local educational agency shall be not greater than 0.10.

"(C) The Secretary may revise each State’s equity factor as necessary based on the advice of independent education finance scholars to reflect other need-based costs of local educational agencies in addition to economically disadvantaged student enrollment, such as differing geographic costs, costs associated with students with disabilities, children with limited English proficiency or other meaningful educational needs, which deserve additional support. In addition and also in consultation with independent education finance scholars, the Secretary may revise each State’s equity factor to incorporate other valid and accepted methods to achieve adequate educational opportunity that may not be reflected in a coefficient of variation method.

"(c) USE OF FUNDS.—All funds awarded to a recipient under this section are allocated to local educational agencies and schools on a basis consistent with the distribution of other funds to such agencies and schools under sections 1214, 1214A, and 1125 to carry out activities under this part.

"(d) MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—(1) In paragraph (2), a State is entitled to receive its full allotment of funds under this part for any fiscal year only if the Secretary finds that either the combined fiscal effort per student or the aggregate expenditures within the State with respect to the provision of education or the grant of funds under this part for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made was not less than 90 percent of such combined fiscal effort or aggregate expenditures (using the measure most favorable to the State), and no such lesser amount shall be required under paragraph (1) for subsequent years.

"(2) Waivers.—The Secretary may waive, for 1 fiscal year only, the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) if the Secretary determines that such a waiver would be equitable due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances such as the disaster or precipitous and unforeseen decline in the financial resources of the State.

"(c) USE OF FUNDS.—All funds awarded to a recipient under this section are allocated to local educational agencies and schools on a basis consistent with the distribution of other funds to such agencies and schools under sections 1214, 1214A, and 1125 to carry out activities under this part.

"(1) In paragraph (2), a State is entitled to receive its full allotment of funds under this part for any fiscal year only if the Secretary finds that either the combined fiscal effort per student or the aggregate expenditures within the State with respect to the provision of education or the grant of funds under this part for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made.

"(2) Waivers.—The Secretary may waive, for 1 fiscal year only, the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) if the Secretary determines that such a waiver would be equitable due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances such as the disaster or precipitous and unforeseen decline in the financial resources of the State.

"(c) USE OF FUNDS.—All funds awarded to a recipient under this section are allocated to local educational agencies and schools on a basis consistent with the distribution of other funds to such agencies and schools under sections 1214, 1214A, and 1125 to carry out activities under this part.

"(1) In paragraph (2), a State is entitled to receive its full allotment of funds under this part for any fiscal year only if the Secretary finds that either the combined fiscal effort per student or the aggregate expenditures within the State with respect to the provision of education or the grant of funds under this part for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the determination is made.

"(2) Waivers.—The Secretary may waive, for 1 fiscal year only, the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) if the Secretary determines that such a waiver would be equitable due to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances such as the disaster or precipitous and unforeseen decline in the financial resources of the State.
SEC. 1502. COMPREHENSIVE SCHOOL REFORM.

(a) FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(A) A number of schools across the country have shown impressive gains in student performance through the use of comprehensive models for schoolwide change that incorporate virtually all aspects of school operations.

(B) No single comprehensive school reform model may be suitable for every school. School districts are encouraged to examine and undertake comprehensive school reform approaches as the schools undertake comprehensive school reform.

(C) School reform is an important means by which children are assisted in meeting challenging State student performance standards.

(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to provide financial incentives for schools to develop comprehensive school reforms, based upon scientifically based research and effective practices that include an emphasis on: basic academics and parental involvement so that all children can meet challenging State content and performance standards.

(b) GRANTS TO STATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary is authorized to provide grants to State educational agencies, subject to paragraph (2), to provide subgrants to local educational agencies to carry out the purpose described in subsection (a)(2).

(A) RESERVATION.—Of the amount made available under subsection (f) for a fiscal year, the Secretary may reserve—

(i) payments to the Bureau of Indian Affairs for activities, approved by the Secretary, consistent with this section; and

(ii) amounts to State educational agencies consistent with the purposes described in section 1502(c).

(2) IMPLEMENTATION.—At a minimum, the amount allotted for the purposes described in paragraph (1) shall be in an amount of not less than $50,000 for each participating school; and

(iii) made for an initial period of 1 year, and shall be renewable for 2 additional 1-year periods.

(b) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall carry out the purposes described in subsection (a) with respect to the implementation of school reforms.

(3) REPORTING.—Each State educational agency that receives a grant under this section shall—

(A) describe how the agency will disseminate materials regarding information on scientifically based research;

(B) describe how the agency will provide high quality and continuous professional development, teacher and staff professional development, and school management that are based on scientifically based research;

(C) provide technical assistance to a local educational agency in evaluating, developing, and implementing comprehensive school reform;

(D) provide a comprehensive school reform model selected and used for the schools.

(4) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—The State educational agency that receives a grant under this section shall use the grant funds to provide grants, on a competitive basis, to local educational agencies, under subparagraph (B), to local educational agencies to carry out the purposes described in subsection (a)(2).

(c) GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—

(1) GRANTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b)(5), a State educational agency that receives a grant under this section shall use the grant funds to provide grants to local educational agencies to carry out the purposes described in subsection (a)(2).

(B) GRANT REQUIREMENTS.—A grant to a local educational agency shall be—

(i) of a sufficient size and scope to pay for technical assistance to a local educational agency that implements a particular comprehensive school reform plan selected or designed by the State educational agency and in the application of the local educational agency;

(ii) in an amount of not less than $50,000 for each participating school; and

(iii) made for an initial period of 1 year, and shall be renewable for 2 additional 1-year periods.

(2) LOCAL APPLICATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A local educational agency that desires to receive a grant under this section shall submit an application to the State educational agency at such time, and in such form, as the State educational agency may require.

(B) CONTENTS.—At a minimum, the local application shall—

(i) identify which schools that are served by the local educational agency and eligible for funds under part A plan to implement a comprehensive school reform program, and identify the projected costs of such a program;

(ii) describe the scientifically based comprehensive school reforms that such schools will implement;

(iii) describe how the agency will provide technical assistance and support for the effective implementation of the scientifically based school reforms selected by such schools; and

(iv) describe how the agency will evaluate the implementation of such reforms and measure the results achieved in improving student academic performance.

(3) COMPONENTS OF THE PROGRAM.—A local educational agency that receives a grant under part A shall provide grants to schools that, individually, implement a comprehensive school reform program that—

(C) includes measurable goals for student performance and benchmarks for meeting such goals;

(E) is supported by teachers, principals, administrators, and other professional staff; and

(F) provides for the meaningful involvement of parents and the local community in planning and implementing school improvement activities.

(4) EVALUATION AND REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall carry out the purposes described in subsection (a) with respect to the implementation of school reforms and the student results achieved; and

(2) EVALUATION.—The Secretary shall evaluate the implementation of school reforms in schools with diverse characteristics.
“(A) INTERIM REPORT.—After evaluating the first year of implementation and results under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall submit an interim report outlining first year implementation activities to the Committees on Education and the Workforce and Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committees on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions and Appropriations of the Senate.

“(B) FINAL REPORT.—After evaluating the third year of implementation and results under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall submit a final report outlining third year implementation activities to the committees described in subparagraph (A).

“(c) Funds made available under this section shall be used to supplement and not supplant other Federal, State, and local public funds expended for activities described in this section.

“(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Funds appropriated for any fiscal year under section 1002(f) shall be used for carrying out the activities under this section.

“(g) DEFINITION.—The term ‘scientifically based research’—

“(1) means the application of rigorous, systematic, and objective methods to determine the probability of hypotheses that are actually true; and

“(2) includes research that—

“(A) relies on measurements or observations; and

“(B) has been accepted by a panel of independent experts through a rigorously conducted, objective, and scientific review.”.

Subtitle F—Rural Education Development Initiative

SEC. 171. RURAL EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE.

Title I (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by redesignating part F (20 U.S.C. 6511 et seq.) as part G and redesignating accordingly the section numbers after such part F;

(2) by redesignating sections 1601 through 1606 (20 U.S.C. 6511, 6516) as sections 1701 through 1706, respectively, and by redesignating section 1701(c)(1) as references to such sections 1601 through 1606; and

(3) by inserting after part E (20 U.S.C. 6491 et seq.) the following:

“PART F—RURAL EDUCATION INITIATIVE

“SEC. 1601. SHORT TITLE.

“‘This part may be cited as the ‘Rural Education Achievement Program’.

“SEC. 1602. PURPOSE.

“It is the purpose of this part to address the unique needs of rural school districts that—

“(1) lack the personnel and resources needed to compete for Federal competitive grants; and

“(2) receive formula allocations in amounts too small to be effective in meeting their intended purposes.

“SEC. 1603. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this part $300,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years, of which 50 percent shall be available to carry out subpart 1 for each such fiscal year and 50 percent shall be available to carry out subpart 2 for each such fiscal year.

“(b) SPECIAL RULE.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), if the amount of funds made available under subsection (a) to carry out subpart 1 for any fiscal year exceeds the amount required to carry out subpart 1 for the fiscal year, then such excess shall be available to carry out subpart 2 for the fiscal year.

“Subpart 1—Small, Rural School Achievement Program

“SEC. 1611. FORMULA GRANT PROGRAM

“(a) ALTERNATIVE USES—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision, a eligible local educational agency may use the applicable funding, that is not required to carry out subpart 1 for the fiscal year, to carry out subpart 2 for the fiscal year.

“(2) NOTIFICATION.—An eligible local educational agency shall notify the State educational agency for the preceding fiscal year, to the Secretaries of Education and the Workforce and Appropriations of the House of Representatives, and the Committees on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions and Appropriations of the Senate.

“(3) CENSUS DETERMINATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each local educational agency desiring to use funds under this section shall submit the number described in paragraph (1) to the Secretary not later than December 1 of each year to determine the number of kindergarten through grade 12 students in average daily attendance at the schools served by the local educational agency, plus $20,000, except that the amount may not exceed $60,000.

“(B) SUBMISSION.—Each local educational agency shall submit the number described in paragraph (1) to the Secretary not later than March 1 of each year.

“(C) AMOUNT.—

“(1) the total number of students in average daily attendance at all of the schools served by the local educational agency is less than 600; and

“(2) all of the schools served by the local educational agency are designated as a School Locale Code of 7 or 8, as determined by the Center for Instructional Services.

“(d) DISBURSEMENT.—Each State educational agency that receives applicable funding for a fiscal year shall disburse the applicable funding to local educational agencies that do not intend to use the applicable funding for such alternative uses for the fiscal year.

“(e) SUPPLEMENT NOT SUPPLANT.—Funds made available under this section shall be used to supplement and not supplant any other Federal, State, or local education funds.

“(f) SPECIAL RULE.—References in Federal law to funds for the provisions of law set forth in subsection (b) may be considered to be references to funds for this section.

“(g) COOPERATIVE ARRANGEMENTS.—Nothing in this subpart shall be construed to prohibit a local educational agency that enters into cooperative arrangements with other local educational agencies for the provision of special, compensatory, or other education services pursuant to State law or a written agreement between the agencies for the use or the coordination of the use of the funds made available under this section.

“SEC. 1612. FORMULA GRANT PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary is authorized to award grants to eligible local educational agencies to enable local educational agencies to carry out activities described in section 1114, 1115, 1116, 2207, 3107, or 6006.

“(b) ELIGIBILITY.—A local educational agency shall be eligible to receive a grant under this section if—

“(1) the total number of students in average daily attendance at the schools served by the local educational agency is less than 600; and

“(2) all of the schools served by the local educational agency are designated with a School Locale Code of 7 or 8, as determined by the Secretary of Education.

“(c) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subpart $60,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years, of which 50 percent shall be available to carry out subpart 1 for each such fiscal year and 50 percent shall be available to carry out subpart 2 for each such fiscal year.

“(B) decreased gaps in achievement between minority and nonminority students.
and between economically disadvantaged and non-economically disadvantaged students (unless the Secretary determines the number of students in a category is insufficient to yield statistically reliable information); and

"(C) other factors that the eligible local educational agency may choose to measure;

"(4) specify the extent to which such goals and objectives are aligned with State content and student performance standards;

"(5) describe how the eligible local educational agency will provide technical assistance for an elementary school or secondary school that does not meet the annual, measurable goals and objectives;

"(6) describe how the eligible local educational agency will take action against an elementary school or secondary school, if the school fails, over 2 consecutive years, to meet the annual, measurable goals and objectives described in paragraph (1);

"(7) in the case that the application describes alternative use of funds for title II or III, specify how the eligible local educational agency shall use the funds to meet the annual numerical performance objectives described in section 2104 or 3189, respectively.

SEC. 1614. ACCOUNTABILITY.

The Secretary, by the end of the third year that an eligible local educational agency uses funds in accordance with section 1611 or receives grant funds under section 1612, shall have reviewed each eligible local educational agency that meets their annual, measurable goals and objectives described in section 1612(b)(2) and their performance objectives described in section 2104 and 3189 for 2 consecutive years to continue to use funds or receive grant funds for the fourth or fifth fiscal years of participation in the program under this subpart.

SEC. 1615. RATABLE REDUCTIONS IN CASE OF INSUFFICIENT APPROPRIATIONS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—If the amount appropriated under section 1603 for a fiscal year and made available to carry out this subpart, the Secretary shall award grants, from allotments made under section 1624, to State educational agencies that have applications approved under section 1624 to enable the State educational agencies to award grants to eligible local educational agencies for activities described in section 1114, 1115, 1116, 2207, 3107, or 6006.

"(b) ALLOTMENT.—From the sum appropriated under section 1603 for a fiscal year and made available to carry out this subpart, the Secretary shall allot to each State educational agency that bears the same ratio to the sum as the number of students in average daily attendance at the schools served by eligible local educational agencies that the fiscal year bears to the number of all such students at the schools served by eligible local educational agencies in all States for that fiscal year.

"(c) AWARD BASIS.—The State educational agency may award, on a competitive basis, the amount the State educational agency is eligible to receive under subsection (a)2 directly to specially qualified agencies in the State.

SEC. 1616. REPORTS.

"(a) REPORTS FROM ELIGIBLE LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—Each eligible local educational agency making alternative use of funds under section 1611 or receiving a grant under section 1612 shall provide an annual report to the Secretary. The report shall describe—

"(1) how the agency used the funds made available under this subpart;

"(2) the degree to which progress has been made toward meeting the annual, measurable goals and objectives described in the agency’s application; and

"(3) how the agency coordinated funds received under this subpart with other Federal, State, and local programs.

"(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall prepare and submit to Congress an annual report setting forth the information provided to the Secretary pursuant to subpart (a).

Subpart 2—Low-Income and Rural School Program

SEC. 1621. DEFINITIONS.

"In this subpart:

"(1) POVERTY LINE.—The term ‘poverty line’ means the poverty line (as defined by the Office of Management and Budget, and revised annually in accordance with section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2))) applicable to a family of the size involved.

"(2) SPECIAL QUALIFIED AGENCY.—The term ‘specially qualified agency’ means an elementary school or secondary school that does not participate in a program carried out under this subpart for a fiscal year, that applies directly to the Secretary for a grant for such year in accordance with section 1622(b).

SEC. 1622. PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.

"(a) GRANTS TO STATES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—From the sum appropriated under section 1603 for a fiscal year and made available to carry out this subpart, the Secretary shall award grants, from allotments made under section 1624, to eligible local educational agencies that have applications approved under section 1624 to enable the State educational agencies to award grants to eligible local educational agencies for activities described in section 1114, 1115, 1116, 2207, 3107, or 6006.

"(b) ALLOTMENT.—From the sum appropriated under section 1603 for a fiscal year and made available to carry out this subpart, the Secretary shall allot to each State educational agency that bears the same ratio to the sum as the number of students in average daily attendance at the schools served by eligible local educational agencies that fiscal year bears to the number of all such students at the schools served by eligible local educational agencies in all States for that fiscal year.

"(c) DIRECT GRANTS TO SPECIALLY QUALIFIED AGENCIES.—The Secretary may award, on a competitive basis, the amount the State educational agency is eligible to receive under subsection (a)2 directly to specially qualified agencies in the State.

SEC. 1623. STATE DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—If a State educational agency elects not to participate in the program carried out under this subpart or does not have an application approved under section 1624, a specially qualified agency desiring a grant under this subpart may apply directly to the Secretary under section 1624 to receive a grant under this subpart.

"(b) DIRECT GRANTS TO SPECIALLY QUALIFIED AGENCIES.—The Secretary may award, on a competitive basis, the amount the State educational agency is eligible to receive under subsection (a) to directly to specially qualified agencies in the State.

"(c) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—A State educational agency that receives a grant under this subpart may not use more than 2 percent of the amount of the grant funds for State administrative costs.

"(d) CONTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—A State educational agency that receives a grant under this subpart shall use the funds made available through the grant to provide funds that are in addition to funds provided by the local educational agencies to enable the local educational agencies to carry out activities described in section 1114, 1115, 1116, 2207, 3107, or 6006.

"(2) LOCAL AWARDS.—A local educational agency shall be eligible to receive a grant under this subpart if—

"(i) 20 percent or more of the children age 5 through 17 that are served by the local educational agency are from families with incomes below the poverty line;

"(ii) all of the schools served by the local educational agency are located in a community with a Rural-Urban Continuum Code of 6, 7, 8, or 9, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture;

"(iii) the State educational agency shall award the grants to eligible local educational agencies—

"(A) in the amount of the grant funds under this subpart to each eligible local educational agency in the State, provided the Secretary certifies that the grant funds under this subpart may only be used to pay the full amount for which all agencies are eligible under this subpart, the amount the State educational agency shall ratably reduce each such payment was reduced.

"(B) hold elementary schools or secondary schools using or receiving funds under this subpart accountable for meeting the annual, measurable goals and objectives;

"(C) describe how the eligible local educational agency will provide technical assistance for an elementary school or secondary school that does not meet the annual, measurable goals and objectives;

"(D) describe how the eligible local educational agency will take action against an elementary school or secondary school, if the school fails, over 2 consecutive years, to meet the annual, measurable goals and objectives described in paragraph (1) and the extent to which the activities will increase student academic performance; and

"(E) report to the Secretary. The report shall describe—

"(i) how the agency used the funds made available under this subpart;

"(ii) the degree to which progress has been made toward meeting the annual, measurable goals and objectives described in the agency’s application; and

"(iii) how the agency coordinated funds received under this subpart with other Federal, State, and local programs.

"(e) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall prepare and submit to Congress an annual report setting forth the information provided to the Secretary pursuant to subpart (a).
Section 1827. Reports and Study.
(a) State Reports.—Each State educational agency that receives a grant under this subpart shall provide an annual report to the Secretary. Such report shall describe—
(1) the method the State educational agency used to award grants to eligible local educational agencies; and

(E) to establish professional development programs that provide instruction in how to teach students with different learning styles, particularly students with disabilities and students with special learning needs (including students who are gifted and talented);
(F) to establish professional development programs that provide instruction in how to best to discipline students in the classroom, and to identify early and appropriate interventions to help students described in paragraph (5) learn;
(G) to provide professional development programs that provide instruction in how to teach character education in a manner that—

(A) reflects the values of parents, teachers, and local communities; and
(B) incorporates elements of good character, including honesty, citizenship, courage, justice, respect, personal responsibility, and trustworthiness;

(3) to provide scholarships or other incentives to assist teachers in attaining national board certification;

(9) to support activities designed to provide effective professional development for teachers of limited English proficient students;

(10) to establish other activities designed—

(A) to improve professional development for teachers, principals, and administrators; and

(B) to recruit and retain fully qualified teachers and highly qualified principals;

(11) to establish master teacher programs to increase teacher salaries and employ benefits. A cooperative agreement under part II of this title to enter into contracts with the local educational agency to serve as master teachers in the public schools, in accordance with the requirements of subsection (c); and

(12) to carry out professional development activities that consist of—

(A) instruction in the use of data and assessments to provide information and instruction for classroom practice;

(B) instruction in ways that teachers, principals, and their support personnel, and school administrators may work more effectively with parents;

(C) the formation of partnerships with institutions of higher education to establish school-based teacher training programs that provide prospective teachers and new teachers with an opportunity to work under the guidance of experienced teachers and college faculty;

(D) the creation of career ladder programs for paraprofessionals, who are assisting teachers under this part, to obtain the education necessary for such paraprofessionals to become certified and licensed teachers;

(E) instruction in ways to teach special needs students; and

(F) joint professional development activities involving teachers, principals, and administrators eligible to participate in programs described in paragraphs (4)(A) through (8)(A).

(G) instruction in experiential-based teaching methods such as service-learning or applied learning; and

(H) mentoring programs focusing on changing teacher behaviors and practices—

(i) to help new teachers, including teachers who are members of a minority group, develop and gain confidence in their skills;

(ii) to increase the likelihood that the new teachers will continue in the teaching profession; and

(iii) to improve the quality of their teaching.

(c) Requirements for Master Teacher Programs.

(1) Definition.—In this subsection, the term ‘master teacher’ means a teacher who—

(A) is certified or licensed under State law;

(B) has been teaching for at least 5 years in a public or private school or institution of higher education;

(C) is selected to serve as a master teacher on the basis of an application and recommendations by administrators and other teachers;

(2) Requirements for Master Teacher Contracts.

(A) In General.—A local educational agency that establishes a master teacher program under subsection (b)(11) shall negotiate the terms of contracts of master teachers with the local educational agency that represent teachers in the school district served by that agency.

(B) Breach.—A contract with a master teacher entered into under this paragraph shall specify that a breach of the contract shall be deemed to have occurred if the master teacher voluntarily withdraws from the program, terminates the contract, or is dismissed by the local educational agency for nonperformance of duties, subject to the requirements of any statutory or negotiated due process procedures.

(C) Repayment.—The contract shall require, in the event of a breach of the contract described in subparagraph (B), that the teacher repay the local educational agency all funds provided to the teacher under the contract.

(4) Requirements.—Professional development provided under this section shall be provided in a manner consistent with section 2109.

SEC. 2109. PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT FOR TEACHERS.

(a) Limitation Relating to Curricula and Academic Subjects.—In deciding how to use subgrant funds allocated under section 2102(a)(3) to support a professional development activities for teachers, a local educational agency shall first use the funds to support activities that—

(1) are directly related to the curricula and academic subjects that the teachers teach; or

(2) are designed to enhance the ability of the teachers to understand and use the State’s challenging content standards for the academic subjects that the teachers teach; or

(3) provide instruction in methods of disciplining students.

(b) Professional Development Activity.—A professional development activity carried out under this part shall—more than 1.5 percent of the grant funds for a fiscal year for the cost of administering activities under this part.

SEC. 2112. GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE STUDY.

"(1) in general.—A State educational agency receiving a grant under section 2101(a) shall allocate the subgrant funds on a formula basis, from amounts made available under section 2102(a)(1), to local educational agencies that have in place comprehensive programs that will enhance professional development opportunities for teachers, principals, and administrators, and will increase the number of fully qualified teachers.

"(2) ALLOCATIONS.—A State educational agency shall use the subgrant funds for 1 or more activities consisting of—

"(1) developing and enhancing professional development opportunities for teachers, principals, and administrators; and

"(2) 1 or more of the following:

"(A) an institution of higher education.

"(B) an educational service agency.

"(C) a public or private for-profit education organization.

"(D) a for-profit education organization.

"(E) an entity outside the traditional education arena, including a corporation or consulting firm.

"(F) COORDINATION.—Each educator partnership desiring a subgrant under this section shall coordinate the activities carried out under such section with any related activities carried out under section 203 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1083).

"(G) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Each educator partnership receiving a subgrant under this section may use not more than 5 percent of the subgrant funds for a fiscal year for the cost of planning and administering programs under this section.

"(H) COORDINATION.—Each educator partnership shall coordinate the activities carried out under such section with any related activities carried out under section 203 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1083).

"(I) APPLICATION REQUIRED.—Each educator partnership desiring a subgrant under this section shall submit an application to the State educational agency in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

"(J) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Each educator partnership receiving a subgrant under this section may use not more than 5 percent of the subgrant funds for a fiscal year for the cost of planning and administering programs under this section.

"PART B—CLASS SIZE REDUCTION

SEC. 2201. FINDINGS.

"(1) Rigorous research has shown that, in the early elementary school grades, students attending smaller classes make more rapid educational gains than students in larger classes, and that those gains persist through at least the eighth grade.

"(2) The benefits of smaller classes are greatest for achieving, minority, poor, and inner-city children, as demonstrated by a study that found that urban fourth graders in smaller-than-average classes were 6% of a standard deviation ahead of their counterparts in larger-than-average classes.

"(3) Teachers in small classes can provide more individualized attention, spend more time on individual assessment and planning, and spend less time on other tasks, and cover more material effectively, and are able to better work with parents to further their children’s education, than teachers in large classes.

“(4) Smaller classes allow teachers to identify and work with students who have learning problems earlier than is possible in larger classes, potentially reducing those students’ needs for special education services in the later grades.

“(5) The National Research Council report, ‘Preventing Reading Difficulties in Young Children’, recommends reducing class sizes, accompanied by providing high-quality professional development for teachers, as a strategy for improving student achievement in reading.

“(6) Some research has shown that class size reduction efforts are most effective in the early elementary school grades.

“(7) Efforts to improve educational outcomes by reducing class sizes in the early elementary school grades are likely to be successful only if well-qualified teachers are hired to fill additional classroom positions, and if teachers receive intensive, ongoing professional development.

“(8) Several States and school districts have begun serious efforts to reduce class sizes in early elementary school grades, but those efforts may be impeded by financial limitations or difficulties in hiring highly qualified teachers.

“(9) The Federal Government can assist in those efforts by providing funding for class size reductions in grades 1 through 3, and by helping to ensure that both new and current teachers who are moving into smaller classrooms are well prepared.

SEC. 2202. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this part are—

“(1) to help States and local educational agencies to reduce class sizes with fully qualified teachers;

“(2) to enable local educational agencies to carry out effective approaches to reducing class sizes with fully qualified teachers; and

“(3) to improve educational achievement for children in regular classes and special needs children, and particularly to improve that achievement by reducing class sizes in the early elementary school grades.

SEC. 2203. ALLOTMENTS TO STATES.

“(a) RESERVATIONS FOR THE OUTLYING AREAS AND THE BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.—From the amount appropriated under section 2212 for fiscal year 2002 and remaining after the Secretary makes reservations under subsection (a), the Secretary shall make grants to State educational agencies by allotting to each State having a State application approved under this section (a), the Secretary shall make grants to State educational agencies by allotting to each State having a State application approved under this section (a), the total amount that bears the same relationship to the remainder as the greater of the amounts that the State received for the preceding fiscal year as described in paragraph (1) bears to the total of the greater amounts that all States received under such sections for the preceding fiscal year.

“(2) REALLOCATION.—If any State chooses not to participate in the program carried out under this part, or fails to submit an approvable application under this part, the Secretary shall reallocate the amount that such State would have received under paragraph (1) to States having applications approved under section 2204(c), in accordance with paragraph (1).

SEC. 2204. STATE APPLICATIONS.

“(a) APPLICATIONS REQUIRED.—The State educational agency for each State desiring a subgrant under section 2205(a) shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time and in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(b) CONTENTS.—The application shall include—

“(1) a description of the State’s goals for using funds under this part to reduce average class sizes in regular classrooms in grades 1 through 3, including a description of class sizes in those classrooms, for each local educational agency in the State (as of the date of submission of the application);

“(2) a description of how the State educational agency will allocate program funds made available through the grant within the State;

“(3) a description of how the State educational agency will use other funds, including other Federal funds, to reduce class sizes and to improve teacher quality and reading achievement within the State; and

“(4) an assurance that the State educational agency will submit to the Secretary such reports and information as the Secretary may reasonably require.

“(c) APPROVAL OF APPLICATIONS.—The Secretary shall approve an application submitted under this section if the application meets the requirements of this section and holds reasonable promise of achieving the purposes of this part.

“(d) REALLOCATION.—If any State chooses not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, the Secretary shall provide specific notification to each local educational agency eligible to receive funds under this part regarding the flexibility provided under subsection (b) of this section, and the ability to use such funds under activities described in section 2207(b)(1)(C).

SEC. 2205. WITHIN-STATE ALLOCATIONS.

“(a) ALLOCATIONS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—Each State educational agency in the State the sum of—

“(1) an amount that bears the same relationship to 80 percent of the remainder as the greater of the amounts that the State received for the preceding fiscal year as described in paragraph (1) bears to the total of the greater amounts that all States received under such sections for the preceding fiscal year;

“(2) a description of how the State educational agency will allocate program funds made available through the grant within the State;

“(3) an assurance that the State educational agency will use other funds, including other Federal funds, to reduce class sizes and to improve teacher quality and reading achievement within the State; and

“(4) a description of how the State educational agency will use such funds under activities described in section 2207(b)(1)(C).

“(b) REALLOCATION.—If any local educational agency chooses not to participate in the program carried out under this part, or fails to submit an approvable application under this part, the Secretary shall reallocate the amount such local educational agency would have received under subsection (a) to local educational agencies having applications approved under section 2204(b), in accordance with such section (a).

SEC. 2206. LOCAL APPLICATIONS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Each local educational agency desiring a subgrant under section 2205(a) shall submit an application to the Secretary in such form and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(b) APPROVAL OF APPLICATIONS.—The local educational agency shall approve an application submitted under this section if the application meets the requirements of this section and holds reasonable promise of achieving the purposes of this part.

SEC. 2207. USES OF FUNDS.

“(a) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Each local educational agency receiving a subgrant under section 2205(a) may use not more than 3 percent of the subgrant funds for a fiscal year for the cost of administering this part.

“(b) LOCAL ACTIVITIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each local educational agency receiving a subgrant under section 2205(a) may use the subgrant funds for—

“(A) recruiting (including recruiting through the use of signing bonuses, and other financial incentives), hiring, and training in fully qualified regular and special education teachers (which may include hiring special education teachers to team-teach with regular teachers in classrooms that contain both students with disabilities and other students) and fully qualified teachers of special-needs students;

“(B) testing new teachers for subject matter knowledge and satisfaction of State certification or licensing requirements consistent with title II of the Higher Education Act of 1965; and

“(C) providing professional development (which may include such activities as the activities described in section 2106, opportunities for teachers to attend multistate institutes, such as institutes offered during the summer months that provide intensive professional development in partnership with local educational agencies, and initiatives that promote retention and mentoring) to teachers, including special education teachers and teachers of special-needs students, in order to meet the goal of ensuring that all teachers have the necessary subject matter knowledge, teaching knowledge, and teaching skills to teach effectively the academic standards prescribed in section 2106 of title II of the Higher Education Act of 1965.
"(2) LIMITATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a local educational agency may use not more than a total of 25 percent of the funds made available under this part for activities described in subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1).

(B) EXCEPTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A local educational agency may use not more than 25 percent of the subgrant funds for activities described in paragraph (1)(C) if 10 percent or more of the teachers in elementary schools served by the agency—

(I) have not applied State and local certification requirements (including certification through State or local alternative routes); or

(II) are teachers for whom the requirements have been waived.

(ii) USE OF FUNDS.—The local educational agency shall use the portion referred to in clause (i)—

(I) to help teachers who are not certified or licensed by the State become certified or licensed, including certification through State or local alternative routes; or

(II) to help teachers affected by class size reduction who lack sufficient subject matter knowledge or effective pedagogical knowledge in the academic subjects that the teachers teach, to obtain that knowledge.

(iii) NOTIFICATION.—To be eligible to use the portion of the funds described in clause (i) for objectives described in this subparagraph, the local educational agency shall notify the State educational agency of the percentage of the funds that the local educational agency will use for those objectives.

(3) ADDITIONAL USES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A local educational agency that has already reduced class size in the early elementary school grades to 18 or fewer students (or has already reduced class size to a State or local class size reduction goal that the agency met on the date of enactment of the Department of Education Appropriations Act, 2000, if that State or local goal is 20 or fewer students) may use the subgrant funds—

(i) to make further class size reductions in kindergarten or grade 1, 2, or 3;

(ii) to reduce class size in other grades; or

(iii) to carry out activities described in this section to improve teacher quality, including professional development.

(B) PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT.—Even if a local educational agency has already reduced class size in the early elementary school grades to 18 or fewer students and intends to use the subgrant funds to carry out activities to improve teacher quality, including professional development activities, the State educational agency shall make the subgrant under section 2205 to the local educational agency.

(c) SPECIAL RULE.—Notwithstanding subsection (b), if the amount of the subgrant made to a local educational agency under section 2205 is less than the starting salary for a new fully qualified teacher teaching in a school served by that agency, the agency may use the subgrant funds to—

(1) help pay the salary of a full- or part-time teacher hired to reduce class size, and may provide the funds in combination with other funds from the State or local funds; or

(2) pay for activities described in this section, which may be related to teaching in smaller classes.

SEC. 2209. TEACHER SALARIES AND BENEFITS.

(A) Educating limited English proficient students is an urgent goal for many local educational agencies, but that goal is not being met in too many of our nation's schools.

(B) Each year, 640,000 limited English proficient students aged 6 and 17 reside in the United States schools.

(C) The rich linguistic diversity language-minority students bring to classrooms in the United States enhances the learning environment for all students and should be valued for the significant, positive impact diversity has on the entire school environment.

(D) Parent and community participation in educational language programs for limited English proficient students contributes to program effectiveness.

(E) The Federal Government has a special and continuing obligation to assist States and local educational agencies, as exemplified by programs authorized under this title, to develop the capacity to provide programs of instruction that offer equal educational opportunities to limited English proficient children and youth, and other children and youth.

(F) The Federal Government also has a special and continuing obligation to assist States and local educational agencies, as exemplified by programs authorized under this title, to develop the capacity to provide programs of instruction that offer equal educational opportunities to limited English proficient children and youth, and other children and youth.

SEC. 2210. INDIAN, NATIVE HAWAIIAN, AND ALASKA NATIVE EDUCATION.

SEC. 301. LANGUAGE MINORITY STUDENTS.

A local educational agency receiving funds under this part shall submit a report to the Secretary identifying the subgrant funds that the local educational agency is using for the purposes described in section (b), which may be related to teaching in smaller classes.

SEC. 2211. SUPPLEMENT NOT SUPPLANT.

Funds made available under this part shall be used to supplement and not supplant State and local funds expended for activities described in this part.

SEC. 2212. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this part $1,623,000,000 for fiscal year 2002, and such sums as may be necessary to spend in subsequent fiscal years.

TITLE III—LANGUAGE MINORITY STUDENTS

SEC. 3101. FINDINGS, POLICY, AND PURPOSE.

(2) CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

(3) Through fiscal year 2001, bilingual education capacity and demonstration grants—

THE RICH LINGUISTIC DIVERSITY LANGUAGE-MINORITY STUDENTS BRING TO CLASSROOMS IN THE UNITED STATES ENHANCES THE LEARNING ENVIRONMENT FOR ALL STUDENTS AND SHOULD BE VALUED FOR THE SIGNIFICANT, POSITIVE IMPACT DIVERSITY HAS ON THE ENTIRE SCHOOL ENVIRONMENT.

(PARENT AND COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION IN EDUCATIONAL LANGUAGE PROGRAMS FOR LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT STUDENTS CONTRIBUTES TO PROGRAM EFFECTIVENESS.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HAS A SPECIAL AND CONTINUING OBLIGATION TO ASSIST STATES AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES, AS EXEMPLIFIED BY PROGRAMS AUTHORIZED UNDER THIS TITLE, TO DEVELOP THE CAPACITY TO PROVIDE PROGRAMS OF INSTRUCTION THAT OFFER EQUAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES TO LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT CHILDREN AND YOUTH, AND OTHER CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ALSO HAS A SPECIAL AND CONTINUING OBLIGATION TO ASSIST STATES AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES, AS EXEMPLIFIED BY PROGRAMS AUTHORIZED UNDER THIS TITLE, TO DEVELOP THE CAPACITY TO PROVIDE PROGRAMS OF INSTRUCTION THAT OFFER EQUAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES TO LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT CHILDREN AND YOUTH, AND OTHER CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ALSO HAS A SPECIAL AND CONTINUING OBLIGATION TO ASSIST STATES AND LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES, AS EXEMPLIFIED BY PROGRAMS AUTHORIZED UNDER THIS TITLE, TO DEVELOP THE CAPACITY TO PROVIDE PROGRAMS OF INSTRUCTION THAT OFFER EQUAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES TO LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT CHILDREN AND YOUTH, AND OTHER CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
“(D) lack of appropriate performance and assessment standards that distinguish between language ability and academic achievement so that State educational agencies and local educational agencies are equally accountable for the achievement of limited English proficient students in academic content while the students are acquiring English as the agencies are for enabling the students to acquire those skills.

(2) hold State educational agencies and local educational agencies accountable for increases in English proficiency and core content knowledge among limited English proficient students; and

(3) promote partnerships and community participation in limited English proficiency programs.

(c) Purposes.—The purposes of this part are—

(1) to assist all limited English proficient students to attain English proficiency;

(2) to assist all limited English proficient students to develop high levels of attainment in the core academic subjects so that those students can meet the same challenging State content standards and challenging State academic content standards as all students are expected to meet, as required by section 1111(b)(1);

(3) to assist local educational agencies to develop and enhance their capacity to provide high quality instruction in teaching limited English proficient students to attain the same high levels of academic achievement as other students; and

(4) to provide the assistance described in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) by—

(A) streamlining language instruction educational programs into a program carried out through a performance-based grant for State and local educational agencies to help limited English proficient students become proficient in English;

(B) increasing significantly the amount of Federal assistance provided to local educational agencies serving such students to acquire high quality instruction in teaching limited English proficient students becoming proficient in English;

(C) providing State educational agencies and local educational agencies with the flexibility to convert instructional programs, tied to scientifically based research, that the agencies believe to be the most effective for teaching English.

§ 3103. Definitions.

Except as otherwise provided, in this part—

(1) Core Academic Subject.—The term ‘core academic subject’ has the meaning given the term in section 1111(b)(2); and

(2) Limited English Proficient Student.—The term ‘limited English proficient student’ means an individual aged 5 through 21 enrolled in an elementary school or secondary school—

(A) who—

(i) was not born in the United States or whose native language is a language other than English;

(ii) is a Native American or Alaska Native, or a resident of the outlying areas; and

(ii) comes from an environment where a language other than English has a significant impact on such individual’s level of English language proficiency; or

(iii) is migratory, whose native language is a language other than English, and who comes from an environment where a language other than English is dominant; and

(B) who has sufficient difficulty speaking, reading, writing, understanding the English language, and whose difficulties may deny such individual—

(i) the ability to meet the State’s proficiency level of performance on State assessments described in section 1111(b)(4) in core academic subjects; or

(ii) the opportunity to participate fully in society.

§ 3104. Language Instruction Educational Programs.

The term ‘language instruction educational program’ means an instructional program in which a limited English proficient student is placed for the purpose of becoming proficient in the English language.

§ 3105. Specially Qualified Agency.

The term ‘specially qualified agency’ means a local educational agency serving such students to acquire high quality instruction in teaching limited English proficient students to attain the same high levels of academic achievement so that State educational agencies should—

(A) establish, implement, and sustain programs to help limited English proficient students become proficient in English;

(B) make adequate yearly progress with respect to such students with respect to increasing significantly the amount of State and Federal assistance provided to local educational agencies serving such students under this part for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall award grants, from allotments under this part for a fiscal year.

§ 3106. Programs Authorized.

(a) Grants Authorized.—The Secretary shall award grants, from allotments under section 3111 for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall make grants to it.

(b) Nonparticipating State.—If a State does not participate in a program under this subsection, the Secretary shall reserve from the amount appropriated under such title (as such title was in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act) for fiscal year 2001.

(c) Direct Awards to Specially Qualified Agencies.

(1) Nonparticipating State.—If a State educational agency for a fiscal year chooses not to participate in a program under this part, or fails to submit an approvable application under section 3105, a specially qualified agency in such State desiring a grant under this part for the fiscal year shall apply directly to the Secretary for a grant under this subsection.

(2) Direct Awards.—The Secretary may award a grant under this subsection to a specially qualified agency that receives a direct grant under section 3106(c) to a State, but only if the amount of such direct grant does not exceed 1 percent of the grant funds for the administrative costs of carrying out this part in the first year that the State receives a grant under the part.

§ 3107. Within-State Allocations.

(a) Grant Awards.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall use 95 percent of the grant funds to award subgrants, from allocations under section 3105, to local educational agencies in the State to carry out the activities described in section 3105.

(b) Allocation Formula.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall award grants for a fiscal year based on the number of limited English proficient students in schools served by the educational agency for the fiscal year.

§ 3108. Specially Qualified Agency Plans.

(A) Requirements.—Each State educational agency or specially qualified agency that receives a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State for activities described in section 3108.

(1) Core Academic Subjects.—The term ‘core academic subject’ has the meaning given the term in section 1111(b)(2); and

(2) Limited English Proficient Student.—The term ‘limited English proficient student’ means an individual aged 5 through 21 enrolled in an elementary school or secondary school—

(A) who—

(i) was not born in the United States or whose native language is a language other than English;

(iii) is migratory, whose native language is a language other than English, and who comes from an environment where a language other than English is dominant; and

(B) who has sufficient difficulty speaking, reading, writing, understanding the English language, and whose difficulties may deny such individual—

(i) the ability to meet the State’s proficiency level of performance on State assessments described in section 1111(b)(4) in core academic subjects; or

(ii) the opportunity to participate fully in society.

(3) Language Instruction Educational Programs.—The term ‘language instruction educational program’ means an instructional program in which a limited English proficient student is placed for the purpose of becoming proficient in the English language.

(4) Scientifically Based Research.—The term ‘scientifically based research’ has the meaning given the term in section 1705.

(5) Specially Qualified Agency.—The term ‘specially qualified agency’ means a local educational agency serving such students.

(6) State.—The term ‘State’ means each of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

§ 3109. Accountability.

(a) Grants Authorized.—The Secretary shall award grants, from allotments under section 3111 for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall make grants to it.

(b) Nonparticipating State.—If a State does not participate in a program under this subsection, the Secretary shall reserve from the amount appropriated under section 3106 an amount that bears the same relationship to the number of limited English proficient students in schools served by the local educational agency in the State as the remainder of the number of limited English proficient students serving the local educational agency bears to the number of all students in the State.

(c) Direct Awards to Specially Qualified Agencies.

(1) Nonparticipating State.—If a State educational agency for a fiscal year chooses not to participate in a program under this subsection, the Secretary shall reserve from the amount appropriated under such title (as such title was in effect on the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act) for fiscal year 2001.

(2) Direct Awards.—The Secretary may award a grant under this subsection to a specially qualified agency that receives a direct grant under section 3106(c) to a State, but only if the amount of such direct grant does not exceed 1 percent of the grant funds for the administrative costs of carrying out this part in the first year that the State receives a grant under the part.

§ 3110. Within-State Allocations.

(a) Grant Awards.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall use 95 percent of the grant funds to award subgrants, from allocations under section 3105, to local educational agencies in the State to carry out the activities described in section 3107.

(b) Allocation Formula.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall use 95 percent of the grant funds to award subgrants, from allocations under section 3105, to local educational agencies in the State to carry out the activities described in section 3107.

(b) Direct Awards.—The Secretary may award a grant under this subsection to a specially qualified agency that receives a direct grant under section 3106(c) to a State, but only if the amount of such direct grant does not exceed 1 percent of the grant funds for the administrative costs of carrying out this part in the first year that the State receives a grant under the part.

§ 3111. Core Academic Subjects.

(A) Requirements.—Each State educational agency or specially qualified agency that receives a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State for activities described in section 3111.

(B) Allocation Formula.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State to carry out the activities described in section 3111.

§ 3112. Specially Qualified Agency Plans.

(A) Requirements.—Each State educational agency or specially qualified agency that receives a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State for activities described in section 3112.

(B) Allocation Formula.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State to carry out the activities described in section 3112.

§ 3113. Accountability.

(A) Requirements.—Each State educational agency or specially qualified agency that receives a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State for activities described in section 3113.

(B) Allocation Formula.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under this part shall distribute such funds to local educational agencies in the State to carry out the activities described in section 3113.
such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(b) CONTENTS.—Each State plan submitted under subsection (a) shall—

(1) describe how the State or specially qualified agency will—

(A) establish standards and benchmarks for English language development that are aligned with the State content and language performance standards described in section 1111(b)(1); and

(B) establish the standards and benchmarks for each of the 4 recognized domains of speaking, listening, reading, and writing; and

(3) provide technical assistance to local educational agencies and elementary schools and secondary schools for the purposes of meeting annual numerical goals for limited English proficient students in the 4 domains of speaking, listening, reading, and writing; and

(C) develop annual performance objectives, including proficiency in the 4 recognized domains of speaking, listening, reading, and writing; and

(4) describe the activities for which assistance is sought, and how the activities will increase the speed and effectiveness with which English proficient students in the core academic subjects as described in section 1111(b)(2); and

(B) in the case of a specially qualified agency, the agency will hold elementary schools and secondary schools accountable for—

(i) meeting the performance objectives described in section 3108 for English proficiency in each of the 4 domains of speaking, listening, reading, and writing; and

(ii) making adequate yearly progress with limited English proficient students in the core academic subjects as described in section 1111(b); and

(2) in the case of a State educational agency, the State educational agency will—

(i) meet the same challenging State content and student academic standards described in section 1111(b)(1); and

(ii) provide technical assistance to elementary schools and secondary schools served by the specially qualified agency for the purposes of implementing programs and curricula described in subparagraph (A)(i); and

(iii) develop the special assistance program for the purpose described in subparagraph (A)(i).”

“(d) DURATION OF THE PLAN.—

(1) In general.—The State plan or specially qualified agency plan shall—

(A) remain in effect for the duration of the State educational agency’s or specially qualified agency’s participation under this part; and

(B) be periodically reviewed and revised by the State educational agency or specially qualified agency, as necessary, to reflect changes to the State’s or specially qualified agency’s strategies and programs carried out under this part.

(2) ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.—If the State educational agency or specially qualified agency makes significant changes to the plan, such as the adoption of new performance objectives or assessment measures, the State educational agency or specially qualified agency shall submit information regarding the significant changes to the Secretary.

(e) CONSOLIDATED PLAN.—A State plan submitted under subsection (a) may be submitted as part of a consolidated plan under section 8302.

(f) SECRETARY ASSISTANCE.—Pursuant to section 7104(a)(3), the Secretary shall provide assistance, if required, in the development of English language development standards and English language proficiency assessments.

SEC. 3106. LOCAL PLANS.

(a) PLAN REQUIRED.—Each local educational agency desiring a grant from the State educational agency under section 3104 shall submit a plan to the State educational agency at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the State educational agency may require.

(b) CONTENTS.—Each local educational agency plan submitted under subsection (a) shall—

(1) describe how the local educational agency will use the grant funds to meet the English proficiency performance objectives described in section 3109; and

(2) describe how the local educational agency will hold elementary schools and secondary schools accountable for meeting the performance objectives;

(3) contain an assurance that the local educational agency consulted with elementary school and secondary school teachers, school administrators, and English language instruction specialists, in developing the local educational agency plan; and

(4) describe how the local educational agency will use the disaggregated results of the student assessments required under section 1111(b)(4), and other measures or indicia of achievement, to annually review the progress of each school served by the agency under this part and under title I to determine whether the schools are making the adequate yearly progress necessary to ensure that limited English proficient students attending the schools will meet the State’s proficient level of performance on the State assessments described in section 1111(b)(4) within 10 years after the date of enactment of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act; and

SEC. 3107. USES OF FUNDS.

(a) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Each local educational agency receiving a grant under section 3104 may use not more than 1 percent of the grant funds for a fiscal year for the cost of administering this part.

(b) ACTIVITIES.—Each local educational agency receiving grant funds under section 3104 shall use the grant funds that are not used under subsection—

(1) to increase limited English proficient students’ proficiency in English by providing high-quality language instruction educational programs, such as bilingual education programs and transitional education or English immersion education programs, that are—

(A) designed to enhance the ability of such teachers to understand and use curriculum, assessment measures, and instructional strategies for limited English proficient students; and

(B) tied to scientifically based research demonstrating the effectiveness of the programs in increasing English proficiency; and

(2) to provide high-quality professional development activities for teachers of limited English proficient students that are—

(A) tied to scientifically based research demonstrating the effectiveness of such activities in increasing students’ English proficiency; and

(B) designed to increase subject matter knowledge, teaching knowledge, and teaching skills of such teachers;

(3) of sufficient intensity and duration (to include activity workshops or short-term workshops and conferences) to have a positive and lasting impact on the teachers’ performance in the classroom, except that this subparagraph shall not apply to an activity that is 1 component described in a long-term, comprehensive professional development plan established by a teacher or teacher’s supervisor on an assessment of the needs of the teacher, the supervisor, the students of the teacher, and the local educational agency;

(4) to identify, acquire, and upgrade curricula, instructional materials, educational software, and assessment procedures; and

(5) to provide parent and community participation programs to improve language instruction educational programs for limited English proficient students.

SEC. 3108. PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.

(a) PROVIDE TECHNOLOGICAL ASSISTANCE.—In carrying out this part, the Secretary shall not preclude the use of a particular curricular or pedagogical approach to educating limited English proficient students.
funds under section 3104 shall certify to the State educational agency that all teachers in any language instruction educational program for limited English proficient students funded under this part are fluent in English.

SEC. 3109. PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Each State educational agency or specially qualified agency receiving a grant under this part shall develop annual numerical performance objectives with respect to helping limited English proficient students become proficient in English, including attainment in the 4 recognized domains of speaking, listening, reading, and writing. For each annual numerical performance objective established, the agency shall specify the percentage increase for the objective to be attained for each of the fiscal years (after the first fiscal year) for which the agency receives a grant under this part, relative to the preceding fiscal year, including increases in the number of limited English proficient students demonstrating an increase in performance on annual assessments in speaking, listening, reading, and writing.

(b) ACCOUNTABILITY.—Each State educational agency or specially qualified agency receiving a grant under this part shall be held accountable for meeting the annual numerical performance objectives under this part and the adequate yearly progress levels for limited proficient students under clauses (iv) and (vii) of section 1111(b)(2)(B).

Any State educational agency or specially qualified agency that fails to meet the annual performance objectives shall be subject to sanctions under section 7101.

SEC. 3110. REGULATIONS AND NOTIFICATION.

(a) REGULATION RULE.—In developing regulations under this part, the Secretary shall consult with parents and other appropriate groups of the parent and the State and local plans under this part.

(A) the student's level of English proficiency, how such level was assessed, the status of the student's academic achievement, the measurable progress, or the academic standards that the student is meeting, the academic level of the student, and the academic needs, and how such programs differ in content and instructional goals from other language minority status.

(B) LIMITATION ON CONDITIONS.—Nothing in this part shall be construed to authorize an agency to mandate, direct, or control a State's, local educational agency's, or secondary school's specific instructional goals, except to the extent necessary and to the extent permitted and possible, receiving the information in the native language of the parent.

At a minimum, the parent shall receive—

(1) timely information about programs funded under this part; and

(2) if the parent desires, notice of opportunities for regular meetings for the purpose of formulating and responding to recommendations from parents of students assisted under this part.

SEC. 3111. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this part $1,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2002, and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

TITIE IV—PUBLIC SCHOOL CHOICE

SEC. 401. PUBLIC SCHOOL CHOICE.

(a) MAGNET SCHOOLS AMENDMENTS.—Section 5113(a) (20 U.S.C. 7213(a)) is amended—
   (1) by striking "$120,000,000" and inserting "$130,000,000"; and
   (2) by striking "1995" and inserting "2002".

(b) CHARTER SCHOOLS AMENDMENTS.—Section 1031 (20 U.S.C. 8057) is amended—
   (1) by striking "$100,000,000" and inserting "$200,000,000"; and
   (2) by striking "1999" and inserting "2002".

(c) REPLACES, TRANSFERS, AND REDESIGNATIONS.—The Act (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) is amended—
   (1) by amending the heading for title IV (20 U.S.C. 7101 et seq.) to read as follows:

"TITLE IV—PUBLIC SCHOOL CHOICE;

"(a) FINDINGS, POLICY, AND PURPOSE.

"(1) A Charter schools and magnet schools are an integral part of the educational system in the United States.

"(b) Thirty-four States and the District of Columbia have established charter schools.

"(c) Magnet schools have been established throughout the United States.

"(1) A Department of Education evaluation conducted in 2000, that 59 percent of charter schools reported that lack of start-up funds posed a difficult or very difficult challenge for the school.

"(2) States and local educational agencies and local educational agencies should hold all schools accountable for the improved performance of all students, including magnet charter schools and magnet schools, using State standards and student assessment measures.

"(3) Transportation is an important and critical component of school choice. Local educational agencies have a responsibility to provide transportation costs to ensure that all children have equal access to high quality schools.

"(4) School report cards constitute the key informational component used by parents for effective public school choice.

"(b) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States—

"(1) to support and stimulate improved public school performance through increased public elementary school and secondary school competition and increased Federal financial assistance for magnet schools and charter schools;

"(2) to provide parents with more choices among public school options;

"(3) to give parents more options and help parents make better and more informed choices by—

"(A) providing continued support for and financial assistance for magnet schools;

"(B) providing continued support for and expansion of magnet schools and charter school districts; and

"(C) providing financial assistance to States and local educational agencies for the development of public educational agency and school report cards.

"(B) DURATION.—Grants awarded under this part may be awarded for periods of not more than 3 years.

SEC. 402. USES OF FUNDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—"(1) PUBLIC SCHOOL CHOICE.—Funds made available under this part may be used to develop, implement, evaluate, demonstrate, and disseminate information on, innovative approaches to promote public school choice, including the design and development of new public school choice options, the development of new strategies for overcoming barriers to effective public school choice, and the design and development of public school choice options that provide high standards for all students and the continuous improvement of all public schools.

"(2) INNOVATIVE APPROACHES.—Such approaches which may be carried out at the school, the local educational agency, and State levels, may include—

"(A) universal public school choice programs that serve to make every school in a school district, group of school districts, or a State, a school of choice;

"(B) interdistrict and intradistrict approaches to public school choice, including approaches that increase equal access to high quality educational programs and diversity in schools;

"(C) public elementary school and secondary school programs that—"(i) involve partnerships that include institutions of higher education; and

"(ii) are located on the campuses of the institutions;

"(D) programs that allow students in public secondary schools to enroll in postsecondary courses and to receive both secondary and postsecondary academic credit;

"(E) approaches in which State educational agencies or local educational agencies form partnerships with public or private employers, to create public schools at parents' places of employment, referred to as workplace schools; and

"(F) approaches to school desegregation that provide students and parents choice through strategies other than magnet schools.

‘‘(b) Transportation.—Funds made available under this part may be used for providing transportation services or paying for the cost of transportation for students, except that not more than 10 percent of the funds used under this part shall be used by a State educational agency or local educational agency to provide such services or pay for such cost.

‘‘(c) Payment, Not Supplant.—Funds made available under this part shall be used to supplement and not supplant State and local public funds expended for public school choice programs.

‘‘SEC. 4304. GRANT APPLICATION; PRIORITIES.

‘‘(a) Application Required.—A State educational agency or local educational agency desiring to receive a grant under this part shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

‘‘(b) Application Contents.—The application shall include—

‘‘(1) a description of the program for which the agency seeks the grant goals for such program;

‘‘(2) a description of how the program will be coordinated with, and will complement and enhance, other related Federal and non-Federal programs;

‘‘(3) if the program involves partners, the name and organizational structure of the partner’s responsibilities;

‘‘(4) a description of the policies and procedures the applicant will use to ensure—

‘‘(A) accountability for results, including goals and performance indicators; and

‘‘(B) that the program is open and accessible to, and will promote high academic standards for, all students;

‘‘(5) information demonstrating that the applicant will provide transportation services or the cost of transportation to ensure that all students receive equal access to high quality schools; and

‘‘(6) such other information as the Secretary may require.

‘‘(c) Priorities.—

‘‘(1) Low-performing schools.—In making grants under this part, the Secretary shall give priority to an agency submitting an application for a program to which the Secretary determines is aimed at low-performing students.

‘‘(2) High-poverty agencies.—In making grants under this part, the Secretary shall give priority to an agency submitting an application for a program to a high-poverty local educational agency.

‘‘(3) Paraprofessionals.—In making grants under this part, the Secretary may give priority to an agency submitting an application demonstrating that the applicant will carry out the grantee’s program in partnership with 1 or more public or private agencies, organizations, or institutions, as such institutions of higher education and public or private educational agencies serve designated as low-performing.

‘‘SEC. 4305. EVALUATION, TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE, AND DISSEMINATION.

‘‘(a) Reservation for Evaluation, Technical Assistance, and Dissemination.—From the amount appropriated under section 4306 for any fiscal year, the Secretary may reserve—

‘‘(1) not more than 10 percent of the grant funds to carry out activities described in subsections (e) and (g)(2) for fiscal year 2002; and

‘‘(2) not more than 5 percent of the grant funds to carry out activities described under subsections (e) and (g)(2) for fiscal year 2003 and each of the 3 succeeding fiscal years.

‘‘(b) Evaluation.—The Secretary may use funds reserved under subsection (a) to carry out 1 or more evaluations of programs as- sisted under this part, which shall, at a minimum, include—

‘‘(1) how, and the extent to which, the pro- grams supported with funds under this part promote educational equity and excellence; and

‘‘(2) the extent to which public schools of choice supported with funds under this part are—

‘‘(A) held accountable to the public;

‘‘(B) effective in improving public edu- cation; and

‘‘(C) open and accessible to all students.

‘‘SEC. 4306. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

‘‘There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act $200,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

‘‘PART D—REPORT CARDS

‘‘SEC. 4401. REPORT CARDS.

‘‘(a) Grants Authorized.—The Secretary shall award grants, from allotments made under subsection (b), to States, local ed- cational agencies, and public schools receiving assistance under this Act to enable the States, agencies, and schools to publish an- nual reports and report cards concerning the agencies and schools.

‘‘(b) Reservations and Allocations.—

‘‘(1) Reservations.—From the amount appropria- ted under subsection (k) to carry out this part for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall reserve—

‘‘(A) 1⁄2 of 1 percent of such amount for pay- ments in the interior for acti- vities approved by the Secretary of Edu- cation, consistent with this part, in schools operated or supported by the Bureau of In- digent Native American Affairs, and the Secretary determines is necessary for assistance under this part; and

‘‘(B) 1⁄4 of 1 percent of such amount for pay- ments to outlying areas, to be allotted in ac- cordance with the Secretary’s credit for assistance under this part, as determined by the Secretary, for activities approved by the Secretary, consistent with this part.

‘‘(2) Final Distribution.—From the amount appropriated under subsection (k) for a fiscal year and remaining after the Sec- retary makes reservations under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall allot to each State receiving assistance under this Act an amount that bears the same relationship to the remainder as the number of public school students enrolled in elementary and secondary schools in the State bears to the number of such students so enrolled in all States.

‘‘(3) State Reserve of Funds.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under subsection (a) may reserve—

‘‘(I) not more than 10 percent of the grant funds to carry out activities described in subsections (e) and (g)(2) for fiscal year 2002; and

‘‘(II) not more than 5 percent of the grant funds to carry out activities described under subsections (e) and (g)(2) for fiscal year 2003 and each of the 3 succeeding fiscal years.

‘‘(d) State Reservations of Funds.—Each State educational agency receiving a grant under subsection (a) shall allocate the grant funds that remain after making the reserva- tions described in paragraphs (e) and (g)(2) to each local educational agency in the State in an amount that bears the same relationship to the remainder as the number of such students so enrolled in the elementary schools and secondary schools in the State bears to the number of such students so enrolled in all States.

‘‘(e) Annual State Report.—

‘‘(1) Reports Required.—

‘‘(A) In general.—Not later than the be- ginning of the 2002–2003 school year, a State that receives assistance under this Act shall prepare and disseminate an annual report to the Secretary, to the States, and to the local educational agencies described in this Act.

‘‘(B) Professional qualifications of teachers in the aggregate, including the per- centage of teachers teaching with emergency credentials or the professional qualifications of class sections not taught by fully qualified teachers, and the percentage of teachers who are fully qualified; and

‘‘(C) the professional qualifications of paraprofessionals in the aggregate, the num-and the ratio of paraprofessionals to teachers in the classroom.

“(4) STUDENT DATA.—Student data in each report shall contain disaggregated results for the categories stated in paragraph (3).”

“(A) Racial and ethnic groups.

“(B) Gender groups.

“(C) Economically disadvantaged students, as compared to students who are not economically disadvantaged.

“(D) Students with limited English proficiency, as compared with students who are proficient in English.

“(5) OPTIONAL INFORMATION.—A State may include in the State annual report any other information the State determines appropriate to reflect school quality and school achievement, including by grade level information on—

“(A) average class size; and “(B) school safety, such as the incidence of school violence and drug and alcohol abuse, and the incidence of student suspensions and expulsions.

“(6) WAIVER.—The Secretary may grant a waiver to a State seeking a waiver of the requirements of this subsection, if the State demonstrates to the Secretary that—

“(A) the content of State reports meets the goals of this part; and “(B) the State is taking identifiable steps to meet the requirements of this subsection.

“(f) LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY AND SCHOOL REPORT CARDS.—

“(1) REQUIRED INFORMATION.—Each local educational agency and school, as appropriate;

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The State shall ensure that each local educational agency, public elementary school, or public secondary school in the State that receives funds under this Act, collects appropriate data and publishes an annual report card consistent with this subsection.

“(B) REQUIRED INFORMATION.—Each local educational agency, elementary school, and secondary school described in subparagraph
(A) shall, at a minimum, include in its annual report card—

“(i) the information described in paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (e) for each local educational agency and school, as appropriate;

“(ii) in the case of a local educational agency—

“(I) information regarding the number and percentage of schools served by the local educational agency that are identified for school improvement and corrective action, schools included under section 1116;

“(II) information on the most recent 3-year trend in the number and percentage of elemental schools and secondary schools served by the local educational agency that are identified for school improvement;

“(III) information that shows how students in the schools served by the local educational agency performed on the statewide assessment compared with students in the State as a whole;

“(III) in the case of an elementary school or a secondary school—

“(I) information regarding whether the school has been identified for school improvement or corrective action; and “(II) information that shows how the school’s students performed on the statewide assessment compared with students in school, served by the State educational agency and with all students in the State;

“(IV) other appropriate information, whether or not the information is included in the annual State report.

“(2) SPECIAL RULE.—A local educational agency that issues report cards for all public elementary schools and secondary schools served by the agency shall include, at a minimum, the information described in paragraphs (3) through (5) of subsection (e) for all public schools that receive funds under this Act.

“(g) DISSEMINATION AND ACCESSIBILITY OF REPORTS AND REPORT CARDS.—

“(1) REQUIREMENTS.—Annual reports and report cards under this part shall be—

“(A) clear and complete;

“(B) presented in a format and manner that parents can understand, including, to the extent practicable, in a language the parents can understand;

“(2) STATE REPORTS.—State annual reports under subsection (e) shall be disseminated to all elementary schools, secondary schools, and local educational agencies in the State, and made broadly available to the public through means such as posting on the Inter-et and distribution to the media, and

“(3) LOCAL REPORT CARDS.—Local educational agency report cards under subsection (f) shall be disseminated to all elementary schools and secondary schools served by the local educational agency and to all parents of students attending such schools, and made broadly available to the public through means such as posting on the Internet and distribution to the media, and through public agencies.

SEC. 601. HIGH PERFORMANCE AND QUALITY EDUCATION INITIATIVES.

Title VI (20 U.S.C. 7301 et seq.), is amended to read as follows:

"(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

"(1)(A) The educators most familiar with schools, including school superintendents, principals, teachers, and school support personnel, have critical roles in knowing what students need and how best to meet the educational needs of those students.

"(B) Local educational agencies should therefore have primary responsibility for deciding how to use funds.

"(2) The effective use of technology in education has been inhibited by the inability of many State educational agencies and local educational agencies to invest in and support needed technology.

"(3) To provide assistance to local educational agencies and schools for innovative programs and activities that will transform schools into places where provide 21st century opportunities for students.

"(4) To create New Economy Technology Schools by providing assistance to local educational agencies and schools for—

"(A) promoting technology and other high-risk behavior from occurring in and around schools;

"(B) preventing the illegal use of alcohol, tobacco, and drugs among students.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

S1311

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleagues Senator Lieberman, Landrieu, Kohl, Lincoln, Breaux, Graham, Feinstein, Carper, Kerry, and Nelson in offering the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act. It is my hope that our proposal will allow Congress to break the gridlock of the recent past and pursue a two-track strategy in this Congress, working together for the benefit of the American people when we agree, while continuing to disagree on other issues in a manner in which consensus cannot be formed.

We introduce our version of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act today in recognition of the fact that far too many millions of American children the promise of a quality public education is a hollow dream. We stand here today in recognition of the fact that the solutions of the 1960s are inadequate to meet the challenges of the 21st Century and the years beyond.

We stand here today to say the status quo is not good enough; that we must do better. Congress has an historic opportunity and responsibility to enact the most sweeping education reform since the 1960s to ensure that no child is left behind. The consequences of any of our children not receiving a quality education are far greater than ever before.

For the first time in our nation’s history, the growing gap between the educational ‘‘haves’’ and ‘‘have nots’’ threatens to create a permanent underclass. If we do not address these shortcomings, the knowledge and information gap will lock many of our citizens out of the marketplace and prevent them from accessing opportunity in the New Economy.

Our proposal breaks with the sterile orthodoxy of the past, in which too often the left said just spending more money was the answer to the problems facing our schools, and the right said the public schools could not be fixed and, therefore, should be abandoned. Instead, we propose a consensus, a synthesis of ideas reflecting the best of both the right and the left to improve the quality of public education across our country. We propose a substantial increase in our nation’s investment in education, because we recognize that we can’t expect our schools, particularly our poorer schools, to get the job done if we don’t give them the tools to do it. We propose an increase of $35 billion over five years in Federal education spending. But we do more than just throw money at the problem, because we know that taxpayers, parents, and most of all our children have to expect more from us. Instead, we focus on accountability. In return for increased investment, we insist upon results. We focus on outcomes, not inputs. No longer will we define success only in terms of how much money is spent, but instead of how much our children learn. Can they read and write, add and subtract, know how much our children learn. Can they that have prevailed here in Washington for several decades.

Our proposal also provides a substantial amount of flexibility. We don’t agree with the block grants our colleagues on the far right advocate for which would allow money to be diverted from public education or to allow dollars to be diverted from focusing on our poorest students. But we do allow for local principals and superintendents a much greater say in determining how best to spend those dollars, because we believe that those at the local level who labor in the classrooms and the schools every day, can make those decisions far better than those who now work on the banks of the Potomac.

Finally, our proposal harnesses market forces and embeds them in the public education system to encourage innovation, improvement, and increased accountability without abandoning the concept of a quality public education for all of our nation’s children—not just the lucky few under a market-based system by going down the path of voucher. Instead, we support the expansion of public school choice, magnet and charter schools. We believe in the enduring American principle of a quality public education for all of our nation’s children—not just the lucky few under a market-based system.

It was Thomas Jefferson who said that a society that expects to be both ignorant and free is expecting something that never has been and never shall be. So we put forward this proposal knowing that the cause of improving public education is critically important to our economy, critically important to the kind of society that we will be, and essential to the viability of our democracy itself.

Mr. KATHLEEN M. HOUDESEN, I am proud to again be an original cosponsor of The Public Education Investment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act of 2000—better known as “Three R’s.” I have been pleased to work with the education colleagues in Wisconsin, as well as Senators LIEBERMAN, BAYH, and our other cosponsors, on this important piece of legislation.

Perhaps this year, the three “R’s” should stand for: “right, right, and right.” It is the right time to keep promises we all made during the election to make bipartisan education reform our first order of business. It is the right policy to give schools more flexibility for more accountability. And it is the right thing to do to make our students a number one federal priority.

We have come a long way since we started this effort more than a year ago. Unfortunately, in the 106th Congress, we were unable to rise above the usual partisan sniping and have a serious education debate. But last year’s fighting has given way to this year’s opportunity to do what’s right by our children. If we learn anything from the last election, it is that the American people want real education reform—and they want to see results.

None of us would deny that we have made great strides in recent years toward a better public education system. Nearly all States now have academic standards in place. More students are taking more challenging courses. Test scores have risen slightly. Dropout rates have decreased.

In Wisconsin, educators have worked hard to help students achieve. Students are showing continued improvement on State tests in nearly every subject, particularly math and reading, across all groups, including African Americans, the disabled, and the economically disadvantaged.

But despite our best efforts, our public schools still face daunting challenges. Too many students do not have the skills they need to compete in the 21st century economy. And the achievement gap between poor and more affluent students remains alarmingly wide. Unfortunately, we still have a way to go. The past some have called for reducing or eliminating the Federal role in education. I think that would be a mistake. As a nation, it is in all of our best interests to make sure our children receive the best education possible. It is vital to their future success, and to the success of our country.

But addressing problems in education is going to take more than cosmetic reform. We risk our children’s future by defending the tired programs of the past. We need to let go of the partisan bickering and focus on what the American people are focused on: Results.

Results are what the 3 R’s is all about. Student achievement for all students—and eliminating the achievement gap between low-income and more affluent students—our top priorities. To accomplish this, our bill centers around three principles.

First, we believe that we must make a strong investment in education, and we need to target those funds to the neediest schools and students. Since Federal funds make up only 7 percent of all money spent on education, it is essential that we target those funds where they are needed the most.

Second, we believe that States and local school districts are in the best position to know what their educational needs are. The 3 R’s give educators more flexibility to decide how they will use Federal dollars to meet those needs.

Third—and I believe this is the key component of our approach—we believe that in exchange for this increased flexibility, there must be increased accountability.

For too long, we have seen a steady stream of Federal dollars flow to States and school districts—regardless of how well they educated their students. This has to stop. We need to reward schools that do a good job. We need to provide help to schools that are struggling to do a better job. But we need to make sure our children’s highest priority must be educating children—not protecting broken systems.

I am pleased that there is an emerging consensus around these core principles of 3 R’s. Already, President Bush has expressed interest in pursuing many of these same ideas that our group laid out over a year ago, and I look forward to joining with both parties to get this done.

The Three R’s bill is a strong starting point for this debate. This bill—by using the concepts of increased funding, targeting, flexibility—and most importantly, accountability—demands how well we perform. With our State and local partners to make sure every child receives the highest quality education—and a chance to live a successful, productive life. I look forward to working with both sides of the aisle as Congress debates education reform in the coming months.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleagues, Senator LIEBERMAN, Senator BAYH, and others of the Senate New Democrats today in introducing the “Three R’s” Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvestment and Responsibility Act of 2001.

This legislation is important for several reasons:

It re-establishes the education of our children, all our children, as a national priority.

It is a sterling example of “finding the center.” We take the best of many ideas, and forge what we hope will be common ground.

It is an “unfinished business” from last year. The 106th Congress had the responsibility to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Authorization Act. We debated for a while, gridlock set in, and all progress ended for the year. By coming forward early in the 107th Congress with a centrist proposal—we hope for a different outcome in 2001.

The concepts in the Three R’s are simple, but resonant with teachers, parents and administrators. More money is more money is more money is more money is more money is more money is more money.

State and local governments have the primary responsibility toward funding K-12 education, but the federal government can do more. We offer $35 billion more over the next five years.

Accountability assures that we are getting the most effective use of Federal dollars in education. There is strong accountability here. Struggling schools are offered extra help, but then they must show results in student progress. Schools that exceed goals are rewarded.

Flexibility is essential so that each local school district is able to meet specific local needs and challenges. The three R’s ensures that federal priorities in education receive a focus, but allow states and local decision makers to implement what they most need.

In the first week of February last year, I hosted a roundtable discussion of parents, teachers and administrators in Tampa, Florida. All of them asked for the same thing: more resources, more flexibility, and a focus on results—not procedure, simply put, that’s what we try to do here.
My discussion in Tampa also highlighted the urgent need for the federal government’s commitment to education. The latest National Assessment of Educational Progress, NAEP, shows scores are still off track.

Only 17 percent of 8th graders in Florida score at or above the proficient level in mathematics. Only 3 percent of African American 8th graders score at or above proficient standards in math.

Only 23 percent of 4th graders are at or above proficient standards in reading.

18 percent of the classes in Florida are taught by instructors who lack a college major in the subject matter that they teach.

The “achievement gap” is real. White students in Florida on average score 1001 points on the SAT. African American students, on average, score 856 points—but refuse to score.

We need to do more to give all Floridians a chance. The introduction of this legislation is the first step toward finding the common ground necessary to reach a consensus. Our proposal represents the best hope and the best blueprints toward our national education goals.

The Three R’s aims to help states and districts raise the academic achievement of all children by increasing the federal government’s investment in public education, by highly-targeting those resources toward to most economically disadvantaged children, by increasing the flexibility with which states and districts use federal dollars, and by holding schools accountable for results.

I believe that it is past time to break the partisan gridlock in Washington over education reform and to come together around programs, policies, and initiatives that members of both parties can agree are critical to improving education for our neediest children.

I am very pleased that President Bush agrees with my colleagues and I on the fundamental principles underlying this legislation—that meaningful education reform requires increased accountability, increased flexibility, and more resources toward to most economically disadvantaged children, by increasing the flexibility with which states and districts use federal dollars, and by holding schools accountable for results.

I look forward to working with President Bush and my Republican colleagues to reach a bipartisan consensus on education reform. I believe that the Three R’s legislation provides a great framework for finding the common ground necessary to reach a consensus.

Bipartisanship means compromise, not capitulation—and education reform is an issue for compromise. We’ve been pushing for three years for real education reform for our kids—we’ve been willing to put aside hot button issues—and now I hope that President Bush will join us by putting aside his voucher proposals and working toward meaningful public education reform that both parties can agree on. Both Republicans and Democrats can agree that the federal government should focus on helping states improve academic results. We need to build on the good work on encouraging states and schools to enact bold reforms instead of passively tolerating failure. It is time to step back from mico-managing public education from Washington and time instead to give states and school districts the flexibility they need to improve public education. And we must hold those schools and states accountable for results.

Members of both parties know that we must increase our investment in public education so that schools can meet high standards, that we must maintain our commitment to the most economically disadvantaged students, that to be successful schools must have capable leaders and fully certified teachers, and that states and schools must be held accountable for providing children with a quality education.

I have worked on education reform in a bipartisan way in the past. In the last Congress, Senator Gordon Smith and I introduced the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act, or Three R’s for short. Three R’s aims to help states and districts raise the academic achievement of all children by increasing the federal government’s investment in public education, by highly-targeting those resources toward to most economically disadvantaged children, by increasing the flexibility with which states and districts use federal dollars, and by holding schools accountable for results.

I am very pleased to rise today in support of the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act. It redirects Federal policy on doing a few things, but doing them well. It redirects Federal policy toward the purpose of achieving results rather than promulgating yet more rules and regulations.

I believe we have a tremendous opportunity this year to achieve bipartisan consensus to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, and in so doing to redesign the original intent of that landmark legislation. I want to express my appreciation to our new President for his interest in renewing educational opportunity in America and leaving no child behind. There is much in the legislation we introduce today that squares with the plan that the President sent to Congress last week. We on this side of the aisle agree with the President that we need to invest more federal dollars in our schools, particularly in schools that serve the neediest students. We also agree that the dollars we provide, we should provide more flexibly. And we agree that if we are going to provide more money, and if we are going to provide that money more flexibly, we should demand results. That’s the formula: invest in reform; insist on results.

I believe we also agree with our new President that parents should be empowered to make choices to send their children to a variety of different schools. We agree that parents are the first enforcers of accountability in public education. Where we disagree is in how we provide that choice. The President believes that the best way to empower parents and to provide them with choices is to give children and their parents vouchers of $1,500 per year. With all due respect, that is an empty promise. In my State, you just can’t get your child into most private or parochial schools for $1,500 per year. That is simply an empty promise.

I believe in a better way. I believe we’ve found a better way in my little State of Delaware. Four years ago, we introduced statewide public school choice. We also passed our first charter schools law. I knew that this was going to work when I heard the following conversation between a school administrator and some of his colleagues. He said, “If we don’t provide parents and families what they want and need, they’ll send their kids somewhere else.” I thought to myself, “Right! He’s got it.”

We have 200 public schools in my small State, and students in all of these schools take our test measuring what they know and can do in reading, writing, and math. We also measure our progress in reducing the incidence of poverty, from highest to lowest. The school with the highest incidence of poverty in my state is the East Side Charter School in Wilmington, Delaware. The incidence of poverty there is 83 percent; its students are almost minority. It is right in the center of the projects in Wilmington. In the first year after East Side Charter School opened its doors, very few of its students met our state standards in math. Last spring, every third grader there took our math test and exceeded our standards, which is something that happened at no other school in the state. It’s a remarkable story. And it’s been possible because East Side Charter School is a remarkable school. Kids can come early and stay late. They have a longer school year. They wear school uniforms. Parents have to sign a contract of mutual responsibility. Teachers are given greater authority to innovate and initiate.

We need to ensure that parents and students are getting what they want and need, and if they’re not getting what they want and need that they have the choice—and most importantly that they have the ability—to go somewhere else. A $1,500 voucher doesn’t give parents that ability, at least not in my State. Public school choice and charter schools do.

We agree on many things. Where we disagree, as on vouchers, I believe we can find common ground. I believe that we can come together, for example, to provide a “safety valve” to children in failing schools, in the way of broader public school choice and greater access to charter schools. I am therefore hopeful and confident for the prospects for bipartisan agreement and for meaningful reform. To that end, I urge my colleagues to support the Public Education Reinvestment, Reinvention, and Responsibility Act.

By Mr. HATCH (for himself, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. DEWINE, and Mr. THURMOND): S. 304. A bill to reduce illegal drug use and trafficking and to help provide appropriate drug education, prevention, and treatment programs; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, today we are taking an important step in our effort to rid our nation of drug abuse. There has lately developed a bipartisan consensus that realizes that supply reduction needs to be complemented with demand reduction in our fight to combat drugs. Yes, we must continue our vigilant defense of our borders and our streets against those who make their living by manufacturing and selling these harmful substances. And yes, we must sustain our vigorous law enforcement efforts against these merchants of misery. But the time has come to increase the resources we devote to prevent people from using drugs in the first place and to breaking the cycle of addiction for those whose lives are damaged by these substances. Only through such a balanced approach can we remove the scourge of drugs from our society.

Last session, to stem the maddening increase in methamphetamine manufacturing and trafficking in America, Congress passed and the President signed into law the Methamphetamine Anti-Proliferation Act, a bill which I had authored. It was a balanced bill that provided law enforcement with several needed tools to help turn back the tide of methamphetamine proliferation, and it also contained several significant prevention and treatment provisions. In particular, one of the treatment provisions offered an innovative approach to how drug addicted patients can be treated in treatment. As science and medicine continue to make significant strides in developing drugs that promise to make treatment more effective, we must pave the way to ensure that these drugs can be administered in an effective manner. Indeed, this provision did exactly that, by creating a decentralized system of treating heroin addicts with a new generation of anti-addiction medications.

Mr. President, the Drug Education, Prevention and Treatment Act of 2001, which we introduce today, also embodies this balanced approach. While the bill furthers our law enforcement efforts by increasing penalties for those who involve minors in drug crimes and those who use our public lands for drug manufacturing, the bulk of the legislation advances our prevention and treatment efforts. Before detailing some of these measures, I want to thank my partner on the Judiciary Committee, Senator Biden, as well as my colleagues Senators BIDEN, DEWINE, and THURMOND for cosponsoring this bill. The effort and experience they have contributed to this bill have helped make it worthy of the support of every member of this body.

I am extremely pleased that this bipartisan bill has a friend in the new White House. President Bush has indicated several times in the plan he unveiled last fall, that he also believes in a comprehensive drug control strategy. He, too, has stressed treatment as an important component in combating juvenile drug abuse. I look forward to working with the President, as well as with Attorney General Ashcroft, as we combat drug abuse in this country in a bipartisan fashion.

This legislation recognizes that we must do more to prevent and treat substance abuse. Such efforts, it is safe to say, will prove well worth it. According to a report recently released by the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University in 1998, States spent $81.3 billion—fully 12 percent of total state spending—on substance abuse and addiction. Only $3 billion of this, however, was spent on prevention and treatment. The remaining $78 billion was spent, in the words of the study’s authors, “to shovel up the wreckage of substance abuse and addiction.” Remarkably, these staggering numbers do not even include the amount of federal matching funds that states spend, for example, on Medicaid and welfare, or the spending of local governments—which bear most of the law enforcement burden, or private sector costs such as employee health care, lost productivity, and facility security.

The report urges us, as policymakers, to reexamine our priorities and shift our attention to drug prevention and treatment. This bill does just that, and, I hasten to add, it does so without undermining in any way our commitment to supply reduction. Indeed, this bill, it can be said, ultimately will help cut off by reducing the demand for drugs among those who are the most consistent and addicted users.

While this legislation will prove enormously helpful, it is no substitute for what is our most effective tool for preventing drug abuse: good parenting.

Demand reduction starts with educating all of America’s children about the harmful, destructive nature of drugs, and that education must start at school. According to the 1999 DIDE survey, students whose parents never or seldom talk to them about drugs are 36.5 percent more likely to use drugs; in contrast, students whose parents talk to them often, or a lot, about drugs are 33.5 percent less likely to use drugs.

Parents need to talk seriously to their children about the risks of drug use before they fall prey to peer pressure or drug dealers who want nothing more than to create new addicts. Parents need to stop deluding themselves into believing that moving to the suburbs, away from the temptations and evils of the inner cities, will prevent...

S1315

An additional provision authorizes grants to eligible community-based organizations, including youth-serving organizations, faith-based organizations, and other community groups, to provide after-school or out-of-school programs that include a strong character education component. Another important provision authorizes grants for community-based organizations that provide counseling and mentoring services to children who have a parent or guardian that is incarcerated. We want all who can help to be in a position to help, and these drug education and prevention programs will help reduce the number of children who decide to use drugs, we also need to ensure that those who are addicted receive treatment. It is crucial that drug-addicted children receive treatment while they are young before they ruin their lives and grow up to become hard core addicts, which often leads to criminal behavior.

It does without saying that it is important to ensure that violent and repeat offenders are imprisoned and punished for their crimes. However, I believe in giving nonviolent offenders, whose crimes are tied directly to their addictions, a chance to enter drug treatment in lieu of incarceration. This bill contains several provisions that will assist States in providing nonviolent, drug-addicted offenders with the opportunity to participate in drug treatment programs in lieu of incarceration.

For example, one provision authorizes the Attorney General to help the States and their local prosecutors to develop drug courts for the purpose of developing, implementing, or expanding drug treatment programs. These programs are administered by prosecutors who determine which offenders are eligible to participate. All eligible offenders who participate are sentenced to, or placed with, a long-term, drug-free residential substance abuse treatment provider. If, however, the offender does not successfully complete treatment, he or she is required to serve a sentence of imprisonment with respect to the underlying crime.

This provision has been administered effectively by certain district attorneys in New York over the last decade. Last session, I worked hard with Senators THURMOND and SCHUMER, to get these very programs authorized so that other State and local prosecutors could benefit from this drug alternative to prison program. I look forward to the continuation of these efforts by Senators THURMOND and SCHUMER to ensure that this provision is enacted into law this session.

This bill also reauthorizes the drug court program and authorizes juvenile substance abuse courts, both of which provide continuing judicial supervision over nonviolent offenders with substance abuse problems while allowing them to enter treatment programs as an alternative to prison. A high percentage of offenders who otherwise don’t qualify for participation in alternatives to prison programs, but nonetheless have serious drug addictions, far too often are released from incarceration without ever receiving treatment. To address this issue, this bill authorizes funding to provide drug treatment services to inmates. This funding will go a long way in ensuring safer neighborhoods and a more productive drug-addicted offenders are released from incarceration.

To further ensure safer neighborhoods, the bill also promotes the successful reintegration of inmates into society by authorizing demonstration projects in the federal and state court systems that incorporate new strategies and programs for alleviating the public safety risk posed by released prisoners. These projects, which establish court-based programs for monitoring the return of offenders into communities, include drug treatment, as well as vocational and basic educational training. Each program uses court sanctions and incentives to encourage positive behavior.

Finally, the bill contains a provision that requires the government to consider, on the same basis as other non-governmental organizations, faith-based organizations to provide the assistance under all programs authorized by this bill, as long as the program is implemented in a manner consistent with the first amendment. I am aware of some concerns Senators LEAHY and BIDEN may have with this provision relating to the participation of faith-based organizations, and I am committed to working with them in an effort to address their concerns as the legislation moves through the process.

Mr. President, this bill bespeaks a compassionate concern for those who suffer from drug addiction. By passing this bill, we will be telling these people that we have not given up hope for them, especially for our children, that we will offer the means to help them help themselves, and that we will not lock them behind bars by those who would make a profit on their misery. Above all, this legislation demonstrates our unwavering commitment to rid our nation of drug abuse. To those who traffic drugs, let there be no mistake about our resolve: we will put you in jail when we catch you, but we will also fight you for the soul of every person you would prey upon. And, in time, we will change them from helplessness to targets for your poison to productive, responsible members of our society. I invite my colleagues to join us in this effort.

I ask unanimous consent that a section-by-section summary of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DRUG ABUSE EDUCATION, PREVENTION, AND TREATMENT ACT OF 2001—SUMMARY

TITLE I: OFFENSES INVOLVING JUVENILES

Sec. 101. Increased Penalties for Using Minors To Traffic Drugs Across the Border

This section directs the Sentencing Commission to review and amend, if appropriate, the Sentencing Guidelines with respect to offences relating to the use of a minor to trafcf controlled substances across the border and to consider whether the base offense level for such offenses should be increased to level 20.
Sec. 102. Increased Penalties for Drug Offenses Committed in the Presence of Minors
This section directs the Sentencing Commisson to review and amend, if appropriate, the Sentencing Guidelines to provide an appropriate sentencing enhancement for any offense involving the use of minors to distribute drugs.
Sec. 104. Increased Penalties for Distributing
Drugs To Minors
21 U.S.C. 859 prohibits the distribution of controlled substances to a person under 21 years old. This section directs the Sentencing Commission to review and amend, if appropriate, the Sentencing Guidelines to provide an appropriate sentencing enhancement for offenses involving the use of minors to distribute drugs.
Sec. 105. Increased Penalties for Distributing
Drugs Near Schools
21 U.S.C. 860 prohibits the distribution or manufacture of controlled substances near schools and other places frequented by minors. This section directs the Sentencing Commission to review and amend, if appropriate the Sentencing Guidelines to create a sentencing enhancement for such violations.
Sec. 106. Increased Penalties for Using Federal Property to Manufacture Controlled Sub-estances
This section amends the Controlled Sub-estances Act by doubling the maximum punishment for any person who cultivates or manufactures a controlled substance on property in whole or in part owned or leased to the United States or any federal agency.
Sec. 107. Clarification of Length of Supervised Release Terms in Controlled Substance Case
This section clarifies an apparent conflict in the code regarding the length of supervised release in controlled substance cases.
Sec. 108. Supervised Release Period after Conviction for Continuing Criminal Enterprise
Any sentence imposed for violating the continuing criminal enterprise statute shall include a term of supervised release of not less than 10 years, and if there was a prior conviction, of not less than 15 years in addition to any fine to be imposed.
TITLE II: DRUG-FREE PRISONS AND JAILS
Sec. 201. Drug-Free Prisons and Jails Incentive
Grants
This section authorizes grants to eligible States and Indian tribes to encourage the establishment and maintenance of drug-free prisons and jails. Eligible drug-free programs shall include: (1) a zero-tolerance policy for use or presence in State facilities, including routine sweeps and inspections, random and frequent drug tests, and improved screening for drugs; (2) enforcement of pennalties, including for the introduction, use, or possession of drugs or drug equipment, or the presence of drugs in any prison or jail; (3) implementation of residential drug treatment programs, and (4) drug testing of inmates apt to re-offend or release from incarceration, as appropriate.
Sec. 202. Jail-Based Substance Abuse Treatment Programs
This section authorizes $100 million in additional funding for residential substance abuse treatment programs, outpatient treatment programs, and aftercare treatment services in State and local prisons and jails.
Sec. 203. Mandatory Revocation of Probation and Supervised Release for Failing Drug Tests
This section amends 18 U.S.C. 3565(b) and 3623(g) to provide for mandatory revocation of probation or supervised release if a defendant tests positive for illegal controlled substances more than three times over the span of one year.
Sec. 204. Increased Penalties for Providing an Inmate with a Controlled Substance
This section directs the Sentencing Com-
misson to review and amend, if appropriate, the Sentencing Guidelines with respect to any offence relating to providing a Federal prisoner a Schedule I or II controlled substance and to consider increasing the base offense level for such violations to not less than level 26. The Sentencing Commission shall also consider increasing the base offence level for such offenses by not less than 2 offense levels if the defendant is a law en-f orce ment or correctional officer or employee, or an employee of the DOJ, at the time of the offense.
TITLE III: TREATMENT, EDUCATION, AND PREVENTION
Sec. 301. Prosecution Drug Treatment Alternative to Prison
This section authorizes the Attorney General to make grants to States and local prosecutors for the purpose of developing, implementing, and expanding drug treatment alternatives to prison programs for non-violent offenders. These programs are administered by prosecutors who determine which offenders are eligible to participate. All eligible offendes who participate are sentenced to or placed with a long term, drug free residential substance abuse treatment provider. If the offender does not successfully complete treatment, he is required to serve a sentence of imprisonment with respect to the underlying crime. Authorizes $30 million a year for three years.
Sec. 302. Juvenile Substance Abuse Courts
This section authorizes the Attorney General to make grants to States and local gov-eg m ent to establish programs that com-tain juvenile justice programs for violent juvenile offenders with substance abuse problems with integrate administration of other sanctions and services, which include: (1) independent juvenile justice mandates; (2) substance abuse treatment for participants; (3) probation, diversion, or other supervised release involving the possibility of supervised incarceration or supervision based noncompliance with program re-requirements; and (4) aftercare services, such as relapse prevention. Authorizes $50 million to be appropriated each year for FY 2002– 2004.
Sec. 303. Expansion of Drug Abuse Education and Prevention Efforts
This section authorizes the Attorney General to enter into cooperative agreements to carry out outreach and prevention efforts to carry out outreach and prevention efforts to encourage the dangers of abuse of and addiction to illicit drugs and to carry out community-based facilities for methamphetamine programs that are effective and research-based.
The Administrator shall give priority in granting funds to rural and urban areas that are experiencing a high and increase in abuse, and the amounts awarded may be used to carry out various programs, including school-based and community-based programs that focus on populations that are most at-risk for abuse of or addiction to illicit drugs. Authorizes $10 million to be appropriated for FY 2002 and such sums as necessary for each succeeding FY.
Sec. 304. Funding for Treatment in Rural States and Economically Depressed Communities
This section authorizes $50 million for grants to States to provide treatment facilities in the neediest Rural States and economically depressed communities that have high rates of drug addiction but lack resources to provide services.
Sec. 305. Funding for Residential Treatment Centers for Women with Children
This section authorizes $10 million for grants to States to provide residential treatm ent facilities for women, including methamphetamine, heroin, and other drug addicted women who have minor children. These facilities offer specialized treatment for addicted mothers and their children in the facility or nearby while treatment is ongoing.
Sec. 306. Drug Treatment for Juveniles
This section authorizes $100 million a year for grants to States to provide residential treatment facilities designed to treat drug addicted juveniles.
Sec. 307. Coordinated Juvenile Services Grants
This section allows existing Juvenile Justice and Delinquency and Prevention funds to be used to make grants to encourage Federal, State, and local agencies (including school and private providers) to develop and coordinate the delivery of mental health and/or substance abuse services to children at risk. Such grants leverage limited Federal, State, and local funding to make grants to urban and rural areas that carry out School-Based Substance Abuse Prevention Programs.
Sec. 308. Expansion of Research
This section authorizes funding for the National Institutes of Health to enter into cooperative agreements to conduct research on drug abuse treatment and to establish up to 12 new National Drug Abuse Treatment Clinical Trials Network (CTN) centers to develop and test an array of behavioral and pharmacological treatments for substance abuse and to establish novel treatments are successfully adopted by researchers. Authorizes $71 million to be appropriated each year for FY 2002 and such sums as necessary for each succeeding FY.
Sec. 309. Comprehensive Study By National Academy of Sciences
This section directs the Attorney General to enter into cooperative agreements to evaluate the effectiveness of federally funded programs for preventing youth substance abuse; (2) identify federal programs and programs that receive federal funds that contribute to reductions in youth substance abuse; and (3) identify programs that have not achieved their intended results and to make recommendations on programs that have proven successful and those that should have their funding terminated or reduced because of lack of effectiveness.

Sec. 310. Report on Drug-Testing Technologies

This section directs the National Institute on Standards and Technology to conduct a study of drug-testing technologies to identify new technologies, accuracy, and usefulness of such technologies.

Sec. 311. Use of National Institutes of Health Substance Abuse Research

This section ensures that the research on alcohol and drug abuse conducted by NIDA is disseminated to treatment practitioners to aid them in the treatment of addicts.

TITLE IV: SCHOOL SAFETY AND CHARACTER EDUCATION

Subtitle A—School Safety

Sec. 401. Alternative Education Demonstration Project Grants

This section authorizes funding for the Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of Education, to make grants to State educational agencies or local educational agencies to establish not less than 10 demonstration projects that enable the agencies to develop and carry out alternative education for at-risk youth. This section authorizes $15 million a year for FY 2002 through 2004.

Sec. 402. Transfer of School Disciplinary Records

This section requires a State that receives federal funds to have a procedure to facilitate the transfer of disciplinary records by local educational agencies to any private or public elementary school or secondary school.

Subtitle B—Character Education

Sec. 411. National Character Achievement Award

This section establishes a National Character Achievement Award for students who distinguish themselves as models of good character.

Sec. 421–424. Preventing Juvenile Delinquency through Character Education

This section authorizes $100 million for the Secretary of HHS, in consultation with the Attorney General, to award grants to eligible community organizations and carry out alternative education for youth. Character education is defined as an organized educational program that works to reinforce core elements of character, including caring, civic virtue and citizenship, the respect, responsibility, and trustworthiness.

Sec. 431–434. Counseling, Training, and Mentoring Children of Prisoners

This section authorizes $25 million for the Attorney General to award grants to community-based organizations providing counseling, training, and mentoring services to America’s most at-risk children and youth in low-income and high-crime communities who have a parent or legal guardian that is incarcerated in a Federal, State, or local correctional facility. Such services will include drug prevention counseling; academic tutoring; online computer academic programs that focus on the development and reinforcement of basic literacy skills; job skills and vocational training; and confidence building mentoring services.

TITLE V: REESTABLISHMENT OF DRUG COURTS

Sec. 501. Reauthorization of Drug Courts

This section reauthorizes the drug court programs that provide continuing judicial supervision over non-violent offenders with substance abuse problems who are sentenced to non-violent offenders to enter treatment programs as an alternative to prison. Authorizes $50 million to be appropriated in 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for 2003–2004.

TITLE VI: PROGRAM FOR SUCCESSFUL REENTRY OF CRIMINAL OFFENDERS INTO LOCAL COMMUNITIES

Sec. 601–618. Federal Reentry Demonstration Projects

This section authorizes demonstration projects in Federal judicial districts, the District of Columbia, States, and in the Federal Bureau of Prisons using new strategies and emerging technologies that alleviate the public safety risk posed by released prisoners by promoting their successful reintegration into the community. This section also establishes court-based programs to monitor the return of offenders into communities, which include drug treatment and aftercare, mental and medical health treatment, vocational and educational training. Each program uses court sanctions and incentives to promote positive behavior and graduated levels of supervision within the community corrections facility to promote community safety.

TITLE VII: ASSISTANCE BY RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS

Sec. 701. Assistance by Religious Organizations

This section provides that the government shall consider, on the same basis as other non-governmental organizations, faith-based organizations to provide the assistance under all programs established by this bill, as long as the program is implemented in a manner consistent with the First Amendment.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today I join with Senator HATCH and Senators BIDEN, DEWINE, and THURMOND to introduce the Drug Abuse Education, Prevention, and Treatment Act of 2001. This bill provides a comprehensive approach to drug treatment, prevention, and enforcement. It is my hope that the bipartisan legislation established by this legislation will assist all of our States in their efforts to address the drug problems that most affect our communities.

No community is immune from the ravages of drug abuse. My own State of Vermont has one of the lowest crime rates in the nation, yet we are experiencing serious troubles because of the abuse of heroin and other drugs. Recent estimates indicate that heroin use in Vermont has almost doubled in the last three years, and the number of people seeking drug treatment has risen even more rapidly. The average age of a first-time heroin user dropped from 27 to 17 during the 1990s, signaling a sharp rise in teenage drug abuse. The consequences of this rise have made themselves all too clear over the past months.

On January 3, Christal Jones, a 16-year-old girl from Burlington, was murdered in New York City. According to new reports presented in Burlington to move to New York and doted or reduced because of lack of effectiveness.

upon those important efforts by providing a substantial boost for treatment, law enforcement, and prevention, both in Vermont and across the nation. It contains numerous grant programs to aid States and local communities in their efforts to combat and treat drug abuse. Of particular interest to the residents of my State, it establishes drug treatment grants for rural States and authorizes money for residential treatment centers for mothers addicted to heroin, methamphetamine, or other drugs.

This legislation will also help States and communities reduce drug use in prisons through testing and treatment, an effort I proposed in the Drug Free Prisons Act I introduced in the last Congress. It will provide funding for programs designed to reduce recidivism through funding drug treatment and other services for former prisoners after release. In addition, this bill will reauthorize drug courts another step I proposed in the Drug Free Prisons Act and create juvenile drug courts.

Finally, the bill directs the Sentencing Commission to review and amend penalties for a number of drug crimes involving children. For example, its provisions would increase the mandatory minimums for those surrounding the death of Chistal Jones, the bill instructs the Sentencing Commission to amend its guidelines to provide for any necessary sentencing enhancement for criminals who distribute drugs to minors in order to lure a minor into or keep a minor engaged in prostitution or other criminal activity.

In short, there are programs in this legislation to benefit all Americans whose lives are disrupted by drug abuse in their families and communities. I strongly recommend this bipartisan bill to my colleagues, and hope that we can move quickly to make it law.

As I stated earlier, I have worked to provide necessary funding for treatment, prevention, and enforcement efforts in Vermont. Last year, I secured $150,000 for the Vermont Coalition of Teen Centers, $400,000 for the Vermont Drug Task Force, $150,000 for an adolescent treatment facility, two grants worth $500,000 for a balanced and restorative justice project, $1.7 million in Byrne law enforcement grants, two grants worth $560,000 to reduce underage drinking, about $752,000 for Drug Free Communities Support throughout Vermont, and $274,535 for Residential Substance Abuse Treatment, RSAT, programs in the Vermont Corrections Department. In 1999, I worked to procure $270,611 for RSAT programs for Vermont prisons and jails, $75,000 for the Vermont Coalition of Teen Centers and an additional $74,976 for the Essex Teen Center, two grants worth $600,000 to combat underage drinking, and about $172,000 for Drug Free Communities Support programs throughout Vermont. And in 1998, I helped secure $249,864 for balanced and restorative justice programs, $274,938 for RSAT programs, $1.9 million in Byrne law enforcement grants, $560,000 to combat drunk driving, and $424,494 in a Safe Kids/Safe Streets grant.

This legislation will provide additional ways that Vermont and other States can benefit from federal assistance to prevent drug abuse and drug-related crime. I would like to describe in more detail some of its most important aspects.

This bill authorizes a wide variety of treatment and prevention programs. Treatment and prevention efforts are often overshadowed by law enforcement needs. Indeed, a recent study by the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, CASA, showed that of every dollar States spent on substance abuse and addiction, only four cents went to prevention and treatment. The States and the Federal government have undeniably important law enforcement obligations to balance those obligations with far-sighted efforts to prevent drug crimes from happening in the first place.

As I have said, heroin is an increasing problem. In other States, methamphetamines or other drugs present a growing challenge. This legislation will help States address their most pressing drug problems, and places a particular emphasis on States that may not have the resources to address their treatment and prevention needs in the past. Indeed, among many other provisions, the bill offers funding for rural States like Vermont to establish or enhance treatment centers. It instructs the Inspector General of the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment to make grants to public and nonprofit private entities that provide treatment and are approved by State experts. This will allow the Vermont agencies looking to provide heroin treatment or to prevent heroin abuse in the first place to acquire Federal funding to help in their efforts.

The Drug Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act also authorizes funding for residential treatment centers that treat mothers who are addicted to heroin, methamphetamines, or other drugs. This will help mothers and the children who depend on them to rebuild their lives it will keep families together. And I hope it will help avoid further stories like one that appeared in last Sunday’s edition of the Burlington Free Press, in which a young mother told a reporter how heroin “made it easier for [her] to take care of [her] kids.”

The bill also calls for funding drug treatment programs for juveniles. As the tragic story of Chistal Jones and the disturbing reports about other girls in her situation about juveniles who can see their lives quickly deteriorate under the influence of drugs. This is why I have worked to provide Vermont with funding to establish a long-term residential treatment facility for adolescents. I hope to continue that effort through this bill, in the hope that we may be able to prevent future tragedies.

Our efforts here must include reducing the lure of drugs, and educating our kids and making sure they have recreational alternatives are two key components. In light of that, this bill authorizes grants to carry out school- and community-based drug education programs, with priority given to rural and urban areas experiencing drug problems. It provides additional funding for after-school programs. Finally, it authorizes funding to establish demonstration projects of alternative education for at-risk youths. These steps should improve the quality and availability of drug education and prevention efforts throughout the United States.

In addition to providing additional funds for treatment and prevention, the bill directs the United States Sentencing Commission to review existing criminal penalties and provide any necessary increases for drug crimes involving juveniles. In particular, the Sentencing Commission must review the current penalties for distributing drugs to minors, using minors to distribute drugs, trafficking near a school, and using Federal property to grow or manufacture controlled substances. I would like to highlight one provision in particular in my comments today.

This bill calls for the Sentencing Commission to amend its guidelines to provide for a specific sentencing enhancement for anyone who distributes drugs to or uses them to lure a minor into or keep a minor engaged in prostitution or other criminal activity. Let me explain why this provision matters. If the law enforcement officials investigating the death of Chistal Jones find that the person or people who brought her to New York and prostituted her were giving or selling her heroin to entice her, the punishment should be more severe. This provision will give prosecutors an additional tool to fight such odious crimes.

I would also like to commend the approach taken in the criminal provisions in this legislation. Instead of imposing mandatory minimums, we have invested discretion in the Sentencing Commission to determine appropriate penalties. A 1997 study by the RAND Corporation of mandatory minimum drug sentences found that “mandatory minimums are not justifiable on the basis of cost-effectiveness at reducing drug consumption, reducing recidivism rates, drug-related crime.” Despite this study and mounting evidence of prison overcrowding, legislators continue to propose additional mandatory minimums. In light of the persistence of that idea, this legislation calls for a new study of the issue, including whether mandatory minimums have a disproportionate impact on any racial or ethnic groups and whether they are an appropriate vehicle to punish non-violent offenders.

Last year I introduced the Drug Free Prisons Act, which authorized grants to States to facilitate treatment and testing programs in prisons and jails.
This bill provides resources to achieve the same goal. It is critical that our prisons be drug-free, both because lawbreaking within our correctional system is a national embarrassment, and because prisoners who are released while still addicted to drugs are more likely to commit future crimes than prisoners who are released sober. This bill will provide needed help to address drug abuse in prisons throughout the country. It authorizes $50 million for prisons and $150 million in bonus grants, allowing States to use Residential Substance Abuse Treatment, RSAT, grants to provide services for inmates or former inmates, and authorizes funding for substance abuse treatment in Federal prisons.

As Joseph Califano, Jr., the president of CASA and former secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, told the National Press Club last month: “The next great opportunity to reduce crime is to provide treatment and training for alcohol and drug abuse offenders who will return to a life of criminal activity unless they leave prison substance free and, upon release, enter treatment and continuing aftercare. This legislation will accomplish these goals.

A prior CASA study found that drug and alcohol abuse was implicated in the crimes and incarceration of 80 percent of those currently serving time in America’s prisons. This finding shows that we have a prison population that has a history of substance abuse, and will seek out opportunities to continue using drugs while imprisoned. Of course, if prisoners are using drugs in prison, this will create serious behavioral and other problems that corrections officers will have to address, at no small risk to them.

The problem does not end there. The same CASA study shows that inmates who are illegal drug and/or alcohol abusers are the most likely to be repeat offenders. In fact, the study concluded that 61 percent of state prison inmates who have two prior convictions are regular drug users. The strong link between drug use and recidivism cannot be ignored. Prison should provide an opportunity for us to break this cycle and therefore reduce crime. We can do this through a concerted effort to test prisoners for drug use and penalize those who test positive to ensure that prisoners are drug-free, so that prisoners can lead productive, non-criminal lives upon their release.

This approach to reducing drug use and addiction in prisons has the support of Jim Walton, Vermont’s Commissioner of Public Safety, and John Perry, the Director of Planning for the Vermont Department of Corrections, who work with these issues every day. I have always valued their counsel, as they have first-hand knowledge of the real needs of the Vermont state. They both feel strongly that the bill will give law enforcement the tools it needs to test and treat offender populations, both in jail and in the community. I hope and expect that this bill will have the same effect across the country.

In addition to providing funding for drug treatment and testing in prisons, this bill also reauthorizes the proposal made by Senator BIDEN in both this Congress and the last that would provide funding for Federal and State programs designed to ease the transition of criminal offenders back into society after their release. It establishes court-based programs to monitor the return of offenders into communities. These programs include drug treatment and aftercare, mental and medical health treatment, vocational and educational training, life skills instructions, and assistance in obtaining suitable affordable housing. Each program uses court sanctions and incentives to promote positive behavior and graduated levels of supervision within the community corrections facility to promote community safety. I commend Senator BIDEN for his leadership on this program.

The bill also re-establishes the drug courts program and re-authorizes funding for it, as I proposed in last year’s majority rebellion that completely repealed the authorization of the drug courts program in the Omnibus Consolidated Rescissions and Appropriations Act of 1996, in an apparent attempt to discredit Democratic programs. But Senator HATCH was right to think that dealing with drug abuse should not be used as political footballs. That is why the Congress has continued to fund drug courts in every year’s appropriations acts. This has been the right decision, and we should undo the repeal.

Drug courts provide the opportunity to deal systematically with nonviolent drug offenders at a substantial savings to taxpayers. Instead of jailing these nonviolent offenders, the courts can provide alternative punishments that are mixed with mandatory testing and drug treatment and human services such as education or vocational training. Meanwhile, imprisonment is held out as a stick to ensure good behavior. To qualify for federal assistance, a drug court program must mandate periodic drug testing during any supervised release or probation periods, provide drug abuse treatment for each participant, and hold out the possibility of progressive drug court participation for noncompliance or failure to show satisfactory process. Violent offenders are defined quite broadly, so we can be confident that we are not funding programs that put dangerous people back on the streets.

In addition to reauthorizing drug courts for adults, this legislation authorizes the Attorney General to provide grants to State and local governments to establish juvenile drug courts, extending the drug court model that has shown significant promise in dealing with adult offenders to juveniles. Juvenile drug courts should provide a way to reach out to younger offenders before they turn to a life of crime, helping to save both lives and significant government resources.

Finally, I would like to comment on the inclusion of charitable choice language in this legislation to allow religious groups to compete for grants on the same basis as other groups. Although the language in this bill mirrors language that was passed in the Children’s Health Act last year as well as in previous legislation, I have serious reservations about it. I know that many of my colleagues share these reservations.

Charitable choice is going to be a significant issue during this Congress. I would have preferred that we have hearings about charitable choice before including it in this bill, and I made my feelings known to Senator HATCH. I asked him to introduce the bill without the language and consider adding it later if specific language could be crafted for which there was bipartisan support. But Senator HATCH was committed to including this language in the bill as introduced. Let me be clear: its inclusion here does not represent my endorsement. As this legislation is considered by the Committee and the full Senate, I hope we will use this opportunity to think about the approach taken here. I intend to work with Senator HATCH and the other sponsors of the bill to ensure that the important protections and prohibitions of the First Amendment are fully respected. And at the very least, we need to ensure that those who receive federal drug treatment and prevention funds are trained professionals, and that the government funds are not used in any way, directly or indirectly, to support or promote discrimination.

At the same time, I believe that this bill, taken as a whole, will do a great deal of good. While charitable choice language is in this bill today, I have made no commitment to having this choice language in the bill when Congress passes it. My commitment is to help improve drug treatment, prevention, and education throughout the United States.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD two newspaper articles.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(From the Rutland Daily Herald (VT), Jan. 36, 2007)

NOW IS THE TIME

It is time for Vermont lawmakers to take the initiative in pushing for a comprehensive anti-drug program that will respond constructively to the increased use of dangerous drugs in Vermont.

Major drug busts in the Rutland area, as well as a rise in crimes related to drug addiction, have pointed to the heroin problem in this region. City leaders have taken needed steps to bolster efforts by city police to address the problem, and Mayor John Cassetto has offered a tax proposal that would provide necessary funding in the future.

Statewide, the use of heroin has probably doubled in the past three years. The number of Vermonters seeking treatment rose from 164 to 344 in that time. That number doesn’t take into account the users who don’t seek treatment.

The Vermont State Police have made a compelling case for boosting manpower, which has declined substantially in the past eight years. And Gov. Howard Dean has made the fight against heroin one of his priorities. But so far, there has been no increase in the number of public health workers to address the problem. The Legislature ought to use this moment to take Dean’s initiative further.

Dean is well known for his punitive attitude toward drugs and for his lack of faith in the efficacy of treatment for drug users. But aggressive treatment, combined with aggressive law enforcement, has not been tried. And at this late date in the war on drugs, we ought to realize that law enforcement alone has not done the job.

Law enforcement agencies at the local and state levels can use a boost in resources and manpower. But so can agencies that treat addicts. Effective treatment is labor-intensive and could be made available to people both inside and outside of the state’s corrections system.

Mental health workers know that drug addiction is not an easy affliction to cure. Addicts sometimes want no part of treatment. But the state could establish institutions that would be more effective in reaching people who need help. Drug courts could establish a regimen of treatment that would expose people in state custody to the kind of help they may never have seen before.

Dean has promised to move quickly to set up clinics for drug treatment, following passage last year of legislation allowing for methadone treatment. But as Dean has often said, methadone alone will not solve the problem. Methadone needs to be part of a larger program of treatment.

As of last week, only two hospitals in Vermont had expressed interest in establishing methadone clinics. Rutland Regional Medical Center is waiting to determine what resources will be available and what kind of program the regulations will establish. Health care facilities such as RRMC need to be given the support and the resources to do the job.

Vermont is a small enough state that it could pioneer methods for treating drug problems that go beyond the obvious first step of locking people up. It would be in the state’s interest to do so both to prevent the kind of crime and dereliction that is a drain on any community and to rescue Vermonters who are currently caught in a deadly appeal of drugs.

A package that included both law enforcement and treatment measures might draw bipartisan support. Vermonters are not helpless before the scourge of drug addiction if they have the will to act.

Vt. Teen’s Death Ruled Homicide
(By Sam Hemingway)

Christal Jean Jones, the 16-year-old Bur-lington girl found dead in a Bronx apartment on Jan. 3, was the victim of a homicide, according to New York City’s top medical officer.

“The cause of death was asphyxiation, and the manner of death is homicide,” said Lisa Girard, spokesperson for the New York City Medical Examiner’s Office, confirmed Tuesday.

“The medical examiner relied on police investigation and toxicology tests to reach his conclusion,” Girard said. Jones was smothered.

Jones’ mother, Kathleen Wright, received the news during an emotional 11:30 a.m. phone call Tuesday from Borakove’s office. “It’s just what I expected,” a weeping Wright said after hanging up the phone. “She was injected with drugs and then she was killed.”

Local and federal authorities say Jones was part of a prostitution ring operating out of an apartment in the Hunts Point section of the Bronx last fall and this winter. Authorities also say drugs, particularly heroin, were involved.

As many as 200 Vermonters, women in the custody of the state Social & Rehabili-tation Services department at the time, have been involved, say some of the teens who have traveled to New York, their parents and authorities.

Gov. Howard Dean has ordered an investiga-tion into SRS’s handling of the girls’ cases.

Jose Rodriguez, a part-time Vermont resi-dent with a criminal record here, is being held on $100,000 bail in a New York City pris-on because New York officials suspect he might be involved in Jones’ death. However, Rodriguez has been in jail since Dec. 11, when he was arrested on two charges of pro-moting prostitution and one charge of statu-tory rape involving another Vermont teen-age.

At prosecutors’ request his initial bail of $10,000 was increased to $100,000.

“Our sympathy goes out the (Jones) family,” said Dennis Thomas, a court-appointed attorney, said Tuesday. “We don’t wish that on anybody, especially a young girl.”

He said Rodriguez has cooperated fully with authorities and knows nothing about Christal Jones’ death.

“He’s in jail. Obviously, we know he didn’t do it,” said Thomas.

When he was told Tuesday that the medical examiner had ruled Jones’ death a homicide, Sachs called the District Attorney’s Office.

He was assured, he said, “there is no Christal Jones case, and there is no accusa-tion that my client is involved.”

“Nobody has ever seen him” in the Zerega Avenue apartment in which Jones was killed, Sachs said. “It’s not his apartment. He has no connection to this apartment. Where these girls live, or don’t—he doesn’t know.”

However, in the police affidavit outlining the prostitution and rape charges against Rodriguez, District Attorney’s Office Sean Iannucci said the victim said the crimes were committed at the apartment where Jones’ body was found.

If convicted, Sachs said, Rodriguez faces a maximum jail term of four years for the rape charge and 15 years for each of two prostitu-tion charges.

Investigators who have interviewed wit-nesses and some of those involved say Rodrigo-spite was intimately linked to the girls and a prostitution network.

“I will kill you if you try to leave; I know people in Vermont and New York.”

Rodríguez was said to have told two of the Vermont girls before his arrest. Police also said he beat one of the girls after learning she had tried to call a family member for help.

Since Jones’ death, many of those involved have gone into hiding. Some parents of the girls known to frequent New York won’t talk. When approached, they crack the door only to say they worry about what their daughters are. Their fear is palpable.

In the Old North End and the King Street area of Burlington, Jones’ death—and life—would be painful knowledge once aware of the extent of heroin use and the hold the drug has over their neighbors.

Borakove; spokeswoman for the New York City Medical Examiner’s Office, confirmed Tuesday.

The medical examiner relied on police investigation and toxicology tests to reach his conclusion. Borakove said Jones was smothered.

“While an initial cause of death was ruled an apparent overdose, a contributing factor in her death,” Borakove said.

say there is no easy resolution to the prob-lem and for the spread of a number of communicable diseases, including AIDS and Hepatitis C. And a study by the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University showed that 32 out of ten cases of child abuse and neglect are caused or exacerbated by substance abuse and addiction.

Another CASA study released last week revealed that for each dollar that States spend on substance-abuse re-lated programs, 96 cents goes to dealing with the consequences of substance abuse and only four cents to preventing and treating it. Investing more in preven-tion and treatment is cost-effective because it will reduce the costs of the street crime, child abuse, domestic vio-lence, and other social ills that can result from substance abuse.
The bill I am introducing today with Senators HATCH, LEAHY, DEWINE and THURMOND authorizes more than $900 million a year for prevention and treatment programs to reduce the criminal justice, health care, and human costs associated with substance abuse.

We know that if someone gets through age 21 without smoking, abusing alcohol, or using drugs, they are unlikely ever to have a substance abuse problem. That is why prevention programs are vital. This bill provides $200 million a year in grants to drug prevention programs like those run by the Boys and Girls Clubs and by law enforcement through the DARE program to get the message out to kids that drugs can ruin their lives.

While there is good news that overall drug use has stabilized among students, there is also bad news—use of Ecstasy by high school seniors has increased more than 66 percent. Prevention programs funded by this Act will get the message out to kids that drugs like Ecstasy are incredibly dangerous—even if their friends or a cover story in the New York Times Magazine might make it seem like it is "no big deal." Studies show that Ecstasy can damage regions in the brain responsible for thought and memory. If that isn't a big deal, I don't know what it is.

This bill also authorizes additional funding for drug treatment, which is desperately needed. Every year since 1989, I have published my own drug reform report, each of which has advocated a three-prong approach to address the drug problem—prevention, treatment and enforcement. I have always urged more money for treatment because it always gets the short end of the stick.

Drug addiction is a chronic relapsing disease. And as with other chronic relapsing diseases—such as diabetes, hypertension and asthma—there is no cure, although a number of treatments can control the disease. According to an article published in the Journal of the American Medical Association in October, the rate of adherence to the treatment program and the relapse rate are similar for drug addiction and other chronic diseases—meaning that treatment for addiction works just as well as treatment for other chronic relapsing diseases.

Unfortunately, only two million of the estimated five million people who need treatment are receiving it. The Drug Abuse Education, Prevention and Treatment Act takes steps to close this "treatment gap" by targeting drug treatment to rural and economically depressed areas, funding adolescent treatment and residential treatment centers for women with children, and increasing funding for the National Institute on Drug Abuse—whose brilliant scientists conduct 85 percent of the world's research on drug abuse—to conduct clinical trials on new treatments for addiction.

The bill also reauthorizes two key programs created in the 1994 Biden Crime Law that fund prison-based drug treatment in the state and federal systems.

Providing treatment to criminal offenders is not "soft"; it is smart crime prevention policy as the Key and Crest programs in my home state of Delaware have shown. Most drug addicted offenders before they are released, they will return to our streets with the same addiction problem that got them in trouble in the first place, and they are likely to re-offend. This is not my opinion; it is fact. In 2000, the Federal Sentencing Guidelines noted that five or more prior convictions have been habitual drug users, compared to approximately 40 percent of first-time offenders. Re-authorizing prison-based treatment programs is a good investment and an important crime prevention initiative.

This legislation would also re-authorize the drug court program, a program I have championed and introduced legislation to reauthorize. The Federal Government has funded drug courts since 1989, and these programs provide a new, innovative way to deal with non-violent offenders who need drug treatment. Rather than just penning people through the revolving door of the criminal justice system, drug courts provide a path to help and support programs so they won't be back. When they graduate from drug court programs they are clean and sober and more prepared to participate in society. In order to graduate, they are required to finish school, hold down a job, and keep up with financial obligations, including drug-court fees and child-support payments.

Drug courts have been proven effective at keeping offenders with little previous treatment history in treatment, providing closer supervision than other community programs to which the offenders could be assigned, reducing crime and being cost-effective.

According to the Department of Justice, drug courts save at least $5,000 per offender each year in prison costs alone. That says nothing of the savings associated with future crime prevention and freeing scarce prison beds for violent criminals. But most important, more than 500 drug-free babies have been born to female drug court participants, a sizable victory for society and the budget alike.

This Act also includes my "Offender Reentry and Reintegration Safety Act of 2001," which creates demonstration programs to oversee the reintegration of high-risk, high-needs offenders into society upon release. These individuals have served their prison sentences, but they pose the greatest risk of re-offending because they lack the education, job skills, stable family or living arrangements, and the substance abuse treatment and other mental and medical health services they need to successfully re-integrate into society.

According to the Department of Justice, 1.25 million offenders are now living in prisons and another 600,000 offenders are incarcerated in local jails. A record number of those inmates—nearly 590,000—will return to communities this year. Historically, two-thirds of returning prisoners have been re-arrested for new crimes within three years.

The safety threat posed by this number of prisoner returns has been exacerbated by the fact that states and communities can't possibly properly supervise all their returning offenders. In fact, parole systems have been abolished in thirteen States, and policy makers have turned to more determinate sentencing have reduced the courts' authority to impose supervisory conditions on offenders returning to their communities.

The demonstration reentry programs created by this bill would help supervise these people when they are released from jail and make sure they get the mental health, substance abuse and other services they need so that they won't go back to a life of crime and can begin productive meaningful lives.

I believe that the Drug Abuse Education, Prevention and Treatment Act is a good piece of legislation. Strong treatment and prevention programs are a vital part of a comprehensive drug strategy. Forestalling drug abuse and treating it when it occurs is sensible policy in terms of saving money, preventing crime and sparing lives. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

By Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire:
S. 305. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to remove the reduction in the amount of Survivor Benefit Plan annuities at age 62, to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I am delighted today to rise to discuss President Bush's commitment to strengthening America's national security. I know this is a matter that is very close to the heart of my colleague in the Chair, the Senator from Oklahoma. President Bush often said during the campaign to the military that "help is on the way." It is nice to know that help has arrived.

The President is spending this week traveling to military installations to see and hear, for the first time since assuming office, the needs of the military.

I can tell you, having just come back a few weeks ago from visiting the troops, marines and sailors aboard the U.S.S. Nassau in the Mediterranean, that they appreciate it when anybody from the Government comes to visit them where they are on location. Clearly, for the President of the United States to go directly to a military facility and look the troops in the eye and tell them that help is coming says a lot about the President. And believe me, it will do a lot for the morale of the troops.

The President is going to be traveling to additional military installations this week to see and hear just what the needs are as those needs are addressed by the men and women who serve.

He is committed to address these urgent needs, and specifically pay raises, housing, benefits, and the like. I fully support him in that effort. I believe for the last 8 years our military has suffered.

I might just say it is nice to hear a President talking about strengthening the military. The needs of our military in the last 8 years have not been funded, and our military has been over-extended for too many peacekeeping missions for which it was neither trained nor equipped.

In addition to that, oftentimes these missions were conducted without being budgeted, which forced the dollars to come out of the hides of the men and women who serve in terms of readiness and other accounts.

As the Senator in the Chair understands full well, our military readiness is at low. Planes are not flying for lack of spare parts and numerous accidents. Two Army helicopters crashed yesterday. Ships aren’t sailing for lack of fuel. Soldiers aren’t training for lack of ammunition.

I remember looking a young marine in the eye in the U.S.S. Nassau a couple of weeks ago and asking him if he needed anything other than a little more money. He said: Yes, I would like to have that, but I also would appreciate it, Senator, if you could give me some ammunition for this very gun that I need to fire. We don’t have even dummy rounds to practice for this particular weapon. He showed me the weapon. I was shocked by that, frankly.

But, again, let me reassure our military that help is on the way. I think it has arrived.

Like the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, my friend Senator WARNER, I support this effort by the administration to complete a top-bottom assessment of the military. I think it is important when we do that assessment to do it on the basis of what the needs are and understand that we are doing it for that reason—to assess the needs and not to come to some foregone conclusion and then prove it with your top-to-bottom assessment. We need to be sure we are buying the right weapons for the right threats.

The United States has a strong economy and a great open society. Unfortunately, it is the only remaining superpower in the world. That also makes us a target for those who oppose our values of life and our liberties. The world is not a friendly place. We see violence and war every night on the news.

I do not know if people realize it, but when you go and talk to the men and women out there, their lives are on the line every day. I stood on the bridge of the U.S.S. Nassau in Malta and watched a small Maltese Navy gunboat circling around that ship 24 hours a day to keep guard so that no terrorists could get to that ship. Oftentimes, as we found with the U.S.S. Cole, we didn’t have that kind of security from the host country.

So weapons of mass destruction—nuclear, chemical, and biological—continue to proliferate around the world. The hands of aggressors and domineering powers might, in desperation, choose to oppose us and, worst of all, fall into the hands of terrorists.

We face new threats, such as cyberattacks on our command and control new and vulnerable civil infrastructure. Our military needs to think through these new defense challenges and architect the right force for our Nation for the new century. I will give the administration the time it needs to work through these issues as they present a new budget.

As a member of the Emerging Threats Subcommittee and Strategic Forces Subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I fully appreciate the challenges that President Bush and Secretary Rumsfeld face as they try to rebuild our military and simultaneously set us on the right course for this new century.

It is not going to be an easy job. There are a lot of needs. We have a lot of things to do. In the meantime, like Chairman WARNER, I expect a new administration will be requesting a supplemental. But that is not my decision to make. I am hopeful that will be the case.

There is no better way to understand the needs of our military than to get out of Washington and visit them. As I said, I salute the President for doing that. I went on the U.S.S. Nassau, and one of the sailors walked up to me and said: Senator, is there any reason why a member of the United States Navy like me who is an E2 cannot get sea pay? I am serving aboard ship, and everybody from E4 and above gets sea pay, and those of us at E1, E2, and E3 don’t.

We are going to take care of that. That matter has already been brought to the attention of the chairman of the Armed Services Committee in the Senate as well as the relevant committees in the House of Representatives.

But it felt good to be back at sea. It reminded me of my service aboard the U.S.S. Nassau during the Vietnam war. I feel so good enough to reenlist, but it was a great time. There were 13 members of the U.S. Navy and Marines on board from New Hampshire.

We listened, had lunch, and we talked. They deserve our support. They deserve recognition today to eliminate the military survivor’s benefit penalty.

Mr. President, this legislation will repeal the existing reduction in the Survivor Benefit Plan spouses currently suffer when they reach the age of 62.

Today, after years of paying heavy premiums for this optional benefit, survivors of military retirees receive 55 percent of their spouses service pay prior to age 62. However, once these spouses reach age 62, their benefits are drastically reduced to only 35 percent. The overwhelming majority of these beneficiaries are women. This reduction in benefits will have a devastating effect on their quality of life.

In addition to eliminating this reduction in benefits which retired military spouses incur when they turn 62, spouses whose loved one passed away after their 62nd birthday will also receive full 55 percent.

Passage of this important legislation will bring the military Survivor Benefits Plan more in line with other Federal and civil servants employee health plans.

After a lifetime of sacrifice, we owe it to our military retirees to provide them with peace of mind that their spouse will be taken care of after their death.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to support our retirees and pass this legislation immediately.

One of the many important defense challenges President Bush and Secretary Rumsfeld face is protecting America’s lead in space activities. One of the main reasons the U.S. economy is so strong is our use of satellite capabilities to fuel our new information-based society.

Satellites support Americans every day, all the time, they support our weather forecasts, help hunters and boaters navigate, provide pagers and phones that can communicate with travelers anywhere on the surface of the earth, and allow farmers to check on their crops and fields.

Our soldiers, sailors, and airmen also rely on space assets. Accordingly, the utilization of space will also be at the forefront of our national security agenda during this century, and I will work to ensure that America expands its leadership in this military arena.

To help the nation better posture for that future challenge, I authored the provision in the FY2000 Defense Authorization Act that created a commission 2 years ago called the “Commission to Assess National Security Space Management and Organization,” more commonly known today as the Space Commission.

Coincidentally, the chairman chosen last year to lead that commission became our new Secretary of Defense—Donald Rumsfeld.

Last month, they finished their work, and I commend Secretary Rumsfeld, the commissioners, and the staff for their outstanding work, and for thoroughly pulling together a great deal of research and data.

The Commission’s findings confirm my long-held view of the growing importance of space to the nation and my belief that management and organization reforms are urgently needed as America’s commercial, civil, and military reliance on space assets expands.

The Commission’s recommendations lay the foundations for what I have often maintained—military space activities should evolve to the eventual creation of a separate Space Force.

The United States has shown the world the value of space in providing information superiority on the modern battlefield and employee health plans.

As we move into the new century, we need to: Defend our current space-based information superiority; be able to deny our adversaries that same capability (thorough programs I have long supported like KE-SAT and Clementine); and leverage the uniqueness of space to be able to rapidly project military force around the world (thorough programs I have long supported like Space Plans).

We need a strong advocate for space to fight for and justify these new space programs needed for the 21st century in competition with many other pressing military investment requirements.

Near-term management and organization reforms recommended by the Commission will begin to put in place the leadership and advocacy for space programs that have long been lacking.

Another of the many defense challenges President Bush and Secretary Rumsfeld face is protecting America from missile attack.

I salute the administration’s commitment to deploying a robust missile defense for this nation. Many Americans salute the United States does not have a defense against a missile attack today.

Meanwhile, for years, Russia has deployed various missile defenses around Moscow and other sites which has been ignored by ABM Treaty proponents. These missiles could carry weapons of mass destruction—a nuclear, chemical, or biological warhead that could wreak havoc on a U.S. city. We have a constitutional responsibility to defend the American people from missile attack.

With such a threat hanging over our leader’s head, it is impossible to contemplate engaging globally in the best interest of the United States—no President would risk a U.S. city to come to the aid of an ally.

Worst yet, countries like China and North Korea continue to proliferate missile technology to rogue nations.

I am pleased that the President and his Cabinet have been so pro-active in explaining this important issue to our allies.

A U.S. missile defense system, both theater and national is not intended as a threat to any nation. It is intended to defend America, and we have a duty to deploy such a defense.

While I salute the military’s efforts to develop a near-term missile-defense capability, I want to work with the administration to ensure we have a robust Homeland Defense concept that includes the current land-based concept with sea-, air-, and space-based systems to eliminate this threat to U.S. cities and our deployed forces.

Today, President Bush visited the only NATO facility on U.S. soil at the Joint Forces Command at Norfolk, VA. President Bush watched an allied U.S.-NATO coordinated response to a simulated missile attack.

I understand the President commented “Pretty exciting technology, it’s going to get better.” I agree that this technology is only going to get better. America needs to make a commitment to protect it’s citizens from threats that come on a missile, including biological and chemical weapons.

I look forward to working with the new administration, President Bush and Secretary Rumsfeld, to rebuild our military and set America back on the right course for the new century.

Let me assure the military, help has arrived.

Finally, continuing on the area of missile defense, this is a very important challenge faced by Secretary Rumsfeld and Secretary Rumsfeld in protecting the United States. Over the last several years, I have been involved in so many debates on the floor, so many discussions. I know the Senator from Oklahoma has as well, We are trying to save a national missile defense program only to have it put off with some wordsmoothing or delay. I salute President Bush’s commitment to deploying a robust missile defense for this Nation. It is immoral not to do it.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to support our new Secretary of Defense—Donald Rumsfeld. Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to make sure our new Secretary of Defense—Donald Rumsfeld—receives the credit he deserves so richly for coming up with that visionary promise of a missile defense system.

Russia has deployed various missile defenses around Moscow and other sites which have been ignored by the ABM Treaty proponents. I can remember seeing little tapes of President Reagan on his 90th birthday a few days ago. President Reagan on his 90th birthday for being the visionary he was on this issue. It was Ronald Reagan who really convinced Gorbachev that we could have ballistic missile defenses on our own soil. Where Ronald Reagan knew that this could be done. He was laughed at, still is to some extent on that issue. But 10, 15, 20 years from now, when we have this thing up and going and it is protecting our troops in the field, protecting our allies and protecting our own homeland, Ronald Reagan will get the credit he deserves so richly for coming up with that visionary promise of a missile defense system.

You have the right to your views, but our view is that we must protect ourselves and to defend this system and build this system, and we are going to do it.

In closing, I will just say I look forward to working with President Bush, working with my colleagues on the Armed Services Committee to improve our readiness, to improve pay for our military and benefits, to cut all of the excessive operations throughout the world that are not really related to defense and get our military morale back. It is going to be exciting, and I look forward to being a part of it.

I ask unanimous consent to print the text of the legislation in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 305

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the "Military Retiree Survivors Benefits Protection Act of 2001".

SEC. 2. REPEAL OF REDUCTION IN SBP ANNUITY FOR PERSONS DYING DURING A PERIOD OF SPECIAL ELIGIBILITY FOR SBP.
(a) COMPUTATION OF ANNUITY FOR A SPOUSE, FORMER SPOUSE, OR CHILD.—Subsection (a) of section 1451 of title 10, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking "shall be determined as follows:"

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking "shall be determined as follows:"

(b) ANNUITIES FOR SURVIVORS OF CERTAIN PERSONS DYING DURING A PERIOD OF SPECIAL ELIGIBILITY FOR SBP.—Subsection (c)(1) of such section is amended by striking "shall be determined as follows:"

(c) REPEAL OF REQUIREMENT FOR REDUCTION.—Such section is further amended by striking subsection (d).

(d) REPEAL OF UNNECESSARY SUPPLEMENTAL SBP.—Subsection III of chapter 73 of title 10, United States Code, is repealed.

(2) The table of contents at the beginning of such chapter is amended by striking the item "SUPPLEMENTAL SBP" and inserting the following:

SEC. 3. EFFECTIVE DATE.
This Act and the amendments made by section 2 shall take effect on October 1, 2001, and shall apply with respect to months beginning on or after that date.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from New Hampshire for his comments about the need for deployment of a national missile defense. I spoke to that subject this morning, when I talked about Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's remarks in Munich that were very well received by our allies. They had some concerns about the deployment of a national missile defense by the United States. But after his comments to them, they were very much reassured. While they still isn't the degree of support that we need and that we would like to have among our allies, I believe the consultations now occurring, and those that will occur in the future, primarily led by the President, will very well bring our allies to the same conclusions that we have reached; namely, that we need to get on with it and that they can participate in this kind of assistance to the extent they want to as well. I appreciate the comments of the Senator from New Hampshire. I spoke to that issue this morning.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:
S. 307. A bill to provide grants to State educational agencies and local educational agencies for the provision of classroom-related technology training for elementary and secondary school teachers; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today Representative Lois CAPPs and I are introducing legislation to help teachers use technology in their teaching, the Teacher Technology Training Act of 2001.

This bill has three major provisions: It authorizes $100 million for State education departments to award grants to local public school districts on the basis of need to train teachers in how to use technology.

It specifies that grants may be used to strengthen instruction and learning, provide professional development, and pay the costs of teacher training in using technology in the classroom.

It requires the Secretary of Education to evaluate the technology training programs for teachers developed by school districts within three years.

This bill is needed because teachers say they need to learn how to use computers and other technology in their teaching. A 1999 Education Week poll found that 27 percent of teachers have had no training in computers, 31 percent have had one to five hours, and 17 percent have had six to ten hours. This means that 75 percent of teachers have had less than ten hours of training in how to use computers. In a 1999 survey conducted by the U.S. Department of Education, only 23 percent of teachers said they felt "well prepared to integrate educational technology into instruction. "Most teachers want to learn, but they say it takes time and they need help," says Linda Roberts, Director of Educational Technology, U.S. Department of Education.

In many schools, the students know more about how to use computers than the teachers do. In one Kentucky school profiled by Inside Technology Training magazine, the students run the school's computer systems. The article quoted the school district's technology coordinator as saying that the students had "long surpassed" what the teachers could do and reported that one student had recently trained twen ty-five teachers. This bill will require experience using computers. Former U.S. Commerce Secretary William M. Daley has said, "Opportunities are now dependent upon a person's ability to use computers and engage in using the Internet." Q Weekly, "Digital Haves and Have NotS," April 17, 1999.

The economy of California is a case in point as it shifts away from manufacturing and toward higher-skill services and technology industries. Employers are placing a high premium on the computer skills necessary for these positions. Students are better prepared when their teachers are well trained. We cannot educate students for the increasingly technological workplace without trained teachers.

We have made great efforts to make technology available to students in their classrooms. Eighty percent of California's schools have Internet access.

But computers are of little value if people do not know how to use them and in school, they can become diversions or entertainment, instead of learning tools without trained teachers.

If we expect teachers to be effective, we must give them up-to-date skills, knowledge, and tools. This includes training.

By introducing this bill, I am not suggesting that technology will cure all for the problems in our schools. Technology is one of many teaching and learning tools. It can bring some efficiencies to learning, for example, providing a new way to do math and spelling drills, making learning to work with programming or access to information that without a computer is time-consuming and cumbersome to obtain.
We expect a great deal from our teachers and students. We must give them the resources they need. This bill is one step.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:
S. 308. A bill to award grants for school construction; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today, I am introducing the Excellence in Education Act of 2001.

The purpose of this bill is to: 1. reduce the size of schools; 2. reduce the size of classes; and 3. bring accountability to the use of these funds. The bill would create a matching grant program to build new schools to meet the following size requirements:

For kindergarten through 5th grade, not more than 500 students, for grades 6 through 8, not more than 750 students and for grades 9 through 12, not more than 1,500 students.

For kindergarten through 6th grade, not more than 20 students per teacher and for grades 7 through 12, not more than 28 students per teacher.

The bill authorizes $1 billion each year for the next five years for the U.S. Department of Education to award grants to local school districts. School districts would have to match federal funds with an equal amount. In addition to making the above reductions, school districts would be required to term providers of remedial education, and require that students be subject to state achievement standards in the core academic curriculum.

This bill will provide a new funding source for school districts or states to match to build new schools and reduce both school size and class size. There is no good estimate of how many schools would be needed to reduce schools and classes to the levels specified in the bill, but the bill is designed to make sure that there are too many large schools and large classes in public education today.

The U.S. Department of Education estimates that we need to build 6,000 new schools just to meet enrollment growth projections. This estimate does not take into account the need to cut class and school sizes. Consequently, the need for the funds my bill would authorize is huge.

Why do we need this bill? First, many of our schools are too big, especially in urban areas. The "shopping mall" high school is all too common. Some schools have as many as 4,000 students. In fact, half of American high school students go to schools that have 1,500 students or more.

Equally serious is the fact that our classes are too big. Even though we have begun to reduce class sizes in the lower grades in California, it still has some of the largest class sizes in the United States.

Studies show that student achievement improves when school and class sizes are reduced. The Oakland, California, school district plans to open 10 new small schools in the next few years. The Oakland tribune explained it like this on October 18, 2000: "Small schools are viewed as antidotes to huge, factory-like campuses commonplace in America's inner cities. Research has shown that small schools create intimate atmospheres for students and teachers."

The U.S. Department of Education cites studies that list these benefits of small schools: students have a greater sense of belonging; fewer discipline problems, lower drop-out rates, higher levels of student participation in higher graduation rates. (The School Administrator, October 1997). The nation's school administrators are calling for smaller, more personalized schools.

A Tennessee study called Project STAR placed 6,500 kindergartners in 330 classes of different sizes. The students stayed in small classes for four years and then returned to larger ones in the fourth grade. The test scores and behavior of students in the smaller classes were better than those of children in the larger classes. A similar study by Rand found that smaller classes benefit students from low-income families the most.

Teachers say that students in smaller classes pay better attention, ask more questions, and have fewer discipline problems. Smaller schools and smaller classes make a difference, it is clear.

California has some of the largest schools in the country. Los Angeles has some of the largest classes and schools in the world! Here are some examples in the Los Angeles area: Hawaiian Elementary, 1,365 students; South Gate Middle School, 4,422 students; Belmont High School, 4,874 students.

California also has some large classes, even though we have made great progress in reducing teacher-to-pupil ratios in the lower grades. Still today, many middle and high school English and math classes are very large, up to as many as 70 students.

The American public supports increased federal funding for school construction. The Rebuild American Coalition last year found that 82 percent of Americans favor federal spending for school construction; up from 74 percent in a 1998 National Education Association poll.

Every parent knows the importance of a small class in which the teacher can give individualized attention to a student. Every parent knows the importance of the sense of a community that can come with attending a small school. And every parent knows that big schools and big classes can be a stressful learning environment.

I hope my colleagues will join me today in passing this important education reform. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill and a summary be printed in the Record. The Senate has some objections as the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 308
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the "Excellence in Education Act of 2001".

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.
In this Act:
(1) CORE CURRICULUM.—The term "core curriculum" means curriculum in subjects such as reading and writing, language arts, mathematics, social sciences (including history), and science.

(2) ELEMENTARY SCHOOL; LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY; SECONDARY SCHOOL; SECRETARY.—The term "elementary school", "local educational agency", "secondary school", and "Secretary" have the meanings given in terms in section 8001 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7801).

(3) PRACTICE OF SOCIAL PROMOTION.—The term "practice of social promotion" means a formal or informal practice of promoting a student from the grade for which the determination is made to the next grade when the student fails to meet State achievement standards in the core academic curriculum, unless the practice is consistent with the student's individualized education program under section 1414(c) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1414(c)).

(4) CONSTRUCTION.—(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the term "construction" means—
(i) preparation of drawings and specifications for school facilities;
(ii) building new school facilities, or acquiring, remodeling, demolishing, renovating, improving, or repairing facilities to establish new school facilities; and
(iii) inspection and supervision of the construction of new school facilities.

(B) RULE.—An activity described in subparagraph (A) shall be considered to be construction only if the labor standards described in section 439 of the General Education Provisions Act (20 U.S.C. 1225) are applied with respect to such activity.

(5) SCHOOL FACILITY.—The term "school facility" means a public structure suitable for use as a classroom, laboratory, library, media center, or related facility the primary purpose of which is the instruction of public elementary school or secondary school students. The term does not include an athletic stadium or any other structure or facility intended primarily for athletic exhibitions, contests, or games for which admission is charged to the general public.

SEC. 3. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.
There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act $1,000,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2002 through 2006.

SEC. 4. PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.
The Secretary is authorized to award grants to local educational agencies to enable the local educational agencies to carry out the construction of new public elementary school and secondary school facilities.

SEC. 5. CONDITIONS FOR RECEIVING FUNDS.
In order to receive funds under this Act a local educational agency shall meet the following requirements:
(1) Reduce class and school sizes for public schools served by the local educational agency as follows:
   (A) Limit class size to an average student-to-teacher ratio of 20 to 1, in classes serving kindergarten through grade 6 students, in the schools served by the agency.
   (B) Limit class size to an average student-to-teacher ratio of 20 to 1, in classes serving grade 7 through grade 12 students, in the schools served by the agency.
   (C) Limit the size of public elementary schools and secondary schools served by the agency to—
      (i) not more than 500 students in the case of a school serving kindergarten through grade 6 students; and
      (ii) not more than 750 students in the case of a school serving grade 7 through grade 8 students; and
      (iii) not more than 1,500 students in the case of a school serving grade 9 through grade 12 students.
   (2) Terminate the practice of social promotion in the public schools served by the agency.
   (3) Require that students be subject to State achievement standards in the core curriculum, defined as subjects such as reading and writing, language arts, mathematics, and science, as determined by the State, for all kindergarten through grade 12 students.
   (4) Use tests and other indicators, such as grades and other evaluations, to assess student performance in meeting the State achievement standards, which tests shall be valid for the purpose of such assessment.
   (5) Provide remedial education for students who fail to meet the State achievement standards, including tutoring, mentoring, summer programs, before-school and after-school programs, and adult education programs.
   (6) Provide matching funds, with respect to the cost to be incurred in carrying out the activities for which the grant is awarded, from non-Federal sources in an amount equal to the Federal funds provided under the grant.

SEC. 6. APPLICATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Each local educational agency desiring to receive a grant under this Act shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time and in such manner as the Secretary may require.

(b) CONTENTS.—Each application shall contain—
   (1) an assurance that the grant funds will be used in accordance with this Act;
   (2) a brief description of the construction to be conducted;
   (3) a cost estimate of the activities to be conducted; and
   (4) a description of available non-Federal matching funds.

SUMMARY OF THE SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION GRANT BILL, THE EXCELLENCE IN EDUCATION ACT OF 2001

Funds authorized, purpose: Authorizes $5 billion over 5 years ($1 billion each year) for the U.S. Department of Education to award grants to local educational agencies to construct new school facilities from fiscal year 2002 to 2006.

Eligibility: Local educational agencies as defined in 1965 to specify the purposes for which funds provided under this part, and not to supplant such funds.”

The U.S. Department of Education has given states a guidance document that explains how Title I funds can currently be used. Permitted uses are for the following: instructional practices; counseling, mentoring; developing curricula; salaries; employee benefits; renting privately-owned facilities; janitorial services; utilities; childcare; training and professional development; equipment; interest on lease purchase agreements; travel and conferences; food and refreshments; insurance for vehicles; parent involvement activities.

Under this guidance document, only two uses are specifically prohibited: (1) construction or acquisition of real property; and (2) payment to parents to attend meetings, court hearings or to reimburse a parent for salary lost due to attendance at “parental involvement” meeting.

My reason for introducing this bill is this: Our students are not learning; our schools are failing our children. We must use our limited federal dollars for the fundamental purpose of education: to help students learn.

Just this week I learned that a January study by Education Weekly, titled “Quality Counts 2001: A Better Balance,” brought more bad news about California’s students. Here’s what the report found:

In fourth grade reading, 20 percent of students are proficient, and 52 percent are below the basic standard.

In eighth grade reading, 22 percent of students are proficient and 36 percent are below the basic standard.

Comparing California to other states, in how well fourth grade students read, California ranks 36 out of 39 states. In eighth grade reading, California ranks 32 out of 36 states.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:

S. 309. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to specify the purposes for which funds provided under Title I of part A of title I may be used; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today I am introducing a bill designed to build on the success of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (public schools), the “anchor” of Federal assistance to education. The fundamental purpose of education: to provide every child with a quality education. But unfortunately, the gap between our expectations and our performance is widening in the nation’s schools. Just this week I learned that a January study by Education Weekly, titled “Quality Counts 2001: A Better Balance,” brought more bad news about California’s students. Here’s what the report found:...
Nationally, the news is similarly distressing:
U.S. eighth graders are out-performed by their counterparts in math and science from Japan, Korea, Hong Kong and Singapore, Australia and Canada (Third International Math and Science Study, December 5, 2000). The 1999 study showed virtually no improvement for U.S. students over 1995.

American twelfth graders performed in mathematics better than students in only two countries, Cyprus and South Africa.

In writing, 75 percent of U.S. school children cannot compose a well-organized, coherent essay, concluded the National Assessment for Education Progress (NAEP) in September 1999.

While it is difficult to really ascertain exactly how Title I funds are always being used, we do know of a few examples of uses that raise questions in my mind.

In Massachusetts, schools dippied into Title I to pay the electric bill and for janitorial services.” Citizens’ Commission on Civil Rights.

While most of Title I’s $9 billion appear to be spent on instruction, the Los Angeles Times, in a March 12, 2000 editorial, said, “About half that amount is wasted on unskilled though well-meaning teacher aides, who are often more baby-sitter than instructor. Title I has been used “to pay for everything from playground supervisors and field trips to more time for nurses and counselors.” San Diego Tribune, March 16, 2000.

California school officials have told my staff that Title I has been used for pay for clerical assistants in school administrative offices, payroll staff, truant officers, schoolyard duty personnel, school bus loading assistants, “curriculum coordinators,” “compliance,” attending conferences, and home visits.

It is my intention to put an end to the notion that Title I can be everything to everyone, that it can fund all the services that schools need. Federal funding is only seven percent of total funding for elementary and secondary education and 73 percent of a smaller percentage of total support for public schools. We must get the most that we can educationally for our limited dollars.

It is time to better direct Title I funds to the true goal of education: to help students learn. This bill is one step toward that goal.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Title I Integrity Act of 2001”.

SEC. 2. LIMITATIONS ON FUNDS.
Subsections (B) and (C) of section 8103 shall read as follows:
JOE’s has been at the forefront of many great battles of national and international importance. No one is more effective in Congress on the front lines or behind the scenes. He has touched the hearts of all our people, and has made a remarkable difference in their lives and hopes. He’s a voice for the voiceless, and for all those who need our help the most. He champions the cause of hard-working families and the middle class—and all of us are proud to be there with him, on the front lines in all these battles.

When I look back over the many years that JOE MOAKLEY has served in Congress, I think of the important progress we’ve achieved—the battles we’ve waged and won for decent and affordable health care—for good education, so that more children can have a better start in life and a chance to go to college—for better jobs, greater opportunities, fairer wages, and safer working conditions in our environment—for equal rights for women and an end to discrimination in the workplace—for civil rights at home and human rights in other lands. And above all, in countless nations around the world, JOE MOAKLEY has worked for his extraordinary achievement in protecting and defending the fundamental human rights of all the people of El Salvador.

When the chips are down, JOE MOAKLEY is always there when we need him most. If President Kennedy were here today, we all know what he’d say—he’d call JOE MOAKLEY a true profile in courage.

Thoughout his career, JOE MOAKLEY has worked brilliantly, effectively and tirelessly to promote the highest ideals of public service. He is an outstanding statesman, leader, and legislator. I commend him for his leadership, and I look forward to the early enactment of this legislation as a tribute to a man who has served the city of Boston, Congress, and the country so well.

By Mr. DOMENICI (for himself, Mr. DODD, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. Frist, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. HARKIN):
S. 311. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to provide for partnerships in character education: to the Committee on

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, this is an issue on which I have been working for 7 years; that is, character education in our schools, both public and private. The bill I sent to the desk has seven co-sponsors from both parties. I ask other Senators who are interested in helping at the grassroots level in public schools and private schools, who want to bring Character Counts to their character education in their schools, that they might consider this bill. I would like to speak a little bit about character in our Nation and in our schools.

I rise today with my friend, Senator DODD, who is my principal co-sponsor, although we now have Senators FISER, KENNEDY, HARKIN, CLELAND, and COCHRAN. This bill is called the Strong Character for Strong Schools Act. It is not a very big program, and it does not interfere very much at all with the schools, but it does provide for money to be granted to public school systems, partnerships between State agencies and others, bringing character, or character kind of programs, into the schools.

Last month, I listened with great pleasure to President Bush’s inaugural address. He basically ticked off the tenets of good character that underscore American life. The President’s speech was clearly a message about character and the importance of character in American life. In his speech, the President touched on many elements of good character. I found it especially telling when the President emphasized the necessity of teaching every child these principles and the duty of every citizen to uphold these very same principles.

I am going to quote a number of people. Let me quote Theodore Roosevelt, one of our great Presidents. He said:

"Character, in the long run, is the decisive factor in the life of an individual and of our Nation."

What I have been principally involved in, in our State of New Mexico, is called Character Counts. Six pillars of character are promoted in the schools. Almost all of them use the same six pillars: trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship.

I would submit that character truly does transcend time as well as religious, cultural, political, and socio-economic barriers.

I believe President Bush’s renewed focus on character sends a wonderful message to Americans, and will help those of us involved in character education reinvigorate our efforts to get communally schools involved.

I say that because it was not too long ago, during the last Elementary and Secondary Education Act, ESEA, re-authorization, that Senators Nunn, DODD and I included a provision in the bill to fund pilot projects to increase character education.

Since then, the Department of Education has made $25 million in “seed money” grants available to 28 States to develop character education programs. Currently, there are 36 States that have either received Federal funding, or have enacted their own laws mandating or encouraging character education.

In New Mexico, over 230,000 kids and nearly 90 percent of our schools participate in some form of character education.

Most of New Mexico utilizes a wonderful character curriculum called “Character Counts,” which was established by Michael Josephson, a renowned ethicist from the Josephson Institute in California.

Character Counts emphasizes six pillars of good character: trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship. The point is that teachers like this approach. These six pillars are not based on any particular religion or philosophy. They merely represent the kind of values that everybody seems to agree are important for our children.

I first learned of Character Counts after reading about it in a nationally syndicated newspaper column. I subsequently, found out that one school in my State had decided to try the program, and that it seemed to be working.

Character Counts started in New Mexico in 1993 at the Bel Air Elementary School in Albuquerque. Bel Air had disciplinary problems, and teachers and the principal were looking for ways to address those problems. One of Bel Air’s counselors, Mary Jane Aguilar, along with Don Whatley, a teacher, suggested that the school try a new approach, called Character Counts.

They took the six pillars, with training from the Josephson Institute, and began integrating them into the daily lives of their students. Within 6 months, the number of Character Counts into the daily curriculum at Bel Air, the teachers noticed that disciplinary episodes were fewer and that the students began to treat each other better.

After hearing of the success at Bel Air, I invited the mayor of Albuquerque in 1994 to join me in forming the Character Counts Leadership Council, to bring together community leaders, schools, teachers, parents, and students to accelerate the pace of expanding Character Counts in Albuquerque and throughout the State. And after our initial efforts, I worked to establish Character Counts partnerships in other parts of the State, and the program spread quickly throughout New Mexico.

Since then, I have helped bring Character Counts to over 70 schools and communities in New Mexico. Places like Farmington, Santa Fe, Roswell, Portales, Carlsbad, Silver City, Hobbs and Las Cruces. And in even smaller communities like Espanola, Mountainair, Dexter, Hagerman, Lake Arthur, Artesia, Capitan, Carrizozo, Lovington, Eunice, Jal, Tatum, Alamogordo, Socorro, Deming, and Gallup.

As I travel around New Mexico, in virtually every town I have noticed school billboards with things like: "The word for the month is ‘citizenship.’ Character Counts!" It is everywhere in the schools in New Mexico and I am proud to be a part of the program.

Additionally, many of our communities now have Character Counts in afterschool programs like the YMCA, Boys and Girls Clubs, and 4-H. So when kids leave the classroom for after-school activities, they are still being taught how to make decisions based on the six pillars.

I think what we are starting to see in New Mexico is the beginning of the Character Counts Generation—young people entering high school, who are bringing with them the lessons they have learned through Character Counts.

Mr. President, I could go on for quite some time talking about Character Counts in New Mexico. The bottom line is that I believe it is working in New Mexico and other parts of the country. And I would love to encourage more character education by providing a little more seed money for these worthwhile programs.

So today, Senator DODD and I are here to introduce a bill to accomplish just that.

The Strong Character for Strong Schools Act seeks to encourage the creation of character education programs at the State and local level by providing grants to eligible entities. Grant recipients would use the funding to design and implement character education programs incorporating the following elements: caring, civic virtue and citizenship, justice and fairness, respect, responsibility, trustworthiness, and any other elements developed by the program.

Eligible entities would include partnerships of, one, a State Educational Agency, SEA, and one or more school districts, two, an SEA, one or more school districts, and one or more nonprofit organizations, three, one or more school districts, or four, a school district and a nonprofit organization. Nonprofit organizations could be institutions of higher education.

The program would be authorized at $50 million for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the four succeeding years.

I also want to emphasize that our bill does not dictate to States which character education program to implement. Rather, the bill merely provides states general guidelines and allows them to adopt whatever principles or pillars they choose after consultation with their communities.

Hopefully, our renewed effort will bring together even more communities to ensure that character education is a part of every child’s life. And with the successful passage of the legislation we are introducing today, our new Secretary of Education, Rodney Paige, will be in a position to help make these programs a reality.

Thank you and I hope that my colleagues will support this effort.

Mr. President, after unananimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 311

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Strong Character for Strong Schools Act".

SEC. 2. PARTNERSHIPS IN CHARACTER EDUCATION PROGRAM.

Section 10103 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 2803) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 10103. PARTNERSHIPS IN CHARACTER EDUCATION PROGRAM.

"(a) Program Authorized.—

"(1) In general.—The Secretary is authorized to make grants to eligible entities for the design and implementation of character education programs that incorporate the elements of character described in subsection (d), and that define additional elements of character identified by the eligible entities.

"(2) Eligible entity.—The term 'eligible entity' means—

"(A) a State educational agency in partnership with 1 or more local educational agencies;

"(B) a State educational agency in partnership with 1 or more nonprofit organizations or entities, including institutions of higher education;

"(C) a local educational agency or consortium of local educational agencies;

"(D) a local educational agency in partnership with another nonprofit organization or entity, including institutions of higher education;

"(3) Duration.—Each grant under this section shall be awarded for a period not to exceed 3 years, of which the eligible entity shall not use more than 1 year for planning and preparation.

"(4) Amount of grants for State educational agencies.—Subject to the availability of appropriations, the amount of grant made by the Secretary to a State educational agency in a partnership described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of paragraph (2), that submits an application under subsection (b) and that meets such requirements as the Secretary may establish under this section, shall not be less than $500,000.

"(b) Use of funds by state educational agencies recipients.—Of the total funds reserved by the eligible entity.

"(1) Evaluation and reporting.—

"(A) State and local reporting and evaluation.—Each eligible entity receiving a grant under this section may maintain with outside sources, including institutions of higher education, and private and nonprofit organizations, for purposes of evaluating its program and measuring the success of the program toward fostering in students the elements of character described in subsection (d).

"(B) National research, dissemination, and evaluation activities.—

"(i) The effectiveness of instructional models for all students, including students with physical and mental disabilities;

"(ii) Materials and curricula that can be used to implement programs in character education;

"(iii) Models of professional development in character education;

"(iv) The development of measures of effectiveness or program evaluation which may include the factors described in paragraph (3);

"(v) to provide technical assistance to State and local programs receiving funding under this section;

"(vi) to compile and disseminate, through various approaches (such as a national clearinghouse).

"(iii) Information on model character education programs;

"(ii) Character education materials and curricula;

"(iii) Research findings in the area of character education and character development;

"(iv) and other information that will be useful to character education program participants, educators, parents, administrators, and others nationwide.

"(C) Priority.—In carrying out national activities under this paragraph, the Secretary shall give priority to activities that assist the Secretary to enter into partnerships with national, nonprofit character education organizations with expertise and successful experience in implementing local character education programs that have had an effective impact on schools, students (including students with disabilities), and teachers.

"(D) Factors.—Factors which may be considered in evaluating the success of programs funded under this section may include—

"(i) Discipline issues;

"(ii) Student performance;

"(iii) Participation in extracurricular activities;

"(iv) Parental and community involvement;

"(v) Faculty and administration involvement;

"(vi) Student and staff morale;

"(vii) Overall improvements in school climate for all students, including students with physical and mental disabilities.

"(E) Elements of character.—

"(i) In general.—Each eligible entity desiring funding under this section shall develop character education programs that incorporate the following elements of character:

"(A) Caring.

"(B) Civic virtue and citizenship.

"(C) Justice and fairness.

"(D) Respect.

"(E) Responsibility.

"(F) Trustworthiness.

"(ii) Any other elements deemed appropriate by the members of the eligible entity.

"(2) Additional elements of character.—An eligible entity participating under this section may, after consultation with schools and communities served by the eligible entity, define additional elements of character that the eligible entity determines to be important to the schools and communities served by the eligible entity.

"(3) Use of funds by state educational agency recipients.—Of the total funds received under this section by an eligible entity that is a State educational agency—

"(i) not more than 10 percent of such funds may be used for administrative purposes; and

"(ii) the remaining part of such funds may be used for—

"(ii) to conduct research and development activities that focus on matters such as—"(A) collaborative initiatives with and between local educational agencies and schools;

"(B) the preparation or purchase of materials, teacher training, and

"(C) grants to local educational agencies, schools, or institutions of higher education; and

"(D) technical assistance and evaluation.

"(I) SELECTION OF GRANTSEES.—

"(1) CRITERIA.—The Secretary shall select, through peer review, eligible entities to receive grants under this section on the basis of the quality of the applications submitted under subsection (b), taking into consideration such factors as—

"(A) the quality of the activities proposed to be conducted;

"(B) the extent to which the program fosters the elements of character described in subsection (d) and the potential for improved student performance;

"(C) the extent and ongoing nature of parent, student, and community involvement;

"(D) the quality of the plan for measuring and assessing success; and

"(E) the likelihood that the goals of the program will be realistically achieved.

"(2) DIVERSITY OF PROJECTS.—The Secretary shall distribute grants under this section in a manner that ensures, to the extent practicable, that programs assisted under this section—

"(A) serve different areas of the Nation, including urban, suburban, and rural areas; and

"(B) serve schools that serve minorities, Native Americans, students of limited-English proficiency, disadvantaged students, and students with disabilities.

"(i) PARTICIPATION BY PRIVATE SCHOOL CHILDREN.—Grantees under subsection (b), taking into consideration such factors as—

"(A) the quality of the activities proposed to receive grants under this section on the basis of the quality of the applications submitted under subsection (b), taking into consideration such factors as—

"(B) the extent to which the program fosters the elements of character described in subsection (d) and the potential for improved student performance;

"(C) the extent and ongoing nature of parent, student, and community involvement;

"(D) the quality of the plan for measuring and assessing success; and

"(E) the likelihood that the goals of the program will be realistically achieved.

"(2) DIVERSITY OF PROJECTS.—The Secretary shall distribute grants under this section in a manner that ensures, to the extent practicable, that programs assisted under this section—

"(A) serve different areas of the Nation, including urban, suburban, and rural areas; and

"(B) serve schools that serve minorities, Native Americans, students of limited-English proficiency, disadvantaged students, and students with disabilities.

"(g) PARTICIPATION BY PRIVATE SCHOOL STUDENTS.—The Secretary shall provide, to the extent feasible and appropriate, for the participation of students and teachers in private elementary and secondary schools programs and activities under this section.

"(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section, $50,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the 4 succeeding fiscal years.

"The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, before the Senator from New Mexico leaves the floor, I ask permission to join as a co-sponsor of this most important legislation. It is bipartisan. We have the two leading Democrats on the Education Committee plus Republicans. It should be a bill that we can pass.

Mr. DOMENICI. I am grateful that the distinguished minority whip would join. We will be working together on this bill. I thank the Senator.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise to join my friend and colleague from New Mexico, Senator DOMENICI, in Introducing the Strong Character for Strong Schools Act. Senator DOMENICI and I have worked together for many years on this important issue. We established the Improving America's Schools Act Pilot Project in 1994 and have worked regularly since then to commemorate National Character Counts Week. So, I am pleased that today we are introducing the Strong Character for Strong Schools Act to help expand States' and schools' ability to make character education a central part of every child's education.

Our schools may be built with the bricks of English, math and science, but character education certainly is the mortar. This initiative ensures that our children's character, as well as their minds, receives care and nurturing in our schools. Character education prepares students about such qualities as caring, citizenship, fairness, respect, responsibility, trustworthiness, and other qualities that their community values. Character education provides students a context within which to learn. If we view education simply as the imparting of knowledge to our children, then we will not only miss an opportunity, but will jeopardize our future. Character education isn't a separate subject, but part of a seamless garment of learning. For example, at Waterford High School, in Connecticut, as part of the character education program, math students designed a ramp for kids who use wheelchairs. The students learned about math, and caring.

Theodore Roosevelt said that "[t]o educate a person's mind and not his character is to educate a menace." That may be, but I prefer Dr. Martin Luther King's exhortation that we judge each other not by the color of our skin, but by the content of our character.

A recent survey of high school students by the Character Counts Coalition found that during the preceding school year: 92 percent lied to their parents and 78 percent lied to a teacher; about 35 percent had stolen from a store; and 16 percent were drunk in school. This doesn't mean that these are bad kids, but it does mean that we need more character education.

We know that these programs work. Schools across the country that have adopted strong character education programs report better student performance, fewer discipline problems, and increased student involvement with the community. Children want direction—they want to be taught right from wrong. The American public wants character education in our schools, too. Studies show that about 90 percent of Americans support schools teaching character education.

Virtually all national education organizations are involved in promoting character education. Last June, the Connecticut Education Association, on behalf of many State organizations, issued a Call to Action letter, outlining a program to improve the school climate in all Connecticut schools. And, the Connecticut Education Association has developed its own character education program that teaches kids about not bullying and other behaviors that can disrupt schools and make it difficult for children to learn.

As all education policy should be, character education is bipartisan. When Senator DOMENICI and I introduced a resolution last Congress establishing National Character Counts Week, we had 57 co-sponsors, with broad support in both parties. And President Bush, in his education plan, calls for increased funding for character education.

Our children may be one-quarter of our population, but they definitely are 100 percent of our future. That's why this measure is so important—it provides a helping hand to our schools and communities to ensure that children's futures are bright and filled with opportunities and success. I am confident that not only are we doing the right thing here, but that we will see this bill become law along with other education reforms, this Congress.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, when I was a boy growing up in Lithonia, GA, I was privileged to have accomplished and dedicated teachers who provided me with a strong foundation in the three R's. Thanks to their capable and committed efforts, I received an excellent education in reading, writing, and arithmetic. And thanks to their good example and their ability to teach through inspiration, I was also well versed in the fourth R, which I call "re- spect."

What my teachers demonstrated so effectively almost five decades ago is that character education is essential to any well-rounded system of education. We can work together to help ensure that all children in America will start school ready to learn. We can pool our efforts—parents, teachers, community leaders, and elected officials—to enable our students to be first in the world in scientific and academic achievement. But I believe the greatest gift and most effective tool we can give to our children is to instill in them, from the beginning, the values and beliefs which help mold their character. Character is the essential building block in each youngster's journey to become a responsible, moral adult. It is the gift my teachers gave me when they offered me a first-rate education which addressed not only matters of the head, but of the heart as well.

Thanks, in part, to the efforts of my distinguished colleagues, Senators DOMENICI and DODD, character education has spread into thousands of classrooms throughout this nation. In 1994, Senator DOMENICI with the support of Senators DODD and MIKULSKI offered a successful amendment to the Improving America's Schools Act which established, for the first time ever, a grant program in the Department of Education to enable State education agencies, in partnership with local education agencies, to develop character education programs. My State of Georgia was one of the first to receive funding under the Partnerships for Character Education Pilot Projects. Since its inception in 1995, this program has awarded more than $25 million to 37 States throughout the country. I am proud to join my colleagues today in introducing legislation to expand the Partnership Program which encourages schools and communities to develop and sustain character education programs of excellence.
It has been said that the character of a nation is only as strong as the character of its individual citizens. In illustration of this truth, I like to tell a true story which happened decades ago during the war in Korea. At that time, one of our generals was captured by the Communists. He was taken to an isolated prison camp and told that he had but a few minutes to write a letter to his family. The implication was that he was to be executed shortly. The general’s letter was brief and to the point. “Tell Bill,” he wrote, “the word is integrity.”

The word is indeed integrity. This following Monday, Presidents’ Day, I will host a Summit on Character at the State Capitol in Georgia. I will be attended by State leaders from across the political and social spectrum. The purpose of the Summit is to rekindle the American spirit that motivated the Founders in constituting our nation and to inspire Georgians to develop the highest standards of character in themselves and in the youth of our State. Benjamin Franklin once said that “The noblest question in the world is, What good may I do in it?” The Character Summit in Georgia has this in common with the legislation we are introducing today: They both seek to encourage moral character and civic virtue in our children—America’s most precious resource and the future of this great Nation.

S. 312. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide tax relief for farmers and fishermen, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GRASSLEY (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. ROBERTS, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. BURNS, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. HATCH, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. DeWINE, Mr. BOND, Mr. FITZGERALD, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. KYL, Mr. BROWNBACK, and Mr. SESSIONS):

S. 313. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide for Farm, Ranch, and Risk Management Accounts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 314. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide declaratory judgement relief for section 521 cooperatives; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I would like to discuss legislation I’m offering today on behalf of myself and Senators BAUCUS, BROWNBACK, BURNS, LUGAR, ROBERTS, CRAIG, ENZI, and NELSON from Nebraska this afternoon. It will assist millions of farmers across the nation. I’ve named the bill the Tax Empowerment and Relief for Farmers and Fishermen Act, or what I will refer to as TERFF.

I’m a farmer, like my father was before me. I understand farming and how policy decisions from Washington impact hardworking farmers, like my son Robin. Before I ran for elected office and after I leave, God willing, I’ll still be farming and I feel more strongly about than providing the agriculture community potential to survive and thrive. As far as I’m concerned, agriculture is my “terf” and as long as I’m in this town, I’ll do all I can to serve my friends and neighbors in the agriculture community.

This legislation has already been adopted by the Senate multiple times. In the midst of a serious downturn in the agriculture economy, it seems to me we need to do everything we can to help farmers, and this would provide significant assistance.

For example, my agriculture tax package will include: The Farm and Ranch Risk Management Accounts—these farmer saving accounts would allow farmers to contribute up to 20 percent of their income in an account, and deduct it in the same year. The savings accounts would be a very important risk management tool that will help farmers put away money when there’s actual income, so that in the bad times, there will be a safety net. This measure has strong bipartisan support and was actually sent to President Clinton, who vetoed it.

Farmers who participate in the Conservation Reserve Program CRP, are unnecessarily struggling during tax season because of a recent case pushed by the IRS. The latest 6th Circuit court’s ruling treats CRP payments as income subject to the additional self employment tax rate of 15 percent. Senator BROWNBACK has taken the lead on fixing this problem. This unfair tax not only goes against the intent of Congress in creating the CRP, it discourages farmers from using environmentally pro-active measures. At a time when farmers are struggling to regain their footing economically and do their part to help the environment—its important that Congress support them by upholding it promise on CRP.

Senator LUGAR has led the effort to expand the current program where companies donate to food banks, so that farmers and restaurants can also donate surplus food directly to needy food banks. This will be a win for the farmers and a big win for people who depend on food bank assistance.

This provision provides cooperatives added practices rather than manufactured value-added practices. This is unfair, and needs to be fixed.

And of course my package wouldn’t be complete without a provision leveling the playing field for ethanol producers.

The Small Ethanol Producer Credit will allow small cooperative producers of ethanol to be able to receive the same tax benefits as large companies. This provision provides cooperatives the ability to elect to pass through small ethanol producer credits to its patrons.

The “TERFF” package will do more to reform taxes for the American farmer than any other measure in recent memory. I’ll be urging my colleagues to strongly support this measure. It’s a bill that should have the unanimous support that enjoyed Congress on the Senate floor. As sure as I’m chairman of the Finance Committee, I will push to have this package passed into law during the 107th Congress. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of these three bills be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bills were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 312

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SEC. 10. Declaratory judgment relief for section 521 cooperatives.

SEC. 11. Small ethanol producer credit.

SEC. 12. Payment of dividends on stock of cooperatives without reducing patronage dividends.

SEC. 2. FARM, FISHING, AND RANCH RISK MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTS.

(a) In General.—Subpart C of part II of subchapter E of chapter 1 (relating to tax-favored accounts and annuities) is amended by inserting after section 468b the following new section:

"SEC. 468C. FARM, FISHING, AND RANCH RISK MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTS."

"(a) Deduction allowed.—In the case of an individual engaged in an eligible farming business or commercial fishing, there shall be allowed as a deduction for any taxable year the amount paid in cash by the taxpayer during the taxable year to a Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Account (hereafter referred to as the 'FFARRM Account')."

"(b) Limitation.—"

"(1) Contributions.—The amount which a taxpayer may pay into the FFARRM Account for any taxable year shall not exceed 20 percent of so much of the taxable income of the taxpayer (determined without regard to this section) which is attributable (determined in the manner applicable under section 1301) to any eligible farming business or commercial fishing.

"(2) Distributions.—Distributions from a FFARRM Account may not be used to purchase, lease, or finance any new fishing vessel, add capacity to any fishery, or otherwise contribute to the overcapitalization of any fishery. The Secretary of Commerce shall implement regulations to enforce this paragraph.

"(c) Eligible Businesses.—For purposes of this section—"

"(1) Eligible farming business.—The term 'eligible farming business' means any farming business (as defined in section 263A(c)(4)) which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(c)) of the taxpayer.

"(2) Commercial fishing.—The term 'commercial fishing' has the meaning given such term by section 3 of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1851) and which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(c)) of the taxpayer.

"(d) FFARRM Account.—For purposes of this section—"

"(1) In General.—The term 'FFARRM Account' means a trust created or organized in the United States for the exclusive benefit of the taxpayer, the proceeds of which shall be used in a manner consistent with the requirements of this section.

"(2) Determination of assets.—For purposes of this section, the assets of the trust consist entirely of cash or of obligations which have been held in a separate fund (as defined in section 1274(c)(2)) and which pay interest not less often than annually.

"(3) All income of the trust is distributed currently to the beneficiary.

"(4) The assets of the trust will not be commingled with other property except in a common trust fund or common investment fund.

"(5) Account Taxed As Grantor Trust.—The grantor of a FFARRM Account shall be treated for purposes of this title as the owner of such Account and shall be subject to tax thereon in accordance with subparagraph (b) of section 408 of chapter 1 (relating to trusts and others treated as substantial owners).

"(e) Inclusion of Amounts Distributed.—"

"(1) In General.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amounts includable in the gross income of the taxpayer for any taxable year—"

"(A) any amount distributed from a FFARRM Account of the taxpayer during such taxable year, and

"(B) any deemed distribution under—"

"(i) subsection (f)(2) (relating to deposits not distributed within 5 years),

"(ii) subsection (f)(7) (relating to cessation in eligible farming business), and

"(iii) subsection (f)(3) (relating to prohibited transactions and pledging account as security).

"(2) Exceptions.— Paragraph (1) shall not apply to—"

"(A) any distribution to the extent attributable to income of the Account, and

"(B) the distribution of any deemed distribution paid during a taxable year to a FFARRM Account to the extent that such contribution exceeds the limitation applicable under subsection (b) if requirements similar to the requirements of section 408(d)(4) are met.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), distributions shall be treated as first attributable to income and then to other amounts.

"(f) Special Rules.—"

"(1) Tax on Deposits in Account Which Are Not Distributed Within 5 Years.—"

"(A) In General.—If, at the close of any taxable year, there is a nonqualified balance in any FFARRM Account—"

"(i) there shall be deemed distributed from such Account for such taxable year an amount equal to such balance, and

"(ii) the taxpayer's tax imposed by this chapter for such taxable year shall be increased by 10 percent of such deemed distribution.

The preceding sentence shall not apply if an amount equal to such nonqualified balance is distributed from such Account to the taxpayer before the due date (including extensions) for filing the return of tax imposed by this chapter for such year (or, if earlier, the date on which the taxpayer files such return for such year).

"(B) Nonqualified Balance.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term 'nonqualified balance' means any balance in the Account on the last day of the taxable year which is attributable to amounts deposited in such Account before the 4th preceding taxable year.

"(2) Ordering Rule.—For purposes of this paragraph, distributions from a FFARRM Account (other than distributions of current income) shall be treated as made from deposits in the order in which such deposits were made, beginning with the earliest deposits.

"(B) The trustee is a bank (as defined in section 408(n)) or another person who demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the manner in which such person will administer the trust is consistent with the requirements of this section.

"(C) The assets of the trust consist entirely of cash or of obligations which have been held in a separate fund (as defined in section 1274(c)(2)) and which pay interest not less often than annually.

"(D) All income of the trust is distributed currently to the beneficiary.

"(E) The assets of the trust will not be commingled with other property except in a common trust fund or common investment fund.

"(2) Account Taxed As Grantor Trust.—The grantor of a FFARRM Account shall be treated for purposes of this title as the owner of such Account and shall be subject to tax thereon in accordance with subparagraph (b) of section 408 of chapter 1 (relating to trusts and others treated as substantial owners).

"(3) Any inclusion of amounts distributed.—"

"(1) In General.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amounts includable in the gross income of the taxpayer for any taxable year—"

"(A) any amount distributed from a FFARRM Account of the taxpayer during such taxable year, and

"(B) any deemed distribution under—"

"(i) subsection (f)(2) (relating to deposits not distributed within 5 years),

"(ii) subsection (f)(7) (relating to cessation in eligible farming business), and

"(iii) subsection (f)(3) (relating to prohibited transactions and pledging account as security).

"(2) Exceptions.— Paragraph (1) shall not apply to—"

"(A) any distribution to the extent attributable to income of the Account, and

"(B) the distribution of any deemed distribution paid during a taxable year to a FFARRM Account to the extent that such contribution exceeds the limitation applicable under subsection (b) if requirements similar to the requirements of section 408(d)(4) are met.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), distributions shall be treated as first attributable to income and then to other amounts.

"(f)(3) Exceptions.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to—"

"(A) any distribution to the extent attributable to income of the Account, and

"(B) the distribution of any deemed distribution paid during a taxable year to a FFARRM Account to the extent that such contribution exceeds the limitation applicable under subsection (b) if requirements similar to the requirements of section 408(d)(4) are met.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), distributions shall be treated as first attributable to income and then to other amounts.

"(2) Section 4973 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) Farm, fishing, and ranch risk management accounts.—For purposes of this section, in the case of a FFARRM Account (within the meaning of section 468c(d)), the term 'excess contributions' means the amount by which the amount contributed for the taxable year to the Account exceeds the amount which may be contributed to the Account under section 468c(b) for such taxable year. For purposes of the preceding sentence, which is distributed out of the FFARRM Account in a distribution to which section 468c(e)(2)(B) applies shall be treated as an amount contributed.
SEC. 4973. EXCESS CONTRIBUTIONS TO CERTAIN ACCOUNTS, ANNUITIES, ETC.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 4973 (defining "excess contribution") is amended by striking the period at the end of paragraph (a) and inserting the following new paragraph:

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Any qualified small issue bond described in section 170(f)(3)(A) shall be treated as a non-recourse secured obligation under section 170(f)(2) when the issue of such bond is made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to tax years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 4. TREATMENT OF CONSERVATION RESERVE PROGRAM PAYMENTS AS RENTALS FROM REAL ESTATE

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 192(a)(1)(A) (defining "net earnings from self-employment") is amended by inserting "and including payments under section 1233(c) of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3363(c))" after "crop share".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to payments made after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 5. EXEMPTION OF AGRICULTURAL BONDS FROM STATE VOLUME CAP

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1402(a)(1) (relating to net earnings from self-employment) is amended by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (3) and inserting in succession therefor "or"

"(ii) with respect to such contribution, the contribution (or, if not so sold at such time, in the recent past)

SEC. 6. INCLUSION OF CERTAIN FARM RENTAL INCOME FROM NET EARNINGS FROM SELF-EMPLOYMENT

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (e) of section 170 (relating to certain contributions of ordinary income and capital gain property) is amended by adding at the end of the following new subparagraph:

"(e) Farm, Fishing and Ranch Risk Management Accounts.—"
SEC. 2. FARM, FISHING, AND RANCH RISK MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTS.

(a) In General.—Subpart C of part II of subchapter E of chapter 41 of title 7 (relating to the taxable year for which deductions taken) is amended by inserting after section 468B the following new section:

"SEC. 468C. FARM, FISHING, AND RANCH RISK MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTS.

"(a) DEDUCTION ALLOWED.—In the case of an individual engaged in an eligible farming business or commercial fishing, there shall be allowed as a deduction for any taxable year the amount paid in cash by the taxpayer during the taxable year to a Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'FFARRM Account').

"(b) LIMITATION.—

"(1) CONTRIBUTIONS.—The amount which a taxpayer may pay into the FFARRM Account for any taxable year shall not exceed 20 percent of the taxpayer's income for the taxable year (determined without regard to this section) which is attributable (determined in the manner applicable under section 1391) to any eligible farming business or commercial fishing.

"(2) DISTRIBUTIONS.—Distributions from a FFARRM Account may not be used to purchase, lease, or finance a fishing vessel, add capacity to any fishery, or otherwise contribute to the overcapitalization of any fishery. The Secretary of Commerce shall implement regulations to enforce this paragraph.

"(c) ELIGIBLE BUSINESSES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) ELIGIBLE FARMING BUSINESS.—The term 'eligible farming business' means any farming business (as defined in section 205A(e)(4)) which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(2) COMMERCIAL FISHING.—The term 'commercial fishing' has the meaning given such term by section 3 of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1802) but only if such fishing is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(d) FFARRM ACCOUNT.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) ELIGIBLE FARMING BUSINESS.—The term 'eligible farming business' means any farming business (as defined in section 205A(e)(4)) which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(2) CONTRIBUTIONS.—In the case of a Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'FFARRM Account')—

"(A) DEDUCTION ALLOWED.—In the case of an individual engaged in an eligible farming business or commercial fishing, there shall be allowed as a deduction for any taxable year the amount paid in cash by the taxpayer during the taxable year to a Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'FFARRM Account').

"(B) LIMITATION.—

"(1) CONTRIBUTIONS.—The amount which a taxpayer may pay into the FFARRM Account for any taxable year shall not exceed 20 percent of the taxpayer's income for the taxable year (determined without regard to this section) which is attributable (determined in the manner applicable under section 1391) to any eligible farming business or commercial fishing.

"(2) DISTRIBUTIONS.—Distributions from a FFARRM Account may not be used to purchase, lease, or finance a fishing vessel, add capacity to any fishery, or otherwise contribute to the overcapitalization of any fishery. The Secretary of Commerce shall implement regulations to enforce this paragraph.

"(c) ELIGIBLE BUSINESSES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) ELIGIBLE FARMING BUSINESS.—The term 'eligible farming business' means any farming business (as defined in section 205A(e)(4)) which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(2) COMMERCIAL FISHING.—The term 'commercial fishing' has the meaning given such term by section 3 of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1802) but only if such fishing is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(d) FFARRM ACCOUNT.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) ELIGIBLE FARMING BUSINESS.—The term 'eligible farming business' means any farming business (as defined in section 205A(e)(4)) which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(2) CONTRIBUTIONS.—In the case of a Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'FFARRM Account')—

"(A) DEDUCTION ALLOWED.—In the case of an individual engaged in an eligible farming business or commercial fishing, there shall be allowed as a deduction for any taxable year the amount paid in cash by the taxpayer during the taxable year to a Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Account (hereinafter referred to as the 'FFARRM Account').

"(B) LIMITATION.—

"(1) CONTRIBUTIONS.—The amount which a taxpayer may pay into the FFARRM Account for any taxable year shall not exceed 20 percent of the taxpayer's income for the taxable year (determined without regard to this section) which is attributable (determined in the manner applicable under section 1391) to any eligible farming business or commercial fishing.

"(2) DISTRIBUTIONS.—Distributions from a FFARRM Account may not be used to purchase, lease, or finance a fishing vessel, add capacity to any fishery, or otherwise contribute to the overcapitalization of any fishery. The Secretary of Commerce shall implement regulations to enforce this paragraph.

"(c) ELIGIBLE BUSINESSES.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) ELIGIBLE FARMING BUSINESS.—The term 'eligible farming business' means any farming business (as defined in section 205A(e)(4)) which is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(2) COMMERCIAL FISHING.—The term 'commercial fishing' has the meaning given such term by section 3 of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1802) but only if such fishing is not a passive activity (within the meaning of section 469(e)(3)) of the taxpayer.

"(d) FFARRM ACCOUNT.—For purposes of this section—
“(1) In General.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), there shall be includible in the gross income of the taxpayer for any taxable year—

(A) any amount distributed from a FFARRM Account of the taxpayer during such taxable year, and

(B) any deemed distribution under—

(i) subsection (f)(1) (relating to deposits not distributed within 5 years),

(ii) subsection (f)(2) (relating to cessation in eligible farming business), and

(iii) subsection (f)(3) (relating to prohibited transactions and pledging account as security).

“(2) Exceptions.—Paragraph (1)(A) shall not apply—

(A) any distribution to the extent attributable to income of the Account, and

(B) the distribution of any contribution paid during a taxable year to a FFARRM Account to the extent that such contribution exceeds the limitation applicable under subparagraph (b) if requirements similar to the requirements of section 408(d)(4) are met.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), distributions shall be treated as first attributable to income and then to other amounts.

“(f) Special Rules.—

(1) Tax on Deposits in Account Which Are NOT DISTRIBUTED WITHIN 5 YEARS.—At the close of any taxable year, there is a nonqualified balance in any FFARRM Account—

(i) there shall be deemed distributed from such Account during such taxable year an amount equal to such balance, and

(ii) the taxpayer’s tax imposed by this chapter for such taxable year shall be increased by 10 percent of such deemed distribution.

The preceding sentence shall not apply if an amount equal to such nonqualified balance is distributed from such Account to the taxpayer before the due date (including extensions) for filing the return of tax imposed by this chapter for such year (or, if earlier, the date the taxpayer files such return for such year).

(B) NONQUALIFIED BALANCE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term ‘nonqualified balance’ is—

(i) the amount in the Account on the last day of the taxable year which is attributable to amounts deposited in such Account before the 4th preceding taxable year.

(ii) the amount in the Account on the last day of the taxable year which is attributable to amounts deposited in such Account before the 4th preceding taxable year.

(C) ORDERING RULE.—For purposes of this paragraph, distributions from a FFARRM Account (other than distributions of current income) shall be treated as made from deposits in the order in which such deposits were made, beginning with the earliest deposits.

(2) Cessation in Eligible Business.—At the close of the first disqualification period after a period for which the taxpayer was engaged in an eligible farming business or commercial fishing, there shall be deemed distributed from the FFARRM Account of the taxpayer an amount equal to the balance in such Account (if any) at the close of such disqualification period. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘disqualification period’ means any period of 2 consecutive taxable years for which the taxpayer is not engaged in an eligible farming business or commercial fishing.

(3) Certain Rules to Apply.—Rules similiar to the following rules shall apply for purposes of this section—

(A) Section 408(f)(8) (relating to treatment on death).

(B) Section 408(e)(2) (relating to loss of exemption of account where individual engages in prohibited transaction).

(C) Section 408(e)(4) (relating to effect of pledging account as security).

(4) Time When Payments Deemed Made.—For purposes of this section, a taxpayer shall be deemed to have made a payment to a FFARRM Account on the last day of a taxable year to which such Account was credited with respect to such taxable year.

“(3) Individual.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘individual’ shall not include an estate or trust.

“(4) Deduction Not Allowed for Self-Employment Tax.—The deduction allowable by reason of subsection (a) shall not be taken into account in determining an individual’s self-employment income (within the meaning of section 1402(a)) for purposes of chapter 2.

“(g) EXCESS CONTRIBUTIONS TO FFARRM ACCOUNTS.—For purposes of this section, in the case of a FFARRM Account (within the meaning of section 468C(d)), the term ‘excess contributions’ means the amount by which the amount contributed to the Account during the taxable year exceeds the amount which may be contributed to the Account under section 468C(b) for such taxable year.

For purposes of this subsection, any contribution which is distributed out of the FFARRM Account (within the meaning of section 468C(e)(2)(B)) shall be treated as an amount not contributed.

(3) The section heading for section 4973 is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 4973. EXCESS CONTRIBUTIONS TO CERTAIN ACCOUNTS, ANNUITIES, ETC.”

(4) The table of sections for chapter 43 is amended by inserting before the section relating to section 4973 and inserting the following new item:

“Sec. 4973. Excess contributions to certain accounts, annuities, etc.”

(c) Tax on Prohibited Transactions.—

(1) Subsection (c) of section 4975 (relating to tax on prohibited transactions) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(D) SPECIAL RULE FOR FFARRM ACCOUNTS.—A person for whose benefit a FFARRM Account (within the meaning of section 468C(d)) is established shall be exempt from the tax imposed by paragraph (C), and (D) with respect to any transaction concerning such account (which would otherwise be taxable under this section) if, with respect to such transaction, the account ceases to be a FFARRM Account by reason of the application of section 468C(f)(3)(A) to such account.”

“(2) Paragraph (1) of section 4975(e) is amended by redesignating subparagraphs (E) and (F) as subparagraphs (F) and (G), respectively, and by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

“(E) a FFARRM Account described in section 468C(d),”.

(4) FAILURE TO PROVIDE REPORTS ON FFARRM ACCOUNTS.—Section 6662(a) (relating to failure to provide reports on certain tax-favored accounts or annuities) is amended by redesigning subparagraphs (C) and (D) as subparagraphs (D) and (E), respectively, and by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

“(E) a FFARRM Account described in section 468C(d),”.

(e) Clerical Amendment.—The table of sections for subpart C of part II of subchapter E of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 468B the following new item:

“Sec. 468C. Farm, Fishing and Ranch Risk Management Accounts.”

(f) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

S. 314

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. DECLARATORY JUDGMENT RELIEF FOR SECTION 321 COOPERATIVES.

(a) In General.—Section 7428(a)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to declaratory judgments of tax exempt organizations) is amended by striking “or” at the end of subparagraph (B) and by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(D) with respect to the initial qualification or continuing qualification of a cooperatively described as a religious, educational, and charitable organization which is exempt from tax under section 521(a), or”.}

(b) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to pleadings filed after the date of the enactment of this Act but only with respect to determinations (or requests for determinations) made after January 1, 2001.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today to join Senator Breaux and others to introduce the TERCFA Act, Tax Empowerment and Relief for Farmers and Fisherman.

This bill includes several provisions providing tax relief that will help our nation’s farmers.

First, this bill will create FFARRM, Farm, Fish and Ranch Risk Management Accounts that will provide farmers, ranchers and fishermen with additional money management tools. Agricultural producers will be allowed to defer up to 20 percent of their annual income into these accounts. The tax on this income will be deferred for up to five years or until the depositor withdraws the money.

The bill will amend the tax code to ensure that farm debt rents are not subject to an additional 15 percent self-employment tax. Additionally, the bill will ensure CRP, Conservation Reserve Program, payments are not subject to the same self-employment tax. I have also sponsored a similar CRP bill with Senator Brownback from Kansas.

The bill will also enable States to expand opportunities for beginning farmers who are in need of low interest loans for capital purchases of farmland and equipment. The bill provides that interest, rent and royalty payment made by a subsidiary to a non-profit are not subject to a unrelated business income taxes. The bill proposes the tax deduction to farmers and ranchers who donate food to hunger relief organizations.

The bill will correct a problem experienced by farmers who use income averaging by ensuring that farmers are not double taxed using income averaging due to the alternative minimum tax, AMT, calculation. The bill would reapply taxes on cooperatives using animal value-added practices in the same way as cooperatives using manufactured value-added practices. Furthermore, it would allow cooperative producers of ethanol to receive the same tax benefits as large corporations. The bill will also allow farmer cooperatives to use preferred stock capitalization.

This bill will help our nation's farmers and ranchers. The agriculture sector of our nation's economy needs the relief.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation to address a concern of farmers in my State of Wyoming and throughout the United States. This legislation, which I am introducing with the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator GRASSLEY, as well as the senior Senator from North Dakota, Mr. CONRAD, is designed to clarify a provision in the Internal Revenue Code and its accompanying regulations which has been broadly interpreted to impose self-employment (SE) taxes on rental income from real estate even though such income was generally designed to be exempt from SE taxes.

Under Section 1402(a)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code, rental income from real estate was only intended to be subject to the SE taxes when, one, the income is from an arrangement between an owner and lessee that, two, requires the lessee to produce agricultural or horticultural commodities on the land; and, three, there shall be material participation by the owner or tenant with respect to any such agricultural or horticultural commodities. The problem all goes back to ambiguity of the term “arrangement” in this section. This section has been interpreted to by the IRS to apply only to the specific lease agreement itself, but also to other extraneous production or management arrangements between the owner and his lessee. Accordingly, the IRS has hit many small self-employed farmers with a tax penalty that they never expected and which was never envisioned when Congress wrote the section of the Internal Revenue Code in question.

The legislation I am introducing today clarifies this section by replacing the term “arrangement” with “agreement,” indicating that the lease agreement itself must specify the requisite responsibilities of the owner in order to be subject to the SE tax. As in so much of what we do here, a small change in words can have a dramatic impact on people’s lives. By clarifying what I believe was intended by Congress all along, we will save numerous farmers the heartache and expense of litigating whether rental income from their real estate is subject to SE tax. This small change in the tax code will provide considerable tax relief to farmers in my home State of Wyoming and throughout the United States.

This bill is also co-sponsored by Senators DORGAN, DASCHLE, LUGAR, LEVIN, ROBERTS, BURNS, JEFFORDS, Baucus, DeWINE, Harkin, Craig, Johnson, Leahy, Bingaman, and Mr. BOND.

S. 315. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to treat payments under the Conservation Reserve Program as rentals from real estate; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I am speaking on a bill that I put in today, along with several cosponsors, regarding the Conservation Reserve Program Tax Fairness Act.

To be a farmer today, you really need to be an optimist—about the weather, about farm prices, about our rapidly changing economy. But one thing farmers should not have to worry about is being additionally taxed for participating in a conservation program.

I rise today to introduce the Conservation Reserve Program Tax Fairness Act of 2001. This bill would simply correct the tax treatment of one of our nation's most valuable conservation programs so that there is not a disincentive for farmers to be good stewards of the land.

I am joined in this effort by Senator DORGAN who has taken an active role on this issue last year and serves as the lead cosponsor of the bill this year. This bill is also co-sponsored by Senators DASCHLE, LUGAR, LEVIN, ROBERTS, BURNS, JEFFORDS, Baucus, DeWINE, Harkin, Craig, Johnson, and Leahy.

As you can see, Mr. President, this bill has the bipartisan support of many in the Senate because it is just common sense. In a time when the farm economy continues to suffer and conservation efforts are more important than ever, we should be doing everything we can to make conservation efforts more appealing, not less. And if there is one truth that is pretty evident here, it is that if you want less of something, tax it. Well, Mr. President, I can all agree that we want more conservation, not less, and therefore, we need to correct this tax interpretation.

The Conservation Reserve Program, or CRP, has been a great success for this Nation. The program provides financial incentives for improving and preserving environmentally sensitive land, taking it out of production and enhancing its environmental benefit. This program improves water quality, wildlife habitat and prevents soil erosion—all factors which have become even more important in light of recent concerns about nonpoint source pollution in our nation’s waterways.

Specifically, this bill clarifies once and for all that CRP conservation payments from the Government are not subject to self-employment social security taxes—a rate of up to 15 percent of the payment amount. Currently, there is confusion over how CRP payments should be taxed owing to a recent court case in the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals. This case overturned a 1998 Tax Court ruling that CRP payments are not subject to Social Security taxes. A rental payment the Government makes in exchange for farmers taking environmentally sensitive land out of production. Since other rental payments are exempt from this additional tax, CRP payments were considered exempt as well.

As a result of this confusion, there is now a discrepancy between active farmers who take part in CRP, which are now subject to the tax because it is considered income, and landowners who do not farm but take part in CRP and are exempt from the tax. Clearly, this is not what Congress intended when it set up this program.

Furthermore, the new court ruling has inspired the IRS to aggressively seek back taxes on CRP payments, as far back as the 1996 tax year. That could amount to tens of thousands of dollars for farmers who are already struggling through economic hard times.

In my State of Kansas alone, $102.7 million in CRP payments were issued in 1999. Are we really going to tell farmers that this money—promised them for conservation purposes—will now be additionally taxed all the way back to 1996? This would amount to a disincentive for farmers to participate in environmental and conservation programs because they cannot trust that there won’t be some hidden penalty down the road. Is that the message this bill really wants to send? This tax makes no sense. Since CRP land is not used for agricultural production, it should not be considered farm income—but rather rental/real estate income. As the Tax Court originally ruled, CRP payments are different from traditional setaside programs because the program requires strict adherence to environmental standards. The farmer is contracting with the Government for an environmental benefit. Why Earth would we choose to tax him for it?

We must also consider the state of the farm economy today. Agriculture is one of the few industries in this country which has not been blessed with a prolonged booming economy. This is the worst possible time to burden farmers with additional taxes.

This bill received enthusiastic support from the Senate Finance Committee, to which this measure was approved unanimously in the Senate last year as part of a larger tax bill, but, unfortunately, was not able to make its way into law. In addition to strong Senate support, this bill has backing of numerous farm groups including: the National Corn Growers, National Wheat Growers, American Soybean and Cattlemen’s Beef Associations—along with the National Farmer’s Union and the American Farm Bureau.

My colleagues, one of the privileges we have as Members of the Senate is to be able to correct legislative wrongs that hurt our constituents. This may be a minor thing in the larger scheme of things, but it is of vital importance to our Nation’s farmers. I urge you all to join me in this effort.

If I may summarize, this Conservation Reserve Program Tax Fairness Act of 2001 is to remove taxation on CRP and put it back to where it was when the program was first put forward. That program pays farmers to idle land to be able to build it up, conserve it, to be able to build wildlife up on these tracts of land. It has been very successful.

What has taken place or occurred is that the IRS has taken farmers to court and said they should be taxed for self-employment income for CRP payments, which was never the intent of Congress when it passed that. That was not to take place. Yet the lower court in that one circuit ruled that that is, indeed, correct and that they should be taxed for self-employment tax on that income.

Today Senators DORGAN, ROBERTS, and myself held a press conference introducing this bill to clarify this issue and to remove the self-employment tax on CRP payments. I think this is a key provision. I hope we are able to move forward on it.

Senator GRASSLEY, chairman of the Finance Committee, is supporting us in this effort, and he put it in an overall farm tax relief package. At this time, when we have so much difficulty in the farming economy, it is important to clarify that we are not going to tax people in a situation that they should not be taxed, where it was never intended for them to be taxed.

This bill previously passed the Senate last year. It has strong bipartisan support. The list of original cosponsors is as follows: Senators DASCHLE, LUGAR, BURTON, BURFORDS, BAUCUS, DEWINE, HARKIN, CRAIG, JOHNSON, LEAHY, and BINGAMAN. I hope more will join us as well. I hope this not only clears the Senate this year, but gets through to the President.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 315

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Conservation Reserve Program Tax Fairness Act of 2001”.

SEC. 2. TREATMENT OF CONSERVATION RESERVE PROGRAM PAYMENTS AS RENTALS FROM REAL ESTATE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1402(a)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining net earnings from self-employment) is amended by inserting “and including payments under section 1233(2) of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3833(2))” after “crop shares”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to payments made before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator BROWNBACK and a number of our colleagues today in introducing the Conservation Reserve Program Tax Fairness Act of 2001. This much-needed legislation would clarify that Conservation Reserve Program payments farmers receive for CRP enrollments are treated for tax purposes as rental payments from real estate not subject to self-employment taxes.

For over a decade, many farmers have agreed to take out of farm productive environmentally sensitive lands and place them in the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) for an extended period. In return, these farmers receive an annual rental payment from the Commodity Credit Corporation of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Over the past several years, the IRS has waged an aggressive campaign to try to re-characterize CRP rental payments as net earnings from self-employment and subject to self-employment taxes. I believe that the IRS’s position here is dead-wrong.

North Dakota has about 3.3 million acres with $109 million in rental payments in the CRP program. The IRS’s position means that farmers in North Dakota could be mailed a tax bill from the IRS for more than $16 million in added federal taxes this year alone. A typical North Dakota farmer with 160 acres in CRP would have a CRP payment of $5,280 and would owe nearly $800 in self-employment taxes because they are a rental payment the IRS considers as net earnings from self-employment. To make matters worse, if the IRS pursues back taxes on returns filed by farmers in past years, the amount of taxes owed by individual farmers could amount to thousands of dollars.

I believe that it is absolutely ludicrous for the IRS to load up farmers with an added tax burden at the very time that our nation’s family farmers are struggling with high fuel costs and record high fertilizer prices while commodity prices are at record low levels. Farmers are struggling, and the nation’s family farmers supposed to come up with the $231 million in additional taxes the IRS’s interpretation of CRP rental payments imposes on them.

In our judgment, the Congress never intended this tax result. In fact, the U.S. Tax Court understood this very point, when it ruled in 1998 that the IRS interpretation of CRP payments was improper and that CRP payments are properly treated by farmers as rental payments and, thus, not subject to self-employment taxes. Regrettably, the U.S. Tax Court’s ruling was later reversed by a federal appellate court as the IRS continues to litigate the matter.

We think that most of our colleagues understand that the current IRS position is not what Congress intended, nor is it supportable in law in our judgment. That’s probably why, for example, the Senate unanimously agreed to an amendment I offered to the marriage penalty reduction bill last summer that included language to clarify the proper tax treatment of CRP payments as rentals rather than self-employment taxes. However, my amendment with its CRP language and other amendments were stripped from the final version of that bill and this critical CRP change was not included in the other tax bills that were brought into law by the President in the last Congress.

With the legislation we introduce today, Congress can tell the IRS that its mistaken effort to treat CRP payments as net earnings from self-employment will not stand. I, along with the other cosponsors, urge you to support this change by cosponsoring our bill and working with us to get it added to any major tax legislation passed by Congress this year.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today to join Senator BROWNBACK and others to introduce the CRP, Conservation Reserve Program Tax Fairness Act. This bill will clarify Congressional intent that the CRP was not intended to be subject to self employment social security taxes.

In a 1999 decision, the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals concluded that CRP payments could no longer be treated as real estate rental income a status that would make those payments exempt from social security taxes.

The CRP provides financial incentives for improving and preserving environmentally sensitive land—taking it out of production and enhancing its environmental benefits. The program increases water quality, wildlife habitat and prevents soil erosion—all factors which have become even more important in light of recent concerns about nonpoint source pollution in our nation’s waterways.

This case overturned a 1998 Tax Court ruling that CRP payments are not subject to social security taxes because they are a rental payment the government makes in exchange for farmers taking environmentally sensitive land out of production. Since other rental payments are exempt from this additional tax, CRP payments were considered exempt as well.
As a result of this confusion, there is now a discrepancy between active farmers who take part in CRP—which are now subject to the tax because it is considered income—and landowners who do not farm but take part in CRP and are exempt from the tax. Clearly, this is not what Congress intended when it set up this program.

This bill will allow farmers and ranchers the ability to rest assured once and for all that conservation payments will not be subject to the high tax rate imposed by social security self-employment—a rate of 15 percent of the payment—in future years. As a result, working farmers will enjoy the same status as non-farm landowners in this program which encourages conservation of land, water and wildlife.

By Mr. McCONNELL. (for himself, Mr. GREGG, Mr. FRIST, Mr. MILLER, Mr. LOTT, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. ENZI, Mr. HUTCHISON, Mr. SESSIONS, and Mr. CARPER):

S. 316. A bill to provide for teacher liability protection; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce, with my colleagues Senators GREGG, FRIST, MILLER, LOTT, DEWINE, ENZI, HUTCHISON, SESSIONS, and CARPER, the Paul D. Coverdell Teacher Liability Protection Act. This important legislation extends protections from frivolous lawsuits to teachers, principals, administrators, and other education professionals who are charged with the scope of their professional responsibilities.

The Teacher Liability Protection Act builds upon the good work Congress began in 1997 when it enacted the Volunteer Protection Act. As you may recall, the Volunteer Protection Act provides liability protections to individuals serving their communities as volunteers. After bringing several volunteer protection amendments to the floor during the 105th Congress, I was honored to work with our colleague, Senator Paul Coverdell, to steer this measure through the 105th Congress and have it enacted in 1997.

Now, we need to extend similar liability protections to our nation’s teachers, principals, and education professionals who are responsible for the safety of our children when they are at school.

Everyone agrees that providing a safe, orderly environment is a critical component of ensuring that every child is able to reach their full academic potential. Unfortunately, teachers, principals, and other education officials share an impediment in their efforts to ensure that students can learn in a safe, orderly learning environment: the fear of lawsuits. All too often, these hard-working professionals find their reasonable actions to instill discipline and maintain order are questioned and second-guessed by opportunistic trial lawyers.

Today’s teachers will tell you that the threat of litigation is in the back of their minds and forces them at times to act in a manner which might not be in the best interests of their students. A 1999 survey of secondary school principals found that 25 percent of the respondents were involved in lawsuits or out-of-court settlements in the previous two years—an amazing 270 percent increase from only ten years earlier. The same survey found that 20 billion principals spend 5-10 hours a week in meetings or documenting events in an effort to avoid litigation.

This is time that our educators should spend counseling students, developing curricula, and maintaining order—not fending off frivolous lawsuits.

The legislation is structured similarly to the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 and is nearly identical to the teacher protection legislation introduced by Senator Coverdell (S. 1721) in the 106th Congress. Simply put, the bill extends a national standard to protect from liability those teachers, principals, and education professionals who act in a reasonable manner to maintain order, discipline and proper behavior in school and school-related activities.

The bill preempts the law of any State to the extent that such laws are inconsistent with this title, except as follows:

SEC. 15003. PREEMPTION AND ELECTION OF STATE NONAPPLICABILITY.

"(a) PREEMPTION.—This title preempts the laws of any State to the extent that such laws are inconsistent with this title."
SEC. 15004. LIMITATION ON LIABILITY FOR TEACHERS.—

(a) LIABILITY PROTECTION FOR TEACHERS.—Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c), no teacher in a school shall be liable for harm caused by an act or omission of the teacher on behalf of the school if—

(1) the teacher was acting within the scope of the teacher’s employment or responsibilities related to providing educational services;

(2) the actions of the teacher were carried out in conformity with local, State, and Federal laws, rules and regulations in furtherance of efforts to control, discipline, exel, or suspend a student or maintain order or control in the classroom or school;

(3) if appropriate or required, the teacher was properly licensed, certified, or authorized by the appropriate authorities for the activities or practice in the State in which the teacher at the time of the activity or practice was undertaken within the scope of the teacher’s responsibilities;

(4) the harm was not caused by willful or criminal misconduct, gross negligence, reckless misconduct, or a conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed by the teacher; and

(5) the harm was not caused by the teacher operating a motor vehicle, vessel, aircraft, or other vehicle for which the State requires the operator or the owner of the vehicle, craft, or vessel to—

(A) possess an operator’s license; or

(B) maintain insurance.

(b) CONCERNING RESPONSIBILITY OF TEACHERS TO SCHOOLS AND GOVERNMENTAL ENTITIES.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to affect any civil action brought by any school or any governmental entity against any teacher of such school; or

(c) EXCEPTIONS TO TEACHER LIABILITY PROTECTION.—If the laws of a State limit teacher liability subject to one or more of the factors described in subsection (a) or (b), such provisions shall not be construed as inconsistent with this section:

(1) A State law that requires a school or governmental entity to adhere to risk management procedures, including mandatory training of teachers.

(2) A State law that makes the school or governmental entity liable for the actions or omissions of its teachers to the same extent as an employer is liable for the acts or omissions of its employees.

(3) A State law that makes a limitation of liability inapplicable if the civil action was brought by an officer of a State or local government pursuant to State or local law.

(d) LIMITATION ON PUNITIVE DAMAGES BASED ON THE ACTIONS OF TEACHERS.—

(1) GENERAL RULE.—Punitive damages may not be awarded against a teacher in an action brought for harm based on the action or omission of a teacher acting within the scope of the teacher’s responsibilities to a school or governmental entity unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm was proximately caused by an action or omission of such teacher which constitutes willful or criminal misconduct, gross negligence, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

(2) CONSTRUCTION.—Paragraph (1) does not create an action for punitive damages and does not preempt or supersede any Federal or State law to the extent that such law would further limit the award of punitive damages.

(e) EXCEPTIONS TO LIMITATIONS ON LIABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The limitations on the liability of a teacher under this title shall not apply to any misconduct that—

(A) constitutes a crime of violence (as defined in section 16 of title 18, United States Code) or act of international terrorism (as that term is defined in section 2331 of title 18, United States Code) for which the defendant has been convicted in any court;

(B) involves a sexual offense, as defined by applicable State law, for which the defendant has been convicted in any court;

(C) involves misconduct for which the defendant has been found to have violated a Federal or State civil rights law; or

(D) where the defendant was under the influence (as determined pursuant to applicable State law) of intoxicating alcohol or any drug at the time of the misconduct.

(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to effect subsection (a)(3) or (d).

SEC. 15005. LIABILITY FOR NONECONOMIC LOSS.

(a) GENERAL RULE.—In any civil action against a teacher, based on an action or omission of a teacher acting within the scope of the teacher’s responsibilities to a school or governmental entity, the availability of noneconomic loss shall be determined in accordance with subsection (b).

(b) AMOUNT OF LIABILITY.—

(1) GENERAL.—Each defendant who is a teacher, shall be liable only for the amount of noneconomic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant determined in accordance with paragraph (2) for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall apportion the amount of noneconomic loss against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(2) PERCENTAGE OF RESPONSIBILITY.—For purposes of determining the amount of noneconomic loss allocated to a defendant who is a teacher under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility the defendant is responsible for the claimant’s harm, whether or not such person is a party to the action.

SEC. 15006. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this title—

(1) ECONOMIC LOSS.—The term ‘economic loss’ means any pecuniary loss resulting from harm (including the loss of earnings or other benefits related to employment, medical expense loss, replacement services loss, loss due to death, burial costs, and loss of business or employment opportunities) to the extent recovery for such loss is allowed under applicable State law.

(2) HARM.—The term ‘harm’ includes physical, nonphysical, economic, and noneconomic losses.

(3) NONECONOMIC LOSSES.—The term ‘noneconomic losses’ means losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium (other than loss of domestic service), pecuniary losses, injury to reputation and all other noneconomic losses of any kind or nature.

(4) SCHOOL.—The term ‘school’ means a public or private school; a public or private elementary school or secondary school (as defined in section 14101, or a home school.

(5) STATE.—The term ‘State’ means each of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any possession of any such State, territory, or possession.

(6) TEACHER.—The term ‘teacher’ means a teacher, instructor, principal, administrator, or other education professional that works in a school.

SEC. 15007. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—This title shall take effect three years after the date of the enactment of the Paul D. Coverdell Teacher Liability Protection Act of 2001.

(b) APPLICATION.—This title applies to any claim for harm caused by any court, action, omission of a teacher if that claim is filed on or after the effective date of the Paul D. Coverdell Teacher Liability Protection Act of 2001, without regard to whether the harm that is the subject of the claim or the conduct that caused the harm occurred before such effective date.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, today I add my support to the Teacher Liability Protection Act, a bill first introduced by my predecessor Senator Paul Coverdell. Like him, and like my colleagues with whom I introduce this bill today, I firmly believe that it is the responsibility of the education of our children provides. An important part of fulfilling that promise is ensuring that our classrooms are a secure place in which to learn. And, as a result, teachers and principals of today limit the availability of punitive damages and damages for non-economic loss in those suits that do proceed.

The bill we introduce today seeks to eliminate that fear and to reassure educators that they can and should perform this necessary part of their job without hesitation. The bill provides limited immunity for teachers, principals, and other education professionals for any reasonable actions they take in an effort to discipline students or maintain order in the classroom. In addition, it limits the availability of punitive damages and damages for non-economic loss in those suits that do proceed.

I also think that it is important to discuss what this bill does not do. It does not prevent proper accountability for teachers and principals who act intentionally, or even recklessly. Nor does it protect them if they violate state or federal law. Finally, this bill recognizes the authority of states on the subject by allowing state entities to opt out of its provisions and leaving untouched any state law that provides greater immunity from liability. In sum, this bill provides an important and necessary baseline of protection for teachers and principals who are on the front line of our national struggle to improve education, and to fulfill the promise of our children’s future.

I believe this Congress has a unique opportunity to improve education in our country. I hope my colleagues will give this bill careful consideration, and support it as an important part of that effort.
Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleague, MRTH MCDONNELL, in introducing the Paul Coverdell Teacher Liability Protection Act of 2001.

Senator Coverdell, recognizing the value of being involved in the lives of others, was a true leader in protecting both volunteers and teachers. In 1997, he successfully ushered the Volunteer Protection Act through Congress. Today, in the spirit of Coverdell’s efforts, volunteers can generously give their time and services without the threat of frivolous lawsuits.

Last year I joined Senator Coverdell in offering a teacher amendment during floor consideration of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, ESEA. That amendment contained several provisions impacting teachers, but the bulk of the amendment was the Teacher Liability Protection Act. I am pleased that this amendment was passed by the Senate by a vote of 97 to 0, and a nearly identical measure was passed by the House by a vote of 358 to 67. The overwhelming support that this amendment received during the session clearly illustrates the bipartisan nature of this initiative. Although Congress did not complete work on ESEA before the end of the session, I am very optimistic that the new President will sign into law an education reform bill this year and that bill will include the Paul Coverdell Teacher Liability Protection Act.

Our nation’s public schools have become more violent, and teachers do not feel safe in their own classrooms. Today, more than half our nation’s school teachers have been verbally abused, 16 percent have been threatened with injury and 7 percent have been physically attacked. Parents and students alike report that the behavior of some students that completely interfere with the learning of others. As our schools have increasingly felt the effects of violence, drug use and a breakdown of discipline, it is necessary for teachers to use reasonable means to maintain order, discipline and a positive educational environment. However, teachers continuously find themselves the targets of frivolous lawsuits when they are forced to restore order in the classroom. Our nation’s educators need to feel free to appropriately discipline unruly and unmanageable students to ensure the safety and education of all the children under their supervision.

Currently, unless a teacher is fortunate enough to work in a state that has liability laws that protect teachers, many teachers are hesitant to take action or intervene for fear of a lawsuit. This legislation would help to correct this sad situation.

The Paul Coverdell Teacher Liability Protection Act was modeled after the Volunteer Protection Act of 1997 and several state liability laws. The purpose of this legislation is to protect teachers from frivolous law suits when attempting to remove a disruptive or belligerent student from a classroom. Specifically, it provides limited civil liability immunity for teachers and individuals who engage in reasonable acts to maintain order and preserve a safe and educational environment in their classrooms and schools. The bill is narrowly crafted to focus on protecting reasonable acts that fall within the scope of a teacher’s responsibilities in preventing violence, providing services. The bill does not protect teachers who engage in wanton and willful acts of misconduct, criminal acts or violations of state and federal civil rights laws. The Teacher Liability Protection Act simply protects teachers and other education professionals from liability for harm caused to an individual by reasonable acts carried out in accordance with local, state and federal laws, as well as rules and regulations for controlling the learning environment or suspending a student from a classroom or school. Additionally, this legislation stipulates that punitive damages may not be awarded against a teacher unless the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that harm was caused by an action that constituted willful or criminal misconduct, or a conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of the individual harmed.

Furthermore, it is important to note that this legislation does not, in any way, supersede any state law that provides teachers with greater immunity from liability. Moreover, states can opt out of the provisions of this bill by passing state legislation exempting them from the Teacher Liability Protection Act.

I conclude by saying that we have a unique opportunity this year to improve our nation’s public schools, and we should start with protecting its teachers. Teachers are the backbone of our most precious resource in the classroom, and to continue to place them at risk in their jobs, and not give them the protection they so desperately need is a shame. It is high time that we recognize teachers and principals for who they are; professionals that go to great lengths to help our children learn. Creating a safe-zone in which they are not subject to being dragged through the courts for ensuring the safety and education of all the students in their classrooms should be a priority as we undertake education reform in the 107th Congress. That is why I stand here today to join Senator MCDONNELL, in empowering our nation’s teachers to take back control of our classrooms and create an environment where they can teach and their students can learn.

By Mr. MCDONNELL (for himself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. DODD, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LEAHY, Ms. MUKULSKI, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. SARBAZENI, Mr. SCHUMER, and Mr. CORZINE): S. 318. A bill to prohibit discrimination on the basis of genetic information with respect to health insurance to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, yesterday we read the first news accounts of genetic analysis even in the genetic code—what some have called “the blueprint of human life” itself. Today, Senators KENNEDY, HARKIN, DODD, and I are introducing a bill to make sure this stunning new knowledge is used to help Americans, not hurt them. Our bill is called the “Genetic Non-discrimination in Health Insurance and Employment Act.” It says simply that genetic information may not be used to discriminate against Americans in health insurance or employment. An identical measure will be introduced tomorrow in the House by more than 150 Republican and Democratic cosponsors.

The genetic revolution has the potential to dramatically improve health care. Genetic technology can greatly improve our ability to treat and even cure now-incurable illnesses. Genetic tests can tell whether a person is at risk of developing certain diseases years before symptoms appear, giving her either peace of mind—or critical time to reduce her risks. But the scientific and commercial value of the human genome project will be seriously undermined if people refuse to take genetic tests because they fear the results may be used against them.

That is not just our opinion. That warning has been sounded repeatedly by the two men who understand genetic testing better than anyone in the world—the scientists in charge of the two teams that mapped the human genome. Dr. Craig Venter and Dr. Francis Collins. At a White House ceremony where Dr. Collins unveiled the sequencing of the human genome, they warned that our laws were not keeping pace with science and urged Congress to pass strong federal protections against genetic discrimination. As Dr. Collins put it: “If we needed a wake-up call, isn’t today the wake-up call?”

The question now is: Are we going to heed that warning? Or, are we going to turn a deaf ear? This bill is the test. It has four key components. First, it forbids employers from using genetic information to decide who to hire or fire, and other terms and conditions of employment. Second, it forbids insurers from using genetic information to discriminate in setting insurance premiums. Third, it prevents disclosure of identifiable genetic information to health insurers, health insurance data banks, employers—and anyone else who has no legitimate need for the information. Finally, if the rights are violated, our bill gives victims of genetic discrimination the right to hold the violator accountable in court.
It's been nearly three years since we first introduced this bill. Back then, some people said there was no need for these protections because there was no proof that genetic discrimination ever actually occurs. We got another wake-up call when the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission went to court to challenge genetic testing by an employer. The EEOC has asked the court to order the Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railroad to end its policy of requiring employees who claim work-related injuries related to ergonomic testing—ori undergo genetic testing—or lose their jobs.

The Burlington Northern case marks the first time the EEOC has ever brought a genetic discrimination in court. But it is not the first case of genetic discrimination we've heard about in this Senate. Last July, the Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pension Committee held a hearing specifically on genetic discrimination in employment and what, if anything, the Senate should do about it. I testified at that hearing about a social worker who made the mistake of telling her co-workers that she was the primary caregiver for her mother, who had died of Huntington's disease. Despite her own good health and her long history of outstanding performance reviews, she was fired. Why? Because there was a chance she might one day develop the same disease that killed her mother.

I also testified about a 40-year-old mother of two young children who agreed to participate in a genetic research study. Two tests positive for BRCA1, the gene implicated in breast and ovarian cancer. After undergoing preventive surgery to remove her breast and ovaries to minimize the risk of cancer, she lost the insurance she received because her job. She, too, had a history of good work evaluations. Now she says she will never again participate in any health studies, and she will not allow her children to be tested.

What genetic discrimination may be relatively rare now, experts say that's only because genetic tests are still relatively rare. As testing becomes more affordable, and more common, experts tell us the incidence of discrimination is likely to increase dramatically.

How many more times do we need to hear about lives that have been shattered by someone's misuse of genetic information before we say clearly: 'In America, you cannot discriminate against people because of their genetic makeup. Period.'

This is a matter that effects every one of us. We all have flaws in our genome.

With rare exceptions, genetic tests can't confirm if we will ever develop a particular disease. All they can tell us is that we might some day develop the disease. Or we might not. Is it fair for employers to use genetic information in deciding who to hire and who to fire?

More than 10 years ago, we passed the Americans with Disabilities Act. We agreed then that, in this country, you can't discriminate against someone because of a disability. Can we really believe now that employers and insurers ought to be allowed to discriminate against someone because he or she might someday develop a disability illness?

Last week, three insurance companies in England admitted for the first time that they test for Huntington's disease, a progressive and incurable neurological disorder. One insurer also admitted it uses experimental tests for breast and ovarian cancer and Alzheimer's disease.

Do we have to wait until insurers in this country start using genetic screening routinely before we set some reasonable legal guidelines for genetic tests? How many more wake-up calls do we need?

Last summer, shortly after he and Francis and Collins unveiled the sequen- of the human genome, Craig Venter wrote me a letter. In it, he warned that genetic discrimination "is not a theoretical concern. Today, people who know they may be at risk for a genetic disease are foregoing diagnostic tests for fear they will lose their job or their health insurance."

As a result, he said, "the incentives for new discoveries and treatments based on our newly acquired genomic information are diminished, and the promising new era in medicine is delayed."

There are no strong federal protections are not needed because a number of states have already passed bills to prevent genetic discrimination. They're right about one thing: many states have passed laws. I'm proud to report that South Dakota became the latest last Friday when it adopted legislation to curb the collection of a person's genetic information without informed consent. In all, 37 states have passed bills regarding genetic discrimination. In 14 states, and 22 states have laws regarding genetic discrimination in the workplace.

Those laws represent progress. And they offer some protection. The problem with the current patchwork of state laws is that it contains major loopholes. For example: some states protect only DNA and RNA. Other states extend protection to family history data and other medical information that could offer some genetic clues. In federal law, however, there are no protections to the one-in-three Americans who get their health insurance through their employer.

Others say this bill is not needed because the Americans with Disabilities Act already prohibits discrimination based on disability. The problem with that theory is: it's never been tested.

The Burlington Northern case represents that first time a genetic discrimination suit has been brought specifically under the ADA since it was enacted. The ADA says does cover genetic discrimination. Maybe it will decide that it doesn't. Either way, a definitive answer could take years. What is the harm of we acting now to say clearly that genetic discrimination will not be tolerated in America? What is the worst thing that could happen? That we wind up with two laws, each protecting the same fundamental principle?

Last year, then-President Clinton signed an executive order banning genetic discrimination in federal employment. Our bill seeks merely to extend the same protections to private workplaces and insurers. The principles in our bill are supported by both Dr. Craig Venter and Dr. Francis Collins. They are also supported by the federal Advisory Committee on Genetic Testing, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the departments of Labor, Justice, and Health and Human Services. More important, they are supported by a strong majority of the American people.

At the beginning of our nation's history, Thomas Jefferson wrote, "laws and discoveries must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind. As . . . new discoveries are made . . . institutions must advance also to keep pace with the times."

Our new knowledge about the genetic blueprint has the potential to dramatically improve our health and the quality of our lives. However, if we don't respond to the wake-up call now, this knowledge also has the potential to destroy lives. We simply cannot afford to take one step forward in science, while taking two steps backwards in civil rights.

The legislation we offer today will enable us to move forward in a way that will benefit—and protect—all Americans. I thank my colleagues—Senators KENNEDY, DODD, and HARKIN—for all their help in this endeavor. I also thank our colleagues in the House, particularly Congresswoman LOUISE SLAUGHTER, for her tireless effort to move our companion bill to the floor in that chamber. And I urge my colleagues to join us in answering the wake-up call now so that we can make sure the genetic revolution—which has been largely financed with American tax dollars—helps people—instead of hurting them.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce the 'Genetic Non-Discrimination Act and Employment Act' with Senator DASCHLE, Senator DODD, Senator KENNEDY, and other colleagues. This bill would bring our nondiscrimination policies into the 21st century.

Genetic discrimination is a terribly important issue and one that I have been following for quite some time now. My interest started in the late 1980s when I was first involved in the effort to fund the Human Genome Project at NIH. Looking back over the past 10 years, some of the best investments our country has ever made. The advances in the study of the human gene are mind-boggling. Last year, the Human Genome Project and Celera Genomics announced that scientists had mapped the entire human genome. Just yesterday, these same scientists reported the probable number of human genes at 30,000 to 40,000 (only twice as many genes as your run-of-the-mill roundworm).

The impact of these discoveries will go far beyond the laboratory. The mapping of the human genome will mean enormous gains in science and the provision of health care. The identification of disease-related genes has already provided scientists with important new tools for understanding the underlying mechanisms for many illnesses. And genomic technologies have the potential to lead to better diagnosis and treatment, and ultimately, the prevention and cure of many diseases and disabilities.

However, without genetic discrimination protections, people will be deterred from using genetic technologies that would enable us to prevent the onset of life-threatening diseases.

Discrimination in health insurance and employment, and the fear of potential discrimination, threaten our ability to conduct the very research we need to find, treat, and prevent genetic disease. Moreover, discrimination—and the fear of discrimination—threaten our ability to use new genetic technologies to improve health. As a result, our rapid, scientific progress can merely be rendered meaningless for the every day American.

Let me give you just a few examples:

In the early 1970’s some insurance companies denied coverage and some employers denied jobs to African-Americans who were identified as carriers for sickle-cell anemia, even though they were healthy and would never develop the disease.

More recently, in a survey of people in families with genetic disorders, 22 percent indicated that they, or a member of their family, had been refused health insurance on the basis of their genetic information.

And a number of researchers have been unable to get individuals to participate in cancer genetics research. Fear of discrimination is cited as the reason why.

But this is more than just about numbers and anonymous individuals, it’s about real people—including my own family. More than any of you know, both my sisters died from breast cancer. And other members of my family might be at risk. Should I counsel them to get tested for the BRCA1 and BRCA2 mutations? Should I counsel them to disclose our family history to their physicians. But, conversely, if they are to get any health care at all, they must have access to health insurance. Without strong protections against discrimination, access to health insurance is currently in question.

In 1995, I introduced an amendment during the mark-up of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act to clarify that group health plans could not establish eligibility, continuation, enrollment, or contribution requirements based on genetic information. The amendment became part of the manager’s package that went to the floor, and it ultimately became law.

HIPAA is a good first step. We should be proud of that legislation. Yet if our goal is to ensure that individuals have access to health insurance coverage and to employment opportunities—regardless of their genetic makeup—we must ensure that they are protected against discrimination on the basis of their genetic makeup.

Our proposed legislation offers such protections. Let me describe them in brief:

First, this legislation prohibits insurers and employers from discriminating on the basis of protected genetic information. It is essential to prohibit discrimination both at work and in health insurance. Simply prohibiting discrimination in the insurance context, employers who are worried about future increased medical costs or increased sick time will simply not hire individuals who have a genetic predisposition to a particular disease.

Second, under our proposal, health insurance companies are prohibited from disclosing genetic information to other insurance companies, industry-wide data banks, and employers. If we really want to prevent discrimination, we should not let genetic information get into the wrong hands in the first place.

Finally, if protections against genetic discrimination are to have teeth, then we must require the advances and remedies to deter employers and insurers from discriminating in the first place.

This bill will ensure that every American will enjoy the latest advances in scientific research and health care delivery, without fear of retribution on the basis of their sensitive genetic information. All of us should be concerned about this issue, because all of us have genetic information that might be used against us. As we move into the new millennium, everyone should enjoy the benefits of 21st century technologies—and not be harmed by 21st century discrimination.

I applaud the commitment of my fellow co-sponsors on this important issue, and look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to pass federal legislation that will prohibit genetic discrimination in the workplace and in health insurance.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, over the past decade the science of identifying genetic markers for diseases has evolved at an astonishing pace. For an increasing number of Americans, science fiction has become reality—their doctors can now scan their unique genetic blueprints and predict the likelihood of their developing diseases like cancer, Alzheimer’s or Parkinson’s.

And, with this knowledge, individuals and families can make informed decisions about their health care including, in some cases, even taking steps to prevent the disease or to detect and treat it early, however, phenomenal advances in our knowledge about genetics have outpaced the protections currently provided in law. Thus, the potential also exists for this information to be used by health insurers or employers to deny health coverage or job opportunities.

And, in fact, recent events have catalyzed the issue of genetic discrimination from a potential concern to a very real threat. Just last week, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission filed a lawsuit against an employer for requiring genetic testing of employees who file injury claims. Additionally, a recent survey of over 2,000 companies conducted by the American Management Association showed that 18.1 percent of companies require genetic or medical family history data from employees or job applicants.

According to the same survey, 26.1 percent of the companies that require genetic or family medical history tests use the results of those tests in hiring decisions.

We know that Federal and State laws currently offer only a patchwork of protections against the misuse of genetic information. While the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 took important first steps toward prohibiting genetic discrimination in health insurance, it left large gaps. For example, it does not prohibit insurers from requiring genetic testing or from disclosing genetic information and offers no protection at all for people who must buy their insurance in the individual market. And in several States, including Connecticut, have enacted legislation prohibiting health insurance discrimination, these laws can not protect the 51 million individuals in employer-sponsored “self-funded” health plans. Additionally, few States have chosen to address the issues of employment discrimination or the separate issue of the privacy of genetic records.

I know from personal experience that this issue is not a partisan one. Four years ago, I joined Senator DOMENICI in introducing one of the first bills on this critical topic, addressing both insurance and employment discrimination.

And, more recently, working with many of my Democrat colleagues, I joined Senator SOWE in supporting strong legislation protecting patients from genetic discrimination in insurance.

Today I am pleased to join my colleagues, Senator DASCHLE, Senator HARKIN and Senator KENNEDY in introducing comprehensive legislation to safeguard the privacy of genetic information and prohibit health insurance or employment discrimination based on genetic information. Specifically, this legislation would prohibit health insurers from discriminating based on genetic predisposition to an illness and prevent employers from requiring applicants for health insurance to submit to genetic testing. This bill would also address concerns about employment discrimination by preventing employers from firing or refusing to hire individuals who may be susceptible to a genetic condition. Finally, this legislation holds employers and insurers accountable by imposing strong penalties those who violate these provisions.

Three years ago, in a visit to Yale University’s Genetic Testing Center I had the opportunity to glimpse cutting edge uses of that technology. I also had the opportunity, however, to hear the fears expressed by the patients at the center. On that visit I met with Keith Hall, who has been a patient at Yale for several years—since he was first diagnosed with Tuberous Sclerosis, a genetic disease that causes tumors of the brain, kidney and other organs, and some developmental disabilities, including mental retardation. Keith worries about what would happen to his insurance if he ever had to switch jobs. I also met with Ashley Przybysliski, an 11-year-old girl from Oxford, CT. Ashley suffers from a genetic nutritional disorder that can cause seizures and brain damage. While currently the family’s insurance covers the exorbitant cost of the medication that keeps her healthy—$33,000 a year—Ashley faces the prospect of being denied coverage when she gets older.

While we as a Nation welcome these scientific achievements, it is critical we ensure that they be applied for the purposes of preventing or treating disease, rather than denying health insurance or employment to individuals. This issue is too important to ignore for yet another year. Each day that passes more individuals suffer discrimination. Each day that we fail to act, more families will be forced to make decisions about genetic testing based on their health care needs, but on fear.

I pledge my commitment to ensuring that continued progress in science is not squandered. This legislation would prohibit health insurers from discriminating based on genetic predisposition to an illness and prevent employers from requiring applicants for health insurance to submit to genetic testing. Some new discoveries bring remarkable new opportunities for improving health care. But they also carry the danger that genetic information will be used—not to improve the lives of Americans—but as a basis for discriminating against or denying coverage. For example, the presence of a person’s genetic traits—such as those associated with cancer, Huntington’s disease, or sickle cell anemia—is as unacceptable as discrimination on the basis of gender, race, or religion. No American should have to choose between health insurance or fired from a job based on the results of a genetic test.

People need access to genetic testing, in order to seek treatments to extend and improve their lives. Yet, the vast potential of genetic knowledge to improve health care will go unfulfilled, if patients fear that information about their genetic characteristics will be used as the basis for discrimination, in health insurance. Study after study guarantee that private medical information remains private, and that genetic information cannot be used for improper purposes.

The Genetic Non-Discrimination in Health Insurance and Employment Act guarantees these protections. It gives the American people the protections they need and deserve against genetic discrimination. It prohibits employers from using genetic information to discriminate in the workplace in hiring, promotion, pay or other workplace rights and privileges. And it gives victims of genetic discrimination the right to seek remedies through legal action.

In too many cases today the promise of genetic research is being squandered, because patients rightly fear that information about their genes will be used against them in the workplace or in health insurance. Study after study reports that the vast majority of Americans are concerned about taking a genetic test, for fear that employers will have access to the information. The Journal of the American Medical Association reported that 57 percent of women at risk for breast or ovarian cancer had refused to take a genetic test that could have identified their risk for cancer and assisted them in receiving medical treatment to prevent the onset of that disease because they feared reprisals for doing so. Tragically, the vast potential of genetic knowledge to improve health care will go unfulfilled if patients fear that information about their genetic characteristics will be used as the basis for job discrimination or other prejudices.

And that fear is clearly well-founded. Genetic discrimination is a real and frightening problem, and it is happening today. Employers may refuse to hire people based on misleading reports of mandatory genetic testing of employees made headline news—and the testing was being conducted by one of the largest railroads in this country. One employee was informed by the railroad that he would be fired for refusing to submit to the genetic testing. This is just the tip of the iceberg of what is becoming a routine and pervasive employer practice as genetic testing becomes more accessible and economical. Today, employers and insurers often require and use this information to deny health coverage, refuse a promotion, or reject a job applicant—without even providing the employee an opportunity to correct any faulty premise.

Experts in genetics are virtually unanimous in calling for strong protections to prevent this misuse and abuse of science. The Department of Health and Human Services’ advisory panel on genetic testing—consisting of experts in science, medicine and business—recommended unambiguously that “Federal legislation should be enacted to prohibit discrimination in employment and health insurance based on genetic information.” Dr. Craig Venter, the president of Celera Genomics, who led the privately-financed aspect of the gene sequencing research, has spoken of the “immediate threat . . . [of] genetic discrimination. . . . [H]uman rights and civil rights law will have to be updated to include this new class of diagnosed person. At this stage, one can only imagine the future potential of abuse,” he said.

With time, the potential for genetic discrimination will only grow stronger, and federal legislation to establish minimum protections is needed to ensure that advances in research and technology are not used to discriminate against workers. Without strong protections guaranteeing that private medical information remains private and that genetic information can not be used for improper purposes, we will squander the unprecedented opportunities presented by these new discoveries, and the health and welfare of large numbers of our fellow citizens will be put at risk.

I commend our leader, Senator DASCHLE, for introducing this important legislation that will give the American people the protections against genetic discrimination they need and deserve. The Genetic Non-Discrimination in Health Insurance and Employment Act will prohibit insurers from denying or abridging health care coverage on the basis of genetic test results. It will protect employees from being fired for refusing to submit to genetic testing on the basis of their unalterable genetic inheritance. The Act safeguards Americans’ private genetic information from unauthorized disclosures to employers, banks, and others who should not have access to this most sensitive of personal information. And, because a right without a remedy is no right at all, this important measure would provide protections for persons who have suffered genetic discrimination in either arena, with the right to seek redress through legal action. I urge my colleagues to join Senator DASCHLE and me in supporting the Genetic Non-Discrimination in Health Insurance and Employment Act.

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. HOLLINGS, and Mrs. HUTCHISON):

S. 319

A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to ensure that air carriers meet their obligations under the Airline Customer Service Agreement, and provide improved passenger service in order to meet public convenience and necessity; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, this morning the Commerce Committee heard testimony from the Department of Transportation Inspector General on the airlines’ efforts to meet their voluntary Airline Customer Service Commitment. The IG reported that the airlines had made progress in their customer service areas. He also noted that the airlines were deficient in many areas of their commitment. The IG recommended that Congress take some measures to ensure that the airlines continue to make progress on the passenger service front.

To that end, I am introducing the Airline Customer Service Improvement Act, along with Senators HOLLINGS, HUTCHISON, and WYDEN.

This bill implements the recommendations set forth by the Inspector General in his final report. Specifically, the bill requires each air carrier to incorporate the voluntary Airline Customer Service Commitment into its contract of carriage. In addition, the bill requires each air carrier to voluntarily disclose information recommended by Mr. Mead, such as the on-time performance rates of specific flights and the airlines’ policy with respect to overnight accommodations.

The bill also directs the Department of Transportation to raise the compensation required for passengers involuntarily bumped from a flight. This regulation has not been updated in more than 20 years.

The bill directs the Department of Transportation to change the way it calculates lost and mishandled baggage statistics, so that these statistics will more accurately represent the problems that passengers face.

Finally, consistent with the IG’s recommendations, the bill requires the airlines to report on their efforts to establish targets for reducing the number of chronically-delayed and canceled flights, and establishing a system passenger service planners can use to determine if their flight has been delayed or canceled.

In short, this legislation does not seek to legislate good customer service. This legislation seeks to provide the airlines and the Department of Transportation with the incentives to ensure that good customer service remains high on everyone’s priority list.

Let me make clear that this bill is just one small step towards fixing the system. This bill does not begin to address the many problems facing the airline industry. Capacity, congestion, antiquated air traffic control systems, and labor all have had detrimental effects on our system and, consequently, customer service. The Committee will continue to explore ways to improve the efficiency of our aviation system. We will all need to work together to fix the multitude of problems that airline customers face everyday.

I look forward to working together with my fellow Senators on this and other ways to address the needs of our aviation system.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 319

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Airline Customer Service Improvement Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The Inspector General of the Department of Transportation has found that the airlines’ voluntary commitment to better service, set forth in the Airline Customer Service Commitment, has resulted in positive changes in how air travelers are treated.

(2) While the Inspector General’s Final report noted that the voluntary effort has produced benefits faster than a legislative or regulatory mandate, which could have taken years to implement, the Inspector General has recommended additional changes that require legislative and regulatory action.

(3) The Airline Customer Service Commitment has prompted the airlines to address consumer concerns in many areas, ranging from providing timely and more accurate information on delays to explaining that lower fares may be available through the Internet.

(4) The airlines were cooperative with, and responsive to, many of the suggestions the Inspector General made in the interim report last year.

(5) The Inspector General has determined that, while there has been significant progress in improving airline customer service, certain areas covered by the Airline Customer Service Commitment, and its customer service plan within 90 days after the date of enactment of the Airline Customer Service Improvement Act, the airlines and the Department of Transportation shall increase the resources of the Airline Customer Service Improvement Act and take such action under subpart IV of this title as may necessary to enforce compliance with this section under subpart IV of this title; and

(6) Provide, no later than the 5th day of each month, the air carrier’s on-time performance rate for each scheduled flight for the most recently-ended month for which such information is available through its Internet website.

(7) Disclose, without being requested, the on-time performance and cancellation rate for a chronically-delayed or canceled flight whenever a customer makes a reservation or purchases a ticket on a such a flight.

(8) Plan and implement a plan to market the availability of a ticket on a flight that the air carrier has determined to market.

(9) Disclose the ability of passengers to purchase a ticket on a flight that the air carrier has determined to market.

(10) Provide, to the extent possible, adequate information for passengers to make informed decisions about air travel, including information about the availability of a ticket on a flight that the air carrier has determined to market.

SEC. 4.- (1) LARGE AIR CARRIER.—The term ‘large air carrier’ means an air carrier holding a certificate issued under section 41102 that

A operator is designed to have a maximum passenger capacity of more than 60 seats or a maximum payload capacity of more than 18,000 pounds; or

B conducts operations where one or both terminals of a flight stage are outside the 50 states of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

SEC. 5. OTHER SERVICE-ENHANCING IMPROVEMENTS.

(a) In General.—Within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, each large air carrier (as defined section 41711(e)(7) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘40112 or 41727’’ and inserting ‘‘40112, 41727, or 41761.’’

(b) CHRONICALLY DELAYED OR CANCELED.—A flight shall be considered to be chronically-delayed or canceled if at least 40 percent of the flight’s departures are delayed for at least 15 minutes or at least 40 percent of the flights are canceled.

(c) Uncertain Reporting Requirements.—The chapter analysis for chapter 417 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘SUBCHAPTER IV. AIRLINE CUSTOMER SERVICE

‘‘41711. Airline customer service requirements.’’

SEC. 6. IMPROVED DOT STATISTICS.

(a) MISSING BAGGAGE.—In calculating and reporting the rate of mishandled baggage for air carriers, the Department of Transportation shall not count passenger who do not check any baggage.

(b) CHRONICALLY DELAYED OR CANCELED FLIGHTS.—The Office of Aviation Enforcement and Proceedings of the Department of Transportation in coordination with the Bureau of Transportation Statistics of the Department of Transportation, shall include a table in the Air Travel Consumer Report that shows flights chronically delayed by 15 minutes or more and flights canceled 4 percent or more for 3 consecutive months or more.

SEC. 7. DOT REGULATIONS ON BUMPING.

(a) UNIFORM CHECK-IN DEADLINE.—The Secretary of Transportation shall initiate a rulemaking within 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act to amend the Department of Transportation’s Regulations to establish a uniform check-in deadline and to require air carriers to disclose, both in their contracts of carriage and on ticket jackets, their policies on how those deadlines apply to passengers with disabilities and their Customer Service Commitment. Delays will continue to plague every industry, and make educated guesses on pricing and scheduling every day. They know the likelihood of delays, and airlines able to dictate the price and quality of service offered in many markets without competition. Delays will continue to plague the system, but the carriers know this, and their Customer Service Commitments were done in light of known problems. We will work with the industry on many facets of expanding capacity, but it is their job to improve service.

The carriers all too often want to cite the government as the reason for their problems, I do not buy that. These carriers have more data than virtually any industry, and make educated guesses on pricing and scheduling every day. They know the likelihood of delays. Even weather, which is unpredictable on a daily basis, is something they can anticipate. I know right now we will have thunderstorms this summer, and snow storms next winter. How will the carriers treat people during those times? I know my flight is likely to be delayed—the reasons may vary, but the process by which you tell people to make arrangements is going to be hard. Some of the carriers have attempted improvements. At a hearing last June, one carrier demonstrated a new automatic system that more quickly tells people what to expect. Another carrier has ‘chariots’ that set up temporary service counters during emergency periods. An ad this past weekend touted ways to electronically tell passengers that a flight is late. These are a start, but there is a long road to go.

The Air Transport Association last month announced a number of initiatives to reduce delays. The ATA called on the President to hire a 1,000 more controllers, use satellites to track planes and to redesign our airspace—all actions that could increase capacity. I support those initiatives, but we had better tell the Administration not to reduce the FAA’s budget by hundreds of millions of dollars, which they apparently are considering.

The Senate is going to spend the time to increase competition, to improve service, and tell us the reflection of the public’s needs as a priority.

S. 321. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to provide families with significant disabilities, many of whom do not have access to critical health services they need to maintain and prevent deterioration of their health status. To get needed health services for their children, families are being forced to become poor, stay poor, put their children in out of home placements, give up custody of their children—all so that their children can qualify for the comprehensive health coverage available under Medicaid.

In a recent survey of 20 states, families of special needs children report they are turning down raises, turning down overtime, and are unable to save money for the future of their children and family—so that their child can stay eligible for Medicaid through the Social Security Income (SSI) Program.

Today we are reintroducing legislation intended to close the health care gap for the Nation’s most vulnerable population, and enable families of disabled children in this country to be equal partners in the American dream.

In the words of President George W. Bush in his “New Freedom”, “Too many Americans with disabilities remain trapped in bureaucracies of dependency, and are denied the access necessary for success—and we need to tear down these barriers”.

The Family Opportunity Act of 2001 will tear down the barriers to needed health care that so many disabled and special needs children are being denied.

It will make health insurance coverage more widely available for children with significant disabilities, thereby allowing opportunities to buy into Medicaid at an affordable rate.

It will allow states to develop a demonstration program to provide a medical buy-in for children with potentially significant disabilities who without needed health services will become severely disabled.

States will have more flexibility to offer disabled children needed health services at home and in their communities.

It will establish Family to Family Information Centers in each state to help families with special needs children.

The passage of the Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999 showed the commitment of this Nation to ensure that people with disabilities have the right to lead independent and productive lives without giving up their health care. It is now time for Congress to show that same commitment to our country’s children with disabilities and their families.

I look forward to working with all members of Congress to move this legislation forward and give disabled children and their families across the country a better opportunity to fulfill their dreams and fully participate in the social and economic mainstream of our Nation.
By Mr. COCHRAN (for himself, Mr. FRIST, and Mr. LEAHY): S.J. Res. 5. A joint resolution providing for the appointment of Walter E. Massey as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, today I am introducing a Senate joint resolution appointing a citizen regent to the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution. I am pleased that my fellow member of the Senate, Senator Massey from Tennessee, Mr. FRIST, and the Senator from Vermont, Mr. LEAHY, are cosponsors.

At its meeting on January 22, 2001, the Smithsonian Institution Board of Regents recommended Dr. Walter E. Massey for appointment to the Smithsonian Institution Board of Regents.

I ask unanimous consent that the biography of the nominee and the text of the joint resolution be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S.J. Res. 5
Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. APPOINTMENT OF CITIZEN REGENT OF THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.
(a) In General.—In accordance with section 5581 of the Revised Statutes (20 U.S.C. 43), the vacancy on the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, in the class other than Members of Congress, occurring by reason of the expiration of the term of Frank A. Shrontz of Washington on May 4, 2000, is filled by the appointment of Walter E. Massey of Georgia.
(b) Term.—The appointment is for a term of 6 years beginning on the date of enactment of this joint resolution.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 9—CONDEMNING THE VIOLENCE IN EAST TIMOR AND URGING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AN INTERNATIONAL WAR CRIMES TRIBUNAL FOR PROSECUTING CRIMES AGAINST HUMANITY THAT OCCURRED DURING THAT CONFLICT

Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. Feingold, Mr. Reed, Mr. Leahy, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Wellstone, and Mr. Kohl) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Whereas the people of East Timor experienced an unprovoked and violent attack in the aftermath of a peaceful referendum in which they cast an overwhelming vote for national independence;

Whereas at least 1,000 people were killed, thousands more people were injured, 500,000 people were displaced, much of the infrastructure was damaged, and scores of communities and villages were completely destroyed in East Timor by roving bands of militias and paramilitary organizations;

Whereas some Indonesian military officers and personnel along with some Indonesian civilian police helped to train and arm the militias and paramilitary organizations before and during the violence to terrorize the people of East Timor and destroy their homes, businesses, and personal property;

Whereas the Indonesian ranking military officers and personnel who not only failed to keep the peace in East Timor once the referendum on national independence was conducted but also, in some cases, actually incited violence and participated in widespread killing, rape, forced displacement, mayhem, and wholesale property destruction;

Whereas a number of militia leaders who have been implicated in various crimes against humanity in East Timor continue to operate with impunity in West Timor and throughout Indonesia for the wave of violence, murder, rape, and terror inflicted on the people of East Timor, in part to prepare for the conduct of, or the aftermath of the 1999 referendum;

Whereas Indonesia is a party to the Universal Declaration on Human Rights and other international human rights agreements and is legally obligated to comply with those agreements;

Whereas the continuing failure to investigate, indict, prosecute, and secure convictions and appropriate punishment for those responsible for crimes against humanity and other crimes under internationally-recognized human rights and humanitarian law, and the National Human Rights Commission of Indonesia has limited authority to only investigate such violations;

Whereas, in August, 2000, Indonesia's upper house of parliament passed a constitutional amendment prohibiting retroactivity in prosecutions;

Whereas repeated assurances to the international community and to Congress by the Indonesian government that action against the perpetrators of crimes against humanity in East Timor have produced few noticeable or substantive results; and

Whereas Congress is deeply disturbed that gross violations of the human rights of the people of East Timor and United Nations personnel rendering basic humanitarian services in East and West Timor have gone unpunished since January 1, 1999, and the perpetrators have not been brought to justice: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That (a) Congress—

(A) has occurred in East Timor and in the refugee camps of West Timor since January 1, 1999; and

(B) has resulted in many murders, rapes, and the near-total destruction of East Timor's infrastructure and numerous villages on that troubled island.

(2) deprives the continued existence of an environment of intimidation, misinformation, instability, terror, and fear among the people of East and West Timor, housing tens of thousands of displaced people, many of whom wish to return to East Timor, but are too scared to freely repatriate and return safely to their former homes; and

(3) denounces the leaders of the militias and paramilitary groups who are responsible for the violent attacks, pillaging, and mayhem throughout East and West Timor; and

(4) continues to support the courageous efforts of those in Indonesia working toward domestic prosecutions of the individuals responsible for crimes against humanity in East Timor, but recognizes that these efforts currently face overwhelming obstacles.

(b) It is the sense of Congress that the President and the Secretary of State should—

(1) endorse and support the establishment of an international criminal tribunal for the purpose of prosecuting culpable Indonesian military and police officers and personnel, leaders of local militias and paramilitary organizations, and others who are responsible for crimes against humanity in East Timor, including systemic murder, rape, and terrorism, the unlawful use of force and crimes against United Nations personnel deployed in East Timor and in the refugee camps of West Timor;

(2) direct the pertinent agencies of the executive branch—

(A) to begin collecting and organizing such information (including from intelligence sources), and to provide such appropriate resources, as will be necessary to assist in preparation of indictments and prosecution of cases before an international criminal tribunal; and

(B) to undertake any additional inquiries and investigations that would further such efforts; and

(3) work actively and urgently within the international community to obtain the establishment of a United Nations Security Council resolution establishing an international criminal court for East Timor.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I am joined today by Senators Feingold, Reed, Leahy, Kennedy, and Wellstone in introducing legislation calling for the establishment of an International War Crimes Tribunal for East Timor. We recently passed the first anniversary of the date of a Special United Nations Commission of Inquiry into the Violence and Destruction in East Timor first recommended this course of action.

As many of us know, back in 1999, after many years of military occupation, the people of East Timor were suddenly and brutally attacked immediately after they peacefully cast their overwhelming vote for national independence.

At least 1,000 people were murdered and thousands more were injured. 500,000 people were displaced. And scores of communities and villages in East Timor were destroyed by roving bands of militias and paramilitary organizations. These militias and paramilitary organizations were trained and armed by Indonesian military officers and personnel along with the Indonesian civilian police.

Around this time last year, UN Secretary General Kofi Annan urged us to give the Government of Indonesia time to find and punish these guilty individuals in Indonesia and to demonstrate their cooperation on related criminal investigations and prosecutions with authorities in East Timor and the United Nations Transition Authority in East Timor (UNTAET).

But as I stand here today, not a single individual has been charged or brought to trial in Indonesia for the wave of violence, murder, rape, and terror inflicted on the people of East Timor. Mr. President, I am prepared to conduct the conduct of the 1999 referendum and its aftermath. A number of militia leaders were implicated in these heinous crimes—but they have never been formally charged and brought to trial in Indonesia or East Timor. They continue to operate with impunity in West Timor and throughout Indonesia.

This is unconscionable. We have shown them no mercy or patience, and they have simply done nothing. The time for sitting back and waiting is over, and we must now take decisive and concrete steps to ensure that justice is done.

This legislation I am introducing today is carefully modeled after similar legislation that established the International War Crimes Tribunals for Iraq, the Balkans, and Rwanda. It consists of three parts:

First, it calls upon the Bush Administration to endorse and support the establishment of an international criminal tribunal to prosecute all individuals who are responsible for egregious human rights abuses in East Timor. These abuses include crimes against humanity, ethnic cleansing, including systematic murder, rape, and terrorism, the unlawful use of force, and crimes against United Nations personnel deployed in East Timor and in the refugee camps of West Timor.

Second, it calls upon the Bush Administration to direct pertinent U.S. Government agencies to begin collecting and organizing the necessary evidence and information needed to indict and prosecute these war criminals before an international tribunal.

Finally, the legislation calls upon the Bush Administration to work actively and urgently within the international community to adopt a UN Security Council resolution establishing an international tribunal on East Timor.

In the course of human events, Mr. President, wherever and whenever conflict has resulted in great bloodshed, human suffering, and destruction, there may be real peace established without real justice. The people of East Timor deserve peace—and to establish peace, we must first seek justice.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 10—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA’S UNLAWFUL BAILOUT OF HYUNDAI ELECTRONICS

Mr. CRAIG (for himself, Mr. LOTT, Mr. CRAPO, and Mr. BENNETT) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

Whereas the Government of the Republic of Korea over many years has supplied aid to the Korean semiconductor industry enabling that industry to be the Republic of Korea’s leading export industry;

Whereas this assistance has occurred through a coordinated series of government programs and policies, consisting of preferential access to credit, low-interest loans, government grants, preferential tax programs, government inducement of private sector loans, tariff reductions, and other measures;

Whereas government assistance to the semiconductor industry is part of the preferences, privileges, and immunities accorded by the Korean government to corporate conglomerates, known as chaebols, over several decades;

Whereas the policy of providing assistance to chaebols has resulted in trade-distorting spending and capacity expansion and resulted in massive corporate debt;

Whereas in 1997, the United States, the International Monetary Fund (IMF), other foreign government entities, and a group of commercial institutions assembled an unprecedented $58,000,000,000 financial package to prevent the Korean economy from declaring bankruptcy;

Whereas as part of that rescue package, the Republic of Korea agreed to put an end to corporate cronyism, and to overhaul the banking and financial sectors;

Whereas Korea also pledged to permit and require banks to run on market principles, to allow and enable bankruptcies and workouts to occur rather than bailouts, and to end subsidies;

Whereas the Republic of Korea agreed to all of these provisions in the Stand-by Arrangement with the IMF dated December 3, 1997;

Whereas section 602 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999, as enacted by section 101(d) of Division A of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277; 112 Stat. 2681-220) specified that the United States would not authorize further IMF payments to Korea unless the Secretary of the Treasury certified that the provisions of the IMF Stand-by Arrangement were adhered to;

Whereas the Secretary of the Treasury certified to Congress on December 11, 1998, April 5, 1999, and July 2, 1999 that the Stand-by Arrangement was being adhered to, and assured Congress that consultations had been held with the Government of the Republic of Korea in connection with the certifications;

Whereas the Republic of Korea has acceded to the World Trade Organization, and to the Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures (as defined in section 101(d)(12) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act);

Whereas the Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures specifically prohibits export subsidies, and actionable other subsidies bestowed upon a specific enterprise that causes adverse effects;

Whereas Hyundai Electronics is a major exporter of semiconductor products from the Republic of Korea to the United States; and

Whereas the Republic of Korea has now engaged in a massive $2,100,000,000 bailout of Hyundai Electronics which contravenes the commitments the Government of the Republic of Korea made to the IMF, the World Trade Organization, the other agreements, and the understandings and certifications made to Congress under the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That Congress—

(1) believes strongly that the relationship between the United States and Republic of Korea has been and will continue to be harmed significantly by the bailout of a major exporter of products from Korea to the United States;

(2) calls on the Republic of Korea to immediately end the bailout of Hyundai Electronics;

(3) calls on the Republic of Korea to comply immediately with its commitments to the IMF, with its trade agreements, and with the assurances it made to the Secretary of the Treasury;

(4) calls on the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Commerce, and the United States Trade Representative to take immediately such action as is necessary to assure that the unlawful bailout by the Republic of Korea is stopped, and its effects fully offset; and

(5) calls on the United States Trade Representative and the Secretary of Commerce to monitor and report to Congress on steps that have been taken to end this bailout and reverse its effects.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Senate regarding the Republic of Korea’s unlawful bailout of Hyundai Electronics, an issue of great concern to me and, I believe, should be of concern to the Senate. I rise to introduce this resolution with my colleagues Mr. LOTT, Mr. CRAPO, and Mr. BENNETT.

In 1997, the International Monetary Fund, in cooperation with the United States and a group of financial institutions, put together an unprecedented $58 billion financial package to prevent the Korean economy from bankruptcy. As a part of that rescue package, the Korean government implemented specific reforms aimed at addressing the problems that led to the economic crisis in the first place.

In recent weeks, the Korean government has decided to break completely with the policies that it has adopted over the past three years and is promising to provide a $2.1 billion bailout of Hyundai Electronics. This action not only runs contrary to the stated policy of the Korean government but also flies in the face of the government’s clear assurances that this sort of wholesale bailout would not happen.

This resolution is necessary because the present actions of the Korean government are a flagrant violation of Korea’s international commitments. The Hyundai bailout violates Korea’s International Monetary Fund Agreement; the World Trade Organization Agreement, on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures; U.S. legislation to stop subsidies to the semiconductor industry in Korea; Section 301 of the U.S. trade laws, and U.S. countervailing duty laws. This unlawful and unwise bailout must be stopped.

The conditions of the IMF Agreement are clear. The corporate governance provision of the IMF Agreement required Korea to end government-directed lending companies; to stop government subsidized support or tax privileges to bail out individual companies; to reduce the high debt-to-equity ratios of corporations; to reduce mutual guarantees within conglomerates; and to permit Korean bankruptcy laws to operate without interference from the government.

The government’s special waiver of the debt ceiling for Hyundai Electronic is a violation of Korea’s commitment not to interfere in the lending practices of private banks and not to provide subsidies. The audacious Korean government announcement on January 3, 2001 dropped every pretense of legitimacy by notifying the intend to provide for the outright bailout of Hyundai. In a press statement, the government announced that the Korean Development Bank, a Korean government-owned investment and development bank, would purchase $2.1 billion of Hyundai Electronic corporate bonds over the next twelve months. The move was clearly aimed at keeping Hyundai from defaulting on its massive debt. This action is outrageous and demands the immediate attention of the Korean government as well as Congress and the Administration.

The bailout violates Korea’s commitments under the World Trade Organization Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures. Korea’s assistance to Hyundai Electronics, including the purchase of Hyundai’s corporate bonds, the waiver of the bank lending limitations, and the increase in the limits on export loans, are all violations of Korea’s SCM commitments, and are subject to WTO dispute settlement challenge. The assistance to Hyundai is a prohibited Export Subsidy, and meets the Adverse Effects or “injury” test. That violates the conditions of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, Public Law 105-277. Section 602 required that the U.S. Secretary of the Treasury certify that Korea was in compliance with IMF stand-stand-stand-by arrangement provisions, including those I mentioned earlier, and that no IMF funds were being used to provide assistance to the semiconductor industry, among others. In enacting this provision, the Congress acknowledged the risk that, in the midst of the financial crisis, the Korean government would continue to attempt to keep non-viable companies afloat through directed lending and subsidies. The purpose of the provision was to create an enforcement mechanism for the IMF stand-by arrangement provisions, by providing for the withholding of U.S. support for further financial assistance to Korea, if the government violated the provisions of Section 602.

The Treasury Secretary made several certifications pursuant to Section 602, making them prior to each remaining disbursement of IMF loans to Korea. In these certifications, Secretary Rubin certified to Congress that Korea was implementing reforms that the U.S. government had agreed to in its IMF loan agreement and also that IMF funds were not being used to provide subsidies to the semiconductor industry. In recent weeks, the Korean government has violated both the letter and the spirit of Section 602, directly frustrating Congressional intent. The Korean government has said that it will not make any further draws on the stand-by credits from the IMF, so the U.S. government does not have the leverage of threatening to stop future loan disbursements under the current IMF program. In sum, they have taken American tax dollars and run, without fulfilling the commitments they made. It’s an outrage.

The assistance to Hyundai Electronics is a subsidy under the U.S. countervailing duty law. The benefits received by Hyundai under the Korea government’s bailout program constitute a countervailable subsidy under the U.S. countervailing duty law. Section 771(5) provides that a subsidy is one that “provides a financial contribution . . . to a person and a benefit is thereby conferred.” This financial contribution can include “the direct transfer of funds, such as grants, loans, and equity infusions, or the potential direct transfer of funds or liabilities, such as loan guarantees.” The statute also specifies that the determination of whether a subsidy exists shall be made “without regard to whether the subsidy is provided directly or indirectly on the manufacture, production, export or merchandise.” Thus, a subsidy can exist even if the government does not directly provide the money, but directs a bank to provide the subsidy.

The statute also specifies that a benefit “shall normally be treated as conferred where there is a benefit to the recipient.” In the case of a loan, there would be a benefit if there is a difference between the amount the recipient of the loan pays on the loan and the amount the recipient would pay on a comparable commercial loan that the recipient could actually obtain on the market. (Further, 19 U.S.C. 1677(5)(E)(ii). Thus, in the case of Hyundai, since the Commerce Department, when determining whether a program is a countervailable subsidy, looks to the benefit to the recipient rather than the cost to the provider of the subsidy.

In the case of Hyundai Electronics, the company would not be able to obtain any loans “in the market” absent government intervention. Private concerns are reluctantly willing to roll over Hyundai’s debt only because the government is propping it up. In short, because of the preferential financing Hyundai receives under these government actions, and because of the very substantial size of the loans in question, Commerce’s investigation of these programs in the course of a countervailing duty proceeding would be almost certain to find substantial subsidy margins.

In conclusion, Mr. President, I am extremely disappointed in Korea’s actions. It is clear that Korea is purposefully circumventing the will and intent as well as the spirit and letter of the IMF agreement the World Trade Organization Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Measures. U.S. legislation to stop subsidies to the semiconductor industry in Korea, and U.S. countervailing duty laws.

Korea must not be permitted to backtrack on the reforms it made that were requirements for IMF and U.S. assistance, just because it is no longer drawing on those loans. The very purpose of the reform measure was to put Korea on stable financial footing. Now Korea is unraveling its reform measures, in order to prevent a failing company from going bankrupt. Such actions cannot be overlooked, but should be dealt within the strongest possible manner.

I am very disappointed that the Korean government has acted in bad faith with respect to its commitments. The U.S. Administration and the U.S. Congress must work together to find an effective and just response to Korea’s action. This bailout undermines Korea’s credibility in international financial circles and threatens the bilateral economic relationship between the United States and Korea. It must be stopped.

Mr. President, I would not come to the floor and speak in these terms, nor would I have gained the sponsorship by key leaders here in the Senate that I have, if we did not think this was important. American taxpayers willing to help stabilize the world economy and willing to help stabilize its friends in the world by contributing $58 billion for these purposes, in working with the International Monetary Fund and the World Trade Organization, should not now be ignored, nor should what we have said be ignored in this process.

With that, I introduce this Senate concurrent resolution speaking to that very issue.

SENATE RESOLUTION 19—TO EXPRESS THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE FEDERAL INVESTMENT IN BIOMEDICAL RESEARCH SHOULD BE INCREASED BY $3,400,000,000 IN FISCAL YEAR 2002

Mr. SPECTER (for himself, Mr. HARKIN, Ms. MIRKULSI, Mr. FRIST, Mr. HARRIS, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. SANTORUM, and Mrs. MURRAY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

8. Rights

Whereas past investments in biomedical research have resulted in better health, an improved quality of life for all Americans and a reduction in national health care expenditures;

Whereas the Nation’s commitment to biomedical research has expanded the base of scientific knowledge about health and disease and revolutionized the practice of medicine;

Whereas the Federal Government represents the single largest contributor to biomedical research conducted in the United States;

Whereas biomedical research continues to play a vital role in the growth of this Nation’s biotechnology, medical device, and pharmaceutical industries;

Whereas the origin of many of the new drugs and medical devices currently in use is based in biomedical research supported by the National Institutes of Health;

Whereas women have traditionally been under-represented in medical research protocols and are severely affected by diseases including breast cancer, claimed the lives of 40,800 women last year; ovarian cancer
Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition today to introduce, with my distinguished colleague, Senator HARKIN, an important resolution calling for increased funding for the National Institutes of Health, to keep the momentum on track to reach my goal of $2.3 billion by the fiscal year 2003. Specifically, the resolution calls for the fiscal year 2002 budget resolution to include an additional $3.4 billion in the health function, to be allocated for biomedical research at the National Institutes of Health.

As chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee for Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies, I have said many times that the National Institutes of Health is the crown jewel of the Federal Government—perhaps the only jewel of the Federal Government. When I came to the Senate in 1981, NIH spending totaled $3.6 billion. Today, funding is $50.3 billion. This money has been well spent, and advances realized by the National Institutes of Health has spawned tremendous breakthroughs in our knowledge and treatment for diseases such as cancer, Alzheimer’s disease, Parkinson’s disease, severe mental illness, diabetes, osteoporosis, heart disease, and many others. It is clear that a substantial investment in the NIH is paying off and that it is crucial that increased funding be continued in order to convert these advances into treatment and cures.

The effort to double NIH began on May 21, 1997, when the Senate passed a sense-of-the-Senate resolution stating that funding for the National Institutes of Health be doubled over five years. Regrettably, even though the resolution was passed by an overwhelming vote of 98 to nothing, the budget resolution was passed by an over-whelming vote of 98 to nothing, the budget resolution contained a $100 million reduction for health programs. That led to the introduction of an amendment to the resolution by myself and Senator HARKIN to add $1.1 billion to carry out the expressed sense of the Senate to increase NIH funding. Our amendment, however, was defeated 63–37. We were extremely disappointed that, while the Senate had expressed its druthers on a resolution, they were simply unwilling to put up the actual dollars to accomplish this vital goal.

The following year, during debate on the budget resolution, Senator HARKIN and I again introduced an amendment to the budget resolution which called for a $2 billion increase for the National Institutes of Health. While we gained more support on this vote than in the previous year, our amendment was again defeated by a vote of 57–41. Not to be deterred, Senator HARKIN and I again went to work with our Subcommittee and we were able to add an additional $2 billion to the NIH account for fiscal year 1999.

In fiscal year 2000, Senator HARKIN and I again offered an amendment to the budget resolution to add $1.4 billion to the health accounts, over and above the $600 million increase which had already been provided by the Budget Committee. Despite this amendment’s defeat by a vote of 47–52, we were able to provide in the appropriations bill a $2.3 billion increase for fiscal year 2000. And late last night negotiations with the House, the funding for NIH was cut by $200 million below that amount.

This brief history of defeats and victories brings us to where we are today. The amount necessary to keep us on track to double NIH funding will require $3.4 billion for fiscal year 2002. I believe that this goal can be achieved if we make the proper allocation of our resources.

Our investment has resulted in tremendous advances in medical research. A new generation of AIDS drugs are reducing the presence of the AIDS virus in HIV infected persons to nearly undetectable levels. New treatments derived from cancer have begun a steady decline. With the sequencing of the human genome, we will begin, over the next few years, to reap the benefits in many fields of research as analysis continues. And if scientists are correct, stem cell research could result in a veritable fountain of youth in replacing diseased cells. I anxiously await the results of all of these avenues of remarkable research.

I, like millions of Americans, have benefited tremendously from the investment we have made in the National Institutes of Health. That is why I offer this resolution today—to call for $2 billion for FY01. However, after late night negotiations with the House, the funding for NIH was cut by $200 million below that amount.

This resolution may be cited as the ‘Biomedical Revitalization Resolution of 2001’.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE, SCIENCE, AND TRANSPORTATION

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation be authorized to meet on Tuesday, February 13, 2001, at 9 a.m. on airline customer service.

APPOINTMENTS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair, on behalf of the President pro tempore, pursuant to Public Law 106–398 and in consultation with the chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services and the Senate Committee on Finance, appoints the following individuals as members of the United States-China Security Review Commission:

Mr. CHEN, U. A. Le, of Maryland; Roger W. Robinson, Jr., of Maryland; and Arthur Waldron, of Pennsylvania.

The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to Public Law 94–398 and in consultation with the chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services and the Senate Committee on Finance, appoints the following Senators as members of the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe (Helsinki) during the 107th Congress: The Senator from Texas (Mrs. Hutchison), the Senator from Kansas (Mr. Bond), the Senator from Oregon (Mr. Smith), and the Senator from Ohio (Mr. Voinovich).

The Chair, on behalf of the majority leader, pursuant to Public Law 106–550, announces the appointment of the following individuals to serve as members of the James Madison Commemoration Commission Advisory Committee: Steven G. Calabresi of Illinois, and Forrest McDonald of Alabama.

ORDERS FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 2001

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 10 a.m. on Wednesday, February 14, I further ask unanimous consent that immediately following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. 320, regarding technical changes to patent and copyright laws. A vote is expected to occur on passage of that piece of legislation at approximately 3 p.m. Also, the Senate could consider the Paul Coverdell Peace Corps bill and the small business advocacy bill. Therefore, votes can and should be expected to occur.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:08 p.m., adjourned until Wednesday, February 14, 2001, at 10 a.m.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

ACHIEVEMENTS OF KIMBERLY STEVENSON

HON. RONNIE SHOWS OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to take a minute to tell my fellow colleagues and the American people about Kimberly Stevenson of McComb, Mississippi. Kimberly is a young student from my district who has achieved national recognition for exemplary volunteer service. She has been named one of my State’s top honorees in the 2001 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program, an annual honor conferred on the most impressive student volunteers in each state.

In light of numerous statistics that indicate Americans today are less involved in their communities than they once were, it’s vital that we encourage and support the kind of selfless contribution this young citizen has made. People of all ages need to think more about how we, as individual citizens, can work together at the local level to ensure the health and vitality of our towns and neighborhoods. Young volunteers like Ms. Stevenson are inspiring examples to all of us, and are among our brightest hopes for a better tomorrow.

Ms. Stevenson should be extremely proud to have been singled out from such a large group of dedicated volunteers. I heartily applaud Ms. Stevenson for her initiative in seeking to make her community a better place to live, and for the positive impact she has had on the lives of others. She has demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is truly extraordinary in today’s world, and deserves our sincere admiration and respect.

Her actions show that young Americans can—and do—play important roles in our communities, and that America’s volunteer spirit continues to hold tremendous promise for the future.

A TRIBUTE TO MS. AMBER VICKERY

HON. JULIA CARSON OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Ms. CARSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate and honor a young Indiana student from my district who has achieved national recognition for exemplary volunteer service in her community. Ms. Amber Vickery of Indianapolis has just been named one of my State’s top honorees in the 2001 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program, an annual honor conferred on the most impressive student volunteers in each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Ms. Vickery is being recognized for organizing and teaching a cooking class for children with a protein disorder who must follow a strict diet.

In light of numerous statistics that indicate Americans today are less involved in their communities than they once were, it’s vital that we encourage and support the kind of selfless contribution this young citizen has made. People of all ages need to think more about how we, as individual citizens, can work together at the local level to ensure the health and vitality of our towns and neighbors. Young volunteers like Ms. Vickery are inspiring examples to all of us, and are among our brightest hopes for a better tomorrow.

The program that brought this young role model to our attention—the Prudential Spirit of Community Awards—was created by the Prudential Insurance Company of America in partnership with the National Association of Secondary School Principals in 1995 to impress upon all youth volunteers that their contributions are critically important and highly valued, and to inspire other young people to follow their example. Over the past six years, the program has become the nation’s largest youth recognition effort based solely on community service, with nearly 100,000 young people participating since its inception.

Ms. Vickery should be extremely proud to have been singled out from such a large group of dedicated volunteers. I heartily applaud Ms. Vickery for her initiative in seeking to make her community a better place to live, and for the positive impact she has had on the lives of others. She has demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is truly extraordinary in today’s world, and deserves our sincere admiration and respect.

Her actions show that young Americans can—and do—play important roles in our communities, and that America’s community spirit continues to hold tremendous promise for the future.

A PROCLAMATION RECOGNIZING WILLIAM E. CHANEY

HON. ROBERT W. NEY
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I commend the following article to my colleagues:

Whereas, William E. Chaney currently serves as president of the Ohio Hills Health Services’ Board of Trustees; and,

Whereas, through Mr. Chaney’s twenty-five years of leadership and selfless commitment to the people of Ohio, he has received prompt, courteous, and affordable health care; and,

A BILL TO CLARIFY THE TAX TREATMENT OF CONTRIBUTIONS IN AID OF CONSTRUCTION

HON. WALLY HERGER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, I am introducing legislation today, along with Mr. MATSUI and Mrs. JOHNSON, to ensure that needless Treasury regulation does not add unnecessarily to the cost of housing.

The need for this legislation is brought about because the Department of Treasury has issued regulations to provide guidance on the definition of CIAC as enacted under the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996. Despite the fact that Congress specifically removed language concerning “customer services” fees in its amendment in 1996, the Department added the language back into the proposed regulation specifying that such fees are CIAC. They then defined the term very broadly to include service laterals, which traditionally and under the most common state law treatment would be considered CIAC.

Because state regulators require all of the costs of new connections to be paid up front, these regulations will force water and sewerage utilities to collect the federal tax from homeowners, builders, and small municipalities. Because they collect it upfront, the utility is forced to “gross up” the tax by collecting a tax on the tax on the tax, resulting in an over 55 percent effective tax rate.

This bill will clarify that water and sewerage service laterals are included in the definition of contributions in aid of construction (CIAC). It clarifies current law by specifically stating that “customer service fees” are CIAC, but maintains current treatment of service charges for stopping and starting service (not CIAC). Because this is a clarification of current law, the effective date for the bill is as if included in the original legislation (Section 1613(a) of the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996).

Mr. MATSUI and Mrs. JOHNSON along with many of our colleagues here in the Chamber, worked hard over the course of a number of years to restore the pre-1986 act tax treatment for water and sewage CIAC. In 1996, we succeeded in passing legislation. It was identical to pre-1986 law with three exceptions. Two of the changes were made in response to a Treasury Department request. The third removed the language dealing with “service connection fees” primarily because of potential confusion resulting from the ambiguity of the term. The sponsors of the legislation were concerned that the IRS would use this ambiguity to exclude a portion of what the state regulators consider CIAC.

As part of our efforts, we developed a revenue raiser in cooperation with the industry to make up any revenue loss due to our legislation, including the three changes. This revenue raiser extended the life, and changed the method, for depreciating water utility property.
from 20 year accelerated to 25-year straight-line depreciation. As a consequence of this sacrifice by the industry, our CIAC change made a net $274 million contribution toward deficit reduction.

It is my belief that the final revenue estimate done by the Joint Committee on Taxation on the extension of CIAC included all property treated as CIAC by the industry regulators including specifically service laterals. In an October 11, 1995, letter to Senator GRASSLEY the Joint Committee on Taxation provided revenue estimates for the CIAC legislation. A footnote in this letter states: “These estimates have been revisited to reflect more recent data.”

The industry had only recently supplied the committee with comprehensive data, which reflected total CIAC in the industry including service laterals. I urge my colleagues to join with us in sponsoring this important legislation in order to ensure that American homeowners do not face further burdens.

TRIBUTE TO THE INDEPENDENT ORDER OF FORESTERS, HIGH COURT OF THE CALIFORNIA NORTH/NEVADA NORTH

HON. GEORGE MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues and I are recognizing The Independent Order of Foresters, High Court of the California North/Nevada North, on the occasion of their 43rd Quadrennial Session, for their commitment to providing fraternal and community services to their members and the northern California and Nevada communities.

The concept of Forestry originated hundreds of years ago when people formed groups called Friendly Societies to provide help for one another in times of distress. Based on the spirit of brotherhood and the desire to help in times of need, each family contributed to a fund from which they could draw when emergencies arose. In 1874 in Newark, NJ, a group of people carrying on these early traditions of mutual aid and fraternity started the Independent Order of Foresters.

Today, the 35,000 members of the California North/Nevada North IOF play a variety of roles in our neighborhoods and communities. IOF members are involved in youth scouting and athletic activities, fund-raising for nonprofit organizations, and confronting child abuse through community education and direct service to children and families in crisis. These are people who care about and are engaged in their communities. This past year, the IOF has sponsored numerous organizations, including the Solano and Contra Costa Food Bank, the Make A Wish Foundation, the Atkinson Youth Center, the Young Life Caperium, Meals on Wheels, the Boys and Girls Club Shelter for Battered Women and Samaritan House, Young Life, the Yellow Brick House, Silver Dollar Court, and the Children’s Crisis Center. The California North/Nevada North IOF meets February 24, 2001, to celebrate their years of commitment to their families and communities. I know I speak for all Members when I thank the IOF for their positive contributions to our communities and wish them continued success in their endeavors.

A TRIBUTE TO STEVEN R. MEYERS, SAN LEANDRO CITY ATTORNEY

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I commend Steve Meyers, upon his retirement after twenty-three years, for dedicated service to the city of San Leandro. Mr. Meyers has served as City Attorney and Redevelopment Agency Counsel to the city of San Leandro since 1979. He has worked with six mayors and four city managers during his tenure as City Attorney and Agency Counsel and has played a central role in many projects during his employment with the city. He has negotiated a number of real estate transactions for both the city and the Redevelopment Agency, which have resulted in achievements such as affordable housing and business expansion in San Leandro.

Mr. Meyers graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara and received his J.D. degree from the University of California Hastings College of the Law, where he was a member of the Order of the Coif. Upon his graduation in 1973, Mr. Meyers devoted his practice to municipal law serving in the Sacramento City Attorney’s Office until moving to San Leandro in 1977. He is admitted to practice in the State courts and the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Meyers was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the State Bar Public Law Section in 1994 and served as editor of the Public Law Journal. He has served on the Legislation Committee of the City Attorneys Department of the League of California Cities; served as president of the Bay Area City Attorney’s Association and is a recipient of the John J. McCoy Fellowship in Urban Studies. He is currently chairman of the Board of the Bay Planning Coalition.

Upon his retirement from his position with the city of San Leandro, Mr. Meyers assumed the role of Special Counsel to the City on January 1, 2001. I join his friends and colleagues in thanking him for his past contributions and wishing him well in his continued service to the community of San Leandro.

MEDICARE OSTEOPOROSIS MEASUREMENT ACT OF 2001

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Medicare Osteoporosis Measurement Act of 2001. This Act will extend bone density screening to men—as opposed to just women—being treated for prostate cancer, as well as groups of Medicare-eligible individuals clinically at risk for osteoporosis. Testosterone, the male sex hormone, is a major factor in stimulating the growth of prostate cancer. Testosterone suppression therapy is a well respected and often used treatment to control advanced prostate cancer. Unfortunately, the treatment also predisposes these men to osteoporosis.

Although osteoporosis is commonly thought of as a disease that affects only women, about one third of all men will suffer an osteoporotic fracture in their lifetime. These men often do not know that they are at risk until a bone fracture occurs because external symptoms are rarely present. This could be prevented with a simple and cost-effective test. The cost of bone density screening is less than $200 and would be an effective way to decrease the $14 billion spent each year on direct medical costs for osteoporosis and related fractures.

Osteoporosis affects more than five million men in the U.S. Early detection is a key component in containing the human and economic cost of this disease. Please join me in supporting this legislation to bring parity to the Medicare program and help combat this preventable disease.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. TIM JOHNSON
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, on January 3, 2001, I inadvertently missed a vote on rollcall 4, adopting the rules package. Had I cast my vote, I would have voted in favor of the measure. Please accept this unanimous consent request and have the RECORD show my intent.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to honor Black History Month for 2001. Beginning in 1926 we have set aside a special time to celebrate Black History. Mr. Carter G. Woodson established this period for one week in February, the month that includes the birthdays of President Lincoln and Frederick Douglass, both of whom made immense contributions to civil rights. Today, we set aside the entire month of February to celebrate Black History, and the men and women who have made that history. So many of these men and women have yet to receive the credit which they justly deserve for their many contributions. As this new millennium goes forward we must continue to educate our country of these outstanding great African-American men and women.

African-Americans have been fighting for the United States since before our Independence was declared and have continued throughout the course of history. The first American to lose his life to the Revolution was Crispus Attucks, a free black man of Boston, Massachusetts during the infamous Boston massacre. Since then, African-Americans have served in every great war fought to preserve the Union during the Civil War, and at least 400,000 African-American men fought in World War I. During World War II more than 1 million African-American men served in the Armed Forces, and at least 4,000 women also served the U.S.

African-Americans have also taken leadership roles and involved themselves in the politics of the nation. During the 19th century, many African-Americans were Abolitionists fighting against the injustices of slavery. Some examples of these great abolitionists included Frederick Douglass, a former slave and established writer, and Harriet Tubman and Sojourner Truth, who helped organize the Underground Railroad as well as for the rights of women.

After the success of the Civil War, African Americans such as W.E.B. DuBois and Booker T. Washington fought to bring the lingering discrimination to its de facto conclusion. They wrote and spoke out against the Jim Crow laws of the south. Their intentions were furthered towards the latter half of the 20th century by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X, both of whom fought for racial equality in a country that still had not reached its potential. Because of these accomplishments, there are now many African-American men and women serving in the United States Congress. We have had in our Supreme Court and still have African-American Justices, beginning with Justice Marshall and currently with Justice Thomas. And with the new administration, we just ushered in, we have Colin Powell, the first African-American Secretary of State, and Condoleezza Rice as our National Security Adviser.

African-American men and women have contributed greatly to other facets of our society, capabilities, and for future generations. They have been artists, musicians, athletes, educators and scientists. Jackie Robinson was the first African-American to play for a major league baseball team and will be memorialized as the man who broke the color barrier. Today, there are African-American athletic heroes like NBA star Michael Jordan and Marion Jones, member of the U.S. Olympic team. With the onset of the Harlem Renaissance musicians like Scott Joplin and Ella Fitzgerald flourished, leading the way for other African-American musicians. Writers like Zora Neale Hurston and Langston Hughes led the way for contemporary writers such as Toni Morrison. Many African-Americans have taken great strides in science and medicine. Dr. Charles Richard Drew organized the concept of blood banks and ran the first full time blood bank during World War II. Several African-American men and women have worked with our Space Program including Dr. Mae C. Jamison, the first African-American female astronaut.

In my home in Orange County, NY, a recently published book entitled “Genealogical History of Black Families of Orange County” by local author Robert W. Brennan, traces the history of our local African-American families. It underscores the bittersweet truth that the crime of slavery was NOT, as many lead us to believe, an unpopular crime against humanity confined to certain southern states. In fact, the book makes clear that while slavery was abolished in New York State on July 4, 1827, the lingering residue of racial bigotry continued for many, many years afterwards—and, in some ways, right up to the present.

Black History Month is an appropriate time to look forward as well as to the past. We must continue to fight against inequalities. We must continue to push all of our children to reach their potential and to achieve their goals.

Our society’s strength rests within all its inhabitants. Today, and throughout this month we rightfully honor the African-Americans who have made and are making a great contribution as well as of all of humanity. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues and all Americans to express their appreciation for the contributions African-Americans have made to our nation.

NATIONAL CHILD PASSENGER SAFETY

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, today I reintroduce legislation that I believe is vital to the safety of our children as they make their way to and from school. The introduction of this legislation is especially timely as we observe National Child Passenger Safety Week, February 12th-16th.

Each day, parents in this country send their children off to school believing their young ones will arrive safely. However, since 1985, close to 1,500 people have died in school bus related accidents. These numbers reveal the need for action to make school buses safer. Both the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American College of Emergency Physicians gave their support and endorsement to identical legislation in the last session of Congress.

The basic design of the large yellow school bus has not been changed since 1977. While the design of high-back padded seats known as “compartmentalization” provides protection in head-on collisions, it does nothing to secure passengers during rear-end, side-impact and rollover collisions. In these situations, children can be thrown from their seats, into one another or into aisles, blocking quick evacuation. My legislation would require seat belts on school buses by prohibiting the manufacture, sale, delivery, or importation of school buses without seat belts. In addition, the measure would impose civil penalties for those that do not comply.

Daily, 23.5 million children are taken to and from schools and school-related activities by roughly 440,000 public school buses. Since these buses travel nearly 4.3 billion miles each year with young people on board, it is imperative that every precaution be taken to ensure their safety.

Since I last introduced this legislation, the states of Florida, Louisiana, and California have joined the states of New Jersey and New York to require seat belts on school buses. I commend the action of these states, and I urge my fellow colleagues to support the legislation to help make the trip to and from school safer for all of our nation’s school children.

MR. AMIGO 2000

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I wish today to commend the 2000 “Mr. Amigo,” Jorge Muñiz, chosen recently by the Mr. Amigo Association of Brownsville, TX, and Matamoros, Tamaulipas, in Mexico. Each year the Mr. Amigo Association honors a Mexican citizen with the title of “Mr. Amigo,” and that person acts as a goodwill ambassador between our countries. Their selection honors a man or woman who has made a lasting contribution during the previous year to international solidarity and goodwill. “Mr. Amigo” presides over the annual Charro Days Festival.

The Charro Days Festival is a pre-Lenten event, much like Mardi Gras in New Orleans, held in Brownsville and Matamoros. Charro Days festivities last for several days; this year they will be February 23–27 and will include parades and appearances by Mr. Muñiz. Charro Days is an opportunity to enjoy the unique border culture of the Rio Grande Valley area. As Mr. Amigo 2000, Muñiz will head the international parade of Brownsville Charro Days and Matamoros Fiestas Mexicanas festivities.

During Charro Days, South Texans celebrate the food, music, dances, and traditions of both the United States and Mexico. The United States-Mexican border has a unique, blended history of cowboys, bandits, lawmen, farmers, fishermen, oil riggers, soldiers, scientists, entrepreneurs, and teachers.

The border has its own language and customs. On both sides of the border, there is a deep sense of history, much of which the border has seen from the front row. We have seen war and peace; we have known prosperity and bad times. Charro Days is a time for all of us to reflect on our rich history, to remember our past and to celebrate our future. The Mr. Amigo Award began in 1964 as an annual tribute to an outstanding Mexican citizen.

The 2000 Mr. Amigo, Mr. Muñiz, is a singer and TV host. The selection of Jorge Muñiz, cohost of the weekly music TV show “Al fin de semana,” comes almost 10 years after his father, another Mexican singer, Marco Antonio Muñiz, also served as Mr. Amigo. The realization that he followed his father with this honor was quite emotional for him.

He has recorded 12 albums over a 20-year span in the music and entertainment industry. Affectionately known as “Coque,” Mr. Muñiz is one of the most liked and recognized personalities not only in Mexico but the rest of the continent. During his career, he has shared the stage with well-known personalities such as: Marco Antonio Muñiz (his father), Cecilia Gallardo, and Alberto Vasquez. His theater credits also include projects with legends like Lucha Villa, Maria Victoria, and the late Paco Stanley.

I urge my colleagues to join me in commending Jorge Muñiz, the 2000 Mr. Amigo, as well as the cities of Brownsville and Matamoros, for their dedication to international goodwill between the United States and Mexico.

HONORING MAYOR GARTH G. GARDNER OF HOUSTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. NAPOLITANO. Mr. Speaker, I wish to honor a truly remarkable public servant in my Congressional district. Mayor Garth G. Gardner is retiring as mayor of Pico Rivera, Calif., capping off a public career that expands nearly 50 years.

Mr. Gardner was born on September 25, 1922 in Carbon County, Utah, graduating from Carbon County High School in 1940. After attending Carbon County Junior College for two years, Mr. Gardner enlisted in the U.S. Air Force. Based in New Guinea in the South Pacific, he flew 29 missions against the enemy in a B-24 liberator, with a crew of 10 service-men. For his acts of bravery and honor during World War II, I presented Mayor Gardner with the Purple Heart Medal on Veterans Day, November 11, 2000.

Following his return to the United States, Mr. Gardner married Mary Ponti on December 30, 1945. Six days after his marriage, Garth was discharged from the U.S. Air Force and soon began pursuing a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from the University of Southern California, graduating in 1948. Following his graduation, Mr. Gardner settled in Pico Rivera, where he raised his three sons.

Mayor Gardner began his career working for the Los Angeles County Flood Control District for 25 years and retired from the County in 1976. Elected to the Pico Rivera City Council in 1972, Mayor Gardner has been re-elected every four years and will serve until his retirement next month. Also, during his tenure on the City Council, Mr. Gardner served as Mayor in 1974, 1977, 1982, 1987, 1991, 1995, 1998 and 2000. Mayor Gardner has also served on numerous commissions and coalitions throughout his public career. I am truly honored to know and have worked with Mayor Gardner during his illustrious career and wish him and his family much happiness in the future.

TRIBUTE TO DR. HAROLD NOVOG

HON. ANTHONY D. WEINER
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, I pay tribute to Dr. Harold Novog who will celebrate his 70th birthday on February 17, 2001. Dr. Novog is the first detoxification unit. As a medical director of Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in 1987 remaining there until his retirement in July 2000. While at Columbia Presbyterian he became, in the truest sense, a “doctor’s doctor,” responsible for the health care of the hospital’s staff.

Dr. Novog’s exemplary service to the New York community is greatly appreciated. His dedication to medicine, his professional integrity and his commitment to the highest standards of patient care have earned him the acclaim and respect of staff and patients alike. As he commemorates this significant milestone, it is indeed an honor for me to join with Dr. Novog’s family, friends and colleagues in conveying my warmest birthday wishes. Dr. Novog has my heartiest personal congratulations. I ask you to join me in honoring Dr. Novog for his distinguished career in serving others.

RECOGNITION OF EXEMPLARY STUDENT VOLUNTEER

HON. TIM JOHNSON
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate and honor a young Illinois student from my district who has achieved national recognition for exemplary volunteer service in her community. Allison Harms of Bloomington has just been named one of my state’s top honorees in the 2001 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program, an annual honor conferred on the most impressive student volunteers in each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Ms. Harms is being recognized for her creation of “Sew On and Sew Forth,” an organization that provides hand-sewn items such as quilts, teddy bears, pillows, and clothing to the sick and needy in her community.

In light of numerous statistics that indicate Americans today are less involved in their communities than they once were, it’s vital that we encourage and support the kind of selfless contribution this citizen has made. People of all ages need to think more about how we, as individual citizens, can work together at the local level to ensure the health and vitality of our towns and neighborhoods.

Young volunteers like Ms. Harms are inspiring examples to all of us, and are among our brightest hopes for a better tomorrow.

The program that brought this young role model to our attention—the Prudential Spirit of Community Awards—was created by the Prudential Insurance Company of America in partnership with the National Association of Secondary School Principals in 1995 to impress upon all youth volunteers that their contributions are critically important and highly valued, and to inspire other young people to follow their example. Over the past 6 years, the program has become the nation’s largest youth recognition effort based solely on community service, with nearly 100,000 youngsters participating since its inception.

Ms. Harms should be extremely proud to have been singled out from such a large group of dedicated volunteers. I heartily applaud Allison Harms for her initiative in seeking and gaining national recognition to make her contribution to life, and for the positive impact she has had on the lives of others. She has demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is truly extraordinary in today’s world, and deserves our sincere admiration and respect.

Her actions show that young Americans can—and do—play important roles in our communities, and that America’s community spirit continues to hold tremendous promise for the future.

MEDITERRANEAN MENTAL ILLNESS NON-DISCRIMINATION ACT

HON. MARGE ROUKEMA
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, today I am reintroducing the Medicare Mental Illness Non-Discrimination Act, legislation to end the historic discrimination against Medicare beneficiaries seeking outpatient treatment for mental illness. I first introduced this bill in the 106th Congress, and I am pleased to again sponsor anti-discrimination legislation in the 107th Congress.

Medicare law now requires patients to pay a 20 percent copayment for Part B services. However, the 20 percent copayment is not the standard for outpatient psychotherapy services. For these services, Section 1833(c) of the Social Security Act requires patients to pay an effective discriminatory copayment of 50 percent.

Let me explain this another way: If a Medicare patient has an office visit to an endocrinologist for treatment for diabetes, or an oncologist for cancer treatment, or a cardiologist for heart disease, or an internist for the flu, the copayment is 20 percent. But if a Medicare patient has an office visit to a psychiatrist or other physician for treatment for major depression, bipolar disorder, schizophrenia, or any other illness diagnosed as a mental illness, the copayment for the outpatient visit for treatment of the mental illness is 50 percent. The same discriminatory copayment is applied to qualified services by a clinical psychologist or clinical social worker. This is quite simply discrimination. It is time for Congress to say “enough.”

U.S. Surgeon General David Satcher, M.D., Ph.D. recently released a landmark study on mental illness. The Surgeon General’s report is an extraordinary document that details the depth and breadth of mental illness in this country. According to Dr. Satcher, “mental disorders collectively account for more than 15 percent of the overall burden of disease from all causes and slightly more than the burden associated with all forms of cancer.” The burden of mental illness on patients and their families is considerable. The World Health Organization reports that one in four Americans who commit suicide ranks second only to heart disease in the burden of disease measured by “disability adjusted life year.”
The impact of mental illness on older adults is considerable. Prevalence in this population of mental disorders of all types is substantial. Eight to 20 percent of older adults in the community and up to 37 percent in primary care settings experience symptoms of depression, while as many as one in two new residents of nursing homes report a risk of depression. Older people have the highest rate of suicide in the country, and the risk of suicide increases with age. Americans age 85 years and up have a suicide rate of 65 per 100,000. Older white males, for example, are six times more likely to commit suicide than the rest of the population. There is a clear correlation of major depression and suicide: 60 to 75 percent of suicides of patients 75 and older have diagnosable depression. Put another way, untreated depression among the elderly substantially increases the risk of death by suicide.

Mental disorders of the aging are not, of course, limited to major depression with risk of suicide. The elderly suffer from a wide range of disorders including declines in cognitive functioning, Alzheimer's disease (affecting 8 to 15 percent of those over 65) and other dementias, anxiety disorders (affecting 11.4 percent of adults over 55), schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, and alcohol and substance use disorders. Some 3 to 9 percent of older adults can be characterized as heavy drinkers (12 to 21 drinks per week). While illicit drug use among this population is relatively low, there is substantial increased risk of improper use of prescription medication and side effects from polypharmacy.

While we tend to think of Medicare as a "senior" program, health insurance problems are substantial numbers of disabled individuals who qualify for Medicare by virtue of their long-term disability. Of those, the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill reports that some 400,000 non-elderly disabled Medicare beneficiaries become eligible by virtue of mental disorders. These are typically individuals with the severe and persistent mental illnesses, such as schizophrenia.

Regardless of the age of the patient and the specific mental disorder diagnosed, it is absolutely critical that mental illness in the Medicare population causes substantial hardships, both economically and in terms of the consequences of the illness itself. As Dr. Satcher puts it, "mental illnesses exact a staggering toll on millions of individuals, as well as on their families and communities and our Nation as a whole."

Yet there is abundant good news in our ability to effectively and accurately diagnose and treat mental illnesses. The majority of people with mental illness can return to productive lives if their illness is treated. There is good news: mental illness treatment works. Unfortunately, today, a majority of those who need treatment for mental illness do not seek it. Much of this is due to stigma, rooted in fear and ignorance, and an outmoded view that mental illnesses are character flaws, or a sign of individual weakness, or the result of indulgent parenting. This is most emphatically not true. Left untreated, mental illnesses are as real and as substantial in their impact as any other illnesses we can now identify and treat.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, today I express my gratitude and appreciation for the work of Mary Virginia "Ginny" Burrus.

Ginny joined my staff on January 16, 1985, providing constituent service in my Burlington, Iowa, office. She and her late husband David owned their own business in Burlington and she had long been active in promoting tourism, the arts as well as the economy of southeastern Iowa.

After redistricting, Ginny helped open my Iowa City office in 1992, continuing to provide outstanding service to the residents of Iowa's First Congressional District.

All of my colleagues know how essential to the functioning of government is the ombudsman role in Congressional offices, and particularly caseworkers within them, play. For constituents with problems, be it with veterans benefits, Social Security, Medicare or student loans, the federal bureaucracy can be a bewildering maze, the applicable laws and regulations often seemingly irrational. An experienced, knowledgeable and sympathetic caseworker can be indispensable in getting the answers needed and problems resolved.

In the 16 years she worked with me, Ginny epitomized the consummate professional and her file is fat with letters from Iowans thanking her for the help she provided. In recent years, as immigration casework increased, her knowledge of immigration law, regulations, processes and paperwork has become legendary. Equally well known has been her patience, both with harried staffers at INS and with newcomers to this country, unfamiliar with both its language and its culture.

Ginny has provided me and the citizens of Iowa a model of what public service is all about. She will now have more time to enjoy her daughters, Alicia, Alexandra and Anita, and her grandson Kerr and granddaughter Hannah, as well as the opportunity to play more bridge. It is with profound gratitude that I wish Ginny all the best in a well-earned retirement.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MARY BONO
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. BONO. Mr. Speaker, I was necessarily absent for all legislative business during the week of February 5, 2001 through February 10, 2001, due to a medical condition. As a result, I missed the following votes: On Tuesday, February 6, 2001—question “On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass” (roll No. 9) for issue H.J. Res. 7 (roll No. 10), “yea” for question “On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Agree” (roll No. 10) for issue H. Res. 28—Honoring the contributions of Catholic schools. On Wednesday, February 7, 2001—question “On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass” (roll No. 11) for issue H.R. 132—To designate the Goro Hokama Post Office Building in Lanai City, Hawaii.

Had I been present, I would have voted “yea” for question “On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass” (issue H.R. 7) (roll No. 9), “yea” for question “On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Agree” (issue H. Res. 28) (roll No. 10), and “yea” for question “On Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass” (issue H.R. 132) (roll No. 11).

PRESCRIBING ALTERNATIVE PAYMENT METHODS UNDER THE TRICARE PROGRAM

HON. PATSY T. MINK
OF HAWAII
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce a bill that would allow retired members of the military to pay their TRICARE enrollment fees on a monthly basis. Currently, TRICARE enrollees must pay their annual enrollment fees all at once or on a quarterly basis. Enrollment fees are $230/year for individual enrollment, and $460/year for family enrollment.

My bill establishes alternative payment mechanisms to provide for payment of such fees through: a deduction from military retired or retainer pay; a deduction from military retirement mechanisms; to provide for payment of such fees through community service before they graduate.

Black youths in South Carolina have the highest dropout rate of any group and twenty percent are held back in the first grade. These children are the sons and daughters of African American men to model their lives after, who can show them that the American dream can come true for all Americans.

CONGRATULATING THE UKRAINIAN PEOPLE ON POPE JOHN PAUL II’S UPCOMING VISIT

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I congratulate the Ukrainian people on His Holiness Pope John Paul II’s upcoming visit. The Pope recently accepted an invitation from Ukraine’s President to visit the country, undoubtedly answering the prayers of many Catholic Ukrainians.

Mr. Speaker, many of my constituents would also like to see His Holiness Orthodox Patriarch Bartholomew of Constantinople visit Ukraine. Ukraine has a large Orthodox population and a vibrant Church to the country; undoubtedly answering the prayers of many Catholic Ukrainians.

TRIBUTE TO CLAFLIN UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN
OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to twenty-two exceptional students at Claflin University, who are participating in the “Call Me Mister” program.

“The Call Me Mister” was developed to address the homogenization of teachers, especially black male teachers. The program strives to place black males in front of elementary school classrooms in order to provide positive role models for our children.

Each of the twenty-two participants in “Call Me Mister” at Claflin underwent a rigorous application process and are required to maintain a minimum grade point average. The students will complete 300 hours of community service before they graduate.

Black youths in South Carolina have the highest dropout rate of any group and twenty percent are held back in the first grade. These children are the sons and daughters of African American men to model their lives after, who can show them that the American dream can come true for all Americans.

“The Call Me Mister” promises to provide the State of South Carolina with a new breed of teachers. Less than one percent of the state’s teachers are African American males despite the fact that the state is one-third black. Claflin University and the wonderful participants in the “Call Me Mister” program are working to make South Carolina’s elementary school classrooms more representative of the state itself.

Mr. Speaker, the “Call Me Mister” program is working to improve South Carolina schools along with the mentality of African American men. Please join me in paying tribute to these wonderful students and this long overdue program as they work to better the educational system in my state.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION ON MODIFYING THE FTC’S ORIGIN RULES FOR WATCHES

HON. DONNA M. CHRISTENSEN OF VIRGIN THE ISLANDS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation which would modify the Federal Trade Commission’s practices for determining the country of origin of watches and watch movements, including those watches manufactured in the United States Virgin Islands.

The watch industry is the largest light manufacturing industry in the U.S. Virgin Islands and remains one of the most important direct and indirect sources of private sector employment in the Territory. The insular watch production industry is also highly import-sensitive and faces continued threats from multinational watch producers, who have continued to move their watch production to lower wage countries.

The legislation that I am introducing today will help assure that domestic watch producers can compete on a level playing field with foreign producers with respect to the labeling and advertising of the origin of watches sold in the U.S. marketplace.

Currently, the FTC’s test for determining whether a watch in made in the United States differs from the FTC’s origin test for foreign-made watches, the Customs Service origin test for imported watches and longstanding international practice. The legislation that I am introducing today would rationalize these various tests by requiring that the FTC employ a common and well-established standard for determining the origin of all watches. This modification to the FTC’s practice would ensure that consumers have a uniform basis on which to judge the country of origin of watches. It would also help promote the operations of U.S. watch producers, particularly those in the U.S. Virgin Islands. The production of watch movements by these producers (and their subsequent production of finished watches) involve highly labor intensive operations which add considerable value to the finished watch and to the U.S. and Virgin Islands economies.

The country of origin of a watch is, by longstanding international trade practice, generally considered to be the country in which the watch movement is produced. The movement is the “guts” of a watch. The production of a watch movement involves numerous, labor-intensive operations involving inspection, quality control, reworking and testing of some 35 to 45 individual parts prior to, during and after assembly. These operations require substantial investment in diversified precision equipment and employee training and add considerable value to the finished watch.

In determining the country of origin of imported products, the U.S. Customs Service generally employs the well-established concept of “substantial transformation.” The substantial transformation test—which is supported by the U.S. Supreme Court and administrative precedent—recognizes that some functional changes and processes involved in the production of an imported product are so significant as to create an entirely new article. I am informed that, in applying this concept to imported watches, the Customs Service has followed international practice and has determined that the production of a watch movement results in a substantial transformation and thereby determines the country of origin of the finished watch. Additionally, it applies the "tariff shift" origin rules adopted under NAFTA, the country of origin of the watch is the country where the movement was produced.

In evaluating product labels or advertising that state a foreign country of origin for watches and other imported products, the Federal Trade Commission has generally permitted foreign claims that are based on substantial transformation. For example, based on the FTCs practice under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, a watch whose movement was produced in a foreign country from parts sourced worldwide could be labeled and/or advertised as made in that foreign country.

The Federal Trade Commission applies a different and much more strict origin test to watches produced in the United States and the U.S. territories. Under this test, a watch whose movement is produced in the United States or the U.S. territories cannot be labeled or advertised as "Made in the USA" unless all or virtually all of the parts and labor employed in producing the movement and finished watch are of domestic origin. Thus, the FTC applies substantially different tests for determining the foreign and domestic origin of watches. These tests lead to different results in situations in which the only difference between two watches is the country where the movement was assembled.

The FTC's current origin tests for watches discriminate against domestic producers, including those in the U.S. Virgin Islands. Given the globalization of the international watch component industry, it is virtually impossible, as a practical matter, for a domestic producer to source all of its watch components from U.S. sources. Therefore, watches produced in the United States from U.S. assembled movements cannot be marked "Made in the USA" even though their production involves highly labor intensive operations which add considerable value to the watch. In contrast, under the FTC's current test, a watch made from a movement assembled in Japan from imported parts could be labeled as "Made in Japan." These conflicting tests put U.S. producers at a considerable disadvantage in the marketplace and are confusing to U.S. consumers.

My legislation would correct this unfair and confusing situation by requiring that the FTC apply the same substantial transformation test for determining the origin of all watches, including those watches that are labeled or advertised as "Made in the USA." This common test will assure that origin rules for domestic watches conform with well-established international and Customs service practice and the FTC's own practice for imported watches. It will enable U.S. producers, including those in the Virgin Islands, to employ country of origin labels or claims in the same circumstances in which their foreign competitors could label or advertise that their watches are made in a foreign country. The legislation would provide U.S. consumers with a clear and consistent test for determining where watches are made.

FAIRNESS TO LOCAL CONTRACTORS ACT

HON. PATSY T. MINK
OF HAWAII
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Fairness to Local Contractors Act to help local contractors compete for military construction projects. The purpose of the bill is to address concerns raised by various unions, contractors and the State of Hawaii, that local companies are not getting a fair shot at competing for military construction contracts.

The problem of out of state contractors dodging state tax and employment laws has allowed them to avoid costs that local companies have to meet and thereby outbid our local companies.

The bill requires contractors to obtain a state tax clearance in order to be an eligible bidder on military construction projects; it requires them to obtain a state tax clearance and certify compliance with state employment laws in order to receive the final project payment; it requires a military agency to withhold payment in order to meet state tax obligations; and it requires a contractor that has won a bid to obtain a state license in the state in which the work is to be performed, if that state requires such a license.

Military construction work is an important part of Hawaii's economy. Not only will Hawaii's local companies benefit from this legislation, but all local companies across the nation will have a fair chance to compete for these projects that are worth millions of dollars.

By joining me in supporting the Fairness to Local Contractors Act we can provide the enforcement needed to make sure all bidders play by the same rules. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor and support this legislation.

TRIBUTE TO LOUIS WELDON HAMMOND

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN
OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Attorney Louis Weldon Hammond who, for over 37 years, tirelessly served our state in two capacities, as a military attorney and a trialattorney. Mr. Hammond was born in Ridge Spring, SC on January 5, 1939. He attended Morehouse College and obtained his bachelor and law degrees from South Carolina State College. For more than 35 years, he has been married to the former Loretta Thomas. They have two children, Karlotta Hammond and Louis Weldon Hammond II.

After graduating law school as the top Administrative Law student, the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Columbia, South Carolina, recognized his talent and hired Mr. Hammond. His success on the job cast him into the role of trialattorney. Mr. Hammond was the first African American to hold each position as he rose through the ranks. The positions he held included Legal Claims Examiner, Veterans Claims Review Board, Veterans Claims Examiner Authorizer, Section Chief, Assistant Adjudication Officer and Veterans Service Center Manager. He also served as an Equal Employment Opportunity Counselor and National Equal Employment Investigator.

Mr. Attorney Hammond was awarded a number of positions of distinction including Chairman of National Adjudication Officer's Advisory Committee, Southern Area Adjudication Officers Advisory Committee, and the V.A.'s top Leadership award. Mr. Hammond's distinguished career also led him to receive the award of first runner-up for Federal Employee of the Year for 1977.

Perhaps his dedicated service to the Veterans Administration stemmed from his distinction as a veteran himself. He rose to the rank of SGT E-6 (Staff Sergeant) and received numerous honors including; Good Conduct Medal, Army Expeditionary Medal, Army Commendation Letter, Outstanding Soldier of Encampment, Outstanding Soldier of Reserve Unit, Court Martial Coordinator—Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Outside his legal and military career, Mr. Hammond was, and continues to be, very active in his community. Mr. Hammond founded a neighborhood organization called New Castle Concerned Citizens, and serves as a poll manager in his Midway precinct. He has also participated in a number of other organizations. He served on the Board of Directors at Providence Home and the Advisory Board of Richland Northeast High School and as former Chairman and Treasurer of the Kitani Foundation, Past President of the South Carolina State College's Columbia Alumni Association, and past president of the Dent Middle School PTO.

Mr. Hammond is a Life Member of the NAACP and Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. He is a member of First Calvary Baptist Church, where he has served as chairman of a $2.5 million building project, as the Minister's Administrative Assistant, and is a member of two choirs. His dedication to South Carolina veterans and to the community was recognized on December 19, 2000 when Governor Jim Hodges awarded Mr. Hammond the Silver Crescent.

Mr. Speaker, we seldom meet people who give so tirelessly of their time and efforts as Mr. Louis Weldon Hammond. Sr. Please join me in paying tribute to this wonderful South Carolinian, a personal friend and a trialattorney who earned the reputation of being a dedicated, just, equitable, fair and caring professional during his long and distinguished career.

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I voice support for Ukraine's continued independence and its efforts at cultivating a strong relationship with the West.

Mr. Speaker, Ukraine declared its independence from the Soviet Union in 1991, and since then has embarked on a long march towards democracy. Along the way, it has gradually oriented itself towards the West and embraced Western institutions. Ukraine was the first post-Soviet state to join NATO’s Partnership for Peace program. It has since become party to a NATO-Ukraine Commission, which meets at various times throughout the year, and is a member of the Council of Europe. Ukraine has stated that its strategic goal is integration into Western political and security structures, including, potentially, NATO itself.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to express support for Ukraine’s Prime Minister, Viktor Yushchenko, and his wife Katherine, who is American. Prime Minister Yushchenko has worked tirelessly to end corruption and carry forward the strategic goal of his country. Prime Minister Yushchenko has stated that its strategic goal is integration into the West. He has also embarked on a long march towards democracy. His government has worked tirelessly to end corruption and carry forward the strategic goal of his country.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION ON REVISIONS TO THE PIC PROGRAM

HON. DONNA M. CHRISTENSEN
OF VIRGIN ISLANDS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce a bill which would make a series of technical and/or noncontroversial adjustments to the Production Incentive Certificate ("PIC") program for watches and jewelry produced in the U.S. Virgin Islands. In the near term, this legislation would improve the operation of the PIC program for both watch and jewelry manufacturers in the U.S. Virgin Islands—producers that provide a critical source of employment for the Territory. Over the longer term, this legislation would protect the PIC program and related duty incentives from the effects of any future reduction or elimination of watch tariffs.

The watch industry is the largest light manufacturing industry in the USVI and remains one of the most important direct and indirect sources of private sector employment in the Territory. The insular watch production industry is also highly import-sensitive and faces continued threats from multinational watch producers, who have continued to move their watch production to lower wage countries.

Congress and successive Administrations have recognized the importance of the watch industry to the USVI—and the import sensitivity of watches—through a series of significant enactments and decisions. The General Note 3(a) program, which Congress has incorporated in the Harmonized Tariff Schedule, grants duty-free treatment for qualifying insular possession watches and thereby provides a relative duty advantage vis-à-vis foreign watch producers. Through the PIC program, insular possession watch producers can obtain duty refunds based on creditable wages paid for watches assembled in the insular possessions. Additionally, in recognition of the relative advantage that duty-free treatment of watches provides to insular possession watch producers, Congress and successive Administrations have resisted efforts to eliminate watch duties on a worldwide basis.

In 1999, Congress extended the General Note 3(a) program and PIC program benefits to jewelry produced in the insular possessions. In doing so, Congress sought to promote vital employment in the insular possessions by extending existing watch industry incentives to jewelry production—an industry which utilizes many of the same skills and facilities as watch production. Since this important change, four mainland jewelry manufacturing companies have established operations in the USVI and are participating in the PIC program. Watch and jewelry producers in the Virgin Islands have consulted with the American Watch Association and U.S. watch firms that import substantial quantities of foreign made watches regarding proposals to preserve and protect benefits for insular possession watches and jewelry, while also mitigating the impact of any future reduction of duties on imported watches. These discussions have resulted in the parties unified support for the legislation that I am introducing today.

The various technical adjustments set forth in this legislation would enhance the ability of insular watch producers to utilize the PIC program while, at the same time, retaining overall PIC program unit and dollar value limits. Additionally, the legislation would establish a standby mechanism to mitigate the impact of any possible future reduction or elimination of watch duties on a worldwide basis through trade negotiations and congressional action. This mechanism—which has broad support among the insular and domestic watch manufacturing and distribution sectors—would ensure that any future reduction in watch duties is matched by a relative value of current duty incentives and PIC program benefits for the insular watch industry. Importantly, this standby mechanism would have no effect on current watch duties or PIC program limits.

Under the PIC program, producers of watches and jewelry in the U.S. insular possessions are issued certificates by the Department of Commerce for specified percentages of the producer’s verified creditable wages for production of the watches. Based on these certificates, the producers are entitled to apply to the U.S. Customs Service for refunds on duties paid on watches. Certain technical provisions of the PIC program, however, impose unnecessary burdens on producers. These include unclear definitions, unduly complex PIC refund provisions and special issues relating to the extension of PIC benefits to jewelry. The legislation that I am introducing today includes technical adjustments to the PIC program to eliminate these burdens, while retaining overall PIC program limits on units and benefits.

Currently, a producer receives a single PIC certificate of entitlement for each calendar year, which is issued by March 1 of the following year. This certificate serves as a basis for the producer’s application for duty refunds to U.S. Customs, a process which can take as long as six months. As a result, there can be delays of as long as 18 months between the time a producer incurs a creditable wage payment and the time the producer receives refunds. The proposed legislation would reduce these unnecessary delays by providing for the issuance of PIC certificates of entitlement on a quarterly basis.

Currently, producers must assemble often voluminous import entry information and apply to U.S. Customs for wage-based refunds. If a producer has not paid sufficient import duties, the producer must sell the PIC certificate to another firm, which then applies for the duty refunds. The proposed legislation assures that an insular producer is compensated for a specified percentage of its verified production wages, regardless of whether it has paid the corresponding amount of import duties. The bill would simplify this refund process by providing producers with the option of applying directly to the Treasury Department for the full amount of their verified PIC program certificates.

For watches, the PIC program establishes a 750,000 unit limit on the number of watches used to calculate a producer’s PIC benefits. When the PIC program was extended by Congress to jewelry, this upper limit was also extended to each individual jewelry producer’s qualifying jewelry production. While this limit might be appropriate for watches, which are technically sophisticated and relatively expensive, I am concerned that it is likely to unduly limit jewelry production in the insular possessions, which relies on large quantities of relatively lower-priced units. My proposed legislation would address this issue by eliminating the 750,000 unit per producer limit for jewelry, while retaining overall unit and dollar value limits for the PIC program as a whole.

When Congress extended the PIC program to jewelry in 1999, it sought to encourage the phased establishment of new jewelry production in the insular possessions by extending the authorized term of the PIC program until 2015. The bill would also clarify current law by stating explicitly that qualified watches include the amount of any fringe benefits.

For many years, multinational companies that import substantial quantities of foreign products into the United States have sought to reduce or eliminate U.S. watch duties, either through multiple petitions for duty-free treatment for watches from certain GSP-eligible countries or through worldwide elimination of watch duties in trade negotiations. Insular possession watch producers have repeatedly opposed these efforts on the ground that the elimination of duties on foreign watches would eliminate the relative benefit that insular possession producers receive through duty-free treatment under the General Note 3(a) program and, in turn, lead to the eventual demise of the insular watch industry. Subsequent Administrations and Congresses have agreed with these arguments and refused to erode the benefits which insular possession producers receive under General Note 3(a) and the PIC program.

These continued battles over watch duties and the insular possession watch program have imposed significant resource burdens on Virgin Islands watch producers and the Government of the U.S. Virgin Islands, diverting resources and energy that could better be spent in enhancing growth and employment in the insular watch and jewelry industries. Virgin Islands watch producers, the AWA and representatives of U.S. firms that import foreign-made watches are seeking to address this longstanding issue by reconciling existing insular possession watch benefits with any worldwide reduction or elimination of watch duties. The legislation that I am introducing contains two mechanisms to help mitigate against the impact of any future reduction or elimination of watch duties, while also preserving existing watch benefits.

The bill would put in place a standby mechanism that would preserve the benefits of duty-free treatment under General Note 3(a) in the event that Congress and a future Administration were to agree at some future point to eliminate or reduce duties on watches. This mechanism would preserve the relative tariff advantage that insular producers currently enjoy over foreign-made watches by incorporating a “hold harmless” provision in the PIC program. Under this standby mechanism, if watch duties were reduced or eliminated in the future, PIC payments to insular producers would also include an amount which reflects the value to the insular producers of the current General Note 3(a) benefit. This mechanism would facilitate the eventual reduction or elimination of watch duties on a worldwide basis while helping to assure that any such duty reduction does not lead to the demise of the insular industry.

Currently, payments under the PIC program are funded from watch duties. An alternative funding source would be required if watch duties were reduced or eliminated on a worldwide basis. The legislation that I am introducing provides that PIC benefits can be funded from jewelry duties or duties on other appropriate products.

It is important to bear in mind that these two mechanisms would only be activated in the event that watch duties are, in fact, reduced or eliminated in the future—decisions that would require considerable deliberation and consultation by the President and Congress. By assuring the continuation of current benefits for insular producers, however, these mechanisms would greatly mitigate the impact of any eventual decision by Congress to reduce or eliminate watch duties.

Congress has long recognized that the current watch industry incentives are critical to the health and survival of the watch industry in the U.S. Virgin Islands. By adopting this legislation, Congress can improve the operation of the PIC program for insular watch and jewelry producers and establish a mechanism to facilitate the eventual reduction or elimination of watch duties on a worldwide basis.

FULL FUNDING FOR PELL GRANTS

HON. PATSY T. MINK OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii, Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Pell Grant Full Funding Act.

It is time we live up to our promise of providing students from low-income families access to higher education. Although we gave eligible students a maximum Pell Grant award of $5,100 for the 2001 school year, we only appropriated funding for a $3,750 maximum award.

How can we renege on a promise to help fund a student’s education? We must not impose artificial limits. If we really mean what we say about all students having access to a higher education, we should interpret the Pell Grant Program as an obligation which Congress is according based on strict eligibility standards. We do this with Medicare. We define a person as eligible and then we provide that individual with resources for hospitalization, for doctors care, and so forth. We do not tell the person they are eligible and then deny them the medical care when they show up at the hospital. We must not deny students funding for education when they show up at colleges. Obligating ourselves to fund what students are entitled to is the only way we are going to meet our fundamental responsibility to provide access to higher education for all students.

The Pell Grant Full Funding Act that does just that. It will create a contractual obligation on the United States to reimburse institutions that award Pell Grants to its eligible students in the full amount they are entitled to. Simply put, my bill guarantees that eligible students will receive the amount they are entitled to, making it easier to get a higher education. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to cosponsor this important legislation.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE AMENDMENT

HON. JOHN T. DOOLITTLE OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. DOOLITTLE, Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct pleasure to reintroduce the English Language Amendment to the Constitution in the 107th Congress. I remain convinced that this nation of immigrants must once again be united under a common tongue.

The notion that our nation’s government must function in multiple tongues may appear to be compassionate. Yet recent events once again demonstrate that this apparently compassionate solution is simply not helping the people it may have been intended to help. The New York Times carried an urgent editorial on January 1st of this year, entitled “Bungled Ballots in Chinatown.” The Times noted that “Chinese-language ballots were translated incorrectly. The ‘Democratic’ label was translated as ‘Republican’ and ‘Republican’ was rendered as ‘Democratic’ for state races.” In addition, the Chinese instructions for choosing State Supreme Court justices were also flawed. The English instruction read “Vote for any THREE” candidates while the Chinese version asked voters to “Vote for any FIVE.”

How could mistakes like this happen? A quick overview of a manual for prospective professional translators, The Translator’s Handbook by Mofey Sofer, suggests that correctly interpreting between two languages is more difficult than some may suppose. There is variation within every language, as anyone who has compared American English with British English knows all too well. In the case of Chinese, the language is presently written in both traditional and simplified characters and varies between the mainland and Taiwan. Sofer also notes that there are more problems translating between Spanish and English than between other languages and English because:

[There is no single variety of Spanish. There are major differences between the Spanish of Mexico, Central America, northwestern South America, not to mention such places as Puerto Rico and . . . Spain. Cuban Spanish, Puerto Rican Spanish, Chicano Spanish and additional forms of Spanish are spoken within the United States, creating vast potential for cross-cultural confusion. Thus, the English word “eye-glasses” must be translated as anteojos for one Hispanic community in the U.S., for another as gafas, while a third group prefers espejuelos and still another group refers to eyeglasses as lentes. Spanish and Chinese aren’t the only languages which create translation challenges. The Translators Handbook also notes that “there are several spoken Arabic dialects which are not always mutually intelligible, such as Jordanian and Syrian and Egyptian and . . . even the official written Arabic has different terms and uses in different Arab countries.”]

In fact, translation difficulties are part of the dispute in the Middle East. A July 24, 1999 letter to the New York Times noted that UN Resolution 242 reads in English that Israel is to return unspecified “territory” while the French version refers to “the territory” (le territoire).

These difficulties of translation underscore the practical problems inherent to a bilingual government. Millions of official documents multiplied by a multitude of language translations mean a potential for massive errors.

Without an official language, there would be no legal standard to decide among competing translations of a government document in which the English version said one thing while the translation said something altogether different. My colleagues and I can spend hours negotiating over the exact wording of one phrase in one piece of legislation. We are all aware that wording matters.

Mr. Speaker, these practical problems are about to multiply exponentially, thanks to President Clinton’s Executive Order 13166.

Executive Order 13166 received little media coverage when it was signed on August 11th, the last Friday before the Democratic Convention in Los Angeles. Executive Order 13166 will soon be major news with incalculable financial impact on every state, city and town.

Executive Order 13166 is based on belief that to provide services solely in English could discriminate on the basis of national origin.” Thus Clinton Executive Order 13166, as interpreted by the Office of Civil Rights in the Department of Justice, requires every recipient of...
Mr. Speaker, these facts support making English America's official language. Let me now turn to the underlying message of this legislation. Opponents of official English claim legislation of this sort sends the wrong message to Hispanic Americans. They are wrong, as Hispanic Americans from all walks of life are quick to reply.

The real message underlying this legislation was well-expressed by Everett Alvarez, Jr., who led the Republican Convention in the Pledge of Allegiance earlier this year. Everett Alvarez was the first American pilot shot down in Vietnam. Everett Alvarez is also a proud American of Hispanic descent. In his book, Code of Conduct, Alvarez said, "I didn't spend eight-and-one-half years of my life as a prisoner of war because I was Hispanic. I didn't get beat up because I was Hispanic. I was an American fighting man." Alvarez also had this to say about bilingual education: "I am proud of being living proof that American is a country in which a person can overcome economic disadvantages and ethnic stereotypes. . . . I believe that education is the key to a successful and happy life in an open society. With that in mind, I oppose the movement to make Spanish (or any other foreign tongue) a second coequal language in American schools. This is a hindrance rather than a help to the young people who will eventually have to make their way in an English-speaking society."

Ernesto Ortiz, a South Texas ranch hand, echoed this view. As quoted by John Silber, in his book Straight Shooting: "My children learn in Spanish in school so they can grow up to be busboys and waiters." I teach them in English at home so they can grow up to be doctors and lawyers. Alvarez and Ortiz are joined by Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., who so eloquently spoke in his book, The Disuniting of America, of how: "a common language is a necessary bond of national cohesion in so heterogeneous a nation as America. . . . [I]nstitutionalized bilingualism remains another source of the fragmentation of America, another threat to the dream of "one people.""

The vision which underlies my English Language Amendment is the uniquely American vision of a nation of immigrants united by a common tongue. This is not only the popular position—official English has won handily in my home state of California—also the right position.

If passed by the Congress and ratified by the states, my English Language Amendment will provide permanent protection from the visions and dangers of mandatory multilingualism. It is for this reason that I hope Congress will choose this particular approach, though it is a longer and harder road than simple legislation. This nation of immigrants needs a common tongue.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the English Language Amendment.

COALITION FOR AUTISM RESEARCH AND EDUCATION (C.A.R.E.) CAUCUS

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, today I joined with Rep. MIKE DOYLE of Pennsylvan-treatment of autism to educators and physicians.

In December, we worked hard to win appropriations of $3 million for Fiscal Year 2001 to fund the Centers of Excellence for CDC and begin larger-scale autism prevalence and incidence studies.

CDC expects to issue program announcements and requests for proposals in the early summer of 2001 to implement P.L. 106–310. Grants would be awarded to successfully completed applications to CDC for the “Centers of Excellence” sometime in the early fall of 2001. Another provision in the Children’s Health Act directs the Director of the NIH to establish not less than 5 Centers of Excellence to conduct basic and clinical research including development of neurobiology, genetics and psychopharmacology.

The Members of C.A.R.E. will work to further advance the process of establishing these Centers of Excellence, which will lead to a better understanding of autism and related disorders.

The 106th Congress also significantly boosted total federal funding for autism. We want to take a page out of that playbook and repeat that success this year as well. CDC funding for autism increased from $1.1 million in FY 2000 to $6.7 million in FY 2001. Since FY 1998, when autism finding at CDC was a mere $287,000, funding has increased by a net total of 2,246 percent! That’s 23.5 times what CDC spent just four years ago.

At NIH, Congress won increases in funding for autism from $40 million in FY 1999 to $45 million in 2000. Funding for 2001 is also expected to increase. Since FY 1998, autism research has been increased by 66 percent at NIH. Maybe this year we can make yet another installment on our plan to double autism research at NIH.

Finally, at the request of interested Members of Congress and with grass roots support, the House has held two separate hearings on the problem of autism—one by the Commerce Committee and another by the Government Reform and Oversight Committee. Additional hearings are likely if Members of Congress and with grass roots support.

job based on the fact that she might develop condition. Furthermore, every human being from using predictive genetic information to make employment decisions. It would further employers from requesting or requiring that workers disclose genetic information or take a genetic test. Finally, employers are barred from requiring DNA information of employees for the purpose of making hiring, firing, and reassignment.

This legislation would protect genetic information by forbidding insurers from disclose genetic information. It would prevent the insurance companies from using this information to deny coverage or raise their rates to unaffordable levels. Vital medical decisions like these should be made based on solid science and personal reflection, not on the threat of discrimination. This legislation would prohibit insurers from requiring or requiring that an individual disclose genetic information. It would prevent health insurance companies from using this information to deny, cancel, refuse to renew, or change the terms or conditions of coverage.

Finally, it would protect the privacy of genetic information by forbidding insurers from disclosing it to outside parties without prior writ-en informed consent.

Simply having a given gene almost never means that a person will definitely develop a condition. Furthermore, every human being has between 5 and 50 genetic mutations that predispose him or her to disease. No one should lose their insurance coverage or their job based on the fact that she might develop a cancer or some other disorder in 10, 20, or 30 years.

Genetic science has the potential to transform human health and open entirely new frontiers. We must safeguard the future of this research by ensuring that genetic information cannot be abused. Americans will not continue to support genetic science if they believe the knowledge gained will be used against them.

We can protect the future of genetic research and secure the rights of all Americans by passing the Genetic Nondiscrimination in Health Insurance and Employment Act. I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure that Congress passes this responsible, comprehensive genetic nondiscrimination and privacy law.

ON PRIME MINISTER CHRETIEN’S SPEECH TO THE OAS

HON. JOHN J. LAFAULCE OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. LAFAULCE. Mr. Speaker, I want to share with my colleagues the address delivered recently by Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chrétien before a special session of the Permanent Council of the Organization of American States. The speech outlined his vision for the upcoming Third Summit of the Americas in Quebec City, specifically how the nations of the hemisphere can “move ahead on an agento human progress and prosperity” to create “La Gran Familia de las Américas.” These ideas are likely to serve as the guide-posts for the bilateral and multilateral relationships evolving throughout the Americas, and I urge all of my colleagues to take the time to reread the following speech.

ADDRESS TO A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE PER-MANENT COUNCIL OF THE ORGANIZATION OF

AMERICAN STATES—FEBRUARY 5, 2001

The first address by a Canadian Prime Minister to the Organization of American States is an important step in the embrace by Canada of our hemispheric identity. A path marked by our decision to join the OAS in 1990. By our presence at the first two Summits of the Americas in Miami and Santiago. By my leading two trade missions to Latin America in 1995 and 1998. By our hosting the OAS General Assembly in Windsor last June. By the meetings of hemi-spheric ministers of finance, environment and labour that will take place in Canada in the coming months. I am by an inaugural meeting of the Inter-Parliamentary Forum of the Americas in Ottawa in just a few weeks.

In a couple of months, we will take the most important step on our journey, as we welcome the democratically elected leaders of the Americas to Quebec City for the Third Summit of the Americas. The steps we have taken on our journey have run in parallel with the growing sense that there is more to the Americas than geography. A sense that we are more than just neighbours and friends. We are “Una Gran Familia.” Each a proud individual nation to be sure. Secure in our unique identity and sovereignty. But at a higher level, a family.

Who share aspirations and values. Who have embraced democracy, free markets and social justice. Who have taken enhancing the quality of life of all of our people as our common cause.

Recently I have spoken to many of your leaders about how we can move ahead on an agenda of human progress and shared property. I will talk to President Bush about it today. For those listening in Washington and beyond, I would like to outline how Canada sees our agenda unfolding for the Quebec City summit.

Let me begin by acknowledging the serious problems and challenges that face ow between us and our goal. But I have unshakeable con-them head on. That is, after all, what brought us together in Miami and Santiago, and will sustain us as we move ahead.

The gap between our rich and poor remains too large. Laboring under a new economy, we face the added challenge of preventing a digital divide. Our emerging democracies lack strong institutions. Our social policies have room for improvement.

Many look upon the powerful forces of economic globalization and technological change as the source of these profound problems. We must face them as the key to solving them. To creating untold opportunities and shared prosperity from Territorial Fuego to Baffin Island.

We shall not retreat from the challenge of globalization, nor become blinded by its allure. Rather, we must develop the tools so that all of La Gran Familia can reap its full potential. We must, in short, adopt an agenda that puts people first. That recognizes that our citizens can reach their full potential only when their safety is guaranteed, their rights are respected and their access to economic and social opportunities is assured.

In Quebec City, we will do just that. We have taken as our themes three complementary areas: strengthening democracy, creating prevailing human potential. And we want to harness the information revolution. and realizing human potential is assured.

Democracy has clearly been on the rise in the Americas over the past decade. But its progress has been neither constant nor equal. In many countries it remains fragile. Canada wishes to see a clear and forceful commitment to strengthening democracy and fostering social inclusion in Quebec City. Which extends to our democratic institutions, our electoral machinery, and the impartiality of justice. To protecting human rights and freedom of expression. To fighting drug trafficking and corruption.

It will mean empowering local governments and safeguarding the rights of minorities, indigenous peoples, migrants and the disabled. And in many countries it remains fragile. To fighting drug trafficking and corruption.

It will mean empowering local governments and safeguarding the rights of minorities, indigenous peoples, migrants and the disabled. And making the strongest possible commitment to creating innovative, inclusive health care and effective disease-prevention programs.

And we must achieve this in a way that respects the value of the diverse ethnic, cultural, linguistic and religious strands woven together, make up the fabric of La Gran Familia.

Canada is also very much focused on bridging the digital divide in the Americas. As the information revolution continues, governments have a pivotal role to play in determining how these new technologies evolve. And in ensuring that their ability to bridge the distance and access to knowledge and increase economic productivity is shared equitably.

In Canada we have taken great strides in this area by forming creative partnerships that have allowed us to connect all of our public schools and communities at relatively low cost.

In many ways, our meeting in Quebec City will be about coming to terms with an increasingly engaged civil society and its concerns over the powerful forces that are shaping our modern world.

Canada believes that openness and transparency are vital to building public acceptance and legitimacy for our undertakings. And in preparing for the Summit, Canada has engaged civil-society organizations at the national level. We have also promoted regional consultations with committed and serious organizations, including meetings here at the OAS, and establishing web-sites for the sharing of information.

Canada worked hard to make the OAS General Assembly in Windsor a more open event, allowing civic organizations to see an historic discussion on the nature of democracy and its status among our membership. We must commit ourselves to working with patience, persistence and reason to build a hemispheric future.

A future that takes account of the concerns expressed by our peoples and the impact that the new forces at work in the global economy are having on the development of the Americas. The first Summit of the Americas in the new millennium, Canada will do its utmost to promote openness and transparency, while ensuring productive discourse among governments.

I wish to conclude today on a note of strong support for the OAS. We can all be proud of its accomplishments. The leadership of Secretary General Gaviria has been inspired and responsive to the wishes of our membership.

The past year has illustrated the relevance of the OAS. From helping to shore up democracy to resolving complicated border disputes. From ensuring electoral fairness to promoting technical cooperation.

More than any other single institution, the OAS will be charged with acting upon the mandates we endorse at Quebec City. To do this it will require a tangible expression of our political will and a commitment to its fulfillment.

Our fiscal health. Our foreign ministers should actively address this issue at this year’s OAS General Assembly in Costa Rica.

My friends, working with you to make our vision of La Gran Familia of the Americas a reality is by far the most gratifying job I have.

John Burns was once quoted in a news article that “I would rather achieve public visibility than results of our programs in the public relations.” This “low profile leader” is one of the most respected Housing Authority Directors in the County, a visionary public servant, and a valued friend.

Mr. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce a bill that would double the budget of the National Eye Institute (NEI) within three years.

Blinding eye and vision disorders pose a tremendous challenge to our health care system. The numbers are staggering. By the year 2030, 66 million Americans will be at risk for blinding-eye disorders. Cataracts affect 29 percent of Americans between the ages of 65–74. Glaucoma, the leading cause of blindness in African Americans, affects three million Americans. Age-related macular degeneration (AMD), a disease which alters central vision, affects an estimated 1.7 million Americans.

Since its establishment in 1968, NEI has conducted and supported research that helps prevent and treat eye diseases. A few of its research achievements include: New medical therapies to treat glaucoma; introducing drugs to treat uveitis, a potentially blinding inflammation of the inside of the eye; and contributing to the development of medical lasers to treat patients with glaucoma, AMD, and other eye disorders.

The National Eye Institute has many exciting research projects on the horizon. They cannot complete those projects without adequate funding. In FY 2000, NEI’s funding was $452,706,000. This year, NEI is funded at $510,611,000. By FY 2004, we should commit $791,714,000 to the NEI budget. We have an obligation to make our commitment to eye and vision research at the NEI as strong as our commitment to the biomedical research at the National Institutes of Health.

I urge my colleagues to support increasing the research efforts at the National Eye Institute by cosponsoring this legislation.

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise and announce that an exhibition entitled “Carr, O’Keeffe, Kahlo: Places of Their Own” has been organized by Dr. Sharyn Udall of my home town, Santa Fe, New Mexico. Each artist in this exhibition represents one of the three great countries of North America: Canada, the United States and Mexico.

This exhibition, therefore, celebrates the cultural bond of the North American continent which transcends national borders. We may well find that this cultural bond will also prove to be a benefit to our mutual economic interests.

In the Congress, we often talk about the need for enhancing our commerce and trade, commerce, merchandise, and exportation. Rarely do we reflect on the need for the international exchange of art. This exhibition gives us an opportunity to do so.
all aspects of the National Missile Defense debate in the coming months to ensure that whatever course we choose truly strengthen our national security and advance our national interests.

Is This Shield Necessary? [From the Washington Post, Feb. 13, 2001] (Samuel R. Berger)

In the first days of the Bush administration, national missile defense has risen to the top of the national security agenda. Having wrestled with this issue over the last years of the Clinton administration before it would be a mistake to proceed pell-mell with missile defense deployment as though all legitimate questions about the system had been answered.

While the United States maintains strength unmatched in the world, the vulnerability of the American people to attack here at home by weapons of mass destruction is greater than ever. Dealing with our vulnerabilities to chemical, biological and nuclear threats requires an ambitious, robust, comprehensive strategy.

But 20 years and tens of billions of dollars later, national missile defense is still a question-mark rather than the least of the threats posed by these weapons: a long-range ballistic missile launched by an outlaw nation.

President Clinton last year decided to continue research and development of national missile defense, but deferred a decision on deployment. This was based on a judgment that we do not yet know whether it will work reliably. The Bush administration should reject arbitrary deadlines and, as part of Secretary Rumsfeld’s laughable defense review, take a fresh look at the overall threat we face.

Without a question we need to broaden America’s defenses against weapons of mass destruction. But plunging ahead with missile defense deployment before critical questions are answered is looking through the telescope from the wrong end: from the perspective of bureaucratically driven technology rather than that of the greatest vulnerabilities of the American people.

President Reagan’s global shield (SDI) has evolved into a more limited system aimed at defeating long-range missiles launched not by a malevolent rival but by an irrational leader of a hostile nation, particularly North Korea, Iraq or Iran. Its premise is that an aggressive tyrant such as Saddam Hussein is less likely to attack us than the leaders of the Soviet Union by the prospect that an attack on us or our friends would provoke devastating retaliation.

It is further suggested that lack of a defense could intimidate U.S. leadership. We might have hesitated to liberate Kuwait if we knew Saddam had could have delivered a chemical or nuclear weapon to the United States with a long-range ballistic missile.

But why do we believe Saddam or his malevolent counterparts would be less susceptible to deterrence than Stalin or his successors? Indeed, dictators such as Saddam tend to stay power so long because of their obsession with self-protection. And is it likely we would not use every means at our disposal to respond to a vital threat to our economic lifeline, even if it meant preemptively taking out any long-range missiles the other side might have?

The fact is that a far greater threat to the American people is the delivery of a wide array of mass destruction by means far less sophisticated than an ICBM: a ship, plane or suitcase. The tragedies of the USS Cole and sarin gas in the subway show that lethal power does not need to ride on a long-range missile.

We know that we increasingly are the target of a widespread network of anti-American terrorists. We know they are seeking to obtain weapons of mass destruction. If deterrence is not available to us, then it is even less so for fanatic terrorists with no clear home address.

The real issue is what is the most cost-effective way to spend 100 billion or more defense dollars to protect this country from the greatest WMD threats. In that broader context, is national missile defense our first priority?

Is it wiser to continue research and development and explore alternative technologies while we invest in substantially intensifying the broad nuclear, chemical and biological defenses against terrorist enemies? (Such an effort would include increased intelligence resources, heightened border security, even training of local police and public health officials to recognize a deadly biological agent.)

The ultimate question is whether Americans will be more secure with or without a national missile defense. The answer is not self-evident. We can’t build the system that is farthest along in development—a land-based one—without cooperation from our allies.

Their misgivings derive in significant part from the prospect of abrogating the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty with Russia; that could unravel the global arms control and nonproliferation system.

It has been suggested that we could address Russian concerns by including them in our missile defense system or helping them build their own. But such an amalgamation would be more capable against Russia and less capable against the rest of the world.

We must understand that the basic logic of the ABM has not been repealed—that if either side has a defensive system the other believes can neutralize its offensive capabilities, mutual deterrence is undermined and the world is a less safe place.

Then there is China. It is suggested that we can work this out with China by at least implicitly giving it a “green light” to build up its ICBM arsenal to levels that would not be threatened by our national missile defense.

This strategy fails to take into account the dynamic it could unleash in Asia. Would China’s missile buildup stimulate advocates of nuclear weapons in Japan? How would India view this “separate peace” between the United States and China? What effect would that have on Pakistan and the Koreans?

Will we be more secure as Americans with a missile defense system or less secure? It is not a question of the system itself. But it is a question that requires answers.

JERUSALEM EMBASSY RELOCATION ACT OF 1995

HON. THOMAS G. TANCREDO
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, today I introduced a resolution expressing the sense of Congress with respect to relocating the United States Embassy in Israel to Jerusalem. In 1995, Congress passed the Jerusalem Embassy Relocation Act of 1995, which states that as recognition of an undivided Israel, the U.S. Embassy should be moved to Jerusalem no later than May 31, 1999. The bill, which President Clinton signed, also contains waiver authority that the president may exercise if he feels the embassy move should be delayed for national security reasons. Since the bill was passed, the President has issued a national security waiver, and the Embassy has still not been moved.

The recognition of Jerusalem as Israel’s capital enjoys the broad support of the American public. Further, it would be consistent with the United States’ practice of accepting the host nation’s decision as to where its capital is, and where the U.S. Embassy is located. Currently, Israel is the only nation in which the U.S. Embassy is not located in a city recognized internationally as the capital.

In short, moving the Embassy to Jerusalem is consistent with U.S. policy, and does not infringe on the remaining issues of conflict over East Jerusalem. I call my colleagues to support this resolution and I am hopeful that the House International Relations Committee will consider it in the coming weeks. Finally Mr. Speaker, I submit for the RECORD the following essay, written by one of my constituents, which makes the case for an embassy move most eloquently:

RELOCATION OF THE AMERICAN EMBASSY TO JERUSALEM: A PROPOSITION WHOSE TIME HAS COME

(By Cheston David Mizel)

ENGLEWOOD, CO.—On May 22, 2000 President George W. Bush, speaking in front of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, promised that he would begin to move the U.S. Ambassador from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem as soon as he was inaugurated. Now that he has been elected and the inauguration has passed, the time to move the U.S. Embassy has come. Moving the embassy, at this time, is not only morally and politically apropos, but would augment vital American interests by sending a clear and unambiguous message to the world, reaffirming the vitality of the American-Israeli relationship.

DOMESTIC POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS

The recognition of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel and relocation of the U.S. Embassy would immediately and significantly bolster the President’s standing with key constituencies on both sides of the aisle. Not only would it clearly demonstrate his determination to fulfill his campaign promises, but it would garner enormous favor among Jewish voters who have been disillusioned by the recent presidential election. The prompt relocation of the embassy would further the President’s goal of uniting

MORAL IMPLICATIONS

An immediate relocation of the American Embassy is a morally appropriate decision. Israel is the only true western style democracy in a region dominated by ruthless dictatorships. Israel and the United States enjoy a relationship that is unparalleled in the region. Israel is clearly the most loyal pro-American state in the Middle East. Moreover, the biblical tradition has always been considered the capital of the people of Israel, whether residing in their land or in exile. The modern State of Israel is no exception. Jerusalem is the seat of Israel's government: the site of parliament and its Supreme Court. Despite Palestinian claims to the city, Israel has occupied Jerusalem, the capital of the State of Israel, since it captured the city from Jordan in the 1967 war. In the absence of a viable Palestinian state, the current rulers of the Occupied Territories have no incentive to recognize the capital of any other nation during the more than 3,000 years of its existence. The official recognition of this reality by Israel's closest friend, the United States, has weakened U.S. influence and is not antithetical to stronger American commitment to Israel's security and regional stability. What is at stake is the Clinton proposal that has given the Palestinians an unrealistic expectation that American strength can be applied to avoid an agreement which is not opposed by the United States of America.

SECURITY IMPLICATIONS

In 1995, The United States Congress passed the Jerusalem Embassy Relocation Act requiring the embassy to be moved to Jeru-usalem. The measure passed in the Senate by a vote of 93 to 5 and the House of Representa- tives by a vote of 347 to 37. Since that time, President Clinton refused to move the embassy, using the excuse that it would harm America’s National Security. Nevertheless, it must be noted that Americans vital security interests in the region are closely tied to the security of Israel and its Capital. These interests would be strengthened, not weakened, as a result of an embassy move. In stark contrast to the paternalistic approach of the Clinton Administration, George W. Bush, in December of 1999, speaking before the Republican Jewish Coalition, acknowledged that “A lasting peace will not happen if our friends in Israel do not make Jerusalem conform to our vision of national security.”

In Navigating Through Turbulence: America and The Middle East in A New Century, The Washington Institute for Near East Policy’s Presidential Study Group concluded that “[t]he top Middle East priority for the new President is to prevent a descent into regional sectarianism and to pursue policies for the current situation deteriorating into a wide-scale conflict. While the scenarios differ in regard to course of events, they are all connected to the same general instability in the region, which has been greatly contributed to by the United States’ failure to demonstrate the strength of its allegiance to Israel. Indeed, the Presidential Study Group’s initial recommendation in averting a war is that:

“The United States needs to ensure that Middle Easterners have no doubt about the strength, vitality and durability of the U.S.-Israeli strategic partnership, about America’s commitment to Israel’s security and, about the U.S. commitment to provide political, diplomatic and material support to Israel. These objectives can be achieved through the Presidential Study Group’s recommendation of holding meetings with senior Israeli officials and acts that signal U.S. resolve and support.

The rationale behind the Report’s suggestion is that such a course would silence those extreme Anti-Israel elements which view Israel’s willingness to compromise as a sign of weakness and America’s “evenhandedness” evidence that the U.S. can be defeated while America stays unim- posed to preserve its “evenhanded” diplomatic role. The Presidential Study Group concludes that such an outcome has severe implications for the United States’ role as Israel’s ally.” Where equivocal support has served to embolden Israel’s enemies, a show- ing of strength and absolute support for Israel’s security and respect and formal recog- nition that Israel cannot be defeated and that compromise is the only viable Arab option.

In light of the Clinton plan for Jerusalem, which President Clinton himself acknowledged would not bind the Bush administra- tion, Israel’s position on Jerusalem has been significantly weakened and is in much need of rehabilitation. The Clinton proposal, which calls for division of Jerusalem’s Old City, creates problems for Palestinian leaders and is not antithetical to the U.S. role in the peace process. The President did not propose geographic division of Jerusalem. The Clinton proposal, which calls for division of Jerusalem’s Old City, creates problems for Palestinian leaders and is not antithetical to the U.S. role in the peace process.

Moreover, this unrealistic expectation is exacerbated by the perception, in the Arab world, that the Bush administration will be even more sympathetic to Palestinian posi- tions. This misconception could lead to dan- gerous miscalculations, with potentially dangerous consequences, and should be rem- oved.

So long as America encourages Israel to engage in a policy of appeasement, there can be no hope of a Middle East peace settlement. Each Israeli concession merely in- creases the appetite of its enemies. This process undermines the United States' credibility in the face of regional hostility. Failure to relocate the embassy only perpetuates unachievable expectations that make violent conflict all the more likely.

The Presidential Study Group recently concluded that America’s ties with Arab states should not be dependent on avoiding pro-Israeli positions, but rather:

America is the country with which the large majority of regional states will still wish to have close political, economic, and military ties. Maintaining a strong alliance with Israel has stopped Arab Gulf states from welcoming the United States as their defender against potential subregional hegemons. Similarly, it has not prevented every state on Israel’s border, except Syria, from accepting America as a major, if not the dominant, regional power. In other words, the United States is in a strategic relationship with Israel which will always be condemned by the Arab world. They simply have not accepted Israel’s right to exist. Moving the embassy will demonstrate the U.S. determination to support Israel’s exist- ence in the face of regional hostility. Failure to relocate the embassy only perpetuates unachievable expectations that make violent conflict all the more likely.

The Presidential Study Group recently concluded that America’s ties with Arab states should not be dependent on avoiding pro-Israeli positions, but rather:

The United States needs to ensure that Middle Easterners have no doubt about the strength, vitality and durability of the U.S.-Israeli strategic partnership, about America’s commitment to Israel’s security and, about the U.S. commitment to provide political, diplomatic and material support to Israel. These objectives can be achieved through the Presidential Study Group’s recommendation of holding meetings with senior Israeli officials and acts that signal U.S. resolve and support.

The Presidential Study Group’s initial recommendation in averting a war is that:

The rationale behind the Report’s suggestion is that such a course would silence those extreme Anti-Israel elements which view Israel’s willingness to compromise as a sign of weakness and America’s “evenhandedness” evidence that the U.S. can be defeated while America stays unim- posed to preserve its “evenhanded” diplomatic role. The Presidential Study Group concludes that such an outcome has severe implications for the United States’ role as Israel’s ally.” Where equivocal support has served to embolden Israel’s enemies, a show- ing of strength and absolute support for Israel’s security and respect and formal recog- nition that Israel cannot be defeated and that compromise is the only viable Arab option.

In light of the Clinton plan for Jerusalem, which President Clinton himself acknowledged would not bind the Bush administrato the unifying culture being promoted by the administration. It will finally bring the United States into compliance with its own law and fulfill the weighty moral obligations imposed by the sacred principles of democracy and freedom to our faithful ally which has been ignored for too long.

PROVIDING MEDICARE COVERAGE FOR FILIPINO WORLD WAR II VETS

HON. PATSY T. MINK
OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce a bill that would allow Filipino WWII Veterans to enroll in Medicare even if they do not meet the eligibility requirements.

The time is long overdue that we provide justice to the Filipino Veterans who fought side by side with the United States Army during World War II.

On July 26, 1941, the Philippine military was called upon to join forces with the United States under an Executive Order by President Roosevelt. Their efforts were instrumental in the United States’ successful final assault in the Pacific.

Despite their outstanding contributions, in 1946 Congress enacted the Rescission Act, which stripped members of the Philippine Commonwealth Army of being recognized as veterans of the United States. As a result, they were excluded from receiving full veterans benefits.

Last Congress, we provided disabled Filipino veterans living in the United States with the same payments for service-related disability compensation as other veterans receive.

Let’s go one step further this year.

Under my bill, qualified WWII Filipino Veterans living in the United States would be entitled to Medicare Part A benefits and the option to enroll in Part B.

It is time to recognize the service of our friends and neighbors who fought so valiantly for freedom and democracy.

SECOND AMT BILL INTRODUCED

HON. RICHARD E. NEAL OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, a week ago I introduced legislation to allow non-refundable personal credits, like the child credit and education credits, to be used against the alternative minimum tax. I have introduced this legislation in the past two Congresses, and it has been enacted into law twice on a temporary basis.

The legislation I introduce today corrects an additional critical problem with the AMT. In this case, the mere fact that a family has a large number of children forces them to become alternative minimum tax taxpayers, and they lose some of the benefit of their personal exemptions.

For example, my office has been in touch with a family in North Carolina for over a year. This military family has ten children, are home schoolers, and began to pay the alternative minimum tax in 1998. An extension of the temporary law regarding nonrefundable personal credits will not help this family, and neither will President Bush’s tax proposal help them out of the AMT or give them a rate reduction. While it may be true that this family will be “no worse off” than they are now, they will not be any better off either in terms of their current situation. I do not believe relief for this family from the alternative minimum tax should wait until it is more convenient, or until after this year is over.

Mr. Speaker, I think all the members of this body would agree that this family is not the type of family we meant to pay the minimum tax. They do not have large tax preferences with which they are sheltering income. Yet they are paying the minimum tax. Mr. Speaker, I hope all members will not just agree that we should provide families like this one relief, I hope they will act to provide that relief on the first tax bill on which Congress works.

INTRODUCTION OF FY2001 DEFENSE SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATION

HON. NORMAN D. DICKS OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce an emergency supplemental appropriation bill for the Department of Defense and to ask my colleagues here in the House to pass it expeditiously.

This legislation will provide $6.7 billion in emergency funding for critical readiness needs of the armed forces, and it will cover the cost of shortfalls in the Defense Health Program as identified by the Chiefs of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force.

This amount is only what is required to cover unexpected cost increases for the most basic needs of our service members through the end of this fiscal year. This is an appropriate and an expected response to the kinds of unavoidable expenses—fuel, power increases, housing and other operations— that were not provided for in the regular appropriations bill for the Department of Defense.

This is a routine and prudent exercise, Mr. Speaker, we must act expeditiously in order to avoid the cuts in each of the services that would be triggered soon—with nearly half the fiscal year over—if we were not to pass this bill.

There are many causes for this action that is now required. The basic cost of living for our armed forces is substantially higher than DOD’s projections from last year. Congress approved the FY 2001 Defense Appropriations bill more than six months ago, and the budget Congress approved had been assembled well over a year ago. In the interim, energy costs have skyrocketed, housing costs have increased substantially because we’ve been making a conscious effort to improve the living conditions for our military personnel and their families. And Congress and President Bill Clinton have committed the nation to provide higher pay and more housing for our military families.

Let me also address the issue of why it is neither necessary nor prudent to wait until the new Defense Secretary completes his Strategic Review. It is clear to me that none of these costs will be affected in the slightest way by a strategic review of Pentagon systems. In most cases, these bills have already been incurred, and the money is already spent. The need for a supplemental appropriations bill to cover these costs is simply indisputable.

I believe that the current resistance to such a bill by the Bush Administration has more to do with the size and timing of tax cuts than it has to do with military strategy. Not paying these bills now forces the Department of Defense to reduce and delay training and maintenance. And it thus affects the readiness of our armed forces. It is simply too high a price to pay for the questionable goal of quick and massive tax cuts. I can understand why the political strategists may want to conduct a debate over large tax cuts without the annoyance of mentioning the costs of necessary budget increases for the Defense Department.

I just do not believe it is responsible to do so, and I am therefore asking my colleagues from both sides of the aisle to approve this urgent supplemental defense spending bill as soon as possible.

Of the $6.7 billion in this bill, a total of one billion dollars will go toward pay and housing allowances; $4.3 billion will be for operations and maintenance costs such as training, force protection, aircraft and ship maintenance, base operations, and fuel cost increases. One billion dollars will be allocated for unanticipated health care costs; $270 million to procure spare parts and force protection equipment, and $110 million will be provided to offset the impact of energy price increases on military family housing.

I am proud to join with my original cosponsors, Representatives Ike Skelton, Norm Sisisky, Martin Frost, Chet Edwards and Ellen Tauscher in introducing this bill. I hope that the Appropriations Committee will move quickly to review and pass this bill. And I hope that President Bush will agree to sign it.

TRIBUTE TO THE VICTIMS OF THE ORANGEBURG MASSACRE

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN
OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the men and women who were victimized in the little known civil rights battle which has become known as the Orangeburg Massacre. And to thank South Carolina’s Governor Jim Hodges for the remarks he made during last week’s thirty-third anniversary of this catastrophic event which took place on February 8, 1968. The Governor’s remarks are inserted below.

The Orangeburg Massacre’s place in history has been overlooked, and is considered one of the most violent such events in South Carolina’s struggle for civil rights. While many people believe the Kent State shootings were the first such event in our nation’s history, the Kent State event occurred two years after the unrest at my alma mater, S.C. State. Henry Smith, 20, Samuel Hammond, 19, and Delano Middleton, 17, lost their lives during the bloody clash. Another twenty-seven people were also injured by the bullets from state law enforcement officers on that ill-fated evening.

Some three hundred students gathered on the campus of South Carolina State after three days of sit-ins and protests at All-Star Bowling Lane. The students were continuing their demonstration against the segregation of Orangeburg’s bowling alleys. Four years after passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the establishment remained segregated, despite numerous efforts to persuade the owners to integrate.

Mr. Speaker. I ask you to join me today in honoring Henry Smith, Samuel Hammond and Delano Middleton, the twenty seven students who survived their wounds. Governor James Hovis Hodges along with the hundreds of other students, teachers, administrators and parents who helped and are still helping to bring equality to this nation.

REMARKS OF GOVERNOR JIM HOVIES—SOUTH CAROLINA STATE UNIVERSITY, ORANGEBURG, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 2001

I am truly honored and humbled to be here with you today.

Nearly 170 years ago, when our country was still newly-formed a Frenchman named Alexis de Tocqueville came to our shores to explore this fledgling experiment in democracy. Over two centuries later, a landmark treatise called Democracy in America. He told his readers that he “sought the image of democracy itself, with its inclinations, its character, its prejudices and its passions, in order to learn what we have to fear or hope from its progress.”

Had Tocqueville visited America in 1968, he would have seen much fear and little hope. We were a country in turmoil. Thousands of American soldiers died in Vietnam. Assassins struck down Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King. Neighbors feared and distrusted one another. We were a state and a nation deeply divided by race, age and politics.

This was especially evident on our college campuses. On these campuses, the passions of the time swamped protests and confrontation. Some of these protests are known to all Americans. One of the most famous images of that era is a young girl weeping over her fallen friend at Kent State in Ohio.

But when we look in the pages of history, the Orangeburg Massacre is often missing. Most Americans do not know the night of February 8, 1968. The Orangeburg Massacre was a great tragedy for our state. Even today, the State of South Carolina bows its head, bends its knee and begins the search for reconciliation.

The families of Samuel Hammond, Henry Smith and Delano Middleton are gathered here today. We thank you for coming. As a parent, I can only imagine the sorrow you must have felt to lose a loved one. We wish we had the opportunity to know them as you did. We regret that they were taken from us at such a young age.

Many of the survivors of that night have gathered here. We thank you for coming, and we welcome you back to Orangeburg today. You have taken Orangeburg a better place, South Carolina is a better place, and America is a better place than it was thirty-three years ago.

I also want to thank the students of S.C. State for being here today. If these three young men were alive today, their sons and daughters would be college students just like you. They were here because their parents believed in education. And you are here because of the sacrifices they made. These sacrifices must never be forgotten, and these opportunities must never be taken for granted.

Thirty-three years ago, a group of students gathered around a bonfire on this campus after being denied their basic right to patronize a local business. And on that cold February night, that bonfire was extinguished, along with the lives of three brave young men.

But that bonfire still glows brightly today. Because we—the living—are now the keepers of that flame.

We must carry the flame with understanding and compassion and education. Opportunity comes from education. Ignorance and prejudice are turned back by education.

The flame of education illuminates the dark corners of the world. The flame of education warms our hearts with reconciliation. And the flame of education can guide us into a future of boundless hope and opportunity.

In America, we still seek the image of democracy itself. And we still must contend with our passions and our prejudices.

But if Alexis de Tocqueville . . . or Samuel Hammond . . . or Henry Smith . . . or Delano Middleton were here today, they would see a city, and a state, and a nation where fear has waned and hope abides. They would see a city, and a state, and a nation where fear has waned and hope abides. They would see a city, and a state, and a nation where fear has waned and hope abides. They would see a city, and a state, and a nation where fear has waned and hope abides. They would see a city, and a state, and a nation where fear has waned and hope abides. rate 110 percent higher than part-Hawaiians, and this pattern is found in all but one of the 13 leading causes of deaths common to both groups.

The health status of Native Hawaiians is far below that of other U.S. population groups. In a number of areas, the evidence is compelling that Native Hawaiians constitute a population group for which the morality rates associated with certain disease exceed that for other U.S. populations in alarming proportions.

Native Hawaiians premise their high morality rates and incidence of disease upon the breakdown of the Hawaiian culture and belief systems, including traditional healing practices. That breakdown resulted from western settlement and the influx of western diseases to which the native people of the Hawaiian Islands lacked immunity. Further, Native Hawaiians perceive the high incidence of mental illness and emotional disorders in the Native Hawaiian population as evidence of the cultural isolation and alienation of the native peoples in a statewide population of which they now constitute only 20 percent. Settlement from both the east and the west brought new diseases which decimated the Native Hawaiian population, and it devalued their customs and traditions to the point of prohibiting their native tongue in schools and other public venues.

The concepts embodied in this bill are the result of extensive work of Native Hawaiian health care professionals and others dedicated to improving the health of Native Hawaiians. Its purpose is to enable Native Hawaiians to achieve the healthful harmony of the self, or lokahi, with others and all of nature. For Native Hawaiians to function effectively as citizens and leaders in their own homeland, there must be a restoration of cultural traditions, integration of traditional healing methods in the health care delivery system, and a collective effort to restore to Native Hawaiians a sense of self esteem and self worth. The ultimate goal is to have this Native Hawaiian way of dealing with health eventually become an integral part of the State’s health policy for both Native Hawaiian and Non-Hawaiians.

HONORING GENERAL MOTORS FLINT TRUCK ASSEMBLY PLANT

HON. DALE E. KILDEE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, today I speak on behalf of a group of men and women who proudly represent the best of working America. On Tuesday, February 13, business and community leaders in my hometown of Flint, MI, will gather to honor the 3,051 auto workers of the Flint Truck Assembly Plant. On that day they will celebrate the Chevy Silverado HD, selected as Motor Trend Magazine as 2001’s "Truck of the Year".

The Flint Truck Assembly Plant which is located on Van Slyke Road has been assembling automobiles since 1947. In addition to producing the Silverado 1500, 2500, 3500 HD, the plant also produces GMC Sierra 1500, 2500, 3500 HD, and 1500.

General Motors continues to support the plant by investing $500 million in new equipment, and there are plans to add a new line. With continued support not only from General Motors but also from the community, the plant will no doubt see many more successes and accolades in the future.

Mr. Speaker, the Chevy Silverado HD was built with quality labor and parts. The employees of the Flint Truck Assembly Plant have worked diligently to improve their facility’s productivity and quality. This group is one example of what hard work, determination and a passionate desire to be No. 1 can accomplish. I am grateful for the men and women who day-in and day-out work to provide safe quality vehicles for the world.

I ask my colleagues in the 107th Congress to join me in recognizing their achievement.

TRIBUTE TO JUDY Rocciano

HON. DIANA DeGETTE
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Ms. DeGETTE Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize the notable accomplishments and the extraordinary life of a woman in the 1st Congressional District of Colorado. It is both fitting and proper that we recognize this community’s leader for her communal record in civic leadership and invaluable service. It is to commend this outstanding citizen that I rise to honor Ms. Judy Rocciano.

Judy Rocciano is a remarkable woman who has touched the lives of many people and made a tremendous impact on our community. Her indomitable spirit has sustained her through many challenges and molded a life of notable accomplishment. Those who know Judy understand her passion for fairness, community service and political activism. She is well known in the Denver area for being outspoken and for her immeasurable contribution to the life our community.

Judy Rocciano began her life in Findlay, Ohio and in 1971, she came to Colorado on vacation and subsequently moved to Denver three months later. Judy is a paralegal and has been a successful businesswoman. She has distinguished herself in the non-profit sector as the Southwest Director of the Concord Coalition where she worked on revisions to Social Security and Medicare in six states. She also served as a powerful advocate for Choice as Executive Director of Colorado NARAL. It comes as no surprise that she was honored by Colorado NARAL as a “Local Hero.”

Judy also found the time to serve in numerous community service capacities as a board member of the Washington Park Community Center, as a founding board member of the Neighborhood Resource Center, and as President of Colorado NARAL, the Aurora League of Women Voters, the West Washington Park Neighborhood Association and the Theatre Associates Group. She has also been very active in the Colorado Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

I have had the great privilege of working with Judy Rocciano in a political organizing capacity. She is well known in Democratic political circles for her leadership and years of dedication to Democratic Party candidates. In 1995, when Judy announced her candidacy for Councilwoman, I was elated and proud to support her. Judy’s political accomplishments are well known and include her service to the Democratic Party and its candidates. When people need some advice or need to get something done, they go to Judy Rocciano. She has managed numerous campaigns including those of State Senator Deanna Hanna, State Senator Doug Linkhart, State Representative Wayne Knox, State Board of Education Member Gully Stanford, and Councilman Dave Doering. She was instrumental in passing the bonding authority to build Denver International Airport and she also managed the very successful Colorado Cultural Facilities District to bring needed resources to sustain the arts and cultural amenities in Denver. She headed up the Get-Out-The-Vote effort for my first campaign, for the campaign of Councilwoman Cathleen MacKenzie and for the Democratic Coordinated Campaign.

Judy Rocciano’s contribution to the life and character of our community is one that is rich in consequence. It is the character and deeds of Judy Rocciano, and all Americans like her, which distinguishes us as a nation and ennobles us as a people.

Please join me in paying tribute to Judy Rocciano. It is the values, leadership and commitment she exhibits on a daily basis that serves to build a better future for all Americans. Her life serves as an example to which we should all aspire.

NATIONAL SALUTE TO HOSPITALIZED VETERANS

HON. KAREN McCARTHY OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Ms. McCARTHY of Missouri, Mr. Speaker, in 1978 the Department of Veterans Affairs designated the week of February 14 as “National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans,” calling upon the nation to focus on hospitalized veterans by making personal visits, hosting programs, and sending valentine cards to veterans from an appreciative country. Twelve years ago columnist Ann Landers called up Americans to participate by sending a valentine to hospitalized veterans on February 14. The response has been tremendous as school children, clubs, churches, and individuals sent notes of affection to those who gave the greatest gift of love through their patriotic service.

“National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans” was originally known as “No Greater Love Day” in tribute to those who sacrificed to protect the future of the United States and the freedom each of us enjoys today. Those who choose to serve know that “Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.” (John 15:13.) In recognition of an injury sustained during times of conflict a soldier receives a heart, the Purple Heart, the greatest honor and a symbol of admiration. In tribute we are reminded to send a valentine message from the heart to veterans wounded in action and to all who served.

As we salute our veterans, we must also recognize the medical care provided by VA medical centers, clinics, and nursing home facilities. I applaud the efforts of the hundreds of compassionate men and women who have dedicated themselves professionally to our veterans. Our veterans are receiving the best of care from people who care. This includes volunteers and the medical professionals who provide countless hours of medical and customer service. Collectively they help provide that personal contact which means so much. As we extend our heartfelt thanks to our veterans, it is the appropriate time to also acknowledge the dedication of those who provide professional and voluntary care.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in saluting our veterans who served in times of peace and war and the volunteer care for our veterans. Happy Valentines Day, a day that symbolizes true love and appreciation.

THE LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENTS OF JEAN CARPENTER

HON. HILDA SOLIS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mrs. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, Jean Carpenter opened the doors of opportunity for the children of Baldwin Park through her “learning to read” programs. She served as a positive role model to the residents of the 31st Congressional District. She is an example of how one person’s perseverance can make tremendous changes to improve our educational system.

Saddly, Jean Carpenter passed away this Monday, February 12, 2001 at the age of 58. She was first diagnosed with breast cancer in 1987 and was forced to leave school in 1988.

An active school board member since 1995, she helped establish reading programs as a way to help children obtain a brighter future. These innovative reading programs that were implemented by the school board significantly improved the reading scores in Baldwin Park.

Jean believed that by setting high expectations for each student, this would consequently lead to higher school retention, less drop-out rates, and better preparation to enter the workforce.

She was ahead of her time, advocating reeducation in class sizes, initiating a drive to obtain $43 million for computer and technology equipment for local schools, and helping to pass a $15 million school bond to remodel and improve old school buildings.

She also began the “Mother and Daughter Program” to involve parents in their children’s education. Jean believed that parent participation would motivate students to excel academically so that they could attain a college education.

She was bestowed with many awards, including: the 1998 57th Assembly District Woman of the Year and the 1999 Baldwin Park Citizen of the Year. In the year 2000, she was honored with the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Young Women’s Christian Association (YWCA).

Jean is the first to acknowledge these awards due to her leadership and commitment to improving the educational system in Baldwin Park. To her friends and family, she was a fighter. Even during her struggle with cancer, she continued to serve on the school board and participated in many community activities.

Jean Carpenter obtained her Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Thomas Aquinas College and a Masters in Education from City College of New York. Carpenter is survived by her husband Leroy, her son Michael, and two granddaughters.

We must continue to share the legacy that Jean Carpenter left for us to admire and to replicate in order to improve the educational system nationwide.

IDENTITY THEFT

HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I highly recommend the attached article “Know Your Customer” by Christopher Whalen, which recently appeared in Barron’s, to my colleagues. This article examines the horrors faced by victims of America’s fastest-growing crime: identity theft. As the article points out, millions of Americans have suffered deep financial losses and the destruction of their credit history because of identity theft. Victims of identity theft often discover that the process of reestablishing one’s good reputation resembles something out of a Kafka novel. Identity theft also affects numerous businesses which provide credit to unscrupulous individuals based on a stolen credit history. Just last year, American businesses and consumers lost 25 billion dollars to identity thieves!

Mr. Whalen properly identifies the Social Security number and its use as a universal identifier as the root cause of identity theft. Unfortunately, thanks to Congress, today no American can get a job, open a bank account, or even go fishing without showing their Social Security number. Following the lead of the federal government, many private industries now use the Social Security number as an identifier. After all, if a bank needs to see their customers’ Social Security number to comply with IRS regulations, why shouldn’t the bank use the Social Security number as a general customer identifier?

In order to end this government-facilitated identity theft, I have introduced the Identity Theft Prevention Act (H.R. 220). This act requires the Social Security Administration to issue new, randomly-generated Social Security numbers to all citizens within five years of enactment. The Social Security Administration would be legally forbidden to give out the new number for any purpose not related to Social Security administration. Numbers issued prior to this act would be considered non-transferable, therefore, the Social Security Administration could continue to use the old numbers to cross-refer an individual’s records to ensure smooth administration of the Social Security system.

This act also forbids the federal government from creating national ID cards or establishing any identifiers for the purpose of investigating, monitoring, overseeing, or regulating private transactions between American citizens, as well as repealing those sections of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 that require the Department of Health and Human Services to establish a uniform standard health identifier. By putting an end to government-mandated uniform IDs, the Identity Theft Prevention Act will prevent millions of Americans from having their liberty, property and privacy violated by private-and-public sector criminals.

I urge my colleagues to read the attached article and act to repeal government policies which facilitate identity theft by cosponsoring the Identity Theft Prevention Act.

[From Barrons, January 15, 2001] obtain credit using the Social Security number and non-existent credit history of a middle-class woman who lives in Westchester. On examining Jean’s credit reports, I discovered that it was Megacorp, after extending credit to the Bronx delinquent, that reported the false name and new address to Experian linked to Jean’s Social Security number. The alias and new address were automatically added to Jean’s credit history without any verification whatsoever.

By making the false report to Experian, Megacorp apparently created a window of opportunity, enabling the Bronx lawbreaker to open accounts with Home Depot, Exxon, and AT&T Wireless, eventually involving over $10,000 in bad debt. I contacted these vendors to correct their misimpression that Jean was their customer.

Significantly, neither Megacorp nor Experian nor any of the other credit reporting agencies attempted to contact Jean to verify the significant change in name and address reported by Megacorp.

I confronted representatives of Experian and the other credit reporting agencies attempted to contact Jean to verify the significant change in name and address reported by Megacorp. Experian’s representatives were courteous, however, and amended the reports after we provided copies of the relevant court documents.

Megacorp continued to send Jean demand letters from various collection agencies for months after my first telephone and written responses. I kept on asking: How could anyone of even minimal competence look at the credit reports from Experian and other agencies and approve credit to the fictitious Bronx resident?

Answer: The credit report tied to Jean’s Social Security number wasn’t reviewed. One Megacorp representative told me unofficially that the Social Security number was simply checked for defaults, judgments, etc., and when it came up clean—the number, not the name and not the application—the credit was approved.

The Secret Service agent in White Plains, New York, who took the report on Jean’s experience confirmed that he sees dozens of such cases every month in which Social Security numbers are used to commit fraud. The perpetrators are rarely caught.

Lenders and the providers of credit information have created a system that is inadequate to its purpose if a valid Social Security number and a couple of other pieces of information are sufficient to defeat most credit controls. Lenders may complain that it would be too costly to manually screen applicants and verify identities, but how much more costly would it be if they had to bear the costs they now push off onto Jean and other victims of fraud?

Financial author Martin Mayer rightly says that there are no economies of scale in banking, but the loan approval operation of too many consumer lenders suggests there are diseconomies of scale. It seems that the bigger a bank gets, the sloppier it gets.

Eliminating the use of Social Security numbers as identifiers by law seems like a logical solution. Texas Rep. Ron Paul has introduced legislation to prohibit the commercial use of Social Security numbers as identifiers, but Congress needs to more thoroughly examine the issue.

Even if Social Security did not exist, the financial system would invent another system of universal identification. Congress should place the blame where it belongs, on the lenders and credit bureaus. It should require credit bureaus to obtain written affirmation from consumers prior to accepting a change in the name, address or other details on a credit history. Lenders should be held liable for reporting false information to credit bureaus, especially in cases where false reports lead to acts of financial fraud.

Additionally, Congress needs to afford consumers greater protection from asset seizures based solely on Social Security numbers.

We are, after all, innocent until proven guilty. A bank or Megacorp that treats us otherwise has committed a gross injustice. And it—not we—should pay.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD
— DAILY DIGEST
February 13, 2001

The public proceedings of each House of Congress, as reported by the Official Reporters thereof, are printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed at one time. • Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available through GPO Access at www.gpo.gov/gpoaccess. Customers can also access this information with WAIS client software, via telnet at swais.access.gpo.gov, or dial-in using communications software and a modem at (202) 512-1661. Questions or comments regarding this database or GPO Access can be directed to the GPO Access User Support Team at: E-Mail: gpoaccess@gpo.gov; Phone 1-888-293-6498 (toll-free), 202-512-1262. The Team’s hours of availability are Monday through Friday, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, except Federal holidays. • The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $130.00 for six months, $380.00 per year, or purchased for $4.00 per issue, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $341.00 per year, or purchased for $1.50 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. To place an order for any of these products, visit the U.S. Government Online Bookstore at: bookstore.gpo.gov. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O. Box 371954, Pittsburgh, PA 15250-7954, or phone orders to (202) 512-1800, or fax to (202) 512-2250. Remit check or money order, made payable to the Superintendent of Documents, or use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, or GPO Deposit Account. • Following each session of Congress, the daily Congressional Record is revised, printed, permanently bound and sold by the Superintendent of Documents in individual parts or by sets. • With the exception of copyrighted articles, there are no restrictions on the republication of material from the Congressional Record.
